Current Legal Forms for Real Estate
Chapter 20 REAL ESTATE ENTITIES
Part I. The Tax Background

24-20 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate § 20.01

AUTHOR: by Stephen E. Pigott and Harold O. Maxfield, Jr.

§ 20.01 Summary of the Tax Background

§ 20.02 Introduction: Choosing an Entity for Real Estate Ownership. Tax and nontax considerations affect taxpayer's choice for form of ownership of real estate used for business or investment purposes. Each form of ownership has a specific tax pattern recognized by Code, resulting in varying advantages and disadvantages in different situations.

§ 20.03 Sole Proprietorships. Because a sole proprietorship is not a separate legal entity, title to such property is held in proprietor's name and property is operated, for legal and tax purposes, as that of owner. Under certain circumstances, an entity may be disregarded for federal income tax purposes and shall be taxed as a sole proprietorship.

§ 20.04 Co-ownership and Joint Venture. Real estate joint venture is not a partnership for tax purposes if it is mere joint undertaking to share expenses, or if it involves mere co-ownership of property which is maintained, kept in repair, and rented or leased. Under investing partnership exception, organization which fits definition of a partnership may elect to be excluded from partnership provisions if formed or used for investment purposes only and not for active conduct of business.

§ 20.05 Partnerships and Limited Liability Companies: Characteristics and Classification. Partnerships and limited liability companies offer tax advantages over corporations. Under check-the-box Regulations, partnership tax classification is assured for all partnerships and limited liability companies, regardless of entity characteristics.

§ 20.06 Partnerships and Limited Liability Companies: Tax Treatment. Partnership or limited liability company entity is disregarded for tax purposes, so that only partners or members in individual capacities are liable for payment of income tax. All partnership items of income, gain, deduction, loss, and credit are allocated to partners in proportion to their respective interests in partnership.

§ 20.07 Corporations. Transfer of property to new or existing corporation solely in exchange for its stock or securities is tax-free, but nonrecognition provision applies only if transferors are in control of transferee corporation immediately after exchange. Corporations, other than closely-held or personal service corporations, are exempt from passive activity loss limitations.

§ 20.08 Real Estate Investment Trusts (REITs): Qualification Requirements. A corporation, trust, or association may qualify for status as a real estate investment trust (REIT) if it meets Code requirements for organization, asset ownership, sources and distribution of income, and reporting, and makes a valid election. REIT status permits entity to be treated as a conduit for tax purposes, so that its income is passed through to shareholders without tax at entity level.

§ 20.09 Real Estate Investment Trusts (REITs): Taxation of a REIT and Its Shareholders. Real estate investment trust, although taxable at regular corporate rates, may avoid taxation by taking deduction for dividends distributed to shareholders in computing its taxable income. Shareholders treat such distributions as ordinary income, except for those attributable to capital gains.

§ 20.10 Cooperative Housing Corporations. Tenant-stockholders of a qualified cooperative housing corporation may deduct their proportionate share of real estate taxes and mortgage interest paid by the corporation. If cooperative apartment is used in trade or business or for production of income, tenant-stockholder may also take depreciation deduction for cost of stock attributable pro rata to proprietary lease or tenancy. Although cooperative corporation is taxpaying entity which must file an income tax return, it generally can avoid tax liability.

§ 20.11 Condominium and Homeowners Associations. Organization may qualify for tax-exempt status as homeowners association if it makes proper election and meets tests as to its function, income, and expenditures. Homeowners association is not taxed on its "exempt function income," but all other income is taxed at 30 percent rate. Individual unit owners are entitled to same deductions for taxes, interest, and other items relating to ownership of real property as are other individual owners of real property.

§ 20.12 Sale of a Residential Cooperative or Condominium Unit. Sale of a residential cooperative or condominium unit involves essentially same rules as apply to sale of any other personal residence. Thus, general Code provisions relating to exclusion of gain on disposition of principal residence apply equally to owners of residential cooperative apartments and condominium units.

§ 20.13 Time Sharing. Time sharing arrangement is a form of coownership, accompanied by agreement as to periods when coowners may use the property. When time share property is rented to others, rules limiting deductibility of rental deductions are applied to all owners in the aggregate.

AUTHOR: by Stephen E. Pigott and Harold O. Maxfield, Jr.

§ 20.02 Introduction: Choosing an Entity for Real Estate Ownership

Real estate owned for business use or investment is owned in many different forms. The most common forms of ownership for real estate are sole proprietorships, tenancies in common, joint ventures, partnerships, limited liability companies, and corporations (including S corporations). More specialized types of ownership include real estate investment trusts, cooperatives, condominiums, and time sharing.

In deciding what form of ownership to choose when investing in real estate for business or investment purposes, the taxpayer must be guided by both tax and nontax considerations. The nontax factors relate to conveniences in operation, marketability, liability, transferability of interests, and the like. Whatever the form of ownership, each falls into a specific tax pattern recognized by the Code with varying advantages and disadvantages in different situations.ⁿ¹

Planning Note

Choice of Entity Not Important for Ownership of Personal Residence

The tax and nontax considerations that affect the owner's choice of an entity to own business or investment real estate usually have little relevance when property is held for personal use, such as a residence. Title to a personal residence is almost always taken in the individual's name alone. If there is more than one owner, title is in some form of joint ownership, such as tenants by the entirety if the owners are married.

§ 20.03 Sole Proprietorships

Real estate may be held by a business operated as a sole proprietorship. Because a sole proprietorship is not a separate legal entity, title to the property is held in the proprietor's name, so that it is owned and operated, for legal and tax purposes, as that of the owner. The proprietor, in effect, is treated like any other individual who owns and operates business or investment real estate.

A sole proprietorship has several important advantages and disadvantages. From the nontax standpoint, an important advantage is simplicity and ease of operation. When property is owned in the individual proprietor's name and no separate legal entity is involved, the recordkeeping requirements (and related costs) for the business are less. Another important nontax advantage is the exclusive control that the proprietor, as the sole owner, has over the management of the property. On the other hand, because title to the property is held in the owner's name, the owner is subject to unlimited personal liability for all debts or claims (e.g., tort) that may arise from ownership or operation of the property. It should be noted, however, that many claims may be covered by insurance.

From the tax standpoint, the principal advantage of a sole proprietorship is that it is not subject to double taxation, as in the case of a regular C corporation. Because the sole proprietorship is not a separate legal entity, only the individual owner is taxed.ⁿ¹ Depending upon whether the property is expected to be income producing and amount of income that is anticipated, the owner might prefer to own it as proprietor and have the income be subject to individual income tax rates, rather than corporate rates, which tend to rise more steeply and top out at a higher rate.ⁿ² When tax losses are anticipated, it may be advantageous to own the property in proprietorship form, so that the losses can be applied against and reduce the owner's other income on his or her individual income tax return.ⁿ³

In most states, a sole proprietor has the option of obtaining complete protection from any liabilities arising out of the business, without incurring the significant administrative costs usually associated with forming and operating a separate business entity. That option is available in those states that allow a limited liability company (LLC) to be formed and owned by a single member. The insulation from liability that is lacking in the usual sole proprietorship is afforded by the state statute under which the LLC is formed. Ordinarily, an LLC is treated as a partnership for tax purposes,ⁿ⁴ and although it does not itself have to pay tax on the earnings that flow through to, and are taxable to, the partners, the entity must nonetheless file an annual information return on Form 1065 and otherwise meet a number of compliance and recordkeeping requirements. Those requirements do not apply to a single-member LLC because it is treated as a proprietorship for tax purposes,ⁿ⁵ and the earnings from the business will still be reported on Schedule C of the member's personal Form 1040. So that option allows the proprietor limited liability without significant administrative costs. Additionally, the IRS has even stated in several private letter rulings that a party which purchases a disregarded entity that owns real estate will be treated as though such party purchased the real estate and not the entity. [PLRs 9751012, 985001, and 9807013]. This can be useful in the context of a like-kind exchange under Section 1031 of the Internal Revenue Code. Normally, Section 1031 would not apply to a transaction where real estate is exchanged for a membership interest in a limited liability company, because the exchanged assets would not be of Alike-kind.[@] However, a sole member limited liability company is disregarded for federal income tax purposes. As a result, a taxpayer may accomplish a like-kind exchange under Section 1031 by acquiring a sole member limited liability company that owns real estate as its exclusive asset, because the taxpayer will be deemed to have acquired the underlying real estate as the replacement property for the real estate being relinquished [PLRs 9751012, 985001 and 9507013].

(n3)Footnote 3. Profits and losses from a sole proprietorship are reported by the individual owner on Schedule C of Form 1040. Thus, any profit from the proprietorship business must be added to the owner's income and any losses from the business may be used to reduce the owner's other income. It should be noted, however, that the owner's ability to claim losses is limited both by the at-risk rules under IRC § 465, which generally allow an owner to deduct losses only up to the amount of the owner's tax basis in the business, and by the passive activity rules under IRC § 469, which provides that losses arising from so-called "passive activities" (those in which the owner does not "materially participate") cannot be used to offset nonpassive income.

(n5)Footnote 5. Treas. Reg. § 301.7701-3(b)(ii). Under the check-the-box Regulations, discussed in detail in § 20.05, supra, the default classification for a single member LLC is a disregarded entity (i.e., a sole proprietorship). An affirmative election can be made to have the LLC treated as a corporation for tax purposes. It would be rare for such an election to be made because it would give rise to several tax disadvantages and gain no nontax benefits for the owner. A single member LLC cannot qualify as a partnership for tax purposes because it does not have the requisite two or more persons engaging in a joint enterprise for profit.

Current Legal Forms for Real Estate
Chapter 20 REAL ESTATE ENTITIES
Part I. The Tax Background

24-20 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate § 20.04

AUTHOR: by Stephen E. Pigott and Harold O. Maxfield, Jr.

[1] In General

Generally, a joint venture is an unincorporated union of two or more persons or entities in a business enterprise with well-defined restrictions on its scope, duration, or activities. An example would be two businesses that unite to work collaboratively on the construction of a building and that no longer have any business ties upon the completion of that project. If the joint venture involves the acquisition or holding of real estate, one of the first questions that arises is the form in which title to the property should be taken by the joint venturers. Often, title is taken in the name of all of the participants as tenants in common. Sometimes, title is taken in the name of the joint venture.ⁿ¹ This technical problem of how title should be held often depends upon the number of participants in the joint venture and the extent and duration of the proposed real estate activity; it is governed by rules of local real estate law, considerations of title, control, and the practice of title insurance companies.

[2] Tax Classification: Co-ownership vs. Partnership Tax Status

An important tax issue is whether a real estate joint venture or similar venture for the co-ownership of real property is subject to the Code's partnership provisions,ⁿ² or whether the co-owners can compute and report their respective shares of income or losses separately and without reference to those provisions. If the venture is classified as a mere co-ownership, the partnership provisions are not applicable. Moreover, even if a venture has the technical characteristics of a partnership, it may be excluded from the partnership provisions if it qualifies as an "investing partnership."ⁿ³ If a venture does not fall into either of these two categories, i.e., as a mere coownership or an investing partnership, then the Code's partnership provisions will be applicable. Neither the characterization of the relationship in the joint venture agreement nor its status under state law is determinative for income tax purposes. For these purposes, the tax classification of the venture depends upon the applicable provisions of the Code and the regulations.ⁿ⁴

The Code defines a partnership to include "a syndicate, group, pool, joint venture or other unincorporated organization through or by means of which any business, financial operation, or venture is carried on, and which is not, within the meaning of [the Code], a corporation or a trust or estate."ⁿ⁵ Neither a joint undertaking merely to share expenses nor the mere co-ownership of property which is maintained, repaired and leased constitutes a partnership for tax purposes.ⁿ⁶

Thus, each co-owner treats his own interest in the property separately, without concern for the rules of partnership taxation. Tenants in common, however, can become partners if they actively carry on a trade, business, financial operation, or venture and divide the profits. For example, co-owners of an apartment building may be deemed partners for tax purposes if they not only lease space but also provide services to the occupants directly or through an agent.ⁿ⁷ On the other hand, no partnership is created where co-owners agree to appoint an agent to manage, collect rent, and sell property.ⁿ⁸ Similarly, no partnership exists where corporate co-owners of an apartment project retain an unrelated corporation to manage the project.ⁿ⁹

[3] Limited Election to be Excluded from Partnership Taxation

The Code excludes from partnership status certain borderline business relationships even though they technically could come within the definition of a partnership. An unincorporated group of real estate owners may elect to be excluded from the operation of all or part of the partnership provisions if the organization is organized and used for investment purposes only and not for the active conduct of a business, and if the income of the members can be adequately determined without the computation of partnership taxable income.ⁿ¹⁰

[a] Investing Partnership Exclusion

An organization may elect to qualify as an "investing partnership," and thus not be governed by the partnership tax rules, if the members are participants in the joint purchase, retention, sale, or exchange of investment property, and meet the following requirements:

- (1) They own the property as co-owners;
- (2) They reserve the right separately to take or dispose of their shares of the property; and
- (3) They do not actively conduct business or irrevocably authorize other persons acting in a representative capacity to purchase, sell, or exchange the property (although each separate participant may delegate authority to purchase, sell, or exchange his share of the investment property for the time being for his account, but not for a period of more than one year).ⁿ¹¹

For example, a syndicate for investment in land or in improved real estate subject to a lease under which the lessee incurs all of the operating expenses would be eligible as an investing partnership. The "active conduct of business" restriction, however, would seem to exclude a syndicate which operates an office building or an apartment house, whether directly or through an agent.

[b] Election Procedure

The election to be excluded from treatment as a partnership is made by filing a properly executed partnership return containing the name and address of the organization, together with a statement containing the names and addresses of all members, and statements that the organization qualifies for the election and that all its members so elect. The return should also have a statement attached which shows the identification number of all members and indicates where a copy of the organization's operating agreement is available.ⁿ¹² The Service will not question the statement that all of the members have elected investing partnership status.ⁿ¹³ The election is not effective, however, if any member notifies the Commissioner that he desires the partnership provisions to apply. This notice must be filed within 90 days after the organization is formed, and must state that the member has so notified all other members by registered mail.ⁿ¹⁴ The election is irrevocable so long as the organization remains qualified, except with the consent of the Commissioner.ⁿ¹⁵ It is not affected by the sale of a member's interest.ⁿ¹⁶ After the first year, the organization is not required to file a partnership return.

A qualified organization which wishes to be excluded from the operation of only certain partnership rules may request partial exclusion by filing an application with the Commissioner within 90 days after the beginning of the first taxable year for which such treatment is desired. The request for partial exclusion must set forth certain specified information, and is effective only upon approval by the Commissioner and subject to whatever conditions are imposed by the Commissioner.ⁿ¹⁷

Extent of Business Activities Determine Tax Status.

Determination of whether a venture is a coownership arrangement or a partnership in any given case usually depends upon the extent of the venture's business activities. If the relationship is solely for the co-ownership of property and not for the active conduct of a business, the characteristics of a partnership are absent.

§ 20.05 Partnerships and Limited Liability Companies: Characteristics and Classification

[1] General vs. Limited Partnership; Nontax Considerations

The choice of a partnership as the form for carrying on a real estate business depends upon a combination of nontax and tax considerations. The principal nontax factor is the unlimited personal liability of general partners for all of the partnership debts and obligations. This could be a deterrent to the use of the general partnership form in any business enterprise. The problem of unlimited liability has been resolved, particularly in the area of ownership and operation of real estate, by the use of the limited partnership and insurance. Limited partners, unlike general partners in a general or limited partnership, are not liable for the partnership's obligations or the other partners' wrongful acts except to the extent of their agreed-upon capital contribution. In order to qualify as a limited partnership, however, the enterprise must meet the organizational requirements of the particular state in which it is formed, such as the filing of a proper certificate of limited partnership. In addition, the enterprise must comply with the particular state's substantive requirements for limited partnership status. For example, there must be at least one general partner with unlimited liability for partnership obligations, and none of the limited partners can participate in the management of the partnership or otherwise take an active part in the control of its business. Failure to satisfy these various organizational and substantive requirements will result either in the denial of limited partnership status or in the particular limited partner being held liable to partnership creditors as a general partner.ⁿ¹

[2] Partnership vs. Corporation; Nontax Considerations

Several major nontax characteristics distinguish a partnership from a corporation, and all must be weighed carefully when considering whether to hold real property in the partnership or corporate form. The most important nontax consideration, as in the case of the general partnership versus limited partnership distinction, is that of unlimited liability. Partners in a general partnership and general partners in a limited partnership have unlimited personal liability. On the other hand, the liability of corporate shareholders, as in the case of limited partners, is limited to the amount of their agreed-upon capital contribution to the organization.

A partnership has several other important nontax disadvantages, as compared to the corporate form. For example, the death or withdrawal of a partner results in dissolution of the partnership unless the partners agree otherwise in the partnership agreement; on the other hand, a corporation has perpetual continuity of life. Also, a partnership does not have the ease of interest transferability that exists with respect to a corporation, because a general partner must usually obtain the consent of all other partners to transfer his partnership interest and substitute the transferee for himself. Often, a corporate shareholder may transfer his interest without restrictions.ⁿ²

[3] Limited Liability Company vs. Partnership and Corporation; Nontax Considerations

It can fairly be said that a limited liability company combines the most important nontax benefit of a corporation, limited liability for all of the owners, with the tax benefits of a partnership, which are discussed below. The liability of members of a limited liability company for the entity's obligations or the other members' wrongful acts is, like that of corporate shareholders, limited to their respective agreed-upon capital contributions. But for tax purposes, a limited liability company is taxable as a partnership. Therefore, it is the preferred choice over a general partnership or a limited partnership for most real estate ventures.

[4] Comparison of Partnership and Corporate Taxation

The choice of organizing as a partnership (or a limited liability company which, as noted above, is treated as a partnership for tax purposes) or a corporation often depends upon various tax considerations, which may be more important than the nontax factors discussed above. One such tax consideration that is important is the fact that partnerships are not taxed as such. Rather, each partner is taxed on his share of partnership earnings, regardless of whether those earnings are distributed to him. Under this conduit or pass-through theory, all items of income, deduction, loss, and credit are allocated to the partners in proportion to their respective interests in the partnership.ⁿ³ By contrast, a regular C corporation (i.e., one with respect to which an election to be an S corporation is not in effect) is itself subject to tax on its net earnings, and those earnings are again taxable to the shareholders if and when they are distributed as dividends to the shareholders.ⁿ⁴

There are many situations in which the pass-through nature of a limited liability company and partnership taxation make one of those forms desirable in order to secure for the members or partners, in proportion to their respective interests in the entity, the pass-through tax benefit of depreciation, operating losses, or other deductions. This consideration is especially important in the context of real estate, where depreciation or cost recovery taken on partnership property often results in losses which may be passed through to the partners and used to offset their personal income from other sources.ⁿ⁵ Thus, where such pass-through of losses is an important consideration, the taxpayer should consider organizing in the limited liability company or partnership form.

An S corporation also is a pass-through entity for tax purposes. It is not subject to tax on its income.ⁿ⁶ Instead, its income flows through to its shareholders and is included on their individual income tax returns, regardless of whether any of the corporation's earnings are actually distributed to the shareholders.ⁿ⁷ S corporations, however, are much less flexible entities taxwise than are limited liability companies and partnerships. S corporations may only have up to 75 shareholders,ⁿ⁸ and are subject to numerous restrictions on who is permitted to be a shareholder. Generally, only individuals and certain estates and trusts are eligible.ⁿ⁹ And none of the shareholders may be a nonresident alien.ⁿ¹⁰ Also, an S corporation may only have one class of stock, unless the only distinguishing feature of the second class is that it is nonvoting stock.ⁿ¹¹ So, it is not possible, for example, to offer some of the investing shareholders a preferred return over other owners as an inducement to invest.

Another important difference between partnership and S corporation tax treatment is that a partner's basis in his partnership interest includes not only the amount he contributed to the partnership and his proportionate share of the undistributed earnings of the partnership, but also his proportionate share of the partnership's liabilities.ⁿ¹² The liabilities of an S corporation are not part of an S corporation shareholder's stock basis. That difference can be significant if substantial tax losses are anticipated because the at-risk rules in the Code limit a partner's and an S corporation shareholder's opportunity to claim those losses on his personal tax return and offset other income, by allowing the losses to be taken only to the extent of the partner's or shareholder's tax basis in his ownership interest.ⁿ¹³ Thus, having a greater basis because of the inclusion of partnership liabilities is a potentially great advantage to a partner that is not afforded to an S corporation shareholder.

[5] Tax Classification as Partnership or Corporation

As indicated above, a significant tax consideration in determining whether an entity should be organized as a limited liability company or partnership, on the one hand, or a corporation, on the other hand, is the single tax on partnership income and the double tax on corporation-shareholder income. Ultimately, this factor often operates to the disadvantage of the corporation, so that there is usually a benefit to qualifying as a partnership for tax purposes.

Under the check-the-box regulations, a partnership may choose between being classified as an association (taxable as a corporation) or its "default" classification as a partnership.ⁿ¹⁴ In the absence of an affirmative election otherwise, the "default" classification will control. Thus, absent the rare circumstance of filing an election to be treated otherwise, all partnerships, both general and limited, and all limited liability companies will automatically be classified as a partnership for tax purposes. Although, under the Regulations, the default classification of a partnership is likely to be the tax classification desired by its owners, the rules provide that a partnership may elect out of its default status by electing to be classified as an association taxable as a corporation.ⁿ¹⁵ Likewise, an entity which has elected out of its default status may elect to return to its default classification.ⁿ¹⁶ The election is made on Treasury Form 8832 and cannot be effective any earlier than 75 days prior to the date the election is filed or more than 12 months after the date of filing. Absent consent from the Commissioner, an election to change an entity's classification is not allowed if a change in classification has occurred within the prior five years. Such consent generally will be granted only where a more-than-50% change of ownership has occurred with respect to the entity.ⁿ¹⁷

Be cautious about changing entity classifications.

Although the Regulations permit an entity to convert back and forth from corporation to partnership or non-entity status, a careful analysis of the tax consequences of such a conversion should be made prior to making the election. Such a conversion could have substantial adverse tax consequences. For example, the conversion of an entity from "corporation" status to "partnership" status could have immediate tax consequences to the entity and/or its owners in the event the conversion is treated as a deemed liquidation of the old "corporation."

[6] Publicly Traded Partnerships Taxed as Corporations

A publicly traded partnership (including a master limited partnership) is treated as a corporation for federal income tax purposes unless 90 percent or more of its gross income is qualifying (passive-type) income.ⁿ¹⁸ A publicly traded partnership that is registered under the Investment Company Act of 1940 is generally treated as a corporation. A publicly traded partnership is defined as a partnership the interests of which are (1) traded on an established securities market, or (2) readily tradable on a secondary market (or the substantial equivalent).ⁿ¹⁹ Relief from classification as a corporation is provided for a partnership that inadvertently fails to meet the 90 percent requirement that its gross income be passive-type income.ⁿ²⁰ Relief is available if the Treasury Secretary determines that the failure was inadvertent, if within a reasonable time after the discovery of such failure steps are taken so that the partnership once more meets the 90 percent gross income requirements, and if the partnership agrees to make adjustments (including adjustments with respect to the partners) or to pay amounts as required by the Secretary. The Treasury is authorized to withhold the relief allowances if the publicly traded partnership inadvertently fails to meet the 90 percent test in each of several successive years, or in several years within a longer period, thus causing the partnership to be treated as a corporation in these circumstances.n21

AUTHOR: by Stephen E. Pigott and Harold O. Maxfield, Jr.

§ 20.06 Partnerships and Limited Liability Companies: Tax Treatment

[1] Taxation of Partnerships and Partners

[a] Partnership Income and Deductions

As discussed above in § 20.05[3], a limited liability company is treated as a partnership for tax purposes. For that reason, all of the discussion that follows in this § 20.06[1] applies not only to partnerships and their partners, but also to limited liability companies and their members. However, to avoid redundancy, the discussion that follows makes reference only to partnerships and partners. It is, however, intended to apply to both partnerships and limited liability companies.

A partnership as such is not subject to income tax. The partnership, as a pass-through entity, is disregarded and only the partners in their individual capacities are liable for the payment of income tax.ⁿ¹ The tax computation involves two steps: first, determination of the partnership's own items of income, gain, loss, deduction, and credit; second, the inclusion of those items in the individual returns of the partners. The partnership is the basic accounting unit and must file an annual information return, Form 1065, which discloses the partnership's profits and distributive shares of income.ⁿ² The taxable income of the partnership is computed in the same manner as that of an individual, with the following two exceptions: (1) income and loss must be itemized according to derivation; and (2) certain deductions are not allowed to the partnership.ⁿ³ Although a partnership generally is free to select the accounting method it will use, even if it is a method not used by any of its partners, a partnership with a C corporation as a partner may not use the cash method.ⁿ⁴ A cash basis partner must report his distributive share of the partnership's accrued income if the partnership is on the accrual basis.

[b] Partner's Distributive Share; Tax Year

The partnership return contains a computation of "taxable income," but segregated into the various classifications of income, gain, loss, deduction, or credit which may be relevant to the partners' own computations. The partnership return also contains a separate schedule for the division of these various classes of items among the partners in accordance with their "distributive shares." Each partner must report his distributive share (whether or not distribution is actually made) for the taxable year of the partnership ending with or within the partner's own taxable year.

The timing of when income, gain or loss must be reported, can have as great an effect on a partner's tax as the character of that income, gain or loss. Unless a business purpose can be substantiated for using a different taxable year, a partnership's taxable year must be the same as that of one or more partners owning an aggregate interest in partnership profits and capital of more than 50 percent.ⁿ⁵ A partnership may adopt, retain or change to a natural business fiscal year if it can be shown that 25 percent or more of the partnership's gross receipts for the preceding 12 month period are recognized in the last two months of the requested year.ⁿ⁶

An election is available to a partnership to adopt or change to a taxable year with a limited deferral period. This election is only available if the deferral period of the taxable year elected is not longer than the shorter of three months or the deferral period of the taxable year being changed.ⁿ⁷ The electing partnership must make a "required payment," generally an enhanced estimated tax payment, for any taxable year for which an election is in effect. The required payment is generally due on the April 15 following the beginning of the partnership's elected taxable year, unless the Service provides for a later date.ⁿ⁸

The character of each item of income, gain, loss, deduction, or credit retains the same character as it had for the partnership.ⁿ⁹ A distributive share of loss, however, is not allowable to the extent that it exceeds the partner's basis for his partnership interest; but any disallowed loss is carried over to a subsequent year if the partner's basis is increased by earnings or contributions.ⁿ¹⁰

Each partner is required to treat partnership items on his return consistently with the treatment on the partnership return.ⁿ¹¹ If, however, the treatment is, or may be, inconsistent, or no partnership return is filed, the consistency requirement is waived provided the partner files a statement identifying the inconsistency.ⁿ¹² Under a corresponding procedural provision of the Code, the tax treatment of items of partnership income, loss, deduction, and credit is determined at the partnership level in a unified proceeding rather than in separate proceedings with partners.ⁿ¹³ The consistency and related rules do not apply, however, to "small partnerships." These are partnerships consisting of no more than ten partners, each of whom is a natural person (other than a nonresident alien) or an estate, and in which each partner's share of any partnership item is the same as his share of every other item.ⁿ¹⁴

A partner's distributive share of partnership, income, gain, loss, deduction, or credit is determined by the partnership agreement.ⁿ¹⁵ In the case of a limited liability company, that share is determined by reference to the operating agreement. If the agreement does not make an allocation, or if the allocation does not have "substantial economic effect," the partner's distributive share is determined in accordance with his interest in the partnership, taking into account all facts and circumstances.ⁿ¹⁶ In order for an allocation to have substantial economic effect, it must be reflected in the partners' capital accounts, liquidating distributions must be made in accordance with positive capital account balances, and either the partnership agreement or state law must require the repayment of deficit capital account balances.ⁿ¹⁷

Partnership losses are apportioned among partners based upon the respective part of the year that each partner was a member of the partnership, despite an agreement to the contrary. A partner admitted on the last day of the year cannot deduct a share of losses that were incurred prior to his admission to the partnership.ⁿ¹⁸

[c] Contributions to the Partnership

One of the most intricate aspects of partnership taxation involves the treatment of contributions in kind made to the partnership. The difficulty in this area stems from the possible difference between the value of property at the time of its contribution to the partnership and its tax basis in the hands of the contributing partner. The Code contains specific directives for all the consequences of the contribution, with alternative directives to accommodate the parties' intent in different situations. A partner who contributes property for an interest in the partnership (instead of selling it to the partnership in a taxable transaction) generally recognizes no gain or loss.ⁿ¹⁹ The basis of the property, with one exception, is the same as in the hands of the partner at the time of the contribution. Under the exception, the partnership's basis is increased by any gain recognized by a partner who contributes property to a partnership that would be treated as an investment company if it were incorporated.ⁿ²⁰

When services, rather than property, are contributed one must look to the nature of the interest received by the service provider to determine the appropriate tax treatment. If the interest received is either an interest in both the partnership's capital and profits or an interest in just partnership capital, then the contributing partner is required to recognize compensation income to the extent of the value of the interest received. If, however, the interest is only a profits interest (i.e., it gives the recipient no right to share in the value of the partnership's assets upon liquidation), then the recipient does not recognize compensation income until he receives actual distributions of the profits.ⁿ²¹

When a partner contributes property to a partnership, all income, gain, loss and deductions with respect to that property are shared among the partners under a method which takes into account the difference between the basis of the property to the partnership (i.e., the contributing partner's adjusted basis) and the property's fair market value at the time of the contribution.ⁿ²² If property contributed to a partnership is distributed to someone other than the contributing partner within seven years after the original contribution, the contributing partner is required to recognize any gain or loss he would have had to recognize under the foregoing rule had the distributed property been sold for its fair market value on the date of the distribution.ⁿ²³ The character of the recognized gain or loss to the contributing partner is the same as the character to the partnership had the partnership sold the property to the distributee at the time of the distribution. The contributing partner's adjusted basis for his partnership interest is increased or decreased to reflect any gain or loss he recognized upon the distribution of the property to another partner (or partners). Similarly, the partnership's adjusted basis for the distributed property is increased or decreased to reflect any gain or loss the contributor recognized upon the distribution, and this increase or decrease is taken into account in determining the distributee's adjusted basis for the distributed property.ⁿ²⁴

Frequently, a contributing partner's adjusted basis in real property for which depreciation or cost recovery has been taken will be lower than its fair market value. In such cases, any gain to be realized under the recapture rulesⁿ²⁵ upon the sale or other disposition of the depreciated real estate, i.e., as ordinary income or capital gain, will be allocated to the contributing partner to the extent of the difference between its fair market value and the adjusted basis at the time of the contribution.

Example:

A, an equal partner in Partnership AB, contributes property with a fair market value of $1,000 and an adjusted basis of $400. The difference between the fair market value and AB's carryover basis is $600. When AB sells the property, A will be taxed upon the entire $600 partnership gain, because that gain is entirely attributable to the difference between the carryover basis of the property and its fair market value at the time of the contribution. If, instead, AB sells the property for $1,200, its gain would be $800: the first $600 would be allocated to A, and the remaining $200 would be divided equally; as a result, A's gain is $700, and B's is $100.

[d] Sale or Lease to the Partnership

Taxable gain or loss results when a partner sells or exchanges rather than contributes property to the partnership.ⁿ²⁶ One limitation on this rule is the disallowance of loss on a sale or exchange of property (other than an interest in the partnership) by a person who owns, directly or indirectly, more than a 50 percent interest in the partnership.ⁿ²⁷ Also, the sale of a capital asset to a partnership by a partner owning more than a 50 percent interest in the partnership will generate ordinary income, rather than capital gain to the selling partner.ⁿ²⁸ Thus, the parties usually can determine in advance which set of tax consequences will be more beneficial--a nontaxable contribution or a taxable sale. The "sale" technique may involve the simpler tax picture and may result in the more equitable tax treatment of the partners.

An alternative method for simplifying the tax structure is for the partner to retain ownership of the property and to lease it to the partnership, with rent approximating the depreciation. This technique enables the partner to offset their income by the depreciation allowance, and the partnership to take a deduction for the rent.ⁿ²⁹

[e] Effect of Liabilities on Basis

If a partner contributes property to a partnership, the property is subject to a liability, such as a mortgage, and the partnership will assume the liability, then the tax treatment to the contributing partner is determined by netting three different adjustments to the basis of the contributing partner's partnership interest.ⁿ³⁰ That basis is increased by the partner's basis in the property at the time of the contribution, increased by the partner's share of the liability to which the property is subject, and decreased by the full amount of the liability. If the effect of netting those three adjustments yields a positive basis, then the contributing partner recognizes no gain or loss. If, however, there is insufficient basis to allow for the full decrease, then the contributing partner must recognize gain to the extent of the excess.

A partner may deduct partnership losses only up to the adjusted basis of his partnership interest, subject to the at risk limitations.ⁿ³¹ A partner may increase his basis to the extent that he assumes liability for partnership debt, because the assumption is treated as a contribution of money by the partner to the partnership.ⁿ³² However, if none of the partners is personally liable for a partnership debt (i.e., the liability is nonrecourse), the amount of that debt is nonetheless includible in the partners' bases in their partnership interests, with the apportionment thereof being based upon an assessment of how much gain each partner would have to recognize if the property were to be surrendered back to the lender.ⁿ³³

[f] Sale of Property by the Partnership

When a partnership sells or otherwise disposes of property contributed to it by a partner, the capital or noncapital character of gain or loss realized by the partnership is determined by the character of the property in its hands, with three exceptions for inventory items, unrealized receivables, and capital loss property. In the case of contributed unrealized receivables, any gain or loss recognized by the partnership upon the property's disposition is treated as ordinary income or ordinary loss.ⁿ³⁴ A similar rule applies to the disposition of contributed inventory items if the disposition occurs within five years after the contribution by the partner.ⁿ³⁵ If a partner contributes property that was a capital asset in the partner's hands immediately before the contribution, and if at the time of the contribution the property's fair market value was less than its tax basis (i.e., it had a "built-in" capital loss), and if the partnership sells that property at a loss within five years after it was contributed, then the partnership's loss will be a capital loss to the extent of the built-in capital loss that existed when the property was contributed.ⁿ³⁶

The partnership's holding period for contributed property includes the period during which the contributing partner held the property before contribution, whether or not it was a capital asset in his hands.ⁿ³⁷ Of course, the holding period is relevant only when the contributed property would result in capital gain or loss when disposed of by the partnership. For example, if a partner contributes inventory assets to a partnership, the holding period is immaterial because any gain or loss that the partnership realizes upon disposition will be ordinary income or ordinary loss.

[g] Death of a Partner

Upon the death of a partner, the partnership does not terminate for tax purposes. The deceased partner's estate or other successor is considered a continuing partner until the deceased partner's interest in the partnership is liquidated, exchanged or sold.ⁿ³⁸ There are three types of payments that may be made by a partnership when liquidating a partner's interest. The tax treatment of payments made by a partnership in liquidation of a partner's interest is controlled by the purpose for which the payment is made. To the extent that the payment is made for the partner's interest in partnership property, it generally will result in capital gain or loss treatment for the seller.ⁿ³⁹ To the extent that the payment is either a distributive share of partnership income or a guaranteed payment, it will result in ordinary income to the recipient.ⁿ⁴⁰ A "guaranteed payment" is a payment, the amount of which is determined without regard to the income of the partnership, made to a partner for services or the use of capital.ⁿ⁴¹ Examples of guaranteed payments would be payments made to a retired partner in the nature of a pension or deferred compensation, if the amounts thereof were determined without regard to the partnership's income, such as if the amounts were fixed monthly payments. Payments made for a partner's interest in partnership property do not result in any gain or loss being recognized by the partnership.ⁿ⁴² Such payments are not deductible by the partnership, and they do not reduce the other partners' shares of partnership income. Payments made for a deceased partner's share of partnership income are not deductible, but they do reduce the continuing partners' shares of partnership income. Guaranteed payments are deductible by the partnership to the extent they are in payment for services. The differing tax treatments for the various types of payments a partnership might make to a deceased partner give a partnership and its partners the opportunity, by agreement, to allocate payments among the three categories of payments in order to achieve desired economic and tax results.

[2] Real Estate--"At Risk" Loss Deduction Limitation

To curb the purchase of tax loss deductions through the use of nonrecourse financing, the Code contains an "at risk" loss deduction limitation, which applies to most types of business activities.ⁿ³⁸ Unless specifically excluded, certain classes of taxpayers (including individuals, partners, shareholders of S corporations, and closely-held C corporations) engaged in a trade or business or other activity for the production of income can deduct losses only to the extent that the taxpayer is at risk. The taxpayer is at risk to the extent that he contributes money or property to the enterprise or is personally liable on borrowings used to finance the enterprise. Also at risk is the value of the taxpayer's interest in property which is not used in the enterprise but which secures loans to finance the loss generating activity.ⁿ³⁹

If a taxpayer is engaged in the activity of holding real property and if debt meeting the statutory requirements of "qualified nonrecourse financing" ("QNF") is borrowed to finance the activity, then the taxpayer will be considered at risk with respect to such debt.ⁿ⁴⁰ Qualified nonrecourse financing must be borrowed from an organization in the business of lending, a governmental entity, or guaranteed by a governmental entity. A loan from a related person will satisfy the QNF requirements only if it is commercially reasonable and lent on substantially the same terms as loans to unrelated persons. Commercially reasonable terms require a written unconditional promise to pay an ascertainable sum, on demand or on a fixed date, at a reasonable market interest rate.ⁿ⁴¹ A related person generally includes family members and controlled corporations or partnerships (10 percent ownership interest).ⁿ⁴² Additionally, the QNF must be nonconvertible debt, secured by the real property used in the activity and generally without personal liability.ⁿ⁴³

Qualified Nonrecourse Financing Tested at Partnership Level.

Monies borrowed by partnerships to finance the activities of holding real property are tested at the partnership level for compliance with the Qualified Nonrecourse Financing (QNF) requirements. The individual partner's share of the at risk amount generated by the QNF is calculated pursuant to the general partnership allocation rules.

[3] Real Estate--Passive Loss Limitations

[a] In General

The passive loss limitations generally prohibit current deduction of passive losses or credits in excess of aggregate passive activity income. The disallowed deductions are carried forward indefinitely. A trade or business in which the taxpayer does not materially participate constitutes a passive activity.ⁿ⁴⁴ "Material participation" is defined in the Code with the subjective terms of regular, continuous, and substantial, but the Regulations establish safe harbors that are more objective.ⁿ⁴⁵

[b] Offset of Net Passive Losses from Rental Real Estate Activity

Generally speaking, rental activity (i.e., any activity where payments are principally made for the use of tangible property) is considered to be a passive activity.ⁿ⁴⁶ Therefore, deductions and credits from rental activities can only offset income from other passive activities, generally. Such deductions and credits cannot be deducted from nonpassive income, such as wages, dividends, interest, etc. However, there are two major exceptions to this general rule.

First, certain eligible taxpayers who materially participate in rental real estate activities can deduct losses from such activities against nonpassive income. These eligible taxpayers include individuals and closely-held C corporations that meet special eligibility requirements. An individual taxpayer meets the eligibility requirements if:

- (1) more than half of the personal services the taxpayer performs during the tax year are performed in real property trades or businesses in which the taxpayer materially participates; and
- (2) such taxpayer performs more than 750 hours of service during the tax year in the real property trades or businesses in which the taxpayer materially participates.ⁿ⁴⁷

A closely-held C corporation meets the eligibility requirements if more than 50 percent of its gross receipts for the tax year are derived from real property trades or businesses in which the corporation materially participates.ⁿ⁴⁸

"Real property trade or business" means any real property development, redevelopment, construction, reconstruction, acquisition, conversion, rental, operation, management, leasing or brokerage trade or business.ⁿ⁴⁹

A second exception to the general rule disallowing deduction of passive losses and credits in excess of passive income is provided for natural persons actively participating in a rental real estate activity.ⁿ⁵⁰ Up to $25,000 of net losses and deduction-equivalent credits generated by rental real estate activities may be used to offset nonpassive income of the taxpayer if he actively participates in the activity. The active participation requirement applies both to the year when the loss or credit arose and the year in which the loss or credit is taken. Active participation is defined in negative terms by the statute. An individual holding less than a 10 percent interest in the value of the activity or a limited partnership interest may not be treated as actively participating in that activity. Beyond this the only illumination is in the Senate Reports indicating that "active" is less extensive than "material" participation. Congress intends the making of management decisions (i.e., approval of tenants and expenditures) to fulfill the active participation standard.ⁿ⁵¹

The $25,000 exemption is phased-out at adjusted gross income levels between $100,000 and $150,000. The allowance is reduced by 50 percent of the amount by which adjusted gross income exceeds $100,000.ⁿ⁵² The amounts of the exemption and adjusted gross income are halved in the case of married individuals filing separately. However, if the separately filing couple has not lived apart during the taxable year, the exemption is not available.ⁿ⁵³

§ 20.07 Corporations

[1] Nontax Considerations

Historically, and prior to the advent of limited liability companies, real estate developers, syndicators and dealers who planned to conduct a business or a venture through an entity most often narrowed their choices down to either corporations or limited partnerships. A corporation had the attractive nontax attribute of complete insulation for shareholders against liability for corporate debts. That benefit was available to the limited partners, but not to the general partner, in a limited partnership. To be able to gain the benefit of that limited liability, the entrepreneur had to tolerate some tax disadvantages of the corporate form. If the corporation was to be a C corporation, its earnings would be subject to one tax imposed on the corporation, and then a second level of tax would be imposed on the shareholders when the earnings were paid out as dividends. If instead the corporation was to be an S corporation, it avoided the double tax problem, but it was severely limited by its qualification rules, such as that it could have no corporate, partnership, or nonresident alien shareholders, it could have no more than 75 shareholders, and it could not have more than one class of stock. So, faced with those tax disadvantages, the entrepreneur frequently opted to use a limited partnership with a newly formed corporate general partner that had as little net worth at risk as was possible. In that way, although the general partner did not enjoy complete limited liability, at least the liability was capped at its net worth.

With the advent of limited liability companies, corporations are rarely given much consideration as the entity of choice for new real estate ventures. That is because a limited liability company offers complete limited liability to its members, and it is taxable as a partnership, which like an S corporation is a pass-through entity whose earnings are taxable only once. Moreover, a limited liability is not subject to any of the qualification rules imposed on S corporations, so that a limited liability company may have any number and any type of owners, and its equity can be comprised of many different classes with widely varying rights.

[2] Tax Treatment of Corporations

[a] Corporations

Maximum tax efficiency is more difficult to achieve if an entity is organized as a corporation. The privilege of earning income through a corporate entity is usually subject to a double tax. The corporation, as a separate legal entity, must pay a corporate income tax when it realizes income;ⁿ¹ the shareholders must pay an individual income tax when the corporation's income is distributed to them in the form of dividends (to the extent of the corporation's earnings and profits).ⁿ² If the corporation's earnings may be withdrawn as compensation for personal services rendered by the shareholders, the corporate tax disadvantage is, of course, lessened. The corporation, however, must be prepared to justify salaries paid as "reasonable compensation;" otherwise, the payments will constitute nondeductible dividends.ⁿ³ On the other hand, compensation received by the shareholder is fully taxable to him, even though the corporation has a net loss of which no tax advantage may be taken by the shareholder.ⁿ⁴

The close corporation is sometimes used as a tax shelter device by high bracket individual taxpayers. This is because the close corporation acts as a temporary receptacle for income, which can be distributed advantageously as dividends over a period of years or as a liquidating distribution taxable as long term gain, or which can be realized as gain on the sale of the corporate stock. There are tax disadvantages, however, because the close corporation is particularly vulnerable to the personal holding company surtaxⁿ⁵, as well as the accumulated earnings surtax for unreasonable accumulations.ⁿ⁶ No equivalent accumulated earnings penalty is imposed upon limited liability companies or partnerships; the members or partners individually pay tax on the LLC or partnership earnings whether or not those earnings are distributed.ⁿ⁷

Another occasion on which a double tax is imposed is upon the liquidation of a C corporation. If the assets of the corporation are sold and the sale proceeds distributed to shareholders or if the assets are distributed in kind to the shareholders, two levels of tax will be imposed. In the sale scenario, tax will be imposed on gain resulting from the asset sales, and then the shareholders will recognize capital gain on the liquidation if the proceeds they receive are greater than their stock basis. In the alternative, if assets are distributed to shareholders in kind, the corporation is deemed to have sold them to the shareholders at the assets' then fair market values,ⁿ⁸ and again the shareholders will have capital gain upon their receipt of the net liquidation proceeds.

[b] S Corporations

In an attempt to remove tax penalties incurred solely by reason of the form of entity chosen for doing business, Code provisions enable certain corporations, known as S corporations, to elect to be taxed somewhat as partnerships, i.e., the shareholders take into account their pro rata shares of items of income, loss, deduction, or credit to the corporation.ⁿ⁹ The main feature of this election is that the shareholders, rather than the corporation, immediately realize taxable income from the corporate earnings (in proportion to their holdings), so that corporate income tax is avoided. Also, S corporations pass through losses, such as from the depreciation of real estate, to their shareholders.ⁿ¹⁰

A corporation that began as a C corporation and then makes the S election is subject to special rules designed to prevent it from avoiding the corporate level tax inherent in any assets that it owned when the S election became effective. If for any tax year beginning in the "recognition period" an S corporation that was originally a C corporation has a "net recognized built-in gain," a tax is imposed on such gain. The "recognition period" is the ten-year period beginning with the first tax year for which the corporation was an S corporation. The tax is computed by multiplying the highest corporate tax rate (as set forth in IRC Section 11(b)) by the corporation's net recognized built-in gain for the year. "Net recognized built-in gain" is the lesser of (1) recognized built-in gains for the tax year, minus recognized built-in losses for the year, or (2) the S corporation's taxable income for the year computed as if it were a regular C corporation.

A "recognized built-in gain" is any gain recognized during the recognition period on the disposition (by sale, exchange, etc.) of any asset, except to the extent that:

- (1) the S corporation did not hold the asset at the beginning of the first tax year for which it was an S corporation, or

(2) the gain exceeds the excess (if any) of the fair market value of the asset as of the beginning of the first tax year, over the adjusted basis of the asset at that time.

Similarly, a "recognized built-in loss" is any loss recognized during the recognition period on the disposition of any asset to the extent that the corporation establishes that it held the asset at the beginning of the first tax year, and the loss does not exceed the excess of:

(1) the adjusted basis of the asset at the beginning of the first tax year, over

(2) the fair market value of the asset at that time.ⁿ¹¹

If an S corporation qualifies for the S corporation election (e.g., it is an "eligible" domestic corporation with no more than 100 noncorporate shareholders),ⁿ¹² it may be an advantageous vehicle for use in the real estate area because of the pass-through of tax attributes and limited liability features. On the other hand, several factors may restrict the use of S corporations in real estate transactions. The principal disadvantage is the provision that allows an S corporation shareholder to deduct losses only to the extent of the adjusted basis of the shareholder's stock in the S corporation plus the shareholder's adjusted basis of the corporation's indebtedness to the shareholder.ⁿ¹³ Thus, mortgage liabilities on real property owned by an S corporation cannot be added to the shareholder's basis. The effect of this provision is to limit the amount of losses that an S corporation can pass through to its shareholders.ⁿ¹⁴

[3] Tax-Free Transfer to a Controlled Corporation

No gain or loss is recognized when one or more persons transfer property to a corporation solely in exchange for the corporation's stock, and immediately thereafter such person or persons are in control of the corporation.

Formerly, nonrecognition of gain and loss also was permitted when, in exchange for the transferred property, the person(s) received the corporation's stock or securities, and immediately thereafter the person(s) were in control of the corporation. Accordingly, a transferor could transfer appreciated property to a corporation in exchange for stock and a debt obligation of the corporation that was a security, without recognizing gain.

Debt obligations that were not considered to be securities under IRC Section 351 were treated as "boot." (A transferor who receives boot is taxed on the lesser of the amount of the boot or the gain realized on the exchange.) Now, for purposes of the nonrecognition provisions of IRC Section 351, if a transferor receives any securities, they are treated as boot in all cases.ⁿ¹⁵

Control for purposes of the statute means the ownership of stock possessing at least 80 percent of (1) the total combined voting power of all classes of stock entitled to vote, and (2) the total number of shares of all other classes of stock of the corporation.ⁿ¹⁶ In determining control for purposes of this provision, the fact that a corporate transferor distributes all or part of the stock which it receives in the exchange to its shareholders is not taken into account.ⁿ¹⁷

The nonrecognition provision applies even where the shares of the transferee corporation are issued to one or more of the transferors for cash. For purposes of this section, money is the same as any other property transferred to the corporation for its shares.ⁿ¹⁸ But stock issued for (1) services, (2) indebtedness of the transferee corporation which is not evidenced by a security, or (3) interest on indebtedness of the transferee corporation which accrued on or after the beginning of the transferor's holding period for the debt, is not considered as issued in return for property.ⁿ¹⁹

Thus, the issuance of stock or securities to a broker, a rental agent or attorney, or a promoter for services rendered in connection with the organization or initial activities of a corporation does not qualify as a nontaxable exchange for property. For example, stock issued to a promoter in return for his arranging financing for a construction project or for a contract right which represented unrealized compensation for services was taxable as compensation.ⁿ²⁰

The nonrecognition rule applies only to the extent that property is transferred "solely" in exchange for the transferee corporation's stock.ⁿ²¹ Note, however, that the receipt of money or other property (generally referred to as "boot") does not destroy an otherwise tax-free exchange. In such a case, gain (but not loss) is recognized only to the extent of the money and the fair market value of the other property received in the exchange.ⁿ²² The statute does not define the type of "gain" that is realized where boot is received by a transferor. Moreover, it is unclear whether money received in this type of tax-free exchange is taxable only as a capital gain or may be taxed as a dividend.ⁿ²³

Since the tax-free provision is designed merely to postpone the recognition of gain or loss until the stock is ultimately disposed of, the Code attributes to the stock the same basis as that of the property transferred in exchange. Moreover, the transferred property retains its basis in the hands of the corporation.ⁿ²⁴ Thus, if the property has appreciated in value during the time it was held by the individual, the required carryover of his basis to the corporation will result in the recognition of gain to the corporation when it sells the property.

[1] Qualification for Conduit Tax Status

Real estate investment trusts, or REITs, are organizations which invest in real estate and distribute most of the earnings to their shareholders-investors. REITs receive the same general conduit treatment that is applied to a regulated investment company, although the latter's income consists largely of dividends which represent previously taxed corporate income.ⁿ¹ Accordingly, if an organization meets the Code qualification for REIT status, the income of the REIT which is distributed to the investors each year generally is taxed to them without being subjected to a tax at the REIT level.ⁿ²

In order to qualify for conduit treatment, a REIT must satisfy four tests on a year-by-year basis: organizational structure, nature of assets (asset ownership requirements), source of income (income requirements), and distribution of income. These tests are intended to allow special tax treatment for a REIT only if there actually is a pooling of investment arrangement which is evidenced by its organizational structure, if its investments are basically (at least 75 percent) in the real estate field, and if its income is clearly passive income for real estate investment (as contrasted with income from the operation of business involving real estate). Also, substantially all (at least 95 percent) of the REIT's income must be passed through to its shareholders on a current basis.

In addition to meeting these enumerated requirements and operational tests, the REIT must make a valid election of such status in order to qualify; moreover, the election must not be revoked or the REIT status terminated for failure to meet one or more of the statutory requirements. If the REIT qualifies, it is exempt from corporate taxes, and the shareholders are taxed only once, at the personal rate.ⁿ³

[2] Organizational Requirements: Corporate Characteristics

In order to qualify as a REIT, an organization must meet certain organizational requirements specified in the Code.ⁿ⁴ These requirements must be met during the entire taxable year, except that the requirement for a minimum of 100 shareholders (discussed below) must be complied with for at least 335 days during the year (not necessarily consecutively), or during a proportionate number of days during a shorter taxable year. However, the REIT need not meet the minimumshareholder requirement during the first tax year of the election.ⁿ⁵ A REIT must be a corporation, trust, or association which is managed by one or more trustees or directors.ⁿ⁶

In order for a trust or association to qualify for REIT status, it must possess those characteristics which would require it to be taxed as a domestic corporation if it were not for the REIT provisions of the Code.ⁿ⁷

A "trustee" refers to a person who holds legal title to property and has continuing exclusive authority over the management of the trust, the conduct of its affairs, and the management and disposition of the trust property.ⁿ⁸ Nevertheless, title to the property may be held in the name of one or more of the trustees, or in the name of a nominee for the exclusive benefit of the trust. A trust may qualify even if the shareholders have the rights to elect or remove trustees, to terminate the trust, and to ratify amendments proposed by the trustees.ⁿ⁹

Regardless of the entity used, the beneficial ownership must be evidenced by transferable shares or transferable certificates of beneficial interest and be held by 100 or more persons (shareholders).ⁿ¹⁰ Shares are considered "transferable" even though the trustee has the power to redeem shares or to refuse to transfer shares whenever it believes in good faith that such action is required to maintain the trust's status as a REIT.ⁿ¹¹ Ownership is determined without reference to any stock attribution rules.ⁿ¹² For purpose of the "100 or more persons" requirement, a person includes a natural person and legal entities.ⁿ¹³ A second class of beneficial interest shares granting dividend and liquidation preference is permissible.ⁿ¹⁴

An entity which is deemed a closely-held corporation by virtue of meeting the stock ownership requirements of IRC § 542(a)(2) cannot qualify as a REIT. Thus, no group of five or fewer persons can own more than 50 percent of the beneficial interest of the REIT at any time during the last half of the taxable year.ⁿ¹⁵ Also, banks and insurance companies subject to specified provisions of the Code are disqualified from REIT status.ⁿ¹⁶

[3] Real Estate Assets Requirement

In order to maintain its qualification, a REIT must satisfy certain diversification of investment requirements on a quarterly basis. At the end of each quarter of any taxable year, at least 75 percent of the value of a REIT's total assets must be represented by "real estate assets," cash and cash items (including receivables), and government securities. A limitation is that not more than 25 percent of the value of the trust's total assets may be invested in other securities.ⁿ¹⁷ Moreover, the nonqualifying securities of a single issuer may not exceed 5 percent of the REIT's total assets, and the REIT cannot own nonqualifying securities which total more than 10 percent of the outstanding voting securities of the issuer.ⁿ¹⁸

REITs may have subsidiaries. If the REIT owns 100 percent of the corporation's stock, the formation and existence of the subsidiary is overlooked for tax purposes and all assets, liabilities, income and deductions of the subsidiary are treated as belonging to the REIT. Should the REIT cease to own 100 percent of the stock or to satisfy the REIT status requirements, the subsidiary is treated as a newly created corporation receiving assets from the parent in exchange for stock.ⁿ¹⁹

[a] Real Estate Assets

The term "real estate assets," for purposes of the 75 percent asset test, means real property, interests in real property, interests in mortgages on real property, and shares (or transferable certificate of beneficial interest) in other qualified REITs. Equity capital derived from stock offerings (other than dividend reinvestment plans) is treated as within the definition of "real estate assets" for a period of one year from the date of receipt by the REIT.ⁿ²⁰ "Interests in real property" include fee ownership and coownership of land or leaseholds, options to acquire land or leaseholds, and improvements with respect to any of the preceding, but do not include mineral, oil, or gas royalty interests.ⁿ²¹

"Real property" is defined to mean land or improvements of an inherently permanent nature, including structural components such as plumbing systems, elevators, and the like. State law is not controlling in determining whether an asset comes within the definition of real property.ⁿ²²

Foreign land and improvements qualify as real property assets. Security interests in foreign real property, which are legally equivalent to mortgages or deeds of trust, qualify as "mortgages on real property."ⁿ²³ Air rights over real property may also qualify as a real property asset or an interest in real property.ⁿ²⁴

An asset is not disqualified for REIT treatment if it consists of both real and personal property. In such a case, however, an allocation of value must be made for purposes of the 75 percent asset test.ⁿ²⁵

[b] Cash and Cash Items

The term "cash and cash items" includes time or demand deposits and certificates of deposit.ⁿ²⁶ It also includes receivables arising in the ordinary course of business, but not receivables purchased from third persons.ⁿ²⁷

[c] Government Securities

The term "government securities," for purposes of the 75 percent asset test, includes securities of the Federal Housing Administration, Federal National Mortgage Association, Federal Home Loan Bank, Federal Land Bank, Federal Intermediate Credit Bank, Banks for Cooperatives, and Public Housing Administrations.ⁿ²⁸ A participation certificate evidencing an undivided interest in an unsecured federal government obligation to pay the purchase price of a building and land, although not a real estate asset, is a qualified government security.ⁿ²⁹ On the other hand, straight pass-through mortgage-backed certificates guaranteed by the Government National Mortgage Association are considered real estate assets.ⁿ³⁰

[4] Income Percentage Requirements; the 100 Percent Tax

In order to eliminate "active" trusts from REIT status, the Code sets forth three income percentage limitations on various types of income realized by a trust in any one tax year. These three tests, which are discussed below, generally are that: (1) 75 percent of the trust's gross income must consist of qualified real estate income; (2) 95 percent of the trust's gross income must consist of qualified real estate income and passive source income; and (3) only less than 30 percent of the trust's gross income can be derived from the sale or other disposition of certain business or investment property.ⁿ³¹

A trust will not necessarily lose its REIT status if it fails to meet either or both the 95 percent and 75 percent income source tests. The trust may still qualify if three conditions are met: (1) the nature and amount of each item of its gross income is itemized in a schedule filed with its income tax return; (2) incorrect information on the schedule is not due to fraud with intent to evade taxes; and (3) the failure to meet either or both tests is due to reasonable cause and not to willful neglect.ⁿ³² An additional tax is imposed, however, on the gross income, i.e., the net amount by which the trust fails to meet either or both income source tests.ⁿ³³ If the trust fails to meet the conditions under this statutory exception, it cannot qualify as a REIT unless it meets all three income source tests.

At least 75 percent of the trust's gross income, excluding gross income from prohibited transactions,ⁿ³⁴ must be derived from the following items:ⁿ³⁵

- (1) rents from all real property (see below);

- (2) real property mortgage interest, i.e., interest or obligations secured by mortgages on real property or on interests in real property;ⁿ³⁶
- (3) gain from the sale or other disposition of real property (including interests in real property and in mortgages on real property) which is not IRC Section 1221(1) property;
- (4) dividends or other distributions (and gain on the sale of) shares in other REITs (unless such shares were held primarily for sale in the ordinary course of business);
- (5) abatements and refunds of taxes on real property;
- (6) income and gain derived from foreclosure property (see below);
- (7) commitment fees received under agreements to make loans secured by mortgages on or interests in real property, or to enter into purchase or lease transactions with respect to real property;
- (8) gain from the sale or other disposition of a real estate asset which is not a prohibited transaction solely by reason of IRC Section 857(b)(6); and
- (9) qualified temporary investment income.

For purposes of the above provisions, as well as the 95 percent and 30 percent income source tests, gross income has the same meaning as under IRC Section 61. Thus, the computation of gross income includes the gross profit from the sale or other disposition of stock, securities, real property, or the like, but does not take into account any loss attributable to such transactions.ⁿ³⁷ Income derived from shared appreciation mortgages is considered to be gain from the sale of the property for the purpose of satisfying the qualified real estate income requirements. This characterization permits the REIT to enter such arrangements and to avoid generating nonqualified income.ⁿ³⁸

[i] Rents from Real Property

"Rents from real property" are included in the sources of income which satisfy the 75 percent test (as well as the 95 percent test, discussed below).ⁿ³⁹ Except for nonqualifying rent (defined below), "rents" include: rents from interests in real property; charges for services customarily furnished in connection with the rental of real property (whether or not they are separately stated); and rent attributable to personal property which is leased in connection with a lease of real property, provided that the amount allocable to the personal property is less than 15 percent of total rent.ⁿ⁴⁰

The rent attributable to personal property is that amount which bears the same ratio to total rent for the taxable year as the average of the aggregate adjusted bases of both the real and the personal property at the beginning and end of such year.ⁿ⁴¹

[ii] Nonqualified Rent

To ensure that only "passive" rent is included in gross income for purposes of the 75 percent test (and the 95 percent test), rents received under three specified circumstances are specifically excluded by the Code from the "rents from real property" category. The three circumstances involve the sharing of profits, the relationship of the parties, and the active conduct of a business.ⁿ⁴²

The first category of nonqualified rent is an amount received or accrued which depends on the income or profits derived from the leased property. However, rent based on a fixed percentage of receipts or sales is excepted and deemed qualified rent.ⁿ⁴³

An example of qualified "percentage rent" is the rent equal to a percentage of gross sales over a base amount, a provision customary at shopping centers.ⁿ⁴⁴ The distinction between rent based on a percentage of gross receipts and sales (generally qualified) and net profits or net income (generally nonqualified) is significant. For example, if a prime tenant pays a percentage of his gross rental receipts to a REIT landlord, that part of the tenant's gross receipts attributable to a subtenant's net income or profits is not qualified as "rents from real property."ⁿ⁴⁵ If a REIT receives or accrues (with respect to real or personal property) amounts from a tenant who derives substantially all of its income with respect to the property from the subleasing of substantially all of the property, and a portion of the amount which the tenant receives or accrues from subtenants consists of "qualified rents," then the amounts which the REIT receives or accrues from the tenant are included in the term "rents from real property" by reason of being based on the income or profits of the tenant, to the extent that the amounts so received or accrued are attributable to qualified rents received or accrued by the tenant. "Qualified rents" are amounts which would be treated as rents from real property if the REIT had received them.ⁿ⁴⁶

The second source of nonqualifying rent involves rent received from a lessee in which the trust has at least a 10 percent interest. For this purpose, if the lessee is a corporation, the requisite control exists if the trust has 10 percent of the voting power or of the total number of shares. If the lessee is not a corporation, the trust may not have a 10 percent interest in either the assets or the net profits.ⁿ⁴⁷ The rent is disqualified even if it is received only indirectly. If an "uncontrolled" tenant subleases part of the leased property to an entity "controlled" by the trust, a proportionate part of the rent received by the trust is disqualified.ⁿ⁴⁸

The third source of nonqualifying rent income relates to the active conduct of business by the trust. Rent is disqualified if the trust furnishes services to tenants, or manages or operates the property "other than through an independent contractor from whom the trust itself does not derive or receive any income."ⁿ⁴⁹

Services directly performed by the REIT which, if performed by a tax-exempt entity, do not generate "unrelated business income," are excepted from the independent contractor requirement. Therefore, amounts received from sale of such services are treated as qualified rent.ⁿ⁵⁰ Qualified rent, therefore, includes charges for services which are customarily furnished or rendered in connection with the rental of real property, provided the services are rendered by an independent contractor (defined below) or do not generate unrelated business income. A separate charge may be made for the services or they may be included in the rent.ⁿ⁵¹ An example of a customary service is the submetering of electricity to tenants.ⁿ⁵²

A contractor is deemed not to be independent if it owns more than a 35 percent interest in the trust or if more than a 35 percent interest in the contractor is owned by one or more persons owning a 35 percent or more interest in the trust.ⁿ⁵³ In order to be considered independent, the contractor cannot be an employee of the trust or otherwise be subject to its control in carrying out his duties.ⁿ⁵⁴ In some circumstances, if a partner or other co-owner of the REIT property renders the services and has the exclusive right to the income, the rent received by the REIT should qualify as "rents from real property."ⁿ⁵⁵

[iii] Foreclosure Property

A REIT is not disqualified because it receives income from "foreclosure property" which fails to meet the income source test.ⁿ⁵⁶ Foreclosure property is defined generally as real property acquired by the trust after default of a mortgagor or lessee. The definition, however, does not include property that is acquired by the trust as a result of indebtedness arising from the sale or other disposition of property held by the trust primarily for sale to customers in the ordinary course of its business, unless the property was originally acquired as foreclosure property. Formal default is not necessary; whatever satisfies state and local law suffices for tax purposes.ⁿ⁵⁷ For example, where state law gives the mortgagor one year to redeem the foreclosed property, the property will not be deemed "acquired" by the foreclosing REIT until expiration of the one-year redemption period.ⁿ⁵⁸

The trust is allowed an elective two-year grace period, from the date the foreclosed property was acquired, within which to dispose of the property or negotiate new leases so as to qualify the income received.ⁿ⁵⁹ Such election must be made by the filing date (including extensions) of the trust's tax return for the taxable year in which the foreclosure property is acquired. Once made, the election is irrevocable.ⁿ⁶⁰ The grace period may be extended for up to six years by the Service if the trust can establish that an extension is necessary for the orderly liquidation of the property.ⁿ⁶¹ During the grace period, the trust must pay corporate tax on the nonqualified income received from the property.ⁿ⁶²

Real property will lose its status as foreclosure property if, after its acquisition, the trust enters into a lease that does not qualify for the 75 percent income test or operates the property as a business more than 90 days after the acquisition. (An independent contractor must be hired to operate business property after the 90th day.) The trust is allowed to complete construction on foreclosure property where more than 10 percent of the structure was completed before default became imminent.ⁿ⁶³

[b] 95 Percent Gross Income Test; Passive Source Income

At least 95 percent of the REIT's gross income, excluding gross income from prohibited transactions, must be derived from qualified real estate income (i.e., from items under the 75 percent income source test, discussed above), plus passive source income, such as dividends, interest, and gain on stock or securities.ⁿ⁶⁴ Status as a REIT will not be lost for failure to meet the 95 percent test, assuming the other requirements for REIT qualifications are met, if a return was filed and the failure was due to reasonable cause and not to willful neglect.ⁿ⁶⁵ In such a case, however, the REIT must pay an additional tax on the excess income.ⁿ⁶⁶

Note that dividends and interest are defined more broadly under the 95 percent passive source income test than under the 75 percent qualified real estate income test. The 95 percent test permits the inclusion of dividends and interest generally, while the 75 percent test refers to dividends from qualified REITs and interest derived from obligations secured by mortgages on or interests in real property.ⁿ⁶⁷ Moreover, capital gain qualifies under the 95 percent test even if it is derived from the sale or other disposition of stock or securities, but capital gain from such sources is not included under the 75 percent test.ⁿ⁶⁸ Other items of income, however, such as rents from real property and income from foreclosure property, are treated the same under both tests.

[c] 30 Percent Gross Income Test; Property Held Primarily for Sale

An organization cannot qualify for REIT status if 30 percent or more of its gross income is derived from the sale or other disposition of (1) stock or securities held for less than six months, (2) property in a prohibited transaction, or (3) real property (including interests in, or mortgages on, real property) held for less than four years, other than property that is involuntarily converted and foreclosure property.ⁿ⁶⁹ Losses from the sale or other disposition of such property are not netted with gains.ⁿ⁷⁰

A 100 percent tax is imposed on REIT net income derived from property, other than "foreclosure property," held primarily for sale to customers in the ordinary course of its trade or business.ⁿ⁷¹ This 100 percent tax on net income derived from prohibited transactions is not assessed against net income derived from the sale of "real estate assets"ⁿ⁷² if four conditions are met:

- (1) the REIT has held the property for at least four years;
- (2) aggregate expenditures made by the REIT within the preceding four years, which are includable in the property's basis, do not exceed 30 percent of the property's net selling price;
- (3) during the taxable year the trust does not sell more than seven properties (excluding sales of "foreclosure property") or the aggregate adjusted basis of sold property does not exceed 10 percent of the REIT's total assets at the beginning of the tax year and marketing and development of the sold properties were handled by an independent contractor; and

(4) the REIT has held the subject property and improvements for at least four years for rental income. (This requirement is not applicable to property acquired by foreclosure, deed in lieu of foreclosure, or lease termination.)ⁿ⁷³

[5] Distribution of Income and Deficiency Dividends

[a] Distribution of Income

A REIT must distribute 90 percent of the sum of its annual real estate investment trust taxable income and net after tax income derived from foreclosure property minus any "excess noncash income."ⁿ⁷⁴ Excess noncash income is essentially the amount of imputed income, which the REIT was required to recognize before receipt, in excess of 5 percent of the REIT's taxable income. Three types of imputed income are added to produce the gross amount of noncash income: (1) income from deferred rental agreements required to be recognized under IRC Section 467; (2) amounts includable in gross income with respect to instruments to which IRC Section 1274 applies (relating to certain debt instruments issued for property); and (3) gain recognized on disposition of a real estate asset due to inadvertent failure to qualify as a like-kind-exchange under IRC Section 1031.ⁿ⁷⁵ Excess noncash income only reduces the amount required to be distributed in order to maintain REIT status and does not reduce REIT taxable income for other purposes. The term "real estate investment trust taxable income" is defined as the taxable income of the trust, subject to certain adjustments that are specified by the Code.ⁿ⁷⁶ The required percentage of income must be distributed in the taxable year during which such income is earned or in the next succeeding year.ⁿ⁷⁷

An excise tax is imposed on REITs that make excessive use of the right to satisfy the 90 percent-of-taxable-income distribution requirement by deferring some or all of that distribution obligation into the year succeeding the year during which the income was earned. The excise tax is equal to four percent of the excess, if any, of the "required distribution" for the taxable year, over the "distributed amount" for such taxable year.ⁿ⁷⁸ The "required distribution" is equal to the sum of:

- (1) 85 percent of the REIT's ordinary income for the year;
- (2) 95 percent of the REIT's capital gain net income for the year; and
- (3) the excess, if any, of the "grossed up required distribution" for the previous year, over the distributed for the previous year.ⁿ⁷⁹

The "grossed up required distribution" is equal to 100 percent of the REIT's ordinary income and capital gain net income for the previous year.ⁿ⁸⁰ Thus, if the REIT did not distribute all of its ordinary income and capital gain net income for prior years, then to avoid the excise tax for the current year it must gross up its distribution to cover the shortfall.

The "distributed amount" for a given calendar year is equal to the sum of:

- (1) the deduction for dividends paid during the year, and
- (2) any amount of REIT taxable income and net capital gain income of the REIT for the year.ⁿ⁸¹

[b] Deficiency Dividend

In order to avoid inadvertent disqualification of a REIT because of an insufficient income distribution, a deficiency dividend procedure is used.ⁿ⁸² This procedure permits distributions of income qualifying for a deduction to be made in subsequent years if a "determination" results in an adjustment that either increases the amount of income which the trust is required to distribute in order to meet the distribution requirement for a prior year in question, or decreases the amount of the deduction for dividends previously paid for that year.ⁿ⁸³ A "determination" means a final decision of the tax court or any other court of competent jurisdiction, a closing agreement made under IRC Section 7121, or an agreement relating to the tax liability of the REIT.ⁿ⁸⁴

In order to qualify for a deduction, the deficiency dividend must be paid within 90 days after the determination, and a claim for its deduction must be filed after its payment, but within 120 days after the date of the determination. Also, the payment of the dividend must qualify for a deduction as if it had been distributed during the prior taxable year in question.ⁿ⁸⁵ No deduction is allowed if the determination contains a finding that any part of the adjustment is due to fraud with intent to evade tax or to willful failure to file a timely income tax return.ⁿ⁸⁶ In order to assure that a trust is operated as a conduit of income to its shareholders and that it will not reduce its distributions of income in reliance upon the deficiency dividend procedure, the trust is required to pay penalties with respect to such procedure.ⁿ⁸⁷

[6] Election and Termination of REIT Status; Recordkeeping

[a] Election; Termination

Even though all the organizational requirements and the asset ownership and income source tests discussed above are satisfied, a taxpayer will not qualify for REIT status unless he or she files a valid election to be a real estate investment trust.ⁿ⁸⁸ The election is made by computing taxable income as a REIT for the first taxable year for which such status is desired.ⁿ⁸⁹ The election may terminate by failure to maintain REIT status, or by revocation. Termination by failure to qualify occurs if the trust fails, either intentionally or inadvertently, to meet the various requirements for REIT status during the taxable year.ⁿ⁹⁰ Termination by revocation may occur if the trust revokes the election after the first taxable year for which the election is effective. The revocation must be made within the first 90 days of the first taxable year for which the revocation is to be effective, and it continues in effect until a new election is made and qualified.ⁿ⁹¹

A new election cannot be made for five years after the termination (because of failure to qualify) is effective.ⁿ⁹² The waiting period does not apply, however, if the termination was due to reasonable cause and not to willful failure to file a timely return, fraud in the return, or willful neglect.ⁿ⁹³

A REIT must adopt a calendar year as its fiscal year.ⁿ⁹⁴

[b] Recordkeeping Requirements

REITs are required to keep certain records. These recordkeeping requirements are intended to ensure that the REIT complies with all the asset ownership and income source tests discussed above.ⁿ⁹⁵ In addition, the shareholders must submit sufficient information to the REIT to enable it to comply with the recordkeeping requirements, and must file their own information returns.ⁿ⁹⁶

Planning Note

Advantages of Qualifying as a REIT

Classification as a REIT permits a large group of investor-shareholders to organize a real estate entity with most of the characteristics of a traditional corporation, but which pays little or no corporate tax, so that the shareholders are taxed only once, i.e., at the personal rate. Moreover, since most REITs today are income-oriented, they are not likely to be challenged by the Service as an abusive real estate tax shelter.

Local Law and Securities Problems

The formation of a REIT may pose local law and securities problems. In the absence of a state statute which recognizes REITs, there may be questions connected with the rule against perpetuities, personal liability of the trustees or beneficial owners, and the permissible uses of a trust. Consideration must also be given to federal and state regulations governing the sale of securities.

AUTHOR: by Stephen E. Pigott and Harold O. Maxfield, Jr.

[1] Taxation of REITs

Although a qualified REIT is taxable at regular corporate rates, it is entitled to a deduction for the amount of dividends distributed in computing its taxable income for the year.ⁿ¹ The tax on undistributed capital gains income is computed and determined under whichever of two methods produces the lower tax liability. Under one method, the normal corporate tax rates are applied to the REIT's real estate investment trust taxable income (REITTI),ⁿ² including its capital gains income. Under the other method, the tax computation is the sum of: (i) the tax computed by applying the normal corporate tax rates to REITTI excluding net capital gain and by excluding capital gain dividends from the dividends paid deduction, and (ii) the tax computed by applying the maximum corporate tax rate to the net capital gain income that was not distributed by the REIT.ⁿ³

A REIT is entitled to a net operating loss (NOL) carryover of 20 taxable years following the taxable year of loss (but no carryback to any year of qualified REIT status).ⁿ⁴

The alternative minimum tax on tax preference items applies to REITs.ⁿ⁵ Tax preference items are allocated between the REIT and its shareholders based on the amount of REIT distributions.ⁿ⁶

[2] Taxation of REIT Shareholder

As discussed above, a REIT is a conduit that passes through items of income (but not losses) to its shareholders, who are taxed as if they had received those items directly. Most distributions from a REIT are treated by the shareholders as ordinary income.ⁿ⁷ A distribution, however, from the REIT's capital gain income which is designated as a capital gain dividend is treated as capital gain by the shareholder.ⁿ⁸ Such capital gain dividends are treated by the shareholders as long term capital gains, even if the REIT interest was not held for the required holding period.ⁿ⁹ However, if a shareholder holds REIT stock for six months or less, any loss recognized on a sale of the stock is treated as long term capital loss to the extent of any capital gain distributions he received while he owned the stock.ⁿ¹⁰ This long term capital loss treatment does not apply, however, to losses on dispositions of REIT stock pursuant to a periodic liquidation plan.ⁿ¹¹ REIT dividends do not qualify for the 70 percent or 100 percent dividend received deduction for corporations under IRC Section 243.ⁿ¹¹ REIT dividends may not offset passive activity losses of the recipient taxpayer under the passive loss rules because they constitute portfolio income.ⁿ¹² To the extent that a distribution exceeds the REIT's earnings and profits (i.e., it is not a dividend under IRC Section 316), the shareholder's basis in the shares is reduced,ⁿ¹³ and to the extent that the distribution exceeds the shareholder's basis, it is a capital gain.ⁿ¹⁴

Make Sure Statutory Tests Are Being Met.

The trust must constantly be on guard to ensure that the detailed statutory requirements for organization, asset ownership, sources and distribution of income, and reporting are being met at all times. Failure to meet any of these tests may result in loss of REIT status and of the accompanying special tax treatment.

REIT's Losses Not Deductible by Shareholders.

Remember that the losses of a REIT cannot be passed through to the shareholders (as is allowed in the case of a partnership). Thus, a shareholder may not include in his individual tax return any operating or extraordinary losses of the trust, whether ordinary or capital losses.

§ 20.10 Cooperative Housing Corporations

[1] Tax Consequences to Tenant-Stockholders and Cooperative Corporation: General and Special Provisions

A cooperative corporation generally is a corporation which owns or leases a building or other real estate and leases apartments in the building (or units in the real estate) to individuals, who pay a rental fee (usually referred to as maintenance) to the cooperative. The tax consequences to the owners of the corporation, generally referred to as tenant-stockholders, are in many respects similar to those applicable to other individual taxpayers who own and operate real estate. For example, the general Code provisions relating to rollover of gain on the sale of a principal residence is available to the "tenant-stockholders" in a "cooperative housing corporation" (as those terms are defined below).ⁿ¹

A special Code provision allows the deduction of taxes, interest, and business depreciation by the "tenant-stockholders" of a "cooperative housing corporation."ⁿ² Under this provision, owners who qualify as "tenant-stockholders" may deduct their proportionate share of real estate taxes and interest paid by the corporation if such taxes and interest are otherwise allowable to the corporation under Code Sections 164 (deductibility of taxes) and 163 (deductibility of interest). The deductions are for the portion of the tenant-stockholder's rent (i.e., maintenance charges) that is allocable to real estate taxes on the property (including the land) and to interest on indebtedness incurred in acquiring, constructing, altering, rehabilitating or maintaining the property (or in acquiring the land).ⁿ³

In addition, if the tenant-stockholder in a cooperative housing corporation owns property used in a trade or business or for the production of income, stock in that corporation may be treated as property subject to an allowance for depreciation under Code Section 167 if the stock is allocable to a proprietary lease or right of tenancy and the property is subject to the depreciation allowance.ⁿ⁴ This provision allows the tenant-stockholder to treat his proportionate share of stock as depreciable property.

The deduction for depreciation is limited to the portion of the stock's adjusted basis allocable to the depreciable property.ⁿ⁵ Any deduction disallowed by the basis limitation carries forward to the succeeding taxable year.ⁿ⁶ However, shareholders may not deduct amounts paid or accrued to the corporation in excess of allocable interest and real estate taxes and properly chargeable to the capital account. Disallowed deductions are added to the stock's adjusted basis.ⁿ⁷

The cooperative corporation is itself a taxpaying entity which must file an income tax return.ⁿ⁸ The cooperative can avoid tax liability, however, by means of the following principles:

- (1) Annual payments by tenant-stockholders which are earmarked for amortization of mortgage indebtedness are treated as contributions to capital and are not included in the cooperative's gross income.ⁿ⁹
- (2) The corporation does not pay tax on amounts received for interest, taxes, and maintenance to the extent it:
 - (a) actually expends the funds for those purposes; or
 - (b) refunds all amounts not so expended to the tenant-stockholders in the year it receives them.ⁿ¹⁰

A cooperative housing corporation and its stockholders do not recognize gain or loss when the corporation distributes dwelling units to the stockholders if (1) the distribution is in exchange for the stockholder's stock in the corporation, and (2) the exchange qualifies for nonrecognition treatment.ⁿ¹¹

[2] Requirements for Qualification as "Cooperative Housing Corporation"

A "cooperative housing corporation," for purposes of the special deduction provision for tenant-stockholders, is a corporation that meets the following four requirements:ⁿ¹²

- (1) it must have only one class of stock outstanding;
- (2) all of its owners must be entitled, solely by reason of their ownership of such stock, to occupy a house or an apartment in a building that is either owned or leased by the corporation;
- (3) none of the stockholders may be entitled (either conditionally or unconditionally) to any distribution, other than from earnings and profits of the corporation, except on its complete or partial liquidation; and
- (4) 80 percent or more of the corporation's gross income for the taxable year in which the taxes and interest are paid or incurred must be derived from tenant-stockholders.

[a] One Class of Stock

A cooperative housing corporation is allowed to have only one class of stock outstanding.ⁿ¹³ Stock held as security for a note is not a disqualifying second class of stock.ⁿ¹⁴ Similarly, stock owned by a federal, state, or local governmental unit or one of its agencies or instrumentalities for the purpose of providing housing facilities is not taken into account for purposes of this requirement, i.e., it is not a disqualifying second class of stock.ⁿ¹⁵

[b] Tenant-Stockholder's Right of Occupancy

All the tenant-stockholders of a cooperative housing corporation must, by reason of their stock ownership, have the right to occupy either a house or an apartment in a building for dwelling purposes.ⁿ¹⁶ A tenant-stockholder is not required actually to occupy the premises in order to obtain the deduction; having the right to occupy the premises is sufficient.ⁿ¹⁷ A person is not disqualified as a tenant-stockholder merely because proprietary leases give him the right to occupy more than one dwelling.ⁿ¹⁸ But a "cooperative housing corporation" with only one stockholder does not qualify under the Code.ⁿ¹⁹ Stock held by and apartments leased to federal, state, or local governmental units or their agencies or instrumentalities is not taken into account for purposes of qualification.ⁿ²⁰ Presumably, however, a corporation would be disqualified as a cooperative housing corporation if any nongovernmental stockholders did not have an occupancy right, e.g., where commercial tenants had no right to occupy the premises as their residence.

The cooperative housing corporation is not required to own the entire building. If the corporation otherwise meets the qualifications for cooperative status, it only has to own those apartments within the building which the tenant-stockholders occupy.ⁿ²¹ A corporation qualifies as a cooperative housing corporation even though the stockholders are unable to occupy the allocated apartment units because the units are occupied by tenants under protective rent control laws.ⁿ²²

[c] 80 Percent of Gross Income from Tenant-Stockholders

A cooperative housing corporation must pass one of three tests in order to qualify as a cooperative housing corporation under the Internal Revenue Code. The first test requires that a cooperative housing corporation receive 80% or more of its gross income from tenant-stockholders during the taxable year. This test was the only test until the passage of the Mortgage Debt Relief Act of 2007, which amended the law in favor of the corporation by adding two additional tests which could be met to qualify.ⁿ²³ The second test requires that a cooperative housing corporation use 80% or more of its total square footage for residential purposes or purposes ancillary to such residential use by its tenant-shareholders.ⁿ²⁴ The third test requires that a cooperative housing corporation spend 90% or more of the expenditures paid or incurred during the taxable year be paid for the acquisition, construction, management, maintenance or care of the corporation's property for the benefit of its tenant-stockholders.ⁿ²⁵ These requirements must be satisfied for the entire taxable year, even though status as a cooperative housing corporation occurred during the year.ⁿ²⁶ For purposes of the first test, gross income attributable to any house or apartment which a governmental unit is entitled to occupy, pursuant to a lease or stock ownership, is disregarded.ⁿ²⁷

Where a portion of the annual maintenance charges paid by the tenant-stockholders is used to amortize the mortgage incurred to finance acquisition of the property, the amortization payments have been held to be contributions to capital, rather than income, for purposes of the first test.ⁿ²⁸ On the other hand, income earned by a cooperative housing corporation and applied to recurring operating expenses, from real estate brokerage services rendered exclusively to tenant-stockholders selling their apartments, has been ruled to be income derived from tenant-stockholders.ⁿ²⁹ Another ruling was to the effect that income includes amounts received from tenant-stockholders to defray the expenses relating to their occupancy, such as utilities, maid and secretarial services, rubbish space, cleaning services, and the like.ⁿ³⁰

[3] Requirements for Qualification as "Tenant-Stockholder"

In order to qualify for the special Code deduction for real estate taxes and interest, the cooperative owner must be a "tenant-stockholder."ⁿ³¹ A tenant-stockholder must be (1) a person, (2) who is a stockholder in a cooperative housing corporation (as defined above), and (3) whose stock is fully paid-up in an amount not less than that which is shown to bear a reasonable relationship to the portion of the value of the corporation's equity in its property which is attributable to the house or apartment building which such individual is entitled to occupy.ⁿ³² Note, however, that although the stock must be "fully paid-up," this does not prevent the purchaser of a particular apartment in the cooperative from borrowing money to finance his acquisition of stock in the issuing corporation.

A person is not disqualified as a tenant-stockholder because he may not occupy the house or apartment without the corporation's prior approval, if either:

- (1) the person acquires the cooperative's stock by operation of law (i.e., foreclosure); or
- (2) a person other than an individual acquires stock of the corporation; or
- (3) the person is the original seller (the person from whom the corporation acquired the property), and he or it acquires stock from the cooperative corporation within one year after transferring the property to the cooperative.ⁿ³³

[4] Tenant-Stockholder Deductions

A principal benefit of qualification as a cooperative housing corporation is that the tenant-stockholders are allowed to take deductions for real estate taxes and mortgage interest paid by the corporation. A tenant-stockholder of a qualified cooperative corporation may deduct from his gross income amounts paid or accrued to the corporation within the taxable year to the extent such amounts represent the "tenant-stockholder's proportionate share" of:ⁿ³⁴

(1) real estate taxes allowable as a deduction to the corporation under Code Section 164, which are paid or incurred by it on the houses or apartment building and on the land on which that property is situated; and

(2) interest allowable as a deduction to the corporation under Code Section 163, which is paid or incurred by the corporation on indebtedness contracted in the (a) acquisition, construction, alteration, rehabilitation, or maintenance of the houses or apartment building, or (b) acquisition of the land on which such property is situated.

A "tenant-stockholder's proportionate share" of taxes and interest paid or accrued by the cooperative corporation is measured by the ratio of the tenant-stockholder's own stock to the entire amount of outstanding stock (including any stock owned by the corporation).ⁿ³⁵ The cooperative corporation may elect to use an alternate measure of the "tenant-stockholder's proportionate share." Where the cooperative bills each tenant-stockholder with a separately allocated share of corporate interest and real estate taxes and the amount reasonably reflects the cost of those items attributable to the tenant-stockholder's unit, then the "tenant-stockholder's proportionate share" is equal to the amount separately allocated and charged by the cooperative.ⁿ³⁶

The proportion of a membership fee paid by a tenant stockholder, allocated to the expense of permanent financing (points) of the corporation, may be deducted by the tenant-stockholder as interest.ⁿ³⁷ A deduction is also permitted for the proportionate share of interest or indebtedness to acquire stock of a corporation which owned the cooperative's apartment building prior to merger with the cooperative corporation; the acquisition of the stock is substantially the same as the purchase of the land and building.ⁿ³⁸

The requirement that a corporation's qualification as a cooperative housing corporation must be determined for each year, at the end of its taxable year, can cause difficulty when the corporation is on a fiscal year basis. For example, the Service has ruled that where a cooperative corporation's fiscal year ends on September 30, the calendar year stockholders cannot deduct their pro rata share of taxes and interest paid for the last three months of the calendar year in their returns for that year.ⁿ³⁹

Tenant-stockholders of a cooperative housing corporation cannot take a deduction for real estate taxes paid by the cooperative on an apartment building which it leases from others, because the corporation's payment is for rent rather than for taxes imposed upon it.ⁿ⁴⁰

Make Sure Both Corporation and Unit Owner Qualify.

Remember that in order for the unit owner of a cooperative apartment to receive the deduction for taxes and interest paid by the corporation, the unit owner must qualify as a "tenant-stockholder" and the corporation must qualify as a "cooperative housing corporation." Thus, it is important to make sure that the qualification requirements for both are met.

Calendar Year Tenant-Stockholders of Fiscal Year Cooperative Should File Refund Claim.

Although the calendar year tenant-stockholders of a fiscal year cooperative corporation cannot deduct their pro rata share of taxes and interest paid for part of the calendar year in their returns for that year,ⁿ⁴¹ this does not necessarily cause them to lose those deductions. After the corporation qualifies in the following fiscal year, they should file claims for refunds or amended returns.ⁿ⁴²

24-20 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate § 20.11

AUTHOR: by Stephen E. Pigott and Harold O. Maxfield, Jr.

§ 20.11 Condominium and Homeowners Associations

[1] Tax Consequences for Condominium Associations and Unit Owners Generally

[a] Unit Owners' Deductions

Basically, a condominium is a system of separate ownership of individual units in multi-unit projects. A purchaser of a condominium unit receives fee title to that unit, as if it were a separate unit of property. In contrast, the owner of a cooperative owns an equity interest (i.e., stock) in a corporation that in turn owns or leases the real estate. The condominium unit owner also has an undivided interest in the common elements of the project, which consist generally of the land, hallways, parking areas, recreational facilities, heating plant, and the like. The cost of maintaining the common elements is generally allocated to the condominium owners on the basis of the value of the unit to the value of the entire project.

Each condominium owner pays the real estate taxes on his unit and arranges and pays for its financing. The owner can purchase his unit outright if he wishes and not be bothered with mortgage financing. The condominium owner is personally liable only for his own mortgage indebtedness and is not responsible for the defaults of other unit owners on their mortgages.

For tax purposes, the condominium owner and the cooperative owner are for all practical purposes treated alike, and both are taxed in a manner similar to any other owner of real property.ⁿ¹ For example, an individual unit owner is entitled to deduct his real estate taxes and mortgage interest, just as in the case of the fee simple ownership of an individual home.ⁿ² The unit owner may also take a depreciation deduction if the particular unit is maintained as a business or investment property, e.g., for rental purposes.ⁿ³ The same rules concerning gain on sale or other disposition of a capital asset and exclusion of gain on sale of a principal residence apply to condominium owners as in the case of any personal residence.ⁿ⁴

[b] Condominiums and Homeowners Associations

A homeowners association (i.e., a residential real estate management association) is frequently formed to preserve the architecture and appearance of a real estate development, to own and maintain common areas, streets, and sidewalks, and to maintain and repair the exteriors of property owned by its members. A homeowners association is generally formed by a real estate developer as part of an overall plan for a housing development that requires membership in the association as a condition of ownership of a lot, house, or dwelling unit. The organization is supported by periodic assessments of its members, and an unpaid assessment may constitute a lien on the property of the owner-member.

Tax-exempt status is granted to organizations that qualify as "homeowners associations" by meeting certain statutory requirements.ⁿ⁵ The requirements for a condominium management association, a residential real estate management association and a timeshare association, for purposes of the tax exempt provision, are substantially the same. Although the term "homeowners association" in a non-tax exempt context generally also refers to a residential real estate management association, in the tax context it also includes a condominium management association and timeshare association.ⁿ⁶

[2] Requirements for Qualification as Tax-Exempt "Homeowners Association"

A homeowners association (including a condominium management association) is treated generally as a tax-exempt organization, provided that an election is made and certain tests are met as to the function, income, and expenditures of the association.ⁿ⁷ In order to qualify for homeowners association status, the organization must meet the following requirements:

- (1) It must be a "condominium management association" or a "residential real estate management association." Under these definitions, substantially all of the units of the condominium project must be used by individuals for residential purposes.ⁿ⁸
- (2) The association must be organized and operated to provide for the acquisition, construction, management, maintenance, and care of "association property."ⁿ⁹
- (3) At least 60 percent of the association's annual gross income must be derived solely from membership dues, fees, or assessments.ⁿ¹⁰
- (4) At least 90 percent of the association's annual expenditures must be for the purposes for which it was organized and operated.ⁿ¹¹
- (5) The net earnings of the organization may not inure to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual, except to the extent that the organization performs its required functions; however, the member may receive a rebate of excess dues, fees, and assessments.ⁿ¹²
- (6) The organization must make a proper election to have the homeowners association provisions apply for the taxable year.ⁿ¹³

[3] Taxation as Homeowners Association

If an organization complies with all of the above requirements, including the making of a proper election, it will not be taxed on its "exempt function income" (as defined below), but all other income will be taxed at 30 percent.ⁿ¹⁴

[a] Homeowners Association Taxable Income

The Code allows the homeowner association to reduce its gross income by the amount of its "exempt function income" (and the deductions related to it). The resulting "homeowners association taxable income" is then taxed at a flat rate of

30 percent.ⁿ¹⁵ The allowable deductions do not include the net operating loss deduction (under IRC Section 172) or the special deductions for corporations under part VIII of subchapter B of the Code.ⁿ¹⁶ Any net capital gain is taxed at the 30 percent rate.ⁿ¹⁷

[b] Exempt Function Income

"Exempt function income" is defined to mean any amount received as membership dues, fees, or assessments from owners of condominium housing units in the case of a condominium management association, or owners of real property in the case of a residential real estate management association.ⁿ¹⁸ It is not necessary that the source of income be labeled as membership fees, dues, or assessments. What is important is that such income must be derived from owners of residential units or residential lots in their capacity as owner-members, rather than in some other capacity, such as customers for services.ⁿ¹⁹

Assessments which are considered more in the nature of a fee for common activity than for the providing of services, and which will therefore generally be treated as exempt function income, include assessments made for the purpose of:

- (1) paying the principal and interest on debts incurred for the acquisition of association property;
- (2) paying real estate taxes on association property;
- (3) maintaining association property; and
- (4) removing trash or snow from public areas.ⁿ²⁰

Exempt function income does not include:

- (1) amounts which are not includable in the organization's gross income other than by reason of IRC Section 528 (e.g., tax exempt interest);
- (2) amounts received from nonmembers of the association;
- (3) amounts received from members for special use of the organization's facilities, the use of which is not available to all paid-up members;
- (4) interest earned on amounts set aside in a sinking fund;
- (5) amounts received for work done on privately owned nonassociation property; or
- (6) amounts received from members in return for their transportation to and from shopping areas, work location, or the like.ⁿ²¹

Planning Note

Make Separate Election For Each Taxable Year.

Remember that a separate election is required for each taxable year for which an organization elects to be treated as a homeowners association under IRC Section 528. This election is made by filing a properly completed Form 1120-H.ⁿ²²

Make Sure Applicable State and Local Requirements Are Met.

In order to be sure that the homeowners association qualifies for tax exempt status, the taxpayer should check that it meets the applicable state and local law requirements relating to condominiums or horizontal property regimes.ⁿ²³ Most jurisdictions require the filing, with the formalities of a deed, of a declaration submitting specified land and the improvements to be erected thereon, to condominium ownership (the "declaration of condominium"). Additional documentation may be required in some states.

§ 20.12 Sale of a Residential Cooperative or Condominium Unit

The sale of a cooperative apartment is completed by the transfer of the shares of the cooperative housing corporation allocated to the apartment and by an assignment of the related proprietary lease. The sale of a condominium unit is completed in the same manner as the sale of an individual home, i.e., by deed. The income tax consequences on the sale of a cooperative apartment or a condominium unit are the same as those applicable upon the sale of any other personal residence. Thus, the sale usually results in the realization of gain or loss to the seller, which is the difference between the adjusted basis of the property sold and the consideration received by the seller. The nature of the property determines whether capital gain (or loss) or ordinary income (or loss) is realized by the seller.ⁿ¹ Not all of the realized gain will be recognized in most instances.

Up to $250,000 of gain (and generally $500,000 for a joint return) may be excluded from income upon the sale of a dwelling that was the taxpayer's principal residence for two of the five years preceding the date of sale.ⁿ² Thus, the sale of a cooperative apartment or condominium unit that was the owner's principal residence for the required time period will qualify for that exclusion. The exclusion may not be claimed more frequently than every two years.ⁿ³ If, due to a change in place of employment, health problems, or "unforeseen circumstances," a taxpayer is unable to meet the ownership and use requirements of Code Section 121, relief may be granted.ⁿ⁴

§ 20.13 Time Sharing

A time sharing arrangement occurs when two or more persons have interests in the same property and agree that each will have the right to use the property during some portion of the year. Very often, and particularly in popular vacation areas, the owners lease the property during some of the time allotted to them. If the property qualifies as a rental property, the owners would be able to claim depreciation and other business deductions arising from the ownership and maintenance of the property.

Under the general rules that apply to the rental of a vacation home owned by just one person:

- (1) If the property is rented for fewer than 15 days during the year, no rental deductions may be claimed and no rental income is includible in the owner's gross income.ⁿ¹
- (2) If the property is not used by the owner for personal purposes for the greater of (a) more than 14 days during the year, or (b) more than ten percent of the number of days during the year the property is rented at a fair market rental, the owner will be able to claim the rental deductions.ⁿ²
- (3) If the property is rented more than 15 days during the year, but owner's personal use of the property exceeds the applicable threshold under (2) above, then the rental deductions will be limited.ⁿ³ The limitation caps the amount of rental deductions other than real estate taxes and interest that may be claimed to the amount of rental income earned, less the amount of taxes and interest deducted.

In a time sharing arrangement, the foregoing rules are applied to each owner by aggregating the number of rental days and the number of personal use days for all owners.ⁿ⁴ For example, in determining whether rental deductions for the owners will be limited, the threshold in (2) above is applied to all of the property's owners (so that the inquiry becomes, in the aggregate, did the owners' personal use of the property exceed the greater of 14 days or ten percent of the days it was rented at a fair rental value?). If the answer to that is affirmative, then the rental deductions will be limited for all of the owners.

[1] The Attorney's Role

In most circumstances, the consideration as to how the real estate will be titled is secondary to whether the property is feasible for the buyer's purpose. However, once the decision has been made to proceed with the purchase, it will be the practitioner's job to determine the best way for the client to own and operate the property. The determination as to the type of entity in which to take title or even as to whether an entity will be used involves many different non-tax and tax considerations. If the decision has been made to use an entity, the practitioner must ensure that all necessary action has been taken to form the entity under the applicable state law where the entity is to be formed. In most cases, a public filing must be made and an agreement among the owners of the entity should be negotiated, drafted and executed before title to the property is conveyed to the entity. If financing is involved, the lender will require all details to be finalized before it will fund the loan.

If the transaction involves the purchase of real estate using an existing entity, then the job of the practitioner will be to advise the client as to the use of, or revision of the current owners agreement and governing documents for the existing entity, and to advise the client as the tax implications.

[2] Reason for Ownership of Real Property

The analysis relating to the selection of an entity to own and operate real estate normally involves real property that is being purchased for investment or for the production of income (i.e., used in connection with an operating business). However, there are cases when a buyer of a residence will consider using an entity or a trust, although the typical residential transaction involves the purchase by individuals. An individual may use a trust or an entity to hold a residence for creditor protection, probate avoidance or ease of dividing the beneficial ownership of the property without dividing the legal ownership of the property.

In circumstances involving the purchase of a cooperative, condominium, residence subject to a homeowners' association, or a time share, the developer of the property decided the nature of the property, and the type of ownership entity long before the purchaser decided to buy the property. In fact, in these cases, it is often the nature of the entity which owns the property that attracts the purchaser to it.

[3] Selection of the Entity

After the investigation of the viability of the property to determine if it is suitable for the purpose for which it is being purchased (see generally, Chapter 21 in Volume 25, Sales and Exchanges), the main focus (other than financing issues) will be the selection and formation of the entity to take legal title. Many non-tax factors drive the entity selection process. Some of the general factors to consider are:

- (1) The owners may want to limit their liability to their investment in the entity;
- (2) The owners may want to separate the ownership of the property from the management and operation of the property;
- (3) The owners may want to limit the ability of one or more owners to be involved in management;
- (4) The lender which is involved in the financing of the purchase price for the property may require a particular entity and/or a single purpose entity (i.e., the entity cannot own any other assets);
- (5) The investors may desire a specific tax attribute (i.e., pass-through of losses); and
- (6) There may be securities law implications which the parties are attempting to avoid in order to reduce start-up costs.

[4] Types of Entities

There are quite a number of entities to consider when the owner of real estate has elected to purchase a property. The basic entities that one would typically consider are:

- (1) Sole proprietorship and/or individual ownership
- (2) Tenancies in Common
- (3) Joint Venture
- (4) General Partnership
- (5) Limited Partnership
- (6) S Corporation
- (7) C Corporation
- (8) Limited Liability Company
- (9) Trust (including a REIT)

Condominiums, cooperatives, time shares are description of types of real estate projects. They are designed to subdivide property and are not really separate and distinct entities. They each describe a type of real estate ownership, and really are not capable of separately owning property. In most cases, development or ownership of a condominium, cooperative or time share probably involves one or more of the entities set forth above. For example, after the units of a condominium are sold to the public, the property that is subject to the declaration, are often governed by a non-profit corporation commonly referred to as the association. In addition, the developer of the condominium project may have used a limited liability company to purchase the land, subdivide it into units and sell the units to the public. Absent a very specific need to have a unique characteristic of another entity, most practitioners are drawn to the limited liability company. It is one of the most flexible entities; it has the limited liability feature of the corporation and can be taxed as a partnership (See TB § 20.05).

[1] Executive Entity Comparison Summary

As a practical matter, most real estate transactions and developments will involve a limited liability company, a S corporation, a C corporation, a general partnership or a limited partnership. § 20.23 Discussion of Provisions for an Entity or Joint Ownership Agreement

[1] Forming the Entity

If the parties have decided to use an entity to own and operate the property, the first step will be to form the entity. Most of the entities which are best suited for the ownership of real estate require a filing with the designated state agency. Additionally, the filing process will require the entity to appoint an agent for service of process. In most circumstances, the entity is formed in the jurisdiction where the property is located. However, this does not have to be the case, and the entity can be formed in any jurisdiction. If the entity is not formed in the jurisdiction where the property is located, the entity should qualify to do business in the state where the property is located. After the formation of the entity, the practitioner should formalize the relationship of the parties pursuant to a written agreement.

[2] Drafting the Agreement

Considerable care should go into drafting the agreement for the entity's owners. The practitioner will want to make specific recommendations to the clients as to the different provisions that should go into the agreement. In order to do this, the practitioner must know the nature of the property being purchased, and the understanding between the parties as to their specific rights and obligations to each other and to the entity. Additionally, while these provisions are designed to be used in connection with the formation of an entity, most of the provision must be considered for a joint ownership arrangement. The following provides a fairly comprehensive list of topics which should be addressed in an agreement among the owners of an entity which owns and operates real property. However, the practitioner must keep in mind that there is no limitation on the types of issues that could be addressed in such an agreement. For an additional discussion of ownership agreements, see Chapter 1 in Volume 1, Partnerships; Chapter 15 in Volume 18, Shareholder Agreements; and Chapter 18A in Volume 22, Limited Liability Companies.

[a] Name, State of Incorporation, Statutory Agent and Type of Entity

Obviously, the name, state of formation, statutory agent and type of the entity should be reflected in the Agreement. Most of the time, these decisions will be made prior to the time that the agreement is being drafted. Almost every state has a web site that allows you to check on the availability of the name. These sites can be located by a simple Internet search. A significant number of links are provided at the home site of the National Association of Secretaries of State. Also, if the agreement is to be governed by a specific statute within the state of its organization, than the agreement should refer to that statute.

[b] Effective Date

The agreement should reflect the effective date of the agreement. Usually, it is the date of formation, or the date that property is acquired.

[c] Names and Addresses of the Owners

The agreement should clearly set forth the names and addresses of the owners. Often, a practitioner will also obtain their telephone and fax numbers as well as e-mail addresses. Further, if the entity is a corporation, and it intends to make an S-election, it would be helpful for the agreement to set forth the Social Security Numbers for each of the owners.

[d] Capital Structure

The capital structure of the entity is one of the most important provisions in the agreement. It should set forth what it is that each owner is contributing to the entity. Some owners may be contributing cash, while others are contributing property or services. It is critical that the contributions be adequately described. With respect to property or services, a value for each should be assigned. However, owners which contribute property or services may be subject to immediate taxation. After the contributions have been determined and valued, the agreement should clearly define the ownership interest of each owner in the entity. With respect to a joint ownership arrangement, the Deed should set forth each party's interest in the real estate.

[e] Loans

If the parties are loaning any of the start-up capital to the entity, the agreement should reflect the amount and the terms of the loan. Typical terms which should be included are the interest rate, period of repayment, collateral pledged to secure the loan, default provisions and conversion rights. If one owner is going to personally guarantee the repayment of the loan of another owner, the guarantee should be set forth in the agreement.

[f] Number and Type of Authorized Shares or Units

The agreement should reflect the number of units that each owner will own. If additional ownership units are to be available at a later time, the agreement should authorize this and set forth the terms under which the units will be issued. If the agreement does not provide for authorization, then it may be necessary to get the owners to amend the agreement at a later time. Further, it may be appropriate to issue different types of units for some of the owners. For example, if the owners decide to form a limited liability company, but like the feature of a limited partnership which does not allow limited partners to have a say in management, these owners can be issued non-voting units.

[g] Management Structure

This is another critical provision. The owners should set forth in very clear fashion their agreement as to the management of the company. They should decide if the entity will be managed by one or more owners, by employees or by an outside management company. The owners may decide to delegate management. Accordingly, each will be responsible for a separate part of the management of the entity. For example, one owner may be responsible for the construction of the improvements and another owner responsible for obtaining tenants. Further, the agreement may require regular meetings of the owners.

[h] Securities Compliance (Federal and State)

In most cases, the issuance of an interest in an entity is subject to state and federal securities laws. These laws vary from state to state, and greatly depend on the nature of the offering and the amount of consideration being conveyed. Additional factors are the wealth and sophistication of the investor/owner. Compliance with these laws is critical. Failure to comply may give an owner a right of rescission against a promoter/owner. In some states, failure to comply may be a crime. As a result, the practitioner should investigate the securities law implications before the agreement is signed. Additionally, such laws may require the entity to make various disclosures to the owners and may require the owners to acknowledge the disclosures or to make representations to the entity/issuer about the owner's financial status. The agreement is a great place to address these types of requirements.

[i] Transfer Restrictions and Buy-Out Rights

The owners may want to address the transferability of the ownership interests. The owners may allow the interests to be freely transferable. However, this is not likely given the closely held nature of most real estate entities. Typically, the owners will not want others brought into ownership of the entity. The owners may want to provide for an absolute restriction against the transfer of an interest. The owners may want to allow limited transfers to a spouse, trust (for the benefit of the owner or the owner's family) or lineal descendent of the owner. The owners should consider what happens to an owner's interest in the event of the death or disability of any owner. Does the interest get redeemed, or can it be passed along pursuant to a will? In the event of a sale triggered by the death or disability of one of the owners, the parties must address the purchase price, terms of payment of the purchase price and whether the seller will be entitled to security. Lastly, the owners may want to provide for rights of first refusal in the event an owner receives a bona fide offer to purchase his or her interest and the owner wants to accept the offer.

[j] Dispute Resolution Procedures

Many ventures end up with a dispute. The owners can prepare for this day by placing dispute resolution procedures in the agreement. The agreement can provide for business counseling, mediation or arbitration. The agreement can provide for any combination of these resolution procedures. For example, the dispute may first be submitted to mediation. If the mediation does not resolve the dispute, the parties must then submit the dispute to arbitration.

[k] Dividends and Distributions

The owners will want to address ways to get a return of their investment. Most real estate entities will be flow through entities. This means that the income will not be taxed at the entity level, but rather will flow through to the owners, and be taxed on their individual returns. The owners may want to require or restrict the payment dividends or distributions. It depends on the nature of the property and the personal wealth of the owners. The owners may be at odds on this issue. If one owner has significant wealth, and does not need cash distributions from the entity, and the other owner has modest wealth, there could be a dispute over the distribution of the cash flow from the entity. At the very least, if it is a pass through entity, the owners should consider an annual distribution sufficient to cover any annual tax liability that they will have from the entity.

[l] Percentage of Owners Approval to Take Specific Actions

There may be minority owners or non-voting owners that can be protected from being oppressed by the majority and/or voting owners. These provisions vary greatly. The practitioner may not be concerned with the oppression of the minority owners if the practitioner represents the majority owners of the company. If the practitioner represents the company, the practitioner may want to advise the owners to obtain separate legal counsel. The following is a general list of actions that the practitioner should review when such a concern is present to determine what percentage of the ownership interests in the company require approval to take such action.

- Sell or issue additional ownership interests or grant options to buy additional interests
- Approve a reorganization, merger, or consolidation
- Creation of subsidiary
- Acquisition of any asset in excess of specified amount
- Expend money in excess of specified amount
- Diversification of the business
- Obtain credit in excess of a specified amount
- Pledge assets as security for credit
- Amend any agreement
- Amend Articles, By-laws or Code of Regulations
- Declare dividends or other distributions
- Enter into contract with an owner or a party related to an owner
- Enter into an agreement to buy, sell or lease real estate or enter into a capital lease in excess of a specified dollar amount or specified number of years
- Guaranty another party's performance
- Hire any employee with salary above specified level or salary or terminate a senior level employee
- Modify the salary or benefits of an owner or of an individual related to an owner

Current Legal Forms for Real Estate
Chapter 20 REAL ESTATE ENTITIES
Part II. The Practice Background

24-20 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate § 20.24

AUTHOR: by Stephen E. Pigott and Harold O. Maxfield, Jr.

§ 20.24 Sole Proprietorship and Individual Ownership

[1] Description of a Sole Proprietorship

A sole proprietorship is simply an individual that owns and operates the property. However, there is a rather large exception to this rule. A single member limited liability company that has elected to be treated as a partnership is taxed as a sole proprietor for federal income tax purposes, but is treated a limited liability company for non-tax purposes. (See Chapter 18A, in Volume 22 and see TB § 20.05) Also, under Rev. Proc. 2002-69 2002-2 C.B. 831, in a community property state an entity owned by a husband and a wife may be treated as a disregarded entity.

[2] Personal Liability and Identity of Owner

If a person owns real estate individually, he or she will have personal liability for all debts and liabilities associated with the real estate. Some risks such as environmental liability could be significant. As a result, the individual's other assets and wages will be at risk for the debts and claims associated with the real estate. Use of an S-corporation or limited liability company should avoid this problem.

[3] Continuity of Existence and Transferability

The death of the sole proprietor is usually a significant problem for a sole proprietorship operating a business. This factor is not as big as a concern for the individual owner of real estate. Unlike an operating business, the property will not disappear if the sole proprietor dies. The individual executor or administrator will take over for the deceased individual. There may be interim issues until the legal representative is designated. Examples of these problems include access to bank accounts, negotiating rent checks and evicting tenants. If an entity owns the property and the principal dies, generally court approval is not needed to have someone act as representative of the entity. Business owned sole proprietorships can be difficult to sell. This is certainly not the case for a real estate sole proprietorship or individual ownership. In fact, the opposite is probably true. (See generally, Chapter 7A in Volume 11, Estate Planning/Business). Another factor with owning real estate individually is that all real estate ownership is part of the public record. If an individual owns the property his or her name will be public. In most cases, owning property with an entity will allow the beneficial owners to remain anonymous.

[4] Avoidance of Legal and Operating Formalities

A sole proprietorship does not require any legal filings in order to be in existence. It is essentially the existence of its owner. No separate corporate actions, meetings or tax returns are required. Many people operate as a sole proprietorship for this very reason. There are no start up costs, lawyers with which to deal, and no on-going administrative burdens such as annual corporate minutes, appointment of officers or complicated tax laws. Further, the issuance of ownership interests in some entities may require compliance with the federal and state securities laws. (See Chapter 19 in Volume 23, Corporate Securities.) There are no such requirements for individual ownership of real estate. There may be some compliance which is necessary in connection with the issuance of an interest in a single member limited liability company which is treated as a sole proprietorship for tax purposes. (See Chapter 18A in Volume 22.)

[5] Spousal Property Rights

Some states provide that a spouse of an individual who owns real property has an inchoate right of dower. Dower is a common law concept, which generally applied to a widow. However, there are a number of states which have not abolished dower or which have codified it. States that have codified dower, typically apply it to husbands. Dower rights give the spouse a life estate in all lands that their spouse owned during his or her lifetime. In practical terms, it requires an individual that owns real property to obtain the consent of his or her spouse in order to convey an interest in the property. Owning property with an entity will normally avoid dower claims. Consideration should also be given to the community property rights of a spouse, although, the spouse would also have an interest in the ownership of the entity. (See generally, Chapter 7B, in Volume 11, Estate Planning/Community Property).

Chapter 20 REAL ESTATE ENTITIES
Part II. The Practice Background

24-20 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate § 20.25

AUTHOR: by Stephen E. Pigott and Harold O. Maxfield, Jr.

§ 20.25 Tenancies in Common and Joint Ventures

[1] Description of Tenants in Common and Joint Venture

When two or more individuals or companies own real estate they are tenants in common. If the individuals are not treated as a partnership for federal income tax purposes, then the consequences of ownership are no different than if one person owned the entire fee simple interest in the property. (See TB § 20.03). A joint venture is generally considered a partnership. The only difference is that parties organize together for a very specific purpose. Most joint ventures are limited in duration. That is, the parties jointly acquire the real estate for a very specific reason and for a limited time frame. Joint venture parties can be other entities. For example, two corporations may decide to purchase property. The corporations can take title in their respective names or may form another entity to complete the venture. If the venture is limited in scope and duration, it would be considered a joint venture.

[2] Owning Land as Tenants in Common

Tenants in common each own an undivided interest in the property. Absent an agreement, each tenant has a legal right to occupy the entire property jointly with the other tenants. Additionally, all of the issues discussed above associated with owning property individually are present with respect to owning property as joint tenants. However, there is an additional problem. The additional problem is that the joint owner's problems can also affect the property. For example, if you own an undivided one half interest in a property, and the other half is owned by another, and that individual gets divorced or gets a judgment lien against him or her, then such party's interest in the property will be subject to the marital claim or levy. In either case, it is easy to see how the property can be affected.

In most states, property owned jointly is subject to partition rights. That is, if one party wants to sell, and the other party does not, the party seeking to sell may request a court to subdivide the property so that he or she can take his or her share of the property free of the interest of the other joint tenant. In most states, if a property cannot be properly or fairly partitioned (i.e., a shopping mall), the court has the authority to order the property sold.

Additionally, there are operational issues associated with the joint ownership of property. These issues are similar to the issue facing the owners of an entity. Who will manage the property? Who will decide when it is the right time to sell? The list is potentially exhausting. As a result, if the parties do not want to organize an entity to own the real estate, the seasoned practitioner will advise the parties to enter into a joint ownership agreement setting forth a framework wherein the parties can memorialize their agreements respecting the property. The agreement will look very similar to a general partnership agreement. Obviously, if the parties are related, and there is an element of trust between them, the need for such an agreement may be mitigated.

[3] Forming the Joint Venture

A joint venture will almost certainly involve an agreement. However, no governmental filing is typically required, unless the joint venture takes the form of another entity. As stated above, a joint venture is normally considered a general partnership, but it may take the form of another entity. For example, two individuals could agree to form a corporation to purchase, develop and resell a plot of land. This is a joint venture. Consequently, the joint venture agreement will take the form of the entity selected. The primary difference will be that the purpose clause set forth in the joint venture agreement will be limited.

[4] Securities Law Compliance

Unless the parties to a joint venture are forming an entity to operate the joint venture, there should not be any securities compliance necessary. However, if the parties are forming a venture to complete the joint venture, then the practitioner must review the federal and state securities laws applicable to the entity and the investor/owners.

Chapter 20 REAL ESTATE ENTITIES
Part II. The Practice Background

24-20 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate § 20.26

AUTHOR: by Stephen E. Pigott and Harold O. Maxfield, Jr.

§ 20.26 Partnerships

[1] Description of a Partnership

A partnership is an association of two or more parties who organize together in a common enterprise to make a profit. There are two basic types of partnerships, general partnerships and limited partnerships. (See TB § 20.06 for a detailed discussion of the tax implications of a partnership). Additionally, Chapter 1 in Volume 1 contains a detailed discussion of both the tax and the non-tax characteristics of general and limited partnerships.

[2] Formation of a General Partnership and a Limited Partnership

There is no filing or declaration necessary to form a general partnership. The partnership is essentially formed by intent and actions of the partners. In order to form a limited partnership, however, the partners must file a Certificate of Limited Partnership with the appropriate governmental state agency. Most states have promulgated forms that can be filled out by the practitioner and filed. Some states require the use of their forms, other states just recommend it. An appointment of a statutory agent must be filed with the Certificate.

[a] Evidence of Ownership

General partnerships do not usually issue certificates or any other evidence of ownership, although there is no prohibition against it. Limited partnerships, however, regularly issue Limited Partnership Certificates as evidence of ownership.

[b] Organizational Meetings

General partnership or limited partnerships do not normally have organizational meetings. Most partnerships are formed and begin doing business when the partnership agreement is executed. With respect to general partnerships, each partner is authorized to act on behalf of the partnership and no formal designation is necessary. With respect to a limited partnership, by its very nature, its general partners are authorized to act on its behalf and the limited partners are expressly prohibited from taking any action on behalf of the limited partnership. These concepts are codified in the partnership laws adopted by most states and are normally repeated in the partnership agreement.

[3] The Partnership Agreement

There is no requirement that a general partnership have a partnership agreement. However, most states require that a limited partnership have a written limited partnership agreement. The practitioner must review and become familiar with the laws in the jurisdiction where the limited partnership is being formed to make sure that the limited partnership is properly formed. (See Chapter 1 in Volume 1, Partnerships.)

[4] Perpetual Existence

A general partnership does not have a perpetual existence, and it will dissolve upon the death or withdrawing of a partner. Limited partnerships do have a form of perpetual existence. The limited partnership agreement can provide that the limited partnership will carry on upon the death of limited partner. However, upon the death of the last general partner, the partnership will dissolve unless a substitute general partner is put in the partnership. (See TB § 20.06[1][g] for a discussion of the tax consequences to a partnership upon the death of a partner).

[5] Transferability of Interests and Centralized Management

General partnership interests are not freely transferable. Limited partnership interests may be transferred if the transfer is permitted under the limited partnership agreement. A transferee that does not become a full substituted partner will only receive an economic interest in the partnership, and will have no rights under the agreement. A general partnership does not have centralized management and each partner is permitted to participate in the management of the partnership. A limited partnership does have centralized management. The ability to manage is vested only in the general partners and the limited partners have no authority to manage the affairs of the limited partnership.

[6] Liability of Partners

General partners have unlimited liability for the liabilities and debts of the partnership. However, an exception to this rule is a general partnership that has made an election to be treated as a limited liability partnership. Many states now provide for such an election. The election has the effect of insulating a partner from liability associated with the wrongful acts of his or her partner. It does not insulate the partner from the partner's own liability, or from liability of the wrongful acts of a partner that was under the supervision of the partner or from the general contractual debts and obligations of the partnership. Of course, limited partners do not have personal liability for the debts or liabilities of the partnership. Since the advent of the check the box regulations it is no longer a problem to have a corporate general partner. Therefore, a limited partnership that has a corporate general partner will have the effect of insulating all beneficial owners of the partnership from liability. The assets of the corporate general partner would still be at risk; therefore the common practice is to thinly capitalize it.

[7] Securities Law Compliance

General partnership interests are not normally considered securities. However, a general partnership interest may be considered a security under federal law if it can be described as an "investment contract." The leading case on the meaning of an investment contract is SEC v. W.J. Howey Co., 328 US 293 (1946). Under the Howey test, an investment contract is an investment in a common enterprise with an expectation of profits to be derived from the managerial efforts of others. It is the second part of the test, whether the profits are to be derived through the efforts of others, on which the security classification will turn. Based on this test and cases interpreting it, whether a general partnership interest will be considered a security will largely turn on the Partnership Agreement, and the actual working of the entity. When management is vested in its partners, it is less likely the interest will be a security. If the management is vested in a small number partners, it is more likely to be a security. The practitioner must review the state's blue sky laws to determine if any compliance is required. In most circumstances, a general partnership interest will not be a security.

AUTHOR: by Stephen E. Pigott and Harold O. Maxfield, Jr.

§ 20.27 Corporations

[1] Description of a Corporation

A corporation is an entity that is created by statute. It offers its shareholders limited liability. Further, a S-corporation has federal tax treatment that is very similar to that of a partnership. (See TB § 20.07[2] for a detailed discussion of the tax implications of an S corporation.) Additionally, Chapter 18 in Volume 22, Corporate Organization contains a detailed discussion of both the tax and the non-tax characteristics of a corporation.

[2] Formation of the Corporation

In order to form a corporation, Articles of Incorporation must be filed with the appropriate governmental state agency. Most states have promulgated forms that can be filled out by the practitioner and filed. Some states require the use of their forms, other states just recommend it. An appointment of a statutory agent must be filed with the Articles.

[a] Evidence of Ownership

An ownership interest in a corporation is almost always evidenced by a stock certificate. Many modern close corporation statutes which have been adopted by numerous states do not require the issuance of certificates, although very few practitioners follow that practice, even if there is only one member.

[b] Organizational Meetings

In connection with the formation of a corporation it is necessary to have an organizational meeting or to have a written action in lieu of a meeting to complete the formation of the corporation. These post incorporation actions typically include the appointment of officers and directors and adoption of by-laws. The corporation may also elect to be taxed as an S corporation.

[3] The Shareholder Agreement

Most states provide that the shareholders of the corporation can enter into an agreement to give each other certain rights and bind each other with certain obligations. These are typically called close corporation statutes. There is no requirement to have such an agreement, but it is a common practice with corporations that have two or more unrelated parties. Contained in this Chapter at § 20.23 are a number of provisions that the practitioner should consider when drafting a shareholder agreement.

[4] Perpetual Existence

Corporations will have a perpetual existence, unless a stated term is set forth in its Articles of Incorporation.

[5] Transferability of Interests and Centralized Management

Under most states, absent a provision in the articles, by-laws or a close corporation agreement the ownership interests in a corporation are freely transferable. Also, absent an agreement to the contrary, a corporation will have centralized management, and its shareholder will not have the power to bind the corporation. A corporation acts through its officers and other authorized representatives.

[6] C Corporation versus S Corporation

C corporations and S corporations are formed in the same manner. The only difference is how the corporations are taxed. A C corporation is subject to federal income taxation separate and apart from its owners. It is liable for the tax, not its shareholders. Any profit that it makes or losses that it incurs remain at the corporate level. Profits are distributed to its shareholders by way of the declaration and payment of dividends. S corporations are generally not subject to federal income tax. The shareholder is deemed to have received his or her pro-rata of the profit or loss of the corporation. Such profit or loss flows through to the shareholder's federal income tax return and the shareholder is liable for the tax thereon. In order to be an S corporation, the corporations and its shareholders must make an election. (See TB § 20.07[2]).

[7] Securities Laws Compliance

The offering and sale of stock in a company will almost always be considered a regulated security and the practitioner must either register the stock under the applicable state and federal securities laws or find an exemption from registration. Most real estate corporations which involve a small number of owners will be subject to an exception from registration.

AUTHOR: by Stephen E. Pigott and Harold O. Maxfield, Jr.

§ 20.28 Limited Liability Companies

[1] Description of a Limited Liability Company

A limited liability company is an entity that is created by statute. It has the corporate characteristics of limited liability to its owners and the federal tax treatment as a partnership. Today, it is the entity used most by practitioners in connection with the formation of a business real estate transaction. (See TB § 20.06 for a detailed discussion of the tax implications of a limited liability company). Additionally, Chapter 18 in Volume 22, Limited Liability Companies, contains a detailed discussion of both the tax and the non-tax characteristics of a limited liability company.

[2] Formation of the Limited Liability Company

In order to form a limited liability company, Articles of Organization must be filed with the appropriate governmental state agency. Most states have promulgated forms that can be filled out by the practitioner and filed. Some states require the use of their forms, other states just recommend it. An appointment of a statutory agent must be filed with the Articles.

[a] Evidence of Ownership

Many limited liability company statutes do not require the issuance of a certificate in order to evidence ownership. However, other than their signature on the Operating Agreement, and being named in some tax returns, it may be the only evidence that they have any ownership in the entity, therefore it is advisable for a limited liability company having more than one member.

[b] Organizational Meetings

Many limited liability company statutes do not require an organizational meeting. However, having an organizational meeting and annual meetings will help bolster the separate and distinct nature of the limited liability company. As a result, it is recommended. In addition, most states allow the members to approve actions in writing. This type of written action can be undertaken in lieu of a meeting.

[c] Other Post Organizational Matters

Many practitioners are forming limited liability companies to resemble corporations. In many circumstances, they appoint officers and directors and adopt by-laws. Since many businesses are accustomed to dealing with officers when making agreements, opening bank accounts etc., it is probably a good idea to appoint officers and directors.

[3] The Operating Agreement

In most states, there is no statutory requirement to have an operating agreement. However, if there is more than one member, a written operating agreement should be used. Also, when dealing with a one person "single purpose entity," it may also be helpful to have an operating agreement. The use of a single purpose entity may be required when the limited liability company obtains bank financing. The lender does not want the operation of the real estate on which it is taking a mortgage to be commingled with the owner's other assets. In addition, the lender does not want any losses with respect to the owner on other property to affect the mortgage property. In any event, a lender may require a one member limited liability company to approve an operating agreement. The lender would obviously be a third party beneficiary to such agreement. Contained in this Chapter at 20 are a number of provisions that the practitioner should consider when drafting an operating agreement.

[4] Perpetual Existence

In most states a limited liability company has perpetual existence, unless a stated term is set forth in its Articles of Organization. The existence of the limited liability company does not need to coincide with that of its members. As a result, a limited liability company can generally be organized in such a manner so that the death of a member does not affect its existence for state law purposes.

[5] Transferability of Interests and Centralized Management

Under most states, absent a provision in the Articles or the operating agreement, the ownership interest is not freely transferable. The transferee will only receive an economic interest in the limited liability company. A limited liability company generally does not have centralized management. The ability to manage is vested in each member. However, the limited liability company has great flexibility and the parties may agree to almost any management structure that the creative practitioner can invent.

[6] Securities Law Considerations

Unless there are specific statutory or regulatory provisions, the issue as to whether interests will be treated as securities will depend on the same standards as are applied to determine whether general partnership interests are securities. A limited liability company interest will be treated as a security under federal law if it can be described as an "investment contract." The leading case on the meaning of an investment contract is SEC v. W.J. Howey Co., 328 US 293 (1946). Under the Howey test, an investment contract is an investment in a common enterprise with an expectation of profits to be derived from the managerial efforts of others. It is the second part of the test, whether the profits are to be derived through the efforts of others, on which the security classification will turn. Based on this test and cases interpreting it, whether a membership interest will be considered a security will largely turn on the Articles of Organization and the Operating Agreement, and the actual structure of the entity. When management is vested in its members, it is less likely the interest will be a security. If management is vested in non-member managers, the risk of creating a security is increased. Even if a limited liability company interest is not a security for federal securities law purposes, it may or may not be a security under state law, so counsel must check the state blue sky laws where the entity will be formed and where its investors are located. If it is a security under federal law, counsel must either register the security or find an exemption from registration.

§ 20.29 Real Estate Trusts

[1] Description of a Trust

A trust is a relationship between parties where the legal title to the property is held for the benefit of another. A trust can be formed by a written declaration or pursuant to an agreement. In the declaration, the grantor or sponsor of the trust sets forth the terms and conditions of the trusts, including the beneficiaries. The other way to create a trust is pursuant to an agreement. Under the common law in most states, a trust can be created by an oral agreement. It is not advisable to use a trust created by an oral agreement to own and operate real estate. The trust agreement is usually between the grantor or sponsor of the trust and the trustee. In addition to the obligations of the trustee set forth in the trust document, the trustee owes the beneficiaries of the trust a fiduciary duty. The use of trusts for business transactions is becoming somewhat obsolete. Most sophisticated business owners, including real property owners, understand that limited liability companies, corporations and limited partnerships have the flexibility to incorporate any features of a trust that the parties may desire. One benefit to a trust that is commonly recited as a reason to utilize a trust in business is that there is not governmental filing required to bring it into existence. However, with the ease of the Internet, faxes and overnight priority mail it is very easy to form an entity. Further, as trusts are used less and less, and the business community becomes less familiar with its use, it will be more difficult to conduct business with them. Trusts are still widely used for estate planning, probate avoidance and creditor protection purposes.

[2] Common Real Estate Trusts

[a] Real Estate Investment Trusts

A REIT is an entity that is formed to hold real estate investments. It must have at least 100 owners. However, a REIT does not need to be a trust. A REIT can also be organized as a corporation or as an association. A REIT is a creature of the federal income tax laws. The important features of a REIT are not how it is organized, but rather what type of property it owns and how it is taxed. (See TB § 20.08 for a general discussion of the taxation of a REIT). If the REIT does not comply with the highly technical requirements of Section 128 of the Internal Revenue Code, it will be taxed as a C corporation.

[b] Qualified Personal Residence Trust

A Qualified Personal Residence Trust is essentially used as an estate planning tool. It provides for the transfer of the full value of a residence to the trust, and the grantor will only be required to pay gift taxes for the cost value of the remainder interest. The appreciation, if any, after the transfer to the Trust, inures to the benefit of the remainder beneficiary if the residence is not sold during the grantor's lifetime and the proceeds of the sale are converted to the grantor retain annuity trust (GRAT). For a complete discussion of Qualified Personal Residence Trusts, see Chapter 9, in Volume 11, § 9.23[1].

[c] Business Trust

Business trusts are trusts that are created to own or operate a business. Business trusts are commonly referred to a "Massachusetts Trusts." A business trust is sometimes used because the organizers of the trust do not have to undertake any filings with a governmental agency to form a business trust. A business trust is formed pursuant to the terms and conditions of a declaration of trust or a trust agreement. Interests in the trust are given or sold to beneficiaries who hold a beneficial interest in the trust. Typically, the beneficial interest can be sold or transferred without the consent of the trustees. The beneficiaries have no right to control, manage or operate the business of the trust. These rights are exclusively vested in the trustee.

[d] Estate Planning, Probate Avoidance or Creditor Avoidance Trusts

In connection with estate planning, probate avoidance and creditor protection of assets, individuals will sometimes convey real property to a trust. The provisions of the trust are geared for the reason that the trust was set up, and not for the ownership of real estate. It should be noted that these types of trusts are generally not arms-length and the grantor of the trust usually has a pre-existing relationship with the trustee and the beneficiaries. In many cases, the grantor of the trust may be the trustee or the trust may be revocable. In these circumstances, as a practical matter, the terms of the trust will not be important until the grantor dies and the trust is terminated.

[3] Securities Law Compliance

The issuance of ownership interests in a trust may be subject to securities regulation. As with a general partnership discussed above (see § 20.26[7]), if the interest in the trust is considered an investment contract under SEC v. W.J. Howey Co., 328 U.S. 293 (1946), then compliance with the securities laws is required. Most large business trusts must comply with the applicable securities rules and regulations because they are issuing investment contracts. In fact, large Massachusetts Trusts may be publicly traded. Obviously, given the nature of a REIT, compliance with the applicable securities laws is critical. A REIT almost always involves a public offering. Lastly, there are no securities laws implications with respect to a Qualified Personal Residence Trust or the estate planning, probate avoidance or creditor avoidance trusts.

§ 20.30 Cooperatives

[1] Description of a Cooperative

A cooperative is a corporation or other entity that owns a multi-tenant property, usually residential in nature. The shareholders of the corporation have a proprietary lease to occupy a specific apartment and have an undivided right to use the common facilities. The lease payments of the shareholders are designed to cover the cash flow needs of the facility. The shareholders are owners of personal property and do not own the real property. (For a comprehensive discussion of all aspects of cooperatives, see Rohan & Reskin, Cooperative Housing, Matthew Bender).

[a] Types of Cooperatives

The most common type of cooperative is when the corporation owns the real estate. As referred to above, in a corporate owned cooperative, the fee simple interest in the property is owned by the corporation. The shareholders of the corporation have a right to occupy their apartments by virtue of a proprietary lease. Similar to a corporate owned cooperative is a trust. Instead of the corporation owning the property, the trust owns the property. The beneficial interests in the trust are given to the tenants. Again, each tenant has a proprietary lease to occupy a specific apartment at the property. The last type of cooperative is the co-ownership cooperative. In a co-ownership cooperative, the owners of the real estate are tenants in common. Each tenant in common has a proprietary lease for a specific apartment. Because of the decentralized nature of the ownership of a co-ownership cooperative, they are difficult to manage and are seldom used.

[2] Developing a Cooperative

A significant number of states have statutes which authorize the formation of cooperatives. In many cases, it is covered by the same legislation as condominiums. The offering of cooperative is highly technical and regulated. Great care must be given to the applicable laws in the jurisdiction where the property is located. The first step in creating a cooperative is to purchase or control the real estate that will be owned by the cooperative. If it is vacant land, the buildings should be completed, or must be in a position to provide the shareholders with a completion date.

[a] Organization of the Cooperative

The developer will typically prepare and file a declaration subjecting the real estate to the cooperative. The requirement of the filing of a declaration depends on the law in the jurisdiction which the cooperative is being developed. Under the Uniform Common Interest Ownership Act, the developer is required to file the declaration. The Developer will then convey the improved land to the corporation. The corporation will typically serve as the association. The shares in the association will be sold to individuals who intend to occupy the building. The individuals will receive a proprietary lease. In most circumstances, the association will be a non-profit corporation. The corporation must be incorporated and organized in accordance with the law of the jurisdiction where it is being formed. Generally, the corporation would have trustees or directors and have officers appointed. There may also be a set of rules and regulations relating to the use and occupancy of the improvements.

[b] Sale of the Shares

After the conveyance of the property to the association, the association or the developer will sell the shares to individuals that want to live at the building. The sales proceeds are given to the developer, and the shareholders enter into their lease. Thereafter, if a unit is to be sold, the shareholder will convey his or her shares.

[c] The Disclosure Statement

In most states, the sale of shares in a cooperative requires the developer to prepare a disclosure statement, and provide a copy to the purchaser. The statement is designed to provide sufficient information to the purchaser so that the purchaser can make an informed decision regarding the purchase. While the specific requirements vary from jurisdiction to jurisdiction, most states and most uniform acts require several key items. The disclosure statement must describe the general terms and conditions of the offer and the details of the property. It should include a description of the developer, copies of all corporate documents concerning the association, copies of all title documents, a copy of the proposed purchase agreement and include financial statement and proposed operating budgets. The rule of thumb is that the statement should provide the buyer with all material information regarding the transaction which a prudent purchaser would want to know prior to making the purchase.

§ 20.31 Condominiums and Homeowner Associations

[1] Description of Condominium and Homeowner Associations

Condominium and homeowner associations are typically characterized as common interest communities. Unlike cooperatives, the individuals actually own their interest in the real estate and have an undivided interest in the common areas. While condominiums and homeowner associations may own real estate, they are not considered entities. Typically they are corporations formed for the purpose of managing common property, although it would not be unusual for a homeowners association to be unincorporated. The use of condominium and homeowner's associations allow property to be subdivided for individual ownership, but provide for the owners of the individual units to work together to share facilities and costs. Condominiums do not have to be dwelling units. Many condominium projects involve commercial property such as office buildings and marinas.

[2] Developing a Condominium

All states have adopted a condominium act. Approximately a dozen states have adopted the Uniform Condominium Act drafted by the Uniform Law Commissioners. However, most states and the all the uniform acts follow the same basic structure. The first step in developing a condominium is acquiring the land. Under the Uniform Condominium Act, the declaration may not be filed unless all structural components and mechanical systems of the complex are substantially completed. For this reason, the developer may develop the complex in phases. Once the land is acquired, the developer will dedicate the land by filing a declaration. The declaration is the document that declares the property to be a condominium. It is filed in the same manner as a deed conveying property. A condominium declaration must include a detailed set of drawings showing the design, layout, dimensions, etc., of the property. It must also include a legal description of the property that is subject to the declaration and a legal description of any property to which the condominium may expand. Generally, the declarations will include a copy of the by-laws.

[3] The Condominium Association

A condominium association has jurisdiction over the use of the common property, as well as most of the structural improvements (i.e., roof, foundations, etc.). Condominium associations have a duty to enforce the rules, easements, covenants and restrictions set forth in the declaration. The operation of a condominium association is very complicated, and many condominium associations hire outside management companies. Condominium associations have the right to lien a unit for failure to pay assessments, and have the power to take any and all actions, including foreclosure actions. The powers are usually set forth in the applicable statute as well as the declaration.

[4] The Disclosure Statement

In most states, the sale of condominium units by a developer requires the developer to prepare a disclosure statement, and provide a copy to the prospective purchaser. The statement is designed to provide sufficient information to the purchaser so that the purchaser can make an informed decision regarding the purchase. While the specific requirements vary from jurisdiction to jurisdiction, most states and most uniform acts require several key items. The disclosure statement must describe the general terms and conditions of the offer and the details of the property. It would include a description of the developer, copies of all corporate documents concerning the association, copies of all title documents, a copy of the proposed purchase agreement and include financial statement and proposed operating budgets, including projected monthly assessments. The rule of thumb is that the statement should provide the buyer with all material information regarding the transaction that a prudent purchaser would want to know prior to making the purchase.

[5] The Homeowners Association

Once the land is acquired, the developer will dedicate the land by filing a declaration and a plot plan describing each lot of the subdivision. The declaration is the document that declares that the property will be subject to the rules, easements, covenants and restrictions of the homeowners association. It is filed in the same manner as a deed conveying property. A plot plan showing the subdivided lots is usually attached to the declaration. Homeowners associations are formed to manage the common property and to oversee the compliance with the declarations. A homeowners association only has jurisdiction over the use of the common property and the exterior of a residence. Homeowners associations have a duty to enforce the rules, easements, covenants and restrictions set forth in the declaration. Consumers buy residences subject to declarations and homeowners associations because the restrictions are designed to keep up the neighborhood. The organization and operation of a homeowners association is relatively simple when compared to a condominium association. There is significantly less oversight required in connection with the management of a homeowners association. However, homeowners associations normally have the right to lien property for failure to pay assessments, and have the power to take the necessary action to collect assessments including the filing of a foreclosure action. These powers must be set forth in the declaration. Unlike condominiums, cooperatives or time sharing arrangements, the sale of lots in a homeowners association is not regulated and does not require the preparation of a disclosure statement.

§ 20.32 Time Sharing

[1] Description of a Time Sharing Arrangement

Time sharing is simply a way for two or more people to own or have an interest in the same dwelling. There are two types of time sharing arrangements. Under the Uniform Real Estate Time Sharing Act, the types are described as a time share estate and a time share license. A time share estate does not use a separate real estate entity to own the real estate. The individual owner of the time share owns real estate. This concept is similar to that of a condominium. The unit owners are tenants in common and have a right to use the common facilities. A time share license uses a separate association to own the real estate. The holder of the license has the right to occupy the unit for the agreed interval during a specified period.

