

1 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Publication Information

1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation Author(s)

Author(s)

Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation Volume 1

CHAPTERS 1-17

Causes of Action

Remedies

Existence & Validity

Charles Crompton Latham & Watkins LLP

Dana J. Dunwoody Sheppard Mullin Richter & Hampton

Honorable Jon S. Tigar Judge of the Alameda County Superior Court

For easy access to this publication online, see <http://www.lexisnexus.com/MBPracticeGuide/CA>

2 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Publication Information

1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation Questions?

Questions?

Technical Questions?

Phone: (800) 223-5297
Fax: (800) 533-1645 or (518) 487-3191
E-Mail: technical.support@lexisnexis.com
Visit Our Web Site: <http://www.lexis.com>

Editorial Questions?

For questions about the Editorial Content appearing in these volumes or reprint permission, please call: Civil_Rights
Paul Getchell, J.D. Paul.F.Getchell@lexisnexis.com at 1-800-424-0651 ext. 3234
James T. Hardin, J.D. cal.custquest@bender.com at 1-800-424-0651 ext. 3339
For assistance with replacement pages, shipments, billing or other customer service matters, please call:
Customer Services Department at (800) 833-9844
Outside the United States and Canada, please call (518) 487-3000
Fax Number (518) 487-3584
Customer Service Website <http://www.lexisnexis.com/custserv/>
For information on other Matthew Bender publications, please call
Your account manager or (800) 223-1940
Outside the United States and Canada, please call (518) 487-3000

3 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Publication Information

1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation Cite As

Cite As

Cite this publication as:

Crompton et al., Matthew Bender (R) Practice Guide: Cal. Contract Litigation, § ____ (year)

4 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Publication Information

1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation Copyright

Copyright

This publication is designed to provide accurate and authoritative information in regard to the subject matter covered. It is sold with the understanding that the publisher is not engaged in rendering legal, accounting, or other professional services. If legal advice or other expert assistance is required, the services of a competent professional should be sought.

LexisNexis and the Knowledge Burst logo are registered trademarks and Michie is a trademark of Reed Elsevier Properties Inc., used under license. Matthew Bender and the Matthew Bender Flame Design are registered trademarks of Matthew Bender Properties Inc.

Copyright © 2010 Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.
All Rights Reserved.

No copyright is claimed in the text of statutes, regulations, and excerpts from court opinions quoted within this work. Permission to copy material exceeding fair use, 17 U.S.C. § 107, may be licensed for a fee of 25cent(s) per page per copy from the Copyright Clearance Center, 222 Rosewood Drive, Danvers, Mass. 01923, telephone (978) 750-8400. ISBN 978-0-8205-5871-4

5 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Publication Information

1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation Editorial Consultants

Editorial Consultants

Charles Crompton

Charles Crompton is a Litigation Partner in Latham & Watkins' San Francisco Office and a member of the firm's Intellectual Property and Technology Practice Group, as well as the firm's Antitrust and Competition Group.

Mr. Crompton has handled intellectual property cases involving patent, trademark, copyright claims. He has also handled a number of antitrust cases. In fact, many of Mr. Crompton's most challenging and noteworthy cases involve the balance--or the conflict, some would say--between intellectual property rights on the one hand and the limits that the antitrust laws place on the assertion of those rights on the other. In 2004, Mr. Crompton was on the trial team that represented Oracle Corporation in its victory over the U.S. Department of Justice's antitrust challenge to Oracle's acquisition of PeopleSoft.

Outside the courtroom, Mr. Crompton speaks and writes about his areas of experience. From 1999-2000, he was the Chair of the Antitrust and Unfair Competition Law Section of the California State Bar. He has lectured on trademark law for the Practising Law Institute, computer law for Law Seminars International, antitrust law for the State Bar of California, and patent law for the University of California at Berkeley's Boalt Hall. In addition, Mr. Crompton has received state and local awards for his pro bono work on behalf of indigent individuals and non-profit institutions.

Mr. Crompton received his B.A. from Columbia College in 1985 and his J.D. from Columbia Law School in 1988. From 1988-1989, he served as Judicial Clerk to the Honorable Jane R. Roth, United States District Court for the District of Delaware. (Judge Roth now sits on the United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit.)

Dana J. Dunwoody

Dana J. Dunwoody is a partner in the San Diego office of Sheppard Mullin Richter & Hampton's Business Trial Practice Group. Mr. Dunwoody's general business litigation practice emphasizes disputes concerning hotels, motels and resorts, real property, and complex contract, corporate, and partnership disputes. He has also tried and arbitrated several employment cases for employers and lender liability matters for banks. Mr. Dunwoody is a member of the International Society of Hospitality Consultants (ISHC).

Mr. Dunwoody is the former Chair of the Executive Committee (1998-1999) of the then 12,000 member Litigation Section of the California State Bar. From 1990 to 1994 he served as the Editor-In-Chief of Cal. Lit. News, the Litigation Section's newsletter. Mr. Dunwoody also served as a Board member of the Association of Business Trial Lawyers of San Diego. Mr. Dunwoody is a frequent lecturer and panelist in continuing education programs sponsored by the California Continuing Education of the Bar (CEB), the Association of Business Trial Lawyers (ABTL), the National Institute of Trial Advocacy (NITA) and other organizations, where he has taught classes on trial and deposition techniques and strategies.

Mr. Dunwoody has served as a Consulting Editor for CEB's "Action Guide" series. He co-authored a chapter on Alternative Dispute Resolution, Mediation and Arbitration of hospitality disputes in "Hotel Investments: Issues & Perspectives"--4th Edition. He has edited portions of CEB's "Effective Use of ADR in California," and has written numerous other articles on legal and hotel-related topics.

Prior to joining Sheppard Mullin, Mr. Dunwoody practiced for 15 years as a member of Mazzarella, Dunwoody & Caldarelli LLP, in San Diego, a boutique trial firm he founded. Prior to that, Mr. Dunwoody was associated with the San Diego office of Allen, Matkins, Leck, Gamble & Mallory, San Diego's Luce, Forward, Hamilton & Scripps, and Los Angeles's Cox, Castle & Nicholson. Mr. Dunwoody is a former Judicial Extern for the Honorable Laughlin E. Waters of the United States District Court for the Central District of California. He received his Juris Doctor degree in 1985 from Boalt Hall School of Law at the University of California, Berkeley, where he served as an Associate Editor for the Industrial Relations Law Journal. Mr. Dunwoody received his Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of California, San Diego, with High Honors in Economics.

Judge Jon S. Tigar

Judge Jon S. Tigar was appointed to the Alameda County Superior Court by Governor Davis in December 2001. Prior to assuming the bench, Judge Tigar was a partner in the law firm of Keker & Van Nest, where he specialized in complex commercial litigation. He was also Co-Chair of that firm's Pro Bono Committee, and in 2001 he received the Wiley M. Manuel Award for Pro Bono Legal Services from the State Bar of California. He has also served as a trial lawyer in the San Francisco Public Defender's Office, and as a litigator in the San Francisco office of Morrison & Foerster. He clerked for the late Honorable Robert S. Vance of the Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals in Birmingham, Alabama.

Judge Tigar graduated from the Boalt Hall School of Law, where he was a member of Order of the Coif and an Articles Editor of the California Law Review. He also has a Bachelor's Degree in English and Economics from Williams College.

Judge Tigar is active in several community and professional organizations, including the American Bar Association and the Center for Judicial Education and Research. In 2003, he was elected to the American Law Institute. He has lectured frequently both as a lawyer and as a judge, on topics including the basics of trial practice, pre-trial discovery, evidence, ethics, internal investigations, family law, and the California False Claims Act.

Judge Tigar currently sits as a Civil Trial Judge.

6 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Publication Information

1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation Publisher's Editorial Staff

Publisher's Editorial Staff

Mark H. Wasserman, J.D.

Senior Director, Content Development

Paul F. Getchell, J.D.

Coordinating Editor

James T. Hardin, J.D.

Valri Nesbit, J.D.

Monty Wade Sullivan, J.D.

Andrew D. Watry, J.D.

Serena Wellen, J.D.

Practice Area Editors

Jeanne Fogler

Editor

Claudia Gurevich

Manager of Content Operations

Nehemias H. Salinas

Content Operations Analyst

Pat Healy

Index Editor

7 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Publication Information

1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation Contributing Authors

Contributing Authors

Hannah Bentley, Esq.

Beryl Bertucio, Esq.

Coulter Boeschen, Esq.

Jill Brown, Esq.

Fran Fedor, Esq.

Jessica Grossman, Esq.

Laura Hagan, Esq.

Dennis Helmer, Esq.

Fiona Kaufman, Esq.

Deborah Mack, Esq.

Valerie Schulthies, Esq.

Jennifer Siegel, Esq.

Jennifer Stoecklein, Esq.

Brian Vaughn, Esq.

Linda Walliman, Esq.

James Wright, Esq.

Teresa L. Zuber, Esq.

8 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Publication Information

1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation Abbreviations

Abbreviations

United States Constitution and Statutory Sources

US Const United States Constitution

USC United States Code

USC app United States Code Appendices

IRC United States Code, Title 26 California Constitution and Statutory Sources

Cal Const California Constitution

B&P Code Business and Professions Code

CC Civil Code

CCP Code of Civil Procedure

Com Code Commercial Code

Corp Code Corporations Code

Ed Code Education Code

Elec Code Elections Code

Evid Code Evidence Code

Fam Code Family Code

Fin Code Financial Code

F&G Code Fish and Game Code

F&A Code Food and Agriculture Code

Gov Code Government Code

H&N Code Harbors and Navigation Code

H&S Code Health and Safety Code

Ins Code Insurance Code

Lab Code Labor Code

M&V Code Military and Veterans Code

Pen Code Penal Code

Prob Code Probate Code

PC Code Public Contract Code

PR Code Public Resources Code

PU Code Public Utilities Code

R&T Code Revenue and Taxation Code

S&H Code Streets and Highways Code

UI Code Unemployment Insurance Code

Veh Code Vehicle Code

Water Code Water Code

W&I Code Welfare and Institutions Code

Cal Stat California Statutes California and Federal Regulations

CCR California Regulations

CFR Code of Federal Regulations

Fed Reg Federal Register California Attorney General Opinions

Ops Cal Atty Gen Opinions of California Attorney General Case Law

US United States Supreme Court Reports

S Ct Supreme Court Reporter

L Ed Lawyer's Edition

L Ed2d Lawyer's Edition, Second Series

F Federal Reporter

F2d Federal Reporter, Second Series

F3d Federal Reporter, Third Series

F Supp Federal Supplement

F Supp2d Federal Supplement, Second Series

FRD Federal Rules Decisions

C California Reports

C2d California Reports, Second Series

C3d California Reports, Third Series

C4th California Reports, Fourth Series

CA California Appellate Reports

CA2d California Appellate Reports, Second Series

CA3d California Appellate Reports, Third Series

CA4th California Appellate Reports, Fourth Series

CA Supp California Appellate Reports, Supplement

CA2d Supp California Appellate Reports, Second Series, Supplement

CA3d Supp California Appellate Reports, Third Series, Supplement

CA4th Supp California Appellate Reports, Fourth Series, Supplement

CR California Reporter

CR2d California Reporter, Second Series

P Pacific Reporter

P2d Pacific Reporter, Second Series

P3d Pacific Reporter, Third Series Federal Rules

Fed R Civ P Rules of Civil Procedure

Fed R Civ P Appendix of Forms Rules of Civil Procedure, Forms Appendix

Fed R App P Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure

9th Cir R Circuit Rules

9th Cir R Appendix of Forms Circuit Rules, Forms Appendix

Sup Ct R Supreme Court Rules

Multidistrict R Multidistrict Rules

Fed R Evid Rules of Evidence

Fed R Bankr P Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure

Fed R Crim P Rules of Criminal Procedure Central District abbreviations

CD Cal Civ LR Local Rules

CD Cal Local Civil Appendix Civil Appendices

CD Cal Mag LR Magistrate Judge Rules

CD Cal Gen Order General Orders Eastern District abbreviations

ED Cal Gen LR General Rules

ED Cal Civ LR Civil Rules

ED Cal Mag LR Magistrate Judge Rules

ED Cal Automated Case Assignment Plan Automated Case Assignment Plan

ED Cal Gen Order General Orders Northern District abbreviations

ND Cal Civ LR Local Rules

ND Cal ADR LR Local Rules for Alternative Dispute Resolution

ND Cal Appendix Appendixes of Sample Forms

NC Cal Gen Order General Orders Southern District abbreviations

SD Cal Civ LR Local Rules

SD Cal Gen Order General Orders California State Court Rules

Cal Rules Ct California Rules of Court

Cal Rules Prof Conduct California Rules of Professional Conduct Miscellaneous

US Code Cong & Admin News Congressional and Administrative News

UST United States Treaties

9 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

What's New

1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation Scope

Scope

HIGHLIGHTS

Release 12 October 2010

2010 Midyear Update for Recent Judicial Decisions

The entire publication has been updated for recent California and federal judicial decisions. For a more detailed summary of the important changes incorporated into the publication in this release, see below.

This release contains the 2010 midyear update for recent California and federal decisions that have been compiled or become final since the cutoff date for Release 11. These include new decisions dealing with arbitration, unconscionability, and other aspects of contract law, and include the following:

Choice of Law--Class Action Waiver Unconscionable; Forum Selection Clause Unenforceable. In Omstead v. Dell, Inc. (9th Cir 2010) 594 F3d 1081 , the Ninth Circuit held that a choice-of-law provision in a manufacturer's consumer contract was unenforceable because the contract contained a class action waiver that was unconscionable under California law, and California had a materially greater interest than Texas in applying its own law. See Ch. 3, Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions, 3.06[3][c]; Ch. 18, Asserting or Defending Claim That Contract Is Illegal, Contrary to Public Policy, or Unconscionable, 18.18.

Statute of Limitations--Breach Occurred When Idea Was Disclosed. In Benay v. Warner Bros. Entm't, Inc. (9th Cir 2010) 607 F3d 620 , the Ninth Circuit held that a breach of an implied contract not to use a screenplay without paying for it did not occur until the defendant disclosed the idea to a substantial segment of the public, because such disclosure tends to destroy any further marketability of the idea. See Ch. 4, Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action, 4.19[2].

Arbitration--Corporation's Arbitration Agreement Did Not Bind Shareholders; Unconscionable Arbitration Clause Not Severable. In Suh v. Superior Court (2010) 181 CA4th 1504 , the court held that shareholders of a corporation could not be compelled to arbitrate based on an arbitration agreement entered into by the corporation. The court further held that an arbitration clause's absolute prohibition of consequential, punitive, incidental, or special damages in employment-related cases was so egregious and so draconian that the arbitration clause was not severable. See Ch. 5, Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate, 5.19[2], 5.29[4]; Ch. 18, Asserting or Defending Claim That Contract Is Illegal, Contrary to Public Policy, or Unconscionable, 18.16[4][g].

Arbitration--Arbitration Clause Permeated With Unconscionability Is Not Severable. In Lhotka v. Geographic Expeditions, Inc. (2010) 181 CA4th 816, the court held that an arbitration agreement contained in a hiking expedition company's release form was procedurally unconscionable because the company presented its terms as both nonnegotiable and no different than what plaintiffs would find with any other provider. The court further held that the arbitration agreement, which limited plaintiffs' recovery to the amount they paid the company for their trip, required them to arbitrate in a distant forum, and required them to indemnify the company for its costs and attorney fees for defending any claims was permeated with unconscionability and was not severable. See Ch. 5, Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate, 5.29[4]; Ch. 18, Asserting or Defending Claim That Contract Is Illegal, Contrary to Public Policy, or Unconscionable, 18.15[4][b], 18.15[5][a], 18.19.

Arbitration--Arbitration Award Not Reviewable. In Gravillis v. Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage Co. (2010) 182 CA4th 503, the court held that an arbitration provision requiring the arbitrator to apply California law or to render an award in accordance with California law does not, by itself, mandate judicial review of the award on the merits. See Ch. 5, Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate, 5.31C.

Arbitration--Arbitration Award Vacated. In Pearson Dental Supplies, Inc. v. Superior Court (2010) 48 C4th 665, the California Supreme Court held that in a case alleging violations of statutory rights, judicial review of an arbitrator's decision may be justified when granting finality to an arbitrator's decision would be inconsistent with the protection of those rights. The court held that the arbitration award in the case before it should be vacated because the arbitrator's clear legal error caused plaintiff's FEHA claim to be incorrectly deemed time-barred. The court further held that the arbitrator's written decision did not satisfy the third Armendariz requirement because it did not explain, even briefly, the reason for the arbitrator's conclusion that the plaintiff's claim did not benefit from a statutory tolling period. See Ch. 5, Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate, 5.31C; Ch. 18, Asserting or Defending Claim That Contract Is Illegal, Contrary to Public Policy, or Unconscionable, 18.16[3].

Arbitration--Arbitrator Did Not Exceed Powers. In San Francisco Housing Authority v. Service Employees Internat. Union, Local 790 (2010) 182 CA4th 933, the court held that an arbitrator did not exceed her powers by ordering an employer who violated a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) to place an employee in a position that was filled by temporary or term employees; although the MOU did not expressly provide for the arbitrator's remedy, it did not expressly prohibit it. See Ch. 5, Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate, 5.31D.

Damages--Damages Can Be Proved Using Best Available Evidence; Contract Interpretation--Disputed Issue of Interpretation Is Jury Question. In Dillingham-Ray Wilson v. City of Los Angeles (2010) 182 CA4th 1396, the court held that a public works contractor could use engineering estimates to prove its damages for breach of contract if those estimates were the best evidence of damages available. The court further held that given the patent ambiguity of the contract provision at issue and the extrinsic evidence offered by the contractor, the contractor was entitled to have disputed issues of contract interpretation submitted to the jury. See Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions, 7.04[3]; Ch. 21, Asserting a Particular Construction of Contract, 21.04[2][h].

Equitable Remedies--Benefit of Bargain Damages Not Available for Rescission. In Sharabianlou v. Karp (2010) 181 CA4th 1133, the court held that a plaintiff may not recover "benefit of the bargain" damages in a rescission action; such damages are available only in an action for breach of contract. See Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions, 8.14[2], 8.14[7].

Essential Elements--Elements of Claim for Breach of Implied Contract. In Benay v. Warner Bros. Entm't, Inc. (9th Cir 2010) 607 F3d 620, the Ninth Circuit held that an implied contract not to use a screenplay without paying for it exists when (1) a plaintiff submits a screenplay for sale to defendant, (2) the plaintiff conditions the use of the screenplay on payment, (3) the defendant knows or should know of the condition, (4) the defendant voluntarily accepts the screenplay, (5) the defendant actually uses the screenplay, and (6) the screenplay has value. See Ch. 13, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element, 13.04A.

Essential Elements--Buyer's Effort to Obtain Parcel Split Is Consideration for Option Agreement. In Steiner v. Thexton (2010) 48 CA4th 411, the California Supreme Court held that a buyer's effort to obtain a parcel split conferred a benefit on the seller and constituted prejudice suffered by the buyer, was bargained for and induced the seller to grant an option agreement, and therefore was adequate consideration for the agreement. See Ch. 13, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element, 13.40, 13.41.

Essential Elements--Promise to Perform Existing Obligation Is Not Adequate Consideration; Lender's Promise to Postpone Foreclosure Sale Supports Promissory Estoppel. In Garcia v. World Savings, FSB (2010) 183 CA4th 1031, the court held that the borrowers' promise to make monthly loan payments, plus interest and late fees, was not adequate consideration for a lender's promise to postpone a foreclosure sale, because the borrowers promised to do nothing more than they were already legally obligated to do. The court further held that the lender's promise to extend the date of any foreclosure sale so long as the borrowers' new loan closed in the first week of September was sufficiently definite to support promissory estoppel. See Ch. 13, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element, 13.42[6], 13.45[2].

Illegality--No Offset for Unlicensed Work; Party Who Knows Contractor Is Unlicensed Nonetheless Is Entitled to Reimbursement. In Alatraste v. Cesar's Exterior Designs, Inc. (2010) 183 CA4th 656, the court held that a party is entitled to reimbursement for amounts paid to an unlicensed contractor even if the party knew the contractor was unlicensed. See Ch. 18, Asserting or Defending Claim That Contract Is Illegal, Contrary to Public Policy, or Unconscionable, 18.06[2][a].

Unconscionability--Class Arbitration Waiver Not Unconscionable. In Arguelles-Romero v. Superior Court (2010) 184 CA4th 825, a class action against a lender challenging its vehicle repossession practices, the court held that plaintiffs failed to establish that the individual amounts at issue were so small that a class action was the only viable remedy when the amount at issue exceeded $16,000. See Ch. 18, Asserting or Defending Claim That Contract Is Illegal, Contrary to Public Policy, or Unconscionable, 18.18.

Illegality--Lawful Parts of Agreement Can Be Severed; Quantum Meruit Recovery Available for Lawful Services. In MKB Management, Inc. v. Melikian (2010) 184 CA4th 796, an action brought to recover compensation under a property management agreement, the trial court erred in concluding that as a matter of law the lawful parts of the agreement could not be severed from the unlawful portions. Although a real estate broker's license (which the property management company did not have) was required for some of the activities covered by the agreement, it was not required for other management duties such as causing repairs to be made, decorating, and general maintenance. The court further held that the property management company broker could bring a claim in quantum meruit for services that did not require a real estate broker license. See Ch. 18, Asserting or Defending Claim That Contract Is Illegal, Contrary to Public Policy, or Unconscionable, 18.22[2], 18.23[3].

10 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

How To Use lexis.com (R) With This Publication

1- MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation .syn

Synopsis to Chapter : How To Use lexis.com (R) With This Publication

HowTo.01 Finding This Publication and Other Sources on lexis.com.

- [1] Contact LexisNexis.
- [2] Using Content Online at lexis.com.
- [3] Selecting a Source on lexis.com.

HowTo.02 Authority and Sources Referenced in This Publication

- [1] Using lexis.com Resources to Update Cases.
- [2] California Case Databases.
- [3] Hypertext Links.
- [4] Finding Related Sources and Suggested Searches.
- [5] Search by Topic Links to Related Cases and Analytical Materials.

HowTo.03 Formulating a Search Query on lexis.com.

- [1] Frame Your Search.
- [2] Develop Your Search Strategy.
- [3] Narrow Your Search.
- [4] Find More Authorities Like This.
- [5] Keep Current With Alerts.

HowTo.04 Shepardize to Validate Your Results and As a Research Tool.

11 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

How To Use lexis.com (R) With This Publication

1- MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation HowTo.01

HowTo.01 Finding This Publication and Other Sources on lexis.com.

[1] Contact LexisNexis.

New customers can contact a LexisNexis Account Representative at <http://www.lexisnexis.com/trial/contactrepNALM.asp> or by calling (800) 227-4908.

Current subscribers can reach LexisNexis Customer Support 24/7/365 at 800-227-4908 or can contact their Account Representative.

[2] Using Content Online at lexis.com.

Online subscribers have access to the Total Research System at lexis.com. When searching at lexis.com tabs lead users to Legal Sources, Public Records, and News and Business Sources. Additional tabs, such as My Sources and California, can be readily created by the user through the Add/Edit Tabs link directly above the first tab on the left. Sources preceded by a dollar sign and/or an "interrupt" message indicates content outside a subscription plan. These sources may be accessed when available under a customer's alternate transactional pricing plan.

A searchable Directory of Online Sources can be viewed without an ID at <http://web.nexis.com/sources/>.

Additionally, a task-based web page is available for this publication at <http://www.lexisnexis.com/mbpracticeguide/CA/>.

[3] Selecting a Source on lexis.com.

Use Source Searches to select the source you wish to search. For example, on the Legal tab see the States Legal -- US list and follow this jurisdictional path:

California > Search Analysis & CLE Materials > Contracts > Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation.

Content can also be accessed from topical paths related to the publication, e.g., Legal tab > Area of Law -- By Topic > Contracts > Search Analysis & CLE Materials > Matthew Bender[(R)] > Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide:

California Contract Litigation.

Use the Find a Source tab to locate available paths and sources by entering an exact word or phrase from the source name, or if known, by entering the source library and file. Users may consult the Source Description link following each source (click on the "i" symbol), LexisNexis Customer Support, or the Directory of Online Sources to get information regarding sources, search strategy, or coverage. The standard search price for each source is contained at the bottom of the Source Description page for that source.

12 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

How To Use lexis.com (R) With This Publication

1- MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation HowTo.02

HowTo.02 Authority and Sources Referenced in This Publication

[1] Using lexis.com Resources to Update Cases.

The Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide series is updated twice a year and cites the strongest, most recent cases available as of its last update. New cases are added to lexis.com daily, and can be combined with additional cases online to update, validate and research fact patterns, issues and points of law.

[2] California Case Databases.

Numerous sources may assist research needs. They include:

CA Federal & State Cases, Combined (CAL;CAMEGA)

CA Cases, Administrative Decisions & Attorney General Opinions, Combined (CAL;CACASE)

CA Published Cases, Combined (CAL;CACTSP)

CA State Cases, Combined (CAL;CACTS) (includes unpublished as well as published cases)

CA Supreme Court Cases from 1850 (CAL;CAL)

CA Courts of Appeal Cases from 1905 (CAL;APP)

Published CA Court of Appeal Cases from 1905 (CAL;APP-P)

Unpublished CA Court of Appeal Cases from 1966 (CAL;APP-U) n1

Although unpublished cases are not citable in California courts, users may wish to search the CA State Cases, Combined to get ideas about possible legal arguments. That source would also be preferable to CA Published Cases, Combined if a user is searching for any appellate cases in which a party, attorney, or judge has been involved.

Case law from all 50 states, the Virgin Islands, Guam, Northern Marianas Islands, Washington D.C. federal courts, state and federal agencies are also available on lexis.com through the Legal tab> Cases -- U.S.

[3] Hypertext Links.

Click the hypertext link to jump to the corresponding cases, codes, rules and other publications online.

[4] Finding Related Sources and Suggested Searches.

This publication highlights additional online sources to assist your research tasks, both legal and factual, related to unfair competition and business torts. Thousands of additional sources are also available on lexis.com.

[5] Search by Topic Links to Related Cases and Analytical Materials.

Search by Topic or Headnote is a finding tool for legal data based on areas of law and related legal topics. It can help target your legal issue, identify appropriate sources, and formulate your search request.

This publication is tied to Search by Topic. From the sections of this publication you can link in to Search by Topic to search the topic related to the section you are looking at in this publication.

In Search by Topic, you can use the search box to search across the available cases, statutes, and analysis on the topic, or to select specific primary or secondary sources that you wish to search. You can also use Search by Topic as a current awareness case law update device by restricting the date to limit your searches to a specific time period (e.g., "Previous 6 Months").

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote 1. Unpublished CA Court of Appeal Cases from 1966 covers selected unpublished, depublished and partially published opinions from August 1966 through current, and full coverage of Rule 977 unpublished opinions from October 2001. Although local rules generally preclude citation to unpublished opinions except in limited circumstances, this database may be useful to research similar fact patterns, case information, rulings, factual discovery, strategy and disposition.

13 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

How To Use lexis.com (R) With This Publication

1- MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation HowTo.03

HowTo.03 Formulating a Search Query on lexis.com.

[1] Frame Your Search.

After you have selected your source, you can use available tables of contents or enter search terms to retrieve relevant documents. This sample search form provides tips about structuring your search, search connectors, segment searching and date restrictions:

Click here to view image.

[2] Develop Your Search Strategy.

Identify relevant terms, their variations, synonyms, necessity, proximity, and relationship to your research issue. Your first search should be structured broadly, then results can be narrowed without additional search transactions through Focus[™] by adding terms to reduce your search results set.

[3] Narrow Your Search.

Additional parameters, like Restrict by Segment (field) and Restrict by Date are available. Available Segments are displayed in a drop down box. For example, the NAME segment of a case contains the names of the parties to the action. To research your adversary's litigation history, you can do a NAME segment search in cases and jury verdicts. You can Add the segment restriction, or type this restriction in your search query as: name (Party Name). Targeted results can also be obtained by restricting the search results to documents that have multiple references to a term or phrase by using ATLEAST#. For example, including atleast5 (waiver) as a search term will restrict your search results to documents that reference the phrase "waiver" a minimum of five times.

[4] Find More Authorities Like This.

When you find cases or other documents that are helpful (or hurtful) and you want (or need) to find whether there are other similar materials, you can click the More Like This link at the top of the page. More Like This extracts the relevant search terms for the document you are viewing and gives you the option to use these terms to locate additional materials in the same or a different database. Cases have an additional benefit using More Like This to extract citations from an on point case and use similar citation patterns to locate other cases, treatises or law reviews. Similarly, the

More Like Selected Text link at the top of documents can be used to target specific paragraphs or language you highlight in an on-point document to locate similar materials. In Case law, More Like This Headnote creates a virtual case law digest online based on the language, law and topic discussed in headnotes.

[5] Keep Current With Alerts.

To keep your search results current, update your search results by saving an Alert. From your online search results screen, select Save as Alert link at the top of the screen. You will be given options for how often the search should be run (including daily or weekly) and for how to have the results delivered or a notification sent to you by email.

14 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

How To Use lexis.com (R) With This Publication

1- MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation HowTo.04

HowTo.04 Shepardize to Validate Your Results and As a Research Tool.

Shepardize the cases that you intend to cite to be sure that they are still good law. Additionally, Shepard's can be used as a case finding and research tool to lead you to other cases, statutes, treatises and authority on a given issue. You can FOCUS within a Shepard's report on particular terms or phrases. Additionally, the Custom Restrictions link at the top of the Shepard's report allows you to narrow results by jurisdiction, date and/or headnote restriction. Use the Shepard's Signals to help you analyze validity and subsequent treatment of the case. Shepard's Brief Suite is a free software program to automate Shepardizing your brief or cases, and streamlines the cite checking process for briefs, motions, research, and prior to hearings.

15 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.syn

§ 1.syn Synopsis to Chapter 1: Determining the Applicable Law

1.01 Scope.

1.02 Objective and Strategy.

1.02[1] Objective.

1.02[2] Strategy.

1.03 CHECKLIST: Determining Which Jurisdiction's Law Applies.

1.04 Options and Strategies.

1.04[1] Contract May Provide for Application of Different Law.

1.04[1][a] California Follows Restatement (Second) of Conflict of Laws Approach.

1.04[1][b] Choice-of-Law Contract Provision Can Determine Entire Outcome.

1.04[2] Choice-of-Law Issue May Arise If Contract Does Not Contain Provision.

1.04[2][a] "True Conflict" Will Trigger Governmental Interest Analysis in California Courts.

1.04[2][b] Viability of Class Action Cases May Depend on Choice-of-Law Rulings on Class Certification.

1.04[2][c] Interpretation of Insurance Policies Is Function of Forum's Substantive Law.

1.04[2][d] Availability of Defenses May Depend on Choice of Law.

1.05 Trial Court Determines Choice of Law Only If True Conflict Exists.

1.05[1] Trial Court Must First Decide Whether True Conflict Exists.

1.05[2] California Law May Apply If Issue Remains Undecided in Other Jurisdiction.

1.06 Analysis Depends on Whether Contract Contains Choice-of-Law Provision.

1.07 If Contract Has No Enforceable Choice-of-Law Provision, Court Determines Applicable Forum Law.

1.07[1] Party Proposing Foreign Law Has Burden of Identifying Rule and Showing It Applies.

1.07[2] Choice of Which Foreign Law to Apply Depends on Facts of Case.

1.07[2][a] General Rule Interprets Contract Using Law of Place of Performance or Place Contract Was Made.

1.07[2][b] Using Law of Place of Performance.

1.07[2][c] Using Law of Place Where Contract Is "Made."

1.08 In California, Parties' Chosen Law Will Apply If There Is Reasonable Basis and If Applying It Would Not Contravene California Public Policy.

1.08[1] California Follows Restatement Choice-of-Law Test.

1.08[1][a] Direct or Indirect Designation of Choice of Law.

1.08[1][b] California Court Will First Determine Whether Chosen Jurisdiction Has Substantial Relationship to Parties or Transaction.

1.08[1][c] Court Will Consider Whether Reasonable Basis Exists for Parties' Choice of Law.

1.08[1][d] Court Will Determine Whether Chosen State's Law Is Contrary to Fundamental California Policy and Whether California Has Materially Greater Interest.

1.08[2] California Courts Use Three-Step Analysis to Determine Choice of Law Based on Relative Governmental Interests of Affected States.

1.08[2][a] Relative Governmental Interests Are Weighed.

1.08[2][b] First Step--Proponent of Foreign Law Must Identify Applicable Law and Show It Is Materially Different From California Law.

1.08[2][c] Second Step--If Laws Are Materially Different, Court Must Determine Interest of Each State in Application of Its Law.

1.08[2][d] Third Step--If Laws Differ and If Each State Has an Interest, Court Must Select Law That Would Cause Lesser Impairment.

1.08[3] If Choice-of-Law Provision Is Enforceable, It May Govern All Claims Arising From Contract.

1.09 For Certain High-Dollar Contracts, Parties May Choose to Apply California Law Even If There Is No Reasonable Basis for Choice.

1.09[1] Parties May Provide That Contracts Involving $250,000 or More Be Governed by California Law.

1.09[2] Contracts Involving $1 Million or More.

1.10 Under UCC, Parties to Multi-State Transaction May Choose Law With Reasonable Relationship to Contract.

1.10[1] General Rule Allows Parties to Agree on Law of Any State With Reasonable Relationship to Contract.

1.10[2] Whether Commercial Code "Reasonable Relation" Test Differs From Restatement's "Substantial Relationship" Test Is Unresolved.

1.11 Invalid Contracts for Transfer of Interests in Land May Be Subject to Unique Choice-of-Law Rule.

1.12 Choice-of-Law Provision May Bind Closely Related Third Parties.

1.13 Choice-of-Law Provision Is Significant If Jurisdiction Is Disputed Issue.

1.14 CHECKLIST: Challenging Contractual Choice-of-Law Provision.

1.15 Application of Contractual Choice-of-Law Provision to Cause of Action Must Be Determined.

1.16 Grounds for Challenging Contractual Choice-of-Law Provision Must Be Shown.

1.17 Enforceability of Choice-of-Law Provision Involves Issues of Fact That Require Evidentiary Hearing.

1.18 Procedural Context of Challenge Depends on Circumstances of Case.

1.18[1] Issue May Arise on Motion for Summary Adjudication or Summary Judgment.

1.18[2] Issue May Arise on Demurrer.

1.18[3] Issue May Be Raised by Affirmative Defense in Answer.

1.18[4] Issue May Arise in Action for Declaratory Relief.

1.19 CHECKLIST: Determining Whether Federal or State Law Applies.

1.20 Federal Law Applies to Federal Claims.

1.21 Federal Law May Preempt State Law If Conflict Exists.

1.22 California Substantive Law Applies in Diversity Case Brought in Federal District Court in California.

1.23 Substantive Law of Federal Enclave Applies in Case Brought in California State Court.

1.24 CHECKLIST: Determining Whether UCC or Common Law Applies.

1.25 Commercial Code Applies to Broad Spectrum of Commercial Agreements.

1.26 Contracts for Sale of Goods Are Covered by Commercial Code Article 2.

1.26[1] Article 2 Governs Most Sales Contracts.

1.26[2] Article 2 Contracts Only Involve "Goods" As Defined in Commercial Code.

1.26[3] Security Transactions and Real Property Leases Are Excluded From Article 2.

1.27 Contracts Concerning Investment Securities Are Covered by Commercial Code Article 8.

1.27[1] Article 8 Defines "Investment Securities."

1.27[2] Article 8 Has Its Own Choice-of-Law Rule.

1.27[2][a] Law of Issuer's Jurisdiction, Securities Intermediary's Jurisdiction, or Security's Location Applies.

1.27[2][b] Disputes Governed by Law of Issuer's Jurisdiction.

1.27[2][c] Disputes Governed by Law of Securities Intermediary's Jurisdiction.

1.28 Contracts Involving Secured Transactions Are Governed by Commercial Code Article 9.

1.28[1] Overview of Article 9 Coverage.

1.28[2] In Event of Conflict, Other Law Prevails Over Article 9.

1.29 Contracts Involving Personal Property Leases Are Governed by Commercial Code Article 10.

1.29[1] Overview of Article 10 Coverage.

1.29[2] In Event of Conflict, Other Law Prevails Over Article 10.

1.30 CHECKLIST: Determining Whether Other Statutes Govern Contract.

1.31 Contracts Are Often Governed by Specific Statutes.

1.32 Counsel Must Determine Whether Specific California Statutes Govern Contract.

1.33 If Contract Was Entered Into by Consumer, California Consumer Protection Statutes Apply.

1.33[1] Statutes Apply to Persons Meeting Applicable Definition of "Consumer."

1.33[2] Consumers Legal Remedies Act Applies to Sale or Lease of Consumer Goods or Services.

1.33[3] Consumer Contract Awareness Act of 1990 Applies to Consumer Contracts and Contract Guaranties.

1.34 Other Consumer and Commercial Statutes Apply to Specific Classes of Contracts.

1.35 If Contract Was Entered Into by Public Entity, California Statutes Governing Such Contracts May Control.

16 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law

I. STRATEGY

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.01

1.01 Scope.

This chapter covers:

- Objective and strategy for determining which jurisdiction's law applies to a contract [see 1.02].
- Determining choice of law [see 1.03 -1.13], including whether a court must decide the issue [see 1.05]; considerations if the contract does not contain a choice-of-law provision [see 1.07] and, if it does [see 1.08], special rules governing high-dollar contracts [see 1.09] and contracts governed by the UCC [see 1.10]; and the effect of a choice-of-law provision on a third party [see 1.12].
- Challenging a contractual choice-of-law provision [see 1.14 -1.18], including deciding whether the provision applies to the dispute [see 1.15]; grounds for a challenge [see 1.16]; and the manner of challenge [see 1.18].
- Determining whether federal or state law applies to a contract [see 1.19 -1.23].
- Determining whether the UCC applies to a contract [see 1.24 -1.29].
- Determining whether other California statutes apply to a contract [see 1.30 -1.35], including statutes governing specific commercial contracts [see 1.32], consumer contracts [see 1.33], and contracts entered into by public entities [see 1.35].

Core Statutes:

CC §§ 1549 et seq., 1646.5, 1738 et seq.; CCP § 410.40; Com Code §§ 2101 et seq., 8101 et seq., 9101 et seq., 10101 et seq.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure
Federal & State Interrelationships
Choice of Law
General Overview
Commercial Law (UCC)
General Provisions (Article 1)
Application & Construction
Choice of Law
General Overview

17 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law

I. STRATEGY

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.02

1.02 Objective and Strategy.

1.02[1] Objective. A lawsuit based on a contract may have a significant relationship to more than one state. Each state has its own choice-of-law rules to determine which of the affected states' substantive law should apply in the suit [see Restatement (Second) of Conflict of Laws § 2 (1969)].

It is not uncommon for a written contract to provide that a given state's substantive law will govern the rights and duties created by the contract. The same contract may choose that state as a forum for litigating disputes (although the two provisions are not the same).

Distinguish:

Choice-of-law rules exist to guide the decision as to which state's law should determine the parties' rights and duties; choice-of-law rules do not themselves make such determinations [see Restatement (Second) of Conflict of Laws § 2 cmt a (1969)].

Examples:

- In a California suit by former internet service providers subscribers for wrongful charges after they had terminated their services, the provider contended litigation should proceed in Virginia because of its customer contract, which designated Virginia as a proper forum and provided that Virginia law applied to all disputes. The court did not enforce the choice of law clause because its deprivation of consumer rights contravened an important California public policy [see America Online, Inc. v. Superior Court (2001) 90 CA4th 1, 12-13, 108 CR2d 699] .

- In an action arising from a bank's payment of a customer's check with a forged endorsement, the parties' choice of New York law was enforceable, and, under New York's borrowing statute, California's shorter, one-year statute of limitations applied [Hughes Elecs. Corp. v. Citibank Delaware (2004) 120 CA4th 251, 258 (California policy favored enforcing parties' choice-of-law provisions)].

1.02[2] Strategy. Each party should promptly identify the substantive law that applies to the contract. This determination may affect the validity of the contract itself, as well as any claims or defenses.

The first step is to determine whether the contract contains a choice-of-law provision. If the contract contains a choice-of-law provision, that provision usually will be enforceable if there is a reasonable basis for the choice and enforcing the choice will not violate a fundamental public policy of California. If the contract has no choice-of-law provision, the law of the forum (in this case, California) will apply unless the party seeking to have foreign law apply identifies the law, shows its applicability, and persuades the court that applying it will not contravene a fundamental public policy of California.

Judge's Perspective:

Remember that a choice of law provision must be affirmatively asserted in the litigation, or the court is entitled to use California law in the proceeding--even if the contract specifies otherwise [see Commerce & Indus. Ins. Co. v. Chubb Custom Ins. Co. (1999) 75 CA4th 739, 748 n6, 89 CR2d 415] . Just because the court can do so, however, does not mean that it will. Even in the face of a waiver, the court retains the authority to determine which jurisdiction's law is controlling [Riley v. Fitzgerald (1986) 178 CA3d 871, 875, 223 CR 889] .

A different issue is presented in class certification proceedings. There, the trial court must consider variations in state law, and whether such variations might make it difficult to conduct the litigation fairly and efficiently. Failure to do so is a ground for remand to the trial court to reconsider certification [Washington Mut. Bank, FA v. Superior Court (2001) 24 C4th 906, 926, 103 CR2d 320, 15 P3d 1071] .

Counsel must also look at the parties and subject matter of the contract to determine whether a particular body of law, such as federal admiralty law, or statutory scheme, such as the UCC, applies, and the consequences of that applicability.

Strategic Point:

The applicable law can make all the difference in some cases. For example, California's consumer laws are considered more favorable to plaintiffs than many other states' laws. Therefore, to responsibly evaluate the case, it is important to determine which law applies as soon as possible--before filing suit, if you represent plaintiff.

Detailed Discussion/Forms:

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts (Matthew Bender).

California Legal Forms, Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions (Matthew Bender).

California Points and Authorities, Ch. 50, Contracts (Matthew Bender).

Cross Reference:

For tips on updating case law and expanding your research with additional resources, see How to Use Lexis.com With This Publication at the front of this volume.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure
Federal & State Interrelationships
Choice of Law
General Overview
Civil Procedure
Federal & State Interrelationships
Choice of Law
Significant Relationships
Commercial Law (UCC)
General Provisions (Article 1)
Application & Construction
Choice of Law
General Overview
Contracts Law
Contract Conditions & Provisions
General

Overview

18 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law

II. DETERMINING WHICH JURISDICTION'S LAW APPLIES

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.03

1.03 CHECKLIST: Determining Which Jurisdiction's Law Applies.

- ☐ Determine whether contract contains choice-of-law provision.

Authority:

Washington Mut. Bank, FA v. Superior Court (2001) 24 C4th 906, 915-916, 103 CR2d 320, 15 P3d 1071

Discussion:

See 1.06

- ☐ If contract does not contain choice-of-law provision, determine whether California's or other jurisdiction's law applies:

- ☐ Party asserting foreign law must identify it and show its application.

Authority:

Washington Mut. Bank, FA v. Superior Court (2001) 24 C4th 906, 919, 103 CR2d 320, 15 P3d 1071

Discussion:

See 1.07[1]

- ☐ Consider where contract was made and where performance is designated to occur.

Authority:

CC § 1646; Gamer v. DuPont Glove Forgan, Inc. (1976) 65 CA3d 280, 289, 135 CR 230

Discussion:

See 1.07[2]

☐ If foreign law potentially applies, determine if true conflict exists, so that court is required to decide:

☐ Is there a material difference between the two laws?

☐ Does other jurisdiction arguably have a legitimate interest in seeing its law applied?

☐ If true conflict exists, determine whether parties will agree to apply California law.

Discussion:

See 1.05

☐ Evaluate interests of California and of other jurisdiction in having their respective laws applied to contract, considering:

☐ Place of contracting.

☐ Place of negotiation of contract.

☐ Place of performance.

☐ Location of subject matter of contract.

☐ Domicile, residence, nationality, place(s) of incorporation and place(s) of business of parties.

Authority:

Stonewall Surplus Lines Ins. Co. v. Johnson Controls, Inc. (1993) 14 CA4th 637, 646, 17 CR2d 713

Discussion:

See 1.08[2][c]

☐ If it appears that other jurisdiction(s) would have an interest in applying their local law, determine which jurisdiction's interests would suffer greatest "impairment" if its law is not applied.

Authority:

Travelers Ins. Co. v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1967) 68 C2d 7, 11-12, 64 CR 440, 434 P2d 992 ; Hurtado v. Superior Court (1974) 11 C3d 574, 579-580, 114 CR 106, 522 P2d 666

Discussion:

See 1.08[2][d]

☐ If contract contains choice-of-law provision, determine whether provision is enforceable, considering:

- ☐ Whether chosen jurisdiction has substantial relationship to parties or transaction, or other reasonable basis for choice exists.

Authority:

Nedlloyd Lines B.V. v. Superior Court (1992) 3 C4th 459, 464-466, 11 CR2d 330, 834 P2d 1148 ; Discover Bank v. Superior Court (2005) 36 C4th 148, 173-174 ; Restatement (Second) of Conflict of Laws § 187 (1969)

Discussion:

See 1.08[1][b], [c]

- ☐ Whether law of chosen jurisdiction contravenes fundamental policy of California.

Authority:

Nedlloyd Lines B.V. v. Superior Court (1992) 3 C4th 459, 464-465, 11 CR2d 330, 834 P2d 1148 ; Discover Bank v. Superior Court (2005) 36 C4th 148, 173-174 ; Aral v. Earthlink, Inc. (2005) 134 CA4th 544, 563, 36 CR3d 229

Discussion:

See 1.08[1][d]

- ☐ Whether California has "materially greater interest" than designated jurisdiction in case.

Authority:

Application Group, Inc. v. Hunter Group, Inc. (1998) 61 CA4th 881, 897, 72 CR2d 73, 1998-1 Trade Cas. (CCH) P72076 ; Guardian Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. MD Assocs. (1998) 64 CA4th 309, 323, 75 CR2d 151 ; Discover Bank v. Superior Court (2005) 36 C4th 148, 173-174 ; Discover Bank v. Superior Court (2005) 134 CA4th 886, 894-895, 36 CR3d 456 ; Aral v. Earthlink, Inc. (2005) 134 CA4th 544, 563, 36 CR3d 229

Discussion:

See 1.08[1]

- ☐ Whether contract involves $250,000 or more.

