Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in or indicated on any sketch, blueprint, plan, or elsewhere in this lease, no vaults, vault space, or space outside the property lines of the building shall be deemed leased hereunder. Landlord makes no representation as to the location of the property lines of the building. All vaults and vault space and all space not within the property lines of the building which Tenant may be permitted to use and occupy are to be used and occupied under a revocable license. If any such license is revoked, or if such space is diminished or taken by any governmental authority, Landlord shall not be subject to any liability therefor, and Tenant shall not be entitled to any compensation or diminution or abatement of rent, and such revocation, diminution, or taking shall not constitute a constructive or actual eviction. Tenant shall pay any municipal fee or charge for such vault.

(3) Vault and other adjoining space excluded from lease--tenant's obligation to pay rent, fines, and costs of removing violations

Landlord does not lease to Tenant any vaults or other space upon or under any street or sidewalk adjoining the leased property, but Tenant may occupy and use such vaults or other space during the term of this lease and any renewal or extension term, subject to all applicable governmental laws, rules, and regulations. No revocation by any governmental authority having jurisdiction of the maintenance and use of such vaults or other space upon or under any street or sidewalk adjoining the leased property shall in any way affect this lease, the amount of basic rent, or any other charge payable by Tenant hereunder. Tenant shall be liable for any rent or compensation charged or any fine or damages demanded by any governmental authority on account of the use of such vaults or other space. If any maintenance or use of such vaults or other space becomes prohibited, Tenant shall, at its expense, perform all work necessary to comply with the prohibiting order.

(4) General encroachments--landlord's exoneration--tenant's obligation to comply with orders to remove

(a) "As is" condition. Tenant represents that it has examined the leased property, including the title thereto, the possession and occupancy thereof, the adjoining sidewalks and structures, all surface and subsurface conditions thereof, and the present uses thereof, and that it accepts all thereof in the condition or state in which they now are, "as is," without any express or implied representation, covenant, or warranty, in fact or in law, and without recourse to Landlord as to the title thereto, possession or occupancy thereof, encumbrances thereon, appurtenances, nature, condition, or usability thereof, or uses to which the leased property may be put.

(b) Encroachments on street. Any existing encroachment on any avenue or street may continue. Tenant's failure to remove such encroachments shall not constitute a default by it under this lease, unless the state, the municipality, or any other competent body orders removal of such encroachment. In such case, Tenant, in a safe and workmanlike manner and at its expense, shall comply promptly with such order, cause such encroachment to be removed promptly, and take all necessary steps to remove any violations noted in connection therewith and to protect adequately both parties from liability or injury to persons and property.

(c) Encroachment on adjoining property. Any existing encroachment on property adjoining the leased property may continue. Tenant's failure to remove such encroachment shall not constitute a default by it under this lease, unless a court or other competent body orders the removal of such encroachment. In such case, Tenant, in a safe and workmanlike manner and at its expense, shall comply promptly with such order, cause such encroachment to be removed promptly, and take all necessary steps to protect adequately both parties from liability for injury to persons and property. Any cause of action at law or in equity instituted against either party, or both, shall be defended by Tenant, at its expense, and by counsel reasonably satisfactory to Landlord. Tenant shall duly discharge any judgment for damages, whether in connection with such order, separately, or in lieu thereof, rendered against either party, or both.

(5) Vault removal not to affect lease--tenant to pay costs

If any vault or basement in front of or adjoining the leased premises, or any portico, stoop, window, or other projection or erection of any kind beyond the building lines, as authorized and fixed by law from time to time during the term, is ordered removed or is removed as the result or by virtue of any present or future federal, state, city, or other governmental laws, ordinances, requirements, orders, rules, or regulations, such removal, whether entire or partial, shall not constitute or be deemed to be a violation or breach of any of Landlord's covenants under this lease, a ground for any claim for damages against Landlord, or for any claim for the abatement, diminution, or reduction of rent or other charges. Tenant shall make such removal and incidental alteration and repair at its expense. Tenant shall indemnify and hold harmless Landlord against and from all costs, expenses, liabilities, losses, damages, suits, fines, penalties, claims, and demands, including reasonable counsel fees, arising out of failure to comply with such laws, ordinances, requirements, orders, directions, rules, or regulations directing such removal, alteration, or repair.

FORM 23.55 Rights to assign and sublease

COMMENT

Most lease agreements control, in some way, the tenant's right to assign his lease or to sublet the leased property. Though the limitations may be minimal and, in effect, may permit assignment or subletting without the landlord's consent, normally provision is made at least for the procedures to be followed by the tenant and for certain basic protections for the landlord.

Alternative provisions:

The most liberal provision permitting assignment and sublease by the tenant requires no more than adequate notice to the landlord of the transaction negotiated by the tenant. The opposite provision is the provision requiring the landlord's approval as a prerequisite to any assignment or sublease. There are a number of intermediate variations. Consent may be required for all assignments except those to related organizations or to controlled business enterprises. A basic question is the extent of the obligation which is to continue with the assignor after the assignment.

Subtenant and prime lease:

Additional conditions and limitations may control subleases. An attornment provision is often included in a sublease, so that each subtenant will be required to accept the prime lessor as landlord under the sublease in the event of the sublessor's default under the prime lease. Even where this formality is not imposed, the prime landlord may retain the right to collect rents from subtenants in the event of the sublessor's default as lessee under the prime lease.

Tax aspects of assignment or sublease:

Both with respect to tax consequences and consequences under local law, one of the major issues in a tenant's disposition of his leasehold interest is whether it is to be classified as a complete assignment or as a sublease. This classification generally determines whether proceeds from the disposition are taxed as ordinary income or as capital gain. In the hands of the lessee, a leasehold is ordinarily a capital asset. Where the lessee makes an assignment of his entire interest, he is generally permitted to recover tax-free the unexhausted portion of the basis to him of the leasehold interest, and to treat the balance of the consideration as a capital gain. In contrast, where the transaction constitutes a sublease, the consideration is deemed to be rental income.

Classification as assignment or sublease:

While there are clear distinctions in the law between an assignment and a sublease, there are many borderline transactions in which the classification depends on the extent to which the tenant has retained rights or responsibilities. Among the facts which have caused a disposition to be treated as a sublease are the reservation in the lease of the right to exercise a purchase option, the lessee's continuing liability to the lessor, the lessee's right of reentry for breach, and an arrangement for monthly payments of the "selling price." If these facts are not present, and if the disposition is complete, there will be a capital transaction, even if the assignment is to a landlord who is to lease directly to a subtenant. The latter transaction should be distinguished from the cancellation of a lease by a landlord and tenant; in a cancellation the amount received by the landlord from the tenant must be reported as ordinary income.

Tax treatment of assignment gain, income:

Classification of the transaction as an assignment does not completely dispose of the question as to whether ordinary income or capital gain is to be reported. The nature of the leasehold interest as an asset of the tenant is also relevant. If the taxpayer is engaged in the business of selling leaseholds, he would be required to report gain from a leasehold assignment as ordinary income. In most cases, the leasehold is either a capital asset or, if the lessee is engaged in the business of subleasing, depreciable business property. In both these situations, gain realized upon an assignment would be subject to the capital gain limitations.

Assignment vs. sublease:

The real property law makes important distinctions between an assignment and a sublease. In the case of an assignment, the assignee acquires privity of estate with the lessor, and each may sue the other for breach of lease covenants running with the land. The original tenant terminates his privity of estate with the landlord, but he may continue to be liable for rent payments as a contractual obligation. If the assigning tenant is to be released from this obligation it should be clearly expressed by the landlord. The assignor's responsibilities for other covenants under the lease are normally extinguished by an assignment. In the case of a sublease, the original tenant retains both privity of contract and privity of estate with the lessor and hence remains liable for the observance of all the covenants in the lease.

Landlord's assignment of lease:

A landlord's disposition of leased property normally is accomplished by a sale or exchange of the entire parcel. It is possible, of course, for the landlord to assign the right to rents and retain title to the property. Amounts received as consideration for such an assignment must be reported as ordinary income. The landlord's rights as lessor also may be conveyed in connection with the execution of an overriding or "sandwich" lease.

For a further discussion as to whether a transaction is a lease or a sale of property for tax purposes, see the Tax Background (TB) § 23.14, at the beginning of this chapter. For discussion of sale-leaseback transactions, see TB § 23.15.

FORMS

Tenant may sublet all or portions of the leased property for the remainder of the term with Landlord's approval, which it shall not unreasonably withhold, if the subtenant's business or occupation is not extra-hazardous, or illegal, but Tenant shall remain primarily liable for the payment of rent and the performance of its other obligations hereunder.

(2) Landlord's consent required to assign, sublet or mortgage--acceptance of rent from subtenant or assignee

Tenant shall not assign, mortgage, or encumber this lease, or permit all or any part of the leased property to be used by others, without Landlord's prior written consent. If, with such consent, Tenant makes such assignment or permits such use, Landlord may, after Tenant's default, collect rent from the assignee, subtenant, or occupant and apply the net amount collected to the rent herein reserved. No such assignment, subletting, occupancy, or collection shall be deemed a waiver of this covenant, or the acceptance of the assignee, subtenant, or occupant as tenant, or a release of the Tenant from its further performance of the covenants in this lease. Landlord's consent to an assignment or subletting shall not be construed to relieve Tenant from obtaining Landlord's written consent to any further assignment or subletting.

(3) Tenant's right to assign to a corporation in which tenant is a principal stockholder--release of initial tenant from liability

Notwithstanding any provision herein to the contrary, Tenant, if it is not then in default, may assign this lease to a corporation of which it is the principal stockholder. Tenant shall be released from all liability hereunder one year after it delivers a copy of such assignment to Landlord, together with an assumption agreement in form satisfactory to Landlord's counsel.

(4) Landlord's consent for tenant assignment or sublet--reimbursement of landlord's attorneys' fees--landlord's consent not unreasonably withheld

Tenant shall not transfer, assign, sublet, or pledge this Lease or its interest in the Leased Premises without Landlord's prior written consent. Tenant shall reimburse Landlord for its reasonable attorneys' fees incurred in processing or documenting the requested consent. Landlord shall not unreasonably withhold its consent to any such transaction, provided that Tenant shall remain liable during the term hereof and there shall be no uncured defaults when the consent is requested and granted.

(5) Landlord's authority to assign lease--tenant to hold assignee responsible for performance--not applicable to assignment as security

Landlord reserves the right to sell, assign, or transfer this Lease upon the condition that, in such event, this Lease shall remain in full force and effect, subject to the performance by Tenant of all its terms, covenants, and conditions, and upon the further condition that such assignee or transferee, except as assignee or transferee merely for security, agrees to perform all the terms, covenants and conditions under this Lease. Upon any such sale, assignment, or transfer, other than merely as security, Tenant agrees to look solely to the assignee or transferee with respect to all matters in connection with this Lease and Landlord shall be released from any further obligations hereunder. If Tenant makes any security deposit by virtue of this Lease or otherwise, Landlord may transfer the deposit to the assignee or transferee and thereupon Landlord shall be discharged from any further liability in reference thereto.

(6) Assignment, sublet or license, voluntary or by operation of law requires landlord's prior consent--sale of stock in corporate tenant deemed an assignment--consent not a release of tenant

Tenant shall not assign, mortgage or encumber this lease, or sublet, license, or permit all or any part of the demised premises to be used by others, whether voluntarily, by operation of law, or otherwise, without Landlord's prior written consent. If Tenant is a corporation, the sale or transfer of its stock representing control shall be deemed an assignment of this lease, unless the sale or transfer (a) is made to a publicly owned corporation, (b) involves the sale or issuance of securities registered under the Securities Act of 1933, as amended, (c) is made among Tenant's existing stockholders, or (d) results from the death of one of Tenant's stockholders. If this lease is assigned, or all or any part of the demised premises are sublet, or occupied by anyone other than Tenant, Landlord may collect rent from the assignee, sublessee, or occupant and apply the net amount collected to the rent due. However, no such collection of rent shall be deemed a waiver of Landlord's consent, Landlord's acceptance of the assignee, sublessee, or occupant as tenant, or a release of Tenant's performance of its obligations under this lease. Landlord shall not unreasonably withhold its consent to any assignment or subletting, but if such consent is granted in any instance, the same shall not relieve Tenant or any assignee or subtenant from obtaining Landlord's written consent to any further assignment or subletting.

(7) Prior consent required for sublet or assignment, voluntary, involuntary, or by operation of law--consent required for assignment by merger or liquidation of corporate tenant and assignment for benefit of creditors

(a) Assignment or subletting. Lessee shall not, whether voluntarily, involuntarily, or by operation of law, assign or encumber all or any part of this Lease, sublet all or any part of the Demised Premises, or permit any other person to occupy the same without Lessor's prior written consent. If Lessee requests permission either to assign this Lease or to sublet all or part of the Demised Premises, or if this Lease is deemed to be assigned under paragraph (b) of this Article, Lessor may either grant or withhold consent, but shall not be deemed to have made an election unless the same is in writing and signed on Lessor's behalf by a duly authorized person. Lessor's consent to any assignment or subletting shall not release Lessee from any of its obligations hereunder, including the payment of rent or other sums provided for herein. Lessor's acceptance of rent from any other person shall not be deemed a waiver of any provision hereof or a consent to the assignment or subletting of the Demised Premises.

(b) Merger. If Lessee is a corporation, any transfer of this Lease from Lessee by merger, consolidation or liquidation, or any change in ownership or power to vote of a majority of its outstanding voting stock from the owners of such stock or those controlling the power to vote such stock as of the date of this Lease shall constitute an assignment.

(c) Assignment for benefit of creditors. An assignment for the benefit of creditors or by operation of law shall not be effective to transfer any rights to assignee without Lessor's prior consent.

(8) Landlord's consent required to assign--definition of unreasonable withholding of consent--tenant discharged upon assignee's assumption of liability

Tenant shall not assign this lease without Landlord's prior written consent, which it shall not unreasonably withhold. Landlord shall not withhold such consent if the proposed assignee's financial standing and responsibility at the time of such proposed assignment is sufficient to give Landlord reasonable assurance of the payment of all rents and other amounts required under this lease, and of compliance with all other terms, covenants, provisions, and conditions hereof. Upon such an assignment, Tenant shall thereafter be released from all liability arising or accruing hereunder, provided that such assignee shall execute, acknowledge, and deliver to Landlord an assumption agreement, in form and substance satisfactory to it, whereby such assignee agrees to observe, perform, and keep, all of the terms, provisions, covenants and conditions required to be observed, performed and kept as tenant hereunder.

(9) Tenant's limited right to assign and sublet without consent--no discharge of tenant

(a) Acquisition or merger, store use. Tenant may assign this lease without Landlord's consent to any corporation which is affiliated with Tenant, or to any corporation with or into which Tenant merges or consolidates (if the resulting corporation controls substantially all of Tenant's store operations), or which acquires substantially all of the assets of Tenant's store operations. Tenant may also assign this lease to any qualified department store operator. Tenant shall not assign this lease to any other person or business organization without Landlord's prior written consent, which it shall not unreasonably withhold. Landlord's consent shall not be required, however, if, during the three consecutive lease years immediately preceding the assignment, the volume of gross sales were such as to not entitle Landlord to receive any percentage rent hereunder. No assignment of this lease at any time shall release Tenant of its obligations hereunder. No extension of time or other indulgence granted by Landlord to any subsequent Tenant, regardless of whether notice is given to any predecessor, shall release Tenant from any of its obligations hereunder.

(b) Assignment and assumption. No assignment shall be valid or effective until there is delivered to Landlord a duplicate original of the assignment, in recordable form, containing the assignee's name and address, and the assignee's assumption of this lease and of all Tenant's obligations hereunder. Such assumption need relate only to obligations to be performed by Tenant from and after the date of such assignment.

(c) Tenant ownership. The transfer of a majority of the issued and outstanding capital stock of any corporate tenant or of a majority of the total interest in any partnership tenant, however accomplished, shall be deemed an assignment of this lease.

(d) Sublease. Tenant may sublet all or any part of the leased property, but Landlord's prior written consent shall be required for a sublease of any substantial portion of the property to any person other than a corporation to which an assignment may be made without such consent under subparagraphs (a) through (c), above. No such sublease shall be valid or effective until a duplicate original thereof is delivered to Landlord. No sublease shall affect or diminish Tenant's obligation to perform all of its obligations under this lease.

(10) Tenant's right to assign or sublet to similar business--approval required for other assignments or subleases--release of tenant

(a) Assignment. Tenant may assign this lease, without Landlord's consent, to any qualified motel operator, to any corporation, a majority of the officers and directors of which are qualified motel operators, or to any corporation in which Tenant or its members or stockholders own a majority of the issued and outstanding capital stock. Tenant may assign this lease to any other person or corporation with Landlord's written consent, which it shall not unreasonably withhold. No assignment shall be valid, however, until there is delivered to Landlord a duplicate original of the instrument of assignment, in recordable form, containing the assignee's name and address, and the assignee's assumption of this lease and of all agreements to be performed by Tenant. Upon any valid assignment of this lease, as provided herein, Tenant shall be relieved of all obligations accruing from the effective date of the assignment, but all prior rental obligations shall remain unaffected. The transfer of a majority of the issued and outstanding capital stock of any corporate assignee of this lease, or of a majority of the interests in any partnership assignee of this lease, however accomplished, shall be deemed an assignment of this lease.

(b) Sublease. Tenant may sublet all or any part of the leased property, except that it shall obtain Landlord's prior written consent, which Landlord shall not unreasonably withhold, for a sublease of more than 50 percent of the property to other than a qualified motel operator. No such sublease shall be effective until a duplicate original of it is delivered to Landlord. No sublease shall diminish Tenant's obligation to perform all of its agreements hereunder, including the obligation to pay additional percentage rental based upon gross income from the subtenant's operations.

(c) General prohibition. Except as provided in subparagraphs (a) and (b) of this article, no assignment or sublease shall be valid without Landlord's written consent.

(11) Tenant's right to sublet--tenant's and landlord's right to assign--continued liability of assignor

Tenant may sublet all or any part of the leased property, except that no part shall be sublet for any unlawful, dangerous, noxious, or offensive purpose. No subletting by Tenant shall affect its obligation to perform all of its covenants under this lease. Landlord and Tenant each may assign or transfer its respective right, title, and interest in and to this lease without the other party's consent. No such assignment shall release the assigning party of any obligation or liability hereunder unless the other party specifically agrees in writing to such release.

(12) Tenant's right to sublet--prescribed procedure--requirement for attornment by subtenant

Tenant may sublet all or part of the leased property for any purposes not prohibited by this lease, upon the following conditions:

(a) Subordination. Each sublease shall provide that it is subject and subordinate to the rights of Landlord under this lease and to any renewal, amendment, or modification thereof, and to the rights of any mortgage to which this lease is subject or subordinate and to all renewals, modifications, consolidations, correlations, replacements, and extensions thereof. The provisions for such subordination shall be self-operative so that no further instrument of subordination need be required by any mortgagee.

(b) Cancellation or surrender. Without Landlord's written consent, Tenant shall not effect a cancellation or surrender of any sublease, except in accordance with its terms.

(c) Default. Without Landlord's written consent, Tenant shall not knowingly permit any default by it, as sublessor, to continue with respect to any sublease which would enable the subtenant to terminate its lease. If any subtenant at any time asserts to Tenant that it is so in default, Tenant shall promptly notify Landlord of such claim.

(d) Advance rent. Tenant shall not collect rent in advance for more than one month from any subtenant without Landlord's prior written consent. However, if not prohibited by the terms of any mortgage to which this lease is subject or subordinate, Tenant may accept payment of rent for up to the first six months of the term of a sublease if its terms provide for tenant changes in the subleased space to be performed at Tenant's expense, and such rent payments do not exceed the amount actually required for such changes.

(e) Attornment. The Tenant will cause each sublease to contain a provision in substantially the following form: "If by reason of a default by Landlord as tenant under any underlying lease in performing any of its terms or provisions, or if for any other reason the underlying lease and Landlord's leasehold estate as tenant thereunder are terminated by summary proceedings or otherwise, or through foreclosure proceedings brought by the holder of any mortgage to which such underlying lease is subject or subordinate (the "holder"), Tenant will attorn to the lessor under such underlying lease (the "lessor") or to the purchaser in foreclosure proceedings (the "purchaser"), as the case may be, and will recognize the lessor or purchaser as Tenant's Landlord under this sublease, unless the lessor or holder in such proceedings elects in connection therewith to terminate this sublease and Tenant's right to possession of the leased property. Tenant shall execute and deliver, at any one or more times, upon the request of Landlord, the lessor, or the holder, any instrument that is necessary or appropriate to evidence such attornment. Tenant appoints Landlord its attorney-in-fact to execute and deliver all such instruments. Tenant waives any present or future right of election to terminate this sublease or to surrender possession of the leased property if the underlying lease is terminated or any such proceeding therefor is brought by the lessor or holder. This sublease shall not be affected in any way by any such proceeding or termination unless and until the lessor or holder, in connection with such proceeding, elects to terminate this sublease and to extinguish Tenant's leasehold estate hereunder."

(f) Lease copy. Tenant shall furnish Landlord with a true copy of each sublease and of each extension or modification of a sublease.

(13) Tenant's right to assign in whole only--no release--transfer of subtenants' security deposits

(a) Assignment conditions. Tenant shall have the absolute right to assign this lease in whole only and not in part, without Landlord's consent, subject to the following conditions:

- (1) At the time of making such assignment, Tenant is not in default of any of the provisions of this lease.
- (2) Landlord receives written notice of the assignment and its effective date within 10 days after its execution and delivery.
- (3) Such assignment is in writing, duly executed and acknowledged by Tenant in proper form for recording.
- (4) Such assignment includes the then unexpired balance of this lease term.
- (5) A duplicate original of such assignment is delivered to Landlord within 10 days after its execution and delivery.
- (6) Such assignment is duly recorded.
- (7) All subtenants' security deposits held by Tenant at the time of such assignment are then transferred to the assignee, who will be advised by Tenant, to the best of its knowledge, information, and belief, of all existing legal requirements with respect thereto. Tenant also shall supply to Landlord a statement of the amounts of the security deposits so turned over.
- (8) Such assignment expressly prohibits the assignee from removing any of Landlord's personalty from the leased premises without Landlord's express written consent.
- (9) No assignment of this lease releases or discharges, in whole or in part, Tenant's liability for the full performance of its terms, covenants, and conditions hereunder.

(b) Partial sublease. Tenant may sublet a portion of the leased premises upon the terms and conditions set forth in subparagraph (a) above with regard to an assignment of this lease, except that such subletting shall not be for the entire unexpired balance of the lease term and the sublease shall not be recorded.

(c) Rent. If all or any part of the leased premises is sublet or occupied by anybody other than Tenant, Landlord may, after Tenant's default, collect rent from all subtenants or occupants, and apply the net amount collected to the rent reserved herein. However, no such collection shall be deemed a waiver of any agreement, term, covenant, or condition hereof or Landlord's acceptance of any subtenant or occupant as tenant. Tenant shall not collect more than one month's advance rent from any subtenant.

(14) Tenant's right to assign and sublet--release upon assignment

(a) Assignment. Tenant may assign this lease together with all of its rights hereunder without Landlord's consent, subject to the following conditions:

- (1) At the time of such assignment this lease is in full force and effect.
- (2) Landlord is given notice of such assignment and its effective date within 5 days after its execution and delivery.
- (3) Such assignment is in writing, duly executed and acknowledged in proper form for recording, and recorded within 10 days after execution and delivery.
- (4) Such assignment includes the unexpired balance of the lease term and all rights of renewal.
- (5) A duplicate original or certified copy of such assignment together with the recording date is served upon Landlord within 10 days after its return from the office of the recorder.
- (6) Every assignee assumes this lease by instrument, and a duplicate original of which is served upon Landlord within 10 days after the effective date of such assignment.

(b) Release of tenant. Immediately upon making an assignment of this lease, in compliance with the conditions in subparagraph (a), Tenant shall be released and relieved of all further liability thereunder. Each subsequent assignee, upon making a further assignment in compliance with the foregoing conditions, shall immediately be released and relieved of all further liability under this lease.

(c) Subleases. Tenant may sublet all or portions of the leased property at any time without Landlord's consent, except that Tenant shall not, without first obtaining such consent:

- (1) Sublet space exceeding 7,500 square feet of rentable area to any one subtenant.
- (2) Enter into any sublease of a portion of the leased property which has a term of more than 10 years, or has renewal or extension privileges in favor of the subtenant for a term expiring more than 10 years from the date of the inception of the original sublease term.
- (3) Cancel, surrender, or modify any sublease having an unexpired term of one year or more, or an annual rental in excess of $10,000 per annum.

(4) Enter into an extension or new sublease relating to all or any portion of the leased property at a rental less than 80 percent of the rent previously payable for such space under the last sublease applicable thereto.

(d) Subordination. All subleases shall be subject and subordinate to this lease. No right, estate, or privilege of any subtenant shall exceed Tenant's rights, estate, and privileges hereunder. In the event of any termination of this lease, whether by expiration, forfeiture, cancellation, surrender, or otherwise, Landlord may terminate all leases and deem any dispossession of Tenant to constitute an automatic dispossession of all subtenants. Landlord shall not be bound by any agreement, term, covenant, or condition contained in any sublease, regardless of whether it has notice thereof. Landlord may require Tenant to include the above provisions as to subletting in each sublease made by Tenant which has a term of five years or more, or has renewal or extension privileges in favor of the subtenant for a term expiring five years or more from the date of the inception of the original sublease term.

(e) Rent. If any part of the leased property is sublet or occupied by anybody other than Tenant, Landlord may, after Tenant's default, collect rent from any subtenant or occupant, and apply the net amount collected to the rent reserved herein. However, such collection shall not be a waiver of any agreement, term, covenant, or condition of this lease, or Landlord's acceptance of any subtenant or occupant as tenant.

(15) Landlord's assignment of existing leases to new tenant

Landlord, without recourse, hereby assigns to Tenant for the term of this lease, and while Tenant is not in default hereunder, all its right, title, and interest in and to all existing leases and tenancies covering portions of the leased property, and the rents and profits due or to become due to Landlord under the provisions thereof. Tenant hereby assumes for the term of this lease the performance of all of Landlord's obligations under such leases and tenancies, and undertakes to indemnify Landlord against all obligations accruing thereunder from and after the date of this lease.

(16) Landlord's assignment of existing leases to new tenant--special provision for security deposits and tax escalator clauses

(a) Assignments. This lease is given and accepted by Lessee subject to the leases, rights, and privileges of tenants in possession, more particularly set forth in Schedule A attached, and the existence of such leases, rights, and privileges shall not be deemed a violation of Landlord's covenant of peaceful possession, or any other covenant in this lease. Lessee assumes all liability by reason of such leases and the rights and privileges of such tenants and, subject to the right of Landlord to receive all basic rent, percentage rent, and additional rent reserved to Landlord hereunder, Lessee from the date hereof is hereby entitled to all rents, additional rents, and other amounts due from such tenants, except that Landlord shall retain any security deposits listed in Schedule A subject to any obligation to pay interest thereon.

(b) Security deposits. If any lease requires the security deposit to be returned to the tenant, Lessee shall pay over the deposit to it. If the deposit or deposits have been previously paid over to Landlord, Lessee shall receive a credit against current rent equal to the amounts so returned. If Lessee is entitled by law to receive any security deposit as a result of a default by any tenant, and such deposit has previously been paid over to Landlord, Lessee shall receive a credit against current rent equal to such deposit.

(c) Rent escalation. Lessee shall be required to collect and pay over to Landlord as additional rent all sums due under the tax-escalator clauses of existing leases and of all future leases containing such tax-escalator clauses made by Lessee for any portion of the leased property. Lessee shall not be required to include any sums received by Landlord as security deposits or any additional rent due Landlord by virtue of an increase in tenant rental resulting from increased real estate taxes, as part of gross business in computing percentage rental; nor shall any such sums be considered as part of the payments by Lessee of guaranteed minimum rent or percentage rent due hereunder.

(d) Term. Lessee shall be allowed to enforce all rights, remedies, and privileges of Landlord under the terms of the leases listed in Schedule A, except as otherwise provided herein, until such leases expire or this lease terminates, whichever occurs first.

(17) Landlord's right to assign interest in rents

Landlord may assign from time to time the entire net rent payable hereunder to persons, firms, corporations, trusts, or other entities designated by it in written notice to Tenant. In such event, Tenant shall pay the net rent, subject to the terms hereof, to Landlord's designee at the address specified in Landlord's notice for the period covered by such assignment.

(18) Landlord's consent required to sublet--right of recapture

Tenant may sublet all or any part of the leased property with Landlord's prior written consent, which it shall not unreasonably withhold. However, if Tenant, upon not less than 60 days' prior written notice, advises Landlord of its intention to sublet for substantially the unexpired balance of the term (80 percent or more of the term's remaining period), Landlord may, by giving written notice to Tenant within 30 days after it receives Tenant's notice, recapture the space described therein. Landlord's recapture notice shall terminate this lease with respect to the space described in Tenant's notice as of the date stated in such notice. If Tenant's notice covers all of the leased property and Landlord gives the recapture notice with respect thereto, this lease term shall end on the date stated in Tenant's notice as if that date had originally been fixed for the term expiration. If this lease is terminated with respect to less than the entire leased property, the rent shall be proportionately adjusted on the basis of the number of square feet retained by Tenant.

(19) Recapture option for space proposed to be sublet--landlord notice to tenant of exercise of option--conditions to sublease--sublease profits to be paid to landlord

(a) Sublease consent; recapture option. Landlord covenants that it will not unreasonably withhold or delay its consent to any subletting of all or any part of the demised premises, subject to compliance with the provisions of paragraphs (b), (c), and (d) below. However, if Tenant, by written notice, advises Landlord of its intention, from on and after a stated date, which shall not be less than 60 days after the date of Tenant's notice, to sublet all or any part of the demised premises for substantially the unexpired balance of the term (75 percent or more of the term's remaining period), Landlord may recapture the space described in Tenant's notice by giving written notice to Tenant within 30 days after receipt of its notice. Landlord's recapture notice shall terminate this lease with respect to the described space as of the date stated in Tenant's notice. If Tenant's notice covers all of the demised premises and Landlord gives the recapture notice with respect thereto, this lease term shall end on the date stated in Tenant's notice as fully and completely as if that date had originally been fixed for the term expiration. If, however, this lease is cancelled with respect to less than the entire demised premises, the rental and the escalation percentage herein reserved shall be adjusted on the basis of the number of square feet retained by Tenant in proportion to the number of square feet in the demised premises, and this lease as so amended shall continue thereafter in full force and effect.

(b) Prohibited uses. No sublease shall be made with a Tenant who shall be, or who shall seek to use any portion of the demised premises for occupancy as, an employment agency, labor union office, physician's or dentist's office, dance or music studio, school (except for the training of Tenant's employees), beauty salon, or for any purpose otherwise prohibited by this lease.

(c) Maximum number of tenants. No sublease shall be made if it results in an occupancy of more than three tenants (including Tenant) in the demised premises or if it is for a term of less than two years, unless the unexpired term of this lease is for less than two years. In such event, the subletting shall be for the unexpired term less one day).

(d) Tenant, subtenant liability. Any subletting hereunder shall not release or discharge Tenant of or from any past, present, or future liability, under this lease, and Tenant shall continue fully liable hereunder. The subtenants shall agree to comply with and be bound by all of the terms, covenants, and conditions of this lease to the extent of the space sublet, and Tenant shall deliver to Landlord, promptly after execution, an executed copy of each such sublease and an agreement of compliance by each such subtenant on Landlord's form.

(e) Profits to landlord. If there is any sublease of all or any part of the demised premises, Tenant shall pay Landlord (1) the amount by which any rent or other consideration paid to Tenant by any subtenant exceeds the pro rata portion of the rent for such space that Tenant is then paying to Landlord under the provisions of this lease, and (2) any other profit or gain realized by Tenant from such subletting. All sums payable hereunder by Tenant shall be paid to Landlord as additional rent immediately upon the receipt thereof by Tenant.

(20) Notice of sublease to include proposed sublease, proposed use, and subtenant financial information--landlord's right of first refusal to sublease--landlord's option for partial or complete termination--leaseback at rent in tenant's lease--sublease limitations and terms

(a) Assignment; subletting; prior consent. Tenant, for itself, its heirs, distributees, executors, administrators, legal representatives, successors and assigns, expressly covenants that it shall not assign, mortgage or encumber this lease, or underlet or permit all or any part of the Demised Premises to be used or occupied by others, without Landlord's prior written consent. If this lease is assigned or the Demised Premises are so underlet or occupied without Landlord's consent, Landlord may, after Tenant's default, collect rent from the assignee, undertenant, or occupant, and apply the net amount collected to the rent reserved herein. However, no assignment, underletting, occupancy or collection shall be deemed a waiver of the provisions hereof, the acceptance of the assignee, undertenant or occupant as tenant, or a release of Tenant from the performance of its obligations hereunder. Landlord's consent to an assignment or subletting shall not release Tenant from obtaining Landlord's express written consent to any other assignment or subletting. In no event shall any permitted sublessee assign or encumber its sublease, further sublet all or any portion of its sublet space, or otherwise permit all or part of such space to be used or occupied by others, without Landlord's prior written consent.

(b) Notice of proposed sublease; right of first refusal. Tenant shall notify Landlord if, at any time, during the term hereof it desires to assign the lease or sublet all or part of the Demised Premises. Tenant's notice shall be accompanied by the following: (1) a conformed or photostatic copy of the proposed assignment or sublease, the effective or commencement date of which is not less than 60 or more than 120 days after such notice is given; (2) a statement setting forth in reasonable detail the identity of the proposed assignee or subtenant, the nature of its business and its proposed use of the Demised Premises; and (3) current financial information with respect to the proposed assignee or subtenant, including, without limitation, its most recent financial report. Such notice shall be deemed an offer from Tenant to Landlord whereby Landlord may: (i) sublease such space (the "Leaseback Space") from Tenant upon the terms and conditions set forth below (if the proposed transaction is a sublease of all or part of the Demised Premises); (ii) terminate this lease (if the proposed transaction is an assignment or a sublease of all or substantially all of the Demised Premises); or (iii) terminate this lease with respect to the Leaseback Space (if the proposed transaction is a sublease of part of the Demised Premises for the entire balance of the demised term). Landlord may exercise any of these options by giving Tenant notice at any time within 30 days after Tenant gives such notice to Landlord. During this 30-day period Tenant shall not assign this lease or sublet such space to any person.

(c) Exercise of termination option. If Landlord exercises its option to terminate this lease when Tenant desires either to assign this lease or sublet all or substantially all of the Demised Premises, this lease shall end on the date such assignment or sublet was to be effective or commence, as the case may be, and the fixed rent and additional rent shall be paid and apportioned to such date.

(d) Partial termination option. If Landlord exercises its option to terminate this lease when Tenant desires to sublet part of the Demised Premises for the entire balance of the demised term, (1) this lease shall end with respect to such part of the Demised Premises on the date the proposed sublease was to commence; and (2) from and after such date the fixed rent and additional rent shall be adjusted, based upon the proportion that the rentable area of the remaining Demised Premises bears to the total rentable area of the Demised Premises.

(e) Landlord's sublet of leaseback area. If Landlord exercises its option to sublet the Leaseback Area, such sublease to Landlord (as subtenant) shall be at the rental rate per rentable square foot of fixed rent and additional rent then payable under this lease, and shall be for the same term as that of the proposed subletting. Moreover, such sublease:

(1) shall be expressly subject to all of the covenants, agreements, terms, provisions and conditions of this lease except those that are irrelevant or inapplicable, and except as otherwise expressly set forth to the contrary in this Section;

(2) shall be upon the same terms and conditions as those contained in the proposed sublease, except those that are irrelevant or inapplicable, and except as otherwise expressly set forth to the contrary in this Section;

(3) shall give the sublessee the unqualified and unrestricted right, without Tenant's permission, to assign such sublease or any interest therein and/or to sublet the space covered by such sublease or any part or parts of such space and to make all changes, alterations, and improvements in the space covered by such sublease (but Tenant shall not be obligated to repair or restore such space), and if the proposed sublease will result in the subletting of all or substantially all of the Demised Premises grant Landlord the option to extend the term of such sublease for the balance of this lease term less than one day;

(4) shall provide that Landlord may permit any of its assignees or further subtenants to make alterations, decorations, and installations in any part of such space; and shall also provide in substance that the assignee or subtenant may remove all or part of such alterations, decorations, and installations before or upon the expiration or other termination of such sublease, if the assignee or subtenant, at its expense, repairs all resulting damage to the sublet space; and

(5) shall also provide that: (i) the parties to such sublease expressly negate any intention that any estate created under such sublease be merged with any other estate held by either of such parties; (ii) any assignment or subletting by Landlord (as the subtenant) may be for any purpose or purposes that Landlord, in its uncontrolled discretion, deems suitable or appropriate; (iii) Landlord, at its expense, may make all alterations that are required or deemed necessary by it to physically separate the subleased space from the balance of the Premises and to comply with all governmental laws and requirements relating to such separation; and (iv) that at the expiration of the term of such sublease, Tenant will accept the space covered by such sublease in its then existing condition, subject to the obligations of the sublessee to make all repairs thereto that are necessary to preserve the premises demised by such sublease in good order and condition, and, at Tenant's option, to restore them to their pre-sublease condition.

(f) Indemnification and release of tenant for leaseback space. (1) If Landlord exercises its option to sublet the Leaseback Space, it shall indemnify and save Tenant harmless from all obligations under this lease as to the Leaseback Area while it is so sublet to Landlord.

(2) Landlord's performance under a sublease of the Leaseback Area shall be deemed Tenant's performance of all similar obligations under this lease, and no default under the sublease shall give rise to a default under a similar obligation contained in this lease. Tenant shall not be liable for any default under this lease, or be deemed to be in default hereunder, if the default is caused by or arises from any act or omission of either the tenant under such sublease or any occupant holding under or pursuant thereto.

(3) Tenant shall have no obligation, at the expiration or earlier termination of this lease term, to remove any alteration, installation or improvement made in the Leaseback Area by Landlord.

(g) Sublease by consent. If Landlord does not exercise any of its options under paragraph (b) above and this lease is in full force and effect, Landlord shall not unreasonably withhold or delay its consent, which must be in writing, to the proposed assignment or sublease, if:

(1) In Landlord's reasonable judgment the proposed assignee or subtenant is engaged in a business, and all or a relevant part of the Demised Premises will be used in a manner, which (i) is in keeping with the then standards of the Building, (ii) is limited to the use expressly permitted under this lease, and (iii) will not violate any negative covenant as to use contained in any other lease of space in the Building;

(2) The proposed assignee or subtenant is a reputable person of good character; and

(3) The proposed assignee or sublessee is not a person with whom Landlord is then negotiating to lease space in the Building.

Except for any subletting by Tenant to Landlord under the provisions of this Article, each subletting hereunder shall be subject to all of the covenants, agreements, terms, provisions, and conditions contained in this lease. Notwithstanding any such subletting to Landlord or to any other subtenant or Landlord's acceptance of rent or additional rent from any subtenant, Tenant shall remain fully liable for the payment of all present and future rent and additional rent due under this lease and for the performance of all Tenant's covenants, agreements, terms, provisions, and conditions hereunder. Tenant shall remain fully liable for all acts and omissions of any licensee, subtenant, or anyone claiming under or through any subtenant which are in violation of any obligation hereunder, and any such violation shall be deemed a violation by Tenant. Tenant further agrees that, notwithstanding any such subletting, no other subletting of the Premises by Tenant or any person claiming through or under it (except as provided in paragraph (e)) shall be made except upon compliance with and subject to the provisions of this Article. If Landlord refuses to consent to any proposed assignment or sublease or exercises any of its options under paragraph (b), Tenant shall indemnify, defend, and hold harmless Landlord against and from all loss, liability, damages, and expenses (including reasonable counsel fees) resulting from any claims that may be made against Landlord by the proposed assignee or sublessee or by any brokers or other persons claiming a commission or similar compensation in connection with the proposed assignment or sublease.

(h) Expiration of landlord's consent. If (1) Landlord fails to exercise any of its options under paragraph (b) and consents to a proposed assignment or sublease, and (2) Tenant fails to execute and deliver such assignment or sublease within 90 days after such consent was given, Tenant shall again comply with all of the provisions and conditions of paragraph (b) before assigning this lease or subletting all or part of the Demised Premises.

(i) Sublease limitations; nondisturbance preconditions. With respect to each and every sublease or subletting authorized by Landlord under the provisions of this lease, it is further agreed:

(1) No subletting shall be for a term ending later than one day before the expiration date of this lease;

(2) No sublease shall be valid, and no subtenant shall take possession of the Premises or any part thereof, until an executed counterpart of such sublease has been delivered to Landlord;

(3) Each sublease shall provide that it is subject and subordinate to this lease and to the matters to which this lease is or shall be subordinate, and that in the event of termination, reentry or dispossession by Landlord under this lease Landlord may take over all of the right, title and interest of Tenant, as sublessor, under such sublease, and such subtenant shall, at Landlord's option, attorn to Landlord pursuant to the then executory provisions of such sublease, except that Landlord shall not (1) be liable for any previous act or omission of Tenant under such sublease, (2) be subject to any offset, not expressly provided in such sublease, which theretofore accrued to such subtenant against Tenant, or (3) be bound by any previous modification of such sublease or by any previous prepayment of more than one month's rent;

(4) Notwithstanding the provisions of (3), above, if any sublease hereunder (i) is entered into after armslength bargaining between Tenant, as sublandlord, and subtenant, and the subtenant is unrelated to Tenant, (ii) is for a term of not less than five years, (iii) provides for rents that are less than the higher of (A) the rental that Tenant is then paying Landlord (including additional rent payable under this Lease), or (B) the fair market rents then prevailing for the Building, (iv) sublets to the subtenant not less than 5,000 square feet of rentable area, and (v) is with a subtenant who is a reputable person of good character (or whose principals are reputable persons of good character) with sufficient financial worth considering the responsibility involved, and Landlord has been furnished with reasonable proof thereof (each such sublease complying with the above requirements, which are collectively referred to as a "Nondisturbance Sublease"), Landlord covenants and agrees to promptly enter into a nondisturbance agreement with the subtenant thereunder in recordable form providing that this lease shall be terminated or expire and provided that the subtenant is not then in default under the Nondisturbance Sublease beyond any period permitted thereunder to cure the same, the Nondisturbance Sublease shall not terminate on account thereof and shall continue as a direct lease between Landlord and the subtenant on all of the terms, covenants and conditions of such sublease as if so entered into in the first instance.

(j) Additional rent on assignment or sublease. If Landlord consents to any assignment of this lease or to any sublease, Tenant shall in consideration therefor pay to Landlord, as additional rent:

(1) in the case of an assignment, an amount equal to all sums and other considerations paid to Tenant by the assignee for or by reason of such assignment (including, but not limited to, sums paid for the sale of Tenant's fixtures, leasehold improvements, equipment, furniture, furnishings or other personal property, less, in the case of a sale thereof, the then net unamortized or undepreciated cost thereof determined on the basis of Tenant's federal income tax returns, brokerage commissions, cost of alterations, and reasonable attorney's fees); and

(2) in the case of a sublease, any rents, additional charge or other consideration payable under the sublease to Tenant by the subtenant which is in excess of the fixed rent and additional rent accruing during the term of the sublease in respect of the subleased space (at the rate per square foot payable by Tenant hereunder) pursuant to the terms hereof (including, but not limited to, sums paid for the sale or rental of Tenant's fixtures, leasehold improvements, equipment, furniture or other personal property, less, in the case of the sale thereof, the then net unamortized or undepreciated cost thereof determined on the basis of Tenant's federal income tax returns and less brokerage commissions, cost of alterations, reasonable attorney's fees and cleaning expenses). The sums payable under this paragraph (2) shall be paid to Landlord as and when payable by the subtenant to Tenant.

(k) Corporate subtenant or assignee. If any assignee or subtenant of Tenant is a corporation (other than a publicly held corporation), the provisions of paragraph (a) shall apply to a transfer (by one or more transferors) of a majority of Tenant's stock as if such transfer were an assignment of this lease. Such provisions shall not apply to transactions with a corporation into or with which Tenant is merged or consolidated or to which substantially all of Tenant's assets are transferred or to any corporation which controls or is controlled by Tenant or is under common control with Tenant, if Tenant's successor has a net worth computed in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles at least equal to Tenant's net worth immediately before such merger, consolidation, or transfer.

(1) Assumption by assignee; tenant's continued responsibility. Any assignment or transfer, whether made with Landlord's consent under paragraph (a) or without its consent under paragraph (k), shall be made only if, and shall not be effective until, the assignee executes, acknowledges, and delivers to Landlord an agreement under which the assignee assumes Tenant's obligations under this lease and agrees that the provisions in paragraph (a) shall, notwithstanding such assignment or transfer, continue to be binding upon it as to all future assignments and transfers. The original named Tenant covenants that it shall remain fully liable for the payment of the fixed rent and additional rent and for all of Tenant's other obligations under this lease, notwithstanding any assignment or transfer or Landlord's acceptance of fixed rent or additional rent from an assignee, transferee, or any other party.

(m) No waiver. The joint and several liability of Tenant and any immediate or remote successor in interest of Tenant and the due performance of Tenant's obligations under this lease shall not be discharged, released, or impaired in any respect by any agreement or stipulation made by Landlord extending the time of, or modifying any of the obligations of, this lease, or by any waiver or failure of Landlord to enforce any of the obligations of this lease.

(n) Building directory. The listing of any name other than that of Tenant, whether on the doors of the Premises or the Building directory, or otherwise, shall not operate to vest any right or interest in this lease or in the Premises, or be deemed to be Landlord's consent to any assignment or transfer of this lease or to any sublease of the Premises or to the use or occupancy thereof by others.

(21) Retail tenant's authority to enter into license agreements with concessionaires--maximum number, floor space, and advertising restrictions--landlord's approval of form of agreement

Landlord agrees that Tenant may enter into license agreements with not more than three concessionaires in the same or related business at any one time and in the aggregate relating to one-fourth or less of the floor space of the demised premises, provided that (1) the concession is conducted and any advertisement in connection therewith is made solely in Tenant's name, (2) Tenant's obligations under this lease are in no manner deemed reduced or impaired thereby, (3) Landlord gives its prior approval as to the form of the agreement, and (4) the agreement contains provisions satisfactory to Landlord to effect the intention of this paragraph.

(22) Landlord withholds written consent unreasonably--tenant to be released

Any tenant renting a residence in the subject dwelling having four or more residential units may sublease his premises, subject to Landlord's prior written consent, which it shall not unreasonably withhold. If Landlord unreasonably withholds such consent, it shall release the tenant from the lease upon the tenant's request.

The tenant shall inform Landlord of his intent to sublease by mailing a notice of such intent by registered or certified mail. Such request shall be accompanied by the written consent thereto of any co-tenant or guarantor of this lease and a statement of the name, business, and home address of the proposed sublessee. Within 10 days after such request is mailed, Landlord may ask the tenant for any additional information that will enable it to determine whether rejection of the request is unreasonable. Within 30 days after Tenant mails the request for consent or Landlord requests the additional information, whichever is later, Landlord shall either send a notice to tenant of its consent or its reasons for refusing consent. Landlord's failure to send the notice shall be deemed to be a consent for the proposed subletting. If Landlord consents, the premises may be sublet in accordance with the tenant's request, but the tenant shall remain liable for the performance of all of his obligations under the lease.

(23) Tenant's right to assign to specified person without landlord's consent upon tenant's retirement--release of initial tenant from liability

Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained herein, if Tenant desires at any time to retire and sell her business to _____, Tenant may assign her interest under this lease to _____ without Landlord's prior written consent. If, at the time of such assignment, Tenant is not in default hereunder, Tenant shall be released from any further liability hereunder. The provisions of this paragraph are effective only if: (a) Tenant notifies Landlord in writing of the events of this paragraph at the time they occur; and (b) _____ confirms in writing his agreement to remain liable under this lease despite Tenant's release from liability.

FORM 23.56 Protective provisions in subleasing

COMMENT

A subtenant's position is uniquely vulnerable. His continued possession depends not only upon the status of his own lease, but also upon the continuation of the relationship between his landlord and the lessor under the prime lease. There are several devices which may afford some protection against defaults resulting from acts or omissions of the sublessor. To some extent, the lessor under the prime lease may also require protection in the event of a sublease. He may, of course, rely on his right to withhold his consent to any sublease and the conditions he can impose as a prerequisite to any sublease. Or, he may rely on the continued responsibility of his own tenant. This, however, will not insure responsible performance by subtenants if the sublessor does in fact default.

Sublessee and prime landlord agreement:

The most comprehensive protection for both the subtenant and the prime lessor is likely to be accomplished by a direct agreement between them. Such an agreement may include the prime lessor's promise that if the subtenant is not in default, his possession will not be disturbed upon the sublessor's default. This type of protection may be afforded either by a nondisturbance agreement, or by an attornment agreement in which the prime lessor undertakes to become the landlord under the sublease and the subtenant undertakes to be bound directly to the prime lessor for the performance of all obligations under the sublease in the event of the sublessor's default.

Alternative provisions:

In some cases, the subtenant agrees in the sublease to attorn to the prime lessor. The subtenant then lacks protection unless there is a separate undertaking by the prime lessor to accept subtenants in good standing. Such a nondisturbance clause may be contained in the prime lease. If the landlord under the prime lease has not executed an attornment or nondisturbance agreement, the subtenant may derive some degree of protection by defining his rights against the sublessor. This clearly leaves the subtenant's status more tenuous than it would be if there were an undertaking by the prime landlord. The subtenant's right of action against the sublessor for damages is not likely, as a practical matter, to have much effect if the sublessor has defaulted under the prime lease. In any event, such a right of action may be predicated on the promise of the sublessor to perform his obligation under the prime lease and to refrain from any cancellation or modification of the prime lease without the approval of the subtenant. Another provision which may prove useful to the subtenant is one which gives him the right to sue the prime lessor directly in the event that the prime lessor defaults in his obligations under the prime lease. Since there is neither privity of contract nor privity of estate between the prime lessor and the subtenant, the subtenant does not have the right of direct action in the absence of such a provision. A similar type of protection is provided by the sublessor's promise to perform all defaulted obligations of the prime lessor.

Subtenant's performance of prime lessee:

The principal danger posed to the sublessor by the sublease is that acts of the subtenant may endanger the sublessor's status under the prime lease. Some degree of protection may be obtained by incorporating the limitations in the prime lease as conditions of the sublease, or obtaining the subtenant's promise to comply with all the provisions of the prime lease.

FORMS

(1) Direct agreement between prime landlord and subtenant

(a) Nondisturbance. So long as the Subtenant is not in default in the payment of rent or additional rent or in the performance of any term, covenant, or condition of the sublease, the Prime Landlord will not join the Subtenant as a party defendant in any action or proceeding for the purpose of terminating the Subtenant's interest and estate under the sublease because of any default by the tenant under the main lease.

(b) Attornment. If the main lease is terminated by reason of possession proceedings or for any other reason and the Prime Landlord succeeds to the interest of the sublessor under the sublease, the Subtenant shall be bound to the Prime Landlord under all of the conditions of the sublease for the balance of the term thereof with the same force and effect as if the Prime Landlord were the landlord under the sublease, and the Subtenant hereby attorns to the Prime Landlord as its landlord. Such attornment shall be effective and self-operative without the execution of any further instruments by either party hereto immediately when the Prime Landlord succeeds to the interest of the landlord under the sublease. The Subtenant shall be under no obligation to pay rent to the Prime Landlord until the Subtenant receives written notice from the Prime Landlord that it has succeeded to the interest of the sublessor under the sublease. The respective rights and obligations of the Subtenant and the Prime Landlord upon such attornment shall for the balance of the term of the sublease and be the same as now set forth therein, it being the intention of the parties hereto for this purpose to incorporate the sublease in this agreement by reference with the same force and effect as if it were fully set forth herein.

(c) Obligations. If the prime lease is terminated by reason of possession proceedings or for any other reason and the Prime Landlord succeeds to the interest of the sublessor under the sublease, the Prime Landlord shall be bound to the Subtenant under all of the terms of the sublease, and the Subtenant shall, from and after such event, have the same remedies against the Prime Landlord for the breach of any agreement contained in the sublease that the Subtenant might have had under the sublease against the sublessor thereunder. However, the Prime Landlord shall not be liable for any act or omission of the sublessor, shall not be subject to any offsets or defenses which the Subtenant might have against the sublessor, and shall not be bound by any rent or additional rent which the Subtenant might have paid to the sublessor for more than the current month.

(2) Landlord's promise to lease to subtenants on sublessor's default

If by reason of any default by the Tenant, this lease, or any extension or renewal, is terminated at Landlord's election before the stated expiration, Landlord will enter into a new lease of the leased property, or a portion thereof, as the case may be, with subtenants in good standing under subleases conforming to the requirements of this lease, for the remainder of the term and subject to the same terms and conditions as contained in such subleases.

(3) Subtenant's attornment agreement--representation that prime lessor will accept subtenant

The Subtenant recognizes that the Sublessor's interest in the premises is that of lessee under a long-term ground lease. If the ground lease is cancelled or terminated before its expiration date and before the expiration date of this lease or any extension or renewal thereof, or if the ground lease is surrendered, whether voluntary, involuntary, or by operation of law, the Subtenant shall make full and complete attornment to the Prime Landlord for the balance of the lease term, including all extensions and renewals thereof, upon the same covenants and conditions as are contained herein, so as to establish direct privity of estate and contract between the Prime Landlord and the Subtenant and with the same force and effect as though this lease was originally made directly from the Prime Landlord to the Subtenant. The Subtenant shall make all rent payments thereafter directly to the Prime Landlord. The Sublessor represents that the Prime Landlord has covenanted that in the event of the cancellation, termination, expiration, or surrender of the ground lease, the Prime Landlord will accept the Subtenant, its successors and assigns, as its lessee for a period equal to the full unexpired portion of the lease term, including all extensions and renewals thereof, and upon the same covenants and conditions as are contained herein, and the Prime Landlord will thereafter become the landlord under this lease.

(4) Subtenant's promise to comply with ground lease

The Subtenant shall duly comply with all the provisions of the ground lease and all the terms of any mortgage to which this sublease is subordinate which are to be observed or performed during the term hereof, except the payment of rent under the ground lease and the payment of interest and principal under any such mortgage.

(5) Sublessor's promise to comply with prime lease--representations as to prime lease

The Sublessor warrants that the performance of the obligations, by the subtenant, under this sublease will satisfy all of the Sublessor's obligations under the prime lease with respect to the leased property. The Sublessor will perform all of its affirmative obligations under the prime lease throughout the term of this sublease. The Sublessor represents that the prime lease contains no terms or provisions which would permit the prime landlord to terminate the prime lease or abridge any rights of the Sublessor as tenant thereunder, except upon the same terms set forth in this sublease for the termination hereof or the abridgement of any right of the Subtenant hereunder.

(6) Sublessor's promise to comply with prime lease--right of subtenant to cure sublessor's default

The Sublessor shall duly observe and perform all obligations imposed upon the tenant under the prime lease to the extent that Subtenant's performance under this lease does not constitute tenant's performance under the prime lease. The Subtenant may, at any time, at the Sublessor's expense, take any action which the Sublessor is required but fails to timely take, if such action is or may be necessary to prevent a default under the terms of the prime lease.

(7) Sublessor to comply with ground lease and with leasehold mortgage--subtenant's right to cure defaults

(a) Ground lease. The Sublessor shall duly pay each installment of net rent under the terms of the ground lease and duly observe and perform every term and condition of the ground lease to the extent that such term and condition is not satisfied by Subtenant's performance under this lease. Sublessor will not do or permit any act, condition, or thing to occur which would or may constitute a default under the ground lease.

(b) Leasehold mortgage. The Sublessor shall duly pay each regular installment of interest and sinking fund payment under the terms of the leasehold mortgage and not do any act or permit any condition to occur which would constitute a default thereunder. Sublessor shall promptly notify Subtenant of any notice of default which Sublessor may receive from the holder of the leasehold mortgage and Subtenant shall have the right, but not the obligation, to cure any such default at Sublessor's cost and expense.

(c) Subtenant performance. The Subtenant may, at any one or more times, make any payment or take any action that is necessary to prevent a default under the terms of the ground lease or the leasehold mortgage. The amount of any such payment or the cost of any such action shall be treated as a sum of money advanced by the Subtenant to the Sublessor and shall be repayable by the Sublessor to the Subtenant on demand. If not so paid on demand, the Subtenant may deduct such amount from any future installment of net rent becoming due hereunder.

(8) Sublessor to renew prime lease if subtenant renews sublease

If the Sublessor receives notice from the Subtenant of its intention to extend or renew this lease, the Sublessor will, within five days after such receipt, give notice to the Prime Landlord of its election to exercise its current extension privilege under the prime lease and thereafter within 10 days shall notify the Subtenant in writing that the prime lease has been effectively renewed for the next succeeding extension period. If the Sublessor fails to give such notice of election to the Prime Landlord, the Subtenant shall be entitled to an assignment from the Sublessor of the prime lease, if such assignment complies with the conditions relating to assignments set forth in the prime lease.

(9) Subtenant's right to proceed against prime landlord

Except as otherwise provided herein, if the Sublessor has the right to enforce any rights against the Prime Landlord or any other party under the main lease because of the default by either, and within a reasonable period after the Subtenant's request the Sublessor fails to enforce such rights, the Subtenant may do so, either in its name or, if necessary, in the Sublessor's name. Such enforcement shall be at the Subtenant's expense, and it shall indemnify the Sublessor against all expenses, including, but not limited to, reasonable counsel fees, incurred by the Sublessor in connection with any such claim, action, or proceeding brought by the Subtenant. Any recovery obtained by the Subtenant shall belong to it, except that the Sublessor shall be compensated therefrom for all damages sustained by it as a result of such default or breach by the Prime Landlord or other party. Any dispute as to damages sustained by the Sublessor shall be determined by arbitration.

(10) No modification or surrender of prime lease without subtenant's consent

The Sublessor shall not modify or surrender the prime lease without the Subtenant's prior written consent, and any modification or surrender made without such consent shall be null and void and have no effect on the Subtenant's rights under this lease.

(11) Prime landlord to enter into nondisturbance agreement with future subtenant

Upon the written request of Tenant, Landlord shall enter into an appropriate agreement with the subtenant of any space in the leased property, who is occupying the same for professional, commercial, or business purposes ("nondisturbance agreement"). The nondisturbance agreement shall provide, in substance, that, so long as the subtenant complies with all of the terms of its sublease, the Landlord, in the exercise of any of its rights or remedies under this lease, shall not deprive the subtenant of possession, or the right of possession, of the leased property during the term of the sublease, or join the subtenant as a party in any action or proceeding to enforce or terminate this lease or obtain possession of the property leased in the sublease for any reason other than a breach by the subtenant of the terms of the sublease which would entitle the sublessor to dispossess subtenant thereunder, if the following conditions are met: (a) the subtenant meets reasonable requirements of financial responsibility; (b) its business is of a character consistent with those in the area of the leased property and with the nature of the building and is required by the terms of the sublease to pay a rental consistent with current rentals in the vicinity of the building for comparable space; (c) such nondisturbance agreement does not cover any period beyond the term of this lease; and (d) simultaneously with the execution of the nondisturbance agreement, the subtenant, at Landlord's request, agrees in writing that if this lease is terminated before the lease term expires the subtenant will be deemed attorned to Landlord, and will become Landlord's tenant under its sublease.

(12) Prime lease to prevail over sublease--tenant liable for breach of prime lease--consent of prime landlord required--prime landlord coinsured--nondisturbance of tenant by prime landlord

(a) Prime lease terms. This lease is a sublease, Landlord having previously entered into a Lease Agreement ("Prime Lease"), a copy of which is attached to this Lease. To the extent that there is any conflict between the provisions of this Lease and the Prime Lease, the Prime Lease shall control. Tenant acknowledges that any default by it under this Sublease Agreement may constitute a default by Landlord as Tenant under the Prime Lease, and that Tenant's liability to Landlord shall include, but not be limited to, any damages or liabilities incurred by Landlord to Prime Landlord under the Prime Lease arising out of Tenant's default. The consents that Landlord must give under this Sublease Agreement shall also include the consent of Prime Landlord under the Prime Lease. All insurance to be obtained by Tenant shall name as additional parties insured the Prime Landlord under the Prime Lease, the Landlord, and all other persons which Landlord, as Tenant would have to name under the Prime Lease.

(b) Subordination. This Lease and the rights of Tenant hereunder shall be, and are hereby made expressly subject and subordinate at all times to the Prime Lease and to all amendments, renewals and extensions thereof. If any default by Prime Landlord under the Prime Lease results in a default by Landlord under this Sublease Agreement, Tenant's right to recover against Landlord shall be limited to a pro rata share of any recovery made by Landlord against Prime Landlord based upon the balance of the Term remaining under the Prime Lease.

(c) Landlord. Any obligations under this Sublease Agreement to be performed by Landlord but performed by Prime Landlord shall be deemed to be the performance by Landlord.

(d) Nondisturbance. This Lease shall not be effective until the written consent of any Prime Landlord is obtained. Such consent shall contain a provision that so long as Tenant is not in default under the provisions of this Lease, (1) this Lease shall remain in full force and effect, and (2) the possession of the Premises by Tenant shall not be disturbed.

(13) Tenant's operating statement--inspection of subleases

Tenant, upon Landlord's written request, shall from time to time, but not more often than three times during any two-year period, furnish or cause to be furnished to Landlord within 15 days from the date of the request a written operating statement of the leased premises covering the lease year immediately preceding the year in which such statement is requested, together with a written statement setting forth the names of all subtenants of the leased premises, the terms of their respective tenancies, the spaces occupied, and the rentals and any security paid. The foregoing statements shall be certified and sworn to as true and correct by Tenant or its authorized representative. Upon Landlord's written request, Tenant shall from time to time make available for inspection by Landlord, or its designee, during reasonable business hours, the subleases covering the various portions of the leased premises. Such subleases shall be made available for inspection at the leased premises.

FORM 23.57 Mortgaging of leasehold

COMMENT

A leasehold, just as a fee interest, may provide adequate security for a loan. The right to grant a mortgage which encumbers a leasehold is a valuable privilege. This right is normally secured by a specific provision in the lease, which often prescribes various conditions intended for the protection and benefit of both parties.

Leasehold mortgage:

It is equally important, of course, to protect the position of the leasehold mortgagee. Since the security of the leasehold mortgagee depends upon the continuation of the lease in good standing, a mortgagee who has a leasehold as collateral requires protection that is somewhat similar (but, perhaps more comprehensive) to the protection that may be required by a subtenant. Due to the fact that the leasehold mortgagee's collateral could literally disappear upon the occurrence of any event that would permit the landlord to terminate the lease, a leasehold mortgagee will generally direct his primary attention to these contingencies.

Protection of leasehold mortgagee:

To forestall termination of the lease, the leasehold mortgagee may be given the right to receive notice of the tenant's defaults and the right to cure such defaults. If the lease is in fact terminated, the mortgagee may be given the option to obtain a new lease for the remainder of the period of the prior lease, upon curing all existing defaults. The latter privilege may be particularly significant where the default results from a failure to comply with covenants to repair or to adhere to laws or regulations of governmental authorities. The leasehold mortgagee cannot generally perform such covenants unless he can first obtain possession of the premises. He can be protected with respect to this type of default only if given enough time to act. Where the landlord may be prejudiced by delay, as where a particular condition exposes him to civil or criminal liability, he may be reluctant to cooperate with the leasehold mortgagee by deferring termination of the lease until the mortgagee can obtain possession by foreclosure or otherwise. The option to obtain a new lease upon the correction of existing defaults within a reasonable period of time meets this difficulty.

Additional protection:

Another provision designed to protect a mortgage who has a leasehold as collateral permits him to exercise any extension or renewal option not exercised by the tenant. A further protective provision should define the mortgagee's right to share in the proceeds of insurance upon damage to the leased property.

FORMS

(1) Tenant's right to mortgage the leasehold--leasehold mortgagee's right to notice and right to cure defaults

(a) Mortgage of lease. Tenant is given and has the absolute right, without Landlord's consent, to mortgage its interest in this lease, except that no such mortgage shall extend to or affect the fee, the reversionary interest, or the estate of Landlord in and to any land or building and improvements now or hereafter erected on the leased property.

(b) Nonbinding effect on Landlord. No mortgage or assignment of this lease shall be binding upon Landlord in the enforcement of its rights under this lease, nor shall Landlord be deemed to have any notice thereof, unless a fully conformed copy of each instrument affecting such mortgage or assignment, in form proper for record, is delivered to the Landlord.

(c) Notice of lease default. If, before any default occurs in this lease, the holder of any such mortgage gives Landlord a written notice containing the holder's name and office address, Landlord shall give the holder a copy of each notice of default by Tenant at the same time that Landlord gives such notice to Tenant. Each copy of such notice shall be deemed duly given to the holder when mailed to the holder at its last post office address furnished to Landlord.

(d) Cure of default. Landlord shall accept performance by the holder of any such mortgage of any obligation of this lease that Tenant is required to perform, with the same force and effect as if performed by Tenant, provided that at the time of such performance Landlord is furnished with satisfactory evidence that the person, firm, or corporation tendering such performance or payment has the claimed interest in the leased property. The holder of such mortgage shall have 10 days after receipt of any such notice of default within which to cure any default in the payment of rent or additional rent under this lease, and a reasonable time within which to cure any other default.

(2) Tenant's right to mortgage the leasehold--notices to landlord--subordination provision

Tenant may mortgage this lease, except that there shall be no more than two mortgages at any time, one of which shall be a bona fide purchase money mortgage. The holder of any mortgage of this lease or of Tenant's interest hereunder, and anyone claiming by, through, or under any such holder, shall not acquire any greater rights hereunder than Tenant has (except the right to cure or remedy Tenant's defaults), and shall not become entitled to a new lease if this lease is terminated or Tenant fails to exercise any outstanding option to extend it. No mortgage of this lease or of Tenant's interest hereunder by Tenant or its successors or assigns shall be valid unless:

- (a) This lease is in full force and effect when such mortgage is created.
- (b) The mortgage is subject to all the agreements, terms, covenants, and conditions of this lease.
- (c) The mortgage contains the following provisions:

This instrument is executed upon condition that (unless this condition is released or waived by Landlord under the lease or its successors in interest by an instrument) no purchaser or transferee of the lease at any foreclosure sale, or other transfer in lieu of foreclosure, shall, as a result of such sale or transfer, acquire any right, title, or interest in or to the leasehold estate in which a lien is hereby created, unless Landlord is given notice of such sale or transfer of the lease and the effective date thereof within five days after the effective date of such sale or transfer, the instrument used to effect such sale or transfer is promptly recorded, and a duplicate original or certified copy thereof together with the recording data shall be served upon Landlord within 10 days after the return thereof from the office of recording.

"This instrument and all rights hereunder are and shall be subject and subordinate to the lien of any mortgage to which the lease is or may be subordinate. The holder hereof shall upon demand, at any time, execute, acknowledge, and deliver to Landlord under the lease, without expense to Landlord, any instrument that may be necessary or proper to confirm the subordination of this instrument and all rights hereunder to the lien of any such mortgage and any renewal, modification, consolidation, replacement, or extension thereof and, if the holder hereof fails at any time to execute, acknowledge, and deliver any such subordination instrument, Landlord under the lease, in addition to all other remedies available to it in consequence thereof, may execute, acknowledge, and deliver the same as the attorney-in-fact of the holder hereof and in his name, place, and stead, and the holder hereof appoints Landlord under the lease such attorney-in-fact for that purpose.

- (d) Landlord shall receive written notice of its creation of such mortgage within five days after the execution and delivery, and such mortgage shall be recorded within 10 days after its execution and delivery.
- (e) A duplicate original or certified copy and the recording data of such mortgage shall be served upon the Landlord within 10 days after its return from the office of the recorder.

(3) Tenant's right to mortgage the leasehold--various protections for leasehold mortgagee--right to extend default period

Tenant and every successor tenant is given and has the right to mortgage or assign its interest in this lease without Landlord's prior consent, if no other mortgage in this lease is outstanding at the time such mortgage is granted. If Tenant or any successor or assign mortgages this leasehold, so long as such mortgage remains in effect the following provisions will apply:

- (a) Lease surrender. There shall be no cancellation, surrender, acceptance of surrender, or modification of this lease, without the lease hold mortgagee's prior written consent.
- (b) Notice of default, cure. Landlord shall, upon serving on Tenant any notice of default or any other notice under this lease, simultaneously serve a copy of such notice upon the leasehold mortgagee, and no notice of such default shall be deemed to have been duly given until a copy thereof has been so served. The mortgagee shall thereupon have the same time within which to remedy or cause to be remedied the defaults complained of as is allowed to Tenant, and Landlord shall accept such performance by or at the instigation of the mortgagee as if such performance had been accomplished by Tenant.

(c) Due diligence, cure. For the purpose of this article, no default by Tenant in the performance of work to be performed, acts to be done, or conditions to be remedied, which cannot reasonably be completed within the grace period, shall be deemed to exist, if steps, in good faith, have been commenced promptly to rectify the same, and are prosecuted to completion with diligence and continuity.

(d) Leasehold mortgagee compliance. Notwithstanding any other provision herein, Landlord may not terminate this lease while such leasehold mortgage remains in effect, if, within 10 days after the date of service of a notice to terminate this lease for any reason, the leasehold mortgagee has paid Landlord all rent and additional rent and has complied, or taken reasonable steps to comply, with the requirements of this lease so as to cure the default or defaults claimed by Landlord. In such case, any notice of termination by Landlord shall be void.

(e) Extension of time to cure. If Landlord elects to terminate this lease by reason of any default of Tenant, the leasehold mortgagee shall not only have and be subrogated to all rights of Tenant with respect to curing such default, but shall also have the right to postpone and extend the specified date for the termination of this lease as fixed by Landlord in its notice of termination, for a period of not more than six months, if: (1) the mortgagee cures any existing default, and meanwhile pays the rent and additional rent and performs all of Tenant's other obligations under this lease; (2) no further defaults accrue hereunder during such extended period; or (3) if the nature of the default is such that the mortgagee is unable to take reasonable steps to cure the same, the mortgagee immediately proceeds to acquire Tenant's interest in this lease by foreclosure of its mortgage or otherwise.

(f) Insurance. The name of the leasehold mortgagee may be added to the "Loss Payable Endorsement" of any and all insurance policies required to be carried by Tenant hereunder. Subject to the provisions of any fee mortgage, Landlord will make available jointly to Tenant and to leasehold mortgagee, all insurance or condemnation proceeds to which Tenant may be entitled hereunder, for purposes of restoration of the leased property.

(g) Estoppel certificate. Landlord, within 10 days after a written request by Tenant or the leasehold mortgagee, shall furnish a written statement, duly acknowledged, that this lease is in full force and effect and that Tenant is not in default hereunder. If there is a default, the statement shall specify the nature thereof claimed by Landlord.

(h) Extension of lease. Landlord shall notify the leasehold mortgagee if Tenant fails to exercise any extension or renewal option hereunder. The leasehold mortgagee may exercise any such option on Tenant's behalf, within 10 days after receipt of such notice, provided that Tenant's indebtedness to the leasehold mortgage has not been fully paid.

(4) Tenant's right to mortgage the leasehold--various protections for leasehold mortgagee--right to new lease upon default resulting in termination

(a) Mortgage of lease. Tenant may mortgage its interests under this lease without Landlord's prior consent provided that Tenant is not then in default hereunder, and that any such mortgage shall contain the following provision:

This mortgage is executed and delivered upon the condition that no party shall acquire any interest in the lease in which a lien is hereby granted unless: (a) the instrument transferring the interest requires such party to perform and observe all of Tenant's obligations under such lease; (b) such party executes such instrument in the manner required to entitle a deed to recordation; and (c) an executed copy of such transfer and assumption is delivered to Landlord before the party takes possession of the leased property. If this mortgage is held by a lending institution (including an insurance company or pension fund) which acquires Tenant's interest in the lease as a result of mortgage foreclosure, any transfer in lieu of foreclosure, or through settlement of or arising out of any pending or contemplated foreclosure action, such institution may transfer its interest in the lease to a nominee or a wholly owned subsidiary corporation without Landlord's prior consent, provided that the transferee complies with (a), (b), and (c), above. The lending institution shall thereafter be relieved of any liability under the lease.

(b) Modification of lease. Landlord shall not accept any surrender or enter into any modification of this lease without the leasehold mortgagee's prior written consent.

(c) Cure of defaults. Any leasehold mortgagee shall have and be subrogated to all of Tenant's rights with respect to Tenant's curing of any default hereunder. Such rights shall include, without limitation, the right to exercise any extension option within 30 days after Tenant's time to do so has expired, of which fact Landlord shall give the mortgagee prompt written notice, and if Tenant shall fail to timely appoint an arbitrator in any arbitration proceeding, the right to appoint such an arbitrator within 15 days after the deadline applicable to Tenant. Any arbitrator appointed by the mortgagee shall be recognized in all respects as if appointed by Tenant.

(d) Termination; new lease. If, by reason of any default of Tenant, this lease or any extension hereof is terminated by Landlord before the stated expiration therefor, Landlord shall enter into a new lease with the leasehold mortgagee for the remainder of the term, effective as of the date of such termination, at the rent and additional rent, and on the terms herein contained, subject to the following conditions:

(1) The leasehold mortgagee requests such new lease from Landlord in writing within 40 days after the termination date, such request to be accompanied by a payment to Landlord of all sums then due it under this lease.

(2) The mortgagee pays Landlord, upon execution and delivery of the new lease, all sums due thereunder in addition to those which would then be due but for such termination, plus all reasonable expenses, including legal fees, incurred by Landlord by reason of such default.

(3) The mortgagee, on or before the execution and delivery of the new lease, performs all conditions that Tenant failed to perform hereunder.

(4) Landlord, upon execution and delivery of the new lease, immediately assigns and transfers to the new tenant, without recourse to Landlord, all subleases which have previously been assigned and transferred to Landlord.

(e) Mortgagee assignment of lease. If a lending institution, or its nominee or wholly owned subsidiary corporation, holds a mortgage upon this lease and subsequently acquires a leasehold estate, derived either from such mortgage or from Landlord, and desires to assign this lease or any new lease obtained from Landlord to an assignee (other than to a nominee or wholly owned subsidiary corporation as set forth above) who will undertake to perform Tenant's obligations under such lease, Landlord shall not unreasonably withhold its consent to such assignment and assumption. The lending institution, nominee, or subsidiary shall thereafter be relieved of any further liability under such lease. Any claim that Landlord is unreasonably withholding its consent to a proposed assignment shall be resolved by arbitration, as provided in this lease.

(f) Survivability. The provisions of this article shall survive termination of this lease.

(5) Landlord's obligation to lease to leasehold mortgagee upon termination of lease prior to normal expiration--prior assumption by mortgagee required

(a) Defaults; new lease. If any event of default results in the termination of this lease, Landlord shall so notify any leasehold mortgagee who has notified Landlord of its name and address under the provisions of this lease. Landlord's notice shall be addressed to the leasehold mortgagee at the address last furnished to Landlord, as provided above. Landlord shall, on written request of the leasehold mortgagee made at any time within 30 days after the mailing of such notice, execute and deliver a new lease of the leased premises to the leasehold mortgagee, or its designee or nominee, which shall be a corporation qualified to do business in this state. The term of the new lease shall be for the remainder of this lease term, at the net rent and additional rent, and upon all other covenants, conditions, and agreements contained herein, including the covenants with respect to renewals; provided that the leasehold mortgagee has paid Landlord all rent, additional rent, and other charges due under this lease up to and including the commencement date of the new lease, together with all expenses, including reasonable attorneys' fees, incident to its execution and delivery. But nothing contained herein shall impose any obligation on Landlord to deliver physical possession of the leased premises to the leasehold mortgagee.

(b) Assumption. No leasehold mortgagee shall be entitled to become the owner of this lease by foreclosure, or assignment in lieu thereof, unless the leasehold mortgagee, or its corporate designee or nominee, has first delivered to Landlord an assumption agreement, executed in recordable form, under which such mortgagee or its designee or nominee assumes the performance of all the terms, covenants, and conditions of this lease.

FORM 23.58 Subordination of leases and mortgages

COMMENT

As a general rule, liens, leaseholds, and other interests affecting real property take effect and rank in priority according to their dates of recording. In many instances the parties will set aside this rule by agreeing to the priorities of various interests. The most common provision of this sort is a concession by a tenant that his leasehold interest is subordinate to existing or future mortgages on the fee.

Subordination to mortgagee:

Subordination clauses range from the complete subordination of a lease to all present and future liens to a narrow circumscription of the landlord's power to create interests superior to that of the tenant. One common restraint is a specification of the maximum amount of the mortgages which may take priority over the leasehold. Another type of limitation provides that the mortgage will be a prior lien only if annual amortization and interest costs do not exceed a specified percentage of the rentals. In this way, the tenant may have the assurance that the landlord will have sufficient cash flow to satisfy the terms of the mortgage debt. The permissible mortgagees are often limited to institutional lenders with prescribed minimum financial strength.

Mortgagee nondisturbance agreement:

If the leasehold is subordinate to a mortgage, the tenant's best protection against the destruction of his interest because of the landlord's default under the terms of the mortgage debt is the execution by the mortgagee of a nondisturbance agreement. By such an agreement the mortgagee promises not to seek the termination of the tenant's interest during the balance of the lease term if the tenant is not in default. The agreement by the mortgagee may be made by joining in the lease or by executing a separate document. The execution of such an agreement may be made a condition to the subordination of the leasehold to any future mortgage. Even where the tenant does not have such absolute protection, he may at least obtain the landlord's promise to attempt to arrange for the mortgagee's execution of a nondisturbance agreement.

Another form of protection which is similar to that provided to subtenants and leasehold mortgagees is that which permits the tenant to cure the landlord's default in the payment of the mortgage debt. However, if the tenant is only one of several tenants in a building, it is not likely that the tenant will want to sustain such a burden. In this type of situation such a right, as a practical matter, affords limited protection. For the same reason, the right of a tenant to protect his lease by redeeming the property at a mortgage foreclosure sale is often of limited practical value.

Other subordination provisions:

There are situations in which a mortgagee is willing to subordinate his interest to a subsequent leasehold. This may occur where the potential new tenancy will enhance the value of the property. If a mortgage is to be subordinated to a subsequent leasehold, the lease agreement may specify that the lease is superior to all existing and future mortgages. Obviously, an effective subordination can only be made by the party whose interest is to be inferior, so that the lease provision by itself cannot bind the mortgagee. By itself, the promise in the lease only provides the basis for a contractual right of action by the tenant against the landlord.

FORMS

(1) Subordination to existing and future mortgages

This lease is subject and subordinate at all times to the lien of existing and future mortgages on the leased property. Although no instrument or act by Tenant shall be necessary to effectuate such subordination, Tenant shall, nevertheless, execute and deliver such further instruments subordinating this lease to the lien of all such mortgages desired by the mortgagee. Tenant hereby appoints Landlord its attorney-in-fact, irrevocably, to execute and deliver any such instrument for Tenant.

(2) Subordination to existing and future institutional mortgages

This lease is subject and subordinate to all mortgages and any renewal, modification, consolidation, replacement, and extension of any mortgage at any time affecting the leased property, if any mortgage hereafter placed upon the leased property represents security for a mortgage loan advanced by a savings bank, trust company, insurance company, college, university, pension fund, or any institution authorized to make first mortgage loans in the state in which the leased property is situated.

(3) Subordination to existing or future institutional first mortgage--notice of default to tenant

This lease and all rights of Tenant hereunder are and shall be subject and subordinate to any mortgage (including a consolidated mortgage) or deed of trust constituting a first lien on the leased property, or any part thereof, whether such mortgage or deed of trust has heretofore been, or may hereafter be, placed upon the leased property to secure an indebtedness to any savings bank, bank, trust company, or other institutional lender, private or public, and to any renewal, modification, consolidation, replacement, or extension of any such mortgage or deed of trust.

Landlord will cause any such mortgage or deed of trust to contain provisions requiring the holder of the indebtedness secured by such mortgage or deed of trust to mail to Tenant by registered mail a copy of each notice of breach of covenant, default, or foreclosure given by the holder or the trustee under such mortgage or deed of trust to Landlord. This subordination shall be self-operative and no further instrument of subordination shall be required. The Tenant shall, nevertheless, execute and deliver, from time to time, all instruments and certificates affirming and confirming such subordination that Landlord may reasonably request.

(4) Subordination to future first mortgage--limitation on annual burden of mortgage

This lease is subject and subordinate to the lien of the existing first mortgage held by Northfield Savings Bank, any renewal, extension, or modification thereof, and to any new institutional mortgage which may replace the existing mortgage or be consolidated or correlated with it, without limit as to principal amount, if the aggregate regular annual payments for principal and interest of any such mortgage, or its renewal, extension, modification, or replacement, shall not (except for the final payment thereof) exceed in any year 75 percent of the net rent payable under this lease during such year. In no event shall this lease be subject and subordinate to any first mortgage covering any property other than the leased property. The provisions of this paragraph shall be self-operative without the necessity of any other written consent, approval, or subordination by Tenant. However, upon Landlord's written request at any time, Tenant shall execute and deliver to Landlord, without expense to Landlord, any instrument required to effectuate any of the above. Tenant, in confirmation of the above, irrevocably appoints Landlord as its attorney-in-fact for any purpose required to effectuate and carry out the parties' intent as provided for in this paragraph, and Tenant ratifies all that Landlord may do as such attorney-in-fact.

(5) Subordination to existing and future mortgages--limitation on annual mortgage payments and length of mortgage--tenant's right to cure defaults

This lease is subordinate to all existing mortgages or deeds of trust and to all modifications, extensions, and consolidations thereof, and also to all replacements and other mortgages or deeds of trust held by any lending institutions which may hereafter encumber the leased property, if the aggregate annual payments for interest and principal of such mortgages or deeds of trust, exclusive of the year of maturity, does not exceed $100,000; and also if any new mortgage or deed of trust placed after the date of this lease does not mature earlier than seven years from the date of execution of such new mortgage or deed of trust. Tenant shall execute any document to indicate such subordination which Landlord submits to it. If Tenant fails at any time to execute and deliver such document, Landlord, in addition to all other available remedies, may execute and deliver the same as Tenant's attorney-in-fact, and Tenant hereby constitutes Landlord, and its successors and assigns, such attorney-in-fact. Notwithstanding any contrary provision in this lease, Tenant shall duly comply with all the provisions of any mortgage or deed of trust to which this lease is subordinate, except the payment of interest and principal thereunder, and shall execute and deliver any document which may be necessary to permit due compliance with all such provisions by the party responsible thereunder for such compliance. If Landlord defaults in the payment of any installment of interest or principal payable under any such mortgage or deed of trust, Tenant may pay such installment, and may deduct such payment, together with interest at 12 percent per annum and all costs incurred by Tenant, from the next installments of basic rent becoming due.

(6) Subordination to present and future ground leases and mortgages--subordinate to renewals, modifications, consolidations, replacements, and extensions--landlord attorney-in-fact for subordination documents

This lease is subject and subordinate to all ground or underlying leases and to all present or future mortgages or deeds of trust affecting such leases, and to all mortgages or deeds of trust which may now or hereafter affect the real property of which the demised premises form a part, whether such mortgages or deeds of trust cover only the real property or are a blanket mortgage or deed of trust covering other premises in addition to the real property, and to all renewals, modifications, consolidations, replacements or extensions thereof. This clause shall be self-operative and no further instrument of subordination shall be required by any mortgagee or trustee. Tenant shall execute promptly any instrument which Landlord may request in confirmation of such subordination, and hereby constitutes and appoints Landlord as its attorney-in-fact to execute any such instrument for and on behalf of Tenant.

(7) Subordination to ground lease and mortgage--landlord to use best effort to obtain non-disturbance agreement

This lease is subject and subordinate at all times to any ground or underlying lease, to the lien of any mortgage which may now or hereafter affect the leased property, and to all renewals, modifications, amendments, consolidations, replacements, and extensions thereof. Tenant shall execute and deliver any instrument which may be reasonably required by Landlord in confirmation of such subordination promptly upon Landlord's request. Landlord, however, shall exercise its best efforts to arrange with the holder of any such underlying lease or mortgage for an agreement that if, by dispossession, foreclosure, or otherwise such holder, or any successor in interest, comes into possession of the leased property, becomes the owner of the leased property, or takes over the rights of Landlord in the leased property, it will not disturb the possession, use, or enjoyment of the leased property by Tenant, its successors or assigns, or disaffirm this lease or Tenant's rights or estate hereunder, so long as all of Tenant's obligations are fully performed in accordance with the terms of this lease.

(8) Subordination to first and second mortgages--limitation on mortgage terms and conditions

(a) Subordination to first mortgage. This lease and all rights of Tenant hereunder are and shall be subject and subordinate to the lien only of any institutional nonparticipating first mortgage, as defined below, in a principal amount not exceeding $200,000, affecting the land and building constituting the leased property, exclusive of the personalty, the land only, or the building only, and to any renewal, extension, consolidation, replacement, or modification of any such first mortgage, if the total required quarter-annual payments for interest and amortization under any such mortgage do not exceed $30,000. This lease shall be subject and subordinate only to one first mortgage at any time. For this purpose, a consolidated first mortgage shall be deemed to be only one first mortgage if it is an institutional first mortgage, as defined below, and complies with the terms and provisions of this paragraph.

(b) Subordination instrument. Tenant shall upon demand execute, acknowledge, and deliver to Landlord, without expense to Landlord, any instrument that may be necessary to subordinate this lease and all rights hereunder, or to confirm such subordination, to the lien of any such first mortgage and to each such renewal, extension, consolidation, replacement and modification. If Tenant fails at any time to execute and deliver any such subordination instrument, Landlord, in addition to any other remedy available to it may execute and deliver such instrument as Tenant's attorney-in-fact, and Tenant appoints Landlord such attorney-in-fact for that purpose.

(c) Subordination of leasehold mortgage. Tenant shall also upon demand deliver or cause to be delivered to Landlord, without expense to Landlord, any instrument executed and acknowledged by the holder of any mortgage on this lease that may be necessary or proper to subordinate any such leasehold mortgage, or to confirm such subordination, to the lien of any mortgage to which this lease is or may be subordinate.

(d) Institutional mortgage. The term "institutional mortgage" shall be construed to mean any nonparticipating mortgage placed with or held by one or more savings banks, savings and loan associations, or insurance companies authorized to make first mortgage loans in this state. The term "institutional mortgage" shall also be construed to mean any mortgage placed with or held by one or more commercial banks, trust companies, colleges, universities, teachers' retirement funds, pension funds, or other similar institutions authorized to make first mortgage loans in this state, if at the time of such placing or acquisition of the mortgage or part thereof, the institution is limited by law or by its charter or bylaws, with respect to investment in mortgages or shares thereof, to the same extent that insurance companies authorized to do business in this state are then so limited.

(e) Notice of mortgage. Within 10 days after the execution and delivery of any fee mortgage, Landlord shall serve upon Tenant, by registered mail, notice of the execution and delivery of such mortgage together with a copy thereof and of the note, bonds, extension agreement, consolidation agreement, participation agreement, or other instrument secured thereby.

(f) Mortgage maturity. At least six months before the maturity date of any mortgage affecting the fee of the leased property to which this lease is subordinate, Landlord shall advise Tenant in writing of the provisions made or being made for the payment, extension, or refinancing of such mortgage.

(g) Second mortgage. If, upon the maturity of any mortgage to which this lease is subject and subordinate, Landlord is unable to procure an extension or renewal thereof or a new mortgage in lieu thereof of the extent of the balance remaining unpaid upon such maturity, and if Tenant, after not less than one month's notice of such inability is unable to procure such extension or new mortgage to the extent of such unpaid balance at maturity, this lease shall be subject and subordinate to any second mortgage made by Landlord, if, and solely upon condition that, the second mortgage is a nonparticipating mortgage and its full face amount does not exceed the difference between the principal amount of any new or extended first mortgage to which it is subordinate and the principal balance of the prior first mortgage remaining unpaid at such maturity.

(9) Subordination to present or future first mortgages--limitation on mortgage terms and conditions--tenant to share benefits of more favorable mortgage

(a) Institutional first mortgage. This lease and all rights of Tenant are subject and subordinate to the first mortgage now held by the Island Savings and Loan Association, to any renewal, extension, modification, or consolidation of such mortgage, to any new mortgage that hereafter may be made a lien against the leased property, and to any renewal, extension, modification, consolidation, or replacement thereof, if the new mortgage, or its renewal, extension, modification, consolidation, or replacement is an institutional first mortgage as hereinafter defined; and also if the annual total charge for both interest and amortization on the first mortgage to which this lease is subject and subordinate by the terms hereof at any time do not exceed the annual net rent payable by Tenant hereunder. For the purpose of this article, the term "institutional first mortgage" means a nonparticipating first mortgage for a period of not less than five years placed with or held by a bank, trust company, insurance company, college, university, religious, or charitable institution, pension fund, or teachers' retirement fund authorized to make first mortgage loans in this state.

(b) Fee mortgages. Nothing in this lease shall preclude Landlord from mortgaging its fee or reversionary interest or estate in the leased property, or renewing, extending, modifying, consolidating, or replacing any such mortgage, if any such mortgage, and any renewal, extension, modification, consolidation, or replacement thereof is at all times subject and subordinate to this lease, unless such mortgage, or renewal, extension, modification, consolidation, or replacement satisfies the requirements set forth in paragraph (a) of this article. All subleases entered into by Tenant shall be subject and subordinate to all of the terms, conditions, and covenants of this lease.

(c) Subordination instruments. Tenant shall execute, whenever required by Landlord, a proper instrument of subordination in accordance with the provisions of this article, and Landlord, its successors and assigns, is hereby irrevocably appointed attorney-in-fact for and on behalf of Tenant to execute any instrument of sub-ordination in accordance with the provisions of this article.

(d) Refinance; excess principal. If, at any time, the fee mortgage presently a lien against the leased property to which this lease is subject and subordinate, or any mortgage in replacement, renewal, extension, modification, or consolidation thereof is refinanced and Landlord receives an amount from such refinancing in excess of the face value of the fee mortgage to which this lease is subject and subordinate, after payment of the mortgage expense (which shall include all prepayment penalties, brokerage commissions, title company charges, lender's attorneys' fees, recording fees, and taxes), Tenant shall be entitled to receive one-half of any such excess.

(e) Refinance rent adjustment. If, at any time, the fee mortgage presently a lien against the leased property, and to which this lease is subject and subordinate, or any mortgage in replacement, renewal, extension, modification, or consolidation thereof, is refinanced and the annual charges for interest and amortization thereon after the refinancing are less than $91,000 per annum, the net annual rent payable by Tenant under this lease, from the date of such refinancing, shall be deemed reduced by one-half of the difference between such annual charges for interest and amortization and $91,000. For the purpose of this paragraph any replacement, renewal, extension, modification, or consolidation of any mortgage shall constitute a "refinancing."

(f) Mortgage obligations. Tenant shall perform all duties and obligations which the mortgagor under any mortgage now or hereafter a lien upon the leased property and to which this lease is subject and subordinate is required to perform, except the payment of principal and interest on such mortgage. Tenant shall satisfy such duty or obligation on or before 10 days prior to the last day allowed to the mortgagor under the terms of any such mortgage to perform such duty or obligation without suffering the risk of foreclosure or the exercise of any other right or remedy by the mortgagee. Tenant shall not do or permit to be done any act which may be prohibited under the terms of any such present or future mortgage. If Tenant fails to perform the above duties and obligations within the prescribed time, Landlord may immediately do so and enter the leased property for that purpose, if necessary. Landlord's costs in performing Tenant's obligations shall immediately become due and payable as additional rent hereunder, together with interest at 12 percent per annum.

(g) Building work. If, under the terms of any mortgage now or hereafter a lien upon the leased property and to which this lease is subject and subordinate, any alteration, renovation, repair, or replacement ("work") is required with respect to the building upon the leased property, or any of its facilities, Landlord may do such work. For that purpose, Landlord may enter into the leased property after giving Tenant written notice of its intention to do such work. In such event, Landlord's expenses for the work, together with interest at 12 percent per annum until the expenses are paid, shall be immediately due and payable as additional rent hereunder.

(h) Mortgage maturity. Landlord shall, at least three months before the maturity of any mortgage to which this lease is subject and subordinate, advise Tenant of any action taken or contemplated in connection with any replacement, renewal, extension, modification, or consolidation of such mortgage. If Landlord fails to obtain and deliver to Tenant a copy of a firm commitment for such replacement, renewal, extension, modification, or consolidation in accordance with the terms of paragraph (a) of this article at a date no less than four months before the maturity of such mortgage, Tenant is hereby irrevocably appointed attorney-in-fact for and on behalf of Landlord to make application for the replacement, renewal, extension, modification, or consolidation of such mortgage on the terms set forth in paragraph (a). Landlord shall in such event cooperate in order for such replacement, renewal, extension, modification, or consolidation to be accomplished, and sign all necessary applications and other papers required by the lending institution. If Tenant procures the replacement, renewal, extension, modification, or consolidation of such mortgage, all of the provisions of this article shall apply with the same force and effect as though obtained by Landlord.

(i) Mortgage copy. Landlord shall deliver to Tenant a copy of any mortgage, replacement, renewal, extension, modification, or consolidation agreement within ten days after its execution.

(10) Nondisturbance agreement between mortgagee and tenant

(a) Nondisturbance. So long as Tenant is not in default in the payment of rent or additional rent or in the performance of any term of the lease, Tenant's possession of the leased property and its rights and privileges under the lease or any renewal thereof shall not be diminished or interfered with by Mortgagee.

(b) Attornment. If the mortgage is foreclosed for any reason, and Mortgagee succeeds to Landlord's interest under the lease, Tenant shall be bound to the Mortgagee under all of the terms of the lease for the balance of the remaining term with the same force and effect as if Mortgagee were the landlord under the lease. Tenant hereby attorns to Mortgagee as its landlord, such attornment to be effective and self-operative, without the execution of any further instrument by either party, as soon as Mortgagee succeeds to the landlord's interest under the lease. Notwithstanding any contrary provision herein, Tenant shall not be required to pay rent to the Mortgagee until Tenant receives written notice from Mortgagee that it has succeeded to the landlord's interest under the lease. The respective rights and obligations of Tenant and Mortgagee upon such attornment shall, to the extent of the then remaining balance of the lease term, be the same as now set forth therein, it being the parties' intention for this purpose to incorporate the lease in this agreement by reference with the same force and effect as if set forth at length herein.

(c) Landlord's obligations. If the mortgage is foreclosed for any reason and Mortgagee succeeds to the landlord's interest under the lease, Mortgagee shall be bound to Tenant under all of the terms of the lease, and Tenant shall, from and after such event, have the same remedies against Mortgagee for the breach of an agreement contained in the lease that Tenant might have had under the lease against the prior landlord thereunder. In no event shall Mortgagee be liable for any act or omission of any prior landlord, be subject to any offsets or defenses which Tenant might have against any prior landlord, or be bound by any rent or additional rent which Tenant might have paid to any prior landlord for more than the current month.

(d) Binding effect. The rights and obligations hereunder of Tenant and Mortgagee shall bind and inure to the benefit of their respective successors and assigns.

(11) Priority of lease over mortgages

This lease and all rights of Tenant hereunder are and shall be prior, superior, and paramount to the lien of any mortgage which may now or hereafter affect Landlord's fee interest or reversionary interest in the leased property or any part thereof. Landlord represents that the lien of the existing mortgage on the fee has been duly and validly subordinated to this lease and to all rights of Tenant hereunder.

(12) Priority of lease over mortgages--consent of mortgagees required for changes in lease

This lease and any renewal or extension thereof shall not be subject or subordinate to any present or future mortgage placed upon the fee of the leased property. If at any time a mortgage affects the fee ownership of the leased property, or any part thereof, this lease shall not, without the written consent of each holder of any such mortgage, be cancelled, surrendered, merged, or modified in any of the following respects:

- (a) Neither the original nor any renewal term shall be shortened.
- (b) Neither the rent nor additional rent shall be reduced.
- (c) No rent shall be paid in advance of the time herein provided.
- (d) No provision requiring payment of additional rent, such as payment of taxes or assessments, furnishing of insurance, or requiring upkeep of the premises, shall be modified.

Any breach of the foregoing prohibitions shall not be binding upon the holder of any such mortgage.

(13) Mortgaging of lessor's interest as security for new leasehold mortgage--construction of improvements

Landlord's interest in the demised premises shall not be mortgaged as security for any loan or loans which are intended to replace original leasehold mortgage financing other than interim construction financing, unless the new loan is procured for one or more of the following purposes: (1) to refinance or replace the original loan; (2) to provide funds for remodeling or new improvements; or (3) to construct improvements after the original improvements become obsolete or are demolished and new improvements erected, but in no event shall original improvements be demolished before _____[date].

(14) No recording of lease by tenant--parties to sign recordable short form lease

Tenant shall not record this Lease, and both Landlord and Tenant agree to execute, acknowledge, and deliver at any time after the date of this Lease, at the other's request, a "short form lease" suitable for recording.

(15) Recording of lease--prior consent of landlord required--tenant to sign memorandum of lease upon request

Tenant shall not place this lease on record without Landlord's consent. At Landlord's request, Tenant will execute a memorandum of lease for recording purposes containing references to the provisions of this lease that Landlord deems necessary.

FORM 23.59 Tenant's option to purchase landlord's interest

COMMENT

A tenant's option to purchase his landlord's interest may sometimes be difficult to classify for tax purposes. Depending upon various factors, such an arrangement may possess the fundamental characteristics of a sale rather than a lease. The tax consequences vary significantly, depending upon the resolution of this issue. If the lease arrangement is recognized, the payments made by the tenant until his exercise of the option are reportable by the landlord as rental income and are deductible by the tenant. If the transaction is treated as a sale, the seller reports as income only gains from the disposition, subject to the limitations applicable to capital assets if the property is used in a trade or business or held for the production of income. The purchaser's periodic payments are basically capital expenditures which are not currently deductible.

Sale classification:

The conceptual distinction between a sale and a lease is clear, and the extreme cases are easy to recognize. For example, if the interim "rent" is greatly in excess of the rental value of the property, and if exercise of the purchase option is practically certain because the option price is far less than the anticipated value of the property, the transaction is clearly a sale.

Lease vs. sale tests:

There have been confusing results in borderline situations. Apart from the fact that many factual patterns are inherently difficult to classify, the courts have been divided on the appropriate criteria to be applied. In some cases a so-called "objective economic" test has been decisive, while in others the apparent intent of the parties at the time the transaction was initiated has been controlling. Under the objective economic test, a sale will be found if the total rentals plus any optional purchase price approximate the price for which the property could have been purchased, plus interest and carrying charges. If intent is the determining factor, the payments made prior to exercise of the option are treated as rent if the parties believed that such payments represented reasonable rent and the option price represented a fair measure of future value. As a prerequisite to such treatment, it must be found as a fact that the parties did not intend to enter into a security agreement in the nature of a conditional sales contract.

Tax treatment of sale:

If the transaction is treated as a sale, the seller's recognition of gain would be reported most likely under the installment method. In applicable cases, under the installment method there would be immediate recognition of any amounts recaptured as ordinary income due to accelerated cost recovery or accelerated depreciation. Ordinary income in an installment sale also applies under the proportionate disallowance rule and original issue discount rules. As to the purchaser, though the rent deduction is denied, he may deduct a reasonable allowance for depreciation. A deduction for the interest factor in the periodic payments of "purchase price" would also appear to be available. For a further discussion of the distinction for tax purposes between a lease and sale of property, see the Tax Background (TB) § 23.14, at the beginning of this chapter.

Leaseback and option as mortgage:

An option to purchase is sometimes granted to a lessee in connection with a sale and leaseback transaction. In this type of situation, there may be a question as to whether the arrangement is in fact a security transaction. If the leaseback and option have the effect of a mortgage, the "seller" will not realize gain or loss upon the passage of title and will be denied the rental deduction. Instead, he will be permitted a cost recovery or depreciation deduction upon his original cost of the property and the deduction for the interest factor in the periodic payments. The determining factors in classifying this type of transaction have been whether the repurchase price is a realistic reflection of prospective value and the likelihood, based upon the general circumstances and the apparent intent of the parties, that the property would be repurchased. For a more detailed discussion of sale-leaseback transactions, see TB § 23.15.

Drafting considerations:

A tenant's option to purchase may be provided for either in the lease agreement or in a separate agreement executed concurrently. If a separate instrument is employed, it should be drafted to include all the elements of a contract of sale, so that it is not necessary to formulate a new document upon exercise of the option. If the option is included in the lease, the execution of a subsequent instrument is normally contemplated, unless the option provisions are fairly comprehensive. In any event, the lease should cover such fundamentals as the purchase price, the time of exercise, the assignability of the option separately from the lease, the fulfillment of the lease terms as a condition precedent, and the method of exercising the option.

(1) Tenant's option to purchase--attached contract of sale

Tenant is hereby given the option to purchase the leased property owned by Landlord at the end of the lease period at a price of $300,000. Tenant may exercise its option by giving written notice to Landlord not less than 120 days before the end of the lease period. If Tenant exercises the option, both parties shall, within 10 days after such exercise, execute and acknowledge in duplicate the contract of sale attached to this lease as Exhibit A.

(2) Tenant's option to purchase--right of first refusal

If Landlord, during the lease term, or any extension thereof, elects to sell all or any portion of the leased premises, whether separately or as a part of the larger parcel of which the leased premises are a part, Tenant shall have the right of first refusal to meet any bona fide offer of sale on the same terms and conditions of such offer. If Tenant fails to meet such bona fide offer within 30 days after notice thereof from Landlord, Landlord may sell the premises or portion thereof to such third person in accordance with the terms and conditions of his offer.

(3) Right of first refusal--tenant's option to meet any bona fide offer--offers of parties related to landlord excepted

If Landlord receives, from any third party, other than one controlled by Landlord's principal shareholder or members of its immediate family as majority shareholder or general partner, an acceptable bona fide offer to purchase the Demised Premises or the Entire Premises, it shall submit a written copy of such offer to Tenant giving Tenant 30 days within which to elect to meet such offer. If Tenant elects to meet such offer, it shall give Landlord written notice thereof and settlement shall be held within 90 days thereafter, whereupon Landlord shall convey to Tenant a good and marketable title to the premises free and clear of all liens, encumbrances, and restrictions.

(4) Tenant's option to purchase--general terms of sale

At any time after six months from the date hereof, but not later than _____[date], Tenant, upon giving not less than 60 days' notice in writing to Landlord, may purchase the leased property. The purchase price shall be $500,000. If the option is exercised, Landlord and Tenant will, within the 60-day notice period, execute and deliver a formal contract of sale which shall provide that the sale shall be all cash above the existing mortgages and that 10 percent of such cash payment shall be paid upon the execution and delivery of the contract. The balance of the cash payment shall be made at the closing of title, which shall take place within 30 days from the date of the execution and delivery of the contract. The contract shall provide, among other things, that Tenant shall take title subject to liens and other encumbrances existing as of the date of this lease and to any mortgage hereafter placed against the leased property in accordance with the provisions of this lease. However, Tenant shall not be obligated to take title subject to any other lien or other encumbrance arising between the date hereof and the date of the delivery of the deed which results from Landlord's act, contract, or agreement. Adjustment and prorations for taxes, water rates, and insurance premiums are to be made as of the date of closing. The deed shall be the statutory short form for recording and shall be executed and acknowledged and have documentary stamps in the proper amount affixed thereto by Landlord at its expense, so as to convey to Tenant the fee simple title to the leased property, subject only to the conditions referred to above.

(5) Tenant's option to purchase--same terms as proposed sale--termination of lease if option not exercised

If Landlord has the opportunity to sell the leased property, it shall give Tenant 30 days' notice of such proposed sale and the terms thereof. Tenant shall have the first option to purchase the leased property within the 30-day period at the same price and on the same terms of any such proposal.

If Tenant fails to exercise the option, the lease will terminate and Tenant will surrender and vacate the leased property within such period.

(6) Tenant's option to purchase--price to be agreed upon if no agreement price determined by appraisal

At any time within five years after the date hereof, Tenant may purchase the leased property for a consideration to be agreed upon with Landlord. If the parties fail to agree upon the purchase price, the amount shall be determined by appraisal, Landlord and Tenant each appointing one appraiser who shall in turn jointly choose another. The three named appraisers shall act with promptness, and the decision of any two as to the proper consideration for the purchase of such property shall be binding upon the parties.

(7) Tenant's option to purchase--periodic options--detailed terms of sale

(a) Option to purchase. Landlord grants to Tenant the option to purchase the leased property at the time, for the consideration, and upon the terms and conditions set forth below.

(b) Option date, term. Tenant may purchase the leased property only on an option date. For the purposes of this option, the term "option date" shall be a date one year after the effective date of the lease and the corresponding date in each year thereafter. If this option is not exercised and the sale and transfer of the property is not completed on or prior to the 15th option date (which shall be a date 15 years after the effective date of this lease), this option shall expire and thereafter be of no further force or effect.

(c) Exercise of option. Tenant's election to exercise this option must be evidenced by a written notice addressed to Landlord, sent by registered or certified mail to Landlord's office or to any other place designated by Landlord by written notice to Tenant. If Tenant elects to exercise the option on the first option date, such written notice must be given not less than four months nor more than five months before such date. If Tenant elects to exercise the option on the second option date or on any subsequent option date, such written notice must be given not less than 12 months before the option date on which the option is to be exercised.

(d) Option price. The price to be paid by Tenant to Landlord for the leased property if the option is exercised shall be as follows:

If the option is exercised on:	The option price shall be:
First Option Date	$106,390
Second Option Date	103,180
Third Option Date	101,830
Fourth Option Date	98,640
Fifth Option Date	95,130
Sixth Option Date	91,300
Seventh Option Date	87,130
Eighth Option Date	82,830
Ninth Option Date	78,540

Tenth Option Date	74,320
Eleventh Option Date	69,150
Twelfth Option Date	64,990
Thirteenth Option Date	59,910
Fourteenth Option Date	57,130
Fifteenth Option Date	53,380

(e) Expenses, mortgage. The option price to be paid to Landlord, as provided above, shall be a net amount to Landlord, and all expenses in connection with the transfer of the leased property, including, but not limited to, title insurance, recording fees, documentary stamps, and all other closing costs, shall be paid by Tenant. The option price, reduced by the amount of any existing mortgage, shall be paid by Tenant in cash to Landlord concurrently with the conveyance of the leased property by Landlord to Tenant.

(f) Transfer of title. Except as provided below, Landlord shall convey the leased property to Tenant free and clear of any mortgage or other encumbrance. Any such transfer shall be effected by a full covenant and warranty deed containing special covenants of warranty by Landlord.

(g) First mortgage. Tenant's rights under this option are and shall be subject and subordinate to any mortgage (including a consolidated mortgage) or deed of trust constituting a first lien on the leased property, or any part thereof, whether such mortgage or deed of trust has heretofore been, or may hereafter be, placed upon the leased property to secure an indebtedness to any savings bank, bank, trust company, or other institutional lender, private or public, and to any renewal, modification, consolidation, replacement, or extension of any such mortgage or deed of trust. This subordination is limited and relates only to a first mortgage securing an indebtedness that will not on any option date exceed the price at which this option may then be exercised on that date, as herein provided. This subordination shall be self-operative and no further instrument of subordination shall be required. Tenant shall, nevertheless, execute and deliver, from time to time, any instrument and certificate affirming and confirming such subordination that Landlord may reasonably request. Landlord will cause any such mortgage or deed of trust to contain provisions requiring the holder of the indebtedness secured by mortgage or deed of trust to mail to Tenant by registered mail, addressed to Tenant at its office as set forth in this lease, a copy of each notice of breach of covenant, default, or foreclosure given by the holder or the trustee under such mortgage or deed of trust to Landlord. Notwithstanding the provisions of subparagraph (c), Tenant may, upon receiving notice of breach of covenant, default, or foreclosure under any such mortgage or deed of trust as herein provided, exercise this option at the following option price: the amount which would have been payable, as provided in subparagraph (d), at the next succeeding option date, plus 1/365ths of the difference between that amount and the amount which would have been payable, as provided in subparagraph (d), at the last preceding option date, multiplied by the number of days remaining between the settlement date and the next succeeding option date.

(h) Performance of lease. The right to exercise this option is conditioned upon the faithful performance by Tenant of all its covenants, conditions, and agreements under this lease, and the payment by Tenant of all basic rent, additional rent, and other special payments as provided in this lease to the date of the completion of the purchase of the property by Tenant.

(i) Adjustments. Adjustments and prorations of taxes, water rents, insurance premiums, and similar items shall be made as of the date of the closing of title, in accordance with the practice approved by the companies.

(j) Security deposit. If this option is exercised, Landlord shall at the closing of title transfer to the person so exercising this option the security deposit provided for in this lease, and Landlord shall, from and after such transfer, be released from any further liability or obligation in respect of such security deposit, whether the option is exercised by Tenant or its assignee.

(k) Priority. This option shall be a covenant running with the land described above, and no conveyance, transfer, easement, or encumbrance of such land shall defeat or adversely affect this option.

(l) Assignment, binding effect. Tenant may assign this option, which shall inure to the benefit of Tenant's respective successors and assigns.

(8) Subtenant's option to purchase ground lease

(a) Option to purchase. Sublessor grants to Subtenant the option to purchase the ground lease on July 1, 2004, for the purchase price of $1,000,000, all cash, free of all encumbrances except matters listed in the ground lease, and any encumbrances created or permitted to exist by Subtenant. Subtenant may exercise this option, without expense to Sublessor (other than fees of Sublessor's attorneys), by giving at least 120 days' prior notice to Sublessor. The closing of the purchase shall be held at the leased premises and at the time during business hours on July 1, 2004 (the closing date) specified by Subtenant in its notice. No apportionments or adjustments shall be made or required in connection with such purchase.

(b) Transfer. The assignment of the ground lease shall be in proper statutory form for recording and shall be duly executed and acknowledged by both parties so as to transfer the ground lease to Subtenant or its designee, free of all encumbrances except matters listed in the ground lease, and so as to impose on the assignee Tenant's obligations under the ground lease.

(c) Closing representations. Sublessor will deliver to the assignee on such closing, in addition to such assignment, an instrument reasonably satisfactory to the assignee in which Sublessor will represent that the ground lease is then in full force and effect as a valid and subsisting lease, and that Sublessor has had no notice of default from Landlord thereunder and is not aware of any existing default by it as tenant thereunder. If Sublessor has had notice or is aware of such default, the instrument shall contain a statement of the substance of such default and, if the default is not due to a default by Subtenant under this lease, an agreement by Sublessor to cure it.

(d) Payment. If Subtenant has given notice for the exercise of this option, such option shall nevertheless be of no further force and effect if, between the date of such notice and the closing date, Sublessor tenders payment of $250,000 to Subtenant.

(e) Assignment. Subtenant may not assign its rights under this option separately from all of its other rights under this lease.

(f) Termination. If this lease expires or is terminated in any manner or for any reason (except as the result of Sublessor's failure to perform its covenants thereunder), all of Subtenant's rights under this option shall cease, and this option shall be void. This provision shall be applicable in all events, and despite a separate assignment by Subtenant of its rights under this option.

FORM 23.60 Arbitration and appraisal

COMMENT

Arbitration and appraisal procedures are quite similar, even though they are intended to serve different purposes. Arbitration is essentially an adversary proceeding which arises only in the event of a controversy. Appraisal, on the other hand, establishes an amount of value or loss to preclude controversy.

Arbitration v. appraisal:

The distinction between arbitration and appraisal is functional. Arbitration must generally be conducted according to definite procedures. Arbitrators are usually required to meet at all hearings, and to take evidence only when the parties have had an opportunity to be present. On the other hand, appraisers may gather evidence independently and reach independent judgments, and need meet only to reconcile differences in their conclusions.

Basic provisions:

Lease provisions for both arbitration and appraisal generally cover the same basic points:

- (1) Issues to which the procedure is to be applied;
- (2) Procedure for selecting arbitrators or appraisers;
- (3) Time limitations for various stages of the procedure and for rendering the decision;

(4) Special qualifications of arbitrators or appraisers;

(5) Substitution of arbitrators or appraisers;

(6) Allocation of costs.

There may, of course, be considerable variations in specificity. A common short cut in providing for arbitration is to allow the entire procedure to be controlled by the rules of the American Arbitration Association.

Qualifications:

It is frequently stipulated that an appraiser must be a member of a specified organization, or be licensed by a governmental authority. An arbitration provision generally contemplates a wide range of possible issues, so that the background of the appointee cannot be so rigidly defined. Expertise can be assured by requiring that the arbitrator have a minimum number of years of experience with problems related to the issue in dispute. The procedure for the selection of arbitrators generally deals with the possible failure of the parties to agree upon a panel. In such a case, appointment may be made by a person holding a designated position or public office.

Effect of local law:

There is significant variation in the effect of arbitration or appraisal provisions under local law. In some states, provisions for arbitration are enforceable and represent covenants running with the land. Even if such a provision is not specifically enforceable, a party might be denied affirmative relief on an issue which he refuses to arbitrate as required by the lease. These and other local rules may have an important impact on the problems of drafting arbitration and appraisal provisions.

FORMS

(1) Arbitration of all controversies--application of state law

Any claim or controversy between Landlord and Tenant regarding their respective rights, duties, or obligations hereunder shall be settled by arbitration. Such arbitration shall be before one disinterested arbitrator, or if one cannot be agreed upon, before three disinterested arbitrators, one named by Landlord, one by Tenant, and one by the two thus chosen. The arbitrator or arbitrators shall determine the controversy in accordance with the laws of the state in which the property is located as applied to the facts found by him or them.

(2) Arbitration of all controversies--American Arbitration Association

Any disagreement between the parties with respect to the interpretation or application of this lease or the obligations of the parties hereunder shall be determined by arbitration. Such arbitration shall be conducted, upon request of either Landlord or Tenant, before three arbitrators (unless either party agrees to one arbitrator) designated by the American Arbitration Association and in accordance with the rules of such Association. The arbitrators designated and acting under this lease shall make their award in strict conformity with such rules and shall have no power to depart from or change any of the provisions thereof. The parties shall bear equally the expense of arbitration proceedings conducted hereunder. All such proceedings shall be conducted in the county in which the leased property is located.

(3) Arbitration of issues specified in lease--arbitrators to include an attorney and an accountant

Any arbitration required hereunder shall be conducted in accordance with the then existing rules of the American Arbitration Association, and judgment upon the award rendered may be entered in any court of competent jurisdiction. Hearings shall be conducted at the Association's office in the City of New York. Notwithstanding such rules, any arbitration shall be before a panel of three arbitrators, one of whom shall be a practicing attorney-at-law and another a certified public accountant. Each party to the arbitration shall pay one-half of its cost.

(4) Arbitration of issues specified in lease--arbitrator may grant injunction

Either party may request arbitration of any matter in dispute whenever this lease expressly provides for arbitration as the appropriate remedy. All such controversies shall be settled by the American Arbitration Association under its governing rules or those of its successor. The arbitrator or arbitrators may grant injunctions or other relief in such controversies or claims. The decision of the arbitrator or arbitrators shall be final, conclusive, and binding upon the parties, and a judgment may be obtained thereon in any court of competent jurisdiction. Landlord and Tenant shall each pay one-half of the cost of such arbitration, and each shall separately pay for its own attorneys' fees and expenses.

(5) Arbitration of issues specified in lease--procedure for appointing arbitrators--special qualification of arbitrators

Any dispute between Landlord and Tenant as to an issue specifically mentioned elsewhere herein as a matter to be decided by arbitration shall be determined thereby as provided in this paragraph. Each party shall appoint a person as arbitrator, who shall have at least 10 years of experience with the subject matter of the dispute. Each party shall signify its appointment in writing to the other. If the two arbitrators fail to agree upon the matter so submitted, they shall appoint a third arbitrator who shall have the same experience. If they are unable to agree upon the third arbitrator, the same shall be appointed by the American Arbitration Association from its qualified panel of arbitrators. If either party fails to appoint an arbitrator within 20 days after the other party gives it written notice to make such appointment, the arbitrator appointed by the other party shall appoint a second arbitrator. If the two arbitrators fail to resolve the dispute within 10 days thereafter, they shall appoint a third arbitrator. The three arbitrators, after being duly sworn to perform their duties impartially and faithfully, shall proceed to determine the question submitted. The decision of the arbitrators shall be rendered within 30 days after their appointment, and shall be in writing and in duplicate, with one counterpart thereof delivered to each party. The arbitrators' award shall be binding, final, and conclusive on the parties. The parties shall bear equally the arbitrators' fees and the expenses incident to the proceedings. Each party shall pay the cost of its counsel and the fees of expert witnesses and other witnesses called by it.

(6) Permanent arbitration board--appointment of third arbitrator if board cannot agree

(a) Arbitrators. John Stephenson, as representative of Landlord, and David Warren, as representative of Tenant, shall constitute a permanent Arbitration Board to determine any disputes between the parties under this lease.

(b) Substitutes. Each party, upon written notice to the other, may substitute another person as its representative in the place and stead of the person nominated in subdivision (a), above.

(c) Third arbitrator. If the Arbitration Board fails to agree on the determination of any dispute submitted to it for arbitration, the two representatives shall name a third arbitrator and the matter in dispute shall be determined by a majority of the three arbitrators. If the two representatives fail or are unable to agree on the third arbitrator, he shall be appointed by the Supreme Court of the State of New York.

(7) Arbitration procedure under sublease--procedure for appointing arbitrators--disputes arising under ground lease

(a) Arbitration. Any arbitration required hereunder shall be conducted as provided in this article. The party desiring such arbitration (the first party) shall give written notice to that effect to the other party (the second party), specifying therein the name and address of the person designated to act as arbitrator on its behalf. Within 15 days after such notice is served, the second party shall give written notice to the first party, specifying the name and address of the person designated to act as arbitrator on its behalf. If the second party fails to notify the first party of the appointment of its arbitrator within the required 15-day period, the second arbitrator shall be appointed by the President of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, or those designated below as his alternates. The two arbitrators so chosen shall meet within 10 days after the second arbitrator is appointed to appoint a competent and impartial third arbitrator. If they are unable to do so, the parties themselves shall appoint a third arbitrator within a further period of 15 days. If the parties are unable to do so, either party, on behalf of both, may request such appointment by the President of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York (or any successor organization), or in his absence or refusal, failure, or inability to act, by the President of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York (or any successor organization). If the President of the Chamber of Commerce is absent, or fails, refuses, or is unable to act, either party may apply to the Supreme Court in the County of New York for the appointment of a third arbitrator.

(b) Decision; costs. The arbitrators so chosen shall render their decision within 30 days after the third arbitrator is appointed. The decision of any two arbitrators shall in all cases be binding and conclusive upon the parties. Each party shall pay the fees and expenses of the original arbitrator appointed by it, and one-half of the fees and expenses of the third arbitrator.

(c) Successor arbitrator. If any arbitrator appointed under subparagraph (a) dies or becomes unwilling or unable to act as arbitrator, his successor shall be appointed within 15 days by the party who appointed him. If, however, the third arbitrator dies or is unwilling or unable to act (or if not appointed by the party entitled to do so), his successor shall be appointed as provided in subparagraph (a).

(d) Ground lease disputes. If any dispute arises under the ground lease between Prime Landlord and Sublessor involving issues also in dispute between or affecting Sublessor and Subtenant under this lease, Sublessor shall give Subtenant timely notice of any such dispute or the commencement of arbitration under the ground lease involving such issues. The Sublessor shall, at all times during the pendency of any such dispute or arbitration, consult with Subtenant with regard thereto and, insofar as may be permitted either under the provisions of the ground lease or by Prime Landlord, Sublessor shall afford Subtenant the opportunity to participate in all discussions between Prime Landlord and Sublessor concerning any such dispute or the opportunity to participate in any such arbitration. In any such arbitration under the ground lease, Sublessor and Subtenant shall designate one arbitrator to act on Sublessor's behalf in the arbitration. If Sublessor and Subtenant cannot agree on the selection of such arbitrator within five days after Prime Landlord serves written notice upon Sublessor designating Prime Landlord's arbitrator, either Sublessor or Subtenant may apply to the Supreme Court in the County of New York for such arbitrator's appointment, which shall be binding upon both of them.

(8) Appraisal procedure

If it becomes necessary to determine the appraised value of Landlord's interest in the leased property, such appraisal shall be conducted in accordance with the provisions of this paragraph. Tenant shall appoint as an appraiser a disinterested person with at least 10 years' professional experience as a licensed real estate appraiser. Within 10 days thereafter, Landlord shall give Tenant written notice of Landlord's designated appraiser having the same experience and qualifications. The two appraisers shall appoint a third disinterested appraiser with the same experience and qualifications, and all three appraisers shall as promptly as possible determine such value. If a second appraiser is not appointed, the first appraiser shall determine such value. If, within five days after the appointment of the second appraiser, the two appraisers appointed by the parties are unable to agree upon the appointment of a third appraiser, they shall so notify the parties in writing. If the parties fail to agree upon the selection of a third appraiser within five days after such notice, within five days thereafter either party, upon written notice to the other, may apply for such appointment to the Supreme Court of the State of New York or to any other court of competent jurisdiction exercising similar functions. Landlord and Tenant may each present evidence and argument to the appraisers. The determination of the majority of the appraisers, or of the sole appraiser, as the case may be, shall be conclusive upon the parties, and judgment upon such determination may be entered in any court of competent jurisdiction. The appraisers shall notify the parties in writing of their determination, and furnish to each party a signed copy thereof. If any appraiser fails, refuses, or is unable to act, a new appraiser shall be appointed in his place. Such appointment shall be made in the same manner as provided above for the appointment of an appraiser who fails, refuses, or is unable to act. The parties shall bear equally the expenses of each appraisal conducted under the provisions of this paragraph.

FORM 23.61 Exculpatory clauses

COMMENT

This group of clauses illustrates a variety of devices employed to limit the landlord's liability to the tenant and to third persons. Such exoneration from liability is accomplished by an exculpatory clause, which may relate to personal injury and property damage, or to contractual liability, or to both.

Limited effect of exculpatory clauses:

Special consideration must be given to exculpatory clauses relating to personal injury and property damage. Exculpatory clauses exempting the landlord from liability to the tenant and to third parties for all acts and omissions including his own negligence will have only limited effect in many jurisdictions. In the first place, such provisions are generally ineffective against third parties. Even as to responsibilities which the tenant has undertaken, the landlord may still be held liable for his own negligence. On the other hand, the tenant's waiver of his right of recovery for the landlord's negligence is often given effect, though the statutory rules vary.

Specific risk assumption:

As a general rule, the more restricted the scope of the exculpatory clause, the more likely it will be enforced. Thus, the transfer of specific responsibilities from the landlord to the tenant, or the assumption of a particular risk by the tenant which otherwise would fall upon the landlord, is more readily sustainable than a blanket provision that the landlord will not be liable for any negligence.

Contractual liabilities:

Exculpatory clauses dealing with contractual liabilities are generally designed to enable the true party in interest under a lease, or its incorporators or organizers, to avoid personal or direct liability. A special provision may take cognizance of the use of a "dummy" to execute a lease. Such an arrangement is generally acceptable to a landlord only if he is satisfied that his property can be readily rerented if the tenant defaults.

FORMS*(1) Landlord's exoneration--exception for negligence*

Landlord shall not be liable for injury or damage to person or property occurring within the leased property, unless caused by or resulting from its negligence or that of its agents, servants, or employees in the operation or maintenance of the leased property or the building containing such property.

(2) Landlord's exoneration from specific events--exception for affirmative act of negligence

Unless caused by its affirmative act of negligence, Landlord shall not be liable for any failure of water supply, gas, or electric current; or for any injury or damage to person or property caused by gasoline, oil, steam, gas, or electricity, or hurricane, tornado, flood, wind, or similar storms or disturbances, or water, rain, or snow leaking or flowing from the street, sewer, gas mains, or any subsurface area or from any part of the building or buildings; or for any interference with light or air.

(3) Landlord's general exoneration from liability to tenant

Landlord shall not be liable for any personal injury or property damage to Tenant or to its officers, agents, and employees, or to any other occupant of any part of the leased property, regardless of how such injury or damage is caused, whether from action of the elements or acts of negligence of Landlord or occupants of adjacent properties.

(4) Landlord's liability to tenant limited to loss of rent reserved

Landlord shall not be liable, under any expressed or implied covenant of this lease, for any damages to Tenant, except for the loss of rent reserved by this lease, accruing after any act or breach of covenant for which damages may be recovered against Landlord. If Tenant is ousted from the possession of the leased property by reason of any defect in Landlord's title, Tenant shall not be required to pay any rent under this lease while it is so deprived of possession, and Landlord shall not incur any liability, except for the loss of rent during such period.

(5) Landlord's exoneration for latent defects

Landlord shall not be liable for any latent defect in the leased property or in the building of which it forms a part except for the first year after Tenant takes possession of the property.

(6) Landlord's exoneration for liability to tenant from specific events--exception for negligence and failure to repair

Landlord shall not be responsible or liable to Tenant for any injury or damage resulting from acts or omissions of persons occupying property adjoining such property or any part of the building of which the leased property is a part, or for any injury or damage resulting to Tenant or its property from bursting, stoppage, or leaking of water, gas, sewer or steam pipes, except when such loss or damage arises from the willful or negligent misconduct of Landlord, its agents, servants, or employees, or from Landlord's failure to make its required repairs hereunder.

(7) Tenant's personalty on premises at tenant's sole risk--landlord not liable for water or other damage

All of Lessee's personal property in the Demised Premises shall at all times be at its sole risk, or at the risk of those claiming under it. Lessor shall not be liable for any damage to such property or loss suffered by Lessee's business or occupation caused by water from any source, from the bursting, overflowing, or leaking of sewer or steam pipes or the heating or plumbing fixtures, from electric wires, from gas or odors, or from any other cause.

(8) Landlord and agent not liable for property entrusted to employees or theft--not liable for personal injury or property damage

Landlord and its agents shall not be liable for any loss or damage to property entrusted to their employees or agents, or for loss of property by theft. Landlord and its agents shall not be liable for any injury or damage to persons or property resulting from falling plaster, from steam, gas, water, or snow leaking from any part of the building or from the pipes or appliances therein, or from the street or sub-surface or from dampness, or from any other cause.

(9) Landlord's exoneration for damage to property entrusted to employees--theft--other causes--exception for negligence

Landlord shall not be liable for any damage to property entrusted to employees of the building in which the leased property is located or for the loss of or damage to any property of Tenant by theft or otherwise. Landlord shall not be liable for any injury or damage to person or property resulting from fire, explosion, falling plaster, steam, gas, electricity, water, rain or snow, or leaks from any part of such building or from the pipes, appliances, plumbing, or from the roof, street, or subsurface, or from any other place, or by dampness or by any other cause unless caused by or due to Landlord's negligence, nor shall Landlord be liable for any such damage caused by other tenants or persons in such building.

(10) Mortgage by landlord--use of "dummy"

Whenever provision is made for any present or future mortgage to be placed upon the leased property, or extended, modified, or substituted, Landlord shall not be obligated to assume personal liability on any bond, note, agreement, or obligation which constitutes the basis for such mortgage. In such event, the leased property may be conveyed temporarily to any corporation to assume such liability and to execute any such mortgage, and the leased property may be conveyed temporarily to any corporation to assume such liability and to execute any necessary instrument or, if the mortgagee or lender agree, such bond, note, agreement, or obligation may be executed without change in ownership of the leased property, but without Landlord's personal liability.

(11) Tenant as agent--exoneration of principal

Notwithstanding the provisions of any statute, rule, or decision, no principal, disclosed or undisclosed, other than Tenant named herein, shall be liable for the performance of the terms of this lease.

(12) Corporate tenant--exoneration of stockholders and officers

If Tenant is or shall be a corporation, no recourse under any provision of this lease otherwise permitted by any statute or rule of law shall be had against any of the corporation's past, present, or future incorporators, subscribers, stockholders, officers, or directors, either directly or through the corporation.

(13) Noncorporate landlord or tenant--exoneration of individuals

If Landlord or Tenant, or any successor in interest of either, is an individual, no personal liability shall attach to such individual with respect to any obligation arising out of this lease, regardless of the manner in which such liability might otherwise arise, but for this express waiver thereof. If either party shall breach any provision hereof, the other party shall look solely to Landlord's equity in the property or to Tenant's interest in the leasehold estate, as the case may be, for the satisfaction of their respective rights.

(14) Nonrecourse as to landlord personally or partners--tenant to look solely to landlord's equity in property

Notwithstanding any provision herein to the contrary, neither Landlord nor its partners shall be personally liable for the breach of any provision of this lease. In the event of any such breach, Tenant shall look solely to Landlord's equity in the premises, if any, for the satisfaction of all of Tenant's rights and remedies. Such exculpation of personal liability is absolute and unconditional.

(15) Nonrecourse against unincorporated landlord--tenant to look solely to land and building for satisfaction

Notwithstanding any contrary provision herein, if Landlord or any successor in interest is an individual, joint venture, tenancy in common, copartnership, unincorporated association, or other unincorporated aggregate of individuals (all of which are referred to below, individually and collectively, as an "unincorporated landlord"), Tenant shall look solely to the unincorporated landlord's estate and property in the land and building of which the leased premises are a part, for the satisfaction of Tenant's remedies for the collection of a judgment (or judicial process) requiring the payment of money by Landlord in the event of its default or breach of any provision of this Lease. No other property or assets of such unincorporated landlord shall be subject to levy, execution, or other enforcement procedure for the satisfaction of Tenant's remedies.

FORM 23.62 Indemnification of landlord

COMMENT

There are jurisdictions in which the landlord cannot exonerate himself from tort liability to persons other than the tenant by an exculpatory provision in the lease. Some protection for the landlord can be obtained with respect to these unavoidable liabilities by shifting the ultimate burden to the tenant. This may be accomplished by an indemnification provision. In its most extensive form, the indemnification provision covers all liabilities, claims, and expenses arising from occurrences on the leased property, from the use and management of the property, from defaults by the tenant under the lease, and from the negligence of the tenant. In many agreements the coverage is more selective.

Indemnification:

To some extent, an indemnification provision may be of limited usefulness. In various respects, it merely restates rules which would otherwise be applicable under local law or under other provisions of the lease. For example, if a loss is occasioned by a breach of a covenant to be performed by the tenant, the landlord normally has a right to recover from the tenant whether or not there is an express provision to that effect. Nevertheless, depending upon the local law, it may be desirable to include certain special provisions. If there is doubt as to whether a tenant's general covenant to indemnify the landlord applies to a joint obligation imposed on them both, the lease may provide that the tenant's indemnification obligation applies whether or not there is joint or concurrent liability. Another common provision precludes indemnification to the extent that the loss is covered by insurance. This prevents the landlord's insurer from shifting the loss to the tenant. Provision is also often made for the responsibility or the right to defend any action which may result in liability to the landlord.

Tax aspects:

If a landlord becomes liable for an occurrence with respect to which the indemnification provision applies, he may have a deductible loss notwithstanding his right of recoupment from a tenant. A loss evidenced by a liability of an accrual basis taxpayer is deductible when the liability is ascertained and admitted. A cash basis taxpayer takes the deduction when he makes the payment. A subsequent recovery by the landlord of any amount previously deducted as a loss would, of course, be includible in gross income in the year of recovery. For a further discussion of the tax aspects of the lessee's payments of the lessor's expenses, see the Tax Background § 23.03, at the beginning of this chapter.

FORMS

(1) Indemnification of landlord against claims of personal injury or property damage

Tenant shall defend, indemnify, and hold Landlord harmless from and against any claim, loss, expense or damage to any person or property in or upon the demised premises or any area allocated to or used exclusively by Tenant or its agents, employees, or invitees, arising out of Tenant's use or occupancy of such premises, or any act or neglect of Tenant or its servants, employees or agents, or any change, alteration or improvement made by Tenant in the demised premises.

(2) Indemnification for liabilities resulting from tenant's default--treated as additional rent

If Landlord pays any amount for property damage or personal injury resulting from Tenant's failure to observe or perform any covenant under this lease, such amount, together with all costs, damages, and reasonable attorneys' fees, shall be considered additional rent, due in the month succeeding such payment and collectible at such time.

(3) Indemnification for liabilities resulting from tenant's default--treated as additional rent--another form

If Tenant defaults in observing or performing any of its covenants under this lease, Landlord may, without notice, perform such obligation for Tenant's account. If Landlord makes any expenditures or incurs any obligations for the payment of money in connection therewith including, but not limited to, legal fees in instituting, prosecuting, or defending any action or proceeding, such payments or obligations, plus interest and costs, shall be deemed to be additional rent hereunder, which Tenant shall pay Landlord within five days after Landlord submits a bill or statement therefor.

(4) Indemnification for specific liabilities--exception for loss due to landlord's default in making repairs

Tenant shall indemnify Landlord against any liability or loss arising out of injury to any person, or damage to any property belonging to Tenant or to any other person, occurring in or about the leased property, if such injury or damage is caused by fire or other casualty not covered by Landlord's insurance, by leakage in any part of the leased property, or by water, rain, or snow leaking into or flowing from any part of the leased property, except injury or damage which results from Landlord's failure to make required repairs under this lease.

(5) Indemnification for general liabilities

Tenant shall indemnify Landlord against all liabilities, expenses, and losses incurred by Landlord as a result of: (a) Tenant's failure to perform any of its obligations hereunder; (b) any accident, injury, or damage happening in or about the leased property or appurtenances, or on or under the adjoining streets, sidewalks, curbs, or vaults, or resulting from the condition, maintenance, or operation of the leased property or of the adjoining streets, sidewalks, curbs, or vaults; (c) failure to comply with any governmental requirements; and (d) any mechanic's lien, or security agreement, filed against the leased property, any equipment therein, or any materials used in the construction or alteration of any building or improvement thereon.

(6) Indemnification for general liabilities--exception for landlord's affirmative negligence

Except for claims arising out of acts caused by the affirmative negligence of Landlord or its representatives, Tenant shall indemnify and defend Landlord and the leased property, at Tenant's expense, against all claims, expenses, and liabilities arising from (a) the management of or any occurrence on or about the leased property or any adjoining street, curb, sidewalk, or vault; (b) any default by Tenant hereunder; or (c) any act or negligence of Tenant or its agents, contractors, employees, or licensees.

(7) Indemnification against claims arising out of tenant's activities, breach or default in lease, negligence--extends to tenant's agents, employees, contractors and licensees--defense of legal action at tenant's expense

Tenant shall indemnify and hold Landlord harmless from and against all claims by or on behalf of any person, firm, or corporation, arising out of (1) any work or thing done in or about the Demised Premises by or on behalf of Tenant, (2) any breach or default by Tenant in performing any obligation hereunder, (3) any act or negligence of Tenant or its agents, contractors, servants, employees, and licensees, and (4) all costs, reasonable counsel fees, and liabilities incurred in or about any such claim, action, or proceeding brought thereon. Upon written notice from Landlord, Tenant shall resist or defend, at its expense, any action or proceeding brought against Landlord by reason of any such claim, by counsel reasonably satisfactory to Landlord.

(8) Indemnification for liabilities resulting from tenant's acts or omissions--attorneys' fees of landlord in third party actions

(a) Indemnity. Tenant shall hold Landlord harmless and indemnified at all times against any loss, damage, cost, expense or liability (including attorneys' fees) resulting to any person or property by reason of any use made of all or part of the Leased Premises, or of any act or thing done or omitted in, upon, or about such premises.

(b) Attorneys' fees. If any person institutes an action against Tenant in which Landlord is made a party defendant, Tenant shall indemnify and save Landlord harmless from all liabilities by reason thereof, including reasonable attorneys' fees and all costs incurred by Landlord in such action. If an action is brought to recover any rental under this Lease, for or on account of any breach of or to enforce or interpret any term, covenant or condition of this Lease, or for the recovery of possession of the Leased Premises, Landlord may recover from Tenant, as part of Landlord's costs, a reasonable attorneys' fee.

(9) Indemnification for general liabilities--tenant to defend actions

Tenant shall indemnify and hold harmless Landlord against all liabilities, damages, and other expenses, including reasonable architects' and attorneys' fees, which may be imposed upon, incurred by, or asserted against Landlord by reason of any of the following, which occur during the term of this lease:

- (a) Any use or condition of all or part of the leased property, or any street, alley, sidewalk, curb, vault, passageway, or space adjacent thereto.
- (b) Any negligence by Tenant or its agents, contractors, licensees, or invitees.
- (c) Any personal injury or property damage occurring on or about the leased property or any adjoining street, alley, sidewalk, curb, vault, passageway, or space.
- (d) Any failure by Tenant to perform or comply with any of its covenants hereunder.

If any action or proceeding is brought against Landlord by reason of any such occurrences, Tenant, upon Landlord's written notice, shall at its expense resist such action or proceeding by counsel reasonably approved in writing by Landlord.

(10) Indemnification for general liabilities--tenant subrogated to landlord's rights--landlord's obligation to notify tenant of claim--landlord's right to participate in defense

Tenant shall indemnify and hold harmless Landlord against all liability, penalties, damages, expenses, and judgments by reason of any injury or claim of injury to person or property, of any nature, arising out of the use, occupation, and control of the leased property, or the adjacent streets, alleys, and sidewalks, by Tenant at any time during the lease term, including those resulting from any work in connection with any alterations, changes, new construction, or demolition. Tenant is hereby subrogated to all of Landlord's rights against any other parties in connection therewith. Landlord shall promptly notify Tenant of any claim asserted against Landlord on account of any such injury or claimed injury to persons or property, and shall promptly deliver to Tenant the original or a true copy of any summons or other process, pleading, or notice issued in any suit or other proceeding to assert or enforce any such claim. Tenant may defend any such suit with its own attorneys, and Landlord may participate in such defense at its expense.

FORM 23.63 Notices

There are many provisions in a lease which may require a notice or demand. The intention to terminate a lease, the exercise of an option to renew or extend, the development of defects requiring repair, or the existence of defaults are some of the situations in which a notice must be given or a demand made. In many jurisdictions, the law provides for procedures, including personal delivery, to fulfill notice or demand requirements, unless a more convenient method is permitted under the lease.

Many leases require that notices be in writing and be served by either registered or certified mail and sent to the party's address as set forth in the lease, or as subsequently specified. Some leases contain alternative provisions, expressly permitting personal service of the notice, service by a nationally recognized overnight courier, service by ordinary mail, or both. The time that service is deemed to be made can have significant effect, particularly if notice of default is used to determine the period within which to correct the default or terminate the lease. In many cases, the lease provides that notice is deemed given when mailed. This would require a longer period within which to correct defaults or otherwise take the action specified in the notice. Alternatively, the lease could provide that notice is deemed given a specific number of days after mailing, i.e., three days or five days.

Any required or permitted notice under this lease shall be in writing and sent by registered mail, return receipt requested, addressed to Landlord, at 200 Fifth Avenue, New York, New York, and to Tenant at 250 Fifth Avenue, New York, New York, or to any other address either party designates in the manner set forth herein for the giving of notice. In addition, any notice required by Landlord to Tenant shall be effective hereunder only if given in writing to all subtenants of the leased property and all assignees and first mortgagees of this lease, but only if Landlord has previously received written notice, by registered mail, of such subtenant's, assignee's, or mortgagee's name and address.

(9) Notice by registered mail--tenant's interest held by more than one person

All notices, demands, and requests required under this lease shall be in writing. All notices, demands, and requests shall be deemed to have been properly given if served personally, or if sent by United States registered mail, postage prepaid, addressed to Landlord at 499 West 34th Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, addressed to Tenant at the leased property, and if intended for the holder of any leasehold mortgage, addressed to such holder at the address given by it. All notices, demands, and requests shall be deposited in a Post Office or Branch Post Office regularly maintained by the United States Government in the State of New York. Whenever Tenant's interest herein is vested in more than one person, firm, or corporation, jointly, in common, or in severalty, a notice, demand, or request by Landlord to any one such person, firm, or corporation shall be conclusively deemed to have been given to all such persons, firms, and corporations. Any notice, demand, or request by Tenant to Landlord shall be ineffective unless signed by all such persons, firms, and corporations, unless they have previously given notice to Landlord, signed by each of them, designating one or more of them to give the required notice, demand, or request.

FORM 23.64 Mortgagee protection and estoppel certificates

COMMENT

The value of rental property is significantly affected by the cash flow generated by rent payments and the effectiveness of the leases. The landlord's mortgage lender will frequently look at the leases to determine the value of the property, and the amount which may be loaned, using the property and rent assignments as collateral. A prospective purchaser of the rental property will also examine the leases. In these situations, the landlord may find it necessary to deliver proof that the tenant or landlord is not in default. Or the tenant may be the one who wishes to dispose of his interest in accordance with the lease terms, and is required to furnish the prospective assignee with evidence that the lease continues in full force and effect. In the absence of a right under the agreement to require the other party to come forward with such proof, the individual seeking the certificate is relegated to the mercy of the other. Proper representation would call for inclusion in the lease of a clause obligating either or both of the parties to furnish an estoppel certificate, when so requested. Noncompliance, derived possibly from business differences, can be effectively handled by making the clause self-implementing, i.e., the failure to deliver a certificate, after due demand has been made therefor, is deemed to constitute an admission that the information sought is true.

FORMS

(1) Certification by tenant that lease is in effect without offset--delivery in recordable form upon request

Within ten days after Landlord's request, Tenant shall deliver in recordable form a certification to any proposed mortgagee, trustee, or purchaser, certifying that this lease is in full force and effect and that there are no defenses or offsets thereto, or stating those claimed by Tenant.

(2) Certificate of lease and rent status--joint obligation to furnish--simple form

Landlord and Tenant shall certify in writing the status of this lease and the rent payable hereunder, at any time, upon 10 days' written notice. Such certificate shall be in a form reasonably satisfactory to a prospective purchaser or mortgagee of the fee title, or assignee of the lease or of any superior lease.

(3) Certificate of lease and rent status--compliance with lease, no defaults, lease in effect

Tenant shall, from time to time, and upon Landlord's written request, furnish Landlord a written statement, signed by Tenant and addressed to the person designated in such request, on the status of any matter pertaining to the Lease, including that at the date of such statement whether: (i) the provisions and conditions of the Lease have been complied with; (ii) there are no defaults by Landlord; and (iii) the Lease is still in full force and effect. If Tenant is unable to make the above affirmative declarations, it shall describe in the statement the facts and matters that allegedly prevent it from doing so.

(4) Estoppel certificate to be executed by either party upon request--for benefit of mortgagee or purchaser--contents to specify unmodified lease, setoffs and advance rent payments, if any

Within 10 days after request by either party, the other party shall, without charge, deliver a duly executed and acknowledged instrument to any mortgagee, assignee of any mortgagee or purchaser, or any other person, firm, or corporation reasonably required by the requesting party, certifying:

(a) That this lease is unmodified and in full force and effect (or if there has been modification, that the lease is in full force and effect as modified and stating the modifications);

(b) Whether there then exist any setoffs, defenses, or counterclaims against the enforcement of any obligation which either party is required to perform or comply with hereunder, and, if so, specifying such setoff or defense;

(c) The date to which any rental or other charges hereunder have been paid in advance; and

(d) That prior to the date the required certificate was executed, to the best knowledge of the person executing the same, there has been no violation or breach that would constitute a default under this lease.

(5) Attornment of tenant to first mortgagee or purchaser at foreclosure

Upon written request of the holder of any note and first mortgage (or first trust deed) on the Leased Premises securing the note, Tenant shall agree in writing that (a) no action taken by the holder to enforce the mortgage (or trust deed) by reason of default thereunder shall terminate this Lease or invalidate or constitute a breach of any of its terms or conditions, (b) Tenant will attorn to the purchaser at any foreclosure sale or the grantee in any conveyance in lieu of foreclosure as Landlord of the Premises, and (c) Tenant will, upon such purchaser's or grantee's written request, execute all necessary or appropriate instruments to evidence such attornment.

(6) Certificate of lease and rent status--separate agreements of landlord and tenant to furnish

(a) Tenant statement. Tenant shall, at any time, upon not less than 20 days' prior written notice by Landlord, execute, acknowledge, and deliver to Landlord a statement certifying that this lease is unmodified and in full force and effect (or if there have been modifications, that the lease is in full force and effect as modified and stating the modifications), and the dates to which the net rent and the additional rent have been paid, and stating whether Tenant is in default in performing any covenant contained in this lease, and, if in default, specifying each such default. It is intended that any such statement delivered under this paragraph may be relied upon by Landlord or any prospective purchaser of the fee or any mortgagee thereof or any assignee of any mortgagee upon the fee of the leased property.

(b) Landlord statement. Landlord shall at any time, upon not less than 20 days' prior written notice by Tenant, execute, acknowledge, and deliver to Tenant a statement certifying that this lease is unmodified and in full force and effect (or if there have been modifications, that the lease is in full force and effect as modified and stating the modifications), and the dates to which the net rent and the additional rent have been paid, and stating whether to Landlord's best knowledge Tenant is in default in performing any covenant contained in this lease and, if Tenant is in default, specifying each such default of which the signer may have knowledge. It is intended that any such statement delivered under this paragraph may be relied upon by any prospective assignee of Tenant's interest in this lease, but reliance on such certificate may not extend to any default of Tenant as to which Landlord has no prior actual knowledge.