Usually, the unit is located at a resort or at a very attractive vacation area. It is attractive to consumers because they can acquire the right to use a luxurious home for a specific period at a fraction of the cost than if they had to purchase the entire dwelling. It is attractive to the developer because that can sell fractional interests in the property, typically at a much higher cost than if the developer had to sell the entire interest. Many developers also have affiliated companies that may operate one or more amenities at the time share property. Many developers also have management companies which provide on-going management services to the time share complex. In addition to the purchase price, unit owners normally pay a management or association fee. The unit is generally divided into fifty-two weeks and the weeks are sold as units to the consumer. For tax purposes, the owner's interest is deemed to be a residence if the owner's use does not exceed the rules applicable to rental dwellings.

[2] Trading of Units

It is a fairly common practice for owners of time shares to trade their existing time share units for other time share units at a different resort. In fact, a number of exchanges have been set up for this purpose. These exchanges assign value to an owner's units. The owner can then take his or her credits, and trade for other weeks or other locations. The ability of time share owners to trade is also a factor in making time shares more attractive to consumers. For example, if an owner has a time share in Cancun, Mexico for September, they have the ability to trade their units for a villa in Colorado in December to ski.

[3] Developing a Time Share

Many states have adopted a legislation which governs the offering of time sharing arrangements. Many states regulate the offering of time share arrangements in conjunction with the states regulation of condominiums. As an example, the Uniform Condominium Act proposed by the Uniform Law Commissioners also covers time sharing arrangements. The offering of a time sharing arrangement is highly technical, and the practitioner must review and become familiar with the requirement of the jurisdiction where the time share arrangement is being offered and where the project is located. However, the laws in most states have the same basic concepts and structure.

The first step in developing a time share complex and offering a time share is to acquire the real estate and develop the property. After the acquisition of the real estate and development of the property, the developer will generally dedicate the property by the filing a declaration. Under the Uniform Condominium Act, the declaration may not be filed unless all structural components and mechanical systems of complex are substantially completed. For this reason, the developer may develop the complex in phases. The declaration is the document that declares the property to be a time sharing property, and sets forth various restrictions regarding the future use of the property. It is filed in the same manner as a deed conveying property.

[4] The Disclosure Statement

As with condominiums, the sale of time sharing arrangements by a developer requires the developer to prepare a disclosure statement, and provide a copy to the prospective purchaser. The statement is designed to provide sufficient information to the purchaser so that the purchaser can make an informed decision regarding the purchase. While the specific requirements vary from jurisdiction to jurisdiction, most states and most uniform acts require several key items. The disclosure statement must describe the general terms and conditions of the offer and the details of the property. It would include a description of the developer, copies of all corporate documents concerning the association, copies of all title documents, a copy of the proposed purchase agreement and include financial statement and proposed operating budgets, including projected monthly assessments. The rule of thumb is that the statement should provide the buyer with all material information regarding the transaction that a prudent purchaser would want to know prior to making the purchase.

Chapter 20 REAL ESTATE ENTITIES
Part III. Drafting Guidelines

24-20 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate § 20.45

AUTHOR: by Stephen E. Pigott and Harold O. Maxfield, Jr.

§ 20.45 Overview of Drafting Guidelines

After the principal or principals decide that the property is suitable, the parties will usually concentrate on the nature of the ownership, the choice of entity, and the relationship (i.e., rights and obligations) of the owners of the enterprise. However, in many cases, the practitioner may be asked to provide advice on the feasibility of the purchase and the selection of the entity simultaneously. If the latter is the case, the client may be incurring legal fees in connection with the formation of the enterprise, before the client actually determines that the property is suitable. If the client wishes to avoid this scenario, a purchase agreement may provide that it is assignable to new entity to be formed by the buyer, or that the property may be purchased by buyer's nominee. If the purchase agreement contains such a provision, then there should be no problem waiting until the buyer has completed its due diligence regarding the viability of the purchase, before it proceeds to address the type of entity that will complete the purchase.

If the real estate is being purchased in connection with an existing business, the choice of entity analysis may start with determining if an existing entity will be used, or if a new entity will be formed. Obviously, if an existing entity is to be used, a review of the governing documents and ownership structure should be completed to determine that everything is in order. In this regard, if a determination is made that the existing entity's documentation needs to be updated, the documentation can easily be amended or modified to incorporate the new concepts or agreements that are being introduced by the parties. Furthermore, after the choice of entity has been made, most of the concepts and drafting guidelines contained in this chapter are applicable to all types of entities, and can be modified to fit almost any entity with a minor amount of effort. In the case of an entity with one owner, the practitioner will not likely pay significant attention to the formation documents or operating agreements because they can be changed at any time. However, an exception to this rule is if an outside party, such as a bank, requires an agreement to ensure that the entity is a single purpose enterprise. In this scenario, the outside party will generally dictate the substantive provision of the agreement. Regardless, even if the client deems the formation documents unimportant, the practitioner should recommend the adoption of an operating statement, by-laws or code of regulations so that the corporate formalities are in place. This will help to avoid an argument that the entity's creditors can "pierce the corporate veil."

Finally, after the type of the entity is selected, the practitioner must review and become familiar with the state statutes under which the entity will be formed. Most states require a filing in order to form an entity. Additionally, most states have laws that govern the operation of an entity that has been formed in its jurisdiction. As a general matter, these laws are considered default provisions and will govern the operation of the entity unless the operative agreement entered into by the owners requires a different result.

In the typical real estate purchase, the trend has been to use a limited liability company. As discussed above, the owners of this type of entity generally have limited liability and receive favorable tax treatment. See TB § 20.05. Another common entity for the ownership of an interest in real estate is a corporation that has made an S-election for federal income tax purposes. The S corporation parallels the limited liability company with respect to the limitation of liability on its owners. Also, an S corporation's tax treatment is very similar to that of a limited liability company, however the practitioner should be aware that there are some subtle differences. (See TB § 20.06 and § 20.07).

Chapter 20 REAL ESTATE ENTITIES
Part III. Drafting Guidelines

24-20 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate § 20.46

AUTHOR: by Stephen E. Pigott and Harold O. Maxfield, Jr.

§ 20.46 Drafting the Agreement

In order to provide the practitioner with a broad base of typical provisions these drafting guidelines include three basic agreements. The first agreement is an operating agreement for a limited liability company with only one member. For federal income tax purposes, the entity will be ignored and the owner will be deemed to be a sole proprietorship. The primary reason to use an operating agreement for a limited liability company with one member is because a lender is requiring that it be a single purpose entity for as long as it has a loan outstanding. The second agreement is an operating agreement involving a limited liability company that has several members. For the purposes of this agreement, the members are employees of a separate corporation. The limited liability company was formed to purchase the property and lease it to the corporation. The third agreement is a simple shareholder agreement involving a corporation that has elected S corporation status.

ARTICLE 1 FORMATION OF THE COMPANY

1.1 Formation of Limited Liability Company. The Members have organized the Company pursuant to the provisions of Sections _____ to _____, both inclusive, of the _____ [state] Revised Code (the "LLC Act") under the name " _____." Except as otherwise provided herein, all rights, liabilities and obligations of the Members, both as among themselves and as to persons not parties to this Agreement, shall be as provided in the LLC Act.

ARTICLE 2 MEMBERS, CAPITAL CONTRIBUTIONS, CAPITAL ACCOUNTS

2.1 Members. The names and addresses of the Members are set forth on the signature pages attached hereto.

2.2 Membership Units; Initial Capital Contributions. Each Member's undivided interest in the capital of the Company shall be represented by Membership units ("Membership Units"). Each Membership Unit shall represent an interest in the capital of the Company and shall be identical in all respects with every other Membership Unit. The Membership Units shall be certificated. Each Member shall own the number of Membership Units set forth on Exhibit A. A Member shall not have the right to demand or receive the return of his capital contribution except as otherwise expressly provided herein.

2.3 Voting of Members. On any matter presented to the Members for their vote, each Member shall have one (1) vote for each Membership Unit. (n11)COMMENT

2.4 Capital Accounts. An individual capital account shall be established and maintained for each Member and has been or shall be credited with the amount of each Member's initial capital contribution to the Company. Each Member's capital account shall be determined and maintained throughout the term of the Company in accordance with the requirements of Section 704(b) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (the "Code") or its counterpart in any subsequently enacted Internal Revenue Code, the applicable Treasury Regulations (the "Regulations") thereunder and the provisions of the Bylaws of the Company.

2.5 Capital Calls. The Members recognize that the income produced by the Company may be insufficient to pay the cost of operating the Company. The term "cost of operating the Company" shall include, without limiting the generality of said term, all real estate taxes and assessments and other state and governmental charges, insurance premiums, costs of repair and maintenance, and the principal and interest payments required to be made on any loans or mortgages of the Company. Such election shall be made, in writing, at the time the contribution is made.

2.6.1 If the contributing Members elect to treat their contribution as additional capital, after such contributions are made, each Member's percentage capital interest in the Company (and their respective interests in the net profits, net losses and cash flow) shall be adjusted and determined by dividing the total amount of capital contributed to the Company by such Members since the Company's inception by the total amount of capital contributed to the Company since its inception by all Members. The resulting quotient, with respect to each Member, shall be the adjusted percentage interest of such Member in the capital of the Company (and in the net profits, net losses and cash flow). 2.6.2 If the contributing Members elect to treat their contributions as a loan to the defaulting Member, then no adjustment shall be made to the percentage capital interest of the contributing Members because of such loan and each Member's share in the profits and losses and cash flow of the Company shall remain the same. The defaulting Member's capital account shall be increased in the same amount as would occur if the defaulting Member had made the additional capital contribution in the amount of the loan. In addition, the defaulting Member's share in the net profits, net losses and cash flow of the Company shall be adjusted, if necessary, as if he or she had made a contribution to the capital of the Company in the amount of such loan. The amount advanced by the Members on behalf of the defaulting Member shall be a debt of the defaulting Member to the contributing Members and shall bear interest at the prime rate or base lending rate of _____ [bank] of _____, [city] _____, [state] or its corporate successor, then in effect. (n19)COMMENT

(n20)COMMENT

(d) Stop transfer instructions to the appropriate officers of the Company have been, or will be, placed in the Company's records with respect to the Membership Units so as to restrict the resale, pledge, hypothecation, or other transfer thereof, subject to the further terms of this Agreement, including the provisions of the legend set forth in subparagraph (c) above, during the nine-month period described in subparagraph (b) above.

(e) Prior to the expiration of the nine-month period described in subparagraph (b) above, the legend and stop transfer instructions described in subparagraphs (c) and (d) above will be placed on any new certificate(s) or other document(s) issued by the Company upon presentment by a Member to the Company of any certificate(s) or other document(s) for transfer of any of the Membership Units to a person or business organization having a principal residence or principal office, respectively, within the State of _____ [state].

In connection with the Members' purchase of the Membership Units hereunder, each of the Members represents and warrants, which representations and warranties shall survive the consummation of the Member's purchase of his or its interest hereunder, as follows:

- (a) The Member's principal residence is located within the State of _____ [state].
- (b) The Member is aware that no market may exist for the resale of a Membership Unit purchased under this Agreement.
- (c) The Member is purchasing for investment and not for the distribution of any of the Membership Units purchased under this Agreement.
- (d) The Member is aware of any and all restrictions imposed by the Company on the further distribution of the Membership Units, including, but not limited to, any restrictive legends appearing on the certificate(s) and/or other document(s) evidencing any of the Units, required holding periods, stop transfer orders, or buy-back rights of the Company. ARTICLE 6

ASSIGNMENT, TRANSFER OR SALE OF MEMBERSHIP UNITS

6.1 Assignment. The Membership Units of a Member may be assigned, transferred or sold only as provided in this Article 6. With respect to any such permitted assignment, transfer or sale, the assignee, transferee or purchaser of a Membership Unit may, upon compliance with the conditions set forth in subparagraph 6.7 below, become a substituted Member. (n22)COMMENT

6.2 Transfer. A Member may pledge his or her Units(s) as security for a debt owing to _____ [name] resulting from a loan from _____ [name] to such Member to enable the Member to make his or her capital contribution(s) to the Company. Other than this permitted pledge, no Member shall pledge, cause a lien to be placed against, or encumber his or her Units, or transfer, sell, alienate, sign, or otherwise dispose of all or any part of his or her Units, whether voluntarily, involuntarily, by operation of law, at judicial sale, or otherwise, without the prior written consent of a majority of the Board of Managers.

However, a Member may freely transfer his or her Units, in whole or in part, to or for the benefit of (i) the Member or his or her spouse; and/or (ii) one or more of the Member's lineal descendants.

6.3 Securities Compliance. Notwithstanding the preceding provisions of this Paragraph 6., no proposed or intended assignment, transfer or sale of a Unit shall be effective, unless and until it appears, to the satisfaction of a majority of the Board of Members, that such assignment, transfer or sale will not be in violation of, or otherwise render the Company and/or the Manager liable under, the Securities Act of 1933, as amended, and the rules and regulations promulgated thereunder, or under the applicable state securities laws of any state or states.

6.4 No Termination. Notwithstanding the preceding provisions of this Paragraph 6., no sale or exchange of a Unit may be made if the Unit sought to be sold or exchanged, when added to the total of all Unit(s) sold or exchanged within the period of twelve (12) months prior thereto, would result in the termination of the Company under Section 708 of the Code, or any successor section thereto.

6.5 Distributions. Subsequent to the permitted assignment, transfer or sale of a Unit, the Company shall remit directly to the assignee, transferee or purchaser all distributions to which such person may be entitled pursuant to the provisions of this Agreement. An assignee, transferor or purchaser who does not become a substituted Member pursuant to the provisions of subparagraph 6.7 below shall be entitled to receive only the distributions to which his or her assignor, transferor or seller would otherwise have been entitled with respect to the Units assigned, transferred or sold, but such assignee, transferee or purchaser shall have no right to vote, to approve amendments hereof, to obtain information concerning Company transactions, to inspect the Company books, or to exercise any other rights of Member conferred hereunder or under applicable law.

6.6 Substitute Member. A Member who has assigned, transferred or sold all of his or her Units as permitted in subparagraph 6.2 above shall have no further right or interest in the Company.

6.7 Substitution of a Member. The transferee of a deceased, bankrupt or incompetent Member's Units shall become a substituted Member only upon: (a) the written consent of a majority of the Board of Managers; (b) the transferee's execution and acknowledgment of such instruments, in form and substance reasonably satisfactory to a majority of the Board of Managers; and (c) the transferee's payment of any expenses arising in connection with the substituted Member's admission to the Company. Notwithstanding the foregoing sentence, a transferee under subparagraph 6.2 above shall automatically become a substituted Member.

6.8 Obligations and Rights of Transferees. Any person who acquires in any manner whatsoever any Unit in the Company, irrespective of whether such person has accepted and assumed in writing the terms and provision of this Agreement, shall be deemed by the acceptance of the benefit of the acquisition thereof to have agreed to be subject to, and to be bound by, all the obligations of this Agreement with the same force and effect as any predecessor in interest of such person.

6.9 Sale Upon Termination of Employment. Upon the termination of employment from _____ for any reason whatsoever (including resignation, retirement, resignation, being fired, death, disability or any other type of voluntary or involuntary termination) of any Member (a "Triggering Event") the affected Member or the deceased Member's estate, shall sell the Membership Units presently owned by the affected Member under the mandatory purchase provisions of this subparagraph 6.9. This subparagraph 6.9 shall not apply to the units owned by _____ [name] and/or his wife, _____ [name] . (n23)COMMENT

6.9.1 Mandatory Purchase. In the event of a Triggering Event, the Company shall purchase all the Membership Units presently owned by the affected Member. The price to be paid for the purchase of the Units shall be the price provided in subparagraph 6.9.5 herein, below.

6.9.2 Transfer of Units. Any and all units purchased by the Company under subparagraphs 6.9 and 6.9.1 above shall be made within sixty (60) days after a Triggering Event. However, if the Triggering Event is the death of a Member, the Units shall be purchased sixty (60) days after the appointment of a legal representative for the deceased Member's estate. If a determination of fair market value is required under subparagraph 6.9.5 then the units shall be purchased sixty (60) days after the delivery of such determination to the affected parties.

Within such periods of time, the respective seller shall endorse and deliver to the purchaser (the Company and/or the remaining Members, as the case may be) the Membership certificate or certificates representing the Units to be purchased and sold under this Agreement, and the purchase price shall be paid in accordance with subparagraph 6.9.3 herein, below.

6.9.3 Manner of Payment. Concurrently with the delivery of the Membership certificate or certificates to the Company, the purchaser of such Units shall pay to each such Seller twenty percent (20%) of the Seller's purchase price. In the event that the Triggering Event is the death of a Member, the Company shall pay to each such Seller the greater of (i) twenty percent (20%) of the purchase price; or (ii) such Seller's pro rata portion of the insurance proceeds (if any) payable as a result of such Member's death.

The balance of said purchase price shall be paid in forty-eight (48) equal, monthly payments commencing one (1) month from the date of such sale, together with interest at the lowest rate required, under Section 483 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, or its counterpart under any subsequently enacted Internal Revenue Code, in order to avoid the creation of "total unstated interest," within the meaning of such Section.

Upon default of any payment of principal or interest required to be made pursuant to this Subparagraph, which default is not cured within thirty (30) days after notice of default is given by the Seller, or his successor or successors in interest, to the purchaser, the entire unpaid balance owing to any and all persons by the purchaser on account of the aforesaid purchase of Units shall become due and payable on the expiration of such thirty (30) day period. (n24)COMMENT

6.9.4 Prepayment. The purchaser shall have the right to prepay, in whole or in part, the balance owing by it as set forth in subparagraph 6.9.3 herein, above; provided, however, that if the Company shall make a prepayment at a time when such Company owes an amount pursuant to this Agreement to two (2) or more persons, such prepayment shall be made to all such persons in the proportion which the balance owing to each person bears to the aggregate balance owing hereunder pursuant to this Agreement; provided further that any such prepayment shall be applied to the installments due under subparagraph 6.9.3 herein, above, in reverse chronological order of their due dates.

6.9.5 Purchase Price. If the Triggering Event (other than death) occurs during the first five (5) years of the Company's existence, the purchase price to be paid to the selling Member shall be such Member's initial contribution plus such Member's initial Contribution multiplied by five percent (5%).

If the Triggering Event is on account of the death of a Member at any time, or it occurs any time after the first five (5) years of the Company's existence, the purchase price paid to the selling Member shall be the fair market value thereof, as of the close of business on the date of the Triggering Event. The fair market value of each Unit shall be determined by substituting the fair market value as of such date, in place of the book value, of all assets owned by the Company, subtracting from the total assets, as redetermined, all liabilities of the Company as of such date, and dividing the resulting figure (representing the net fair market value of all Units of the Company) by the total number of Membership Units. To the extent possible, the determination of the fair market value of the Membership Units shall be made by the certified public accountant who is then servicing the Company.

In making the adjustment for the fair market value of any asset without a readily ascertainable value, and the fair market value of which is not agreed upon by the Company and selling Member, the Company shall rely on and use the written appraisal of a qualified appraiser of such asset, selected by the Company for that purpose at the expense of the Company. All such determinations of fair market value shall be made within ninety (90) days after the Triggering Event. (n25)COMMENT

WITHDRAWAL; DISSOLUTION

7.1 Withdrawal. A Member shall not be permitted to withdraw or resign from the Company. The death, incompetency, adjudication of bankruptcy, whether voluntary or involuntary, or the bankruptcy or dissolution of a Member during the term of this Agreement, shall not effect the Company or its business. The executor, administrator, trustee or other legal representative of the deceased, bankrupt, incompetent or dissolved Member shall succeed to all of the rights of such Member, subject to the provisions of this Agreement or any other Agreement between the parties.

7.2 Termination of the Company. The Company shall be terminated and dissolved upon the first to occur of the following:

- (a) upon the affirmative vote of at least fifty-one percent (51%) of the Membership Units; or
- (b) upon the sale of all or substantially all the assets of the Company.

ARTICLE 8

WINDING UP

8.1 Winding Up. Upon the termination of the Company pursuant to subparagraph 7.2, above, a full and general accounting shall be taken of the Company's business, and the affairs of the Company shall be wound up. Any profits earned or losses incurred since the last previous accounting shall be allocated among, or borne by, the Members in accordance with the provisions of subparagraph 3.1, above. The Board of Managers shall wind up and liquidate the Company by selling the Company's assets, or by distributing such assets in kind, subject to the Company's liabilities, or by a combination thereof, as determined by the Board of Managers. The proceeds of such liquidation shall be applied and distributed in the following order of priority, by the end of the taxable year during which the liquidation occurs (or, if later, within ninety (90) days after the date of the liquidation):

- (a) to the payment of any debts and liabilities of the Company;
- (b) to the setting up of any reserve which the Board of Managers shall reasonably deem necessary to provide for any contingent or unforeseen liabilities or obligations of the Company, with any excess in such reserve remaining after such liabilities are satisfied to be distributed as soon as practicable in the manner hereinafter set forth; and
- (c) thereafter, the balance of the proceeds, if any, shall be distributed in accordance with the positive capital account balances of the Members, as determined after taking into account all capital account adjustments for the Company's taxable year during which such liquidation occurs. For purposes of this subparagraph, a liquidation of the Company shall mean a liquidation as defined in Section 1.704-1(b)(2)(ii)(g) of the Regulations.

8.2 Statement. The Members shall be furnished with a statement prepared by the Company's accountants, which shall set forth the assets and liabilities of the Company as of the date of complete liquidation.

8.3 Return of Capital Contributions. Notwithstanding anything in this Agreement to the contrary, neither the Board of Managers nor any Member shall be personally liable for the return of the capital contributions of the Members, or any portion thereof, it being expressly understood that any such return of the capital contributions of the Members shall be made solely from Company assets.

ARTICLE 9

9.3 Tax Matters Member. _____ [name] shall serve as the Tax Matters Member of the Company, as provided in Regulations issued pursuant to Section 6231 of the Code. Each Member, by the execution of this Agreement, consents to such designation of the Tax Matters Member and agrees to execute, certify, acknowledge, deliver, swear to, file and record at the appropriate public offices such documents as may be necessary or appropriate to evidence such consent. The Company shall indemnify and reimburse the Tax Matters Member for all expenses, including legal and accounting fees, claims, liabilities, losses and damages incurred in connection with any administrative or judicial proceeding with respect to the tax liability of the Members. The payment of all such expenses shall be made before any distributions to Members are made by the Company. The taking of any action and the incurring of any expense by the Tax Matters Member in connection with any such proceeding, except to the extent required by law, is a matter in the sole discretion of the Tax Matters Member. (n27)COMMENT

9.4 Amendments. This Agreement may be amended only with the written approval of Members owning two-thirds (2/3) or more of the units in the Company.

9.5 Notices. All notices, consents or other instruments hereunder shall be in writing and mailed by United States mail, postage prepaid, and shall be directed to the parties hereto at the last addresses of the parties furnished by them in writing to the Company, and to the Company at its principal office. FOOTNOTES:

(n1)COMMENT(n1) In most circumstances, the purpose of the Company will be as broad as possible. If the purpose clause is written very broadly, the Members do not have to worry that they may take some future action which is outside the stated purpose of the Company. With respect to this Agreement, the purpose clause is very specific. Also, the Lender has made itself an intended third party beneficiary and the purpose of the Company cannot be modified without the express written consent of the Lender. In addition to limiting the purposes of the Company, these provisions prevent the Company from taking certain action. The single purpose entity provisions are applicable without regard to the number of Members.

(n2)COMMENT(n2) As is typical with a single purpose entity set up for a loan transaction, the Operating Agreement, in part, looks very similar to a loan agreement. Unless the Member(s) are also personal guarantor(s), they are usually not a party to the loan agreement, and therefore, the lender obtains their agreement by putting it into the Operating Agreement.

(n3)COMMENT(n3) In a single Member company many, if not most, of the remaining provisions are not relevant or important. However, most practitioners will include these types of provisions for ease of bringing in additional investors in the future.

(n4)COMMENT(n4) This provision is another provision that a lender may require. This provision provides that, notwithstanding the typical reasons that a single member Limited Liability Company would automatically terminate under state law, the Company will remain in existence, and not be commingled with the other assets of the sole Member.

(n5)COMMENT(n5) Again, in a single person Limited Liability Company, these "tax" provisions are irrelevant, and are included for ease of addition of new partners in the future.

(n6)COMMENT(n6) In a single member Limited Liability Company the management provisions are irrelevant unless an outside manager is hired, or a third party dealing with the Company wants some assurance as to the power of the Manager.

(n7)COMMENT(n7) This clause limits the liability of the Manager and is useful even in a single Member Limited Liability Company. This clause will help the Manager escape a claim for personal liability for actions taken on behalf of the Company.

(n8)COMMENT(n8) This operating agreement may be used in connection with the formation of a Limited Liability Company that has more than one Member. In this agreement, the minority Members are employees of a related corporation and they must give up their interest in this company when their employment with the corporation terminated.

(n9)COMMENT(n9) Unlike a single purpose entity, the purpose of this company is very broad, and is not specifically stated. Even though the stated purpose is very broad, as a practical matter, the purpose may be limited by a majority of the Members. For example, this entity is being formed to purchase a building where the related employer will operate.

(n10)COMMENT(n10) Typically, a Limited Liability Company can have a perpetual duration or may have a specific term. If a term is desired, this can be set out in its Articles of Organization.

(n11)COMMENT(n11) Each Member has the opportunity to vote. However, this does not have to be the case, and Members can be given non-voting units.

(n12)COMMENT(n12) As with many real estate deals, a property may have negative cash flow. This provision allows the Board of Managers to require the Members to make additional contributions of capital to cover operating costs.

(n13)COMMENT(n13) This provision 2.6 sets forth the rights of the Company and the contributing Members in the event a Member fails to meet a capital call.

(n14)COMMENT(n14) The allocation of profits and losses, cash flow and cash flow distributions is very important. These provisions set forth how the Members will receive a return from the Company.

(n15)COMMENT(n15) This provision while defining "cash flow" allows the Board of Managers to retain funds for very specific reasons.

(n16)COMMENT(n16) This provision makes the distribution of cash flow to ultimately be within the discretion of the Board of Managers.

(n17)COMMENT(n17) This Company is to be managed by a Board of Managers, similar to a Board of Directors. The Board is elected by the Members, but does not need to be Members.

(n18)COMMENT(n18) This provision is important to the manager. It relieves the manager of liability in the event that the manager is negligent. It should not relieve the manager of intentional misconduct.

(n19)COMMENT(n19) These provisions are included for the purpose of compliance with the applicable securities laws. The securities laws are very specific and their application depends on many factors including type of investment, how much money is being invested, the sophistication of the investor and the residence of the investor. It is critical that the practitioner review the securities laws of the jurisdiction where the investor is located and where the offeror is located. These provisions are sometimes not included in the operating agreement, but rather, in a separate subscription agreement.

(n20)COMMENT(n20) In most states a certificate is not required to represent the ownership interest in a Limited Liability Company and the agreement itself needs to contain the legend. However, with limited liability companies having multiple Members, it is a good practice to issue certificates, much like the practitioner would if he or she were organizing a corporation.

(n21)COMMENT(n21) Again, these representations are sometimes required by the applicable securities laws in order for the Company to rely upon various exemptions which may be available in order to avoid filing a registration statement.

(n22)COMMENT(n22) Similar to that of a closely held corporation, a Limited Liability Company may want to limit ownership of interest to the original Members or to a class of individuals. This provision limits the transferability of an interest and sets forth the rights and obligations of the Company and the rights and obligations of the transferee. Also, Section 6.9 provides that upon the termination of employment by the Minority Members, they are required to sell their interest to the Company.

(n23)COMMENT(n23) This provision provides that the majority owner of the affiliated company is not subject to the buyback provisions.

(n24)COMMENT(n24) As with most real estate enterprises, there usually is not sufficient cash on hand upon a Triggering Event to fund the entire purchase price in the event of a mandatory purchase. This provision allows the purchase price to be paid over time. The Company has the right to prepay.

(n25)COMMENT(n25) This provision provides for a vesting of the purchase price. If the separation happens during the first five (5) years, the price is a return of capital, plus a five percent (5%) return. If the five (5) years pass and the Member becomes vested, the purchase price is fair market value.

(n26)COMMENT(n26) This Limited Liability Company is set up similarly to a corporation with bylaws. The Bylaws provide for the appointment of directors and officers.

(n27)COMMENT(n27) A Tax Matters partner is a partner that is designated to deal with the Internal Revenue Service in the event of an audit.

(n28)COMMENT(n28)

(n29)COMMENT(n29) In many states in order to be a Close Corporation, the Agreement must expressly refer to the state statute which authorizes the existence of the Close Corporation.

(n30)COMMENT(n30) This provision converts the interest of the Shareholders upon the first to die. With this provision, the Shareholders do not need to worry about a future buyout or having the deal with the medley spouse and/or children. A corporation which has voting and non-voting stock will not violate the S Corporation requirement against having two classes.

(n31)COMMENT(n31) Since a Shareholder's interest will become non-voting upon his/her death, it may be necessary to restrict the power of the remaining voting Shareholders. This provision places types of limitations on such powers in order to protect the interests of the non-voting Shareholder. The practitioner should also review Paragraphs 5 and 6 of this Agreement for additional restrictions which would likely benefit the non-voting Shareholder.

(n32)COMMENT(n32) In many cases, with respect to a closely held corporation, the parties will be concerned as to what happens if they can't get along. A common method is arbitration of disputes. Another method is to force a Shareholder to set a price. The other Shareholder can buy out the disgruntled Shareholder at the price. If the other Shareholder believes the price is fair, he/she will normally agree to purchase the interest. However, if such Shareholder believes that the price is unfair (or too favorable to the disgruntled Shareholder), then he/she can force the disgruntled Shareholder to buy him/her out. The mechanism, while quite simple, requires the party initiating the process to act in a reasonable fashion, or the disgruntled Shareholder risks losing a portion of his/her value in the enterprise.

(n33)COMMENT(n33) This provision contractually binds the Shareholder to keep the corporation as an S corporation.

(n34)COMMENT(n34) Because this is a real estate enterprise, the Shareholders will be interested in getting the cash flow distributed to them. Further, this requires the Corporation to annually distribute enough money for the Shareholder to cover their portion of the income taxes for which they will be responsible. Additionally, after the death of the first Shareholder, the Corporation is required to make at least semi-annual cash flow distributions.

(n35)COMMENT(n35) This provision places an absolute restriction upon the transfer of shares to a Shareholder.

(n36)COMMENT(n36)

FORM 20.02 Operating agreement for sole member limited liability

COMMENT

As discussed previously, a single member limited liability company will be treated as a sole proprietorship for tax purposes. (See TB § 20.05). Absent extenuating circumstances, it is unusual to have a complicated Operating Agreement with a single member limited liability company. However, in order to maintain the "corporate existence" and to avoid an argument that creditors might pursue to pierce the corporate veil, it is advised to maintain the organization documentation in order to ensure the company has a separate and distinct entity apart from its sole member. There are ways to approach this issue.

One way is for the member to do a declaration, and another way is to adopt and maintain a Code of Regulations and/or By-laws for the company. Of course once adopted, the Code of Regulations and/or By-laws should be followed, that is annual minutes, etc. should be prepared.

Another way is to prepare an Operating Agreement between the sole member and the company. The typical circumstance to use an Operating Agreement with a single member limited liability company is when a lender makes, as a condition of its loan, that the company be a single purpose enterprise. A single purpose enterprise may own and operate only one property. The lender does not want any other properties of the lender to be operated with its collateral and it does not want cash flow, expenses, etc. co-mingled.

The following Operating Agreement is designed for such a circumstance. In connection with its loan, the lender required an Operating Agreement. Additionally, the lender required the Operating Agreement to contain numerous provisions which ran to its benefit and which had to remain in place as long as the loan was outstanding. Many of the lender's concerns could have been addressed in the loan documents, but in order to bind the sole member, the lender preferred to have its provisions in the Operating Agreement.

FORM

OPERATING AGREEMENT OF

(a(n)) _____ [state] Limited Liability Company)

FORM 20.03 Articles of Organization for Single Membership and Single Purpose Limited Liability Company

COMMENT

Many states have promulgated forms that may be utilized for any required state filing. Articles of Organization are no exception to this trend. In fact, some states require that its form be used, and any unique provisions which the practitioner desires to use must be separately attached as an addendum. As always, the practitioner must review the local requirements before any filing is attempted. The following is a simple Articles of Organization which does not utilize a form promulgated by any state. Attached to the Articles as Addendum A is a single purpose clause which was required to be utilized by a lender for as long as a loan secured by the company's real estate remained outstanding. The addendum may be easily adopted to be attached to any state required form.

FORM 20.04 Action by Written Consent of Sole Member

COMMENT

In order to preserve the formalities of being a separate and distinct enterprise, the company should maintain its existence. This is a little harder to do with a single member limited liability company because with only one owner, the tendency is to operate it in a fairly loose fashion. The temptation is even greater with an entity which owns real estate because in many circumstances, the real estate entity is not an active day-to-day business. After the initial purchase and financing (if any), the company will have little business activity which will require written approval. The practitioner should advise his/her client to avoid operating in this fashion. One way to do this is to make sure that the single member limited liability company does annual minutes. The practitioner should put the company in its tickler system to annually notify the member of the need to adopt minutes. The following are Sole Member Minutes which address the initial purchase of the property and assumption of a loan. The minutes also include provisions which can be used by the company in connection with its annual minutes. Obviously, any extra-ordinary actions of the company should be approved and adopted in writing.

FORM 20.05 Waiver of Community Property/Interest

COMMENT

Community property statutes and dower rights provide a unique challenge to the individual ownership of real estate. If a spouse owns property individually, various states have community property laws (i.e., California) or so-called "Dower/Curtesy Rights" (i.e., Ohio) which may give a spouse an interest in the real estate even though they are not in legal title. The community property laws and dower rights are very complex and are widely varied from state to state. In fact, in some states (i.e., Florida), a spouse has no community property or dower/curtesy rights have been abolished. If a married person desires to take title individually to real estate, and such person does not want his/her spouse to have any interest in real estate, then the practitioner must be very careful to structure the transaction in such a way as to avoid the spouse's interest. In order to so structure the ownership interest, it is absolutely critical that the practitioner becomes very knowledgeable on the laws of the state where the individual resides and where the real estate is located. The following form is a waiver of community interest and/or dower rights, but the practitioner must be aware that this waiver may not be enforceable in some states. In some states, it may be necessary to provide consideration for such waiver.

FORM

The undersigned does hereby: (1) certify that she is the spouse of _____ [husband] ; (2) Husband is purchasing the property described on Exhibit A; (3) it is their intention that the property is being purchased as separate property of the husband and that she agrees that it is his separate property and that she does not have a community interest and dower rights therein; (4) waives any community interest and/or dower right to which she may be entitled in the property and income thereof; (5) that she will execute any and all reasonable additional documents and/or agreements to evidence the agreement and/or waiver contained herein; and (6) acknowledge that absent the waiver and agreement contained herein that the husband would not have purchased the property.

FORM 20.06 Joint Ownership Agreement

COMMENT

In connection with the joint ownership of residential property, the parties may want to obligate themselves to various rights and obligations respecting their ownership. This is especially true if expenses such as utilities or taxes are not being paid in accordance with each parties' ownership interest. Typically, joint ownership agreements involve related parties, or co-habitants.

FORM

JOINT OWNERSHIP AGREEMENT

THIS JOINT OWNERSHIP AGREEMENT ("Agreement") is made this _____ [day] day of _____, [month] _____ [year] by and among MAX PEPPER ("Pepper"), AMANDA SMITH ("Smith") and JACK JONES ("Jones").

WHEREAS, Pepper owned in fee simple the Residence and has transferred a remainder interest by deed to Smith and Jones, retaining for herself a life estate in the Residence; and

WHEREAS, Pepper has loaned Smith and Jones One Hundred Thousand Dollars ($100,000) for the sole purpose of repairing and improving the Residence;

NOW THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual covenants and agreements contained herein, the parties hereto agree as follows:

1. Joint Occupancy. Pepper shall permit Smith and Jones to reside in the Residence with her during the term of her life estate. No party to this Agreement shall be obligated to pay rent.

2. Term. The term of this Agreement shall begin on the date set forth above and shall terminate upon the death of Pepper, unless sooner terminated as provided in Paragraph 11, below.

3. Real Estate Taxes. Smith and Jones shall pay, prior to the same becoming past due, all real estate taxes and assessments (both general and special), all charges and other taxes, duties and charges, fees or payments imposed by any governmental, quasi-governmental or public authority, which shall be imposed, assessed, levied and become due and payable as of the date of this Agreement or which arise during the term of this Agreement. Smith and Jones shall have the right to deduct, for federal income tax purposes, the full amount of any and all real estate taxes and assessments paid by them. Smith and Jones, however, shall not be responsible for payment of real estate taxes and assessments which were due and payable before they occupied the Residence, or which may become due and payable following termination of this Agreement.

4. Improvements. Smith and Jones shall be responsible for making, and/or employing contractors to make, substantial improvements to the Residence. The improvements described on Exhibit A shall be made to the Residence at the sole cost and expense of Smith and Jones (the "Improvements"). The Improvements will be completed lien free, in a good and workmanlike manner by _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] . Any loan proceeds that remain following completion of the Improvements listed on Exhibit A shall be used to make additional improvements to the Residence as reasonably determined by Smith and Jones.

5. Sale of Residence. The parties agree that if the Residence is sold during the term of this Agreement that the net sales proceeds after payment of all expenses shall be distributed as follows:

Smith	_____	_____ %
Jones	_____	_____ %
Pepper	_____	_____ %

6. Insurance. Smith and Jones shall pay the entire cost to maintain hazard casualty insurance in the amount of the full replacement value of the Residence to protect the Residence against fire, theft, and related casualty losses. In the event of damage to the Residence by any cause whatsoever, the parties to this Agreement shall use any and all insurance proceeds received as a consequence of such damage to rebuild the Residence. In addition, the parties to this Agreement shall maintain liability insurance, which insurance policy shall be in the amount of $1 million, to protect the parties against personal liability as a result of injury or death to third persons who may enter the Residence, the cost of which insurance shall be borne by Smith and Jones. The insurance policies shall designate specifically that Pepper, Smith and Jones are the named insureds. Each Party will be responsible for insuring his or her own personality.

7. Utilities. Smith and Jones shall pay for all utilities used or consumed at the Residence, together with all other taxes or charges on such utilities and government charges based on utility consumption.

8. Maintenance and Repairs. Smith and Jones shall keep and maintain the interior and exterior of the Residence, and any fixtures and facilities therein, in good condition and repair, including, without limitation, all servicing, repairs and replacements required to the wiring, plumbing, heating and air conditioning units, kitchen appliances, windows, doors, the roof, siding, driveway, garage, landscaping, and shed, if any.

9. Alterations. Subject to Paragraph 4, above, the parties to this Agreement shall not undertake any major alteration to the Residence without the prior written consent of the other party, such consent not to be unreasonably withheld, conditioned or delayed. The alteration shall be undertaken at the sole cost and expense of the party desiring the alteration.

10. Waste. The parties to this Agreement agree that they will not commit waste in or upon the Residence. Should any party commit waste, that party shall be solely responsible for the cost of repair, which shall be performed with all reasonable diligence and in a workmanlike manner.

11. Assignment. The terms of the Agreement shall not be construed to give Smith and Jones the right to assign their rights to reside in the Residence to any other person(s). In addition, Pepper agrees not to assign her life estate during the pendency of this Agreement.

12. Termination of Agreement. Upon the occurrence of any of the following events, Pepper shall be permitted to terminate this Agreement and gain sole possession of the Residence; provided, however, that Pepper first give Smith and Jones written notice of the default and ten (10) days within which to cure such default:

FORM 20.07 Conversion of community property into tenancy in common

COMMENT

There may be an occasion when a husband and wife desire to terminate their community property rights as to certain property and convert their ownership to tenancy in common. Community property status may be dissolved by converting the community assets into property held in a tenancy in common. Each spouse becomes a tenant in common, owning an undivided one-half interest in the property. This makes each spouse individually entitled to the income from that one-half interest. Either spouse may dispose of his or her interest while alive or at death without the approval of the other spouse. The conversion from community ownership to tenancy in common does not involve any physical division of the property. Such a conversion does not result in any income taxation. No gift tax is incurred because of the gift tax marital deduction, which covers separate and community property.

FORM

This Agreement is entered into by _____ [name] and _____ [name] who are husband and wife and reside together at _____ [address] _____ [city] , _____ [state] .

WHEREAS, the parties have acquired since their marriage the property described on Exhibit A (the "Property");

WHEREAS, it is the desire of the parties to divide and separate the Property and to hold it as tenants in common, with each holding an undivided one-half (1/2) interest in the Property.

NOW, THEREFORE, it is agreed as follows:

1. The parties agree that they will convey all of the Property to themselves as tenants in common, so that each may have an undivided one-half (1/2) interest therein, and each will execute and deliver to the other such bills of sale, deeds of conveyance, and other papers and instruments necessary to convey title to each of them as tenants in common.
2. Each of the parties may, upon the death of the other, hold and retain his or her interest in the Property without any disturbance of the title thereto, each may convey, devise, transfer, or otherwise dispose of his or her interest in the Property at any time without interference or consent from the other and without any instruments from the other, and each may receive and retain the income from his or her interest in the Property without any requirement to account to the other.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have signed this agreement this _____ [day] day of _____, [month] _____ [year] .

FORM 20.08 Joint Tenants with a Right of Survivorship

COMMENT

Occasionally, individuals will want to own property as joint tenants, but will desire that upon the death of a tenant, such deceased person's interest will automatically pass by operation of law to the remaining owners. The most typical circumstance involves relatives (i.e., husband and wife, or parent and child). Each state's laws must be reviewed in order to make sure the technical requirements are strictly complied with. The following Survivorship Deed has been prepared in accordance with Ohio law (See § 5302.17 of the Ohio Revised Code). If the survivorship requirements are not met, then under most jurisdictions, the ownership will be treated as tenants in common.

FORM 20.09 Tenancy in common--equal ownership by two individuals--unimproved property

COMMENT

This group of forms illustrates various joint ventures for the co-ownership of property. Generally, a joint venture is a union of two or more persons or corporations in an enterprise with well-defined restrictions on its activities. If the joint venture is involved in real estate, one of the first questions that arises is the form in which title to the real estate is to be held by the joint venturers. In many instances, title is taken in the name of all of the participants as tenants in common. In other cases title is taken in the name of the joint venture. In some cases a nominee is designated to hold title for the benefit of the joint venture. This technical problem as to how title is to be held will often depend upon the number of participants in the joint venture and the extent of the proposed real estate activity, and must be governed by rules of local real estate law, considerations of title, control, and the practice of title insurance companies.

Tax classification:

From the viewpoint of the income tax law, the first problem with respect to a real estate joint venture is to determine whether it is subject to the partnership provisions of the Code, or whether the coowners can compute and report their respective shares of income or losses separately and without reference to those provisions. The venture may be classified as a mere coownership, in which event the partnership provisions will not be applicable. Neither the denomination of the relationship in the joint venture agreement nor its status under state law is determinative for income tax purposes. (See TB § 20.04), at the beginning of this chapter.

Co-ownership vs. partnership tax status:

The Regulations define a partnership as including "a syndicate, group, pool, joint venture, or other unincorporated organization through or by means of which any business, financial operation, or venture is carried on, and which is not a corporation or a trust or estate within the meaning of the Code." The Regulations also provide that the mere ownership of property which is maintained, kept in repair, and rented or leased does not constitute a partnership. Tenants in common, however, may be partners if they actively carry on a trade, business, financial operation, or venture and divide the profits thereof. For example, a partnership may exist if coowners of an apartment building lease space and in addition provide service to the occupants either directly or through an agent. It has been held, however, that cotenants do not become partners by reason of an agreement to appoint an agent for management, collection of rents, and sale. The result in any given case seems to depend upon the extent of the business activities of the venture. If the relationship is solely for the coownership of property, the characteristics of a partnership are absent. As to coownership versus partnership tax status, see TB § 20.04[2].

FORM

THIS AGREEMENT entered into on _____[month] _____[day], _____ [year], between Harold Stern, a married man dealing with his sole and separate property (Stern), and Frank Realty Corporation (Frank).

WHEREAS, the parties are purchasing as tenants in common the property described in Exhibit A attached hereto (the "Property").

WHEREAS, each of the parties has an individual one-half interest in the Property.

WHEREAS, the parties desire to provide for the management and disposition of such Property.

IT IS, THEREFORE, AGREED AS FOLLOWS:

1. Down Payment and Title . The down payment, including closing costs with respect to the purchase of the Property shall be contributed equally by the parties in accordance with their respective ownership interest. Title to the Property shall be conveyed to each party as tenants in common.
2. Subsequent Contributions . Subsequent contributions of principal, interest, taxes, and all other costs or expenses on such Property shall be paid equally by each party.
3. Special Contribution . Frank shall contribute amounts not exceeding an aggregate of Nine Thousand Dollars ($9,000), for the surveying and plotting thereof, and for the improvement of the access road thereon. Expenditures for such work in excess of Nine Thousand Dollars ($9,000), if any, shall be authorized only with the consent of and shall be paid equally by both parties.
4. Sale of Property . Any decision to sell all or part of such Property shall be made by both parties. Except as hereinafter otherwise provided, the net proceeds of any sale or sales shall be distributed equally between both parties.
5. Default . Each party shall promptly contribute, when and as the same becomes due, his equal share of all future payments required to be made pursuant to the trust agreement under which the Property is being purchased, including principal, interest, taxes, and all other costs with respect to such Property. If either party is unable to pay his share of such costs, the other party is authorized to make such payment or payments so as to avoid a default under the trust agreement. All amounts so advanced by either party on behalf of the other party shall bear interest at the rate of _____ percent (_____) per year from the date of advance, and shall be due immediately upon written demand for payment in the manner hereinafter provided. If the full amount of such advance or advances, together with interest thereon is not paid by the party for whom such advance was made, within ten days after receipt of such notice of demand for payment, then such party shall be a defaulting party hereunder. In the event of any sale of such Property, the proceeds shall be distributed equally between both parties, but a defaulting party shall in no event be entitled to receive an amount in excess of the total contributions made by such party, without interest. All other proceeds of sale shall belong to the nondefaulting party. In the event of a sale at a loss such defaulting party shall bear his one-half (1/2) share of such loss.

6. Management . All matters relating to the management and sale of the Property shall be decided by both parties, except that if either of the parties becomes a defaulting party, the other party shall have full power to make all decisions relating to the management and sale of such Property.

7. Restrictions. Neither party shall sell, transfer, mortgage, or otherwise dispose of, or encumber his undivided interest in such Property without first giving written notice to the other party of his intention to do so. The notice shall set forth the terms on which the offering party proposes to sell, transfer, mortgage, or otherwise dispose of or encumber his interest, and the identity of the person or persons to whom it is proposed to sell, transfer, or encumber such interest. The other party shall have ten (10) days after the giving of notice in which to elect to acquire the interest on the same terms and conditions that offering party desires to purchase. The purchase price shall be paid on the same terms as the original price paid by the parties pursuant to the escrow referred to in Paragraph 1, including percentage of down payment, amortization of principal balance, and interest rate. If the party to whom the notice is given does not elect to acquire the interest on the terms provided herein within the ten-day period, then the party giving the notice shall have the right to sell, transfer, mortgage, or otherwise dispose of, or encumber his interest, on the same terms as provided in the notice, for a period of thirty (30) days after the expiration of the ten-day period. After the expiration of the 30-day period, the party giving the notice shall not sell, transfer, mortgage, or otherwise dispose of, or encumber his interest without again complying with the terms of this paragraph. If the party to whom notice is given elects to purchase, an escrow shall be established forthwith with a title company having an office in Flagstaff, Arizona, for the purpose of consummating the purchase. The escrow shall, by its terms, provide for a closing not more than thirty (30) days after its establishment.

8. Notices. Any and all notices and demands given under this agreement shall be given by registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, postage prepaid, addressed to the parties at the following addresses or at such other addresses as either or both may designate on written notice:

9. Binding Effect. This agreement shall be binding upon and shall inure to the benefit of each of the parties, and their respective heirs, executors, administrators, legal representatives, successors, and assigns.

10. Entire Agreement. This agreement supersedes all agreements previously made between the parties relating to its subject matter. There are no other understandings or agreements between them.

11. Non-waiver . No delay or failure by either party to exercise any right under this agreement, and no partial or single exercise of that right, shall constitute a waiver of that or any other right, unless otherwise expressly provided herein.

12. Headings. Headings in this agreement are for convenience only and shall not be used to interpret or construe its provisions.

13. Governing Law. This agreement shall be construed in accordance with and governed by the laws of the State of _____.

14. Counterparts. This agreement may be executed in two or more counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original but all of which together shall constitute one and the same instrument.

24-20 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 20.10

AUTHOR: by Stephen E. Pigott and Harold O. Maxfield, Jr.

FORM 20.10 Tenancy in common--ownership by two entities--income--producing property

COMMENT

This form is an agreement between two entities. This agreement provides that each owner shall have an equal say in management without regard to the percentage of ownership which each owner has in the enterprise. Given this management structure, the agreement contains dispute resolution provisions. This agreement also provides for a forced buy-out in the event the parties cannot get along. Furthermore, this agreement provides one of the owners with a development fee in connection with certain improvements which are anticipated at the property.

Tax classification:

The classification of an entity for income tax purposes will depend upon the nature of its real estate activities. If the property is under net lease to a single tenant, the coowners could elect to be excluded from the operation of the partnership provisions. In that case, the coowners would separately report their share of income or loss. On the other hand, if the property is to be leased out to a number of tenants and managed jointly by the coowners as an office building or apartment house, then the venture itself would be required to file its own partnership return. The goal of the following agreement is to not be taxed as a partnership, but rather as joint owners. The practitioner must be very careful, because if there is too much commonality, the venture will likely be classified as a partnership by the IRS. If the result is to not be deemed a partnership, each party could have a separate triple net lease with tenant. The parties could hire a separate outside manager, and separate checks could be written by each owner for any expenses. For a further discussion of the tax classification of real estate joint ventures and partnerships under the Code, see TB § 20.40[2], at the beginning of this chapter.

FORMJOINT OWNERSHIP AGREEMENT

THIS JOINT OWNERSHIP AGREEMENT is entered into this _____ [day] day of _____, [month] _____ [year] by and between ATLAS PARTNERS, a(n) _____ [state] partnership ("Atlas") and ABC COMPANY, LLC, a(n) _____ [state] limited liability company ("ABC"). Atlas and ABC are hereinafter sometimes referred to singularly as an "Owner" and collectively as the "Owners."

WHEREAS, the Owners are in the process of jointly purchasing certain real estate located at _____ [address] , _____ [city] , _____ [state] (the "Property"); and

WHEREAS, the Owners desire to set forth their agreements, including their joint obligations and responsibilities with respect to the Property;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual covenants hereinafter set forth, the parties hereby agree as follows:

1. Purchase of Property. 3. Lease with XYZ Company. The Owners agree to enter into the lease (or separate leases) with XYZ Company (the "Tenant"), a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit A (the "Lease"). The Owners agree that the Lease(s) will not be amended, modified, extended or terminated without the express written consent of each of the Owners. Further, each Owner agrees that when dealing with the Tenant that they will require strict adherence to the terms and conditions of the Lease.

4. Purposes of the Relationship; Powers. The sole purpose of the Owners' relationship and this Agreement is to own, develop, maintain, operate, manage, lease and otherwise deal with the Property. The parties' joint ownership of the Property is not to be construed as a partnership. Except as is specifically set forth herein, an Owner shall not have the right with respect to their interest in the Property to enter into contracts, borrow money, issue evidences of indebtedness, mortgage, pledge or otherwise grant a security interest in their interest in the Property or to sell, refinance, lease, exchange or otherwise dispose of their interest in the Property, or to bind the other owner in any way.

5. Initial Contributions. Each Owner will initially contribute towards the purchase, ownership, construction and/or maintenance of the Property the amount set forth below:

Atlas $ _____

ABC $ _____

6. Cash Calls. The Owners recognize that income produced from the Property may be insufficient to pay the costs of operating the Property. If, in the reasonable judgment of the Manager (as defined below), additional funds are required in connection with the ownership of the Property, such funds shall be called for by the Manager and shall be contributed by the Owners, in proportion to their ownership interests in the Property. All funds called for by the Manager shall be due on the date prescribed in the notice of the call; provided, however, that the due date shall be not less than fifteen (15) days after the call date. If any Owner fails to timely make any or all of its proportionate contribution, then the other Owner will have the option, but not the obligation, to contribute the funds in excess of its ownership interest. The Owner who makes such additional contribution in response to a call shall be a creditor of the other non-contributing Owner in the amount of the excess. The amount outstanding will be payable on demand, and will bear interest at the rate of two percent (2%) in excess of the prime lending rate as published in the Wall Street Journal.

7. Percentage of Ownership. Each Owner will initially own in fee simple the percentage of the Property set forth below, which interest will be reflected on the Deed which conveys the Property to the Owners:

8. Cash Flow. Subject to the cash flow preference described in Paragraph 9. below, the joint cash flow generated by the Property (if any), less any cash reserves which the Manager reasonably determines should be maintained with respect to the Property, will be distributed to the Owners at least annually, in proportion to their fee simple ownership interest in the Property. The cash flow will be computed by the Certified Public Accounting firm engaged by the Owners to maintain the books and records relating to the Property.

9 Control and Operation of the Company; Voting.

A. Except as is specifically set forth herein, the Owners will each own, control and manage their interest in their portion of the Property, however any action taken by either Owner which will affect the entire Property must be expressly approved by the other Owner.

B. The day-to-day ministerial management of the Property will be the responsibility of _____ [name] (the "Manager"). The Manager shall not be paid any compensation, but shall be reimbursed from the income from the Property for all reasonable out-of-pocket expenses incurred on behalf of the Property. The rights and duties of the Manager are as follows:

(i) to take any action with respect to the Property on an emergency basis; provided time does not permit consultation with the other Owner;

(ii) to open, maintain and close bank accounts and to draw checks and other orders for the payment of money;

(iii) to collect rent and to pay expenses of the Property (provided that the Manager will not pay any expense relating to the Property in excess of $ _____ without the consent of the other Owner);

(iv) to make the cash flow distributions described in Paragraph 8, above; and

(v) to maintain or cause to be maintained complete and accurate records, and to make such records and books of account available for inspection at any reasonable time by the Owners.

C. The Manager will not have any liability to the other Owner for any mistakes or errors in judgment, or for any act or omission believed in good faith to be within the scope of authority conferred by this Agreement. The Manager shall be liable only for acts and/or omissions involving intentional wrongdoing or gross neglect. Actions or omissions taken in reliance upon the advice of legal counsel approved by the Manager as being within the scope conferred by this Agreement shall be conclusive evidence of good faith; provided, however, the Manager will not be required to procure such advice to be entitled to the benefit of this and the preceding sentences.

10. Development and Development Fee. Atlas will supervise the improvements to the existing building on the Property, and construction of the addition (collectively, the "Development"), which are required by the Lease. The Owners will jointly approve all budgets, contracts and financing, but Atlas will be responsible for the implementation and supervision thereof. For its services hereunder, Atlas will be entitled to receive a development fee equal to _____ percent (_____) of the cost of the Development, which development fee will be paid from the rents of the Property prior to the distribution of any cash flow to the Owners. In addition, Atlas is hereby authorized to engage _____ [name] as the inspection and supervising agent for the Development, whose fee will be paid for by the Owners from the initial contributions, financing proceeds, or rents.

11. Dispute Resolution.

A. Generally. In the event that a dispute of any kind arises in connection with this Agreement or the operation or management of the Property (including, without limitation, an allegation by one of the Owners that they are deadlocked because they are unable to reach a unanimous decision on an issue), the Owners will attempt to resolve the dispute as set forth in Paragraph B, below before proceeding to arbitration as provided in Paragraph C, below. The Owners waive all rights to seek remedies in any court (except to enforce the decision or award of the Arbitrators) and the right to jury trial. All documents, discovery and other information related to any such dispute, and the attempts to resolve or arbitrate such dispute, shall be kept confidential to the fullest extent possible.

B. Notice of Desire for Arbitration. If a dispute arises, an Owner may give written notice to the other Owner of its desire to have the dispute resolved by arbitration. After such notice has been given, the Owners, in good faith, shall attempt to negotiate a resolution of the dispute through an independent mediator selected by the parties, or if no agreement can be reached, by an independent mediator selected by _____ [name] .

C. Arbitration. If, within twenty (20) days after the notice provided in Paragraph B, above has been given, the dispute is not resolved through negotiation or mediation, the dispute shall be arbitrated. The Owners agree to settle the dispute exclusively by binding arbitration in accordance with the following provisions:

1. Selection of Arbitrator. The Owners shall unanimously agree to the selection of one arbitrator. If no such agreement is reached within thirty (30) days after the notice provided in Paragraph B, above has been given, the Owners shall request that the American Arbitration Association submit a panel of ten arbitrators who are qualified in such matters from which the choice shall be made. The Owners shall draw straws and the Owner drawing the shortest straw shall strike first, then each Owner will alternatively strike. Each Owner shall strike a name until one name remains. The Owners may, by unanimous agreement, reject one entire list and request a second list. If selection by the above method is not completed within forty-five (45) days after the notice provided in Paragraph B, above, has been made, then an arbitrator shall be selected by the American Arbitration Association. That arbitrator shall then arbitrate the dispute in _____, [city] _____ [state], and issue a decision.

2. Rules for, and Effect of, Arbitration. The arbitration shall be conducted under the Commercial Arbitration Rules of the American Arbitration Association. The arbitrator shall have no ability to add, change or delete provisions of this Agreement, and shall be required to interpret the terms of this Agreement as they exist. The decision of the arbitrator shall be final, binding and non-appealable, absent fraud or manifest error on the part of the arbitrator. Judgment on the decision may be entered in, and enforced by, any court, state or federal, having jurisdiction.

3. Costs. The cost of any arbitration, including the fees and expenses of the arbitrator, shall be shared equally by the Owners. Each Owner shall bear its own costs, expenses and attorney's fees.

12. Forced Sale. If an Owner desires to sell any portion of its interest in the Property, then the Owner desiring to sell such interest will establish a price and terms upon which the selling Owner is willing to sell such interest. The selling Owner shall then present such proposal to the other Owner. The other Owner will have thirty (30) days to either accept or reject such offer. Failure to respond to a notice hereunder will be deemed to be a rejection of such offer. If the other Owner accepts such offer, then the interest will be purchased pursuant to such terms. If the other Owner rejects such offer, then the selling Owner will be required to purchase and the rejecting Owner will be required to sell, the rejecting Owner's interest on the same terms and conditions of the original proposal, save and except any adjustment which must be made to the purchase price in order to reflect the differing ownership percentages, if any, in the Property. In addition, any money owed to an Owner pursuant to Paragraph 6, above, will be paid at the closing of the sale of the interest hereunder. Such purchase shall take place within thirty (30) days of the rejection of the original offer. The provisions of this Paragraph constitute the only method or means under which an Owner may sell or convey such Owner's interest in the Property without obtaining the express written consent of the other Owner. The provisions of this Paragraph 12 may not be invoked before the two (2) year anniversary hereof. In addition, the Owners acknowledge that the Lease contains a Right of First Refusal in favor of the Tenant, and that the operation of this Paragraph 12 is not subject to the Right of First Refusal contained in the Lease.

13. Prohibition Against Liens and Encumbrances. Each Owner agrees that they will not allow their interest in the Property to become subject to any lien or encumbrance, without the express written consent of the other Owner. In the event that an interest in the Property becomes encumbered, including, without limitation, becomes subject to a judgment lien, the Owner whose interest becomes so encumbered, will within thirty (30) days from the perfection of such encumbrance, take whatever action is necessary to have such encumbrance released with respect to the Property.

14. Amendments. This Agreement may be amended only with the written approval of the Owners. Any such amendment shall be set forth in a writing, signed by all of the Owners.

15. Notices. All notices, consents or other instruments hereunder shall be in writing and mailed by United States mail, postage prepaid, and shall be directed to the parties hereto at the last addresses of the parties furnished by them. The Owners shall have the right to designate a new address for receipt of notices by notice addressed to the Owner and mailed as aforesaid.

16. Other Activities of the Owners. The Owners may engage in or possess an interest in any other business venture of any nature and description, independently or with others, including, but not limited to, the real estate business in all its phases, which shall include, without limitation, ownership, operation, management and development of real property. Neither party shall have any rights in and to such independent ventures or the income or profits derived therefrom.

17. Obligations and Rights of Transferees. Any person who acquires in any manner whatsoever any interest in the Property, irrespective of whether such person has accepted and assumed in writing the terms and provisions of this Agreement, shall be deemed by the acceptance of the ownership of their interest in the Property to have agreed to be subject to, and to be bound by, all the obligations of this Agreement with the same force and effect as any predecessor in interest of such person. The parties may prepare a Memoranda of this Agreement and file it with the _____ [name] County Recorder's Office in order to give any transferee of any interest in the Property constructive notice of the terms hereof.

18. Binding Effect. This Agreement shall inure to the benefit of, and be binding upon, the parties hereto and their respective next of kin, legatees, administrators, executors, legal representatives, nominees, successors and permitted assigns.

19. Integration; Terminology. This Agreement constitutes the entire agreement among the parties hereto pertaining to the subject matter hereof, and supersedes all prior and contemporaneous agreements and understandings of the parties in connection therewith. All of the terms and provisions used in this Agreement shall be deemed and construed to include any other number, singular or plural, or any other gender, masculine, feminine or neuter, as the context or sense of this Agreement may require, unless specifically stated otherwise.

20. Governing Law. This Agreement and the rights of all parties hereunder shall be construed in accordance with the laws of the State of _____ [state] .

21. Waiver of Partition. Each of the Owners hereby waive any right that such Owner may have to cause the Property to be partitioned or to file a complaint at law or in equity to cause the Property to be partitioned, sold or otherwise divided.

22. Execution. This Agreement may be executed in several counterparts, each of which shall be considered an original when executed by the Owners.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, each party has executed this Joint Ownership Agreement or a counterpart hereof as of the day first written above.

B. TENANCIES IN COMMON AND JOINT VENTURES

24-20 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 20.11

AUTHOR: by Stephen E. Pigott and Harold O. Maxfield, Jr.

FORM 20.11 Tenancy in common--between owner and purchaser of half interest--provisions for buy-out

COMMENT

The transaction illustrated in this form involves the sale of a half interest in property with the understanding that the seller and purchaser will hold title to the entire parcel as tenants in common. The sale by the original owner will result in the realization of gain or loss, measured by the difference between one half of his adjusted basis and the purchase price received by him. The other half of his adjusted basis will be applicable to his remaining interest in the parcel. The basis to the new owner will be his cost in acquiring his half interest.

Buy-out arrangement:

One of the most important aspects of a joint ownership agreement is the arrangement for the disposition by one of the parties of his interest in the venture. Generally, a prerequisite to any such disposition is an option to purchase in favor of the other party. One of several methods may be used. Sometimes this purchase option is established in terms of a predetermined price. Generally, the option imposes an obligation to meet a bona fide offer made by a third party. This agreement approaches the buy-out problem from a different viewpoint. It gives either party the right to buy the interest of the other, but it establishes a procedure which is designed to insure a fair price. Either party may make an offer to purchase the other party's interest, provided the offer meets certain minimum conditions. The offeree has two choices: he may accept the offer; or, if he thinks the price proposed is not sufficient, he may purchase the interest of the offeror at that price. Thus, if one of the parties offers to purchase the interest of the other he runs the risk that he may become a seller, not a purchaser, if the price he proposes is too low.

Investment in unimproved land:

Since the property involved in this transaction is unimproved acreage and the apparent intention is to hold it for resale, no provisions have been included to cover problems of management or questions relating to profit distributions. So long as the parties do not engage in any development activities, it would seem that the venture would be classified as a mere coownership in which each coowner may report his share of income or loss without reference to the partnership provisions of the Revenue Code. For a discussion of the tax classification of real estate joint ventures as partnerships under the Code, see TB § 20.04[2], at the beginning of this chapter.

FORM

THIS AGREEMENT is made _____ [month] _____ [day] ,
 _____ [year] , between CHARLES NORMAN, of _____ [address] ,
 _____ [city] , _____ [state] ("Norman"), and WILLIAM STANTION, of _____ [address] , _____ [city] , _____ [state] ("Stanton").

WHEREAS, Norman is about to purchase from Stanton an undivided one-half interest in a parcel of land consisting of 500 acres, more or less, situated in the County of _____, [name] State of _____ [state] (the "premises"), and more particularly described on Exhibit A attached hereto.

WHEREAS, the parties desire to establish certain provisions, conditions, and limitations with reference to their rights and privileges in the ownership of the premises.

IT IS THEREFORE AGREED AS FOLLOWS:

1. Declaration of Intention. Upon the closing of the transaction between them, in accordance with the terms of the Purchase Agreement, the relationship of the parties in the premises shall be as tenants in common with all the rights and privileges of such relationship in accordance with the laws of the State of _____, [state] subject, however, to the terms and conditions in this agreement.

2. Appointment of Agent. The parties hereby appoint _____ [name] , _____ [address] , _____ [city] , _____ [state] , their agent in order to accept service of process, to receive all notices from the various governmental agencies, and for such other purposes as the parties hereto may from time to time designate.

4. Payment of Taxes. Each party shall deposit his proportionate share of all taxes and other assessments that may be levied against the premises with their agent at least thirty (30) days before the due date. If either party shall fail to deposit his proportionate share of the taxes and assessments within the time specified, the other party may make the payment in full, and the amount of such payment shall then become a lien upon the share of the premises owned by the defaulting party.

5. Options to Purchase. Each party shall have the right to purchase the interest of the other party in the premises on the following terms and conditions:

(a) If either party desires to purchase the interest of the other, he may offer to do so at any time during the tenancy in common, provided the offer to purchase is based upon a minimum price of at least _____ Dollars ($ _____) per acre.

(b) The offer to purchase shall provide for a down payment of at least twenty percent (20%) of the total purchase price, with the balance payable in equal annual installments over a five-year period, with interest on unpaid balances at

_____, [name], their agent, as a condition to the offer or counter-offer, an amount equal to ten percent (10%) of the proposed purchase price as earnest money for the consummation of the offer or counter-offer. If the offer or counter-offer is consummated, the earnest money shall be applied against the down payment. If either party fails to consummate his offer or counter-offer, the earnest money deposited by him shall be paid to the other party as liquidated damages.

6. Entire Agreement. This agreement supersedes all agreements previously made between the parties relating to its subject matter. There are no other understandings or agreements between them.

7. Notices. All notices under this agreement shall be in writing and delivered personally or mailed by certified mail, postage prepaid, addressed to the parties at their last known addresses.

8. Non-waiver. No delay or failure by either party to exercise any right under this agreement, and no partial or single exercise of that right, shall constitute a waiver of that or any other right, unless otherwise expressly provided herein.

9. Headings. Headings in this agreement are for convenience only and shall not be used to interpret or construe its provisions.

10. Governing Law. This agreement shall be construed in accordance with and governed by the laws of the State of _____ [state] .

11. Counterparts. This agreement may be executed in two or more counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original but all of which together shall constitute one and the same instrument.

12. Binding Effect. The provisions of this agreement shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of each of the parties and their respective heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns.

In witness whereof the parties have signed and sealed this agreement _____ [month]

FORM 20.12 Tenancy in common--acquisition of leasehold by a group--operation of property--provisions for sale by owner

COMMENT

The basic purpose of this agreement is to control the relationship of a group of unrelated individuals who are involved in the common ownership of property that may continue over an extended period of time. In this situation, it becomes essential to set out numerous operating details. This agreement includes restrictive provisions on transfers and on sales, a provision setting up a technique for the sale of the entire property, a provision permitting a participant to borrow against his ownership interest, and a provision to take care of the possibility that an owner's interest may become subject to an involuntary lien. These provisions are designed to define the rights of the participants in certain prescribed contingent circumstances.

Partnership taxation:

In this agreement the ownership of the leasehold interest is to be taken by the participants as tenants in common. This in itself does not qualify the enterprise as an organization "for investment purposes only and not for the active conduct of business," permitting an election to be exempt from the operation of the partnership provisions of the Internal Revenue Code. (See TB § 20.04[3]). Generally, the exemption is available to a joint venture which owns land subject to a lease under which the lessee incurs all operating expense. But the "active conduct of a business" requirement would generally exclude ventures which are organized to operate a building, whether directly or through an agent. Under this agreement, the leasehold is to be operated by subleasing portions of the premises to various subtenants. While all this is to be done through an agent, it nevertheless involves the active operation of property with all the risks attached to such a "business." This enterprise would, therefore, most likely be classified as a partnership, so that all the income tax requirements applicable to general partnerships would apply. For a further discussion of partnership taxation, see TB § 20.05, at the beginning of this chapter.

WHEREAS, the Owners are about to acquire a leasehold interest (the "Leasehold"), on the property more fully described in Schedule A, subject to the mortgage and other encumbrances recited in such Schedule A.

WHEREAS, the Owners desire to provide for the holding of title to the Leasehold, division of the profits and losses thereon, restrictions upon disposition, management of the property, and other matters relating to their common ownership.

IT IS THEREFORE AGREED:

1. Ownership. Title to the Leasehold shall be taken in the names of the Owners as tenants in common, and the instrument of conveyance shall be duly recorded in the appropriate recording office.

2. Profits and Losses. The interests of the Owners in the Leasehold and in its profits and losses shall be as follows:

(a) Capital. The capital interest of each of the Owners in the Leasehold is the amount of his investment in this joint venture as set opposite his name under the heading Capital Investment in Schedule B.

(b) Profit and Loss Share. All profits and losses in the operation of the leasehold shall be shared and borne by the Owners in the percentages set opposite their respective names under the heading Share of Profits in Schedule B. In the event that there is a deficit at any time in the operations of the Leasehold and it becomes necessary to obtain contributions from the Owners, each Owner shall be required, within five days after receipt of notice of such deficit, to pay an amount equivalent to his pro rata share of the deficit based upon his share of profits.

(c) Distribution on Sale. In the event of the sale of the Leasehold, the net proceeds of sale shall be distributed as follows:

(1) Adjusted Capital Investment. Each of the Owners shall first receive a return equal to his adjusted Capital Investment. For all other purposes of this agreement, the adjusted Capital Investment of each Owner shall be the amount set opposite his name under the heading Capital Investment in Schedule B, as reduced, at any given time, by his proportionate share of amortization as reflected on the books of the joint venture. Amortization shall be allocated to each Owner on the basis of his proportionate interest in the total Capital Investments of all the Owners. If the net proceeds of sale are less than the adjusted Capital Investments of all the Owners, distribution shall be made among the Owners on the basis of their proportionate interests in the total adjusted Capital Investments.

(2) Special Payment. All additional net proceeds of sale, but in no event in excess of Fifty Thousand Dollars ($50,000), shall then be paid to Harry Gordon (in addition to all net proceeds of sale distributable to him as an Owner under subdivision (1) above).

(3) Profits. All remaining net proceeds of sale shall then be shared by the Owners, including Harry Gordon, in the proportions set opposite their respective names under the heading Share of Profits in Schedule B.

3. Restrictions on Transfer. Except as hereinafter set forth, none of the Owners shall sell, dispose of, transfer, or encumber the Leasehold or any interest therein. Notwithstanding the foregoing:

(a) Any partnership which is a party to this agreement may at any time dissolve such partnership and distribute its interest in kind to the individuals who comprise it.

(b) Any partnership which is a party to this agreement may transfer all of its interest to a successor partnership in which its present members have more than a 50 percent interest in capital and profits.

(c) Each individual Owner may, during his lifetime, transfer all or any part of his interest to his spouse, his adult issue, or the adult spouses of his issue.

(d) Each individual Owner may, at death, either by will or by operation of law, transfer his interest to one or more persons, provided that if a fiduciary, including but not limited to a testamentary trustee, guardian, executor, or administrator, shall be the holder of legal title to such interest, such fiduciary shall be subject to all of the terms of this agreement.

4. Sale of Interest of Owner. In the event that any Owner shall receive an acceptable offer from a competent adult, who is not a fiduciary, for the purchase of all of such Owner's interest in the Leasehold, such Owner shall have the right to sell his interest only after complying with the following requirements:

(a) Notice. Such Owner shall procure and deposit with the Mailing Agent, as designated in Paragraph 7, a certified check for 10 percent of the amount of the offer and the written offer signed by the prospective purchaser.

(b) Option to Purchase. The Mailing Agent shall forthwith notify all of the Owners of the terms of the offer. Each of the other Owners shall then have the option to purchase the interest of the offering Owner upon the same terms set forth in the offer, provided notice of purchase in writing is mailed to the Mailing Agent within 20 days after the initial receipt by the Mailing Agent of the offer. Each Owner who exercises his option to purchase shall set forth in his letter of acceptance the amount of the interest he is willing to purchase. If the total interests which the Owners offer to purchase are in excess of the interest offered, each Owner shall then purchase that proportion of the offered interest which that acceptor's offer to purchase bears to the total offers of all the acceptors. If the total interests which the acceptors have offered to purchase shall be less than the interest offered, the Mailing Agent shall immediately give notice in writing to the acceptors of the amount of the difference. If within 30 days after the initial receipt by the Mailing Agent of the offer, the acceptors do not make satisfactory arrangements for the purchase of the difference, then the offer of the entire interest shall be deemed to have been rejected. In the latter event, the Owner offering his interest shall have the right to sell to the person named in the offer, provided that the sale is concluded within 30 days of the date upon which he is notified by the Mailing Agent that his offer has been rejected, and provided further that the sale is made strictly in accordance with the terms of the offer and at no less favorable terms.

(c) Purchase. If the interest of the offering Owner is purchased pursuant to the option referred to in subparagraph (b) of this paragraph, payment for the interest shall be made by certified check to the order of the Owner within 30 days after the initial receipt by the Mailing Agent of the offer, against the delivery to the purchasers of appropriate instruments transferring title to the interest of the Owner.

5. Assumption by Assignee. All permitted transferees or other persons to whom an interest in the Leasehold may be transferred by the terms of this agreement, and any assignee receiving an interest pursuant to the terms of this agreement, shall automatically take that interest subject to all of the terms and conditions of this agreement, and shall not be considered to have title to that interest until they and each of them have signified their acceptance and assumption of the terms and conditions of this agreement in writing.

6. Sale of Leasehold.

(a) Offers to Purchase. If any Owner acting individually or jointly with other Owners (the "offering party"), shall receive a bona fide offer in writing acceptable to him to purchase the Leasehold, he shall obtain from the prospective customer and deposit with the Mailing Agent, designated in this agreement, a certified check in the amount of One Hundred Fifty Thousand ($150,000), an agreement to hold all Owners of the Leasehold harmless in respect to any brokerage commissions in the event that the sale is not consummated, and an executed contract for the purchase of the Leasehold providing for the payment of the purchase price in the form of all cash above mortgages and conditioned upon the acceptance of the offer within forty-five (45) days by all of the Owners of the Leasehold.

(b) Option to Purchase. The Mailing Agent shall forthwith notify all of the Owners of the terms of the offer. The offering party and any Owner accepting the offer (the "offerors") shall be deemed to have offered their interests for sale to the other Owners upon the same terms set forth in the offer. (Any Owners rejecting the offer shall be referred to as rejectors).

(c) Acceptance of Offer. Each Owner other than the offering party shall notify the Mailing Agent in writing, within twenty (20) days after the initial receipt of the offer by the Mailing Agent, whether he accepts or rejects the offer. If the Mailing Agent does not receive any notice within the 20-day period, the Owner shall be deemed to have accepted the offer. If no Owner shall reject the offer, then it shall be deemed accepted by all of the Owners. In such event, the Owners shall take any and all steps necessary and proper to pass title pursuant to the offer.

(d) Rejection of Offer. Any rejector shall set forth in his letter of rejection, the amount of the interest of the offerors that the rejector is willing to purchase if available, provided, however, that in any case any rejector shall be obligated to purchase, if available, from the offerors an interest equal to a percentage of the interest then held by the rejector. If the total interests which the rejectors offer to purchase are in excess of the total interests of the offerors, each rejector shall then purchase that proportion of the interests offered that the total interests which the rejector has offered to purchase bears to the total offers to purchase made by all rejectors. If the total interests which the rejectors have offered to purchase shall be less than the total interests of the offerors, the Mailing Agent shall immediately give written notice to the rejectors of the amount of the difference. If within thirty-five (35) days after the initial receipt by the Mailing Agent of the offer, the rejectors do not make satisfactory arrangements for the purchase of the difference, then the offer shall be deemed accepted by all of the parties, and they shall take all of the steps necessary and proper to pass title pursuant to the offer.

(e) Sale. In the event of a sale of the Leasehold pursuant to the offer, each Owner shall share in the net proceeds of the sale in accordance with the terms of Paragraph 2(c). In the event that, pursuant to the provisions of subparagraph (d) above, any rejectors shall purchase the interests of any offeror, the price to be paid to each offeror shall be such offeror's pro rata share of the difference between the selling price (less brokerage) set forth in the offer and the outstanding principal of any mortgages, plus or minus all usual real estate adjustments, in accordance with the interest of each offeror. Payment for the interest shall be made by certified check to the order of the offeror within sixty (60) days after the initial receipt of the offer by the Mailing Agent, against the delivery to the purchasers of appropriate instruments transferring title to the interests of the offerors.

7. Mailing Agent. _____ [name] is designated Mailing Agent, and all notices to him shall be sent to _____ [address] , _____ [city] , _____ [state] , or to such other address as he shall, from time to time, designate in a notice given to all the Owners. The Mailing Agent or such other Owner or Owners as may be required to give notice under the terms of this agreement shall mail all notices required herein by registered or certified mail to the addresses of the Owners set forth in this agreement, or to the last address as the Owners or any of their transferees shall, from time to time, give in writing to the Mailing Agent. The Mailing Agent hereby is relieved of all liability by virtue of his undertaking herein, except for malfeasance or fraud.

8. Loan to Owners. Any Owner may borrow money on his interest in the Leasehold on the following terms and conditions:

(a) The amount of the loan may be no more than seventy-five percent (75%) of the Owner's investment in the Leasehold, less any capital returned to the Owner.

(b) The hypothecation of the Owner's interest in the Leasehold, whether in the form of a mortgage or pledge, shall provide for prepayment of the loan without penalty.

(c) The Owner's pro rata share of the proceeds on any new mortgage placed upon the Leasehold may be applied toward the payment of the loan made to the Owner, and any payment may be made directly to the lender.

(d) The unpaid balance of any mortgage or pledge by an Owner shall be subordinate to any mortgage placed upon the entire Leasehold, and the lender shall undertake to execute all documents necessary and proper to effectuate the subordination of his loan to any mortgage on the entire Leasehold.

(e) The Owner's pro rata share of the proceeds of the sale of the Leasehold may be applied towards the payment of the loan made by an Owner, and any proceeds may be paid directly to the lender.

(f) The terms of any mortgage or pledge shall in no manner prevent or unreasonably delay the sale or mortgage of the entire Leasehold.

(g) The lender shall undertake to be bound by the terms and conditions of this agreement whenever required to carry out the purposes of this agreement.

(h) Any owner's mortgage or pledge shall provide that, in the event there is any default in the mortgage or pledge (provided the default is not a default on the part of the Owners as lessees under the terms of the Leasehold) the lender, his successors, heirs, and assigns, shall give immediate notice of the default to the Mailing Agent. The notice shall constitute an irrevocable offer for a period of thirty (30) days, on the part of the lender and the Owner to sell the Owner's interest in the Leasehold, and any interest of the lender in the Owner's leasehold, to all other Owners for the amount of the loan then outstanding plus interest to the date of payment.

9. Partition. No Owner shall, either directly or indirectly, make application to or petition any court for a partition of the Leasehold.

10. Managing Agent.

(a) Commission and statements. The Owners appoint Enterprises, Inc., as agent to supervise and manage the Leasehold. Enterprises, Inc., shall pay all employees engaged in the operation of the Leasehold out of the sums paid to it by the Owners. In full consideration of its services, Enterprises, Inc., shall be paid a yearly sum not to exceed _____ percent (_____) of the collected rents, the sums to be paid monthly within 20 days after the end of each month. Brokerage payable to outside brokers shall not be deemed included in the _____ percent (_____) item payable to Enterprises, Inc. Monthly statements of the Leasehold's operation shall be submitted by Enterprises, Inc., to each of the Owners within twenty (20) days after the end of each month, and the statements shall include an itemized list of all income and expenses in connection with the Leasehold.

(b) Term. Enterprises, Inc., shall be employed for a term of one (1) year from the date of the execution of this agreement. Such term shall be automatically extended from year to year thereafter unless written notice of termination signed on behalf of the Owners is served upon Enterprises, Inc., at least sixty (60) days prior to the termination of any yearly period.

(c) Profit Payments. Enterprises, Inc. shall from time to time during the year, but at intervals of no more than three months, distribute to the various Owners their share of all profits earned from the operation of the Leasehold.

11. Meetings. Meetings of the Owners may be called, upon five days notice, by the Mailing Agent or by Owners who have a ten percent (10%) or greater interest in the capital of the Leasehold as set out under the heading Capital Investment in Schedule B. Meetings shall be held in New York, New York, at the office of the Mailing Agent, or at the office of any Owner who has a five percent (5%) or greater interest in the capital of the Leasehold. The power to make all decisions with respect to the management of the Leasehold is vested in the Owners. The decisions of the Owners shall be binding upon all the Owners if made by Owners who have a 50 percent or greater interest in the capital of the Leasehold, at a meeting called pursuant to the provisions of this paragraph.

12. Separability. If any part or provision of this agreement shall be determined to be invalid or unenforceable under the laws of the State of _____, [state] the remaining portions of this agreement which can be separated from the invalid, unenforceable provisions shall nevertheless continue in full force and effect.

13. Arbitration. Any dispute or controversy arising under or as a result of this agreement shall be settled and determined by arbitration held in New York, New York, in accordance with the governing rules of the American Arbitration Association. Any award pursuant to such arbitration may be entered in any court of competent jurisdiction.

14. Modification. This agreement embodies the full understanding of the Owners. This agreement may not be changed orally. Any modifications of this agreement must be in writing signed by all of the parties hereto.

15. Binding Effect. Except as herein otherwise specifically stated, this agreement shall bind and inure to the benefit of the parties to this agreement, their legal representatives, successors, and assigns.

16. Entire Agreement. This agreement supersedes all agreements previously made between the parties relating to its subject matter. There are no other understandings or agreements between them.

17. Notices. All notices under this agreement shall be in writing and delivered personally or mailed by certified mail, postage prepaid, addressed to the parties at their last known addresses.

18. Non-waiver. No delay or failure by a party to exercise any right under this agreement, and no partial or single exercise of that right, shall constitute a waiver of that or any other right, unless otherwise expressly provided herein.

19. Headings. Headings in this agreement are for convenience only and shall not be used to interpret or construe its provisions.

AUTHOR: by Stephen E. Pigott and Harold O. Maxfield, Jr.

FORM 20.13 Joint venture--acquisition of leasehold--sublease of entire premises--provisions for disposition by joint venturer

COMMENT

This form illustrates a joint venture between a real estate investment trust and an individual for the acquisition of a leasehold interest on improved property. In this agreement the joint venturers do not contemplate the actual operation of the property. The entire property is already under sublease to a third party, and the activities of the joint venture will be to collect and distribute the periodic rent check received from the operating sublessee.

Title and transfer:

Under this agreement title is to be taken in the name of the joint venture, rather than in the names of the venturers as tenants in common. One of the reasons for this is to permit either or both of the venturers to assign to third parties participating interests in their respective shares of the profits and losses of the venture. The objective is to permit such assignments without any disturbance of the legal title. In addition, either party may dispose of his entire interest in the venture without first offering it to the other venturer, provided certain basic safeguards are satisfied.

FORM

THIS JOINT VENTURE AGREEMENT made _____ [month] _____, [day]
_____ [year] , by and between CENTRAL REALTY TRUST, a real estate investment trust organized in the State of _____ [state] ("Central"), and JAMES SMITH, of _____,

[city] _____ [state] ("Smith").

WHEREAS, by an agreement of sale intended to be executed on this date, Harrison Company, a general partnership organized under the laws of the State of _____ [state] , is agreeing to sell, and Central and Smith, acting jointly and severally, are agreeing to purchase, the lease and leasehold estate under which Builders, Inc., is Landlord and Harrison Company is Tenant, which affects that certain parcel of land in the City of _____ [city] designated as 100 Broadway (the "Property"). The agreement of sale between Harrison Company, as Seller, and Central and Smith, as Purchasers (the "Sales Contract"), is attached hereto as Exhibit 1, and is made a part of this agreement. The lease between Builders, Inc., as Landlord and Harrison Company as Tenant (the "Main Lease"), is more particularly described in the Sales Contract.

WHEREAS, the Property is subject to a certain mortgage lien, which is more particularly described in the Sales Contract (the "Leasehold Mortgage"); and

WHEREAS, by agreement intended to be executed on this date, Central and Smith are agreeing to sublease the Property to William Bacon on the date of the closing under the Sales Contract in accordance with the terms of a sublease which is attached to and made a part of the Sales Contract. The sublease with William Bacon (the "Operating Sublease"), is attached hereto as Exhibit 2, and is made a part of this agreement; and

WHEREAS, the parties desire to enter into this agreement for the purpose of defining their respective rights and obligations with respect to the Joint Venture and the Property,

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual covenants herein contained, the parties hereto agree as follows:

1. Name and Office. Central and Smith (the "Venturers"), do hereby form a Joint Venture under the name "100 Broadway Associates" (the "Joint Venture"). The principal office shall be c/o _____ [name] , _____ [address] , _____, [city] _____ [state] , or at such other place or places as the Venturers may from time to time agree upon.

2. Purposes. The purposes of the Joint Venture shall be to enter into and consummate the Sales Contract, to enter into and consummate the contract for the Operating Sublease, to own the Property and, upon termination of the Operating Sublease, to provide for the operation or management of the Property. So long as Central is one of the Venturers, the Property shall never be operated directly by the Joint Venture, but shall at all times be operated by an operating sublessee, or, in the event there is no operating sublease, by a management agent selected by both Joint Venturers.

3. Term. The term of the Joint Venture shall commence upon the execution of this agreement and shall continue until the Property has been entirely disposed of, and shall not be terminated by the act, bankruptcy, death, retirement, dissolution, or other legal disability of either Joint Venturer, the assignment (whether by operation of law or otherwise) of the interest of any Joint Venturer, or any other cause whatsoever.

4. Capital contributions.

(a) Deposit. Simultaneously with the execution of this agreement, Central and Smith have each contributed One Hundred Thousand Dollars ($100,000) toward the capital of the Joint Venture to enable it to make the deposit on account of the purchase price required under the Sales Contract.

(b) Down payment balance. At time of the closing under the Sales Contract (or any adjournment thereof), Central and Smith shall each contribute an additional Four Hundred Thousand Dollars ($400,000) toward the capital of the Joint Venture to enable it to close the Sales Contract in accordance with its terms, and to pay closing costs and closing attorneys' fees.

(c) Additional Capital. In addition, each Joint Venturer shall contribute such additional capital as may be necessary, at any time during the continuance of the Joint Venture, to enable the Joint Venture to meet its obligations. All additional contributions shall be made one-half by Central and one-half by Smith.

5. Percentages of Ownership. The percentage shown after the name of each Venturer shall represent the proportionate interest of the respective Venturer in the Joint Venture, its assets, and in all its profits and losses.

Name	Percentage of Joint Venture Interest
Central	50%

6. Collection of Income.

(a) Collection and Expense Payments. Upon the execution of the Operating Sublease, the Joint Venture will direct the Tenant to make all rental payments under the Operating Sublease until further notice to Central. Central shall regularly deposit all rental payments in a special account maintained in its name in a bank or trust company doing business under the laws of the State of New York, and shall regularly pay out of the rental payments all sums necessary to make timely payments of rentals under the Main Lease and all payments required under the Leasehold Mortgage. The balance remaining shall be distributed to the Joint Venturers, on a monthly basis, promptly after Central's receipt of the rent, in proportion to their respective percentage of interest in the Joint Venture. Central shall collect the rentals from the Operating Sublessee and make the payments and distributions without cost to the Joint Venture.

(b) Collection Agent. Central shall have the right to designate a bank or trust company doing business under the laws of the State of _____ [state] and to authorize it to make the collections, payments, and distributions for and on behalf of the Joint Venture. Any compensation of such bank or trust company, however, shall be paid by Central.

(c) Statements. Central shall cause Smith to be notified in writing at the end of each month of all the disbursements from the aforementioned special account.

(d) Substitution. If at any time Central does not wish to continue to collect the rentals from the Operating Sublessee and to make the payments and distributions, or if Central transfers its entire legal interest in the Property then, in either event, Central shall notify Smith and the Operating Sublessee, and commencing with the first rental payments due under the Operating Sublease following the date of the notice, all rentals under the Operating Sublease shall be paid in full to Smith. Thereafter, Smith shall collect all such rentals, and do all other things required to be done by Central as provided in this paragraph.

7. Legal Title. The legal title to the Property shall be held in the names of Central and Smith, as Joint Venturers doing business under the name of 100 Broadway Associates.

8. Disposition of Interest in Joint Venture.

(a) Consent. Except as provided in subparagraphs (b), (c), and (d) of this paragraph, neither Joint Venturer shall sell, transfer, assign, convey, or otherwise dispose of its or his legal interest in the Joint Venture or in the Property without the other Joint Venturer's express written consent. Should any sale, transfer, assignment, conveyance, or other disposition be made without consent, or not as otherwise permitted herein, neither the Joint Venture nor the other Joint Venturer shall be required to recognize the party to whom the sale, transfer, assignment, conveyance, or other disposition was made.

(b) Transfer of Entire Interest. Notwithstanding the provisions of subparagraph (a) this paragraph, either Joint Venturer may sell, assign, or transfer its entire (but not less than the entire) legal interest in the Property and in the Joint Venture, without the consent of the other Joint Venturer, provided: (1) the transferee is an individual of full legal age or a single trust, corporation, firm, or other entity; (2) the transferor delivers to the other Joint Venturer within ten days after the effective date of the transfer an executed assignment in recordable form assigning to the transferee the entire interest of the transferor in and to the Property, the Joint Venture, and this agreement; and (3) the transferee delivers to the other Joint Venturer within ten days after the effective date of the transfer an appropriate written instrument accepting the assignment, agreeing to assume all obligations and liabilities of the transferor under this agreement and under the Operating Sublease and Main Lease from and after the effective date of the assignment, and expressly acknowledging that it has been furnished a copy of this agreement, together with all exhibits thereto.

(c) Testamentary Disposition. Notwithstanding the provisions of subparagraph (a) of this paragraph, any Joint Venturer who is an individual may designate any individual of full legal age or any trust, corporation, firm, or entity to succeed to his entire (but not less than his entire) legal interest in the Joint Venture upon his death. The designation may be made in an appropriate written instrument executed by the individual Joint Venturer during his lifetime and delivered to the other Joint Venturer or the designation may be made in the will of the deceased Joint Venturer. If a designation is not made, the executor or administrator of the deceased Joint Venturer's estates shall make and deliver a designation to the other Joint Venturer within ninety (90) days after the death of the deceased Joint Venturer. Any designee shall qualify as a successor to the interest of the deceased Joint Venturer only by delivering to the other Joint Venturer within the 90-day period the following: (1) an executed assignment in recordable form from the legal representative of deceased Joint Venturer assigning to the designee the entire interest of the decedent in and to the Joint Venture and the Property; and (2) an agreement in writing by which the designee assumes and agrees to perform all obligations of the deceased Joint Venturer from and after the date of his death under this agreement and under the Operating Sublease and Main Lease and acknowledging the fact that the designee has been furnished a copy of this agreement and all exhibits thereto. Any successor so qualifying shall be accepted by the other Joint Venturer and this agreement shall continue in full force and effect.

(d) Interest in Profits and Losses. Nothing contained in this agreement shall prohibit either Joint Venturer from entering into agreements by which a Joint Venturer agrees to permit other parties to share in a portion of the Joint Venturer's rights to any profits and obligations to pay any losses with respect to the interest of the Joint Venturer provided: (1) the Joint Venturer entering into any agreement of this nature retains legal title to his or its interest in the Joint Venture; (2) notwithstanding any agreement of this nature, the other Joint Venturer shall have no obligation to deal with or recognize the party entitled to any share in profits and losses; and (3) all decisions and actions by or on behalf of the interest of the Joint Venturer entering into any agreement of this nature shall continue to be made by the Joint Venturer and not by the party or parties entitled to share in the profits and losses.

(e) If at any time the legal ownership of the interest of either Joint Venturer becomes vested in more than one person, trust, corporation, firm, or other entity, the parties ("Interested Parties"), then comprising the entire ownership of the interest of that Joint Venturer shall immediately designate an agent or attorney-in-fact who shall be given full power and authority to receive all payments to be made to all Interested Parties and to take all actions and make all decisions for and on behalf of all Interested Parties for all purposes pursuant to this agreement. The other Joint Venturer shall have the right to rely on any action or decision taken or made by the agent or attorney-in-fact as fully and to the same extent as if the action or decision had been taken or made by all of the Interested Parties represented by the agent or attorney-in-fact.

9. Joint Action. No sale, assignment, transfer, or other disposition of the Property, nor any modification of the Operating Sublease, the Leasehold Mortgage, or the Main Lease, nor the execution of any new operating sublease, or mortgage, shall be valid unless authorized in writing by both Venturers. Except as expressly provided in this agreement, neither Joint Venturer shall incur any obligation of any kind or make any decision or take any action by or on behalf of the Joint Venture or with respect to the Property unless the obligation, decision, or action is first expressly authorized in writing by the other Joint Venturer.

10. Default. Notwithstanding any provision of this agreement to the contrary, in case of any default under the Operating Sublease, either Joint Venturer shall have the right, without the further authorization or approval of the other Joint Venturer, to enforce, or give notice of intention to enforce, any rights or remedies of the Joint Venturers, as Landlord, against the Tenant under the Operating Sublease including, but not limited to: (a) the giving of any default notice; (b) the commencement and prosecution of legal action against the Tenant; (c) the termination of the Operating Sublease; and (d) the application, payment, or use of any security moneys or deposits which may be given by the Tenant under the Operating Sublease so long as any payments of such security are made ratably to or for the benefit of both Joint Venturers in proportion to their respective interests in the Joint Venture. For the purpose of taking any action against the Tenant upon default under the Operating Sublease, each Joint Venturer hereby appoints the other Joint Venturer as attorney-in-fact to represent the Joint Venture with full power and authority to act on behalf of the Joint Venture, provided, however, that notwithstanding the foregoing: (a) neither Joint Venturer shall take any unilateral action without giving prior notice to the other Joint Venturer; (b) neither Joint Venturer shall have authority to settle or compromise any claim against the Tenant under the Operating Sublease without the prior written approval of the other Joint Venturer; and (c) if either Joint Venturer incurs any costs or expenses in bringing any action or enforcing any claim without the prior written authority of the other Joint Venturer, and the other Joint Venturer disputes the propriety of the expenditure or its reasonableness, the dispute may be referred to arbitration pursuant to Paragraph 12 of this agreement.

11. Books. The books and records of the Joint Venture shall be audited annually by a certified public accountant employed by the Joint Venture for that purpose. The certified public accountant shall prepare an annual statement and shall submit the statement to each of the Joint Venturers. The designation of the certified public accountant and the compensation to be paid him by the Joint Venture shall be subject to the agreement of both Joint Venturers. The method of depreciation with reference to the fixed assets belonging to the Joint Venture shall be determined jointly by the Joint Venturers. The fiscal year of the Joint Venture shall be determined by mutual agreement of the Joint Venturers.

12. Arbitration. Any dispute arising out of or regarding this agreement or the Property shall be determined by arbitration in the City of New York, in accordance with the governing rules of the American Arbitration Association. FORM 20.14 Joint venture--acquisition of improved property--periodic contributions of purchase price--followed by limited partnership

The purpose of this joint venture is to acquire the fee title to a group of properties, and then to reorganize the enterprise into a limited liability company. The proposed contract requires that the purchase price be paid in three lump-sum cash installments--one on the signing of the contract, a second on the closing of title, and a third 60 days after the closing of title--and that the balance of the purchase price be secured by a purchase money mortgage. The funds for this venture are to be paid in by the venturers substantially as required by the purchase contract. The chief concern of each venturer is with the possibility that other venturers may default on subsequent installments. The agreement therefore outlines the procedure to be followed if any joint venturer defaults.

Managing agent:

Since this joint venture is to terminate on the acquisition of title to the properties (at which time the parties undertake to enter into an operating agreement in the form annexed to the joint venture agreement), there would in the normal course be no income or expense arising out of this joint venture. Nevertheless, against the possibility that some unexpected event may delay or interfere with the program of the parties, extensive powers have been given to the manager of the venture. But these powers are all subject to the right of the joint venturers themselves to control the affairs of their enterprise. This includes the right to modify the powers of the manager or to replace him.

Tax returns:

So long as this venture is engaged solely in the effort of acquiring title to the properties, with no operating income or expenses, there will be no need to file any income tax return for the venture. But once the venture takes title under the proposed operating agreement, the usual partnership return will be required. For requirement that partnership must file an annual information return, Form 1065, which discloses its profits and distributive shares of income, see TB § 20.06[1][b], at the beginning of this chapter.

FORM

THIS AGREEMENT made _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , by and between the subscribers that are listed on Exhibit and that executed this Agreement on the signature page attached hereto or have executed a counterpart signature page to this agreement (collectively, the "subscribers").

The parties agree as follows:

1. Joint Venture. The subscribers hereby create a joint venture for the purchase of a parcel of land, together with all buildings and improvements thereon (collectively, the "property"), more fully described on Exhibit B annexed. No representations are made to any subscriber with respect to the physical condition, prospective income, prospective selling price, cost of operation, or any other matters relating to or affecting the property.

2. Purchase Price and Contract of Purchase. The purchase price for the property is Three Million Eight Hundred Ninety-seven Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($3,897,500), of which One Million One Hundred Forty-seven Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($1,147,500) will be paid in cash as follows: Two Hundred Fifty Thousand Dollars ($250,000) on signing of contracts; Six Hundred Forty-seven Five Hundred Dollars ($647,500) on closing of title; Two Hundred Fifty Thousand Dollars ($250,000) sixty (60) days after closing of title. The balance of the purchase price Two Million Seven Hundred Fifty Thousand Dollars ($2,750,000) shall be paid by purchase money mortgage for ten years, and shall bear yearly interest of twelve and one-half percent (12.5%). The contract of sale shall contain such other provisions as the joint venture managers deem appropriate.

3. Risk of Default. None of the parties are desirous of subscribing for a greater portion of the joint venture than they have obligated themselves to take under the terms of this agreement. The successful conclusion of the joint venture requires that each of the parties shall pay his contribution into the joint venture in cash at the times and in the amounts set forth in this agreement in order to prevent the forfeiture by the joint venture of the moneys previously paid to the seller. The subscribers understand that if after paying the initial installment on the purchase price due on the signing of the contract, the joint venture should fail to take title to the property in accordance with the terms of the contract, such installment would be forfeited, and that in the event of failure to pay the Two Hundred Fifty Thousand Dollars ($250,000) payable on account of the mortgage indebtedness sixty (60) days after taking title, the seller or holder of the mortgage will be in a position to declare the mortgage in default. Each of the parties acknowledges that a failure to pay any installment of the contributions agreed to be made by him will cause substantial damage to all the other parties.

4. Contributions. The subscribers shall contribute to the joint venture the amounts set opposite their signatures at the foot hereof and shall be entitled to share in the profits and losses in the percentage or proportions set opposite their names. Such contributions shall be paid as follows:

twenty-four percent (24%) on the signing of this agreement, fifty-six percent (56%) on or before _____ [month] _____ [day],

_____ [year], and twenty percent (20) on or before _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year].

Time is of the essence with respect to the payment by each subscriber of the installments of his contribution. All installments of contributions shall be paid by certified checks drawn on a national bank to the order of _____ [name] , as attorney, _____ [address] , _____ [city] , _____ [state] , on or before the dates specified. No notice or demand for payment of the installments of each subscriber's contribution to the capital of the joint venture need be given.

5. Default.

(a) Forfeiture. If any subscriber defaults in the payment of any installment of his subscription as required by this agreement, all previous payments made on his account and his share in the joint venture shall be completely forfeited. The share in the joint venture so forfeited may be reoffered for subscription to the remaining subscribers, without any obligation on their part to account to or pay over to the defaulting subscriber any portion of the profits, or any part of the capital, of the joint venture. The defaulting subscriber hereby acknowledges that by reason of the nature of the venture upon which the joint venture is about to embark, the amount paid on account of his subscription shall constitute liquidated damages for his failure to complete payment of his subscription. In consideration of the foregoing, the defaulting subscriber shall not be liable for the payment of the unpaid balance of his subscription.

(b) Subscribers' Purchase Option. Upon the failure of any one or more subscribers to pay an installment of a subscription becoming due, the remaining subscribers or any one or more of them may elect to subscribe for the defaulted share of the joint venture at a meeting called for that purpose which is set for _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], at 2 p.m. with respect to the second installment, and on _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], at 2 p.m. with respect to the third installment, at the office of _____ [name], as attorney, _____ [address], _____ [city], _____ [state]. The remaining subscribers or any one or more of them may elect to subscribe to the share of the defaulting subscriber. In the event that more than one of the remaining subscribers shall elect to subscribe to such share, the defaulted share shall be apportioned among the subscribers desiring to subscribe, in accordance with their respective proportions of the total joint venture. A subscriber who acquires any interest in the share of a defaulting subscriber shall be required to pay his proportionate share of the defaulted contribution immediately upon his acquisition of such interest.

(c) Power of Attorney. To implement the mechanics of this paragraph 5, each of the parties to this agreement and any party who may subsequently acquire an interest in the joint venture hereby grants an irrevocable power of attorney to _____ [name], as attorney, _____ [address], _____ [city], _____ [state], empowering him to execute, in the name of the defaulting party, an assignment of the defaulting party's entire interest in the joint venture and in all property of the joint venture. Such assignment shall run to the other parties who may acquire the defaulting party's interest. In the event of the death of _____ [name], the power granted to him by this subparagraph shall vest in _____ [name], as attorney, _____ [address], _____ [city], _____ [state], as successor attorney-in-fact. This power of attorney shall not be affected by the subsequent disability or incompetence of any principal.

(d) Dispute Arbitration. Any dispute existing as to the rights of a defaulting party shall in no way impede the execution of the assignment by _____ [name] or by his successor. Any dispute shall be resolved by arbitration under the provisions of Paragraph 14 of this agreement. A defaulting subscriber shall not have any right to question the party to whom the assignment of his share in the joint venture is made.

(e) No Release. The failure of any subscriber to perform any part of his obligation hereunder shall not release any other subscriber.

6. Transferability. Except as otherwise provided in this agreement, no subscriber shall sell, transfer, encumber, or otherwise dispose of his interest in the joint venture (except to another subscriber) until the acquisition of title to the property. The interest of a subscriber in the joint venture may be (a) transferred or disposed of by will or intestacy to the deceased subscriber's immediate family, but the heirs, beneficiaries, or legal representatives of the deceased subscriber shall hold such interest subject to all the terms and provisions in this agreement, or (b) may be transferred during his lifetime to his immediate family, but such interest shall remain subject to all the terms and provisions of this agreement. For the purpose of this paragraph, "immediate family" is defined, in the case of a will or intestacy, as the husband, wife, child, brother, sister, father, or mother of a subscriber; and is defined, in the case of transfer during lifetime, as the husband, wife, adult child, brother, sister, father, or mother of a subscriber.

7. Management of Venture. The subscribers shall have control of the joint venture and all of its affairs.

_____[name]_____, or any other subscriber or subscribers who have a ten percent (10%) or larger interest in the profits and losses of the joint venture, may call meetings of the subscribers by sending them five days' notice. Such meetings shall be held at the office of _____[name]_____, as attorney, _____[address]_____, _____[city]_____, _____[state]_____ (or at any other place in _____[city]_____ designated in the notice of meeting). At such meetings all matters relating to the joint venture (including the substitution of the joint venture manager) shall be decided by avote of those subscribers who have a majority interest in the profits and losses of the joint venture, but no action shall be taken to modify the rights or obligations of the subscribers as set forth in this agreement except upon the unanimous vote of all the subscribers. Until further action by the subscribers at any meeting, the subscribers designate _____[name]_____ as joint venture manager to do all things proper, necessary, or expedient in his discretion to carry out the purposes of the joint venture.

8. Powers of Manager. To implement the provisions of Paragraph 7, but subject to the reservation of control in the subscribers as stated therein, the subscribers irrevocably nominate, constitute, and appoint _____[name]_____ their true and lawful attorney for them and in their place, and name and stead to do the following, either in his own name, or in the name of a nominee or agent:

FORM 20.15 Joint venture--between two corporations--acquisition of land and buildings--additional capital to be furnished by one venturer

COMMENT

The participants in this joint venture are two corporations. A singular feature of this agreement is the obligation of one of the venturers to make or arrange all loans required by the venture. In consideration for this, special protections are provided for the potential creditor, including a special termination provision. The venture is to continue at least until all of its properties are sold or until a specified date, whichever is earlier. If the venture is in operation and has not repaid its loans by the termination date, the lending venturer may elect either (1) an immediate termination of the venture, the sale of assets, and the payment of outstanding debts, or (2) a continuation of the venture from year to year until the repayment of its loans. Capital contributions of the venturers are not to be returned until debts are satisfied, and upon final dissolution each venturer is to bear equally the cost of repaying outstanding debts in excess of the proceeds from the sale of assets.

FORM

THIS AGREEMENT made and entered into _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , by and between ARNOLD REALTY, INC., a Delaware corporation ("Arnold"), and WARREN INVESTMENT CORP., an Illinois corporation ("Warren").

WHEREAS, The parties have agreed to form a joint venture for the purpose of acquiring and owning, as an investment, certain property located in Santa Clara County, California, consisting of approximately 100 acres of land and certain buildings and other improvements thereon (the "Baker Property").

WHEREAS, the Baker Property is described in and forms the subject matter of an Agreement for Sale and Purchase of Real Property, dated _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , entered into by William Arnold, as buyer, and as nominee for the joint venture.

NOW, THEREFORE IT IS HEREBY AGREED AS FOLLOWS:

1. Formation of Joint Venture. The parties hereby form a joint venture upon the terms and conditions herein set forth (the "Venture").

2. Name of Venture. The name of the Venture shall be the Baker Venture.

3. Purpose of Venture. The purpose of the Venture shall be to acquire, own, operate, maintain, and lease the Baker Property as an investment.

4. Initial Capital. The initial capital of the Venture shall be Two Hundred Fifty Thousand Dollars ($250,000) to be contributed by the parties in equal shares. An individual capital account shall be maintained for each party to the Venture, and no interest shall be paid or shall accrue on the capital account of either party.

5. Percentages of Interest. The respective interests of the parties in and to the Venture, and in and to the net profits and losses shall be as follows:

Warren	50%

6. Loans to Venture. Arnold shall lend or cause to be lent to the Venture all additional funds necessary or required in connection with the acquisition, ownership, operation, maintenance, and leasing of the Baker Property, as and when required. (Each of such loans is herein referred to as a "Venture Loan" and all of such loans are herein collectively referred to as "Venture Loans".) Simultaneously with the making of each such loan to the Venture, the Venture shall execute and deliver to Arnold or to the entity making such loan a promissory note in the principal amount of the loan, payable to the order of the entity making such loan. Each of the notes shall be in the form and contain the provisions of the form of note attached hereto, marked Exhibit A, and made a part hereof.

7. Title to Property. The title to the Baker Property shall be acquired and held in the name of the Joint Venture. The Venture will file a fictitious name certificate with the Santa Clara County Recorder's Office indicating that Arnold and Warren are "doing business" in the name of the Joint Venture. The parties may, from time to time, jointly designate other persons and entities to act as nominee for the Venture.

8. Assignment. The respective interests of the parties in the Venture shall not be transferred or assigned in whole or in part.

9. Books of Account. Accurate books and accounts shall be kept by the Venture, showing all of its assets, liabilities, operations, transactions, and financial condition. Arnold shall keep or cause to be kept such books and accounts. As soon as practicable after the end of each fiscal year of the Venture (but in no event later than one hundred twenty (120) days after the end of such fiscal year), a general accounting and audit shall be taken and made by certified public accountants, covering the assets, properties, liabilities, and net worth of the Venture, and its transactions and operations during the preceding fiscal year. All matters and things customarily included in such accounts and audits, and a full detailed statement shall be furnished to each party to the Venture, showing such assets, properties, and net worth and the profits and losses of the Venture, for the preceding fiscal year. Each party to the Venture shall have the right to object to such statement by giving written notice to the other party within sixty (60) days after such statement is received, setting forth in reasonable detail the objections of such party and the basis for such objections. If either party shall fail to give notice within the 60-day period, such statement and the contents thereof shall be deemed conclusive and binding upon the party so failing to give written notice. Each party to the Venture shall have the right to examine, at any and all reasonable times, its books, records, and accounts. The fiscal year of the Venture shall end on December 31 of each year.

10. Repayment of Venture Loans. All receipts, income, and proceeds of and from the Baker Property and the Venture, except funds required for the operation and maintenance of the Baker Property, shall be paid by the Venture in repayment of the Venture Loans. So long as any part of the Venture Loans shall remain unpaid, Warren shall not be entitled to any distributions or loans from the Venture, except with the express written consent of Arnold.

11. Term of Venture. This venture shall continue until all of the Baker Property shall have been sold or otherwise disposed of or until _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , whichever is sooner, unless sooner terminated by mutual agreement in writing of both of the parties. If, by _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , all of the Venture Loans shall not have been fully repaid by the Venture, Arnold shall have the exclusive right to exercise either of the following options within thirty (30) days thereafter:

(a) To require the termination and dissolution of the Venture. Within ninety (90) days after any exercise of such option, all of the Venture's then noncash assets shall be sold for cash at the highest cash prices then available. If after such sale the cash assets shall not be sufficient to pay all of the Venture's liabilities, Arnold and Warren shall each contribute, as capital contributions, one half of the aggregate cash amount required to pay and discharge in full all of such liabilities. The Venture shall thereupon fully pay all of its liabilities, including without limitation all unpaid amounts on the Venture Loans. All remaining assets of the Venture shall be distributed as provided in paragraph 12; or

(b) To continue the Venture from fiscal year to fiscal year until such time as the Venture shall have fully repaid all of the Venture Loans. If Arnold shall exercise the option provided for in this subparagraph (b) to continue the Venture, the maturity date of all then unpaid Venture Loans shall be deemed extended to the end of such fiscal year.

12. Distribution Upon Dissolution. Upon the dissolution of the Venture, the assets of the Venture, after full payment of all liabilities, including the repayment of all Venture Loans, shall be distributed to the parties as follows: first, in discharge and to return the respective capital contributions of the parties, and second, in proportion to the respective rights of the parties to share net profits and losses of the Venture, as set forth in Paragraph 5. In the event the assets of the Venture are insufficient to return to the parties all or any part of their respective capital contributions (including the contributions made under the provisions of subparagraph (a) of Paragraph 11), neither party shall have any claim or recourse against the other therefor. In the event that upon such dissolution the assets of the Venture are insufficient to pay and discharge all of its obligations and liabilities (including without limitations all of the obligations of the Venture under the Venture Loans), each of the parties shall forthwith contribute as capital contributions one half of the aggregate amount required to pay and discharge in full all of such obligations and liabilities.

13. Compensation. No salary, fees, commissions, or other compensation shall be paid by the Venture to either party or to any of the officers or employees of either party, for any services rendered to the Venture, or in connection with any of its business or property, except as may be expressly agreed to in writing by both of the parties.

14. Management. All questions relating to activities and operations of the Venture, and all questions relating to the sale or other disposition of its property, shall be determined by mutual agreement of the parties.

15. Notice. All notices and demands hereunder shall be in writing, and shall be deemed to have been given and received forty-eight (48) hours after the same shall have been deposited in the United States Registered or Certified Mail, postage prepaid, addressed to the parties hereto as follows:

Arnold and Warren shall each have the right by notice in writing given to the other pursuant to the provisions of this Paragraph 15 to change, from time to time, the respective addresses at which such notices hereunder shall be given.

16. Office. The principal office of the Venture shall be at _____ [address] , _____ [city] , _____ [state] .

FORM 20.16 Joint venture--between partnership and corporation--contribution in kind by one venturer

COMMENT

Because one of the participants in this joint venture is a partnership, the agreement must cover the possibility that the partnership may be dissolved by reason of the death, incapacity, bankruptcy, or default of any one of its partners. The problem is to preserve the continuity of the joint venture. To achieve this continuity, the agreement obligates each member of the partnership to continue the partnership if a dissolution does in fact occur. Restrictions are imposed upon the transfer of a partner's interest in the partnership. In addition, a member of the partnership is irrevocably authorized to act for the partnership in matters relating to the joint venture. All of this is designed to insulate the corporate joint venturer from the internal problems of the partnership joint venturer.

FORM

THIS AGREEMENT made and entered into _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , by and between CAMDEN REALITIES, INC., a Delaware corporation ("Camden"), and DAVID WOHL, HARVEY LORINS, JAMES BURNES, and FRANK MASON, individually and as copartners and

24-20 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 20.17

AUTHOR: by Stephen E. Pigott and Harold O. Maxfield, Jr.

FORM 20.17 Joint venture syndicate--provision for additional capital--treated as partnership

COMMENT

This form is similar to a real estate syndication utilizing a limited partnership form of organization which allows additional participants to come into the syndicate but, in this case, the liability of an incoming venturer is not limited. Each joint venturer is liable for the debts and obligations of the joint venture. The death or incompetency of a joint venturer does not terminate the joint venture. The original joint venturers are to receive a fee for organizing the venture made contingent upon the successful sale of 100 percent of the joint venture interests. The number of venturers involved assumes that the property will be professionally managed and the form so provides.

Sale of venture interests:

The form provides for registration of the joint venture under the relevant securities' acts. Provision is made for additional capital in the form of operating and special contributions by the joint venturers. For the protection of the purchaser, all amounts paid for joint venture interests are kept in escrow until 100 percent of the interests have been sold. If not sold prior to the expiration of the escrow agreement, the purchase price is to be refunded without interest with the original joint venturers remaining liable for the costs incurred. When 100 percent of the joint interests are sold, the original joint venturers cease to be members of the joint venture unless they have purchased joint venture interests.

FORM

THIS AGREEMENT made _____ [month] _____ [day] ,
 _____ [year] , by and among the subscribers hereafter named:

1. Venture. The subscribers hereby create a joint venture under the terms and conditions hereinafter set forth.

2. Name. The name of the joint venture shall be the Renard Venture.

3. Purpose. The purpose of the Renard Venture is to acquire for investment certain real property situated in the Borough of Brooklyn, City and State of New York, known as _____ [address] , consisting of approximately six acres of land together with the buildings and improvements thereon (the "Property").

4. Representations. No representation is made to any subscriber with respect to the physical condition, prospective income, prospective selling price, cost of operation, or any other matters relating to or affecting the Property.

5. Subscribers. The subscribers to this agreement on the date of its execution are Mark Renard and Walter Spear (the "Original Joint Venturers"). Those persons who shall subsequently subscribe to the Renard Venture are called the "Joint Venturers."

6. Office. The principal office of the Renard Venture shall be at _____ [address] , _____ [city] , _____ [state] , but additional offices may be maintained and action taken for accomplishing the purposes of the joint venture at any other appropriate location.

7. Organizational Plan. The Original Joint Venturers hereby create the Renard Venture, which will offer and sell interests therein to the Joint Venturers. When one hundred percent (100%) of the joint venture interests have been sold, each of the Original Joint Venturers shall cease being a member of the joint venture, except that he may become a Joint Venturer by purchasing a joint venture interest. All organizational expenses of the Renard Venture and of registering its joint venture interests will be borne by the Original Joint Venturers, who will be entitled to an organizational fee of Three Hundred Thousand Dollars ($300,000) should one hundred percent (100%) of the joint venture interests be sold. The fee is to be in full payment for all services and expenses of the Original Joint Venturers.

8. Interests and Registration. The Original Joint Venturers shall register the Renard Venture under state and federal laws, consisting of six hundred (600) joint venture interests, each unit valued at Fifteen Thousand Dollars ($15,000), for an initial total capitalization of Nine Million Dollars ($9,000,000), representing the purchase price of the Property amounting to Eight Million Seven Hundred Thousand Dollars ($8,700,000) and the organization fee of Three Hundred Thousand Dollars ($300,000).

9. Payment for Interests. Each purchaser of an interest shall pay the full amount of his purchase upon becoming a signatory of this agreement by executing a conformed counterpart at the foot thereof. Payment is to be made to the Federal National Bank of New York as escrow agent of the Renard Venture. The proceeds are to be held in trust under an escrow agreement which will expire on _____ [month] _____ [day] ,
 _____ [year] .

10. Liability. Until one hundred percent (100%) of the joint venture interests in the Renard Venture have been sold, the joint venture shall not acquire assets of any kind or incur any liabilities, but the Original Joint Venturers shall pay and discharge all organizational expenses, including attorneys' fees, accountants' fees, printing costs, recording and filing fees, and costs and expenses of the registration and sale of joint venture interests.

11. Completion of Sale of Joint Venture Interests. If one hundred percent (100%) of the registered joint venture interests shall have been sold prior to the expiration of the escrow agreement, then the following shall occur:

- (a) The escrow agreement shall terminate and the amount deposited in trust shall be paid to the Renard Venture.
- (b) The Renard Venture shall purchase the Property and assume all liability as purchaser, and the Original Joint Venturers shall be relieved of all further liability.
- (c) The Renard Venture shall pay the Original Joint Venturers the organizational fee of Three Hundred Thousand Dollars ($300,000).
- (d) The Joint Venturers shall be admitted to membership in the Renard Venture and shall become the only Joint Venturers.
- (e) The initial capital contribution of each Joint Venturer shall be the amount paid by him as the purchase price of his joint venture interest in the Renard Venture.
- (f) Each Original Joint Venturer shall cease to be a member of the Renard Venture unless he has become a Joint Venturer by purchasing a joint venture interest.

12. Consent and Continuation. Each Joint Venturer shall be deemed to consent to the admission to the Renard Venture of himself and every other purchaser of joint venture interests and to the withdrawal of the Original Joint Venturers. The admission of the Joint Venturers and the withdrawal of the Original Joint Venturers shall not terminate the Renard Venture which shall continue in full force and effect without interruption.

13. Return of Funds. If one hundred percent (100%) of the joint venture interests of the Renard Venture have not been sold prior to the expiration of the escrow agreement, the escrow agent shall forthwith refund to each purchaser of a joint venture interest all amounts paid by such purchaser, without interest, and such purchaser shall have no further liability or obligation under this agreement.

14. Term of Joint Venture. The term of the Renard Venture shall continue until its interest in the Property shall have been disposed of and all proceeds from the disposition shall have been collected and distributed, or until the Joint Venturers shall by the vote of the owners of at least 75 percent of the total joint venture capital elect to terminate the Renard Venture.

15. Capital Contributions. The capital contributions of the Renard Venture shall be as follows:

- (a) Each Joint Venturer shall contribute in cash the amount set forth next to his signature on the counterpart of this agreement.
- (b) Not later than the first day of every year beginning in 1988, and continuing during the life of the Renard Venture, each Joint Venturer shall annually contribute in cash his proportionate share, as computed in Paragraph 18 below, of the total amount estimated as being required for the operation of the Renard Venture during the year then beginning.

16. Special Contributions. In addition to the operating contributions, each Joint Venturer shall contribute to the Renard Venture, from time to time, his proportionate share, as computed in Paragraph 18 below, of any additional sum which may be required for the operation of the Renard Venture. The total amount of any such special contribution shall be fixed by the majority vote of all of the Joint Venturers.

17. Individual Accounts. A separate capital account and income account shall be maintained for each Joint Venturer. A Joint Venturer's capital account shall consist of his total contributions to the Renard Venture, including initial, operating, and special contributions.

18. Computation of Capital Contributions.

(a) The share of each Joint Venturer of each operating or special contribution shall be in proportion to the percentage the amount of his capital account then bears to the then total amount of all capital accounts of the Renard Venture.

(b) If prior to the due date of any contribution any Joint Venturer shall have been adjudicated a bankrupt or shall have been expelled from the Renard Venture, the contributions of the remaining Joint Venturers shall be computed exclusive of any interest of the bankrupt or expelled Joint Venturer.

19. Joint Venture Interest. Each joint venture interest shall be deemed to be an indivisible unit, and the owner or owners of each joint venture interest shall collectively be obligated to make operating and special contributions in the amount determined applicable to such interest under Paragraph 18 above, regardless of the number of its owners and regardless of whether such ownership is as tenants in common, joint tenants, community property, or otherwise. Failure to pay any required contribution in full shall subject the owners of the joint venture interest to expulsion as provided in Paragraph 24 below. Each joint venture interest shall remain indivisible regardless of division by operation of law or otherwise.

20. Contribution Notices. The Renard Venture shall notify each Joint Venturer not less than thirty (30) days prior to the date any operating or special contribution is to be made, specifying the aggregate amount required as well as the amount to be contributed by such Joint Venturer. However, failure to give such notice shall not relieve any Joint Venturer from his obligation to make operating and special contributions.

21. Profits and Losses.

(a) The net profits of the Renard Venture shall be allocated and credited to the individual income account of each Joint Venturer in proportion to the percentage the amount of his capital account then bears to the total amount of all of the capital accounts of the joint venture then existing, but no profits shall be allocated or credited to the account of any bankrupt or expelled Joint Venturer.

(b) The net losses of the Renard Venture shall be allocated and debited to the income account of each Joint Venturer in proportion to the percentage the amount of his capital account then bears to the total amount of all of the capital accounts of the joint venture then existing, but no losses shall be allocated or debited to the account of any bankrupt or expelled Joint Venturer. If there is no balance in the income account of any Joint Venturer, his share of the loss shall be debited to his capital account, which shall be reduced accordingly. Subsequent profits shall be credited to his capital account until the reduction has been restored and shall thereafter be again credited to his income account.

22. Management.

(a) Each Joint Venturer shall have a vote in the management of the Renard Venture in direct proportion to his interest in the joint venture as reflected in his capital account, and the determination of all matters concerning the business affairs of the Renard Venture, including but not limited to the disposition of the Joint Venturer's interest in the Property, or any part of such interest, shall be made by Joint Venturers owning a sixty percent (60%) majority in interest of the Renard Venture. Such determination shall be effective whether votes are cast at a meeting of all or some of the Joint Venturers, or by informal or formal, oral or written instructions of the Joint Venturers constituting a sixty percent (60%) interest, and any determination shall be effective regardless of the number of Joint Venturers who may actually vote on the issue, or have notice of the proposed determination.

(b) The Renard Venture may appoint such agents, attorneys-in-fact, managers, and employees as shall be appropriate.

23. Withdrawals by Joint Venturers. Neither the capital contributions nor the amounts contained in the individual income accounts shall be withdrawn except upon the termination of the Joint Venture on the agreement of Joint Venturers owning seventy percent (75%) of the joint venture interests.

24. Bankruptcy or Expulsion of Joint Venturers.

(a) Should a Joint Venturer fail to make an operating or special contribution when due or breach any other term of this agreement, the Renard Venture shall give him written notice by certified mail specifying the default or breach. The Joint Venturer shall have 15 days to cure the default or remedy the breach. Should he fail to do so, he shall be expelled from the Renard Venture. Such expulsion shall be effective without further notice and shall be retroactive to the date of the default or breach.

(b) Upon the bankruptcy or expulsion of a Joint Venturer, neither he nor his trustee or other representative shall have the right to participate in the management of the Renard Venture nor to make any further contribution or share in any subsequent profits, except that upon termination of the joint venture he will be treated in the same manner as any other Joint Venturer as far as profits and losses are concerned.

25. Death or Incompetency of Joint Venturer. The executor or administrator of a deceased Joint Venturer or the guardian or committee of an incompetent Joint Venturer shall succeed to the interest of such Joint Venturer in the Renard Venture, as an assignee, and shall be required to make operating and special contributions to the joint venture to the same extent as such Joint Venturer would have been required to make if not deceased or incompetent. Failure to do so shall subject the executor, administrator, guardian, or committee to expulsion from the joint venture under the provisions of Paragraph 24 above.

26. Liability of Joint Venturers.

(a) All Joint Venturers are liable jointly and severally to third persons.

(b) Bankrupt or expelled Joint Venturers and the representatives of deceased and incompetent Joint Venturers shall be liable, as Joint Venturers, for those debts and obligations of the Renard Venture incurred prior to the bankruptcy, expulsion, death, or incompetency, as the case may be, but shall not be liable for debts and obligations incurred by the joint venture thereafter.

27. Distribution Upon Liquidation. Upon the liquidation of the Renard Venture after its termination and after the debts of the joint venture have been paid, the net proceeds will be distributed as follows:

(a) Each Joint Venturer shall be paid the then balance of his capital account. Should the net proceeds be less than the total of the capital accounts then existing, such proceeds shall be distributed in proportion to the percentage the amount of his capital account then bears to the total amount of all the capital accounts then existing.

(b) If there is a balance remaining after the payment of all the capital accounts, each Joint Venturer shall be paid the then balance of his income account. If such balance is less than the total of the income accounts then existing, such balance shall be distributed in proportion to the percentage the amount of his income account then bears to the total of all the income accounts then existing.

(c) If there is a balance still remaining after the payment of all of the capital and income accounts, each Joint Venturer shall be paid from such balance a sum in proportion to the percentage the amount of his capital account on the date of liquidation bears to the total of all capital accounts on that date.

28. Arbitration. Any controversy or dispute arising out of or regarding this agreement, or with respect to its alleged breach, shall be determined by arbitration in the City and State of _____ [city] in accordance with the governing rules of the American Arbitration Association. The decision of the arbitrators shall be binding upon all of the parties, and judgment upon the award may be entered in any court of competent jurisdiction.

29. Entire Agreement. This agreement supersedes all agreements previously made between the parties relating to its subject matter. There are no other understandings or agreements between them.

30. Notices. All notices under this agreement shall be in writing and delivered personally or mailed by certified mail, postage prepaid, addressed to the parties at their last known addresses.

31. Non-waiver. No delay or failure by a party to exercise any right under this agreement, and no partial or single exercise of that right, shall constitute a waiver of that or any other right, unless otherwise expressly provided herein.

32. Headings. Headings in this agreement are for convenience only and shall not be used to interpret or construe its provisions.

33. Governing Law. This agreement and the joint venture created under it shall be construed in accordance with and governed by the laws of the State of _____ [state] .

34. Counterparts. This agreement may be executed in two or more counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original but all of which together shall constitute one and the same instrument.

35. Binding Effect. Except as herein otherwise provided, the terms and conditions of this agreement shall be binding upon, and inure to the benefit of, the parties and their respective heirs, executors, administrators, successors, and assigns.

In witness whereof the parties hereto have executed this agreement as of the day and year first above written.

FORM 20.18 Joint venture--syndication of general partner's partnership interest

COMMENT

This form illustrates a joint venture which allows investors to purchase from a general partner fractional shares of the general partner's interest in the partnership. Each general partner can thus acquire a number of investors in his partnership interest. By this method, the general partners can raise money to pay for the property owned by the general partnership and the investors are in a position to share in partnership profits.

Taxation as partnership:

For tax purposes, the general partnership and each joint venture of a share of a general partner's interest presumably would be treated as a separate partnership entity. Even if the investors are treated as members of the general partnership, they would be taxed as members of a partnership rather than as shareholders in a corporation. Under the "Check the Box" regulations a partnership or joint venture will be treated as a partnership unless it chooses to be an association taxed as a corporation. (See TB § 20.05).

Fractional shares of partnership interest:

Participation in a general partner's interest is effected by an investor offering to purchase a fractional share of such partner's interest. This form includes an illustration of such an offer.

FORM 20.19 Joint venture--division of proceeds of new mortgage--provisions for repayment

COMMENT

Any number of events during the course of a joint venture may make it desirable for the parties to enter into a new agreement. In this case, a new agreement is precipitated by the refinancing of the mortgage debt on the real estate owned by the joint venture. The proceeds of this refinancing are divided between the joint venturers, who at the same time define their respective obligations for the repayment of the new mortgage loan.

Owners of real property do not realize taxable gain or loss as a result of refinancing transactions, nor do such transactions affect the tax basis of the mortgaged property. However, if the mortgage debt exceeds the adjusted basis of the property, gain or loss may be realized in the debt transaction when the owners are relieved from repayment either upon a sale of the property or otherwise.

This agreement contains various provisions customarily found in real estate joint ventures. Apart from general management, the agreement specifically covers the collection of rents, the sharing of income, the payment of expenses, the division of future mortgage proceeds, and the buy-out of the interest of one of the venturers.

FORM

THIS AGREEMENT made _____ [month] _____ [day]
_____ [year] , by and between James C. Morris, of full age and a resident of _____ [city] , _____ [state] ("Morris"), and Delta Land Company, Inc., a corporation organized under the laws of the State of _____ [state] with its principal offices in _____ [city] , _____ [state] ("Delta").

WHEREAS, the parties are the joint owners, in division of a certain tract of land in _____ [city] , _____ [state] of real estate described on Exhibit A (the "tract of land"); and

WHEREAS, the parties own the tract of land in the proportions of an undivided one-quarter by Morris and an undivided three-quarters by Delta; and

WHEREAS, the parties desire to make a loan on the tract of land secured by a mortgage in favor of the Eastern Life Insurance Company; and

WHEREAS; the parties desire to cancel any and all previous agreements of joint venture or similar agreements between them with reference to the tract of land, and to substitute this agreement which sets forth fully their agreement.

NOW THEREFORE, the parties agree with each other as follows:

1. Termination of Prior Agreements. Upon the execution of this agreement all prior agreements between the parties with reference to the tract of land shall be null and void, and the joint ownership of the tract of land shall be governed by the terms of this agreement.

2. Percentages of Ownership. The parties own the tract of land in the proportions of an undivided one-quarter by Morris and an undivided three-quarters by Delta, irrespective of the fact that the title thereto may be registered in the name of one or both of the parties, or in the name of a joint venture composed of the parties.

3. Division of Mortgage Proceeds . One-fourth (1/4) of the proceeds from the mortgage loan being made by the Eastern Life Insurance Company shall be paid to Morris and the other three-fourths shall be paid to Delta. All expenses of procuring such loan, including closing costs and title insurance cost, shall be paid by the parties in the same proportion.

4. Repayment of Loan. The repayment of the mortgage loan shall be made by the parties in the same proportion in which the proceeds of the loan were received by each party, i.e., one-fourth (1/4) by Morris and three-fourths by Delta. Each party shall promptly pay his or its proportion of the repayment as the payments become due and payable in accordance with the terms of the loan.

5. Default in Repayment. Should either party fail to make his or its payment in repayment of the mortgage loan as the payment falls due, the other party shall have the right to make such payment on behalf of the defaulting party. In such event the party making the payment on behalf of the defaulting party shall be subrogated to all of the rights of the mortgage holder and shall have the right to bring suit or foreclosure proceedings, or both, against the defaulting party in the same manner in which the holder of the mortgage loan could do.

6. Management. The parties shall consult together with respect to the management, operation, maintenance, development, leasing, or other disposition of the tract of land. Morris shall act on behalf of the joint owners (the parties hereto) in collecting the rents and other proceeds of the tract of land and in paying all expenses incurred.

7. Collection of Rents. All rents and other proceeds from the tract of land shall be deposited for the account of the parties and disposed of in accordance with the terms of this agreement. The deposits may be kept in a special account in the name of Morris, who shall furnish an account of all receipts and expenditures to Delta annually, or more frequently, as requested by Delta.

8. Sharing of Income and Expenses. Each party shall share in the rents and other proceeds of the tract of land, arising out of its management, operation, maintenance, development, leasing or other disposition (subject to the conditions set forth in Paragraph 9), and shall bear all expenses (which term shall include losses) incurred, in proportion to their respective interests in the tract of land.

9. Application of Rents and Other Proceeds. All rents and issues and other proceeds from the tract of land, to the extent available, shall be applied:

(a) to the payment of all current expenses of operation and maintenance, taxes, insurance, mortgage interest, amortization, reserves for all other expenses or liabilities that may arise, and other reserves as the parties may agree upon. Reserves shall be applied to the payment of liabilities for which they were set up; and

(b) any remaining balance, including reserves never utilized, to the parties in proportion to their respective interests in the tract of land.

10. Sharing Proceeds of New Loan or Sale. In the event that a loan (subject to the provisions of Paragraph 11) is obtained on the security of the tract of land in substitution or in addition to the loan being made by Eastern Life Insurance Company, or in the event of the sale or other disposition of the tract of land in whole or in part, then, upon the consummation of any loan or the sale or other disposition, as the case may be, the proceeds shall be applied as follows:

(a) to the discharge of any existing loan, if necessary;

(b) to the payment of the expenses incidental to the loan or the expenses of sale, and all unpaid expenses of operation or maintenance, as the case may be; and

(c) any remaining balance to the parties in proportion to their respective interests. If the proceeds of a sale or other disposition shall be in the form of a mortgage, securities, or other property, other than cash, such proceeds shall be divided between the parties in the same proportion as herein provided, whether by separate distributions of such mortgage, securities, or other property or by undivided interests therein, as they may agree upon.

11. Consent to Mortgage. Neither of the parties shall have the right to mortgage his or its undivided interest in the tract of land without the other party's written consent.

12. Tax Obligations. Each of the parties shall pay all taxes as may be applicable to moneys or proceeds paid or credited to him or it pursuant to this agreement, and neither of the parties shall be liable to any extent for such taxes of the other party.

13. Receipt of Offer of Sale. In the event that a bona fide offer is received for the purchase of all or any portion of the tract of land, and one party (the "selling party") desires that the offer be accepted and requests in writing that the other party (the "objecting party") join in the execution of a written acceptance of the offer, and the objecting party does not join in the written acceptance for a period of ten days after receipt of the written request, then the selling party shall have the right, at its or his sole election, during the period of thirty (30) days next following the expiration of the ten-day period, by written notice to the objecting party given within the thirty (30) days, to require the objecting party to purchase from the selling party the latter's entire interest in the tract of land, or the portion thereof, as the case may be, covered by the offer, at a price which shall be that proportion of the price contained in the offer as is equal to the selling party's proportionate interest in the tract of land, and upon the other terms covered by the offer, at a date ninety (90) days after the giving of the written notice. In the event that the selling party shall give notice requiring the objecting party to purchase, the objecting party shall be obligated to and shall purchase from the selling party the latter's entire interest in the tract of land or the portion thereof, as the case may be, covered by the offer, within the time limit, at the price and upon the other terms as provided in this agreement. If the purchase by the objecting party shall cover the selling party's entire interest in the tract of land, then upon the consummation of the purchase by the objecting party this agreement shall terminate, except as to the distribution of any funds on hand belonging to the parties to this agreement and as to the payment of any liabilities and expenses payable under this agreement. If the purchase by the objecting party shall cover the selling party's interest in a portion of the tract of land, then upon the consummation of the purchase by the objecting party this agreement shall terminate only with respect to that portion, but shall continue in full force and effect in accordance with the terms of this agreement with respect to the remaining portion of the tract of land.

14. Liability on Mortgage. Since the tract of land is presently registered in the name of Morris, the note and the accompanying mortgage in favor of the Eastern Life Insurance Company has been or will be executed solely by Morris. Delta does hereby recognize and acknowledge that as joint owner of the tract of land it is liable for its proportionate share of the mortgage and for the repayment of the proportionate share, and Delta does hereby especially indemnify and agree to hold Morris harmless from any loss suffered by him by reason of his having legally assumed the responsibility for the repayment of the entire mortgage loan to the Eastern Life Insurance Company. Delta's liability, however, shall be limited to seventy-five percent (75%) of any loss so suffered by Morris.

15. Notices. All notices shall be given by registered or certified mail addressed to the parties at their respective addresses as shown below their respective signatures to this agreement. Either party may change the address by written notice sent by registered or certified mail to the other party.

16. Assignment. The interest of each party under this agreement shall not be assignable without the other party's written consent.

17. Arbitration. Any controversy or claim arising under Paragraphs 6, 7, 8, 9, or 13 of this agreement shall, upon the request of either party, be settled by arbitration. Any arbitration shall be carried out in accordance with the provisions of the Louisiana Arbitration Law, and any arbitration shall be had and determined within the _____ [city] , _____ [state] .

18. Entire Agreement. This agreement supersedes all agreements previously made between the parties relating to its subject matter. There are no other understandings or agreements between them.

19. Non-waiver. No delay or failure by either party to exercise any right under this agreement, and no partial or single exercise of that right, shall constitute a waiver of that or any other right, unless otherwise expressly provided herein.

20. Headings. Headings in this agreement are for convenience only and shall not be used to interpret or construe its provisions.

21. Governing Law. This agreement shall be construed in accordance with and governed by the laws of the _____ [state] .

22. Counterparts. This agreement may be executed in two or more counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original but all of which together shall constitute one and the same instrument.

23. Binding Effect. The provisions of this agreement shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of each of the parties and their respective heirs, legal representatives, successors, and assigns.

In witness whereof the parties have executed this agreement in duplicate original in _____ [city] , _____ [state] , on the day and date first hereinabove written.

FORM 20.20 Joint venture--simple joint venture agreement to construct a model home

COMMENT

This joint venture agreement is designed to be very simple agreement. It specifically sets forth the role of each party. As the venture is very limited in scope and duration, and each party has a very specific roll, it is unlikely that the joint venture would be considered a partnership for federal income tax purposes.

FORM

_____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year]

Mr. Gillian Smith, President
Smith Design & Construction, Inc.

_____ [address]
_____ [city] , _____ [state]

Dear Mr. Smith:

This letter is intended to set forth the agreement between Smith Design & Construction, Inc. ("Smith") and Dream Builders, Inc. ("Dream") relating to the construction of a model home. The model home will be constructed on a joint venture basis consisting of the following terms:

2. Name. The joint venture will be conducted in the name of "Dream Builders." Smith acknowledges that Dream has a propriety interest in the use of the name "Dream Builders" and that Dream is granting to the joint venture a limited license to use the name in the conduct of the joint venture's business, and that Smith shall have no right to use the name "Dream Builders" except in connection with the joint venture.