Authority:

CC § 1646.5; CCP § 410.40

Discussion:

See 1.09

- ☐ Whether UCC governs contract involving multi-state transaction.

Authority:

Com Code § 1301

Discussion:

See 1.10

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure
Federal & State Interrelationships
Choice of Law
General Overview
Commercial Law (UCC)
General Provisions (Article 1)
Application & Construction
Choice of Law
General Overview
Contracts Law
Contract Conditions & Provisions
General Overview

19 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law

II. DETERMINING WHICH JURISDICTION'S LAW APPLIES

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.04

1.04 Options and Strategies.

1.04[1] Contract May Provide for Application of Different Law.

1.04[1][a] California Follows Restatement (Second) of Conflict of Laws Approach. The contracting parties may provide for the contract to be governed by specified law. Applying the principles set forth in Restatement (Second) of Conflict of Laws § 187 (1969), California courts will uphold the parties' choice of law if the contract has a substantial relationship to the place whose law is chosen, or there is another reasonable basis for the parties' choice of law, and application of that law will not contravene any strong California public policy [Discover Bank v. Superior Court (2005) 36 C4th 148, 173-174 ; Nedlloyd Lines B.V. v. Superior Court (1992) 3 C4th 459, 464-465, 11 CR2d 330, 834 P2d 1148] . If a contract contains an enforceable choice-of-law provision for resolution of disputes by the "laws" of a foreign jurisdiction, the trial court must enforce all of the applicable laws of that jurisdiction [Hughes Elecs. Corp. v. Citibank Delaware (2004) 120 CA4th 251, 256] .

Cross Reference:

Discussion of enforceability of choice-of-law provisions, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 140.30[3][a] (Matthew Bender).

1.04[1][b] Choice-of-Law Contract Provision Can Determine Entire Outcome. If the contract contains a choice-of-law provision, the trial court must determine the enforceability of that agreement. The choice-of-law determination can have a profound impact on the outcome of the case:

- It can affect the validity of the contract as a whole by determining, for example, the parties' capacity to contract or the legality of the entire contract.
- It can affect the availability of a defense such as the statute of limitations.
- In class actions, it can crucially impact class certification.
- In insurance coverage cases, it can set the rules for interpreting the policy.

Judge's Perspective:

Because choice of law is purely a legal issue, it can be resolved by the trial court early in the litigation. Sometimes one party can obtain a substantial benefit from the application of law from a particular jurisdiction. Examples include punitive damages that might not otherwise be available or a longer statute of limitations. If one party can obtain a significant benefit from the law of a particular jurisdiction, it makes sense to obtain a ruling on that issue as early as possible. At a minimum, an early ruling will eliminate one uncertainty that would otherwise prevent meaningful settlement discussions.

Strategic Point--Choice-of-Law Provision Is Not Unenforceable Merely Because Contract Is One of Adhesion:

California has no public policy against the enforcement of choice-of-law provisions merely because they are contained in contracts of adhesion when they are otherwise appropriate [Washington Mut. Bank, FA v. Superior Court (2001) 24 C4th 906, 917, 103 CR2d 320, 15 P3d 1071 ; see Cal-State Business Products & Services, Inc. v. Ricoh (1993) 12 CA4th 1666, 1679, 16 CR2d 417] . However, enforcement of a choice-of-law clause cannot result in a violation or waiver of a fundamental California policy protecting consumers [see America Online, Inc. v. Superior Court (2001) 90 CA4th 1, 4-5, 108 CR2d 699] .

Search Matthew Bender Contract Materials Group File:

Use lexis.com to search for treatises for discussions of conflict or choice of law:

• Legal > Area of Law--By Topic > Contracts > Search Analysis & CLE Materials > Matthew Bender(R) > Matthew Bender Contract Materials Group File

Sample Search: For general treatise discussion of conflict of law or choice of law try the following search: heading (conflict! OR choice /5 law)

1.04[2] Choice-of-Law Issue May Arise If Contract Does Not Contain Provision.

1.04[2][a] "True Conflict" Will Trigger Governmental Interest Analysis in California Courts. Absent an effective choice-of-law provision, a California court will find a "true conflict" of laws, and conduct a three-step "governmental interest analysis" of the claims [Washington Mut. Bank, FA v. Superior Court (2001) 24 C4th 906, 919, 103 CR2d 320, 15 P3d 1071 ; J.P. Morgan & Co., Inc. v. Superior Court (2003) 113 CA4th 195, 210] .

Cross References:

Discussion of impact on availability of defenses, see 1.04[2][d].

Impact on class actions, see 1.04[2][b].

Impact on interpretation of insurance policies, see 1.04[2][c].

Analysis of governmental interests, see 1.08[2][a].

Enforceability of contract's choice-of-law provision, see 1.17.

1.04[2][b] Viability of Class Action Cases May Depend on Choice-of-Law Rulings on Class Certification.

Resolution of choice-of-law issues is a vital part of the class certification process. If pertinent documents in the case require adjudication of nonresident class members' claims under their home state laws, class proponents have the burden of demonstrating that certification of a nationwide class would be both manageable and warranted by predominantly common legal questions [Washington Mut. Bank, FA v. Superior Court (2001) 24 C4th 906, 915, 103 CR2d 320, 15 P3d 1071] .

If the class certification proponent meets its burden of demonstrating the constitutionally requisite number of significant contacts with California, the burden shifts to the opponent of nationwide certification to demonstrate that foreign law should apply to class claims [Wershba v. Apple Computer, Inc. (2001) 91 CA4th 224, 244, 110 CR2d 145] .

Strategic Point--Subclasses May Be Viable:

If the laws of different states apply, counsel should propose subclasses to make the litigation manageable [see Washington Mut. Bank, FA v. Superior Court (2001) 24 C4th 906, 926, 103 CR2d 320, 15 P3d 1071] .

If the trial court finds the documents' choice-of-law provisions are neither unenforceable nor irrelevant to class claims, the court cannot disregard them merely because their enforcement precludes prosecution of a multi-state class action or results in the exclusion of nonresidents from a California-based class action [Washington Mut. Bank, FA v. Superior Court (2001) 24 C4th 906, 918, 103 CR2d 320, 15 P3d 1071] .

Example:

A home loan company required its borrowers to maintain hazard insurance. Homebuyers sought certification of a nationwide class for an action against the lender for allegedly overcharging for replacement hazard insurance. Each homeowner's deed of trust contained a choice-of-law clause designating federal law and the law of the state where the property was located. The California Supreme Court held that it was error to certify a nationwide class without deciding what law applied to the claims of class members. Homebuyers had the burden of identifying any variations of applicable state law and demonstrating how a trial on the class claims could be conducted fairly and efficiently in light of those variations [Washington Mut. Bank, FA v. Superior Court (2001) 24 C4th 906, 915-921, 103 CR2d 320, 15 P3d 1071] .

Cross Reference:

Discussion of three-step analysis, see 1.08[2].

1.04[2][c] Interpretation of Insurance Policies Is Function of Forum's Substantive Law. The choice-of-law decision can profoundly affect interpretation of insurance policies and allowable coverage.

Examples:

- Although a trucking company and its insurer were both Washington corporations and the trucker's comprehensive liability policy had been issued in Washington, California law applied to interpret the extent of the policy's coverage for losses occurring in California [Shippers Dev. Co. v. General Ins. Co. (1969) 274 CA2d 661, 674, 79 CR 388] .

- A California court applied California, not Wisconsin, law to hold that insurers were not liable to insured for indemnification of exemplary damages [Stonewall Surplus Lines Ins. Co. v. Johnson Controls, Inc. (1993) 14 CA4th 637, 646-649, 17 CR2d 713 (California law prohibits indemnity for punitive damages, but Wisconsin law does not)].

1.04[2][d] Availability of Defenses May Depend on Choice of Law. The choice-of-law determination can affect the availability of a given defense, such as the bar of the statute of limitations, which may be available under the law of one affected state but not others [see, e.g., Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners v. American Med. Int'l, Inc. (1995) 38 CA4th 1532, 1539-1544, 46 CR2d 33 (Delaware limitations period barred California suit for breach of contract); ABF Capital Corp. v. Osley (9th Cir 2005) 414 F3d 1061, 1066 (Application of New York law rendered contractual waiver of limitations period unenforceable and action time-barred)].

Trap:

No fundamental state policy prohibits applying a foreign jurisdiction's statute of limitations to claims brought in California courts; therefore, the shortest limitations period will probably apply [Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners v. American Med. Int'l, Inc. (1995) 38 CA4th 1532, 1548-1549, 46 CR2d 33] . Because California has a substantial interest in preventing the prosecution of stale claims in its courts, its interest in applying its own statute of limitations is strongest when its limitations period is shorter than that of the foreign state; hence, California courts will almost always dismiss untimely claims [see Deutsch v. Turner Corp. (9th Cir 2003) 324 F3d 692, 717] .

Examples:

- Because California permits contractual waivers of the statute of limitations, while New York prohibits such waivers before accrual of the cause of action, application of New York law rendered such a waiver unenforceable and caused the action to be time-barred [ABF Capital Corp. v. Osley (9th Cir 2005) 414 F3d 1061, 1066] .

- A California resident purchased a mobile home for installation in California from a Nevada dealer. The dealer sued to recover possession and obtain a deficiency judgment. The buyer set up violation of the California Rees-Levering Act [CC § 2981 et seq.] as a defense and sought rescission, damages, and attorney's fees. The dealer argued unsuccessfully that Nevada law applied. The trial court properly applied California law because California had a strong interest (and Nevada had no interest) in having its law applied [Dixon Mobile Homes, Inc. v. Walters (1975) 48 CA3d 964, 972-973, 122 CR 202 , disapproved on other grounds by Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 C3d 801, 815 n18, 148 CR 22, 582 P2d 109 (California had strong interest as forum state, buyer's residence, place buyer originated payments, site of mobile home installation, site of real property security for transaction, and site of acts relating to breach)].

Cross References:

Discussion of determining applicable statutes of limitations in contract actions, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions (Matthew Bender); and Restatement (Second) of Conflict of Laws § 142 (1969).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsChoice of LawGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsChoice of LawSignificant RelationshipsCommercial Law (UCC)General Provisions (Article 1)Application & ConstructionChoice of LawGeneral OverviewCommercial Law (UCC)General Provisions (Article 1)Application & ConstructionChoice of LawContractual Choice of LawContracts LawContract Conditions &

ProvisionsGeneral Overview

20 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law
II. DETERMINING WHICH JURISDICTION'S LAW APPLIES

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.05

1.05 Trial Court Determines Choice of Law Only If True Conflict Exists.

1.05[1] Trial Court Must First Decide Whether True Conflict Exists. The court must determine which law applies only if a true conflict exists. There is no true conflict if any of the following apply:

- The law is the same in both jurisdictions [see Hamilton v. Abadjian (1947) 30 C2d 49, 51, 179 P2d 804 ; International Serv. Ins. Co. v. Gonzales (1987) 194 CA3d 110, 116, 239 CR 341 ; Gitano Group v. Kemper Group (1994) 26 CA4th 49, 57, 31 CR2d 271] .
- Both parties accept that California law applies [see Glickman v. Collins (1975) 13 C3d 852, 857, 120 CR 76, 533 P2d 204 ; Wells v. Wells (1946) 74 CA2d 449, 453, 169 P2d 23 ; BII Fin. Co. v. U-States Forwarding Servs. Corp. (2002) 95 CA4th 111, 126, 115 CR2d 312] .
- Only one state has a legitimate interest in the contract [see In re Title U.S.A. Ins. Corp. (1995) 36 CA4th 363, 372, 42 CR2d 498 ; Abogados v. AT&T, Inc. (9th Cir 2000) 223 F3d 932, 936] .

Search California State and Federal UCC Cases:

Use lexis.com to search for documents discussing challenges to a forum selection clause:

■ Legal > States Legal--U.S. > California > Find Cases > By Area of Law > CA Uniform Commercial Code Cases

Sample Search: To find California state and federal cases analyzing whether a true conflict exists, run the following search: true w/1 conflict or choice and not convict!.

1.05[2] California Law May Apply If Issue Remains Undecided in Other Jurisdiction. If foreign-state law would otherwise apply, but that law cannot be determined, the court may apply California law if it can do so consistently with the federal and state constitutions [Evid Code § 311(a) (court may apply foreign law "as ends of justice require"); see, e.g., Ferrell v. Southern Nevada Off-Road Enthusiasts, Ltd. (1981) 147 CA3d 309, 314, 195 CR 90 (no law of Nevada on agreements purporting to exculpate party from its liability for future negligence or other tortious conduct)]. Alternatively, the court may dismiss the action without prejudice or, in the case of a reviewing court, remand the case to the trial court with directions to dismiss the action without prejudice [Evid Code § 311(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure
Federal & State Interrelationships
Choice of Law
General Overview
Commercial Law (UCC)
General Provisions (Article 1)
Application & Construction
Choice of Law
General Overview
Contracts Law
Contract Conditions & Provisions
General Overview

21 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law

II. DETERMINING WHICH JURISDICTION'S LAW APPLIES

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.06

1.06 Analysis Depends on Whether Contract Contains Choice-of-Law Provision.

In actions involving parties from different states, California has two different analyses to decide the choice of law [Washington Mut. Bank, FA v. Superior Court (2001) 24 C4th 906, 919-920, 103 CR2d 320, 15 P3d 1071] :

- If the parties agree that another jurisdiction's law will govern any disputes, the trial court will evaluate whether their choice-of-law agreement is enforceable.
- If the parties have not agreed on another jurisdiction's law, the trial court will analyze the governmental interests of the various jurisdictions implicated in the transaction and select the most appropriate law.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Federal & State Interrelationships Choice of Law General Overview Commercial Law (UCC) General Provisions (Article 1) Application & Construction Choice of Law Contractual Choice of Law Contracts Law Contract Conditions & Provisions General Overview Contracts Law Contract Interpretation General Overview

22 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law

II. DETERMINING WHICH JURISDICTION'S LAW APPLIES

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.07

1.07 If Contract Has No Enforceable Choice-of-Law Provision, Court Determines Applicable Forum Law.

1.07[1] Party Proposing Foreign Law Has Burden of Identifying Rule and Showing It Applies. The party proposing use of a foreign law must identify the pertinent rule and show its application is appropriate [Washington Mut. Bank, FA v. Superior Court (2001) 24 C4th 906, 919, 103 CR2d 320, 15 P3d 1071 ; American Home Assurance Co. v. Societe Commerciale Toutelectric (2002) 104 CA4th 406, 427, 128 CR2d 430] .

Search Statutes From 50 States Puerto Rico and Virgin Islands for Conflicts of Law:

Use lexis.com to search for state statutes that may affect conflict or choice of law issues:

■ Legal > States Legal--U.S. > Combined States > Find Statutes & Legislative Materials > Codes, Constitutions, Court Rules & ALS > Codes > Codes from 50 States PR and VI

Sample Search: for state statutes that may affect conflict of law or choice of law issues involving remedies or damages, try the following search: heading (contract!) OR section (contract!) AND conflict! OR choice /5 law AND damage OR remed!

1.07[2] Choice of Which Foreign Law to Apply Depends on Facts of Case.

1.07[2][a] General Rule Interprets Contract Using Law of Place of Performance or Place Contract Was Made. A contract is interpreted in accordance with the law and usage of the place at which it is to be performed, or, if the contract does not indicate a place of performance, according to the law and usage of the place at which it was made [CC § 1646; see, e.g., Shannon-Vail Five Inc. v. Bunch (9th Cir 2001) 270 F3d 1207, 1210] .

Distinguish--Rule Inapplicable to Determine Validity of Formation:

While the rule of CC § 1646 applies to the interpretation of a contract, it does not apply to the formation of that contract [Townsend v. Flotill Prods., Inc. (1947) 82 CA2d 863, 865, 187 P2d 466] .

1.07[2][b] Using Law of Place of Performance. A contract indicates a place of performance within the meaning of CCP § 1646 if the intended place of performance can be gleaned from the nature of the contract and its surrounding circumstances [Frontier Oil Corp. v. RLI Ins. Co. (2007) 153 CA4th 1436, 1450, 63 CR3d 816 (intended place of performance of liability insurance policy is place of the insured risk)].

1.07[2][c] Using Law of Place Where Contract Is "Made." A contract is "made" where the last act necessary to the formation of the contract is performed. For example, if an offer is mailed, the contract is made where the offeree receives and accepts the offer [Michelin Tire Co. v. Coleman & Bentel Co. (1919) 179 C 598, 604, 178 P 507 ; Ury v. Jewelers Acceptance Corp. (1964) 227 CA2d 11, 16, 38 CR 376] .

If an oral contract is made by telephone, the place of making is the place where the acceptor speaks [see Travelers Ins. Co. v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1967) 68 C2d 7, 14, 64 CR 440, 434 P2d 992 ; Janzen v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1997) 61 CA4th 109, 114, 71 CR2d 260 ; see also Effross, The Legal Architecture of Virtual Stores: World Wide Web Sites and the Uniform Commercial Code, 34 San Diego L. Rev. 1263, 1280-1283 (1997)].

Exception:

California courts will not enforce a foreign law that is so offensive to California public policy as to be prejudicial to recognized standards of morality and to the general interest of the citizens [Bassidji v. Goe (9th Cir 2005) 413 F3d 928, 933 (refusing to apply Hong Kong law, which would have allowed enforcement of an American citizen's guarantees of payments in furtherance of a trade agreement between an Iranian company and a Hong Kong company; United States presidential Executive Orders prohibited American citizens from trading with Iran)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of general rule of contract interpretation absent choice-of-law provision, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 140.30[1] (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Federal & State Interrelationships Choice of Law General Overview Commercial Law (UCC) General Provisions (Article 1) Application & Construction Choice of Law General Overview Commercial Law (UCC) General Provisions (Article 1) Application & Construction Choice of Law Appropriate Relation Test Contracts Law Contract Interpretation General Overview International Law Dispute Resolution Conflicts of Laws Choice of Law

23 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law

II. DETERMINING WHICH JURISDICTION'S LAW APPLIES

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.08

1.08 In California, Parties' Chosen Law Will Apply If There Is Reasonable Basis and If Applying It Would Not Contravene California Public Policy.

1.08[1] California Follows Restatement Choice-of-Law Test.

1.08[1][a] Direct or Indirect Designation of Choice of Law. If the parties have directly or indirectly stated their choice of governing law, California courts apply the principles set forth in Restatement (Second) of Conflict of Laws § 187 (1969) [see Discover Bank v. Superior Court (2005) 36 C4th 148, 173-174 ; Nedlloyd Lines B.V. v. Superior Court (1992) 3 C4th 459, 464-465, 11 CR2d 330, 834 P2d 1148] :

- The state law chosen by the parties will be applied if the issue is one the parties could have resolved by an explicit contract provision.
- Even if the parties could not have resolved the issue by explicit provision, their chosen law will be applied unless either:
 - ☐ The chosen state has no substantial relationship to the parties or the transaction, and there is no other reasonable basis for their choice; or
 - ☐ The chosen state law would contravene a fundamental policy of a state with a materially greater interest.

If neither test is met, that inquiry ends and the court need not enforce the parties' choice of law [Nedlloyd Lines B.V. v. Superior Court (1992) 3 C4th 459, 466, 11 CR2d 330, 834 P2d 1148 ; Application Group, Inc. v. Hunter Group, Inc. (1998) 61 CA4th 881, 897, 72 CR2d 73, 1998-1 Trade Cas. (CCH) P72076] .

Exception:

Absent indications of contrary intention, the parties' chosen state law means that state's "local law," i.e., not that state's choice-of-law rules. However, if the state's local law would require that the parties' dispute be settled by the law of a different state, that requirement will control.

1.08[1][b] California Court Will First Determine Whether Chosen Jurisdiction Has Substantial Relationship to Parties or Transaction. In determining whether the chosen jurisdiction has either a substantial relationship to the parties or another reasonable basis for the choice of law, the court may consider any appropriate factor, including:

- The parties' reasonable expectations as to which law would apply to their contract [see Roesgen v. American Home Prods. Corp. (9th Cir 1983) 719 F2d 319, 321 ; Rosenthal v. Fonda (9th Cir 1988) 862 F2d 1398, 1403] .
- Character of the contract and purposes of the contract law under consideration.
- Where the parties entered into the contract.
- Where the negotiations for the contract took place.
- Where the contract was performed or was to be performed.
- Where the subject matter of the contract was located.
- Domiciles, residences, places of business, and places of incorporation of the parties.
- Nationality of the parties.
- If any payments were made, where they were initiated.
- If a loan was involved, where the security for the loan was located.
- Where any acts relating to the breach occurred.

The substantial relationship and reasonable basis tests are met when one of the parties is domiciled in the chosen state [Expansion Pointe Properties Limited Partnership v. Procopio, Cory, Hargreaves & Savitch, LLP (2007) 152 CA4th 42, 59, 61 CR3d 166] .

The substantial relationship of the state whose law is chosen to the parties or contract is a question of fact requiring evidentiary hearings [Mencor Enters., Inc. v. Hets Equities Corp. (1987) 190 CA3d 432, 439, 235 CR 464] .

1.08[1][c] Court Will Consider Whether Reasonable Basis Exists for Parties' Choice of Law. If the court finds that the chosen jurisdiction does not have a substantial relationship to the parties or their transaction, it will consider whether any other reasonable basis exists for their choice of law [Discover Bank v. Superior Court (2005) 36 C4th 148, 173, 30 CR3d 76, 113 P3d 1100 ; Nedlloyd Lines B.V. v. Superior Court (1992) 3 C4th 459, 466, 11 CR2d 330, 834 P2d 1148] .

If there is a reasonable basis for the parties' choice of law and there is no conflict with California law, the court must enforce the parties' choice [Application Group, Inc. v. Hunter Group, Inc. (1998) 61 CA4th 881, 897, 72 CR2d 73, 1998-1 Trade Cas. (CCH) P72076] .

Examples--Reasonable Basis for Choice of Law:

- There was a reasonable basis for choosing New York law when one of the parties to the contract was a New York resident, as was the intended beneficiary, and the contract was to be performed in New York

[ABF Capital Corp. v. Berglass (2005) 130 CA4th 825, 834-835] .

- There was a reasonable basis for the selection of Swiss law because, although the successors in interest to the contract were American entities, the original signatories were based in Switzerland and France [Applera Corp. v. MP Biomedicals, LLC (2009) 173 CA4th 769, 790, 93 CR3d 178] .

1.08[1][d] Court Will Determine Whether Chosen State's Law Is Contrary to Fundamental California Policy and Whether California Has Materially Greater Interest. If the chosen state has a substantial relationship to the parties or their transaction or some other reasonable basis exists for the parties' choice of law, and the chosen state's law conflicts with California law, the court must next determine whether the chosen state's law contravenes a fundamental California policy [Discover Bank v. Superior Court (2005) 36 C4th 148, 173-174, 30 CR3d 76, 113 P3d 1100 ; Nedlloyd Lines B.V. v. Superior Court (1992) 3 C4th 459, 464-465, 11 CR2d 330, 834 P2d 1148] . If no such conflict exists, the court will enforce the parties' choice of law. If, however, a fundamental conflict exists with California law, the court must then determine whether California has a materially greater interest than the chosen state in the determination of the particular issue [Aral v. Earthlink, Inc. (2005) 134 CA4th 544, 563, fn. 3, 36 CR3d 229] .

Examples--Chosen State Law Contravenes Fundamental Policy of State With Materially Greater Interest:

- Plaintiff brought an unsuccessful action for breach of a contract containing a New York forum selection clause and a unilateral attorney's fees provision which, if governed by California law, would be interpreted as a reciprocal fees provision under CC § 1717. The court refused to apply New York law, finding that (1) California had a fundamental policy of preventing the uncertainty and overreaching that one-sided attorney's fees provisions can create and (2) California had a materially greater interest in the litigation than New York, as the action was brought in a California court against California defendants [ABF Capital Corp. v. Grove Props. Co. (2005) 126 CA4th 204, 218-220] .

- In a consumer class action against an internet service provider, enforcement of forum-selection and choice-of-law clauses providing for Virginia law would have been the functional equivalent of a contractual waiver of consumer protections under the California Consumer Legal Remedies Act [CC § 1750 et seq.]. Because such an evisceration of important legal rights afforded to California consumers would contravene a fundamental public policy of California, the clauses were unenforceable [America Online, Inc. v. Superior Court (2001) 90 CA4th 1, 12-13, 108 CR2d 699] .

- In a consumer class action brought by a California resident against an internet service provider with its principal place of business in Georgia, application of Georgia's law would contravene the fundamental right of California in ensuring that its citizens have a viable forum in which to recover minor amounts of money allegedly obtained in violation of the California Unfair Competition Law. Because forcing consumers to travel to a distant location and depriving them of any hope of class litigation would pose an insurmountable barrier to recovery of small sums unjustly obtained, undermining the protections of the Unfair Competition Law, California had a materially greater interest than Georgia in the determination of the issue [Aral v. Earthlink, Inc. (2005) 134 CA4th 544, 564, 36 CR3d 229] .

- In a consumer class action brought by a California resident against a Delaware-based credit card issuer, application of Delaware's law permitting class action waivers in "take it or leave it" arbitration clauses would contravene fundamental California public policy. Distinguishing Discover Bank (discussed above), the court concluded that California's policy interest in protecting its residents was materially greater than Delaware's interest in uniformity among its corporate citizens because the plaintiff sought to represent only California residents with California statutory claims, and the class action waiver was not contained in the cardholder agreement but rather in a National Arbitration Forum website referenced in the agreement [Klussman v. Cross Country Bank (2005) 134 CA4th 1283, 1293-1300, 36 CR3d 728] .

Example--Chosen Law Does Not Contravene Fundamental California Policy.

A contract specified that it was to be governed by Swiss law. Although the contract did not contain an attorney's fees provision, Swiss law provided for the award of attorney's fees to the prevailing party as a matter of course. The California appellate court held that Swiss law on attorney's fees did not violate California's public policy, because it was qualitatively no different than the insertion of a reciprocal, prevailing party attorney's fees clause in a contract, which is clearly enforceable under California law [Applera Corp. v. MP Biomedicals, LLC (2009) 173 CA4th 769, 790, 93 CR3d 178] .

Example--California Lacks Materially Greater Interest Than Foreign State:

In a putative nationwide class action brought by a California resident against a bank domiciled in Delaware, Delaware's interest was greater than California's because Delaware was home to the sole defendant, Delaware had a statute providing that Delaware law should apply to claims between Delaware banks and their cardholders, and the plaintiff asserted claims under Delaware law alone [Discover Bank v. Superior Court (2005) 134 CA4th 886, 894-895, 36 CR3d 456] .

1.08[2] California Courts Use Three-Step Analysis to Determine Choice of Law Based on Relative Governmental Interests of Affected States.

1.08[2][a] Relative Governmental Interests Are Weighed. In cases involving issues that the parties could not have resolved by explicit provisions in their agreement, and if there is a conflict that implicates one or more of the states' public policies, a California court will use a three-step analysis to determine choice of law based on the relative governmental interests of the affected states [Washington Mut. Bank, FA v. Superior Court (2001) 24 C4th 906, 919-920, 103 CR2d 320, 15 P3d 1071 ; ABF Capital Corp. v. Grove Props. Co. (2005) 126 CA4th 204, 215] :

- First, the proponent of the foreign law must identify the applicable rule of law of the potentially concerned foreign state and show that it materially differs from the law of California [see 1.08[2][b]].
- Second, if the trial court finds that the laws are materially different, it must determine what interest, if any, each state has in having its own law applied to the case [see 1.08[2][c]].
- Third, upon determining that the laws are materially different and that each state has an interest in having its own law applied, the trial court must select the law of the state whose interests would be more impaired if its law were not applied [see 1.08[2][d]].

1.08[2][b] First Step--Proponent of Foreign Law Must Identify Applicable Law and Show It Is Materially Different From California Law. A California court will apply California law unless a party timely invokes the law of a foreign state [Clothesrigger, Inc. v. GTE Corp. (1987) 191 CA3d 605, 614, 236 CR 605] . In that case, the party invoking foreign law must identify the applicable rule of law and must show that a true conflict exists because that law materially differs from the law of California [Hurtado v. Superior Court (1974) 11 C3d 574, 581, 114 CR 106, 522 P2d 666 ; Washington Mut. Bank, FA v. Superior Court (2001) 24 C4th 906, 919-920, 103 CR2d 320, 15 P3d 1071] .

1.08[2][c] Second Step--If Laws Are Materially Different, Court Must Determine Interest of Each State in Application of Its Law. If the laws are materially different, the court must determine the genuine interest of each state in the application of its law [Sierra-Bay Fed. Land Bank Assn. v. Superior Court (1991) 227 CA3d 318, 331, 277 CR 753] . The court must examine the laws of the states involved, including their underlying policies, to assess their relative interests in application of their laws to the case. Only if each of the states has a legitimate but conflicting interest in applying its own law is there a "true conflict" [Washington Mut. Bank, FA v. Superior Court (2001) 24

C4th 906, 919-920, 103 CR2d 320, 15 P3d 1071 ; In re Title U.S.A. Ins. Corp. (1995) 36 CA4th 363, 372, 42 CR2d 498] .

Warning:

If the connection to California is too tenuous, California law will not apply [see Edwards v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. (ND Cal 1994) 848 F Supp 1460, 1465] .

The relevant touchstones to be considered in determining the interest of a state in applying its law are [Stonewall Surplus Lines Ins. Co. v. Johnson Controls, Inc. (1993) 14 CA4th 637, 646, 17 CR2d 713] :

- The place of contracting.
- The place of negotiation of the contract.
- The place of performance.
- The location of the subject matter of the contract.
- The domicile, residence, nationality, place of incorporation and place of business of the parties.

Decision Point--Importance of Contacts Depends on Nature of Dispute:

The court must analyze the relevant contacts in connection with the states' interests in the issues, the character of the contract, and the purposes of the law under consideration. For example, if the case involves a casualty insurance contract, the location of the insured risk is particularly important [Stonewall Surplus Lines Ins. Co. v. Johnson Controls, Inc. (1993) 14 CA4th 637, 646, 17 CR2d 713] .

1.08[2][d] Third Step--If Laws Differ and If Each State Has an Interest, Court Must Select Law That Would Cause Lesser Impairment. If the foreign law is materially different from California law, and if the foreign state has a genuine interest in the application of its law, the court must weigh the interests and choose the law of the state whose interests would be more impaired if its law were not applied [Travelers Ins. Co. v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1967) 68 C2d 7, 11-12, 64 CR 440, 434 P2d 992 ; Hurtado v. Superior Court (1974) 11 C3d 574, 579-580, 114 CR 106, 522 P2d 666] . The balancing of impairment is slightly weighted by California's general preference for applying its own law [Fleury v. Harper & Row Publishers Inc. (9th Cir 1983) 698 F2d 1022, 1025 ; Engel v. CBS Inc. (9th Cir 1992) 981 F2d 1076, 1081] .

Strategic Point--Laws of Different States May Apply to Different Claims of Same Person:

If a case involves both tort and breach of contract claims, the laws of different states may apply to the different types of claims [see, e.g., Arno v. Club Med Inc. (9th Cir 1994) 22 F3d 1464, 1468-1469 (California law applied to employee's contract claims against employer and French law applied to employee's tort claims)].

Distinguish:

If a written contract has an enforceable choice-of-law provision, it may govern all claims arising from the contract [see Nedlloyd Lines B.V. v. Superior Court (1992) 3 C4th 459, 470, 11 CR2d 330, 834 P2d 1148 ; see also 1.08[3]].

1.08[3] If Choice-of-Law Provision Is Enforceable, It May Govern All Claims Arising From Contract. An enforceable choice-of-law provision will be broadly construed, particularly if the contracting parties are sophisticated commercial entities. Thus, a validly specified body of law that "governs" the "agreement" between the parties will encompass all causes of action arising from or related to that agreement, regardless of how they are characterized, including tortious breaches [Nedlloyd Lines B.V. v. Superior Court (1992) 3 C4th 459, 470, 11 CR2d 330, 834 P2d 1148 (choice of law comprehends all actions, irrespective of characterization, including tortious breaches of duties emanating from agreement or legal relationships it creates)].

Example:

Depending on the language of the provision, it may apply to a breach of fiduciary duty claim arising out of the contract [Nedlloyd Lines B.V. v. Superior Court (1992) 3 C4th 459, 469-470, 11 CR2d 330, 834 P2d 1148] , a fraud claim [General Signal Corp. v. MCI Telecommunications Corp. (9th Cir 1995) 66 F3d 1500, 1506] , or an age discrimination claim [Olinick v. BMG Entertainment (2006) 138 CA4th 1286, 1299-1300, 42 CR3d 268] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure
Federal & State Interrelationships
Choice of Law
General Overview
Commercial Law (UCC)
General Provisions (Article 1)
Application & Construction
Choice of Law
Contractual Choice of Law
Commercial Law (UCC)
General Provisions (Article 1)
Application & Construction
Choice of Law
Reasonable Relation Test
Contracts
Law
Contract Interpretation
General Overview
International Law
Dispute Resolution
Conflicts of Laws
General Overview

24 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law

II. DETERMINING WHICH JURISDICTION'S LAW APPLIES

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.09

1.09 For Certain High-Dollar Contracts, Parties May Choose to Apply California Law Even If There Is No Reasonable Basis for Choice.

1.09[1] Parties May Provide That Contracts Involving $250,000 or More Be Governed by California Law.

The parties to any contract, agreement, or undertaking, contingent or otherwise, relating to a transaction involving in the aggregate not less than $250,000, may agree that California law will govern their rights and duties in whole or in part, whether or not the contract, agreement, or undertaking, or the transaction, bears a reasonable relation to California [CC § 1646.5].

Exception:

This rule does not apply to any of the following kinds of contracts [CC § 1646.5]:

- A contract for labor or personal services;
- A contract relating to any transaction primarily for personal, family, or household purposes; or
- Any other contract to the extent provided in Com Code § 1105(2), which lists situations involving creditors' rights against goods sold, leases, bank deposits and collections, letters of credit, bulk sales, investment securities, and perfection of security interests, in which the parties' choice of law will be overridden.

1.09[2] Contracts Involving $1 Million or More. Any person may maintain an action in a California court against a nonresident when the action arises out of or relates to any contract when [CCP § 410.40]:

- The contract contains a provision for the choice of California law.
- The contract relates to a transaction involving in the aggregate not less than $1,000,000.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsChoice of LawGeneral OverviewCommercial Law (UCC)General Provisions (Article 1)Application & ConstructionChoice of LawContractual Choice of LawCommercial Law (UCC)General Provisions (Article 1)Application & ConstructionChoice of LawReasonable Relation TestContracts LawContract InterpretationGeneral OverviewInternational LawDispute ResolutionConflicts of LawsChoice of Law

25 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law

II. DETERMINING WHICH JURISDICTION'S LAW APPLIES

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.10

1.10 Under UCC, Parties to Multi-State Transaction May Choose Law With Reasonable Relationship to Contract.

1.10[1] General Rule Allows Parties to Agree on Law of Any State With Reasonable Relationship to Contract. In transactions governed by the Uniform Commercial Code, the contracting parties may agree on a choice of law of any state having a reasonable relationship to the contract. If there is no contractual choice-of-law provision, California law will apply to contracts bearing an appropriate relation to the state [Com Code § 1301(a), (b)].

Exception:

If one of the following Commercial Code provisions specifies the applicable law, that provision governs, and any contrary agreement of the parties is effective only to the extent permitted by the law specified in the applicable Commercial Code provision [Com Code § 1301(c)]:

- Com Code § 2402--rights of creditors against sold goods.
- Com Code §§ 10105, 10106--property leases.
- Com Code § 4102--bank deposits and collections.
- Com Code § 5116--letters of credit.
- Com Code § 6103--bulk sales.
- Com Code § 8110--investment securities.
- Com Code §§ 9301-9307--perfection, the effect of perfection or nonperfection, and the priority of security interests.

➡ Cross References:

Remedies under Division 2 of the California Commercial Code, see Ch. 26, Contract for Sale of Goods--Seeking Remedies Under California Commercial Code.

Formation of contracts under Division 2 of the California Commercial Code, see Ch. 27, Contract for Sale of Goods--Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract Under California Commercial Code.

Breach of contract under Division 2 of the California Commercial Code, see Ch. 28, Contract for Sale of Goods--Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract Under California Commercial Code.

Warranties under Division 2 of the California Commercial Code, see Ch. 24, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Warranty.

Discussion of contracts concerning the sale of goods under the UCC generally, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 52, Sales of Goods Under the Uniform Commercial Code (Matthew Bender).

Search California State and Federal UCC Cases:

Use lexis.com to search for documents discussing challenges to choice-of-law issues under the Uniform Commercial Code:

■ Legal > States Legal--U.S. > California > Find Cases > By Area of Law > CA Uniform Commercial Code Cases

☐ Sample Search: To find California state and federal cases discussing choice of law based on the where the contract was made, run the following search: conflict or choice w/3 law and place w/10 made and not convict!*.

☐ Sample Search: To find California state and federal cases discussing choice of law based on the contract's place of performance, run the following search: conflict or choice w/3 law and place w/1 perform! and not convict!*.

☐ Sample Search: To find California state and federal cases applying the governmental-interest analysis, run the following search: California> Cases> By Area of Law> CA Uniform Commercial Code Cases conflict or choice w/3 law and government! w/4 interest* and not convict!*.

1.10[2] Whether Commercial Code "Reasonable Relation" Test Differs From Restatement's "Substantial Relationship" Test Is Unresolved. The California Supreme Court has noted the apparent similarity between the former Com Code § 1105(1) provision (now see Com Code § 1301(a)) that the parties may choose the law of a state having a "reasonable relation" to the transaction and the "substantial relationship" test of the Restatement (Second) of Conflict of Laws § 187 (1969), which otherwise applies to choice-of-law provision enforceability in California. However, the Court has specifically declined to determine whether and to what extent, if any, the Commercial Code and Restatement approaches differ [see Nedlloyd Lines B.V. v. Superior Court (1992) 3 C4th 459, 465 n2, 11 CR2d 330, 834 P2d 1148] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)General Provisions (Article 1)Application & ConstructionChoice of LawReasonable Relation Test

26 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law

II. DETERMINING WHICH JURISDICTION'S LAW APPLIES

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.11

1.11 Invalid Contracts for Transfer of Interests in Land May Be Subject to Unique Choice-of-Law Rule.

Generally, if the parties to an invalid contract for the transfer of an interest in land have failed to designate an effective choice of law, the transfer of interest will be governed by the state in which the land is situated. However, if another state has a more significant relationship to the transaction and the parties, the law of that state will be applied [Restatement (Second) of Conflict of Laws § 189, cmt d (1969); see In re Penn Cent. Transp. Co. (ED Penn 1979) 471 F Supp 1354, 1359-1360] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsChoice of LawGeneral OverviewContracts LawContract InterpretationGeneral OverviewInternational LawDispute ResolutionConflicts of LawsChoice of LawReal Property LawPurchase & SaleRemediesGeneral Overview

27 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law

II. DETERMINING WHICH JURISDICTION'S LAW APPLIES

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.12

1.12 Choice-of-Law Provision May Bind Closely Related Third Parties.

Contractual forum selection clauses may bind nonparties who are closely related to the contract if the chosen state is a suitable forum for the suit.

Example:

A private plaintiff who itself suffered no injury filed a representative action under the unfair competition law [see B&P Code § 17200 et seq.] based on contract provisions; the contract's forum selection provision specified New Jersey. The plaintiff was bound by that provision, just as the defendant's customers would have been bound if they had filed the action [Net2Phone, Inc. v. Superior Court (2003) 109 CA4th 583, 585].

One court held that a defendant must show the following to demonstrate that it is so closely related to the contractual relationship that it is entitled to enforce the forum selection clause [Bancomer, S.A. v. Superior Court (1996) 44 CA4th 1450, 1461, 52 CR2d 435] :

- That it agreed to be bound by the terms of the contract;
- That the contracting parties intended the defendant to benefit from the contract; or
- That a defined and intertwining business relationship existed with a contracting party.

The same considerations should apply with respect to third parties and choice-of-law provisions [see Nedlloyd Lines B.V. v. Superior Court (1992) 3 C4th 459, 464, 11 CR2d 330, 834 P2d 1148 (issues of enforceability of choice-of-law and choice-of-forum provisions are closely related)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Federal & State Interrelationships Choice of Law General Overview Commercial Law (UCC) General Provisions (Article 1) Application & Construction Choice of Law Contractual Choice of Law Contracts Law Contract Interpretation General Overview International Law Dispute Resolution Conflicts of Laws Choice of Law

28 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law

II. DETERMINING WHICH JURISDICTION'S LAW APPLIES

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.13

1.13 Choice-of-Law Provision Is Significant If Jurisdiction Is Disputed Issue.

A court attempting to determine whether the requisite minimum contacts exist to exert personal jurisdiction over a nonresident may consider a contractual choice-of-law provision as relevant to the jurisdiction dispute.

Examples:

- In deciding to exercise personal jurisdiction over nonresident restaurants, the California Supreme Court found it significant that the franchise agreements for the nonresident restaurants provided that any contract disputes would be litigated in California under California law [Vons Cos., Inc. v. Seabest Foods, Inc. (1996) 14 C4th 434, 443, 58 CR2d 899, 926 P2d 1085 ; compare Goehring v. Superior Court (1998) 62 CA4th 894, 73 CR2d 105 (insufficient contacts for California court to exercise jurisdiction over nonresident; contracts were governed by Texas law)].
- Likewise, the United States Supreme Court found a franchise agreement provision designating application of Florida law significant to its determination that an out-of-state franchisee had sufficient contacts with Florida for the exercise of personal jurisdiction over it by that state [Burger King Corp. v. Rudzewicz (1985) 471 US 462, 481-483, 105 S Ct 2174, 85 L Ed2d 528] .

Cross References:

Jurisdiction issues in contract actions generally, see Ch. 3, Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions.

Forms and discussion of moving to quash service of summons based on lack of personal jurisdiction, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 9, Motions to Quash and Other Objections to Personal Jurisdiction.

Discussion of minimum contacts necessary for exercise of personal jurisdiction, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 323.12 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsIn Personam ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil
ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsChoice of LawGeneral OverviewCommercial Law (UCC)General
Provisions (Article 1)Application & ConstructionChoice of LawContractual Choice of LawContracts LawContract
InterpretationGeneral Overview

29 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law

III. CHALLENGING CONTRACTUAL CHOICE-OF-LAW PROVISION

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.14

1.14 CHECKLIST: Challenging Contractual Choice-of-Law Provision.

- ☐ Determine whether contractual choice-of-law provision applies to dispute.

Authority:

Nedlloyd Lines B.V. v. Superior Court (1992) 3 C4th 459, 469-472, 11 CR2d 330, 834 P2d 1148

Discussion:

See 1.15

- ☐ If so, determine whether grounds exist for challenging provision because:

- ☐ Application of law of chosen state violates California policy.
- ☐ The California policy that would be violated is fundamental.
- ☐ California has a materially greater interest than chosen state in the determination of particular issue.
- ☐ California would be state of applicable law but for choice-of-law provision.

Authority:

International Bus. Machs. Corp. v. Bajorek (9th Cir 1999) 191 F3d 1033, 1038, 1999-2 Trade Cas. (CCH) P72733

Discussion:

See 1.16

☐ Determine procedure to be employed in making challenge:

- ☐ Motion for summary judgment.
- ☐ Motion for summary adjudication.
- ☐ Demurrer.
- ☐ Affirmative defense in answer.
- ☐ Suit for declaratory relief.

Authority:

CCP §§ 430.10(e), 431.30(b), 437c, 1060

Discussion:

See 1.18

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Federal & State Interrelationships Choice of Law General Overview Commercial Law (UCC) General Provisions (Article 1) Application & Construction Choice of Law General Overview Commercial Law (UCC) General Provisions (Article 1) Application & Construction Choice of Law Contractual Choice of Law Contracts Law Contract Interpretation General Overview International Law Dispute Resolution Conflicts of Laws Choice of Law

30 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law

III. CHALLENGING CONTRACTUAL CHOICE-OF-LAW PROVISION

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.15

1.15 Application of Contractual Choice-of-Law Provision to Cause of Action Must Be Determined.

The specific language of the contractual choice-of-law provision should be analyzed to determine its scope. It may one of the following common variants [see, e.g., Nedlloyd Lines B.V. v. Superior Court (1992) 3 C4th 459, 469-472, 11 CR2d 330, 834 P2d 1148] :

- An agreement to be governed by the law of a particular state.
- An agreement that the contract will be construed according to the law of a particular state.
- An agreement to submit to the jurisdiction of the courts of a particular state.
- An agreement that the contract is to be deemed to have been entered into in a particular state.
- Some combination of the above or some other agreement.

The court will assume that the parties intended their choice-of-law clause to apply to their entire dispute, absent proof to the contrary [Nedlloyd Lines B.V. v. Superior Court (1992) 3 C4th 459, 468-470, 11 CR2d 330, 834 P2d 1148] .

Example:

A contractual choice-of-law provision stated that the contract "shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of Delaware." The defendant in the breach of contract suit successfully demurred on the ground that the suit was barred by Delaware's three-year statute of limitations for breach of contract because the "laws" of Delaware included its statute of limitations [Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners v. American Med. Int'l, Inc. (1995) 38 CA4th 1532, 1538, 46 CR2d 33] .

► Cross Reference:

Drafting a choice-of-law provision, see California Legal Forms, § 75.273 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsChoice of LawGeneral OverviewCommercial Law (UCC)General Provisions (Article 1)Application & ConstructionChoice of LawContractual Choice of LawContracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsGeneral OverviewContracts LawContract InterpretationGeneral OverviewInternational LawDispute ResolutionConflicts of LawsChoice of Law

31 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law

III. CHALLENGING CONTRACTUAL CHOICE-OF-LAW PROVISION

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.16

1.16 Grounds for Challenging Contractual Choice-of-Law Provision Must Be Shown.

To avoid a contractual choice-of-law provision, a party must show all of the following [International Bus. Machs. Corp. v. Bajorek (9th Cir 1999) 191 F3d 1033, 1038, 1999-2 Trade Cas. (CCH) P72733] :

- Application of the law of the chosen state would violate California policy.
- The California policy that would be violated is fundamental.
- California has a materially greater interest than the chosen state in the determination of the particular issue.
- California law would apply were it not for the choice-of-law provision.