(7) Certificate of lease and rent status--failure to furnish

(a) Tenant statement. Tenant shall, on demand and without charge, execute and acknowledge a duly executed recordable certificate certifying whether this lease is in full force and effect and whether Landlord is then in default under any of its terms, and deliver such certificate to Landlord or any mortgagee.

(b) Landlord statement. Within 20 days after receiving written request, Landlord will certify in writing to any holder of any mortgage upon this lease, whether as of the date of such certification Tenant has made all payments due to Landlord and whether Landlord knows of any default by Tenant in performing its covenants hereunder. Landlord's failure to execute and deliver such certificate within the specified time shall be constituted Landlord's certification to the effect that Tenant has made all payments due Landlord and that Tenant is not in default hereunder.

(8) Tenant estoppel certificate regarding construction, commencement of term--attornment to purchaser--subordination to ground lease or mortgage--power of attorney to landlord--recording of lease

(a) Estoppel certificate. Within ten days after Lessor's request, Lessee shall deliver to Lessor a written and acknowledged statement certifying that Lessor has completed construction of the Demised Premises, that Lessee has accepted possession thereof, that this Lease is unmodified and in full force and effect (or if there have been modifications, that the Lease is in full force and effect as modified and stating the modifications), and the dates to which any Minimum Rent and other charges have been paid in advance. It is intended that any prospective purchaser or mortgagee of the fee of the Demised Premises may rely upon any such statement delivered under this Article.

(b) Attornment to purchaser. If any proceedings are brought for the foreclosure of the Demised Premises or if the power of sale under any mortgage made by Lessor covering the premises is exercised, Lessee shall, upon Lessor's request, attorn to the purchaser upon such foreclosure or sale, and recognize the purchaser as Lessor under this Lease.

(c) Subordination. Upon Lessor's request, Lessee shall subordinate its rights hereunder to (1) any ground lease, (2) the lien of any mortgage, (3) the lien resulting from any present or future method of financing or refinancing in force against the land or buildings of which the Demised Premises are a part or against any building subsequently placed upon such land, and (4) all present or future advances upon the security thereof.

(d) Power of attorney. Upon request of any party in interest, Lessee shall promptly execute all instruments or certificates requested by Lessor to carry out the intent of above paragraphs (a), (b), and (c). Lessee hereby irrevocably appoints Lessor as its attorney-in-fact, with full power and authority to execute and deliver in Lessee's name all such instruments and certificates.

(e) Recording. This lease shall not be recorded without Lessor's prior written consent. Upon Lessor's request, Lessee shall execute a short form of this Lease, which may be recorded in Lessor's sole discretion.

(9) Corporate resolution to be provided by tenant--approval of lease by tenant's board of directors--landlord's option to terminate if not received

If Tenant is a corporation, it shall provide a resolution of its Board of Directors approving the execution of this lease within 30 days after such execution. If Tenant fails to do so, Landlord may terminate this lease by giving Tenant 10 days' prior notice.

FORM 23.65 Options to terminate

COMMENT

The following clauses illustrate provisions permitting a termination of a lease in various special circumstances, and provisions insuring that the landlord's obligations under the lease will be extinguished upon his disposition of the fee. In the absence of a provision to the contrary, a lease terminates without any notice at the end of the specified period. Most leases, however, contain various provisions which may result in the precipitation of a termination. These provisions are usually predicated upon some default by the tenant or upon some major casualty. There are, however, additional situations which may justify an option in one of the parties to terminate. These include the execution of a new lease, the frustration of the tenant's right to his expected use of the premises, and the inadequacy of the premises resulting from a prospective expansion or a business merger. On the other hand, a landlord may want to reserve an option to cancel if he thinks such a cancellation is a prerequisite to any future sale. In addition, the landlord must recognize that in most jurisdictions his responsibilities under a lease made by him survive his conveyance of the fee because of the privity of contract with the tenant. Many leases, therefore, provide that the current responsibilities of the landlord extend only to the owner of the fee for the time being. As to the costs of cancelling a lease, see the Tax Background § 23.11, at the beginning of this chapter.

FORMS

(1) Termination of prior lease on execution of new lease

Upon the execution and delivery of this lease, the lease dated _____ [date], between the parties, affecting the property hereby leased, is cancelled and neither party shall have any further rights or obligations thereunder.

(2) Tenant's option to cancel if premises rendered untenable by casualty

If the demised premises are totally damaged or rendered wholly untenable by fire or other cause during the last two years of the term, Tenant may, within 20 days after such fire or other occurrence, cancel this lease by serving written notice upon Landlord to such effect. This lease shall terminate on the third day after such notice is given.

(3) Tenant's option to terminate if intended use is prohibited by restrictions

If, at any time, because of the application of any of the "subject clauses" contained in this lease against which Tenant has obtained title insurance from East County Title Company ("Title Company"), the leased property is not usable for the use specified in and intended by this issue, within the parties' contemplation, Tenant may terminate this lease by giving notice of termination to Landlord within 60 days after such use of the property ceases. Such notice shall state the date on which this lease will terminate, which shall be not less than five or more than 30 days after Landlord receives the notice. However, this lease shall not terminate until Tenant has effectively assigned to Landlord all of Tenant's right, title, and interest in and to all insurance proceeds which Tenant is entitled to receive from the Title Company. Tenant may not terminate this lease if it has done or failed to do anything which allows the Title Company to avoid liability for any title defect against which Tenant has obtained title insurance.

(4) Tenant's option on business merger

If Tenant's business is merged with that of an established business enterprise engaged in a substantial volume of the same general line of business, and Tenant reasonably believes that the leased property does not have sufficient space for the combined business, Tenant may terminate this lease on the last day on any month if it (a) gives Landlord at least six months' prior written notice of its intention to terminate, and (b) pays Landlord a sum equal to the annual fixed rent on the date this lease so terminates.

(5) Landlord's option on sale of leased property

If there is a bona fide sale of the property of which the leased property is a part, Landlord may terminate this lease by giving Tenant 90 days' notice.

(6) Landlord's option to terminate--payment of specific sum to tenant

Landlord may terminate this lease at any time after two years from its commencement by giving Tenant four months' notice of such fact by registered or certified mail, and by paying Tenant before such period expires the amount deposited as security plus $10,000, less all sums then due hereunder to Landlord. In such event, this lease shall terminate on the date specified in such notice, as if that were the date originally fixed herein for the expiration of the term. Tenant shall thereupon surrender the premises, and Landlord may immediately recover the possession thereof in the manner herein provided for termination because of nonpayment of rent. Tenant shall on demand execute and deliver to Landlord a written surrender in recordable form. If there is a dispute as to the amount due Landlord, as provided above, Landlord shall pay Tenant the undisputed part, and deposit the balance in escrow with any trust company or title company selected by Landlord, to be held pending determination of the parties' rights thereto; but this lease shall nevertheless terminate on the date originally specified in Landlord's notice. The parties shall equally bear the expenses of making the escrow deposit.

(7) Landlord's liability terminated by sale--purchaser deemed to assume landlord's responsibilities

The term "Landlord," as used in this lease, means only the owner for the time being of the leased property, so that if there is any sale of the leased property, the seller shall be and hereby is entirely relieved of all Landlord's obligations hereunder. Without further agreement between the parties or between either of the parties and any purchaser of the leased property, such purchaser shall be deemed to have assumed all Landlord's obligations under this lease.

(8) Landlord's liability terminated by sale--underlying leasehold

The term "Landlord," as used in this lease, means only the owner for the time being in fee of the leased property, the owner of the leasehold estate created by an underlying lease, or the mortgagee of the fee or of such underlying lease in possession for the time being of the leased property, so that if there is any sale of the leased property or of any transfer or assignment or other conveyance of such underlying lease and the leasehold estate thereby created, the seller, transferor, or assignor shall be entirely relieved of all Landlord's further obligations herein. It shall be deemed without further agreement between the parties of their successors in interest, or between the parties and any such purchaser, transferee, or assignee has agreed to carry out all Landlord's obligations hereunder.

(9) Tenant's option to cancel during term on payment of liquidated damages

Tenant may elect to terminate this lease as of _____ [date], as if such termination date were the expiration date above set forth, by (1) giving Landlord written notice to that effect on or before _____ [date], (2) paying to Landlord, together with such notice, the sum of $10,000, representing agreed upon liquidated damages for the abridgment of the term of this lease, and (3) performing all of its obligations hereunder through such termination date including the surrender of the leased property on or before that date.

(10) Termination by either party if sales are less than specified amount

If Tenant's aggregate gross sales for any year during the term of this lease are less than $350,000, either party may give termination notice to the other party not later than 60 days after the end of such year, and this lease will terminate at the end of the month in which the notice was given as though that were the date originally fixed for the termination of this lease. If the option to terminate is not exercised within the time specified, it shall be deemed no longer valid or exercisable for the particular year in question.

(11) Tenant's right to terminate lease after specified period upon notice and payment of agreed sum

Tenant shall have the right, by giving Landlord at least sixty (60) days advance written notice, to terminate this Lease after eighteen (18) months and shall include with its notice a certified or cashier's check payable to Landlord in the sum of $ _____. Upon termination, the parties shall have no further liabilities under this Lease, except that the rent and any other charges shall be adjusted as of the date of termination.

(12) Tenant's option to terminate--liquidated damages to be adjusted based on when option exercised

Tenant may elect to terminate this Lease after the expiration of the twenty-fourth (24th) month of the term of this Lease by (i) giving Landlord ninety (90) days prior written notice to that effect at any time after the expiration of the twenty-first (21st) month of this Lease; (ii) paying to Landlord, together with such notice, the sum of five thousand dollars ($5,000.00), by certified check representing the agreed upon liquidated damages for abridgement of the term of this Lease; and (iii) performing all of its obligation hereunder through such termination date including the surrender of the Premises on or before that date. Notwithstanding the provisions contained in the preceding sentence, if Tenant elects to terminate this Lease any time after the twenty-fourth (24th) month of the term of this Lease, then the sum for liquidated damages stated in (ii) above shall be reduced by the sum of four hundred and sixteen dollars ($416.00) per month. For purposes of illustration only, if Tenant elects to terminate this Lease by giving Landlord written notice prior to the expiration of the twenty-sixth (26th) month of the term of this Lease, the sum for liquidated damages would be four thousand one hundred and sixty-eight dollars ($4,168.00).

(13) Tenant's option to terminate upon notice and payment of cancellation fee--termination right void if tenant in default

Subject to the conditions set forth below, Tenant may terminate the Lease by delivering to Landlord written notice of Tenant's election to do so on or before _____[date] ("Tenant's Termination Notice"), and simultaneously with delivering Tenant's Termination Notice, Tenant pays Landlord, by a certified or official bank check, a lease cancellation fee of $ _____ ("Lease Cancellation Fee"), in which event the Lease shall terminate on _____[date]. Tenant's right to terminate the Lease pursuant to this Section shall be void and of no further force or effect if:

(i) Tenant is then in default under the Lease; or

(ii) Tenant fails to continue to pay rent and perform all its other obligations under the Lease during the period of time following Tenant's Termination Notice to Landlord; or

(iii) Tenant fails to deliver to Landlord the Lease Cancellation Fee with Tenant's Termination Notice; or

(iv) Tenant fails to exercise its option to terminate the Lease during the period in which it is available and in the manner required hereby.

FORM 23.66 Delays in performance

COMMENT

Generally, a landlord will countenance no delay by the tenant in the payment of the monthly rent. Faced with a fixed schedule of mortgage payments or with other commitments and expenses, the landlord will not permit an interruption in the cash flow from the property. Sometimes this peril is avoided by a lease requirement that the rent be paid "without notice or demand." Such a provision may, however, be inadequate in a situation where the tenant withholds full payment of the rent under a claim that he is entitled to a set-off for the balance. The cautious draftsman should consider the advisability of incorporating a lease provision which expressly prohibits such action. The tenant is not left without a remedy, assuming he has a valid claim, for he can still hold the landlord accountable in a separate action.

Obligations other than rent:

The lease agreement often requires the tenant to undertake construction, alterations, or repairs, or to perform duties other than the payment of money. Performance of these obligations may sometimes be delayed by circumstances beyond the control of the tenant, the landlord, or the individuals who are supposed to render such services. Strikes, riots, national emergency, Acts of God, nonavailability of labor or material, acts of a public enemy, or war and national defense considerations are some of the contingencies that may delay performance of the tenant's obligations. In such circumstances, it is seldom helpful to the landlord to declare a default and a forfeit of the lease, and it is likewise unfair to the tenant. Accordingly, leases commonly provide that the tenant is excused from nonperformance during the time when such conditions obtain. Similar provisions may be included in the lease instrument in favor of the landlord.

Applicable clauses may require the consent of mortgagees, the posting of security by the lessee, directions for the application of insurance proceeds, or such other matters as are appropriate.

FORMS

(1) Payment of rent--no notice or demand

Tenant shall pay the rent herein reserved at the time and place herein specified, without notice or demand.

(2) Payment of rent--equal monthly installments--no notice or demand

Tenant shall pay Landlord, without notice or demand and without abatement, deduction, or set-off, in lawful money of the United States, fixed rent at the annual rate of $48,140, in equal monthly installments in advance on the first day of each calendar month, at Landlord's office or at any other place Landlord designates in writing.

(3) Payment of rent--delay permitted upon notification of landlord default

Tenant's obligation to pay the full rent herein reserved shall not be affected by any future act or omission by Landlord with respect to the tenantability of the leased premises, or the building of which they are a part, unless Tenant gives Landlord or its agents at Landlord's principal place of business immediate written notice of such act or omission and a reasonable time to perform its legal duty with respect to the condition complained of.

(4) Payment of rent--no abatement, diminution, or reduction for interrupted use

Neither Tenant nor any person claiming under it shall claim or be allowed any abatement, diminution, or reduction of rent, charges, or other compensation, under any circumstances, whether for inconvenience, discomfort, interruption of business, or otherwise, arising from or because of (1) the making of alterations, changes, additions, improvements, or repairs to any existing or future building on the leased premises, (2) any present or future governmental law, ordinance, requirement, order, direction, rule, or regulation, (3) the restoration of the leased premises due to their destruction or damage by fire or other cause, or the taking or condemnation of only a portion of the premises, or (4) any other cause or reason.

(5) Force majeure--landlord excused for delay caused by fire and other causes beyond landlord's control

If Landlord's performance of any of its obligations hereunder is delayed due to fire, catastrophe, strikes or labor trouble, civil commotion, Acts of God, inability or difficulty in obtaining materials, or any other cause beyond its control, the period of delay shall be added to Landlord's time for performing such obligations, and Landlord shall have no liability because of such delay.

(6) Payment of rent and performance of covenants--no delay or abatement allowed by reason of landlord's default

Tenant's obligation to perform all of its obligations hereunder, including the payment of rent, shall not be affected, impaired, or excused if Landlord (1) is unable to supply or is delayed in supplying any service by Landlord to be supplied, (2) is delayed in making any repairs, additions, alterations, or decorations, or (3) is unable to supply or is delayed in supplying any equipment or fixtures, if such inability or delay is due to or arises out of governmental preemption with respect to a national emergency declared by the President of the United States; any governmental rule, order, or regulation; or the conditions of supply and demand which have been or are affected by war, civil unrest, or embargo.

(7) Performance of covenants other than rent payment--tenant's delay temporarily excused, subject to mortgagee approval

Tenant shall be exonerated from any default, other than money payments, if nonperformance is caused or due to strikes, nonavailability of labor or materials, war, national defense, civil unrest, Acts of God, or other causes beyond Tenant's control. Tenant, however, shall commence performance and proceed diligently therewith after removal of the causes if the mortgagee does not object to the exercise of Tenant's rights therein.

(8) Performance of covenants other than rent payment--tenant's delay temporarily excused--posting of security required

Whenever Tenant is required, by the terms hereof, or by law, to pay any sum of money (other than the net rent payable to Landlord), to perform and pay for any contract, work, labor, or service, to discharge any lien against the premises, or to perform and comply with any laws, rules, orders, ordinances, regulations, or zoning regulations, Tenant shall not be deemed to be in default hereunder, and Landlord shall not enforce or exercise any of its rights hereunder, if and so long as:

(a) Nonperformance or default hereunder is directly caused by strikes, lockouts, nonavailability of labor or materials, war, governmental restrictions, enemy action, civil commotions, Acts of God, or other similar causes beyond Tenant's control; and

(b) Tenant shall furnish Landlord whatever security, in cash or surety company bond, is reasonable for Landlord's protection under the circumstances. Tenant shall contest the matter involved with due diligence and in good faith in a proper forum or court with whatever person (other than Landlord) or governmental authority that requires the payment, asserts the lien, ordinance, rule, order, regulation, or contract, or requires the act, work, labor, or service.

If, at any time, however, all or part of the leased premises are in danger of being forfeited or lost, Tenant shall pay any required sum of money, and Tenant shall commence and continue such performance with diligence and continuity immediately after any of the above causes are removed.

(9) Performance of covenants--landlord's delay temporarily excused--option time extended accordingly

The provisions of this paragraph shall be applicable if there occurs, during the demised term: any strike, lockout, or labor dispute; inability to obtain labor or materials or reasonable substitutes therefor; or Act of God, governmental restriction, regulation, or control, enemy or hostile governmental action, civil commotion, insurrection, revolution, sabotage, or fire or other casualty, or other similar condition beyond Landlord's reasonable control. If Landlord, as the result of such event, fails punctually to perform any lease obligation, such obligation shall be punctually performed as soon as practicable after such event abates. If Landlord is, as a result of such event, is unable to exercise any right or option within any time limit provided therefor in this lease, such time limit shall be deemed extended for a period equal to the duration of such event.

(10) Performance of covenants--landlord's delay temporarily excused--payment of rent to abate while tenant's business inoperable

This lease and Tenant's obligation to pay rent and perform all of the other covenants and conditions hereunder shall not be affected, impaired, or excused because Landlord is unable: (a) to fulfill any of its obligations under this lease; (b) to supply, or is delayed in supplying, any express or implied service; (c) to make, or is delayed in making, any repair, addition, alteration, or decoration; or (d) to supply, or is delayed in supplying, any equipment or fixtures, by reason of strikes, labor troubles, or any cause beyond Landlord's control, including, but not limited to, any governmental rule, order, or regulation, or by reason of the condition of supply and demand which has been or is affected by war, embargo, or other emergency. However if, as a result thereof, the demised premises are so untenable as materially to interfere with Tenant's conducting normal business operations, and such service is not restored or performed within a reasonable time after Tenant so notifies Landlord in writing, the rent shall abate for the balance of the term until the services are restored or work performed.

(11) Performance of covenants other than rent payment--delay of either party temporarily excused

If either party is required to do any act, other than make a payment of money, delays caused by or resulting from an Act of God, war, civil commotion, fire or other casualty, labor difficulties, general shortages of labor, materials, or equipment regulations, or other causes beyond such party's reasonable control shall not be counted in determining the time when the performance of such act must be completed, whether such time is designated by a fixed time, a fixed period of time, or "a reasonable time." If work is to be paid for out of insurance proceeds or condemnation awards, due allowance shall be made, both to the party required to perform such work and to the party required to make such payment, for delays in the collection of such proceeds and awards.

(12) Performance of covenants other than rent payment--written notice specifying grounds for default required--time of rent payment of the essence

Tenant shall be allowed a grace period of 24 hours within which to pay Landlord the rent and other sums due hereunder, time being of the essence with respect to such payment. Neither Landlord nor, except as otherwise herein provided, Tenant shall be deemed to have defaulted or breached any covenant or condition unless the party asserting such default or breach serves upon the other party written notice setting forth with particularity the nature of the alleged default or breach, and the charged party fails to cure such default or breach within 10 days after service. If, notwithstanding the timely cure of such default or breach, the asserting party incurs or pays any penalty because of the other party's failure or omission to perform or satisfy the covenant or condition, such other party shall pay such penalty.

FORM 23.67 Sign and Advertising restrictions

COMMENT

The tenant's right to display signs outside a building or upon its roof or walls is often covered in a specific provision. Outside walls bounding the leased interior are normally included in the leased premises, and the lease of an entire building usually permits the use of the roof. Therefore, aside from uses constituting nuisances or violations of zoning regulations, the tenant generally has the right to maintain signs on the outside walls of his premises, unless limited by the terms of the lease.

Shopping center and retail signs:

A landlord has a significant interest in the signs exhibited by his tenants. The overall appearance of the property will affect its value, and appearance is affected by exterior signs. In some situations, a landlord may seek to achieve a uniform appearance of tenant signs. If the landlord receives rent based on a percentage of the tenant's sales or other business, his interest in the tenant's signs should be indicated in the lease. The type of sign used by the tenant could have an effect of increasing or decreasing the trade generated by the tenant. This will directly affect the sales upon which percentage rent is based.

Tradenames and use on signs:

In many situations, considerable value is attached to a tradename, particularly if it is familiar to the potential customers of a store or shopping center. The landlord may seek an express clause that a well known chain tenant will use its name in signs and advertising. On the other hand, a landlord who has spent considerable sums in advertising the name of his shopping center or building will want to maintain exclusive property rights in that name, even though a tenant may be permitted to use it in its own advertising.

FORMS

(1) Unlimited right to maintain signs

Tenant may place and maintain in and about the leased property neat and appropriate signs advertising its business. Upon the termination of this lease Tenant shall remove all signs and repair any damage to the leased property caused by the erection, maintenance, or removal of the signs.

(2) Sign to comply with law--prior approval of landlord for change in sign--landlord cooperation to obtain permits

Tenant may install an illuminated or nonilluminated sign or signs on the exterior wall or roof of the Building, if such sign does not violate any governmental law, ordinance, or regulation. (3) Tenant's obligation to maintain exterior and signs in good condition

Tenant shall maintain in good order and condition the exterior of the demised premises, including the store front, windows, doors, fittings, any signs, awnings and/or any other equipment, as well as the interior of the demised premises, in a manner satisfactory to Landlord.

(4) Landlord's prior approval of signs--merchandise not to be displayed in front exterior

Tenant shall not display, erect, or affix any lettering, signs, posters, streamers, placards, or any other like advertising media on the windows or exterior of the demised premises, or upon the building or buildings of which they form a part, without Landlord's prior written approval. If consent is granted, Tenant, at its expense, shall carry any workmen's compensation and general liability insurance required by Landlord.

(8) Prohibition of signs or obstructions on or outside building without landlord's consent

Tenant shall not erect, place, or allow to be placed any sign, advertising matter, stand, booth, or showcase in or upon the doorsteps, vestibules, outside walls, outside windows, or pavements of the building in which the leased property is located without Landlord's written consent.

(9) Prohibition of extra signs--consent of landlord not to be unreasonably withheld

Tenant shall not, without Landlord's written consent, place or erect any signs of any nature on any part of the leased property, or the sidewalk adjoining the leased property, or on any part of Landlord's property adjacent to the leased property. Landlord will not unreasonably withhold its consent to the placement of a flat sign of reasonable size bearing Tenant's trade name on or over the front of the store, but the location, colors, materials, and style of such sign shall be subject to Landlord's absolute right of approval.

(10) Landlord's reservation of right to use of roof to advertise from operation of lease

Landlord reserves the right to use the roof of the leased property for the purpose of advertising and the erection of any structure or structures, together with the installation and maintenance of any wiring or equipment necessary to utilize the roof for advertising purposes.

(13) Tenant signs require landlord's prior approval--tenant to maintain approved exterior sign--temporary removal by landlord for building maintenance or alteration--prohibition against flashing or neon signs

Tenant shall not maintain or display any signs, lettering, or lights on the exterior of the demised premises or in the interior or any show window thereof, which is visible from the exterior unless approved by Landlord in writing. Tenant shall provide and maintain a proper sign or signs on the exterior of the demised premises and, if requested by Landlord, also an additional sign located over the sidewalk at or near the entrance to the demised premises. All such signs shall be of the size, color, design, illumination, and location designated and approved by Landlord in writing. No rights are granted to Tenant to use the outer walls or the roof of the demised premises without Landlord's written consent. Landlord may, at its expense, remove any or all signs, at any one or more times during the term of this lease, if necessary to paint or make other repairs, alterations, or improvements in or upon all or any part of the premises or the building in which they are located. Landlord shall, also at its expense, replace the signs when the work is completed. Tenant shall at no time utilize any flashing or neon signs or lights in the demised premises, and replace the bulbs of all permitted signs and lights as soon as they become defective or lose their intensity.

(14) No signs by tenant except as specified--sign company regularly used by landlord at tenant's expense

Tenant may place and remove signs in and about the demised premises and all buildings thereon, and on or under adjacent canopies and marquees. Landlord, at no expense to it, shall cooperate with Tenant in securing all necessary building and other permits and authority for any work by Tenant on installations. If Tenant's building is part of a larger building, Landlord will permit Tenant to enter the balance of the building (and will secure such permission for Tenant from other tenants of the building) so that Tenant may perform work therein at any time in connection with its alterations, improvements, or additions in the demised premises. Tenant may, at any time, remove any sign or trade fixtures and also any air conditioning equipment (except ducts and casings) installed by it in the premises.

(16) Pylon sign to be installed and maintained by landlord--advertising shopping center--lighted in evening--tenant names restrictions

Landlord shall furnish and erect within the Shopping Center one large pylon sign advertising the entire Shopping Center. Landlord shall, at its expense, keep the sign in good order and repair and lighted during the evening hours until 10 p.m., during the original or any extended term of this lease. Landlord may not place or permit to be placed on such sign, or on any similar sign, the names of other tenants in the Shopping Center unless Tenant's name is also placed thereon in a position and with lettering at least equal in size, type, and prominence to that of any other tenant.

(17) Tradename of tenant only to be used in its business, signs, and advertising--landlord's consent required for use of another tradename

Tenant shall use only its tradename in conducting its business on the demised premises, including, but not limited to, its signs and advertising. Tenant shall not use any other tradename or style without Landlord's prior written consent, which Landlord shall not unreasonably withhold.

(18) Name of shopping center is property of landlord--tenant has no rights in name--use only with landlord's consent

Landlord shall have and retain all property rights in and rights to the use of the name or designation of the shopping center, and shall have the absolute right to change the name or designation of the shopping center at any one or more times during the term of this lease. Tenant shall not have any property right or interest in any name or distinctive designation which may become associated with Tenant's business to be conducted at the demised premises or the shopping center if such name or designation contains any reference to the name or designation of the shopping center. Tenant shall use the name or designation of the shopping center only with Landlord's consent.

(19) Exterior signs prohibited without landlord's consent--tenant responsible for installation, maintenance, repair and removal of approved signs

Tenant shall not place, erect or maintain or suffer to be placed, erected or maintained on any exterior surface (including both the interior and exterior surfaces of windows and doors) of the Leased Premises, nor anywhere outside of the Leased Premises, any sign, symbol, neon or other light, shade, lettering, decoration, advertising, or any other object or thing visible to public view outside of the Leased Premises, without first obtaining Landlord's approval as to whether the same shall be so installed or placed and, if so, as to the location, number, type and appearance of each thereof. Any sign permitted hereunder shall be erected by Tenant at its own risk and expense and in accordance with all laws, and Tenant agrees to maintain the same in a good state of repair and save the Landlord harmless from any loss, cost or damage as a result of the erection, maintenance, existence or removal of the same, and Tenant shall repair any damage which may have been caused by the erection, existence, maintenance or removal of same. Upon vacating the Leased Premises, the Tenant agrees to remove all signs or such other items and to repair all damage caused by such removal. Such signs or other items shall relate solely to the permitted business of Tenant.

(20) Tenant required to erect and maintain exterior signs in conformance with landlord's standard sign criteria--other signs require landlord approval

Tenant shall, at its sole cost, erect and maintain a sign, advertising Tenant's business, on the exterior front of the Leased Premises and on the pylon sign for the Shopping Center in the space presently displaying "Space for Lease." If required by Landlord, Tenant shall pay for and install an additional sign advertising Tenant's business in the covered walkway adjoining Landlord's Building, if any. Tenant's sign(s) shall conform to Landlord's standard sign criteria. Tenant shall not install any sign(s) facing on the parking areas or elsewhere on the Lease Premises or in the Shopping Center, or place on the roof or any exterior wall (including both the interior and exterior surfaces of windows and doors) of the Leased Premises any sign, symbol, advertisement, neon or other light, shade, or any other object or thing visible to public view outside of the Leased Premises, without first obtaining Landlord's approval as to whether the same shall be so installed or placed and, if so, as to the location, number, type and appearance of each thereof.

FORM 23.68 Real estate broker commissions

COMMENT

A real estate broker or salesperson may be entitled to a commission if a lease is the result of his efforts. Frequently, the obligation to pay the commission is that of the landlord, who engages the broker to find a tenant. Occasionally, a tenant may engage a real estate broker to locate suitable space, in which case the tenant most likely would be obligated to pay any commission due. While the law defining when the broker's commission is earned varies from state to state, it is not uncommon for a commission claim to be based on informal negotiations or dealings. If no broker is involved, the landlord may seek a representation to that effect from the tenant, and indemnification in the event a claim is made. This is frequently based on the economic reality that the amount of rent may reflect whether or not the landlord is to pay a real estate commission.

Tax aspects:

Generally, commissions are deductible as ordinary and necessary business expenses. However, a commission paid to a broker for obtaining a long-term property lease is a capital expenditure which is amortized over the life of the lease. For tax treatment of rental payments generally, see the Tax Background (TB) § 23.02, at the beginning of this chapter. For required amortization of lease acquisition costs, see TB § 23.06.

FORMS

(1) Tenant representation of no broker involved in lease

Tenant represents that it has not had negotiations with or dealt with any broker in connection with the negotiating and execution of this Lease.

(2) Indemnifications of landlord including brokerage commissions due by reason of sublease

Tenant shall indemnify, defend, and hold harmless Landlord against and from any and all loss, liability, damages, costs, and expenses, including reasonable counsel fees, resulting from any claim that may be made against Landlord by any assignee, sublessee or by any broker or other person claiming a commission or similar compensation in connection with any proposed or completed assignment or sublease.

(3) Tenant's representation that no broker instrumental in lease--no prior negotiations with broker--indemnification for commission claims

Lessee covenants, warrants, and represents to Lessor that no broker was instrumental in consummating this Lease and that Lessee had no conversation or prior negotiations with any broker concerning the renting of the Demised Premises. Lessee shall protect, indemnify, save, and keep harmless Lessor against and from all liabilities, claims, losses, costs, damages, and expenses, including attorney's fees, arising out of or from any claims for brokerage commissions and/or finders' fees resulting from any conversation or negotiations by Lessee with any broker or any other person.

(4) Mutual representation that no broker involved in lease except as specified--landlord to pay commissions--mutual indemnification against commission claims

Landlord and Tenant each represent to the other that they have not entered into any agreement or incurred any obligation in connection with this transaction which might result in the obligation to pay a brokerage commission to any other broker than Commercial Real Estate Agency. Landlord shall pay all fees and commissions due to such broker in connection with this transaction. Each party shall indemnify and hold the other party harmless from and against any claim or demand by any broker or other person for bringing about this Lease who claims to have dealt with such indemnifying party, including all expenses incurred in defending any such claim or demand (including reasonable attorney's fees).

FORM 23.69 Defined lease terms--general applicability

COMMENT

A principle purpose of definitions is to provide specificity with a minimum use of words. Definitions are particularly useful as a short reference to specific matters that are frequently used in the agreement, which would result in verbosity if repeated in all of its detail. Although many defined terms are useful only for the specific agreement in which they appear, those which appear below may be of general use to the practitioner.

FORMS

(1) Adjusted gross sales--percentage rent--gross sales less deductions--deductions for refunds, exchanges from other lessee stores, trade fixture sales

"Adjusted Gross Sales," as used herein, shall mean the amount of gross sales, income, receipts, revenues, and charges of, in connection with and for all merchandise, services, or other operations or businesses sold or rendered in, on, about, or from the Demised Premises by Lessee or any subtenants, licensees, or concessionaires, whether for cash or on a charge, credit or time basis, without reserve or deduction for inability or failure to collect. Adjusted Gross Sales include, but are not limited to, such sales and services: (1) where orders originate or are accepted by Lessee in the Demised Premises but their delivery or performance is made from or at any place other than the Demised Premises; (2) pursuant to mail, telegraph, telephone, or other similar orders received or filled at or in the Demised Premises; (3) by means of mechanical and other vending machines in the Demised Premises; (4) which Lessee in the normal and customary course of business would credit or attribute to its business upon all or any part of the Demised Premises, adjusted by the deduction, if originally included in gross sales or exclusion, as the case may be, from gross sales of the following, if separate records are maintained for such deductions or exclusions: (1) refunds, allowances made on merchandise claimed to be defective or unsatisfactory, or discounts to customers, except that if such refunds, allowances, or discounts are in the form of credits to the customer, such credits shall be included in gross sales when used; (2) exchanges of merchandise between stores of Lessee when such exchanges are made solely for the operation of Lessee's business and not for the purposes of consummating a sale which has been made at, in, on, or from the Demised Premises and/or for the purpose of depriving Lessor of the benefit of such sale which otherwise would have been made at, in, or from the Demised Premises; (3) returns to shippers and manufacturers for credit; (4) sale of trade fixtures or store operating equipment after their use in the conduct of Lessee's business in the Demised Premises; (5) all sums and credits received in settlement of claims for loss or damage to merchandise; and (6) any excise or sales tax levied upon retail sales and payable over to the appropriate governmental authority, if specific record is made at the time of each sale of the amount of sales tax, and such amount is expressly charged to the customer.

(5) Gross sales--percentage rent based on gross amount of sales

"Gross sales" as used herein includes the gross amount of all sales of every kind and description made in, upon, or resulting from the conducting of any business or businesses upon the leased premises, less: merchandise shipped by Tenant or any of its subsidiaries to any other location of Tenant, to its parent company or to any of Tenant's subsidiaries or affiliated companies, or back to any of its or their manufacturers or suppliers, credits, allowances; refunds arising by virtue of the return of merchandise by customers; refunds made in the normal course of business; or charges to customers for credit service, extension of credit, deferred payments, or layaways. Proceeds from vending machines shall not be included in gross sales if their use does not exceed the incidental use presently characteristic of a similar store. No deduction from gross sales shall be made due to the sales price of any articles proving to be uncollectible. Gross sales shall not include any taxes whether paid by Tenant or its customers.

FORM 23.70 Provisions for administration and interpretation of lease

COMMENT

Leases, like many other types of contracts, frequently contain clauses which furnish rules to be utilized in the administration and interpretation of the agreement. Since much of the litigation involving leases requires the ascertainment of the parties' intent, contractual provisions which clarify such intent will generally be given effect in the courts unless they contravene positive rules of law or strong public policy.

Law of the situs of the property:

As a general proposition, all matters concerning the title and disposition of real property are governed by the law of the situs. A leasehold is classified as a conveyance of real property and the effectiveness of the instrument to create the intended estate will be governed by the law of the jurisdiction where the premises are located. But a lease is also a contract, and it may be that the contractual--as distinct from the conveyancing--provisions will be governed by some other law. In the absence of an expressed intent to the contrary, the law of the situs will generally control--this for the reason that the contract will be performed in the jurisdiction of the situs and because the probable intent of the parties was to have the agreement enforced in accordance with such law. The law of the situs would therefore appear to have the most meaningful contacts with the lease.

Governing law selection:

The parties may designate the law of a particular jurisdiction as the one that will govern their transaction. Insofar as the law selected is the law of the situs of the real property, a lease provision to this effect will generally be honored. However, if the law selected by the parties is the law of a jurisdiction other than the situs, such a provision may not be given effect with respect to the resolution of property rights. While individuals are free, within limits, to select the law that will govern their contractual obligations, the cautious draftsman is well advised to choose a jurisdiction that has some relationship to the transaction.

Restatements and variations of law:

Sometimes provisions inserted in construction clauses do little more than specify that which would apply in any event. Thus, clauses stating that the singular includes the plural, that the masculine gender includes the feminine or neuter, and that the various forms may be interchanged when necessary, do little more than incorporate well-known principles of construction. However, provisions which specify the nature of the contractual liability, as for example, whether joint, several, or joint and several, may modify otherwise applicable law, and will generally be deemed effective to bind the parties.

Paragraph headings:

Extended leases often contain a table of contents, marginal notes, paragraph headings, and possibly an index designed primarily to expedite the location of appropriate provisions and to aid the reader in comprehending the lease agreement. It is customary to add a provision that such features are not parts of the lease and may not be used to explain, vary, contradict, or interpret the lease or any of its provisions. Such a statement does no harm and it may be helpful in some cases, although probably not absolutely necessary in most. It is conceivable, however, that if given any significance, a paragraph heading, for example, might in a rare instance influence the interpretation of a particularly ambiguous provision.

Incorporation or exclusion by reference:

In addition to excluding certain items from the intended lease terms, it is possible to include other items through the technique of incorporation by reference. The landlord, particularly in multiple housing developments and in office buildings, often maintains a list of rules and regulations which are to be observed by the tenants. The lease may state that such rules and regulations, including subsequent modifications, shall be considered a part of the lease and observed by the tenant in the same manner as if they were actually incorporated in the lease. A copy of the rules and regulations may be annexed to the lease instrument, so there can be no dispute as to the rules themselves, the subject matter covered, and the fact that they are in existence. If there is possible doubt as to the applicability of any item, it is desirable to include provisions which identify the content of the lease by appropriate exclusions and inclusions.

Entire agreement:

As a general rule, parol evidence is not admissible to vary or contradict the terms of a written lease, except that it may be used to show that the writing fails to express the actual intent of the parties because of fraud, accident, or mistake. The rule precluding the admission of parol evidence applies only to those situations in which the parties intend the writing to represent their whole understanding, that is, where the writing integrates their entire agreement. Thus, the parol evidence rule does not apply if the written instrument is incomplete, fragmentary, or silent concerning the matters sought to be proven.

Prior representations; subsequent modification:

When the parties intend that the written lease shall embody their whole agreement, parol evidence is not admissible to show prior or contemporaneous contradictory or additional provisions. The writing represents their final agreement, and preliminary negotiations are irrelevant. The rule forbidding parol evidence of prior agreements, however, has no application to subsequent modifications. As in the case of contracts generally, provisions in a lease may be modified, discharged, or replaced by a subsequent agreement, and the subsequent agreement may be an oral understanding as well as an instrument. Principles of waiver and estoppel may also be applicable in a particular case, so that either the landlord or the tenant may be precluded by his subsequent conduct from asserting a right under a written lease.

Sole or exclusive agreement:

When a lease is negotiated, the parties may attempt to make the written instrument the sole basis for determining their rights, and in this manner circumvent the uncertainties which arise from conflicting oral testimony. The clauses in this section may be used to accomplish such a purpose.

Entire agreement; oral modifications:

A provision that the written lease is the entire agreement between the parties will generally be given effect and enforced. In other words, this recital shows an intent to integrate the entire understanding into an instrument, and parol evidence of prior or contemporaneous agreements will not be admissible. A clause to the effect that the lease cannot be changed or terminated orally, however, is a different matter. This is an attempt to perpetuate an agreement, without the possibility of effecting a change by mutual consent, and is generally ineffective. At best, it shows a present intent that the parties will modify the lease only by a written agreement, but it does not deprive them of the power to discharge or otherwise modify it. Thus, in spite of a provision barring oral modification, the courts will generally permit an amendment in appropriate cases. The chief advantage of including a provision of this kind is apparently psychological, at best.

Severability:

The provision as to severability should cause no difficulty. This clause simply provides that if any part of the lease is declared invalid, the other portions shall continue in full force and effect. The only instances in which a provision of this nature might not be effective is where the instrument is so faulty that it is totally defective, as, for example, where it fails to identify the leased premises.

FORMS*(1) Declaration of governing law*

This lease shall be governed by, construed, and enforced in accordance with the laws of the State of New York.

(2) Governing law for validity, performance, and enforcement of lease--severability of invalid or unenforceable provision

The laws of the State of California shall govern the validity, performance and enforcement of this lease. The invalidity or unenforceability of any provision hereof shall not affect or impair any other provision.

(3) Plural, singular, gender to be read in context

Any word contained in the text of this Lease shall be read as the singular or the plural and as the masculine, feminine or neuter gender as may be applicable in the particular context.

(4) Grammatical usage

In construing this lease, feminine or neuter pronouns shall be substituted for those masculine in form and vice versa, and plural terms shall be substituted for singular and singular for plural in any place in which the context so requires.

(5) Joint and several obligation of tenant, partners

If there is more than one party tenant, Tenant's covenants shall be the joint and several obligations of each such party. If Tenant is a partnership, Tenant's covenants shall be the joint and several obligations of each of the partners and the obligations of the firm.

(6) Binding effect on parties, representatives, successors, and assigns

The provisions of this lease shall be binding on and inure to the benefit of the parties, their legal representatives, successors, and permitted assigns.

(7) Binding effect of lease on heirs, legal representatives, successors, and assigns

All covenants, promises, representations, and agreements contained in this lease shall be binding upon, apply, and inure to the benefit of Landlord and Tenant in respect of heirs, legal representatives, successors, and assigns.

(8) Binding effect--each tenant obligation construed as independent and a condition--reference to successors not consent to assignment

Except as otherwise expressly provided herein, the terms and provisions of this lease shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the parties' respective heirs, executors, administrators, successors, and permitted assigns. Each term and provision hereof to be performed by Lessee shall be construed to be both an independent covenant and a condition. The reference contained to Lessee's successors and assigns is not intended to constitute a consent to assignment by Lessee, but has reference only to those instances in which Lessor may have given written consent to a particular assignment.

(9) Additional instruments to be executed

The parties shall execute and deliver all instruments necessary to carry out any agreement, term, condition, or assurance in this lease whenever necessary and request for such instruments is made.

(10) Relationship of parties not a joint venture or partnership--acceptance of percentage of gross sales is rent

The parties have not created and do not intend to create by this lease a joint venture or partnership relation between them. It is understood and agreed that the provisions of this lease with regard to the payment by Tenant and the acceptance by Landlord of a sum equal to a percentage of gross sales is a reservation of rent.

(11) Parties have relationship of landlord and tenant--not principal-agent, partners, or joint venturers

Nothing contained in this Lease shall be deemed or construed to create the relationship of principal and agent, partnership, joint venture, or any other relationship between Lessor and Lessee, except that of landlord and tenant.

(12) Captions for convenience--not part of lease--not to limit or amplify lease

The captions of this Lease are for convenience only, are not a part of the Lease, and do not in any way limit or amplify its terms and provisions.

(13) Titles of paragraphs for convenience and reference only

The titles of the articles and paragraphs in this Lease are for convenience and reference only, and the words contained therein shall in no way be held to explain, modify, amplify or aid in the interpretation, construction or meaning of the provisions hereof.

(14) Identification of leased premises by annexed plan

The plan attached to and made a part of this lease, except as otherwise specifically provided, is used solely for the purpose of identifying or designating the leased premises. Any marking, measurements, dimensions, or notes of any kind contained therein have no bearing with respect to the terms and conditions of this lease and are not to be considered a part hereof.

(15) No representations by landlord or agent, except as set forth in lease

Tenant acknowledges that, except as expressly set forth herein, Landlord and its agents have made no representations or promises with respect to the Leased Premises or the making or entry into this Lease.

(16) Prior representations incorporated into lease--no representations, warranties, or promises by landlord, agents, or representatives

All negotiations, considerations, representations, and understandings between the parties are incorporated in this lease. Tenant acknowledges that Landlord, its agents and representatives, have made no representations, warranties or promises with respect to the building, the surrounding land, or the demised premises except as expressly set forth herein.

(17) Entire agreement--modification in writing, signed and delivered by both parties

This Lease contains all of the agreements and representations between the parties. No term of this Lease shall be waived or modified to any extent, except by an instrument signed and delivered by both parties.

(18) Entire agreement--modification in writing signed by party against whom enforcement is sought

This lease contains the entire agreement between the parties. Any subsequent agreement shall be ineffective to change, modify, or discharge it in whole or in part, unless such agreement is in writing and signed by the party against whom enforcement of the change, modification, or discharge is sought.

(19) Entire agreement--earlier statements or writings of no effect--tenant does not rely on representations not contained in lease--modification in writing signed by parties

This Lease constitutes the entire agreement between the parties, and no earlier statements or prior written matter shall have any force or effect. Tenant is not relying on any representations or agreements other than those contained in this Lease. This Lease shall not be modified or cancelled except by instrument subscribed by both parties.

(20) Entire agreement contained in writing--no oral or written modification by agent, salesman, or officer of landlord--written modifications to be signed by both parties

This writing contains the entire agreement between the parties, and no agent, representative, salesman or officer of Lessor has authority to make or has made any oral or written statement, agreement or representation in connection herewith, modifying, adding or changing the terms and conditions set forth herein. No modification of this Lease shall be binding unless it is in writing and signed by the parties. This Lease shall have no force or validity unless it is returned to Lessee duly executed by Lessor.

(21) Modification by writing--signed by party against whom enforcement sought

This lease may not be changed orally, but only by an agreement in writing and signed by the party against whom enforcement of any waiver, change, modification, or discharge is sought.

(22) Severability

If any provision of this lease shall be declared invalid or unenforceable, the remainder of the lease shall continue in full force and effect.

(23) Severability of invalid or unenforceable clause--enforcement when clause not invalid or unenforceable--enforcement of remaining provisions

If any term or provision of this Lease or its application to any person or circumstance is to any extent invalid or unenforceable, the remainder of this Lease, or the application of such term or provision to persons or circumstances other than those as to which it is held invalid or unenforceable, shall not be affected thereby, and each term and provision shall be valid and enforced to the fullest extent permitted by law.

(24) Severability of invalid or unenforceable clause--remainder of lease enforceable--clause applicable to other persons and circumstances

If any clause, phrase, provision, or portion of this Lease or the application thereof to any person or circumstance is invalid or unenforceable under applicable law, such event shall not affect, impair, or render invalid or unenforceable the remainder of this Lease, nor any other clause, phrase, provision or portion hereof, nor shall it affect the application of any clause, phrase, provision, or portion hereof to other persons or circumstances.

(25) No waivers--waiver not deemed waiver of subsequent breach of default

No delay by Landlord in exercising or failing to exercise any right or power shall impair such right or power, or be construed as a waiver of any breach or default, or as acquiescence thereto. No waiver by Landlord of any covenant, term, or condition of this Lease shall be construed by Tenant as a waiver of a continuing or subsequent breach of the same covenant, provision, or condition. If Landlord's waiver, consent to or approval of any act by Tenant is required, the same shall be valid only if in writing, and such consent or approval shall not be deemed to waive or render unnecessary consent to or approval of any subsequent similar act.

(26) No waiver by landlord's failure to enforce--receipt of rent with knowledge of breach not a waiver--writing required for waiver

Landlord's failure to seek redress for violation of, or to insist upon the strict performance of, any covenant or condition of this lease, or of any rule or regulation, shall not prevent a subsequent act, which would have originally constituted a violation, from having all the force and effect of an original violation. Landlord's receipt of rent with knowledge of the breach of any covenant of this lease shall not be deemed a waiver of such breach. Landlord shall not be deemed to waive any provision of this lease unless the same is in writing and signed by Landlord.

(27) Waiver of one default not waiver of subsequent default--no estoppel against landlord--demands for rent to have same effect as if made when and where rent originally due

No waiver of any covenant or condition or the breach of any covenant or condition of this Lease shall be taken to constitute a waiver of any subsequent breach of such covenant or condition, nor to justify or authorize the nonobservance on any other occasion of the same, or any other covenant or condition hereof, nor shall the acceptance of rent by Landlord at any time when Tenant is in default under any covenant or condition hereof be construed as a waiver of such default, nor shall any waiver or indulgence granted by Landlord to Tenant be taken as an estoppel against Landlord. It is expressly understood that, if at any time, Tenant shall be in default in any of the covenants or conditions hereunder, an acceptance by Landlord of rent during the continuance of such default, or of the failure on the part of Landlord promptly to avail itself of such other rights or remedies as Landlord may have, shall not be construed as a waiver of such default; but Landlord may at any time thereafter, if such default continues, take action it deems necessary on account of such default, in the manner provided in this lease. Every demand for rent due wherever and whenever made, or demand for the performance or observance of any of the other obligations devolving upon Tenant hereunder, shall have the same effect as if made at the time it falls due and at the place of payment; and after the service of any notice of commencement of any suit or final judgment therein, Landlord may receive and collect any rent due, and such collection or receipt shall not operate as a waiver of nor affect such notice, suit or judgment.

(28) Confidentiality of lease contents--procedure for response to subpoena

Tenant shall keep the contents of the Lease confidential and shall not disclose the contents of the Lease in any manner whatsoever, except that (i) Tenant may make any disclosure of information contained in the Lease to which Landlord gives its prior written consent, and (ii) any information contained in the Lease may be disclosed to Tenant's Representatives who need to know that information for the purpose of assisting Tenant in connection with its business at the Premises and who agree in writing to keep that information confidential. Tenant shall be responsible for any breach of the provisions of this Section by any of its Representatives. The term "Representatives," as used in this Section of the Lease, means Tenant's directors, officers, partners, employees, attorneys, accountants and bankers.

If Tenant or its Representatives receive a request to disclose all or any part of the contents of the Lease under the terms of a subpoena or other order issued by a court of competent jurisdiction or by a government agency, Tenant shall: (i) promptly notify Landlord of the existence, terms and circumstances surrounding such request; (ii) consult with Landlord on the advisability of taking steps to resist or narrow that request; (iii) if disclosure of any portion of the Lease is required, furnish only such portion of the Lease as Tenant is advised by counsel is legally required to be disclosed; and (iv) cooperate with Landlord in its efforts to obtain an order or other reliable assurance that confidential treatment will be accorded to that portion of the Lease that is required to be disclosed.

Tenant agrees to protect, indemnify, defend and hold harmless Landlord from any damages or other adverse consequences that Landlord may incur or suffer as a result of a breach of the covenants contained in this Section. In addition, Tenant understands, acknowledges and agrees that any breach of the provisions of this Section on the part of Tenant or its Representatives shall constitute a default under the Lease. The provisions of this Section shall survive the expiration or earlier termination of the Lease.

(29) Duplicate counterparts deemed originals

This Lease may be executed in one or more counterparts, each of which shall be an original, and all of which shall constitute one and the same instrument.

FORM 23.71 Rules and regulations

COMMENT

Rules and regulations are frequently written in a separate document, which is included by reference in the lease. Although more general use restrictions are part of most leases, the more specific and detailed rules and regulations are usually not contained in the main body of the lease. Frequently, however, they are attached to the lease and initialed or signed by the tenant.

Flexibility of rules and regulations:

One of the advantages of separately written rules and regulations is the flexibility it affords a landlord to amend the rules as circumstances change. If, for example, local regulations restrict utility use or other services, the regulations could be amended accordingly. It would be much more difficult, from both a practical and a legal perspective, to amend each tenant's lease in such a situation. The tenants' leases would generally provide that the amendment be delivered to the tenants in the form of a notice, or that it be posted in a previously designated area accessible by the tenants.

Corresponding lease provisions:

The lease should contain a clause which relates to the rules and regulations. The nature of the lease provisions would depend on the objectives of the parties. If the landlord seeks flexibility, the lease would specify, in effect, that the tenant's use of the premises is subject to the rules and regulations of the landlord as they exist at the time of signing of the lease, and as subsequently amended.

FORM 23.72 Rider for residential lease containing lead-based paint disclosures

COMMENT

Disclosure of lead-based paint hazards:

Federal law requires the disclosure of lead-based paint hazards to individuals who are renting, buying or renovating pre-1978 residential housing. See 42 U.S.C. §§ 4851 -4856 ; 40 C.F.R. Part 745 and 24 C.F.R. Part 35, Subpart A. Lead-based paint and paint dust are often found in housing built before 1978. Lead is very dangerous, especially to young children and pregnant women. Sellers of pre-1978 housing must disclose known information on lead-based paint hazards before selling a house, and landlords must disclose such information before leases take effect. Both sales contracts and leases must include a lead warning statement and disclosure information. Renovators must provide information about lead-based paint before starting work.

The landlord is responsible for providing lead-based paint information to the prospective residential tenant. The information required by law includes both specific information about the property being rented and general information about lead-based paint hazards. The landlord must disclose known lead-based paint and lead-based paint hazards and provide available records and reports to the tenant. The landlord also must give the tenant the pamphlet, developed by EPA, HUD, and the Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC), titled "Protect Your Family from Lead in Your Home." Finally, the lease must include certain notification and disclosure language.

Note that the law does not require the landlord to test for lead-based paint or to remove such paint if it is known to exist. The law also does not invalidate a lease that does not include the required disclosure. However, any person who violates the lead disclosure requirements may be subject to civil and criminal penalties, as well as treble damages in a private civil suit.

Lead-based paint testing techniques and remedies:

Lead paint problems can be determined by visual inspection of paint condition and location, surface dust tests, spectrography or chemical tests of samples. Home test kits generally are not considered to be reliable.

Lead paint can be handled in three ways: removal of the surface containing the paint, encapsulation (i.e. , by sheetrocking over the surface), or by sanding the surface. Removal is the most permanent and most expensive method, and it causes the least amount of lead dust. Encapsulation may not be permanent and is moderately expensive. As the seams age, lead dust may escape. Encapsulation may not be performed by painting alone. Sanding is not recommended, as it produces high quantities of lead dust; however, sanding is a lower cost alternative and deemed permanent.

FORM 23.73 Death or Disability

COMMENT

This clause can be used when representing a Tenant who is operating a business totally dependent on his personal abilities. It gives that person the right to terminate the lease under certain circumstances and conditions. The individual may be a sole proprietor, or the sole shareholder of a corporation or sole member of a limited liability company. For example, a medical doctor might incorporate as a professional corporation and be the sole shareholder of that corporation, or be the sole member of a limited liability company. In such circumstances, the Landlord might be willing to accept a clause in the lease that would allow the Tenant to terminate the lease in the event of the death or disability of the individual Tenant or sole shareholder of the professional corporation or other entity. In this particular instance, the Landlord has agreed to grant a termination right, but subject to certain terms and conditions that are set forth in the clause.

Death or Disability. In the event of the death of the Tenant, or disability of the Tenant (or its sole shareholder or member) which results in the permanent inability of the Tenant to operate its business at the leased premises as substantiated by a reputable medical doctor reasonably acceptable to Landlord, then Tenant or Tenant's legal representative shall have the right, upon written notice to Landlord, to terminate this lease effective thirty (30) days after receipt of written notice from the Tenant or the Tenant's legal representative by Landlord, subject to the conditions hereafter set forth. The conditions required to be met are that Tenant pay Landlord (i) an amount equal to two (2) months base rent at the rate of rent then being paid by Tenant, (ii) an amount equal to the unamortized cost of the brokerage commission paid by Landlord pursuant to the terms of the lease, assuming an even amortization of such commission over the term of the lease, and (iii) an amount equal to the unamortized cost of the leasehold improvements paid for by Landlord pursuant to the terms of the lease, as hereafter computed. Upon completion of the leasehold improvements Landlord shall give Tenant evidence of the amount expended. The amount to be paid by Tenant for the unamortized leasehold improvements shall be equal to the present value (assuming a present value discount rate of eight percent (8%) per annum through the end of the term of the lease) of the product obtained by multiplying the monthly payment that would be required to amortize the actual costs paid by Landlord for such leasehold improvements over the 60-month term of the lease at an interest rate of eight percent (8%) per annum, multiplied times the number of months remaining during the term of the lease after the effective date of termination pursuant to this clause. For example, assuming the cost of the leasehold improvements to be amortized equal $36,000, the monthly amount required to amortize the cost over a 60-month term of the lease at eight percent (8%) per annum would be $1,128.11. The present value of the product of that monthly amount multiplied by the remaining months for which rent is required to be paid will equal the amount to be reimbursed to Landlord for the leasehold improvements paid for by Landlord.

Upon receipt of the above-described notice by Landlord from Tenant, Landlord shall notify Tenant or Tenant's legal representative, in writing, of the amount owed pursuant to the terms of this clause. The total of such amounts owed shall be due in full within thirty (30) days from receipt by Landlord of such notice from Tenant. If Tenant shall fail to timely pay the aforesaid sum by such date then this lease shall remain in full force and effect and Tenant shall continue to be responsible for all obligations for the remainder of the term of this lease.

Chapter 23 REAL ESTATE LEASES
Part IV. Forms
B. LEASE CLAUSES

31-23 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 23.74

AUTHOR: by Thomas G. Belden

FORM 23.74 Rights to Relocate

COMMENT

In a multi-tenant building, in particular in multi-tenant office buildings, a landlord will frequently request the right to relocate smaller tenants located in the building in case a larger tenant needs additional space or a new tenant desires to lease a significant amount of space, and that space can only be found by use of the existing space leased by smaller tenants of the building. This will allow the landlord more flexibility to accommodate its most significant tenants.

From the tenant's point of view, if the tenant cannot avoid such a clause, it is important that at a minimum the tenant provide that the tenant not incur any additional expenses because of such relocation, and that the tenant be given adequate notice before the tenant is required to move.

FORM

Right to Relocate. Landlord shall have the option, upon ninety (90) days' advance written notice to the Tenant, at any time during the term of this lease to relocate the Tenant to other space in the building provided the existing premises leased by Tenant is not in excess of five thousand (5,000) square feet of rentable space. In so doing, Landlord shall pay the cost of moving Tenant's furniture, fixtures and equipment to the new premises, as well as any cost or expense associated with wiring, rewiring and connecting the premises for all of Tenant's telecommunications and computer needs. Landlord agrees to arrange for such move in such a way so that it is accomplished overnight or over a weekend so as to minimize any disruption in Tenant's business, and shall be done on a "turnkey" basis for Tenant. Landlord agrees that the new premises shall not contain any less square footage than is in the existing premises leased by Tenant and shall be no greater than ten percent (10%) in excess of the rentable square footage of the current premises leased by Tenant, without Tenant's consent. Tenant shall not be required to pay any greater base rent or greater proportion of the increases in real estate taxes, insurance and operating expenses than is required to be paid with respect to the existing space leased by Tenant, unless such new space is greater than ten percent (10%) in excess of the rentable square footage currently leased by Tenant and Tenant agrees to lease such new space as required above.

Chapter 25 ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

Part I. The Tax Background

§ 25.01 Summary of this Chapter

§ 25.02 Tax and Environmental Issues Raised by Real Estate Transactions. The sale, exchange, lease or gift of real estate may raise issues under both federal environmental law and federal tax law for the parties to the transaction. For example, the Internal Revenue Code determines whether expenses paid or incurred to clean up contaminated real property are currently deductible as trade or business expenses, or whether they must be capitalized.

§ 25.03 Payments Made to Clean Up Contaminated Real Property. Ordinary and necessary expenses incurred by a business taxpayer in cleaning up contaminated real property may be currently deducted under certain circumstances. Otherwise, the expenses must be capitalized as improvements to the property; in such case, the improvements will be eligible for depreciation over a period of years. In recent years, the I.R.S. has been very aggressive in attempting to expand the types of costs which must be capitalized. Capitalized clean-up costs may have to be allocated if more than one parcel of contaminated real property is involved. If clean-up costs are deductible, issues may arise regarding the appropriate timing of deductions.

§ 25.04 Deductibility of Losses Associated with Environmentally-Contaminated Property. Losses resulting from environmentally-contaminated property that are incurred in a trade or business or in a transaction entered into for profit may be deducted in the tax year in which the losses are sustained to the extent they are not compensated for by insurance or otherwise. A taxpayer must establish that the taxpayer realized a loss for income tax purposes. The loss must be evidenced by a closed or completed transaction that is fixed by an identifiable event that produced the loss during that tax year, such as a sale or exchange of contaminated property at a loss.

§ 25.05 Taxation of Tort, Contract and Other Recoveries. Where the owner of real property brings a successful tort or breach of contract action against the party responsible for the environmental contamination of the property, two major tax issues arise: whether the money received in the form of a judgment or settlement is taxable to the plaintiff, and whether the money paid out is deductible by the defendant.

Chapter 25 ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

Part I. The Tax Background

§ 25.02 Tax and Environmental Issues Raised by Real Estate Transactions

Real estate practitioners should be aware that dispositions of real property (whether by sale, exchange or gift), or even leases of real property, may create both federal environmental law and federal tax law problems for their clients. The reason is that the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act of 1980 ("CERCLA")ⁿ¹ imposes strict liability (i.e., liability regardless of fault) in cases involving the contamination of real property with hazardous substances. For example, CERCLA may, impose liability for clean-up costs not only upon the person who owned or operated a facility at the time hazardous substances were improperly disposed of there, but also, subject to certain defenses, upon the current owner or operator of the facility--even if the current owner or operator had no knowledge that the property was contaminated when the property was purchased.ⁿ² Thus, in a real estate sale transaction, either the seller (as the prior owner), the buyer (as the current owner), or both parties--or, in a lease transaction, the lessor or lessee, or both parties--may be held responsible for cleaning up the contaminated property.

In such cases, several tax questions may also arise. These include whether the responsible taxpayer(s) may currently deduct the clean-up costs as trade or business expenses. A further question arises as to whether those costs must be capitalized as improvements to the property, rather than currently deducted as trade or business expenses.

Various other tax questions may arise in transactions involving the disposition, lease or gift of real property. Some of these include:

- (1) the proper timing of the deduction of clean-up expenses;
- (2) the deductibility of losses resulting from owning contaminated real property;
- (3) the tax treatment of money damages won in a tort or contract action brought against the party responsible for the contamination; and
- (4) the deductibility of the money damages paid by the responsible party.

These and related tax questions are considered in the following sections of this Tax Background.

Planning Note

Anticipate tax issues. Real estate and environmental lawyers devote much thought and effort to limiting a real estate client's environmental liability and to negotiating the terms and conditions under which such liability should be shared among the various parties. However, historically, less consideration has been given to the tax ramifications of these negotiations and settlements. Because of the potentially significant tax issues involved, it is important to involve the tax practitioner in negotiations involving the sale, lease or gift of real property where one or more of the parties may be subject to environmental liability. It is also prudent to involve the tax practitioner in negotiations relating to settlement of enforcement actions. In recent years, the I.R.S. has been very aggressive with respect to requiring clean-up costs to be capitalized.

Chapter 25 ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

Part I. The Tax Background

§ 25.03 Payments Made to Clean Up Contaminated Real Property

Ordinary and necessary expenses incurred by business taxpayers to investigate or clean up contaminated real property may generate a current tax deduction in the amount of the expenditures under certain circumstances.ⁿ¹ In other situations, the expenditure must be capitalized--that is, added to the "basis" (or cost) of the property--and gradually written off over many years through depreciation deductions.ⁿ² Depreciation deductions, in turn, reduce the basis of the property for the purpose of determining taxable gain or loss when the property is later sold or otherwise disposed.ⁿ³

[1] Deductibility of Clean-up Expenses; Ordinary and Necessary Expense Requirement

The Internal Revenue Code allows a deduction for the "ordinary and necessary" expenses paid or incurred during the tax year in carrying on a trade or business.ⁿ¹ For this purpose, a necessary expense is one that is appropriate and helpful, and an ordinary expense is one that is not a capital or unusual expenditure.ⁿ² (The deduction of an ordinary and necessary trade or business expense is known as a "Section 162" deduction, a reference to the I.R.C. section permitting the deduction of such expenses.) Environmental clean-up costs should be deductible under Section 162 as long as the requirements discussed above are met (i.e., the costs are ordinary and necessary, and they are paid or incurred in carrying on a trade or business).ⁿ³

[a] Capitalized Environmental Cleanup Costs

The I.R.S. has been aggressively seeking to restrict the ability of a taxpayer to deduct remediation costs under Section 162. Generally the discussion as to whether an expense may be expensed or must be capitalized starts with Plainfield-Union Water Company.ⁿ⁴ After adding a new water source to its existing water distribution system, Plainfield-Union Water Company discovered that a substance had formed on the interior of its pipes which decreased its capacity. In order to prevent the further accumulation, the company cleaned the pipes and lined them with cement. The I.R.S. challenged the Plainfield-Union Water Company's deduction of the expenditures. The tax court held for the Plainfield-Union Water Company by finding the expenditures only restored the pipes to their original capacity and condition. It found that the expenditures did not increase the capacity of the pipes, the value of the pipes or the life of the pipes. Over the years, in connection with environmental remediation expenses, the courts followed the reasoning of the Plainfield-Union Water Company case. That is, if the expenditure did not significantly prolong the useful life of the property, the expense was deductible under Section 162. Unfortunately, the I.R.S. seems to continually argue that remediation expenses be capitalized. Based upon the holding in INDOPCO, Inc. v. Commissioner,ⁿ⁵ the I.R.S. has ruled that costs incurred as part of a general rehabilitation of property with respect to environmental contaminants are not deductible but instead are amortizable over some unspecified time period.ⁿ⁶

Two years after the INDOPCO case, in a Revenue Ruling, the I.R.S. allowed a deduction for clean-up costs associated with the remediation of ground and water contamination. However, in the very same Ruling the I.R.S. required a taxpayer to capitalize the costs associated with the construction of a facility to treat the groundwater contamination.ⁿ⁷ Essentially the I.R.S. took the position that the facility had a useful life in excess of one year and that it enhanced the value of the property.

To further clarify the question, in the United Dairy Farmer case,ⁿ⁸ the I.R.S. successfully argued that the expenses associated with the remediation of condition which existed on the property when it was acquired must be amortized. The Court reasoned that the property was not being restored by the taxpayer and that the expenditures enhanced the property. In its holding the Court promulgated a three-part test to determine whether a remediation cost would be deductible as an expense or amortizable as a capital item. If the answer to any of the questions is no, then the cost must be capitalized. The questions are:

1. Did the taxpayer contaminate the property in the ordinary course of its business?
2. Did the taxpayer remediate the property to its original condition?
3. Did the clean-up allow the taxpayer to use the property in a new way?

The United Dairy Farmers case put additional restrictions on the deductibility of remediation costs as a necessary and ordinary business expense, but it does provide the practitioner with helpful guidance.

Unfortunately, the I.R.S. did not stop with the United Dairy Farmers case. In a recent Revenue Ruling, the I.R.S. applied the inventory capitalization rules of Section 263A in determining the deductibility of remediation costs.ⁿ⁹ Under the inventory capitalization rules of Section 263A, certain costs associated with the production of inventory must be capitalized. In the facts of the Revenue Ruling, the contamination was caused during the taxpayer's manufacturing process. Because the I.R.S. had never taken the position before, it (the I.R.S.) announced in the Ruling that it would not challenge any expense relating to the production of inventory prior to February 7, 2004. It should be expected that the I.R.S. will continue to be aggressive with respect to the capitalization of remediation costs.ⁿ¹⁰

The Tax Court has held that the costs of asbestos removal had to be capitalized when undertaken as part of a general plan of rehabilitation and renovation of a building.ⁿ¹¹ The I.R.S. issued a proposed revenue procedure for issuing letter rulings on the income tax treatment of environmental cleanup costs involving a single environmental cleanup transaction.ⁿ¹² Taxpayers may request a presubmission conference to discuss the procedures for submitting a letter ruling request.ⁿ¹³

Guidance has been provided for the tax treatment of environmental cleanup costs incurred in projects spanning several years.

[b] Election to Treat Environmental Capital Costs as Currently Deductible

For tax years after 2005, taxpayer will no longer be able to deduct "qualified environmental remediation expenditures." Between August 5, 1997 and December 31, 2005, Section 198 of the I.R.C. allowed a taxpayer to elect, to treat any "qualified environmental remediation expenditure" as currently deductible, instead of chargeable to a capital account.ⁿ¹⁴ The term "qualified environmental expenditure" included expenses paid or incurred in connection with abatement or control of hazardous substances at a qualified contaminated site other than for expenditures for depreciable property. A "qualified contaminated site" was any area held for use in a trade or business or for the production of income at or on which there was been a release or threat of release of a hazardous substance, but excluding sites which were on or proposed for the national priorities list under Section 105(a)(8)(B) of CERCLA.ⁿ¹⁵ Also, the taxpayer must have obtained a statement from the appropriate state environmental agency confirming the presence or threat of hazardous substance contamination on the site.ⁿ¹⁶

The cleanup deduction applied to trade or business property, property held for the production of income, and property held as stock in trade or inventory. Section 1245 rules applied on sale of the property as to the expenditure. The election to expense cleanup costs did not apply to costs incurred in the demolition of structures.

[c] Currently Deductible Environmental Cleanup Costs

In situations in which environmental cleanup costs have been held to be currently deductible, the analysis has been very fact-specific, therefore no general guidelines can be readily discerned beyond the basic tests for deductibility. As is noted above, the I.R.S. continues to aggressively argue that remediation costs be capitalized and each expense must be reviewed in the light of Rev. Rul. 2004-18, as supplemented by Rev. Rule 2005-42, discussed above 25.03 [a].

Current deductions have been allowed for legal fees, engineering and other costs relating to contesting liability for environmental costs.ⁿ¹⁷

The I.R.S. has ruled that costs incurred to clean up land contaminated by the taxpayer and to treat groundwater that has been contaminated by a business may be deducted as ordinary and necessary business expenses.ⁿ¹⁸ In the ruling, soil remediation activities included excavating the contaminated soil, transporting the soil to a waste disposal facility and backfilling with uncontaminated soil. Later I.R.S. officials stated the ruling did not necessarily apply to costs to clean up land acquired in contaminated condition.ⁿ¹⁹

The cost of encapsulating exposed and damaged asbestos-containing pipe insulation in a warehouse has been deductible as an ordinary and necessary business expense.ⁿ²⁰

The I.R.S. has ruled that the costs incurred by a manufacturer to replace underground storage tanks containing waste byproducts (including the costs of removing, cleaning and disposing of the old tanks and acquiring and installing new tanks) are deductible as ordinary and necessary business expenses.ⁿ²¹

If payments are used to construct a plant or other facility to clean up a contaminated site, the Service has argued that the cost of construction should be capitalized, rather than currently deducted as a Section 162 expense.ⁿ²² If the Service asserts that the cost of constructing the clean-up facility must be capitalized, an issue then arises as to the appropriate depreciation period over which the facility may be written off.

If the facility is considered Section 1250 real property, then the modified accelerated cost recovery system ("MACRS") would require depreciation over a period of 39 years.ⁿ²³ However, the party (or parties) paying for the construction of the facility might argue that the facility is Section 1245 property used as an "integral part" of a manufacturing process, such that it may have a shorter useful life. Section 1245(a)(3) includes, in its definition of Section 1245 property, personal property and "other property (not including a building or its structural components)" if such property is used as "an integral part of manufacturing, production, or extraction or of furnishing transportation, communications, electrical energy, gas, water, or sewage disposal services."

Arguably, a facility constructed to clean up contaminated water or other contaminants created by the manufacturing process could be characterized as an integral part of the manufacturing process or of the process of furnishing water or disposal services to the manufacturing process. Thus, if the facility is characterized as Section 1245 property, the facility might be depreciated over a shorter period of time like tangible personal property. For example, the facility might arguably have a five-year recovery period under MACRS as some kinds of manufacturing equipment or as pollution control equipment certified by the state. On the other hand, it might be considered property with no specified class life, having a seven-year recovery period under MACRS.ⁿ²⁴

[2] Distinguishing Between Repairs and Capital Expenses

If the Service challenges the deductibility of environmental clean-up expenses under I.R.C. Section 162 and requires the taxpayer to capitalize the expenses instead, the taxpayer should respond that the clean up merely constituted "repair" of the property, because the cost of repairs made by a trade or business are currently deductible under Section 162. The distinction between repairs and capital expenses has a long history. The often quoted In re Illinois Merchants Trust Company provides as follows:

In determining whether an expenditure is a capital one or is chargeable against operating income, it is necessary to bear in mind the purpose for which the expenditure was made. To repair is to restore to a sound state or to mend, while a replacement connotes a substitution. A repair is an expenditure for the purpose of keeping the property in an ordinarily efficient operating condition. It does not add to the value of the property, nor does it appreciably prolong its life. It merely keeps the property in an operating condition over its probable useful life for the uses for which it was acquired.ⁿ¹

Treasury Regulations provide some guidance for determining whether an expenditure is deductible as a repair, though the determination remains fact intensive. The Regulations provide that no deductions are allowed for amounts expended to "(1) add to the value, or substantially prolong the useful life, of property by the taxpayer, such as plant or equipment, or (2) adapt property to a new or different use."ⁿ² However, costs of incidental repairs made to keep equipment in "ordinarily efficient operating condition" not in the nature of replacement are deductible.ⁿ³

The test that seems to pose the most difficulty in arguing for a current deduction is the "increase in value" test, given that the clean-up costs may often lead to a significant increase in the market value of the property as compared to the value immediately prior to clean-up. However, as the Tax Court has stated, "the proper test is whether the expenditure materially enhances the value, use, life expectancy, strength, or capacity as compared with the status of the asset prior to the condition necessitating the expenditure."ⁿ⁴ Because the clean-up expenditures do not enhance the utility or value of the property as compared to its value before the contamination took place, this test would not appear to require capitalization.

[3] If Costs Are Capitalized, Allocation Issues May Be Raised

If the clean-up payments are required to be capitalized, and, as is often the case, the clean up enhances the value of more than one parcel of property, an allocation issue arises: how should the clean-up expenses be allocated among the various parcels?

Cost is most often allocated by relative fair market value. When a group of assets is purchased, cost is ordinarily allocated for basis purposes among the assets based on the relative fair market values of such assets, assuming the parties do not specify the allocation to specific assets.

However, there is no well-developed set of rules dealing with this precise issue of how an expense should be allocated among several parcels of land benefited by the expense. It seems clear that use of relative market values is not universally required, since there will always be cases where most or all of the benefit of a particular expense inures to only one parcel. Thus, one might expect the courts to allocate an expense in proportion to the increase in the fair market value of two or more parcels which are benefited by the expense.

Nevertheless, it is clear that the courts do not require such precision. For example, in Sherwood Memorial Gardens, Inc. v. Commissioner,ⁿ¹ a taxpayer who divided a cemetery into six areas and developed them sequentially was required to allocate landscaping and road costs equally to all plots in the cemetery, on the theory that the improvements enhanced the value of the entire cemetery, even though it was apparent that some of the improvements most directly enhanced the value of the particular portion of the cemetery which was currently being developed for sale.

A similar approach is suggested by cases dealing with the sale of easements. In these cases, the Service asserts the view that a portion of the basis of the entire property should be "equitably" apportioned to the easement, and the transaction should be treated as a currently taxable sale of part of the property.ⁿ² If the taxpayer establishes that it is not "practicable" to allocate basis equitably in this fashion, however, the taxpayer is allowed to simply reduce the basis of the remaining property and is not required to recognize gain.

For example, in Foster v. Commissioner,ⁿ³ a landowner sold a power line easement over a small portion of a parcel of land which the landowner intended to develop as a planned community. The landowner took the position that, because the construction of the high voltage transmission line reduced the value of his entire parcel, he was entitled to reduce the basis of the property as a whole by the amount paid for the easement. The Service contended that only the basis of that portion of the parcel most directly affected by the easement should be allocated to the easement, and therefore there was current taxable gain equal to the difference between this basis and the amount paid for the easement. The Tax Court found for the taxpayer, reasoning that even though the easement was physically confined to a small part of the parcel, the damage caused by the easement extended to the entire property. This result was reached notwithstanding the fact that the value of the parcel nearest the high voltage line was obviously affected most by those lines.

Similarly, in Inaja Land Company v. Commissioner,ⁿ⁴ a taxpayer sold an easement allowing the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power to release excess water into the taxpayer's stream, potentially flooding parts of the property. The Tax Court rejected the Service's argument that the transaction should be treated as a currently taxable sale. The court reasoned that since the extent of the flooding could not be predicted, it was impossible to determine what portion of the basis of the land should be allocated to the easement, even though it was clear that some of the land would be more affected than would other parts of the land. Apparently, the basis of the entire property was reduced.

From these cases, a general rule can be inferred: once it is clear that all parts of a piece of land are materially affected by a particular problem (such as contamination with hazardous wastes), then the basis of the entire parcel is reduced by the cash received, or increased by the cost of fixing the problem, even though some portions of the land are more affected than others.

Assuming that clean-up expenses are deducted rather than capitalized, issues often arise regarding the appropriate timing of the deductions.

Cash method taxpayers (generally individual taxpayers) may claim a deduction for ordinary and necessary trade or business expenses, including environmental clean-ups costs that are remedial in nature (as opposed to clean-up costs that qualify the property for a new use or substantially extend its useful life, and, hence, must be capitalized), as the payments are made, but not before.ⁿ¹

Most trade or business taxpayers are likely to be on the accrual method, primarily because C corporations generally are prohibited from using the cash method.ⁿ² Unless the payment has to be capitalized, accrual method taxpayers claim deductions when:

- (1) all events have occurred which fix the fact of liability;

(2) the amount of the liability can be determined with reasonable accuracy (the "all events test"); and

(3) economic performance has occurred with respect to the item of deduction.ⁿ³

If the liability of a taxpayer requires a payment or series of payments to another person and arises out of any tort, breach of contract or violation of law, economic performance occurs as payment is made.ⁿ⁴ Thus, for example, if a defendant is sued for contaminating the plaintiff's land, economic performance occurs as the defendant actually pays the judgment or settlement to the plaintiff. Accordingly, an accrual method defendant may not claim an income tax deduction until it pays the judgment or settlement.

A special statutory exception to the accrual test allows deduction of a contested liability if the defendant transfers money or other property to the plaintiff, or at least beyond the defendant's control (as by paying the amount in dispute to an independent trustee or escrow agent). The defendant may claim a deduction for the taxable year of transfer if the following four conditions are met:

(1) the defendant contests an asserted liability;

(2) the defendant transfers money or other property to provide for satisfaction of the asserted liability;

(3) the contest with respect to the asserted liability exists after the time of the transfer; and

(4) but for the fact that the asserted liability is contested, a deduction would be allowed for the taxable year of the transfer or for an earlier taxable year.ⁿ⁵

Finally, it should be noted that the economic performance test is met, thus allowing a current deduction, where funds are irrevocably paid into a "designated settlement fund" for the purpose of satisfying a tort liability.ⁿ⁶ The term "designated settlement fund" means any fund--

(1) established pursuant to a court order which extinguishes completely the taxpayer's tort liability;

(2) administered by persons, a majority of whom are independent of the taxpayer;

(3) established for the principal purpose of resolving and satisfying present and future claims against the taxpayer arising out of personal injury, death or property damage;

(4) under the terms of which the taxpayer may not hold any beneficial interest in the income or corpus of the fund; and

(5) with respect to which an election is made by the taxpayer.ⁿ⁷

Planning Note

Capital improvement results in additional basis for taxpayer. Note that a capital improvement will result in additional basis for the taxpayer. If, and to the extent that, the additional basis is allocable to depreciable improvements (meaning improvements whose value will gradually be lost by reason of wear, tear, and obsolescence), the taxpayer will be entitled to claim cost recovery (i.e., depreciation) deductions under the Code. In general, improvements to land have a 39-year recovery period, and use the straight-line method of depreciation and a mid-month convention. ⁿ⁸ If, on the other hand, the improvements are not depreciable, the increase in basis will mean a smaller taxable gain will be realized in the future when the taxpayer eventually sells or otherwise disposes of the property.

INDOPCO clarifies that creation or enhancement of a separate or distinct asset is not a prerequisite to capitalization. Part I. The Tax Background

§ 25.04 Deductibility of Losses Associated with Environmentally-Contaminated Property

As a general rule, losses incurred during the tax year in a trade or business or in a transaction entered into for profit may be deducted in that year if the losses are not compensated for by insurance or otherwise.ⁿ¹ For example, losses resulting from environmentally-contaminated real property may qualify for the loss deduction. The taxpayer, however, must show not only that an economic loss has occurred, but also that the taxpayer has realized a loss for federal income tax purposes. The loss must be evidenced by a closed or completed transaction that is fixed by an identifiable event that produced the loss during the tax year.ⁿ²

Typically, the identifiable event is a sale or exchange of the contaminated property at a price that is less than the adjusted basis of the property.ⁿ³ However, abandonment of a business or investment asset (such as a contaminated piece of real estate) also qualifies as an identifiable event and results in a deductible loss equal to the entire adjusted basis of the abandoned property.ⁿ⁴ Abandonment requires the taxpayer to show both intention to abandon the property and a voluntary relinquishment of possession or control, accompanied by some clear and unmistakable affirmative act indicating a purpose to repudiate ownership.ⁿ⁵

A loss deduction can also be taken when the property is accidentally destroyed or damaged (i.e., a "casualty" loss deduction).ⁿ⁶ In such case, the taxpayer must prove that the casualty was caused by a sudden, unexpected and unusual event that was "noticeable," rather than by an event that occurred slowly over a long period of time. For example, a casualty loss was denied where real property damage was caused by the gradual seepage of oil and saltwater into farmlands.ⁿ⁷

A casualty loss deduction can be taken even if the loss was caused by the taxpayer's own negligence. The deduction may be denied, however, if the damage resulted from the taxpayer's willful act or gross negligence.ⁿ⁸

The taxpayer has the burden of proving both the existence and amount of the casualty loss. Proving the amount of the loss may be difficult where the taxpayer is dealing with real property that has been contaminated. In such case, the Service indicates that the best evidence of the amount of the loss may be the cost of remediation of the property.ⁿ⁹

Payments by a taxpayer to a third person for damages to the latter's property are not ordinarily deductible as casualty losses. If, however, a tenant-taxpayer is required to pay for the remediation of real property contaminated in an event that meets the Code definition of a "casualty" (i.e., sudden, unexpected, etc.), and the tenant-taxpayer does so in order to meet the lease obligation that the property be returned to the landlord in the same condition as existed at the beginning of the lease term, then the payment may qualify as a casualty loss.ⁿ¹⁰

The loss deduction is disallowed to the extent that the taxpayer recoups the loss by insurance or otherwise.ⁿ¹¹ Noting that I.R.C. Section 165(a) refers to losses that are "not compensated for," rather than to those that are "not covered," courts have allowed casualty deductions even where an insurance claim is waived.ⁿ¹² However, individuals who suffer casualty or theft losses that do not arise out of a business or investment transaction can claim a casualty loss only if they file a timely insurance claim with respect to the loss.ⁿ¹³

If a taxpayer is later reimbursed for a loss that was properly deducted, the tax liability for the loss year is not recomputed. Rather, the recovery must be included in gross income for the tax year when it is received.ⁿ¹⁴ The recovery may be excluded, however, to the extent the prior deduction produced no tax benefit.ⁿ¹⁵

Chapter 25 ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

Part I. The Tax Background

§ 25.05 Taxation of Tort, Contract and Other Recoveries

A purchaser of real property who discovers that the land is contaminated by hazardous substances may have a cause of action against the seller or other party responsible for the contamination. For example, if the contract of sale contained the seller's representation that the property being conveyed was free of environmental contamination, then the purchaser could sue for breach of contract and/or initiate a tort action for fraud. Similarly, if the contamination was caused by the release of hazardous substances on an adjacent piece of land, which seeped into the ground and gradually contaminated the soil and water beneath the plaintiff's property, then the plaintiff can sue the owner of the adjacent piece of land in tort for negligence, trespass to land, nuisance, etc.

These scenarios raise two major issues under federal tax law. First, what is the proper tax treatment of the money damages received by the aggrieved landowner? Are they taxable or excludable from gross income? Second, what is the proper tax treatment of the money paid out in the form of settlements and court-awarded judgments? Are these payments deductible by the defendant?

With respect to the taxability of tort, contract and other recoveries, there appear to be no rules unique to environmental litigation. The tax treatment of damage payments received generally depends on the nature of the underlying claim, regardless of whether the amount recovered is a court-awarded judgment or a settlement of a claim.ⁿ¹ Because multiple claims and legal theories are often involved in litigation, there may be some difficulty in determining exactly what a particular payment is for.

Recoveries received on account of sickness or personal injury and based on tort or tort-type rights, including amounts received in settlement of a suit, are generally exempt from taxation provided the sickness or injury is physical.ⁿ² In fact, the recovery is nontaxable even if the damages are for lost earnings.ⁿ³ Punitive damages, with one limited exception relating to wrongful death actions arising under particular circumstances, cannot be excluded from gross income.ⁿ⁴

The exclusion from gross income also covers workers' compensation payments made because of job-related sickness, injury or death.ⁿ⁵

Money damages received as compensation for harm to property are nontaxable if they do not exceed the taxpayer's adjusted basis in the property.ⁿ⁶ (The theory here is that the recovery merely replaces the taxpayer's own investment in the property. In other words, the taxpayer is restored to the condition the taxpayer was in before his property suffered harm.) Amounts in excess of the taxpayer's adjusted basis are generally taxable as capital gain.ⁿ⁷

Recoveries are also taxable to the extent that the taxpayer previously deducted property damage as a loss. The loss would be deductible in the year the damage occurred, if there was no reasonable prospect of recovery by insurance or otherwise.ⁿ⁸ If the taxpayer deducted the loss in a prior year and is reimbursed in the present year, the reimbursement is taxable only to the extent that the loss deduction reduced the prior year's federal income tax liability.ⁿ⁹

Recoveries for lost income, other than earnings lost as a result of sickness or injury (and therefore excludable from income),ⁿ¹⁰ are taxable. The rationale for this rule is that recoveries are usually taxable if they compensate for amounts that would have been taxable if received in the usual course of affairs.ⁿ¹¹

Other than in the very limited situation noted above, applicable to wrongful death recoveries, the courts have held that punitive damages are includible in gross income.ⁿ¹²

Legal fees paid to the taxpayer's attorney and withheld from the settlement check are includible in the taxpayer's income.ⁿ¹³

[2] Deduction for Payments

With respect to deductions for payments made in the form of judgments or settlements paid to plaintiffs, the payor generally is allowed to claim a deduction only if the event that caused the injury arose in a business or investment context, and if the underlying transaction was not a capital transaction (for instance, a payment made in connection with the construction of a building). This is known as the "origin of the claim" test. If the origin and nature of the litigation is personal (i.e., it did not arise in a business or investment context), the deduction will be disallowed as a personal expense under I.R.C. Section 262. Multiple origins, some business or investment related and others personal, are possible.ⁿ¹

In the usual case, judgments and settlements paid in environmental cases arise in the ordinary course of a trade or business and therefore are deductible as trade or business expenses under I.R.C. Section 162.ⁿ²

Similarly, legal fees and litigation expenses incurred in the defense of a lawsuit (or a settlement preceding a threatened lawsuit) are deductible if they arise in the regular course of a trade or business.ⁿ³

A special statutory provision permits a current deduction where funds are irrevocably paid into a "designated settlement fund" for the purpose of satisfying a tort liability.ⁿ⁴ A designated settlement fund is any fund established primarily for resolving and satisfying tort claims against the taxpayer (or a person related to the taxpayer) arising out of personal injury, death, or property damage, and created by court order to completely satisfy such liabilities. In order to qualify for a deduction, payments to such a fund must not give the taxpayer (or a related person) a beneficial interest in the corpus of the fund or in the income generated by it, and the fund must be administered by parties independent of the taxpayer. Payments to such a fund are deductible when paid to the fund.ⁿ⁵

Other questions may arise with respect to "structured settlements." A structured settlement is a settlement arrangement that pays a plaintiff money damages over a period of time. It is usually funded by the defendant through the purchase of an annuity contract issued by an insurance company. A special Code provision contains favorable rules concerning so-called "qualified assignments" of "qualified funding assets" tailored to personal injury actions.ⁿ⁶

A qualified assignment is any assignment of a duty to make periodic payments of damages for personal injury or sickness. Typically, the assignee (for instance, a life insurance company) agrees to make payments for the assignor (the defendant). The payments must be fixed and determinable as to amount and time of payment, and they must not be subject to acceleration, deferral, increase, or decrease by the recipient (that is, the plaintiff-tort victim). The assignee's obligations to the recipient must not be greater than that of the assignor, and the periodic payments must be excludable from the recipient's gross income as damages for personal injury or sickness.ⁿ⁷

A "qualified funding asset" is an annuity issued by a licensed insurance company or a United States government obligation that is bought within 60 days before or after a qualified assignee assumes an obligation to pay the assignor's periodic liabilities for damages for personal injury or sickness. There are further (modest) limitations.ⁿ⁸

The insurance company (or other assignee) can exclude from gross income the amount received from the assignor, up to the cost of the qualified funding asset.ⁿ⁹

[3] Taxation of Certain Settlement Funds

The Tax Increase Prevention and Reconciliation Act of 2005 has amended Internal Revenue Code Section 468B (g) to clarify the circumstances as to where funds placed in an escrow account for purposes of environmental clean-up are taxable. Internal Revenue Code Section 461 (g)(2) now provides that an escrow account, if established before December 21, 2010, shall be treated as beneficially owned by the United States, and therefore exempt from taxation if the escrow is:

- (I) established pursuant to a consent decree by a judge of the United States District Court;
- (II) is created for the receipt of certain settlement as directed by a government entity for the sole purpose of resolving or satisfying one or more claims under CERCLA;
- (III) the governmental entity has authority and control over the expenditure of funds and any earnings thereon shall inure to the benefit of the governmental entity; and
- (IV) upon termination of the account, the funds will be disbursed to the governmental entity.

Chapter 25 ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

Part II. The Practice Background

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate § 25.17

§ 25.17 Introduction

[1] Scope of Practice Background

The term "environment" is quite broad and includes not only air, water, land and mold, but also natural vegetation, wildlife, wetlands and other natural resources. In virtually every real estate transaction, regardless of how small, the practitioner must address the environmental consideration.

As a result, there are very stringent laws now in force at all levels of government. Federal and state laws regulate the quality of air and water and control the creation, storage, and disposal of solid wastes, as well as toxic and other hazardous substances. Still other federal and state laws regulate the clean up of hazardous waste sites. Additionally, federal and state laws protect wildlife and promote conservation and recreational activities. Typically, local laws regulate the types of activities that may take place in environmentally-sensitive areas. Additionally, if a property contains a cleanup site, the federal or state government may require as a part of the cleanup process a deed restriction. Such a deed restriction is designed to prevent certain types of activities on a site (e.g., mining, residential living, etc.)

The conveyance of an interest in real property -- whether in fee, or by mortgage or lease -- involves many of these laws and a host of environmental considerations for each party. This Practice Background explores those considerations for seller and buyer, lender and borrower, landlord and tenant. This Practice Background identifies the potential environmental problems for each party, how those potential problems can be fully investigated, and, if problems are found to exist, how they can be resolved through the use of appropriate investigations, agreements and other measures.

This Practice Background will examine environmental problems affecting both commercial and residential real property. The problems in the commercial and residential fields will differ due to the variations in use of the properties. However, the attorney's goal will be the same -- to protect his client from liability for the huge expenses involved in repairing an environmental problem. Such problems may range from discovery of mold or termites to discovery of toxic wastes on the premises. Each has the potential of being costly to repair, and some problems have the ability to render the property virtually worthless unless repaired.

[2] Overview of Federal Statutory Law

Federal environmental law is comprised of many different statutes. The most notable are:

- (1) the Asbestos Hazard Emergency Response Act (15 U.S.C. § 2641, et seq.);
- (2) the Clean Air Act (42 U.S.C. § 7401, et seq.);
- (3) the Clean Water Act (33 U.S.C. § 1251, et seq.);
- (4) the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act ("CERCLA") (42 U.S.C. § 9601, et seq.);
- (5) the Residential Lead Based Hazard Reduction Act (42 U.S.C. § 4851, et seq.);
- (6) the Federal Pollution Control Act (33 U.S.C. § 1215, et seq.);
- (7) the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act ("RCRA") (42 U.S.C. § 6901, et seq.); and
- (8) the Drinking Water Act (42 U.S.C. 300, et seq.)

Other miscellaneous environmental statutes are scattered throughout the United States Code and are located in such diverse laws as:

- (9) the Occupational Safety and Health Act (29 U.S.C. §§ 655 and 657);
- (10) the Hazardous Materials Transportation Act (49 U.S.C. § 1802); and
- (11) the Toxic Substances Control Act (15 U.S.C. § 2601, et seq.)

[a] Clean Air Act

The Clean Air Act was enacted in 1955. The principal purpose of the law is to protect and enhance the quality of the nation's air, so as to promote the public health and welfare and the productive capacity of the American people.ⁿ¹ It has been broadly construed.

The Clean Air Act contains standards for emissions, lists of prohibited activities, and enforcement procedures. The federal government may issue an order requiring a party to comply with the standards. If the party fails to do so, the government may commence a civil action seeking injunctive relief and assessing stiff fines and other penalties.ⁿ² Repeated violations of the Act may result in criminal prosecution.

Any attorney whose client intends to enter into a real estate transaction with the owner of a source of emissions should carefully review the Act and theregulations promulgated thereunder or consult with an expert before drafting a contract of sale, a mortgage and related loan documents, or a lease. It is extremely important for the attorney to be fully aware of the standards for emissions when drafting these documents so that his client does not unwittingly purchase or lease a facility that does not meet federal standards, and thereby subject itself to penalties under the Act. The magnitude of such penalties may adversely affect the ability of a borrower to repay a mortgage loan or meet other financial obligations. Typically, the Clean Air Act impacts a real estate transaction that involves an ongoing business. For example, in connection with the purchase of a business which owns real estate, the buyer must investigate the types of air emissions that the business produces and whether such emissions are covered by valid permits.

The Clean Water Act was enacted in 1948. The purpose of the Act is to restore and maintain the chemical, physical, and biological integrity of the nation's waters.ⁿ³ The Act seeks to prevent the discharge of pollutants in toxic amounts from being released into the nation's waterways.

Whenever the federal government determines a violation of the Act has occurred, it may issue an order to the offender that it comply with the Act.ⁿ⁴ Alternatively, the government may commence a civil action seeking a temporary or permanent injunction.ⁿ⁵ In addition, the federal government may seek criminal penalties.ⁿ⁶

In any situation where a party is purchasing, leasing or mortgaging a facility that currently discharges any substances into a waterway (e.g., a sewage treatment plant, factory, public utility, etc.), the transaction should be made contingent upon the party's inspection of the records of the owner of the facility, and the records of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the equivalent state environmental agency. In addition, the transaction should be made contingent upon a showing that the facility meets all federal and state standards and is not the subject or threatened subject of an order of compliance, a civil action, or a criminal action. These contingencies will protect the purchaser or tenant from obtaining a facility that may subject him to penalties. It will also protect a borrower's ability to repay a mortgage by eliminating the danger of his liability for costly financial penalties imposed pursuant to the Act, as well as the expense of required modifications of the facility. Similar to the Clean Air Act, the Clean Water Act involves the discharge of pollutants.

The Clean Water Act also regulates the discharge of dredge and filling of the waters of the United States (i.e., wetlands). This of course also includes building in an area designated as wetlands.ⁿ⁷ The Army Corp. of Engineers is the governmental agency primarily responsible for the regulation of wetlands and the issuance of permits which affect wetlands.

[c] Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act ("CERCLA")

The Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act, commonly known as "CERCLA" or "Superfund" (42 U.S.C. § 9601, et seq.), was enacted in 1980. The purpose of CERCLA is to facilitate the clean up of hazardous waste sites and prevent the improper disposal or release of hazardous wastes in the future. This is the Act which most directly impacts real estate transactions. This Act makes the owner/operator of real estate strictly liable for contamination or pollution on real property owned by them, without regard as to whether such owner or operator caused or contributed to the pollution. However, CERCLA does now provide for three separate defenses to the strict liability provisions. These defenses are set forth in the All Appropriate Inquiries rules promulgated by the United States Environmental Protection Agency that go into effect on November 1, 2006. These defenses are known as the Innocent Purchaser, the Continuous Property Owner and the Bona Fide Prospective Purchaser defenses.ⁿ⁸

CERCLA establishes categories of private parties who have responsibility for certain expenses following the release of a hazardous substance into the environment (i.e., Potentially Responsible Parties).ⁿ⁹ These expenses include:

- (1) the cost of remediation;
- (2) any other related costs incurred in responding to the problem;
- (3) money damages for harm to the environment; and
- (4) the cost of studies necessary to gauge the impact of the situation on the public health.

CERCLA also authorizes the imposition of fines and punitive damages.

Those liable under the statute (i.e., Potential Responsible Parties) include:

- (1) the owner and/or operator of a vessel or a facility;
- (2) any person who, at the time of disposal of any hazardous substance, owned or operated any facility at which such hazardous substances were disposed of;
- (3) any person who, by contract, agreement, or otherwise, arranged for disposal or treatment, or arranged with a transporter for transport for disposal or treatment, of hazardous substances owned or possessed by such person, by any other party or entity, at any facility or incineration vessel owned or operated by another party or entity and containing such hazardous substances; and
- (4) any person who accepts or accepted any hazardous substances for transport to disposal or treatment facilities, incineration vessels or sites selected by such person, from which there is a release, or a threatened release that causes the incurrence of response costs, of a hazardous substance.

The United States Supreme Court has recently held that a private party that has not been pursued for cleanup costs by the government may not bring an action for contribution from other liable parties.¹⁰ Under this ruling, a landowner may not be as willing to undertake a private cleanup, and it may be in its best interests to force the government to take an active role. In the Cooper Industries case, the plaintiff did notify the state and federal governments of the hazardous conditions. Neither entity sought judicial or administrative remedies. The plaintiff remedied the hazardous condition anyway, and sought contribution as a potentially responsible party from its predecessor in title and a contributor to the conditions. The Court did require the contributor to pay for its share of the remediation costs.

One provision of CERCLA is of particular interest to anyone who may be involved in a transaction involving the conveyance of real estate:

No indemnification, hold harmless, or similar agreement or conveyance shall be effective to transfer from the owner or operator of any vessel or facility or from any person who may be liable for a release or threat of release under this section, to any other person the liability imposed under this section.

Thus, the boilerplate hold harmless provision that may be included in a lease, mortgage or sales agreement, while effective as between the parties, will not protect the beneficiary of such provision from the enforcement activities of the United States Government.

As referred to above, on November 1, 2005 the United States Environmental Protection Agency adopted the All Appropriate Inquires Rules which significantly expanded the circumstances under which a landowner may be able to avoid strict liability for clean-up costs under CERCLA. These rules go into effect on November 1, 2006.

- (1) A purchaser of property may be able to use the "innocent purchaser" defense if the purchaser did not know of the adverse environmental condition and had no reason to know. In order for the purchase to avail itself to the innocent purchaser defense, the purchaser must have undertaken a diligent environmental site assessment of the property (i.e., all appropriate inquiries). The criteria relating to the environmental site assessment are quite technical. Further, the environmental site assessment must be completed by an environmental professional. It is noteworthy that, if the purchaser created new contamination or contributed to the existing contamination, the purchaser may lose its status as an innocent purchaser.
- (2) An owner of property may be able to use the "contiguous property owner" defense if the property owner was unaware of the contamination and did not add new contamination or contribute to the contamination. Under this defense the contamination must have originated off site. As with the innocent purchase defense, a party which has purchased property that has been contaminated by off site conditions must have made all appropriate inquiries prior to purchase the property.

(3) For the first time in the history of CERCLA, an owner can avoid the strict liability of CERCLA even if the buyer knowingly purchases contaminated property. Essentially, this defense limits the ability of the United States Environmental Protection Agency to pursue a purchaser for known conditions which existed on the property when the purchaser purchased it. The purchaser must demonstrate that the contamination occurred prior to the purchase by making all appropriate inquiries. Typically, this is known as a benchmark assessment. The purchaser identifies all pre-existing conditions and uses it as the benchmark going forward. The purchaser can lose these defenses if it does not undertake various on-going compliance and reporting requirements. The purchaser must also not contribute to the existing condition or create new conditions.

Finally, it should be noted that CERCLA specifically provides that it does not preclude a state from imposing additional liability or requirements with respect to the release of hazardous substances within that state. Thus, when drafting documents of conveyance, the attorney must review carefully the state environmental law as well as the federal environmental law.ⁿ¹¹

[d] Resource Conservation and Recovery Act ("RCRA")

The Resource Conservation and Recovery Act ("RCRA") (42 U.S.C. § 6901, et seq.) was enacted in 1965 and completely revised in 1976. Its primary objective is to protect the public health and the environment and to conserve valuable material and energy resources.ⁿ¹² It is often said that RCRA provides a "cradle to grave" approach for the treatment, storage and disposal of hazardous substances.ⁿ¹³

A practitioner must be familiar with the RCRA if he is representing a client who is buying, selling, leasing, or mortgaging any real property that:

- (1) has its own solid waste disposal system (including an incinerator);
- (2) handles toxic or hazardous substances;
- (3) contains underground storage tanks; or
- (4) produces, handles or otherwise has a nexus to medical wastes.

The RCRA provides standards for the use of hazardous substances and the disposal of hazardous waste and solid waste.ⁿ¹⁴ Where the federal government discovers evidence of an imminent and substantial danger to the environment or to the public health, it may bring suit against any person (including any past or present generator, past or present transporter, or past or present owner or operator of a treatment, storage, or disposal facility) who has contributed or who is contributing to such handling, storage, treatment, transportation or disposal to restrain such person from such handling, storage, treatment, transportation or disposal, to order such person to take such other action as may be necessary, or both.ⁿ¹⁵ RCRA also provides that a citizen may bring an action against any person that is in violation of RCRA.ⁿ¹⁶ This provision of the Act has received very little attention. However, the United States Supreme Court has limited the rights of private citizens to pursue potentially responsible parties under CERCLA.ⁿ¹⁷ As a result, the right of private citizens to bring actions under RCRA may have more significance in the future.

Failure to comply with an order imposed by the federal government may result in the imposition of steep fines.ⁿ¹⁸

The RCRA also contains standards to be used for constructing and monitoring underground storage tanks.ⁿ¹⁹ A party who maintains underground storage tanks may be required to provide the government with evidence he is responsible for taking any necessary corrective action and for compensating others for injury to person and/or property caused by the leakage of his storage tank. In the event of leakage, the costs of remediation are recoverable from the owner or operator of the storage tank. Like CERCLA, the RCRA provides that indemnification and hold harmless clauses do not shield the beneficiaries of such clauses from government action:

No indemnification, hold harmless, or similar agreement or conveyance shall be effective to transfer from the owner or operator of an underground storage tank or from any person who may be liable for a release or threat of release under this subsection, to any other person the liability imposed under this subsection.

Thus, when purchasing or leasing a parcel of real property containing a storage tank, the purchaser or lessee should not rely upon the hold harmless provision inserted by the seller or lessor into the agreement. Instead, he should investigate carefully the condition of the tank. If its condition is not favorable, remedial action should be demanded prior to accepting transfer of title or taking possession.

A violation of the RCRA may result in the imposition of a civil fine. A "knowing" violation may result in criminal prosecution, a fine and imprisonment of up to five years.ⁿ²⁰

Again, the real estate attorney must take great care in advising a purchaser or lessee and in drafting documents. The attorney should order a thorough evaluation of the real property, its waste disposal systems, underground storage tanks, etc. An appropriate contingency contained in the lease or in the contract of sale will give the tenant or the purchaser time to fully investigate and the ability to terminate the agreement if the results of the investigation are not favorable. Alternatively, a modification of the sale contract or lease may be negotiated if remedial efforts can be economically made to repair the violation. For example, if the prospective purchaser agrees to undertake the remedial action, the purchase price may be lowered. Similarly, if the prospective lessee will repair the problem, the rental fee could be reduced by an amount equal to the cost of repair.

In an effort to combat one of the leading children's ailments, Congress enacted the Residential Lead-Based Paint Hazard Reduction Act of 1992 (Lead Reduction Act).ⁿ²¹ The Lead Reduction Act was designed to: (a) develop a national strategy to build the infrastructure necessary to eliminate lead-based paint hazards in all housing as expeditiously as possible; (b) revise the national approach to the presence of lead-based paint in housing to implement, on a priority basis, a broad program to evaluate and reduce lead-based paint hazards in the nation's housing; (c) encourage action to prevent childhood lead poisoning by establishing a workable framework for lead-based paint hazard evaluation and reduction and by ending the current confusion over reasonable standards of care; (d) ensure that the existence of lead-based paint hazards is taken into account in the development of governmental housing policies and in the sale, rental, and renovation of homes and apartments; (e) mobilize national resources, through a partnership, at all levels of government and the private sector, to develop cost-effective methods for evaluating and reducing lead-based paint hazards; (f) reduce the threat of childhood lead poisoning in housing owned, assisted, or transferred by the federal government; and (g) educate the public concerning the hazards and sources of lead-based paint poisoning and the steps to reduce and eliminate such hazards.ⁿ²²

The Lead Reduction Act's primary impact on real estate transactions is its provisions relating to disclosure of information in connection with the transfer of property. While the impact of the Lead Reduction Act is on residential housing, it is also applicable to the sale or leasing of apartments. The Lead Reduction Act has almost no applicability to properties which do not contain any dwellings, or which were constructed after 1978.

The Lead Reduction Act requires sellers, landlords, and their brokers/managers to make various disclosures to buyers and/or tenants when dealing with a dwelling constructed prior to 1978 (a "target property").ⁿ²³ In connection with the sale or lease of a property, sellers, landlords, landlord's brokers and their managers, are required to:

- (a) disclose to buyers and tenants all known information concerning lead-paint hazards at the property;
- (b) supply a disclosure form certifying compliance with the Lead Reduction Act identifying the information or certifying that the seller or landlord has no knowledge of lead-based paint in the target property, and maintain the certificate for a period of at least three years; and
- (c) include the following warning statement in any rental or sale agreement:

Every purchaser of any interest in residential real property on which a residential dwelling was built prior to 1978 is notified that such property may present exposure to lead from lead-based paint that may place young children at risk of developing lead poisoning. Lead poisoning in young children may produce permanent neurological damage, including learning disabilities, reduced intelligence quotient, behavioral problems, and impaired memory. Lead poisoning also poses a particular risk to pregnant women. The seller of any interest in residential real property is required to provide the buyer with any information on lead-based paint hazards from risk assessments or inspections in the seller's possession and notify the buyer of any known lead-based paint hazards. A risk assessment or inspection for possible lead-based paint hazards is recommended prior to purchase.

- (d) with respect to a sale, allow the buyer a ten day period to inspect the target property (unless the parties agree upon a different time) with the right to rescind the agreement if lead-based paint is discovered.ⁿ²⁴

It is noteworthy that the Lead Reduction Act does not place an obligation on a seller or landlord to inspect for lead-based paint. Furthermore, the regulations exempted the following property from the disclosure requirements:

- (a) housing designed specifically for the elderly or the disabled, as long as no child under the age of 6 years old is expected to live there;
- (b) leases of one hundred days or less, provided there is no right to extend the lease after the initial period;
- (c) foreclosure sales; and
- (d) dwellings that do not contain bedrooms (e.g., studios, dormitories).

Failure to comply with the Lead Reduction Act exposes the party to significant civil penalties.ⁿ²⁵ The civil liability under the Lead Reduction Act is significant in that it allows the purchaser or tenant to obtain an amount equal to three times the amount of damages incurred by the individual.ⁿ²⁶

[3] State Law Considerations

It is extremely important for the real estate practitioner to become thoroughly familiar with the environmental laws of the state within which the real property lies or to consult with an expert. Some states have laws that require a review of whether a proposed action--such as obtaining a building permit to enlarge one's home--will have an adverse environmental impact. Only after such a determination is made can a building permit be issued.

Such knowledge of the state's environmental law is vitally important in negotiating contingencies for obtaining necessary governmental approvals. The attorney must know which approvals are required and the length of time generally necessary to obtain such approvals. The seller or landlord will be insistent his property is not taken off the market for too long a period of time while the purchaser or tenant seeks the approvals. The purchaser or tenant, on the other hand, will be concerned he not lose the property due to the seller's or landlord's unwillingness to extend the time period for obtaining the approvals.

The approval processes often require the expenditure of significant sums of money for surveys, engineering studies, architects' fees, environmental studies, legal fees and filing fees. It is important that this investment not be jeopardized because clauses were drafted that provided insufficient time for the party seeking the government approvals.

For similar reasons, the real estate practitioner must become familiar with municipal laws as well. Many municipalities have designated areas as "historic" or "conservation" districts with special requirements for transfers of real property. These municipalities often require the approval of a special commission before alterations can be made to a structure, or before changes in the use of a building or land may occur. Thus, special contingencies will have to be drafted to protect the purchaser or tenant, making the transaction contingent upon receipt of the necessary approvals. The attorney must protect his client from purchasing or leasing a parcel of real property he later discovers cannot be used for the client's intended purpose.ⁿ¹

Part II. The Practice Background

§ 25.18 Sales of Real Estate

[1] Introduction

This section will review the environmental concerns of purchaser and seller in both commercial and residential real estate sales.

[2] Legal Theory

[a] Common Law

At common law, upon the seller's delivery of a deed, the contract of sale merged with the deed. The grantee of a deed had to rely primarily on the covenants in his deed for recourse against the seller. Obviously, most deed covenants will not be of any assistance to a purchaser who has accepted title to a parcel of real property that contains an environmental problem. Thus, in most sales, the common law doctrine of caveat emptor ("let the buyer beware") applies. However, there are some exceptions to the doctrine of caveat emptor. For example, a purchaser of property which contained a latent defect may bring a suit sounding in fraud upon the seller. Generally, a latent defect is a condition which is known by the seller, or should have been known by the seller, which was not disclosed to the buyer and which could not have been disclosed by a reasonable or visual inspection. The most practical application of the theory of latent defects is in a residential setting. As a result, the seller of real property is under no common law duty to reveal an environmental hazard to a prospective purchaser when the parties deal with each other at arm's length. Thus, the purchaser should take steps to actively investigate all potential environmental hazards before accepting title to the property.

[b] Representations by Seller to Buyer

In the course of a purchase, a seller may not make an affirmative misrepresentation regarding the environmental condition of his property or take action to conceal the condition of the property. Such a misrepresentation or action may provide the purchaser with a cause of action against the seller. Additionally, it is very common practice for a purchaser agreement to contain specific written representations and warranties regarding the condition or use of the property. These provisions should specifically survive the closing in order to not be merged into the deed and extinguish. Also, it would not be unusual for a seller to place into a purchase agreement a disclaimer regarding the condition or use of the property. Such a disclaimer would normally be accompanied by an acknowledgment by the buyer that buyer has had an opportunity to examine the property and the buyer is satisfied with its condition.

The Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act ("CERCLA") provides that "[a]ny person may seek contribution from any other person who is liable ..." under the statute.ⁿ¹ The state common law doctrine of caveat emptor is preempted by CERCLA. In other words, the Congressional goal of responding to environmental hazards takes precedence over state law.ⁿ² Thus, a purchaser who discovers an environmental hazard created by the seller may seek recovery or contribution from predecessors in title if such recovery or contribution is in connection with a judicial or administrative proceeding being pursued by a lawful governmental entity.ⁿ³

However, it is possible, by contract, for the purchaser to knowingly waive a potential claim against predecessors in title. Clearly, such a waiver or release would normally be heavily negotiated and would be reflected by a reduction in the sale price. Such a waiver or release should not be granted without a thorough environmental assessment by the purchaser.

There are many practical difficulties in obtaining recourse against a seller. The first is locating the responsible party. The prior owner, if an individual, may have relocated to another state or country. Even if he can be found, suits across state or national boundaries are often difficult and costly to pursue.

If the seller is a corporation or other business entity, it may have dissolved, reorganized, or merged with another entity. The successors-in-interest will certainly attempt to avoid liability on the grounds of lack of knowledge and/or lack of privity. Even if the responsible party has been located, such party may not have sufficient assets to satisfy the claim.

The purchaser of real property must also accept the fact that litigation is often a lengthy and extremely costly process. In addition, court dockets are so clogged with civil actions that it often takes years to obtain a trial date.

Finally, cases involving claims of misrepresentation will be presented to jurors who will judge the credibility of parties and their witnesses. Jury verdicts are seldom predictable, and case outcomes are often less than just. Thus, attorneys should take every precaution possible to see that their clients are never forced into the position of having to seek recourse through litigation.

[3] Potential Concerns of Purchaser

When considering whether to purchase a parcel of real property, the purchaser should be aware of a great number of environmental matters that might affect the property. These issues should be identified for the purchaser by his attorney. Appropriate contingencies to protect the purchaser should be considered and when appropriate, carefully drafted, and included in the sale-purchase agreement. These contingencies should allow the purchaser to terminate the agreement if a serious environmental problem is discovered.

As a practical matter, many such agreements are terminated and then later revived by means of a modification agreement. The modification agreement generally provides for either a price reduction or other consideration, with the purchaser assuming responsibility for making repairs or for solving the problem. Alternatively, the seller may assume responsibility for repairs or problem solving in exchange for the parties retaining the original purchase price.

The areas of environmental concern to a purchaser can be divided into two general areas: (1) conditions relating to the improvement; and (2) conditions relating to the land. Generally speaking, the internal concerns are easier to detect and less costly to repair than the external concerns.

All concerns should be given serious consideration and appropriate inspections should be undertaken. Otherwise, the purchaser may inadvertently accept title to an environmental disaster area that, at best, will not be worth the consideration paid, and, at worst, may cost the purchaser a fortune to bring into compliance with federal, state and local laws.

[a] Interior Environmental Problems

Improvement concerns generally involve the habitability or operation of the structure. This Practice Background identifies six areas of nearly universal concern. Each poses a potentially serious hazard or liability to the owner. Each can be detected by means of a simple inspection or test.

There may be additional interior environmental concerns that are unique to certain regions of the country. These should also be identified by the attorney for the purchaser's benefit. Specific contingencies should be inserted into the sale-purchase agreement to cover these regional concerns. These contingencies may contain some of the same features set forth in the contingencies discussed below.

[i] Radon

Radon is a radioactive gas that rises naturally from the earth. It is colorless and odorless and produced by the decay of Uranium-238. When inhaled in sufficient quantities over an extended period of time, radon gas can cause serious and permanent lung damage.

Radon appears to be dangerous only in enclosed structures because it remains within the structure without a radon mitigating system. Typically, the greatest risk is a basement where the air is not circulated and doors are not regularly opened. Outdoors it dissipates rapidly, apparently causing no harm. The amount of radon gas that seeps into a particular structure will vary depending on soil type and how the structure is built.

There are three sources of radon:

- (1) radon that seeps in from the soil or rocks under or around the structure;
- (2) radon contained in the water used in the structure (usually, the water is drawn from a well on the premises); and
- (3) radon contained in building materials used in the structure.

The first type is most common.

Most general inspectors will exclude the existence of radon from their inspection. Testing for radon can be accomplished by using the services of a company that performs such tests, or by obtaining a "do-it-yourself" test kit from a store. Depending on the size of the structure, more than one test may be required. Although there is an element of risk involved by being exposed to radon at any level, it is generally believed that only concentrated exposure for a long period of time is harmful.

Remedial action requires some modification of the structure or the addition of a radon mitigating system. There are a variety of methods that may be employed. These include, for example, preventing the entry of radon through the use of insulation in the basement or ground floor of the building, or increasing the ventilation in the basement so as to dissipate the radon. Generally, all of the methods require the services of a contractor who has the necessary knowledge, skill, and experience in controlling radon. After completion of the structural modification, further testing should be performed to insure the remedial efforts were successful.

The lawyer representing the purchaser should include in the sale-purchase agreement a contingency for radon testing. The contingency should be drafted so as to allow the purchaser to terminate the agreement if radon is discovered in quantities above a particular level. Although it would not be unusual for a seller to negotiate the right to remedy the condition.

The parties should make certain they allow sufficient time for the purchaser to enlist the services of a professional to perform the analysis. To that end, the parties may wish to contact a testing company and obtain an estimate of the time required for the analysis.

The parties should also consider the type of test that is acceptable to them. Although test kits may be purchased in stores, some knowledge and experience is required in determining the number of tests necessary to obtain a truly accurate reading and in collecting air samples. An error with respect to either of these factors may produce an erroneous test result. A far more reliable result is usually obtained from a professional.

The parties must also consider who will pay the cost of the tests. Currently, radon testing is not mandatory in most states, but some lending institutions require radon testing as a prerequisite for obtaining a mortgage loan.

If radon is discovered and it is determined to be above an acceptable level, and the purchaser remains interested in buying the property, the parties may negotiate a modification to the contract. The modification agreement typically provides that, prior to closing, the seller will perform the necessary remedial work on the property. In such case, the purchase price remains unchanged. Alternatively, the modification agreement might provide that, in exchange for a reduction in the purchase price, the purchaser will perform the remedial work. The modification agreement should specify:

- (1) the precise remedial work to be performed (e.g., installing a new floor or insulation in the basement, so as to block the seepage of radon gas installing an exhaust fan to circulate the air);
- (2) the company that will perform the work;
- (3) the party that will pay the cost of having the work performed; and
- (4) what will occur if the work fails to solve the radon problem.

If radon is discovered above the acceptable level and purchaser does not wish to proceed with the purchase, then a timely notice to terminate the sale-purchase agreement must be delivered in compliance with the customary terms of the contingency.

[ii] Asbestos

Asbestos is a natural substance that can be manufactured into fibers. Asbestos fibers are carcinogenic. Asbestos was used extensively in the past to insulate property and to retard the spread of fire. It is frequently found covering furnaces, wrapped around pipes, and contained in floor and ceiling tiles. Exposure to friable asbestos fibers poses a serious risk to public health and safety because they are ingested into the body.

The risk from asbestos exposure may be reduced by "encapsulation" (i.e., containment) or removal of the asbestos. Handling of asbestos is dangerous and requires extensive training and special equipment. In some states, asbestos abatement projects may only be performed by licensed or certified asbestos handlers. Generally, licensing and certification requirements include both classroom and on-site training. Handling of asbestos requires the use of special gear, including respirators and protective clothing. Handlers must perform personal decontamination (cleansing) procedures at the end of each work shift to reduce their own risk of exposure. Clearly, asbestos encapsulation or removal projects are not to be performed by the homeowner, but only by experienced professionals.

Areas in which an asbestos encapsulation or removal project occurs should be sealed off from the remainder of the structure. Airtight doors and windows and special ventilation systems are needed to prevent the asbestos fibers from entering other areas of the building.

Encapsulation involves the spray coating of the asbestos-containing material with multiple layers of a substance that will seal the asbestos fibers and thereby prevent their introduction into the air. A number of commercial products are available to encapsulate the asbestos. The product chosen will vary depending on whether the asbestos-containing material was primarily used for insulation or to retard the spread of fire.

Whether the asbestos is encapsulated or removed, air sampling is used to determine the success of the abatement project. Before commencing the abatement project, air samples are taken at the work site, at different locations within the entire structure, and outside the structure. After completion of the project, samples are again taken in the same areas. The project is considered successful if the post-abatement levels of asbestos fibers in the air samples are reduced to either the normal level outside the structure, to state standards, or to industry-recommended levels.

Interior air samples at the work site are taken after first agitating the air with fans or blowers. This will insure that asbestos fibers which may have settled on surfaces will be included in the sampling.

The best approach to discovery of an abatement asbestos is to hire a professional. Most home inspectors have sufficient knowledge of asbestos to discover its presence. In representing a purchaser, a lawyer should carefully review and become familiar with the particular statutes and regulations concerning asbestos in the state where the real property is located. This will assist the lawyer in negotiating and drafting contingencies for asbestos inspections. If asbestos is found, the purchaser should be free to terminate the sale-purchase agreement.

Such familiarity with state law will also be necessary in drafting a modification agreement if the parties still desire to consummate the sale-purchase transaction despite the presence of asbestos on the property. The modification agreement should specify:

- (1) the identity of the company that will perform the asbestos abatement;
- (2) the identity of the laboratory that will perform the pre- and post-abatement analysis of air samples;
- (3) the nature of the abatement process to be used (encapsulation vs. removal of the asbestos);
- (4) the types of tests that will be performed before and after the abatement to ascertain whether the process has been successful;
- (5) the acceptable level of post-abatement asbestos fibers still in the air;
- (6) the identity of the party who will pay for the abatement and the testing;
- (7) the identity of the party who will assume the risk of loss during the abatement procedures;
- (8) whether additional fire and liability insurance should be obtained to cover the abatement period, and, if so, the identity of the party who will pay for it;

(9) the deadline for completion of the abatement process and post-abatement testing.

Finally, if the asbestos was used as insulation, the pipes, furnace or boiler will need to be reinsulated. If the asbestos was located in floor or ceiling tiles, these will need to be replaced. The modification agreement should specify who is responsible for this cost.

[iii] Urea Formaldehyde Insulation

During the energy crisis of the 1970s, homeowners were encouraged by federal energy policy and the availability of tax credits to save energy by reducing heat loss from homes that were not properly insulated. One method of insulating involved injecting insulating substances between the exterior siding of the building and its interior walls. This was accomplished by drilling holes into the exterior siding and blowing in a foam that hardened and formed insulation. The holes in the exterior walls were then plugged.

Much of the foam insulation contained urea formaldehyde. Later, many occupants of such structures suffered health problems resulting from exposure to the substance. Removal of such insulation is difficult; it usually requires the removal of the exterior siding in order to cut out the hardened insulation. Clearly, this involves considerable time and expense.

It may be appropriate for an attorney to consider including in the sale-purchase agreement a contingency for a urea formaldehyde insulation inspection. If such insulation is found, the purchaser should be free to terminate the contract. Alternatively, if the parties so desire, a modification of the contract can be negotiated to provide for either removal of the insulation by the seller, or a reduction in the purchase price if the purchaser is willing to handle the removal.

The modification agreement should set forth:

- (1) the name of the contractor who will remove the urea formaldehyde insulation;
- (2) an explanation of how the removal will be performed;
- (3) the type of replacement insulation to be installed, and by whom;
- (4) the name of the party who will pay for removal of the old insulation and for the installation of the new insulation; and
- (5) the deadline for completion of the work.

[iv] Mold or Other Growths

The growth of fungus or other organisms can create two dangers: it can cause structural damage, and it can pose a health risk.

Many of the load-bearing supports for a structure are located in the basement or sub-basement of the structure. Usually, the basement or sub-basement is below ground level. Thus, the area may be damp due to the seepage of rainwater through walls and floors, because of condensation from pipes, or due to a variety of other reasons. Dampness in these areas promotes the growth of mold, fungus, mildew and other organisms. These organisms gradually destroy the organic matter on which they grow. If the organic matter on which they grow happens to be a wooden beam or a wooden joist, the integrity of the entire structure may be jeopardized.

In addition, many fungi produce spores. The spores of some fungi are harmful to humans and may produce a variety of ailments, ranging from athlete's foot to respiratory problems. Fungi can be eliminated by the use of certain fungicides. However, some of these chemicals are harmful to humans if they are sprayed in an enclosed area and inhaled. Mold would also be covered by a general inspection and a good inspector should discover the existence of mold. Recently, plaintiff homeowners have received some significant awards for damages relating to mold infestation.ⁿ⁴ While not necessarily applicable to a residential real estate transaction, at least one case has held an employer liable for injuries she suffered for exposure to mold in the workplace.ⁿ⁵ In a somewhat contrary decision, another court has held that an employee's compensation for damages resulting from exposure to toxic mold in the workplace was limited by the state's worker's compensation law.ⁿ⁶ Additionally, at least one court has held that the manufacturing of a prefabricated home is liable for mold related injuries which were caused by faulty windows.ⁿ⁷

Accordingly, a lawyer representing a purchaser may wish to include a contingency in the sale-purchase contract for an inspection for fungal or other growths. If growths are discovered, further analysis should be made to determine whether the growths are harmful and whether any structural damage has already occurred. If damage has occurred, the contingency should allow the purchaser to terminate the agreement.

If removal of the growths and repair of the damage is economically feasible, the parties may wish to negotiate a modification of the contract. A modification agreement should specify:

- (1) the party who will assume the cost of removing the growths and repairing the damage;
- (2) the contractor who will perform the removal of the growths and the contractor who will perform the needed repairs;
- (3) an explanation of the nature and scope of all work to be performed;
- (4) any restrictions the parties may wish to impose on the use of chemicals in removing the growths; and
- (5) the deadline for completion of the work.

[v] Insect Damage

Insect damage to a structure is often found in its wooden members, including beams, joists, etc. Usually, the damage begins wherever untreated wood makes contact with the ground. The two major sources of insect damage to structures are carpenter ants and termites. Many other wood-boring insects, such as powder post beetles, also cause extensive damage.

Carpenter ants damage wood by chewing tunnels in which they establish nesting areas. Carpenter ants reproduce rapidly and have a fairly long life span. Serious damage to the structure can be done very quickly. Signs of infestation include small piles of sawdust-like matter on floors. The integrity of the structure can be seriously jeopardized by the tunnelling activities. By contrast, termites damage wood by actually eating it.

In representing a purchaser, an attorney should insist on including a contingency in the sale-purchase agreement for a wood-boring insect inspection. The cost of such an inspection is quite small and is usually included in a general inspection. If insects and/or evidence of damage to the property is discovered, the agreement should permit the purchaser to terminate the transaction. Alternatively, the agreement may be modified and the costs of extermination and/or repair may be assumed by one or both parties. When extermination is performed, caution should be exercised with regard to the type of chemicals used, since some are known to be harmful to human beings and pets. In addition, the attorney should carefully review the terms of the guarantee provided by the exterminator, since some guarantees extend only for a very brief duration. The new owner should have inspections performed annually thereafter to guard against renewed infestation.

[vi] Lead-Based Paint

Lead is a non-organic element that is not water soluble and can accumulate in the body. Excessive levels of lead can cause serious harm to children, including damage to the brain and central nervous system, mental retardation, impaired hearing, epileptic seizures and death.

The major sources of lead poisoning are lead-based paint and lead-contaminated dust and soils. The dust is inhaled, and small children and pets may eat paint chips containing lead.

The use of lead in interior paint was banned by the Consumer Product Safety Commission in 1978.⁸ However, a danger still exists in those homes because lead-based paint, like all paint, eventually cracks and chips off from interior surfaces; and it also gradually washes off exterior surfaces, thereby contaminating soil and ground water.

The purchaser of any structure built prior to 1978 should request a lead paint contingency be inserted into the sale-purchase agreement. This is especially important if the structure is a residence and the purchaser has small children. Even a commercial property should be tested since the normal aging process of paint will produce lead dust, which is even more dangerous than paint chips. (Lead dust is more dangerous because everyone, young and old alike, breathes it in, whereas paint chips only pose a danger to small children and pets, who frequently eat the chips.) The contingency should allow the purchaser to terminate the agreement if lead-based paint is found within the premises, or if the soil around the premises is found to be contaminated with lead.

The contingency should specify the method of analysis to be used. The purchaser should require the inspector to take multiple paint samples from each room of the structure, as well as soil samples from outdoors. The purchaser should also require that dust samples be analyzed from each room.

If the structure and/or soil surrounding the structure contains lead, the purchaser should be able to terminate the agreement. Alternatively, the purchaser and seller may modify the sale-purchase agreement to provide for abatement of the problem.

Interior lead-based paint may be abated by replacement, encapsulation, or removal. Replacement requires the removal of any object that contains lead paint on its surface. This might include pieces of molding, trim, windows, doors or other surfaces. If the paint is on walls, removal may not be practical, unless the walls themselves are in very poor condition and should be replaced. Replacement has the advantage of being a permanent solution to the problem, since it completely eliminates the lead from the structure. It also facilitates the overall upgrading or remodeling of the premises. On the other hand, replacement is obviously much more costly than the other alternatives.

Encapsulation is accomplished by covering the lead-painted surface with an encapsulating material, such as gypsum wall board. Encapsulation is not accomplished by simply repainting over the lead-based paint, or by covering the lead-based paint with wallpaper. (Both wallpaper and the new coat of paint will, in time, wear away, leaving the lead-based paint exposed.) Encapsulation cannot be considered a permanent solution to the problem since it requires periodic inspections to ascertain whether the encapsulation is truly sealing up the lead-based paint.

Removal is accomplished by stripping, sanding or burning off the lead paint and is considered a permanent remedy. Removal is very dangerous due to the high levels of leaded dust produced during the removal process. Accordingly, protective garments and respirators should be used during removal. (Lead-contaminated soil must also be removed; in addition, the source of contamination should be found and eliminated as well.)

If lead is discovered on the premises but the parties agree to abate the problem and proceed with the transaction, a modification agreement should be prepared. The modification agreement should specify:

- (1) the name of the party who will assume the cost of remediation;
- (2) the designation of the contractor who will perform the remedial work;
- (3) the method of remediation--removal, replacement or encapsulation of the lead-based paint;
- (4) the testing method to be used following the remediation to ascertain whether the measures have proven successful; and
- (5) the deadline for completion of the work.

[b] Exterior Environmental Problems

Problems arise when the land being purchased possesses some adverse environmental condition. That adverse condition may take the form of several hundred drums of toxic chemicals located on or beneath the surface of the land being purchased, or it can manifest itself in the form of ground water contaminated by drums of hazardous chemicals that are stored and leaking on an adjoining plot of land. In short, the possibilities are endless.

This adverse condition might make the property unsuitable for the use intended by the purchaser. Even worse, it might cost the unwary purchaser a substantial sum of money to remedy the problem. The cost of cleaning up a Superfund site may run into the billions. Frequently, the purchaser-owner may not have a choice as to whether to correct the problem: federal, state, or local laws may require correction. Failure to correct the problem may result in a governmental agency taking remedial action itself and then requiring reimbursement from the purchaser/owner. Furthermore, heavy penalties, including criminal penalties, may be levied for failure to correct.

The attorney must protect the purchaser by negotiating and carefully drafting contractual provisions that will allow the purchaser to terminate the agreement if any serious exterior environmental problem is discovered. For that reason, the attorney must be thoroughly familiar with the environmental laws that may affect the specific site under consideration. Additionally, there may be "site-specific" laws and regulations that the attorney should also review and consider. For example, if the property to be sold is a petroleum product tank farm, a review of federal and state laws specific to petroleum product storage must be conducted. Site-specific contingencies must also be negotiated and drafted for inclusion in the sale-purchase agreement.

[i] Toxic Wastes

The Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act (i.e., "CERCLA," also known as "Superfund") requires that toxic and other hazardous substances must be disposed of in a carefully regulated manner. In addition, all illegal dump sites must be cleaned up to meet very exacting federal standards.⁹ CERCLA imposes strict liability (i.e., liability without regard to fault) for clean up costs on "owners" and "operators" of sites.¹⁰ This includes current owners who were not owners of the subject property at the time the contamination occurred. Thus, before a prospective purchaser becomes an owner, that prospective purchaser must be certain the site has not been used in a manner that would trigger the applicability of CERCLA and require a clean up. In addition to the vast costs associated with complying with CERCLA requirements, the purchaser would be exposing himself, his family, employees and customers to the health hazards posed by whatever substances may be found on the site.

Under CERCLA, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency was directed to develop a list of sites whose prompt clean up would be a national priority. Sites are set forth on the National Priorities List ("NPL") in order of the seriousness of the environmental threat posed by each. A potential purchaser should review the NPL carefully before purchasing property. In addition, a potential purchaser should review the NPL for contaminated sites located near the property he wishes to purchase. Hazardous wastes can be carried by ground and surface water or by wind. A nearby NPL site may thus affect the subject property. Generally speaking, the majority of the investigation would be undertaken by an environmental consultant. However, as a minimum, the purchaser should make a physical inspection of the property for any obvious defects to the land or adverse environmental conditions.

The offer to purchase should condition the obligation to complete the purchase on the results of an environmental site assessment indicating there is no evidence of hazardous substances in the air, soil, or water located on, beneath or above the premises to be purchased. The contingency may specify:

- (1) the party responsible for the cost of conducting the environmental site assessment;
- (2) the company that will perform the assessment;
- (3) the time frame within which the assessment is to be performed and results delivered;
- (4) the standards to be used to determine whether the contingency has been satisfied; and
- (5) procedures for termination of the agreement.

The seller may want to insert a provision into the sale-purchase agreement imposing a duty of confidentiality on the purchaser regarding the results of the environmental site assessment.

The contingencies are generally structured so that the protections they provide are waived if the agreement is not terminated by the purchaser within a specific time period. Accordingly, before the contingencies are drafted, the purchaser should have a very clear idea of the amount of time necessary to obtain the results of an environmental site assessment.

If evidence of a potential hazard is located, the purchaser should have the right to terminate the agreement. Alternatively, the parties may agree to an extension of the contingency period so that further testing, including water and soil sampling, may be performed in order to determine whether a true hazard does, in fact, exist, the extent of the hazard, and methods and costs of remediation. In extending the contingency period, the parties need to agree on which party will bear the cost of further testing. It should be noted that sampling and analysis can prove very costly.

Once the extra testing is complete, the purchaser must decide whether the severity of the problem is such that he wishes to terminate the agreement. In making that decision, the purchaser must balance the value of the property against the potential cost of remediation.

If, after the testing or investigation, the purchaser still desires to purchase the property, the parties may enter into a modification agreement, whereby the remediation is performed and costs are allocated between the parties.

The party performing the remediation (typically, the seller) should expect to be required to indemnify and hold the other party harmless for any injury to person or property that occurs during remediation, or that arises as a result of incomplete or faulty remediation. Of course, such a hold harmless agreement is not effective under CERCLA to prevent the federal government from pursuing a statutorily-liable party, such as the purchaser. Thus, the beneficiary of the hold harmless agreement (typically, the purchaser) may want to assure his ability to recover from the party granting the indemnification through a letter of credit, a bond, an insurance policy, or other collateral, for a reasonable number of years following the purchase of the property.

It is extremely important for the purchaser to take each of the investigatory steps outlined above. Beyond avoiding the purchase of contaminated property, these steps will aid the purchaser in establishing a statutory defense against an action by the United States EPA to recover remediation costs if the property is found to be contaminated after the purchase is concluded (i.e., "innocent purchaser defense").

Like the purchaser of commercial property, the residential purchaser must be concerned about toxic wastes. Vacant land on which homes are now built may once have been used for agricultural purposes. Such land may be contaminated by agricultural chemicals used as pesticides or fertilizers. Residential sites may also be contaminated by chemical seepage into ground water occurring at other sites.

The purchaser of a residential site should take precautions with respect to toxic wastes similar to those taken by the purchaser of a commercial site. An environmental site assessment should be performed. For most homeowners, their residence is the costliest investment they will ever make. Thus, a purchaser should protect that investment with appropriate testing.

In some states, purchasers of newly-constructed residences may have some protection available to them through the implied warranty of habitability granted by the seller to the purchaser. The implied warranty arises out of the disparity in knowledge and bargaining power between a purchaser and a builder.

[ii] Hazardous Substances and Solid Waste

Regulation of hazardous substances and the disposal of solid waste has been a national priority since the enactment of the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act of 1976 ("RCRA").¹¹ The focus of the RCRA is on the management of hazardous substances and solid waste. RCRA was enacted to provide a cradle to grave approach to hazardous substances and wastes.

RCRA's primary impact on real estate transactions is on the operating and closing of facilities, including manufacturing facilities that handle or dispose of hazardous and solid waste. RCRA is not focused on the remediation of environmental conditions as much as it is on the handling (including transportation and storage) and disposal of wastes. For example, RCRA regulates disposal facilities and prohibits open dumping.

A purchaser should have the property inspected (in many cases, it would also involve the purchase of a related business) to determine if the property contains any storage facilities (including underground storage tanks) or disposal facilities. If the answer is yes, then the purchaser should undertake an investigation as to whether facilities are in compliance with applicable laws or pose any potential environmental hazard. Further, if the business uses "hazardous substances" the purchaser should determine whether the use, storage, disposal and transportation of such substances is being undertaken in accordance with all applicable laws.

For the purchaser of commercial property, the ability to handle hazardous substances and effectively dispose of solid waste may be critical. Such commercial purchasers might include walk-in medical clinics (which, of course, produce medical wastes), tire stores, automobile dealers or automobile repair shops (which use large amounts of grease and petroleum products), supermarkets (empty crates, cartons, food that has perished on the shelf), as well as manufacturers and other industrial businesses.

Any commercial purchaser who has these concerns should have his attorney negotiate and draft a contingency for insertion into the sale-purchase agreement. The contingency should give the purchaser an ample period of time within which to investigate the use and handling of hazardous substances and the disposal of hazardous waste.

If the purchaser is not satisfied, the contingency should allow the purchaser to terminate the sale-purchase agreement.

[iii] Waste Water, Including Storm Water, Leaching Water and Sewage

A purchaser of real estate, whether residential or commercial, should be concerned with three specific types of waste water. These are:

- (1) sewage;
- (2) storm water; and
- (3) leaching water.

Sewage is produced at any structure that is used by humans and is equipped with lavatory facilities. It can be discharged into a public facility (i.e., a large sewage treatment plant) or into a private facility. The most common form of private facility is a residential septic system, better known as a "septic tank.." Many commercial structures have their own private sewage treatment plants.

A potential purchaser of a structure containing a private sewage disposal facility must investigate the system carefully. He should request the following information:

- (1) When was the system constructed?
- (2) What is the design of the system?
- (3) How does it operate?
- (4) Who installed it?
- (5) Where is the system located?
- (6) Are copies of the construction plans available?
- (7) Was a permit obtained when the system was constructed?
- (8) Has the permit been renewed, if required?
- (9) Is the permit currently effective?
- (10) What is the capacity of the system?
- (11) What is the purchaser's expected output of raw sewage?
- (12) What servicing or improvements have been made to the system, if any?
- (13) How effectively is the system handling its current load?
- (14) Does the system comply with current law and regulations?
- (15) Would a change in the use of the property require the system to be upgraded or expanded?
- (16) What would the cost of such an upgrade or expansion be?

To fully investigate the issues above, the potential purchaser will usually need to engage the assistance of an expert in the field.

In negotiating the sale-purchase agreement, the attorney for the purchaser will want to include one or more contingencies regarding the septic system. The residential purchaser will want the contingency to provide that he may cancel the agreement if the capacity of the system is not sufficient for his anticipated needs (i.e., capacity of the system), or if the system is not currently functioning properly. During the winter when the ground is frozen, it may be necessary to engage heavy equipment to break the ground and expose the system for testing; thus, a longer period should be allowed at this time of the year. If either condition is not met, the purchaser may still wish to purchase the property. The parties may opt to modify the agreement by lowering the purchase price and having the purchaser make repairs. Alternatively, the seller can make the changes and thereby still receive the full purchase price.

Commercial and residential purchasers who purchase vacant land with the intention of building a structure will need a contingency for obtaining governmental approval for the installation of a private system, or a contingency for obtaining government approval for attaching new buildings to the existing public system. The latter contingency should contain a limit on how much the purchaser is willing to spend, since the public system may require the purchaser to pay for tie-in fees, mains and lines to connect the system to his structure. In the case of a commercial operation, the purchaser may be asked to construct a pumping station in addition to the mains and lines.

Storm water presents different problems for residential and commercial purchasers. The residential purchaser is most concerned about whether the system for the diversion of run-off water is adequate. Often, flooding problems can be solved with the use of a basement pumping device known as a "sump pump." Typically, the purchaser's inspector will investigate the possibility of water in the basement.

The commercial purchaser should be concerned over whether storm water will pick up and carry off pollutants from the subject premises and onto the property of neighbors. Federal law generally prohibits the discharge of pollutants by storm water.

Leaching water may also pose a concern for residential and commercial purchasers. Leaching water is water that percolates up from below the surface of the earth to above the ground, where it collects in pools. Two examples are natural springs and aquifers. Leaching water, like storm water, can carry pollutants from one site to another.

Commercial purchasers should make themselves aware of nearby National Priority List ("NPL") sites, garbage dumps or other sources of pollution that may be carried by leaching water onto the subject premises. It is also prudent for purchasers to interview the neighbors. In any event, a contingency for an environmental site assessment should be included in the sale-purchase agreement.

[iv] Water Sources (Well or Municipal) and Bacterial and Chemical Contamination

The availability of pure water is a major concern for both residential and commercial purchasers of real estate. The issues relating to water generally concern quality and quantity.

Water quality, to some extent, is a matter of individual taste. Standards have been developed in many parts of the country, setting acceptable levels for many elements and minerals, including iron, sulphur, sodium and potassium. The purchaser should consult the local health department or a water company to obtain specific standards for the applicable area.

In addition to elements and minerals, the purchaser needs to be concerned about the presence of pollutants, such as toxic or hazardous substances. Obviously, the water should not contain any amount of such substances. The purchaser should also be concerned about the presence of various gases in the water supply, such as methane, which can be explosive.

Finally, purchasers should be concerned about the presence of bacteria. Coliform bacteria may appear in the water if the water system becomes contaminated by a leaking septic tank. Another common form of bacteria found in water systems is E. Coli. Both types can cause illness, but can be destroyed by simply chlorinating the water adequately.

A potential purchaser may want to insert a contingency for water quality into the sale-purchase agreement. This may be most important when a purchaser is moving to a new region of the country or is purchasing a residence that uses a well. The contingency should specify that the water must be free of any toxic or hazardous substances, as well as methane and other dangerous gases. Finally, the contingency should specify that bacteria levels must meet standards set by the state or local health department. The contingency should further specify:

- (1) the time period within which the testing shall be conducted;
- (2) the company that will perform the testing; and
- (3) the party who will be responsible for the cost of testing.

If any of the conditions fail, the purchaser must be entitled to terminate the agreement.

It should be emphasized that certain problems with the water system, such as the presence of bacteria, methane, or certain minerals, usually can be alleviated with fairly simple remedial efforts. These efforts would include chlorination, venting of the water system (to remove methane gas) and water conditioning (to remove excess minerals). Thus, the purchaser and seller may wish to modify the agreement to provide for the cost of installing a system that will eliminate the problem.

Concerns regarding quantity of water differ for residential and commercial purchasers. Residential purchasers generally require volumes of water sufficient for bathing, operation of toilets, washing dishes, washing clothing and yard use. If the water system is a public system, owned either by the municipality or a public utility, quantity of water is usually not an issue, except in times of drought when use restrictions may be established.

If the water source is a well located on the property, quantity is an important issue. Often, lenders who finance residential purchases require proof that a well will produce a specific amount of water for a specific period of time. Prior to negotiating the sale-purchase agreement, counsel must determine whether the lender will set that requirement. In any event, a contingency for a water quantity test should be part of any sale-purchase agreement for a residence served by a well. The contingency should specify:

- (1) the number of gallons per minute that must be produced during a stated period of time;
- (2) the company that will perform the test;
- (3) the party who will pay for the test; and
- (4) the time period in which the testing must be completed.

If the well does not produce the specified output and the purchaser remains interested in buying the property, there are two possible options. A new well may be dug or "hydrofracturing" may be attempted. The parties should agree on who will dig the well, assume the cost, and bear any risk of loss. The purchaser should retain his ability to terminate the agreement if the new well does not produce the desired quantity of water.

Hydrofracturing involves various techniques to break up veins of water located beneath the ground in order to make them accessible to the existing well. Hydrofracturing techniques range from pumping inert gas into the ground to using explosives, depending on the particular geology of the site.

Obviously, hydrofracturing can pose a great risk of injury to person and property if not carefully performed. Thus, if the parties decide to use this method, great care should be exercised in drafting the agreement with the hydrofracturer. The parties should make certain the hydrofracturer possesses adequate insurance to cover an injury to person or property during the procedure. In addition, the allocation of risk of injury should be set forth clearly in the agreement. The qualifications of the person performing the hydrofracturing should be carefully examined. And, of course, the purchaser should retain his ability to terminate the agreement if the water flow is not increased to the specified level following the hydrofracturing.

The commercial purchaser may have very different water quantity requirements than the seller. Some commercial purchasers may need only enough water for sinks and toilets. Other commercial purchasers may need vast quantities of water for industrial purposes, such as for cooling machinery, or for use in the production process, such as a paper mill. The water used in production may not have to be of drinkable quality. Thus, the purchaser may be able to use water from rivers, streams or ponds located on or near the premises. In such case, the purchaser will want to insert a contingency into the sale-purchase agreement that allows him to terminate the agreement if there is insufficient water available to meet his production needs, or if he cannot obtain necessary permits to use such water.

In areas served by a municipal or other public water system, commercial or industrial purchasers will need to obtain the permission of the water authority to use the quantities of water required for production purposes. Such a purchaser would want to negotiate a contingency that allows him to terminate the agreement if he is unable to obtain a commitment from the water authority to supply the volume of water required and within a specified range of prices.

[v] Wetlands

The term "wetlands" commonly includes bogs, swamps, marshes, bayous, estuaries and other areas inundated with water either permanently, periodically, or seasonally. The Army Corp. of Engineers defines wetlands as those areas that are inundated or saturated by surface or ground water at a frequency and duration sufficient to support, and that under normal circumstances support, a prevalence of vegetation typically adopted for life in saturated soil.¹² Wetlands serve many beneficial functions. They store flood waters and release them slowly, reducing the damage neighboring lands would otherwise suffer from floods. Wetlands also help purify water by trapping pollutants found in the water. In addition, microorganisms indigenous to wetlands convert certain pollutants to less harmful matter. Wetlands are also the habitat of many types of migratory waterfowl and game, including many endangered species. Finally, wetlands are important to sport and commercial fishing and hunting.