3. Duties of Smith. Smith shall perform the following duties in connection with the joint venture:

A. Supervise and manage the day-to-day activities associated with the construction of the model home, including, without limitation, the scheduling of delivery of materials and subcontractors required to construct the model home, supervising the activities of the subcontractors and obtaining the necessary permits and consents.

B. Provide the construction and design expertise necessary for the construction of the model home.

4. Duties of Dream. Dream shall perform the following duties in connection with the joint venture:

A. Maintain the books and records of the joint venture. Such books and records shall be available at all reasonable times for inspection and copying by Smith at the principal place of business of Dream (which shall also be the principal place of business of the joint venture).

B. Pay on behalf of the joint venture (from the proceeds of the sale of the home or from funds advanced to the joint venture by Dream) all reasonable costs and expenses incurred by the joint venture in furtherance of the purpose of the joint venture.

C. Enter into contracts on behalf of the joint venture including, without limitation, contracts for subcontractors and materials, contracts for the sale of the model home and contracts with real estate brokers for listing the model home for sale. Prior to entering into a contract on behalf of the joint venture, Dream shall consult with Smith regarding the advisability or necessity of such contract.

D. Use its best efforts to acquire the Lot for the benefit of the joint venture. If Dream shall not be able to acquire the lot within one (1) month after the date hereof, then this joint venture shall terminate. The lot shall be purchased in the name of Dream.

5. Division of Profits. Upon sale of the model home, the net profits of the joint venture shall be divided equally between Smith and Dream. For purposes of this joint venture, the term net profits shall mean the gross sales price received for the model home, less the costs and expenses incurred in constructing and selling the model home. Included in the costs and expenses shall be the cost of the Lot, plus an interest factor of ten percent (10%) per annum from the date of acquisition payable to Dream until the lot is sold.

6. Division of Losses. If the computation described in Paragraph 5 results in a negative balance, each party shall be responsible for an equal share of the loss.

7. Limits of the Venture. The relationship between Smith and Dream is limited to the undertaking described herein. Nothing herein shall be construed to create a general partnership between the parties or to authorize either party to act as general agent for the other.

8. Non-assignability. Neither party shall have the right to assign their interest hereunder (including their right to receive the net profit hereunder).

9. Miscellaneous

A. The parties acknowledge that it is their present intention to enter into a more permanent relationship for the construction of additional homes in the event this venture is successful and the parties establish a satisfactory working relationship.

B. The parties acknowledge that the model home will be used as a model home for a period of at least six (6) months following the completion of its construction and that as a result, any profit from the joint venture may be delayed for that period.

C. All leads received by either party for the construction of a new home as a result of the joint venture shall be the property of the joint venture and upon termination of the joint venture shall become the sole property of Dream.

D. The parties will use their best efforts to complete the model home within sixty (60) days of the acquisition of the Lot.

E. The parties agree that they will jointly determine the design of the model home; however, if the parties cannot agree prior to the time that the Lot is acquired, then this joint venture shall terminate, and the Lot shall belong solely to Dream.

If our agreement is accurately set forth in this letter, please have an authorized officer of Smith execute the enclosed copy of the letter and return it to the undersigned.

Very truly yours,

FORM 20.20A Tenant in Common Agreement (TIC)

COMMENT

This agreement is a simple tenant-in-common (TIC) agreement designed to comply with the IRS's requirements regarding TIC ownership. Generally, a TIC is a syndicated tenant-in-common real estate investment. In the typical scenario, an investor sells real estate and wants to find replacement property to a complete like kind exchange in accordance with Section 1031 of the Internal Revenue Code. Instead of purchasing one hundred percent of the replacement property, the investor purchases a small percentage of the replacement property. The investor defers the tax impact of the sale and does not have the implications of being the sole landlord. Most TIC offerings involve strong national tenants, include prearrange financing, if necessary, and/or include a management contract. The purchase of a TIC interest closely represents the purchase of a limited partnership interest in a typical real estate syndication. The main difference is that the investor owns his or her interest in the property. Also, there may be a securities law implication to the offering of a TIC as it has the look and feel of a security.

Additionally, the IRS in Rev. Proc. 2002-22 sets forth numerous requirements with which a TIC must comply in order to not be classified as a partnership. The property must not have more than 35 owners. The owners must own legal title to the property. Most TICs utilize a single member entity that is disregarded for tax purposes. That is, the investor uses a single member limited liability company to own the investment. There cannot be any special allocations. The sponsor, organizer, and/or manager cannot participate in the success of the venture or receive a bonus. The manage agreement must be renewable at least annually and it must be approved by the owners. The management agreement must, at a minimum, disburse revenue quarterly. The management fees must not be contingent upon the success of the venture or upon a percentage of the rents. The investors cannot waive their right to file a partition action, except as may be required by the lender. The lender cannot be affiliated with an owner, manager or a tenant. The parties cannot file a partnership return. Generally, TIC agreements with run with the land and will be binding upon subsequent owners. The following joint ownership agreement is intended to be used in a simple TIC arrangement.

FORM

THIS AGREEMENT entered into on _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], between those parties which became signatories by executing a counter part of the agreement.

WHEREAS, the parties are purchasing as tenants in common the property described in Exhibit A attached hereto (the "Property").

WHEREAS, each of the parties is purchasing the interest set forth below their signature.

WHEREAS, the parties desire to provide for the management and disposition of such Property.

IT IS, THEREFORE, AGREED AS FOLLOWS:

1. Down Payment and Title. The down payment, including closing costs with respect to the purchase of the Property shall be contributed equally by the parties in accordance with their respective ownership interest. Title to the Property shall be conveyed to each party as tenants in common.
2. Subsequent Contributions. Subsequent contributions of principal, interest, taxes, and all other costs or expenses on such Property shall be paid equally by each party in accordance with their ownership interest.
3. Sale of Property. Each owner shall have the right to sell his or her interest in the property at any time, subject to the terms and conditions of this Agreement. Such sale must be for the entire interest and to only one purchaser. Upon a sale of an interest in the property, the seller and buyer shall notify the management company and the other owners.
4. Management. All matters relating to the management and sale of the Property shall be decided by the owners. The owners agree to cooperate and reasonably designate a manager of the property at least annually.
5. Ownership and Restrictions. There shall be no more than thirty-five (35) owners of the property and in no event shall an owner subdivide or sell any interest in the property other than the entire interest. No party shall sell, transfer, mortgage, or otherwise dispose of, or encumber his undivided interest in such Property without first giving written notice to the other parties of his intention to do so. The notice shall set forth the terms on which the offering party proposes to sell, transfer, mortgage, or otherwise dispose of or encumber his interest, and the identity of the person or persons to whom it is proposed to sell, transfer, or encumber such interest. The other party shall have ten (10) days after the giving of notice in which to elect to acquire the interest on the same terms and conditions that offering party desires to purchase. If the party to whom the notice is given does not elect to acquire the interest on the terms provided herein within the ten-day period, then the party giving the notice shall have the right to sell, transfer, mortgage, or otherwise dispose of, or encumber his interest, on the same terms as provided in the notice, for a period of thirty (30) days after the expiration of the ten-day period. After the expiration of the 30-day period, the party giving the notice shall not sell, transfer, mortgage, or otherwise dispose of, or encumber his interest without again complying with the terms of this paragraph.
6. Notices. Any and all notices and demands given under this agreement shall be given by registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, postage prepaid, addressed to the parties at the last known address of such party.

7. Binding Effect. This agreement shall be binding upon and shall inure to the benefit of each of the parties, and their respective heirs, executors, administrators, legal representatives, successors, and assigns.

8. Entire Agreement. This agreement supersedes all agreements previously made between the parties relating to its subject matter. There are no other understandings or agreements between them.

9. Non-waiver. No delay or failure by either party to exercise any right under this agreement, and no partial or single exercise of that right, shall constitute a waiver of that or any other right, unless otherwise expressly provided herein.

10. Headings. Headings in this agreement are for convenience only and shall not be used to interpret or construe its provisions.

11. Governing Law. This agreement shall be construed in accordance with and governed by the laws of the State of _____.

12. Counterparts. This agreement may be executed in two or more counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original but all of which together shall constitute one and the same instrument.

FORM 20.21 General partnership--real estate operation

COMMENT

The choice of the partnership as the form in which to carry on a real estate business depends upon a combination of tax and nontax factors. The principal nontax factor is the rule which imposes individual responsibility upon each of the partners for all of the liabilities of the partnership. This is a major deterrent to the use of the partnership in any business enterprise. However, the ownership of real estate is one of the areas in which this problem of unlimited liability has frequently been solved by the use of the limited liability company. A limited liability company may be treated as a partnership for federal income tax purposes, but has the corporate characteristic of a limited liability for its owners. That is, absent extraordinary circumstances, the owners of a limited liability company are not personally liable for the debts of the company. Furthermore, a number of states allow a partnership to make an election to be treated as a partnership to make an election to be treated as a partnership having limited liability. The laws in each state vary widely on this issue. However, the typical statute requires the partnership to file an election with the Secretary of State's office. The partners of a partnership having limited liability do not have personal liability for acts or omissions of the other parties unless the partner has direct supervision or control over the negligent partner. However, under the typical statutory scheme, a partner would still be liable for the contractual debts and obligations of the partnership.

Comparison of partnership and corporate taxation:

The problem of unlimited liability may be solved by the use of the corporate form. The choice will often depend upon the potential impact of the income tax, by comparing the rate of tax levied upon corporations with the rate of tax on individual partners. A partner is taxed each year on his share of partnership earnings, whether or not distributed to him; a shareholder is taxed only when corporate income is distributed to him. A corporation may offer advantages if the shareholders are high bracket taxpayers or if the income is to be retained for further expansion, especially if it will not be distributed until liquidation of the corporation. On the other hand, corporate income faces a double tax: the corporate rate plus the tax at individual rates on dividend distributions. Thus, if corporate income is to be frequently distributed the partnership form may be preferable. The shareholders and the corporation make an S-election, then this difference between a corporation and a partnership is somewhat mitigated. For further discussion of comparison of partnership and corporate taxation, see TB § 20.05[4], at the beginning of this chapter.

Passive activity loss limitation:

Individuals, including partners or limited partners, are limited in the tax use of losses and expenses from passive activities. Passive activity losses (including expenses) can only be used to offset income from other passive activities of the taxpayer. Unused passive activity losses are carried forward indefinitely to offset future passive activity income or are allowed on a complete taxable disposition of the passive activity. Passive activities include a trade or business, or activity for the production of income, in which the taxpayer does not materially participate.

Generally speaking, rental real estate activity is considered to be a passive activity. IRC § 469(c)(2). Therefore, deductions and credits from rental activities can only offset income from other passive activities. Such deductions and credits cannot be deducted from nonpassive income, such as wages, dividends, interest, etc. However, there are two major exceptions to this general rule.

Certain eligible taxpayers who materially participate in rental real estate activities can deduct losses from such activities against nonpassive income. These eligible taxpayers include individuals and closely-held C corporations that meet special eligibility requirements. IRC § 469(c)(7). Second, an individual who owns at least a 10-percent interest and actively participates in rental real estate activity is permitted to offset up to $25,000 of passive activity losses against his nonpassive income. IRC § 469(i). For an in-depth discussion of the passive loss rules, see TB § 20.06[3].

Elements of agreement:

In general, a partnership agreement should cover at least the following points: (1) name and business; (2) term; (3) capital; (4) profit and loss; (5) distribution of positive cash flow; (6) salaries and drawings; (7) interest on capital; (8) management, duties, and restrictions; (9) banking; (10) books; (11) voluntary liquidation; (12) retirement; and (13) death. The forms in this group are designed to illustrate the special problems encountered in drafting partnership and limited partnership agreements in the real estate area.

Partnership tax aspects:

A partnership as such is not subject to the income tax. Fundamentally, the partnership entity is disregarded and only the partners in their individual capacities are liable for the payment of income tax. However, the partnership is the basic accounting unit and must file an annual information return. The taxable income of the partnership is computed in the same manner as that of an individual, except that certain items of income and deduction must be separately itemized, and except that the standard deduction, the deduction for personal exemptions, the deduction for foreign taxes, the charitable contribution deduction, the net operating loss deduction, and other itemized deductions applicable only to individuals, such as child care and medical expenses, are not allowed to the partnership. For tax treatment of partnerships, see TB § 20.05.

Partnership and partner tax returns:

The partnership, in its return, must separately state, and the partner must separately take into account on his return, his distributive shares of certain items including gains and losses from the sale or exchange of property; charitable contributions; dividend income; partially tax-exempt interest; and miscellaneous items required by the regulations.

Each partner's share of income is derived from the partnership return, with the character of each item of income, gain, loss, deduction, or credit retaining the same character as it had for the partnership. However, the tax treatment of items of partnership income, loss, deductions, and credits are determined at the partnership level on a unified basis rather than on the basis of individual partner treatment. In addition, each partner is required to treat partnership items on his return consistently with the treatment of the items on the partnership return. If the treatment is inconsistent and the consistency requirement is requested to be waived, the partner must file a statement identifying the inconsistency. Unless the consistency requirement is waived, adjustments will be made to conform the partner's treatment of the items with the treatment on the partnership return. The consistency rules do not apply to small partnerships, i.e., a partnership of ten or fewer partners who are individuals or estates, provided that each partner's share of any partnership item is the same as his distributive share of every other partnership item. A husband and wife are treated as one partner in a small partnership. For taxation of partnerships and partners, see TB § 20.06[1].

Partner's distributive share:

Each partner must include in his individual return his distributive share of each item of partnership income, gain, loss, deduction, or credit. The partner's distributive share is determined by the partnership agreement. If the agreement does not make such an allocation, or if the allocation does not have a "substantial economic effect," the partner's distributive share is determined in accordance with his interest in the partnership, taking into account all facts and circumstances. See TB § 20.06[1].

Real estate subject to "at risk" rules:

Holding real property is an activity which is not exempt from the "at risk" loss deduction limitations. A taxpayer cannot deduct losses derived from an activity which exceed the amount at risk by the taxpayer. The amount at risk is the amount of money and property contributed by the taxpayer to the activity, and borrowed amount for which the taxpayer is personally liable or has pledged property, other than property used in the subject activity, as security for the loan. The amount of nonrecourse financing is not at risk. Qualified nonrecourse financing however is treated as an amount at risk. Generally, qualified nonrecourse financing is amounts borrowed from an institutional lender, government entity, or an amount insured by a government entity. For further discussion of the "at risk" loss deduction limitation with respect to real estate, see TB § 20.06[2]. For a detailed discussion of the "at risk" rules, see The Tax Background to Chapter 1, "Partnerships," in Volume 1.

Partnership provisions:

This form contains the basic provisions of a general partnership agreement. The real estate activity of the partnership is principally reflected in the provisions dealing with the character of the business, the capital, and problems of management. Initially the partnership capital will consist of a contract to purchase real property which is to be contributed to the partnership by the partners. The partners will also contribute the cash required to close the contract. Additional funds, as required, will be provided equally by the partners.

All decisions with respect to management of the property require the consent of both partners. The partnership may be terminated by mutual consent. The death or retirement of a partner will terminate the partnership business, unless the remaining partner exercises an option to purchase the deceased or retiring partner's interest. However, a partnership having only one member will be considered a sole proprietorship for federal income tax purposes.

The books shall be closed and balanced at the end of each fiscal year. An annual audit shall be made as of the closing date.

10. Voluntary Termination. The partnership may be dissolved at any time by agreement of the partners, in which event the partners shall proceed with reasonable promptness to sell the real and personal property owned by the partnership and to liquidate its business. The partnership shall be dissolved also by the sale of all real property owned by it. Upon dissolution, the assets of the partnership business shall be used and distributed in the following order: (a) to pay or provide for the payment of all partnership liabilities and liquidating expenses and obligations (the partners may establish a reserve for contingent liabilities); (b) to equalize the partners' income accounts; (c) to discharge the balance of the partners' income accounts; (d) to equalize the partners' capital accounts; and (e) to discharge the balance of the partners' capital accounts.

(a) Notice, purchase option. Either partner shall have the right to withdraw from the partnership at the end of any fiscal year. Written notice of intention to retire shall be served upon the other partner at the office of the partnership at least three months before the end of the fiscal year. The withdrawal of either partner shall have no effect upon the continuance of the partnership business. The remaining partner shall have the right either to purchase the withdrawing partner's interest in the partnership or to terminate and liquidate the partnership business. If the remaining partner elects to purchase the interest of the retiring partner, he shall serve notice in writing of such election upon the withdrawing partner at the office of the partnership within two (2) months after receipt of his notice of intention to retire.

(b) Purchase Price. If the remaining partner elects to purchase the interest of the retiring partner, the purchase price and method of payment shall be the same as stated in Section 12 with reference to the purchase of a decedent's interest in the partnership.

(c) Liquidation. If the remaining partner does not elect to purchase the interest of the withdrawing partner, the partners shall proceed with reasonable promptness to sell the real and personal property owned by the partnership and to liquidate its business. The procedure as to liquidation and distribution of the assets of the partnership business shall be the same as stated in Section 10 with reference to voluntary termination.

12. Death.

(a) Purchase Option. Upon the death of a partner, the surviving partner shall have the right either to purchase the interest of the decedent in the partnership or to terminate and liquidate the partnership business. If the surviving partner elects to purchase the decedent's interest, he shall serve notice in writing of such election, within three months after the death of the decedent, upon the decedent's executor or administrator, or, if at the time of such election no legal representative has been appointed, upon any one of the decedent's known legal heirs at such heir's last known address.

(b) Purchase Price. If the surviving partner elects to purchase the decedent's interest in the partnership, the purchase price shall be equal to the decedent's capital account at the date of his death plus his income account as at the end of the prior fiscal year, increased by his share of partnership profits or decreased by his share of partnership losses for the period from the beginning of the fiscal year in which his death occurred until the end of the calendar month in which his death occurred, and decreased by withdrawals charged to his income account during such period. The purchase price, with interest at _____ percent (_____ %) shall be paid in four semiannual installments beginning six months after the end of the calendar month in which the decedent's death occurred.

(c) Liquidation. If the surviving partner does not elect to purchase the decedent's interest in the partnership, he shall proceed with reasonable promptness to sell the real and personal property owned by the partnership and to liquidate its business. The surviving partner and the estate of the deceased partner shall share equally in the profits and losses of the business during the period of liquidation, except that the decedent's estate shall not be liable for losses in excess of the decedent's interest in the partnership at the time of his death. No compensation shall be paid to the surviving partner for his services in liquidation. Except as otherwise stated in this agreement, the procedure for liquidation and distribution of the assets of the partnership shall be the same as stated in Section 10 with reference to voluntary termination.

13. Arbitration. Any controversy or claim arising out of or relating to this contract, or any breach thereof, shall be settled by arbitration in the _____ [city] , _____ [state] accordance with the governing rules of the American Arbitration Association. Judgment upon the award rendered may be entered in any court of competent jurisdiction.

16. Non-waiver. No delay or failure by either party to exercise any right under this agreement, and no partial or single exercise of that right, shall constitute a waiver of that or any other right, unless otherwise expressly provided herein.

17. Headings. Headings in this agreement are for convenience only and shall not be used to interpret or construe its provisions.

18. Governing Law. This agreement shall be construed in accordance with and governed by the laws of the State of _____ [state] .

19. Counterparts. This agreement may be executed in two or more counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original but all of which together shall constitute one and the same instrument.

20. Binding Effect. Except as otherwise expressly provided herein, the provisions of this agreement shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of each of the parties and their respective legal representatives, successors, and assigns.

FORM 20.22 General partnership--contribution of asset in kind

COMMENT

The contribution to a partnership of real property by one partner and cash by another presents a number of tax ramifications which must be clearly understood before an agreement can be drafted that will accurately accommodate the intention of the partners. Aside from the necessity of assigning a value to the real property to be contributed, the partners may find it desirable to make special provisions with respect to the allocation of depreciation between themselves and with respect to the distribution of gain or loss on any disposition of such property. Allocation of partnership items, however, must satisfy the requirement that they have substantial economic effect. Allocations lacking substantial economic effect or established primarily for tax avoidance purposes generally will not be recognized for tax purposes. For discussion of contributions to the partnership, including the partner's tax basis of contributed property, see TB § 20.06[1][c] at the beginning of this chapter.

Tax basis of contributed property:

The tax aspects can be best presented by a simple illustration. Suppose in the formation of a 50-50 partnership, partner A contributes a building which has an adjusted tax basis to him of $100,000, but has a value at the time of the contribution of $150,000. Partner B is willing to accept the asset at the value of $150,000, and makes a matching contribution of $150,000 in cash. The statute provides that no gain or loss is to be recognized to a partnership or to any of its partners in the case of a contribution of property to the partnership in exchange for an interest in the partnership. It provides also (a) that the tax basis of the partnership interest acquired by the contributing partner is the adjusted tax basis of the contributed property, and (b) that the tax basis of a contributed asset in the hands of the partnership is the adjusted tax basis in the hands of the contributing partner. So far as the partnership is concerned, this will require that cost recovery or depreciation and gain or loss be computed on the tax basis of $100,000, although the partners as between themselves have agreed that the contributing partner shall be credited with $150,000 as a capital contribution.

Economic effect of tax basis carryover:

In the computation of cost recovery in this example, the allowable tax basis will be $100,000. Partner B's share of the cost recovery deduction will not be as large as it would have been if the partnership had itself purchased the asset for $150,000. Should partner A compensate partner B for this "loss" of cost recovery allowances? The same type of problem arises on a sale. Suppose the asset is sold for $160,000 at a time when its tax basis after cost recovery allowances is $90,000 ($100,000 basis to the partnership minus $10,000 cost recovery allowance). How is the $70,000 gain to be allocated between the partners? Generally, the first $50,000 of gain should be reported by partner A, and the balance allocated between the partners in the ratio in which they share gains. Suppose, on the other hand, the asset is sold for $80,000 at a time when its tax basis after cost recovery is $90,000. Here, partner B's entire share of his "loss" is not deductible, since the partnership has sustained a loss of only $10,000. Should partner A compensate partner B for the unavailable portion of the latter's tax loss? Similar problems exist where the asset has a tax basis in the hands of the contributing partner which is more than the value at which it is accepted as a capital contribution.

Allocation of gain on sale of property:

Income, gain, loss, and deductions for property contributed to the partnership by a partner is shared among the partners under a method which takes into account the difference between the basis of the property contributed to the partnership, i.e., the contributing partner's adjusted basis, and its fair market value at the time of contribution.

Inaccurate basis calculations:

It is conceivable that the basis of an asset may, upon examination by the Service, turn out to be different than that represented by the contributing partner, thus altering the cost recovery or depreciation deduction available to the partnership and gain or loss on any disposition. It may be wise to include an indemnification by the contributing partner to cover the possibility that the adjusted basis will be found to be less than represented. Another alternative is a provision that if the basis of the property turns out to be less than represented, any resulting increase in the taxable income of the partnership is to be allocated to the partner who contributed the property.

Alternate sale or lease of property to partnership:

If a partner sells property to the partnership instead of contributing it, he has taxable gain or loss. Normally, the parties have it within their own control to determine which set of tax consequences will follow. The "sale" technique creates the simplest tax picture and may result in the most equitable tax distribution between the partners. However, where the contribution of real property to a partnership is utilized as a means of obtaining mortgage loans or other funds for further operations without incurring tax, the sale device may not be attractive. Another alternative is for the partner to retain title to the property under a lease with the partnership, with rent approximating the cost recovery or depreciation. This, too, is a method for simplifying the tax structure. The partner's rent income would be offset by the cost recovery or depreciation, and the partnership would take a deduction for the rent. For sale or lease of property by a partner to a partnership, see TB § 20.06[1][d].

Passive activity loss limitations:

Individuals, including partners, are limited in the tax use of losses, including expenses, from passive activities. Generally, passive activity losses can only offset income from the same or other passive activities. Unused losses are carried forward indefinitely to offset passive activity income in the following years, or until the activity is completely disposed of in a taxable disposition.

Generally speaking, rental real estate activity is considered to be a passive activity. IRC § 469(c)(2). Therefore, deductions and credits from rental activities can only offset income from other passive activities. Such deductions and credits cannot be deducted from nonpassive income, such as wages, dividends, interest, etc. However, there are two major exceptions to this general rule.

Certain eligible taxpayers who materially participate in rental real estate activities can deduct losses from such activities against nonpassive income. These eligible taxpayers include individuals and closely-held C corporations that meet special eligibility requirements. IRC § 469(c)(7). Second, an individual who owns at least a 10-percent interest and actively participates in rental real estate activity is permitted to offset up to $25,000 of passive activity losses against his nonpassive income. IRC § 469(i). (See the TB § 20.06[3]).

Fiscal year and tax year:

This agreement provides that the partnership's taxable year will be the calendar year. A partner's income is his distributive share of the partnership income for the taxable year of the partnership ending with or within his own taxable year. A partnership's taxable year must be the calendar year unless the Service is satisfied that there is a business purpose for a different taxable year. The deferral of income to partners is not considered a business purpose. An election is available to a partnership to adopt or change to a taxable year with a limited deferral period. This election is only available if the deferral period of the taxable year elected is not longer than the shorter of three months or the deferral period of the taxable year being changed.

FORM

THIS AGREEMENT made _____ [month] _____ [day] ,
_____ [year] , among James Adams, Charles Stone, and George Brown.

1. Name and Business. The parties hereby organize a partnership to own, build upon, alter, repair, rent, lease, subdivide, sell, and otherwise deal with real and personal property, particularly the real property to be contributed as capital, as described in Paragraph 3.

2. Term. The partnership shall begin on _____ [month] _____ [day] ,
_____ [year] , and continue until _____ [month] _____ [day] ,
_____ [year] , unless sooner terminated by unanimous decision of the partners or by the sale of the real property to be contributed as capital, as described in Paragraph 3.

3. Capital.

(a) The original capital of the partnership shall consist of One Million Eight Hundred Thousand Dollars ($1,800,000) cash, to be contributed equally by Adams and Stone, and a fee interest in the land and a building at _____ [address], _____ [city], _____ [state], (the "property"), to be contributed by Brown, and to be deemed to have a value of Nine Hundred Thousand Dollars ($900,000) for purposes of this agreement. The partners, by mutual agreement, may at the end of any partnership year transfer a portion of partnership profits to the capital of the partnership. No partner shall withdraw any part of his original or additional capital account without the written consent of the other partners. The capital accounts of the partners shall be maintained in the proportions in which they share in the partnership profits and losses.

(b) Brown warrants that he has full power to convey the property and that it is free and clear of all liens and encumbrances except those set forth in Schedule A annexed hereto and made a part hereof. The following items shall be apportioned between Brown and the partnership as of _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year]: rents, interest on mortgages, premiums on existing transferable insurance policies, taxes, sewer rents, and water charges.

4. Profit and Loss. The net profits or net losses of the partnership shall be distributed or charged to the partners in equal proportions, and shall be credited or charged, as the case may be, to the drawing account of each partner.

5. Salaries and Drawings. No partner shall receive any salary for services rendered to the partnership. The partners shall have equal drawings in such amounts as they may agree upon. If at the end of any partnership year, there is a debit balance in the drawing account of any partner, such partner shall, within a reasonable time, clear such debit balance by a payment to the partnership.

6. Interest. No interest shall be paid to any partner on his original capital, his additional capital, or his credit balance in his drawing account.

7. Management, Duties, and Restrictions. Each partner shall have an equal voice in the management of the partnership. No partner shall, without the consent of the others, borrow or lend money on behalf of the partnership; enter into a contract to sell the property; sell, assign, or pledge his interest in the partnership; or execute any lease or mortgage with respect to the property. In all other matters relating to the business of the partnership, a decision of two of the partners shall be controlling.

8. Banking. All funds of the partnership shall be deposited in partnership bank accounts, as designated from time to time by the partners. All withdrawals from partnership accounts shall be made upon checks signed by two of the partners.

9. Books. The partnership books shall be maintained on the accrual basis, and shall be closed and balanced at the end of each calendar year.

10. Retirement.

(a) Notice, Purchase Option. Any partner may retire from the partnership at the end of a calendar year, provided he has given two months' advance written notice of his intention to the other partners. A retirement shall cause a dissolution of the partnership, but the remaining partners shall have the right to continue the partnership business, provided the continuing partnership pays to the retiring partner the value of his interest in the partnership.

(b) Valuation. For this purpose, the value of the interest of a retiring partner shall be the amount of his capital account, plus or minus any credit or debit balance in his drawing account, all determined at the end of such calendar year in accordance with the accounting methods regularly used by the partnership.

(c) Payment. Payment of the amount due to the retiring partner shall be made in cash in two equal installments, the first within sixty (60) days and the second within one hundred twenty (120) days after the end of the calendar year. Upon payment, the retiring partner shall have no further interest in the partnership or in its business or assets.

(d) Liquidation. If the continuing partnership does not elect to purchase the interest of the retiring partner, the partnership shall promptly sell the property and commence to wind up its affairs and shall distribute its assets in liquidation under the supervision of all of the partners. All profits and losses in liquidation shall be allocated equally to the partners. In liquidation, the partnership shall first pay all its debts, then pay credit balances in the drawing accounts of the partners, and finally distribute all other proceeds against the capital accounts of the partners.

11. Death.

(a) Purchase Option. The death of any partner shall cause a dissolution of the partnership, but the surviving partners shall have the right to continue the partnership business, provided the continuing partnership pays to the estate of the deceased partner the value of his interest in the partnership.

(b) Valuation. For this purpose, the value of the interest of a deceased partner shall be the amount of his capital account, plus or minus any credit or debit balance in his drawing account, all determined as at the end of the month in which his death occurs in accordance with the accounting methods regularly used by the partnership.

(c) Payment. Payment for the interest of a deceased partner shall be made to his estate in cash in three (3) equal installments, the first within sixty (60) days, the second within one hundred twenty (120) days, and the third within one hundred eighty (180) days after the end of the month in which death occurs. Upon such payment, the estate of the deceased partner shall have no further interest in the partnership or in its business or assets.

(d) Liquidation. If the continuing partnership does not elect to purchase the interest of the deceased partner, the partnership shall promptly sell the property and commence to wind up its affairs and shall distribute its assets in liquidation under the supervision of the surviving partners and a representative of the deceased partner's estate. All profits and losses in liquidation shall be allocated equally among the surviving partners and the deceased partner's estate. In liquidation, the partnership shall first pay all its debts, then pay credit balances in the partners' drawing accounts, and finally distribute all other proceeds against the partners' capital accounts.

12. Entire Agreement. This agreement supersedes all agreements previously made between the parties relating to its subject matter. There are no other understandings or agreements between them.

13. Notices. All notices under this agreement shall be in writing and delivered personally or mailed by certified mail, postage prepaid, addressed to the parties at their last known addresses.

14. Non-waiver. No delay or failure by a party to exercise any right under this agreement, and no partial or single exercise of that right, shall constitute a waiver of that or any other right, unless otherwise expressly provided herein.

15. Headings. Headings in this agreement are for convenience only and shall not be used to interpret or construe its provisions.

16. Governing Law. This agreement shall be construed in accordance with and governed by the laws of the State of _____ [state] .

17. Counterparts. This agreement may be executed in two or more counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original but all of which together shall constitute one and the same instrument.

18. Binding Effect. Except as otherwise expressly provided herein, the provisions of this agreement shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of each of the parties and their respective legal representatives, successors, and assigns.

In witness whereof the parties have signed this agreement.

FORM 20.23 General partnership--managing partner--retirement at book value--option in decedent's estate to continue as limited partner

COMMENT

The ownership of real estate in noncorporate form by groups of individuals may require management of the property and of the business by a skilled person or organization. This can be addressed by having a managing partner or by the hiring of a qualified management company.

In this partnership the managing partner is a corporation which owns a 50 percent interest in the enterprise. Final responsibility for the day-to-day affairs of the partnership rests with the managing partner. For these services the managing partner is to receive as compensation 10 percent of the net profits of the partnership. Since this compensation is computed wholly on the basis of partnership income, it will be treated as part of the share of partnership income distributable to the managing partner.

Partner retirement:

Provisions in a partnership agreement deal with the retirement and death of a partner. Under this agreement a partner may retire upon notice; but such a notice operates to give the remaining partners an option to purchase the interest of the retiring partner. If the retiring partner's interest is not purchased, the partnership is dissolved and must proceed to liquidate. In this agreement the price to be paid to the retiring partner is the book value of his partnership interest. Generally, a retiring partner realizes capital gain or loss measured by the difference between the amount realized and the adjusted basis of his partnership interest. Since book value in most cases is the same as the partner's adjusted basis for his partnership interest, no gain or loss is realized in such case by a retirement payment measured by book value. For a detailed discussion of partner retirement, see The Tax Background to Chapter 1, "Partnerships," in Volume 1.

Close of tax year upon liquidation:

The taxable year of a partnership closes as to a partner whose interest in the partnership is completely liquidated. In a two-man partnership the retirement of one partner and the liquidation of his interest closes the partnership taxable year for both partners, since the partnership itself is terminated. In a multiple-member partnership, the retirement of a partner and the complete liquidation of his partnership interest will result in the closing of the taxable year of the partnership for the retiring member, but it will not affect the partnership taxable year for the remaining partners who continue to carry on the partnership business. If the partnership's taxable year closes for any partner, that partner must pick up his share of partnership income (or loss) for the closed partnership year. This may result in the "bunching" of partnership income, if the partnership's taxable year differs from the taxable year of the retiring partner. For a complete discussion of the close of the partnership tax year upon its liquidation, see The Tax Background to Chapter 1, "Partnerships," in Volume 1.

Continuation on death of partner:

Upon the death of a partner under this agreement, his personal representative has the option to continue the partnership business but with the decedent's interest converted into a limited partner's interest. The Revenue Code provides that the taxable year of a partnership, with respect to a partner who dies, does not close prior to the end of the partnership year. Under this provision, the partnership income for the year of death is not precipitated in the decedent's return. Instead, the partnership income for the year of death is carried over to his estate or to his successor's income tax return. An exception to this provision obtains in the case of a partnership agreement which provides that the sale of a deceased partner's interest occurs upon the date of his death. In such case, the taxable year of the partnership with respect to the deceased partner closes upon his death, and the final return of the deceased partner will include his share of partnership income (or loss) for the period ending with his death. For continuation of the partnership on the death of a partner, see The Tax Background to Chapter 1, "Partnerships," in Volume 1.

Over-depreciation:

It should be noted that the special statutory provisions relating to "over-depreciated" property may produce some ordinary income on the buy-out of the partnership interest of a retiring partner or of the estate of a deceased partner. These provisions treat over-depreciated property as "unrealized receivables" to the extent that the partnership would have had ordinary income upon a sale for fair market value at the time of the distribution in question. See The Tax Background to Chapter 1, "Partnerships," in Volume 1.

Gentlemen:

Reference is made to the parcel of land located in Cook County, Illinois, currently being acquired by you (the "property"). The property consists of approximately 2,000 acres, and is commonly known as the Village of Woodbriar. We understand that title to the property is being taken in the name of Woodbriar Development Corporation, an Illinois corporation, for purposes of convenience, so that such corporation may execute the purchase money mortgage and promissory note representing the balance of the purchase price. We acknowledge that you have expended considerable effort, time, and funds in connection with the acquisition of the property, and that it is your intention to manage and develop it into residential housing, commercial areas, and the like, all in accordance with a general master plan. You have indicated your willingness, and by this letter we indicate our desire to join with you in the acquisition and development of the property, and to that end to create hereby a partnership for these purposes. Accordingly, it is our agreement as follows:

1. Partners. You shall be referred to herein as the Managing Partner and as the Original Partner, and shall own fifty percent (50%) of the partnership. The remainder of the parties shall be referred to as the Other Partners. The Original Partner (the Managing Partner), together with the Other Partners, shall collectively be referred to as the Partners.
2. Capital. The capital of the partnership shall be the sum of Six Hundred Thousand Dollars ($600,000). The names of the Partners and their respective interests and capital contributions shall be as set forth on Exhibit A attached hereto and made a part hereof.

Each of the Other Partners, forthwith, shall contribute, in cash, the amount of the capital contribution set forth after his name, provided, however, that the Original Partner shall advance the balance of its contribution as and when, in the discretion of the Managing Partner, it is required. When the outstanding capital contribution of the Original Partner equals the aggregate of the outstanding capital contributions of the Other Partners, whether by virtue of additional contributions by the Original Partner or distributions to the Other Partners under the provisions of Paragraph 8, the Partners shall contribute all additional funds required for the partnership in proportion to their respective interests in the partnership. Additional contributions shall be made upon call and demand by the Managing Partner, provided that the Other Partners shall at no time be required to increase their outstanding capital contributions over the amount of their original capital contributions. In the event of the failure of a Partner to respond to such call by the Managing Partner, his percentage interest shall be decreased in the proportion which his default bears to the entire capitalization of the partnership.

3. Percentages of Interest. Each Partner shall own an undivided interest in and to the partnership in proportion to his respective percentage set forth after his name on Exhibit A, and each shall be entitled to share in the net profits of the partnership and in any distribution of funds available for distribution, whether arising out of profits or not, in the same proportion, and shall be liable, as between themselves, for the net losses, if any, in the same proportion. No interest shall be paid on contributions of capital to the partnership or upon any undrawn profits of any Partner which are credited to his capital account.

4. Partnership Business. The business to be conducted by the partnership shall be that of acquiring the property for investment and for exploitation.

5. Term. The term for which the partnership is organized shall commence on _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , and shall continue until _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , or until dissolved upon the occurrence of the death of a Partner, by operation of law, or by and upon the mutual agreement and consent of the Partners.

6. Management. The general management and final determination of all questions relating to the daily business affairs and business policies of the partnership shall rest in the Managing Partner. The Managing Partner is authorized and empowered to execute (without requiring the signature and execution by the Other Partners) any and all escrow instructions, contracts, deeds, promissory notes, trust deeds, subdivision maps, etc., for and on behalf and in the name of the Partners in connection with the acquisition, sale, and hypothecation of any and all of the property.

The management, operation, and development of the business affairs of the partnership shall be at the risk of the partnership and not at the risk of the Managing Partner, except to the extent of the Managing Partner's interest in the partnership. The Partners shall hold and save the Managing Partner free and harmless of and from any and all claims, demands, and charges of every kind and character, whatsoever, arising out of its management, except as to those arising out of its willful misconduct.

In consideration of all services to be rendered, the Managing Partner shall receive a sum equal to 10 percent of all the partnership's net profits, and shall draw such compensation out of funds available for distribution to the Partners.

7. Assignment. No Partner may sell, assign, transfer, mortgage, grant a security interest, or hypothecate his interest in the partnership or its assets to any person, firm, or corporation, other than the other parties hereto. In addition, no interest of any Partner in the partnership or its assets shall be transferred by operation of law or by any assignment by operation of law, except upon the death of a Partner, as provided in Paragraph 13 below.

8. Distributions. The funds of the partnership shall be distributed to the Partners in proportion to the outstanding capital contributions, at the time and in the amounts as the Managing Partner may see fit. All net distributions, however, shall be made to the Other Partners (provided their then outstanding capital contributions exceed those of the Original Partner) until such time as their outstanding capital contributions equal the outstanding capital contributions of the Original Partner. Net profits shall augment the individual capital accounts of each Partner and net losses shall diminish the capital accounts in accordance with the respective interests set forth in Exhibit A.

9. Books. Complete records and books of account shall be kept and maintained in the office of the partnership according to the best standard accounting practices. Each of the Partners shall be entitled at any time to examine the books and records personally, or by agent, and to make copies or excerpts.

10. Banking. All partnership moneys shall be deposited in the name of the partnership at the bank or banks which the Managing Partner shall select. All sums withdrawn therefrom shall be withdrawn by check signed by the Managing Partner.

11. Fiscal Year. The fiscal year and the accounting period of the partnership shall be the calendar year. A complete statement of the condition of the partnership and an accounting between the Partners shall be prepared and made at the end of each fiscal year of the partnership.

12. Withdrawal.

(a) Notice. Any partner who desires to withdraw from the partnership shall give written notice to the remaining Partners of such intention. The notice shall contain the date of withdrawal. If the notice is given four months or more before the close of the partnership's current accounting period, the retirement shall be effective at the close thereof. If the notice is given less than four months before the close of the current accounting period, the retirement shall be effective at the close of the succeeding accounting period.

(b) Purchase Option. Upon receipt of notice from a retiring Partner, the remaining Partners shall have the option to purchase the retiring Partner's interest as of the effective date of the retirement. The option shall be exercised by written notice given to the retiring Partner before the effective date of retirement. If all the remaining Partners elect to purchase the retiring Partner's interest, such interest shall be acquired by the remaining Partners in the same proportions as their respective interests in the partnership. If all remaining Partners do not desire to acquire their proportionate shares of the retiring Partner's interest, the remaining Partner who does desire to acquire such interest shall be entitled to acquire the proportionate share of the retiring Partner's interest as the percentage of his respective interest in the partnership bears to the total percentage of the interests in the partnership held by all of the Partners desiring to acquire the retiring Partner's interest. Immediately following the effective date, the retiring Partner's interest shall automatically vest in and become the property of those remaining Partners who have elected to acquire such interest.

(c) Purchase Price. The price to be paid for a retiring Partner's interest shall be the book value of the interest at the effective date of retirement. The purchasing Partners shall pay the price in cash to the retiring Partner within 90 days after the effective date of retirement.

(d) Dissolution. If none of the remaining Partners shall purchase the retiring Partner's interest, the partnership shall be deemed dissolved as of the effective date of retirement, and all the Partners shall proceed with reasonable promptness to liquidate the partnership in an orderly fashion and pursuant to the laws of the State of _____ [state].

13. Death of Partner. If any Partner shall die and bequeath his partnership interest to a third person or persons or to a testamentary trust in which a third person or persons is a beneficiary, or if any Partner shall die intestate, and if, within 60 days after the death of the deceased Partner, his personal representative shall instruct the remaining Partners in writing to continue the partnership business, then the decedent's personal representative shall succeed to the decedent's interest and the partnership business shall continue among the remaining Partners and the decedent's personal representative upon the following terms and conditions:

(a) Limited Partnership. The partnership business shall be continued by the decedent's personal representative and the remaining Partners as a limited partnership in which the decedent's personal representative shall be the limited partner. The limited partnership shall continue until the death or withdrawal of any general Partner or until the consent of a majority in interest of the general Partners to dissolve the partnership. The Partnership and the Partners agree to make any and all filings and elections and to execute and deliver any and all documents and amendments hereto in order to effectuate the conversion of the interest to a limited partnership. Each Partner hereby appoints the Managing Partner as its attorney in fact to execute on such Partner's behalf any such filings, documents or amendments.

(b) Capital Contributions. Each Partner shall contribute to the capital of the new limited partnership the book value of his interest in the Partnership as at the date of the deceased Partner's death.

(c) Profits and Losses. Each general or limited Partner, as the case may be, shall be entitled to receive the proportion of the partnership profits which he or the decedent from whom he acquired his partnership interest was entitled to receive prior to the decedent's death. No limited Partner shall be liable for any partnership losses in excess of his contribution to the capital of the partnership, and the amount, if any, by which his proportionate share of such losses shall exceed his capital contribution shall be borne by the general Partners.

(d) Probate Transfers. Upon the entry of any order of distribution by the court having probate jurisdiction of the estate of the decedent distributing his partnership interest to his devisees, legatees, heirs, or to the trustee of a testamentary trust of which a third person or persons is the beneficiary, such devisee, legatee, heir, or trustee shall become a limited Partner and shall be admitted to all the rights of the decedent's personal representative in the limited partnership. If any trustee, who is a limited Partner, shall at any time distribute the decedent's partnership interest to the decedent's spouse, issue, or beneficiary, such spouse, issue, or beneficiary shall likewise become a limited Partner in the place and stead of the trustee.

(e) Withdrawal. Any general or limited Partner of the limited partnership shall have the right to withdraw therefrom upon the terms and conditions set forth in Paragraph 12, except that the option to purchase the retiring Partner's interest shall rest only in the general Partners.

(f) Purchase Alternative. If any Partner shall die and bequeath his partnership interest to a third person or persons or to a testamentary trust in which a third person or persons is a beneficiary, or if any Partners shall die intestate, and if, within sixty (60) days after the death of the deceased Partner, his personal representative shall not instruct the remaining Partners in writing to continue the partnership business, the decedent's interest shall automatically vest in the remaining Partners as of the last day of the month in which the death occurs. In such event, the deceased Partner's personal representative shall be treated as if he were a retiring Partner whose interest has been purchased proportionately by all the remaining Partners, effective as of the last day of the month in which the death occurs, pursuant to the terms and conditions set forth in Paragraph 12.

(g) Terms and Conditions. All of the terms and conditions of this agreement shall apply to the limited partnership, except that the death of a limited Partner shall not dissolve or terminate the limited partnership.

14. Waiver of Right of Partition. Each of the Partners waives any and all rights to partition the Partnership property or any part thereof.

15. Governing Law. The partnership agreement, the relations, rights, and duties of the Partners among themselves, and all matters pertaining to the partnership and the partnership property shall be governed by the Illinois law applicable to partnerships.

16. Arbitration. Any controversy or claim arising out of or in connection with this agreement, or any breach thereof, shall be settled by arbitration in Chicago, Illinois, in accordance with the governing rules of the American Arbitration Association. The decision of the arbitrators shall be final, and judgment upon the award rendered may be entered in any court of competent jurisdiction.

17. Entire Agreement. This agreement supersedes all agreements previously made between the parties relating to its subject matter. There are no other understandings or agreements between them.

18. Notices. All notices under this agreement shall be in writing and delivered personally or mailed by certified mail, postage prepaid, addressed to the parties at their last known addresses.

19. Non-waiver. No delay or failure by a party to exercise any right under this agreement, and no partial or single exercise of that right, shall constitute a waiver of that or any other right, unless otherwise expressly provided herein.

20. Headings. Headings in this agreement are for convenience only and shall not be used to interpret or construe its provisions.

21. Counterparts. This agreement may be executed in two or more counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original but all of which together shall constitute one and the same instrument.

22. Binding Effect. Except as otherwise expressly provided herein, the provisions of this agreement shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of each of the parties and their respective legal representatives, successors, and assigns.

Kindly indicate your acceptance and approval of the terms of this agreement on the copies provided for our records.

Very truly yours,

FORM 20.24 General partnership--organized upon liquidation of corporation--managing partners--revaluation upon death or retirement of partner

COMMENT

There are situations in which it is advisable to convert a business enterprise from the corporate form to the partnership form. The tax consequence of the corporate liquidation may by itself be a significant factor, because generally the liquidating distribution, whether distributed to the shareholders or to the partnership for the account of the shareholders, is a taxable transaction in which gain or loss is realized. The gain or loss is the difference between the fair market value of the assets received by each shareholder and the cost or other basis to him of his shares. If a going corporate business is liquidated and thereafter continued by the former shareholders, there is the question of the existence of goodwill as an element of value in the distributed assets. As to the comparison of partnership and corporate taxation, see TB § 20.05[4] at the beginning of this chapter. As to tax treatment of partnerships, see TB § 20.06. As to tax treatment of corporations, see TB § 20.07.

Revaluation on death or retirement:

In this agreement, the retirement or death of a partner operates to give the remaining or surviving partners an option to acquire the interest of the retiring or deceased partner. If an election is made, the assets of the partnership are to be revalued for the purpose of fixing the buy-out price. Since the values of partnership assets may reflect substantial appreciation or depreciation, an agreement to pay for a partner's interest measured by book value may be unfair to one of the parties. This agreement sets up an initial valuation procedure to be used by the partnership's accountant, and an arbitration procedure for settling the valuation problem if either party refuses to accept the initial valuation. A retiring partner will, of course, realize gain or loss upon his buy-out. The estate of a deceased partner, however, is entitled to a tax-free recovery of the value of the decedent's interest in the partnership. In either case, it should be noted, the share of partnership income for the period up to retirement or death is not reportable by the continuing or surviving partners. For a full discussion of the reevaluation of a partnership's assets on the death or retirement of a partner, see The Tax Background to Chapter 1, "Partnerships," in Volume 1.

Effect of buy-out on basis:

The amounts paid by partners for the retiring or deceased partner's interest are not deductible but are added to the bases of their partnership interests. As a general rule, the death of a partner has no effect on the basis to the partnership of partnership property. However, the surviving partners may elect to increase the bases of the partnership assets by the difference between the amount paid the estate and the decedent's pro rata share of the partnership's bases for its assets. This election is afforded by the statute in the case of a transfer of an interest in a partnership by sale or exchange or upon the death of a partner. A different problem exists where payments are made by the continuing partnership, as distinguished from payments by partners, in liquidation of the interest of a deceased partner (or retiring partner). In such case, if an election to adjust basis is in effect, the partnership is required to adjust the bases of its remaining assets to the extent gain or loss is recognized to the decedent's successor (or to the retiring partner). For a detailed discussion of the effect of a buy-out on the surviving partners' bases of their partnership interests, see The Tax Background to Chapter 1.

None of the managing partners shall be authorized or empowered without the consent of a majority of the managing partners, on behalf of the partnership, to borrow or lend money, or make, deliver, or accept any commercial paper, or execute any mortgage, bond, lease, deed, release, or agreement, or purchase or contract to purchase, or sell or contract to sell any property, or compromise or release any of its claims or debts, or hire any person for a period in excess of two weeks or discharge any person who shall have been hired for a period in excess of two weeks, or obligate the partnership in an amount in excess of or

(d) Duties, Restrictions. Each managing partner may have other business interests and may engage in any other business or trade, profession, or employment whatsoever, on his own account, or in partnership with or as an employee of or as an officer, director, or shareholder of any other person, firm, or corporation, and he shall not be required to devote his entire time to the business of the partnership. Without the consent of the other managing partners, no managing partner shall receive any salary or other special compensation for services to be rendered by him, except that William Harris or any business entity with which he may be associated shall be entitled to receive compensation for all services rendered by him or such business entity in negotiating leases, mortgages, or sales for the partnership, if and to the extent agreed upon by a majority of the managing partners other than William Harris.

8. Banking. All funds of the partnership shall be deposited and kept in its name in such partnership bank account or accounts as the managing partners shall designate. No partner shall be entitled to receive any interest upon undrawn profits, without the express written consent of all other partners. Moreover, such undrawn profits shall not be deemed an increase of the partner's capital, and he shall not be entitled to an increase in the share of the partnership's profits, without all the other partners' express written consent.

11. Death.

(a) Purchase, Liquidation. Upon the death of any partner, the surviving partners shall have the right either to purchase the decedent's entire interest or share in the partnership ("entire partnership interest"), or to terminate and liquidate the partnership business.

(b) Election to Purchase. If the surviving partners (or one or more of them) elect to purchase the decedent's entire partnership interest, they shall give written notice of the election to the decedent's executor or administrator, within the period of three months after decedent's death, or within the period of two (2) months after the qualification of his executor or administrator, whichever period expires later (the "acceptance period"). In that event, the decedent's entire partnership interest shall be purchased at the price and in the manner hereinafter provided, and the partnership business shall be continued by the successor partnership comprising the surviving partners.

(c) Adjusted Book Value. If the surviving partners elect to purchase decedent's entire partnership interest, the purchase price shall be its book value, as it appears upon the books and records of the partnership as of the close of business on the date of the decedent's death, as adjusted by substituting the fair market value as of that date, in place of the book value, of any real estate owned by the partnership. The adjusted book value shall be computed by the partnership's regular certified public accountant, in accordance with the accounting practices regularly followed by the partnership, and in cases not covered by such practices, in accordance with generally accepted accounting practices. No allowance shall be made for goodwill, trade name, patents, or other intangible assets, except as those assets have been reflected on the partnership books immediately prior to the decedent's death. Such book value shall include and reflect the decedent's capital account as at the end of the last accounting year as shown on the partnership books, increased by the decedent's share of partnership profits or decreased by his share of partnership losses for the period from the beginning of the accounting year in which his death occurred until the date of his death, and increased by contributions and decreased by withdrawals during such period. In making the adjustment for the fair market value of real estate, the accountant shall rely on and use the written appraisal of a licensed real estate appraiser, selected by the accountant for that purpose at the expense of the partnership. A statement showing the adjusted book value and the supporting items and computations (including, without limitation, a copy of the real estate appraisal relied on), shall be completed by the accountant and copies delivered to the legal representatives of the deceased partner's estate and to the surviving partners, before the expiration of the acceptance period. The adjusted book value, as set out in the accountant's statement, shall constitute and be deemed to be the purchase price for the decedent's entire partnership interest, binding upon all parties, unless and until changed by the parties' written agreement or by arbitration award, as hereinafter provided.

(d) Purchase Rights. Each surviving partner shall have the primary right to purchase that portion of the decedent's entire partnership interest computed by the proportion which such survivor's percentage interest in the profits of the partnership bears to the percentage interests of the other surviving partners in the profits, and also a secondary right to purchase any remaining portion of the decedent's partnership interest not desired for purchase by any other surviving partner in the exercise of his primary right; if there is more than one surviving partner desiring to exercise secondary rights to purchase any remaining portion, they shall be entitled to purchase the same in equal parts. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the election of the surviving partners to purchase portions not aggregating the decedent's entire partnership interest shall be of no effect.

(e) Proportionate Purchase Price. If two (2) or more surviving partners shall accept for purchase the decedent's entire partnership interest, the portion of the purchase price payable by each surviving partner shall be the sum determined by multiplying the purchase price for the entire partnership interest by the fraction representing the portion purchased by the respective surviving partner.

(f) Purchase Terms. The purchase price due from each purchasing surviving partner ("Purchaser") shall be paid by the Purchaser to the decedent's personal representatives, as follows: thirty percent (30%) in cash, on the Closing Date (as defined in subparagraph (g) below); and the balance by the Purchaser's execution and delivery of twelve (12) promissory notes. Each promissory note shall be dated as of the Closing Date, be in the principal amount of one-twelfth (1/12) of the balance of the purchase price, and be payable with interest at the rate of nine percent (9%) per annum to the order of the decedent's personal representatives at a New York City bank. The first note shall be payable on the 30th day of January following the calendar year in which the Closing Date falls, and the remaining eleven (11) notes shall be payable successively, one every three months thereafter. The notes shall provide for the privilege of prepayment at any time without premium or penalty, and shall recite that all the notes shall become due at the holder's option if all or any part of the principal or interest due on any note remains unpaid for thirty (30) days after the date on which the same becomes due by the terms of such note.

(g) Closing Date. The Closing Date shall be the 30th day after the expiration of the acceptance period, provided, however, that the Purchaser shall have the right to advance the date of closing on five (5) days' written notice to the decedent's personal representatives. The closing shall be held at the then principal office of the partnership or at any other place agreed to by the parties.

(h) Transfer of Interest. The Purchaser(s) shall deliver the purchase price notes and initial cash payments to the decedent's personal representatives in exchange for their delivering to the Purchasers, appropriate instruments of transfer and assignment, duly executed, which transfers and assigns to the respective Purchasers all of the decedent's rights, title and interests so purchased in the Partnership, free and clear of all liens or encumbrances of any nature or kind. Such sale shall not include any debts and liabilities of the partnership to the decedent for loans and advances (other than by way of capital contribution) made by him, which shall be repaid by the partnership as required by the terms of the loans and advances and by law. The percentage of each Purchaser in the profits and losses of the partnership shall be increased by that portion of the decedent's percentage therein equal to the fraction of the decedent's entire partnership interest purchased by such Purchaser.

(i) Valuation disputes. The adjusted book value (purchase price) as determined by the accountant pursuant to the preceding subparagraph (c) shall be subject to increase or decrease as follows: If either the decedent's legal representatives (as one party) or any of the surviving partners (as the other party) should dispute the adjusted book value shown on the accountant's statement, such party shall give to the other party and to all other surviving partners, written notice of the dispute, containing a specification of the reasons therefor, within twenty (20) days after the expiration of the acceptance period. If the dispute is not settled within twenty (20) days thereafter by written agreement between the decedent's legal representatives and the surviving partners (the agreement of all except one of the surviving partners shall constitute the agreement of and shall be binding upon all surviving partners), then the book value of the decedent's entire partnership interest as of the date of his death, as adjusted, and the dispute respecting the same, shall be settled and determined by arbitration as provided in Paragraph 15. If the amount of such adjusted book value as found by the accountant is changed by the agreement of the parties or by the arbitration award, the new amount shall govern and shall be the purchase price of the decedent's entire partnership interest.

(j) Payment of Adjusted Purchase Price. If the new amount is not fixed and determined until after the Closing Date, then (1) any increase in the purchase price shall be paid in cash by the purchasing surviving partners to the decedent's personal representatives, either six months after the date of the agreement or the arbitration award, or on the 30th day of January following the calendar year in which the Closing Date occurs, whichever date is later; and (2) any decrease in the purchase price shall be credited against the promissory notes of the respective purchasing surviving partners, in the inverse order of maturity.

(k) Liquidation. If the surviving partners do not elect, before the expiration of the acceptance period and in the manner herein provided, to purchase the decedent's entire partnership interest, the surviving managing partners shall proceed with reasonable promptness to liquidate the business of the partnership. The procedure as to liquidation and distribution of the partnership assets shall be as provided in Paragraph 14.

12. Incompetency of partner.

(a) Purchase Option. If any partner shall be adjudicated to be incompetent in an appropriate judicial proceeding, the remaining partners shall have the right either to purchase the entire interest or share of the incompetent partner in the partnership ("entire partnership interest"), or to terminate and liquidate the partnership business.

(b) Notice. If the remaining partners (or one (1) or more of them) elect to purchase an incompetent partner's entire partnership interest, they shall give written notice of the election to the incompetent partner's judicially appointed guardian, committee, or other personal representative. Such notice shall be given within three months after the adjudication of the partner's incompetency, or within two months after the appointment and qualification of his personal representative, whichever period expires later (the "acceptance period").

(c) Valuation and Purchase. In the event the option to purchase is exercised, the amount of the purchase price and the method of computing it, the percentages and manner of purchase of the incompetent partner's entire partnership interest, the method of payment, and the other rights and obligations of the incompetent partner's personal representatives and the remaining partners, and incidental consequences, shall be the same as stated in subparagraphs (c) through (j) inclusive of Paragraph 11, with respect to the purchase of a decedent's entire partnership interest. Wherever appearing in those subparagraphs, however, the words "decedent" or "deceased partner" shall be replaced by "incompetent partner"; the words "surviving partners" or "surviving partner" shall be replaced by "remaining partners" or "remaining partner"; the words "decedent's personal representatives" shall be replaced by "incompetent partner's personal representatives"; the words "date of death of decedent" shall be replaced by "date of adjudication of incompetency of the incompetent partner."

(d) Liquidation. If the remaining partners do not elect, before the expiration of the acceptance period and in the manner specified, to purchase the incompetent partner's entire partnership interest, the remaining managing partners shall proceed with reasonable promptness to liquidate the business of the partnership. The procedure as to liquidation and distribution of the partnership assets shall be pursuant to Paragraph 14.

13. Retirement.

(a) Notice, Purchase Option. Any partner shall have the right to retire and withdraw from the partnership before the end of the term fixed for its duration. The retiring partner shall exercise his election by serving written notice thereof upon all of the remaining partners, as provided in Paragraph 16. Upon the mailing of the notices of election to retire, the remaining partners shall have the right either to purchase the entire interest or share of the retiring partner in the partnership ("entire partnership interest"), or to terminate and liquidate the partnership business.

(b) Election to Purchase. If the remaining partners (or one (1) or more of them) elect to purchase the retiring partner's entire partnership interest, they shall give written notice of their election to the retiring partner before the expiration of the period (the "acceptance period") of six (6) months from the date of their receipt of his notice of intention to retire, or if the notices are received by the remaining partners on different dates, then from the latest date of receipt by a remaining partner of the retiring partner's notice of intention to retire.

(c) Valuation and Purchase. In the event the option to purchase is exercised, the amount of the purchase price and the method of computing it, the percentages and manner of purchase of the retiring partner's entire partnership interest, the method of payment, and the other rights and obligations of the retiring partner and the remaining partners, and incidental consequences, shall be the same as stated in subparagraphs (c) through (j) inclusive of Paragraph 11, with respect to the purchase of a decedent's entire partnership interest. Wherever appearing in those subparagraphs, however, the words "decedent" or "deceased partner" or "deceased partner's personal representatives" shall be replaced by "retiring partner"; the words "surviving partners" or "surviving partner" shall be replaced by "remaining partners" or "remaining partner"; the words "date of death of decedent" shall be replaced by "date of mailing by such retiring partner to the remaining partners of written notice of his election to retire, or if such notices be mailed on different dates, then the latest of such dates."

14. Procedure on Liquidation.

(a) Liquidation. At the termination of this partnership by the expiration of its term, and whenever liquidation of the partnership business is otherwise provided, the managing partners (or the surviving or remaining managing partners) shall proceed with reasonable promptness to liquidate the business of the partnership.

(b) Profits and Losses. The profits and losses of the business during the period of liquidation shall be divided among or be borne by the partners (or the then remaining or surviving partners, as the case may be), including the estate of any deceased partner, in the respective percentages in which they shared in profits and losses prior to the event which resulted in liquidation. The estate of a deceased partner, however, shall not be liable for losses in excess of the deceased partner's interest in the partnership at the time of his death.

(c) Priorities. After the payment of partnership debts, expenses of liquidation, and all loans by partners to the partnership, the proceeds of liquidation, as realized, shall be distributed, first, in discharge of the undrawn profits of the partners and of the estate of any deceased partner, and then proportionately in discharge of the respective capital accounts. Any excess shall be distributed among the surviving partners and the estate of any deceased partner in the respective percentages in which they shared partnership profits immediately prior to the event which resulted in such liquidation.

(d) Sale and Distribution. In connection with such liquidation, the managing partners shall have the sole discretion as to whether to sell any partnership asset, including but not limited to real estate, and if so, whether at public or private sale and for what amount and on what terms. The managing partners shall also have the sole discretion whether (if sale is not required to enable payment of debts, expenses of liquidation, loans by partners, and undrawn profits of the partners) to distribute and transfer the same to and among the partners and the estate of any deceased partner, in kind, by transferring interests in any assets in the respective percentages in which profits and losses were shared immediately prior to the event which resulted in the liquidation. In the event that the managing partners determine to sell any real property, they shall not be required to sell the same promptly, but they shall have full right and discretion to determine the time when and manner in which any sale or sales shall be had, having due regard to the activity and condition of the real estate market and general financial and economic conditions.

15. Arbitration. Any controversy or claim arising out of or relating to this agreement, or to its interpretation, breach, or enforcement, shall be submitted to three arbitrators and settled by arbitration in the City of _____ [city] in accordance with the governing rules of the American Arbitration Association. Notwithstanding any other provision of those rules, however, if the matter submitted to arbitration shall involve a dispute as to the adjusted book value of a deceased, incompetent, or retiring partner's entire partnership interest, the arbitration shall be held before three arbitrators, of whom one shall be a certified public accountant and the other two licensed real estate appraisers. Any award made by a majority of the arbitrators shall be final, binding, and conclusive on all parties for all purposes, and judgment may be entered on the award in any court of competent jurisdiction.

16. Notices. Wherever provision is made in this agreement for the giving, service, or delivery of any notice, statement, or other instrument, the notice shall be deemed given, served, and delivered, if mailed by United States registered or certified mail, addressed to the party entitled to receive it at his address written at the head of this agreement. Each party, however, may change his mailing address by giving to each other party, by United States registered or certified mail, written notice of election to change his address and of the new address. Except where otherwise specified in this agreement, any notice, statement, or other instrument shall be deemed given, served, and delivered on the date on which it was mailed.

17. Entire Agreement. This agreement contains the entire agreement and understanding of the parties with respect to its entire subject matter. Any and all prior discussions, negotiations, commitments, and understandings relating to matters covered by this agreement are merged into it. This agreement cannot be changed or terminated orally.

18. Non-waiver. No delay or failure by a party to exercise any right under this agreement, and no partial or single exercise of that right, shall constitute a waiver of that or any other right, unless otherwise expressly provided herein.

19. Headings. Headings in this agreement are for convenience only and shall not be used to interpret or construe its provisions.

20. Governing Law. This agreement shall be construed in accordance with and governed by the laws of the State of _____ [city] .

21. Counterparts. This agreement may be executed in two (2) or more counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original but all of which together shall constitute one and the same instrument.

22. Binding Effect. Except as otherwise expressly provided herein, the provisions of this agreement shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of each of the parties and their respective executors, administrators, and assigns.

In witness whereof the parties have set their names and seals to this agreement, all as of the day and year first above written.

FORM 20.25 Limited partnership--small group of investors

COMMENT

The distinctive feature of a limited partnership is the restriction of the liability of the limited partners to the amount of their contributions to the capital of the partnership. Generally, a limited partnership may be formed by two or more persons to carry on any business which might be carried on by a general partnership. At least one of the partners must be a general partner. The partnership name must not contain the surname of a limited partner unless it is also the surname of a general partner or unless the partnership was conducted under that name prior to the time when the limited partner became associated with the firm. Violation of this provision will result in the named limited partner being held liable to partnership creditors as a general partner. The same consequence follows if the limited partner takes an active part in the control of the partnership business; a limited partner may contribute cash or property to the partnership, but he may not contribute services.

Limited partnership agreement:

The basic provisions of a general partnership agreement should be covered in a limited partnership agreement. In addition, the agreement may contain provisions regulating the assignment of a limited partner's interest in the partnership, the withdrawal or reduction of his contribution to capital, the priority of any limited partner in the distribution of profits or upon dissolution, and the admission of new limited partners. In this agreement limited partners have no priority as to distributions upon dissolution. Limited partners possess no right to withdraw any part of their contribution until termination of the partnership, and then only after all liabilities have been paid (except liabilities to partners for contributions) or until the partnership has sufficient assets to pay them. Death of a limited partner does not dissolve the partnership.

Partnership vs. association tax status:

From the income tax viewpoint, a limited partnership is treated in the same way as a general partnership. In light of the "Check the Box" regulations, the analysis as to whether limited partnerships will be taxed as a partnership or as an association is largely, if not entirely, irrelevant. (See Chapter 1, Volume 1 Partnerships § 1.07[2].)

Passive activity loss limitation:

Individuals, including partners and limited partners, are limited in the tax use of losses, including expenses, from passive activities. Generally, passive activity losses can only offset income from the same or other passive activities. Unused losses are carried forward indefinitely to offset passive activity income in the following years, or until the activity is completely disposed of in a taxable disposition. Material participation by the taxpayer in the activity will take it out of the passive activity classification.

Generally speaking, rental real estate activity is considered to be a passive activity. IRC § 469(c)(2). Therefore, deductions and credits from rental activities can only offset income from other passive activities. Such deductions and credits cannot be deducted from nonpassive income, such as wages, dividends, interest, etc. However, there are two major exceptions to this general rule.

Certain eligible taxpayers who materially participate in rental real estate activities can deduct losses from such activities against nonpassive income. These eligible taxpayers include individuals and closely-held C Corporations that meet special eligibility requirements. IRC § 469(c)(7). Second, an individual who owns at least a 10-percent interest and actively participates in rental real estate activity is permitted to offset up to $25,000 of passive activity losses against his nonpassive income. IRC § 469(i).

9. Profits, Losses, and Cash Proceeds.

(a) Percentage Interest. The net profits of the partnership, and net proceeds resulting from the sale, mortgage, refinancing, and condemnation of any property held by it shall be divided among, and any losses shall be borne by, each of the partners in the following proportions, subject, however, insofar as the Limited Partners are concerned, to the limitation of their liability to the amount of their individual investment, as hereinafter provided:

Partner	Percentage
Sam Harris	10
John Baker	5
Myron Lowe	5
Martin Brown	20
Edward Berger	15
Adam Paine	15
Gordon Gray	15

The term "net profits" of the partnership shall mean net profits derived from the property owned by the partnership as ascertained through the use of generally accepted accounting practices. The following exceptions, however, shall apply: (a) depreciation of building, improvements, furniture, fixtures, furnishings, and equipment shall not be taken into account; (b) mortgage amortization paid by the partnership shall be considered a deduction; (c) all amounts expended by the partnership in the discretion of the General Partners for capital improvements shall be considered a deduction; and (d) if the General Partners shall so determine, a reasonable reserve shall be deducted to provide funds for improvements or for any other contingencies of the partnership.

(c) Net profit Distributions. The net profits of the partnership shall be distributed quarterly or at other more frequent or less frequent intervals as the General Partners in their sole discretion may determine. Distribution shall commence three months after the acquisition by the partnership of the aforementioned property, or at such earlier or later date as the General Partners in their sole discretion may deem advisable.

10. Losses of Limited Partners. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this agreement, the liability of any of the Limited Partners for the losses of the partnership shall in no event exceed in the aggregate the amount of his or her contribution to the capital of the partnership. All losses in excess of the contributed amount shall be borne solely by the General Partners in the proportion that their respective percentage shares of profits, as set forth in paragraph 9, bear to each other.

11. General Partners' Fee. At or prior to the acquisition of title by the partnership to the property, the partnership shall pay to the General Partners the aggregate sum of _____ Dollars ($_____) for their services in negotiating the contract for the purchase of the property. Such sum shall constitute full payment to the General Partners of their fee and all expenses and disbursements incurred by them in connection with the negotiations.

12. Salaries, Drawings, and Interest on Capital Contributions. Except as otherwise provided in Paragraph 11 and in this Paragraph 12, none of the partners, General or Limited, shall receive any salary or drawings for services rendered on behalf of the partnership in their capacity as partners, nor shall any partner receive any interest on his contributions to the capital of the partnership. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this agreement and in addition to the authorizations and consents herein contained, the partners consent to the employment by the partnership of Sam Harris and John Baker as Supervisory Managing Agents for the purpose of supervising the management of the partnership property. Sam Harris and John Baker shall be paid _____ Dollars ($_____) per year in the aggregate, payable monthly (or at less frequent intervals if the General Partners shall so determine) as and for their supervisory management fee. This sum shall include all traveling expenses incurred by them in the performance of their duties.

13. Management, Duties, and Restrictions.

(a) General Partners. The General Partners shall have equal rights in the management of the partnership business, and shall devote such time to the partnership as shall be reasonably required for its welfare and success. Without the consent of a majority of the General Partners, no General Partner shall, on behalf of the Partnership: borrow or lend money, or make, deliver, or accept any commercial paper or execute any mortgage, security interest, or bond, or lease, purchase, or contract to purchase or sell any property for or of the partnership; or assign, create a security interest in, or sell his interest as a General Partner in the partnership.

(b) Limited Partner Withdrawals. No Limited Partner shall participate in the management of the partnership business. A Limited Partner shall have the right to withdraw his capital contribution upon the termination of the partnership, provided, however, that no part of the capital contribution of any Limited Partner shall be withdrawn unless all liabilities of the partnership, except liabilities to partners on account of their contributions, have been paid or unless the partnership has assets sufficient to pay them. Except as otherwise provided in Paragraph 21, no Limited Partner shall have the right to demand or receive property other than cash in return for his contribution. No Limited Partner shall have priority over any other Limited Partner either as to contribution to capital or as to compensation by way of income.

(c) Agents. The Limited Partners hereby consent to the employment, when and if required, of any brokers, managing and other agents, accountants, and attorneys as the General Partners may from time to time determine. The fact that a General or Limited partner, or a member of such partner's family, is employed by, or directly or indirectly interested in or connected with, any person, firm, or corporation employed by the partnership to render or perform a service, or from which the partnership may purchase any property, shall not prohibit the General Partners from employing such person, firm, or corporation, or from otherwise dealing with him or it. Neither the partnership nor any of the partners herein shall have any rights in or to any income or profits derived therefrom as a consequence of the partnership relationship herein created.

(d) Other Business Ventures. Any of the General or Limited Partners may engage in or possess an interest in other business ventures of every nature and description, independently or with others. Such other interest may include, but not be limited to, the ownership, financing, leasing, operation, management, or development of real property. Neither the partnership nor any of the partners shall have any rights by virtue of this agreement in and to any independent ventures or the income or profits derived therefrom.

14. Banking. All funds of the partnership shall be deposited in such bank account or accounts as the General Partners shall designate. Withdrawals from any such bank account or accounts shall be made upon such signature or signatures as the General Partners may designate.

15. Conveyances. Any deed, bill of sale, mortgage, security agreement, lease, contract of sale, or other commitment purporting to convey or encumber the interest of the partnership in all or any portion of any real or personal property at any time held in its name shall be signed by two of the General Partners. Notwithstanding anything contained in this agreement, occupancy leases for individual apartments may be signed by any one of the General Partners or by the resident Managing Agent. No person shall be required to inquire into the authority of any individual to sign any document pursuant to the provisions of this paragraph.

16. Books. The partnership shall maintain full and accurate books in its principal office or such other office as the General Partners shall designate for such purpose. All partners shall have the right to inspect and examine the books at reasonable times. The books shall be closed and balanced at the end of each calendar year. The accountants for the partnership shall prepare annual statements showing its profits and losses for the fiscal year and indicating each partner's share of profit or loss for income tax purposes, and shall distribute such statements to all the partners within a reasonable time after the close of each fiscal year.

17. Assignability. No Limited Partner shall have the right to substitute an assignee as contributor or substituted Limited Partner in his place. Any Limited Partner may assign his interest in the partnership without the consent of the General Partners, provided that the Limited Partner and his assignee shall execute such instruments as the General Partners may reasonably deem necessary to effectuate an assignment and shall furnish the General Partners with duplicate original copies thereof.

18. Death, Retirement, and Resignation. In the event of the death, retirement, resignation, bankruptcy, expulsion, or adjudication of insanity or incompetency of any General Partner, the partnership shall be dissolved and terminated. In the event, however, of the death, retirement, or insanity of a General Partner, the partnership may be continued if all of the surviving or remaining competent General Partners so elect. If the surviving or remaining competent General Partners shall determine to continue the partnership, the withdrawing General Partner or his personal representative shall become a Limited Partner in the partnership with the same relative percentage interest, as set forth in Paragraph 9, in partnership profits, losses, and distributions of all kinds, including (but not limited to) liquidating distributions and distributions of proceeds from the sale or condemnation of partnership property and proceeds resulting from any mortgage or refinancing, as previously possessed by the General Partner in this partnership, subject, however, to the limitation of liability to an amount equal to the share of the partner in the total net assets of the partnership at the date that the partner became a Limited Partner under this paragraph. The percentage share of such partner in the total assets of the partnership shall be the same as his percentage share of partnership profits and losses as set forth in Paragraph 9. The surviving or remaining competent General Partners shall determine whether to continue the partnership no later than ninety (90) days following the death, retirement, or adjudication of insanity of any General Partner, and shall within such ninety (90) days give written notice of such determination to the then Limited Partners.

19. Death of Limited Partner. The death of a Limited Partner shall not dissolve or terminate the partnership. In the event of death, the deceased Limited Partner's personal representative shall have all the rights of a Limited Partner in the partnership to the extent of the deceased's interest therein, subject to the terms and conditions of this agreement.

20. Termination Prior to End of Term . A majority of the General Partners may terminate the partnership prior to the end of its term by giving at least 30 days' prior written notice to each of the Limited Partners.

21. Distributions on Termination. In the event of the dissolution and termination of the partnership, the then General Partners shall proceed to the liquidation of the partnership. The proceeds of the liquidation shall be applied and distributed in the following order of priority:

(a) Debts. To the payment of the partnership's debts and liabilities (other than any loans or advances that may have been made by the partners to the partnership) and the expenses of liquidation.

(b) Reserves. To the setting up of all reserves which the General Partners may deem reasonably necessary for any contingent or unforeseen liabilities or obligations of the partnership or of the General Partners arising out of or in connection with the partnership. Any reserves shall be paid over by the General Partners to an attorney-at-law of the State of _____ [state], as Escrowee, to be held by him for the purpose of disbursing the reserves in payment of any of the contingencies, and, at the expiration of the period as the General Partners shall deem advisable, to distribute the balance thereafter remaining in the manner hereinafter provided.

(c) Partner Loans. To the repayment of all loans or advances that may have been made by any of the partners to the partnership, but if the amount available for such repayment shall be insufficient, then pro rata on account thereof.

(d) Balance. Any balance remaining shall be distributed among all General and Limited Partners, as follows:

(1) Cash. In the event that the partnership assets shall have been sold, the net proceeds shall be distributed to each partner in satisfaction of his interest in the partnership in the manner provided in Paragraph 9.

(2) In kind. In lieu of sale, the partnership assets may be distributed in kind, each partner accepting an undivided interest in the partnership's assets subject to its liabilities in satisfaction of his interest in the partnership.

(e) Valuation. In the event of a liquidating distribution of the partnership's property in kind, the fair market value of such property shall be determined by averaging the appraisals of two appraisers reasonably selected by the General Partners, and each partner shall receive an undivided interest in the property equal to the portion of the proceeds to which he would be entitled under Paragraph 9 if the property were sold. The appraisers shall be members of the Appraisal Institute familiar with the type of property owned by the Partnership.

22. Procedure on Termination. A reasonable time shall be allowed for the orderly liquidation of the partnership's assets and the discharge of liabilities to creditors so as to enable the General Partners to minimize the normal losses attendant upon a liquidation. Each of the partners shall be furnished with a statement prepared by the partnership's then Certified Public Accountants, which shall set forth the assets and liabilities of the partnership as at the date of complete liquidation. Upon the General Partners complying with the distribution plan set forth in Paragraph 21 (including payment over to the Attorney-Escrowee if there are sufficient funds), the Limited Partners shall cease to be Limited Partners, and the General Partners, as the sole remaining partners of the partnership, shall execute, acknowledge, and cause to be filed a Certificate of Cancellation of the Partnership.

23. Limit on General Partners' Liability. Anything in this agreement to the contrary notwithstanding, the General Partners shall not be personally liable for the return of the capital contributions of Limited Partners, or any portion thereof, it being expressly understood that any return shall be made solely from partnership assets.

24. Opinion of Counsel. Any act or failure to act by any General Partner which may cause or result in loss or damage to the partnership, if pursuant to opinion of legal counsel employed by the General Partners on behalf of the partnership, shall not subject the General Partners to any liability.

25. Indemnity. The partnership shall indemnify and hold harmless any General Partner from any loss or damage incurred by him by reason of any act performed by him for and on behalf of the partnership and in furtherance of its interests. The foregoing shall not relieve the General Partners of liability for gross negligence or willful malfeasance.

26. Notices. All notices provided for in this agreement shall be directed to the parties at the addresses herein set forth in this agreement and to the partnership at its principal office by Registered or Certified Mail.

27. Entire Agreement. This agreement supersedes all agreements previously made between the parties relating to its subject matter. There are no other understandings or agreements between them.

28. Non-waiver. No delay or failure by a party to exercise any right under this agreement, and no partial or single exercise of that right, shall constitute a waiver of that or any other right, unless otherwise expressly provided herein.

29. Headings. Headings in this agreement are for convenience only and shall not be used to interpret or construe its provisions.

30. Governing Law. This agreement and the rights of the parties shall be construed in accordance with and governed by the laws of the State of _____ [state] .

31. Counterparts. This agreement may be executed in two or more counterparts, and all so executed shall constitute one agreement, binding on all the parties, notwithstanding that all the parties are not signatory to the original or the same counterpart.

32. Binding Effect. The provisions of this agreement shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of each of the parties and their respective estates, heirs, legatees, successors, and assigns.

In witness whereof the parties have executed this agreement as of the day and year first above written.

FORM 20.26 Limited partnership--corporation as general partner--priority of general partner--cross options to purchase

COMMENT

This form illustrates the variety of special provisions that may be introduced into a limited partnership agreement. Here, the ownership is divided between a corporation acting as the general partner and two individuals as limited partners. In contrast to many limited partnerships, the major capital contribution under this form is being made by the general partner. Moreover, the general partner is given a prior claim on the profits of the partnership. The agreement requires that a specific amount of the profits be first distributed to the general partner, that additional profits up to a specific amount be then distributed to the limited partners, and that all remaining profits be shared in stated proportions. It should be noted that these stated proportions are not the same as the proportions in which the capital has been contributed to the partnership. As in most small real estate investing ventures, the definition of profits is expressed in terms of "cash flow."

Cross option to purchase:

Another special provision in this agreement is the cross option to purchase. The general partner is not free to sell its partnership interest without first offering it to the limited partners on the terms offered by any third party. A similar restriction is imposed on the limited partners in favor of the general partner. In addition, a restriction is imposed on the management powers of the general partner. The partnership property may not be sold without offering it to the limited partners on terms comparable to those offered by a prospective outside purchaser. All these provisions are designed to protect the partners from becoming involuntarily associated in business with strangers.

Passive activity limitations:

Generally speaking, rental real estate activity is considered to be a passive activity. IRC § 469(c)(2). Therefore, deductions and credits from rental activities can only offset income from other passive activities. Such deductions and credits cannot be deducted from nonpassive income, such as wages, dividends, interest, etc. However, there are two major exceptions to this general rule.

Certain eligible taxpayers who materially participate in rental real estate activities can deduct losses from such activities against nonpassive income. These eligible taxpayers include individuals and closely-held C corporations that meet special eligibility requirements. IRC § 469(c)(7). Second, an individual who owns at least a 10-percent interest and actively participates in rental real estate activity is permitted to offset up to $25,000 of passive activity losses against his nonpassive income. IRC § 469(i).

FORM

THIS AGREEMENT made _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , by and among SMITH PROPERTIES CORPORATION, a Delaware corporation, with offices at _____ [address] , _____ [city] , _____ [state] (the "General Partner"), and BERNARD ALLEN, residing at _____ [address] , _____ [city] , _____ [state] , and CHARLES GREEN, residing at _____ [address] , _____ [city] , _____ [state] (the "Limited Partners").

WHEREAS, Bernard Allen, Charles Green, and Smith Properties Corporation, have entered into a contract to purchase the real property hereinafter described.

WHEREAS, Bernard Allen has assigned the contract to purchase the real property (together with the sum of _____ Dollars ($ _____) deposited under the contract by the Smith Properties Corporation upon its execution) to the limited partnership known as the Plaza Realty Company being organized pursuant to this agreement; and

WHEREAS, the General Partner and the Limited Partners have agreed to contribute to the limited partnership the sums set forth in this agreement, and the Limited Partners have also agreed to subordinate their interest in the profits to be derived from the real property to the return of certain sums to the General Partner as hereinafter specifically set forth;

IT IS THEREFORE AGREED:

1. Name and Business. The parties hereby form a limited partnership (the "partnership"), pursuant to the provisions of the Uniform Limited Partnership Act, to acquire the property described in the attached Exhibit (the "property"), to hold the property for investment, to operate and lease the property, and to mortgage, sell, transfer, and exchange or otherwise convey and encumber the property and the improvements thereon at any time and from time to time in the discretion of the General Partner. The name of the partnership shall be Plaza Realty Company and the principal office of the business shall be at 100 Cadillac Towers Building, Detroit, Michigan.

2. Term. The term of the partnership shall begin the date of the filing of the Certificate of Limited Partnership with the Secretary of State's Office, and shall continue until _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , unless terminated as set forth in Paragraphs 12 and 13. The partnership, however, shall be terminated at any earlier date on which it disposes of its entire interest (including any purchase money mortgage held by it thereon at any time) in all of the property to be acquired by it.

3. Cash capital Contributions.

(a) General Partner. Smith Properties Corporation shall be the General Partner and shall contribute to the capital of the partnership the sum of _____ Dollars ($ _____) cash. The sum of _____ Dollars ($ _____) deposited by Smith Properties Corporation under the contract to purchase the property shall be credited toward its agreed cash contribution to the partnership capital.

(b) Limited Partners. The following persons shall be the Limited Partners and shall contribute to the capital of the partnership the cash amounts set opposite their respective names:

Limited Partners	Contribution
Bernard Allen	$30,000
Charles Green	30,000

(c) Future Capital. The partners shall contribute any future capital required by the partnership in the proportions in which they share the profits as set forth in subparagraph (a) in Paragraph 4 below.

4. Profits and Losses.

(a) Percentage Interest. Net income of the partnership shall be divided among the partners, and the net losses shall be borne by them, in the proportions set forth below opposite their respective names, except as modified by subparagraph

(b) of this paragraph, provided, however, that the Limited Partners' liability for partnership losses shall be limited to the amount of their contributions to the capital thereof:

General Partner	Percentage
Smith Property Corporation	75%
Limited Partners	Percentage
Bernard Allen	12.5%
Charles Green	23.5%

(b) Profit Distributions. Notwithstanding anything herein to the contrary contained, the first _____ Dollars ($ _____) of the partnership's net operating profits during each calendar month shall be distributed to the General Partner; up to the next _____ Dollars ($ _____) of the net operating profits for each calendar month shall be distributed between the Limited Partners equally; and any excess of the net operating profits shall be divided among all of the partners, General and Limited, in the proportions set opposite their respective names in subparagraph (a) of this paragraph.

(c) Net Operating Profits. For purpose of this paragraph, the term "net operating profits" shall mean the partnership's net income as determined for income tax purposes in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles, with the following adjustments:

(1) There shall be added to such net income the amount charged for depreciation or any other deduction not involving a cash expenditure, and

(2) There shall be subtracted from such net income the amount of payments made on account of principal upon mortgages against the property, all amounts paid for nondeductible capital expenditures, and all other cash sums expended for otherwise nondeductible items except distributions to partners.

5. Sale or Condemnation. In the event that the property held by the partnership is sold or condemned, then in either event, the net sale or condemnation proceeds (including net cash proceeds derived from any purchase money mortgage by amortization, sale, assignment, or otherwise) shall be distributed as follows:

(a) The first _____ Dollars ($_____) shall be divided among the General and Limited Partners in direct proportion to their cash capital contributions as set forth in subparagraphs (a) and (b) of Paragraph 3;

(b) All excess proceeds shall be distributed among the General and Limited partners in the proportions set forth in subparagraph (a) of Paragraph 4.

6. Salaries, Drawings, and Interest on Capital Contributions. No General or Limited partner shall receive any salary or drawings for services rendered on behalf of the partnership in his capacity as a partner, and no partner shall receive any interest on his contributions to the partnership capital.

7. Management, Duties, and Restrictions. During the continuance of this partnership, the rights and liabilities of the General Partner and Limited Partners, respectively, shall be as follows:

(a) General Partner. The General Partner shall manage the partnership business and shall devote such time thereto as shall be reasonably required for its welfare and success. The General Partner shall not sell its share in the partnership or in its capital assets or property without first offering to sell such share to the Limited Partners at the price and upon the terms offered to the General Partner by any third party in the same manner provided with respect to a sale of the partnership's property as set forth in subparagraph (c) of this paragraph. Nothing contained herein, however, shall prevent any General or Limited Partner from continued engagement in real estate activities other than this partnership, and none of the parties shall have any interest in such other activities by virtue of this partnership.

(b) Limited Partners. No Limited Partner shall participate in, or interfere in any manner whatsoever with, the management of the partnership business and the sale or refinancing of its assets. A Limited Partner shall have the right to withdraw his capital contribution upon the termination of the partnership, as set forth in Paragraphs 12 and 13. No part of any Limited Partner's capital contribution, however, shall be withdrawn unless all of the partnership's liabilities, except liabilities to partners on account of their contributions, have been paid, or unless the partnership has assets sufficient to pay them. Except as otherwise provided in Paragraph 12, no Limited Partner shall have the right to demand or receive property other than cash in return for his contribution. No Limited Partner shall have priority over any other Limited Partner either as to contributions to capital or as to compensation by way of income.

(c) Partnership Assets. The Limited Partners consent to any sale or other disposition, encumbrance, mortgage, or lease or any modification, extension, surrender, or cancellation of them, as the case may be, by the General Partner on behalf of the partnership, of any or all of the partnership's assets, now or hereafter acquired, on such terms and conditions as the General Partner may determine. The Limited Partners also consent to the employment, when and if required, of such real estate brokers, managing agents, and attorneys as the General Partner may determine, notwithstanding that any party may have an interest in any employed agent, provided that the amount paid to any broker or managing agents shall not exceed the regular rates prevailing in the locality in which the property is located.

(d) Notice of Proposed Sale. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary herein contained, the General Partner shall not sell, convey, or mortgage the real property held by the partnership without first giving notice thereof to Bernard Allen, or in the event that Bernard Allen shall not then be living, to the other Limited Partner. The General Partner shall consult with Bernard Allen as to the advisability of any sale, conveyance, or mortgage prior to its consummation. The decision of the General Partner shall prevail, however, in the event of any difference of opinion as between it and Bernard Allen.

(e) Right of First Refusal. Prior to the sale of any property owned by the partnership, it shall first offer to sell the property to the Limited Partners at the price and upon the terms offered to the partnership by any third party, and the Limited Partners shall have the first option to purchase the property upon such terms and conditions. In the event that the Limited Partners do not exercise such option within 30 days after written receipt of the proposed terms and conditions from the partnership, all rights under this provision shall lapse, and the partnership shall be free to sell the property to the third party free of all rights of first refusal granted to the Limited Partners hereunder.

(f) Notice, Deposit. Exercise of the option by the Limited Partners shall be effectuated by written notice of the exercise by both Limited Partners, or the survivor of them, mailed to the partnership within such 30-day period, together with a certified check for no less than twenty percent (20%) of that portion of the total purchase price exceeding the then unpaid principal balances of all mortgages then constituting liens against the property. The partnership shall retain such certified check, made payable to it, as liquidated damages in the event of any subsequent default by the Limited Partners in consummating the purchase.

(g) Terms of Sale. Notice of exercise of the option shall obligate the Limited Partners, jointly and severally, to purchase the property, on the terms and conditions set forth in the notice from the partnership to the Limited Partners, within sixty (60) days after the date of exercise of such option. The closing of title shall be held on such date at the principal office of the partnership, and conveyance of the property shall be made upon payment therefor subject to such conditions of title and physical state as shall exist on that date. In no event shall any inability of the partnership to convey marketable title to the property to the Limited Partners result in any claim or liability against the partnership. But in the event that the partnership shall be unable to convey title in accordance with the terms and conditions set forth in the proposed sale to the third party (which terms and conditions the Limited Partners have accepted by virtue of their exercise of the option), the partnership shall return to the Limited Partners the moneys deposited by them with the partnership upon exercise of the option.

8. Banking. All funds of the partnership shall be deposited in its name in such checking account or accounts as the General Partner shall designate. All withdrawals therefrom shall be made upon checks signed by the General Partner or any of its designees.

9. Conveyances. The General Partner shall sign any deed, mortgage, lease, contract of sale, or other commitment purporting to convey or encumber the interest of the partnership in all or any portion of its property. No other signatures shall be required.

10. Books. The partnership shall maintain complete and accurate books in its principal office, or in any other office as the General Partner shall designate for that purpose. All partners shall have the right to inspect and examine such books at reasonable times. The books shall be closed and balanced at the end of each calendar year, and an audit by a certified public accountant shall be made as of the closing date.

11. Nonassignability.

(a) Prior Approval. No Limited Partner shall have the right to substitute an assignee as contributor in his place unless the General Partner shall give its prior written consent. Such consent or failure to give the same shall be in the General Partner's absolute discretion, and its decision shall be binding and conclusive upon all of the parties.

(b) Right of First Refusal. No Limited Partner shall assign his interest in this partnership unless he shall first grant the General Partner an option to purchase his interest at the price and upon the terms offered to the Limited Partner by the proposed assignee of the partnership interest. The Limited Partner shall give to the General Partner this right of first refusal in the same manner as is set forth in subparagraph (d) of Paragraph 7, with respect to a proposed sale of the partnership's real property.

12. Termination. The General Partner may, in its sole discretion, dissolve the partnership prior to the end of the partnership term by giving thirty (30) days' prior written notice to each of the Limited Partners. In liquidating the partnership, the General Partner may sell the partnership's assets subject to the provisions of subparagraph (d) of Paragraph 7. In such case, the General Partner shall distribute the sales proceeds to each partner in satisfaction of its interest in the partnership. Or, in its discretion, the General Partner may distribute the partnership's assets to the partners in cash and in kind, each partner accepting a proportionate share of the cash and an undivided interest in the partnership's other assets, subject to its liabilities, in satisfaction of his or its interest in the partnership.

13. Dissolution, Withdrawal, or Bankruptcy of General Partner. In the event of the dissolution, withdrawal, or bankruptcy of the General Partner, the partnership shall be dissolved, wound up, and terminated over such period as may be reasonable under the circumstances.

14. Death or Insanity of Limited Partner. The death or insanity of a Limited Partner shall not dissolve the partnership or terminate its business.

15. Distribution of Proceeds in Liquidation. The proceeds of liquidation shall be distributed as realized in payment of the partnership's liabilities in the following order:

(a) To creditors of the partnership;

(b) To all partners in the percentages and manner set forth in subparagraphs (a) and (b) of Paragraph 5.

The General Partner shall not be personally liable to the Limited Partners for any deficit in the Limited Partners' capital accounts.

16. Indemnity. The partnership shall indemnify and save harmless the General Partner from any loss or damage incurred by it by reason of any act performed by it for and on behalf of the partnership and in furtherance of its interests.

17. Notices. All notices provided for in this agreement shall be directed to the parties at the addresses herein set forth and to the partnership at its principal office by registered or certified mail.

18. Entire Agreement. This agreement supersedes all agreements previously made between the parties relating to its subject matter. There are no other understandings or agreements between them.

19. Non-waiver. No delay or failure by a party to exercise any right under this agreement, and no partial or single exercise of that right, shall constitute a waiver of that or any other right, unless otherwise expressly provided herein.

20. Headings. Headings in this agreement are for convenience only and shall not be used to interpret or construe its provisions.

21. Governing Law. This agreement and the rights of the parties thereunder shall be construed in accordance with and governed by the laws of the State of Michigan.

22. Counterparts. This agreement may be executed in two or more counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original but all of which together shall constitute one and the same instrument.

23. Binding Effect. The provisions of this agreement shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of each of the parties and their respective estates, heirs, legatees, successors, and assigns.

In witness whereof the parties hereto have executed this agreement as of the day and year first above written.

FORM 20.27 Limited partnership--provision for additional capital--hotel renovation

COMMENT

Insufficient capital can become a problem in any business venture. In the agreement illustrated here, a limited partnership is in the process of acquiring a hotel property which requires substantial alterations and improvements. The right to make these capital expenditures is vested in the general partner, together with the collateral right to demand additional proportionate capital contributions from the limited partners. If any of the limited partners fails to make his additional contribution, the general partner undertakes to provide all the additional financing. In that event, a priority is established in favor of the general partner, for the additional capital contributions, in the net profits of the partnership, in the proceeds of any mortgage refinancing, and in distributions from the proceeds of liquidation.

The requirement that all limited partners contribute their proportionate shares of additional capital is designed to preserve the initial ownership percentages among the various partners. Under the Uniform Limited Partnership Act, if a priority is to be given a limited partner over other limited partners in respect of income, return of contributions, or any other matter, that priority must be set forth in the filed certificate of limited partnership.

FORM

THIS AGREEMENT made _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , among SANFORD CORPORATION, a Delaware corporation with offices at

WHEREAS, the parties desire to form a Limited Partnership under the laws of the State of _____ [state] for the purposes and on the terms and conditions set forth in this agreement; and

WHEREAS, the General Partner has simultaneously herewith assigned the purchase contract to the Limited Partnership organized pursuant to this agreement.

NOW THEREFORE, it is mutually agreed as follows:

1. Formation. The parties hereby form a Limited Partnership pursuant to the provisions of the Partnership Law of the State of _____ [state] .
2. Name. The Partnership shall be conducted under the name of Skyline Hotel Company, L.P.
3. Purpose. The purpose of the Partnership is to acquire pursuant to a certain contract of purchase dated _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , and to hold for investment the premises known as the Skyline Hotel in New York, New York, and certain furniture, furnishings, and personal property located therein, and to own, manage, mortgage, create security interests in, lease, improve, exchange, sell, or otherwise transfer or dispose of such property.
4. Term. The term of the Partnership shall begin on the filing of the Certificate of Filing with the State of _____ [state] , and shall continue until _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] . The Partnership shall be dissolved prior to such date, however, if any of the following events shall occur: (a) any disposition by the Partnership of its entire interest in the real and personal property, including all mortgages or leasehold interests which it may acquire in exchange therefor; (b) the desire of the General Partner to dissolve the Partnership as set forth in Paragraph 21; or (c) the bankruptcy, receivership, or liquidation of the General Partner as provided in Paragraph 19. Further, the general partners agree to publish weekly notices required by the Act in two newspapers located in the Partnership's county of principal business.
5. Principal Office. The principal office of the Partnership shall be maintained in care of Sanford Corporation, _____ [address] , _____ [city] , _____ [state] , or at such other place as the General Partner from time to time may determine.
6. General and Limited Partners. Sanford Corporation shall be the General Partner. James Meyer, Perry Barnes, and George Roberts shall be the Limited Partners.
7. Capital Contribution of General Partner. The General Partner shall contribute to the capital of the Partnership the sum of _____ Dollars ($_____). The General Partner warrants and represents that it has full power and authority to enter into this agreement and to make its contribution to the capital of the Partnership, and that this agreement and its execution by the General Partner have been ratified, approved, and confirmed by resolution of its Board of Directors.

8. Capital Contributions of Limited Partners. Each Limited Partner shall contribute to the capital of the Partnership the sum of _____ Dollars ($_____) in cash.

9. Profits and Losses. Except as otherwise provided in paragraph 11(b), the net profits of the Partnership shall be divided and any losses shall be borne by each of the Partners in the following proportions (subject, however, insofar as the Limited Partners are concerned, to the limitation of their liability to the amount of their individual investment as hereinafter provided):

Partner	Percentage
Sanford Corporations	50%
James Meyer	16-2/3 %
Perry Barnes	16 2/3 %
George Roberts	16 2/3 %

10. Losses of Limited Partners. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in this agreement, the liability of any Limited Partner for the losses of the Partnership shall in no event exceed in the aggregate the value of his original contributions to the Partnership's capital. The General Partner shall solely bear all losses in excess of the contributed amount.

11. Alterations and Additional Capital Contributions.

(a) Proportionate Contributions. The Partnership shall cause all alterations, additions, improvements, repairs, and replacements to or of the Partnership property that the General Partner in its sole discretion shall deem advisable, notwithstanding the same may substantially alter the character or use of the premises. If in the sole judgment of the General Partner the Partnership requires additional capital contributions from the Partners for such work, the Limited Partners shall be notified in writing and shall have the option, to be exercised unanimously within thirty (30) days after such notification, to make additional contributions in cash to the Partnership equal to sixteen and 2/3 percent (16-2/3%) each of the estimated net cost to the Partnership of the work. The exercise of such option by a Limited Partner shall not be deemed effective unless all of the Limited Partners exercise the option in accordance with the terms of this paragraph. If the option is exercised by all of the Limited Partners, they shall make their additional capital contributions at such time or times as the General Partner shall direct, and the General Partner shall make an additional contribution in cash to the Partnership equal to fifty percent (50%) of the estimated net cost to the Partnership of such work, and in such event the Partners' shares of profits and losses shall remain unchanged, i.e., shall be in the proportions set forth in Paragraph 9.

(b) Contribution by General Partner. If any Limited Partner fails to exercise such option, the General Partner shall, in lieu of the foregoing, make an additional contribution of cash to the Partnership equal to the Partnership's entire estimated net cost of the work. In such event, the net losses of the Partnership shall continue to be apportioned by the Partners in the proportions set forth in Paragraph 9 (subject, however, insofar as the Limited Partners are concerned, to the limitation of their liability to the amount of their individual investment as hereinabove provided), but effective as of the date of the making of such additional capital contribution by the General Partner, the net profits of the Partnership shall be divided among the Partners as follows:

(1) Preferred Share of Profits. The General Partner shall first be entitled, before any allocation to the Limited Partners, to a portion of the net cash receipts of the Partnership from the operation of the Partnership property equal to ten percent (10%) per annum of the amount of the additional capital contribution made by it to the Partnership pursuant to this Paragraph 11(b), subject, however, to the following provisos: (a) in the event that the additional contribution made by the General Partner pursuant to this paragraph 11(b) is repaid in part or in whole to the General Partner from the proceeds of any mortgage refinancing or from the sale or condemnation of any partnership property, at any time or from time to time, as provided in paragraph 12(b), then, effective as of the date of such repayment or repayments, the preferred share of profits to which the General Partner shall be entitled pursuant to this subdivision (1) shall be reduced to an amount equal to 10 percent of the unreturned portion of the General Partner's additional capital contribution; and if the entire additional contribution made by the General Partner pursuant to this Paragraph 11(b) shall have been so repaid to the General Partner, then effective as of the date of the repayment the General Partner shall no longer be entitled to a preferred share of profits as provided in this subdivision (1), and all profits shall thereafter be divided among the General and Limited Partners in the proportions set forth in Paragraph 9.

(2) Balance of Profits. The balance of Partnership net profits over and above the amount allocable to the General Partner, pursuant to subdivision (1) above, shall be divided among the General and Limited Partners in the proportions set forth in Paragraph 9.

(c) All additional capital contributions to the Partnership and the rights of the Partners and the Partnership with respect thereto shall be governed by the provisions of this agreement pertaining to original capital contributions to the Partnership.

12. Partnership Cash Receipts.

(a) Net Cash Receipts. The net cash receipts of the Partnership derived from operation of the Partnership property, in excess of operating expenses and such reasonable reserves as may be established at the sole discretion of the General Partner for alterations, repairs, or other contingencies, shall be distributed to the Partners quarterly or at such other more frequent intervals as the General Partner shall determine. Distributions to the Partners of such net cash receipts shall be made to the Partners in the same proportions in which they then share profits and losses pursuant to Paragraph 9 or Paragraph 11(b), as the case may be. No Partner shall be obligated to repay to the Partnership any such cash distributions received by him or by any other Partner.

(b) Mortgage, Sale, or Condemnation Proceeds. Notwithstanding anything herein contained to the contrary, in the event that the Limited Partners are given the option of making additional contributions to the capital of the Partnership, as provided in Paragraph 11(b), and fail to exercise such option, and if the General Partner then makes an additional capital contribution as provided for in Paragraph 11(b), the net proceeds (after payment of all expenses) subsequently received by the Partnership from the refinancing of any mortgage constituting a lien against the Partnership property or from the sale or condemnation of any Partnership property shall be first applied to the repayment to the General Partner of the additional contribution made by it pursuant to Paragraph 11(b), and shall be distributed to the General Partner accordingly. The Limited Partners shall have no right to such sale, mortgage, or condemnation proceeds or to the proceeds of any successive mortgage refinancing or sale or condemnation of Partnership property until the additional contribution of the General Partner shall have been repaid to it in full by the Partnership. All such distributions to the General Partner shall be charged against the General Partner's capital account, and the General Partner shall not be obligated to repay such distributions to the Partnership.

13. Salaries, Drawings, and Interest on Capital Contributions. None of the Partners (General or Limited) shall receive any salary or drawings for services rendered on behalf of the Partnership in their capacity as Partners, nor shall any Partner receive any interest on his contribution to the capital of the Partnership.

14. Management, Duties, and Restrictions.

(a) General Partner. The General Partner shall manage the Partnership business and shall devote such time to the Partnership as shall be reasonably required for its welfare and success. The General Partner shall have the right, in its discretion, on behalf of the Partnership, to borrow or lend money, to make, deliver, or accept any commercial paper and execute any mortgage, security agreement, bond, or lease, and to purchase or contract to purchase or sell or contract to sell any property for or of the Partnership.

(b) Limited Partners. No Limited Partner shall participate in the management of the Partnership business. A Limited Partner shall have the right to withdraw his capital contribution upon the termination of the Partnership as provided herein. No part of the capital contribution of any Limited Partner shall be withdrawn, however, unless all liabilities of the Partnership (except liabilities to partners on account of their contributions) have been paid or unless the Partnership has assets sufficient to pay them. No Limited Partner shall have the right to demand or receive property other than cash in return for his contribution. No Limited Partner shall have priority over any other Limited Partner either as to contributions to capital or as to compensation by way of income.

(c) Limited Partners' Consent. The Limited Partners consent to any sale or other disposition, encumbrance, mortgage, security agreement or lease (or modification, cancellation, or replacement of any existing mortgage or lease) by the General Partner on behalf of the Partnership, of any or all of the Partnership's assets on such terms and conditions as the General Partner may determine in its sole discretion, and to the employment, when and if required, of such brokers, accountants, managing, and other agents and attorneys as the General Partner may from time to time determine. The fact that a Partner, General or Limited, or an officer, director, or shareholder of the General Partner, or a member of the family of a Limited Partner or of an officer, director, or shareholder of the General Partner, is employed by, or directly or indirectly interested in or connected with, any person, firm, or corporation employed by the Partnership to render or perform a service, or from which the Partnership may purchase any property, shall not prohibit the General Partner from employing such person, firm, or corporation, or from otherwise dealing with him or it, and neither the Partnership nor any of the Partners shall have any rights in or to any income or profits derived therefrom as a consequence of the Partnership relationship herein created.

(d) Other Activities. Any General or Limited Partner, may engage in and possess an interest in other business ventures of every nature and description, independently or with others, including but not limited to the ownership, financing, leasing, operation, management, or development of real property. Neither the Partnership nor any of its Partners shall have any rights by virtue of this agreement in and to such independent ventures or the income or profits derived therefrom.

15. Banking. All funds of the Partnership shall be deposited in such bank account or accounts as the General Partner shall designate. Withdrawals from any such bank account or accounts shall be made upon such signature or signatures as the General Partner may designate.

16. Conveyance. Any deed, bill of sale, mortgage, security agreement, lease, contract of sale, or other commitment purporting to convey or encumber the interest of the Partnership in all or any portion of any real or personal property at any time held in its name, shall be signed by the General Partner, and no other signature shall be required. No person shall be required to inquire into the authority to sign any document pursuant to the provisions of this paragraph.

17. Assignability. With the consent of the General Partner only, any Limited Partner may assign his interest in the Partnership. No Limited Partner shall have the right to substitute an assignee as a contributor or substituted Limited Partner in his place.

18. Power of Attorney. Each of the Limited Partners hereby irrevocably constitutes and appoints the General Partner his true and lawful attorney, in his name, place, and stead, to make, execute, acknowledge, and file:

(a) A certificate of limited partnership under the laws of the State of _____ [state];

(b) Any certificate or other instrument which may be required to be filed by the Partnership under the laws of the State of _____ [state] or which the General Partner shall deem it advisable to file;

(c) Any and all amendments or modifications of the instruments described in the preceding subdivisions (a) and (b); and

(d) All documents which may be required to effectuate the dissolution and termination of the Partnership;

It is expressly understood and intended by each of the Limited Partners that the grant of the foregoing power of attorney is coupled with an interest.

19. Bankruptcy, Receivership, or Liquidation of General Partner. In the event of the bankruptcy, receivership, or liquidation of the General Partner, the Partnership shall be dissolved and terminated.

20. Death of Limited Partner. The death of a Limited Partner shall not dissolve or terminate the Partnership. In the event of such death, the personal representative of the deceased Limited Partner shall have all the rights of a Limited Partner in the Partnership to the extent of the deceased's interest therein, subject to the terms and conditions of this agreement.

21. Termination Prior to End of Term. The General Partner may, in its sole discretion, terminate the Partnership prior to the end of the partnership term by giving at least thirty (30) days' prior written notice to each of the Limited Partners.

22. Distributions on Termination. In the event of the dissolution and termination of the Partnership, the General Partner shall proceed to the liquidation of the Partnership. The proceeds of such liquidation shall be applied and distributed first in payment of Partnership liabilities, then to the repayment of the additional capital contribution (if any) made by the General Partner pursuant to paragraph 11(b) or so much thereof as shall not theretofore have been returned to the General Partner in accordance with the provisions of Paragraph 12(b), and finally to each Partner in proportion to the percentages as set forth in Paragraph 9. Anything in this agreement to the contrary notwithstanding, the General Partner shall not be personally liable for the return of the capital contributions of Limited Partners, or any portion thereof, it being expressly understood that any such return shall be made solely from Partnership assets.

23. Notices. All notices provided for in this agreement shall be directed to the parties at the addresses herein set forth and to the Partnership at its principal office by registered or certified mail.

24. Entire Agreement. This agreement supersedes all agreements previously made between the parties relating to its subject matter. There are no other understandings or agreements between them.

25. Non-waiver. No delay or failure by a party to exercise any right under this agreement, and no partial or single exercise of that right, shall constitute a waiver of that or any other right, unless otherwise expressly provided herein.

26. Headings. Headings in this agreement are for convenience only and shall not be used to interpret or construe its provisions.

27. Governing Law. This agreement and the rights of the parties hereunder shall be construed in accordance with and governed by the laws of the State of _____ [state] .

28. Counterparts. This agreement may be executed in two or more counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original but all of which together shall constitute one and the same instrument.

29. Binding Effect. The provisions of this agreement shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of each of the parties and their respective estates, heirs, legatees, successors, and assigns.

In witness whereof the parties hereto have executed this agreement as of the day and year first above written.

FORM 20.28 Syndication--limited partnership agreement--provision for continuance of partnership upon death of general partner

COMMENT

This form illustrates a limited partnership agreement which might be used by a substantial real estate syndication. Participating interests purchased by limited partners in a syndication have been recognized as "securities." This requires compliance with state and federal securities laws, which require filing statements, prospectus materials and other items.

Partnership vs. publicly traded partnership:

A newly formed partnership that is publicly traded is treated as a corporation for tax purposes. Publicly traded means that the partnership interests either are traded on an established securities market, or are readily tradable on a secondary market or its substantial equivalent. If 90 percent or more of its gross income is qualifying passive-type income, including real property rents, and gains from the sale or other disposition of real property, the partnership is excluded from corporate tax treatment. Net income from a publicly traded partnership is not treated as passive income for purposes of the passive loss rules. Losses are not allowed against other passive income or even against income from another publicly traded partnership.

If the partnership is not publicly traded, its tax status will depend upon whether it is classified as a partnership or an association.

Partnership vs. "association" tax status:

A syndicate is treated as a partnership unless it is an association taxable as a corporation (or it is publicly traded). In light of the "Check the Box" regulations, the analysis as to whether a limited partnership will be taxed as a partnership is largely, if not entirely, irrelevant. (See Chapter 1, Volume 1, Partnerships § 1.07[2]).

Partnership tax status:

A partnership is not subject to any federal income taxes. The partnership files federal partnership information tax returns reporting its operations on a cash basis for each calendar year. Each unit holder will be required to report on his own federal income tax return his share of partnership items of income, gain, loss, deduction, or credit and, accordingly, may be subject to tax on his distributive share of partnership income whether or not any cash distribution is made to him. As to the taxation of partnerships and partners, see TB § 20.05.

Passive activity limitations:

Generally speaking, rental real estate activity is considered to be a passive activity. IRC § 469(c)(2). Therefore, deductions and credits from rental activities can only offset income from other passive activities. Such deductions and credits cannot be deducted from nonpassive income, such as wages, dividends, interest, etc. However, there are two major exceptions to this general rule.

Certain eligible taxpayers who materially participate in rental real estate activities can deduct losses from such activities against nonpassive income. These eligible taxpayers include individuals and closely-held C corporations that meet specialeligibility requirements. IRC § 469(c)(7). Second, an individual who owns at least a 10-percent interest and actively participates in rental real estate activity is permitted to offset up to $25,000 of passive activity losses against his nonpassive income. IRC § 469(i).

Allocation of partnership tax items:

Items of partnership income, gain, loss, deductions, credits, or other items are allocated to a partner only if realized, paid, or incurred by the partnership during the portion of the year in which the partner is a member of the partnership and not retroactively to periods prior to entry. If any partner's interest in a partnership changes during the partnership tax year, each partner's share of partnership income, gain, loss, deduction, or credit is to be determined by using any method prescribed by regulations which takes into account the varying interests of the partners in the partnership during the tax year. For partnerships using the cash method of accounting, specific cash method items are required to be assigned to each day in the period to which they are attributable. The assigned amounts are then apportioned among the partners in proportion to their interests in the partnership at the close of each day. This allocation is similar to the accrual method and applies specifically to interest, taxes, payments for services, or for the use of property and other items prescribed by regulation to avoid retroactive allocation.

Generally, allocation of partnership tax items among partners is controlled by the partnership agreement, provided that the allocation has substantial economic effect. If the allocation is set aside, a partner's share of partnership items will be determined in accordance with the partner's interest in the partnership. For a more detailed discussion of this subject, see The Tax Background to Chapter 1, "Partnerships," in Volume 1.

Partnership taxation:

For a further discussion of partnership taxation, see TB § 20.05 at the beginning of this chapter, or The Tax Background to Chapter 1 in Volume 1, for more detailed coverage.

FORM

THIS PARTNERSHIP AGREEMENT made _____ [month] _____ [day] ,
 _____ [year] , among JOHN BAKER, MARVIN HARRIS, ALVIN JOHNSON, WILLIAM MINTON, OSCAR KINDLER, and DONALD ENRIGHT.

WHEREAS, a contract of sale, dated _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , was entered into between John Baker, Marvin Harris, and Alvin Johnson, as purchasers, and Central Realty Co., Inc., as seller (the "Purchase Agreement"), covering the sale of the improved real property situated in New York County known as the Blackacre Building (the "Real Property").

WHEREAS, the Purchase Agreement provides, among other things, that contemporaneously with the acquisition of the fee title to the Real Property, the purchaser will enter into a Net Lease with the seller of the fee title as lessee, covering the entire Real Property for an initial term of twenty-one (21) years with options in the lessee to renew for four additional terms of twenty-one (21) years each, upon the terms more particularly provided in the form of Net Lease attached to the Purchase Agreement.

WHEREAS, the parties desire to form a limited partnership for the purpose of acquiring the Real Property pursuant to the Purchase Agreement.

IT IS THEREFORE AGREED:

1. Formation. The parties hereby form a Limited Partnership (the "Partnership"), pursuant to the provisions of the Partnership Law of the State of _____ [state] .
2. Name. The Partnership shall be conducted under the firm name and style of Blackacre Realty Company.
3. Purpose. The purpose of the Partnership is to acquire and hold the Real Property for investment and to lease the same to another for operation, and if future circumstances require it, to again lease the real property or operate the same on such terms and conditions as a majority of the General Partners shall determine.
4. Term. The term of the Partnership shall begin on the filing of the Certificate of Filing with the State of _____ [state] , and shall continue until [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] . The Partnership shall be dissolved and terminated prior to such date, however, if any of the following events shall occur:
 - (a) Any disposition by the Partnership of its entire interest in the Real Property, including any mortgage, leasehold, securities, or other interest which it may acquire upon a transfer of the Real Property.
 - (b) The death, retirement, or adjudication of bankruptcy, insanity, or incompetency of any General Partner, unless the remaining General Partners elect to continue the Partnership pursuant to the provisions of Paragraph 20.
 - (c) The happening of the events described in Paragraph 8(b) of this agreement.

(d) The decision of all of the General Partners to terminate the Partnership.

5. Capital. The capital of the Partnership shall be $3,500,000, consisting of

(a) _____ Dollars ($ _____) in cash; and

(b) Other property consisting of the Purchase Agreement at an agreed value of _____ Dollars ($ _____).

6. General Partners and Their Contributions. The following parties shall be the General Partners of the Partnership. The General Partners shall contribute to the partnership capital undivided interests aggregating one hundred percent(100%) in the Purchase Agreement, in the amounts set forth alongside their respective names as follows:

John Baker $ _____

Marvin Harris $ _____

Alvin Johnson $ _____

These contributions shall be accomplished by the execution and delivery by the General Partners, concurrently with the execution of this Partnership Agreement, of an instrument assigning to the Partnership their undivided one hundred percent (100%) interest in the Purchase Agreement. The assignment shall include the interest of the General Partners in the _____ Dollars ($ _____) which they paid on account of the purchase price under the Purchase Agreement. However, the Partnership shall reimburse the assignors for their payment under the Purchase Agreement by delivering to them a noninterest-bearing note or notes in the amount of _____ Dollars ($ _____). Such note or notes shall be payable at the time and in the event of the closing of the Partnership's acquisition of the Real Property.

7. Original Limited Partners and Their Contributions. The following parties shall be the Original Limited Partners of the Partnership. The Limited Partners shall contribute to the partnership capital, in cash, concurrently with the execution of this Partnership Agreement, the amounts set forth alongside their respective names as follows:

William Minton $ _____

Oscar Kindler $ _____

Donald Enright $ _____

8. Additional Limited Partners and Their Contributions.

(a) Admission of Limited Partners. The General Partners are authorized to admit Additional Limited Partners to the Partnership, who shall contribute, in cash, to the partnership capital sums aggregating _____ Dollars ($ _____). Upon the admission of such additional Limited Partners an amendment to the certificate of limited partnership of the Partnership, reflecting such admissions, shall be filed. The cash contributions of each additional Limited Partner shall be in the amount of _____ Dollars ($ _____) or multiples thereof, or in lesser fractional amounts if the General Partners so determine. To accomplish the purposes of this paragraph, the General Partners are authorized to do all things necessary to effectuate the admission of such Additional Limited Partners. Each Additional Limited Partner shall become signatory to this agreement by executing a conformed counterpart of the agreement at the foot thereof, and each Additional Limited Partner shall be deemed to have adopted and agreed to be bound by all of the provisions of this agreement. However, each executed counterpart shall not become binding and effective until it has been attested by the signature of one of the General Partners. The original of this agreement, executed by the General Partners and the Original Limited Partners, and the duly executed and attested counterparts, taken together, shall constitute a single instrument.

(b) Preconditions. If for any reason whatsoever (1) additional contributions to the Partnership of _____ Dollars ($_____) are not made by Additional Limited Partners by _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], or any adjourned date for the closing of title to the Real Property, or (2) the acquisition of the Real Property shall not close by _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], or any adjourned date for the closing of title to the Real Property, then the cash contributions of the Original Limited Partners and the Proposed Limited Partners shall be repaid to them without interest; and the Partnership shall pay over to the General Partners, as their interests may appear, the deposit of _____ Dollars ($_____) under the Purchase Agreement, in the event that the deposit is returnable to the Partnership by the seller on the occasion of the termination of the Partnership in the circumstances described in this subparagraph. Upon such payments being made, this Partnership Agreement shall be of no further force and effect, and the Partnership shall terminate, with the authority in the General Partners, or any of them, to execute a Certificate of Cancellation of the Partnership, as well as any and all other documents required to effectuate the Partnership dissolution.

9. Acquisition of Real Property, etc. Upon the admission of Additional Limited Partners whose cash contributions to the Partnership shall aggregate _____ Dollars ($_____), the Partnership shall proceed to acquire fee title to the Real Property and enter into the Net Lease pursuant to the terms of the Purchase Agreement, and the General Partners shall take all steps which they shall deem necessary or proper to effectuate such transactions. Any of the General Partners, acting on behalf of the Partnership, may execute any or all of the instruments required to accomplish the foregoing.

10. Principal Office. The principal office of the Partnership shall be maintained at _____ [address] , _____ [city] , _____ [state] , or at such other place or places as the General Partners may from time to time determine, notice of which shall be given to the Limited Partners.

11. Profits and Losses.

(a) Allocation. The net cash receipts of the Partnership shall be apportioned among the General Partners and the Limited Partners (collectively the "Partners"), and net losses shall be borne by them pro rata in accordance with the amounts of their respective original cash and agreed value of other property contributions to the Partnership capital, as the case may be. In any event, however, the liability of any Limited Partner (except one who is also a General Partner) for the losses of the Partnership shall be limited to the actual cash or property originally contributed by him to the Partnership capital.

(b) Net Cash Receipts Defined. The term "net cash receipts of the Partnership" shall mean net profits derived from the ownership of the Real Property as ascertained through the use of generally accepted accounting practices, except that (1) depreciation of buildings, improvements, and personalty shall not be considered as a deduction, (2) mortgage amortization shall be considered as a deduction, (3) all amounts expended by the Partnership in the discretion of the General Partners for capital improvements shall be considered a deduction, and (4) if the General Partners shall so determine, a reasonable reserve shall be deducted for working capital needs or to provide funds for improvements or for any other contingencies of the Partnership.

(c) Effect. The foregoing provisions for the apportionment of net cash receipts shall remain effective irrespective of whether all or any portion of the Partners' capital contributions shall have been returned to them pursuant to the provisions of Paragraph 12.

12. Distributions of Profits and Capital.

(a) Time. The net cash receipts of the Partnership, apportioned in the manner provided in Paragraph 11, shall be distributed at reasonable intervals as determined by the General Partners in their absolute discretion.

(b) Refinance Proceeds. In the event that moneys shall be available for distribution among the Partners as a return of capital by reason of mortgage refinancing, all such moneys shall be divided among the General Partners and Limited Partners, pro rata, in accordance with their respective original cash and agreed value of other property contributions to the Partnership capital, as the case may be.

(c) The respective amounts of the Partners' contributions to the Partnership capital in cash or the agreed value of other property may be returned to them, in whole or in part, in cash, at any time in the absolute discretion of the General Partners. Such returns of contributions shall be pro rata to all Partners in accordance with the amounts of their respective cash or agreed value of other property contributions to Partnership capital, as the case may be. No Partner shall have the right to demand or receive property other than cash in return for his contribution.

13. Advances. If any Partner shall, in excess of his contribution to the capital of the Partnership, advance any moneys to the Partnership, the amount of any such advance shall not be an increase of his capital contribution or entitle him to any increase in his share of the distributions of the Partnership. The amount of any such advance shall be an obligation of the Partnership to the Partner and, unless otherwise provided and agreed, shall be repaid to him without interest, except that such advances shall be payable or collectible only out of the Partnership assets, and the General Partners shall not be personally obligated to repay any part thereof.

14. Books, Records, and Reports.

(a) Maintenance. At all times during the continuance of the Partnership, the General Partners shall keep or cause to be kept complete and true books of account, in which shall be entered fully and accurately each transaction of the Partnership. The books of account, together with a certified copy of the certificate of limited partnership and all amendments thereto, shall at all times be maintained at the Partnership's principal office and shall be open to the reasonable inspection of the Partners or their duly authorized representatives.

(b) Annual statements. Annual statements of Partnership gross receipts and operating expense, as prepared by the Partnership's accountants, shall be transmitted to each of the Partners. Within a reasonable period after the close of each year, a report shall be transmitted to each Partner indicating his share of the Partnership's profits or loss for such year for federal income tax purposes.

15. Bank Accounts. All funds of the Partnership shall be deposited in the Partnership name, in such bank account or accounts as the General Partners shall designate. Withdrawals from any bank account or accounts shall be made upon such signature or signatures as the General Partners may designate.

16. Powers and Rights of General Partners.

(a) Management. Except as otherwise provided in subparagraph (b), the General Partners shall have equal rights in the management and conduct of the Partnership business.

(b) Authority. A majority of the General Partners in their absolute discretion shall have the power on behalf of the Partnership:

- (1) to sell, exchange, or convey title to, and to grant an option for the sale of all or any portion of the Real Property, including any mortgage or leasehold interest or other property which may be acquired by the Partnership upon a transfer of the Real Property; to lease all or any portion of the Real Property without limit as to the term, whether or not such term (including renewal terms) shall extend beyond the date of the termination of the Partnership and whether or not the space so leased is to be occupied by the lessee or, in turn, subleased in whole or in part to others; to borrow money and as security therefor to mortgage all or any part of the Real Property, and to prepay, in whole or in part, refinance, recast, increase, modify, consolidate, correlate, or extend all mortgages affecting the Real Property; all of the foregoing at the price, rental, or amount, for cash, securities, or other property and upon such terms as they deem proper;
- (2) to place record title to the Real Property in the name or names of a nominee or nominees for the purpose of mortgage financing or any other convenience or benefit of the Partnership;
- (3) to employ from time to time persons, firms, or corporations for the operation and management of the Real Property, including, without limitation, a supervisory managing agent, a building management agent, accountants, and attorneys on such terms and for such compensation as they shall determine;
- (4) to change and reorganize the Partnership into any other legal form; and
- (5) to execute, acknowledge, and deliver any and all instruments to effectuate the foregoing.

By way of extension of the foregoing and not in limitation thereof, the General Partners shall possess all of the powers and rights of partners in a partnership without limited partners under the Partnership Law of the State of New York. However, whenever a decision shall have been made by a majority of the General Partners in respect of any of the foregoing matters, such majority decisions shall be binding upon all General Partners, and any action taken thereunder shall constitute the act of all General Partners.

(c) Approval of Sale. Notwithstanding the unqualified power and right of a majority of the General Partners to sell, exchange, or convey title to the Real Property, or any part thereof, the General Partners represent that it is not their intention to sell, exchange, or convey the Real Property unless written approval of a majority in interest of the Limited Partners is first obtained. Each of the Limited Partners agrees that such written approval, if given, shall be irrevocable and upon receipt by the General Partners of such approval of a majority in interest of the Limited Partners to any such sale, the express irrevocable approval and consent of all Limited Partners shall be deemed conclusively to have been given to the General Partners. Each of the Limited Partners hereby irrevocably constitutes and appoints the General Partners, or any one of them, jointly and severally, his true and lawful attorney, in his name, place, and stead, in such event, to execute his consent to confirm and adopt such unanimous approval. The foregoing power of attorney is coupled with an interest and shall survive delivery of an assignment of limited partnership interest in the same manner as in Paragraph 23 provided. A transfer of record title to a nominee for the Partnership for the purpose of mortgage financing or any other convenience or benefit of the Partnership shall not be construed as a sale, exchange, or conveyance within the meaning of this subparagraph (c) or of Paragraph 4(a) hereof. Nothing herein contained shall require any assignee or grantee to investigate the General Partners' authority to sell, exchange, or convey all or any portion of the Real Property or any other property of the Partnership, or to grant any option therefor, nor require any assignee or grantee to inquire as to whether the approval of the Limited Partners for any sale, exchange, or conveyance, if executed by a majority of the General Partners, shall bind the Partnership.

(d) Other activities. The General Partners shall devote so much of their time as they in their absolute discretion deem necessary to the affairs of the Partnership business, and they shall receive no compensation therefor from the Partnership. Any General or Limited Partner may engage in or possess an interest in other business ventures of every nature and description, independently or with others. Such other activities may include, but shall not be limited to, the ownership, financing, leasing, operation, management, syndication, brokerage, and development of real property.

Neither the Partnership nor the Partners shall have any right by virtue of this agreement in and to such independent ventures or to the income or profits derived therefrom. The fact that a General or Limited Partner, or a member of his family, is employed by, or is directly or indirectly interested in or connected with, any person, firm, or corporation employed by the Partnership to render or perform a service, or from whom or which the Partnership may buy merchandise or other property, or to or from whom or which the Partnership shall lease the Real Property, shall not prohibit the General Partners from executing a lease with or employing such person, firm, or corporation or from otherwise dealing with him or it. Neither the Partnership nor any of the Partners, as such, shall have any rights in or to any income or profits derived therefrom.

(e) Reliance on Counsel. Any act or failure to act by a General Partner, the effect of which may cause or result in loss or damage to the Partnership, if pursuant to opinion of legal counsel employed by the General Partners on behalf of the Partnership, shall not subject the General Partners to any liability.

17. Activities of Limited Partners. The Limited Partners shall take no part in, or interfere in any manner with, the conduct or control of the Partnership business or the sale, leasing, or refinancing of its assets, and shall have no right or authority to act for or bind the Partnership.

18. Substituted Limited Partners.

(a) Consent. Anything in this agreement to the contrary notwithstanding, no assignee of the whole or any portion of a Limited Partner's interest in the Partnership shall have the right to become a Substituted Limited Partner in place of his assignor, unless (1) his assignor shall designate such intention in the instrument of assignment, and (2) the written consent of all the General Partners to such substitution shall be obtained. The General Partners shall have the sole and absolute discretion to grant or deny such substitution. Their failure or refusal to grant consent, however, shall not affect the validity of any such instrument as an assignment of the right to receive Partnership distributions applicable to such interest under this agreement, provided such instrument is in form satisfactory to the General Partners, a duly executed and acknowledged counterpart is filed with the Partnership, and the terms thereof are not in contravention of the provisions of subparagraph (c) of this Paragraph 18. In no event, shall the consent of any other Limited Partner be required to effectuate such substitution.

(b) Preconditions. Notwithstanding the granting of consent by the General Partners, the admission of an assignee as a Substituted Limited Partner shall be further conditioned on (1) the assignment instrument being in form and substance satisfactory to the General Partners, (2) the assignor and assignee named in the assignment executing and acknowledging such other instrument or instruments as the General Partners may deem necessary or desirable to effectuate the admission, (3) the assignee's written acceptance and adoption of all of the terms and provisions of this agreement, as the same may have been amended, and (4) the assignee paying or obligating himself to pay, as the General Partners may determine, all reasonable expenses connected with the admission.

(c) In no event shall a limited partnership interest, or any portion thereof, be assigned or transferred to a minor or incompetent. Any such attempted assignment or transfer shall be void and ineffectual and shall not bind the Partnership.

19. Death of Limited Partner. The death of a Limited Partner shall not dissolve or terminate the Partnership. In the event of death, the personal representative of the deceased Limited Partner shall have all the rights of a Limited Partner in the Partnership to the extent of the deceased's interest therein, subject to the terms and conditions of this agreement; and his estate shall be liable for all his liabilities as a Limited Partner.

20. Right of Surviving or Remaining General Partner to Continue Business of Partnership.

(a) Election. In the event of the death, retirement, or adjudication of bankruptcy, insanity, or incompetency of any of the General Partners, such retiring partner, or personal representative of the deceased partner, or the trustee of the bankrupt partner, or the committee or other representative of the insane or incompetent partner, as the case may be (the "Withdrawing General Partner"), the surviving or remaining General Partners, as the case may be (the "Remaining General Partners," which shall denote the singular if there is only one remaining or surviving General Partner), acting unanimously, shall have the right, but not the obligation, to elect to continue the business of the Partnership for the balance of the term as specified in Paragraph 4. The election may be exercised by notice to the Limited Partners stating in substance that the Remaining General Partners have elected to continue the business of the Partnership.

(b) Purchase Options. In the event that the election is exercised upon the death or adjudication of insanity or incompetency of a General Partner, the Remaining General Partners shall have the option to purchase (pro rata, or as they may otherwise agree among themselves) the entire interest of the Withdrawing General Partner for a cash price equal to the original contribution of the Withdrawing General Partner plus his proportionate share of mortgage amortization payments made by the Partnership less any distributions of capital made to him from the proceeds of any mortgage refinancing.

(c) Bankruptcy or Retirement. In the event that the election is exercised upon the adjudication of bankruptcy or retirement of a General Partner, the Remaining General Partners shall have the option to purchase (pro rata, or as they may otherwise agree among themselves) the entire interest of the Withdrawing General Partner for a cash price equal to the original contribution of such Withdrawing General Partner, less all distributions of capital theretofore made to him from the proceeds of any mortgage refinancing.

(d) Exercise of Purchase Option. Any of the foregoing options may be exercised by notice thereof to the Withdrawing General Partner, within 60 days after the remaining General Partners shall have elected to continue the business of the Partnership or the appointment of the legal representative of the deceased, bankrupt, insane, or incompetent General Partner, as the case may be, whichever is the later. Until such option is exercised and payment made thereunder, the Withdrawing General Partner shall be entitled to receive distributions applicable to his interest.

(e) Limited Partner Alternative. In the event the Remaining General Partners do not exercise their option to purchase, the Withdrawing General Partner shall become a Limited Partner of the Partnership with the same interest in the Partnership capital and profits as the Withdrawing General Partner had.

21. Distribution on Dissolution.

(a) Liquidation Priority. Upon the dissolution and termination of the Partnership, the then General Partners shall proceed to the liquidation of the Partnership. The proceeds of liquidation shall be applied and distributed in the following order of priority:

(1) To the payment of the Partnership's debts and liabilities (other than any loans or advances that may have been made by any of the Partners to the Partnership) and the expenses of liquidation.

(2) To the setting up of any reserves which the General Partners may deem reasonably necessary for any contingent or unforeseen liabilities or obligations of the Partnership or of the General Partners, arising out of or in connection with the Partnership. The General Partners shall pay over the reserves to a New York State attorney-at-law, as escrowee, to be held by him for the purpose of disbursing them in payment of any of the contingencies. At the expiration of a period that the General Partners shall deem advisable, the escrowee shall distribute the balance remaining in the manner provided in subparagraphs (3) and (4) of this Paragraph 21.

(3) To the repayment of all loans or advances that any of the Partners may have made to the Partnership, but if the amount available for repayment shall be insufficient, then pro rata on account thereof.

(4) Any balance then remaining shall be distributed among all General and Limited Partners, pro rata, in accordance with the amounts of their respective original contributions to the Partnership capital.

(b) Liquidation Period. A reasonable time shall be allowed for the orderly liquidation of the Partnership assets and the discharge of liabilities to creditors so as to enable the General Partners to minimize the normal losses attendant upon a liquidation.

(c) Financial Statement, Termination. Each of the Partners shall be furnished with a statement prepared by the Partnership's then accountants, which shall set forth the Partnership assets and liabilities as at the date of complete liquidation. Upon the General Partners complying with the distribution plan (including payment over to the attorney escrowee if there are sufficient funds therefor), the Limited Partners shall cease to be such, and the General Partners, as the sole remaining partners of the Partnership, shall execute, acknowledge and cause to be filed a certificate of cancellation of the Partnership.

(d) Return of Capital Contribution. The General Partners shall not be personally liable for the return of the capital contributions of Limited Partners, or any portion thereof. Any such return shall be made solely from Partnership assets.

22. Withdrawal by Limited Partners. No Limited Partner shall at any time withdraw from the Partnership, except as hereinbefore provided.

23. Power of Attorney.

(a) Partnership Documents. In addition to the powers of attorney contained in Paragraph 16, each of the Limited Partners irrevocably constitutes and appoints the General Partners, or any one of them, jointly and severally, his true and lawful attorney, in his name, place, and stead, to make, execute, acknowledge, and file:

(1) a certificate of limited partnership under the laws of the State of _____ [state];

(2) any certificate or other instrument which may be required to be filed by the Partnership under the laws of the State of _____ [state] which the General Partners shall deem it advisable to file;

(3) any and all amendments or modifications of the instruments described in the preceding subdivisions (1) and (2); and

(4) all documents which may be required to effectuate the dissolution and termination of the Partnership;

It is expressly intended by each of the Limited Partners that the foregoing power of attorney is coupled with an interest.

(b) Survival. The foregoing power of attorney, as well as the powers contained in Paragraph 16, shall survive the delivery of an assignment by any of the Limited Partners of the whole or any portion of his limited partnership interest. Where, however, the General Partners have approved an assignee of a limited partnership interest as a Substituted Limited Partner, then the foregoing power of attorney of the assignor Limited Partner shall survive the delivery of the assignment for the sole purpose of enabling the General Partners to execute, acknowledge, and file any and all instruments necessary to effectuate the substitution.

(c) Substitute Limited Partners. A similar power of attorney shall be one of the instruments which the General Partners, under Paragraph 18, shall require an assignee of a Limited Partner to execute as a condition of his admission as a substituted Limited Partner.

(d) Tax Election. In the discretion of the General Partners, the Partnership may, but shall not be obliged to, make or revoke the election referred to in Section 754 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 or any similar provision enacted in lieu of Section 754. Each of the Partners shall supply to the Partnership the information necessary, properly to give effect to such election.

(e) Disability. This power of attorney, and any other power of attorney granted by this agreement, shall not be affected by the subsequent disability or incompetence of the principal.

24. Acknowledgment of Limited Partners.

(a) Other Instruments. Each of the Additional Limited Partners acknowledges that statements contained in this agreement as to the contents of any agreement or other instrument are not necessarily complete. In each instance reference is made to the copies of such instruments which have been available for inspection by the Additional Limited Partners as hereinafter set forth.

(b) Prospectus. Each of the Additional Limited Partners further acknowledges that prior to the date of execution of a counterpart of this agreement he received and examined a copy of the Prospectus filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission, as amended to the execution date.

(c) Inspection. True copies of the Purchase Agreements and exhibits annexed thereto, the Registration Statement filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission, and all other instruments related to this transaction shall be available for inspection by each of the Additional Limited Partners prior to the submission of a counterpart hereof for his signature. Such availability for inspection shall be at the Partnership's principal office.

25. Notice. All notices under this agreement shall be in writing, and shall be given to the parties at the addresses herein set forth and to the Partnership at its principal office, or at such other address as any of the parties may hereafter specify in the same manner.

26. General Partners' Option. If all the General Partners deem it to be in the best interests of the Partnership, they may treat an assignee, who has not become a Substituted Limited Partner, as a Substituted Limited Partner in the place and stead of his assignor.

27. Captions. Paragraph titles or captions contained in this agreement are inserted only as a matter of convenience and for reference, and in no way define, limit, extend, or describe the scope of this agreement or the intent of any provision hereof.

28. Variations in Pronouns. All pronouns and variations thereof shall be deemed to refer to the masculine, feminine, singular, or plural as the identity of the person or persons may require.

29. Arbitration. Any dispute or controversy arising under, out of, in connection with, or in relation to this agreement, and any amendment thereof, or the breach thereof, or in connection with the formation, operation, or dissolution of the Partnership, shall be determined and settled by arbitration in _____ [city] in accordance with the rules of the American Arbitration Association. Any award rendered therein shall be final and binding on each and all of the Partners, and judgment may be entered thereon in any court of competent jurisdiction.

30. Conversion. Notwithstanding the foregoing, nothing in Paragraph 29 shall affect the right of any Partner to bring an action for conversion in the event of violation of the trust provisions of the General Business Law of the State of _____ [state] .

31. Agreement in Counterparts. This agreement may be executed in several counterparts, and all so executed shall constitute one agreement, binding on all the parties, notwithstanding that all the parties are not signatory to the original or the same counterpart.

32. Partners' Representation. Each of the Partners represents and warrants that he is over the age of 21 years, and that the residence address set forth opposite or below his name, as the case may be, at the end of this agreement is his bona fide residence.

33. Cash Contributions. At the election of the General Partners, cash contributions by Limited Partners to the Partnership capital may be in the form of cash, bank draft, certified check, or uncertified check subject to collection.