► Cross Reference:

See 1.08; Restatement (Second) of Conflict of Laws § 187 (1969).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Federal & State Interrelationships Choice of Law General Overview Commercial Law (UCC) General Provisions (Article 1) Application & Construction Choice of Law General Overview Contracts Law Contract Interpretation General Overview International Law Dispute Resolution Conflicts of Laws Choice of Law

32 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law

III. CHALLENGING CONTRACTUAL CHOICE-OF-LAW PROVISION

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.17

1.17 Enforceability of Choice-of-Law Provision Involves Issues of Fact That Require Evidentiary Hearing.

The parties' choice of foreign law will be permitted in a California forum only on the examination of the reasonable relationship of the contract to the foreign state, the substantial contacts of the parties with the foreign state, and consideration of California's fundamental policy with respect to the issue as to which a true conflict exists. These are issues of fact requiring evidentiary hearings [Mencor Enters., Inc. v. Hets Equities Corp. (1987) 190 CA3d 432, 439-441, 235 CR 464] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsChoice of LawGeneral OverviewCommercial Law (UCC)General Provisions (Article 1)Application & ConstructionChoice of LawContractual Choice of LawContracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsGeneral OverviewInternational LawDispute ResolutionConflicts of LawsChoice of Law

33 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law
III. CHALLENGING CONTRACTUAL CHOICE-OF-LAW PROVISION

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.18

1.18 Procedural Context of Challenge Depends on Circumstances of Case.

1.18[1] Issue May Arise on Motion for Summary Adjudication or Summary Judgment. The enforceability of a choice-of-law provision may arise in the context of a motion for summary adjudication or summary judgment if, for example, the validity of a cause of action or of an affirmative defense depends on the law applied [see CCP § 437c].

Example:

The trial court entered summary judgment in favor of the plaintiff, a creditor foreclosing its security interests. On appeal, the defendants argued that the contractual choice of Texas law should not be enforced. Although Texas law allowed deficiency judgments following foreclosure of a purchase-money security interest (but California law did not), under the facts, the choice-of-law provision was enforceable and the plaintiff was entitled to summary judgment [Guardian Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. MD Assocs. (1998) 64 CA4th 309, 75 CR2d 151] .

► Cross References:

Discussion of motions for summary judgment and adjudication, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 38, Summary Judgment;

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 537, Summary Judgment (Matthew Bender); or California Points and Authorities, Ch. 221, Summary Judgments (Matthew Bender).

1.18[2] Issue May Arise on Demurrer. The enforceability of a choice-of-law provision may arise in the context of a demurrer. This may happen if the law of the chosen state does not recognize the plaintiff's cause of action or if the cause of action is barred by a statute of limitations [see CCP § 430.10(e)].

Examples:

- An agreement between a corporation and its shareholders provided that the agreement would be governed by and construed in accord with Hong Kong law. The corporation sued the shareholders and the shareholders demurred. In connection with the demurrer, the shareholders claimed that Hong Kong law applied. The trial court applied California law and overruled the demurrers. The California Supreme Court held that the choice-of-law clause requiring that the contract be governed by the law of Hong Kong was fully enforceable and applied to the plaintiffs' claims [Nedlloyd Lines B.V. v. Superior Court (1992) 3 C4th 459, 469, 11 CR2d 330, 834 P2d 1148] .

■ Venture partners sued a corporation for breach of a stock purchase agreement. The corporation demurred on the ground that the cause of action was barred by Delaware's three year statute of limitations, which was made applicable by the agreement's choice-of-law provision. The trial court agreed and sustained the demurrer. The court of appeal affirmed [Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners v. American Med. Int'l, Inc. (1995) 38 CA4th 1532, 1539, 46 CR2d 33] .

Exception:

If the choice-of-law determination turns on factual questions, an evidentiary hearing is required and the issue may not be resolved on demurrer [see Mencor Enters., Inc. v. Hets Equities Corp. (1987) 190 CA3d 432, 441, 235 CR 464] .

Cross References:

Discussion of demurrers and motions for judgment on the pleadings, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 11, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleading;

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings (Matthew Bender); or California Points and Authorities, Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings (Matthew Bender).

1.18[3] Issue May Be Raised by Affirmative Defense in Answer. The issue of the enforceability and application of a choice-of-law provision may arise in the context of an affirmative defense, such as the claim being barred by the statute of limitations of the chosen state [see CCP § 431.30(b)(2)].

Example:

A bank refused to credit the customer's account for its payment of a check bearing a forged endorsement. The customer's suit was timely under the New York statute of limitations, but time-barred under California law. The agreement between the customer and the bank contained a choice-of-law provision designating New York law. The bank asserted as an affirmative defense that the claim was time-barred, because under New York law, the New York borrowing statute would apply and that statute required the use of California's one year statute of limitations, not New York's three year limit. The appellate court reversed the trial court's application of the New York limitations period and remanded with directions to conduct a trial on the affirmative defense of the statute of limitations [Hughes Elecs. Corp. v. Citibank Delaware (2004) 120 CA4th 251, 264-265] .

Cross References:

Discussion of pleading affirmative defenses in answers, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 14, Answers; or California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 26, Answers (Matthew Bender).

Sample Judicial Council form for answer and discussion of use of form, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 140.132 (Matthew Bender).

1.18[4] Issue May Arise in Action for Declaratory Relief. A party to a contract may bring an action for declaratory relief to determine the parties' rights and liabilities under the contract [Frame v. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith (1971) 20 CA3d 668, 670-673, 97 CR 811, 1971 Trade Cas. (CCH) P73748] . The issue of the enforceability of a contractual choice-of-law provision is one that may be raised in an action for declaratory relief if the plaintiff seeks a declaration that the provision is or is not enforceable [see CCP § 1060].

Examples:

- A California-based company sought to hire a Maryland resident for employment in California. The Maryland resident had an employment contract with her Maryland employer that contained a noncompetition clause and that provided it was to be "governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of Maryland." The California-based company sued in California for a declaratory judgment that California law applied to the noncompetition clause. The trial court ruled that California law applied and that the clause could not be enforced. The court of appeal affirmed [Application Group, Inc. v. Hunter Group, Inc. (1998) 61 CA4th 881, 900-905, 72 CR2d 73, 1998-1 Trade Cas. (CCH) P72076] .

- Borrowers filed an action for declaratory relief concerning a loan contract they alleged was usurious. The loan contract provided it was to be "governed by and construed" by New York law and specified interest aggregating 20.3% per month--an illegal rate in California, but legal in New York. The court enforced the choice-of-law provision in the contract and held the contract valid [Ury v. Jewelers Acceptance Corp. (1964) 227 CA2d 11, 16-22, 38 CR 376] .

► Cross References:

General discussion of declaratory relief in contract actions, see Ch. 11, Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters.

Discussion of actions for declaratory relief, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief (Matthew Bender); or

California Points and Authorities, Ch. 67, Declaratory Relief (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsChoice of LawGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCommercial Law (UCC)General Provisions (Article 1)Application & ConstructionChoice of LawGeneral OverviewContracts LawContract InterpretationGeneral Overview

34 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law

IV. DETERMINING WHETHER FEDERAL OR STATE LAW APPLIES

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.19

1.19 CHECKLIST: Determining Whether Federal or State Law Applies.

☐ Determine whether federal or state law applies:

☐ Does claim arise under federal law?

Authority:

US Const, art VI, cl 2

Discussion:

See 1.20

☐ Is state law preempted by federal law?

Authority:

Peatros v. Bank of Am. NT & SA (2000) 22 C4th 147, 157-158, 91 CR2d 659, 990 P2d 539

Discussion:

See 1.21

☐ Is case filed in federal district court based on diversity?

Authority:

Erie R.R. Co. v. Tompkins (1938) 304 US 64, 78-79, 58 S Ct 817, 82 L Ed 1188

Discussion:

See 1.22

☐ Is case brought in state court based on claim arising in federal enclave?

Authority:

Hansford v. District of Columbia (1993) 329 Md 112, 617 A2d 1057, 1065-1066

Discussion:

See 1.23

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsChoice of LawGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsErie DoctrineCivil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsFederal Common LawGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsFederal Common LawPreemption

35 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law

IV. DETERMINING WHETHER FEDERAL OR STATE LAW APPLIES

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.20

1.20 Federal Law Applies to Federal Claims.

If a claim arises under federal law, federal law applies whether an action is filed in state court or federal court [see US Const, art VI, cl 2].

Examples:

The validity of a provision in a contract for cruise ship passage [Carnival Cruise Lines, Inc. v. Shute (1991) 499 US 585, 590, 111 S Ct 1522, 113 L Ed2d 622 ; Schlessinger v. Holland Am., NV (2004) 120 CA4th 552, 557] or marine insurance [Suma Fruit Int'l v. Albany Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1997) 122 F3d 34, 35] is interpreted by the general maritime law of the United States, not state law. Likewise, interpretation of a flood insurance policy issued under the National Flood Insurance Program is governed by federal common law [Flick v. Liberty Mut. Fire Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2000) 205 F3d 386, 390] .

► Cross References:

Discussion of federal question jurisdiction, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, 2.03 -2.09.

Discussion of federal common law, see Moore's Federal Practice, § 124.40 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsChoice of LawGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsChoice of LawGovernmental InterestsCivil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsErie DoctrineCivil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsFederal Common LawGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsFederal Common LawPreemption

36 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law

IV. DETERMINING WHETHER FEDERAL OR STATE LAW APPLIES

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.21

1.21 Federal Law May Preempt State Law If Conflict Exists.

If state law conflicts with a federal statute, the state law is invalid [Maryland v. Louisiana (1981) 451 US 725, 747, 101 S Ct 2114, 68 L Ed2d 576] . Whether federal law preempts state law depends on whether Congress has intended such a result. It is generally presumed that Congress did not intend to preempt state law, and preemption of state law by federal law is only found in the following situations [Peatros v. Bank of Am. NT & SA (2000) 22 C4th 147, 157-158, 91 CR2d 659, 990 P2d 539] :

- "Express preemption" exists if Congress has explicitly stated that a federal law preempts state law.
- "Field preemption" exists if Congress has intended that federal law exclusively occupy a field.
- "Conflict preemption" exists if state law actually conflicts with federal law.

Example--Express Preemption:

The preemption provision of the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978 prohibits states from imposing their own substantive standards regarding rates, routes, or services. Thus, in awarding damages for breach of contract, courts may not award punitive damages or any other relief greater than what was expressly and contractually negotiated between a carrier and a shipper [Power Standards Lab, Inc. v. Federal Express Corp. (2005) 127 CA4th 1039] .

Cross Reference:

Discussion of when federal law preempts state law generally, see Moore's Federal Practice, § 107.14 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsChoice of LawGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsErie DoctrineCivil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsFederal Common LawGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsFederal Common LawPreemption

37 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law

IV. DETERMINING WHETHER FEDERAL OR STATE LAW APPLIES

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.22

1.22 California Substantive Law Applies in Diversity Case Brought in Federal District Court in California.

If a case is in federal district court in California based on diversity of citizenship, the district court must apply the substantive law of California. The district court will apply federal rules of procedure, however [Erie R.R. Co. v. Tompkins (1938) 304 US 64, 78-79, 58 S Ct 817, 82 L Ed 1188] , including the Federal Rules of Evidence [see Fed R Evid 101].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of diversity jurisdiction, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, 2.09 -2.25; or Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 102, Diversity Jurisdiction (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Strategic Point--Choice-of-Law Rules and Rules of Contract Interpretation Are Substantive:

In this context, choice-of-law rules are "substantive," and a California federal district court in a diversity case will apply the choice-of-law rules that would be applied by a California state court [see Klaxon Co. v. Stentor Elec. Mfg. Co., Inc. (1941) 313 US 487, 496-497, 61 S Ct 1020, 85 L Ed 1477 ; Day & Zimmermann, Inc. v. Challoner (1975) 423 US 3, 4, 96 S Ct 167, 46 L Ed2d 3 ; Arno v. Club Med Inc. (9th Cir 1994) 22 F3d 1464, 1467 ; Dole Food Co. v. Watts (9th Cir 2002) 303 F3d 1104, 1119] . Likewise, rules governing the interpretation of contracts are deemed "substantive" [Manetti-Farrow, Inc. v. Gucci Am., Inc. (9th Cir 1988) 858 F2d 509, 513 ; In re Aslan (9th Cir 1990) 909 F2d 367, 369 ; Jones v. GNC Franchising, Inc. (9th Cir 2000) 211 F3d 495, 497] .

Cross References:

Discussion of California choice-of-law rules, see 1.06 -1.13.

Discussion of the Erie doctrine, see Moore's Federal Practice, § 120.31 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsChoice of LawGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureFederal & State
InterrelationshipsErie DoctrineCivil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsFederal Common LawGeneral
Overview

38 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law

IV. DETERMINING WHETHER FEDERAL OR STATE LAW APPLIES

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.23

1.23 Substantive Law of Federal Enclave Applies in Case Brought in California State Court.

A federal enclave is land over which the federal government exercises legislative jurisdiction, such as a military base [Kelly v. Lockheed Martin Servs. Group (DPR 1998) 25 F Supp2d 1, 3] . California courts generally have subject matter jurisdiction over claims arising in federal enclaves within California's borders. The state court is required to apply the enclave's law to those actions [Hansford v. District of Columbia (1993) 329 Md 112, 617 A2d 1057, 1065-1066] . The enclave's law includes federal law, any California law not in conflict with federal law that existed at the creation of the enclave, and any subsequently enacted state law to the extent authorized by Congress [Taylor v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2000) 78 CA4th 472, 482-486, 92 CR2d 873] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsChoice of LawGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsFederal Common LawApplicabilityCivil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsFederal Common LawPreemption

39 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law
V. DETERMINING WHETHER UCC OR COMMON LAW APPLIES

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.24

1.24 CHECKLIST: Determining Whether UCC or Common Law Applies.

- ☐ Determine whether UCC applies to contract.

Discussion:

See 1.25

- ☐ Is contract one for sale of goods?

Authority:

Com Code § 2101 et seq.

Discussion:

See 1.26

- ☐ Does contract concern investment securities?

Authority:

Com Code § 8101 et seq.

Discussion:

See 1.27[1]

- ☐ Does contract concern secured transaction?

Authority:

Com Code § 9101 et seq.

Discussion:

See 1.28

- ☐ Does contract concern a lease of personal property?

Authority:

Com Code § 10101 et seq.

Discussion:

See 1.29

- ☐ If contract concerns investment securities, determine which law applies:

- ☐ Law of issuer's jurisdiction.
- ☐ Law of securities intermediary's jurisdiction.
- ☐ Law of jurisdiction where security is located.

Authority:

Com Code § 8110

Discussion:

See 1.27[2]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)General Provisions (Article 1)Application & ConstructionGeneral OverviewCommercial Law (UCC)General Provisions (Article 1)Application & ConstructionChoice of LawGeneral OverviewContracts LawContract InterpretationGeneral Overview

40 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law
V. DETERMINING WHETHER UCC OR COMMON LAW APPLIES

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.25

1.25 Commercial Code Applies to Broad Spectrum of Commercial Agreements.

If the contract is covered by the Uniform Commercial Code, specific statutory rules (as opposed to common law) will apply to such things as formation and interpretation of the contract, as well as available remedies.

Article 2 of the Commercial Code concerns contracts for the sale of goods. Under Article 2, such contracts may be made in any manner sufficient to show agreement, including conduct by both parties that recognizes the existence of the contract [Com Code § 2204(1)]. Furthermore, if there is a reasonably certain basis for providing a remedy and the parties intend to contract, a court may find there is a contract even if the time of its making is undetermined [Com Code § 2204(2)] and one or more terms are left open [Com Code § 2204(3)].

Article 8 of the Commercial Code concerns securities and contains a choice-of-law rule [see Com Code § 8110].

► Cross References:

Discussion of contracts concerning sales of securities, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 163, Corporations: Transfers of Shares (Matthew Bender).

Forms concerning secured transactions, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 42, Secured Transactions (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)General OverviewCommercial Law (UCC)General Provisions (Article 1)Application & ConstructionGeneral Overview

41 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law
V. DETERMINING WHETHER UCC OR COMMON LAW APPLIES

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.26

1.26 Contracts for Sale of Goods Are Covered by Commercial Code Article 2.

1.26[1] Article 2 Governs Most Sales Contracts. Unless the context otherwise requires, Article 2 of the Commercial Code [Com Code § 2101 et seq.] applies to contracts for the sale of goods [Com Code § 2102]. A "contract for sale" includes both a present sale of goods and a contract to sell goods at a future time. A "sale" means the passing of title from the seller to the buyer for a price [Com Code § 2106(1)].

Distinguish--Commercial Code Does Not Impair Consumer Statutes:

Article 2 of the Commercial Code governing contracts for the sale of goods does not impair or repeal any statute regulating sales to consumers, farmers or other specified classes of buyers [Com Code § 2102].

➤ Cross References:

Discussion of statutes affecting sales to consumers, see 1.33.

Contract remedies under Commercial Code Article 2, see Ch. 26, Contract for Sale of Goods--Seeking Remedies Under California Commercial Code.

Contract formation under Commercial Code Article 2, see Ch. 27, Contract for Sale of Goods--Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract Under California Commercial Code.

Actions for breach of contract under Commercial Code Article 2, see Ch. 28, Contract for Sale of Goods--Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract Under California Commercial Code.

Breach of warranty actions under California Commercial Code, see Ch. 24, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Warranty.

Discussion of contracts concerning sales of goods, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 500, Sales: Sales Under the Commercial Code (Matthew Bender); or California Points and Authorities, Ch. 206, Sales (Matthew Bender).

Jury Instructions:

California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3H, Commercial Code Sales Contracts Instructions (Matthew Bender).

1.26[2] Article 2 Contracts Only Involve "Goods" As Defined in Commercial Code. "Goods" means all things (including specially manufactured goods) that are movable at the time of identification to the contract for sale other than [Com Code § 2105(1)]:

- The money in which the price is to be paid;
- Investment securities; and
- Things in action.

"Goods" includes the unborn young of animals, growing crops, and other identified things attached to realty [Com Code § 2105(1)].

1.26[3] Security Transactions and Real Property Leases Are Excluded From Article 2. Article 2 of the Commercial Code does not apply to any transaction that is intended to operate only as a security transaction, and does not apply to leases of real property [see Com Code § 2102].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)General OverviewContracts LawSales of GoodsGeneral Overview

42 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law
V. DETERMINING WHETHER UCC OR COMMON LAW APPLIES

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.27

1.27 Contracts Concerning Investment Securities Are Covered by Commercial Code Article 8.

1.27[1] Article 8 Defines "Investment Securities." Under Article 8 of the Commercial Code [Com Code § 8101 et seq.], a "security" is an obligation of an issuer [see Com Code § 8201 ("issuer" defined)] or a share, participation, or other interest in an issuer or in property or an enterprise of an issuer that is [Com Code § 8102]:

- Represented by a security certificate in bearer or registered form, or the transfer of which may be registered upon books maintained for that purpose by or on behalf of the issuer;
- One of a class or series or by its terms is divisible into a class or series of shares, participations, interests, or obligations; and
- Either dealt in or traded on securities exchanges or securities markets or a medium for investment and by its terms expressly provides that it is a security governed by Article 8.

Cross References:

Discussion of choice-of-law issues arising in connection with the transfer of securities, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 163, Corporations: Transfer of Shares (Matthew Bender); or Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, Ch. 10, Transfer and Registration of Securities (After 1996) (Matthew Bender).

Forms concerning the transfer of securities, see Forms & Procedure Under the UCC, Article 8, Investment Securities (Matthew Bender).

Search California State and Federal UCC Cases:

Use lexis.com to search for documents discussing choice of law in securities cases:

- Legal > States Legal--U.S. > California > Find Cases > By Area of Law > CA Uniform Commercial Code Cases

○ Sample Search: To find California state and federal cases discussing whether a contract involves investment securities, run the following search: conflict or choice w/3 law and investment w/4 securit* and not convict!*.

1.27[2] Article 8 Has Its Own Choice-of-Law Rule.

1.27[2][a] Law of Issuer's Jurisdiction, Securities Intermediary's Jurisdiction, or Security's Location

Applies. Article 8 of the Commercial Code contains a choice-of-law rule which provides for the application of the law of the issuer's jurisdiction, the securities intermediary's jurisdiction, or the jurisdiction in which a security is located, depending on the nature of the dispute [Com Code § 8110]. The local law of the jurisdiction in which a security certificate is located at the time of delivery governs whether an adverse claim can be asserted against a person to whom the security certificate is delivered [Com Code § 8110(c)]. Otherwise, the local law of the jurisdiction of the issuer or of the securities intermediary applies.

1.27[2][b] Disputes Governed by Law of Issuer's Jurisdiction. Article 8 of the Commercial Code provides that the local law of the issuer's jurisdiction governs all of the following [Com Code § 8110]:

- The validity of a security.
- The rights and duties of the issuer with respect to registration of transfer.
- The effectiveness of registration of transfer by the issuer.
- Whether the issuer owes any duties to an adverse claimant to a security.
- Whether an adverse claim can be asserted against a person to whom transfer of a certificated or uncertificated security is registered or a person who obtains control of an uncertificated security.

The "issuer's jurisdiction" is the jurisdiction under which the issuer of the security is organized or, if permitted by the law of that jurisdiction, the law of another jurisdiction specified by the issuer. A California issuer may specify the law of another jurisdiction as the law governing these matters, except that California law will always govern the validity of a security issued by a California issuer [Com Code § 8110(d)].

1.27[2][c] Disputes Governed by Law of Securities Intermediary's Jurisdiction. The local law of the securities intermediary's jurisdiction governs the following [Com Code § 8110(b); see Com Code § 8102(5), (14) ("securities intermediary" defined)]:

- Acquisition of a security entitlement from the securities intermediary.
- The rights and duties of the securities intermediary and entitlement holder arising out of a security entitlement.
- Whether the securities intermediary owes any duties to an adverse claimant to a security entitlement.
- Whether an adverse claim can be asserted against a person who acquires a security entitlement from the securities intermediary or a person who purchases a security entitlement or interest therein from an entitlement holder.

Strategic Point:

To determine the jurisdiction of a securities intermediary [Com Code § 8110(e)]:

- First look at the agreement between the securities intermediary and its entitlement holder governing the securities account.
- If that agreement expressly provides that a particular jurisdiction is the security intermediary's jurisdiction, that jurisdiction is the securities intermediary's jurisdiction.
- If there is no such provision, and the agreement expressly provides that the securities account is maintained at an office in a particular jurisdiction, that jurisdiction is the securities intermediary's jurisdiction.
- If the agreement contains neither provision, the securities intermediary's jurisdiction is the jurisdiction in which the office identified in an account statement as the office serving the entitlement holder's account is located.
- Finally, if no such office is identified, the securities intermediary's jurisdiction is the jurisdiction in which the chief executive office of the securities intermediary is located.

A securities intermediary's jurisdiction is not determined by the physical location of certificates representing financial assets, or by the jurisdiction in which is organized the issuer of the financial asset with respect to which an entitlement holder has a security entitlement, or by the location of facilities for data processing or other record keeping concerning the account [Com Code § 8110(f)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Investment Securities (Article 8)General OverviewCommercial Law (UCC)Investment Securities (Article 8)Choice of LawContracts LawTypes of ContractsInvestment Contracts

43 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law
V. DETERMINING WHETHER UCC OR COMMON LAW APPLIES

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.28

1.28 Contracts Involving Secured Transactions Are Governed by Commercial Code Article 9.

1.28[1] Overview of Article 9 Coverage. Article 9 of the Commercial Code generally applies (with some exceptions) to a transaction (regardless of its form) that, by contract, creates a security interest in personal property or fixtures. Article 9 also applies to agricultural liens; sales of accounts, chattel paper, payment intangibles, or promissory notes; consignments; and specified security interests arising under other articles of the Commercial Code [Com Code § 9109(a)].

If Article 9 applies, it controls aspects such as perfection and priority of security interests [see Com Code § 9301 et seq.] and the rights of third parties [see Com Code § 9401 et seq.].

1.28[2] In Event of Conflict, Other Law Prevails Over Article 9. Some transactions subject to Article 9 of the Commercial Code also are subject to other applicable laws, such as those relating to consumers [see 1.33]. Article 9 provides that in the case of a conflict between it and the other specified laws [see Com Code § 9102(b)](other controlling laws), the other law controls [Com Code § 9201(c)]. Furthermore, nothing in Article 9 validates any rate, charge, agreement, or practice that violates any of those laws [Com Code § 9201(d)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of secured transactions, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 503, Sales: Secured Transactions (Matthew Bender);

California Legal Forms, Ch. 42, Secured Transactions; or Forms & Procedures Under the UCC, Article 9, Secured Transactions (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Secured Transactions (Article 9)General OverviewCommercial Law (UCC)Secured Transactions (Article 9)Application & ConstructionGeneral OverviewContracts LawSecured TransactionsGeneral Overview

44 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law
V. DETERMINING WHETHER UCC OR COMMON LAW APPLIES

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.29

1.29 Contracts Involving Personal Property Leases Are Governed by Commercial Code Article 10.

1.29[1] Overview of Article 10 Coverage. Article 10 of the Commercial Code applies to any transaction, regardless of form, that creates a lease in personal property [Com Code § 10102]. If Article 10 applies, it controls such things as formation and construction of the lease contract [see Com Code § 10201 et seq.], repudiation, substitution, and excuse of performance under the contract [see Com Code § 10401 et seq.].

1.29[2] In Event of Conflict, Other Law Prevails Over Article 10. A lease governed by Article 10 may also be governed by other applicable laws, such as those governing consumer leases. California consumer laws, both decisional and statutory, generally will control in the case of any conflict between Article 10 and the applicable consumer law [see Com Code § 10104; see also 1.33]. A choice-of-law provision in a consumer lease is only enforceable if the law chosen is that of a jurisdiction [Com Code § 10106]:

- In which the lessee resides at the time the lease agreement becomes enforceable, or within 30 days thereafter;
- In which the goods are to be used; or
- In which the lease is executed by the lessee.

► Cross Reference:

Discussion of personal property leases, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 413, Personal Property Leases (Matthew Bender); or California Legal Forms, Ch. 53, Personal Property Leasing (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Leases (Article 2A)General OverviewContracts LawTypes of ContractsLease AgreementsPersonalty LeasesGeneral Overview

45 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law

VI. DETERMINING WHETHER OTHER CALIFORNIA STATUTES GOVERN CONTRACT

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.30

1.30 CHECKLIST: Determining Whether Other Statutes Govern Contract.

- ☐ Determine whether any specific California statutes govern the specific type of commercial contract.

Discussion:

See 1.32

- ☐ Determine whether contract involves consumer transaction.

☐ Is contract for acquisition by individual of goods or services for his or her personal or household use?

Authority:

CC §§ 1761, 1799.201

Discussion:

See 1.33[1], [2]

- ☐ If contract involves consumer transaction, determine applicability of:

- ☐ Consumers Legal Remedies Act.
- ☐ Consumer Contract Awareness Act of 1990.
- ☐ Other consumer protection statutes governing the specific transaction.

Authority:

CC §§ 1760 et seq., 1799.200 et seq.

Discussion:

See 1.33

☐ If party to contract is public entity, determine whether any specific state statute governs contract.

Authority:

PC Code § 10100 et seq.

Discussion:

See 1.35

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Federal & State Interrelationships Choice of Law General Overview Commercial Law (UCC) General Provisions (Article 1) Application & Construction Choice of Law General Overview Contracts Law Contract Interpretation General Overview Governments Legislation Statutory Remedies & Rights

46 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law

VI. DETERMINING WHETHER OTHER CALIFORNIA STATUTES GOVERN CONTRACT

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.31

1.31 Contracts Are Often Governed by Specific Statutes.

A wide variety of state statutes govern specific types of contracts, based on the identity or status of the contracting parties (for example, consumers) or because of the nature of the transaction. These statutes typically affect the contract in one or more of the following ways:

- By directing that particular steps be taken (such as specified disclosures) or not taken as part of the contract negotiations.
- By requiring that the contract be written and that it contain particular provisions.
- By prohibited specified terms from being included in the contract.
- By providing specific remedies in addition to, or in lieu of, the standard common law remedies available in contract actions.

Failure to comply with the above types of statutory requirements will render the contract void or voidable in many cases.

Cross References:

Discussion of statutory formalities imposed on contract by specific statutes, see Ch. 15, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Failure to Comply With Applicable Formalities.

Discussion of availability of statutory remedies in contract actions, see Ch. 10, Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions.

Rules relating to contracts by minors, see Ch. 14, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Lack of Capacity, 14.05.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Contract Interpretation General Overview Governments Legislation Statutory Remedies & Rights

47 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law

VI. DETERMINING WHETHER OTHER CALIFORNIA STATUTES GOVERN CONTRACT

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.32

1.32 Counsel Must Determine Whether Specific California Statutes Govern Contract.

It is essential for counsel to determine at the outset whether the contract is subject to any specific statute. A wide variety of California statutes govern all sorts of commercial contracts and transactions.

Examples:

- Contract between a landscape architect and client [B&P Code § 5616].
- Franchise agreements for petroleum distribution franchises [B&P Code §§ 20999-20999.4, 21140, 21140.1; Corp Code §§ 31005, 31005.5, 31104], and retail gasoline sales [B&P Code § 21150.1].
- Invention development service contracts [B&P Code § 22370 et seq.].
- Suretyship contracts [CC § 2792 et seq.].
- Real property sales contracts [CC § 2985 et seq.].
- Contracts of independent wholesale sales representatives [CC § 1738.10 et seq.; see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 505, Independent Wholesale Sales Representatives Contractual Relations Act (Matthew Bender)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawContract InterpretationGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutory Remedies & Rights

48 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law

VI. DETERMINING WHETHER OTHER CALIFORNIA STATUTES GOVERN CONTRACT

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.33

1.33 If Contract Was Entered Into by Consumer, California Consumer Protection Statutes Apply.

1.33[1] Statutes Apply to Persons Meeting Applicable Definition of "Consumer." Most consumer protection statutes contain a specific definition of consumer, but the statutory definitions generally refer to an individual who is contracting for goods or services for personal, family, or household purposes [see, e.g., CC §§ 1761(d), 1799.201].

1.33[2] Consumers Legal Remedies Act Applies to Sale or Lease of Consumer Goods or Services. The Consumers Legal Remedies Act [CC§ 1750 et seq.] proscribes unlawful methods of competition and unfair or deceptive practices in the sale or lease of consumer goods or services [see CC § 1760]. A "consumer" is an individual who seeks or acquires, by purchase or lease, any goods or services for personal, family, or household purposes [CC § 1761(d)]. A wide variety of unfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices are made unlawful by the Act, including [see CC § 1770]:

- Passing off goods or services as those of another.
- Misrepresenting the source, sponsorship, approval, or certification of goods or services.
- Misrepresenting the affiliation, connection, or association with, or certification by, another.
- Using deceptive representations or designations of geographic origin in connection with goods or services.
- Representing that goods are original or new if they have deteriorated unreasonably or are altered, reconditioned, reclaimed, used, or secondhand.
- Representing that goods or services are of a particular standard, quality, or grade, or that goods are of a particular style or model, if they are of another.
- Disparaging the goods, services, or business of another by false or misleading representation of fact.

Punitive damages, as well as attorney's fees, are an available remedy for a consumer who suffers any damage as a result of the use or employment by any person of an unlawful act, method, or practice [CC § 1780(a), (e)]. If the consumer is a senior citizen or disabled person, an additional penalty of $5,000 is available under certain circumstances [see CC § 1780(b)].

Prerequisite--Precomplaint Notice and Demand Required Under Consumers Legal Remedies Act:

Before filing a complaint for damages, the consumer must give the potential defendant a minimum of 30 days notice of the alleged violations, and demand rectification. The notice and demand must be written and sent to the potential defendant by certified or registered mail, return receipt requested [CC § 1782(a)].

Warning--Claim Fails If 3-Day Notice Not Given:

If the plaintiff or the plaintiff's agent does not to give the requisite 30-day notice, then the plaintiff's claim for damages absolutely fails [see Cattie v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. (2007) 504 F Supp2d 939, 949-950 ; Von Grabe v. Sprint Corp.(2003) 312 F Supp2d 1285, 1302-1305 ; Outboard Marine Corp. v. Superior Court (1975) 52 CA3d 30, 40-41, 124 CR 852] .

Cross Reference:

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 504, Sales: Consumers Legal Remedies Act (Matthew Bender).

1.33[3] Consumer Contract Awareness Act of 1990 Applies to Consumer Contracts and Contract Guaranties. Consumer contracts and consumer contract guaranties are governed by the Consumer Contract Awareness Act of 1990 [see CC § 1799.200 et seq.]. Under the Act, a "consumer contract" is a writing which [CC § 1799.201]:

- Is prepared by a seller;
- Is signed by a consumer or a consumer's guarantor; and
- Provides for either the sale or lease of goods or services that are purchased or leased primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, or for extension of credit, the proceeds of which are used primarily for personal, family, or household purposes.

A seller who fails to comply with the Act's requirements for delivery of the contract to the consumer [see CC § 1799.202] or consumer's guarantor [see CC § 1799.206] is liable to the consumer or guarantor for actual damages suffered as a result of that failure [CC §§ 1799.205(a), 1799.206(c)]. The seller's failure is also admissible to establish a basis for rescission of the contract [CC §§ 1799.205(b), 1799.206(d)]. The provisions of the Act cannot be waived [see CC § 1799.207].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Antitrust & Trade LawConsumer ProtectionGeneral OverviewBanking LawConsumer ProtectionGeneral OverviewContracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsGeneral OverviewContracts LawContract InterpretationGeneral OverviewContracts LawDebtor & Creditor Relations

49 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law

VI. DETERMINING WHETHER OTHER CALIFORNIA STATUTES GOVERN CONTRACT

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.34

1.34 Other Consumer and Commercial Statutes Apply to Specific Classes of Contracts.

Counsel must determine whether the contract is subject to any specific statute. A wide variety of commercial and consumer contracts and transactions are subject to specific statutes, including but not limited to the following:

- Adjustable rate residential mortgage loans [CC § 1921(b)].
- Arbitration provisions in medical service contracts [CCP § 1295].
- Arbitration of public works contracts claims [PC Code §§ 22200, 22201].
- Automobile sales finance contracts [CC § 2981 et seq.].
- Bailment contracts with automobile parking lots [CC §§ 1630, 1630.5].
- California State University Contract Law [PC Code § 10700 et seq.].
- Consignment agreements between dealer and vehicle owner [Veh Code §§ 266, 11729, 11730].
- Consumer credit contracts [CC § 1799.90 et seq.].
- Consumer's or subscriber's presence required for delivery, service, connection or repair, for retail merchandise, cable television or utility [CC § 1722].
- Continuing care (life care) contracts [H&S Code § 1770 et seq.].
- Contracts for prison supplies [Pen Code § 2051].
- Contracts for public purchases [Gov Code § 4475 et seq.].
- Contracts for purchase of information technology goods and services by the state [PC Code §§ 12103.5, 12104, 12104.5].

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.34

- Contracts for purchase of technological supplies and equipment by school districts [PC Code § 20118.2].
- Contracts for purchase or sale of capital stock of corporation or association without intention to receive or deliver are void [Corp Code § 29104].
- Contracts for rapid transit equipment or structures [Gov Code § 4500].
- Contracts for sale of farm or home to veteran [M&V Code §§ 270.19, 986.9, 987.1, 987.2, 987.69].
- Credit cards [CC § 1747 et seq.].
- Dance studio contracts [CC § 1812.50 et seq.].
- Dating service contracts [CC § 1694 et seq.].
- Discount buying service contracts [CC § 1812.100 et seq.].
- Employment agencies, employment counseling services, job listing services, and nurses' registries [CC § 1812.500 et seq.].
- Financial institution prohibited from entering into contract that provides for reassignment [B&P Code §§ 17350, 17351].
- Foreign language translation of contract, or related disclosure required by law, required to be given to consumer before execution of contract, lease, loan, or agreements [CC § 1632].
- Franchise agreements between retail gasoline dealer and franchiser [B&P Code § 21150.1].
- Franchises between petroleum refiner and distributor or retailer, or distributor and another distributor or retailer [B&P Code §§ 20999-20999.4, 21140, 21140.1, 21150; Corp Code §§ 31005, 31005.5, 31104].
- Funeral service contracts [B&P Code § 7685 et seq.].
- Health studio contracts [CC § 1812.80 et seq.].
- Home improvement contracts, including contracts for swimming pool construction [B&P Code § 7150 et seq.].
- Home solicitation contracts [CC §§ 1689.5-1689.14].
- Indemnity clauses in construction contracts [CC §§ 2782-2784].
- Indemnity clauses in hauling contracts [CC § 2784.5].
- Invention development service contracts [B&P Code § 22370 et seq.].
- Landscape architects required to provide customer with detailed written contract [B&P Code § 5616].

- Motor club service contracts [Ins Code §§ 12158, 12250 et seq.].
- Real property sales contracts [CC § 2985 et seq.].
- Required contents of sales contract relating to purchase of real property in subdivision [B&P Code § 11200].
- Retail installment sales contracts [CC § 1801 et seq.].
- Sale of goods [Com Code § 2101 et seq.].
- Sale of mining machinery [CC § 1631].
- State Contract Act [PC Code § 10100 et seq.].
- Suretyship contracts [CC § 2792 et seq.].
- Termination of mobile telephony services contracts and motor vehicle leases by reservists and members of the National Guard ordered into active military duty [M&V Code §§ 823, 826].
- Warranties in consumer contracts [CC § 1790 et seq.].
- Weight loss program or center contracts [CC § 1694.5 et seq.].

Cross References:

Discussion of statutes regulating specific consumer contracts, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 89, Automobiles: Sales and Financing Under the Rees-Levering Act; Ch. 127, Consumer Contracts and Loans; Ch. 128, Consumer Contracts: Statutes Regulating Specific Types of Contracts; Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales; and Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Antitrust & Trade Law Consumer Protection General Overview Banking Law Consumer Protection General Overview

50 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 1 Determining the Applicable Law

VI. DETERMINING WHETHER OTHER CALIFORNIA STATUTES GOVERN CONTRACT

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 1.35

1.35 If Contract Was Entered Into by Public Entity, California Statutes Governing Such Contracts May Control.

Counsel must determine whether the contract is subject to any specific statute because one of the parties is a public entity. The applicable statutes will define which public entities and transactions they govern.

Examples:

- For the purpose of emergency termination of public contracts, a "public agency" includes the state, its various commissions, boards and departments and any county, city, district or state agency authorized to enter into contracts for public work [Gov Code § 4401].
- Contracts for emergency work or remedial measures necessary to immediately avert, alleviate, repair, or mitigate destruction of property caused by the accidental or unplanned release of toxic substances, and necessary to protect the health, safety, and welfare of the general public, are not subject to application of the State Contract Act [PC Code § 10101].

A wide variety of California statutes govern specific types of public entity contracts.

Examples:

- Arbitration of public works contracts claims [PC Code §§ 22200, 22201].
- California State University Contract Law [PC Code § 10700 et seq.].
- Contracts for prison supplies [Pen Code § 2051].
- Contracts for public purchases in the amount of $25,000 or more [Gov Code § 4475 et seq.; see Gov Code § 4478; PC Code § 10301].
- Contracts for rapid transit equipment or structures [Gov Code § 4500].

- Contracts of local agencies [PC Code § 20100 et seq.].
- State Contract Act [PC Code § 10100 et seq.].

Exception--Contracts Below Specified Dollar Amount May Be Exempt:

Contracts under a specified dollar amount may be exempted from public entity contracting requirements. For example, state contracts for the acquisition or lease of goods with a value of under $25,000 are not required to be submitted to competitive bidding [see PC Code § 10301].

Trap--A Claim Is Required Under Tort Claims Act Before Suit Against a Public Entity for Breach of Contract:

The claims requirements of the Tort Claims Act, more properly described as the Government Claims Act [Gov Code § 900 et seq.], apply to breach of contract claims against a public entity [Gov Code §§ 905, 905.2(b)(3); City of Stockton v. Superior Court (2007) 42 C4th 730, 734, 68 CR3d 295, 171 P3d 20; Westcon Construction Corp. v. County of Sacramento (2007) 152 CA4th 183, 190, 61 CR3d 89].

Cross References:

Discussion and forms relating to the claims procedure under Tort Claims Act [Gov Code § 810 et seq.], see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, 4.09;

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers (Matthew Bender); or California Points and Authorities, Ch. 196, Public Entities (Matthew Bender).

California contracting procedures, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 90A, State Government Contracts.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Public Contracts LawGeneral OverviewPublic Contracts LawContract InterpretationGeneral Overview

51 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 2 Determining What Causes of Action Exist

1-2 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 2.syn

§ 2.syn Synopsis to Chapter 2: Determining What Causes of Action Exist

2.01 Scope.

2.02 Objective and Strategy.

2.03 CHECKLIST: Determining What Causes of Action Exist.

2.04 Obtain Information and Documents to Evaluate Potential Causes of Action and Defenses.

2.04[1] Determine Client's Objective.

2.04[2] Ascertain Relevant Facts.

2.04[3] Review Written Contract and/or Other Documents.

2.04[3][a] Specific Contract Terms May Control Aspects of Litigation.

2.04[3][b] Oral Agreement May Raise Statute of Frauds or Statute of Limitations Issues.

2.04[3][c] Written Communications May Alert Counsel to Potential Defenses.

2.04[4] Gather Information Concerning Circumstances Giving Rise to Dispute.

2.05 Potential Cause(s) of Action Depend on Nature of Conduct Complained of, Relief Sought, and Governing Law.

2.05[1] Causes of Action Must Be Viable Under Governing Law.

2.05[1][a] Counsel Must Determine Applicable Law.

2.05[1][b] Action Must Comply With Applicable Statute of Limitations.

2.05[2] Litigation May Be Governed by Commercial Code.

2.05[3] Statutory Remedies May Be Available for Other Particular Types of Contracts.

2.05[4] Facts May Support Multiple Causes of Action or Remedies.

2.05[5] Potential Damages May Be Greater If Defendant's Conduct Gives Rise to Action in Tort.

2.05[6] Contract or Statute May Provide for Recovery of Attorney's Fees.

2.06 Proper Jurisdiction and Venue Must Be Determined.

2.07 Arbitration or Other Alternative Dispute Resolution May Be Desirable or Required.

2.08 Validity and Enforceability of Contract Must Be Evaluated.

2.08[1] Issue of Validity or Enforceability May Preclude Cause of Action on Contract.

2.08[2] Existence or Validity of Contract May Be Attacked on Numerous Grounds.

2.08[2][a] Absence of an Essential Element.

2.08[2][b] Lack of Capacity of a Party to Contract.

2.08[2][c] Authority to Contract on Behalf of Another.

2.08[2][d] Failure to Comply With Applicable Formalities.

2.08[2][e] Mistake.

2.08[2][f] Fraud, Duress, Menace, and Undue Influence.

2.08[2][g] Illegality, Unconscionability, Public Policy, and Similar Claims.

2.08[3] Agency Law May Determine Who Has Rights and Liabilities Under the Contract.

2.08[4] Status As Third Party Beneficiary May Affect Party's Ability to Enforce Contract.

2.09 Plaintiff Seeking to Enforce Contract May Consider Action for Declaratory Relief, Specific Performance, or Similar Remedies.

2.09[1] Declaratory Relief May Be Appropriate When Dispute Exists That May Affect, or Has Affected, Performance.

2.09[2] Plaintiff May Seek Specific Performance of Contract When Damages for Breach Would Be Inadequate.

2.09[3] Injunctive Relief May Be Available to Prevent Breach of Contract.

2.10 Plaintiff May Seek Provisional Remedies to Protect Property.

2.11 Plaintiff May Obtain Compensation for Goods or Services Through Action for Quantum Valebant or Quantum Meruit.

2.11[1] Quantum Counts Are Used When Defendant Is Not Liable for Fixed Sum.

2.11[2] Quantum Valebant Seeks Payment of Money Due for Reasonable Value of Goods Delivered.

2.11[3] Quantum Meruit Recovery Provides Payment for Services Rendered.

2.12 Plaintiff May Seek Damages Arising Out of Defendant's Breach of Contract, Breach of the Duty of Good Faith and Fair Dealing, or Breach of Warranty.

2.12[1] Action for Breach of Contract Arises If Defendant Fails to Perform or Prevents Plaintiff From Performing Obligations Under Contract.

2.12[1][a] Action Provides Compensation for Party Who Did Not Receive Benefit of Bargain.

2.12[1][b] Evaluating Claim Requires Analysis of Numerous Potential Issues.

2.12[1][c] Plaintiff Should Consider Potential Defenses.

2.12[2] Action for Breach of Duty of Good Faith and Fair Dealing Arises If Defendant's Conduct Unfairly Deprives Plaintiff of Benefits of Contract.

2.12[3] Action for Breach of Warranty May Arise From Express or Implied Warranty.

2.13 Plaintiff Seeking to Prevent Enforcement of Contract May Seek Declaratory Relief, Rescission, or Reformation of Contract.

2.13[1] Plaintiff May Seek Declaratory Relief to Preclude Action on Contract by Opposing Party.

2.13[2] Contract May Be Rescinded If All Parties Consent.

2.13[3] Plaintiff May Unilaterally Rescind Contract Under Certain Circumstances.

2.13[4] Plaintiff May Seek Reformation If Contract Does Not Express True Intention of Parties.

52 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 2 Determining What Causes of Action Exist

I. STRATEGY

1-2 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 2.01

2.01 Scope.

This chapter covers:

- Objective and strategy for determining what potential causes of action exist [see 2.02].
- Determining the client's objective in seeking relief, and ascertaining the relevant facts [see 2.04].
- Evaluating potential causes of action based on the nature of the conduct complained of, the relief sought, and the applicable law [see 2.05].
- Determining proper jurisdiction and venue [see 2.06].
- Determining whether arbitration of other alternative dispute resolution is desirable or required [see 2.07].
- Evaluating the validity and enforceability of the contract at issue [see 2.08], including:
 - ☐ Determining the grounds on which a contract might be subject to attack [see 2.08[2]].
 - ☐ Considering whether agency law applies in determining the parties who have rights and liabilities under the contract [see 2.08[3]].
 - ☐ Determining whether a party's status as a third party beneficiary affects his or her ability to enforce the contract [see 2.08[4]].
- If plaintiff is seeking to enforce the contract, determining whether to allege a cause of action for:
 - ☐ Declaratory relief [see 2.09[1]];

- ☐ Specific performance [see 2.09[2]]; or
- ☐ Injunctive relief [see 2.09[3]].
- Determining whether plaintiff should seek provisional remedies [see 2.10].
- Determining whether plaintiff should allege a claim for quantum valebant or quantum meruit recovery [see 2.11].
- If plaintiff is seeking damages, determining whether plaintiff can allege a cause of action for:
 - ☐ Breach of contract [see 2.12[1]];
 - ☐ Breach of the duty or good faith and fair dealing [see 2.12[2]]; or
 - ☐ Breach of warranty [see 2.12[3]].
- If plaintiff is seeking to prevent enforcement of a contract, determining whether to seek:
 - ☐ Declaratory relief [see 2.13[1]];
 - ☐ Rescission [see 2.13[2], [3]]; or
 - ☐ Reformation of the contract [see 2.13[4]].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawBreachCauses of ActionGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesGeneral Overview

53 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 2 Determining What Causes of Action Exist

I. STRATEGY

1-2 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 2.02

2.02 Objective and Strategy.

An initial analysis of a client's contract dispute is an essential prerequisite to all subsequent steps that the attorney may take for the client. The initial analysis should be thorough and careful, and should be used to create a road map of the attorney's strategy for obtaining the result that the client wants. The initial assessment of the case will, of course, need to be refined as the attorney becomes more familiar with the facts, the contentions of the defendant, the applicable law, the role of other parties, and other factors. Nevertheless, determining at the outset what causes of action exist in a contract dispute is essential to obtaining the desired relief.