The laws regulating use of wetlands are primarily federal. The primary federal laws controlling use and development of wetlands are:

- (1) the Clean Water Act (33 U.S.C. § 1251, et seq.);
- (2) the Migratory Bird Conservation Act (16 U.S.C. § 715, et seq.);
- (3) the Emergency Wetlands Resources Act (16 U.S.C. § 3901, et seq.);
- (4) the Food Security Act (16 U.S.C. § 3801, et seq.); and
- (5) the Coastal Zone Management Act (16 U.S.C. § 1451, et seq.).

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has primary authority for enforcement of laws pertaining to wetlands. However, the EPA has delegated much of this authority to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Other federal agencies also are involved in the regulation of wetlands, such as the Fish and Wildlife Service, the Soil Conservation Service, and the National Marine Fisheries Service.

If an area meets the definition of a wetland, it cannot be filled without a permit from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. If an area subject to regulation is filled without a required permit, the EPA has jurisdiction to seek redress in the courts. Additionally, there are criminal sanctions which may be used against persons which violate.ⁿ¹³ Also, private citizens may also bring an action against a violator, unless the Army Corp. of Engineers or USEPA have already instituted an action, in which case there can be no private action.ⁿ¹⁴

Several issues are raised for potential purchasers of both residential and commercial properties. First, is the property under consideration part of a wetland, or does it include a wetland? This should be determined by making a complete visual inspection of the entire parcel. In addition, a review of U.S. Geological Service maps for the area should be made. (Remember that, by definition, a wetland need not be flooded during the entire year. Hence, an inspection of the property during the hot summer months, when the land is dry, will not reveal the land's status as a wetland.) Also, a review of any aerial photographs of the site should be made. A review of the Army Corps of Engineers' records should also be conducted. Finally, if the purchaser intends to construct additional improvements on the property (i.e., a development), the purchaser should hire an engineer to conduct a comprehensive wetlands survey. It is noteworthy that wetlands do not need to be adjacent to open waters,ⁿ¹⁵ nor do they need to have a significant hydrological or economical connection.ⁿ¹⁶

If the subject premises does include a wetland, the purchaser will need to determine whether he can use the property for his intended purposes without disturbing or interfering with the wetland. The purchaser should consult with his architect or other design professional in making this determination.

The purchaser should also investigate whether the subject property formerly contained a wetland. This can be done by reviewing maps and aerial photographs. The purchaser might also wish to consult with neighboring land owners who might have some recollection about the prior condition of the subject property. A comprehensive study will address this issue.

The purchaser will, of course, want to include a contingency in the sale-purchase agreement that will allow him to terminate the agreement if he is unable to obtain a necessary permit. The purchaser is strongly urged to include, in the contingency, a provision that the permit must be free of conditions. Alternatively, the purchaser may wish to specify those conditions he is willing to accept and those which are unacceptable to him. In addition, the purchaser may wish to set a limit on the dollar amount he is willing to pay to fulfill conditions attached to the permit. If the cost of meeting the conditions exceeds the purchaser's limit, and the purchaser still wishes to buy the property, the parties may modify the agreement, with the seller defraying some or all of the additional costs.

The contingency should also allow sufficient time for preparation and submission of the permit application, as well as for review by the appropriate governmental agencies. The purchaser may wish to contact the agencies to obtain some indication of the length of time required to complete the approval process.

The purchaser may also wish to obtain representations from the seller with regard to any former wetlands sites on the subject premises. Those representations might include the following:

- (1) all prior dredging or filling was performed with a valid permit, or a permit was not required;
- (2) the seller complied with all terms and conditions of the permit;
- (3) the seller has complied, at all times, with all laws, regulations and policies of applicable federal, state and local governments regarding wetlands;

(4) there are no proceedings, lawsuits or other challenges to seller's actions that are currently threatened or pending;

(5) the seller knows of no facts that would give rise to such proceedings, lawsuits or other challenges;

(6) there are no conditions on the property that constitute a violation of any federal, state or local law, regulation or policy.

The purchaser may also wish to obtain an indemnification agreement from the seller. This agreement would require the seller to hold the purchaser harmless for any loss the purchaser might suffer as a result of a breach of any of the above representations, or as a result of any actions which the seller took in connection with the wetlands. Both the representations and the indemnification/hold harmless provisions should state that they do not merge into the deed, and that they are intended to survive the transfer of title and the delivery of the deed to the purchaser.

[vi] Conservation Districts

Conservation districts have been created on the federal, state and local levels to protect certain undeveloped areas that are deemed to be valuable public assets. In some states, these assets may even receive constitutional protection.

Federal conservation districts include national parks, seashores and other designated environmentally-sensitive areas. State districts often include forest preserves, state parks, lake regions, and other areas deemed worthy of protection. Local districts include smaller areas that might encompass a breeding habitat for a rare species of animal or other environmentally-sensitive region.

Each of these conservation districts is overseen by an arm of the government. For instance, federal districts are overseen by the National Park Service, which is part of the U.S. Department of the Interior. Equivalent state agencies monitor state conservation districts. Local districts are largely policed by boards composed of unpaid political appointees, similar to zoning or historic preservation boards. These agencies and boards share a common mission: to protect a valuable natural asset by regulating the development of real property in and around the asset.

The amount of authority exercised by the agencies and boards varies; however, many have the power to take part in making decisions regarding the subdivision of property, construction of buildings, etc. In short, they function as quasi-zoning boards. Indeed, where a conservation district encompasses territory in more than one municipality, the board or agency can be thought of as a "super" zoning board.

In passing judgment on a proposed real estate project, the board or agency determines both the project's environmental impact on the conservation district and the economic benefits to members of the community living in or near the district. The creation of a large, reasonably-priced residential condominium development, for example, might be economically beneficial to those who are searching for needed, affordable housing. On the other hand, such a development might have a detrimental effect on the conservation district because of overuse of recreational facilities, increased sewage, air and noise pollution from extra traffic, etc.

There are checks on the power of government agencies and boards that police conservation districts. First, they cannot exceed the scope of their statutory authority, for example, they cannot regulate the use and development of real property located outside the district. Second, as with any governmental agency or board, their decisions must not be arbitrary and capricious. There must be a rational basis, supported by evidence, for their decisions. Finally, the agency or board may not enforce a decision that is so onerous it amounts to a taking of private property in violation of the United States Constitution.

A potential purchaser of real property should determine whether the subject property is located within or immediately adjacent to a conservation district. This will require a review of federal, state and local designations of conservation districts. The purchaser should never rely on the oral assurances of the seller or of any government official; however, a written statement from the head of an agency or board that the subject property does not fall within a conservation district should be sufficient to protect the purchaser.

If the subject property lies within a conservation district or is subject to the district's jurisdiction because the property is immediately adjacent to the district, a thorough review of all applicable federal, state and local laws will be required to determine whether the intended use of the property, or a modification of the property desired by the purchaser, will require the approval of the board or agency.

If it appears approval will be necessary, the purchaser's attorney may find it helpful to review previous, similar applications to the board or agency in order to get a sense of whether the approval will likely be denied, or whether it will likely be granted subject to certain conditions. The purchaser should seriously consider which of these conditions he would be willing to accept.

After completing this review, the purchaser may negotiate a contingency, thereby making the purchase contingent upon his receiving approval of the board or agency for the intended use of the subject property and/or the intended modifications. The purchaser should specify which conditions to approval, if any, he is willing to accept. If any other conditions are attached to the approval, or if the approval is not received, the purchaser must be entitled to terminate the agreement. The parties should allow a sufficient amount of time for the purchaser to prepare and submit the application and to appear before the agency or board as often as is customary. If the purchaser ultimately receives approval, but it is subject to conditions that are not acceptable due to their high cost, the parties may consider a modification agreement, whereby the seller would assist in defraying some or all of the cost of meeting the conditions.

[vii] Zoning, Neighboring Uses and Pending Sales of Neighboring Parcels

Most communities throughout the nation are governed by some form of zoning laws or other land use rules. The purpose of such laws is to promote the health and general welfare of the community by establishing an orderly pattern for its development and growth through regulation of land use.

A community's land use laws are generally interpreted and enforced by one or more boards, known as "zoning" or "planning" boards. These boards are empowered to review applications for new land uses or changes in existing uses. The applications may range from a request by the owner of a single-family dwelling to build a garage on his property to an entrepreneur seeking permission to construct a shopping mall in a part of town that is not zoned for commercial use. The board may have the ability to waive certain requirements of the zoning laws that, if enforced, would create serious practical problems for the applicant.

The actions of such boards are governed by the standards that govern all administrative decisions. Such decisions must not be arbitrary and capricious. There must be a rational basis for all decisions, based on evidence presented.

Zoning boards cannot prohibit legal activities from occurring within municipal borders. Rather, they may only regulate where activities occur. Some boards require a special use permit or "variance" be obtained before parties engage in certain activities that might disturb the peace and tranquility of the community. Conditions imposed by the permit might include limits on noise and the erection of visual "buffering," i.e., concealment of an aesthetically unpleasant sight.

A potential purchaser of real property will need to review the local zoning law in order to determine whether his intended use is a permitted one. If it is not a permitted use, but does not constitute a change from the current use of the property, he may be able to claim his proposed use is "grandfathered." In other words, the purchaser's intended use is permitted because the seller put the property to that use before the zoning law was amended to prohibit it. Some zoning laws may impose limits on "grandfathering." For example, grandfathering may be prohibited when a transfer of title occurs, or within a fixed number of years after the zoning law is amended.

If the use is not permitted or grandfathered, the potential purchaser may be able to obtain a special use permit or variance. Before a variance may be obtained, the purchaser must show, factually, he is unable to realize a reasonable return on his investment in the property under existing permissible uses.

The potential purchaser should also review any applications pending with the municipality for changes in the use of realty located near the property he is thinking of purchasing. Such applications, if granted, may have a detrimental effect on the value of the property which he is thinking of purchasing. In addition, if the purchaser is a commercial operation, he should ascertain whether any proposed change in the use of neighboring property would inhibit his ability to use the subject property for his intended purpose. For example, a purchaser who intends to manufacture fireworks would not want to be located next to a proposed elementary school. His business would become an "attractive nuisance" to the children attending the school. By locating there, he would be setting himself up for personal injury lawsuits.

Finally, it should be noted that while zoning laws are generally creations of municipalities, state or federal laws may come into play where the subject property is immediately adjacent to land owned by the state or federal government.

The purchaser who has concerns regarding his ability to use the property for a particular use should negotiate a contingency in the sale-purchase agreement that allows him to terminate the agreement if he does not receive the necessary approvals of the municipality (and federal or state governments, if applicable). The purchaser should specify the conditions, if any, that are acceptable to him as part of receiving zoning approval. Such conditions may include requirements that the purchaser provide visual buffers, additional parking areas, or modify roadways. Similarly, conditions may affect hours of operation, noise level and other similar items.

If the purchaser of commercial property has special requirements concerning signs, those requirements should be specifically set forth in the contingency. Many communities require a separate procedure for sign approval, with limitations on the number of signs, size, placement, lighting, etc.

The parties should allow sufficient time for preparation and submission of the zoning application, as well as preparation of a site plan, any necessary engineering and traffic studies, etc. Most boards meet only once each month, and applications are often tabled to allow parties to present additional evidence or to allow the municipality to obtain further information. The time factor should be carefully considered when negotiating the contingency. Counsel for the purchaser should err on the side of asking for more time than is usually necessary.

The purchaser should request a provision that requires the seller to cooperate in the purchaser's efforts to obtain zoning board approval by providing information, copies of maps, title searches, and other available documentation. The seller should also be required to attend the zoning board hearing to assist in answering questions and providing information regarding current use, volume of traffic, and other relevant subjects on which he has special knowledge.

Chapter 25 ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

Part II. The Practice Background

§ 25.19 Solving Concerns Through Environmental Site Assessments

[1] In General

An environmental site assessment is an evaluation of the land, air and water located on, above or below the subject premises, performed by an environmental consultant. The purpose of the evaluation is to determine whether there is any evidence of an adverse environmental condition on the premises. An adverse environmental condition is generally a condition on or about the land or in the air or water that adversely impacts the owner's use or enjoyment of the property.

Environmental site assessments are usually designated as either "Phase I" or "Phase II" assessments. A Phase I assessment is a preliminary environmental investigation of the subject premises. It generally does not include the taking of air, water or soil samples for analysis. Rather, it is primarily an historical analysis of how the property was formerly used. It will include a comprehensive visual investigation of the property. The scope of a Phase II assessment will generally depend on what evidence of possible environmental contamination was uncovered during the Phase I assessment.

Many real estate sale-purchase contracts provide that the contract is contingent upon the purchaser obtaining a Phase I environmental site assessment which concludes there is no evidence of an adverse environmental condition. Most lenders would also require a Phase I. If the conclusion of the environmental consultant is that there is evidence of an adverse condition, then the purchaser typically has to make a choice.

The purchaser may terminate the agreement, with no further rights or responsibilities under it. Second, the purchaser may ask the seller for an extension of the contingency period so that a Phase II assessment may be performed in order to determine the exact nature and scope of the adverse condition. The purchaser may ask the seller to investigate the condition. The purchaser might ignore the condition and purchase without further testing. (Clearly, this last alternative is not a recommended course of action and the purchaser's lender, if any, would refuse to complete the loan.)

If the purchaser chooses to have a Phase II environmental assessment performed, and the Phase II assessment reveals an environmental problem of some kind, the purchaser will again have to consider his options. He may terminate the agreement, or he may proceed to purchase the property. If the purchaser chooses to buy, he can negotiate with the seller to modify the original agreement to take into account the cost of rectifying the adverse condition. Depending on the nature and scope of the problem, the purchaser may request a reduction in price and perform the remediation himself. Alternatively, the purchaser may request the seller to perform the remediation. Upon completion of the remedial work, the transfer of title would take place.

It is appropriate to include a contingency for a Phase I environmental assessment in every contract for the sale of commercial real property. Banks and other mortgage financiers universally require environmental site assessments as a condition for borrowing funds. Since few purchasers are able or willing to pay the full purchase price with their own money, placating banks is necessary.

In negotiating the agreement of sale and purchase, counsel must be extremely cognizant of deadlines. Contingencies may be deemed waived if not acted upon in a timely fashion. If a date is missed, the purchaser may be required to proceed with the purchase at his peril or face an action for breach of contract. If he purchases the property, he may unwittingly be accepting a host of unknown environmental nightmares that are either very costly to remediate or render the premises useless for his purposes. Thus, it is prudent to consult with the environmental consultant who will be preparing the site assessment for guidance on time frames prior to negotiating the dates for contingencies.

In common law, the doctrine of caveat emptor ("let the buyer beware") applies to sales of real estate. Obtaining an environmental site assessment fulfills the purchaser's obligation to beware.

In addition, in order to qualify for the "innocent purchaser" defense under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act ("CERCLA"),ⁿ¹ a purchaser (who did not contribute to the condition) must exercise "due care" in ascertaining whether the subject premises he is thinking of buying contains an environmental hazard. The innocent purchaser defense frees the purchaser of responsibility for remediation of the environmental problem. However, the purchaser must prove that, at the time of acquisition, he made all appropriate inquiries about prior owners and uses of the property, consistent with good commercial practice, in an attempt to minimize his liability.ⁿ² In other words, he must have exercised due care at the time of the purchase. A court, in judging the appropriateness of the innocent purchaser defense in a given case, must take into consideration the following factors:

- (1) any specialized knowledge or experience of the purchaser regarding environmental matters;
- (2) the relationship between the purchase price and the value of the property, if uncontaminated (in other words, does the purchase price reflect the fair market value of an uncontaminated piece of property, or has the price been lowered substantially in order to reflect the property's diminished value due to an environmental problem?);
- (3) commonly known or reasonably ascertainable information about the property;
- (4) the obviousness of contamination;
- (5) the ability to detect the contamination by appropriate inspections.

The purchaser has the burden of proving he qualifies as an innocent purchaser.

One final point should be made about the usefulness of environmental site assessments. Before placing an expensive piece of commercial realty on the market, a seller would be well-advised to enlist the services of a reputable environmental consultant to perform a site assessment. The reason is because the property will be far more attractive to potential purchasers if a copy of the assessment can be provided to them at the first showing of the property.

[2] Considerations in Selecting an Environmental Consultant

Performing an environmental site assessment requires the collection of historical information (e.g., who owned the property in the past?; was it used for commercial purposes?; were any toxic or hazardous substances either used or produced on the property?), scientific data, and legal or "title" information. The purchaser of real property and his advocate must become educated consumers before selecting their consultant. Further, if a lender is being used, the lender may want to have the ability to approve the consultant.

[a] Factors to Consider: Experience, Education, Cost, Reputation, Other Clients

The first questions that should be asked of a potential environmental consulting firm concern its level of experience:

- (1) How long has the firm been in existence?
- (2) How long has it been performing environmental site assessments?
- (3) What was the firm engaged in prior to environmental consulting?
- (4) What percentage of the firm's business is devoted to environmental consulting?
- (5) How many Phase I environmental site assessments are performed annually?
- (6) How many Phase II environmental site assessments are performed annually?
- (7) What is the total number of Phase I assessments the firm has performed?
- (8) What is the total number of Phase II assessments the firm has performed?
- (9) Does the firm have errors and omission insurance?

The consumer will find that many environmental consultants are part of engineering, surveying or geology firms, since each of these fields is called upon for assistance in preparing an environmental site assessment.

The consumer should also request a list of references. These references should consist of individuals or firms who have used the consulting firm within the last year for environmental site assessments. Several of the references should be contacted. The following questions should be asked:

- (1) Why did the reference select the consulting firm?
- (2) Has the reference used the consulting firm more than once?
- (3) Would the reference use the consulting firm again if the opportunity arose?
- (4) Did the consulting firm complete the work within the specified time frame?
- (5) Did the consulting firm meet the expectations of the reference?
- (6) What were those expectations?
- (7) What is the nature of the business of the reference?

- (8) Why was the environmental site assessment sought?
- (9) What was the result of the environmental site assessment?
- (10) What action did the reference take as a result of the environmental site assessment?
- (11) What relationship, if any, does the reference have with the consulting firm?

The purchaser should also request information about the consulting firm's regular clientele. Specifically, the purchaser should attempt to ascertain whether the clientele is composed primarily of purchasers of real estate or businesses that produce environmental pollutants. The purchaser may wish to steer clear of a consulting firm that primarily serves polluters since such a firm may have an institutional bias in favor of those clients. As a result, in performing an investigation for the purchaser of real estate, the firm may require more evidence of the existence of an environmental hazard than would a firm that primarily represents real estate purchasers and is more sensitive to their needs.

The purchaser should also inquire as to the reputation of the consulting firm in the business community. He may ask his attorney to check with his local colleges. Also, bankers who are engaged in making real estate loans will certainly be familiar with environmental consulting firms since banks routinely require site assessments as a condition for granting a commercial real estate loan. Such inquiries may prove to be far more valuable than the references supplied by the firm, since a consulting firm would be likely to provide only satisfied customers as references. Finally, the Better Business Bureau can provide information as to whether the consulting firm has been the subject of any complaints.

Based on the responses from the various sources, the purchaser can select an environmental consultant with a good measure of confidence. The purchaser will be aware of any possible areas of difficulty and be prepared to deal with them.

Lastly, the purchaser should obtain a written estimate of the cost for a Phase I environmental site assessment. However, it is unlikely the consultant can give any approximation of the cost of a Phase II environmental site assessment, since that would depend entirely on what was learned during the Phase I assessment.

[b] What to Ask For

The purchaser should request a written proposal from the environmental consultant. The proposal should set forth in detail the work the consulting firm intends to perform during the Phase I assessment.

If the purchaser is obtaining bank or other financing and such financing is contingent upon the results of the environmental site assessment, a copy of the bank's requirements should be provided to the environmental consulting firm so that the firm will perform an assessment that will prove satisfactory to the bank. Similarly, the purchaser should provide the environmental consulting firm with a copy of the sale-purchase agreement containing the contingency for an environmental site assessment.

The proposal by the consulting firm should contain time limits on the performance of the site assessment that are coordinated with the deadline requirements of the sale-purchase agreement. The proposal should also contain an acknowledgment by the consulting firm that time is of the essence with regard to these dates.

The proposal should state that the data gathered during the environmental site assessment, as well as the final assessment itself, will be kept in strictest confidence by the consultant and only revealed to the purchaser and the seller. (This will alleviate the seller's concern that information reflecting negatively on the property might be disseminated to the public and "scare off" other, potential purchasers.)

The proposal should also set forth any limitations on the environmental site assessment. For a Phase I assessment, a typical limitation is that no samples of soil or water will be taken. The proposal should also set forth the warranties that the consulting firm makes to the purchaser, together with any limitations thereon. The proposal should further specify whether any warranties may be passed on to future owners of the property. Lastly, if a lender is involved, the purchaser should request language in the report that allows the lender to rely upon the report in connection with its loan.

[c] What to Expect

The purchaser should expect to receive a written report from the consultant in a timely fashion. That written document, known as a "Phase I environmental site assessment," should identify the subject property in great detail, including its street address, tax map number, and deed reference, and also contain a description of the surrounding properties.

The environmental site assessment should contain a historical summary of the past uses of the subject property and adjacent properties. The sources used to compile the historical summary should be identified. These typically include public and private documents maintained in the ordinary course of business, interviews with public officials, as well as individuals who live or work in the vicinity of the subject premises. (The environmental site assessment should also indicate whether information obtained was independently verified.) The assessment should further include a review of title information, maps, atlases, and aerial photographs of the subject property. Such an exhaustive review will be of great assistance in identifying uses of the subject property and nearby properties.

The environmental site assessment should provide information regarding the geology and vegetation of the subject site, the water courses and wildlife, if any, and other relevant environmental information that is site specific.

The assessment should also specify whether the subject property appears on the federal "Superfund" list, on an equivalent state "Mini-Superfund" list, or on other lists for priority environmental clean up. The assessment should state whether any adjacent or nearby property is so listed, and the effect such listing could be expected to have on the subject premises.

The assessment should set forth any other site-specific findings, such as findings that relate to underground storage tanks, incinerators or other similar, pollution-causing items. The assessment should detail what was found, and its current and future condition on the site. For example, if gasoline storage tanks are leaking, the assessment should make note of this, as well as the amount of leakage, and its current and future condition upon the property.

Finally, the environmental site assessment should reach a conclusion, based on the findings, as to whether there is any evidence of an adverse environmental condition.

[d] Liability of Consultant: Limitations

The purchaser can expect the environmental consulting firm to set a limit on the level of liability it will assume in the event it makes an error in performing the assessment.

The purchaser can expect the environmental consultant will restrict its liability to actual (i.e., compensatory) damages arising from some error committed by the consultant while performing the work expressly called for in its proposal. In some cases, the consultant may have to limit liability to the amount of fees paid. The consultant can also be expected to expressly disclaim liability for any consequential and punitive damages. In addition, the consultant might set forth a standard (i.e., a level of care) by which its work must be judged, such as: "the consultant will use the same degree of skill and care ordinarily exercised by other environmental consultants under similar circumstances."

[3] Preparation of Environmental Site Assessments

The purpose of an environmental site assessment is to determine the current and prior uses of the subject property and neighboring properties. Armed with this information, the environmental consultant can then decide whether any of these uses involved substances that could create an adverse environmental condition on the subject property.

[a] Title Research

The purchaser can expedite the process of preparing the assessment by obtaining certain information and documents from the current owner. Such data would include a title report, survey maps, a detailed description of the current use of the property, and the names, addresses and telephone numbers of all the adjacent landowners and tenants. The environmental consulting firm will then contact the current owners, adjacent owners and tenants to obtain information regarding current and prior uses of the subject property and the adjacent sites, going as far back into the past as possible. Occasionally, long time retired employees, if they can be located, may be interviewed.

Survey maps are useful in that they may indicate underground facilities, such as water mains, sewer lines, storage tanks and gas lines. Older survey maps may also show structures that no longer exist. For example, in years past, businesses that offered delivery service to their customers often maintained their own gasoline pump and underground storage tank. With the passage of time, such tanks often became corroded and began leaking, causing contamination of underground water.

Aerial photographs, taken over a number of years, may show changes in use of the subject property or changes in the uses of property located throughout the entire neighborhood.

[b] Municipal Offices Research

In many communities, any change in the use of real property, as well as even minor construction projects, require the landowner to first obtain a permit. Thus, research of municipal permit applications for the subject premises and neighboring properties may prove useful in determining the past uses of the properties.

Similarly, a review of local health department records may provide relevant information regarding water systems, septic tanks and sewage treatment facilities. Fire and police records may give some insight into violations that occurred on the subject property or neighboring properties. For example, the owners of a factory or warehouse near the subject property might have received citations from fire inspectors for storing barrels of highly flammable substances in violation of the local fire code.

[c] Federal and State "Superfund" Lists

As previously noted, the federal government, under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act ("CERCLA"), maintains the National Priority List. This is a list of sites throughout the nation containing serious environmental problems that require remediation. Most states also maintain their own lists of sites that are to be cleaned up under their own environmental statutes and regulations. These lists must be reviewed by the environmental consulting firm to determine whether the subject premises or any premises in the vicinity are listed. If so, a determination must then be made of the significance of the environmental problem on the subject property.

[d] Conclusions

All of the collected data referred to above will be used by the environmental consulting firm to determine whether any adverse environmental condition has occurred or is presently occurring on or near the subject premises. Usually, the firm's conclusion will be stated in terms of whether evidence was found indicating a significant adverse environmental condition.

[4] Phase II Environmental Site Assessment

If the consulting firm discovers evidence of an adverse environmental condition existing on, below, about or near the subject premises, the purchaser will usually exercise his right to terminate the sale-purchase agreement and begin the process of seeking another property to meet his business needs. However, some purchasers may instead choose to obtain a Phase II environmental site assessment in order to determine the exact nature and scope of the adverse environmental condition, as well as the economic feasibility of restoring the property to its original state.

The reasons why a purchaser in such a situation might go ahead with the transaction are varied. First, the clean up cost might not be excessive. Second, the seller might be willing to undertake the entire expense himself, or, alternatively, reduce the sale price in an amount equal to the cost of clean up. Third, the unique characteristics of the property--its location, for example--might make it such a highly desirable spot for the purchaser to carry on his business that he is willing to buy the property regardless of the environmental problem.

Whatever the reason, if it is not addressed in the purchase agreement, the purchaser should first have his attorney contact the seller and obtain from him permission to conduct a Phase II environmental site assessment, as well as an adequate extension of time. The purpose of the Phase II assessment is to:

- (1) determine the exact nature and scope of the adverse environmental condition existing on the subject premises;
- (2) determine what remediation action will be necessary to completely eliminate the problem; and
- (3) ascertain whether it is economically feasible to go ahead with the purchase of the property, or whether the better course would be for the purchaser to seek an alternate piece of realty.

A Phase II assessment involves the taking of samples of air, soil, and water from the subject premises. These samples are then analyzed by a laboratory that prepares a report of its findings for submission to the environmental consultant. Armed with this report, the consultant can then advise the purchaser regarding the nature and seriousness of the problem, the steps that will be necessary to clean up the site, and the approximate cost of such efforts.

Chapter 25 ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

Part II. The Practice Background

§ 25.20 Solving Concerns Through Legal Documents

In drafting documents for the purchase of real estate, counsel must always keep in mind the "what if ...?" factor: what if a serious environmental problem, presently well-concealed and escaping detection, manifests itself after the sale-purchase of the property has transpired? It is counsel's responsibility not only to protect his client from purchasing property with an easily-detectable environmental problem, but also to make certain that if a well-concealed problem manifests itself in the future, the client will be adequately protected from the high cost of correcting that problem. Several types of legal documents and self-protective measures are available to help protect the purchaser. These include:

- (1) contingencies;
- (2) representations and warranties; and
- (3) environmental insurance.

Throughout this chapter, various concerns of a purchaser of realty were identified, ranging from "internal" problems, such as mold, to "external" problems, like the presence of hazardous substances on the property. Generally, a contingency provides a specific period of time within which the purchaser must arrange for a particular inspection or test to determine whether a problem exists. If the inspection or test reveals a problem, the purchaser may terminate the agreement before the expiration of that period of time. If the purchaser fails to timely terminate the agreement, the contingency is waived and the purchaser is obligated to complete the purchase.

Typically, the time period of the contingency is short, so that the property will be kept off the market for a limited period of time. If a particular contingency requires an extensive allotment of time, additional consideration may be demanded by the seller. For example, a seller may require the purchaser to forfeit part of his deposit if the purchaser terminates the agreement.

Even if the inspection or test reveals an environmental problem, the purchaser may still wish to purchase the property. This is normally accomplished by modifying the original sale-purchase agreement to provide for repair or remediation of the problem. Generally, either the seller will effect the repairs at his expense, while maintaining the same purchase price, or the purchaser will effect the repairs, with a reduction in the purchase price equal to his cost for those repairs.

The advantage in using contingencies is they allow the purchaser to protect himself from unknown hazards at a reasonable cost before he is obligated to accept title and those hazards. The major disadvantage is the level of protection afforded by contingencies is only as great as the competence and reliability of the inspectors who perform the tests. An added problem is that many inspectors limit their liability to an amount equal to the cost of the inspection, and only warrant the results of the inspection for a brief time, if at all. And many inspectors disclaim liability for consequential and punitive damages.

[2] Representations

The environmental concerns of a potential purchaser can also be relieved by having the seller make certain representations to the purchaser regarding the condition of the premises. In most states, the seller has no legal obligation to make any representations. Whether the seller is willing to make any representations will depend upon the seller's willingness to sell.

The major advantage to having the seller provide representations is that the representations will usually be less costly than the various inspections and testing that would be performed at the purchaser's expense pursuant to a contingency.

The disadvantages are vast. A purchaser cannot always rely on the honesty and integrity of the seller and his agent. Although the purchaser would have recourse in the courts against the seller and his agent for fraud or misrepresentation, such satisfaction is not easily obtained. Litigation is often lengthy and costly, and the results are never certain. Even assuming the purchaser is ultimately victorious in his suit, the seller may not have sufficient assets to satisfy the judgment. For this reason, if the seller is an entity, the purchaser may want to review the seller's financial statement or obtain a personal guaranty from the seller's owners, if the seller is a closely held corporation.

In addition, even if the seller is honest, he may simply not be very knowledgeable about his property. If he has owned the property for a short time, he may know little about the land or its prior uses. Similarly, if the seller is a long-term owner who purchased the land many years ago for investment, he may know little about the prior uses of the property since environmental site reviews were not common when he bought the property. Finally, if the seller inherited the property or is acting in a fiduciary capacity, he may know virtually nothing about prior uses (or, for that matter, even the present condition) of the property.

If the seller is willing and able to make representations, he will surely want to limit those representations. Typically, the representation will only be valid for a fixed number of years. In addition, there may be a caveat attached to the representations, such as "to the best of my knowledge, ..." Although such representations are of limited value, they should still be obtained wherever possible since they may be useful in establishing an "innocent purchaser" defense under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act.

Warranties are similar to representations. Like representations, warranties contain a statement about the current condition of the subject premises. However, warranties go one step further. A warranty is the seller's binding promise to undertake some type of corrective action if the item he warrants does not live up to the representation he made about it. As with representations, a seller is not obligated to give a warranty. Again, it will come down to how motivated is the seller.

Many warranties are coupled with a "hold harmless or indemnity clause," so the seller is required not only to take affirmative action to repair, replace or remediate the property, but also to provide a defense to, and reimburse the purchaser for, any losses the purchaser suffers, including his payment of judgments, settlements, attorneys' fees, court costs, and other expenses.

The purchaser who may need to enforce a warranty will likely have to commence suit against the seller. The purchaser will have to battle his way through expensive, time-consuming and always uncertain court proceedings. When, and if, judgment is finally obtained, the purchaser must hope the seller has sufficient assets with which to satisfy the judgment.

The purchaser can expect warranties to be limited in duration, that is, the seller might warrant that during his tenure as owner, no hazardous substances were released or used on the subject premises. The seller might also limit the warranty prospectively. For example, if the seller warrants the premises are free of wood-boring insects because he had the premises treated recently, his warranty will likely be limited to the same period of time covered by the warranty granted to him by the exterminator. The seller may also limit his warranty to exclude liability for consequential damages.

[4] Insurance

As discussed earlier, environmental site assessments have their limitations. Much of the information upon which the consultant's conclusions rest is obtained by review of public records, which may be incomplete, and from information supplied by individuals, which may be inaccurate. Thus, the environmental site assessment is not a foolproof method of guaranteeing the property being purchased is entirely free of environmental problems.

There are several types of insurance policies available. The purpose of the insurance is to protect real estate buyers and lenders from the high cost of cleaning up contaminated real property.

The insurance companies offering such coverage require an environmental site assessment to be performed on the subject premises by an environmental consultant before making a commitment to insure the property. The environmental consultant must be approved by the insurance company. If any contamination is discovered during the course of the environmental site assessment, the cost of correcting such contamination is excluded from coverage when the policy is issued.

The cost of such insurance coverage is quite expensive. The general types of policies are:

- (1) Cleanup Cost "Cap" Policy. This policy is designed to cover the cost of the investigation and/or cleanup of a specific problem. This policy shifts the overruns to the insurance company.
- (2) Pollution Liability Policy. This policy covers claims made by third parties resulting from pollution.
- (3) Secured Party Insurance. This policy is limited to secured lenders. It typically covers a loan default which resulted from the impairment of the collateral and it also covers lender's liability relating to cleanup.

Generally speaking, environmental insurance is expensive and is utilized in large transactions.

Chapter 25 ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

Part II. The Practice Background

§ 25.21 Accepting Gifts of Real Property

[1] Background

Charities have been unwitting victims of donors who, either intentionally or innocently, have given gifts of real property plagued with environmental problems. Whether as donees or trustees, these organizations are threatened with multi-million dollar clean-up costs, which far exceed the value of the gift. Given the potential severity of environmental contamination and the liability flowing from it, charitable organizations and other donees should exercise extreme caution before accepting gifts of real property.

[2] Superfund Liability

The courts have almost uniformly interpreted the Superfund statute as imposing strict liability.ⁿ¹ In other words, if a party is listed in the statute among those who are liable for the cost of cleaning up a certain piece of contaminated real property (for example, the purchaser or donee of the property), then it does not matter whether that party took part in contaminating the property, or was even aware of the problem when it took title to the land.

The courts have also established that liability under Superfund is joint and several, unless the defendants can establish that the harm caused to the property is divisible.ⁿ² This means that all the costs of clean up of a designated hazardous waste site can be imposed upon a single charity (or other donee) in the chain of title, even if the donor was entirely responsible for the contamination.

[3] Potentially-Responsible Parties

Because of the statute's broad reach, charities may be exposed to liability in several ways under the Superfund law. The statute imposes liability upon four classes of persons:ⁿ³

- (1) the current owner or operator of the facility;
- (2) the person who owned or operated the facility at the time a hazardous substance was disposed of at that facility;

(3) the person who owned or possessed a hazardous substance and arranged for its disposal or treatment at the facility that now contains the hazardous substance; or

(4) the person who transported a hazardous substance to the facility.

The problem is illustrated by the following hypothetical, but not uncommon, example. A small college is in the final months of a major capital campaign. There is substantial pressure upon the financial development office to meet its goal, and current economic conditions have made the task a difficult one. Late in December, an alumnus, who until recently had limited ties to the institution, calls and proposes to make a gift of some industrial property located in a city far from the school. The donor is ready to have the property appraised immediately and assures the development office that the value will exceed $1 million. Furthermore, the donor claims that a number of potential purchasers have expressed an interest in the property, although there have (of course) been no agreements reached.

The prospect of a $1 million gift is an enticing one, especially where the charity's interest in the parcel will only last as long as it takes to sell the property to some third party. The problem is that the term "owner" in the context of the Superfund statute, is intended to cover persons who acquire or hold legal title to the property at the time suit is brought for clean-up costs, regardless of whether those persons owned the site at the time the hazardous wastes were improperly disposed of, or took any part in the decisions regarding disposal. For example, a purely passive owner, such as a mortgagee who takes title at a foreclosure sale, may be held liable under the Superfund statute for the cost of hazardous waste clean up.

Thus, by accepting the gift and introducing itself into the chain of title, the college described above has become an owner and exposed itself to perhaps substantial monetary liability. By taking title, even for just a few days, to property no one at the institution has ever seen, the college may now be responsible for clean-up costs far in excess of the value of the gift.

[4] Defenses

Various defenses have been asserted by donee-charities to avoid the imposition of Superfund liability. The most common include:

(1) the "fairness" defense;

(2) the "gap owner" defense; and

(3) the "innocent landowner" defense.

The most compelling argument against the imposition of Superfund liability upon a donee-charity would logically be that of fairness, i.e., the charity simply did not commit the acts creating the contamination. It seems unreasonable to expect that a charity, with limited resources dedicated to specific public-service purposes, should be held accountable for the wrongful conduct of a wholly unrelated party.

The "gap owner" defense presents a better defense for charities. Since the Superfund statute does not impose liability on a person which owned property after it became contaminated but before the government's action for clean-up costs was brought, the charity might sell or otherwise dispose of the property rather than retain it. However, this defense is not available if the charity itself held the property while contaminants were released upon it, or if the charity sold the property with knowledge of its condition and did not disclose this fact to the purchaser. Also, this defense does not exculpate the charity from liability under state or common law.

Under the "innocent landowner" defense, a party (such as a charity) that would otherwise be liable under the Superfund statute is shielded from liability if it is established by a preponderance of the evidence that:

(1) the contamination was caused by the act of a third person who was not:

(a) the charity's employee or agent, or

(b) involved in a contractual relationship with the charity; and

(2) the charity exercised due care with respect to the hazardous substance concerned, and took precautions against foreseeable acts or omissions of any such third party and the consequences that could foreseeably result from such acts or omissions.ⁿ⁴

For charities receiving gifts of realty, there are two kinds of innocent landowner defenses. The first, concerning the acquisition of land through an inter vivos gift, is not specifically provided for by statute. The other defense, arising in the context of a bequest, is a variation of the general innocent landowner defense and is specifically provided for in the Superfund statute.ⁿ⁵

In the inter vivos gift situation, the charity must demonstrate that, at the time it took title to the site, it did not know and had no reason to know that any hazardous substances had been disposed of at the site. In order to demonstrate that it had no reason to know of the disposal, the charity must have undertaken, at the time of acquisition, all appropriate inquiry into the previous ownership and uses of the property, consistent with good commercial or customary practice, in an effort to minimize liability.

Case law, relying in large part upon legislative history, indicates that the level of inquiry expected of a charity in the case of a gift is lower than exists in a commercial transaction, such as the purchase of real property. Courts will look to the facts and circumstances of the case to determine whether the donee-charity conducted an adequate inquiry. Charities are cautioned to err on the side of thoroughness in investigating the environmental condition of the realty before accepting it as a gift.

As a general proposition, by commissioning a pre-acquisition environmental site assessment, a charity should be able to escape Superfund liability. It is common practice for the donor to bear the expense of such an assessment, which would generally have to be performed if the land were being sold rather than given away.

According to the legislative history of the Superfund statute, the adequacy of the inquiry is to be determined in light of the customary practices existing at the time of the acquisition. Factors to consider include:ⁿ⁶

(1) the obviousness of the presence or the likely presence of contamination;

(2) any specialized experience or knowledge of the party acquiring the property;

(3) the ability to detect contamination by inspecting the property; and

(4) commonly known or reasonably obtainable information about the property.

The Environmental Protection Agency has suggested that the person acquiring the property be able to produce evidence that includes:

(1) information on the property's condition at the time of the purchase (or gift);

- (2) information on steps taken to determine previous owners and uses;
- (3) documentation and other evidence of any representations made by the seller (or donor) at the time of acquisition;
- (4) information concerning the exercise of due care by the purchaser (or donee); and
- (5) any relevant specialized expertise of the entity acquiring the property.

A charity might also receive real property through a bequest. An important issue in such cases is whether the same inquiry standards apply as with inter vivos gifts. Based upon the legislative history of the Superfund statute, it appears that if the property were acquired by bequest, the innocent landowner defense would be available regardless of whether any inquiry was made. The better and more prudent course may be to conduct an environmental site assessment in all cases. Certainly, the charity must exercise due care to prevent any further damage to the property after learning of any contamination.

Planning Note

Establish guidelines for accepting gifts of real estate. In order to prevent Superfund liability problems resulting from receipt of gifts of possibly contaminated real property, charities with active financial development departments should establish guidelines which pertain specifically to gifts of realty. These guidelines should require the charity or the donor to perform an environmental site assessment before the charity will accept the property. In addition, the guidelines should require that the deed of gift contain a provision requiring the donor to either take back or clean up the property if hidden environmental contamination comes to light after the gift is received.

Current Legal Forms for Real Estate

Chapter 25 ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

Part II. The Practice Background

§ 25.22 Real Estate Loans and Lender Liability

[1] Scope of Section

This section considers the various environmental concerns of lenders who collateralize their loans with real property.

Whether the proceeds of the loan is intended to purchase commercial or residential property, the basic transaction remains the same: the lender agrees to lend a specified amount of money to the borrower, and the borrower agrees to execute and deliver a mortgage or deed of trust to the lender on a specified parcel of realty. Additionally, if the loan is a business loan, the lender may also take a security interest in the assets of the borrower. Such mortgage or deed of trust vests the lender with a security interest in the realty; if the purchaser defaults on the loan payments, the lender may foreclose and sell off the property in satisfaction of the debt.

Generally, this agreement to lend starts with a commitment letter. The commitment letter specifies the terms on which the lender will loan the money. For example, the commitment letter may require that various financial conditions be met, such as the commercial borrower providing annual financial statements and copies of its tax returns.

The commitment letter will definitely require that various title conditions are met. These may include the requirement that the borrower obtain a suitable abstract of title or lender's policy of title insurance, a survey, and other pertinent documents.

The commitment letter may also require that various inspections of the real property be performed with certain results. Each of these inspections is critically important because the result affects the value of the real property as security for the loan. These inspections may include tests for radon, asbestos, termite infestation, urea formaldehyde insulation, lead-based paint, water purity, water quantity, the septic system, and an environmental site assessment.

Once the borrower's loan has been approved, the borrower executes and delivers a promissory note to the lender. The note constitutes the borrower's obligation to repay the amount borrowed, plus interest. The borrower also executes and delivers to the lender a mortgage or deed of trust. Under a deed of trust, the lender holds equitable title to the property in order to secure his investment, namely, the loan proceeds. Under a mortgage, the lender has a lien against the property to protect his investment. The mortgage or deed of trust provides that, in the event any default occurs, the lender may take action on the property. Under a deed of trust, lender takes actual title. Under a mortgage, the property is sold at public auction to the highest bidder. The lender generally bids his costs; it will become the owner if no one bids above his costs.

If the lender becomes the owner, it generally will attempt to sell the property to recover the amount of the loan and any expenses incurred in connection with taking title. The lender may make some improvements to the premises to make it marketable. These improvements may be minor, such as roof repairs, or they may be very costly, such as an environmental project. The greater the expense, the less the likelihood there will be sufficient value left in the property to afford recovery of the losses.

Since there is always a possibility the lender may become the owner of property he uses to secure a loan, the lender must always examine real property as carefully as any potential purchaser would. The lender must fully investigate the same issues any prudent purchaser would investigate.

[2] Potential Concerns of Lender

[a] In General

Before agreeing to lend funds to a potential purchaser of realty, the lender should require its client to have professionals thoroughly inspect the property for environmental problems. The lender's promise to lend should be conditioned on the satisfactory results of these inspections.

The inspections are intended to protect the lender and purchaser alike: if a serious environmental problem is discovered after the real estate closing, the new owner may either be unwilling or financially unable to remedy the situation. After he defaults on the mortgage and abandons the property, the lender will take ownership of a highly unmarketable (or, perhaps, even completely worthless) piece of realty. To make matters worse, the lender might even find itself liable under federal and state law for the cost of correcting the problem.

Normally, in a residential loan transaction, a lender will not complete a comprehensive investigation of the property. Residential lending is very competitive. Both the costs of the inspections and the time involved are prohibitive. However, commercial lending is different. Most commercial lenders will insist that the purchaser engage the services of professionals to inspect for adverse environmental conditions. The lender should also require proof that the purchaser's intended use of the property, as well as any changes to the property he wishes to make, will not violate any applicable use laws.

A commercial lender should also require proof that the property is not part of a wetland, or, if it is part of a wetland, that the intended use will not interfere with the wetland.

Finally, and most importantly, the commercial lender will probably require an environmental site assessment. The assessment will provide the lender with the opinion of an expert as to whether there is any evidence of an adverse environmental condition existing on, about, above or below the property.

The assessment is important for several reasons. First, armed with this information, the lender will be in a better position to evaluate whether to make the loan. If hazardous substances are found, the lender must consider whether their presence affects the value of the property. The lender must also consider whether it would want to own this property if the borrower defaults on the loan; the presence of hazardous substances may make it difficult or impossible to attract bidders to a foreclosure sale.

Second, obtaining an environmental site assessment will aid the borrower in meeting the "due care" standard necessary to achieve innocent purchaser status under CERCLA.ⁿ¹ An innocent purchaser may be either totally exempt from liability for remediation under CERCLA, or he may be entitled to a settlement agreement with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, requiring him to make only a de minimis contribution toward the cost of remediation.ⁿ² By reducing or eliminating the borrower's liability for remediation costs, he will be better able to satisfy his obligations under the loan to the lender.

Third, many loans contain provisions regarding the borrower's ongoing handling of hazardous substances and the disposal of hazardous wastes. Failure to properly handle the hazardous substances or properly dispose of hazardous wastes is generally an event that gives rise to a default under the terms of the loan. Also, failure to promptly notify the lender and effect remediation is also an event that triggers a default. Thus, the results of an environmental assessment provide the lender with information that may indicate whether an existing loan is in default.

[b] Special Concerns Under CERCLA (Lender Liability)

The Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act ("CERCLA")ⁿ³ holds the "owner" of a facility liable for the costs of cleaning up hazardous substances released at the facility.ⁿ⁴ The CERCLA definition of owner specifically excludes:

a person, who, without participating in the management of a vessel or facility, holds indicia of ownership primarily to protect his security interest in the vessel or facility.ⁿ⁵

Thus, CERCLA protects secured creditors who do not participate in the management of the facility. Unfortunately, CERCLA does not define the phrase "participating in the management of a ... facility... ." The statute, therefore, provides little guidance as to how much control over a facility a secured creditor may exert before it will become potentially liable for an environmental clean up. Several federal courts have addressed the issue, however.

[i] United States v. Fleet Factors Corporation

The threshold case in holding a lender responsible was United States v. Fleet Factors Corporation.ⁿ⁶ In the Fleet Factors case, the defendant entered into a financing agreement with the owner of a textile facility. Fleet Factors collateralized its loan with a security interest in the borrower's accounts receivable, equipment, inventory, fixtures and textile plant. Subsequently, the borrower went bankrupt, and Fleet Factors foreclosed on its interest in the inventory and equipment, but not the textile plant. Fleet Factors arranged for a liquidator to sell these items.

Several months later, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency removed 700 drums of toxic chemicals and 44 truckloads of asbestos-contaminated materials at a cost of approximately $400,000. Three years later, the county took title to the textile plant following the bankrupt owners' failure to pay property taxes. The EPA sued both the bankrupt owners and Fleet Factors for the cost of remediation. The government alleged that Fleet Factors was an "owner" of the facility and was not entitled to the secured lender exception due to its participation in the management of the facility.

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the Eleventh Circuit held that a secured creditor could incur liability for remediation costs:

by participating in the financial management of a facility to a degree indicating a capacity to influence the corporation's treatment of hazardous wastes. It is not necessary for the secured creditor actually to involve itself in the day-to-day operations of the facility in order to be liable--although such conduct will certainly lead to the loss of the protection of the statutory exemption. Nor is it necessary for the secured creditor to participate in management decisions related to hazardous waste. Rather, a secured creditor will be liable if its involvement with the management of the facility is sufficiently broad to support the inference that it could affect hazardous waste disposal decisions if it so chose.ⁿ⁷

The court found that Fleet Factors' involvement in the management of the textile company was substantial: Fleet Factors required the borrower to seek its approval before shipping goods to customers, established the price for excess inventory, dictated when and to whom finished goods would be shipped, determined when employees would be laid off, received and processed the borrower's employment and tax forms, controlled access to the facility, and contracted with a third party to dispose of the fixtures and equipment of the textile company. Accordingly, Fleet Factors was ineligible for the "secured creditor" exemption under CERCLA.ⁿ⁸

The court stated that a prudent lender could protect itself by thoroughly investigating the waste treatment policies of potential borrowers. Lenders were also admonished to monitor their borrowers' compliance with such policies and to make such compliance a condition of a continuing lending relationship. If a lender's business relationship with a borrower becomes sufficiently broad that it jeopardizes the lender's exemption under CERCLA, then the lender will have a strong incentive to address hazardous waste problems at the facility.ⁿ⁹

[ii] Current Status of Lender Liability

In 1996, Congress legislatively overruled the holding in the Fleet case by adopting the Asset Conservation, Lender Liability and Deposit Insurance Protection Act of 1986ⁿ¹⁰. The Amendment essentially stated that the applicable standard is actual participation in the management or operational affairs of the facility or vessel.ⁿ¹¹ Accordingly, Congress rejected the "capacity to control" test promulgated by the Fleet Court. The Amendment indicates that participation in management does not include "merely having the capacity to influence, or the unexercised right to control" operations of a borrower.

As a result, the 1996 Amendment promulgates a two part test. If either part of the test is met, the lender may have liability.

The first part of the test is whether the lender has exercised decision making control over the facilities environmental compliance in a manner that the lender has assumed responsibility for the handling and disposal of hazardous waste substances.ⁿ¹² The second part of the test is whether the lender exercises control over day-to-day operational functions at the facility.ⁿ¹³

The lender may assume control over financial or administrative functions without losing the secured interest exemption. The actions taken by the lender must be viewed in the light of normal and customary lending practices. Additionally, no action taken by the lender prior to the creation of the security interest will constitute active participation.ⁿ¹⁴ Also, requiring a borrower to remediate adverse environmental conditions will not, without further involvement, subject a lender to liability.ⁿ¹⁵

Additionally, a lender may undertake the cleanup of adverse environmental conditions without incurring lender liability; however, such cleanup must be undertaken and completed in accordance with applicable law.ⁿ¹⁶

Secured lenders that foreclose on a property are now protected under CERCLA if they take commercially reasonable steps to divest itself of the property.ⁿ¹⁷ As a result, a lender may, after foreclosure, operate a property if it is attempting to divest itself of the property in the "earliest practicable, commercially reasonable time, on commercially reasonable terms."ⁿ¹⁸ Lastly, it is notable that CERCLA does not preempt the requirements of state law or the rights of private individuals.

[3] Methods to Avoid Potential Losses

[a] Environmental Site Assessment

As previously noted, an environmental site assessment is a review of the subject premises by an environmental consultant for the purpose of determining whether there is evidence of any adverse environmental conditions at the site. The first step is a Phase I environmental site assessment. Here, the consultant will make a visual inspection of the property, review past and present uses of the site, as well as the uses of nearby sites. He will then review the "Superfund" National Priority List and any similar state list to see if the subject property or any nearby site is contaminated and named on the lists. After gathering all of the data, the consultant will analyze it and make a judgment as to the likelihood of contamination.

If some evidence of contamination does exist, the lender should require a Phase II environmental site assessment be performed. In a Phase II assessment, actual samples of soil, air and water are analyzed in an attempt to verify whether there is contamination. If contamination is found, the Phase II assessment is used to determine the precise nature and extent of the contamination.

[b] Representations and Covenants in Loan Documents

The lender should never make a non-recourse loan to any borrower who is, or may reasonably be expected to be, engaged in the use of hazardous substances on the property that secures the loan. A non-recourse loan is one in which the lender may look only to the subject property to satisfy the debt. In other words, the borrower is not personally liable for repayment of the loan. If the property becomes badly contaminated, the lender's expectation of a complete recovery of its investment is greatly diminished since it would have to clean up the environmental contamination before it could sell off the property.

Accordingly, the lender should include certain representations and covenants in the loan documents. In the event any of the covenants is breached, the lender should be able to accelerate repayment of the entire loan, even if the borrower is currently repaying the loan in accordance with the terms of the loan agreement and repayment schedule. This will give the lender an early opportunity to recoup the amount loaned before such funds are dissipated on clean up expenses.

The following types of representations are commonly inserted in loan documents:

- (1) representations regarding the non-use of hazardous substances on the subject premises;
- (2) representations regarding compliance with all laws, regulations and compliance orders;
- (3) representations regarding the prompt giving of notice to the lender and appropriate governmental authorities of the occurrence or discovery of an environmental problem;
- (4) representations regarding remediation of existing adverse environmental condition;
- (5) representations regarding review by the lender of the borrower's books and records, as well as the lender's right to conduct site inspections and other examinations; and
- (6) representations regarding the giving of notice to the lender about any release or any threatened or pending lawsuits or compliance orders.

[c] Ongoing Review of Site and Business During Term of Loan

The lender should reserve the right to review the property that secures the loan, as well as the borrower's records, throughout the term of the loan. These rights to review should be contained in the loan agreement and the mortgage or deed of trust. A refusal to allow the lender to make a review should be deemed an event giving rise to default.

Any prudent lender will maintain regular contact with its borrower during the term of a loan in order to monitor the success of the business. This contact will include annual reviews of financial statements, tax returns and operating reports. These reviews indicate to the lender whether the borrower's business has experienced a decline that may affect its ability to repay the loan. If the lender can anticipate potential financial problems before they occur, it has a much greater chance to avert a default. Similarly, with regard to hazardous substances, the lender should maintain regular contact with the borrower and the ability to conduct additional inspection and reviews. Most loan documents provide the cost of such reviews and any necessary remediation shall be borne entirely by the borrower. The costs are added to the principal of the loan and are secured by the mortgage or deed of trust. By monitoring environmental practices during the term of the loan, the lender is likely to obtain an uncontaminated parcel if he is ever required to take title following foreclosure. However, the lender must take care its monitoring is not construed as "participating in the management" of the facility, since the lender will then lose the secured lender exemption afforded by CERCLA and become potentially liable for the cost of remediation.

[d] Use of Alternative or Additional Collateral

Where the lender is aware the borrower is engaged in the use of hazardous substances on real property that is the primary security for the loan, the lender may wish to obtain "stand-by" security. In other words, in the event an adverse environmental condition arises or is discovered, the borrower agrees to provide substitute collateral of equal or greater value. Such substitute collateral need not be real property; it can just as easily be accounts receivable, inventory, equipment, stocks, bonds or other valuable assets.

There are practical difficulties to such a substitution of collateral. For example, the parties may not agree on the value of the substitute collateral. One way to solve this problem is by assigning to the collateral an agreed-upon value at the time the loan is made. However, since substitute collateral may significantly increase or decrease in value during the life of the loan, the loan agreement may provide for periodic reappraisals of the substitute collateral.

Unfortunately, such reappraisals are both costly and time consuming. However, if the parties decide to use this method, an appraiser acceptable to both parties should be named in the loan documents at the time the loan is made. Generally, the cost of an appraisal is paid by the borrower.

Another practical difficulty in using substitute collateral is that the borrower may not have sufficient unencumbered collateral to use as a substitute. The borrower may be forced to look to his personal assets for substitute collateral. The borrower may even be forced to take on limited partners who have assets that may be substituted, thus costing the borrower some control over his business. If the borrower does not have sufficient personal assets or cannot locate a partner, the lender may not be willing to make the loan.

[e] Personal Liability

If the borrower is a closely held company, the lender may require the owners of the borrower to personally guaranty the obligations of the borrower. Even if the owners are unwilling to personally guaranty the loan, the lender may still require them to indemnify and hold harmless the lender from any losses or damages incurred by lender as a result of an adverse environmental condition.

[f] Indemnification

Where the real property that secures the loan becomes contaminated, the lender is very unlikely to recover its principal, interest, costs of foreclosure and costs of remediation from the sale of the property. The lender, in order to protect itself, may require an indemnification agreement from the borrower as a condition of its commitment to lend.

The indemnification agreement should provide that the lender shall be indemnified and held harmless against any claim or loss, including, but not limited to, the principal and interest on the loan, the costs of foreclosure, the costs of remediation, and legal fees arising out of, or in any way connected with, the contamination of the property. The lender may wish to collateralize the indemnification with mortgages on the property, or by a security interest in the personal property of the borrower, such as inventory, equipment or accounts receivable. If the lender is able to recover its full costs through the indemnification agreement, it may not need to even take possession of the contaminated premises.

[g] Insurance or Bond Against Environmental Loss

Most insurance policies that borrowers obtain to protect themselves and lenders against casualty losses exclude damage resulting from environmental contamination, unless it is sudden and accidental. The contamination of a site is considered accidental if the conduct resulting in the contamination was unintentional and not the product of negligence.

Such traditional insurance policies will clearly not protect the lender or the borrower from losses resulting from the discovery of contamination on the premises securing a mortgage. However, both parties may seek protection by obtaining a new form of insurance called "property transfer liability insurance." As a prerequisite to obtaining such coverage, underwriters require that a satisfactory environmental site assessment be performed by an environmental consulting firm approved by the underwriters. It should be noted that the cost of cleaning up any contamination found during the site assessment is not covered by the policy. Similarly, the insurance does not cover the cost of cleaning up contamination caused by the borrower. Rather, the insurance will only cover contamination created by a party other than the borrower prior to the transfer of title to the borrower.

If such insurance is unavailable, or if the lender is more concerned about contamination caused by the buyer in the future, the lender may require the borrower to post a bond or letter of credit as security against the cost of remediation. One practical difficulty with this approach is that it is impossible to know in advance the cost of remediation. Thus, the amount of the bond or letter of credit will have to be an arbitrary figure. And, of course, the lender will need to continue performing environmental reviews so that any contamination will be recognized and remediated before the cost exceeds the amount of the bond or letter of credit.

Current Legal Forms for Real Estate

Chapter 25 ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

Part II. The Practice Background

§ 25.23 Real Estate Leases

[1] Introduction

This section will explore the environmental concerns of a landlord and tenant when executing a lease of real property. The section will examine both residential and commercial lease transactions, however, the primary focus will be on commercial transactions.

The environmental concerns of the parties are similar to those of a seller and purchaser of real property, or of a borrower and the lender who secures the loan with a mortgage on real property. However, since the legal relationship between a landlord and tenant is quite different from the relationship between a purchaser and seller, or a lender and borrower, the environmental concerns will also be different.

For example, the relationship between a purchaser and seller is brief in duration, the seller's interest terminating upon transfer of title. Thereafter, the seller has neither the interest nor the ability to affect the environmental aspects of his former property. And, of course, the seller will not be responsible for environmental problems created after the transfer of title.

While the relationship between lender and borrower is of greater duration, the lender's interest in the environmental aspects of the property only arises where there is a danger of default in repayment of the loan. As long as the borrower continues to pay the loan, as agreed, the lender will not need to take possession and control of the property and will not risk environmental liability.

By contrast, the relationship between a commercial landlord and tenant often extends for many decades. Throughout that long stretch of time, the tenant has possession and control of the property. With that possession and control comes the power to dramatically alter the environmental condition of the property. When the property is eventually returned to the landlord at the end of the lease term, he may discover it has been seriously contaminated by his former tenant and will cost many thousands of dollars to repair. Thus, unlike the seller of real property whose environmental concerns usually end when he transfers title to the purchaser, the landlord's environmental concerns may begin when he turns the property over to the tenant and continue throughout the life of the lease and thereafter.

The purpose of this section is to identify the unique environmental problems for landlord and tenant and formulate mutually-beneficial resolutions. There will be very little information contained in this section that is not applicable to both residential and commercial transactions.

[2] Potential Areas of Concern to Landlord

The landlord's environmental concerns focus on the tenant's treatment of the leased structures and land. During the term of the lease agreement, the landlord wants the property to be properly maintained; thus, for example, when basic repairs are necessary--such as replacing broken windows, mending worn stairs, repairing broken elevators--the landlord wants to know they will be made. He also wants the property to remain free of environmental contamination and its value undiminished by "waste."

[a] Alterations

During the negotiations between a landlord and a potential tenant, a major portion of the negotiations may focus on necessary alterations to the structure. It is rare for a tenant to locate a building he can move into without any need for alterations. For a commercial tenant, walls almost certainly will have to be removed or erected, new offices built and furnished, modifications made in electrical, plumbing, heating, and ventilation systems, etc. Also, for a commercial or a residential tenant, the premises will generally need to be painted.

The negotiations will focus on what each party perceives as needed alterations, who will be responsible for the making of such alterations, and what the consideration will be. Commercial landlords often grant tenants a "fit-up" allowance to attract prospective tenants by providing funds to make alterations. However, the allowance is rarely sufficient to perform all of the alterations that will be required. Residential landlords rarely offer more than a fresh painting of the premises and possibly some new carpeting. Any other expenses for alterations generally will be the responsibility of the tenant.

The type of alterations that will be required by the tenant should be considered very carefully, taking into account the uses which he intends for the structure. For example, if the tenant will be using the building as a walk-in medical clinic, it is likely that some type of x-ray equipment will be used on the premises. Special protective walls, ceilings, and floors will be required to protect the tenant, its employees, patients, and other tenants in the building from the effects of x-rays.

If the tenant were to use the premises for a restaurant, a special ventilation system and fire proofing would be required to protect other tenants from odors and the danger of fire. If the tenant is a laboratory or research and development enterprise, there may be special requirements for the storage of dangerous chemicals. A manufacturing facility using hazardous substances may require an outside curbed storage facility. The landlord will be as anxious as the tenant to be sure all required modifications are identified during negotiations and properly installed.

The landlord will also want to make certain all modifications are performed in a good and workmanlike manner in full compliance with federal, state and local laws and regulations. Many of these modifications will require one of the parties to obtain building permits, arrange for inspections by municipal authorities, and obtain a certificate of occupancy. Frequently, alterations will involve the removal of dangerous materials, such as asbestos. There is such a great danger of injury during such removal operations that the landlord must require strict compliance with all applicable laws and regulations pertaining to removal of these substances.

The landlord will also want to be sure alterations are performed with adequate professional planning and supervision. A lack of appropriate planning may result in alterations that make the building unusable by future tenants. Accordingly, the landlord must always reserve the right to review and approve the plans and specifications. The landlord should have his own design professional review such plans and specifications with special attention focused on:

- (1) the quality and appropriateness of new materials to be used;
- (2) safety measures to be followed;
- (3) the skill, knowledge and experience of those who will be constructing the improvement; and
- (4) the impact of the alterations on the other tenants' use and enjoyment of their leased premises.

The landlord will want to be certain all debris created by the alterations is removed from the site and is properly transported. This debris may include: asbestos, urea formaldehyde insulation, and lumber containing lead-based paint.

Finally, the landlord should also be concerned at the end of the lease term about the removal of alterations that will be of no use to the new tenant. He will want trade fixtures to be removed, such as a hazardous substance storage facility, or car "lifts" in an auto repair shop. Failure to remove such items will reduce the value of the landlord's building and the amount of rent he can command for the space in the future. It may also cost the landlord money to remove and dispose of the fixture.

Alterations to the land may also be part of the negotiations between a landlord and a potential tenant. The tenant may need additional parking facilities, requiring excavation and/or paving. The tenant may also want to utilize natural resources located on the property, either in the ordinary course of business or during the making of alterations to the structure. These resources may include such items as sand, gravel, shale, timber or water. Accordingly, the landlord must consider the depletion of any of the land's natural resources before executing the lease.

In addition, the landlord should also be concerned about the tenant's plans for liquid waste disposal. If the property is served by a septic system, the landlord may wish to regulate the type and volume of waste that is discharged into the system. Similarly, a landlord might allow a commercial tenant to use the existing septic system only for discharge of water from sinks and toilets. Consequently, the tenant may need either to expand the existing system or install a new, larger system that will be able to handle an increased amount of liquid wastes and/or different types of liquid wastes generated by the business. In such case, the landlord should make certain that excavation and installation activities are performed properly. In addition, the landlord should make sure the system, as newly-installed or expanded, can handle the types and amounts of liquid wastes that it will now receive, without causing the discharge of pollutants into the earth.

Similarly, the landlord will be concerned about the disposal of solid wastes. A commercial tenant may use municipal trash collection services for disposal of some of his solid wastes. However, many of his solid wastes may not be acceptable at local landfills. Accordingly, the commercial tenant may seek permission to construct a facility on the subject premises to handle those wastes. This may include an incinerator or trash burial site. Both are subject to federal, state and local regulation, and both can be highly dangerous to operate.

Next, many municipalities have "greenspace" requirements, i.e., a certain percentage of the subject property must be planted with grass, trees, flowers and other natural growth as a means of keeping the property aesthetically pleasing. (This is often a condition for obtaining a building permit or certificate of occupancy.) In such case, the landlord must be sure alterations to the land do not reduce the required percentage of "greenspace."

Finally, the landlord should be concerned about the preservation of any wetlands that exist on his property. If the tenant desires to use part of the wetlands for construction, or plans to use the water contained in the wetlands, a permit from the Army Corps of Engineers will be required. In addition, a permit from state and local governments may be necessary. If a wetlands site is filled or drained without a permit, or the terms of the permit are violated in some other fashion, the property owner may be required to restore the wetlands to their natural state.

In sum, all of the above concerns, if not properly addressed, can result in health and safety hazards, environmental liability, reduced property value, and/or potential expense to the landlord to repair, replace or bring the property into compliance with the law.

[b] Continued Maintenance of Building and Land

The landlord and a potential tenant will have a great deal to negotiate concerning the maintenance of the structure and the surrounding land. The proper upkeep of the structure and land will help maintain its value, attract future tenants, and generally protect the landlord's investment.

The rental fee will be affected greatly by the tenant's level of responsibility for repairs and maintenance: the more the tenant will be required to perform, the lower the rent. Many commercial leases require the tenant to maintain and repair both the structure and the surrounding land. Most residential leases require the landlord to perform all maintenance and repairs, except ordinary cleaning. However, this is not normally required by law, and it is clearly an issue for negotiation between the parties. Most jurisdictions (city and/or state) have extensive laws that apply to residential rentals.

For the purposes of this discussion, the term "interior maintenance" includes painting and repairs to the interior walls, ceilings and floors, ordinary cleaning and janitorial work, and repairs to fixtures and equipment. The term "structure" refers to the exterior walls, joists, beams, foundation, roof, plumbing and heating, ventilation and air conditioning systems ("HVAC"). The term "exterior" refers to parking areas, driveways, sidewalks, lawns, shrubbery, signs, the septic tank and the well.

The landlord should be concerned with how interior maintenance work is performed, what materials are used, how waste materials are disposed of, and the convenience, health and safety of other tenants and their invitees. Poorly-performed interior maintenance work may lead to a rapid deterioration of the property and may also detract from the appearance of the structures. Eventually, the landlord may be required to perform the same maintenance work again, but at a higher cost due to inflation and the necessity of first undoing the tenant's prior efforts.

In addition, the landlord should be aware some insecticides and pesticides used for both interior and exterior maintenance may pose a health hazard to humans. Similarly, certain salts spread on parking lots, sidewalks, and driveways during the winter should not be used near wells or streams from which drinking water is taken. Maintenance equipment, such as ladders or scaffolding, can pose a significant risk to occupants of the building if the areas in which they are used are not roped off from pedestrian traffic. Certain chemicals, such as cleaning agents or drain openers, can be dangerous if used without proper ventilation. And malfunctioning heating systems can release deadly carbon monoxide into buildings.

The landlord will also want to be certain waste materials and debris resulting from maintenance work are properly disposed of. Such items should not be dumped atop or buried on the premises, but carted away and disposed of at a landfill or a waste treatment facility.

In summary, the landlord should take great care in deciding what maintenance work he will assume and what maintenance work will be performed by the tenant. Considerable harm can be done to persons and property if maintenance work on the land and within the building is not done properly. In addition, proper maintenance is vital to retain the value and profitability of the landlord's investment in the premises.

[c] Use of Building and Land During Term of Lease

The use to which a building will be put during the term of the lease is of major concern to the landlord. The landlord should become familiar not only with the general nature of the tenant's business, but also with the specific activities that will be carried on there. Certain uses may seem innocuous at first blush, but a closer inspection may reveal unexpected risks and dangers. For example, the manufacture and painting of artificial fingernails might seem to be a harmless business pursuit, but it can result in the production of toxic residues that must be disposed of properly. Accordingly, the landlord must always bear in mind the potential liability he may have, as property owner, for an adverse environmental condition on the premises created by a tenant. The following subsections review specific concerns of a landlord related to varying uses of his property by a tenant.

Many manufacturing concerns neither produce nor use hazardous substances in the course of their manufacturing processes. However, many use solvents, lubricants and other products to maintain the equipment used in the manufacturing processes. Such substances may be hazardous. Many other manufacturing concerns utilize or produce hazardous substances directly, or generate such substances as by-products of the manufacturing process.

Accordingly, a sophisticated and prudent landlord will require a tenant to disclose all hazardous stances and related process used by a tenant. If necessary, the landlord may want to hire a separate environmental consultant to review the tenants and options and processes to determine the potential impact on the property. The landlord may want to obtain an environmental assessment of the property to evidence that the property was clean when the tenant took possession. Lastly, the landlord should review the tenants' financial condition in order to determine the tenants' ability to remediate any contamination caused by that tenant.

If the risks are high, the landlord may want to conduct periodic reviews and assessments. The results obtained in response to the above periodic reviews should adequately protect the landlord by allowing him to learn of potential problems before they become unmanageable. The results should also assist him in determining whether to renew the tenant's lease at the end of the term.

[e] Retail and Service Businesses

Retail and service-oriented tenants are often located in shopping centers or on the ground floor of buildings shared with professional offices. The landlord's concerns include maintaining the health, safety and convenience of other tenants, their employees and customers, as well as the condition of his property. Retail/service tenants are far less likely to use hazardous substances in the ordinary operation of their businesses than are manufacturing tenants. However, businesses such as dry cleaners do use hazardous substances and should be monitored in much the same way as a manufacturing concern.

The landlord should also be concerned about solid waste removal. Retail tenants receive regular shipments of inventory. Discarded packaging alone can create a mountain of solid waste for a shopping center. If the landlord is responsible for solid waste removal, he may want to encourage or require participation in recycling programs to reduce the cost of solid waste removal. (Recyclable materials include paper, plastics, metal and glass.) If the tenants are responsible for solid waste removal, the landlord should be concerned about the temporary storage of wastes and the frequency of their removal from the premises.

[f] Storage

A landlord who leases storage facilities to a tenant should be concerned about the types of substances and materials the tenant intends to store there. If the tenant stores hazardous substances and there is a leak or release of these substances, the landlord, as owner of the property, will be liable for the cost of remediation. Similarly, if, at the end of the lease term, such substances have not been removed by the tenant, then the landlord will be forced to bear the cost of removal. Although the landlord may have a right of recovery against the tenant, there may be practical difficulties in enforcing that right. For example, the tenant may be financially incapable of paying for the clean up.

Where the material stored includes food, food by-products or cooking ingredients, the landlord should be concerned about the danger of attracting vermin. Accordingly, the landlord should require the tenant to engage the services of a licensed exterminator on a regular basis to spray the storage facilities and the surrounding areas. The landlord should make certain the insecticides and pesticides used are not harmful to human beings and that they are sprayed properly, without contaminating foodstuffs or the premises. It should be remembered that pesticides and insecticides can easily wash into water sources on the property, such as a well, stream or pond, where they can contaminate the water and endanger fish and wildlife.

Cold storage facilities create a further concern for the landlord. In the past, these facilities were often insulated with asbestos. Thus, the tenant and its employees may be subjected to the danger of asbestos exposure if asbestos fibers become airborne. Accordingly, the landlord must be certain to disclose to the tenant the existence of the asbestos insulation and require the tenant to take appropriate steps to protect against exposure, such as using protective gear or having the asbestos insulation removed.

Special concerns also exist where the premises contain underground tanks that are used as a petroleum products storage facility. Such underground tanks are most often found at gasoline stations, trucking companies, bus and taxi depots, car and truck rental firms, and home heating oil suppliers. Under the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act ("RCRA"),ⁿ¹ specific requirements exist for the construction of underground petroleum storage tanks.ⁿ² In addition, the RCRA requires notification by the owner of a designated state or local agency within 30 days of the installation of a new tank, or of the commencement of use of an existing underground storage tank. The notification must specify the age, size, type, location and uses of such tank.ⁿ³ There are also rules concerning the removal of underground storage tanks upon cessation of use. Finally, many storage tanks are prone to leakage after a period of time, and the landlord will be responsible for the cost of remediation under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act ("CERCLA") and the RCRA.

[g] Waste Disposal Facility

A landlord who leases property to a tenant for use as a waste disposal facility has many concerns. Because the potential for damage to the land and liability for remediation is so great, every landlord should be very reluctant to lease his property as a waste disposal facility. However, should a property owner decide to lease his property for such use, his concerns will vary depending on whether the facility is to be used to handle solid waste (i.e., ordinary trash) or hazardous waste.

Under the RCRA, a considerable amount of responsibility for developing and implementing plans for solid waste disposal has been delegated by the federal government to the states.ⁿ⁴ Thus, in addition to being familiar with the provisions of the RCRA and its regulations, the real estate practitioner should be fully familiar with state laws and regulations fulfilling the state's responsibilities under that statute.

The RCRA prohibits the establishment of new open air garbage dumps. Existing open dumps must be either upgraded to sanitary landfills or closed completely.

A landlord should require proof from the tenant of compliance with all laws and regulations on the federal, state and local levels. The landlord should also insist on reviewing and approving all plans and specifications prior to the commencement of construction. In addition, the landlord should reserve the right to monitor ongoing operations once the solid waste disposal facility becomes functional. The landlord should also retain the power to hire an expert to review operations.

In the event the tenant violates any federal or state environmental law, the landlord should have the ability under the terms of the lease to halt the tenant's operations immediately. It would also be prudent to include a provision in the lease requiring the tenant to purchase the property from the landlord at the expiration of the lease term. Thus, if the property is contaminated at the end of the lease term, the burden of remediation will fall entirely on the new owner, i.e., the tenant. The tenant's awareness of this provision will serve as a powerful inducement for him to abide by all federal and state environmental laws.

The tenant who treats or disposes of hazardous wastes creates even more concerns for his landlord. The tenant's improper handling of hazardous wastes, resulting in the contamination of leased property, renders the landlord strictly liable.ⁿ⁵ Thus, the landlord is responsible for the cost of remediation without regard to his personal fault or participation in the activities causing the contamination.

An owner or operator of a facility that treats, stores or disposes of hazardous wastes is required to obtain and maintain a special government permit.ⁿ⁶ The permit application must specify the composition, quantities and concentrations of the hazardous substances to be treated, stored or disposed of. In addition, the application must specify the time, frequency and rate of such treatment, storage or disposal.ⁿ⁷ Permits are granted for a stated period not to exceed ten years.ⁿ⁸ Each permit is reviewed every five years and may be modified in order to make certain the facility meets then-existing standards.ⁿ⁹ Inspections of facilities are conducted at least every two years.ⁿ¹⁰

A violation of the provisions of the permit, or any provision of the law requiring the permit, may result in the issuance of a compliance order, the imposition of a civil penalty, and the suspension or revocation of the permit.ⁿ¹¹ Criminal penalties are also possible against any person who commits certain violations of the law.ⁿ¹²

It should be noted that states have the ability to impose requirements more stringent than those of the federal government.ⁿ¹³ Thus, real estate practitioners should make themselves thoroughly familiar with relevant state laws and regulations as well.

[h] Releases

In the event of a release of a hazardous substance into the air or water or unto the land, the landlord's primary concern is the mitigation of his damages. The landlord must insist on receiving notice of the release immediately. In addition, he must insist that all notices required to be given to federal, state and local authorities are given by the tenant in timely fashion.

Steps necessary to prevent or minimize risk of injury to person and property should be taken immediately. For example, an environmental consultant should be quickly engaged to determine the nature and severity of the release. This will require extensive sampling and analysis of soil, air or water to determine how far the contamination has spread and the impact it has had.

A plan of remediation must then be developed, submitted for approval to federal, state and local authorities, and promptly executed. The tenant will be liable for all of the expenses involved since he is the operator of the facility.ⁿ¹⁴ However, the landlord, as owner, is also liable under the strict liability principles of CERCLA.ⁿ¹⁵ Since an indemnification or hold harmless agreement between the landlord and tenant is not binding on the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, the EPA can collect all remediation costs from the landlord.ⁿ¹⁶ The landlord may then proceed against the tenant for contribution.ⁿ¹⁷

In addition, the landlord may face a host of private civil actions from individuals and/or businesses whose property was damaged as a result of the release. There may also be personal injury suits brought by those who suffered ill effects from the release.

[3] Potential Areas of Concern to Tenant

The concerns of a prospective tenant are similar to those of a purchaser of real property. Since the tenant will be in possession and control of the property, he and his family or his employees will be subjected to the environmental conditions of the land and buildings on a daily basis. Adverse environmental conditions may affect their health and safety, as well as their ability to use and enjoy the premises. Accordingly, the tenant should make a careful review of the land and buildings prior to entering into a lease.

[a] Prior Use of Land and Buildings

Both the residential and commercial tenant should be concerned about prior uses of the land and buildings. The case that served as the impetus for much of the federal and state environmental legislation enacted to protect Americans from improper disposal of hazardous wastes involved a residential subdivision built in western New York state, known as "Love Canal."¹⁸ For many years the area had been used by various companies for disposal of toxic chemicals and hazardous wastes. Thereafter, the area was filled in and a housing development was built on the site. By the 1970s, the substances had slowly seeped into the basements of homes and into sewers, creeks, ground water, school and park playgrounds, and many other places. The situation was so threatening to the health and welfare of the residents that over 900 families were relocated.¹⁹ Obviously, Love Canal is not the only place where homes have been built on former industrial sites or over landfills. Indeed, many developers are currently renovating former factories and warehouses for residential and office use.

Thus, learning about prior uses of rental property will assist the tenant in making an intelligent, informed decision about whether to lease the subject property in the first place.

A tenant in a multi-unit structure may want to inquire about the prior uses of his particular unit. For example, a residential tenant with severe allergies may be concerned about whether the prior tenant had pets. A commercial tenant may be concerned about chemical residues left behind by a prior tenant. Accordingly, during lease negotiations, the tenant may be able to insist the landlord perform, at his own expense, a thorough decontamination cleaning of the premises.

[b] Present Condition of Land and Buildings

Since the tenant, his family, employees, guests and customers will be affected by the environmental condition of the building and land, the tenant should make a thorough inspection of the property prior to signing the lease. At a minimum, the tenant should fully investigate whether any of the problems discussed below exists. There may also be other region- or site-specific problems that should be investigated as well.

First, the property should be tested to determine the existence and amount, if any, of radon gas. The tenant should not lease any property with radon gas levels exceeding the level deemed safe by government authorities, unless he has received written assurance the landlord will immediately correct the problem at his own expense.

Second, the tenant should ascertain whether asbestos-laden insulation exists anywhere on the subject premises. If it does, he should require the landlord to remove or contain the asbestos as a condition to signing the lease. A commercial tenant can be subjected to a worker's compensation claim if an employee were injured from exposure to the asbestos. And, of course, a residential tenant would not want to expose himself and his family to the dangers of asbestos.

Third, the tenant should not lease any space that contains urea formaldehyde insulation due to the health risks created by this form of insulation. Accordingly, the tenant, before signing the lease, should require the landlord to remove the insulation and reinsulate using a benign form of insulation.

Fourth, the tenant should determine whether lead-based paint was used in the interior of the subject premises. (The use of lead-based paint has been prohibited in the United States since 1978; however, structures built prior to 1978 frequently contain surfaces covered with such paint.) Lead in paint poses a serious health risk to all people, particularly small children and pregnant woman.

If the tenant discovers the premises contain lead-based paint, before executing the lease, he should require the landlord to either remove the paint by sanding or vaporizing it with a heat gun, or contain the painted area by applying sheet rock or plaster over it. The cost of removal or containment should be borne entirely by the landlord. The landlord should also be expected to cover the cost of repainting any area from which lead-based paint was removed.

Fifth, the prospective tenant should engage the services of a licensed exterminator to search for the presence of, or structural damage caused by, wood-boring insects, such as termites, carpenter ants and powder post beetles. The exterminator should also look for mold or fungus growths that can also cause damage to the structure by gradually weakening wooden supports, such as beams or joists. If the exterminator's inspection reveals the presence of wood-boring insects and/or mold or fungus growths, the prospective tenant should require the landlord to thoroughly resolve this problem at the landlord's expense before signing the lease. Similarly, the landlord should be required to repair any damage caused by the insects and/or the mold or fungus growths.

Sixth, if the property is served by a well, the tenant should be certain the pump is in good working order. In addition, all plumbing, pipes and fixtures should be examined for leaks and wear. Such an examination is not costly; however, any of these items can be very expensive to repair or replace. If the property is served by a septic system, the system should be examined by an expert to make certain it is in good working order.

Lastly, in the event the prospective tenant will be responsible under the lease for performing repairs and maintenance to the premises (e.g., stairwells, elevators, heating and air conditioning systems, etc.), he should carefully examine those items he will be required to maintain and repair. The purpose of the examination is to learn the current condition of the items. If they are not presently in good repair, the tenant should negotiate with the landlord to either lower the rental fee or require the landlord to cover the cost of repairing and maintaining the items.

[c] Waste Disposal

For the residential tenant, solid waste disposal should not prove to be a problem. Usually, the municipality will provide trash removal services for its residents, free of charge. Where the tenant lives in a large residential development, such as an apartment house or condominium or cooperative development, the landlord or the condominium or cooperative association will enter into a contract with a private hauler to remove its solid waste.

A commercial tenant, on the other hand, will want to make certain that, before it signs the lease agreement, it has entered into a binding and affordable waste removal contract for a period of time extending at least as long as the term of the lease. Otherwise, the tenant may find himself bound by a lease of real property that, as a practical matter, he cannot use.

[d] Uses by Other Tenants

Where the tenant is seeking to lease space in a multi-unit office building or shopping plaza, additional concerns are raised regarding the effects of other tenants' uses of their property on the prospective tenant.

The tenant might be concerned about the types of cleaning agents used by the landlord and other tenants. Many industrial cleaning agents have very strong odors and are toxic. The tenant might be concerned about the effect of the odors on his business, and the impact such toxic substances could have on his health and his staffs'. Accordingly, the tenant should obtain from the landlord a list of chemicals regularly used for cleaning in the building before executing the lease. The tenant should also inquire as to whether the list is subject to change without notice to the tenant or without his approval. In addition, the tenant should learn whether tenants are restricted in their selection of cleaning agents.

The tenant should also be concerned about the substances other tenants use in operating their businesses. The tenant should request that the landlord establish guidelines to which all tenants must adhere. If two or more tenants use the same substance, it may be difficult for the good tenant to prove that it did not contribute to the condition.

Finally, the commercial tenant will need to investigate review any site-specific problems that may exist. These may arise because of the age of the building, its design, the nature of existing tenants' businesses, the location of the building, and the nature of the tenant's business. Again, the parties may want to obtain a bench mark assessment to identify any pre-existing conditions.

[4] Solutions for Landlord's Concerns

This subsection will examine possible solutions for a landlord's concerns about his prospective tenant's use of the leased premises. These measures should be posed to the tenant, whose attorney will negotiate the terms with landlord's counsel. Full agreement on these measures should be reached before the landlord becomes obligated to lease the space to the tenant. With the exception of the penalty measures and the provisions requiring the tenant to purchase the property in the event of an environmental accident, if a prospective tenant is very reluctant to agree to the measures discussed below, the landlord should seriously reconsider whether he wants to risk leasing his property to the tenant in the first place.

[a] Representation by Tenant of Nature and Scope of Business

The first representation a landlord should request from a prospective tenant is regarding the nature of the tenant's business. The landlord should determine, based on information supplied by the tenant, whether the business is primarily retail, service-oriented, manufacturing or some other type. The tenant should fully describe his product and/or service lines, as well as the approximate number of employees, customers and others expected on the premises on a daily basis.

If the business is primarily retail, the tenant should state whether any of the inventory is, or contains, a hazardous substance. Similarly, if the business is primarily service-oriented, the tenant should describe whether any product used in performing the service is, or contains, a hazardous substance. In addition, if the business is primarily manufacturing, the tenant should state whether any hazardous substance is used in, or produced during, the manufacturing process.

If hazardous substances are used or produced, the tenant should specify the substances and the quantity that would probably be on hand at any given time. If revealing such information would result in disclosing a "trade secret," the landlord should agree to maintain the confidentiality of the information, unless required by law to disclose it.

The tenant should also be required to represent that he will not use, store or otherwise handle any hazardous substances whose identity he has not revealed to the landlord, and that before introducing any new hazardous substance unto the property, he will first obtain the express written permission of the landlord. In addition, the tenant should represent that he will not store, use or handle amounts of the named hazardous substances that exceed the amounts for which the landlord has granted approval. The tenant should also be required to obtain the express written approval of the landlord prior to increasing the amount of hazardous substances brought onto the leased premises or produced there.

These representations should be in written form and made part of the lease. The lease should provide that if the tenant violates any of the representations, or if he has made a deliberate material misrepresentation of fact while negotiating the lease, he is in breach of the lease agreement. The lease should allow the landlord to then terminate the agreement, or to seek specific performance of the representation or monetary damages for misrepresentation--all at the landlord's option.

Clearly, the landlord will need to monitor the tenant in order to ascertain whether the tenant has made a misrepresentation during lease negotiations or violated the representations after the lease is executed. The landlord should act quickly if he discovers a misrepresentation or violation of a representation. Enforcement procedures may be lengthy and expensive, particularly where the landlord seeks to evict the tenant. However, the other option--doing nothing in the face of a clear misrepresentation or a violation of a representation--can open the door to tremendous damage to the landlord's property. Thus, swift action must be the rule where misrepresentations or violations of representations are found.

[b] Requirement that Tenant Will Not Cause or Suffer Environmental Damage to Property

Environmental damage in many forms can be caused by a tenant or other occupant of real property. This damage includes both interior and exterior problems.

For example, neglect by the tenant in inspecting the premises regularly can result in wood-boring insects, mold and fungal growths damaging the structures. Repairs and alterations performed by the tenant may result in the disturbance of existing asbestos insulation, thereby creating a health hazard for the tenant, his family or employees, and invitees. Improper trash storage and disposal may lead to cockroaches, rodents and other vermin infesting the premises. Improper storage or use of hazardous substances may cause an accidental release of those substances, requiring prompt and possibly expensive remediation.

Any of the above problems, if left unchecked, will result in damage to the property and diminution of its value. Such damage may require substantial sums of money to repair. In some instances, the value and usefulness of the property may be permanently and irreparably harmed.

Thus, the landlord should require, as part of the written lease agreement, a provision that prohibits the tenant from causing or allowing any type of environmental damage. The exact terms of such a provision will depend, in part, on the nature of the tenant's business, and whether the tenant is responsible for repairs to and maintenance of the premises.

If the tenant breaches the provision, the lease agreement should provide that the landlord, at his option, may require the tenant to repair the damage, or reimburse the landlord for the costs of repair, including any necessary professional services, e.g., attorneys' fees. In addition, the landlord should have the ability to terminate the lease agreement. The tenant, of course, should be responsible for all fines, penalties and liens that may be levied by any governmental agency as a result of the tenant's improper conduct.

The lease should also make clear the tenant is fully responsible for the tortious acts and omissions of his employees, agents, guests, customers, family and invitees.

[c] Alterations and Repairs

To protect a landlord who is concerned about the effect of alterations and repairs to the premises, several provisions should be included in the lease agreement. First, the tenant should be required to obtain plans and specifications for any alterations--including the initial "fit-up" of commercial premises at the time the lease is signed--from a design professional, such as an architect, interior decorator, landscape artist, etc. Second, the alterations must be performed in strict compliance with the plans and specifications. Third, the lease should provide that the landlord is entitled to review and approve the plans and specifications prior to the commencement of work. Fourth, the tenant should be required to obtain all necessary permits from municipal authorities. Fifth, the tenant's choice of contractor should be made subject to approval by the landlord. Sixth, the tenant should be required to use only first-class, new materials.

If making alterations will cause a disturbance of asbestos, the tenant should be required to first notify the proper governmental authorities. All work should be performed in strict compliance with federal, state and local laws and regulations pertaining to the removal of asbestos. The tenant should be forced to dispose of the asbestos only in a landfill that accepts asbestos-laden materials. Similar provisions should be inserted into the lease if urea formaldehyde insulation or lead-based paint will be disturbed or removed.

Repairs the tenant is required to make during the term of the lease should be handled in a similar manner. The lease should state that the tenant must first obtain the landlord's approval of the methods, materials and contractor, unless the repair constitutes emergency repair work. The landlord should also reserve to himself the right to come upon the leased property and perform the repairs in the event the tenant fails to do so. The landlord may then charge the tenant for the full cost of such repairs, together with interest, until full repayment is made. The tenant should also be required to make repairs promptly in order to prevent deterioration of the property.

In addition, the lease should provide that all repairs and alterations on the premises shall be performed in a manner that will not inconvenience other tenants by creating excessive noise, dust or a lack of access to their leased premises.

In the event the tenant breaches any of the promises regarding alteration and repairs, the lease should provide that the landlord may collect any monetary damages he may have suffered, including reasonable attorneys' fees. The landlord should also reserve the right to terminate the lease in the event of a violation. Finally, the tenant should be responsible for any fines or other penalties for violation of any laws or governmental regulations.

[d] Landlord Reserves Right to Review Tenant's Books and Records

Commercial tenants maintain a variety of books and records. Some are required by law, such as tax records and hazardous waste records. The purpose of any set of records is to provide, in a readily-available format, information that is useful or necessary to the record keeper, his customers, landlord, or the government.

Where the landlord is concerned about the tenant's compliance with the law or the terms of the lease, he should reserve for himself in the lease agreement the right to examine the books and records of the tenant. It is unlikely the tenant will agree to grant access to all of his books and records. However, the landlord should insist on access to any records he reasonably believes are germane to the protection of his property from abuse. These may include, for example, invoices for the purchase or sale of hazardous substances, and bills from waste removal companies. These records will give the landlord an indication of what substances are being brought onto the premises, as well as the amounts of such substances. In addition, the landlord can be sure that waste is being properly removed.

Under the terms of the lease, the landlord should be able to obtain access to books and records of the tenant at any reasonable time and without having to give prior notice to the tenant. Such a provision guarantees the tenant will be less able to falsify or misrepresent the records. The lease agreement should also provide that, in the event the tenant refuses access to the landlord, he may obtain a court order directing immediate access. In addition, the right to review records containing information about events that occurred during the term of the lease should survive even after the lease has terminated. (This type of provision may become vitally important in the event the landlord must perform remedial work after the lease term has ended, such as cleaning up a toxic waste dump. The records may help identify the toxic substances and their quantities.) Finally, the landlord should be entitled to terminate the lease if false or misleading records are provided by the tenant at any time.

The above rules should apply to any of the tenant's records that may be useful to the landlord in protecting his property from abuse. For example, in a lease granted by a timber company to a club for hunters and sportsmen, the landlord may want to review records concerning wildlife harvesting. Similarly, in a lease that allows the tenant to extract and sell certain natural resources, such as gas, oil, shale, sand or gravel, the landlord may wish to review the books to be certain he is receiving his fair share of the profits from the tenant's business. In such case, he may also want to reserve the right to have the books audited once each year, at the tenant's expense, by a certified public accountant of the landlord's choosing. The landlord also may wish to have a penalty provision inserted into the lease in case the audit shows the tenant underpaid by a particular amount or percentage.

[e] Indemnification and Personal Guaranty

When a landlord places possession and control of real property in the hands of a tenant, he generally requires the tenant to indemnify him for any legal claim brought against the landlord and arising due to the tenant's acts or failure to act. The indemnification is based on the theory that the tenant, rather than the landlord, is normally responsible for maintaining the leased premises. In addition, since the tenant determines who enters the property--rather than the landlord--he should be held liable for all injuries occurring on his "watch."

The landlord should be particularly interested in obtaining an indemnification from the tenant relating to environmental matters. Since the tenant is in possession and control of the property, he should be held responsible for remedying any environmental problems he causes.

The indemnification should be contained in the written lease agreement. It should require the tenant to reimburse the landlord for, among other things:

- (1) the cost of clean up or remediation of an adverse environmental condition created by the tenant, his employees, agents or any other party he allows on the premises;
- (2) environmental consultants' fees;
- (3) professional fees, including engineering and attorneys' fees;
- (4) any studies that may be required, such as health impact studies;
- (5) judgments or settlements paid by the landlord for injury or death to persons and damage to property arising from the environmental condition; and
- (6) any other expense that the landlord would not have incurred but for the acts or omissions of the tenant, his agents, employees or invitees, that resulted in the environmental damage.

Again, it should be remembered that under both the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act ("CERCLA")ⁿ²⁰ and the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act ("RCRA"),ⁿ²¹ an indemnification agreement is not binding on the federal government. Any potentially responsible party, including a landlord, may be required by the government to pay for remediation expenses. However, that party may seek reimbursement from other responsible parties. The issue, then, for the landlord, becomes one of collectibility.

Additionally, an indemnity is only as good as the party that gives it. As a result, if the tenant is not creditworthy, then the landlord may be left holding the bag. As a result, if the tenant is a closely held entity, the landlord may require the owners to personally guaranty the obligations of the tenant under the lease. It may also be important to consider a guaranty in a parent subsidiary relationship.

In either case, the tenant's owners will be in a position to manipulate the finances of the tenant. Therefore, in a closely held situation, the landlord should always review the creditworthiness of the tenant and consider a guaranty of the owners of the tenant.

[f] Representation by Tenant that It Will Obey All Laws

Generally speaking, a land owner is responsible for the tenant's compliance with laws relating to the real estate. Although many leases delegate certain responsibilities created by law to the tenant, the landlord remains primarily liable when these duties go unfulfilled. These duties may include such things as paying real property taxes, obtaining building permits necessary for construction projects or alterations of the leased premises, obtaining zoning variances, etc.

The landlord should require from the tenant a representation that the tenant will obey any and all laws relating to his use and occupancy of the property. The landlord should insert in the representation references to any laws that are a specific concern to him. The lease should make clear that these delineated laws should not be interpreted as exclusive, but instead as illustrations of the types of laws with which the tenant must comply.

In the event the tenant violates any law by act or omission, the landlord should have the following options available to him under the terms of the lease:

- (1) the right to require the tenant's compliance with the law by obtaining an injunction or other order issued by a court of competent jurisdiction;
- (2) the right to bring the property into compliance and receive payment for the cost thereof, including attorneys' fees, from the tenant;
- (3) the right to terminate the lease and evict the tenant from the property;
- (4) the right to collect reimbursement of penalties and fines from the tenant and any other reasonable remedy.

The landlord should strongly consider monitoring compliance with the law by requiring the tenant to provide him with periodic proof of compliance. This would include providing the landlord with receipts for payment of real estate taxes, copies of applications for permits, copies of the actual permits, and copies of permit renewals.

With respect to compliance with specific environmental laws, the landlord may consider accepting an opinion letter from tenant's counsel, stating that the tenant is in full compliance with all environmental laws and regulations--federal, state and local. In this way, the landlord may have recourse against the tenant's counsel for a false or misleading opinion.

The landlord may also consider having his own expert review the tenant's operation from time to time in order to monitor compliance. Who will pay the cost of the expert's services is an issue that should be negotiated between the landlord and tenant and set forth in the lease.

[g] Bond or Insurance to Cover Expenses

Where the landlord expects the tenant to be involved in the handling of hazardous substances, the landlord will want to take precautions to insure that if a release occurs that will require some response or remediation under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act ("CERCLA") or the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act ("RCRA"), a special source of funds will be available to the landlord to cover the cost of that response or remediation. Otherwise, the landlord can be certain that federal and state authorities will seek reimbursement from him.

Most standard casualty insurance policies exclude pollution damage, unless the damage was caused by an event that was "accidental" and "sudden." Such policies may cover a release of hazardous substances which occurs rapidly. However, any slow leakage of such substances would not be covered.

Thus, the landlord should require the tenant to obtain, in addition to normal casualty insurance, a bond, letter of credit, or insurance policy that will provide the landlord with immediate access to funds for remediation in the event of a sudden release of a hazardous substance, slow leakage or other event or series of events which cause environmental damage to the property. This is especially prudent if the tenant does not have strong credit. It is impossible for the author to suggest the appropriate amount of the bond, letter of credit, or insurance coverage because the future cost of remediation will depend on the nature of the substance released, the amount, the location of the mishap, the cost of clean up, and the value of the contaminated property before the mishap. Certain chemicals may be more difficult to clean up than others. Moreover, the geology of the area in which the chemicals are released may affect the ease or difficulty of the remedial efforts. For instance, if there is ground water flowing near the surface, it may carry contaminants a great distance. Conversely, if the subsurface is very rocky and dry, this may slow the penetration of the hazardous substances into the earth.

Thus, the amount of the bond, letter of credit, or insurance coverage should be subject to negotiation by the landlord and tenant prior to the execution of the lease. During negotiations, the parties should take into account the amount of hazardous substances that will be used, produced or stored on the premises, the level of danger posed by each substance, the likelihood of an environmental mishap, the safety procedures that will be in place to prevent or at least mitigate the effects of such mishaps, and similar factors. In short, the greater the risk of a serious environmental mishap, the larger the amount of the bond, letter of credit, or insurance coverage.

The lease should require that the insurance policy, bond or letter of credit be delivered to the landlord before the tenant takes possession of the premises. In addition, the terms of the insurance policy should require the insurance company to provide the landlord with written notice--by certified mail, return receipt requested--at least 30 days prior to cancellation, revocation or expiration of the policy. The lease should further provide that if the policy is cancelled, revoked or if it expires, and the tenant is unable to replace the policy with a substitute policy acceptable to the landlord, the landlord will have the option to obtain a similar policy himself at the tenant's expense. In addition, the landlord should be given the option to simply terminate the lease.

[h] Representation by Tenant Regarding Waste Disposal

In the written lease agreement, the landlord should require the commercial tenant to remove all solid waste from the premises promptly, but, in any event, no less often than once per week. All costs for waste removal activities should be the sole responsibility of the commercial tenant.

The landlord should also require the tenant to obtain a written contract with a hauler of solid waste. That contract should extend for a period of time that is at least as long as the term of the lease, and it should provide that the contract is terminable only for cause. The contract should also contain a provision requiring the hauler to notify the landlord in writing--by certified mail, return receipt requested--at least 30 days before the effective date of termination of the contract.

The lease should further provide that the tenant must exterminate insects, rodents and other vermin, as necessary, in and around the waste storage area and in any other location that may become infested as a result of the tenant's use of the waste storage area. The tenant should also be required to keep all waste storage vessels well-covered and concealed from the view of the general public and other tenants, wherever possible.

In the event the tenant fails to perform any of his obligations, the landlord should have the right under the lease to perform the obligations at the tenant's expense. The tenant should be responsible for any fines, penalties or damage caused by his actions or failure to act. In addition, the landlord should reserve the right to terminate the lease and remove the tenant from the premises for persistent violations of the tenant's duty to properly dispose of waste.

[i] Penalty Provisions

The purpose of penalty provisions is to influence the behavior of the tenant by giving him a disincentive to act in a manner that is violation of lease provisions. The penalties are imposed by the landlord pursuant to the terms of the lease. Such penalties must be negotiated between the landlord and the tenant and inserted into the written lease agreement when the agreement is being drafted. Penalties may also be imposed by a governmental agency pursuant to the terms of a law or regulation.

Landlords generally seek to impose two types of penalties. One is related to the failure of the tenant to perform some obligation imposed under the terms of the lease. For example, the landlord might charge a "late fee" equal to 5 percent of the monthly rent if the tenant fails to pay the rent on time. (This late fee is in addition to any interest that also may be due on the rental payment. The interest covers the loss of profit the landlord suffers from not having immediate use of the rent payment.) The 5 percent penalty covers any additional administrative costs to the landlord due to the tenant's failure to make prompt payment. Both interest and penalty are designed to elicit the desired behavior, that is, payment of rent on time.

The other type of penalty a landlord may seek to impose is a punishment for an affirmative act performed by the tenant which is in violation of the terms of the lease. For example, if the lease prohibits the tenant from harvesting any wildlife on the premises, and the tenant shoots two deer, the landlord may impose a penalty for each deer shot. Since the deer do not have a readily ascertainable "market value"--as compared, for example, to a cubic yard of gravel--the landlord will not be able to recover damages in a court of law. A penalty imposed under the lease terms will help influence the tenant's future behavior.

Penalties can be used by the landlord to shape and induce environmentally-appropriate behavior from the tenant. For example, if the tenant fails to remove solid waste, the landlord can impose a stiff penalty. If the landlord then removes the waste himself, he can charge the cost of removal (plus interest) to the tenant in addition to the penalty.

The penalty imposed by the landlord can be a percentage of the periodic rental amount or a percentage of the tenant's gross or net profits during a specified time period. Alternatively, the penalty can be a fixed dollar amount. In addition, the penalty can escalate each time the reprehensible behavior manifests itself.

Penalties that may be imposed by a governmental agency include monetary fines, incarceration and revocation of permits. The monetary fines and periods of incarceration may increase if the tenant repeats or continues his illegal action.

A permit revocation most frequently occurs when the holder of the permit violates the terms of the permit. For example, if a government permit allows the discharge of a particular amount of waste water, effluent or other substance per day, and the holder discharges more than the specified amount, he may be subjected to revocation of his permit.

In sum, penalties can be a very effective method of shaping appropriate behavior in a tenant. The landlord should be certain such provisions are agreed upon and made a part of the lease before the tenant takes possession of the premises.

[j] Requirement that in Event of Mishap Tenant Will Purchase Realty at Fair Market Value Immediately Prior to Mishap

When an environmental accident occurs, such as a release of hazardous substances, it is inevitable that the property value will decline to some extent. In addition, other tenants may terminate their leases, thereby reducing the rental income from the property. Unwelcome notoriety from the accident may also reduce the likelihood of replacing tenants who flee the property in the wake of the accident. In addition, the landlord may face demands for costly remediation from federal and state environmental protection agencies. Given such a scenario, a landlord would probably be extremely happy to get his money out of the property and run as far away from it as he could go.

A clause in the lease requiring a tenant, who causes or allows an environmental accident to occur, to purchase the property affords two major benefits to the landlord. First, the landlord would immediately receive a valuable asset, cash, instead of owning a polluted (and possibly worthless) liability. Second, there is a strong possibility that authorities charged with overseeing remediation would pursue the former tenant, now the owner of the property, for the cost of remediation since he has become both owner and operator.

However, there are several practical problems to consider. First, the tenant may not have the cash available to purchase the property from the landlord. Second, if there is a mortgage on the landlord's property, it is very unlikely the existing mortgagee would allow an assumption of the mortgage by the tenant. Third, it is even less likely a new mortgagee would be willing to finance the purchase of the contaminated property by the tenant. After all, in the event of a default on the mortgage by the former tenant (i.e., the new owner), the new mortgagee would wind up with title to the property and liability for remediation. Very few lenders would knowingly accept such a risk. Lenders would also be concerned that once an accident has occurred, more accidents may follow; they would also be concerned about the inevitable diminution in the property's value due to the mishap, and the feasibility of completely cleaning up the property and restoring it to its pre-mishap condition. Thus, the tenant would have to have either substantial amounts of his own money with which to buy the property outright, or unencumbered assets sufficient to collateralize the needed loan.

If the landlord and tenant decide to insert into the lease a provision requiring the tenant to buy the property in the event of an environmental mishap, a procedure must be set forth for determining the value of the property immediately before such mishap occurred. Accordingly, the lease should state that if an environmental mishap occurs at some future time, an appraiser who is mutually acceptable to the parties will determine the fair market value of the property immediately before the mishap occurred. If the parties cannot agree on an appraiser at that time, then each party would be free to choose his own appraiser. The two appraisers will then select a third appraiser who will actually perform the appraisal. The value determined by that appraiser would be binding on both parties. Other variations of this procedure are possible as well. The most important thing, however, is that the matter is discussed, agreed upon, and included in the written lease.

It should also be noted that if the tenant is required to purchase the property, the landlord may have tax-related concerns. Upon transfer of the property to the tenant, the landlord will probably realize capital gain, which must be recognized. This may result in a substantial tax liability.

Finally, depending on the severity of the accident and the size of his potential tax liability, the landlord may not wish to sell the property to the tenant following an environmental mishap. Thus, the landlord should insist upon inserting a provision in the lease granting him the option of deciding whether the tenant must purchase the property following an environmental mishap. Alternatively, the landlord may wish to condition the transfer on the cost of remediation. In other words, if the cost of remediation exceeds a fixed dollar amount or a fixed percentage of the property's fair market value, then the tenant would be required to purchase the property. Issues similar to those discussed above regarding land valuation may arise if this approach is used.

[5] Solutions for Tenant's Concerns

The concerns that a residential tenant has basically revolve around health and safety issues. He is naturally concerned that the leased premises will be clean and devoid of any hazards that pose a threat to the health and safety of himself and his family.

The commercial tenant shares all of these concerns as well as financial ones as well. When a commercial tenant selects space, he makes a substantial investment in both "hard" and "soft" costs. The hard costs include "fit-up" expenses (i.e., adapting the space for his particular business needs), the cost of moving his equipment, inventory and staff, the cost of locating necessary services (e.g., telephone, delivery), etc.

The soft costs include loss of production during the packing, moving and unpacking periods and the value of the time spent locating the new space and supervising the activities required to open a business at that new location. Thus, the total cost of relocating a business can be staggering; the cost of moving a second time, following an environmental mishap, can destroy the business financially.

This subsection will review ways in which tenants, both commercial and residential, can address these concerns through the terms of the written lease agreement with the landlord. The tenant should always raise his specific concerns with the landlord while negotiating the terms of the lease. The tenant should also make certain the solutions reached are memorialized in written form and inserted into the lease itself.

[a] Representation by Landlord of Condition of Premises

The tenant should require the landlord to make one or more of the following representations regarding the premises to be leased:

- (1) There is no asbestos-containing material in the structures.
- (2) There is no urea formaldehyde insulation contained in the structures.
- (3) There are no hazardous substances used in, stored on, disposed of, or otherwise handled on the premises, and none have ever been stored, disposed of or otherwise handled on the premises.
- (4) Each structure is in good condition and repair, including the roof, the plumbing, and the heating, ventilation and air conditioning systems.
- (5) All of the fixtures and equipment contained in the structures are in good working order.

In the alternative, the tenant may want to conduct a comprehensive inspection and investigation of the property. If any of the problems exist, then, before signing the lease, the prospective tenant should insist the landlord correct the problem at his own expense. Alternatively, the tenant may request a reduction in the rental fee and handle the problem himself. In short, the tenant is well advised not to simply accept the property "as is."

The tenant should also request that the landlord provide him with copies of any documentation that formed the basis for the landlord's representations. Such documentation might include a structural analysis or environmental site assessment of the property. If personal knowledge or belief is the landlord's sole basis for his representations, the tenant should seriously consider having the proper examinations performed himself.

In addition, the tenant should consider negotiating and inserting "escape" provisions into the lease in the event he discovers, after signing the lease, that any of the landlord's representations was incorrect. Such a provision would allow the tenant to terminate the lease and entitle the tenant to recover his fit-up costs, plus interest, from the landlord. If the landlord's erroneous representation was deliberate, the tenant should also be allowed to recover the costs of relocating the business to a new location. The tenant should also consider requesting that a penalty clause be included in the lease, which would be invoked in the event of a deliberate misrepresentation by the tenant. The penalty would take the form of a fine for a fixed amount of money.

[b] Indemnification Granted by Landlord To Tenant

As further protection for the tenant, the lease may include an indemnification clause providing that the landlord will indemnify the tenant against any claim or loss arising from a condition on the property that existed prior to the tenant's occupancy of the property.

The wording of the indemnification is extremely important. For the tenant's benefit, it should entitle him to recoup the total cost of defending against any action brought against him, including court costs, attorneys' fees and all other litigation expenses. The indemnification should be very broad in scope, covering all types of lawsuits that might be brought against him. In that way, even claims brought against the tenant by his employees for such work-related health problems as cancer or asbestosis will be covered by the indemnification. Even if the claimant does not prevail with his suit, the landlord will be required to pay the tenant's litigation costs. Thus, the indemnification clause acts almost like a private insurance policy between the landlord and the tenant.

[c] Environmental Site Assessment

An environmental site assessment is a valuable tool for the tenant to use in relieving his environmental concerns. An environmental site assessment is generally performed in two phases. A Phase I assessment examines prior uses of the subject property and neighboring properties through various means to determine whether there is any evidence of an adverse environmental condition on the subject property. If there is some evidence of an adverse condition, a Phase II environmental site assessment is performed. In a Phase II assessment, actual samples of soil, air and water are taken and analyzed in an attempt to determine the exact nature and scope of the adverse condition. From the results of the Phase II study, a plan of remediation can be developed and implemented.

An environmental site assessment should be ordered by the tenant whenever the landlord is unwilling or unable to grant an indemnification and/or make representations regarding the environmental condition of the property being leased.

The environmental site assessment will give the tenant some assurance that the health and safety of his family and guests, or employees and customers, are not being placed at risk by his occupancy of the subject premises. In addition, the assessment guarantees that his monetary investment in locating the leased premises and moving his business there is not at risk due to some hidden environmental hazard existing on the property. The cost of an environmental site assessment, although not inconsequential, is significantly less than the cost of locating one's business after an adverse environmental condition is found to exist on the leased premises.

[d] Contingency for Waste Disposal Approval

For most residential tenants, solid waste disposal does not pose a serious issue. Waste disposal services are typically provided by the landlord at no extra cost to the tenant.

A commercial tenant, however, must be certain before signing a lease that he can obtain waste disposal services, that the price of such services will not skyrocket suddenly during the lease term, and that the price is affordable. The tenant should attempt to obtain a written contract with a waste disposal contractor before signing the lease. Such contract, together with guaranteed extension or renewal periods, should run at least as long as the term of the lease. The contract should provide that it may only be terminated for cause, such as non-payment or some other material violation of the contract by the tenant. With such a provision, the contractor could not terminate the agreement and then re-offer his services at a much higher price. If the contract provides for extensions or renewals, the new price for those extension or renewal periods should be specified, or the method for calculating the new price should be set forth. If the contract imposes a limit on the amount of trash to be removed at every collection, the contract should set forth the additional cost for removing the excess refuse. The contract should also specify any types of solid waste the contractor will not accept.

The landlord and tenant should negotiate the terms of the entire lease and make the tenant's obtaining a waste disposal contract a contingency to the lease. The contingency should provide that the tenant may terminate the lease agreement if he is unable to obtain an acceptable waste disposal contract by a particular date. The contingency should specify the term of the waste disposal contract, the maximum price acceptable to the tenant, the requirement that termination of the waste disposal contract must be for cause, and any other provision the tenant believes is necessary. As for the landlord, he may wish to reserve for himself the right to locate such a contract on the tenant's behalf, in the event the tenant is unable to obtain such a contract.

If a waste disposal contract is obtained in a timely fashion, the lease agreement would then become binding; if not, the tenant would give notice to the landlord to terminate the lease. If a waste disposal contract comes close, but does not meet all of the tenant's demands, the parties may consider making some financial adjustments to the lease in order to compensate the tenant, while preserving the lease itself. Such adjustment should be made in a written modification agreement executed by both parties.

[e] Provision for Termination of Lease Where Another Tenant Causes or Suffers Environmental Mishap

In a multi-unit residential or commercial building, a tenant always has concerns about what is happening in other tenants' units. Some tenants will want to protect themselves by negotiating a provision in the lease that will allow the tenant to terminate his lease in the event another tenant causes or suffers an environmental accident. This right will allow the tenant to protect the health and safety of his family, or of his employees and customers, by removing them from the premises. It will also help the commercial tenant to protect his business. When news of the environmental accident becomes public, the tenant may not be able to attract customers or suppliers to his site. Although moving a business is very costly, at least the tenant will still have a profitable business once he has moved.

The parties will need to consider and negotiate the exact definition of the term "environmental accident." It is possible to leave the matter totally within the tenant's discretion or require that a certain level of danger to humans be reached before the right to terminate may be exercised.

[f] Representation by Landlord that No Other Tenant Is Engaged in Activity which May Result in Mishap

In order to induce a prospective tenant, either residential or commercial, to accept space in a multi-unit building, the landlord may agree to make a representation in the lease agreement that no other tenant is engaged in an activity that could be reasonably expected to cause or result in an environmental mishap. In such case, the landlord will be required to place a provision in all other tenants' leases prohibiting them from using, storing, disposing of, or otherwise handling hazardous substances on the subject property. The landlord will also need to actively monitor all of these tenants for compliance.

The tenant should also negotiate specific default provisions relating to this representation. The landlord will be deemed to have defaulted if he fails to place the provisions in the other tenants' leases regarding hazardous substances. The landlord will also be deemed to have defaulted if other tenants violate the provisions regarding hazardous substances, and he takes no action to stop the violations.

The tenant should also negotiate specific remedies in the event of a default. In such case, the tenant should have the option to rescind the lease. That is, the tenant should be entitled to terminate the lease based on the landlord's acts or omissions. In addition, the tenant should be entitled to reimbursement for the costs of relocation, including moving expenses, and the cost of adapting the new rental space to meet his business needs. In addition, the tenant may also consider negotiating a penalty provision to further encourage the landlord to perform his duties.

Chapter 25 ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

Part III. Drafting Guidelines

§ 25.36 Overview of Drafting Guidelines

Any time that a commercial transaction involves real property, the practitioner must give a considerable amount of thought as to whether there are any environmental considerations which must be addressed. This is true whether the practitioner represents a seller, buyer, landlord, developer, contractor, tenant or lender. Further, in less frequent circumstances, environmental issues may also arise in residential transactions (e.g., asbestos, mold, etc.). Because of the infrequency of an environmental issue arising in connection with the purchase and sale of a residence, these drafting guidelines will focus on commercial transactions.

In connection with the drafting of any legal document, the practitioner must review and become familiar with the applicable laws and practices in the state and local jurisdiction where the project is located. This is especially true in a real estate transactions where local laws and customs vary widely from jurisdiction to jurisdiction. In addition to state and local laws, the federal government has a plethora of laws, rules and regulations relating to environmental conditions. As a result, many attorneys now specialize in environmental law. Furthermore, given the technical and scientific nature of environmental issues, many issues must be addressed using a team approach. That is, the attorney may work closely with an environmental engineer and other significant team members, such as, a lab, an inspector and/or a contractor doing actual clean-up or sample collecting. Analyzing and addressing an environmental condition can be an extremely complicated process. Representing a client in a complicated environmental matter contains many pitfalls and traps for the unwary or unprepared practitioner.

The first agreement analyzed in these drafting guidelines is a very common agreement used by lenders in connection with the mortgaging of real property as collateral for a loan. Most lenders are so concerned about the potential harm that may arise from an adverse environmental condition, the industry has created a special document to deal with the issue (i.e., Environmental Indemnity Agreement). Even with respect to non-recourse loans, many lenders will require the borrower and/or the guarantors to undertake some personal liability with respect to environmental conditions on or about the property. This is true even though most prudent lenders will require an environmental audit of the property before they will make the loan. The first agreement is an agreement whereby the lender is requiring the borrower and the guarantor of the loan to specifically indemnify it for any adverse environmental matters.

The other agreement analyzed in these drafting guidelines relates to the scope of the clean-up of an existing environmental contamination. Former owners and operators of real property may have liability for environmental conditions which they caused or contributed to while they were the owner or the operator. The liability may include the cost of clean up and any damages that have resulted from the condition. The liability may arise by law or by contract. As discussed above certain federal and state laws impose liability on owners or operators that have caused an adverse environmental condition. Additionally, in connection with the purchase and sale of real property, the seller and buyer may contractually allocate the risk associated with any contamination.

The second agreement, an Agreement and Declaration of Covenants added to it, involves the former owner of a foundry. As a condition of purchasing the property, the buyer required the seller to remain liable for various environmental conditions. Unfortunately for the seller, the United States Environmental Protection Agency investigated the site, and determined that the site was contaminated. The government requested that the seller clean up the property. The parties had considerable negotiation regarding the level of clean up and which standard would be used. The former owner asserted that it was an industrial site, and that it should only be remediated to industrial standards. The current owner did not object to the lower standard because it was going to continue to use the property as a foundry. The government agreed to the lesser standard, however, as part of the settlement, the government required that the property be restricted in perpetuity from certain types of uses and/or certain types of activities being conducted on the property.

In addition to the agreements, there are numerous checklists which the practitioner should utilize as a guideline to help him or her in connection with an engagement. Unfortunately, these should only be used as guidelines, and each matter may present the practitioner with a unique situation which may not be precisely addressed by the checklists. In addition, there are relevant checklists included in Volume 25, Chapter 21 Real Estate Sales and Exchanges, Section 21.44 and Volume 22, Development and Subdivision, Sections 22.56 through 22.59, which the practitioner may find helpful.

1. REPRESENTATIONS AND INDEMNITY.

(a) To the best of Indemnitors' knowledge, neither Indemnitors nor any previous owner or user of the Mortgaged Property has used, generated, stored or disposed of any Hazardous Materials (as hereinafter defined) in, on, under, around or above the Mortgaged Property, and the Mortgaged Property is not currently in violation of any Hazardous Materials Laws or Wetlands Laws (as hereinafter defined). (n6)COMMENT

(b) The Company shall, and the Company shall cause all employees, agents, lessees, contractors and subcontractors of Company and any other persons present on or occupying the Mortgaged Property to, keep and maintain the Mortgaged Property, including, without limitation, the soil and ground water thereof, in material compliance with, and not cause or knowingly permit the Mortgaged Property, including the soil and ground water thereof, to be in material violation of, any federal, state or local laws, ordinances or regulations relating to environmental conditions (including but not limited to any Hazardous Material Laws and Wetlands Laws). No Company nor any employee, agent, lessee, contractor or subcontractor of the Company or any other persons occupying or present on the Mortgaged Property shall (i) use, generate, manufacture, store or dispose of on, under or about the Mortgaged Property or transport to or from the Mortgaged Property any flammable explosives, radioactive materials, hazardous wastes, or toxic substances, including, without limitation, any substances defined as or included in the definition of "hazardous substances," "hazardous wastes," "hazardous materials" or "toxic substances" under any Hazardous Materials Laws (collectively referred to hereinafter as "Hazardous Materials"), except in connection with the legally permissible uses of the Mortgaged Property and then only to the extent permitted by law after obtaining all necessary permits and licenses therefore; or (ii) perform, cause to be performed or permit any fill activities or other acts which would in any way destroy, eliminate, alter, obstruct, interfere with, or otherwise affect any Wetlands, as defined in 33 C.F.R. § 328.3 and in any comparable state and local law, statute, ordinance, rule or regulation ("Wetlands"), where such fill activities or other acts would constitute a violation of any federal, state or local laws, status, ordinances, rules or regulations pertaining to such Wetlands ("Wetlands Laws"). (n7)COMMENT

(c) The Company shall immediately advise Lender in writing of: (i) any written notices (whether such notices are received from the Environmental Protection Agency, or any other federal, state or local governmental agency or regional office thereof) of violation(s) or potential violation(s) which are received by the Company of any applicable federal, state or local laws, ordinances, or regulations relating to any Hazardous Materials including but not limited to the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980, as amended, the Hazardous Materials Transportation Act, the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act of 1976, and the Hazardous and Solid Waste Amendments Act of 1984 (collectively, "Hazardous Materials Laws") or of any Wetlands Laws; (ii) any and all enforcement, cleanup, removal or other governmental or regulatory actions instituted, completed or threatened in writing pursuant to any Hazardous Materials Laws or Wetlands Laws; (iii) all claims made or threatened in writing by any third party against the Company or the Mortgaged Property relating to damage, contribution, cost recovery compensation, loss or injury resulting from any Hazardous Materials or Wetlands (the matters set forth in clauses (i), (ii) and (iii), above, are hereinafter referred to as "Hazardous Materials or Wetlands Claims"); and (iv) Indemnitors' discovery of any occurrence or condition on any real property adjoining or in the vicinity of the Mortgaged Property that could cause the Mortgaged Property or any part thereof to be subject to any restrictions on the ownership, occupancy, transferability or use of the Mortgaged Property under any Hazardous Materials Laws or Wetlands Laws. (n8)COMMENT

(d) Lender shall have the right but not the obligation to join and participate in, as a party if it so elects, any legal proceedings or actions initiated in connection with any Hazardous Materials or Wetlands Claims if the same could have an adverse effect on the Company and to have its reasonable attorneys' and consultants' fees in connection therewith paid by the Indemnitors upon demand. (n9)COMMENT

(e) Indemnitors, jointly and severally, shall be responsible for, and shall indemnify, defend and hold harmless Lender, its successors and assigns, and their respective directors, officers, employees, agents, successors and assigns from and against, any loss, damage, cost, claim, suit, chooses in action, expense or liability incurred by Lender directly or indirectly arising out of or attributable to the use, generation, storage, release, threatened release, discharge, disposal, or presence (whether prior to or during the term of the Loan secured by the Mortgage) of Hazardous Materials or destruction of Wetlands on, under or about the Mortgaged Property (whether by the Company or a predecessor in title or any employees, agents, contractors or subcontractors of the Company or any predecessor in title or any third persons at any time occupying or present on the Mortgaged Property), including, without limitation: (a) all foreseeable consequential damages; (b) the cost of any necessary repair, cleanup or detoxification of the Mortgaged Property required by applicable Hazardous Materials Laws or Wetlands Laws, including the soil and ground water thereof, and the preparation and implementation of any closure, remedial or other required plans actually incurred by Lender; (c) damage to any Wetlands or natural resources; and (d) all costs and expenses incurred by Lender in connection with clauses (a), (b), and (c), including but not limited to reasonable attorneys' and consultants' fees; provided, however, that nothing contained in this paragraph shall be deemed to (i) create or to give any rights to any person other than Lender and its successors and assigns, it being intended that there shall be no third party beneficiary of such provisions, or (ii) preclude any Indemnitor from seeking indemnification from, or otherwise proceeding against, any third party including, without limitation, any tenant or predecessor in title to the Mortgaged Property; or (iii) apply to Lender in any capacity other than as a party to the Loan Documents. (n10)COMMENT

(f) Any costs or expenses incurred by Lender for which any Indemnitor is responsible or for which any Indemnitor has indemnified Lender shall be paid to Lender within thirty (30) days of a demand by Lender, and failing payment within such period, shall earn interest at the default rate of interest specified in the Loan Documents until paid in full. (n11)COMMENT

(g) Without Lender's prior written consent, which shall not be unreasonably withheld or delayed, no Indemnitor shall take any remedial action in response to the presence of any Hazardous Materials or destruction of Wetlands on, under, or about the Mortgaged Property nor enter into any settlement agreement, consent decree, or other material compromise in respect to any Hazardous Material or Wetlands Claims, which remedial action, settlement, consent or compromise would impair the value of the Lender's security hereunder; provided, however, that Lender's consent shall not be required (i) in the event that the presence of Hazardous Materials or Wetlands on, under or about the Mortgaged Property either poses an immediate threat to the health, safety or welfare of any individual or is of such a nature that an immediate remedial response is necessary and any Indemnitor shall take such remedial action which is necessary and required by applicable Hazardous Materials Laws or Wetlands Laws; or (ii) if remedial action is ordered by a court of competent jurisdiction or a governmental agency. In the event any Indemnitor establishes to the reasonable satisfaction of Lender that there is no reasonable alternative to such remedial action which would result in less impairment of Lender's security hereunder, Lender shall grant such consent. (n12)COMMENT

(h) In the event of a Hazardous Materials or Wetlands Claim upon Lender's reasonable request, the Indemnitors shall retain, at Indemnitors' sole cost and expense, a licensed geologist, industrial hygienist or an environmental consultant (the "Consultant") mutually acceptable to Lender and the Indemnitors to conduct a baseline investigation of the Mortgaged Property for the presence of Hazardous Materials or Wetlands ("Environmental Audit"), the scope of which investigation shall be mutually agreed on by Lender and each Indemnitor. The Environmental Audit shall be performed in a manner reasonably calculated to discover the presence of Hazardous Materials contamination or Wetlands destruction; provided, however, such investigation shall be of a scope and intensity no greater than a baseline investigation conducted in accordance with the general standards of persons providing such services taking into consideration the known uses of the Mortgaged Property and property in the vicinity of the Mortgaged Property, the specific nature of the Hazardous Materials or Wetlands Claim and any factors unique to the Mortgaged Property. The Consultant shall concurrently deliver the results of its investigation in writing directly to each Indemnitor and Lender. Such results shall be kept confidential by Indemnitors and Lender unless agreed to in writing or unless legally compelled or required to disclose such results or disclosure is reasonably required in order to pursue rights or remedies provided herein or at law. (n13)COMMENT

(i) If any Indemnitor fails to pay for or obtain an Environmental Audit (as specified in paragraph (h) above), Lender may, but shall not be obligated to, obtain the Environmental Audit, and demand reimbursement from the Indemnitors, in which case interest shall accrue on such sum at the default rate of interest specified in the Loan Documents until paid in full.

(j) Each Indemnitor covenants to reasonably cooperate with the Consultant and to allow entry and reasonable access to all portions of the Mortgaged Property for the purpose of the Consultant's investigation. Each Indemnitor covenants to comply, at their sole cost and expense, with all recommendations contained in the Environmental Audit reasonably required to bring the Mortgaged Property into compliance with all Hazardous Materials Laws and Wetlands Laws, including any reasonable recommendation for additional testing and studies to detect the quantity and types of Hazardous Materials or Wetlands present, if Lender requires the implementation of the same. (n14)COMMENT

2. NOTICES. Except for any notice required under applicable law to be given in another manner, any notice, demand, inquiry or other communication which any party hereto may be required to make or desire to give hereunder shall be in writing and shall be deemed to have been properly given (i) if hand delivered or if sent by telecopy, effective upon receipt or (ii) if delivered by overnight courier service, effective on the day following delivery to such courier service, or (iii) if mailed by United States registered or certified mail, postage prepaid, return receipt requested, effective two (2) days after deposit in the United States mail; addressed in each case to the addresses set forth in the Mortgage or at such other address or to such other addressee as the party to be served with notice may have furnished in writing to the party seeking or desiring to serve notice as a place for the service of notice.

3. SURVIVAL. Notwithstanding anything in this Environmental Indemnity Agreement or any of the other Loan Documents to the contrary, the indemnification obligations of each Indemnitor in this Indemnity Agreement contained in Paragraph 1(e) (the "Indemnity") shall survive the expiration or termination of the Loan Documents and the repayment of the debt secured, regardless of the means of such expiration, termination or repayment. No release of the Mortgage or any of the other Loan Documents shall be deemed to effect a release of the Indemnity, but rather, the Indemnity shall be released and canceled only by a separate, specific, written release. (n15)COMMENT

4. SUCCESSORS AND ASSIGNS. The provisions contained herein shall inure to the benefit of Lender and be binding upon the parties hereto and their respective successors and assigns. (n16)COMMENT

5. WAIVER OF JURY TRIAL. INDEMNITORS, JOINTLY AND SEVERALLY, HEREBY WAIVE ANY RIGHT TO A TRIAL BY JURY IN ANY ACTION OR PROCEEDING TO ENFORCE OR DEFEND ANY RIGHTS UNDER THIS ENVIRONMENTAL INDEMNITY AGREEMENT OR RELATING THERETO OR ARISING FROM THE

LENDING RELATIONSHIP WHICH IS THE SUBJECT OF THIS ENVIRONMENTAL INDEMNITY AGREEMENT AND AGREE THAT ANY SUCH ACTION OR PROCEEDING SHALL BE TRIED BEFORE A COURT AND NOT BEFORE A JURY. (n17)COMMENT

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, each Indemnitor has caused this Environmental Indemnity Agreement to be duly executed and delivered as of the date set forth above.

Third Party Beneficiaries: Grantor on its own behalf and the behalf of its successors, transferees, assigns and heirs, and the Grantee on its own behalf its successors, transferees, assigns and heirs, in consideration of the terms of the AOC, hereby agree that the U.S. EPA and its assigns, and its successors and assigns shall be the Third Party Beneficiary of all the benefits and rights conveyed to the Grantee under this instrument. The agency having administrative control, care and custody of actions under this Agreement is the U.S. EPA. (n23)COMMENT

3. Purpose: It is the purpose of this instrument to create equitable servitudes that will run with the land in order to facilitate the completion of work under the AOC and protect human health and the environment by reducing the risk of exposure to contaminants. The equitable servitudes created herein touch and concern the Site in that they are intended to limit the use of the Site, restrict certain activities, and/or require certain operation and/or maintenance activities to occur on the Site. It is the intent of the Grantor that the covenants, terms, conditions, and restrictions of this Agreement operate as servitudes running in perpetuity with the Site. It is also the purpose of this Agreement that the Third Party Beneficiary, the U.S. EPA and its assigns and successor agencies, shall have the right to enforce the terms of this Agreement. (n24)COMMENT

4. Restrictive Covenants: Grantor, for itself and its successors and assigns as owners of fee simple title to the Site, whether through grant, conveyance, foreclosure or judicial process, agrees as follows:

A. Prohibition of Certain Activities. There shall be no excavating, landscaping, grading, filling, drilling, mining, constructing, trenching, driving pilings, livestock grazing, use of explosives or construction, placement, installation or use of any fences, ditches, roads, pipes, wells, buildings or structures of any manner or description, whether permanent, temporary or mobile, specifically including a permanent or mobile residential home, or any other activity which may disturb: (1) the waste or contaminated soil remaining on the Site, (2) any existing or constructed cover over the waste or contaminated soil, or (3) access to those portions of the Site necessary to operate and maintain any Site remedy, including monitoring activities, unless specifically reviewed and not prohibited by U.S. EPA in writing, or approved pursuant to subparagraph E, below.

(n25)COMMENT

B. Non-Residential Use. The Site shall only be used for industrial purposes and shall not be used or operated for any residential use. As used herein, the term "residential use" includes, but is not limited to, single and multiple family dwelling and rental units, day care centers and pre-schools, hotels, motels, educational facilities (except as incident to commercial or industrial activities), long-term facilities, long-term health care, or other similar uses of the Site.

(n26)COMMENT

C. Prohibition Against Extraction and Use of Groundwater and Surface Water. Groundwater use on or from the Site in any manner is prohibited. There shall be no extraction wells constructed, repaired or maintained on the Site. This prohibition does not apply to wells specifically approved by U.S. EPA. Surface waters on the Site shall not be used or permitted to be used for any human, animal or agricultural purposes.

(n27)COMMENT

D. Post Removal Site Control Plan for Site Pavement and the Concrete Floors in Centrifugal Casting Area and Compressor Building. Grantor shall maintain the integrity of the Site pavement and concrete floors in the centrifugal casting area and compressor building, to assure that no exposure to the underlying lead-contaminated soil occurs and that the remedy continues to be protective of human health and safety and the environment. This maintenance shall be performed in accordance with a post removal site control plan approved by U.S. EPA. Grantor and Grantee shall submit the post removal site control plan no later than _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year], to U.S. EPA for review and approval or disapproval in whole or in part. Grantee shall pay the costs and expenses incurred by Grantor in performing such maintenance activities as set forth in the Agreement for Design and Construction Services dated _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year], by and between Grantor, Grantee and Civil & Environmental Consultants, Inc., attached hereto as Exhibit C.

E. Notwithstanding the prohibitions on the construction, placement, installation or use of fences, ditches, roads, pipes, wells, buildings or structures in paragraph 4.A., above, such construction, placement, installation or uses are not prohibited if they are specifically deemed necessary by U.S. EPA in writing for:

i. Protecting human health or the environment, or are constructed by either the United States or the State of _____ [state] or the Grantee for purposes of performing or implementing any activity relating to any response action pursuant to CERCLA;

ii. Verifying any data or information submitted to U.S. EPA or _____ [state] EPA;

iii. Verifying that no action is being taken on the Site in violation of the terms of this Agreement or of any federal or state environmental laws or regulations;

iv. Monitoring response actions on the Site and conducting investigations relating to contamination on or near the Site, including, without limitation, sampling air, water, sediments, soils, and obtaining discrete, split and duplicate samples; and

v. Conducting periodic reviews of any response action, including but not limited to, reviews required by any applicable statutes and/or regulations.

(n29)COMMENT

F. The Site shall not be used in any manner that would interfere with or adversely affect the integrity or protectiveness of any response actions implemented pursuant to the AOC. The Site may be used only in a manner which is consistent with any obligations or restrictions that U.S. EPA determines are necessary to implement, and insures non-interference with or insures protectiveness of any response actions taken pursuant to the AOC.

G. Grantor shall maintain site security (i.e., fencing, locked gates and entry doors, and security guards), and the integrity of all Site pavement and concrete floors in the centrifugal casting area and compressor building to prevent exposure to underlying contaminated soils and waste. Grantor shall promptly seal any cracks in Site pavement and concrete floors in the centrifugal casting area and compressor building.

5. Modification or Rescission: This Agreement shall continue until the Grantee, U.S. EPA and its assigns and successors, agree to approve the modification or rescission of this Agreement. To the extent that these parties approve a modification of this Agreement, all terms not specifically modified shall remain in full force and effect.

6. Easement for Access and Inspection: The Grantor hereby grants Grantee, their successors, assigns, representatives and agents, a perpetual nonexclusive easement for access to the Site, without cost, to determine compliance with the restrictions set forth in this Agreement and for performing any cure or remediation on the Site deemed necessary or desirable by Grantee. Grantor acknowledges and agrees that Grantee will incur or suffer certain liabilities, damages, fines, fees, costs and expenses if Grantor fails to observe and perform all of the conditions and covenants set forth in this Agreement. Grantor shall indemnify, defend and hold Grantee harmless against and from any and all liabilities, damages, fines, fees, costs, and expenses arising, directly or indirectly, from Grantor's failure to maintain the integrity of Site pavement and concrete floors in the centrifugal casting area and compressor building, including but not limited to, removal of Site pavement and concrete floors in the centrifugal casting area and compressor building, or structures, equipment or improvements on or about Site pavement and concrete floors in the centrifugal casting area and compressor building, and/or from any act by Grantor or its Permittees which is expressly prohibited under this Agreement, including, without limitation, costs of investigation and remediation, costs of all third-party consultants and professionals, all legal fees and expenses and other costs and expenses incurred by Grantee in defending or processing any legal or administrative proceedings occasioned by such act(s) and in enforcing its rights hereunder. In addition, U.S. EPA and its assigns, as Third Party Beneficiary, shall have all of the rights of access as granted by the Grantor to the Grantee for the purposes listed below:

A. Performing or implementing any activity relating to any response actions selected by U.S. EPA for the Site;

B. Verifying any data or information submitted to U.S. EPA or _____ [state] EPA;

C. Verifying that no action is being taken on the Site in violation of the terms of this Agreement or of any federal or state environmental laws or regulations;

D. Monitoring response actions on the Site and conducting investigations relating to contamination on or near the Site, including, without limitation, sampling of air, water, sediments, soils, and specifically, without limitation, obtaining split or duplicate samples;

E. Conducting periodic reviews of the remedial action, including but not limited to, reviews required by applicable statutes and/or regulations; and

F. Implementing additional or new response actions if U.S. EPA, in its sole discretion, determines that such actions are necessary to protect human health or the environment.

(n31)COMMENT

7. Covenants Run with the Land: Grantor agrees for itself and its successors and assigns that any deed, easement, lease, license, or other grant or conveyance of the Site or any portion thereof or interest therein, which is executed after the date of this Agreement shall include a recital of the restrictive covenants set forth above. The grants, covenants, and other provisions set forth in this Agreement shall run with the land and shall be binding upon all owners and respective successors and assigns, including holders of any leasehold interests in the Site. The terms, covenants, restrictions and conditions shall, in any event, and without regard to technical classification or designation, legal or otherwise, be binding to the fullest extent permitted by law and equity, for the benefit and in favor of the Grantee against the Grantor and its successors in interest to the Site and each part therefor and interest therein, and it shall not be necessary for the enforceability hereof by Grantee, or their respective successors in interest, that the provisions of this Agreement or a recital thereof or thereto be included by the Grantor in any succeeding conveyance of the Site. It is also the purpose of this instrument that the Third Party Beneficiary, U.S. EPA and its assigns and its successor agencies, shall have the right to enforce the terms of this Agreement.

8. Reservation: Nothing in this Agreement shall limit or otherwise affect the U.S. EPA's rights of entry and access or limit the U.S. EPA's authority to take response actions selected by U.S. EPA under CERCLA, the National Contingency Plan, and its successor provisions or other federal or State law. (n32)COMMENT

9. No Public Access and Use: This instrument does not convey any right of access or use by the general public to any portion of the Site.

10. Recordation: The Grantor shall record this Agreement in the Recorder's Office of _____ [county] County, _____ [state] and shall provide Grantee and U.S. EPA a certified copy of the original recorded instrument showing the Recorder's recording stamps. (n33)COMMENT

11. Notice: Grantor shall include in any instrument conveying any interest in any portion of the Site, including but not limited to deeds, leases and mortgages, a notice which is in substantially the following form:

NOTICE:

THE INTEREST CONVEYED HERE IS SUBJECT TO AN AGREEMENT FOR COVENANTS AND RESTRICTIONS TO CREATE AN EQUITABLE SERVITUDE, DATED _____, _____, RECORDED IN THE DEED RECORDS ON _____, _____, IN BOOK _____, PAGE _____ [check with the Recorder's Office re: whether the "book, page" system is correct], IN FAVOR OF, AND ENFORCEABLE BY EP, LTD. AND THE UNITED STATES ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION AGENCY.

Within 30 days of the date of execution of any such instrument of conveyance, the Grantor shall provide the Grantee and the U.S. EPA with a certified true copy of the instrument and, if it has been recorded in the deed records, its recording reference.

[note: ORC § 317.08: check with Recorder's Office re: whether they maintain "deed" records or "official records"] (n34)COMMENT

12. Inspection and Enforcement: In addition to the access rights set forth in Paragraph 6, above, the U.S. EPA, and its representatives, contractors, assigns and successor agencies, may enter the Site from time to time for the purposes of performing inspections, overseeing remedy implementation or enforcing the covenants and restrictions set forth in Paragraph 4, above. The Grantee and the U.S. EPA, as Third Party Beneficiary, shall be entitled to enforce the terms of this Agreement by resorting to specific performance or legal process. The Grantee acknowledges their affirmative obligation to enforce the Agreement. The covenants and other provisions set forth in this Agreement may be enforced against the Grantor by an action for injunctive relief for any violation or threatened violation thereof brought in a court of competent jurisdiction by Grantee or by the U.S. EPA, as Third Party Beneficiary. The court may award not only injunctive relief, but damages and reasonable attorneys fees. All remedies available here shall be in addition to any other remedies at law or in equity, including CERCLA. Any forbearance, delay or omission to exercise their rights under this Agreement in the event of a breach of any term of this Agreement shall not be deemed a waiver by the Grantee or the U.S. EPA of such terms, or any other term, or any rights of the Grantee or the U.S. EPA under this Agreement. (n35)COMMENT

13. Waiver of Certain Defenses: Grantor waives any defense of laches, estoppel, or prescription.

14. Notices: Any notice, demand, request, consent, approval, or other communication that any Party desires or is required to give to the other shall be in writing and shall either be served personally or sent by first class certified mail, return receipt requested, postage prepaid, or by express mail with delivery confirmation and addressed as follows:

15. General Provisions:

B. Liberal Construction: Any general rule of construction to the contrary notwithstanding, this Agreement shall be liberally construed in favor of the grant to effect the purpose of this Agreement and the policy and purpose of CERCLA. If any provision of this Agreement is found to be ambiguous, an interpretation consistent with the purpose of this Agreement that would render the provision valid shall be favored over any interpretation that would render it invalid.

C. Severability: If any provision of this Agreement, or the application of it to any person or circumstance, is found to be invalid, unenforceable, or not to run with the land, the remainder of the provisions of this Agreement, or the application of such provisions to persons or circumstances other than those to which it is found to be invalid, as the case may be, shall not be affected. In the event that the validity or enforceability of any provision of this Agreement is held to be dependent upon the existence of a specific legal description, Grantor shall promptly cause such legal description to be prepared and recorded.

D. Entire Agreement: This instrument sets forth the entire agreement of the Grantor and Grantee with respect to rights and restrictions created here.

E. No Forfeiture: Nothing contained here will result in a forfeiture or reversion of Grantor's title in any respect.

F. Priority of Agreement: Any lease, license, easement, deed or other transfer, grant or conveyance of the Site or any portion thereof or interest therein which is executed after the date of this Agreement shall be subject and subordinate to the terms and provisions of this Agreement, and the Grantor shall include a recital of this Agreement and the provisions hereof, or shall attach a copy hereof thereto.

G. Successors: The terms of this Agreement shall bind, and inure to the benefit of, the Grantor and Grantee and their respective personal representatives, heirs, successors, and assigns and shall run in perpetuity with the Site. The term "Grantor," wherever used here, and any pronouns used in place thereof, includes persons and/or entities named at the beginning of this document, identified as the "Grantor" and its personal representatives, heirs, successors, and assigns.

The term "Grantee," wherever used here, and any pronouns used in place thereof, includes the persons and/or entities named at the beginning of this document, identified as "Grantee" and their personal representatives, heirs, successors, and assigns. The rights of the Grantee and Grantor under this Agreement are freely assignable, subject to the notice provisions here.

H. Termination of Rights and Obligations: A Party's rights and obligations under this Agreement terminate upon transfer of the Party's interest in the Site, except that liability for acts or omissions occurring prior to transfer shall survive transfer.

I. Reimbursement of Costs: The U.S. EPA, its assigns, representatives and successor agencies will incur costs in overseeing this agreement. The Grantor and Grantee agree that the AOC will remain in full force and effect to, inter alia, provide a mechanism for reimbursement of such costs.

J. Time is of the Essence: Time is of the essence as to the performance of the obligations contemplated in this agreement.

TO HAVE AND TO HOLD unto the Grantee and its assigns forever.

LawPurchase & SaleGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)COMMENT(n1) This is a three party agreement. It involves the borrower, the shareholder/guarantor of borrower, and the lender.

(n2)COMMENT(n2) The borrower is the owner of the real estate being pledged and the legal description is attached for clarity.

(n3)COMMENT(n3) The subject loan is a simple real estate loan and involves no other collateral other than fixtures associated with the real estate.

(n4)COMMENT(n4) The shareholder of the borrower has also agreed to guarantee the borrower's obligation for payment of the loan. Even if the shareholder was not guaranteeing the loan, the lender may require the shareholder to indemnify it for environmental matters.

(n5)COMMENT(n5) In many provisions of this Agreement, borrower and the shareholder will have the same obligation; however, because the Company owns the property there will also be provisions which relate only to the Company which owns and operates the property.

(n6)COMMENT(n6) The Indemnitors must represent to the lender that they are not aware of any environmental conditions on or about the property which violate the law. Many times, the parties will have an assessment undertaken and use the assessment as the basis for knowledge or exclude from the representation anything disclosed in the report.

(n7)COMMENT(n7) In this paragraph, the Company is agreeing to operate the property in accordance with all applicable laws. Because the shareholder does not own the property he is not involved in this provision.

(n8)COMMENT(n8) The Company, as the owner, must immediately notify the lender if it receives notice of a problem. In such event, the lender will want to be aware of the problem so as to manage its risk.

(n9)COMMENT(n9) Again, the lender has researched the report to be involved in any future problems so as to make sure that the problem is resolved to the lender's satisfaction. The lender's primary goal will be to protect the value of its collateral.

(n10)COMMENT(n10) This is the primary obligation of the borrower and the shareholder to the lender. Pursuant to the terms of this provision, the borrower and the shareholder agree to reimburse the lender for all damages incurred by the lender, or claims to which the lender is subject.

(n11)COMMENT(n11) The borrower and the lender agree to reimburse for all costs and expenses incurred by lender and include a default rate of interest if the amounts are not promptly paid.

(n12)COMMENT(n12) This provision prohibits the borrower and the shareholder from undertaking any remediation without the lender's approval. Again, the lender wants to protect the value of the collateral and make sure any remediation is completed to the lender's standard and not the borrower's. The borrower's main goal will be to get the property operating. The lender's goal will be to make sure the property maintains its value in the event that the property has to be sold to a third party in a foreclosure.

(n13)COMMENT(n13) This allows the lender to hire an expert at the cost of the borrower and shareholder to determine the extent of the problem. This provision also requires the parties to treat the results of the report as confidential.

(n14)COMMENT(n14) This provision is the agreement of the borrower and the shareholder to allow the lender's consultant on the property to conduct the audit.

(n15)COMMENT(n15) This provision is necessary for the indemnity to continue after the repayment of the loan. This could be important if the lender is ever classified as an operator and is subject to liability. In such event, the lender would rely upon this provision to require the borrower and its shareholder to defend it and reimburse it for any costs incurred.

(n16)COMMENT(n16) This clause allows the lender to sell the loan and have the provisions of this agreement benefit its successor. Conversely, this allows the provisions to be binding upon any party to which the property is sold.