34. Entire Agreement. This agreement supersedes all agreements previously made between the parties relating to its subject matter. There are no other understandings or agreements between them.

35. Non-waiver. No delay or failure by a party to exercise any right under this agreement, and no partial or single exercise of that right, shall constitute a waiver of that or any other right, unless otherwise expressly provided herein.

36. Governing Law. This agreement and the rights of the parties hereunder shall be construed in accordance with and governed by the laws of the State of _____ [state] .

37. Binding Effect. Except as otherwise expressly provided herein, the provisions of this agreement shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of each of the parties and their respective personal representatives, successors, and assigns.

In witness whereof the parties have executed this agreement.

FORM 20.29 Limited partnership--corporate general partner--sale of limited partnership units to the public--detailed provisions concerning the general partner's fees, powers, and duties

COMMENT

One of the principal features of this limited partnership agreement is that a corporation is the sole general partner. The Uniform Limited Partnership Act ("ULPA") has been modified in most states to specifically permit a corporation to act as general partner in a partnership. A major benefit of this arrangement is to permit the possibility of limited liability for the persons holding shares in the corporate general partner, as well as limited liability for the limited partners. There is some conflict of authority, however, as to whether a limited partner, who is also a director, officer and/or principal shareholder of the corporate general partner, exercises sufficient "control" so as to be personally liable as a general partner under the ULPA. Local law on these issues should be consulted.

Publicly traded partnerships taxed as corporations:

A partnership first publicly traded after December 17, 1987 is treated as a corporation for tax purposes. A partnership is publicly traded if its partnership interests are either traded on an established securities market, or readily tradable on a secondary market or the substantial equivalent of a secondary market. An exception to corporate tax treatment applies to certain partnerships if 90 percent or more of their gross income is qualifying passive-type income, including real property rents, and gains from the sale or other disposition of real property.

Net income from a publicly traded partnership is not treated as passive income for purposes of the passive loss rules. Each partner in a publicly traded partnership treats loss, if any, from the partnership as separate from income and loss from any other publicly traded partnership, and separate from any income or loss from passive activities. Under the passive loss rules net income from publicly traded partnerships is treated as portfolio income.

If the partnership is not publicly traded, its tax status will depend upon whether it is classified as a partnership or an association.

Partnership and association characteristics:

In light of the "Check the Box regulations, the analysis as to whether a limited partnership will be treated as a partnership is largely, if not entirely, irrelevant. (See Chapter 1, Volume 1, Partnerships § 1.07(2)).

Partnership taxation:

For a further discussion of partnership taxation, see TB § 20.05 and § 20.06 at the beginning of this chapter, or The Tax Background to Chapter 1 in Volume 1, for more detailed coverage.

9.2.2 The amount of the Acquisition Fees with respect to a particular Partnership Property shall not exceed the lesser of: (i) sixteen percent (16%) of that portion of the Gross Proceeds applicable to the Partnership Property which is the subject of the acquisition, (ii) the normal and competitive rate for similar services in the location where the services are performed, or (iii) six percent (6%) of the Cost of such Partnership Property.

9.2.3 The Partnership shall pay no Acquisition Fee to any of its Affiliates, nor shall any of its Affiliates receive a fee, commission, or other benefit from any person, upon any reinvestment of the Cash from Sales or Refinancing of Property by the Partnership other than any Acquisition Fees in connection with the investment of Cash from Initial Financing.

9.6 If the General Partner is expelled from the Partnership, such Partner shall be entitled to interest on all loans so made subject to the provisions of this Partnership Agreement.

9.7 Should the General Partner be expelled from the Partnership according to provisions of Paragraph 17, any portion of the Acquisition Fee, Property Management Fee, Subordinated Incentive Fee, or any other fee or commission payable according to the provisions of this Paragraph 9 which is then accrued and due, but not yet paid, shall be paid by the Partnership to the General Partner in cash within 30 days of the date of expulsion as stated in the written notice of expulsion.

10. Partnership Expenses

10.1 Reimbursement (other than for organization and offering expenses) to the General Partner or its Affiliates shall not be made, except for reimbursement of the actual cost to the General Partner or its Affiliates of goods and materials used for or by the Partnership. Reimbursement of the actual costs to the General Partner and its Affiliates of travel expenses shall be limited as follows: the amount of such reimbursement plus the amount of Acquisition Fees paid to any party in connection with the acquisition of Partnership Properties and the amounts payable to the General Partner under Paragraph 11.4 shall not exceed (a) eighteen percent (18%) of the Gross Proceeds of the offering (or, if less, the real estate commissions or Acquisition Fees customarily charged in arm's length transactions by others in the same geographical location for comparable property to that acquired by the Partnership), and (b) ten percent (10%) of the total amount of Adjusted Cash from Operations. In addition, such reimbursement as to expenses relating to the acquisition of the Partnership Properties shall not be made if and to the extent that such expenses, when combined with the Acquisition Fees payable to any party in connection with the acquisition of the Partnership Properties, exceed six percent (6%) of the Cost of all Partnership Properties acquired. The reimbursement for expenses provided for in this Paragraph 10.1 shall be made to the General Partner regardless of whether any Distributions are made to the Limited Partners under the provisions of Paragraph 11.4.

10.2 The General Partner shall pay: (i) salaries and other compensation of its officers and directors incidental to the organization of the Partnership, the sale of Units and the acquisition of Partnership Properties, (ii) expenses incurred by the General Partner or its Affiliates in connection with the administration of the Partnership, including the overhead expenses of the General Partner or its Affiliates, (iii) expenses incidental to the organization of the Partnership and marketing of Units (exclusive of sales commissions payable in connection with the sale of Units to those persons who are admitted to the Partnership as additional Limited Partners therein), which expenses are in excess of two and 25/100 percent (2.25%) of Gross Proceeds, (iv) expenses related to the performance of those services for which the General Partner or its Affiliates are entitled to compensation by way of the Acquisition Fee, Property Management Fee and Subordinated Incentive Fee, and (v) all other expenses which are unrelated to the business of the Partnership.

10.3 Subject to Paragraphs 10.1 and 10.2, the Partnership shall pay all of its expenses. Such expenses may include, but

11.1 That portion of Net Income, Net Loss and Distributions of the Partnership allocated to the Unit Holders shall be apportioned among the Holders, in the ratio in which the number of Units owned by each of them on the last day of each calendar quarter bears to the total number of Units owned by all of them as of that date, without regard to capital accounts or the number of days during such quarter in which a person was a Holder.

11.2 Allocation of Net Loss . Except as provided in Section 11.9 of this Partnership Agreement, Net Loss shall be allocated as follows:

11.2.1 One percent (1%) shall be allocated to the General Partner.

11.2.2 Ninety-nine percent (99%) shall be allocated to the Unit Holders.

11.5 Distributions of Cash from Sales and Refinancings and Cash from Property Reserve Account. Cash from Sales and Refinancings and Cash from Property Reserve Account shall be distributed in the following order of priority (for purposes of this Paragraph 11.5, Adjusted Invested Capital shall not be reduced by the amount of Distributions of Cash from Sales and Refinancings and Cash from Property Reserve Account that is applied toward the preference to Unit Holders pursuant to Paragraph 11.5.1(i)):

11.5.1 First, to the Unit Holders, in an amount equal to: (i) the amount, when added to all prior Distributions to the Unit Holders, that shall be equal to six percent (6%) per annum cumulative on their Adjusted Invested Capital commencing with the third full fiscal quarter following the Closing Date, and (ii) the Original Invested Capital.

11.5.2 Second, to the General Partner, in an amount equal to the initial portion of the Subordinated Incentive Fee, it is entitled to under Paragraph 9.5.1.

11.5.3 Third, to the Unit Holders, in an amount equal to four percent (4%) per annum cumulative on their Adjusted Invested Capital commencing with the third full fiscal quarter following the Closing Date.

11.5.4 Fourth, to the General Partner, in an amount equal to the remaining portion of the Subordinated Incentive Fee it is entitled to under Paragraph 9.5.1.

11.5.5 Fifth, with respect to the remainder, one hundred percent (100%) thereof to the Unit Holders.

11.6 The Partnership may be restricted from making Distributions under the terms of notes, mortgages or other types of debt obligation which it may issue or assume in conjunction with borrowed funds, and Distributions may also be restricted or suspended in circumstances when the General Partner determines, in its absolute discretion, that such action is in the best interests of the Partnership.

11.7 The methods hereinabove set forth by which Distributions and allocations of Net Income and Net Loss are made and apportioned are hereby expressly consented to by each Partner as an express condition to becoming a Partner.

11.8 All Distributions are subject to the payment of Partnership expenses, and to the maintenance of reasonable reserves for alterations, repairs, improvements, maintenance, and replacement of furniture and fixtures.

11.9 To the extent that the Partnership shall be entitled to any deduction for federal income tax purposes as a result of any interest in Net Income and Net Loss granted to the General Partner, such deduction shall be allocated for federal income tax purposes to the General Partner.

11.10 During the first sixty (60) months after the Closing Date, the General Partner shall also distribute after the completion of each calendar year such amounts of Cash from Sales or Refinancings (when considered with prior distributions of Adjusted Cash from Operations) sufficient to allow a Holder in a highest applicable federal, income tax bracket to pay the income taxes due with respect to Net Income derived by him from the operations of the Partnership.

11.11 In the event that any portion of the Net Proceeds are not invested or committed for investment within twenty-four (24) months from the effective date of the Prospectus (except for any amounts utilized to pay Partnership operating expenses, including amounts set aside for reserves as set forth in Paragraph 3.2 of this Partnership Agreement), such portion of the Net Proceeds shall be distributed to the Unit Holders by the Partnership as a return of capital. For the purposes of this Paragraph 11.11, funds will be deemed to have been committed to investment and will not be returned to the Unit Holders to the extent written agreements in principle or letters of understanding were at any time executed, regardless of whether any such investment may or may not be consummated, and to the extent any funds have been reserved to make contingent payments in connection with any Property, regardless of whether any such payments may or may not be made.

12. Assignment of Partnership Units

12.1 Holders shall have the right to assign five or more whole Units by a written instrument of assignment. The terms of such instrument shall not be in contravention of any provision of this Partnership Agreement, and the instrument shall have been duly executed by the assignor of such Units. A Limited Partner shall, within 30 days after assignment, notify the General Partner of any assignment of a beneficial interest in any Units which occurs without a transfer of record ownership.

12.2 An Assignee of Record shall be entitled to receive distributions of cash or other property from the Partnership attributable to the Units acquired by reason of such assignment from and after the effective date of the assignment of such Units to him. Anything herein to the contrary notwithstanding, however, the Partnership and the General Partner shall be entitled to treat the assignor of such Units as the absolute owner thereof in all respects, and shall incur no liability for allocations of Net Income, Net Loss, or Distributions, or transmittal of reports and notices required to be given to Holders hereunder which are made in good faith to such assignor until such time as the written instrument of assignment has been received by the Partnership and recorded on its books and the effective date of the assignment has passed. Provided the Partnership has actual notice of an assignment of Units, the effective date of such assignment on which the Assignee shall be deemed as Assignee of Record shall be the first day of the month set forth on the written instrument of assignment.

12.3 Except as provided in this Paragraph 12.3, no assignment of any Units by a Holder may be made if the Units sought to be assigned, when added to the total of all other Units assigned within the period of 12 consecutive months prior to the proposed date of assignment would, in the opinion of counsel for the Partnership, result in the termination of the Partnership under Section 708 of the Code. Such assignment may be made, however, if, upon the application and at the expense of the Holder desiring to assign his Units in the Partnership, the Internal Revenue Service shall have granted to the transferring Holder and the Partnership a private ruling that the proposed assignment will not cause such termination.

12.4 No assignment, sale, transfer, exchange or other disposition of any Units in the Partnership may be made except in compliance with the then applicable rules of any other applicable governmental authority.

12.5 Any assignment, sale, exchange, or other transfer in contravention of any provision of this Paragraph 12 shall be void and ineffectual, and shall not bind or be recognized by the Partnership.

Copies of such statements and other pertinent information shall be distributed to each Limited Partner within sixty (60) days after the close of the six-month period covered by the Partnership report.

Any Partnership meeting or the date upon which such votes, without a meeting, will be counted (regardless of whether the General Partner has called for such meeting or vote upon the request of Limited Partners or has initiated such event without such request) shall be no less than fifteen (15) nor more than sixty (60) days following mailing of the notice thereof by the General Partner. All expenses of the voting and such notification shall be borne by the Partnership.

16.5 A Limited Partner shall be entitled to cast one vote for each unit which he owns: (i) at a meeting, in person, by written proxy or by a signed writing directing the manner in which he desires that his vote be cast; or (ii) without a meeting, by a signed writing directing the manner in which he desires that his vote be cast. The General Partner must receive such writing prior to the meeting, or, if there is no meeting, prior to the date upon which the votes of the Limited Partners are to be counted. Only the votes of Limited Partners of record on the notice date, whether at a meeting or otherwise, shall be counted. The General Partner shall not be entitled to vote. The laws of the State of California pertaining to the validity and use of corporate proxies shall govern the validity and use of proxies given by Limited Partners.

16.6 No Limited Partner shall have the right or power to: (i) withdraw or reduce his contribution to the capital of the Partnership except as a result of its dissolution or as otherwise provided by law, (ii) bring an action for partition against the Partnership, (iii) cause the termination and dissolution of the Partnership by court decree or otherwise, except as set forth in this Partnership Agreement, or (iv) demand or receive property other than cash in return for his contribution. No Limited Partner shall have priority over any other Limited Partner either as to the return of contributions of capital or as to Net Income, Net Loss or Distributions. Other than upon the termination and dissolution of the Partnership as provided by this Partnership Agreement, there has been no time agreed upon when the contribution of each Limited Partner may be returned.

16.7 In addition to any amendments otherwise authorized herein, the General Partner may amend this Agreement from time to time, without the consent of any Limited Partner, (i) to add to the representations, duties, or obligations of the General Partner or its Affiliates or surrender any right or power granted to the General Partner or its Affiliates herein, for the benefit of the Limited Partners; (ii) to cure any ambiguity, to correct or supplement any provision herein which may be inconsistent with any other provision herein, or to make any other provisions with respect to matters or questions arising under this Agreement which will not be inconsistent with the provisions of this Agreement; and (iii) to delete or add any provision of this Agreement required to be so deleted or added by the Staff of the Securities and Exchange Commission or by a State "Blue Sky" Commissioner or similar such official, which addition or deletion is deemed by such Commissioner or official to be for the benefit or protection of the Limited Partners. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in this Partnership Agreement, this Agreement may not be amended without the consent of the Partners to be adversely affected by an amendment that:

16.7.1 Converts a Limited Partner into a general partner;

16.7.2 Modifies the limited liability of a Limited Partner;

16.7.3 Alters the interest of the General or Limited Partners in Net Income or Net Loss or Distributions from the Partnership; or

16.7.4 Affects the status of the Partnership as a partnership for federal income tax purposes;

17. Expulsion, Bankruptcy or Dissolution of the General Partner

17.1 The General Partner may be expelled from the Partnership upon a Majority Vote.

17.2 Written notice of the expulsion of the General Partner shall be served upon it either by certified or by registered mail, return receipt requested, or by personal service. Such notice shall set forth the date upon which the expulsion is to become effective.

17.3 Upon the retirement, expulsion, adjudication of bankruptcy or dissolution of the General Partner ("Terminated Partner"), the Partnership shall purchase the Terminated Partner's interest in the Net Income, Net Loss and Distributions of the Partnership for a purchase price determined according to the provisions of Paragraph 17.4.

17.4 The Terminated Partner shall receive from the new general partner or partners ("acquiring partner") the fair market value of its interest in the Partnership, determined by agreement between the Terminated Partner and the acquiring partner, or if they cannot agree, by arbitration in accordance with the then current rules of the American Arbitration

Association. For this purpose, the fair market value of the interest of the Terminated Partner shall be deemed to be the amount it would receive upon the Partnership's dissolution and termination under Paragraph 19.2, assuming such dissolution or termination occurred on the date of the dissolving event and that the Partnership assets were sold for their then fair market value without compulsion of the Partnership to sell such assets. Payment shall be made by a promissory note bearing eight percent (8%) simple interest per year on such note's unpaid principal amount, secured by the acquiring partner's assignment to the Terminated Partner of the Partnership's future Distributions to the acquiring partner. The principal amount, together with accrued interest, shall be payable at the times and in the amounts equal to seventy-five percent (75%) of such Distributions until such time as the principal amount, together with accrued interest, is paid in full, but shall become due and payable in full by the acquiring partner at such time as the Partnership is finally wound up and liquidated. If the Terminated Partner requests, however, the sale and payment shall be made, to the extent required, on terms and conditions that will allow such sale to qualify for the installment method as provided in Section 453 of the Internal Revenue Code. The Terminated Partner shall be required to sell, and the acquiring partner shall be required to purchase, the Terminated Partner's interest in the Partnership no later than the sixtieth (60th) day after the occurrence of one of the events specified in Paragraph 19.1, or the election of a new General Partner under Paragraph 16.2, whichever occurs later.

18. Certain Transactions

The General Partner, any Holder, any Affiliates, any shareholder, officer, director or employee thereof, or any person owning a legal or beneficial interest therein, may engage in or possess an interest in any other business or venture of every nature and description, independently or with others including, but not limited to, the ownership, financing, leasing, operation, management, brokerage and development of real property.

19. Termination and Dissolution of the Partnership

19.1 The Partnership shall be terminated and dissolved upon the earlier to occur of the following:

19.1.1 The General Partner's retirement (provided there has been ninety (90) days prior written notice to the Limited Partners), expulsion, adjudication of bankruptcy, insolvency, dissolution or other cessation to exist as a legal entity, unless the General Partner in place thereof within one hundred twenty (120) days of the date of such event by Majority Vote elects to continue the business of the Partnership. Expenses incurred in the reformation, or attempted reformation, of the Partnership shall be deemed expenses of the Partnership;

19.1.2 A Majority Vote in favor of the Partnership's dissolution and termination;

19.1.3 The expiration of the term of the Partnership; or 19.1.4 The disposition of all interests in the Partnership's real property and other assets.

19.2 Upon a dissolution and termination of the Partnership for any reason, the General Partner shall take full account of the Partnership assets and liabilities, shall liquidate the assets as promptly as is consistent with obtaining the fair value thereof, and shall apply and distribute the proceeds therefrom in the following order.

19.2.1 To the payment of the Partnership's creditors, but excluding secured creditors whose obligations will be assumed or otherwise transferred on the liquidation of Partnership assets;

19.2.2 To the repayment of all outstanding loans made by the General Partner to the Partnership; and 19.2.3 To the General Partner and Holders pursuant to the provisions of Paragraph 11.5, "Allocation of Income, Loss and Distributions," of this Partnership Agreement.

20. Special Power of Attorney

20.1 Concurrently with the execution of written acceptance and adoption of the provisions of this Partnership Agreement, each Limited Partner shall execute, acknowledge, and deliver to the General Partner a special power of attorney in form acceptable to the General Partner. Each such special power of attorney shall constitute and appoint the General Partner as the attorney-in-fact for the Limited Partner, with power and authority to act in his name and on his behalf to execute, acknowledge, and swear to in the execution, acknowledgement, and filing of documents. Such powers shall include, by way of illustration but not of limitation, the following:

20.1.1 The Partnership Agreement, all separate certificates of limited partnership, as well as all amendments to the foregoing which, under the laws of the State of California or of any other state, are required to be filed or which the General Partner deems to be advisable to file;

20.1.2 Any other instrument or document which the Partnership may be required to file under the laws of any state or by any governmental agency, or which the General Partner deems advisable to file; and

20.1.3 Any instrument or document which may be required to effect the continuation of the Partnership, the admission of an additional or substituted Limited Partner, or the dissolution and termination of the Partnership (provided such continuation, admission or dissolution and termination are in accordance with the terms of this Partnership Agreement), or to reflect any reductions in amount of contributions of Partners.

20.2 The special power of attorney to be concurrently granted by each Limited Partner:

20.2.1 Is a special power of attorney coupled with an interest, is irrevocable, shall survive the death or legal incapacity of the granting Limited Partner, and is limited to those matters herein set forth;

20.2.2 May be exercised by the General Partner acting alone for each Limited Partner by a facsimile signature of the General Partner or by any one of its officers, or by listing all of the Limited Partners executing any instrument with a signature of the General Partner or one of its officers acting as its attorney-in-fact; and 20.3.3 Shall survive an assignment by a Limited Partner of all or any portion of his Units except that, where the Assignee of the Units owned by a Limited Partner has been approved by the General Partner for admission to the Partnership as a substituted Limited Partner, the special power of attorney shall survive such assignment for the sole purpose of enabling the General Partner to execute, acknowledge and file any instrument or document necessary to effect such substitution.

21. Indemnification

21.1 The Partnership, its receiver or its trustee, shall indemnify, save harmless and pay all judgments and claims against the General Partner, from any liability or damage incurred by reason of any act performed or omitted to be performed by them in connection with the business of the Partnership, including attorneys' fees incurred by them in connection with the defense of any action based on any such act or omission, which attorneys' fees may be paid as incurred, including all such liabilities under federal and state securities acts (including the Securities Act of 1933) as permitted by law. If a claim for indemnification (other than for expenses incurred in a successful defense) is asserted against the Partnership by the General Partner under this Partnership Agreement or otherwise, the Partnership will, unless in the opinion of its counsel the matter has been settled by controlling precedent, submit to a court of appropriate jurisdiction the question whether such indemnification by it is against public policy and will be governed by the final adjudication of such issue.

21.2 In the event of any action by a Holder against the General Partner including a Partnership derivative suit, the Partnership shall indemnify, save harmless and pay all expenses of the General Partner including attorneys' fees incurred in the defense of said action, if (a) the General Partner is successful in said action, or (b) in the opinion of the Partnership's counsel the matter has been settled by controlling precedent, or (c) if the matter has not been settled by controlling precedent, it will be submitted to a court of appropriate jurisdiction as to whether such indemnification by the Partnership is against public policy and all parties will be governed by the final adjudication of such issue.

21.3 Notwithstanding the provisions of Paragraph 21.1 and 21.2, the General Partner shall not be relieved from any liability imposed by law, including liability for fraud, bad faith, willful neglect or negligence. All judgments against the Partnership and the General Partner, wherein the General Partner is entitled to indemnification, must first be satisfied from Partnership assets before the General Partner is responsible for these obligations.

21.4 The General Partner shall have the right and authority to require in all Partnership contracts that it will not be personally liable thereon and that the person or entity contracting with the Partnership is to look solely to the Partnership and its assets for satisfaction.

22. Miscellaneous

22.1 This Partnership Agreement may be executed in several counterparts and all so executed shall constitute one Partnership Agreement, binding on all of the parties hereto, notwithstanding that all of the parties are not signatory to the original or the same counterpart.

22.2 The terms and provisions of this Partnership Agreement shall be binding upon and shall inure to the benefit of each of the Partners and their respective legal representatives, successors, and assigns.

22.3 In the event any sentence or paragraph of this Partnership Agreement is declared by a court of competent jurisdiction to be void, such sentence or paragraph shall be deemed severed from the remainder of the Partnership Agreement and the balance of the Partnership Agreement shall remain in effect.

22.4 All notices under this Partnership Agreement shall be in writing and shall be given to the Holder entitled thereto, by personal service or by mail, posted to the address maintained by the Partnership for such person or at such other address as he may specify in writing.

22.5 Paragraph titles or captions contained in this Partnership Agreement are inserted only as a matter of convenience and for reference. Such titles and captions in no way define, limit, extend or describe the scope of this Partnership Agreement nor the intent of any provision hereof.

22.6 Whenever required by the context hereof, the singular shall include the plural, and vice-versa; the masculine gender shall include the feminine and neuter genders, and vice-versa; and the word "person" shall include a corporation, partnership, firm or other form of association.

22.7 The name and address of the General Partner is:

22.10 No delay or failure by a party to exercise any right under this agreement, and no partial or single exercise of that right, shall constitute a waiver of that or any other right, unless otherwise expressly provided herein.

FORM 20.30 Syndication--subscription agreement to limited partnership--compensation to general partners in capital units--liquidated damages upon default of subscriber--articles of limited partnership

COMMENT

Prior to the actual formal organization of a limited partnership syndicate, the general partners can proceed by obtaining subscription agreements from prospective limited partners to make certain that sufficient capital can be raised. Typically, the subscription agreement will show the amount of capital to be invested, the general nature of the transaction, and the date when the contribution must be paid in full. Prior to offering limited partnership interests to the "public," the practitioner should exercise caution in determining whether and to what extent it may be necessary to comply with applicable federal and state securities laws. The agreement illustrated here provides that, upon default, any amount paid by a subscriber will be retained by the partnership as liquidated damages. The amount so retained would become an asset of the partnership and be considered as income.

FORMS

(1) Subscription agreement

THIS AGREEMENT made _____ [month] _____ [day] _____ [year] , 1987, between JOHN SHAW, residing at _____ [address] , _____ [city] , _____ [state] , and DANIEL SHAW, residing at _____ [address] , _____ [city] , _____ [state] (the "Shaws"), and all the parties whose signatures appear at the end of this agreement (the "Subscribers").

WHEREAS, the Shaws, as Purchasers, entered into an agreement dated _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , with Harold James, as seller, for the purchase of certain premises known as _____ [address] , _____ [city] , [state] (the "Property"), all upon the terms and conditions set forth therein (the "Contract of Purchase").

WHEREAS, the Shaws and the Subscribers, all being residents of the State of _____ [state] , have subscribed to the formation of a Limited Partnership to be formed under the laws of the State of _____ [state] , which partnership shall acquire title to the Property as assignee of the purchaser in the Contract of Purchase.

WHEREAS, the parties wish to define their respective rights and obligations with respect to this subscription agreement and the Limited Partnership which will acquire the Property under the Contract of Purchase.

WHEREAS, the Subscribers have read and are familiar with the Contract of Purchase.

WHEREAS, the Subscribers desire to subscribe for the units of interest in the Limited Partnership set forth opposite their respective names and be parties to the Limited Partnership upon the terms and subject to the conditions hereinafter set forth.

IT IS THEREFORE AGREED:

1. Organization of Partnership. The parties hereby subscribe and shall be parties to a Limited Partnership to be organized under the laws of the State of _____ [state] . The Articles of Limited Partnership are annexed hereto.

2. Capital Units. The Partnership interest shall be divided into one thousand (1,000) units, each unit being defined as a unit of interest in the entire Partnership and referred to as a Capital Unit, representing one-tenth (1/10) of one percent (1%) of the entire capital interest of the Partnership.

3. Contributions.

(a) Each of the Subscribers shall contribute to the Partnership as his contribution for the Capital Unit or Units set forth alongside his respective name a sum equivalent to _____ Dollars ($ _____) for each Capital Unit, except as set forth in subparagraph (b) hereof.

(b) The Shaws paid the deposit of _____ Dollars ($ _____) pursuant to the Contract of Purchase and will be entitled to receive for their total contribution thirty (30) Capital Units valued at _____ Dollars ($ _____).

(c) All of the contributions, other than such deposits, shall be payable in full at the time of the execution of this Subscription Agreement, or in installments in such amounts as the Shaws and the Subscriber may mutually agree upon. In no event, however, shall payment in full be made later than _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year].

4. Damages. The Subscribers understand that time is of the essence in connection with the payments to be made hereunder. In the event that a subscriber defaults in making the payments required to be made on or before their due dates, all payments theretofore made by a Subscriber pursuant to Paragraph 3 shall immediately upon such default belong to the Partnership as liquidated damages by reason of the Subscriber's breach of this agreement inasmuch as the damages cannot be readily ascertained. Each Subscriber is relying upon every other Subscriber to make up the funds necessary in connection with this transaction.

5. Deposit of Funds. All the funds contributed by the Subscribers under the terms of this agreement shall be deposited in a special bank account. The signatories on this account shall be the Shaws or their designee. All such funds, provided this agreement is not cancelled as hereinafter provided, shall be used as and when required for the purpose of consummating the transaction under the Contract of Purchase and for the payment of all expenses incurred in connection therewith. Such expenses shall include, but not be limited to, attorney's fees, accountant's fees, tax consultant's fees, title insurance fees, recording fees, printing costs, commissions, and the reimbursement of the Shaws or their nominees for all expenses made, incurred, or to be incurred by them in connection with the negotiation and consummation of this transaction, and any and all further payments required to be made pursuant to the Contract of Purchase, as well as all expenses and disbursements relating to or arising out of such transaction. Upon the commencement of the Partnership as provided in the Articles of Limited Partnership, the Shaws shall assign, or cause to be assigned, the Contract of Purchase to the Partnership, and title to the premises shall be taken in the name of the Partnership. Upon such assignment the Partnership shall thereupon assume, in writing, all the obligations of the Shaws under the Contract of Purchase. Notwithstanding the provisions of this paragraph, the Shaws are authorized as soon as there shall be received any moneys, pursuant to this Subscription Agreement, to withdraw and pay the same pursuant to the provisions of the Contract of Purchase. In the event the Subscription is not completed as provided for in Paragraph 6, the Shaws shall refund all sums so withdrawn.

6. Termination. In the event that two hundred fifty (250) Capital Units have not been subscribed for under the terms of this agreement on or before _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , or if for any reason, the transaction under the Contract of Purchase is not consummated on the date provided therein, or on any adjourned date, the Shaws shall forthwith cause the return to each Subscriber of any sums deposited by such Subscriber under this agreement. Upon such return this Subscription Agreement and the Articles of Limited Partnership shall be of no further force and effect, and no Subscriber nor the Shaws shall have any further rights under this Subscription Agreement nor shall any Subscriber have any rights in or under the Contract of Purchase, and the Shaws shall have the right to proceed under the Contract of Purchase as if this agreement or the Articles of Limited Partnership had never been entered into.

7. Assignability. Unless this agreement is cancelled, the Shaws shall not assign or adversely change any term or provision of the Contract of Purchase, except for extensions or acceleration of the date or dates for consummating any transaction thereunder, without the consent of each of the Subscribers. In the event that the Shaws are able to negotiate extensions or accelerations, they shall be entitled to withdraw from the funds deposited by the Subscribers such amounts as they deem necessary as additional payments under the Contract of Purchase. If the transaction is not consummated for any reason whatsoever, the Shaws shall be obligated to the Subscribers for the return in full of all sums deposited as provided for in Paragraph 6.

8. Acknowledgments of Subscribers. The Subscribers acknowledge that:

(a) They are entering into this agreement relying solely on the representations and warranties made by the seller in the Contract of Purchase, and that a copy of the Purchase Agreement has been exhibited to them and that they have examined and approved and fully understand the same.

(b) The Shaws have made no representations or warranties of any kind to induce the Subscribers to enter into this agreement except as herein specifically set forth.

(c) Any statements, brochures, information, data, and figures describing or relating in any way to the Property are based upon information obtained by the Shaws from sources which they deem reliable and are not made or intended as representations, warranties, guaranties, promises, or inducements by the Shaws.

(d) Any projected or estimated figures of income, expense, depreciation, and expenses of operation are estimates and opinions only and are not warranted, represented, or guaranteed.

(e) The Shaws are not liable or bound in any manner by statements, representations, or information, pertaining to the physical condition, income, or operation of, or by any matters affecting or relating to, the Property, or by any information or data furnished by any real estate broker, agent, servant, employee, or other person unless specifically set forth in the Subscription Agreement.

(f) The Subscribers have made an investigation of the pertinent facts relating to the purchase and fiscal operation of the Property to the extent which they deem necessary in order to be fully informed with respect thereto.

9. Broker. The Subscribers represent that they have not dealt with, nor were matters relating to this agreement brought to them by, any broker. This provision, and all other representations made in this agreement by the Subscribers, shall survive the closing of title.

10. Entire Agreement. This agreement supersedes all agreements previously made between the parties relating to its subject matter. There are no other understandings or agreements between them.

11. Notices. All notices under this agreement shall be in writing and delivered personally or mailed by certified mail, postage prepaid, addressed to the parties at their last known addresses.

12. Non-waiver. No delay or failure by a party to exercise any right under this agreement, and no partial or single exercise of that right, shall constitute a waiver of that or any other right, unless otherwise expressly provided herein.

13. Headings. Headings in this agreement are for convenience only and shall not be used to interpret or construe its provisions.

14. Governing Law. This agreement shall be construed in accordance with and governed by the laws of the State of _____ [state] .

15. Counterparts. This agreement may be executed in two or more counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original but all of which together shall constitute one and the same instrument.

16. Binding Effect. The provisions of this agreement shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the Shaws, their heirs, legal representatives, nominees, and assigns, and the Subscribers, their heirs, legal representatives, successors, and assigns.

In witness whereof the parties have executed this agreement the day and year first above mentioned.

Their signatures or the signatures of their designees for and in behalf of the Partnership shall be binding on the Partnership.

(c) The General Partners are authorized and empowered for and on behalf of the Partnership at any time to enter into a supervisory management agreement with Floyd Management Company or with such persons, firms, or corporations as the General Partners, in their sole judgment, shall deem advisable and for such compensation as they in their sole judgment shall determine, but in no event to exceed _____ Dollars ($_____) per year. All of the Partners recognize any such management agreement as an irrevocable agency coupled with an interest and an obligation.

(d) The fact that a General Partner or a member of his family is directly or indirectly interested in or connected with any person, firm, or corporation employed by the Partnership to render or perform a service, or from which or whom the Partnership may buy merchandise or other property, shall not prohibit the General Partners from employing such person, firm, or corporation or from otherwise dealing with him or it.

(e) In addition to the specific rights and powers herein granted to the General Partners, the General Partners shall possess, enjoy, and exercise all of the rights and powers of General Partners as more particularly provided, and limited by, the Partnership Law of the State of _____ [state].

(f) A General Partner may retire from the Partnership without affecting his share and interests, if any, as a Limited Partner in the Partnership.

(g) The General Partners are authorized to transfer the assets of the Partnership to a corporation or corporations to be formed, if in their sole judgment the corporate organization would best serve the interest of all of the partners hereto. Each Partner shall have the same proportionate interest in the shares of the corporation as he had with respect to the Limited Partnership, and each Partner shall participate, in the same ratio, in the share of distributions, as this Limited Partnership Agreement provides. Officers and directors of such corporation shall be elected upon such terms and conditions as the General Partners in their sole discretion deem advisable.

(h) No General Partner shall be liable or accountable in damages or otherwise to any of the Partners for any acts performed by him within the scope of the authority conferred on him by this agreement, except for acts of malfeasance or misfeasance.

16. Assignability. No assignee of a Partner shall have a right to become a substitute Partner in place of his assignor unless such assignee receives the written consent of at least fifty-one percent (51%) of the total units of capital contributions (Capital Units) of the Limited Partners in the Partnership, or at a meeting of the Partnership such consent be received by an affirmative vote of a majority of the General Partners and at least fifty-one percent (51%) of the Capital Units voting by the Limited Partners present at such meeting, except as hereinafter provided. No consent shall be required, however, for the transfer of a Limited Partner's interest to any other Partner.

(a) No Partner shall sell, transfer, encumber, or otherwise dispose of the whole or any part of his interest in the Partnership except in the manner hereinafter set forth.

(b) In the event that any Partner shall desire to sell and shall receive an acceptable bona fide offer for the purchase of all or any part of his interest in the Partnership from a competent adult or adults not then a Partner, such Partner (the "Selling Party") shall have the right to sell all or any part of such interest, as the case may be, only after complying with the following requirements:

(1) The Selling Party shall send a copy of such bona fide offer received from an outside purchasing party, by certified mail, to all of the Partners, other than the Selling Party. Such offer shall be deemed to be an offer by the Selling Party to sell to the other Partners (the "Purchasing Parties"), the interest offered upon the same terms and conditions as contained in such outside offer. Thereupon, each of the Purchasing Parties shall notify the General Partners by certified mail within seven (7) days after receipt of the offer whether he rejects or accepts such offer. If no such notice of acceptance or rejection is received from any of the Purchasing Parties within such time, they shall be deemed to have rejected the offer. Any Purchasing Party accepting such offer shall set forth in his letter of acceptance the amount of the interest of the Selling Party that such acceptor shall be willing to purchase if available.

(2) The General Partners shall have the absolute right and authority to allocate among the Purchasing Parties the respective interests to be purchased by each of such parties in the allocable amounts so determined by the General Partners. The decision of the General Partners shall be binding and conclusive upon all the parties as to such allocation. The General Partners shall then notify the Purchasing Parties of their determination within 15 business days from the date of the receipt of the offer by the Selling Party. The transaction shall be consummated at the office of the General Partners by the payment of the full purchase price for the entire interest offered not later than thirty (30) days from the date of the mailing of the original offer by the Selling Party.

(3) If the entire interest offered by the Selling Party shall have been partially or totally rejected, he shall have the right to sell his interest so offered to the person or persons named in the offer communicated to the Purchasing Parties within sixty (60) days from the date of the mailing of the original offer to the Partners. Such sale, however, must be made strictly in accordance with the terms of the offer originally submitted to the Purchasing Parties and at no more favorable terms, to the outside purchasing party.

(4) In the event of a rejection after compliance with all of the terms and conditions as hereinabove set forth, the Selling Party shall be deemed to have received the consent of more than fifty-one percent (51%) of the Limited Partners for such sale or transfer as provided in this Paragraph 16, and no further consent of any Limited Partner shall be required for such sale or transfer.

(c) Notwithstanding the provisions of this paragraph, the interest of each Partner may be (1) transferred or disposed of by will or intestacy to the deceased Partner's immediate family, but the deceased Partner's heirs, beneficiaries, or legal representatives shall hold such interest subject to all the terms and provisions of this agreement, or (2) transferred during his lifetime to his immediate family or by inter vivos or testamentary trust, provided the trustee or trustees or the beneficiary or beneficiaries is or are a member or members of the Partner's immediate family, but such interest shall remain subject to all the terms and provisions of this agreement. For the purpose of this paragraph, "immediate family" is defined as the husband, wife, adult child, father, mother, adult sister, or adult brother of a Partner.

(d) Notwithstanding the provision of this paragraph, the General Partners are authorized to permit the consummation of a sale or transfer of all or a part of any Partner's interest herein if in their sole discretion the Partnership and other Partners would not be injured by the waiver of the procedure set forth in subparagraph (b) of this paragraph.

(e) Immediately upon the consummation of any permitted sale or transfer of a Partner's interest, the assignee or transferee of such Partner's interest shall forward to the General Partners a duplicate original of such assignment or transfer, at the bottom of which there shall be endorsed the following legend:

"The undersigned assignee or transferee of the above interest (Capital Units) does hereby accept such interest and agrees to be bound by all of the terms, covenants, and conditions of the Limited Partnership Agreement dated _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], with the same force and effect as if the assignee or transferee herein were a signatory thereto."

(1) The assignee shall thereupon sign his name under such legend, and have his signature witnessed.

(2) No assignment shall be valid or effective unless in compliance with the foregoing conditions and unless the Partnership shall in writing acknowledge the recordation of the transfer on the Partnership books.

17. Death of General Partner.

(a) In the event of the death, retirement, adjudication of incompetency, or inability to serve of one of the General Partners, this Partnership shall not thereby be dissolved, but may be continued by the surviving General Partner, if he so elects, within thirty (30) days from the death, retirement, adjudication of incompetency, or inability to serve of a General Partner. If such General Partner so elects to continue the business of the Partnership, he shall cause the Certificate of Limited Partnership to be amended, indicating the continuation of the Partnership by the surviving General Partner. The amendment of the Certificate shall constitute the election by the surviving General Partner to continue the business of the Partnership. Upon the failure of the surviving General Partner to so elect within the time hereinbefore provided, or in the event of the death, retirement, adjudication of incompetency, or inability to serve of the survivor of the General Partner, this Partnership shall terminate, and the then remaining Limited Partners shall, within a reasonable time, but not later than two (2) months following such termination, elect one of the following options:

(1) Reconstitute and form a new limited partnership and transfer the assets of this Partnership to such new limited partnership, and appoint a general partner or partners upon such terms as the remaining Limited Partners shall agree, and do everything requisite to the formation of a limited partnership under the laws of the State of _____ [state].

(2) Transfer the assets of the Partnership to a corporation to be formed. (3) Transfer the assets of the Partnership to one or more of the Partners as trustees for the benefit of all of the remaining Partners.

(b) One of the elections above mentioned shall be deemed to be adopted if sixty-six and 2/3 percent (66.67%) of the Capital Units of the then Limited Partners so elect in writing or at a meeting of the Limited Partners. If sixty-six and 2/3 percent (66.67%) of the Capital Units of the then Limited Partners do not elect under subdivisions (1), (2), or (3) above, in the time hereinbefore provided, then the Partnership shall be dissolved and a full account of the assets and liabilities shall be taken, and the assets shall be liquidated as promptly as possible, and the proceeds thereof distributed to the Partners as provided in paragraph 21. Pending the transfer as provided in subdivisions (1), (2), or (3) or if the Limited Partners do not elect under subdivisions (1), (2), or (3), they shall act or name the liquidator or trustee as the case may require.

18. Death of Limited Partner. If a Limited Partner shall die, his executors or administrators, or if he shall become incompetent, his committee or representative, shall have the same rights that such Limited Partner would have had if he had not died or become incompetent. The share of such Limited Partner in the Partnership assets shall, until the termination of the Partnership, be subject to the terms, provisions, and conditions of this agreement as if such Limited Partner had not died or become incompetent.

19. Termination. The Partnership shall terminate if any of the following events shall occur: (a) the sale of all the Partnership Property; (b) the mutual consent of the General Partners; (c) the death, retirement, or incompetency of the surviving General Partner; or (d) the failure of the surviving General Partner to exercise his election to continue the Partnership business as provided for in paragraph 17.

The proceeds of such liquidation shall be applied as follows:

(a) To the payment of all debts and liabilities of the Partnership and the expenses of liquidation.

(b) To the repayment of cash contributions as capital of the Limited Partners to the extent that they shall not have received the same from the distributions as hereinbefore provided.

(c) To the repayment of cash contributions as capital of the General Partners to the extent that they shall not have received the same from the distributions as hereinbefore provided.

(d) Surplus, if any, of the assets remaining shall be divided among the Partners, in the same ratio as provided in paragraphs 8 and 9.

22. Withdrawal. The Limited Partners shall not at any time withdraw from the Partnership, except as hereinbefore provided.

Any dispute or controversy arising under, out of, in connection with, or in relation to this agreement or any breach thereof shall be determined and settled by arbitration pursuant to the governing rules of the American Arbitration Association. Any award rendered therein shall be final and binding on all of the Partners, and judgment may be entered thereon in any court of competent jurisdiction.

26. Entire Agreement. This agreement contains the entire understanding between the parties and supersedes all prior understandings and agreements between them respecting the within subject matter. The Subscription Agreement dated _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , between John Shaw and Daniel Shaw and the Partners herein is hereby incorporated by reference into this agreement and made a part hereof.

27. Non-waiver. No delay or failure by a party to exercise any right under this agreement, and no partial or single exercise of that right, shall constitute a waiver of that or any other right, unless otherwise expressly provided herein.

28. Headings. Headings in this agreement are for convenience only and shall not be used to interpret or construe its provisions.

29. Governing Law. This agreement shall be construed in accordance with and governed by the laws of the State of _____ [state] .

30. Validity. In the event that any provision of this agreement shall be held to be invalid, the same shall not affect in any respect whatsoever the validity of the remainder of this agreement.

FORM 20.31 Transfer to controlled corporation--single transferor

COMMENT

The choice between the corporate form and the noncorporate form is as difficult to make in real estate area as it is in any other area. Investors or dealers in real estate are concerned with insulation against personal liability, and are therefore attracted to the corporate entity. But a corporation may be a costly double tax vehicle in comparison with the sole proprietorship, the limited liability company, or the partnership. The popularity of the limited liability company or the limited partnership lies in its ability to furnish protection against personal liability to its member or its limited partners, without subjecting the entity to the burden of double taxation. Nevertheless, the ease with which the modern corporation can be organized and operated is a strong practical reason for its use. Even the problem of double taxation is not often a deterrent.

S corporation alternative:

The principal advantage of a corporation achieving subchapter S qualification is that double taxation is avoided. Generally, many of the tax items, such as income, deductions, capital gains and losses, etc., are passed through directly to the shareholders without taxation at the corporate level. Qualification for subchapter S status allows the shareholder to obtain protection from personal liability without paying the price of double taxation.

An S corporation may have up to 75 shareholders. The S corporation rules and changes are discussed in more detail in Chapter 15, Volume 18. Individual S corporation shareholders, however, are subject to the passive activity loss limitations.

FORM 20.32 Agreement to organize corporation--between builder and managing agent--accompanying shareholders' agreement

COMMENT

This is an agreement between two corporations, one a builder and the other a management company, for the erection of a building and for its management after its completion. Basically, the builder undertakes to complete the projected structure at a predetermined price; the management company undertakes to operate the structure in accordance with the terms of a detailed management agreement. Both the building contract and the management agreement are to be made with a new corporation, whose shares and notes are to be held by each of the participants in the venture. The agreement contains in addition a program for financing the venture, and provides for the execution of a shareholders' agreement. This shareholders' agreement grants each party the right of "first refusal" if the other decides to retire from the venture, and sets up various criteria requiring the sale of the property and the liquidation of the corporation.

Debt and equity financing:

If this project is to proceed in corporate form, the financing furnished by each of the venturers is to be partly through the issuance of shares and partly through promissory notes, and the amounts in each category are to be on a pro rata basis. The issuance of a combination of stock and debt to the shareholders of a corporation, particularly a close corporation, inevitably raises the question as to whether the debt portion of the financing will be recognized as true debt or whether it will be classified as stock. The distinction is important in various areas, including the interest deduction of the corporation, the character of the loss on the worthlessness of the debt, and the treatment on the repayment of the debt.

FORM

THIS AGREEMENT made _____ [month] _____ [day] ,
 _____ [year] , between EVANS CONSTRUCTION CORPORATION, a(n) _____
 [state] corporation having an office at _____ [city] _____ [state] ("Evans"), and SMITH MANAGEMENT CORPORATION, a(n) _____ [state] , having an office

WHEREAS, Evans and Smith have caused E. & S. Co., Inc., to obtain on their behalf an option to purchase from the owner thereof, a plot of land located in the _____ [city] , _____ [state] (the "property") for the price of _____ Dollars ($_____).

WHEREAS, the price for the purchase option was _____ Dollars ($_____) all of which was advanced by Evans.

WHEREAS, the parties intend to exercise the option and acquire the property in the name of a corporation which they shall form.

WHEREAS, the parties also intend to cause the corporation to construct an office building on the property, generally in accordance with the BenderSchematic Plans of _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] and the memorandum specifications attached to such Plans, both of which are initialed by the parties hereto.

WHEREAS, the parties wish to provide for their participation in the financing, construction, ownership, and operation of the office building, as set forth below. As used herein, the term "office building" shall include the property upon which it is to be constructed.

NOW THEREFORE, it is agreed as follows:

1. Formation of Corporation. Evans and Smith agree to form a corporation under the laws of the State of New York (the "Company"), which shall be authorized to own, manage, and operate an office building therein whereby:

(e) The affirmative vote of at least four directors shall be required for the taking of any directorate action;

(f) Cash dividends upon the common shares of the Company shall be prohibited so long as any of its six and one-half percent (6 1/2 %) Notes (described below) remain outstanding;

(g) No amendment of items (a) through (f) above, or this item (g), can be effected without the affirmative vote of the holders of at least a majority of all outstanding shares, and the share certificates shall contain an appropriate reference thereto;

(h) The Bylaws of the Company shall in all other respects be subject to the approval of Evans and Smith; and

(i) The name of the Company shall be a name mutually approved by Evans and Smith.

3. Design, Construction, and Operation of Building.

(a) Evans and Smith shall cause Harvey Bender to promptly prepare and submit for their approval further schematic plans for the office building and after their approval by the parties hereto, to cause Harvey Bender to prepare detailed plans and detailed specifications (which detailed specifications shall conform with the memorandum specification attached to the Bender Schematic Plans of July 8, 1987). Evans and Smith each for itself agrees that it shall not unreasonably withhold approval for such plan.

(b) Evans shall enter into a Construction Contract with the Company, in form mutually satisfactory to Evans and Smith, whereby Evans shall construct the office building in accordance with such detailed plans and specifications at a guaranteed total cost to the Company in the amount hereinafter mentioned for all construction cost items constituting field costs. (8) workmen's compensation, employers' liability, comprehensive general liability, and automobile liability insurance; and

(9) premiums payable in respect of any completion or performance bonds required to be furnished to comply with the terms of any temporary building loan financing during the construction of the office building.

The guaranteed total cost to the Company for all construction cost items constituting field costs, as above defined, shall be the sum of _____ Dollars ($_____). Such total cost shall be adjusted to reflect any substantial change in cubical content, design, or specifications of the office building from the Bender Schematic

Plans of _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], and the memorandum specification attached to such Plans.

(c) Simultaneously with the execution of the Stockholders Agreement hereinafter provided for, Smith and the Company will enter into a management contract (the "Management Contract"), a copy of which has been initialed by Evans and Smith, providing for the management of the office building by Smith.

4. Financing of Company.

(c) The respective acquisitions of shares by Evans and Smith (as contemplated by clauses (2) and (4) of subparagraph (a) of this paragraph) shall be consummated within thirty (30) days from the date hereof; their respective acquisitions of six and 50/100 percent (61/2 %) Notes of the Company (as contemplated by clauses (3) and (5) of subparagraph (a) of this paragraph) to the extent necessary to acquire the property, to refund the amount advanced to acquire the option, and to meet the immediate requirements of the project, shall likewise be consummated within 30 days from the date hereof; and the respective acquisitions of the remaining 61/2 % percent Notes of the Company (as contemplated by clauses (3) and (5) of subparagraph (a) of this paragraph), and the respective advances to be made by them (as contemplated by subparagraph (b) of this paragraph), shall be made from time to time thereafter, as required, upon not less than 20 days' notice. All of the respective acquisitions of shares and 61/2 % percent Notes of the Company shall be made in equal amounts in each case. Pending a determination by Evans and Smith as to whether they intend to proceed with the project in the corporate form provided for in paragraph 1, or as a joint venture, as provided for in paragraph 10, the sums to be advanced by them to the Company for shares and 61/2 % percent Notes so as to enable title to the property to be taken, shall be advanced instead to the nominee mentioned in Paragraph 2, with adjustment between Evans and Smith in such payments for the amount advanced by Evans for the option.

(d) The six and 50/100 percent (61/2 %) Notes to be issued by the Company to Evans and Smith as hereinabove provided shall be dated as of their respective dates of issue, shall bear interest from their respective dates at the rate of six and 50/100 percent (61/2 %) per year, payable semiannually, shall mature on _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], and shall be prepayable at the Company's option at any time, in whole or in part, without premium or penalty. However, if less than the entire unpaid principal amount of all the Company's outstanding six and 50/100 percent (61/2 %) Notes is to be prepaid, such prepayment shall be made pro rata upon such outstanding Notes in accordance with their unpaid principal amounts. The six and 50/100 percent (61/2 %) Notes shall expressly provide that by acceptance thereof the holders thereof agree that they shall not accept prepayment of any principal of any such Note except on a pro rata basis as herein provided.

(e) Evans and Smith shall use their best efforts to arrange for the temporary financing during construction of the office building in an amount not less than _____ Dollars ($ _____), all upon terms mutually approved by Evans and Smith and not inconsistent with the Central Life Insurance Company commitment.

5. Shareholders' Agreement. Evans and Smith shall enter into an agreement with respect to the shares and the Company's six and 50/100 percent (61/2 %) Notes, in the form annexed hereto as Exhibit A (the "Shareholders Agreement"), whereby Evans and Smith shall agree:

(a) not to sell or otherwise dispose of any of such shares or Notes of the Company prior to the completion of the office building;

(b) that grant to the other, so long as such other shall remain the holder of any of such shares or Notes, a right of first refusal (exercisable in whole but not in part) with respect to the purchase of any such shares or Notes owned by such granting party which are proposed to be sold, whether privately or by public offering or by the enforcement of any pledge or otherwise. It is understood, however, that such first refusal shall cease to be applicable to any of such shares or Notes which, consistently with such first refusal requirements, shall have been acquired by any nonaffiliated third person in an arm's length transaction for value, notwithstanding that any of the shares or Notes so acquired by such a third person may thereafter be owned by one of the parties hereto;

(c) that any pledge made by either of them of any of such shares or Notes shall be made expressly subject to the provisions to be included in such Shareholders' Agreement pursuant to the foregoing clauses (a) and (b);

(d) that if in any two successive years, after the third year of the operation of the office building, the free and clear earnings (as the same is defined in the Management Contract) of the office building are less than _____ Dollars ($ _____), then, and at Evans' express request, Smith shall, at a shareholders' meeting called for that purpose, vote its shares in favor of the liquidation of the Company and the sale of the office building free of the Management Contract. Smith, however, shall have the right to purchase the shares and the

Company's six and 50/100 percent (61/2 %) Notes owned by Evans at a price which shall be at least equal to the amount Evans would be entitled to receive from the Company for its shares and notes upon its immediate liquidation, valuing the office building at the best offer made for it, and without deduction for any brokerage fee or tax upon profit which the Company might have been required to pay if the sale had been made in other than a liquidation of the Company;

(e) agree that from after the fifth year through the tenth year of the operation of the office building, if either Evans or Smith can effect a sale of the office building for _____ Dollars ($ _____) or more, all cash over the mortgage, the other will at a shareholders' meeting called for that purpose, vote its shares in favor of a liquidation of the Company and a sale of the office building at the price offered, free of the Management Contract, but such other shall have the right to purchase the shares and six and 50/100 percent (61/2 %) Notes of the one requesting the sale at a price which shall be at least equal to the amount the one requesting the sale would be entitled to receive from the Company for its shares and six and 50/100 percent (61/2 %) Notes upon an immediate liquidation of the Company, valuing the office building at the price for which the sale could have been effected, and without deduction for any brokerage fee or tax upon profit which the Company might have been required to pay if the sale had been made in other than a liquidation of the Company;

(f) agree that after the tenth (10th) year of the operation of the office building, if either Evans or Smith desires to sell the office building the other will at a shareholders' meeting called for that purpose, vote its shares in favor of a liquidation of the Company and a sale of the office building free of the Management Contract at a price offered by a third party which is acceptable to the one requesting the liquidation and sale, But such other shall have the right to purchase the shares and six and 50/100 percent (61/2 %) Notes of the one requesting the sale at a price which shall be at least equal to the amount the one requesting the sale would be entitled to receive from the Company for its shares and six and 50/100 percent (61/2 %) Notes upon an immediate liquidation of the Company, valuing the office building at the price acceptable to the one requesting the sale, and without deduction for any brokerage fee or tax upon profit which the Company might have been required to pay if the sale had been made in other than a liquidation of the Company;

(g) agree that if Smith sells all or substantially all of its shares in the Company, as permitted by this agreement, at the request of Evans all of the shares of a then Company will be voted at a shareholders' meeting called for that purpose in favor of the termination of the Management Agreement;

(h) agree that all six and 50/100 percent (61/2 %) Notes and all share certificates representing shares of the Company shall be inscribed with an appropriate legend referring to the Shareholders' Agreement; and

(i) agree that if the Company is to sell the office building, free of the Management Contract, as provided in (d), (e), and (f) above, the Company may, and at the request of Evans will cancel the Management Contract upon notice to Smith Which notice shall fix a date of termination not less than ninety (90) nor more than one hundred twenty (120) days after the date of the giving of such notice.

(2) The property shall have been acquired as provided in Paragraph 2 hereof.

(3) The Shareholders' Agreement, the Management Agreement, and the Construction Contract shall have been executed and delivered.

(4) Evans and Smith shall have theretofore or concurrently acquired the number of shares and the principal amount of six and 50/100 percent (61/2 %) Notes of the Company specified in subparagraph 4(c) hereof to the extent necessary to acquire the property, to refund the amount advanced to acquire the option, and to meet the immediate requirements of the project.

(6) The satisfaction of the foregoing conditions precedent shall occur on or before _____ [month]

7. Oral Modification. This agreement may not be modified or terminated orally, but only by an agreement in writing executed by both parties hereto.

8. Binding Effect. The covenants and agreements herein contained shall be binding upon and shall inure to the benefit of each party hereto and any successor of such party by consolidation or merger or through acquisition of all or substantially all of its property and assets and the assumption of all or substantially all of its liabilities. (b) The provisions of Paragraph 1 hereof shall be deleted, the financing to be furnished by the parties shall be as set forth in Paragraph 4 hereof, but the method of financing shall be adjusted to reflect the ownership of the property instead of the ownership of shares, an agreement embodying the understandings of the parties as to the sale of the office building (which shall conform to the understandings set forth in Paragraph 5 hereof) shall be entered into by the parties in lieu of the Shareholders' Agreement mentioned in such Paragraph 5, and to the extent required thereby, all of the provisions of this agreement shall be adjusted to reflect the change in the method of ownership of the property conforming, however, to the basic understandings of the parties as in this agreement contained.

(c) The parties may, if jointly satisfactory to them, at any time thereafter change the method of the ownership and operation of the office building from a joint venture into a single corporate form, with each owning fifty percent(50%) of the shares. In such event, all of the provisions of Paragraph 1 hereof shall apply.

In witness whereof the parties hereto have caused this agreement to be duly executed, all as of the day and year first above written.

THIS AGREEMENT made _____ [month] _____ [day] ,
 _____ [year] , among EVANS CONSTRUCTION CORPORATION, a(n) _____

 and SMITH MANAGEMENT CORPORATION, a(n) _____ [state] , having an office _____ [city] _____ [state] at _____ [city]
 _____ [state] ("Smith"), and EVANS-SMITH, INC., a(n) _____ [state] corporation having an office at _____ [city] _____ [state] ("Company"). Evans and Smith are hereinafter sometimes collectively called the "Investors."

WHEREAS, the Investors entered into an agreement dated _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] (the "Basic Agreement"), relating to the Company's construction, furnishing, and equipping of a fireproof, fully air-conditioned office building, as more fully set forth in the Basic Agreement;

WHEREAS, the Investors are to become holders of the Company's no par value common shares (the "Shares") and six and 50/100 percent (61/2 %) Notes (the "Notes"), pursuant to and more particularly described in the Basic Agreement, and the parties wish to provide for, among other things, the sale or other disposition of the Shares and Notes.

WHEREAS, simultaneously herewith, Smith and the Company entered into a Management Contract which provides for Smith's management of the office building. As used herein the term "office building" includes the land upon which it is to be constructed.

NOW THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual covenants herein contained it is hereby agreed as follows:

1. First Refusals.

(a) While either Investor owns any of the Notes, or any interest therein, unless such Investor (the "selling party"), shall have first offered to sell them to the other Investor (the "nonselling party").

(b) While either Investor is the owner of any Shares, the other Investor shall not at any time make any disposition of any Shares, or any interest therein, unless such Investor shall have first offered to sell to the other Investor the Shares which it proposes to dispose.

(c) Each offer under this Paragraph 1 shall be in writing, shall be made at a price not exceeding the price currently being offered to the selling party by a responsible purchaser (other than an affiliate, as hereinafter defined, of the selling party), and on terms not more favorable to the selling party than the terms currently being offered by such purchaser, shall be limited to Notes or Shares, shall specify the kind and amount of Notes or Shares which the selling party desires to dispose of, and the name and address of the prospective purchaser, and (in the case of Shares) shall provide that all transfer taxes shall be for the account of the selling party. The Investor receiving any such offer shall within thirty (30) days after the receipt thereof accept the offer for the entire amount of the Notes or Shares, as the case may be, which are the subject of such offer, at such price and on such terms, or notify the selling party of its refusal to accept such offer. In case any such offer shall not be accepted for the entire amount of the Notes or Shares which are the subject of such offer, the selling party may, within the period of 45 days from the date of expiration of such 30-day period, or from the date of its receipt of such notice of refusal, whichever shall first occur, dispose of the Notes or Shares so offered and not accepted, at a price not less than the price and on terms not less favorable to the selling party than the terms at which such Notes or Shares shall have been offered hereunder. If such Notes or Shares are not so disposed of within such period of forty-five (45) days they shall again become subject to the restrictions of this Paragraph 1.

(d) The restrictions contained in this Paragraph 1 shall not apply to any of the following:

(1) The transfer of all Notes and Shares owned by either Investor to another corporation as a result of a merger, consolidation, reorganization, or sale of all its assets, or the transfer of any Notes or Shares by either Investor to another corporation which is an affiliate of such Investor, provided that no Investor shall be permitted under this subdivision (1) to transfer Shares to more than one such affiliate corporation and provided further that every transfer of Notes or Shares made pursuant to this subdivision (1) shall be made expressly subject to this agreement and shall require the transferee to assume all obligations of the transferor under this agreement with respect to the Notes or Shares so transferred. Upon making any such transfer, the transferor shall notify the other parties hereto of the kind and amount of Note or Shares so transferred and the name and address of the transferee. In case either Investor shall so transfer all its Notes and Shares to a single transferee, such transferee shall succeed to all rights of, and shall be bound by all obligations of and restrictions upon, such Investor under this agreement, and any references in this agreement to an "Investor" or the "Investors" shall thereafter be deemed to include such transferee rather than its transferor; provided, however, that no such transfer of all its Notes and Shares to a single transferee which is an affiliate corporation shall operate to relieve Evans or Smith from any of their respective obligations under Paragraphs 3, 4, or 5 of this agreement. In case either Investor shall so transfer less than all its Notes and Shares to a single transferee, or shall so transfer any or all its Notes and Shares to more than one transferee, each such transferee shall severally be bound by the obligations of and restrictions upon such Investor under this agreement, but all subsequent offers to be made to such Investor under this Paragraph 1 shall be made only to such Investor and not to any of its transferees.

(2) The pledging of Notes or Shares by either Investor, but any such pledge shall be made expressly subject to this agreement and shall require the pledgee to acknowledge that in enforcing or foreclosing such pledge it will offer the pledged Notes or Shares to the other Investor as provided in this Paragraph 1. Upon making any such pledge, such Investor shall notify the other parties hereto of the kind and amount of Notes or Shares so pledged and the name and address of the pledgee. Upon any such pledge the pledgee shall be bound by all obligations of and restrictions upon such Investor under this agreement, but all subsequent offers to be made to such Investor under this Paragraph 1 shall be made only to such Investor and not to its pledgee.

(3) Any Shares or Notes which, consistently with this Paragraph 1, shall be acquired by any person (other than an Investor or the Company or an affiliate of any thereof) in an arm's-length transaction and for value, notwithstanding that any such Shares or any such Notes so acquired by such other person may thereafter be controlled by an Investor.

(e) The obligations and restrictions contained in this Paragraph 1 shall terminate whenever any of the Investors shall no longer control any Notes or Shares (other than Notes or Shares to which this Paragraph 1 shall not be applicable by reason of the provisions of subdivision (3) of subparagraph (d) above).

2. Restrictions on Transfers. Neither of the Investors shall make any disposition of any Notes or Shares prior to the date of issuance of a temporary certificate or certificates of occupancy for substantially all of the office building hereinafter called the completion date. The restrictions of this paragraph shall not apply to the pledging of Notes or Shares but any pledge made prior to the completion date shall be made expressly subject to this agreement and shall require the pledgee to acknowledge, in addition to the matters stated in Paragraph 1(d)(2) above, it will not enforce or foreclose such pledge by selling or taking title to the pledged Notes or Shares prior to the completion date.

3. Dividends. No cash dividends shall be declared or paid upon any Shares from time to time outstanding, so long as any Notes shall remain outstanding and unpaid.

4. Sale of Office Building.

(a) If, in each of any two successive years, after the third year of the operation of the office building, the free and clear earnings, as defined in the Management Contract, of the office building are less than _____ Dollars ($_____), then, and at the request of Evans for it to do so, Smith shall at a shareholder's meeting called for that purpose, vote its Shares in favor of the liquidation of the Company and the sale of the office building free of the Management Contract in pursuance of the liquidation. In such event, and before the office building is sold, Smith shall have the option to purchase all (but not part) of the Notes and Shares owned by Evans at a price which shall be at least equal to the amount Evans would be entitled to receive from the Company for the Notes and Shares owned by it upon an immediate liquidation of the Company valuing the office building at the best written offer (cash over existing mortgage indebtedness) made for it to the Company by a responsible purchaser (other than an Investor or an affiliate of an Investor) but without computing or deducting (1) any brokerage fee or other cost of sale which might have been incurred by the Company if the hotel had been sold, or (2) any tax upon profit which the Company might have been required to pay if the sale had been made in other than a liquidation of the Company. Evans shall give Smith notice of the intended sale by the Company of the office building which notice shall contain the name of the responsible purchaser and the amount of the offer. At any time within twenty (20) days after receipt of such notice Smith shall have the right to elect to purchase such Notes and Shares owned by Evans, by giving notice of such election to Evans and the Company, which notice shall state (1) the price which Smith will pay for the Notes and Shares held by Evans; (2) the date and hour (the date being a business day and the hour being during usual business hours) for the delivery of the Notes and Shares and the payment of the purchase price (by cash or certified check) which date shall be no earlier than ten days and no later than thirty (30) days from the date of the giving of such notice of election; and (3) the place in the City of _____ [city] for the closing of the transaction. All transfer taxes with respect to the Shares shall be for the account of Evans.

(b) If at any time during the sixth through tenth years of the office building's operation either of the Investors, (the "First Investor") is able and desires to effect a sale of the office building to a responsible purchaser (other than an Investor or an affiliate thereof), for at least _____ Dollars ($_____) all cash in excess of the mortgage indebtedness, then, at the request of the First Investor, the other Investor, (the "Second Investor") shall vote its shares in favor of a liquidation of the Company and a sale of the office building free of the Management Contract at the price offered. The ability to effect a sale of the office building for the price above mentioned shall be evidenced by a written offer to the Company signed by the purchaser, accompanied by a certified check made payable to the order of the Company for not less than _____ Dollars ($_____). Such offer shall give the Company sixty (60) days within which it may accept the same. The First Investor shall send notice of the receipt of the offer to the Second Investor, together with a copy of such offer. The Second Investor shall have the right to purchase the First Investor's Notes and Shares for a period of twenty (20) days after the receipt of such notice and copy of offer. The purchase price which shall be at least equal to the amount the First Investor would be entitled to receive from the Company for the Notes and Shares upon its immediate liquidation, valuing the office building at the price for which the sale thereof can be effected as evidenced by the offer, but without computing or deducting (1) any brokerage fee or other cost of the sale which might have been incurred by the Company if the office building had been sold; or (2) any tax upon profit which the Company might have been required to pay if the sale had been made in other than its liquidation. The election by the Second Investor to purchase the Notes and Shares of the First Investor shall be evidenced to the Company and the First Investor by sending to them notice of such election. The notice shall state: (1) the price which the Second Investor will pay for the Notes and Shares held by the First Investor; (2) the date and hour (the date being a business day and the hour being during usual business hours) for the delivery of the Notes and Shares and the payment of the purchase price (by cash or certified check), which date shall be no earlier than ten (10) days and no later than thirty (30) days from the date of the mailing of such notice of election; and (3) a place in the City of _____ [city] for the closing of the transaction. All transfer taxes with respect to the Shares shall be for the account of the First Investor.

(c) If, after the office building is operated for a period of ten (10) years, the Company receives an offer for its sale, and either Investor (the "First Investor") desires that the Company liquidate and sell the office building at the price contained in the offer, the other Investor (the "Second Investor") shall vote its shares in favor of a liquidation of the Company and the sale of the office building at the price offered, free of the Management Contract, at a shareholders' meeting called for that purpose; provided that the price shall be for all cash in excess of the mortgage indebtedness and the purchase has been offered by a responsible purchaser other than an Investor or an affiliate thereof. The offer must be made in writing to the Company, signed by the offeror, and accompanied by a certified check made payable to the order of the Company for not less than _____ Dollars ($_____). The offer must give the Company sixty (60) days within which it may accept the same. The First Investor shall send a copy of the offer by mail to the Second Investor, who shall have twenty (20) days after the mailing of the offer to purchase the First Investor's Notes and Shares. The purchase price which shall be at least equal to the amount the First Investor would be entitled to receive from the Company for its Notes and Shares upon an immediate liquidation of the Company, valuing the office building at the price for which the sale thereof can be effected as evidenced by the offer, but without computing or deducting (1) any brokerage fee or other cost of sale which might have been incurred by the Company if the office building had been sold; or (2) any tax upon profit which the Company might have been required to pay if the sale had been made in other than its liquidation. The election by the Second Investor to purchase the Notes and Shares of the First Investor shall be evidenced to the Company and the First Investor by sending to them notice of such election. The notice shall state: (1) the price which the Second Investor will pay for the Notes and Shares held by the First Investor; (2) the date and hour (the date being a business day and the hour being during usual business hours) for the delivery of the Notes and Shares and the payment of the purchase price (by cash or certified check), such date to be no earlier than ten days and no later than thirty (30) days from the date of the giving of such notice of election; and (3) a place in the City of _____ [city] for the closing of the transaction. All transfer taxes with respect to the Shares shall be for the account of the First Investor.

5. Termination of Management Contract. In addition to, and without in any manner limiting the rights of cancellation specifically provided for in the Management Contract, the parties agree that the Company may and, at the request of Evans, shall cancel the Management Contract, and Smith shall consent thereto (and to the extent requested by Evans, Smith shall vote its shares in favor of such cancellation at a shareholders' meeting of the Company called for that purpose), if:

(a) Smith sells all or substantially all, more than fifty percent (50%) of its original shareholding in the Company shall be deemed substantially all, as permitted by this agreement; or

(b) the Company has agreed to sell the office building free of the Management Contract, in accordance with the contract of sale to be entered into by it, as provided for in subparagraphs (a), (b), and (c) of Paragraph 4 of this agreement;

Such cancellation shall be by notice to Smith, and shall fix a date of termination not less than ninety (90) nor more than one hundred twenty (120) days after such notice has been given. The notice shall be given no later than 60 days after entering into the agreement of sale of the office building.

6. Notice to Third Parties. An executed copy of this agreement shall be filed with the Secretary of the Company. The Company shall cause to be placed on all certificates of Shares and on all Notes (other than Shares and Notes to which Paragraph 1 hereof shall not be applicable by reason of the provisions of subdivision (3) of subparagraph (d)) a legend, stating as follows:

A copy of such Shareholders' Agreement, to which reference is hereby made, is on file in the office of the Secretary of Evans-Smith, Inc.

FORM 20.33 Agreement to organize corporation--between builder and renting agent

COMMENT

This agreement sets forth the terms of a venture in which two corporations undertake the construction and operation of a commercial building. The venturers are not on a par in terms of their rights to receive corporate stock. While each of the venturers undertakes to subscribe in cash for its proportionate share of the stock of the new corporation, the shares intended for the renting agent are to be held in escrow. The builder undertakes to erect the improvement. The intention is to transfer the completed building to this new corporation, at which time the shares subscribed for by the renting agent will be issued, but only if the renting agent has procured for the building a prescribed number of tenants on certain minimum terms. The difficult question raised under these circumstances, particularly in the light of collateral provisions in the agreement, is whether the shares of the new corporation issued to the renting agent have to some extent been issued for services. On the other hand, assuming the success of the venture as envisioned by the parties, there is a question as to whether the contribution to the project by the renting agent can be considered to be qualitatively different than the contribution of the builder.

FORM

THIS AGREEMENT made _____ [month] _____ [day] ,
_____ [year] , by and between JONES CONSTRUCTION CORPORATION, a(n)
_____ [state] corporation ("Jones"), and ACE DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION, a(n)
_____ [state] corporation ("Ace").

WHEREAS, Jones proposes to develop certain premises in Baltimore, Maryland, more particularly described in Schedule A annexed hereto, such development to include the construction of an office building (the "Mercantile Office Building").

WHEREAS, Jones proposes to finance all or part of such construction by sale-leaseback or other arrangements with Atlantic Life Insurance Company and other lenders. Ace is willing to find desirable tenants for the Mercantile Office Building in exchange for an interest therein, as herein provided for:

NOW THEREFORE, the parties hereto agree as follows:

1. Obligations of Builder. Jones shall use its best efforts to:

(a) Conclude necessary agreements by which it will obtain fee simple title, or a long-term lease with or without an option to purchase fee simple title, to the land on which the Mercantile Office Building is to be constructed.

(b) Conclude necessary agreements with Atlantic Life Insurance Company or other lenders to obtain financing to enable Jones to construct the Mercantile Office Building.

(c) Construct the Mercantile Office Building at its own expense and without expense to Ace. The Mercantile Office Building shall contain approximately 200,000 square feet of gross floor area.

2. Obligation of Renting Agent. Ace shall use its best efforts to obtain leases, commitments to lease, or letters of intent from corporations, associations, or persons for all the rentable space in the Mercantile Office Building. So long as Ace shall not be in default under this agreement, it shall have during the term of this agreement an exclusive agency to obtain tenants for the Mercantile Office Building. All such leases, commitments, and letters of intent shall provide (a) for a rental of not less than _____ Dollars ($_____) per square foot of rentable floor area for air conditioned space above ground, and not less than _____ Dollars ($_____) per square foot of rentable floor area for air conditioned space below ground, and (b) for a term of not less than ten years. All proposed tenants shall be subject to Jones' approval. A proposed tenant shall be deemed acceptable to Jones, however, if it does not reject the tenant by written notice thereof given to Ace within thirty (30) days after receipt of the lease commitment or letter of intent signed by the proposed tenant.

3. Organization of Corporation. The parties shall cause a joint management and leasing corporation (the "Corporation") to be formed, with an initial capital and surplus of _____ Dollars ($_____). Ace shall contribute thirty percent (30%) of such initial capital and surplus, and Jones shall contribute the remainder. Seventy percent of the common shares to be issued with respect to the initial capital of the Corporation shall be issued to Jones, and the remainder of such shares shall be retained by the Corporation in escrow to be issued to Ace or Jones as and to the extent provided in Paragraph 4. The Corporation shall not issue additional shares except with the consent of the parties and except preferred shares as provided in Paragraph 10.

4. Release of Escrowed Shares. If Ace has obtained leases of the type described in Paragraph 2 for all the rentable floor area in the Mercantile Office Building by the end of one year after construction is completed (as evidenced by the issuance of a certificate of occupancy), it shall be entitled to receive all the common shares of the Corporation held in escrow pursuant to Paragraph 3. If by the end of such year Ace has obtained leases of such type for more than two-thirds (2/3), but less than all, of such rentable floor area, it shall be entitled to receive that fraction of all the escrowed shares which is formed by taking as the numerator the number of square feet or rentable floor area for which leases have been obtained by Ace, and as the denominator the number of square feet of rentable floor area in the Mercantile Office Building. Jones shall be entitled to receive all escrowed shares which Ace is not entitled to receive pursuant to the preceding sentence.

5. Option to Builder to Purchase Shares of Renting Agent. Ace hereby grants to Jones an option to purchase the common shares of the Corporation owned by it. The price for such shares shall be _____ Dollars ($_____) for each one percent (1%) of the total shares of the Corporation owned by Ace. Such option may be exercised as to all of the common shares owned by Ace at any time from one year after construction of the Mercantile Office Building is completed (as evidenced by the issuance of a certificate of occupancy) to four years thereafter, or partially and from time to time during the period of this option.

6. Remuneration to Rental Manager. All leases, commitments to lease, or letters of intent shall be taken in the name of the Corporation. Commencing with the effective date of this agreement and continuing for six months thereafter, or for such longer period as the Corporation may determine, Ace shall be, or shall nominate a person to be, project manager for rental purposes at a remuneration of _____ Dollars ($_____) per month. Such remuneration shall accrue from the effective date of this agreement but the Corporation shall not be obligated to pay any such remuneration unless and until letters of intent (or leases or binding commitments to lease) of the type described in paragraph 2 shall have been obtained for at least fifty percent (50%) of the rentable floor area in the Mercantile Office Building. In the event such financing is not sufficient to cover all such costs, and Jones provides funds to permit completion of construction, or in the case of such preplanning costs, Jones or Ace has not been reimbursed for the amounts specified in the preceding sentence, the amount so provided by Jones (or in the case of preplanning costs, the portions of such specified amounts for which Jones or Ace shall not have been reimbursed) shall be reflected by the issuance of preferred shares to Jones (or Ace), the par value of which shall equal such amount (or amounts). Such preferred shares shall be entitled to dividends at the rate of ten percent (10%) per year of the par value thereof, such a dividends to be cumulative. Such preferred shares shall be redeemable at par at any time. The dividends on the preferred shares shall accrue from the date of issuance but shall not be paid until after completion of construction as hereinafter provided.

12. Inspection of Books. Ace shall have the right at any time during normal business hours to inspect the books of the Corporation to determine whether expenses charged to the Corporation conform with this agreement. The determination of any such board of arbitrators shall be final and conclusive as to the propriety of such charge or such right of reimbursement.

13. Minimum Achievement of Renting Agent. Upon such termination, Jones or the Corporation shall repay to Ace the sum of _____ Dollars ($_____) contributed by Ace pursuant to Paragraph 3 in full and complete discharge of all claims of Ace arising out of this agreement or out of actions taken hereunder of any nature whatsoever, provided, however, that if upon termination, Ace has obtained tenants for more than fifty percent (50%) of the rentable floor area but less than two-thirds (2/3) of such floor area, Ace shall be entitled to receive a standard real estate commission with respect to the tenants it has obtained, but such commission shall be reduced by the amount the corporation has paid in salaries pursuant to Paragraph 6 hereof. Upon termination pursuant to this paragraph, Ace shall not be liable to Jones for any claim arising out of its failure to fulfill its obligations under this agreement.

(b) Any salary which has accrued but is not payable pursuant to Paragraph 6 shall be paid.

(c) From the assets remaining, Ace shall be repaid the _____ Dollars ($_____) it has contributed pursuant to Paragraph 3, and Jones shall be entitled to whatever remains.

Upon such liquidation this agreement shall terminate and Jones shall not be liable for any claim of Ace arising out of this agreement or out of actions taken hereunder of any nature whatsoever.

FORM 20.34 Close Corporation Agreement having two shareholders

COMMENT

Owning and operating real estate using an entity has all of the same concerns that an entity has which operates a business. Even in the case of the most simple corporation which owns investment property, the shareholders may have concerns regarding their rights and obligations. The following agreement is directed at an S-corporation that has two shareholders. The corporation owns strictly rental property, and it is not anticipated that the corporation will acquire other property. Further, this agreement contains a conversion of voting stock to non-voting stock upon the death of a shareholder and dispute resolution consisting of a forced sale in the event the shareholders not longer get along.

FORM

THIS CLOSE CORPORATION AGREEMENT is entered into on the _____ [day] day of _____, [month] _____, [year] by and between AMANDA PROPERTY, INC., a(n) _____ [state] corporation (the "Corporation"), SAM SMITH ("Smith") and JOHN JONES ("Jones"). Smith and Jones are sometimes hereinafter referred to individually as a "Shareholder" and collectively as the "Shareholders."

WHEREAS, the Shareholders are the owners of all of the issued and outstanding shares of the Corporation, and wish to promote their mutual interests by regulating certain aspects of the internal affairs of the Corporation and the relations of the Shareholders between themselves;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual covenants and agreements contained herein, the parties hereto agree as follows:

1. Governing Law. This Agreement is executed pursuant to, and shall be governed under and in accordance with, _____ [state] Revised Code Section _____, the _____ [state] Close Corporation Agreement Statute.

2. Non-Voting Stock. Upon the death of the first Shareholder to die, all shares owned by such Shareholder at the time of his death, shall be deemed to be non-voting shares, irrespective of the designation appearing on the certificates representing such shares. Upon the death of such Shareholder, the legal representative of such Shareholder's estate shall deliver to the Corporation the certificates representing the shares owned by such Shareholder at the time of his death and the Corporation shall issue to such legal representative new non-voting stock certificates therefor.

3. Amendment of Corporation's Articles. Simultaneously with the execution hereof, the Shareholders' agree that they will take the necessary action to Amend the Corporation's Articles of Incorporation to provide that the Corporation shall have three hundred seventy-five (375) voting shares and three hundred seventy five (375) non-voting shares authorized. Notwithstanding anything herein to the contrary, the following actions shall only be taken by the Corporation with the unanimous consent of all of the Shareholders:

- (a) a reorganization, including a merger or consolidation to which the Corporation is a party;
- (b) the distribution or payment of any dividend (in cash or property) by the Corporation (except as is authorized or required by Paragraph 6, herein);
- (c) diversification of or a change in the Corporation's business purposes;
- (d) the issuance of any shares by the Corporation (except an issuance required by Paragraph 2, herein); and
- (e) amendment of the Corporation's Articles of Incorporation, Code of Regulations and/or this Agreement.

Except as is expressly set forth herein, or is required by law, the holder of the non-voting shares shall have no right to vote for Directors, or have a voice in the operations of the Corporation.

4. Forced Sale. If any Shareholder desires to sell all, but not part, of his shares, then the Shareholder desiring to sell such shares shall establish a price per share and terms upon which the selling Shareholder is willing to sell such shares. The selling Shareholder shall then present such proposal to the other Shareholder. The other Shareholder shall have thirty (30) days to either accept or reject such offer. If the other Shareholder shall accept such offer, then the stock will be purchased pursuant to such terms. If the other Shareholder rejects such offer, then the selling Shareholder shall be required to purchase and the rejecting Shareholder shall be required to sell, the rejecting Shareholder's shares upon the same terms and conditions of the original proposal. Such purchase shall take place within thirty (30) days of the rejection of the original offer.

5. S Corporation Status. The Shareholders acknowledge that the Corporation is an "S Corporation" within the meaning of Section 1361, et seq., of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended. The Shareholders agree that they will not take any action that would terminate the election of the Corporation to be treated as a S Corporation without the consent of the other Shareholder. Any unilateral action by a Shareholder which may have the effect of terminating the election shall not be valid as it relates to the Corporation, and the Corporation shall not recognize such purported transfer or action.

6. Distributions. With respect to each calendar year, prior to the date on which a Shareholder is required to pay such Shareholder's federal income tax to the Internal Revenue Service, the Corporation shall distribute to such Shareholder an amount equal to the maximum federal income tax rate for individuals multiplied by the amount of income allocable to such Shareholder attributable to the operations of the Corporation. After the death of the first Shareholder, either Shareholder shall have the right to require the Corporation to distribute, not less than semi-annually, all of the cash flow of the Corporation, less the sums which should be retained by the Corporation in the reasonable judgment of the Corporation's Board of Directors for working capital and replacement reserves. The cash flow of the Corporation shall be determined on an annual basis.

7. Restrictions on Stock Transfers. Each of the Shareholders agree not to sell or encumber the stock presently owned by him in the Corporation (including, without limitation, pledge, mortgage or transfer the stock presently owned by him), except with the express written consent of the other Shareholder.

8. Legend on Certificates. Upon the execution of this Agreement, the certificates evidencing the Shareholders' ownership of stock in the Corporation shall be surrendered to the Corporation and shall be endorsed with the following legend:

The shares represented by this certificate were issued subject to a statutory close corporation agreement under _____ [state] Revised Code Section _____. Any purchaser or transferee of these shares is bound by said agreement and shall be considered a party to said agreement. Said Close Corporation Agreement was entered into on the _____ [day] day of _____, [month] _____, [year] by and among the Corporation, Sam Smith, and John Jones. The corporation will mail to the holder of this certificate, without charge, a copy of such agreement within five (5) days after receiving a written request therefor.

After endorsement, the certificates shall be returned to the Shareholders who shall, subject to the terms of this Agreement, be entitled to exercise all rights of ownership respecting the shares evidenced thereby. The Corporation agrees that it will cause a similar legend to be endorsed on all certificates hereafter issued by it which are subject to the provisions of this Agreement.

9. Necessary Acts. Each of the parties hereto agrees that it or he will do any act or thing and will execute any and all instruments necessary and/or proper to make effective the provisions of the Agreement.

10. Definitions. References in this Agreement to stock presently owned by a Shareholder in the Corporation, shall include not only the stock currently owned by a Shareholder, but also any Shares hereafter acquired by the Shareholders, whether by way of purchase, stock dividend, recapitalization, reorganization or otherwise.

11. Controlling Effect. If and to the extent that the terms and conditions of this Agreement conflict with the Articles of Incorporation or the Code of Regulations of the Corporation, as currently in effect or subsequently amended, the terms and conditions hereof shall be deemed controlling, and such conflicting provisions shall be disregarded. To the extent, however, that this Agreement and those documents can reasonably be construed as to give effect to both, such reasonable construction shall be adopted.

12. Binding Effect. This Agreement shall inure to the benefit of and be binding upon the parties hereto and their respective next of kin, legatees, administrators, executors, legal representatives, successors and permitted assigns (including remote, as well as immediate, successors to and assignees of said parties).

13. Assignment. The rights and obligations of the parties hereunder may not be assigned without the written consent of the non-assigning party.

14. Amendment and Waiver. This Agreement may be amended or modified at any time and in any respect in a writing signed by both parties. Any provision hereof may be waived, by an instrument in writing executed by the party against which the waiver is sought to be enforced.

15. Counterparts. This Agreement may be executed in two (2) or more identical counterparts, each of which, when each party has executed at least one (1) such counterpart, shall be deemed to be an original and fully-executed Agreement.

16. Entire Agreement. This Agreement constitutes the entire agreement among the parties with respect to the subject matter contained herein and supersede all prior agreements, representations, and understandings of the parties.

17. Severability. In case one or more of the provisions contained in this Agreement shall, for any reason, be unenforceable, invalid, or illegal in any respect, such unenforceability, invalidity or illegality shall not affect any other provision of this Agreement, this Agreement shall be construed as if such unenforceable, invalid or illegal provisions had not been contained herein or, if it is equitable under the circumstances, such unenforceable, invalid or illegal provision shall be reformed, amended and/or construed so as to be enforceable, valid or legal.

18. Headings and Construction of Terms. The headings of the various paragraphs and subparagraphs hereinabove are for convenience of reference only, and shall in no way effect or modify any of the terms or provisions hereof. Where the context herein requires, the singular number shall include the plural.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, this Close Corporation Agreement is executed by the parties hereto on the day and year first above written.

AUTHOR: by Stephen E. Pigott and Harold O. Maxfield, Jr.

FORM 20.35 Code of Regulations/Bylaws

COMMENT

The following form is a very generic form of a Code of Regulations for use in connection with the formation of a corporation that will own and operate investment real estate. For a more detailed discussion of corporate organizations and corporate operations and management and the related forms and provisions see Chapters 17 and 18 of Volume 22, of Current Legal Forms with Tax Analysis. The practitioner should keep in mind that observance of the corporate formalities is critical in order for the corporation to maintain its separate legal existence. This form provides that no officer or director will be prevented from serving in such capacity by virtue of such person's ownership of other property.

FORM

[name of corporation]

CODE OF REGULATIONS

ARTICLE I SHAREHOLDERS

Section 1. Annual Meeting. The annual meeting of shareholders of the corporation for the election of directors, the consideration of reports to be laid before such meeting, and the transaction of such other business as may properly be brought before such meeting, shall be held at the principal office of the corporation in the City of _____, [city] in _____ County, [county] or at such other place either within or without the State of _____ [state] as may be designated by the Board of Directors, by the Chairman of the Board, or by the President, and specified in the notice of such meeting, at _____ o'clock a.m., or at such other time as may be designated by the Board of Directors, by the Chairman of the Board, or by the President, and specified in the notice of the meeting, on the second Monday of _____ [month] each year, if not a legal holiday, and, if a legal holiday, then on the next succeeding business day.

Section 2. Special Meetings. Special meetings of the shareholders of the corporation may be held on any business day, when called by the Chairman of the Board, or by the President, or by a Vice President, or by the Board of Directors acting at a meeting, or by a majority of the directors acting without a meeting, or by the persons who hold twenty-five percent (25%) of all the shares outstanding and entitled to vote thereat. Upon request in writing delivered either in person or by registered mail to the President or the Secretary by any persons entitled to call a meeting of shareholders, such officer shall forthwith cause to be given to the shareholders entitled thereto notice of a meeting to be held on a date not less than seven or more than sixty days after the receipt of such request, as such officer may fix. If such notice is not given within twenty (20) days after the delivery or mailing of such request, the persons calling the meeting may fix the time of the meeting and give notice thereof in the manner provided by law or as provided in these Regulations, or cause such notice to be given by any designated representative. Each special meeting shall be called to convene between 9:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m., and shall be held at the principal office of the corporation, unless the same is called by the directors, acting with or without a meeting, in which case such meeting may be held at any place either within or without the State of _____ [state] designated by the Board of Directors and specified in the notice of such meeting.

Section 3. Notice of Meetings. Not less than seven or more than sixty days before the date fixed for a meeting of shareholders, written notice stating the time and place of the meeting, and in the case of a special meeting the purposes of such meeting, shall be given by or at the direction of the Secretary or Assistant Secretary, or any other person or persons required or permitted by these Regulations to give such notice. The notice shall be given by personal delivery or by mail to each shareholder entitled to notice of the meeting who is of record as of the day next preceding the day on which notice is given or, if a record date therefor is duly fixed, of record as of said date; if mailed, the notice shall be addressed to the shareholders at their respective addresses as they appear on the records of the corporation. Notice of the time, place and purposes of any meeting of shareholders may be waived in writing, either before or after the holding of such meeting, by any shareholders, which writing shall be filed with or entered upon the records of the meeting. The attendance of any shareholder at any such meeting without protesting, prior to or at the commencement of the meeting, the lack of proper notice shall be deemed to be a waiver by him of notice of such meeting.

Section 4. Quorum; Adjournment. Except as may be otherwise provided by law or by the Articles of Incorporation, at any meeting of the shareholders the holders of shares entitling them to exercise a majority of the voting power of the corporation present in person or by proxy shall constitute a quorum for such meeting; provided, however, that no action required by law, by the Articles, or by these Regulations, to be authorized or taken by a designated proportion of the shares of any particular class of each class of the corporation may be authorized or taken by a lesser proportion; and provided, further, that the holders of a majority of the voting shares represented thereat, whether or not a quorum is present, may adjourn such meeting from time to time; if any meeting is adjourned, notice of such adjournment need not be given if the time and place to which such meeting is adjourned are fixed and announced at such meeting.

Section 5. Proxies. Persons entitled to vote shares or to act with respect to shares may vote or act in person or by proxy. The person appointed as proxy need not be a shareholder. Unless the writing appointing a proxy otherwise provides, the presence at a meeting of the person having appointed a proxy shall not operate to revoke the appointment. Notice to the corporation, in writing or in open meeting, of the revocation of the appointment of a proxy shall not affect any vote or act previously taken or authorized.

Section 6. Action Without a Meeting. Any action which may be authorized or taken at a meeting of the shareholders may be authorized or taken without a meeting in a writing or writings signed by all of the shareholders entitled to vote on such matter, which writing or writings shall be filed with or entered upon the records of the corporation.

ARTICLE II BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Section 1. Number. The number of members of the Board of Directors shall be determined by resolution of the shareholders entitled to vote, but shall not be less than three (3) members, unless the number of shareholders is less than three (3), in which latter event the number of directors may be less than three (3), but shall not be less than the number of shareholders.

Section 2. Election of Directors; Vacancies. Section 3. Term of Office; Resignation. Each director shall hold office until the next annual meeting of the shareholders and until his successor is elected, or until his earlier resignation, removal from office, or death. Any director may resign at any time by oral statement to that effect made at a meeting of the Board of Directors or in a writing to that effect delivered to the Secretary, such resignation to take effect immediately or at such other time as the director may specify.

Section 6. Quorum; Adjournment. A quorum of the Board of Directors shall consist of a majority of the directors then in office.

Section 7. Action Without a Meeting. Section 3. Chairman of the Board. The Chairman of the Board, if any, shall preside at all meetings of the Board of Directors, shall, unless such duty has been delegated by the Board of Directors to the President or another officer, preside at all meetings of the shareholders, and shall have such authority and shall perform such other duties as may be determined by the Board of Directors.

Members of either executive or special committees may be allowed such compensation as the Board of Directors may determine for attending committee hearings.

Section 2. Officers and Employees. The compensation of officers and employees of the corporation, or the method of fixing such compensation, shall be determined by or pursuant to authority conferred by the Board of Directors or any committee of the Board of Directors. Such compensation may include pension, disability and death benefits, and may be by way of fixed salary, or on the basis of earnings of the corporation, or any combination thereof, or otherwise, as determined or authorized from time to time by the Board of Directors or any committee of the Board of Directors.

ARTICLE V INDEMNIFICATION

Section 1. Third Party Actions. The corporation shall indemnify any person who was or is a party or is threatened to be made a party to any threatened, pending or completed action, suit or proceeding, whether civil, criminal, administrative, or investigative, including all appeals (other than an action, suit or proceeding by or in the right of the corporation) by reason of the fact that he is or was a director, officer or employee of the corporation, or is or was serving at the request of the corporation as a director, trustee, officer or employee of another corporation, limited liability company, joint venture, trust or other enterprise, against expenses (including attorneys' fees), judgments, decrees, fines, penalties and amounts paid in settlement actually and reasonably incurred by him in connection with such action, suit or proceeding if he acted in good faith and in a manner which he reasonably believed to be in or not opposed to the best interests of the corporation and, with respect to any criminal action or proceeding, had no reasonable cause to believe his conduct was unlawful. The termination of any action, suit or proceeding by judgment, order, settlement, conviction, or upon a plea of nolo contendere or its equivalent, shall not, of itself, create a presumption that the person did not act in good faith and in a manner which he reasonably believed to be in or not opposed to the best interest of the corporation and, with respect to any criminal action or proceeding, had reasonable cause to believe that his conduct was unlawful.

Section 2. Derivative Actions. The corporation shall indemnify any person who was or is a party or is threatened to be made a party to any threatened, pending or completed action or suit, including all appeals, by or in the right of the corporation to procure a judgment in its favor by reason of the fact that he is or was a director, officer or employee of the corporation, or is or was serving at the request of the corporation as a director, trustee, officer or employee of another corporation, limited liability company, joint venture, trust or other enterprise, against expenses (including attorneys' fees) actually and reasonably incurred by him in connection with the defense or settlement of such action or suit if he acted in good faith and in a manner he reasonably believed to be in or not opposed to the best interests of the corporation, except that no indemnification shall be made in respect of any claim, issue or matter as to which such person shall have been finally adjudged to be liable for negligence or misconduct in the performance of his duty to the corporation unless and only to the extent that the Court of Common Pleas or the court in which such action or suit was brought shall determine upon application that, despite the adjudication of liability but in view of all the circumstances of the case, such person is fairly and reasonably entitled to indemnity for such expenses as the Court of Common Pleas or such other court shall deem proper.

Section 3. Rights After Successful Defense. To the extent that a director, trustee, officer or employee has been successful on the merits or otherwise in defense of any action, suit or proceeding referred to in Section 1 or 2, or in defense of any claim, issue or matter therein, he shall be indemnified against expenses (including attorneys' fees) actually and reasonably incurred by him in connection therewith.

Section 4. Other Determination of Rights. Except in a situation governed by Section 3, any indemnification under Section 1 or 2 (unless ordered by a court) shall be made by the corporation only as authorized in the specific case upon a determination that indemnification of the director, trustee, officer or employee is proper in the circumstances because he has met the applicable standard of conduct set forth in Section 1 or 2. Such determination shall be made (a) by a majority vote of directors acting at a meeting at which a quorum consisting of directors who were not parties to such action, suit or proceeding is present, or (b) if such a quorum is not obtainable (or even if obtainable), and a majority of disinterested directors so directs, by independent legal counsel (compensated by the corporation) in a written opinion, or (c) by the affirmative vote in person or by proxy of the holders of a majority of the shares entitled to vote in the election of directors, without regard to voting power which may thereafter exist upon a default, failure or other contingency.

Section 5. Advances of Expenses. Expenses of each person indemnified hereunder incurred in defending a civil, criminal, administrative or investigative action, suit or proceeding (including all appeals), or threat thereof, may be paid by the corporation in advance of the final disposition of such action, suit or proceeding as authorized by the Board of Directors, whether a disinterested quorum exists or not, upon receipt of an undertaking by or on behalf of the director, trustee, officer or employee, to repay such amount unless it shall ultimately be determined that he is entitled to be indemnified by the corporation.

Section 6. Nonexclusiveness; Heirs. The indemnification provided by this Article shall not be deemed exclusive of any other rights to which those seeking indemnification may be entitled as a matter of law or under the Articles, these Regulations, any agreement, vote of shareholders, any insurance purchased by the corporation, or otherwise, both as to action in his official capacity and as to action in another capacity while holding such office, and shall continue as to a person who has ceased to be director, trustee, officer or employee and shall inure to the benefit of the heirs, executors and administrators of such a person.

Section 7. Purchase of Insurance. The corporation may purchase and maintain insurance on behalf of any person who is or was a director, officer or employee of the corporation, or is or was serving at the request of the corporation as a director, trustee, officer or employee of another corporation, limited liability company, joint venture, trust or other enterprise against any liability asserted against him and incurred by him in any such capacity, or arising out of his status as such, whether or not the corporation would have the power to indemnify him against such liability under the provisions of this Article or of the _____ [state] General Corporation Law.

ARTICLE VI CERTIFICATES FOR SHARES

Section 1. Form of Certificates and Signatures. Each holder of shares shall be entitled to one or more certificates, signed by the Chairman of the Board or the President or a Vice President and by the Secretary, an Assistant Secretary, the Treasurer, or an Assistant Treasurer of the corporation, which shall certify the number and class of shares held by him in the corporation, but no certificate for shares shall be executed or delivered until such shares are fully paid. When such a certificate is countersigned by an incorporated transfer agent or registrar, the signature of any of said officers of the corporation may be facsimile, engraved, stamped or printed.

Section 2. Transfer of Shares. Shares of the corporation shall be transferable upon the books of the corporation by the holders thereof, in person, or by a duly authorized attorney, upon surrender and cancellation of certificates for a like number of shares of the same class or series, with duly executed assignment and power of transfer endorsed thereon or attached thereto, and with such proof of the authenticity of the signatures to such assignment and power of transfer as the corporation or its agents may reasonably require.

Section 3. Lost, Stolen or Destroyed Certificates. The corporation may issue a new certificate for shares in place of any certificate theretofore issued by it and alleged to have been lost, stolen or destroyed, and the Board of Directors may, in its discretion, require the owner, or his legal representatives, to give the corporation a bond containing such terms as the Board of Directors may require to protect the corporation or any person injured by the execution and delivery of a new certificate.

Section 4. Transfer Agent and Registrar. The Board of Directors may appoint, or revoke the appointment of, transfer agents or registrars and may require all certificates for shares to bear the signatures of such transfer agents and registrars or any of them.

ARTICLE VII AMENDMENTS

The Regulations of the corporation may be amended, or new Regulations may be adopted, by the shareholders at a meeting held for such purpose, by the affirmative vote of the holders of shares entitling them to exercise a majority of the voting power of the corporation on such proposal, or without a meeting by the written consent of the holders of shares entitling them to exercise two-thirds of the voting power on such proposal.

FORM 20.36 Operating agreement--non-equity members as managers

COMMENT

The choice between the corporate form and the non-corporate form has been made much easier by the wide spread use of limited liability companies. Virtually every state has laws permitting the formation and operation of limited liability companies. A limited liability company can be formed to have the look and feel of a corporation, but have the federal income tax attributes of a sole proprietorship or partnership. Also, like a shareholder of a corporation, the members of a limited liability company have limited liability. That is, absent extraordinary circumstances, the owners of a limited liability company are not personally liable for the debts of the company.

Comparison of limited liability company and corporate taxation:

A member is taxed each year on his share of membership earnings, whether or not distributed to him; a shareholder is taxed only when corporate income is distributed to him. A corporation may offer advantages if the shareholders are high bracket taxpayers or if the income is to be retained for further expansion, especially if it will not be distributed until liquidation of the corporation. On the other hand, corporate income faces a double tax: the corporate rate plus the tax at individual rates on dividend distributions. Thus, if corporate income is to be frequently distributed the limited liability company form may be preferable. The shareholders and the corporation make an S election, then this difference between a corporation and a limited liability company is somewhat mitigated. For further discussion of comparison of limited liability companies and corporate taxation, see TB § 20.05.

Passive activity loss limitation:

Members are limited in the tax use of losses and expenses from passive activities. Passive activity losses (including expenses) can only be used to offset income from other passive activities of the taxpayer. Unused passive activity losses are carried forward indefinitely to offset future passive activity income or are allowed on a complete taxable disposition of the passive activity. Passive activities include a trade or business, or activity for the production of income, in which the taxpayer does not materially participate.

Generally speaking, rental real estate activity is considered to be a passive activity. IRC § 469(c)(2). Therefore, deductions and credits from rental activities can only offset income from other passive activities. Such deductions and credits cannot be deducted from nonpassive income, such as wages, dividends, interest, etc. However, there are two major exceptions to this general rule.

Certain eligible taxpayers who materially participate in rental real estate activities can deduct losses from such activities against nonpassive income. These eligible taxpayers include individuals and closely-held C Corporations that meet special eligibility requirements. IRC § 469(c)(7). Second, an individual who owns at least a 10-percent interest and actively participates in rental real estate activity is permitted to offset up to $25,000 of passive activity losses against his nonpassive income. IRC § 469(i). For an in-depth discussion of the passive loss rules, see TB § 20.06[3].

Limited liability company tax aspects:

A limited liability company as such is not subject to the income tax. Fundamentally, the limited liability company is disregarded and only the members in their individual capacities are liable for the payment of income tax. However, the limited liability company is the basic accounting unit and must file an annual information return. The taxable income of the limited liability company is computed in the same manner as that of an individual, except that certain items of income and deduction must be separately itemized, and except that the standard deduction, the deduction for personal exemptions, the deduction for foreign taxes, the charitable contribution deduction, the net operating loss deduction, and other itemized deductions applicable only to individuals, such as child care and medical expenses, are not allowed to the limited liability company.

Limited liability company and member tax returns:

The limited liability company, in its return, must separately state, and the member must separately take into account on his return, his distributive shares of certain items including gains and losses from the sale or exchange of property; charitable contributions; dividend income; partially tax-exempt interest; and miscellaneous items required by the regulations.

Each member's share of income is derived from the limited liability company return, with the character of each item of income, gain, loss, deduction, or credit retaining the same character as it had for the limited liability company. However, the tax treatment of items of limited liability company income, loss, deductions, and credits are determined at the limited liability company level on a unified basis rather than on the basis of individual member treatment. In addition, each member is required to treat limited liability company items on his return consistently with the treatment of the items on the limited liability company return. If the treatment is inconsistent and the consistency requirement is requested to be waived, the member must file a statement identifying the inconsistency. Unless the consistency requirement is waived, adjustments will be made to conform the member's treatment of the items with the treatment on the limited liability company return. The consistency rules do not apply to small limited liability companies, i.e., a limited liability company of ten or fewer members who are individuals or estates, provided that each member's share of any limited liability company item is the same as his distributive share of every other limited liability company item. A husband and wife are treated as one member in a small limited liability company. For taxation of limited liability companies and members, see TB § 20.05. Member's distributive share: Each member must thus include in his individual return his distributive share of each item of limited liability company income, gain, loss, deduction, or credit. The member's distributive share is determined by the limited liability company agreement. If the agreement does not make such an allocation, or if the allocation does not have a "substantial economic effect," the member's distributive share is determined in accordance with his interest in the limited liability company, taking into account all facts and circumstances.

Real estate subject to "at risk" rules:

Holding real property is an activity which is not exempt from the "at risk" loss deduction limitations. A taxpayer cannot deduct losses derived from an activity which exceed the amount at risk by the taxpayer. The amount at risk is the amount of money and property contributed by the taxpayer to the activity, and borrowed amount for which the taxpayer is personally liable or has pledged property, other than property used in the subject activity, as security for the loan. The amount of nonrecourse financing is not at risk. Qualified nonrecourse financing, however, is treated as an amount at risk. Generally, qualified nonrecourse financing is amounts borrowed from an institutional lender, government entity, or an amount insured by a government entity. For further discussion of the "at risk" loss deduction limitation with respect to real estate, see TB § 20.06[2]. For a detailed discussion of the "at risk" rules, see The Tax Background to Chapter 1, Partnerships, in Volume 1.

The following form operating agreement is for a real estate operating company formed under Delaware law which is a single purpose limited liability company. Typically, a single purpose limited liability company is required if the limited liability company is financing investment real property and the lender does not want the ownership and operation of real estate investments to be commingled with other investments.

This agreement provides for special members who will have no economic ownership interest in the company, but will act as independent managers for the company and the management of the investment property.

Subject to this Section 11(j), the Member reserves the right to amend, alter, change or repeal any provisions contained in this Agreement in accordance with Section 31.

(iii) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Agreement and any provision of law that otherwise so empowers the Company, so long as any Indebtedness is outstanding, none of the Company, the Member or the Board shall be authorized or empowered, nor shall they permit the Company, without the prior unanimous written consent of the Member and all of the Managers on the Board, including the Independent Managers, to take any Bankruptcy Action (as hereinafter defined), provided, however, that the Board may not vote on, or authorize the taking of, any of the foregoing actions unless there are two Independent Managers then serving in such capacity. To the fullest extent permitted by law, for so long as any Indebtedness is outstanding, none of the Company, the Member or the Board shall be authorized or empowered, nor shall they permit the Company to consolidate, merge, dissolve, liquidate or sell all or substantially all of the Company's assets (other than such sales as may be permitted under the Loan Documents). As used herein, the term "Bankruptcy Action" shall mean (1) taking any action that might cause the Company to become insolvent; (2) commencing any case, proceeding or other action on behalf of the Company or otherwise seek relief under any existing or future law of any jurisdiction relating to bankruptcy, insolvency, reorganization or relief of debtors; (3) instituting proceedings to have the Company adjudicated as bankrupt or insolvent; (4) consenting to the institution of bankruptcy or insolvency proceedings against the Company; (5) filing a petition or consenting to a petition seeking reorganization, arrangement, adjustment, winding-up, dissolution, composition, liquidation or other relief of its debts on behalf of the Company under any federal or state law relating to bankruptcy; (6) seeking or consenting to the appointment of a receiver, liquidator, assignee, trustee, sequestrator, custodian or any similar official for the Company or a substantial portion of its assets or properties; (7) admitting in writing the Company's inability to pay debts generally as they become due; (8) making any assignment for the benefit of the Company's creditors; or (9) taking any action in furtherance of the foregoing.

(iv) So long as any Indebtedness is outstanding, the Board and the Member shall cause the Company to do or cause to be done all things necessary to preserve and keep in full force and effect its existence, rights (charter and statutory) and franchises. The Board and Member also shall cause the Company to:

- (1) not commingle its assets with those of any other entity;
- (2) hold its assets in its own name;
- (3) conduct its own business in its own name;
- (4) maintain its bank accounts, books, records and financial statements in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles ("GAAP"), keep such bank accounts, books, records and financial statements separate from those of any other person or entity, and not permit the listing of its assets on the financial statements of any other person or entity;

- (18) not make loans or advances to any person or entity;
- (19) hold itself out as a separate entity, and not fail to correct any known misunderstanding regarding its separate identity;
- (20) not identify itself as a division or subsidiary of any other entity;
- (21) observe the single purpose entity and separateness covenants and requirements set forth in the Mortgage; and
- (22) not maintain its assets in such a manner that it will be costly or difficult to segregate, ascertain or identify its individual assets from those of any other person or entity.

Subject to Section 11(j)(ii), the Member shall be prohibited from amending this Agreement with respect to the foregoing covenants, without the consent of Lender or its successors and assigns, or, after the securitization contemplated by the Loan Agreement only if the Company receives (i) confirmation from each of the applicable rating agencies that such amendment would not result in the qualification, withdrawal or downgrade of any securities rating and (ii) approval of such amendment by Lender or its successors and assigns. Failure of the Company, or the Member or a Manager on behalf of the Company, to comply with any of the foregoing covenants or any of the other covenants contained in this Agreement shall not affect the status of the Company as a separate legal entity or the limited liability of the Member or the Managers.

(v) So long as any Indebtedness is outstanding, the Board and the Members shall not cause or permit the Company to:

- (1) grant or permit to exist any lien, encumbrance, claim, security interest, pledge or other right in favor of any person or entity with respect to the Property, except as contemplated by the Loan Documents;
- (2) engage, directly or indirectly, in any business other than owning the Property or the actions required or permitted to be performed under Section 8, the Loan Documents, or this Section 11(j);
- (3) incur, create or assume any indebtedness other than (i) the Indebtedness and (ii) unsecured indebtedness that represents trade payables or accrued expenses occurring in the normal course of business of owning and operating the Property that are due and payable within thirty (30) days after the date incurred and in no event exceeds one percent (1%) of the outstanding principal balance of the Indebtedness;
- (4) enter into, or be a party to, any transaction with any of its Affiliates, except (i) the transactions contemplated by the Loan Documents, and (ii) any other transactions that are consistent with market terms of any such transactions entered into by unaffiliated parties and that are (A) in the ordinary course of business; (B) pursuant to the reasonable requirements and purposes of its business; and (C) upon fair and reasonable terms (and, to the extent material, pursuant to written agreements);
- (5) transfer ownership interests other than such activities that are expressly permitted pursuant to Sections 23 and 24 hereof;

- (6) form, acquire or hold any subsidiary (whether corporate, partnership, limited liability company or other);
 - (7) subject to Section 31, amend, modify, supplement, restate, replace or, to the extent permitted by applicable law, terminate, or consent to the amendment, modification, supplementing, restatement, replacement or termination of this Agreement;
 - (8) fail to preserve its existence as an entity duly organized, validly existing and in good standing (if required) under the applicable laws of the jurisdiction of its organization or formation; or
 - (9) terminate or fail to comply with the provisions of its organizational documents.
- (k) Actions Requiring the Consent of the Member. Without the express written approval of the Member, but expressly subject to the additional limitations on and obligations of the Member, and the resulting rights of the Board (and the Independent Managers and any Committee appointed by the Board) under Section 11(j) of this Agreement, the Company shall not:
- (i) do any act in contravention of this Agreement;
 - (ii) do any act which would make it impossible to carry on the ordinary business of the Company or the Member;
 - (iii) sell, assign or transfer in whole or any portions the Property except as permitted in this Agreement;
 - (iv) confess a judgment against the Company or the Member;
 - (v) possess property or assign rights in specific Company property for other than a purpose described herein;

 - (vii) pay any fee or other compensation, take any action or grant any consent which pursuant to the Articles require the consent of the partners of Member or which is otherwise prohibited by this Agreement.

12. Independent Managers. As long as any Indebtedness is outstanding, the Member shall cause the Company at all times to have at least two Independent Managers who will be appointed by the Member. To the fullest extent permitted by law, including Section 18-1101(c) of the Act, the Independent Managers shall consider only the interests of the Company, including its respective creditors, in acting or otherwise voting on the matters referred to in Section 11(j)(iii). No resignation or removal of an Independent Manager, and no appointment of a successor Independent Manager, shall be effective until the successor Independent Manager (i) shall have accepted his or her appointment by a written instrument and (ii) shall have executed a counterpart of this Agreement as required by Section 6(d). In the event of a vacancy in the position of Independent Manager the Member shall, as soon as practicable, appoint a new Independent Manager. All right, power and authority of the Independent Managers shall be limited to the extent necessary to exercise those rights and perform those duties specifically set forth in this Agreement. Except as provided in the second sentence of this Section 12, in exercising their rights and performing their duties under this Agreement the Independent Managers shall have a fiduciary duty of loyalty and care similar to that of a director of a business corporation organized under the General Corporation Law of the State of Delaware. No Independent Manager shall at any time serve as trustee in bankruptcy for any Affiliate of the Company. As used in this Agreement, "Affiliate" shall mean, with respect to any Person, any other Person, directly or indirectly, Controlling or Controlled by or under direct or indirect common Control with such Person. As used in this Agreement, "Control", "Controlled" or "Controlling" shall mean the possession, directly or indirectly, of the power to direct or cause the direction of the management or policies of a Person, whether through the ownership of voting securities or general partnership or managing member interests, by contract or otherwise. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, a Person shall be deemed to Control any other Person in which it owns, directly or indirectly, a majority of the ownership interests. As used in this Agreement, "Person" shall mean any individual, corporation, partnership, joint venture, limited liability company, limited liability partnership, associate, joint stock company, trust, unincorporated organization or other organization, whether or not a legal entity, and any governmental authority.

13. An "Independent Manager" shall mean a member of the Board who is not at the time of initial appointment, or at any time while serving on the Board, and has not been at any time during the preceding five (5) years: (a) a stockholder (or other equity owner), member, director, officer, employee, partner, attorney or counsel of the Company or any Affiliate (other than his or her service as an Independent Manager or Special Member of the Company); (b) a customer, supplier or other Person who derives more than 1 % of its purchases or revenues from its activities with the Company or any Affiliate; (c) a Person or other entity Controlling or under common Control with any such stockholder, partner, member, customer, supplier or Affiliates; or (d) a member of the immediate family of any such stockholder, member, director, officer, employee, partner, customer, supplier or Affiliates.

14. Limited Liability. Except as otherwise expressly provided in the Act, the debts, obligations and liabilities of the Company, whether arising in contract, tort, or otherwise, shall be the debts, obligations and liabilities solely of the Company, and none of the Member nor any partner thereof, any Special Member or any Manager shall be obligated personally for any such debt, obligation or liability of the Company solely by reason of being a Member, Special Member or Manager of the Company.

15. Capital Contributions. The Member has a one-hundred percent (100%) interest in the Company. The Member shall, within ten (10) days following its execution of this Agreement, make a capital contribution to the Company of _____ Dollars ($_____).

16. Additional Contributions. The Member is not required to make any additional capital contributions to the Company. However, the Member may make additional capital contributions to the Company at any time. The provisions of this Section 16 are intended solely to benefit the Member and, to the fullest extent permitted by law, shall not be construed as conferring any benefit upon any creditor of the Company (and no such creditor of the Company shall be a third-party beneficiary of this Agreement) and the Member shall not have any duty or obligation to any creditor of the Company to make any contribution to the Company or to issue any call for capital pursuant to this Agreement.

17. Tax Status. It is intended that the Company, solely for tax purposes, shall be disregarded as an entity separate from its Member for federal, state and local income tax purposes.

18. Distributions. Distributions shall be made to the Member at the times and in the aggregate amounts determined by the Member. Notwithstanding any provision to the contrary contained in this Agreement, the Company shall not be required to make a distribution to the Member on account of its interest in the Company if such distribution would violate Section 18-607 of the Act or any other applicable law, or constitute a default under the Loan Documents.

19. Books and Records. The Board shall keep or cause to be kept complete and accurate books of account and records with respect to the Company's business. The books of the Company shall at all times be maintained by the Board. The Member and its duly authorized representatives shall have the right to examine the Company books, records and documents during normal business hours. The Company, and the Board on behalf of the Company, shall not have the right to keep confidential from the Member any information that the Board would otherwise be permitted to keep confidential from the Member pursuant to Section 18-305(c) of the Act. The Company's books of account shall be kept using the method of accounting determined by the Member. The Company's independent auditor shall be an independent public accounting firm selected by the Member.

20. Reports.

(a) The Company shall cause to be prepared, at the Company's expense, such financial reports and other information as the Member may determine are appropriate or necessary.

(b) If required, the Member shall cause the accountants of the Company to prepare all federal, state and local tax returns required of the Company, submit those returns to the Member for its approval no later than thirty (30) calendar days prior to the date required for the filing thereof (including any extensions granted) and will cause the tax returns to be filed after they have been approved by the Member.

(c) All decisions as to accounting principles shall be made by the Member, subject to the provisions of this Agreement.

21. Other Business. Any Affiliate of the Member, but not the Member, and the Special Members may engage in or possess an interest in other business ventures (unconnected with the Company) of every kind and description, independently or with others. The Company shall not have any rights in or to such independent ventures or the income or profits therefrom by virtue of this Agreement. Neither the Member nor any Special Member nor any Manager shall have the right, power or authority to bind the Company, the Member or any partner in Member in connection with any other business or transaction which is not within the scope of the purpose of the Company as set forth herein.

22. Exculpation and Indemnification.

(a) No Member, Special Member, Manager, employee, agent or Affiliate of the Company and no direct or indirect employee, representative, partner, agent or Affiliate of the Member (collectively, the "Covered Persons") shall be liable to the Company or any other Person who has an interest in or claim against the Company for any loss, damage or claim incurred by reason of any act or omission performed or omitted by such Covered Person in good faith on behalf of the Company and in a manner reasonably believed to be within the scope of the authority conferred on such Covered Person by this Agreement excepting a Covered Person shall be liable for any such loss, damage or claim incurred by reason of such Covered Person's gross negligence or willful misconduct.

(b) To the fullest extent permitted by applicable law, a Covered Person shall be entitled to indemnification from the Company for any loss, damage or claim incurred by such Covered Person by reason of any act or omission performed or omitted by such Covered Person in good faith on behalf of the Company and in a manner reasonably believed to be within the scope of the authority conferred on such Covered Person by this Agreement, except that no Covered Person shall be entitled to be indemnified in respect of any loss, damage or claim incurred by such Covered Person by reason of such Covered Person's gross negligence or willful misconduct with respect to such acts or omissions; provided, however, that any indemnity under this Section 22 shall be provided out of and to the extent of the Company assets only, and no Member shall have personal liability on account thereof, and provided further, that so long as any Indebtedness is outstanding, no indemnity payment from funds of the Company (as distinct from funds from other sources, such as insurance) of any indemnity under this Section 22 shall be payable from amounts allocable to any other Person pursuant to the Loan Documents.

(c) To the fullest extent permitted by applicable law and subject to Section 22(b) above, expenses (including legal fees) incurred by a Covered Person defending any claim, demand, action, suit or proceeding shall, from time to time, be advanced by the Company prior to the final disposition of such claim, demand, action, suit or proceeding upon receipt by the Company of an undertaking by or on behalf of the Covered Person to repay such amount if it shall be determined that the Covered Person is not entitled to be indemnified as authorized by this Section 22.

(d) A Covered Person shall be fully protected in relying in good faith upon the records of the Company and upon such information, opinions, reports or statements presented to the Company by any Person as to matters the Covered Person reasonably believes are within such other Person's professional or expert competence and who has been selected with reasonable care by or on behalf of the Company, including information, opinions, reports or statements as to the value and amount of the assets, liabilities, or any other facts pertinent to the existence and amount of assets from which distributions to the Member might properly be paid.

(e) To the extent that, at law or in equity, a Covered Person has duties, including fiduciary duties, and liabilities relating thereto to the Company or to any other Covered Person, a Covered Person acting under this Agreement shall not be liable to the Company or to any other Covered Person for its good faith reliance on the provisions of this Agreement or any approval or authorization granted by the Company or any other Covered Person. The provisions of this Agreement, to the extent that they restrict the duties and liabilities of a Covered Person otherwise existing at law or in equity, are agreed by the Member and the Special Members to replace such other duties and liabilities of such Covered Person.

(f) The foregoing provisions of this Section 22 shall survive any termination of this Agreement.

23. Transfers. The transfer of any direct or indirect ownership interest in the Company must be made in accordance with the Loan Documents. Any such transfer in violation of the terms of this Agreement or the Loan Documents shall be void and of no effect. If the Member transfers all of its limited liability company interest in the Company pursuant to this Section 23 and in accordance with the Loan Documents, the transferee shall be admitted to the Company as a member of the Company upon its execution of an instrument signifying its agreement to be bound by the terms and conditions of this Agreement, which instrument may be a counterpart signature page to this Agreement. Such admission shall be deemed effective immediately prior to the transfer and, immediately following such admission, the transferor Member shall cease to be a member of the Company.

24. Admission of Additional Members. Subject to the terms of Section 23, one or more additional members of the Company may be admitted to the Company with the written consent of the Member; provided that, notwithstanding the foregoing, so long as any Indebtedness remains outstanding, no additional members may be admitted to the Company, other than the Substitute Member or the Special Members, unless there is a transfer of 100% of the limited liability company interest to a single entity.

25. Dissolution.

(a) Subject to Section 11(j), the Company shall be dissolved, and its affairs shall be wound up upon the first to occur of the following: (i) the termination of the legal existence of the last remaining member of the Company or the occurrence of any other event which terminates the continued membership of the last remaining Member of the Company in the Company unless the business of the Company is continued in a manner permitted by this Agreement or the Act; or (ii) the entry of a decree of judicial dissolution under Section 18-802 of the Act. Upon the occurrence of any event that causes the last remaining member of the Company to cease to be a member of the Company, to the fullest extent permitted by law, the personal representative of such Member is hereby authorized to, and shall, within 90 days after the occurrence of the event that terminated the continued membership of such member of the Company, agree in writing (i) to continue the Company; and (ii) to the admission of the personal representative or its nominee or designee, as the case may be, as a Substitute Member of the Company, effective as of the occurrence of the event that terminated the continued membership of the last remaining member of the Company in the Company.

(b) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Agreement, the Bankruptcy of the Member or any Special Member shall not cause the Member or such Special Member to cease to be a member of the Company and upon the occurrence of such an event, the business of the Company shall continue without dissolution. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Agreement, the Member waives any right it might have to agree in writing to dissolve the Company upon the Bankruptcy of the Member or the occurrence of any other event that causes such Member to cease to be a member of the Company. "Bankruptcy" means, with respect to the Member or any Special Member, if the Member or a Special Member (i) makes an assignment for the benefit of creditors; (ii) files a voluntary petition in bankruptcy; (iii) is adjudged a bankrupt or insolvent, or has entered against itself an order for relief, in any bankruptcy or insolvency proceeding; (iv) files a petition or answer seeking for itself any reorganization, arrangement, composition, readjustment, liquidation, dissolution or similar relief under any statute, law or regulation; (v) files an answer or other pleading admitting or failing to contest the material allegations of a petition filed against it in any proceeding of this nature; (vi) seeks, consents to or acquiesces in the appointment of a trustee, receiver or liquidator of the Person or of all or any substantial part of its properties; or (vii) 120 days after the commencement of any proceeding against the Person seeking reorganization, arrangement, composition, readjustment, liquidation, dissolution, or similar relief under any statute, law or regulation, if the proceedings has not been dismissed, or if within 90 days after the appointment, without the Person's consent or acquiescence, of a trustee, receiver or liquidator of the Person or of all or any substantial part of its properties, the appointment is not vacated or stayed, or within 90 days after the expiration of any such stay, the appointment is not vacated. With respect to any Person, the foregoing definition of "Bankruptcy" is intended to replace and shall supersede the definition of "bankruptcy" set forth in Sections 18-101(1) and 18-304 of the Act.

(c) In the event of dissolution, the Company shall conduct only such activities as are necessary to wind up its affairs (including the sale of the assets of the Company in an orderly manner), and the assets of the Company shall be applied in the manner, and in the order of priority, set forth in Section 18-804 of the Act.

(d) The Company shall terminate when (i) all of the assets of the Company, after payment of or due provision for all debts, liabilities and obligations of the Company shall have been distributed to the Member in the manner provided for in this Agreement; and (ii) the Certificate of Formation shall have been canceled in the manner required by the Act.

26. Waiver of Partition; Nature of Interest. Except as otherwise expressly provided in this Agreement, to the fullest extent permitted by law, the Member and the Special Members hereby irrevocably waive any right or power that such Member or the Special Member might have to cause the Company or any of its assets to be partitioned, to cause the appointment of a receiver for all or any portion of the assets of the Company, to compel any sale of all or any portion of the assets of the Company pursuant to any applicable law or to file a complaint or to institute any proceeding at law or in equity to cause the dissolution, liquidation, winding up or termination of the Company. No Member shall have any interest in any specific asset of the Company, and no Member shall have the status of a creditor with respect to any distribution pursuant to Section 18 hereof. The interest of the Member in the Company is personal property.

27. Benefits of Agreement; No Third-Party Rights. None of the provisions of this Agreement shall be for the benefit of or enforceable by any creditor of the Company or by any creditor of the Member other than (i) Section 11(j) and Section 25 which shall be for the benefit of Lender and its successors and assigns; and (ii) Section 34 which shall be for the benefit of each Independent Manager. Subject to Sections 11(j), 25 and 34, nothing in this Agreement shall be deemed to create any right in any Person (other than Covered Persons) not a party hereto, and this Agreement shall not be construed in any respect to be a contract in whole or in part for the benefit of any third Person.

28. Severability of Provisions. Each provision of this Agreement shall be considered severable and if for any reason any provision or provisions herein are determined to be invalid, unenforceable or illegal under any existing or future law, such invalidity, unenforceability or illegality shall not impair the operation of or affect those portions of this Agreement which are valid, enforceable and legal.

29. Entire Agreement. This Agreement constitutes the entire agreement of the parties with respect to the subject matter hereof.

30. Governing Law. This Agreement shall be governed by and construed under the laws of the State of Delaware (without regard to conflict of laws principles), all rights and remedies being governed by said laws.

31. Amendments. Subject to Sections 11(j) and 11(k), this Agreement may not be modified, altered, supplemented or amended except pursuant to a written agreement executed and delivered by the Member. Subject to Sections 11(j) and 11(k), so long as any Indebtedness is outstanding, this Agreement may not be modified, altered, supplemented or amended unless the Lender under the Loan Documents consents and, to the extent the Indebtedness has been securitized, the related rating agencies have delivered written confirmation that such changes will not result in the qualification, downgrade or withdrawal of any ratings assigned to the related securities, except: (i) to cure any ambiguity; or (ii) to convert or supplement any provision in a manner consistent with the intent of this Agreement.

32. Counterparts. This Agreement may be executed in any number of counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original of this Agreement and all of which together shall constitute one and the same instrument.

33. Notices. Any notices required to be delivered hereunder shall be in writing and personally delivered, mailed or sent by telecopy, electronic mail, or other similar form of rapid transmission, and shall be deemed to have been duly given upon receipt (a) in the case of the Company, to the Company at its address set forth in Section 3; (b) in the case of the Member, to the Member at its address as listed on Schedule A attached hereto; and (c) in the case of either of the foregoing, at such other address as may be designated by written notice to the other party.

34. Enforcement by Independent Managers. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Agreement, the Members and the Special Members agree that this Agreement constitutes a legal, valid and binding agreement of the Members and the Special Members, and is enforceable against the them by the Independent Managers, in accordance with its terms. In addition, each Independent Manager shall be an intended beneficiary of this Agreement.

35. Effectiveness. Pursuant to Section 18-201(d) of the Act, this Agreement shall be effective as of the time of the filing of the Certificate of Formation with the office of the Delaware Secretary of State on _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] .

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the undersigned, intending to be legally bound hereby, has duly executed this Agreement as of the _____ [day] day of _____, [month] _____. [year]

24-20 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 20.37

AUTHOR: by Stephen E. Pigott and Harold O. Maxfield, Jr.

FORM 20.37 Operating agreement--equity member as sole manager

COMMENT

The following form is a basic operating agreement for a real estate limited liability company formed under Ohio law. Unlike the previous form operating agreement set forth at Form 20.36 supra, all members are equity owners, and day to day management and operation of the company and its real estate has been delegated to a single managing member. This management structure may be desirable where one member is experienced in real estate management and the remaining members are passive investors and either are not interested in participating in the management of the real estate or lack the requisite experience and knowledge to do so. The scope of the managing member's authority may be broad or limited depending on the desires of the members when entering into the agreement and depending on the respective ownership percentages and relative bargaining powers of the members. The authority granted the managing member under this agreement is broad and best suited for an arrangement involving a trusted individual requiring minimal oversight by the other members.

The agreement contains capital call provisions for the purpose of raising capital in the event revenues generated by the real estate are insufficient to cover expenses. The agreement also imposes a mandatory distribution of cash flow in excess of an agreed amount.

OPERATING AGREEMENT

OF

AN OHIO LIMITED LIABILITY COMPANY

THIS OPERATING AGREEMENT ("Agreement") is entered into this _____ day of _____, _____ by and among _____ or his nominee(s), _____ or his nominee(s), _____ or her nominee(s), and _____ (individually, a "Member" and collectively, the "Members").

WHEREAS, the Members desire to, and hereby do, form an Ohio limited liability company known as "REALCO, LLC (the "Company"), upon the terms and conditions set forth in this Agreement;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual covenants set forth herein, the parties hereby agree as follows:

1. Formation and Name of Limited Liability Company. The Members hereby agree to form the Company pursuant to the provisions of Sections 1705.01 to 1705.58, both inclusive, of the Ohio Revised Code, as it may be amended (the "LLC Act") under the name REALCO, LLC. All rights, liabilities and obligations of the Members, both as between themselves and as to persons not parties to this Agreement, shall be as provided in the LLC Act, except as otherwise provided herein.

2. Principal Place of Business. The principal place of business of the Company shall be _____, or at such other place as may be determined from time to time by the Members.

3. Purposes of the Company. The purposes of the Company shall be to jointly own and operate the real property located at _____ (the "Property") and to engage in all other lawful acts for which limited liability companies may be formed under Section 1705.04 of the Ohio Revised Code.

4. Duration of the Company. The Company shall commence on the date on which its Articles of Organization are filed with the Ohio Secretary of State's office, and shall continue until terminated or dissolved in accordance with the terms of this Agreement.

5. Members. The names and addresses of the Members are as follows:

6. A. Capitalization. Each Member's interest in the capital of the Company shall be represented by membership units ("Units"). Each Unit shall represent an interest in the capital of the Company and shall be identical in all respects with every other Unit. The Units shall be issued in proportion to the money contributed to the Company, as hereafter described. The Company shall issue a total of one thousand (1,000) Units, hereinafter referred to singularly as a "Unit" and collectively as "Units," which shall initially be valued at _____ Dollars ($_____) per Unit. Each of the Members shall, upon the execution hereof, contribute to the capital of the Company, cash in the amount set opposite the Member's name, as set forth on Exhibit A, attached hereto and made a part hereof, in exchange for the Units set forth on Exhibit A opposite the Member's name. A Member shall not have the right to demand or receive the return of the Member's capital contribution except as otherwise expressly provided herein.

B. Capital Accounts. An individual capital account shall be established and maintained for each Member and shall be credited with the amount of each Member's capital contribution to the Company. Each Member's capital account shall be determined and maintained throughout the term of the Company in accordance with the requirements of Section 704(b) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (the "Code") or its counterpart in any subsequently enacted Internal Revenue Code, the applicable Treasury Regulations (the "Regulations") thereunder and the provisions of Exhibit B, attached hereto and made a part hereof.

C. Capital Calls. The Members recognize that the income produced by the Company may be insufficient to pay the cost of operating the Company. The term "cost of operating the Company" shall include, without limiting the generality of said term, all real estate taxes and assessments and other state and governmental charges, insurance premiums, costs of repair and maintenance, cost of improvements to the Property, and the principal and interest payments required to be made on any loans or mortgages of the Company. If, in the opinion of the Managing Member hereafter designated, additional funds are required to pay the cost of operating the Company, such additional funds shall be contributed by the Members in proportion to their Units owned by them in the Company.

D. Disproportionate Contributions. If any Member is unable or unwilling to make any or all of such Member's proportionate contribution within thirty (30) days after demand, then the remaining Members in the Company who are able and willing to do so may make a contribution in excess of their proportionate share, in such amounts as they may agree among themselves, and if they cannot agree then each such Member who is able and willing to make a contribution shall have the primary right to contribute that portion of such excess amount computed by the proportion which such contributor's Units in the Company bears to the aggregate Units of all such contributors, and shall have the secondary right to contribute any remaining portion of such excess which is not desired to be contributed by any other Member in the exercise of such Member's primary right. If there is more than one Member desiring to exercise secondary rights, they shall be entitled to contribute the said remaining portion of such excess in equal parts.

E. Treatment of Contributions by Non-Defaulting Members. Any Member who makes a contribution to the Company pursuant to Paragraph 6.D. above shall have the option to (1) treat the contribution as additional capital of the Company, or (2) treat the contribution as a loan to the Company, provided all of the Members agree to treat their contributions made for themselves (and for other Members) as a loan to the Company, or (3) treat the contribution as a loan to the defaulting Member, which election shall be made in writing by notice to all other Members at the time the contribution is made, as follows:

(1) If the contributing Member or Members elect to treat their contribution as additional capital, the funds shall be allocated to such Member's capital account and shall be considered as contributed in exchange for additional Units issued by the Company at the same price per Unit as referred to in Paragraph 6.A. above and set forth on Exhibit A attached hereto. Fractional Units may be issued. After such contributions are made, each Member's percentage interest in the net profits, net losses and cash flow of the Company shall be adjusted and determined by dividing the total Units issued by the Company since the inception of the Company, by the total Units then held by each Member. The resulting quotient, with respect to each Member, shall be the adjusted percentage interest of such Member in the net profits, net losses and cash flow of the Company. Such percentage interest of each Member shall supersede the percentage interest of such Member as set forth in Paragraph 6.A. above. However, it is understood that under this option, in the event a Member makes his proportionate contributions, his or her interest in the Company cannot be reduced.

(2) If the contributing Member or Members elect to treat their contributions as a loan to the Company, and provided all of the other Members making contributions on behalf of themselves agree to treat their contributions as a loan to the Company, then no adjustments shall be made to the number of Units held by the Members, and the share of the cash flow and net profits and net losses of the Members shall remain the same. The amount of the loan shall be a debt of the Company and shall bear interest at the prime or base lending rate of _____ Bank (or its successor) then in effect. All distributions to the Members made with respect to their capital interests, due to the defaulting Member or Members shall be paid pro rata to the contributing Members who treated their contributions to the Company made on behalf of the defaulting Member or Members as loans, until such time as the principal and interest of the loan(s) are paid in full.

(3) If the contributing Member or Members elect to treat their contributions as a loan to the defaulting Member or Members, then no adjustment shall be made to the number of Units held by the contributing Member or Members because of such loan and such Member's share in the net profits and net losses and cash flow of the Company shall remain the same. The number of Units held by the defaulting Member or Members shall be increased in the same amount as would occur if the defaulting Member had made the additional capital contribution in the amount of the loan. In addition, the share in the net profits, net losses and cash flow of the Company of the Member or Members in default shall be adjusted as if the defaulting Member or Members had made a contribution to the capital of the Company in the amount of the loan. The amount advanced by the contributing Members on behalf of a defaulting Member or Members shall be a debt of the defaulting Member or Members to the contributing Members and shall bear interest at the prime rate or base lending rate of _____ Bank (or its successors) then in effect. The terms of repayment of the loan (principal and interest) shall be as agreed upon by the contributing Member or Members. Thereafter, all distributions of cash from cash flow or other distributions due to a defaulting Member with respect to such Member's capital interests, shall be paid to the Member or pro rata to the Members who have elected to treat their contributions as a loan to the defaulting Member(s) in payment of principal and interest, until such time as the principal and interest of the loan(s) are paid in full.

7. Division of Profits, Losses, and Cash Flow.

A. Profits and Losses. The Company's "net profits" and "net losses," computed in accordance with Exhibit C, attached hereto and made a part hereof, shall be allocated between, or borne by, the Members in proportion to the amount of the respective Units held by them in the Company.

B. Cash Flow. The cash flow of the Company for each fiscal year shall be the net profits and net losses of the Company, computed as provided in Exhibit C, plus depreciation and other noncash charges deducted in determining such profits and losses and the net proceeds resulting from any refinancing of Company property or the sale of any Company property received during such year, minus principal payments on all mortgages and any other cash expenditures which have not been deducted in determining the net profits and net losses of the Company, and minus any amount reasonably determined by the Managing Member to be required to maintain sufficient working capital and/or a reserve for repairs and/or replacements. The cash flow of the Company shall be determined separately for each fiscal year and not cumulatively.

C. Distribution or Retention of Cash Flow. Cash flow, as so determined, shall be distributed to the Members in proportion to the respective Units held by them in the Company, at such time or times as may be determined by the Managing Member, but not less often than annually. Unless otherwise determined by the Managing Member and agreed by the Members owning a majority of the Units then outstanding, all cash flow in excess of _____ Dollars ($_____) shall be distributed to the Members during each fiscal year.

8. Control and Operation of the Company.

A. Managing Member. The management and control of the day-to-day operations of the Company shall be handled by _____ hereinafter called the "Managing Member." The Managing Member shall not be compensated for managing the Company's business, but shall be reimbursed by the Company for all reasonable out-of-pocket expenses incurred by him in his performance of acts on behalf of the Company.

The Managing Member shall be responsible for the day-to-day operation of the Company's business and the management of the Property and shall keep all Members informed of material information that shall come to the Managing Member's attention concerning the business of the Company. In addition to all other rights and powers, the Managing Member shall have the specific rights and powers required or appropriate for the supervision of the day-to-day business of the Company and management and operation of the Property. Such rights and powers shall include, but not be limited to, the right and power to:

- (ii) open, maintain and close bank accounts and to draw checks and other orders for the payment of money;
- (iii) take such actions and incur such expenses on behalf of the Company as may be necessary or advisable in connection with the conduct of the affairs of the Company; and
- (iv) enter into, make and perform such contracts, agreements and other undertaking as may be necessary or advisable for the conduct of the affairs of the Company.

B. Books and Records. The Managing Member shall maintain or cause to be maintained complete and accurate records of the assets owned or leased by the Company and complete and accurate books of account (containing such information as shall be necessary to record allocations and distributions), and make such records and books of account available for inspection by any Member, or such Member's duly authorized representative, during regular business hours and at the principal office of the Company. Within sixty (60) days after the end of each calendar year, there shall be prepared and distributed to all Members reasonable tax-reporting information, in sufficient detail to enable each Member to prepare such Member's federal, state and local income tax returns. In addition, within ninety (90) days after the end of each calendar year, the Managing Member shall cause to be prepared and distributed to each Member, a balance sheet, and a report of the receipts, disbursements, net profits and losses, and cash flow of the Company, and the share of the net profits and losses and cash flow of each Member for such calendar year. Such balance sheet and report shall be prepared by a certified public accountant in accordance with the method of accounting used by the Company for tax purposes.

C. Taxable Year. The taxable year of the Company shall be a calendar year, and the first taxable year shall end on December 31st of the year in which the Company is formed.

D. Conflicts. Nothing herein shall be construed to prevent a Member, or any entity in which a Member has an interest, from engaging, or owning an interest, in any other business venture of any nature, including a venture which is competitive with the Company's business. The Company may engage a Member for specific purposes and may otherwise deal with such individual on terms and for compensation to be agreed upon by the Company and such individual or entity.