The potential causes of action in a particular case will depend on numerous factors, including:

- The client's objective in litigating the dispute, which may be one or more of the following:
 - ☐ Enforcing the contract according to its terms (specific performance).
 - ☐ Obtaining compensation from the defendant for goods or services provided.
 - ☐ Recovering damages for the defendant's breach of the contract.
 - ☐ Preventing the opposing party from enforcing the contract.
- The validity and enforceability of the contract itself.
- The provisions of the contract, which may specify or limit remedies.
- The applicable law.
- The nature of the defendant's conduct giving rise to the dispute.

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

Counsel should consider not only the potential causes of action that may be alleged, but also the defenses likely to be raised by the defendant to each potential cause of action. Determining whether all of the elements of each potential cause action can be properly alleged, and what potential defenses may be raised, can avoid asserting causes of action that may be subject to demurrer or to summary adjudication in the defendant's favor.

Decision Point:

Determining which causes of action can be brought is not the same as deciding which causes of action should be brought. The former is a purely academic exercise; the latter requires a practical analysis. In considering which causes of action may be alleged, the likely consequences that should be considered are not limited to defenses likely to be raised and counterclaims that might be asserted, but also include the effects of each potential claim on the complexity, scope, and cost of the litigation, including:

- The difficulty of proving one's case.
- The discovery likely to be needed, and permitted, to develop each potential claim.
- The evidence likely to be admitted at trial.
- The realistic likelihood that the client will actually prevail on the claim.
- The types of relief (preliminary relief, injunctive relief, damages, and so on) that each potential cause of action could yield.

Sometimes it is more advisable to bring a simpler, relatively easily proven, rifle-shot case. In other cases it may be preferable to launch an all-out assault and assert all possible claims.

Cross Reference:

For Tips on updating case law and expanding your research with additional resources, see How to Use Lexis.com With This Publication at the front of this volume.

Search Current California Case Law:

Use lexis.com to search for cases discussing elements of a cause of action:

- Legal > States Legal--U.S. > California > Find Cases > By Area of Law > CA Contract Cases

Sample Search: To explore cases discussing elements of a cause of action, substitute your cause of action in this suggested search: strict liability /10 elements OR prima facie OR factors OR test.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice General Overview Contracts Law General Overview Contracts Law Breach Causes of Action General Overview Contracts Law Remedies General Overview

54 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 2 Determining What Causes of Action Exist
II. DETERMINING WHAT CAUSES OF ACTION EXIST

1-2 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 2.03

2.03 CHECKLIST: Determining What Causes of Action Exist.

- ☐ Determine client's objective in seeking relief through litigation.

See 2.04[1], 2.05

- ☐ Obtain information and documents from client, including:

- ☐ Relevant facts concerning the parties involved.

Discussion:

See 2.04[2]

- ☐ Written contract, if any, and/or other documents.

Discussion:

See 2.04[3]

- ☐ Circumstances giving rise to dispute.

Discussion:

See 2.04[4]

- ☐ Evaluate potential causes of action, based on conduct complained of, relief sought, and governing law, taking into account:

- ☐ Whether cause(s) of action are viable under to the governing law, including applicable statute of limitations.

Discussion:

See 2.05[1]

- ☐ Whether the litigation is governed by Civil Code's contract provisions, or provisions of Commercial Code.

Discussion:

See 2.05[2]

- ☐ Whether other statutory remedies are available, based on particular type of contract at issue.

Discussion:

See 2.05[3]

- ☐ Whether facts support multiple causes of action.

Discussion:

See 2.05[4]

- ☐ Whether defendant's conduct may give rise to action in tort, so that the greater range of tort damages may be available.

Discussion:

See 2.05[5]

- ☐ Whether contract or a statute provides for recovery of attorney's fees.

Discussion:

See 2.05[6]

- ☐ Determine proper jurisdiction and venue.

Discussion:

See 2.06

- ☐ Determine whether arbitration is necessary or desirable.

Discussion:

See 2.07

- ☐ Evaluate validity and enforceability of contract at issue:

- ☐ Determine if grounds exist to attack existence or validity of the contract based on:

- ☐ Absence of essential contract elements, such as:

- ☐ Lack of valid offer, or revocation of offer before acceptance;
- ☐ Lack of a valid acceptance;
- ☐ No intent to contract;
- ☐ Lack of adequate consideration; or
- ☐ Absence of essential term of contract.

Discussion:

See 2.08[2][a]

- ☐ Lack of capacity of a party to contract.

Discussion:

See 2.08[2][b]

- ☐ Lack of authority of signer of contract to contract on behalf of another person or entity.

Discussion:

See 2.08[2][c]

- ☐ Failure to comply with statute of frauds or other applicable formalities.

Discussion:

See 2.08[2][d]

- ☐ Mistake of law or fact.

Discussion:

See 2.08[2][e]

- ☐ Fraud, duress, menace, or undue influence.

Discussion:

See 2.08[2][f]

- ☐ Illegality, unconscionability, or public policy.

Discussion:

See 2.08[2][g]

- ☐ Determine if agency law applies to determine parties who have rights and liabilities under contract.

Discussion:See 2.08[3]

- ☐ Determine if a party's status as a third party beneficiary affects his or her ability to enforce contract.

Discussion:See 2.08[4]

- ☐ If client is seeking to enforce contract, consider cause(s) of action for:

- ☐ Declaratory relief, if dispute exists between parties that may affect, or has affected, performance of contract.

Discussion:See 2.09[1]

- ☐ Specific performance, if damages for breach of contract would be an inadequate remedy.

Discussion:See 2.09[2]

- ☐ Injunctive relief, if necessary to prevent a breach of contract.

Discussion:See 2.09[3]

- ☐ If client is seeking compensation for value of goods or services provided, and possibility exists that client may not be able to recover under contract, determine whether claim for quantum valebant or quantum meruit recovery is appropriate.

Discussion:See 2.11

- ☐ If client is seeking monetary damages, determine whether client can state a cause of action for:

- ☐ Breach of contract;

Discussion:See 2.12[1]

- ☐ Breach of duty of good faith and fair dealing; or

Discussion:See 2.12[2]

- ☐ Breach of warranty.

Discussion:

See 2.12[3]

☐ If client is seeking to prevent opposing party from enforcing contract according to its terms, consider cause(s) of action for:

☐ Declaratory relief.

Discussion:

See 2.13[1]

☐ Relief based on rescission.

Discussion:

See 2.13[2], [3]

☐ Reformation of the contract.

Discussion:

See 2.13[4]

☐ Determine whether client should seek provisional remedies to protect property involved in dispute, pending litigation or other final resolution of dispute.

Discussion:

See 2.10

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawBreachCauses of ActionGeneral OverviewContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionAssumpsitContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionBreach of WarrantyContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionElements of ClaimsContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionMoney Had & Received

55 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 2 Determining What Causes of Action Exist

II. DETERMINING WHAT CAUSES OF ACTION EXIST

1-2 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 2.04

2.04 Obtain Information and Documents to Evaluate Potential Causes of Action and Defenses.

2.04[1] Determine Client's Objective.

When a client first consults an attorney regarding a dispute that has arisen concerning a contract or purported contract, counsel should determine at the outset whether the party seeking relief has a particular objective in litigating the matter. For example, the client may be seeking to:

- Compel an opposing party to perform his or her obligations under the contract, in accordance with the contract terms;
- Terminate the contract and recover damages for the opposing party's nonperformance of that party's obligations under the contract; or
- Prevent an opposing party from enforcing the purported contract against the client.

Although the client initially may have a particular remedy in mind, counsel should evaluate the matter and explore possible alternative causes of action and remedies with the client, taking into account all of the circumstances of the case.

Example:

If the client anticipates and desires an ongoing business relationship with the opposing party, resolving a dispute through an action for declaratory relief or reformation of the contract, before the dispute escalates into an actual breach of the agreement and action for damages, may be desirable. Informal mediation or arbitration also may help solve the problem without destroying the parties' business relationship.

2.04[2] Ascertain Relevant Facts. As in any litigation, an evaluation of client's case should begin by collecting and analyzing the basic facts concerning the individuals and entities involved, including names, addresses, capacities, and relationship to the contract or to the parties to the contract.

This information is important not only for counsel to determine whether there are any conflicts or other obstacles to accepting the case, but also to consider whether issues arising out of the capacities, residence, or place of business of the potential parties may be involved in the potential litigation.

Examples:

- Diversity of citizenship of the parties may result in removal of an action from state to federal court.
- The liability of a potential defendant may be in question if agency issues are involved.
- A plaintiff who is a third party beneficiary of a contract may be limited in the causes of action that can be asserted.
- The capacity of a party or a fiduciary or other relationship between the parties, other than the contractual relationship, may give rise to potential defenses to an action on contract.

 Cross References:

Detailed discussion of preliminary information gathering prior to litigation, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 2, Client Interview.

Agency issues in contract actions, see Ch. 20, Asserting Agency Issues in Contract Actions.

Third party beneficiary issues, see Ch. 19, Seeking or Opposing Recovery As Third Party Beneficiary of Contract.

Capacity issues, see Ch. 14, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Lack of Capacity.

Removal of action to federal court, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, Ch. 3, Removing a State Court Case to Federal Court.

2.04[3] Review Written Contract and/or Other Documents.

2.04[3][a] Specific Contract Terms May Control Aspects of Litigation. Counsel should obtain and review the contract at issue, if it is in writing, and any purported written modifications to the contract. The terms of the contract may contain a choice of law provision that would affect the potential causes of action, or may specify or limit the remedies available to the client.

Examples:

- A choice of law provision specifying the law of another jurisdiction may preclude remedies that would otherwise be available under California law.
- The contract may contain a liquidated damages provision specifying the amount of damages recoverable for breach of the agreement.
- The contract may contain a provision for prevailing party attorney's fees that would expose the client to liability for defendant's attorney's fees if the litigation brought by client were unsuccessful.

- The contract may require client's claims to be arbitrated instead of litigated.
- The contract may expressly authorize conduct by the defendant that might otherwise constitute a breach of the duty of good faith and fair dealing.

Judge's Perspective:

Counsel will also want to review any documents concerning the formation of the contract, since these documents may affect the parties' interpretations of the contract. The court will admit evidence concerning any interpretation to which the contract is "reasonably susceptible" [Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. G. W. Thomas Drayage & Rigging Co. (1968) 69 C2d 33, 37, 69 CR 561, 442 P2d 641] .

Cross References:

Discussion of effect of choice of law provision on determination of causes of action, see 2.05[1].

Liquidated damages provisions in contracts, see Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions, 7.05[3] -[5].

Attorney's fees in contract actions, see Ch. 12, Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation.

Arbitration issues, see Ch. 5, Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate.

Contractual duty of good faith and fair dealing, see Ch. 23, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Duty of Good Faith and Fair Dealing.

2.04[3][b] Oral Agreement May Raise Statute of Frauds or Statute of Limitations Issues. If the purported contract between the parties is not in writing, counsel should consider whether the contract may be unenforceable because of a failure to comply with applicable formalities. Furthermore, even if an oral agreement is enforceable, an action on the agreement is subject to a shorter statute of limitations [compare CCP §§ 337, 339] that may preclude the client's action on the contract.

Cross References:

Discussion of statute of frauds issues, see Ch. 15, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Failure to Comply With Applicable Formalities.

Discussion of statutes of limitations for actions on written and oral contracts, see Ch. 4, Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action.

2.04[3][c] Written Communications May Alert Counsel to Potential Defenses. Counsel should obtain and review any written communications between the parties concerning the performance, or nonperformance of the contract. Communications may allude to potential defenses the opposing party may raise in litigation or indicate causes of action the client should pursue.

Examples:

- Communications between the parties may indicate that, if sued for breach of contract, the opposing party would attack the validity of the contract on the basis of fraud.

- Communications between the parties may reveal that there is a disagreement concerning the meaning of an ambiguous term of the contract, which may be resolved by an action seeking declaratory relief prior to a breach by the opposing party.

Cross References:

Fraud in contract actions, see Ch. 17, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Fraud, Duress, Menace, and Undue Influence.

Declaratory relief actions, see Ch. 11, Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters.

2.04[4] Gather Information Concerning Circumstances Giving Rise to Dispute. In addition to reviewing the written contract, if any, counsel should thoroughly explore the circumstances giving rise to the dispute, to determine whether all of the elements of a potential cause of action are present and to anticipate possible defenses.

Examples:

- Client's performance of his or her obligations under the contract, or excuse for nonperformance, is an essential element of a cause of action for damages for breach of contract.
- The existence of a fiduciary or other confidential relationship between the parties may give rise to a defense against enforcement of the contract on the basis of constructive fraud.

Judge's Perspective:

Another reason to review the parties' correspondence carefully is that it may show conduct consistent with one or the other party's interpretation of the contract. Extrinsic evidence of the parties' conduct can be relevant to prove the terms of the contract [City of Manhattan Beach v. Superior Court (1996) 13 C4th 232, 246, 52 CR2d 82, 914 P2d 160 ; Armstrong Petroleum Corp. v. Tri-Valley Oil & Gas Co. (2004) 116 CA4th 1375, 1389] .

Cross References:

Nonperformance and excuse, see Ch. 22, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract, 22.13 -22.23.

Constructive fraud, see Ch. 17, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Fraud, Duress, Menace, and Undue Influence, 17.14 -17.19.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawBreachGeneral OverviewContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesGeneral Overview

56 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 2 Determining What Causes of Action Exist

II. DETERMINING WHAT CAUSES OF ACTION EXIST

1-2 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 2.05

2.05 Potential Cause(s) of Action Depend on Nature of Conduct Complained of, Relief Sought, and Governing Law.

2.05[1] Causes of Action Must Be Viable Under Governing Law.

2.05[1][a] Counsel Must Determine Applicable Law. Because a lawsuit based on a contract may have a significant relationship to more than one state, issues as to which jurisdiction's law applies may arise. Identifying the substantive law that applies to the litigation is fundamental to determining what causes of action exist and what defenses may be available to the opposing party.

If the contract contains a choice of law provision, counsel must determine the scope and affect of the provision on the proposed litigation and potential causes of action. A choice of law provision might include:

- An agreement to be governed by the law of a particular state.
- An agreement that the contract will be construed according to the law of a particular state.
- An agreement to submit to the jurisdiction of the courts of a particular state.
- An agreement that the contract is to be deemed to have been entered into in a particular state.
- Some combination of these terms or some other agreement.

If the application of the choice of law provision appears unfavorable to the client, counsel should consider whether the provision can be challenged.

If the litigation involves a claim arising under federal law, counsel must also determine whether federal law will preempt any state law claims.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of determining the applicable law and grounds for challenging a choice of law provision, see

Ch. 1, Determining the Applicable Law.

2.05[1][b] Action Must Comply With Applicable Statute of Limitations. Any civil action, including a contract action, can be commenced only within the applicable period of limitations, after the cause of action accrues [CCP § 312]. After determining which jurisdiction's law applies, counsel should determine when each potential cause of action accrued to bring the action within the applicable limitations period.

Generally, the nature of the contract will determine the applicable statute of limitations for an action on the contract [see CCP §§ 337 (four-year statute of limitations if contract founded on instrument in writing), 339 (two-year statute of limitations if contract oral or implied)]. Other statutes of limitations will apply to other causes of action that may be alleged [see, e.g., CCP §§ 339(1) (two-year statute for action in quantum meruit), 338 (three-year statute for action for fraud)].

Counsel should also determine whether the contract itself contains a limitations period and whether that provision applies in the instant case.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of statutes of limitation, see Ch. 4, Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action.

2.05[2] Litigation May Be Governed by Commercial Code. The Commercial Code pertains to a broad spectrum of commercial agreements. These include:

- Contracts for the sale of goods (Article 2).
- Investment securities (Article 8).
- Secured transactions (Article 9).
- Personal property leases (Article 10).

If a contract is subject to the Commercial Code, specific statutory rules apply to issues of contract formation, interpretation, and remedies.

Cross References:

Discussion of determining whether UCC or common law applies, see Ch. 1, Determining the Applicable Law, 1.24 -1.29.

Discussion of contract litigation under Commercial Code Article 2, see Ch. 26, Contract for Sale of Goods--Seeking Remedies Under California Commercial Code;

Ch. 27, Contract for Sale of Goods--Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract Under California Commercial Code; and

Ch. 28, Contract for Sale of Goods--Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract Under California Commercial Code.

Search CEB Materials:

Use lexis.com to find CEB materials on UCC sales and leases:

■ Legal > States Legal--U.S. > California > Search Analysis & CLE Materials > Continuing Education of the Bar (CEB)CA > Treatises and Practice Guides > California UCC Sales & Leases

Sample Search: For practice tips and remedies regarding UCC sales and leases, try this search substituting your cause of action: warranty /10 elements OR cause of action OR factors OR remedies.

2.05[3] Statutory Remedies May Be Available for Other Particular Types of Contracts. In addition to contracts governed by the Commercial Code, many other types of contracts are regulated by statute. Counsel must determine if the contract at issue is subject to any specific statutory scheme. If a statutory scheme exists, statutory damages or penalties may be available if the opposing party has failed to comply with statutory requirements in connection with the transaction in question. In some cases, statutory damages or penalties are authorized in addition to actual damages. In other cases, a statutory remedy may be the sole remedy for a specific violation of a statutory scheme.

Cross References:

Discussion of determining whether California statutes govern the contract, see Ch. 1, Determining the Applicable Law.

Discussion of determining whether statutory damages or civil penalties are available, see Ch. 10, Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions.

2.05[4] Facts May Support Multiple Causes of Action or Remedies. The conduct complained of by the client may give rise to more than one cause of action, and more than one remedy may be available. If supported by the facts, counsel should consider alleging multiple causes of action to obtain all of the relief sought by client and resolve the parties' dispute.

Example:

A client complaining of a defendant's unauthorized disclosure of confidential information in violation of a contract provision may seek both damages for breach of contract and injunctive relief to prohibit further disclosure.

Cross References:

Discussion of potential causes of action based on unauthorized disclosure of confidential or proprietary information, see Ch. 25, Seeking Recovery for Unauthorized Disclosure of Confidential or Proprietary Information.

Temporary restraining orders and temporary injunctions, see Ch. 6, Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions, 6.13.

Injunctive relief in contract actions, see Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions.

The determination of what causes of action to allege and what remedies to pursue will depend on the particular circumstances, including:

- Whether there has been an actual breach of the contract.
- The nature and extent of damages incurred by client, if any.

- The client's need or desire to have the contract performed according to its terms.
- The client's need or desire to terminate the contract.
- The client's need or desire to continue a business relationship with defendant.
- The availability of attorney's fees for certain types of contract claims.
- Whether defendant's conduct also constitutes a violation of a statute that provides for statutory damages or a civil penalty.

Decision Point--Thorough Cost-Benefit Analysis Essential:

A comprehensive cost-benefit analysis is essential. Determining which causes of action to assert can only be done on a case by case basis, and requires careful consideration of all of the following:

- A thorough analysis of all available facts and evidence--examined objectively, standing in the fact-finder's shoes.
- An understanding of the client's goal's, including whether the client wants a quick result or a comprehensive result.
- An analysis of the relief obtainable under each potential cause of action.
- Predicting the defenses that may be asserted, counterclaims that may be raised, and their corresponding effect on the scope and cost of the case, including:
 - ☐ The potential for summary judgment.
 - ☐ The amount and extent of discovery likely to be permitted.
 - ☐ The evidence likely to be admitted at trial.

Judge's Perspective:

If the dispute might successfully be resolved by an action for declaratory relief, counsel should consider bringing an action for only that remedy. There is an exception to the bar of res judicata when the plaintiff seeks solely declaratory relief in the initial action [Mycogen Corp. v. Monsanto Co. (2002) 28 C4th 888, 898-901, 123 CR2d 432, 51 P3d 297] . On the other hand, if the plaintiff seeks both declaratory relief and damages in the same action, a later action seeking additional coercive relief will be barred by the doctrine of res judicata [Mycogen Corp. v. Monsanto Co. (2002) 28 C4th 888 898-901] .

Search Current Jury Instructions:

Use lexis.com to find jury instructions:

- Legal > States Legal--U.S. > California > Treatises & Analytical Materials > Search Analysis & CLE Materials > California Forms of Jury Instruction

○ Sample Search: To review jury instructions identifying elements of your cause of action, try substituting your cause of action and search CACI and Matthew Bender California Forms of Jury Instruction in this format: product liability /10 element OR factors.

► Cross References:

Determining whether a breach of contract has occurred, see Ch. 22, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract, 22.03 et seq.

Determining amount of damages, see Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions, 7.03-7.06.

Availability of attorney's fees, see Ch. 12, Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation.

Statutory penalties in contract actions, see Ch. 10, Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions.

Declaratory relief, see Ch. 11, Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters.

2.05[5] Potential Damages May Be Greater If Defendant's Conduct Gives Rise to Action in Tort. Counsel should consider whether the defendant's conduct also gives rise to an action in tort. Alleging both contract and tort causes of action may increase the possible remedies and recovery.

Examples:

- An action by a helicopter manufacturer against a part supplier who provided false certificates of conformance for parts sold to the manufacturer contained causes of action for fraud and intentional misrepresentation as well as breach of contract, supporting an award of punitive as well as compensatory damages [Robinson Helicopter Co., Inc. v. Dana Corp. (2004) 34 Cal4th 979, 984] .

- An action for the unauthorized disclosure of confidential information may be founded in a number of causes of action, including breach of contract, misappropriation of trade secret [see CC § 3426 et seq.], unfair competition [see B&P Code § 17200 et seq.], or breach of confidence [see Tele-Count Eng'rs, Inc. v. Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. (1985) 168 Cal3d 455, 463, 214 CalR2d 276] .

Judge's Perspective:

Note that the tortious conduct in Robinson Helicopter, discussed above, was part of the defendant's breach but still gave rise to an independent claim in tort.

► Cross References:

Discussion of alleging both tort and contract claims, see 7.06.

Discussion of potential causes of action based on unauthorized disclosure of confidential or proprietary information, see Ch. 25, Seeking Recovery for Unauthorized Disclosure of Confidential or Proprietary Information.

Contract damages are limited to the amount that will compensate the client for all of the detriment proximately caused by a breach of contract, or which, in the ordinary course of things, would be likely to result from the breach [CC § 3300].

Tort damages are broader in scope. Tort damages may include compensation for all detriment proximately caused by the tort, whether it could have been anticipated or not [CC § 3333]. If the statutory prerequisites are met, punitive damages also may be available [CC § 3294(a)].

Cross Reference:

Detailed discussion of other tort and statutory claims that may arise in the business context, including unfair competition, false or misleading advertising, fraud, antitrust, interference with economic relationships, misappropriation or conversion, misappropriation of trade secrets, commercial defamation, trademark infringement and cybersquatting, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Unfair Competition and Business Torts.

2.05[6] Contract or Statute May Provide for Recovery of Attorney's Fees. Although costs of litigation generally are recoverable by the prevailing party [see CCP § 1021], attorney's fees are only recoverable if recovery is specifically allowed by the contract or a statute [see CC § 1717; CCP § 1021].

Decision Point--Plaintiff:

In considering whether to pursue potential causes of action, counsel should determine whether a specific contract term or a particular statutory claim will allow the recovery of attorney's fees. In some cases, the availability or unavailability of attorney's fees may be a significant factor in determining whether or not a particular cause of action should be asserted.

Warning--Recoverability of Attorney's Fees Can Harm As Well As Help Client:

Before alleging a cause of action for which attorney's fees may be recoverable by the prevailing party, counsel should also consider, and disclose to the client, the client's own potential liability for the opposing party's attorney's fees if the client does not prevail.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of recovery of attorney's fees, see Ch. 12, Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Federal & State Interrelationships Choice of Law General Overview Commercial Law (UCC) General Provisions (Article 1) Application & Construction Choice of Law General Overview Contracts Law Breach Causes of Action General Overview Contracts Law Remedies General Overview

57 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 2 Determining What Causes of Action Exist

II. DETERMINING WHAT CAUSES OF ACTION EXIST

1-2 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 2.06

2.06 Proper Jurisdiction and Venue Must Be Determined.

Determining the proper court in which to file suit is essential to maintaining any cause of action. In a contract action, counsel should first determine whether the contract contains a valid and enforceable forum selection clause. If the contract does not contain a forum selection clause, counsel must determine where personal jurisdiction over the defendant(s) exists.

The court in which the action is filed also must have subject matter jurisdiction over the dispute. Superior courts in California have original jurisdiction over contract disputes [Cal Const, art VI, §§ 10, 11].

Federal court jurisdiction may exist either because of either a federal question or the complete diversity of the parties' state citizenship. Counsel attempting to seek or avoid a federal court forum therefore should consider not only whether a federal claim exists, but also whether the defendant(s) to be named in the action will subject an action filed in state court to removal to federal court, based on complete diversity of citizenship [see 28 USC § 1332(a)].

Proper venue is determined by statute [see CCP §§ 392-403]. Although the parties may specify a forum selection in the contract, venue selection clauses are not permitted [see Alexander v. Superior Court (2003) 114 CA4th 723].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of jurisdiction and venue, see Ch. 3, Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter
JurisdictionJurisdiction Over ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter
JurisdictionSupplemental JurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureVenueGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureFederal
& State InterrelationshipsChoice of LawForum & Place

58 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 2 Determining What Causes of Action Exist

II. DETERMINING WHAT CAUSES OF ACTION EXIST

1-2 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 2.07

2.07 Arbitration or Other Alternative Dispute Resolution May Be Desirable or Required.

The contract, or a separate arbitration agreement, may provide that disputes be resolved by arbitration or some other form of alternative dispute resolution (ADR). If the contract contains an arbitration agreement, counsel must demand arbitration, rather than file an action in court, unless grounds exist for opposing the enforcement of the arbitration provision.

Even if the contract does not contain an arbitration agreement, and the action is filed in court, judicial arbitration or mediation may be mandatory, if the amount in controversy does not exceed more than $50,000 for each plaintiff [see CCP §§ 1141.11(a)-(c), 1775.3].

The parties may, of course, agree to arbitration, mediation, or any other type of dispute resolution, once a dispute arises. Alternative dispute resolution may allow the controversy to be resolved in less time, with less expense, and with less damage to an ongoing business relationship between the parties, than litigation. If ADR is not otherwise required, counsel must determine whether would be advantageous to negotiate the use of ADR under the circumstances.

Consider:

The advisability of ADR in a particular case is a subject in itself, as Ch. 5, Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate, indicates. Practical advantages to ADR that may be particularly relevant to preserving the business relationship include greater schedule flexibility (for example, to accommodate busy witnesses' schedules on both sides) and generally less publicity, which prevents "trying the case to the press" and thus alienating the other side.

Judge's Perspective:

If the contract contains a mandatory arbitration clause (as an increasing number of contracts do), counsel must become familiar with the arbitrator's rules so as to preserve the client's rights in arbitration. For example, the American Arbitration Association Commercial Arbitration Rules specify time limits for the taking of certain actions. In any agreement that provides for arbitration by the AAA, the parties are deemed to have made the Commercial Arbitration Rules a part of that agreement [see AAA Comm. Arb. Rules R-1].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of whether arbitration or other alternative dispute resolution is desirable or required, see Ch.

5, Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute
ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral OverviewContracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsArbitration Clauses

59 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 2 Determining What Causes of Action Exist

II. DETERMINING WHAT CAUSES OF ACTION EXIST

1-2 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 2.08

2.08 Validity and Enforceability of Contract Must Be Evaluated.

2.08[1] Issue of Validity or Enforceability May Preclude Cause of Action on Contract. Before bringing an action on contract, counsel should consider whether the contract at issue is valid and enforceable. If the client is seeking to prevent the opposing party from enforcing the contract, counsel should consider whether there are grounds to challenge the contract in an action for declaratory relief or rescission. If the client is seeking to enforce the contract, considering issues of validity and enforceability will alert counsel to potential defenses that may be raised by the opposing party. If such issues are likely to arise, counsel may also consider whether to assert claims, such as for quantum meruit, for which an express contract is not required for recovery.

Warning--Always Analyze Validity of Contract, Even If Client Is Seeking Only Damages:

Even if the client's objective is to recover damages for the other party's breach of the contract--and therefore to rely on the contract rather than to contest its validity--counsel should not overlook an analysis of the contract's validity at the outset. Failure to consider these issues prior to filing suit may result in unpleasant surprises when the defendant responds to the allegations.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of asserting claims for quantum valebant or quantum meruit recovery, see 2.11.

2.08[2] Existence or Validity of Contract May Be Attacked on Numerous Grounds.

2.08[2][a] Absence of an Essential Element. The existence of a valid contract is fundamental to maintaining an action to enforce a contract or recover damages for its breach. The existence of a valid contract requires all of the following [CC § 1550]:

- Parties capable of contracting.
- The parties' consent to contract. Consent may be shown by a signed written agreement or by a valid offer to contract made by one party and a valid acceptance of the offer by the other party.
- A lawful object.

- Sufficient cause or consideration.

The existence or validity of a purported contract can be challenged, either as a defense in an action on contract or in an action for declaratory relief, based on the absence of an essential element, such as:

- Lack of a valid offer, or revocation of an offer before acceptance.
- Lack of a valid acceptance.
- No intent to contract.
- Lack of adequate consideration.
- Absence of an essential term of the contract.

Cross References:

Discussion of issues concerning the essential elements of a valid contract, see Ch. 13, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element.

Declaratory relief actions, see Ch. 11, Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters.

Defenses to action for breach of contract, see Ch. 22, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract, 22.61 -22.72.

2.08[2][b] Lack of Capacity of a Party to Contract. To have a valid contract, the parties must have been capable of contracting [CC § 1550]. Under California law, all persons are presumed capable of contracting except minors, persons of unsound mind, and persons deprived of civil rights [CC § 1556].

The issue of whether a contract is unenforceable because a party was incapable of contracting depends on circumstances of the particular case. Even a person not presumed capable of contracting may have a capacity to contract for a particular purpose.

Examples:

- A minor cannot disaffirm a contract for items necessary for the support of the minor or minor's family, if the items have been actually furnished to the minor or minor's family, and the contract was entered into at a time when the minor is not under the care of a parent or guardian able to provide for the minor or minor's family [Fam Code § 6712].
- A conservatee retains the right to enter into transactions to the extent reasonable to provide the necessities of life to the conservatee or his or her spouse, minor children, or domestic partner [Prob Code § 1871(d)].
- A person with a mental disorder, but not adjudged incompetent, may still be capable of contracting [Prob Code § 810(b)].
- A prisoner in state prison may sell or convey real or personal property while confined [Pen Code §

2601(a)].

➤ Cross Reference:

Discussion of lack of capacity to contract, see Ch. 14, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Lack of Capacity.

2.08[2][c] Authority to Contract on Behalf of Another. Capacity to contract involves the question of whether a party to a purported contract had the ability to consent to a contract. A similar, but somewhat different, issue is whether a person who signed a contract on behalf of another person or an entity had the power to contract on behalf of that other person or entity.

Guardians, conservators and trustees have the power to contract on behalf of their wards, conservatees, and trusts [see Prob Code § 2451.5(a)]. In addition to the powers specifically granted to them by the Probate Code to carry out their responsibilities, guardians and conservators may be granted a general right to contract on behalf of their wards and conservatees without obtaining prior court authorization [see Prob Code §§ 2590, 2591]. Trustees have the express authority to execute and deliver all instruments needed to accomplish or facilitate the exercise of their powers [Prob Code § 16248]. The question of whether a guardian, conservator, or trustee had the power to contract depends on powers granted by statute, court order, or trust documents.

The question of whether an officer, director, partner, or employee had the power to enter into a contract on behalf of a corporation, partnership, or other business entity is determined by the statutes governing the particular type of entity [see, e.g., Corp Code §§ 207(g) (power of corporation to contract), 313 (enforceability of contract signed by corporate officer)] and principles of agency law.

➤ Cross References:

Discussion of lack of capacity to contract, see Ch. 14, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Lack of Capacity.

Discussion of agency issues, see Ch. 20, Asserting Agency Issues in Contract Actions.

2.08[2][d] Failure to Comply With Applicable Formalities. The statute of frauds requires that following types of contracts be in writing to be enforceable [CC § 1624]:

- Contracts that cannot be performed within one year.
- Contracts that promise to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another.
- Contracts for the sale or lease of an interest in real property for longer than one year.
- Contracts that authorize or employ an agent or other person to purchase or sell real estate or to lease real estate for longer than one year.
- Contracts that cannot be performed within the lifetime of the promisor.
- Contracts by a purchaser of real property to pay indebtedness secured by a mortgage or deed of trust.
- Contracts for a commercial loan or extension of credit of more than $100,000.

The statute of frauds is usually raised as a defense in an action on the contract. However, certain exceptions to the statute exist, and the party seeking to enforce the contract nevertheless may be entitled to some recovery if the equitable principles of estoppel or partial performance are appropriate under the circumstances.

In addition to the statute of frauds, other statutes regulate particular types of contracts or transactions. Governing statutes require a written contract, particular contract provisions, or other formalities. Counsel should review the governing statutory scheme for the type of contract at issue to determine if the contract has complied with such requirements.

Examples:

- Premarital agreements must be in writing and signed by both parties [Fam Code § 1611].
- Sales of personal property for more than $5,000 require written contracts, with certain exceptions [Civ Code § 1624.5].
- Contracts between inventors and invention developers must be in writing and must contain specified disclosures [B&P Code §§ 22372, 22379].
- Agreements to submit potential future disputes to arbitration must be in writing [CCP § 1281].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of statute of frauds and formality issues, see Ch. 15, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Failure to Comply With Applicable Formalities.

2.08[2][e] Mistake. The parties' consent to a contract must be mutual and freely given [CC § 1565]. Consent is not considered freely given if obtained through mistake [CC § 1567].

Mistake may be either of fact or law [CC § 1576]. Mistake of fact is a mistake, not caused by the neglect of a legal duty on the part of the person making the mistake, and consisting of [CC § 1577]:

- An unconscious ignorance or forgetfulness of a fact past or present, material to the contract; or
- Belief in the present existence of a thing material to the contract, which does not exist, or in the past existence of such a thing, which has not existed.

Mistake of law arises from [CC § 1578]:

- A misapprehension of the law by all parties, all supposing that they knew and understood it, and all making substantially the same mistake as to the law; or
- A misapprehension of the law by one party, of which the others are aware at the time of contracting, but which they do not rectify.

The issue of mistake may be raised as an affirmative defense to an action on the contract and may provide grounds for rescission or reformation of the contract [see CC §§ 1689(b)(1), 3399].

Cross References:

Discussion of mistake, see Ch. 16, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Mistake.

Discussion of rescission and reformation, see Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions.

2.08[2][f] Fraud, Duress, Menace, and Undue Influence. The parties' consent to a contract must be mutual and freely given [CC § 1565]. Consent is not considered freely given if obtained by fraud, duress, menace, or undue influence [CC § 1567].

Fraud may be either actual or constructive fraud [CC §§ 1572, 1573]. A claim of actual fraud may be based on any of the following [CC § 1572]:

- Intentional misrepresentation of a fact.
- Negligent misrepresentation of a fact.
- Concealment of a fact.
- A promise made without intention of performing it.

A claim of constructive fraud may be based on either of the following [CC § 1573]:

- A breach of a duty arising out of a fiduciary or confidential relationship between the parties, resulting in an advantage to the breaching party to the prejudice of the other.
- An act or omission that the law specifically declares to be fraudulent.

A claim of duress or menace may be based on any of the following [CC §§ 1569, 1570]:

- Unlawful acts or threats against a person or person's property constituting duress, as specified by statute.
- Intentional threats or pressure that compelled a party to consent to contract against his or her will.
- Threats to a person's economic interests.

A claim of undue influence may exist when one of the following circumstances exists [CC §§ 1575]:

- One party, in whom a confidence was reposed, or who held a position of real or apparent authority over the other party, used that position or authority to obtain an unfair advantage.
- One party took advantage of the other party's weakness of mind.
- One party took a grossly oppressive and unfair advantage of the other party's necessities or distress.

These claims can be asserted either as affirmative defenses in an action on contract, or by a plaintiff in an action for rescission [see CC § 1689(b)(1)]. A party may be able to allege more than one these defenses to a contract under the circumstances of the case.

A party asserting a claim of fraud, duress, menace, or undue influence should also consider whether the opposing party's conduct gives rise to a cause of action in tort.

► Cross References:

Discussion of evaluating whether a cause of action in tort exists, see 2.05[5].

Discussion of fraud, duress, menace, and undue influence, see Ch. 17, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Fraud, Duress, Menace, and Undue Influence.

Detailed discussion of tort and statutory claims that may arise in the business context, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Unfair Competition and Business Torts.

2.08[2][g] Illegality, Unconscionability, Public Policy, and Similar Claims. A contract must have a legal object to be enforceable [CC § 1596]. A contract is illegal if it is either [CC § 1667]:

- Contrary to an express provision of law;
- Contrary to the policy of express law, though not expressly prohibited; or
- Otherwise contrary to good morals.

A court also may refuse to enforce a contract on the ground that it is contrary to a broader public policy. Although not strictly illegal, a contract contrary to public policy violates wider societal norms. To determine whether a contract violates public policy, the court will consider the nature of the conduct, the extent of public harm that may be involved, and the moral quality of the conduct of the parties in light of the prevailing standards in the community [Dunkin v. Boskey (2000) 82 CA4th 171, 183, 98 CR2d 44] .

While a contract contrary to public policy has broader social concerns, an unconscionable contract is unenforceable because of the disproportionate burden it places on a particular party. An unconscionable contract ordinarily involves both a procedural and a substantive element [Donovan v. RRL Corp. (2001) 26 C4th 261, 291, 109 CR2d 807, 27 P3d 702] :

- Oppression or surprise due to unequal bargaining power; and
- Overly harsh or one-sided results.

The party challenging the contract may raise issues of illegality, public policy, or unconscionability as a defense to an action on the contract or in a complaint for declaratory relief.

► Cross Reference:

Discussion of illegality, violation of public policy, and unconscionability, see Ch. 18, Asserting or Defending Claim That Contract Is Illegal, Contrary to Public Policy, or Unconscionable.

2.08[3] Agency Law May Determine Who Has Rights and Liabilities Under the Contract. If the client has entered into a contract with an agent acting on behalf of another person or entity, agency law determines whether the client can bring an action against either the agent or the principal, or both. Agency law will also determine if the principal can bring an action to enforce the contract.

If an agency relationship exists, the agent's acts within the scope of his or her authority are considered the acts of the principal [CC § 2330]. If the agent is named as a defendant, the agent may be able to raise agency issues as a defense to liability for actions performed as an agent. Similarly, the principal may raise agency issues as a defense to liability if the agent's authority to act on the principal's behalf is disputed.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of agency issues, see Ch. 20, Asserting Agency Issues in Contract Actions.

2.08[4] Status As Third Party Beneficiary May Affect Party's Ability to Enforce Contract. Many contracts confer direct or indirect benefits on persons who are not parties to the contract. A person seeking to enforce his or her rights as a third party beneficiary of a contract must prove that the contracting parties had an express intention to benefit the third party [see CC § 1559]. Express intention may be directly manifested in the contract or may appear from the circumstances in which the contract was created.

A third party beneficiary's rights under a contract are subject to any conditions and limitations imposed by the contract [Mercury Cas. Co. v. Maloney (2003) 113 CA4th 799, 803] .

The remedies available to either the promisee or the third party beneficiary for the promisor's breach of the contract will depend on whether the third party is a creditor beneficiary, who is owed a legal obligation by the promisee, or a donee beneficiary, who is receiving a gift.

A creditor beneficiary may recover damages from either the promisor or promisee for breach [Kraus v. Willow Park Pub. Golf Course (1977) 73 CA3d 354, 371, 140 CR 744] . A donee beneficiary may recover to the extent permitted by the standard contract rules applying to gifts [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Smith & Maescher (1993) 21 CA4th 100, 108, 26 CR2d 133] . If the promisee is seeking to enforce the contract, he or she can recover damages for the promisor's breach of a creditor beneficiary contract, but is limited to specific performance for breach of a donee beneficiary contract [In re Marriage of Smith & Maescher (1993) 21 CA4th 100, 106-108, 26 CR2d 133] .

A third party beneficiary also may recover in tort for breach of a duty arising out of a contract, despite the lack of privity, when some negligent act has occurred [Christensen v. Superior Court (1991) 54 C3d 868, 891, 2 CR2d 79, 820 P2d 181] .

A third party beneficiary has the right to enforce a contract, but not to rescind it [Schauer v. Mandarin Gems of California, Inc. (2005) 125 CA4th 949, 959-960, 23 CR3d 233] .

Cross Reference:

Discussion of enforcing or opposing the rights of a third party beneficiary, see Ch. 19, Seeking or Opposing Recovery As Third Party Beneficiary of Contract.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsGeneral OverviewContracts LawDefensesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesRescission & RedhibitionGeneral Overview

60 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 2 Determining What Causes of Action Exist

II. DETERMINING WHAT CAUSES OF ACTION EXIST

1-2 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 2.09

2.09 Plaintiff Seeking to Enforce Contract May Consider Action for Declaratory Relief, Specific Performance, or Similar Remedies.

2.09[1] Declaratory Relief May Be Appropriate When Dispute Exists That May Affect, or Has Affected, Performance. If a dispute has arisen between the parties, a party seeking to enforce the contract should consider filing an action for declaratory relief, whether or not an actual breach has occurred.

If an actual controversy exists between the parties, a party may seek declaratory relief to obtain a declaration of the rights and duties of the respective parties to the contract or a determination of any question of construction or validity arising under the contract [CCP § 1060].

Declaratory relief may be particularly appropriate if the parties have an ongoing contractual relationship and the same issues concerning the contract are likely to arise again in the future.

➤ Cross References:

Discussion of declaratory relief action, see Ch. 11, Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters.

Discussion of questions of contract interpretation, see Ch. 21, Asserting a Particular Construction of Contract.

2.09[2] Plaintiff May Seek Specific Performance of Contract When Damages for Breach Would Be Inadequate. If the contract at issue involves real property or personal property of a unique nature, counsel should determine whether the plaintiff would prefer that the other party be required to perform the contract according to its terms, as opposed to seeking monetary damages for the other party's nonperformance.

The specific performance of a contract may be compelled except when precluded by statute [CC § 3384]. Specific performance is precluded by statute for the following obligations [CC § 3390]:

- An obligation to render personal service.

- An obligation to employ another in personal service.
- An agreement to perform an act that the party cannot lawfully perform.
- An agreement to procure the act or consent of a third party.
- An agreement, the terms of which are not sufficiently certain to make the precise act which is to be done clearly ascertainable.

The remedy of specific performance is available if damages for breach of the contract would not be an adequate remedy [Morrison v. Land (1915) 169 C 580, 586, 147 P 259] . It is presumed that breach of an agreement to transfer real property is not adequately compensated by monetary damages [CC § 3387]. Damages for the breach of a contract relating to personal property generally are considered adequate, unless the personal property is unique [Wehen v. Lundgaard (1940) 41 CA2d 610, 613, 107 P2d 491] .

If, under the circumstances of the case, it appears that specific performance possibly could be denied, or if plaintiff would also be satisfied with monetary compensation, the plaintiff may seek specific performance of an agreement and, in the alternative, damages for the breach of the contract.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of seeking or opposing specific performance of a contract, see Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions, 8.03 et seq.

Search CEB Materials:

Use lexis.com to find CEB materials on breach of real property agreements:

■ Legal > States Legal--U.S. > California > Search Analysis & CLE Materials > Continuing Education of the Bar (CEB), CA > CEB combined Publications > California Real Property Remedies and Damages

Sample Search: For discussion about causes of action in breach of real property purchase and sale agreements, try this: breach! /5 contract! OR agreement AND cause of action OR elements.

2.09[3] Injunctive Relief May Be Available to Prevent Breach of Contract. An injunction is a writ or order requiring a person to refrain from doing a particular act [CCP § 525]. A final (permanent) injunction may be granted to prevent the breach of an obligation in the following situations [CC § 3422]:

- When pecuniary compensation would not afford adequate relief.
- When it would be extremely difficult to ascertain the amount of compensation that would afford adequate relief.
- When the restraint is necessary to prevent a multiplicity of judicial proceedings.
- When the obligation arises from a trust.

If a contract is specifically enforceable, an aggrieved party may seek injunctive relief to prevent a breach of contract [CC § 3423(e); CCP § 526(a)(1)].

An injunction cannot be granted to prevent the breach of a contract the performance of which would not be specifically enforced, other than a contract in writing for personal services, when the services have peculiar value and the compensation for the services is within certain amounts specified by statute [CCP § 526(b)(5)].

Cross References:

Discussion of seeking or opposing injunctions in contract actions, see Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions, 8.59 -8.71.

Discussion of seeking injunctive relief to prevent unauthorized disclosure of confidential information, see Ch. 25, Seeking Recovery for Unauthorized Disclosure of Confidential or Proprietary Information.