(n18)COMMENT(n18)

(n19)COMMENT(n19) The parties to this Agreement are the current and former owner of the property. The U.S. EPA is not a party. However, pursuant to Paragraph 2., the U.S. EPA is a third-party beneficiary.

(n20)COMMENT(n20) The recitals or "whereas" clauses are designed to provide the reader factual background necessary to interpret and give meaning to the Agreement.

(n21)COMMENT(n21) This provides that the Agreement will be recorded in order to provide for constructive notice of the provision of the Agreement. As a result, all parties dealing with the property are charged with constructive notice of the provisions of this Agreement.

(n22)COMMENT(n22) This is the grantor clause which makes the property subject to the restrictions.

(n23)COMMENT(n23) This clause designates the U.S. EPA as the third-party beneficiary and gives it the benefits and rights of the grantee.

(n24)COMMENT(n24) This Declaration runs with the land in perpetuity and specifically provides that the U.S. EPA may enter this Agreement as though it was a party.

(n25)COMMENT(n25) This restriction is designated to prohibit the activities which may be conducted on or about the property. Further, it prohibits the construction of improvements.

(n26)COMMENT(n26) This provision is an additional restriction on the use of the property. Essentially, it guarantees that the property will in perpetuity remain in industrial site.

(n27)COMMENT(n27) This provision prohibits the use of the groundwater.

(n28)COMMENT(n28) This clause requires the grantor to maintain the existing structure in order to keep the containment effectively concealed. This requirement will be incorporated into the closure report.

(n29)COMMENT(n29) This allows the grantor to conduct certain activities which do not adversely affect the environment and the health and welfare of the public. However, the U.S. EPA's approval must be obtained.

(n30)COMMENT(n30) This provision sets forth how the Agreement may be modified. This is extremely important because of general nature of technology (which changes quickly) the parties may have the need to make changes.

(n31)COMMENT(n31) This gives the grantee (and presumably the U.S. EPA) access to the property for purposes of monitoring the contamination and grantee's compliance with the Agreement. The subparagraphs are very detailed as the rights of the grantee (and the U.S. EPA).

(n32)COMMENT(n32) This provision indicates that the U.S. EPA is not waiving any rights that it may have under applicable statutes.

(n33)COMMENT(n33) This clause provides that the Agreement will be recorded in the applicable office which has jurisdiction over the property.

(n34)COMMENT(n34) This requires the grantor to put all subsequent parties to the Agreement to which it might convey on actual notice of the terms and conditions of this Agreement. It also requires the grantee to provide proof that this document has been recorded.

(n35)COMMENT(n35) Pursuant to the government's belt and suspender method, the government again requires in the Agreement that it specifically has access to the property and that it is entitled to specific performance.

A. ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.01

FORM 25.01 Letter of Intent (Short Form)

COMMENT

Many real estate transactions start with a letter of intent. A letter of intent allows the parties to reach a meeting of the minds prior to incurring the time and costs associated with the preparation and execution of a detailed purchase agreement. This letter of intent is not very detailed and is binding only with respect to seller's requirement to negotiate exclusively with the buyer. This is a critical feature for the buyer because it will prevent the seller from using the buyer's offer to shop for a better offer.

This letter of intent requires the seller to provide the buyer with all reports, documents, specifications, and drawings relating to the condition or use of the building. It is helpful to obtain these items early in the process. This allows the buyer to conduct a preliminary feasibility review of the property before investing substantial time and money investigating the property. Of course, if the information provided by the seller is too old, it must be updated.

FORM 25.02 Letter of Intent--Purchase of Assets

COMMENT

This letter of intent involves the purchase of the assets of a manufacturing division. Included in the assets is a plant. This letter of intent contains a provision that requires the seller to specifically list all known adverse environmental conditions and all emission and discharge permits under which the seller is operating. This is somewhat unusual. The letter of intent also requires that the buyer keep all such information confidential. The confidentiality provision is not very detailed. Depending upon the amount of the disclosures, the seller may want to accompany this letter of intent with a detailed Non-disclosure Agreement. Because this transaction involves the sale of a business, the non-disclosure would also likely extend to other proprietary and confidential information of the seller.

Part IV. FORMS

A. ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.04

FORM 25.04 Offer to Purchase a former gas station

COMMENT

This is an Agreement to purchase a former gas station. The property contains several conditions which require remediation and on-going monitoring. The property may not be used as a gas station by the buyer. Forms 25.05 through 25.07 are related. The Addendum set forth in Form 25.05 relates to the seller's right after closing to enter upon the property to monitor the property and to complete any necessary remediation.

The Offer to Purchase also restricts the types of uses for which the property may be utilized. The seller retains the underground storage tanks and all property that contains its intellectual property (i.e, trade and service marks).

The Offer to Purchase and related documents also contain various releases of seller, because the seller is notifying the buyer that the property is polluted and the buyer is making an informal decision with respect to buyer's purchase. Presumably, the price reflects the contamination and the use restrictions.

Lastly, the seller is requesting a special/limited warranty deed. The deed contains various agreements and restrictions and is designed to put subsequent purchasers of the property on constructive notice of the agreements and restrictions.

Seller shall have _____ (_____) days after receipt of any such timely raised written objection to any Title Defect to cure or remove same if Seller so elects, but Seller shall not be obligated to cure or remove such Title Defects and the Purchase Price will not be reduced because of Seller's election not to cure or remove. Seller has caused to be performed certain environmental tests of the Property ("Seller's Tests"). A final contractor's report of the results of Seller's Tests ("Report") has been received by Seller. Seller shall provide Buyer a copy of the Report. Simultaneously therewith, Seller has provided Buyer a copy of an amendment to this Contract pursuant to which Buyer agrees to provide Seller access to the Property after Closing in exchange for Seller agreeing to remediate at Seller's expense certain environmental conditions ("Remediation Agreement"). The Remediation Agreement may also impose upon Buyer, at Seller's sole and exclusive discretion, condition restricting the assignment of the Remediation Agreement and Buyer's use and development of the Property throughout the duration of the Remediation Agreement.

(d) Liability. The Tests and any other information regarding the Property shall at all times be confidential to Seller, and Buyer shall not disclose or distribute the contents of such Tests or information or copies thereof to any third party without the prior written consent of Seller, which consent Seller may withhold in its sole and exclusive discretion. If this transaction is not closed, Buyer shall restore the Property to the same condition as existed prior to any Tests or other activities taken by Buyer or its agents on the Property. Buyer agrees to indemnify, defend and hold harmless Seller, its directors, officers, employees, agents, successors and assigns from any and all liabilities, liens, claims, causes of action, costs, damages or expenses, including attorneys' fees and court costs, arising from Buyer's or its agents' entry or activities on the Property. This Section 9 shall survive Closing or the termination of this Contract.

10. Representations.

(a) Buyer represents and warrants that it is, or shall become prior to Closing, familiar with the condition of the Property and that, except as may later be set forth in the Remediation Agreement, if any, SELLER HAS NOT MADE AND MAKES NO WARRANTIES OR REPRESENTATIONS REGARDING THE PROPERTY, EXPRESS OF IMPLIED, INCLUDING WITHOUT LIMITATION, ITS HABITABILITY, CONDITION OR FITNESS FOR ANY PARTICULAR USE OR PURPOSE. BUYER AGREES THAT THE PROPERTY SHALL BE CONVEYED BY SELLER AND ACCEPTED BY BUYER IN AN "AS IS," "WHERE IS" CONDITION EXISTING ON THE FIRST TO OCCUR OF THE CLOSING DATE OR THE DATE POSSESSION IS TRANSFERRED TO BUYER. This subsection (a) shall be modified, if at all, only by the Remediation Agreement, if any, and then only to the extent provided therein.

This subsection (c) shall be modified, if at all, only by the Remediation Agreement, if any, and then only to the extent provided therein.

(d) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained herein or contained in the Remediation Agreement, if any, in the event that, after Closing, any governmental agency, entity, body, instrumentality, department or representative ("Government") shall notify Seller that Seller must undertake on the Property any testing, investigation or remediation of flammable explosives, hydrocarbons and/or petroleum products or fractions thereof, radioactive materials, hazardous or toxic wastes, substances or materials, including, but not limited to those materials and substances defined as "hazardous substances," "hazardous materials," "hazardous wastes" or "toxic substances" in the Laws ("Hazardous Materials"), Seller shall immediately notify Buyer of same and if such Hazardous Materials are not the responsibility of Seller pursuant to the terms of this Agreement, or the Remediation Agreement, then Buyer shall promptly undertake the same, and Buyer shall immediately notify the Government that Buyer shall respond to such notice in the place of Seller.

Notwithstanding the above, if: (i) Buyer fails to timely or properly undertake and pursue the required testing, investigation or remediation of the Hazardous Materials; or (ii) the Government insists that Seller, not Buyer, undertake or pursue the required testing, investigation or remediation of the Hazardous Materials; then, and only in the event of (i) or (ii), and under no other circumstances, Seller shall have the right and authority, without trespass, to enter the Property and to conduct the required testing, investigation and/or remediation of the Hazardous Materials. Seller's entry on the Property and activities thereon shall not be deemed an admission of liability for such Hazardous Materials. While on the Property, Seller shall have the right to install, maintain, operate, store, use and remove equipment, including, but not limited to, monitoring wells, recovery wells and other assessment or remediation equipment, to remove, remediate, store and test soils and groundwater therefrom and thereon and to otherwise take all actions required to comply with the Laws. Seller shall exercise its rights of entry onto the Property in a manner which does not unreasonably interfere with Buyer's Use and Seller shall provide Buyer, within _____ (_____) days of its written request, copies of all correspondence between Seller and the Government regarding Seller's activities on the Property. Buyer shall not interfere with Seller's right of entry, or actions taken pursuant thereto, and shall cooperate with Seller in obtaining any permits, consents or approvals necessary for Seller's actions taken with respect to the Property.

(e) The provisions of this Section 10 shall survive Closing. Provisions substantially similar to those in this Section 10 shall be incorporated into the Deed and recorded at Closing. For purposes of this Section 10, the term "Buyer" shall refer to Buyer, its heirs, devisees, representatives, successors and assigns.

11. Risk of Loss and Condemnation. Seller shall bear the risk of loss with respect to the Property until the first to occur of the Closing or the transfer of possession to Buyer; provided, however, that Seller shall not be obligated to restore any Property, damaged or destroyed prior to Closing. If, prior to Closing, all or any portion of the Property shall be damaged or destroyed by casualty, or taken in the exercise of the power of eminent domain and such damage, destruction or taking will materially adversely affect Buyer's Use, Buyer may terminate this Contract by sending written notice thereof to Seller by the earlier of Closing or within _____ (_____) days after Buyer is notified of such damage, destruction, or taking. If Buyer does not so terminate this Contract, this transaction shall proceed to Closing without any reduction in the Purchase Price and Seller shall assign to Buyer at Closing all of Seller's right, title and interest in and to any condemnation award with respect to the Property.

12. Default or Termination. In the event that any representation of Buyer made herein should prove false or in the event of a default by Buyer in the performance of any of the obligations imposed on Buyer hereunder, Seller may terminate this Contract upon written notice to Buyer and Seller may pursue any actions or remedies at law or in equity available for such default; provided, however, that Buyer and Seller hereby agree that the damages to Seller would be extremely difficult and impracticable to ascertain and, therefore, if such default by Buyer occurs, Seller shall be entitled to retain the Earnest Money, not as liquidated damages, a penalty or forfeiture, but as partial compensation for damages suffered by Seller by reason of Buyer's default, including such damages as the costs of negotiating and drafting this Contract, costs of cooperating in satisfying conditions to Closing, costs of seeking another Buyer upon Buyer's default, opportunity costs in keeping the Property out of the market place, and other costs incurred in connection herewith. Should this transaction not be timely closed due to default by Seller, then Buyer may, as its exclusive remedy terminate this Contract. In the event of a proper termination of this Contract by either party in accordance with the terms set forth herein, Buyer shall be entitled to the return of the Earnest Money and thereafter Seller and Buyer shall have no further obligation or liability hereunder, except for those provisions which by their terms survive the expiration or earlier termination of this Contract. Upon termination of this Contract for any reason, any and all instruments delivered to Escrow Agent or Buyer by Seller shall be returned promptly to Seller.

13. Notices. Except as otherwise provided herein, any and all notices provided under this Offer or Contract must be in writing and shall be deemed given when delivered in person or when deposited with Federal Express or other similar overnight service, return receipt requested, or when deposited in the United States mails, postage prepaid for certified mail, return receipt requested, or upon transmission of a facsimile or other similar transmission (provided that a copy of the facsimile is delivered or deposited with twenty-four (24) hours in the manner specified above) properly addressed to Seller as follows:

(_____) days written notice thereof to the other party.

14. Entirety of Agreement. Seller and Buyer agree that this Contract, together with any exhibits and addenda attached hereto, and any documents specifically referred to herein, all of which are hereby made a part hereof, constitute the entire understanding between Buyer and Seller with respect to the subject matter hereof and that there are no representations, promises, undertakings or agreements, whether oral or written, between the parties relating to the Property which are not set forth herein and are otherwise superseded and voided by this Contract. Buyer acknowledges that this Offer must be approved by the management of Seller and can only be accepted and executed by an officer or duly authorized representative of Seller. Buyer represents that this Offer has been duly authorized and executed by Buyer. This Contract cannot be amended except by a writing executed by the parties hereto. After Closing, those provisions which by their terms survive Closing, shall so survive and shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the parties hereto and their respective heirs, successors and assigns.

[name] to _____ [name], whose address is _____ [address], in the amount of _____ Dollars ($_____) in full payment for services rendered in connection with this transaction ("Commission"). Such Commission shall be due and payable only upon Closing. The party herein obligated to pay such Commission shall indemnify, defend and hold harmless the other party from and against any and all claims, expenses, costs and damages arising from such Commission, including court costs and attorneys' fees. Buyer warrants and represents to Seller that no broker or finder has been engaged by Buyer in connection with this transaction except as noted above and that there are no other claims for brokerage commissions or finders' fees. Buyer agrees to indemnify, defend and hold harmless Seller, its directors, officers, employees, and agents from and against any claims for such other commissions or finder's fees, including court costs and attorneys' fees. This provisions shall survive Closing or the termination of this Offer or Contract.

Marks"). Title to all trade fixtures, UST's, equipment and other personal property on the Property ("Personal Property"), if any, together with the full and unrestricted right to enter the Property and to remove same for _____ (_____) days after Closing, is reserved unto Seller. Any Personal Property not removed by Seller within such _____ (_____) day period shall be deemed abandoned and automatically conveyed to Buyer hereby. In the event the Purchase Price is to include any Personal Property, these items of Personal Property shall be specified in the bill of sale, attached hereto as Exhibit "C" and made a part hereof, and Seller shall transfer same to Buyer and Buyer shall accept same at Closing in accordance with the terms thereof.
This provision shall survive Closing. Seller represents that it has removed all personal property containing its Trade Marks.

19. Damage. Buyer agrees, at Buyer's sole expense, to alter or remodel the building(s) and improvements on the Property in such a way that they do not resemble Seller's service stations, convenience stores, car washes, or other business facilities of Seller, past or present (i.e., by painting any such buildings and improvements with paint of a color combination of colors different from those colors or combinations of colors now or previously used to identify Seller's facilities. Seller represents that the improvements on the Property have already been altered or remodeled so as to not resemble any of Seller's facilities.

20. Assignment. Before Closing, this Contract shall bind and inure to the benefit of the parties hereto only. Except as otherwise provided herein, no failure or delay on the part of either party in exercising any of their respective rights hereunder upon any failure by the other party to perform or observe any condition, covenant or provisions herein contained shall operate as a waiver thereof, nor shall any single or partial exercise of any of such rights preclude any or further exercise thereof or the exercise of any other rights hereunder. No waiver or release of any of the terms, conditions or provisions of this Contract shall be valid or asserted or relied upon by either party hereto or offered in any judicial proceeding or otherwise, unless the same is in writing and duly executed by the party against whom such waiver or release is being asserted.

FORM 25.05 Addendum Offer to Purchase

COMMENT

This form is an addendum to Form 25.04 relating to the sale of a former gas station site. This addendum is the agreement between seller and buyer that allows seller post-closing access to the property for purposes of remediating existing contamination and/or monitoring it.

FORM

ADDENDUM OFFER TO PURCHASE

(Seller to Remediate Contamination)

The Addendum to Offer to Purchase ("Addendum") is made by and between _____ [name] ("Seller") and _____ [name] ("Buyer"), on the same date and in modification of that certain Offer to Purchase between Buyer and Seller. This Addendum and the Offer to Purchase are sometimes collectively referred to herein as the "Offer." Except as otherwise provided herein, the terms contained herein shall have the same meaning as contained as the Offer to Purchase.

1. Contaminants. The Property has been contaminated with certain substances or Hazardous Materials, some of which are more particularly described on Exhibit "C" attached hereto and made a part hereof (which substances, as identified on Exhibit C, and any hazardous substances currently identified under governmental authority which are directly related to Seller's use of the Property as a service station and which the Government authority requires to be remediated to meet its current requirements, are hereby collectively referred to as the "Contaminants").

2. Access. As of the Closing Date, Buyer hereby permits access and entry upon the Property to Seller and/or Seller's designated representatives and contractors as may be necessary to complete the Work, as defined in Section 3 hereof. Seller shall have the right to reserve access to the Property in the Deed.

3. Work. As used herein, "Work" means the installation, monitoring and maintenance of monitoring wells, recovery wells, assessment, remediation or treatment equipment, and the completion of such additional related activities as may be necessary to test, assess and, if necessary, remediate the contaminants.

4. Seller's Obligations. Except as expressly provided herein, Seller shall perform the Work in accordance with the Laws, in a good and workmanlike manner, and shall obtain all required permits and licenses necessary for the same.

5. Interference. Buyer acknowledges that the Work may interfere with or disrupt business activities on the Property. Seller agrees that it shall exercise its access onto the Property and complete the Work in a manner which, to the extent practicable, minimizes disruption to the use of the Property by Buyer. Buyer agrees that it shall operate and maintain the Property in a manner which does not interfere with the Work and in a manner which shall not impair Seller's eligibility and/or ability to recover funds from any underground storage tank reimbursement program and/or with Seller's ability to comply with the Laws. Buyer agrees that it will cooperate with and assist Seller in obtaining any approvals, consent or permits required for Seller's performance of the Work.

6. Restoration. Seller shall backfill any area which it excavates in the course of the Work to a grade even with the surrounding area and shall restore the surface of the excavated area to a similar condition which existed prior to Seller's excavation. During Seller's performance of the Work, in the event that Buyer or any of its customers, contractors, tenants, employees, licensees, invitees or agent, should damage or destroy any equipment, material or improvements used in the Work, Buyer shall reimburse Seller upon demand for the cost to replace and/or repair the equipment, materials or improvements. Buyer shall not be responsible for damage or destruction caused by trespassers or damage or destruction caused by vandals, nor shall Buyer be required to police such equipment, materials or improvements.

7. Development of the Property. Buyer acknowledges that the work may take at least several years to complete. Buyer further acknowledges that any change in the use of the Property may have an impact upon the Work and may further require the approval of the Government.

While Seller is performing the work, at Seller's sole cost and expense, Buyer, for itself, its successors, assigns, tenants, agents, licensees, invitees and employees, shall not use or develop the Property in such a manner that prevents or hinders the performance of or increases the cost or scope of the Work. Specifically, Buyer has stated that, for an indefinite period of time, Buyer is purchasing the Property for speculation and intends to lease the Property as a convenient store, car wash, used car lot, video store, fruit/vegetable market, auto repair shop or any other lawful purpose ("Buyer's Use"), and Seller in reliance thereon, has undertaken and/or planned and shall continue to undertake and/or plan the Work accordingly.

At such time as Buyer, its tenants, successors, assigns or licensees, contemplates a change in Buyer's Use, Buyer shall submit to Seller _____ (_____) copies of the plans, specifications, drawings and cost estimates ("Plans") for the proposed changes to Buyer's Use. Seller have _____ (_____) days from its receipt of Buyer's Plans to approve, reasonably disapprove or request additional information concerning the Plans. In the event Seller requests additional information, Seller shall have no further obligation regarding the Plans until Buyer submits all requested information to Seller. After receipt of all such additional information from Buyer, Seller shall have _____ (_____) days to approve or reasonably disapprove the Plans. Seller shall be permitted to disapprove the Plans if the cost of the Work would be increased thereby or the scope of the Work would be changed thereby.

In the event Seller approves the Plans, said approval shall not be deemed a guarantee or certification by Seller that the Plans conform to any applicable law and Buyer shall remain liable to ensure that the Plans so conform. Buyer shall strictly adhere to all approved Plans without deviation and shall, at no cost to Seller, obtain all required approvals for the proposed changes from the Government. Buyer hereby agrees to assume and hereby waives, releases, indemnifies, defends and holds harmless Seller, its directors, officers, employees, agents, successors and assigns, from and against any increased, unanticipated or delay costs associated with: (i) the construction as described in the Plans or otherwise; or (ii) the remediation required and the costs associated with any such construction as a result of the existence of the Contaminants or any other Hazardous Materials including, but not limited to, the cost of disposing of or remediation contaminated soils ("Assumption"). The Assumption expressly includes any costs to relocate Seller's equipment or improvements on the Property necessitated by any proposed change in Buyer's Use. If Seller should incur any costs which Buyer has assumed under the Assumption, Buyer shall reimburse Seller upon demand.

8. Additional Contamination. With respect to Hazardous Materials existing or discovered to exist on the Property after Closing, other than the Contaminants, or with respect to Hazardous Materials that are spilled, leaked or discharged into, onto or under the Property after closing (Additional Contamination"), Buyer shall abate same and shall comply with the Laws, all at Buyer's sole cost and expense.

In the event either party shall discover Additional Contamination after Closing, the discovering party shall immediately notify the other by telephone and in writing of such Additional Contamination. For purposes of this Section 8, and in addition to the notice requirements contained in the Offer to Purchase, Buyer shall notify Seller at the following address:

Seller shall analyze the impact of the Additional Contamination upon the scope and costs of the Work with respect to the Contaminants. If the cost to remediate the Additional Contamination is less than the cost to complete with Work, Seller shall expand the scope of the Work to include the remediation of the Additional Contamination, in which event the full cost to Seller to remediate the Additional Contamination shall be paid by Buyer in full upon demand by Seller. If the cost to remediate the Additional Contamination is greater than the cost to complete with Work, Seller may turn over to Buyer the obligation and cost of completing the remediation of the Contaminants as well as the Additional Contamination has shall pay Buyer the then-remaining cost to complete with Work, in which event Buyer shall automatically assume the obligation and cost of complying with the Laws and Seller shall automatically be released therefrom without further action by either party.

9. Reports. During the course of the Work, Seller shall provide to Buyer, within _____ (_____) days after Seller's receipt of a written request therefor, a copy of all final reports or notices between Seller and the Government related to the Work. At the same time, in the event that Buyer should receive any notices or correspondence from the Government or any third party relating to the Property, Buyer shall immediately forward a copy of same to Seller. Seller shall have the right to participate with Buyer in negotiations with and submissions of reports and information, including permits, to the Government and shall not submit reports or information regarding the Contaminants to the Government without Seller's prior written consent, which consent may be withheld in Seller's sole and exclusive discretion.

10. Seller's Representations. Except as expressly provided in this Addendum, Seller agrees to indemnify, defend and hold harmless Buyer from and against any and all claims, damage, costs, losses, suits or liabilities ("Loss") for personal injury or property damage caused by Seller's breach of its obligations with respect to the Work. Notwithstanding the foregoing, Seller shall not be liable to Buyer or its successors, assigns, tenants, agents, licensees, invitees or employees, for any diminution in the value of the Property, lost profits or rents, or any other Loss of business damages, nor for any Loss which Buyer would have suffered notwithstanding the presence of the Contamination on the Property. Moreover, this indemnity does not protect Buyer from any Loss caused by the acts, omissions, negligence or willful misconduct of Buyer or its customers, contractors, employees, agents, licensees, invitees, successors or assigns. Buyer shall not be entitled to make a claim against Seller under this indemnity unless and until: (a) Seller shall be in default hereof; (b) Buyer shall have provided Seller written notice of such default; and (c) Seller shall have failed to cure such default within _____ (_____) days after Seller's receipt of Buyer's notice, or if the default cannot reasonably be cured within such period of time, Seller shall have failed to cure such default within a reasonable period of time.

11. Buyer's Representations. In addition to the indemnities provided in the Offer to Purchase, Buyer shall indemnify, defend and hold harmless Seller, its officers, directors, contractors, agents and employees, from and against any Loss for personal injury or property damages caused by Buyer's breach of its obligations as set forth in this Addendum. This indemnity does not protect Seller from any Loss caused solely by the gross negligence of Seller or its contractor, employees, agents, successors or assigns.

12. Termination. Seller's obligations and liabilities contained herein shall terminate upon the completion of the Work in accordance with the Laws as signified by the earlier to occur of the following ("Terminate Date"): (a) an acknowledgment from the Government that Seller has completed its remedial action plan previously submitted to and approved by the Government; (b) _____ (_____) year(s) following the submission to the Government by Seller of a request for an acknowledgment that Seller has completed its remedial action plan previously submitted to and approved by the Government, provided that the Government has not responded to Seller during that _____ (_____) year(s) period; or (c) the written opinion of an independent environmental consultant retained by Seller, at Seller's sole cost and expense, stating that Seller has completed its remedial action plan previously submitted to and approved by the Government. Within _____ (_____) days after the Termination Date, Seller shall execute a recordable release of its rights under Sections 2 and 13 hereof.

13. Assignment. If, during the course of Seller's remediation of the Contaminants, Buyer shall convey to any third party any interest in the Property or, if Buyer shall be a corporation or partnership, Buyer shall convey any interest in the corporation or partnership, ("Transfer"), then the obligations and liabilities of Seller as set forth in this Addendum shall not extend to such third party unless and until the following shall occur: (a) Buyer has given Seller at least _____ (_____) days prior written notice of its intent to Transfer; (b) the transferee has a creditworthiness equal to or greater than Buyer had as of the date of Seller's acceptance of the Offer to Purchase; (c) the transferee has executed a written agreement agreeing to be bound by the obligations, duties, restrictions and liabilities of Buyer as set forth herein; and (d) the transferee has submitted to Seller a copy of any Plans for the transferee's intended use of or changes to the Property, or in the alternative, the transferee has signed a statement under oath acknowledging that the transferee may not change Buyer's use without Seller's prior written consent to the Plans pursuant to Section 8 hereof. Seller shall have the right to include this restriction in the Deed.

14. Survival. This Addendum shall survive the Closing of the transaction.

15. Conflict. In the event of a conflict between this Addendum and the Offer to Purchase, the terms of this Addendum shall control. Except as modified hereby, the Offer to Purchase shall remain in full force and effect. Nothing in this Addendum shall be deemed to waive Seller's right to terminate the Offer to Purchase in accordance with Section 9(c) thereof.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, this Addendum has been duly executed by the undersigned this ____ [day] day of _____ [month], ____ [year], having first read and understood the terms contained herein and the purpose, intent and effects hereof.

Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained herein, in the event that, after the date hereof, any governmental agency, entity, body, instrumentality, department or representative ("Government") shall notify Grantor that Grantor must undertake on the Property any testing, investigation or remediation of flammable explosives, hydrocarbons and/or petroleum products or fractions thereof, (except as may be expressly provided in the Contract), radioactive materials, hazardous or toxic wastes, substances or materials, including, but not limited to those materials and substances defined as "hazardous substances," "hazardous materials," "hazardous wastes" or "toxic substances" in the Laws ("Hazardous Materials"), Grantor shall immediately notify Grantee of same, and if such Hazardous Materials are not the responsibility of Grantor pursuant to the terms of the Contract, as defined below, then Grantee shall promptly undertake the same, and Grantee shall immediately notify the Government that Grantee shall respond to such notice in the place of Grantor.

Notwithstanding the above, if: (i) Grantee fails to timely or properly undertake and pursue the required testing, investigation or remediation of the Hazardous Materials; or (ii) the Government insists that Grantor, not Grantee, undertake or pursue the required testing, investigation or remediation of the Hazardous Materials; then, and only in the event of (i) and (ii), and under no other circumstances, Grantor shall have the right and authority, without trespass, to enter the Property and to conduct the required testing, investigation and/or remediation of the Hazardous Materials. Grantor's entry on the Property and activities thereon shall not be deemed an admission of liability for such Hazardous Materials. While on the Property, Grantor shall have the right to install, maintain, operate, store, use and remove equipment, including, but not limited to, monitoring wells, recovery wells and other assessment or remediation equipment, to remove, remediate, store and test soils and groundwater therefrom and thereon and to otherwise take all actions required to comply with the Laws. Grantee shall not interfere with Grantor's right of entry, or actions taken pursuant thereto, and shall cooperate with Grantor in obtaining any permits, consents or approvals necessary for Grantor's actions taken with respect to the Property.

Grantor has reserved unto itself the right to enter the Property and to conduct certain tests, investigations and remediation thereof ("Access") in accordance with the terms of that certain Offer to Purchase between Grantor and Grantee dated _____ [month] ____ [day] ____ [year], subsequently assigned to Grantee ("Contract"). During Grantor's Access, Grantee shall not be permitted to change the use of the Property unless and until Grantor has approved Grantee's plans, specifications and cost estimates for same, all as more fully set forth in the Contract. Finally, during Grantor's Access, Grantee shall not be permitted to transfer, assign, convey, mortgage, lease hypothecate or pledge any interest in the Property until Grantee has complied with certain conditions specified in the Contract.

A. ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.08

FORM 25.08 Commercial Real Estate Purchase Agreement--Purchase agreement for property to be redeveloped, with existing environmental reports that have been given to buyer

COMMENT

This Agreement relates to the sale of improved property to a municipality for redevelopment. The city is purchasing the property for resale to a developer. The property has some existing environmental conditions that seller identified prior to the sale. Buyer is taking the property subject to the environmental conditions. The seller represents that it has no knowledge of any other conditions that are not disclosed in the reports.

Because the sale is to a municipality for immediate conveyance to a third party, the City required a release from seller relating to any environmental conditions or required remediation. As a result, if a pre-existing condition is discovered, the seller cannot pursue the City as a potentially responsible party.

The Agreement contains a provision that allows the buyer or its representatives to have access for the property prior to transfer of title.

Also, because the seller's new property may not be completed before the sale is closed, the seller has the ability to lease back the property after closing directly from the developer. The lease will terminate when the seller's new property is completed.

The Agreement also limits the representations and warranties of the seller to its president and chief executive officer. This avoids the risk that a lower level person may have neglected to report relevant information to a superior. As a result, knowledge of such information will not be imputed to the seller.

Also noteworthy is the sale price, which is less than the appraised value. As a result, the seller may take a charitable deduction for the difference between the appraised value and the purchase price.

COMMERCIAL REAL ESTATE PURCHASE AGREEMENT

1. Recitals. This Commercial Real Estate Purchase Agreement (the "Agreement") is entered into as of this ____ [day] day of ____ [month], ____ [year], by and between ____ [name], a(n) ____ [state] corporation ("Seller"), and the City of ____ [city], ____ [state] ("Buyer"). Seller currently owns the real property, buildings and improvements being identified in this Agreement as the Property, which Property is occupied by Seller. Seller shall sell and convey, and Buyer shall purchase and pay for, upon the terms and subject to the conditions hereinafter set forth, the real property known as ____ [name], located in ____ [city], ____ [state], as more fully described in Exhibit A attached hereto. The parties acknowledge that Buyer is purchasing the Property for public use/public purpose and that such use has been or, prior to Closing, will be submitted for approval by ____ [city] City Council.

2. Property.

Address: ____ [address]

Permanent parcel numbers: ____

Check here ____ if a full legal description is attached hereto as Exhibit A.

The "Property" shall include the land described above, all easements, hereditaments, appurtenances, and all buildings and fixtures in their present condition.

3. Purchase Price. The price shall be ____ Dollars ($____) (the "Purchase Price"), to be paid upon Closing.

4. Value of Property. The parties agree and acknowledge that Seller is entitled to a charitable deduction for the amount by which the fair market value exceeds the Purchase Price, if any. In order to determine the fair market value of the Property, Seller will hire, at its sole cost and expense, an appraiser to determine the value of the Property. The appraiser shall be subject to the approval of Buyer, such approval not to be unreasonably withheld, conditioned, or delayed. Furthermore, Buyer agrees to cooperate to the extent permissible by law with Seller and the appraiser in connection with the appraisal, and Buyer agrees to execute and deliver all statements and information reasonably required by Seller in order to qualify for the deduction and/or comply with the requirements of the regulation promulgated under The Internal Revenue Code of 1986, including, without limitation, acknowledging the donation on IRS Form 8283 (Rev. 10-98).

5. Condition of the Property: Disclosures.

A. Condition of Property. Seller has provided to Buyer any and all existing information and reports in Seller's possession related to the condition of the Property (collectively, the "Reports") including without limitation: (1) geotechnical, environmental or other engineering reports; (2) any environmental permits and documentation related to such permits; and (3) correspondence from governmental agencies regarding any alleged violation of any law applicable to the Property. Seller warrants to Buyer that, to the best of Seller's knowledge, the Reports provided are the only such documents that exist related to the condition of the Property and that, to the best of Seller's knowledge, the information contained the Reports represents a true and accurate description of the condition of the Property. Seller acknowledges that Buyer shall be entitled to rely on the Reports and indemnifies Buyer for any costs incurred as a result of conditions which were known to Seller at the time of this Agreement, but were not disclosed in the Reports or otherwise by Seller to Buyer. Except for the representations, warranties and covenants in this Agreement, without accepting any responsibility or liability for any conditions on, under, about or from the Property, the Property is being sold by Seller and purchased by Buyer in its AS-IS condition.

B. Seller's Representations. Seller represents that each of the following is true and correct and shall be true and correct upon Closing:

(1) Seller is a(n) _____ [state] corporation duly formed and validly existing in good standing under the laws of the State of _____ [state] and is authorized to transact business in the State of _____ [state]. All requisite action to approve, execute, deliver and perform this Agreement and each other agreement and document delivered by Seller in connection herewith has been taken by Seller. This Agreement and each other agreement and document delivered by Seller in connection herewith have been duly executed and delivered by Seller and constitute the binding obligations of Seller enforceable in accordance with their respective terms;

(2) to the best of Seller's knowledge, after due inquiry, Seller has timely filed all reports required to be filed, and has (or had at all appropriate times) all certificates, approvals and permits (and has generated and maintained all data, documentation and records) required under all Environment Laws in connection with Seller's ownership and operation of the Property; and

(3) to Seller's best knowledge, there are no existing or continuing violations of Environmental Laws and no actions, orders or pending claims for violation of Environmental Laws relating to the Property or Seller's operations thereon, and to Seller's best knowledge, no such threatened claims or actions, and Seller has received no notice of any such violations, actions, orders or claims.

C. Seller Release and Limited Indemnification.

(1) Subject to the limitations set forth herein, if one or more of the representations and warranties made hereunder by Seller shall prove to be untrue or inaccurate in any material respect, or if Seller shall default in its performance of any provision of this Agreement, Seller shall indemnify and hold harmless Buyer and its successors, assigns, designees, nominees, members, officers, employees, agents and affiliates ("Indemnified Persons") from and against any loss, cost, claim, damage, liability or expense incurred by such persons resulting from any such untruth or inaccuracy or from any such failure of performance, including, without limitation, reasonable attorneys' fees and accountants' fees, third party claims and consequential damages. Buyer shall be entitled to offset amounts due under this Section from the Purchase Price.

(2) Seller, for itself and its successors and assigns, hereby releases and forever discharges Buyer and its officers, representatives, affiliates, employees, successors and assigns from and waives any and all claims, demands, actions, or causes of action which Seller may now have or hereafter have against Buyer and its officers, representatives, affiliates, employees, successors and assigns for claims, damages, actions, causes of action, costs, damages, losses, expenses, injuries, liabilities, penalties, fines or otherwise, of any and every kind whatsoever, with respect to or as a result of: (1) any voluntary or involuntary investigation, monitoring, remediation, response action, voluntary action, corrective action or closure performed by or on behalf of Seller, or any person, party or governmental authority under any Environmental Laws; (2) the presence, use, generation, storage, treatment, disposal, release, threatened release, migration or discharge of Hazardous Substances at, on, under or from the Property; (3) any violations or alleged violations of Environmental Laws; or (4) otherwise arising out of or in connection with any environmental, structural or physical conditions with respect to the Property. This waiver and release by Seller hereunder shall survive the Closing of the sale of the Property or the termination of this Agreement.

(3) Defined terms used herein above shall have the following meanings:

(a) "Environmental Law" shall mean any federal, state and local laws, statutes, ordinances, rules, regulations and orders, which regulate or pertain to the environment or environmental matters or the protection or preservation of human health, now in effect or as hereinafter may be enacted or amended, including without limitation: the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act, 42 U.S.C. § 9601 et seq.; the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act, 42 U.S.C. § 6901 et seq.; the Clean Air Act, 42 U.S.C. § 7401 et seq.; the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, 33 U.S.C. § 1251 et seq.; the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide and Rodenticide Act, 7 U.S.C. § 136 et seq.; the Toxic Substances Control Act, 15 U.S.C. § 2601 et seq.; the Safe Drinking Water Act, 42 U.S.C. § 300f et seq.; the Emergency Planning and Community Right-to-Know Act of 1986, 42 U.S.C. § 11001, et seq.; the Hazardous Materials Transportation Act, 49 U.S.C. § 5101 et seq.; and the Occupational Safety and Health Act, 29 U.S.C. § 651 et seq., as amended from time to time, and the regulations and rules now or hereafter promulgated.

(b) "Hazardous Substances" shall mean (1) any substance, chemical, material, organism, or waste that is hazardous, toxic, pathogenic, radioactive, reactive, explosive, flammable, or dangerous, or that is listed, defined, or regulated as such, under Environmental Laws; (2) petroleum or petroleum products, distillates, fractions or wastes; (3) polychlorinated biphenyls (PCB's), asbestos, urea formaldehyde or any material containing the previously mentioned substances; and (4) any substance or material defined as a "pollutant," "contaminant," "hazardous waste," "hazardous substance," "toxic substance" or "solid waste" under Environmental Laws.

(c) Seller's knowledge means the actual knowledge of _____ [name], _____ [title] of Seller, without imputing to him knowledge of any other person.

D. Continuing Access to Property. Buyer or Buyer's representative may inspect the Property (the "Walk-Thru") on the day prior to the Closing Date. If the Walk-Thru evidences that there has been any material adverse change in the physical condition of the Property from the date of publication of the Reports described in Section 5(B), then Buyer may so notify Seller and the Escrow Agent, whereupon the parties shall mutually agree on an amount to be withheld from Seller's proceeds and either credited to Buyer or held in escrow pending correction of the deficiencies. Seller grants to Buyer (and Buyer's agents, employees and consultants) a license to enter upon, occupy, inspect (and erect testing structures upon and within) the Property during all regular business hours and during such other reasonable times as Buyer may require in order to assess the feasibility of the Property for proposed redevelopment of same. Buyer agrees to defend, indemnify and hold harmless Seller from any claims, damages, causes of action, expenses, fees (including reasonable attorneys' fees), or costs relating to Buyer's pre-closing access.

E. Government Requirements. Seller has not received notice from any governmental authorities of any outstanding violations of any statutes, ordinances, rules or regulations affecting the Property as set forth in any notice from any governmental authority. If any governmental notices of violations are received prior to the Closing Date, Seller will immediately advise Buyer. Seller shall have _____ (_____) days to correct such violation. If Seller fails to correct the violation, Buyer may elect to terminate this Agreement by giving written notice to Seller and the Escrow Agent within _____ (_____) days after the expiration of such 14-day period if such violation will or is likely to result in liability or expense to Buyer or will prohibit the intended use of the Property for redevelopment.

F. Seller Cooperation on Rezoning. Seller shall cooperate in any subdivision or split approval proceedings as Buyer may elect in order to cause parcel(s) to be created as separate tax and building lots in furtherance of the intended purpose of redeveloping the Property. Further, Seller shall cooperate in any rezoning proceedings or contests in furtherance of the Property redevelopment as Buyer may elect in order to cause parcel(s) to receive zoning, rezoning, special use or conditional use permit(s), variance(s) or other zoning actions, certificates of appropriateness, building permit(s), and other governmental permits. Seller's cooperation as stated in the preceding two sentences shall not be defined to include a requirement that Seller incur out-of-pocket costs to third parties. Any such rezoning shall only be effective after the transfer of title of the Property to Buyer.

6. Risk of Loss. Risk of loss to the Property or any part thereof shall remain on Seller until closing. The parties acknowledge, however, that Buyer intends to demolish the improvements on the Property, therefore, this transaction shall not be affected by any pre-closing damage to the Property.

7. Title.

A. Seller shall convey fee simple marketable title to the Property to Buyer, or Buyer's nominee, by limited warranty deed (the "Deed"), free and clear of all liens and encumbrances except: (1) the lien of real estate taxes and assessments, both general and special, which are not yet due and payable; (2) zoning ordinances, building codes, and subdivision regulations; (3) easements, restrictions, conditions, reservations and covenants of record which are not objected to pursuant to Paragraph 7(C) below and any matter disclosed by the Survey referred to in Paragraph 7 (E); and (4) any liens or encumbrances created by the acts of Buyer or waived by Buyer as provided in Section 7(D) (the "Permitted Exceptions").

B. Seller shall furnish Buyer, or its nominee, with an ALTA Owners Policy of Title Insurance (1992 ALTA Form) in the amount of the Purchase Price (the "Title Policy"), with all standard exceptions removed and with extended coverage, an environmental protection lien endorsement, a special tax and assessment search, and an insured closing letter, issued by Chicago Title (the "Title Company") and insuring title to the Property to be good in Buyer, or its nominee, as of the filing of the Deed for record, subject only to the Permitted Exceptions.

C. Seller shall furnish to Buyer a copy of the commitment for the Title Policy (the "Title Commitment"). Any restriction, condition, reservation or easement of record shown in the Title Commitment shall be deemed not to materially and adversely affect the use or value of the Property unless objected to by Buyer in writing within _____ (_____) business days after Buyer received the Title Commitment.

D. If the Title Commitment shall disclose any defect in Seller's title or any lien or encumbrance other than the Permitted Exceptions (the "Title Objections"), then, unless Buyer shall have waived the Title Objections in writing, Seller shall have _____ (_____) days after receipt of the Title Commitment to provide Buyer with evidence to Buyer's satisfaction that the Title Objections have been removed or will be removed at Closing, failing which, Buyer may elect to (1) accept title subject to the Title Objections without reduction in the Purchase Price, or (2) terminate this Agreement by giving written notice to Seller and the Escrow Agent within _____ (_____) days after such _____-day period has expired. If Buyer shall fail to timely elect to terminate, then Buyer shall be deemed to have waived the Title Objections.

E. Promptly after the date of this Agreement, Buyer may cause a registered surveyor to make a survey for the Property. Said survey shall: (1) be certified by the surveyor to the Title Company, Buyer and Buyer's lender; (2) show the dimensions and area of the land and the location of any improvements, easements and setback lines; (3) identify by recording information all easements and setback lines; (4) reflect access between the Property and a dedicated street; (5) be sufficient to enable the Title Company to delete the survey exception; and (6) otherwise conform with the ALTA/ACSM minimum survey standards. If a survey shall disclose any matter which materially and adversely affects the use or value of the Property, then Buyer may so notify Seller and the Escrow Agent in writing no later than _____ (_____) days prior to the Closing Date, in which event such matter shall be deemed to be a Title Objection.

8. Escrow. The Escrow Agent for this transaction shall be the Title Company, but Buyer's lender may be substituted at its request. Buyer shall deliver to the Escrow Agent a copy of this Agreement which shall serve as its escrow instructions for this transaction. The Escrow Agent may accept this escrow subject to its standard conditions of acceptance of escrow, to the extent they are not inconsistent with this Agreement.

9. Closing and Delivery of Possession. All documents and funds and/or financial institution commitments for funds necessary to complete this transaction shall be placed in escrow in sufficient time to permit transfer of title on the Closing Date (as defined below). The Escrow Agent shall file the Deed for record (the "Closing") and complete this transaction in accordance with the provisions of this Agreement on _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], subject to extension for curing Title Objections, as provided in Section 7(D), or on such other date as Buyer and Seller may agree in writing (the "Closing Date"), provided that the Escrow Agent has received all funds and documents required to be deposited with it for the Closing and the Title Company is in a position to issue the Title Policy. Time is of the essence.

10. Prorations, Charges and Credits.

A. Real estate taxes, assessments (general and special), annual maintenance fees and subdivision charges, if any, shall be prorated as of the Closing Date (charging/crediting items applicable to the Closing Date to Seller), using as the basis for the proration of taxes and assessments the rate and valuation shown for the Property on the tax duplicate requested by the Title Company in preparation for the Closing. The proration of taxes and assessments shall be final. Seller warrants that Seller has received no written notice of any proposed assessment from any governmental authority.

B. Seller shall order final meter readings to be made as of the Closing Date for all utilities serving the Property and Seller shall pay all final bills rendered from such meter readings. It is understood that, as Seller will continue to occupy the Property beyond Closing pursuant to a lease agreement, Seller will continue to be responsible for any and all water, sewer and other utility costs incurred during the period of occupancy beyond Closing and its proportionate share of real estate taxes, if any. Seller agrees to indemnify Buyer for any and all water and sewer costs currently due, past due, or which become due to Cuyahoga County as a result of Seller's continued occupation of the Property.

C. The Escrow Agent shall charge to Seller: (1) the cost for the title search and one-half of the premium for the Title Policy; (2) the conveyance fee and transfer taxes; (3) the cost of removing or discharging any defect, lien or encumbrance required for conveyance of the Property as required by this Agreement; (4) the amount due to Buyer for any prorations or credits under this Agreement; (5) one-half the escrow fee; and (6) any real estate broker's commission required to be paid by Seller.

D. The Escrow Agent shall charge to Buyer: (1) the cost of the Title Commitment; (2) one-half of the premium of the Title Policy; (3) the cost of recording the Deed; (4) any costs incurred in connection with Buyer's financing for this transaction; (5) one-half of the escrow fee; and (6) the survey cost.

11. Notice. All notices given pursuant to this Agreement shall be communicated in writing, by facsimile or electronic mail, and shall be deemed given upon actual receipt.

12. Termination. If a party has performed its obligations under this Agreement and, being entitled to do so, that party has elected to terminate this Agreement, then that party shall give the other party and the Escrow Agent written notice of the termination within _____ (_____) days following the date on which the right to terminate arose (or such other date as specified herein). Except as otherwise specified in Section 13 of this Agreement, upon any such permitted termination, the Escrow Agent shall promptly return the Deposit to Buyer and return all funds and documents to the party which deposited them, whereupon Seller, Buyer and the Escrow Agent shall be relieved of any liability hereunder, except that Seller shall be liable for any title examination charges, if any, incurred prior to the termination.

13. Default; Remedies. Time is of the essence of this Agreement. If Buyer fails to make payment of the Purchase Price promptly when the same shall become due, or defaults in the performance of any covenant or agreement herein contained, and such failure or default continues for _____ (_____) days following written notice from Seller, then Seller may terminate this Agreement. Upon such termination, the Escrow Agent shall deliver the Deposit (after deducting any title charges incurred prior to such termination) to Seller as liquidated damages as Seller's sole remedy for such default. If Seller fails to perform any obligation imposed by this Agreement, and such failure continues for _____ (_____) days following written notice from Buyer, Buyer may elect to terminate this Agreement and/or to pursue any legal or equitable remedy. Upon such termination, Seller shall reimburse Buyer for any costs incurred by Buyer associated with the Purchase of the Property including, but not limited to, costs for escrow fees, title examination and policy and survey.

14. Entire Agreement. This Agreement, including any Addendum Clauses, constitutes the entire agreement between the parties. No other conditions, representations, warranties or agreements, expressed or implied, have been made or relied upon by Buyer or Seller. The representations, warranties and agreements contained in this Agreement shall survive the transfer of title.

15. Parties Bound and Benefits; Assignability. This Agreement shall bind and benefit the parties hereto and their respective heirs, personal representatives, successors and assigns.

16. Real Estate Broker. No real estate broker is owed a commission in connection with the sale of the Property.

17. Like-Kind Exchange. Buyer acknowledges that Seller may undertake a like-kind exchange with respect to the sale of the Property under Section 1031 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986. Seller shall be responsible for all additional costs and expenses associated therewith, and with the identification and purchase of any replacement property. Seller will indemnify, defend and hold harmless Buyer from any extra costs or expense thereof.

18. Lease Back. This Agreement is subject to Seller executing a lease with _____ [name] for a lease back of a portion of the Property. Seller shall use all reasonable efforts to negotiate and enter into such lease with _____ [name] on or before _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year].

A. ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.09

FORM 25.09 Commercial sale agreement--shopping center--representation by seller that premises were not used for storage or disposal of hazardous substances

COMMENT

This is an agreement for the purchase and sale of a shopping center. As is often the case, this particular shopping center has seen a wide variety of tenants, including a dry cleaning establishment, a pharmacy, and a hair salon. Each of these businesses uses a number of products which contain substances included in the "hazardous" substances list of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act ("CERCLA"). 42 U.S.C.A. § 9601 seq. However, the substances--such as nail polish, polish remover and cleaning solvents--were used in such small quantities that the seller can feel comfortable in making the representation that the premises were never used for the storage or disposal of hazardous substances.

This representation is critical to the purchaser. A purchaser's financing is typically contingent upon receiving an environmental site assessment that reveals that no hazardous substances have been disposed of on the property. Clearly, the purchaser's immediate financial interest is served by not having to engage the costly services of a geologist or other environmental site review service. However, in the long term, the seller's representation to the purchaser is only as good as the seller's ability to compensate the purchaser in the event that the seller was mistaken or made a deliberate misrepresentation that causes injury to the purchaser.

Many sellers may have only limited knowledge of how their property was used by prior owners. A purchaser should consider that the cost of an environmental site review may be far less than the loss that may occur if the seller is in error or has misrepresented the prior uses of the property. The purchaser, upon becoming an owner, becomes liable for "clean up" costs.

The results of the environmental site review may also affect the value of the property. If the purchaser is financing a portion of the purchase price, the lender may require an appraisal. In issuing the appraisal, the appraiser will likely assume that there are no adverse environmental conditions, or insist on reviewing the environmental report before issuing the appraisal to the lender.

FORM

AGREEMENT made this _____ [day] of _____ [month] _____ [year], between _____ [name], residing at _____, hereafter referred to as "Seller," and _____ [name], a corporation organized under the laws of the State of _____ [state], with offices for the transaction of business at _____ [address], hereafter referred to as "Purchaser."

WHEREAS, Seller is the owner of certain real property and premises commonly known as the _____ [name] Shopping Center, located at _____ [address], in the City of _____ [city], State of _____ [state], hereafter referred to as "premises;" and

WHEREAS, Seller desires to sell and Purchaser desires to purchase the premises,

NOW, in consideration of the mutual promises contained herein, it is agreed as follows:

1. Conveyance of property. Purchaser agrees to purchase and Seller agrees to sell the real property commonly know as _____ [name] Shopping Center. Purchaser shall pay to Seller the sum of _____ Dollars ($ _____) for the purchase of said real property and premises as follows:

- (a) _____ Dollars ($ _____) deposit upon execution of this Agreement;
- (b) _____ Dollars ($ _____) at the time of transfer of title; and
- (c) _____ Dollars ($ _____) in the form of a financing mortgage to the Seller.

The term of said mortgage shall be from a reputable lender and shall be for _____ (_____) years at _____ percent (_____ %) interest per annum. The mortgage shall provide that prepayment of principal and accrued interest may be made without penalty at any time after the passage of _____ (_____) months from the date of transfer of title.

2. Contingencies. This Agreement is subject to the following contingencies:

- (a) That an ALTA survey shows the driveway from _____ [name] Road, the entire parking area and buildings to be entirely within the property liens of the subject premises.
- (b) Buyer approving the results of a general inspection and due diligence investigation of the Property.

3. Deed. The Seller shall convey the premises to the Purchaser by means of a _____ deed _____ [insert type of deed to be used] in proper form for recording. The deed shall be prepared, duly executed, acknowledged and delivered by the Seller to the Purchaser, together with any applicable transfer tax, all at the Seller's expense.

4. Notwithstanding the foregoing, Seller may convey the fee simple ownership interest in the real property subject to all zoning laws, environmental laws, any covenants, conditions, restrictions or easements of record, provided that this does not render title to the real property unmarketable.

5. "As Is" Clause. The buildings on the premises herein are hereby sold "as is." Seller provides no warranty as to condition, express or implied. Seller hereby represents and warrants that the subject premises have never been used for the storage or disposal of hazardous substances. The term "hazardous substances," as used herein, shall mean substances deemed hazardous pursuant to the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act ("CERCLA"), 42 USC § 9601 et seq.

Seller has owned the subject premises since ____ [year]. During that period of time, Seller has not become aware of the existence of any condition which would result in an adverse environmental impact. However, Seller has performed no tests or investigations. In the event that Purchaser now or hereafter discovers such a condition, where the genesis of such condition occurred prior to Purchaser's acceptance or occupation of the subject premises, Seller agrees to cooperate in providing any information which he may have which will assist in locating the responsible party.

Seller further represents and warrants to Purchaser that he will not, by any affirmative act or omission, waive or excuse the liability of any other party who may be a "responsible party," as defined by CERCLA, 42 USC § 9601 et seq., or any other federal or state law or regulation, for any cost of remediation of any adverse environmental condition, under any federal or state law or regulation.

In the event Seller has or does waive the liability of any responsible party, Seller will indemnify and hold Purchaser harmless for any loss occasioned by that waiver, including legal fees and consequential damages.

This representation is made to induce Purchaser to enter into this contract for purchase of the subject premises. It is understood by the parties hereto that Purchaser's financing is contingent upon Seller making this representation. It is further understood that Purchaser's loan documents will provide that the loan will be due and payable in full if evidence of hazardous substances is discovered on the subject premises. Seller shall be liable for all damages, including economic and consequential damages in the event that the representations contained in this section are inaccurate.

6. No Real Estate Broker Involved in Sale. The parties hereto agree that no real estate broker was involved in this sale. Brokers' fees and/or commissions are not due to any person.

7. Apportionment of Rental Income, Security Deposits and Taxes. All rentals, security deposits, and taxes shall be apportioned as of the date of transfer of title. If Seller makes, before the time of transfer of title, any payments in advance for taxes or water and sewer rents, or other levies which are a lien against the premises, Purchaser shall reimburse Seller for a prorated share of these payments at the time of transfer of title.

(a) Seller shall provide Purchaser with a copy of all tenants' leases and a complete record of each tenant's rental history, including amount of security deposit, accrued interest thereon, if any, amount of additional rent, if any, and the purpose therefor, and whether tenant is in default in any way, and the nature of such default.

(b) Seller shall also provide Purchaser with a list of all repairs and improvements made by Seller and tenants to each unit. Seller shall also provide Purchaser with a copy of the original plans and specifications for the shopping center, together with all modifications approved for each tenant.

8. Date of Transfer of Title. The transfer of title shall take place on or before ____ [month] ____ [day] ____ [year], at the offices of _____. Time is of the essence.

9. Indemnification and Hold Harmless Clause. The Seller agrees to indemnify and hold the Purchaser harmless for any claim or cause of action (including legal fees) accruing on or before the transfer of title, for any cause whatever relating in any way to those items of real and personal property transferred to the Purchaser under this Agreement.

10. Indemnification and Hold Harmless Clause. The Purchaser agrees to indemnify and hold Seller harmless regarding any cause of action whatever relating in any way to those items of real and personal property transferred to the purchaser under this Agreement.

Any notice required to be given to Purchaser shall be in writing and sent certified mail, return receipt requested, to:

_____ [name]
_____ [address]
_____ [address]

Any notice required to be given to Seller shall be in writing and sent certified mail, return receipt requested, to:

_____ [name]
_____ [address]
_____ [address]

Notice shall be deemed given when received.

11. Document Embodies Complete Agreement. This Agreement contains the entire understanding of the parties; there have been no representations made which are not contained herein.

12. No Oral Modifications. This Agreement may only be modified by a written amendment signed by all parties. An oral modification shall not be binding on any party.

13. Controlling State Law. This Agreement shall be construed in accordance with the laws of the State of _____ [state].

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.10

FORM 25.10 Commercial sale agreement--office building--sale is contingent on finding that no asbestos-containing material is located within building--representation of condition of premises

COMMENT

This is an agreement for the purchase and sale of an office building. The building was constructed in the late 1930s, when the use of asbestos insulation was quite common. The building was partially remodeled in the late 1950s, when the use of asbestos-containing floor and ceiling tiles was quite common.

Employers and landlords have been named as defendants in lawsuits and workers' compensation claims where the plaintiffs develop lung problems after working in spaces containing asbestos. Obviously, the purchaser does not want to buy into an existing problem.

The determination of whether asbestos is contained within insulation or ceiling or floor materials generally requires laboratory analysis. Thus, it is necessary to take physical samples of the materials. Air sampling and analysis is also helpful to show that because the asbestos was not "friable" (i.e., crumbling and floating through the air), it could not have been a factor contributing to a claimant's or plaintiff's medical condition.

The contingency is designed to allow the purchaser to terminate the agreement if any asbestos is found. Further, the contingency is broad enough that if any other adverse condition is found, the purchaser may terminate the agreement. The purchaser may find that the floor or ceiling tiles contain a small amount of asbestos which is not friable. The purchaser may be willing to accept the building under those conditions. However, in such case, the purchaser will likely insist upon receiving a price reduction approximately equal to the purchaser's cost of removing or containing the asbestos. Of course, this contingency has broad applications and can be used if purchaser discovers any defects on or about the property.

In the alternative, the purchaser may request the seller to remove the asbestos prior to transfer of title. The purchaser's ability to terminate the agreement and walk away from the deal makes both of the alternatives above possible, since the seller will certainly not want to lose an otherwise interested purchaser.

This agreement also contains a representation regarding the condition of the premises. Because this property has been used exclusively as an office building since the structure was built (rather than for manufacturing purposes), the purchaser's major environmental concerns will be with exterior conditions.

FORM

AGREEMENT made this ____ [day] ____ [month] ____ [year], between ____ [name], with offices for the transaction of business at ____ [address] (hereafter referred to as "Seller"), and ____ [name], a corporation existing under the laws of the State of ____ [state], with offices for the transaction of business at ____ [address] (hereafter referred to as "Purchaser").

W I T N E S S E T H:

WHEREAS, Seller is the owner of a certain office building commonly known as the ____ [name] Tower, located at ____ [address] in the City of ____ [city], State of ____ [state] (hereafter referred to as the "real property"); and

WHEREAS, Seller desires to sell and Purchaser desires to purchase the property,

NOW, in consideration of the mutual promises contained herein, it is agreed as follows:

1. Conveyance of Property. Purchaser agrees to purchase and Seller agrees to sell the real property, which is more particularly described in Schedule "A" annexed hereto and made a party hereof. The purchase price is the sum of ____ Dollars ($ ____). A deposit of ____ Dollars ($ ____) shall be made upon execution of this Agreement. The balance shall be due upon transfer of title in certified or bank funds, United States dollars.

2. Sale Contingent Upon Obtaining Mortgage Loan. This Agreement is contingent upon Purchaser obtaining a mortgage loan in the amount of ____ Dollars ($ ____), at an annual interest rate not to exceed the prime rate plus ____ percent (____ %) for a term of at least ____ (____) years. Purchaser shall not be required to accept a mortgage which is conditioned on the personal guaranty of any of its officers, directors, or shareholders, or on any cross corporate guaranty.

This condition shall be deemed waived unless Purchaser shall notify Seller in writing of Purchaser's inability to obtain a mortgage loan on or before ____ [month] ____ [day] ____ [year]. Notice shall be deemed given when received by Seller, in person or by certified mail, return receipt requested. If notice is timely given, Seller may elect to hold the mortgage under the same terms and conditions described above. Purchaser shall be obligated to accept the mortgage should Seller elect to offer it. Any such offer by Seller shall be made in writing and delivered to Purchaser as described above within ____ (____) days of receipt of notice of Purchaser's inability to obtain a mortgage loan. The transfer of title shall take place within ____

If Seller does not elect to hold the mortgage, this Agreement shall be deemed canceled. All deposits made pursuant to this agreement shall be returned to the Purchaser immediately.

3. Sale Contingent Upon Inspection for Asbestos. This Agreement is contingent upon the Seller approving the results. The inspection may include, with limitations, inspections for asbestos, mold and structural defects. The inspection(s) shall be performed by qualified inspectors. The inspection and all samples and analysis shall be performed at the expense of _____. A copy of the inspection report shall be provided to both Purchaser and Seller.

Seller consents to the taking of samples of ceiling material, pipe insulation and boiler or furnace insulation. Such samples shall be taken as inconspicuously as possible in the working areas of the structures.

This contingency shall be deemed waived unless Purchaser shall notify Seller that the results of the inspection are unsatisfactory, in writing, on or before _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]. Notice shall be deemed given when received by Seller, in person or by certified mail, return receipt requested. If notice is timely given, this Agreement shall be deemed canceled. All deposits made pursuant to this agreement shall be returned to the Purchaser immediately.

4. Sale Contingent on Letters of Intent from Tenants. This Agreement is contingent upon Seller providing Purchaser with letters of intent from at least _____ percent (_____ %) of the tenants whose leases expire within _____ (_____) months after execution of this Agreement, indicating that the tenants intend to remain as tenants in the building. Seller shall provide these letters of intent to Purchaser on or before _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]. If Seller fails to provide a sufficient number of letters by said date, Purchaser shall have the option to terminate this Agreement by giving notice as set forth in Paragraph 2, above. If notice is given, the deposit shall be returned to Purchaser immediately.

5. Type of Deed. The Seller shall convey the premises by means of a _____ deed _____ [type of deed to be used] in proper form for recording. The deed shall include the covenants required by the lien law of the State of _____ [state]. The deed shall be prepared, duly executed, acknowledged and delivered by the Seller to the Purchaser, together with any applicable transfer tax, at the Seller's expense.

6. Title. Seller shall convey fee simple title free and clear of all liens. Seller may convey the real property subject to all zoning laws, environmental laws, any enforceable covenants, conditions, restrictions or easements of record, provided that this does not render title to the real property unmarketable.

7. Seller's Prior Use of Property. Seller hereby represents that he has been the owner of the real property for _____ (_____) years. Seller was the owner at the time the structures presently existing on the premises were constructed. Seller and his tenants have used the real property solely as an office building since initial construction. Neither Seller nor its tenants use any substance which is deemed "hazardous" under federal or state law or regulation in sufficient quantity to trigger the threshold provisions of any such law. Seller represents that the premises are free of any hazardous wastes. Seller makes this representation knowing Purchaser will rely on it in determining whether to purchase the real property.

Purchase acknowledges that Seller has performed no tests or investigations regarding the condition, use or fitness of the building. In the event that Purchaser now or hereafter discovers such a condition, Seller agrees to cooperate in providing any information which he may have which will assist in locating the responsible party.

Seller further represents and warrants to Purchaser that he will not, by any affirmative act or mission, waive or excuse the liability of any other party who may be a "responsible party," as defined by the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act ("CERCLA"), 42 USC § 9601 et seq. or any other federal or state law or regulation, for any cost of remediation of any adverse environmental condition, under any federal or state law or regulation.

In the event Seller waives the liability of any responsible party, Seller will indemnify and hold Purchaser harmless for any loss occasioned by that waiver, including legal fees and consequential damages.

8. Representation of Soundness of Structure. Seller further represents that the structure is structurally sound. The plumbing, heating and electrical systems are in good working order now and shall remain so until transfer of title, reasonable wear and tear excepted. The term "good working order" shall mean that there are no non-functional systems that will cost more than _____ Dollars ($_____) to repair or combinations of items that will cost more than _____ Dollars ($_____) to repair in the aggregate. If any systems or items are determined not to be in good working order, Seller shall repair them at its expense prior to transfer of title.

9. Security Deposits, Rents and Tenant Leases. Seller shall transfer all security deposits to Purchaser at the transfer of title. Seller and Purchaser shall send joint notice to all tenants of such transfer. All base rents shall be adjusted as of the date of transfer of title. Seller shall provide Purchaser with copies of all tenant leases, together with a sworn list of any and all defaults by all tenants pursuant to the terms of said leases. Seller shall be entitled to receive any "added rents," as defined in said leases. (These "added rents" are reimbursements paid to the landlord-Seller for prior years' expenses.)

10. Adjustments for Taxes, Water and Sewer Rents. The parties shall adjust taxes, water rents, sewer rents, and other levies which are a lien against the real property as of the date of transfer of title.

11. Acknowledgment of Real Estate Broker and Payment of Commission. The parties acknowledge that _____ [name] acted as real estate broker and brought about this Agreement. Seller agrees to pay said broker the sum of _____ Dollars ($_____) as a commission, at the time of transfer of title.

12. Time and Place of Transfer of Title. The transfer of title shall take place at the offices of _____ or at such other place as can be mutually agreed upon, on or about _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]. The parties agree that if either party sends notice hereafter that time is of the essence, no less than _____ (_____) weeks' notice shall be given. No such notice may be given until all contingencies contained herein have been satisfied or waived.

14. No Oral Modifications. This Agreement may only be modified by a written amendment signed by all parties. An oral modification shall not be binding on any party.

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.11

FORM 25.11 Confidentiality Agreement

COMMENT

In many cases, the seller will be reluctant to allow the buyer to obtain an environmental report on the property. The seller is concerned that the report will disclose a significant problem and that the buyer will disclose it to one or more third parties which may result in an enforcement action or a lawsuit being filed against the seller. For this reason, a prudent seller that is not certain about the condition of the property will require a confidentiality agreement.

Another approach is for the seller to obtain the report. If the report does not disclose major concerns, the seller can provide it to the buyer. If something major is uncovered, the seller can void the purchase agreement.

Additionally, if a major problem is suspected, the seller's attorney may engage a consultant. If the attorney engages a consultant, the report may not be discoverable in litigation because it is attorney work product and/or subject to attorney client privilege. Applicable civil rules will control.

FORM

CONFIDENTIALITY AGREEMENT

THIS CONFIDENTIALITY AGREEMENT is made this ____ [day] day of _____ [month], ____ [year], at _____ [city], _____ [state], by and between _____ [name] ("Company") and _____ [name] ("Recipient").

WHEREAS, Company has or is about to undertake discussions with Recipient regarding the business opportunity described on Exhibit A (the "Opportunity"); and

WHEREAS, in connection with the Opportunity, Company will make certain disclosures to Recipient and/or allow the Recipient to gather information about the Opportunity, which information the Company does not want made public;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual promises and covenants contained herein, the parties agree as follows:

1. Confidentiality. As a condition to Company furnishing to Recipient the proprietary and confidential information of Company and/or information relating to the Opportunity (herein the "Confidential Information"), Recipient agrees to treat all information obtained from Company or obtained during its investigation, as proprietary business property of Company, whether such information is disclosed or furnished before or after the date of this Agreement. The term "Confidential Information" does not include information which becomes generally available to the public other than as a result of a disclosure by Recipient or by disclosure of a party in violation of Company's rights.
2. Restricted Use. Recipient agrees that the Confidential Information will not be used in any way that is detrimental to Company, and will be kept strictly confidential by Recipient and its representatives; provided, however, that any of the Confidential Information may be disclosed to the representatives of Recipient who need to know such information for a business purpose, it being understood and agreed that such representative shall be informed by Recipient of the confidential nature of the Confidential Information and shall be directed by Recipient to treat such information confidentially, within the parameters set forth in this Agreement. Recipient agrees that it will make use of the Confidential Information only for the purpose contemplated by this Agreement, and will not use the Confidential Information for the purpose of competing with Company or otherwise for its benefit at any time in the future. Recipient agrees that it will not knowingly permit or facilitate such use by any other person or entity without the express prior written consent of Company.
3. Representative. For purposes of this Agreement, a representative means an officer or employee of Recipient, parent, brother/sister, or affiliated company, or a law firm, public accounting firm, or other entity or person (and their employees) who, in the good faith judgment of Recipient needs to have access to some or all of the Confidential Information; provided, however, such representative agrees to be bound by the terms and conditions of this Agreement and the representative agrees to be jointly and severally liable with Recipient to Company for any breach thereof.
4. Disclosure of Discussions. Without the prior written consent of Company, Recipient will not, and will direct its representatives not to, disclose to any person or entity the fact that discussions or negotiations may take place or are taking place concerning a possible transaction between Recipient and Company or that it has a business relationship with Company.
5. Employees. For two (2) years following the date that the business relationship between Company and Recipient shall terminate, Recipient will not solicit any employee of Company, or any employee of an affiliate of Company, directly or indirectly, for the purpose of enticing them to leave their employment with Company or such affiliate, nor will Recipient employ any such employee, either as an employee, independent contractor, consultant, or any other similar employment or service arrangement.
6. Return of Confidential Information. At the request of Company, Recipient shall promptly return to Company all written material containing or reflecting any information contained in the Confidential Information (whether prepared by Company, the Critical Business Partners, or otherwise); Recipient, its employees and its representatives, will not retain any copies, extracts, compilations or other representations or reproductions of the Confidential Information, in whole or in part. Recipient shall thereupon promptly deliver to Company or destroy all documents, memoranda, notes or other writings prepared by or on behalf of Recipient, based on the Confidential Information.

7. Injunctive Relief. Recipient acknowledges that the remedy at law for any breach by it of the terms of this Agreement shall be inadequate and that the damages resulting from such breach are not readily susceptible to being measured in monetary terms. Accordingly, in the event of a breach or threatened breach by Recipient of the terms of this Agreement, Company shall be entitled to immediate injunctive relief and may obtain a temporary order restraining any threatened or further breach. Nothing herein shall be construed as prohibiting Company from pursuing any other remedies available to Company for such breach or threatened breach, including the recovery of damages from Recipient. Recipient further represents that it understands and agrees that the provisions of this Agreement shall be strictly enforced and construed against it. In the event the Recipient violates any legally enforceable provision of this Agreement for which there is a specific time period during which the Recipient is prohibited from taking certain actions or from engaging in certain activities, as set forth in such provision, then, in such event, such violation shall toll the running of such time period from the date of such violation until such violation ceases.

8. Non-Waiver. No failure or delay by Company in exercising any right, power or privilege hereunder will operate as a waiver thereof, nor shall any single or partial exercise thereof preclude any other or further exercise thereof or the exercise of any right, power or privilege hereunder.

9. Production of Confidential Information. In the event that Recipient is required by law to disclose any of the Confidential Information, it is agreed that Recipient will provide Company with prompt notice of such request so that Company may take such action as Company shall deem appropriate, including, without limitation, timely seeking an appropriate protective order and/or waive compliance with the provision of this Agreement.

10. State Law. This Confidentiality Agreement shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of _____ [state].

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have hereunto executed this Confidentiality Agreement on the day and year first above written.

A. ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.13

FORM 25.13 Residential sale agreement--one, two or three family home--sale is contingent upon a general inspection and inspections for radon gas, urea formaldehyde, asbestos and wood boring insects

COMMENT

This is an agreement for the purchase and sale of a one, two or three-family residence. Environmental site assessments are not commonly required as part of a residential sale transaction, since the cost is prohibitive. However, if the property's use was not always primarily residential, or if the house is located near a landfill or commercial site, an environmental site assessment may be warranted.

In addition to a general inspection (i.e. roof, HVAC, etc.), a residential purchaser's major concerns will be with interior environmental conditions. For example, the presence of radon gas in homes has been associated with lung cancer. (Radon gas is a natural, colorless, odorless vapor which emanates from the earth.) In addition, urea formaldehyde insulation has been associated with a variety of unfavorable health conditions. Finally, asbestos, which was long favored as an insulation material, can crumble with age and become airborne, causing lung irritation. Asbestos has also been associated with lung cancer. Inspections for these items will help to insure that the purchaser is buying a refuge from the world and not a potential health hazard.

The final environmental contingency in this agreement is for wood boring insects. This contingency contemplates inspections for such insects as carpenter ants, termites and power post beetles. Each of these insects is capable of doing tremendous damage to the structural integrity of a building. These insects are often in inaccessible areas, such that paneling, aluminum siding and the like may have to be removed and restored for a complete inspection. The contingencies provide permission for such removal and allocate the cost of removal and restoration.

If any of these problems is found to exist, the cost of remediation and repair may vary widely, depending on the nature and severity of the problem, where it is located, etc. The contingencies are structured to allow the purchaser to cancel the contract if any of these problems is found. The parties may modify the agreement to allow for a reduction in purchase price equivalent to the cost of remediation and repair. In the alternative, the seller may perform the remediation and repair, leaving the purchase price unchanged. The theory is that a property with any of these problems is not as valuable as one without them.

FORM

AGREEMENT made this ____ [day] day of _____ [month], ____ [year], between _____ [name], residing at _____ [address] (hereafter collectively known as "Seller"), and _____ [name], residing at _____ [address] (hereafter collectively known as "Purchaser").

WHEREAS, Seller is the owner of a certain parcel of real property commonly known as _____ (hereafter referred to as "real property"); and

WHEREAS, Seller desires to sell and Purchaser desires to purchase said real property,

NOW, in consideration of the mutual promises contained herein, it is agreed as follows:

1. Conveyance and Description of Property. Seller agrees to sell and Purchaser agrees to purchase the real property. The real property is located in the city/town/village of _____ [city] in _____ [county] County, _____ [state]. The size of the real property is _____ (_____) acres and includes a house and _____ (_____) other structures, as follows:

2. Use of Property Complies with Zoning Laws. Seller represents that the use of the real property as a _____ [insert: one, two or three] family residence is in compliance with local zoning ordinances. Seller also represents that he has no knowledge that the conditions on the real property violate any existing environmental protection law.

3. Property May Be Transferred Subject to Covenants, Restrictions and Easements. Seller shall transfer the property subject to any covenants, restrictions and easements of record, provided that such items do not render the title unmarketable. Seller shall provide an Owner's Policy of Title Insurance in the amount of the purchase price to Purchaser.

4. Inspections of Property. Purchaser shall take the real property subject to any condition or state of facts which any inspection or accurate survey may show. All inspections and surveys shall be performed at Purchaser's expense. Purchaser shall provide Seller with a copy of all written inspection reports and the survey.

Purchaser and Seller agree that the following inspections shall be made. Seller agrees to provide reasonable access to the real property to Purchaser and the inspectors for the purpose of making these inspections. This Agreement is contingent upon each inspection showing that the condition does not exist. However, a contingency shall be waived if written notice of the existence of the condition is not given to Seller by _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]. Notice shall be deemed given when mailed by certified mail, return receipt requested. If notice is given, the contract shall be canceled and all deposits made pursuant to this agreement shall be returned to Purchasers immediately.

(a) General inspection: the inspection shall be made by a party which is an expert in residential structures and systems.

(b) Wood boring insects: the inspection shall be made by a certified exterminator. The condition shall be deemed to exist if the exterminator shall find the presence of any wood boring insect or other organism or any damage to the structures on the property caused by wood boring insects or other organisms.

(c) Radon: the inspection shall be performed by _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]. The condition shall be deemed to exist if the test reveals a level of radon gas exceeding _____ (_____) pico curies per liter. Seller agrees to comply with all requirements of the company performing the test, provided that there shall be no monetary cost to Seller to comply.

(d) Asbestos: the inspection shall be performed by a licensed asbestos handler. The condition shall be deemed to exist if any asbestos containing material shall be located within the structures on the premises. The Seller consents to the taking of samples of ceiling material, pipe insulation, and boiler or furnace insulation. Such samples shall be taken as inconspicuously as possible in the living spaces of the structures.

(e) Urea Formaldehyde Insulation: The inspection shall be performed by _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]. The condition shall be deemed to exist if any urea formaldehyde insulation is located in or on the structures. The Seller consents to the temporary removal of exterior siding and interior paneling, as deemed necessary by the inspector, for the purpose of the inspection. All materials removed shall be restored to their prior condition, all at Purchaser's expense, at the conclusion of the inspection.

Except as set forth above, the Purchaser shall accept the structures and any personal property, fixtures or equipment located in or on the structures in "as is" condition on the date of this Agreement, subject to reasonable wear to the date of transfer. Seller shall bear the expense of any other damage which shall occur prior to transfer of title or possession, whichever event shall occur first. Purchaser shall bear the risk thereafter. Purchaser shall be entitled to inspect the premises within _____ hours prior to the transfer of title. If possession is granted to Purchaser prior to transfer of title, then prior to accepting possession, Purchaser shall provide to Seller a certificate of insurance naming Seller as an additional insured in at least the amount of the purchase price.

5. Personal Property/Fixtures Included in Sale. The following items of personal property and/or fixtures are included in this sale: _____ [insert items].

6. Personal Property/Fixtures Excluded from Sale. The following fixtures and/or items of personal property are excluded from this sale: _____ [insert items].

These items shall be removed from the premises prior to the transfer of title. Failure to do so shall waive Seller's right to remove said items.

7. Sale Contingent Upon Purchaser's Obtaining Mortgage. This Agreement shall be contingent upon Purchaser obtaining a commitment to lend from a lender for a _____ (_____) fixed rate mortgage loan in the amount of _____ Dollars ($_____) for a term of _____ (_____) years at an interest rate of _____ (_____) percent per annum, with no more than _____ (_____) "points." This contingency shall be deemed waived unless Purchaser shall notify Seller in writing, certified mail, return receipt requested, on or before _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year], of the inability to obtain a commitment to lend from a lender for such a mortgage. Purchaser agrees to use best efforts to secure such a commitment to lend within the specified time period. However, if Purchaser so notifies, the contract shall be deemed canceled. All deposits made pursuant to this Agreement shall be returned to Purchaser immediately.

8. Deed. Seller shall provide Purchaser with a _____ [insert type of deed] deed. Seller shall provide proof of payment of any transfer tax thereon at the time of transfer of title.

A. ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.14

FORM 25.14 Residential sale agreement--condominium--representation that purchaser shall have use of all waterways located on condominium property--notice of nearby industrial site

COMMENT

This agreement is for the purchase and sale of a residential condominium unit. It should be remembered that one aspect of condominium ownership is that, in addition to one's own unit, one obtains an undivided interest in "common areas." Such common areas are defined by the condominium declaration and plan. Common areas often include such things as hallways, staircases, yards, basements, parking areas and swimming pools. In this particular form, streams are located on the premises as part of the recreational area. A homeowners' association has been established to maintain access to the area, insure the area, pay taxes and maintain the property. The purchaser is guaranteed access to the recreational area and is required to make payments to support the homeowners' association.

This particular condominium is located near an industrial site. The developer has disclosed this information and the steps taken to insure water purity. The purchaser is on notice of potential problems and must take any steps he deems appropriate to protect his interest. In any event, it is important that the purchaser is making an informed decision.

FORM

AGREEMENT made this ____ [day] day of _____ [month] ____ [year], between _____ [name], a corporation existing under the laws of the State of _____ [state], with offices for the transaction of business at _____ [address] (hereafter referred to as "Seller"), and _____ [name], residing at _____ [address] (hereafter referred to as "Purchaser").

WITNESSETH:

WHEREAS, Seller has constructed _____ [insert total number of condominium units] condominium units on the real property and premises commonly known as Number _____ Western Avenue, in the City of _____ [city], State of _____ [state], more particularly described in Schedule "A" annexed hereto; and

WHEREAS, Seller has delivered to Purchaser a copy of the Plan of Condominium Ownership, the By-Laws, Rules and Regulations, the Condominium Declaration, the Declaration of Restrictions, and the floor plans of the condominium; and

WHEREAS, the originals of said documents set forth above were filed with the _____ [county] County Clerk on _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]; and

WHEREAS, Purchaser desires to purchase Unit No. _____ of the condominium,

NOW, in consideration of the mutual promises contained herein, it is agreed as follows:

1. Conveyance of Property. Seller agrees to sell and Purchaser agrees to purchase Unit No. _____ of the condominium, as designated on the floor plans which were duly filed with the _____ [county] County Clerk, and also designated as City of _____ [city], County of _____ [county] tax map number _____, together with an undivided _____ percent (_____ %) interest in the common areas. Said common areas are designated on the floor plans and more particularly described in the Plan of Condominium.

2. Purchase Price. The purchase price is the sum of _____ Dollars ($_____). The purchase price shall be paid as follows:

(a) _____ Dollars ($_____) deposit upon execution of this Agreement;

(b) _____ Dollars ($_____) further deposit upon satisfaction or waiver of all contingencies contained herein;

(c) _____ Dollars ($_____) further deposit upon selection of all options to be installed;

(d) _____ Dollars ($_____) upon transfer of title.

All payments shall be made in certified or bank funds.

3. Deposits to be Held in Escrow. All deposits shall be held in an escrow account until transfer of title or termination of this Agreement. The escrow account shall bear interest, which will be credited against the purchase price at the time of transfer of title. The escrow account will be held by _____ [name], who shall be entitled to a management fee of _____ (_____ %) of the amount of interest earned by the deposit. Seller shall be entitled to change escrow manager at any time to any unrelated third party. Seller shall provide notice to Purchaser of such change within _____ (_____) days after such change occurs. Any escrow manager engaged by Seller shall be bonded.

4. Common Waterways. The above described condominium property contains areas designated on the filed map as "Common Waterways." These areas are intended for use by the Purchaser herein in common with all other owners of the condominium property pursuant to the terms of a certain "Declaration of Restrictions," which has been filed in the office of the _____ [county] County Clerk in book _____ of Deeds, at Page _____. Use shall be limited to the Purchaser, his immediate family and guests. The common waterways shall not be available to the general public.

The rights granted herein and pursuant to the above described Declaration of Restrictions shall be appurtenant to the condominium property transferred herein and shall run with the land.

The "Common Waterways" shall be managed by a Homeowners' Association, as described in the Condominium Offering Plan and Declaration of Restrictions. The Homeowners' Association shall be entitled to charge a period fee for use and/or annual fee to cover annual costs of taxes, maintenance, repair, supervision, insurance, and administration. Such fees, when levied, shall become a lien against Purchaser's unit. Failure to pay the fee when due shall entitle the Homeowners' Association to foreclose its lien.

5. Notice of Industrial Complex. Notice is hereby given to the Purchaser that the Condominium Property is adjacent to the _____ [name] Industrial Complex. The wells for the condominium property are located approximately one hundred (100) yards from the boundary with the _____ [name] Industrial Complex. An environmental site review was performed, prior to obtaining site plan approval by the Town of _____ [town]. Said review found no adverse impact on the condominium property at that time. The _____ [state] Public Service Commission permit to operate the wells requires monthly monitoring of water quality so long as the wells are used for drinking water. However, no other environmental testing or monitoring on the condominium property will be undertaken or ongoing.

6. Sale Contingent on Purchaser's Obtaining Mortgage. This Agreement shall be contingent upon Purchaser obtaining a commitment to lend from a lender for a fixed rate mortgage loan in the amount of _____ Dollars ($_____) for a term of _____ (_____) years and at an interest rate of _____ percent (_____%) per annum, with no more than _____ (_____) "points." This contingency shall be deemed waived unless Purchaser shall notify Seller in writing, certified mail, return receipt requested, on or before _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year], of the inability to obtain a commitment to lend from a lender for such a mortgage. Purchaser agrees to use best efforts to secure such a commitment to lend within the specified time period. If Purchaser so notifies, the contract shall be deemed canceled. All deposits made pursuant to this Agreement shall be returned to Purchaser immediately.

7. Deed. Seller shall deliver to Purchaser a Special Warranty Deed. This deed shall convey the condominium unit together with the _____ percent (_____%) interest in the common areas. A copy of the prototype deed is included in the Condominium Plan. The deed shall be properly executed and acknowledged for recording. Purchaser shall pay any documentary stamps or transfer tax required in the State of _____ [state], as set forth in the Condominium Plan. Seller shall provide proof of compliance with the requirements of the real property gains tax laws.

8. Seller to Satisfy All Construction Loan Mortgage Liens. Seller shall cause all construction loan mortgage liens and any other liens to be satisfied or released as to Purchaser's unit, at or prior to the transfer of title. Seller may use funds to be received from Purchaser for such releases or satisfactions, if satisfactory arrangements are made with Purchaser's title insurance company.

9. Seller to Deliver Marketable Title. Seller shall deliver marketable title to Purchaser, subject to the Plan of Condominium Ownership, Condominium Declaration, By-Laws, Rules and Regulations, Floor Plans of the condominium, Declaration of Restrictions, any enforceable covenants, restrictions, easements of record, zoning laws or environmental laws, provided that these do not render title to the unit unmarketable. Purchaser agrees to be bound by the foregoing as recorded in the _____ County Clerk's office.

10. Certificate of Occupancy. Purchaser shall not be required to accept transfer of title until a certificate of occupancy has been issued by the City of _____ [city]. When the certificate of occupancy has been issued, Seller shall give written notice to Purchaser. Purchaser shall be required to accept transfer of title within _____ (_____) days thereafter. If Purchaser fails to accept transfer of title within said period, Purchaser shall pay, per diem, interest on the balance of the purchase price from the date of the issuance of the certificate of occupancy until transfer of title occurs, calculated at an annual interest rate of _____ [name] Bank's prime rate, plus _____ percent (_____%).

11. Title Insurance. Seller currently has title insurance through _____ [name] Title Company. If Purchaser intends to use his own title company, _____ [name] Title Co. will provide owners and lender title insurance to Purchaser at a bulk rate, which may be less than the rate from other title companies.

12. Purchaser to Execute Power of Attorney. At the transfer of title and simultaneously with the delivery to Purchaser of the deed conveying the Condominium Unit, Purchaser shall execute and acknowledge a power of attorney in the form set forth in the Condominium Plan. The Purchaser shall deliver such power of attorney to Seller.

Part IV. FORMS

A. ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.15

FORM 25.15 Residential sale agreement--shares of a cooperative apartment--representation that seller shall provide purchaser with copy of environmental assessment obtained by cooperative board of managers

COMMENT

This agreement is for the purchase of shares in a cooperative apartment building. The shares are allocated to a specific apartment.

This particular cooperative is located in a renovated warehouse building. The sponsor who converted the warehouse into apartments provided the board of managers of the cooperative with an environmental site assessment. This environmental site assessment was performed before the sponsor purchased and converted the warehouse into apartments.

The purchaser has negotiated a contingency that will allow him to review the environmental site assessment. He may cancel the agreement within ten days thereafter. The purchaser need not give any reason for the cancellation, as long as notice of cancellation is given in a timely manner.

The purchaser does not need to obtain an update of the environmental site assessment because the cooperative plan, by-laws, cooperative rules and regulations permit only residential uses of the property. Hence, other residents of the building have only been using their apartments for residential purposes, not for commercial or industrial reasons that might necessitate an updating of the environmental site assessment.

The purchaser does not need to obtain termite, radon, or other similar inspections because he does not own the building (or, for that matter, his apartment); rather, he owns shares in the entity which owns the building. It is the responsibility of the board of managers to monitor the building for these problems.

FORM

AGREEMENT made this ____ [day] day of _____ [month], ____ [year], between _____ [name], residing at _____ [address] (hereafter referred to as "Seller"), and _____ [name], residing at _____ [address] (hereafter referred to as "Purchaser").

NOW, in consideration of the mutual promises contained herein, it is agreed as follows:

1. Conveyance of Shares. Seller hereby agrees to sell all _____ (_____) shares of the _____ [name] Cooperative Apartment to Purchaser for the sum of _____ Dollars ($ _____), to be paid as follows:

(b) _____ Dollars ($ _____) upon transfer of title, in certified or bank funds.

Upon payment in full, Seller shall deliver his/her _____ (_____) shares of the cooperative apartment.

2. Sale Contingent on Approval from Cooperative Board. This Agreement is contingent upon Purchaser receiving approval of the sale from the Cooperative Board of Managers. Purchaser agrees to provide all personal and financial information requested by the Cooperative Board of Managers. Purchaser agrees to meet with the Cooperative Board of Managers if so requested. Purchaser may elect to cancel this agreement if approval is not received on or before _____ [month] ____ [day] ____ [year]. The environmental assessment shall be provided to Purchaser on or before _____ [month] ____ [day] ____ [year]. Purchaser shall have _____ (_____) days from receipt of the environmental assessment to cancel this Agreement. Notice of cancellation shall be given to Seller in person or by certified mail, return receipt requested. Notice shall be sent on or before the expiration of the tenth (10th) day. If Purchaser notified Seller of cancellation, Purchaser's deposit shall be refunded immediately, and this Agreement shall be of no further force and effect. If Purchaser does not timely notify Seller, this Agreement shall become binding subject to any other contingencies which may be contained therein.

4. Purchaser Provided with Copies of Cooperative Plan, By-laws, etc. The parties acknowledge that Seller has provided Purchaser with a copy of the Cooperative Plan, By-Laws, and Cooperative Rules and Regulations. Purchaser acknowledges that he/she has had a full and fair opportunity to read the foregoing documents and review them with legal counsel of his/her choice. Purchaser has not relied on any oral representations, warranties or statements of any kind in determining whether to purchase the shares of this cooperative apartment.

5. Residency of Purchaser. Purchaser represents that he/she is a resident of the State of _____ [state].

6. Sale Contingent on Purchaser's Obtaining Mortgage. This Agreement shall be contingent upon Purchaser obtaining a commitment to lend from a lender for a fixed rate mortgage loan in the amount of _____ Dollars ($_____) for a term of _____ (_____) years and at an interest rate of _____ percent (_____%) per annum, with no more than _____ (_____) "points." Chapter 25 ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

Part IV. FORMS

A. ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.16

FORM 25.16 Representation by seller that premises have never been used for storage or disposal of hazardous waste

COMMENT

In this clause, the seller represents that the premises have never been used for storage or disposal of hazardous waste. The seller also agrees to be liable for all damages suffered by the purchaser in the event that this representation is incorrect. The clause should be used in situations where the purchaser, as a prerequisite to obtaining financing, must either provide the lender with an environmental site assessment establishing that the premises are "clean," or with the type of representation found below. Also, the clause states that purchaser's lender is a third party beneficiary of the clause.

It should be remembered that the representation and indemnification are only as good as the financial ability of the seller to reimburse the purchaser for losses which may occur if the seller is either mistaken in his belief that the property is free of hazardous waste, or makes a deliberate misrepresentation. The losses may include such things as clean-up costs under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act ("CERCLA"), 42 USC § 9601 et seq., loss of use of the premises, and damage to person or property.

FORM

Seller hereby represents and warrants, which representations and warranties will survive the transfer of title to Purchaser, that the subject premises have never been used for the storage or disposal of hazardous waste. The term "hazardous waste," as used herein, shall mean substances deemed hazardous pursuant to the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act ("CERCLA"), 42 USC § 9601 et seq.

This representation is made to induce Purchaser to enter into this contract for purchase of the subject premises. It is understood by the parties hereto that Purchaser's financing is contingent upon Seller making this representation. It is further understood that Purchaser's loan documents will provide that the loan will be due and payable in full if evidence of hazardous waste is discovered on the subject premises. Seller agrees to be liable for all damages, including economic and consequential damages, in the event that the representation and warranty contained in this section are inaccurate. Finally, Seller acknowledges that Purchaser's lender is a third party beneficiary of the foregoing representation and warranty.

FORM 25.17 Representation by seller that hazardous waste has been properly removed

COMMENT

This form should be used when the parties are aware that hazardous waste has been located and removed from the property.

The concerns of the parties are fourfold:

- (1) that the waste has been completely removed;
- (2) that removal has been performed in compliance with all state and federal laws;
- (3) that the waste has been properly disposed of; and
- (4) that all agencies with jurisdiction have been notified and have approved of the proceedings.

This representation may assist the purchaser to establish an innocent purchaser defense under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act ("CERCLA"), 42 USC § 9601 et seq., if a problem arises later. Furthermore, a prudent purchaser may want to obtain a copy of the closure and/or clean-up report from the contractor that cleaned up the hazardous waste indicating that the property is clean. Also, some states allow for covenants not to sue which are issued by various governmental agencies. Covenants not to sue is the agreement of the government that a condition has been remedied and that it will not pursue any more claims with respect to that condition.

FORM

Seller hereby represents and warrants that the subject premises formerly contained approximately _____ (_____) barrels of _____ [name], a substance deemed "hazardous" under various state and federal laws and regulations (the "Hazardous Substance"). Seller further represents and warrants that the Hazardous Substance has been removed from the subject premises. Said Hazardous Substance has been packaged, transported and disposed of in strict compliance with all federal, state and municipal laws, regulations and policies. These representations and warranties will survive the transfer of legal title to the Purchaser.

Seller agrees to provide purchaser with copies of all shipping invoices and uniform hazardous waste manifests evidencing proper transfer of the Hazardous Substance.

Seller agrees to indemnify and hold purchaser harmless for any loss including, but not limited to, damage to person or property or economic loss, including defense costs, and consequential damages arising out of the packaging, transportation and disposal of the Hazardous Substance.

FORM 25.18 Representation by seller that it has complied with all environmental laws--short form

COMMENT

This form should be used in every agreement for the sale of real property. If the seller is unable or unwilling to make such a representation, the purchaser should make a thorough investigation, including an environmental site assessment, before obligating himself to purchase the property. The representation is very limited, because it only relates to the period of seller's ownership.

FORM

Seller hereby represents and warrants that, during its period of ownership, seller, its agents and employees complied with all federal, state and municipal environmental laws, regulations and policies as such relate to the subject premises. The representations and warranties will survive transfer of title from Seller to Purchaser.

Seller agrees to indemnify and hold purchaser harmless for any loss including, but not limited to, damage to person or property or economic loss, including defense costs, arising out of any violation of environmental law which occurred during Seller's ownership of the subject premises, which violation was caused by the act or omission of Seller, its agents or employees.

COMMENT

In the following clause, the seller makes a long series of representations for the benefit of the purchaser. These representations include, among others, that the seller has complied with all federal, state and local environmental laws and regulations affecting the subject property. FORM

Seller makes the following representations and warranties to Purchaser, which representations and warranties shall survive the transfer of title from Seller to Purchaser:

FORM 25.20 Disclosure by seller of condition of premises--environmental accident previously occurred on premises

COMMENT

This form is designed to be used where an adverse environmental event has already occurred. The seller reveals all the information which he has regarding the nature of the event, the steps taken to remediate the condition, and that notice was given to federal and state authorities.

The seller also disclaims any further knowledge and leaves to the purchaser the responsibility of discovering what remaining damage there may be. Thus, the purchaser should make the sale contingent upon the results of an environmental site assessment. The assessment will allow the purchaser to discover whether any damage still exists and make an informed decision as to whether to proceed with the transfer of title.

FORM

Seller hereby represents and warrants that it has been the owner of the subject premises for _____ (_____) years. Seller was the owner at the time the structures presently existing on the premises were constructed. Seller has used the premises for the manufacture of _____ [name]. During the course of the manufacturing process, _____ [name] was used [or created or emitted]. This substance is considered hazardous under federal and state law. This substance is stored in fifty-five gallon drums which were removed from the premises on a weekly basis. In _____ [month] of _____ [year] _____ (_____) drums were damaged and leaked _____ (_____) gallons of the substance into the soil [or building].

Pursuant to state and federal regulations, the following steps were taken to contain the spill and remediate the damage:

Federal and state authorities were notified pursuant to law and monitored the containment and remediation process. Seller will provide to Purchaser copies of all records maintained by Seller, pursuant to law, regarding the damage containment and remediation process.

Seller believes it possible that traces of the substance may remain in the soil in the area of the leak. Traces of the substance may have reached to other areas as well. Seller has no knowledge of the amount of the substance which may be present or the distance to which it may have reached.

Seller makes this representation knowing Purchaser will rely on it in determining whether to purchase the subject premises. The representations made herein will survive the closing and the transfer of title of the property to Purchaser.

This provision can be used in a purchase agreement by a seller to limit the seller's exposure on environmental representations and warranties. Obviously, this provision may also be used to limit a seller's exposure with respect to any representation or warranty. This provision is very detailed and lengthy. In some cases, this limitation or disclaimer may be longer than the actual representations and warranties made by a purchaser.

b. Knowledge of Purchaser. Seller shall have no liability to Purchaser for the falsity of any representation or the breach of any warranty to the extent that Purchaser, or any employee, contractor or agent of Purchaser ("Purchaser's Agent"), (i) had knowledge of the falsity of such representation or of the breach of such warranty when made; or (ii) fails to give written notice to Seller of the breach as soon as Purchaser or Purchaser's Agent acquires such knowledge.

Seller's total obligation to indemnify Purchaser with respect to the breach of any representation or warranty of Seller under Section _____ shall in no event exceed a maximum amount of _____ Dollars ($_____).

d. Expiration Period of Representations and Warranties. Seller's representations and warranties under Section _____ shall survive for _____ (_____) year(s) after the closing.

e. Limitation on Damages. In no event shall Seller be liable under Section _____ for incidental, special, exemplary or consequential damages, including, but not limited to, loss of profits or revenue, interference with business operations; loss of tenants; lenders; investors or buyers; diminution in value of the Property; or inability to use the Property.

f. Knowledge of Seller. Any representations or warranties made to "the knowledge of Seller" or to the "best of Seller's knowledge" or words of like import shall be deemed to be breached only if the most senior management official assigned full time to Seller's facility at the Property at the date of this Agreement had actual knowledge of the falsity of such representation or of the breach of such warranty.

FORM 25.25 Multiple disclaimers by seller

COMMENT

In the following clause, the seller of real property, in an effort to protect itself against future lawsuits by the purchaser, makes a series of disclaimers. First, the seller states that it has no knowledge of the uses to which prior owners put the property, or whether any prior owner brought onto the property or produced there any hazardous substances or wastes. Second, the seller makes no representation to the purchaser regarding the current condition of the premises, or whether the premises are presently in compliance with all federal, state and local environmental laws and regulations. Last, disclaimers in contracts should be as conspicuous as possible so that there can be absolutely no misunderstanding as to the meaning of the provision.

FORM

Seller hereby makes the following disclaimers to purchaser:

- (1) Seller has no knowledge of the uses to which prior owners put the subject premises.
- (2) Seller has no knowledge of whether any prior owner brought upon the subject premises or generated thereon any hazardous substance or hazardous waste.
- (3) Seller has no knowledge of whether any prior owner created any adverse environmental condition upon the subject premises.
- (4) Seller makes no representations or warranties to purchaser regarding the current condition of the subject premises.

(5) Seller makes no representations or warranties to purchaser that the subject premises are in full compliance with all environmental laws and regulations, whether federal, state or local.

(6) Purchaser is not relying upon any information obtained from Seller, either express or implied and Purchaser hereby acknowledges that it has fully investigated the condition, use and fitness of the premises and that it accepts the premises in their "AS IS," "WHERE IS" condition, WITH ALL FAULTS.

COMMENT

If the purchaser has been a long-standing tenant of the premises, the purchaser may have more information with respect to the premises than the seller. This may be especially true when the seller is simply an investor and has never occupied the premises.

FORM

The parties acknowledge that Buyer is in possession of the Premises under the Lease and that Buyer may have more information regarding the Premises than Seller. Buyer further acknowledges that neither Seller nor its employees, officers, directors, representatives, agents, attorneys, accountants, consultants, successors or assigns (such employees and others being collectively referred to as "Related Parties"), makes any representations, warranties or guaranties, express or implied, oral or written, past, present or future, with respect to the physical condition, including, without limitation, with respect to (i) the structural integrity of any improvements; (ii) the conformity of the improvements to any plans or specifications for the Premises including, but not limited to, any plans and specifications that may have been or which may be provided to Buyer; (iii) the conformity of the Premises to past, current or future applicable zoning or building code requirements; (iv) the existence of soil instability, past soil repairs, soil additions or conditions of soil fill; (v) the sufficiency of any undershoring; (vi) the sufficiency of any drainage; (vii) whether the Premises are located wholly or partially in a flood plane or a flood hazard boundary or similar area; (viii) any other matter affecting the stability or integrity of the land, or any improvements; (ix) the fitness or suitability of the Premises for Buyer's intended use; (x) the ability to operate the Premises for any particular purpose; (xi) revenues or projected revenues from the operation of the Premises; (xii) the potential for further development of the Premises; (xiii) title to or the boundaries of the Premises and the existence of and/or the extent of any liens, encumbrances, easements or leases affecting the Premises; or (xiv) the presence of toxic wastes, hazardous materials or asbestos in, on or about the Premises or in the vicinity of the Premises (collectively, the "Premises Conditions").

Buyer also acknowledges that any information or reports, whether written or oral, pertaining to the Premises, any and all records and other documents pertaining to the use and occupancy of the Premises, the cost and expenses of maintenance thereof, and any and all other matters concerning the Premises Conditions, or other attributes or aspects of the Premises Conditions and improvements that Buyer deems relevant have been examined by Buyer to its satisfaction prior to the execution hereof, and neither Seller, nor any of the Related Parties, has verified the accuracy of any statements or other information therein contained or the qualifications of the persons preparing such information, and they do not warrant the accuracy, completeness or content of any information contained therein, including, without limitation, compliance of the Premises with Environmental Laws (as hereinafter defined) in any way.

Neither Seller nor any of the Related Parties shall be responsible for any failure by Buyer to investigate the Premises.

Buyer shall accept the Premises in an "AS IS," "WHERE IS" condition "WITH ALL FAULTS" as of the date of the execution of this Agreement, subject to reasonable use, wear and tear and natural deterioration between execution of this Agreement and the Closing, and, except as otherwise expressly set forth in this Agreement, without any express or implied warranty as to the physical condition of the Premises or its compliance with applicable laws. Buyer expressly assumes the risk of any such defects within the Premises and its non-compliance with any applicable laws. Buyer further acknowledges that it has made such investigation of the condition of the Premises as Buyer deems necessary or advisable and is relying solely upon its own investigation of such condition and not upon any statement or opinion by Seller or any Related Parties except as specifically set forth in this Agreement.

Seller makes no warranties, either express or implied, as to the environmental condition of the Premises or any environmental matters related in any way to any past or present operations at the Premises including, without limitation, violation of or noncompliance with any law, regulation, rule or requirement of law or regulation (whether now existing or hereafter enacted or adopted) of the United States, any other country or any state, municipality or other subdivision thereof relating to hazardous wastes, hazardous materials or to the pollution or protection of the environment (including, without limitation, ambient air, surface waters, ground water, lands, sub-surface strata and cultural properties) or permits, licenses or registrations issued thereunder ("Environmental Laws").

In order to induce the purchaser to make the investment, one of the other existing shareholders is willing to indemnify and hold harmless the purchaser for any pre-existing environmental matter.

The agreement provides a definition of the matters for which purchaser can seek indemnification. It also allows the guarantor the right to replace its indemnity obligation with a bond or insurance.

FORM

THIS ENVIRONMENTAL LIABILITY AGREEMENT (the "Agreement") is made and entered into as this ____ [day] day of ____ [month], ____ [year] by and among ____ [name], a(n) ____ [state] corporation ("Guarantor"); ____ [name], a(n) ____ [state] corporation ("Transferee"); and ____ [name], a(n) ____ [state] corporation ("Purchaser;" hereinafter, Transferee and Purchaser, together, the "Indemnified Parties");

WHEREAS, pursuant to the Purchase Agreement, Purchaser has agreed to purchase and Guarantor has agreed to transfer a _____ percent (_____ %) interest in Transferee upon the closing of the transactions contemplated by the Purchase Agreement;

NOW, THEREFORE, to induce Purchaser to become a member of Transferee and to consummate the transactions contemplated by the Purchase Agreement, and with knowledge that Purchaser intends to rely upon the certifications and undertakings set forth herein, and for other good and valuable consideration, the sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged, the parties hereby agree as follows:

1. Capitalized Terms. Capitalized terms used herein and not otherwise defined herein shall have the respective meanings ascribed to such terms in the Operating Agreement of _____ [name] (the "Operating Agreement").

2. Environmental Indemnity. Guarantor hereby agrees to indemnify, defend and hold the Indemnified Parties harmless from any and all liabilities, losses, claims, costs, fines, penalties, costs or charges (including all costs of investigation, monitoring, removal, restoration or permit acquisition) and expenses, including reasonable attorneys' fees, arising from any environmental conditions caused by Hazardous Materials or Wastes existing on or under the Property prior to the date title to the Property was acquired by Transferee on _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year].

For purposes hereof, "Hazardous Materials or Wastes" means any hazardous or toxic materials, pollutants, chemicals, petroleum or petroleum products, or contaminants, including, without limitation, asbestos, polychlorinated biphenyls and asbestos or all materials defined as hazardous wastes or substances under any local, state or federal laws, rules or regulations.

3. Scope of Indemnity. It is understood and agreed that the foregoing undertaking of Guarantor to indemnify and hold harmless the Indemnified Parties shall arise only upon the assertion against the Indemnified Parties of any claim relating to the presence of Hazardous Materials or Wastes upon the Property introduced onto or under the Property before title to the Property was acquired by Transferee on _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year].

4. Substitute Bond, Insurance or Other Arrangement. 5. Substitution by Certification. At Guarantor's sole cost and expense, Guarantor or its representatives, on behalf of Transferee, may seek and apply for a certification by the State of _____ [state] that any enforcement action against the Property, any facility on the Property, or any part thereof, shall not be pursued by any governmental authorities with respect to Hazardous Materials or Wastes. Such certification shall release Guarantor from any and all indemnification obligations provided for in this Agreement; provided, however, such release shall be effective (i) solely with respect to the Property or such portion thereof that is the subject of such certification; and (ii) solely with respect to the extent that liability to governmental authorities or other parties is foreclosed by such certification.

6. Cooperation of Purchaser. Purchaser agrees to cooperate fully with Guarantor and Transferee in any environmental clean up or remediation that may be appropriate or required by any governmental authority or as determined by Guarantor, including the provision of any necessary consents for the testing of soil and water on the Property, access to any records stored on the Property and any other action as may be requested for the maintenance of insurance or any governmental certification necessary or useful for the operation of the Property.

7. Prospective Purchase Agreement. Purchase agrees to fully cooperate in the development of any prospective purchaser agreement, which shall limit the ability of regulatory authorities to pursue Guarantor or Transferee for environmental matters, and which is permissible or may be permissible in the future under the laws of the State of _____ [state]; provided, however, guarantor shall pay any and all costs and expenses associated with said prospective purchaser agreement.

8. Third Party Claims.

(i) Notification and Defense Rights. If the Indemnified Parties receive written notice of the assertion of any claim or of the commencement of any action or proceeding by any entity who is not a party to this Agreement (a "Third Party Claim") against or affecting the Indemnified Parties, if such assertion were presumed to be true (regardless of the actual outcome), for which Guarantor could be obligated to provide indemnification under this Agreement as a result of or in connection with such claim, action or proceeding, the Indemnified Parties will give Guarantor reasonably prompt written notice thereof, but in any event no later than _____ (_____) days after receipt of such written notice of such Third Party Claim; provided, however, that the failure of the Indemnified Parties to give such notice shall only affect the rights of Guarantor under the provisions of this Paragraph 8 to the extent that the Guarantor is actually prejudiced by such failure. Guarantor shall defend such Third Party Claim at Guarantor's sole expense and by Guarantor's own counsel. The Indemnified Parties will have the right to participate in the defense of any Third Party Claim assisted by counsel of its own choosing at the Indemnified Parties' sole expense. Guarantor and the Indemnified Parties will cooperate with each other in good faith in such defense. However, in the event the Indemnified Parties determine to participate in the defense of a claim, Guarantor, or its counsel, shall make all significant decisions relating to the defense, settlement or compromise of any such claim (subject to and in accordance with Paragraph 8(ii)).

(ii) Settlement. In the event there is a dispute between or among Guarantor or any of the Indemnified Parties concerning whether a Third Party Claim should be contested, settled or compromised, it shall be settled, compromised or contested, in accordance with the next succeeding sentences. In the event that Guarantor or the Indemnified parties have reached a good faith, bona fide settlement agreement or compromise, subject only to approval hereunder, with any claimant regarding a matter which may be the subject of indemnification hereunder and desire to settle on the basis of such agreement or compromise, such party who desires to so settle or compromise shall notify the other party in writing of its desire setting forth the terms of such settlement or compromise (the "Notice of Settlement"). The Third Party Claim may be settled or compromised on such basis unless within _____ (_____) days of the receipt of the Notice of Settlement, the party who issued the Notice of Settlement receives a notice from the other party of its desire to continue to contest the matter (the "Notice to Contest") and, in such case:

(x) should the Indemnified Parties deliver a Notice to Contest, the claim shall be so contested and the liability of Guarantor shall be limited as provided in clause (z) below;

(y) If the settlement or compromise could result in a claim for indemnification being made against Guarantor and if Guarantor delivers the Notice to Contest, the Claim shall be so contested and the liability of the Indemnified Parties shall be limited as provided in clause (z) below; and

(z) If a matter is contested as provided in clauses (x) or (y) above and is later adjudicated, settled, compromised or otherwise disposed of and such adjudication, compromise, settlement or disposition results in a liability, loss, damage or injury in excess of the amount for which one party desired previously to settle the matter, then the liability of such party shall be limited to such lesser proposed settlement amount and the party contesting the matter shall be solely responsible for the amount in excess of such lesser proposed settlement amount.

9. Notice of Facts Forming Basis for Claim. A notice of facts that are the basis of an indemnification claim under Paragraphs 8, 9 and 10 shall specify in reasonable detail (a) the nature of the claim, (b) if known, the approximate date of the claim and the amount or an estimate of the amount of the claim, and (c) the basis upon which the claim for indemnification is made. The Indemnified Parties shall undertake in good faith to notify Guarantor within a reasonable time after concluding that they have a basis for an indemnification claim, but failure to give such notice shall not prejudice the Indemnified Parties' rights so long as the notice is given within the time periods specified in Paragraph 8(i), except to the extent that Guarantor is materially prejudiced by such failure.

10. Recovery by the Indemnified Parties. The amount of any indemnified loss hereunder shall be reduced by the amount, if any, of the recovery actually received by the Indemnified Parties with respect to such indemnified loss (net of any out-of-pocket collection costs) under applicable insurance policies or from persons or entities not parties to this Agreement (not including any successor in interest or assign of any party hereto). In the event such recovery is received by either of the Indemnified Parties after it receives payment or other credit under this Agreement with respect to an indemnified loss (an "Indemnity Payment"), then such Indemnified Party shall promptly pay to Guarantor the lesser of (i) the amount of the recovery actually received, less out-of-pocket costs incurred in obtaining such recovery, or (ii) the amount of the Indemnity Payment made by Guarantor to the Indemnified Parties with respect to such Indemnified loss. Subject to the foregoing, in the event that a claim against an insurance carrier or other third party is available in connection with a matter subject to indemnification hereunder, and such claim against the insurance carrier or other third party has not been collected by the Indemnified Parties at the time the Indemnity Payment with respect to the indemnified matter is made, then the Indemnified Parties shall assign such claim to Guarantor (to the extent the Indemnity Payment made by Guarantor to the Indemnified Parties) as a condition to the payment of such indemnity claim by the Indemnified Parties; provided, however, if such claim is not assignable under applicable law or the terms of any insurance policy or other contract, the Indemnified Parties shall attempt in good faith to use its best efforts to collect such claim for the benefit of Guarantor, but at the expense of Guarantor (to the extent of such Indemnity Payment made by Guarantor to the Indemnified Parties). Notwithstanding anything to the contrary, the terms of this Paragraph 10 shall apply to the extent such provisions would operate to invalidate or otherwise prejudice any claim for insurance or against any third party.

11. Change, Waiver, Discharge or Termination. No provision of this Agreement may be changed, waived, discharged or terminated verbally or by any other means except by an instrument in writing signed by the party against whom enforcement of the change, waiver, discharge or termination is sought.

12. Successors and Assigns. Except as herein provided, this Agreement shall be binding upon each of the parties hereto and each of the parties' successors and assigns and shall inure to the benefit of each of the parties hereto and each of the parties' successors and assigns. The indemnity and hold harmless agreement of the Guarantor hereunder shall be binding on all successors in interest of Guarantor.

13. Choice of Law. This Agreement and the rights and obligations of the parties hereunder shall in all respect be governed by, and construed and enforced in accordance with, the laws of the State of _____ [state] and without reference to the choice of law provisions thereof.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the undersigned have executed this Agreement as of the ____ [day] day of _____ [month], ____ [year].

FORM 25.32 Purchaser releases seller from liability--clause designed to protect seller

COMMENT

In this clause, the purchaser grants seller, as well as seller's successors and assigns, a full release from any claims which the purchaser could bring against the seller following the purchaser's discovery of an adverse environmental condition. However, the release does not extend to any adverse environmental condition created by the seller and existing prior to the date of closing of the sale of the subject premises to the purchaser.

FORM

Purchaser hereby grants seller, as well as seller's successors and assigns, a full release from any and all claims and actions, whether at law or equity, which it could conceivably bring against the seller following the discovery of an adverse environmental condition. However, the preceding sentence shall not apply to any adverse environmental condition created by the seller and existing prior to the date of closing of the sale of the subject premises to the purchaser.

"Adverse environmental condition" is defined as:

- (1) the contamination of the soil, air or water (whether surface water or ground water) of the subject premises by hazardous substances or hazardous wastes;
- (2) the contamination of the soil, air or water (whether surface water or ground water) of any piece of realty adjoining the subject premises due to a release of hazardous substances or hazardous wastes upon the subject premises; or
- (3) the presence of hazardous substances or hazardous wastes which are stored upon the subject premises.

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.33

FORM 25.33 Purchaser to indemnify and hold seller harmless--clause designed to protect seller

COMMENT

The purchaser agrees to indemnify the seller and hold the seller harmless from any liability resulting from an adverse environmental condition on the subject premises. However, the indemnification and hold harmless do not extend to any adverse environmental condition created by the seller and existing prior to the closing of the sale and purchase of the property. This form contains detailed definitions of the terms "adverse environmental condition" and "liability."

FORM

If, as a result of an adverse environmental condition, seller is subjected to any liability whatsoever, then purchaser will indemnify and hold seller completely harmless against such liability. However, the preceding sentence shall not apply to any adverse environmental condition created by the seller and existing prior to the date of closing of the sale of the subject premises.

"Adverse environmental condition" is defined as:

- (1) the contamination of the soil, air or water (whether surface water or ground water) of the subject premises by hazardous substances or hazardous wastes;
- (2) the contamination of the soil, air or water (whether surface water or ground water) of any piece of realty adjoining the subject premises due to a release of hazardous substances or hazardous wastes upon the subject premises; or
- (3) the presence of hazardous substances or hazardous wastes which are stored upon the subject premises.

"Liability" is defined as any claim or action (whether civil, criminal or administrative, and whether brought by any governmental entity or non-governmental entity or person), judgment, settlement, damages, fine, penalty, loss or expense brought against, imposed upon, suffered by or paid by seller. Liability shall also include seller's attorneys' fees, court costs, consultants' fees, experts' fees, and other litigation-related expenses.

Purchaser expressly guarantees that it will assume all costs, expenses and fees incurred by seller in:

- (1) investigating the nature and severity of the adverse environmental condition;
- (2) conducting studies to determine the impact of the adverse environmental condition upon the public health;
- (3) eliminating the adverse environmental condition;
- (4) conducting tests following the clean up in order to determine whether seller's remedial efforts have been successful;
and
- (5) compensating any person, or the estate, heirs or beneficiaries of such person, who suffered injury or death as a result of the adverse environmental condition.

FORM 25.34 Release from environmental liability

COMMENT

There are many different approaches and provisions that may be utilized with respect to the release of a seller for environmental matters. However a purchaser should be very careful before it gives such a release. Certainly the purchaser will want to investigate the property and have an idea as to the extent of the problems, if any, associated with the premises. Lastly, it is highly likely that such a release would be the result of the purchaser negotiating a discount with respect to the purchase price.

FORM

Purchaser hereby waives, releases, acquits and forever discharges Seller, its employees or agents or any other person acting on behalf of Seller, of and from any and all claims, actions, causes of action, demands, rights, damages, costs, expenses, or compensation whatsoever, direct or indirect, known or unknown, foreseen or unforeseen, which Purchaser now has or which may arise in the future on account of or in any way growing out of or in connection with any physical characteristics or existing condition including, without limitation, subsurface conditions and solid and hazardous wastes, and hazardous substances, on, under, or related to the real property, or any law or regulation applicable thereto.

A. ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.37

FORM 25.37 Representation by seller that seller will not waive liability of other responsible parties--clause designed to protect purchaser

COMMENT

The Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act ("CERCLA"), 42 USC § 9601 et seq., identifies various classes of individuals and entities who are "responsible parties" and, thus, must assume clean-up costs. In this clause, the seller represents that he knows of no existing adverse environmental conditions, but that if any are discovered, the seller will cooperate with the purchaser to locate the responsible parties. The seller agrees not to waive any liability of potentially-responsible parties. The seller further agrees to hold the purchaser harmless.

FORM

Seller has owned the subject premises since ____ [year]. During that period of time, Seller has not become aware of the existence of any condition on or about the premises which would result in an adverse environmental impact. However, Seller has performed no tests or investigations. In the event that Purchaser now or hereafter discovers such a condition, where the genesis of such condition occurred prior to Purchaser's acceptance or occupation of the subject premises, Seller agrees to cooperate in providing any information which he may have which will assist in locating the responsible party.

Seller further represents and warrants to Purchaser that he will not, by any affirmative act or mission, waive or excuse the liability of any other party who may be a "responsible party", as defined by the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act ("CERCLA"), 42 USC § 9601, et seq., or any other federal or state law or regulation, for any cost of remediation of any adverse environmental condition, under any federal or state law or regulation.

In the event Seller waives the liability of any responsible party, Seller will indemnify and hold Purchaser harmless for any loss occasioned by that waiver, including legal fees and consequential damages.

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.38

FORM 25.38 Promise of seller to indemnify and hold purchaser harmless for any existing conditions on premises--clause designed to protect purchaser and requires seller to obtain environmental insurance

COMMENT

This form is designed to protect the purchaser from any adverse environmental conditions which may be discovered on the premises after the sale is completed. Because the form contains a requirement that the seller obtain environmental liability insurance, the hold harmless clause has more strength. The purchaser does not have to rely on the seller's financial ability alone for protection.

The form protects the seller by requiring that the purchaser give prompt notice of any potential claim, and that the purchaser cooperate with the seller.

It should be noted that environmental liability insurance is costly and generally requires some investigation of the property being sold, if not a full environmental site assessment.

FORM

Seller agrees, for a period of _____ (_____) years from the date hereof, to indemnify and hold Purchaser harmless for and against any and all liability, claims and expenses of any kind whatsoever (including reasonable attorneys' fees and other defense costs) for any injury or damage to person or property sustained by anyone on or about the premises, which results from or arises out of any adverse environmental condition existing on the subject premises at or before the transfer of title of the subject premises from Seller to Purchaser.

Seller agrees, for a period of _____ (_____) years, to obtain environmental liability insurance from an insurance company rated "AA" or better in at least the amount of _____ Dollars ($_____). Purchaser shall be named as an additional insured or loss payee on said policy. Seller's liability under this agreement shall be limited to the limits of this policy. This agreement is conditioned upon Purchaser approving the policy forms and exclusions on the insurance policy to be purchased by seller.

Purchaser shall give Seller notice of any claim or potential claim within ten (10) days after Purchaser shall received notice or have reason to know that a claim exists. Failure to provide prompt notice will relieve Seller of any liability hereunder.

Purchaser shall give Seller a reasonable opportunity to defend against such claim. Purchaser shall cooperate with Seller in such defense. Purchaser shall not compromise any claim without the consent of Seller. A material violation by Purchaser of any of these provisions shall relieve Seller of any liability hereunder.

Purchaser agrees to cooperate with and comply with all reasonable requests of Seller's insurance carrier. In the event Purchaser fails to do so and the insurance carrier disclaims liability for that reason, Seller shall be relieved of any liability hereunder.

FORM 25.39 Promise of seller to indemnify and hold purchaser harmless--another form

COMMENT

In this clause, the indemnity specifically states that the indemnity will survive the closing date.

FORM

Purchaser hereby assumes and covenants to undertake and discharge all liabilities and obligations arising (a) from any condition which now exists or may hereafter be found to exist in, on, under or about the premises; or (b) from a determination that the premises, or any portion thereof, violates any applicable law, ordinances, regulation or ruling relating to environmental protection, or the presence, use, generation, storage, release, threatened release, or containment or disposal of any hazardous or toxic substances or materials. Purchaser shall indemnify and hold Seller harmless from and against any and all damage, cost, loss, liability and expense which may be incurred by Seller by reason of, resulting from, in connection with, or arising in any manner whatsoever out of any breach of the covenant of Purchaser contained in this paragraph. The covenants and agreements of Purchaser in this paragraph shall survive the closing and consummation of the transactions contemplated in this Agreement and remain in effect.

FORM 25.40 Seller will not waive liability for any adverse environmental condition existing on subject premises prior to sale--clause designed to protect purchaser

COMMENT

In the clause that follows, which is designed to protect the interests of the purchaser of real property, the seller agrees not to waive its liability for remediating any adverse environmental condition existing on the premises prior to the sale. However, such adverse environmental condition must be discovered by the purchaser within at least five years after the closing date of the sale and purchase. Otherwise, the seller is not liable.

FORM

Seller agrees that, if any adverse environmental condition is discovered by purchaser within _____ (_____) years of the closing date of the sale of the subject premises, and if it is determined that such adverse environmental condition arose prior to such closing, then seller will not waive its liability, if any, for correcting the adverse environmental condition. Nor will seller waive the liability of any previous owner or tenant of the subject premises who may be legally responsible for correcting the adverse environmental condition.

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.41

FORM 25.41 Seller to indemnify and hold purchaser harmless

COMMENT

In this clause, the seller agrees to indemnify and hold the purchaser harmless if the latter is subjected to "any liability whatsoever" arising out of an "adverse environmental condition" that existed on the premises prior to the sale. The clause contains detailed definitions of "adverse environmental condition" and "liability."

FORM

If, as a result of an adverse environmental condition existing prior to the sale of the subject premises to the Purchaser, Purchaser is subjected to any liability whatsoever, then Seller will indemnify and hold Purchaser completely harmless against such liability.

"Adverse environmental condition" is defined as:

- (1) the contamination of the soil, air or water (whether surface water or ground water) of the subject premises by hazardous substances or hazardous wastes;
- (2) the contamination of the soil, air or water (whether surface water or ground water) of any piece of realty adjoining the subject premises due to a release of hazardous substances or hazardous wastes upon the subject premises; or
- (3) the presence of hazardous substances or hazardous wastes which are stored upon the subject premises.

"Liability" is defined as any claim or action (whether civil, criminal or administrative, and whether brought by any governmental entity or non-governmental entity or person), judgment, settlement, damages, fine, penalty, loss or expense brought against, imposed upon, suffered by or paid by Purchaser. Liability shall also include Purchaser's attorneys' fees, court costs, consultants' fees, experts' fees, and other litigation-related expenses.

Seller expressly guarantees that it will assume all costs incurred by Purchaser in:

- (1) investigating the nature and severity of the adverse environmental condition;
- (2) conducting studies to determine the impact of the adverse environmental condition upon the public health;
- (3) eliminating the adverse environmental condition;
- (4) conducting tests following the clean up in order to determine whether Purchaser's remedial efforts have been successful; and
- (5) compensating any person, or the estate, heirs or beneficiaries of such person, who suffered injury or death as a result of the adverse environmental condition.

Chapter 25 ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

Part IV. FORMS

A. ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.42

FORM 25.42 Purchase agreement conditioned upon inspection

COMMENT

This provision provides that the purchaser is not required to purchase the premises unless the premises are free of adverse environmental conditions. This provision allows the seller to engage the environmental consultant. It also provides that if the purchaser rejects the results, then the seller will have additional time to address purchaser's concerns.

Once the report is accepted, this provision requires the seller to remediate the premises. Once the premises are remediated, the seller has no further obligation with respect to environmental matters. If the anticipated remediation costs are too high, seller may cancel the agreement. Lastly, the agreement contains a confidentiality clause.

FORM

A. Seller hereby agrees that it will cause its environmental consultants (or another licensed _____ [state] environmental engineer) to prepare a risk assessment report and remediation plan related to the environmental condition of the Property, which documents shall specify: (a) the standards which will govern the levels to which any environmentally impacted soils and groundwater on the Property will be remediated; and (b) the method and timetable for the remediation and disposal of any contaminants. Upon the completion of the aforementioned document, Seller will present the same to Purchaser for its review. Purchaser will have _____ (_____) days after its receipt of such document to review the same and notify Seller in writing that it either: (i) approves such document as drafted; or (ii) rejects such document for those reasonable, specific reasons delineated in Purchaser's written notice to Seller. If Purchaser rejects such document, then Seller will have an additional reasonable period of time in which it can seek to satisfy all of Purchaser's reasons for rejecting the document; provided, however, that Seller shall have no obligation to do so. If Seller is unable to declines to satisfy the same within such period, or in any event before the expiration of the Contingency Period as it may be extended for an additional _____ (_____) days, unless otherwise agreed to by the parties, this Agreement will automatically terminate, the Deposit will be returned to Purchaser and, thereafter, neither party will have any further rights, liabilities or obligations hereunder. All references in this Agreement to the "Risk Assessment Report and Remediation Plan" will be deemed to refer to the risk assessment report and remediation plan as approved by Purchaser.

B. Promptly following its receipt of written notice from Purchaser that all of the conditions set forth herein have been satisfied, Seller shall, at its sole cost and expense, commence and at all times thereafter diligently pursue to completion the environmental remediation of the Property in strict accordance with the standards, methods and timetable set forth in the Risk Assessment Report and Remediation Plan (such work being hereinafter referred to as the "Seller's Work"). The Seller's Work shall be the sole responsibility, obligation and liability of Seller and will be effected in accordance with all applicable federal, state and local laws (whether now existing or enacted after the date hereof but prior to closing). Seller shall keep Purchaser fully advised as to its progress on the Seller's Work and shall grant Purchaser and its environmental consultants reasonable access to the Property throughout the remediation process, provided that such access does not interfere with or delay the Seller's Work. Copies of all analytical tests and samples obtained by Seller's environmental consultants during the remediation process shall be delivered to Purchaser for its files. Seller shall also afford Purchaser the opportunity to conduct confirming tests and take split samples at the Property. If at any time during the course of Seller's Work, Seller becomes aware of a condition that was not contemplated or addressed by the Risk Assessment Report and Remediation Plan, Seller may in its sole discretion proceed to correct or remove such condition or discontinue Seller's work, and Seller shall notify Purchaser of such election with _____ (_____) days after Seller has determined the cost of correcting such condition.

When Seller believes that the Seller's Work has been completed in the manner required by the risk Assessment Report and Remediation Plan, and otherwise in accordance with all applicable federal, state and local laws, it shall give written notice to such effect to Purchaser ("Completion Notice"). The Completion Notice shall be accompanied by a certification from Seller or Seller's environmental consultant (or another licensed _____ [state] environmental engineer) that the Seller's Work has been completed. Purchaser shall have a period of _____ (_____) days after its receipt of the Completion Notice (the "Confirmation Period") in which to obtain the confirmation from its environmental consultants, _____ [name], that the Seller's Work has been completed. If Purchaser's environmental consultant reasonably advises Purchaser that the Seller's Work has in some material respect(s) not been completed, then Purchaser shall give written notice to Seller of its specific and itemized objections to the Seller's Work ("Objection Notice"). Seller shall then have a reasonable period of time in which to cure all of the items set forth in the Objection Notice. If Seller fails to cure all such objections by _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year], then Purchaser shall have the option of: (a) terminating this Agreement by promptly giving written notice of termination to Seller, in which event the Deposit shall be returned to Purchaser; (b) proceeding to close on the purchase of the Property notwithstanding Seller's failure to satisfy such objections or complete Seller's Work thereby waiving any such objections or conditions; or (c) at Seller's request, extending the outside date for the satisfaction of such condition precedent beyond _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year] to a date mutually agreed upon by Purchaser and Seller; and Purchaser's choice of option as set forth above shall be its sole and exclusive remedy. If Seller satisfies in all material respects all of Purchaser's objections set forth in the Objection Notice or if Purchaser accepts (or otherwise fails to respond to) Seller's Completion Notice within the Confirmation Period, then, in either such event, the condition precedent to Purchaser's obligation to purchase the Property as set forth herein shall be deemed to have been satisfied and Purchaser shall proceed to close on its purchase of the Property in the manner and subject to other condition set forth in this Agreement.

C. Purchaser hereby agrees that upon completion of Seller's Work in the manner required by the Risk Assessment Report and Remediation Plan (as approved or waived by Purchaser), Seller shall have no further obligations whatsoever with respect to environmental remediation of the Property, all such obligations being the sole responsibility of Purchaser. Purchaser agrees to indemnify, defend (with counsel reasonably satisfactory to Seller) and hold harmless Seller and Seller's affiliate and each of their directors, officers, shareholders, employees, assigns and successors from any and all Environmental Claims (hereinafter defined) incurred by or asserted against Seller after closing which relate to the Property (but expressly excluding Environmental Claims relating to neighboring properties). To the extent permitted by law, Purchaser hereby waives all Environmental Claims it may have against Seller which relate to the Property (but expressly excluding Environmental Claims relating to neighboring properties). For purposes of this Agreement "Environmental Claims" means all losses, costs, damages, allegations, demands, claims (including, without limitation, claims for personal injury to real or personal property damage), liabilities, expenses, judgments, and orders or investigations or remediation measures required by the governmental agencies having jurisdiction over the Property (including, but not limited to, the cost of any remedial work performed on the Property) and third-party claims that arise directly or indirectly from or in connection with the operation or condition of the Property, including, but not limited to, the presence or suspected presence, release or suspected release, of any hazardous materials of any kind, whether into the air, soil, groundwater, pavement, structures, fixtures, equipment, tanks, containers or other personalty at the Property or any other real property in which Purchaser has or may acquire an interest.

D. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in this Agreement, Seller shall have no obligation to complete the environmental remediation of the Property or sell the Property to Purchaser, if at any time Seller reasonably determined that the cost of the Seller's Work ("Remediation Costs") would exceed an amount equal to _____ percent (_____ %) of the Purchase Price. If Seller reasonably determines that the Remediation Costs exceed _____ percent (_____ %) of the Purchase Price and if Seller is not willing to incur such costs, then Seller shall give written notice to Purchaser that it is terminating its obligations under this Agreement. Any such written notice of termination shall be delivered to Purchaser upon Seller's reasonable determination as set forth above and shall include Seller's estimates of the amount of the Remediation Costs. Upon Purchaser's receipt of such written notice of termination from Seller, this Agreement shall automatically terminate, the Deposit shall be returned to Purchaser and, thereafter, neither party shall have any further rights, liabilities or obligations under this Agreement.

E. Purchaser agrees: (a) to keep and hold any and all information, documents, tests, samples, and other data that it receives from Seller or its agents or consultants, or that it receives otherwise in connection with this Agreement, including, without limitation, the Risk Assessment Report and Remediation Plan (collectively, the "Information"), in strict confidence; (b) to not disclose, or cause or permit to be disclosed by Purchaser or its agents or consultants, any of the Information, to any person or entity except Purchaser's Environmental consultants, lenders or contractors, or as required by law; and (c) to cause its environmental consultants to agree to keep and hold such information in strict confidence, which agreement shall be evidenced by a letter to that effect from Purchaser's environmental consultants to Seller.

COMMENT

Radon gas is a natural, colorless, odorless vapor which emanates from the earth. Radon has a tendency to accumulate in buildings because it can't escape. High levels of radon gas have been associated with lung cancer and other respiratory ailments. This contingency allows the purchaser to cancel the sale agreement if a particular level of radon gas is found. This gives the purchaser the ability to cancel the existing agreement and then negotiate a modification of that agreement if the parties so desire. Such a modification will provide for a reduction of the purchase price in an amount equivalent to the cost of remediation, leaving the purchaser responsible for remediation. In the alternative, the parties can maintain the purchase price while the seller takes the remedial action at his own expense, subject to the purchaser's approval.

FORM

The Agreement is contingent upon the results of an inspection demonstrating that excessive amounts of radon gas do not exist on the premises. The inspection shall be performed by _____ [name]. The inspection shall be performed at the expense of _____.

Excessive amounts of radon gas shall be deemed to exist if the inspection reveals a level of radon gas exceeding _____ pico curies per liter. The inspection report shall indicate the level of accuracy or tolerance of the measurements. A copy of the inspection report shall be provided to both Purchaser and Seller.

Seller agrees to comply with all requirements of the company or individual performing the inspection, provided that there shall be no monetary cost to Seller and no unreasonable effort or act required of Seller to comply.

This contingency shall be deemed waived unless Purchaser shall notify Seller of the existence of radon gas, in writing, on or before _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]. Notice shall be deemed given when received by Seller, in person or by certified mail, return receipt requested. If notice is timely given, this Agreement shall be deemed canceled. All deposits made pursuant to this agreement shall be returned to the Purchaser immediately.

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.44

FORM 25.44 Sale is contingent upon results of inspection for presence of lead-based paint

COMMENT

Lead is a non-organic element which can accumulate in the human body. Excessive levels of lead can cause serious harm to children, including damage to the brain and central nervous system, mental retardation, impaired hearing, epileptic seizures and death. The major source of lead poisoning is lead-based paint which, as it ages, cracks and chips. Those paint chips are often consumed by small children and pets. A second important source is lead dust, which is produced as lead-based paint ages and wears away.

The use of lead in paint was banned by the Consumer Product Safety Commission in 1978. However, a danger still exists in homes built before 1978, since their interior walls and other surfaces might have been painted with lead-based paint.

Accordingly, the purchaser of any structure built prior to 1978 should request that a lead paint contingency be inserted into the sale-purchase agreement. (This is especially important if the structure is a residence, and the purchaser has small children.) Even commercial property should be tested, since the normal aging process of lead-based paint will produce lead dust. Lead dust is especially dangerous because everyone, young and old alike, breathes it in, whereas paint chips only pose a danger to small children and pets, who frequently eat the chips.

If the structure contains lead-based paint, the purchaser should be able to terminate the agreement. Alternatively, if lead-based paint is discovered on the premises and the purchaser still wishes to purchase the premises, the parties may renegotiate the agreement and reduce the purchase price to reflect the cost to the purchaser of removal or containment of the paint. Alternatively, the seller may handle the removal or containment, leaving the purchase price intact.

FORM

This Agreement of sale and purchase is contingent upon the results of an inspection and chemical analysis to be performed by _____[insert name of inspector and laboratory that will perform the inspection and chemical analysis], demonstrating that the premises to be transferred hereunder do not contain lead-based paint. The inspection and laboratory analysis shall be performed at the expense of the Purchaser. A copy of the inspection report and laboratory analysis shall be provided to both Purchaser and Seller. Seller consents to the inspector taking paint samples wherever the inspector deems it necessary and appropriate.

This contingency shall be deemed waived unless Purchaser shall notify Seller, in writing, of the existence of lead-based paint on or before ' _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]. Notice shall be deemed given when received by Seller, in person or by certified mail, return receipt requested. If notice is timely given, this Agreement shall be deemed canceled. All deposits made pursuant to this Agreement shall be returned to the Purchaser immediately.

FORM 25.45 Sale is contingent on results of asbestos inspection

COMMENT

Asbestos was once commonly used as an insulating material on pipes, boilers, furnaces and in ceiling and floor tiles. Asbestos can become "friable," that is, finely crumbled and airborne. Inhaled over an extended period of time, asbestos fibers and particles may lead to a variety of different lung diseases, including cancer.

This form provides the purchaser with the opportunity to cancel from the agreement if any asbestos is discovered on the premises. The form provides two alternative methods to detect asbestos.

If asbestos is discovered, but the purchaser still wants the property, the purchaser can renegotiate the agreement to reduce the purchase price by an amount equivalent to the cost of removal and repair. In this case, the purchaser accepts responsibility for removal and repair. In the alternative, the parties can maintain the purchase price while the seller absorbs the cost, and effects the removal and repair.

FORM

This Agreement is contingent upon the results of an inspection demonstrating that no asbestos exists on the premises. The inspection shall be performed by a licensed asbestos handler. Asbestos shall be deemed to exist if any asbestos-containing material shall be located within the structures on the premises, or, if the asbestos contained in air samples taken within the structures by a certified laboratory is _____ percent (_____ %) above the level of asbestos contained in air samples taken outside of the structures. The inspection and all samples and analysis shall be performed at the expense of _____. A copy of the inspection report shall be provided to both Purchaser and Seller.

Seller consents to the taking of samples of ceiling material, pipe insulation and boiler or furnace insulation. Such samples shall be taken as inconspicuously as possible in the living areas of the structures.

This contingency shall be deemed waived unless Purchaser shall notify Seller of the existence of asbestos, in writing, on or before _____ [month] ____ [day] ____ [year]. Notice shall be deemed given when received by Seller, in person or by certified mail, return receipt requested. If notice is timely given, this Agreement shall be deemed canceled. All deposits made pursuant to this agreement shall be returned to the Purchaser immediately.

FORM 25.46 Sale is contingent on results of inspection for urea formaldehyde insulation

COMMENT

During the 1970s urea formaldehyde insulation was used to insulate many existing houses. Frequently, it was blown into houses between the exterior siding and interior walls. Later, urea formaldehyde became associated with a number of health problems.

This contingency is designed to allow the purchaser to cancel from the agreement if any urea formaldehyde insulation is found on the premises. If the purchaser still wishes to purchase the premises, the parties may consider renegotiating the agreement. This may be done by reducing the purchase price by an amount equal to the cost of removal of the insulation. The purchaser would then take responsibility for removal. In the alternative, the seller may take responsibility for the removal while the purchase price remains the same.

This contingency allows the purchaser's agent to remove and replace paneling or other finishing material in order to view the insulation and take samples.

FORM

This Agreement is contingent upon the results of an inspection demonstrating that no urea formaldehyde insulation is located in or on any of the structures on the premises. The inspection shall be performed by _____ [address] at the expense of _____. A copy of the inspection report shall be provided to both Purchaser and Seller.

Seller consents to the temporary removal of exterior siding and interior paneling, as deemed necessary by the inspector, for the purpose of the inspection. All materials removed shall be restored to their prior condition, all at Purchaser's expense, at the conclusion of the inspection. Seller further consents to the taking of samples of the insulation, if deemed necessary by the inspector.

This contingency shall be deemed waived unless Purchaser shall notify Seller of the existence of urea formaldehyde insulation, in writing, on or before _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]. Notice shall be deemed given when received by Seller, in person or by certified mail, return receipt requested. If notice is timely given, this Agreement shall be deemed canceled. FORM 25.47 Sale is contingent on results of inspection for presence of, or damaged caused by, wood boring insects

COMMENT

The term "wood boring insects" includes such things as carpenter ants, termites, and powder post beetles. Although other such insects clearly exist, the inspection should cover these at a minimum. Wood boring insects can do tremendous damage in a very short period of time. The effect of the damage can actually undermine the structural integrity of a building. Thus, a purchaser should always obtain his own inspection, even when the premises have been inspected within the previous year. The cost of such an inspection is generally quite modest. The cost of repair can be substantial.

This contingency is designed to allow the purchaser to withdraw from the agreement if any wood boring insects are discovered, or if any damage from wood boring insects is found on the premises. Afterward, if the parties so desire, they may consider renegotiating the agreement. This may be done by reducing the purchase price by an amount equal to the cost of extermination and repair. The purchaser would then take responsibility for removal. In the alternative, the seller may perform the extermination and repair, while the purchase price remains the same.

Since wood boring insects tend to appear in inaccessible spaces, the contingency provides for the removal of walls, flooring, ceiling tile, and the like, in order to facilitate the inspection. Restoration of removed items is at the purchaser's expense.

FORM

This Agreement is contingent upon the results of an inspection demonstrating that no wood boring insects exist within the structures located on the premises and that no damage to the structures has been caused by wood boring insects. The inspection shall be performed by a licensed exterminator at the expenses of _____. A copy of the inspection report shall be provided to both Purchaser and Seller.

Seller consents to the temporary removal of any wall, floor or ceiling cover in any area deemed inaccessible by the inspector. All items removed shall be restored to their prior condition, all at Purchaser's expense, at the conclusion of the inspection.

This contingency shall be deemed waived unless Purchaser shall notify Seller of the existence of wood boring insects or damage to the structures caused by wood boring insects, in writing, on or before _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]. FORM 25.48 Sale is contingent on results of inspection for mold and fungal growth

COMMENT

Mold and fungal growths tend to form in dark and/or damp spaces within structures, e.g., basements, closets, crawl spaces, etc. These growths can damage and eventually weaken structural supports. They have also been associated with respiratory ailments.

This contingency is designed to allow the purchaser to withdraw from the agreement if any mold or fungal growth is discovered in specified areas. Afterward, if the parties so desire, they may consider renegotiating the agreement. This may be done by reducing the purchase price by an amount equal to the cost of removal and repair. The purchaser would then take responsibility for removal and repair. In the alternative, the seller may perform the removal and repair, while the purchase price remains the same.

In order to facilitate the inspection, the contingency provides for the removal of any material covering framing or "joists" (i.e., horizontal beams set from wall to wall to support the boards of a floor or ceiling). Restoration of removed items is the purchaser's expense.

FORM

This Agreement is contingent upon the results of an inspection demonstrating that no mold or fungal growth exists on the wooden members located at any level of any of the structures which are located on the premises and are wholly or partially beneath ground level. The inspection shall be performed by a mutually agreeable inspector, at the expense of _____. A copy of the inspection report shall be provided to both Purchaser and Seller.

Seller consents to the temporary removal of paneling or any other material covering joists or framing in any area deemed necessary by the inspector. All materials removed shall be restored to their prior condition, all at Purchaser's expense, at the conclusion of the inspection.

This contingency shall be deemed waived unless Purchaser shall notify Seller, in writing, of the existence of mold or fungal growth on any wooden members, as described above, on or before _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]. FORM 25.49 Sale is contingent on results of environmental site assessment

COMMENT

This contingency provides for an environmental site assessment of the premises. The contingency allows the purchaser to cancel the agreement if the environmental site assessment shows "evidence of significant adverse environmental impact due to past or present use of the premises or releases of hazardous materials on the premises."

If the purchaser still desires to purchase the premises, the parties may renegotiate the agreement. This may be done by reducing the purchase price by an amount equal to the cost of remediating the adverse condition. The purchaser would then bear the expense of remedial action.

In the alternative, the seller may perform the remedial action, while the purchase price remains the same. In this case, the purchaser would want a "hold harmless" provision in the contract in order to protect him in the event that the seller did not perform remediation in a proper or complete manner.

This contingency contains a confidentiality requirement so that, if an adverse condition is discovered, the publicity would not thwart future sales or injure the seller's reputation. If such an adverse condition is found, the seller may have not only a moral obligation to remedy it, but also a legal one under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act ("CERCLA"), 42 USC § 9601 et seq., and various other federal and state laws and regulations.

FORM

This Agreement is contingent upon the results of an environmental site assessment showing no evidence of significant adverse environmental impact due to past or present use of the premises or releases of hazardous materials on the premises. The environmental site assessment shall be performed by _____ [name] or an environmental engineering firm at the expense of Purchaser. A copy of the assessment shall be provided to both Purchaser and Seller.

Purchaser agrees to maintain absolute confidentiality of the assessment until Purchaser has accepted transfer of title from Seller. Notwithstanding the foregoing, Purchaser may provide a copy of the assessment to Purchaser's lending institution and any party who will be involved in repairing or correcting any adverse environmental impact found. Purchaser, in writing, shall instruct those with whom he provides a copy of the assessment of its confidential nature and of the obligation to maintain confidentiality.

Seller consents to the taking of any samples deemed necessary or appropriate by the testing firm. Interior samples shall be taken as inconspicuously as possible. Areas where exterior samples of soils are taken shall be returned to their prior condition at Purchaser's expense.

This contingency shall be deemed waived unless Purchaser shall notify Seller in writing of the existence of evidence of a significant adverse environmental impact on or before _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]. Notice shall be deemed given when received by Seller, in person or by certified mail, return receipt requested. If notice is timely given, this Agreement shall be deemed canceled. FORM 25.50 Purchaser's right to conduct environmental examination of subject premises prior to sale--purchaser may terminate contract if examination reveals that property is contaminated--clause designed to protect purchaser

The clause below is designed to protect the purchaser of real property. In it, the seller recognizes the purchaser's right to conduct an environmental examination of the premises prior to sale. If that examination reveals that the property is contaminated with hazardous wastes or hazardous substances, then the purchaser has five days within which to cancel the contract for sale and purchase.

FORM

(a) Purchaser, at its sole cost and expense, shall have the right to perform an environmental inspection and audit of the Property (the "Audit") by an independent environmental consultant (the "Consultant") approved in writing by Seller. If the Audit reveals any items which in Purchaser's opinion should be remedied and Purchaser is unwilling, at its sole cost and expense, to remedy such items, Purchaser may terminate this Agreement within _____ (_____) days after the date of this Agreement by giving Seller written notice of such termination ("Notice of Termination"). Such Notice of Termination must include (i) a copy of the Audit; (ii) the items that Purchaser believes should be remedied; and (iii) Purchaser's estimated cost of such remedy prepared by Consultant. Purchaser's failure to give such notice of Termination within the specified time period shall constitute an irrevocable waiver of Purchaser's right to terminate this Agreement under this section.