E. Liability of Members. The Managing Member and the other Members shall not have any liability to the Company or to any other Member for any mistakes or errors in judgment, or for any act or omission believed in good faith to be within the scope of authority conferred by this Agreement. The Managing Member and the other Members shall be liable only for acts and/or omissions involving intentional wrongdoing. Actions or omissions taken in reliance upon the advice of legal counsel that are within the scope of the Member's authority hereunder shall be conclusive evidence of good faith; provided, however, the Members shall not be required to procure such advice to be entitled to the benefit of this Paragraph 8.E.

The Company shall indemnify and hold each of the Managing Member and the other Members harmless from any threatened, pending, or completed action, suit or proceeding to which the Member was or is a party or is threatened to be made a party by reason of the fact that such Member is or was a Member of the Company (other than an action by or in the right of the Company), involving an alleged cause of action for damages arising from the performance of activities on behalf of the Company, including activities relating to the management and disposition of the assets of the Company. The Company shall indemnify each Member against all expenses, including reasonable attorneys' fees, judgments and amounts paid in settlement, actually and reasonably incurred by each Member in connection with such action, suit or proceeding if the Member acted in good faith and in a manner such Member reasonably believed to be in, or not opposed to, the best interests of the Company, provided that the Member's conduct does not constitute willful misconduct or gross negligence, breach of this Agreement or breach of any fiduciary duty.

F. Voting. Each Member shall have one (1) vote for each Unit in the Company held by him or her at the time such vote is to occur. Each Member may exercise such Member's vote by written or oral notification to the Managing Member.

G. Consent to Operations. Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions of this Paragraph 8., the following actions shall require the vote and approval, by written notification to the Managing Member, of Members of the Company holding not less than eighty percent (80%) of the total outstanding Units in the Company:

(i) any single purchase or sale in excess of _____ Thousand Dollars ($ _____) and any series of related purchases and sales that together exceed _____ Thousand Dollars ($ _____);

(ii) the admission of new Members to the Company, whether by the sale of existing Units or other interests or the issuance of one or more Units or interests to any party making a contribution to the Company;

(iii) the transfer or issuance of one or more Units or interests in the Company to any existing Member, except as described in Paragraphs 6.D. and 6.E. above;

(iv) the amendment of this Agreement, other than to correct non-substantive technical errors or to comply with the Ohio Revised Code; and

(v) all other actions to be taken by the Members, except for the day-to-day operations delegated to the Managing Member under Paragraph 8.A. above, unless specifically stated otherwise in this Agreement.

H. Holding of Property and Reliance by Third Parties. Property owned by the Company shall be held in the name of the Company. Third parties dealing with the Company shall be entitled to rely conclusively upon the power and authority of the Managing Member. Any corporation, trust, partnership or other business entity called upon to transfer any property to or from the name or account of the Company shall be entitled to rely on instructions or assignments signed or purporting to be signed by the Managing Member without inquiry as to the authority of the persons signing or purporting to sign such instructions or assignments, and without inquiry as to the validity of any transfer to or from the name of the Company. At the time of transfer, the corporation, trust, partnership or other business entity shall be entitled to assume that (i) the Company continues in existence under the laws of the State of Ohio, and (ii) this Agreement continues in full force and effect without amendment; provided, however, that such corporation, trust, partnership or other business entity has received no actual notice to the contrary.

I. Banking. All funds of the Company shall be deposited and kept in the Company's name in such company bank account or accounts as shall be designated by the Managing Member. All withdrawals therefrom shall be made upon checks signed by the Managing Member or those authorized by the Managing Member.

J. Removal of Managing Member. The Managing Member shall be removed as Managing Member upon the occurrence of any of the following:

(i) the affirmative vote of the Members holding at least eighty percent (80%) of the total outstanding Units;

(ii) an act or omission that constitutes cause for removal, and for purposes hereof, the word "cause" shall specifically mean acts of disloyalty to the Company; falsification of the Company's books or records; embezzlement or other acts of dishonesty with respect to the Company's funds or assets; and any act which results in conviction of a felony.

Upon the removal of the Managing Member, a new Managing Member shall be appointed by the affirmative vote of the Members holding at least eighty percent (80%) of the total outstanding Units. In the event a new Managing Member is not appointed within sixty (60) days after the removal of the existing Managing Member, the Company shall be dissolved pursuant to Paragraph 15. below.

9. Assignment, Transfer or Sale of Units.

A. General. The Units of a Member may be assigned, transferred or sold only upon the prior written consent of all other Members, or as otherwise permitted in this Paragraph 9. With respect to any such permitted assignment, transfer or sale, the assignee, transferee or purchaser of such Units may, upon compliance with the conditions set forth in Paragraph 13. below, become a substituted Member.

B. Permitted Transfers During Life of a Member. During the life of a Member, such Member may transfer part or all of such Member's Units in the Company by gift, either in trust or outright, to or for the benefit of such Member's spouse, parent, or sibling and/or any of such Member's descendants, including step-children and any descendant whose relationship to the Member is created by birth or adoption. Thereafter, the transferee shall hold such interest with all of the economic rights previously held by the transferor, but shall not become a Member except in accordance with the terms of Paragraph 13. below.

C. No Pledges. No Member shall pledge, cause a lien to be placed against, or encumber such Member's Units, or transfer, sell, alienate, assign, or otherwise dispose of all or any part of such Member's Units, whether voluntarily, involuntarily, by operation of law, at judicial sale, or otherwise, without the prior written consent of the other Members.

D. Securities Laws. Notwithstanding the preceding provisions of this Paragraph 9., no proposed or intended assignment, transfer or sale of any Unit shall be effective unless and until it appears, to the satisfaction of the other Members, that such assignment, transfer or sale will not be in violation of, or otherwise render the Company and/or the other Members liable under, the Securities Act of 1933, as amended, and the rules and regulations promulgated thereunder, or under the applicable state securities laws of any state or states.

E. Tax Restriction. Notwithstanding the preceding provisions of this Paragraph 9., no sale or exchange of Units may be made if the Units sought to be sold or exchanged, when added to the total of all Units sold or exchanged within the period of twelve (12) months prior thereto, would result in the termination of the Company under Section 708 of the Code, or any successor section thereto.

F. Rights of Assignee. Subsequent to the permitted assignment, transfer or sale of Units, the Company shall remit directly to the assignee, transferee or purchaser all distributions to which such person may be entitled pursuant to the provisions of this Agreement. An assignee, transferor or purchaser who does not become a substituted Member pursuant to the provisions of Paragraph 13. below shall be entitled to receive only the distributions to which the assignor, transferor or seller would otherwise have been entitled with respect to the Units assigned, transferred or sold, but such assignee, transferee or purchaser shall have no right to vote, to approve amendments hereof, to obtain information concerning Company transactions, to inspect the Company books, or to exercise any other rights of a member conferred hereunder or under applicable law.

A Member who has assigned, transferred or sold all of such Member's Units as permitted above, whether or not the assignee, transferee or purchaser has become a substituted Member, shall have no further right or interest in the Company.

11. Withdrawal of a Member. A Member may not voluntarily withdraw or resign from the Company without the prior written consent of all the other Members.

12. Death, Bankruptcy or Incompetency of a Member.

A. In the event of the death, adjudication of bankruptcy, whether voluntary or involuntary, or adjudication of incompetency of a Member who is an individual, or the bankruptcy or dissolution of a Member that is a corporation, partnership, limited liability company, or trust, during the term of this Agreement, the Company shall be dissolved and its business shall terminate unless a majority of the other Members elect in writing to continue the Company and its business. If the other Members so elect, the executor, administrator, trustee or other legal representative of the deceased, bankrupt, incompetent or dissolved Member shall succeed to the rights of such Member, subject to the provisions of this Agreement. If the Units of a deceased Member shall pass by bequest or distribution, the transferee of the deceased Member's Units may be admitted to the Company as a substituted Member to the extent of the Units which shall have passed to the transferee, subject to and in compliance with the provisions of Paragraph 13. below. Similarly, a trustee or other legal representative of a bankrupt or incompetent Member may be admitted to the Company as a substituted Member to the extent of the Units of such bankrupt or incompetent Member, subject to and in compliance with the provisions of Paragraph 13. below.

B. If the transferee of a deceased, bankrupt, incompetent or dissolved Member's Units is not admitted as a substituted Member, such transferee shall have only such rights as an assignee of such Units would have if such assignee had not been admitted as a substitute Member.

C. If the other Members deem it to be in the best interest of the Company, they may treat, in their discretion, for any of the purposes of this Agreement, any transferee of a deceased, bankrupt, incompetent or dissolved Member who has not become a substituted Member, as a Member in the place and stead of said deceased, bankrupt, incompetent or dissolved Member.

13. Substitution of a Member. The transferee of a deceased, bankrupt, incompetent or dissolved Member's Units shall become a substituted Member only upon: (a) the written consent of all the other Members; (b) the transferee's execution and acknowledgment of such instruments in form and substance reasonably satisfactory to the other Members, as other Members may deem necessary or desirable to effect such admission and to confirm the agreement of the transferee to be bound by all the covenants, terms and conditions of this Agreement, as the same may have been amended; and (c) the transferee's payment of any expenses arising in connection with the substituted Member's admission to the Company.

14. Termination of the Company. The Company shall be terminated and dissolved upon the first to occur of the following:

(a) upon the death, bankruptcy, incompetency or dissolution of a Member, unless the Company's business is continued by the other Member or Members, as provided in Paragraph 12. above;

(b) upon the sale of all or substantially all the assets of the Company;

(c) upon the written consent of all of the Members; or

(d) upon the removal of the Managing Member under Paragraph 8.J. above, unless the Members timely appoint a new Managing Member in accordance with Paragraph 8.J.

15. Dissolution and Liquidation of the Company.

A. Upon the termination of the Company pursuant to Paragraph 14. above, a full and general accounting shall be taken of the Company's business, and the affairs of the Company shall be wound up. Any profits earned or losses incurred since the last previous accounting shall be allocated between, or borne by, the Members in accordance with the provisions of Paragraph 7.A. above. The Members shall wind up and liquidate the Company by selling the Company's assets, or by distributing such assets in kind, subject to the Company's liabilities, or by a combination thereof, as determined by the Members. The proceeds of such liquidation shall be applied and distributed in the following order of priority, by the end of the taxable year during which the liquidation occurs (or, if later, within ninety (90) days after the date of the liquidation):

(i) to the payment of any debts and liabilities of the Company;

(ii) to the setting up of any reserve which the Members shall reasonably deem necessary to provide for any contingent or unforeseen liabilities or obligations of the Company, with any excess in such reserve remaining after such liabilities are satisfied to be distributed as soon as practicable in the manner hereinafter set forth; and

(iii) thereafter, the balance of the proceeds, if any, shall be distributed in accordance with the positive capital account balances of the Members, as determined after taking into account all capital account adjustments for the Company taxable year during which such liquidation occurs. For purposes of this subparagraph, a liquidation of the Company shall mean a liquidation as defined in Section 1.704-1(b)(2)(ii)(g) of the Regulations.

B. The Members shall be furnished with a statement prepared by the Company's accountants, which shall set forth the assets and liabilities of the Company as of the date of complete liquidation.

C. Notwithstanding anything in this Agreement to the contrary, the Members, or either one of them, shall not be personally liable for the return of the capital contributions of the other Member, or any portion thereof, it being expressly understood that any such return of the capital contributions of the Members shall be made solely from Company assets.

16. Waiver of Partition. Each of the Members hereby waives any right that such Member may have to cause the Company's property to be partitioned or divided among the Members, or to file a complaint or institute any proceeding at law or in equity to cause the property of the Company to be partitioned, sold, or otherwise divided among the Members.

17. Amendments. This Agreement may be amended only with the written approval of Members owning all of the Units in the Company, unless such amendment is merely to correct non-substantive technical errors or to comply with the Ohio Revised Code.

18. Notices. All notices, consents or other instruments hereunder shall be in writing and mailed by United States mail, postage prepaid, and shall be directed to the parties hereto at the last addresses of the parties furnished by them in writing to the Company, and to the Company at its principal office. The Company and/or any Member shall have the right to designate a new address for receipt of notices by notice addressed to the Members and the Company and mailed as aforesaid. Such notices shall be made a permanent part of the Company records.

19. Obligations and Rights of Transferees. Any person who acquires in any manner whatsoever any Units in the Company, irrespective of whether such person has accepted and assumed in writing the terms and provisions of this Agreement, shall be deemed by the acceptance of the benefit of the acquisition thereof to have agreed to be subject to, and to be bound by, all the obligations of this Agreement with the same force and effect as any predecessor in interest of such person.

20. Benefit and Binding Effect. This Agreement shall inure to the benefit of, and be binding upon, the parties hereto and their respective next of kin, legatees, administrators, executors, legal representatives, nominees, successors and permitted assigns.

21. Integration. This Agreement constitutes the entire agreement among the parties hereto pertaining to the subject matter hereof, and supersedes all prior and contemporaneous agreements and understandings of the parties in connection therewith.

22. Governing Law. This Agreement and the rights of all parties hereunder shall be governed by, and construed in accordance with, the laws of the State of Ohio.

23. Power of Attorney. Each Member hereby irrevocably designates the Managing Member, including the Manager's successors-in-interest, as such Member's true and lawful attorney in such Member's name, place and stead to execute and acknowledge (i) any certificate or other instruction required to be filed by the Company; (ii) any and all documents appropriate or necessary in connection with the continuation, termination or dissolution of the Company; (iii) articles of organization or any amendments thereto which are consistent with the provisions of this Agreement; (iv) all documents which the attorney-in-fact deems appropriate to reflect any amendment of this Agreement. The creation of the foregoing power of attorney is coupled with an interest and is irrevocable, and shall survive the disability of a Member. It also shall survive the transfer of a Unit by a Member, except that if the transferee is approved for admission as a Member, this power of attorney shall survive the delivery of the assignment for the sole purpose of enabling the attorney-in-fact to execute, acknowledge and file any documents needed to effectuate the substitution. Each Member shall be bound by any representations made by the attorney-in-fact in good faith pursuant to this power of attorney, and each Member hereby waives any and all defenses which may be available to contest, negate, or disaffirm the action of the attorney-in-fact taken in good faith under this power of attorney.

24. Execution. This Agreement may be executed in several counterparts, each of which shall be considered an original when executed by one or more of the Members.

Each party has executed this Agreement or a counterpart hereof as of the day first written above.

EXHIBIT BCapital Account Accounting Principles

Section 1. Income/Loss. For purposes of computing the amount of any item of income, gain, deduction or loss to be reflected in the members' capital accounts, the determination, recognition and classification of any such item shall be the same as its determination, recognition and classification for federal income tax purposes; provided, however, that:

(a) any deductions for depreciation, cost recovery or amortization (other than depletion under Section 611 of the Code) attributable to a Contributed Property (as defined below) shall be determined as if the adjusted basis of such property on the date it was acquired by the company was equal to the Agreed Value (as defined below) of such property. Upon an adjustment to the Carrying Value (as defined below) of any company property subject to depletion under Section 611 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the "Code"), any further deductions for such depreciation, cost recovery or amortization attributable to such property shall be determined as if the adjusted basis of such property were equal to the Carrying Value of such property immediately following such adjustment;

(b) any income, gain or loss attributable to the taxable disposition of any property (including any property subject to depletion under Section 611 of the Code) shall be determined by the company as if the adjusted basis of such property as of such date of disposition were equal in amount to the company's Carrying Value with respect to such property as of such date; and

(c) the computation of all items of income, gain, loss and deduction shall be made by the company and, as to those items described in Section 705(a)(1)(B) or Section 705(a)(2)(B) of the Code, without regard to the fact that such items are not includable in gross income or are neither currently deductible nor capitalizable for federal income tax purposes.

Section 2. Transfers. A transferee of a membership unit in the company will succeed to the capital account relating to the membership unit transferred; provided, however, that if the transfer causes a termination of the company under Section 708(b)(1)(B) of the Code, the company's properties shall be deemed to have been distributed in liquidation of the company to the members (including the transferee of the membership unit) and recontributed by such members and transferees in reconstitution of the company. The capital accounts of such reconstituted partnership shall be maintained in accordance with the principles set forth herein.

Section 3. Unrealized Gain/Loss. Upon an issuance of additional membership units in the company for cash or Contributed Property, the capital accounts of all members (and the Carrying Values of all company properties) shall, immediately prior to such issuance, be adjusted (consistent with the provisions hereof) upward or downward to reflect any unrealized gain or unrealized loss attributable to each company property (as if such unrealized gain or unrealized loss had been recognized upon an actual sale of such property at the fair market value thereof, immediately prior to such issuance, and had been allocated to the members, at such time). In determining such unrealized gain or unrealized loss attributable to the properties, the fair market value of company properties shall be determined by the Board of Directors using such reasonable methods of valuation as they may adopt.

Section 4. Liquidating Adjustments. Immediately prior to the distribution of any company property in liquidation of the company, the capital accounts of all members (and the Carrying Values of all company properties) shall, immediately prior to any such distribution, be adjusted (consistent with the provisions hereof and of Section 704 of the Code) upward or downward to reflect any unrealized gain or unrealized loss attributable to each company property (as if such unrealized gain or unrealized loss had been recognized upon an actual sale of each such property, immediately prior to such distribution, and had been allocated to the members, at such time). In determining such unrealized gain or unrealized loss attributable to the properties, the fair market value of company properties shall be determined by the Board of Directors using such reasonable methods of valuation as they may adopt.

Section 5. Definitions. For the purposes of this Article VII, the following terms shall have the meanings indicated unless the context clearly indicates otherwise:

"Agreed Value" means the fair market value of a Contributed Property as agreed to by the contributing member and the company, using such reasonable method of valuation as they may adopt.

"Carrying Value" means: (a) with respect to Contributed Property, the Agreed Value of such property, reduced (but not below zero) by all amortization, depreciation and cost recovery deductions charged to the members' capital accounts with respect to such property, as well as any other charges for sales, retirements and other dispositions of assets included in a Contributed Property, as of the time of determination; and (b) with respect to any other property, the adjusted basis of such property for federal income tax purposes as of the time of determination. The Carrying Value of any property shall be adjusted in accordance with the principles set forth herein.

"Contributed Property" means each member's interest in property or other consideration (excluding services and cash) contributed to the company by such member.

EXHIBIT C

Allocations of Profits and Losses

Section 1. Determination of Net Profits/Losses. The terms "net profits" and "net losses," as used herein, shall mean the net amount of the company's profits and losses, as determined for federal income tax purposes, and shall also include each member's share of income described in Section 705(a)(1)(B) of the Code, any expenditures described in Section 705(a)(2)(B) of the Code, any expenditures described in Section 709(a) of the Code which are not deducted or amortized in accordance with Section 709(b) of the Code and losses not deductible pursuant to Section 267(a) or 707(b) of the Code.

Section 2. Allocation of Gain on Contributed Property. Notwithstanding any provision of the Operating Agreement to the contrary, to the extent required by law, income, gain, loss and deduction attributable to property contributed to the company by a member shall be allocated among the members so as to take into account any variation between the tax basis of the property and the fair market value thereof at the time of contribution, in accordance with the requirements of Section 704(c) of the Code.

Section 3. Ratable Allocation. Company income, gain, loss and deduction shall be allocated to the members in accordance with the portion of the year during which the members have held their respective membership Units. All items of income and loss shall be considered to have been earned ratably over the fiscal year of the company, except that gains and losses arising from the disposition of assets shall be taken into account as of the date thereof.

Section 4. Minimum Percentage. Notwithstanding any provision of the Operating Agreement to the contrary, at all times during the existence of the company, the interest of each member in each material item of company income, gain, loss, deduction or credit will be equal to at least one percent (1%) of each such item.

Section 5. Special Rules. Notwithstanding any provision of the Operating Agreement to the contrary:

- (a) in the event the company is entitled to a deduction for imputed interest under any provision of the Code on any loan or advance from a member, such deduction shall be allocated solely to such member;
- (b) losses allocated pursuant to the Operating Agreement shall not exceed the maximum amount of losses that can be so allocated without causing the member receiving such allocation to have an Adjusted Deficit Capital Account Balance (as defined below) at the end of any fiscal year of the company;
- (c) if there is a net decrease in company Minimum Gain during any company fiscal year, members who would otherwise have an Adjusted Deficit Capital Account Balance at the end of such year shall be specially allocated items of company income and gain for such year (and, if necessary, subsequent years) in an amount and manner sufficient to eliminate such Adjusted Deficit Capital Account Balance as quickly as possible. The items to be so allocated shall be determined in accordance with Section 1.704-2 of the Regulations. This subsection is intended to comply with the minimum gain chargeback requirement in such section of the Regulations and shall be interpreted consistently therewith. Company "Minimum Gain" shall be computed in the manner described in Section 1.704-2(d)(1) of the Regulations. "Adjusted Deficit Capital Account Balance" shall mean the deficit capital account balance of a member, if any, as of the end of the relevant fiscal year of the company, after giving effect to the following: (A) credit to such capital account any amounts the member is obligated to restore pursuant to the penultimate sentence of Section 1.704-2 of the Regulations; and (B) debit to such capital account the items described in Sections 1.704-1(b)(2)(ii)(d)(4), (5) and (6) of the Regulations;
- (d) to the extent the payment of any expenditure by the company is treated as a distribution to a member for federal income tax purposes, there will be a gross income allocation to such member in the amount of such distribution;
- (e) if items of income or gain to be allocated include income or gain treated as ordinary income for federal income tax purposes because it is attributable to the recapture of depreciation under Section 1245 or 1250 of the Code, such income or gain, to the extent treated as ordinary income, shall be allocated to and reported by the members in proportion to their then respective cumulative allocations of depreciation; and
- (f) except as provided in subsection (c) above, in the event any member unexpectedly receives any adjustments, allocations, or distributions described in Sections 1.704-1(b)(2)(ii)(d)(4), (5) or (6) of the Regulations, items of company income and gain shall be specially allocated to such member in an amount and manner sufficient to eliminate the Adjusted Deficit Capital Account Balance in the member's capital account created by such adjustments, allocations, or distributions as quickly as possible. Any special allocations of items of income or gain pursuant to this subsection shall be taken into account in computing subsequent allocations of other net profits, net losses and items thereof pursuant to the foregoing Operating Agreement (including the exhibits attached thereto), so that the net amount of any items so specially allocated pursuant to this subsection and the other net profits, net losses and all other items allocated to the member pursuant to the Operating Agreement, to the extent possible, be equal to the net amount that would have been allocated to the member had such unexpected adjustments, allocations or distributions not occurred.

Section 6. Special Allocations. Except as provided in Section 5(c) above, in the event a member has an Adjusted Deficit Capital Account Balance at the end of any company fiscal year which is in excess of the sum of (i) the amount the member is obligated to restore pursuant to any provision of this Agreement, and (ii) the amount the member is deemed to be obligated to restore pursuant to the penultimate sentence of Section 1.704-2 of the Regulations, such member shall be specially allocated items of company income and gain in the amount of such excess as quickly as possible.

The cash flow of the Company shall be determined separately for each fiscal year and not cumulatively.

12. Distribution or Retention of Cash Flow. Cash flow, as determined in accordance with Paragraph 11, shall be distributed to the Members in accordance with the following provisions. All distributions of cash flow shall be made in proportion to the number of Membership Units held by each Member.

(a) The Company shall make mandatory pro-rata distributions to the Members for the payment of taxes in accordance with the following:

(1) The amount distributable with respect to any year shall be equal to the aggregate amount of federal, state and local income taxes payable by the Members with respect to the taxable income of the Company, assuming, for purposes of determining the amount of such distribution, that each Member will be taxed on the net amount set forth in the Member's respective Treasury Form K-1 at the highest marginal individual federal income tax rate for such year, and at the highest marginal individual state and local income tax rates applicable to any Member for each such taxable year; and

(2) such distributions shall be payable at such time or times and in such amounts as will enable the Members to avoid penalties and interest that would be imposed for a failure to pay a sufficient amount of estimated taxes.

(b) The balance of the cash flow remaining, if any, following the tax distributions described above, shall be distributed pro-rata to the Members at such times and in such amounts as the Board of Directors in its reasonable discretion shall determine.

13. Books and Records. The Board of Directors shall maintain or cause to be maintained complete and accurate records of all properties owned or leased by the Company and complete and accurate books of account (containing such information as shall be necessary to record allocations and distributions), and make such records and books of account available for inspection by any Member or his or her duly authorized representative during regular business hours and at the principal office of the Company. Within sixty (60) days after the end of each calendar year, there shall be prepared and distributed to all Members reasonable tax-reporting information, in sufficient detail to enable such Member to prepare his or her federal, state and local income tax returns. In addition, within ninety (90) days after the end of each calendar year, there shall be prepared and distributed to each Member a balance sheet and a report of the receipts, disbursements, net profits and losses, and cash flow of the Company, and the share of the net profits and losses and cash flow of each Member for such calendar year. Such balance sheet and report shall be prepared by a certified public accountant, in accordance with the method of accounting used by the Company for tax purposes.

14. Taxable Year; Accounting Method. The taxable year of the Company shall be a calendar year, and the first taxable year shall end on December 31st of the year in which the Company is formed. The books and records of the Company shall be maintained on the cash method of accounting.

No Member shall pledge, cause a lien to be placed against, or encumber his or her Membership Units, or transfer, sell, alienate, assign, or otherwise dispose of all or any part of his or her Membership Units, whether voluntarily, involuntarily, by operation of law, at judicial sale, or otherwise, except in accordance with the terms of this Agreement. (c) Securities Laws. Notwithstanding the preceding provisions of this Paragraph 15, no proposed or intended assignment, transfer or sale of Membership Units shall be effective, unless and until it appears, to the satisfaction of counsel for the Company, that such assignment, transfer or sale will not be in violation of, or otherwise render the Company and/or any Member liable under, the Securities Act of 1933, as amended, and the rules and regulations promulgated thereunder, or under the applicable state securities laws of any state or states.

(d) Terminating Transfers. Notwithstanding the preceding provisions of this Paragraph 15, no sale or exchange of Membership Units may be made if the Membership Units sought to be sold or exchanged, when added to the total of all Membership Units sold or exchanged within the period of twelve (12) months prior thereto, would result in the termination of the Company under Section 708 of the Code, or any successor section thereto.

(e) Improper Transfers. Any attempted transfer or encumbrance by a Member of the Membership Units owned (or hereafter acquired) by such Member, which is not in compliance with the terms of this Agreement, shall be void and shall not be reflected on the records of the Company.

(f) Right to Purchase upon Death or Disability. Upon a Member's death or permanent disability, the Company shall have the right to purchase all of such Member's Membership Units owned by him at the time of his death or permanent disability. The Company shall exercise their right to purchase by giving notice thereof to the Selling Member and/or his legal representative. The Company shall have sixty (60) days from the date of such Member's death or permanent disability to give notice of its intent to purchase. The notice shall specify the date of closing the purchase, which shall not be more than sixty (60) days after the date of giving notice.

(g) Purchase Price. The purchase price of the deceased or permanently disabled Member's Membership Units shall be the fair market value of said Membership Units as determined by two (2) appraisers with experience in appraising similar companies. The Company shall select one appraiser, and the selling Member or his legal representative shall select one appraiser. If the two appraisers fail to agree on the fair market value of the Membership Units of the selling Member within thirty (30) days after their selection, then they shall designate a third appraiser within fifteen (15) days thereafter. In the latter event, the third appraiser shall determine the fair market value within thirty (30) days of his selection and his determination shall be conclusive. Each party shall pay the fees for the appraisers selected by him, and one-half of the fees of the third appraiser if necessary.

16. Withdrawal. A Member shall not be permitted to withdraw or resign from the Company. The death, adjudication of bankruptcy, whether voluntary or involuntary, incompetency or dissolution of a Member during the term of this Agreement shall not affect the Company or its business. The executor, administrator, trustee or other legal representative of the deceased, bankrupt, incompetent or dissolved Member shall succeed to all of the rights of such Member, subject to the provisions of this Agreement.

17. Termination of the Company. The Company shall be terminated and dissolved upon the first to occur of the following:

Upon the termination of the Company pursuant to Paragraph 17, above, a full and general accounting shall be taken of the Company's business, and the affairs of the Company shall be wound up. Any profits earned or losses incurred since the last previous accounting shall be allocated between, or borne by, the Members in accordance with the provisions of Paragraph 10, above. The Board of Directors shall wind up and liquidate the Company by selling the Company's assets, or by distributing such assets in kind, subject to the Company's liabilities, or by a combination thereof, as determined by the Board of Directors. The proceeds of such liquidation shall be applied and distributed in the following order of priority, by the end of the taxable year during which the liquidation occurs (or, if later, within ninety (90) days after the date of the liquidation):

- (1) to the payment of any debts and liabilities of the Company;
 - (2) to the setting up of any reserve which the Board of Directors shall reasonably deem necessary to provide for any contingent or unforeseen liabilities or obligations of the Company, with any excess in such reserve remaining after such liabilities are satisfied to be distributed as soon as practicable in the manner hereinafter set forth; and
 - (3) thereafter, the balance of the proceeds, if any, shall be distributed in accordance with the positive capital account balances of the Members, as determined after taking into account all capital account adjustments for the Company's taxable year during which such liquidation occurs. For purposes of this subsection, a liquidation of the Company shall mean a liquidation as defined in Section 1.704-1(b)(2)(ii)(g) of the Regulations.
- (b) Statement. The Members shall be furnished with a statement prepared by the Company's accountants, which shall set forth the assets and liabilities of the Company as of the date of complete liquidation.
- (c) Return of Capital Contributions. Notwithstanding anything in this Agreement to the contrary, no Member or Director shall not be personally liable for the return of the capital contributions of the Members, or any portion thereof, it being expressly understood that any such return of the capital contributions of the Members shall be made solely from Company assets.

19. Dispute Resolution Remedies.

(a) In the event a dispute of any kind arises in connection with this Agreement, including any dispute concerning its construction, performance or breach, the Members will attempt to resolve the dispute as set forth in this Paragraph. The Members waive all rights to seek remedies in any court (except to enforce the provisions of this Agreement in circumstances in which subsection D applied) and the right to jury trial. All documents, discovery and other information related to any such dispute, and the attempts to resolve or arbitrate such dispute will be kept confidential to the fullest extent possible.

(b) If a dispute arises, the Member will give notice to the other Member. After notice has been given, the Members in good faith will attempt to negotiate a resolution to the dispute.

(c) If, within twenty (20) days after the notice provided in subsection B, a dispute is not resolved through negotiation or mediation, the dispute will be arbitrated. The Members agree to be bound by the selection of an arbitrator, and to settle the dispute exclusive by binding arbitration in accordance with the following provisions:

(1) The Members will collectively select one arbitrator. If they fail to do so within thirty (30) days after the notice provided in subsection B, the Members will request the American Arbitration Association to submit a panel of ten arbitrators who are qualified in such matters from which the choice will be made. The Members will flip a coin and the loser will strike first, followed by alternative striking until one name remains. The Members may by agreement reject one entire list and request a second list. If selection by the above method is not completed within sixty (60) days after the notice provided in subsection B, then an arbitrator will be selected by the American Arbitration Association. That arbitrator will then arbitrate the dispute in _____ [city], _____ [state], and issue an award.

(2) The arbitration will be conducted under the Commercial Arbitration Rules of the American Arbitration Association.

The arbitrator shall have no ability to add, change or delete provisions of this Agreement and shall be required to interpret the terms of this Agreement as they exist. The award of the arbitrator will be final, binding and non-appealable. Judgment on the award may be entered in any court, state or federal, having jurisdiction.

(3) The cost of any arbitration including fees and expenses of the arbitrator, will be shared by the Members of the dispute in equal proportions. Each member will bear his own costs, expenses and attorney's fees.

(d) The Members agree and acknowledge that money damages may not be an adequate remedy for any breach of the provisions of this Agreement and that either Member, in his sole discretion, may apply to the court for specific performance and/or injunctive relief in order to enforce or prevent any violations of the provisions of this Agreement.

20. Adoption of Bylaws. The Members hereby adopt and approve the Bylaws of the Company, a copy of such Bylaws being attached hereto as Exhibit A.

21. Tax Matters Member. The President shall serve as the Tax Matters Member of the Company, as provided in Regulations issued pursuant to Section 6231 of the Code. Each Member, by the execution of this Agreement, consents to such designation of the Tax Matters Member and agrees to execute, certify, acknowledge, deliver, swear to, file and record at the appropriate public offices such documents as may be necessary or appropriate to evidence such consent. The Company shall indemnify and reimburse the Tax Matters Member for all expenses, including legal and accounting fees, claims, liabilities, losses and damages incurred in connection with any administrative or judicial proceeding with respect to the tax liability of the Members. The payment of all such expenses shall be made before any distributions to Members are made by the Company. The Tax Matters Member shall consult with the other Member with respect to all decisions relating to tax matters prior to making a determination with respect thereto.

22. Amendments. This Agreement may be amended only with the written approval of all of the Members.

23. Notices. All notices, consents or other instruments hereunder shall be in writing and mailed by United States mail, postage prepaid, and shall be directed to the parties hereto at the last addresses of the parties furnished by them in writing to the Company, and to the Company at its principal office. The Company and/or any Member shall have the right to designate a new address for receipt of notices by notice addressed to the Members and the Company and mailed as aforesaid. Such notices shall be made a permanent part of the Company records.

24. Obligations and Rights of Transferees. Section 1. Directors and Members of Committees. Directors, as such, shall not receive any stated salary for their services, but, on resolution of the Board of Directors, a fixed sum for expenses of attendance, if any, may be allowed for attendance at each meeting, regular or special, provided that nothing herein contained shall be construed to preclude any manager from serving the company in any other capacity and receiving compensation therefor. Members of either executive or special committees may be allowed such compensation as the Board of Directors may determine for attending committee hearings.

Section 2. Officers and Employees. The compensation of officers and employees of the company, or the method of fixing such compensation, shall be determined by or pursuant to authority conferred by the Board of Directors or any committee of the Board of Directors. Such compensation may include pension, disability and death benefits, and may be by way of fixed salary, or on the basis of earnings of the company, or any combination thereof, or otherwise, as determined or authorized from time to time by the Board of Directors or any committee of the Board of Directors.

ARTICLE V INDEMNIFICATION

Section 1. Third Party Actions. The company shall indemnify any person who was or is a party or is threatened to be made a party to any threatened, pending or completed action, suit or proceeding, whether civil, criminal, administrative, or investigative, including all appeals (other than an action, suit or proceeding by or in the right of the company) by reason of the fact that he is or was a manager, officer or employee of the company, or is or was serving at the request of the company as a manager, trustee, officer or employee of another company, partnership, joint venture, trust or other enterprise, against expenses (including attorneys' fees), judgments, decrees, fines, penalties and amounts paid in settlement actually and reasonably incurred by him in connection with such action, suit or proceeding if he acted in good faith and in a manner which he reasonably believed to be in or not opposed to the best interests of the company and, with respect to any criminal action or proceeding, had no reasonable cause to believe his conduct was unlawful. The termination of any action, suit or proceeding by judgment, order, settlement, conviction, or upon a plea of nolo contendere or its equivalent, shall not, of itself, create a presumption that the person did not act in good faith and in a manner which he reasonably believed to be in or not opposed to the best interest of the company and, with respect to any criminal action or proceeding, had reasonable cause to believe that his conduct was unlawful.

Section 2. Derivative Actions. The company shall indemnify any person who was or is a party or is threatened to be made a party to any threatened, pending or completed action or suit, including all appeals, by or in the right of the company to procure a judgment in its favor by reason of the fact that he is or was a manager, officer or employee of the company, or is or was serving at the request of the company as a manager, trustee, officer or employee of another company, partnership, joint venture, trust or other enterprise, against expenses (including attorneys' fees) actually and reasonably incurred by him in connection with the defense or settlement of such action or suit if he acted in good faith and in a manner he reasonably believed to be in or not opposed to the best interests of the company, except that no indemnification shall be made in respect of any claim, issue or matter as to which such person shall have been finally adjudged to be liable for negligence or misconduct in the performance of his duty to the company unless and only to the extent that the Court of Common Pleas or the court in which such action or suit was brought shall determine upon application that, despite the adjudication of liability but in view of all the circumstances of the case, such person is fairly and reasonably entitled to indemnity for such expenses as the Court of Common Pleas or such other court shall deem proper.

Section 3. Rights After Successful Defense. To the extent that a manager, officer or employee has been successful on the merits or otherwise in defense of any action, suit or proceeding referred to in Section 1 or 2, or in defense of any claim, issue or matter therein, he shall be indemnified against expenses (including attorneys' fees) actually and reasonably incurred by him in connection therewith.

Section 4. Other Determination of Rights. Except in a situation governed by Section 3, any indemnification under Section 1 or 2 (unless ordered by a court) shall be made by the company only as authorized in the specific case upon a determination that indemnification of the manager, officer or employee is proper in the circumstances because he has met the applicable standard of conduct set forth in Section 1 or 2. Such determination shall be made (a) by a majority vote of directors acting at a meeting at which a quorum consisting of directors who were not parties to such action, suit or proceeding is present, or (b) if such a quorum is not obtainable (or even if obtainable), and a majority of disinterested directors so directs, by independent legal counsel (compensated by the company) in a written opinion, or (c) by the affirmative vote in person or by proxy of the holders of a majority of the capital interests of the company entitled to vote in the election of directors, without regard to voting power which may thereafter exist upon a default, failure or other contingency.

Section 5. Advances of Expenses. Expenses of each person indemnified hereunder incurred in defending a civil, criminal, administrative or investigative action, suit or proceeding (including all appeals), or threat thereof, may be paid by the company in advance of the final disposition of such action, suit or proceeding as authorized by the Board of Directors, whether a disinterested quorum exists or not, upon receipt of an undertaking by or on behalf of the manager, officer or employee, to repay such amount unless it shall ultimately be determined that he is entitled to be indemnified by the company.

Section 6. Nonexclusiveness; Heirs. The indemnification provided by this Article shall not be deemed exclusive of any other rights to which those seeking indemnification may be entitled as a matter of law or under the Articles of Organization, these Bylaws, any agreement, vote of members, any insurance purchased by the company, or otherwise, both as to action in his official capacity and as to action in another capacity while holding such office, and shall continue as to a person who has ceased to be manager, officer or employee and shall inure to the benefit of the heirs, executors and administrators of such a person.

Section 7. Purchase of Insurance. The company may purchase and maintain insurance on behalf of any person who is or was a manager, officer or employee of the company, or is or was serving at the request of the company as a manager, officer or employee of another company, partnership, joint venture, trust or other enterprise against any liability asserted against him and incurred by him in any such capacity, or arising out of his status as such, whether or not the company would have the power to indemnify him against such liability under the provisions of this Article or of the _____ [state] Limited Liability Company Act.

ARTICLE VI

CAPITAL ACCOUNT ACCOUNTING PRINCIPLES

Section 1. Income/Loss. For purposes of computing the amount of any item of income, gain, deduction or loss to be reflected in the members' capital accounts, the determination, recognition and classification of any such item shall be the same as its determination, recognition and classification for federal income tax purposes; provided, however, that:

(a) any deductions for depreciation, cost recovery or amortization (other than depletion under Section 611 of the Code) attributable to a Contributed Property (as defined below) shall be determined as if the adjusted basis of such property on the date it was acquired by the company was equal to the Agreed Value (as defined below) of such property. Upon an adjustment to the Carrying Value (as defined below) of any company property subject to depletion under Section 611 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the "Code"), any further deductions for such depreciation, cost recovery or amortization attributable to such property shall be determined as if the adjusted basis of such property were equal to the Carrying Value of such property immediately following such adjustment;

(b) any income, gain or loss attributable to the taxable disposition of any property (including any property subject to depletion under Section 611 of the Code) shall be determined by the company as if the adjusted basis of such property as of such date of disposition were equal in amount to the company's Carrying Value with respect to such property as of such date;

(c) if the company's adjusted basis in a depreciable or cost recovery property is reduced for federal income tax purposes pursuant to Section 48(q)(1) of the Code, the amount of such reduction shall, solely for purposes hereof, be deemed to be an additional depreciation or cost recovery deduction in the year such property is placed in service and shall be allocated among the members in accordance with the Operating Agreement. Any restoration of such basis pursuant to Section 48(q)(2) of the Code shall be allocated in the same manner to the members to whom such deemed deduction was allocated; and

(d) the computation of all items of income, gain, loss and deduction shall be made by the company and, as to those items described in Section 705(a)(1)(B) or Section 705(a)(2)(B) of the Code, without regard to the fact that such items are not includable in gross income or are neither currently deductible nor capitalizable for federal income tax purposes.

Section 2. Transfers. A transferee of a membership unit in the company will succeed to the capital account relating to the membership unit transferred; provided, however, that if the transfer causes a termination of the company under Section 708(b)(1)(B) of the Code, the company's properties shall be deemed to have been distributed in liquidation of the company to the members (including the transferee of the membership unit) and recontributed by such members and transferees in reconstitution of the company. The capital accounts of such reconstituted partnership shall be maintained in accordance with the principles set forth herein.

Section 3. Unrealized Gain/Loss. Upon an issuance of additional membership units in the company for cash or Contributed Property, the capital accounts of all members (and the Carrying Values of all company properties) shall, immediately prior to such issuance, be adjusted (consistent with the provisions hereof) upward or downward to reflect any unrealized gain or unrealized loss attributable to each company property (as if such unrealized gain or unrealized loss had been recognized upon an actual sale of such property at the fair market value thereof, immediately prior to such issuance, and had been allocated to the members, at such time). In determining such unrealized gain or unrealized loss attributable to the properties, the fair market value of company properties shall be determined by the members using such reasonable methods of valuation as they may adopt.

Section 4. Liquidating Adjustments. Immediately prior to the distribution of any company property in liquidation of the company, the capital accounts of all members (and the Carrying Values of all company properties) shall, immediately prior to any such distribution, be adjusted (consistent with the provisions hereof and of Section 704 of the Code) upward or downward to reflect any unrealized gain or unrealized loss attributable to each company property (as if such unrealized gain or unrealized loss had been recognized upon an actual sale of each such property, immediately prior to such distribution, and had been allocated to the members, at such time). In determining such unrealized gain or unrealized loss attributable to the properties, the fair market value of company properties shall be determined by the members using such reasonable methods of valuation as they may adopt.

Section 5. Definitions. For the purposes of this Article VII, the following terms shall have the meanings indicated unless the context clearly indicates otherwise:

"Agreed Value" means the fair market value of a Contributed Property as agreed to by the contributing member and the company, using such reasonable method of valuation as they may adopt.

"Carrying Value" means: (a) with respect to Contributed Property, the Agreed Value of such property, reduced (but not below zero) by all amortization, depreciation and cost recovery deductions charged to the members' capital accounts with respect to such property, as well as any other charges for sales, retirements and other dispositions of assets included in a Contributed Property, as of the time of determination; and (b) with respect to any other property, the adjusted basis of such property for federal income tax purposes as of the time of determination. The Carrying Value of any property shall be adjusted in accordance with the principles set forth herein.

"Contributed Property" means each member's interest in property or other consideration (excluding services and cash) contributed to the company by such member.

ARTICLE VII

ALLOCATIONS OF PROFITS AND LOSSES

Section 1. Determination of Net Profits/Losses. The terms "net profits" and "net losses," as used herein, shall mean the net amount of the company's profits and losses, as determined for federal income tax purposes, and shall also include each member's share of income described in Section 705(a)(1)(B) of the Code, any expenditures described in Section 705(a)(2)(B) of the Code, any expenditures described in Section 709(a) of the Code which are not deducted or amortized in accordance with Section 709(b) of the Code, basis adjustments required pursuant to Section 48(q) of the Code and losses not deductible pursuant to Section 267(a) or 707(b) of the Code.

Section 2. Allocation of Gain on Contributed Property. Notwithstanding any provision of the Operating Agreement to the contrary, to the extent required by law, income, gain, loss and deduction attributable to property contributed to the company by a member shall be allocated among the members so as to take into account any variation between the tax basis of the property and the fair market value thereof at the time of contribution, in accordance with the requirements of Section 704(c) of the Code.

Section 3. Ratable Allocation. Company income, gain, loss and deduction shall be allocated to the members in accordance with the portion of the year during which the members have held their respective membership Units. All items of income and loss shall be considered to have been earned ratably over the fiscal year of the company, except that gains and losses arising from the disposition of assets shall be taken into account as of the date thereof.

Section 4. Minimum Percentage. Notwithstanding any provision of the Operating Agreement to the contrary, at all times during the existence of the company, the interest of each member in each material item of company income, gain, loss, deduction or credit will be equal to at least one percent (1%) of each such item.

Section 5. Special Rules. Notwithstanding any provision of the Operating Agreement to the contrary:

(a) in the event the company is entitled to a deduction for imputed interest under any provision of the Code on any loan or advance from a member, such deduction shall be allocated solely to such member;

(b) losses allocated pursuant to the Operating Agreement shall not exceed the maximum amount of losses that can be so allocated without causing the member receiving such allocation to have an Adjusted Deficit Capital Account Balance (as defined below) at the end of any fiscal year of the company;

(c) if there is a net decrease in company Minimum Gain during any company fiscal year, members who would otherwise have an Adjusted Deficit Capital Account Balance at the end of such year shall be specially allocated items of company income and gain for such year (and, if necessary, subsequent years) in an amount and manner sufficient to eliminate such Adjusted Deficit Capital Account Balance as quickly as possible. The items to be so allocated shall be determined in accordance with Section 1.704-2 of the Regulations. This subsection is intended to comply with the minimum gain chargeback requirement in such section of the Regulations and shall be interpreted consistently therewith. "Company Minimum Gain" shall be computed in the manner described in Section 1.704-2(d)(1) of the Regulations. "Adjusted Deficit Capital Account Balance" shall mean the deficit capital account balance of a member, if any, as of the end of the relevant fiscal year of the company, after giving effect to the following: (A) credit to such capital account any amounts the member is obligated to restore pursuant to the penultimate sentence of Section 1.704-2 of the Regulations; and (B) debit to such capital account the items described in Sections 1.704-1(b)(2)(ii)(d)(4), (5) and (6) of the Regulations;

(d) to the extent the payment of any expenditure by the company is treated as a distribution to a member for federal income tax purposes, there will be a gross income allocation to such member in the amount of such distribution;

(e) if items of income or gain to be allocated include income or gain treated as ordinary income for federal income tax purposes because it is attributable to the recapture of depreciation under Section 1245 or 1250 of the Code, such income or gain, to the extent treated as ordinary income, shall be allocated to and reported by the members in proportion to their then respective cumulative allocations of depreciation; and

(f) except as provided in subsection (c) above, in the event any member unexpectedly receives any adjustments, allocations, or distributions described in Sections 1.704-1(b)(2)(ii)(d)(4), (5) or (6) of the Regulations, items of company income and gain shall be specially allocated to such member in an amount and manner sufficient to eliminate the Adjusted Deficit Capital Account Balance in the member's capital account created by such adjustments, allocations, or distributions as quickly as possible. Any special allocations of items of income or gain pursuant to this subsection shall be taken into account in computing subsequent allocations of other net profits, net losses and items thereof pursuant to the foregoing Operating Agreement (including the exhibits attached thereto), so that the net amount of any items so specially allocated pursuant to this subsection and the other net profits, net losses and all other items allocated to the member pursuant to the Operating Agreement, to the extent possible, be equal to the net amount that would have been allocated to the member had such unexpected adjustments, allocations or distributions not occurred.

Section 6. Special Allocations. Except as provided in Section 5(c) above, in the event a member has an Adjusted Deficit Capital Account Balance at the end of any company fiscal year which is in excess of the sum of (i) the amount the member is obligated to restore pursuant to any provision of this Agreement, and (ii) the amount the member is deemed to be obligated to restore pursuant to the penultimate sentence of Section 1.704-2 of the Regulations, such member shall be specially allocated items of company income and gain in the amount of such excess as quickly as possible.

ARTICLE VIII CERTIFICATES FOR UNITS

Section 1. Form of Certificates and Signatures. Upon request of a Member, the Company shall issue Certificates, which shall certify the number and class of membership units held by such Member in the company, but no certificate for membership units shall be executed or delivered until such units are fully paid. When such a certificate is countersigned by a transfer agent or registrar, the signature of any of said officers of the company may be facsimile, engraved, stamped or printed.

Section 2. Transfer of Units. Membership units in the company shall be transferable upon the books of the company by the holders thereof, in person, or by a duly authorized attorney, upon surrender and cancellation of certificates for a like number of units of the same class, with duly executed assignment and power of transfer endorsed thereon or attached thereto, and with such proof of the authenticity of the signatures to such assignment and power of transfer as the company or its agents may reasonably require.

Section 3. Lost, Stolen or Destroyed Certificates. The company may issue a new certificate for membership units in place of any certificate theretofore issued by it and alleged to have been lost, stolen or destroyed, and the Board of Directors may, in its discretion, require the owner, or his legal representatives, to give the company a bond containing such terms as the Board of Directors may require to protect the company or any person injured by the execution and delivery of a new certificate.

Section 4. Transfer Agent and Registrar. The Board of Directors may appoint, or revoke the appointment of, transfer agents or registrars and may require all certificates for membership units to bear the signatures of such transfer agents and registrars or any of them.

ARTICLE IX AMENDMENTS

The Bylaws of the company may be amended, or new Bylaws may be adopted, by the members at a meeting held for such purpose, by the affirmative vote of the holders of capital interests of the company entitling them to exercise a majority of the voting power of the company on such proposal, or without a meeting by the written consent of the holders of capital interests of the company units entitling them to exercise two-thirds of the voting power on such proposal.

FORM 20.38 Operating Agreement involving a related operating corporation

COMMENT

In many circumstances, the majority owner of a business will want to give its employees a piece of the action as an incentive to stay with the business. However, given the nature of an operating business, and the many business decisions that must be made with respect thereto, a business owner may be reluctant to give an employee a portion of the operating business. One way to avoid these problems is to give the key employees a portion of the non-operating assets (i.e., real estate) which are connected to the business, but which do not have day-to-day operations. In this way, the employee is tied to the business, but cannot get in the way of the owner's operations of the business. The following agreement involves key employees of an operating company. The operating company is relocating to a new location, and the new location will be owned by a separate limited liability company. In this Operating Agreement, the member (excluding the owner of the operating business) will be required to sell their interest in the limited liability company in the event that they are no longer employed by the operating company. Also, this form provides that the owner of the operating business is lending each member the money necessary to purchase their interest in the limited liability company. This form has Bylaws attached to it which supplement the Operating Agreement. Last, the Bylaws are designed to have the limited liability company resemble a corporation. The company will have a Board of Managers, much like a Board of Directors. The Board of Managers is authorized to designate officers that have similar duties as to officers of a corporation.

FORM

OF

[name]

(a(n) _____ [state] Limited Liability Company)

THIS OPERATING AGREEMENT ("Agreement") is entered into as of the _____ [day] day of _____, [month] _____, [year] by and among _____, [name] _____, [name] _____, and _____, [name] such parties being sometimes hereinafter referred to collectively as the "Members," and individually as a "Member."

WHEREAS, the Members have caused Articles of Organization to be filed with the _____ Secretary of State's office forming a(n) _____ [state] limited liability company under the name _____ [name] (the "Company"); and

WHEREAS, the Members desire to set forth the understandings and agreements among them with respect to the affairs of the Company and the conduct of its business;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual covenants and promises set forth herein, the parties hereby agree as follows:

ARTICLE 1
FORMATION OF THE COMPANY

1.1 Formation of Limited Liability Company. The Members have organized the Company pursuant to the provisions of Sections _____ to _____, both inclusive, of the _____ [state] Revised Code (the "LLC Act") under the name "_____." Except as otherwise provided herein, all rights, liabilities and obligations of the Members, both as among themselves and as to persons not parties to this Agreement, shall be as provided in the LLC Act.

1.2 Principal Office. The principal office of the Company shall be _____, [address] or at such other place in the State of _____ [state] as may be designated by the Members.

1.3 Purposes of the Company. The purpose of the Company shall be to engage in such other lawful acts or activities for which limited liability companies may be formed under the LLC Act.

1.4 Duration of the Company. The Company shall commence on the date on which its Articles of Organization were filed with the _____ [state] Secretary of State's Office, and shall continue thereafter until terminated and dissolved in accordance with the terms of this Agreement.

ARTICLE 2
MEMBERS, CAPITAL CONTRIBUTIONS, CAPITAL ACCOUNTS

2.1 Members. The names and addresses of the Members are set forth on the signature pages attached hereto.

2.2 Membership Units; Initial Capital Contributions. Each Member's undivided interest in the capital of the Company shall be represented by membership units ("Membership Units"). Each Membership Unit shall represent an interest in the capital of the Company and shall be identical in all respects with every other Membership Unit. The Membership Units shall be certificated. Each Member shall own the number of Membership Units set forth on Exhibit A. A Member shall not have the right to demand or receive the return of his capital contribution except as otherwise expressly provided herein.

2.3 Voting of Members. On any matter presented to the Members for their vote, each Member shall have one (1) vote for each Membership Unit.

2.4 Capital Accounts. An individual capital account shall be established and maintained for each Member and has been or shall be credited with the amount of each Member's initial capital contribution to the Company. Each Member's capital account shall be determined and maintained throughout the term of the Company in accordance with the requirements of Section 704(b) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (the "Code") or its counterpart in any subsequently enacted Internal Revenue Code, the applicable Treasury Regulations (the "Regulations") thereunder and the provisions of the Bylaws of the Company.

2.5 Capital Calls. The Members recognize that the income produced by the Company may be insufficient to pay the cost of operating the Company. The term "cost of operating the Company" shall include, without limiting the generality of said term, all real estate taxes and assessments and other state and governmental charges, insurance premiums, costs of repair and maintenance, and the principal and interest payments required to be made on any loans or mortgages of the Company. If, in the opinion of the Board of Managers, additional funds are required to pay the cost of operating the Company, such additional funds shall be contributed by the Members in proportion to their ownership of Membership Units in the Company.

2.6 Defaulting Members. If any Member is unwilling or unable to make, within thirty (30) days, any or all of his proportionate contribution upon a capital call, then the other Members shall each have the right to make up such deficit amount in any proportion that they decide. If the other Members, or any one of them, make a contribution pursuant to the foregoing, such Members shall have the option to treat the contribution as additional capital of the Company, or to treat the contribution as a loan to the defaulting Member. Such election shall be made, in writing, at the time the contribution is made.

2.6.1 If the contributing Members elect to treat their contribution as additional capital, after such contributions are made, each Member's percentage capital interest in the Company (and their respective interests in the net profits, net losses and cash flow) shall be adjusted and determined by dividing the total amount of capital contributed to the Company by such Members since the Company's inception by the total amount of capital contributed to the Company since its inception by all Members. The resulting quotient, with respect to each Member, shall be the adjusted percentage interest of such Member in the capital of the Company (and in the net profits, net losses and cash flow). In accordance with such increased capital interest, the Company shall issue to the contributing Members such additional Membership Units as are necessary to properly reflect their increased capital interest in the Company.

2.6.2 If the contributing Members elect to treat their contributions as a loan to the defaulting Member, then no adjustment shall be made to the percentage capital interest of the contributing Members because of such loan and each Member's share in the profits and losses and cash flow of the Company shall remain the same. The defaulting Member's capital account shall be increased in the same amount as would occur if the defaulting Member had made the additional capital contribution in the amount of the loan. In addition, the defaulting Member's share in the net profits, net losses and cash flow of the Company shall be adjusted, if necessary, as if he or she had made a contribution to the capital of the Company in the amount of such loan. The amount advanced by the Members on behalf of the defaulting Member shall be a debt of the defaulting Member to the contributing Members and shall bear interest at the prime rate or base lending rate of _____ [bank] of _____, [city] _____, [state] or its corporate successor, then in effect. Thereafter, all distributions of cash from the Company due to the defaulting Member shall be paid to the Members who elected to treat their contribution as loan until such time as the principal and interest of the loan is paid in full.

ALLOCATIONS OF PROFITS AND LOSSES,
CASH FLOW AND DISTRIBUTIONS

3.1 Profits and Losses. The Company's "net profits" and "net losses," computed in accordance with the provisions of the Bylaws of the Company. Except as provided in such Bylaws, the net profits and net losses of the Company shall be allocated among, or borne by, the Members in proportion to the Membership Units owned by each of them.

3.2 Cash Flow. The cash flow of the Company shall be the net profits and losses of the Company, computed as provided in the Bylaws of the Company, plus depreciation and other noncash charges deducted in determining such profits and losses, minus principal payments on all mortgages, and any other cash expenditures which have not been deducted in determining the net profits and losses of the Company, and minus the amount reasonably determined by the Board of Managers to be necessary to maintain for the Company sufficient working capital and a reasonable reserve for repairs, replacements and/or capital improvements. The cash flow of the Company shall be determined separately for each fiscal year and not cumulatively.

3.3 Distribution or Retention of Cash Flow. Cash flow, as determined in accordance with Subparagraph 3.2, shall be distributed to the Members in proportion to the number of Membership Units held by each Member, which distributions shall be made at such time or times as may be determined by the Board of Managers.

MANAGEMENT

4.1 Board of Managers. The business and the affairs of the Company shall be exclusively managed by a Board of Managers consisting of four (4) Members. The Board of Managers shall be elected by the Members in accordance with the By-laws attached hereto as Exhibit B. A Manager need not be a resident of the State of _____ [state] . Notwithstanding the foregoing to the contrary, a sale or lease of a substantial portion of the Company's assets shall require the affirmative vote of the Members holding at least sixty percent (60%) of the outstanding Membership Units.

4.2 Liability of a Manager. A Manager shall not have any liability to the Company or to any Member for any mistakes or errors in judgment, or for any act or omission believed in good faith to be within the scope of authority conferred by this Agreement. A Manager shall be liable only for acts and/or omissions involving intentional wrongdoing. Actions or omissions taken in reliance upon the advice of legal counsel that they are within the scope of a Manager's authority hereunder shall be conclusive evidence of good faith; provided, however, a Manager shall not be required to procure such advice to be entitled to the benefit of this subparagraph.

4.3 Books and Records. The Board of Managers shall maintain or cause to be maintained complete and accurate records of all properties owned or leased by the Company and complete and accurate books of account (containing such information as shall be necessary to record allocations and distributions), and make such records and books of account available for inspection by any Member, or his duly authorized representative during regular business hours and at the principal office of the Company. Within sixty (60) days after the end of each calendar year, there shall be prepared and distributed to all Members reasonable tax-reporting information, in sufficient detail to enable such Member to prepare his federal, state and local income tax returns. In addition, within ninety (90) days after the end of each calendar year, there shall be prepared and distributed to each Member, a balance sheet, and a report of the receipts, disbursements, net profits and losses, and cash flow of the Company, and the share of the net profits and losses and cash flow of each Member for such calendar year. Such balance sheet and report shall be prepared by a certified public accountant in accordance with the method of accounting used by the Company for tax purposes.

4.4 Taxable Year; Accounting Method. The taxable year of the Company shall be a calendar year, and the first taxable year shall end on December 31 of the year in which the Company is formed. The books and records of the Company shall be maintained on the cash method of accounting.

4.5 Status of Members. Unless authorized by the Managing Members, or expressly set forth herein or in the By-laws, the Members shall have no authority to conduct or control the Company's business and the Members will have no authority to bind the Company in any way.

ARTICLE 5 DISCLOSURES AND REPRESENTATIONS

5.1 Disclosure by Company. In connection with the sale of the Membership Units to the Members hereunder, the Company hereby discloses the following information to the Members:

(a) the Membership Units have not been registered under the federal Securities Act of 1933, as amended (the "Federal Act"), and are being offered and sold by the Company pursuant to a registration exemption contained in Section 3(a)(11) of the Federal Act and/or Securities and Exchange Commission Rule 147, promulgated thereunder.

(b) during the period the Membership Units are being offered and sold by the Company, and for a further period of nine (9) months from the date of the last sale of the Membership Units that are part of the offering that is being so offered and sold by the Company, all resales, pledges, hypothecations, or other transfers of the Membership Units by any person or business organization shall, subject to the further terms of this Agreement, including the provisions of the legend set forth in subparagraph (c) below, be made only to persons or business organizations having a principal residence or principal office, respectively, within the State of _____ [state].

(c) a legend has been, or will be, placed on each certificate or other document evidencing any of the Membership Units in substantially the following form:

THESE SECURITIES HAVE NOT BEEN REGISTERED UNDER THE SECURITIES ACT OF 1933, AS AMENDED, AND, FOR A PERIOD OF AT LEAST NINE (9) MONTHS FROM THE DATE OF THE LAST SALE BY THE COMPANY OF THE SECURITIES IN THE OFFERING OF WHICH THESE SECURITIES ARE A PART, ALL REALES, PLEDGES, HYPOTHECATIONS, OR OTHER TRANSFERS OF THESE SECURITIES BY ANY PERSON OR BUSINESS ORGANIZATION SHALL BE MADE ONLY TO PERSONS OR BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS WHO ARE RESIDENT WITHIN THE STATE OF _____ [state].

(d) Stop transfer instructions to the appropriate officers of the Company have been, or will be, placed in the Company's records with respect to the Membership Units so as to restrict the resale, pledge, hypothecation, or other transfer thereof, subject to the further terms of this Agreement, including the provisions of the legend set forth in subparagraph (c), above, during the nine-month period described in subparagraph (b), above.

(e) Prior to the expiration of the nine-month period described in subparagraph (b), above, the legend and stop transfer instructions described in subparagraphs (c) and (d), above, will be placed on any new certificate(s) or other document(s) issued by the Company upon presentment by a Member to the Company of any certificate(s) or other document(s) for transfer of any of any of the Membership Units to a person or business organization having a principal residence or principal office, respectively, within the State of _____ [state].

(f) The Membership Units have not been registered under the _____ [state] Securities Act, set forth in Chapter _____ of the _____ [state] Revised Code, as amended (the "_____ [state] Act"), and are being offered and sold by the Company pursuant to a registration exemption contained in Section _____ of the _____ [state] Act.

(g) The Company reasonably believes that the Members are acquiring the Membership Units hereunder for investment, has no information to the contrary, and through subparagraph 5.2, below, is hereby obtaining a signed statement to that effect from the Members prior to the purchase of any of the Membership Units hereunder.

5.2 Representations and Warranties of the Members. In connection with the Members' purchase of the Membership Units hereunder, each of the Members represents and warrants, which representations and warranties shall survive the consummation of the Member's purchase of his or its interest hereunder, as follows:

(a) The Member's principal residence is located within the State of _____ [state].

(b) The Member is aware that no market may exist for the resale of a Membership Unit purchased under this Agreement.

(c) The Member is purchasing for investment and not for the distribution of any of the Membership Units purchased under this Agreement.

(d) The Member is aware of any and all restrictions imposed by the Company on the further distribution of the Membership Units, including, but not limited to, any restrictive legends appearing on the certificate(s) and/or other document(s) evidencing any of the Units, required holding periods, stop transfer orders, or buy-back rights of the Company.

ARTICLE 6

ASSIGNMENT, TRANSFER OR SALE OF MEMBERSHIP UNITS

6.1 Assignment. The Membership Units of a Member may be assigned, transferred or sold only as provided in this Article 6. With respect to any such permitted assignment, transfer or sale, the assignee, transferee or purchaser of a Membership Unit may, upon compliance with the conditions set forth in subparagraph 6.7 below, become a substituted Member.

6.2 Transfer. A Member may pledge his or her Units(s) as security for a debt owing to _____ [name] resulting from a loan from _____ [name] to such Member to enable the Member to make his or her capital contribution(s) to the Company. Other than this permitted pledge, no Member shall pledge, cause a lien to be placed against, or encumber his or her Units, or transfer, sell, alienate, sign, or otherwise dispose of all or any part of his or her Units, whether voluntarily, involuntarily, by operation of law, at judicial sale, or otherwise, without the prior written consent of a majority of the Board of Managers.

However, a Member may freely transfer his or her Units, in whole or in part, to or for the benefit of (i) the Member or his or her spouse; and/or (ii) one or more of the Member's lineal descendants.

6.3 Securities Compliance. Notwithstanding the preceding provisions of this Paragraph 6., no proposed or intended assignment, transfer or sale of a Unit shall be effective, unless and until it appears, to the satisfaction of a majority of the Board of Members, that such assignment, transfer or sale will not be in violation of, or otherwise render the Company and/or the Manager liable under, the Securities Act of 1933, as amended, and the rules and regulations promulgated thereunder, or under the applicable state securities laws of any state or states.

6.4 No Termination. Notwithstanding the preceding provisions of this Paragraph 6., no sale or exchange of a Unit may be made if the Unit sought to be sold or exchanged, when added to the total of all Unit(s) sold or exchanged within the period of twelve (12) months prior thereto, would result in the termination of the Company under Section 708 of the Code, or any successor section thereto.

6.5 Distributions. Subsequent to the permitted assignment, transfer or sale of a Unit, the Company shall remit directly to the assignee, transferee or purchaser all distributions to which such person may be entitled pursuant to the provisions of this Agreement. An assignee, transferor or purchaser who does not become a substituted Member pursuant to the provisions of subparagraph 6.7 below shall be entitled to receive only the distributions to which his or her assignor, transferor or seller would otherwise have been entitled with respect to the Units assigned, transferred or sold, but such assignee, transferee or purchaser shall have no right to vote, to approve amendments hereof, to obtain information concerning Company transactions, to inspect the Company books, or to exercise any other rights of member conferred hereunder or under applicable law.

6.6 Substitute Member. A Member who has assigned, transferred or sold all of his or her Units as permitted in subparagraph 6.2 above shall have no further right or interest in the Company.

6.7 Substitution of a Member. The transferee of a deceased, bankrupt or incompetent Member's Units shall become a substituted Member only upon: (a) the written consent of a majority of the Board of Managers; (b) the transferee's execution and acknowledgment of such instruments, in form and substance reasonably satisfactory to a majority of the Board of Managers; and (c) the transferee's payment of any expenses arising in connection with the substituted Member's admission to the Company. Notwithstanding the foregoing sentence, a transferee under subparagraph 6.2, above, shall automatically become a substituted Member.

6.8 Obligations and Rights of Transferees. Any person who acquires in any manner whatsoever any Unit in the Company, irrespective of whether such person has accepted and assumed in writing the terms and provision of this Agreement, shall be deemed by the acceptance of the benefit of the acquisition thereof to have agreed to be subject to, and to be bound by, all the obligations of this Agreement with the same force and effect as any predecessor in interest of such person.

6.9 Sale Upon Termination of Employment. Upon the termination of employment by a member from _____ [company] (the "Employer") for any reason whatsoever (including resignation, retirement, resignation, being fired, death, disability or any other type of voluntary or involuntary termination) of any Member (a "Triggering Event") the affected Member or the deceased Member's estate, shall sell the Membership Units presently owned by the affected Member under the mandatory purchase provisions of subparagraph 6.9.1. This subparagraph 6.9 shall not apply to the units owned by _____ [name] and/or his wife, _____ [name] .

6.9.1 Mandatory Purchase. In the event of a Triggering Event, the Company shall purchase all the Membership Units presently owned by the affected Member. The price to be paid for the purchase of the Units shall be the price provided in subparagraph 6.9.5 hereinbelow.

6.9.2 Transfer of Units. Any and all units purchased by the Company under subparagraphs 6.9 and 6.9.1 above shall be made within sixty (60) days after a Triggering Event. However, if the Triggering Event is the death of a Member, the Units shall be purchased sixty (60) days after the appointment of a legal representative for the deceased Member's estate. If a determination of fair market value is required under subparagraph 6.9.5 then the units shall be purchased sixty (60) days after the delivery of such determination to the affected parties.

Within such periods of time, the respective seller shall endorse and deliver to the purchaser (the Company and/or the remaining Members, as the case may be) the membership certificate or certificates representing the Units to be purchased and sold under this Agreement, and the purchase price shall be paid in accordance with subparagraph 6.9.3 hereinbelow.

6.9.3 Manner of Payment. Concurrently with the delivery of the membership certificate or certificates to the Company, the purchaser of such Units shall pay to each such Seller twenty percent (20%) of the Seller's purchase price. In the event that the Triggering Event is the death of a Member, the Company shall pay to each such Seller the greater of (i) twenty percent (20%) of the purchase price; or (ii) such Seller's pro rata portion of the insurance proceeds (if any) payable as a result of such Member's death.

The balance of said purchase price shall be paid in forty-eight (48) equal, monthly payments commencing one (1) month from the date of such sale, together with interest at the lowest rate required, under Section 483 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, or its counterpart under any subsequently enacted Internal Revenue Code, in order to avoid the creation of "total unstated interest," within the meaning of such Section.

Upon default of any payment of principal or interest required to be made pursuant to this Subparagraph, which default is not cured within thirty (30) days after notice of default is given by the Seller, or his successor or successors in interest, to the purchaser, the entire unpaid balance owing to any and all persons by the purchaser on account of the aforesaid purchase of Units shall become due and payable on the expiration of such thirty (30) day period.

6.9.4 Prepayment. The purchaser shall have the right to prepay, in whole or in part, the balance owing by it as set forth in subparagraph 6.9.3 hereinabove; provided, however, that if the Company shall make a prepayment at a time when such Company owes an amount pursuant to this Agreement to two (2) or more persons, such prepayment shall be made to all such persons in the proportion which the balance owing to each person bears to the aggregate balance owing hereunder pursuant to this Agreement; provided further that any such prepayment shall be applied to the installments due under subparagraph 6.9.3 hereinabove in reverse chronological order of their due dates.

6.9.5 Purchase Price. If the Triggering Event (other than death) occurs during the first five (5) years of the Company's existence, the purchase price to be paid to the selling Member shall be such Member's initial contribution plus such Member's initial Contribution multiplied by five percent (5%).

If the Triggering Event is on account of the death of a Member at any time, or it occurs any time after the first five (5) years of the Company's existence, the purchase price paid to the selling Member shall be the fair market value thereof, as of the close of business on the date of the Triggering Event. The fair market value of each Unit shall be determined by substituting the fair market value as of such date, in place of the book value, of all assets owned by the Company, subtracting from the total assets, as redetermined, all liabilities of the Company as of such date, and dividing the resulting figure (representing the net fair market value of all Units of the Company) by the total number of Membership Units. To the extent possible, the determination of the fair market value of the Membership Units shall be made by the certified public accountant who is then servicing the Company.

In making the adjustment for the fair market value of any asset without a readily ascertainable value, and the fair market value of which is not agreed upon by the Company and selling Member, the Company shall rely on and use the written appraisal of a qualified appraiser of such asset, selected by the Company for that purpose at the expense of the Company. All such determinations of fair market value shall be made within ninety (90) days after the Triggering Event.

WITHDRAWAL; DISSOLUTION

7.1 Withdrawal. A Member shall not be permitted to withdraw or resign from the Company. The death, incompetency, adjudication of bankruptcy, whether voluntary or involuntary, or the bankruptcy or dissolution of a Member during the term of this Agreement, shall not effect the Company or its business. The executor, administrator, trustee or other legal representative of the deceased, bankrupt, incompetent or dissolved Member shall succeed to all of the rights of such Member, subject to the provisions of this Agreement or any other Agreement between the parties.

7.2 Termination of the Company. The Company shall be terminated and dissolved upon the first to occur of the following:

- (a) upon the affirmative vote of at least fifty-one percent (51%) of the Membership Units; or
- (b) upon the sale of all or substantially all the assets of the Company.

ARTICLE 8 WINDING UP

8.1 Winding Up. Upon the termination of the Company pursuant to subparagraph 7.2 above, a full and general accounting shall be taken of the Company's business, and the affairs of the Company shall be wound up. Any profits earned or losses incurred since the last previous accounting shall be allocated among, or borne by, the Members in accordance with the provisions of subparagraph 3.1 above. The Board of Managers shall wind up and liquidate the Company by selling the Company's assets, or by distributing such assets in kind, subject to the Company's liabilities, or by a combination thereof, as determined by the Board of Managers. The proceeds of such liquidation shall be applied and distributed in the following order of priority, by the end of the taxable year during which the liquidation occurs (or, if later, within ninety (90) days after the date of the liquidation):

- (a) to the payment of any debts and liabilities of the Company;
- (b) to the setting up of any reserve which the Board of Managers shall reasonably deem necessary to provide for any contingent or unforeseen liabilities or obligations of the Company, with any excess in such reserve remaining after such liabilities are satisfied to be distributed as soon as practicable in the manner hereinafter set forth; and
- (c) thereafter, the balance of the proceeds, if any, shall be distributed in accordance with the positive capital account balances of the Members, as determined after taking into account all capital account adjustments for the Company's taxable year during which such liquidation occurs. For purposes of this subparagraph, a liquidation of the Company shall mean a liquidation as defined in Section 1.704-1(b)(2)(ii)(g) of the Regulations.

8.2 Statement. The Members shall be furnished with a statement prepared by the Company's accountants, which shall set forth the assets and liabilities of the Company as of the date of complete liquidation.

8.3 Return of Capital Contributions. Notwithstanding anything in this Agreement to the contrary, neither the Board of Managers nor any Member shall be personally liable for the return of the capital contributions of the Members, or any portion thereof, it being expressly understood that any such return of the capital contributions of the Members shall be made solely from Company assets.

ARTICLE 9 MISCELLANEOUS

9.1 Adoption of Bylaws. The Members hereby adopt and approve the Bylaws of the Company, a copy of such Bylaws being attached hereto as Exhibit B.

9.2 Endorsement. Upon the execution of this Agreement, the certificate or certificates evidencing the Membership Units in the Company shall be endorsed, as follows:

9.3 Tax Matters Member. _____ [name] shall serve as the Tax Matters Member of the Company, as provided in Regulations issued pursuant to Section 6231 of the Code. Each Member, by the execution of this Agreement, consents to such designation of the Tax Matters Member and agrees to execute, certify, acknowledge, deliver, swear to, file and record at the appropriate public offices such documents as may be necessary or appropriate to evidence such consent. The Company shall indemnify and reimburse the Tax Matters Member for all expenses, including legal and accounting fees, claims, liabilities, losses and damages incurred in connection with any administrative or judicial proceeding with respect to the tax liability of the Members. The payment of all such expenses shall be made before any distributions to Members are made by the Company. The taking of any action and the incurring of any expense by the Tax Matters Member in connection with any such proceeding, except to the extent required by law, is a matter in the sole discretion of the Tax Matters Member.

9.4 Amendments. This Agreement may be amended only with the written approval of members owning two-thirds (2/3) or more of the units in the Company.

FORM 20.40 Simple Trust Agreement for Holding Real Estate

COMMENT

Real estate is owned and operated by a trust for many reasons. Most of the same reasons that a person may place other assets in trust are applicable to the ownership of real estate. Some of the more common reasons are creditor protection, estate planning and probate avoidance, and the desire to keep the entity of the legal owner hidden. The transfer of a property to a trust has numerous income and gift tax implications. These issues are more fully addressed in other chapters of Current Legal Forms with Tax Analysis. See Chapters 7A, 7B, 8 and 9 of Volume 11 for estate planning discussions and forms, and Chapter 2 in Volume 2 for basic trusts.

Generally speaking, there are two types of personal trusts. They are revocable (i.e., the grantor has the right to terminate or change the trust), or irrevocable (i.e., the grantor does not have the right to terminate or change trust).

The following form is the most basic form of trust. This form can be used when the owner and the trustee have a trusting relationship and the owner does not want his or her identity to be disclosed as the beneficial owner of the property.

William Smith, Trustee

Re: [Property described on Exhibit]

Dear Mr. Smith:

This letter describes the agreement with respect to the above-referenced property (the "Property"). As you know, Atlas Land Corporation has entered into a purchase agreement to purchase the Property. The undersigned is the nominee of Atlas Land Corporation. However, at this time the undersigned prefers not to hold legal title to the Property. As a result, you agree to hold the property in trust for the undersigned, pursuant to the terms and conditions of this letter. This letter constitutes the trust agreement and the Property will constitute the only asset in the Trust.

A. Title to the Property will be transferred to you by the sellers under the purchase agreement as follows "William Smith, Trustee."

B. The undersigned will be the beneficial owner of the Property and beneficiary of the Trust. You as Trustee will be the legal owner of the Property.

C. Upon receipt of written notice from the undersigned, you will convey legal title of the Property to the undersigned by General Warranty Deed.

D. The undersigned will be responsible for all costs and expenses relative to the Property, including, without limitation, all costs associated with the purchase or finance of the Property, real estate taxes and assessments, insurance and maintenance. You will have no obligation with respect to the Property, except for the obligation to reconvey the Property to the undersigned.

E. The undersigned agrees to indemnify, defend and hold you harmless from any and all claims, costs, damages, expenses or fees (including reasonable attorney's fees) that you may incur or become subject to as a result of your acting as Trustee hereunder.

F. This Agreement shall inure to the benefit of and is binding upon our respective legal representatives, successors and assigns. For purposes of the Trust, in the event that after the date hereof, you are unable or unwilling to act as Trustee, the undersigned shall appoint the successor Trustee.

Please sign and date the enclosed copy of this letter acknowledging the Trust as set forth herein and return a fully executed copy to us.

FORM 20.41 Qualified Personal Residence Trust

COMMENT

A Qualified Personal Residence Trust is essentially used as an estate planning tool. It provides for the transfer of the full value of a residence to the trust, and the grantor will only be required to pay gift taxes for the cost value of the remainder interest. The appreciation, if any, after the transfer to the Trust, inures to the benefit of the remainder beneficiary if the residence is not sold during the grantor's lifetime and the proceeds of the sale are converted to the grantor retain annuity trust (GRAT). For a complete discussion of Qualified Personal Residence Trusts see Chapter 9, in Volume 11, § 9.23[1].

FORM

TRUST AGREEMENT

(The William Smith Qualified Personal Residence Trust)

I, WILLIAM SMITH, sometimes hereinafter referred to in the first person, do hereby declare that on this _____ [day] day of _____ [month] , _____ [year] , I desire to create a trust that is described in Section 2702(a)(3)(A)(ii) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (the "Code") and that meets the requirements of a qualified personal residence trust ("QPRT") as defined in Section 25.2702-5(c) of the Treasury Regulations under the Code (the "Regulations" or "Treas. Regs."); and

WHEREAS, the Trustee is willing to accept the trust hereby created and covenant to faithfully discharge the duties of a trustee hereunder;

NOW, THEREFORE, I intend to transfer property to the Trustee IN TRUST, and the Trustee agrees to accept the property and to hold, manage and distribute the property under the terms of this Trust Agreement.

SECTION 1. NAME OF TRUST

This Trust Agreement and the trust hereunder may be referred to as "The William Smith Qualified Personal Residence Trust."

SECTION 2. INITIAL TERM

The "Initial Term" shall begin on the first day property is transferred to the Trustee and shall expire upon the first to occur of (i) the sixth anniversary of that date, or (ii) my death.

SECTION 3. PERMITTED ASSETS

During the Initial Term, the Trustee shall hold only assets permitted by Treas. Regs. Section 25.2702-5(c) and, therefore, shall not hold any asset in the trust other than:

A. One Residence. One residence (or an undivided fractional interest in one residence), which shall be used or held for use as a personal residence of mine ("the Residence"). The Residence shall comprise only real property or a type of personal property (such as a cooperative apartment) that can meet the definition of a residence under the Regulations, and during the Initial Term no tangible personal property shall be held in the trust. Whether the Residence is used or held for use as a personal residence of mine at any time shall be determined under the applicable provisions of the Regulations, including relevant examples. I direct the Trustee to follow the requirements of the Regulations in administering the trust during the Initial Term so that the Residence shall at all times be used or held for use as a personal residence of mine. No person shall be permitted to occupy the Residence and the Residence shall not be put to any use except as permitted by Treas. Regs. Section 25.2702-5(c) for a residence used or held for use as a personal residence of mine. A residence used or held for use as a personal residence of mine is hereinafter referred to as a "personal residence."

B. Additions of Cash. Additions of cash (which shall be held in a separate account), but only in an amount which, when added to the cash already held in the account for such purposes, does not exceed the amount required:

- (1) for payment of trust expenses (including mortgage payments) already incurred or reasonably expected to be paid by the trust within six (6) months from the date the addition is made;
- (2) for improvements to the Residence to be paid by the trust within six (6) months from the date the addition is made;
- (3) for purchase by the trust of the initial residence, within three (3) months of the date the trust is created, provided that no addition may be made for this purpose, and the trust may not hold any such addition, unless the Trustee has previously entered into a contract to purchase that residence; and
- (4) for purchase by the trust of a personal residence to replace the Residence, within three (3) months of the date the addition is made, provided that no addition may be made for this purpose, and the trust may not hold any such addition, unless the Trustee has previously entered into a contract to purchase the replacement residence.

The Trustee shall determine, at least quarter-annually, the amounts held by the trust for payment of expenses in excess of the amounts permitted by the terms of this Paragraph B The Trustee shall distribute any such excess amounts to me immediately after such determination.

C. Improvements. Improvements to the Residence, provided that the Residence as improved meets the requirements of a personal residence.

D. Proceeds of Sale. Proceeds from the sale of the Residence, which shall be held in a separate account. However, the trust shall cease to be a qualified personal residence trust as to such proceeds on the date described in Section 6.

E. Insurance Policies. Policies of insurance on the Residence.

F. Insurance Proceeds. The proceeds of insurance (which shall be held in a separate account) payable to the trust as a result of damage to, or destruction of, the Residence. However, the trust shall cease to be a qualified personal residence trust as to such proceeds on the date described below in Section 6. Amounts received as a result of the involuntary conversion (within the meaning of Section 1033 of the Code) of the Residence shall be treated as proceeds of insurance held under this Paragraph F.

G. Annuity Interest. A qualified annuity interest into which assets have been converted under circumstances described in Section 6.

SECTION 4. DISTRIBUTIONS DURING INITIAL TERM

The Trustee shall make distributions during the Initial Term as follows:

A. Net Income. The Trustee shall distribute all the net income of the trust to me, at least annually.

B. Cash. The Trustee shall distribute cash to me or to my estate to the extent required by Section 3.

C. Assets When Trust Not a QPRT. The Trustee shall distribute any assets as to which the trust has ceased to be a qualified personal residence trust in the manner required by Section 6 and, thereafter, the terms of this Section 4 shall cease to apply to such property, which shall be disposed of under the terms of Section 6.

D. No Other Distributions. The Trustee shall not distribute any trust property to any beneficiary other than me prior to the expiration of the Initial Term, but this shall not be construed to prevent the payment of expenses properly chargeable to the Trust.

SECTION 5. COMMUTATION PROHIBITED

My interest in the trust during the Initial Term shall not be commuted.

SECTION 6. CESSATION OF QUALIFIED STATUS

The trust shall cease to be a qualified personal residence trust (wholly or with respect to particular assets) upon the occurrence of any of the following:

A. Change in Use. If the Residence ceases to be used or held for use as a personal residence of mine, the entire trust thereupon shall cease to be a qualified personal residence trust, unless the cause is a sale of the Residence or damage or destruction that renders the Residence unusable as a personal residence.

B. Sale. If the Residence is sold, the trust shall cease to be a qualified personal residence trust with respect to all proceeds of sale upon the first to occur of (i) the date that is two (2) years after the date of sale, (ii) the date of expiration of the Initial Term, or (iii) the date on which a new personal residence is acquired by the trust.

C. Damage. If damage or destruction renders the Residence unusable as a personal residence, the trust shall cease to be a qualified personal residence trust upon the first to occur of (i) the date that is two (2) years after the date of damage or destruction, or (ii) the date of expiration of the Initial Term, unless, prior to such date, (a) replacement of, or repairs to, the Residence is or are completed, or (b) a new residence is acquired by the trust.

D. Insurance Proceeds. If the trust receives proceeds of insurance (or involuntary conversion proceeds treated as proceeds of insurance) as a result of damage to, or destruction or involuntary conversion of, the Residence, the trust shall cease to be a qualified personal residence trust with respect to all such proceeds upon the first to occur of (i) the date that is two (2) years after the date of damage, destruction, or involuntary conversion, (ii) the date of the expiration of the Initial Term, or (iii) the date on which replacement of, or repairs to, the Residence is or are completed or a new personal residence is acquired by the trust.

E. Conversion to Grantor Retained Annuity Trust ("GRAT"). Within thirty (30) days after the date on which the trust has ceased to be a qualified personal residence trust or has ceased to be a qualified personal residence trust with respect to particular assets, the trust property (or such assets) shall be converted to a qualified annuity interest meeting the requirements of Treas. Regs. Section 25.2702-5(c)(8)(ii) and shall be held in a separate share of the trust. The separate share shall be disposed of under the terms of Section 7. With respect to the annuity payable from such share, "cessation date" means the date of the sale of the Residence, or the date of damage to, or destruction of, the Residence, or the date on which the Residence ceases to be used, or held for use, as a personal residence, as the case may be. "Conversion date" means the date that the assets comprised in such share are converted to a qualified annuity interest pursuant to the terms of this Paragraph E.

SECTION 7. PAYMENT OF ANNUITY AMOUNT

A. Pay Annuity. From assets converted to a qualified annuity interest and held in a separate share pursuant to this Section 7, the Trustee shall pay to me the annuity amount defined in Paragraph B, below for the period from the cessation date for such assets to the expiration of the Initial Term. My right to receive the annuity amount shall begin on the cessation date for such assets, but the Trustee may defer payment of any annuity amount otherwise payable until the date that is thirty (30) days after the conversion date for such assets, provided that any such deferred payment shall bear interest from the cessation date at a rate not less than the rate in effect under Section 7520 of the Code on the cessation date. The Trustee may reduce the aggregate deferred annuity payments to me by the amount of income actually distributed to me during the deferral period. Subject to these deferral provisions, the annuity amount shall be paid in each taxable year of the trust.

B. Determining Annuity. The annuity amount shall be determined as follows. If, on the conversion date, the assets of the trust do not include a personal residence, the annuity amount shall be the amount determined by dividing the lesser of (i) the value of all interests retained by me (as of the date of the original transfer or transfers), or (ii) the value of all the trust assets as of the conversion date, by an annuity factor determined for the original Initial Term at the rate used in valuing my retained interest at the time of the original transfer. If, on the conversion date, the assets of the trust include a personal residence, the annuity amount shall be the amount determined under the preceding sentence multiplied by a fraction. The numerator of the fraction shall be the excess of the fair market value of the trust assets on the conversion date over the fair market value of the assets as to which the trust continues as a qualified personal residence trust, and the denominator of the fraction shall be the fair market value of the trust assets on the conversion date. The Trustee shall follow the principles of Example 6 of Treas. Regs. Section 25.2702-5(d) to the extent relevant in applying the provisions of this Paragraph B.

C. Paying Annuity Amount. The annuity amount shall be paid quarter-annually from income and, to the extent income is not sufficient, from principal. Final payment for a taxable year may be deferred if necessary for administrative reasons, but shall always be made no later than the due date (before extensions) of the trust's federal income tax return for that year.

D. Income. Any income of the separate share for a taxable year not otherwise disposed of pursuant to the terms of this Trust Agreement shall be paid to me at least annually.

E. Incorrect Valuation. If the net value determining the annuity amount is incorrectly determined, then within a reasonable period after the value is finally determined for federal tax purposes, the Trustee shall pay to me (in the case of an undervaluation) or receive from me (in the case of an overvaluation) an amount equal to the difference between the annuity amounts properly payable and the annuity amounts actually paid.

F. No Payments to Others. No payment of the annuity amount shall be made to any person other than me. My interest in the annuity amount shall not be commuted.

G. Income Taxes. For each taxable year of the trust, the Trustee (excluding, however, any Interested Trustee, as hereinafter defined) may, but shall not be required to, reimburse me out of income or principal of the separate share for my income tax (federal, state, local, or foreign) on the amount (if any) by which the gross income of the separate share that is reportable directly on my return under Code Section 671, reduced by the deductions of the separate share also reportable, exceeds the annuity amount for that year.

H. Proration. In determining the annuity amount, the Trustee shall prorate the same on a daily basis for a short taxable year and for the taxable year of the expiration of the Initial Term and for the taxable year in which the cessation date occurs if the cessation date does not occur on the first day of the taxable year.

I. Additions. No additional contributions shall be made to a separate share pursuant to this Section 7 after the conversion of the assets initially comprising the share. If the trust ceases to be a qualified personal residence trust as to different assets at different times, there may be more than one separate share under this Section 7.

J. No Payment with Notes, Etc. The Trustee may in no event issue a note, other debt instrument, option or other similar financial arrangement in satisfaction of the annuity payment obligation under this Section 7.

SECTION 8. TAXABLE YEAR

The taxable year of the trust shall be the calendar year.

SECTION 9. DISTRIBUTION UPON EXPIRATION OF INITIAL TERM

Upon the expiration of the Initial Term, the Trustee shall distribute the trust property as follows:

A. Expiration at Death. If the Initial Term expires upon my death, the Trustee shall first distribute the trust property to such person or persons as I may appoint by a Will specifically referring to this power, or in default of appointment, or insofar as it is not effective, to my estate to be disposed of as part thereof.

B. Expiration of Term. If I am living upon the expiration of the Initial Term, the Trustee shall distribute the trust property to my children then living, in equal shares, or if no children of mine are then living, to my descendants then living, per stirpes.

SECTION 10. DEFAULT REMAINDER BENEFICIARY

The Trustee shall distribute any property that is not otherwise disposed of under this Trust Agreement to the persons and in the proportions that my personal estate would be distributed if I died at the same time as the expiration of the interest of the last beneficiary of the property hereunder, without a will, unmarried, a resident of _____ [state] , owning only that property, under the law then in effect.

SECTION 11. TRUSTEE

A. Trustee Appointments. A trustee who is a party to this Trust Agreement shall serve as trustee of each trust under this Trust Agreement, except where any provision of this Section 11 or some other provision of this Trust Agreement specifically provides otherwise. I appoint myself, WILLIAM SMITH, as the initial Trustee hereunder. If, at any time, I am unable to serve as Trustee, I appoint as successor Trustee under this instrument, and as substitute or successor Trustee, as the case may be, to fill any vacancy thereafter occurring in such office, the first in the order named who is able and willing to serve of the following:

My wife, _____ [name];

My daughter, _____ [name];

My son, _____ [name];

My daughter, _____ [name].

Except as otherwise expressly indicated, each successor Trustee shall have all the powers and immunities herein given to me as original Trustee.

B. Trustee Must Not Disqualify Trust. The Trustee is prohibited from exercising any power or discretion granted by law or by this Trust Agreement that would be inconsistent with the qualification of the Residence as a personal residence during the Initial Term or the qualification of the trust as a qualified personal residence trust within the meaning of Treas. Regs. Section 25.2702-5(c). In particular, the Trustee is prohibited from selling or otherwise transferring the Residence, directly or indirectly, to me or my husband, or to any entity controlled by me or my husband during the Initial Term, or at any time after the Initial Term if the trust holding the Residence is then a grantor trust deemed owned by me or my husband for federal income tax purposes, provided that such a sale or transfer may be made if and when it becomes permissible under the Regulations.

C. Governing Law and Trustee Powers. The interpretation and operation of the trust shall be governed by the laws of the State of _____ [state]. The Trustee may, without prior authority from any court, exercise all powers conferred by this Trust Agreement or by law, including without limitation any fiduciary powers act or other statute of the State of _____ [state] or any other jurisdiction whose law applies to the trust. The Trustee shall have absolute discretion in exercising these powers. Except as specifically limited by this Trust Agreement, these powers shall extend to all property held by the Trustee until actual distribution of the property. These powers, however, shall not apply during the Initial Term except to the extent consistent with qualification of the trust as a qualified personal residence trust described in Treas. Regs. Section 25.2702-5(c).

(1) The Trustee may distribute trust property in cash or in kind.

(2) The Trustee may make any election available under the tax laws in such manner as the Trustee shall determine, even though a Trustee may have an interest affected by the election, except where a Trustee is prohibited from participating in the election by another provision of this Trust Agreement.

(3) The Trustee may retain any property originally owned by me, and invest and reinvest in all forms of real and personal property, whether inside or outside the United States, including without limitation, common trust funds of a corporate Trustee, mutual funds, partnerships (including a partnership in which a Trustee is a partner), and other forms of joint investment (which may be, but need not be, managed by, advised by, or affiliated with, a Trustee), without regard to any principal of law limiting delegation of investment responsibility by the Trustee.

(4) The Trustee may compromise claims or debts and abandon or demolish any property which the Trustee shall determine to be of little or no value.

(5) The Trustee may sell property at public or private sale, for cash or upon credit, exchange property for other property, lease property for any period of time, and give options of any duration for sales, exchanges, or leases.

(6) The Trustee may join in any merger, reorganization, voting-trust plan, or other concerted action of security holders, and delegate discretionary powers (including investment powers) in entering into the arrangement.

(7) The Trustee may borrow from anyone, even if the lender is a Trustee under this Trust Agreement, and may pledge property as security for repayment of the funds borrowed, including the establishment of a margin account. No Trustee shall be personally liable for any such loan, and such loan shall be payable only out of the assets of the trust.

(8) The Trustee may apply to the use of any individual, any property, whether principal or income, that otherwise would or could be distributed directly to such individual.

(9) The Trustee may, with respect to any real property: (i) partition, subdivide, or improve such property, enter into agreements concerning the partition, subdivision, improvement, zoning, or management of any real estate in which the trust has an interest, impose or extinguish restrictions on any such real estate; and (ii) sell, exchange, lease for any period, alter, or otherwise dispose of such property and execute any instrument necessary to do that.

(10) The Trustee may employ a custodian, hold property unregistered or in the name of a nominee (including the nominee of any bank, trust company, brokerage house, or other institution employed as custodian), and pay reasonable compensation to a custodian in addition to any fees otherwise payable to the Trustee, notwithstanding any rule of law otherwise prohibiting such dual compensation.

(11) The Trustee may hold two or more trusts hereunder as a combined fund (allocating ratably to such trusts all receipts from, and expenses of, the combined fund) for convenience in investment and administration, but no combination of trusts for this purpose may alter their status as separate trusts.

(12) The Trustee may employ and rely on advice given by accountants, attorneys, investment bankers, and other expert advisers, and employ agents, clerks, and other employees, and pay reasonable compensation to such advisors or employees in addition to fees otherwise payable to the Trustee, notwithstanding any rule of law otherwise prohibiting such dual compensation.

(13) The Trustee shall have the power to allocate receipts, disbursements and losses to principal or to income, in accordance with generally accepted accounting practices. The provisions of Section _____ through _____ of the _____ [state] Revised Code shall not apply to any receipt or expense received or incurred by the Trustee.

D. Irrevocability and Trustee's Power to Amend.

(1) This trust is irrevocable and I shall have no power to amend any of the trust terms.

(2) The Trustee, however, shall have the fiduciary power, acting alone, to amend the trust in any manner required for the sole purpose of ensuring that the trust is at all times a qualified personal residence trust described in Treas. Regs. Section 25-2702-5(c). Reference to the Code and Regulations shall be deemed to incorporate changes enacted or promulgated after the date of this Trust Agreement to whatever extent is necessary to ensure such continuing qualification.

E. Various Provisions Regarding Trustee.

(1) "Interested Trustee" means for any trust a Trustee who is (i) me, (ii) a transferor of property to the trust, including a person whose qualified disclaimer resulted in property passing to the trust, or (iii) a person who is or in the future may be eligible to receive income or principal pursuant to the terms of the trust. A Trustee described in item (ii) is an Interested Trustee only with respect to the transferred property (including income and gain on, and reinvestment of, such property). A person is described in (iii) even if the person's only interest is a remote contingent remainder interest, but is not described in (iii) if the person's only interest is as a potential appointee under a nonfiduciary power of appointment held by another person the exercise of which will take effect only in the future, such as a testamentary power held by a living person. A Trustee who is not an Interested Trustee is a "Disinterested Trustee."

(2) Under this Trust Agreement, if two or more separate trusts with the same beneficiaries and same terms are created, either by direction or pursuant to the exercise of discretion, I intend that the separate trusts may have, but need not have, the same investments and may follow, but need not follow, the same pattern of distributions. The Trustee's powers shall be exercisable separately with respect to each trust.

(3) Except to the extent specifically provided otherwise in this Trust Agreement, references to the Trustee shall, in their application to a trust hereunder, refer to all those from time to time acting as Trustees of that trust and if two or more Trustees are eligible to act on a given matter they shall act by a majority. In the exercise of discretion over distributions, if this Trust Agreement provides that certain Trustees may participate in distributions limited by an ascertainable standard, while a different set of Trustees may participate in distributions for any purpose, if the two sets of Trustees (each acting by its own majority) want to distribute the same item of income or principal to different recipients, the distribution desired by the set of Trustees participating in distributions for any purpose shall prevail.

(4) Individual Trustees shall receive reasonable compensation for their services, unless the Trustee waives compensation. A corporate trustee shall be compensated in accordance with its fee schedule as in effect at the time of payment. I authorize a corporate trustee to charge additional fees for services it provides to a trust hereunder that are not comprised within its duties as Trustee, for example a fee charged by a mutual fund it administers in which a trust hereunder invests, or a fee for providing an appraisal, or a fee for providing corporate finance or investment banking services. I also recognize that a corporate trustee may charge separately for some services comprised within its duties as Trustee, for example a separate fee for investing cash balances or preparing tax returns. Such separate or "additional" charges shall not be treated as improper or excessive merely because they are added on to a basic fee in calculating total compensation for service as Trustee.

(5) No Trustee shall be liable to anyone for anything done or not done by any other Trustee or by any beneficiary.

(6) The fact that a Trustee is active in the investment business shall not be deemed a conflict of interest, and purchases and sales of investments may be made through a corporate trustee or through any firm of which a corporate or individual Trustee is a partner, shareholder, proprietor, associate, employee, owner, subsidiary, affiliate or the like, and property of a trust hereunder may be invested in individual securities, mutual funds, partnerships, private placements, or other forms of investment promoted, underwritten, managed, or advised by a Trustee or such a firm.

(7) I authorize the Trustee to employ and rely on advice given by investment counsel, to delegate discretionary investment authority over investments to investment counsel, and to pay investment counsel reasonable compensation in addition to fees otherwise payable to the Trustee, notwithstanding any rule of law otherwise prohibiting such dual compensation. The Trustee may favor, but need not favor, retention of assets originally owned by me.

(8) The fact that a Trustee (or a firm of which a Trustee is a member or with which a Trustee is otherwise affiliated) renders legal or other professional services to a trust hereunder shall not be deemed a conflict of interest, and I authorize the Trustee to pay fees for such services to such Trustee or firm without prior approval of any court or any beneficiary and whether or not there is a co-trustee to approve such payment.

(9) If I have given the Trustee discretion concerning distributions of income or principal, I intend that discretion to be absolute and uncontrolled, and subject to correction by a court only if the Trustee should act utterly without reason, or in bad faith, or in violation of specific provisions of this Trust Agreement. If I have set forth general guidelines (as opposed to directions or dollar limits) for the Trustee in making distributions, I intend those guidelines to be merely suggestive and not to create an enforceable standard whereby a distribution could be criticized or compelled. It is my strong belief that the Trustee will be in the best position to interpret and carry out the intentions expressed herein under changing circumstances. This subparagraph E.(9) shall not, however, apply to any standards framed in terms of health, education, support (including support in an accustomed manner of living), or maintenance as I intend those words to create an ascertainable standard for federal tax purposes when applied to a Trustee's power or a power held individually, although even in those cases I want the holder of the power to have as much discretion as is consistent with that intent.

(10) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Trust Agreement, each Trustee is prohibited from making, voting on, or otherwise participating in any discretionary distribution of income or principal from a trust that would discharge, or substitute for, a legal obligation of that Trustee, including the obligation to support a beneficiary of the trust. Subject to that, in exercising discretion over distributions, the Trustee may consider, or may disregard, other resources available to any beneficiary.

(11) Unless I have specifically provided otherwise, and subject to any ascertainable standard governing its exercise, the Trustee's discretionary power to distribute income or principal includes the power to distribute all of such income and/or principal to one or more members of a class to the exclusion of others whether or not the terms of the trust specifically mention that possibility.

(12) A Trustee may irrevocably release one or more powers held by the Trustee while retaining other powers.

(13) Any Trustee may delegate to a co-trustee any power held by the delegating Trustee, but only if the co-trustee is authorized to exercise the power delegated. A delegation may be revocable, but while it is in effect the delegating Trustee shall have no responsibility concerning the exercise of the delegated power.

F. Alternate or Successor Trustee.

(1) During the Initial Term, I shall have the right to dismiss any Trustee and to appoint a successor to such dismissed Trustee.

(2) Any Trustee may resign at any time without court approval and whether or not a successor has been appointed.

(3) Each individual Trustee (including successors) shall have the right to appoint a successor individual Trustee by an instrument in writing, such appointment to take effect upon the death, resignation or incapacity of the appointing Trustee. An appointment may be changed or revoked until it takes effect. If I have named an alternate or alternates to the appointing Trustee in this Trust Agreement, the appointment of a successor under this paragraph shall take effect only if and when those alternates fail to qualify or cease to act.

(4) The individuals (and any corporation) acting as the Trustees may at any time acting unanimously by written instrument appoint an individual or corporation with fiduciary powers as a Co-Trustee.

(5) If the office of Trustee of a trust is vacant, and no successor takes office pursuant to any other provision of this Trust Agreement, an individual or corporation with fiduciary powers may be appointed as Trustee by a majority of my adult descendants then living and competent.

(6) The separate trusts hereunder may have different Trustees pursuant to these provisions.

(7) In the event that the sole Trustee of a trust is a beneficiary of the trust, I intend that the Trustee may, but shall not be required to, appoint a co-trustee as provided herein. I do not intend that a beneficiary's interest be merged or converted into a legal life estate or estate for years because the beneficiary is the sole Trustee, but if despite this expression of intent that would happen under applicable law, then a co-trustee shall be appointed in preference to such merger or conversion.

(8) A Trustee may be appointed pursuant to this Section 11 for a limited purpose or to hold only specified powers.

G. Accountings and Other Proceedings.

(1) I direct that a trust hereunder be subject to independent administration with as little court supervision as allowed by law. The Trustee shall not be required to render to any court annual or other periodic accounts, or any inventory, appraisal, or other returns or reports, whether required by statute or otherwise. The Trustee shall take such action for the settlement or approval of accounts at such times and before such courts or without court proceedings as the Trustee shall determine. The Trustee shall pay the costs and expenses of any such action or proceeding, including, but not limited, to the compensation and expenses of attorneys and guardians, out of the property of the trust. The Trustee shall not be required to register any trust hereunder.

(2) I direct that in any proceeding relating to a trust hereunder service upon any person under a legal disability need not be made when another person not under a disability is a party to the proceeding and has the same interest as the person under the disability. The person under the disability shall nevertheless be bound by the results of the proceeding. The same rule shall apply to nonjudicial settlements, releases, exonerations, and indemnities.

H. Exemption from Security. No Trustee shall be required to give bond or other security in any jurisdiction, and if despite this exoneration a bond is nevertheless required, no sureties shall be required.

SECTION 12. MAXIMUM DURATION FOR TRUSTS

The maximum duration for trusts means the longest period that property may be held in trust under this Trust Agreement under the applicable rules governing perpetuities, vesting, accumulations, the suspension of alienation, and the like (including any applicable period in gross such as twenty-one (21) years or ninety (90) years). If under those rules the maximum duration may be determined (or alternatively determined) with reference to the death of the last survivor of a group of individuals alive on the date of this Trust Agreement, those individuals shall consist of me, all of my descendants living on the date of this Trust Agreement, and any surviving spouse of a descendant of mine if both the descendant and the spouse were living on the date of this Trust Agreement.

SECTION 13. MISCELLANEOUS AND DEFINITIONS

A. Children and Descendants. "Children" and "descendants" shall include children and descendants whenever born or adopted.

B. Minor. Whether an individual is a minor or an adult shall be determined under the laws of the individual's domicile at the time in question.

C. Tax Related Terms. References to the "Internal Revenue Code" or "Code" or to provisions thereof are to the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended at the time in question. References to the "Regulations" or "Treas. Regs." are to the Treasury Regulations under the Code. If, by the time in question, a particular provision of the Code has been renumbered, or the Code has been superseded by a subsequent federal tax law, the reference shall be deemed to be to the renumbered provision or the corresponding provision of the subsequent law, unless to do so would clearly be contrary to my intent as expressed in this Trust Agreement, and a similar rule shall apply to references to the Regulations.

D. Gross Estate. "Gross estate" means my gross estate as determined for federal estate tax purposes (or for state death tax purposes where relevant).

E. Disabled Trustee. A Trustee is "disabled," and while disabled shall be unable to serve or to continue serving, if the next successor Trustee receives written certification that the examined Trustee is physically or mentally incapable of managing the affairs of the trust, whether or not there is an adjudication of the Trustee's incompetence.

(1) This certification shall be valid only if it is signed by at least two (2) physicians, each of whom has personally examined the Trustee and at least one (1) of whom is board certified in the specialty most closely associated with the alleged disability.

(2) This certification need not indicate any cause for the Trustee's disability.

(3) A certification of disability shall be rescinded when a serving Trustee receives a certification the former Trustee is capable of managing the trust's affairs. This certification, too, shall be valid only if it is signed by at least two (2) physicians, each of whom has personally examined the Trustee and at least one (1) of whom is board certified in the specialty most closely associated with the former disability.

(4) No person is liable to anyone for actions taken in reliance on the certifications under this Paragraph E, or for dealing with a Trustee other than the one removed for disability based on these certifications.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the Trustee and I have signed this Trust Agreement, in duplicate, on the day and year first above written.

FORM 20.43 Real estate investment trust--general investments--declaration of trust

COMMENT

A real estate investment trust (REIT) is a pass through entity used for investment in real estate by holders of beneficial interests. If specific requirements are met, the REIT will not be required to pay tax. The requirements are designed to insure that (1) the organization is a trust or corporation with widely held beneficial interests, (2) its principal assets are real estate, (3) it is engaged only in passive investment, and (4) it distributes its income currently to its beneficiaries. For more detailed discussion of specific requirements that a corporation, trust, or association must meet in order to qualify as a REIT, see TB § 20.08, at the beginning of this chapter.

Form of organization:

The organization must be either a corporation, a trust, or an association that is managed by one or more directors or trustees. In order for a trust or an association to qualify for REIT status, it must possess those characteristics that would require it to be taxed as a corporation, but for the real estate investment trust provisions of the Code. Thus, the trustee must have the rights and powers which would meet the "centralization of management" test for the taxability of an association as a corporation. This includes exclusive authority to manage the trust. A trust may qualify despite the shareholders' rights to elect or remove trustees, to terminate the trust, and to ratify amendments proposed by the trustees.

Beneficial ownership of the trust must be evidenced by transferable shares, or by transferable certificates of beneficial interest, and must be held by 100 or more persons. This 100-person ownership must exist during at least 335 days of a taxable year of 12 months, or during a proportionate part of a taxable year of less than 12 months. This requirement does not apply for the first tax year of the REIT. Shares are considered "transferable" even though the trustee has the power to redeem shares or to refuse to transfer shares whenever he believes in good faith that such action is required to maintain the trust's status as a real estate investment trust. A second class of beneficial interest shares granting dividend and liquidation preference is permissible.

Real estate assets:

Under the first asset qualification test, at least 75 percent of the value of the organization's total assets must consist of real estate assets, cash and cash items (including receivables) and government securities. This test must generally be met at the close of each quarter of the taxable year. Not more than 25 percent of the value of the trust's total assets may be invested in other securities. "Real estate assets" means real property (including "interests in real property" and interests in mortgages on real property) and shares in other qualified real estate investment trusts. "Interests in real property" include fee ownership and coownership of land or leaseholds, options to acquire land or leaseholds, or improvements with respect to any of the foregoing, but exclude mineral, oil, or gas royalty interests. Real property includes land or improvements of an inherently permanent nature, including structural components such as plumbing systems, etc. (See TB § 20.08).

Sources of income:

In order to insure that the trust will engage in primarily "passive" real estate investment, the Code requires that at least 75 percent of its gross income must consist of real estate items, and at least 95 percent must consist of those real estate items plus other investment items. A trust is disqualified if 30 percent or more of its gross income is derived from the sale of certain property. (See TB § 20.08).

Rents from real property:

Rents from real property are included in the sources of income that must satisfy the 75 percent and 95 percent income-source tests. Rents include rent from interests in real property; charges for services customarily furnished in connection with the rental of real property, whether or not they are separately stated; and rent attributable to personal property which is leased in connection with a lease of real property, provided that the amount allocable to the personal property (in accordance with a prescribed formula) is less than 15 percent of total rent. To ensure that such rent is "passive" in nature, the Code excludes rent received under circumstances that are based upon sharing of profits, the trust's equity interest in the lessee, and the active conduct of business. Rents include rents based on the net income of a tenant, but only if the tenant itself receives substantially all of its income from subleasing the property, and these sublease rents would qualify as rents if received by the REIT. Rents derived in connection with providing services, unless provided by an independent contractor, will not qualify as rents from real property. Certain services, such as providing parking facilities on an unreserved basis to tenants, do not require an independent contractor. (See TB § 20.08).

Failure to meet income-source tests:

A trust is not deprived of its status as a qualified trust if it fails to meet the income-source tests, provided that such failure is due to reasonable cause and not willful neglect. The trust must report the nature and amount of each item of its gross income in a separate schedule attached to its income tax return. Even if the trust complies with these requirements, it must still pay a 100 percent tax on the greater of the amount by which it fails to meet the 75 percent or 95 percent income-source test. (See TB § 20.08).

Current distribution of income:

In order to retain its qualified status, a trust must distribute to its shareholders at least 90 percent of its annual real estate investment trust taxable income and net income derived from foreclosure property, less the amount of any net loss sustained from prohibited transactions and any penalties paid with respect to deficiency dividends. The required percentage of income must be distributed in the taxable year during which it is earned or in the next succeeding year. However, if a trust fails to distribute at least 85 percent of its ordinary income and 95 percent of its capital gain net income during the year in which it is earned, it must pay a 4 percent nondeductible excise tax on the difference between such amount and the amount actually distributed. (See TB § 20.08).

Deficiency dividend procedure:

A trust is not deprived of its qualified status for failure to distribute the required percentage of income provided that it complies with a deficiency dividend procedure. This procedure permits distributions of income, qualifying for a deduction, to be made in subsequent years if a "determination" results in an adjustment that either increases that amount of income which the trust is required to distribute in order to meet the distribution requirement for a prior year in question, or decreases the amount of the deduction for dividends previously paid for that year. A "determination" refers to a decision of the Tax Court or any other court of competent jurisdiction which has become final, a closing agreement, or an agreement relating to the tax liability of the trust. The deficiency dividend must be paid within 90 days after the determination and a claim for its deduction must be filed after its payment, but not later than 120 days after the date of the determination. The trust pays interest and penalties in conjunction with this procedure. (See TB § 20.08).

Taxation of REITs and shareholders:

Although a qualified trust is taxable at regular corporate rates, it is entitled to a deduction for the amount of dividends paid in computing its taxable income for the year. In this connection, a trust must distribute most of its income as dividends in order to obtain qualified trust status.

Beneficiaries of a trust are taxed in essentially the same manner as any corporate shareholder, except that no exclusion or deduction for dividends received is allowable to either an individual or corporate beneficiary. Thus, distributions out of "earnings and profits" are fully taxable ordinary income when received. The portion of any distribution designated by the trust as a "capital gain dividend" is treated by the beneficiary as long-term capital gain. Distributions out of depreciation reserves by a trust without earnings or profits are treated as a return of capital upon the shares, and thereafter as capital gain. For further discussion of taxation of a REIT and its shareholders, see TB § 20.09.

Since the real estate investment trust is a creature of the tax law, this form for a trust which intends to engage in general real estate investments follows closely the specifications of the Revenue Code and the Regulations. There are provisions for transferable shares and for the exercise of broad powers by the trustees. In addition, there are provisions insuring continuity of life, and limited liability on the part of shareholders. Thus, it is clear that the trust would be taxable as a corporation if it did not qualify as a real estate investment trust. Several special powers are given to the shareholders. They may elect and remove trustees, terminate the trust, and approve amendments to the basic declaration of trust. These rights may be granted to the shareholders without reducing the powers of the trustees below the minimum required by the statute.

It should be noted that local law may pose problems. In the absence of a state statute which recognizes a real estate investment trust, there may be questions connected with the rule against perpetuities, personal liability of the trustees or beneficial owners, and the permissible uses of a trust. In addition, consideration must be given to federal and state regulations relating to the sale of securities. As to the rule against perpetuities, this instrument provides that in any jurisdiction where it is found that the holding of property by the trust violates the local rule against perpetuities the trust is to continue only for specified lives in being plus 21 years.

FORM

THIS DECLARATION OF TRUST made _____ [month]
 _____ [day] , _____ [year] , by the Trustees of Queensbrook Real Estate Investment Trust, creating a trust primarily to invest and reinvest in real estate, interests in real estate, leasehold interests, mortgages, and interests in mortgages secured by real estate. All funds contributed to or invested in the Trust by those who have acquired and who will acquire beneficial interests herein as hereinafter provided are referred to herein as the "Shareholders."

WHEREAS, the Trustees hereunder have acknowledged the receipt of valid consideration and have agreed to hold and manage the same and any property added thereto; and

WHEREAS, the Trustees for the purpose of defining the respective interests of the Shareholders in the Trust, have agreed to issue to each Shareholder negotiable certificates of beneficial interest or shares ("Shares"), in the respective amounts and with the designations and form as hereinafter provided.

NOW, THEREFORE, the Trustees hereby declare that they assume the duties of Trustees hereunder and will hold all assets of the Trust, including those received as above recited and those to be received as hereinafter provided, and all rents, income, profits, and gains therefrom, from whatever source derived, in trust for the Shareholders in accordance with the terms and conditions hereinafter in this instrument provided and all amendments thereto, hereinafter called the Declaration.

Article 1

The Trust

Section 1. Name. The Trust shall be designated as "Queensbrook Real Estate Investment Trust," in which name the Trustees may conduct business, sue and be sued, and otherwise do all things and take all action they may deem appropriate to carry out the business and preserve the assets of the Trust except as is provided in Article IV, Section 6, with respect to the holding of title to property owned by the Trust.

Section 2. Location. The Trust's principal office shall be in such city, town, or locality in the United States of America as the Trustees shall from time to time determine. The Trust may have such other offices or places of business as the Trustees may from time to time determine.

Section 3. Nature of Trust. The Trust shall be of the type commonly termed a business trust, and shall not be a general partnership, limited partnership, partnership association, or corporation. The Shareholders are cestuis que trustent hereunder. No Trustee or Shareholder shall ever be, in any way whatsoever, liable or responsible hereunder as a partner. This Trust is intended to have the status of a "real estate investment trust" as that term is defined in Part II, Subchapter M of Chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as now enacted and as it may be hereafter amended, and the Declaration and all actions of the Trustees shall be construed in accordance with such intent.

Section 4. Purposes. The Trust shall be primarily engaged in the investment and reinvestment of its funds and other assets in real property, interests in real property, mortgages secured by real property, leasehold interests in real property, and interests in mortgages on real property. If, however, the Trustees are of the opinion that investment in real estate assets at any particular time is not prudent because of market or economic conditions, the Trust's assets may be maintained in cash or government securities, or both or any other investments which will not result in the Trust losing its status as a "real estate investment trust" under Section 856 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 as now enacted or hereinafter amended. The Trust shall not be primarily engaged in investing, reinvesting, or trading in securities. It is the express purpose and objective of the Trust to have invested from time to time such percentages of the value of its total assets in real property, leaseholds thereof, mortgages on real property, or interests therein, cash, cash items, and government securities, and to follow such investment policies, as may be required in order that the Trust qualify (so long as such qualification, in the opinion of the Trustees, is advantageous to its Shareholders) as a "real estate investment trust."

Section 5. Particular Policies. The Trust shall follow such policies as are required to maintain its qualification as a "real estate investment trust." If the Trust shall desire to issue or sell Shares or other securities in any state or jurisdiction in which there shall be in force and effect a law, rule, or regulation of the governmental body having jurisdiction over any such sale requiring that this Declaration contain one or more particular limitations or restrictions on the Trust's policies or operations, then anything else in this Declaration contained to the contrary notwithstanding, the Trustees may, without the Shareholders' prior approval, amend this Declaration to incorporate herein any such limitations or restrictions. These shall include, without affecting the generality of the foregoing, limitations or restrictions on the issuance of senior securities, borrowing money, requiring appraisals in particular circumstances, making loans, underwriting securities of others, investing in unimproved real estate, investing in mortgages, investing in securities of other real estate companies, investing in real estate contracts of sale and commodities, issuing different classes of shares or options or redeemable securities, and on the amount of operating expenses that may be incurred. The Trustees shall also have the power to provide that no further amendments of this Declaration may be made without the Shareholders' consent.

Section 6. Definitions. The terms "value," "real estate assets," and "interests in real property" as used in this Declaration of Trust shall have the same meaning as the definitions of these words contained in Part II of Subchapter M of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as now enacted, and as hereafter amended.

The terms "mortgage" or "mortgages" as used herein shall mean and include all forms of liens on real estate and all transfers of real estate for security purposes, including deeds of trust and all other forms of security transfers.

Article II

Shares

Section 1. Shares: Certificates of Beneficial Interest. The units into which the beneficial interests in the Trust will be divided shall be designated as Shares. The certificates evidencing ownership of shares in the Trust will be designated as Certificates of Beneficial Interest or Shares, and shall be in such form as the Trustees may from time to time prescribe. The registered holders thereof shall be designated as Shareholders. The number of Shares authorized hereunder shall be unlimited. There shall be no limit upon the number of Shares to be issued. All Shares shall be without par value, shall be of the same class, shall have equal voting, distribution, liquidation, and other rights, and shall be fully paid and nonassessable.

The Shareholders shall have no legal title or interest in the Trust property and no right to a partition thereof or to an accounting during the continuance of the Trust but only the rights expressly provided in the Declaration.

Section 2. Sale of Shares. The Trustees may from time to time issue, sell by private or public offering, or exchange Trust shares in such number or for such sums of money, real estate assets, or other considerations, and on such terms as they deem proper. The Shareholders shall have no preemptive rights of any kind whatsoever. Preemptive rights are hereby defined to include, but not be limited to, the right to purchase or subscribe for or otherwise acquire any Trust shares of any class, whether now or hereafter authorized, or any securities or obligations convertible into or exchangeable for, or any right, warrant, or option to purchase such shares, whether or not they are issued or disposed of for cash, property, or other consideration of any kind. The Trustees shall cause to be issued certificates of beneficial interest to evidence the ownership of Shares. Shares when issued for consideration in accordance with the provisions of this Section 2 shall be fully paid and nonassessable.

Section 3. Offering of Shares. The Trustees may cause to be made from time to time offerings of the Trust Shares to the public at public offering prices deemed appropriate. For this purpose, the Trustees may enter into a contract with an underwriter upon such terms and with such commissions for its services as the parties may agree upon.

Section 4. Shares Purchased by Trust. The Trust may repurchase or otherwise acquire its own shares on such terms and conditions as the Trustees deem appropriate. For this purpose the Trust may create and maintain such reserves as are deemed necessary and proper.

Shares issued hereunder and purchased or otherwise acquired for the account of the Trust shall not, so long as they belong to the Trust, either receive distributions (except that they shall be entitled to receive distributions payable in Trust Shares) or be voted at any meeting of the Shareholders. Such Shares may, in the Trustees' discretion, be cancelled and the number of Shares authorized by thereby reduced or be held in the treasury and be disposed of by the Trustees at such time or times, to such party or parties, and for such consideration, as the Trustees may deem appropriate.

Section 5. Transferability of Shares. Shares in the Trust shall be transferable in accordance with the procedure prescribed from time to time in the Trustees' Regulations. The persons in whose names the Shares are registered on the Trust's books shall be deemed the absolute owners thereof and, until a transfer is effected on such books, the Trustees shall not be affected by any notice, actual or constructive, of any transfer.

Section 6. Ownership, Stop-transfer, and Redemption. The Shareholders, upon request, shall furnish to the Trustees, in writing, such particulars as to the direct and indirect ownership of the Shares as the Trustees deem necessary for compliance with the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 and the Regulations thereunder regarding beneficial ownership in a real estate investment trust, as those provisions and the Regulations may be amended from time to time. If the Trustees, at any time, in good faith, shall be of the opinion that beneficial ownership of Trust Shares has or may become so concentrated as to prevent the Trust from continuing to qualify as a real estate investment trust under the applicable provisions of the Internal Revenue Code, the Trustees may prevent the transfer of such Shares by means deemed equitable to them or to call such number of Shares for redemption as will be sufficient to maintain or bring the beneficial ownership of Shares in conformity with the applicable provisions of the Internal Revenue Code. The price to be paid for the redeemed Shares shall be (a) the sale price on the securities exchange on which the Shares are traded, as reported at the close of the last business day prior to the date of redemption, or (b) if the Shares are not traded on any securities exchange, the last bid quotation on such business day as reported by the National Association of Security Dealers or a similar organization selected by the Trustees, or (c) if not determined as above, the book value of the Shares. From the date of redemption, the holder of any Shares called for redemption shall no longer be entitled to any dividends, distributions, voting rights, or any other benefits of Shareholders, except the right to the redemption price.

Section 7. Effect of Transfer of Shares or Death, Insolvency, or Incapacity of Shareholders. Neither the transfer of Shares nor the death, insolvency or incapacity of any Shareholder shall operate to dissolve or terminate the Trust, nor shall it entitle any transferee, legal representative, or other person to a partition of the Trust property or to an accounting.

Article III Shareholders

Section 1. Meetings of Shareholders.

(a) Annual meetings. Annual meetings of the Shareholders shall be called upon not less than thirty (30) nor more than sixty (60) days' prior written notice, and at such times and places as the Trustees' Regulations shall prescribe, for the election of all Trustees, the transaction of such other business as Shareholders may be entitled to vote upon as hereinafter provided in this Article III, or as the Trustees may determine. At such meeting the Trustees shall make a report of the business and operations of the Trust. The holders of a majority of Shares in the Trust, present in person or by proxy, shall constitute a quorum at any meeting.

(b) Special meetings. Special meetings of the Shareholders may be called at any time upon not less than thirty (30) nor more than sixty (60) days' prior written notice, at such places as the Trustees' Regulations shall prescribe for annual meetings, by the Chairman of the Trustees or by a majority of the Trustees. A special meeting shall be called by any Trustee upon written request of Shareholders holding in the aggregate not less than twenty percent (20%) of the issued and outstanding Shares entitled to vote at such meeting. The call shall state the nature of the business to be transacted, and no other business shall be considered.

Section 2. Voting Rights of Shareholders. The Shareholders shall be entitled to vote only upon the following matters:

(a) Election of Trustees. Trustees shall be elected annually by vote of Shareholders. Each Shareholder shall be entitled to one vote in person or by proxy for each Share registered in his name. The candidates receiving the highest respective numbers of votes up to the number of trusteeships to be filled in the election shall be elected.

(b) Removal of Trustees. Any Trustee who willfully violates any provision of the Declaration or willfully acts contrary to the Shareholders' interests may be removed at any time as Trustee by the vote or written consent of the holders of a majority of the issued and outstanding Shares so declaring. Such vote or written consent shall be conclusive evidence of such willful violation or contrary action so far as such removal is concerned.

(c) Termination of Trust. The Trust may be terminated as provided in Article V, Section 1 hereof.

(d) Amendment of Declaration of Trust. No change in or amendment of the Declaration shall be made without the vote or written consent of the holders of a majority of the issued and outstanding Shares, except as otherwise provided in Section 5 of Article I hereof.

(e) Creation of Corporation to Acquire Assets of Trust. Any action on the part of the Trustees creating a corporation to acquire the Trust assets shall be subject to the approval of the holders of a majority of the issued and outstanding Shares.

(f) General. Anything in Section 8, paragraph (u) of Article IV, or in Articles V and VI of the Declaration to the contrary notwithstanding, any action taken by the Trustees to merge or consolidate or otherwise amalgamate the Trust with any other trust or corporation, to terminate the Trust, to reorganize the Trust as a corporation, or to amend the Declaration shall not become effective until such action is first approved by the vote or written consent of the holders of a majority of the issued and outstanding Shares.

Section 3. Distributions. It is the declared policy of the Trust that the Trustees shall (and may more frequently) declare and pay, within thirty (30) days after the end of each three calendar-month period in each calendar year after the calendar year in which the Trust is created, to the Shareholders as near to all of the net income of the Trust as shall be available therefor. No distribution shall be made, however, if the Trustees deem it imprudent to do so. Net income for the purpose of this Section shall mean net income for tax purposes adding back deductions for depreciation and similar noncash charges. In any event, however, the Trustees shall, from time to time, declare and pay to the Shareholders all distributions that may be necessary to continue to qualify the Trust as a "real estate investment trust" (provided that such qualification, in the opinion of the Trustees, is in the best interest of the Shareholders), as well as all additional distributions that the Trustees may in their discretion declare. Each distribution shall be accompanied by a written statement indicating, to the fullest extent practicable, its sources.

Section 4. Reports to Shareholders. The Trust shall transmit to the Shareholders annually, within two calendar months following the close of its fiscal year, a report which shall contain:

- (a) A statement by the Trustees as to the course of the Trust's operations during the fiscal year covered by such report, including a schedule of the funds distributed to the Shareholders during such fiscal year and the respective sources thereof;
- (b) A description of the major real estate assets and mortgages owned by the Trust at the close of such fiscal year, and other disclosures of material interest to the Shareholders; and
- (c) Financial statements consisting of a balance sheet, a profit and loss statement, and an analysis of surplus, all prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles, and generally conforming to the requirements for financial statements to be included in annual reports filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission by companies subject to its jurisdiction. Such statements shall be audited and certified by an independent certified public accountant.

As promptly as possible after the close of each quarterly period in each fiscal year, the Trustees shall transmit an income and expense statement to the Shareholders for such three-month period. Such statement need not be audited or certified by an independent certified public accountant.

Section 5. Books and Records. The Trust's books and records shall be open to inspection upon the written demand of a Shareholder at any reasonable time for a good faith purpose reasonably related to the interests of such Shareholder as a Shareholder, and shall be exhibited at any time when required by the demand at any Shareholders' meeting of 10% of the Shares represented at the meeting.

Such inspection by a Shareholder may be made in person or by agent or attorney, and the right of inspection includes the right to make extracts.

Demand of inspection other than at a Shareholders' meeting shall be made in writing upon the Chairman of the Trustees, or the Trust's Secretary or Chief Executive Officer.

The duly authorized officials of any state shall have the same right of inspection as a Shareholder.

Section 6. Nonliability of Shareholders. The Shareholders shall not be liable to assessment and the Trustees shall have no power to bind the Shareholders personally. Upon any debt, claim, demand, judgment, decree, or obligation of any nature whatsoever against or incurred by the Trust or by the Trustees or by a representative or agent of the Trust, in their respective capacities, whether founded upon contract, tort, or otherwise, resort shall be had solely to the Trust property and the Shareholders shall not be personally liable therefor. Any Shareholder held so personally liable shall be entitled to exoneration from the Trust's assets.

Section 7. Notice of Nonliability. In each written order, contract, bond, note, mortgage instrument, or obligation given or executed by the Trustees or with their authority, the Trustees shall cause to be inserted a provision that the Shareholders shall not be personally liable and that the other party shall look solely to the Trust property for the payment of any claim thereunder, and reference shall be made to the Declaration.

Section 8. Insurance. The Trust shall use its best efforts to obtain or cause to be obtained all customary types of insurance against liabilities or hazards.

Article IV

Trustees

Section 1. Number, Term of Office, Qualification, and Compensation of Trustees. There shall be not less than three nor more than five Trustees, as fixed in the Trustees' Regulations, all of whom shall be United States citizens. The term of office of each Trustee shall be from the date of his election or appointment until the next annual meeting of Shareholders and shall continue until the election and qualification of his successor by the Shareholders. The Trustees shall be individuals of full age. No person shall qualify as a Trustee until he shall have either signed the Declaration or agreed in writing to be bound in all respects by the Declaration. The Trustees shall be entitled to receive compensation for their services as Trustees, in amounts, and in the manner fixed by them, but not in any event to exceed one and one-half percent (1 1/2 %) annually of the Trust's gross income. There shall be no requirement that each Trustee receive compensation in the same amount.

Section 2. Resignation. A trustee may resign at any time by giving written notice to the Trustees at the Trust's principal office. Such resignation shall take effect on the date it is received or any later time specified therein. Unless otherwise specified therein, the acceptance of a resignation shall not be necessary to make it effective.

Section 3. Vacancies. The resignation, incompetency, or death of any or all of the Trustees shall not terminate the Trust or affect its continuity. During a vacancy, the remaining Trustee or Trustees may exercise the powers of the Trustees hereunder. Vacancies among the Trustees may be filled by a written designation signed by a majority of the remaining Trustees and entered in the Trust's records. The determination of a vacancy among the Trustees by reason of resignation, incompetency, or death, or for any other reason, when made by a majority of the remaining Trustees and stated in the instrument filling such vacancy, shall be final and conclusive for all purposes. If at any time, by reason of resignations, incompetencies, or deaths, there shall be no remaining Trustees, a meeting of the Shareholders shall be forthwith called for the election of successor Trustees. Any Shareholder or Shareholders owning of record an aggregate of 10% of the issued and outstanding Trust Shares shall be entitled to call such meeting and to nominate candidates for election as successor Trustees at any such election.

Section 4. Successor Trustees. Title to the Trust property shall vest in successor Trustees, upon written acceptance of their election or appointment without any further act. They shall thereupon have the same powers, duties, and exemptions as though originally named as Trustees in this Declaration. Such written acceptance shall be filed with the records of the Trust. A certificate signed by a majority of the Trustees as to who are or were Trustees at any time shall be conclusive and binding for all purposes.

Section 5. Actions by Trustees. The Trustees may act with or without a meeting. Any action of a majority of Trustees in office shall be conclusive and binding as an action of the Trustees. All agreements, deeds, and other instruments executed by a majority of the Trustees or executed by one Trustee pursuant to authorization of a majority of the Trustees given either at a meeting or in writing shall be effective and binding as if executed by all the Trustees.

Section 6. Title and Authority of Trustees. The Trustees, as joint tenants, shall hold the legal title to all property belonging to the Trust in its name, or in the name of one or more of the Trustees, as Trustees for the Trust, or in the name of one or more nominees for the Trust provided that each such nominee shall execute an instrument in recordable form recognizing the interest of the Trust in the property so held. The Trustees shall have absolute and exclusive control, management, and disposition thereof, and absolute and exclusive control over the management and conduct of the business affairs of the Trust, free from any power or control on the part of the Shareholders, in the same manner as if they were the absolute owners thereof, subject only to the express limitations in the Declaration.

Section 7. Advisor and Independent Contractor. In their exercise of the absolute control and management of all the Trust assets, the Trustees may contract for the services of an advisory firm or corporation, (the Advisor), to advise them in respect of investing and reinvesting the Trust funds in real property assets, interests in real property, mortgages secured by real property, leasehold interests in real property, interests in mortgages, or other assets. The total compensation to be paid to the Advisor and to be provided in such contract shall not exceed one-half ($61/2$) of one percent (1%) annually, of the Trust's gross income. Such contract may provide that the Advisor shall act as agent of the Trust in the purchase and sale of real estate, leaseholds, or real estate mortgages, or any interest therein, but without any independent compensation, direct or indirect, for such service. Such contract may also provide that the Advisor shall act as agent of the Trust in the management of real estate, leaseholds or real estate mortgages, or any interest therein, and receive commissions or other compensation for such management services at rates not in excess of those prescribed by real estate boards or similar organizations in the area in which the real estate is located, or the Trustees may employ a different firm or corporation to perform these functions for all or some of the Trust's properties and to receive such commissions and compensations. Such contracts shall provide that they shall not be assignable without the Trust's written consent. No employee or officer of the Trust, nor any investment advisor, shall receive a commission or other remuneration, directly or indirectly, in connection with the disposition or acquisition of Trust assets.

Section 8. Powers of Trustees. The Trustees shall have all the powers necessary, convenient, or appropriate to effectuate the purposes of the Trust and may take any action which they deem necessary or desirable and proper to carry out such purposes. Any determination of the purposes of the Trust made by the Trustees in good faith shall be conclusive. In construing the provisions of the Declaration, the presumption shall be in favor of the grant of powers to the Trustees.

Subject to the limitations contained in Article I hereof, the Trustees' powers shall include the following:

- (a) To purchase, acquire through the issuance of Shares in the Trust, obligations of the Trust, or otherwise, and to mortgage, sell, acquire on lease, hold, manage, improve, lease to others (without limitation as to the term of such lease, which may extend beyond the termination of the Trust), option, exchange for real or personal property, release, and partition interests in personal property and real estate interests of every nature, including freehold, leasehold, mortgage, ground rent, and other interests therein, and to erect, construct, alter, repair, demolish, or otherwise change buildings and structures of every nature.
- (b) To purchase, acquire through the issuance of Shares in the Trust, obligations of the Trust, or otherwise, option, sell, and exchange shares, bonds, notes, certificates of indebtedness, and securities of every nature.

- (d) To hold title to the property of the Trust as is provided in Article IV, Section 6, hereof.
- (e) To borrow money for the purposes of the Trust and to give notes, debentures, including debentures convertible into Shares, bonds, and other negotiable or nonnegotiable instruments of the Trust therefor; to enter into other obligations on behalf of and for the purposes of the Trust; and to mortgage, create security interests in, or pledge or cause to be mortgaged, have security interests created in, or pledged real and personal property of the Trust to secure such notes, debentures, bonds, instruments, or other obligations; and to subordinate the interests of the Trust in real and personal property, or interests therein to such other persons and on such conditions as is deemed desirable.

(f) To lend money on behalf of the Trust and to invest its funds.

(g) To create reserve funds for such purposes as they deem advisable.

(h) To deposit Trust funds in banks and other depositories without regard to whether such accounts will draw interest.

(i) To pay taxes and assessments imposed upon or chargeable against the Trust or the Trustees by virtue of or arising out of the Trust's existence, property, business, or activities.

(j) To purchase, issue, sell, or exchange Shares of the Trust as provided in Article II hereof. The good faith determination of the value of the consideration received by the Trust shall be within the Trustees' absolute discretion.

(k) To adopt and, from time to time, amend Trustees' Regulations which may include but shall not be limited to provisions relating to the time, place, and notice of meetings of the Trustees and of the Shareholders; record dates and other matters relating to voting and the use of proxies; designation, appointment, and compensation of representatives and agents and their number, duties, powers, authorities, and qualifications; the conditions for replacing lost, mutilated, or stolen Shares; and the procedure for amendment of the Trustees' Regulations.

(l) To exercise with respect to Trust property all options, privileges and rights, whether to vote, assent, subscribe, or convert, or of any other nature; to grant proxies; and to participate in and accept securities issued under any voting trust agreement.

(m) To participate in any reorganization, readjustment, consolidation, merger, dissolution, sale, or purchase of assets, lease, or similar proceedings of any corporation, partnership, or other organization in which the Trust shall have an interest, and in connection therewith to delegate discretionary powers to any reorganization, protective, or similar committee and to pay assessments and other expenses in connection therewith.

(n) To engage or employ agents, representatives, and employees of any nature, or independent contractors, including, without limiting the generality of the foregoing, Transfer Agents for the transfer of Trust Shares, Registrars, underwriters for the sale of Trust Shares, independent certified public accountants, attorneys at law, appraisers, and real estate agents and brokers; and to delegate to one or more Trustees, agents, representatives, employees, independent contractors, or other persons such powers and duties as the Trustees deem appropriate. The same persons may be employed in multiple capacities and may receive compensation from the Trust in as many capacities as they may be engaged or employed by the Trust. Any Trustee who serves in such capacities may receive compensation in addition to that provided in Article IV, Section 1 hereof.

(o) To determine conclusively the allocation between capital and income of the Trust's receipts, holdings, expenses, and disbursements, regardless of the allocation which might be considered appropriate in the absence of this provision.

(p) To determine conclusively the value from time to time and to revalue the Trust's real estate, securities, and other property, in accordance with such appraisals or other information as they deem satisfactory.

(q) To compromise or settle claims, questions, disputes, and controversies by, against, or affecting the Trust.

- (r) To solicit Shareholders' proxies.
- (s) To adopt a fiscal year for the Trust and to change such fiscal year.
- (t) To adopt and use a seal.
- (u) To merge or consolidate or otherwise amalgamate the Trust or any successor thereto with or into any other trust or corporation engaged or to be engaged in business activities substantially similar to those engaged in by the Trust, subject to the provisions of Article III, Section 2, paragraph (f).
- (v) To deal with the Trust property in every way, including the entering into joint ventures, partnerships, and all other combinations or associations, that it would be lawful for an individual to deal with the same, whether similar to or different from the ways herein and hereinabove specified.

Section 9. Trustees' Right to Own Shares in Trust. A Trustee may acquire, hold, and dispose of Trust Shares for his individual account and may exercise all rights of a Shareholder to the same extent and in the same manner as if he were not a Trustee. After the commencement of any public offering of the Trust Shares, the Trustees may purchase Shares only at the current offering price then prevailing in connection with such public offering, less all or any part of the selling or other commission as may be agreed with the Distributor.

Section 10. Transactions Between Trustees and Their Affiliates. No trustee shall receive a commission or other remuneration in connection with the acquisition or disposition of Trust assets. Nothing herein, however, shall prohibit any Trustee who is a lawyer, or any law firm with which he may be affiliated, from performing legal services for the Trust and receiving reasonable compensation for such services, nor shall anything herein prohibit any person who is a Trustee from performing services for the Trust, in addition to services as a Trustee, and being separately compensated therefor.

Section 11. Nonliability of Trustees. No Trustee shall be liable individually for any act or omission of any other Trustee or agent or representative of the Trust, or for negligence, error in judgment, or any act or omission except his own willful misfeasance, bad faith, or gross negligence in the conduct of his duties.