Temporary restraining orders and preliminary injunctions, see Ch. 6, Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions, 6.13.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesEquitable ReliefGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesSpecific Performance

61 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 2 Determining What Causes of Action Exist

II. DETERMINING WHAT CAUSES OF ACTION EXIST

1-2 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 2.10

2.10 Plaintiff May Seek Provisional Remedies to Protect Property.

The following provisional remedies may be used in contract litigation to protect property until the time of final judgment:

- A temporary restraining order and/or preliminary injunction [CCP §§ 526, 527] maintains the status quo by commanding the party holding property to either maintain the property or refrain from depleting or disposing of the property.
- Claim and delivery [CCP § 511.010 et seq.] requires that a defendant transfer specific property to the plaintiff to hold while the litigation is pending.
- An attachment [CCP § 481.010 et seq.] requires property of the defendant to be held by a levying officer for execution after judgment, if necessary.
- A receivership [CCP § 564 et seq.] requires a neutral receiver to hold property that is the subject matter of litigation.
- A deposit in court [CCP § 572 et seq.] provides that disputed property must be held by the court during the litigation.

Each of these provisional remedies has statutory requirements that must be met before the court will order the remedy. Counsel contemplating the use of a provisional remedy should consider the need for the remedy under the particular circumstances of the case, including whether the statutory requirements can be met, and whether the need for the remedy will justify its expense.

Warning:

Provisional relief in contract cases can be an extremely powerful remedy--and can sometimes result in immediate termination of the case (for example, by settlement)--but it is rarely granted, and is highly discretionary under both state and federal law. Even a good case on the merits may not warrant such relief when the claimed harm to plaintiff can be compensated with money damages. Losing a motion for such relief can be disastrous for a plaintiff, in terms of cost, loss of credibility with the court, exposure of one's witnesses and evidence to attack, and other considerations. Accordingly, provisional relief should be sought only when one's case on the merits appears very strong and a good argument can be made that irreparable harm will result absent such relief.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of provisional remedies, see Ch. 6, Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Prejudgment Remedies General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief General Overview

62 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 2 Determining What Causes of Action Exist
II. DETERMINING WHAT CAUSES OF ACTION EXIST

1-2 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 2.11

2.11 Plaintiff May Obtain Compensation for Goods or Services Through Action for Quantum Valebant or Quantum Meruit.

2.11[1] Quantum Counts Are Used When Defendant Is Not Liable for Fixed Sum. The "quantum" common counts are used to recover the reasonable value of goods or services provided to the defendant when the defendant is not liable for a fixed sum. To recover under the quantum counts, the plaintiff need not prove the existence of a contract [see Maglica v. Maglica (1998) 66 CA4th 442, 449-452, 78 CR2d 101] . Although the existence of a contract is not required, the quantum counts may be used when the plaintiff has performed an obligation pursuant to an express contract, and what remains is defendant's obligation to pay for the reasonable value of services or goods furnished [see Meredith v. Marks (1963) 212 CA2d 265, 272-273, 27 CR 737] .

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

Because the existence of a contract is not required, these counts may provide an alternate basis for recovery when a contract is defective or otherwise unenforceable but one of the parties has supplied goods or services.

2.11[2] Quantum Valebant Seeks Payment of Money Due for Reasonable Value of Goods Delivered. The common count of quantum valebant is used to recover the reasonable value of goods sold and delivered [Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 C2d 778, 792-794, 256 P2d 947] . The plaintiff may be able to assert a claim for quantum valebant when all of the following circumstances exist [Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 C2d 778, 256 P2d 947 ; Hallidie v. Sutter St. R.R. (1883) 63 C 575, 577] :

- The plaintiff sold or delivered goods to the defendant.
- The plaintiff's performance was made pursuant to the defendant's express or implied request.
- The defendant used the property for his or her benefit in a manner and under circumstances for which the law imposes a duty of compensation for that use.
- The defendant did not refuse to accept the goods.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of seeking or opposing a claim for quantum valebant, see Ch. 9, Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions.

Jury Instructions:

Contracts--Common Count: Goods and Services Rendered, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 371 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

2.11[3] Quantum Meruit Recovery Provides Payment for Services Rendered. The common count of quantum meruit is used to recover the reasonable value of services rendered [McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 C 84, 86-87, 55 P 761] . To recover in quantum meruit, the plaintiff must show all of the following [Huskinson & Brown LLP v. Wolf (2004) 32 C4th 453, 458 ; Day v. Alta Bates Med. Ctr. (2002) 98 CA4th 243, 248-249, 119 CR2d 606] :

- The plaintiff rendered services pursuant to either an express or implied request for those services from the defendant.
- The services were rendered under some understanding or expectation of both parties that the services would be compensated.
- The services rendered were intended to and did benefit the defendant, and defendant did not pay plaintiff, or cause plaintiff to be paid by another, for those services.

Judge's Perspective:

It is usually good practice to include a count for quantum meruit or quantum valebant if there is any doubt about the validity of the contract or plaintiff's ability to recover under it.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of quantum meruit, see Ch. 9, Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions.

Jury Instructions:

Contracts--Common Count: Goods and Services Rendered, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 371 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Quantum Meruit

63 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 2 Determining What Causes of Action Exist

II. DETERMINING WHAT CAUSES OF ACTION EXIST

1-2 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 2.12

2.12 Plaintiff May Seek Damages Arising Out of Defendant's Breach of Contract, Breach of the Duty of Good Faith and Fair Dealing, or Breach of Warranty.

2.12[1] Action for Breach of Contract Arises If Defendant Fails to Perform or Prevents Plaintiff From Performing Obligations Under Contract.

2.12[1][a] Action Provides Compensation for Party Who Did Not Receive Benefit of Bargain. An action for damages for breach of contract allows a party who has not received the benefit of a bargain to recover compensation for the other party's failure to fully perform. To maintain an action for breach of contract, the plaintiff must plead and prove all of the following [Acoustics, Inc. v. Trepte Constr. Co. (1971) 14 CA3d 887, 913, 92 CR 723] :

- The existence of a contract.
- Plaintiff's performance or excuse for nonperformance.
- Defendant's breach.
- Plaintiff's damages proximately caused by defendant's breach.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of evaluating the existence of a valid contract, see 2.08.

2.12[1][b] Evaluating Claim Requires Analysis of Numerous Potential Issues. Evaluating whether a cause of action for breach of contract exists may involve numerous issues, including:

■ Determining whether nonperformance can be established based on any of the following circumstances:

- ☐ Defendant failed to fully or substantially perform under the contract.
- ☐ Performance was tendered by an unauthorized person.

- ☐ Defendant's partial performance was not accepted by plaintiff.
 - ☐ Defendant failed to make payment in a specified manner.
 - ☐ Defendant failed to fulfill a condition precedent.
 - ☐ Defendant prevented the happening of a condition precedent.
 - ☐ Defendant failed to perform a condition concurrent.
 - ☐ Defendant failed to perform prior to occurrence of a condition subsequent.
 - ☐ Plaintiff's failure to perform is excused, but defendant's failure to perform is not.
 - ☐ Defendant's failure to perform was only temporarily rather than permanently excused.
 - ☐ Defendant's repudiation of the contract constituted anticipatory breach.
- Determining whether the breach was material, considering factors such as:
 - ☐ The extent to which the plaintiff will obtain the substantial benefit that reasonably could be anticipated from the bargain.
 - ☐ The extent to which the plaintiff may be adequately compensated in damages for lack of complete performance.
 - ☐ The extent to which the defendant has failed to perform or make preparations for performing.
 - ☐ The extent of the hardship on the defendant, if the court terminates the contract.
 - ☐ The willful, negligent or innocent behavior of the defendant.
 - ☐ The extent of certainty that the defendant will perform the remainder of the contract.
 - ☐ The timing of the breach, in that a slight breach at the outset is more likely to justify termination, whereas a similar breach later in performance may be immaterial.
 - Determining whether the breach was partial, and the consequences of a partial breach, including:

- ☐ The amount of time the plaintiff must wait for performance.
 - ☐ The plaintiff's right to treat a total breach as partial.
 - ☐ The plaintiff's right to recover damages for a partial breach.
- Determining whether a breach resulted from performance not in accord with the terms of the contract, such as:
- ☐ Substantial performance that was not in strict compliance with the contract.
 - ☐ A failure to terminate the contract in accord with the contract terms.
 - ☐ Performance in an improper location.
 - ☐ A defective performance based on an implicit duty.
 - ☐ A failure to perform an available alternative provided by the contract.
- Determining whether a breach resulted from an untimely performance.
- Determining whether a breach resulted from an improper assignment to another person.
- Determining the proper measure of damages.

➡ Cross References:

Discussion of action for breach of contract, see Ch. 22, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract.

Discussion of action for breach of contract based on unauthorized disclosure of confidential information, see Ch. 25, Seeking Recovery for Unauthorized Disclosure of Confidential or Proprietary Information.

Discussion of the measure of damages for breach of contract, see Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions.

2.12[1][c] Plaintiff Should Consider Potential Defenses. In addition to determining whether the elements of a cause of action for breach of contract can be established, plaintiff should identify and consider potential defenses, prior to filing suit, that might be asserted by the opposing party. Defenses to an action for breach of contract may include:

- The absence of an element of the cause of action.
- A justification for defendant's nonperformance.
- An excuse for defendant's nonperformance.
- The nonperformance or nonexistence of a condition precedent.

- The occurrence of a condition subsequent.
- A waiver of the alleged breach.
- A release from the contract.
- Substantial performance.
- The statute of limitations.
- Plaintiff's failure to mitigate damages.

Cross References:

Discussion of defenses to an action for breach of contract, see Ch. 22, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract.

Discussion of the failure to mitigate damages, see Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions.

2.12[2] Action for Breach of Duty of Good Faith and Fair Dealing Arises If Defendant's Conduct Unfairly Deprives Plaintiff of Benefits of Contract. The parties to a contract are bound not only by the express covenants of the agreement, but also by the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing. In the insurance context, breach of the implied covenant may give rise to tort liability and the recovery of tort damages. In a noninsurance context, breach of the implied covenant may be the basis for the recovery of contract damages [Cates Constr., Inc. v. Talbot Partners (1999) 21 C4th 28, 60-61, 86 CR2d 855, 980 P2d 407] .

To state a cause of action for breach of the duty of good faith and fair dealing:

- There must be a contractual relationship between the parties [Smith v. City & County of San Francisco (1990) 225 CA3d 38, 49, 275 CR 17] ;
- Plaintiff must have performed, or have been excused from performing, his or her obligations under the contract [see CC § 1439];
- Defendant must have unfairly prevented plaintiff from receiving the benefits he or she was entitled to receive under the contract [see Comunale v. Traders & Gen. Ins. Co. (1958) 50 C2d 654, 658, 328 P2d 198] ; and
- Defendant's conduct must have resulted in harm to plaintiff [see Cates Constr., Inc. v. Talbot Partners (1999) 21 C4th 28, 60-61, 86 CR2d 855, 980 P2d 407] .

Although an express contractual relationship between the parties is required to state a cause of action for breach of the implied covenant, breach of a specific provision is not a prerequisite [Carma Developers (Cal.), Inc. v. Marathon Dev. Cal., Inc. (1992) 2 C4th 342, 373, 6 CR2d 467, 826 P2d 710] .

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

A party to a contract should consider alleging a cause of action for breach of the duty of good faith and fair dealing if the other party's conduct frustrates his or her rights to the benefits contemplated by the agreement, but does not technically transgress the express provisions of the contract.

Cross References:

Discussion of breach of the duty of good faith and fair dealing, see Ch. 23, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Duty of Good Faith and Fair Dealing.

Discussion of the measure of contract damages, see Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions.

2.12[3] Action for Breach of Warranty May Arise From Express or Implied Warranty. In contract actions, a claim for breach of warranty may arise from a contract for the sale of goods when the seller has delivered the goods, but the buyer is dissatisfied with them. A warranty may involve the title, character, quality, identity, or condition of the goods [A.A. Baxter Corp. v. Colt Indus., Inc. (1970) 10 CA3d 144, 153, 88 CR 842] .

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

Counsel for a potential plaintiff should consider the possibility of a breach of warranty claim whenever the defendant has provided the goods specified by the contract, but the client is dissatisfied with the quality of those goods or otherwise thinks that they do not measure up to expectations. In evaluating whether any warranties exist, counsel should consider all of the following:

- Whether the contract itself contains any language requiring that the goods measure up to specified standards;
- Whether other conduct or representations of the defendant apart from the contract itself have created an expectation on the part of the plaintiff that the goods will meet particular standards; or
- Whether the law itself requires that the goods meet particular standards.

There are three different statutory bases for actions for breach of warranty in the sale of goods:

- Division 2 of the Commercial Code [Com Code §§ 2312-2317], which codifies basic warranty law.
- The Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act [CC § 1790 et seq.], which provides additional requirements and remedies concerning warranties made to consumers.
- The federal Magnuson-Moss Warranty-Federal Trade Commission Improvement Act [15 USC § 2301 et seq.], which imposes disclosure requirements on warrantors and provides a broad cause of action.

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

Counsel considering a cause of action for breach of warranty must consult the appropriate governing statutes to determine both the requirements for asserting the claim and the potential remedies.

A warranty may be express or implied. A seller's statement of fact or promise to the buyer that relates to the goods, or a description, sample, or model of the goods, that becomes part of the basis of the parties' bargain creates an express warranty [see Com Code § 2313].

Implied warranties are implied by law pursuant to the statutes governing the transaction, such as:

- A warranty that goods are merchantable is implied by law in a contract for their sale if the seller is a merchant dealing in goods of that kind [Com Code § 2314(1)].
- A warranty that goods are fit for a particular purpose is implied by law in a contract for their sale if the seller, at the time the contract is made, has reason to know that the buyer requires the goods for a particular purpose and is relying on the seller's skill and judgment to select or furnish goods suitable for that purpose [Com Code § 2315].
- A warranty that the seller has good title, and will convey it free of encumbrances, is deemed to be a part of all contracts for the sale of goods [Com Code 2312].

Cross References:

Discussion of suing for breach of warranty, see Ch. 24, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Warranty.

Discussion of warranties provided by the Commercial Code, see Ch. 28, Contract for Sale of Goods--Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract Under California Commercial Code.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawBreachCauses of ActionGeneral OverviewContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionBreach of WarrantyContracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsExpress WarrantiesContracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsImplied WarrantiesGeneral OverviewContracts LawContract InterpretationGood Faith & Fair Dealing

64 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 2 Determining What Causes of Action Exist

II. DETERMINING WHAT CAUSES OF ACTION EXIST

1-2 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 2.13

2.13 Plaintiff Seeking to Prevent Enforcement of Contract May Seek Declaratory Relief, Rescission, or Reformation of Contract.

2.13[1] Plaintiff May Seek Declaratory Relief to Preclude Action on Contract by Opposing Party. If an actual controversy exists between the parties, a party may seek declaratory relief to obtain a declaration of the rights and duties of the respective parties to the contract or a determination of any question of construction or validity arising under the contract [CCP § 1060].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

A plaintiff who wants to prevent the opposing party from enforcing a contract or suing for damages for breach should consider bringing an action for declaratory relief to resolve disputes concerning the construction or validity of the contract before the opposing party can claim an alleged breach. Potential advantages to parties seeking declaratory relief may include choosing the most preferable potential forum, catching the opponent off guard, and seizing the upper hand in the court of public opinion.

A plaintiff may challenge the existence or enforceability of the contract in a declaratory relief action on the same grounds that could be asserted to defend an action for breach of contract, such as:

- Absence of an essential element for a valid contract.
- Lack of capacity.
- Failure to comply with applicable formalities.
- Occurrence or nonoccurrence of a condition.
- Mistake.
- Fraud, duress, menace, an undue influence.

- Illegality, unconscionability, or public policy.

Cross References:

Discussion of grounds to attack the existence or validity of a contract, see 2.08[2].

Discussion of determination of questions of construction, see Ch. 21, Asserting a Particular Construction of Contract.

Discussion of declaratory relief action, see Ch. 11, Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters.

2.13[2] Contract May Be Rescinded If All Parties Consent. A contract may be rescinded if all the parties to the contract consent to the rescission [CC § 1689(a)]. The purpose of rescission is to extinguish the contract [see CC § 1688] and restore both parties to their pre-contract position as far as possible [see CC §§ 1691, 1692].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

A party seeking to avoid a contract should consider whether negotiating a mutual rescission is possible, under the circumstances, to restore the parties to their pre-contract positions without the time and expense involved in litigating a future breach.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of seeking or opposing rescission in contract actions, see Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions.

2.13[3] Plaintiff May Unilaterally Rescind Contract Under Certain Circumstances. A party seeking to avoid a contract may unilaterally rescind the contract in any of the following circumstances [CC § 1689(b)]:

- The rescinding party's consent to the contract was given by mistake or obtained through duress, menace, fraud, or undue influence.
- The consideration for the rescinding party's obligation failed, in whole or in part, through the fault of the other party.
- The consideration for the rescinding party's obligation is entirely void.
- The consideration for the rescinding party's obligation failed in a material respect before it was rendered.
- The contract is unlawful for reasons that do not appear in the contract and the parties are not equally at fault.
- The public interest will be prejudiced by permitting the contract to stand.
- Rescission is allowed by statute.

The rescinding party can provide notice of the rescission by informing the other party of the intention to rescind or by serving a pleading in an action seeking relief based on rescission [CC § 1691].

Cross References:

Discussion of seeking or opposing rescission of a contract, see Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions.

Discussion of raising issues of mistake, see Ch. 16, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Mistake.

Discussion of raising issues of fraud, duress, menace, or undue influence, see Ch. 17, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Fraud, Duress, Menace, and Undue Influence.

2.13[4] Plaintiff May Seek Reformation If Contract Does Not Express True Intention of Parties. A party may seek reformation of a written contract if the contract does not truly express the intention of the parties because of fraud, mutual mistake, or unilateral mistake [CC § 3399]. The purpose of reformation is to make a written agreement fully express the intention of the parties.

A unilateral mistake is a ground for reformation only if the other party knew or suspected the mistake at the time [CC § 3399].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

If the plaintiff is seeking to avoid having the contract enforced according to its terms, because of fraud or mistake, but does not want to rescind the contract, counsel should consider an action for reformation. A contract may be first revised through reformation and then specifically enforced [CC § 3402].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of seeking or opposing reformation of a contract, see Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesReformationContracts LawRemediesRescission & Redhibition

65 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.syn

§ 3.syn Synopsis to Chapter 3: Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions

3.01 Scope.

3.02 Objective and Strategy.

3.03 CHECKLIST: Determining If Contract Action Can Be Brought in California.

3.04 Options and Strategy.

3.05 Action May Be Brought in California If Court Has Both Subject Matter Jurisdiction and Personal Jurisdiction.

3.05[1] Subject Matter Jurisdiction Addresses Court's Authority to Hear Action.

3.05[2] Personal Jurisdiction Addresses Court's Authority to Enter Judgment Against a Particular Party.

3.05[3] Both Subject Matter Jurisdiction and Personal Jurisdiction Are Required for Valid Judgment.

3.06 Forum Selection Clause in Contract May Determine Personal Jurisdiction.

3.06[1] Courts Routinely Uphold Forum Selection Clauses.

3.06[2] Some Types of Contractual Forum Selection Clauses Are Prohibited by Statute.

3.06[2][a] Construction Subcontracts May Not Select Forum Outside California.

3.06[2][b] Franchise Agreements May Not Require Venue Outside California.

3.06[2][c] Forum Selection Clauses Designating Forum Outside California Are Unenforceable in Small Claims Court Actions.

3.06[3] Court May Decline to Enforce Forum Selection Clause.

3.06[3][a] Forum Selection Clause Must Be Fair and Reasonable.

3.06[3][b] Valid Basis Must Exist for Chosen Forum.

3.06[3][c] Clause Is Unenforceable If Law of Chosen Forum Is Contradictory to Fundamental Policy of California.

3.06[3][d] Clause Will Not Be Enforced Unless It Provides Adequate Notice.

3.06[3][e] Forum Selection Language Must Be Clear and Unambiguous.

3.07 Determining If Superior Courts Have Personal Jurisdiction Over Party to Contract Action.

3.07[1] California Long-Arm Statute Governs Personal Jurisdiction.

3.07[2] Personal Jurisdiction Over Individuals Exists for Specific Acts.

3.07[2][a] Examples of Personal Jurisdiction Contained in Judicial Council Comments.

3.07[2][b] Voluntary Presence in California Establishes Personal Jurisdiction.

3.07[2][c] Person Domiciled in California Establishes Personal Jurisdiction.

3.07[2][d] California Citizenship Establishes Personal Jurisdiction.

3.07[2][e] Consent Establishes Personal Jurisdiction.

3.07[2][f] Making a General Appearance Establishes Personal Jurisdiction.

3.07[2][g] Doing Business in California As an Individual Establishes Personal Jurisdiction.

3.07[2][h] Doing an Act in California As an Individual Establishes Personal Jurisdiction.

3.07[2][i] Causing Effect in California by Act Done Elsewhere Establishes Personal Jurisdiction.

3.07[2][j] Individual Ownership, Use, or Possession of Thing in California Establishes Personal Jurisdiction.

3.07[2][k] Other Individual Relationships May Establish Personal Jurisdiction.

3.07[2][l] Plaintiff's Filing of Action in California Establishes Personal Jurisdiction.

3.07[3] Personal Jurisdiction Over Corporations Depends on Domestic or Foreign Status.

3.07[3][a] Domestic Corporations Are Subject to California Jurisdiction Even If Corporation Does No Business in State.

3.07[3][b] Foreign Corporations May Consent to Jurisdiction.

3.07[3][c] Foreign Corporations May Appoint Agent for Service of Process.

3.07[3][d] Foreign Corporations May Enter Appearance.

3.07[3][e] Foreign Corporation Doing Business in California Is Subject to Jurisdiction.

3.07[3][f] Foreign Corporation Doing Act in California Is Subject to Jurisdiction.

3.07[3][g] Foreign Corporation Causing Effect in California by Act Done Elsewhere Is Subject to Jurisdiction.

3.07[3][h] Foreign Corporate Ownership, Use, or Possession of Tangible Thing in California Is Subject to Jurisdiction.

3.07[3][i] Other Foreign Corporate Relationships May Subject Corporation to Jurisdiction.

3.07[3][j] Partnerships and Limited Liability Companies Doing Business in California Are Subject to Personal Jurisdiction.

3.07[4] Nonresident Defendants Must Have Minimum Contacts With California to Satisfy Constitutional Requirements for Personal Jurisdiction.

3.07[4][a] Fourteenth Amendment Requires Defendant to Have Minimum Contacts With California.

3.07[4][b] Individuals and Corporations Are Treated Similarly, but Scope of Jurisdiction May Be Limited With Corporate Defendant.

3.07[4][c] Scope of Jurisdiction Over General Partnership and Partner May Be Limited.

3.07[4][d] Commercial Acts Without Physical Entry Into California May Satisfy Minimum Contacts Test.

3.07[4][e] Electronic Communications Without Physical Entry May Establish Minimum Contacts.

3.07[4][f] Internet Activity, by Itself, Generally Does Not Establish Minimum Contacts.

3.07[4][g] Personal Jurisdiction May Be Denied Despite Minimum Contacts If California Action Would Offend Traditional Notions of Fair Play and Substantial Justice.

3.07[4][h] Foreign National Defendants Given Extra Consideration.

3.07[5] Immunity May Prevent Jurisdiction Over Defendant.

3.07[5][a] Diplomats, Legislators, and Members of Congress Are Immune to Civil Action.

3.07[5][b] National Banks Without a Branch Office in California Are Not Subject to Suit.

3.07[5][c] Witnesses in Criminal Proceedings Are Not Subject to Service of Process and Extradited Criminal Defendants Are Protected for Specified Period.

3.08 Determining If Superior Courts Have Subject Matter Jurisdiction Over Contract Action.

3.08[1] Subject Matter Jurisdiction Established by State Constitution.

3.08[2] Subject Matter Jurisdiction Cannot Be Conferred or Defect Waived.

3.08[3] Concurrent Subject Matter Jurisdiction May Exist.

3.08[4] Classification of California Cases for Jurisdictional Purposes.

3.08[4][a] Cases Are Classified As "Limited" or "Unlimited."

3.08[4][b] Small Claims Court Jurisdiction Is Limited to Amounts Not Exceeding $5,000.

3.09 Forum May Be "Inconvenient" Even If Jurisdiction Exists.

3.09[1] Court May Stay or Dismiss Action If Forum Is Inconvenient.

3.09[2] Defendant Must Raise Issue by Motion or Objection Is Waived.

3.09[3] Suitable Alternative Forum Must Exist.

3.09[4] Private Factors May Affect Suitability of Alternative Forum.

3.09[5] Public Factors May Affect Suitability of Alternative Forum.

3.09[6] Some Actions Are Not Subject to Forum Non Conveniens Motion.

3.09[7] Moving Party Has Burden of Proof.

3.10 CHECKLIST: Determining If Contract Action Can Be Brought in Federal Court.

3.11 Determining If Federal Courts Have Personal Jurisdiction Over Party to Contract Action.

3.12 Determining If Federal Courts Have Subject Matter Jurisdiction Over Contract Action.

3.12[1] Federal Question Jurisdiction May Exist.

3.12[2] Diversity Jurisdiction May Exist.

3.12[2][a] Federal Diversity Jurisdiction Is Controlled by Statute.

3.12[2][b] Amount in Controversy Must Exceed $75,000.

3.12[3] Subject Matter Jurisdiction Cannot Be Conferred or Defect Waived.

3.12[4] "Case or Controversy" Must Exist.

3.12[4][a] Dispute Must Provide Actual, Immediate, and Concrete Controversy.

3.12[4][b] Case Must Not Be Moot.

3.12[4][c] Plaintiff Must Have Standing to Sue Based on Personal Stake in the Matter.

3.12[4][d] Case Presenting "Political Question" Cannot Be Judicially Decided.

3.12[5] Supplemental Jurisdiction Extends Federal Court Subject Matter Jurisdiction.

3.13 CHECKLIST: Choosing California or Federal Forum If Both Options Are Available.

3.14 Personal Jurisdiction Is the Same.

3.15 Pleading Requirements Are Generally the Same.

3.16 Substantive Law Is the Same for Federal Cases With Diversity Jurisdiction.

3.17 Discovery Procedures Differ.

3.18 Juries May Differ.

3.19 Judicial Assignments May Differ.

3.20 State Court May Be More Amenable to Class Actions.

3.21 Evidence Rules May Differ.

3.22 Federal Magistrate Can Facilitate Case Management.

3.23 CHECKLIST: Challenging California Court Jurisdiction.

3.24 Challenging Superior Court Personal Jurisdiction.

3.24[1] Defendant Must Move to End Action Immediately Without Submitting to California Jurisdiction.

3.24[2] Defendant Must Avoid Making a General Appearance, Which Waives Objection to California Jurisdiction.

3.24[3] Motion Must Be Served and Filed on or Before Last Day to Plead.

3.25 Challenging Superior Court Subject Matter Jurisdiction.

3.25[1] Challenge to Subject Matter Jurisdiction May Be Raised by Demurrer, Affirmative Defense, or Motion to Dismiss.

3.25[2] Challenge May Be Made at Any Time.

3.26 CHECKLIST: Challenging Federal Court Jurisdiction.

3.27 Challenging Federal Court Personal Jurisdiction.

3.27[1] Procedures for Challenging Personal Jurisdiction.

3.27[2] Avoiding Waiver of Objection to Personal Jurisdiction.

3.28 Challenging Federal Court Subject Matter Jurisdiction.

3.28[1] Federal Subject Matter Jurisdiction May Be Challenged by Asserting Lack of Federal Question.

3.28[2] Federal Subject Matter Jurisdiction May Be Challenged by Asserting Lack of Diversity.

3.28[3] Federal Subject Matter Jurisdiction May Be Challenged by Asserting Lack of Case or Controversy.

3.29 CHECKLIST: Removing a California Contract Action to Federal Court.

3.30 Removing a State Contract Action to Federal Court.

3.30[1] Availability of Removal Option in Contract Cases.

3.30[2] Options and Strategies for Party Seeking to Remove Contract Action.

3.30[3] Grounds for Removal.

3.30[3][a] Federal Question Is Basis for Removal.

3.30[3][b] Diversity of Citizenship Is Basis for Removal.

3.30[3][c] Special Removal Statute Is Basis for Removal.

3.30[4] Procedure for Seeking Removal.

3.30[4][a] Notice Must Be Filed in Proper Court.

3.30[4][b] Notice Must Specify Grounds for Removal.

3.30[4][c] Notice Generally Must Be Filed Within 30-Day Period.

3.30[4][d] Notice Must Be Given to Adverse Parties and Clerk of State Court.

3.31 CHECKLIST: Determining Proper Venue.

3.32 Venue Rules Limit Appropriate Places for Litigation.

3.32[1] Statute Dictates Venue Selection.

3.32[2] Special Venue Rule Applies to Consumer Obligations and Consumer Contracts.

3.32[3] Special Venue Rule Applies to Actions Involving City or County.

3.32[4] Special Venue Rule Applies to Actions Involving the State.

3.32[5] Actions Against Corporations Have Broader Venue Than Those Against Individual Defendants.

3.32[6] Actions Are Classified As "Transitory" or "Local" for Venue Purposes.

3.32[6][a] "Transitory" Actions Are Those in Which Claim Could Have Arisen Anywhere.

3.32[6][b] "Local" Actions Are Those Dealing With Land or Other Local Relationships.

3.32[6][c] Transitory Action Dictates Venue in Mixed Actions.

3.32[7] Venue Selection Clauses Are Not Permitted.

3.33 Challenging and Changing Venue.

3.33[1] County Where Complaint Was Filed Is Presumptively Proper County for Trial.

3.33[2] Change of Venue May Be Requested for Valid Reason.

66 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions

I. STRATEGY

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.01

3.01 Scope.

This chapter covers:

- Understanding the objective and strategy for choosing jurisdiction and venue in contract actions [see 3.02].
- Evaluating whether there is a valid forum selection clause [see 3.06], and whether the facts might cause a court to decline to enforce it [see 3.06[3]].
- Determining whether a California superior court may exercise personal jurisdiction over a party in the action [see 3.05, 3.07].
- Determining whether a California superior court has subject matter jurisdiction over the type of contract action involved [see 3.05, 3.08].
- Determining whether a federal court may exercise personal jurisdiction over a party in the action [see 3.11].
- Determining whether a federal court has subject matter jurisdiction over the type of contract action involved [see 3.12].
- Determining whether a party may be immune from suit [see 3.07[5]].
- Analyzing the doctrine of forum non conveniens, including the suitability of an alternate forum [see 3.09[3]], the private factors involved [see 3.09[4]], and the public factors involved [see 3.09[5]].
- Analyzing advantages and disadvantages of state and federal court options if both are available [see 3.14 -3.22].
- Determining how and when to challenge superior court jurisdiction [see 3.24, 3.25], including challenging personal jurisdiction [see 3.24] and challenging subject matter jurisdiction [see 3.25].

- Determining how and when to challenge federal court jurisdiction [see 3.27, 3.28], including challenging personal jurisdiction [see 3.27] and challenging subject matter jurisdiction [see 3.28].
- Determining how and when to seek removal of contract action to federal court [see 3.30].
- Determining the proper venue for contract actions [see 3.32].
- Analyzing how to challenge venue [see 3.33].

Core Statutes:

CCP §§ 395, 395.5, 410.10; 28 USC §§ 1331, 1332, 1338

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureVenueGeneral OverviewContracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsForum Selection Clauses

67 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions

I. STRATEGY

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.02

3.02 Objective and Strategy.

Enforceable jurisdiction and venue are key components to any lawsuit. Although a jurisdictional defect may be waived if not timely challenged through appropriate procedures, it is best to obviate the cost and expense of litigating an issue that can be properly determined from the outset.

To effectively defend a lawsuit, counsel can save time and expense by correctly analyzing whether jurisdiction and venue are proper. If not, counsel can protect a client from imposition of inappropriate personal jurisdiction. Counsel should analyze the following issues:

- Is there a valid and enforceable forum selection clause [see 3.06]?
- Are both subject matter jurisdiction and personal jurisdiction present [see 3.05[3]]?
- Will the court have personal jurisdiction over the parties in the action [see 3.07, 3.11]?
- Will the court selected for the action have subject matter jurisdiction [see 3.08, 3.12]?
- Do any of the parties have immunity from suit [see 3.07[5]]?
- Even if personal jurisdiction exists, is the chosen forum unfairly inconvenient [see 3.09]?
- Is venue proper [see 3.32]?
- Is removal from state to federal court an available option [see 3.30]?

Although an attorney may have a preference for state or federal court, whether due to familiarity with the rules, the basic scope of practice, or the location of the courthouse, the inquiry should focus on which court would be more beneficial to the client, considering whether:

- Federal subject matter jurisdiction exists, either because of a federal question or diversity of the parties' home jurisdictions [see 3.12].

- A party may be joined or dismissed, resulting in the possibility of removal or remand.
- The differences in either procedure or jury and judicial profiles may be more or less favorable to the client in federal or state court [see 3.17 -3.19].
- The magistrate judge and the tighter discovery coordination, common in federal (as opposed to state) court, are favorable to the client [see 3.22].

Cross Reference:

For Tips on updating case law and expanding your research with additional resources, see How to Use Lexis.com With This Publication at the front of this volume.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil
ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureVenueGeneral OverviewContracts
LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsForum Selection Clauses

68 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions

II. DETERMINING IF CONTRACT ACTION CAN BE BROUGHT IN CALIFORNIA

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.03

3.03 CHECKLIST: Determining If Contract Action Can Be Brought in California.

- ☐ Determine whether contract contains a forum selection clause.

Discussion:

See 3.06

- ☐ Determine if subject matter jurisdiction exists.

- ☐ Is case classified as unlimited, limited, or small claims?

Authority:

Cal Const, art VI, §§ 10, 11; CCP §§ 85, 86, 86.1

Discussion:

See 3.08

- ☐ Determine if personal jurisdiction exists for a California court to issue a binding judgment over defendant based on defendant's status or conduct:

- ☐ Does defendant's conduct or status match one of the grounds for personal jurisdiction under California long-arm statute?

Authority:

CCP § 410.10

Discussion:

See 3.07

☐ Is defendant a domestic or foreign corporation?

☐ If defendant is foreign corporation, has defendant consented to California personal jurisdiction or acted in a manner that will bring it under California long-arm statute?

Authority:

CCP § 410.10

Discussion:

See 3.07[3]

☐ If defendant is not a California resident, does defendant have sufficient minimum contacts with California to satisfy constitutional requirements?

Authority:

Shaffer v. Heitner (1977) 433 US 186, 198-200, 97 S Ct 2569, 53 L Ed2d 683 ; International Shoe Co. v. Wash. (1945) 326 US 310, 316 ; Burger King Corp. v. Rudzewicz (1985) 471 US 462, 474, 105 S Ct 2174, 85 L Ed2d 528

Discussion:

See 3.07[4]

☐ Does defendant have a type of immunity that would prevent obtaining jurisdiction?

Authority:

22 USC § 254d; 12 USC § 94; Pen Code §§ 1334.4, 1555

Discussion:

See 3.07[5]

☐ Determine whether forum is convenient.

Discussion:

See 3.09

☐ Does a suitable alternative forum exist?

Discussion:

See 3.09[3]

☐ Do private factors support the alternative forum?

Discussion:

See 3.09[4]

☐ Do public factors support the alternative forum?

Discussion:

See 3.09[5]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil

ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureVenueGeneral OverviewContracts

LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsForum Selection Clauses

69 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions
II. DETERMINING IF CONTRACT ACTION CAN BE BROUGHT IN CALIFORNIA

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.04

3.04 Options and Strategy.

The traditional bases for obtaining jurisdiction over a defendant include [see, e.g., Burnham v. Superior Court (1990) 495 US 604, 110 S Ct 2105, 109 L Ed2d 631] :

- Filing suit in the defendant's home state.
- Filing suit anywhere the defendant has consented to jurisdiction.
- Filing suit anywhere the defendant has waived the right to object to jurisdiction.
- Filing suit anywhere the defendant can be found.

Usually, the plaintiff determines where to file suit, choosing any forum where jurisdiction over the defendant can be obtained and venue is proper. Defendant's express consent to jurisdiction is unnecessary if one of the traditional bases of personal jurisdiction, such as domicile or presence, is available [see, e.g., De Young v. De Young (1946) 27 C2d 521, 524, 165 P2d 457] . Other relevant factors affecting plaintiff's choice include:

- Whether the action is a class action.
- Whether the cost and expense of litigating in California is relatively favorable.
- Whether there are potential statute of limitations issues.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil
ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsIn Personam ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil
ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsIn Personam ActionsLong-Arm JurisdictionCivil
ProcedureVenueGeneral Overview

70 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions
II. DETERMINING IF CONTRACT ACTION CAN BE BROUGHT IN CALIFORNIA

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.05

3.05 Action May Be Brought in California If Court Has Both Subject Matter Jurisdiction and Personal Jurisdiction.

3.05[1] Subject Matter Jurisdiction Addresses Court's Authority to Hear Action. Jurisdiction, in its broadest sense, is the power to hear and determine causes [Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 C2d 280, 288 ; People v. National Auto. & Cas. Co. (2000) 82 CA4th 120, 125-126, 97 CR2d 858] . Subject matter jurisdiction is the court's power to hear and resolve a particular dispute or cause of action in a particular way and is the authority of a court to try actions of the type or class to which the suit belongs [Donaldson v. National Marine, Inc. (2005) 35 C4th 503, 512 ; Greener v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1993) 6 C4th 1028, 1035, 25 CR2d 539, 863 P2d 784] .

Example:

While California courts can hear a myriad of types of actions involving torts, contracts, unfair competition, and so on under the grant of general jurisdiction by the California Constitution [Cal Const, art VI, § 10], California state courts generally cannot hear actions on patents because 28 USC § 1338 provides for exclusive subject matter jurisdiction for these actions in federal court [Holiday Matinee, Inc. v. Rambus, Inc. (2004) 118 CA4th 1413, 1422] .

Distinguish:

Actions for breach of a patent licensing agreement arise under state law, notwithstanding the potential for state adjudication of federal patent law issues [Applera Corp. v. MP Biomedicals, LLC (2009) 173 CA4th 769, 782, 93 CR3d 178 (plaintiff could prove breach of agreement to pay royalties on products sold under a patent licensing agreement without invoking federal patent law)].

➡ Cross References:

Detailed discussion of superior court subject matter jurisdiction, see 3.08.

Detailed discussion of federal court subject matter jurisdiction, see 3.12.

Discussion of opposing superior court subject matter jurisdiction, see 3.25.

Discussion of opposing federal court subject matter jurisdiction, see 3.28.

3.05[2] Personal Jurisdiction Addresses Court's Authority to Enter Judgment Against a Particular Party.

Personal jurisdiction relates to the court's power to bind a particular party, and depends on the party's presence, contacts, or other conduct within the forum state [Donaldson v. National Marine, Inc. (2005) 35 C4th 503, 512] . Personal jurisdiction in California is governed by the California long-arm statute [CCP § 410.10], which intends to confer on California courts the broadest possible personal jurisdiction, limited only by constitutional considerations [Sibley v. Superior Court (1976) 16 C3d 442, 445, 128 CR 34, 546 P2d 322] .

If the defendant is a current resident of California, personal jurisdiction is a fairly simple matter because California courts may exercise judicial jurisdiction over California residents [see CCP § 410.10 Judicial Council cmt; Muckle v. Superior Court (2002) 102 CA4th 218, 229-230, 125 CR2d 303] . However, nonresident defendants do not come under the personal jurisdiction of a state court unless there exist certain "minimum contacts" with the forum state so that maintenance of the suit does not offend traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice [International Shoe Co. v. Wash. (1945) 326 US 310, 316] .

Example:

An Oregon borrower who sued a creditor for breach of a loan agreement could not also obtain jurisdiction against the creditor's parent corporation, because the parent corporation did not have substantial, continuous, and systematic contacts with California. "[A] parent company's ownership or control of a subsidiary corporation does not, without more, subject the parent corporation to the jurisdiction of the state where the subsidiary does business" [DVI, Inc. v. Superior Court (2002) 104 CA4th 1080, 1087, 128 CR2d 683] . In this case, the parent corporation had no contact with California and conducted no business there except for its ownership of the creditor subsidiary [DVI, Inc. v. Superior Court (2002) 104 CA4th 1080, 128 CR2d 683] .

Judge's Perspective:

A dominant consideration in determining jurisdiction in a breach of contract action is whether the defendant had any connection to the state in the negotiation or performance of the contract. If so, the court likely has at least specific jurisdiction over the defendant. See Virtualmagic Asia, Inc. v. Fil-Cartoons, Inc. (2002) 99 CA4th 228, 121 CR2d 1 (although defendant corporation was not domiciled in California, negotiation meetings for animation contract took place in California, and some work was performed there); Pedus Building Services, Inc. v. Allen (2002) 96 CA4th 152, 116 CR2d 542 (although defendant did not conduct plaintiff's business in California, he made regular administrative visits to the state while employed by plaintiff, and traveled to California to negotiate his termination agreements; thus, he purposefully availed himself of the forum and jurisdiction was proper). There was no similar evidence in DVI.

Cross References:

Detailed discussion of superior court personal jurisdiction, see 3.07.

Detailed discussion of federal court personal jurisdiction, see 3.11.

Discussion of opposing superior court personal jurisdiction, see 3.24.

Discussion of opposing federal court personal jurisdiction, see 3.27.

3.05[3] Both Subject Matter Jurisdiction and Personal Jurisdiction Are Required for Valid Judgment.

Lack of subject matter jurisdiction is such a basic defect that it renders a judgment void, and the defect can be raised at any stage of the proceedings, including being raised for the first time on appeal [Residents for Adequate Water v. Redwood Valley County Water Dist. (1995) 34 CA4th 1801, 1805, 41 CR2d 123 ; Miranda v. 21st Century Ins. Co. (2004) 117 CA4th 913, 920] .

Strategic Point--Both Parties:

Both parties should be mindful from the very outset of whether or not subject matter jurisdiction exists and, when in doubt, raise the issue at the earliest possible opportunity. There is no potential benefit in avoiding the issue, because it can be raised at any time by any party or the court. The later it is raised, the more money and time are wasted if a dismissal results [see also 3.25[2]].

A judgment by a court that lacks personal jurisdiction violates the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment [Kulko v. Superior Court (1978) 436 US 84, 101, 98 S Ct 1690, 56 L Ed2d 132] .

The objection to personal jurisdiction in California must be made on or before the last day of the time to plead, which generally is 30 days after being served with summons, or the objection is waived [see CCP §§ 418.10, 412.20].

Cross References:

Discussion of opposing superior court subject matter jurisdiction, see 3.25.

Discussion of opposing federal court subject matter jurisdiction, see 3.28.

Discussion of opposing superior court personal jurisdiction, see 3.24.

Discussion of opposing federal court personal jurisdiction, see 3.27.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil
ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionGeneral Overview

71 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions

II. DETERMINING IF CONTRACT ACTION CAN BE BROUGHT IN CALIFORNIA

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.06

3.06 Forum Selection Clause in Contract May Determine Personal Jurisdiction.

3.06[1] Courts Routinely Uphold Forum Selection Clauses. Contracting parties may consent to jurisdiction by a court other than one that would have jurisdiction by statute or under case law, and such contractual forum selection clauses routinely are upheld [see, e.g., Carnival Cruise Lines, Inc. v. Shute (1991) 499 US 585, 590-595, 111 S Ct 1522, 113 L Ed2d 622 ; National Equip. Rental Ltd. v. Szukhent (1964) 375 US 311, 315-316, 84 S Ct 411, 11 L Ed2d 354] . This is true even if the chosen forum is far from the plaintiff's base of operations [see Intershop Communications AG v. Superior Court (2002) 104 CA4th 191, 196-198, 127 CR2d 847] .

A defendant seeking to enforce a forum selection clause may move to stay or dismiss the action on the ground of inconvenient forum [CCP §§ 410.30(a), 418.10(a)(1); see Miller-Leigh LLC v. Henson (2007) 152 CA4th 1143, 1149-1150, 62 CR3d 83 (party seeking to enforce forum selection clause cannot do so by means of demurrer asserting lack of subject matter jurisdiction)].

Warning:

The defendant must make the motion at the time of filing a demurrer, or waive the issue [CCP § 418.10(e)(3)].

Strategic Point:

If a lawsuit alleges contract and tort claims arising from a common nucleus of facts, a contract's forum selection clause applies to both [see Cal-State Bus. Prods. & Servs., Inc. v. Ricoh (1993) 12 CA4th 1666, 1677, 16 CR2d 417 ; Olinick v. BMG Entertainment (2006) 138 CA4th 1286, 1300-1301, 42 CR3d 268 (forum selection clause in employment agreement applies to age discrimination claim)].

Search California Points and Authorities:

Use lexis.com to search for documents discussing jurisdiction issues:

- Legal > States Legal--U.S. > California > Search Analysis & CLE Materials > CA Treatises &

Analytical Materials > California Points & Authorities

Sample Search: To find forms pertaining to questions of jurisdiction in actions involving both contract and tort claims, run the following search: contract! w/8 tort! and juris!.

Drawback:

If "parties to a valid and enforceable contractual choice of law provision make an unqualified choice to govern the resolution of their disputes by the 'laws' of a foreign jurisdiction, a trial court may not choose to enforce some but not all of the applicable laws of that jurisdiction" [Hughes Elecs. Corp. v. Citibank Delaware (2004) 120 CA4th 251, 256] . Note that although Hughes involved a choice of law provision rather than a forum selection clause, forum selection clauses (especially those also containing choice of law provisions) may affect substantive law issues.

Cross References:

Discussion of forum non conveniens, see 3.09.

Discussion of forum selection clauses, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances (Matthew Bender).

3.06[2] Some Types of Contractual Forum Selection Clauses Are Prohibited by Statute.

3.06[2][a] Construction Subcontracts May Not Select Forum Outside California. A forum selection clause that attempts to require disputes between a contractor and a subcontractor with principal offices in California to be determined outside California is void and unenforceable [CCP § 410.42].

3.06[2][b] Franchise Agreements May Not Require Venue Outside California. Forum selection clauses in franchise agreements restricting venue to a forum outside California are void with respect to any claim arising under or relating to a franchise agreement involving a franchise business operating within California [B&P Code § 20040.5]. This statutory means of avoiding foreign-state forum selection in franchise agreements embodies a strong public policy interest in precluding enforcement of such clauses [see Jones v. GNC Franchising, Inc. (9th Cir 2000) 211 F3d 495, 497] .

Cross Reference:

Discussion of forum selection clauses in contradiction of fundamental policy of California, see 3.06[3][c].

3.06[2][c] Forum Selection Clauses Designating Forum Outside California Are Unenforceable in Small Claims Court Actions. In actions subject to small claims court jurisdiction that concern the sale of goods, services, or property and arise out of agreements entered into or renewed on or after January 1, 2003, forum selection clauses in the agreements that provide for a forum outside California are void and unenforceable [CCP § 116.225].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of small claims jurisdiction, see 3.08[4][b].