(b) Within _____ (_____) days after receipt of the Notice of Termination, Seller may void the Notice of Termination by giving Purchaser written notice that Seller shall, at its sole cost and expense, remedy the items specified in the Notice of Termination in which case this Agreement shall remain in effect. If Seller does not void the Notice of Termination within such period, this Agreement shall be terminate and Purchaser shall receive a return of this deposit. Upon receipt of such deposit, this Agreement shall be terminate with neither party having any further liability to the other, except as expressly reserved in this Agreement.

(c) To the extent Seller must perform any remedial work under this section after closing, Purchaser shall grant Seller and its contractors and consultants access to the Property, without cost, in order to perform such work.

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.51

FORM 25.51 Sale is contingent on results of inspection of septic system--system must be in good working order and meet government standards

COMMENT

This contingency is designed for use in a contract for the purchase and sale of a residence or commercial building served by a septic system, instead of public sewers. The contingency has two goals, to wit: (1) to make certain that the system was built in compliance with all governmental standards then in effect; and (2) to make certain that the system is presently functional.

In satisfying these goals, it is often necessary to actually view the system. This requires excavation of the tank and possibly surrounding areas. This form allows the excavation to be performed and requires restoration of the surrounding grounds, including grading and seeding.

The contingency allows the purchaser to terminate the agreement in the event that either goal is not met. If the purchaser is still interested in purchasing the premises, the parties may renegotiate the agreement. This may be done by reducing the purchase price by an amount equal to the cost of repair. The purchaser would then take the responsibility for repair. In the alternative, the seller may perform the repair while the purchase price remains the same.

It should be noted that many lending institutions require septic system testing as a prerequisite for receiving financing. The purchaser should confer with his lender prior to negotiating the contingency.

FORM

This Agreement is contingent upon the results of an inspection of the septic system located on the subject premises, showing that the septic system is in good working order and that the septic system meets or exceeds all applicable state and local laws and regulations, including "grandfather" clauses.

The inspection shall be performed by _____ [name] or by the _____ [county] County Health Department at the expense of _____. A copy of the inspection report shall be provided to both Purchaser and Seller.

Seller consents to the excavation of so much of the septic system as is deemed necessary by the inspector, at the expense of Purchaser. The excavated area, if any, shall be graded and seeded as necessary to restore the area to its prior condition upon completion of the testing, all at the expense of Purchaser. Seller further consents to the introduction of non-toxic dye into the drains of the structure, through the sinks and/or toilets in the structure, as part of the testing procedure.

This contingency shall be deemed waived unless Purchaser shall notify Seller in writing that the inspection demonstrated that the septic system is not in good working order or that the septic system does not meet all applicable state and local laws and regulations, on or before _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]. Notice shall be deemed given when received by Seller, in person or by certified mail, return receipt requested. If notice is timely given, this Agreement shall be deemed canceled. 33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.52

FORM 25.52 Sale is contingent upon purchaser's receipt of approval to use public sewer system for premises

COMMENT

This contingency is useful when the premises to be sold are not currently using a public sewer system. It places a cap on the amount which the purchaser might have to pay in order to construct a "hook up" between the premises and the system. Such a provision is extremely important since it protects the purchaser from buying property and then discovering--when it's already too late--that the cost of a connection to the public sewer system is economically unfeasible.

The contingency allows the purchaser to terminate the agreement if the purchaser cannot obtain the required approval or if the price of the hook up is too high. If the purchaser is still interested in purchasing the premises, he may wish to renegotiate the agreement in order to lower the purchase price, thereby making the cost of connection feasible, or the price more reflective of the value of property which cannot be connected to the public sewer system.

FORM

This Agreement is contingent upon Purchaser receiving approval from the Town _____ [or Village/County/City] of _____ [name] to attach the sewerage system contained on the subject premises to the municipal sewerage system. Such approval may be conditioned upon:

- (1) Purchaser paying the cost of attachment;
- (2) Purchaser paying periodic or usage fees;

(3) the size of the pipes to be used;

(4) the volume of usage; and/or

(5) _____ [insert other condition(s), if any].

Notwithstanding the foregoing, nothing shall require Purchaser to connect to the municipal system if the estimated cost of construction to facilitate connection exceeds _____ Dollars ($ _____).

Purchaser shall use best efforts to obtain such approval. Purchaser, at its sole cost and expense, shall promptly provide the municipality with any review fees, plans, specifications, or reports which may be reasonably requested or required by the municipality as part of the approval process.

This contingency shall be deemed waived unless Purchaser shall notify Seller in writing of Purchaser's inability to obtain the required approval on or before _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]. Notice shall be deemed given when received by Seller, in person or by certified mail, return receipt requested. If notice is timely given, this Agreement shall be deemed canceled. FORM 25.53 Sale is contingent on discovery of potable water source on premises

This contingency will be useful either to a commercial purchaser who wishes to use water found on the premises for operating purposes and thereby eliminate the expense of purchasing water from a utility, or to a purchaser who wishes to construct a residence which will draw on well water for household uses.

The contingency contains two parts. The first concerns the "viability" of the water source; in other words, the water must be pure, plentiful and available in a continuous supply. The second part requires that the cost of locating and accessing the water not exceed a certain limit set forth in the contingency.

The purchaser may terminate the agreement in the event that either a viable source is unavailable or that the cost estimates for locating and accessing the water exceed the cap. If the purchaser is still interested in purchasing the property, he may consider renegotiating the agreement. The parties may adjust the purchase price in order to make the cost of developing the water source more reasonable, or the purchase price more reflective of the value of property without a viable water source located upon it.

FORM

This Agreement is contingent upon locating a viable potable water source on the subject premises. Potability shall be determined in accordance with standards set by the _____ [county] County Department of Health. The source will be deemed viable if the source will provide a continuous supply of pure water in the amount of _____ (_____) gallons per minute, and the total cost to permanently access the water shall not exceed the sum of _____ Dollars ($_____). The determination of whether the source will provide a continuous supply of water shall be made by _____ [name] or other equally qualified geologist. The determinations required by this paragraph shall be made at the expense of Purchaser. All reports and estimates shall be provided to both Purchaser and Seller.

Seller authorizes Purchaser and his agents to dig or drill test holes, as deemed necessary by the geologists, at Purchaser's sole expense. Purchaser shall cause all areas disturbed by test holes to be returned to their prior condition at Purchaser's expense. Nothing contained herein shall require Purchaser to expend more than _____ Dollars ($_____) for the locating of a water source and for testing required to satisfy this contingency.

This contingency shall be deemed waived unless Purchaser shall notify Seller in writing of Purchaser's inability to locate a viable potable water source, as defined above, or that the cost estimates exceed the sum set forth above, on or before _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]. Notice shall be deemed given when received by Seller, in person or by certified mail, return receipt requested. If notice is timely given, this Agreement shall be deemed canceled. All deposits made pursuant to this agreement shall be returned to the Purchaser immediately.

FORM 25.54 Sale is contingent on feasibility of diverting contaminated water from flowing onto subject premises from adjoining parcel of land

COMMENT

This contingency can be easily modified and used whenever an environmental site assessment has been performed earlier--perhaps in connection with a loan application or a prior unsuccessful attempt to sell the property--and reveals the existence of any adverse environmental condition on the property. The purchaser, aware of the condition, still desires to purchase the property, provided that the condition can be rectified at a reasonable cost.

To illustrate, this contingency involves a prospective purchaser of real estate who discovers that contaminated water is draining onto the subject premises from an adjoining parcel of land which is not owned by the seller of the subject premises. The purchaser is still interested in buying the premises, assuming two conditions are met. First, the seller must obtain from the town and the adjoining landowner all necessary permission to divert the flow of the contaminated water. Second, the purchaser insists that a cap be placed on the total cost of the diversion. (Without this second condition, the purchaser might later discover that the cost of rectifying the problem greatly exceeds the benefits of purchasing the property.)

The form also contains a provision allowing the purchaser to enter upon the land before transfer of title in order to begin the construction necessary to divert the water.

FORM

Seller has provided to Purchaser a copy of an environmental site review of the subject premises. The review shows that an adjoining parcel is the site of an abandoned solid waste dump. The review also shows that the general water flow in the area is from the parcel containing the abandoned dump toward the subject premises. As a result, waste matter contained in the abandoned dump, which is capable of being borne by water, may leach or drain onto the subject premises.

This Agreement is contingent upon Purchaser being able to prevent or divert the leaching and draining of water from the adjoining parcel containing the abandoned dump. Seller shall obtain any necessary permits from the City of _____ [city], the Army Corp of Engineers and any other required permits or approvals. Seller shall also obtain written permission, in a form satisfactory to Purchaser's attorney, from the adjacent landowner to divert the water. If Seller is unable to obtain either after reasonable efforts, Purchaser may cancel this Agreement by giving Seller written notice in person or by certified mail, return receipt requested, within _____ (_____) days after Seller advises that he will be unable to fulfill his obligations. If Purchaser so notifies, the deposit made pursuant to this agreement shall be returned to the Purchaser immediately.

Purchaser shall obtain estimates for the cost of construction of the diversion. If the total cost of construction on all of the estimates exceeds _____ Dollars ($ _____), Purchaser may cancel this Agreement using the procedure set forth in the preceding paragraph.

Seller grants Purchaser permission to commence the diversion construction prior to transfer of title. Prior to entering upon the land, Purchaser shall provide Seller with certificates of insurance, providing coverage in at least the amount of _____ Dollars ($ _____). Said certificates of insurance shall name Seller as an additional insured and shall provide for at least _____ (_____) days' written notice to Seller prior to cancellation.

Purchaser, for himself, his agents, employees and invitees, shall hold Seller harmless for any and all claims for injury to person or property, including, but not limited to, defense costs and consequential damages, arising out of or in any way related to the diversion construction.

All work shall be performed in a workmanlike manner. The site shall be kept clear of debris. Purchaser shall not allow construction to interfere with Seller's ongoing business.

In the event that transfer of title does not occur, but Seller is without fault, Seller shall have no obligation to reimburse Purchaser for any construction and related costs incurred by Purchaser. Purchaser shall be obligated to leave the land in at least as good condition as prior to the commencement of the diversion project, visually and otherwise.

If the transfer of title fails to occur through fault of the Seller, Seller shall reimburse Purchaser for the construction costs incurred to date, up to a maximum of _____ Dollars ($ _____).

FORM 25.55 Sale is contingent on obtaining historic district approval of sale and planned modification to premises

COMMENT

Some older municipalities have made the preservation of historic structures in certain zones within the community a priority. Although the relevant municipal ordinances differ widely, it is often not possible to make certain changes to a structure located in that zone without the approval of the local historic review commission, or a similar body. The commission functions in a manner similar to a zoning board. Depending on the particular ordinance, changes in a structure's exterior color, windows, porches, trim design, or anything else for that matter, may require commission approval.

The contingency below allows the purchaser to terminate the agreement if the commission insists upon making "substantial" changes to the purchaser's proposed modifications of the property. Since the modifications are deemed essential to the purchaser's desire to purchase, the purchaser alone is entitled to determine whether any change to his proposal, required by the commission, is "substantial."

The parties hereto agree and acknowledge that the subject premises are located within the historic district of the City of _____ [city]. As a result thereof, the transfer of title is subject to the approval of the _____ [name] Historic Review Commission.

It is further agreed and understood that the ability to make the modifications to the premises which are described in Schedule "A," annexed hereto and made a part hereof, are an essential part of this Agreement and the consideration therefor. In the event Purchaser is unable to obtain approval for said modifications, Purchaser shall not be required to purchase the Premises.

Purchaser and seller agree to make a joint application to the _____ [name] Historic Review Commission for approval of the sale and the proposed modifications. FORM 25.56 Sale is contingent on obtaining conservation district approval of sale and planned modification of premises

Many states and municipalities have designated areas as "conservation districts," "forever wild," or some other similar designation. These areas are so designated because they contain something of nature that is worth preserving, such as wooded terrain, a marsh or stream, etc. The laws vary widely among states and municipalities and should be reviewed carefully. These laws often state that proposed modifications to existing structures, or to the use of land located within the conservation district, require review and approval of the proposal by a conservation council or its equivalent. These bodies function much like a zoning board or an arm of the zoning board.

The contingency allows the purchaser to terminate the agreement if the modifications which he wishes to make to the property are not approved without substantial changes. Since the modifications are deemed essential to the purchaser's desire to purchase, the purchaser alone is entitled to determine whether any change in his proposal, required by the conservation district council, is "substantial."

FORM

The parties hereto agree and acknowledge that the subject premises are located within the conservation district of the County of _____ [county]. As a result thereof, the transfer of title is subject to approval of the _____ [name] Conservation Council.

It is further agreed and understood that the ability to make the modifications to the premises which are described in Schedule "A," annexed hereto and made a part hereof, are an essential part of this Agreement and the consideration therefor. In the event Purchaser is unable to obtain approval for said modifications, Purchaser shall not be required to purchase the Premises.

Purchaser and Seller agree to make a joint application to the _____ [name] Conservation Council for approval of the sale and the proposed modifications. Such application shall be prepared at Purchaser's expense by _____ [name], Architects, and submitted no later than _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]. Purchaser shall not be required to accept transfer of title unless all proposed modifications to the premises are approved by the _____ [name] Conservation Council without substantial changes. Purchaser may elect to cancel this Agreement if approval is not received on or before _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]. This date may be extended by written agreement of the parties. Notice of election to cancel shall be given to Seller, in person or by certified mail, return receipt requested. Upon receipt of notice of election to cancel, Seller shall return the deposit made pursuant to this agreement immediately.

FORM 25.57 Sale is contingent on obtaining certification that premises are not located in a protected wetland

COMMENT

Under federal and state law, certain areas are designated as "protected" wetlands. Development in these areas is strictly regulated. Many local governments maintain maps which clearly identify such designated wetlands for the benefit of developers, sellers and purchasers of real estate. Where the parties to a sale agreement are unsure of whether a parcel is part of such a wetland, a "certification contingency" is necessary to protect the purchaser. This is especially important if the purchaser's use of the land will differ from the seller's use.

The contingency places the burden upon the seller to obtain a report indicating that the premises are not located in a protected wetland. Typically, the seller or purchaser would not file any permits with the Army Corp of Engineers unless they have concluded that the property is a wetland.

FORM

The most westerly portion of the premises borders on _____, which is a protected wetland within the meaning of federal and state laws and regulations. These measures would not be appropriate if the westerly portion of the premises are part of the protected wetland as defined by the Clean Water Act. Purchaser's intended use of the premises requires that he be able to prevent the westerly portion of the property is not considered wetlands.

This Agreement shall be contingent upon Seller obtaining written report issued by _____ [state] Department of Environmental Conservation that the subject premises are not a part of a protected wetland. Purchaser shall be entitled to cancel this Agreement if certification is not received on or before _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]. If certification is not received and Purchaser determines to cancel, Purchaser shall give written notice of cancellation to Seller, in person or by certified mail, return receipt requested. Upon receipt of notice of cancellation, Seller shall return any deposit made pursuant to this agreement to the Purchaser immediately.

FORM 25.58 Sale is contingent on obtaining report that soils are suitable for intended use of real property

COMMENT

This contingency is designed to protect a purchaser who intends to use the subject premises for a certain purpose which will not be feasible on a particular type of soil, e.g., soil that is very sandy or rocky. The contingency allows the purchaser to terminate the agreement if that type of soil is present. In such a case, it is highly unlikely that the purchaser will want to renegotiate the purchase price, since a very substantial (and expensive) physical change of the premises would have to be made in order for the purchaser to use the property for his intended use.

FORM

The parties hereto understand that Purchaser intends to construct _____ on the subject premises. This Agreement is contingent upon Purchaser obtaining a soils report at Purchaser's expense, showing that the premises are suitable for Purchaser's intended use. A copy of the report shall be provided to both Purchaser and Seller.

This contingency shall be deemed waived unless Purchaser shall notify Seller in writing on or before _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year], that the report indicates that the soil or other underground conditions are not suitable. Notice shall be deemed given when received by Seller, in person or by certified mail, return receipt requested. If notice is timely given, this Agreement shall be deemed canceled. All deposits made pursuant to this agreement shall be returned to Purchaser immediately.

FORM 25.59 Model definition of "hazardous substance"

COMMENT

This definition of "hazardous substance" can be used not only in agreements for the sale and purchase of real property, but also in lease agreements, mortgages, real estate-based loan agreements and related documents, etc.

The definition basically relies upon federal, state and local environmental statutes and regulations to specify the precise types of substances that are to be considered hazardous for the purposes of the sale/purchase agreement. However, the clause itself does list certain specific substances which are to be considered hazardous, including, asbestos, polychlorinated biphenyls ("PCBs") and radioactive substances. In addition, any other material or substance which has in the past or could in the future constitute a health, safety or environmental hazard to any person or property is likewise to be considered hazardous for the purposes of the sale/purchase agreement.

FORM

"Hazardous substance" means those substances which are regulated by, or form the basis of liability under, any federal, state or local environmental laws, including, without limitation, asbestos, polychlorinated biphenyls ("PCBs"), and radioactive substances, or any other material or substance which has in the past or could in the future constitute a health, safety or environmental hazard to any person or property.

FORM 25.60 Model definition of "environmental claim"

COMMENT

This definition of "environmental claim" can be used not only in agreements for the sale and purchase of real property, but also in lease agreements, mortgages, real estate-based loan agreements and related documents, etc.

An "environmental claim" is defined as any allegation, notice of violation, legal claim or order issued by any governmental authority, or by any private person, for personal injury, property damage, nuisance, contamination or other adverse effects on the environment, resulting from or based upon: (1) the release or spillage of hazardous substances into the air, water or ground; (2) the transportation, storage, treatment or disposal of hazardous substances; or (3) the violation of any environmental statute, order, regulation or permit.

FORM

"Environmental claim" means any accusation, allegation, notice of violation, claim, demand, abatement, or order of direction (conditional or otherwise) by any governmental authority or any person for personal injury (including sickness, disease or death), tangible or intangible property damage, damage to natural resources, nuisance, pollution, contamination or other adverse effects on the environment, or for fines, penalties, or restrictions, resulting from or based upon:

(1) the existence or release (including, without limitation, sudden or nonsudden, accidental or nonaccidental leaks or spills) of, or exposure to, any hazardous substance, chemical, material, pollutant, contaminant, or audible noise in, into or onto the environment (including, without limitation, the air, ground, water or any surface);

(2) the transportation, storage, treatment or disposal of hazardous substances; or

(3) the violation, or alleged violation, of any statute, ordinance, order, rule, regulation, permit or license of or from any governmental authority, agency or court relating to environmental matters.

COMMENT

The term refers to any and all liabilities, obligations, losses, damages (including punitive, consequential and treble damages), expenses (e.g., attorneys' and environmental consultants' fees), fines, penalties and interest incurred as a result of a lawsuit based on: (1) an environmental mishap that occurs on the subject property (such as the sudden release or emission of toxic gases or liquids); or (2) the discovery of an adverse environmental condition already existing on the property (such as leaking barrels of hazardous waste buried beneath the ground).

FORM

"Environmental liabilities and costs" means all liabilities, obligations, responsibilities, remedial actions, losses, damages, punitive damages, consequential damages, treble damages, costs and expenses (including, without limitation, all reasonable fees, disbursements and expenses of counsel, expert and consulting fees, and costs of investigation and feasibility studies), fines, penalties, sanctions and interest, incurred as a result of any claim or demand, by any person, whether based in contract, tort, implied or express warranty, strict liability, criminal or civil statute, including any environmental law, permit, order or agreement with a governmental authority or other person, arising from environmental, health or safety conditions, or the release of a contaminant into the environment, resulting from the past, present or future operations of a business entity.

The clause defines the term as any action taken, whether voluntarily or by government order: (1) to clean up or remove contaminants from the environment; (2) to prevent further contamination of the environment; or (3) to perform pre-remedial or post-remedial studies and investigations to determine either the nature and extent of an environmental problem, or whether remedial efforts already taken have successfully eliminated the problem.

- (1) clean up, remove, treat or in any other way address contaminants in the indoor or outdoor environment;
- (2) prevent the release or threat of release or minimize the further release of contaminants so they do not migrate or endanger or threaten to endanger public health or welfare or the indoor or outdoor environment; or

FORM 25.65 Agreement allowing purchaser to enter upon seller's property to perform construction work prior to transfer of title

COMMENT

Frequently, it is necessary for certain construction or remediation work to be completed prior to the transfer of title. For example, construction work might be necessary to remedy some dangerous condition existing on the land or in a structure. Similarly, the mortgage lender might require that the work be completed before releasing funds to the purchaser.

In any event, this agreement presumes that the purchaser will not accept title unless and until the construction work is performed. It also presumes that the purchaser will enter upon the property before the transfer of title and perform the construction work at his own expense. (This is quite common where the seller agrees to modify the original sale agreement and reduce the purchase price in the amount of the construction costs.)

While the agreement allows the purchaser to enter upon the subject premises, it places all risk of injury to person or property upon the purchaser. The agreement also allocates risk of loss for the cost of work completed in the event that transfer of title does not occur.

FORM

AGREEMENT made this ____ [day] _____ [month] ____ [year], between _____ [name], residing at _____ [address], hereafter referred to as "Seller," and _____ [name], a corporation organized under the laws of the State of _____ [state], with offices for the transaction of business at _____ [address], hereafter referred to as "Purchaser."

Seller grants Purchaser permission to enter the subject premises in order to _____ [describe construction work to be performed] prior to transfer of title. Prior to entering upon the land, Purchaser shall provide Seller with certificates of insurance in at least the amount of _____ Dollars ($_____). Said certificates of insurance shall name Seller as an additional insured and shall provide for at least _____ (_____) days' written notice to Seller prior to cancellation.

Purchaser, for himself, his agents, employees and invitees, shall hold Seller harmless for any and all claims for injury to person or property, including, but not limited to, defense costs and consequential damages arising out of or in any way related to the construction.

All work shall be performed in a workmanlike manner. The site shall be kept clear of debris. Purchaser shall not allow construction to interfere with Seller's ongoing business.

In the event that transfer of title does not occur without fault of Seller, Seller shall have no obligation to reimburse Purchaser for any construction and related costs incurred by Purchaser. Purchaser shall be obligated to leave the land in at least as good condition as prior to the commencement of the project, visually and otherwise.

If the transfer of title fails to occur through the fault of the Seller, Seller shall reimburse Purchaser for the construction costs incurred to date, up to a maximum of _____ Dollars ($_____).

5. COMMENT

This is another example of a license agreement whereby the purchaser has the right to enter onto the premises prior to closing in order to undertake certain activities, for example environmental remediation of the construction of an addition. In any event, the purchaser must be satisfied with the scope of remediation or other work as a condition to closing.

The license will expire upon the purchase of the premises or a pre-determined date. Pursuant to this agreement, the purchaser has waived all contingencies except the requirement to obtain permits.

The purchaser must obtain liability insurance with respect to the property. To ensure that seller will not incur damages by allowing purchaser to modify the premises, seller is requiring a deposit. Also, the purchaser must indemnify the seller from any damage which seller may incur by the granting of early access.

FORM

LICENSE AND INDEMNITY AGREEMENT

THIS LICENSE AND INDEMNITY AGREEMENT is made this ____ [day] day of _____ [month] ____ [year] by and between _____ [name] ("Owner") and _____ [name] ("Purchaser").

WHEREAS, Owner is the owner in fee simple of the real estate described on Exhibit A attached hereto (the "Property");

and

WHEREAS, Owner and Purchaser have entered into an Agreement of Sale dated _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year] (the "Agreement"), wherein Purchaser has agreed to purchase the Property, subject to the terms and conditions set forth therein; and

WHEREAS, prior to the transfer of legal title of the Property to Purchaser, and without expanding its obligation to purchase the Property (except as is specifically set forth herein), Purchaser desires to commence certain nonstructural modifications to the Property;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the covenants and agreements hereinafter contained the parties agree as follows:

1. Grant of License. Owner hereby grants to Purchaser, its agents, officers, employees and independent contractors a non-exclusive license on, under and over the Property for the specific purpose set forth herein. This license shall terminate upon the earlier of (i) transfer of legal title of the Property to Purchaser; or (ii) the close of business on _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year].

2. Scope of License. During the term of this License, Purchaser shall be entitled to complete, at its own risk, cost and expense, the projects generally described on Exhibit B, attached hereto (the "Work").

3. Restoration of Property. If this License shall expire, and the Agreement shall be terminated, then, unless Owner shall have willfully defaulted (as opposed to an inability to close title) under the Agreement, Purchaser will diligently proceed to restore the Property to substantially the same condition that the Property is in as of the date hereof. Owner's failure to satisfy the requirement of Paragraph 7. of this Agreement shall constitute an inability to close rather than a willful default. In lieu of restoration, the parties may agree to a monetary settlement. In which case, upon payment of such settlement, the parties will execute a mutual release evidencing the termination of the Agreement and the obligations of Purchaser hereunder. In the event that Purchaser shall be required to restore the Property, this License Agreement shall be extended for a reasonable period of time in order to allow Purchaser to complete the restoration.

4. Compliance with Laws. Purchaser shall complete the Work, lien free in compliance with all applicable laws, ordinances, rules, regulations and authorities and shall obtain, if required, all permits, consents and licenses required to complete the Work.

5. Insurance. Prior to the commencement of the Work, Purchaser will obtain a public liability insurance policy with respect to the Work in such amount as is reasonably requested by Owner. Such policy shall name Owner as an additional insured thereunder.

6. Deposit. The parties acknowledge that Purchaser has deposited the sum of _____ Dollars ($ _____) in escrow with _____ [name] (the "Initial Deposit") pursuant to the terms and conditions set forth in the Agreement. Prior to commencement of the Work, Purchaser agrees that it will deposit an additional _____ Dollars ($ _____) in escrow with _____ [name] (the "Second Deposit") to be held by _____ [name] in escrow. In the event that the transaction described in the Agreement shall be consummated, then the Initial Deposit and the Second Deposit shall be applied against the cash portion of the purchase price described in Paragraph 3.B.(i) of the Agreement. The balance of the cash purchase price shall be placed in escrow on or before _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year] (the "Third Deposit"). In the event that legal title to the Property shall not be transferred to Purchaser, then _____ [name] shall hold the Initial Deposit, the Second Deposit and the Third Deposit in escrow pending a writing signed by both parties to the effect that the Property has been restored or that a satisfactory monetary settlement has been reached, in which case interest shall follow the deposit.

7. Contingencies. Purchaser waives all contingencies set forth in the Agreement, except that the Agreement shall still be contingent upon Purchaser obtaining all necessary approvals, permits, consents and licenses in order to cause the improvements on the Property to reflect a standard Purchaser retail facility except that Purchaser reserves the right to elect not to close based upon a title problem. Owner agrees to obtain releases of items 15, 16, 17 and 18 of the Title Commitment dated _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year] issued by _____ [name]. The closing date set forth in the Agreement shall be moved up to _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year] and time is of the essence.

8. Prorations. The parties agree that notwithstanding the proration provisions set forth in the Agreement, that upon transfer of legal title of the Property to Purchaser, all items described in Paragraph 5 of the Agreement will be prorated the earlier of the date of (i) the transfer of legal title of the Property to Purchaser; or (ii) _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]. The parties agree that interest on the deferred portion of the purchase price referred to in Paragraph 3.B.(ii) of the Agreement will commence effective the proration date determined by the immediately preceding sentence.

9. Indemnity. Purchaser hereby agrees to indemnify, defend and hold harmless Owner from all reasonable costs, expenses, fees (including reasonable attorneys fees) and damages incurred by Owner with respect to the Work or arising in connection with the Work whether arising from claims of third parties, fines levied by government agencies, loss of rental value or otherwise.

10. Binding Effect. This Agreement shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the parties hereto, their successors and assigns.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have executed this License and Indemnity Agreement on the date first written, above.

FORM 25.68 Form letter ordering an inspection

COMMENT

This form is a letter by which a purchaser requests an inspection company to perform various types of inspections necessary to satisfy the contingencies which may be contained in the real estate sale agreement.

The purchaser must be very careful in setting the dates by which the inspections must be completed and results reported, so as to leave himself sufficient time to deliver notice to the seller if an adverse finding is made. If it appears that the inspections cannot be completed by the inspection company in a timely fashion, the purchaser should request a written extension from the seller immediately.

FORM

TO: _____ [name]

_____ [address]

_____ [city] _____ [state]

RE: _____ [address of subject premises]

Gentlemen:

I am the contract purchaser of the above described premises by agreement dated _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]. That agreement is contingent upon an inspection for _____. Notice of failure of the contingency must be given to seller on or before _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]. Therefore, your inspection must be complete and the report delivered to me and the seller (at the above address of the subject premises) on or before _____ [month] _____ [year]. Time is of the essence. If you cannot meet these dates, notify me immediately.

You must contact _____ [insert telephone number] to obtain access to the premises.

Please provide me with a copy of your certificate of insurance prior to entering the Seller's premises.

The contract allows you to remove _____ to facilitate your inspection. Removal and replacement are at my expense. The cost should be added to your statement for services. If that cost will exceed _____ Dollars ($ _____), or if you require an outside contractor to perform the removal and replacement, you must obtain prior approval of the cost by me.

In the event that you locate _____, please include in your report an estimate for the cost of removal, repair or abatement, as the case may be.

Very truly yours,

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.70

FORM 25.70 Notice terminating existing sale agreement due to failure of contingency--agreement contains mutual releases exchanged between parties and confidentiality requirement

COMMENT

This form contains two parts. The first part is the purchaser's written notice to the seller that an environmental contingency in the sale agreement has failed and, as a result, the purchaser desires to terminate the agreement. Such formal written notice is normally required by the sale agreement itself.

The second part is an agreement between the seller and purchaser to terminate the sale agreement. When an environmental contingency has failed, one or both parties to the sale agreement may decide not to proceed with alternative measures to complete the sale.

This agreement also provides for the return of the purchaser's deposit. In addition, the agreement also includes mutual releases exchanged between the parties for any further obligations under the sale agreement.

For the protection of the seller, the agreement has a confidentiality clause, that is, the purchaser promises not to disclose to others--especially other potential purchasers--the condition on the premises that led to the failure of the environmental contingency. Indeed, under the terms of the clause, the purchaser is not entitled to reveal any information which he learned about the seller or the subject premises during the course of the transaction. This, of course, will help prevent a future purchaser from receiving adverse information about the property that might dissuade him from buying it.

Chapter 25 ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

Part IV. FORMS

A. ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.71

FORM 25.71 Amendment to purchase agreement modifying an existing sale agreement following failure of environmental contingency--clauses: allocate responsibility for remediation and cost of remediation; specify scope of work, means of remediation, acceptable contractors for repair, and methods to be used to assure that remediation is complete; allocate liability for injury to person or property during remediation; set forth insurance requirements and allow access to premises

COMMENT

This amendment is designed for use when a contingency fails and the parties still desire to complete the transaction. Although neither party has any obligations, they chose instead to press on with the purchase of the property by negotiating an amendment to the purchase agreement.

The amendment to the purchase agreement modifies the existing agreement. The amendment designates the party that will take responsibility for making the repairs, removing the asbestos-containing insulation, exterminating the insects, etc. The agreement also specifies the party (or parties) that will pay the cost of remediation and how that cost will be allocated. For example, the amendment might provide that the purchaser will pay a lower purchase price, but assume responsibility for all repairs. In the alternative, the seller might undertake the repairs and require the same purchase price.

The amendment should specify, in detail, the nature and scope of the repair work to be performed, especially if it is to be performed before transfer of title. Such specificity is important to the seller because a danger always exists in real estate deals that transfer of title will never take place; in that event, the seller does not want to be left with a repair job that may have satisfied his prospective purchaser, but clearly does not satisfy the seller or a future purchaser.

The parties should take great care in selecting the contractor who will perform the work. If transfer of title does not take place, the seller will become the owner of the contractor's work.

Obviously, if the deal closes, purchaser will own the property and be the beneficiary of the work.

FORM

THIS AMENDMENT is made this ____ [day] day of ____ [month] ____ [year], between ____ [name], residing at ____ [address] (hereafter referred to as "Seller"), and
____ [name], residing at ____ [address] (hereafter referred to as "Purchaser").

WHEREAS, the parties hereto entered into an agreement dated ____ [month] ____ [day] ____ [year], for the purchase and sale of the real property and premises commonly known as ____ [address] (hereafter "property"); and

WHEREAS, the agreement contains a contingency in Paragraph ____ thereof for
____; and

WHEREAS, the inspection report dated ____ [month] ____ [day] ____ [year], shows the presence of
____; and

WHEREAS, Purchaser has the right to cancel the agreement, but instead the parties desire to modify the agreement,

NOW, in consideration of the mutual promises contained herein, it is agreed as follows:

[Alternative One: Purchase Price Reduced; Purchaser to Undertake Repairs After Transfer of Title]

1. The agreement dated ____ [month] ____ [day] ____ [year], shall be modified as follows:

(a) The purchase price, as set forth in Paragraph ____ thereof, shall be reduced by ____ Dollars ($____) to the sum of ____ Dollars
($____). Purchaser shall accept the property in its "AS IS," "WHERE IS" condition WITH ALL FAULTS. Purchaser shall be responsible for taking whatever actions may be required to repair the conditions set forth in the inspection report dated ____ [month] ____ [day] ____ [year], after transfer of title.

(b) Purchaser shall indemnify and hold Seller harmless for any and all claims for injury to person or property from the date of transfer of title onward arising out of or in any way related to the condition, the repair thereof, or the failure to repair.

2. All other provisions of the said agreement dated ____ [month] ____ [day] ____ [year], shall remain in effect except as modified herein. In the event of any conflict, the provisions of this modification shall supersede and take precedence over any provisions contained in the original agreement dated ____ [month] ____ [day] ____ [year].

[Alternative Two: Seller to Undertake Repairs Before Transfer of Title]

1. The Agreement dated ____ [month] ____ [day] ____ [year], shall be modified as follows:

(a) It shall be the responsibility of Seller to eliminate [or reduce or repair] the condition noted in the inspection report dated ____ [month] ____ [day] ____ [year].

(b) The parties shall obtain an estimate for the work to be performed from a contractor to be agreed upon. If the parties cannot agree upon a contractor, they shall each obtain a sealed estimate from a reputable contractor. The contractor submitting the lower bid shall be selected. Seller shall enter into an agreement for the work to be performed.

(c) The work to be performed is described in Schedule "A," annexed hereto.

(d) Seller shall pay the cost of work to be performed up to the sum of _____ Dollars ($_____). Any cost above that shall be the responsibility of the Purchaser [or shall be shared equally by Seller and Purchaser].

(e) The agreement with the contractor shall require that he maintain liability insurance coverage in at least the amount of _____ Dollars ($_____). That agreement shall further provide that Seller and Purchaser shall be an additional named insured. That agreement shall further contain a hold harmless provision protecting Seller and Purchaser for any liability for injury to person or property arising out of the contractor's work.

(f) Upon completion of the contractor's work and prior to his last payment, an additional inspection shall be performed by the same party who performed the inspection dated _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]. This inspection shall be performed at the expense of _____. If the inspection shows the condition to be eliminated [or repaired or sufficiently reduced], the contractor shall be paid. The parties hereto shall proceed toward transfer of title as set forth in the original agreement.

If the condition is not eliminated [or repaired or sufficiently reduced], the contractor shall be required to continue his performance until he has eliminated [or repaired or sufficiently reduced] the condition or until it is shown that the condition has not been eliminated [or repaired or sufficiently reduced] even though the work in Schedule A has been properly completed. Purchaser [or Seller] shall pay for all inspections required under this paragraph.

In the event that after the work described in Schedule A has been completed and all good faith efforts have been expended, and the condition has not been eliminated [or repaired or sufficiently reduced], Purchaser may elect to cancel this modification and the original agreement. Purchaser shall give notice of election to cancel as specified in the original agreement dated _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]. Purchaser shall nevertheless be obligated to pay any sums due under Paragraph 1(d) hereof.

(g) Seller agrees to provide access to the property to the contractor, the inspector, their agents and employees at reasonable hours.

2. All other provisions of the said agreement dated _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year], shall remain in effect except as modified herein. In the event of any conflict, the provisions of this modification shall supersede and take precedence over any provisions contained in the original agreement dated _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year].

[Alternative Three: Purchase Price Reduced; Purchaser to Undertake Repairs Before Transfer of Title]

1. The Agreement dated _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year], shall be modified as follows:

(a) The purchase price as contained in Paragraph _____ thereof shall be reduced by _____ Dollars ($_____) to the sum of _____ Dollars ($_____). Purchaser shall be responsible for elimination [or repair or reduction] of the condition noted in the inspection report dated _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year].

(b) Since Purchaser's mortgage lender will not release the mortgage funds until the condition is eliminated [or repaired or sufficiently reduced], the Seller hereby grants Purchaser the right to have the work described in Schedule A performed prior to transfer of title.

(c) The work shall be performed at Purchaser's sole expense.

(d) Seller shall forthwith provide Purchaser with the names and addresses of at least four contractors whom he deems acceptable. Purchaser may enter into a contract for the work described in Schedule A with any contractor contained on Seller's list. In the event that Purchaser does not find any of these contractors acceptable, or willing to contract, he may propose a list to Seller. In the event Seller does not approve any of Purchaser's proposed contractors, Purchaser may elect to cancel this modification and the original agreement. Purchaser shall give notice of election to cancel as specified in the original agreement dated _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year].

(e) If Seller and Purchaser agree upon a contractor, the agreement with the contractor shall contain the following provisions:

(i) the scope of the work, as set forth in Schedule A;

(ii) that contractor will provide a guarantee of the work for a period of at least _____ (_____) years;

(iii) that contractor will provide liability [and casualty] insurance in the amount of at least _____
Dollars ($_____), naming Seller and Purchaser as additional insureds;

(iv) that contractor will hold Seller and Purchaser harmless for any liability for injury to person or property arising out of the contractor's work. Such hold harmless provision must be in a form that is acceptable to Purchaser's and Seller's attorneys;

(v) that all work shall be performed in a workmanlike manner;

(vi) that the contractor shall be the agent of Purchaser and not Seller.

(f) Purchaser shall indemnify and hold Seller harmless for any claim of liability (including legal fees) for injury to person or property arising out of or in connection with the work to be performed by the contractor. This shall include indemnification for failure to complete the work properly.

(g) Purchaser, at his sole cost and expense, may have additional inspections performed at the completion of contractor's work to insure that the condition has been eliminated [or repaired or sufficiently reduced]. If the condition has not been eliminated [or repaired or sufficiently reduced], Purchaser may elect to cancel the original agreement by giving notice as set forth therein. In the event of cancellation, Purchaser shall not be relieved of the obligation to pay contractor or of the indemnification provisions contained in Paragraph 1, above. Purchaser shall not be entitled to any repayment of any funds expended under this modification agreement, in the event of cancellation.

2. All other provisions of the said agreement dated _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year], shall remain in effect as modified herein. In the event of any conflict, the provisions of this modification shall supersede and take precedence over any provisions contained in the original agreement dated _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year].

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties hereto have set their hands and seals the day and year first above written.

FORM 25.72 Amendment allowing for additional time to obtain estimates for cost of remediation and to obtain further technical information

COMMENT

This amendment is designed for use when a contingency has failed, or appears to have failed, and the parties need more time and information in order to determine whether to proceed with the original purchase and sale agreement.

Firstly, the form allocates responsibilities for obtaining the estimates and extra information. In addition, it preserves the purchaser's rights by extending his time limit for terminating the original sale agreement in the event that a mutually-agreeable solution cannot be reached by the parties.

By using the form that follows, the parties need not cancel an otherwise perfectly good sale and purchase agreement due to a lack of time and information.

FORM

THIS AMENDMENT is made this ____ [day] day of _____ [month] ____ [year], between ____ [name], residing at _____ [address] (hereafter referred to as "Seller"), and
____ [name], residing at _____ [address] (hereafter referred to as "Purchaser").

WHEREAS, the parties hereto have entered into an agreement dated ____ [day] day of _____ [month] ____ [year], for the purchase and sale of the real property described therein (the "Agreement"); and

WHEREAS, Paragraph _____ of the Agreement contains an inspection contingency; and

WHEREAS, the inspection report dated _____ [day] day of _____ [month] _____ [year] has not been approved by purchaser; and

WHEREAS, the contingency period is about to expire and the parties hereto do not wish to cancel the agreement at this time;

NOW, in consideration of the mutual promises contained herein, it is agreed as follows:

1. The time in which to satisfy the contingency or timely cancel the agreement for purchase and sale is hereby extended to _____ [day] day of _____ [month] _____ [year].
2. Within _____ (_____) days of this Agreement, Seller shall obtain estimates for remediation and such other relevant and pertinent information from regarding the effects of the condition found and the methods of remediating the condition. Said information shall be provided to Purchaser promptly.
3. The parties agree to use reasonable business efforts to reach a modification to the original agreement so as to remediate the condition and proceed toward transfer of title. However, nothing contained herein shall be construed to prevent Purchaser from canceling the original agreement by giving notice as specified in the original contract on or before the date specified in Paragraph 1 hereof.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties hereto have set their hands and seals the day and year first above written.

Chapter 25 ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

Part IV. FORMS

A. ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.73

FORM 25.73 Clean up agreement between seller and purchaser--seller assumes financial responsibility for clean up--clean up to occur prior to closing

COMMENT

The agreement below presumes that two parties have already entered into a contract for the sale and purchase of a warehouse. That contract contained a clause making the transaction contingent upon the results of an environmental site assessment performed by the purchaser. The environmental site assessment has now been performed, and it revealed the existence of an adverse environmental condition on the subject premises. Under the terms of the sale-purchase agreement, the purchaser is free to terminate the agreement. However, after negotiations with the seller, he has decided to move ahead with the deal, provided the seller, at his own expense, eliminates the adverse condition prior to closing.

Accordingly, the parties have entered into the agreement set forth below. The seller agrees to hire two environmental consultants--one of the purchaser's choosing and the other of the seller's choosing--who together will formulate a clean-up plan and locate an environmental contractor to implement it. Upon completion of the clean up, the purchaser's environmental consultant shall inspect the premises and determine whether the clean up has been successful. If it has, then the two parties will choose a date for the closing of the sale-purchase. If the clean up has not been successful, then the purchaser is free to terminate the contract of sale and purchase.

FORM

Agreement entered into this day, the ____ [day] day of _____ [month], ____ [year], between _____ [name], located at _____ [address], hereafter referred to as "Seller," and _____ [name], located at _____ [address], hereafter referred to as "Purchaser."

I. Adverse Environmental Condition

Seller and Purchaser have previously entered into an agreement for the sale and purchase of a warehouse located at _____ [address]. Said agreement, dated _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year], made the sale and purchase contingent upon the results of an environmental site assessment conducted by the Purchaser's agents. Such environmental site assessment was conducted on _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year], by _____ [name]. The environmental site assessment revealed the presence of _____ [describe condition].

A copy of the environmental site assessment has previously been submitted to the Seller, who does not deny that such drums of hydrochloric acid are, in fact, present on the subject premises. Purchaser hereby states, and Seller agrees, that the foregoing condition on the subject premises constitutes an adverse environmental condition, entitling Purchaser to immediately terminate the agreement of sale and purchase. Nonetheless, Purchaser desires to go forward with the purchase of the subject premises, provided that seller agrees to fulfill the duties set forth below:

II. Seller's Obligation

Seller hereby agrees to promptly enlist the services of an environmental consultant who, together with an environmental consultant designated by the Purchaser, shall devise a plan for the remediation. Such consultants shall also determine the condition of any containers on the premises in order to ascertain whether any drum has leaked, causing contamination of the subject premises. If leakage and contamination of the premises has occurred, the consultants shall determine the exact nature and severity of such contamination and devise a clean up plan to completely eliminate the contamination.

In addition, the consultants shall engage the services of a fully licensed environmental contractor who specializes in cleaning up toxic substances. Such contractor shall remediate the condition, including the soil, storage shed, or part thereof, that has been contaminated by leakage. The consultants shall set forth, in writing, the clean up plan to be followed by the contractor, including standards to be met, instructions to be followed, and an approved method of disposal of the drums (and contaminated soil and debris).

The consultants shall also see to it that any and all requirements imposed by relevant federal, state and local environmental laws and regulations are fully satisfied.

Any and all costs arising from the foregoing activities, including the cost of the services provided by the Purchaser's environmental consultant, shall be the sole responsibility of the Seller.

III. Purchaser's Approval

The clean up plan devised by the two environmental consultants shall be submitted to Purchaser for its approval. If Purchaser approves of the plan, then the Seller shall enter into a contract with the environmental contractor to execute the plan. Any and all costs arising from the execution of the clean up plan by the contractor shall be the sole responsibility of the Seller.

The contract between the Seller and the environmental contractor shall provide that the latter shall obtain liability insurance in an amount designated by the Purchaser, and that such policy shall name the Purchaser among the insureds. In addition, the contract shall provide that the Purchaser and its agents shall reserve the right to observe the clean up efforts as they are occurring.

IV. Closing Date

Upon the completion of the clean up efforts, but under no circumstances more than _____ (_____) days following the execution of this agreement, the Seller shall notify the Purchaser that the clean up efforts have been completed in accordance with all applicable laws. Upon receipt of such notification, the Purchaser shall have _____ (_____) days in which to dispatch its environmental consultant to the subject premises and conduct an examination of said premises to determine whether the clean up plan has been fully and successfully implemented.

If the environmental consultant is satisfied that the clean up work has been fully and successfully implemented, then the Purchaser shall promptly notify the Seller of this fact. Thereupon, Seller and Purchaser shall select a date for the closing of the sale and purchase of the subject premises.

If, on the other hand, the Purchaser's environmental consultant is not satisfied that the clean up work has been fully and successfully implemented, then the Purchaser shall promptly notify the Seller of this fact. Thereupon, the Purchaser shall have the option of terminating the agreement of sale and purchase or, alternatively, of entering into a new agreement with the Seller regarding the clean up of the subject premises.

V. Miscellaneous Provisions

1. Arbitration. Any controversy or claim arising out of or relating to this Agreement, or its breach, shall be settled by arbitration in the City of _____ [city] in accordance with the then-governing rules of the American Arbitration Association. Judgment upon the award rendered may be entered and enforced in any court of competent jurisdiction.

2. Waiver of Breach. A waiver of the breach of any provision of this agreement shall not operate or be construed as a waiver of any subsequent breach. No waiver shall be valid unless it is in writing and signed by the party granting the waiver, or by that party's designated representative.

3. Assignment. Neither party may assign its rights or delegate its duties or obligations under this agreement.

4. Entire Agreement. This agreement contains the entire understanding of the parties regarding the environmental clean up of the subject premises, and shall supersede all other prior written or oral agreements. It may not be changed orally, but only by an instrument signed by the party against whom enforcement of any change, modification, extension, or discharge is sought.

5. Headings. Headings in this agreement are for convenience only and shall not be used to interpret or construe its provisions.

6. Counterparts. This agreement may be executed in two or more counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original but all of which together shall constitute one and the same instrument.

7. Notices. All notices to be given hereunder shall be addressed to the respective parties at the addresses designated herein on Page 1 of this agreement, and sent by certified mail, return receipt requested. Notice shall be deemed given by mail on the date of mailing hereof.

8. This agreement is made subject to all federal, state and municipal laws or regulations now or hereafter in force and shall be construed in accordance with the laws of the State of _____ [state].

Chapter 25 ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

Part IV. FORMS

A. ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.74

FORM 25.74 Agreement to perform environmental site assessment

COMMENT

This form is an agreement for an environmental site assessment. It sets forth, in very specific terms, the work to be performed by the environmental engineer (or other environmental consultant) and how it will be performed. The form also sets forth items which are specifically excluded from the scope of the assessment, such as soil testing.

With regard to payment, the form sets out the fee for the engineer's services and states when payment is required. It also provides for a quantum meruit payment in the event that the purchaser cancels the agreement after partial performance by the engineer. (Such cancellation might occur if a contingency in the sale and purchase agreement were to fail, e.g., where the purchaser is unable to obtain a mortgage at an acceptable interest rate.)

It is common practice for lenders to require an environmental site assessment as a condition of making a mortgage loan to a purchaser. Such an assessment is also required when the purchaser wants to obtain environmental insurance to protect himself or the lender against the economic consequences of the discovery of an adverse environmental condition on the premises after the transfer of title.

In the event that the environmental site assessment turns up evidence that there might be an adverse environmental condition on the premises, this agreement can be modified to have the engineer undertake whatever additional work may be necessary to make a definitive determination. This work might include laboratory testing of ground water or soil samples, or analysis of the composition of material removed from a building, such as insulation. If such work is necessary, the parties would simply execute a written amendment or addendum to this agreement, specifying the scope of the additional work, the added cost and payment terms.

FORM

THIS AGREEMENT made this ____ [day] day of _____ [month] ____ [year], between _____ [name], (hereafter referred to as "Engineer"), and _____ [name], (hereafter referred to as "Purchaser").

WHEREAS, Purchaser is the contract vendee of a certain parcel of real property and premises commonly known as _____ [address] (hereafter referred to as "subject premises");

WHEREAS, Engineer is in the business of performing environmental site assessments;

NOW, in consideration of the mutual promises contained herein, it is agreed as follows:

1. Scope of Work. Engineer will undertake the following tasks to determine whether there is any evidence of significant adverse environmental impact due to past or present practices or releases of hazardous material on the subject premises:

(a) Review of any maps which may be available which show adjacent property. These may include United States Geological Maps, maps filed in the _____ [county] County Clerk's Office, development maps filed with the Planning Office of the City of _____ [city], maps filed with the Department of Environmental Protection of the State of _____ [state], and maps filed with the _____ [county] County Health Department. It is unknown at this time whether any or all of the above maps may be in existence.

(b) Review of the title search of the property to determine the identity of previous owners. This title search will be provided to Engineer by Purchaser at Purchaser's expense.

(c) Personal interviews with:

(i) current owner to determine his use of the premises;

(ii) as many owners as can be reasonably located within a _____ (_____) mile radius from the site or by telephone, to determine past uses of the premises;

(iii) representatives of the police department, fire department, sanitation department, and health department, to determine whether any records exist regarding environmental conditions or incidents existing or occurring on the subject premises or adjacent land;

(iv) occupants of neighboring properties to determine use of premises and neighboring land and whether any significant incidents can be recalled.

(d) Review of state and federal records of hazardous waste sites and other environmentally significant events.

(e) Personal inspection of the subject premises.

It is understood that no soil samples or other testing will be performed as part of this environmental site assessment. If Engineer discovers any piece of information which he reasonably believes warrants further investigation, he shall promptly notify Purchaser. Such further investigation shall be performed as part of an amendment to this Agreement, to be negotiated and executed prior to commencement of the further investigation.

2. Findings. Engineer shall present his findings in written form on or before _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]. Time is of the essence. In the event Purchaser cancels this Agreement after performance has begun, Engineer shall be entitled to a fee of _____ Dollars ($ _____) per hour for time expended to the date of cancellation, together with disbursements, as described above. The non-refundable deposit shall be applied to this amount. The balance, if any, shall be due and payable to Engineer upon his rendering of his statement for services.

4. Confidentiality. Engineer agrees not to discuss his findings or provide copies of his findings to anyone other than Purchaser, without the written authorization of Purchaser. Engineer acknowledges that Purchaser is under a contractual obligation to Seller to maintain confidentiality with regard to anything which he may learn about the subject premises. Engineer, for himself and his employees, agrees to comply with the confidentiality requirements.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, nothing contained herein shall prohibit Engineer from testifying before a duly constituted body of any state or federal government under compulsion of subpoena regarding his work or findings. Engineer shall provide a copy of the environmental site assessment to the owner at the premises address.

5. Representations of Engineer.

(a) Engineer represents that he is qualified to undertake the work contemplated under this Agreement.

(b) The work will be performed in a professional manner, using generally acceptable practices in this field at this time.

FORM 25.75 Proposal to perform Phase I environmental site assessment

COMMENT

The following is a proposal for an environmental consulting firm to conduct a Phase I environmental assessment. A contract will be formed if the proposal is accepted. The project is the renovation and expansion of an existing grocery store. The proposal consists of a cover letter with a very detailed scope of services attached.

FORM

_____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]

_____ [name]
_____ [address]
_____ [address]

Subject: Proposal for Limited Phase I Environmental Site Assessment Grocery Store located at _____ [address] (the "Property")

Dear Mr./Mrs. _____ [name]:

_____ [name] (the "Firm") is pleased to submit this proposal to perform a limited Phase I environmental site assessment on the property and the adjacent store area west of the store. This proposal is in response to your letter request for Mr. _____ [name] of the Firm to conduct a Phase I environmental site assessment for the above-referenced property.

PROJECT INFORMATION

The Firm understands that _____ (name of Owner/Tenant) hereinafter "Owner") is interested in renovating and expanding its existing food store from the present _____ sq. ft. to a total area of _____ sq. ft. The proposed expansion area is adjacent to and west of the present store. The Firm understands that the expansion area is an existing _____ sq. ft. storeroom area. Some of the storerooms in the expansion area are already occupied.

PROPOSED SCOPE OF WORK

It is the Firm's understanding that Owner would like a limited Phase I environmental site assessment (non-ASTM Standard) conducted on the above-discussed property. This assessment will include interior and exterior inspection of the _____ sq. ft. building, as well as an interior and exterior reconnaissance of the _____ sq. ft. proposed expansion area.

An asbestos assessment of the Owner's retail building and the expansion area will be part of this project, as per Owner's request. The Firm will subcontract the services of a certified asbestos sampling, testing and abatement firm to conduct the asbestos sampling and testing.

Owner has its own specifications for a Phase I Environmental Survey which it prefers to have used when conducting work on its properties. These specifications will be followed to the extent requested by Owner for this particular project. The Firm understands that Owner desires a limited survey excluding the historical and wetlands investigations. Owner also indicated that the local governmental and state EPA file review discussions should be concerned with the subject site and its immediate vicinity only. The Owner assessment specifications, as outlined below (pursuant to the aforementioned telephone discussion with Owner) are similar to the Firm format for limited Phase I assessments (also outlined below). We will use the Owner limited format for this assessment, unless the Firm format provides for additional detail above and beyond what is requested in the Owner format.

The work that is to be completed for this limited Phase I environmental site assessment, based on the modified Owner and the Firm format for this type of project, is outlined in the attached Scope of Services.

COST ESTIMATE

The estimated maximum cost to conduct the limited assessment tasks outlined in the Scope of Services for the Project is _____ Dollars ($_____). The estimated costs are based on our limited background knowledge of the retail building and property as previously described and on the intended scope of work. Costing for each individual task is also presented in the Scope of Services.

CLOSING

The Firm is prepared to conduct this environmental project in accordance with the accompanying Scope of Services. We have also included two copies of the Firm's Work Authorization Form and copies of the Firm's General Terms and Conditions and a Schedule of Charges. If this Project Agreement is satisfactory to Owner, please sign and date both copies of the Work Authorization Form; keep one copy for your files and return the second copy to the Firm.

We are prepared to begin work on this assessment project upon receipt of written authorization from Owner. We will provide you with a written assessment report within _____ (_____) weeks of the site visit providing we have timely cooperation of state, local and federal agencies.

The Firm will perform this assessment project on a time and materials basis in accordance with the attached Standard Fee Schedule. Our budget will not exceed the above-referenced maximum cost estimate without prior authorization from the Owner.

We appreciate the opportunity to present this proposal and cost estimate and hope that our proposed services are responsive to your needs. Please do not hesitate to contact us should you have any questions concerning this proposal.

Very truly yours,

 _____ [name]

SCOPE OF SERVICES

PROJECT ELEMENT: LIMITED PHASE I ENVIRONMENTAL SITE ASSESSMENT

Objective:

- To perform a limited Phase I environmental site assessment to identify existing and potential environmental liabilities at the Property.

Scope of Services:

The Firm will perform the following services on the Owner's store and adjacent storeroom area in accordance with the limited standardized Owner Phase I Environmental Assessment Specifications:

1. SITE RECONNAISSANCE -- A site reconnaissance providing a physical description of the site and relevant environmental characteristics with special attention for signs of mismanagement and/or disposal of hazardous substances (i.e., unusual depressions, ravines, stains on the ground, or dying vegetation). In addition, the ownership and status of on-site power transformers will be identified. An inspection for the current presence of or pre-existence of underground storage tanks (USTs) both on site and on surrounding properties will be performed.

2. LOCAL AND FEDERAL GOVERNMENT FILE REVIEW -- Local and state environmental and health agencies will be contacted to review their files concerning the site property and surrounding areas. In addition, the presence of CERCLIS and National Priorities Lists (NPL) sites within a _____ (_____) mile radius of the site. Most of this information will be obtained through services offered by an environmental database records consultant. Our experience has shown that responses to requests in Items 3 and 4 of this Scope of Services commonly are not received by the time the first draft report is presented to the client.

3. STATE EPA FILE REVIEW -- The appropriate regional state environmental protection agency (EPA) office or equivalent, will be contacted to verify whether the site or nearby properties are on any list of known hazardous wastes sites (including landfill, major industries, wetlands, etc.). Again, most of this information will be obtained through an environmental database consultant.

4. ADJOINING PROPERTY SITE RECONNAISSANCE -- The Firm will visually examine adjoining properties to determine current and previous uses and the potential for problems.

5. ASBESTOS ASSESSMENT -- The intent of the asbestos assessment is to determine the presence of asbestos-containing materials (ACM). This study will include destructive sampling; therefore, items such as roofing, ceiling, and floor materials will be collected, if warranted.

The scope of work for the asbestos assessment will include the following:

- A cursory inspection of Owner's store to positively identify ACM which may be present.
- Each such material will be touched to determine its friability. (A material is considered friable if it can be crushed with hand pressure; if it cannot, it is non-friable).
- Identify homogeneous areas of friable and non-friable suspect ACM.
- Collect representative bulk samples of suspect sources of ACM as required to document the presence of asbestos in these materials.
- Analyze the bulk samples by polarized-light microscopy and dispersion staining in accordance with the prescribed EPA analytical protocol at an EPA accredited laboratory.
- Provide for future references a source document of the inspection that identifies and quantifies the asbestos-containing materials located within the store.

The sampling program is based on the assumption that Owner's samples will be collected for analyses. The exact number of samples cannot be determined until all areas have been surveyed and the suspect sources have been identified. If additional samples are necessary to fully document the extent of asbestos usage, Owner will be notified and asked to approve a request to collect and analyze additional samples. If fewer than _____ (_____) bulk samples are collected, Owner will be billed accordingly.

Asphalt floor tile and vinyl flooring may be difficult to analyze by polarized light microscopy because of the matrix in these materials. If these materials prove to be negative in asbestos composition by this testing method, we may recommend that they be analyzed by transmission electron microscopy. This additional analysis will be conducted only upon Owner's consent. This method of treating floor materials has proven to be the most cost effective.

The results of this survey will be incorporated into the assessment report, as discussed below.

6. ASSESSMENT REPORT -- An environmental site assessment report will be prepared that will summarize the results of our assessment of the Property and the retail building. This assessment report will detail the findings of the site reconnaissance and the acquired background information as outlined above.

The findings will include all potential problems that were further analyzed through local government and EPA file review, as identified above.

Each potential problem will be dismissed with an appropriate explanation:

(i.e., use of adjacent property as a service station is not a concern because all tanks are currently in compliance, facility is only _____ (_____) years old, no releases have been reported, etc.)

(i.e., previous use of adjacent site as a service station remains a potential problem because business operated prior to UST requirements. No records of tank removal are available nor were neighbors able to recall if tanks were removed, etc.)

As a minimum, the conclusion in the report will assign potential risk for the property based on the following classifications:

- No Potential Risk: No potential problems were identified on the site, no potential problems were identified on adjacent sites, no CERCLIS or NPL sites in the immediate area.
- Low Potential Risk: Potential problems were identified but dismissed based on further investigation and analysis of available facts and information.
- High Potential Risk: Potential problems were not resolved to the point of being dismissed. Further analysis of potential problems is beyond the scope of the Phase I survey. Further investigation (Phase II Environmental Survey) required.

All supporting documents will be included as an addendum to the report, if practical, or referenced as to the source in the text of the report. The Firm will not include the large quantity of computerized data that is usually produced in the standard federal-level data base searches. Only the "negative" data produced in these searches, that document the existence of a potential problem, will be included with the report. The remaining data will be kept on file at the Firm's office, unless the Owner requests the data file.

The complete report will be prepared and submitted to Owner within _____ (_____) weeks following the site reconnaissance. An original and _____ (_____) copies of the final report of the investigation will be issued to Owner as the final work produced for the project.

Firm's Scope of Services:

The scope of services outlined herein represents the minimum program developed in response to your request for services. As results from site reconnaissance, records review and interviews are obtained, changes may be recommended to you for consideration as Additional Services. Due to the elusive nature of hazardous and solid wastes, the services and opinions rendered by the Firm are not guaranteed to be a representation of the actual site conditions, contamination, or costs (including those associated with cleanup efforts (which are subject to change with time as a result of natural and man-made processes.

Services not expressly set forth herein are excluded from the scope of the Firm's services and The Firm assumes no duty to the Client to perform such services. Unless specifically delineated, this scope excludes testing for the presence of lead, radon, or any other airborne pollutants.

1. A site reconnaissance of the property will be conducted to obtain information indicating the likelihood of Recognized Environmental Conditions at the site. This consists of site visit to visually and physically observe the property and any structure(s) on the property, to the extent they are not obstructed by adjacent buildings, bodies of water, weather conditions, concrete paving/asphalt, or other obstacles.

The Firm's Scope of Services for a Phase I environmental assessment typically includes the following:

- Review available site historical information provided to the Firm by the current owner or others. However, as requested by Owner, an historical investigation of the site will not be conducted at this time.

- Conduct limited interviews, if necessary, with available persons who are knowledgeable about past or present activities at the site.

- Review the property for evidence of spills and leaks, such as discolored soils, barren ground, vegetative stress, unusual odors, disturbed soils, surface debris; and for indications of the presence of underground storage tanks (USTs). Site photographs may be taken to document the condition of the property at the time the investigation was conducted.

- Perform a walk-through of buildings on-site to identify chemical storage areas and waste generation and management areas. This will include an attempt to visually identify where electrical service components (transformers and capacitors) may have been used, for the possible presence of PCBs.

- Review contiguous land uses to visually identify possible sources of contamination, such as drum storage areas, waste handling operations, etc.

- Review the Federal RCRA Generators list to identify if the subject property or its adjoining neighbors are listed. Review the Federal ERWS List to identify if the subject property is listed.

- Review the National Priorities List (NPL) and the Federal RCRA TSD List for listings of sites within _____ (_____) mile(s) of the subject property. The Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Index System (CERCLIS) listings for known or suspected contamination sites within _____ (_____) miles of the property.

- Contact appropriate state or local agencies in person, by telephone, or in writing to obtain the following information (if available):

- Correspondence or documents regarding environmental issues at the subject property (enforcement actions, compliance inspections, etc.).

- A list of active and inactive municipal waste landfills within a _____ (_____) mile radius of the property.

- State lists of hazardous waste sites identified for investigation or remediation within _____ (_____) mile(s) of the property.

-- State registered UST lists (for subject property and neighbors).

-- State leading UST lists (_____) (_____) mile(s)).

- The Firm will issue a report for the site, detailing the results of the Environmental Site Assessment, including recommendations for further investigation (if necessary). The report will also contain (as appendices) copies of pertinent documents regarding the site, and significant photographs taken during the site visit.

The Owner is advised that the Scope of Services described in this proposal is for a limited "Phase I" Environmental Site Assessment, which is a LIMITED INQUIRY into a property's environmental status. An Environmental Site Assessment report will summarize our findings and opinions with respect to the potential for environmental impairment and/or liability which may be associated with Recognized Environmental Conditions at a site. The findings and opinions will be based on information which is available and obtained at the time of the assessment through site reconnaissance, standard investigatory techniques used in the industry at this time, records review and other related activities. It is possible that other information exists or subsequently becomes known which may impact or change the site assessment after observation. Further, the scope of services described in this proposal and the pool of knowledge in the industry at this time may not be sufficient to discover all possible sources of environmental liability. Additional investigation, including invasive testing, can reduce your risks, but no techniques now commonly employed can provide 100% assurance that all contaminants or risks will be identified. Generally speaking, the more extensive the testing, the more likely it is that sources of risk/contamination will be identified, but how much testing must be done is a matter of cost/benefit analysis dependent upon you. For these reasons, the Firm cannot under any circumstances make a statement of warranty or guarantee, express or implied, that the site is free of environmental impairment, hazardous materials or "clean." This statement is not meant to compromise the findings of our report; rather it is meant as a statement of limitations within the intended scope of this assessment.

The Firm will perform the Services in a manner consistent with the level of care and skill ordinarily exercised by members of the profession currently practicing in the same locality under similar conditions. The Firm makes no other representation, expressed or implied, and no warranty or guarantee is included or intended in any report, opinion, or document regarding the results to be achieved upon completion of these services. The Services hereunder will not confirm to ASTM "Standard Practice for Environmental Site Assessments: Transaction Screen Process; Designation E 1528-93" or ASTM "Standard for Environmental Site Assessments: Phase I Environmental Site Assessment Process; Designation E 1527-93" unless so specified in the Scope of Services, in which case the fees for the Services will be increased accordingly. Anything not specifically included in the Scope of Services is excluded.

Cost Estimate:

The estimated maximum cost to complete the Scope of Services outlined above is _____ Dollars ($_____).

The actual charges will be based on the level of effort required and will be invoiced at the unit rates indicated on the attached Schedule of Charges. The total cost will not exceed _____ Dollars ($_____), without prior written approval from the Owner.

Basis for Cost Estimate:

• The Firm staff will spend up to _____ (_____) full day(s) in the field to review the site and surrounding area and to visit the local agencies to acquire relevant documents.

■ Owner will again provide the Firm with names and telephone numbers of individuals that The Firm will contact, if necessary, to arrange to have facility personnel who are knowledgeable of past and present operations at the facility available for interview by The Firm personnel at the time of the site visit.

- The visual observation of the contiguous properties will focus on obvious evidence of problems. No detailed investigations of these properties are included.

- No sample collection or analysis for PCBs is included in this proposal.

- The site tenant will allow the Firm personnel to photograph their operations.

• No more than _____ (_____) ACM samples will be analyzed with a standard laboratory turn-around time of _____ (_____) days.

FORM 25.77 Proposal to Obtain a No Further Action Letter on a Contaminated Property

COMMENT

This proposal involves six separate tasks. It starts with the engineer performing various assessments on or about the property. The next steps are remediation of the property. Last, it involves submitting the property into the state's voluntary action program and obtaining a no further action letter. A no further action letter is a letter from the applicable governmental authority stating that the authority will not take any further action with respect to the condition which was to be remediated and submitted to the authority for approval.

The governmental agency typically will not do any testing, but will rely upon the reports submitted by the engineering firm. Of course, the governmental agency can always conduct an audit or investigation of the reports before it issues the letter. Additionally, the submitting engineer's credentials may need to be approved by the governmental agency in advance of the submission.

Subject: [insert description, e.g. Proposed Tasks and Estimated Costs & Timing to Forward the _____ property (the "Property") Through _____ [insert name of state]'s Voluntary Action Program ("VAP")]

Dear Mr. _____ [name]:

In accordance with our recent discussions with _____ [name], _____ [name of consultant] ("Consultant") is pleased to submit for your consideration this proposal for professional services. We propose to provide these professional services to _____ [name] (the "Client"), in accordance with the provisions outlined below.

BACKGROUND

Earlier this month, Consultant completed a review of certain environmental documents prepared by others relating to the environmental condition of the Property. From this review it would appear:

- Unconsolidated soils in three areas (referred to in this proposal as the "NW Sump Area," the "Chip Hopper Area," and the "Exterior Area East of Machine Shop") contained concentrations of one or more volatile organic compounds (VOCs) in excess of probable "applicable standards" under the VAP.
- Groundwater beneath (and slightly downgradient of) the NW Sump Area contains concentrations of one or more VOCs in excess of VAP Generic Unrestricted Potable Use Standards (GUPUS). Groundwater beneath the Chip Hopper Area and the Exterior Area Estate of Machine Shop has apparently not be impacted (as of yet) by VOCs.
- Concentrations of VOCs are present in sediments in a drainage ditch that (based upon dye testing) received flow from the NW Sump Area. A superficial examination of these sediment data suggests that the detected concentrations would not meet VAP sediment standards; however, an ecological risk assessment would be necessary to make a definitive determination. Another option is outright remediation (i.e., removal) of the affected sediments.
- No surface water sampling of the drainage ditch has been conducted to date.
- There is some uncertainty regarding whether the drainage ditch is located on the Property, or the adjacent property.

Given these background data, the following scope of services is presented for consideration in potentially moving the property forward through the VAP.

SCOPE OF SERVICES

Task 1: VAP Phase I Property Assessment

In order to forward the Property through the VAP, Consultant would first propose that a Phase I Property Assessment, complaint with _____ [name], be completed for the Property. The requirements for a VAP Phase I Property Assessment include:

A. An environmental history analysis, consisting of:

1. A review of any previous environmental assessments, property studies, or geological evaluations of the Property to the extent that such studies are available for review.
2. A diligent inquiry into the previous and current environmental compliance status of the Property, as well as all properties within an approximate minimum search distance of _____ (_____) miles.
3. Interviews with reasonably available key property personnel, residents, or former property personnel who have knowledge relevant to the environmental conditions at the Property.

B. A general historical analysis consisting of:

1. A diligent inquiry into reasonably available historical sources to establish a continuous history of the use of the Property (including significant changes in the use of the Property), to determine what (if any) hazardous substances or petroleum products are or may be present on, beneath, or are emanating from the Property. Information normally relied upon as part of the history analysis includes (but is not limited to):
 - Plax or tax maps
 - Historical survey data (if available)
 - Current and historic topographic maps
 - Current and historic aerial photographs
 - Historic city directories
 - Historic insurance maps
2. A chain of title investigation for the Property to evaluate current and previous ownership and identifiable uses. This chain of title must extend to the point of initial development of the Property (regardless of use).
3. A reasonable attempt to locate and conduct interviews with persons who are or were employed at the Property to determine whether there is any reason to believe that releases of hazardous substances or petroleum products have or may have occurred on, beneath, or are emanating from the property.

C. A physical inspection of the Property to identify:

1. Property usage.
2. Use of adjoining properties.
3. The condition of existing structures.
4. Evidence of past or present releases of hazardous materials or petroleum products on the Property from USTs, aboveground storage tanks, oil and/or gas wells, cans, boxes, pipes, drums, drains, sewers, electrical equipment, cables, fuel tanks, oil pans, lagoons, stacks, cooling systems, inventory, pits, piles, landfills, waste or process water treatment systems, etc.

5. Evidence of the on-site placement of fill from unknown sources.
6. Potential for contaminated storm water drainage onto the Property from adjoining properties.
7. Evidence of obvious odors, pools of liquid, drums or unidentified containers, stained pavement/soil, or stressed vegetation.
8. Electrical equipment which potentially contain polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs).
9. The general topography of the Property, particularly in relation to surrounding properties.
10. Identifiable migration conduits or pathways for releases, including basements, drains, tiles, wells, and utility lines.

D. Development of a hazardous substance/waste compliance or release history for the Property and adjoining properties, as appropriate, which identifies (to the extent known) each release, contaminant type, quantity released, date of release, the areas on the property impacted by the release, the media impacted (soil, groundwater, surface water, etc.), and any corrective measures taken to address the release.

E. Identification of all potential source areas on the Property.

F. Preparation of a written Phase I Property Assessment report which is compliant with the VAP requirements.

From Consultant's perspective, the VAP Phase I Property Assessment should seek to answer two questions:

1. Does the regulatory compliance history at the property (and all other information collected) indicate that the site is eligible or ineligible to participate in the VAP? The primary concern is how the VOCs detected in soil and/or groundwater came to be present in these media. If they are present as the result of a release of a listed hazardous waste, a strong argument could be made that the Property is ineligible to participate in the VAP, and that the appropriate regulatory framework from which to proceed is the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA). A secondary concern is the current or historic hazardous waste generator status of the Client, and whether all areas used to accumulate (legally) hazardous waste have been "closed" (with closure "self-certified," as appropriate) in accordance with RCRA. Large Quantity Generators of hazardous waste are required to close and self-certify closure of all areas used to manage hazardous waste before the facility is eligible to participate in the VAP.
2. Did the previous Phase I ESA correctly call out all "identified areas" as that term is used under the VAP? If not, additional assessment of other potential "source areas" would be required as part of the VAP Phase II Property Assessment.

For the purposes of moving forward with this proposal, Consultant has assumed that any potential eligibility issues associated with the first question are resolved favorable, and that the three areas previously assessed by others are the only areas on the property that would satisfy the VAP definition of "identified areas," eliminating the need to assess as of yet unknown potential source areas. However, if either of these assumptions is later determined to be invalid based upon the VAP Phase I Property Assessment, additional tasks or actions not outlined in the proposal may be necessary at the Property, regardless of whether the Property is to be forwarded through the VAP.

Task 2: Groundwater Evaluation and Classification

In order to determine whether the VAP provisions related to Protection of Groundwater Meeting Unrestricted Potable Use Standards (POGWMUPS) do not apply at the Property, Consultant would recommend two actions be taken:

A. Determine whether the existing monitoring wells have been appropriately placed at the Property relative to the identified areas specified in the Phase I Property Assessment.

As odd as it may seem, having groundwater that is already contaminated with VOCs in excess of GUPUS is often an advantage from the standpoint of the VAP. If soils in a given area (such as the Chip Hopper Area) contain VOCs in excess of VAP leach-based values (LBSVs) but groundwater beneath that area does not contain VOCs in excess of GUPUS, soil remediation is required under the VAP, thereby driving up costs. If, however, groundwater beneath that area already contains concentrations of VOCs in excess of GUPUS, no soil remediation is necessarily required under the VAP, although it remains an option.

Soils in both the Chip Hopper Area and the Exterior Area East of Machine Shop contained concentrations of VOCs in excess of LBSVs, yet groundwater in the few monitoring wells installed in these two areas indicated no exceedance of GUPUS beneath these areas. As part of this task, Consultant would evaluate the positioning of the existing monitoring wells in these two identified areas, and (if warranted) install, survey, and sample up to four additional monitoring wells (two in each area) to determine whether the provisions of POGWMUPUS do or do not apply in these areas.

B. Conduct VAP-compliant sampling of existing monitoring wells in the NW Sump Area to verify that the provisions of POGWMUPUS do not apply in this area.

Soils in the NW Sump Area contain concentrations of VOCs in excess of LBSVs, and groundwater beneath this area contains concentrations of VOCs in excess of GUPUS. On the surface, therefore, it would appear that the provisions of POGWMUPUS do not apply in the NW Sump Area. However, the sampling conducted by an earlier testing did not satisfy the provisions of _____ [name]. This provision of the VAP indicates that to prove that POGWMUPUS requirements do not apply at a property, two groundwater samples must be collected within 15-30 days of each other, and both samples must contain concentrations of VOCs in excess of GUPUS. The prior environmental firms did not collect the requisite two samples within 15-30 days of each other; therefore, this sampling must be re-performed to demonstrate to the state's EPA that the provisions of POGWMUPUS do not apply in the NW Sump Area. Consultant would propose as part of this task to conduct definitive yield testing of monitoring wells on-site to clearly classify groundwater beneath the Property for the purposes of the VAP.

Therefore, in summary, the work to be conducted under this task would include:

- Evaluation of the placement of existing monitoring wells relative to "identified areas," and possible installation, surveying, and sampling of up to four additional groundwater monitoring wells.
- Re-sampling of the existing monitoring wells in the NW Sump Area to comply with the provisions of _____.
- Conducting slug or pump tests to determine definitively the yield of the aquifer beneath the Property for purposes of groundwater classification.

Task 3: Surface Water Sampling in Drainage Ditch and Conducting a Baseline Ecological Risk Assessment Based on Previous Sediment Data

As stated above, no surface water sampling has been conducted in the drainage ditch west of the Property to determine whether VOCs are emanating from the Property. As part of this task, Consultant would collect a maximum of three surface water samples, and submit these samples to a VAP Certified Laboratory for analysis.

Further, the prior environmental report collected and analyzed two sediment samples from the drainage ditch. For the purposes of this proposal, Consultant is assuming that the prior engineer used acceptable protocols in collecting these samples, and that (at least initially) the data compiled as part of their investigation may be relied upon. However, given the phased approach of an ecological risk assessment, re-sampling of sediment at some point in the future may be necessary, due to the state EPA's sensitivity regarding ecological exposure pathways under the VAP.

Using the sediment sampling data compiled by the prior engineer as an initial platform, we will conduct a baseline ecological risk assessment. Completion of an ecological risk assessment in accordance with the VAP, as outlined in _____, would be conducted in the following phases:

Phase I

A. Compare the prior engineer's sediment sampling results to published ecotoxicologic benchmarks, as outlined in written resources specified under the VAP.

If the concentrations of the chemicals of concern do not exceed the appropriate benchmark listed in these resources, then applicable ecological risk standards will have been met, and no further work would be necessary under this task. If, however, the concentrations of chemicals of concern exceed the appropriate benchmarks (or benchmarks do not exist for a particular parameter), a sediment bioassay survey of sediments contained in the ditch must be conducted as part of a qualitative ecological risk assessment, as outlined in Phase 2, below.

Phase 2 (if necessary)

Assuming the concentrations of the chemicals of concern exceed the appropriate benchmarks or benchmarks do not exist for a particular parameter, we will conduct a sediment bioassay. As part of the sediment bioassay, we will:

A. Obtain a representative sample of sediment from the ditch for sediment bioassay analysis using a scud organism (Hyalella azteca) or midge larva (Chironomus tentans) in accordance with the VAP.

B. Conduct a sediment bioassay test determining the chronic or acute toxicity of the chemicals contained in the sediment.

If the sediment bioassay determines that the applicable ecological risk standards have been met (e.g., the absence of toxic effects, as defined in the state's EPA Sediment Toxicity Test and the USEPA Sediment Toxicity Test Manuals), no further work would be necessary under this task. If, however, the sediment bioassay results exceed appropriate benchmarks called out under the VAP, a quantitative ecological risk assessment must be conducted, as outline in Phase 3, below.

As an alternative to proceeding to Phase 3 of this task, Consultant would recommend evaluating the costs associated with delineating the extent of impacted sediments, and outright removal of these sediments. There are permitting considerations, and de-watering considerations, but for planning purposes prospective contractors have advised Consultant to "figure on" _____ Dollars ($ _____) per ton of sediment removed, assuming no backfill.

Phase 3 (if necessary)

Assuming the chemicals of concern and the sediment bioassay results from the ditch exceed appropriate benchmarks, and a quantitative assessment is necessary, we will conduct an additional biological survey of fish and macroinvertebrates, as required under _____ [name]. As part of the additional biological survey of fish and macroinvertebrates, we will:

- A. Conduct a fish and physical habitat survey to obtain data for calculating the qualitative habitat evaluation index (QHEI), the index of biotic integrity (IBI), and where applicable, a modified index of well-being (MiwB) for the impacted surface water of the ditch.
- B. Conduct a quantitative macroinvertebrate survey to obtain data for calculating the invertebrate community index (ICI) for the impacted surface water.
- C. Compare the findings of the biological survey portion of the ecological risk assessment to applicable standards listed under _____ [name].

If the end result of this task is that an ecological risk exists in excess of applicable VAP standards, the VAP requires that corrective action must be taken to address this ecological risk if a volunteer intends to pursue a Covenant Not to Sue. Corrective actions in the case of the property relative to the ditch would include delineation of the extent of impacted sediments, and outright removal of those sediments that exceed ecotoxicological applicable standards.

Task 4: Management of Potentially Impacted Soils

This task is easily the most difficult to quantify. As stated above, should the provisions of POGWMUPUS apply in the Chip Hopper Area and/or the Exterior Area East of Machine Shop, soil removal would be warranted to protect groundwater from eventual leaching of VOCs from soils. Since the prior engineer has completely defined the extent of soil contamination in either area (instead focusing on the groundwater aspect), there is no way of calculating the total volume of impacted soils in either of these areas. Again, however, the need for removal of these soils could be rendered moot if the outcome of Task 2 is an indication that the provisions of POGWMUPUS do not apply in either area.

Further, while the extent of soils in the NW Sump Area that contain VOCs in excess of LBSVs is better defined, removal of soils is not required under the VAP since the provisions of POGWMUPUS do not apply in this area. VAP Generic Direct Contact Standards (GDSCS) are not exceeded in soils within the 0-2 foot compliance interval (despite the prior engineer's misguided conclusion that GDSCS for TCE and PCE were exceeded in samples collected from 4-5.5 feet below ground surface).

The one conclusion we would agree with is that the liquids in the sump should be pumped out, characterized, and removed from the site for disposal. This should be part of the operational decommissioning of the site that would be conducted as part of routine site closure.

With regard to soil, however, there are several options:

1. Outright removal of all soils which exceed LBSVs, regardless of location (i.e., identified area) or depth. The cost associated with this is difficult to quantify given the fact that the full extent of soil contamination in the Chip Hopper Area and the Exterior Area East of Machine Shop has yet to be defined. But assuming each are averaged 1,600 square feet (40 feet x 40 feet -- a conservatively low area for the NW Sump Area, but perhaps high for the other two areas) and that the depth of excavation in each area averaged 6 feet, the total volume of material to be removed under this scenario would be approximately 1,900 tons. The total estimated cost to excavate and dispose of soils, and backfill the excavations (excluding pavement replacement) would range between _____ Dollars ($_____) and _____ Dollars ($_____), depending upon what percentage of the material was characterized as "hazardous waste." It should be noted that this is a rough estimate, based solely upon the data that Consultant has reviewed to date, and is by no means a "guaranteed" figure, either high or low.

2. Removal of only those soils that exceed LBSVs in areas where the provisions of POGWMUPUS apply. For the purposes of this proposal, we have assumed (based upon the available data collected to date) that this would include only the Chip Hopper area and the Exterior Area East of Machine Shop. Using the same assumptions as above in terms of area and depth, the total volume of material to be removed under this scenario would be approximately 1200 tons. The total estimated cost to excavate and dispose of soils, and backfill the excavations (including pavement replacement) would range between _____ and _____, depending again upon what percentage of the material characterized as "hazardous waste." It should be noted that this is a rough estimate, based upon incomplete data, and is by no means a "guaranteed" figure, either high or low.

3. Removal of only those soils generated during demolition and re-development of the property. To date, Consultant has not seen or reviewed potential demolition plans, or re-development plans for the property. However, assuming 1.) that it is ultimately determined that the provisions of POGWMUPUS do not apply in the Chip Hopper Area or Exterior Area East of Machine Shop and 2.) re-development of the property will involve a new building closer to Detroit Avenue with most of the northern portion of property serving as a paved parking area, this option could be the most cost effective with regard to management of contaminated soils. (It should be noted here that if the first assumption is invalid, the _____ to _____ estimated for removal of soils in Option 2 would still need to be expended, in addition to the costs for this option presented below). Assuming that grading, footer removal, slab removal, and site preparation for new construction generated 400 tons of "contaminated" soil, the estimated cost to manage this quantity of material would be approximately _____ to _____. The cost savings realized under this option are related to the fact that one would not need to physically "dig to" these soils, but that they would be generated as part of normal site demolition or preparation work. Further, the cost saving is attributable to the elimination of the need to backfill excavations.

Whatever option is pursued for contaminated soil management, certain monies should be set aside (in addition to the estimates presented above) for confirmation soil sample collection and analysis, on-site representation by someone familiar with the provisions of the VAP, and coordination. These costs will vary depending upon the option selected; however, for planning purposes a cost is presented in the Fee and Billing section of this proposal.

Task 5: Groundwater Management

Under the VAP, there are two options for addressing contaminated groundwater: modeling, or remediation. For this site, we would recommend initially evaluating the modeling approach for the primary reason that existing groundwater data indicate limited contaminant migration away from presumed source areas. The modeling approach could take one of two forms, depending upon how much soil was removed as part of Task 4. However, for simplicity's sake, we have assumed that the modeling would consist of the traditional two-step soil-to-groundwater modeling, then modeling whether impacted groundwater reaches the "point of compliance" (the location of which is dependent upon whether Task 2 determines groundwater to be "Class A" or "Class B"). The basis for our assumption is that not all soils that exceed LBSVs will be excavated and removed (i.e., Option 1 for soil removal under Task 4 will not be implemented due to cost and uncertainty factors) from the property. We have had significant experience with this modeling approach in the past, and the EPA is quite familiar and comfortable with the approach.

The second option under groundwater management is remediation. We would urge the Client not to consider remediation as an option unless 1.) groundwater was classified as "Class A," and 2.) modeling indicated that off-site migration of groundwater containing VOCs in excess of GUPUS could occur. Even under this scenario, we would recommend pursuit of an Urban Setting Designation (USD) under the VAP (which changes the point of compliance) rather than outright remediation. Should remediation be considered as an alternative at the property, conventional techniques for remediating contaminated groundwater in the shale bedrock beneath the property include treatment using either a co-metabolic agent or some other form of chemical treatment. Preliminary cost estimates for pursuit of a USD or actual remediation of contaminated groundwater on-site are presented in the Fee and Billing section of this proposal.

Task 6: Completion of VAP Phase II Property Assessment Report, No Further Action Letter, and Other VAP Coordination/ Administrative Tasks

As part of this task, we would:

- Assemble a completed VAP Phase II Property Assessment Report in accordance with _____ [name], to include a description and results of all activities associated with implementation of Tasks 2-5 of this proposal.
- Complete the appropriate sections of the No Further Action (NFA) Form, and prepare an NFA Letter (signed and stamped by a VAP certified professional) for submittal to _____ [state] EPA.
- Coordinate and review of the NFA Letter with the _____ [state] EPA.
- Prepare a response to any comments on this initial NFA Letter.
- Coordinate final review of the NFA Letter by the _____ [state] EPA.

STANDARD PROVISIONS

1. Information Provided by Others. Client shall provide to _____ ("Consultant") all pertinent background information related to the project. The sources of any such information may include, but are not limited to, Client. Client recognizes that it is impossible for Consultant to assure the sufficiency or accuracy of such information, either because it is impossible to do so, or because of errors or omissions by others which may have occurred in assembling the information. Accordingly, Consultant may rely on all information provided to it, and Client waives any claim against Consultant, and agrees to defend, indemnify and hold Consultant harmless from any claim or liability for injury or loss arising, or allegedly arising, from errors, omissions, or inaccuracies in documents or other information provided to Consultant by sources which may include, but are not limited to, Client, and agrees to compensate Consultant for any time spent or expenses incurred by Consultant in defense of, or otherwise regarding, any such claim.

2. Buried Utilities. Client will furnish to Consultant information identifying the type and location of utility lines and other man-made objects beneath the site's surface. Further, Consultant reserves the right to notify local utility protection agencies or services, and to delay project implementation until these agencies or services have identified known utility lines or other subsurface man-made objects. Consultant will take reasonable precautions to avoid damaging any utility lines or other man-made objects identified. Client agrees to waive any claim against Consultant, and to defend, indemnify and hold harmless from any claim or liability for injury or loss arising, or allegedly arising, from Consultant's damaging underground utilities or other man-made objects that were not called to Consultant's attention, which were not properly located on plans furnished to Consultant, or were not identified or properly marked by any utility protection agency or service contacted by Consultant, and agrees to compensate Consultant for any time spent or expenses incurred by Consultant in defense of any such claim in accordance with Consultant's prevailing fee schedule and expense reimbursement policy.

3. Right of Entry. Client shall provide or assist Consultant in gaining the right to enter property owned by Client and/or other(s) in order for Consultant to fulfill the scope of services included hereunder.

4. Notification of Hazardous Materials. When wastes, materials and/or substances or other materials or substances hazardous and/or toxic to human health or the environment, whether regulated or unregulated, ("Hazardous Materials") are known, assumed or suspected to exist at a site, Consultant is required to take appropriate precautions to protect the health and safety of its personnel, to comply with applicable laws and regulations, and to follow procedures that Consultant deems prudent to minimize risks to its employees and the public. Should client know of or have any reason to assume or suspect that Hazardous Materials exist at the project site, Client will inform Consultant prior to project initiation, and advise Consultant of such known or suspected Hazardous Materials' type, quantity and/or location.

5. Hazardous Materials. It is understood and agreed that in seeking the professional services of Consultant under this Agreement, Client may request Consultant to undertake obligations involving or related to Hazardous Materials (including, but not limited to, asbestos). Such services shall be performed in accordance with generally accepted professional practice at the time when and at the place where services are rendered. Client agrees to hold harmless, indemnify, and defend Consultant from and against any and all claims, losses, damages, liabilities, and costs arising, or allegedly arising, out of or in any way connected with the presence, discharge, release, or escape of contaminants or Hazardous Materials of any kind, or environmental liability of any nature or in any manner related to services performed by Consultant under this Agreement, including the failure to discover any Hazardous Materials which exist in, on, above, beneath, about or which have migrated onto, or under, the project site. Such indemnification shall not apply to claims, damages, losses or expenses which are finally determined to result from willful or reckless disregard by Consultant of its obligations under this Agreement.

6. Scope of Services.

a. In the event that the Scope of Services for this Agreement was developed by Consultant, Client acknowledges that it was prepared at Client's discretion and without input from Client and/or other professionals retained (directly or indirectly) by Client. Client further acknowledges that, as a result, Consultant has been required to make various assumptions about Client's needs and preferences, as well as Client's ability to obtain certain services from other sources. Accordingly, Client waives any claim against Consultant, and agrees to defend, indemnify and hold harmless from any claim or liability for injury or loss arising, or allegedly arising, from the assumptions made by Consultant in developing the Scope of Services and agrees to compensate Consultant for any time spent or expenses incurred by Consultant in defense of any such assumption in accordance with Consultant's prevailing fee schedule and expense reimbursement policy.

b. In the event that the scope of services for this project was developed by a party other than Consultant, Consultant makes no claims as to its adequacy, since Consultant was not involved in or privy to the information and considerations that it reflects. Accordingly, Client acknowledges that Consultant is forced to assume that the scope of services is fully adequate for Client's purposes. Client also acknowledges and understands that Consultant assumes that Client has an alternative source from which to obtain any needed or desired services not listed. Accordingly, Client waives any claim against Consultant, and agrees to defend, indemnify and hold Consultant harmless from any claim or liability for injury or loss arising, or allegedly arising, from Consultant's failure to perform services limited by or not included in the scope of services, and agrees to compensate Consultant for any time spent or expenses incurred by Consultant in defense of any such claim in accordance with Consultant's prevailing fee schedule and reimbursement policy.

7. Disturbance of Property/Adverse Property Conditions. Client understands that the use of exploration equipment may cause some disturbance to the property, the correction of which is not part of this Agreement. Client also understands that the discovery of certain conditions and/or taking preventive measures relative to these conditions may affect a property's value. Accordingly, Client waives any claim against Consultant, and agrees to defend, indemnify and hold Consultant harmless from any claim or liability for injury or loss arising, or allegedly arising, from said conditions, and agrees to compensate Consultant for any time spent or expenses incurred by reimbursement policy.

8. Drill Cuttings and Fluids. Client recognizes that, when it is known, assumed or suspected that Hazardous Materials exist beneath the surface of the project site, certain waste materials, such as drill cuttings, drilling fluids, or well purge waters, must be treated as if contaminated. Accordingly, if called for elsewhere under this Agreement, Consultant will appropriately contain and label such materials; and will promptly inform client that such containerization and labeling has been performed; and will leave the containers on-site for proper, lawful removal, transport and disposal by Client. Client waives any claim against Consultant, and agrees to defend, indemnify and hold Consultant harmless from any claim or liability for injury or loss which may arise, or which may allegedly arise, as a result of the drill cuttings, drilling fluids or other presumably Hazardous Materials being left on site after their containerization by Consultant. Client also agrees to compensate Consultant for any time spent and expenses incurred by Consultant in defense of, or otherwise regarding, any such claim in accordance with Consultant's prevailing fee schedule and expense reimbursement policy.

9. Disposal of Waste. Soil, rock, water and/or samples obtained from the project site are, and shall remain, the property of the Client. It is Client's responsibility to select and arrange for lawful disposal procedures (which may include removing the media from Consultant's custody), and transporting them, or having them transported, to a disposal site.

10. Job Site Safety. Consultant is responsible for its own employee's activities on the job site. Neither this Agreement, nor the professional activities of Consultant, nor the presence of Consultant or its employees and/or subcontractors shall be construed to imply Consultant has responsibility for the methods of work performance, superintendence, sequencing of construction, or safety of others in, on, or about the job site.

11. Opinions of Cost. Since Consultant has no control over the cost of labor, materials, equipment or services furnished by others or over the methods of determining prices, or over competitive bidding or market conditions, any and all opinions as to the costs of services, construction or materials shall be made on the basis of its experience and qualifications and represent its best judgment; however, Consultant cannot and does not guarantee that bids or actual costs will not vary from opinions of probable cost.

12. Graphic Presentation of Physical Features. Any graphic presentation of sampling locations, boring locations or other physical features on maps or in reports is based upon field measurement techniques (such as compass or distance triangulation, pace-and-compass traverses, etc.) using available physical landmarks, and will be considered approximate unless indicated otherwise.

13. Aquifer Contamination. In the event that Consultant's services hereunder include subsurface sampling or exploration, Client acknowledges and agrees to the following: Unavoidable contamination of soil or groundwater may occur during subsurface exploration, as when drilling or sampling tools are advanced through a contaminated area, linking the contaminated areas to soils, aquifers, and underground streams, or other hydrous bodies not previously contaminated which may be capable of spreading Hazardous Materials off-site. Because nothing can be done to eliminate the risk of such an occurrence, and because subsurface sampling is a necessary aspect of the Consultant's services, Client waives any claim against Consultant, and agrees to defend, indemnify and hold Consultant harmless from any claim or liability for injury or loss which may arise, or which may allegedly arise, as a result of actual or alleged cross-contamination caused by sampling, and agrees to compensate Consultant for any time spent or expenses incurred by Consultant in defense of, or otherwise regarding, any such claim in accordance with Consultant's prevailing fee schedule and expense reimbursement policy.

14. Reuse and/or Revision of Documents. All documents prepared by Consultant pursuant to this Agreement are related exclusively to the services described herein. They are not intended or represented to be suitable for reuse by Client or others on extensions of this project or on any other project. Any reuse without written verification or adaptation by Consultant for the specific purposes intended will be at Client's sole risk and without liability or legal exposure to Consultant; and Client shall indemnify and hold Consultant harmless from all claims, damages, losses and expenses, including but not limited to attorneys' fees, arising, or allegedly arising, out of resulting therefrom. any revision, verification, or adaptation after Consultant's submission of its final work-product to Client will entitle Consultant to further compensation in accordance with Consultant's prevailing fee schedule and expense reimbursement policy.

15. Standard of Care. In performing its professional services hereunder, Consultant will use that degree of care and skill ordinarily exercised, under similar circumstances, by members of its profession practicing at the same time in the same or similar locality. No other warranty, express or implied, is made or intended by Consultant's undertaking herein or its performance of services hereunder.

16. Maintenance of Professional Standards and Ethics. Client acknowledges that Consultant's services in all cases must be rendered in accordance with prevailing professional standards and ethics, as well as certain laws or regulations that apply to Consultant. Client further acknowledges that the responsibility for making reports or disclosures to any governmental agency or third party are solely those of the Client and/or the owner of the property that is the subject of the services, unless otherwise required by prevailing legal or professional standards.

17. Notice of Deficiency. Client, Client's personnel, contractors and subcontractors shall promptly notify Consultant of any deficiency or suspected deficiency in Consultant's work, in order that Consultant may take prompt, effective measures to address any perceived deficiencies.

18. Invoices. Invoices will be submitted by Consultant to Client monthly for services performed and expenses incurred pursuant to this Agreement. Client recognizes that time is of the essence with respect to payment of Consultant's invoices and that timely payment is a material part of the consideration of this Agreement. Payment of each such invoice will be due within twenty-five (25) days. A service charge will be added to delinquent accounts at the maximum rate allowed by law for each month of delinquency.

19. Non-Contingency. Client acknowledges and agrees that the payment for services rendered and expenses incurred by Consultant pursuant to this Agreement is not subject to any contingency unless expressly set forth in writing in this Agreement.

20. Failure to Pay. If Client fails to make any payment due Consultant for services and expenses within sixty (60) days after Consultant's transmittal of its invoice therefore, Consultant may, after giving seven (7) days' advance written notice to Client, suspend services under this Agreement until it receives payment in full for all amounts due. Consultant may also initiate legal proceedings to collect. In addition to all amounts due and payable pursuant to Consultant's invoices, Consultant may collect accrued interest and its reasonable attorneys' fees and other expenses related to the collection proceeding. Such expenses shall include, but shall not be limited to, the cost of the time devoted by Consultant's officers, directors, employees, and agents devoted to such proceeding and Consultant's related expenses, determined in accordance with Consultant's prevailing fee schedule and expense reimbursement policy.

21. Compensation for Additional Services. The undertaking of Consultant to perform professional services under this Agreement extends only to those services specifically described herein. If Client and Consultant agree that Consultant shall perform additional services ("Additional Services") hereunder, Client shall pay Consultant for the performance of such Additional Services (in addition to all other amounts payable under this Agreement) in accordance with Consultant's prevailing fee schedule and expense reimbursement policy.

22. Changed Conditions. In the event of an occurrence or discovery that was not originally contemplated by or known to Consultant in developing the original scope of services and fees, Consultant, in its sole discretion, may request modification of this Agreement. In the event of such a request, Consultant shall identify to Client the change in conditions which, in Consultant's judgment, make such modification necessary. If a modified Agreement or specific Additional Services cannot be agreed to, this Agreement may be terminated.

23. Changed Costs. Consultant shall have the right to increase the compensation payable by Client to Consultant for any non-lump sum project in the event that performance of this Agreement extends beyond _____ (the date on which Consultant annually revises its fee and reimbursement schedule) of any calendar year and/or in the event that Consultant must modify services, facilities, or equipment to comply with laws or regulations that become effective after execution of this Agreement, provided that Consultant shall give Client thirty (30) calendar days' prior notice as to the cause for escalation for the additional amounts involved.

24. Indemnification by Consultant. Consultant is protected by Workers' Compensation Insurance and other Insurance, and will furnish certificates of insurance upon request. Consultant agrees to hold Client harmless from loss, damage, injury, or liability arising, or allegedly arising, directly from the negligent acts or omissions of Consultant, its employees, agents, subcontractors, and their employees and agents to the extent that the same is actually covered and paid under the foregoing policies of insurance.

25. Limitation of Liability. To the fullest extent permitted by law, Client will limit any and all liabilities, claims for damages, costs of defense, and/or expenses to be levied against Consultant (whether by client or by any other person or entity) on account of any and all defects, errors, omissions, negligence and other claims and liabilities to the amount actually paid in compensation to Consultant or paid under said insurance policies, whichever is greater. Client shall defend, indemnify and hold Consultant harmless from any claim or liability in excess of this amount. Further, Client agrees to notify any contractor or subcontractor who may perform work in connection with any design, report, or study prepared by Consultant of such limitation on, and indemnification for, claims and liabilities, and require as a condition precedent to its performance of such work an identical limitation on, and indemnification for, claims and liabilities on its part as against Consultant. In the event Client fails to obtain an identical limitation and indemnification provision, Client shall indemnify and hold Consultant harmless for any claims and liabilities in such a manner and to such extent that the aggregate liability of Consultant shall not exceed the aforementioned amount.

26. Environmental Indemnity. To the fullest extent permitted by law, Client agrees to indemnify, defend, and hold harmless Consultant and its subcontractors, consultants, agents, officers, directors and employees of any of them from and against all claims, liabilities, damages, losses and expenses, including but not limited to attorneys fees, arising out of or resulting from any release or threatened release of Hazardous Materials that existed at the project site, prior to or after the commencement of Consultant's work, provided that such release or threatened release is not finally determined to have resulted from the sole negligence of Consultant. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, the above indemnification extends to claims resulting from:

- a. Client's violation or alleged violation of any federal, state or local statute, regulation or ordinance relating to the disposal of Hazardous Materials;
- b. Client's or Consultant's undertaking of or arrangement for the handling, removal, treatment, storage, transportation or disposal of Hazardous Materials found or identified at the site;
- c. Hazardous Materials introduced at the site by Client or third persons before or after the completion of services herein;
- d. Allegations that Consultant is a generator, operator, treater, storer, transporter, arranger for transport, handler, or disposer under RCRA, the Comprehensive Environmental, Response, Compensation and Liability Act ("CERCLA") or any other federal, state or local law, regulation or ordinance.

27. Consequential Damages. Client shall not be liable to Consultant and Consultant shall not be liable to Client for any consequential damages incurred by either due to the fault of the other, regardless of the nature of this fault, or whether it was committed by Client or Consultant, their employees, agents, or subcontractors. Consequential damages include, but are not limited to, loss of use and loss of profit.

28. Discovery of Unanticipated Hazardous Materials. Hazardous Materials may exist at a site where there is no reason to believe they could or should be present. The discovery of unanticipated Hazardous Materials shall, at Consultant's discretion, constitute a Changed Condition mandating modifications of this Agreement or termination of services. Client also agrees that the discovery of unanticipated Hazardous Materials may make it necessary for Consultant to take immediate measures to protect human health and safety, and/or the environment. Consultant shall notify Client as soon as practically possible in the event unanticipated Hazardous Materials or suspected Hazardous Materials are encountered. Consultant will take any and all measures that, in Consultant's sole discretion, are justified to preserve and protect the health and safety of Consultant's personnel and the public, and/or the environment, and client agrees to compensate Consultant for the additional cost of such work. In addition, Client waives any claim against Consultant, and agrees to indemnify, defend and hold Consultant harmless from any claim or liability for injury or loss arising, or allegedly arising, from Consultant's encountering of unanticipated Hazardous Materials or suspected Hazardous Materials. Client also agrees to compensate Consultant for any time spent and expenses incurred by Consultant in defense of, or otherwise regarding, any such claim in accordance with Consultant's prevailing fee schedule and expense reimbursement policy.

29. Subsurface Risks. Client acknowledges that special risks arise in the identification of subsurface conditions. Client also acknowledges that even a comprehensive sampling and testing program implemented with the appropriate equipment and experienced personnel under the direction of a trained professional who functions in accordance with a professional standard of care may fail to detect certain conditions, because they are hidden and therefore cannot be considered in development of a subsurface exploration program. Client further acknowledges that actual environmental or geologic conditions that Consultant properly infers to exist between sampling points may differ significantly from those that actually exist. Client waives any claim against Consultant, and agrees to defend, indemnify, and hold Consultant harmless from any claim or liability for injury or loss which may arise, or allegedly arise, from such subsurface risks, and agrees to compensate Consultant for any time spent and expenses incurred by Consultant in defense of any such claim in accordance with Consultant's prevailing fee schedule and expense reimbursement policy.

30. Delays. Consultant's field or technical work may be interrupted due to causes beyond its control. Client shall not hold Consultant responsible for damages or delays in performance caused by Acts of God or other circumstances. For purposes of this Agreement, Acts of God and other circumstances beyond the control of Consultant include, but are not limited to, unusual weather; floods; epidemics; war; riots; strikes; lockouts or other industrial disturbances; protest demonstrations; unanticipated site conditions; denial of or impediment to, site access; insufficient or incomplete delivery of information requested from Client, regulatory agencies or third parties; or inability, despite reasonable diligence, to obtain personnel, equipment or material for the project.

31. Termination. The obligation to provide further services under this Agreement may be terminated by either party upon seven (7) days' written notice in the event of changed conditions or the substantial failure by the other party to perform in accordance with the terms hereof through no fault of the terminating party. In the event of termination by either party, Consultant will be paid for all services rendered to the date of termination, all expenses subject to reimbursement hereunder, and other reasonable expenses incurred by Consultant as a result of such termination. In the event Consultant's compensation under this Agreement is a fixed fee, upon such termination the amount payable to Consultant for services rendered will be determined using a proportional amount of the total fee based on a ratio of the amount of the work done, as reasonably determined by Consultant, to the total amount of work which was to have been performed, less prior partial payments, if any, which have been made.

32. Confidentiality. Consultant agrees to keep confidential and not to disclose to any person or entity, other than Consultant's employees and subcontractors, without the prior consult of Client, all data and information which are furnished to Consultant by Client and which are marked CONFIDENTIAL; provided, however, that this provision shall not apply to data which are in the public domain, or were generated or previously known to Consultant, or which were acquired by Consultant independently from third parties which have no obligation to Client to keep said data and information confidential. These provisions shall likewise not apply to information, in whatever form, that comes into the public domain through no fault of Consultant. Nor shall these provisions restrict Consultant from disclosing any information or data when ordered by a court, administrative agency or other authority with apparent jurisdiction. Consultant may use client's name and a general description of Consultant's services for Client for marketing purposes.

33. Binding Effect. This Agreement shall bind, and the benefits thereof shall inure to, the respective parties hereto, their legal representatives, executors, administrators, successors, and assigns.

34. Third-Party Exclusion. Nothing under this Agreement shall be construed to give any rights or benefits in this Agreement to anyone other than Client and Consultant, and all duties and responsibilities undertaken pursuant to this Agreement will be for the sole and exclusive benefit of Client and Consultant and not for the benefit of any other party. Client agrees that Client shall not disclose to any third party any data, reports or other information furnished by Consultant to Client under this Agreement without the prior written consent of Consultant, and in the absence of such consent, Consultant shall have no liability to Client for claims resulting from such disclosure. Client further agrees to indemnify, defend and hold Consultant harmless from any claim or liability for injury or loss arising, or allegedly arising, from Client's disclosure to a third party's use of, any data, reports or other information furnished by Consultant.

35. Controlling Law. This Agreement shall be governed by the law of the State of Ohio without regard to its conflict of laws procedures.

36. Location of Litigation. In the event that client wishes to commence litigation against Consultant, Client agrees that it may bring such litigation only in the Court of Common Pleas for _____ County, _____ or in the U.S. District Court of _____, or such other courts which include _____ County, _____ within their territorial jurisdiction.

37. Expenses of Litigation. In the event litigation in any way related to the services performed hereunder is initiated against Consultant by Client, its contractors, or subcontractors, and such litigation concludes with the entry of a final judgment favorable to Consultant, Client shall reimburse Consultant for all of its attorneys' fees and other expenses related to said litigation. Such expenses shall include, but shall not be limited to, the cost to Consultant for any time spent and expenses incurred, in accordance with Consultant's prevailing fee schedule and expense reimbursement policy.

38. Alternative Dispute Resolution. In the event of a dispute between Consultant and Client which is not resolved in good faith negotiation, Client agrees to negotiate in good faith to find or craft an alternative dispute resolution mechanism (i.e., a dispute resolution technique which does not involve a court of law).

39. Time Limit for Claims. Client agrees that it will not pursue claims against Consultant more than two (2) years after Consultant's performance of the work from which the claim arises or to which it relates.

40. Extension of Protections. Client agrees to extend any and all limitations indemnifications and waivers provided by Client to Consultant to those individuals and organizations Consultant retains for proper execution of the work. These include, but are not limited to, Consultant's officers, directors, and employees and their heirs and assigns, as well as Consultant's agents, subconsultants and subcontractors and their officers, directors, employees, and their heirs and assigns.

41. Instruments of Service. All reports, boring logs, field data, field notes, laboratory test data, calculations, estimates and other documents prepared by Consultant are copyrighted instruments of service and, as such, remain the property of Consultant. These instruments of service will be retained by Consultant for a period of seven (7) years following submission of its final report, during which time they will be made available to Client, upon prior request, for review at reasonable times. Further, the contents of this proposal may not, for any purpose, be copied, or be provided or otherwise communicated, in whole or in part, to any party other than Client or Client's legal counsel.

42. Photographs. Photographs of any completed project embodying the services of the Consultant provided hereunder may be made by Consultant and shall be considered as its property and may be used by it for publication, marketing or other promotional purposes.

43. Severability. The provisions of this Agreement shall be deemed severable, and the invalidity or unenforceability of any provision shall not affect the validity and enforceability of the other provision hereof. If any provision of this Agreement is unenforceable for any reason whatsoever, such provision shall be appropriately limited and given effect to the extent that it may be enforceable.

44. Survival. The above terms and conditions regarding limitation of liability and indemnification shall survive the completion of the services under this Agreement and the termination of this Contract for any cause.

45. Titles. The titles used in this Agreement are for general reference and are not part of the Agreement.

46. Merger. This Agreement constitutes the entire Agreement between Consultant and Client, and all negotiations and oral understandings between the parties are merged herein. This agreement can be supplemented and/or amended only by a written document executed by both Consultant and Client.

Chapter 25 ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

Part IV. FORMS

A. ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.78

FORM 25.78 An agreement with company for removal of hazardous condition on subject premises--clauses include licensing requirements, insurance requirements, scope of work, hold harmless provision, certificate of proper disposal

COMMENT

This agreement is used when contracting with a licensed hauler for the removal of hazardous matter located on the subject premises. The owner of the premises should demand copies of the hauler's certificate of insurance and state-issued license prior to providing a deposit to the hauler. The owner should also obtain proof of proper disposal of the hazardous matter before making the final payment required under the agreement. The owner is ultimately responsible for the transportation and disposal of the material.

The form contains provisions which require the hauler to inform his employees and agents of the nature of the substance being removed. In addition, the hauler agrees to provide any special training, protective clothing and other necessary gear for his employees and agents. This provision is designed to help prevent future claims brought against both the hauler and the owner of the property by injured workers that with proper training and protective gear could have been avoided. It is also strongly recommended that the agreement include a requirement of worker's compensation insurance.

The removal process can be very dangerous, particularly where the hazardous matter is radioactive or highly flammable, or where it contains extremely carcinogenic chemicals. The owner should examine his own liability insurance coverage prior to the commencement of work. The owner must be certain that he has adequate coverage in the event that the hauler or its insurance company becomes bankrupt or is otherwise unable to meet its obligations to the owner and to anyone else who may be injured during the course of removal.

FORM 25.79 Escrow agreement--property to transfer, but funds are to be withheld at closing to cover remediation cost

COMMENT

This escrow agreement involves the purchase and sale of a contaminated property. Initially, the seller had agreed to remediate the contamination and demolish an existing structure. However, the buyer was not happy with the seller's approach and, therefore, elected to proceed with the purchase and to assume the remediation and demolition. The buyer required that at closing, funds must be escrowed in order to assure that seller would still maintain financial responsibility for the cleanup. The seller was unwilling to give buyer a credit at closing for the anticipated cleanup costs because seller did not believe the costs would be as high as buyer's consultant had indicated. As a result, the parties entered into an escrow agreement.

FORM

AGREEMENT made this ____ [day] day of _____ [month] ____ [year], among _____ [name], a(n) _____ [state] corporation (hereafter referred to as "Seller"), _____ [name], a(n) _____ [state] corporation (hereafter referred to as "Buyer"); and _____ [name], a(n) _____ [state] corporation (hereafter referred to as "Escrow Company").

RECITALS

Buyer and Seller have executed a Purchase Agreement dated _____ [month] ____ [day] ____ [year], as amended, for the sale of the Property described on Exhibit A attached hereto (the "Property"), (which Purchase Agreement and Amendments are hereinafter collectively referred to as the "Purchase Agreement").

In accordance with the Purchase Agreement, Seller is responsible for all of the costs associated with remediating the environmental conditions of the Property, not to exceed the sum of _____ Dollars ($_____) and for all of the costs associated with the demolition of the improvements on the Property. To this end, the parties have agreed that Seller shall place funds in escrow for payment of these costs.

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual covenants herein and other good and valuable consideration, the receipt and sufficiency of which are hereby acknowledged, the parties agree as follows:

■ Deposit of Funds. Upon transfer of legal title of the Property to Buyer, the parties shall deposit into escrow the sum of _____ Dollars ($_____) (the "Deposit") of which _____ Dollars ($_____) shall be held for the payment of the Remediation Costs (as defined below), and _____ Dollars ($_____) shall be held for the payment of the Demolition Costs (as defined below). The Deposit shall be held in escrow by the Escrow Company. The Escrow Company will place the Deposit in a federally insured interest bearing account. The interest shall belong to Buyer.

■ Holding of the Deposit. The Deposit shall be held by the Escrow Company until the earlier of (i) _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]; or (ii) the remediation and the demolition have been completed to Buyer's reasonable satisfaction.

■ Conditions for Release of the Deposit. The Escrow Company shall release from time to time funds from the Deposit at Buyer's written request to pay for and/or reimburse Buyer for the Remediation Costs and the Demolition Costs. Buyer shall submit to the Escrow Company all bills, receipts, affidavits, certificates or other documentation reasonably necessary (the "Receipts") to substantiate the amount of the costs and expenses that have been incurred remediating and demolishing the Property. Buyer shall deliver copies of the Receipts to the Escrow Company and to Seller. The parties acknowledge that the Deposit will be used for all reasonable costs and expenses associated with remediating the environmental conditions on or about the Property, which Buyer, in its sole reasonable discretion, believes must be remediated in order to construct, operate and finance a car dealership on the Property (the "Project"). Remediation Costs may include, without limitation, the costs of environmental consultants, testing, costs of removal, transportation, and disposal of contaminated soil, monitoring of underground water, costs and fees incurred by Buyer to obtain a "No Further Action" letter from the _____ [state] Environmental Protection Agency which Seller acknowledges may be necessary in order for Buyer to obtain financing for the Project. Demolition Costs shall include all costs associated with the demolition, removal, transportation and disposal of all building improvements and materials on or about the Property.

Upon the full completion of the remediation and demolition to the reasonable satisfaction of Buyer, the remaining portion of the Deposit will be released to Seller, or its nominee.

■ Remedies. Any controversy or claim arising out of this or relating to this Agreement, or the breach thereof, shall be settled by arbitration administered by the American Arbitration Association in accordance with its Commercial Rules, and judgment on the award rendered by the arbitrator(s) may be entered in any court having jurisdiction thereof.

■ Entire Agreement. This Agreement when executed by the parties hereto contains the complete and entire understanding of the parties with respect to the subject matter hereof, and no changes shall be recognized as valid unless they are made in writing and similarly executed. No specific waiver of any of the terms hereof shall be considered as a general waiver.

■ Successors and Assigns Bound. This Agreement shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the respective successors and assigns of the parties hereto.

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.79

■ Applicable Law. This Agreement shall be governed by and construed according to the laws of the State of _____ [state].

■ Indemnity. Seller and Buyer hereby indemnify and agree to defend and hold harmless the Escrow Company from all rights, claims, damages and actions which the Escrow Company may incur or become subject to with respect to its duties hereunder. The Escrow Company shall have no duty whatsoever to determine the validity of the expenditures hereunder. The Escrow Company's fees for its services is _____ Dollars ($ _____), and will be shared equally by the parties. The fee will be paid upon establishment of the account.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the undersigned parties have executed this Escrow Agreement to be effective on the date first written above.

Any interest or other income earned on such investment and reinvestment of the Escrow Funds shall become part of the Escrow Funds. Escrow Agent shall have no liability for any investment losses resulting from the investment, reinvestment, sale or liquidation of the Escrow Funds, except in the case of the gross negligence or willful misconduct of Escrow Agent.

8. Fees and Expenses of Escrow Agent. All costs and expenses of Escrow Agent shall be paid out of the Escrow Funds to the extent available, thereafter borne one-half (1/2) by Buyer and one-half (1/2) by Seller.

Part IV. FORMS

A. ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.82

FORM 25.82 Agreement for gift or donation of real property--hold harmless clause granted by transferor to transferee in the event environmental problems are discovered in future--transferee may reconvey property to transferor if environmental problems are discovered--warranty as to condition of premises

COMMENT

This agreement is designed to be used when an owner wishes to make a charitable donation of real property to a non-profit organization. Here, the tax benefits to the transferor are so great that he is willing to give to the transferee an environmental hold harmless and to agree to accept a reconveyance of the property if an environmental problem is discovered after the gift is made. The transferor is willing to take such a risk only because he had an environmental site assessment performed when he purchased the property. Thus, the transferor is aware that the property was free of any adverse environmental condition when he purchased it, and that no such condition arose during his tenure as owner.

If the transferor does not have this information available, paragraphs 7, 8, 9 and 10 should be omitted, and a disclaimer of warranties should be inserted. In such case, the transferee should strongly consider making the transfer contingent upon the results of an environmental site assessment. It should be remembered that under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act ("CERCLA"), 42 USC § 9601 et seq., the transferee becomes liable for any condition on the property once the transfer of title occurs.

FORM

AGREEMENT made this ____ [day] day of _____ [month] ____ [year], between _____ [name], a corporation existing under the laws of the State of _____ [state], with offices for the transaction of business at _____ [address] (hereafter referred to as "Corporation"), and _____ [name] Charities, a not-for-profit corporation organized under the laws of the State of _____ [state], with offices for the transaction of business at _____ [address] (hereafter referred to as "Charities").

WHEREAS, Corporation is the owner of certain real property and premises located in the City of _____ [city], State of _____ [state], with a street address of _____ [address] (hereafter referred to as "property"); and

WHEREAS, Corporation no longer has use for said property; and

WHEREAS, Charities is seeking a site on which to house its _____ [name] program;

NOW, in consideration of the mutual promises contained herein, it is agreed as follows:

1. Transfer of Property. Corporation hereby agrees to transfer to Charities the property as a charitable donation pursuant to a Quitclaim Deed. The transfer shall take place on or after _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year].
2. Terms and Conditions of Transfer. Corporation shall provide Charities with a copy of its existing title policy. Charities may obtain a continuation of title insurance at its own cost and expense. Charities shall take title subject to any facts which may be revealed by a survey or personal inspection, any enforceable covenants, easements or restrictions which are of record, and any zoning ordinances in effect. In the event that Charities does not wish to accept title subject to any of the foregoing, the sole remedy shall be to terminate this agreement. Nothing contained herein shall require Corporation to take any steps to clear any title defects.
3. Removal of all Equipment and Fixtures from Property. Corporation agrees to remove all equipment and fixtures from the structures located on the property. Corporation shall leave the structures "broom clean." Corporation shall not be required to repair any holes in the floors, walls or ceilings caused by removal of said fixtures as it is the intention of Charities to completely renovate the building into a center for its _____ [name] program.
4. Value of Property. The parties agree that the value of the property, including structures, is _____ Dollars ($_____). The parties have each obtained appraisals to that effect. Charities intends to insure the property for that sum. Corporation intends to use that sum for computation of its donation and tax deduction.
5. Tax-exempt Status of Donee. Charities represents that it is a not-for-profit organization and has received certification from the Internal Revenue Service. Charities further represents that it is a § 501(c)(3) charitable corporation under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended.
6. Premises Have Never Been Used to Store or Dispose of Hazardous Waste. Corporation hereby represents and warrants that the subject premises have never been used for the storage or disposal of hazardous waste. The term "hazardous waste," as used herein, shall mean substances deemed hazardous pursuant to the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act ("CERCLA"), 42 USC § 9601 et seq. This representation is made to induce Charities to enter into this contract for transfer of the subject premises. Corporation shall be liable for all damages, including economic and consequential damages, in the event that the representations contained in this section are inaccurate.
7. Compliance with Environmental Laws, Regulations and Policies. Corporation hereby represents and warrants that, during its period of ownership, Corporation, its agents and employees, complied with all federal, state and municipal environmental laws, regulations and policies as such relate to the subject premises.

Corporation agrees to indemnify and hold Charities harmless for any loss, including, but not limited to, damage to person or property or economic loss, including defense costs arising out of any violation of environmental law which occurred during Corporation's ownership of the subject premises, which violation was caused by the knowing or purposeful act or omission of Corporation, its agents or employees. The provisions of this Paragraphs shall survive the transfer of title from the Corporation to the Charities.

8. Indemnification and Hold Harmless. Corporation agrees, for a period of _____ (_____) years from the date hereof, to indemnify and hold Charities harmless for and against any and all liability, claims and expenses of any kind whatsoever (including reasonable attorney's fees and other defense costs) for any injury or damage to person or property sustained by anyone on or about the premises, which results from or arises out of any adverse environmental condition existing on the subject premises at or before the transfer of title of the subject premises from Corporation to Charities.

Corporation agrees, for a period of _____ (_____) years, to obtain environmental liability insurance from a company rated "AA" or better in at least the amount of _____ Dollars ($_____). Charities shall be named as an additional insured or loss payee on said policy. Corporation's liability under this agreement shall be limited to the limits of this policy.

Charities shall give Corporation notice of any claim or potential claim within _____ (_____) days after Charities shall receive notice or have reason to know that a claim exists. Failure to provide prompt notice will relieve Corporation of any liability hereunder.

Charities shall give Corporation a reasonable opportunity to defend against such claim. Charities shall cooperate with Corporation in such defense. Charities shall not compromise any claim without the consent of Corporation. Violation by Charities of any of these provisions shall relieve Corporation of any liability hereunder.

Charities agrees to cooperate with and comply with all reasonable requests of Corporation's insurance carrier. In the event Charities fails to do so and the insurance carrier disclaims liability for that reason, Corporation shall be relieved of any liability hereunder.

9. No Environmental Site Assessment to be Performed. On the basis of the representations made herein by Corporation, Charities will not be undertaking an environmental site assessment. In the event that Charities, during the term of its ownership, discovers any adverse environmental impact caused by use of the property or release of hazardous materials on the property prior to Charities' ownership, in addition to any other rights or remedies which Charities may have, Charities may require Corporation to accept a reconveyance of the property. The benefits contained in this paragraph may not be transferred by Charities to subsequent owners.

10. The provisions of this Agreement shall survive the transfer of title.

11. This agreement may not be assigned by Charities.

12. This Agreement contains the entire understanding of the parties; there have been no representations made which are not contained herein.

13. This Agreement may only be modified by a written amendment signed by all parties. An oral modification shall not be binding on any party.

14. This Agreement shall be construed in accordance with the laws of the State of _____ [state].

15. Any failure by either party to enforce any right arising hereunder shall not be deemed a waiver of such right.

Part IV. FORMS

A. ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.83

FORM 25.83 Option agreement to purchase real property--simple form--holder of option to perform environmental tests and inspections before exercising option to purchase--contract of sale and purchase attached

COMMENT

An option is a contract which gives its holder, the optionee, the exclusive right, for a specified period of time, to purchase real property. While the optionor, the owner of the property and its seller, is bound by the option and, under normal circumstances, cannot revoke the option, the optionee is not bound unless he chooses to exercise the option.

The purpose of this particular option is to allow the prospective purchaser the opportunity to perform any and all testing and inspections for environmental problems prior to exercising the option. For example, before deciding whether to exercise the option, the prospective purchaser may wish to conduct examinations of the premises for the presence of structural defects, radon gas, wood-boring insects, asbestos insulation, and other environmental hazards. Also, the parties may use an option if the buyer has to obtain various permits prior to closing. If any of these are found, he may choose to either not exercise the option or renegotiate the terms of the contract of sale and purchase.

Because the option agreement provides the prospective purchaser with time to conduct the environmental tests--as well as the right to "get out of the deal" if environmental problems are found--the attached contract of sale and purchase should not contain any contingencies for environmental testing. In addition, since the environmental tests are conducted before the option is exercised, the closing of the sale can occur very quickly after the option is exercised.

The option price acts as consideration for the property being off the market during the option period. The parties should be sure the option period is sufficiently long to allow all testing desired, and that the option price is sufficient compensation to the seller for that period. In the form that follows, if the prospective purchaser chooses to exercise the option and buy the property, the option price is credited against the purchase price.

Also, on occasion, an option agreement will be recorded so as to put third parties on notice of the existence of the option. If the option is to be recorded, then the recording requirements for the jurisdiction where the property is located must be followed.

FORM

This option is granted this ____ [day] day of ____ [month] ____ [year], by ____ [name] (hereafter the "Optionor"), residing at ____ [address], in the City of ____ [city] and the State of ____ [state], to ____ [name] (hereafter the "Optionee"), residing at ____ [address], in the City of ____ [city] and the State of ____ [state].

1. Option Granted. Optionor has received this day from Optionee the sum of ____ Dollars ($ ____). In return for such valuable consideration, the Optionor grants to the Optionee the exclusive option to purchase the premises known as ____ [address], more particularly described in a deed to the Optionor from ____ [name], dated ____ [month] ____ [day] ____ [year], and recorded in the office of the ____ [county] County Clerk on ____ [month] ____ [day] ____ [year], in Book ____ [number] of Deeds, at page ____ [number].

2. Purpose of Option. The purpose of this option is to allow Optionee adequate time in which to examine the subject premises for asbestos insulation, wood-boring insects (including, but not limited to, termites and carpenter ants), lead-based paint, excessive radon gas, and other environmental hazards. The agreement of purchase and sale, a copy of which is annexed hereto as Exhibit A, is free of any contingencies for environmental testing and inspections.

Optionor grants Optionee, his agents, employees and assigns permission to enter onto the premises for the purpose of conducting any and all inspections and tests deemed necessary or appropriate by Optionee. Samples of materials (e.g., paint samples, samples of insulation materials, etc.) may be taken by Optionee. All areas disturbed by sampling shall be returned to as nearly the same condition as existed prior to sampling. A copy of all written test reports shall be provided to Optionor prior to the end of the option period. Optionee, his agents, employees, and assigns shall maintain as confidential any information contained in the test reports until Optionee has accepted the transfer of title from Optionor.

3. Expiration of Option. This option shall expire at ____ o'clock, ____ [a.m./p.m.] on ____ [month] ____ [day] ____ [year].

4. Notice of Exercise. This option may only be exercised by giving written notice, sent by registered or certified mail (return receipt requested), or facsimile transmission, prior to the expiration date, to the Optionor at his address set forth above. Notice shall be deemed given when mailed or transmitted.

5. Purchase Price. The total purchase price shall be ____ Dollars ($ ____), to be paid by Optionee. The sum paid for this option shall be credited against the purchase price at the time of the closing of the sale and purchase.

6. Failure to Exercise Option. If the Optionee does not timely exercise this option, the sum of ____ Dollars ($ ____) paid by the Optionee this day shall be retained by the Optionor, free of all claims of the Optionee. Neither party shall have any further rights or claims against the other.

7. Exercise of Option. If this option is exercised, the Optionor and the Optionee will, respectively, as Seller and Purchaser, execute the annexed agreement of sale and purchase and perform the obligations set forth in said agreement.

8. Assignment. This option and all rights hereunder shall be freely assignable. If assigned by the Optionee, any and all acts performable by him hereunder, including the execution and delivery of the purchase money note and mortgage, may be performed by any assignee, whether the assignment is made before or after the exercise of this option.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties hereto have set their hands the day and year first above written.

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.84

FORM 25.84 Option agreement--commercial property--two option periods to allow purchaser time to obtain approval of conservation district for his proposed use of property

COMMENT

Conservation districts have been created on the federal, state and local levels to protect certain undeveloped areas which are deemed to be valuable public assets. Federal conservation districts include national parks, seashores and other designated environmentally-sensitive areas. State districts often include forest preserves, state parks, lake regions, and other areas deemed worthy of protection. Local districts include smaller areas which might encompass a breeding habitat for a rare species of animal.

The amount of authority exercised by the agencies and boards varies; however, many have the power to take part in making decisions regarding the subdivision of property, construction of buildings, etc. In short, they function as quasi-zoning boards. In passing judgment on a proposed real estate project, the board or agency determines both the project's environmental impact on the conservation district and the economic benefits to members of the community living in or near the district.

The purpose of this option agreement is to allow the prospective purchaser of the subject premises (i.e., the "optionee") adequate time in which to obtain the approval of the conservation district for his proposed use of the premises. Since that is often a lengthy process, two option periods are used. The option expires at the end of the first time period unless an additional payment is made by the optionee. This additional payment will provide the optionee with an extension of the period of time necessary to obtain the approval of the conservation district. The payments function as consideration to the seller for keeping the property off the market during the lengthy approval procedure.

Typically, the option agreement is more advantageous to the seller than a regular contract of sale and purchase where the transaction is made contingent upon the prospective purchaser obtaining the approval of the conservation district. The reason is because, even if the purchaser does not exercise the option and buy the property, the seller will still have received some remuneration for taking the property off the market and for enduring the uncertainty of the outcome of the approval process.

Conversely, the purchaser-optionee will likely prefer to use a standard sale-purchase contract with a contingency clause, since no extra consideration is normally paid by a purchaser to a seller for such a contingency. This option also provides that it will not be recorded.

FORM

OPTION AGREEMENT

THIS OPTION AGREEMENT is made on _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year], between _____ [name] (the "Optionor"), residing at _____ [address], and _____ [name] (the "Optionee"), a corporation formed under the laws of the State of _____ [state] and whose headquarters and principal place of business is located at _____ [address].

1. Option. The Optionee has, this day, paid to the Optionor the sum of _____ Dollars ($_____). Each subsequent assignment of this option must also comply with the preceding requirements.

8. No Broker. The Optionor and Optionee agree that no broker brought about or participated in this option or transaction. The Optionee shall indemnify and hold harmless the Optionor against any and all liabilities and expenses whatever, including, without limitation, reasonable attorneys' fees, arising from any claims for brokerage on this transaction based on any acts of the Optionee. Each and all of the representations, warranties, and agreements contained in this Paragraph shall survive the closing of this transaction or expiration of this option; and the agreement of indemnity contained in this Paragraph shall be binding on the named Optionee irrespective of any future assignment of this option.

9. No Recording of Option. The Optionee shall not record this option among the Public Records of _____ [county] County or elsewhere; and if the Optionee records this option in violation of the preceding clause, the rights, powers, and privileges of the Optionee under this option shall terminate automatically, and the Optionor shall, at its election, retain absolutely all payments made by the Optionee as the consideration for this option for the period from the date of this option to the date of such recordation.

Part IV. FORMS

A. ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.85

FORM 25.85 Listing agreement between broker and seller with provisions for disclosure of known environmental problems existing on the property

COMMENT

A real estate broker has a fiduciary duty to the owner of the real property who hires the broker. However, in many states, that fiduciary duty does not empower the broker to conceal known environmental hazards existing on the premises from unsuspecting purchasers. Indeed, the broker may owe a duty to reveal these hazards to prospective purchasers.

This form is a model listing agreement between a real estate broker and a seller of real property. It contains provisions requiring the disclosure of known environmental problems existing on the property. The purpose of the disclosure provisions is to make it abundantly clear to both owner and broker that: (1) the owner must disclose all known environmental hazards to the broker; and (2) the broker, in turn, must disclose these hazards to potential purchasers. Many regional brokers' associations have their own standard forms. In such case, the provisions regarding disclosure of environmental hazards may be inserted into the standard forms.

The owner agrees to hold the broker harmless for any liability imposed upon the broker due to the owner's failure to disclose to the broker the existence of an environmental hazard. The broker, in turn, agrees to hold the owner harmless for any failure on the part of the broker to disclose to the purchaser the existence of an environmental hazard.

FORM 25.87 Agreement and declaration of covenants and restrictions of use of certain real estate

COMMENT

This agreement and declaration relates to a contaminated site. The site is under investigation by the United States Environmental Protection Agency. The prior owner and operator is obligated to remediate the site. The prior owner desires to remediate the site to industrial standards. The United States Environmental Protection Agency has agreed to the lesser standard, however, it wants to restrict the use of the property and the activities which may be conducted on or about the property. This agreement and declaration will be filed with the local county recorder's office to put any parties which subsequently deal with the property on notice as to the restrictions.

Additionally, because this agreement will be recorded, the parties must comply with the local recording requirements.

finer, fees, costs and expenses if Grantor fails to observe and perform all of the conditions and covenants set forth in this Agreement. Grantor shall indemnify, defend and hold Grantee harmless against and from any and all liabilities, damages, fines, fees, costs, and expenses arising, directly or indirectly, from Grantor's failure to maintain the integrity of Site pavement and concrete floors in the centrifugal casting area and compressor building, including but not limited to, removal of Site pavement and concrete floors in the centrifugal casting area and compressor building, or structures, equipment or improvements on or about Site pavement and concrete floors in the centrifugal casting area and compressor building, and/or from any act by Grantor or its Permittees which is expressly prohibited under this Agreement, including, without limitation, costs of investigation and remediation, costs of all third-party consultants and professionals, all legal fees and expenses and other costs and expenses incurred by Grantee in defending or processing any legal or administrative proceedings occasioned by such act(s) and in enforcing its rights hereunder. It is also the purpose of this instrument that the Third Party Beneficiary, U.S. EPA and its assigns and its successor agencies, shall have the right to enforce the terms of this Agreement.

8. Reservation: Nothing in this Agreement shall limit or otherwise affect the U.S. EPA's rights of entry and access or limit the U.S. EPA's authority to take response actions selected by U.S. EPA under CERCLA, the National Contingency Plan, and its successor provisions or other federal or State law.

Within _____ (_____) days of the date of execution of any such instrument of conveyance, the Grantor shall provide the Grantee and the U.S. EPA with a certified true copy of the instrument and, if it has been recorded in the deed records, its recording reference.

12. Inspection and Enforcement: In addition to the access rights set forth in Paragraph 6, above, the U.S. EPA, and its representatives, contractors, assigns and successor agencies, may enter the Site from time to time for the purposes of performing inspections, overseeing remedy implementation or enforcing the covenants and restrictions set forth in Paragraph 4, above. The Grantee and the U.S. EPA, as Third Party Beneficiary, shall be entitled to enforce the terms of this Agreement by resorting to specific performance or legal process. The Grantee acknowledges their affirmative obligation to enforce the Agreement. The covenants and other provisions set forth in this Agreement may be enforced against the Grantor by an action for injunctive relief for any violation or threatened violation thereof brought in a court of competent jurisdiction by Grantee or by the U.S. EPA, as Third Party Beneficiary. The court may award not only injunctive relief, but damages and reasonable attorneys fees. All remedies available here shall be in addition to any other remedies at law or in equity, including CERCLA. Any forbearance, delay or omission to exercise their rights under this Agreement in the event of a breach of any term of this Agreement shall not be deemed a waiver by the Grantee or the U.S. EPA of such terms, or any other term, or any rights of the Grantee or the U.S. EPA under this Agreement.

13. Waiver of Certain Defenses: Grantor waives any defense of laches, estoppel, or prescription.

14. To Grantee:	_____ [name]
	_____ [address]
	_____ [address]

Copies of all notices provided pursuant to this paragraph shall also be served personally or sent by first class certified mail, return receipt requested, postage prepaid, and addressed as follows:

To U.S. EPA: _____ [address]
_____ [address]

Notice shall be deemed given upon receipt or refusal to accept delivery. The parties to this Agreement may change from time to time their respective addresses for notice hereunder by like notice to the other parties.

15. General Provisions:

A. Controlling Law: The interpretation and performance of this Agreement shall be governed by the laws of the United States and the State of _____ [state], as applicable. All remedies available hereunder shall be in addition to any and all other remedies at law or in equity including CERCLA.

B. Liberal Construction: Any general rule of construction to the contrary notwithstanding, this Agreement shall be liberally construed in favor of the grant to effect the purpose of this Agreement and the policy and purpose of CERCLA. If any provision of this Agreement is found to be ambiguous, an interpretation consistent with the purpose of this Agreement that would render the provision valid shall be favored over any interpretation that would render it invalid.

C. Severability: If any provision of this Agreement, or the application of it to any person or circumstance, is found to be invalid, unenforceable, or not to run with the land, the remainder of the provisions of this Agreement, or the application of such provisions to persons or circumstances other than those to which it is found to be invalid, as the case may be, shall not be affected. In the event that the validity or enforceability of any provision of this Agreement is held to be dependent upon the existence of a specific legal description, Grantor shall promptly cause such legal description to be prepared and recorded.

D. Entire Agreement: This instrument sets forth the entire agreement of the Grantor and Grantee with respect to rights and restrictions created here.

E. No Forfeiture: Nothing contained here will result in a forfeiture or reversion of Grantor's title in any respect.

F. Priority of Agreement: Any lease, license, easement, deed or other transfer, grant or conveyance of the Site or any portion thereof or interest therein which is executed after the date of this Agreement shall be subject and subordinate to the terms and provisions of this Agreement, and the Grantor shall include a recital of this Agreement and the provisions hereof, or shall attach a copy hereof thereto.

G. Successors: The terms of this Agreement shall bind, and inure to the benefit of, the Grantor and Grantee and their respective personal representatives, heirs, successors, and assigns and shall run in perpetuity with the Site. The term "Grantor," wherever used here, and any pronouns used in place thereof, includes persons and/or entities named at the beginning of this document, identified as the "Grantor" and its personal representatives, heirs, successors, and assigns. The term "Grantee," wherever used here, and any pronouns used in place thereof, includes the persons and/or entities named at the beginning of this document, identified as "Grantee" and their personal representatives, heirs, successors, and assigns. The rights of the Grantee and Grantor under this Agreement are freely assignable, subject to the notice provisions here.

H. Termination of Rights and Obligations: A Party's rights and obligations under this Agreement terminate upon transfer of the Party's interest in the Site, except that liability for acts or omissions occurring prior to transfer shall survive transfer.

I. Reimbursement of Costs: The U.S. EPA, its assigns, representatives and successor agencies will incur costs in overseeing this agreement. The Grantor and Grantee agree that the AOC will remain in full force and effect to, inter alia, provide a mechanism for reimbursement of such costs.

J. Time is of the Essence: Time is of the essence as to the performance of the obligations contemplated in this agreement.

TO HAVE AND TO HOLD unto the Grantee and its assigns forever.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, Grantor has caused this Agreement to be signed in its name.

Part IV. FORMS

A. ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.88

FORM 25.88 Environmental covenant--Ohio

COMMENT

This form is an example of a covenant promulgated by the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency.

FORM

ENVIRONMENTAL COVENANT

To be recorded with Deed

This Environmental Covenant is entered into by _____ [name] ("Owner") and the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency ("Ohio EPA") pursuant to Ohio Revised Code ("ORC") "5301.80 to 5301.92 for the purpose of subjecting the Property to the activity and use limitations set forth herein.

[Insert appropriate background information here. Describe the "environmental response project," see ORC § 5301.80(E), and identify the name and location of the administrative record for the project. See ORC § 5301.82(A)(8). See also ORC § 5301.82(B)(2) re: description of contamination on or underlying the property and its remedy, including the contaminants of concern, the pathways of exposure, limits on exposure, and the location and extent of the contamination.]

Now therefore, Owner [name all Owners of the Property and add other "Holders," if any] and Ohio EPA agree to the following:

1. Environmental Covenant. This instrument is an environmental covenant developed and executed pursuant to §§ 5301.80 to 5301.92.

2. Property. This Environmental Covenant concerns (an approximately _____ (_____) acre tract of real property; OR real property parcels numbered _____] owned by _____ [name], located at _____ [address] _____ [county] County, Ohio, and more particularly described in Exhibit A attached hereto and hereby incorporated by reference herein ("Property").

3. Owner. _____ [name] ("Owner") [who resides; OR which is located] at _____ [address], is the owner of the Property.

4. Holder[s]. Owner, whose address is listed above, [and _____ [name] who resides; OR which is located at _____ [address] [is/are] the holder[s] of this Environmental Covenant.

5. Activity and Use Limitations. As part of the [closure and hazardous waste management units; corrective action at the Property; remedial action described in the Decision Document; voluntary action described in the NFA Letter; wetlands mitigation project; supplemental environmental project, etc.], Owner hereby imposes and agrees to comply with the following activity and use limitations:

[Insert the limitations appropriate for the Property. Several limitations may be appropriate as part of a remedial action or closure plan where cleanup to an unrestricted land use is not feasible. Each type of limitations must be considered on a site-specific basis to determine which limitation or combination of limitations is suitable for the particular circumstances of the site or facility, based on the nature of contamination, the affected media and the potential exposures. The types of limitations include:

land use limitations (e.g., to limit duration and frequency of human exposure to surficial soils, surface water, or sediments).

ground water limitations (e.g., to prevent exposure to contaminated ground water by prohibiting extraction or use of ground water, except for investigation or remediation thereof).

disturbance limitations (e.g., to protect in-place remedial systems, to prevent exposures caused by any mixing of contaminated subsurface soils with "clean" surface soils, and to prevent contact with subsurface contamination during excavation).

construction limitations (e.g., to prevent exposure to volatile emissions to indoor air from soil or ground water).

resource protection limitations (e.g., to protect certain ecological features associated with the Property ...)

6. Running with the land. This Environmental Covenant shall be binding upon the Owner and all assigns and successors in interest, including any Transferee, and shall run with the land, pursuant to ORC § 5301.85, subject to amendment or termination as set forth herein. The term "Transferee," as used in this Environmental Covenant, shall mean any future owner of any interest in the Property or any portion thereof, including, but not limited to, owners of an interest in fee simple, mortgagees, easement holders, and/or lessees.

7. Compliance Enforcement. ORC § 5301.91 or other applicable law. Failure to timely enforce compliance with this Environmental Covenant or the use limitations contained herein by any party shall not bar subsequent enforcement by such party and shall not be deemed a waiver of the party's right to take action to enforce any non-compliance. Nothing in this Environmental Covenant shall restrict the Director of the Ohio EPA from exercising any authority under applicable law in order to protect the public health or safety or the environment.

[VAP (If the property is the subject of a VAP no further action letter and request for a covenant not to sue, this language should be added to this paragraph of the Environmental Covenant.) Pursuant to ORC § 3746.05, if the Property or any portion thereof is put to a use that does not comply with this Environmental Covenant, the covenant not to sue issued for the Property by the Director of the Ohio EPA under ORC § 3746.12 is void on and after the date of the commencement of the noncomplying use.]

8. Rights of Access. Owners hereby grants the Ohio EPA, its agents, contractors, and employees [and any "Holders;" the local government, etc.; see ORC §§ 5301.82(A)(6) and 5301.91(A)] the right of access to the Property for implementation or enforcement of this Environmental Covenant.

9. Compliance Reporting. Owner and any Transferee shall submit to Ohio EPA [, the local government and any "Holders"] on an annual basis written documentation verifying that the activity and use limitations remain in place and are being complied with.

10. Notice upon Conveyance. Each instrument hereafter conveying any interest in the Property or any portion of the Property shall contain a notice of the activity and use limitations set forth in this Environmental Covenant, and provide the recorded location of this Environmental Covenant. The notice shall be substantially in the following form:

THE INTEREST CONVEYED HEREBY IS SUBJECT TO AN ENVIRONMENTAL COVENANT, DATED _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year], RECORDED IN THE DEED OR OFFICIAL RECORDS OF THE _____ [county] COUNTY RECORDER ON _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year], IN [DOCUMENT or BOOK _____, PAGE _____,]. THE ENVIRONMENTAL COVENANT CONTAINS THE FOLLOWING ACTIVITY AND USE LIMITATIONS: [Insert the language that describes the activity and use limitations exactly as it appears in the Environmental Covenant.]

Owner shall notify Ohio EPA [and any "Holders"] within _____ (_____) days after each conveyance of an interest in any portion of the property. Owner's notice shall include the name and address of the Transferee.

11. Representations and Warranties. Owner hereby represents and warrants to the other signatories hereto [select as appropriate]:

- that the owner is the sole owner of the Property;
- that the owner holds fee simple title to the Property which is free, clear and unencumbered;
- to the extent that other interests in the Property exist, the Owner [or other person that owns the interest] has agreed to subordinate those interests to the Environmental Covenant, pursuant to ORC § 5301.86, and the subordination agreement (attached hereto as Exhibit _____ or recorded at _____);
- that the Owner has the power and authority to enter into this Environmental Covenant, to grant the rights and interests herein provided and to carry out all obligations hereunder;
- that the Owner has identified all other parties that hold any interest (e.g., encumbrance) in the Property and notified such parties of the Owner's intention to enter into this Environmental Covenant;

and

■ that this Environmental Covenant will not materially violate or contravene or constitute a material default under any other agreement, document or instrument which is a party by which Owner may be bound or affected.

12. Amendment or Termination. This Environmental Covenant may be amended or terminated only by consent of all of the following: the Owner or a Transferee; [other "Holders," if any;] and the Ohio EPA, (See ORC § 5301.82(B)(3), which allow for "limitations on amendment or termination.") pursuant to ORC § 5301.90 and other applicable law. Amendment means any changes to the Environmental Covenant, including the activity and use limitations set forth herein, or the elimination of one or more activity and use limitations when there is at least one limitation remaining. Termination means the elimination of all activity and use limitations set forth herein and all other obligations under this Environmental Covenant.

This Environmental Covenant may be amended or terminated only by a written instrument duly executed by the Director of Ohio EPA and the Owner or Transferee [and other "Holders," if any] of the Property or portion thereof, as applicable. Within _____ (_____) days of signature by all requisite parties on any amendment or termination of this Environmental Covenant, the Owner or Transferee shall file such instrument for recording with the _____ [county] County Recorder's Office, and shall provide a copy of the recorded instrument to Ohio EPA.