Every act or thing done or omitted, and every power exercised or obligation incurred by any of the Trustees in the administration of the Trust or in connection with its business or property, whether ostensibly in their own names or in their trust capacity, shall be deemed done, omitted, exercised, or incurred by them as Trustees and not as individuals. Upon any debt, claim, demand, judgment, decree, or obligation of any nature whatsoever against or incurred by the Trustees in their capacities as such, whether founded upon contract, tort or otherwise, resort shall be had solely to the Trust property.

Nothing contained in the Declaration shall protect a Trustee or agent or representative of the Trust against liability to the Trust or to the Shareholders for willful misfeasance, gross negligence, or bad faith in the conduct of his duties.

Section 12. Indemnification. The Trust shall indemnify and hold harmless each Trustee from and against all claims and liabilities, whether they proceed to judgment or are settled, to which such Trustee may become subject by reason of his being or having been a Trustee, or by reason of any action alleged to have been taken or omitted by him as Trustee, and shall reimburse him for all legal and other expenses reasonably incurred by him in connection with any such claim or liability. No Trustee, however, shall be indemnified or reimbursed under the foregoing provisions in relation to any matter unless it shall have been adjudicated that his action or omission did not constitute willful misfeasance, bad faith, or gross negligence in the conduct of his duties, or, unless, in the absence of such an adjudication, the Trust shall have received a written opinion from independent counsel, approved by the Trustees, to the effect that if the matter of willful misfeasance, bad faith, or gross negligence in the conduct of duties had been adjudicated, it would have been adjudicated in favor of such Trustee. The rights accruing to a Trustee under these provisions shall not exclude any other right to which he may be lawfully entitled, nor shall anything herein contained restrict the right of the Trust to indemnify or reimburse such Trustee in any proper cause even though not specifically provided for herein. No Trustee, however, may satisfy any right of indemnity or reimbursement granted herein or to which he may be otherwise entitled except out of the Trust property and no Shareholder shall be personally liable with respect to any claim of a Trustee for indemnity or reimbursement. Notwithstanding any of the provisions hereof, however, no Trustee shall be indemnified for any liability which he personally may have under the provisions of the Securities Act of 1933, as amended.

Section 13. Persons Dealing with Trustees. Any act of the Trustees purporting to be done in their capacity as such, or by their agents or representatives under their authority shall, as to other persons dealing with such Trustees, agents, or representatives be conclusively deemed to be within the purposes of the Trust and within the powers of the Trustees. No person dealing with the Trustees or any of them, or with their authorized agents or representatives, shall be bound to see to the application of any funds or property passing into their hands or control.

The receipt of the Trustees or any of them, or of their authorized agents or representatives, for moneys or other consideration paid or delivered to any of them shall be effectual discharges to persons paying or delivering the same.

Section 14. Administrative Powers of Trustees. The Trustees may pay the expenses of the Trust's organization and administration, including all legal and other expenses in connection with the preparation and carrying out of the plan for its formation, the acquisition of properties thereunder and the issuance of Shares thereunder; and may employ such officers, experts, counsel, managers, salesmen, agents, workmen, clerks and other persons as they think best, and fix their compensation and define their duties. Any Trustee so employed may receive special or additional compensation therefor.

Article V

Duration and Termination of Trust

Section 1. Termination of Trust. The Trust shall, unless sooner terminated as provided hereinafter, continue in existence until all of its assets have been liquidated and distributed to the Shareholders. The Trust may be terminated at any time by the Trustees (subject to the requirements of Article III, Section 2, paragraph (f) hereof) or, if the Trustees have not so terminated the Trust, by the affirmative vote of the holders of a majority of the issued and outstanding Shares.

If a court of competent jurisdiction in any state in which the Trust owns property shall finally determine that the holding of such property is or shall be in violation of any statutory or other law that is similar to the common law "rule against perpetuity," then with respect to property affected thereby, unless this Trust is terminated earlier as provided in this Section, it shall continue only until the expiration of 21 years after the death of the last survivor of the following named persons:

[Insert list of names of persons in being on the date of the execution of this Declaration whose lives will govern the duration of the Trust]

In connection with any termination of the Trust, the Trustees, upon receipt of such releases or indemnity as they deem necessary for their protection, may

(a) Sell and convert into cash the Trust property and distribute the net proceeds among the Shareholders ratably; or

(b) Convey the Trust property to one or more persons, entities, trusts, or corporations for consideration consisting in whole or in part of cash, shares of stock, or other property of any kind, and distribute the net proceeds among the Shareholders ratably, at valuations fixed by the Trustees, in cash or in kind, or partly in cash and partly in kind; provided that the proposal to proceed as described in this paragraph (b) shall have been set forth in the written approval of the Shareholders holding a majority of the Shares issued and outstanding.

Upon termination of the Trust and distribution to the Shareholders as herein provided, a majority of the Trustees shall execute and enter in the Trust's records an instrument setting forth the fact of such termination, and the Trustees shall thereupon be discharged from all further liabilities and duties hereunder, and the right, title, and interest of all Shareholders shall cease and be cancelled and discharged.

Section 2. Organization as a Corporation. Whenever the Trustees deem it for the best interests of the Shareholders that the Trust be organized as a corporation and such action shall have been approved as provided in Article III, Section 2, paragraph (e), the Trustees shall have full power to organize such corporation, under the laws of such State as they may consider appropriate, in the place and stead of the Trust without procuring the further consent of any Shareholder. In that event the capital stock of the corporation shall be and remain the same as fixed under this agreement and Declaration, and the Shareholders shall receive and accept stock in such corporation on the same basis as they hold Shares in the Trust.

Article VI Amendments

Section 1. When no Shares Outstanding. At any time when no shares in the Trust are outstanding, the Trustees may amend any provision of the Declaration. A certificate signed by a majority of the Trustees, setting forth such amendment and reciting that it was duly adopted by them, shall be lodged among the Trust records and shall be conclusive evidence of such amendment.

Section 2. When Shares Outstanding. At any time when Shares in the Trust are outstanding, except as provided in Article I, Section 5, the Declaration may be amended by the Trustees then in office only with the consent of Shareholders owning a majority of the issued and outstanding Shares. A certificate signed by a majority of the Trustees setting forth an amendment and reciting that it was duly adopted shall be lodged among the Trust records and recorded or filed in each public office or registry in which the Declaration shall be recorded or filed and shall be conclusive evidence of such amendment, and any restatement of any provision of the Declaration purported to be contained therein.

Article VII Miscellaneous

FORM 20.44 Real estate investment trust: trustee's regulations

COMMENT

The basic declaration for a real estate investment trust will rarely set out the various mechanics for operating the entity. As in the case of the corporation, these details are reserved for a code of regulations (or bylaws) which can be amended if necessary by the trustees without going back to the individual beneficiaries for their consent. The declaration of trust typically therefore provides that the trustees may adopt and, from time to time, amend regulations, which may include provisions covering meetings of trustees and of beneficiaries, voting procedures, appointment of agents, issuance and transfer of certificates of beneficial interest, and methods for amending the regulations. This set of regulations includes provisions for these and other matters generally covered in corporate bylaws.

FORM

TRUSTEES' REGULATIONS

Article I
Office, Seal, and Records

Section 1. The Trust's principal office shall be in _____ [city] , _____ [state] .
The Trust may also have offices at such other places as the Trustees may from time to time designate.

Section 2. The seal of this Trust shall be circular in form and have inscribed thereon the name of the Trust and the year and place of its formation (_____ [year]).

Section 3. The original or a certified copy of these regulations, including all amendments, shall be kept at the Trust's principal office and be available during usual business hours for inspection and copying.

Section 4. The Trust shall keep correct and complete books and records of accounts of its transactions, and minutes and other records of the proceedings or other actions of its Trustees and of their committees.

Section 5. The Trust shall maintain at its principal office, or at such other of its offices or agencies as the Trustees may specify, the original Certificate of Beneficial Interest or Share Ledger containing the names and addresses of all Shareholders and the number of Shares held by each Shareholder.

Article II Trustees

Section 1. There shall be initially five (5) Trustees. The Trustees in their sole discretion may increase the number of Trustees; provided, however, in all events the new Trustees shall be elected in accordance with the provisions of the Declaration of Trust.

Section 2. The Trustees shall elect one Trustee as Chairman of the Trustees, who shall act as chairman at all of the Trustees' meetings. The Chairman may appoint committees of the Trustees and perform all administrative acts on the Trustees' behalf, except to the extent that the Declaration of Trust specifically requires such acts to be performed by a majority of the Trustees. The Chairman shall be entitled to receive twenty-five (25) percent greater compensation than the other Trustees.

The Trustees may elect one or more of their number as Alternate Chairman of the Trustees. The Alternate Chairman shall, in order of election, exercise the powers and duties of the Chairman, in case of the Chairman's absence, or until a new Chairman shall be elected, in case of a vacancy in that office.

Section 3. Meetings of the Trustees shall be held at the Trust's principal office, or at such other place or places as the Trustees may fix from time to time.

Section 4. Regular meetings of the Trustees shall be held at such times as the Trustees shall determine, but not less frequently than quarter-annually.

Section 5. Special meetings of the Trustees shall be held whenever called by the Chairman or by any two other Trustees at such time and place as may be designated in the notice of the meeting.

Section 6. At least three (3) days' written notice shall be given of the time and place of any regular or special meeting of the Trustees. If the notice is sent by mail or telegraph, it shall be deemed to have been given when deposited in the mail or with the telegraph office for transmission. Notice of an adjourned meeting need not be given if the time and place of the adjourned meeting are announced at the meeting at which such adjournment action is taken.

Section 7. A majority of the Trustees in office shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business. The acts of a majority of the Trustees present at a meeting at which a quorum is present shall be the acts of the Trustees. The Trustees may, in lieu of a meeting, take any action which would be lawful if done at a meeting by having a certificate describing such action signed by the number of Trustees which would be required to vote for such action at a meeting and depositing such certificate in the minute book of the Trust.

Article III

Beneficiaries or Shareholders

Section 1. Meetings of the Shareholders shall be held at such place in _____ [city] or elsewhere as the Trustees may fix.

Section 2. The Annual Meeting of Shareholders for the election of Trustees shall be held at the Trust's principal office at 10 a.m., E.S.T., on the fourth Tuesday of _____ [month] in each year, unless the Trustees shall, by resolution, from time to time fix some other place, hour, or date.

Section 3. Written notice setting forth the time, place, and purpose of each such Annual Meeting shall be given to each Shareholder of record not less than twenty (20) nor more than fifty (50) days prior to the date fixed for the meeting. Notice sent by mail shall be deemed given when it is deposited in the mail addressed to the Shareholder at the address appearing on the Trust's records. Notice of an adjourned meeting need not be given if the time and place of the adjourned meeting is announced at the meeting at which such adjournment action is taken.

Section 4. If all of the Trustees shall resign, die, or become incompetent, a special meeting of Shareholders shall be called with the same requirements as to notice, time, place, and record date as herein provided for Annual Meetings to elect successor Trustees, except that the meeting may be called and nominations of Trustees may be made by any person or persons owning not less than ten percent (10%) of the Shares of record as of the record date fixed for such meeting.

Section 5. The Chairman of the Trustees, or such other person as the Trustees may designate, shall preside and the Secretary shall take the minutes at every Shareholders' meeting. In the absence of the Secretary, the Trustees shall appoint one of themselves, or such other person as they may select, to act as Secretary of the meeting.

Section 6. A majority of the Shares in the Trust present in person or by proxy shall constitute a quorum at a Shareholders' meeting.

Section 7. Proxies shall be executed in writing and filed with the Chairman of the Trustees or such other officer or office of the Trust as may be designated in the notice of the meeting. No revocation of a proxy, whether by voluntary action, death, or incapacity of the Shareholder granting it or otherwise, shall be effective until notice thereof has been received by the Trust or one of the Trustees. No proxy shall be valid more than one (1) year after its execution.

Section 8. Shares may be voted at the Shareholders' Annual Meeting as follows:

(a) Shares in the Trust registered in the name of a corporation may be voted by one of its officers or by a proxy appointed by an officer, unless the Trust's Trustees has, by resolution, appointed a general or special proxy, and notice thereof has been given to the Chairman of the Trustees, in which case such other proxy may vote such shares.

(b) Except as otherwise provided by law and as hereinafter provided in the case of certain fiduciaries, shares in the Trust registered in the name of two or more persons jointly, or as tenants in common, or in partnership may be voted by any one or more of such persons, either in person or by proxy.

(c) Shares of the Trust registered in the names of executors of an estate, trustees, or guardians may be voted by a majority of such fiduciaries, either in person or by proxy.

Section 9. The Trustees may appoint one or more Judges of Election, who need not be Shareholders, to act at Shareholders' meetings. If a Judge of Election fails to appear or refuses to act at a meeting, the Chairman of the Trustees or other person designated to preside at the Shareholders' meeting shall appoint a substitute Judge of Election. The Judge of Election shall determine the number of Shares in the Trust as of the applicable record date, the number of Shares represented at the meeting, the existence of a quorum, and all questions relating to voting, and shall count the votes and shall determine the results of any voting.

Section 10. For any lawful purpose, including but without being limited thereto, the determination of the Shareholders who are entitled to (a) receive notice of and vote at a meeting of the Shareholders, (b) receive payment of a distribution, and (c) participate in the execution of written approvals, the Trustees may fix a record date which shall not be earlier than the date on which the record date is fixed, and shall not be more than 60 days preceding the meeting, payment, final date of written approvals or waivers, or other event to which the record date relates. If no record date is fixed, the record date for determining the Shareholders who are entitled to receive notice of or to vote at a Shareholders' meeting shall be the close of business on the twentieth day prior to the date of the meeting.

Article IV Officers

Section 1. The Trustees may appoint a Chief Executive Officer, a Chief Financial Officer, and a Secretary. Each appointee shall have all of the authority and duties prescribed in these regulations and as may be prescribed by the Trustees. The Trustees may also appoint other agents and representatives to perform the business of the Trust. Each of these other agents and representatives shall have such authority and duties as the Trustees may prescribe.

Section 2. The Chief Executive Officer shall administer the affairs of the Trust. Except as otherwise directed by the Trustees, he may execute all contracts, leases, and other documents requiring execution by the Trust.

Section 3. In the event of the death, resignation, absence, or disability of the Chief Executive Officer then, except as otherwise directed by the Trustees, the Financial Officer shall perform the duties of the Chief Executive Officer until such time as a new Chief Executive Officer shall be appointed by the Trustees.

Section 4. The Chief Financial Officer shall have or provide for custody of the Trust's funds and securities which may come into his possession.

Section 5. The Secretary shall keep the minutes of all meetings of the Trustees and the Shareholders in appropriate minute books, and shall give all notices on behalf of the Trust including notice of the meetings of the Trustees and the Shareholders. Except as otherwise directed by the Trustees, he shall perform all of the customary duties of a Secretary.

Section 6. The Trustees may fix any compensation they deem appropriate for the services rendered by agents and representatives appointed under the authority of this Article 4.

Article V Shares

Section 1. Each Certificate of Beneficial Interest or Share shall state (a) that it represents units of Beneficial Interest in the Trust; (b) the name of the registered owner of the units of Beneficial Interest represented thereby; and (c) the number of Shares or units of Beneficial Interest which the certificate represents.

Section 2. Each Share certificate shall be signed by the Chief Executive Officer or other duly authorized agent of the Trust. The signature, however, may be a facsimile signature on any certificate which contains the manual signature of a person authorized to sign on behalf of a Transfer Agent acting for the Trust. If the Chief Executive Officer shall cease to be such prior to the issuance of a certificate signed by him, such certificate may, nevertheless, be issued by the Trustees with the same effect as if the Chief Executive Officer had not ceased to be such at the date of its issuance.

Section 3. Transfer of Shares may be made on the Share Ledger of the Trust only by the registered owner thereof or by an attorney duly authorized in writing and upon surrender of the Share certificate properly endorsed. The certificate shall be cancelled at the time of transfer. The Trustees may prescribe the requirements for any transfer of Shares otherwise than by an assignment validly executed by the registered owner or his attorney duly authorized as herein provided.

Section 4. The Trustees may establish transfer offices each in the charge of a Transfer Agent appointed by the Trustees, where the Shares of the Trust shall be transferable, and a Registry Office in the charge of a Registrar appointed by the Trustees, where the Shares shall be registered. If a Transfer Agent is appointed, no certificate for a Share shall be valid unless countersigned by him.

Section 5. If any Share or Certificate of Beneficial Interest is mutilated, lost, or destroyed, the holder thereof shall immediately notify the Trust or its Transfer Agent of that fact. The Trustees shall then cause one or more new certificates for the same number of shares or units in the aggregate to be issued to such beneficiary. The new certificate or certificates shall be issued, in the case of mutilation, upon surrender of the mutilated certificate, or in the case of loss or destruction, upon satisfactory proof of such loss or destruction. A deposit of indemnity shall be made by way of a bond or otherwise in such form and amount and with such surety as the Trustees may require, to indemnify the Trust against loss or liability by reason of the issuance of the new certificate or certificates.

Section 6. The Certificates of Beneficial Interest issued by the Trustees hereunder shall be in substantially the following form:

SHARE OR CERTIFICATE OF BENEFICIAL INTEREST

_____ [number] Shares

QUEENSBROOK REAL ESTATE INVESTMENT TRUST

This certifies that _____ [name] is the owner of _____ [number] fully paid Shares in Queensbrook Real Estate Investment Trust, a _____ [state] trust, which are held subject to a Declaration of Trust made on _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , which, together with any subsequent amendments thereto, is hereby incorporated in and made a part of this certificate.

The holder hereof has no legal or equitable interest, in any specific property of the Trust. No transfer of this certificate will affect Queensbrook Real Estate Investment Trust until this certificate has been surrendered at the offices of the Trust, or Transfer Agent, and the transfer recorded on the books of the Trust. This certificate is not valid until countersigned by the Transfer Agent and Registrar.

In witness whereof the Trustees have caused this certificate to be signed by the signatures of their duly authorized agents and a seal of the Trust to be imprinted thereon.

Article VI

Indemnification

Section 1. The Trust shall indemnify any person who was or is a party or is threatened to be made a party to any threatened, pending or completed action, suit or proceeding, whether civil, criminal, administrative, or investigative, including all appeals (other than an action, suit or proceeding by or in the right of the corporation) by reason of the fact that he is or was a trustee, director, officer or employee of the Trust, or is or was serving at the request of the Trust as a trustee, director, trustee, officer or employee of another corporation, partnership, joint venture, trust or other enterprise, against expenses (including attorneys' fees), judgments, decrees, fines, penalties and amounts paid in settlement actually and reasonably incurred by him in connection with such action, suit or proceeding if he acted in good faith and in a manner which he reasonably believed to be in or not opposed to the best interests of the Trust and, with respect to any criminal action or proceeding, had no reasonable cause to believe his conduct was unlawful. The termination of any action, suit or proceeding by judgment, order, settlement, conviction, or upon a plea of nolo contendere or its equivalent, shall not, of itself, create a presumption that the person did not act in good faith and in a manner which he reasonably believed to be in or not opposed to the best interest of the Trust and, with respect to any criminal action or proceeding, had reasonable cause to believe that his conduct was unlawful.

Section 2. The Trust shall indemnify any person who was or is a party or is threatened to be made a party to any threatened, pending or completed action or suit, including all appeals, by or in the right of the Trust to procure a judgment in its favor by reason of the fact that he is or was a trustee, director, officer or employee of the Trust, or is or was serving at the request of the Trust as a trustee, director, officer or employee of another Trust, partnership, joint venture, trust or other enterprise, against expenses (including attorneys' fees) actually and reasonably incurred by him in connection with the defense or settlement of such action or suit if he acted in good faith and in a manner he reasonably believed to be in or not opposed to the best interests of the Trust, except that no indemnification shall be made in respect of any claim, issue or matter as to which such person shall have been finally adjudged to be liable for negligence or misconduct in the performance of his duty to the Trust unless and only to the extent that the Court of Common Pleas or the court in which such action or suit was brought shall determine upon application that, despite the adjudication of liability but in view of all the circumstances of the case, such person is fairly and reasonably entitled to indemnity for such expenses as the Court of Common Pleas or such other court shall deem proper.

Section 3. To the extent that a director, trustee, officer or employee has been successful on the merits or otherwise in defense of any action, suit or proceeding referred to in Section 1 or 2, or in defense of any claim, issue or matter therein, he shall be indemnified against expenses (including attorneys' fees) actually and reasonably incurred by him in connection therewith.

Section 4. Except in a situation governed by Section 3, any indemnification under Section 1 or 2 (unless ordered by a court) shall be made by the Trust only as authorized in the specific case upon a determination that indemnification of the director, trustee, officer or employee is proper in the circumstances because he has met the applicable standard of conduct set forth in Section 1 or 2. Such determination shall be made (a) by a majority vote of Trustees acting at a meeting at which a quorum consisting of Trustees who were not parties to such action, suit or proceeding is present, or (b) if such a quorum is not obtainable (or even if obtainable), and a majority of disinterested Trustees so directs, by independent legal counsel (compensated by the Trust) in a written opinion, or (c) by the affirmative vote in person or by proxy of the holders of a majority of the shares entitled to vote in the election of Trustees, without regard to voting power which may thereafter exist upon a default, failure or other contingency.

Section 5. Expenses of each person indemnified hereunder incurred in defending a civil, criminal, administrative or investigative action, suit or proceeding (including all appeals), or threat thereof, may be paid by the Trust in advance of the final disposition of such action, suit or proceeding as authorized by the Trustees, whether a disinterested quorum exists or not, upon receipt of an undertaking by or on behalf of the director, trustee, officer or employee, to repay such amount unless it shall ultimately be determined that he is entitled to be indemnified by the Trust.

Section 6. The indemnification provided by this Article shall not be deemed exclusive of any other rights to which those seeking indemnification may be entitled as a matter of law or under the Articles, these Regulations, any agreement, vote of shareholders, any insurance purchased by the Trust, or otherwise, both as to action in his official capacity and as to action in another capacity while holding such office, and shall continue as to a person who has ceased to be director, trustee, officer or employee and shall inure to the benefit of the heirs, executors and administrators of such a person.

Section 7. The Trust may purchase and maintain insurance on behalf of any person who is or was a trustee, director, officer or employee of the Trust, or is or was serving at the request of the Trust as a director, trustee, officer or employee of another Trust, partnership, joint venture, trust or other enterprise against any liability asserted against him and incurred by him in any such capacity, or arising out of his status as such, whether or not the Trust would have the power to indemnify him against such liability under the provisions of this Article or of the laws of _____ [state] .

Article VII

Miscellaneous

Section 1. The fiscal year of the Trust shall be the calendar year.

Section 2. No Trustee, representative, or agent of the Trust shall have power or authority to borrow money in the Trust's behalf, to pledge its credit or to buy, sell, or mortgage its real property or securities except within the scope and to the extent of authority expressly delegated by resolution of the Trustees. Authority given by the Trustees for any of the above purposes may be general in scope or limited to specific instances.

Section 3. The Trustees may, by resolution, designate the Trust's representative or representatives who shall be authorized to act as signatory or signatories on the Trust's bank accounts and shall designate the number of signatures required. Any such signatory may, but need not, be a Trustee.

Section 4. Whenever any written notice must be given to the Trustees or the Shareholders, a waiver thereof in writing signed by a person entitled to such notice, whether before or after the time stated therein, shall be deemed equivalent to the giving of such notice. Attendance of a person either in person or by proxy at a meeting shall constitute a waiver of notice of the meeting unless such person attends it for the express purpose of objecting to the transaction of any business because the meeting was not lawfully called or convened.

Section 5. If any provision in these regulations shall be construed to be inconsistent with the provision of the Declaration of Trust, the provisions of the Declaration of Trust shall control.

Article VIII Amendments

These regulations may be amended at any regular or special meeting of the Trustees if notice of the proposed amendment is contained in the notice of meeting. The Trustees may make amendments to these regulations, with or without a meeting, by executing an instrument, which must be signed by all of them and entered in the records of the Trust.

FORM 20.45 Real estate investment trust: agreement with independent contractor

COMMENT

One of the basic requirements of a qualified real estate investment trust is that it be engaged only in "passive" investment. To insure that rent income will not represent profits from active operations, the statute "disqualifies" rent which is based upon profits of a tenant, or which is paid by a tenant in which the trust has at least a 10% interest, or which is received by a trust which owns property and which "furnishes or renders services to the tenants of such property, or manages or operates such property, other than through an independent contractor from whom the trust itself does not derive or receive any income." It is this last requirement which gives considerable significance to the role of the independent contractor in the scheme of operating a real estate investment trust. It should be noted that this function of the independent contractor is in respect of those services "usually or customarily furnished or rendered in connection with the mere rental of property." Payments attributable to "unusual" services do not qualify as "rent" even if such services are rendered through an independent contractor. If unusual services are to be rendered, the independent contractor should make a separate adequate charge for such services, and should retain the payment himself.

In the case of permissible services which are furnished through an independent contractor, the cost of such services may be borne by the trust. Nevertheless, any facilities through which the services are rendered (e.g., a heating plant located in the building) must be maintained and operated by the independent contractor.

The Regulations state, "The supplying of water, heat, and light; the cleaning of windows, public entrances, exits, and lobbies; the collection of trash; and the furnishing of elevator service, telephone answering service, unattended parking lots, and watchman or guard services are examples of services which may or may not (depending upon the circumstances) be customary or incidental to the mere rental of multiple-occupancy real estate ... The furnishing of hotel, maid, boarding house, motel, attended parking lot, warehouse, or storage services are examples of services which are not usually or customarily furnished or rendered in connection with the mere rental of real estate. Furthermore, where electric current is purchased and then sold to the tenants at a price in excess of the purchase price (for example, submetered), such purchase and sale must be made by the independent contractor and no income therefrom may inure, directly or indirectly, to the trust."

This agreement sets up the relationship between an independent contractor and a real estate investment trust. The intention is to give the independent contractor full authority to perform all the usual services with respect to the property owned by the trust, so that the trustees are completely free of any duties relating to management of the property itself. Among the services to be performed by the independent contractor are negotiating leases, collecting rents, making repairs, providing utilities, and purchasing insurance. The net income from the property is to be remitted regularly by the independent contractor to the trustees.

The Regulations emphasize the statutory requirement for an "independent contractor" rather than an "employee": "the manner in which he carries out his duties as independent contractor must not be subject to the control of the trust." The Regulations have eliminated the prohibition against the trustee's interest in the independent contractor. As to the requirement that the trust not derive any income from the contractor, the Regulations state that the trust may not receive income even in the form of dividends on stock in the contractor. There must be an arm's-length relationship between the trust and the contractor, with adequate compensation for all services. Such compensation may be a percentage of gross rent at the going rate for similar property in the same locality. Although the trust must delegate the management and operation of the property and the rendering of services to the tenants, the trust may retain its fiduciary duty to manage the trust itself. This latter function includes establishing rental terms, choosing tenants, entering into and renewing leases, dealing with taxes, interest, and insurance, making capital expenditures, and making decisions as to repairs.

A trustee may be an officer or employee of a corporation servicing real estate mortgages owned by a trust, because the prohibition against a trustee's interest in an independent contractor furnishing services to the trust property relates to real property owned by the trust rather than to property in which the trust holds a security interest. Similarly, a trust will not be disqualified if a trustee is a stockholder, officer, or employee of an organization rendering legal or investment advice to trustees.

Since the primary purpose of the arrangement with the independent contractor is to assure the trust's qualification, this agreement provides that it will terminate if counsel for the trust determines that its existence threatens classification as a real estate investment trust.

For a more detailed discussion of specific requirements that a corporation, trust, or association must meet in order to qualify as a REIT, including the requirement that the REIT be engaged only in a "passive" investment, see TB § 20.08.

THIS AGREEMENT made _____ [month] _____ [day] ,
 _____ [year] , between Queensbrook Real Estate Investment Trust (the "Trust"), a _____ [state] business trust, and Realty Management, Inc. (the "Manager"), a _____ [state] corporation.

WHEREAS, the Trust owns a number of real estate properties in the United States, intends to acquire more, and desires the services of an independent contractor capable of managing and operating such properties, and

WHEREAS, the Manager has the experience and staff necessary and suitable for the management and operation of real estate properties in the United States, is completely independent of the Trust, and desires to undertake the management and operation of the real estate properties of the Trust,

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the foregoing and the mutual covenants hereinafter set forth, the parties hereto do agree as follows:

1. Exclusive Appointment. The Manager shall serve, as an independent contractor, as the Trust's exclusive agent for the management of some or all of the real estate interests owned by the Trust, which shall be identified from time to time by the Trust in writing in the form attached hereto as Exhibit A.

2. Services of Manager. Subject to such express restrictions or limitations on its authority and to such written instructions as the Trustees may from time to time impose or give, the Manager shall, on behalf and for the account of the Trustees:

(a) Use its best efforts to lease and keep leased to desirable tenants all space held for lease.

(b) Promote such leasing by the use of any advertising, floor plans, circulars, promotional aids, and economic survey that it deems appropriate.

(c) Deal appropriately with all inquiries relating to leases and lease renewals referred to it by the Trust. All negotiations connected therewith shall be conducted by the Manager or under its direction.

(d) Use its best efforts to collect rent and other income from the real estate interests of the Trust. The Manager may, in its discretion, compromise claims for such rent and other income and, at the Trust's expense and with its approval, may institute legal proceedings in its own name or in the name of the Trust to collect the same, to oust or dispossess tenants or others occupying such real estate interests, and otherwise to enforce the rights of the Trust with respect thereto, and in its discretion may compromise or settle any such proceedings.

(e) At the expense of the Trust, cause to be made such ordinary repairs, alterations, and improvements to the real estate interests of the Trust and purchase such supplies and equipment for the maintenance and operation of such real estate interests as it deems advisable or necessary. In connection therewith the Manager may, at the expense of the Trust, engage architects, engineers, or similar experts acceptable to the Trust.

(f) Control, and arrange for the payment of the cost of maintenance and repairs. The Manager, however, shall not incur extraordinary expenditures of over _____ Dollars ($ _____) for any one item without the approval of the Trust except in those cases when, in its opinion, an emergency requires the expenditure before the Trust's approval can reasonably be obtained. In all such cases, however, the Manager shall notify the Trust of its action with all reasonable promptness.

(g) Contract on behalf of the Trust and pay for gas, electricity, steam, telephone, elevator, window cleaning, vermin extermination, and other services it deems appropriate in the operation and maintenance of the real estate interests of the Trust.

(h) Employ or discharge any employee when it deems such action necessary for the operation and maintenance of the real estate interests of the Trust. This authority shall extend to employees who are employed by the Manager or to any local agent that it may retain, and not to employees employed by the Trust. The Manager shall at its expense maintain adequate fidelity insurance on any of its home office employees who handle the Trust's funds or assets.

(i) On behalf of the Trust, pay mortgage interest and amortization, real estate taxes, water and sewer rents, and other charges or assessments of every nature with respect to the real estate interests of the Trust. The Manager may, in its discretion, defend against and seek revision of, or appeal from, any assessment or charge which it deems improper. All such actions may be taken in its name or in the name of the Trust as the Trust shall decide. In connection with such actions the Manager may, if it deems it advisable, employ real estate experts for appraisals and testimony and may also in its discretion pay any such charges or assessments under protest and seek refunds thereof, and compromise or settle any proceeding or claim with respect thereto.

(j) Purchase any type or kind of insurance that it may deem advisable to protect the real estate interests of the Trust, including but not limited to fire insurance, with extended coverage, boiler, elevator, public liability, and workmen's compensation insurance. The Trust, the Trustees, and the Manager shall be named as parties in interest in such policies of insurance, and the policies or certificates of insurance shall be delivered to the Trust. The Manager may receive from others and retain its customary compensation for its services as an insurance agent or broker in placing such insurance.

(k) Use its best efforts to comply with all building codes, zoning and licensing requirements, and other federal, state, and local requirements with respect to the real estate interests of the Trust. The Manager may, in its discretion, appeal from any requirement it deems unwarranted and it may compromise or settle any dispute regarding such requirements.

(l) Act on behalf of the Trust in any eminent domain proceedings for the condemnation of the real estate interests of the Trust and may, if the Manager deems it advisable, employ independent real estate experts for appraisal and testimony in connection with any such proceedings. The Manager will make recommendations as to the advisability of compromise or settlement of any such proceedings.

(m) Enlist the services of other real estate brokers or agents in the performance of its duties hereunder, to the extent deemed necessary or appropriate.

(n) In its discretion, engage counsel acceptable to the Trust who may also be counsel to the Trust to advise on legal matters and conduct legal proceedings arising in the performance of the Manager's duties hereunder.

(o) Insert in all documents and agreements prepared or executed by it on behalf of the Trust a provision that the Trustees and the Beneficiaries shall not be personally liable thereunder and that all other parties shall look solely to the Trust's property for the payment of any claim thereunder, and reference shall be made to the Declaration of Trust by which the Trust is constituted.

(p) Maintain complete and accurate records of all transactions relating to the Trust's real estate interests and make such records available for inspection by the Trust or its representatives at reasonable times.

(q) Render to the Trust a monthly statement of receipts and disbursements and of its compensation hereunder with respect to each separate real estate interest of the Trust which the Manager may manage. If the Manager shall make disbursements attributable to more than one real estate interest, including one or more real estate interests of the Trust, it shall make a reasonable allocation of such expenses among the several real estate interests benefited thereby.

(r) Remit to the Trust, together with such monthly statements, the net balance due to the Trust as reflected on a summary of such statements. In case of a debit balance, the Trust shall forthwith pay the amount thereof to the Manager. Nothing herein contained shall obligate the Manager to advance its own funds on behalf of the Trust.

3. Liability of Manager. The Manager shall give the Trust the benefit of its best judgment and efforts in rendering the foregoing services to the Trust. The Manager shall not be liable for any act or omission whatsoever of any agent or representative or for the Manager's negligence or error in judgment, except its willful misfeasance, bad faith, or gross negligence in the conduct of its duties. The Trust shall indemnify and save harmless the Manager from and against any and all liabilities, claims, damages, costs, and expenses (including reasonable counsel fees) to which the Manager may become subject by reason of or arising out of the performance or nonperformance of its duties as Manager. No such right of indemnity shall exist, however, with respect to any liabilities, claims, damages, costs, or expenses which the Manager may incur by reason of its willful malfeasance, bad faith, or gross negligence in the conduct of its duties. The foregoing provisions of this Paragraph 3 shall survive the termination of this agreement, but this shall not be construed to mean that the Trust's liabilities or obligations hereunder do not survive as to the other provisions of this agreement.

4. Compensation of Manager. The Manager shall be compensated for all its services to the Trust for the management of the Trust's properties as provided above. The Manager's compensation shall not exceed the applicable rate of returns set forth in the prevailing Recommended Schedule of Commissions and Charges for such services as adopted by the _____ [city] Real Estate Board or as set forth in the schedule adopted by the corresponding real estate board in the area where the property may be located. The precise compensation to the Manager for its services hereunder shall, in respect of each property unit or each service, as may be appropriate, be such amount as the Trust and Manager may agree is fair and reasonable under all circumstances.

5. Liability of Trust. The Manager shall not make any claim under this agreement against the Trustees personally or against the Trust's Shareholders but shall look solely to the Trust's property for the payment of any claim hereunder.

6. Term of Agreement. This agreement shall continue in effect for a period of one year commencing on _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] . Thereafter, either party may terminate this agreement at any time without penalty by giving sixty (60) days' prior written notice to the other party.

7. Status of Trust. If the terms of this agreement, at any time, shall, in the opinion of counsel for the Trust, impair the status of the Trust as a "real estate investment trust" within the meaning of Part II, Subchapter M of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as now enacted or hereafter amended, this agreement shall immediately terminate. This agreement shall not be terminated, however, if the Trustees shall give to the Manager written notice of such impairment and within thirty (30) days thereafter the parties negotiate such amendments as may be necessary, in the opinion of counsel for the Trust, to restore its status as a real estate investment trust under the Code.

8. Rights of Manager Upon Termination. Upon termination of this agreement under the provisions of either Paragraph 6 or Paragraph 7, the Manager shall be entitled to the following compensation in addition to any unpaid management fees: deferred leasing brokerage commissions, if any, as agreed upon with the Trustees. No other additional compensation shall be allowed.

9. Limitation on Assignment. This agreement shall not be transferred, assigned, sold, or in any manner hypothecated or pledged by the Manager and shall terminate automatically in the event of any such transfer, assignment, sale, hypothecation, or pledge. This agreement shall not be terminated, however, in the event of any sale or merger of the Manager, provided that the presently controlling interests of the Manager continue in control of the purchaser or the resulting company after such sale or merger, as the case may be.

10. Dealing with Manager. The Trust shall not convey directly or indirectly any interest in any real property to or through the Manager or any of its officers, directors, employees, or affiliates, nor shall the Trust acquire directly or indirectly any interest in real property from or through the Manager or any of its officers, directors, employees, or affiliates or in which the Manager or any of its officers, directors, employees, or affiliates have any direct or indirect proprietary interest, unless it first obtains prior written waiver of this provision from the Trustees.

11. Governing Law. This agreement is executed and delivered in the _____ [city] , _____ [state] , and the laws of _____ [state] shall govern its construction, validity, and effect.

12. Headings for Reference Only. Headings preceding the text, articles, and sections of this agreement have been inserted solely for convenience and reference, and shall not be construed to affect its meaning, construction, or effect.

13. Entire Agreement. This agreement supersedes all agreements previously made between the parties relating to its subject matter. There are no other understandings or agreements between them.

14. Notices. All notices or other documents under this agreement shall be in writing and delivered personally or mailed by certified mail, postage prepaid, addressed to the parties at their last known addresses.

15. Non-waiver. No delay or failure by either party to exercise any right under this agreement, and no partial or single exercise of that right, shall constitute a waiver of that or any other right, unless otherwise expressly provided herein.

16. Counterparts. This agreement may be executed in two or more counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original but all of which together shall constitute one and the same instrument.

17. Binding Effect. The provisions of this agreement shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the parties and their respective successors, administrators, assigns, and legal representatives.

In witness whereof the parties hereto have caused this agreement to be signed in their respective behalf by their proper officers and their respective seals to be affixed hereto

FORM 20.46 General real estate trust: business operations

COMMENT

Unless a trust can qualify as a real estate investment trust, its status for tax purposes will depend primarily upon the nature of its activities. Generally, the trust status will be respected if the activities are confined to the passive preservation of property. But if the trust is involved in some active business undertaking, it will be classified as an "association" taxable as a corporation. The Regulations state: "There are other arrangements which are known as trusts because the legal title to property is conveyed to trustees for the benefit of beneficiaries, but which are not classified as trusts for purposes of the Internal Revenue Code because they are not simply arrangements to protect or conserve the property for the beneficiaries. These trusts, which are often known as business or commercial trusts, generally are created by the beneficiaries simply as a device to carry on a profit-making business which normally would have been carried on through business organizations that are classified as corporations or partnerships under the Internal Revenue Code." For a more detailed discussion of the specific requirements that a corporation, trust, or association must satisfy in order to qualify as a real estate investment trust, see TB § 20.08, at the beginning of this chapter.

As indicated in the comment to Form 20.16, an unincorporated association is not taxed as a corporation unless it has more corporate characteristics than noncorporate characteristics. The Regulations list six characteristics which distinguish a corporation: (1) associates, (2) an objective to carry on business and divide the gains therefrom, (3) continuity of life, (4) centralization of management, (5) limited liability, and (6) free transferability of interests. The Regulations state that the last four characteristics generally exist in all trusts; therefore, the only significant characteristics for distinguishing between an association and a trust are the other two, viz., associates and business objective. If a trust has beneficiaries and is engaged in a profit-making business activity, it will be taxed as a corporation.

It is generally held that the powers recited in the trust agreement are controlling even though the activities are in fact narrower. (See Current Legal Forms with Tax Analysis, Chapter 2, Joint Ventures/Business Trusts-Comment to Form 2.13). Where a business purpose is evident from the trust instrument, a trust will be determined to be an association taxable as a corporation even though the trust instrument contains a clause disavowing a profit motive. If a trust holds real property merely for the purpose of collecting and distributing the income, with only incidental powers to maintain the property, no association is generally recognized. On the other hand, if the activities consist of the improvement, management, and sale of property, it will be taxed as a corporation.

The terms of this agreement would clearly cause the trust to be taxed as a corporation. The trustees are granted powers to manage, lease, and sell property, to grant easements, and to do everything any individual owner of property could do. These powers exceed the mere collection and distribution of income, and plainly extend into the area of business activity.

THIS AGREEMENT AND DECLARATION OF TRUST made _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , among JOSEPH GRAY, of _____ _____ [state] , and HERBERT ARBACH, of _____ [address] , _____ [city] , _____ [state] , (the "Trustees"), and such persons as may become parties to this agreement by acceptance of shares of beneficial interest issued hereunder (the "Beneficiaries").

WHEREAS, the Subscribers have conveyed to the Trustees cash and certain real property described in the attached Exhibit A (the "trust property"), and

WHEREAS, the Trustees acknowledge that legal title to the trust property and any additional property which may be acquired by them or their successors, as Trustees, and all income and profits therefrom, shall be held by them in trust and shall be managed, administered, leased, mortgaged, and disposed of by them for the benefit of the Beneficiaries, under the terms of this agreement,

IT IS THEREFORE AGREED:

1. Name and address. The Trustees shall be collectively designated as the 3200 Castleton Avenue Trust, and under that name shall perform all acts and execute all instruments necessary to accomplish the purposes of this trust, according to the terms of this agreement. The principal office of the trust shall be _____ [address] ,
 _____ [city] , _____ [state] .

2. Appointment of Trustees and Successors. There shall be two (2) Trustees. Both shall serve for the entire term of the trust, unless their tenure shall be terminated by death, resignation, or incapacity to serve. The death, resignation, or incapacity of either or both of the Trustees shall not terminate the trust or in any way affect its continuity. If either Trustee shall die, resign, or be unable to serve, the other Trustee shall fill his vacancy. Upon his appointment the successor Trustee shall execute a written acceptance of the trust. This acceptance, together with a certificate of such appointment signed by the continuing Trustee, shall be filed with the Register of Deeds, _____ [state] , as ancillary to this trust agreement. Upon such acceptance, the successor Trustee shall succeed to all the rights and duties of his predecessor. If both trusteeships shall become vacant, any Beneficiary shall have the right to apply to the presiding judge of the District Court of the District of _____ [state] for the appointment of two (2) successor Trustees. The appointees shall be citizens of the United States and residents of the _____ [state] , and shall be men of good standing in the community and competent in the discharge of business matters. All Trustees so appointed shall administer the trust subject to the court's supervision. The court may require such Trustees to furnish a sufficient bond, and to make such reports and distributions to the Beneficiaries as it may direct.

3. Meetings. The Trustees shall hold a meeting on the first Tuesday of every month. Additional meetings may be held when deemed advisable by either Trustee. The concurrence of both Trustees shall be necessary to validate any action taken by them.

4. Compensation. Each Trustee shall be paid _____ Dollars ($ _____) annually for his services, in equal monthly installments, except that any Trustee appointed by the court under the provisions of Paragraph 2 shall receive such compensation as the court may approve.

5. Trustees' Powers. The Trustees shall have full and absolute power, control, and authority over the trust property held by them at any time hereunder and over the business of the trust to the same extent as if the Trustees were the sole owners of such property and business in their own right, exercisable without the consent of the Beneficiaries, and subject only to the limitations expressly stated in this agreement. These powers shall include, but shall not in any way be limited to or by, the following powers:

(a) to purchase or otherwise acquire real property, and to sell, exchange, lease, mortgage, grant easements, pledge, or in any manner dispose of, encumber, improve, or deal with the property of the trust or any part thereof or any interest therein, upon such terms and for such consideration as they deem proper;

(b) to incur indebtedness, borrow, or lend money with or without security; enter into contracts of all kinds; execute, accept, discount, negotiate, and deal in commercial paper and evidences of indebtedness; and execute conveyances, mortgages, security agreements, leases, and all other instruments;

(c) to compromise or settle all suits, claims, or demands, or waive or release all rights relating to the trust property;

(d) to employ officers, agents, attorneys, and servants;

(e) to sue and be sued and prosecute and defend any and all actions affecting the trust or its business or property; and

(f) to adopt and enforce such Bylaws or regulations, not inconsistent with this agreement, as they may from time to time deem proper.

6. Protection of Persons Dealing with Trustees. A resolution of the Trustees authorizing a particular act shall be conclusive evidence that such act is within the Trustees' powers. No purchaser from the Trustees shall be bound to see to the application of the money or other consideration paid by the purchaser to the Trustees.

7. Liability. The Trustees shall not be personally liable for any error of judgment or for any loss arising out of any act or omission to act in the execution of any of the powers conferred by this agreement, so long as they act in good faith. Neither Trustee shall be personally liable for the acts or omissions of the other, nor for the acts or omissions of any persons appointed by either of them to assist in the execution of the trust. All persons dealing with the Trustees shall look only to the trust property for the payment of their claims, and every instrument to which the Trustees shall be parties or on account of which any liability may be chargeable against the trust property shall in substance so provide.

8. Indemnification. Each Trustee shall be indemnified by and receive reimbursement from the trust property against and from any and all loss, liability, expense, or damage arising out of any action or omission to act as a Trustee hereunder, except to the extent that such loss, liability, expense, or damage shall result from his own willful misconduct. Such indemnity or reimbursement shall be limited to the trust property, and no Beneficiary shall be personally liable therefor to any extent.

9. Shares of Beneficial Interest.

(a) The beneficial interest in the trust shall be divided into 1,000 shares, which shall have such stated par value, or shall be shares of no par value, as the Trustees may determine. The Trustees shall issue certificates to the purchasers of such shares, in such form as the Trustees deem proper, evidencing the purchasers' beneficial interests. Such purchasers shall be the Beneficiaries of the trust. The shares shall entitle the Beneficiaries to participate in all dividends and other distributions of income or principal, as the Trustees in their discretion from time to time shall deem advisable. Each Beneficiary shall share in dividends or other distributions in the proportion which the number of shares owned by him bears to the total number of shares issued and outstanding. No Beneficiary shall have the right to ask for partition of the trust property during the continuance of this trust. No Beneficiary shall have any interest in any portion of the trust property as such, and shall have only an interest in dividends and other distributions as hereinabove provided.

(b) A certificate of beneficial interest may be transferred by the holder thereof in person, or by a duly authorized attorney. The transferee shall surrender such certificate, duly endorsed for transfer, to the Trustees, who shall execute a new certificate representing the share or shares so transferred. The acceptance by the transferee of a certificate transferred to him, or of any certificate issued in place thereof, shall constitute such transferee a party to this agreement and shall bind him to the provisions hereof. No such transfer shall be binding upon the Trustees until it has been recorded on the trust's transfer books.

(c) The death, insolvency, or incompetency of one or more Beneficiary, or the transfer of shares, shall not terminate the trust nor entitle the legal representative of the Beneficiary, or of the transferee, to any accounting, or to any action in the courts, or to any right against the trust property or the Trustees not provided for in this agreement. The Beneficiary's or transferee's legal representative shall succeed to the Beneficiary as a shareholder of the trust.

(d) If a share certificate shall be lost or destroyed the Trustees may issue a new certificate upon such conditions as they may deem expedient.

10. Personal Liability of Beneficiaries. The Trustees shall have no power to bind the Beneficiaries personally. All persons dealing with the Trustees or with any of their agents shall look only to the trust property for the payment of any sum due as a result of such dealing. In every instrument executed by the Trustees and creating an obligation of any kind, the Trustees shall in substance provide that no Beneficiary shall be held to any personal liability under such instrument.

11. Meetings. The Trustees shall call meetings of the Beneficiaries at such times as they may deem advisable in the best interest of the trust. Written notice of such meetings (specifying the time, place, and purpose thereof) shall be sent by registered mail to the Beneficiaries at least fifteen (15) days before it is held. A notice addressed to a Beneficiary at the address listed in the register of the Trustees shall be sufficient notice under this paragraph. The owners of one-half (1/2) of the issued and outstanding shares, or their proxies, shall constitute a quorum for the purposes of any meeting, and a majority of the shares represented and voting at any meeting shall control any action at such meeting.

12. Inspection of Records. Each Beneficiary or his duly authorized agent shall have the right during reasonable hours to examine, inspect, and make audits of the trust property and the records of the Trustees in respect thereto, and to examine the annual reports of the Trustees and the stock books of the trust showing the ownership of all shares of the trust and all transfers thereof.

13. Trustees' Reports. As soon as possible after the close of each calendar year the Trustees shall make a written report of the operations of the preceding year showing the trust's receipts, disbursements, and earnings, and the condition of the trust property. Such report shall be retained on file in the trust's principal office, and a summary thereof shall be mailed to every Beneficiary within two (2) months after the end of each calendar year.

14. Term. This trust shall continue until _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , unless sooner terminated as hereinafter provided. Upon termination of the trust, the Trustees shall liquidate all trust property, and distribute the proceeds among the Beneficiaries according to their beneficial interests in the trust. The Trustees may terminate the trust at any time prior to the above date, but only with the assent of Beneficiaries, or their proxies, owning at least two-thirds of the outstanding shares. Such assent shall be given only at a meeting of Beneficiaries called pursuant to a notice given as hereinabove provided, in which the purpose of the meeting is specified.

15. Amendment. This agreement may be amended in any particular, except that no change may be made in the provisions governing the liability of the Trustees, of their agents, or of the Beneficiaries. Amendments may be considered at any meeting of the Beneficiaries provided notice of the proposed amendment is included in the call for the meeting. The consent of the holders of two-thirds (2/3) in value of the outstanding shares shall be necessary to adopt any amendment. The amendment shall become effective when certified by the chairman of the meeting which voted it, countersigned by the Trustees, attached to this agreement, and a copy thereof filed with the Register of Deeds of the _____ [state] .

In witness whereof the parties have signed and sealed this agreement.

FORM 20.47 General real estate trust: investment purposes

COMMENT

A trust will be taxable as a corporation if it has two characteristics, viz., associates and a business objective. Except in the rare case where there is only one beneficiary, a trust will be taxed as a corporation if it is a device to carry on a profit-making business. It will escape such classification if it is simply an arrangement to protect or conserve the property of the beneficiaries. (See the Tax Background § 20.08), at the beginning of this chapter. There are obviously many situations in which it becomes difficult to draw the line between the business and nonbusiness trust, especially since the powers recited in the trust instrument are given as much weight as the actual activities of the trust in deciding this question.

As to the special tax status of a "real estate investment trust," see the Tax Background § 20.08.

FORM

THIS DECLARATION OF TRUST made _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , by STATE BANKING & TRUST COMPANY (the "Trustee"), of
_____ [city] , _____ [state] .

1. Declaration of Trust. The Trustee declares that it holds in trust, for the benefit of all present and future holders of the certificates of equitable ownership issued hereunder, the title of the property known as Gilbert's Corner (the "trust estate"), more specifically described in Schedule A annexed hereto. The premises are subject to an indenture of lease made this day, a copy of which is annexed hereto as Schedule B.

2. Income. The Trustee, after deducting its compensation, as hereinafter provided, and all expenses incurred by it to protect and administer the trust estate, shall pay over quarterly to the record holders of the certificates of equitable ownership (the "Beneficiaries") their proportionate shares of rents or other income derived from the trust estate.

3. Beneficial Interest. The beneficial interest in the trust estate shall be divided into _____ (_____) shares, evidenced by certificates of equitable ownership. Such certificates shall give the holders thereof only an equitable interest in the trust property. The rights of a holder shall be limited to those specifically set forth in the certificate and in this instrument. No certificate holder shall have the right to ask for partition of the trust estate during the continuance of this trust. No transfer by operation of law of the interest of a Beneficiary during the continuance of the trust shall terminate the trust, nor entitle the legal representative of a deceased Beneficiary to an accounting, or to any action in the courts, or otherwise against the trust estate or the Trustee; but the executors, administrators, or assigns of a deceased Beneficiary shall succeed to the rights and be subject to the decedent's liabilities.

4. Transfer of Certificates. The holders of certificates of equitable ownership may transfer them in person or by duly authorized attorney. Upon presentation to the Trustee of any such certificate duly endorsed for transfer, the Trustee shall execute to the transferee a new certificate representing the share or shares so transferred. The transferee shall, by accepting a certificate so assigned or any new certificate issued in place thereof, become a party to this declaration and be bound hereby. No such transfer shall be binding upon the Trustee until the new certificate is issued and notation of the transfer made upon its books.

5. Lost Certificate. If a certificate shall be lost or destroyed, the Trustee may, in its discretion, issue a new certificate representing the interest evidenced by the lost or destroyed certificate upon satisfactory proof of its loss or destruction and the furnishing of a sufficient indemnity bond for the benefit of all interested parties.

6. Records. The Trustee shall keep a register of the names and interests of the Beneficiaries hereunder, and proper transfer books and books of account showing the receipts and disbursements of the trust estate.

7. Powers of Trustee. The Trustee shall have the following powers in the administration of the trust:

(a) To manage and control the trust estate as it may deem for the best interests of the Beneficiaries, as fully as though the Trustee were the sole legal and equitable owner of the estate;

(b) To make agreements modifying, amending, or supplementing the lease;

(c) To incur necessary expenses in connection with the printing of the trust instrument, the certificates of equitable ownership, and all books and records that are essential to the proper administration of the trust;

(d) To borrow funds, if necessary, to meet a temporary exigency in connection with the ownership of the trust estate, and to give notes or other security therefor binding the assets of the trust but not the Trustee or Beneficiaries personally;

(e) To compromise and settle claims either in contract or tort made against it or against the proceeds of the trust estate.

8. Representations by Trustee. The Trustee does not warrant its title to the premises described as the trust estate, nor does it warrant the validity of the lease hereinbefore mentioned, nor guarantee the lessee's performance of the covenants thereof. It undertakes to exercise only ordinary care in collecting the rentals derived from the premises and in distributing the net proceeds therefrom, or in carrying out any sale thereof and distributing the proceeds among the Beneficiaries.

9. Liability of Trustee. The Trustee shall not be liable for any error of judgment or for any loss arising out of any act of commission or omission in the execution of the trust so long as it acts in good faith, nor shall the Trustee be personally liable for any such acts or omissions by any officer, agent, servant, or employee provided reasonable care is used in their selection. The Trustee shall not be required to give any bond to secure the performance of the trust, and shall not be subject to any obligation to the Beneficiaries other than those expressly assumed hereunder. Whenever the Trustee is required hereunder to pay money to any Beneficiary, such obligation is imposed upon the Trustee only in its trust capacity and not personally, and such payments are to be made only out of such funds as the Trustee has in its hands available therefor.

10. Indemnity. The trust estate shall indemnify the Trustee against any personal liability which it may incur in the proper administration of the trust. The Trustee may secure advice from legal counsel and shall be protected as to any action taken in good faith and consistent with such advice. The Trustee shall also be protected in acting on any document signed by the proper party and believed by it to be genuine.

11. Termination of Lease. If the lessee shall default in any provision of the lease, so that in the opinion of the Trustee it may be necessary or advisable to terminate the lease, the Trustee shall give not less than thirty (30) days' notice to the registered holders of certificates of equitable ownership, by registered letter mailed to their last addresses as shown on the transfer books of the Trustee. The letter shall request the holder to advise the Trustee within ten (10) days after the period of notice provided above expires as to whether the property should be offered for sale or whether another lease should be made, if possible. If a majority in interest of the certificate holders shall fail to so advise the Trustee within the ten-day period, or if the Trustee finds, after making reasonable efforts, that it is impractical to comply with the majority decision, then it shall have full authority to sell, lease, manages, operate, or otherwise dispose of the premises as it may deem advisable for the best interests of the certificate holders.

12. Sale of Trust Property. Upon the lessee's exercise of its option to purchase the trust property, as provided in a copy of the lease annexed hereto as Schedule B, or upon any sale of the property made by the Trustee, the Trustee shall distribute the net proceeds thereof to the record certificate holders, after deducting all necessary expenses, including reasonable compensation for the Trustee's services in connection with the completion of the sale and the distribution of the net proceeds to the certificate holders.

13. Compensation of Trustee. The Trustees shall receive out of the proceeds of the trust estate for its services in discharge of such trust _____ Dollars ($_____) annually.

14. Successor Trustee. If the Trustee, or any successor hereafter appointed, shall desire to relinquish the trust evidenced by this agreement, the Trustee shall give thirty (30) days' notice thereof to all of the Beneficiaries by registered letter mailed to their last addresses as shown on its transfer books. If the holders of two-thirds (2/3) in interest of the outstanding certificates shall, within twenty (20) days after the expiration of the period of notice above provided, request the Trustee in writing to convey the trust estate to a specified trustee who is willing to accept the trust, the Trustee shall upon making such conveyance and accounting for all funds which have previously come into its possession, be discharged from further liability. If the holders of two-thirds (2/3) in interest of the outstanding certificates shall fail to choose a successor within the period above provided, the Trustee shall select any qualified bank or trust company, situated in _____ [state] , as successor trustee. Upon conveying the trust estate to a successor trustee and accounting for all funds which have previously come into its possession, the Trustee shall be discharged from further liability.

15. Construction. The term "Trustee" shall be deemed to include State Banking & Trust Company, Trustee, or any successor which may hereafter be appointed. By the acceptance of any certificate issued hereunder, the original and any successive holder shall be deemed to assent to all of the provisions contained in this trust agreement.

In witness whereof the State Banking & Trust Company has signed and sealed this instrument.

FORM 20.48 General real estate trust: investment on installment basis

COMMENT

Illustrated here is a typical Massachusetts trust-type agreement. The powers of the trustees recited in the declaration of trust are controlling and include the authority to purchase, mortgage, sell, develop, and manage real property. Since these powers demonstrate that the trust was created to carry on a profit-making business, it will be treated as an association and will be taxed as a corporation. Contributions of capital are set up on a monthly basis, thus providing a vehicle for the small subscriber to invest.

1. Trustees. The title of the Trustees and of their successors as Trustees under this agreement shall be the Commonwealth Trust (the "Trust"), and any property conveyed or sold to them or their successors in the Trust shall be held by them in trust under the terms of this agreement.

2. Powers of Trustees.

(a) The Trustees may issue notes or bonds and may secure the payment thereof by mortgaging the whole or any part of the Trust property. The Trustees may borrow money for temporary purposes giving notes therefor signed by them in their capacity as Trustees. The Trustees may also invest such part of the capital and the profits therefrom and the proceeds of the sale of bonds and notes in such real estate, equities in real estate, and mortgages in real estate in the United States of America as they may deem advisable.

(b) The Trustees may hold the legal title to all of the Trust property, and shall have the exclusive management and control of the property as if they were its absolute owners. The Trustees are hereby given full power to do all things and perform all acts which in their judgment are necessary and proper for the protection of the Trust property and for the interest of the Subscribers in such property, subject to the restrictions, terms, and conditions herein set forth.

(c) Without prejudice to the general powers conferred on the Trustees hereunder, it is hereby declared that the Trustees shall have the following powers:

(1) To purchase any real property for the Trust at such times and on such terms as may seem advisable, and to assume mortgages upon the property without the written or oral consent of the Subscribers or the Board of Directors.

(2) To sell at public auction or private sale, to barter, to exchange, or to dispose of otherwise, any part, or the whole of the Trust property which may, from time to time form part of the Trust estate, subject to such restrictions and for such consideration for cash or for credit, and generally upon such terms and conditions as may seem judicious without the written or oral consent of the Subscribers or the Board of Directors; to secure payment upon any loan or loans of the Trust, by mortgage with or without power of sale, and to include such provisions, terms, and conditions as may seem desirable without the consent of the Subscribers or the Board of Directors.

(3) To rent or lease the whole or any part of the Trust property for long or short terms, but not for terms exceeding the term of the Trust then remaining.

(4) To repair, alter, tear down, add to, or erect any building or buildings upon land belonging to the Trust; to fill, grade, drain, improve, and otherwise develop any land belonging to the Trust; and to carry on, operate, or manage any building, apartment house, or hotel belonging to the Trust.

(5) To make, execute, acknowledge, and deliver all deeds, releases, mortgages, leases, contracts, agreements, instruments, and other obligations of whatsoever nature relating to the Trust property, and generally to have full power to do all things and perform all acts necessary to make the instruments proper and legal.

(6) To collect notes, obligations, dividends, and all other payments that may be due and payable to the Trust; to deposit the proceeds thereof, as well as all other moneys from whatsoever source they may be derived, in any suitable bank or depository, and to draw the same from time to time for the purposes herein provided.

(7) To pay all lawful taxes and assessments and the necessary expenses of the Trust; to employ such officers, brokers, engineers, architects, carpenters, contractors, agents, counsel, and such other persons as may seem expedient, and to designate their duties and fix their compensation; and to fix a reasonable compensation for their own services to the Trust, as its organizers.

(8) To represent the Trust and the Subscribers in all suits and legal proceedings relating to the Trust property in any court of law or equity, or before any other bodies or tribunals; to begin suits and to prosecute them to final judgment or decree; to compromise claims or suits, and to submit the same to arbitration when, in their judgment, such course is necessary or proper.

3. Duties of Trustees. In addition to the other duties herein imposed upon the Trustees, they shall:

(a) Keep a careful and complete record of all the issues or shares of beneficial interest in the Trust property with the name and residence of the person or persons to whom shares are issued, the date of issue, and such other items as they may deem important or as the Subscribers may require, and also a transfer book in which all the transfers of the shares shall be recorded.

(b) Keep careful and accurate books showing the receipts and disbursements of the Trust and also of the Trust property, and such other items as they may deem important or as the Subscribers hereunder may require.

(c) Keep books of the Trust open to the inspection of the Subscribers at such reasonable times at the main office of the Trust as they may determine.

(d) Furnish the Subscribers at special meetings at which the same shall be requested a careful, accurate, written report of their transactions as Trustees hereunder, of the financial standing of the Trust, and of such other information concerning the affairs of the Trust as they shall request.

4. Compensation of Trustees. Each Trustee shall receive the sum of _____ Dollars ($_____) per month for his services as Trustee hereunder.

5. Liability of Trustees. The Trustees and their successors as Trustees shall not be required to give a bond. Each Trustee shall be liable only for his own acts, and then only for the result of his own gross negligence or bad faith.

6. Removal of Trustees. The Subscribers may not remove a Trustee from his office or appoint a successor to succeed him, but any Subscriber desiring to have a Trustee removed shall have his recourse to any proper court of law or equity.

7. Resignation and Successors.

(a) Any Trustee may resign his office at any special meeting of the Subscribers, provided that the call has stated the purpose of the meeting. Immediately thereafter the Subscribers at the meeting shall proceed to elect, by a majority vote of those present, a new Trustee to take the place of the resigned Trustee. The resignation, however, shall not take effect until a certificate thereof, signed, sealed, and acknowledged by the Trustees, and a certificate of the election of the new Trustee, signed and sworn to by the officers of the special meeting and containing an acceptance of the office, signed and acknowledged by the new Trustee, shall have been recorded in the registries of deeds of all the counties in which properties held under this instrument are situated. If the Subscribers shall fail to elect a new Trustee within thirty (30) days after the resignation, the Trustee may petition any appropriate court in the State of _____ [state] to accept his resignation and appoint a new Trustee.

(b) Any vacancy in the office of Trustee, whether arising from death or from any other cause not herein provided for, shall be filled within 30 days from the date of the vacancy at a special meeting of the Subscribers called by any Subscriber, provided that the call has stated the purpose of the meeting and has been signed by the Subscribers calling the meeting. At this special meeting the Subscribers shall proceed to elect, by a majority vote of those present, a new Trustee to fill the vacancy. Immediately thereafter the Subscribers shall cause to be prepared a certificate of the election, including an affidavit of the required notice of the meeting, signed and sworn to by the officers of the meeting, and containing an acceptance of the office, signed, sealed, and acknowledged by the new Trustee. The certificate of election shall be recorded in the registries of deeds of all the counties in which properties held under this instrument are situated.

(c) Whenever a new Trustee shall have been elected or appointed to the office of Trustee and shall have assumed the duties of office, he shall succeed to the title of all the Trust properties and shall have all the powers and be subject to all the restrictions granted to or imposed upon the Trustees by this agreement. Every Trustee shall have the same powers, rights, and interests regarding the Trust property, and shall be subject to the same restrictions and duties as the original Trustees, except as the same shall have been modified by amendment, as herein provided for. But in case of vacancy in the trusteeship, the surviving or remaining Trustees shall be vested with the trustand estate and may execute and perform the duties thereof as fully as the entire Board of Trustees could do until the vacancy shall be filled.

8. Exculpation. The Trustees may not bind the Subscribers personally and, in every contract they may enter into, written reference shall be made to this declaration. Any person or corporation contracting with the Trustees, as well as any beneficiary, shall look to the funds and the Trust property for payment under such contract, or for the payment of any debt, mortgage, judgment, or decree, or for any money that may otherwise become due or payable whether by reason or failure of the Trustees to perform the contract, or for any other reason, and neither the Trustees nor the Subscribers shall be liable personally therefor.

9. Board of Directors.

(a) The Trustees may appoint a Board of Directors, consisting of five (5) directors, who may or may not be Subscribers or Trustees.

(b) The directors shall hold office for the term of one (1) year from their appointment, and until their successors shall have been appointed. The Trustees, however, may terminate the term of office of any director sooner by a simple written notice of termination, delivered to him, or mailed to him postage prepaid, at his last and usual place of residence.

(c) The duties of the Board of Directors shall be to advise and to assist the Trustees, as requested by them in carrying on the affairs of the Trust, and in their investment of its money and in such other matters as the Trustees may require.

(d) The Trustees shall pay the directors a reasonable compensation for their services.

10. Advisory Committee. The Trustees may appoint advisory committees to serve for such term as they may appoint and to perform such duties as they may designate. The Trustees shall pay the members of the advisory committees a reasonable compensation for their services.

11. Capital. Capital shall be accumulated by fixed monthly payments to be paid by the Subscribers as hereinafter provided. The beneficial interest in such capital and in the property acquired by the Trust shall be divided into 500 no par value shares. Each Subscriber shall be entitled to participate in all dividends and other distributions of income or principal as the Trustees shall from time to time deem advisable in the proportion which the number of shares owned by a Subscriber bears to the total number of shares issued and outstanding.

12. Certificates. The Trustees shall issue to each Subscriber a certificate of his beneficial interest in the trust property in such form as they may determine. This certificate shall be transferable only on the books of the Trust, upon its surrender. Upon such transfer a new certificate shall be issued to the transferee, who shall thereupon become subject to the terms of this agreement, and entitled to its benefits. No shares shall be transferable until all monthly payments have been paid.

13. Transfer on Death. Shares shall be personal property. For the purpose of ascertaining who are the Subscribers and their addresses, the records as shown by the Trust's books shall be controlling.

14. Payments of Capital. Each Subscriber shall pay to the Trustees on the second Monday of each month the sum of _____ Dollars ($ _____) for each share held by him. The payments shall continue for a period of at least five (5) years, and thereafter until such time as two-thirds of the Subscribers entitled to vote shall vote to discontinue the payments, or until this Trust is terminated. The Trustees shall keep the payments and invest or dispose of them in such manner as they may from time to time determine.

15. Default in Payment.

(a) A Subscriber who shall default in his monthly payment shall be charged a fine of _____ Dollars ($ _____) a month or fraction of a month on each share held by him to be paid to the Trustees while the default continues. If the default continues for a period of six (6) months each share defaulted on shall be deemed surrendered and its fair value, as determined by the Trustees after deducting fines due thereon, shall be paid to the owner within three months from such surrender, upon the surrender of his certificate. Shares so surrendered shall be cancelled or sold as the Trustees may determine.

(b) The fines may be invested or disposed of in such manner as the Trustees may from time to time determine.

(c) Subscribers shall not, on account of their agreement to make monthly payments, be liable to creditors or to persons dealing with the Trust. They shall, however, indemnify and save the Trustees harmless from any loss sustained by the Trustees, individually on account of any liability properly incurred hereunder by the Trustees prior to their ceasing to be Subscribers.

(d) The Trustees shall be liable to Subscribers for the value of their shares on their surrender only to the extent of the property held in Trust by them hereunder. The Subscribers shall enforce such liability only against the Trust property, and not against the Trustees personally.

16. Trustees. The term "Trustees," wherever it is used herein, shall mean the Trustees for the time being acting.

17. Records. The record of Subscribers' meetings shall be kept by a Secretary, who shall also be a Secretary of the Trustees. The Secretary shall hold office at the pleasure of the Trustees, who shall determine his salary and choose his successors. If the Secretary shall be absent or disabled, the Trustees may appoint a Secretary pro tempore.

18. Meetings. Meetings of the Subscribers, other than a meeting to fill a vacancy in the office of Trustee as provided for in paragraph 7(b), shall be called by the Secretary when requested in writing so to do by a majority of Trustees or by twenty percent (20%) of the Subscribers of record. Notices of meetings shall be in writing and mailed to the post office address of each Subscriber, as shown by the books of the Trust, at least five days prior to the meeting. In case of absence or disability of the Secretary, or his refusal to act, or a vacancy in his office, the Trustees may call and give notice of meetings in the manner above set forth.

19. Annual Statements. There shall be no annual meeting of the Subscribers, but the Trustees shall prepare an annual report of their receipts and disbursements for the preceding fiscal year, which shall coincide with the calendar year. A copy of the report shall be sent by mail to each Subscriber not later than _____ [month] _____ [day] of each year.

20. Authority to Act. A copy of the record of the Trustees' vote authorizing or directing a sale, mortgage, or pledge, attested by the Secretary appended to such deed, mortgage, or pledge, shall be conclusive evidence in any court or elsewhere of the Trustees' authority to execute such deed, mortgage, or pledge.

21. New Subscribers. The Trustees may admit new Subscribers from time to time under such terms and conditions as the Trustees may deem beneficial to the Trust.

22. Termination. At the expiration of twenty-one (21) years after the death of the last survivor of the Subscribers of this instrument the Trustees shall forthwith proceed to dispose of all the Trust property, and account to the surviving Subscribers for the proceeds thereof, and this Trust shall thereupon terminate. The Subscribers, subject to a vote of approval of the Trustees may, at any time after five years by a vote of two-thirds (2/3) of the Subscribers entitled to vote, vote to terminate the Trust, and thereupon the Trustees shall proceed to carry the vote into effect.

In witness whereof the parties hereto have executed this agreement as of the day and year first above written.

FORM 20.49 Termination of REIT--reversion to operating corporate status--transfer agreement

COMMENT

A stockholder vote is typically necessary to permit a REIT to change its tax status from REIT to operating corporation. Such a move results in the elimination of the Code requirement that the required percentage of the trust's profits be distributed annually to its shareholders. An ancillary advantage of return to corporate status is the trust's ability then to sell off some of its real property holdings in order to pay off outstanding loans, rather than being compelled to distribute the proceeds of such sales to the stockholders. For discussion of the election to qualify for REIT status, see TB § 20.08, at the beginning of this chapter.

Exchange of assets for debt:

One consequence of exchanges of real property for debt--as contrasted with use of cash proceeds to liquidate debt--is that the Securities and Exchange Commission then exercises surveillance over such maneuvers. The S.E.C. has advised bank lenders to substantiate the value of real property--or other assets--which they take from REIT's in exchange for cancellation of debt. Banks must be wary of overvaluing real estate or mortgages which they acquire from REIT's. In other words, the amount of money exchange, or the face amount of debt reduction, cannot necessarily be viewed as indicative of the value of assets exchanged.

Termination of REIT status--ancillary matters:

In connection with ceasing to qualify as a REIT, the trust should submit proposals to stockholders for approval of

(1) Fee-payment provisions of outstanding agreements with investment advisers.

(2) Elimination of provisions in the declaration of trust limiting the trust's borrowing power to a fixed percentage of its net assets.

(3) Restructuring of borrowing agreements and lines of credit.

Transfer agreement drafting:

Because the original declaration of trust contains the provisions pursuant to which the REIT may terminate its status, the requisite transfer of assets can be accomplished via this relatively brief agreement.

24-20 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 20.50

AUTHOR: by Stephen E. Pigott and Harold O. Maxfield, Jr.

FORM 20.50 Plan of organization for cooperative apartment house

COMMENT

Cooperative housing is primarily utilized in multiple dwellings. The typical venture is one in which a corporation is organized to hold fee title to real estate and to lease apartments to its shareholders.

Organizing a cooperative:

The organization of a cooperative corporation is usually initiated by a "sponsor" who, apart from arranging the preliminary corporate matters, undertakes to provide improved real estate for acquisition by the cooperative corporation. All the details of the program of acquisition, improvement, and sale are usually set forth in a plan of cooperative organization which is made available to prospective tenant-shareholders. A copy of the stock purchase agreement and the proprietary lease is also provided with the plan. The forms included in this group are those required in the various stages of the organization of a particular cooperative, including (1) the plan of organization, (2) the certificate of incorporation, (3) the bylaws, (4) the contract with an agent to sell the corporation's stock, (5) the stock purchase agreement, and (6) the proprietary lease. Also included is a contract for the sale by a tenant-shareholder of his stock and the accompanying lease.

In the plan of cooperative organization illustrated, the sponsor sets forth in complete detail a description of the building which he undertakes to make available to the cooperative corporation and all aspects of the cooperative organization. Among the elements to be described are: (1) the property, (2) financing of the purchase of the fee, (3) proprietary lease, (4) conditions for the purchase of stock, (5) estimated completion date, (6) procedure for occupancy, (7) arrangement for management of the property, (8) parties involved in the enterprise, (9) corporate charter, and (10) corporate bylaws and other relevant information.

Appended are schedules of estimated income and expenses for the cooperative corporation, the selling price of the stock of the cooperative corporation, and estimated charges and income tax deductions attributable to each apartment. (In some states, such as New York, special statutes prescribe strict procedures and disclosures in the sale of cooperative real estate ventures.)

The plan of organization is intended to incorporate every essential detail of the venture. Its significance is evident from the fact that it is incorporated by reference in the purchase agreement with every prospective tenant-shareholder.

Cooperative plans may provide that, unless a minimum percentage of shares are contracted for sale by a given date, the plan will not become operative, but that, after a certain percentage of shares are contracted for sale, the plan must be declared operative.

The sponsor's obligation to provide responsible individuals to purchase the shares which are unsold at the time the premises are ready for occupancy, and to enter into proprietary leases for all apartments to which the unsold shares are allocated is a vital element. This insures that each tenant-shareholder will bear only his expected proportionate share of the operating and other expenses of the property. In addition, it insures compliance with the requirement that at least 80% of the gross income of the cooperative corporation be from individual tenant-shareholders. The cooperative corporation may merely hold a long-term lease on the real property, in which case the shareholders merely receive subleases to their respective apartments.

The cooperative ownership technique has also been applied to a group of houses. In this type of cooperative, each shareholder executes a lease on a specific house in the group development. The common denominator in all cooperatives is the so-called "proprietary" lease which can be held only by the owner of a specific number of shares in the cooperative corporation. Generally, the tenant-shareholder may sublet his apartment or may sell the unit consisting of the lease and the related corporate stock to a person approved by the cooperative corporation. The term "tenant-shareholder" means an individual whose stock is fully paid-up in an amount which bears a reasonable relationship to his portion of the cooperative corporation's equity in the property.

Tenant's rights and duties:

As a shareholder in the owning corporation, the tenant has a voice in the management of the cooperative building. But under the proprietary lease, the tenant is further obligated to make periodic rent payments in amounts established annually by the directors of the cooperative corporation. These payments are designed to cover the tenant's proportionate share of the following recurring expenses:

- (1) Interest;
- (2) Taxes;
- (3) Maintenance;
- (4) Special assessments;

(5) Operating expenses; and

(6) Mortgage amortization.

Income tax impact:

Tenant-shareholders may deduct that portion of their rent which is attributable to real estate taxes of the cooperative corporation and to its interest incurred on an indebtedness contracted in the acquisition, construction, alteration, rehabilitation, or maintenance of the land, houses, or apartment building. Each tenant-shareholder may deduct a portion of the taxes and interest paid or accrued by the corporation, measured by the proportion that his own stock bears to the entire amount of stock outstanding, including that owned by the corporation itself. (See IRC § 216).

If the tenant-shareholder uses a cooperative apartment in his trade or business or for the production of income, he may take a depreciation deduction on the cost of his stock attributable pro rata to the proprietary lease or tenancy. The allowable depreciation to the shareholder is determined by a three-step formula:

(1) Total depreciation which would be allowed to the cooperative is computed.

(2) This amount is then reduced by the ratio that the space rented to nonshareholders bears to the total rentable space.

(3) The shareholder's proportionate share of this reduced depreciation is the ratio that the number of his shares bears to the total number outstanding, including any held by the cooperative.

The depreciation allowed to a shareholder may not exceed his adjusted basis for the stock, reduced by the above ratio for space rented to nonshareholders. When the tenant-shareholder uses only a portion of the property for business or income production, he is allowed a proportionate deduction for such portion. For a further discussion of the tax consequences to the tenant-shareholders of a cooperative housing corporation, see TB § 20.10, at the beginning of this chapter. As to requirements for qualification as a tenant-shareholder, see TB § 20.10[3].

Real estate taxes:

If a cooperative corporation pays real estate taxes on a leased apartment building, generally, no deduction for taxes is available to the tenant-shareholders because the corporation's payment is for rent rather than for taxes imposed on it.

If a cooperative corporation builds an apartment building on leased land, with a useful life less than that of the term of the lease, the real estate taxes on the building are treated as taxes on its own property because the entire use of the building rests in the cooperative lessee; therefore, the tenant-shareholders may deduct both their proportionate shares of the taxes and their proportionate shares of interest paid by the corporation in financing the construction. As to tenant-shareholder deductions, see TB § 20.10[4].

Conditions precedent to pro rata deduction:

For the purpose of the tenant-shareholder's deduction, the following conditions must be satisfied:

- (1) The corporation must have only one class of stock outstanding;
- (2) The corporation must have shareholders who are entitled to possession only by reason of their ownership of stock of a house or apartment in a building owned or leased by the corporation;
- (3) None of the corporation's shareholders may be entitled (either conditionally or unconditionally) to any distribution, other than from earnings and profits of the corporation, except on its complete or partial liquidation; and
- (4) The corporation must receive at least 80 percent of its gross income from tenant-shareholders.

Tax impact on cooperative corporation:

The cooperative corporation is itself a taxpaying entity which must file an income tax return but it can avoid tax liability by means of the following principles:

- (1) Annual payments by tenant-shareholders which are earmarked for amortization of mortgage indebtedness are treated as contributions to capital and are not included in gross income.
 - (2) The corporation will pay no tax on amounts received for interest, taxes, and maintenance if
 - (a) It actually expends these funds for the purposes; or
 - (b) It refunds any amounts not so expended to the tenant-shareholders in the year it receives them.
- For the tax impact on cooperative corporations, see TB § 20.10.

The undertaking by the sponsor to provide responsible individuals to purchase the shares which are unsold at the time the premises are ready for occupancy, and to enter into proprietary leases for all apartments to which the unsold shares are allocated is a vital element. This insures that each tenant-shareholder will bear only his expected proportionate share of the operating and other expenses of the property. In addition, it insures compliance with the requirement that 80% of the gross income of the cooperative corporation be from individual tenant-shareholders.

A cooperative housing association recognizes neither gain nor loss on its distribution of a dwelling unit to a stockholder if such distribution is in exchange for the stockholder's stock in the corporation, and the exchange qualifies for nonrecognition of gain. The following form is based upon new construction. Because of the widespread use of condominiums, the use of a cooperative to develop and own real estate is not as widespread as it has been historically. In most states, the disclosure requirements relating to the development and sale of a cooperative are very similar to identical to those relating to a condominium. The practitioner should review and become familiar with the applicable laws where the cooperative is being created before advising a client to proceed with a cooperative. For example, the State of New York has different filing requirements based upon the population of the city where the cooperative is to be located.

FORM

PLAN OF COOPERATIVE ORGANIZATION

Ace Realty Corp., (the "Sponsor") submits through Harris & Co., Inc., (the "Agent"), this Plan of Cooperative Organization with respect to premises _____ [address] , _____ [city] , _____ [state] (the "Building"), and the new apartment building to be erected thereon (the "Skyline").

Skyline Apartments, Inc., hereinafter called the Apartment Corporation, has been organized for the purpose of acquiring the fee ownership of the land and completed Building. The land is presently owned by Ace Builders, Inc., hereinafter called the Builder, which will erect the Building from plans prepared by James Hoe & Associates, Inc., hereinafter called the Architect, which plans have been filed with the Department of Buildings in the _____ [city] . The Apartment Corporation has retained William Bender, hereinafter called the Consulting Architect, to check on the construction of the Building and to certify as to stages of and completion of construction. The shares of the Apartment Corporation are being offered for sale through the Agent on the terms and conditions herein set forth. The Sponsor will guarantee to the Apartment Corporation the completion of the Building and the payment of costs of construction.

As hereinafter set forth the Sponsor is a publicly owned corporation and is the holder of all of the stock of the Builder.

1. Property and Improvements. The property is located on the southerly side of 68th Street at the East River Drive. It has a frontage on 68th Street of approximately one hundred thirty-two (132) feet and a depth of approximately one hundred two (102) feet irregular and contains approximately thirteen thousand (13,000) square feet. The Building will have 20 floors and Penthouse containing one hundred twenty-eight (128) residential apartments, a superintendent's apartment, nine separate servants' rooms, each with its own bath. The apartments will range in size from three and one-half (3 1/2) to seven (7) rooms. There will be a garage in the basement which will accommodate about thirty-five (35) automobiles and there will also be an area on the ground floor, west of the main entrance, which will be leased as an office. No shares are being allocated to this space. The Building will be centrally air-conditioned and will be heated by steam. The entrance and lobby as well as the public portions of the Building will be decorated and furnished under the supervision of Allen Hart, designer. There will be twenty-four (24) hour doorman service and the passenger elevators will be operated by tenant owners but a day and evening hall man will be available to assist tenant owners. The plan anticipates thirteen (13) employees including superintendent, doorman, service elevator, porter, and handyman.

As set forth in Schedule B, sixty thousand eighty (60,080) shares of the Apartment Corporation have been allocated to the one hundred twenty-eight (128) residential apartments plus nine separate servants' rooms. No shares are being allocated to the superintendent's apartment, the garage, or the rentable space on the ground floor. A lease has been entered into by the Sponsor with a garage operator to rent the garage space for a ten-year term at _____ Dollars ($ _____) per annum. The garage operator in turn will rent space in the garage to the tenant-shareholders and others, with priority to the tenant-shareholders at prevailing rates. The garage may be closed between the hours of 2 a.m. and 7 a.m. It is also proposed to lease the rentable space on the ground floor at not less than _____ Dollars ($ _____) per annum. Copies of these leases when executed will be on file with the Agent and the income therefrom will be received by the Apartment Corporation. The Sponsor will pay or cause to be paid the estimated income from the garage and the doctor's office for the first year starting from the time the plan is put into full force and effect. There will be a laundry on the service level, which is leased for ten years to a concessionaire, and the laundry equipment is to be coin-operated by the tenant-shareholders. The concessionaire is a wholly owned subsidiary of the Sponsor.

A general description of the Building is attached hereto. This description is for information purposes only and to assist in the examination of the Building plans and specifications. A copy of the plans and specifications are on file with the Agent. The Sponsor and Builder reserve the right, up to the time of the completion of the Building, to make such changes or amendments in the plans and specifications, construction contract, equipment, materials, furnishings, and supplies, as any governmental department or bureau or as may be deemed necessary or advisable by the Architect and Consulting Architect, or such may deem necessary or advisable, or such as may only affect particular apartments and are contracted for by the individual purchasers or such as are minor. Where alternatives are specified or where a particular practice or method of construction or equipment, material, or supplies is not specified, the choice and decision of the Architect and Consulting Architect shall be final.

Construction was started in _____ [month] of _____ [year]. It is anticipated that the Building will be substantially completed on or about _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], unless delayed by strikes or other causes over which the Sponsor, the Builder, or the Apartment Corporation have no control.

2. Cooperative Organization. The aggregate number of shares which the Apartment Corporation shall have authority to issue is sixty-five thousand (65,000) shares of the par value of _____ Dollars ($_____) each, of which sixty thousand eighty (60,080) shares have been allocated to the residential apartments and separate servants rooms. The balance of the shares will be authorized and unissued. Ownership of the respective blocks of shares will entitle the purchasers to proprietary leases of the apartments and servants' rooms to which such blocks of shares are allocated.

The Apartment Corporation proposes to offer its shares to suitable purchasers, hereinafter called The Purchasers. In order to meet possible demands for greater or less space than is shown on any floor plan, the Apartment Corporation reserves the right to change the size and number of apartments and to vary the amount of shares to accompany each proprietary lease. No change, however, will be made with respect to shares allocated to any apartment for which a purchase agreement has been accepted, nor will any such change have the effect of increasing or decreasing the total number of shares allocated to the residential apartments and separate servants' rooms.

The proceeds from the sale of shares will be used for the acquisition of the land with the completed Building thereon, on the terms and conditions hereinafter outlined.

If, when the Plan is put into full force and effect, any shares are unsold, the Sponsor guarantees to provide responsible individuals to take over such unsold shares and to enter into proprietary leases for all the apartments in the Building to which the unsold shares are allocated. These purchasers may not be purchasing for personal occupancy and may assign the shares and proprietary leases or sublet the apartments, subject only to the approval of the Agent, but such purchasers will be responsible for the maintenance and carrying charges thereunder until any such shares and proprietary leases are resold, and the Sponsor will guarantee the same. Thus, when the Plan is put into full force and effect proprietary leases outstanding for all the apartments and separate servants' rooms in the Building to which shares are allocated.

An estimate of the Apartment Corporation as prepared by the Agent and approved by the Sponsor is set forth in Schedule A hereto attached. The location of the respective units, the allocation and purchase price of the shares, the estimated annual maintenance charges, and the estimated income tax deductions are set forth in Schedule B attached hereto.

Financial Plan

The financial plan under which the land and completed Building will be acquired by the Apartment Corporation is as follows:

Acquisition of the land and completed Building	$ _____
Working Capital	$ _____

24-20 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 20.50

Sub-Total	_____	$ _____
Mortgage Indebtedness	_____	$ _____
_____ shares @	_____	$ _____
$ _____ per share	_____	_____

The mortgage indebtedness of _____ Dollars ($ _____) above referred to, will have constant annual charges to the Apartment Corporation of _____ Dollars ($ _____), payable in equal monthly installments to be applied to the interest at the effective rate of _____ percent (_____ %) per annum and the balance to the reduction of principal. The total mortgage indebtedness will be self-liquidating and will be fully paid in approximately forty-one (41) years or sooner. On the maturity of the mortgage indebtedness, the Apartment Corporation will have no further obligations with respect thereto and will be relieved of the annual charges thereon.

A mortgage commitment has been obtained from the _____ [lender] in the City of _____ [city] for a first mortgage loan on the land and completed building of _____ Dollars ($ _____), with constant quarter-annual charges of _____ Dollars ($ _____) or a total annual payment of _____ Dollars ($ _____), to be applied first to interest at the rate of _____ percent (_____ %) per annum and the balance to reduction of principal, which will fully liquidate the loan within a period of twenty-five and one-half (25 1/2) years. There will be a prepayment privilege after the tenth (10th) year with a _____ percent (_____ %) penalty declining one-quarter (1/4) of one percent (1%) annually to a minimum penalty of _____ percent (_____ %) of the then outstanding amount of the first mortgage. The Builder will take back a second purchase money mortgage in the amount of _____ Dollars ($ _____) providing for interest at the average rate of _____ percent (_____ %) per annum until the first mortgage is fully paid or refinanced as hereinafter provided. Thereafter, the interest on the purchase money second mortgage will be at the rate of _____ percent (_____ %) per annum.

As previously stated, the total amount of interest and amortization payment that the Apartment Corporation will be obligated to pay in any one year is _____ Dollars ($ _____). This sum is insufficient to pay all of the interest accruing on the second purchase money mortgage. Such mortgage will provide that the difference between the amount accruing and the amount annually paid will be added to the principal of the second mortgage. After the first mortgage is fully paid, then the sum of _____ Dollars ($ _____) per year will be applied towards payment of interest and amortization on the second mortgage and it will be fully liquidated in forty-one (41) years from the date of the mortgages. The purchase money second mortgage may be prepaid at any time without penalty.

The holder of the second mortgage, so long as all or part of such indebtedness is unpaid, shall have the right at its expense to refinance the entire mortgage indebtedness provided the then unpaid principal is not increased, the annual interest or amortization charges are not increased, and the mortgage indebtedness remains self-liquidating within forty-one (41) years. Such refinancing may be in the form of one mortgage with senior or junior interests or in the form of two or more mortgages.

The Builder has obtained from the _____ [lender] a commitment for a building loan in the principal amount of _____ Dollars ($ _____). This will be fully paid before the Plan becomes effective, and no other mortgage indebtedness will be placed on such property in excess of _____ Dollars ($_____) before the Plan becomes effective. Up to the time the Plan is put into full force and effect and when the rent commences to accrue under the proprietary leases, hereinafter called Effective Date, the Sponsor has agreed to pay all expenses of the Apartment Corporation, other than the principal of the mortgage indebtedness, including mortgage fees and taxes, legal fees, architect's charges, fee equity title policy, organization expenses, original issue stamps, advertising, printing, sales commissions, and all other expenses or debts and liabilities of the Apartment Corporation. It is estimated that these expenses will be not less than _____ Dollars ($_____). The Apartment Corporation will retain _____ Dollars ($_____) as working capital in the form of cash or prepaid expenses such as real estate taxes and insurance.

As a consideration for having transferred to the Apartment Corporation title to the land and completed Building, the Sponsors will be entitled to receive and retain the proceeds of the permanent mortgage financing of _____ Dollars ($_____) as well as the balance of the proceeds from the sale of the shares of the Apartment Corporation, which is _____ Dollars ($_____), as set forth in Schedule B. The Apartment Corporation has entered into a contract of sale with the Sponsor and Builder embodying the provision of the Plan and copy thereof is on file with the Agent.

3. Ownership. After the land and completed Building have been transferred to the Apartment Corporation and upon the Effective Date, the Apartment Corporation will have:

(a) Good and marketable title to the land and completed Building thereon and all equipment therein free and clear of all liens and encumbrances (and all of its debts will have been paid or provided for) except:

- (1) Mortgage indebtedness above described;
- (2) Accrued interest on such mortgage indebtedness, subject to an apportionment on closing;
- (3) Accrued real estate taxes, water charges, and sewer rent and prepaid insurance, subject to apportionment on closing;
- (4) Proprietary leases made to its shareholders;
- (5) Leases, if any, for garage, ground floor rentable space, and laundry space;
- (6) Restrictive covenants and agreements of record and such state of facts which an accurate survey would show, provided that neither prevents the proposed use of the land and Building;
- (7) Zoning regulations;
- (8) Service contracts.

(b) Title policy insuring the fee equity in the Apartment Corporation in an amount of not less than _____ Dollars ($_____), subject to normal title exceptions which will not prevent the proposed use of the land and Building.

(c) Working capital of _____ Dollars ($_____) in cash or prepaid expenses.

(d) All of the authorized shares of the Apartment Corporation allocated to residential units and separate servants' rooms will be issued and outstanding and proprietary leases will have been executed with respect to each such apartment and separate servants' room.

(e) Assignment to the Apartment Corporation of all assignable guarantees.

(f) Guaranty by the Sponsor that if within one year from the date of the issuance of the permanent Certificate of Occupancy, it shall be notified in writing by registered or certified mail and addressed to the Sponsor by the Apartment Corporation of the existence of then known defects in the construction of the Building or in the installation or operation of the Building's mechanical equipment, which shall be due to improper workmanship or materials supplied by the Builder, the Sponsor, at its own cost and expense, shall repair and correct such defects.

(g) Certificate by the Architect and Consulting Architect that the Building has been erected and completed generally in accordance with the plans filed with the Agent, subject to such changes or omissions as may be permitted.

(h) Temporary Certificate of Occupancy for the Building and a _____ Dollars ($_____) escrow fund pending issuance of permanent Certificate of Occupancy.

(i) Management contract with Harris & Co., Inc., hereinafter described.

4. Corporate Details. The Certificate of Incorporation of the Apartment Corporation provides among other things that its primary purpose is to provide homes for its shareholders, and that its shareholders, solely by reason of their ownership of shares in it, shall be entitled to proprietary leases entitling them to occupancy of apartment or servants' rooms in the Building to which their shares have been allocated. The Apartment Corporation shall have not less than three nor more than eleven (11) directors.

The Bylaws of the Apartment Corporation provide among other things that the shares accompanying each proprietary lease shall be in the amount allocated to the particular apartment or servants' rooms described in such proprietary lease as shown in Schedule B; that the shares accompanying each proprietary lease shall be represented by a single certificate; that such shares shall not be sold or transferred except as an entirety to a person who has acquired such proprietary lease or new lease in place thereof with proper approval; and that the Apartment Corporation shall at all times have a lien upon the shares owned by each shareholder to secure his payment of all rent and maintenance charges to become payable by him under the provisions of the proprietary lease issued by the Apartment Corporation and at any time held by him and to secure his performance of all the covenants and conditions of the proprietary lease. Each share certificate issued by the Apartment Corporation will contain reference to such restrictions upon the sale and transfer of shares and to such lien.

All shares shall have equal voting privileges of one vote per share. The Apartment Corporation will submit annual reports to all of its shareholders including an annual balance sheet and profit and loss statement, certified by an independent certified public accountant. Even if less than fifty-one (51%) of the shares are sold at the time the Plan is put into full force and effect, the Purchasers will have the right to elect a majority of the Apartment Corporation's directors.

5. Proprietary Lease. The printed form of proprietary lease intended to be used has been prepared and is on file with the Agent. All proprietary leases of apartments and servants rooms in the Building will be in the same form, subject to the provisions of the proprietary lease regarding possible future changes therein. The term and accrual of rent under the proprietary lease will begin when the Building has been completed as hereinafter described. The term of the proprietary lease will expire _____ [month] _____ [day] in the year _____ [year] unless sooner terminated as provided in the proprietary lease. The Lessee may not sublet the apartment or assign the proprietary lease or sell the accompanying shares at any time, unless the terms and conditions of such sublease or assignment and the sublessee or the purchaser-assignee are first approved by the Board of Directors or shareholders of the Apartment Corporation. The proprietary lessee may pledge his shares and lease with the seller thereof or a bank or lending institution, but no assignment of the shares or lease shall be made on the Apartment

Corporation's books except as above provided in the proprietary lease. The proprietary lease also gives each lessee the right to cancel the lease on _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , or on any _____ [month] _____ [day] thereafter by giving at least six (6) months' prior written notice and by surrendering to the Apartment Corporation the shares accompanying such proprietary lease and complying with the other provisions of the proprietary lease respecting cancellation. In the event of such cancellation the lessee shall have no further rights or liabilities in or to the shares and proprietary lease and will receive no cash payment. Rent under the proprietary lease will be determined by apportioning among the proprietary lessees the cash requirements of the Apartment Corporation in amounts proportionate to the number of shares held. The shares and leases allocated to apartments taken by persons provided by the Sponsor may be assigned or such apartments may be sublet, subdivided, or combined without the Apartment Corporation's consent. Gas will be included in the annual maintenance charges, but electricity will be separately metered and charged to each proprietary lessee. This charge will include electricity for the fans in the units in the apartments which will circulate the warm or cooled air. Reference should, of course, be made to the printed form of the proprietary lease for the details of the features above mentioned and the other provisions thereof. As provided in the purchase agreement each Purchaser shall sign two copies of such lease after the Plan has been declared operative, one copy of which is to be for the Purchaser.

As more specifically set forth in the description of the Building, attached hereto, the apartments and servants' rooms will be delivered in white plaster and the painting, decorating, and installation of additional fixtures and equipment will be the obligation of the proprietary lessee to be performed by a contractor or contractors to be approved by the Sponsor. The Lessee shall continue to do his own painting and decorating and maintain the equipment in the apartment at his expense, as provided in the proprietary lease.

6. Income Tax Deductions. Section 216 of the Internal Revenue Code and Section _____ of the _____ [state] Tax Law allow certain income tax deductions to tenant-shareholders of cooperative housing corporations. The Apartment Corporation has been advised by counsel that the tenant-shareholders entitled to occupancy may deduct from their gross income for federal and _____ [state] income tax purposes, their proportionate share of the interest with respect to the mortgage indebtedness and of the real estate taxes on the land and Building and paid by the Apartment Corporation, when _____ [percent] (_____ %) of the Apartment Corporation's gross income is derived from qualified tenant-shareholders. The estimated deduction at the inception of the Plan is as set forth in Schedule B. The exact amount of the actual tax savings to each individual will depend on the amount allowable by the Treasury Department and the _____ [state] Department of Taxation and Finance, and will further depend upon the tenant-shareholder's own income tax bracket. The Apartment Corporation, the Sponsor, the Agent, and counsel can make no warranties or representations that the United States Treasury Department or the _____ [state] Department of Taxation and Finance will allow the deductions, and they shall not be liable, if, for any reason, it is held that the Apartment Corporation does not meet, or at any future date ceases to meet, the requirements of the sections above enumerated, or any amendments thereof.

7. Completion of Building. It is estimated that the Building will be completed and ready for occupancy on or about _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , subject, of course, to delays by strikes, lockouts, government restrictions on operations or materials, or other causes beyond the control of the Sponsor, the Apartment Corporation, or the Builder. This Plan and all agreements shall continue in effect notwithstanding any such delays. The Building will be deemed completed as soon as all the following conditions are met:

(a) The Department of Buildings of the City of _____ [city] has issued a temporary or permanent Certificate of Occupancy permitting the use for residential purposes of all of the apartments and servants' rooms to which shares are allocated, except for unsold apartments or where delayed for special work in individual apartments.

(b) The financing has been completed as provided herein.

(c) The Architect and Consulting Architect have certified to the Apartment Corporation and the Sponsor that the Building has been erected and completed substantially in accordance with the plans and specifications filed with the Agent and the general description of the Building, subject to such modifications and changes as may be permitted under this Plan, and the Building is ready for occupancy, except for special work in individual or unsold apartments, or such work in the public portions or rentable area of the Building as is customarily left uncompleted until after its occupancy.

(d) Certification from the Sponsor to the Apartment Corporation that the completed Building has been fully paid for or adequate reserves have been made by the Sponsor for all unpaid items.

When the four (4) events above mentioned have occurred, this shall be deemed and considered by all parties as conclusive proof that the Building has been fully completed in accordance with the provisions of any agreement or obligation of the Builder or the Sponsor, subject to their obligations as otherwise herein specifically provided. The sole obligation of the Builder or Sponsor is to complete the Building in accordance with the plans and specifications, as amended or modified, and as approved by the Architect and Consulting Architect. If title is transferred to the Apartment Corporation prior to the issuance of a permanent Certificate of Occupancy, the Apartment Corporation shall retain _____ Dollars ($ _____) pending the issuance thereof.

8. Plan in Operation. In order that the Purchasers as well as the Sponsor and the Apartment Corporation may have assurance that this Plan will be truly cooperative, the following safeguards have been established:

(a) The Sponsor will not declare the Plan operative unless and until contracts for the sale to Purchasers of at least thirty percent (30%) of the shares have been procured.

(b) The Sponsor agrees to declare the Plan operative when contracts for the sale to Purchasers of at least sixty-five (65%) of the shares have been procured.

(c) The Sponsor reserves the right to declare the Plan abandoned prior to the time the sixty-five (65%) quota described in subparagraph (b) above has been reached and the Plan has not previously been declared operative.

If the Plan is abandoned, all Purchasers will be promptly notified and all moneys paid by them under their purchase agreements will be promptly returned by the Escrow Agent, without interest. The Sponsor has agreed that all such moneys will be repaid in full to the Purchasers in the event of abandonment.

If the Plan is declared operative, all Purchasers will be promptly notified. The Apartment Corporation shall call a meeting of all Purchasers in ample time before the completion of the Building so that they can receive a report on the estimated date of the Building's completion, select a Board of Directors in preparation for the passing of title, and attend to other organization matters.

9. Purchase Agreement and Payments to Sponsor. A form of purchase agreement is annexed hereto as Exhibit I. When a prospective purchaser has indicated his decision to purchase the shares allocated to an apartment or servants' room, a form of purchase agreement in similar form will be prepared in duplicate for his signature. Such agreement will not be binding on the Apartment Corporation until accepted by it and approved by the Sponsor, in writing at the end thereof.

The Purchase Agreement will provide for the following payments:

(a) a down payment of _____ percent (_____ %) of the purchase price of the shares as specified in Schedule B;

(b) _____ percent (_____%) thereof after the Plan has been declared operative and the Architect and Consulting Architect certify that the outside brick work has been completed, except such portions thereof as are customarily left to be completed after the interior portions are erected;

(c) _____ percent (_____%) thereof when the Architect and Consulting Architect certify that the white plaster in the apartments above the ground floor has been completed (except such portions thereof as are left incomplete due to individual tenant changes); and (d) the balance of _____ percent (_____%) thereof when the Department of Buildings has issued a temporary certificate of occupancy. The Apartment Corporation or the Agent shall give purchasers not less than fifteen (15) days' prior written notice of the anticipated date for such payments. Prices of the several blocks of shares as shown on Schedule B, are subject to change or withdrawal at the Sponsor's direction without notice at any time, before acceptance by the Apartment Corporation of a purchase agreement for any such block of shares.

All payments are to be made by the Purchaser's personal check to the order of the _____ [name] , as Escrow Agent. The proceeds are to be held in trust as required by law. The Sponsor and the Apartment Corporation have entered into an Escrow Agreement with the Trust Bank, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit II, which provides that if the Plan is abandoned all moneys so deposited will be returned by the Escrow Agent to the several purchasers, without interest. After the Plan has been declared operative, the moneys received by the Escrow Agent from purchasers will be paid in the following installments:

(a) To the Sponsor, _____ percent (_____%) of the moneys then or thereafter received by the Escrow Agent after the Architect and Consulting Architect have certified to the Apartment Corporation that the outside brickwork has been completed, except such portions as are customarily left to be completed after the interior partitions are erected.

If, after any such payments provided for above have been made, additional shares shall be sold and additional payments shall be received by the Escrow Agent, it shall pay to the Sponsor _____ percent (_____%) of such additional funds.

(b) When the Architect and the Consulting Architect have certified to the Apartment Corporation that the Building has been erected and completed substantially in accordance with the plans and specifications, subject to such modifications and changes as may be permitted under the Plan, and all of the apartments and servants' rooms to which shares are allocated are ready for occupancy except for unsold apartments and special work in individual apartments, or such work in the public portions or rentable area of the Building as is customarily left uncompleted until after occupancy of the Building. Upon transfer of the land and completed Building to the Apartment Corporation, as acknowledged by it, the Escrow Agent shall pay the balance of the moneys received by it from Purchasers as follows:

(1) _____ Dollars ($_____) to the Apartment Corporation for its working capital.

(2) _____ Dollars ($_____) to the Apartment Corporation if the permanent Certificate of Occupancy has not then been issued.

(3) The balance of all moneys to the Sponsor.

The Apartment Corporation shall pay the Sponsor the _____ Dollars ($_____) referred to in (2) above when the permanent Certificate of Occupancy has been issued.

If the Plan is not declared operative by _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], any Purchaser may, within fifteen (15) days thereafter, elect to cancel the purchase agreement by giving written notice to the Apartment Corporation. In the event of any such cancellation, the Purchaser shall receive back all moneys paid under any such purchaser agreement, without interest.

10. Attorneys and Architects. The law firm of _____ has been retained to represent the Apartment Corporation in connection with the Plan and at the closing.

The Sponsors are being represented by Arnold Josephs, Esq.

James Hoe and Associates have been retained as the Architect for the Building.

William Bender has been retained as Consulting Architect for the Apartment Corporation to check on the construction of the Building and to certify as to its completion.

If the Architect, Consulting Architect, or Agent above named shall cease to act in such capacity the Sponsor and the Apartment Corporation may appoint a substitute or substitutes.

11. Management. The Apartment Corporation will enter into an agreement with Harris & Co., Inc., for it to act as Managing Agent of the Building for a period of five (5) years commencing from the date on which it is completed and ready for occupancy. The Agent may not cancel, renew, or assign the management contract except with the Apartment Corporation's written consent. The Agent will receive an annual fee of _____ Dollars ($_____). The Managing Agent's services shall include the billing and collection of rent, the hiring of help, and the operation of the Building, all under the supervision of the Apartment Corporation's Board of Directors, and the other usual services rendered by managing agents of cooperative apartment house buildings. The officers and employees of the Agent who will handle the moneys received from purchasers are bonded.

The only interest of Harris & Co., Inc. in the successful consummation of this Plan is as follows:

If the Plan is put into effect it will receive from the Sponsors a commission of 4% of the funds paid by Purchasers for the purchase of shares under this Plan and a management fee from the Apartment Corporation as above provided.

It has no other financial interest and acts merely as Agent under this Plan, which has been formulated and issued by the Sponsor and Apartment Corporation.

The Agent has been in the real estate business since 1930 and manages many buildings in the area.

12. Parties and Agreements. As hereinbefore stated the Sponsor is Ace Realty Corp., with its principal office at _____ [address] , _____ [city] , _____ [state] . It is a publicly owned corporation which has shares listed on the American Stock Exchange. Harvey Price is President and a Director, William Price is a Director, and Benjamin Green is Vice President and a Director. The Sponsor owns all of the shares of Ace Builders, Inc., the Builder named in the Plan. The Sponsor or its subsidiaries or predecessor companies have been in the building business for over twenty (25) years, and they have built or caused to be built many residential apartment house buildings.

The land was acquired in _____ [month] , _____ [year] , by the Builder at a cost of _____ Dollars ($_____) plus accrued expenses, and the construction work is on an actual cost basis plus the builder's fee of _____ Dollars ($_____). The Builder will receive a profit in the form of a _____ Dollars ($_____) second mortgage or junior participation, previously described. This mortgage is self-liquidating in approximately 41 years.

The Apartment Corporation was organized on _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , and the incorporators and directors are: James Ferris, William Meyers, and Allen Pace. They are partners or employees of the law firm of Ferris & Meyers. James Ferris, William Meyers, and Allen Pace have no financial interest in the Sponsor or the Cooperative Plan, and will receive no compensation for acting as the Apartment Corporation's officers and directors. The Apartment Corporation will be under the Sponsor's control up until the time the plan is put into full force and effect.

The Sponsor, as Seller, and the Apartment Corporation, as Buyer, have entered into a contract of sale which embodies the provisions of this Cooperative Plan, and the Sponsor agrees to comply with all of their obligations as set forth herein or therein. The Sponsor will cause the Building to be erected and will pay the full cost thereof.

13. Schedules and Exhibits. Annexed hereto are the following:

Plan of Cooperative Organization
16 East 72nd Street

1. Introductory. The Sponsor of this Plan of Cooperative Organization (the "Plan") is Byrd, Inc., a New York corporation, which owns the land and the existing apartment building (the "building"), known as 16 East 72nd Street, Manhattan, New York. Through the Selling Agent, Douglas Ives, Inc. (the "Agent"), the Sponsor offers this Plan to the tenants of said property and other individuals who reside in the State of New York. If the Plan becomes operative and is consummated, as herein provided, 16 East 72nd Apartment Corporation (the "Apartment Corporation") will acquire from the Sponsor the fee title to the land and the building. Under cooperative ownership of the property through the Apartment Corporation, the individuals who purchase the shares allocated to the respective apartments will become the shareholders of the Apartment Corporation and the proprietary lessees of their respective apartments.

Under this form of cooperative ownership of the property, the shareholders, through the Apartment Corporation's Board of Directors, who will be elected by the shareholders, will control the management of the premises and the affairs of the Apartment Corporation. As proprietary lessees, their landlord will be the Apartment Corporation, and, by abiding by the terms of their proprietary leases, shareholders will have long-term security of possession.

The Apartment Corporation's primary purpose is to provide homes for its shareholders in the corporation's property. The proprietary lessees' maintenance charges (rents) will be established by the Board of Directors on the basis of estimated costs and a reasonable surplus for contingencies, without regard to a profit which an investing landlord would normally seek. Moreover, under the cooperative form of ownership, proprietary lessees may be entitled to federal, state, and city income tax deductions.

Proprietary lessees may install their own decorations in their respective apartments, although structural improvements will require approval of the Apartment Corporation's Board of Directors. A proprietary lessee may sell his shares and proprietary lease, or sublet his apartment, with the approval of the Board of Directors. The lessee may cancel the proprietary lease, without further liability, after _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , under the "escape clause."

Details of these and other provisions of this cooperative offering are fully set forth in this Plan. Interested purchasers should read the Plan for further details as to all aspects of the operation of the property and the rights and obligations of proprietary lessees.

The shares of stock will be sold through the Agent, Douglas Ives, Inc. The following Schedules and Exhibit are attached hereto as part of this Plan:

SCHEDULE A--Estimated income and expenses of the Apartment Corporation for the first year of its operation;
SCHEDULE A-1--Comparative Operating Statement;

SCHEDULE B--Description of each apartment, shares of stock allocated, selling price of each block of shares, mortgage allocations, estimated annual maintenance charges, and estimated initial annual income tax deduction for each apartment;

SCHEDULE--Form of Purchase Agreement;

SCHEDULE C--Architects' Report (containing general description of the building);

EXHIBIT--Escrow Agreement with Irving Trust Company.

A copy of the Contract of Sale (the "Contract"), under which the Apartment Corporation will acquire the land and building, is on file, and may be examined, in the Agent's office. In the Contract, the Sponsor may also be referred to as the Seller.

The time of the closing and consummation of this transaction under said Contract and this Plan (when the Apartment Corporation will acquire title to the property) is herein referred to as the closing or closing date. As used herein,

"effective date" is the date when this Plan shall be declared effective by the Sponsor or become effective, and "operative date" is the date of closing hereunder. This Plan shall be deemed operative upon its consummation on the closing date.

2. Property. The property consists of land, fronting one hundred (100) feet on East 72nd and East 73rd Streets and 204 feet 4 inches on Madison Avenue, comprising approximately twenty thousand four hundred thirty-three (20,433) square feet, improved by a 20-story and penthouse fireproof apartment building, completed in _____ [year], containing one hundred eighty-three (183) apartments, a superintendent's apartment, four (4) servants' rooms, one doctor's office, bank space, five stores and a basement garage authorized to accommodate fifty-nine (59) cars, as stated in the Certificate of Occupancy. The garage space is leased to Byrd Garage Corp., a wholly owned subsidiary of the Sponsor, but is subleased to a garage operator, to provide storage and parking of passenger motor vehicles of occupants of the apartment building, 166 East 72nd Street, and others, in accordance with the provisions of Section 60 of the Multiple Dwelling Law of the State of New York. (For details as to income from the garage, bank space, stores, servants' rooms, doctor's office, valet space, and laundry machines.

An Architects' Report, describing the building and reporting on its physical condition, is included in this Plan as SCHEDULE C.

The assessed valuations and tax rates of this property for the past three tax years and currently are:

_____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year]	$ _____ @ $ _____ _____ per $ _____ _____
_____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year]	$ _____ @ $ _____ _____ per $ _____ _____
_____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year]	$ _____ @ $ _____ _____ per $ _____ _____
_____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year]	$ _____ @ $ _____ _____ per $ _____ _____

The Contract provides that if the Sponsor shall apply for reduction of the _____ [year] or _____ [year] assessed valuations or institute certiorari proceedings with respect to them, there will be proportionate sharing (according to the portion of the tax year remaining after the title closing) by the Sponsor and the Apartment Corporation of any tax savings resulting therefrom and the legal expense thereof. An application by the Sponsor is pending to reduce the _____ [year] assessed valuation.

The building is presently serviced by sixteen (16) employees and a resident superintendent. However, the payroll estimated in Schedule A contemplates that, under cooperative operation of the building, there will be twenty-three (23) employees and the superintendent.

Bus lines run on Madison Avenue and on East 72nd Street, at the property. Other bus lines and the Lexington Avenue IRT subway station are nearby.

The building has no lot line windows which would be blocked by construction on adjacent sites. The electricity service is adequate for all existing and reasonably foreseeable purposes.

All of the refrigerators, stoves, dishwashers and cabinets presently in the apartments were furnished and are owned by the Sponsor and will become the property of the Apartment Corporation at the closing. Each apartment rented under a proprietary lease will contain the kitchen, bathroom and electrical appliances, and all other equipment and fixtures, furnished and owned by the Sponsor and existing in the apartment and not the property of the occupying tenant.

The building and the apartments are being offered and sold in the condition in which they now exist, subject to normal wear and tear, and neither the Apartment Corporation nor the Sponsor shall have any obligation to make any repairs or improvements except as may be specifically set forth in this Plan. The Sponsor will, in any event, maintain the building in a good state of repair until the closing hereunder.

3. Apartment Leases and Possession. The apartments offered for sale under this Plan are identified and described in Schedule B. The unexpired lease of any apartment purchased by the tenant thereof will terminate on the date the Apartment Corporation acquires title to the property, and the term of his proprietary lease will begin on that date. None of the apartments, servants' rooms or commercial space in this building is subject to rent control laws or regulations.

All presently occupied apartments are rented under term leases. The leases of 107 apartments will expire on _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] and seventy-six (76) other leases will expire on _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] . There are no renewal or cancellation clauses in any of the apartment leases, except that the lease of Apt. _____ may be renewed until _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , at the tenant's option. Apartments vacant when this Plan is offered, or which may become vacant thereafter, may be retained vacant or may be rented under interim leases, discussed below, in the Sponsor's discretion.

(a) Interim Leases to Purchasers. A purchaser who is the lessee of an apartment under a lease which may terminate before the operative date shall, upon the Sponsor's request, at the time of execution of the Purchase Agreement, enter into an interim agreement with the Sponsor, as landlord, extending his lease upon the same terms but only until the operative date or the date of abandonment of the Plan, as the case may be, at the rental payable under the existing lease.

At the Sponsor's discretion, arrangements may also be made by any purchaser, whether or not the lessee of the apartment purchased, to enter into an interim lease with the landlord for a fixed term of years at a rental to be negotiated. Such lease will be binding on the purchaser and the landlord and remain in effect until its expiration date if this Plan should be abandoned. However, when the Plan becomes operative all interim agreements and interim leases will be terminated automatically as of the operative date, when the proprietary lease takes effect and supersedes the purchaser's then existing lease or agreement.

(b) Possession. A Purchaser, other than the tenant in occupancy of any apartment, of the shares allocated to such apartment, will obtain the proprietary lease of the apartment subject to the occupant's tenancy and lease. If the occupant does not voluntarily remove from the apartment when his lease expires or is cancelled by reason of his default, the Purchaser who wishes to occupy the apartment will be required, at his expense, to obtain possession. Since no apartments in this property are governed or controlled by any rent regulations, the Purchaser need not comply with any rent control requirements but will be required to institute summary dispossession proceedings in court. Such proceedings may be instituted immediately following the expiration or cancellation of the tenant's lease. If the Sponsor permits a tenant to remain in possession after the expiration or cancellation of his lease with no renewal lease, or to continue in occupancy under a lease for a monthly term, he will be a month-to-month tenant. The Purchaser will be required to terminate such tenancy by a thirty (30) day statutory notice, when he desires to remove the tenant, and thereafter to institute dispossession proceedings in court, if the tenant does not vacate voluntarily. While this Plan is being offered, a month-to-month tenancy can be terminated by the Landlord only by giving such written thirty (30) day notice after this Plan has been declared effective. However, such tenancy may be sooner terminated if the tenant's conduct shall be considered objectionable, or if he shall be in default.

4. Preference to Occupants. The Sponsor makes the following offer to tenants now in occupancy of the affected apartments:

To those tenants whose leases expire on or prior to _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , and to the tenants of apartments occupied on a monthly or month-to-month basis: Each such tenant has the exclusive right, until _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , to purchase the shares allocated to his apartment at an allowance of _____ percent (_____ %) in reduction of the price for such shares stated in Schedule B. To all other tenants: Each such tenant has the exclusive right, until _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , to purchase the shares allocated to his apartment at the price stated in Schedule B. Any such tenant, however, who shall purchase such shares prior to _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , shall also be entitled to an allowance of _____ percent (_____ %) in reduction of the price for such shares stated in Schedule B.

Notwithstanding the foregoing exclusive rights to purchase, the Sponsor reserves its rights, if any, under existing leases, to show all apartments to other interested prospective purchasers prior to the above-stated dates. After the expiration of the foregoing applicable "exclusive" date, or sooner if any tenant waives such exclusive rights, the shares allocated to his apartment will be offered to nonoccupants. Thereafter, the tenant will be promptly notified in writing when his apartment has been sold.

Any purchase made under this offer shall be upon the Purchase Agreement (Schedule) and be accompanied by the down payment of ten percent (_____ %) of the reduced price. The purchase by an occupant-tenant shall be subject to the approval of the Agent and acceptance by the Apartment Corporation. The credit and character references of the applicant are factors to be taken into consideration.

5. Commercial Space and Income. The garage, stores, doctor's office, servants' rooms and valet space, ("commercial space") are presently leased as follows:

6. Commercial Income Summary. At the time of the issuance of this Plan, the estimated total annual commercial income, based upon the foregoing tenants' and concessionaires' current rents and payments (including the rental value of vacant space, if any), is _____ ($ _____). However, taking into consideration the rent increases shown above, as of [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , the estimated total annual commercial income from such tenants and concessionaires should be _____ Dollars ($ _____), the amount of "Rent From Commercial Space" as stated in Schedule A. That amount includes all rents from tenants and payments by concessionaires, as estimated. It does not include any of the additional rents (tax escalations) shown in notes 3, 4, 5 and 7, above, in Paragraph 5.

The Apartment Corporation will take title to the property subject to the existing commercial leases and tenancies and concession agreements and will receive from the Sponsor, at the closing, the security deposits held under the commercial leases. All of said leases and agreements may be examined in the Agent's office.

Upon the expiration or cancellation of any of the aforesaid commercial leases and concession agreements, the responsibility for either negotiating a renewal lease or obtaining another lessee for the affected space, or another concessionaire, is solely that of the Apartment Corporation. The Sponsor has the responsibility for brokerage commissions incurred with respect to any such leaseings negotiated prior to the closing date, and the Apartment Corporation shall be responsible for brokerage commissions for such leaseings negotiated thereafter. The Sponsor does not warrant that the rent or income obtainable upon a renewal of any lease or from a successor lessee, or concessionaire, will be in the same amount as the current (or anticipated) rent or income for the affected space or facility. However, three of Sponsor's shareholders have obligated themselves to make good, for two years from the closing date, any deficit in the commercial rent income below _____ Dollars ($_____) for such two (2) year period.

7. Garage Facilities.

(a) Garage in Building "Byrd Garage." The garage lease with Byrd Garage Corp., which is a wholly owned subsidiary of the Sponsor, provides for space preference to tenants of the building at rates competitive with the charges for similar services in other comparable garages in the vicinity. The Sponsor and the Apartment Corporation have no responsibility for the reservation of space in the garage (the "Byrd Garage") for any tenant, other than that the Apartment Corporation will, upon the determination of its Board of Directors, seek to enforce the lease in the interests of tenant-owners. No representation is made herein that an apartment purchaser is assured of parking space or when such space will become available. The Byrd Garage lease may be assigned by Byrd Garage Corp. at any time to an experienced garage operator of good reputation and financial responsibility, whereupon Byrd Garage Corp. will be released of further responsibility under the lease.

(b) "Jo-Ben Garage" at 18 East 73rd Street, Byrd Garage Corp. is also the lessee, under a net lease expiring [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], of the five (5) story garage building at 18 East 73rd Street (the "Jo-Ben Garage"), which adjoins the Sponsor's property on the west. Byrd Garage Corp. has subleased both the Jo-Ben Garage and the Byrd Garage to Rent-a-Car, Inc. (RC), a wholly owned subsidiary of Ney Service Corporation, a publicly owned corporation, which has guaranteed the sublease. The sublease to RC is at rents which exceed the rents payable by Byrd Garage Corp. by _____ Dollars ($_____) to _____ Dollars ($_____) per year, and is for a term ending [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], but may be terminated by RC on payment of a specified penalty on [month] _____ [day], _____ [year] or [month] _____ [day], _____ [year]. If RC terminates the sublease on either of such dates, Byrd Garage Corp. will have either to operate the Byrd Garage itself, in conjunction with or separately from the Jo-Ben Garage, or to procure another operator to do so as sublessee or agent. Byrd Garage Corp. heretofore operated both garages from _____ [month] _____ [year] to _____ [month], [year]. The sublease expressly requires RC (the garage operator) to give parking space preference in the Byrd Garage to tenants of the building at rates competitive with the charges for similar services in other comparable garages in the vicinity. No such preference is required to be given in the Jo-Ben Garage. As long as the Byrd Garage and the Jo-Ben Garage are in the possession of the same garage operator or lessee and the net lease of the Jo-Ben Garage is in effect, there will exist an easement for exit of personnel from the Jo-Ben Garage through the basement of the Byrd Garage, by means of a fireproof door between both buildings.

No representation is made that the Byrd Garage "Jo-Ben Garage" at 18 and the Jo-Ben Garage will continue to be operated by the same garage operator or be operated together as one garage operation, or be leased or subleased to the same entity. The Byrd Garage (in the building) can be operated independently of the Jo-Ben Garage.

So long as the above mentioned net lease of the "Jo-Ben Garage" at 18 Jo-Ben Garage is in effect the east wall and roof of the Jo-Ben Garage building may continue to be used to support the range exhaust flue from the coffee shop in the 73rd Street corner of the building, which is now attached to said wall and roof by metal stand-off brackets. On the expiration or earlier termination of the Jo-Ben Garage lease, the owner of the Jo-Ben Garage may require the Apartment Corporation (if it is then the owner of the building), at its expense, to remove said support brackets and the portions of said flue that extend over the roof of the Jo-Ben Garage building. The Apartment Corporation may, at such time, negotiate for the continuance of the attached flue, if it shall be required for the then tenant of the coffee shop store, or may arrange for a structurally free-standing flue, detached from the Jo-Ben Garage building, or may carry the flue attached to the Apartment Corporation's building.

8. Plan Effective; Consummation of Plan. The "Jo-Ben Garage" at 18 Plan will become and be declared effective when agreements for the purchase of _____ percent (_____) of the shares of stock allocated to all the apartments, accompanied by the down payments required by the Purchase Agreement, have been procured by the Agent. However, the Sponsor has the option of declaring the Plan effective when agreements for the purchase of _____ percent (_____) or more of such shares, accompanied by such down payments, have been procured by the Agent. The Sponsor also reserves the right to declare the Plan abandoned after _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , if it has not become or been declared effective under either of the foregoing conditions. In any event, the Plan shall be deemed abandoned if it has not become or been declared effective by [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] . However, the Sponsor has reserved the right, at its sole option, to extend the above-stated abandonment cut-off date ([month] _____ [day] , _____ [year]) to a date not later than [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , and may exercise such option by written notice to the attorney for the Apartment Corporation and all apartment purchasers given prior to [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] .

The Plan will be declared effective by written "Jo-Ben Garage" at 18 notice by the Sponsor to the Agent, the attorney for the Apartment Corporation, all shares subscribers, and all tenants, identifying all sold apartments. If the Plan shall be abandoned, the Sponsor will give prompt written notice thereof to said persons.

9. Closing. The Plan shall be operative and "Jo-Ben Garage" at 18 title to the property will be conveyed to the Apartment Corporation on a date to be designated by the Sponsor's attorneys, but not earlier than thirty (30) days after the date that the Plan is declared or becomes effective, nor later than [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] . However, the Sponsor has reserved the right, at its sole option, to extend the aforesaid [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , date to a date not later than [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , if it exercises its above-stated option to extend the abandonment date.

10. Share Offering; Purchase Agreement. Schedule B hereof contains the prices of the shares allocated to all apartments. The terms of sale of the shares are set forth in the Purchase Agreement, Schedule C hereof. A down payment of _____ percent (_____) of the price of the individual block of shares (or as the same may be reduced or increased) is required upon the execution of the Purchase Agreement, and the balance is to be paid after the Plan has been declared effective, and upon fifteen (15) days written notice by the Agent. It is proposed to obtain such Purchase Agreements from occupants of the building, or other qualified individuals, who are residents in the State of New York and desire to acquire the specified number of shares allocated to the selected apartments and who may be approved and accepted as proprietary lessees. The Sponsor does not make any offer to finance any purchases.

No shares have been allocated to, or offered for, the superintendent's apartment, servants' rooms, doctor's office, garage, bank space, stores or valet space.

11. Escrow. The Sponsor will hold all moneys received by it, directly or indirectly through its agents or employees, in trust until actually employed in connection with the consummation of this transaction. As provided in the Purchase Agreement, all such moneys will be deposited with and held in trust by Irving Trust Company, the Escrow Agent, pursuant to the Escrow Agreement, Exhibit 1 hereof, in the Account designated "16 East 72nd Street--Shares Purchase Account," or similar name. It provides that the Escrow Agent shall deposit the payments in individual savings accounts in one of its branches, in the names of the shares Purchasers for identification purposes. All interest earned in such savings accounts (less the Escrow Agent's charges) will accrue to the benefit of the Sponsor upon the consummation of the Plan and will be paid to it as its property at the time of the closing (except as provided in Paragraph 7 of the Purchase Agreement and in the Escrow Agreement with respect to Purchasers in default), but the Sponsor will contribute an amount equal to such amount of earned and accrued interest to the Apartment Corporation at the closing, as the Apartment Corporation's additional working capital.

12. Refunds. If insufficient funds shall be raised through this offering of shares for the consummation of the transaction described in this Plan, or if the Plan shall not become operative or shall not be consummated, or if the intended acquisition of the property shall not be completed for any other reason, by [month] _____ [day] _____, _____ [year] _____, then, not later than forty-five (45) days after notification thereof by the Sponsor or Apartment Corporation, all moneys received for shares purchased will be fully returned by the Escrow Agent, together with the accrued interest earned upon the funds deposited with the Escrow Agent, to each purchaser of shares who shall not be in default under his Purchase Agreement. In that event, the Sponsor will pay the Escrow Agent's charges.

13. Purchase Procedure. Sales of shares will be made through the Agent's authorized representatives. Tenants or others who desire to purchase apartments will be given copies of the Purchase Agreement and requested to sign and return same to the Agent, together with a check drawn to the order of Irving Trust Company for _____ percent (_____ %) of the purchase price of the shares allocated to the selected apartment. Upon approval by the Agent and acceptance by the Apartment Corporation, a fully signed copy of the Purchase Agreement will be returned to the Purchaser. After the Plan has been declared effective, two filled-out copies of the Proprietary Lease will be submitted to the Purchaser for signature and prompt return to the Agent. After they are signed and returned to the Agent, they will be held for execution by the Apartment Corporation as of the closing date (see paragraph 4 of the Purchase Agreement) and, thereafter, a fully signed copy of the Proprietary Lease will be delivered to the Purchaser, together with his certificate for his shares of stock. The commencement date of the Proprietary Lease will be the closing date

14. Changes in Prices and Terms of Sale. Subject to the exclusive rights of tenants in occupancy to purchase their apartments at the reduced prices set forth in "Preference to Occupants," the Sponsor reserves the right, until the closing date and from time to time, to change the prices of the several blocks of shares of stock as shown in Schedule B hereof and the terms of sale thereof, to reallocate any of the shares, to change the number of apartments by increasing or decreasing their sizes, or to change the size, layout and identification of any apartment and to reallocate the shares allocated to them. The Sponsor, however, may not change the prices, terms of sale or size of any apartment or reallocate any block of shares for which a Purchase Agreement shall have been approved and accepted and in respect to which the purchaser is not in default, and may not reallocate any shares without the consent of the Agent and Apartment Corporation. As the result of any such change, the sales of the shares allocated to those individual apartments for which the shares prices or terms may be changed may be for prices higher or lower than those stated in Schedule B for such individual apartments, or upon different terms, without affecting any previous or later sale of the shares allocated to any other or similar apartment. However, no such change shall result in any change in the total number of the shares allocated to all apartments in Schedule B, namely, fifty-six thousand five hundred (56,500) shares. If there shall be any such change in the price of any block of shares, the total purchase price of the property as stated in "Financial Features," below, shall be increased or decreased by the net difference resulting from all such changes in prices, and the total amount payable to the Sponsor at the closing shall be changed by the amount of such net difference; and, the total shares equity will be correspondingly changed.

15. Unsold Shares--Sponsor's Obligations. The Sponsor has agreed that, if at the time of title closing all of the shares of stock allocated to all apartments have not theretofore been sold and fully paid for ("Unsold Shares"), it will produce a financially responsible individual purchaser, or purchasers, for all of the Unsold Shares. Such purchaser, or purchasers, will enter into proprietary leases for the apartments to which such shares and leases are allocated, so that when the Plan is consummated all of the shares will have been subscribed and fully paid for and proprietary leases will have been entered into with respect to all apartments in the building. The Sponsor intends that "a financially responsible individual purchaser" shall be a person who, in the opinion of the Sponsor's officers, has sufficient financial capacity to meet the maintenance payments as a lessee.

Three (3) of the Sponsor's principals, Jesse J. Jacobs, Louis E. Gold, and Mandel M. Kramer, have contracted and obligated themselves for the full performance by each purchaser of the Unsold Shares as the lessee of each proprietary lease accompanying the Unsold Shares, including the payment of all rents thereunder, until same shall be assigned to a purchaser for occupancy, or until such purchaser becomes the occupant thereof. Any purchaser produced by the Sponsor may sell or assign all such shares and leases so acquired by him, or may sublet such apartments, provided that the assignee or sublessee shall have been approved only by the building's Managing Agent. A holder of Unsold Shares who owns shares allocated to any apartment may elect to become the occupant thereof (subject only to the Managing Agent's approval) and, upon becoming such occupant, shall no longer be regarded as the holder of Unsold Shares with respect to the shares allocated to such apartment. All sales of Unsold Shares by the holders thereof will be pursuant to this Plan, as it may be amended. The Sponsor may enter into agreements with the individuals produced by it to require them to pay over to it any profits, or to charge it with any losses, resulting from the resale or subletting of any apartment held by them. Such individuals and others may enter into agreements with each other for the pooling and division of such profits or losses.

16. Income Tax Deductions. The Plan has been designed to give to each proprietary lessee the benefit of the income tax deductions allowed to tenant-shareholders of cooperative housing corporations under the present provisions of Section 216 of the Internal Revenue Code, Section 615 of the New York State Income Tax Law and Section _____ of the New York City Administrative Code. Under the applicable provisions of those laws, the price paid for each block of shares under the Plan must bear a reasonable relationship to the portion of the value of the equity of the Apartment Corporation in the property attributable to the apartment to which the block of shares is allocated. The Agent has advised the Apartment Corporation that, in its opinion, such a reasonable relationship exists under the prices set forth in Schedule B, notwithstanding that some of said prices may be discounted as provided in this Plan. On the basis of the Agent's opinion, the Apartment Corporation has been advised by its attorney, Roger R. Roe, that, in his opinion, if the Plan becomes operative under its terms, so long as _____ percent (_____%) or more of the Apartment Corporation's gross income is derived from qualified tenant-shareholders (including purchasers of Unsold Shares) the Apartment Corporation will qualify as a cooperative housing corporation under the present applicable state, federal, and city tax laws. It is the opinion of Roger R. Roe, based on the calculations of the Agent shown in Schedule A hereof, that more than _____ percent (_____%) of the Apartment Corporation's gross income during the first year of its operation will be derived from tenant-shareholders, and that the tenant-shareholders will be entitled to deduct from their gross income their proportionate shares of real estate taxes on the land and building and the mortgage interest paid by the Apartment Corporation.

The estimated amounts which will be deductible for income tax purposes for the first year of cooperative operation are set forth in Schedule B. Such amounts, however, may increase or decrease by reason of changes in the amounts paid by the Apartment Corporation for interest on any outstanding mortgage or for real estate taxes. The amount of actual tax savings will depend upon the individual taxpayer's tax bracket. Neither the Sponsor nor the attorney for the Apartment Corporation has passed upon computations for estimated tax deductions made by the Agent as set forth in Schedule B. No warranty or representation is made by the Sponsor, the Agent, or any attorney for the Apartment Corporation as to the allowability by any taxing authority of the income tax deductions, at any time in the future. None of them shall be responsible for the discontinuance or disallowance of any part or all of said deductions at any time, whether by reason of a change in the applicable law, administrative regulations, error in calculations, or otherwise.

17. Income, Expenses and Services. An itemized estimate of the Apartment Corporation's income and expenses for the first operating year is set forth in Schedule A. The figures and estimates in Schedules A and B have been prepared by the Agent and they are believed to be correct and dependable. The estimates are based upon over seven years of actual experience in the management of this property by the Agent, who has also organized and managed many other cooperatively owned apartment buildings in New York City. Nothing in Schedules A and B is intended or should be taken as a representation or guarantee that actual income or actual expenses for any period of the Apartment Corporation's operation will not be different from the estimated amounts shown or that, after it has acquired title to the property, the Apartment Corporation will not incur, or its Board of Directors will not include in the cash requirements, maintenance charges or items of expense or reserves not anticipated in such Schedules.

A comparative statement of the operating expenses of the property for three prior years, is attached to this Plan as Schedule A-1.

The estimate of income for the first year of cooperative operation (Schedule A), is based upon the total of maintenance charges to be derived from the proprietary lessees and income from the commercial tenants (including income from laundry machines and steam supplied to the valet).

The estimate of expenses for "payroll" (Schedule A) contemplates the following: The building service staff will consist of a superintendent and twenty-three (23) employees, seven more than are employed at present. There are two (2) passenger elevators and two service elevators, all designed for both manual and automatic operation. The passenger elevators will be manually attended and operated twenty-four (24) hours a day, every day of the week, and the service elevators will be manually attended and operated between 7 a.m. and 11 p.m. every day except Saturday and Sunday, when they will be closed at 3 p.m. There will be doorman service in both lobbies (72nd and 73rd Streets) from 8 a.m. until midnight every day of the week, and from midnight until 8 a.m. they will both be covered by the elevator operators. The lobby doors will be locked at midnight and a bell button is available at each lobby vestibule to call the night attendant.

The Package Room is attended by the valet concessionaire Monday through Friday, from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., and until 2 p.m. on Saturday, except that the Package Room will be closed on Saturdays during the months of July and August and on specified holidays. The use of garage space is not included in the maintenance charges. Gas for cooking is not separately metered or charged and the estimated cost thereof for all apartments is shown in Schedule A and is included in the maintenance charges. Electricity is separately metered to each apartment and charged to the individual tenants by Con Edison. The garage, bank space, stores, doctor's office and servants' rooms are individually metered for electric current and the lessees of such space pay Con Edison therefor. The laundry and valet concessions are not metered for gas and electricity, which are supplied without any additional charge. The Agent has issued to the Sponsor its letter to the effect that the projected maintenance charges and commercial income (Schedule A hereof) are adequate to meet the estimated expenses and reserve contingencies for the Apartment Corporation's first year of operation after closing, as enumerated in said Schedule A.

The mortgage expenses are calculated upon the stipulated terms set forth in the Contract (see "FINANCIAL FEATURES" -- "MORTGAGE," below). The real estate taxes are based on the _____ [year] tentatively assessed valuation of _____ Dollars ($ _____) for the entire property, at the anticipated rate for fiscal _____ [year] of _____ Dollars ($ _____) per hundred. Other estimated items of income and expenses shown in Schedule A are based upon the judgment of the Agent in the light of its actual management experience in the building and its experience in formulating budgets for, and in the management of, comparable cooperative structures and other apartment buildings.

18. Improvements.

(a) Air conditioners. Promptly after the issuance of this Plan, the Sponsor will install new through-the-wall air conditioning units (which may be Remington or American Standard or equal and may include new or altered sleeves, where necessary) in a sample apartment to be selected by it. After the Plan is declared effective and before title closing, the Sponsor will obtain from a reputable contractor (who may be J. J. Jacobs, Inc., a corporation owned by Jesse J. Jacobs, one of the principal shareholders of the Sponsor) a firm offer to furnish and install in all of the other apartments in the building air conditioning units which shall be the same as or substantially similar to those installed in the above-mentioned sample apartment, and to assign to the Apartment Corporation the customary manufacturer's guarantee of such units. Such units will be fan coil units which will both cool and heat. Those to be installed in living rooms will operate at 208 volts and have capacities of 11,000 BTU's for cooling and 15,600 BTU's for heating. Those to be installed in bedrooms will operate at 115 volts and have capacities of 8,800 BTU's for cooling and 12,700 BTU's for heating. The Sponsor represents that such capacities are adequate for the stated functions. At the closing, such offer shall be accepted by the Apartment Corporation and become a contract between it and the contractor. At the same time, at the closing, the Agent will receive for the account of the Apartment Corporation, from the proceeds of shares sales held by the Escrow Agent, an amount equal to the price of the work, as stated in such contract, as a contribution to the Apartment Corporation's working capital, to be used for the purpose of paying such price. The Agent shall disburse the money received in accordance with the terms of such contract, subject only to its approval of the work. Until such money is fully disbursed, the Agent may deposit it in an interest bearing account or invest it in short term government securities, as the Apartment Corporation's Board of Directors may direct. The Board (the "Post-Closing Board of Directors") shall be elected at the shareholders' meeting to be held shortly after title closing. The interest earned on such money shall belong and be paid over to the Apartment Corporation, and may be used for its general purposes, as its Post-Closing Board of Directors may determine.

If a proprietary lessee shall refuse to permit any such new air conditioning unit (and necessary sleeve) to be installed in his apartment he shall not be entitled to any allowance, credit or other compensation for such refusal or omission. If a proprietary lessee shall fail to permit such a new air conditioning unit (and necessary sleeve) to be installed in his apartment when it is scheduled by the contractor or the Agent to be installed, such unit need not then be installed if the Apartment Corporation's Post-Closing Board of Directors so determines, unless the proprietary lessee shall agree to pay the additional expense incurred by the Apartment Corporation as a result of the unit's out-of-schedule installation. The proprietary lease provides that each proprietary lessee will be responsible for the maintenance and repair of all air conditioning units within his apartment.