3.06[3] Court May Decline to Enforce Forum Selection Clause.

3.06[3][a] Forum Selection Clause Must Be Fair and Reasonable. A forum selection clause does not, by itself, automatically defeat jurisdiction; it is one factor considered by a court when deciding whether to stay or dismiss an action under the doctrine of forum non conveniens [see Cal-State Bus. Prods. & Servs., Inc. v. Ricoh (1993) 12 CA4th

1666, 1682-1683, 16 CR2d 417 ; Smith, Valentino & Smith, Inc. v. Superior Court (1976) 17 C3d 491, 494-496, 131 CR 374, 551 P2d 1206] .

Strategic Point:

The enforceability of a forum selection clause pertaining to the parties' agreed choice of governing law must be separately analyzed.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of choice of law clauses, see Ch. 1, Determining the Applicable Law.

If the forum selection clause is mandatory and valid, it is enforceable notwithstanding convenience factors to the contrary [see Intershop Communications AG v. Superior Court (2002) 104 CA4th 191, 196, 127 CR2d 847] . In order for a forum selection clause to be unreasonable, the inconvenience must be so grave that it effectively deprives the litigants of their day in court [The Bremen v. Zapata Off-Shore Co. (1972) 407 US 1, 17-18, 92 S Ct 1907, 32 L Ed2d 513] . Courts will enforce a contract's forum selection clause voluntarily negotiated at arm's length unless enforcement would be unfair or unreasonable [Smith, Valentino & Smith, Inc. v. Superior Court (1976) 17 C3d 491, 495-496, 131 CR 374, 551 P2d 1206] .

If the clause is valid and permissive--that is, it merely provides for submission to a particular forum but does not require that litigation be exclusively handled in that forum--the traditional forum non conveniens analysis applies [see Intershop Communications AG v. Superior Court (2002) 104 CA4th 191, 127 CR2d 847] .

Example--Reasonable Forum Selection:

Neither added inconvenience nor additional litigation expense is generally considered "unreasonable" [see, e.g., Cal-State Bus. Prods. & Servs., Inc. v. Ricoh (1993) 12 CA4th 1666, 1679, 16 CR2d 417 ; Hall v. Superior Court (1983) 150 CA3d 411, 416, 197 CR 757 ; Smith, Valentino & Smith, Inc. v. Superior Court (1976) 17 C3d 491, 496, 131 CR 374, 551 P2d 1206] .

Example--Unreasonable Forum Selection:

A forum selection clause that requires California customers to travel to Georgia to recover $40 or $50 from their Internet service provider effectively deprives them of their day in court and is unreasonable [Aral v. Earthlink, Inc. (2005) 134 CA4th 544, 561, 36 CR3d 229] .

Cross Reference:

Discussion of forum non conveniens, see 3.09[1] -[7].

3.06[3][b] Valid Basis Must Exist for Chosen Forum. Absent some logical nexus between either the forum and one of the parties or the forum and the dispute, a forum selection clause will be unenforceable [America Online v. Superior Court (2001) 90 CA4th 1, 12, 108 CR2d 699 ; see Nedlloyd Lines, B.V. v. Superior Court (1992) 3 C4th 459, 464-465, 11 CR2d 330, 834 P2d 1148] .

Examples--Adequate Bases for Forum Selection:

- A party's incorporation in a state is sufficient contact to allow the parties to choose that state's law to govern their contract [Nedlloyd Lines, B.V. v. Superior Court (1992) 3 C4th 459, 467, 11 CR2d 330, 834 P2d 1148] .

- A party's residence in a forum provides a sufficient basis for a forum selection clause [Hughes Elecs. Corp. v. Citibank Delaware (2004) 120 CA4th 251, 258] .

- A particular forum's expertise in a subject may be sufficient as a basis for choosing that forum. For instance, in a case between a New Jersey corporation and a California resident, a forum selection clause choosing New York as the forum was upheld because New York courts have a great deal of familiarity with commercial litigation, since New York is a major commercial center [Cal-State Bus. Prods. & Servs., Inc. v. Ricoh (1993) 12 CA4th 1666, 1682, 16 CR2d 417] .

Distinguish:

California courts will uphold a California choice of law provision if the transaction in question involves at least $250,000, whether or not it bears a reasonable relationship to California as a forum provided the contract is not one for personal services, does not relate to any transaction primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, and is not subject to UCC limitations [see Com Code § 1105(2)] relating to choice of law [CC § 1646.5; see Ch. 1, Determining the Applicable Law].

3.06[3][c] Clause Is Unenforceable If Law of Chosen Forum Is Contradictory to Fundamental Policy of California. California courts will not enforce a forum selection clause if doing so would substantially "diminish the rights of California residents in a way that violates [the state's] public policy" [America Online v. Superior Court (2001) 90 CA4th 1, 12-13, 108 CR2d 699] . If enforcing a forum selection clause would specifically contravene a California law, or otherwise curtail the rights of its citizens, a court will not enforce the forum selection [see, e.g., Jones v. GNC Franchising, Inc. (9th Cir 2000) 211 F3d 495, 497 ; ABF Capital Corp. v. Grove Properties Co. (2005) 126 CA4th 204] .

Examples:

- In America Online v. Superior Court [America Online v. Superior Court (2001) 90 CA4th 1, 108 CR2d 699] , a corporation relied on a contractual forum selection clause and choice of law provision designating Virginia as the forum state. A California court refused to dismiss a consumer class action, despite the forum selection clause, because doing so would have violated a fundamental policy embodied in the California Consumers Legal Remedies Act (CLRA), which contains a provision that voided any purported waiver of rights under the CLRA as contrary to California public policy. Enforcement of the forum selection clause would have been the functional equivalent of a contractual waiver of the consumer protections under the CLRA and therefore was prohibited under California law. In addition, because Virginia laws did not provide for consumer class-action lawsuits, the available remedies were more limited, and the rights of the California consumer class members would have been substantially diminished had they been required to litigate the dispute in Virginia, thereby violating the important California public policy of consumer protection [America Online v. Superior Court (2001) 90 CA4th 1, 108 CR2d 699 ; see Doe 1 v. AOL LLC (9th Cir 2009) 552 F3d 1077 (holding same forum selection clause unenforceable under federal law as to California resident plaintiffs because enforcement would contravene a strong California public policy, as declared by the California Court of Appeal in America Online v. Superior Court)].

- A contract for the sale of securities contained both Nevada forum selection and choice of law provisions. All parties were California residents and the corporate defendant had its principal place of business in California. Despite the fact that the contract had been executed at the Las Vegas airport, the transaction at issue took place in California. The court found there had been an offer to sell or buy securities in California, subjecting the transaction to California's securities laws. It held that buyers of securities in California had the right to have California law apply to any future dispute arising out of the transaction because this right could not be waived by stipulation of the parties to a securities transaction. The Nevada choice of law provision violated California public policy. Therefore, the forum selection clause was unreasonable [Hall v. Superior Court (1983) 150 CA3d 411, 418, 197 CR 757] .

- In an age discrimination claim, a New York forum selection clause in the terminated employee's employment agreement was enforceable because New York provided an adequate remedy for age discrimination, there was no reason to believe that New York courts were less likely than California courts to enforce anti-discrimination laws, and unlike other statutory schemes, FEHA does not contain an antiwaiver provision [Olinick v. BMG Entertainment (2006) 138 CA4th 1286, 1301-1305, 42 CR3d 268] .

- A choice-of-law provision in a manufacturer's consumer contract was unenforceable because the contract contained a class action waiver that was unconscionable under California law, and California had a materially greater interest than Texas in applying its own law [Omstead v. Dell, Inc. (9th Cir 2010) 594 F3d 1081, 1086-1087] .

Drawback:

Forum selection clauses generally are considered prima facie valid and enforceable unless the contesting party meets a heavy burden of proving that enforcement would be unreasonable under the circumstances [Bancomer, S.A. v. Superior Court (1996) 44 CA4th 1450, 1457, 52 CR2d 435 ; CQL Original Prods., Inc. v. National Hockey League Players Ass'n (1995) 39 CA4th 1347, 1354, 46 CR2d 412] . However, if the clause in question contravenes a California policy embodied by a particular statute's anti-waiver provision, the burden of proof will shift to the party seeking enforcement [see, e.g., America Online v. Superior Court (2001) 90 CA4th 1, 11, 108 CR2d 699 ; Wimsatt v. Beverly Hills Weight Loss Clinics Int'l, Inc. (1995) 32 CA4th 1511, 1522, 38 CR2d 612] .

Cross Reference:

Discussion of disputing terms in a contract, see Ch. 13, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element.

3.06[3][d] Clause Will Not Be Enforced Unless It Provides Adequate Notice. Even if one party does not actually read the forum selection provision, the provision will be upheld as long as the clause provides adequate notice of agreement to the jurisdiction [see, e.g., Schlessinger v. Holland Am., N.V. (2004) 120 CA4th 552, 559 ; Hunt v. Superior Court (2000) 81 CA4th 901, 908, 97 CR2d 215 (citing Carnival Cruise Lines, Inc. v. Shute (1991) 499 US 585, 590-595, 111 S Ct 1522, 113 L Ed2d 622)]. However, if the clause does not give the parties adequate notice, there is no mutual consent to that contractual term and no valid agreement with respect to the forum selection clause [see, e.g., Hunt v. Superior Court (2000) 81 CA4th 901, 908, 97 CR2d 215 (citing Carnival Cruise Lines, Inc. v. Superior Court (1991) 234 CA3d 1019)].

Example:

A forum selection clause that merely recited that the plaintiffs' agreement to submit to the "applicable" jurisdiction and to waive jury trial did not sufficiently identify California as the chosen jurisdiction. Plaintiffs' signatures on the contract documents did not confer validity because the clause did not provide adequate notice that plaintiffs were consenting to California jurisdiction [Hunt v. Superior Court (2000) 81 CA4th 901, 908, 97 CR2d 215] .

Cross Reference:

Discussion of disputing terms in a contract, see Ch. 13, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element.

3.06[3][e] Forum Selection Language Must Be Clear and Unambiguous. The language of the forum selection clause must be clear and unambiguous [CQL Original Prods., Inc., v. National Hockey League Players Ass'n (1995) 39 CA4th 1347, 1358, 46 CR2d 412] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil
ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsIn Personam ActionsGeneral OverviewContracts
LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsForum Selection Clauses

72 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions
II. DETERMINING IF CONTRACT ACTION CAN BE BROUGHT IN CALIFORNIA

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.07

3.07 Determining If Superior Courts Have Personal Jurisdiction Over Party to Contract Action.

3.07[1] California Long-Arm Statute Governs Personal Jurisdiction. California's long-arm statute states: "A court of this state may exercise jurisdiction on any basis not inconsistent with the Constitution of this state or of the United States" [CCP § 410.10]. The intent of this statute is to confer on California courts the broadest possible personal jurisdiction, limited only by constitutional considerations [Sibley v. Superior Court (1976) 16 C3d 442, 445, 128 CR 34, 546 P2d 322] .

3.07[2] Personal Jurisdiction Over Individuals Exists for Specific Acts.

3.07[2][a] Examples of Personal Jurisdiction Contained in Judicial Council Comments. Extensive Judicial Council Comments explaining the scope of the long-arm statute were issued at the time the statute was enacted [see Bases of Judicial Jurisdiction--1969 Report of the Judicial Council of California to the Governor and the Legislature]. The complete text of the Comment follows CCP § 410.10 in Deering's California Code Annotated. These comments provide multiple examples of activities and conduct that confer to courts personal jurisdiction over individuals and corporations, and are discussed in detail in the following subsections.

3.07[2][b] Voluntary Presence in California Establishes Personal Jurisdiction. California may exercise jurisdiction over an individual who is voluntarily, physically present within California, whether permanently or temporarily, if the individual is properly served with process at that time he or she is present in California [see CCP § 410.10 Judicial Council cmt; see also Silverman v. Superior Court (1988) 203 CA3d 145, 150, 249 CR 724] .

3.07[2][c] Person Domiciled in California Establishes Personal Jurisdiction. California may exercise jurisdiction over an individual who is domiciled in California but may be absent from the state. A person's domicile usually is the place where the person has his or her home. No person has more than one domicile at a time [see CCP § 410.10 Judicial Council cmt; see also Allen v. Superior Court (1953) 41 C2d 306, 310-311, 259 P2d 905] .

3.07[2][d] California Citizenship Establishes Personal Jurisdiction. California may exercise jurisdiction over an individual who is a citizen of California unless the individual's relationship to the state is so attenuated as to make the exercise of jurisdiction unreasonable [see CCP § 410.10 Judicial Council cmt].

Examples:

- Unincorporated associations are citizens of every state in which their members are citizens [Chapman v. Barney (1889) 129 US 677, 682, 9 S Ct 426, 32 L Ed 800 ; Carden v. Arkoma Assoc. (1990) 494 US 185, 192-196, 110 S Ct 1015, 108 L Ed2d 157] .

- The "principal place of business" of a corporation is either the place of operations [see Kelly v. United States Steel Corp. (3d Cir 1960) 284 F2d 850, 854] or its "nerve center" where the corporation's executive office is located [see Scot Typewriter Co. v. Underwood Corp. (SDNY 1959) 170 F Supp 862, 865] . A subsidiary corporation does not necessarily have the same citizenship as its parent corporation.

3.07[2][e] Consent Establishes Personal Jurisdiction. California may exercise jurisdiction over a competent individual who has consented either by words or conduct to personal jurisdiction in California [see CCP § 410.10 Judicial Council cmt; National Equip. Rental v. Szukhent (1964) 375 US 311, 315-316, 84 S Ct 411, 11 L Ed2d 354] .

3.07[2][f] Making a General Appearance Establishes Personal Jurisdiction. California may exercise jurisdiction over an individual who has entered a general appearance as a defendant in the action [see CCP § 410.10 Judicial Council cmt]. A general appearance waives any objection to personal jurisdiction [Donaldson v. National Marine, Inc. (2005) 35 C4th 503, 512] . A general appearance is made when a defendant either enters an appearance in an action without limiting the purpose of the appearance or, except as otherwise provided by statute, when the defendant asks for relief that only a court with personal jurisdiction over the defendant can give or recognizes the authority of the court to proceed [see Hamilton v. Asbestos Corp. (2000) 22 C4th 1127, 1147, 95 CR2d 701, 998 P2d 403] .

3.07[2][g] Doing Business in California As an Individual Establishes Personal Jurisdiction. California may exercise jurisdiction over an individual who [see CCP § 410.10 Judicial Council cmt]:

- Does business in California with respect to causes of action arising out of that business;
- Did business in California, before the action was brought, with respect to causes of action arising out of that business; or
- Does business in California with respect to causes of action that do not arise from that business, if the business is so continuous and substantial as to make the exercise of jurisdiction reasonable.

3.07[2][h] Doing an Act in California As an Individual Establishes Personal Jurisdiction. California may exercise jurisdiction over an individual who has done, or has caused to be done, an act in California (1) with respect to any cause of action in tort arising from the act; and (2) with respect to any cause of action not in tort arising from the act unless the nature of the act and of the individual's relationship to the state and to other states make the exercise of jurisdiction unreasonable [see CCP § 410.10 Judicial Council cmt; see also Floyd J. Harkness Co. v. Amezcu (1976) 60 CA3d 687, 691, 131 CR 667] .

3.07[2][i] Causing Effect in California by Act Done Elsewhere Establishes Personal Jurisdiction. California may exercise jurisdiction over an individual who causes effects in California by an act done elsewhere with respect to any cause of action arising from these effects, unless the nature of the effects and of the individual's relationship to the state makes the exercise of jurisdiction unreasonable [see CCP § 410.10 Judicial Council cmt; Jewish Def. Org., Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 72 CA4th 1045, 1057, 85 CR2d 611] . When the act was not done with the intention of causing effects in California and could not reasonably have been expected to do so, California may not exercise jurisdiction over the defendant unless the defendant is found to have an extensive relationship with the state [see Kaiser Aetna v. I.C. Deal (1978) 86 CA3d 896, 904, 150 CR 615] . When the act, although not done with the intention of causing effects in California, reasonably could have been expected to do so, the mere causing of an effect in the forum is not sufficient, without more, to afford a constitutional basis for jurisdiction [see Mansour v. Superior Court (1995) 38 CA4th 1750,

1761, 46 CR2d 191] .

3.07[2][j] Individual Ownership, Use, or Possession of Thing in California Establishes Personal Jurisdiction.

California may exercise jurisdiction over an individual who has owned, used, or possessed (1) an immovable thing in California with respect to any cause of action arising from the thing while it was owned, used, or possessed by the individual or (2) a chattel in California with respect to any cause of action arising from the chattel while it was in the state and was so, owned, used, or possessed, unless the nature of the chattel and of the individual's relationship to California makes the exercise of jurisdiction unreasonable [see CCP § 410.10 Judicial Council cmt; see Indiana Ins. Co. v. Pettigrew (1981) 115 CA3d 862, 864-868, 171 CR 770] .

3.07[2][k] Other Individual Relationships May Establish Personal Jurisdiction. California may exercise jurisdiction over an individual in other situations, not specifically enumerated, when the individual has such a relationship to the state that it is reasonable for the state to exercise jurisdiction [see CCP § 410.10 Judicial Council cmt; Restatement (Second) of Conflict of Laws, § 39].

3.07[2][l] Plaintiff's Filing of Action in California Establishes Personal Jurisdiction. California may exercise jurisdiction over an individual or a foreign corporation who brings an action in California, in that action and in any other action that the defendant may bring against the individual or corporation by way of cross-complaint to the extent that the law of California provides at the beginning of the action [see CCP §§ 410.10, 428.80 Judicial Council cmt; Restatement (Second) of Conflict of Laws, §§ 34, 46].

Warning:

By commencing a lawsuit in California, a nonresident plaintiff becomes subject to related claims and specific personal jurisdiction [see, e.g., Nobel Farms, Inc. v. Pasero (2003) 106 CA4th 654, 659, 130 CR2d 881] .

3.07[3] Personal Jurisdiction Over Corporations Depends on Domestic or Foreign Status.

3.07[3][a] Domestic Corporations Are Subject to California Jurisdiction Even If Corporation Does No Business in State. Incorporation in California gives California a basis for exercising judicial jurisdiction over the corporation in any action that may be brought against the corporation in California, even if the corporation does no business in the state [see CCP § 410.10 Judicial Council cmt].

3.07[3][b] Foreign Corporations May Consent to Jurisdiction. California may exercise jurisdiction over a foreign corporation that has consented to the exercise of jurisdiction [see CCP § 410.10 Judicial Council cmt; see, e.g., CCP § 410.40 (providing for jurisdiction over a foreign corporation or nonresident person based on consent to jurisdiction as expressed in specified contracts)].

3.07[3][c] Foreign Corporations May Appoint Agent for Service of Process. California may exercise jurisdiction over a foreign corporation that has authorized an agent or public official to accept service of process in actions brought against the corporation in California, as well as to all causes of action to which the authority of the agent or official to accept service extends [see CCP § 410.10 Judicial Council cmt]. Foreign corporations that transact intrastate business in California are required, among other things, to appoint an agent for service of process in California [Corp Code § 2105(a)(4)], and to consent to service of process on the California Secretary of State if the agent for service of process is no longer authorized to act or cannot be found [Corp Code § 2105(a)(5)(A)].

3.07[3][d] Foreign Corporations May Enter Appearance. California may exercise jurisdiction over a foreign corporation that enters an appearance as defendant in the action [see CCP § 410.10 Judicial Council cmt; Restatement (Second) of Conflict of Laws, § 45].

3.07[3][e] Foreign Corporation Doing Business in California Is Subject to Jurisdiction. California may exercise jurisdiction over a foreign corporation that does business in the state with respect to causes of action arising from the business done in the state, and with respect to causes of action that do not arise from the business done in the state if the business is so continuous and substantial as to make it reasonable for the state to exercise jurisdiction [see CCP § 410.10 Judicial Council cmt; Restatement (Second) of Conflict of Laws, § 47]. A state may also exercise judicial jurisdiction over a foreign corporation that did business in the state before the action is brought, with respect to causes of action arising from the business done in the state [see CCP § 410.10 Judicial Council cmt; Restatement (Second) of Conflict of Laws, § 48].

3.07[3][f] Foreign Corporation Doing Act in California Is Subject to Jurisdiction. California may exercise jurisdiction over a foreign corporation that has done, or has caused to be done, an act in California with respect to any cause of action in tort arising from the act, and any cause of action not in tort arising from the act, unless the nature of the act and of the corporation's relationship to California makes the exercise of jurisdiction unreasonable [see CCP § 410.10 Judicial Council cmt; Restatement (Second) of Conflict of Laws, § 49].

3.07[3][g] Foreign Corporation Causing Effect in California by Act Done Elsewhere Is Subject to Jurisdiction. California may exercise jurisdiction over a foreign corporation that causes effects in California by an act done elsewhere with respect to any cause of action arising from the effects, unless the nature of the effects and of the corporation's relationship to California makes the exercise of jurisdiction unreasonable [see CCP § 410.10 Judicial Council cmt; Restatement (Second) of Conflict of Laws, § 50; Secrest Mach. Corp. v. Superior Court (1983) 33 C3d 664, 669, 190 CR 175, 660 P2d 399].

3.07[3][h] Foreign Corporate Ownership, Use, or Possession of Tangible Thing in California Is Subject to Jurisdiction. California may exercise jurisdiction over a foreign corporation that has owned, used, or possessed an immovable thing or a chattel in the state, with respect to any cause of action arising from the immovable thing while it was owned, used, or possessed by the corporation or arising from the chattel while it was in California and was so owned, used, or possessed, unless the nature of the chattel and of the corporation's relationship to California make the exercise of jurisdiction unreasonable [CCP § 410.10 Judicial Council cmt; Restatement (Second) of Conflict of Laws, § 51].

3.07[3][i] Other Foreign Corporate Relationships May Subject Corporation to Jurisdiction. California may exercise jurisdiction over a foreign corporation in other situations, not specifically enumerated, if the foreign corporation has such a relationship to California that it is reasonable for the state to exercise jurisdiction [see CCP § 410.10 Judicial Council cmt; Restatement (Second) of Conflict of Laws, § 52].

3.07[3][j] Partnerships and Limited Liability Companies Doing Business in California Are Subject to Personal Jurisdiction. Foreign partnerships and limited liability companies doing business within California under a common name are subject to the jurisdiction of California courts [see CCP § 369.5]. Doing business in this state is a descriptive term that the courts have equated with such minimum contacts with the state that the maintenance of the suit does not offend traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice [see International Aerial Tramway Corp. v. Doppelmayr & Sohn (1969) 70 C2d 400, 74 CR 908, 450 P2d 284].

To acquire jurisdiction over a partnership, the partnership entity must be designated as a defendant; naming only the individual partners in the complaint is not sufficient [see Epstein v. Frank (1981) 125 CA3d 111, 119-120, 177 CR 831; Hildebrand v. Stonecrest Corp. (1959) 174 CA2d 158, 169, 344 P2d 378].

A California court has jurisdiction over only those individual partners who personally established minimum contacts with California [Goehring v. Superior Court (1998) 62 CA4th 894, 904-905, 73 CR2d 105].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of minimum contacts and reasonableness tests, see 3.07[4].

3.07[4] Nonresident Defendants Must Have Minimum Contacts With California to Satisfy Constitutional Requirements for Personal Jurisdiction.

3.07[4][a] Fourteenth Amendment Requires Defendant to Have Minimum Contacts With California. The due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment [US Const, amend 14] operates as a limitation on the jurisdiction of state courts to enter judgments affecting rights or interests of nonresident defendants [Shaffer v. Heitner (1977) 433 US 186, 198-200, 97 S Ct 2569, 53 L Ed2d 683] . Therefore, for a state to exercise personal jurisdiction over a nonresident defendant, the defendant must have certain minimum contacts with the forum state so that maintenance of the suit does not offend traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice [International Shoe Co. v. Wash. (1945) 326 US 310, 316] . The key issue for nonresident defendants is whether the defendant purposefully established minimum contacts in the forum state [Burger King Corp. v. Rudzewicz (1985) 471 US 462, 474, 105 S Ct 2174, 85 L Ed2d 528] .

The minimum contacts test is not susceptible of mechanical application; rather the facts of each case must be weighed to determine whether the requisite affiliating circumstances are present [Kulko v. Superior Court (1978) 436 US 84, 92, 98 S Ct 1690, 56 L Ed2d 132 ; see also Floyd J. Harkness Co. v. Amezcua (1976) 60 CA3d 687, 691, 131 CR 667] .

Contacts are meaningful if they are "substantial, continuous, and systematic" [see Helicopteros Nacionales de Colombia, S. A. v. Hall (1984) 466 US 408, 414-416, 104 S Ct 1868, 80 L Ed2d 404] .

Contacts are "substantial" or "continuous and systematic," if reflected in factors such as deliberate presence in the forum state (which might include physical facilities, bank accounts, or conducting substantial company business) and active solicitation of forum market activity, such as operating a sales force or using television to advertise in the forum state [see, e.g., West Corp. v. Superior Court (2004) 116 CA4th 1167 ; Bancroft & Masters, Inc. v. Augusta Nat'l, Inc. (9th Cir 2000) 223 F3d 1082, 1086 ; Perkins v. Benguet Consol. Mining Co. (1952) 342 US 437, 445, 47 Ohio Op. 216] .

Each defendant's contacts must be assessed individually [Calder v. Jones (1984) 465 US 783, 790, 104 S Ct 1482, 79 L Ed2d 804 ; Burger King Corp. v. Rudzewicz (1985) 471 US 462, 105 S Ct 2174, 85 L Ed2d 528] .

Examples--Sufficient Contacts:

- A food franchisee's contacts with California were sufficiently systematic and continuous to provide a basis for general jurisdiction when the president of one of the parties attended yearly franchise meetings in California, received monthly account statements from an office in California, and the company purchased equipment from California [Vons Cos., Inc. v. Seabest Foods, Inc. (1996) 14 C4th 434, 58 CR2d 899, 926 P2d 1085] .
- General jurisdiction was found in California over defendant foreign airline in lawsuit over plane crash in England, even though defendant had no flights in or out of California. The airline's California reservations office and parts-purchasing office represented sufficiently substantial, systematic, and continuous contacts [Koninklijke Luchtvaart Maatschappij v. Superior Court (1951) 107 CA2d 495, 500-501, 237 P2d 297] .
- A website that sells a product or hotel accommodations into a particular forum would support a finding of meaningful contacts [see, e.g., Snowney v. Harrah's Entertainment, Inc. (2005) 35 C4th 1054, 1064-1065, 29 CR3d 33, 112 P3d 28 ; West Corp. v. Superior Court (2004) 116 CA4th 1167] .
- In an action against nonresident defendants for conspiring to deceive and defraud California investors, a California court had specific jurisdiction over several foreign banks, a trust company and individuals because the individuals, acting on behalf of the business entities, visited California for the purpose of obtaining investments from California residents, engaging in significant activities in the state and purposefully availing themselves of forum benefits [Anglo Irish Bank Corp., plc v. Superior Court (2008) 165 CA4th 969, 984, 81 CR3d 535] .

- A California court had specific jurisdiction over an Italian seller of olive oil because the negotiations between the Italian seller and the California buyer were conducted and completed in Italy and California, and the Italian seller was to deliver the olive oil to California and maintained responsibility for the goods until they arrived in California. In addition, the size of the contemplated transaction--more than $400,000 for the first shipment and another similarly sized shipment contemplated--was substantial [Luberski, Inc. v. Oleificio F.LLI Amato S.R.L. (2009) 171 CA4th 409, 419, 89 CR3d 774] .

Examples--Insufficient Contacts:

- Because an out-of-state resident's only California contact was a single purchase of goods from a California vendor for delivery out of state, there were insufficient minimum contacts to establish general personal jurisdiction, even though the California vendor supplied financing to the buyer [Futuresat Indus., Inc. v. Superior Court (1992) 3 CA4th 155, 159-161, 4 CR2d 74] .

- Although regular purchasing activities in a state may be a basis for jurisdiction over an out-of-state buyer, the general rule in both federal courts and in California is that a nonresident making a one-time purchase of goods from a seller in the forum state cannot be subject to the exercise of general personal jurisdiction by the courts of the seller's state [see Pavlovich v. Superior Court (2002) 29 C4th 262, 272-273, 127 CR2d 329, 58 P3d 2 ; Hunt v. Superior Court (2000) 81 CA4th 901, 906, 97 CR2d 215 ; Cornell Univ. Med. Coll. v. Superior Court (1974) 38 CA3d 311, 315-316, 113 CR 291] .

- The mere fact that a nonresident defendant enters California to execute a contract would not establish sufficient basis to exercise jurisdiction over that defendant [Burger King Corp. v. Rudzewicz (1985) 471 US 462, 105 S Ct 2174, 85 L Ed2d 528] . It is important to identify where the consequences of performing the contract really will be felt [Stone v. State of Texas (1999) 76 CA4th 1043, 1048, 90 CR2d 657] .

- The following contacts were insufficient to establish personal jurisdiction in California over a publicly regulated utility operating in the Midwest: (1) the utility's weather derivative contract with Sacramento Municipal Utilities District; (2) its property insurance policy for itself and subsidiaries covering 38 properties, one of which was in California; (3) previous participation by the utility's subsidiary in California Public Utility Commission proceedings; and (4) SEC filings reporting a subsidiary's interest in a cogeneration facility in California [Aquila, Inc. v. Superior Court (2007) 148 CA4th 556, 571, 55 CR3d 803] .

Cross Reference:

Discussion of due process requirements protecting nonresident defendants and specific bases of personal jurisdiction, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 9, Motions to Quash and Other Objections to Personal Jurisdiction; or California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances (Matthew Bender).

3.07[4][b] Individuals and Corporations Are Treated Similarly, but Scope of Jurisdiction May Be Limited With Corporate Defendant. The minimum contacts rule applies to individual defendants as well as to corporate defendants [Arnesen v. Raymond Lee Org., Inc. (1973) 31 CA3d 991, 996, 107 CR 744] . Jurisdiction over an out-of-state corporation does not necessarily mean that the court also may assert jurisdiction over its employees, nor does jurisdiction over a parent corporation automatically establish jurisdiction over a wholly owned subsidiary. Each individual's contacts with the forum state must be assessed individually [Keeton v. Hustler Magazine, Inc. (1984) 465 US 770, 781, 104 S Ct 1473, 79 L Ed2d 790 ; see also Serafini v. Superior Court (1998) 68 CA4th 70, 78-80, 80 CR2d 159] .

Activities undertaken by an individual on behalf of a defendant that is a corporation or other business entity may be attributed to that defendant for purposes of personal jurisdiction if the defendant purposefully directed those activities toward the forum state. The proper jurisdictional question is not whether the defendant can be liable for the acts of another person or entity under state substantive law, but whether the defendant has purposefully directed its activities at the forum state by causing a separate person or entity to engage in forum contacts. That constitutional question does not turn on the specific state law requirements of alter ego or agency, although the inquiry may be similar in some circumstances [Anglo Irish Bank Corp., plc v. Superior Court (2008) 165 CA4th 969, 981-983, 81 CR3d 535] .

3.07[4][c] Scope of Jurisdiction Over General Partnership and Partner May Be Limited. Jurisdiction over a partnership does not necessarily permit a court to assume jurisdiction over the individual partners; even though individual partners are jointly and severally liable for torts of the partnership, jurisdiction over each defendant must be established individually. A California court has jurisdiction over only those individual partners who personally established minimum contacts with California [Goehring v. Superior Court (1998) 62 CA4th 894, 904-905, 73 CR2d 105] .

3.07[4][d] Commercial Acts Without Physical Entry Into California May Satisfy Minimum Contacts Test. A nonresident defendant may not avoid personal jurisdiction merely because the defendant did not physically enter the forum state. As long as a commercial actor's efforts are purposefully directed toward residents of another state, the absence of physical contacts cannot defeat personal jurisdiction there [Burger King Corp. v. Rudzewicz (1985) 471 US 462, 476, 105 S Ct 2174, 85 L Ed2d 528] .

Examples:

- If the sale of a product of a manufacturer or distributor is not simply an isolated occurrence, but arises from the efforts of the manufacturer or distributor to serve, directly or indirectly, the market for its product in other states, it is not unreasonable to subject the manufacturer or distributor to suit in one of those states if its allegedly defective merchandise has been the source of injury to its owners or to others there [World-Wide Volkswagen Corp. v. Woodson (1980) 444 US 286, 297, 100 S Ct 559, 62 L Ed2d 490] .

- A manufacturer's placement of goods in the stream of commerce with the expectation that the goods will be purchased or used by consumers in California constitutes purposeful availment if the income earned by the manufacturer from the sale or use of its product in California is substantial [Bridgestone Corp. v. Superior Court (2002) 99 CA4th 767, 774-775, 121 CR2d 673] . However, "foreseeability" that a manufacturer's product would enter or cause injury in California, alone, has never been a sufficient benchmark for personal jurisdiction; rather, it is the defendant's conduct and connection with California that is the main element, not the mere likelihood that a product will find its way into the state [Carretti v. Italpast (2002) 101 CA4th 1236, 1253-1254, 125 CR2d 126] .

- The assertion of specific jurisdiction was fair when a hotel advertised heavily in California, obtained a significant percentage of its business from California residents, and maintained an Internet website and toll-free phone number where visitors or callers could obtain room quotes and make reservations. The hotel purposefully availed itself of the privilege of doing business in California. The guest's causes of action were premised on alleged omissions during the hotel's consummation of transactions with California residents and in its California advertisements. Because the harm alleged by the guest related directly to the content of the hotel's promotional activities in California, an inherent relationship between the guest's claims and the hotel's contacts with California existed. By purposefully and successfully soliciting the business of California residents, the hotels could reasonably anticipate being subject to litigation in California in the event their solicitations caused an injury to a California resident [Snowney v. Harrah's Entm't (2005) 35 C4th 1054, 29 CR3d 33, 112 P3d 28] .

- When breach of contract claim arises directly from services rendered by a law firm for services rendered in California to a former nonresident client in an unrelated action, limited jurisdiction existed for resolution of the breach of contract claim, even when the nonresident client was dismissed from the previous unrelated action based on insufficient contacts with California [Daar & Newman v. VRL Int'l (2005) 129 CA4th 482] .

3.07[4][e] Electronic Communications Without Physical Entry May Establish Minimum Contacts. Use of the telephone and email to routinely conduct business with a salesperson in the forum state are sufficient minimum contacts to support the exercise of specific personal jurisdiction in a contract case pertaining to those contacts [see Hall v. LaRonde (1997) 56 CA4th 1342, 1344, 66 CR2d 399] . An attorney's mere physical presence or absence in California is not determinative of jurisdiction over the attorney and the attorney's firm when the practice of law in the state occurs by the attorney advising a California client on California law in connection with a California legal dispute by telephone, fax, computer, or other modern technological means [Birbrower, Montalbano, Condon & Frank v. Superior Court (1998) 17 C4th 119, 128-129, 70 CR2d 304, 949 P2d 1 ; cf. Simons v. Steverson (2001) 88 CA4th 693, 713, 106 CR2d 193 (sufficient minimum contacts existed for jurisdiction over out-of-state attorney and firm, because attorney, licensed in California, performed legal services for California residents and therefore practiced law in state)].

3.07[4][f] Internet Activity, by Itself, Generally Does Not Establish Minimum Contacts. Insufficient minimum contacts exist when a defendant's sole contact with California is the posting of source code on an Internet website accessible to any person with Internet access, and the defendant owns no property, has no telephone listing, and conducts no business in California, even though it may be foreseeable that the defendant's tortious conduct would cause injury in California [Pavlovich v. Superior Court (2002) 29 C4th 262, 275-276, 127 CR2d 329, 58 P3d 2 ; see also Nam Tai Elecs., Inc. v. Titzer (2001) 93 CA4th 1301, 1311-1313, 113 CR2d 769 (registering a nickname or alias with Yahoo!)] .

Insufficient minimum contacts also exist when a defendant merely maintains a website advertisement in one state and has no contacts with the forum state other than maintaining an essentially passive home page that is accessible to citizens of the forum state, and everyone else, over the Internet [Cybersell, Inc. v. Cybersell, Inc. (9th Cir 1997) 130 F3d 414, 415-420 (distinguishing cases involving interactive websites and greater levels of actual contact); see also Shisler v. Sanfer Sports Cars, Inc. (2006) 146 CA4th 1254, 1261, 53 CR3d 335 (no personal jurisdiction over operator of website that merely advertised vehicles and included credit application, but did not conduct business via the site or specifically target California residents)].

Insufficient minimum contacts exist over nonresident defendants based on their contract with one or more Internet service providers who happen to maintain offices in California, so as to permit defendants to operate a passive website from their New York residence when the Internet providers were engaged by a corporate defendant from its computer in New York [see Jewish Def. Org., Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 72 CA4th 1045, 1057-1062, 85 CR2d 611] .

Distinguish:

Sufficient minimum contacts exist over Nevada hotels that operate a website touting their proximity to California, providing driving directions from California, and permitting California patrons to make reservations using the website [Snowney v. Harrah's Entertainment, Inc. (2005) 35 C4th 1054, 1064-1065] .

To determine whether a website is sufficient to establish purposeful availment, a court first looks to a sliding scale analysis. At one end of the spectrum are situations in which a defendant clearly does business over the Internet. If the defendant enters into contracts with residents of a foreign jurisdiction that involve the knowing and repeated transmission of computer files over the Internet, personal jurisdiction is proper. At the opposite end are situations in which a defendant has simply posted information on an Internet website which is accessible to users in foreign jurisdictions. A passive website that does little more than make information available to those who are interested in it is not grounds for the exercise of personal jurisdiction. The middle ground is occupied by interactive websites where a user can exchange information with the host computer. In these cases, the exercise of jurisdiction is determined by examining the level of interactivity and commercial nature of the exchange of information that occurs on the website [see Snowney v. Harrah's Entm't (2005) 35 C4th 1054, 1063] .

3.07[4][g] Personal Jurisdiction May Be Denied Despite Minimum Contacts If California Action Would Offend Traditional Notions of Fair Play and Substantial Justice. The minimum requirements of "fair play and substantial justice" may defeat the reasonableness of jurisdiction even if the defendant has purposefully engaged in forum activities and minimum contacts exist [Burger King Corp. v. Rudzewicz (1985) 471 US 462, 477, 105 S Ct 2174, 85 L Ed2d 528 ; Haisten v. Grass Valley Med. Reimbursement (9th Cir 1986) 784 F2d 1392, 1397] . When deciding whether to deny personal jurisdiction in these situations, the court considers [Burger King Corp. v. Rudzewicz (1985) 471 US 462, 476-477, 105 S Ct 2174, 85 L Ed2d 528] :

- The burden on the defendant.
- The forum state's interest in adjudicating the dispute.
- The plaintiff's interest in obtaining convenient and effective relief.
- The interstate judicial system's interest in obtaining the most efficient resolution of controversies.
- The shared interest of the several states in furthering fundamental substantive social policies.

3.07[4][h] Foreign National Defendants Given Extra Consideration. The difficulties for a foreign national to defend itself in a foreign legal system has significant weight in assessing the reasonableness of applying the long-arm statute of personal jurisdiction over national borders, but if minimum contacts are sufficient, personal jurisdiction over the foreign national may be upheld [see Asahi Metal Indus. Co. v. Superior Court (1987) 480 US 102, 114, 107 S Ct 1026, 94 L Ed2d 92] .

3.07[5] Immunity May Prevent Jurisdiction Over Defendant.

3.07[5][a] Diplomats, Legislators, and Members of Congress Are Immune to Civil Action. Heads of foreign diplomatic missions and members of their staffs having diplomatic rank are immune to civil actions and proceedings; this immunity does not extend to consular officers who are mainly concerned with the commercial interests of their nationals [see 22 USC § 254d; Restatement (Second) of Foreign Relations Law of the United States, §§ 73, 74, 81]. Members of the California legislature are immune to civil process during, and for five days before and after, a legislative session [Cal Const, art IV, § 14]. Members of the United States Congress are subject to civil process [see Long v. Ansell (1934) 293 US 76, 81-83, 55 S Ct 21, 79 L Ed 208] .

3.07[5][b] National Banks Without a Branch Office in California Are Not Subject to Suit. A national bank coming within the provisions of 12 USC § 94 and having no branch in California is not subject to suit in California [see Citizens & S. Nat'l Bank v. Bougas (1977) 434 US 35, 38, 98 S Ct 88, 54 L Ed2d 218 ; Kaiser Aetna v. I.C. Deal (1978) 86 CA3d 896, 899, 150 CR 615] . A national bank may be subject to suit in California when it intentionally does an act elsewhere knowing that the effect of that act will be experienced in California [United Cal. Bank v. First Bank of Oak Park (1979) 98 CA3d 439, 442-444, 159 CR 607] .

3.07[5][c] Witnesses in Criminal Proceedings Are Not Subject to Service of Process and Extradited Criminal Defendants Are Protected for Specified Period. A person who comes into California in obedience to a subpoena directing the person to attend and testify in this state is not, while in California pursuant to the subpoena or order, subject to arrest or the service of process, civil or criminal, in connection with matters that arose before the person's entrance into this state under the subpoena [Pen Code § 1334.4]. A person brought into California on or after waiver of extradition based on a criminal charge is not subject to service of process in civil actions arising out of the same facts as the criminal proceedings for which the person is returned until the person has been convicted in the criminal proceeding or, if acquitted, until the person has had reasonable opportunity to return to the state from which the person was extradited [Pen Code § 1555].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsConstitutional LimitsCivil
 ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsIn Personam ActionsDoing BusinessCivil
 ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsIn Personam ActionsDomicileCivil
 ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsIn Personam ActionsLong-Arm JurisdictionCivil
 ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsIn Personam ActionsSubstantial Contacts

73 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions
II. DETERMINING IF CONTRACT ACTION CAN BE BROUGHT IN CALIFORNIA

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.08

3.08 Determining If Superior Courts Have Subject Matter Jurisdiction Over Contract Action.

3.08[1] Subject Matter Jurisdiction Established by State Constitution. Superior courts in California have original jurisdiction over contract disputes [Cal Const, art VI, §§ 10, 11].

3.08[2] Subject Matter Jurisdiction Cannot Be Conferred or Defect Waived. If the court in which the action is filed does not have the authority to adjudicate the dispute, the proceedings are void [Marlow v. Campbell (1992) 7 CA4th 921, 928, 9 CR2d 516] . A subject matter jurisdictional defect cannot be waived [see People v. National Auto. & Cas. Ins. Co. (2000) 82 CA4th 120, 125, 97 CR2d 858] . However, a court that has subject matter jurisdiction may adjudicate the case, even in the wrong venue, unless the defendant makes a timely motion for transfer [see Lipari v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1993) 16 CA4th 667, 672, 20 CR2d 246] .

3.08[3] Concurrent Subject Matter Jurisdiction May Exist. California courts lack jurisdiction over the subject matter of a cause of action when jurisdiction is vested by federal law exclusively in a federal court or agency [see, e.g., Holiday Matinee, Inc. v. Rambus, Inc. (2004) 118 CA4th 1413, 1422] . However, some federal statutes creating a right of action expressly give the state and federal courts concurrent jurisdiction to enforce the right [see, e.g., 28 USC § 1352 (action on a bond executed under any law of the United States except matters within the jurisdiction of the Court of International Trade); 45 USC § 56 (claims under the Federal Employers' Liability Act)]. The general rule is that state courts may assume subject matter jurisdiction over a federal cause of action, absent a provision by Congress to the contrary or a disabling incompatibility between the federal and state court adjudication [Tafflin v. Levitt (1990) 493 US 455, 459, 110 S Ct 792, 107 L Ed2d 887] .

➡ Cross References:

Challenging superior court subject matter jurisdiction, see 3.25.

Determining if there is federal court jurisdiction, see 3.11, 3.12.

Discussion of an action commenced in wrong court, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 571, Venue (Matthew Bender).

Discussion of courts having jurisdiction to determine jurisdiction and form for making a motion to transfer or dismiss the action because the court lacks subject matter jurisdiction, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 10, Dismissal for Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction; or California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter Jurisdiction (Matthew Bender).

3.08[4] Classification of California Cases for Jurisdictional Purposes.

3.08[4][a] Cases Are Classified As "Limited" or "Unlimited." The classification of a case as limited or unlimited in the California courts is determined by the amount in controversy and whether the relief sought may be granted in a limited civil case [CCP §§ 85, 86, 86.1]. Superior courts can hear both limited and unlimited civil cases [CCP § 32.5]. "Limited" civil cases have special jurisdictional rules and limitations, as well as procedural differences.

Examples:

- The amount in controversy for a limited civil case is $25,000 or less [CCP § 85].
- An answer to a verified complaint in a limited civil case need not be verified [CCP § 92(b)].
- Limited civil cases include suits for reformation of a contract if sought in connection with an action on the contract for $25,000 or less [CCP § 86(a)(3)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of limited civil cases, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 345A, Limited Civil Cases; Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter Jurisdiction (Matthew Bender).

3.08[4][b] Small Claims Court Jurisdiction Is Limited to Amounts Not Exceeding $5,000. Small claims courts provide simplified adjudication in actions for money damages not in excess of $5,000 or enforcement of payment of delinquent unsecured personal property taxes in an amount not exceeding $5,000 [CCP § 116.220]. If the lack of jurisdiction is due solely to an excess in the amount of money demanded, the excess amount may be waived, but any waiver will not become operative until judgment [CCP § 116.220(d)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of transferring cases within the unified California court system, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 571, Venue (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionJurisdiction Over ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionJurisdiction Over ActionsConcurrent JurisdictionCivil ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionJurisdiction Over ActionsGeneral JurisdictionCivil ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionJurisdiction Over ActionsLimited Jurisdiction

74 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions
II. DETERMINING IF CONTRACT ACTION CAN BE BROUGHT IN CALIFORNIA

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.09

3.09 Forum May Be "Inconvenient" Even If Jurisdiction Exists.

3.09[1] Court May Stay or Dismiss Action If Forum Is Inconvenient. Even if a court has both subject matter jurisdiction and personal jurisdiction over the parties, it may stay or dismiss the action on the ground that the particular court is an inconvenient forum [CCP § 418.10(a)]. The doctrine, traditionally known as forum non conveniens, is generally codified in CCP §§ 410.30, 418.10(a)(2).