13. Severability. If any provision of this Environmental Covenant is found to be unenforceable in any respect, the validity, legality, and enforceability of the remaining provisions shall not in any way be affected or impaired.

14. Governing Law. This Environmental Covenant shall be governed by and interpreted in accordance with the laws of the State of Ohio.

15. Effective Date. The effective date of this Environmental Covenant shall be the date upon which the fully executed Environmental Covenant has been recorded as a deed record for the Property with the _____ [county] County Recorder.

16. Distribution of Environmental Covenant. The Owner shall distribute copies of the recorded Environmental Covenant to: Ohio EPA, the [City, County, Township, Village] of _____; [any "Holder," any lessee, each person who signed the Environmental Covenant, each person holding a recorded interest in the Property; and any other person designated by Ohio EPA; see ORC § 5301.83].

The undersigned [representative of] Owner [and other "Holders," if any] represent[s] and certif[y/ies] that [he/she/they] [is/are] authorized to execute this Environmental Covenant.

FORM 25.89 Remediation trust fund agreement--agreement to establish funds to pay for remediation costs

COMMENT

This is an agreement whereby funds are placed in trust in order to pay for remediation costs. Typically, a state agency has brought an enforcement action against a land owner and/or operator. This agreement relates to a settlement. A significant part of the settlement requires the operator to remediate certain adverse environmental conditions. The parties have agreed to the scope of the remediation and monitoring. However, the state agency and the land owner want to assure that the operator has adequate resources to complete the remediation and monitoring. As a result, they require the operator to deposit funds in trust. This agreement appoints the trustee and establishes the trust.

FORM

REMEDATION TRUST FUND AGREEMENT

RE: INDUSTRIAL SITE RECOVERY ACT (ISRA)

ISRA CASE # _____

This Remediation Trust Fund Agreement ("Agreement") is entered into as of the _____ [day] day of _____ [month] _____ [year], by and between _____ [name] and _____ [name] (collectively known as "Grantors"), _____ [name] ("Land Owner"), and _____ [name] ("Trustee").

WHEREAS, the Department of Environmental Protection ("DEP"), an agency of the State of _____ [state], has established the ISRA, _____ [cite case], applicable to Land Owner, requiring that certain procedures be followed by industrial establishments to ensure adequate preparation and implementation of acceptable Remedial Action Workplan procedures as a precondition of any sale or transfer of any industrial establishment or as the result of any termination of operations of any industrial establishment in accordance with ISRA.

WHEREAS, Land Owner, as the owner of real property located at _____ [address] (the "Site"), upon which an industrial establishment was situated, has been required by the DEP to prepare and implement a Remedial Action Workplan, which has been approved by the DEP, and Land Owner is further required, within _____ (_____) calendar days of written approval of the Remedial Action Workplan by DEP, to provide a Remediation Trust Fund or other Remediation Funding Source pursuant to _____ [cite case], in an amount equal to or greater than the cost of said approved Remedial Action Workplan;

WHEREAS, the Grantors have entered into a Settlement and Release Agreement with Land Owner, and under that Settlement and Release Agreement, the Grantors, in order to satisfy a contested claim asserting liability arising from the alleged discharge of hazardous substances at the Site, have agreed to pay monies, pursuant to a schedule contained in Section _____ of the Settlement and Release Agreement, into this Remediation Trust Fund, which is intended to function as a Qualified Settlement Fund under Internal Revenue Service regulations;

WHEREAS, Land Owner, acting through its duly authorized officer or management official, has selected the Trustee under this Agreement, and the Trustee is willing to act as Trustee.

NOW, THEREFORE, the Grantors, Land Owner and the Trustee agree as follows:

Section 1. Definitions.

As used in this Agreement:

- (a) The term "Grantors" shall include any successors or assigns of the Grantors.
- (b) The term "Trustee" means the Trustee who enters into the Agreement and any successor Trustee, who has the authority to act as a trustee and whose trust operations are regulated and examined by a federal or state Agency. The name, address and title of the Trustee is:

_____ [name]
 _____ [address]
 _____ [address]

- (c) The term "Land Owner" shall include any successor and assigns of Land Owner.
- (d) The Term "Commissioner" means the Commissioner of the Department of Environmental Protection.
- (e) The term "Beneficiary" means the Department of Environmental Protection.
- (f) The term "DEP" means the Department of Environmental Protection.

Section 2. Identification of Facilities and Cost Estimates.

This Agreement pertains to the Site that is more particularly identified on Schedule "A."

Section 3. Establishment of Fund.

The Grantors and the Trustee hereby establish a trust fund, hereinafter the "Fund," for the benefit of DEP. The Grantors and the Trustee intend that no third party shall have access to the Fund except as herein provided. The Fund is established initially as consisting of the property which is acceptable to the Trustee and DEP, described in Schedule "B," attached hereto. Such property and any other property subsequently transferred to the Trustee is referred to as the Fund, together with all earnings and profit thereon, less any payments or distributions made by the Trustee pursuant to this Agreement. The Fund shall be supplemented by the additional future payments specified under Section _____ of the Settlement and Release Agreement, and the DEP hereby agrees that the funds set forth in Schedule B and the additional payments specified in Section _____ of the Settlement and Release Agreement shall together comprise the Remediation Funding Source for ISRA Case No. _____ pursuant to _____ [cite case]. The Fund shall be held by the Trustee, IN TRUST, as hereinafter provided. The Trustee shall not be responsible nor shall it undertake any responsibility for the amount or adequacy of, nor any duty to collect from the Grantors, any payments necessary to discharge any liabilities of the Grantors or Land Owner established by the DEP.

Section 4. Payment for ISRA Remediation.

The Trustee shall make payment from the Fund as the DEP shall direct, in writing, to provide for the payment of the costs of performing Land Owner's obligations under ISRA Case No. _____ and this Agreement. The Trustee shall reimburse Land Owner or other persons, as specified by the DEP, from the Fund for expenditures in such amounts as the DEP shall direct in writing consistent with _____ [cite case]. In addition, the Trustee shall refund to Land Owner such amounts as the DEP specifies in writing. Upon refund, such funds shall no longer constitute part of the Fund, as defined herein.

Section 5. Payments Comprising the Fund.

Payments made to the Trustee for the Fund shall consist of cash acceptable to the Trustee.

Section 6. Trustee Management.

The Trustee shall invest and reinvest the principal and income of the Fund and keep the Fund invested as a single fund, without distinction between principal and income, in accordance with general investment policies and guidelines subject, however, to the provisions of this Section 6. In investing, reinvesting, exchanging, selling and managing the Fund, the Trustee shall discharge his duties with respect to the Fund solely in the interest of the DEP as the beneficiary and with the care, skill, prudence and diligence under the circumstances then prevailing which persons of prudence, acting in a like capacity and familiar with such matters, would use in the conduct of an enterprise of a like character and with like aims, except that:

- (i) Securities or other obligations of the Grantor, or any owner or operator of the facilities or any of their affiliates, as defined in the Investment Company Act of 1940, as amended, 15 U.S.C. 80a-2(a), shall not be acquired or held, unless they are securities or other obligations of the federal or a state government.
- (ii) The Trustee is authorized to invest the Fund in time or demand deposits of the Trustee; and
- (iii) The Trustee is authorized to hold cash awaiting investment of distribution uninvested for a reasonable time and without liability for the payment of interest thereon.

Section 7. Commingling and Investment.

The Trustee is expressly authorized in its discretion to transfer from time to time any or all of the assets of the Fund to any common, commingled or collective trust fund created by the Trustee in which the Fund is eligible to participate, subject to all of the provisions thereof, to be commingled with the assets of other trusts participating therein.

Section 8. Express Powers of Trustee.

Without in any way limiting the powers and discretion conferred upon the Trustee by the other provisions of this Agreement or by law, the Trustee is expressly authorized and empowered:

- (a) To sell, exchange, convey, transfer or otherwise dispose of any property held by it, by public or private sale. No person dealing with the Trustee shall be bound to see to the application of the purchase money or to inquire into the validity or expedience of any such sale or other disposition;
- (b) To make, execute, acknowledge and deliver any and all documents of transfer and conveyance and any and all other instruments that may be necessary or appropriate to carry out the powers herein granted;
- (c) To deposit any cash in the Fund in interest-bearing accounts maintained or savings certificates issued by the Trustee, in its separate corporate capacity, or in any other banking institution affiliated with the Trustee, to the extent insured by an agency of the federal or state government; and
- (d) To comprise or otherwise adjust all claims in favor of or against the Fund.

Section 9. Taxes and Expenses.

All taxes of any kind that may be assessed or levied against or in respect of the fund and all brokerage commissions incurred by the Fund shall be paid from the Fund. All other expenses incurred by the Trustee in connection with the administration of this Trust, including fees for legal services rendered to the Trustee, the compensation of the Trustee and all other proper charges and disbursements of the Trustee shall be paid from the Fund.

Section 10. Annual Valuation.

The Trustee shall annually, at least _____ (_____) calendar days prior to the anniversary date of establishment of the Fund, furnish to Land Owner and to the DEP a statement confirming the value of the Trust. The failure of Land Owner to object in writing to the Trustee within _____ (_____) calendar days after the statement has been furnished to Land Owner and the DEP shall constitute a conclusively binding assent by Land Owner, barring Land Owner from asserting any claim or liability against the Trustee with respect to matters disclosed in the statement.

Section 11. Advice of Counsel.

The Trustee may, from time to time, consult with counsel, who may be counsel to Land Owner, with respect to any questions arising as to the construction of this Agreement or any action to be taken hereunder. The Trustee shall be fully protected, to the extent permitted by law, in acting upon the advice of counsel.

Section 12. Trustee Compensation.

The Trustee shall be entitled to reasonable compensation, from time to time, for its services, as agreed upon in writing with the Grantors or Land Owner.

Section 13. Successor Trustee.

The Trustee may resign or Land Owner may replace the Trustee, but such resignation or replacement shall not be effective until Land Owner has appointed a successor trustee and this successor accepts the appointment. The successor trustee shall have the same powers and duties as those conferred upon the Trustee hereunder. Upon the successor trustee's acceptance of the appointment, the Trustee shall assign, transfer and pay over to the successor Trustee the funds and properties constituting the Fund. If, for any reason, Land Owner cannot or does not act in the event of the resignation of the Trustee, the Trustee may apply to a court or competent jurisdiction for the appointment of a successor trustee or for instructions. The successor trustee shall specify the date on which it assumes administration of the trust in writing sent to Land Owner, the DEP and the present Trustee by certified mail _____ (_____) days before such change becomes effective. Any expenses incurred by the Trustee as a result of any of the acts contemplated by this Section 13. shall be paid as provided in Section 9.

Section 14. Instructions to the Trustee.

All order, requests and instructions by Land Owner to the Trustee shall be in writing, signed by such persons as are designated in Schedule "C." The Trustee shall be fully protected in acting without inquiry in accordance with all of Land Owner's order, requests and instructions. All orders, requests and instructions by the DEP to the Trustee shall be in writing, signed by the DEP Commissioner or his/her designee and the Trustee shall act and shall be fully protected in acting in accordance with such orders, requests and instructions. The Trustee shall have the right to assume, in the absence of written notice to the contrary, that no event constituting a change or a termination of the authority of any person to act on behalf of Land Owner or the DEP hereunder has occurred. The Trustee shall have no duty to act in the absence of such orders, requests and instructions from Land Owner and/or the DEP, except as provided for herein.

Section 15. Amendment of Agreement.

This Agreement may be amended by an instrument in writing executed jointly by the Grantors, Land Owner (or the Grantors' and Land Owners' principals, successors and assigns if the Grantors and/or the Land Owner have dissolved), the Trustee and the DEP (or by the Trustee, the DEP and any non-dissolved parties if one or both of the Grantors and/or Land Owner ceases to exist and no successors or assigns are named).

Section 16. Irrevocability and Termination.

Subject to the rights of the parties to amend this Agreement, as provided in Section 15. hereof, this Trust shall be irrevocable and shall continue until terminated at the written agreement of Land Owner, the Trustee and the DEP or of the Trustee and the DEP if Land Owner ceases to exist. Upon termination of the Trust, all remaining trust property, less final trust administration expenses, shall be delivered to Land Owner.

Section 17. Immunity and Indemnification.

The Trustee shall not incur personal liability of any nature in connection with any act or omission, made in good faith, in the administration of this Trust or in carrying out any directions by Land Owner or the DEP issued in accordance with the Agreement. The Trustee shall be indemnified and saved harmless by Land Owner or from the Trust Fund, or both, from and against any personal liability to which the Trustee may be subjected by reason of any act or conduct in its official capacity, including all expenses reasonably incurred in its defense in the event Land Owner fails to provide such defense.

Section 18. Choice of Law.

This Agreement shall be administered, construed and enforced according to the laws of the State of _____ [state].

Section 19. Interpretation.

As used in this Agreement, words in the singular include the plural, and words in the plural include the singular.

The descriptive headings for each Section of this Agreement shall not affect the interpretation or the legal efficacy of this Agreement.

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.90

FORM 25.90 Commercial mortgage--shopping center--representation of condition of premises based on findings of environmental site assessment

COMMENT

This form contains a commercial mortgage to be used in the financing of a shopping center. However, the mortgage can be adapted easily for loan transactions involving other types of Development and Subdivision, Part IV., Forms, Section G, supra. ommercial property, such as factories, office buildings, etc.

The mortgage also contains a warranty of the condition of the premises that is granted by the borrower to the lender. Specifically, the borrower warrants that he has had an environmental site assessment performed by a reliable environmental consultant and has provided a copy of the assessment to the lender. The borrower further warrants that there is no evidence that toxic or hazardous substances have ever been manufactured, used, stored, handled, released or disposed of on the premises. The borrower also represents that he is not aware of any adverse environmental conditions, except as is set forth in the report. A beach of the warranty constitutes a default under the terms of the note and the mortgage, entitling the lender to accelerate the note and foreclose the mortgage.

FORM

MORTGAGE

THIS MORTGAGE, made the ____ [day] day of _____ [month] ____ [year], between _____ [name], residing at _____ [address] (hereafter known as "Borrower" or "Mortgagor"), and

_____, [name], a banking corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of _____ [state], having its principal place of business at _____ [address] (hereafter known as "Lender" or "Mortgagee").

WITNESSETH, that to secure the payment of an indebtedness in the sum of _____ Dollars ($ _____), lawful money of the United States, and also any and all additional advances which may be made by the Lender to the Borrower at any time before the date on which the indebtedness secured by this Mortgage is paid, with interest thereon, all to be paid according to a certain bond or note or obligation, and also any and all further loans or indebtedness owed or to be owed by the Borrower or any subsequent owner of the mortgaged premises, to the Lender, the Borrower hereby mortgages to the Lender.

A CERTAIN PARCEL OF LAND, with the buildings and improvements thereon erected, commonly known as the _____ [name] Shopping Mall, and more particularly described in Schedule "A" annexed hereto and made a part hereof.

TOGETHER with all right, title and interest of the Borrower in and to any land lying in the bed of any street, road or highway, in front of the premises above described;

TOGETHER with all fixtures and articles of personal property, now or hereafter attached to, or used in connection with, the premises, all of which are covered by this Mortgage;

TOGETHER with the appurtenances, and all the estate and rights of the Borrower in and to said premises;

AND the Borrower covenants with the Lender as follows:

1. Promise to Pay Indebtedness. The Borrower will pay the indebtedness as provided in the accompanying bond or note.

2. Insuring the Property:

(a) The Borrower will keep the buildings on the premises, and any other combustible property covered hereby, insured for the benefit of the Lender against loss by fire and such other hazards as may be required by the Mortgagee, by such insurance companies and in such amounts acceptable to the Mortgagee; he will assign and deliver the policies to the Mortgagee; and he will reimburse the Lender for any premiums for insurance paid by the Lender on the Mortgagor's default in so insuring the buildings, or in so assigning and delivering the policies.

(b) Borrower agrees that, if permitted by law, in the event of a loss by fire or other hazard, the proceeds of any insurance policy insuring against said loss shall be under the control of the Lender, and the Lender shall determine on behalf of Borrower how said proceeds shall be paid in the event it is decided to rebuild the damaged or destroyed premises. In the event rebuilding is not commenced within _____ (_____) days of the day the insurance proceeds are received, the Lender may apply the proceeds against the Mortgage indebtedness at its option. The Lender shall not be obligated to pay interest at any time, to anyone, on the insurance proceeds so held.

(c) The buildings and all fixtures, equipment and articles of personal property covered by this Mortgage shall be kept insured against loss by fire for the benefit of the Lender, in an amount not less than the unpaid balance of this Mortgage, and in the case of co-insurance, such amount as will assure full recovery in case of partial or total loss. The property shall also be insured for the benefit of, and in amounts satisfactory to, the Lender against any other insurable hazards as may from time to time be reasonably required by the Lender, all in companies acceptable to it. Public liability insurance and rental value insurance, in amounts approved by the Lender, shall also be carried, evidenced by a certificate or other evidence satisfactory to Lender.

3. Warranty of Title. The Borrower warrants the title to the premises, fixtures and personal property mortgaged hereby and will maintain the lien of this Mortgage as a valid first lien on the premises.

4. Borrower to Maintain Buildings. The Borrower will maintain the buildings on said premises in good repair, and will not alter, demolish or remove any building, fixture or personal property mortgaged hereby without the written consent of the Mortgagee, and will not suffer or permit any other waste, and will comply with all statutes, orders and requirements of the federal, state and municipal governments, or any departments or bureaus thereof, having jurisdiction over the mortgaged premises. The holder of this Mortgage or its agents shall have the right to inspect the mortgaged premises from time to time at any reasonable hour of the day.

5. Default. The whole of said principal sum and interest shall become due at the option of the Mortgagee:

(a) after default for _____ (_____) days in the payment of any installment of principal or of interest;

(b) after default for _____ (_____) days in the payment of any other sum required to be paid by the Borrower to the Lender under the terms of the bond or note secured hereby;

(c) after default in the payment of any tax, water rent or assessment for _____ (_____) days after the same becomes due and payable;

(d) after default following notice and demand either to assign and deliver the policies insuring the buildings against loss by fire, or to reimburse the Lender for premiums paid on such insurance, as herein provided;

(e) after default upon request to furnish a statement of the amount due on the Mortgage and whether any offsets or defenses exist against the Mortgage debt, as hereinafter provided; or

(f) after any other default under the terms, covenants or conditions of this Mortgage, or of the bond or note secured hereby, or upon the commencement of an action or proceeding for the foreclosure or enforcement of any alleged lien upon the mortgaged premises.

6. Appointment of Receiver. The holder of this Mortgage, in any action to foreclose on it, shall be entitled to the appointment of a receiver without notice and without regard to adequacy of any security of the debt.

7. Surrender of Premises Upon Default. After any default hereunder, the Borrower shall, upon demand, surrender possession of the premises to the Mortgagee. After any such default, the Lender may enter upon the premises or any part thereof and collect the rents, income and profits therefrom, which are due or become due, and apply the same, after payment of all charges and expenses, against the indebtedness. The said rents, income and profits and all the leases existing at the time of such default shall, upon such default, be assigned to the Mortgagee as further security for the payment of the indebtedness. No such entry by or on behalf of the Lender shall be deemed to constitute the Lender a "mortgagee in possession." If the Borrower remains in possession thereof after any such default, the possession shall be as a tenant of the Lender, and the Borrower agrees to pay in advance and upon demand of the Lender a reasonable monthly rental for the premises or portion so occupied. The Lender may also dispossess, by summary proceedings or otherwise, any tenant or Borrower, if such party defaults in the payment of any rent to the Lender. This covenant shall, at the option of the Mortgagee, become operative immediately after the happening of any event of default, regardless of whether foreclosure proceedings have been instituted, and without application for the appointment of a receiver. In case of the appointment of a receiver of such rents, income or profits, this covenant shall inure to the benefit of such receiver.

8. Lender's Expenses from Foreclosure or Collection of Indebtedness. If any action or proceeding is commenced by the Lender to foreclose this Mortgage or to collect the indebtedness, the Borrower agrees to pay to the Lender statutory costs and expenses and reasonable attorneys' fees in connection with such action or proceeding, and these costs, expenses and fees shall be deemed to be secured by this Mortgage and may be collected in such foreclosure or other action or proceeding and shall be a lien on the premises prior to any right or title to, interest in, or claim upon the premises attaching or accruing subsequent to the lien hereof.

9. Sale of Property Following Foreclosure. In the event of the foreclosure of the Mortgage, said premises may be sold in one or more parcels, at the option and discretion of the Mortgagee, any provision of law to the contrary notwithstanding.

10. Lender's Expenses from Foreclosure or Collection of Indebtedness: Proceedings in U.S. Bankruptcy Court. If any action or proceeding is commenced by the Lender to foreclose or to collect the indebtedness, the Borrower agrees to pay to the Lender statutory costs and expenses and reasonable attorneys' fees in connection with such action or proceeding, including any proceedings in U.S. Bankruptcy Court as a result of said foreclosure, and such costs, expenses and fees shall be deemed to be secured by the Mortgage and may be collected in such foreclosure or other action or proceeding and shall be a lien on the premises prior to any right or title to, interest in, or claim upon the premises attaching or accruing subsequent to the lien thereof.

11. Borrower to Pay All Taxes, Assessments or Water Rents. The Borrower will pay all taxes, assessments, or water rents, and if Borrower is in default thereof, the Lender may pay the same.

12. Mortgagor to Furnish Written Statement of Amount Due on Mortgage. The Mortgagor, within _____ (_____) days of receiving a request delivered by hand, or within _____ (_____) days of receiving a request by mail, will furnish a written statement, duly acknowledged, of the amount due on this Mortgage and whether any offsets or defenses exist against the Mortgage debt.

13. Notice and demand or request may be in writing and may be served in person or by mail.

14. Abandonment of Premises by Mortgagor. If the mortgaged premises shall be abandoned or vacated by the Mortgagor or by the then owner thereof, the Lender shall have the right to enter upon and take possession of the premises to protect and conserve its security, with all usual powers of a Lender in possession.

15. No Pledge or Assignment by Borrower of Rents or Profits. There is by Borrower no pledge or assignment of any of the rents, issues or profits of the said mortgaged premises, or any part thereof, outstanding, and no prepayment thereof; the Borrower will not pledge or assign such rents, or any part thereof, during the term of this Mortgage without the written consent of the Mortgagee.

16. Leases. All leases and subleases of space on the mortgaged premises shall be in form and substance satisfactory to the Lender and shall have subordination provisions in form and substance satisfactory to the Lender and its counsel, subordinating the interest of the tenants thereunder to this Mortgage and all renewals, modifications, consolidations, replacements and extensions thereof. No prepayments of rent shall be permitted.

17. Acceleration of Debt Repayment Following Change in Tax Law. In the event of the passage of any law changing in any way the laws for the taxation of mortgages or debts secured by mortgages, the Lender shall have the right to give _____ (_____) days' written notice to the Borrower requiring the payment of the indebtedness. If such notice is given, the indebtedness shall become immediately due and payable at the expiration of said _____ (_____) days.

18. Lender's Failure to Require Performance of Covenant is Not Waiver of Covenant. The failure at any time of the Lender to require strict performance of any of the terms or covenants of this Mortgage shall not constitute a waiver or release of such terms or covenants.

19. Changes in Payment Terms do Not Affect Priority of the Lien of this Mortgage. The terms of payment of the bond or note secured hereby may be modified or altered by the Lender with the consent of the Mortgagor, or the then owner of the mortgaged premises, without impairing or affecting the priority of the lien of this Mortgage with respect to any subsequent lien or encumbrance.

20. Lender's Release of Portion of Mortgaged Premises. The Lender may, at any time, release any portion of the mortgaged premises, or any securities or other personal property pledged or assigned to it as additional security for the payment of the bond or note and indebtedness secured by this Mortgage, and may accept other securities or other personal property in place thereof without being accountable to any other lienor.

21. Acceleration of Debt Repayment Following Sale, Conveyance, Transfer or Lease of Premises Without Lender's Approval. In the event of the sale, conveyance or transfer, by deed, installment contract, or any other voluntary or involuntary act, of the premises covered by this Mortgage or a part thereof, or, if the Borrower is a corporation, any transfer of the capital stock of the Borrower, or the lease of any entire building or buildings or any portion thereof on said premises to a single entity, person or persons, while this Mortgage shall remain a lien thereon, the full balance of the indebtedness then remaining unpaid, with interest, shall, at the option of the Lender or its assigns, be immediately due and payable without notice or demand, unless the prior written consent of the Lender to such sale, conveyance, transfer or lease shall have been obtained. A mortgage of the premises covered by this Mortgage to any Lender other than the Lender herein shall be deemed a conveyance for the purpose of this paragraph. In the event Lender gives its consent, as a condition of such consent, Lender, at its sole discretion, may impose modifications to the note and Mortgage as to interest and/or any other term(s). The Lender may also require payment of a fee. In the event that Borrower is a partnership, any change in Borrower's partnership agreement as it exists on the date of this Mortgage, or any change in the membership of the partnership as it presently exists, without the express written consent of the Lender, may, at the option of the Lender, be considered an event of default hereunder.

22. Borrower to Furnish Financial Records to Lender. The Borrower will furnish to the Lender a copy of its income and expense statement and a copy of its balance sheet in a form satisfactory to the Lender within _____ (_____) days after the close of its fiscal year, or within _____ (_____) days after written request therefor by the Lender. Such statements must be certified by an independent public accountant. The Lender reserves the right to conduct its own independent audit with respect thereto. Borrower agrees to pay a late charge of _____ Dollars ($_____) per month, or any portion thereof, for failure to supply such financial statement.

23. Consent of Borrower's Shareholders to Mortgage is Unnecessary. If the Borrower is a corporation, neither its certificate of incorporation, any amendment thereto, nor its by-laws requires the consent of shareholders to the execution and delivery of this Mortgage; the execution and delivery of this Mortgage have been duly authorized by its Board of Directors.

24. References to Number of Parties to Mortgage. If more than one person joins in the execution of this Mortgage, the relative words herein shall be read as if written in the plural. If more than one person joins in this Mortgage, all the obligations herein contained shall be construed to be the joint and several obligations of the said persons. If the Borrower is a corporation or a partnership, all relative words shall be read as if written in the neuter gender.

25. Terms, Conditions and Covenants of Note are Part of Mortgage. The terms, conditions and covenants of the bond or note secured hereby are hereby made a part of this Mortgage and are incorporated by reference herein with like legal effect as if herein set forth at length.

26. Maximum Amount Secured by Mortgage. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary above stated, the maximum amount secured by this Mortgage or the maximum amount which, under any contingency, may be secured by this Mortgage is the amount of this Mortgage as first above stated, to wit, the sum of _____ Dollars ($_____).

27. Mortgagor to Obtain Flood Insurance. The Mortgagor, its successors and assigns will, if required, keep the mortgaged premises insured against loss by flood under the provisions of the Federal Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973 for the benefit of Mortgagee, up to the amount of the Mortgage debt or the maximum amount of coverage available. In the event of failure to obtain such insurance, the holder of the Mortgage may, at its option, insure the premises in the above manner and add the premiums therefor to the principal debt secured by this Mortgage.

28. No oral Modifications; Covenants to Run with Land. The terms of this Mortgage may not be changed or terminated orally. The covenants contained in this Mortgage shall run with the land and bind the Mortgagor, the heirs, personal representatives, successors and assigns of the Mortgagor and all subsequent owners, encumbrancers, tenants and subtenants of the premises and shall inure to the benefit of the Mortgagee, the personal representatives, successors and assigns of the Mortgagee and all subsequent holders of this Mortgage.

29. Acceleration of Debt Repayment Upon Bankruptcy, Insolvency, etc., of Borrower. If a petition in bankruptcy, or for a debtor's extension of time, or for corporate reorganization, or for any other relief under the Bankruptcy Act or any other state or federal insolvency law, as now existing or as hereafter amended, is filed by the Borrower; or if a general assignment for the benefit of creditors is made by the Borrower; or if the Borrower shall cease to be authorized to do business in the State of _____ [state], then the entire unpaid principal balance of the indebtedness secured hereby, together with all interest then accrued, shall, at the option of the Lender, be and become due and payable for all purposes.

30. Borrower covenants that it will execute, acknowledge, deliver, file and/or record, or cause to be executed, acknowledged, delivered, filed and/or recorded, every and all such further acts, deeds, conveyances, advances, mortgages, transfers and assurances in law as the Lender shall require for better assuring, conveying, transferring, mortgaging, assigning and confirming unto the Lender all the said premises, estates and property mortgaged or intended so to be.

31. Conflicts Arising Between Terms of Documents to be Settled in Lender's Favor. In the event of a conflict between the terms, covenants, and conditions of the documents evidencing or securing the Mortgage obligation herein, those which shall enlarge the interest of the Lender in the security, and/or assure payment of the note and all indebtedness secured therein in full, shall control.

32. Conflicts Between Typewritten and Printed Portions of Documents to be Settled in Lender's Favor. Wherever there is a conflict between the terms and conditions of the printed portion of this Mortgage and the typewritten portion, the portion of this Mortgage which enlarges the interest of Lender in the security, and/or assures payment of the note and all indebtedness secured thereby in full, shall prevail.

33. Monthly Payment by Borrower of Real Estate Taxes. The Borrower shall deposit with the Lender, commencing with the first month of interest payments due under the terms of the note, and each month thereafter, until the loan is paid in full, one-twelfth (1/12) of the annual taxes assessed against said premises, as estimated by Lender, or such other amounts as may from time to time be estimated by Lender, to be applied by Lender to or towards the payment of such taxes and assessments. In case the aggregate amount so deposited with Lender is, at any time, insufficient to pay in full any tax or assessment which may then become due, Borrower agrees to pay Lender, on demand, the amount of such deficiency. If such deposits by Borrower shall exceed the entire amount of said taxes and assessments payable for any year, the excess will either be credited against such taxes and assessments to be thereafter due on said premises, or returned to Borrower. Such deposits may be mingled with the general funds of Lender, and Lender shall not be liable for interest thereon. In the event of foreclosure of the Mortgage, such deposits may, in the discretion of the Lender, be applied toward the indebtedness to the extent they have not otherwise been used. Payments from such deposits for any of the aforementioned purposes may be made by Lender, at its sole and absolute discretion, even though subsequent owners of the mortgaged premises may benefit thereby. The Borrower shall make a deposit under this paragraph at closing in an amount to be determined by Lender. The requirements of this paragraph can be waived at the option of Lender.

34. Environmental Site Assessment. Borrower hereby warrants that he has had an environmental site assessment performed by a reliable environmental consultant. Borrower has provided a true, complete and accurate copy of said environmental assessment to Lender. Borrower hereby represents and warrants that there is no evidence that toxic or hazardous substances have ever been manufactured, used, stored, handled, released or disposed of on the premises described in Schedule A annexed hereto. This representation does not include the use of substances commonly sold at retail and used for household purposes, such as cleaning compounds. Borrower also warrants that except as is disclosed in the report, there are no toxic or hazardous substances on or about the property.

Borrower further represents and warrants that there are no lawsuits or enforcement proceedings threatened or pending, relating to the environmental condition of the premises described in Schedule A. Borrower further warrants that there are no unsatisfied decrees or orders issued by any governmental authority with regard to the environmental condition of the premises described in Schedule A.

Borrower makes these representations and warranties knowing that Lender has relied thereon in making its decision to lend the funds evidenced by the note and secured by this Mortgage. A misrepresentation made by Borrower hereunder shall be an event of default under this Mortgage and the note.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, this Mortgage has been duly signed and executed by the Mortgagor.

5. Appointment of Receiver. The holder of this mortgage, in any action to foreclose it, shall be entitled to the appointment of a receiver.

6. Payment of Taxes, etc. The Mortgagor will pay all taxes, assessments, sewer rents or water rents, and when the Mortgagor is in default thereof, the mortgagee may pay the same.

7. Mortgagor to Provide Written Statement of Amount Due on Mortgage. If any action or proceeding be commenced (except an action to foreclose this mortgage or to collect the debt secured thereby), in which action or proceeding the Mortgagee is made a party, or in which action or proceeding it becomes necessary to defend or uphold the lien of this mortgage, all sums paid by the Mortgagee for the expense of any litigation to prosecute or defend the rights and lien created by this mortgage (including reasonable attorneys' fees), shall be paid by the Mortgagor, together with interest thereon at the rate of _____ percent (_____) per annum, and any such sum and the interest thereon shall be a lien on said premises, prior to any right or title to, interest in, or claim upon said premises attaching or accruing subsequent to the lien of this mortgage.

13. Assignment of Rents to Mortgagee. The Mortgagor hereby assigns to the Mortgagee the rents, issues and profits of the premises as further security for the payment of said indebtedness, and the Mortgagor grants to the Mortgagee the right to enter upon and take possession of the premises for the purpose of collecting the same and to let the premises or any part thereof, and to apply the rents, issues and profits, after payment of all necessary charges and expenses, on account of said indebtedness. This assignment and grant shall continue in effect until this mortgage is paid. The Mortgagee hereby waives the right to enter upon and to take possession of said premises for the purpose of collecting said rents, issues and profits, and the Mortgagor shall be entitled to collect and receive said rents, issues and profits until default under any of the covenants, conditions or agreements contained in this mortgage, and agrees to use such rents, issues and profits in payment of principal and interest becoming due on this mortgage and in payment of taxes, assessments, sewer rents, water rates, and carrying charges becoming due against said premises, but such right of the Mortgagor may be revoked by the Mortgagee upon any default, on _____ (_____) days' written notice. The Mortgagor will not, without the written consent of the Mortgagee, receive or collect rent from any tenant of the said premises or any part hereof for a period of more than one month in advance, and in the event of any default under this mortgage will pay monthly in advance to the Mortgagee, or to any receiver appointed to collect said rents, issues and profits, the fair and reasonable rental value for the use and occupation of said premises or such part thereof as may be in the possession of the Mortgagor, and upon default in such payment will vacate and surrender the possession of the said premises to the Mortgagee or to such receiver, and in default thereof may be evicted by summary proceedings.

14. Actions Resulting in an Acceleration of Payment of the Entire Principal Debt, Plus Interest. The whole of said principal sum and the interest shall become due, at the option of the Mortgagee:

(a) after Mortgagor's failure to exhibit to the Mortgagee, within _____ (_____) days after demand, receipts showing payment of all taxes, water rates, sewer rents and assessments;

(b) after the actual or threatened alteration, demolition or removal of any building on the premises without the written consent of the Mortgagee;

(c) after the assignment of the premises or any part thereof without the written consent of the Mortgagee;

(d) if the buildings on said premises are not maintained in reasonably good repair;

(h) after _____ (_____) days' notice to the Mortgagor, in the event of the passage of any law changing in any way the taxation of mortgages or debts secured thereby for state or local purposes; or

(i) if the mortgagor fails to keep, observe and perform any of the other covenants, conditions or agreements contained in this mortgage.

Environmental provisions:

16. Uses of Property. Mortgagor covenants that he has taken all necessary or appropriate steps to review the prior owners and prior uses of the property. Mortgagor warrants that, to the best of his knowledge, the property has never been used for the production, storage, handling, transportation, or disposal of toxic or hazardous substances as defined in the environmental laws described above.

Mortgagor further covenants that, during the term of the loan, he will not allow or suffer any use of the property for the production, storage, handling, transportation, disposal, or other use involving toxic or hazardous substances as defined above.

As used herein, the terms "toxic substances" or "hazardous substances" shall not include ordinary substances sold at retail for cleaning or other "household" uses.

17. Compliance with laws. Mortgagor covenants that there are no existing violations of environmental laws in, on, or about the subject premises. There are no outstanding orders or decrees of any court or agency regarding any violation of any environmental laws in, on, or about the subject premises. There are no lawsuits or compliance proceedings pending or threatened regarding the subject premises. Mortgagor has obtained all required permits of any nature for the operation of the business located on the subject premises. Mortgagor and the premises are in full compliance with the terms of such permits.

Mortgagor further covenants that he will not allow or suffer any violation of any environmental law as it relates to the premises or the business operated thereon. Mortgagor will keep in full force and effect all required permits and will timely seek extensions or renewals thereof. Mortgagor will maintain the premises and operate the business in full compliance with the terms of such permits during the entire term of this loan.

Mortgagor covenants that he will provide Mortgagee with notice within twenty-four (24) hours of receiving any information which indicates that there is any: (1) violation of any environmental law; (2) a threatened revocation or non-renewal of any permit; (3) an order or decree of violation; (4) a lawsuit threatened or commenced regarding environmental conditions on the premises. Failure to do so will be a violation of this Agreement.

18. Change in Use. Mortgagor covenants that he will not suffer or permit a change in the current use of the property without the permission of Mortgagee. Mortgagee agrees not to unreasonably withhold permission. However, Mortgagee reserves the right to condition such permission on the continued effectiveness of the provisions of this Agreement and on any further assurances which Mortgagee may reasonably require to protect Mortgagee against any potential liability for the occurrence of any adverse environmental event which may jeopardize the viability of Mortgagee's security.

19. Right to Inspect. Mortgagor grants Mortgagee, its agents, employees and officers, permission to enter upon the premises at all reasonable hours for the purpose of inspecting the premises. Mortgagor further grants Mortgagee and its agents permission to perform tests on the premises as deemed necessary or appropriate to ascertain whether Mortgagor is in full compliance with the terms of this Agreement.

20. Indemnification. Mortgagor shall indemnify and hold Mortgagee harmless for any fines, claims, judgments, expenses, costs of remediation, or other liability, including legal fees and other costs of defense, for injury to person or property which results from or arises out of the failure of Mortgagor, any of Mortgagor's predecessors in title, or any tenants or occupants, to fully perform their obligations under any environmental law as defined above.

21. Survival. The provisions of this Agreement shall survive any sale, conveyance, or other transfer of the premises, whether voluntary or involuntary, including a transfer after the foreclosure of the mortgage. The provisions of this Agreement shall be extinguished only upon full payment of the debt secured by the mortgage, which is a lien on Mortgagor's premises, without an event of default having occurred. Under the terms of the said Note and Mortgage, Mortgagee shall provide a release at that time.

22. Disclaimers. Nothing contained herein shall be deemed to render Mortgagee "in control" of the premises as that term is defined in the environmental laws.

23. Environmental Site Assessment. The provisions of this indemnification are in consideration of Mortgagee waiving the requirement contained in its commitment letter for an environmental site assessment.

This mortgage may not be changed or terminated orally. The covenants contained in this mortgage shall run with the land and bind the Mortgagor, the heirs, personal representatives, successors and assigns of the Mortgagor and all subsequent owners, encumbrancers, tenants and subtenants of the premises, and shall inure to the benefit of the Mortgagee, the personal representatives, successors and assigns of the Mortgagee, and all subsequent holders of this mortgage.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, this Mortgage has been duly signed and executed by the Mortgagor.

FORM 25.92 Commercial mortgage--borrower's representation that environmental site assessment has been performed

COMMENT

This mortgage is a form which may be used to finance the purchase of commercial property, ranging from an office building or office complex to a factory, warehouse, retail store, etc.

One interesting feature of this mortgage is that it contains a "power of sale" provision. A mortgage may confer a power of sale upon the mortgagee (the lender) or any other person. With such a provision, in the event of a breach of the terms of the note or mortgage by the borrower, the person holding the power of sale can automatically sell the property pledged as security, rather than resorting to a court action for foreclosure of the mortgage.

In this document, the lender not only requires an environmental site assessment as a prerequisite for granting the loan, it also requires representations from the borrower that nothing has occurred since the assessment has been performed which might alter the conclusions of the environmental consultant. Clearly, the existence of an environmental hazard or other problem upon the mortgaged premises would reduce the value of the property. Depending on the nature and severity of the problem, the property may become utterly worthless if clean up costs exceed the fair market value of the property.

The mortgage further provides that the giving of false or misleading representations by the borrower is an event of default under the mortgage, giving rise to all the normal rights which a lender possesses upon the occurrence of any act of default.

FORM

MORTGAGE

THIS MORTGAGE, made this _____ [day] day of _____ [month] _____ [year], between _____ [name] (the "Mortgagor"), whose address is _____ [address], and _____ [name] (the "Mortgagee");

MORTGAGOR HEREBY mortgages to Mortgagee along with the power of sale, all that property located in the City of _____ [city], County of _____ [county], State of _____ [state], described as: _____ [set forth legal description of property] (the "Property"), together with rents, issues, and profits of the Property, subject, however, to the right, power, and authority given to and conferred upon Mortgagee to collect and apply these rents, issues, and profits.

FOR THE PURPOSE OF SECURING:

1. The payment of the indebtedness evidenced by a promissory note of this date, executed by Mortgagor in favor of Mortgagee in the original principal amount of _____ Dollars ($_____) (the "Note");
2. The payment of any additional sums and interest that may hereafter be loaned to Mortgagor or _____ [his or her] successors or assigns by Mortgagee, when evidenced by another note or notes reciting that it or they are secured by this Mortgage; and
3. The performance of each agreement contained in this Mortgage.

TO PROTECT THE SECURITY OF THIS MORTGAGE, MORTGAGOR AGREES:

1. Maintenance and Repair. To keep the Property in good condition and repair; not to remove or demolish any buildings on the Property; to complete or restore promptly and in good and workmanlike manner any building that may be constructed, damaged, or destroyed on the property; to pay when due all claims for labor performed and materials furnished for the Property; to comply with all laws affecting the Property or requiring any alterations or improvements to be made on the Property; not to commit or permit waste of the Property; not commit, suffer, or permit any act upon the Property in violation of law; and to cultivate, irrigate, fertilize, fumigate, prune, and do all other acts that from the character or use of the Property may be reasonably necessary.
2. Fire Insurance. To provide, maintain, and deliver to Mortgagee fire insurance satisfactory to, and with loss payable to, Mortgagee. The amount collected under any fire or other insurance policy may be applied by Mortgagee to any indebtedness secured by this Mortgage and in any order determined by Mortgagee, or at the option of Mortgagee the entire amount so collected or any part of that amount may be released to Mortgagor. This application or release shall not cure or waive any default or notice of default under this Mortgage or invalidate any act done pursuant to such a notice.
3. Defense of Security. To appear in and defend any action or proceeding purporting to affect the security of this Mortgage or the rights or powers of Mortgagee, and to pay all costs and expenses, including cost of evidence of title and attorneys' fees in a reasonable sum, in any such action or proceeding in which Mortgagee may appear, and in any suit brought by Mortgagee to foreclose this Mortgage.
4. Payment of Liens and Taxes. To pay, at least _____ (_____) days before delinquency, all taxes and assessments affecting the Property, including assessments on appurtenant water stock; all encumbrances, charges, and liens, with interest, on the Property or any part of the Property, which appear to be prior or superior to this Mortgage; and all costs, fees, and expenses of this Mortgage.

If Mortgagor fails to make any payment or to do any act as provided in this Mortgage, then Mortgagee may (but is not obligated to) make the payment or do the act in the required manner and to the extent deemed necessary by Mortgagee to protect the security of this Mortgage. The performance by Mortgagee of such an act shall not require notice to or demand upon Mortgagor and shall not release Mortgagor from any obligation under this Mortgage. Mortgagee shall also have the following related rights and powers: to enter upon the Property for the foregoing purposes; to appear in and defend any action or proceeding purporting to affect the security of this Mortgage or the rights or powers of Mortgagee; to pay, purchase, contest, or compromise any encumbrance, charge, or lien that, in the judgment of either, appears to be prior or superior to this Mortgage; to employ counsel; and to pay necessary expenses and costs, including attorneys' fees.

5. Reimbursement of Costs. To pay immediately and without demand all sums so expended by Mortgagee, with interest from date of expenditure at the amount allowed by law in effect at the date of this Mortgage, and to pay any amount demanded by Mortgagee (up to the maximum allowed by law at the time of the demand) for any statement regarding the obligation secured by this Mortgage.

6. Condemnation Award. Any award of damages in connection with any taking or condemnation, or for injury to the Property by reason of public use, or for damages for private trespass or injury to the Property, is hereby assigned and shall be paid to Mortgagee as further security for all obligations secured by this Mortgage. Upon receipt of such proceeds, Mortgagee may hold the proceeds as further security, or apply or release them in the same manner and with same effect as provided in this Mortgage for the disposition of proceeds of fire or other insurance.

7. Waiver of Late Payments. By accepting payment of any sum secured by this Mortgage after its due date, Mortgagee does not waive its right either to require prompt payment when due of all other sums so secured or to declare default for failure to pay any indebtedness secured by this Mortgage.

8. Mortgagee's Powers. At any time and from time to time, Mortgagee may (a) release any part of the Property from this Mortgage; (b) consent to the making of any map or plat of the Property; (c) join in granting any easement on the Property; or (d) join in any extension agreement or any agreement subordinating the lien or charge of this Mortgage. Mortgagee need not provide Mortgagor with notice before taking any of the foregoing actions, and shall not be liable for the proper performance of the act. The exercise by Mortgagee of any of the foregoing powers shall not affect: the personal liability of any person for payment of the indebtedness secured by this Mortgage; or the lien of this Mortgage on the remaining property as security for the repayment of the full amount secured by this Mortgage.

9. Certificate of Discharge. When all sums secured by this Mortgage have been paid in full, the lien created by this Mortgage shall cease and become void, and Mortgagee shall cause a certificate of discharge to be entered of record stating that all sums secured by this Mortgage have been fully paid, satisfied, and discharged, and that the Property has been released from the lien of this Mortgage. At that time, Mortgagee shall also cancel the note secured by this Mortgage and shall return this Mortgage and the Note to Mortgagor.

10. Assignment of Rents. As additional security, Mortgagor hereby gives to and confers upon Mortgagee the right, power, and authority, during the continuance of this Mortgage, to collect the rents, issues, and profits of the Property, but reserves the right, prior to any default by Mortgagor in payment of any indebtedness secured by this Mortgage or in the performance of any agreement under this Mortgage, to collect and retain these rents, issues, and profits as they become due and payable. Upon any such default, Mortgagee may, without notice and without regard to the adequacy of the security for the indebtedness secured by this Mortgage, either personally or by agent or court-appointed receiver, do the following: enter upon and take possession of the Property or any part of the Property; sue for or otherwise collect all rents, issues, and profits, including those past due and unpaid; and apply these rents, issues, and profits, less costs and expenses of operation and collection (including reasonable attorneys' fees), to any indebtedness secured by this Mortgage in any order determined by Mortgagee. The exercise of the foregoing rights by Mortgagee shall not cure or waive any default or notice of default under this Mortgage or invalidate any act done pursuant to such a notice.

11. Default and Foreclosure. Upon default by Mortgagor in payment of any indebtedness secured by this Mortgage or in the performance of any obligation under this Mortgage, Mortgagee may declare all sums secured by this Mortgage immediately due and payable by instituting legal proceedings for judicial foreclosure of this Mortgage, in which case the net proceeds from the sale, under the direction and decree of a court of competent jurisdiction, shall be applied to the indebtedness secured by this Mortgage.

As an alternative to court foreclosure, upon such a default, Mortgagee may declare all sums secured by this Mortgage immediately due and payable by recording a written notice of default. After the required time period has lapsed following the recordation of the notice of default, and after notice of sale has been given as required by law, Mortgagee, without demand on Mortgagor, shall sell the Property at the time and place specified in the notice of sale, either as a whole or in separate parcels, and in any order determined by Mortgagee, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash in lawful money of the United States, payable at the time of sale. Mortgagee may postpone sale of all or any portion of the Property by public announcement at the time and place of sale, and from time to time thereafter may postpone the sale by public announcement at the time fixed by the preceding postponement. Mortgagee shall deliver to the purchaser at the auction its deed conveying the Property sold, but without any covenant or warranty, express or implied. The recital in the deed of any matter or fact shall be conclusive proof of the truthfulness of the recital. Any person, including Mortgagor or Mortgagee, may purchase at the sale.

After deducting all costs, fees, and expenses of Mortgagee under this paragraph, including costs of procuring evidence of title incurred in connection with the sale, Mortgagee shall apply the proceeds of sale to payment of: all sums expended under the terms of this Mortgage, not then repaid, with accrued interest at the amount allowed by law in effect at the date of this Mortgage; all other sums then secured by this Mortgage; and the remainder, if any, to the person or persons legally entitled to the remaining proceeds.

12. Environmental Provisions. Mortgagor hereby represents that it has caused a phase I environmental site assessment to be performed by _____ [name], which report is dated _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year] (the "Report"), that a true and accurate copy of the Report has been delivered to Mortgagee; that Mortgagor is aware of no facts and circumstances which would change the conclusions contained in the Report; that no changes in use of the premises have occurred since the environmental site assessment was performed; that Mortgagor makes these representations to induce Mortgagee to loan the above sum. The Mortgagor acknowledges that any false or misleading representation contained herein shall be deemed an incident of default and shall entitle Mortgagee to exercise its remedies for default hereunder and any other remedies which Mortgagee may have at law or in equity.

13. General Provisions. This Mortgage applies to, inures to the benefit of, and binds all parties to this Mortgage and their heirs, legatees, devisees, administrators, executors, successors and assigns. In this Mortgage, whenever the context so requires, the masculine gender includes the feminine and/or neuter, and the singular number includes the plural.

The undersigned Mortgagor requests that a copy of any notice of default and of any notice of sale under this Mortgage be mailed to Mortgagor at the Mortgagor's address set forth above.

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.93

FORM 25.93 Residential note and mortgage--single family home

COMMENT

This form is a mortgage for a single-family residence. The document contains all of the standard provisions necessary to protect the lender's rights and investment and to clearly enunciate the borrower's duties. The document can be easily read and understood by members of the general public.

The mortgage imposes various responsibilities upon the borrower. Two of these responsibilities are of special importance. They are: (1) the duty to maintain the well, pump and other facets of the private water system that serves the mortgaged property in good working order; and (2) the duty to maintain the sewer line or septic system that serves the property in good working order.

If a borrower fails to properly maintain the well, pump, tanks and other features of a private water system serving the mortgaged premises, then the system might malfunction, leaving the structure without a source of clean water and, thus, uninhabitable until necessary repairs are completed. In the event of a subsequent foreclosure, the lender would be required to perform what could be extensive and costly repairs in order to make the property saleable. Accordingly, this mortgage requires the borrower to maintain the well, pump, and other features of the water system in good working order. Periodic inspections of the system are mandated, and other related duties are also imposed on the borrower.

Similarly, a private septic system (i.e., a "septic tank") or the sewer line connecting a structure to the municipal sewer pipes must be regularly and properly maintained. If the borrower does not maintain the septic system or the sewer line properly through periodic pumping or snaking, it may malfunction or become clogged, causing the structure to become uninhabitable until repairs are performed. The repair or replacement of a private septic system, or the repair or replacement of a sewer line connecting the structure to the municipal sewer system, can be a very costly project. Thus, a lender, who might some day have to foreclose on the property and assume ownership and control of it, will want to take appropriate steps to require the borrower to maintain the septic system or the sewer line.

In the mortgage, the borrower covenants to maintain the sewer line or septic system in good working order during the term of the loan. The borrower also agrees to perform periodic inspections of the septic tank and leach fields or the sewer system in order to insure proper functioning. The form also imposes a number of other related responsibilities upon the borrower.

FORM

RESIDENTIAL MORTGAGE

This Mortgage, made this ____ [day] day of _____ [month] ____ [year], between BORROWER, _____ [name], who resides at _____ [address], and LENDER, _____ [name], which has its principal place of business at _____ [address].

1. Loan. Borrower has borrowed the sum of _____ Dollars ($_____) from Lender today, _____ [month] ____ [day] ____ [year]. Borrower has given Lender a note which requires that sum to be paid in full by _____ [month] ____ [year]. The terms of the note are terms of this Mortgage.

2. Mortgage. Borrower grants to Lender all of the rights given by law to the holders of mortgages. This means that if Borrower fails to make the payments specified in the note, or if Borrower fails to keep any other promise contained in the note or mortgage, Lender can foreclose the mortgage. Foreclosure means that the property can be sold, and Borrower can be removed from the property.

3. Property. The property which Borrower mortgages is located at _____ [address]. The property contains a single-family residence. This property is also described in Schedule "A," which is attached to this Mortgage and is made a part hereof.

4. Other Rights. The rights given by Borrower to Lender include the rights to the building, water rights, gas, oil, and mineral rights, fixtures, and any other rights to which Borrower, as an owner of the property, has.

5. Payments:

A. Borrower promises to pay the amounts provided in the note.

B. Borrower promises to pay all taxes which are levied against the property, including, but not limited to, real property taxes, school taxes, water rents, sewer rents, street improvements, and special district taxes. Borrower, within _____ (_____) days, will provide copies of receipts for such taxes if Lender asks for them.

C. Lender may require that Borrower pay one-twelfth (1/12) of the estimated total annual taxes to Lender each month. Lender will hold those funds in escrow and use those funds to pay taxes as they become due. If Borrower has not paid enough or if the taxes increase, Lender may require an increase in the payments made to escrow.

If Lender advances its own funds to pay taxes, Lender may require Borrower to repay those funds immediately, together with interest at the note rate.

D. Borrower will obtain homeowners' insurance which protects against loss from fire, flood and other hazards. Lender may require Borrower to pay sums into the escrow account for the insurance premiums.

Borrower will provide a copy of the insurance policy to Lender. The insurance policy will name Lender as "Mortgagee."

E. If any government agency or other entity authorized by law takes a part of the property and pays Borrower for the taking (for example, through an "eminent domain" proceeding), Borrower shall pay those sums to Lender. Lender will reduce the amount owed by those sums.

6. Borrower's Other Promises:

A. Borrower promises to keep the property and building in good condition and repair. Borrower will not demolish, move or change the building without Lender's permission.

B. Borrower will correct any violation on the property within _____ (_____) days after receiving a notice of violation from any governmental authority.

C. Borrower will give a written statement of the amount he owes within _____ (_____) days after receiving a request from Lender. Borrower will also include in the statement a list of any defenses or offsets to payment.

D. Borrower warrants that he owns the property free and clear of the rights of any other person.

E. Borrower will defend Lender's rights in the property.

F. Borrower will reside on the property.

G. Borrower will not collect more than one month's rent in advance of the due date from any tenant of the property.

H. Borrower covenants that it shall comply with and shall cause its agents, employees, tenants, licensees and occupants to comply with all federal, state and municipal laws, orders, ordinances, regulations, and policies as they apply to the premises described in Schedule "A" of this mortgage.

I. Borrower covenants to maintain the sewer system or septic system in good working order during the term of this loan. Borrower shall perform or cause to be performed periodic inspections of the septic tank and leach fields or the sewer system in order to insure proper functioning. Lender reserves the right to request copies of the inspection reports. Lender shall not request such reports more frequently than once per year during the term of this loan.

J. Borrower covenants to maintain the well, pump, and other appurtenances to the water system in good working order during the term of this loan. Borrower shall perform or cause to be performed periodic inspections of the water, well, pump, holding tank and pipes to insure proper water purity and proper functioning. Lender reserves the right to request copies of the inspection reports. Lender shall not request such reports more frequently than once per year during the term of this loan.

K. If Borrower fails to produce a report within _____ (_____) days after receiving a written request therefor, Lender may order such inspection at Borrower's sole expense. Payment for an inspection by Lender shall be due with the next regular monthly mortgage payment after the bill is received by Borrower. Failure of Borrower to timely produce the inspection report or to reimburse Lender for its costs in obtaining such a report shall be an event of default under the terms of this mortgage. In such case, Lender shall be entitled to all the rights and privileges normally possessed by a Lender upon any act of default.

In the event that the inspection report indicates that repairs are necessary or appropriate, Borrower shall cause such repairs to be completed within _____ (_____) days after receipt of the inspection report. Failure to do so shall be an event of default under the terms of this mortgage. Borrower may request an extension of time of up to _____ (_____) days due to unfavorable weather conditions or ground conditions. Lender shall not unreasonably withhold its consent to such an extension. Upon completion of the repairs, Borrower shall provide Lender with proof thereof. In the event Borrower fails to complete the repairs, Lender may do so at Borrower's expense. Payment for repairs performed by Lender shall be due with the next regular monthly mortgage payment after the bill for repairs is received by Borrower. Failure to timely reimburse Lender shall be an event of default under the terms of this mortgage. In such case, Lender shall be entitled to all the rights and privileges normally possessed by a Lender upon any act of default. Nothing contained herein shall be deemed to require Lender to undertake any repairs or inspections.

Any expenses incurred by Lender under the provisions of this section shall be deemed to be secured by the lien of this mortgage, prior to any right or title to, or interest in, or claim upon, the premises attaching or accruing subsequent to this mortgage lien.

7. Lender's Rights:

A. Lender may inspect the property at any time. Lender will give reasonable notice of inspection to Borrower at the property's address.

B. Lender may require the entire balance of the note, including accrued interest, to be due and payable immediately if Borrower fails to keep any promise contained in the note or mortgage.

C. Lender may foreclose this Mortgage according to the procedures set by law if Borrower fails to keep any promises contained in the note or mortgage. In such case:

(1) The property may be sold in one parcel at the foreclosure sale.

(2) Lender may collect its costs of foreclosure from Borrower, including legal fees and disbursements. These costs shall be secured by the lien of this Mortgage.

(3) Lender may obtain a receiver of rents to collect rents from any occupants of the property, including Borrower. Borrower shall pay a reasonable charge to occupy the property. A receiver may be appointed without notice and without regard to the value of the property. The receiver may be paid a fee from the rents which he collects.

D. Lender may require Borrower to pay immediately all amounts due under the note, if Borrower sells or transfers the property to another person without Lender's written permission.

E. If Lender must defend its rights under the note or mortgage, Borrower will reimburse Lender, upon demand, for all costs and expenses, including legal fees.

F. If any law is changed so that Lender's rights are adversely affected, Lender may demand payment in full.

8. Other Provisions:

A. Any notices to be given to Borrower or Lender shall be in writing and sent to the above addresses. Either party may change the address by giving written notice.

B. This Mortgage may not be changed unless both Lender and Borrower agree to a change in writing.

C. This is [or: is not] a purchase money mortgage.

D. If Lender does not immediately enforce its rights under this Mortgage, Lender is not precluded from enforcing its rights later.

E. This Mortgage is governed by the laws of the State of _____ [state].

By signing this document, Borrower agrees to all of the terms contained in the note and mortgage.

FORM 25.94 Residential assignment of proprietary lease--cooperative apartment--requirement that borrower must give notice to lender in the event of any environmental problem in the building or on the grounds

COMMENT

When one purchases a cooperative apartment or "unit," he does not actually own that unit; rather, he holds stock in the company which owns the property. In addition, he receives a proprietary lease to his unit. This is in contrast to a condominium unit, where the purchaser actually owns his unit and also has an ownership interest in the underlying property and in the common areas of the multi-unit dwelling (e.g., hallways, stairs, etc.).

Due to the unique nature of a cooperative apartment, a purchaser must finance his purchase by means of a note which is secured by the purchaser's assignment to the lender of the proprietary lease and his certificate of shares in the cooperative corporation.

The assignment takes the place of a mortgage in a typical financing transaction for the purchase of a cooperative apartment. The assignment agreement below contains a provision requiring the borrower to notify the lender promptly in the event that any one of a long list of adverse environmental conditions occurs or is discovered anywhere in the building or on the grounds.

FORM

ASSIGNMENT

Borrower, _____ [name], residing at _____ [address], for value received, hereby transfers and assigns to Lender, _____ [name], with its principal place of business at

_____, [address], all of Borrower's right, title and interest in and to a certain proprietary lease between Borrower, as tenant, and _____ [name] Cooperative Apartments, Inc., as Landlord, dated _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year].

1. This Assignment is made and delivered by Borrower as collateral security for payment of sums due and to become due under the terms of a certain promissory note in the amount of _____ Dollars ($ _____), made by Borrower and delivered to Lender on _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year], together with interest thereon.

This Assignment shall remain in effect as long as the note shall remain unpaid in whole or in part.

2. Borrower warrants:

(A) that he has not executed any prior assignment of the proprietary lease;

(B) that he has not encumbered his rights under the proprietary lease;

(C) that he is the sole owner of the proprietary lease;

(D) that the proprietary lease is currently in full force and effect; and

(E) that Borrower is not in default under the terms of the proprietary lease.

3. Borrower promises:

(A) to perform all obligations under the proprietary lease promptly;

(B) to keep the property, known as unit number _____ of _____ [name] Cooperative Apartments, Inc., in good condition and repair;

(C) to refrain from further assignment of the proprietary lease while any part of the debt evidenced by the Note is unpaid;

(D) not to do any act which would impair Lender's rights under this Assignment; and

(E) not to voluntarily or involuntarily allow the termination of the proprietary lease.

4. Borrower waives the following:

(A) the right, if any, to direct the application of any security pledged to Lender, until the debt evidenced by the Note shall be paid in full; and

(B) any claims against Lender arising out of the exercise of Lender's rights under this Assignment, except for claims arising from Lender's willful misconduct or bad faith.

5. Borrower covenants that he will provide Lender with immediate notice upon learning of the occurrence or existence of an adverse environmental condition in the building in which Borrower's unit is located, or on the grounds upon which the building stands. An "adverse environmental condition" is defined as the discovery of asbestos, urea formaldehyde insulation, wood-boring insects, hazardous materials, unlawful emissions by the building's incinerator, and failure of the building's water or sewage systems. Borrower further promises to keep Lender informed of any steps taken by or on behalf of _____ [name] Cooperative Apartments, Inc., to correct the adverse environmental condition.

6. Any notice required to be given to Borrower shall be in writing and sent by certified mail, return receipt requested, to the following address: _____ [address]. Any notice required to be given to Lender shall be in writing and sent by certified mail, return receipt requested, to the following address: _____ [address]. Notice shall be deemed given when received.

7. This Agreement contains the entire understanding of the parties, and there have been no representations made which are not contained herein.

8. This Agreement may only be modified by a written amendment signed by all parties. An oral modification shall not be binding on any party.

9. This Agreement shall be construed in accordance with the laws of the State of _____ [state].

Part IV. FORMS

B. REAL ESTATE LOANS

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.95

FORM 25.95 Commercial or residential mortgage--acknowledgment by borrower that all inspections made by lender are for lender's sole benefit and may not be relied upon by borrower

COMMENT

The following mortgage may be used for financing the purchase of either commercial or residential real property.

This mortgage also contains a representation by the borrower acknowledging that all inspections made by the lender are for the lender's sole benefit and may not be relied upon by the borrower. (See Article II, Paragraph 2.10.) This provision is designed to protect the lender from claims by the borrower that the lender knew or should have known some fact about the mortgaged premises--and alerted the borrower of such fact--following the lender's inspection of the premises. Frequently, that "fact" is the existence of a serious environmental problem on the premises which escaped the borrower's notice during its own inspection of the premises. Lenders are often faced with suits by borrowers once the borrowers discover concealed environmental problems on the newly-purchased premises. In these suits, borrowers will claim that, had they been made aware of the problem by the lender, they would never have borrowed the money or purchased the property in the first place.

The types of inspections typically performed by lenders are far less thorough than those which should be performed by a purchaser. The reason is because the lender is primarily concerned with the overall value of the property in relation to the size of the requested loan. The borrower, on the other hand, is concerned--or, at least, should be concerned--about the habitability and usefulness of the property.

FORM

MORTGAGE

_____ [name] mortgages and warrants to _____ [name] _____ [describe the premises] to secure the repayment of _____ [recite the sum for which the mortgage is granted, or the notes or other evidence of debt, or a description thereof, sought to be secured, and the date of repayment], the said mortgage, being dated and duly signed, sealed, and acknowledged by the grantor, shall be deemed and held to be good and sufficient mortgage to the grantee, his or her heirs, assigns, executors, and administrators, with warranty from the grantor and his or her legal representatives, or perfect title in the grantor, and against all previous encumbrances.

ARTICLE I RECITALS

1.01 Execution and Delivery of Note. The Borrower has executed and delivered to the Lender a Note ("Note") bearing the same date as this mortgage, promising to pay to the Lender the principal sum of _____ Dollars ($ _____) in lawful money of the United States of America. This money _____ [was or will be] advanced by the Lender to the Borrower, with interest on the principal sum at the rate of _____ percent (_____ %) per year according to the terms and conditions specified in the Note, any unpaid remaining balance provided for in the Note or in this Mortgage being due and payable on or before _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]. The terms of the Note are incorporated into this Mortgage by this reference.

1.02 Mortgage of Property. In consideration of this loan, and as security for repayment to the Mortgagee of the principal, interest, and any other sums provided for in the Note and the Mortgage according to the terms and conditions of the Note and Mortgage, and as security for performance of the agreements and conditions contained in the Note and the Mortgage, the Borrower mortgages to the Lender the real estate described [as follows: _____ (give correct legal description of the property) or in Exhibit "A," which is attached to this Mortgage and made a part of it by this reference], together with the following:

- (a) All buildings and improvements erected or to be erected on the property;
- (b) All fixtures, appliances, machinery, equipment, and other articles of personal property at any time installed in, attached to, or situated on the real estate or in the buildings and improvements to be erected on the real estate, or used or intended to be used in connection with the real estate, or in the operation of the buildings and improvements, plant, business, or dwelling on the real estate, whether or not the personal property is affixed to the real estate;
- (c) All building materials, fixtures, building machinery, and building equipment delivered on site to the real estate during the course of, or in connection with, construction of the buildings and improvements;
- (d) All streets, alleys, passages, watercourses, easements, and covenants existing or to be created for the benefit of the Borrower or any subsequent owner or tenant of the mortgaged real estate over ground adjoining the mortgaged real estate, and all rights to enforce their maintenance;
- (e) All other rights, privileges, reversions, and remainders, and all the income, rents, and profits arising from them, and all other interests or rights of the Borrower in the real estate; and
- (f) The replacements or proceeds from the sale of any of the above.

All of the above-mentioned real estate, improvements, personal property, and other property and interests will be referred to in this instrument as the "Mortgaged Property."

[Add the following Paragraphs 1.03-1.06 if the mortgage is a junior mortgage:]

1.03 Prior Mortgage. This Mortgage is subject to the lien of a Mortgage between _____ [name] and _____ [name], dated _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year] and _____ [recorded or intended to be recorded] in the Office of the Recorder of Deeds of _____ [county] County, in the State of _____ [state], in deed record number _____ [number], page _____ [number], prior to the recording of this mortgage (the "Prior Mortgage").

1.04 Borrower's Obligations Under Prior Mortgage. The Borrower agrees to act as follows as long as the Mortgaged Property or any part of it is subject to the Prior Mortgage:

- (a) The Borrower will pay the principal, interest, and all other sums when due and payable under the Prior Mortgage no later than their due dates, and will comply with all of the other terms, covenants, and conditions of the Prior Mortgage.
- (b) The Borrower will produce for the Lender, on request, receipts or other evidence of payment satisfactory to the Lender with respect to all sums due under the Prior Mortgage.
- (c) The Borrower will not enter into any agreement or arrangement, without the prior written consent of the Lender, pursuant to which the Borrower is granted any forbearance or indulgence (as to time or amount) in the payment of any principal, interest, or other sums due under the Prior Mortgage.

1.05 Default Under Prior Mortgage. Any default by the Borrower under the Prior Mortgage, because of the failure to make a payment or otherwise to comply with the terms of the Prior Mortgage, constitutes a default under this Mortgage. Any failure by the Borrower to produce the receipts concerning the Prior Mortgage also constitutes a default under this Mortgage. It also constitutes a default under this Mortgage if the Borrower enters into an agreement contrary to the provisions of Paragraph 1.04, above. In the case of any default under this Mortgage, the Lender has the right, at its election, to declare the entire indebtedness secured by this Mortgage immediately due and payable, together with interest and other appropriate charges.

The Lender, at its election, and without notice to Borrower, may make any payments the Borrower has failed to make under the Prior Mortgage. The Lender is not obligated to make these payments. The Lender may add the amount of these payments to the principal debt secured by this Mortgage. Any payment by the Lender does not release the Borrower from the Borrower's obligations or constitute a waiver of the Borrower's default under this Mortgage.

1.06 Copies of Required Documents. If the Borrower is required to deliver tax receipts and insurance policies to the holder of the Prior Mortgage, the Borrower may deliver photocopies of those documents to Mortgagee within the times set forth in this Mortgage, although this Mortgage otherwise requires delivery of original documents to the LENDER.

ARTICLE II COVENANTS OF BORROWER

2.01 Warranty of Title. The Borrower has good and marketable fee simple title to the Mortgaged Property, free and clear of all liens, encumbrances, charges, and all other conditions except _____ [those exceptions shown on Lender's policy of title insurance issued with respect to the Mortgage by _____ [name of title insurer] or as shown on Exhibit "B," attached to this Mortgage].

2.02 Payment and Performance. The Borrower will pay to the Lender, in accordance with the terms of the Note and this Mortgage, the principal, interest, and all other sums, and will perform and comply with all the agreements, conditions, covenants provisions, and stipulations of the Note and _____ [this Mortgage or the Construction Loan Agreement].

2.03 Maintenance of Mortgaged Property. The Borrower will not commit or permit the commission of waste in or about the Mortgaged property. The Borrower will not remove, demolish or structurally alter any building erected at any time on the Mortgaged Property, without the prior written consent of the Lender. The Borrower will not permit the Mortgaged Property to become vacant, deserted, or unguarded, and will maintain the Mortgaged Property in good condition and repair, reasonable wear and tear excepted. The Borrower will make, when necessary, all repairs of every nature.

2.04 Condemnation Awards. All awards made to the owners of the Mortgaged Property by any governmental or other lawful authorities for Mortgaged Property taken or damaged through exercise of eminent domain, or for any easement taken in the property, including any awards for changes of grade of streets, are assigned to the Lender, who is authorized to collect and receive the proceeds from the authorities and to give property receipts for those awards. The Lender will apply these payments (after deduction of attorneys' fees and other costs of collecting the funds) toward the payment of the amount owed on this Mortgage and the accompanying Note, even though the amount owed may not then be due and payable. The Borrower agrees, on request, to make any assignments or other instruments needed to assign the awards to the Lender, free and clear of any encumbrances. The Borrower agrees to give the Lender immediate notice of the actual or threatened commencement of any eminent domain proceedings affecting the Mortgaged Property, and will give the Lender copies of any papers served on the Borrower in connection with those proceedings. The Borrower will not make any settlement for damages sustained without the Lender's prior written approval, which approval will not be unreasonably withheld.

2.05 Insurance.

(a) The Borrower will keep the Mortgaged Property continuously insured, with extended coverage, against loss or damage by fire. The Borrower will also keep the property insured against such other hazards as the Lender may reasonably require.

(b) Without limiting the requirement above, the Borrower will, if requested by the Lender, maintain insurance as follows:

(1) Insurance against loss or damage to the Mortgaged Property by fire and any of the risks covered by insurance of the type now known as "fire and extended coverage." This insurance will be in the original amount of the Note, or in the amount of that percentage of the full replacement cost of all buildings and improvements erected on the property (exclusive of the cost of excavations, foundations, and footings below the lowest basement floor) required to satisfy any applicable coinsurance requirement in any policy, whichever is greater. This insurance will have no more than _____ Dollars ($_____) deductible from the loss payable for any casualty. The policies of insurance carried in accordance with this Subparagraph will contain the "Replacement Cost Endorsement;"

(2) Comprehensive public liability insurance (including coverage for elevators and escalators, if any, on the Mortgaged Property and, if any construction of new improvements occurs after execution of this Mortgage, completed operations coverage for one year after construction of the improvements has been completed) on an "occurrence basis" against claims for personal injury. This coverage will include, without limitation, bodily injury, death, or property damage occurring on, in, or about the Mortgaged Property and the adjoining streets, sidewalks, and passageways;

(3) Workers' compensation insurance (including employer's liability insurance, if requested by the Lender) for all employees of the Borrower engaged on or with respect to the Mortgaged Property in an amount reasonably satisfactory to the Lender, or, if limits are established by law, in the legal amounts;

(4) During the course of any construction or repair of improvements on the Mortgaged Property, builder's completed value risk insurance against "all risks of physical loss," including collapse and transit coverage, during construction of such improvements, with deductibles not to exceed _____ Dollars ($_____);

(5) Boiler and machinery insurance covering pressure vessels, air tanks, boilers, machinery, pressure piping, heating, air conditioning, elevator and escalator equipment, provided the Mortgaged property contains equipment of that nature, and insurance against loss of occupancy or use arising from any breakdown, in amounts reasonably satisfactory to the Mortgagee;

[If Mortgaged Property is for business or investment purposes, add the following:]

(6) Business interruption insurance and loss of "rental value" insurance for a period of _____ (_____) months in amounts satisfactory to the Lender;

[Continue with the following:]

(7) Such other insurance as may from time to time be reasonably required by the Lender against the same or other hazards.

(c) All policies of insurance required by the terms of this Paragraph will contain an endorsement or agreement by the insurer that any loss will be payable in accordance with the terms of the policy notwithstanding any act or negligence of the Borrower that might otherwise result in forfeiture of insurance. All policies will also contain an agreement by the insurer waiving all rights of set off, counterclaim, or deductions against the Borrower.

(d) All policies of insurance will be issued by companies and in amounts satisfactory to the Lender. All policies of insurance will contain a mortgagee clause in favor of the Lender, not subject to contribution, and a lender's loss payable endorsement for the benefit of the Lender, all in forms satisfactory to the Lender. The Borrower will furnish the Lender with a signed duplicate original policy with respect to all required insurance coverage. If the Lender consents to provide any of the required insurance through blanket policies carried by the Borrower and covering more than one location, the Borrower will furnish the Lender with a signed certificate of insurance for each policy setting forth the coverage, the limits of liability, the name of the carrier, the policy number, and the expiration date. At least _____ (_____) days prior to the expiration of each policy, the Borrower will furnish the Lender with evidence satisfactory to the Lender of the payment of premium and the reissuance of a policy continuing insurance in force as required by this Mortgage. All policies, including policies for any amounts carried in excess of the required minimum and policies not specifically required by the Lender, will be in a form satisfactory to the Lender, will be maintained in full force and effect, and will be assigned and delivered to the Lender, with premiums prepaid, as collateral security for payment of the indebtedness secured by this Mortgage. All policies will contain a provision that the policies will not be cancelled or materially amended (including any reduction in the scope or limits or coverage), without at least _____ (_____) days prior written notice to the Lender. If all or part of the insurance will expire, be withdrawn, or become void or unsafe by reason of the Borrower's breach of any condition, or become void or unsafe by reason of the value or impairment of the capital of any company in which the insurance may then be carried, or if for any reason whatever the insurance will be unsatisfactory to the Lender, the Borrower will place new insurance on the premises, satisfactory to the Lender.

(e) In the event the Borrower fails to provide, maintain, or deliver and furnish to the Lender the policies of insurance required by this Mortgage, the Lender may procure insurance for the risks, covering the Lender's interest. The Borrower will pay all premiums on insurance procured by the Lender promptly on demand. Until payment is made by the Borrower, the amount of all premiums, together with interest at a rate that will be _____ percent (_____) % per year higher than the rate specified in the Note, will be secured by this Mortgage.

(f) In the event of loss, the Borrower will give immediate notice to the Lender, and the Lender may make proof of loss if not made promptly by the Borrower. Each insurance company is hereby authorized and directed to make payment under the insurance, including return of unearned premiums, directly to the Lender instead of to the Borrower and the Lender jointly, and the Borrower appoints the Lender, irrevocably, as the Borrower's attorney-in-fact, to endorse any insurance draft. The Lender will have the right to retain and apply the proceeds of any insurance, at its election, to reduction of the indebtedness secured by this Mortgage, or to restoration or repair of the property damaged. If the Lender becomes the owner of any part of the Mortgaged Property by foreclosure or otherwise, the policies, including all rights, title, and interest of the Borrower under those policies, will become the absolute property of the Lender.

(g) Notwithstanding the provisions of Paragraph (e), in the event the Mortgaged Property is damaged by fire or other casualty covered by insurance, the Lender will make the insurance proceeds available to the Borrower for repair and reconstruction of the Mortgaged Property on the following terms and conditions:

(1) The work will be performed by a reputable general contractor satisfactory to the Lender pursuant to plans and specifications satisfactory to the Lender, in the exercise of reasonable business judgment.

(2) The insurance proceeds will be held in trust by the Lender (or by an escrow agent satisfactory to the Lender), to be disbursed periodically as the work progresses in amounts not exceeding _____ percent (_____ %) of the value of labor and materials incorporated into the work. The remaining _____ percent (_____ %) will be released to the Borrower on final completion of the work in accordance with the plans and specifications, and upon a receipt of a release of liens from all contractors and subcontractors engaged in the work.

(3) If the entire insurance proceeds are not used for restoration, the excess proceeds will be applied to the mortgage debt. If the cost of the work will exceed the insurance proceeds, the Borrower will deposit the amount of the excess with the Lender (or the escrow agent) to be disbursed prior to disbursement of the insurance proceeds.

(4) If the damage or destruction is such that the buildings on the Mortgaged Property are totally destroyed, this Paragraph (g) will not apply.

2.06 Taxes and Other Charges. The Borrower will pay all taxes, assessments, water and sewer rents, and other charges or claims assessed, levied, or filed against the Borrower, the Mortgaged Property, or the interest of the Lender in the Mortgaged Property, or that, by law, may have priority over the indebtedness secured by this Mortgage. These expenses will be paid when due and payable and before interest or penalties accrue. The Borrower will provide the Lender with receipts for payments of these amounts no later than the payment dates. If the Borrower, in good faith and by appropriate legal action, contests the validity or amount of any item, the Borrower may establish on its books or by deposit of cash with the Lender, as the Lender may elect, a reserve for the payment in an amount required by the Lender. If a reserve is established, the Borrower will not be required to pay the item or to produce the required receipts while the reserve is maintained and so long as the contest that operates to prevent collection has not been terminated or discontinued adversely to the Borrower, and is maintained and prosecuted with diligence.

2.07 Installments for Insurance, Taxes, and Other Charges. On written request by the Lender, the Borrower will include in the monthly payment of principal and interest, an amount equal to one-twelfth of the annual premiums for the fire and extended coverage insurance and the annual real estate taxes, water and sewer rents, special assessments, charges, or claims, and any other item that might become a lien on the Mortgaged Property prior to the lien of this Mortgage. From time to time, the Borrower will pay on demand to the Lender any additional sums necessary to pay taxes and other items, as estimated by the Lender. The amounts paid will be security for payment of taxes and other items and will be used in payment of those items if the Borrower is not otherwise in default under this Mortgage. No amount paid will be deemed to be trust funds but may be commingled with the general funds of the Lender, and no interest will be payable on the amounts. If, pursuant to any provision of this Mortgage, the whole amount of the unpaid principal debt becomes due and payable, the Lender will have the right, as its election, to apply these funds against the entire indebtedness secured by this Mortgage. At the Lender's option, the Lender may waive, and after any waiver may reinstate, the provisions of this Paragraph requiring the monthly payments.

2.08 Security Agreement. This Mortgage constitutes a security agreement under the Uniform Commercial Code and creates a security interest in the personal property included in the Mortgaged Property. The Borrower will execute and file any financing statements or other security agreements the Lender may require to confirm the lien of this Mortgage with respect to the personal property. The Borrower will pay all costs of filing.

2.09 Compliance with Law and Regulations. The Borrower will comply with all laws, ordinances, regulations, and orders of all federal, state, municipal, and other governmental authorities relating to the Mortgaged Property.

2.10 Inspections. The Borrower acknowledges that Lender, through its officers, agents or employees, has made one or more inspections of the real property and premises which are subject to the lien of this mortgage. Such inspections have included appraisals and other inspections to determine, among other things, the size and condition of the land and structures contained thereon.

The Borrower acknowledges that these inspections were made for the sole benefit of Lender in making business decisions, including, but not limited to, whether to lend to Borrower and, if so, how much to lend. Said inspections were not made for Borrower's benefit. Borrower should not and shall not be entitled to rely on said inspections for its own purposes.

Lender, its officers, agents, and employees shall not be liable to Borrower, its heirs or assigns, for any claim for losses or damages based on any inspections of premises made at Lender's behest.

During the term of the loan, the Lender, and any person authorized by the Lender, will have the right at any time, on reasonable notice to the Borrower, to enter the Mortgaged Property at a reasonable hour to inspect and photograph its condition and state of repair.

2.11 Declaration of No Set-Off. Within _____ (_____) days after a request by the Lender, the Borrower will certify to the Lender, or to any proposed assignee of this Mortgage, in a duly acknowledged writing, the amount of principal, interest and other charges owing on the obligation secured by this Mortgage. The Borrower will also indicate whether there are any set-offs or defenses against the Mortgage.

2.12 Defaults and Right to Remedy. If the Borrower fails to pay taxes, assessments, water and sewer charges, other lienable claims (not including contested claims), or insurance premiums, fails to make necessary repairs, permits waste, or otherwise fails to comply with its obligations under the Mortgage, the Note, or any other document executed in connection with the Mortgage, then the Lender, at its election and without notice to the Borrower, has the right to make any payment or expenditure that the Borrower should have made, or that the Lender deems advisable, to protect the security of this Mortgage or the Mortgaged Property. Any payment by the Lender will not prejudice the Lender's rights or remedies under this Mortgage. All sums, as well as costs, advanced by the Lender pursuant to this Mortgage will be due immediately from the Borrower to the Lender, will be secured by this Mortgage, and will bear interest at _____ percent (_____%) per year in excess of the rate otherwise provided in the Note from the date of payment by the Lender until the date of repayment.

[If desired, add following provision to preclude personal liability of mortgagor:]

2.13 Personal Liability. It is expressly agreed that nothing in this Mortgage or the Note creates any personal liability on the Mortgagor to pay the Note, any interest that may accrue, or any other indebtedness that may arise under this Mortgage. The Mortgagee or any subsequent holders of the Note may look only to the security provided by this Mortgage to enforce the payment of the indebtedness evidenced by the Note or this Mortgage.

ARTICLE III DEFAULT AND REMEDIES

3.01 Events of Default. Any of the following will constitute an "Event of Default:"

(a) Failure of the Borrower to pay any installment of principal or interest, or any other sum, on the date it is due under the Note or this Mortgage [if appropriate, add: subject to any applicable grace period provided in the Note or in this Mortgage];

(b) The Borrower's failure to perform any of the other agreements, conditions, or covenants in the Note, _____ [the Mortgage or the Construction Loan Agreements], or any other document executed in connection with the Mortgage [add if desired: within _____ (_____) days after notice from the Lender. If the failure to perform cannot reasonably be cured within the _____ -day period, it will not be an Event of Default if the Borrower commences to cure nonperformance or noncompliance within the _____ -day period and diligently pursues performance or compliance to completion]

(c) The entry of a decree by a court having jurisdiction over the Mortgaged Property with respect to the Borrower in an involuntary case under the federal bankruptcy laws, or any other applicable federal or state bankruptcy, insolvency, or similar laws;

(d) The appointment of a receiver, liquidator, custodian, trustee, (or similar official) for any substantial part of the Borrower's property;

(e) A court-ordered winding-up or liquidation of the Borrower's affairs;

(f) The commencement by the Borrower of a voluntary case under the federal bankruptcy laws or any other applicable federal or state bankruptcy, insolvency, or similar laws;

(g) The consent by the Borrower to the appointment of a receiver, liquidator, trustee, custodian, or similar official for any substantial part of the Borrower's property;

(h) The Borrower's making any assignment for the benefit of creditors, or the failure of the Borrower generally to pay its debts as they become due; or

(i) If a final judgment for the payment of money is rendered against the Borrower in an amount greater than _____ Dollars ($ _____), and, within _____ (_____) days after the entry, the judgment has not been discharged or execution stayed pending appeal, or if, within _____ (_____) days after the expiration of any stay, the judgment has not been discharged.

[If debt is guaranteed by others, add:]

For purposes of this Paragraph 3.01, "the Borrower" means the party named as the Borrower in this Mortgage and all persons guaranteeing the Borrower's obligations to the Lender.

3.02 Remedies.

(a) If any Event of Default occurs, the entire unpaid balance of principal, accrued interest, and all other sums secured by this Mortgage will become immediately due and payable, _____ [choose appropriate clause: at the option of the Lender on written notice to the Borrower or without further notice or demand].

(b) When the entire indebtedness becomes due and payable, because of maturity or because of any Event of Default, then the Lender may institute an action for mortgage foreclosure, or take any other action at law or in equity for the enforcement of this Mortgage and realization of the mortgage security that the law may allow. The Lender may proceed to final judgment and execution for the entire unpaid balance of the principal debt, with interest at the rate(s) stipulated in the Note, and all other sums due in accordance with the provisions of the Note and this Mortgage. This amount includes all sums that may have been loaned by the Lender to the Borrower after the date of this Mortgage, and all sums that may have been advanced by the Lender for taxes, water or sewer rents, other lienable charges or claims, insurance, repairs, maintenance, and all costs of the suit. The Borrower authorizes the Lender, at its option, to foreclose this Mortgage subject to the rights of any tenants of the Mortgaged Property. The Borrower will not assert the failure to make any tenants parties to the foreclosure proceedings as a defense to any proceedings instituted by the Lender to recover the indebtedness secured by this Mortgage or any deficiency remaining unpaid after the foreclosure sale. The mortgagor is not prevented from asserting in any proceedings disputing the amount of the deficiency or the sufficiency of any bid at the foreclosure sale that any tenants adversely affect the value of the Mortgaged Property.

(c) When the entire indebtedness becomes due and payable, because of maturity or because of any Event of Default, the Lender may enter into possession of the Mortgaged Property, with or without legal action. In the alternative, the Lender will be entitled to appointment of a receiver without regard to the solvency of the Borrower or any other person liable for the debt secured by this Mortgage, and regardless of whether the Lender has an adequate remedy at law. Either the Lender or a receiver may rent the Mortgaged Property for any period and on any terms and conditions that the Lender or receiver may see fit. The Lender or the receiver may collect rents, and, after deducting all costs of collection and administration expense, apply the net rentals to the payment of taxes, water and sewer rents, other lienable charges and claims, and insurance premiums, and to the maintenance, repair, or restoration of the Mortgaged Property, or to the reduction of the principal or interest, as the Lender or the receiver may elect. For that purpose, the Borrower assigns to the Lender all rentals due under any existing or future lease of the Mortgaged Property, as well as all rights and remedies provided in the lease or at law or in equity for the collection of the rentals. Any lease or leases entered into by the Lender or the receiver pursuant to this Paragraph 3.02 will survive foreclosure of the Mortgage and repayment of the debt, unless the lease provides otherwise.

[Add to give mortgagor power of sale:]

(d) When the entire indebtedness becomes due and payable, because of maturity or because of any Event of Default, the Lender has the power to grant, bargain, sell, release, and convey the premises with the appurtenances at public auction and to execute and deliver to the purchaser or purchasers good and sufficient deeds of conveyance as provided by law, and from the proceeds to retain all sums due according to this Mortgage and the Note, including the costs and charges of the sale, and the attorneys' fees provided by law, returning the surplus money, if any, to the Borrower, or the Borrower's successors or assigns.

[Continue with the following:]

(e) With respect to the personal property in which a security interest is granted, the Lender may exercise any of the rights of a secured party under this Mortgage, the Uniform Commercial Code, and any other applicable law. If the Lender is required to provide notice of a public or private sale, lease, or other disposition of the personal property, the notice may be personally delivered to the Borrower or may be deposited in the United States mail with the postage prepaid, at least _____ (_____) business days prior to the proposed action. This notice will constitute reasonable and fair notice to the Borrower of any action.

3.03 Attorneys' Fees. If the Lender becomes a party to any suit or proceeding affecting the Mortgaged Property, the lien created by this Mortgage, or the Lender's interest in the Mortgaged Property, or if the Lender engages counsel to collect any of the indebtedness or to enforce performance of the agreements or covenants of this Mortgage or the Note, the Lender's costs, expenses, and reasonable attorneys' fees will be paid by the Borrower, on demand, with interest at the rate provided in the Note. Until paid they will be deemed to be part of the indebtedness evidenced by the Note and secured by this Mortgage.

ARTICLE IV ADDITIONAL PROVISIONS

4.01 Satisfaction of Mortgage. If the Borrower pays the Lender the principal sum and all other sums secured by this Mortgage in accordance with the provisions of the Note, then the Lender must provide Borrower with a release of mortgage or other evidence of satisfaction as requested by Borrower.

4.02 Assignment. Except as provided otherwise in this instrument, the Lender may assign this Mortgage, together with any and all notes or bonds representing the obligation of the Borrower to make payments, at any time without the prior consent of the Borrower. However, the Lender must give the Borrower actual notice of any assignment by certified mail, return receipt requested, before the due date of the next installment payment that is to be paid after the effective date of the assignment. [If Borrower's obligation to make payments is to be evidenced by a negotiable instrument, add: The Lender also agrees to give the Borrower actual notice of any assignment or endorsement of the _____ (bond or note) that is being executed in connection with this Mortgage; the Lender must give this notice by certified mail, return receipt requested, _____ (_____) days before the effective date of the assignment or endorsement.] Failure to provide the Borrower with any notice as required in this Paragraph 4.02 shall make the assignment [if appropriate, add: or endorsement] null, void, and of no legal effect. The Lender further agrees to indemnify and hold the Borrower harmless from any loss to any person incurred because of the Lender's failure to give the notices required by this Paragraph 4.02.

_____ [If the mortgage is to provide for partial releases of the mortgaged property as the debt is repaid, add:]

4.03 Partial Release of Property.

(a) The Lender agrees to release portions of the Mortgaged Property from the lien of this Mortgage, provided no Event of Default has occurred, on the following terms and conditions:

(1) The portions to be released will consist of _____ [individual dwellings and the land on which they are constructed or separate sections of the Mortgaged Property, as identified on Exhibit "A"], and will be described in accordance with a recorded subdivision plan that is satisfactory to the Lender.

(2) Releases will only be made in connection with bona fide sales of dwellings to unrelated, individual purchasers.

(3) The Borrower will pay the Lender _____ [for each dwelling and lot or for each section of the Mortgaged Property] to be released, the amount set forth in a separate release schedule approved by the Borrower and the Lender, or the balance secured by this Mortgage, whichever is less.

(4) Each request for a release will include a field survey of the area to be released if the Lender so requests, a release instrument in form and substance satisfactory to the Lender, and a check for the appropriate amount.

(5) The Lender will not be obligated to deliver any release unless the real estate remaining subject to the lien of this Mortgage has a right of access to a public highway for vehicles and pedestrians and access to utility and service facilities for providing the whole or any part of the Mortgaged Property with water, sanitary sewer, storm sewer, electricity, gas, and street lighting services; and complies in all respects with applicable zoning and subdivision ordinances and all other requirements of law.

(6) All costs incident to the preparation and recording of release documents will be borne by the Borrower.

(b) The Lender agrees to join in any easement the Borrower may grant across or through any part of the real estate for streets, driveways, water, sewer, gas and electric facilities, storm drainage systems, telephone apparatus, and other public facilities that the Borrower may require in connection with development of the real estate in accordance with plans already submitted by the Borrower to the Lender. The lien of this mortgage will be subordinate to the rights granted pursuant to each easement.

[If financing the construction of dwellings, add:]

(c) As further security for the loan, the Borrower assigns to the Lender all of the Borrower's rights as seller (but none of the Borrower's obligations) under existing and future agreements of sale pertaining to individual dwellings, including deposits made by purchasers. The Lender will not be liable to any person for the proper application of such deposits by reason of the assignment of deposits unless the lender actually receives the deposits. The deposits will be escrowed with the Lender (or an escrow agent approved by the Lender) until settlement with the purchasers. Unless returned to the purchaser pursuant to the terms of the agreement of sale, the deposits will not be used for any purpose except reduction of the indebtedness secured by this Mortgage. The form of the agreements of sale will be subject to the approval of the Lender, and each signed agreement of sale will be accompanied by a minimum deposit of _____ percent (_____ %) of the sale price. The Borrower will not enter into any agreement of sale for dwellings that provides for a sale price less than that set forth in a current schedule of sales prices approved by the Lender. The Borrower will deliver to the Lender monthly statements indicating sales figures and deposits. The Borrower will certify these statements as being complete and correct.

[Select one of the following clauses relating to subsequent encumbrances on the property:]

4.04 Other Financing. The Borrower will not create or permit to exist any other lien on, or security interest in, any portion of the Mortgaged Property (including any furniture, fixtures, machinery, and equipment used in connection with the Mortgaged Property) [if applicable, add: except the Prior Mortgage]. The Borrower will not lease any furniture, fixtures, machinery, and equipment and will not incur any indebtedness to purchase any furniture, fixtures, machinery, and equipment, except as contemplated by this Mortgage, without the prior written consent of the Lender.

[OR:]

4.04 Other Financing. Provided that no Events of Default exist under its terms, this Mortgage will be subject to one or more _____ [specify types of encumbrances, e.g., mortgages] to be subsequently executed by the Borrower, and to be secured by the Mortgaged Property. This subsequent encumbrance will secure construction loans for the purpose of constructing improvements on the Mortgaged Property, provided:

(a) The total amount of all the construction loans shall not exceed _____ Dollars ($_____).

(b) Any funds derived from any construction loan placed on any portion of the described property will be used only for the construction of improvements on the portion of the described property that the construction loan encumbers.

(c) No construction loan placed on any portion of the described property shall exceed _____ percent (_____ %) of the anticipated value of the portion of the described property after completion of the improvements that the construction loan was obtained to finance.

(d) No portion of any construction loan shall be used to pay loan fees, interest, or other charges not directly connected with the construction of improvements on the portion of the described property encumbered by the construction loan.

(e) No construction loan shall bear interest, exclusive of late charges, penalties, or fees payable in case of default, greater than _____ percent (_____) % each year.

(f) Each construction loan shall be payable over a period of not less than _____ (_____) months or more than _____ (_____) years.

(g) The total payments due on all construction loans shall not exceed _____ Dollars ($_____) each month.

(h) Each construction loan shall be made by a bank, life insurance company, correspondent of a life insurance company, building and loan association, savings and loan association, or other institutional lender.

[OR:]

4.04 Other Financing. The Lender agrees that at the request of the Borrower, the Lender will execute an agreement subordinating this Mortgage to _____ [specify type or types of security instruments, e.g., a mortgage securing a construction loan] incurred against the Property, provided that the lien incurred complies with all of the following terms: _____ [specify purpose, principal amount, interest rate, and other important terms of liens that may become superior]. The Lender and the Borrower intend to subordinate this Mortgage when the Borrower incurs a lien that meets the requirements of this Paragraph 4.04, and the Lender will not unreasonably refuse to execute a subordination agreement when requested to do so by the Borrower.

4.05 Due-on-Sale Clause. Without the prior written consent of the Lender, the Borrower will not cause or permit any sale, exchange, transfer, lease, or conveyance ("transfer") of any part of the Mortgaged Property, or any interest in it, voluntarily or by operation of law _____ [other than leases in the ordinary course of the Borrower's business or other than leases of no more than _____ (_____) square feet of space]. If the Borrower is a corporation, any change in the ownership of the corporate stock of the Borrower or the issuance of additional stock that results in the transfer of control and management of the Borrower will be deemed to be a transfer of the Mortgaged Property within the meaning of this Article. If the Borrower is a partnership, any change in the ownership of partnership interests of the Borrower will be deemed to be a transfer of the Mortgaged Property within the meaning of this Article.

4.06 Financial Statements.

(a) As long as the debt secured by this Mortgage remains unpaid, the Borrower agrees to annually provide the lender with _____ [audited] statements prepared by a certified public accountant showing the annual income and expenses relating to the Mortgaged Property and a balance sheet for the Borrower. [Add if desired: Each annual report will be certified by _____ (an officer or a partner) of the Borrower as being true, correct, and complete.] Annual reports will be due on or before _____ [month] _____ [day] of each year, if the Borrower's books are kept on a calendar year basis, or on or before _____ (_____) days following the close of each fiscal year if the Borrower's books are kept on a fiscal year basis.

(b) Any parties guaranteeing the obligation of the Borrower will provide financial statements to the Lender on or before _____ [month] _____ [day] of each year while the guarantee is in effect. Each statement will include a balance sheet and be certified as true and correct by the guarantor.

4.07 Notices. All notices permitted or required under this Mortgage or the Note will be in writing and will be sent by registered or certified mail, postage prepaid, addressed to the addressee at the address set forth in this Mortgage or in the Note, or at such other address as the addressee may designate in writing from time to time.

4.08 State Law to Apply. This mortgage shall be construed under and in accordance with the laws of the State of _____ [state].

4.09 Amendment. This Mortgage cannot be changed or amended except by agreement in writing signed by the party against whom enforcement of the change is sought.

4.10 Parties Bound. This Mortgage will be binding on and inure to the benefit of the parties and their respective heirs, personal representatives, successors, and assigns.

[If more than one person executes mortgage, add:]

4.11 Joint and Several Liability. All agreements, covenants, and other provisions affecting the Borrower will be joint and several, and will bind and affect all persons who are defined as "the Borrower" as fully as though all of them were specifically named wherever the word "Borrower" is used.

4.12 Interest Rate. Regardless of any provision in this Mortgage or in the Note, the Borrower's liability for interest will not exceed the limits imposed by the then applicable usury law. If any clause in the Note or this Mortgage requires interest payments in excess of the highest rate permitted by the then applicable usury law, the clause in question will be deemed to require payment at the highest interest rate allowed by that law.

4.13 Captions. The captions preceding the text of the paragraphs or subparagraphs of this Mortgage are inserted only for convenience of reference and will not constitute a part of this Mortgage, nor will they in any way affect its meaning, construction, or effect.

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.96

FORM 25.96 Indemnity agreement for benefit of buyer and its lender

COMMENT

The following indemnity agreement relates to the purchase and sale of a division of a company. In order to allow the purchaser to obtain financing, the seller agreed to indemnify the buyer and its lender from all existing environmental conditions, whether known or unknown, at the time of sale. Presumably, without the agreement the purchaser could not have obtained financing and the seller could not have sold its division. The agreement is very broad for the benefit of the purchaser and the lender.

FORM

INDEMNITY AGREEMENT

For Benefit of Buyer and its Lender

This Indemnity Agreement ("Agreement") made as of this ____ [day] day of _____ [month], ____ [year], by and among _____ [name], a(n) _____ [state] corporation having its principal office at _____ [address] (the "Seller"), _____ [name] having its principal office located at _____ [address] (the "Buyer"), _____ [name], a(n) _____ [state] corporation having its principal office at _____ [address] (the "Holding"), _____ [name] (the "Lender"), having its principal office located at _____ [address].

WHEREAS, Buyer, Holding and Seller are entering into a certain asset purchase agreement of even date herewith (the "Asset Purchase Agreement") wherein Seller desires to sell and Buyer desires to purchase certain assets currently owned by Seller pursuant to the terms of the Asset Purchase Agreement; and

WHEREAS, Lender is entering into a Loan and Security Agreement with the Buyer for the purpose of financing the Asset Purchase Agreement, of even date herewith; and

WHEREAS, as a condition of, and to induce the Buyer and Holding to enter into, the Asset Purchase Agreement, and to induce the Lender to enter into the aforementioned loan agreements (the "Loan Agreements"), the Seller hereby agrees to indemnify the Buyer and the Lender for certain environmental claims which may now exist or arise in the future by virtue of the ownership or operation by Seller or any of Seller's predecessors of the Property transferred or leased to the Buyer as of the date hereof (the "Transfer") or any other property at any time owned, occupied or otherwise utilized by Seller;

NOW THEREFORE, the aforementioned parties hereto agree as follows:

1. In consideration of the payment of _____ Dollars ($ _____) and other good and valuable consideration, the receipt and sufficiency whereof are hereby acknowledged, the Seller hereby agrees to indemnify, save harmless and reimburse each indemnitee (as defined below), upon demand, from and against any and all losses, liabilities, expenses, disbursements, judgments, and damages (including without limitation, the costs of any response, removal, treatment or other remedial work) and any all actions, suits, proceedings, penalties, assessments and judgments, and any and all costs and expenses relating to the foregoing (including, without limitation, all legal fees and expenses, all fees and expenses of environmental consultants, site surveyors, and chemical analysts), of any and every kind of character, whether known or unknown at the time of the Transfer, suffered or incurred by an indemnitee by reason of, arising out of, or in connection with, any Environmental Claim (as defined below).

2. For purposes of this Agreement, the following terms shall have the meanings respectively ascribed below:

"Disposal" or "disposed" shall have the meaning specified in the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act, as amended, 42 U.S.C. P 6901, et seq. ("RCRA"), and "release" or "released" shall have the meaning specified in the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act of 1980, as amended, 42 U.S.C. P 9601, et seq. ("CERCLA"); provided, in the event either CERCLA or RCRA is amended so as to broaden the meaning of any term defined thereby, such broader meaning shall apply subsequent to the effective date of such amendment and provided further, to the extent that the laws of the states of _____ [state] and _____ [state] establish a meaning which is broader than that specified in either CERCLA or RCRA, such broader meaning shall apply.

"Environmental Claim" shall mean any claim for loss or damage arising from (a) any Hazardous Materials (as defined below) ever owned, handled or ever utilized by Seller prior to the Transfer or any other environmental damage in existence prior to the Transfer (whether known or unknown at such time), or for personal injury, illness or death or damage to property arising out of any such Hazardous Materials, or environmental damage asserted by any person (including, without limitation, any government instrumentality or any corporation, partnership or other business entity, or any individual) relating to the Property or any other property ever owned, occupied or otherwise utilized by Seller; (b) any operation of the Seller (including, without limitation, Seller's operation of the Property or any other property ever owned, occupied or otherwise utilized by Seller) or any predecessor in interest, affiliate or subsidiary of the Seller, or any other person in connection with the business of the Seller, or any predecessor in interest, affiliate or subsidiary of such business or any predecessor in interest with respect to ownership of the Property or any other property ever owned, occupied or otherwise utilized by the Seller; (c) any presence, contamination, release or disposal of Hazardous Materials on, upon, from or onto the Property or any other property ever owned, occupied or otherwise utilized by Seller prior to the Transfer (whether known or unknown at such time); (d) any and all damage to real or personal property or natural resources and/or harm or injury to persons alleged to have resulted from the presence, contamination, release or disposal of Hazardous Materials on or from the Property or any other property ever owned, occupied or otherwise utilized by Seller prior to the Transfer (whether known or unknown at such time); (e) any expense or cost related to the generation, transportation or disposal of Hazardous Materials on or from the Property or any other property ever owned, occupied or otherwise utilized by Seller prior to the Transfer; or (f) any claim or proceedings asserted by any person (including, without limitation, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, environmental protection authorities of the states of _____ [state] or _____ [state], or any other federal, state, local or municipal regulatory or administrative body) under public health, environmental protection or hazardous waste laws, rules, regulations, or ordinances or at common law with respect to Hazardous Materials on or emanating from the Property or any other property owned, occupied or otherwise utilized by Seller prior to the Transfer (whether known or unknown at such time).

"Hazardous materials" shall mean: (a) oil, flammable substances, explosives, radioactive materials, hazardous wastes or substances, toxic wastes or substances or any other materials or pollutants which pose a hazard to the Property or to persons on or about the Property or any other property ever owned, occupied or otherwise utilized by Seller, cause the Property to be in violation of any Law, or are now or hereafter defined as or included in the definition of "hazardous substances," "hazardous wastes," "hazardous materials," or "toxic substances," or words of similar import under any Law, including, but not limited to: (i) CERCLA; (ii) the Hazardous Materials Transportation Act; as amended, 49 U.S.C. P 1801, et seq.; (iii) RCRA; (iv) Toxic Substance Control act, as amended, 15 U.S.C. P 2601 et. seq.; (v) and any regulations adopted and publications promulgated pursuant to said laws; (b) asbestos in any form which is or could become friable, urea formaldehyde foam insulation, transformers, or other equipment or materials which contain or are contaminated with fluid containing levels of polychlorinated biphenyls equal to or greater than fifty (50) parts per million, and (c) any other chemical, material or substance, exposure to which is now or at any time hereafter prohibited, limited or regulated by any governmental authority.

"Indemnitee" shall mean collectively the Lender, Holding and the Buyer, any respective successor in interest thereto, and any of the Lender's, Holding's, and Buyer's subsidiaries, affiliates, shareholders, debt holders, employees, contractors, officers and agents.

"Law" shall mean any common law, federal statute, state statute, federal regulation, state regulation, federal or state order, or local code, rule or ordinance.

"Property" shall mean collectively (a) the Seller's facilities and property sold or leased to the Buyer and located at: _____ [address]; and (b) any other real or personal property being transferred to the Buyer under the Asset Purchase Agreement.

3. Demand may be made under Section 1 of this Agreement by or on behalf of any indemnitee at any time, and on any number of occasions and as often as the occasion therefore may arise.

4. For purposes of this Agreement, the presence of any Hazardous Materials identified at a site in detectable amounts by _____ [name] in its Pre-Acquisition Environmental Risk Assessment of Seller dated _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year] or in its Supplemental Environmental Site Assessment of Seller's dated _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year] ("Environmental Reports") in levels statistically equal to or less than those reported for such Hazardous Materials in the Environmental Report shall be conclusively presumed for a period of _____ (_____) years from the date hereof to have been in existence prior to the Transfer, and thereafter, the conclusive presumption shall become a rebuttable presumption. Hazardous Materials identified at a site in levels statistically greater than those reported at such site for such Hazardous Materials in the Environmental Reports shall be rebuttably presumed for a period of _____ (_____) years from the date hereof to have been in existence prior to the Transfer, and thereafter, the rebuttable presumption shall no longer apply. At any time should a Response Action lower the levels of Hazardous Materials identified in the Environmental Reports, the aforementioned conclusive and rebuttable presumptions shall no longer be based upon those levels of Hazardous Materials identified in those Environmental Reports, but, instead, shall be based upon those levels of Hazardous Materials that result from said Response Action. For purposes of this Agreement, "statistically greater" shall be defined as concentrations greater than the highest concentration reported in the Environmental Reports plus _____ percent (_____ %). "Statistically equal to or less than" shall be defined as equal to or less than the highest concentration reported in the Environmental Reports plus _____ percent (_____ %).

5. Each amount payable by either the Seller or the Buyer hereunder shall (to the extent permitted by applicable law) bear interest from the date which is _____ (_____) days after the date on which such amount shall have been first been suffered or incurred by an Indemnitee or the Seller until the amount due is paid in full to such Indemnitee or to the Seller hereunder at the annual rate equal to the rate of interest announced from time to time by _____ [name] at its principal office located at _____ [address] as its Base Rate, plus _____ percent (_____ %).

6. (a) The Seller and the Buyer shall give each other and each of the other Indemnities prompt written notice of any formal or informal administrative inquiry, review, claim, demand, action or suit threatened or instituted against either the Buyer or the Seller, as the case may be, by reason of or in connection with any Environmental Claim. Buyer shall give notice to Seller and the other Indemnities prior to the commencement of any voluntary response action for which indemnification may be sought by Buyer hereunder.

(b) In addition, upon notice to or from the Indemnitee with respect to an Environmental Claim, the Seller shall:

(i) at the request of any Indemnitee, provide the Indemnitee either (A) security and/or a bond reasonably satisfactory to the Indemnitee or (B) "Financial Assurances" as defined in RCRA, in either case, sufficient to assure payment of any damages which might be suffered by the Indemnitee arising out of such matter (provided that, with respect to the Buyer, such assurances of payment need only be provided for damages in excess of the then outstanding principal amount of the promissory note issued to the Seller at the closing under the Asset Purchase Agreement); and

(ii) promptly notify each Indemnitee if it has retained outside legal counsel in connection with the defense of such Environmental Claim; and

(iii) keep fully informed and consult with all Indemnities in connection with the defense of any such Environmental Claim; and

(iv) pay all reasonable costs and expenses, including any professionals' fees and disbursements, incurred by any Indemnitee to determine whether Seller's financial assurances satisfy Seller's covenants as set forth in Section 6, above.

(c) Notwithstanding the foregoing, the Seller shall have the right, subject to the conditions set forth in Section 8, to direct any Response Action or its defense of any litigation which is the basis of any Environmental Claim brought against Seller, but Seller shall have no authority to settle or compromise any such matter if such settlement or compromise requires an admission of the wrongdoing of any Indemnitee or involves any significant risk of liability not fully indemnified by Seller hereunder, without the prior written consent of such Indemnitee.

7. (a) Each Indemnitee retains the right, which no Indemnitee has the obligation to exercise, to employ its own counsel and to participate in the defense of any Environmental Claim in the event that:

(i) the Seller does not satisfy the covenants set forth in Section 6 above to the reasonable satisfaction of such Indemnitee; or

(ii) such Indemnitee is named as a defendant or is alleged to be liable or potentially liable in connection with any Environmental Claim.

(b) The Seller shall pay all reasonable costs and expenses (including professionals' fees and disbursements) incurred by any Indemnatee in connection with (a) above.

8. (a) Without in any way limiting the generality of the indemnity contained in Section 1 of this Agreement, to the extent that any event, condition, circumstances, activity, practice, incident, or action which forms the basis of an Environmental Claim hereunder (collectively "Prohibited Conditions") is determined to exist by any regulatory agency or court (the "Agency") and, to the extent a response is required by Law the Seller shall (i) promptly arrange for the repair, clean-up, detoxification or containment, as the case may be, of such Prohibited Condition (collectively, the "Response Actions"), and (ii) diligently pursue appropriate Response Action(s) to completion. Upon Seller's receipt of notice of a Prohibited Condition, Seller shall: (A) promptly arrange financial assurances as required under Section 6 and (B) notify all Indemnitees promptly in writing, but not later than _____ (_____) days after receipt of such notice, of Seller's intention to assume responsibility for a Response Action.

(b) The Seller reserves the right to retain independent legal counsel and to select a qualified professional engineering consulting firm (the "Consultant") as approved by the Indemnitees, such approval not to be unreasonably withheld, to review any Prohibited Condition identified by the Agency and to recommend what, if any, Response Actions are necessary and appropriate to comply with Laws and to provide adequate protection of human health and the environment from any Prohibited Condition. If the recommendation of the Consultant as to such matters differs from the recommendation of the Agency, the Seller may dispute the findings of the Agency, and pursue whatever rights the Seller have under law, provided that such actions will not result in a lien upon the Property or interfere with or have any adverse effect upon Buyer's business operations and plans.

(c) The Seller and the Buyer shall cooperate on the design and implementation of any Response Action; provided however, that the Seller shall control final design of any Response Action, provided that the Response Action:

(i) is agreed to by the Agency involved or, if Agency approval is not required, in the judgment of Indemnitees' consultant, is consistent with all applicable laws; and

(ii) does not unreasonably interfere with or adversely affect the operation of the plant facilities. In the event Agency approval is not required, Seller shall pay the fees and expenses of the Indemnitees' consultant (which shall be a qualified professional engineering firm selected by the Buyer and reasonably satisfactory to the Lenders) in its review of any proposed Response Action.

(d) Seller shall cause any Consultant performing a Response Action to purchase and maintain in force insurance policies which protect Buyer against all liability arising out of the acts or omissions of Consultant and any subcontractor retained to perform the Response Action, to the extent such liability insurance is customarily provided to contractors engaged in similar activities and is obtainable. Such insurance policies shall provide that they may not be modified, cancelled, or terminated without at least _____ (_____) days prior notice to the Buyer.

(e) All activities undertaken by Seller, its Consultant or subcontractors pursuant to this Agreement shall be undertaken in accordance with the requirements of any applicable Law and with the permits and approvals, if any, required for such activities. Buyer agrees to cooperate with Seller and its Consultant or subcontractors in obtaining any necessary permits.

(f) Seller agrees that all Response Actions implemented by it will be conducted in a manner that does not materially interfere with or otherwise adversely affect the Buyer's business operations, unless agreed to in advance and in writing by Buyer. Seller shall take all reasonable precautions necessary to prevent damage to the Property, and improvements and personal property thereon. Furthermore, Seller shall repair or replace all or any portion of assets damaged or destroyed as a result of or in connection with a Response Action.

(g) In the event that Seller fails to perform or delays in the performance of its obligations hereunder, all costs, liabilities and expenses incurred by the Indemnitees in initiating and carrying out any Response Action shall constitute Environmental Claims to be fully indemnified by Seller hereunder.

9. (a) The Indemnitees acknowledge that an Environmental Claim as defined in this Agreement could be asserted as a result of the actions or failure to act on the part of the Buyer in its prospective compliance with Law. In order to induce the Seller to enter into this Agreement, Buyer hereby covenants it will use best efforts to comply with Laws applicable to the Property. In the event that the officers of the Buyer either knowingly or intentionally, or the Buyer through gross negligence, fails to comply with Laws and such failure results in the assertion of Environmental Claims, the Seller shall continue to remain liable for its indemnity obligations under this Agreement; provided, however, that following payment of Seller's indemnity obligations, Seller shall be entitled to reimbursement from the Buyer for the first _____ Dollars ($ _____) of such indemnity payment in the case of a knowing and intentional noncompliance by offices of the Buyer or _____ Dollars ($ _____) in the case of noncompliance resulting from gross negligence by the Buyer (such amounts in the aggregate not to exceed _____ Dollars ($ _____), whether paid to one or more Indemnitees on one or more occasions) if the Environmental Claims giving rise to such indemnity payments would not have been asserted but for such knowing and intentional or grossly negligent failure to comply with Law. The Buyer and Seller agree that the Buyer's reimbursement obligation hereunder is reasonable in amount and that Buyer's reimbursement obligations shall satisfy Seller's claims against Buyer for such noncompliance of this section in lieu of any other remedies then available, provided however, nothing herein shall limit Seller's right of recovery against Buyer under any Law for any matter not constituting an Environmental Claim. With respect to any successor or assignee of Buyer under this Agreement, other than any Lender taking an interest in Buyer or its assets pursuant to a mortgage or security interest, the maximum amount of reimbursement which Seller may seek under this Section shall increase to _____ Dollars ($ _____) in the case of knowing and intentional noncompliance by such successor's or assignee's officers, or their equivalent, and _____ Dollars ($ _____) in the case of gross negligence, with the aggregate not to exceed _____ Dollars ($ _____) with such limits applicable to any such successor to be based on _____ [year] dollars subject to annual increases for each year thereafter based on the Consumers Price Index for All Items and Major Group Figures for all Urban Consumers as published by the U.S. Department of Labor.

(b) The Buyer further covenants with the Seller as follows:

(i) From time to time (but no more frequently than semiannually except for good cause shown) upon not less than _____ (_____) hours prior notice from the Seller to the indemnitees, the Seller and the consultant shall be provided access to the Property during Buyer's normal business hours for purposes of monitoring the Buyer's compliance with all applicable Laws, including, but not limited to, the right to sample the air, water, soil, manufacturing by-products, waste, and such other materials related to the operation of the Property as may be reasonably appropriate for compliance verification purposes. The results of any such sampling or technical report shall be made available, without any representations or warranties as to their accuracy, to all Indemnitees subject to confidentiality restrictions set forth in Section 15 hereof. Any such action shall be taken at Seller's sole expense and shall be performed in a manner which does not unreasonably interfere with Buyer's operations.

(ii) The Seller and the Consultant shall be given such access to the Property as may be reasonably necessary to allow the Seller to perform Response Actions required under the terms of this Agreement, subject to the conditions specified herein.

10. All notices, requests, demands, and other communications which are required or permitted hereunder shall be delivered by hand or mailed by certified or registered mail or overnight courier to the Indemnitees' respective addresses as specified below, and any such notice shall be deemed duly given when delivered or mailed in such a manner:

If to Seller, to: _____ [name]
 _____ [address]
 _____ [address]

With a copy sent contemporaneously to _____ [name] at the same address.

If to Buyer or Holding, to: _____ [name]

 _____ [address]

With a copy sent contemporaneously to _____ [name] at the same address.

If to Lender, to: _____ [name]
 _____ [address]
 _____ [address]

With a copy sent contemporaneously to _____ [name] at the same address.

11. This Agreement may be executed in several counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original but all of which together shall constitute one and the same instrument. Any Indemnitee may assign this Agreement to any person, firm or entity which is a successor to any of its interest in the Property or Loan Agreements, and the Buyer may collaterally assign to any Lender a security interest in its rights hereunder, upon notice to, but without the consent of, Seller. This Agreement shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the parties hereto and their respective successors in interest and assigns by operation of law and or otherwise. This Agreement shall be deemed to be a contract entered into and made pursuant to the laws of the State of _____ [state] and shall be construed and interpreted in accordance to the laws of the State of _____ [state].

12. The invalidity, irregularity, or unenforceability of all or any part of the obligations hereunder of any security therefore shall not affect, impair, or be a defense to this Agreement or affect in any manner such liability arising hereunder. This Agreement shall be a continuing agreement, and without limiting the above, shall survive satisfaction of the conditions of the Asset Purchase Agreement, payment in full of all of the Buyer's obligations to the Lenders, whether now existing or hereafter incurred, and satisfaction of the conditions of the Loan Agreements entered into by the Buyer with the Lenders. The remedies of the Indemnitees hereunder are not intended to be exclusive of any other right or remedy now or hereafter existing under or existing at law, in equity, or by statute, any of which alone, or together, may be fully exercised by any Indemnitee.

13. Except as expressly provided in Section 14 hereof, no delay on the part of any Indemnitee in exercising any rights hereunder or failure to exercise the same shall operate as a waiver of such right. No notice to or demand on the Seller shall be deemed to be a waiver of any obligation of the Seller or of the right of the Indemnitee to take other or further action without notice or demand as provided herein. In any event, no modification or waiver of the provisions hereof shall be effective unless in writing and signed by the Indemnitee, nor shall any waiver be applicable except in the specific instance or matter for which given.

14. No failure by the Buyer to give any notice or observe any covenant required to be given or observed by it hereunder shall limit or impair the rights of any other Indemnitee against Seller under this Agreement; and such failure shall limit or impair the right of the Buyer hereunder only to the extent provided in Section 9(a) with respect to Buyer's failure to comply with Laws and only to the extent of actual monetary loss to Seller caused solely by Buyer's failure to comply with any other provisions of this Agreement.

15. In order to ensure protection of confidentiality, the Indemnitees and Seller agree not to disclose to any third party (other than persons employed or retained by any Indemnatee or the Seller who are under a duty of confidentiality to such Indemnatee or the Seller) any information generated or prepared in connection with this Agreement including, but not limited to, reports, documents, records, graphs, charts or test results. FORM 25.97 Tenant--Estoppel Certificate for Loan Transaction

COMMENT

The attached form is an estoppel certificate which may be required by a lender in order to make a commercial loan. The certificate will provide the lender with assurances on many topics. Paragraph 6 of the certificate requires the tenant to certify that its activities on the property do not raise any environmental flags. Further, it requires the tenant to indemnify the lender for any misstatement. Most tenants would resist such an indemnity and would refuse to provide it unless it is specifically required by the lease.

FORM

TENANT -- ESTOPPEL CERTIFICATE FOR LOAN TRANSACTION

Attn: Mortgage Dept.

Re: Lease dated _____

by and between _____

Landlord and _____ as Tenant.

Premises: Approximately _____ square feet of space in the buildings having an address at _____

Gentlemen:

The undersigned, as Tenant under the above captioned Lease, understands that you are about to make a loan (the "Loan") to the Landlord, to be secured by a mortgage and other instruments upon certain property of which the Premises are a part, and that, in connection with the making of the Loan, tenants of space in the subject property are being requested to certify and represent to you certain acts which are more specifically set forth below. Accordingly, the undersigned hereby certifies, warrants, represents and agrees as follows:

1. A true and complete copy of the captioned lease is attached, and is now in full force and effect, unmodified or altered in any way, except as follows: (NONE, unless otherwise stated) _____.

2. All improvements and space required to be furnished as part of the Premises under the Lease have been completed in accordance with the Lease, and, to the best knowledge of the undersigned, Landlord has fulfilled, and is not now otherwise in breach of, any of its obligations, warranties and representations, given in connection with the Lease.

3. The undersigned is in possession of the Premises, is in occupancy and is currently paying rent at the monthly rate of _____ Dollars ($ _____), and the annual rate of _____ Dollars ($ _____), which has been paid in full through _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year], only. The current term of the Lease expires on _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]; there are _____ (_____) option(s) to renew for an additional term or term of _____ (_____) year(s) each. Amounts in addition to such rent are also payable under the Lease as provided therein. There are no offsets or credits against the rent payable under the Lease.

4. The undersigned has no notice or knowledge of the exercise of rights by the holder of any prior assignment, hypothecation or pledge of the Lease or the rents and other obligations due thereunder.

5. The undersigned has no notice or knowledge that any petition in bankruptcy has been filed by or against the undersigned, nor that the undersigned has been adjudicated a bankrupt or insolvent, nor that there has been a petition or answer filed by or against the undersigned seeking or acquiescing in any reorganization, arrangement, composition, readjustment, liquidation, dissolution or similar relief under any present federal, state or local law relating to bankruptcy, insolvency or other relief for debtors, nor that there has been a trustee, receiver or liquidator appointed for all or part of the assets and properties of the undersigned.

6. (a) The undersigned (i) is not presently engaged in nor does it presently permit, (ii) has not at any time in the past engaged in nor permitted, and (iii) has no knowledge that any third person or entity has engaged in or permitted, any operations or activities upon, or any use or occupancy of the Premises, or any portion thereof, for the purpose of or in any way involving the handling, manufacturing, treatment, storage, use, transportation, spillage, leakage, dumping, discharge or disposal (whether legal or illegal, accidental or intentional) of any hazardous substances, materials or wastes, or any wastes regulated under any local, state or federal law, except as may be set forth in detail on Exhibit A attached hereto.

(b) The undersigned is in full compliance with all applicable laws governing its operations and its use and occupancy of the Premises, including, without limitation, the handling, manufacturing, treatment, storage, disposal, discharge, use, and transportation of hazardous or toxic substances, materials or wastes, and any materials or wastes regulated under any local, state or federal law.

(c) The undersigned has obtained, and is in full compliance with the terms and conditions of, all permits and licenses issued to it by any governmental authority on account of any or all of its activities on the Premises, and further, there has been no change in the facts or circumstances reported or assumed in the granting of such permits or licenses, or in the applications for such permits or licenses, and such permits and licenses are currently in full force and effect.

(d) There has not been committed by the undersigned or any other person involved with the undersigned or the Premises any action or omission affording the federal government or any state or local government the right and/or remedy of forfeiture as against the Premises or any part thereof or any monies paid in performance of the undersigned's covenants and agrees not to commit, permit or suffer to exist any act or omission affording such right and/or remedy of forfeiture.

(e) The undersigned hereby indemnifies and agrees to defend and save you harmless from, any and all loss, cost, liability and expense you may incur as a result of any misrepresentation of the facts set forth above in this paragraph 6, or resulting from the activities, fact or other matters, if any, set forth in Exhibit A attached hereto.

7. The undersigned hereby acknowledges your interest in and to the Lease, pursuant to that certain Assignment of Leases and Rents by which the Lessor's interest in and to the Lease was assigned to you. The undersigned agrees that no payment of rent or other sum due under the Lease shall be paid in advance of the due date thereof and that no modification, extension, or other amendment to the Lease shall be binding upon you without your prior consent as and to the extent required by the documents now or hereafter evidencing or securing the Loan Documents by written notice to the undersigned from you, the undersigned shall pay rent and other sums due Lessor under the Lease to or as directed by you as specified in such notice.

The undersigned makes the above certifications, representations, warranties and agreements with the understanding that you will rely thereon in making the Loan to Lessor.

Very truly yours,

Part IV. FORMS

B. REAL ESTATE LOANS

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.98

FORM 25.98 Representation by borrower to lender of condition of premises

COMMENT

This form provides several alternative representations and warranties which may be made by a borrower concerning the condition of the premises that will secure the loan. The appropriate representation should be included in the mortgage document.

In its list of events that will trigger a default by the borrower, the mortgage should include: "any misrepresentation made by the borrower at the time the mortgage terms were negotiated or memorialized in writing, regarding the condition of premises." This provision would allow the lender to accelerate the debt and call the loan due and payable in full upon the lender's discovery of the misrepresentation. In the alternative, the lender could exercise any other options which it might have available to it under the mortgage terms, such as requiring the borrower to proffer substitute collateral or collecting the mortgage debt from guarantors.

FORM

Borrower hereby represents and warrants to Lender that Borrower knows of no state of facts or circumstances which would indicate that any adverse environmental condition exists on or about the premises described in Schedule "A," which is annexed to this mortgage.

"Adverse environmental condition" is defined as:

(1) the contamination of the soil, air or water (whether surface water or ground water) of the subject premises by hazardous substances or hazardous wastes; or

(2) the presence of hazardous substances or hazardous wastes which are stored upon the subject premises.

[Or:]

Borrower represents that he has caused a phase I environmental site assessment to be performed on the subject premises (described in Schedule "A," which is annexed to this mortgage) by a reputable environmental consulting firm. The results of the assessment showed no evidence of any adverse environmental condition on the property.

"Adverse environmental condition" is defined as:

(1) the contamination of the soil, air or water (whether surface water or ground water) of the subject premises by hazardous substances or hazardous wastes; or

(2) the presence of hazardous substances or hazardous wastes which are stored upon the subject premises.

[Or:]

Borrower represents that he has been the owner of the premises described in Schedule "A," annexed to this mortgage, for _____ (_____) years. During that time, no hazardous materials, as defined in the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act, 42 USC § 9601 et seq., the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act, 42 USC § 6901 et seq., the Hazardous Materials Transportation Act, 49 USC § 1801 et seq., or the Toxic Substances Control Act, 15 USC § 2601 et seq., have been used, stored or disposed of on said premises.

[Or:]

Borrower represents that _____ (_____) drums of _____ [name], a substance considered to be hazardous, was stored on the subject premises (described in Schedule "A," which is annexed to this mortgage) for a period of _____ (_____) years. Those drums were intact when removed. The drums have been properly removed and disposed of in strict compliance with all federal, state and municipal laws, regulations and policies. Borrower knows of no other adverse environmental condition affecting the premises.

[Or:]

Borrower represents and warrants to Lender that:

(1) to the best of his knowledge, neither the premises described in Schedule "A," which is annexed to this mortgage, nor any adjacent property is currently being used or has been used for the storage, treatment, generation, transportation, processing, handling, production, or disposal of any hazardous substances as hereafter defined, or as a landfill or other disposal site;

(2) no storage tanks are now or have previously been located on the premises;

(3) all required permits have been obtained and are in full force and effect; and

(4) there are no proceedings, pending or threatened, which could result in damages or an order for remediation for any alleged violation of any environmental law.

As used herein, the term "hazardous substances" shall mean any substance described in the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act, 42 USC § 9601 et seq., the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act, 42 USC § 6901 et seq., the Hazardous Materials Transportation Act, 49 USC § 1801 et seq., or the Toxic Substances Control Act, 15 USC § 2601 et seq.

[Whichever of the above representations is used, the following should also be added:]

Borrower makes the representations contained herein as part of the consideration for this loan from Lender. Any misrepresentation made by Borrower shall be an event of default under the terms of this mortgage. In the event Borrower has made a misrepresentation, Lender shall be entitled to enforce all rights and remedies regarding defaults under the terms of this mortgage.

B. REAL ESTATE LOANS

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.99

FORM 25.99 Representation by borrower that condition of premises has not changed since first mortgage was executed

COMMENT

This form is intended for use when a second mortgage is executed on the subject premises. Alternatively, it may also be used as part of a refinancing document or loan modification agreement. In this form, the borrower represents to the lender that the condition of the mortgaged premises has not changed since the first mortgage was executed. The form presumes that, before the first mortgage was executed, an environmental site assessment was performed. The purpose of this form is to prevent the borrower from having to incur the large expense of ordering a second environmental site assessment of the subject premises when one has already been performed in the recent past--i.e., at the time the first mortgage was executed.

Before using this form, the lender should inquire about any new uses to which the property has been put since the environmental site assessment was performed. The lender should exercise great care before waiving a second environmental site assessment if it is unfamiliar with these new uses, since some of them may create a significant risk of environmental mishap.

For further comfort, the lender may wish to couple the use of this form with the use of Form 25.89, borrower's promise to remediate any environmental problem immediately.

FORM

Borrower represents to Lender that an environmental site assessment was performed prior to the execution and delivery of the first mortgage. Borrower has heretofore delivered to Lender a true and accurate copy of the results of that environmental site assessment. Borrower hereby represents that it knows of no events or facts which might cause a change in the conclusions reached in the environmental site assessment.

Borrower further represents that no hazardous substances, as defined or designated by any federal, state or local law, regulation or policy, have been manufactured, used, stored, emitted or disposed of on the premises which are subject to the lien of this mortgage. In addition, Borrower represents that the condition of the premises and the uses to which the Borrower routinely puts the premises have not changed since the first mortgage was executed and delivered.

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.100

FORM 25.100 Representation by borrower that it acknowledges that all inspections made by lender are for lender's sole benefit and may not be relied upon by borrower

COMMENT

This form may either be used independently as a separate agreement to be signed by the borrower at a mortgage closing, or it may be incorporated into the body of the mortgage itself.

The form is designed to protect the lender from claims by the borrower that the lender knew or should have known some fact about the mortgaged premises--and alerted the borrower of this fact--following the lender's inspection of the premises. Frequently, that "fact" is the existence of a serious environmental problem on the premises which escaped the borrower's notice during its own inspection of the premises. Lenders are often faced with lawsuits brought by borrowers once the borrowers discover concealed environmental problems on the premises. In these suits, borrowers will claim that, had they been made aware of the problem by the lender, they would never have borrowed the money or purchased the property in the first place.

The types of inspections typically performed by lenders are far less thorough than those which should be performed by a purchaser. The reason is because the lender is primarily concerned with determining the overall value of the property in relation to the size of the requested loan. The borrower, on the other hand, is concerned--or, at least, should be concerned--about the issues of habitability and use of the property.

For example, in the case of new residential construction, the lender will not be concerned over whether window screens have been installed by the time of the closing; however, the borrower should be concerned about this matter. The lack of screens does not materially affect the ratio of the value of the property to the size of the requested loan, but it will certainly affect the habitability of the building in periods of warm weather.

FORM

Borrower acknowledges that Lender, through its officers, agents or employees, has made one or more inspections of the real property and premises which are subject to the lien of this mortgage. Such inspections have included appraisals and other inspections to determine, among other things, the size and condition of the land and structures contained thereon.

Borrower acknowledges that these inspections were made for the sole benefit of Lender in making business decisions, including, but not limited to, whether to lend to Borrower and, if so, how much to lend. Said inspections were not made for the benefit of Borrower. Borrower should not and shall not be entitled to rely on the results of said inspections for its own purposes. Borrower should engage its own inspectors to determine such issues as whether the property and its current owner are in compliance with environmental laws, the soundness of structures, and the existence of hazardous substances on the property.

Lender, its officers, agents, and employees shall not be liable to Borrower, its heirs or assigns, for any claim for losses or damages based on any inspections of premises made at Lender's behest.

B. REAL ESTATE LOANS

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.101

FORM 25.101 Representation by borrower that it has complied with all environmental laws

COMMENT

This form contains a very comprehensive representation by the borrower that he has complied with all laws and regulations--whether federal, state or local--which, in any way, relate to the environment and affect the subject premises. The form provides that a misrepresentation by the borrower on this matter at the time of negotiating the mortgage terms shall constitute an event of default. This will allow the lender to exercise its usual rights in the event of a default, including, for example, acceleration of the full debt, collection of the debt from guarantors, or requiring the borrower to come up with substitute collateral.

FORM

Borrower hereby represents and warrants that he has complied, and will continue to comply, with all federal, state and municipal laws, regulations, codes and policies relating to air, water, land, land surface, land subsurface, fish, wildlife, natural resources, land use, zoning, health, chemical use, safety and sanitation, and with all such laws, regulations, codes, and policies relating to and/or governing the production, processing, storage, treatment, transportation, handling, or disposal of any hazardous substance, as the same may relate to the real property and premises described in Schedule "A," which is annexed to this mortgage.

Borrower further represents and warrants that he has obtained, and will continue to maintain in full force and effect, all necessary or appropriate permits relating to the said premises, and that he will not perform any act or fail to perform any act which could result in the revocation or non-renewal of such permits.

Borrower further represents that there are no actions, suits or proceedings pending, threatened or likely to occur which could result in an award of damages or a court order for remedial action being imposed against Borrower for any violation of any law by Borrower, or for any condition existing on the premises described in Schedule "A," which is annexed hereto.

Borrower makes the representations contained herein as part of the consideration for this loan from Lender. Any misrepresentation made by Borrower shall be an event of default under the terms of this mortgage. In the event Borrower has made a misrepresentation, Lender shall be entitled to enforce all rights and remedies regarding defaults under the terms of this mortgage.

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.102

FORM 25.102 Representation by borrower to lender that it has complied with all federal, state and local environmental laws and regulations--another form

COMMENT

In the following clause, which may be inserted into a mortgage or loan agreement, the borrower makes a long series of representations for the benefit of the lender. These representations include, among others, that the borrower has complied with all federal, state and local environmental laws and regulations affecting the subject property. The borrower also represents that it is unaware of any legal actions or claims, either threatened or pending, arising out of an environmental mishap on the property or out of a violation of any environmental law or regulation on the property.

FORM

Borrower makes the following nine representations to lender:

- (1) Borrower or its counsel has carefully reviewed all federal, state and local environmental laws and regulations affecting the subject premises.
- (2) Any and all governmental approvals, permits and notifications required by federal, state and local environmental laws have been obtained.
- (3) Borrower has complied with all federal, state and local environmental laws, regulations, ordinances and policies applicable to the subject premises.
- (4) Borrower is unaware of any action, either threatened or commenced, by any governmental agency arising out of an alleged violation of any environmental law or regulation on the subject premises.

(5) No governmental agency has notified the borrower of any violation of any environmental law or regulation on the subject premises.

(6) Borrower is unaware of any civil action, either threatened or commenced, by a party other than a governmental agency, arising out of an alleged environmental mishap occurring on the subject premises or out of the alleged violation of any environmental law or regulation on the subject premises.

(7) Borrower is unaware of the occurrence of any environmental mishap on the subject premises or of the existence or discovery of an adverse environmental condition on said premises.

(8) Borrower is unaware of the presence on the subject premises of any hazardous waste or hazardous or toxic substances.

(9) The past and present uses to which the borrower has put or is putting the subject premises do not violate any relevant federal, state or local environmental laws or regulations.

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.103

FORM 25.103 Representation by borrower that it will not cause or allow any acts in violation of environmental laws

COMMENT

This form contains alternative representations made by the borrower that neither he nor any other party under his control (i.e., agents, employees, tenants, licensees, and occupants) will violate any environmental law relating to the real property which secures the mortgage loan. The borrower also promises to bring the property into compliance with all environmental laws should a violation be discovered. The violation of any provision of the representation constitutes an event of default allowing the lender to exercise whatever remedies are normally available upon default, e.g., acceleration of payment of the entire debt, substitution of collateral by the borrower, or collection of the debt from guarantors.

FORM

Borrower represents that he will not cause or suffer, by his acts or those of his agents, employees, tenants, licensees, invitees, or occupants, any act or omission which would be in violation of any federal, state, or municipal law, regulation, or policy regarding air, water, land, wildlife, or natural resources that affects the subject premises.

Borrower further represents that he will cause all necessary or appropriate permits in connection with the use of the premises to be obtained and maintained in full force and effect.

In the event Borrower learns of a violation of any environmental law, regulation, or policy, he shall promptly undertake all steps necessary or appropriate to come into compliance with the law, regulation, or policy.

A violation of any provision contained in this section shall constitute an event of default under the terms of this mortgage. Lender shall be entitled to enforce all rights and remedies available to it upon occurrence of an event of default.

B. REAL ESTATE LOANS

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.104

FORM 25.104 Borrower's promise to notify lender of any potential environmental problems on property

COMMENT

This form is a clause to be inserted into a mortgage or a loan agreement. The clause requires the borrower to notify the lender of any information which would indicate that a potential environmental problem exists on the mortgaged property. The borrower then must undertake steps to confirm the existence of the problem and, if a problem does in fact exist, remedy the problem.

The borrower's failure, at any point in the process, to take any required action is an event triggering a default under the terms of the mortgage. In such case, the lender has the right to enforce whatever rights may normally arise upon default. These may include the immediate acceleration of payment of the entire debt, substitution of collateral by the borrower, or collection of the debt from guarantors.

If the lender has required the borrower, as a condition for receiving the loan, to obtain an environmental mishap insurance policy or letter of credit, or to post a bond, then the proceeds will provide a source of funds for any necessary remedial action in the event of an environmental mishap.

FORM

Borrower shall promptly notify Lender of any information of which Borrower becomes aware which would indicate the potential existence of any adverse environmental condition, mishap or impact on the premises described in Schedule "A," which are encumbered by this mortgage. Failure to so notify Lender shall be an event of default under this mortgage.

Borrower shall provide Lender with all information and copies of any and all documents which Borrower receives, including, but not limited to, notices of violations, reports and studies.

Borrower, at his sole cost and expense, shall undertake whatever steps Lender reasonably deems appropriate or necessary to confirm the information. This may include, but shall not be limited to, investigations, studies, sampling and analysis of air, water and/or soils.

In the event the existence of an adverse environmental condition, mishap or impact is confirmed, Borrower, at his sole cost and expense, shall undertake whatever acts are appropriate and/or required by law to completely contain, remove, clean up, and otherwise remediate the adverse environmental condition, mishap or impact.

If, at any time, Borrower fails to act in a prompt manner in carrying out the duties imposed herein, Lender may give notice to Borrower of such failure and demand that certain actions be undertaken. Borrower shall have _____ (_____) days from the receipt of such notice to undertake the acts specified in the notice. In the event Borrower does not comply with the notice, Lender may deem Borrower to be in default under the terms of this mortgage. Thereafter, Lender shall be entitled to enforce all rights and remedies which arise upon the occurrence of any event of default.

FORM 25.105 Borrower's promise to notify lender immediately following an environmental mishap, violation of any environmental law, etc.

COMMENT

In the following form, the borrower makes a number of promises to the lender. First, the borrower promises to immediately notify the lender upon learning of the occurrence of an environmental mishap upon the mortgaged premises, or upon an adjacent piece of property if such mishap contaminates or poses a danger of contamination to the mortgaged premises. Second, the borrower covenants to immediately notify the lender upon learning that:

2. Borrower recognizes that it has the duty to immediately notify the lender upon learning of the occurrence of an environmental mishap upon any adjacent property, if such mishap poses a danger of contamination to the subject premises.

3. Borrower recognizes that it has the duty to immediately notify the lender upon learning that:

(A) an environmental law or regulation (whether federal, state or local in origin) affecting the subject premises has been violated;

(B) a governmental agency (whether federal, state or local in origin) has initiated or threatened to initiate a proceeding against the borrower for an alleged violation of an environmental law or regulation (whether federal, state or local in origin) affecting the subject premises;

Part IV. FORMS

B. REAL ESTATE LOANS

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.106

FORM 25.106 Borrower's promise to remediate any environmental problem immediately

COMMENT

This clause may be inserted into the mortgage or into a loan agreement. It requires the borrower to immediately remediate any adverse environmental mishap or condition which occurs or is discovered during the term of the loan.

The provisions require the borrower to do whatever the lender deems appropriate to ascertain the exact nature and severity of the environmental problem and to remediate it. If the borrower fails to do so, the lender itself may proceed with the remedial action at the borrower's expense. However, a lender must be careful to not become too involved in the borrower's business or any clean up so as to become an operator or incur lender liability.

The lender may also enlist the services of environmental consultants at the borrower's expense. Any expenditures made by the lender are deemed secured by the mortgaged property and are fully recoverable in the event of a foreclosure.

The failure of the borrower to act as required under the terms of this clause may be deemed an event triggering default and will give rise to any rights which the lender normally reserves to itself upon default. These may include the immediate acceleration of payment of the full mortgage debt, the substitution of collateral by the borrower, and/or the collection of the full debt from guarantors.

FORM

If, during the term of the loan, an adverse environmental event occurs or an adverse environmental condition or impact is discovered on the premises which are subject to this mortgage, then Borrower shall be responsible for immediate remediation. The determination of whether an adverse environmental event has occurred or whether an adverse environmental condition or impact exists shall be within the sole reasonable discretion of Lender. Receipt by Borrower of any notice of violation of any federal, state or local environmental law or regulation from any federal, state, or local governmental authority shall be deemed to be a determination of the occurrence of an adverse environmental event.

Upon such a determination by Lender, Borrower shall undertake such steps as are deemed necessary or appropriate by Lender to determine the exact scope, nature and severity of the problem. Lender shall determine the appropriate method for ascertaining the exact scope, nature and severity of the problem.

Upon completion of these steps, Borrower shall proceed to promptly remediate the problem as required by law.

Borrower shall permit Lender, its agents and employees to enter upon the premises which are subject to this mortgage at any reasonable hour for the purposes of inspecting conditions, taking samples, reviewing progress, and otherwise accomplishing the purposes of this section.

The steps contemplated herein shall be undertaken at Borrower's sole expense. In the event that Borrower fails to undertake the steps deemed necessary or appropriate by Lender, then, at any time, Lender may do so at Borrower's sole expense. Nothing contained herein, however, shall be deemed to require Lender to undertake any acts.

In the event Lender deems it reasonably appropriate to hire an environmental consultant(s) in connection with the provisions of this section, all expenses for such consultant, including, but not limited to, professional fees, sampling costs, and laboratory expenses, shall be paid by Borrower. Such expenses of Borrower--whether for consultants or for steps which Borrower was obligated to perform, but which were performed by Lender--shall be deemed to be secured by this mortgage, and shall be a lien on the premises prior to any right or title to, interest in, or claim upon the premises attaching or accruing subsequent to the lien of this mortgage. Any failure of Borrower to perform any act contemplated under this clause shall be deemed an event of default. In such case, Lender shall be entitled to enforce all rights and remedies which normally arise upon the occurrence of an event of default.

FORM 25.107 Borrower has duty to take action to prevent and rectify environmental mishaps

COMMENT

The following clause imposes upon the borrower the duty to prevent the occurrence of an environmental mishap on the mortgaged property, and to promptly undertake any actions that are reasonably necessary to remediate an environmental mishap once it has occurred or has begun to occur on the property. By way of illustration, the clause lists six actions which the borrower must take to prevent an environmental mishap or to rectify the damage caused by such a mishap.

FORM

Borrower recognizes that it has a duty to take any and all actions reasonably necessary to prevent the occurrence of an environmental mishap on the subject premises. In addition, Borrower recognizes its duty to promptly undertake any and all actions reasonably necessary to rectify an environmental mishap on the subject premises once it has occurred or has begun to occur.

Such actions shall include, but not be limited to:

- (1) investigation of potential causes of environmental mishaps;
- (2) removal of contaminated soil;
- (3) removal of hazardous/toxic substances or wastes;
- (4) purification of contaminated sources of water (whether surface water or ground water);

(5) actions mandated by any environmental law or regulation (whether federal, state or local in origin); and

(6) actions that are necessary in order to prevent the danger of injury to persons or property, or to minimize such injury if it has already begun to occur.

For the purposes of this clause, an environmental mishap is defined as the unlawful release of hazardous or toxic substances or wastes at the subject premises which contaminates, or may reasonably be expected to contaminate, the land (including subsoil), water (both ground water and surface water), or air on, under, or above the subject premises.

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.108

FORM 25.108 Lender may take actions to prevent or rectify environmental mishaps if borrower fails to do so

COMMENT

In the immediately preceding form, a duty is imposed upon the borrower to prevent the occurrence of an environmental mishap on the mortgaged property, and to promptly undertake any actions that are reasonably necessary to remediate an environmental mishap once it has occurred or begun to occur on the property. The clause that follows is a companion to the immediately preceding form and should be used along with that form.

The clause provides that if the borrower fails to take appropriate action to prevent or remediate an environmental mishap, then the lender has the right, but not the duty, to take such action. If the lender does so, then the borrower must reimburse the lender for all of the lender's expenses.

FORM

Borrower has previously recognized its duty to take any and all actions reasonably necessary to prevent the occurrence of an environmental mishap on the subject premises and to promptly undertake any and all actions reasonably necessary to rectify an environmental mishap on the subject premises once it has occurred or has begun to occur.

If, however, the borrower refuses or otherwise fails to take such action or actions, then the lender shall have the right, but not the obligation, to undertake any or all such actions if it so desires. In such case, the full cost of such action or actions shall be the sole responsibility of the borrower. Lender shall deliver to borrower an itemized bill listing the specific expenses incurred by lender. Borrower shall be obligated to reimburse lender for these expenses within _____ (_____) days of receipt of such itemized bill. If borrower refuses or otherwise fails to reimburse lender within such time period, then Lender shall be entitled to add the full amount (plus _____ percent [_____] %] interest, compounded annually) to the unpaid principal amount of borrower's outstanding loan.

B. REAL ESTATE LOANS

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.109

FORM 25.109 Borrower's promise to maintain accurate records regarding toxic substances on site and to provide access to all records when requested by lender

COMMENT

Many borrowers are unable to covenant that they will not allow toxic or hazardous substances onto the mortgaged premises since their businesses depend upon the use of such substances during the manufacturing process. Indeed, some borrowers, such as chemical companies, may be in the business of actually producing such dangerous substances for sale. They, too, will be unable to provide lenders with a covenant that they will not allow such substances onto the mortgaged premises.