(b) Public Halls Above Ground Floor. After the issuance of this Plan, the Sponsor will install new carpeting and new vinyl wall covering in a public hall above the ground floor of one wing of the building, to be selected by it, and also repaint the ceiling and door bucks of such sample public hall. After the Plan is declared effective and before title closing, the Sponsor will obtain from a reputable contractor (who may be J. J. Jacobs, Inc., above described), a firm offer which shall be approved by the Agent, for new coverings for the floors and walls and repainting the ceilings and door bucks of all of the other public halls in the building above the ground floor in substantially the same manner as the above-mentioned sample public hall. At the closing, the Apartment Corporation shall accept such offer, which will become a contract between it and the contractor. At the same time, at the closing, the Agent will receive, for the account of the Apartment Corporation, from the proceeds of the shares sales held by the Escrow Agent, an amount equal to the contract price of such work, as a contribution to the Apartment Corporation's working capital, to be used for the purpose of paying such price. The Agent shall deposit or invest these proceeds in the same manner and subject to the same conditions as apply to the fund referred to above under "AIR CONDITIONERS."

(c) Incinerators. At any time prior to the closing, the Sponsor will have completed or contracted for the upgrading or improving of the two incinerators in the building, as may be required or permitted by then applicable laws and regulations. If at the closing the Sponsor shall have not completed and fully paid for such work, the Apartment Corporation will assume the contract, to the extent that the work shall not have been fully performed. The Agent shall receive at the closing, for the Apartment Corporation's account, from the proceeds of the sales of shares held by the Escrow Agent, an amount to be certified by the Agent as equal to the balance of the contract price then remaining unpaid under the contract for such work, whether for work done or to be done. Such amount shall constitute a contribution to the Apartment Corporation's working capital, to be used for the purpose of paying the balance of the contract price. The Agent shall hold this amount, and may deposit or invest it, and shall disburse it, in the same manner and subject to the same conditions as apply to the fund referred to above under "AIR CONDITIONERS."

(d) Miscellaneous Work. After the Plan is declared effective, the Sponsor will obtain a firm offer or offers from a reputable contractor or contractors (who may be J. J. Jacobs, Inc., above-described), to be approved by the Agent, for refinishing the building's four elevator cabs and the entrance doors to the 72nd Street lobby, and installing a new canopy in front of the 73rd Street entrance to the building and new hollow metal exterior service doors to the 73rd Street cellar level. At the closing such offer or offers will be accepted by and become a contract or contracts of the Apartment Corporation. An amount equal to the aggregate contract prices of such work shall be paid over to the Agent from the proceeds of shares sales, as a contribution to the Apartment Corporation's working capital. The Agent shall deposit or invest and disburse this amount in the same manner and subject to the same conditions as apply to the fund referred to above under "AIR CONDITIONERS."

19. Working Capital. At the title closing, the Sponsor shall contribute the following sums and deposit them with the Agent, which the Agent shall hold for the account of the Apartment Corporation, subject only to the control of its Board of Directors (who shall be elected by the shareholders shortly after the closing), except as stated below:

(a) the sum of _____ Dollars ($ _____);

(b) a sum equal to the full amount of the interest to be earned by the Sponsor on the savings accounts to be opened by the Escrow Agent with shares purchasers' payments, as provided in the Escrow Agreement;

(c) a sum equal to the aggregate of the amounts of money above provided, under the heading "IMPROVEMENTS," to be paid over at the title closing from the shares purchase moneys.

The Contract provides, however, that if, on the closing date, the adjustments in favor of the Sponsor for prepaid items shall result in reduction of the aggregate amount of items (a) and (b) above (_____ Dollars ($ _____) plus the interest on shares purchase funds) to less than (_____ Dollars ($ _____), payment to the Sponsor or its designee(s) of the amount of such reduction below (_____ Dollars ($ _____) shall be deferred at the closing, at the Apartment Corporation's option, for up to six months from the closing, and, if not sooner paid, shall become due and payable to the Sponsor or its designee(s) six (6) months from the closing.

20. Corporate Organization of the Apartment Corporation. The Apartment Corporation has been authorized to issue sixty thousand (60,000) shares, of one class and of the par value of _____ Dollars ($ _____) each, fifty-six thousand five hundred (56,500) of which have been allocated to the apartments as shown on Schedule B hereof. All shares are voting shares, and nonassessable. All shareholders are entitled to one vote for each share. The three thousand five hundred (3,500) unissued shares have not been allocated to any apartments, will not be issued unless allocated to space in the building, and are subject to future disposition by the Apartment Corporation's permanent Board of Directors. No shares have been allocated to the Superintendent's apartment or to the servants rooms or any commercial space. Upon the consummation of this Plan at the time of title closing, all of the Apartment Corporation's fifty-six thousand five hundred (56,500) shares will be issued and outstanding and fully paid for. The Certificate of Incorporation provides, among other things, that it is the primary purpose of this corporation to provide homes in the building for its shareholders under leases of apartments commonly known as proprietary leases, and that each of the shareholders shall be entitled, solely by reason of his ownership of shares in the corporation, to occupy an apartment in the building for dwelling purposes pursuant to such proprietary lease.

At the Sponsor's request, the Apartment Corporation was organized on _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , by Roger R. Roe as a single incorporator, as permitted by the New York Business Corporation Law. He is and will be the sole shareholder and director until this Plan is consummated, and is and will be the President and Treasurer, and his secretary, Eleanor Stevens, will be the Vice President and Secretary. When the Plan is consummated and title is acquired by the Apartment Corporation, Mr. Roe and Mrs. Stevens will resign the directorship and such offices, effective at the first shareholders meeting of the Apartment Corporation, and Mr. Roe will then transfer his shares to the Apartment Corporation without consideration and cease to be a shareholder. At such meeting the shareholders will elect their Board of Directors. If Mr. Roe or Mrs. Stevens shall resign, or Mr. Roe shall surrender his shares, before the Plan is consummated, the Sponsor reserves the right to designate their replacements to perform their limited functions under the Plan.

21. Bylaws; Directors. After title closes the number of directors will be increased to nine pursuant to the Bylaws. Any holder or holders of three thousand (3,000) or more Unsold Shares may, either individually or collectively, designate and have elected not more than two of the nine directors. Within thirty (30) days after the closing, the Agent shall call a meeting of all the Purchasers to elect the directors, by giving at least seven days' notice thereof. At the meeting, the Purchasers (other than those who hold Unsold Shares) who are not then in default shall have the right, as shareholders, to elect such number of directors, but not less than seven in any event, as shall be determined in accordance with the foregoing provisions. The directors who may be named by the holder or holders of the Unsold Shares will be elected at the same meeting and need not be residents of the building. If the shareholder or shareholders holding Unsold Shares shall fail to name their allotted number of directors, the vacant directorships shall be filled by the other shareholders. After all Purchasers shall have elected directors, all of the directors shall choose the officers of the Apartment Corporation from among the directors elected by shareholders other than the holders of Unsold Shares. Directors need not be building residents or shareholders. A majority of the Board, including not less than four directors elected by shareholders other than those holding Unsold Shares, shall be necessary to constitute a quorum at any meeting of directors.

The Bylaws of the Corporation provide that no salary or other compensation shall be paid to any director or officer of the Corporation for his services as such without prior approval of the holders of two-thirds of the outstanding shares.

The Bylaws further provide, among other things, that unless and until all proprietary leases executed by the Apartment Corporation shall have been terminated, the shares which accompany each proprietary lease shall be represented by a single certificate and shall not be sold or transferred except to the Apartment Corporation or as an entirety to a person who has acquired such lease, or a new one in place thereof, after complying with and satisfying the requirements of such lease in respect to its assignment; that the Apartment Corporation may refuse to consent to a transfer of the shares of any shareholder who is indebted to it, until the debt shall be paid, and, that the Apartment Corporation shall at all times have a lien upon each shareholder's shares to secure the payment of rent to become payable by such shareholder under the provisions of any proprietary lease issued by the Apartment Corporation and to secure the shareholder's performance of all the covenants and conditions of the proprietary lease. The shares certificates to be issued by the Apartment Corporation will contain a reference to such restrictions upon the sale and transfer of shares and to such lien.

Copies of the Certificate of Incorporation, the Bylaws and the shares certificate are on file with the Agent and are available for inspection.

22. Proprietary Lease. The form of the proprietary lease to be issued to shares purchasers is deemed part of this Plan and bears imprint identification date(_____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year]). A copy may be obtained at the Agent's office. All proprietary leases of apartments in the building will be in that form, subject to the provisions of the lease respecting such possible future changes therein as may be approved by the Lessees holding at least two-thirds of the Lessor's shares, excluding the holders of Unsold Shares. Terms under proprietary leases and the accrual of rent thereunder will begin on the operative date and will expire _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] unless sooner terminated as provided in the lease. The lease gives the Lessee, excluding Lessees holding Unsold Shares, the following privileges:

(a) To cancel the lease on _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], or on any _____ [month] _____ [day] thereafter, by giving not less than seven months' written notice and upon transferring the accompanying shares to the Apartment Corporation and compliance with other pertinent provisions of the lease. (In such event, the Apartment Corporation is not obligated to purchase the Lessee's shares or reimburse him for any part of his purchase price, but the Lessee may sell his shares and assign his lease, in lieu of cancellation, in accordance with the lease provisions relating to assignments);

(b) To assign the lease and transfer the accompanying shares, or to sublet the apartment, upon the written consent to the proposed assignment or sublease by a majority of the Apartment Corporation's directors or by the owners of a majority of its outstanding shares. A holder of Unsold Shares, however, will require only the consent of the Managing Agent to any assignment of his lease and transfer of his shares or subletting of his apartment. Such consent shall not be unreasonably withheld. In the case of any assignment, specified instruments of assignment, assumption of obligations by the assignee and surrender of lease shall be delivered in exchange for a new proprietary lease and the accompanying shares shall be transferred in a block to the assignee, and the assignor shall pay all sums due the Apartment Corporation.

The lease provides that a proprietary Lessee may mortgage or pledge his lease and his shares in the Apartment Corporation, provided that the rights of any such mortgagee or pledgee shall be subject to its terms. The lease also provides that it may be terminated because of certain acts of default by the Lessee or if at least two-thirds (2/3) of the shares, including Unsold Shares, are voted to terminate all of the leases.

The main events of default provided for in the lease are as follows: the Lessee shall cease to be the owner of the shares allocated to the apartment or the lease shall pass or be assigned to anyone who is not then the owner of said shares; the Lessee shall become a bankrupt; there shall be any assignment of the lease or any subletting thereunder without full compliance with the requirements of the lease relating to assignment and subletting; the Lessee shall be in default for a period of one month in the payment of any rent or additional rent and shall fail to cure such default after five days written notice; the Lessee shall default in the performance of any other covenant or provision of the lease for thirty (30) days after written notice; or two-thirds of the Apartment Corporation's full Board of Directors shall determine to terminate a Lessee's lease because of its objectionable conduct. Each proprietary lease provides that, upon such a termination, the Lessee's shares shall be surrendered and cancelled and the Lessee must surrender the lease and possession of the apartment. In such case, however, the Lessee will remain liable for all charges under the lease until the Apartment Corporation shall resell such shares to a new proprietary lessee.

The proprietary lease also provides that it is subordinate to present and future mortgages and, also, that if any mortgage affecting the Apartment Corporation's property shall contain any provisions affecting or pertaining to the Lessee's right to make structural changes in the apartment or to remove any of the fixtures, appliances and enumerated installations and articles, the proprietary Lessee shall be required to comply with such requirements of any mortgage relating thereto, in addition to the other requirements contained in the proprietary lease relating thereto.

The Apartment Corporation's directors will determine the amount of proprietary rent (maintenance charges) payable under all proprietary leases, by apportioning among all proprietary Lessees its total net cash requirements in amounts proportionate to the number of shares held. The Board of Directors will determine such total net cash requirements annually, subject to any limitations contained in the Proprietary Lease and the Bylaws. Proprietary rent so determined will be payable monthly. Each purchaser of Unsold Shares, produced by the Sponsor, will be fully liable for the performance of the proprietary lease issued to him, including payment of the proprietary rent for the apartment covered thereby, commencing on the closing date and until such shares shall be resold and the proprietary lease accompanying same shall be assigned to the purchaser. In addition, three of the Sponsor's principals have unconditionally contracted and obligated themselves to the Apartment Corporation for the full performance of all Lessee's covenants of the proprietary lease by each purchaser of the Unsold Shares as the Lessee of such lease.

The proprietary lease supersedes any existing lease or tenancy of the apartment in respect of which the apartment purchaser is the occupying tenant. Each proprietary Lessee will be responsible for keeping the interior of his apartment in good repair, and the repair, maintenance or replacement of any plumbing fixtures, air conditioning units, lighting fixtures, refrigerators and cooking and other equipment (excluding repair and maintenance of the heating system) within, and the decoration of, the Lessee's apartment. Certain structural changes within the apartment and changes in apartment areas may require the approval of the Board of Directors after the proprietary lease term begins.

Reference should, of course, be made to a copy of the proprietary lease for the details of the foregoing features and its other provisions.

23. Financial Features. The basic financial plan of this cooperative project is as follows:

Purchase price of land and building	$ _____
Mortgage indebtedness	$ _____
Shares equity (56,500 shares)-- proceeds of shares sales	$ _____

(a) Application of proceeds. At title closing, upon the consummation of this Plan, the sum of _____ Dollars ($ _____) (or the total actual amount paid for the shares) will have been paid for all the purchases of shares, including the moneys paid to and held by the Escrow Agent and the payments for Unsold Shares (see below). This total actual amount shall be paid to the Sponsor at the closing, less the following which shall be paid to the Agent: the entire working capital then payable to the Apartment Corporation which the Agent shall hold for the account of the Apartment Corporation; and, the balance of commission due to the Agent from the Sponsor for sales of shares; and, the amount due to the Agent from the Sponsor for reimbursement of authorized expenses.

At the closing, the Escrow Agent shall pay the interest earned upon the moneys held and invested by it (less its charges) to the Sponsor. The Sponsor shall deliver an equal amount to the Agent for the account of the Apartment Corporation, as the Apartment Corporation's additional working capital.

(b) Payments for Unsold Shares. Payments in full for all blocks of Unsold Shares may be made shortly prior to or at the closing. At the Sponsor's option, the purchaser's checks for such shares may either be payable to the order of and deposited with the Escrow Agent or be payable to the order of the Apartment Corporation, which will endorse them to the order of the Sponsor as part of the consideration for the sale of the property.

(c) Mortgage. The Apartment Corporation will take title to the property, on the closing date, subject to a total mortgage indebtedness thereon of _____ Dollars ($ _____) consisting of a first mortgage in that amount, hereinafter described.

The existing first mortgage on the property is held by The Prudential Company of America ("Prudential"). Under the provisions of an extension agreement executed by the Sponsor and Prudential on _____ [month]

_____, [day], _____ [year] _____ Dollars ($ _____), _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], it will mature and become payable on _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year]. The principal amount of this mortgage on _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], was _____ Dollars ($ _____), and it provides for constant payments applicable to interest and amortization. It provides, however, that on the first day of the calendar month in which the premises commence to be operated as a cooperative apartment building, or on _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], whichever date is sooner, the principal of the mortgage is to be reduced to _____ Dollars

($ _____), the amount subject to which the Apartment Corporation will take title, as stated above. After this Plan becomes effective, the Sponsor unconditionally undertakes to make the required principal payment, at or before the closing, to effect such reduction to _____ Dollars ($ _____), and may employ a portion of the shares purchase funds for that purpose. The Apartment Corporation will not be required to close title hereunder if such reduction shall not be effected by the Sponsor. Title will close hereunder prior to _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], unless the Sponsor elects to extend the closing date. The Sponsor reserves the right to arrange with the holder of said mortgage for changes in the mortgage terms so as to provide that, if title shall close after _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], and the unpaid balance of principal shall be less than _____ Dollars ($ _____), at the time of closing the unpaid principal balance shall be restored to _____ Dollars ($ _____) with the same rate of interest and the same constant monthly payments as stated below.

Commencing on the closing date, when the principal of this mortgage will be so reduced to _____ Dollars ($ _____), the mortgage extension agreement provides for constant monthly payments of _____ Dollars ($ _____) (annually _____ Dollars ($ _____)), applicable first to interest on the principal and declining balance of principal at the rate of _____ percent (_____ %) per annum and then to reduction of the principal, until _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], when the entire unpaid balance of principal will become due and payable, in the amount of approximately _____ Dollars ($ _____), assuming that title closes on _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year]. On _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], if the mortgage shall not have been prepaid, the Apartment Corporation shall be solely responsible either to pay the principal balance plus accrued interest then due, by assessing the tenant-shareholders proportionately, or to arrange for the refinancing of such balance. No representation is made regarding the availability of funds for such purpose, or the terms or cost thereof.

Prepayment privileges, contained in this mortgage, are: after _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], the entire balance of principal may be paid in full (not in part) on any installment payment date, upon payment of an additional charge of _____ percent (_____ %) of the balance so paid, if paid within the first year from said date, _____ percent (_____ %) if paid within the second year, _____ percent (_____ %) if paid within the third year, and _____ percent (_____ %) if paid after _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year].

A copy of the above-mentioned mortgage extension agreement may be examined in the Agent's office.

24. Contract of Sale. The Contract of Sale between the Sponsor and the Apartment Corporation contains provisions customarily included in an agreement for the sale of a quality apartment property under a plan of cooperative organization.

Features of the contract, not previously mentioned or fully discussed, include the following:

(a) At the closing the Apartment Corporation will receive the usual bargain and sale deed with covenants against grantor's acts, in statutory form for recording. At that time, the Sponsor will also provide a title insurance policy, insuring to the Apartment Corporation the fee title to the land and building based on the Purchase Price or as the same may be changed pursuant to the privilege reserved to the Sponsor to change prices.

(b) The sale to the Apartment Corporation includes all lobby and hall furniture and furnishings and all other personal property, fixtures, appliances and equipment of the Sponsor attached to or used in the operation of the premises and the apartments.

(c) Conflicts between the Contract and this Plan shall be resolved in favor of the provisions in the Plan. The provisions of the Contract shall prevail to the extent that they enlarge upon, deal in greater detail with, or impose greater obligations upon the Sponsor than, the related provisions and contents of this Plan.

(d) If the Sponsor shall be unable to convey marketable title to the Apartment Corporation, subject to the conditions referred to in item (g) below, or if the Plan is not declared effective, or if it shall be abandoned, the Sponsor may terminate the Contract. In such case, its sole obligation shall be to require the Escrow Agent to refund all deposit moneys to shares purchasers, with interest accrued thereon as invested by the Escrow Agent, by distribution through the Agent, and no party shall have any further obligation to or claim against any other party, the Escrow Agent, or the Agent.

(e) The Apartment Corporation has no liability for any cost or expense, including mortgage placement and incidental charges, related to the promulgation and consummation of the Plan. All expenses and costs relating to the promulgation and consummation of the Plan and the transfer of title, including commissions, legal and recording fees, incorporation costs, title insurance, survey, mortgage and conveyance taxes, Escrow Agent's charges (if the Plan is not consummated), printing and advertising expenses, and shares issuance or transfer stamps, if any, are the obligation of and will be paid by the Sponsor. The Sponsor estimates the expenses for discounts, commissions (assuming all shares are sold by the Agent to tenants), title insurance, legal fees, printing and incidental expenses, exclusive of advertising, at approximately _____ Dollars ($_____).

(f) When the Apartment Corporation acquires the title, it will have no debts, liabilities or obligations except the aforesaid mortgage debt, accrued mortgage interest, taxes, water charges and sewer rent, vault charge, and wages (including vacation pay), subject to the usual title closing adjustments, service and maintenance contracts, the contracts for the Improvements, and the Management Agreement with Douglas Ives, Inc. At such time, the Apartment Corporation will have standing to its credit and held for its account by the Agent the net working capital consisting of _____ Dollars ($_____) and the amount of the interest earned on shares purchase funds, plus or minus only such net title closing adjustments, but not less than _____ Dollars ($_____), and the amounts contributed for the "IMPROVEMENTS" (air conditioner replacements and other work. Promptly after the closing, the Sponsor will refund to tenants who purchase the shares allocated to their apartments all their security deposits held by it. All security deposits of tenants who do not purchase will be transferred to the outside purchasers or the purchasers produced by the Sponsor, who purchase the specific apartments. Security deposits of the commercial tenants will be transferred to the Apartment Corporation.

(g) The premises are to be sold and conveyed to the Apartment Corporation subject to:

(1) The mortgage indebtedness described above.

(2) Leases and/or monthly tenancies of all apartments in said premises and the leases of the stores, bank space, garage space, office and servants' rooms. Leases of tenants who purchase the shares allocated to their apartments will be terminated by the issuance of proprietary leases.

(3) Survey conditions revealed by the existing survey of the premises and subject, further, to any changes appearing since said survey was prepared, provided such changes do not render title to the premises unmarketable.

(4) Covenants, restrictions, agreements, reservations, or easements, if any, of record, and zoning and building laws, restrictions and regulations, as of the title closing date, which are not violated by the existing building or by its present use and which do not prevent the present maintenance or use of the premises. The foregoing includes, without limitation thereto, the easement and the agreement referred to above.

(5) Service or maintenance contracts, if any, and the Managing Agents' and concessionaires agreements.

(6) Other customary special conditions usually found in a contract of this character.

(h) The following are to be apportioned at the closing:

(1) Interest on the mortgage.

(2) Premiums on existing transferable insurance policies or renewals of those expiring prior to the closing.

(3) Taxes and sewer rents, and vault charges, if any, on the basis of the fiscal year for which assessed.

(4) Water charges on the basis of the calendar year.

(5) Wages and payroll expenses, including vacation accruals.

(6) Charges in connection with any and all service or maintenance contracts.

(7) Moneys paid into the Realty Advisory Board Local 32B Welfare Trust Fund.

(8) Dues paid to the Realty Advisory Board on Labor Relations, Inc.

(9) Supplies at Sponsor's cost.

As stated above, the working capital item of $50,000 (plus the interest) will be either added to or diminished by the net title closing adjustments, as the case may be.

(i) If title closing adjustments shall be otherwise than as of the close of business on the last day of a month, prepaid rents of apartment tenants will be apportioned as of the day before the closing date. The apportioned amounts shall, as to those who purchase their apartments, be refunded to them, and, as to those who do not purchase, be turned over to outside purchasers or purchasers of the Unsold Shares produced by the Sponsors.

(j) Regardless of the actual closing date, the Sponsor and the Apartment Corporation may agree that closing adjustments may be computed as of the close of business on the last day of a month. In that case the Sponsor shall be responsible for all expenses related to the operation of the building, and mortgage interest, through that day.

(k) Jesse J. Jacobs, Louis E. Gold and Mandel M. Kramer, three of the Sponsor's principals, have contracted and obligated themselves to make good to the Apartment Corporation any deficit in the aggregate commercial rent income of _____ Dollars ($_____) per annum, for a period of two years starting on the closing date. They will make good any deficit semi-annually. At the end of the two-year period, the account will be computed on the basis of _____ Dollars ($_____) for such period and concluded by either a final adjustment payment by them or a refund to them, as the case may be. The Sponsor's principals shall not be entitled to receive any amount by which the commercial rents for such two-year period exceed _____ Dollars ($_____).

The foregoing are only intended as summaries of provisions in the Contract and, together with other rights and obligations of the parties, are set forth with greater particularity in the Contract.

25. Parties and Their Interests. The 16 East 72nd Apartment Corporation, the Apartment Corporation, was organized on _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , by Roger R. Roe, as a single incorporator, as now permitted by the Business Corporation Law of the State of New York. He will be the sole shareholder and director until the Plan is consummated, and the President and Treasurer of the Apartment Corporation. His secretary, Eleanor Stevens, will be the Vice President and Secretary. After the Plan is consummated and title is acquired by the Apartment Corporation, Mr. Roe and Mrs. Stevens will resign the directorship and such offices and Mr. Roe will cease to be a shareholder. The Apartment Corporation's directors will then be elected by the shareholders, as provided in the Plan, and they, in turn, will elect its officers. Mr. Roe and Mrs. Stevens have no past, present, or future financial interest in the property, and are not in any way associated with the Sponsor or the Agent except that Mr. Roe is the attorney representing the Apartment Corporation until the first meeting of the shareholders shortly after title is acquired. Neither Mr. Roe or Mrs. Stevens will receive any compensation for acting as incorporator, shareholder, director or officer of the Apartment Corporation. Mr. Roe's fees and disbursements, for all services rendered under the Plan, are the responsibility of and will be paid by the Sponsor. Mr. Roe rendered legal services for the Sponsor, in one litigated matter, several years ago, but has not otherwise represented the Sponsor.

Douglas Ives, Inc., the Agent and Managing Agent, a licensed real estate broker, is a New York corporation formed in _____ [year] by merger of Douglas & Co., Inc. and Ives, Inc., has been in the real estate business since _____ [year] and has organized and managed many cooperatively owned apartment buildings. None of the Sponsor's principals has heretofore been a sponsor of, or has been interested in any manner in the sponsorship of, any cooperative offering other than of the offering described herein, except that Jesse J. Jacobs, President of Byrd, Inc., and Harry Freed (now deceased, but whose estate is a shareholder of Byrd, Inc.) in _____ [year] were the sponsors of the cooperative offering for premises 86 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y., which was successfully consummated in November _____ [year] .

Byrd, Inc., is authorized to issue one thousand (1,000) shares of _____ Dollars ($ _____) par value stock, all of which have been issued to its shareholders as follows:

Name and Address	Number of Shares	Percentage of Shares	Office

There are no existing lawsuits or other proceedings against the Sponsor relating to the property to be conveyed hereunder, and there are no existing lawsuits or other proceedings against the Apartment Corporation.

26. Sales and Management Agreements. Douglas Ives, Inc., is the sole broker involved in the Plan, and will receive from the Sponsor for acting as Agent for the sale of the shares under the Plan, a commission of _____ percent (_____ %) on sales to residents and _____ percent (_____ %) on sales to nonresidents. If any outside broker (or broker in the Agent's organization) makes a sale, his commission on such sale will be as aforesaid, and the Agent will receive overriding commissions of _____ percent (_____ %) on sales to residents and _____ percent (_____ %) on sales to nonresidents, but not more than _____ Dollars ($ _____) total overriding commissions. The same rates apply to Unsold Shares, but only upon their resales by the original holders.

The Agent will enter into a three-year Management Agreement with the Apartment Corporation, in the Standard Management Agreement form issued by the Real Estate Board of New York, Inc., at an annual management fee of _____ Dollars ($ _____), payable _____ Dollars ($ _____) per month, commencing on the date of closing of title. Such fee amounts to less than _____ percent (_____%) of the total estimated income stated in Schedule A. The Agreement will continue in effect after its three-year term unless terminated by either party on written notice of at least sixty (60) days, and it is nonassignable and noncancellable. A copy is annexed to the Contract and may be examined at the Agent's office.

27. Reports to Shareholders. All shareholders of the Apartment Corporation will be entitled to receive, annually, from it, copies of each of the following:

- (a) Income tax deduction statements;
- (b) Annual report of total corporate affairs, including a balance sheet and profit and loss statement certified by an independent certified public accountant; and
- (c) A notice of the holding of an annual shareholders meeting for the purpose of electing a Board of Directors.

28. Counsel. Roger R. Roe organized the Apartment Corporation and, with Hays & Adams, attorneys for the Sponsor, prepared the Contract, the Offering Statement-Plan of Cooperative Organization, Purchase Agreement, Escrow Agreement and proprietary lease. Mr. Roe will also attend to the closing of title on behalf of the Apartment Corporation and will organize the meetings of the shareholders and directors to be held thereafter.

MEMORANDUM

RE: APARTMENT HOUSE

16 EAST 72ND STREET

18 EAST 73RD STREET

NEW YORK, N.Y.

REPORT OF INSPECTION

Work #1493

We have carefully inspected the fireproof apartment building which occupies the block front on Madison Avenue from East 72nd Street to East 73rd Street known as 16 East 72nd Street and are pleased to submit the following report of our findings:

BUILDING BULK

The building consists of a north and a south unit, the southerly unit of 19 stories and the northerly unit of 20 stories, built on a plot fronting 204.4 on the westerly side of Madison Avenue for a depth of 100.0 on both East 72nd and East 73rd Street, known as lot #33 of Block #1407 in the Borough of Manhattan, in the City of New York.

The building was erected from plans by Brent and Rhodes under New Building application number NB11-56, in an area now zoned R10 for the southerly unit and C1-9 for the northerly unit; the R10 being strictly residential and the C1-9 being commercial and permitting residential as well as local retail and service establishments.

The variation in the number of stories is attributable to the difference of some 9 feet in grades between East 72nd Street and East 73rd Street and to the fact that the bank now occupying the ground floor of the southerly unit is 1 1/2 stories high, eliminating the second floor in the south wing.

OCCUPANCY

There are at present 183 apartments totaling 745 rooms above the first floor; and a restaurant, four retail establishments, one doctor's office, superintendent's apartment and a branch of the First National Bank on the first floor of the building. In addition to the above, there are four servants' rooms and a garage with a capacity of 59 cars.

SUBCELLAR

A subcellar occupying the north end of the plot is occupied as part of the garage.

CELLAR

The cellar contains a common steam room, electric service entrance and distribution rooms, tenant storage areas, help's locker room and toilet, laundry room and toilet, shop and superintendent's office, paint shop, and storage areas for the stores and the vault, bookkeeping and personal loan department of the bank. In addition there is a valet shop and the entrance level of the garage with a mezzanine above which is also used part of the garage. Garage areas on the mezzanine and in the subcellar are reached by a hydraulic automobile elevator.

FIRST FLOOR

The building has two entrances, the main entrance being on East 72nd Street and the other on East 73rd Street.

There is a through lobby extending from 72nd to 73rd Street, with a mail room off the 72nd Street end, and a professional office off the 73rd Street end. In addition, the Branch bank, the restaurant and four retail shops occupy the balance of the floor for the entire Madison Avenue front.

UPPER FLOORS

The floors above from the second of the north unit and from the third of the south unit to the 20th floor and penthouse level consisting of living apartments ranging from one to six rooms, with four individual maid's rooms on the third floor.

SERVICES

Each building unit is served by a battery of two elevators, one of which is a passenger elevator and the other a combination passenger and service elevator. Cars are arranged for operator and automatic control.

Each unit has two totally enclosed fireproof stairways constructed with steel undercarriages and cement treads and platforms.

Standpipe lines are provided in stairs of each unit.
Each unit has its own incinerator.
There is a mail chute and mail box in each unit.

There are service entrances on both the 72nd and 73rd Street fronts, the most used is the one on 73rd Street, the one on 72nd Street being used mostly in tenant moves into or out of the southerly unit.

LEGAL

The building is now legally occupied under Certificate of Occupancy 62294 issued _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , and the Department of Buildings registration number 138146.

The incinerators do not conform to the revised Air Pollution Control Board requirements but are used under authority of a "Special Continued Use" application approved _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] .

As of the date of inspection there were no violations pending.

There is a kitchen range exhaust flue from the restaurant at the northerly end of the building which is carried over the roof of the one story extension at the rear of the building and up on the wall of the adjoining building at #18 East 73rd Street. The easement for this installation will expire on _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , at which time a new easement may be negotiated or application may be made in the Department of Buildings of the City of New York either to convert the flue to free-standing or for carrying the flue up on the walls of the apartment house.

STRUCTURE

The structure is completely fireproof and consists of a steel skeleton frame with concrete arches and masonry walls supported on the frame at every floor. The exterior walls are of jumbo size red face brick backed by lightweight masonry units. There is a dark granite base approximately 2 feet high along the street fronts, and white marble sills and copings and ornamental bands as accents.

The main entrance on East 72nd Street is flanked by granite faced planters, white marble trim around bronze entrance doors and sidelights and is protected by a marquee with a luminous ceiling which is trimmed with a granite and stainless steel band.

The East 73rd Street entrance has bronze door and sidelight and is trimmed with white marble.

There are painted steel and glass railings above the masonry parapets at terraces where setbacks occur.

Window frames and sash, except in the roof houses, are of Reynolds aluminum with ventilating sections double hung. Sash appeared weathertight.

Walls of roof houses and water tank enclosure and the inside faces of parapet walls are of brick which matches the building face brick. Some of these bricks have minor or hairline cracks which are kiln shrinkage cracks. These are not detrimental to the safety or appearance of the building.

There is an exterior service stair at the 72nd Street front leading from the street to the cellar level and to the level of the roof over the lobby extension. The stair requires painting. Interior partitions are masonry units around stairs, elevator hoistways and shafts and are plastered in public and tenant areas; unplastered in work, storage and mechanical equipment areas.

The entrance vestibule has glazed bronze doors and sidelights, transom, trim, etc., terrazzo floor with metal divider strips, with marble walls and contrasting marble base.

The lobby is tastefully decorated, has a dark terrazzo floor with brass divider strips and inlays; fabric covered plaster walls, white marble base, and pilasters, mirrored sections, tile panels, lighted shadow boxes to simulate windows and marble steps between different levels. There are attractive sconces and pictures on the walls and area rugs which lend warmth on the floor.

The ceiling is painted plaster, with recessed domes and cove lighting and additional light from crystal chandeliers which match the wall sconces.

The mail room has terrazzo floor, marble base and painted plaster walls and ceiling, stainless steel faced letter boxes with continuous fluorescent border lighting.

The entrances to the elevators in the lobbies have enameled doors and bucks, with marble wall facing framing them.

Elevator lobbies on the upper floors have wall-to-wall carpet on cement floors, rubber base, papered walls, painted plaster ceilings and surface-mounted ceiling lights.

Elevator hoistway doors and frames are enameled in one color, entrances to apartments and stairs in varying colors. Entrance doors are equipped with electric door gong and peep holes.

Stair sides of stair enclosures have painted ceilings and walls. The walls have a darker dado approximately 4' 0" high with a dado stripe above. Steps and platforms are painted.

Incinerator rooms have asphalt tile floors, rubber base, painted plaster walls, ceiling, etc.

Six apartments were inspected. The living rooms, dining rooms or dining alcoves, bedrooms and foyers have oak wood block floors. Walls and ceilings are painted plaster. Interior trim is painted wood. Apartment entrance doors and their trims are hollow metal. Interior doors are hardboard surfaced grid core doors. Closets are of good size, have wood shelving and dividers; some have hinged doors, others have sliding doors.

Bathrooms have ceramic tile floors, glazed tile wainscots approximately 4 feet high except around bathtubs where tile on walls is 6' high for shower enclosure. Bathrooms have white enameled cast iron built-in tubs with shower heads and curtain rods, vitreous china wash basins and water closets. Water closets have low down tanks. Bathrooms are equipped with medicine cabinets with mirror doors and built-in soiled clothes hampers.

Kitchens have vinyl asbestos tile floors, plastered walls and ceilings. All apartments except the B, F, H, M and N apartments have built-in ovens and all apartments have gas ranges, electric refrigerators and with few exceptions, dishwashers. Generally, they are interior rooms and are mechanically ventilated. Cabinets are of metal with laminated plastic counter tops.

ROOFING

The main and penthouse roofs and the roofs of the extension over the entrance lobby are of bituminous built-up type, with slag covering. Flashings at intersections between roof surfaces and vertical surfaces are of standard weight and temper copper.

Roofs of apartment terraces at setbacks are covered with standard red roofing quarry tile.

All roofing was reported weathertight. There were no evidences of leaks past or present in areas to which access was possible.

The exhaust fans for kitchens, interior bathrooms, etc., are located on the roofs in painted metal enclosures.

There are cooling towers for air conditioning for the restaurant and lobby on the roof over the lobby extension.

INTERIOR FINISHES

The entire subcellar and cellar areas except a shower stall in the men's locker room and toilet in laundry have exposed concrete walls or masonry block units. Surfaces of corridor partitions are painted with a cold glazed paint. The laundry room has painted cement floors, cold glaze painted concrete and masonry unit walls, painted concrete ceilings, fluorescent lights and mechanical ventilation in addition to a window to the outer air.

It is equipped with six electric washers, four dryers, two light service extractors and a larger one on order.

There are four laundry trays, two service sinks and three wood ironing boards, with outlets on an opposite wall for three additional ironing boards.

There is a toilet room with ceramic tile floor, glazed tile base, painted walls and ceiling. The room has a vitreous china water closet with flush valve and a porcelain enameled basin.

The floor, walls and ceiling of the combination shop and office in the cellar are painted as are the entrances to cellar and cellar corridors.

Elevator Machine Rooms and water tank enclosures above the main roof have concrete floors and ceilings and partially painted masonry unit walls.

PLUMBING

The systems are in good operating condition. Main drainage lines, stacks, leaders and main branch lines are of cast iron; vents, branch vents and runouts are of galvanized steel. Water lines are of brass and gas lines of black steel. Exposed piping and fittings are chrome plated.

Drainage, both sanitary and storm, which is above the city sewer mains is by gravity. Where areas are below the city sewer mains drainage is to sumps from which it is lifted to the house drain by pumps. Each of the sump pits is equipped with two pumps.

Domestic water is lifted to a house tank above the roof from which it is distributed to all fixtures through a down feed system which insures adequate pressure and volume.

Fixtures consist of enameled cast iron bathtubs and kitchen sinks, vitreous china basins and water closet bowls with low down tanks except those in the laundry and locker rooms which have flush valves. Sinks in service closets and laundry, and the laundry trays are of enameled cast iron.

There are fire standpipe lines in the stairways of each building which are in good working condition and have recently been inspected and approved by the City inspectors.

The subcellar and cellar storage areas and garage are provided with an approved automatic sprinkler system for protection in the event of fire.

Hot water is provided by means of two Patterson Kelly hot water generators of an estimated 5,000 gallon capacity. These tanks have recently been cement lined to insure rust proof and clean water.

Gas is furnished to the tenants by the house.

HEATING, VENTILATING AND AIR CONDITIONING

The building is heated and air conditioned by means of convectors and cooling units, respectively, under the windows in each room. These are to be replaced with fan coil units which will both heat and air condition.

Bathrooms are equipped with fin tube radiators.

Steam is furnished by Con Edison Company and each unit is equipped with dual vacuum pump.

Fans for ventilation of bathrooms and kitchens are on the main roof in sheet metal enclosures.

There is a Morse Boulger incinerator with its own charging chute and feed hoppers in a closet on each floor of each of the two building units.

The incinerators were installed prior to enactment of the present air pollution control law and are not now equipped with scrubbers as required by the said law, but are operated under a special "continued use" application #2340/67 and approved _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] .

Ventilating fans on the roof over the lobby and the main roof are equipped with pilot lights in the superintendent's office to insure prompt attention in the event of breakdown at any time.

ELEVATORS

Each unit is equipped with two Otis elevators of 2000 lb. capacity, one of which is a passenger car and one a combination passenger and service car.

They are arranged for operator or automatic push button service.

The cabs are flush wood paneled with stainless steel trim, strip cove reflected lighting and have vinyl asbestos tile floors.

The cab walls have been mutilated with sharp cutting instruments and have gouges which indicate the use of hooked type can openers.

The elevators have been inspected by the City authorities and approved as of _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] .

The garage elevator is of 7000 lb. capacity, Otis manufacture, with steel body and bears the approval of the City Inspector dated _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] .

ELECTRIC SYSTEM

Each building unit has its own house service switch with separate distribution panels for the tenants and for the public portions of the building. In addition, each store, including the bank, has a separate electric service.

Electric current is carried to tenant meters located in the incinerator closets on the upper floors from whence it is run to the apartments.

House service panels are of 3500 amperes with distribution through vertical feeders to tenant panels located in incinerator rooms at varying floors.

Current is available at 108/115, 208/265 and 440 volts, three phase, 60 cycle a.c.

SUMMARY

The building is ten years old, substantially built, sound and on a structural steel skeleton, with concrete arch floor construction, and masonry curtain walls. The windows have aluminum frames, with stationary glass panels flanked by double hung units for ventilation during the in-between seasons when heating and air conditioning are not essential. It is thoroughly fireproof and built in accordance with the zoning ordinance in effect at the time it was constructed.

It is well planned, has good sized rooms, ample and spacious closets and sanitary facilities.

Kitchens are equipped with built-in wall ovens, except as noted, gas ranges, electric refrigerators and, except in the smallest apartments, they have dishwashers. Kitchen cabinets are of metal with laminated plastic counter tops.

Living room, dining area, bedrooms, and foyers have wood block floors, generally in good condition. Kitchens have vinyl asbestos tile floors.

Bathrooms have tile floors and wainscots with the wainscot raised to shower height around the built-in tubs.

Walls, except where tiled, are painted or paper or fabric covered in good condition. Ample wall outlets are provided for electric lighting and other appliances.

Public spaces are inviting, tastefully decorated and well kept, except that walls of the elevator lobbies are subjected to abuse by delivery personnel. This is particularly true of the cabs in the combination passenger and service cars where deep cuts and gouges have been made on the wood paneling.

The stairs are clean and fire standpipes, racks and hoses are in good working order and only recently inspected.

The exterior of the building is well preserved except for the mortar joints in marble copings which require caulking.

There is one brick pier on the west wall of the south unit which extends from the low area level to the second floor on which the cap flashing has been provided but the base flashing has been omitted.

Except for those areas in the cellar and subcellar which are occupied by the garage and by the valet shop all space is devoted to house services. These include electric and gas meter rooms, steam and hot water generator room, laundry and locker rooms with their toilet rooms, paint room, superintendent's office and shop, and a general storage area without divisions which is used for tenant and house storage. Except for areas herein previously noted as painted, wall and ceiling surfaces are unpainted, dusty and in spots damaged.

The cold glazed finish in the laundry especially and in the corridors requires some repair.

The Owner of the apartment building will undertake to make the repairs noted above as required as soon as weather and other conditions permit.

FORM 20.52 Certificate of incorporation -- New York corporation

COMMENT

This form illustrates a certificate of incorporation for a cooperative corporation organized under the Business Corporation Law of New York. The information to be included in any certificate of incorporation will, of course, vary with the requirements of local law. However, the particular characteristics of a real estate cooperative corporation will dictate the inclusion of certain provisions regardless of the state of incorporation. The practitioner should be aware that most states have promulgated forms that are available on line for use to form a corporation. The State of New York is one such state. The Secretary of State's Office for the State of New York has a form Certificate of Incorporation which may be used to form an entity. Currently, a corporation may be formed without using the New York Secretary of State's form. However, some states, such as Ohio require the use of the Secretary of State's promulgated form. As always the practitioner must review and become familiar with the laws of the jurisdiction where the entity is to be formed.

This certificate, therefore, provides for only one class of shares. In addition, the purpose clause makes it clear that shareholders shall be entitled solely by reason of their ownership of shares to proprietary leases permitting them to occupy the dwelling units of the cooperative. The statutory requirement prohibiting distributions to shareholders is taken care of in the corporate bylaws. Certain other provisions in the certificate are indigenous to the cooperative corporation: a statement that the primary purpose is to provide homes for shareholders under proprietary leases; a broad statement of purposes with respect to the purchase of land, construction of buildings, and acquisition of personal property necessary to the operation of apartments; and a provision that the corporation may withhold its consent to a transfer of shares by a shareholder if he is in default on any indebtedness to the corporation.

For the tax aspects of cooperative housing corporations, see TB § 20.10.

FORM 20.53 Bylaws of cooperative corporation

COMMENT

In addition to defining the intracorporate procedures found in the usual corporate bylaws, those of a cooperative corporation must contain special provisions relating to the problems inherent in the cooperative purpose of the organization. Thus, the board of directors is granted the power to fix the annual cash requirements of the cooperative which in turn will establish the rental payments to be made by the tenant-shareholders; the power to adopt a form of proprietary lease; the power to determine the number of shares to be allocated to each apartment; and the power to subdivide and regroup space at the request of one or more owners. Corporate shares may be issued only in connection with the execution of proprietary leases, and the ownership of the shares entitles the shareholder to occupy a specified apartment for dwelling purposes. No shareholder is entitled, either conditionally or unconditionally, except upon a complete or partial liquidation of the corporation, to receive any distribution not out of the earnings and profits of the corporation. These latter provisions are designed to secure the tax benefit for the tenant-shareholders. The corporation is given a lien on its shares to secure the payment of rent and compliance with the terms of the proprietary leases, but this lien is subordinate to any lien to secure payment of the purchase price of the shares.

Article I

Meetings of Shareholders

1. Annual Meeting. The annual meeting of the Corporation's shareholders, for the election of directors and for such other business as may properly come before such meeting, shall be held in the Borough of Manhattan, at 5 p.m. on the first Monday of May of each year commencing with the year _____ [year] . If that day is a legal holiday, however, the meeting shall be held on the first day thereafter not a legal holiday. The notice of the meeting shall be in writing and signed by the President or a Vice President or the Secretary or an Assistant Secretary. Such notice shall state the purpose or purposes for which the meeting is called and the time when and the place within the state where it is to be held. A copy thereof shall be served, either personally or by mail, upon each shareholder of record entitled to vote at such meeting, not less than ten nor more than 40 days before the meeting.

2. Special Meetings. The President or Secretary, or a majority of the Board of Directors, may at any time call special meetings of shareholders, other than those regulated by statute. The Secretary shall also call a special meeting whenever so requested in writing by shareholders of record of at least one-quarter of the outstanding shares. A notice of each special meeting, stating its time, place, and purpose and the officer or other person or persons by whom the meeting is called, shall be served, either personally or by mail, on each shareholder of record, at least ten days before such meeting. No business other than that stated in the notice shall be transacted at any special meeting unless the holders of record of all the Corporation's outstanding shares are present in person or by proxy.

3. Waiver of Mailing of Notice. The notice provided for in the two foregoing sections is not indispensable. Any shareholders' meeting whatever shall be valid for all purposes if the shareholders of record of all the Corporation's outstanding shares are present in person or by proxy, or if a quorum is present as provided in the next succeeding section and notice of the time, place, and purpose of such meeting has been duly waived in writing by all shareholders not so present. Any notice to be served upon a shareholder by mail shall be directed to him at his address as it appears on the Corporation's books unless the shareholder shall have filed with the Secretary of the Corporation a written request that notices intended for him be mailed to some other address, in which case it shall be mailed to the address designated in such request.

4. Quorum. At all meetings of shareholders, in order to constitute a quorum and to permit the transaction of any business, except to adjourn a meeting, there shall be present, either in person or by proxy, holders of record of a majority of the Corporation's outstanding shares.

5. Voting. Each shareholder of record shall be entitled at each shareholders' meeting to one vote, in person or by proxy, for each share standing in his name on the Corporation's books at the time of the meeting. All proxies shall be in writing and shall be filed with the Secretary at or before the time of the meeting. All voting shall be viva voce, except that any qualified voter may demand a ballot vote, in which case the voting shall be by ballot. Each ballot shall state the name of the shareholder voting and the number of shares owned by him, and in addition the name of the proxy, if such ballot is cast by a proxy.

6. Inspectors of Election. Inspectors of election shall not be required to be appointed at any meeting of shareholders unless requested by a shareholder present (in person or by proxy) and entitled to vote at such meeting. Upon the making of such request inspectors shall be appointed or elected as provided in the applicable statute.

7. Order of Business. The regular order of business for the annual meeting of shareholders, and for each special meeting to the extent such order is applicable, shall be as follows:

(a) Roll call.

- (b) Presentation of notice of the meeting and proof of service, or waiver of notice.
- (c) Reading of minutes of preceding shareholders' meeting.
- (d) Reports of officers.
- (e) Reports of committees.
- (f) Appointment or election of inspectors of election, if requested.
- (g) Election of directors for ensuing year.
- (h) Miscellaneous business.

Article II Directors

1. Election and Term. Directors shall be elected at the annual meeting of shareholders, or at a special meeting called for that purpose as provided by law, by a plurality of the votes cast at such election. Directors shall serve until the date herein fixed for the next annual meeting of shareholders and until the election of their respective successors. Directors need not be shareholders.

2. Vacancies. Vacancies in the Board of Directors resulting from death, resignation, or removal may be filled without notice to any of the shareholders by a vote of a majority of the remaining directors present at the meeting at which such election is held even though no quorum is present. Such vote may be at any regular meeting of the Board of Directors or any special meeting thereof called for such purpose. Vacancies in the Board of Directors resulting from an increase in its size shall be filled in the manner provided in the resolution increasing its size. If all the directors die or resign, any shareholder may call a special meeting of the shareholders as provided herein, at which directors for the unexpired term may be elected in the manner provided for their election at annual meetings. If any director, by ceasing to be a resident of the State of New York, reduces the number of such residents remaining on the Board to less than one, he shall be deemed to have resigned and his place shall be vacant.

3. Removal. Any director may be removed from office without cause by the Corporation's shareholders at a meeting duly called for that purpose.

4. Meetings. The Board of Directors shall hold its annual meeting immediately after the annual meeting of shareholders, without notice. It shall hold a special meeting whenever called together by the President or by a Vice President, or, after written request of any two directors then holding office, by any other officer, upon two days' written notice to each director served in person or by mailing the same to him at the last address furnished by him to the Corporation. Any meeting of the Board at which all the directors are present, or of which notice has been duly waived by all absentees, shall be valid for all purposes provided a quorum is present. A majority of the directors shall constitute a quorum. Meetings of the Board shall be held at such place within the City of New York as is specified in the notice calling the meeting. At meetings of the Board, each director shall be entitled to one vote.

5. Annual Budget. In furtherance of the definitions and provisions of the proprietary leases entered into by the Corporation with its shareholders, the Board of Directors shall determine the cash requirements, as defined therein, and shall likewise fix the terms and times of payment of the rent due from shareholders who are lessees under such proprietary leases to meet such cash requirements. The Board of Directors shall have discretionary power to prescribe the manner of maintaining and operating the Corporation's apartment building, and any other premises acquired by the Corporation by purchase or otherwise, and to determine the foregoing cash requirements. Every such determination by the Board shall be final and conclusive as to all shareholders who are lessees under proprietary leases. All expenditures made by the Corporation's officers or agents under the direction or with the approval of the Board shall, as against such shareholders, be deemed necessarily and properly made for such purposes. The operating year of the Corporation shall be the calendar year.

6. Distributions. The Board of Directors shall by vote declare dividends from the surplus profits of the Corporation whenever in their opinion the condition of its affairs will render it expedient for such dividends to be declared. The shareholder shall not, either conditionally or unconditionally, except upon a complete or partial liquidation of the Corporation, receive any distribution not out of the Corporation's earnings and profits.

7. House Rules. The Board of Directors may make and change the house rules applicable to the Corporation's apartment building whenever the Board deems it advisable so to do. All house rules shall be binding upon all tenants and occupants of the apartment building.

8. Executive Committee. The Board of Directors may by resolution appoint an executive committee to consist of three or more Directors of the Corporation. Such committee shall have and may exercise all of the powers of the Board in the management of the Corporation's business and affairs during the intervals between the meetings of the Board, so far as may be permitted by law. The Executive Committee, however, shall not have power to determine the cash requirements defined in the proprietary leases, to fix the rent to be paid under the proprietary leases, or to vary the terms of payment thereof as fixed by the Board.

Article III Officers

1. Election and Removal. The Board of Directors at its first meeting and at each annual meeting shall elect by a majority vote, a President and one or more Vice Presidents, a Secretary, and a Treasurer. The Board may also at any time appoint one or more Assistant Secretaries or Assistant Treasurers and accord to such assistant officers such powers as it deems proper. Any person otherwise qualified may hold any two offices. Each officer shall serve until the next annual meeting of the Board and until the election or appointment of his respective successor. Any officer, however, may be removed from office at any time, and a successor chosen, at the Board's pleasure, upon affirmative vote, taken at any meeting, by a majority of the then total authorized number of directors.

2. President and Vice President. The President shall preside at meetings of shareholders and of the Board of Directors. He shall, subject to the control of the Board: have general management of the Corporation's affairs; perform all the duties incidental to his office or prescribed for him by these Bylaws or the Board; and make and sign in the Corporation's name all contracts, leases, and other instruments that the Board may from time to time authorize. If the President shall be absent or unable to perform these duties, any Vice President shall have his powers and perform his duties. A Vice President shall at all times have power to make and sign proprietary leases in the Corporation's name.

3. Secretary. The Secretary shall keep and record, in proper books provided for the purpose, the minutes of meetings of the Board of Directors and of the shareholders, record all transfers of stock and cancel and preserve certificates of the shares so transferred, and keep such other records as the Board shall require. He shall attend to the giving and serving of notices of the Corporation, have custody of the corporate seal, and affix the same to the share certificates and to instruments required by law or by these Bylaws or authorized by the Board. He shall also perform all other duties incidental to his office. He shall keep a book, to be known as the share book, containing the names, alphabetically arranged, of all persons who are shareholders of the Corporation, showing their places of residence, the number of shares held by them respectively, the time when they respectively became the owners thereof, the amount paid thereon, and the denomination and amount of all transfer stamps affixed thereto. The share book shall be open daily, during at least three business hours, for inspection by any judgment creditor of the Corporation, by any person who shall have been a shareholder of record for at least six months immediately preceding his demand, or by any person holding, or thereunto in writing authorized by the holders of, at least 5% of all the outstanding shares. Persons so entitled to inspect the share book may make extracts therefrom. If the Secretary shall be absent or unable to perform these duties, the Assistant Secretary shall have all his powers and perform all his duties.

4. Treasurer. The Treasurer shall, subject to the Board's control, have the care and custody of, and be responsible for, all funds and securities of the Corporation and shall keep the same in its name in such banks, trust companies, or safe deposit companies as the Board shall designate, and shall perform all other duties incidental to his office, or prescribed for him by these Bylaws or by the Board. If so required by the Board, he shall, before receiving any such funds or securities, furnish to the Corporation a bond with a surety company as surety, in such form and amount as the Board from time to time shall determine. The premium upon such bond shall be paid by the Corporation. Within a reasonable time after the close of each year ending December 31st, the Treasurer shall furnish to each shareholder who is a lessee under a proprietary lease then in force a statement of the Corporation's income, expenses, and paid-in surplus during such year. The statement shall indicate the portions of the rent paid by such shareholder under his proprietary lease during such year which the Corporation has used to pay real estate taxes and interest on its mortgage or other indebtedness. If the Treasurer shall be absent or unable to perform these duties, the Assistant Treasurer shall have all his powers and perform all his duties.

5. Salaries. No director or officer of the Corporation shall be paid a salary or other compensation for his services in that capacity unless and until such payment shall have been authorized in writing or by affirmative vote, taken at a duly held shareholders' meeting, by the record holders of at least two-thirds of the Corporation's then outstanding shares.

Article IV

Proprietary Leases

1. Form. The Board of Directors shall adopt a form of proprietary lease to be used by the Corporation for the leasing of all apartments and extra servants' rooms, if any, in the apartment building to be leased to shareholders under proprietary leases. Such proprietary leases shall be for such terms, with or without provisions for renewals, and shall contain such restrictions, limitations, and provisions in respect to the assignment thereof, the subletting of the premises demised thereby, and the sale or transfer of the shares of the Corporation accompanying the same, and such other terms, provisions, conditions, and covenants, as the Board deems advisable. After the Corporation has executed and delivered a proprietary lease in the form so adopted by the Board of Directors, all proprietary leases subsequently executed and delivered shall be in the same form (except with respect to the statement as to the number of shares owned by the lessee), unless the variation is approved by lessees owning at least two-thirds of the Corporation's shares then owned by all lessees under proprietary leases then in force.

2. Assignment. Proprietary leases shall be assigned or transferred only in compliance with, and shall never be assigned or transferred in violation of the terms, conditions, and provisions of, such proprietary leases. A duplicate original of each proprietary lease shall always be kept on file in the office of the Corporation or with the managing agent of the apartment building.

3. Accompanying Shares. The Board of Directors shall allocate to each apartment or extra servant's room to be leased under a proprietary lease the number of the Corporation's shares that must be owned by the proprietary lessee thereof. If the size of any such apartment or extra servant's room is changed from that shown on the typical plan thereof, the number of shares so allocated to such apartment or extra servant's room and to any other apartment or extra servant's room affected by such change shall be ratably and correspondingly changed by the Board.

4. Regrouping of Space. The Board of Directors, upon the written request of the owner or owners of one or more proprietary leases covering one or more apartments or extra servants' rooms in the apartment building and of the shares issued to accompanying the same, may in its discretion, at any time, permit such owner or owners, at his or her own expense: (1) to subdivide or combine all or any portions of any such apartment or apartments or extra servants' rooms into one or any desired number of apartments or extra servants' rooms, (2) to convert all or any portion of any such apartment into extra servants' rooms or into a suite or suites of extra servants' rooms, and (3) to reallocate the shares issued to accompany the proprietary leases, in such proportions as such owners request and the Board approves, provided only that (a) the total number of the shares so reallocated is not less than the shares previously allocated, and (b) the proprietary leases so affected and the accompanying share certificates are surrendered, and that there are executed and delivered in place thereof, respectively, a new proprietary lease for each separate apartment, extra servant's room, or suite of extra servants' rooms so created and a new share certificate for the number of shares so reallocated to each such new proprietary lease.

5. Fees on Assignment. The Board of Directors may fix by resolution and collect, before any assignment of a proprietary lease or any reallocation of shares takes effect as against the Corporation as lessor, reasonable fees to cover the Corporation's expenses and attorneys' fees in connection with such proposed assignment or reallocation, or both, as the case may be.

6. Lost Proprietary Leases. If any proprietary lease in full force and effect shall be lost, stolen, destroyed, or mutilated, the Board of Directors may authorize the issuance of a new proprietary lease in lieu thereof, in the same form and with the same terms, provisions, conditions, and limitations. The Board may, in its discretion, before the issuance of such new proprietary lease, require the owner of the lost, stolen, destroyed, or mutilated proprietary lease, or the owner's legal representative, to make an affidavit or affirmation setting forth such facts as to the loss, destruction, or mutilation as it deems necessary, and to give the Corporation a bond in such reasonable sum as it directs, to indemnify the Corporation.

Article V Corporate Shares

1. Issuance of Shares. Shares of the Corporation shall be issued only in connection with the execution and delivery by the lessee and the Corporation of a proprietary lease of an apartment in the building owned or leased by the Corporation. The ownership of the shares so issued shall entitle the holder thereof to occupy for dwelling purposes the apartment specified in the proprietary lease so executed and delivered in connection with the issuance of such shares, subject to the covenants and agreements contained in such proprietary lease.

2. Share Certificates. Certificates for the Corporation's shares shall be in the form prescribed by the Board of Directors. Such certificates shall be signed by the President or a Vice President and the Secretary or an Assistant Secretary or the Treasurer or an Assistant Treasurer, and sealed with the seal of the Corporation, and shall be numbered in the order in which issued. Certificates shall be bound in a book and issued in consecutive order therefrom, and in the margin or stub thereof shall be entered the name of the person holding the shares therein represented, the number of shares, and the date of issue. Each certificate exchanged or returned to the Corporation shall be cancelled, and the Secretary shall indicate the date of cancellation thereon. Such certificate shall be immediately pasted in the certificate book opposite the memorandum of its issue.

3. Transfer. Transfers of shares shall be made only upon the books of the Corporation by the holder in person or by power of attorney, duly executed and witnessed and filed with the Secretary, and on the surrender of the certificate of such shares, except that shares sold by the Corporation to satisfy any lien which it holds thereon may be transferred without the surrender of such certificate. No transfer of shares shall be valid as against the Corporation, its shareholders, and creditors for any purpose until it shall have been entered in the share book by an entry showing from whom and to whom transferred.

4. Units of Issuance. Shares issued to accompany each proprietary lease shall be issued in the amount allocated by the Board of Directors to the apartment or extra servant's room or suite of extra servants' rooms described in such proprietary lease. Unless and until all proprietary leases which have been executed by the Corporation shall have been terminated, the shares which accompany each proprietary lease shall be represented by a single certificate. These shares shall not be sold or transferred except to the Corporation or as an entirety to a person who has acquired such proprietary lease, or a new one in place thereof, after complying with and satisfying the requirements of such proprietary lease in respect to its assignment.

5. Fees on Transfer. The Board of Directors may fix by resolution and collect, before the transfer of any shares, reasonable fees to cover the Corporation's expenses and attorneys' fees in connection with such proposed transfer.

6. Corporation Lien. The Corporation shall at all times have a lien upon the shares owned by each shareholder to secure the payment of all rent to become payable by such shareholder under the provisions of any proprietary lease issued by the Corporation and at any time held by such shareholder and for all other indebtedness from such shareholder to the Corporation, and to secure the performance of all the covenants and conditions of such proprietary lease to be performed or complied with by the shareholder. Unless and until such shareholder or lessee makes default in the payment of any such rent or other indebtedness or in the performance of any such covenant or condition, such shares shall continue to stand in the name of the shareholder upon the Corporation's books and the shareholder shall be entitled to exercise the right to vote thereon. The Corporation may issue to any purchaser of such shares upon its enforcement of such lien, or to the nominee of such purchaser, a certificate of the shares so purchased substantially of the tenor of the certificate issued to such defaulting shareholder. Thereupon the certificate for such shares issued to such defaulting shareholder shall become void and such defaulting shareholder shall surrender the same to the Corporation on demand. The defaulting shareholder's failure so to surrender such certificate, however, shall not affect the validity of the certificate issued in replacement thereof.

7. Lost Certificates. If any share certificate shall be lost, stolen, destroyed, or mutilated, the Board of Directors may authorize the issuance of a new certificate of the same tenor and for the same number of shares in lieu thereof. The Board may in its discretion, before the issuance of such new certificate, require the owner of the lost, stolen, destroyed, or mutilated certificate, or the owner's legal representative, to make an affidavit or affirmation setting forth such facts as to the loss, destruction, or mutilation as it deems necessary, and to give the Corporation a bond in such reasonable sum as it directs, to indemnify the Corporation.

Article VI

Seal

The seal of the Corporation shall be in the form of a circle, and shall bear its name, the year of its incorporation, and the words "Corporate Seal, New York."

Article VII

Checks, Notes, Etc.

1. Signatures on Checks. Checks drawn against the Corporation's deposit accounts with banks or trust companies shall be signed by such officer or officers, or employee or employees, as the Board of Directors may from time to time prescribe.

2. Signatures on Notes and Bonds. The Corporation's promissory notes and bonds shall be signed by any two officers who the Board of Directors shall from time to time designate for that purpose.

3. Safe Deposit Boxes. Any officer or officers who, from time to time, the Board of Directors shall designate for that purpose shall have access to any safe deposit box of the Corporation in the vault of any safe deposit company.

4. Securities. Any officer or officers who, from time to time, the Board of Directors shall designate for that purpose shall have power to control and direct the disposition of any bond or other security or property of the Corporation deposited in the custody of any bank, trust company, or other custodian.

Article VIII Amendments

These Bylaws may be amended at any shareholders' meeting provided that the proposed amendment has been inserted in the notice of meeting or that all of the shareholders are present in person or by proxy. These Bylaws may also be amended at any directors' meeting provided that the proposed amendment has been inserted in the notice of the meeting and that at least two-thirds of the then authorized total number of directors shall be present at such meeting. The shareholders, however, may at any time rescind, repeal, or amend any Bylaw adopted by the Board of Directors.

FORM 20.54 Agreement with agent for sale of cooperative's shares--appointment as managing agent

COMMENT

The traditional real estate agent serves two functions in a cooperative venture--the sale of shares to prospective cooperative owners, and the management of the property after the cooperative plan becomes effective. In this agreement the sponsor of the venture and the cooperative corporation appoint a real estate company to perform both of these functions under an exclusive agency arrangement. Here, the terms of the sales agency including the duties of the agent, commission rates, selling procedures, etc., are spelled out. As compensation for sales to tenant-shareholders, the agent is to receive a percentage of the sales price. As manager of the building, the agent is to receive a fixed annual fee. The sponsor reserves the right, at the cost of an overriding commission, to direct the agent to list a block of the shares for sale with an outside broker. Special arrangements are included in the agreement for commissions for negotiating leases on any store and on the garage in the building, and for commissions if the cooperative venture is abandoned by the sponsor.

When the cooperative plan is put into effect the sponsor may have to provide individual purchasers for unsold apartments. As to any such sales, the agent is to receive no compensation until the "nominee" purchaser has in turn sold the shares to another purchaser. A similar arrangement is made for any store or garage space leased to an affiliate of the sponsor. In this latter case, the commission will become payable only when any such space is first subleased to a third party.

FORM

AGREEMENT made _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [

year] , among Ace Realty Corporation (the "Sponsor"), Skyline Apartments, Inc. (the "Apartment Corporation"), and Harris & Co., Inc. (the "Agent").

Whereas the Sponsor is promulgating a proposed cooperative plan (the "Plan") with respect to the new apartment building being erected on the southerly side of _____ [address] , _____ [city] , _____ [state] , and proposes to transfer the land and completed building to the Apartment Corporation pursuant to the contract containing the terms and conditions outlined in the Plan; and

WHEREAS, the Sponsor wishes to employ the Agent to act as Sales Agent in connection with the sales of blocks of the Apartment Corporation's shares to be respectively allocated to apartments in the building and the ownership of such blocks would entitle the respective purchasers to proprietary leases on the respective apartments; and

WHEREAS, the Apartment Corporation wishes to employ the Agent as managing agent if the Plan shall be consummated; and

WHEREAS, the Agent is willing to accept such employment on the terms and conditions hereinafter contained;

NOW, THEREFORE, the parties hereto agree as follows:

1. Employment. The Sponsor hereby employs the Agent, and the Agent hereby accepts such employment, as the Sponsor's Selling Agent to offer for sale the shares of the Apartment Corporation and the proprietary leases allocated thereto as provided for under the provisions of the Plan and the form of Purchase Agreement attached to and forming part thereof.

2. Duties of Agent. The Agent, in conjunction with the Sponsor, the Apartment Corporation, and their respective attorneys, will prepare the Plan with respect to the building, which upon adoption the parties shall initial for identification. As soon as the Plan has been prepared in final form and approved by the parties, the Agent will carry out all actions and duties imposed upon it under the terms of the Plan and of the Contract of Sale between the Sponsor and the Apartment Corporation, and will use its best efforts to sell the blocks of shares of the Apartment Corporation and leases allocated to apartments at the prices set forth in the schedules to be annexed to the Plan. There will be no variations in the Plan or in the Purchase Agreements except those first approved in writing by the Sponsor.

3. Compensation. The Sponsor shall pay to the Agent for its services hereunder commissions as follows:

(a) The Sponsor shall pay to the Agent for services in negotiating and closing the sale of any block of the Apartment Corporation's shares, and the proprietary lease allocated to such block, a commission of _____ percent (_____ %) of the actual sales price realized on each such block of shares. Twenty-five percent (25%) of such commission shall be payable when, and only if, the Purchase Agreement signed by the prospective purchaser and accompanied by the required down payment has been received by the Agent and the Purchase Agreement has been approved by the Agent and accepted by the Apartment Corporation; twenty-five percent (25%) five (5) days after, and only if, the Plan is declared effective; and the other fifty percent (50%) thereof within five days after, and only if, the balance of the purchase price for the shares has been paid by the individual purchaser. During the term of this agreement, the Agent shall be the Sponsor's exclusive Agent in connection with the sales of shares of the Apartment Corporation. All such sales shall be negotiated through the Agent and all inquiries with respect thereto shall be referred to it. However, the Sponsor may, at any time after three months from the date the Plan is accepted for filing by the Attorney General of the State of _____ [state], direct the Agent to list for sale any block of shares of the Apartment Corporation with a broker not in the Agent's employ or, at any time, may direct the Agent to recognize any such outside broker in connection with any sale of shares. If the sale is consummated by the outside broker, the Sponsor shall pay to the Agent a commission and one-quarter (1/4) (at the rate hereinabove provided), of which the Agent shall pay the full commission of _____ percent (_____%) to the outside broker and retain the one-quarter (1/4) thereof as an overriding commission. Such commission shall be payable to the outside broker and such overriding commission shall be payable to the Agent in such proportions, at such times, and subject to such conditions as the commission would have been payable to the Agent, as hereinabove provided, if it were the sole procuring broker involved in connection with the sale.

(b) The Sponsor shall pay to the Agent for services in negotiating and closing the lease of any store or of the garage in the building a full commission of _____ percent (_____%) of each lease payment received by the Sponsor or by the Apartment Corporation, payable annually in arrears. Twenty-five percent (25%) of such commissions shall be payable when, and only if, such lease is executed and delivered by the proposed tenant and the Apartment Corporation and the tenant has paid the first month's rent thereunder, and the balance of such commission within five days after the tenant takes possession of the space demised under such lease. During the term of this agreement, the Agent shall be the Sponsor's exclusive Agent in connection with the leasing of the doctor's office and garage in the building, and all such leases shall be negotiated through the Agent and all inquiries with respect thereto shall be referred to the Agent. However, the Sponsor may at any time after the expiration of one year from the date the building is topped out direct the Agent to list for leasing the garage or the doctor's office in the building with a broker not in the Agent's employ or, at any time, may direct the Agent to recognize any such outside broker in connection with any leasing of the garage or such doctor's office. If the lease is consummated by the outside broker, then the Sponsor shall pay to the Agent a commission and one-quarter (1/4) based on present Real Estate Board of _____ [state] rates, of which the Agent shall pay the full commission to the outside broker and retain the one-quarter (1/4) thereof as an overriding commission. Such commission shall be payable to the outside broker and such overriding commission shall be payable to the Agent in such proportions, at such times, and subject to such conditions as the commission would have been payable to the Agent, as hereinabove provided, if it were the sole procuring broker involved in connection with the sale. The Agent shall have no liability to pay any part of such commission to the outside broker, and the broker shall have no claim against it therefor unless and until the Agent shall have received from the Sponsor the commission due and payable to the outside broker. Any commission payable hereunder upon the exercise of any renewal option shall be the sole liability of the Apartment Corporation, which hereby agrees to assume and pay the same.

(c) If any shares of the Apartment Corporation are purchased by a person produced by the Sponsor at the time the Plan is put into effect, then and in that event no commission shall be payable to the Agent on any such sale. The Agent, however, shall continue (but only so long as it is the Managing Agent under contract with the Apartment Corporation to be made pursuant to Paragraph 7 hereof) to act as Selling Agent for such shares subject to the terms and conditions of this agreement and upon the same commission rates as are provided herein. The Agent's commissions shall not become due and payable in connection therewith until the initial purchaser of any such shares has transferred them and the accompanying lease to another purchaser, at which time the full commission will be payable. Similarly, no commission shall be due and payable upon any lease of the garage and the doctor's office to an affiliate of the Sponsor, but the Sponsor shall cause commissions, subject to the terms and conditions of this agreement and at the same rates as are provided herein, to be paid by such affiliate upon the first sublease of such space (but only so long as the Agent is the Managing Agent under contract with the Apartment Corporation to be made pursuant to Paragraph 7 hereof).

(d) Notwithstanding the above, the total commissions payable to the Agent under this agreement as overriding commissions, where full commissions are payable by Sponsor to other brokers, shall in no event exceed _____ Dollars ($_____).

4. Indemnity of Agent. The Sponsor will indemnify and hold the Agent harmless from any liability that the Agent may have to prospective purchasers, the Apartment Corporation, or others that may arise because of the Sponsor's failure to comply with any of its obligations as contained herein and in the Plan and other agreements referred to therein, including any written literature or advertising in connection therewith which the Sponsor shall have prepared or approved in writing. The Agent shall notify the Sponsor promptly in writing of any such claim asserted against the Agent and of any subsequent developments in connection with such claim. The Sponsor may defend any action or proceeding resulting therefrom at its sole cost and expense in the Agent's name and use counsel of its own choice in such connection. The Agent shall cooperate fully with the Sponsor and its counsel in all stages of any such claim, action, or proceeding and in such connection shall make available all evidence and shall produce all witnesses under its control as the Sponsor or its counsel may request. If the Sponsor does not exercise its right to defend any such action or proceeding, the Agent shall defend the same with due diligence at the Sponsor's expense.

5. Doctor's Office and Garage Leases. The Sponsor may in its absolute discretion, and for any reason whatsoever, reject and refuse to accept any lease for the doctor's office and garage space. In that event no commission shall be payable on such transaction.

6. Selling Procedures. The Sponsor, at its expense, will provide and furnish an adequate selling office on the premises and the Agent will supply a selling agent or agents at reasonable hours, on all seven days of the week including holidays (except on New Year's Day, July 4th, Labor Day, Thanksgiving, and Christmas), to handle all inquiries at the building. If such selling agent or agents assigned to the sales office at the building are unsatisfactory to the Sponsor, the Sponsor may require the Agent to assign other satisfactory employees and the Agent shall have a reasonable time within which to make such assignment. All publicity, advertising, signs, books, pamphlets, and other literature will be subject to the approval of the Sponsor and the Agent and will be paid for by the Sponsor. The Agent will not incur any expense for such purposes except with the Seller's prior consent. All of the foregoing shall also contain the name of the Agent as exclusive selling and managing agent.

7. Employment as Managing Agent. The contract between the Sponsor and the Apartment Corporation and the Plan, will provide that if and when the building is completed, the property is conveyed to the Apartment Corporation, and the Plan is consummated in accordance with its terms, the Agent will be employed as the Managing Agent for a period of five years from the date of completion at an annual fee of _____ Dollars ($_____) in accordance with the Management Agreement attached hereto. Notwithstanding the above, the Agent shall not be employed or continued as the Apartment Corporation's Managing Agent if it shall have been replaced by another selling agent as provided in Paragraph 9.

8. Abandonment of Cooperative Plan. The Sponsor reserves the right at any time to declare the Plan abandoned. Subject to the Sponsor's rights as set forth in Paragraph 9, the Agent in such event shall be continued as Renting and Managing Agent for the building, which is to be conventionally rented. In such event, the Agent shall receive forthwith from the Sponsor _____ Dollars ($_____) (or such lesser amount as does not exceed the expenses incurred by the Agent under this agreement to the date of abandonment of the Plan) plus fifty percent (50%) of the full commissions (subject to credit for amounts previously paid on account) theretofore earned by the Agent on sales of shares in the Apartment Corporation prior to such abandonment. Each outside broker entitled to receive any commissions under Paragraph 3 shall also in such event be entitled to receive and retain such commissions up to fifty percent (50%) of the full commissions payable (subject to credit for amounts previously paid on account). The Agent shall be the Renting and Managing Agent for a term of three years from the date the Plan is declared abandoned, subject to the Sponsor's right to terminate such renting and managing agency at any time upon or after the expiration of the second year of such term on at least sixty (60) days' prior notice given in writing. (Upon any such termination by the Sponsor, the provisions of Paragraph 9 shall have no application.) The other terms of the Management Agreement will be identical with those in the agreement annexed hereto. During the period of such agency, the Sponsor shall pay the Agent for its services commissions as follows:

(a) The Sponsor shall pay the Agent for services in negotiating and closing the lease of any apartment in the building a commission equal to _____ percent (_____) of the first year's rental or any fraction thereof, _____ percent (_____) of the second year's rental or any fraction thereof, and _____ percent (_____) of the aggregate rental for the balance of the term, provided that no commission shall be deemed payable upon the period of any rental allowance or concession.

(b) The Sponsor shall pay the Agent for services in negotiating and closing the lease of any store or of the garage in the building a full commission of _____ percent (_____) of each lease payment received by the Sponsor or by the Apartment Corporation, payable annually in arrears.

(c) During the term of such Renting and Management Agreement, the Agent shall be the Sponsor's exclusive agent in connection with the leasing of apartments and of garage and store space. The Sponsor, however, may at any time direct the Agent to list for leasing any apartment, garage, or store space with a broker not in the Agent's employ, or to recognize any such outside broker in connection with any such leasing. If the leasing is consummated by the outside broker, the Sponsor shall pay to the Agent a commission and one-quarter (1/4) (at the rates hereinabove provided), of which the Agent shall pay the full commission to the outside broker and retain one-quarter (1/4) hereof as an overriding commission.

(d) Any commission hereunder shall be payable when and only if the lease is executed and delivered by the proposed tenant and accepted by the landlord. The Sponsor, as such landlord, may in its absolute discretion and for any reason whatsoever reject and refuse to accept any lease. In that event no commission shall be payable on such transaction.

(e) If any apartment shall be leased to a person who had previously executed and delivered a Purchase Agreement in respect of which a commission was paid to the Agent or an outside broker, the Agent will give and will cause any such outside broker to give full credit to the Sponsor against the amount of the commission due under this paragraph for the amount of the commission previously paid or payable to the Agent and such outside broker in respect of such sale.

9. Replacement of Agent. The Sponsor may replace the Agent with another selling or renting agent at any time after the later of (a) the expiration of sevenfull calendar months from the date the Plan is promulgated, copies of the Plan are available for distribution, and a sales office is established at the premises, and (b) _____ [date] . In such event, the Sponsor will pay to the Agent the sum of (a) the full commissions theretofore earned by it (subject to credit for amounts previously paid on account), and (b) the cost to the Agent of the services hereunder from the date the Plan is promulgated but not to exceed _____ Dollars ($_____). The "cost to the Agent of the services hereunder" shall for all purposes hereunder consist of direct payments for salaries to, or the guaranteed drawings by, sales agents employed by the Agent full-time at the premises (or, in the case of a sales agent employed by the Agent part-time at the premises, that proportion thereof which is fairly allocable to the time spent by him at the premises), including their share of commissions earned from the sale of shares of the Apartment Corporation or from the renting of apartments, plus a fair share of the Agent's expense for supervision allocable to such employees and for reasonable services by other members of the Agent's firm in promulgating the Plan. If, however, the sum hereinabove payable to the Agent under this paragraph shall exceed _____ Dollars ($_____), then, notwithstanding the above, the total amount payable to the Agent in the event of its replacement pursuant to this paragraph shall not exceed the greater of (1) the sum of _____ Dollars ($_____), or (2) the full commissions theretofore earned by it (including amounts previously paid on account). If the Sponsor exercises its right to replace the Agent pursuant to the provisions of this paragraph, the Agent shall forthwith deliver to the Sponsor a list of persons with whom negotiations are pending by the Agent for the sale of shares or the lease of apartments, garage, or doctor's office space and the state of such negotiations. If sales of shares or leases of such space are thereafter made to such persons, the Agent shall be treated as if its activities with respect to such persons constituted those of an outside broker.

10. Assignment. This contract shall not be assignable by the Agent. If this contract is assigned by either of the other parties hereto, (a) such party shall not be discharged of its liability hereunder, and (b) the Agent may, by giving notice within 30 days after notice to it of such assignment, elect by notice in writing to resign as the Agent hereunder. Such resignation shall not affect the Agent's right thereafter to receive and retain all commissions earned hereunder to the date of such resignation.

11. Entire Agreement. This agreement embodies the entire understanding and agreement of the parties hereto in relation to the subject matter hereof and supersedes any and all prior agreements with respect to the subject matter hereof. No promise, condition, representation, or warranty, express or implied, not herein set forth shall bind any party hereto. No term or condition of this agreement may be changed orally but only by a written agreement signed by the respective parties hereto.

12. Binding Effect. This agreement shall inure to the benefit of and be binding upon the respective parties hereto, their successors and, to the extent permitted, their assigns.

13. Governing Law. This agreement shall be construed in accordance with and governed by the laws of the State of _____ [state] .

14. Headings for Reference Only. Headings preceding the text and sections of this agreement have been inserted solely for convenience and reference, and shall not be construed to affect its meaning, construction, or effect.

15. Notices. All notices or other documents under this agreement shall be in writing and delivered personally or mailed by certified mail, postage prepaid, addressed to the parties at their last known addresses.

16. Non-waiver. No delay or failure by a party to exercise any right under this agreement, and no partial or single exercise of that right, shall constitute a waiver of that or any other right, unless otherwise expressly provided herein.

17. Counterparts. This agreement may be executed in two or more counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original but all of which together shall constitute one and the same instrument.

In witness whereof the parties have hereunto signed and sealed this agreement the day and year first above written.

FORM 20.55 Cooperative apartment management agreement

COMMENT

This form is a management agreement for a cooperative apartment. The agreement is contemplated by the preceding form. The services that will be performed by the agent are comprehensive and constitute the agent a general building management agent. This is to say that he is authorized to do all acts related to the business for which he was engaged, i.e., the management of the cooperative apartment.

FORM

THIS AGREEMENT made _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , between Skyline Apartments, Inc., (the "Owner") and Harris & Co., Inc. (the "Agent").

The parties hereto mutually agree as follows:

1. Employment. The Owner hereby appoints the Agent, and the Agent hereby accepts appointment, on the terms and conditions hereinafter provided, as managing agent of the cooperative apartment house located at 500 East 68th Street, New York, New York (the "Building").

2. Duties of Agent. The Agent shall perform the following services with due diligence and care:

(a) Cause to be hired, paid, and supervised all persons necessary to be employed in order to properly maintain and operate the Building who, in each instance, shall be the Owner's and not the Agent's employees, and cause to be discharged all unnecessary or undesirable persons, except that no person presently employed at the Building shall be discharged without the Owner's prior written consent.

(b) Cause the Building to be maintained in such condition as the Owner may deem advisable, including interior and exterior cleaning, and cause repairs and alterations of the Building to be made, including, but not limited to, electrical, plumbing, steamfitting, carpentry, masonry, elevator, decorating, and such other incidental alterations or changes therein as may be proper, subject only to the limitations contained in this agreement or in any proprietary lease or other agreement with any tenant-shareholder or other tenant. Ordinary repairs or alterations involving an expenditure of over _____ Dollars ($ _____) for any one item shall be made only with the Owner's prior approval, but emergency repairs, i.e., those immediately necessary for the preservation or safety of the Building or for the safety of tenant-shareholders, or other persons, or required to avoid the suspension of any necessary service in the Building, may be made by the Agent regardless of the cost thereof, without the Owner's prior approval, after consultation with the Owner's President or Vice President.

(c) Recommend, and, with the Owner's approval, cause all such acts and things to be done in or about the Building as shall be necessary or desirable to comply with any and all orders or violations affecting the Building, placed thereon by any federal, state, or municipal authority having jurisdiction thereover. If, however, failure promptly to comply with any such order or violation would or might expose the Owner or the Agent to criminal liability, the Agent may cause such order or violation to be complied with after consultation with the Owner's President or Vice President or, if either officer shall not be available to the Agent, after consultation with the Owner's attorneys. The Agent shall notify the Owner's attorneys promptly after receipt of any order or violation.

(d) Enter into contracts for electricity, gas, steam, air conditioning, water treatment, elevator, telephone, window cleaning, rubbish removal, fuel oil, detective agency protection, vermin extermination, and other services or such of them as shall be advisable. Any such contract, however, having a term longer than two (2) years or requiring annual payments in excess of _____ Dollars ($ _____) must be authorized by the Owner.

(e) Purchase all supplies which shall be necessary to properly maintain and operate the Building; make all such contracts and purchases in either the Owner's or the Agent's name, as the Agent shall elect; and credit to the Owner any discounts or commissions obtained for purchases or otherwise (except any insurance and other commissions payable to the Agent under the terms of this agreement).

(f) Advise the Owner with respect to proper insurance coverage of the Building, its employees, and tenant-shareholders; if the Owner shall request, cause to be effected and maintained, in such amounts and through such carriers as the Owner shall designate or approve, fire, rent, plate glass, boiler, water damage, liability, workmen's compensation, employer's liability, disability, and any other insurance the Owner may elect to carry; and to cooperate with any independent insurance broker or consultant that the Owner may designate or approve and engage for the purpose of effecting insurance and protecting its interests with respect thereto.

(g) Check all bills received for services, work, and supplies ordered in connection with maintaining and operating the Building, pay or cause to be paid all such bills, mortgage interest, mortgage amortization, water charges, sewer rent, assessments, real estate taxes, and corporate income and other taxes assessed against the Owner or the Building as and when the same shall become due and payable.

(h) If the Owner shall request, list and offer for sale, lease, or sublease through its own organization and, if the Owner shall deem it advisable, through other brokers, space reserved, acquired, or reacquired by the Owner in the Building, and use its best efforts to effect sales, leases, or subleases thereof, and to renew leases and subleases of space reserved, acquired, or reacquired by the Owner in the Building, including the preparation and execution of lease and sublease documents under the supervision of the Owner's attorneys.

(i) Accept applications and references from all prospective tenant-shareholders, tenants, and subtenants, obtain credit reports relating to prospective tenant-shareholders, tenants, and subtenants of space being leased or subleased by the Owner (and, at its request, for any other space in the Building), obtain from tenant-shareholders proposing to assign their proprietary leases such record searches as the Owner may require, and submit same to the Owner; and facilitate transfers of the Owner's shares and proprietary leases held by its tenant-shareholders.

(j) Supervise the moving in and out of tenant-shareholders, tenants, and subtenants, and, as far as possible, arrange the dates thereof so that there shall be a minimum of disturbance to the Building's operation and of inconvenience to other tenant-shareholders and tenants.

(k) Bill or cause to be billed tenant-shareholders, tenants, and subtenants for maintenance charges, rent, and other charges, use its best efforts to collect such maintenance charges, rent, and other charges, and, when and if directed by the Owner, serve notices upon tenant-shareholders, tenants, or subtenants to quit and surrender the space they occupy. When directed by the Owner, and on its behalf, sue for maintenance charges, rent, and other charges which may at any time be or become due to it from any tenant-shareholder, tenant, or subtenant in respect of space in the Building, institute summary proceedings to recover possession thereof and, with the consent of the Owner's attorneys, employ and pay special counsel, if necessary, for any such purposes. No suit or summary proceedings shall be instituted, however, unless the Owner's written authorization is first obtained.

(l) Consider and, when reasonable, attend to complaints of tenant-shareholders, tenants and subtenants. If the Agent shall deem any such complaint unreasonable, it shall advise the Owner of the complaint and the reason for its opinion that the complaint is unreasonable.

(m) Cause to be prepared and filed the necessary forms for unemployment insurance, withholding, and social security taxes and all other tax and other forms relating to employment of Building employees and maintenance and operation of the Building required by any federal, state, or municipal authority.

(n) If the Owner shall request, not later than the 20th day of each month, render or cause to be rendered regular monthly statements, supported by disbursement vouchers, to the Owner, with remittance of amounts collected during the previous month less disbursements made on behalf and for the account of the Owner and less all such amounts as in the judgment of the Owner's accountants it may be necessary or advisable to reserve or withhold to meet obligations due or which will or may become due thereafter and for which current income will not or may not be adequate. The Agent shall send a copy of each such monthly statement to the Owner's President and Treasurer.

(o) Establish and keep in good order a separate, accurate, and full set of books, other than books of account maintained by the Owner's accountants, for the Owner, and maintain orderly files containing rent records, insurance policies, proprietary and other leases and subleases, correspondence, receipted bills and vouchers, and all other documents and papers pertaining to the building or the operation thereof. Such books, records, and other documents shall be and at all times remain the Owner's property. The Agent shall upon the Owner's request make them available to the Owner and to its officers, accountants, attorneys, or other representatives, and upon the Owner's demand shall deliver them to the Owner or its agents.

(p) Cooperate with the Owner's accountants in regard to the annual audit of the Owner's books of account, including the annual report of the Owner's operations for the year then ended. The Agent shall send a copy of each such annual report to all the Owner's tenant-shareholders.

(q) Cooperate with the Owner's accountants in regard to the preparation and filing on its behalf of federal, state, city, and all other income and other tax returns required by any governmental authority.

(r) Send to all tenant-shareholders of the Owner each year copies of a statement furnished by the Owner's accountants which sets forth the deductions available to tenant-shareholders for income tax purposes by reason of their ownership of its shares and other relevant tax data with respect thereto provided by the Owner's accountants.

(s) Prepare and submit annually to the Owner's Board of Directors, prior to its last meeting held in each calendar year, an operating budget setting forth the Owner's anticipated income and expenses for the ensuing year, a comparison of such budget to the income and expenses of the preceding and current years, and all required explanations with respect thereto.

(t) When requested, provide a suitable place for, send notices to directors and shareholders of, prepare agendas for, and cause a representative of its organization to attend meetings of the tenant-shareholders and of the Owner's Board of Directors and, if requested by the Board of Directors, have its representative act as Secretary, and record and keep the minutes of such meetings.

(u) Prepare and send out all letters and reports that the Owner's Board of Directors may request.

(v) When the books of tentatively assessed valuations of the City of New York are opened for public inspection in each year, ascertain the assessment of the land on which the Building is located and the assessment of the Building and report such assessments to the Owner. If the Owner shall consider such assessments excessive, the Agent will, if requested by the Owner, cooperate with the Owner's attorneys to prepare an application for correction of the assessed valuation to be filed with the Tax Commission of the City of New York and, if the Owner shall not have any regular attorneys, retain special counsel to prepare such application and to institute tax certiorari proceedings.

(w) Use its best efforts to keep any commercial or nonproprietary space in the Building rented to desirable tenants on such terms as the Owner may approve. The Agent may enlist the services of other real estate brokers on the Owner's behalf in connection with the rental of such space. The Agent, however, shall not receive any additional commissions by reason of any other broker's services.

(x) Generally, do all things reasonably deemed necessary or desirable by the Owner's Board of Directors for the proper management of the Building.

The Agent may, for the Owner's account and on its behalf, perform any act or do anything necessary or desirable in order to carry out the Agent's agreements contained in this Paragraph 2. Everything done by the Agent under the provisions hereof shall be done as Agent of the Owner. All obligations or expenses incurred thereunder, for which the Agent is not compensated as provided in Paragraph 5, shall be at the Owner's expense.

All payments made by the Agent hereunder shall be made out of such funds as the Agent may from time to time hold for the Owner's account or as the Owner may provide. The Agent shall not be obliged to make any advance to or for the Owner's account or to pay any amount except out of funds held or provided as above set forth, nor shall it be obliged to incur any extraordinary liability or obligation unless the Owner shall furnish the Agent with the necessary funds for the discharge thereof. If the Agent shall voluntarily advance for the Owner's account any amount for the payment of any obligation or necessary expense connected with the maintenance or operation of the Building or otherwise, the Owner shall reimburse the Agent therefor on demand.

3. Deposit of Funds. The Agent shall deposit in a bank or trust company in the City of _____ [city] , to be designated from time to time by the Owner, all funds which the Agent shall collect for the Owner's account. The Agent shall hold such funds in trust in a special account and shall not commingle the same with other funds that the Agent may receive, whether for its own account or as agent for others. The Agent shall not be liable for any loss resulting from the insolvency of such depository.

4. Liability of Agent. The Agent shall not be liable to the Owner for any loss or damage not caused by the Agent's negligence or failure to comply with its obligations hereunder. The Owner shall indemnify the Agent against and hold the Agent harmless from (a) any liability, damages, costs, and expenses including reasonable attorney's fees, sustained or incurred for injury to any person or property in, about, and in connection with the Building, from any cause whatsoever, unless such injury shall be caused by the Agent's negligence or failure to comply with its obligations hereunder, and (b) any liability, damages, penalties, costs, and expenses, statutory or otherwise, for all acts properly performed by the Agent pursuant to the Owner's instructions; provided, in each of the foregoing instances, that the Agent promptly advises the Owner of its receipt of information concerning any such injury and the amount of any such liability, damages, penalties, costs, and expenses. The Owner will carry liability insurance, workmen's compensation, and employer's liability insurance, will include the Agent as a party insured under the liability policy, and will deliver a copy of such liability policy to the Agent or a certificate evidencing the same.

5. Compensation. The Owner shall pay the Agent as full compensation for its services hereunder the sum of _____ Dollars ($ _____) per annum, payable in equal monthly installments, plus:

(a) Commissions as set forth in Paragraph 3 of the agreement among the Owner, the Agent, and Ace Realty Corp. dated _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year].

(c) For services in connection with labor union relations, withholding taxes, hospitalization, group life insurance, disability insurance, and the like, a fee based upon an hourly rate of _____ Dollars ($ _____).

6. Bond. If requested, the Agent, at the Owner's expense, shall forthwith procure a fidelity bond satisfactory in form to the Owner, and issued by a bonding, insurance, or casualty company satisfactory to the Owner. Pursuant to this bond the surety shall hold the Owner harmless in an amount up to _____ Dollars ($ _____) from any loss of money or other personal property belonging to the Owner or for which the Owner is legally liable, caused by larceny, embezzlement, forgery, misappropriation, wrongful abstraction, or any dishonest or fraudulent acts committed on or after the date hereof, by the Agent, its directors, officers, or employees. The Agent shall keep such bond in full force and effect throughout the term of this agreement.

7. Brokerage. The Agent shall not receive any brokerage commissions for the sale of any shares of the Owner by a tenant-shareholder together with the proprietary lease appurtenant thereto, or for the subletting of any apartment by a tenant-shareholder unless such tenant-shareholder shall directly engage the services of Agent as broker. In no event shall the Owner be liable for any such commissions. Notwithstanding the foregoing, however, the Agent may notify the tenant-shareholders of its willingness to act as broker on their behalf, and, if engaged by any tenant-shareholder for such purpose, the Agent shall exercise its best efforts in such tenant-shareholder's behalf.

8. Representation by Agent. The Agent represents to the Owner that it is duly licensed by the Department of State of the State of _____ [state] as a real estate broker and also by the Department of Law of the State of _____ [state] as a broker-dealer insofar as broker-dealer licensing is required in order to enable it to lawfully perform its duties hereunder.

9. Effective Date. This agreement shall take effect on _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], and shall continue in force until _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year]. files, books, and records, and other instruments relating to the Building and the Owner that may be in the Agent's possession. The Owner shall furnish the Agent with reasonable security against all outstanding obligations or liabilities which the Agent may have incurred hereunder.

10. Modification. This agreement may not be changed orally but only in writing signed by both parties.

11. Binding Effect. The provisions of this agreement shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of both parties and their respective successors and assigns, unless otherwise expressly provided herein.

12. Non-assignment. This agreement may not be assigned by either party.

13. Notices. All notices or other documents under this agreement shall be in writing and delivered personally or mailed by certified mail, postage prepaid, addressed to the parties at their last known addresses.

14. Governing Law. This agreement shall be construed in accordance with and governed by the laws of the State of _____ [state] .

15. Entire Agreement. This agreement contains the entire understanding between the parties and supersedes all prior understandings and agreements between them respecting the within subject matter.

16. Non-waiver. No delay or failure by either party to exercise any right under this agreement, and no partial or single exercise of that right, shall constitute a waiver of that or any other right, unless otherwise expressly provided herein.

17. Headings. Headings in this agreement are for convenience only and shall not be used to interpret or construe its provisions.

18. Counterparts. This agreement may be executed in two or more counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original but all of which together shall constitute one and the same instrument.

FORM 20.56 Purchase agreement with tenant--shareholder

COMMENT

This is an agreement by which a prospective tenant-shareholder commits himself to purchase the cooperative's shares allocated to a specific apartment. It is in the form of an offer to be accepted by the sponsor and the cooperative corporation. It provides for the payment of the purchase price in installments as various stages in the completion of the building are achieved, with the final installment due after the architect and consulting architect have certified that a temporary certificate of occupancy for the building has been issued. For purposes of the requirement in the Revenue Code that 80% of the cooperative's income must be received from tenant-shareholders, see TB § 20.10, at the beginning of this chapter. A shareholder does not qualify until his shares are fully paid for. This does not preclude payment in the form of a promissory note. Nor does it prevent a tenant-shareholder from borrowing money from outside sources and pledging his shares and proprietary lease as collateral security.

All payments made on account of the purchase price are to be held in escrow. At the time of the completion of the building, the purchaser will receive the proprietary lease for the designated apartment, provided he is not in default in his required payments. It should be noted that the basic plan of cooperative organization is incorporated by reference into this purchase agreement. This assures the purchaser that the various representations in the plan are part of his contract to purchase, and that he can hold the sponsor to those representations.

For a discussion of the requirements for qualification as a tenant-stockholder, see TB § 20.10 at the beginning of this chapter. As to tax deductions available to such a stockholder, see TB § 20.10[4].

FORM

1. Approval of Plan. The undersigned (the "Purchaser") has read and hereby approves the Plan of Cooperative Organization dated _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , and the Schedules and Exhibits attached thereto and the documents referred to therein (collectively the "Plan"), and on file with Harris & Co., Inc. (the "Agent"), and made a part hereof with respect to the land and building ("The Skyline") and by the street number 500 East 68th Street, New York, New York (the "Building").

2. Desire to Participate. The Purchaser desires (a) to obtain a proprietary lease for Apartment 4E (the "Apartment") in the Building, and (b) to purchase five hundred fifty-three (553) common shares of Skyline Apartments, Inc. (the "Apartment Corporation"), which shares have been allocated to the Apartment.

3. Purchase Price. The Purchaser hereby irrevocably offers to purchase from the Apartment Corporation five hundred fifty-three (553) of its common shares with a par value of _____ Dollars ($ _____) per share for a total purchase price of _____ Dollars ($ _____) per share payable by good checks drawn to the order of Trust Bank of New York (the "Escrow Agent") and delivered to the Agent as follows:

(a) Ten percent (10%) thereof at the time of execution of this agreement;

(b) Forty percent (40%) thereof after the Plan has been declared operative and the Architect and Consulting Architect have certified that the outside brickwork has been completed (except such portions thereof as are customarily left to be completed after the interior portions are erected) and upon at least fifteen (15) days' prior written notice to the Purchaser;

(c) Thirty percent (30%) thereof when the Architect and Consulting Architect have certified that the white plaster in the apartments above the ground floor has been completed (except such portions thereof as are left uncompleted due to individual purchasers' changes) and upon at least fifteen (15) days' prior written notice to the Purchaser; and

(d) the balance of twenty percent (20%) thereof when the Architect and the Consulting Architect have certified that a temporary certificate of occupancy for the Building has been issued and upon at least fifteen (15) days' prior written notice to the Purchaser.

The time of each payment is hereby made the essence of this agreement. The shares shall not be issued and delivered nor shall the Purchaser acquire any rights therein or pertinent thereto until the full payment of all the amounts above provided have been duly made.

The Escrow Agent shall hold and dispose of all such payments made hereunder as provided in an Escrow Agreement in the form of an Exhibit attached to the Plan, and the Purchaser agrees to be bound thereby.

4. Proprietary Lease. At the time of the completion of the Building, as referred to in the Plan, or as soon thereafter as may be practicable, if the Purchaser shall have made the full payments provided for herein, then the Purchaser shall be entitled to receive a proprietary lease from the Apartment Corporation for the Apartment in the form adopted by the Apartment Corporation as well as a share certificate for the Apartment Corporation's fully paid and nonassessable common shares hereby purchased. The Purchaser shall at the request of the Apartment Corporation, before or after the time of closing, execute such proprietary lease in duplicate. The Purchaser hereby authorizes the Apartment Corporation or the Agent to insert in the proprietary lease the date of the Building's completion as the date of the commencement of the term of such proprietary lease.

5. Abandonment of Plan. If the Plan is declared abandoned, the Purchaser shall be entitled thereupon to receive back all moneys paid pursuant hereto, without interest, and this agreement shall be deemed terminated and of no further force and effect, and no party shall have any claim against any other party with respect hereto.

6. Escrow. All moneys paid hereunder are to be paid by good checks to the order of the Escrow Agent, which shall hold the proceeds until paid out as provided in this agreement, the Plan, and the Escrow Agreement.

7. Default by Purchaser. If the Purchaser shall fail to perform any provision of this agreement that he is required to perform, the Apartment Corporation may elect to cancel this agreement by giving the Purchaser written notice of such proposed cancellation. Such notice shall contain the effective date (not less than ten days after the giving of such notice) of such cancellation. If the Purchaser shall cure his default prior to the effective cancellation date the cancellation notice shall be deemed withdrawn. If the Purchaser shall fail to cure his default prior to the cancellation date, then the cancellation shall be effective and the Sponsor named in the Plan shall be entitled to receive all payments made by the Purchaser hereunder and all of the parties hereto shall be relieved and discharged of any further liability and obligation hereunder, except as herein provided. The Sponsor shall then have the right to list the Apartment and to sell the shares and lease covered hereby to any other person at public or private sale, and shall only account to the Purchaser for the net proceeds after payment of all expenses including repairs, decorations, commissions, legal fees, loss of rent, and purchase price.

8. Default by Others. If the Apartment Corporation, the Sponsor, or the Builder shall have failed to substantially perform their obligations hereunder or under the Plan, the Purchaser's sole rights and remedy shall be to proceed within 12 months from the date of the issuance of the permanent Certificate of Occupancy for the Building against the Apartment Corporation for the return of the moneys paid by the Purchaser for the purchase price of his shares, upon the surrender to the Apartment Corporation of such shares and the accompanying proprietary lease, and possession of the Apartment. The parties hereto waive trial by jury in any action or proceeding hereunder or arising by reason of this agreement or the Plan.

9. Outside of Effective Date. If the Plan is not declared operative by _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , then the Purchaser may within fifteen (15) days thereafter elect to cancel this agreement by giving written notice to the Apartment Corporation. In that event the Purchaser shall be entitled to receive back all moneys paid hereunder, without interest.

10. Acceptance of Agreement. This agreement shall not be effective or binding on the Apartment Corporation until it accepts in writing a duplicate hereof, which is approved by the Agent and delivered to the Purchaser.

11. Notices. Any notice to be given hereunder shall be made to the Purchaser, in writing, at the address given below, and to the Apartment Corporation, care of Harris & Co., Inc., 500 Fifth Avenue, New York, New York. The date of mailing shall be deemed the date of the giving of such notice.

12. Errors. The statements contained in the Plan are believed by the Apartment Corporation, the Sponsor, and the Agent to be correct, and the expressions of opinion therein are likewise believed to be well founded, but no liability shall attach in the event of error.

13. Assignment. The Purchaser shall not assign this agreement or the Purchaser's rights hereunder, without the Apartment Corporation's prior written consent.

14. Examination of Facts. The Purchaser acknowledges that he has had full and free opportunity to investigate and examine all of the facts and documents referred to herein and in the Plan of Organization; and that he has not relied on any representations, warranties, or statements of any nature or kind, including but not limited to estimated date of completion, general description attached to Plan, maintenance charges, or right to any tax deduction, whether contained in any advertisement, selling brochure, or made orally.

15. Binding Effect. Subject to the provisions hereof, this agreement shall bind and apply to the parties hereto and their respective personal representatives, successors, and permissible assigns.

16. Entire Agreement. This agreement contains the full understanding and agreement of the parties and may not be amended, altered, or discharged except by another agreement, in writing, signed by the party sought to be charged therewith.

17. Purchaser's Residence. The Purchaser represents that he is a resident of the State of _____ [state] .

18. Governing Law. This agreement shall be construed in accordance with and governed by the laws of the State of _____ [state] .

19. Non-waiver. No delay or failure by a party to exercise any right under this agreement, and no partial or single exercise of that right, shall constitute a waiver of that or any other right, unless otherwise expressly provided herein.

20. Headings. Headings in this agreement are for convenience only and shall not be used to interpret or construe its provisions.

21. Counterparts. This agreement may be executed in two or more counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original but all of which together shall constitute one and the same instrument.

This form is an informal variation on the preceding agreement. Psychologically, it is often preferable to draft the proposal in this manner so that the offering appears less formidable to the layman.

Re: 16 East 72nd Street

Gentlemen:

1. As Purchaser, I have received, read, and approved the Offering Statement-Plan of Cooperative Organization hereinafter referred to as the Plan, with respect to premises 16 East 72nd Street, New York, N.Y., dated _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , your Transmittal Letter and a copy of the proprietary lease, which are made part hereof.

2. I hereby irrevocably offer to become the proprietary lessee of the above-described apartment in said premises, and to purchase the shares of stock of 16 East 72nd Apartment Corporation (the "Apartment Corporation"), allocated to said apartment, for the Purchase Price stated above. This offer shall remain open for acceptance by the Apartment Corporation until it acquires title to said premises pursuant to the Plan and shall be irrevocable until such time or until the Plan shall be abandoned or terminated as therein provided. I understand that the Agent will give me prompt written notice thereof when the Plan either becomes effective or is abandoned.

3. Enclosed herewith is my check drawn on a New York bank payable to the order of Irving Trust Company (the "Escrow Agent"), for the amount of the above-stated Down Payment of 10% of the Purchase Price. I agree that, if and after the Plan becomes effective, as therein provided, I will pay the above-stated Balance of said Purchase Price within fifteen (15) days after the mailing of written notice and demand by you or the Apartment Corporation, which shall specify a date for closing title not earlier than thirty (30) days nor later than sixty (60) days after its mailing date. Such payment shall be by certified or official check to the order of Irving Trust Company, delivered to you. I will sign the proprietary lease for said apartment promptly upon presentation to me in the form adopted by the Apartment Corporation. I agree that time is of the essence with respect to payment of said Balance.

4. The date of commencement of the term of said proprietary lease, and the date of issuance of the certificate for the aforesaid shares, which may be inserted by either you or the Apartment Corporation, shall be the date when it acquires title to said premises. I agree that my present lease (if any) of said apartment shall be deemed terminated and cancelled as of such date. Provided that I shall have paid the full Purchase Price for said shares, as provided for herein, I am to receive the certificate for the aforesaid shares, together with my executed copy of said proprietary lease promptly after the Apartment Corporation acquires such title.

5. All moneys paid hereunder shall be deposited with and held by Irving Trust Company, as Escrow Agent, in trust in a special account as provided in the Escrow Agreement (Exhibit 1 of the Plan) and, if the Plan becomes effective and is consummated, are to be used only for the purchase of said premises and the related purposes specified and described in the Plan. The net interest, if any, earned and accrued on such moneys shall be disbursed by the Escrow Agent to the Sponsor, and by it to the Apartment Corporation, as provided in the Escrow Agreement and the Plan. The payment of the final installment of said Purchase Price shall be deemed to have been made after my inspection of said apartment and shall constitute my acceptance of said apartment in the condition in which it shall appear at such time.

6. If the Plan is abandoned or does not become effective, as therein provided, or, if after becoming effective, the Plan shall not be consummated for any reason by _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , this agreement shall be deemed cancelled and the Plan terminated. In such event I am to receive back from the Escrow Agent, not later than forty-five (45) days after notification to it, pursuant to paragraph 5 of the Escrow Agreement, Exhibit 1 of the Plan, in full, all moneys paid by me thereunder, together with interest, if any, actually earned and accrued on said moneys (except as provided in Paragraph 7 hereof). Upon such repayment, no party shall have any claim against any other party or person, the Sponsor, the Agent or the Escrow Agent.

7. If I shall fail to pay the Balance of the Purchase Price when due, as herein provided, the Sponsor or the Apartment Corporation may elect to cancel this agreement by written notice to me at my residence or at the address stated below, by registered or certified mail. At the expiration of five (5) days after the date of mailing thereof said notice shall be effective and this agreement shall be deemed cancelled and all rights of the parties thereunder shall terminate, except that the Escrow Agent shall pay over to the Sponsor the amount of said Down Payment, with the interest earned or accrued thereon, as liquidated damages. In the event of such cancellation, the Sponsor or Apartment Corporation may sell said shares and proprietary lease to others as though this agreement had never been made. Such right of cancellation shall be in addition to all other rights and remedies the Apartment Corporation or the Sponsor may have against the Purchaser for breach of this agreement.

8. The entire contract between the parties hereto is set forth herein and in the Plan. The only representations made to me are those contained in the Plan and said Transmittal Letter. This agreement is not assignable by me without the Apartment Corporation's prior written consent, and shall bind and apply to the parties hereto and their personal and legal representatives, successors and assigns. It may not be changed orally.

9. This agreement shall not be binding on me, the Apartment Corporation or the Sponsor until I, as Purchaser, shall be approved, by endorsement hereon by the Agent and this agreement shall be accepted, by endorsement hereon by the Apartment Corporation, and a fully signed copy thereof shall have been delivered promptly to me.

10. I represent that I am a person resident in the State of New York and that I am over 18 years of age. The term "I" shall be read as "we" and "Purchaser" shall be read as "Purchasers" if more than one person are subscribers, in which case our obligations shall be deemed joint and several.

FORM 20.58 Lease extension agreement--subsequent to execution of cooperative purchase agreement by tenant-in-residence

COMMENT

In conjunction with the preceding cooperative agreements, a tenant-in-residence whose prior lease has not yet expired will seek continuance of the lease rental during the hiatus period between execution of the share purchase contract and commencement of the proprietary lease term. This agreement also assures the tenant of continued right to occupancy of the subject accommodation in case the cooperative plan does not take effect. The latter case may hinge upon inability of the sponsor to obtain the requisite consents (35% in New York State, for example). The proprietary lease would then also be inoperative. The extension below, therefore, performs the dual function of covering the proprietary lease period and providing for possible holdover tenancy problems.

FORM

The tenant herein below named having, on _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , executed a lease for Apartment 7-L with the owner of premises 16 East 72nd Street,
New York, New York, the lease to terminate on _____ [month] _____ [day] ,
_____ [year] , and the tenant having purchased the apartment pursuant to a Plan of Cooperative
Organization and having executed a proprietary lease for it which shall become effective on the date of title closing;

It is now therefore understood and agreed as follows:

That the termination date of the lease is hereby extended from _____ [month]

_____ [day] , _____ [year] , to the date of the closing of the Plan of Cooperative Organization, dated _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , relating to 16 East 72nd Street, New York, New York, or _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , whichever is earlier, as though such date were the original termination date mentioned in said lease. All other terms and conditions of the lease shall remain effective up to and including the new termination date, except that the rent shall be at the rate of _____ Dollars ($800) per month from _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] .

FORM 20.59 Resale of shares in cooperative corporation--estate sale by executor

COMMENT

The following form is a contract of sale of shares in a cooperative. As such, it deals with the transfer of personal property, i.e., the interest in the shares, and is not a closing of real estate. However, there are ancillary real estate-related documents which must be executed by the parties, such as an assignment and assumption of a proprietary lease referred to in this agreement. Although persons are frequently said to be "owners" of cooperative apartments this is not in fact the case. Purchasers of cooperatives acquire ownership of stock in the corporation that owns the building in which the apartment is located. As stockholders, the purchasers are entitled to lease an apartment to which the stock is allocated.

On the day of the Closing the Seller shall hand deliver to Brett, Wyckoff and Rudnick, Inc., Managing Agent for the Corporation, fully executed copies of such assignment of proprietary lease and such acceptance of assignment and assumption of proprietary lease.

7. Effective Date; Apportionment. The effective date of the assignment of the Lease by the Seller to the Purchasers shall be the date of the Closing. Rent under the Lease and other charges which have or shall become due and payable under the Lease shall be apportioned as of the date of the Closing, so that the Seller shall bear and pay the portion thereof applicable to the period up to the date of the Closing and the Purchasers shall bear and pay the portion applicable to the period commencing 12:01 a.m. on the date of the Closing. The net amount payable by the Seller to Purchasers, or by the Purchasers to Seller, as the case may be, shall be paid in cash or by check at the Closing.

8. Subject to Board of Directors' Consent. This sale is expressly made subject to the granting of written consent by the Corporation, and its Board of Directors, as provided in the Corporation's Bylaws and in the Lease, to the transfer of the Stock and assignment of the Lease by the Seller to the Purchasers. The Purchasers shall submit to the Managing Agent for Corporation and its Board of Directors, in writing, within three (3) days from the date hereof, the names and addresses of persons to whom, and corporations and other entities to which, reference may be had as to Purchasers' social and financial standing. The Purchasers shall also cooperate fully with the Managing Agent and submit to an interview by it or by the Corporation's representatives and provide all such information as may be reasonably requested in order for a determination to be made as to the Purchasers' social and financial standing.

If the Seller does not procure the Corporation's written consent provided for in this Section 8 and in Section 5 paragraph (c) hereof at or before the Closing, the down payment received by the Seller from the Purchasers upon the execution of this agreement shall be returned to the Purchasers and this agreement shall wholly cease and terminate without further liability on either party. In such event neither party shall have any further claim against the other by reason of this agreement.

9. Acceptance; Discharge. The acceptance by the Purchasers of the instruments referred to in paragraphs (a), (b), and (c) of Section 5 hereof shall be deemed to be full performance and discharge of every agreement and obligation of the Seller to be performed under this agreement or otherwise.

10. Execution of New Proprietary Lease. The Purchasers shall, if the Corporation so requests, surrender the Lease assigned to them and in place thereof enter into a new proprietary lease with the Corporation for the Apartment for the remainder of the term thereof, as more particularly provided in Article II, Paragraph 6 of the Proprietary Lease.

11. Property Conveyed. This sale includes all of the Seller's right, title, and interest, if any, in and to such fixtures, equipment, and items of personal property, including but not limited to kitchen appliances, as may now be contained in the Apartment.

12. Disclosure and Inspection. The Purchasers represent and warrant to the Seller that they have examined and initialed changes, where appropriate, in the Lease and that they are familiar with the terms, provisions, and conditions contained in the Certificate of Incorporation and Bylaws of the Corporation. The Purchasers further warrant and represent to the Seller that they have inspected the Apartment and the building of which it forms a part, and that they are fully familiar with the condition of the Apartment and of the building. They agree that they are purchasing the Stock and acquiring the Lease for the Apartment in the Apartment's condition "AS IS," "WHERE IS" WITH ALL FAULTS on the date hereof and on the date of the Closing (subject to the provisions of Section 14, paragraph (b) hereof). The Purchasers further represent and warrant to the Seller that in the making and execution of this agreement they have not relied upon or been induced by any statements or representations other than those expressly set forth in this agreement, of any person in respect of the Stock, Lease, Apartment, Corporation, or the building, the income, expenses, profit or loss from the operation of the building by the Corporation, or any other matter affecting the building or this sale transaction which might be pertinent in considering the purchase of the Stock and Lease from the Seller or the execution of this agreement. The Purchasers expressly acknowledge that no such representations have been made except as expressly made herein, and they have relied only on such investigations, examinations and inspections, financial and otherwise, as they have chosen to make or have made.

13. No Broker or Finder's Fee. The Purchasers warrant and represent to the Seller that they have not negotiated for the purchase of the Stock and Lease with or through any person, firm, or corporation. The Purchasers agree that should any claim be made by anyone for a brokerage commission or finder's fee in connection with this sale transaction by reason of any affirmative act on their part, they will indemnify and hold the Seller free and harmless from any and all liability and expense of any nature in connection therewith.

14. Events of Termination. This agreement shall terminate forthwith and neither party shall have any rights against the other, except that the Seller shall return to Purchasers the down payment paid on the execution hereof, if any of the following conditions shall occur prior to the Closing:

(a) The Seller shall be unable, except for his willful default, to comply with each of paragraphs (a), (b), and (c) of Section 5 hereof;

(b) The Apartment shall be damaged or injured by fire prior to the Closing so as to render it untenable; or

(c) Prior to the Closing, the Corporation shall have elected to cancel and terminate the Lease under any option or privilege reserved or contained therein;

(d) Prior to the Closing, the Purchasers shall have complied with the provisions of the second sentence of the first paragraph of Section 8 hereof but the Seller shall have been unable to obtain the issuance of the Corporation's written consent to the transfer of the Stock and assignment of the Lease to the Purchasers.

15. Default; Liquidated Damages. If the Purchasers shall fail to take title to the Lease and Stock on the Closing and pay to the Seller the balance of the purchase price and adjustments (if any) for any reason other than one of those set forth in Section 14 hereof, the down payment paid on the execution of this agreement, and all other sum or sums which may be paid by the Purchasers to the Seller prior to the Closing, may, at the Seller's option, be retained by the Seller as liquidated and agreed damages for the Purchasers' failure to comply with this agreement. In such event, neither party shall have any further rights against the other with respect to this agreement. The foregoing liquidated and agreed damage privilege shall not, however, unless so specifically exercised by the Seller, be exclusive of any other right or claim which the Seller shall have against the Purchasers because of any such default.

16. Joint and Several Liability. The Purchasers' liability under this agreement shall be both joint and several.

17. Time of the Essence. Time shall be of the essence of this agreement with respect to all of the terms hereof. Any delay, however, that shall occur in obtaining the Corporation's written consent to this sale transaction shall permit a reasonable postponement of the Closing until such written consent is obtained. If, however, it is ascertained that no written consent shall be forthcoming, the down payment shall be returned to the Purchasers.

18. Corporation Consent not Unreasonably Withheld. The Purchasers warrant and represent to the Seller that they know of no reason why the Corporation should not consent to their acquiring the Stock and Lease from the Seller.

19. Notices. Any notice which either party is required to or desires to give to the other party shall be deemed duly given when mailed by certified mail, return receipt requested, postage charges prepaid, enclosed in an envelope and addressed to the other party at the last address which shall have been designated in writing by the other party as its address for the purpose of receiving notices hereunder. The parties hereby designate for this purpose the following address which is set forth immediately below their name or names:

20. Definition. Whenever the term "other party" is used in this agreement, it shall refer to the Seller or to the Purchasers, as the case may be.

21. Modification. This agreement may not be changed orally but only in writing signed by all the parties.

22. Transferability; Binding Effect. The Purchasers shall not assign this agreement or their rights hereunder. Subject to the foregoing limitation, this agreement shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the parties, the successors and assigns of the Seller, and the heirs, executors, administrators, and personal representatives of the Purchasers.

FORM 20.60 Appointment of escrow agent--depository for funds of tenant-shareholders

COMMENT

Since the selling program in any cooperative venture begins almost as soon as the basic plans of the sponsor have been formalized, some protection must be afforded the prospective tenant-shareholders for funds deposited by them under their purchase agreements. This protection is generally supplied by the appointment of a bank as escrow agent. The letter of appointment contains alternative instructions for the disposition of those funds depending upon whether the cooperative plan is abandoned or becomes operative and whether the purchaser defaults in his own commitments.

In the Plan, Byrd, Inc., is referred to as the Sponsor and Douglas & Ives, Inc., is designated and referred to as the Agent or Selling Agent. In the Contract of Sale made by the Sponsor and the Apartment Corporation, (the "Contract"), and in the Plan, you are designated as the Escrow Agent.

This shall also constitute an agreement made for the benefit of and binding upon all purchasers of shares (singly the "Purchaser" and collectively the "Purchasers") who shall execute the form of Purchase Agreement annexed to said Plan as Schedule C thereof.

2. Deposit of checks. All payments by Purchasers required to be made to you pursuant to their Purchase Agreements will be made by checks drawn to your order and delivered to the Agent who will turn over the checks to you. You shall promptly deposit each such payment in a special account to be known as "16 East 72nd Street-Shares Purchase Account" (the "Shares Purchase Account") in the Plan, to be held in trust, in savings accounts (as stated below), and disbursed, including the interest earned thereon, only in accordance with the provisions of this Escrow Agreement. All references herein to "interest" shall include the interest earned and accrued upon all funds delivered to you hereunder.

3. Identification of Payments. Each payment the Agent turns over to you will be identified as to the Purchaser, his mailing address, the apartment purchased, the number of shares subscribed for by the Purchaser, the total amount payable therefor, and the amount of the payment.

4. Interest. You shall deposit promptly in savings accounts at any of your branches in New York City all payments received by you hereunder. The interest to be paid on all such savings accounts shall be at the rate or rates in effect for your savings depositors generally during the time of holding of the moneys delivered to you hereunder. You will notify us of the location of the branch office or offices in which such savings accounts will be maintained.

5. Segregation of Accounts. Each such savings account shall be identifiable in your records as containing the payments of the respective purchasers and the interest earned and accrued thereon.

6. Consummation or Abandonment of Plan. After the Plan becomes effective, or if the Plan shall be declared or deemed abandoned, you shall disburse the payments deposited as aforesaid and the interest earned and accrued thereon (subject to Paragraph 11 hereof) to the Sponsor, the Apartment Corporation, the Agent, the Purchasers, or otherwise, as hereinbelow prescribed, upon the receipt of the notices, requisitions, and certifications provided for.

7. Liability of Escrowee. You will be liable only for moneys you receive and do not disburse pursuant to the provisions of this Escrow Agreement. You may rely upon all written notices, requisitions, certifications, and instructions of the Sponsor, the Apartment Corporation or the Agent, in the disbursement of the moneys received by you hereunder, and you may require and receive from them, or other persons, additional certifications. You shall assume no liability as to the propriety, or legal sufficiency of any notice, requisition, certification, or instruction and you may, without liability, rely upon their sufficiency. You shall be protected in acting upon any written notice, requisition, certification, or instruction received by or which appears to be signed by the sponsor and the Apartment Corporation or such other persons.

8. Closing. After the Plan becomes effective you shall receive written notice thereof from the Sponsor and the Apartment Corporation jointly and, prior to title closing, written notice of the date when and place where title will be closed.

9. Accruals. If the Plan becomes effective, all interest earned and accrued on said deposited funds (except as provided in Paragraph 11 hereof) shall accrue for the Sponsor's account and benefit and shall be paid to it as its property, as hereinbelow provided, upon the consummation of the Plan (except as provided in paragraphs 12 and 13 hereof as to Purchasers in default).

10. Consummation and Payment. Upon the consummation of the Plan on the closing date (the "operative date"), provided that the Apartment Corporation and the Sponsor shall have given you prior written notice thereof, and upon their joint requisition, you shall pay to the Sponsor and/or its designee or designees and to the Apartment Corporation and the Agent, respectively, in accordance with said requisition, the balance of all moneys held by you in the Shares Purchase Account, together with all accrued interest (except as provided in Paragraph 11 hereof). All such payments shall be made in accordance with the direction contained in such written notice or requisition.

11. Fees. The fee for your services as Escrow Agent hereunder will be $500 for the first year or any part thereof and, thereafter, _____ Dollars ($_____) per annum, prorated on a quarter-annual basis. These fees may be retained from the aforesaid interest to be received and accrued by you and which shall become payable to the Sponsor as provided in Paragraphs 9 and 10 hereof. However, if all purchase moneys and accrued interest in the Shares Purchase Account shall be required to be refunded and paid by you to the Purchasers (and to the Sponsor) for any reason provided in this agreement, the Sponsor shall separately pay your fee for services hereunder plus your out-of-pocket expenses.

12. Abandonment or Termination. If you are notified in writing by either the Apartment Corporation or the Sponsor that the Plan has been declared or deemed abandoned or terminated, all moneys paid hereunder by the Purchasers, together with such earned and accrued interest, shall be returned severally to the Purchasers (except as provided in Paragraph 13 hereof). If, by _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , the Plan shall not be consummated for any reason, and you are so notified in writing by the Sponsor or the Apartment Corporation, the Purchasers shall be entitled severally to refunds of their payments, with such earned and accrued interest. Not later than 45 days after receipt of such notification, you shall make such refunds to them to the extent of all such moneys in the Shares Purchase Account, except as provided in paragraph 13 hereof. Your checks for the refunds required to be made hereunder shall be delivered to the Agent for distribution to the several Purchasers and checks due to the Sponsor with respect to defaulted, and cancelled Purchase Agreements shall be delivered to the Sponsor, in accordance with written instructions from the Apartment Corporation or the Sponsor.

13. Cancellation of Purchase Agreements. If any Purchase Agreement shall be cancelled as the result of the Purchaser's default thereunder, or for any reason, you will receive a written certification of such fact and requisition from the Apartment Corporation or the Sponsor. You shall thereupon pay either (a) to the Sponsor the amount specified in such certification together with the interest earned and accrued thereon, or (b) to the Purchaser, without interest, the amount specified in said certification.

14. Hold Harmless. For all payments that you make as hereinbefore provided, you shall have full release, discharge, and acquittance and shall not be subject to claim or surcharge on the part of any persons beneficially interested therein. It is expressly understood and agreed by the parties to this agreement, and their respective successors and assigns, that you shall be free and harmless from any and all claims, disputes, or defenses which may arise between the parties hereto, their legal successors and assigns, or between the parties hereto and any Purchaser. The Sponsor hereby agrees to hold you harmless from and indemnify you for any liability or expense that you may incur by virtue of all such claims, disputes, or defenses. If any such claim is asserted against you, the Sponsor will either engage counsel of its choice, without cost or expense to you, or, at your election, engage counsel of your choice and shall pay reasonable fees to such counsel and the expenses, to defend you against such claim. If any claimant shall be successful in establishing his claim, the Sponsor will hold you harmless and make all payments required to be made by you pursuant to any final order or judgment that may be entered in a court of competent jurisdiction.

15. Miscellaneous. Your only duties and obligations are those specifically stated herein, and no other. You may consult with counsel and shall be fully protected with respect to any action taken or omitted by you in good faith on advice of counsel. You shall not be bound by any modification of this agreement unless it shall be in writing and signed by the other parties hereto and, if your duties as Escrow Agent hereunder are affected, unless you shall have given your prior written consent thereto. If you shall be uncertain as to your duties or rights hereunder or shall receive instructions from either of the undersigned with respect to the moneys deposited hereunder which, in your opinion, are in conflict with any provision of this agreement, you shall be entitled to refrain from taking any action other than to keep safely the moneys deposited hereunder and the interest earned and accrued thereon, until you shall be directed otherwise in writing by the other parties hereto, or by final order or judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction.

Please signify your acceptance of the foregoing by signing the executed copy of this letter. Upon such signing, it will constitute an agreement between us.

Very truly yours,

FORM 20.61 Purchaser's note and pledge agreement

COMMENT

The purchaser of a cooperative apartment will frequently finance part of his investment by borrowing money against the security of his corporate shares and the accompanying proprietary lease. As security for the loan, the lender holds the proprietary lease and the borrower's shares in the cooperative.

The principal purpose of the collateral arrangement is to assure the lender that all of the tenant-shareholder's rights in his corporate shares and the accompanying lease will be foreclosed if a default occurs in the installment payments prescribed in the promissory note. The proceeds of any sale, in the event of any such default, are to be applied to the expenses of sale, to any remaining indebtedness on the note, to delinquencies due the cooperative corporation, and then to the equity of the tenant-shareholder. If a lending institution acquires the stock and proprietary lease of a tenant-stockholder by foreclosure, or by an instrument in lieu of foreclosure for tax purposes the lender is treated as a tenant-stockholder for up to three years from the date of acquisition, even if the lender may not occupy the apartment without the prior approval of the cooperative corporation. For discussion of federal tax consequences to tenant-stockholders of cooperative housing corporations, see TB § 20.10.

$ _____ [city], _____ [state]

For value received, the undersigned (who, if two or more in number, shall be jointly and severally bound) promise(s) to pay to the order of Harris & Co., Inc. (the "Agent"), at its offices at 100 East 42d Street, New York, New York, or to such other payee and at such other place as the holder hereof shall designate by notice to the undersigned in writing, the sum of _____ Dollars ($ _____), together with interest at _____ percent (_____ %) per annum, payable in _____ [number] equal monthly payments of _____ Dollars ($ _____) (which includes interest at the rate of _____ percent (_____ %) per annum on the amount advanced) commencing on the _____ [day] day of _____ [month] , _____ [year] and an equal amount on the same date of each month thereafter until this Note is paid in full.

This Note may be prepaid, in whole or in part, but without penalty or other consideration, on any monthly payment date upon not less than ten days' prior written notice.

As collateral security for the payment of this Note, the undersigned has deposited with the Agent the following:

A. Certificate No. _____ of Skyline Apartments, Inc., for _____ (_____) shares, duly endorsed in blank.

B. Proprietary Lease covering such shares for Apartment _____ in the apartment building known as The Skyline, at 500 East 68th Street, New York, New York, together with the assignment of such Proprietary Lease duly executed by the undersigned.

If any of the following events shall occur, then at any time thereafter this Note shall at the holder's option become immediately due and payable without demand or notice: any default in the payment of any sum due under this Note; and default in the payment of the maintenance charges, rental, or assessment under the Proprietary Lease; default by the undersigned in performing any term, covenant, condition, or agreement that they are required to perform under the Proprietary Lease or this Note; the attempt of the undersigned to exercise the privilege to cancel the Proprietary Lease in any manner whatsoever; the insolvency or failure in business (including material impairment of ability to meet financial obligations) by any maker, endorser, or guarantor hereof; the commission of any act of bankruptcy by, or the entry of any judgment against, any maker, endorser, or guarantor hereof; or the occurrence with respect to any maker, endorser, or guarantor hereof of any event mentioned in Section 151 of the New York Debtor and Creditor Law. The holder of this Note shall have full power and authority to give notice of default to Skyline Apartments, Inc., and to cause the collateral securing this Note to be sold, assigned, and delivered at any brokers' board, or at public or private sale, either for cash or upon credit or for future delivery, at the holder's option, provided that the holder gives five days' written notice to the undersigned and the apartment corporation. All demand, advertisement, and publication of notice of sale is hereby waived. If such collateral is disposed of at private sale, the holder or any subsequent holder hereof is hereby relieved from all liability or claim for inadequacy of price. At any such sale, whether public or private, the holder may itself purchase the whole or any part of the collateral sold, free from any right of redemption on the part of the undersigned, which is hereby waived and released.

The number of shares, the name and state of incorporation of the issuer, and the number of the Apartment leased under the Proprietary Lease shall, for all purposes, be sufficient identification of the property to be sold.

In the event of any such sale on credit or for future delivery, the holder hereof may retain all rights to the property sold until the entire sale price is paid, but the holder shall incur no liability if the purchaser fails to take up and pay for the property sold.

In the event of any such failure, the property may again be sold. In the event of any sale, the proceeds thereof shall be applied: first, to the payment of all costs and expenses of every kind of collection, sale, and delivery of the collateral property sold, and all expenses or payments incidental thereto; second, to the payment of the entire remaining indebtedness evidenced by this Note, or of the principal or of the interest thereof, whether or not then due, in such proportions and in such sequence or order as the holder shall in its sole discretion determine; third, to the payment of any indebtedness owing by the undersigned to Skyline Apartments, Inc., the cooperative corporation, to the date of such sale; and fourth, the over-plus, if any, to be paid to the undersigned who, if the proceeds are insufficient to pay such obligations, will remain liable for any deficiency. All of the foregoing shall be without prejudice to the rights of the holder hereof against any of the undersigned with respect to any and all amounts which may be or remain unpaid on this Note.

Each of the undersigned hereby waives all notices and demands in connection with the delivery, acceptance, performance, default, or enforcement of this Note and hereby consents to any and all extensions of time, renewals, releases, or substitutions of collateral, waivers, or modifications (expressly including but not limited to the issuance, after default by the undersigned, of new share certificates and new Proprietary Leases to a purchaser upon any such sale or resale) that may be consented to or granted by the holder to any party hereto. No delay by the holder hereof in exercising any power or right hereunder shall operate as a waiver of any power or right; nor shall any single or partial exercise of any right or power preclude other or further exercise thereof, or the exercise of any other power or right hereunder or otherwise. No waiver whatever or modification of the terms hereof shall be valid unless in writing signed by the holder of this Note and only to the extent therein set forth. The provisions hereof shall apply to and govern any and all substitutes or additional collateral given to secure this Note.

This Note is being delivered to the Agent as part payment for the shares and Proprietary Lease above described. All payments due hereunder shall be deemed additional rent under such lease, and if requested by the holder hereof, the Apartment Corporation shall avail itself of any remedies provided for in such lease in event of default, including dispossession. The undersigned, however, specifically agrees that if requested by the holder hereof, they will voluntarily surrender possession of the apartment. It is further understood that Harris & Co., Inc., the Agent, is accepting this Note as Agent, and that the same may be transferred to any third party, including Ace Realty Corp., as part of the consideration for the transfer of the land and building known as 500 East 68th Street, New York, New York. It is also anticipated that the holder hereof will discount this Note with a bank or other lender.

The holder of this Note may, at its sole discretion, freely assign or transfer this Note and deliver all or any of the property then held as collateral security therefor to the transferee(s), who shall thereupon become vested with all the powers and rights above given to the holder in respect thereto.

The holder and any mesne transferee shall thereafter be forever relieved and fully discharged from any liability or responsibility in relation thereto. The holder of this Note may, without further notice: (a) date this Note as of the date when the loan is made; (b) fill in any blank space according to the terms upon which it grants the loan relative thereto; (c) cause or permit one or more comakers, endorsers, or guarantors to be added, released, or withdrawn as parties hereto, either before or after the making of the loan; and (d) return the Note when paid to any of the signers thereof.

Any notice given hereunder shall be deemed given upon deposit thereof, securely enclosed in a postpaid wrapper in any post-office box regularly maintained by the United States government, and addressed to the undersigned at 500 East 68th Street, New York, New York.

FORM 20.62 Proprietary lease

COMMENT

A distinctive feature of a proprietary lease for a cooperative apartment is that the lessee's "rent" consists of a proportionate share of the cash requirements as determined annually by the board of directors. The proportionate share of each lessee depends upon his percentage of ownership of the total outstanding shares of the cooperative corporation. Most proprietary leases extend for a long term, usually between 30 and 50 years. In this form the lessee may cancel the lease as of _____ [month] _____ [day] of any year after the second year by giving notice on or before the preceding _____ [month] _____ [day].

The tenant's responsibility for repairs is usually broader under proprietary leases than under other types of leases. Thus, the lessee is responsible under this lease for the maintenance or replacement in his apartment of plumbing fixtures, lighting fixtures, refrigerators, and ranges. Another unique feature of the proprietary lease is that its terms are virtually the same for all tenants and can be altered only by a vote of the shareholders at a meeting called for this purpose or by the written consent of at least two-thirds of the shareholders owning at least two-thirds of the corporation's stock. Subleasing is permitted only with the consent of the board of directors, except in the case of those tenants who are designated by the sponsor for the purpose of putting the plan into operation.

Except for the above features, this lease is basically similar to leases for the conventional type of apartment house.

FORM

INDENTURE OF LEASE, made the _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , by and between SKYLINE APARTMENTS, INC., a corporation organized under the laws of the State of New York, (the "Lessor"), and _____ (the "Lessee").

WHEREAS, the Lessor is the owner of the land and the building erected thereon in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, known as The Skyline and by the street number 500 East 68th Street (the "building"); and

WHEREAS, the Lessor has leased or proposes to lease the apartments in the building to the several owners of its common shares by instruments known as proprietary leases; and Whereas the Lessee is the owner of _____ (_____) of the common shares of the Lessor, which have been allocated to the apartment;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the premises and of the rents, covenants, and agreements hereinafter provided and contained, the Lessor hereby leases to the Lessee, subject to the terms and conditions hereinafter expressed, and the Lessee hereby hires and takes from the Lessor, all that certain space on the _____ (_____) floor of the building, known as apartment _____ (the "apartment"),

To Have and To Hold the apartment, with the appurtenances, unto the Lessee and the executors, administrators, legal representatives, and authorized assigns of the Lessee, upon the terms and conditions herein set forth, from _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , until the _____ [month] _____ [day] (unless the term shall sooner expire as hereinafter in this lease provided), at a rent for each year or portion of year during such term equal to the Lessee's proportionate share as hereinafter provided of the aggregate amount of the cash requirements of the Lessor, as hereinafter defined, for such year or portion of year, together with additional rent as hereinafter provided.

If at the time the Lessee executes this lease the date of the commencement of the term has not been inserted herein, then the Lessee hereby authorizes the Lessor to insert such date, which shall be the same date that title to the premises is transferred to the Lessor.

The cash requirements above referred to for each year or portion of year are hereby defined and shall be deemed to be such aggregate sum as the Lessor's Board of Directors from time to time, by a resolution or resolutions adopted during such year or portion of year or the preceding year, shall determine, in its judgment, is to be paid by all the lessees under proprietary leases then in force (after deducting all estimated rents or income to be received during such year other than rents under proprietary leases) on account of the Lessor's estimated expenses and out-lays to the close of such year, growing out of or connected with the ownership, maintenance, and operation of such land and building. Such sum may include among other things taxes, assessments, water rates, insurance premiums, operating expenses, legal and accounting fees, management fees, commissions, employees' gratuity fund, alterations, replacements and repairs, expenses and liabilities incurred by the Lessor under or by reason of this or other leases, interest on mortgage or other indebtedness, mortgage amortization payments, the payment of any other liens or charges, the payment of any deficit remaining from a previous period, the creation of a reasonable contingency or other reserve or surplus fund or capital contribution, and expenses for other corporate purposes.

The Lessor's Board of Directors may, from time to time, by resolution or resolutions duly adopted up to the close of the year for which such cash requirements have been so fixed or determined, increase or diminish the amount previously fixed or determined for such year. The Board of Directors may include in the cash requirements for any year all liabilities or items of expense which accrued or became payable in a previous year, or which might have been included in the cash requirements for a previous year but were not included therein, and also all sums which it may deem necessary or prudent to provide as a reserve against liabilities or expenses then accrued or thereafter to accrue although not payable in that year.

The rent payable by the Lessee in and for each year or portion of year of such term shall be a sum (within the limits and on the conditions hereinabove provided) bearing to the aggregate amount of such cash requirements for such year or portion of year, determined as herein provided, the same ratio as that which the number of shares of the Lessor, owned by the Lessee at the time of the execution hereof as stated in the recitals of this proprietary lease, bears to the aggregate of the shares similarly specified in all the proprietary leases in effect at the time of the fixing and determination of such cash requirements. Such rent, together with any additional rent accruing under this lease, shall be payable monthly in advance or in such payments or installments as the Lessor's Board of Directors by resolution shall require, and at such times as such resolution shall provide. The Lessor's Board of Directors shall have discretionary power to prescribe the manner of maintaining and operating the building, and to determine the Lessor's cash requirements to be paid as herein provided by the lessees under proprietary leases. Every such determination by the Board of Directors, within the bounds of this agreement of lease, shall be final and conclusive as to all lessees. All expenditures made by the Lessor's officers or managing agent, under the direction or with the approval of the Lessor's Board of Directors, within the bounds of this agreement of lease, shall, as against the lessees, be deemed necessarily and properly made for such purposes.

The power and authority to determine and establish the amount of and to require payment of the rent above provided for shall be possessed only by the Board of Directors, as elected by the Lessor's shareholders, and shall not pass to or be exercised by:

(a) any creditor, receiver, or trustee of the Lessor or any of their representatives, except to the extent of actual cash requirements for operating the building and the payment of current real estate taxes and current interest and amortization on any mortgage that may then be a lien on the premises; or

(b) any Board of Directors elected by any such creditor, receiver, or trustee or by any of their representatives, except to the extent of actual cash requirements for operating the building and the payment of current real estate taxes and current interest and amortization on any mortgage that may then be a lien on the premises.