The issue is not whether some other location (state or country) provides a better forum for the litigation, but whether California is a seriously inconvenient forum [Ford Motor Co. v. Insurance Co. of N. Am. (1995) 35 CA4th 604, 611, 41 CR2d 342] .

Cross References:

Discussion of dismissing a case in federal court under the doctrine of forum non conveniens and form for motion to transfer venue for convenience in federal court, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, Ch. 2, Determining Forum (Jurisdiction and Venue).

Discussion of forum non conveniens, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances (Matthew Bender).

Discussion of presumptions relating to California residents and inconvenient forum, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 132, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction and Inconvenient Forum (Matthew Bender).

3.09[2] Defendant Must Raise Issue by Motion or Objection Is Waived. The defendant must raise the issue of inconvenient forum by filing a motion on or before the last day of defendant's time to plead, or within any further time that the court may allow for good cause [CC § 418.10(a)(2)]. Failure to make a forum non conveniens motion at the time of filing a demurrer or a motion to strike waives the objection [CCP § 418.10(e)(3)].

3.09[3] Suitable Alternative Forum Must Exist. Before a court can rule that California is an inconvenient forum, there must be another forum in which a valid judgment may be obtained against the defendant [Stangvik v. Shiley, Inc. (1991) 54 C3d 744, 751, 1 CR2d 556, 819 P2d 14] .

If the court determines that the alternate forum is a suitable place for trial, its next step is to consider the private interests of the litigants and the interests of the public in retaining the action for trial in California [Stangvik v. Shiley, Inc. (1991) 54 C3d 744, 751, 1 CR2d 556, 819 P2d 14] .

Cross Reference:

Discussion of establishing inconvenient forum, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances (Matthew Bender).

3.09[4] Private Factors May Affect Suitability of Alternative Forum. The private factors identified as relevant to a court's inquiry in determining whether to grant a motion based on inconvenient forum are [Stangvik v. Shiley, Inc. (1991) 54 C3d 744, 751, 1 CR2d 556, 819 P2d 14] :

- Access to sources of evidence and proof (location of physical evidence and witnesses, etc.).
- The cost of obtaining the attendance of witnesses.
- The availability of compulsory process for attendance of unwilling witnesses.

3.09[5] Public Factors May Affect Suitability of Alternative Forum. The public factors relevant to a determination whether to grant a motion based on inconvenient forum include the following [Stangvik v. Shiley, Inc. (1991) 54 C3d 744, 751, 1 CR2d 556, 819 P2d 14] :

- The burden on already overworked courts.
- The interests of potential jurors so they are not called upon to decide cases in which the local community has little concern.
- Weighing the competing interests of the state and the alternative forum in the litigation.

3.09[6] Some Actions Are Not Subject to Forum Non Conveniens Motion. An action cannot be dismissed on the ground of forum non conveniens if the action involves a contract that does all of the following [CCP § 410.40]:

- Designates California law as governing, either in whole or in part.
- Relates to a transaction involving at least $1,000,000 (or more).
- Contains an agreement by any nonresident parties to submit to the jurisdiction of the California courts.

3.09[7] Moving Party Has Burden of Proof. On a motion for forum non conveniens, the defendant, as the moving party, bears the burden of proof. The granting or denial of such a motion is within the trial court's discretion, and substantial deference is accorded its determination in this regard [Stangvik v. Shiley, Inc. (1991) 54 C3d 744, 751, 1 CR2d 556, 819 P2d 14 ; Piper Aircraft Co. v. Reyno (1981) 454 US 235, 257, 102 S Ct 252, 70 L Ed2d 419] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionJurisdiction Over ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureVenueForum Non ConveniensCivil ProcedureVenueMotions to TransferGeneral Overview

75 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions

III. DETERMINING IF CONTRACT ACTION CAN BE BROUGHT IN FEDERAL COURT

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.10

3.10 CHECKLIST: Determining If Contract Action Can Be Brought in Federal Court.

- ☐ Determine if federal court has personal jurisdiction over parties.

Authority:

Fed R Civ P 4(k)(1); Omni Capital Int'l v. Rudolf Wolff & Co., Ltd. (1987) 484 US 97, 101, 108 S Ct 404, 98 L Ed2d 415 ; Brainerd v. Governors of the Univ. of Alberta (9th Cir 1989) 873 F2d 1257, 1258 ; Fed R Civ P 4(k)(2)

Discussion:

See 3.11

- ☐ Determine if federal court has subject matter jurisdiction over action.

- ☐ Does case present a federal question?

Authority:

28 USC § 1331; Clinton v. Babbitt (9th Cir 1999) 180 F3d 1081, 1086-1087 ; Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) v. United States (9th Cir 1989) 870 F2d 518, 524 ; Church of Scientology Int'l v. Kolts (CD Cal 1994) 846 F Supp 873, 878 ; 5 USC § 702; Abbott Labs. v. Gardner (1967) 387 US 136, 140, 87 S Ct 1507, 18 L Ed2d 681 , overruled on other grounds by Califano v. Sanders (1977) 430 US 99, 97 S Ct 980, 51 L Ed2d 192

Discussion:

See 3.12[1]

- ☐ Does case involve diversity jurisdiction?

Authority:

28 USC § 1332(a)(1); 28 USC § 1332(a)(2); 28 USC § 1332(a)(3); 28 USC § 1332(a)(4)

Discussion:

See 3.12[2][a]

- ☐ Does amount in controversy exceed $75,000?

Authority:

28 USC § 1332(a); Bank of Cal. v. Twin Harbors Lumber Co. (9th Cir 1972) 465 F2d 489, 491

Discussion:

See 3.12[2][b]

- ☐ Is there a "case or controversy"?
- ☐ Does dispute involve an actual, immediate, and concrete controversy?

Discussion:

3.12[4][a]

- ☐ Is case moot?

Authority:

Abbott Labs. v. Gardner (1967) 387 US 136, 149, 87 S Ct 1507, 18 L Ed2d 681 , overruled on other grounds by Califano v. Sanders (1977) 430 US 99, 97 S Ct 980, 51 L
Ed2d 192

- ☐ Is threatened harm capable of repetition while evading review?

Authority:

Southern Pac. Terminal Co. v. Interstate Commerce Comm'n (1911) 219 US 498, 515,
31 S Ct 279, 55 L Ed 310 ; Roe v. Wade (1973) 410 US 113, 125, 93 S Ct 705, 35 L
Ed2d 147

Discussion:

3.12[4][b]

- ☐ Determine if plaintiff has standing to sue based on personal stake in matter.

- ☐ Did plaintiff suffer some redressable injury attributable to defendant's conduct?
- ☐ Does action fall within zone of interests protected by some legal rule?
- ☐ Did plaintiff sustain an injury that could be remedied by relief sought?

Discussion:

See 3.12[4][c]

- ☐ Evaluate whether case presents a "political question" that cannot be judicially decided.

Authority:

Baker v. Carr (1962) 369 US 186, 208-211, 82 S Ct 691, 7 L Ed2d 663

Discussion:

See 3.12[4][d]

- ☐ Determine if supplemental jurisdiction extends federal court subject matter jurisdiction.

- ☐ Did claims arise from a common nucleus of operative fact?
- ☐ Are claims of a type that would ordinarily be tried together in one proceeding?

Discussion:

See 3.12[5]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil
ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter
JurisdictionFederal QuestionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsAbstention

76 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions

III. DETERMINING IF CONTRACT ACTION CAN BE BROUGHT IN FEDERAL COURT

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.11

3.11 Determining If Federal Courts Have Personal Jurisdiction Over Party to Contract Action.

California and federal personal jurisdiction are co-extensive. Thus, if one can obtain jurisdiction over a defendant in state court through one of the bases discussed above, personal jurisdiction would also exist in a California federal court [see Fed R Civ P 4(k)(1); Omni Capital Int'l v. Rudolf Wolff & Co., Ltd. (1987) 484 US 97, 101, 108 S Ct 404, 98 L Ed2d 415]. A federal court need only determine whether the assertion of personal jurisdiction violates the Due Process Clause [Brainerd v. Governors of the Univ. of Alberta (9th Cir 1989) 873 F2d 1257, 1258] .

Cross References:

Discussion of personal jurisdiction requirements in state court, see 3.07.

Discussion of immunity that may prevent jurisdiction over defendant, see 3.07[5].

Defendants who are not subject to personal jurisdiction in any state court, but who have contacts with the United States as a whole, may be subject to personal jurisdiction in federal question cases [see Fed R Civ P 4(k)(2)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil
 ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsConstitutional LimitsCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal
 Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsIn Personam ActionsLong-Arm JurisdictionCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal
 Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsIn Personam ActionsMinimum Contacts

77 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions

III. DETERMINING IF CONTRACT ACTION CAN BE BROUGHT IN FEDERAL COURT

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.12

3.12 Determining If Federal Courts Have Subject Matter Jurisdiction Over Contract Action.

3.12[1] Federal Question Jurisdiction May Exist. A party may invoke federal question jurisdiction in a contract action by:

- Claiming that a statute is facially inconsistent with the US Constitution [see Clinton v. Babbitt (9th Cir 1999) 180 F3d 1081, 1086-1087 (Navajo Nation members living on Hopi lands sufficiently invoked federal question jurisdiction by alleging that proposed leases violated equal protection regardless of whether members stated claim on which relief could be granted)].
- Claiming that defendant's conduct violated plaintiff's constitutional rights [see Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) v. United States (9th Cir 1989) 870 F2d 518, 524 (federal jurisdiction over declaratory relief suit alleging violation of the First and Fourth Amendments); Church of Scientology Int'l v. Kolts (CD Cal 1994) 846 F Supp 873, 878] .

➤ Cross Reference:

See Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, 2.06[1].

■ Basing his/her claim on a federal statute that gives rise to federal question jurisdiction by expressly or impliedly creating a right to a claim for relief. Examples include:

- ☐ 28 USC § 1331 ("district courts have original jurisdiction of all civil actions arising under the Constitution, laws, or treaties of the United States").
- ☐ 28 USC § 1338(a) (patent and copyright law).
- ☐ 28 USC § 1339 (postal service).
- ☐ 28 USC § 1340 (internal revenue service).

➤ Cross Reference:

See Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, 2.06[2].

■ Claiming that he/she is adversely affected by federal agency action in violation of the law [see 5 USC § 702; see also Abbott Labs. v. Gardner (1967) 387 US 136, 140, 87 S Ct 1507, 18 L Ed2d 681 , overruled on other grounds by Califano v. Sanders (1977) 430 US 99, 97 S Ct 980, 51 L Ed2d 192] .

➤ Cross Reference:

See Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, 2.06[3].

■ Claiming that a federal rule of decision is necessary to protect uniquely federal interests or claiming that Congress has given the courts the power to develop substantive law on the issue to be litigated.

➤ Cross Reference:

See Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, 2.06[4].

3.12[2] Diversity Jurisdiction May Exist.

3.12[2][a] Federal Diversity Jurisdiction Is Controlled by Statute. Diversity jurisdiction exists when the controversy exists between any of the following:

- Citizens of different states [28 USC § 1332(a)(1)].
- Citizens of a state and citizens of a foreign state [28 USC § 1332(a)(2)].
- Citizens of different states with citizens of a foreign state as additional parties [28 USC § 1332(a)(3)].
- A foreign state serving as a plaintiff and state citizens [28 USC § 1332(a)(4)].

3.12[2][b] Amount in Controversy Must Exceed $75,000. For federal diversity jurisdiction purposes, the amount in controversy must exceed $75,000, exclusive of interest and costs [28 USC § 1332(a)]. A plaintiff may aggregate its claims against a defendant to meet the amount in controversy requirement, even if the claims are unrelated to one another [see Bank of Cal. v. Twin Harbors Lumber Co. (9th Cir 1972) 465 F2d 489, 491] .

3.12[3] Subject Matter Jurisdiction Cannot Be Conferred or Defect Waived. Parties to an action cannot confer jurisdiction on federal courts by stipulation or waiver. If a federal court lacks subject matter jurisdiction, that defect cannot be cured by an agreement between or among the parties that the case may be heard in that court [Insurance Corp. of Ireland v. Compagnie des Bauxites de Guinee (1982) 456 US 694, 702, 102 S Ct 2099, 72 L Ed2d 492] . Indeed, the absence of subject matter jurisdiction may be raised at any time, even after judgment [see Fed R Civ P 12(h)(3)].

3.12[4] "Case or Controversy" Must Exist.

3.12[4][a] Dispute Must Provide Actual, Immediate, and Concrete Controversy. Federal courts evaluate cases for "ripeness" based on both the fitness of the issues for judicial decision and the hardship to the parties of withholding court consideration [see Abbott Labs. v. Gardner (1967) 387 US 136, 149, 87 S Ct 1507, 18 L Ed2d 681 , overruled on other grounds by Califano v. Sanders (1977) 430 US 99, 97 S Ct 980, 51 L Ed2d 192] . In other words, the dispute must have progressed to the point that the parties are in clear disagreement about legal rights or duties.

Strategic Point:

Because federal pleading requirements include a jurisdictional statement, counsel should immediately analyze the case to defend the jurisdictional statement if there is an attempt to dismiss the case. The analysis should review the following issues:

- Whether a case or controversy exists.
- Whether subject matter jurisdiction exists, either through federal question, or diversity, or supplemental jurisdiction.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of ripeness, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, 2.44.

3.12[4][b] Case Must Not Be Moot. Federal courts will dismiss a moot case if the facts and circumstances have changed to such an extent that judicial relief will no longer be effective.

Examples:

- In Kremens v. Bartley, the United States Supreme Court dismissed the case because passage of new legislation proscribed the challenged, previously permissible practices [Kremens v. Bartley (1977) 431 US 119, 129, 97 S Ct 1709, 52 L Ed2d 184] .

- In De Funis v. Odegaard, a law school appealed the federal trial court's order to admit a rejected law school applicant who challenged the school's affirmative action program. The Supreme Court dismissed the case as moot because at the time of its review, the plaintiff was completing his final semester and the school said that it would not expel the student even if it won [DeFunis v. Odegaard (1974) 416 US 312, 319-320, 94 S Ct 1704, 40 L Ed2d 164] .

Exception--Capable of Repetition Yet Evading Review:

The mootness rule does not apply if the threatened harm can be repeated but systematically evade review. In such cases, an Article III court may still hear the case [see, e.g., Southern Pac. Terminal Co. v. Interstate Commerce Comm'n (1911) 219 US 498, 515, 31 S Ct 279, 55 L Ed 310] .

Example:

In Roe v. Wade, a previously pregnant woman challenged a Texas statute criminally prohibiting abortion. Noting that the human gestation period would effectively prohibit litigation related to pregnancy, the Supreme Court rejected respondent's mootness claim because the harm was "capable of repetition yet evading review" [Roe v. Wade (1973) 410 US 113, 125, 93 S Ct 705, 35 L Ed2d 147] .

Cross Reference:

Discussion of mootness, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, 2.45.

3.12[4][c] Plaintiff Must Have Standing to Sue Based on Personal Stake in the Matter. To have standing, the plaintiff must make a showing of:

- Having suffered some redressable injury attributable to the defendant's conduct ("injury in fact") [Association of Data Processing Serv. Orgs. Inc. v. Camp (1970) 397 US 150, 152, 90 S Ct 827, 25 L Ed2d 184 ; see Warth v. Seldin (1975) 422 US 490, 525, 95 S Ct 2197, 45 L Ed2d 343 (dissenting opinion)].
- Arguably falling within the zone of interests protected by some legal rule.
- Having sustained an injury that could be remedied by the relief sought [Linda R.S. v. Richard D. (1973) 410 US 614, 618, 93 S Ct 1146, 35 L Ed2d 536 ; see Warth v. Seldin (1975) 422 US 490, 525-526, 95 S Ct 2197, 45 L Ed2d 343 (dissenting opinion)].

3.12[4][d] Case Presenting "Political Question" Cannot Be Judicially Decided. A political question is present in any of the following situations [Baker v. Carr (1962) 369 US 186, 208-211, 82 S Ct 691, 7 L Ed2d 663] :

- There is a "textually demonstrable constitutional commitment of the issue to a coordinate political department."
- There is a "lack of judicially discoverable and manageable standards for resolving" the dispute.
- The case is impossible to decide without "an initial policy determination of a kind clearly for nonjudicial discretion."
- The case is impossible to decide without "expressing lack of the respect due coordinate branches of government."
- There is an "unusual need for unquestioning adherence to a political decision already made."
- There is potential for "embarrassment from multifarious pronouncements by various departments on one question."

Cross Reference:

Discussion of political question doctrine, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, 2.46.

3.12[5] Supplemental Jurisdiction Extends Federal Court Subject Matter Jurisdiction. Supplemental jurisdiction allows federal courts to hear additional claims against existing parties, or claims against additional parties, that otherwise would not qualify for federal jurisdiction [28 USC § 1367]. If there are claims within both federal and state jurisdiction, a federal court may retain jurisdiction over the case even if eventually the federal claim is dismissed on the merits. Supplemental jurisdiction over multiple claims requires that [Trustees of the Constr. Indus. & Laborers Health & Welfare Trust v. Desert Valley Landscape & Maint., Inc. (9th Cir 2003) 333 F3d 923, 925] :

- The claims arise from a common nucleus of operative fact; and
- The claims are of the type that ordinarily would be tried together in one proceeding.

Cross References:

Form for remanding removed action to state court, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, Ch. 3, Removing a State Court Case to Federal Court.

Discussion of diversity jurisdiction, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, Ch. 2, Determining Forum (Jurisdiction and Venue).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionFederal QuestionsGeneral OverviewCivil
ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionFederal QuestionsSubstantial QuestionsCivil
ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionFederal QuestionsWell-Pleaded Complaint RuleCivil
ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionJurisdiction Over ActionsGeneral Overview

78 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions

IV. CHOOSING CALIFORNIA OR FEDERAL FORUM IF BOTH OPTIONS ARE AVAILABLE

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.13

3.13 CHECKLIST: Choosing California or Federal Forum If Both Options Are Available.

- ☐ Determine whether there is a choice between federal and state forum.

Discussion:

See 3.14

- ☐ Evaluate all possible variances between applicable state law and federal statutory and common law, if any.

Discussion:

See 3.16

- ☐ Analyze whether differences between California Superior Court and Federal District Court jury pools may be significant.

☐ For plaintiff(s).

☐ For defendant(s).

☐ For possible intervenors or other third-party litigant(s).

Discussion:

See 3.18

- ☐ Analyze whether 9 out of 12 jurors needed to prevail in state court, compared to unanimous 6 jurors needed in federal court, will be significant in case.

Discussion:

See 3.18

- ☐ Determine whether federal system of assigning judges could be advantageous to client's position.

Discussion:

See 3.19

- ☐ If action is class action, determine if California court would be more amenable.

Discussion:

See 3.20

- ☐ Are there any significant differences in evidence rules that would be more favorable to client's case?

Discussion:

See 3.21

- ☐ Will federal magistrate system be advantageous to case management of client's case?

Discussion:

See 3.22

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil
ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureVenueGeneral Overview

79 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions

IV. CHOOSING CALIFORNIA OR FEDERAL FORUM IF BOTH OPTIONS ARE AVAILABLE

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.14

3.14 Personal Jurisdiction Is the Same.

Because California and federal personal jurisdiction are co-extensive, if one cannot obtain jurisdiction over a defendant in state court, there should be no expectation of a better jurisdictional result in a California federal court [see Fed R Civ P 4(k)(1); Omni Capital Int'l v. Rudolf Wolff & Co., Ltd. (1987) 484 US 97, 101, 108 S Ct 404, 98 L Ed2d 415].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil

ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsConstitutional LimitsCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsIn Personam ActionsGeneral Overview

80 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions

IV. CHOOSING CALIFORNIA OR FEDERAL FORUM IF BOTH OPTIONS ARE AVAILABLE

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.15

3.15 Pleading Requirements Are Generally the Same.

California and federal courts have substantially similar pleading requirements:

Examples--Pleading a Complaint:

- California requires statement of the facts in ordinary and concise language [CCP § 425.10(a)(1)].
- Federal notice pleading requirements call for a short and plain statement of the claims [Fed R Civ P 8(a)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsGeneral Overview

81 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions
IV. CHOOSING CALIFORNIA OR FEDERAL FORUM IF BOTH OPTIONS ARE AVAILABLE

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.16

3.16 Substantive Law Is the Same for Federal Cases With Diversity Jurisdiction.

In cases brought under diversity jurisdiction in federal court, there are no differences in the substantive law applied [see Erie R.R. Co. v. Tompkins (1938) 304 US 64, 78, 11 Ohio Op. 246] .

Strategic Point:

Although the same substantive law applies, variances in procedures nevertheless may significantly affect the outcome [see, e.g., "California's Anti-SLAPP Remedy After Eleven Years," 34 McGeorge LR 731 (2003)]. Under the Erie doctrine, certain federal rules are applied, rather than their state counterparts, when hearing a state claim based on diversity jurisdiction. A defendant should investigate whether any such procedural differences would be significant to the case.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJurisdictionDiversity JurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureFederal & State
InterrelationshipsErie Doctrine

82 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions

IV. CHOOSING CALIFORNIA OR FEDERAL FORUM IF BOTH OPTIONS ARE AVAILABLE

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.17

3.17 Discovery Procedures Differ.

The differences between federal and state discovery procedures, including cut-off times and mandatory disclosures, may prove to be of strategic importance to a particular dispute. For example, in federal courts, parties must disclose, without waiting for a discovery request, the names of all witnesses and copies of any documentary evidence supporting their positions [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)].

Cross Reference:

Discovery process in federal court, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryDisclosuresMandatory DisclosuresCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsGeneral Overview

83 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions

IV. CHOOSING CALIFORNIA OR FEDERAL FORUM IF BOTH OPTIONS ARE AVAILABLE

*1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.183.18 Juries May Differ.

The general perception that jury pools drawn from urban and rural areas are different may be worth considering in the context of the subject matter of the contract in dispute.

Examples:

- Urban and rural jury pools might have different approaches to a farm contract dispute.
- There potentially may be relevant ideological differences between the two sets of jurors.
- The choice between the two courts may ultimately have an impact on the amount of damages awarded.
- Federal courts have smaller juries and require unanimous verdicts; California courts have 12-person juries and require only a 3/4 verdict in civil cases [CCP § 618; Fed R Civ P 48].

Strategic Point:

In a civil trial in state court, the plaintiff needs to convince only 9 out of 12 jurors [CCP § 618]. In federal court, there are usually six-person juries, and their verdict must be unanimous [Fed R Civ P 48].

Cross Reference:

Number of jurors required for verdict in federal cases, see Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 48, Number of Jurors--Participation in Verdict (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsJurorsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsJurorsSelectionGeneral Overview

84 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions

IV. CHOOSING CALIFORNIA OR FEDERAL FORUM IF BOTH OPTIONS ARE AVAILABLE

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.19

3.19 Judicial Assignments May Differ.

Federal court cases are assigned to a single judge for all purposes. Unless that judge is recused or delegates matters to a magistrate, he or she will hear all matters in the case, from the initial status conference through law and motion and trial. California courts, on the other hand, often assign the same matter to different judges for law and motion, conferences, and trial (though some use the same "permanent assignment" system as the federal courts). Thus, federal judges may acquire a greater depth of familiarity with the facts of the case, which may be significant in matters that are unusually complex, and with the parties and their attorneys. In addition, federal judges are likely to be more familiar with federal claims and defenses, since they encounter them with greater frequency than state court judges. Depending on the type of contract claim in question, this difference may become important.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesCase Management

85 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions

IV. CHOOSING CALIFORNIA OR FEDERAL FORUM IF BOTH OPTIONS ARE AVAILABLE

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.20

3.20 State Court May Be More Amenable to Class Actions.

A perception exists among some California attorneys that California courts are more class action-friendly than federal courts, especially on issues of class certification.

Cross References:

Federal class action procedures, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, Ch. 20, Class Actions.

California class action procedures, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 33, Class Actions; or California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 120, Class Actions.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsGeneral Overview

86 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions

IV. CHOOSING CALIFORNIA OR FEDERAL FORUM IF BOTH OPTIONS ARE AVAILABLE

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.21

3.21 Evidence Rules May Differ.

Although California and federal evidence rules generally are similar, differences do exist. For example, a federal judge has greater discretion to exclude expert testimony [see Fed R Evid 702], and the federal exceptions to the hearsay rules are more lenient [see Fed R Evid 807].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the federal evidence rules, and the complete text of the Federal Rules of Evidence, see Moore's Federal Practice.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

EvidenceHearsayExceptionsGeneral OverviewEvidenceTestimonyExpertsGeneral Overview

87 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions

IV. CHOOSING CALIFORNIA OR FEDERAL FORUM IF BOTH OPTIONS ARE AVAILABLE

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.22

3.22 Federal Magistrate Can Facilitate Case Management.

In federal courts, a magistrate exerts a tight rein on case management [see Fed R Civ P 72 (referral of pretrial matters to magistrate)]. If there are likely to be discovery battles, with attendant need for discovery orders, the federal court magistrate can be a positive force in moving the case along.

Cross References:

Referring cases to magistrate judges, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, Ch. 16, Case Management Conferences, 16.24.

Discussion of federal magistrate system, see Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 72, Magistrate Judges; Pretrial Orders, §§ 72.20-72.24 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersMagistratesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesCase Management

88 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions
V. CHALLENGING CALIFORNIA COURT JURISDICTION

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.23

3.23 CHECKLIST: Challenging California Court Jurisdiction.

☐ If personal jurisdiction may not exist against defendant in California, move immediately to end action without submitting to California jurisdiction.

☐ Select grounds for objection:

☐ Motion to quash service of summons for lack of personal jurisdiction.

☐ Motion to dismiss or stay action for inconvenient forum.

☐ Motion to dismiss or stay action for delay in serving summons.

Authority:

CCP § 418.10

Discussion:

See 3.24[1]

☐ Do not waive objection to jurisdiction by making a general appearance.

Authority:

CCP § 418.10; Greener v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1993) 6 C4th 1028, 1036-1037, 25 CR2d 539, 863 P2d 784 ; Hamilton v. Asbestos Corp. (2000) 22 C4th 1127, 1147, 95 CR2d 701, 998 P2d 403

Discussion:

See 3.24[2]

☐ Serve and file motion before last day to plead to avoid waiver.

Authority:*CCP § 418.10Discussion:

See 3.24[3]

☐ Determine if California courts lacks subject matter jurisdiction to enter judgment on the type of action.

☐ Select procedure for challenge:

☐ Demurrer to complaint.

☐ Affirmative defense.

☐ Motion to dismiss.

Authority:*CCP §§ 430.10, 430.30, 430.70, 396, 597Discussion:

See 3.25[1]

☐ Make challenge at earliest possible time (however, challenge is never waived).

Authority:*Residents for Adequate Water v. Redwood Valley County Water Dist. (1995) 34 CA4th 1801, 1805Discussion:

See 3.25[2]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsIn Personam ActionsChallengesCivil
 ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses,
 Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to DismissCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers &
 ObjectionsWaiver & Preservation

89 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions
V. CHALLENGING CALIFORNIA COURT JURISDICTION

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.24

3.24 Challenging Superior Court Personal Jurisdiction.

3.24[1] Defendant Must Move to End Action Immediately Without Submitting to California Jurisdiction.

Motions to quash and motions to stay or dismiss the action brought under CCP § 418.10 provide the defendant with an opportunity to end an action immediately without making a general appearance, which would have the effect of submitting to the court's jurisdiction to proceed with the case [see CCP §§ 418.10, 1014]. The objections that can be raised are:

- Lack of personal jurisdiction [see 3.07] (via motion to quash service of summons).
- Inconvenient forum [see 3.09] (via motion to stay or dismiss action).
- Dismissal for delay in serving summons (via motion to stay or dismiss action).

These issues must be the first ones to be raised. Making another response before doing so will constitute a general appearance submitting to the court's jurisdiction and waiving any claim of lack of personal jurisdiction [see CCP § 1014].

Trap:

Failure to make a CCP § 418.10 motion at the time of filing a demurrer or motion to strike constitutes a waiver of the issues of lack of personal jurisdiction, inadequacy of process, inadequacy of service of process, inconvenient forum, and delay in serving summons [see CCP § 418.10(e)(3)].

The effect of CCP § 418.10(e)(3) is limited to cautioning that a defendant who chooses to demur or move to strike must also move to quash; such a defendant cannot reserve the jurisdictional objection and later file it with the answer if his or her challenge to the pleadings fails [Roy v. Superior Court (2005) 127 CA4th 337]. Under CCP § 418.10(e), a defendant may move to quash coupled with any other action without being deemed to have submitted to the court's jurisdiction; however, the motion to quash remains essential. Thus, a defendant in a breach of contract action may move to quash and simultaneously file an answer containing affirmative defenses, but the latter is not a substitute for the former [Roy v. Superior Court (2005) 127 CA4th 337].

Cross References:

Procedures and forms for challenging personal jurisdiction in California, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 9, Motions to Quash and Other Objections to Personal Jurisdiction.

Challenging subject matter jurisdiction checklist form for drafting notice of motion to quash summons due to lack of personal jurisdiction or for setting aside and vacating default judgment, and discussion of facts establishing lack of personal jurisdiction, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances (Matthew Bender).

Discussion of obtaining relief from judgments for lack of jurisdiction, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders (Matthew Bender).

3.24[2] Defendant Must Avoid Making a General Appearance, Which Waives Objection to California Jurisdiction. A general appearance in an action waives any objection to personal jurisdiction, and the defendant submits to the personal jurisdiction of the court [see, e.g., Greener v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1993) 6 C4th 1028, 1036-1037, 25 CR2d 539, 863 P2d 784] . A general appearance is made when a defendant either [see Hamilton v. Asbestos Corp. (2000) 22 C4th 1127, 1147, 95 CR2d 701, 998 P2d 403] :

- Enters an appearance in an action without limiting the purpose of the appearance; or
- Except as otherwise provided by statute, asks for relief that only a court with personal jurisdiction over the defendant can give or recognizes the authority of the court to proceed.

Warning:

Even if moving party designates motion to quash as a "special appearance," if the moving party seeks relief on any basis other than lack of personal jurisdiction, the party makes a general appearance [Greener v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1993) 6 C4th 1028, 1036-1037, 25 CR2d 539, 863 P2d 784 ; see also Factor Health Mgmt. v. Superior Court (2005) 132 CA4th 246 (because parties who challenged personal jurisdiction in a trade secrets lawsuit filed an application for discovery in response to an order to show cause for a preliminary injunction before they had filed a motion to quash service of summons, they were not protected from making a general appearance by CCP § 418.10(e)(1))].

Strategic Pointss--Defendant:

- Effective January 1, 2003, California amended CCP § 418.10 to allow a party making a 418.10 motion to simultaneously answer, demur, or move to strike the complaint or cross-complaint without making a general appearance until entry of the order denying the motion. The legislature specifically stated the amendment was to conform California practice with respect to challenging personal jurisdiction to federal practice under Fed R Civ P 12. Attorneys are advised to review applicable case law in California for interpretation of this change in practice before including these additional pleadings, since it has significantly changed the procedures for what constitutes a special as opposed to a general appearance.
- Objecting to personal jurisdiction can have a substantial effect on the manner in which these disputes are litigated, since lawyers, of course, must be extremely sensitive about waiving, through appearances, discovery, or briefing, what may be the most significant defense the out-of-state party has. Real problems can arise if the substantive defense and the jurisdictional defense overlap, such as in a breach of contract case in which the out-of-state defendant argues that no contract was formed and there was no minimum contact sufficient for jurisdiction (for example, when the negotiations/sale involved an agent). In those situations, the plaintiff can argue that the defendant was arguing the merits and not limiting its arguments to the jurisdictional issues. Be sure to fashion the motion objecting to personal jurisdiction in a manner that does not seek any type of relief that a court having personal jurisdiction over the defendant could enter.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of special and general appearance, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, 9.07.

3.24[3] Motion Must Be Served and Filed on or Before Last Day to Plead. A notice of motion to quash service of summons on the ground of lack of jurisdiction of the court over the defendant must be served and filed on or before the last day of the time to plead, or within any further time that the court may for good cause allow [CCP § 418.10(a)].

Timing:

A responsive pleading to a civil action complaint must be filed within 30 days after service of summons [CCP § 412.20(a)(3)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsIn Personam ActionsChallengesCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to DismissCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsWaiver & Preservation

90 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions
V. CHALLENGING CALIFORNIA COURT JURISDICTION

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.25

3.25 Challenging Superior Court Subject Matter Jurisdiction.

3.25[1] Challenge to Subject Matter Jurisdiction May Be Raised by Demurrer, Affirmative Defense, or Motion to Dismiss. A challenge to subject matter jurisdiction asserts that the court in which the action is filed is without the constitutional or statutory authority to hear the type of action that is before it. The challenge is brought by:

- Demurrer to the complaint if lack of jurisdiction appears on the face of the complaint [CCP §§ 430.10(a), 430.30(a), 430.70; Greener v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1993) 6 C4th 1028, 1036, 25 CR2d 539, 863 P2d 784] .
- Affirmative defense [CCP §§ 430.30(b), 597].
- Motion to dismiss [see CCP § 396].

► Cross References:

Discussion of challenging subject matter jurisdiction, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 10, Dismissal for Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction.

Discussion of challenging diversity jurisdiction, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, Ch. 2, Determining Forum (Jurisdiction and Venue).

Challenging subject matter jurisdiction checklist and form for making a motion to dismiss or transfer because the court lacks subject matter jurisdiction, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter Jurisdiction (Matthew Bender).

Discussion of obtaining relief from judgments for lack of jurisdiction, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders (Matthew Bender).

3.25[2] Challenge May Be Made at Any Time. A defect in subject matter jurisdiction can be raised at any stage of the proceedings, including being raised for the first time on appeal [Residents for Adequate Water v. Redwood Valley County Water Dist. (1995) 34 CA4th 1801, 1805, 41 CR2d 123 ; Miranda v. 21st Century Ins. Co. (2004) 117

CA4th 913, 920] .

Strategic Point--Defendant:

Even though fundamental subject matter jurisdiction cannot be waived, the issue should be raised at the earliest opportunity. If the issue is not raised and a party prevails on an issue, the opposing party can render the success meaningless. Taking the gamble that the lack of subject matter jurisdiction will not be raised is rarely worth the risk. If the opposing party does not recognize the defect, it is highly likely that the court--particularly an appellate court--will identify the issue [see, e.g., Indiana Gas Co. v. Home Ins. Co. (7th Cir 1998) 141 F3d 314, 321] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to Dismiss

91 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions

VI. CHALLENGING FEDERAL COURT JURISDICTION

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.26

3.26 CHECKLIST: Challenging Federal Court Jurisdiction.

☐ If personal jurisdiction does not exist against defendant in federal court, move immediately to end action without submitting to federal court jurisdiction.

☐ Determine which of following methods to use to bring challenge:

☐ Rule 12(b) motion for dismissal.

☐ Raise a jurisdictional defense in answer.

☐ Allow plaintiff to obtain a default judgment by not appearing in action, then collaterally attack that judgment for lack of jurisdiction.

Authority:

Fed R Civ P 12(b); Insurance Corp. of Ireland v. Compagnie des Bauxites de Guinee
(1982) 456 US 694, 706, 102 S Ct 2099, 72 L Ed2d 492

Discussion:

See 3.27[1]

☐ Do not waive objection to jurisdiction by making a Fed R Civ P 12 motion but not including an objection to personal jurisdiction, or by not making a Fed R Civ P 12 motion and failing to include the objection in answer.

Authority:

Fed R Civ P 12(b), (g), (h)(1); Insurance Corp. of Ireland v. Compagnie des Bauxites de Guinee
(1982) 456 US 694, 704, 102 S Ct 2099, 72 L Ed2d 492

Discussion:

See 3.28[2]

☐ Determine grounds for challenge:

☐ Lack of subject matter jurisdiction over action.

☐ Does case involve federal question?

Discussion:

See 3.28[1]

☐ Lack of diversity jurisdiction.

Discussion:

See 3.27[2]

☐ Absence of "case or controversy":

☐ Dispute is not yet "ripe."

Authority:

See Abbott Labs v. Gardner (1967) 387 US 136, 149, 87 S Ct 1507, 18 L Ed2d 681 , overruled on other grounds by Califano v. Sanders (1977) 430 US 99, 97 S Ct 980, 51 L
Ed2d 192

Discussion:

See 3.28[3]

☐ Mootness.

Authority:

DeFunis v. Odegaard (1974) 416 US 312, 319-320, 94 S Ct 1704, 40 L Ed2d 164

Discussion:

See 3.28[3]

☐ Plaintiff's lack of redressable injury.

Authority:

Warth v. Seldin (1975) 422 US 490, 525, 95 S Ct 2197, 45 L Ed2d 343

Discussion:

See 3.28[3]

☐ Case presents "political question" that cannot be judicially decided.

Authority:

Baker v. Carr (1962) 369 US 186, 208-211, 82 S Ct 691, 7 L Ed2d 663

Discussion:

See 3.28[3]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil
ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsIn Personam ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil
ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsIn Personam ActionsChallengesCivil
ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter
JurisdictionJurisdiction Over ActionsGeneral Overview

92 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions
VI. CHALLENGING FEDERAL COURT JURISDICTION

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.27

3.27 Challenging Federal Court Personal Jurisdiction.

3.27[1] Procedures for Challenging Personal Jurisdiction. Personal jurisdiction may be challenged as follows:

- Defendant may attack jurisdiction by filing a motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction over the person at the beginning of the action [Fed R Civ P 12(b)].
- Defendant may raise a jurisdictional defense in the answer [Fed R Civ P 12(b)].
- Defendant may allow plaintiff to obtain a default judgment by not appearing in the action, and then collaterally attack the default judgment for lack of jurisdiction [see Insurance Corp. of Ireland v. Compagnie des Bauxites de Guinee (1982) 456 US 694, 706, 102 S Ct 2099, 72 L Ed2d 492] .

► Cross References:

See Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, 2.41.

3.27[2] Avoiding Waiver of Objection to Personal Jurisdiction. A defendant must raise an objection to personal jurisdiction, either by proper pre-pleading motion or in the initial responsive pleading, to avoid waiving the right to object. The jurisdiction objection is waived if either [see Fed R Civ P 12(b), (g), (h)(1); Insurance Corp. of Ireland v. Compagnie des Bauxites de Guinee (1982) 456 US 694, 704, 102 S Ct 2099, 72 L Ed2d 492] :

- Defendant makes a Fed R Civ P 12 motion but does not include an objection to personal jurisdiction.
- Defendant does not make a Fed R Civ P 12 motion, and fails to include the objection in the answer.

► Cross Reference:

Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, 2.41.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsIn Personam ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil
ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsIn Personam ActionsChallengesCivil ProcedurePleading
& PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to DismissCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses,
Demurrers & ObjectionsWaiver & Preservation

93 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions
VI. CHALLENGING FEDERAL COURT JURISDICTION

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.28

3.28 Challenging Federal Court Subject Matter Jurisdiction.

3.28[1] Federal Subject Matter Jurisdiction May Be Challenged by Asserting Lack of Federal Question.

Federal question jurisdiction may be challenged by any of the following methods:

- Bringing a Rule 12(b) motion for dismissal [Fed R Civ P 12(b)(1)].
- Raising a jurisdictional defect in the answer [Fed R Civ P 12(h)(3)].
- Bringing a motion for relief from judgment [see Fed R Civ P 60(b)(6); Bank of Montreal v. Olafsson (6th Cir 1981) 648 F2d 1078, 1079] .
- Litigating the issue in a collateral proceeding by a party that did not appear in the underlying action and against whom a default judgment was entered [see Chicot County Drainage Dist. v. Baxter State Bank (1940) 308 US 371, 378, 60 S Ct 317, 84 L Ed 329] .

Cross References:

Form for remanding removed action back to state court, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, Ch. 3, Removing a State Court Case to Federal Court.

Discussion of federal question jurisdiction, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, Ch. 2, Determining Forum (Jurisdiction and Venue).

3.28[2] Federal Subject Matter Jurisdiction May Be Challenged by Asserting Lack of Diversity. Diversity jurisdiction may be challenged by any of the following methods:

- Bringing a Rule 12(b) motion for dismissal [Fed R Civ P 12(b)(1)].
- Raising the defect in the answer [Fed R Civ P 12(h)(3)].
- Bringing a motion for relief from judgment [see Fed R Civ P 60(b)(6); Bank of Montreal v. Olafsson

(6th Cir 1981) 648 F2d 1078, 1079] .

- Litigating the issue in a collateral proceeding by a party that did not appear in the underlying action and against whom a default judgment was entered against them [see Chicot County Drainage Dist. v. Baxter State Bank (1940) 308 US 371, 378, 60 S Ct 317, 84 L Ed 329] .

3.28[3] Federal Subject Matter Jurisdiction May Be Challenged by Asserting Lack of Case or Controversy.

Federal courts only have jurisdiction over actual cases and controversies; no federal subject matter jurisdiction exists absent a proper case or controversy [see Cardinal Chem. Co. v. Morton Int'l, Inc. (1993) 508 US 83, 99, 113 S Ct 1967, 124 L Ed2d 1] . This rule requires a tangible dispute between the parties before the court [see Church of Scientology v. United States (1992) 506 US 9, 12, 113 S Ct 447, 121 L Ed2d 313] .

Article III requires that a plaintiff's claim be live not just when the action is commenced, but throughout the litigation, including while the case is on appeal [see Lewis v. Continental Bank Corp. (1990) 494 US 472, 477-478, 110 S Ct 1249, 108 L Ed2d 400] .

The following are components of the case or controversy determination:

- Standing [see 3.12[4][c]].
- Ripeness [see 3.12[4][a]].
- Mootness [see 3.12[4][b]].
- Political questions [see 3.12[4][d]].

Strategic Point:

Because federal pleading requirements include a jurisdictional statement, counsel should immediately analyze the case for grounds to attack the jurisdictional statement. The analysis should review the following issues:

- Whether a case or controversy exists.
- Whether subject matter jurisdiction exists, either through federal question, or diversity, or supplemental jurisdiction.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionFederal QuestionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionJurisdiction Over ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to Dismiss

94 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions

VII. REMOVING A CALIFORNIA CONTRACT ACTION TO FEDERAL COURT

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.29

3.29 CHECKLIST: Removing a California Contract Action to Federal Court.

☐ Determine if action meets general criteria for removal.

☐ Was civil action originally brought in state court?

☐ Does district court have original jurisdiction over the action?

☐ Does the defendant or all defendants seek removal?

☐ Is removal sought to federal district court for the district and division in which the state action is pending?

Authority:

28 USC § 1441

Discussion:

See 3.30[1]

☐ Consider options and strategies regarding removal.

☐ Would removal increase costs of litigation?

☐ Are federal court rules and procedures more favorable to defendant?

☐ If the federal court declines to exercise its jurisdiction over part of the action:

- ☐ Is it rational to litigate in both state and federal forums simultaneously?
- ☐ Can one of the actions be stayed?
- ☐ Should there be a stipulation to remand the entire action to the state court?

Discussion:

See 3.30[2]

- ☐ Determine if grounds exist for removal.
 - ☐ Does case involve federal question?
 - ☐ Does the case involve diversity of citizenship?
 - ☐ Does a special removal statute serve as basis for removal?

Authority:*28 USC § 1331; 28 USC § 1332Discussion:

See 3.30[3]

- ☐ Follow procedure for seeking removal.

Authority:

28 USC § 1446(a); Fed R Civ P Rule 11; 28 USC § 1446(a); 28 USC § 1446(b); Blankenberg v. Commercial Ins. Co. of Newark, N.J. (ND Cal 1987) 655 F Supp 223, 225 ; 12 USC § 1441a(l)(3)(A); 12 USC § 1819(b)(2)(B); 28 USC § 1446(d)

Discussion:

See 3.30[4]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureRemovalBasisGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemovalElementsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemovalElementsFederal VenueCivil ProcedureRemovalElementsProper TransferorsCivil ProcedureRemovalElementsRemovability

95 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions

VII. REMOVING A CALIFORNIA CONTRACT ACTION TO FEDERAL COURT

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.30

3.30 Removing a State Contract Action to Federal Court.

3.30[1] Availability of Removal Option in Contract Cases. Removal statutes permit defendants to transfer an action originally filed in state court to the federal district court for the district and division in which the state action is pending. Defendants may invoke removal jurisdiction only when the case could have originally been brought in federal court. Removal usually is accomplished under the general removal statute, which provides for removal based on federal question or diversity jurisdiction [see 28 USC § 1441].

The general removal statute includes the following restrictions [see 28 USC § 1441]:

- Removal is possible only in civil actions brought originally in state court.
- The district courts must have original jurisdiction over the action.
- Only the defendant or all defendants may remove.
- The action must be removed to the federal district court for the district and division in which the state action is pending.

3.30[2] Options and Strategies for Party Seeking to Remove Contract Action. It is generally more expensive to litigate in the federal courts and an action of de minimis value probably is better off in state court. If the matter has been removed on the basis of diversity jurisdiction and the plaintiff genuinely believes that the amount in controversy is less than $75,000, the plaintiff should consider stipulating that recovery in excess of that amount will not be sought.

Some attorneys view the federal court rules and procedures as more favorable to defendants. However, this view is not universally held, and may not be accurate for certain kinds of cases.

The parties should carefully consider any circumstances in which there is a potential that the action may proceed in part in state court and in part in the federal court due to lack of diversity and only partial subject matter jurisdiction in the federal court. If the federal court declines to exercise its jurisdiction over the remainder of the claims, the parties must evaluate the following:

- Whether it is rational to litigate in both forums simultaneously;
- Whether one of the actions should be stayed; or
- Whether there should be a stipulation to remand the entire action to the state court in order to allow all of the proceedings to remain in the same forum.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of strategies and procedures for moving to remand action, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, 3.23 et seq.

3.30[3] Grounds for Removal.

3.30[3][a] Federal Question Is Basis for Removal. Removal to federal court is available in cases involving a claim or right arising under the Constitution, treaties, or laws of the United States (federal question) [see 28 USC § 1331].

Cross Reference:

Additional analysis of federal question, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, 3.09.

3.30[3][b] Diversity of Citizenship Is Basis for Removal. Removal to federal court is available in actions brought between citizens of different states when the matter in controversy exceeds $75,000, exclusive of interest and costs [see 28 USC § 1332].

Cross Reference:

Additional analysis of diversity, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, 3.10.

3.30[3][c] Special Removal Statute Is Basis for Removal. Certain federal statutes allow for removal to federal court, in some cases even when the federal court does not have original jurisdiction.

Cross Reference:

Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, 3.13.

3.30[4] Procedure for Seeking Removal.