Nonetheless, a lender must protect itself against the danger that the real property in which it holds a security interest might become contaminated following an environmental mishap, thereby requiring a costly clean up or rendering the property worthless. Accordingly, the lender must: (1) have access to the borrower's records pertaining to toxic and/or hazardous substances on the mortgaged premises; and (2) actually review the records periodically. Only when armed with such information can the lender protect itself against the danger of the mortgaged property becoming contaminated. Moreover, such information is necessary in order for the lender to make reasoned business decisions about such matters as whether to extend further credit to the borrower where such additional funds are secured by the mortgaged premises. Typically, loan agreements provide that the lender will have reasonable access to all of borrower's books and records, including books and records relating to the property.

As for the borrower, he, too, is entitled to protection. Such protection takes the form of an assurance that the confidential nature of his records will be maintained by the lender. The borrower must be certain that his records will not be shared with competitors or with those who might oppose his business, such as environmental activists.

FORM

It is acknowledged and understood by the parties hereto that Borrower, in the ordinary course of his business, uses substances which are toxic and, in some instances, deemed hazardous under various state and federal laws and regulations. Borrower could not operate his business and produce his products without the use of these substances.

Borrower covenants that he, his employees, agents and contractors will use all toxic and/or hazardous substances in strict compliance with all federal, state and municipal laws, regulations and policies. Borrower will not allow or suffer any deviation from good practice in the use, storage, handling or disposal of such substances. Borrower will obtain and maintain in full force and effect all necessary licenses and permits. Borrower will be sure that his employees, agents and contractors are thoroughly trained and properly supervised in the use, storage, handling and disposal of all such substances.

Borrower further covenants that he will keep accurate records of the purchase, use, storage and disposal of all toxic and/or hazardous substances which are brought onto or created on the subject premises in accordance with all applicable federal and state laws and regulations. Borrower will further maintain a complete and accurate record of any deviations from the law in the use, handling, storage and disposal of any toxic or hazardous substance, as well as a complete and accurate record of any injury to person or property caused by any toxic or hazardous substance. A copy of this record shall be provided to Lender within _____ (_____) days of any such deviation or injury.

Borrower shall provide access to Lender to all records maintained by Borrower with regard to the toxic and/or hazardous substances. Lender may review such records at Borrower's site during regular business hours upon at least _____ (_____) hours' advance notice to Borrower. Borrower shall provide Lender with copies of such records as Lender may reasonably require.

Lender agrees to keep all such records strictly confidential and to use such records only for the purposes of managing the lending relationship between Lender and Borrower. This requirement of confidentiality shall survive the satisfaction of this mortgage and shall bind Lender in perpetuity. Notwithstanding the foregoing, Lender may produce copies of whatever records it may possess pursuant to a duly authorized subpoena of any governmental authority. Lender shall not be required to appeal or challenge such a subpoena on Borrower's behalf.

Failure to maintain the records required hereunder or to provide access to Lender shall be an event of default under the terms of this mortgage. In such case, Borrower shall enjoy all of the normal rights arising in the event of a default.

FORM 25.110 Lender is entitled to review borrower's environmental records--another form

COMMENT

This is another clause, intended for insertion into a mortgage or other loan document, empowering a lender to review all records maintained by the borrower that are either pertinent to environmental laws and regulations affecting the subject premises, or concern the use, production or presence of hazardous or toxic substances or wastes on the premises. The clause provides that once the lender requests to review these records, both parties will select a mutually agreeable time for the review to take place.

FORM

Borrower recognizes that, at any time during the term of the loan, lender may request to review any and all records maintained by borrower that either: (1) pertain to environmental laws and regulations (whether federal, state or local in origin) affecting the subject premises; or (2) concern the use, production or presence of hazardous/toxic substances and/or hazardous/toxic wastes at said premises. When such a request is made, the borrower shall agree to schedule a time, mutually agreeable to both lender and borrower, for the former to review the relevant records. Such records shall include, but not be limited to, environmental site assessments, laboratory reports, etc.

The form consists of an environmental indemnification and hold harmless agreement, whereby the borrower promises the lender that it will indemnify and hold the lender harmless for any losses, fines, damages and expenses incurred by the lender if certain events occur on the mortgaged premises during the term of the loan.

The form provides that the indemnification survives the transfer of the property by whatever means. Thus, if the lender becomes the owner of the property at a foreclosure sale, the borrower still remains obligated to indemnify the lender and hold the lender harmless in accordance with the provisions of this agreement.

FORM 25.113 Environmental indemnification and hold harmless granted by borrower to lender--another form

COMMENT

This environmental indemnification requires the borrower to indemnify and hold the lender harmless for any loss or expense which the lender might sustain as a result of any action by a governmental authority taken: (1) to require clean up of the mortgaged premises following an environmental mishap or the discovery of an adverse environmental condition upon the premises; or (2) to penalize the borrower for a violation of federal, state or local environmental laws, regulations or policies. This clause may be inserted directly into the mortgage or other loan document, in which case the clause becomes a covenant granted by the borrower to the lender. The indemnification/hold harmless provisions survive any transfer of the mortgaged premises, including a transfer after a foreclosure of the mortgage. The provisions also survive the satisfaction of the mortgage.

FORM

Borrower agrees to indemnify and hold Lender harmless against any and all loss or liability, cost or expense--including, without limitation, reasonable attorneys' fees and disbursements--which Lender may sustain as a result of, or on account of, any claims arising from, or any liens imposed upon, the mortgaged premises by any federal, state or local authority charged with the enforcement of environmental protection laws and regulations, or by reason of Borrower's failure, or the failure of any of Borrower's predecessors in title, or the failure of Borrower's (sub)tenants to perform any of its, or their, obligations pursuant to any federal, state or local environmental protection laws and/or regulations and/or policies. The provisions of this paragraph shall survive any transfer of the mortgaged premises, including a transfer after a foreclosure of the mortgage and delivery of the deed effecting such transfer. The provisions of this paragraph shall also survive the satisfaction of this mortgage.

FORM 25.114 Lender's right to demand substitution of collateral upon occurrence of environmental mishap; borrower's agreement not to encumber substitute collateral during term of mortgage without lender's permission

COMMENT

In the event of an environmental mishap, the real property, which served as the core collateral for the loan, may be seriously reduced in value. In such case, if the borrower were to simply default on the mortgage and abandon the property--rather than undertake the considerable expense of clean up--a purchaser at a foreclosure sale would be required by law to remediate the problem. In all likelihood, that purchaser would be the lender, since the contaminated condition of the property would almost certainly scare away any third party-purchaser. Since the cost of remediation might well exceed the value of the property in its contaminated state, the lender would find itself in a very difficult and unenviable position.

The provisions in this form reduce this potential danger to the lender by requiring the borrower to come up with "substitute collateral" of a specified value in the event of an environmental mishap on the mortgaged property. The collateral may consist of one or more of a wide variety of items, such as:

- (1) cash;
- (2) accounts receivable;
- (3) inventory;
- (4) equipment;

(5) stock and bonds;

(6) patents;

(7) other real property; or

(8) even works of art

Following the environmental mishap, a determination must be made of the value of the substitute collateral proffered by the borrower. The parties may either make this determination on their own, or, alternatively, they may enlist the services of an appraiser.

During the term of the mortgage, the borrower is required to maintain sufficient collateral, free and clear of liens, to satisfy the substitution provisions. However, the lender may waive this provision. It is expected that the lender would only agree to a waiver for relatively short periods of time, such as during periods when the borrower's business is slow because of a regional or national economic downturn. Otherwise, the value of these provisions will be lost.

FORM

It is acknowledged by the parties hereto that Borrower uses substances which are toxic and/or hazardous in the ordinary course of his business, and that Borrower would be unable to operate his business and produce the products he currently produces without the use of such substances.

The parties acknowledge that, in the event that any of these substances were to be released into the air, soil or water, the value of the mortgaged premises would be reduced. As a result thereof, Lender would be under-secured.

In the event of a release of a toxic or hazardous substance, Borrower, upon the demand of Lender, shall provide substitute collateral for the loan evidenced by the note and secured by this mortgage. The collateral will have a total value which exceeds the then-principal balance of the loan by _____ percent (_____%). The value of the substitute collateral shall be agreed upon by the parties or determined by an appraiser acceptable to Lender. Any appraisal costs shall be paid by Borrower. Borrower shall provide Lender with a first lien on each item of collateral.

Borrower agrees that, at all times during the term of this loan, he will maintain unencumbered collateral sufficient to fulfill the requirements of this provision. Lender may, but shall not be required to, waive the provisions of this paragraph, in writing and at the request of Borrower.

Failure to fulfill the covenants to be performed by Borrower hereunder shall constitute an event of default under the terms of this mortgage. In such case, Borrower shall immediately enjoy all the rights and privileges to which he would be entitled upon a default caused by any other reason.

B. REAL ESTATE LOANS

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.115

FORM 25.115 Lender's right to refuse to make further advances of funds to borrower in the event of: (1) environmental mishap on the mortgaged premises; (2) failure to notify lender of an adverse environmental event on the mortgaged premises; (3) failure to rectify an adverse environmental condition on the mortgaged premises; or (4) failure to produce records upon lender's demand

COMMENT

This form presumes that the lender has made a loan to the borrower which is secured by the mortgaged premises. It further presumes that, under the terms of the loan, the lender will periodically advance additional funds to the borrower at the borrower's request (i.e., such as a revolving line of credit). (In other words, an ongoing lending relationship is presumed to exist between the parties.)

The provisions in this form are designed to free the lender from having to advance further funds to the borrower after an adverse environmental mishap occurs which may adversely affect the value of the mortgaged property. Such property, of course, forms some or all of the security for the past loan and for the subsequent funds advanced to the borrower. If the property suffers an environmental mishap, it may become significantly less valuable. Accordingly, the lender may not be able to realistically look to the property any longer as security for repayment of the past loan--let alone further advances--since the cost of clean up may greatly exceed the value of the property.

Accordingly, in order to protect the lender, this form recognizes the lender's right to refuse to make further advances of funds to the borrower in the event of:

(1) an environmental mishap on the mortgaged premises;

(2) a failure by the borrower to rectify an adverse environmental condition on the mortgaged premises; or

(3) a failure by the borrower to produce records upon the lender's demand.

The form also contains a provision which allows the lender, entirely on its own, to make the determination of whether to continue the cash advances. The provision also attempts to eliminate the danger to the lender arising from a possible lawsuit based on its refusal to make further advances.

FORM

This mortgage, by its terms, is security for a note of the same date as the mortgage and for all future advances made under the terms of that note, or any existing note, or any note which may hereafter be executed and delivered to Lender.

Lender reserves the right to refuse to make further advances (including, but not limited to, advances by means of a "line of credit") and to require immediate repayment in full of all previously-loaned funds in the event that any one or more of the following events occurs:

(1) Borrower fails to obtain a required permit;

(2) Borrower fails to renew a required permit;

(3) the governmental agency in question refuses to renew the permit to Borrower;

(4) Borrower, its agents or employees, cause, allow, suffer, or otherwise participate, voluntarily or involuntarily, in the release of toxic or hazardous substances into the air, soils, or water located in, on, above or about the premises subject to the lien of this mortgage. The term "toxic or hazardous substances" shall mean substances defined as such in the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act, 42 USC § 9601 et seq., the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act, 42 USC § 6901 et seq., the Hazardous Materials Transportation Act, 49 USC § 1801 et seq., or the Toxic Substances Control Act, 15 USC § 2601 et seq.;

(5) Borrower fails to timely comply with any order, decree or direction of any court or governmental agency or authority with jurisdiction regarding the real property and premises which are subject to the lien of this mortgage;

(6) the occurrence of any event or sequence of events in, on, or around the premises subject to the lien of this mortgage which may reasonably be expected to have an adverse environmental impact on the said premises, or which may tend to reduce the fair market value of the said premises by reducing the quality of the air, water, land, or wildlife;

(7) the violation by Borrower, its employees or agents, of any federal, state or municipal law relating to the environment as such law relates to the real property and premises which are subject to the lien of this mortgage;

(8) failure of Borrower to notify lender of the occurrence of an event specified herein within _____ (_____) hours of occurrence;

(9) failure of Borrower to take all steps required by law to contain, control, reduce, and remediate the adverse consequences; or

(10) failure of Borrower to timely produce records, at the request of Lender, regarding the occurrence of an event specified herein.

Lender's determination not to advance further sums shall be in Lender's sole discretion and shall not be subject to judicial review in any manner. Lender shall not be subject to any claims for loss of business, business opportunities, damages, fines, or penalties for refusal to advance further funds.

FORM 25.116 Lender's right to demand an environmental site assessment

COMMENT

This clause, which may be inserted into a mortgage or loan document, gives the lender the right to order an environmental site assessment of the mortgaged premises at any time during the term of the loan. The environmental site assessment is performed by an independent environmental consultant who is acceptable to the lender. Selection and payment of the consultant is the responsibility of the borrower.

FORM

At any time during the term of the loan, the lender may demand that the borrower, at the borrower's sole expense, promptly employ the services of an independent environmental consultant who is acceptable to the lender in order to conduct an environmental site assessment of the subject premises and thoroughly investigate any alleged mishap and/or violation. For the purposes of the preceding sentence, an environmental mishap is defined as the unlawful release of hazardous or toxic substances or wastes at the subject premises which contaminates, or may reasonably be expected to contaminate, the land (including subsoil), water (both ground water and surface water), or air on, under, or above the subject premises.

FORM 25.117 Lender's right to come upon the subject property and conduct periodic inspections

COMMENT

This clause may be inserted into a mortgage or other loan document. It empowers the lender to come upon the mortgaged premises at any time in order to conduct a "surprise" inspection. The purpose of the inspection is to determine whether the borrower is complying with all federal, state and local environmental laws, regulations and permits applicable to the mortgaged premises or to the business activities being conducted there.

FORM

Lender reserves to itself and borrower recognizes the lender's right to come upon the subject premises periodically and at any time for the purpose of conducting an inspection of said property in order to determine whether the borrower is in compliance with all environmental laws, regulations, policies and permits (whether federal, state or local in origin). The cost of such inspection shall be at Borrower's sole cost and expense.

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.118

FORM 25.118 Waiver of environmental covenant granted by lender to borrower

COMMENT

This form is designed to make it possible for the lender and borrower to go ahead with the closing of a loan transaction that is already in the works, or to continue an ongoing lending relationship, despite the recent discovery or occurrence of an environmental problem on the mortgaged premises. The form presumes that this discovery or occurrence of an environmental problem is an event triggering a default under the terms of the mortgage. Through this form, the lender agrees to waive the default as long as certain promises are made and kept by the borrower. These promises include, among others, the prompt remediation of the environmental problem by the borrower.

Accordingly, this form may be used either as part of a mortgage or as a separate document executed by the borrower at the mortgage closing. Alternatively, it can be executed by the parties upon the discovery or occurrence of an environmental problem, long after the mortgage is executed and during the course of the lending relationship.

FORM

It is acknowledged by the parties hereto that _____ [insert description of environmental problem] has been discovered on the real property and premises which are subject to the lien of this mortgage [or: which are subject to a certain mortgage dated _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year], which secures a note of even date therewith evidencing a debt of _____ Dollars ($ _____) from Borrower to Lender]. Nonetheless, the parties hereto wish to close the mortgage loan transaction [or: wish to continue the lending relationship]. Because the existence of the problem constitutes a default under the terms of said mortgage, in consideration of the following promises on the part of Borrower, Lender hereby waives the default. The promises are:

(1) Borrower shall notify all federal, state and municipal authorities, as is required by law, of the existence of the environmental problem.

(2) Borrower shall formulate, within _____ (_____) days of the date hereof, a plan to remediate the problem. Said plan shall conform in all aspects to applicable federal, state, and municipal laws, regulations and policies for such plans.

(3) Borrower shall obtain any permits which may be required to effect such plan from any and all governmental authorities with jurisdiction.

(4) Borrower shall promptly commence remediation efforts within _____ (_____) days of the date hereof, unless such date shall be extended or shortened by the directives of a court or other governmental authority with jurisdiction.

(5) Borrower shall continue remediation efforts until all provisions of the plan specified in Subparagraph (2), above, have been completed.

(6) Borrower shall obtain a certificate of compliance or other such document demonstrating that remediation has been completed to the satisfaction of the appropriate governmental authorities. If such documentation is not normally prepared or provided for this type of remediation, Borrower shall obtain comparable proof of complete remediation from an environmental consultant or licensed engineer who has been deemed to be acceptable by the lender.

(7) Borrower hereby agrees to defend, indemnify and hold Lender harmless against any and all claims, demands, penalties, fines, liabilities, settlements, judgments, damages, costs, and/or expenses for injury to person or property (including, but not limited to, attorneys' fees, consultants' fees, court costs, and expenses of removal and/or remediation) which arise out of, or in connection with, the environmental problem and the remedial action contemplated under this provision, including the failure of Borrower to undertake and/or complete the remedial action.

In the event that Borrower fails to perform any of the above actions within a reasonable period of time (or within the time period set forth, if any), Lender shall give Borrower written notice specifying Borrower's failure to perform. Borrower shall then have _____ (_____) days from receipt of such notice to commence performance. If Borrower then commences performance and diligently pursues completion, Lender shall continue its waiver of default so long as pursuit of completion continues in good faith. If Borrower fails to commence performance--or, if Borrower, having commenced performance, fails to diligently pursue completion--then the waiver of default shall be deemed to be revoked without further notice. Lender shall then be entitled to pursue any and all rights and remedies which it may have under the terms of the note and mortgage, including, but not limited to, the right to demand immediate payment in full of the principal amount of the debt.

In the event that the waiver of default shall be deemed to be revoked or, if, at any time, Lender reasonably believes that Borrower has failed to perform any of his obligations under the preceding provisions and does not intend to promptly so perform, Lender shall have no obligation to make further advances to Borrower, including advances by means of Borrower's line of credit or overdraft privileges. Lender shall notify Borrower at least _____ (_____) hours prior to the time at which Lender will no longer honor advances on Borrower's line of credit or Borrower's overdrafts. Such notice may be oral. The rights of Lender contained in the preceding provisions shall be in addition to, and not in place of, all other rights of Lender contained in this document.

FORM 25.119 Borrower required to remove asbestos-laden materials from premises as condition for receiving mortgage loan

COMMENT

Many older buildings, particularly factories and warehouses, contain asbestos-laden insulation materials intended to retard the spread of fire. If a borrower seeks mortgage financing from a lender in order to purchase a building which contains asbestos-laden materials, the lender will frequently require the borrower to make various representations and warranties regarding the asbestos. Sometimes the borrower will be required to remove the asbestos-laden materials in order to obtain the mortgage. A borrower who is unwilling to accept this condition will have to find a different lender.

Of course, there are alternatives to the often costly procedure of removing asbestos insulation. For example, the lender might agree to the borrower developing a plan to contain and control the asbestos-laden materials so that asbestos fibers do not become friable and airborne, thereby endangering the health and safety of those who breathe in the fibers. Such a plan of containment and control will, of course, require the borrower to periodically conduct tests of air samples to ascertain whether asbestos fibers are in fact escaping into the air. In addition, any prudent lender will require the borrower to provide the lender with an "indemnification and hold harmless" agreement to protect the lender from any loss or expense in the event suit is brought for injury arising from asbestos exposure.

That having been said, in the event the lender insists upon the removal of the asbestos-laden materials as a condition for granting the mortgage, the following form may be used and inserted into the mortgage agreement.

FORM

1. In the event that the property subject to this mortgage contains materials laden with asbestos, then the Borrower shall:

(A) promptly remove all such materials in accordance with all applicable federal, state and local environmental laws, regulations and policies; and

(B) restore the property to its original condition.

2. Such removal and restoration work shall be promptly commenced and diligently pursued to completion. In any event, all removal and restoration work must be completed by no later than _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year].

3. Borrower promises that it will promptly pay any and all costs and liabilities incurred in connection with the removal/restoration work, including, for example, liability insurance premiums, and all bills for labor and materials used in the removal/restoration efforts.

4. Borrower promises to indemnify and hold Lender harmless for any and all costs, expenses, losses, fines, penalties, claims, judgments, damages and liabilities incurred, sustained, imposed upon, or brought against Lender as a result of the Borrower's removal/restoration efforts.

5. Failure on the part of the borrower to fulfill any of the obligations set forth above shall be treated as an event triggering a default under the terms of this mortgage. In such case, Borrower shall enjoy all of the normal rights arising in the event of a default.

COMMENT

This simple clause is intended to protect the borrower by disclosing to the lender at the time the loan transaction is negotiated that asbestos-containing materials are present on the mortgaged premises. If the clause is used, an addendum should also be attached to the mortgage or other loan document, stating clearly where these materials are located and the nature of these materials, for example, "asbestos-containing insulation is located in the basement of the house, surrounding the furnace."

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.122

FORM 25.122 Indemnification granted by shareholders of closely-held corporation to lender

COMMENT

When a closely-held corporation borrows money from a bank or other lending institution, the principal shareholders will often collateralize the loan using real property which they themselves own, since the corporation itself may not own any assets of sufficient value to secure the note or they are requested to give a personal guaranty. In the form that follows, the two principal shareholders of a closely-held corporation (the "owners") have secured a loan to the corporation with a piece of real estate which they own. The owners now grant an indemnification and hold harmless to the lender for any loss or expense it might suffer if an adverse environmental condition is discovered on the property, if an environmental law is violated, or if an environmental mishap occurs on the property during the term of the loan.

In this form, the owners make joint and several representations about past and present uses of the property. They warrant that, to the best of their knowledge, the property has never been used for the production, storage, handling, treatment, transportation, or disposal of toxic or hazardous substances. The owners also covenant that, during the term of the loan, they will not use the property for such purposes.

In addition, the owners state that all environmental laws--federal, state and local--have been, and will continue to be, obeyed.

The bank or other lending institution is granted the right to conduct periodic inspections and tests of the property to verify the information and representations provided by the owners, all at the owner's cost.

The owners also covenant not to change their current uses of the property without the lender's permission. This prevents the owners, for example, from building an environmentally-dangerous facility on the premises during the term of the loan--such as an incinerator or an underground storage tank. However, the lender agrees that it will not unreasonably withhold its permission from the owners for a requested change in land use. The lender may condition the granting of its permission upon receipt from the owners of appropriate assurances that the proposed change in use will not pose an environmental risk to the lender's security.

Finally, the provisions of this agreement survive the transfer of the property, including a transfer by foreclosure. In fact, the owners are entitled to a release from the terms of this agreement only if the loan is paid in full without any event of default occurring.

FORM

AGREEMENT made this ____ [day] day of _____ [month] ____ [year], between _____ [name], residing at _____ [address], and _____ [name], residing at _____ [address] (hereafter referred to as "Owners"), and _____ [name] Bank, with its principal place of business located at _____ [address] (hereafter referred to as "Bank").

WHEREAS, _____ [name] Corporation (hereafter referred to as "Borrower"), as Borrower, has obtained a loan from _____ [name] Bank, which loan is secured by a mortgage dated _____ [month] ____ [day] ____ [year], on real property owned by Owners; and

WHEREAS, as further consideration for this loan, Bank has requested an indemnification from Owners with respect to any adverse environmental condition or event which may be discovered upon, or which may occur on, the subject real property;

NOW, in consideration of the loan made by Bank to Borrower, it is agreed as follows:

I. DEFINITIONS

The term "environmental laws" shall include all laws, statutes, regulations, ordinances, rules, decrees, orders, policies or other requirements of any federal, state or municipal government authority with jurisdiction which relates to the quality of water, land, soils, air, fish, wildlife and other natural resources. This shall include, but not be limited to:

- (1) the Clean Air Act (42 USCA § 7401, et seq.);
- (2) the Clean Water Act (33 USCA § 1251, et seq.);
- (3) the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act ("CERCLA") (42 USCA § 9601, et seq.);
- (4) the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act ("RCRA") (42 USCA § 6901, et seq.);
- (5) the Hazardous Materials Transportation Act (49 USCA § 1802, et seq.);
- (6) the Toxic Substances Control Act (15 USCA § 2601, et seq.); and
- (7) _____ [insert here any relevant state laws].

II. USES OF PROPERTY

Owners covenant that they have taken all necessary and appropriate steps to ascertain the identities of the prior owners of the property and the prior uses to which the property was placed. Owners warrant that, to the best of their knowledge, the property has never been used for the production, storage, handling, treatment, transportation, or disposal of toxic or hazardous substances as defined in the environmental laws described above.

Owners further covenant that, during the term of the loan, they will not allow or suffer the use of the property for the production, storage, handling, treatment, transportation, or disposal of toxic or hazardous substances as defined above.

As used herein, the terms "toxic substances" or "hazardous substances" shall not include ordinary substances sold at retail for cleaning or other "household" uses.

III. COMPLIANCE WITH LAWS

Owners covenant that there are no existing violations of environmental laws in, on, or about the subject premises. There are no outstanding orders or decrees of any court or agency regarding any violation of any environmental laws in, on, or about the subject premises. There are no lawsuits or compliance proceedings pending or threatened regarding the subject premises. Owners have obtained all required permits for the operation of the business located on the subject premises. Owners and the premises are in full compliance with all of the terms of such permits.

Owners further covenant that they will not allow or suffer any violation of any environmental law as it relates to the premises or the business operated thereon. Owners will keep in full force and effect all required permits and will timely seek extensions or renewals thereof. Owners will maintain the premises and operate the business in full compliance with the terms of such permits during the entire term of this loan.

Owners covenant that they will provide Bank with notice within twenty-four (24) hours of receiving any information which indicates that there is any:

- (1) violation of any environmental law;
- (2) a threatened revocation or non-renewal of any permit;
- (3) an order or decree of violation of any environmental law; and
- (4) a lawsuit threatened or commenced regarding environmental conditions on the premises.

Failure to do so will be a violation of this Agreement.

IV. CHANGE IN USE

Owners covenant that they will not suffer or permit a change in the current use of the property without the permission of Bank. Bank agrees not to unreasonably withhold permission. However, Bank reserves the right to condition such permission on the continued effectiveness of the provisions of this Agreement and on any further assurances which Bank may reasonably require to protect itself against any potential liability for the occurrence of any adverse environmental event which may jeopardize the viability of Bank's security.

V. RIGHT TO INSPECT

Owners grant Bank, its agents, employees, and officers permission to enter upon the premises at all reasonable hours for the purposes of inspecting the premises. Owners further grant Bank and its agents permission to perform tests on the premises, as deemed necessary or appropriate, to ascertain whether Owners are in full compliance with the terms of this Agreement.

VI. INDEMNIFICATION

Owners shall indemnify and hold Bank harmless for any fines, claims, judgments, expenses, costs of remediation, or other liabilities (including legal fees and other costs of defense) which result from, or arise out of, the failure of Owners, Borrower, any of Owners' predecessors in title, or any tenants or occupants, to fully perform their obligations under any environmental laws as defined above.

Owners shall further indemnify and hold Bank harmless for any fines, claims, judgments, expenses, costs of remediation, or other liabilities (including legal fees and other costs of defense) which result from the occurrence of an environmental mishap on the property during the term of the loan, or from the discovery of an adverse environmental condition existing on the property prior to the making of the loan.

VII. SURVIVAL

The provisions of this Agreement shall survive any sale, conveyance, or other transfer of the premises, whether voluntary or involuntary, including a transfer after the foreclosure of the mortgage. The provisions of this Agreement shall be extinguished only upon payment in full of the debt secured by the mortgage, which is a lien on Owners' premises, without an event of default having occurred. Under the terms of the said Note and Mortgage, Bank shall provide a release at that time.

VIII. DISCLAIMERS

Nothing contained herein shall be deemed to render Bank "in control" of the premises as that term is defined in the environmental laws.

This Agreement may only be modified by a written amendment signed by all parties. An oral modification shall not be binding on any party.

Any failure by any party to enforce any right arising hereunder shall not be deemed a waiver of such right.

The parties hereto have set their hands and seals the day and year first above written.

FORM 25.123 Commitment letter from lender to borrower for loan secured by real property--lender requires environmental site assessment as condition for making loan

COMMENT

This form is a model commitment letter intended for use by a lender who makes a loan to a borrower that is secured by real property. The letter sets forth the terms on which the loan will be made. If the borrower fulfills these conditions in a timely manner, the lender will be obligated to close the loan transaction.

The commitment letter contains both environmental conditions and other, very commonplace conditions that are applicable to most types of real estate-backed loans. The environmental conditions require the borrower:

- (1) to obtain an environmental site assessment of the property that will secure the loan; and
- (2) to provide an opinion-of-counsel letter stating that there has been compliance with all applicable environmental laws affecting the subject property.

If the environmental site assessment reveals the existence of an adverse environmental condition on the subject premises, the lender is not required to close the loan deal.

This commitment to lend expires _____ (_____) days from the date hereof, namely, _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year].

The terms of this letter shall survive the closing of the loan and may only be amended by a written agreement signed by you and the Bank.

The following conditions must be satisfied at or prior to closing:

A. General Conditions

1. The mortgage shall be a first lien on the real property and premises commonly known as _____ [address of property or other description]. Title to the premises must be deemed marketable in the opinion of the Bank's attorneys.
2. You will grant a first security interest in all equipment, fixtures and personal property which are used in connection with the operation of your business, which items are now or hereafter located on the real property subject to the mortgage.
3. You will assign to the Bank all leases and rents in connection with the real property.
4. You will execute and deliver to the Bank those documents deemed necessary or appropriate by the Bank's attorneys to accomplish Paragraphs 1 through 3, above, including, but not limited to, a promissory note, mortgage, security agreement, UCC-1 financing statements, and written assignments of the leases and rents.
5. You will provide the Bank with an opinion of your attorney or other evidence satisfactory to the Bank regarding your authority to enter into this transaction, and acknowledging your legal title to the property, and such other issues as may be deemed appropriate by the Bank's attorneys.

B. Title Conditions

1. You will provide to the Bank an ALTA survey of the real property, which was prepared and certified by a licensed surveyor within the last _____ (_____) years or after the last improvements were made to the real property, whichever is more recent. This survey shall conform to the American Land Title Association surveyors' standards.

2. You will provide to the Bank a title insurance policy for the real property from a solvent title insurance company, licensed to do business in the State of _____ [state]. This policy shall be free from any exceptions, except those which are acceptable to our attorneys. Title must be unencumbered and marketable. The policy will contain such endorsements as the Bank shall reasonably request.

D. Miscellaneous Conditions

1. This commitment may not be assigned.

2. You may not obtain secondary financing secured by a mortgage on the real property during the term of this loan without the prior written consent of the Bank.

3. This loan shall be due and payable in full in the event of the sale or other transfer of the property or any part thereof during the term of this loan.

4. The Bank shall not be obligated to close this loan if there is a material change in the condition of the real property or the financial condition of the borrower as of the date of the closing.

E. Environmental Conditions

1. At least _____ (_____) days prior to the closing, you shall provide to the Bank the results of a "Phase I Environmental Site Assessment" prepared by a qualified individual or company engaged in the business of environmental consultations. This assessment shall be in a form acceptable to the Bank. The Bank's obligation to lend to you shall be contingent upon the determination by the consultant that there are no significant environmental problems associated with the real property, and that there is no direct or circumstantial evidence of a significant adverse environmental condition on the real property due to past or present practices or releases of hazardous materials in, on, or about the real property. The Bank reserves the right to have a consultant of its own review the data and site assessment if the Bank deems it appropriate.

2. You will provide the Bank with an environmental indemnification and hold harmless agreement in a form satisfactory to us.

3. You will provide the Bank with satisfactory evidence, such as an opinion-of-counsel letter from your attorney, that the real property may lawfully be occupied for the proposed use, and that it is in compliance with all federal, state, and municipal laws, regulations and restrictions, including, but not limited to, zoning laws and environmental protection laws and regulations.

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.124

FORM 25.124 Opinion letter of borrower's counsel

COMMENT

This form is an opinion letter prepared by borrower's counsel and intended for the lender. Such letters are almost always required by lenders as part of a commercial loan transaction. In addition, the attorney normally states in the letter that he has personally reviewed all of the loan documents and that to his knowledge they contain no misrepresentations, and that they constitute valid and binding obligations of the borrower.

In this particular letter, the attorney represents that to his knowledge all environmental laws, ordinances and regulations affecting the mortgaged property have been complied with. In addition, the letter states that, to the best of the attorney's knowledge, there is no action, proceeding or investigation, pending or threatened, in connection with an alleged violation of an environmental law, regulation, policy, or an order or decree of any governmental authority. Similarly, to the best of the attorney's knowledge, no violation of any such environmental law, regulation, etc., has ever occurred on the property.

As a practical matter, the attorney should not unequivocally represent that the property is in compliance with all environmental laws. There are too many laws and the attorney is not qualified to inspect the property or evaluate the substances used.

 Borrower

Dear Mr./Ms. _____ [name]:

I am the attorney for _____ [name] (hereafter "Borrower") in connection with the loan granted to Borrower pursuant to your commitment letter mentioned above, which loan is in the principal amount of _____ Dollars ($_____).

As counsel to the Borrower, I have reviewed the commitment letter and the loan documents.

We are of the opinion that all the loan documents are valid obligations of the Borrower in the total sum of _____ Dollars ($_____), and that the same have been duly executed pursuant to proper authority and constitute legal, valid and binding obligations of the Borrower enforceable in accordance with the terms thereof.

We are also of the opinion that the Borrower has all requisite power and authority to enter into, comply with, and perform the terms of the aforementioned loan instruments.

Based upon all of the loan documents and representations made therein, we know of no misrepresentation in the papers.

We are also of the opinion that, to our actual knowledge, without inquiry, all approvals, consents, permits, licenses, orders and authorizations of governmental authorities, required in connection with the construction and operation of the mortgaged premises, have been properly obtained and that, in particular, to our actual knowledge, without inquiry, the zoning, environmental and planning laws, ordinances and regulations affecting the property have been complied with, and that all requirements of all state or local agencies, including the County of _____ [county] and the City of _____ [city], which have jurisdiction over the subject matter, have been met.

There is, to our knowledge, no action, proceeding or investigation, pending or threatened, which questions the validity of the loan instruments, nor are we aware of any condemnation or other taking proceeding having been commenced or contemplated.

There is to our knowledge no action, proceeding or investigation pending or threatened in connection with an alleged violation of an environmental law, regulation, policy, order or decree of any governmental authority. To the best of our knowledge, no such violation has ever occurred.

It is understood that, as to all matters affecting the title to the mortgaged premises, you have relied on a commitment for title insurance issued by the _____ [name] Title Company and bearing that company's title no.
 _____. Similarly, we have relied on said title commitment, and we are of the opinion that said mortgage is a valid first mortgage lien on the premises described therein, properly securing the total sum of _____ Dollars ($_____).

Very truly yours,

FORM 25.125 Another opinion letter--disclaimer of compliance with environmental law

COMMENT

This is another opinion letter given by an attorney in connection with a commercial loan. The loan documents include an Environmental Indemnity Agreement. The opinion does provide that the loan documents are binding upon the borrowers. However, the opinion specifically disclaims any compliance by borrower of any environmental laws. The role of any attorney is not to review the property and borrower's operation to conclude that the borrower is not in violation of any applicable environmental law. Typically, the lender will rely upon an environmental site assessment. The opinion does provide that the attorney is not aware of any violations of law. Lastly, the opinion sets forth a lawsuit involving the borrower of which the attorney is aware.

Re: Loan to _____

Ladies and Gentlemen:

We have acted as special counsel to _____ [name] and _____ [name] (collectively, the "Borrower") in connection with the loan described in _____ [name] Bank's (the "Bank") letter to Borrower dated _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]. This opinion is rendered pursuant to the Bank's request.

In connection with this opinion, we have examined and considered the following:

- (i) the Bank's letter to the Borrower dated _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year];
- (ii) the Promissory Note dated _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year] executed by the Borrower;
- (iii) the Open-End Mortgage Deed and Security Agreement dated _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year] executed by the Borrower;
- (iv) the Assignments of Leases and Rentals dated _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year] executed by the Borrower;
- (v) the Environmental Indemnity Agreement dated _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year] executed by the Borrower;
- (vi) the Collateral Assignment of Borrowers' Interest in Contract Documents executed dated _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year] by the Borrower;
- (vii) the UCC-1 Financing Statements to be filed with the _____ [state] Secretary of State, _____ [county] County Recorder's Office and _____ [county] County Recorder's Office executed by the Borrower.

The documents referred to in subparagraphs (ii) through (vii) shall be collectively referred to as the "Loan Documents."

We have also examined such other documents, papers, statutes and authorities, as deemed necessary to form the basis of the opinions hereinafter expressed. In such examinations, we have assumed the genuineness of signatures other than those of the Borrower, the authenticity of all documents submitted to us as originals and the conformity to original documents of copies of documents supplied to us. As to various questions of fact material to this opinion, we have relied upon the warranties and representations of the Borrower set forth in the Loan Documents and statements, certificates and opinions of the Borrower and others.

The opinions expressed herein are qualified in their entirety as follows:

- (a) The enforceability of the terms and provisions of any instrument or agreement is subject to the application of bankruptcy, insolvency, reorganization, moratorium, liquidation and other similar laws now or hereafter in effect relating to creditors' rights or remedies generally;
- (b) The availability of equitable remedies, including, without limitation, the remedy of specific performance or the appointment of a receiver, is generally discretionary and may, under general principles of equity, not be available with respect to the enforcement of the terms or provisions of any instrument or agreement;

(c) Judicial decisions indicate that public policy may make unenforceable provisions in agreements respecting payment of the costs of administration and enforcement, including, without limitation, attorneys' fees;

(d) The opinions expressed herein are limited to matters of _____ [state] law and the federal law of the United States as in effect on the date hereof, and we express no opinion concerning the law of any other jurisdiction;

(e) The Assignments of Leases and Rentals will not be enforceable unless a foreclosure action is instituted and a receiver is appointed by a competent court having jurisdiction over the Borrower and the property described therein;

(f) The opinions expressed below as to compliance with certain laws and regulations and the obtaining or performing of all consents, approvals, authorizations, and filings required thereby are based upon a review of those laws and regulations which are generally applicable to transactions of the type contemplated by the agreements referred to herein and we expressly disclaim any opinions as to compliance with any environmental laws; and

(g) Whenever we assert below that a matter is "to our knowledge" or "known to us," unless otherwise qualified, our knowledge is limited to the actual knowledge of those attorneys in our office who have directly participated in the representation of the Borrower, or either of them, without inquiry.

No opinion is expressed with respect to the due authorization, execution, validity or enforceability of any instrument or agreement not specifically referred to herein. Further, we specifically express no opinion as to the priority of any liens or security interests given to the Bank pursuant to the Loan Documents.

Based upon our examination of the foregoing and such other matters that we have deemed necessary, we are of the opinion that:

1. The Loan Documents have been duly executed and delivered by the Borrower.
2. Assuming execution and delivery by an authorized representative of the Bank of those Loan Documents to which the Bank is a party, the Loan Documents are valid and enforceable against the Borrower in accordance with their respective terms.
3. The execution, delivery and performance of the Loan Documents shall not violate any applicable laws, governmental rules and regulations applicable to the Borrower, including, without limitation, applicable usury laws.
4. To our knowledge, the Borrowers are not in violation of any applicable laws, there is no material litigation or other proceedings for the collection of money involving the Borrower and to our knowledge, there is no set of circumstances which might give rise to such lawsuit or proceeding. We exclude from this opinion, however, and hereby disclose to the Bank that there is a pending lawsuit against _____ [name] in the Court of Common Pleas, Division of Domestic Relations, Cuyahoga County, Ohio entitled [insert name of case] Case No. _____. Although we have been consulted from time to time by _____ [name] and others, we are not counsel of record and specifically disclaim any opinion as to the status of such proceeding, its outcome or the impact, if any, on _____ [name].

5. To our knowledge, the Loan Documents do not conflict with any other material agreements to which the Borrowers are a party.

The opinions set forth above are intended solely for the benefit of the Bank in connection with the above-described transaction and may not be reproduced, filed publicly or relied upon by any other person or entity for any other purpose.

Very truly yours,

C. LEASE OF REAL ESTATE

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.126

FORM 25.126 Commercial lease--shopping center--representation by tenant that business does not use or produce hazardous substances--representation by landlord that no other tenants are or will be involved in any business using or producing hazardous substances--representation by landlord of condition of premises

COMMENT

This agreement is for the lease of a unit in a newly-constructed shopping mall. The mall was built on the site of a former gasoline filling station. A phase I environmental site assessment was performed when the landlord obtained his construction loan. On the basis of the results of this assessment, the landlord now makes a representation to the tenant that the premises are free of any adverse environmental conditions or problems. And since the premises are newly-constructed, the landlord also makes a representation to the tenant regarding the good general condition of the premises.

In addition, the tenant and the landlord make mutual covenants regarding the use and storage of hazardous substances on the premises. The landlord covenants that none of the other tenants are or will be allowed to use, store or produce hazardous substances in their units, except for retail type uses such as dry cleaners, hardware stores, etc. (The tenant may terminate the lease if there is a violation of this covenant by the landlord.) The tenant also covenants that it will not use, store or produce hazardous substances in its unit. Also, many of the representations and warranties and other provisions set forth in the forms dealing with the purchase and sale of real estate and the real estate lending have broad applications and may be, with slight modifications, applied to landlord/tenant transactions.

All repairs, alterations, decorations or improvements made in or to the leased premises by Tenant shall become the property of Landlord and shall be surrendered with the premises at the termination of the Lease. Tenant shall have the right to remove or replace its movable trade fixtures, provided Tenant repairs any damage caused by such removal or replacement. The failure of Tenant to remove its fixtures or any of its property at the termination of the term of this Lease shall be deemed abandonment of such property at the option of Landlord. If Landlord must remove such property, the cost of removal shall be deducted from Tenant's security deposit.

(d) At the expiration or other end of the Lease term or any extensions thereof, Tenant shall deliver up the leased premises in good order and condition, damages by the elements and reasonable wear and tear excepted.

4. Tenant to Comply with All Laws, etc. Tenant shall promptly comply with all statutes, ordinances, rules, orders, regulations and requirements of the federal, state and local governments (and of any and all of their departments and bureaus) applicable to said premises and pertaining to the correction, prevention and abatement of nuisances or other grievances in, upon or connected with said premises during the Lease term and any extensions thereof, at Tenant's own cost and expense. Tenant shall obtain approval of the sign to be placed on the building directly above Tenant's entrance; the size and appearance of that sign must be acceptable to the City of _____ [city], and must also be approved by Landlord. The maximum sign for tenant's premises shall not exceed _____ (_____) feet by _____ (_____) feet. The signs for each tenant in the _____ [name] Plaza/Mall/Shopping Center/Shopping Mall/Village shall be as uniform as practicable. The cost of the sign application to the City of _____ [city] shall be borne by Tenant.

6. Assignment of Lease and Subletting of Premises by Tenant. Tenant and/or his successors shall not assign this Lease, or sublet the premises, or any part thereof, without Landlord's written consent. Such consent shall not be unreasonably withheld, conditioned or delayed.

7. Landlord Represents that Leased Space is New Construction. Landlord hereby represents that the space to be leased to Tenant is new construction and has not been previously leased or otherwise occupied. All plumbing, heating and mechanical systems are in good working order.

8. Previous Use of Leased Premises. Landlord represents that the land on which _____ [name] Plaza/Mall/Shopping Center/Shopping Mall/Village is built was previously occupied by an auto parts and supply store and gasoline filling station. The underground storage tanks were removed prior to construction. A phase I environmental site assessment, which was performed on the premises immediately prior to construction, found no evidence of any adverse environmental impact on the premises due to use or release of hazardous substances.

9. Environmental Covenant by Landlord. Except for tenants such as dry cleaners, hardware stores, and other tenants in which hazardous substances are a part of the normal retail activities of a shopping center, Landlord represents that none of the present tenants in _____ [name] Plaza/Mall/Shopping Center/Shopping Mall/Village use, store or produce any substance in their businesses deemed hazardous under the following statutes and the regulations promulgated thereunder: the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act, 42 USC § 9601 et seq.; the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act, 42 USC § 6901 et seq.; the Hazardous Material Transportation Act, 49 USC § 1801 et seq.; and the Toxic Substances Control Act, 15 USC § 2601 et seq. Landlord agrees, during the term of this lease and any extensions thereof, not to lease any space to any tenant who uses, stores or produces any substance deemed hazardous, as defined above except as set forth above. In the event of a material breach of this covenant, Tenant shall be entitled to terminate this Lease agreement without penalty. Nothing contained herein shall be deemed to render Landlord liable to Tenant for any expenses incurred in termination of the Lease and relocation, including, but not limited to, moving expenses, fit-up costs, loss of business or injury to person or property.

10. Environmental Covenant by Tenant. Tenant represents that Tenant does not use, store or produce hazardous substances in the course of Tenant's business. Tenant agrees not to allow or suffer the use, storage or production of hazardous substances, as defined above, on the leased premises. A breach of this covenant will allow Landlord to terminate this Lease and will render Tenant liable for damages.

11. Tenant to Give Landlord Notice of Fire, Accident, Damage, or Dangerous or Defective Condition. Tenant must give Landlord notice of fire, accident, damage, or dangerous or defective condition on or to the premises. If the leased premises cannot be used because of fire or other casualty, Tenant is not required to pay rent for the time the premises are unusable. Landlord shall have the right to decide whether and which part of the premises is unusable. Landlord need only repair the damaged structural parts of the premises. Landlord shall repair and return the leased premises to the Tenant in the same condition in which Landlord was required to deliver the premises to Tenant at the commencement of this Lease under Paragraph 3. Landlord is not required to repair or replace any equipment, fixtures, furnishings or decorations, unless originally installed by Landlord. Landlord is not responsible for delays due to settling insurance claims, obtaining estimates, labor and supply problems or any other cause not fully under Landlord's control.

If there is substantial damage caused by fire or other casualty, Landlord has the right to demolish or rebuild the building. Landlord may cancel this Lease within _____ (_____) days after a fire or casualty causing substantial damage by giving Tenant written notice of Landlord's intention to demolish or rebuild. This Lease will end upon Landlord's giving the cancellation notice to Tenant. Tenant shall surrender the premises to Landlord immediately. Tenant shall pay all rent due to the date of the fire or casualty. If this Lease is so canceled, Landlord shall have no obligation to repair the premises or building, or re-lease to Tenant should Landlord make such repairs.

12. Landlord May Enter Upon Leased Premises to Conduct Examination or Make Repairs. Tenant shall permit Landlord and Landlord's agents and other representatives to enter into and upon said premises, or any part thereof, at any reasonable hour, for the purpose of examining the same, or making such repairs or alterations therein as may be necessary for the safety and preservation thereof.

Landlord shall bear the entire expense of all repairs, alterations or improvements to the items originally installed or constructed by Landlord. Tenant shall be responsible for any repairs, alterations, decorations and improvements which were not installed or constructed by Landlord. Any such repairs, alterations, or improvements by Landlord or Tenant shall be accomplished promptly with first-class materials, in a good and workmanlike manner, in compliance with all applicable laws of all governmental authorities, and in a style and character conforming to the existing construction. Any delays due to circumstances beyond the control of a party shall be excused.

13. Eviction of Tenant. If the premises are abandoned during the term of this Lease, or if Tenant fails to pay the rent or any part thereof, or if Tenant violates any other provision of this Lease, Landlord or his duly authorized representatives may re-enter the said premises and remove all persons therefrom, without being liable for prosecution. Tenant hereby expressly waives the service of any notice, in writing, of Landlord's intention to re-enter. Tenant shall remain responsible for all rent payments as they become due and payable under the terms of this Lease. Landlord may rent the premises on behalf of Tenant. Without releasing Tenant from any liability, Landlord may rent the premises for a longer period of time than fixed in the original lease, or for a lower annual rental payment. Landlord shall apply any rent collected, first to the expense of obtaining possession, including court costs and reasonable legal fees, second to restoring the premises to a rentable condition, and then to the payment of the rent and any other charges which may be due. Tenant shall remain liable for any deficiency.

14. Lease is Subordinate to Mortgage on Property. This Lease shall be subordinate to any mortgages that are now on, or that hereafter may be placed against, said premises. The recording of such mortgage or mortgages shall be superior to, and prior in line to, this Lease, irrespective of the date of recording. Tenant agrees to execute, without cost, any such instrument which may be deemed necessary or desirable to further effect the subordination of this Lease to any such mortgage or mortgages. A refusal to execute such instrument shall be a violation of this Lease and entitle Landlord to commence proceedings to evict Tenant.

15. Eminent Domain. If the whole or any part of the leased premises shall be taken by eminent domain, the term of this Lease shall terminate from the date title vests in the governmental authority. Tenant shall have no claim against Landlord for the value of any unexpired term of this Lease. No part of any award shall belong to Tenant.

16. Tenant Waives Right to Redeem and Right to Trial by Jury. Tenant waives all rights to redeem under any law of the State of _____ [state]. Tenant waives the right to trial by jury on any cause of action arising out of this Lease.

17. Landlord's Inability to Supply or Delay in Supplying Service or Repair to Tenant. The obligation of Tenant to pay rent hereunder and to perform all other covenants shall not be excused because Landlord is unable to supply, or is delayed in supplying, any service or repair to be supplied by Landlord under the terms of this Lease, when such inability or delay shall be due to accident, or to the extensiveness of the alterations or repairs desirable or necessary to be made, or to Landlord's inability or difficulty in securing supplies or labor for the provision of such service, or to some other cause, rather than gross negligence on the part of Landlord. No diminution or abatement of rent, or other compensation, shall be claimed or allowed for inconvenience or discomfort arising from the making of repairs or improvements to the building. No such interruption or curtailment of any service shall be deemed a constructive eviction.

18. Tenant Responsible for All Utilities. Tenant shall be responsible for all utilities and utility bills arising from the use of utilities on the leased premises, including gas, electricity, water, sewer, and telephones.

19. Landlord to Maintain Common Areas. Landlord shall maintain the common areas at all times. Tenant shall pay its proportionate share of the cost of: (1) all exterior maintenance and grounds keeping; (2) common area maintenance; (3) snow and ice removal from the sidewalks and parking areas of the premises; (4) the collection and disposal of rubbish and other refuse; (5) exterior lighting; and (6) other exterior cleaning and maintenance, taxes, and insurance.

The proportionate share of Tenant shall be determined by the use of the formula: "A" divided by "B" and multiplied by "C" = amount due. "A" equals the amount of floor space rented by Tenant, "B" equals the total amount of floor space available for rent in the shopping mall, and "C" equals the total amount of maintenance and other costs listed in the preceding paragraph. Landlord shall compute the amount due from Tenant pursuant to this paragraph on a monthly basis and give notice to Tenant in writing. The bill shall be paid within _____ (_____) days of the date of delivery of said notice. For purposes of this lease, Tenant's initial proportionate share is _____ percent (_____%).

20. Parking. Tenant and employees of Tenant agree to park their automobiles in the parking area designated by Landlord for employees. Landlord shall be entitled to tow improperly-parked vehicles at Tenant's expense and without notice.

21. Tenant Responsible for Cleaning Unit. Tenant shall be responsible for the cleaning and maintenance of Tenant's own unit.

22. Insurance. Tenant, at its own cost, shall maintain liability and property damage insurance with a liability limit of _____ Dollars ($_____) per claim, and property damage limit of not less than _____ Dollars ($_____), insuring against all liability of Tenant and its authorized representatives arising out of and in connection with, Tenant's use or occupancy of the premises.

Tenant, at its own cost, shall maintain full coverage plate glass insurance on the premises. Landlord shall be named as an additional insured on all policies. Landlord shall secure casualty insurance for the entire shopping plaza, and liability insurance and property damage insurance for the common areas.

23. Security Deposit. Tenant shall pay to Landlord a security deposit in the amount of _____ Dollars ($_____). Said sum shall be returned to Tenant after the expiration of the term of this Lease and any extensions thereof, provided Tenant has fully performed all of the terms, covenants and conditions required hereunder. Additionally, if Landlord is required to use Tenant's security deposit during the term of this lease, Tenant shall immediately, upon written notice from Landlord, restore the security deposit to the amount stated above.

24. Occupancy Date. It is anticipated by Landlord that the building will be ready for occupancy on _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]. Rent will commence on the date the premises are available for possession by Tenant. In the event the available date is other than the first day of a month, the rent for that first partial month shall be pro-rated on a daily basis from the date of availability. In the event that Landlord is unable to obtain all of the necessary governmental approvals by _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year], the security deposit paid hereunder shall be refunded by Landlord to Tenant, and there shall be no further liability or responsibility on the part of either party to the other.

25. Arbitration. Any disagreement between the parties with respect to the interpretation or application of this Lease or the obligations of the parties hereunder shall be resolved by arbitration. Such arbitration shall be conducted, upon request of either Landlord or Tenant, before a single arbitrator designated by the American Arbitration Association and in accordance with the rules of that Association. The arbitrator designated and acting under this Lease shall make the award in strict conformity with such rules and shall have no power to depart from or change any of the provisions thereof. The expense of arbitration proceedings conducted hereunder shall be borne equally by the parties. All arbitration proceedings hereunder shall be conducted in the county in which the leased premises are located.

26. Agreement Contains Entire Understanding of Parties. This Agreement contains the entire understanding of the parties; there have been no representations made which are not contained herein.

27. No Oral Modifications. This Agreement may only be modified by a written amendment signed by both parties. An oral modification shall not be binding on either party.

28. Controlling Law. This Agreement shall be construed in accordance with the laws of the State of _____ [state].

29. Waiver. Any failure by either party to enforce any right arising hereunder shall not be deemed a waiver of such right.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties hereto have set their hands and seals the day and year first above written.

Chapter 25 ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

Part IV. FORMS

C. LEASE OF REAL ESTATE

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.127

FORM 25.127 Commercial lease--ground lease--vacant land to be used by tenant for construction of building(s)--tenant promises to comply with all environmental laws

COMMENT

This form is a ground lease whereby a tenant leases vacant, undeveloped land from a landlord. The tenant then constructs a building or buildings upon the land. At the end of the term, the building(s) becomes the property of landlord. Of course, in such agreements, the lease term typically runs for decades; otherwise, no tenant would be willing to assume the tremendous costs of new construction.

The lease contains two environmental provisions. One requires the tenant to obey all federal, state and local environmental laws, regulations and policies during excavation, construction and occupancy of the building. The other provides that if the tenant discovers hazardous substances concealed beneath the ground during the course of excavation and construction (e.g., drums of chemicals or toxic wastes), then the tenant may either terminate the lease or require the landlord to remediate the problem.

If the landlord is required to remediate the problem, then the tenant receives a rent abatement and an extension of the lease term for the period of time between discovery of the problem and completion of the remediation process. It should be remembered that, under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act, 42 USC § 9601, et seq., the landlord may be required by law to correct the environmental problem anyway, regardless of whether he intends to lease the property to another. Hence, the landlord's promise to the tenant to correct the environmental problem may simply be a recognition on the landlord's part of his statutory duty. It may not impose any additional financial burden on the landlord that did not exist already. If the environmental problem is too massive, the landlord reserves the right to terminate the lease. Obviously, the landlord needs this right because significant problems could render the property worthless. Further, since the landlord is a corporation, in the event of a larger problem, the landlord might elect to walk away from the property or file for bankruptcy.

FORM

AGREEMENT made this ____ [day] day of _____ [month], ____ [year], between _____ [name], a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of _____ [state], with offices at _____ [address] (hereafter referred to as "Landlord"), and _____ [name], a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of _____ [state], with offices at _____ [address] (hereafter referred to as "Tenant").

WHEREAS, Tenant wishes to construct and occupy a structure on lot number _____ (_____), as shown on the approved site plan;

NOW, in consideration of the mutual promises contained herein, it is agreed as follows:

1. Leased Premises. 3. Extended Term. Tenant shall be entitled to extend the term of this lease for _____ (_____) years, provided that the Lease has not been previously terminated and that Tenant is not in default under the terms of this Lease Agreement at the time of each extension.

Tenant shall give written notice of the intent to extend at least _____ (_____) years prior to the expiration of the then-current term.

The terms of this Agreement shall remain, except that the annual rent shall be the sum of _____ Dollars ($_____), payable in monthly installments of _____ Dollars ($_____) each on the first day of each month.

Tenant shall have no further right to extend the term of this Lease Agreement beyond the expiration of the extensions provided for above.

4. Rent. Tenant shall pay to Landlord the sum of _____ Dollars ($_____) during the initial term of this lease for the use and occupancy of the premises. Tenant may pay the same in monthly installments of _____ Dollars ($_____) each, which shall be due and payable on the first day of each month.

In the event Tenant fails to make payments on or before the _____ (_____) day of each month, Tenant shall pay a late fee in the amount of _____ Dollars ($_____) to cover Landlord's additional administrative expenses associated with the late payment.

5. Use of the Premises. It is understood by the parties hereto that Tenant intends to use the premises for the construction and operation of a _____ (_____) office building and adjacent parking area]. Copies of the proposed building plans are annexed hereto as Exhibit "A" and made a part hereof. Any changes to the plans shall require the approval of Landlord. Such approval shall not be unreasonably withheld, conditioned or delayed. However, Landlord shall have the right to refuse to approve any changes which shall reduce the number of usable square feet contained within the structure.

6. Governmental Approvals. Tenant shall be responsible for and shall secure promptly all necessary governmental approvals, including, but not limited to, building permits and certificates of occupancy.

7. Construction, Alterations, Repairs. Tenant shall construct the building shown in Exhibit "A" in a good and workmanlike manner, using first-class materials. Construction shall be commenced within _____ (_____) days after the building permit shall be issued. Tenant shall make application for the building permit within _____ (_____) days after the date hereof.

Construction shall be completed within _____ (_____) months after commencement thereof, with reasonable extensions for inclement weather, labor disputes, strikes, Acts of God and other circumstances beyond the control of Tenant. In any event, the construction shall be complete within _____ (_____) years of the date of commencement.

During the term of this Lease and any renewals or extensions thereof, Tenant shall make all needed alterations and repairs of any nature. Tenant shall maintain the premises in first-class condition at all times during the term of this Lease and any extensions or renewals thereof. In the event Tenant fails to make a necessary repair, Landlord may, but shall not be required to, enter upon the premises and perform the repair. Landlord may charge the cost of the repair to Tenant as additional rent. Such additional rent shall be due and payable on the first day of the month after which the Landlord has paid for the repair.

All structures, improvements and fixtures of any nature constructed or installed by Tenant on the leased premises shall become the property of Landlord and shall not be removed therefrom by Tenant. Notwithstanding the foregoing, removable trade fixtures shall be removed from the premises at the completion of the term of this Lease, including any renewals or extensions thereof. Tenant shall repair any damage caused by the removal. If Tenant fails to remove such trade fixtures, Landlord may deem the trade fixtures part of the leased premises, or may remove and dispose of such fixtures at Tenant's expense, at Landlord's option.

8. Additional Rent. Tenant shall pay all taxes assessed against lot number _____ (_____), including, but not limited to, property taxes, school taxes, sewer rents, water rents and special improvement district levies. In the event Tenant fails to pay such taxes as they become due, Landlord may pay them and charge such expenses to Tenant as additional rent. Such additional rent shall become due and payable on the first day of the month after which the Landlord has paid any such taxes.

Tenant shall provide Landlord with proof of payment of taxes within _____ (_____) days after the last day on which such taxes may be paid without penalty.

9. Insurance. Tenant shall maintain casualty insurance on the structure for the benefit of Landlord and Tenant, in an amount sufficient to reconstruct the premises.

Tenant shall maintain public liability insurance on the leased premises in at least the amount of _____ Dollars ($_____) per claim. Landlord shall be named as an additional insured.

Tenant shall provide Landlord with certificates of insurance evidencing such coverage, together with proof of premium payment, at least once each year. Tenant shall secure a provision in each policy of insurance requiring that at least _____ (_____) days' written notice be given to Landlord by the insurance carrier prior to cancellation of any policy.

In the event Tenant fails to secure such insurance, Landlord may obtain the same and charge the premiums to Tenant as additional rent, which shall be due and payable on the first day of the month after which Landlord paid such premiums.

Tenant shall require the contractor who performs the construction described in Exhibit "A" to obtain builder's risk insurance in at least the amounts set out above. Landlord and Tenant shall be named as additional insureds.

10. Sublease. Tenant shall be entitled to freely sublease all or part of the property described in Exhibit "A." Tenant shall include the substance of the following clauses in each lease to a subtenant:

- (a) The space will be used for _____ [e.g., offices only].
- (b) No sublease shall extend beyond the term of this Lease.
- (c) Subtenant(s) shall comply with all laws as they relate to the use and occupancy of the building.
- (d) Subtenant shall not, at any time during the term of its lease or any extensions or modifications thereof, use, store, treat, transport, manufacture, handle or produce any hazardous substance (as defined below) on the leased premises.

The term "hazardous substance" shall mean any substance deemed hazardous under any of the following statutes or under any other statute or regulation of any governmental authority: the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act, 42 USC § 9601 et seq.; the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act, 42 USC § 6901 et seq.; the Hazardous Material Transportation Act, 49 USC § 1801 et seq.; or the Toxic Substances Control Act, 15 USC § 2601 et seq.

11. Mortgages:

(a) Tenant may grant a mortgage for the financing of the construction described in Exhibit "A" hereto. Such mortgage shall be, at all times, subordinate to the ownership rights of Landlord. Tenant may not grant or suffer any other liens upon the premises without the express written consent of Landlord.

(b) In any mortgage which Landlord may now or hereafter place against the premises, Tenant agrees that his interest shall be subordinate. Tenant shall execute any documents reasonably required by Landlord to evidence such subordination. Tenant shall be required to satisfy any liens not expressly approved by Landlord within _____ (_____) days after receipt of notice of the existence of such liens. Failure to do so shall be an event of default under the terms of this Lease Agreement.

12. Eminent Domain:

(a) If the whole or part of the leased premises shall be acquired or condemned by eminent domain for any public or quasi-public use or purpose, then, in that event, the term of this Lease shall cease, and the Lease shall terminate from the date on which title vests in the applicable governmental authority.

(b) Any award for condemnation shall be paid first to Tenant, to the extent required to satisfy Tenant's construction mortgage and any other liens for which Tenant received express written permission of Landlord to incur. The balance of the award shall belong to Landlord.

13. Destruction by Fire or Other Casualty. In the event that the building described in Exhibit "A" shall be totally destroyed by fire or other casualty, Tenant shall not be required to rebuild. Instead, Tenant may elect, within _____ (_____) days after the date of loss, to terminate this Lease. In that event, Tenant shall use so much of the insurance proceeds as may be required to satisfy the construction mortgage and any other liens which were expressly approved, in writing, by Landlord. The remainder of the proceeds shall belong to Landlord.

If the building is only partially destroyed, Tenant shall promptly reconstruct the building to its condition immediately prior to the fire. Tenant shall obtain all governmental approvals. Reconstruction shall be commenced promptly and be completed within _____ (_____) months of the date of loss.

In the event of a complete loss and termination of the Lease, the rent shall cease to be payable as of the date of loss. Landlord shall not be required to return any rent to Tenant. In the event of a partial loss, the rent shall be reduced by the same percentage as the percentage of the building which is unusable.

14. Indemnification. Tenant does hereby covenant and agree with Landlord that it will indemnify and hold Landlord harmless from and against any and all liability, damages, penalties or judgments arising from injury to person or property sustained by anyone in and about the leased premises due to any act or acts of omission or commission of Tenant, or Tenant's officers, agents, servants, employees, contractors or assignees. Tenant shall, at its own cost and expense, defend against any and all suits or actions (whether just or unjust) which may be brought against Landlord because of any such above-mentioned matter, claim or claims. Landlord shall not be responsible or liable for any damage to any property, fixtures, buildings or other improvements, or for any injury to any person or persons, at any time on the leased premises, including any injury to Tenant or to any of Tenant's officers, agents, servants, employees, contractors, customers or assignees, except as may result from any act or acts of omission or commission of Landlord or Landlord's officers, agents, servants, employees, assignees or contractors.

15. Utilities. Tenant shall pay all fees charged for all utilities utilized in connection with the use and occupancy of the premises, including, but not limited to, gas, oil, electricity and telephone service.

16. Inspection. Landlord shall have the right to enter upon the premises at any reasonable hour to inspect for compliance with the terms of this Lease. Landlord shall provide Tenant with notice of the inspection at least _____ (_____) hours prior to making the inspection.

17. Environmental Provisions:

(a) Tenant shall comply with all environmental laws, orders and regulations of federal, state, county and municipal authorities, and with any directive issued pursuant to law by any public officer thereof, which shall impose any order or duty upon Tenant pertaining to the construction, use or occupancy of the leased premises by Tenant, its assignees or sublessees.

(b) Tenant shall have the right, upon giving written notice to Landlord, to contest any obligations imposed upon Tenant pursuant to the provisions of this Paragraph and to defer compliance during the pendency of the contesting proceedings, provided that the failure of Tenant to comply will not subject Landlord to civil fine or criminal penalty.

(c) Notwithstanding the foregoing, in the event that Tenant's failure to promptly fulfill the contested obligations would pose an imminent threat to public health, public safety and/or the environment, Tenant shall immediately perform whatever actions may be required to abate the immediate threat. Thereafter, Tenant may contest the obligations and defer further compliance, as set forth above.

(d) Tenant shall provide Landlord with copies of all documents served upon Tenant or his counsel, and served by Tenant or his counsel, upon the governmental authority.

(e) Failure of Tenant to comply with the provisions of this Paragraph shall be an act of default under the terms of this Lease and shall entitle Landlord to pursue all applicable remedies. In addition, Landlord shall be entitled to collect from Tenant any fines, penalties, expenses of defense (including legal fees), expenses of compliance and other damages incurred by Landlord by reason of Tenant's default under this Paragraph.

(f) In the event that Tenant discovers any condition during the course of excavation and construction that would indicate the possible existence of hazardous substances on the premises, Tenant shall immediately notify Landlord. Landlord shall investigate the matter at his sole cost and expense. If the substances are indeed hazardous (as defined above in Paragraph 10), Tenant shall be entitled to terminate this Lease by giving written notice of its election to do so within _____ (_____) days after Landlord advises it that such substances are hazardous.

The obligation to pay rent shall be suspended upon the date of discovery by Tenant of the evidence of hazardous substances or the date that Tenant ceases excavation and construction, whichever is later. If Tenant elects not to terminate, Landlord shall promptly take whatever reasonable actions are required by law to remediate, remove or otherwise clean up the premises as required by the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act, 42 USC § 9601 et seq. The obligation to pay rent shall be suspended from the date of discovery of the evidence of hazardous substances until remediation is complete. Tenant shall be entitled to an extension of the term of this Lease for the same period of time. Notwithstanding the foregoing to the contrary, if the remediation exceeds _____ Dollars ($ _____), then Landlord may, in its sole discretion, terminate this lease. In the event of such termination, Landlord shall reimburse Tenant for all reasonable costs and expenses incurred by Tenant in connection with the project.

18. Trash. Tenant shall store all trash, debris and all other waste materials in a fire-proof container, and normal office waste paper and other normal office trash in waste baskets within the leased premises. In no event shall any trash, debris or waste materials be stored outside of the building.

19. Quiet Enjoyment. Landlord covenants and agrees that Tenant may peaceably and quietly enjoy the leased premises, subject, however, to Tenant's fulfillment of the covenants and agreements contained in this Lease.

20. End of Term. Upon expiration or other termination of this Lease, Tenant shall quit and surrender to Landlord the leased premises, broom clean, in good order and condition, reasonable wear and tear and damage by fire or other casualty excepted.

21. Notices. Any notice required to be given to Landlord shall be in writing and sent certified mail, return receipt requested, to _____ [name] at the following address: _____ [address]. Any notice required to be given to Tenant shall be in writing and sent certified mail, return receipt requested, to _____ [name] at the following address: _____ [address].

22. Waiver. Any failure by either party to enforce any right arising hereunder shall not be deemed a waiver of such right.

23. Amendments. This Agreement may only be modified by a written amendment signed by both parties. An oral modification shall not be binding on either party.

24. Captions. The captions preceding the paragraphs of this Lease are inserted only as a matter of convenience and for reference purposes, and in no way define, limit or describe the scope of this Lease nor the intent of any provision of this Lease.

25. Waiver of Right to Trial by Jury. The parties hereto agree that, for any cause of action or counterclaim arising out of the terms of this Lease, including an action for eviction, the parties waive the right to a trial by jury.

26. Default. The following shall be events of default on the part of Tenant under the terms of this Lease:

- (a) failure to pay rent or added rent when due;
- (b) failure to comply with any law, regulation, policy or order of any lawful governmental authority;
- (c) failure to comply with any other lease provision contained herein;
- (d) vacating or abandoning the premises.

In the event of default, Landlord shall give written notice of default to Tenant, specifying the nature of the default. Tenant shall have _____ (_____) days from the date of notice to cure a default in rent payment. Tenant shall be entitled to _____ (_____) days from the date of notice to cure a non-monetary default. If Tenant fails to cure the default within the specified time, Landlord may terminate this Lease and remove Tenant by summary proceedings or otherwise.

The obligation of Tenant to pay rent for the remainder of the term shall continue after removal. Landlord may re-rent the premises and apply the rents, first to the cost of removing Tenant, including reasonable legal fees and court costs, next to the cost of refurbishing the space, last to the rent due by Tenant. Tenant shall remain liable for any deficiency. Landlord may re-rent the property for a lower rent and/or a longer term without releasing Tenant from its obligation to pay rent as specified herein.

27. Assignment. Tenant shall not assign its rights or obligations under this Lease to any party without the express written consent of Landlord. Landlord will not unreasonably withhold, condition or delay its consent without reason. If Landlord agrees to give its consent to the assignment, it may condition the consent on receiving a satisfactory financial statement from the assignee. Tenant shall provide Landlord with a fully executed copy of the assignment and all ancillary documents pertinent to the transfer. In the event of an assignment, Tenant shall not be released hereunder unless Landlord shall explicitly agree to such a release in writing.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties hereto have set their hands and seals the day and year first above written.

Chapter 25 ENVIRONMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

Part IV. FORMS

C. LEASE OF REAL ESTATE

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.128

FORM 25.128 Commercial lease--factory building--disclaimer of warranties by landlord about condition of building--provision allowing tenant to use stream on premises as a water source for manufacturing purposes--requirement that tenant surrender premises in as good condition as existed at commencement of lease--requirement for environmental bond or insurance policy

COMMENT

This is a lease of a factory building which the landlord acquired at a distress sale. Occasionally, when commercial real estate is put on the auction block pursuant to a sheriff's sale, potential purchasers of the property do not have the time to order a phase I environmental site assessment to ascertain whether the property has some serious environmental problem, such as contamination of its subsoil or ground water. In order to take advantage of the "bargain basement" price which a successful bidder will often receive when buying at a distress sale, he often must forego the type of thorough investigation of the past uses and current condition of the property which any other purchaser would insist upon. Instead, the successful bidder must rely upon a quick visual inspection of the property by an environmental consultant and (perhaps) a representation from the financial institution that the property is free of any serious environmental problems. In such event, the purchaser should purchase the property using a single purpose entity (a/k/a SPE) in order to make an attempt to shield the buyer's personal assets from liabilities associated with the property.

Accordingly, in this lease the landlord disclaims all warranties regarding the environmental state of the premises, the condition of the structure, and its fitness for the use to which the tenant intends to put the structure. If the property is plagued with an environmental problem requiring remediation, the tenant is responsible for all expenses in correcting the problem and making the property comply with all federal, state and local environmental laws.

Needless to say, these provisions are extremely favorable to the landlord and leave the tenant widely exposed to the danger of leasing property that is badly contaminated and very expensive to repair. Consequently, tenant's counsel should insist that the lease be made contingent upon the results of a phase I environmental site assessment that reveals no evidence of any serious environmental problem on the premises. An assessment may also be helpful to landlord. If the assessment indicates that the property is clear, it may be presumed that any subsequent contaminant discovered was caused by tenant. In addition, tenant's counsel should insist upon a rental fee that is below the market rate, since his client is assuming the danger of incurring potentially enormous remediation expenses if a major environmental problem is discovered during the lease term. Lastly, if the problem is significant, the tenant will want the ability to terminate the lease and walk from the property.

The parties have inserted into the lease a provision that allows the tenant to use the water from a stream on the premises during the manufacturing process. However, the tenant must first obtain any and all governmental permits required for such use. The tenant must also make certain that its use of the water strictly complies at all times with the governmental permits, including discharge permits.

Finally, the tenant is also required to obtain a bond or an "environmental insurance policy" to protect the landlord in the event that some negligent act or omission by the tenant results in the further contamination of the leased property. In such case, the bond or insurance policy provides a source of ready cash with which to finance the tenant's remediation efforts. The protection afforded by the bond or insurance policy is extremely important to the landlord, since without this safeguard the landlord must simply hope that the tenant will have adequate financial resources available in the event of an environmental mishap to cover the cost of remediation. If insurance is obtained, it is almost a certainty that the insurance company will require a comprehensive environmental assessment.

Notwithstanding the foregoing to the contrary, if a condition is discovered and in order to remediate such condition, the anticipated costs and expenses will exceed _____ Dollars ($ _____), then Tenant may immediately terminate this lease.

Prior to use, Tenant shall obtain such permits as are required. Tenant shall confine its use of the watercourse to the terms of said permits and comply fully with all applicable laws and regulations of any governmental authority with jurisdiction over the watercourse. Landlord's consent to Tenant's use of the watercourse shall not be construed as a statement by Landlord that such use is lawful.

7. Maintenance and Repair:

(a) Tenant shall take good care of the leased premises and shall, at Tenant's own cost and expense, make all interior repairs, alterations, decorations and improvements to the leased premises during the period covered by this Agreement. All improvements shall become the property of Landlord, except for removable trade fixtures and manufacturing equipment. Tenant shall repair any damage to the structure caused by the removal of trade fixtures and/or manufacturing equipment. Failure to remove such trade fixtures and manufacturing equipment by the end of the term shall cause said items to become the property of Landlord.

(b) The Landlord shall bear the entire expense of all structural maintenance and repairs (including, but not limited to, repair or replacement of heating and air conditioning equipment) but shall not be responsible for other repairs, alterations, decorations and improvements.

(c) All of the aforesaid repairs, alterations or improvements, whether by Landlord or Tenant, shall be accomplished promptly with first-class materials, in a good and workmanlike manner, in compliance with all applicable laws of all governmental authorities, and in a fashion that conforms to the building and its construction. Any repairs, alterations, decorations or improvements made by the Tenant shall be done only with prior written approval of Landlord, which approval shall not be unreasonably withheld. In the event that Tenant does not purchase the premises, but returns possession at the end of the term of this Lease Agreement, Tenant shall return the premises broom clean and in the same condition that existed at the commencement of this Agreement, reasonable wear and tear excepted.

8. Sublease/Assignment. The Tenant shall not assign this Agreement or sublet the subject premises, or any part thereof, without the Landlord's written consent. The Landlord's consent shall not be unreasonably withheld, conditioned or delayed.

9. Default. If the Tenant abandons or vacates the premises during the term of this Agreement, or if Tenant fails to pay the rent, or if Tenant violates any other provision of this Agreement, the Landlord or his duly-authorized representatives may re-enter the premises by summary proceedings or otherwise and remove all persons therefrom without being liable for prosecution. The Tenant hereby expressly waives its right to service of notice from Landlord of Landlord's intention to re-enter. Tenant shall remain responsible for all rent payments as they become due and payable under the terms of this lease. The Landlord may rent the premises on behalf of the Tenant. Without releasing Tenant from any liability, Landlord may rent the premises for a longer period of time than fixed in the original lease, or for a lower rental amount. Landlord shall apply any rent collected, first to the expense of obtaining possession, including court costs and reasonable legal fees, second to restoring the premises to a rentable condition, and then to the payment of the rent and any other charges which may be due from Tenant. Tenant shall remain liable for any deficiency.

10. Damage to Leased Premises. Tenant shall give Landlord notice of fire or other damage and of any dangerous or defective condition(s) on the leased premises. If the leased premises cannot be used because of fire or other damage, Tenant is not required to pay rent for the time the said premises are unusable. If only part of the leased premises cannot be used because of fire or other damage, Tenant shall pay rent for the usable part thereof. Landlord shall have the sole right to determine whether and which portion of the leased premises is unusable. Landlord shall only repair the damaged portion of the premises. Landlord shall not be required to repair or replace any equipment, fixtures, furnishings or decorations, unless originally installed by the Landlord. Landlord shall not be responsible for delays due to settling insurance claims, obtaining estimates, labor and supply problems, or any other cause not fully under Landlord's control.

If the fire or other damage is caused by an act of or by the neglect of Tenant or Tenant's employees, invitees or agents, then all repairs shall be made at Tenant's expense.

Landlord shall have the right to demolish or rebuild the leased premises if there is substantial damage thereto. Landlord may cancel this Agreement within _____ (_____) days after such substantial damage by giving Tenant notice of Landlord's intention to do so. This Agreement shall end _____ (_____) days after such cancellation notice to Tenant. Landlord shall have the sole right to determine whether substantial damage has occurred.

11. Non-waiver. The failure of the Landlord to insist upon strict performance of any of the terms, conditions and covenants herein shall not be deemed a waiver of any rights or remedies that the Landlord may have hereunder, and shall not be deemed a waiver of any subsequent breach by Tenant of the terms, conditions and covenants herein contained. This instrument may not be changed, modified, discharged or terminated orally.

12. Tenant's Further Responsibilities. Tenant shall be responsible for, and shall pay the costs and expenses arising from:

- (a) all utilities and utility bills, including gas, telephone service, electricity, water charges, and sewer fees;
- (b) garbage removal;
- (c) snow and ice removal;
- (d) interior cleaning and maintenance; and
- (e) the security system currently installed on the leased premises.

13. Insurance/Taxes:

(a) The Tenant, at its own cost, shall maintain liability and property damage insurance with a liability limit of at least _____ Dollars ($ _____) per claim, and a property damage limit of not less than _____ Dollars ($ _____) per claim, insuring against all liability of the Tenant and its authorized representatives arising out of, and in connection with, Tenant's use or occupancy of the premises. Tenant shall maintain replacement cost casualty insurance on the building. The Landlord shall be named as an additional insured. Tenant shall provide Landlord with a certificate of insurance demonstrating the existence of the above-required coverage either prior to, or upon taking possession of, the leased premises. Failure to do so shall constitute a default under this Agreement.

(b) Tenant shall pay all real property and school taxes assessed against the leased premises during the term of this Agreement.

(c) Tenant shall provide to Landlord a bond or certificate of insurance which shall protect Landlord from any loss arising out of any act or omission of Tenant, its agents, employees or invitees, which act or omission causes an adverse environmental impact on the subject premises. The insurance or bond shall be in at least the sum of _____ Dollars ($ _____). If Tenant obtains an insurance policy, the insurer shall be required, under the terms of said policy, to provide notice to Landlord at least _____ (_____) days prior to cancellation. In the event Tenant is unable to secure such a bond or insurance, Tenant may provide a substitute means of protecting Landlord, which must be acceptable to Landlord.

14. Security Deposit. The Tenant has this day deposited with the Landlord the sum of _____ Dollars ($ _____) as security for the full performance by Tenant of the obligation to make rental payments under this Agreement. Said sum shall be returned to the Tenant upon the expiration of the term herein, provided the Tenant has fully performed the conditions of this Lease.

15. Miscellaneous:

(a) This Agreement contains the entire understanding of the parties, and there have been no representations made which are not contained herein.

(b) This Agreement may only be modified by a written amendment signed by both parties. An oral modification shall not be binding on either party.

(c) This Agreement shall be construed in accordance with the laws of the State of _____ [state].

(d) Any failure by either party to enforce any right arising hereunder shall not be deemed a waiver of such right.

(e) The Tenant agrees that the Landlord, the Landlord's agents and other representatives shall have the right to enter into and upon the leased premises, or any part thereof, at any reasonable time. Tenant may change the locks on the premises, but must provide Landlord with a key within _____ (_____) hours of changing the locks.

(f) Any notice required to be given to Landlord shall be in writing and sent certified mail, return receipt requested, to _____ [name] at the following address: _____ [address]. C. LEASE OF REAL ESTATE

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.129

FORM 25.129 Commercial lease--space in office building--tenant is required to comply with environmental laws and orders relating to the leased premises

COMMENT

This is a comprehensive lease for the leasing of space within an office building. It contains many provisions, most of which are not related to any environmental issues. The lease is characterized as a landlord's lease. A sophisticated tenant should request a significant number of changes to the lease. The lease does not require the tenant to comply with all laws affecting the use and occupancy of the leased premises. Specifically, the tenant agrees that it will comply fully and promptly with all environmental laws, regulations, and orders issued by any federal, state, county or local governmental authority.

FORM

1. Parties. This Lease, dated for reference purposes only on _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year], is made by and between _____ [name] ("Landlord"), and _____ [name] ("Tenant").

3. Demise and Term. Landlord hereby leases the Premises to Tenant and Tenant hereby leases the Premises from Landlord, subject to all of the terms, covenants and conditions in this Lease. The Premises are leased for the Lease Term, which, subject to Section 4, below, shall commence on the Scheduled Commencement Date and shall expire on the Expiration Date, unless sooner terminated pursuant to the provisions of this Lease.

4. Possession.

4.1 Delay in Delivery of Possession. If Landlord cannot deliver possession of the Premises to Tenant on the Scheduled Commencement Date for any reason, this Lease shall not be void or voidable, nor shall Landlord be liable to Tenant for any Liabilities resulting therefrom, and Tenant waives the provisions of any Laws to the contrary. In this case, the Lease Term and the regular installments of Monthly Rent and additional rent payable by Tenant shall not commence until Landlord delivers possession of the premises. If Landlord delivers and Tenant accepts possession of the Premises prior to the Scheduled Commencement Date, the Lease Term shall commence on the date Tenant accepts possession and all of the terms, covenants and conditions of this Lease, including, without limitations, Tenant's obligations to pay the Monthly Rent and additional rent hereunder, shall commence as of such date. If the Lease Term commences earlier or later than the Scheduled Commencement Date, this Lease shall nevertheless expire on the Expiration Date, unless sooner terminated pursuant to the terms hereof.

4.2 Delays Caused by Tenant. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in Section 4.1, if Landlord's failure to deliver possession of the premises to Tenant on the Scheduled Commencement Date results from Tenant's (or its agents' or employees') acts or omission, the Monthly Rent and additional rent payable by Tenant shall commence on the date when Landlord would have delivered possession of the Premises but for such acts or omissions.

4.3 Commencement Date. The term "Commencement Date" means the Scheduled Commencement Date or, if different, the date when the Lease Term commences. Upon Landlord's request, Tenant shall confirm the Commencement Date in writing, but Tenant's failure to do so shall not affect the commencement of the Lease Term.

5. Rent.

5.1 Monthly Rent. Tenant shall pay to Landlord as rent for the Premises a monthly rent (the "Monthly Rent") equal to the Initial Monthly Rent, adjusted periodically as set forth in Section 5.2. The Monthly Rent shall be payable in advance on or before the first day of the first full calendar month of the Lease Term (the "First Month") and on or before the first day of each successive calendar month thereafter during the Lease Term, except that the Monthly Rent for the First Month (and for the period [if any] between the Scheduled Commencement Date and the First Month) shall be paid upon the execution of this Lease. The Monthly Rent for any period during the Lease Term which is for less than _____ (_____) month(s) shall be prorated based on a _____ (_____) -day month. The Monthly Rent and all other rent hereunder shall be paid without prior notice or demand, without deduction or offset, in lawful money of the United States of America which shall be legal tender at the time of payment, at the office of the Building or to another person or at another place as Landlord may from time to time designate in writing. The term "additional rent" means all other amounts payable by Tenant hereunder (whether or not designated as additional rent).

5.2 Adjustment of Monthly Rent.

(a) The Monthly Rent shall be increased on the first calendar anniversary of the Commencement Date and on each and every calendar anniversary of the Commencement Date thereafter in proportion to the increase in the Index (as defined below) which has occurred between the month immediately preceding the month in which the Scheduled Commencement Date occurs (the "Base CPI Month") and the month immediately preceding the month in which the Monthly Rent is to be increased (a "Comparison CPI Month"). Landlord shall notify Tenant of each increase by delivering a written statement setting forth the Index for the Base CPI Month, the Index for the applicable Comparison CPI Month, the percentage increase between those two Indices, and the new Monthly Rent payable by Tenant. The Monthly Rent shall not be reduced from the last previous adjusted Monthly Rent by reason of any decrease in the Index. If Landlord's notice is given after the effective date of an increase, Tenant shall nevertheless be obligated to pay the new Monthly Rent from its effective date until the next periodic increase. In such event, within _____ (_____) days of Landlord's notice, Tenant shall pay Landlord the additional Monthly Rent for the period between the effective date of the increase and Landlord's notice, and thereafter shall pay the new Monthly Rent on or before the first day of each month as provided in Section 5.1.

(b) The term "Index" means the United States Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics, Consumer Price Index for all Urban Consumers (all items for the _____ Statistical Area on the basis of _____ [year] = 100. If the format or components of the Index are materially changed after the execution of this Lease, Landlord shall substitute an index which is published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics or similar agency and which in Landlord's judgment, is equivalent to the Index in effect on the date of this Lease. Landlord shall notify Tenant of the substituted index, which shall be used to calculate the increase in the Monthly Rent.

6. Security Deposit. Upon the execution of this Lease, Tenant shall deposit the Security Deposit with Landlord. The Security Deposit shall be held by Landlord as security for the performance of all of Tenant's obligations during the Lease Term. Each time the Monthly Rent is increased, Tenant shall deposit additional cash with Landlord sufficient to increase the Security Deposit to an amount which bears the same proportion to the increased Monthly Rent as the initial Security Deposit bore to the Initial Monthly Rent. Upon any default by Tenant under this Lease, Landlord may, but shall not be obligated to, use, apply or retain all or any part of the Security Deposit for the payment of any rent in default, or any other Liabilities which Landlord may incur as a result of or in connection with Tenant's default. If any portion of the Security Deposit is so used or applied, Tenant shall, within _____ (_____) days after written demand therefor, deposit cash with Landlord in an amount sufficient to restore the Security Deposit to its previous amount. Landlord shall not be required to keep the Security Deposit separate from its general funds, and Tenant shall not be entitled to receive interest on the Security Deposit. If Tenant complies with all of the provisions of this Lease, the unused portion of the Security Deposit shall be returned to Tenant (or, at Tenant's option, to the last assignee of Tenant's interest hereunder) within _____ (_____) days after the expiration or sooner termination of the Lease Term and the surrender of possession of the Premises to Landlord in the condition required hereby.

7. Operating Expenses.

7.1 Definitions. As used in this Lease, the following terms have the meanings set forth below:

(a) Comparison year. Each calendar year after the Base Year, all or any portion of which falls within the Lease Term.

(b) Real property taxes. Any fee, license fee, license tax, business license fee, commercial rental tax, levy, charge, assessment, penalty or tax imposed by any taxing authority against the Land or the Building; any tax on Landlord's right to receive, or the receipt of, rent or income from the Land or the Building; any tax or charge for fire protection, streets, sidewalks, road maintenance, refuse or other services provided to the Land or the Building; any charge or fee replacing any tax previously included within this definition. Real Property Taxes do not include Landlord's federal or state net income, franchise, inheritance, gift or estate taxes.

(c) Operating expenses. All costs and expenses of operating, maintaining and repairing the Building and the Land, including, but not limited to: Real Property Taxes; water and sewer charges; insurance premiums for all insurance policies deemed necessary by Landlord; deductible amounts under insurance policies; janitorial services; wages of Landlord's employees engaged in the operation, maintenance or repair of the Building or the Land, including all customary employee benefits, Worker's Compensation and payroll taxes; management fees, or, if no managing agent is retained for the Building, a sum in lieu thereof which is not in excess of the prevailing rate for management services charged by professional management companies for the operation of similar buildings; legal, accounting and other consulting fees; the cost of air conditioning, heating, ventilation, electricity, water and other services and utilities; elevator maintenance; capital improvements and replacements to all or any portion of the Building and the Land made after completion of the Building, appropriately amortized over the useful life of such improvements; all costs and expenses incurred by Landlord and interest on any funds borrowed to pay the cost of any capital improvements as a result of or in order to comply with any Laws, including, but not limited to, Laws pertaining to energy, natural resources conservation, safety or environmental protection; supplies, materials, equipment and tools; and maintenance and repair of all parking and common areas. Operating Expenses do not include depreciation on the existing Building and improvements or equipment therein, loan payments (except as expressly provided above), executive salaries or real estate brokers' commissions.

7.2 Payment for Increases in Operating Expenses. If the Operating Expenses paid or incurred by Landlord in any Comparison Year increase over the Operating Expenses paid or incurred for the Base Year, Tenant shall pay, as additional rent, Tenant's Share of the increase in the manner set forth in this Section. If, during any period in a Comparison Year, less than 95% of the rentable area of the Building is occupied, the Operating Expenses for that Comparison Year shall be adjusted to what the Operating Expenses would have been if 95% of the rentable area of the Building had been occupied throughout that Comparison Year. Tenant's Share of increases in Operating Expenses shall be prorated for any partial Comparison Year which falls within the Lease Term.

7.3 Manner of Payment. Landlord shall deliver to Tenant a statement showing Landlord's reasonable estimate of the Operating Expenses for each Comparison Year and the amount of Tenant's Share of any increase in Operating Expenses based on such estimate. Commencing as of the first day of each Comparison Year, Tenant shall pay to Landlord, at the times and in the manner provided herein for the payment of Monthly Rent, one-twelfth (1/12) of Tenant's Share of any increases as shown by Landlord's statement. If Landlord's statement is furnished after January 1 of a Comparison Year, then on or before the first day of the first calendar month following Tenant's receipt of Landlord's statement, in addition to the monthly installment of Tenant's Share of any increases due on that date, Tenant shall pay the amount of Tenant's Share of any increases for each calendar month or fraction thereof that has already elapsed in such Comparison Year.

7.4 Final Statements. After the end of each Comparison Year (including the Comparison Year in which the Lease Term terminates), Landlord shall deliver to Tenant a final statement of the actual Operating Expenses for such Comparison Year. Within _____ (_____) days of delivery of each final statement, Tenant shall pay Landlord the amount due for Tenant's Share of any increases in the Operating Expenses. Tenant shall have _____ (_____) days after delivery of Landlord's final statement to object in writing to the accuracy of the statement. If Tenant does not object within such _____ (_____) -day period, Landlord's final statement shall be conclusive and binding on Tenant. Objections by Tenant shall not excuse or abate Tenant's obligation to make the payments required under this Section 7.4 (or under Section 7.3) pending the resolution of Tenant's objection. Any credit due Tenant for overpayment of Tenant's share of any increases in the Operating Expenses shall be credited against the installments of Monthly Rent next coming due. However, overpayments for the Comparison Year in which the Lease Term terminates shall be retained by Landlord to increase the Security Deposit, and shall be refunded, used, applied or retained as set forth in Section 6, above.

8. Use of Premises.

8.1 Permitted Use. Tenant shall use the premises only for Permitted Use and shall not use or permit the Premises to be used for any other purpose.

8.2 Restrictions on Use. Tenant shall not do or permit anything to be done in or about the Premises nor bring or keep anything therein which will: (a) increase the existing rate or, cause the cancellation of or otherwise adversely affect any casualty or other insurance for the Building or any part thereof or any of its contents; (b) impair the proper and economic maintenance, operation and repair of the Building or any portion thereof; (c) obstruct or interfere with the rights of other tenants or occupants of the Building or injure or annoy them; or (d) cause any nuisance in or about the Premises or the Building. Tenant shall not use or allow any part of the Premises to be used for the storage, manufacturing or sale of food or beverages or for the manufacture, retail sale or auction of merchandise, goods or property of any kind, or as a school or classroom, or for any unlawful or objectionable purpose. Tenant shall not commit or allow to be committed any waste to the Premises or the Building.

8.3 Compliance with Laws. Tenant shall not use the premises or permit anything to be done in or about the Premises, the Building or the land which will in any way conflict with any law, statute, ordinance, code, rule, regulation, requirement, license, permit, certificate, judgment, decree, order or direction of any governmental or quasi-governmental authority, agency, department, board, panel or court (singularly and collectively "Laws"). Tenant shall, at its expense, promptly comply with all Laws and with the requirements of any board of fire insurance underwriters or other similar bodies now or hereafter constituted, relating to or affecting the condition, use or occupancy of the Premises. Tenant shall not be required to make structural changes to the Premises unless they arise or are required because of or in connection with Tenant's specific use of the Premises, or the type of business conducted by Tenant in the Premises, or Tenant's Alterations or Tenant's acts or omissions. Tenant shall obtain and maintain in effect during the Lease Term all licenses and permits required for the proper and lawful conduct of Tenant's business in the Premises, and shall at all times comply with such licenses and permits. The judgment of any court of competent jurisdiction or the admission of Tenant in any action or proceeding (whether Landlord is a party or not) that Tenant has violated any Laws shall be conclusive of that fact as between Landlord and Tenant.

8.4 Compliance with all Environmental Laws, Regulations, Policies, Orders, etc. Tenant agrees that it will comply fully and promptly with any and all environmental laws, regulations, statutes, ordinances, policies and orders issued by any federal, state, county or local governmental authority; that it will obtain, maintain in full force and effect, and strictly comply with any and all governmental permits, approvals and authorizations necessary for the conduct of its business operations; that it will supply Landlord with copies of any such permits, approvals and authorizations; that it will promptly notify Landlord of the expiration or revocation of any such permits, approvals and authorizations; and that it will promptly notify Landlord and supply Landlord with a copy of any notice of violation of any environmental law, regulation, statute, ordinance, policy or order Tenant receives.

9. Alterations and Additions.

9.1 Landlord's Consent.

(a) Tenant shall not make or permit to be made any alterations, additions or improvements (singularly and collectively "Alterations") to or of the Building or the Premises or any part thereof without the prior written consent of Landlord in each instance. However, Landlord's consent shall not be required for minor decorations of the Premises such as wall coverings and wall hangings, built-in cabinetry and movable partitions, nor for the installation of furnishings and, subject to the provisions of Section 11.2, office equipment.

(b) Landlord will not unreasonably withhold its consent to any Alterations provided and upon the condition that all of the following conditions shall be satisfied: (i) the Alterations do not affect the outside appearance of the Building; (ii) the Alterations are nonstructural and do not impair the strength of the Building or any part thereof; (iii) the Alterations are to the interior of the Premises and do not affect any part of the Building outside of the Premises; (iv) the Alterations do not affect the proper functioning of the heating, ventilating and air conditioning ("HVAC"), mechanical, electrical, sanitary or other utilities, systems and services of the Building, or increase the usage thereof by Tenant; (v) Landlord shall have approved the final plans and specifications for the Alterations and all contractors who will perform them; (vi) Tenant pays to Landlord (A) a fee for Landlord's indirect costs, field supervision or coordination in connection with the Alterations equal to _____ percent (_____ %) of the estimated cost of the Alterations, and (B) the reasonable costs and expenses actually incurred by Landlord in reviewing Tenant's plans and specifications and inspecting the Alterations to determine whether they are being performed in accordance with the approved plans and specifications and in compliance with Laws, including, without limitation, the fees of any architect or engineer employed by Landlord for such purpose; (vii) before proceeding with any Alteration which will cost more than _____ Dollars ($_____) (exclusive of the cost of items constituting Tenant's Property, as defined in Section 9.2), Tenant obtains and delivers to Landlord, at Landlord's option, either: (A) a performance bond and a labor and materials payment bond for the benefit of Landlord, issued by a corporate surety licensed to do business in California, each in an amount equal to _____ percent (_____ %) of the estimated cost of the Alterations and in form satisfactory to Landlord, or (B) such other security as shall be reasonably satisfactory to Landlord. Unless all of the foregoing conditions are satisfied, Landlord shall have the right to withhold its consent to the Alterations in Landlord's sole and absolute discretion.

(c) Not less than _____ (_____) days nor more than _____ (_____) days prior to commencement of any Alterations, Tenant shall notify Landlord of the work commencement date so that Landlord may post notices of nonresponsibility about the Premises. All Alterations must comply with all Laws, the other terms of this Lease, and the final plans and specifications approved by Landlord, and Tenant shall fully and promptly comply with and observe the rules and regulations of Landlord then in force with respect to the making of Alterations. Landlord's review and approval of Tenant's plans and specifications are solely for Landlord's benefit. Landlord shall have no duty toward Tenant, nor shall Landlord be deemed to have made any representation or warranty to Tenant, with respect to the safety, adequacy, correctness, efficiency or compliance with Laws of the design of the Alterations, the plans and specifications therefor, or any other matter regarding the Alterations. If attached, that certain Agreement for Completion of Premises dated _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year], by and between Landlord and Tenant, shall further govern each party's rights and responsibilities regarding Alterations.

9.2 Ownership and Surrender of Alterations. Upon their installation, all Alterations, including, but not limited to, wall covering, paneling and built-in cabinetry, but excluding movable furniture, trade fixtures and office equipment ("Tenant's Property"), shall become a part of the realty and belong to Landlord and shall be surrendered with the Premises. However, upon the expiration or sooner termination of the Lease Term, Tenant shall, upon written demand by Landlord, at Tenant's expense, immediately remove any Alterations made by Tenant which are designated by Landlord to be removed and repair any damage to the Premises caused by such removal.

9.3 Liens. Tenant shall pay when due all claims for labor, materials and services furnished by or at the request of Tenant or Tenant's Affiliates. Tenant shall keep the Premises, the Building and the Land free from all liens, security interests and encumbrances (including, without limitation, all mechanic's liens and stop notices) created as a result of or arising in connection with the Alterations or any other labor, services or materials provided for or at the request of Tenant or Tenant's Affiliates, or any other act or omission of Tenant or Tenant's Affiliates, or persons claiming through or under them. (Such liens, security interests and encumbrances singularly and collectively are herein called "Liens.") Tenant shall not use materials in connection with the Alterations that are subject to any Liens. Tenant shall indemnify Landlord and Landlord's Affiliates for, and hold Landlord and Landlord's Affiliates harmless from and against: (a) all Liens; (b) the removal of all Liens and any actions or proceedings related thereto; and (c) all Liabilities incurred by Landlord or Landlord's Affiliates in connection with the foregoing. If Tenant fails to keep the Premises, the Building and the land free from Liens, then, in addition to any other rights and remedies available to Landlord, Landlord may take any action necessary to discharge such Liens, including, but not limited to, payment to the claimant on whose behalf the Lien was filed. Tenant shall indemnify Landlord for, and hold Landlord harmless from and against, all Liabilities so incurred by Landlord, without regard to any defense or offset that Tenant may have had against the claimant. Neither Landlord's curative action nor the reimbursement of Landlord by Tenant shall cure Tenant's default in failing to keep the Premises, the Building and the Land free from Liens.

9.4 Additional Requirements. Alterations shall comply with all Laws. Tenant, at its expense, shall obtain all necessary permits and certificates for the commencement and performance of Alterations and for final approval thereof upon completion, and shall cause the Alterations to be performed in compliance therewith and with all applicable insurance requirements, and in a good, first-class and workmanlike manner. Tenant, at its expense, shall diligently cause the cancellation or discharge of all notices of violation arising from or otherwise connected with Alterations, or any other work, labor, services or materials done for or supplied to Tenant or Tenant's Affiliates, or by any person claiming through or under Tenant or Tenant's Affiliates. Alterations shall be performed so as not to interfere with any other tenant in the Building, cause labor disharmony therein, or delay or impose any additional expenses on Landlord in the construction, maintenance, repair or operation of the Building. Throughout the performance of the Alterations, Tenant, at its expense, shall carry, or cause to be carried, in addition to the insurance described in Section 13, Workers' Compensation insurance in statutory limits and such other insurance as Landlord may reasonably require, with insurers reasonably satisfactory to Landlord. Tenant shall furnish Landlord with satisfactory evidence that such insurance is in effect at or before the commencement of the Alterations and, upon request, at reasonable intervals thereafter until completion of the Alterations.

10. Repairs.

10.1 Condition of Premises. The premises shall be delivered to Tenant in an "as is" and "all faults" condition and Landlord shall have no obligation whatsoever to alter, remodel, improve, repair, decorate or paint the Premises or any part thereof either prior to or during the Lease Term except to the extent expressly provided herein. By accepting possession of the Premises, Tenant shall be deemed to have acknowledged that the Premises are suitable for its purposes and in good condition and repair. Subject to Section 10.2, Tenant, at its expense, shall keep the Premises and every part thereof in good condition and repair and shall, upon the expiration or sooner termination of the Lease Term, surrender the Premises to Landlord broom clean and in good condition and repair, ordinary wear and tear excepted. Tenant acknowledges and agrees that it has inspected, or prior to the Commencement Date will inspect, the Premises and that Tenant is not relying on any representations or warranties made by Landlord or Landlord's Affiliates regarding the premises, the Building or the Land except as may be expressly set forth herein.

10.2 Landlord's Obligation to Repair. Subject to Section 14, Landlord shall repair and maintain the common areas and the structural portions of the Building, including, but not limited to, the structural portions of the roof, the foundations, exterior loadbearing walls, and the basic HVAC, mechanical, electrical and plumbing systems initially installed by Landlord in the Building. However, if the repair or maintenance is caused in whole or in part by the act, neglect, fault or omission of Tenant or Tenant's Affiliates, or by Tenant's Alterations, Tenant immediately shall pay for such repair or maintenance and shall indemnify Landlord for and hold Landlord harmless from and against all other Liabilities incurred by Landlord in connection therewith. Landlord shall have a reasonable time after written notice from Tenant to perform necessary repairs or maintenance. Tenant waives all rights granted under Law to make repairs at Landlord's expense.

11. Services and Utilities.

11.1 Landlord's Services. Subject to the rules and regulations of the Building, Landlord shall furnish to the Premises electricity for normal office lighting and fractional horsepower office machines, water, plumbing and HVAC required in Landlord's judgment for the comfortable use and occupancy of the Premises, and janitorial services, as hereinafter provided. Landlord shall also maintain and keep lighted the common stairs, entries and restrooms in the Building.

11.2 Restrictions on Use. Without the prior written consent of Landlord in each instance, Tenant shall not use or install any apparatus, device or equipment in the Premises, including, but not limited to, electronic data processing machines, punch card machines and machines which will require a dedicated circuit or which will in any way increase the amount of water, electricity or HVAC normally furnished for similar space in the Building. Landlord may condition its consent on, among other things, the installation of additional risers, feeders and other appropriate equipment as well as meters in the Premises to measure the amount of water and electricity consumed. Tenant shall pay to Landlord on demand the cost of: (a) purchasing, installing, maintaining and repairing such equipment and/or meters and units; (b) all water and electricity consumed as shown by said meters, at the rates charged by the local utility company; and (c) any additional expense incurred in connection with the foregoing. If a separate meter is not installed, the cost for any excess water and electricity will be established by an estimate made by a utility company or electrical engineer selected by Landlord. Tenant shall not connect any apparatus, device or equipment except through existing electrical outlets in the Premises.

11.3 Janitorial Services. The janitorial services to be provided by Landlord to Tenant shall be provided _____ (_____) days a week, Monday through Friday (except for holidays). Janitorial services shall be those customarily furnished for similar buildings in the general vicinity of the Building.

11.4 Hours of Operation. HVAC for the Premises shall be provided five (5) days a week, Monday through Friday, from 8:00 o'clock a.m. to 6:00 o'clock p.m. (except for holidays) and Saturdays from 8:00 o'clock a.m. to 12 noon and shall be available at all other reasonable times to service Tenant's business in the premises.

12. Entry by Landlord.

Landlord shall, at all times, have the right to enter the Premises in order to: inspect the Premises; post notices of nonresponsibility; show the Premises to prospective purchasers, lenders or tenants; perform its obligations and exercise its rights hereunder; and make repairs, improvements, alterations or additions to the Premises or the Building or any portion thereof as Landlord deems necessary or desirable and to do all things necessary in connection therewith, including, but not limited to, erecting scaffolding and other necessary structures. Landlord shall retain (or be given by Tenant) keys to unlock all of the doors to or within the Premises, excluding doors to Tenant's vaults and files. Landlord shall have the right to use any and all means necessary to obtain entry to the Premises in an emergency. Landlord's entry to the Premises shall not, under any circumstances, be deemed to be a forcible or unlawful entry into, or a detainer of, the Premises, or an eviction of Tenant from the Premises or any portion thereof.

13. Tenant's Insurance.

13.1 Casualty Insurance. At all times during the Lease Term, Tenant, at its expense, shall maintain in effect policies of casualty insurance covering: (a) all alterations made by Tenant and all leasehold improvements; and (b) all of Tenant's Property and other personalty from time to time in, on or about the Premises, in an amount not less than their full replacement cost (without deduction for depreciation) from time to time during the term of this Lease. Such policies shall contain clauses providing that the amount of coverage shall be increased automatically by _____ percent (_____ %) at the end of each calendar quarter, which rate of increase may be revised from time to time at Landlord's request. Such policies shall provide for protection against any perils normally included within the classification of "All Risks," and shall contain endorsement covering: demolition and increased cost of construction; water damage, vandalism and malicious mischief; liability for changes in Laws. The proceeds of such insurance shall be used for the repair or replacement of the property so incurred, except that upon termination of this Lease following a casualty as set forth herein, the proceeds applicable to the items described in clause (a), above, shall be paid to Landlord, and the proceeds applicable to the items described in clause (b), above, shall be paid to Tenant.

13.2 Public Liability and Property Damage Insurance. At all times during the Lease Term, Tenant, at its expense, shall maintain Comprehensive General Liability Insurance (including property damage) with respect to the ownership, maintenance, use, operation and condition of the Premises and the business conducted therein. Such insurance shall at all times have limits of not less than _____ Dollars ($ _____) combined single limit per occurrence for bodily injury, personal injury and property damage liability. At landlord's request, these limits shall be increased from time to time during the Lease Term (but not more often than once every two years) to such higher limits as Landlord or its insurance consultant believe are necessary to protect Landlord. The amount of such insurance shall not limit Tenant's liability nor relieve Tenant of any obligation hereunder. Each policy shall contain cross liability endorsements, if applicable, and shall insure Tenant's performance of the indemnity provisions contained in Section 22.2 and elsewhere in this Lease and any other obligations of Tenant to Landlord hereunder.

13.3 Policy Requirements.

(a) All insurance required to be carried by Tenant hereunder shall be issued by responsible insurance companies, qualified to do business in the State of _____ [state], approved by Landlord and, if required, by Landlord's Mortgagee. Copies of all policies and certificates therefor shall be delivered to Landlord at least _____ (_____) days prior to Tenant's occupancy of the Premises. Each policy shall provide that it may not be cancelled or modified except after _____ (_____) days' prior written notice to Landlord and Landlord's Mortgagee named as an additional insured or loss payee thereunder. Tenant shall furnish Landlord with renewals or "binders" of each policy, together with evidence of payment of the premium therefor, at least _____ (_____) days prior to expiration. Tenant shall have the right to provide insurance coverage pursuant to blanket policies obtained by Tenant if the blanket policies expressly afford coverage as required by this Lease. Each policy shall provide that all losses shall be settled in the name of Landlord (or, if required, Landlord's Mortgagee) only.

(b) Landlord and, if required, Landlord's Mortgagee shall be named as additional insureds in each insurance policy and, if requested by Landlord, they also shall be named as loss payees. The Comprehensive General Liability Insurance shall: apply severally to Landlord, Landlord's Mortgagee and Tenant; cover each of them as if separate policies had been issued to each of them; not contain provisions affecting any rights which any of them would have had as claimants if not named as insureds; be primary insurance and not considered contributory, with any other valid and collectible insurance available to Landlord and Landlord's Mortgagee constituting excess insurance; and be endorsed as necessary to cover the foregoing requirements.

(c) Each policy of All Risk Coverage which Tenant obtains for the premises, and which Landlord obtains for the Building, shall include a clause or endorsement denying the insurer any right of subrogation against the other party hereto to the extent that rights have been waived by the insured party prior to the occurrence of injury or loss. Landlord and Tenant each waive any rights of recovery against the other for injury or loss due to hazards covered by its own insurance, to the extent of the injury or loss covered thereby.

13.4 Tenant's Failure to Deliver Policies. If Tenant fails to deliver copies of the insurance policies and evidence of payment therefor within the time required pursuant to Section 13.3, Landlord may, but shall not be obligated to, obtain the required insurance, and the cost thereof, together with an administrative fee of _____ Dollars ($_____), shall be payable by Tenant to Landlord on demand. Nothing in this Section shall be deemed to be a waiver of any rights or remedies available to Landlord under this Lease or at law or in equity if Tenant fails to obtain and deliver the required insurance policies and evidence of payment.

14. Damage or Destruction; Eminent Domain.

14.1 Landlord's Restoration. If the Building or the Premises are partially damaged or totally destroyed by fire or other casualty, and if this Lease is not terminated as provided in this Section, Landlord shall repair the damage and restore or rebuild the Building or the Premises (except for Tenant's Property and leasehold improvements which are above the standard of the Building) after Landlord receives notice of the damage or destruction and Landlord receives substantially all of the insurance proceeds receivable on account of the casualty. However, Landlord shall not be required to spend amounts in excess of the insurance proceeds actually received for such repair, restoration or rebuilding. Subject to Section 22, Landlord shall attempt to make any required repairs or restoration promptly and so as not to interfere unreasonably with Tenant's use and occupancy of the Premises, but Landlord shall not be obligated to perform such work on an overtime or premium-pay basis.

14.2 Rent Abatement. Subject to Section 14.3, if, in Landlord's sole judgment, all or part of the Premises are rendered completely or partially untenantable on account of fire or other casualty, or if damage by fire or other casualty to the Building deprives Tenant of access to the Premises for more than _____ (_____) consecutive days, the Monthly Rent shall be abated in the proportion that the rentable area of the untenantable portion of the premises bears to the total Rentable Area of the Premises. Such abatement shall commence on the date of the damage or destruction and shall continue until the Premises have been substantially repaired and Tenant has reasonable access to the Premises. However, if Tenant reoccupies the damaged portion of the Premises prior to the date that the Premises are substantially repaired, the Monthly Rent allocable to the reoccupied portion shall be payable by Tenant from the date of such occupancy in the proportion that the rentable area of the reoccupied portion of the Premises bears to the total Rentable Area of the Premises.

14.3 Exception to Abatement. Monthly Rent shall not be abated or reduced if: (a) the Premises or a portion thereof are rendered untenantable due to damage or loss of access for a period of _____ (_____) consecutive days or less; or (b) Landlord provides other space in the Building reasonably suited for the temporary conduct of Tenant's business (but Landlord shall have no obligation to provide such other space); or (c) because of acts or omissions of Tenant or Tenant's Affiliates either (i) Landlord (or any Landlord's Mortgagee) is unable to collect all of the insurance proceeds (including, without limitation, rent insurance proceeds) for damage or destruction of the Premises or the Building, or (ii) the Premises or the Building was damaged or destroyed or rendered completely or partially untenantable. The collection of rent by Landlord under the circumstances described in clause (c), above, shall not preclude Landlord from seeking damages from Tenant or exercising any other rights and remedies if may have under this Lease or at law or in equity.

14.4 Election to Terminate. Landlord may terminate this Lease upon written notice to Tenant if: (a) the Building or the Premises are substantially or totally destroyed or, in Landlord's sole judgment, rendered untenantable by fire or other casualty or any other cause; or (b) the Building is damaged or rendered untenantable (whether or not the Premises are damaged or destroyed or rendered untenantable) so that its repair or restoration requires the expenditure (as estimated by a reputable contractor or architect designated by Landlord) of more than _____ percent (_____ %) of the full insurable value of the Building immediately prior to the casualty; or (c) less than _____ (_____) years remains in the Lease Term at the time of the damage or destruction or events which render the Building or the Premises untenantable and the time necessary to repair or restore the Building or the Premises would exceed _____ (_____) days (as estimated by a reputable contractor or architect designated by Landlord); or (d) Landlord would be required under Section 14.2 to abate or reduce the Monthly Rent for a period in excess of _____ (_____) months if repairs or restoration were undertaken. If Landlord elects to terminate this Lease, its notice of termination shall be given within _____ (_____) days after the date of the damage, destruction or events causing untenantability and this Lease shall terminate on the date specified in such notice.

14.5 Eminent Domain. Landlord may terminate this Lease upon written notice to Tenant if _____ percent (_____ %) or more of either the Premises, the Building or the Land is condemned, taken or appropriated by any public or quasi-public authority under the power of eminent domain, policy power or otherwise (or in the event of a sale in lieu thereof). Whether or not this Lease is so terminated, Landlord shall be entitled to any and all income, rent, award, or interest thereon which may be paid or made in connection with the taking or appropriation, and Tenant shall have no claim against Landlord for the value of any unexpired term of this Lease. If Landlord elects to terminate this Lease, its notice of termination shall be given within _____ (_____) days after the taking or appropriation. If such notice is not given or if Landlord notifies Tenant of Landlord's election not to terminate, this Lease shall continue in full force and effect, except that the Monthly Rent shall be reduced in the proportion that the rentable floor area of the Premises which is taken bears to the total Rentable Area of the Premises. Nothing contained in this Section shall prevent Tenant from bringing a separate action or proceeding for compensation for any of Tenant's Property taken and Tenant's moving expenses.

14.6 Business Interruption. Landlord shall not incur any Liabilities of any type to Tenant or Tenant's Affiliates arising from or in connection with any damage or destruction of the Premises, the Building or the Land, or any taking or appropriation thereof, or any repairs or restoration in connection therewith, nor shall Tenant have any right to terminate this Lease as a result thereof. However, in such event, Monthly Rent shall be abated if and to the extent that abatement is allowed pursuant to this Section.

14.7 Waiver. Tenant waives the application of any Laws which are contrary to the provisions of this Section in connection with any damage, destruction, condemnation, taking or appropriation (or sale in lieu thereof) of all or any portion of the Premises, the Building or the Land.

15. Assignment and Subletting.

15.1 Landlord's Consent Required. Tenant shall not voluntarily, involuntarily or by operation of any Laws sell, convey, mortgage, assign, sublet or otherwise transfer or encumber all or any part of Tenant's interest in this Lease or the Premises without Landlord's prior written consent in each instance which consent may be withheld in Landlord's sole and absolute discretion except as otherwise provided in this Section, and any attempt to do so without this consent shall be null and void.

15.2 Landlord's Right to Terminate Lease. If Tenant desires to assign its interest in this Lease or to sublease all or any part of the Premises, Tenant shall notify Landlord in writing. This notice shall be accompanied by: (a) a statement setting forth the name and business of the proposed assignee or subtenant; (b) a copy of the proposed assignment or sublease (and any collateral agreements) setting forth all of the terms and the financial details of the sublease or assignment (including, without limitation, the term, the rent and any security deposit, "Key money", and amounts payable for Tenant's Property and the common use of any personnel or equipment); (c) financial statements certified by an independent certified public accountant and other information requested by Landlord relating to the proposed assignee or subtenant; and (d) and other information concerning the proposed assignment or sublease which Landlord may reasonably request. If Tenant proposes to assign this Lease or sublet all or substantially all of the Premises, Landlord shall have the right, in its sole and absolute discretion, to terminate this Lease on written notice to Tenant within _____ (_____) days after receipt of Tenant's notice and the information described above or the receipt of any additional information requested by Landlord. If Landlord elects to terminate this Lease, this Lease shall terminate as of the effective date of the proposed assignment or commencement of the term of the proposed sublease as set forth in Tenant's notice, and Landlord shall have the right (but no obligation) to enter into a direct lease with the proposed assignee or subtenant. Tenant may withdraw its request for Landlord's consent at any time prior to, but not after, Landlord delivers a written notice of termination.

15.3 Consent by Landlord. If Landlord elects not to terminate this Lease pursuant to Section 15.2, or if a proposed sublease is for less than substantially all of the Premises, Landlord shall not unreasonably withhold its consent to an assignment or subletting. (For purposes of this Section, an assignment shall not include an assignment for security purposes, which shall be governed by Section 15.1). Tenant irrevocably agrees that the withholding of Landlord's consent shall be deemed reasonable if all of the following conditions are not satisfied:

(a) The proposed assignee or subtenant shall use the Premises only for the Permitted Use, and the business of the proposed assignee or subtenant is consistent with the other uses and the standards of the Building, in Landlord's reasonable judgment.

(b) The proposed assignee or subtenant is reputable and has a net worth not less than _____ percent (_____%) of the net worth of Tenant on the execution of this Lease, has a credit rating reasonably acceptable to Landlord, and otherwise has sufficient financial capabilities to perform all of its obligations under this Lease or the proposed sublease, in Landlord's reasonable judgment.

(c) Neither the proposed assignee or subtenant nor any person or entity that directly or indirectly controls, is controlled by, or is under common control with the proposed assignee or subtenant is an occupant of any part of the Building or has negotiated for space in the Building within a _____ (_____-)month period prior to the delivery of Tenant's written notice.

(d) Tenant is not in default and has not committed acts or omissions which, with the running of time or the giving of notice or both, would constitute a default under this Lease.

(e) All of the other terms of this Section are complied with. The conditions described above are not exclusive and shall not limit or prevent Landlord from considering additional factors in determining if it should reasonably withhold its consent.

15.4 Corporate and Partnership Transactions. If Tenant is a corporation, a dissolution of the corporation or a transfer (by one or more transactions) of a majority of the voting stock of Tenant shall be deemed to be an assignment of this Lease subject to the provisions of this Section. However, these provisions shall not apply to transactions with a corporation into or with which Tenant is merged or consolidated or to which substantially all of Tenant's assets are transferred or which controls, is controlled by, or is under common control with, Tenant, if a principal purpose of the merger or transfer is not the assignment of this Lease and Tenant's successor has a net worth not less than the net worth of Tenant on the execution of this Lease. Tenant shall cause reasonably satisfactory proof of such net worth to be delivered at least _____ (_____) days prior to the effective date of the transaction. If Tenant is a partnership, a dissolution of the partnership (including a "technical" dissolution) or a transfer of the controlling interest in the Partnership (including the admission of new partners or the withdrawal of existing partners having a controlling interest) shall be deemed an assignment of this Lease subject to the provisions of this Section, regardless of whether the transfer is made by one or more transactions, or whether one or more persons hold the controlling interest prior to or after the transfer.

15.5 No Release of Tenant. Notwithstanding the granting of Landlord's consent, no sale, conveyance, mortgage, pledge, subletting, assignment or other transfer or encumbrance of this Lease or the Premises shall release or alter Tenant's primary liability to pay rent and perform all of its other obligations hereunder. The acceptance of rent by Landlord from any person other than Tenant shall not be a waiver by Landlord of any provision hereof. Consent to one assignment or subletting shall not be deemed to be consent to any subsequent assignment or subletting. If any assignee or successor of Tenant defaults in the performance of any of the terms hereof, Landlord may proceed directly against Tenant without proceeding against or exhausting its remedies against the assignee or successor. After any assignment, sublease or other transfer or encumbrance, Landlord may consent to subsequent assignments, subleases, transfers or encumbrances, or amendments to this Lease, without notifying Tenant or any other person, without obtaining consent thereto, and without relieving Tenant of liability under this Lease.

15.6 Additional Charges. If Landlord consents to any assignment or sublease, Tenant shall pay the following to Landlord as additional rent:

(a) In the case of an assignment, an amount equal to _____ percent (_____) % of all amounts paid or payable to Tenant by the assignee for or by reason of such assignment (including sums paid or payable for the purchase or rental of all or part of Tenant's Property).

(b) In the case of a sublease, an amount equal to _____ percent (_____) % of the amount by which the sublease rental exceeds the portion of the rent allocable to the subleased space hereunder throughout the sublease term. In computing this amount, the sublease rental shall include all rents, charges and other consideration paid or payable to Tenant under the terms of the sublease and any collateral agreements, and sums paid or payable by the subtenant for the purchase or rental of all or part of Tenant's Property. The rent hereunder allocable to the subleased space for any period shall equal the total rent accruing during such period, multiplied by a fraction, the numerator of which is the rentable area of the subleased space and the denominator of which is the Rentable Area of the Premises.

This additional rent shall be paid by Tenant to Landlord as and when received by Tenant or, at Landlord's option, on written notice to the assignee or subtenant, Landlord may collect all or any portion of this additional rent directly from the assignee or subtenant. Tenant shall receive a credit against this additional rent in an amount equal to the net unamortized or undepreciated cost of any of Tenant's Property that is sold to the assignee or sublessee in connection with such assignment or sublease, determined on the basis of Tenant's federal income tax returns. This credit shall be prorated over the period during which this additional rent is to be paid, in proportion to the amounts received by Tenant. Landlord's acceptance or collection of this additional rent will not be deemed to be a consent to any assignment or subletting or a cure of any default under this Section or the rest of the Lease.

15.7 Additional Terms.

(a) Tenant shall pay the reasonable attorney's fees and other costs and expenses of Landlord in connection with any request for Landlord's consent to any sale, conveyance, mortgage, pledge, assignment, sublease or other transfer or encumbrance.

(b) A sublease will be null and void unless it complies with the rest of this Lease and provides that: (i) it is subject and subordinate to this Lease and that if there is any conflict or inconsistency between the sublease and this Lease, this Lease will prevail; (ii) Landlord may enforce all the provisions of the sublease, including the collection of rent; (iii) it may not be modified without Landlord's prior written consent and that any modification without this consent shall be null and void; (iv) if this Lease is terminated or Landlord reenters or repossesses the Premises, Landlord may, at its option, take over all of Tenant's right, title and interest as sublessor and, at Landlord's option, the subtenant shall attorn to Landlord, but Landlord shall not be (x) liable for any previous act or omission of Tenant under the sublease, (y) subject to any existing defense or offset against Tenant, or (z) bound by any previous modification of the sublease made without Landlord's prior written consent or by any prepayment of more than one month's rent; and (v) it is ineffective until Landlord gives its written consent thereto.

(c) An assignment will be null and void unless it complies with the rest of this Lease and provides that: (i) the assignee assumes all of Tenant's obligations under this Lease and agrees to be bound by all of the terms of this Lease; and (ii) it is ineffective until Landlord gives its written consent thereto.

(d) The sublease or assignment otherwise must exactly match the proposed sublease or assignment initially submitted by Tenant. A sublease or assignment will not be effective until a fully executed counterpart is delivered to Landlord and Landlord delivers its written consent thereto.

(e) This Section is binding on and shall apply to any purchaser, mortgagee, pledgee, assignee, subtenant or other transferee or encumbrancer, at every level.

(f) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this Lease, if Tenant or any proposed transferee of Tenant claims that Landlord has unreasonably withheld or delayed its consent under Section 15.3 or otherwise has breached or acted unreasonably under this Section, their sole remedies shall be a declaratory judgment and an injunction for the relief sought without any monetary damages, and Tenant waives all other remedies on its own behalf and, to the extent permitted under all Laws, on behalf of Tenant's proposed transferee.

16. Quiet Enjoyment. So long as Tenant pays all rent and performs all of its other obligations as required hereunder, Tenant shall quietly enjoy the Premises without hindrance or molestation by Landlord or any person lawfully claiming through or under Landlord, subject to the terms of this Lease and the terms of any Superior Leases and Mortgages, and all other agreements or matters of record to which this Lease is subordinate. As used in this Lease, the term "Superior Leases and Mortgages" means all present and future ground leases, underlying leases, mortgages, deeds of trust or other encumbrances, and all renewals, modifications, consolidations, replacements or extensions thereof or advances made thereunder, affecting all or any portion of the Premises, the Building or the Land.

17. Mortgagee Protection.

17.1 Subordination. This Lease is subordinate to all Superior Leases and Mortgages. This Section shall be self-operative and no further instrument of subordination shall be required. However, in confirmation of such subordination, Tenant shall execute, acknowledge and deliver any instrument that Landlord or the lessor, mortgagee or beneficiary under any of the Superior Leases and Mortgages may request, within _____ (_____) days after request. (Each of these lessors, mortgagees or beneficiaries is called a "Landlord's Mortgagee.") However, if Landlord, Landlord's Mortgagee or any other successor to Landlord elects in writing, this Lease shall be deemed superior to the Superior Leases and Mortgages specified, regardless of the date of recording, and Tenant will execute an agreement confirming this election on request. If Landlord's Mortgagee or its successor or any successor to Landlord succeeds to Landlord's interests under this Lease, whether voluntarily or involuntarily, the Tenant shall attorn to such person and recognize such person as Landlord under this Lease.

17.2 Mortgagee's Liability. The obligations and liabilities of each of Landlord or Landlord's Mortgagees, or their successors, under this Lease shall exist only if and for so long as each of these respective parties owns fee title to the Land and the Building or is the lessee under a ground lease therefor. No Monthly Rent or additional rent shall be paid more than _____ (_____) days prior to the due date thereof and payments made in violation of this provision shall (except to the extent that such payments are actually received by a Landlord's Mortgagee) be a nullity as against Landlord's Mortgagees or their successors and Tenant shall be liable for the amount of such payments to Landlord's Mortgagees or their successors.

17.3 Mortgagee's Right to Cure. No act or omission by Landlord which would entitle Tenant under the terms of this Lease or any Laws to be relieved of Tenant's obligations hereunder, or to terminate this Lease, shall result in a release or termination of such obligations or this Lease unless: (a) Tenant first shall have given written notice of Landlord's act or omission to Landlord and all Landlord's Mortgagees whose names and addresses shall have been furnished to Tenant; and (b) Landlord's Mortgagees, after receipt of such notice, fail to correct or cure the act or omission within a reasonable time thereafter (but in no event less than _____ (_____) days). However, nothing contained in this Section shall impose any obligation on Landlord's Mortgagees to correct or cure any act or omission.

18. Estoppel Certificates.

Tenant shall from time to time, within _____ (_____) days after request by Landlord, execute and deliver to Landlord or any other person designated by Landlord an estoppel certificate, in form satisfactory to Landlord, which certifies: (a) that this Lease is unmodified and in full force and effect (or, if there have been modifications, describes them); (b) the expiration date of the Lease Term and that there are no agreements with Landlord to extend or renew the Lease Term or to permit any holding over (or if there are any such agreements, describes them and specifies the periods of extension or renewal); (c) the date through which the Monthly Rent and additional rent have been paid; (d) that Landlord is not in default in the performance of any of its obligations under this Lease (or, if there are any such defaults, describes them); (e) that Tenant is not entitled to any credits, offsets, defenses or deductions against payment of the rent hereunder (or, if they exist, describes them); and (f) such other information concerning this Lease or Tenant as Landlord or any other person designated by Landlord reasonably shall request. An estoppel certificate issued by Tenant Pursuant to this Section shall be a representation and warranty by Tenant which may be relied on by Landlord and by others with whom Landlord may be dealing, regardless of independent investigation. If Tenant fails to execute and deliver an estoppel certificate as required hereunder, Landlord's representations concerning the factual matters covered by such estoppel certificate, as described above, shall be conclusively presumed to be correct and binding on Tenant.

19. Default. The occurrence of any one or more of the following events shall be default and breach under this Lease by Tenant:

(a) The vacating or abandonment of the Premises by Tenant.

(b) The failure by Tenant to make any payment of rent or any other payment required to be made by Tenant hereunder for a period of _____ (_____) days after such payment is due.

(c) The failure by Tenant to observe or perform any of the covenants, conditions or provisions of this Lease to be observed or performed by Tenant, other than those described in subparagraphs (b), (d), (e), (f), (g), (h) and (i) of this Section 19, where such failure shall continue for a period of _____ (_____) days after written notice thereof by Landlord to Tenant. However, if the nature of these defaults is such that more than _____ (_____) days are reasonably required to cure, then Tenant shall not be deemed to be in default if Tenant commences such cure within the _____ (_____) -day period and thereafter diligently completes the cure within _____ (_____) days.

(d) The making by Tenant or any guarantor of this Lease of any general assignment or general arrangement for the benefit of creditors; or the filing by or against Tenant or any guarantor of this Lease of a petition or order for relief under any Laws relating to bankruptcy or insolvency (unless, in the case of a petition filed against Tenant or any guarantor of this Lease, the petition is dismissed within _____ (_____) days); or the appointment of a trustee, custodian or receiver to take possession of substantially all of Tenant's assets or the assets of any guarantor of this Lease or of Tenant's interest in this Lease where possession is not restored to Tenant within _____ (_____) days; or the attachment, execution or judicial seizure of substantially all of Tenant's assets or of Tenant's interest in this Lease, unless discharged within _____ (_____) days.

(e) The service by Landlord of a three-day notice under _____ [insert reference to state statute] Code of Civil Procedure Section _____ on _____ (_____) or more occasions if the previous service of the _____ (_____) -day notices did not result in the termination of this Lease.

(f) A sale, conveyance, mortgage, pledge, assignment, sublease or other transfer or encumbrance, or any attempt to do so, in violation of Section 15.

(g) Tenant's failure to deliver the estoppel certificate required under Section 18, or any written instrument required under Section 17 within the time required.

(h) A default under or the repudiation or any guaranty of Tenant's obligations under this Lease.

(i) Tenant's failure to maintain the insurance policies required hereunder.

(j) The death of Tenant or, if Tenant is comprised of more than _____ (_____) individual(s), the death of any of the individuals comprising Tenant.

The defaults specified in subparagraphs (a), (d), (e), (f), (g), (h), (i) and (j), above, shall not be curable by Tenant.

20. Remedies for Default.

20.1 General. In the event of any default or breach by Tenant, Landlord may at any time thereafter, with or without notice or demand:

(a) Terminate Tenant's right to possession of the Premises by any lawful means, in which case this lease shall terminate and Tenant shall immediately surrender possession of the Premises to Landlord. In such event, Landlord shall be entitled to recover from Tenant all Liabilities incurred by Landlord or Landlord's Affiliates by reason of Tenant's default, including, but not limited to: (i) the worth at the time of the award of the unpaid Monthly Rent and additional rent which had been earned or was payable at the time of termination; (ii) the worth at the time of the award of the amount by which the unpaid Monthly Rent and additional rent which would have been earned or payable after termination until the time of the award exceeds the amount of such rental loss that Tenant proves could have been reasonably avoided; (iii) the worth at the time of the award of the amount by which the unpaid Monthly Rent and additional rent which would have been paid for the balance of the term after the time of award exceeds the amount of such rental loss that Tenant proves could have been reasonably avoided; and (iv) any other amount necessary to compensate Landlord for all Liabilities proximately caused by Tenant's failure to perform its obligations under the Lease or which in the ordinary course of things would be likely to result therefrom, including, but not limited to, any costs or expenses incurred by Landlord in maintaining or preserving the Premises, the Building and the Land after such default, the cost of recovering possession of the Premises, expenses of reletting, including necessary renovation or alteration of the Premises, Landlord's attorneys' fees and costs incurred in connection therewith, and any real estate commissions paid or payable. As used in subparts (i) and (ii), above, the "worth at the time of the award" is computed by allowing interest on unpaid amounts at the rate of _____ percent (_____ %) per annum, or such lesser amount as may then be the maximum lawful rate. As used in subparagraph (iii), above, the "worth at the time of the award" is computed by discounting such amount at the discount rate of the _____ [bank] at the time of the award, plus _____ (_____ %). If Tenant abandons the Premises, Landlord shall have the option of (x) taking possession of the Premises and recovering from Tenant the amount specified in this subparagraph, or (y) proceeding under the provisions of subparagraph (b), below.

(b) Maintain Tenant's right to possession, in which case this Lease shall continue in effect whether or not Tenant shall have abandoned the Premises. In such event, Landlord shall be entitled to enforce all of Landlord's rights and remedies under this Lease and at law or in equity, including the right to recover the rent and other sums and charges as they become due hereunder.

(c) Pursue any other right or remedy now or hereafter available to Landlord hereunder or at law or in equity.

20.2 Redemption. Tenant waives any and all rights of redemption granted by or under any Laws if Tenant is evicted or dispossessed for any cause, or if Landlord obtains possession of the Premises by reason of the violation by Tenant of any of the terms, covenants or conditions of this Lease, or otherwise.

20.3 Performance by Landlord. If Tenant defaults under this Lease, Landlord, without waiving or curing the default, may, but shall not be obligated to, perform Tenant's obligations for the account and at the expense of Tenant. Notwithstanding Section 19(c), in the case of an emergency, Landlord need not give any notice prior to performing Tenant's obligations. Tenant irrevocably appoints Landlord and Landlord's successor and assigns, with full power of substitution, as Tenant's attorney-in-fact, coupled with an interest, to execute, acknowledge and deliver any instruments in connection with Landlord's performance of Tenant's obligations if Tenant is in default, and to take all other acts in connection therewith.

20.4 Post-Judgment Interest. The amount of any judgment obtained by Landlord against Tenant in any legal proceeding arising out of Tenant's default under this Lease shall bear interest until paid at the maximum rate allowed by law, or, if no maximum rate prevails, at the rate of _____ percent (_____ %) per annum. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in any Laws, with respect to any damages that are certain or ascertainable by calculation, interest shall accrue from the day that the right to the damages vests in Landlord, and in the case of any unliquidated claim, interest shall accrue from the day the claim rose.

21. Holding Over. Tenant shall not hold over in the Premises after the expiration or sooner termination of the Lease Term without the express prior written consent of Landlord. Tenant shall indemnify Landlord for, and hold Landlord harmless from and against, any and all Liabilities arising out of or in connection with any delay by Tenant in surrendering and vacating the Premises, including, without limitation, any claims made by any succeeding tenant based on any delay and any liabilities arising out of or in connection with these claims. If possession of the Premises is not surrendered to Landlord on the expiration or sooner termination of the Lease Term, in addition to any other rights and remedies of Landlord hereunder or at law or in equity, Tenant shall pay to Landlord for each month or portion thereof during which Tenant holds over in the Premises a sum equal to _____ (_____) times the then-current Monthly Rent in addition to all other rent payable under this Lease. If any tenancy is created by Tenant's holding over in the Premises, the tenancy shall be on all of the terms and conditions of this Lease, except that rent shall be increased as set forth above and the tenancy shall be a month-to-month tenancy. Nothing in this Section 21 shall be deemed to permit Tenant to retain possession of the Premises after the expiration or sooner termination of the Lease Term.

22. Indemnification and Exculpation.

22.1 Definitions. As used in this Lease, the following terms have the meanings set forth below:

(a) Liabilities. All losses, costs, damages, expenses, claims, injuries, liabilities and judgments, including, but not limited to, attorneys' fees and costs (whether or not suit is commenced or judgment entered).

(b) Landlord's affiliates and tenant's affiliates. All affiliates, directors, officers, shareholders, partners, agents, employees, invitees, customers, successors and assigns of Landlord and Tenant, respectively.

22.2 Indemnification. In addition to any other indemnities required of Tenant hereunder, Tenant shall indemnify Landlord and Landlord's Affiliates for, and hold Landlord and Landlord's Affiliates harmless from, any and all Liabilities arising from or in connection with: (a) the use and occupancy of the Premises by Tenant or Tenant's Affiliates; (b) the conduct of Tenant's business; (c) any breach or default under this Lease; (d) claims by any assignee, subtenant, broker or other person if Landlord declines to consent to any assignment, sublease or other transfer or encumbrance or terminates this Lease pursuant to Section 15; and (e) any other acts or omissions of Tenant or Tenant's Affiliates or persons claiming through or under them.

22.3 Damage to Person or Property. Tenant assumes the risk of all Liabilities it may incur, including, but not limited to, damage or injury to person, property and the conduct of Tenant's business (and any loss of revenue therefrom), the loss of use or occupancy of the Premises, and the items enumerated below in this Section, and waives all claims against Landlord and Landlord's Affiliates in connection therewith. Landlord and Landlord's Affiliates shall not be liable for any Liabilities incurred by Tenant or Tenant's Affiliates (including, but not limited to, the Liabilities described above in this Section) arising from or in connection with: (a) acts or omissions of any tenant of the Building or any other persons (including, but not limited to, any parking garage operators or their employees); (b) explosion, fire, steam, electricity, water, gas or rain, pollution or contamination; (c) the breakage, leakage, obstruction or other defects of plumbing, HVAC, electrical, sanitary, safety, elevator or other utilities and systems of the Building or the failure to furnish any of the foregoing; (d) any work, maintenance, repair, rebuilding or improvement performed by or at the request of Landlord or Landlord's Affiliates for the Premises, the Building or the Land; (e) any entry by Landlord or Landlord's Affiliates on the Premises; (f) any defects in the Premises, the Building, the Land or any portions thereof; (g) any interference with light or other incorporeal hereditaments; and (h) any other acts, omissions or causes. Nothing in this Section exempts Landlord for liability caused solely by its gross negligence or willful misconduct, but Landlord shall not be liable under any circumstances for consequential or punitive damages (including, but not limited to, damage or injury to persons, property and the conduct of Tenant's business [and any loss of revenue therefrom]). Tenant immediately shall notify Landlord of any defects in the Premises or the Building or any portion thereof and of any damage or injury thereto or to persons or property in or about the Premises or the Building.

22.4 Satisfaction of Remedies. Landlord and Landlord's Affiliates shall not be personally liable for the performance of Landlord's obligations under this Lease. If Tenant or Tenant's Affiliates acquire any rights or remedies against landlord or Landlord's Affiliates (including, but not limited to, the right to satisfy a judgment), these rights and remedies shall be satisfied solely from Landlord's estate and interest in the Land and the Building (or the proceeds therefrom) and not from any other property or assets of Landlord or Landlord's Affiliates. This Section shall be enforceable by Landlord and Landlord's Affiliates.

23. Rules and Regulations. Tenant shall faithfully observe and comply with the rules and regulations that Landlord shall from time to time promulgate. Landlord reserves the right from time to time in its sole discretion to make all reasonable additions and modifications to the rules and regulations. Any additions and modifications to the rules and regulations shall be binding on Tenant when delivered to Tenant. Landlord shall not incur any Liabilities to Tenant or Tenant's

Affiliates arising from or in connection with the nonperformance of any rules and regulations by any other tenants or occupants of the Building. Landlord's current rules and regulations are attached hereto as Appendix "A."

24. Other Taxes. Tenant shall pay, or cause to be paid, before delinquency, any and all taxes levied or assessed against Tenant's Property and any leasehold improvements in the Premises which were made for Tenant or at its request to the extent they are above the standard of the Building. If any or all of Tenant's Property or any of these leasehold improvements are assessed and taxed with the Building, Tenant shall pay to Landlord its share of such taxes within _____ (_____) days after delivery to Tenant by Landlord of a statement in writing setting forth the amount of such taxes.

25. Brokers. Tenant represents and warrants to Landlord that Tenant has had no dealings with any broker, finder, or similar person who is or might be entitled to a commission or other fee in connection with introducing Tenant to the Building or in connection with this Lease, except for Landlord's Broker and Tenant's Broker. Landlord shall pay the commission due Landlord's Broker pursuant to a separate agreement between Landlord and Landlord's Broker. Tenant shall indemnify Landlord for, and hold Landlord harmless from and against, any and all claims of any person other than Landlord's Broker (including Tenant's Broker) who claims to have introduced Tenant to the Building or dealt with Tenant in connection with this Lease and all Liabilities arising out of or in connection with such claims.

26. Parking. Tenant acknowledges that the parking garage of the Building, which is the only available parking at the Building is leased (or subleased as the case may be) to an independent parking garage operator who controls the amount and availability of parking. Although this lease of the parking garage currently provides that tenants of the building and their employees and invitees will be given certain preferences over the general public with respect to parking, Landlord cannot and does not represent, warrant or covenant, in any way, that: (a) Tenant or Tenant's Affiliates will be able to obtain parking; (b) if parking is provided that it will continue to be provided and will be adequate for Tenant's needs; (c) if parking is provided that it will be fairly allocated among the Tenants of the building or the general public; (d) parking fees will be kept at current levels; or (e) the lease of the parking garage will not be modified in a way that will adversely affect Tenant. Tenant's obligations under this Lease will not be abated or otherwise affected in any way by any matters related to parking. If attached, that certain Parking Agreement dated _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year], by and between Landlord and Tenant, shall further govern Tenant's rights with respect to parking.

27. Authority to Enter Into Lease. If Tenant is a corporation, each individual executing this Lease on behalf of the corporation represents and warrants that he is duly authorized to execute and deliver this Lease on behalf of the corporation, in accordance with a duly adopted resolution of the board of directors of said corporation, and that this Lease is binding on the corporation in accordance with its terms. If the Tenant is a partnership, each individual executing this Lease on behalf of the partnership represents and warrants that he is duly authorized to execute and deliver this Lease on behalf of the partnership, in accordance with the partnership agreement and any statements of partnership or certificates of limited partnership of the partnership, and that this Lease is binding on the partnership in accordance with its terms. Tenant shall, within _____ (_____) days of the execution of this Lease, deliver to Landlord: (a) if Tenant is a corporation, a certified copy of a resolution of the board of directors of the corporation; of (b) if Tenant is a partnership, a copy of the Statement of Partnership or Certificate of Limited Partnership of Tenant; and (c) other evidence reasonably satisfactory to Landlord authorizing or ratifying the execution of this Lease.

28. General Provisions.

28.1 Joint Obligation. If Tenant consists of more than one person or entity, the obligations of such persons or entities as Tenant shall be joint and several.

28.2 Marginal Headings. The titles to the Articles and Sections of this Lease are not a part of this Lease and shall have no effect on the construction or interpretation.

28.3 Time. Time is of the essence of this Lease.

28.4 Successors and Assigns. Subject to the restrictions contained in Article 15 above, this Lease binds the heirs, executors, administrators, successors and assigns of the parties hereto.

28.5 Recordation. Tenant shall not record this Lease or a short form memorandum hereof without the prior written consent of Landlord.

28.6 Late Charges. Tenant acknowledges that late payment of rent will cause Landlord to incur costs not contemplated by this Lease, the exact amount of which will be extremely difficult to ascertain. These costs include, but are not limited to, processing and accounting charges, and late charges which may be imposed on Landlord by the terms of any Superior Leases and Mortgages. Accordingly, if any installment of Monthly Rent or payment of additional rent due from Tenant is not received by Landlord or Landlord's designee within _____ (_____) days after the amount is due, Tenant shall pay to Landlord a late charge equal to _____ (%) of the overdue amount. Acceptance of late charges by Landlord shall not constitute a waiver of Tenant's default with respect to the overdue amount, nor prevent Landlord from exercising any of the other rights and remedies granted hereunder or at law or in equity.

28.7 Prior Agreements; Amendment; Waiver. This Lease contains all of the agreements of the parties hereto with respect to any matter covered or mentioned in this Lease, and no prior agreements or understanding pertaining to any such matters shall be effective for any purpose. No provision of this Lease may be amended or added to except by an agreement in writing signed by the parties hereto or their respective successors in interest. All waivers hereunder must be in writing and specify the breach, act, omission, term, covenant or condition waived, and acceptance of rent or other acts or omissions by Landlord shall not be deemed to be a waiver. The waiver by Landlord of any breach, act, omission, term, covenant or condition of this Lease shall not be deemed to be a waiver of any other or subsequent breach, act, omission, term, covenant or condition.

28.8 Inability to Perform. Landlord shall not be in default hereunder nor shall Landlord be liable to Tenant or Tenant's Affiliates for any Liabilities if Landlord is unable to fulfill any of its obligations, or is delayed in doing so, if the inability or delay is caused by reason of accidents, breakage, strike, labor troubles, Acts of God, or any other cause, whether similar or dissimilar, which is beyond the reasonable control of Landlord.

28.9 Legal Proceedings. In any action or proceeding involving or relating in any way to this Lease, the court or other person or entity having jurisdiction in such action or proceeding shall award to the party in whose favor judgment is entered the actual attorneys' fees and costs incurred. The party in whose favor judgment is entered may, at its election, submit proof of fees and costs as an element of damages before entry of judgment or after entry of judgment in a post-judgment cost bill. Tenant also shall indemnify Landlord for, and hold Landlord harmless from and against, all Liabilities incurred by Landlord if Landlord becomes or is made a party to any proceeding or action: (a) instituted by Tenant, or by any third party against Tenant, or by or against any person holding any interest under or using the Premises by license of or agreement with Tenant; (b) otherwise arising out of or resulting from any act or omission of Tenant or such other person; or (c) necessary to protect Landlord's interest under this Lease in a bankruptcy proceeding, or other proceeding under Title 11 of the United States Code, as amended. In any circumstance where Tenant is obligated to indemnify or hold harmless Landlord or Landlord's Affiliates under this Lease, Tenant also shall defend Landlord and Landlord's Affiliates with counsel acceptable to Landlord or, at Landlord's election, Landlord or Landlord's Affiliates may employ their own counsel and Tenant shall pay when due all attorneys' fees and costs therefore.

28.10 Conveyance of Premises. As used herein the term "Landlord" means only the current owner or owners of the fee title to the Building or the lessee under a ground lease of the Land. Upon each conveyance (whether voluntary or involuntary) of the Building, the conveying party shall be relieved of all liability under any and all of its covenants and obligations contained in or derived from this Lease or arising out of any act, occurrence or omission occurring after the date of such conveyance. Landlord may sell, assign, convey, encumber or otherwise transfer all or any portion of its interests in this Lease, the Premises, the Building or the Land.