ARTICLE I

The Lessor hereby covenants with the Lessee, as follows:

1. Repairs. The Lessor shall keep in good repair the foundations, sidewalks, walls (except interior surfaces of all walls of apartments), supports, beams, roofs, terraces, gutters, fences, cellars, chimneys, entrances and street and court doorways, main halls, main stairways, windows, fire escapes, elevators, pumps and tanks, and all main and principal pipes for carrying water, gas, or steam through the building, and the main drain pipes and electrical conduits, together with all plumbing, heating, cooling, and other apparatus intended for the general service of the building, except those portions of any of the foregoing which it is the Lessee's duty to maintain and keep in good repair as provided in Paragraph 7 of Article II hereof and subject to the provisions of Paragraph 16 of Article II hereof. The Lessee shall give the Lessor prompt notice in writing of any accident or defect known to the Lessee and requiring repairs to be made. Subject to the foregoing limitations all such repairs shall be at the Lessor's expense. The Lessee, however, shall bear all expenses for such repairs that have been rendered necessary by the act, neglect, carelessness, or improper use of equipment either by Lessee or by any of Lessee's family, guests, employees, or subtenants.

2. Maintenance. The Lessor shall maintain and manage the building as a first-class apartment building, keep the elevators and the public halls, cellars, and stairways clean and properly lighted and heated, provide unattended passenger elevator service and the number of employees requisite in the judgment of the Board of Directors for the care and service of the building, and, without extra cost to the Lessee, provide the apartment with a proper and sufficient supply of hot and cold water. The building will have a central heating and cooling system, and the unit fans for the circulation of warm or cooled air will be connected to the Lessee's meter and paid for by the Lessee. The replacement of filters in the heating and cooling units shall also be at the Lessee's expense.

The covenants by the Lessor herein contained are subject, however, to the discretionary power of its Board of Directors to prescribe the manner of maintaining and operating the building and to determine the cash requirements of the Lessor, as hereinabove stated. Such covenants are subject to the further proviso that there shall be no diminution or abatement of rent or other compensation accruing to the Lessor for its failure to perform the same or for interruption or curtailment of service, when such failure, interruption, or curtailment shall be due to accident or to alterations or repairs desirable or necessary to be made, or to inability or difficulty in securing supplies or labor, or to some other event not caused by the Lessor's gross negligence. All of the Lessor's covenants contained in this instrument are also subject to the provisions of Paragraph 16 of Article II hereof.

3. Damage to Building. If the building shall be partly damaged by fire or other cause, it shall be repaired as speedily as is reasonably possible, at the Lessor's expense, so as to conform substantially to the plans and specifications under which the building was completed. If the damage shall be so extensive as to render the apartment untenable, the rent hereunder shall cease until the apartment shall again be rendered tenable. If the building shall be totally destroyed by fire or otherwise, the rent shall be paid up to the time of such destruction, and thereupon this lease and all rights and obligations of the parties hereunder, and the tenancy hereby created shall wholly cease and expire. If, however, the Lessor or insurer shall elect to rebuild the building, this lease shall, at the option of the Lessee exercised within 30 days after the Lessor's or insurer's notice of election to rebuild, be reinstated at such time as the apartment may again be ready for occupancy.

4. Books. The Lessor shall keep full and correct books of account at the office of the managing agent or at such other place as the Board of Directors may from time to time determine. Such books shall be open during all reasonable hours to inspection by the Lessee or his representative.

5. Accompanying Shares. In every proprietary lease heretofore executed by the Lessor there has been specified, and in every proprietary lease hereafter executed by it there will be specified, the number of its shares issued therewith. Such number, in relation to the aggregate of all numbers of shares similarly specified in all the proprietary leases at the time in force, shall constitute the basis for fixing, as hereinbefore provided, the proportionate share of the aggregate amount of the Lessor's cash requirements, as hereinbefore defined, which shall be payable as rent by the Lessee. If after the fixing of the amounts payable as rent by the lessees under proprietary leases for any period of time, one or more additional proprietary leases are made, thus increasing the aggregate number of shares specified in all proprietary leases, the rent to be paid under such additional lease or leases, unless and until the Board of Directors shall otherwise fix the rent to be paid under all proprietary leases, shall be at the same rate per share specified in such additional lease or leases as applied to the shares specified in all other proprietary leases in effect at the time of the fixing and determination of such cash requirements. The rent payable for such period of time by lessees under such other proprietary leases shall not be modified or affected by any increase in the aggregate number of shares specified in all proprietary leases.

6. Changes in Leases. All proprietary leases of apartments in the building hereafter executed shall be in the form of this lease except with respect to statements as to the number of shares owned by the Lessee and his proposed use and occupancy. The Lessor will not make or consent to any change or alteration in the terms or conditions of any proprietary lease which the Lessor shall have executed (as distinct from the house rules) unless such change or alteration shall be made pursuant to the affirmative vote taken at a meeting called for that purpose, or written consent signed, by lessees owning at least two-thirds (2/3) in amount of the Lessor's shares then owned by all lessees under proprietary leases then in force, and being at least two-thirds in number of such lessees.

7. Penthouses, Balconies, and Terraces. A lessee of an apartment embracing a penthouse, balcony, or terrace or a portion thereof shall have and enjoy the exclusive use of the balcony or terrace (but not the roof above the penthouse) appurtenant to such apartment as shown on the building plan, subject to all the applicable provisions of this lease and to the use of any penthouse roof by the Lessor to enable it to fulfill its obligations hereunder. The Lessor, on behalf of itself or other lessees, may erect on the roof of a penthouse radio or television aërials and antennas for its use and the use of the other lessees in the building and shall have the right of access thereto for such installations and for the repair thereof. The Lessor shall have no duty to keep such roof clean or free from ice or snow and this shall be the Lessee's obligation. The Lessee shall not install any walls, enclosures, awnings, or planting on any penthouse, balcony, or terrace, except with the prior written approval of the Lessor or its agent.

8. Quiet Enjoyment. The Lessee, upon paying the rent and performing the covenants and complying with the conditions that the Lessee is required to perform, as herein set forth, shall, at all times during the term hereby granted, quietly have, hold, and enjoy the apartment without any let, suit, trouble, or hindrance from the Lessor.

ARTICLE II

The Lessee hereby covenants with the Lessor, as follows:

1. Payment of Rent. The Lessee will pay to the Lessor, or to its managing agent, the rent upon the terms, at the times, and in the manner herein provided, without any deduction on account of any set-off or claim which the Lessee may have against the Lessor. If the Lessee shall fail to pay any installment of rent within one month from the time when it becomes due, the Lessee shall pay interest thereon at the rate of _____ percent (_____%) per annum from the due date of the installment to the date of the payment thereof, and such interest shall be deemed additional rent hereunder.

2. Default by Lessee. If the Lessor shall resume possession of the apartment, either by summary proceedings, action of ejectment, or otherwise, because of the Lessee's default in the payment of any rent or any part of the same, on or the expiration of the term pursuant to a notice given as provided in Article III hereof upon the happening of any event specified in subparagraphs (a), (b), (c), (d), (e), and (g) of Paragraph 1 of Article III, the Lessor may, at its option, either (1) relet the apartment for its own account, or (2) from time to time relet the apartment as the agent of or for the account of the Lessee. If the Lessor relets the apartment under its option in (2), it shall, after reimbursing itself for its reasonable expenses in connection therewith, including a reasonable amount for decorations, alterations, and repairs in and to the apartment, apply the remaining proceeds of such reletting to the payment of any and all sums then due to it from the Lessee and which would thereafter have become due from the Lessee under the provisions of this lease if the Lessor had not so resumed possession, accounting to the Lessee at the expiration of each of the several terms of such reletting for any surplus. If, at any time, or from time to time before the expiration of the term originally demised hereunder, there shall be a deficiency between the proceeds of such reletting and such sums as would have become due hereunder, the Lessee shall pay such deficiency upon demand. If the Lessee shall at any time sublet the apartment and shall default for a period of one month in the payment of any rent, the Lessor may, at its option, so long as such default shall continue, demand and receive from any subtenant of the Lessee occupying the apartment the rent due or becoming due from such subtenant to the Lessee, up to an amount sufficient to pay all sums due from the Lessee to the Lessor. Any payment of such rent to the Lessor shall be sufficient payment and discharge of such subtenant as between the subtenant and the Lessee, to the extent of the amount so paid. Any such demand or acceptance of rent from any subtenant, or from any assignee hereof, shall not be deemed the Lessee's consent or approval of any sublease or assignment.

3. Failure to Fix Rent. The failure of the Lessor's Board of Directors, before the expiration of any year of such term, to fix the rent hereunder for that or the next year, shall not be deemed a waiver or modification in any respect of the covenants or provisions of this lease, or a release of the Lessee from the obligation to pay the rent or any installment thereof for that or any subsequent year, provided such rent shall ultimately be fixed.

4. House Rules. The Lessor may from time to time establish such reasonable house rules as its Board of Directors may deem necessary for the management and control of the building, and may also from time to time alter, amend, and repeal such rules. This lease shall be in all respects subject to such rules, which, when a copy thereof has been furnished to the Lessee, shall be taken to be part hereof. The Lessee shall obey all such rules and see that they are faithfully observed by his family, guests, employees, and subtenants. All such rules shall apply to and be binding upon all of the tenants of the building, whether shareholders of the Lessor or not, but the Lessor shall not be responsible to the Lessee for the nonobservance or violation of such rules by any other lessee or person other than the Lessor's employees. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, such house rules may regulate and control the use of any roof or terrace appurtenant to the apartment.

5. Use of Premises. The Lessee shall not occupy or use the apartment, or permit the same or any part thereof to be occupied or used, for any purpose other than as a private dwelling apartment for the Lessee, and the Lessee's family and servants, except such portions of the building as the Lessor's Board of Directors may allocate as professional offices or servants' rooms. The Lessee shall not permit or suffer anything to be done or kept in the apartment which will increase the rate of fire insurance on the building or its contents, or which will interfere with the rights of other tenants or annoy them by unreasonable noises or otherwise, or which will obstruct the building's public halls or stairways. The Lessee shall comply with all the requirements of the Board of Health and other governmental authorities and with all laws, ordinances, rules, and regulations with respect to the occupancy or use of the apartment, and will not do anything or permit anything to be done which might increase the rate of fire insurance on the building, its contents or the individual apartments. If, however, by reason of the occupancy or use of the apartment by the Lessee, the rate of fire insurance on the building, its contents or the individual apartments shall be increased, the Lessee shall become personally liable to the Lessor or other lessees for the additional insurance premiums or payments caused by Lessee's use of the apartment.

6. Subletting and Assignment. The Lessee may sublet the apartment for any term to any person or persons subject to the Lessor's written consent to the sublessee and the terms of the sublease, authorized by a resolution of the Board of Directors, or signed by a majority of the directors, or by lessees owning of record at least a majority of the Lessor's capital stock accompanying proprietary leases then in force. Whenever the Lessee applies to the Lessor for a consent to a subletting, the Lessee may be required to deliver to the Lessor a copy of the sublease to which consent is requested. The Lessor reserves the right to adopt rules and regulations with respect to subletting.

Except as provided in Article IV of this lease, the Lessee shall not assign this lease, or any interest therein. No such assignment shall take effect as against the Lessor for any purpose, unless and until all of the following requirements have been complied with and satisfied:

(a) An instrument of assignment containing a covenant by the assignee to perform and comply with all the covenants and conditions of this lease to be performed or complied with by the Lessee on and after the effective date of such assignment must be executed and acknowledged by the assignee and delivered to the Lessor.

(b) All shares of the Lessor accompanying this lease must be transferred to the assignee.

(c) All sums due from the Lessee, together with a sum to be fixed by the Lessor's Board of Directors to cover the Lessor's reasonable legal and other expenses in connection with such assignment and transfer of the shares, must be paid to the Lessor.

(d) A written consent to such assignment, authorized by a resolution of the Board of Directors, or signed by a majority of the directors, or by lessees owning of record at least a majority of the Lessor's shares accompanying proprietary leases then in force, must be delivered to the Lessor. If the Lessee shall die during the term of this lease, the Board of Directors or the other lessees owning the Lessor's shares shall not unreasonably withhold the consent provided for in this paragraph to any assignment or transfer of the shares and the lease which the Lessee may make in his or her last will and testament, or through the acts of his or her administrator or executor, to a financially responsible member of his immediate family; provided, however, that the other conditions of this Paragraph 6 are complied with.

Whenever the Lessee shall, under the provisions of this lease, be permitted to assign and shall so assign the same, and the assignee shall deliver to the Lessor an instrument assuming all of the assignor's unfulfilled obligations hereunder, the assignor shall have no further liability on any covenant of this lease to be thereafter performed. Upon the making of any assignment of this lease, as herein provided and permitted, the same shall, at the Lessor's option, be surrendered. In such case, the Lessor and the assignee shall enter into a new lease, in the same form, for the remainder of the term of this lease.

No executor, administrator, personal representative, or successor of the Lessee, or trustee, or receiver of his property, or anyone to whom his interest hereunder shall pass by law, may assign this lease, or sublet the apartment, or any part thereof, except upon compliance with the requirements of this Paragraph 6. The character of and restriction upon the occupancy of the apartment, and upon assignment of this lease, as hereinbefore expressed, restricted, and limited, are an especial consideration and inducement for the granting of this lease by the Lessor to the Lessee. If the Lessee shall violate any restriction or covenant herein contained in respect to either subletting or assignment, this lease may be terminated and shall expire at the Lessor's option as hereinafter provided. In such case, the Lessor may cease performance of its covenants contained in Article I of this lease, and may restrain and prevent the occupancy of the apartment by any one other than the Lessee.

Notwithstanding the above, if an individual supplied by the Sponsor to purchase unsold shares pursuant to the Lessor's plan of organization is the Lessee under this lease then the apartment may be sublet or this lease and the accompanying shares assigned without requiring the Lessor's written consent, as provided herein, except that the sublessee or assignee shall be approved by the building's then managing agent. The foregoing exception shall apply only to an assignment by individuals supplied by the Sponsor and shall not apply to any subsequent assignment.

7. Interior Repairs. The Lessee shall keep the interior of the apartment in good repair, and the Lessor shall not be held answerable for any repairs in or to the same except as hereinbefore specifically provided. If the Lessee shall refuse or neglect, during ten days after the Lessor's written notice, to make such repairs or to restore the apartment to good condition, the Lessor may do so. The Lessor may, by its officers or authorized agents, enter the apartment for that purpose, and collect the cost of such repairs or restoration as additional rent for the apartment. In addition to decorating and keeping the interior of the apartment in good repair, the Lessee shall maintain or replace all its plumbing fixtures, lighting fixtures, refrigerators, and ranges.

8. Alterations. The Lessee shall not, without first obtaining the Lessor's written consent, make in the apartment, or on any penthouse, balcony, or terrace appurtenant thereto, any structural alteration or any alteration of the water, gas, or steam pipes, electrical conduits or plumbing, or, except as hereinafter authorized, remove any additions, improvements, or fixtures from the apartment. If the Lessee shall have heretofore or shall hereafter place in the apartment at his own expense any additions, improvements, or fixtures, such as mantels, lighting fixtures, refrigerators, ranges, woodwork, panelling, ceilings, doors, or decorations, which can be removed without structural alterations, then the Lessee may, prior to the termination of this lease, remove the same at his own expense, provided that: (a) the Lessee at the time of such removal shall not be in default in the payment of rent or in the performance of any other provision or condition of this lease; (b) upon any such removal, the Lessee shall give written notice thereof in advance to the Lessor; (c) the Lessee shall pay the cost of any such removal and shall repair any damage resulting therefrom; and (d) the Lessee shall replace and reinstall at his own expense any equipment that was in the apartment at the beginning of the term or shall replace and reinstall substitutes of a kind and quality customary in buildings of this type and satisfactory to the Lessor.

On the expiration of the term hereby granted, or upon a sooner termination of this lease, the Lessee shall surrender to the Lessor possession of the apartment with all additions, improvements, and fixtures then included therein except as hereinabove provided.

9. Lease Subordinate to Mortgages. This lease is and shall be subject and subordinate to all mortgages now a lien upon the land and building and to any and all extensions, modifications, renewals, and replacements thereof, and shall be subject and subordinate to the lien of any other mortgage or mortgages which shall at any time be placed on the land and building. The Lessee shall at any time, and from time to time, on demand, execute all instruments that may be required by any mortgagee, or by the Lessor, for the purpose of more formally subjecting this lease to the lien of any such mortgage or mortgages. Each of the Lessor's duly elected officers, for the time being, is hereby irrevocably appointed the Lessee's attorney-in-fact and agent to execute the same upon such demand. The Lessee hereby ratifies any such instrument hereafter executed by virtue of the power of attorney hereby given.

10. Mechanics' Liens. In case a notice of mechanic's lien shall be filed against the building, for, or purporting to be for, labor or material alleged to have been furnished or delivered at the building or the apartment to or for the Lessee, or anyone claiming under him, the Lessee shall forthwith cause such lien to be discharged by payment, bonding, or otherwise. If the Lessee shall fail to cause such lien to be discharged within 20 days after the filing of such notice, the Lessor may cause such lien to be discharged by payment, bonding, or otherwise, without investigation as to the validity thereof or of any offsets or defenses thereto. The Lessor may collect, as additional rent, all amounts so paid and all costs and expenses paid or incurred in connection therewith, including reasonable attorneys' fees and disbursements, together with interest thereon from the time or times of payment.

11. Cooperation. The Lessee shall always in good faith endeavor to observe and promote the cooperative purposes for the accomplishment of which the Lessor was incorporated.

12. Right of Entry. The Lessor and its agents shall be permitted to visit and examine the apartment at any reasonable hour of the day, and workmen may enter at any time, when authorized by the Lessor or its agents to make or facilitate repairs in any part of the building and to remove such portions of the walls, floors, and ceilings of the apartment as may be required for the purpose of making such repairs. The Lessor, however, shall at its own cost and expense thereafter restore the premises to their proper and usual condition. If the Lessee shall not be personally present to open and permit an entry into the apartment, at any time when for any reason an entry therein shall be necessary or permissible hereunder, the Lessor or its agents may forcibly enter the apartment without rendering any of them liable to any claim or cause of action for damages by reason thereof (if during such entry the Lessor shall accord reasonable care to the Lessee's property), and without in any manner affecting the obligations and covenants of this lease. The right and authority hereby reserved do not impose, nor does the Lessor assume by reason thereof, any responsibility or liability whatsoever for the care or supervision of the apartment, or any of the pipes, fixtures, appliances, or appurtenances therein contained or therewith in any manner connected, except as may be herein specifically provided.

13. Waivers. The Lessor's failure to insist, in any one or more instances, upon a strict performance of any term, covenant, condition, or agreement of this lease, or to exercise any right or option herein contained, or to serve any notice, or to institute any action or summary proceeding, or otherwise to act as though this lease had expired pursuant to the provisions of Article III hereof, shall not be construed as a waiver, or a relinquishment for the future, of such covenant or option or right thereafter to serve notice and to have this lease expire under the provisions of Article III, but such covenant or option or right shall continue and remain in full force and effect. The Lessor's receipt of rent, with knowledge of the breach of any covenant hereof, shall not be deemed a waiver of such breach. No waiver by the Lessor of any provision hereof shall be deemed to have been made unless expressed in writing and signed by one of its officers pursuant to authority contained in a resolution of its Board of Directors; and even though a consent to an assignment hereof, or to any subletting, be given, no further assignment or subletting shall be made without express consent in writing given as hereinbefore provided.

14. Notices. Any notice by the Lessor to the Lessee shall be deemed to be duly given, and any demand by the Lessor upon the Lessee shall be deemed to have been duly made, if enclosed in a postpaid envelope addressed to the Lessee at 500 East 68th Street, New York, New York, or such other address as the Lessee may designate in writing, and mailed by registered mail in any general or branch post office. Any notice by the Lessee to the Lessor shall be deemed to be duly given, and any demand by the Lessee upon the Lessor shall be deemed to have been duly made, if enclosed in a postpaid envelope, addressed to the Lessor at 500 East 68th Street, New York, New York, or such other address as the Lessor may designate in writing.

15. Attorneys' fees. If the Lessee shall at any time be in default hereunder, or if the Lessor shall institute an action or summary proceeding against the Lessee based upon such default, the Lessee will reimburse the Lessor for the reasonable expense of attorneys' fees and disbursements thereby incurred by the Lessor, and the Lessor shall have the right to collect the same as additional rent.

16. Lessor's Liabilities. The Lessor shall not be liable for any failure of heat, water supply, air conditioning, electric current, telephone, or elevator service, or other service to be supplied by it hereunder, or for injury or damage to person or property caused by the elements or by another tenant or person in the building, or resulting from steam, gas, electricity, water, rain, or snow which may leak or flow from outside or from any part of the building, or from any of its pipes, drains, conduits, radiators, boilers, tanks, appliances, or equipment, or from any other place, unless caused or due to its negligence. The Lessor shall not be liable for interference with light or other incorporeal hereditaments by anybody other than itself. The Lessor or its agent shall not be responsible for any damage to any automobile or other vehicle left in the care of any of its employees by the Lessee, and the Lessee shall hold the Lessor or its agent harmless from any liability arising from any injury to person or property caused by or with such automobile or other vehicle while in such employee's care. The Lessor or its agent shall not be responsible for any package or article left with or entrusted to any employee of the Lessor, or for the loss of any property within or without the apartment by theft or otherwise. If the Lessor shall, before, during, or after the term of this lease, furnish to the Lessee any storage space, use of laundry, or any other facility outside of the apartment, the same shall be furnished gratuitously by the Lessor. If any person shall use the same, such use shall be entirely at the risk of such person, and the Lessor or its agent shall not be liable for any loss of property therein, for any damage or injury whatever to person or property therein or in connection therewith. Storage space may only be used for the storage of empty trunks and bags. No diminution or abatement of rent, or other compensation, shall be claimed or allowed for inconvenience or discomfort arising from the making of repairs or improvements to the building or to its appliances.

ARTICLE III

It is hereby mutually agreed, as follows:

1. Expiration of Lease. If upon, or at any time after, the happening of any event mentioned in subparagraphs (a) to (h) inclusive of this Paragraph 1, the Lessor shall give to the Lessee a notice stating that the term hereof will expire on a date at least ten days thereafter, this lease shall expire on the date so fixed in such notice, and all right, title, and interest of the Lessee hereunder shall wholly cease and expire, it being the intention of the parties hereto to create hereby a conditional limitation. Thereupon, the Lessor shall have the right to reenter the apartment and to remove all persons and personal property therefrom, either by summary dispossession proceedings, or by any suitable action or proceeding at law or in equity, or by force or otherwise, and to repossess the apartment in its former estate as if this lease had not been made. No liability whatsoever shall attach to the Lessor by reason of the exercise of the right of reentry, repossession, and removal herein granted and reserved.

(a) If at any time during the term of this lease the Lessee shall cease to be the owner of all of the shares which are hereinbefore stated to be owned by him and allocated to this lease, or if this lease shall pass or be assigned to anyone who is not then the owner of all of such shares.

(b) If: (1) the Lessee shall be declared a bankrupt under United States law or adjudicated insolvent or take the benefit of any insolvency act; (2) a receiver or trustee of the Lessee's property shall be appointed by any court; (3) the Lessee shall make a general assignment for the benefit of creditors; (4) any of the Lessor's shares owned by the Lessee shall be duly levied upon under court process; or (5) this lease or any of the Lessor's shares owned by the Lessee shall be pledged, other than to the seller thereof, a bank, or other lending institution, except with the consent of the Lessor's Board of Directors.

(c) If at any time there is an assignment of this lease, or any subletting hereunder, without full compliance with the requirements of Paragraph 6 of Article II hereof.

(d) If the Lessee shall be in default for a period of one month in the payment of any rent or additional rent or of any installment thereof, hereinbefore provided for.

(e) If the Lessee shall default in the performance of any covenant or provision hereof, other than the covenant to pay rent, for thirty (30) days after the Lessor shall have given written notice of such default.

(f) If at any time the Lessor shall determine, upon the affirmative vote of two-thirds of its full Board of Directors and the affirmative vote of the record holders of at least two-thirds in amount of its shares then outstanding and owned by Lessees under proprietary leases then in force, at a shareholders' meeting duly called for that purpose, to terminate all proprietary leases or to sell the land and building above described.

(g) If at any time the Lessor shall determine, upon the affirmative vote of the holders of record of two-thirds (2/3) or more of its Board of Directors, that because of objectionable conduct on the part of the Lessee, or of a person dwelling in or visiting the apartment, the Lessee's tenancy is undesirable. Objectionable conduct shall be deemed to occur if the Lessee or such other person repeatedly violates or disregards the house rules and regulations hereunto attached or hereafter established in accordance with the provisions of this lease, or permits or tolerates a person of dissolute, loose, or immoral character to enter or remain in the building or apartment.

(h) If at any time the building or a substantial portion thereof shall be taken by condemnation proceedings.

2. Waiver of Right of Redemption. The Lessee hereby expressly waives any and all right of redemption in case he shall be dispossessed by judgment or warrant of any court or judge. The words "enter," "reenter," and "reentry" as used in this lease are not restricted to their technical legal meaning. If the Lessee shall breach or threaten to breach any covenant or provision hereof, the Lessor shall have the right of injunction, and the right to invoke any remedy allowed at law or in equity, as if reentry, summary proceedings, and other remedies were not herein provided for.

3. Surrender of Possession. Upon the termination of this lease under the provisions of subparagraphs (a), (b), (c), (d), (e), or (g) of Paragraph 1 of this Article, the Lessee shall remain liable as provided in Paragraph 2 of Article II here of. Upon the termination of this lease under the provisions of subparagraphs (f) or (h) of Paragraph 1 of this Article, or upon the expiration of this lease, the Lessee shall be and remain liable to pay all rent, additional rent, and other charges due or accrued and to perform all his covenants and agreements up to the date of such termination. On or before such termination the Lessee shall vacate the apartment and remove therefrom all of his property which upon such termination does not become the property of the Lessor under the provisions of Paragraph 8 of Article II hereof and surrender possession of the apartment to the Lessor or its assigns. Upon demand of the Lessor or its assigns the Lessee shall execute, acknowledge, and deliver to the Lessor or its assigns any instrument which may reasonably be required for surrendering all his estate and interest in the apartment, or in the building of which it is a part. The Lessee, however, may retain ownership of his shares in the Lessor, and shall continue to enjoy all rights of ownership of them other than the right to occupy any part of the building of which the apartment forms a part.

4. Sale of Shares. Upon the termination of this lease under the subparagraphs (a), (b), (c), (d), (e), or (g) of Paragraph 1 of this Article, the Lessee shall surrender to the Corporation his certificate or certificates for the shares of the Corporation owned by him and allocated to the apartment. Whether or not such certificate or certificates are surrendered, the Lessor may issue a new proprietary lease on the apartment and issue a new certificate for its shares owned by the Lessee and allocated thereto. In that event the certificate owned or held by the Lessee shall be automatically cancelled and rendered null and void. The Lessor may apply the proceeds received for the issuance of such shares towards the payment of the Lessee's indebtedness hereunder, including interest, attorneys' fees, and other expenses incurred by the Lessor. If the proceeds are sufficient to pay the same, the Lessor shall pay over any surplus to the Lessee, but if insufficient the Lessee shall remain liable for the balance of the indebtedness. Upon the issuance of any such new proprietary lease and share certificate, the Lessee's continuing liability hereunder shall cease and he shall only be liable for rent and expenses accrued to that time.

ARTICLE IV

It is further mutually agreed, as follows:

1. Lessee's Option to Cancel. The Lessee may cancel this lease on _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , or on any _____ [month] _____ [day] thereafter, upon complying with all the provisions of this Article IV. The Lessee must serve irrevocable written notice of intention to cancel upon the Lessor on or before April 1 in the calendar year in which such cancellation is to occur. At the time such notice is served the Lessee must deposit with the Lessor:

(a) a proper assignment of the Lessee's counterpart of this lease whereby the full and absolute right, title, and interest in and to this lease is assigned as the Lessor may direct, as of _____ [month] _____ [day] of the year of cancellation, free from all subleases, liens, encumbrances, and charges whatsoever;

(b) the Lessee's certificate for the shares of the Lessor which accompany this lease, duly stamped and endorsed in blank for transfer;

(c) a written statement setting forth in detail those additions, improvements, and fixtures, such as mantels, lighting fixtures, refrigerators, cooking ranges, woodwork, panelling, ceilings, doors, and decorations, placed in the apartment at the Lessee's expense which the Lessee has, under the terms of this lease, the right to remove, and which the Lessee desires to remove.

2. Additional Payments by Lessee. If the Lessee shall give such notice of intention to cancel, the Lessee shall:

(a) subject to the limitations and conditions embodied in Paragraph 8 of Article II hereof, replace all mantels, lighting fixtures, refrigerators, cooking ranges, woodwork (other than panelling), ceilings, doors, or other fixtures removed by the Lessee, with others of a kind and quality customary in buildings of this type, and pay the cost of such replacement; and

(b) pay the cost of repairing any damage resulting from Lessee's removal of any panelling or other additions, improvements, or fixtures, for which Lessee is not required to pay the cost of replacing.

3. Removal of Fixtures. The Lessee shall remove all additions, improvements and fixtures which are removable under the terms of this lease and which are enumerated in the statement made as provided in subparagraph (c) of Paragraph 1 of this Article IV prior to the 31st day of August next preceding the _____ [day] day of _____ [month] named in the notice of election to cancel as the date for the cancellation of this lease. On or before such _____ [day] day of _____ [month] the Lessee shall deliver possession of the apartment to the Lessor free from all subleases, liens, encumbrances, or other charges and remove therefrom all of Lessee's property which upon such cancellation does not become the Lessor's property under the provisions of Paragraph 8 of Article II hereof. The Lessee shall pay to the Lessor (a) all rent, additional rent, and other charges which shall be payable under this lease up to and including the 30th of September succeeding such 31st day of August, and (b) the amounts due under subparagraph (b) of Paragraph 2 of this Article IV. The requirements for delivery of possession to the Lessor shall be waived if, pursuant to the provisions of Paragraph 6 of Article II of this lease, the Lessor shall have on or before _____ [day] day of _____ [month] entered into an agreement with any sublessee whereby it permits such sublessee to remain in possession of the apartment.

4. Lessor's Entry. The Lessor and its agents may show the apartment to prospective or succeeding tenants at any time and from time to time after the Lessee gives notice of intention to cancel this lease as provided in this Article IV. After the 31st day of August next succeeding the date on which such notice the Lessor and its agents, employees, and tenants may enter the apartment, occupy the same, and make such alterations, additions, and repairs therein as it may deem necessary or desirable without diminution or abatement of the rent due hereunder.

5. Cancellation of Lease. If the Lessee is not otherwise in default hereunder and if the Lessee shall have done the things and made the payments at the times, in the amounts, and in the manner required by this Article IV, then upon the _____ [day] day of _____ [month] named in the notice of intention to cancel as the date for the cancellation of this lease, this lease shall be cancelled and all rights, duties, and obligations of the parties hereunder shall cease, terminate, and expire as of such date. The shares of Sky-line Apartments, Inc. shall then become the Lessor's absolute property. The Lessee, however, shall not be released or discharged from any indebtedness to the lessor on such last mentioned date. Moreover, if the Lessee shall fail to do anything or make any payment at the time, in the amounts, and in the manner required by this Article IV, the Lessor may (a) return to the Lessee this lease, the share certificate, and other documents deposited, and the sums paid by the Lessee under this Article IV, other than any sum paid as rent under this lease or as the cost of repairing any damage resulting from the Lessee's removal of additions, improvements, or fixtures, and thereupon the Lessee shall be deemed to have withdrawn the notice of intention to cancel this lease, or (b) treat this lease as cancelled as of the _____ [day] day of _____ [month] named in the notice of intention to cancel as the date for the cancellation of such lease, and bring such proceedings and actions as it deems best to enforce the covenants of the Lessee contained in this Article IV, and collect from the Lessee the payments which he is required to make under this Article IV, together with reasonable counsel fees and costs.

ARTICLE V

It is further mutually agreed, as follows:

1. Transfer of Shares. The Lessor's shares held by the Lessee and allocated to the apartment have been acquired and are owned subject to the following conditions agreed upon with the Lessor and with each of the other proprietary lessees for their mutual benefit:

(a) The shares represented by each certificate are transferable only as an entirety; and

(b) Neither the Lessee nor the Lessee's personal representatives shall sell or transfer such shares except to the Lessor, or to an assignee of this lease, after compliance with all of the provisions of Paragraph 6 of Article II of this lease relating to assignments.

2. Binding Effect. The references herein to the Lessor shall be deemed to include its successors and assigns, and the references herein to the Lessee or to a shareholder of the Lessor shall be deemed to include their respective executors, administrators, legal representatives, legatees, distributees, and assigns. The covenants herein contained shall apply to, bind, and inure to the benefit of the Lessor and its successors and assigns, and the Lessee and the executors and administrators, legal representatives, legatees, and assigns of the Lessee, except as hereinbefore stated.

3. Waiver of Jury Trial. The Lessor and the Lessee shall and they hereby do waive trial by jury in any action, proceeding, or counterclaim brought by either against the other on all matters whatsoever arising out of or in any way connected with this lease, the Lessee's use or occupancy of the apartment, or any claim of damage resulting from any act or omission of the parties in any way connected with this lease or the apartment.

4. Modification. This lease may not be changed orally but only in writing signed by both parties.

5. Non-assignment. This lease may not be assigned by either party, unless otherwise expressly provided herein.

6. Notices. All notices or other documents under this lease shall be executed and delivered as provided in Paragraph 14 of Article II hereof.

7. Governing Law. This lease shall be construed in accordance with and governed by the laws of the State of _____ [state] .

8. Entire Agreement. This lease contains the entire understanding between the parties and supersedes all prior understandings and agreements between them respecting its subject matter.

9. Non-waiver. No delay or failure by either party to exercise any right under this lease, and no partial or single exercise of that right, shall constitute a waiver of that or any other right, unless otherwise expressly provided herein.

10. Headings for Reference Only. Headings preceding the text and paragraphs of this lease are for convenience and reference only, and shall not be used to interpret or construe its meaning, construction, or effect.

11. Counterparts. This lease may be executed in two or more counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original but all of which together shall constitute one and the same instrument.

In witness whereof, the Lessor has caused its corporate seal to be hereto affixed and this instrument to be signed by its President, and the Lessee has executed this instrument under seal, the day, and year first above written.

10. No velocipedes, bicycles, scooters, or similar vehicles shall be allowed in the passenger elevators, and no baby carriages or any of the above-mentioned vehicles shall be allowed to stand in the public halls, passageways, areas, or courts of the building.

11. Servants, messengers, and tradespeople shall use the service elevators in the building for ingress and egress and shall not use the passenger elevators for any purpose, except that nurses in the employ of Lessees and of their guests or undertenants may use the passenger elevators when accompanying such children, guests, or undertenants.

21. No vehicle belonging to a Lessee or to a member of the Lessee's family or guests, undertenant, or employee shall be parked in such manner as to impede or prevent ready access to the entrance canopy of the building by another vehicle.

FORM 20.63 Plan of offering of cooperative apartment hotel--conversion from rental apartment hotel

COMMENT

Illustrated here is a plan of offering in connection with the conversion of an apartment hotel into a cooperative operation. Under this plan, the selling price of the shares of the cooperative corporation, which entitles the purchaser to a proprietary lease of the apartment to which the shares are allocated, is relatively low considering the accommodations being offered. This is because the cooperative corporation is acquiring the ground lease to the land and building--rather than the fee title which would obviously cost considerably more.

The maintenance charges are high since what is being featured are accommodations in a luxury apartment hotel providing customary hotel services. The determination of the maintenance charges in this type of conversion is not as difficult as in other types of conversions because this operation has been going on for some time and the operating costs are known. The estimated tax deductions are comparatively small due to the fact that no mortgage payments are involved and hence there are no interest payment deductions. For income tax purposes, the tenant-shareholder's deductions are limited to the portion of his rent (maintenance charges) allocable to real estate taxes on the building. For the tax consequences to tenant-shareholders of cooperative housing corporations, including the tenant-shareholders' allowable deductions, (See TB § 20.10[4]), at the beginning of this chapter. As to the requirements for qualification as a tenant-shareholder, see TB § 20.10[3].

Since commercial leases are involved, the corporation must be alert to the fact that the income derived from the tenant-shareholders does not fall below 80% of the cooperative's gross income in any taxable year. If the 80% figure is not attained, the corporation would cease to qualify as a cooperative housing corporation and the tenant-shareholders would lose their proportionate deductions for real estate taxes. For the requirements that an organization must meet in order to qualify as a cooperative housing corporation, including the 80 percent requirement discussed above, see TB § 20.10[2].

In the plan illustrated here, there are subtenants in occupancy before the plan becomes effective. Any apartment subleased on the date of the plan is reserved for the subtenant of such apartment for a specific period of time. The plan must become effective when subscription agreements have been accepted for apartments to which 85% of the shares have been allocated. However, the sponsor may declare the plan effective at any time after subscription agreements have been accepted for apartments to which 50% of the shares have been allocated. Since many of the apartments are occupied by subtenants, a purchaser of shares allocated to an apartment will obtain the proprietary lease for the apartment subject to the sublease then in effect and subject to the existing occupancy. If the occupant does not voluntarily move when his sublease expires, the purchaser may be required to institute dispossess proceedings.

Plan of Cooperative Organization
Cosmopolitan Apartment Hotel
10 Fifth Avenue
New York, New York 10003

Introductory Statement

The 10 Fifth Avenue Corporation (the "Sponsor") submits herewith a plan (the "Plan") for the acquisition of two ground leases (described in Section B) covering the lands and building (the "Building") generally known as the Cosmopolitan Apartment Hotel and by the street address 10 Fifth Avenue (collectively the "Land") and the operation of the Building on a cooperative basis by the present subtenants of the Building and other persons who purchase shares of Cosmopolitan Tenants Corporation (the "Cooperative Corporation").

If this Plan is declared effective, each purchaser of the Cooperative Corporation's shares will receive, promptly after the closing under this Plan, a certificate for the number of shares allocated to the apartment he has selected and a proprietary lease for that apartment. See Section E.

Since the primary purpose of the Cooperative Corporation is to provide apartments for its shareholders, and since the term of each of the proprietary leases will be not less than fifty (50) years, a tenant-shareholder will have long-term security of possession. Moreover, the annual rent (maintenance charges) for each apartment will be determined by a Board of Directors (elected by the tenant-shareholders) solely on the basis of the rent payable under the aforementioned ground leases (as the same will be modified after the closing under this Plan), real estate taxes, and the actual cost of operating, improving, and maintaining the Building, and will not include any profit for the Cooperative Corporation.

A tenant-shareholder may be able to deduct from his federal, state, and city income taxes the portion of his rent (maintenance charges) allocable to real estate taxes on the Building, thereby reducing the effective rent for his apartment. See Section O.

A tenant-shareholder may make any nonstructural alteration or decoration in his apartment.

A tenant-shareholder may also make any structural alteration to an apartment with the consent of the Cooperative Corporation's Board of Directors, which it may not unreasonably withhold or delay. A tenant-shareholder, without the Board of Directors' consent, may sublease his apartment on a daily, weekly, or monthly basis at any subrental that may be acceptable to him, provided that all other sublease terms and all sublease arrangements are made by or with the consent of a renting staff to be employed by the Cooperative Corporation, and provided further that such subletting is not for a period, or for successive periods in the aggregate, which exceeds eight months within any consecutive twelve (12) months. The Cooperative Corporation will be entitled to a commission equal to the greater of _____ percent (_____) of the proceeds of any such subletting, or _____ percent (_____) of the rent (maintenance charges) payable under the tenant-shareholder's proprietary lease.

In order to assure the Cooperative Corporation of a sound financial structure and to maintain the cooperative nature of the occupancy of the Building, all other subleases and all sales of shares by tenant-shareholders and assignments of proprietary leases will require approval by the Cooperative Corporation's Board of Directors. See Section E.

Section A

Brief Description of the Land and Building

The Building was constructed between _____ [year] and _____ [year] from plans drawn by Samuel White. Of fireproof construction, the Building has fifteen (15) stories and a basement, stands on two contiguous parcels of land (forming an L-shaped plot) and has a frontage of approximately 75 feet on Fifth Avenue and 150 feet on West 10th Street.

There are one hundred thirty (130) apartments in the Building which are being offered for sale under the Plan (consisting of three hundred fifty (350) rooms) plus manager's quarters (Apt. 200), a doctor's office, a restaurant, a record storage room (Apt. 100), two public rooms, and an office complex comprised of the reception desk, switchboard, and mailroom, manager's office, and bookkeeper's office. The Building always has been operated as a first-class apartment hotel providing customary hotel services, including room service, and it is anticipated that all such services will continue to be provided under this Plan. The main entrance to the Building is attended daily from seven a.m. to midnight. There is 24-hour reception desk (concierge) and switchboard service. Two of the three passenger elevators are attended 24 hours a day and the two service elevators are attended and operational daily between the hours of seven a.m. and nine p.m.

Located on the southwest corner of Fifth Avenue and West 10th Street in the Borough of Manhattan, the Building is situated in the midst of one of the most outstanding apartment house locations in _____ [city] .

Immediately to the north and south of the Building are distinguished cooperative and rental apartment houses and several first-class hotels. The side blocks contain well kept townhouses. Two blocks to the south, on Eighth Street, are many fine stores and specialty shops, including restaurants, grocery, bakery, and other service establishments.

Cultural facilities abound in the area, including many prominent art galleries, off-Broadway theaters, and motion picture houses.

Bus transportation between the Building and the mid-town shopping and office districts is available. The buses run north one block west of the Building on the Avenue of the Americas and south on Fifth Avenue. There are cross-town bus routes going west on 10th Street and east on 8th Street. The Independent Subway Line has a station at 8th Street and the Avenue of the Americas and the BMT Subway Line has a station at 8th Street and Broadway.

There are religious facilities of all faiths nearby as well as public and private schools. The downtown campus of New York University, The New School for Social Research, and The Cooper Union are all located a short distance from the Building. Washington Square Park is within a few minutes' walk and St. Vincent's Hospital is not far away.

The Building and the apartments located therein have been well maintained and the Sponsor will continue to maintain the Building in its present state of good repair until the closing under this Plan. After the closing under this Plan, the Cooperative Corporation may undertake the specific improvements recommended by Walters Associates in the report made by that firm and set forth in Schedule A. For this purpose the Sponsor will make available to the Cooperative Corporation a fund in the amount of _____ Dollars ($_____) which, in the opinion of the Selling Agent, is sufficient to cover the cost of the recommended work. This fund will be in addition to the _____ Dollars ($_____) fund provided by the Sponsor for new uniforms described in Section N. The actual decision to proceed with the work, however, will be made by the Board of Directors to be elected by the tenant-shareholders, subject to the limitations set forth in Section N.

Section B

Ground Lease and Leasehold

The Land upon which the Building is constructed consists of two separately owned but contiguous parcels of land. The Sponsor acquired a leasehold interest in the parcels in _____ [year] when it took, by assignment, two leases, each covering one of the parcels. Originally made in _____ [year], each of the leases provided for twenty-one (21) year terms with renewal terms ultimately expiring _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year]. The landlord under the first lease is Warren Chapman. The landlord under the second lease is The Seaman's Institute. The two leases now contain substantially identical terms and provisions except with respect to the amount of the annual rental reserved by each of them.

The respective landlords of the leases and the Sponsor have entered into an agreement, dated _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], which provides for substantial changes in the terms and provisions of such leases if certain conditions are met. The two leases, as they will be modified by the landlords and the Cooperative Corporation in accordance with this agreement, are collectively called the Ground Lease in this Plan, and the landlords under the Ground Lease, collectively, are hereinafter called the Landlord of the Ground Lease.

The principal provisions of the Ground Lease will be as follows:

Term: The Ground Lease will have a term of approximately fifty (50) years, expiring on _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year].

Rent: From and after the closing under this Plan and for a period of seven years thereafter, the annual rental under the Ground Lease will be _____ Dollars ($_____) (_____ Dollars ($_____) under the Chapman lease and _____ Dollars ($_____) under the Seaman's lease). Beginning with the eighth year after the closing under this Plan, however, the annual rental is subject to adjustment each year based on changes that have occurred in the Consumer Price Index for Urban Wage Earners and Clerical Workers, U. S. City Average: All Items, published by the United States Department of Labor (the "Consumer Price Index"), as follows:

The Consumer Price Index in the first month of the eighth lease year after the closing under this Plan will be deemed the Base Price Index upon which all future changes in the Consumer Price Index will be measured. Thus, in the first month of the ninth lease year after the closing under this Plan and in the first month of each subsequent lease year, it will be determined whether the Consumer Price Index at that time is higher or lower than the Base Price Index. If it is higher, the annual rental payable for the preceding lease year will be adjusted upwards by the same percentage that the then current Consumer Price Index is higher than the Base Price Index, provided, however, that no adjustment will be made unless the change exceeds _____ percent (_____%) of the then current rental. Payment of any additional rental for the preceding lease year and for the months that have elapsed in the current lease year shall be made within ten days after receipt of a notice from the Landlord stating that the additional rental is payable.

It should be noted that any increase in the annual rental would necessarily increase the cost of operating the Building. Unless the Cooperative Corporation were able to supplement its income (such as by collecting increased subrentals under the commercial subleases described in Section M or new commercial subleases) to offset the increased rental under the Ground Lease, it would be necessary for the Cooperative Corporation's Board of Directors, in due course, to increase the rent (maintenance charges) payable by its tenant-shareholders under their proprietary leases in order to meet the increased cost of operating the Building. It should be noted also that adjustments in the annual rental may be downward (as well as upward) but only after a previous upward adjustment and in no event will the annual rental fall below a floor of _____ Dollars ($_____). If there is a downward adjustment in the annual rental, the Cooperative Corporation will be entitled to deduct an amount equal to the reduction in rental from the rental payments falling due after giving appropriate notice to the Landlord.

In addition to the yearly adjustment of the annual rental under the Ground Lease described above, the annual rental also may be changed if the New York City Zoning Resolution is hereafter amended to permit the construction and operation on the site of the Building of a building used predominantly for office or commercial purposes having a height of at least fifteen (15) stories. In the event of any such amendment, the Landlord under each lease constituting the Ground Lease may elect, at the expense of the Cooperative Corporation, after the commencement of the seventh lease year, to have an appraisal made of the portion of the Land covered by its respective lease. No subsequent request may be made, however, until ten years from the preceding request pursuant to which an appraisal is made. The appraisal shall be made by a board of three appraisers, who shall be real estate brokers having not less than ten years' experience. One appraiser shall be appointed by the Landlord requesting the appraisal, the second by the Cooperative Corporation, and the third by the other two appraisers. After the appraisal is made, the annual rental under the lease in question shall be set at a figure equal to _____ percent (_____%) of:

- (a) the value of the portion of the Land covered by that lease as if unencumbered, unimproved, and free of the Ground Lease, and
- (b) the assessed value of the portion of the Building covered by that lease (or if demolished its last assessed valuation).

Such rental shall be effective as of the beginning of the calendar year following that in which the request for an appraisal is made.

Any annual rental set by means of such an appraisal shall be subject to the following conditions:

- (1) it may not be less than the annual rental that would have been payable in the absence of an appraisal;
- (2) notwithstanding any increase in the annual rental by reason of the appraisal, the annual rental shall remain subject to annual adjustment based on changes in the Consumer Price Index, as described above, except that the Base Price Index will be the Consumer Price Index for the first month in which the new annual rental became effective and there can be no increase because of changes in the Consumer Price Index for the first calendar year following that in which the request for an appraisal is made; and
- (3) no decrease in the annual rental, because of downward changes in the Consumer Price Index which occur after an appraisal, will reduce the annual rental to an amount below that set by the most recent appraisal.

The Sponsor has no knowledge of any pending change in the Zoning Resolution that would permit construction of an office building or commercial building on the site of the Building. If, however, such a change were made, and if an appraisal resulted in an increase in the annual rental payable under either or both of the ground leases comprising the Ground Lease, the cost of operating the Building would necessarily increase by a like amount.

Real Estate Taxes, etc.: The Ground Lease provides that the Cooperative Corporation must pay all real estate taxes and assessments, sewer and water rents, and other charges levied against the Land and the Building.

Fee Mortgages; Nondisturbance Provisions: The Landlord under the Ground Lease may place one or more mortgages on its fee interest in the Land, provided that the aggregate debt secured by such mortgages at any time shall not exceed a sum equal to ten times the annual rental then being paid to the Landlord. Thus, immediately after the closing under this Plan, the annual rental will be _____ Dollars ($ _____), and the aggregate fee mortgage indebtedness will be limited to _____ Dollars ($ _____). If, when, and as the annual rental is adjusted upwards (as provided above), the aggregate fee mortgage indebtedness may be increased by a sum equal to ten times the amount of the increase in the annual rental resulting from any such upward adjustment. With the exception of an existing fee mortgage on the parcel demised by the Chapman lease, presently having an unpaid balance of _____ Dollars ($ _____), the Ground Lease will be subordinate to fee mortgages only if the following conditions are satisfied:

- (a) the fee mortgages contain so-called nondisturbance provisions to the effect that, as long as the Cooperative Corporation is not in default under the Ground Lease, the Ground Lease will not be terminated if the fee mortgages are foreclosed;
- (b) the fee mortgages contain provisions permitting insurance proceeds payable to the Landlord to be used for repair or restoration of the Building in accordance with the terms of the Ground Lease; and
- (c) the fee mortgages provide that, if there is a partial taking by eminent domain, the proceeds payable to the Landlord shall be used for repair and restoration of the Building in accordance with the terms of the Ground Lease.

If the owner of the parcel covered by the Chapman lease should fail to comply with the mortgagor's obligations under the existing fee mortgage, the Cooperative Corporation, in order to protect its interests, may be required to cause a refinancing or assumption of the mortgage indebtedness, and to recover all costs incurred in connection therewith from the Landlord under the Chapman lease.

Alterations; Demolition: The Cooperative Corporation shall keep the Building and the sidewalks adjoining it in good order and repair and make all improvements or alterations to the Building which may be required by law. The Cooperative Corporation may make nonstructural alterations and also any structural alteration or additions to the Building, except that in the case of structural alterations costing in excess of _____ Dollars ($ _____) the Landlord's consent must first be obtained and an appropriate surety bond filed. The Cooperative Corporation also may, at its expense, demolish the Building and construct a new apartment hotel, apartment house, or office or commercial building of at least 15 stories. However, under the terms of the Cooperative Corporation's Certificate of Incorporation, Bylaws, and proprietary lease, any such action shall require the affirmative vote of the holders of two-thirds (2/3) of the Cooperative Corporation's then issued and outstanding shares and two-thirds of the full Board of Directors. See Section C. Alterations, replacements, and improvements to the Building or equipment, except trade fixtures which are removable without injury to the Building, become the property of the Landlord.

Fire Insurance; Fire Damage; Eminent Domain: The Cooperative Corporation must maintain fire and extended coverage insurance on the Building. In addition, the general liability policies carried by the Cooperative Corporation must cover the Landlord's interest in the Building, and the Cooperative Corporation must carry boiler and pressure vessels insurance as well as workmen's compensation insurance covering persons employed by it to do work in the Building. If the Building shall be destroyed or damaged by fire or other casualty, the Cooperative Corporation, at its expense, must restore or replace the Building. The Cooperative Corporation may use any insurance proceeds received by the Landlord for such rebuilding or replacement. The Cooperative Corporation shall remain liable for the full rental payable under the Ground Lease notwithstanding any damage or destruction to the Building, and must, under the terms of the Ground Lease, carry rent insurance in the amount of the current annual rental under the Ground Lease.

Indemnity: The Cooperative Corporation shall indemnify the Landlord against all claims arising from the management of the Building or from the conduct of any work done therein.

Assignment of the Ground Lease: During the first seven years of the term of the Ground Lease following the closing under the Plan, the Cooperative Corporation may assign its interest in the Ground Lease after obtaining the Landlord's consent. The Landlord shall give its consent provided that the Cooperative Corporation has deposited satisfactory security with it to assure performance by the assignee. After the initial seven-year period, the Cooperative Corporation may assign its interest in the Ground Lease without the Landlord's consent and, in the event of any such assignment, it will be released from any future liability under the Ground Lease. Under the terms of the Cooperative Corporation's Bylaws and proprietary lease, any assignment of the Ground Lease shall require the affirmative vote of the holders of two-thirds of the Cooperative Corporation's then issued and outstanding shares and two-thirds of the full Board of Directors. See Section C.

Default; Termination of the Ground Lease: If the Cooperative Corporation defaults in the due performance of its obligations under the Ground Lease, and the default is not remedied within 30 days after the Landlord gives notice thereof, the Landlord may terminate the Ground Lease by giving five days' notice. If, however, the specified default cannot reasonably be cured within 30 days, the time within which the Cooperative Corporation may cure it shall be extended to allow a reasonable opportunity for performance of its obligations. Notwithstanding any such termination of the Ground Lease, the Cooperative Corporation shall remain liable for the difference between the Landlord's net receipts and the annual rental until the end of the Ground Lease's term. If the Cooperative Corporation becomes bankrupt, or the Land and Building is totally condemned or is condemned in part so as to require demolition of the Building, the Ground Lease shall terminate. The Landlord and the Cooperative Corporation shall divide the condemnation proceeds, as follows: the Landlord shall receive an amount equal to twelve and one-half (12-1/2) times the then current annual rental, and the Cooperative Corporation shall receive the remaining proceeds. If there is a partial condemnation, if a reasonable amount of reconstruction can make the Building a practical improvement for the remaining portion of the Land, the condemnation proceeds received by the Landlord, exclusive of any award for the value of the portion of the Land taken, may be used for such reconstruction. The annual rental for the reconstructed Building shall be reduced by a sum equal to _____ percent (_____%) of any part of the award, including the award for the value of the Land, retained by the Landlord and not used for reconstruction.

Use: The Land may be used for an apartment hotel or an apartment house, or if permitted by law for an office or commercial building or for such other purpose as may be suitable to the then building and the locality.

Mortgages on Ground Lease: The Cooperative Corporation may mortgage or pledge the Ground Lease. The Ground Lease contains provisions intended to safeguard the security of a leasehold mortgage and, upon notice to the Landlord, it also will make certain changes in the Ground Lease to further protect the interest of an institutional leasehold mortgagee. The proceeds of any such mortgage or pledge shall belong to the Cooperative Corporation and may be used for such corporate purpose as the Board of Directors may decide. If any such mortgage or pledge is made, the debt service payable on the loan secured thereby shall be payable by the tenant-shareholders and may result in increased rent (maintenance charges) under their proprietary leases.

Arbitration: Disputes between the Landlord and Cooperative Corporation arising under certain provisions of the Ground Lease are subject to arbitration in the manner set forth in the Ground Lease.

The _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , agreement provides that, upon the making of the above described changes in the ground leases, the Sponsor will be released from any further liability thereafter accruing under the Ground Lease.

Section C

Cooperative Corporation

Cosmopolitan Tenants Corporation, a New York corporation, was organized by Weiss & Spear, special counsel to the Sponsor, on _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] .

The Cooperative Corporation has an authorized capital of forty thousand (40,000) shares, par value _____ Dollars ($ _____) each. All of these shares are of the same class and are voting shares, and all but three thousand nine hundred fifty (3,950) shares have been allocated to apartments, as shown in Schedule D, so that upon consummation of this Plan thirty six thousand fifty (36,050) shares will be issued and outstanding. The remaining three thousand nine hundred fifty (3,950) shares will be available to the Cooperative Corporation if it decides to allocate all or part of the same to space not presently used for residential purposes. Holders of shares of the Cooperative Corporation will have no preemptive rights.

The Certificate of Incorporation of the Cooperative Corporation states that the Cooperative Corporation's primary purpose is to provide its shareholders with apartments in the Building under proprietary leases and that each of its shareholders is entitled, solely by reason of his ownership of such shares, to occupy an apartment in the Building for dwelling purposes pursuant to such a proprietary lease. The Certificate of Incorporation provides that no decision to purchase the Land and Building or to demolish or reconstruct the Building may be made without the affirmative vote of the holders of two-thirds of the Cooperative Corporation's then issued and outstanding shares and two-thirds of the full Board of Directors.

In order to comply with Section 216 of the Internal Revenue Code relating to cooperative housing corporations, the Cooperative Corporation's Certificate of Incorporation also provides that no shareholder shall, either conditionally or unconditionally, receive any distribution not out of its earnings and profits, except upon its complete or partial liquidation.

Provision has been made for cumulative voting consistent with the requirements of the _____ [state] Business Corporation Law.

The Cooperative Corporation's Certificate of Incorporation may be amended only by the affirmative vote of the holders of two-thirds of its then issued and outstanding shares.

The Bylaws of the Cooperative Corporation provide for a meeting of the tenant-shareholders within sixty (60) days after the closing under this Plan and annually thereafter. The tenant-shareholders may elect a Board of Directors which consists of five directors. Under the Bylaws, all decisions of the tenant-shareholders are made by a majority of a quorum except with respect to a decision to purchase the Land and Building, to assign the Ground Lease, or to demolish or reconstruct the Building, all of which require the affirmative vote of the holders of two-thirds of its then issued and outstanding shares.

Under the Bylaws, the directors and officers of the Cooperative Corporation need not be residents of the Building. No salary or other compensation may be paid to any of its directors or officers for services rendered in either capacity.

The Bylaws prohibit the sale or transfer of the Cooperative Corporation's shares except in conjunction with an assignment of the proprietary lease appurtenant thereto. The Bylaws also provide that the Cooperative Corporation shall have a lien on the shares owned by each tenant-shareholder to secure the payment of rent (maintenance charges) and other sums owed by the tenant-shareholder to the Cooperative Corporation, and that it shall not be required to consent to any transfer of shares until a tenant-shareholder shall pay all sums due in accordance with the terms of his proprietary lease.

The Bylaws may be amended by the holders of a majority of the shares represented at any shareholders' meeting or by the affirmative vote of two-thirds of the full Board of Directors. Until all proprietary leases are terminated, however, the provisions of the Bylaws prohibiting issuance or transfer of the Cooperative Corporation's shares to anyone other than tenants under proprietary leases and requiring the affirmative vote of the holders of two-thirds of its then issued and outstanding shares to assign the Ground Lease may not be amended.

At present, the directors of the Cooperative Corporation are Lester Spear, Frank Weiss, Roger Jason, Arnold Stern, and Bertram Smith. Its officers are Lester Spear, President, Frank Weiss, Vice President, Roger Jason, Secretary, and Arnold Stern, Treasurer. Messrs. Weiss and Spear are partners of Weiss & Spear, the Sponsor's special counsel. The remaining directors are lawyers associated with the same law firm. Within 60 days after the closing date under the Plan, a meeting of the shareholders will be held for the purpose of electing new directors who, at a special meeting of the Board of Directors to be held immediately thereafter, will elect new officers.

Section D

Assignment of Ground Leases to the Cooperative Corporation

The Sponsor has entered into an agreement with the Cooperative Corporation (the "Assignment Agreement"), wherein it has agreed to assign and transfer to the Cooperative Corporation all of its right, title, and interest in and to the ground leases and the _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , agreement described in Section B and the property covered thereby if this Plan becomes or is declared effective. The Assignment Agreement contains provisions customarily included in a contract for the sale of a leasehold interest in an apartment hotel. Among others, the following provisions have particular applicability to this transaction:

(1) the consideration for the transfer is (a) an amount equal to the aggregate proceeds of the sale by the Cooperative Corporation of its shares under this Plan less _____ Dollars ($ _____), the amount of the capital and other improvement fund and working capital to be made available by the Sponsor to the Cooperative Corporation as set forth in Section N, and (b) the shares which have not been purchased and paid for as of the date of the closing under this Plan and which are to be issued to individuals produced by the Sponsor (see Section F).

(2) the Cooperative Corporation will acquire the aforementioned ground leases and the property covered thereby free and clear of all liens and encumbrances subject, however, to (a) mortgages, not exceeding _____ Dollars ($ _____), placed by the Landlords of the ground leases on their respective fee interests in the Land and Building, (b) the terms and provisions of the aforementioned ground leases and _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], agreement, (c) the terms and provisions of this Plan and proprietary leases simultaneously entered into with tenant-shareholders, (d) the terms and provisions of then existing subleases, (e) any state of facts that would be shown on a current survey of the Land and the Building, and (f)

the provisions of the _____ [city] City Zoning Resolution;

(3) the assignment of the aforementioned ground leases shall be without warranty or covenant by the Sponsor, but the assignment will not be made unless the Sponsor is able to transfer good leasehold title to the Cooperative Corporation in accordance with the Assignment Agreement, which The Title Guaranty Company shall coinsure in the aggregate amount of _____ Dollars ($ _____);

(4) the transfer includes all furniture, furnishings, and decorations owned by the Sponsor and presently located in the space in the Building subject to commercial subleases and in public areas of the Building and used in connection therewith;

(5) apportionments shall be made with respect to the items noted in Section N;

(6) in case of any conflict between the terms and provisions of the Assignment Agreement and those of this Plan, the terms and provisions of this Plan shall prevail to the extent that they enlarge upon, deal in greater length with, or impose greater obligations upon the Sponsor; and

(7) if any condition of the agreement, dated _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], between the Landlord and the Sponsor, relating to changes in the aforementioned ground leases (see Section B) is not met, or if the Sponsor shall be unable to convey good leasehold title to the Land and Building in accordance with the provisions of the Assignment Agreement, or if this Plan shall not become or be declared effective or shall be abandoned, the Assignment Agreement shall terminate. In such event, the Sponsor shall cause a refund to be made of down payments received from persons who have executed Subscription Agreements and, upon such refund, neither the Cooperative Corporation nor the Sponsor nor any other person shall have any rights or obligations thereunder. The only conditions of the aforementioned _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], agreement not otherwise covered by the provisions of this Plan or complied with prior to the date of this Plan are as follows: (a) the Sponsor must pay all rent owed to the Landlord for the period prior to the closing date under the Plan; (b) the Sponsor must not be in default under the aforementioned ground leases; and (c) the Sponsor must pay, on the Landlord's behalf, certain professional fees.

Section E

Proprietary Leases

The form of proprietary lease herein referred to and to be used by the Cooperative Corporation is a part of this Plan. Proprietary leases will commence on the closing date under the Plan, will have a term of approximately fifty (50) years, and will contain, among others, the following provisions:

(1) The tenant-shareholder may, at his option, cancel any proprietary lease on _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], or any subsequent _____ [month] _____ [day]. The tenant-shareholder may exercise this option by giving a prescribed notice on or before _____ [month] _____ [day] in the calendar year in which such cancellation is to occur and by surrendering his shares, proprietary lease, and possession of the apartment to the Cooperative Corporation. A tenant who exercises this option loses his investment.

(2) (a) A tenant-shareholder may sublet an apartment from time to time on a daily, weekly, or monthly basis at any subrental that may be acceptable to him without the Board of Directors' consent. The tenant-shareholder's right to sublet is subject, however, to the following conditions: no apartment shall be sublet for a period, or for successive periods, which, in the aggregate, will exceed eight months within any consecutive twelve (12) months; and all other terms of, and all arrangements for, any such subletting shall be made by, or with the consent of, the Cooperative Corporation's renting staff. If the tenant-shareholder so sublets, the Cooperative Corporation shall receive a commission equal to the greater of _____ percent (_____%) of the subletting proceeds or _____ percent (_____%) of the rent (maintenance charges) payable under the proprietary lease for the sublet apartment during the term of the sublease.

(b) Any apartment may be sublet without the consent of the Board of Directors by a tenant-shareholder to a member of the tenant-shareholder's family, or by a lessee of a proprietary lease who is the Sponsor, a successor to the Sponsor's right under this Plan, any individual produced by the Sponsor or such successor to acquire unsold shares, or the nominee or representative of any of them.

(c) Any apartment may be sublet other than as provided in (a) and (b) above with the consent of the Board of Directors or of a majority of the authorized total number of the Cooperative Corporation's directors or of the holders of two-thirds of its then issued and outstanding shares. In the case of any such subletting, the Cooperative Corporation shall be paid a commission equal to the greater of 15 percent of the subletting proceeds or _____ percent (_____%) of the rent (maintenance charges) payable under the proprietary lease for the sublet apartment during the term of the sublease. The Cooperative Corporation shall also be paid the expenses incurred by it and its shareholders in connection with such subletting.

(d) Any proprietary lease may be assigned without the consent of the Cooperative Corporation to a tenant-shareholder's spouse, or by the lessee of a proprietary lease who is the Sponsor, a successor to the Sponsor's rights under this Plan, any individual produced by the Sponsor or such successor to acquire unsold shares, or the nominee or representative of any of them. A proprietary lease may otherwise be assigned with the consent of the Cooperative Corporation's Board of Directors or of a majority of the then authorized total number of its directors or of the holders of two-thirds (2/3) of its then issued and outstanding shares. No consent of the Board of Directors is required for a devise or bequest of a proprietary lease to a tenant-shareholder's spouse. The Board of Directors may not unreasonably withhold consent to an assignment of a proprietary lease after the death of a tenant-shareholder provided such assignment is made to a financially responsible member of the tenant-shareholder's family.

(3) The Board of Directors will fix the annual rent (maintenance charges) to cover the tenant-shareholder's proportionate share of the rent payable under the Ground Lease, real estate taxes and the cost of operating, improving, and maintaining the Building.

(4) Subleases of persons purchasing the shares allocated to apartments occupied by them prior to the closing date under the Plan shall be superseded upon execution and delivery by the Cooperative Corporation of the proprietary leases for such apartments as of the commencement of the respective terms thereof. Security deposits, if any, under superseded subleases will be returned.

(5) Apartments are leased in their condition as of the commencement of the lease term, and each tenant-shareholder will be responsible for the decoration, repair, and maintenance of his own apartment. If a tenant-shareholder places any special additions, improvements, or fixtures in the apartment, such as refrigerators, hot plates, lighting fixtures, etc., he may remove them at his expense by giving notice to the Cooperative Corporation. The tenant-shareholder's right of removal is subject, however, to the following conditions: he must have complied with his obligations under the proprietary lease; he must repair any damage caused by such removal; and he must replace and reinstall at his own expense any equipment that was in the apartment at the beginning of the term of this proprietary lease, or, at his option, he must put the apartment in tenantable condition by installing standard equipment of the kind and quality customarily used in the Building and satisfactory to the Cooperative Corporation.

(6) A proprietary lease can be terminated because of the tenant-shareholder's failure to honor his obligations thereunder.

The various defaults are listed in Paragraph 18 of the proprietary lease, and include, inter alia, the following:

- (a) if the tenant-shareholder ceases to be the owner of all of the Cooperative Corporation's shares allocated to his apartment;
- (b) if the tenant-shareholder is adjudicated a bankrupt, a receiver of his property or the proprietary lease is appointed and not dismissed within thirty (30) days, the tenant-shareholder makes a general assignment for the benefit of creditors, or any of the tenant-shareholder's shares are levied upon by court process, unless such levy is discharged within ten (10) days;
- (c) if the proprietary lease is assigned or the apartment sublet without any consent required by the terms of the proprietary lease;
- (d) if the tenant-shareholder fails to pay any installment of rent within thirty (30) days of its due date; and
- (e) if the tenant-shareholder is deemed undesirable because of objectionable conduct. Termination of a proprietary lease on the ground of objectionable conduct, however, must be approved by the affirmative vote of two-thirds of the then authorized total number of the Cooperative Corporation's directors and the holders of two-thirds (2/3) of its then issued and outstanding shares.

If a proprietary lease is terminated because of a default, the tenant-shareholder may lose all or a part of his investment.

(7) All proprietary leases are subject and subordinate to all ground, underlying, and overriding leases of the Land or the Building, and all mortgages affecting such leases or constituting liens on the Land or the Building, and to all extensions, renewals, modifications, consolidations, replacements, and renewals thereof.

(8) No shares of the Cooperative Corporation may be sold except as an entirety and except to the Cooperative Corporation or to an assignee of a proprietary lease for an apartment to which such shares have been allocated. Such assignee must have been approved by the Cooperative Corporation's Board of Directors or a majority of the then authorized total number of its directors or the holders of two-thirds of its then issued and outstanding shares.

(9) Upon assignment of the proprietary lease, the shares allocated to the apartment covered thereby must be transferred to the assignee of the proprietary lease.

(10) The Board of Directors may require the assignor of the proprietary lease to pay the reasonable legal and other expenses incurred by the Cooperative Corporation and its managing agent, the fee of its managing agent and title search costs in connection with the assignment of the proprietary lease and transfer of shares allocated to the apartment covered thereby, unless the assignment is made by the Sponsor, a successor to the Sponsor's rights under this Plan, an individual produced by the Sponsor, or such successor to acquire unsold shares, or the nominee or representative of any of them.

(11) Upon assignment of the proprietary lease, the assignee, at the Cooperative Corporation's option, must either sign a new proprietary lease or assume all of the tenant-shareholder's obligations under the assigned proprietary lease.

(12) Upon assignment of the proprietary lease in accordance with the provisions thereof, the assignor is relieved of all liability on the covenants of the lease thereafter to be performed.

(13) Initially all proprietary leases will be identical to the form of proprietary lease now available for inspection, and must remain in the same form unless and until the form shall be amended for subsequent use by the affirmative vote of the holders of two-thirds (2/3) of the Cooperative Corporation's then issued and outstanding shares.

(14) All proprietary leases can be terminated by the affirmative vote of two-thirds of the Cooperative Corporation's then authorized total number of directors and the holders of two-thirds of its then issued and outstanding shares.

Section F

Shares and Proprietary Leases Allocated to Unsold Apartments

Any shares of the Cooperative Corporation which have not been purchased and paid for as of the date of the closing under this Plan will be acquired by financially responsible individuals produced by the Sponsor who, on the date of the closing under this Plan, will enter into proprietary leases for the apartments to which their respective shares are allocated. Consequently, when this Plan is consummated, all of the Cooperative Corporation's shares will have been acquired and proprietary leases will have been entered into with respect to all apartments in the Building.

The persons who acquire unsold shares, as provided above, are obligated to pay rent (maintenance charges) under their proprietary leases, subject, however, to the right shared with all other tenant-shareholders to terminate their proprietary leases as of _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , or as of any _____ [month] _____ [day] thereafter upon prescribed notice. See Section E. While the Sponsor is not liable for the payment of the rent (maintenance charges) on these proprietary leases, the Cooperative Corporation may not invoke against the tenant-shareholders thereunder the usual remedies for nonpayment of rent including, if necessary, the cancellation of their proprietary leases, the sale of the apartments covered thereby, and the application of the net sale proceeds to the tenant-shareholders' indebtedness to the Cooperative Corporation.

Section G

Offer of Shares--Apartments; Subscription Agreement

Shares of the Cooperative Corporation and proprietary leases for all apartments are being offered to subtenants in occupancy and others (over the age of 21) who are residents of the State of _____ [state] , subject to prior sale, at the prices set forth in Schedule D. Prior to _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , however, the shares allocated to, and the proprietary lease for, any apartment that is subleased on the date of this Plan will be reserved for the subtenant thereof. Until that date, the Sponsor will not accept a Subscription Agreement from any person, other than such subtenant, with respect to such apartment unless it is conditioned upon the failure of the existing subtenant to purchase the shares allocated to such apartment prior to _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] . Moreover, prior to _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , the Sponsor will not show any apartment that is subleased on the date of this Plan to prospective purchasers, other than the existing subtenant thereof, unless it has received consent from the existing subtenant or advice from him that he does not wish to purchase his apartment. In such event the Sponsor may exercise whatever right it may have under the existing sublease to show such apartment to prospective purchasers and also to accept unconditionally a Subscription Agreement from any prospective purchaser of such apartment. Any subtenant who decides not to purchase the shares allocated to his apartment will be notified shortly after _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , in writing, whether his apartment has been sold to another person.

Any existing subtenant or other person wishing to purchase shares allocated to an apartment shall execute, in duplicate, a Subscription Agreement in the form set forth as Schedule F, copies of which are available from the Selling Agent, and deliver both copies to Mark & Co., Inc., 500 Fifth Avenue, New York, New York, together with a check drawn on a New York City bank to the order of Weiss & Spear, Escrowee, in the amount of the required _____ percent (_____ %) down payment. The down payment will be held in escrow by Weiss & Spear, the Sponsor's, special counsel, in a special bank account until disbursed as provided in this Plan.

Section H

Plan to Become or to Be Declared Effective or Abandoned

This Plan will become effective when Subscription Agreements have been accepted for apartments to which are allocated _____ percent (_____ %) of the shares of the Cooperative Corporation to be issued under this Plan. The Sponsor, however, reserves the right to declare it effective at any time after Subscription Agreements have been accepted for apartments to which are allocated _____ percent (_____ %) of such shares. If this Plan becomes or is declared effective, notice of such fact will be sent, not later than _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , to all persons who have signed Subscription Agreements which have been accepted by the Sponsor.

If the Plan has not become effective and has not been declared effective by that date (or if it becomes or is declared effective and if for any reason the Sponsor cannot transfer to the Cooperative Corporation good leasehold title to the Land and Building or meet the conditions precedent to the modification of the ground leases (see Section B)), this Plan shall be abandoned and all persons who have signed Subscription Agreements which have been accepted by the Sponsor will be notified of such fact. The closing under this Plan shall take place on a day to be designated by the Sponsor. Such day shall not be earlier than twenty (20) days after notice is given that this Plan has become or has been declared effective or, in any event, earlier than _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , or later than _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] . If the Plan becomes or is declared effective, balances on Subscription Agreements will be payable by the purchasers' certified checks drawn on New York City banks to the order of Weiss & Spear, Escrowee, within ten days after the Sponsor gives the written notice described above. These moneys will be held by Weiss & Spear, in escrow, in the special bank account described in Section G until disbursed as provided herein.

Duplicate proprietary leases will be sent to each person who has signed a Subscription Agreement which has been accepted by the Sponsor with the notice declaring the Plan effective or shortly thereafter. Both copies of the proprietary lease shall then be executed by the purchaser and returned to the Sponsor's special counsel prior to the closing date under this Plan. Promptly after the closing date, a fully executed copy of the proprietary lease, together with a certificate for the number of shares allocated to the apartment covered thereby, will be delivered to each purchaser.

If this Plan becomes or is declared effective, Weiss & Spear will pay all of the sums theretofore held by it in escrow in its special account to, or pursuant to the directions of, the Cooperative Corporation at the closing under this Plan, thereby making the funds available to the Cooperative Corporation for the payment of the consideration to which the Sponsor is entitled for causing an assignment of the ground leases described in Section B, for the Cooperative Corporation's initial working capital and for the capital improvements proposed to be made (see Section N).

The Sponsor will hold all moneys received by it, directly or through its agents, employees, or escrow agent, in trust until actually employed in connection with the consummation of the Plan.

If an insufficient number of shares are sold through this offering to effect the consummation of the Plan or if the Plan is abandoned or withdrawn for any reason or the leasehold interest in the Land and Building is not acquired by the Cooperative Corporation on or before _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , for any reason, then such moneys shall be fully returned to the subscribers without interest.

Section I

Sponsor's Right to Change Prices

The Sponsor may at any time change the number of shares allocated to the apartments and the prices thereof as shown in Schedule D. No such change will be made, however, in respect of any apartment for which a Subscription Agreement shall have been accepted or which will vary the total number of shares allocated to all of the apartments covered by this Plan. Moreover, no such change will be made prior to _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] . A sale of shares allocated to any apartment may be made at a price higher or lower than that stated in Schedule D without affecting any previous or later sale of the shares allocated to any other apartment. If there shall be any such change in the price of shares allocated to any apartment then, when the shares are sold, to the extent the price is increased the Sponsor will receive the amount of such increase, and to the extent the price is decreased it will receive a lesser amount.

Section J

Apartment Subleases and Possession

Many of the apartments being offered under this Plan are occupied by persons under subleases as indicated in Schedule D.

A purchaser of the shares allocated to an apartment will obtain the proprietary lease for the apartment subject to any sublease thereof then in effect, subject to any existing occupancy. If a subtenant or other occupant does not voluntarily remove from an apartment when his sublease or occupancy agreement, if any, expires, a purchaser, in order to occupy the apartment, may be required at his own expense to institute a summary dispossession proceeding in court. A summary dispossession proceeding can be instituted immediately following the expiration of a sublease. If a subtenant is permitted to remain in possession after the expiration of his sublease, however, or if the occupant of the apartment has no sublease, the purchaser may be required to serve a thirty (30) day statutory notice upon the subtenant or occupant before he institutes a dispossession proceeding in court. In any such dispossession proceeding, the court may have a discretionary power to stay the issuance of a warrant of eviction for not more than six months depending upon the availability of other suitable accommodations and upon other factors.

Section K

Interim Subleases and Occupancy

An existing subtenant or occupant of an apartment in the Building who signs a Subscription Agreement, as provided in Section G, which is accepted by the Sponsor shall have the right to continue to occupy his apartment until the later of the closing date under this Plan, the last day of the month in which shall fall the sixtieth (60th) day after the day on which this Plan is abandoned, or the date set for the expiration of such person's sublease, as the case may be. Such occupancy shall be on the same terms and conditions applicable to such person's tenancy or occupancy as of the date of this Plan, except that if the term of a subtenant's sublease in effect on such date would otherwise expire before the closing under this Plan it shall be deemed automatically extended to the closing date under this Plan or the last day of the month in which shall fall the sixtieth (60th) day after the day on which this Plan is abandoned, as the case may be. Furthermore, the Sponsor shall not remove from occupancy prior to _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , any person who occupies an apartment in the Building on the date of this Plan pursuant to a sublease, even if the sublease may expire prior to _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , provided that such person shall continue to pay the rent applicable to his apartment on the date of this Plan and shall otherwise duly comply with all of his other obligations as subtenant under his expired sublease. Any such person who shall continue to occupy his apartment after the expiration of his sublease in accordance with the provisions of this Plan or otherwise shall be deemed a month-to-month subtenant subject to eviction on or after _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , only if the Sponsor first shall serve upon such subtenant a thirty (30) day notice of its intention to terminate the month-to-month subtenancy and to obtain possession of the apartment.

Section L

Hotel Services--Sale of Furniture and Furnishings

The hotel services presently provided by the Cosmopolitan Apartment Hotel include doormen at the main entrance to the Building from seven a.m. to midnight, twenty-four (24) hour reception desk (concierge) and switchboard service, interior telephone, window cleaning, day and night maid service, linen service, and room service. Under this Plan, it is anticipated that the Cooperative Corporation will continue to provide or cause to be provided all of the aforementioned services. Separate charges will be made for linen service and also for room service, which is provided by the subtenant (a corporation presently owned by the Sponsor) under the restaurant sublease described in Section M, and which, after the closing under this Plan, may be provided by the Cooperative Corporation as set forth in Section M. The rent (maintenance charges) paid by tenant-shareholders under their proprietary leases will include the other services as well as electricity.

It is anticipated that the Cooperative Corporation will purchase new uniforms for all Building personnel, and the Sponsor has agreed to provide a fund of _____ Dollars ($_____) for this purpose. See Section N.

The public room in the Building not presently subleased also will be available for use by tenant-shareholders under terms and conditions to be determined by the Cooperative Corporation's Board of Directors unless the space is subleased by the Sponsor or by the Cooperative Corporation.

Furniture, furnishings, and air conditioning units owned by the Sponsors and presently used in the operation of the Building as a residential hotel and located in the apartments will be made available by the Sponsor, at reasonable prices, to persons who purchase the Cooperative Corporation's shares. Existing subtenants of apartments whose Subscription Agreements are accepted by the Sponsor will have a prior right to purchase the furniture, furnishings, and air conditioning units located in their respective apartments at the time the Sponsor accepts their Subscription Agreements. An existing subtenant may exercise this right by giving notice to the Selling Agent, in the appropriate place in the Subscription Agreement, of the purchaser's interest in purchasing specified air conditioning units and items of furniture and furnishings. Within thirty (30) days after acceptance by the Sponsor of a Subscription Agreement containing such notice the Selling Agent shall advise the purchaser of the prices for the air conditioning units and items of furniture and furnishings in which the purchaser has indicated an interest in the Subscription Agreement. The purchaser shall then have a period of thirty (30) days in which to agree to purchase any such items at the indicated prices. Such agreement shall be in writing and subject to the applicable provisions of the Subscription Agreement except for the requirement as to a 10% down payment. The Selling Agent may offer all furniture, furnishings, and air conditioning units not subject to a prior right of an existing subtenant to purchase, and all items thereof which existing subtenants do not agree to purchase, to other persons purchasing shares of the Corporation, with such priorities and at such prices (which may be more or less than the prices at which any such items were offered to existing subtenants) and on such terms as the Selling Agent in its sole discretion may determine. The Sponsor, however, may reserve such items for its own use. Each sale of furnishings, furniture, and air conditioning units shall be made subject to the requirement, imposed by law, that the purchaser pay the sales tax applicable to such sale. The sales tax, at the time of this Plan, is _____ percent (_____%) of the purchase price. All furniture, furnishings, and air conditioning units shall be sold as is as of the date of the closing under this Plan.

Section M

Commercial Subleases

If this Plan becomes or is declared effective, the Ground Lease will be subject to the commercial subleases existing on the date of closing under this Plan. The following is a summary of the principal provisions of the commercial subleases presently in effect.

(1) Apartment 1-A, on the ground floor, has been sublet for use as medical offices to Dr. Samuel Stone, by agreement of lease dated _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], for a term of three years, commencing _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], and ending _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year]. The current annual rent is _____ Dollars ($ _____), which will be payable until the expiration of the term of the sublease.

The sublease includes, without additional charge, ordinary maid and house services (except the supply of linens) and switch-board services of the Building, although the switchboard is not required to take messages. Electricity also is provided, without additional charge, for lighting and for medical equipment installed at the commencement of the sublease. All additional electricity requirements must be paid for by the sublessees by separate meter. The sublessee may place a sign on the Building at the West 10th Street special entrance to the demised premises, subject to the sublessor's approval. The sublessees have deposited $1,000, face value, coupon bonds with the sublessor as security. In all other important respects, this sublease is substantially identical to the Standard Form of Office Lease of The Real Estate Board of New York, Inc.

(2) The area known as The Blue Room, in the southeast corner of the first floor of the Building, was sublet to The Chess School, Inc., for use in instruction in chess games, by agreement of lease dated _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year]. The subtenancy was continued by additional agreements including one dated _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], containing an option, since exercised, to extend the term of the sublease to _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], at an annual rental of _____ Dollars ($ _____). The sublet premises cannot be used for chess games or instruction on Sundays and cannot be used at all between 11:30 p.m. and 9 a.m. The sublessee may not permit any nuisance or unlawful activity upon the premises or endanger the sublessor's fire or other insurance, or allow its employees to loiter in or around the Building, and indemnifies the sublessor against the acts of its employees, guests, or invitees. The sublessor provides, without additional charge, cleaning services and electricity for lighting. The sublessee is responsible for other electricity and water charges measured by meters. The sublessee also shall maintain the air conditioning apparatus installed in the demised premises which is acknowledged to be the sublessor's property.

(3) The Sponsor sublet the ground floor and basement restaurant space in the Building to Flambeau Restaurant, Inc., by agreement of lease, dated _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], for a term of fifteen (15) years, commencing _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], and ending _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year].

Under the terms of this sublease, as it is now in effect, no rental is to be payable by the subtenant thereunder until _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year], at which time (and for the balance of the term) a rental of _____ percent (_____%) of the sublessee's gross sales is payable, computed according to standards set forth in the sublease. The sublessee's books and records are available to the sublessor, and provision is made for audit and arbitration in case of disputes.

The specific uses to which the demised premises may be put, and the services which the sublessee must provide, are spelled out in detail in the sublease. They are basically those of a high-class dining room and restaurant, and the providing of room service for residents and guests in the Building. The nature of such uses, the charges therefor, and the hours of service are set forth in detail in the sublease.

Room service billing is made through the sublessor only. Employees of sublessor are entitled to a _____ percent (_____%) discount. The sublessee may not allow any nuisances or illegal activity to occur and shall do nothing to subject the sublessor's fire insurance to cancellation. Various provisions for insurance to be carried by sublessee are set forth in the sublease. They cover plate glass, comprehensive liability, food liability, and liability due to the sale of liquor. The sublessee is responsible for the ventilation and cleanliness of the demised premises and for keeping the waste sewerage lines free from grease stoppages. The sublessee pays for all utilities including electricity, telephone, water, gas, and steam. The sublessee may, subject to sublessor's right of reasonable refusal, make alterations, additions, or improvements to the demised premises, subject to various requirements set forth in the sublease with respect to insurance, liens, indemnification, and notice. The sublessee agrees that all deliveries and garbage removals shall be through the basement. The sublessee may not place signs on the building without the sublessor's consent, which may not be unreasonably withheld. The sublessor agrees that no other party shall be given permission to sell food or beverages to the public from the Building.

Under the sublease, the sublessor also leases to the sublessee various items of restaurant equipment and supplies. Then _____ percent (_____%) of the rent, as set forth above, is allocated to the lease of the personal property. The sublessee is required to maintain the equipment in good order and repair and to replace it as required.

The sublessee indemnifies the sublessor with respect to the actions and conduct of its employees, agrees to bond its employees, and to abide by the union contracts of both sublessor and sublessee.

If the Building is to be demolished or if the zoning of the area in which the Building is located is changed from residential to commercial, the sublessor may terminate the sublease upon payment to the sublessee of a sum ranging from _____ Dollars ($ _____) (if exercised in the sixth sublease year) to _____ Dollars ($ _____) (if exercised in the 13th sublease year) and without payment during the last two sublease years.

In all other important respects, this sublease contains terms and provisions similar to those usually found in leases of this type of restaurant.

By virtue of an ancillary stock option agreement entered into between the Sponsor and Flambeau Restaurant, Inc., in _____ [year], the Sponsor, in _____ [month] _____ [year], acquired all of the shares of Flambeau Restaurant, Inc. The Sponsor may resell these shares prior to the closing under this Plan to someone interested in operating the restaurant in the Building, and may make any changes in the aforementioned restaurant sublease terms it deems necessary or advisable to effect such resale. Alternatively, the Sponsor may terminate the existing restaurant sublease and enter into a new sublease with a person interested in operating the restaurant. The new sublease shall contain terms acceptable to the Sponsor and the new subtenant, which may or may not be similar to those in the existing sublease. If no such resale of the shares or new sublease transaction is effected before the closing under this Plan, however, Flambeau Restaurant, Inc., will operate the restaurant until such closing and the Sponsor will transfer the shares of Flambeau Restaurant, Inc., to the Cooperative Corporation simultaneously with the closing of this Plan. In such event, unless and until the Cooperative Corporation resells such shares or enters into a new restaurant sublease it may operate its own restaurant and, in effect, become entitled to all profits resulting from the restaurant operation or, as the case may be, be required to sustain all losses resulting therefrom, including possible loss of sublease rentals which would otherwise be payable by the subtenant after _____ [month] _____ [day], _____ [year].

If the Cooperative Corporation operates the restaurant, it will provide room service to tenant-shareholders directly. If it does not operate the restaurant, it shall be required to make other arrangements for room service until it transfers the responsibility therefor to someone interested in operating the restaurant and willing to provide room service. If the Cooperative Corporation shall sustain any loss in the operation of the restaurant or room service facilities, it may, in due course, have to increase the annual rent (maintenance charges) payable by its tenant-shareholders. It should be noted, however, that the estimate of operating income for the first year after the closing under the Plan set forth in Schedule B does not include any rental income payable under the restaurant sublease.

The Sponsor cannot represent that the subleases described in subsections (1) and (2) above will be in effect after the closing under this Plan, and has reserved the right to terminate either or both of these subleases in the event of a default by the respective subtenants thereafter. If either sublease is terminated, the Sponsor, under the terms of the Assignment Agreement, may (but is not obligated to) enter into a sublease with another person for the premises vacated by the defaulting subtenant, and may permit the new subtenant to make any use of the premises permitted by law in a residential hotel. If the Sponsor is unable or fails to make a new sublease, or if any new sublease is made on terms less favorable than those contained in the previous sublease for such space described above, the Cooperative Corporation may suffer a loss of all or part of the income attributable to such space and included in the estimated income for the first year of the Cooperative Corporation as set forth in Schedule B, which could increase the annual rent (maintenance charges) payable by tenant-shareholders. Conversely, if either of the subleases is terminated because of default of a subtenant prior to the closing under this Plan, and if the Sponsor enters into a new sublease on more favorable terms than those contained in the sublease that is terminated prior to the closing date, or if the Cooperative Corporation shall thereafter sublet the vacant space at more favorable terms than those contained in the sublease of the defaulting subtenant, any additional income derived from such sublease will, from and after the closing date under this Plan or subsequent date on which such sublease takes effect, benefit the Cooperative Corporation. This may result in an increase in the income referred to in the aforementioned Schedule and, if the Board of Directors so determines, a decrease in the annual rent (maintenance charges) payable by tenant-shareholders.

Section N

Working Capital, Expenses, and Estimated Rent
(Maintenance Charges)

At the closing under this Plan, the Sponsor will provide the Cooperative Corporation with a capital improvement fund of _____ Dollars ($_____). Of this amount, $60,000 is for the improvements recommended by Walters Associates and _____ Dollars ($_____) is for new uniforms for Building personnel.

At the same time the Sponsor will provide the Cooperative Corporation with working capital of _____ Dollars ($_____). Working capital shall be computed after giving effect to normal and regular real estate closing adjustments for real estate taxes, vault taxes, insurance premiums, utilities, rentals under commercial and residential subleases, wages and payroll expenses, charges under service and maintenance contracts, payments made to employee insurance, pension and medical funds, dues paid to the hotel association of which the Sponsor is a member, food, liquor, and other building supplies in unopened packages at cost, and other prepaid items and accrued charges.

All expenses of promulgating this Plan, of organizing the Cooperative Corporation, of issuing its shares, and for transferring the aforementioned ground leases to the Cooperative Corporation will be paid by the Sponsor. These expenses include Selling Agent's commissions, estimated at _____ Dollars ($_____), title insurance premiums of _____ Dollars ($_____), printing and the cost of operating, improving, and maintaining the fees, and similar charges incurred at or prior to the closing date, together estimated at approximately _____ Dollars ($_____) inclusive of general overhead and administrative expenses the Sponsor's. As a result of the Sponsor's payment of these expenses, the initial working capital of the Cooperative Corporation will not be diminished by reason thereof.

Each tenant-shareholder pays a proportionate share of the rent payable under the Ground Lease, real estate taxes, and the cost of operating, improving, and maintaining the Building. An estimate of the Cooperative Corporation's income and expenses for the first year after the closing under the Plan, assuming such year commences no later than _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , is set forth in Schedule B. The figures and estimates in Schedule B have been prepared by Mark & Co., Inc., after consultation with Charles Anderson, Inc., the firm of independent certified public accountants that has audited the books and records pertaining to the operation of the Building for the last twenty-five (25) years. These figures and estimates are based upon the experience of the Sponsor in operating and managing this Building since _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , and upon the experience of Mark & Co., Inc., in managing other cooperative apartment buildings, and are believed to be correct and dependable. Nothing in Schedule B, however, is intended or should be taken as a representation or guarantee by anyone that the annual rent (maintenance charge) for the first or subsequent years of operation of the Building by the Cooperative Corporation will be as set forth in Schedule B. It is possible that such rent (maintenance charges) or costs may exceed the amount shown therein.

Section O

Tax Deductions

Weiss & Spear has advised the Cooperative Corporation that it will qualify as a cooperative housing corporation within the meaning of Section 216(b)(1) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, Section _____ of the Tax Law of the State of _____ [state] , and Section _____ of the _____ [city] Administrative Code, if: (1) the Plan is declared effective; (2) there is a closing under the Plan, as set forth herein; (3) the Building was erected by a predecessor in interest of the Cooperative Corporation under the Ground Lease; (4) the price of the shares allocated to each apartment in the Building bears a reasonable relationship to the portion of the value of the Cooperative Corporation's equity in the leasehold of the Land and Building attributable to each such apartment; and (5) at least 80% of the Cooperative Corporation's gross income for the taxable year is derived from tenant-shareholders, including individuals produced by the Sponsor who acquire unsold shares. If the Cooperative Corporation so qualifies, the tenant-shareholders may deduct, for income tax purposes, their respective proportionate shares of real estate taxes attributable to the Building.

The Sponsor represents that the Building was erected by a predecessor in interest of the Cooperative Corporation under the Ground Lease. The Selling Agent represents that, in its opinion, there is a reasonable relationship between the share prices as set forth in Schedule D and the value of the several apartments, and that the computation of estimated amounts deductible for income tax purposes, as set forth in Schedule D annexed hereto, is accurate.

Under the Plan, tax deductions for the first year of operations are expected to amount to _____ percent (_____%) of the total annual maintenance charges, as shown in Schedule D. The actual income tax benefits to each tenant-shareholder will depend upon the amount (if any) allowed as a deduction by the taxing authorities and upon the individual's income tax bracket, and his actual cost of rent (maintenance charges) will be reduced accordingly. It should be noted, however, that since operating expenses and taxes may increase or decrease, there is no assurance that the aforementioned percentage may not change.

No warranties or representations are made that the Internal Revenue Service, the _____ [state] State Department of Taxation and Finance, or the _____ [city] Department of Finance will allow income tax deductions, or that the laws upon which the Sponsor's special counsel base their opinion to which reference is made above will not change. No warranties or representations are made by the Sponsor, its special counsel, the Selling Agent, or any other person with respect to the tax consequences of the Plan or the tax consequences of ownership of any shares offered under the Plan except as expressly set forth herein. No one has been authorized to make any representations other than those herein contained.

Section P

Annual Reports

The Cooperative Corporation will submit annual financial reports to all tenant-shareholders, including an annual balance sheet and a statement of operating expenses for the preceding calendar year, certified by its independent certified public accountant. All tenant-shareholders also will receive statements setting forth their respective tax deductions based upon the Cooperative Corporation's payment of real estate taxes on the Building during the previous year.

Section Q

Selling Agent and Management Contract

Mark & Co., Inc., is the Selling Agent. If this Plan becomes or is declared effective it will receive from the Sponsor a commission for the sale of the Cooperative Corporation's shares under this Plan calculated in accordance with the rates recommended by The Real Estate Board of New York, Inc., namely, _____ percent (_____%) of the aggregate selling price of all such shares. The aforementioned commission will be payable not only with respect to shares, other than unsold shares, sold prior to the closing under this Plan but also to unsold shares on their resale within two years of the date of closing under this Plan by the persons designated by the Sponsor to acquire them initially. If any such resale is effected by an outside agent, the Sponsor shall pay any brokerage commission due to that agent, as well as one-half of that amount to Mark & Co., Inc. If any resale is effected by the Sponsor itself, it shall pay to Mark & Co., Inc., one half the amount that would have been due to an agent who negotiated such sale.

As of the closing date under this Plan the Cooperative Corporation will enter into a one-year supervisory management agreement with Mark & Co., Inc., at an annual fee of _____ Dollars ($_____).

Either party may cancel the management contract by giving thirty (30) days' written notice, except that only ten (10) days' written notice is required if there is a material breach of the agreement by the other party, and no notice is required if the other party files a petition in bankruptcy.

Mark & Co., Inc., is a large, well-known real estate concern doing business in the City of New York. It specializes in many phases of real estate including, specifically, the management of cooperative apartment buildings. At the present time, Mark & Co., Inc., manages a number of apartment buildings in the vicinity of the Building which are, or are in the process of becoming, cooperatives.

As supervising managing agent, Mark & Co., Inc., will, among other things, supervise Building personnel. Through such personnel, it will be responsible for the maintenance of the Building, the purchase of supplies, and the authorization and supervision of necessary repairs in and about the Building. Mark & Co., Inc., will be subject to the direction of the Cooperative Corporation's Board of Directors. Further, in cases where the cost of any one item of alteration or repair exceeds $500, Mark & Co., Inc., will not, except in an emergency, proceed with such work without the authorization of the Board of Directors. The management contract requires the Cooperative Corporation to indemnify Mark & Co., Inc., for the actions of its employees.

PLUMBING

The building has a combination sanitary and storm water drainage system which discharges into the City sewer system in the street for fixtures which are above the level of the City sewer. Waste water which is collected below the City sewer level is drained into two sump pits and lifted to the house drain by means of two pumps at each pit. Vertical soil and waste stacks, leaders, and main branches are of extra heavy cast iron; branch vents and runouts are of galvanized steel.

Cold water risers are of galvanized wrought iron with brass crotons; hot water risers, branches, and runouts are of brass.

Exposed pipe and fittings at fixtures are chrome plated. Fixtures in apartments consist of enameled cast iron bathtubs, vitreous china basins, and water closets with flushometers. Sinks in kitchens are of enameled cast iron with integral drainboards with some replacements of stainless steel with Formica drainboards.

Cold water is supplied to the building in a split system; the first four floors are upfeed under street pressure and all other floors are downfeed from the tanks above the roof.

Water is pumped to the tanks by means of pumps in the Mechanical Equipment Room in the cellar.

The building has a treatment installation for purifying the water.

Hot water is generated in two storage tanks, each of 5,000-gallon capacity by means of submerged coils.

Each area of the building has a 10,000-gallon (nominal) water storage tank, each with required reserve for fire standpipe use. The insulation of the piping between the roof and the tank of the easterly area is in need of repair.

Fire hoses are in good condition.

The shop areas in the cellar have sprinklers.

HEATING, VENTILATING, AIR CONDITIONING

The building is heated by means of a two-pipe steam system with wet return and Warren valves and traps. Radiators are of cast iron and are enclosed in wood enclosures with metal grilles under windows of all main rooms.

Steam is supplied to the building by _____ [name] at low pressure for heating purposes and at higher pressure for service to the restaurant kitchen.

Interior bathrooms and kitchens have exhaust ventilation by means of fans on the roof. The restaurant has a separate exhaust system and an individual air conditioning system.

Numerous apartments have window type air conditioning units, some of which are tenant owned. The building is wired from a new panel in the cellar to provide sufficient electric current for installing air conditioners in all apartments.

ELECTRIC

Electric services consist of switches supplying 5,200 amperes of A.C. current and 650 amperes of D.C. current.

All lighting and services consume A.C. current.

Sufficient current is provided at each apartment panel for installing air conditioners in each main room not now so equipped. Fuses for this wiring are in the service corridors.

A master T.V. antenna for UHF and VHF television reception has been installed and is available to all apartments.

A few apartments have been wired for major electric cooking ranges. Refrigerators are of the under-counter type in small kitchens and vertical six or seven cubic foot size in larger apartments. Refrigerators are G.E. and Frigidaire.

The restaurant has a separate electric service and is equipped with electric fire alarm system.

SUMMARY

The building is a completely fireproof structure built in accordance with requirements of the Building Code and Zoning Resolution of the City of New York which were in effect at the time of construction.

It is solidly built on a structural steel frame with concrete floor arch construction and skeleton enclosing walls of face brick, trimmed with granite and limestone with masonry unit back-up. It has ornamental terra cotta balconies, band courses, and cornice.

All exterior masonry work is sound.

The windows are of the double hung type with wood frames, sash, and trim except in roof houses and in other areas where legal requirements limit them to steel or kalamein.

The frames and sash are sound, except for scribe moldings at the sills which require replacement.

Metal windows and doors which are exposed to the elements also require painting.

The interior spaces are well laid out, rooms are large and well proportioned, have numerous and spacious closets and excellent sanitary facilities, with a bathroom for every bedroom.

Foyers and living rooms have oak parquet floors, bedrooms and communicating corridors have oak strip floors, most of which have been covered with carpet. Some of the foyer floors have been covered with resilient flooring. Those wood floors which were not covered were in sound condition and except for the expected normal shrinkage in heated areas had tight joints.

Wall surfaces in the above spaces are plaster board with painted finish, have wood base and door and window trim.

Ceilings have beam drops, are plastered and painted. Ceiling surfaces are satisfactory. Paint on the walls is peeling in some small areas. The paint on the interior trim is generally in good condition, except at lower rails of window sash where condensation has caused it to peel off. The arises of wood and metal moldings have lost some of their sharpness through continuous painting but are in no way objectionable.

Serving pantries have resilient flooring, cement base, and plaster board walls and ceilings. Walls and ceilings are painted where not covered with fixed cabinets or equipment. All are well kept and are ventilated by means of ducts connected to exhausters on the roof.

Cabinets are Formica, although some original wood cabinets remain. There are sink and drainboard combinations of porcelain enameled iron and some of stainless steel with Formica drainboards.

The mechanical installations (plumbing, heating and ventilating, electrical) are in good operating condition and, subject to normal maintenance and replacement of parts, they should not require any capital investment for several years.

Bathrooms have ceramic tile floors, glazed tile wainscots approximately seven feet high on walls, and balance of wall and ceiling plastered.

Bathtubs are of porcelain enameled cast iron, basins and water closets of vitreous china and in good condition. Water closets have flushometers, bathtubs have showers with curtains and in some instances glass enclosures. All exposed pipe and fittings are chrome plated.

The tile walls are in good condition. Paint in the bathrooms is generally good except where continued exposure to steaming is causing paint to peel at intersections between tile and plaster.

Some bathrooms have windows opening to the outer air, others are exhaust ventilated by means of ductwork to roof fans.

The cellar areas are enclosed in concrete, brick, and terra cotta with some areas plastered and are generally in sound condition. Painting of the walls and ceilings, floors, trim, and equipment would add considerably to the appearance of the entire area.

For purposes of long-range planning the following items should correct present deficiencies and update the building and equipment so that future maintenance costs would be reduced to a minimum:

Lobby redecorating	$ _____

Overhaul two water tanks and water to feeds building.	$ _____

COMMENT

Under most cooperative plans, the sale of shares and the transfer of the accompanying lease cannot be accomplished without the consent of the cooperative corporation. In the agreement illustrated here, the closing of the contract is predicated upon the seller's obtaining this consent.

[year] , between JOHN OXMAN, residing at _____ [address] , _____ [city] ,
_____ [state] (the "Seller"), and ROBERT ROBBINS, residing at _____ [address] ,
_____ [city] , _____ [state] (the "Purchaser").

1. Sale. The Seller agrees to sell, transfer, and deliver to the Purchaser and the Purchaser agrees to purchase and take title from the Seller (all subject, however, to the further terms and conditions of this agreement), the following:

(b) The proprietary lease (the "Proprietary Lease") between the Corporation, as Lessor, and the Seller, as Lessee, covering apartment 5-F in the apartment building known as 1000 Fifth Avenue, New York, New York, with all necessary executed assignments or consents.

(c) The Seller's right, subject to the provisions of the Proprietary Lease, in and to the fixtures, equipment, and personal property now contained in the apartment, other than furniture, furnishings, and personal effects. Neither the Seller nor the Corporation are obligated to install any additional equipment in the apartment.

(d) The Purchaser has inspected the apartment and shall take it in its present condition, normal wear and tear and removal of fixtures and property not included in this sale excepted.

(e) The Purchaser also acknowledges that he has examined the Proprietary Lease covering the apartment, as well as the Corporation's Certificate of Incorporation and Bylaws, and that he is familiar with the terms of each such instrument.

2. Price. The purchase price is _____ Dollars ($ _____), payable as follows:

(a) _____ Dollars ($ _____) by check, subject to collection, when this agreement is signed; and

(b) _____ Dollars ($ _____) in cash, certified check, or cashier's check, drawn on a New York bank or trust company, payable to the order of the Seller, and to be delivered at the closing.

3. Warranty of Seller. The Seller warrants and represents that he is the owner of the shares in the Corporation, the Proprietary Lease, and the fixtures, equipment, and personal property heretofore set forth; that the same are free and clear of all liens, encumbrances, and adverse interests, subject, however, to any liens or mortgages on the real property of which the apartment forms a part. The shares in the Corporation are duly paid for and are nonassessable.

4. Date of Transfer. The effective date of the assignment of the Proprietary Lease shall be _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] . Maintenance or rent and other charges which shall have become due and payable under the provisions of the Proprietary Lease shall be apportioned as of such effective date of the assignment, so that the Seller shall bear and shall have paid the portion thereof applicable to the period up to the effective date of the assignment and the Purchaser shall bear and pay the portion applicable to the period commencing with such effective date.

5. Closing. The transfer of title hereunder shall be closed and the papers delivered and payments or adjustments made at the office of Jones & Co., Inc., 10 East 42nd Street, New York, New York, on _____ [month] _____ [day] , _____ [year] , at 2 p.m., which date, time, and place are hereby designated as the closing.

6. Documents to be delivered to purchaser. At or before the closing the Seller shall deliver to the Purchaser:

(a) Certificate or certificates for the number of shares mentioned in subparagraph (a) of Paragraph 1. If the Seller shall be a fiduciary there shall also be delivered all documents necessary or required by the Corporation for the purpose of transferring such shares, including but not limited to wills, waivers by taxing authorities, and certificates of authority to act.

(b) Share transfer power or endorsements on such share certificate or certificates, together with all necessary transfer stamps duly affixed thereto to cover the transfer thereof into the name of the Purchaser.

(c) The Seller's original Proprietary Lease referred to in subparagraph (b) of Paragraph 1, together with all such assignments or consents as may have been necessary to transfer the interest of the Lessee named therein to the Seller.

(d) Assignment of the Proprietary Lease, in triplicate, duly executed for the purpose of conveying to the Purchaser all the Seller's right, title, and interest as Lessee in the Proprietary Lease. This assignment shall include a warranty to the effect that good and valid title is being transferred to the Proprietary Lease and the corporate shares above described.

(e) The Corporation's consent to the transfer of such shares and the Proprietary Lease to the Purchaser, or in the alternative, a certificate by an officer of the Corporation that a consent to such assignment is on file with it.

7. Document to be Delivered by Purchaser. At or before the closing, the Purchaser, in addition to the payment of the balance of the sale price and adjustments, shall deliver the following:

(a) Agreement signed and acknowledged by the Purchaser in triplicate, in form approved by the Corporation, accepting the assignment of the Proprietary Lease and assuming and agreeing to perform and comply with all of its terms, covenants, and conditions, including observance of house rules and any special provisions with respect to such shares, on and after the effective date of the assignment. One of such executed agreements shall be delivered to the Seller and the other to the Corporation.

(b) If the Corporation so requests, the Purchaser shall surrender the assigned Proprietary Lease and in place thereof shall enter into and execute a new Proprietary Lease with the Corporation in substantially the same form and covering the same apartment as the Proprietary Lease so assigned and surrendered.

8. References. The Purchaser shall submit to the Corporation or its managing agent forthwith after the execution hereof adequate references as to the Purchaser's social and financial standing, and shall cooperate in any way reasonably required by the Corporation, including the appearance before any board or committee thereof.

9. Possession. The Seller agrees that as of the effective date of the closing the premises will be vacated and possession and keys made available to the Purchaser.

10. Termination of Agreement. This agreement shall become null and void and neither party shall have any rights against the other, except that the Seller shall return to the Purchaser the amount paid on the execution hereof, if any of the following conditions shall occur prior to the closing:

(a) The Seller shall be unable, except for his willful default, to comply with each of subparagraphs (a), (b), (c), (d), and (e) of Paragraph 6 of this agreement.

(b) The apartment covered by the Proprietary Lease is damaged or injured by fire between the date of the execution hereof and the date of the closing so as to render it untenable.

(c) Prior to the closing, the Corporation shall have elected to cancel and terminate the Proprietary Lease under any option or privilege reserved or contained therein.

(d) Prior to the closing, the Purchaser shall have complied with the provisions of Paragraph 8 of this agreement but the Seller shall have been unable to obtain the Corporation's consent to the transfer of the shares and the Proprietary Lease.

11. Default by Purchaser. If the Purchaser shall fail to take title to the Proprietary Lease and shares of the Corporation on the closing and pay to the Seller the balance of the sale price and adjustments for any reason other than those set forth in Paragraph 10, the amount paid on the execution hereof, and any other sum or sums paid by the Purchaser to the Seller prior to the closing, may at the Seller's option be retained by the Seller as liquidated damages. In such event neither party shall have any further rights against the other with respect to this agreement. The foregoing privilege shall not, however, unless so specifically exercised by the Seller, be exclusive of any right or claim which the Seller shall have against the Purchaser because of any such default.

12. Broker. The Purchaser represents to the Seller that Jones & Co., Inc., is the only broker who was instrumental in bringing about this sale. Based upon such representations, the Seller agrees to pay to Jones & Co., Inc. commissions in accordance with a separate agreement made with it.

13. Annual Maintenance. The seller represents that the annual maintenance for the apartment at the present time is _____ Dollars ($_____).

14. Time of the Essence. Time shall be of the essence with respect to all terms of this agreement, except that any delay which shall occur in obtaining the Corporation's approval shall permit a reasonable postponement of the closing until such approval is obtained. If it is ascertained, however, that no approval shall be forthcoming, the down payment shall be returned to the Purchaser.

15. Entire Agreement. This agreement contains the entire agreement between the parties hereto and cannot be changed orally.

16. Governing Law. This agreement shall be construed in accordance with and governed by the laws of the State of _____ [state] .

17. Non-assignment. The Purchaser shall not assign this agreement or his rights hereunder.

18. Binding Effect. Subject to the limitation in Paragraph 17, this agreement shall bind and apply to both parties and their respective personal representatives and successors in interest.

19. Non-waiver. No delay or failure by either party to exercise any right under this agreement, and no partial or single exercise of that right, shall constitute a waiver of that or any other right, unless otherwise expressly provided herein.

20. Headings for Reference Only. Headings preceding the text and sections of this agreement have been inserted solely for convenience and reference, and shall not be construed to affect its meaning, construction, or effect.

21. Notices. All notices or other documents under this agreement shall be in writing and delivered personally or mailed by certified mail, postage prepaid, addressed to the parties at their last known addresses.

22. Counterparts. This agreement may be executed in two or more counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original but all of which together shall constitute one and the same instrument.

In witness whereof the parties hereto have signed this agreement the day and year first above written.

H. CONDOMINIUMS AND HOMEOWNERS ASSOCIATION

24-20 Current Legal Forms for Real Estate FORM 20.65

AUTHOR: by Stephen E. Pigott and Harold O. Maxfield, Jr.

FORM 20.65 Declaration of condominium--Florida

COMMENT

A condominium is a system of separate ownership of individual units in multi-unit projects. A purchaser of a condominium unit receives fee title to that unit, as if it were a separate unit of property. In addition, there is appurtenant to each unit an undivided interest in the common areas. The ownership of these common elements, which consist generally of hallways, parking areas, recreation facilities, heating plants, etc., is generally allocated to the owners on the basis of the ratio of the value of the unit to the value of the entire project. The common elements are sometimes owned by a condominium association.

The cooperative form of ownership is quite different. There, ownership of the entire structure is lodged in the cooperative. The owner of the interest of the cooperative does not hold any interest in the property itself (other than as tenant under a fairly traditional form of lease).

It has been suggested that the condominium owner has greater freedom with respect to the disposition of his property. It is pointed out that a proprietary lease generally gives the cooperative corporation the right of first refusal if the tenant-shareholder wants to sell his interest in the cooperative venture. In some cases, the sale cannot be made without prior approval of the cooperative's board of directors which, by contractual or other stipulation, is not to be withheld unreasonably. In both the cooperative and condominium, there are restraints on transfer (such as by a right of first refusal). So long as such restraints are reasonable and not discriminatory, they are lawful.

For tax purposes, the condominium owner and the cooperative owner are for all practical purposes treated alike. The deduction for taxes and interest for a cooperative owner depends upon compliance with certain special statutory requirements because the taxes and interest are in fact paid by the cooperative corporation. The condominium owner pays his own taxes and his own interest on his own property. His right to these deductions is as clear as the right of any private homeowner. The income tax consequences upon the sale of a condominium apartment are the same as those applicable upon the sale of any residence. (See TB § 20.12).

A condominium is established by filing, with the formalities of a deed, a declaration submitting specified land, and the improvements to be erected thereon, to condominium ownership. This document generally is called the "declaration of condominium." The information which must be included in the declaration is specified in the applicable statute. The form which follows is a declaration intended to comply with the Florida statute, which is fairly representative of condominium legislation. Under that statute, the following items are to be set forth in the declaration:

- (1) a statement submitting the property to condominium ownership;
- (2) the name by which the condominium is to be identified, which must include the word "condominium," or must be followed by the words "a condominium";
- (3) a legal description of the land on which the improvements are to be located;
- (4) a survey of the land and a graphic description of the improvements, certified by an engineer, architect, or surveyor, including the number of stories, number of units, unit boundaries, materials to be used in construction, and a description of the common elements, illustrated by floor plans, maps, building plans, or other means;
- (5) a designation of each unit by letter, name, or number;
- (6) the share of each owner in the common elements;
- (7) the share of common expenses and common surplus of each owner;
- (8) the voting rights;
- (9) the method of amending the declaration;
- (10) a provision for the enactment of by-laws, to be either included in or annexed to the declaration; and
- (11) the name of the association of owners which is to operate the condominium, and a statement as to whether or not it is to be incorporated. If the association is not incorporated, the name and address of the person designated as agent to receive service of process upon the association.

In addition to these required items, the declaration generally includes various limitations relating to the operation of the condominium. For example, as noted above, the declaration often sets forth the conditions under which unit may be sold, leased, or received by gift, inheritance, or devise. Under this declaration, an owner who wishes to sell his unit must notify the owners' association, and may demand that the association furnish a purchaser if it disapproves of the proposed sale. Other optional provisions customarily relate to restrictions on the use of the premises, the maintenance of insurance, the responsibility for the common elements, and the reconstruction of the building after damage by fire or other causes.

In Florida, in addition to the declaration, the basic organization documents consist of the articles of incorporation of the owners' association, the bylaws of that association, the agreement of purchase between the builder and the prospective condominium owner, the agreement relating to the availability of a mortgage loan on each unit, and the form of warranty deed. In other jurisdictions, additional documentation may be required. Additionally, quite a few states have adopted versions of the Uniform Condominium Act. Copies of the Act can be obtained by contacting the National Conference of Commissioners of Uniform State Laws, 211 E. Ontario Street, Suite 1300, Chicago, Illinois 60611. However, no such change shall increase the number of apartments nor alter the boundaries of the common elements without amendment of this Declaration in the manner described in Paragraph 21 of this Declaration. 7. Maintenance and Alteration of Apartments.

(a) The Association shall maintain, repair, and replace

(1) all portions of an apartment, except interior surfaces, contributing to the support of the apartment building, which portions shall include but not be limited to the outside walls of the apartment building and all fixtures on the exterior thereof; boundary walls of apartments; floor and ceiling slabs; and load-bearing columns and load-bearing walls; and

(2) all conduits, ducts, plumbing, wiring, and other facilities for the furnishing of utility services which are contained in the portions of an apartment maintained by the Association; and all such facilities contained within an apartment which service part or parts of the condominium other than the apartment within which contained.

All incidental damage caused to an apartment by such work shall be promptly repaired at the expense of the Association.

(b) The responsibility of the apartment owner shall be

(1) to maintain, repair, and replace at his expense all portions of his apartment except the portions to be maintained, repaired, and replaced by the Association;

(2) not to paint or otherwise decorate or change the appearance of any portion of the exterior of the apartment building;

(3) to promptly report to the Association any defect or need for repairs the responsibility for which is that of the Association.

(c) Except as elsewhere reserved to the Developer, neither an apartment owner nor the Association shall make any alteration in the portions of an apartment or apartment building which are to be maintained by the Association, remove any portion thereof, make any additions thereto, do anything which would jeopardize the safety or soundness of the apartment building, or impair any easement, without first obtaining approval in writing of owners of all apartments in which such work is to be done and the approval of the Board of Directors of the Association. A copy of plans for all of such work prepared by an architect licensed to practice in this state shall be filed with the Association prior to the start of the work.

8. Maintenance and Alteration of Common Elements.

(a) The Association shall be responsible for the operation and maintenance of the common elements, and shall pay for the cost and expense thereof.

(b) After the completion of the improvements included in the common elements, contemplated by this Declaration, there shall be no alteration or further improvement of the real property constituting the common elements without prior written approval by the owners of not less than _____ percent (_____%) of the common elements except as provided by the Bylaws, but no such alteration or improvement shall interfere with the rights of any apartment owner. The cost of such work shall not be assessed against a bank, life insurance company, or federal savings and loan association which acquires its title as the result of owning a mortgage upon an apartment unless such an owner shall approve the alteration or improvement, regardless of whether the title is acquired by deed from the mortgagor or through foreclosure proceedings. The share of any cost not so assessed shall be assessed to the other apartment owners in the proportions which their shares in the common elements bear to each other. There shall be no change in the shares and rights of an apartment owner in the common elements which are altered or further improved, whether or not the apartment owner contributes to the cost thereof.

9. Assessments.

(a) Assessments against apartment owners for common expenses shall be made pursuant to the Bylaws and shall be allocated as set forth in Paragraph 6 of this Declaration. However, if services are furnished to apartment owners beyond the maintenance and operation of the condominium property, such as operation of a restaurant or bar, no assessment on account of such services shall be made against a bank, life insurance company, or federal savings and loan association which acquires its title as a result of owning a first mortgage upon an apartment, unless the occupant of the apartment owned by such an institution voluntarily accepts such services. This shall be so whether the title is acquired by deed from the mortgagor or through foreclosure proceedings. The shares of any cost or loss not so assessed shall be assessed to the other apartment owners in the proportions which their shares in the common elements bear to each other.

(b) Assessments and installments thereon paid on or before ten days after the date when due shall not bear interest, but all sums not paid on or before ten days after the date when due shall bear interest at the rate of 10% per annum from the date when due until paid. All payments upon account shall be first applied to interest and then to the assessment payment first due.

(c) The lien for unpaid assessments provided by Florida law shall also secure reasonable attorneys' fees incurred by the Association incident to the collection of such assessment or enforcement of such lien.

(d) In any foreclosure of a lien for assessments the owner of the apartment subject to the lien shall be required to pay a reasonable rental for the apartment, and the Association shall be entitled to the appointment of a receiver to collect such rental.

10. Association. The operation of the condominium shall be by Castle Association, Inc., (the "Association") a corporation not for profit under the laws of Florida, which shall be organized and shall fulfill its functions pursuant to the following provisions:

(a) The members of the Association shall be the apartment owners.

(b) The Association shall be incorporated under Articles of Incorporation in the form attached as Exhibit D.

(c) The Bylaws of the Association shall be in the form attached as Exhibit E.

(d) Notwithstanding the duty of the Association to maintain and repair parts of the condominium property, the Association shall not be liable for injury or damage, other than the cost of maintenance and repair, caused by any latent condition of the property that it is required to maintain and repair, nor for injury or damage caused by the elements or other owners or persons.

(e) The share of a member in the funds and assets of the Association cannot be assigned, hypothecated, or transferred in any manner except as an appurtenance to his apartment.

(f) Whenever the decision of an apartment owner is required upon any matter, whether or not the subject of an Association meeting, such decision shall be expressed by the same person who would cast the vote of such owner if in an Association meeting, unless the joinder of record owners is specifically required by this Declaration.

11. Insurance.

(a) The Association shall purchase insurance policies upon the condominium property covering the items described in subparagraph (b) of this paragraph, for the benefit of the Association and the apartment owners and their mortgagees as their interests may appear. Provision shall be made for the issuance of certificates of mortgage endorsements to the mortgagees of apartment owners. Such policies and endorsements shall be deposited with the Insurance Trustee, which shall hold them subject to the provisions of Paragraph 12.

(b) Insurance shall cover the following:

(1) all buildings and improvements upon the land and all personal property included in the common elements in an amount equal to the maximum insurable replacement value, excluding foundation and excavation costs, as determined annually by the Board of Directors of the Association. Such coverage shall afford protection against loss or damage by fire and other hazards covered by a standard extended coverage endorsement, and such other risks as are customarily covered with respect to buildings similar to the buildings on the land, such as vandalism and malicious mischief;

(2) public liability in such amounts and with such coverage as shall be required by the Board of Directors of the Association, including but not limited to hired automobile and nonowned automobile coverages, and with cross liability endorsement to cover liabilities of the apartment owners as a group to an apartment owner;

(3) workmen's compensation as required by law;

(4) such other insurance as the Board of Directors of the Association shall determine from time to time to be desirable.

(c) Premiums upon insurance policies purchased by the Association shall be paid by the Association as a common expense.

(d) The Association is hereby irrevocably appointed agent for each apartment owner to adjust all claims arising under insurance policies purchased by the Association, and to execute and deliver releases upon the payment of claims.

12. Responsibilities of Insurance Trustee.

(a) All insurance policies purchased by the Association shall provide that proceeds covering property losses shall be paid to any bank in Florida which is selected by the Board of Directors of the Association as a trustee, which bank is herein referred to as the Insurance Trustee. The Insurance Trustee shall not be liable for payment of premiums, for the renewal or the sufficiency of policies, or for the failure to collect any insurance proceeds.

(b) The Insurance Trustee shall receive such proceeds as are paid and hold them in trust for the benefit of the apartment owners and their mortgagees as follows. An undivided share of such proceeds on account of damage to common elements shall be allocated to the apartment owners according to their shares of the common elements set forth in Paragraph 6. Proceeds on account of apartments shall be held for the owners of damaged apartments in proportion to the cost of repairing the damage suffered by each apartment owner, which cost shall be determined by the Association. If a mortgagee endorsement is issued as to an apartment, the share of the apartment owner shall be held in trust for the mortgagee and the apartment owner as their respective interests may appear.

(c) Proceeds of insurance policies received by the Insurance Trustee shall be distributed as follows:

(1) All expenses of the Insurance Trustee shall be first paid.

(2) If the damage for which the proceeds are paid is to be repaired or reconstructed, the remaining proceeds shall be expended as provided in Paragraph 14. Any proceeds remaining after defraying such costs shall be distributed to the beneficial owners, remittances to apartment owners and their mortgagees being payable jointly to them. This is a covenant for the benefit of any mortgagee of an apartment and may be enforced by such mortgagee.

(3) If it is determined as provided in Paragraph 14 that the damage for which the proceeds are paid shall not be reconstructed or repaired, or if there are excess proceeds remaining after a reconstruction and repair, the remaining proceeds shall be distributed to the beneficial owners, remittances to apartment owners and their mortgagees being payable jointly to them. This is a covenant for the benefit of any mortgagee of an apartment and may be enforced by such mortgagee.

(4) In making distribution to apartment owners and their mortgagees, the Insurance Trustee may rely upon a certificate of the Association as to the names of the apartment owners and their respective shares of the distribution, and as to whether or not the building is to be reconstructed or repaired.

13. When Damaged Property is to be Reconstructed or Repaired.

(a) If common elements are damaged, they shall be reconstructed or repaired, unless it is determined under Paragraph 22 that the condominium shall be terminated.

(b) If the damaged property is the apartment building, and if apartments to which _____ percent (_____%) or more of the common elements are appurtenant are found by the Board of Directors of the Association to be tenantable, the damaged property shall be reconstructed or repaired unless within sixty (60) days after the casualty it is determined under Paragraph 22 that the condominium shall be terminated.

(c) If the damaged property is the apartment building, and if apartments to which more than _____ percent (_____%) or the common elements are appurtenant are found by the Board of Directors to be not tenantable, the damaged property will not be reconstructed or repaired and the condominium shall be terminated under Paragraph 22 unless within sixty (60) days after the casualty the owners of at least _____ percent (_____%) of the common elements agree in writing to such reconstruction or repair. No mortgagee shall have any right to participate in the determination as to whether damaged property shall be reconstructed or repaired.

(d) Any reconstruction or repair must be substantially in accordance with the plans and specifications for the original building prepared by Paul F. Fisch, A.I.A., or if not, then according to plans and specifications approved by the Board of Directors of the Association, and if the damaged property is the apartment building, by the owners of not less than _____ percent (_____%) of the common elements, including the owners of all damaged apartments, which approval shall not be unreasonably withheld.

14. Responsibilities and Procedures as to Payment for Repairs.

(a) If damage occurs only to those parts of an apartment for which the responsibility of maintenance and repair is that of the apartment owner, such owner shall be responsible for reconstruction and repair after casualty. In all other instances the responsibility of reconstruction and repair after casualty shall be that of the Association.

(b) Immediately after a casualty causing damage to property for which the Association has the responsibility of maintenance and repair, the Association shall obtain reliable and detailed estimates of the cost to rebuild or repair so as to place the damaged property in condition as good as that before the casualty.

(c) If the insurance proceeds are not sufficient to defray the estimated costs of reconstruction and repair, assessments shall be made against the apartment owners who own the damaged property, and against all apartment owners in the case of damage to common elements, in sufficient amounts to provide funds to pay the estimated costs. Additional assessments may be made at any time during, or following the completion of, construction. Such assessments against apartment owners for damage to apartments shall be in proportion to the cost of reconstruction and repair of their respective apartments. Such assessments on account of damage to common elements shall be in proportion to the owner's share in the common elements.

(d) If the amount of the estimated costs of reconstruction and repairs for which the Association is responsible is more than _____ Dollars ($_____), the Association shall deposit the sums paid upon assessments to meet such costs with the Insurance Trustee. In all other cases the Association shall hold the sums paid upon such assessments and disburse them in payment of the costs of reconstruction and repair.

(e) The proceeds from assessments and insurance received by the Insurance Trustee shall be disbursed as follows:

(1) The portion of insurance proceeds representing damage, the reconstruction and repair of which is the responsibility of the apartment owner, shall be paid by the Insurance Trustee to the apartment owner or, if there is a mortgagee endorsement, then to the apartment owner and the mortgagee jointly, who may use such proceeds as they may be advised.

(2) The portion of insurance proceeds representing damage, the reconstruction and repair of which is the responsibility of the Association, shall be disbursed in payment of the costs of such repair and reconstruction in the manner required by the Board of Directors of the Association and upon approval of an architect qualified to practice in Florida and employed by the Association to supervise the work.

(3) The Insurance Trustee shall not be required to determine whether a disbursement is to be made, the identity of the payee, or the amount to be paid, but may rely upon a certificate of the Association stating such information.

15. Use Restrictions. The use of the property of the condominium shall be in accordance with the following provisions:

(a) Each of the apartments shall be occupied only by a family, its servants, and guests, as a residence and for no other purpose. Except as reserved to the Developer, no apartment may be divided or subdivided into a smaller unit nor any portion thereof sold or otherwise transferred without first amending this Declaration to show the changes in the apartments to be effected thereby.

(b) The common elements shall be used only for the purposes for which they are intended in the furnishing of services and facilities for the enjoyment of the apartments.

(c) No use or practice shall be permitted on the condominium property which is the source of annoyance to residents or which interferes with the peaceful possession and proper use of the property by its residents. All parts of the property shall be kept in a clean and sanitary condition, and no rubbish, refuse, or garbage allowed to accumulate nor any fire hazard allowed to exist. No apartment owner shall permit any use of his apartment or of the common elements which will increase the rate of insurance upon the condominium property. No immoral, improper, offensive, or unlawful use shall be made of the condominium property or any part thereof. All valid laws, zoning ordinances, and regulations of all governmental bodies having jurisdiction thereof shall be observed. The responsibility of meeting the requirements of governmental bodies which require maintenance, modification, or repair of the condominium property shall be the same as the responsibility for the maintenance and repair of the property concerned. No rooms may be rented or transient guests accommodated.

(d) Neither the apartment owners nor the Association nor the use of the condominium property shall interfere with the completion of the contemplated improvements and the sale of the apartments until the Developer has completed and sold all of the apartments. The Developer may make such use of the unsold units and common areas as may facilitate such completion and sale, including but not limited to the maintenance of a sales office, the showing of the property, and the display of signs.

(e) The Association may make and amend, from time to time, reasonable regulations concerning the use of the condominium property. Such regulations shall be made and amended in the manner provided in the Association's Articles of Incorporation and Bylaws. The Association shall furnish copies of such regulations and amendments thereto to all apartment owners and residents of the condominium, upon their request.

16. Approval of Transfer or Lease.

(a) No apartment owner may effectively dispose of an apartment or any interest therein by sale or lease, except to another apartment owner in the condominium, without approval of the Association. If any apartment owner shall acquire his title by gift, devise, or inheritance, the continuance of his ownership of his apartment shall be subject to the approval of the Association.

(b) An apartment owner intending to make a bona fide sale or lease of his apartment or any interest therein shall give to the Association notice of such intention, together with the name and address of the intended purchaser or lessee, and such other information concerning the intended purchaser or lessee as the Association may reasonably require. In the case of a prospective sale, such notice may include the apartment owner's demand that the Association furnish a purchaser if the proposed purchaser is not approved; and if such demand is made, the notice shall be accompanied by an executed copy of the proposed contract to sell. An apartment owner who has obtained his title by gift, devise, or inheritance shall give to the Association notice of the acquisition of his title, together with such personal information as the Association may reasonably require, and a certified copy of the instrument evidencing his title. If the notice to the Association is not given, then at any time after receiving knowledge of a transaction or event transferring ownership or possession of an apartment, the Association at its election and without notice may approve or disapprove the transaction or ownership.

(c) Within thirty (30) days after receipt of the notice described in subparagraph (b) of this paragraph the Association must either approve or disapprove the proposed transaction or the continuance of ownership, as the case may be. If approved, the approval shall be stated in a certificate executed by the President and Secretary in recordable form, and shall be delivered to the purchaser, lessee, or new owner and shall be recorded in the public records of the county (except that a lease need not be recorded).

17. Disapproval of Transfer or Leases.

(a) If the Association disapproves a proposed sale and if the notice of sale given by the apartment owner shall so demand, within thirty (30) days after receipt of such notice and information the Association shall deliver or mail by registered mail to the apartment owner an offer to purchase by a purchaser approved by the Association who will purchase and to whom the apartment owner must sell the apartment. At the option of such purchaser, to be stated in his offer, the price to be paid shall be that stated in the disapproved contract to sell or shall be the fair market value determined by arbitration in accordance with the then existing rules of the American Arbitration Association, except that the arbitrators shall be two appraisers appointed by the American Arbitration Association who shall base their determination upon an average of their appraisals of the apartment; and a judgment of specific performance of the sale upon the award rendered by the arbitrators may be entered in any court of competent jurisdiction. The expense of the arbitration shall be paid by the purchaser. The purchase price shall be paid in cash, and the sale shall be closed within thirty (30) days after the delivery or mailing of such offer to purchase, or within ten days after the determination of the sale price if such is by arbitration, whichever is the later.

(b) If the proposed transaction is a lease, the apartment owner shall be advised of the disapproval in writing, and the lease shall not be made.

(c) If the Association disapproves the acquisition of title by gift, devise, or inheritance, the provisions of subparagraph (a) of this paragraph shall apply (except that the purchase price shall be at fair market value determined by arbitration).

(d) If the Association shall fail to provide a purchaser as required in subparagraphs (a) and (c) of this paragraph, then notwithstanding the disapproval, the sale or ownership, as the case may be, shall be deemed to have been approved, and the Association shall furnish a certificate of approval as provided in Paragraph 16.

18. Mortgage and Acquisition by Mortgagees.

(a) No apartment owner may mortgage his apartment or any interest therein without the approval of the Association, except to a bank, life insurance company, or a federal savings and loan association. The approval of any other mortgagee shall be subject to conditions determined by the Association.

(b) The provisions of Paragraphs 16 and 17 shall not apply to a transfer to or purchase by a bank, life insurance company, or federal savings and loan association which acquires its title as the result of owning a mortgage upon the apartment concerned, whether the title is acquired by deed from the mortgagor or through foreclosure proceedings. Nor shall such provisions apply to a transfer, sale, or lease by a bank, life insurance company, or federal savings and loan association which so acquires its title. Neither shall such provisions require the approval of a purchaser who acquires title to an apartment at a duly advertised public sale with open bidding which is provided by law, such as, but not limited to, execution sale, foreclosure sale, judicial sale, or tax sale.

19. Notice of Lien or Suit.

(a) An apartment owner shall give notice to the Association of every lien upon his apartment, other than for permitted mortgages, taxes, and special assessments, within five days after the attaching of the lien. Failure to comply with this subparagraph will not affect the validity of any judicial sale.

(b) Notice shall be given to the Association of every suitor other proceeding which may affect the title to his apartment within five days after the apartment owner receives knowledge thereof.

20. Compliance and Default.

(a) Each apartment owner shall be governed by and shall comply with the terms of this Declaration, the Articles of Incorporation, Bylaws, and regulations adopted pursuant thereto, and by such documents and regulations as they may be amended from time to time. A default shall entitle the Association or other apartment owners to the relief described in subparagraph (b) of this paragraph in addition to the remedies provided by the Condominium Act.

(b) An apartment owner shall be liable for the expense of any maintenance, repair, or replacement rendered necessary by his act, neglect, or carelessness or by that of any member of his family or his or their guests, employees, agents, or lessees, but only to the extent that such expense is not met by the proceeds of insurance carried by the Association. Such liability shall include any increase in fire insurance rates occasioned by use, misuse, occupancy, or abandonment of an apartment or its appurtenances. In any proceeding arising out of an apartment owner's alleged default, the prevailing party shall be entitled to recover the costs of the proceeding and such reasonable attorneys' fees as may be awarded by the court.

(c) The failure of the Association or any apartment owner to enforce any covenant, restriction, or other provision of the Condominium Act, this Declaration, the Articles of Incorporation, the Bylaws, or the regulations adopted pursuant thereto, shall not constitute a waiver of the right to do so thereafter.

21. Amendments. This Declaration may be amended in the following manner:

(a) Notice of the subject matter of a proposed amendment shall be included in the notice of any meeting at which a proposed amendment is considered.

(b) Either the Board of Directors or the members of the Association may propose a resolution adopting a proposed resolution. Directors and members not present in person or by proxy at the meetings considering the amendment may express their approval in writing, providing such approval is delivered to the Secretary at or prior to the meeting. Except as elsewhere provided, such approvals must be either by (1) not less than _____ percent (_____%) of the entire membership of the Board of Directors and by not less than _____ percent (_____%) of the votes of the entire membership of the Association; or (2) not less than _____ percent (_____%) of the votes of the entire membership of the Association; or (3) until the first election of directors, only by all of the directors, provided the amendment does not increase the number of apartments nor alter the boundaries of the common elements.

(c) No amendment shall discriminate against any apartment owner or against any apartment or class or group of apartments unless the apartment owners so affected shall consent. No amendment shall change any apartment nor the share in the common elements appurtenant to it, nor increase the owner's share of the common expenses, unless the record owner of the apartment and all record owners of liens thereon shall join in the execution of the amendment.

(d) A copy of each amendment shall be certified by the President and Secretary of the Association as having been duly adopted and shall be effective when recorded in the Public Records of _____ [county] County, _____ [state].

22. Termination. The condominium may be terminated in the following manner in addition to the manner provided by the Condominium Act:

(a) If it is determined under Paragraph 13(c) that the apartment building shall not be reconstructed because of major damage, the condominium plan of ownership will be thereby terminated without agreement.

(b) The condominium may be terminated at any time by the written approval of all of the owners of the condominium, and by all record owners of liens thereon. If the proposed termination is submitted to a meeting of the members of the Association, the notice of which meeting gives notice of the proposed termination, and if the approval of the owners of not less than _____ percent (_____%) of the common elements, and of the record owners of liens upon the same _____ percent (_____%) of the common elements, are obtained not later than thirty (30) days from the date of such meeting, then the approving owners shall have an option to buy all of the apartments of the other owners during the period ending on the 60th day from the date of such meeting.

(c) The option described in subparagraph (b) of this paragraph shall be exercised by delivery or mailing by registered mail to each of the record owners of the apartments to be purchased of an offer to purchase signed by the record owners of apartments who will participate in the purchase. Such offer shall indicate which apartments will be purchased by each participating owner and shall offer to purchase all of the apartments owned by owners not approving the termination, but the offer shall effect a separate contract between each seller and his purchaser.

(d) The sale price for each apartment shall be the fair market value determined by agreement between the seller and purchaser within thirty (30) days from the delivery or mailing of such offer, and in the absence of agreement by arbitration in accordance with the then existing rules of the American Arbitration Association, except that the arbitrators shall be two appraisers appointed by the American Arbitration Association who shall base their determination upon an average of their appraisals of the apartment; and a judgment of specific performance of the sale upon the award rendered by the arbitrators may be entered in any court of competent jurisdiction. The expense of the arbitration shall be paid by the purchaser. The purchase price shall be paid in cash, and the sale shall be closed within ten days following the determination of the sale price.

(e) The termination of the condominium shall be evidenced by a certificate of the Association executed by the President and Secretary certifying as to facts effecting the termination, which certificate shall become effective upon being recorded in the public records of _____ [county] County, _____ [state].

(f) After termination of the condominium the apartment owners shall own the condominium property and all assets of the Association as tenants in common in undivided shares, and their respective mortgagees and lienors shall have mortgages and liens upon the respective undivided shares of the apartment owners. Such undivided shares of the apartment owners shall be the same as the undivided shares in the common elements appurtenant to the owners' apartments prior to the termination.

23. Severability. The invalidity in whole or in part of any covenant or restriction, or any section, subsection, sentence, clause, phrase, or word, or other provision of this Declaration and the Articles of Incorporation, Bylaws, and regulations of the Association shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions thereof.

In witness whereof the Developer has executed this Declaration the day and year first above written.

FORM 20.66 Bylaws of condominium owners' association

COMMENT

To a great extent, the contents of the bylaws will depend upon what has been included in the declaration, since many essentials of condominium operation may be provided for in either instrument. In many cases, the bylaws will be attached as an exhibit to the declarations when they are filed.

Condominium statutes generally require that various matters be set forth in the bylaws. In general, these include matters relating to the organization of the owners' association, the meetings of members, the election of a board of directors, the election of officers, the procedure for collecting assessments against unit owners, the percentage of unit owners required to make decisions, and the procedure for amending the bylaws. Other subjects not required by statute to be included in the bylaws, or in the declaration of condominium, may be in the bylaws if they have not been covered in the declaration.

In drafting the documents for this condominium, the decision was made to treat in the declaration many of the problems which could be covered in either instrument. For example, the declaration deals with limitations on the transfer of a unit, limitations on the use of the premises, responsibility for maintenance of the property, and responsibility for reconstruction after damage. However, the bylaws do cover some matters with respect to the maintenance and operation of the condominium, in addition to the matters required to be included by statute. Thus, the bylaws prescribe certain accounting and budgetary practices, including the establishment of reserves for current operating expenses, for maintenance, and for replacement of improvements. With respect to the annual budget prepared by the board of directors, the bylaws specify certain limitations which cannot be exceeded without approval of the owners. The bylaws also allocate to the owners the voting rights to be exercised at meetings of the association.