28.11 Name. Tenant shall not use the name of the Building or the development in which the Building is situated, if any, for any purpose other than as an address of the business to be conducted by Tenant in the Premises.

28.12 Severability. Any provision of this Lease which shall be held invalid, void or illegal shall in no way affect, impair or invalidate any of the other provisions hereof and such other provisions shall remain in full force and effect.

28.13 Cumulative Remedies. No right, remedy or election hereunder or at law or in equity shall be deemed exclusive but shall, wherever possible, be cumulative with all other rights, remedies or elections.

28.14 Choice of Law. This Lease shall be governed by the laws of the State of _____ [state] applicable to transactions to be performed wholly therein.

28.15 Signs. Tenant shall not place any sign on the premises, the Building or the Land, or which is visible from anywhere outside of the premises, without Landlord's prior written consent.

28.16 Landlord's Consent. Whenever Landlord's consent or approval is required hereunder, Landlord shall not unreasonably delay the granting or withholding of its consent or approval. Except where it is expressly provided that Landlord will not unreasonably withhold its consent or approval, Landlord may withhold its consent or approval arbitrarily and in its sole and absolute discretion.

28.17 Presumptions. This Lease shall be construed without regard to any presumption or other rule requiring construction against the party drafting the document. It shall be construed neither for nor against Landlord or Tenant, but shall be given reasonable interpretation in accordance with the plain meaning of its terms and the intent of the parties.

28.18 Exhibits. All exhibits and any riders annexed to this Lease are incorporated herein by this reference.

28.19 Submission of Lease. The submission of this Lease to Tenant or its broker, agent or attorney for review or signature does not constitute an offer to Tenant to lease the Premises or grant an option to lease the Premises. This document shall not be binding unless and until it is executed and delivered by both Landlord and Tenant.

28.20 Meaning of Terms. Whenever required by the context of this Lease, the singular shall include the plural and the plural shall include the singular, and the masculine, feminine and neuter genders shall each include the others, and the word "person" shall include corporations, partnerships or other entities.

28.21 Notices. All notices, demands or communications required or permitted under this Lease (the "notices") shall be in writing and shall be personally delivered or sent by certified mail, return receipt requested, postage prepaid. Notices to Tenant shall be delivered to the address set forth in Section 2(s), except that when Tenant takes possession of the Premises, the address of the Premises always may be used for the purpose of delivering Notices to Tenant. Notices to Landlord shall be delivered to the address set forth in Section 2(r), or such other address as Landlord may specify in writing to Tenant. Notices shall be effective on the earlier of: delivery; and _____ (_____) days after they are mailed in accordance with this Section.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties hereto have executed this Lease at the place and on the dates specified below next to their respective signatures.

5. The water and wash closets and other plumbing fixtures shall not be used for any purpose other than those for which they were constructed, and no sweepings, rubbish, rags, or other substances shall be thrown therein. No Tenant shall cause or permit any unusual or objectionable odors to be produced or permeate the Premises.

8. The Premises shall not be used for manufacturing or for the storage of merchandise except as such storage may be incidental to the use of the Premises for general office purposes. The moving of safes or other fixtures or bulky matter of any kind must be done upon previous notice to the superintendent of the Building and under his supervision, and the persons employed by any Tenant for such work must be acceptable to the Landlord. The Landlord reserves the right to inspect all safes, freight or other bulky articles to be brought into the Building and to exclude from the Building all safes, freight or other bulky articles which violate any of these Rules and Regulations or the Lease of which these Rules and Regulations are a part. In case of an invasion, mob riot, public excitement or other circumstances rendering such action advisable in Landlord's opinion, Landlord reserves the right to prevent access to the Building during the continuance of the same by closing the doors or otherwise, for the safety of the Tenants and the protection of the Building and the property in the Building.

C. LEASE OF REAL ESTATE

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.130

FORM 25.130 Residential lease--single family home--requirement that all household wastes be disposed of properly and in accordance with law

COMMENT

This agreement is a comprehensive lease for the rental of a single family residence. It can be easily adapted for use where the tenant is leasing a unit in a multiple dwelling. In such case, the parties would simply add extra provisions to the lease recognizing the tenant's right to use common areas located in or near the building--e.g., elevators, the parking lot, laundry room, basement storage bin, recreation room, etc.--and imposing upon the tenant the obligation to respect the rights of other tenants and to treat them with courtesy.

This lease contains provisions regarding the disposal of household wastes and the use of pesticides and fertilizers. For example, the tenant is responsible for the disposal of all household wastes and agrees to dispose of them no less than once a week. In the lease, the tenant is informed of when trash is collected by the municipality, and that trash should be placed for pick up on the curb outside the premises in plastic trash bags.

The tenant is also informed that the municipality has a mandatory recycling program in effect. In keeping with the program, the tenant is required to separate the following items from its household waste:

- (1) glass products (e.g., bottles, jars, etc.);
- (2) plastic products (e.g., bottles, etc.);
- (3) metal containers (e.g., soda cans, etc.); and

(4) newspapers.

Items are not to be disposed of by the tenant with his other household wastes. Rather, they are to be collected, placed in trash cans or milk crates, and left on the curb outside the leased premises on the morning of the day when the municipality collects such items.

A special clause in the lease prohibits the tenant from using fertilizers or pesticides on the leased premises without the prior consent of the landlord. Under the terms of the clause, the landlord may withhold his permission either with or without cause.

This prohibition will serve to protect the landlord who is concerned about the effects of chemicals not only upon the leased premises, but also upon those who reside there. For example, if the leased premises are served by a well located on the property, certain fertilizers or pesticides may gradually seep into and contaminate the ground water, making the water undrinkable and extremely expensive to purify. And certain rodenticides, used inside of a structure or outdoors, may prove dangerous to small children and pets.

It should be noted that the clause restricting the use of fertilizers and pesticides imposes rather severe penalties on the tenant who violates it: cancellation of the lease and/or payment of the cost of remedial action. The experienced landlord will recognize that most renters will not have deep enough pockets to pay for remediation costs, so the cost of remediation will fall squarely on the landlord.

FORM

The Landlord and Tenant agree to lease the premises at the rent and for the period stated in the following terms:

1. Rent. The Tenant must make the rent payment for each month on the first day of that month and at the Landlord's address, as set forth above. The Landlord need not notify the Tenant of Tenant's duty to pay the rent, and the rent must be paid in full. No deductions will be allowed from the rent. The first month's rent must be paid at the time of the signing of this Lease Agreement by the Tenant.

2. Use. The Tenant agrees to use the premises rented to the Tenant by the Landlord as a residence only.

3. Tenant's duty to obey laws and regulations pertaining to the leased premises. Tenant must, at Tenant's expense, promptly and fully comply with all laws, orders, rules, requests and directives pertaining to the leased premises that are issued by governmental authorities, the Landlord's insurers, and similar authorities and agencies. Landlord shall be responsible for any violations that may exist prior to transfer of possession of the leased property to Tenant. Notices received by Tenant from any authority or entity must be promptly delivered to Landlord. Tenant may not do anything which may increase Landlord's insurance premiums. If Tenant's acts or failure to act result in an increase in the Landlord's insurance premiums, then Tenant must pay the increase in premiums as additional rent. Notwithstanding the foregoing, if the Landlord should experience an increase in premiums unrelated to Tenant's conduct, Tenant shall not be deemed responsible for such an increase.

4. Disposal of wastes; recycling. Tenant shall be responsible for the disposal of all household wastes. Tenant agrees to promptly dispose of all household waste no less than once per week. Disposal of wastes shall be performed in compliance with all applicable laws, regulations and policies of all governmental authorities having jurisdiction. Tenant is hereby notified that trash is collected on _____ [e.g., Monday mornings] by the City/Town/Municipality of _____. Household trash should be placed for pick up on the curb outside the leased premises in plastic trash bags.

Tenant is also informed that the City/Town/Municipality of _____ has a mandatory recycling program currently in effect. In keeping with such program, the Tenant is required to separate the following items from its household waste:

- (1) glass products (e.g., bottles, jars, etc.);
- (2) plastic products (e.g., bottles, etc.);
- (3) metal containers (e.g., soda cans, etc.); and
- (4) newspapers.

The items listed above are not to be disposed of by the Tenant with the Tenant's other household wastes. Rather, they are to be collected, placed in trash cans or milk crates, and put on the curb outside the leased premises on _____ [e.g., the first and third Mondays of each month].

5. Use of pesticides or fertilizers. Tenant agrees not to use, cause to be used, or suffer the use of pesticides or fertilizers on the leased premises without the prior written approval of Landlord. Landlord reserves the absolute right to refuse to approve the use of any fertilizer and/or pesticide, regardless of the composition thereof. Landlord's decision shall be final and not subject to review.

In the event that fertilizers or pesticides are used on the premises without the consent of Landlord, Landlord shall have the right to terminate this lease immediately pursuant to the provisions of Paragraph 12. Tenant shall be responsible for the cost of any remedial measures which Landlord, in his sole discretion, deems necessary or appropriate to return the premises to its prior condition. Such costs shall be deemed additional rent, which rent shall be due and payable under the terms and conditions of this Lease when the next regular monthly rent payment is due and payable.

6. Maintenance. The Tenant shall mow the lawn, trim the hedges and shovel snow from the driveway and sidewalks, as necessary. If interior painting is required or desired, Tenant may elect to paint, with Landlord's prior permission. Landlord shall supply the materials at Landlord's own expense, and Tenant shall supply the labor at Tenant's own expense.

Tenant, at Tenant's own expense, shall repair any equipment, furniture or fixtures which are damaged by Tenant. This shall not include any item which fails to function due to ordinary wear and tear. If the Tenant fails to make a repair for which Tenant is responsible, then the Landlord may do so and charge the Tenant the full cost of said repair as additional rent, which rent shall be due and payable under the terms and conditions of this Lease when the next regular monthly rental payment is due and payable.

7. Alterations. Tenant agrees not to make any alterations or improvements to the leased premises without the Landlord's written permission. Any alterations and improvements made by the Tenant after obtaining the Landlord's written permission shall be the sole expense of the Tenant, shall become the property of the Landlord, and shall be left behind in the leased premises at the end of the term of this Lease Agreement. Any improvements or alterations to the premises made without the consent of the Landlord may be removed by the Landlord, and the premises may be restored to their original state, all at the expense of the Tenant. In such case, the amounts expended by Landlord shall be treated as additional rent and shall be due and payable under the terms and conditions of this Lease when the next regular monthly rental payment is due and payable.

8. Assignment and sublease. Tenant must not assign this Lease, sublet all or part of the premises, or permit any other person to use the premises without the prior approval of Landlord. If Tenant violates this provision, Landlord has the right to cancel the Lease Agreement in accordance with Paragraph 12 ("Tenant's Default").

9. Entry by the landlord. The Tenant agrees to allow the Landlord to enter the leased premises at any reasonable hour to repair, inspect, install or work upon any fixture or equipment in said leased premises, and to perform such other work that the Landlord may deem necessary. In addition, Tenant agrees to permit Landlord and/or Landlord's Agent to show the premises to persons wishing to rent or purchase the same, during the reasonable hours of any day of the term of this Lease Agreement. Tenant will permit the usual notices of "For Rent" or "For Sale" to be placed upon conspicuous portions of the walls, doors or windows of said premises and remain thereon without hindrance or molestation. Prior to entry, Landlord will give Tenant at least twenty-four (24) hours' prior notice in all non-emergency situations.

10. Fire, accident, defects and damage. Tenant must give Landlord prompt notice of fire, accident, damage or the discovery of a dangerous or defective condition on the leased premises. If, in the opinion of Tenant, the premises cannot be used because of fire damage or other casualty, Tenant is not required to pay rent for the time the premises are unusable. Landlord need only repair the damaged structural parts of the premises. Landlord is not required to repair or replace any equipment, fixtures, furnishings or decorations, unless originally installed by Landlord. Landlord is not responsible for delays due to settling insurance claims, obtaining estimates, labor and supply problems, or any other cause not fully under Landlord's control. Either Landlord or Tenant may elect to cancel this Lease Agreement at any time before repairs are completed.

11. Waivers. If the Landlord fails to enforce any term of this Lease Agreement, said failure by the Landlord shall not be a waiver of any of the Landlord's rights. If a term in this Lease Agreement is determined to be illegal, then the rest of this Lease Agreement shall remain in full force and effect and shall be binding upon the Landlord and the Tenant.

12. Tenant's default:

(a) Landlord shall give _____ (_____) [e.g., ten (10)] days' written notice to Tenant to correct any of the following defaults:

- (1) failure to pay rent or added rent on time;
- (2) failure to dispose of wastes as provided in Paragraph 4 hereof;
- (3) use of pesticides or fertilizers in violation of Paragraph 5 hereof;
- (4) improper assignment of the Lease Agreement;
- (5) improper subletting of all or part of the premises;
- (6) allowing another to use the premises without obtaining Landlord's prior consent;
- (7) unlawful conduct by Tenant or other occupant of the premises;
- (8) failure to fully perform any other term in the Lease Agreement.

(b) If Tenant fails to correct the defaults in Subparagraph (a) within _____ (_____) [e.g., ten (10)] days after receipt of notice, Landlord may cancel the Lease Agreement by giving Tenant a written notice stating the future date on which the Lease term will end. On that date, the Lease term and Tenant's rights in this Lease Agreement automatically end, and Tenant must leave the premises and return the keys to Landlord. However, Tenant continues to be responsible for rent, expenses, damages and losses arising until the original date upon which the Lease was to expire.

(c) If the Lease Agreement is canceled, or rent or added rent is not paid on time, or Tenant vacates the premises, Landlord may, in addition to other remedies, take either of the following steps:

- (1) enter the premises and physically remove Tenant and any person or property; or
- (2) bring an action for eviction or institute some other equivalent legal action designed to take back the premises.

13. Tenant's additional obligations. Tenant shall keep the grounds surrounding the leased premises, as well as the leased premises themselves, neat and clean. Tenant agrees not to use any of the equipment, fixtures or plumbing fixtures in the leased premises for any purpose other than that for which said equipment, fixtures or plumbing fixtures were designed. Any damage resulting from the misuse of such equipment, fixtures and plumbing fixtures shall be paid for by the Tenant as additional rent, which additional rent shall be due and payable under the terms and conditions of this Lease when the next regular monthly rental payment is due and payable.

All furniture and other personal belongings, equipment or the like, if any, provided by the Landlord and included within the terms of this Lease Agreement, shall be returned to the Landlord at the end of the term of this Lease Agreement, or any earlier termination, in as good condition as possible, taking into account reasonable wear and tear. If the Tenant vacates the premises or is dispossessed, and fails to remove any of Tenant's furniture, clothing or personal belongings, those items shall be considered abandoned by the Tenant, and the Landlord shall be authorized to dispose of those items as the Landlord sees fit, subject to any restrictions imposed by a court's judgment or warrant of eviction.

14. Quiet enjoyment. The Landlord agrees that if the Tenant pays the rent and complies with all of the other terms and conditions of this Lease Agreement, then the Tenant may peaceably and quietly have, hold and enjoy the premises leased hereunder for the term of this Lease Agreement.

15. Parties upon whom binding. This Lease Agreement is binding upon the Landlord and the Tenant and their respective heirs, distributees, executors, administrators, successors and lawful assigns.

16. Utilities and services. Tenant agrees to pay for all utilities and services provided to the leased premises, with the following exceptions: _____.

17. Space rented "as is." Tenant has inspected the premises. Tenant states that the premises are in good order and repair and takes the premises "as is."

18. Security. Tenant has given security to Landlord in the amount stated above on the first page of this Lease Agreement. If Tenant fully complies with all the terms of this Lease Agreement, Landlord shall return the security after the term ends. If Tenant does not fully comply with the terms of this Lease Agreement, Landlord may use the security to pay amounts owed by Tenant, including damages. If Landlord sells the premises, Landlord may give the security to the Buyer. In such case, Tenant will look only to the Buyer for the return of the security.

19. Option to purchase. Landlord will notify Tenant _____ (_____) [e.g., sixty (60)] days in advance of listing the premises for sale with a real estate agent or broker. During this _____ (_____) [e.g., sixty (60)] day period, Tenant will have the right to make an offer to purchase the premises at its fair market value, which Landlord will accept. Fair market value shall be determined by a letter of value to be supplied by a real estate broker or appraiser to be agreed upon by the parties. If the parties cannot agree, each shall select a broker or appraiser who, in turn, shall select a third broker or appraiser who shall prepare the letter of value. Costs associated with this procedure shall be split equally by the parties.

The offer by Tenant may be made contingent upon the following:

- (a) the results of a structural inspection;
- (b) the results of a termite inspection;
- (c) attorney's approval of the purchase; and
- (d) obtaining a mortgage whose terms are acceptable to Tenant.

The Landlord may continue to solicit offers from third-party purchasers while there exists open contingencies on the Tenant's offer. This right to make an offer is assignable only to _____.

If Tenant fails to make an offer, Tenant shall still retain the right to purchase by matching any bona fide offer received by Landlord. Tenant must agree to match the offer within _____ (_____) _____ [insert number] hours of receipt of notice from Landlord of Landlord's receipt of an offer from a third party.

The parties hereto have set their hands the day and year first above written.

C. LEASE OF REAL ESTATE

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.131

FORM 25.131 Residential lease--condominium unit--landlord's representation of condition of premises--tenant agrees to use watercourse located on common area for recreational purposes only

COMMENT

This is a lease agreement intended for use where the subject premises consist of a residential condominium unit. The unit envisioned in this lease is part of a large, suburban development spanning many acres.

The lease agreement recognizes the tenant's right to use and enjoy all of the common areas within the condominium development which any owner is entitled to use and enjoy, including, for example, the sidewalks, roads, running path, parking lots, clubhouse, exercise room and children's playground. In addition, the tenant is free to use common areas within the building in which his rented unit is located, such as the laundry room, elevators, hallways and staircases, the basement storage bin, etc.

Part of the development is a wooded area through which a watercourse flows. Since this wooded area and the watercourse are part of the "common area" of the condominium development, unit owners and their tenants are permitted to use them for recreational purposes, such as picnicking, swimming, canoeing, etc.

With regard to this watercourse, the tenant covenants to use the water for recreational purposes only, and not for drinking, bathing, or any other reason. The tenant also agrees not to discharge any substance into the waterway and to use the waterway in strict compliance with all condominium rules and regulations.

Finally, this agreement contains a very detailed representation by the landlord of the current condition of the premises. The landlord describes the unit he is renting as being "in excellent condition and repair." The landlord is able to offer such a positive description of the property because the entire development is newly constructed and because, prior to construction, extensive testing was done to determine whether any environmental problems existed on the undeveloped land, such as excessive radon gas emissions from the earth or the presence of hazardous substances buried beneath the ground.

8. Maintenance and repairs. Tenant shall contact Landlord and the condominium homeowners' association in the event any external repairs are required, e.g., repair or replacement of window shutters.

Landlord shall be responsible for all plumbing and heating and air conditioning repairs, provided that such repairs are not occasioned by the act, neglect or omission of Tenant, his family, agents, or invitees. All other repairs shall be made by Tenant at his own cost and expense. Tenant shall make such repairs promptly and in a workmanlike manner. Tenant shall suffer no liens against the unit for the cost of labor, materials or otherwise in connection with repairs. Tenant shall maintain the premises in good order and repair at all times. Tenant shall return the premises in the same condition as existed at the commencement of this Lease, reasonable wear and tear excepted.

9. Alterations. Tenant may paint the premises without approval of the Landlord. Any other alterations shall be made only with the prior written approval of the Landlord. Landlord shall have the right to reject any proposals either with or without cause.

10. Insurance. The parties acknowledge that the exterior structure of the unit is covered by the condominium homeowners' association's blanket insurance policy. The interior of the unit, including wall coverings and interior walls, carpeting, cupboards, appliances and personalty must be covered by a homeowner's insurance policy. Tenant shall obtain such a policy at his sole expense. The policy shall name Landlord and Tenant as co-insureds. 11. Laws and regulations. Tenant must, at Tenant's expense, promptly comply with all laws, orders, rules, requests and directives of all governmental authorities, Landlord's insurers, and similar authorities and agencies. 14. Fire or other casualty. In the event of damage by fire or other casualty, if the damage is such that, in the opinion of Landlord, the premises are still usable as a residence, this Lease shall remain in effect during repairs.

In the event that the premises are not usable as a residence, either party may cancel this Lease by giving notice to the other party within _____ (_____) _____ [insert number] days after the damage occurs. The Lease shall be deemed terminated as of the date the fire or other casualty occurred. Part IV. FORMS

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.132

FORM 25.132 Cooperative residential lease--disclaimer by landlord of condition of premises--tenant agrees to comply with all environmental laws--tenant agrees to comply with rules of the cooperative board

COMMENT

When one purchases a cooperative apartment or "unit," he does not actually own that unit; rather, he owns stock in the company that owns the multi-unit dwelling that encompasses his unit. Such interest is evidenced by a certificate of shares of stock in the cooperative corporation that actually owns the dwelling. In addition, he receives a "proprietary lease" to his unit. This is in contrast to a condominium unit, where the purchaser actually owns his unit and also has an ownership interest in the underlying land and in the common areas of the multi-unit dwelling (e.g., hallways, stairs, etc.).

The form below is a sublease of a proprietary lease to a cooperative unit. Since such a sublease generally requires the prior approval of the board of directors of the cooperative corporation, this sublease is made contingent upon the receipt of that approval.

The particular building in which the unit is located is quite old, and the parties strongly suspect that there may be asbestos in the ceiling tiles and in the insulation materials that surround the heating pipes. The parties have agreed that the tenant will enlist the services of a licensed asbestos handler, who will remove or contain (i.e., "abate") the asbestos-containing materials.

All expenses will be paid by the tenant. In return, the landlord will give the tenant a credit against the monthly rental fee to help offset the cost of the asbestos abatement. Specifically, the tenant is responsible for the full cost of testing the ceiling tiles and the insulation materials suspected of containing asbestos; containing or removing and properly disposing of the asbestos; and testing the air within the unit after the abatement process to make certain that any airborne particles of asbestos do not pose a health threat to inhabitants.

Under the terms of the lease, the tenant must insure that the abatement is performed in strict compliance with all applicable federal, state and local laws and regulations. In addition, the tenant must make certain that the asbestos handler is fully licensed and that he carries particular types of insurance in adequate amounts. The tenant also agrees to indemnify and hold the landlord harmless for any personal injury or property damage occurring as a result of the asbestos abatement efforts.

Finally, it should be noted that any tenant willing to assume the high cost and the inherent risks of asbestos abatement procedures should be certain that both the unit he is renting and the lease terms justify the expenditure and risks. The monthly rental fee and the length of the lease term should be favorable to the tenant so that he can recoup his investment. In addition, to make the tenant's investment truly worthwhile, he might insist on the insertion into the lease of a clause giving him an option to purchase the apartment at the end of the lease term, or at least a right of first refusal to purchase the stock.

FORM

AGREEMENT made this _____ day of _____, _____ [insert date], between _____ [insert name of landlord], residing at _____ (hereafter referred to as "Landlord"), and _____ [insert name of tenant], residing at _____ (hereafter referred to as "Tenant").

WITNESSETH:

WHEREAS, Landlord is the owner of certain shares in a Cooperative Apartment Building Corporation, together with a proprietary lease for a unit in the corresponding building; and

WHEREAS, Tenant desires to lease Landlord's unit in said building,

NOW, in consideration of the mutual promises contained herein, it is agreed as follows:

1. Lease. Landlord hereby leases to Tenant Unit Number _____ (# _____) in the _____ [insert name] Cooperative Apartments, located at _____ Road/Street/Avenue in the City/Town/Municipality of _____, State of _____, together with the use of _____ (_____) _____ [insert number] parking space(s) as designated outside of the building.

2. Rental fee and lease term. The annual rental fee shall be the sum of $ _____, payable in equal monthly installments of $ _____, payable on the first day of each month, commencing on _____, _____ [insert date]. In addition, Tenant shall pay all assessments charged by the Board of Directors of the _____ [insert name of the cooperative corporation, e.g., Hillcrest Cooperative Apartments, Inc.] (hereafter "Board of Directors" or "Co-op"). These assessments shall include, but not be limited to, taxes, maintenance, landscaping, snow removal and common area charges. The current monthly payment for such charges is the sum of $ _____. Tenant acknowledges that this amount may increase. Tenant shall pay such charges directly to the Board of Directors. Tenant shall provide proof of payment to Landlord upon request.

The term of this Lease shall be for _____ (_____) [e.g., one (1)] year(s), commencing _____, _____ [insert date] _____, _____ [insert date], and terminating on _____, _____ [insert date].

3. Utilities. Tenant shall pay all costs for water, sewer, telephone, natural gas, electricity, cable television and garbage removal.

4. Renewal. Tenant may renew this Lease for two (2) successive one-year periods, provided that Tenant is not in default at the time of renewal. The terms of this Lease shall remain in full force and effect for each of the renewal periods, except that the annual rent for the first renewal period shall be $_____, and the annual rent for the second renewal period shall be $_____.

Tenant shall give notice of intent to renew at least _____ (_____) [insert number, e.g., two (2)] months prior to the end of the term.

5. Condition of premises. The parties acknowledge that the premises to be leased under the terms of this Lease are located in a building that was constructed in 1892. The common areas of the building were renovated when the building was made into a cooperative in _____ [insert year]. However, individual units have only been renovated by their proprietary tenants. Tenant accepts the unit in its "as is" condition.

6. Asbestos. The unit to be leased hereunder may possess asbestos-containing material in ceiling tiles and on the exposed heating pipes in the living room and bedrooms, and elsewhere within the unit.

Tenant, at his sole cost and expense, agrees to have appropriate testing performed by a certified laboratory to determine whether asbestos-containing material is located within the unit. In the event that asbestos-containing material is found, Tenant shall have a licensed asbestos handler abate the asbestos by either removing it or containing it, again at Tenant's sole expense.

Prior to the asbestos handler commencing work, Tenant shall obtain Landlord's approval of the asbestos abatement contract between Tenant and the contractor. Tenant shall require that the licensed asbestos contractor maintain:

(1) liability insurance in at least the amount of $_____ (for each claim of personal injury);

(2) workers' compensation insurance in the minimum amount required by law; and

(3) property damage insurance in the amount of $_____.

Landlord and Tenant shall be named as additional insureds on the insurance policies. The insurance policies shall contain a provision requiring _____ (_____) _____ [insert number] days' notice to Landlord prior to cancellation of any policy by the insurer.

Tenant shall have air testing performed at the completion of abatement to be sure that the abatement was successful. Levels of airborne asbestos particles within the leased premises after the abatement procedures have been completed must not exceed levels deemed acceptable by state authorities.

Tenant, his agents and employees shall comply with all federal, state and local laws, regulations and policies regarding testing for, and abatement of, asbestos-containing materials.

In the event that Tenant is required to have abatement procedures performed, Landlord shall give Tenant a credit against Tenant's monthly rental fee in the amount of $_____ per month for a period of _____.

_____ (_____) _____ [insert number] months.

Tenant shall indemnify, defend, and hold Landlord harmless from any costs or other expenses associated with claims arising out of any loss, injury to person, damage to property or violation of law--including judgments, legal fees and fines--due to the testing and abatement of asbestos contemplated by this Paragraph 6.

7. Contingencies. The parties hereto acknowledge that the rules of the Co-op prohibit the subleasing or assignment of a proprietary lease without the approval of the Board of Directors. Thus, the effectiveness of this Lease shall be contingent upon Landlord obtaining the approval of the Board of Directors on or before _____, _____ [insert date]. Landlord shall use due diligence in attempting to obtain such approval. Landlord shall provide all information, including, but not limited to, financial information, as the Board of Directors may request. Landlord shall make initial application for approval within _____ (_____) _____ [insert number] days after executing this Lease. In the event Landlord is unable to obtain approval by the date specified above, or if Landlord is rejected, this Lease shall be deemed terminated, and the security deposit shall be returned immediately.

8. Rules. Tenant agrees to comply with all rules and regulations of the Co-op now or hereafter in effect. Tenant shall notify Landlord immediately upon receipt of a notice of non-compliance or default from the Co-op. If the notice is a result of an act or omission of Tenant, Tenant shall immediately perform whatever acts may be necessary in order to cure the default. Tenant shall provide proof of the cure to Landlord.

9. Laws. Tenant, at his own cost and expense, shall promptly comply with all laws, rules and policies of all governmental authorities as they relate to the condition, use and occupancy of the unit by Tenant. Tenant shall notify Landlord immediately upon receipt of a notice indicating non-compliance. Tenant shall take all steps necessary or appropriate to bring the premises into compliance immediately. Tenant shall provide Landlord with proof of compliance.

10. Maintenance and repairs. Tenant shall contact Landlord and the Cooperative Board of Directors in the event any external repairs are required (e.g., replacement or repair of outside window shutters). Landlord shall be responsible for all plumbing and heating repairs, provided that such repairs are not occasioned by the act, neglect or omission of Tenant, his family, agents or invitees. All other repairs shall be made by Tenant at his sole cost and expense. Tenant shall make such repairs promptly and in a workmanlike manner. Tenant shall suffer no liens against the unit for the cost of labor, materials or otherwise in connection with repairs. Tenant shall maintain the premises in good order and repair at all times. Tenant shall return the premises in the same condition as existed at the commencement of this Lease, reasonable wear and tear excepted.

11. Alterations. Tenant may paint the premises without approval of the Landlord. Any other alterations shall be made only with the prior written approval of the Landlord. Landlord shall have the right to reject any proposals without cause.

12. Insurance. The parties acknowledge that the exterior structure of the unit is covered by the Cooperative's blanket insurance policy. The interior of the unit, including wall coverings and interior walls, carpeting, cupboards, appliances and personalty, must be covered by a homeowner's policy. Tenant shall obtain such a policy at his sole expense. The policy shall name Landlord and Tenant as co-insureds. The policy shall guarantee that Landlord will receive notice of cancellation at least _____ (_____) _____ [insert number] days prior to the effective date of cancellation.

13. Assignment and sublease. Tenant must not assign this Lease, sublet all or part of the premises, or permit any other person to use the premises without the prior approval of Landlord. If Tenant violates this provision, Landlord has the right to cancel the Lease Agreement, pursuant to Paragraph 16 ("Tenant's Default").

14. Entry by the landlord. The Tenant agrees to allow the Landlord to enter the leased premises at any reasonable hour in order to repair, inspect, install or work upon any fixture or equipment in said leased premises, and to perform such other work as the Landlord may deem necessary. In addition, Tenant agrees to permit Landlord and/or Landlord's Agent to show the premises to persons wishing to rent or purchase the same, during the reasonable hours of any day during the term of this Lease Agreement. Tenant will permit the usual notices of "For Rent" or "For Sale" to be placed upon conspicuous portions of the walls, doors or windows of said premises and remain thereon without hindrance or molestation. Prior to entry, Landlord will give Tenant _____ (_____) _____ [insert number] hours' notice in all non-emergency situations.

15. Fire or other casualty. In the event of damage to the leased premises by fire or other casualty, if the damage is such that, in the sole opinion of Landlord, the premises are still usable as a residence, this Lease shall remain in effect during the period when repairs are underway.

In the event that the premises are no longer usable as a residence, either party may cancel this Lease by giving notice to the other party within _____ (_____) _____ [insert number] days after the damage occurs. The Lease shall be deemed terminated as of the date the fire or other casualty occurred. If neither party elects to cancel, the rent shall be waived during the period from the occurrence of the fire or other casualty until repairs are completed. The term of this Lease shall be extended for a like period.

The parties shall cooperate in filing and settling insurance claims and obtaining repairs.

16. Tenant's default:

(a) Landlord may give _____ (_____) [e.g., five (5)] days' written notice to Tenant to correct any of the following defaults:

- (1) failure to pay rent or added rent on time;
- (2) improper assignment of the Lease Agreement;
- (3) improper subletting of all or part of the premises;
- (4) allowing another to use the premises without Landlord's prior consent;
- (5) unlawful conduct by Tenant or other occupant of the premises;
- (6) failure to abide by rules and regulations of the Co-op;
- (7) failure to fully perform any other term in the Lease Agreement.

(b) If Tenant fails to correct the default(s) specified in Subparagraph (a) within _____ (_____) [e.g., five (5)] days after receipt of notice, Landlord may cancel the Lease Agreement by giving Tenant a written notice stating the date upon which the lease term will end. On that date, the lease term and Tenant's rights under this Lease Agreement automatically end, and Tenant must leave the premises and return the keys to Landlord. However, Tenant continues to be responsible for rent, expenses, damages and losses up to the final day of the original lease term.

(c) If the Lease Agreement is canceled, or rent or added rent is not paid on time, or Tenant vacates the premises, Landlord may, in addition to other remedies, take either of the following steps:

(1) enter upon the premises and physically remove Tenant and any person or property; or

(2) bring an action for eviction or institute some other equivalent legal action designed to take back the premises.

17. Quiet enjoyment. The Landlord agrees that if the Tenant pays the rent and complies with all of the other terms and conditions of this Lease Agreement, then the Tenant may peaceably and quietly have, hold and enjoy the premises leased hereunder for the term of this Lease Agreement.

18. Additional obligations of tenant:

(a) Tenant agrees not to use any appliances, fixtures or plumbing facilities in the unit for any purpose other than that for which said items were designed. Any damage resulting from the misuse of such items shall be paid for by Tenant.

(b) Tenant shall arrange for vermin extermination at Tenant's sole expense, whenever required.

19. Security. Tenant has given security to Landlord in the amount of $ _____. If Tenant fully complies with all the terms of this Lease Agreement, Landlord will return the security after the lease term ends. If Tenant does not fully comply with the terms of this Lease Agreement, Landlord may use the security to pay amounts owed by Tenant, including damages. If Landlord sells the premises, Landlord may give the security to the Buyer. In such case, Tenant will look only to the Buyer for the return of the security.

20. Use of premises. Tenant shall use the unit solely as a residence and for no other purposes.

21. Notice. Any notice required to be given to Landlord shall be in writing and sent by certified mail, return receipt requested, to _____ at the following address: _____. Any notice required to be given to Tenant shall be in writing and sent by certified mail, return receipt requested, to _____ at the following address: _____.

Notice shall be deemed given when received.

22. Representations. This Agreement contains the entire understanding of the parties; there have been no representations made which are not contained herein.

23. Modifications. This Agreement may only be modified by a written amendment signed by all parties. An oral modification shall not be binding on either party.

24. Governing law. This Agreement shall be construed in accordance with the laws of the State of _____.

25. Waiver. Any failure by either party to enforce any right arising hereunder shall not be deemed a waiver of such right.

26. Parties upon whom binding. This Lease Agreement is binding upon the Landlord and the Tenant and their respective heirs, distributees, executors, administrators, successors and lawful assigns.

The parties hereto have set their hands the day and year first above written.

FORM 25.134 "Hazardous substance" defined

COMMENT

In the clause below, the term "hazardous substance" is defined as any substance deemed hazardous under one of four federal statutes enacted to protect the environment. These statutes, along with their citations to the United States Code, are listed in the clause. In addition, a "hazardous substance" is also defined as any substance deemed hazardous "under any other statute or regulation of any governmental authority ..." Hence, substances recognized as being hazardous under a state regulation would also be considered hazardous for the purposes of this clause.

FORM

For purposes of the lease, the term "hazardous substance" shall mean any substance deemed hazardous under any of the following statutes or under any other statute or regulation of any governmental authority: the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act, 42 USC § 9601 et seq.; the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act, 42 USC § 6901 et seq.; the Hazardous Material Transportation Act, 49 USC § 1801 et seq.; and the Toxic Substances Control Act, 15 USC § 2601 et seq.

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.135

FORM 25.135 Explanation of tenant's business operations

COMMENT

This form contains three sample descriptions of a tenant's proposed use of the leased property. Each description presumes that the property has been leased and will be used for business purposes.

The first clause envisions a situation where the leased premises will be used for both residential and business purposes. This situation arises frequently when the tenant is a professional person--such as a doctor, lawyer or accountant--who wishes to "work out of his home." In the first clause, the tenant is a veterinarian who provides services to her patients via a mobile clinic. The doctor intends to use the leased premises as both her residence and her business office, where she and her staff perform paperwork, keep records, etc. However, she will not treat animals on the leased premises.

The landlord requires assurance that any medical supplies which she stores on the leased premises will not render the property uninhabitable or increase the danger of fire. For example, certain forms of anesthesia can be highly combustible. The landlord also requires assurance that the doctor will not violate local zoning laws which prohibit the treatment of animals in a private residence.

The second clause is for use by a tenant who leases space in an office building or office complex. The tenant asserts that it does not use, in the normal course of its business activities, any substance which is deemed hazardous under federal, state or local environmental laws or regulations. However, the tenant is expressly permitted to use cleaning agents purchased at retail, even though such cleaning agents may contain substances which are toxic. The use of such agents is not considered to be a violation of the terms of the lease.

The final clause is for use where the tenant uses, stores or produces hazardous substances in the ordinary course of its business. (Such a tenant would include, for example, a chemical or pharmaceutical manufacturer.)

In the clause, the tenant agrees to adhere to all federal, state and local environmental laws and regulations and to allow the landlord to monitor the tenant's compliance with such laws and regulations by periodically inspecting the leased premises as well as the tenant's business records. The inspections may be conducted either by the landlord himself or by his agent. (Often, the landlord will hire an environmental consultant to conduct the inspections, since such a person would be more knowledgeable about EPA regulations than the landlord.) A violation of any of these provisions by the tenant constitutes grounds for termination of the lease.

Finally, the landlord should insist upon inserting in the lease an "indemnification and hold harmless" clause, whereby the tenant agrees to indemnify and hold the landlord harmless for the full cost of remediating any environmental mishap on the leased property caused by the tenant, his employees or agents. As added insurance, the landlord can insist upon the tenant coming up with a large security deposit, in cash, or an irrevocable letter of credit, in order to cover the clean up costs which may be incurred in the event that an environmental mishap occurs.

FORM

[Clause A: Combination Residential/Commercial Lease]

It is understood by the parties that Tenant is a doctor of veterinary medicine. It is Tenant's intent to maintain her business office in the leased residential premises. This will include storage of a small amount of supplies and pharmaceuticals, as well as Tenant's business records, such as her general ledger and patient records. Tenant may also have her business telephone and answering machine located within the leased premises. Tenant will not see, treat or harbor veterinary patients on or about the leased premises.

Tenant represents that none of the supplies or pharmaceuticals which she intends to store on the premises are "hazardous" substances, such as would make the premises uninhabitable if spilled or released, or such as would increase the risk of fire on the premises.

[Clause B: Commercial Lease--Office Space]

Tenant is a _____ [identify tenant's business or profession, e.g., licensed insurance agent]. Tenant does not use, in the normal course of his business activities, any substance which is deemed hazardous under federal, state, or local environmental laws or regulations.

However, Tenant does intend to use cleaning agents purchased at retail for the ordinary use for which those cleaning agents are intended. The parties recognize that some such agents may contain substances which are hazardous. Use of such agents shall not be a violation of the terms of this Lease.

[Clause C: Commercial Lease--Manufacturing Facility]

Tenant manufactures _____ [insert name of product(s) manufactured, e.g., artificial fingernails]. The product is sold at wholesale to distributors, who market and sell it at retail.

As a result of the manufacturing process, two hazardous substances are produced, to wit: (1) _____;
and (2) _____.

Tenant covenants and represents that the above substances will be handled, stored, and disposed of in strict compliance with all federal, state, and local laws, regulations and policies. Tenant shall allow Landlord, or his duly authorized agent, to inspect the premises and the environmental records maintained pursuant to law at any reasonable time during regular business hours in order to verify compliance.

Any violation of any law, regulation, or policy shall be grounds for immediate termination of this lease. Tenant shall be responsible for any costs and expenses incurred by Landlord to bring the premises into compliance with all federal, state, and local laws, regulations and policies, including, without limitation, reasonable attorneys' fees incurred by Landlord in responding to a claim and/or incurred by Landlord in enforcing this lease against Tenant.

C. LEASE OF REAL ESTATE

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.136

FORM 25.136 Tenant's duty to comply with all laws and orders (environmental and otherwise) relating to the leased premises

COMMENT

This form provides alternative clauses for use in commercial leases. The clauses require the tenant to comply with all laws and orders (environmental and otherwise) relating to the use and occupancy of the leased property.

The first clause is for use in a commercial lease. This clause allows the tenant to contest a compliance order issued by a government agency prior to complying with that order, so long as the tenant first notifies the landlord of the tenant's desire to contest, and so long as the failure to comply immediately will not subject the landlord to a criminal or civil penalty. (Such an order, for example, might require the tenant to clean up toxic or hazardous wastes discovered on the leased property. If the wastes were not deposited there by the tenant, he would certainly want to mount a legal challenge to the compliance order.) The purpose of this clause is to protect a tenant who is not legally responsible for complying with the order. In many cases, the landlord, rather than the tenant, may be responsible for compliance.

The second clause is also for use in a commercial lease. It requires the tenant to automatically comply with all requirements and orders imposed by governmental agencies pertaining to the use and occupancy of the leased premises. Unlike the first clause, this clause does not give the tenant the right to contest a compliance order; rather, he must adhere to it immediately.

If the tenant receives notice that the leased premises are in violation of any environmental law or regulation, or if the tenant becomes aware of any event or condition giving rise to a violation, then the tenant must give prompt notice of this fact to the landlord. The tenant must also immediately prepare and implement a plan for the repair, abatement or remediation of the violation. The full cost of preparing and executing the plan is borne by the tenant.

FORM

[Clause A: Commercial Lease]

Tenant shall comply with all laws, rules, orders and regulations of federal, state, county and municipal authorities, and with any directive issued pursuant to law by any public officer thereof, relating to the use and/or occupancy of the leased premises. In the event that any government agency finds that the Tenant, or its assignee or sublessee, is in violation of any such law, order, regulation or directive, then the following rules shall apply:

1. Tenant shall have the right, upon giving written notice to Landlord, to contest any obligations imposed upon Tenant pursuant to the provisions of this section and to defer compliance during the pendency of the contest proceedings, provided that the failure of Tenant to comply immediately will not subject Landlord to criminal prosecution, civil fine or other penalty.
2. Notwithstanding the foregoing, in the event that the alleged violation poses an imminent threat to public health, human life or the environment, Tenant shall immediately perform whatever actions may be required to abate the immediate threat. Thereafter, Tenant may contest the obligations and defer further compliance, as set forth above.

Tenant shall provide Landlord with copies of all documents served upon Tenant or his counsel, and served by Tenant or his counsel upon any governmental authority.

Failure of Tenant to comply with the provisions of this section shall be a default under the terms of this Lease and shall entitle Landlord to pursue all applicable remedies. In addition, Landlord shall be entitled to collect from Tenant any fines, penalties, expenses of defense (including attorneys' fees), expenses of compliance, and other damages incurred by Landlord by reason of Tenant's default under this section.

[Clause B: Commercial Lease--Another Clause]

Tenant shall, at Tenant's sole cost and expense, comply with all of the requirements and orders now in force, or which may hereafter be imposed, by all federal, state, county, municipal and other applicable governmental authorities, pertaining to Tenant's use and occupancy of the leased premises.

In the event Tenant receives a notice of violation from a governmental authority or becomes aware of an event or condition which would give rise to a violation, Tenant shall give prompt notice thereof to Landlord, including an accurate and complete written report of the event or condition. Tenant shall also provide to Landlord a written plan for the repair, abatement or remediation of the violation, as the case may be, including a timetable for completion of the plan. Tenant shall promptly execute the plan at his sole cost and expense.

In the event Tenant fails to perform any act required under this section, he shall be deemed in default under the terms of this Lease. Landlord shall be entitled to pursue all remedies available to him under section number _____ (_____), pertaining to defaults by the Tenant. In addition, Landlord shall be entitled to collect from Tenant any fines, penalties, expenses of repair, expenses of remediation (including professionals' expenses and consultants' fees), and all other direct and consequential damages incurred as a result of Tenant's default under this section.

FORM 25.137 Tenant's duty to comply with environmental laws and orders relating to the leased premises--another form

COMMENT

Like the preceding form, the clause below requires the tenant to comply fully and immediately with all environmental laws, regulations, statutes, ordinances, policies and orders issued by any governmental authority. It also imposes a number of other duties upon the tenant. For example, the tenant is required to obtain and keep in full force and effect any business permits or other government approvals mandated by the authorities.

FORM

Tenant agrees that it will comply fully and promptly with any and all environmental laws, regulations, statutes, ordinances, policies and orders issued by any federal, state, county or local governmental authority; that it will obtain, maintain in full force and effect, and strictly comply with any and all governmental permits, approvals and authorizations necessary for the conduct of its business operations; that it will supply Landlord with copies of any such permits, approvals and authorizations; that it will promptly notify Landlord of the expiration or revocation of any such permits, approvals and authorizations; and that it will promptly notify Landlord and supply Landlord with a copy of any notice of violation of any environmental law, regulation, statute, ordinance, policy or order Tenant receives.

FORM 25.138 Limitations on tenant's use of hazardous substances on leased premises

COMMENT

This form provides three alternative clauses regarding the use of hazardous substances on a leased premises.

The first clause is for use in a commercial lease. It flatly prohibits the use of hazardous substances on the leased premises.

The second alternative is for use in a commercial lease where the parties understand that hazardous substances will be used or produced on the leased premises. Such a clause would be necessary, for example, where the leased property is a factory and: (1) the tenant is the manufacturer of a product which can only be produced through the use of hazardous substances; or (2) the tenant is the manufacturer of a product which is itself a hazardous substance. The third clause provides, among other things, that the tenant shall not use, store, treat, transport, manufacture, handle or produce any hazardous substance on the leased premises without first obtaining all necessary approvals and permits and thereafter complying with the terms of those permits and approvals, as well as with the provisions of all relevant environmental laws, regulations, and policies.

FORM

[Clause A: Commercial Lease]

Tenant warrants, represents, covenants and agrees that Tenant shall not, at any time during the term of this Lease or any extensions or modifications thereof, use, store, treat, transport, manufacture, handle or produce any hazardous substance (as defined below) on the leased premises.

The term "hazardous substance" shall mean any substance deemed hazardous under any of the following statutes, or under any other statute or regulation of any governmental authority: the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act, 42 USC § 9601 et seq.; the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act, 42 USC § 6901 et seq.; the Hazardous Material Transportation Act, 49 USC § 1801 et seq.; and the Toxic Substances Control Act, 15 USC § 2601 et seq.

[Clause B: Commercial Lease--Another Form]

Tenant represents and agrees that Tenant shall not, at any time during the term of this Lease or any renewals thereof, use, store, treat, transport, manufacture, handle or produce any hazardous substance (as defined below) on the leased premises without first obtaining all necessary governmental approvals and permits and thereafter complying with the terms thereof, as well as with the provisions of all laws, regulations, and policies pertaining thereto which are now or hereafter in effect.

In addition, Tenant shall not use or occupy the leased premises or suffer the use or occupancy of the leased premises in violation of any environmental law (as defined below). Tenant shall not dispose of or allow the disposal of any hazardous substance on the leased premises, or operate a hazardous waste treatment, storage or disposal facility or site. Tenant shall not permit, create, or suffer the existence of any condition which could subject Landlord or Tenant to a "remedial," "removal" or "clean up" action, as those terms may be defined in any environmental law.

The term "hazardous substance" shall mean any substance deemed hazardous under any of the following statutes or under any other statute or regulation of any governmental authority: the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act, 42 USC § 9601 et seq.; the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act, 42 USC § 6901 et seq.; the Hazardous Material Transportation Act, 49 USC § 1801 et seq.; and the Toxic Substances Control Act, 15 USC § 2601 et seq.

Finally, the term "environmental law" shall mean any federal, state, county or municipal law, rule, ordinance, order or regulation which governs or relates to the environment, land use, zoning, public health, chemical use, public safety, sanitation, water, air, fish, wildlife and natural resources.

C. LEASE OF REAL ESTATE

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.139

FORM 25.139 Tenant must obtain insurance policy, bond or letter of credit--funds to be used to indemnify landlord in the event of adverse environmental occurrence on leased premises

COMMENT

This form is designed to give an extra dose of comfort and peace-of-mind to a landlord whose tenant acknowledges that he will use or produce hazardous substances on the leased property in the ordinary course of his business.

Normally, a commercial lease will contain an "indemnification and hold harmless" provision running from tenant to landlord, whereby the former agrees to indemnify and hold the latter harmless for the full cost of remediating an environmental mishap that occurs on the leased premises during the tenancy, such as the release or spillage of toxic chemicals into the air or ground water. However, despite the existence of such a provision, many landlords remain concerned over whether their tenants will have the financial resources necessary when the time arises to actually cover the cost of remediation and the cost of injury to person or property. These landlords are also aware that, under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act, 42 USC § 9601 et seq., the federal government is not bound by the provisions of a lease which make the tenant responsible for these costs. Rather, the federal government is free to pursue the landlord and force him to undertake the remediation at his own expense.

Accordingly, the lease clause below requires the tenant to obtain some form of financial security that will provide a source of funds in the event of an adverse environmental occurrence on the leased premises. This security may take the form of an environmental mishap insurance policy, a bond, or a letter of credit. The tenant must provide the landlord with proof of the existence of such security before taking possession of the premises, and the landlord must be the named insured, beneficiary or payee--as the case may be. The clause also sets forth the exact amount of security which the tenant must obtain.

FORM

The parties hereto recognize that Tenant will be using and/or producing substances which are deemed "hazardous" under certain federal and state laws and regulations. Such use and/or production will be in the ordinary course of Tenant's business and cannot be avoided. There are no substitute substances available which are not "hazardous" substances also.

The parties further recognize that Landlord needs adequate assurances that, in the event of an adverse environmental occurrence, such as a leak during storage, transportation, handling or disposal, or a release of one of these substances, Tenant will have sufficient financial resources to remediate the problem, as required by federal and state law, and to adequately compensate, for injury to person or property, third parties who may be affected by the adverse environmental occurrence.

The parties further recognize that under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act (CERCLA), 42 USC § 9601 et seq., the federal authorities are not required to recognize the hold harmless provision contained elsewhere in this Lease Agreement, whereby Tenant agrees to indemnify Landlord for the cost of remediation and injury to persons and property, among other things. The intent of the parties is to provide a source of funds to reimburse Landlord for such remediation costs and damages, should he be deemed liable therefor by any governmental authority or court of law.

Accordingly, Tenant shall obtain an insurance policy, bond or irrevocable letter of credit (hereafter "security"), in at least the amount of _____ Dollars ($ _____), which shall name Landlord as the insured, beneficiary or payee, as the case may be. The security shall be payable to Landlord in the event that an adverse environmental event occurs on the leased property. The term "an adverse environmental event" shall be defined as a release of a hazardous substance (as defined below) which is either sudden or occurs undetected over a period of time, which release either poses a threat to the quality of air, water, land, fish, wildlife or natural resources, or a threat of damage to persons or property, and which will require remediation under CERCLA.

The term "hazardous substance" shall mean any substance deemed hazardous under any of the following statutes, or under any other statute or regulation of any governmental authority: the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act, 42 USC § 9601 et seq.; the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act, 42 USC § 6901 et seq.; the Hazardous Material Transportation Act, 49 USC § 1801 et seq.; and the Toxic Substances Control Act, 15 USC § 2601 et seq., and the regulations promulgated thereunder.

It is the intent of the parties that Tenant be responsible for the expense of any clean up, remediation or damages. The security is to be provided as extra protection against such expenses.

Tenant shall provide proof of the existence of such security to Landlord before taking possession of the premises. Tenant shall also provide to Landlord proof of payment of any premium or fees in connection with the security. If an insurance policy is used, Tenant shall obtain a clause in the policy guaranteeing Landlord _____ (_____) days' notice prior to cancellation of the policy for any reason. In the event Tenant fails to pay a premium or fee when due, Landlord may pay the same and charge the cost thereof back to Tenant as additional rent. Such additional rent shall be due and payable on the first day of the month following the month in which Landlord made payment. Failure to maintain the required security throughout the duration of the Lease term, or to reimburse Landlord for its payment of a premium or fee, shall be an event of default under this Lease.

Tenant shall perform any act or produce any data which may be required by a company which agrees to provide the security. This may include, but shall not be limited to, undertaking an environmental site assessment, allowing periodic review of business records by the company, or releasing financial data and descriptions of business operations.

C. LEASE OF REAL ESTATE

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.140

FORM 25.140 Tenant's duty to give landlord notice of occurrence of environmental mishap on the leased premises and to undertake immediate remediation efforts

COMMENT

This clause, for use in a commercial lease, imposes on the tenant an affirmative duty to promptly notify the landlord in the event of an environmental accident on the leased premises.

The tenant is further required to undertake remediation efforts and to keep the landlord fully informed of the progress of these efforts. Before the remediation process begins, the landlord is entitled to have the tenant's plan of remediation reviewed by the landlord's environmental consultant at the tenant's expense. The tenant also agrees to perform the remediation in accordance with all applicable environmental laws and under the direction of appropriate governmental authorities if required.

Upon completion of the remediation efforts, the tenant must obtain a "sign-off" from the governmental authorities, i.e., a written statement attesting to the fact that the remediation undertaken by the tenant has been completely successful and that the environmental problem no longer exists. If the governmental authorities involved do not normally provide such a "no further action letter," then the tenant must enlist the services of an independent environmental consultant, acceptable to the landlord, who will determine whether the remediation has, indeed, been effective. If it has been effective, then the consultant will provide the landlord with its own "no further action letter," which will be treated by the parties as the functional equivalent of a governmental sign-off statement.

Finally, this clause should be coupled with an "indemnification and hold harmless" clause whereby the tenant agrees to indemnify the landlord and hold him harmless for any fines, penalties, damages or other expenses incurred by the landlord due to an environmental mishap caused by the tenant.

FORM

Tenant hereby covenants that he will give immediate notice to Landlord in the event of the occurrence of an adverse environmental event (as defined below). In any event, Tenant shall provide notice of such occurrence to Landlord within _____ (_____) hours of occurrence. Such notice may be given orally, by telephone or by facsimile (i.e., "fax") transmission. Thereafter, as is reasonably appropriate or necessary, Tenant shall provide Landlord with further written information as to the scope of the event, damage caused by the event, and remediation, containment and abatement efforts undertaken by Tenant as hereafter required.

The term "adverse environmental event" shall be defined as the release into the air, land or water of a hazardous substance (as defined below), which is either sudden or occurs over a period of time, which release either poses a threat to the quality of air, water, land, fish, wildlife or natural resources, or a threat of damage to person or property, and which will require remediation under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act (CERCLA), 42 USC § 9601, et seq. .

The term "hazardous substance" shall mean any substance deemed hazardous under any of the following statutes, or under any other statute or regulation of any governmental authority: the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act, 42 USC § 9601 et seq.; the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act, 42 USC § 6901 et seq.; the Hazardous Material Transportation Act, 49 USC § 1801 et seq.; and the Toxic Substances Control Act, 15 USC § 2601 et seq., and the regulations promulgated thereunder.

Within the time periods prescribed by law, Tenant will give notice of the occurrence to all federal, state and local authorities. Tenant shall provide Landlord with copies of such notice simultaneously.

Within _____ (_____) days after the occurrence, Tenant shall formulate a plan of remediation. Such plan shall include a schedule for completion. If required by law, Tenant will obtain approval of the plan by the appropriate federal, state or local authorities. Tenant shall also submit the plan to Landlord for his approval. Landlord, at Tenant's expense, may submit the plan to Landlord's environmental consultant for review and comment. Tenant shall incorporate any changes required by the government or said consultant into the plan.

Tenant shall commence execution of the plan within _____ (_____) days after receipt of governmental approval of the plan and receipt of comments from Landlord's consultant. Tenant shall diligently implement and adhere to the plan until completion. If, at any time, Tenant does not appear to be executing the plan in a timely fashion, Landlord shall give notice of such failure. If Tenant fails to act as a result of said notice, Landlord may terminate this Lease and complete the plan at Tenant's expense.

At the completion of the remediation, Tenant shall obtain written confirmation by the appropriate federal, state and local authorities, showing that the remediation is complete and that it was performed in accordance with all applicable laws and regulations. If said authorities do not provide such confirmation in the ordinary course of business, then Tenant shall obtain such confirmation from an environmental consultant acceptable to Landlord. If the remediation is determined not to be complete by the consultant or the governmental authority, Tenant shall continue to remediate until the consultant or governmental authority deems the remediation complete.

In the following form, the tenant makes a long series of promises to the landlord. First, the tenant promises to immediately notify the landlord upon learning of the occurrence of an environmental mishap either upon the leased premises, or upon an adjacent piece of property, if such mishap contaminates or poses a danger of contamination to the leased premises. Second, the tenant covenants to immediately notify the landlord upon learning that:

FORM 25.142 Tenant's duty to maintain accurate and complete records regarding presence of toxic and/or hazardous substances on leased premises and to provide access to all such records when requested by landlord

COMMENT

This clause is to be inserted into a commercial lease where the tenant intends to use, store, handle or manufacture toxic and/or hazardous substances on the leased premises during the term of the lease. The clause imposes upon the tenant a duty to maintain accurate and complete records regarding the presence of such toxic and/or hazardous substances on the premises and to provide access to all such records when requested by the landlord.

Under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act (CERCLA), 42 USC § 9601 et seq., a landlord may be required to remediate an environmental mishap caused by his tenant on the leased premises; accordingly, it is vitally important for the landlord, in some way, to monitor the tenant's activities regarding the use, handling, storage and manufacture of the toxic and/or hazardous substances. By reviewing the tenant's records periodically, the landlord will have some knowledge as to whether the tenant is complying with applicable environmental laws.

FORM

It is acknowledged and understood by the parties hereto that Tenant, in the ordinary course of his business, uses and/or produces substances which are deemed toxic and, in some instances, hazardous, under various state and federal laws and regulations. Tenant could not operate his business and produce his products without the use of these substances.

Tenant covenants that he, his employees, agents and contractors will use all toxic and/or hazardous substances in strict compliance with all federal, state and municipal laws, regulations and policies. Tenant will not allow any deviation from good practice in the use, storage, handling or disposal of such substances. Tenant will obtain and maintain all necessary licenses and permits. Tenant will be sure that his employees, agents and contractors are thoroughly trained and properly supervised in the use, storage, handling and disposal of all such substances.

Tenant covenants that he will keep complete and accurate records of the purchase, use, storage and disposal of all toxic and/or hazardous substances which are brought onto, or created on, the subject premises in accordance with all applicable federal and state laws and regulations. Tenant will further maintain a complete and accurate record of any deviations from the law in the use, handling, storage and disposal of any toxic or hazardous substance, as well as a complete and accurate record of any injury to person or property caused by any toxic or hazardous substance kept on the leased premises. A copy of this record shall be provided to Landlord within _____ (_____) hours of the occurrence of any deviation or injury.

Tenant shall provide access to Landlord to all records maintained by Tenant with regard to the toxic and/or hazardous substances. Lender may review such records at Tenant's site during regular business hours upon at least _____ (_____) hours' advance notice to Tenant. Tenant shall provide Landlord with copies of such records as Landlord may reasonably require. Landlord agrees to keep all such records strictly confidential and to use such records only for the purposes of managing the business relationship between Landlord and Tenant. This requirement of confidentiality shall survive the expiration of this lease and shall bind Landlord in perpetuity. Notwithstanding the foregoing, Landlord may produce copies of whatever records it may possess pursuant to a duly-authorized subpoena of any governmental authority. Landlord shall not be required to appeal or challenge such a subpoena on Tenant's behalf.

Failure to maintain the records required hereunder or to provide access to Landlord shall be an event of default under the terms of this lease.

FORM 25.143 Landlord is entitled to review tenant's environmental records--another form

COMMENT

This is another clause, intended for insertion into a lease, empowering a landlord to review all records maintained by the tenant that are either pertinent to environmental laws and regulations affecting the subject premises, or concern the use, production or presence of hazardous or toxic substances or wastes on the premises. The clause provides that once the landlord requests a review of these records, both parties will select a mutually agreeable time for the review to take place.

FORM

Tenant recognizes that, at any time during the term of the Lease, Landlord may request to review any and all records maintained by Tenant that either: (1) pertain to environmental laws and regulations (whether federal, state or local in origin) affecting the subject premises; or (2) concern the use, production or presence of hazardous/toxic substances and/or hazardous/toxic wastes at said premises. When such a request is made, the Tenant shall agree to schedule a time, mutually agreeable to both Landlord and Tenant, for the former to review the relevant records. Such records shall include, but not be limited to, environmental site assessments, laboratory reports, etc.

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.144

FORM 25.144 Tenant's duty to perform environmental site assessment upon request of landlord

COMMENT

This clause should be inserted into a commercial lease whenever the landlord is aware that the tenant will be using or producing hazardous substances in the ordinary course of its business.

The clause states that, in the event the landlord becomes aware of evidence which would indicate that an environmental problem exists on the leased premises, the landlord may require the tenant to obtain an environmental site assessment to determine the exact nature and extent of the problem. In addition, the landlord may require the tenant to perform whatever remedial action is recommended by the consultant who performed the assessment, or whatever remedial action is required by law. The failure of the tenant to perform any of these tasks is considered to be a default under the terms of the lease. Lastly, this form requires the tenant to undertake an environmental assessment at the conclusion of the lease term.

FORM

Tenant has disclosed to Landlord that Tenant, in the ordinary course of his business, uses or produces certain substances that are listed as hazardous substances under federal and/or state laws or regulations. [Optional: Tenant has not revealed the exact substances and their uses, as Tenant deems those to be trade secrets.] In order to induce Landlord to lease the property to Tenant, Tenant agrees to perform, at Tenant's own expense, an environmental site assessment at any time upon the request of Landlord. Landlord shall be entitled to make such request annually or at any time that Landlord has any plausible evidence (either written, oral, or visual) that a release of hazardous substances may have occurred, as that term is defined in the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act, 42 USC § 9601, et seq. Landlord shall give written notice to Tenant, specifying the evidence of release and demanding an environmental site assessment. Further, upon termination of the lease, Tenant shall cause an environmental site assessment to be completed.

When required, pursuant to the terms hereof, Tenant, at his expense, will then arrange for an immediate environmental site assessment by an environmental consultant acceptable to Landlord. This assessment shall include whatever investigation, sampling, and laboratory analysis is deemed necessary by the consultant to determine: (1) whether a release has occurred; (2) the exact nature of the problem; (3) the scope of the problem; and (4) the procedures required to eliminate it.

At the demand of the Landlord, Tenant, at his sole cost and expense, shall immediately undertake the procedures specified by the consultant to eliminate the environmental problem, if any. In the event Tenant fails to fulfill any of his obligations under the terms of this section, Landlord shall be entitled to declare Tenant in default under the terms of this Lease and terminate the agreement. In the event Landlord terminates this Lease for such default, Tenant shall remain liable for the unpaid rent due under the Lease, as well as for any damages to the leased premises, including, but not limited to, the costs of remediation, consultants and attorneys' fees, fines, and penalties incurred by Landlord, together with all consequential damages.

C. LEASE OF REAL ESTATE

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.145

FORM 25.145 Tenant's duty to notify landlord of discovery of adverse environmental condition during tenant's excavations on leased premises--tenant agrees to have environmental site assessment performed--tenant has option to remediate adverse condition or to abandon leased property

COMMENT

The following clause, to be used in a commercial ground lease, presumes that the tenant, after the leased is executed, will perform extensive excavations on the leased premises in order to construct one or more buildings for the tenant's own use. The parties realize that, during the course of such excavations, it is possible that the tenant will discover the existence of an adverse environmental condition buried beneath the premises. (This language could also be extended to unforeseen conditions which will make the construction significantly more expensive.) The purpose of this clause is to establish responsibility for remediating such conditions.

It should be noted that any tenant who intends to make the kind of huge financial investment required to build a new structure on leased premises would be prudent to order (at the very least) a phase I environmental site assessment before signing the lease. If a lender is being used, the lender would most certainly require an assessment. A phase I assessment will provide the prospective tenant with historical information regarding past owners and tenants of the leased premises, business uses to which they put the property, etc. From this information, the prospective tenant should be able to glean whether a danger exists that the property may be contaminated. If such a danger exists, then a phase II site assessment--which includes the analysis of soil, water and air samples--should be ordered.

In any event, under the terms of this lease clause, the tenant agrees to promptly notify the landlord following the discovery of a possible adverse environmental condition during the excavations. In such case, the tenant, at his expense, must arrange for an immediate environmental site assessment by an environmental consultant who is acceptable to the landlord. This assessment will include the investigation, sampling, laboratory analysis, and other efforts deemed necessary by the consultant to determine the nature of the adverse environmental condition, the scope of the problem, and the procedures required to eliminate it.

Thereafter, the tenant, at his sole expense, must undertake all work required to eliminate the adverse environmental condition. If the tenant refuses to do so, then the landlord may terminate the lease agreement. However, the tenant will not be liable for any future rental payments called for by the lease. Nor will the tenant be responsible for the cost of remediating the adverse environmental condition, or for any of the costs incurred by the landlord in re-renting the property. Conversely, the tenant will not be entitled to recover any of the money it lost in the venture.

If, on the other hand, the tenant does undertake remediation efforts, then the tenant will be entitled to a complete abatement of rent from the date of discovery of the condition requiring remediation to the completion of remediation. In addition, the tenant will receive an extension of the lease for the same period of time. The tenant will also be entitled to reduce his future monthly rent payments by 50 percent for three years, or until he has recovered one-half of the cost of remediation, whichever period expires sooner.

FORM

It is the understanding of the parties to this Lease Agreement that, in the course of construction, Tenant may be performing extensive excavation activities. The parties acknowledge that unforeseen adverse environmental conditions may be found during the course of excavation. The purpose of this section is to establish responsibility for remediating those conditions.

Tenant covenants that he will notify Landlord within _____ (_____) hours of discovery of any unforeseen site conditions which may constitute an adverse environmental condition on the premises subject to this Lease.

In such case, Tenant, at his expense, will arrange for an immediate environmental site assessment by an environmental consultant reasonably acceptable to Landlord. This assessment shall include the investigation, sampling, laboratory analysis, and other work deemed necessary by the consultant to determine the nature of the adverse environmental condition, the scope of the environmental condition, and the procedures required to eliminate the adverse environmental condition.

Tenant, at his sole cost and expense, shall undertake all work required to eliminate the adverse environmental condition. Tenant shall undertake all work in strict compliance with all federal, state and local laws, regulations and policies.

The failure of Tenant to perform, as required hereunder, shall be deemed a default under the terms of this Lease. In such case, Landlord shall be entitled to terminate the Lease, as provided in section number _____ (_____) hereof, pertaining to defaults by the tenant. Landlord shall be entitled to exercise any of his rights which arise upon the occurrence of a default. However, Landlord shall not be entitled to recover: (1) any damages from Tenant due to Tenant's failure to perform; or (2) payment of future rent, or Landlord's costs of remediating the adverse environmental condition or re-renting the premises. Conversely, Tenant shall not be entitled to recover any of its loss of investment in the leased property from Landlord.

In the event Tenant does undertake remediation efforts, Tenant shall be entitled to a complete abatement of rent from the date of discovery of the condition requiring remediation to the completion of remediation. In addition, Tenant shall receive an extension of the Lease for the same period of time. Tenant shall be entitled to reduce his future monthly rent payments by 50 percent (50%) for three (3) years, or until he has recovered one-half of the cost of remediation (including all consulting expenses), whichever period expires sooner.

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.146

FORM 25.146 Prohibition on use of natural resources by tenant

COMMENT

This clause may be inserted into a commercial or residential lease. It presumes that the tenant is leasing a house or other structure located on a large tract of land in some rural area of the country, and that the land contains various valuable natural resources. The purpose of the clause is to prohibit the tenant from harvesting these resources for his own personal consumption or for profit. For example, the tenant is strictly forbidden from harvesting fish, wildlife, timber, or from drilling or mining for water, crude oil, natural gas or shale.

There are two reasons why a landlord would insist on the inclusion of such a provision in a lease. First, he may intend to harvest and sell these natural resources himself. Second, he may have already entered into a contract with a third party, granting the party the right to harvest and sell these resources. (In such case, the landlord would normally receive a percentage of the sales revenue as his compensation.)

When inserting this clause into a lease, it should be placed immediately following the description of the leased premises and clearly identified as a limitation on the tenant's leasehold estate.

FORM

It is expressly understood that the rights of use granted to Tenant herein include the building contained thereon and the ground immediately surrounding said building. The term "immediately surrounding" shall mean the surface area within _____ (_____) feet of the building or of the property line, whichever is the shorter distance.

Tenant shall have no right to enter upon any land which extends beyond the immediate surroundings of the building. Tenant covenants, for himself, his employees, agents, invitees, and subtenants, that no one shall enter said land at any time during the term of this Lease or any extensions thereof. Landlord specifically reserves unto himself all rights of occupancy and use to the area not immediately surrounding the building.

It is further understood and agreed that Tenant, his employees, agents, invitees and subtenants are strictly forbidden from doing any of the following:

- (1) harvesting fish, deer, or other wildlife on the premises;
- (2) harvesting timber, whether standing or fallen, from the premises;
- (3) mining shale or other rock or mineral substances from the premises;
- (4) using or diverting any naturally-occurring water courses existing on or below the premises, including streams, springs or underground sources;
- (5) accessing or using any oil, natural gas or other potential energy sources existing naturally on or under the premises; and
- (6) using or removing any soil, including topsoil or fill on the premises.

In the event that Tenant violates any of the provisions contained in this section, Landlord shall be entitled to declare Tenant in default under the provisions of section number _____ (_____) of this Lease Agreement. In addition to any rights and remedies contained therein, Landlord shall be entitled to recover from Tenant treble damages for any violation which involves the specific prohibitions contained in the immediately preceding paragraph, with a minimum recovery of _____ Dollars ($_____) per violation. Each improper act of harvesting, mining, using or removing a natural resource shall be deemed a separate and distinct violation for the purposes of this Agreement. Tenant shall be strictly liable for any violation performed by or suffered at the hands of his employees, agents, invitees and subtenants.

The damages provided for in this section shall be separate, distinct and in addition to any damages, fines or penalties, either civil or criminal, imposed by any governmental authority with jurisdiction over the same activities. Dismissal of charges by a governmental authority shall not be dispositive of Landlord's private right of action against Tenant. However, imposition of a penalty or a determination of guilt by a governmental authority for the same action complained of by Landlord shall be prima facie proof of a violation in an action by Landlord against Tenant under this section.

FORM 25.147 Permission granted by landlord for tenant's use of natural resources located on leased premises--payment schedule--reforestation requirements--land rehabilitation requirements

COMMENT

The following form may either be inserted into a lease, or it may function as a separate agreement entered into by the landlord and tenant at the time the lease is executed or sometime thereafter. The form allows a tenant to use certain natural resources found on the leased premises. These include:

- (1) water;
- (2) soil;
- (3) shale;
- (4) timber; and
- (5) oil or natural gas.

The form also imposes limitations on the tenant's use of such resources.

Of course, not all of the natural resources listed above will be applicable in every case where a tenant seeks to use natural resources located on the leased premises. Accordingly, counsel for the landlord and tenant should modify the form below to provide for their clients' needs and unique situation.

This form would be used where a tenant seeks to lease the land primarily to harvest the resources contained there. Alternatively, it may be used where the tenant expects to do a great deal of clearing, excavation and construction, and wishes to offset some of his expenses by selling some of the resources (e.g., soil, timber) he would otherwise have to dispose of at his own cost.

A landlord should grant to his tenant only those rights to use natural resources which will prove financially beneficial to the landlord without being detrimental to the land. The form below includes a payment schedule, providing the landlord with a percentage of the proceeds the tenant receives from the sale of the natural resources to third parties. The form also guarantees the landlord the right to review the tenant's books and records to insure that the tenant is complying with the terms and conditions of the lease.

In addition, the tenant is required to obtain all necessary governmental approvals and permits at his own expense, and to comply at all times with all federal, state and local laws, regulations and policies. Finally, the form provides that, after removing soil, timber, shale, etc., from the leased property, the tenant must restore the property to its original state by grading and seeding the land and replanting trees and shrubbery.

FORM

It is understood and agreed by the parties hereto that, in addition to the use and occupancy of any structures now standing or hereafter to be erected on the leased premises, Tenant shall be entitled to the use of certain natural resources located on the leased premises, subject to the limitations contained herein:

1. Water. "Water" shall include streams, springs and underground water sources. Tenant shall be entitled to use the water in, on and below the leased premises, provided that his use does not permanently reduce the amount of water available in, on and below the land. Prior to commencing use of the water sources, Tenant shall obtain a written opinion from a hydro-engineer, geologist, environmental consultant or other expert acceptable to Landlord, certifying the maximum volume of use by Tenant. The term "maximum volume of use" shall mean that amount which Tenant may use on a daily basis without permanently reducing the availability of a similar daily volume of water in the foreseeable future.

Tenant's use of water shall be restricted to the maximum volume certified by the expert. Any use beyond that amount certified by the expert shall constitute a default under the terms of this Lease. Tenant shall not be required to separately pay Landlord for water, provided that he does not exceed the certified maximum volume. In the event that Tenant uses more than the certified maximum volume, Tenant shall pay Landlord _____ (_____) times the per gallon water rate charged to residential water customers in the Town/City/Municipality of _____ [name], for each gallon of water used by Tenant that exceeds said certified maximum volume.

Tenant, at his own expense, shall attach a meter onto the water system which Tenant installs. Such meter shall measure and record the daily volume of water used. Tenant shall maintain complete and accurate records of such use during the term of this Lease and any extensions thereof. Landlord shall be entitled to review and copy these records at any time. If, at any time, the records indicate water use by Tenant beyond the certified maximum volume, Landlord may require Tenant to install a device which will automatically turn off the flow of water when the certified maximum volume has been reached on any given day.

Landlord may require a new certification to be performed by a hydro-engineer, geologist, environmental consultant or other expert acceptable to Landlord, at Tenant's expense, no more frequently than once in each year. The new certification shall govern until the next certification is performed.

2. Soil. "Soil" shall include sand, topsoil and other soils located on the premises. Tenant may remove and dispose of soils, as required for excavation and construction on the site, if such soils are not to be used on site at the completion of excavation and construction.

In the event Tenant sells such soils, Tenant shall collect and remit any sales or use tax which may be due on such sale. Tenant shall remit to Landlord _____ percent (_____%) of the gross proceeds of such sale. The term "gross proceeds" shall mean total sales price, not including taxes. Tenant shall bear all costs of sale, shipping, excavation and other associated expenses.

Tenant shall maintain complete and accurate records of each such sale. Landlord shall be entitled to review and copy said records at any time. Such records shall include, at a minimum, the date of sale, name, address and tax identification number of purchaser, the number of cubic yards of soil purchased, the purchase price, the amount of tax collected and the date on which the tax was remitted to the appropriate authority. Landlord shall be paid his share of the proceeds within _____ (_____) days after receipt of the sales price by Tenant.

Tenant shall grade and seed the area from which the soil was removed upon completion of construction and excavation, so as to restore the premises to a safe and visually-pleasing condition. If needed, Tenant shall install erosion prevention devices and plantings to insure the stability of the land.

Failure to maintain complete and accurate records, or to otherwise perform the obligations set forth above, shall be an event of default under the terms of this lease agreement.

3. Shale. Tenant may excavate and sell any shale which may be located on the premises [optional: in order to facilitate the construction on the premises]. Such shale shall not be sold for less than _____ Dollars ($_____) per ton. Tenant shall remit to Landlord _____ percent (_____%) of the gross proceeds of each sale. Tenant shall be responsible for all costs of sale, including, but not limited to, excavation and shipping. Tenant shall collect and promptly remit to the appropriate governmental authority any sales or other tax which may be due as a result of the sale. Such tax shall not be considered part of the gross proceeds of sale. Landlord shall be paid his share of the proceeds within _____ (_____) days after receipt of the sale price by Tenant.

Tenant shall maintain complete and accurate records of each such sale. Landlord shall be entitled to review and copy said records at any time. Such records shall include, at a minimum, the date of sale, name, address and tax identification number of purchaser, the number of tons of shale purchased, the purchase price, the amount of tax collected and the date on which the tax was remitted to the appropriate authority.

Tenant shall grade and seed the area from which the shale was removed upon completion of excavation, so as to restore the premises to a safe and visually-pleasing condition. If needed, Tenant shall install erosion-prevention devices and plantings to insure the stability of the land.

Failure to maintain complete and accurate records, or to otherwise perform the obligations set forth above, shall be an event of default under the terms of this lease agreement.

4. Timber. Tenant may harvest or cause to be harvested all merchantable timber situated on the leased premises. Tenant shall not sell said timber for less than _____ Dollars ($_____) per board foot, or _____ Dollars ($_____) per standing acre. Tenant shall remit to Landlord _____ percent (_____%) of the gross proceeds of sale. Alternatively, Tenant may deliver, to a location designated by Landlord, _____ percent (_____%) of the hard and soft wood as felled by Tenant. Tenant shall be responsible for all costs of sale, including cutting, hauling, shipping and stump removal. Upon completion, Tenant shall grade and seed the area or replant the area with trees, using good conservation techniques in order to prevent erosion and top-soil depletion.

Tenant shall collect and promptly remit to the appropriate governmental authority any sales or other tax which may be due as a result of the sale. Such tax shall not be considered part of the gross proceeds of the sale. Landlord shall be paid his share of the proceeds within _____ (_____) days after receipt of the sale price by Tenant.

Tenant shall maintain complete and accurate records of each such sale. Landlord shall be entitled to review and copy said records at any time. Such records shall include, at a minimum, the date of sale, name, address and tax identification number of purchaser, the number of timber acres or board feet purchased, the purchase price, the amount of tax collected, and the date on which the tax was remitted to the appropriate authority.

Failure of Tenant to perform any of the obligations set forth above shall be an event of default under the terms of this lease agreement. In addition, Landlord shall be entitled to treble damages for any tree not accounted for by Tenant in his records.

5. Oil and Natural Gas. Tenant may grant leases for exploration and development of natural gas and oil. The terms of such leases may not exceed the term of this Lease Agreement and may not include any extensions of the said Lease Agreement. The form of such leases must be approved, in writing, by Landlord. Landlord may withhold approval without reason or cause. Said leases must provide that no exploration or construction of wells, pipelines or other facilities shall occur within _____ (_____) feet of any structure on the premises. In addition, the Tenant must place either an artificial barrier or trees and other natural screenings to shield the structures from view of the facilities.

Landlord shall be entitled to _____ percent (_____) of the annual rental fees and _____ percent (_____) of the royalties paid to Tenant, assuming, of course, that oil or gas is extracted. Alternatively, if the leases so provide, Landlord may elect to accept payment in gas or oil.

Tenant shall be responsible for any sales or other tax which may result from the transaction. Tenant shall promptly remit such tax and provide Landlord with proof thereof.

Tenant shall maintain complete and accurate records of the payments received under said leases. Landlord shall be entitled to review and copy such records. Tenant shall return the landscape of the leased premises to its original condition at the termination of such leases, to the satisfaction of Landlord.

(A) Tenant to obtain all necessary permits. Tenant shall obtain all necessary permits from all governmental authorities prior to making use of any natural resources. Tenant shall provide Landlord with a copy of the permit application, prior to submission, and the issued permit. Tenant shall maintain such permits in full force and effect throughout the term of this Lease, or for so long as Tenant is utilizing the natural resources.

(B) Tenant to comply with all laws. Tenant shall, at all times during the term of this lease and any extensions thereof, comply fully with all laws, regulations and policies of any nature, of the federal, state and municipal governments, as they relate to Tenant's use of the natural resources on the leased premises. Tenant shall promptly notify Landlord in the event Tenant receives any notification that he is in violation of any such law, regulation, or policy. Tenant shall take any and all steps necessary to correct any violations within the time limit set by law or within _____ (_____) days, whichever period shall be shorter.

(C) Indemnification and hold harmless. Tenant shall indemnify and hold Landlord harmless against any claim of any nature, including, but not limited to, a claim for fines, penalties and taxes, or injury to person or property, arising out of or in connection with Tenant's use of the leased property or any natural resource contained thereon.

(D) Liability insurance. Tenant shall maintain in full force and effect, in addition to any other insurance required under the terms of this Lease, liability insurance in the amount of _____ Dollars ($_____) during the period of time in which natural resources are being extracted. If Tenant shall contract for services in the extraction of resources, Tenant shall require the contractor to carry such insurance. On all policies of insurance, Landlord shall be named as an additional insured. Copies of the certificates of insurance shall be provided to Landlord prior to the Tenant commencing work. All policies of insurance shall contain a provision giving Landlord _____ (_____) days' written notice prior to cancellation.

(E) Default. In the event that Tenant defaults under the terms of this Lease by violating one or more provisions contained in this section, in addition to the rights and remedies contained in Paragraph number _____ (_____) hereof regarding defaults, Landlord shall be entitled to compensatory damages for any natural resources consumed or removed in violation of this section. Landlord shall be entitled to recover his legal fees expended in any proceeding to enforce his rights under this section.

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.148

FORM 25.148 Tenant's duty to indemnify and hold landlord harmless

COMMENT

This form provides three alternative indemnification and hold harmless provisions, whereby the tenant agrees to indemnify and hold the landlord harmless.

The first is a very general indemnification and hold harmless provision which may be inserted into any lease, whether residential or commercial. It protects the landlord against any claim or expense of any kind arising out of the lease or out of the tenant's use and/or occupation of the premises.

The second alternative is a very lengthy indemnification and hold harmless provision geared towards protecting the landlord from claims and expenses arising out of: (1) an environmental mishap on the leased premises; or (2) a failure by the tenant to comply with the terms of an order or other ruling issued by a government agency with regulatory authority over environmental matters concerning the leased property, or any activity carried on at the property by the tenant.

It should be remembered that the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act-- 42 USC § 9601, et seq. --provides that, in imposing liability for clean up costs, the federal government is not required to recognize the effectiveness of any indemnification or hold harmless agreement which shifts or allocates responsibility among statutorily-responsible parties. In other words, if a tenant contaminates the leased property, the federal government is free to seek payment for all or part of the clean up costs from the landlord--even in the presence of an indemnification and hold harmless agreement granted by the tenant and intended to protect the landlord.

FORM

[Alternative A:]

Tenant shall defend, indemnify and hold Landlord harmless from and against any and all claims, demands, penalties, fines, liabilities, settlements, damages, costs and/or expenses of any kind or nature--including legal fees and expenses for expert witnesses and consultants--arising out of, or in any way connected with, this Lease Agreement and/or Tenant's use and/or occupation of the subject premises. This indemnification shall survive the end of the term of this Lease, and any extensions thereof, and shall inure to the benefit of Landlord, his heirs, successors and assigns.

[Alternative B:]

Tenant will defend and indemnify Landlord and will hold Landlord harmless from and against any and all claims, losses, damages, liabilities, fines, penalties, charges, administrative and judicial actions or proceedings, and orders, judgments, remedial action requirements or enforcement actions of any kind, and all costs and expenses whatsoever incurred in connection therewith--including, but not limited to, attorneys', consultants' and/or engineering fees and expenses--arising, directly or indirectly, in whole or in part, out of or in connection with:

(1) the presence of any hazardous or toxic waste, hazardous or toxic substance, or the discharge, spillage or other release or filtration of any hazardous or toxic waste or hazardous or toxic substance on, in, about or under the leased property, or emanating from or otherwise originating at the leased property;

(2) any failure by Tenant to comply with the terms of any order or other ruling or decision issued by any federal, state or municipal government department or agency having regulatory authority over environmental matters regarding the leased property, or regarding any activity carried on or undertaken at the leased property by Tenant or any employees, agents, contractors or subcontractors of Tenant, or by any third persons or parties at any time occupying or present at or upon the leased property;

(3) any lien, claim, assessment or other charge imposed upon or against the leased property, or against Tenant with respect to the leased property, by any federal, state or municipal government department or agency having regulatory authority over environmental matters pursuant to any statute, regulation or order now in effect or hereafter enacted or promulgated;

(4) any diminution in the fair market value of the leased property caused by, arising out of, or in any way relating to or connected with any circumstances, occurrence or activity contemplated by Subparagraphs (1) through (3), above.

As used herein, the terms "hazardous or toxic waste" and "hazardous or toxic substance" shall have the same meanings as defined and used in any of the following (the "Acts"): the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act, 42 USC § 9601 et seq.; the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act, 42 USC § 6901 et seq.; the Hazardous Material Transportation Act, 49 USC § 1801 et seq.; and the Toxic Substances Control Act, 15 USC § 2601 et seq., and the regulations promulgated thereunder.

This indemnification and hold harmless provisions shall survive the termination of this Lease for whatever reason and shall inure to the benefit of Landlord, its heirs, successors and assigns.

C. LEASE OF REAL ESTATE

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.149

FORM 25.149 Landlord's disclaimer regarding condition of leased premises--agreement by tenant to accept premises in "as is" condition

COMMENT

In this form, which may be added to any residential or commercial lease, the landlord refuses to make any representation to the tenant about the condition of the leased premises, and the tenant agrees to accept the leased property "as is."

Accordingly, it is the responsibility of the tenant to inspect for and discover any defects on the premises before executing the lease.

Such a broad disclaimer may be insisted upon by a landlord for a variety of reasons. First, the landlord may be a new owner of the premises who knows little or nothing about its history, prior owners, the uses to which they put the property, or its current state. (This is especially true where the property has passed to the owner by will or through the law of intestate descent.) Second, the landlord may have purchased the property at a foreclosure or tax sale, where he was unable to obtain from the seller the right to perform an environmental site assessment before agreeing to purchase the property. Third, the building being leased may simply be very old and likely to contain some of the defects listed above, such as insect infestation or asbestos insulation.

As for the tenant, he may be willing to accept such a disclaimer in the lease if the rental fee is very low, and he feels that he is getting a good deal. Alternatively, the tenant may be planning to make such drastic structural changes to the leased property that the landlord's disclaimer is unimportant. (For example, perhaps the tenant is planning to completely gut the interior of the leased house, or perhaps demolish the structure altogether and build a new one from scratch.)

Whatever his reasons, the tenant will definitely want to take such a disclaimer into account when negotiating the amount of rent. Such a disclaimer is a valuable bargaining chip for the tenant and can be cited as a reason to lower the landlord's proposed rental fee by a considerable amount.

The tenant should seriously consider having an environmental site assessment performed prior to executing the lease. Also, the tenant should consider obtaining a structural inspection prior to executing the lease so that he is aware of exactly what he is getting when he agrees to accept the premises "as is."

FORM

It is expressly understood by the parties hereto that Landlord makes no representations or warranties whatsoever as to the condition, fitness or use of the premises leased to Tenant under this Agreement. Landlord specifically disclaims any knowledge of, and liability to Tenant for, any conditions which may exist on the premises, including, but not limited to, toxic or hazardous substances, asbestos, underground storage tanks, radon gas, infestation of wood by insects, or structural deficiencies from whatever source or cause. It shall be the responsibility of Tenant to inspect for and discover any latent or patent defects in the demised premises.

Landlord has no knowledge of the age of the structures contained on the premises. Landlord has no direct knowledge of any prior uses made of the premises by prior owners and their tenants.

Tenant, with full knowledge and understanding of the foregoing, hereby agrees to accept the premises in their "AS IS," "WHERE IS" condition WITH ALL FAULTS. Tenant accepts full responsibility and expense to make all repairs, alterations, and additions to the structures on the leased premises, so as to make the said structures habitable and fit for the purposes for which Tenant intends to use them.

Tenant shall not be entitled to terminate this Lease or free himself of his responsibility to pay rent therefor due to an unforeseen condition, unless said condition shall be the discovery of hazardous or toxic substances which cost in the reasonable opinion of a qualified expert is in excess of _____ Dollars ($_____) to remove in a manner consistent with all federal, state, and local laws, regulations and policies. Then, in that event, Tenant may give written notice to Landlord of the existence of such substances. This lease agreement shall be deemed terminated upon receipt by Landlord of said notice. Tenant shall have no further obligation to Landlord for rent or otherwise.

In the event that this Lease Agreement is terminated, as described above, Landlord shall have no obligation to reimburse Tenant for any improvements made to the leased premises. All such improvements shall be the property of Landlord, without any claim by Tenant allowed.

Part IV. FORMS

C. LEASE OF REAL ESTATE

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.150

FORM 25.150 Representation by landlord of condition of leased premises

COMMENT

This form consists of two alternative clauses for the reader's use. They are both representations made by a landlord regarding the present condition of leased premises.

The first clause is very specific. It presumes that the leased building(s) sits atop land which was formerly home to a business that utilized underground storage tanks, such as an auto parts and supply store, a gasoline filling station, a bus or taxi depot, or a trucking company. The landlord states in his representation that the underground storage tanks used by the former business were removed prior to construction of the leased building(s). In addition, a phase I environmental site assessment, which was performed on the premises immediately prior to construction of the leased building(s), found no evidence of any adverse environmental condition on the premises arising from the use or release of hazardous substances, such as oil, gasoline or chemicals.

The second clause is much more general in tone, and can be used in both residential and commercial leases. The landlord states, for example, that while there is no exposed asbestos in the leased building, he cannot make any representation as to whether ceiling or floor tiles contain asbestos, or whether hidden pipes may be insulated with the substance. The landlord further states that, to the best of his knowledge, no urea formaldehyde insulation is contained in the building. In addition, he states that he is unaware of any former tenants who used, stored, or disposed of hazardous substances on the leased premises as part of the ordinary course of their businesses, and that, to the best of the landlord's knowledge, no hazardous substances have been released onto the premises.

If, during lease negotiations, a landlord is unwilling or reluctant to make the kinds of representations which the prospective tenant feels are necessary for his protection, then the tenant should insist on making the lease contingent upon the results of tests and inspections designed to uncover such things as asbestos or urea formaldehyde insulation. The contingency should provide that, if such substances are found to exist on the leased premises, then the tenant is free to terminate the lease agreement or to renegotiate the terms of the lease agreement with the landlord. Through renegotiation, the cost of correcting the problem may be assumed by the tenant--who will, of course, receive a reduction in the rental fee sufficient to cover this expense. Alternatively, the parties may decide to keep the rental fee at its current level and simply have the landlord remedy the problem at his own expense.

FORM

[Alternative A:]

Landlord represents that the land upon which the leased building(s) is located was previously occupied by _____ [insert, for example, an auto parts and supply store, or a gasoline filling station, or a bus or taxi depot, or a trucking company]. The underground storage tanks used by the former business were removed prior to construction of the leased building(s). A phase I environmental site assessment, which was performed on the premises immediately prior to construction of the leased building(s), found no evidence of any adverse environmental condition on the premises arising from the use or release of hazardous substances.

[Alternative B:]

Landlord hereby represents to Tenant that the premises to be leased to Tenant hereunder have been owned by Landlord for in excess of _____ (_____) years. The premises have been previously used for _____ [identify past uses, e.g., office space, retail sales, repair work for a wide variety of businesses, etc.]. All prior lease agreements contained provisions requiring tenants to comply with all laws. However, Landlord did not specifically monitor or investigate whether compliance occurred. Landlord and/or his predecessors did inspect the premises at the end of each lease prior to releasing security deposits to departing tenants. However, Landlord did not inspect the property to determine the composition of materials which may have been used in renovations or repairs made by prior tenants. To the best of Landlord's knowledge, there is no exposed asbestos in the premises to be leased to Tenant. However, Landlord does not make any representation as to whether ceiling or floor tiles contain asbestos, or whether hidden pipes may be insulated with asbestos.

During the ownership of the premises by Landlord and his predecessors, Landlord was responsible for all structural repairs, improvements and modifications. The building was insulated with foam board in ____ [year]. On the basis of this experience, Landlord believes that no urea formaldehyde insulation is contained in the building.

Landlord did not permit tenants to use the land surrounding the building. However, Landlord did not monitor the tenants to determine whether they did, in fact, impermissibly use such land. Landlord is not aware of any tenants who used, stored, or disposed of hazardous substances as part of their ordinary course of business, except, perhaps, de minimis amounts of cleaning solutions. To the best of Landlord's knowledge, no hazardous substances have been released onto the premises.

Upon request, Landlord shall provide Tenant with a list of former tenants who occupied the premises, together with last known addresses, if available. Landlord shall provide Tenant with a letter of introduction to these former tenants so that Tenant may contact them for further information.

Landlord makes no other or further representations with regard to the condition of the premises. Tenant shall accept possession of the premises in their "AS IS," "WHERE IS" condition WITH ALL FAULTS.

Tenant shall obtain written permission from Landlord prior to making any alterations thereon, which permission Landlord may withhold in his sole reasonable discretion.

C. LEASE OF REAL ESTATE

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.151

FORM 25.151 Representation by landlord to tenant about other tenants' uses of their units within the leased property

COMMENT

Frequently, the tenant in a commercial lease transaction will be leasing a single unit in a multi-tenant facility. Such a tenant may be very concerned about which other tenants in the building use their units.

For example, assume that the ground floor of a four-story office building houses a diner, a hair salon and a printing shop. The upper floors are devoted to professional offices of attorneys, accountants, etc. Assume further that an incoming tenant is a financial investment advisor who wishes to establish his office on the second floor of the building. Clearly, he will be interested in learning about the nature of the businesses directly above and beneath him. A diner and a printing shop, for example, can produce a great deal of noise in the absence of adequate sound-proofing. And odors rising upward from a ground-floor hair salon or diner can be highly inappropriate in a professional setting, such as the office of a financial advisor.

Accordingly, a prospective tenant for a commercial building will frequently insist that the landlord make representations about the types of businesses already being run by other tenants in the building.

The form below consists of two alternative clauses for the reader's use. They are both representations made by a landlord to a prospective tenant regarding the uses to which fellow tenants are putting their units in a commercial building. A landlord should be very careful about the representations which landlord makes about the operations of other tenants. An alternative approach is to state that the landlord has required in each tenant's lease a restriction regarding the use of hazardous materials.

In the first clause, the landlord states that, to the best of his knowledge, none of the present tenants in his building are using their rented space to store, produce or use any substance in their businesses deemed hazardous under federal law. In addition, the landlord agrees that, during the term of the lease, he will not lease any space to any tenant who uses, stores or produces any hazardous substance.

The second clause utilizes an appendix attached to the lease agreement. This appendix lists all of the current tenants, together with a brief description of each tenant's use of its unit. All descriptions have been supplied by the tenants themselves. While the landlord has not verified the tenants' descriptions, the supplying of a false or misleading description to the landlord is a violation of each tenant's lease and grounds for termination of that lease. The landlord also agrees to supply the same information to the tenant regarding new tenants who move into the building in the future.

FORM

[Alternative A:]

Landlord represents that, to the best of his knowledge, none of the present tenants in _____ [name] use, store or produce any substance in their businesses deemed hazardous under: the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act, 42 USC § 9601 et seq.; the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act, 42 USC § 6901 et seq.; the Hazardous Material Transportation Act, 49 USC § 1801 et seq.; and the Toxic Substances Control Act, 15 USC § 2601 et seq., and the regulations promulgated thereunder.

Landlord agrees, during the term of this lease and any extensions thereof, not to lease any space to any tenant who uses, stores or produces any substance deemed hazardous, as that term is defined above. In the event of a breach of this covenant, Tenant shall be entitled to terminate this Lease Agreement without penalty. However, nothing contained herein shall be deemed to render Landlord liable to Tenant for any expenses incurred in the relocation of Tenant's business, including, but not limited to, moving expenses, "fit up," loss of business, or injury to person or property.

[Alternative B:]

The parties hereto acknowledge that the premises leased to Tenant are one unit of a _____ (_____) unit structure. Annexed hereto as "Exhibit A" is a list of current tenants, together with a brief description of each tenant's use of its unit. All descriptions have been supplied by the tenants. Landlord has not verified the tenants' descriptions. However, the supplying of a false or misleading description is a violation of each tenant's lease and grounds for termination of that lease. Landlord will supply Tenant with an updated list of tenants and descriptions of their businesses upon written request.

Tenant shall provide Landlord with a detailed description of Tenant's own business activities to be performed on the leased premises, prior to taking possession of the unit. The description shall specify whether the activity will be primarily office use, retail sales, wholesale, manufacturing, repair or other. "Other" shall be fully explained. The description shall specify whether any hazardous substances will be used, stored, manufactured, sold, treated, or disposed of on the premises. (Hazardous substances shall be defined as any substance or material deemed to be hazardous under: the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act, 42 USC § 9601 et seq.; the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act, 42 USC § 6901 et seq.; the Hazardous Material Transportation Act, 49 USC § 1801 et seq.; or the Toxic Substances Control Act, 15 USC § 2601 et seq., and the regulations promulgated thereunder.)

The description shall contain any other information which would be useful in making the determination of whether a future tenant would be willing to locate his business near the tenant who is preparing the description, including, but not limited to, noise level expected, whether fumes or odors will likely be produced, and business hours to be maintained. Tenant shall update this description upon request and shall provide the same to Landlord before December 1st of each year during the term of this Lease.

Landlord covenants that, to the best of his knowledge, there are no tenants in the building who currently use, store, manufacture, sell or dispose of hazardous substances (as defined above) on the premises. Landlord covenants not to accept future tenants who would use, store, manufacture, sell, or dispose of hazardous substances (as defined above) on the premises. Tenant covenants that it will not use, store, manufacture, sell, or dispose of hazardous substances (as defined above) in the course of its occupancy of the leased premises.

In the event that a tenant does use, store, manufacture, sell, dispose of, or otherwise handle hazardous substances (as defined above) on the premises, Tenant shall notify Landlord immediately. Landlord shall have _____ (_____) days thereafter to investigate and take action. Such action shall include preventing the offending tenant from committing further violations, or commencing eviction proceedings against the offending tenant if prevention is not possible. The actual eviction need not take place within the _____ (_____) day period, but as soon thereafter as is practicable. Landlord shall also commence whatever remedial action may be necessary to prevent harm to the other tenants. Remedial action need not be completed within the _____ (_____) day period, but as soon thereafter as is practicable. If Landlord fails to take the actions described above within the prescribed time limits, Tenant may elect to terminate this Lease by giving Landlord written notice, specifying the default and date of termination of this Lease.

In the event that Tenant terminates this Lease, Landlord shall not be required to refund or otherwise compensate Tenant for its investment in the "fit up" of the premises. Nor shall Landlord be liable for any costs of business relocation or any increased rental fee which Tenant must pay as a result of relocation.

In the event that Tenant violates any of the provisions regarding hazardous substances, Tenant shall cease the violation immediately upon the receipt of notice from Landlord. In the event Tenant does not cease, Tenant shall vacate the premises within _____ (_____) days of receipt of demand from Landlord. Tenant shall be responsible for all costs of remediation and any loss of revenue and/or any other damages suffered by Landlord due to termination of leases by other tenants as a result of Tenant's actions. Tenant shall also be responsible for any legal fees incurred by Landlord in the enforcement of this provision.

C. LEASE OF REAL ESTATE

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.152

FORM 25.152 Termination of lease because of environmental damage caused by other tenant

COMMENT

This lease clause allows a tenant to terminate its lease in the event that serious environmental damage to the property occurs. The clause envisions a situation in which an environmental mishap occurs due to the emission, release, or disposal of hazardous substances.

In addition, the tenant agrees to be liable to the landlord and to all other tenants in the building for any loss which results from the tenant's emission, release, use, storage, manufacture or disposal of hazardous substances on the premises or within the building. Such loss includes, but is not limited to, loss of business revenue, relocation expenses, costs of remediation, and other direct and consequential damages.

The clause further states that, in their leases, the other tenants have similarly agreed to be liable for any loss suffered by other tenants resulting from an act or omission that causes an environmental mishap in the building or on the surrounding grounds. The landlord is relieved from any liability unless it participated in the act or omission which resulted in the environmental mishap.

Although this clause recognizes that each tenant is liable to other tenants for the environmental harm it causes, in reality the offending tenant may have little or no money available with which to compensate his fellow tenants. The reason is because, after the environmental mishap occurs, federal or state agencies will be seeking reimbursement from the offending tenant for the clean up costs incurred by those agencies. Thus, after paying off the government, the offending tenant may have little or no money left to reimburse his fellow tenants for their losses.

Accordingly, every tenant should be extremely cautious in renting space in a building where there is a possibility that another tenant may cause an environmental problem. The tenant may eventually face, without adequate compensation, the cost of relocating his business if a serious environmental mishap occurs in the building. In that event, the tenant will have to absorb the high cost of moving his business equipment and furniture, installing new telephone and computer lines, notifying his clients or customers, etc. In addition, he may also suffer a loss of business while relocating. Finally, there is also the possibility that the rental fee in his new place of business will be considerably higher than the rent paid in the old building.

FORM

In the event of an emission, release, use, storage, manufacture or disposal of hazardous substances by a third party, including, without limitation another tenant, on or about the leased premises or in the building in which the premises are located, causes an adverse environmental impact, then Tenant shall be entitled to terminate this Lease. Tenant shall notify Landlord of its intention to terminate in writing, specifying the reason for terminating the lease and the date on which the termination shall be effective, which date shall be no more than ninety (90) days in the future.

The term "hazardous substance" shall mean any substance designated as hazardous under any federal, state or local law or regulation, including, but not limited to: the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act, 42 USC § 9601 et seq.; the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act, 42 USC § 6901 et seq.; the Hazardous Material Transportation Act, 49 USC § 1801 et seq.; or the Toxic Substances Control Act, 15 USC § 2601 et seq.

The term "adverse environmental impact" shall mean any severe diminution in the quality or quantity of the air, water, soil or wildlife, including subsurface, anywhere on the leased premises. Landlord shall not be liable to Tenant for any loss suffered as a result of the acts or omissions of other tenants unless Landlord participated directly in the act or omission which resulted in the adverse environmental impact. Landlord shall not be required to reimburse Tenant for any investments made in Tenant's unit for "fit up" or otherwise.

Tenant acknowledges that all tenants in the building possess the same rights and responsibilities contained in this provision. Tenant agrees to be responsible to Landlord and to all other tenants in the building for any loss which results from Tenant's emission, release, use, storage, manufacture or disposal of hazardous substances on or about the premises or within the building. Such loss shall include, but not be limited to, loss of revenue, relocation expenses, costs of remediation, and other direct and consequential damages.

FORM 25.153 Landlord will indemnify and hold tenant harmless against environmental damage caused by other tenant and against adverse environmental condition existing on leased premises prior to execution of lease

COMMENT

In the clause below, the landlord agrees to indemnify and hold the tenant harmless for any claim, loss, injury or damage arising out of, or in any way related to, an adverse environmental condition that already existed on the premises at the time the lease was executed, or that is created during the lease term by the landlord or another tenant. The indemnification/hold harmless provision is effective regardless of whether the condition is (or was) created or contributed to by the landlord, his predecessors, agents, employees or invitees, or by another tenant, his agents, employees or invitees.

To obtain such a broad indemnification/hold harmless provision, a prospective tenant must be extremely desirable to the landlord. Alternatively, the landlord must be very confident that the leased premises are free from any environmental problems, and that other tenants in the building pose no real danger of creating an environmental mishap during the lease term.

Finally, a landlord's attorney should be aware that this type of pro-tenant lease clause may obligate his client to assume a myriad of expenses, in addition to environmental clean-up costs. For example, the landlord would be liable for injury to the tenant, his employees and property. In addition, the landlord would have to assume the cost of relocating the commercial tenant and compensating him for any loss of business revenue following a serious environmental mishap that renders the leased premises unusable. Obviously, a landlord should be very reluctant before leaving himself open to such broad liability.

FORM

Landlord shall indemnify and hold Tenant harmless for any claim, loss, injury or damage, whether direct or consequential, arising out of, or in any way related to, any adverse environmental condition now existing or hereafter created or discovered on or about the leased premises, which condition was created or contributed to by Landlord, his predecessors, agents, employees or invitees, or another tenant, his agents, employees or invitees. In the event Tenant has created or contributed to the adverse environmental condition, Landlord shall be relieved of his responsibility to indemnify and hold Tenant harmless.

The term "adverse environmental condition" shall mean any condition on or about the leased premises which materially violates any applicable federal, state or local law relating to the environment.

COMMENT

This clause is to be inserted into a lease where there is a significant danger that: (1) an adverse environmental condition may be discovered upon the premises after the lease is executed; or (2) an environmental mishap, caused by one of the other tenants, may occur during the lease term.

The clause requires the landlord to promptly notify the tenant of the discovery of evidence indicating the existence of an adverse environmental condition or the occurrence of an environmental mishap (such as the sudden release of hazardous substances into the air or water). Next, the landlord promises to immediately undertake an investigation to determine whether an adverse environmental condition does, in fact, exist, and, if so, the nature and extent of the problem. Thereafter, the landlord agrees to formulate and implement a remediation plan designed to eliminate the problem. All expenses of remediation are the responsibility of the landlord unless the tenant contributed to or caused the adverse environmental condition.

In the event that the plan of remediation requires the temporary relocation of the tenant, the landlord agrees to pay all expenses in connection with the relocation. However, in the event that the landlord has available space in another of its buildings, the tenant is obligated to accept such space.

Finally, in the event that the landlord fails to fulfill any of the obligations set forth in the clause in a timely manner, the tenant is then entitled to terminate the lease.

FORM

The parties hereto acknowledge that neither has caused an environmental site assessment to be performed on the subject premises. Landlord is not familiar with the history or use of the premises prior to Landlord's purchase of the premises in ____ [year]. The parties acknowledge that the other tenants in the building were tenants of the prior owner, and that their leases extend back to ____ [year]. Neither Landlord nor Tenant is familiar with the nature of the businesses of the other tenants. Both parties acknowledge that there is a possibility that a presently-concealed adverse environmental condition could be discovered in the building or on the grounds at some point in the future. In addition, some activity carried on by the other tenants might cause an adverse environmental condition.

Landlord covenants that it will notify Tenant immediately in the event that evidence of an adverse environmental condition is discovered, or an event occurs which may result in an adverse environmental condition, including, but not limited to, a release, emission or spill of hazardous substances.

As used herein, the term "hazardous substance" shall mean any substance designated as such by any federal, state or local law or regulation, including, but not limited to: the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act, 42 USC § 9601 et seq.; the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act, 42 USC § 6901 et seq.; the Hazardous Material Transportation Act, 49 USC § 1801 et seq.; or the Toxic Substances Control Act, 15 USC § 2601 et seq.

The term "adverse environmental condition" shall mean any condition which has already caused, or can reasonably be expected to cause, a serious diminution in the quality or quantity of the air, water, land (including soil and subsurface), and wildlife located on, above or below the leased premises, including, without limitation, a public or private nuisance.

Upon the discovery of such condition, Landlord shall immediately undertake an investigation to determine whether an adverse environmental condition does exist, and, if so, the nature and extent thereof. Landlord shall engage such experts as may reasonably be required to perform its obligations hereunder. Landlord shall provide to Tenant copies of all information and reports which it receives in connection with the investigation. Tenant shall treat such reports as the confidential and proprietary property of Landlord.

Landlord shall then formulate a plan of remediation. Tenant shall be provided with a copy thereof. Said plan shall comply, in all aspects, with all applicable federal, state and local laws, regulations and policies, and shall have the approval, if required, of all applicable governmental authorities possessing jurisdiction. Tenant shall treat the plans as the confidential and proprietary property of Landlord.

Landlord shall execute the plan of remediation promptly. In the event that the plan of remediation requires the temporary relocation of Tenant, Landlord shall pay all expenses in connection therewith. In the event that Landlord has space in another building owned by Landlord, Tenant shall accept such space.

In the event that Landlord fails to diligently pursue or fulfill any of the obligations set forth herein in a timely manner, Tenant shall be entitled to terminate this Lease. Tenant shall give Landlord notice of termination, specifying the basis for the Landlord's default and setting forth the effective date of termination, which shall not be more than _____ (_____) days following Landlord's receipt of notice. Tenant shall pay rent up to and including the effective date of termination.

All expenses of remediation shall be borne by Landlord unless Tenant contributed to or caused the adverse environmental condition. (In that event, Landlord shall have no obligations under this clause and shall be entitled to collect from Tenant Tenant's reasonable share of the cost of remediation. In addition, Tenant shall not be entitled to terminate this Lease.)

Nothing contained herein shall be deemed to prohibit Landlord from collecting some or all of the costs of remediation from other, potentially responsible parties.

FORM 25.155 Landlord's promise to comply with all environmental laws and orders relating to the leased premises

COMMENT

The lease clause below requires the landlord to comply with all federal, state and local environmental laws, regulations, policies and judicial or administrative orders during the term of the lease.

The insertion of such a clause into a commercial lease is common practice and should not require any special negotiations between the parties. Here, the landlord's failure to comply with an environmental law, regulation, policy or order provides grounds for the tenant to lawfully terminate the lease.

The clause provides that the landlord will comply "with all laws, regulations, policies, judicial and administrative orders of federal, state, county and municipal authorities, and with any directive issued pursuant to law by any public officer thereof, which shall impose any duty upon Landlord pertaining to the use or occupancy of the premises... ." However, the landlord has the right to contest any orders and other obligations imposed upon it by a governmental authority and to defer compliance during the pendency of any contest proceedings, provided that the landlord's failure to immediately comply does not subject the tenant to a civil fine or criminal penalties.

FORM

Landlord shall comply with all laws, regulations, policies, judicial and administrative orders of federal, state, county and municipal authorities, and with any directive issued pursuant to law by any public officer thereof, which shall impose any duty upon Landlord pertaining to the use or occupancy of the premises by Landlord or Tenant.

However, Landlord shall have the right to contest obligations imposed upon Landlord and defer compliance during the pendency of any legal proceedings, provided that the failure of Landlord to immediately comply shall not subject Tenant to prosecution, resulting in civil fine or criminal penalties.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, in the event that the alleged violation poses an imminent threat to public health, safety, or the environment, Landlord may not contest the obligations and defer further compliance as set forth above.

Failure of Landlord to comply with the provisions of this clause shall entitle Tenant to terminate this Lease. Tenant shall give notice to Landlord of intent to terminate, specifying the act giving rise to Landlord's default and the effective date of termination of the lease, which shall be no less than _____ (_____), nor more than _____ (_____), days following Landlord's receipt of notice of Tenant's intent to terminate the lease. Landlord shall have _____ (_____) days from receipt of notice of intent to terminate to cure the default. If Landlord timely cures the default, the Lease termination shall be voided. If Landlord fails to timely cure the default, this Lease shall be terminated on the date specified by Tenant.

C. LEASE OF REAL ESTATE

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.156

FORM 25.156 Tenant's promise to return premises to landlord in same condition as existed at commencement of lease term

COMMENT

This form provides several alternative clauses. In all of the clauses, the tenant promises to return the leased premises to the landlord at the end of the lease term in same condition in which he found the premises at the start of the term.

The insertion of such a clause into a lease is a standard part of any real estate leasing transaction. Thus, the parties should not need to engage in any extensive negotiations over this issue. The purpose of the clause is to give each party--and particularly the tenant--a clear understanding of how the premises should appear at the end of the lease term.

FORM

[Alternative A]

Tenant shall take good care of the premises and shall, at Tenant's own cost and expense, make all interior repairs, alterations, decorations, and improvements to the leased premises during the period covered by this Lease. All repairs, alterations, decorations or improvements made in or to the leased premises by Tenant shall become the property of Landlord and shall be surrendered with the premises at the termination of the Lease. Tenant shall have the right to remove or replace its removable trade fixtures, provided Tenant repairs any damage caused by such removal. The failure of Tenant to remove its fixtures or any of its property at the termination of the term of this Lease shall be deemed abandonment of such property. If Landlord must remove such property, the cost of removal shall be deducted from Tenant's security deposit.

At the end or other expiration of the lease term, or any extensions thereof, Tenant shall deliver up the leased premises in good order and condition, damages by the elements and reasonable wear and tear excepted.

[Alternative B]

In the event that Tenant does not purchase the premises, but returns possession at the end of the term of this lease agreement, Tenant shall return the premises broom clean and in the same condition as at the commencement of this Agreement, reasonable wear and tear excepted.

[Alternative C]

Upon expiration or other termination of the term of this Lease, Tenant shall quit and surrender to Landlord the leased premises, broom clean, in good order and condition, reasonable wear and tear and damage by fire or other casualty excepted.

[Alternative D]

Tenant shall, throughout the term of this Lease, take good care of the leased premises, fixtures, services, equipment and appurtenances therein, and, at its sole cost and expense, make all non-structural repairs thereto, as and when needed to preserve them in good working order and condition. Upon expiration of the lease term, Tenant shall deliver up the premises in good order and condition, reasonable wear and tear, obsolescence and damage from the elements excepted. Notwithstanding the foregoing, all damage or injury to the leased premises, its fixtures, services, equipment or appurtenances, that is caused by Tenant, its servants, employees, invitees or licensees and that requires structural repairs, shall be repaired promptly by Tenant at its sole cost and expense.

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.157

FORM 25.157 Clause terminating lease following violation of lease's environmental provisions by landlord or tenant

COMMENT

This form provides several alternative clauses that may be inserted into a residential or commercial real property lease, all of which are designed to empower either the tenant or the landlord to terminate the lease when the other party violates one or more environmental provisions contained elsewhere in the lease. Thus, the "violator" may be either the tenant or landlord, and the "terminator" may likewise be either the tenant or landlord.

In addition to termination of the lease, the clause imposes other, rather harsh, penalties for violation of the environmental provisions. For example, if the tenant is the violator, he is liable for the full cost of repairing any damage caused by his violation of the environmental provisions. However, given the danger of serious injury to person, property and wildlife that may arise when environmental provisions are violated, tough penalties are not at all unreasonable.

FORM

[Violation by Tenant]

In the event that Tenant violates any of the provisions regarding hazardous substances, Tenant shall cease the violation immediately upon receipt of notice from Landlord. In the event Tenant does not cease, Tenant shall vacate the premises within _____ (_____) days of demand by Landlord. Tenant shall be responsible for all costs of remediation, and for any loss of rental income and/or any other damages suffered by Landlord due to termination of leases by other tenants as a result of Tenant's actions. In addition, Tenant shall be responsible for any legal fees incurred by Landlord in the enforcement of this provision.

[Violation by Landlord]

Failure of Landlord to comply with the environmental requirements contained in Paragraphs _____ -- _____ of this Lease shall entitle Tenant to terminate the Lease. Tenant shall give written notice of intent to terminate, specifying the Landlord's act of default and the effective date of the lease termination, which shall be no less than _____ (_____), nor more than _____ (_____), days following Landlord's receipt of the written notice of intent to terminate. Landlord shall have _____ (_____) days from receipt of notice in order to cure the default. If Landlord timely cures the default, the termination of the Lease shall be voided. If Landlord fails to timely cure the default, this Lease shall be terminated on the date specified by the Tenant in his written notice to the Landlord.

C. LEASE OF REAL ESTATE

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.158

FORM 25.158 Landlord's representation to tenant regarding existence of asbestos

COMMENT

This clause is a disclosure by the landlord that the leased premises contain materials laden with asbestos. In older buildings, asbestos-containing materials are most frequently found in ceiling and floor tiles and surrounding furnaces, boilers, heating pipes, and hot water heaters and hot water pipes.

The clause specifies, to the best of landlord's knowledge, the exact location, age and general condition of the asbestos-containing materials. The clause further specifies that the tenant takes the premises in their present, "as is" condition.

A tenant may wish to negotiate with the landlord over the issue of asbestos abatement. For example, a commercial tenant may be willing to undertake the cost and inconvenience of removing or containing the asbestos himself, in exchange for a reduction in the rental fee equal to the tenant's expense. A tenant is often willing to undertake this type of project if he also intends to perform major renovation work to the leased premises, such as removal of walls and replacement of the ventilation system. In such case, the asbestos removal or containment can be considered both a part of the renovation efforts and a valuable "bargaining chip" available to the tenant in negotiating the rental fee and other lease terms.

Alternatively, the landlord himself might agree to perform the asbestos abatement either before or after the lease term begins. Of course, in such case, there would be no reduction in the rental fee.

In any event, if the tenant decides to undertake the asbestos abatement himself, there are provisions in this clause addressing such a situation. For example, the clause provides that the tenant must make certain that any asbestos abatement program is conducted in strict compliance with all federal, state and local laws, regulations and policies. The clause also imposes insurance requirements, standards for determining whether the abatement efforts were successful, etc.

FORM

Landlord represents to Tenant that asbestos-containing materials are located on the premises to be leased hereunder. Exhibit A attached hereto sets forth a description of the areas that may contain asbestos.

Tenant acknowledges the foregoing and accepts the premises in their "AS IS," "WHERE IS" condition WITH ALL FAULTS. Tenant agrees to indemnify and hold Landlord harmless for any claim for injury to any person who may be on the leased premises as an agent, employee, contractor, invitee or guest of Tenant, and whose claim of injury arises out of the existence of and exposure to asbestos on or about the premises.

Tenant may remove or contain the asbestos without further consent of Landlord. In such case, Tenant shall insure that any removal or containment is performed in strict compliance with all federal, state and local laws, regulations and policies.

Tenant shall obtain a certificate of insurance for liability, workers' compensation and builders' risk insurance in amounts satisfactory to Landlord. All policies shall name Landlord and Tenant as additional insureds.

Once the asbestos has been removed or contained, Tenant shall provide proof to Landlord of the successful completion of the removal or containment process. Such proof shall be in the form of results of air monitoring tests conducted by a laboratory approved for asbestos handling, showing that the level of asbestos contained in indoor air samples is equal to, or less than, the level considered to be acceptable under applicable state regulations, and a closure report or certification to be given by the contractor that remediates the asbestos.

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.159

FORM 25.159 Representation by landlord that leased premises contain no asbestos-containing materials

COMMENT

This clause is the opposite of the preceding clause. Here, the landlord represents that there are no asbestos-containing materials on the leased premises. Such a provision is routinely inserted today into leases of newly-constructed real property, since the use of asbestos insulation in new buildings has been banned for many years. Although the form does not provide for a qualification, the landlord may want to limit the representation to his knowledge. The clause also provides that if, during the lease term, asbestos-containing materials are found in the leased premises, then the tenant may demand that the landlord remove them. If the landlord refuses to do so, then the tenant may terminate the lease or perform the removal himself.

FORM

Landlord represents that there are no asbestos-containing materials in or at the leased premises. If asbestos-containing materials are discovered during the lease term, then Tenant, at its own discretion, may demand its removal, and, if the Landlord refuses to remove the asbestos-containing materials, Tenant may either: (a) terminate the lease, or (b) undertake the removal work itself and recover all of its costs from the landlord.

FORM 25.160 Tenant's promise to remove asbestos

COMMENT

In this clause, the tenant agrees to undertake the steps necessary to determine whether insulation materials laden with asbestos exist on the leased premises, and, if they do, to remove or contain them. The entire cost of investigation and abatement will be handled by the tenant. In return, the landlord agrees to give the tenant a rent reduction to compensate the tenant for the full expense and risks involved. The tenant also agrees to indemnify and hold the landlord harmless for any injury arising out of the investigation and abatement project.

Obviously, such a clause is a great boon for the landlord since his property will be much more safe and marketable after removal of any asbestos presently found there.

FORM

The parties hereto acknowledge that asbestos-containing material may be located in the leased premises. Notwithstanding that fact, Tenant desires the space. A determination of whether asbestos-containing materials are located within the premises shall be made by a licensed asbestos removal contractor. Landlord agrees to allow access to the premises to the asbestos removal contractor at any time. The asbestos removal contractor shall be entitled to take samples of ceiling and floor tiles and other materials, and of insulating materials found on pipes, the boiler or the furnace, the hot water heater, and other objects and surfaces which the asbestos removal contractor believes contain asbestos.

Tenant shall be responsible for the full cost of this process, including sampling and analysis of samples. Tenant shall provide Landlord with a copy of the written report produced by the licensed asbestos removal contractor. Tenant, in behalf of himself, his agents and employees, agrees to maintain absolute confidentiality with regard to the results contained in the report. The term "confidentiality," as used herein, means that the results contained in the report shall not be revealed to any person without Landlord's prior written consent.

Tenant further agrees that, if asbestos-containing materials are found anywhere on the leased premises, he shall, at his sole cost and expense, undertake a thorough asbestos abatement program. Such program shall be formulated and executed by a licensed asbestos removal contractor and consist either of the complete removal of the materials in question or their permanent containment.

Tenant shall indemnify and hold Landlord harmless for any injury to person or property which occurs during, or arises out of, the investigation and abatement processes, including, but not limited to, the failure to abate properly. This indemnification shall include the Landlord's defense costs and consequential damages.

Tenant shall provide proof to Landlord that the asbestos has been abated. Such proof shall be in the form of results of air monitoring tests conducted by a laboratory approved for asbestos handling, showing that the level of asbestos contained in indoor air samples is equal to, or less than, the level found to be acceptable under applicable state regulations.

Tenant shall be responsible for all costs of abatement, including, but not limited to:

- (1) fees by environmental consultants;
- (2) the cost of obtaining necessary permits and approvals;
- (3) the cost of obtaining any liability or other insurance necessary and appropriate during the abatement process;
- (4) the cost of removing or containing the asbestos-containing materials;
- (5) the cost of disposing of such materials if removal occurs; and
- (6) the cost of post-abatement air testing.

Landlord shall give Tenant a credit in the amount of _____ Dollars ($_____) against rent due each month, for a total of _____ (_____) months. The total amount of the credit shall _____ Dollars ($_____) or _____ (_____) of the cost of abatement, whichever is less.

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.162

FORM 25.162 Clause providing that, in the event of an environmental accident, tenant shall be required to purchase the premises at fair market value immediately prior to the accident

COMMENT

This form provides a creative solution to one of a landlord's greatest problems and worst fears: learning that his tenant has contaminated the leased premises through some environmental mishap, such as the release or emission of one or more hazardous substances. This form envisions a situation where the property is so badly contaminated that remediation would cost as much or more than the fair market value of the property before the accident. The solution: the clause below requires the tenant to purchase the premises at their fair market value immediately prior to the accident. However, because the landlord was the owner of the property he is not relieved of liability for the incident.

Fair market value would be determined by the parties. If they could not agree, they would each select an appraiser. The two appraisers would then select a third, who would actually perform the appraisal. The decision of the third appraiser would be binding upon both parties. All expenses of the appraisal would be paid by the tenant.

The landlord would tender the deed within 30 days thereafter. The tenant would be required to pay the fair market value in cash or a cash equivalent, such as a cashier's check or letter of credit. The landlord would not be required to hold a mortgage.

Of course, for such an arrangement to work, a tenant's assets must be substantial and fairly liquid, or the tenant must own other valuable property which he can use as collateral for a mortgage loan. Accordingly, a landlord should be very familiar with a tenant's financial situation before agreeing to the inclusion of such a provision in any lease. In addition, the lease should require that, during the lease term, the tenant's books will be audited by a certified public accounting firm and copies of these audits will be supplied to the landlord.

Under the terms of the clause, if the remediation required is less than a certain specified amount, the tenant need only correct the environmental problem promptly; he is under no duty to actually purchase the property. In such case, all costs of remediation, including environmental consultants' fees, are borne by the tenant.

The tenant is also required to indemnify and hold the landlord harmless against any claims brought by occupants and/or owners of neighboring properties adversely affected by the environmental mishap. (It should be remembered, of course, that the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act-- 42 USC § 9601, et seq. --provides that, in imposing liability for clean-up costs, the federal government is not required to recognize the effectiveness of any indemnification or hold harmless agreement which shifts or allocates responsibility among statutorily-responsible parties. In other words, if a tenant contaminates the leased property (or property bordering on the leased property), the federal government is free to seek payment for all or part of the clean-up costs from the landlord--even in the presence of an indemnification and hold harmless agreement granted by the tenant and intended to protect the landlord.)

FORM

It is understood and acknowledged by the parties hereto that Tenant, in the ordinary course of its business, prepares, stores, handles, transports, disposes and otherwise uses substances which are clearly denominated as hazardous under provisions of federal and state laws, regulations, and policies. It is further understood and acknowledged that Tenant could not engage in his business without the use of said hazardous substances.

Tenant agrees to prepare, store, handle, transport, dispose of and use said hazardous substances in strict compliance with all federal, state and local laws, regulations and policies. Tenant shall maintain records of such compliance. All such records shall be available to Landlord at any time during Tenant's regular business hours and without advance notice to Tenant. Such records shall be maintained at the leased premises at all times. Landlord may copy any such compliance records at any time. Landlord agrees, however, to maintain the confidentiality of any such material denominated as "trade secrets" by Tenant.

If any event occurs, whether such event be sudden or whether it occurs slowly over a period of time, which event involves the release or emission of any substance designated as hazardous under the provisions of any federal, state or local law, regulation or policy, Landlord shall be notified of the event by Tenant immediately upon the Tenant's discovery of the occurrence of the event.

Tenant shall take immediate action to stop further releases or emissions of such hazardous substances. Tenant shall further notify all appropriate federal, state and local authorities of the event.

Tenant shall, within _____ (_____) days after the releases or emissions have been stopped, engage an environmental consultant, acceptable to Landlord, to assess the damage to the structures, wildlife, air, water and soils (including subsurface) on the leased premises and on the affected area, if any, surrounding the leased premises. The environmental consultant shall provide a detailed written report, describing the nature and extent of the event, the nature and extent of the adverse consequences to the structures, wildlife, air, water, soils and subsurface, and the nature and extent of the remediation required. In addition, such report shall include an estimate of the cost of the remediation, including a range of possible error in the estimate.

If the estimate of the cost of remediation is less than _____ Dollars ($ _____), Tenant shall commence remedial action immediately. The remediation shall be pursued vigorously and in accordance with all applicable federal, state and local laws, regulations and policies. If the remediation work is to be performed by an independent contractor, the agreement between Tenant and contractor shall be subject to the approval of Landlord.

If the estimate of the cost of remediation exceeds _____ Dollars ($ _____), Tenant shall purchase the premises from Landlord. The purchase price shall be the fair market value of the demised premises immediately prior to the occurrence of the event requiring remediation. If the parties cannot agree upon the fair market value, each shall select a commercial real estate appraiser. The two appraisers shall then select a third commercial real estate appraiser who shall prepare a written appraisal of the leased premises, setting forth the fair market value of the property immediately prior to the event. Said appraisal shall be completed within _____ (_____) days after the third appraiser is selected. The appraisal shall be performed at the expense of Tenant, and it shall be final, binding upon the parties and unreviewable.

Landlord shall tender a bargain and sale deed, containing a covenant against the grantor's acts, to Tenant _____ (_____) days after the appraisal is complete. Said deed shall have transfer tax stamps affixed. At that same time, Tenant shall pay the appraised price in cash, or by a certified or bank check payable to Landlord's order.

Tenant shall indemnify and hold Landlord harmless from any and all claims, suits, judgments and costs of defense arising out of or in connection with the release or emission by Tenant, its agents or employees, of any hazardous substance on or about the leased premises, including, but not limited to, claims by occupants and/or owners of adjoining or nearby properties, and by any governmental authority, for the expense of remediation, environmental or public health studies, administrative expenses, fines or penalties, and damages for injury to person or property.

FORM 25.163 Contingency for obtaining water source on leased premises capable of producing adequate amounts of potable water and adequate amounts of water necessary for industrial use

COMMENT

To meet its business needs, a commercial tenant may wish to use well water located beneath the leased premises in order to eliminate the expense of purchasing water from the municipality or the local water company. In addition, in many rural areas of the country, a commercial tenant may be forced to use a water source located on or below the leased premises because there simply is no local water company or other supplier of water available. In these cases, a prospective tenant will want to insert a contingency into the lease agreement, providing that the agreement is not effective unless the tenant is able to locate and develop an adequate source of water on the leased premises.

The volume of water required by a commercial tenant will vary considerably from user to user. Some users may require only enough water for their employees' personal use. Others may need vast quantities in the production of products.

Water which is intended for personal use (e.g., drinking, bathing, etc.) must be of the highest quality and purity in order to prevent illness. However, water which is needed for industrial purposes may not have to be of such a high grade.

Frequently, wells may not produce a sufficient quantity of water. If this occurs, a technique called "hydrofracturing" may be used to increase the quantity. The technique is actually a variety of techniques designed to break up pockets, or veins, of water and thereby create one large, unified water source. Hydrofracturing may entail pumping gas into the ground, or even using explosives. Accordingly, it is very important for the landlord and his counsel to carefully review the tenant's contract with the hydrofracturer in order to ascertain whether the hydrofracturer is fully licensed and adequately insured.

In the event that water of the quantity and/or quality required by the tenant cannot be obtained at or below a certain price specified in the contingency, the tenant may terminate the lease agreement. Alternatively, if the tenant is still interested in leasing the premises, the parties may attempt to renegotiate the lease. The landlord might be willing to pay for part of the high cost of developing the water source, or he might instead be willing to reduce the rental fee in order to help defray the expense.

FORM

This Lease is contingent upon Tenant locating a viable source of potable water and water for industrial use on the premises to be leased hereunder.

Potability shall be determined in accordance with standards set by the _____ [county] County Department of Health _____ [or other governmental agency that sets water standards].

The source will be deemed viable if the source will provide a continuous supply of water in the amount of at least _____ (_____) gallons per minute, and if the total cost to access the water permanently shall not exceed the sum of _____ Dollars ($_____). The determination of whether the source will provide a continuous supply of water shall be made by _____ [name of geologist] or other equally qualified geologist.

Tenant is hereby authorized by Landlord to dig or drill test holes, as deemed necessary by the geologist. Tenant may also perform or cause to be performed hydrofracturing in order to attempt to increase the water flow, if deemed necessary or appropriate by the geologist. Tenant shall cause all test holes and the surrounding areas to be returned to their prior condition at the completion of testing and hydrofracturing. Tenant shall obtain the written approval of Landlord of the contract with the hydrofracturer. Landlord reserves the right to prohibit the use of explosives. The contract shall require that the hydrofracturer carry insurance in limits to be approved by Landlord, and that Landlord shall be a named insured on the policies of insurance. Tenant shall notify Landlord _____ (_____) hours in advance of when hydrofracturing activities are to occur.

Tenant shall indemnify and hold Landlord harmless for any claim for injury to person or property, including, but not limited to, defense costs and judgments and settlements arising out, or of in any way related to, the hydrofracturing activities.

All testing and hydrofracturing shall be done at Tenant's sole expense. Nothing contained herein shall be deemed to require Tenant to expend more than _____ Dollars ($_____) in locating water, testing, and developing the water source, including, but not limited to, digging or drilling a well, and hydrofracturing.

This contingency shall be deemed waived unless Tenant shall notify Landlord, in writing, (1) of Tenant's inability to locate a viable, potable water source, as defined above, or (2) that the estimate of the cost of locating, testing, developing, and hydrofracturing exceeds the above sum, on or before _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]. Notice shall be deemed given when received by Landlord, in person or by certified mail, return receipt requested. If notice is timely given, this Agreement shall be deemed terminated.

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.164

FORM 25.164 Contingency for asbestos inspection

COMMENT

This form may be inserted into a lease or into a prospective tenant's letter of intent to enter into a lease. The form provides for an inspection of the subject premises for asbestos before execution of the lease. The full cost of the inspection, including the testing of air samples and insulation materials suspected of containing asbestos, is the responsibility of the prospective tenant.

If asbestos is found, the tenant may cancel the lease by giving timely notice to the landlord. In the alternative, the tenant may decide to accept the premises as is and perform the asbestos "abatement" (i.e., the removal or containment of the asbestos) at his own expense. In such case, the landlord would provide the tenant with a credit toward the rent covering at least part of the abatement cost.

Such an arrangement is a great benefit to the landlord, who may not have sufficient cash available to perform the abatement himself. The tenant's handling of the abatement means that the landlord's property is significantly increased in value with only a small loss of rental money suffered by the landlord.

In this clause, the tenant is required to hold the landlord harmless and indemnify him for any damage or injury which may occur during the abatement process.

The tenant is also required to maintain strict confidentiality with regard to the content of the asbestos inspection report. This requirement survives even if the tenant decides to exercise his right under the contingency clause not to enter into the lease agreement.

Finally, the tenant covenants to perform the asbestos abatement in strict compliance with all federal, state and local laws, regulations and policies.

FORM

The effectiveness of this lease shall be contingent upon the determination that the leased premises are free of asbestos-containing materials.

The determination shall be made by a qualified asbestos contractor. Landlord agrees to allow access to the premises to the asbestos contractor at any time. The asbestos contractor shall be entitled to take samples of ceiling tiles, floor tiles, as well as insulation materials located on or near pipes, the boiler or furnace, the hot water heater, and any other place where the asbestos contractor believes asbestos insulation may be found.

Tenant shall be responsible for the full cost of the determination, including the taking and sampling of air, ceiling and floor tiles, and insulation materials located on or near pipes, the boiler or furnace, the hot water heater, etc.

Tenant shall provide Landlord with a copy of the asbestos contractor's written report. Tenant, for himself, his agents and employees, agrees to maintain absolute confidentiality with regard to the results contained in the report. The term "confidentiality", as used herein, means that the results contained in the report shall not be revealed to any person without Landlord's prior written consent. This requirement of confidentiality shall survive the termination of this Agreement.

This contingency shall be deemed waived unless Tenant shall notify Landlord that the testing shows the existence of asbestos-containing material on or before _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]. In the event Tenant so notifies Landlord, this lease shall be deemed canceled and all deposits made hereunder shall be returned to Tenant immediately. Landlord shall not be required to remove or contain any asbestos-containing material located on the premises. However, should Tenant elect to accept the leased premises, Landlord agrees to give Tenant a credit against the rent reserved hereunder in the amount of _____ Dollars ($ _____), or _____ (_____) of the cost of abatement, whichever is less.

If Tenant elects to accept the premises, Tenant shall abate the asbestos by causing its removal or containment in strict compliance with all federal, state and municipal laws, regulations and policies. Tenant shall indemnify and hold Landlord harmless for any injury to person or property which occurs during, or arises out of, the abatement process, including, but not limited to, the failure to abate properly.

C. LEASE OF REAL ESTATE

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.165

FORM 25.165 Contingency for environmental assessment

COMMENT

In the clause below, execution of the lease is made contingent upon the results of a phase I environmental site assessment. The parties hope that such assessment reveals no evidence of a serious environmental problem on or about the leased premises.

The commercial tenant that negotiates a contingency clause for a phase I environmental site assessment should be one that expects to make a large investment in the premises in terms of length of tenancy or amount of money to be expended on improvements to the leased property. While the cost of a phase I environmental site assessment is significant, it is certainly far less than the cost of relocating one's business after a serious environmental problem is discovered on the premises once the tenancy begins.

The contingency clause allows the tenant to terminate the lease in the event that evidence of a significant "adverse environmental condition" is discovered during the site assessment. If the tenant still desires to lease the premises, the parties may renegotiate the lease agreement. For example, the landlord may agree to reduce the rental fee in an amount equal to the cost of remediation. The tenant would then bear the full expense of remedial action. (In such a situation, the landlord would be wise to seek an indemnification and hold harmless agreement from the tenant in order to protect it from negligent acts of the tenant during remediation.)

Alternatively, the landlord itself may effect the remediation, and the parties would retain the already agreed-upon rental fee.

This contingency imposes a confidentiality requirement upon the tenant and those who work for him. The reason for the requirement is that, if an adverse environmental condition were discovered and made public, the publicity could thwart the landlord's ability to lease this or other property in the future. It could also injure landlord's reputation and sound the death knell for the landlord's chances of selling the property in the future.

The assessment can also be used as a bench mark. In other words, the assessment should show any existing conditions. As a result, a reasonable conclusion is that any conditions discovered in the future were caused by the tenant.

Finally, it should be noted that if an adverse environmental condition is discovered, the landlord may have a statutory obligation to remediate the problem under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act, 42 USC § 9601 et seq., and other federal and state laws, regardless of whether the lease is ever executed.

FORM

This Agreement is contingent upon the results of an environmental site assessment demonstrating that no evidence exists of a significant adverse environmental condition on or beneath the leased property, caused by past or present uses of the premises or releases of hazardous substances on the premises.

The environmental site assessment shall be performed by _____ [name] at the sole expense of Tenant. A copy of the assessment shall be provided to both Tenant and Landlord. Tenant agrees to maintain absolute confidentiality with regard to the contents of the assessment until Tenant has accepted possession of the premises from Landlord. Notwithstanding the foregoing, Tenant may provide a copy of the assessment to Tenant's lending institution and any party who will be involved in repairing or correcting any adverse environmental condition found. However, Tenant, in writing, shall instruct those with whom he provides a copy of the assessment of its confidential nature and of the obligation to maintain confidentiality.

Landlord consents to the taking of any samples deemed necessary or appropriate by the testing firm. Interior samples shall be taken with as little disruption or damage to the premises as possible. Exterior areas where samples of soil and/or water are taken shall be returned to their prior condition, at Tenant's expense.

This contingency shall be deemed waived unless Tenant shall notify Landlord, in writing, of the existence of evidence of a significant adverse environmental condition on or before _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year]. Notice shall be deemed given when received by Landlord, in person or by certified mail, return receipt requested. If notice is timely given, this Agreement shall be deemed canceled. In such case, all deposits made pursuant to this agreement shall be returned to the Tenant immediately.

As used herein, the term "hazardous substance" shall have the same meaning as defined and used in any of the following: the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act, 42 USC § 9601 et seq.; the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act, 42 USC § 6901 et seq.; the Hazardous Material Transportation Act, 49 USC § 1801 et seq.; and the Toxic Substances Control Act, 15 USC § 2601 et seq., and the regulations promulgated thereunder.

The term "adverse environmental condition" shall mean any severe diminution in the quality or quantity of the air, water, soil or wildlife, including subsurface, anywhere on the leased premises.

C. LEASE OF REAL ESTATE

33-25 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 25.166

FORM 25.166 Guaranty

COMMENT

Any promises, representations or warranties made by a tenant are only as good as the creditworthiness of the tenant. If the tenant breaches the lease, the landlord will have a claim against the tenant. However, if the tenant is insolvent, the landlord will not be able to recover the damages. As a result, the landlord should inquire as to the financial wherewithal of the tenant.

If the tenant is a closely held company, the landlord may request that the owners of the tenants personally guaranty the obligations of the tenant. A prudent landlord may also require a personal guaranty even if the tenant is financially strong. This is because the finances of a closely held company are subject to manipulation by the owners. Owners can bleed a company by taking out excessive compensation or by paying excessive expenses. Requiring the owners to personally guaranty the obligations of the lease will require the owners to act prudently.

The same situation could arise in a parent-subsidary relationship. The subsidiary may enter into the lease. Again, if the subsidiary is not financially sound, the landlord may have difficulty in obtaining compensation for a breach of the lease. Therefore, a prudent landlord may require the parent company to execute and deliver a guaranty.

GUARANTY

THIS GUARANTY executed and delivered this ____ [day] day of _____ [month], ____ [year] by _____ [name] (the "Guarantor") to _____ [name] ("Lessor").

WHEREAS, Lessor has executed a Lease (the "Lease") with _____ [name], a(n) _____ [state] corporation ("Lessee") dated _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year] with respect to certain property located at _____ [address]; and

WHEREAS, the Guarantor has agreed to execute and deliver this Guaranty to Lessor in order to induce Lessor to enter into the Lease;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the premises and other good and valuable consideration, the receipt and sufficiency of which are acknowledged, and to induce Lessor to forebear, and for good and other valuable consideration the receipt and sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged by the Guarantor, the Guarantor does hereby agree with Lessor as follows:

1. The Guarantor, absolutely and unconditionally, guarantee to Lessor, its successors and assigns, and all subsequent holders of the interest of the Lessor under the Lease, the full and prompt performance of all obligations of Lessee thereunder, including, without limitation the payment of all sums owed to Lessor pursuant to the Lease, including, the rent and all other sums or charges now or hereafter due and payable under the Lease (the obligations guaranteed being hereinafter referred to as the "Obligations"). Upon failure of the Lessee to fulfill the Obligations, including any amounts due and payable under the Lease, when and as the same becomes due and payable and the same is not satisfied by the Lessee within the grace period, if any, provided in the Lease for the payment of the same, Lessor may, at its sole option, pursue the Guarantor for the Obligation not satisfied. Lessor shall not be obligated to proceed against, or exhaust any other remedies it may have under the Lease, or resort to any other security held by Lessor prior to enforcing the obligations of the Guarantor hereunder.

2. The Guarantor agree to promptly notify Lessor of any threatened or pending litigation, the outcome of which could have a material or adverse effect on the finances of the Guarantors.

3. The Guarantor acknowledges that he has an economic investment or interest in the Lessee, as a partner, shareholder, or otherwise, and an interest in the success of the Lessee, that he is making this Guaranty in his individual capacity; and that he shall remain liable hereunder whether or not he retains any financial interest in Lessee.

4. The obligations of the Guarantor under this Guaranty is absolute and unconditional, and shall remain in full force and effect until the Obligations shall have been paid in full. This Guaranty should not be construed to require Lessor to forebear with respect to any future defaults under the Lease.

5. The obligations of the Guarantor under this Guaranty shall not be affected, modified or impaired upon the happening of any event, including, without limitation, any of the following, whether or not with notice to or the consent of the Guarantor:

(a) The waiver, release or termination of any of the covenants, agreements or obligations of the Lessee under the Lease;

(b) The modification or amendment (whether material or otherwise) of any obligation, covenant or agreement as set forth in the Lease;

(c) Any failure, omission, delay or lack on the part of Lessor to enforce, assert or exercise any right, power or remedy conferred upon it in this Guaranty or in the Lease, or any other acts of omissions on the part of Lessor;

(d) The voluntary or involuntary liquidation, dissolution, sale or other disposition of all or substantially all of the assets of the Lessee, however affected, or receivership, insolvency, bankruptcy, assignment for the benefit of creditors, reorganizations, arrangement, composition with creditors or readjustment or other similar proceedings affecting either the Lessee, the Guarantors, or any of the assets of any of them, or any allegation or contest of the validity of this Guaranty, or the Lease, or the disaffirmance of the Lease in any such proceeding;

(e) The invalidity, illegality or unenforceability of or any provision of the Lease; or

(f) Any other event or action that would, in the absence of this clause, result in the release or discharge by operation at law of the Guarantors or any Guarantor from the performance or observance of any obligation, covenant or agreement contained in this Guaranty.

6. Notwithstanding anything herein to the contrary, this Guaranty shall continue to be effective, or be reinstated, as the case may be, if at any time payment, or any part thereto, of any of the amounts secured hereunder is rescinded or must otherwise be restored or returned by the Lessor upon the insolvency, bankruptcy, dissolution, liquidation or reorganization of the Lessee, or upon or as a result of the appointment of a receiver, intervener or conservator of, or trustee or similar officer for, the Lessee or any substantial part of its property, or otherwise, all as though such payments had not been made. This Guaranty shall not be affected in any way by the transfer or other disposition of the Lease, whether by deed, operation of law or otherwise.

7. No setoff, counterclaim or reduction, no diminution of any obligation, and no defense of any kind or nature that a Guarantor has or may have against the Lessee, Lessor or any other Guarantor shall affect, modify or impair the obligations hereunder of any Guarantor.

8. The Guarantor hereby expressly waives, release and discharge, any and every right of exoneration, subrogation, contribution, reimbursement and indemnity whatsoever, and any and every right of recourse to security for the debts and obligations guaranteed hereby, whether against the Lessee, any other Guarantor or otherwise, and whether or not the Indebtedness has been paid in full. The Guarantor hereby indemnifies Lessor and agrees to defend and hold harmless Lessor from and against the loss, mitigation, subordination or other consequences adverse to Lessor by reason of this Guaranty being challenged as a preference or suffering any other subjugation under any bankruptcy or other law, whether state or federal, affecting debtors, creditors and/or the relationship between and among them. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, any and all debts and obligations of the Lessee to the Guarantor whether past, present or future are hereby waived, satisfied and discharged.

9. The Guarantor hereby expressly waives notice in writing or otherwise from Lessor of Lessor's acceptance of and reliance on this Guaranty. The Guarantor agrees to pay for all costs, expenses and fees, including all reasonable attorneys' fees, which may be incurred by Lessor in enforcing or attempting to enforce this Guaranty against the Guarantor.

10. This Guaranty shall bind Guarantor, his heirs, executors, administrators, successors and assigns, and shall inure to the benefit of Lessor and its successors and assigns. The Guarantor's liabilities and other obligations under this Guaranty shall survive their death or legal disability.

11. If any clause or provision of this Guaranty is held illegal, invalid or unenforceable by any court, this Guaranty shall be construed and enforced as if such illegal, invalid or unenforceable clause or provision had not been contained herein.

12. This Guaranty is a guaranty of payment and not of collection and shall be deemed to be a Guaranty made under the laws of the State of Ohio and for all purposes shall be governed by and constructed in accordance with the laws of said State.

13. This Guaranty will survive the termination of the Lease and the Guarantor acknowledges that the Guarantor shall remain liable for any claims, damages or expenses incurred by the Landlord relating to Tenant's actions which are discovered after the termination of the Lease, including, without limitation, any adverse environmental conditions covered by Tenant.

The Guarantor has caused this Guaranty to be executed and delivered to Lessor in _____ [city], _____ [state], on the date first written above.