3.30[4][a] Notice Must Be Filed in Proper Court. The notice of removal must be filed in the United States district court for the district and division within which the action is pending [28 USC § 1446(a); Fed R Civ P 11].

Cross References:

Discussion of notice to district court, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, 3.17, 3.19[1]; or

Moore's Federal Practice, § 107.30[2][a] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

3.30[4][b] Notice Must Specify Grounds for Removal. The notice of removal must contain a short and plain statement of the grounds for removal, together with a copy of all process, pleadings, and orders served on the party in the action [28 USC § 1446(a)]. The party is not required to serve copies of discovery documents such as interrogatories and notices of deposition [Visicorp v. Software Arts, Inc. (ND Cal 1983) 575 F Supp 1528, 1531] .

► Cross References:

Discussion of contents and preparation of notice, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, 3.18.

Additional forms, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, 3.34 -3.37.

3.30[4][c] Notice Generally Must Be Filed Within 30-Day Period. In general, the notice of removal must be filed within 30 days after the receipt by the defendant of a copy of the initial pleading setting forth plaintiff's claim for relief, or within 30 days after the service of summons on the defendant if that initial pleading has been filed in court and is not required to be served on defendant, whichever period is shorter [28 USC § 1446(b); see Blankenberg v. Commercial Ins. Co. of Newark, N.J. (ND Cal 1987) 655 F Supp 223, 225].

Exception:

In some instances, the statute authorizing removal to federal court may specify its own time period for filing a notice of removal [see, e.g., 12 USC § 1441a(l)(3)(A); 12 USC § 1819(b)(2)(B)].

► Cross Reference:

Discussion of timely notice, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, 3.20; or

Moore's Federal Practice, § 107.30[3][a] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

3.30[4][d] Notice Must Be Given to Adverse Parties and Clerk of State Court. The defendant seeking removal must give written notice of the removal to all adverse parties and must file a copy of the notice of removal with the clerk of the state court. The state court clerk must then effect the removal and the state court must proceed no further in the case [28 USC § 1446(d)].

► Cross Reference:

Discussion of notice to adverse parties and state court, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, 3.19[3]; or Moore's Federal Practice, § 107.30[2][b] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureRemovalBasisGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemovalElementsGeneral Overview

96 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions

VIII. DETERMINING PROPER VENUE

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.31

3.31 CHECKLIST: Determining Proper Venue.

- ☐ Decide whether action is "transitory" or "local."

Discussion:

See 3.32[6]

- ☐ Determine appropriate venue for each defendant:

Authority:

CCP § 395

Discussion:

See 3.32[1]

- ☐ County where obligation was to be performed.

Discussion:

See 3.32[1]

- ☐ County where contract was entered into.

Discussion:

See 3.32[1]

- ☐ County where any defendant resides at commencement of action.

Discussion:

See 3.32[1]

- ☐ Determine appropriate venue for a corporate defendant:

Authority:

CCP § 395.5

Discussion:

See 3.32[5]

- ☐ Where corporation has principal place of business.

Discussion:

See 3.32[5]

- ☐ Where contract was made.

Discussion:

See 3.32[5]

- ☐ Where contract was to be performed.

Discussion:

See 3.32[5]

- ☐ Where obligation arose.

Discussion:

See 3.32[5]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureVenueGeneral Overview

97 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions
VIII. DETERMINING PROPER VENUE

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.32

3.32 Venue Rules Limit Appropriate Places for Litigation.

3.32[1] Statute Dictates Venue Selection. If a defendant has contracted to perform an obligation in a particular county, venue is appropriate in any of the following places [see CCP § 395(a)]:

- The venue where the obligation is to be performed (the place of making the contract unless specified otherwise in writing, if the defendant is an individual); a corporate defendant is not required to have a special writing [CCP § 395.5].
- The venue where the contract was entered into (the place of acceptance) [see Wilson v. Scannavino (1958) 159 CA2d 369, 370-371, 324 P2d 350].
- The venue where any defendant resides at the commencement of the action.

If other types of actions are litigated with the contract action (e.g., breach of promissory note, personal injury, fraud), special venue provisions may apply [see CCP § 395(a)].

Warning--Venue Selection Clauses Void:

The venue statute represents legislatively declared public policy fixing the place for trial and a venue selection clause that disrupts that policy will be held void [see Alexander v. Superior Court (2003) 114 CA4th 723, 731, see 3.32[7]].

Strategic Point--All Parties:

In alternate dispute resolution, by contrast, the place where the dispute will be heard can be determined by contract. Just as parties to an arbitration or mediation agreement can select the governing rules, the timetable, the number of arbitrators or mediators, the arbitrators or mediators themselves, and other logistics, the parties also can specify where an arbitration proceeding will take place. In other words, although courts cannot be pre-selected, arbitration locales can. For discussion of contractual arbitration clauses, see Ch. 5, Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate.

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of statutes governing venue, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 571, Venue (Matthew Bender).

3.32[2] Special Venue Rule Applies to Consumer Obligations and Consumer Contracts. Actions concerning goods intended for personal, family, or household are governed by a separate venue rule, under which venue is proper in either [CCP § 395(b)]:

- The county where the buyer or lessee consumer signed the contract; or
- The county where the buyer or lessee consumer resided at the time the contract was entered into or at outset of the litigation.

3.32[3] Special Venue Rule Applies to Actions Involving City or County. Venue in actions involving cities or counties is governed by CCP § 394. This very complex statute basically provides that an action or proceeding against a city, county, or local agency may be tried in the county, or the county in which the governmental entity is situated, unless another local governmental entity is the party bringing the action, in which case the action may be tried in any county not a party to the action and in which the governmental entity is not situated. In most cases the parties have the right to have the action transferred to a neutral forum if desired [see CCP § 394(a)]. For more detailed discussion of the application of CCP § 394, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, 6.43[3].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of actions involving a city or county or other local government entity, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 571, Venue (Matthew Bender).

3.32[4] Special Venue Rule Applies to Actions Involving the State. Actions against the State of California for injury to persons or personal property are to be tried in the county in which the injury arose [Gov Code § 955.2].

3.32[5] Actions Against Corporations Have Broader Venue Than Those Against Individual Defendants. For actions against corporations, venue is proper in the county or counties where any of the following occurred [CCP § 395.5]:

- The corporation has its principal place of business.
- The contract was made.
- The contract was to be performed.
- The obligation or liability arose.

If the proper documentation is on file with the Secretary of State, unincorporated associations are treated like corporations for venue purposes [CCP § 395.2]. Although the Beverly-Killea Limited Liability Company Act [Corp Code § 17000 et seq.] does not specifically so state, it is assumed that venue for limited liability companies is the same as for corporations and associations.

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of venue rules for corporate litigants and joining corporate and individual defendants, including foreign corporations and unincorporated associations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 571, Venue (Matthew Bender).

3.32[6] Actions Are Classified As "Transitory" or "Local" for Venue Purposes.

3.32[6][a] "Transitory" Actions Are Those in Which Claim Could Have Arisen Anywhere. Actions are classified for venue purposes mainly as transitory or local [Brown v. Superior Court (1984) 37 C3d 477, 482 n5, 208 CR 724, 691 P2d 272 ; see CCP §§ 392, 395]. An action is transitory if the inquiry deals primarily with financial obligations or personal relationships [Carlton v. Superior Court (1966) 240 CA2d 586, 589, 49 CR 759] . Transitory actions are governed by the general venue rule that the action be tried in the defendant's county of residence. If there is more than one defendant, the county in which any of them resides is appropriate [CCP § 395]. If all of the defendants reside outside California, or the actual county within California is unknown, any county chosen by the plaintiff is appropriate [CCP § 395(a)].

Search California Points and Authorities:

Use lexis.com to search for documents discussing choice issues of venue:

■ Legal > States Legal--U.S. > California > Search Analysis & CLE Materials > CA Treatises & Analytical Materials > California Points & Authorities

Sample Search: To find forms addressing the issue of whether an action is transitory or local, run the following search: transitory w/s local and not syn!.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of "transitory" venue rules, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 571, Venue (Matthew Bender).

3.32[6][b] "Local" Actions Are Those Dealing With Land or Other Local Relationships. A local action is one in which title to or possession of real property is the focus of the trial [see Carlton v. Superior Court (1966) 240 CA2d 586, 49 CR 759] .

3.32[6][c] Transitory Action Dictates Venue in Mixed Actions. Mixed venue actions occur if plaintiff alleges two or more causes of action, each of which is governed by a different venue statute, or when two or more named defendants are subject to different venue standards [Brown v. Superior Court (1984) 37 C3 477, 488,]. In cases having both a local action and a transitory action, the transitory action dictates venue for the whole proceeding [see Gallin v. Superior Court (1991) 230 CA3d 541, 544-545, 281 CR 304 ; see also Brown v. Superior Court (1984) 37 C3d 477, 487-488, 208 CR 724, 691 P2d 272] .

Distinguish:

A defendant must be granted a requested venue change if two or more inconsistent venue provisions apply in the same case and the defendant is entitled to a different venue on any one cause of action [see Capp Care, Inc. v. Superior Court (1987) 195 CA3d 504, 508, 241 CR 741] .

Cross Reference:

Discussion of "local" venue rules, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 571, Venue (Matthew Bender).

3.32[7] Venue Selection Clauses Are Not Permitted. Unlike forum selection clauses, which select jurisdiction, venue selection clauses attempt to dictate the county or other territory from which the jury will be selected and the case will be heard [see Milliken v. Gray (1969) 276 CA2d 595, 600, 81 CR 525] . A forum selection clause chooses a court from among different states or nations [see, e.g., The Bremen v. Zapata Off-Shore Co. (1972) 407 US 1, 92 S Ct 1907, 32 L Ed2d 513] .

Venue selection clauses generally have been held invalid in California to the extent they disrupt statutory venue provisions, on the ground that they violate a legislatively declared public policy fixing the place for trial [see General Acceptance Corp. v. Robinson (1929) 207 Cal. 285, 288-289, 277 P. 1039 ; Arntz Builders v. Superior Court (2004), 122 Cal. App. 4th 1195, 1204, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 346 ; Alexander v. Superior Court (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 723, 725-727, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 111 (both relying on General Acceptance)].

Distinguish:

In one case, the California Supreme Court upheld a forum selection clause specifying Los Angeles County (rather than the entire state of California) as the forum [Smith, Valentino & Smith, Inc. v. Superior Court (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 491, 495-496, 131 Cal. Rptr. 374, 551 P.2d 1206] . However, that case distinguished rather than overruled earlier authority, on the ground that it involved a forum selection clause rather than a venue selection clause [Smith, Valentino Smith, Inc. v. Superior Court (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 491, 495, 131 Cal. Rptr. 374, 551 P.2d 1206] . Subsequent opinions have adopted the position that this decision left unchanged the earlier rule invalidating venue selection clauses [Alexander v. Superior Court (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 723, 730, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 111 ; see Arntz Builders v. Superior Court (2004), 122 Cal. App. 4th 1195, 1201, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 346 (following Alexander)]. Whether a contract may validly specify venue in only one of multiple venues that would be proper, however, has not yet been conclusively resolved [Arntz Builders v. Superior Court (2004) 122 CA4th 1195, 1202 n5, 19 CR3d 346] .

Strategic Point--All Parties:

In alternate dispute resolution, by contrast, the place where the dispute will be heard can be determined by contract. Just as parties to an arbitration or mediation agreement can select the governing rules, the timetable, the number of arbitrators or mediators, the arbitrators or mediators themselves, and other logistics, the parties also can specify where an arbitration proceeding will take place. In other words, although courts cannot be pre-selected, arbitration locales can. For discussion of contractual arbitration clauses, see Ch. 5, Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureVenueGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureVenueMotions to TransferChoice of ForumCivil ProcedureVenueSpecial VenueContracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsForum Selection Clauses

98 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 3 Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions
VIII. DETERMINING PROPER VENUE

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 3.33

3.33 Challenging and Changing Venue.

3.33[1] County Where Complaint Was Filed Is Presumptively Proper County for Trial. The plaintiff's choice of venue is presumptively correct, and the burden of proving otherwise rests with the party moving to change venue. A motion to change venue may be granted on a showing that the county in which the action was filed was improper under any applicable theory [Black Diamond Asphalt, Inc. v. Superior Court (2003) 109 CA4th 166, 170, 134 CR2d 510] . Upon evidence that the court was not the proper one, a timely motion to transfer venue must be granted [CCP §§ 396b, 397(a)].

Strategic Point--Timing:

An unsuccessful motion for change of venue may not be the last word on the subject. If circumstances change, renewal of the motion may be proper, but counsel should bring the renewed motion within a reasonable time after knowledge of the changed circumstances is or should have been acquired [Thompson v. Superior Court (1972) 26 CA3d 300, 306, 103 CR 94] .

Cross Reference:

Discussion of burden of proof to change venue, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 571.40 (Matthew Bender).

3.33[2] Change of Venue May Be Requested for Valid Reason. Valid reasons for requesting a change of venue include the following:

- The action was filed in the wrong court [see CCP §§ 396b, 397(a)].
- There is reason to believe that an impartial trial cannot be had in the county in which the action was originally filed [CCP § 397(b)].
- There is no judge qualified to act [CCP § 397(d)].
- The convenience of witnesses and the ends of justice dictate a transfer [CCP § 397(c)].

Accounting for the "convenience of witnesses and the ends of justice" allows for a discretionary transfer of venue. If several venues are proper, a court may transfer the case to any venue that might be proper, as selected by the moving defendant [see Cubic Corp. v. Superior Court (1986) 186 CA3d 622, 625, 231 CR 18] .

Distinguish:

In California, the parties' convenience is not considered except under extraordinary circumstances [see Union Trust Life Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1968) 259 CA2d 23, 28, 66 CR 270 ; Wrin v. Ohlandt (1931) 213 C 158, 160, 1 P2d 991] .

Warning:

The rule is different in federal court, where the court may transfer a case outside of California for the convenience of parties and witnesses [see 28 USC § 1404(a)].

Cross References:

Moving for change of venue, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 6, Determining Forum, 6.45 -6.56.

Discussion of challenging improper venue under federal rules and form for notice of motion and motion to transfer venue for convenience in federal court, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, Ch. 2, Determining Forum (Jurisdiction and Venue).

Discussion of "convenience of witnesses and the ends of justice" and grounds for a motion for change of venue, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 571, Venue (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureVenueFederal Venue TransfersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureVenueFederal Venue TransfersConvenience TransfersCivil ProcedureVenueFederal Venue TransfersImproper Venue TransfersCivil ProcedureVenueMotions to TransferGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureVenueMotions to TransferChoice of Forum

99 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.syn

§ 4.syn Synopsis to Chapter 4: Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action

4.01 Scope.

4.02 Objective and Strategy.

4.03 CHECKLIST: Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations.

4.04 Options and Strategy.

4.05 Four-Year Statute of Limitations Applies to Breach of Written Contract.

4.05[1] Writing Must Express Contractual Obligation.

4.05[2] Tangible Written Indication of Acceptance by Defendant Must Exist.

4.06 Two-Year Statute of Limitations Applies to Breach of Oral or Implied Contract.

4.07 Four-Year Statute of Limitations Applies to Breach of UCC Sales Contract.

4.07[1] Parties May Not Extend Statute of Limitations.

4.07[2] Parties May Reduce Statute of Limitations.

4.08 Three-Year Statute Applies to Action for Fraud.

4.09 Two-Year or Four-Year Statute Applies to Action for Rescission of Contract.

4.10 Two-Year Statute for Action in Quantum Meruit.

4.11 Statute of Limitations Clause in Contract Can Override Applicable Statute.

4.11[1] Bargained for, Reasonable Limitation Period Can Be Valid.

4.11[2] Parties to Contract May Designate Limitation Period Shorter Than Fixed by Statute.

4.11[3] Parties to Contract May Designate Limitation Period Longer Than Fixed by Statute.

4.11[4] Waiver Designed to Bar Statute of Limitations Defense Must Be in Writing and Signed.

4.11[5] Contractual Provision Altering Statute of Limitations Applies Only to Parties With Whom Privity Exists.

4.11[6] Insurance Policy Provisions Can Affect Limitations Period.

4.12 Special Statutes of Limitations Apply for Breach of Construction Contracts Involving Latent Defects, Actions for Breach of Warranty, and Legal Malpractice Actions.

4.12[1] Breaches of Construction Contracts Involving Latent Defects Have 10-Year Statute of Repose.

4.12[2] Four-Year Statute Applies to Legal Malpractice Actions Based on Contract, Obligation, or Written Instrument.

4.13 Federal Law May Dictate Statute of Limitations.

4.14 Law of Forum State Governs Determination of Applicable Statute of Limitations.

4.15 Contractual Choice-of-Law Clause Incorporates Statute of Limitations From Chosen State.

4.16 If Case Can Be Covered by Two Statutes of Limitation, Only One Applies.

4.17 CHECKLIST: Determining When Limitations Period Expires.

4.18 Options and Strategy.

4.19 Statute of Limitations Begins to Run When Cause of Action Accrues.

4.19[1] Cause of Action Accrues When Claim Becomes Actionable.

4.19[2] For Oral and Written Contracts, Statute Begins to Run at Time of Breach.

4.19[3] For UCC Sales Contracts, Cause of Action Accrues When Breach Occurs, Regardless of Aggrieved Party's Knowledge of Breach.

4.19[4] Statute Does Not Begin to Run Until Conditions Precedent Are Satisfied.

4.19[5] When Contract Designates Fixed Time for Performance, Statute Does Not Begin Until Expiration of That Time Period.

4.19[6] When Contract Calls for Demand, Demand Must Be Made Before Cause of Action Accrues.

4.19[7] Timeliness of Complaint Is Determined Based on Date on Which Action Is Filed.

4.19[8] Single Event May Trigger Running of Statute for Multiple Causes of Action.

4.20 Amended Complaint Relates Back and Thus Avoids Statute of Limitations If Recovery Is Based on Same General Set of Facts.

4.21 Statute of Limitations May Be Tolled.

4.21[1] Discovery Rule May Toll Statute of Limitations.

4.21[2] Fraud Tolls Running of Statute.

4.21[2][a] Contract Breach Involving Fraud Is Treated As Fraud.

4.21[2][b] If Breach Involves Fraud, Statute Begins to Run From Date Plaintiff Discovers Facts Constituting Fraud.

4.21[2][c] Statute Is Tolled by Fraudulent Concealment of Facts.

4.21[3] Resident's Absence From State Tolls Statute.

4.21[4] Commencement of Action Suspends Running of Limitations Period.

4.21[5] Tolling Agreement Can Suspend Limitations Period.

4.21[6] Defendant May Be Equitably Estopped to Assert Statute of Limitations.

4.22 CHECKLIST: Raising Statute of Limitations Defense.

4.23 Options and Strategy.

4.23[1] Statute of Limitations Is Affirmative Defense.

4.23[2] Defendant Has Burden of Proof to Establish Statute of Limitations.

4.23[3] Failure to Properly and Timely Raise Defense May Result in Waiver of Defense.

4.24 Defense Generally Is Raised in Answer or Demurrer.

4.24[1] Defect on Face of Complaint Can Be Addressed by Demurrer.

4.24[2] Sufficient Facts Must Exist in Pleadings to Demur on Statute of Limitations Issue.

4.24[3] Statute of Limitations Defense Generally Is Raised in Answer Either by Alleging All Facts or by Citing Specific Code Section.

4.24[4] Statute of Limitations Defense May Be Raised in Amended Answer.

4.24[5] Statute of Limitations Defense May Be Raised by Motion for Summary Judgment.

4.24[6] Statute of Limitations Defense May Be Raised by Motion to Strike If Motion Is Accompanied by Demurrer.

4.25 Raising Defense of Laches.

4.25[1] Defendant May Assert Laches Defense If Prejudiced by Plaintiff's Unreasonable Delay.

4.25[2] Laches Can Apply Even If Action Was Timely Under Statute of Limitations.

4.25[3] Unclear Whether Defense of Laches Applies in California to Actions for Money Had and Received.

4.25[4] Laches Is Question of Fact.

4.25[5] Defendant Cannot Raise Laches Defense Unless Pledged Facts Show Laches.

4.25[6] Laches May Be Raised on Demurrer.

4.26 Demurrer to Complaint on Ground That Claim Is Barred by Statute of Limitations.

Demurrer to Complaint on Ground That Claim Is Barred by Statute of Limitations.

4.27 Answer Raising Affirmative Defense of Statute of Limitations.

Answer Raising Affirmative Defense of Statute of Limitations.

4.28 Memorandum for Party Asserting That Statute of Limitations Applicable to Fraud Should Apply.

Memorandum for Party Asserting That Statute of Limitations Applicable to Fraud Should Apply.

4.29 Memorandum for Party Asserting That Action Is Barred by Statute of Limitations.

Memorandum for Party Asserting That Action Is Barred by Statute of Limitations.

4.30 Memorandum for Party Asserting That Four-Year Limitation Period to Action on Contract Evidenced by Writing.

Memorandum for Party Asserting That Four-Year Limitation Period to Action on Contract Evidenced by Writing.

4.31 Demurrer to Complaint on Ground That Claim Is Barred by Laches.

Demurrer to Complaint on Ground That Claim Is Barred by Laches.

4.32 Allegation for Party Asserting Contractual Extension of Limitation Period.

Allegation for Party Asserting Contractual Extension of Limitation Period.

100 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action

I. STRATEGY

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.01

4.01 Scope.

This chapter covers:

- Options and strategy for determining the applicable statute of limitations in breach of contract actions [see 4.04].
- The statute of limitations for breach of written contracts [see 4.05; see 4.30].
- The statute of limitations for breach of oral contracts [see 4.06].
- The statute of limitations for contracts governed by the UCC [see 4.07].
- The statute of limitations in fraud actions [see 4.08].
- The statute of limitations for breach of construction contracts involving latent defects; actions for breach of warranty; and legal malpractice actions [see 4.12].
- Determining when the statute of limitations begins to run [see 4.19] and the relation-back doctrine [see 4.20].
- Determining whether the statute of limitations may be tolled [see 4.21].
- Raising the statute of limitations as a defense [see 4.22 -4.25; Forms: see 4.26 -4.31].
- Asserting that the statute of limitations was extended by agreement of the parties [see 4.11[3]; Form: see 4.32].

Core Statutes:

CCP §§ 337, 339, 360, 360.5; Com Code § 2725

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawDefensesStatutes of LimitationsGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsGeneral Overview

101 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action
I. STRATEGY

*1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.024.02 Objective and Strategy.

This chapter covers the applicable statutes of limitations for breach of contract actions. It addresses the issues of which statute applies, when the action accrues, when the statute of limitations begins to run, and how and when the statute of limitations defense is raised. Related issues such as the discovery rule and fraud in contract actions are also discussed. The chapter also covers the related equitable doctrine of laches.

Civil actions, including contract actions, can be commenced only within periods of limitations, after the cause of action accrues [CCP § 312; Angeles Chem. Co., Inc. v. Spencer, Inc. & Jones (1996) 44 CA4th 112, 120, 51 CR2d 594]. Statutes of limitations "are designed to protect the enacting state's residents and courts from the burdens associated with the prosecution of stale cases in which memories have faded and evidence has been lost" [Ashland Chem. Co. v. Provence (1982) 129 CA3d 790, 794, 181 CR 340].

Strategic Point:

California law requires that the defense of the statute of limitations must be raised promptly and properly on discovery. An advantage to doing so is that the action may be dismissed on demurrer without leave to amend. A disadvantage of not following this approach is that the defense can be deemed waived [see Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners v. American Med. Int'l, Inc. (1995) 38 CA4th 1532, 1548, 46 CR2d 33].

Cross References:

Discussion of law applicable to action, see Ch. 1, Determining the Applicable Law.

Discussion of which causes of action may apply in a particular case, see Ch. 2, Determining What Causes of Action Exist.

Discussion of jurisdiction and venue, see Ch. 3, Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions.

Discussion of contract damages, see Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions.

Discussion of procedures to attack and defend a contract action, see Chs. 13 -17.

Discussion of suing for breach of contract, see Ch. 22, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract.

For Tips on updating case law and expanding your research with additional resources, see How to Use Lexis.com With This Publication at the front of this volume.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Defenses, Demurrers & Objections General Overview Contracts

Law Defenses Statutes of Limitations Governments Legislation Statutes of Limitations General Overview

102 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action

II. DETERMINING APPLICABLE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.03

4.03 CHECKLIST: Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations.

☐ Analyze contract to determine applicable statute of limitations.

☐ Four years for a contract founded upon an instrument in writing.

Authority:

CCP § 337

Discussion:

See 4.05

☐ Parties may agree by contract to shorten statute of limitations for breach of a written contract.

Authority:

Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners v. American Med. Int'l, Inc. (1995) 38 CA4th 1532, 1547-1548, 1549 n17, 46 CR2d 33

Discussion:

See 4.11[2]

Form:

See 4.27

☐ Parties may agree by contract to extend statute of limitations for breach of a written contract.

Authority:

Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners v. American Med. Int'l, Inc. (1995) 38 CA4th 1532, 1547-1548, 1549 n17, 46 CR2d 33

Discussion:

See 4.11[3]

Form:

See 4.32

- ☐ Parties may agree in writing to waive statute of limitations.

Authority:

CCP § 360.5

Discussion:

See 4.11[4]

- ☐ Two years for a contract not founded upon an instrument in writing; that is, an oral or implied contract.

Authority:

CCP § 339

Discussion:

See 4.06

- ☐ Four years for a contract for the sale of goods (UCC sales contract), whether written or oral.

Authority:

Com Code § 2725

Discussion:

See 4.07

- ☐ Parties may not extend statute of limitations for a UCC sales contract.

Authority:

Com Code § 2725(1)

Discussion:

See 4.07[1]

- ☐ Parties may reduce statute of limitations for a UCC sales contract.

Authority:

Com Code § 2725(1)

Discussion:

See 4.07[2]

- ☐ Three-year statute of limitations for action for fraud.

Authority:*CCP § 338Discussion:

See 4.08

- ☐ Four-year statute of limitations for rescission of written contract.

Authority:*CCP § 337(3)Discussion:

See 4.09

- ☐ Two-year statute of limitations for rescission of nonwritten contract.

Authority:*CCP § 339(3)Discussion:

See 4.09

- ☐ Two-year statute of limitations for quantum meruit recovery in contract action.

Authority:*CCP § 339Discussion:

See 4.10

- ☐ Special statute of limitations apply for breach of construction contracts involving latent defects and legal malpractice actions.

Authority:*CCP §§ 337, 337.15Discussion:

See 4.12

- ☐ If more than one statute of limitations applies, determine which statute controls.

Authority:*Collection Bureau of San Jose v. Rumsey (2000) 24 C4th 301, 310-311, 99 CR2d 792, 6 P3d 713 ;
Anson v. County of Merced (1988) 202 CA3d 1195, 1199Discussion:

See 4.16

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsGeneral OverviewContracts LawDefensesStatutes of LimitationsGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime LimitationsGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsWaivers

103 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action

II. DETERMINING APPLICABLE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

*1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.044.04 Options and Strategy.

The applicable limitations period in California varies depending on the nature of the underlying action and, in some cases, by the provisions of the underlying contract. Therefore, it is essential that the first step in initiating or defending against a lawsuit is to determine which statute of limitations applies. After the applicable statute has been determined, the attorney then can determine when the limitations period commenced running, and when it expires [see 4.18]. The latter determinations, in turn, dictate whether an action can be filed or maintained, and how much time the plaintiff's attorney has in which to file it.

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

In some cases the applicable limitations periods may dictate the available causes of action. When multiple potential causes of action exist, and some are barred by the applicable limitations period while other are not, the plaintiff's options may be significantly limited.

Strategic Point--Defendant:

Because the applicable limitations period is determined by the gravamen of plaintiff's complaint rather than the named cause of action, defense counsel should consider whether plaintiff's complaint attempts to disguise a cause of action in order to take advantage of a longer statute of limitations [see Akin v. Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's London (2006) 140 CA4th 291, 299, 44 CR3d 284 (when properly construed, plaintiff's cause of action against an insurer for improper rescission amounted to no more than a cause of action for breach of contract, which was barred by a contractual one-year limitations period)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawDefensesStatutes of LimitationsGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsGeneral Overview

104 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action
II. DETERMINING APPLICABLE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.05

4.05 Four-Year Statute of Limitations Applies to Breach of Written Contract.

4.05[1] Writing Must Express Contractual Obligation. The statute of limitations for breach of a contract "founded upon an instrument in writing" is four years after the breach has occurred [CCP § 337]. The four-year statute of limitation of CCP § 337 applies when a breach of contract action is based on an instrument in writing [Century Indem. Co. v. Superior Court (1996) 50 CA4th 1115, 1123, 58 CR2d 69 ("although Century's obligation to Scottsdale could be said to ultimately or remotely stem from Century's written contract of insurance with Vikron, it is not one immediately resting in or growing out of that written instrument")].

An action is "based on an instrument in writing" within the meaning of CCP § 337 when the writing expresses the obligation sued on [Murphy v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1960) 177 CA2d 539, 543, 2 CR 325].

Jury Instructions:

General Time Limitation for Suit on Written Contract, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3F, Instr. MB 300F.50 (Matthew Bender).

A contract may be "in writing" for purposes of the statute of limitations even though it was accepted orally or by an act other than signing [Amen v. Merced County Title Co. (1962) 58 C2d 528, 532, 25 CR 65, 375 P2d 33 ; Pietrobon v. Libarle (2006) 137 CA4th 992, 997, 40 CR3d 718] .

It is not sufficient that the cause of action is in some way remotely or indirectly connected with such an instrument, or that the instrument is a link in the chain establishing the cause of action. The instrument itself must contain a contract to do the thing for the nonperformance of which the action is brought [E.O.C. Ord. Inc. v. Kovakovich (1988) 200 CA3d 1194, 1199, 246 CR 456].

Judge's Perspective:

Whether the action is connected to a writing is important because it affects the statute of limitations: the plaintiff has only two years to bring a claim on an oral contract, but four years to bring a claim on a written contract [see CCP §§ 337, 339]. Thus, the question of whether the parties have a contract based upon an instrument in writing can mean the difference between a case that is timely filed and one that is not. Note that a contract "founded upon an instrument in writing" is not the same thing as a written contract. In E.O.C. Ord. Inc. v. Kovakovich (1988) 200 CA3d 1194, 246 CR 456 , the plaintiff sent the defendant a letter proposing the terms of a contract, and the defendant accepted orally in a telephone call shortly thereafter. The court found that the four-year statute of limitations applied, because the plaintiff had satisfied the requirements of CCP § 337: "that there be a writing containing all terms and that there be acceptance by the party to be charged" [E.O.C. Ord. Inc. v. Kovakovich (1988) 200 CA3d 1194, 1201, 246 CR 456].

Examples:

Following are examples of writings held sufficient to constitute a contract:

- Letter Accepted by Party Is Instrument in Writing. A letter that constitutes an offer, which was accepted by the plaintiff, is evidence of a writing signed by the party to be charged. Therefore, the four-year statute of limitations is applicable to an action for damages for the offeror's breach of the contract [Ravel v. Hubbard (1952) 112 CA2d 255, 258-259, 246 P2d 88].

- Unsigned Settlement Agreement Is Instrument in Writing. The four-year statute of limitations applies to an action to enforce a settlement agreement drafted by the defendant's attorney and signed by the plaintiff but not by the defendant. The defendant admitted that he had agreed to the settlement and reaffirmed that the terms to which he had agreed were those set forth in the written settlement agreement prepared by his attorney [Pietrobon v. Libarle (2006) 137 CA4th 992, 997-998, 40 CR3d 718].

- Receipt for Money Containing Promise Is Instrument in Writing. A written receipt for money that contains words from which a promise may be inferred, arising directly from the receipt itself and including its terms, is an instrument in writing to which the four-year statute of limitations provided by CCP § 337 applies. All of the obligations and promises that the words in the writing necessarily imply are included in the terms of the writing [O'Brien v. King (1917) 174 C 769, 774, 164 P 631 ; Ashley v. Vischer (1864) 24 C 322, 327-329].

- Action by Third-Party Beneficiary Is on Written Contract. An action by a third-party beneficiary is on an obligation founded on a written instrument within the meaning of CCP § 337, although parol evidence may be necessary to show that the party maintaining the action is an intended beneficiary within the class intended to be benefitted by the contract, and to show the extent of the party's interest [Division of Labor Law Enforcement v. Dennis (1947) 81 CA2d 306, 311, 183 P2d 932].

Jury Instructions:

Statute of Limitations Against Third Party Beneficiary, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3F, Instr. MB 300F.53 (Matthew Bender).

- Action by Employees Involving Collective Bargaining Agreement. The four-year limitation period prescribed by CCP § 337 applies to an action by orally hired employees to recover the difference between the wages actually received and the amounts claimed to have been payable to them under the provisions of collective bargaining agreements between the employer and unions [Division of Labor Law Enforcement v. Dennis (1947) 81 CA2d 306, 310-311, 183 P2d 932].

- Escrow Instructions in Writing Constitute Written Contract. An action for failure to comply with escrow instructions is an action on a written contract to which the four-year limitation period prescribed in CCP § 337 applies, if the instructions are in writing and the escrow holder accepts them, or if the escrow holder prepares the instructions and offers to perform them, and the buyer and seller accept the offer [Amen v. Merced County Title Co. (1962) 58 C2d 528, 532, 25 CR 65, 375 P2d 33].

Consider:

The omission of information to be inserted in blanks in a written instrument does not invalidate the agreement as a written contract [Benard v. Walkup (1969) 272 CA2d 595, 602, 77 CR 544].

 Cross References:

Discussion of statute of limitations regarding oral contracts, see 4.06.

Form for memorandum asserting application of four-year statute to written contract, see 4.30.

General discussion of statute of limitations as it relates to contract actions, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, 4.05[1].

4.05[2] Tangible Written Indication of Acceptance by Defendant Must Exist. For an action to be founded on an instrument in writing, there must be some tangible written indication of acceptance of the terms of the writing by the defendant [James De Nicholas Assocs., Inc. v. Heritage Constr. Corp. (1970) 5 CA3d 421, 424-425, 85 CR 233]. When all the writings tending to show the terms of an agreement are the plaintiff's writings, they cannot be used to show the defendant's acceptance [James De Nicholas Assocs., Inc. v. Heritage Constr. Corp. (1970) 5 CA3d 421, 425, 85 CR 233].

Distinguish--UCC Sales Contract:

The statute of limitations for an action by a seller against a buyer under a retail installment sales "security agreement" by which the buyer becomes obligated to pay a certain sum in monthly installments is Com Code § 2725, not CCP § 337. In an action by a seller for breach of such a contract, the buyer could not rely on the four-year limitation period of Com Code § 2725, when the buyer did not plead underlying facts establishing a bar, but instead pleaded that the action was barred by the four-year statute of CCP § 337 [Mysel v. Gross (1977) 70 CA3d Supp 10, 14-15, 138 CR 873].

 Cross References:

Detailed discussion on establishing the existence of a contract, see Chs. 13-18.

Remedies under the Commercial Code, see Ch. 26, Contract for Sale of Goods--Seeking Remedies Under California Commercial Code.

Statute of limitations issues in breach of warranty action under Commercial Code, see Ch. 24, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Warranty, 24.38.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawBreachCauses of ActionGeneral OverviewContracts LawDefensesStatutes of LimitationsContracts LawTypes of ContractsExecuted ContractsGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime Limitations

105 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action

II. DETERMINING APPLICABLE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.06

4.06 Two-Year Statute of Limitations Applies to Breach of Oral or Implied Contract.

The statute of limitations for breach of a contract "not founded upon an instrument in writing"--that is, an oral or implied contract--is two years after the breach has occurred [CCP § 339].

Jury Instructions:

General Time Limitation for Suit on Oral or Implied Contract, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3F, Instr. MB 300F.51 (Matthew Bender).

Warning:

The term "any contract for sale," as used in the four-year Commercial Code statute of limitations applicable to contracts for sale of goods, includes an oral agreement [Com Code § 2725; see Filmservice Labs., Inc. v. Harvey Bernhard Enters., Inc. (1989) 208 CA3d 1297, 1304, 256 CR 735].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of statute of limitations regarding written contracts, see 4.05.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawDefensesStatutes of LimitationsContracts LawTypes of ContractsImplied-in-Fact ContractsContracts LawTypes of ContractsOral AgreementsGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime Limitations

106 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action

II. DETERMINING APPLICABLE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

*1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.074.07 Four-Year Statute of Limitations Applies to Breach of UCC Sales Contract.

4.07[1] Parties May Not Extend Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for a UCC sales contract is four years after the cause of action has accrued [Com Code § 2725; see also Mysel v. Gross (1977) 70 CA3d Supp 10, 14, 138 CR 873]. The parties may not by agreement extend the statute of limitations of a UCC sales contract beyond four years [Com Code § 2725].

4.07[2] Parties May Reduce Statute of Limitations. The parties may reduce by agreement the period of limitation of a UCC sales contract, but the period may not be less than one year [Com Code § 2725].

Warning:

The term "any contract for sale," as used in the four-year statute of limitations applicable to contracts for sale of goods, includes an oral agreement [Com Code § 2725; see Filmservice Labs., Inc. v. Harvey Bernhard Enters., Inc. (1989) 208 CA3d 1297, 1304-1305, 256 CR 735].

Cross References:

Remedies under the California Commercial Code (UCC sales contract), see Ch. 26, Contract for Sale of Goods--Seeking Remedies Under California Commercial Code.

Breach of contract actions under the California Commercial Code (UCC sales contracts), see Ch. 28, Contract for Sale of Goods--Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract Under California Commercial Code.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesStatutes of LimitationsTime LimitationsContracts
LawDefensesStatutes of LimitationsContracts LawSales of GoodsStatutes of LimitationsTime
LimitationsGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime Limitations

107 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action

II. DETERMINING APPLICABLE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

*1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.084.08 Three-Year Statute Applies to Action for Fraud.

Although an action for fraud may be based on a contract, the three-year statute of limitations that governs a claim of fraud is different from the two-year or four-year statute for a claim of breach of contract [CCP § 338; see, e.g., Mills v. Mills (1956) 147 CA2d 107, 121, 305 P2d 61].

Strategic Point--Defendant:

It is not uncommon for a resourceful plaintiff whose breach of oral contract cause of action (two-year statute of limitations) has gone stale to instead plead fraud alone, in an attempt to take advantage of its three-year fraud statute of limitations. When faced with such a complaint, the defendant should carefully examine whether the plaintiff has successfully pleaded the additional elements required for a fraud cause of action and, if not, move to dismiss.

Cross References:

Discussion of statutes of limitation for written and oral contracts, see 4.05, 4.06.

Discussion of contract breach involving fraud, see 4.21[2][b].

Discussion of fraud actions, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 269, Fraud and Deceit (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesFraudContracts LawDefensesStatutes of LimitationsContracts LawSales of GoodsStatutes of LimitationsTime LimitationsGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime LimitationsTortsBusiness TortsFraud & MisrepresentationGeneral Overview

108 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action

II. DETERMINING APPLICABLE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.09

4.09 Two-Year or Four-Year Statute Applies to Action for Rescission of Contract.

An action for rescission of a contract founded upon an instrument in writing must be brought within four years from the date the facts entitling the aggrieved party to rescind occurred [CCP § 337(3)]. An action for rescission of a contract not founded upon an instrument in writing must be brought within two years of the date on which the facts that entitle the aggrieved party to rescind occurred [CCP § 339(3)]. When the ground for rescission is fraud or mistake, the time does not begin to run until the discovery by the aggrieved party of the facts constituting the fraud or mistake [CCP §§ 337(3), 339(3)]. When the ground for rescission is a misrepresentation under Ins Code § 359, the time does not begin to run until the representation becomes false [CCP § 337(3)].

Jury Instructions:

Statute of Limitations for Rescission of Contract, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3F, Instr. MB 300F.56 (Matthew Bender).

➡ Cross References:

Discussion of rescission in contract actions, see Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions.

Discussion of fraud in contract actions, see Ch. 17, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Fraud, Duress, Menace, and Undue Influence.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawDefensesStatutes of LimitationsContracts LawRemediesRescission & RedhibitionGeneral OverviewContracts LawSales of GoodsStatutes of LimitationsTime LimitationsGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime Limitations

109 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action

II. DETERMINING APPLICABLE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.10

4.10 Two-Year Statute for Action in Quantum Meruit.

An action in quantum meruit must be brought within two years of the date of accrual of the cause of action [CCP § 339(1); Iverson, Yoakum, Papiano & Hatch v. Berwald (1999) 76 CA4th 990, 996, 90 CR2d 665].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of quantum meruit in contract actions, see Ch. 9, Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawDefensesStatutes of LimitationsContracts LawRemediesEquitable ReliefQuantum MeruitContracts LawSales of GoodsStatutes of LimitationsTime LimitationsContracts LawTypes of ContractsImplied-in-Law ContractsGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime Limitations

110 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action
 II. DETERMINING APPLICABLE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.11

4.11 Statute of Limitations Clause in Contract Can Override Applicable Statute.

4.11[1] Bargained for, Reasonable Limitation Period Can Be Valid. A contract may set the time within which a suit may be brought that is a shorter or a longer period than the time in the statute [Schram v. Robertson (9th Cir 1940) 111 F2d 722, 724 ; see also Sousa v. Unilab Corp. Class II (Non-Exempt) Members Group Benefit Plan (ED Cal 2002) 252 F Supp2d 1046, 1055 (insurer entitled to summary judgment when surviving spouse's claim that insurer wrongfully denied her accidental death benefits on her deceased husband's policy was filed outside three-year contractual limitations period stated in her ERISA-covered policy; although statute of limitations for ERISA actions in California was four years, pursuant to CCP § 337, contractual three-year limitations period was reasonable and allowed by law)].

Whether an agreed-on period of limitation is in itself unreasonable is a question of law [Capehart v. Heady (1962) 206 CA2d 386, 388, 23 CR 851]. Generally, that question must be decided as of the date the contract was made [Capehart v. Heady (1962) 206 CA2d 386, 391, 23 CR 851]. Financial considerations usually are irrelevant, and the fact that the agreed-on period of limitation operates as to the claims of one party but not the other does not of itself make the period unreasonable. However, unreasonableness may be shown by the fact that the time when the agreed-on period begins is fluctuating, vague, and indefinite [Capehart v. Heady (1962) 206 CA2d 386, 388-391, 23 CR 851].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of altering limitation period by agreement, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 345.28[1] (Matthew Bender).

4.11[2] Parties to Contract May Designate Limitation Period Shorter Than Fixed by Statute. Parties to a contract may agree to a shorter limitation period than the period fixed by statute. However, the period must not violate public policy in that it is not so unreasonable as to show imposition or undue advantage [Hambrech & Quist Venture Partners v. American Med. Int'l, Inc. (1995) 38 CA4th 1532, 1547-1548, 1549 n17, 46 CR2d 33 ; Hamaker v. Williams (1937) 22 CA2d 256, 259, 70 P2d 973].

Example:

Requiring a client to assert a claim for breach of contract against her attorney within 10 days of receipt of a billing statement was inherently unreasonable [Charnay v. Cobert (2006) 145 CA4th 170, 183, 51 CR3d 471] .

If the party in whose favor the agreed-on period operates is engaged in a business or an activity of a quasi-public nature, the agreement as to the shortened period is viewed more critically than an agreement between private parties in general [Capehart v. Heady (1962) 206 CA2d 386, 388-391, 23 CR 851].

 Cross Reference:

Form for affirmative defense that parties contractually shortened limitation period, see 4.27.

Warning:

Contractual stipulations limiting the right to sue to a period shorter than granted by a statute are looked on with disfavor and should be strictly construed, although this rule cannot be used to destroy the effect of the words of the contract itself. However, this is a general rule of law that should not be used to destroy the effect of a more specific applicable rule [see Sanders v. American Cas. Co. (1969) 269 CA2d 306, 309, 74 CR 634 ; Western Filter Corp. v. Argan, Inc. (9th Cir 2008) 540 F3d 947, 949 (stock purchase agreement provision permitting representations and warranties to survive closing for one year did not unambiguously state the parties' intent to contractually reduce the statute of limitations to one year)].

4.11[3] Parties to Contract May Designate Limitation Period Longer Than Fixed by Statute. Parties to a contract may agree to extend the statute of limitations [Hambrech & Quist Venture Partners v. American Med. Int'l, Inc. (1995) 38 CA4th 1532, 1547, 46 CR2d 33].

 Cross Reference:

Form for allegation that parties contractually extended limitation period, see 4.32.

Careful research into applicable law is advised, however, because the parties' ability to extend the statute of limitations may be limited.

Examples:

- The four-year limitation period for breach of a UCC sales contract cannot be extended by agreement, but can be shortened to not less than one year [Com Code § 2725(1)].

- No waiver executed before the expiration of the time limited for the commencement of the action by CCP § 312 et seq. may be effective for a period exceeding four years from the date of expiration of the statutory period, and no waiver executed after the expiration of that time may be effective for a period exceeding four years from the date thereof [CCP § 360.5]. However, any such waiver may be renewed for a further period of not exceeding four years from the expiration of the immediately preceding waiver, and such waivers may be made successively [CCP § 360.5; see also Carlton Browne & Co., Inc. v. Superior Court (1989) 210 CA3d 35, 40-46, 258 CR 118].

Judge's Perspective:

Although it is conceivable that parties to an oral contract might agree to extend (or reduce) the period of the statute of limitations, it seems unlikely that such parties would do so. Of course, an oral contract's limitations period could be extended by the parties' conduct in other ways, such as by estoppel [see Langdon v. Langdon (1942) 47 CA2d 28, 31-32, 117 P2d 371]. Further, the parties to an oral contract can agree at a subsequent date to extend the limitations period, which would be valid only if in writing and signed by the party who would otherwise assert the statute of limitations [see CCP § 260.5].

4.11[4] Waiver Designed to Bar Statute of Limitations Defense Must Be in Writing and Signed. Generally, a waiver designed to bar a defense to an action that is based on the fact that the action was not commenced within the applicable statute of limitations must be in writing and signed by the person obligated [CCP § 360.5].

A waiver of statute of limitations also may be valid if signed by the authorized agent of the person obligated [Carlton Browne & Co., Inc. v. Superior Court (1989) 210 CA3d 35, 46, 258 CR 118 (written waiver signed by corporate defendant's attorney-agent)].

Distinguish:

It is not necessary in all cases that a waiver of the defense of bar of a statute of limitation be in writing; the conduct, or even the silence, of a party may create, under some circumstances, an equitable estoppel that would deprive that party of the right to plead the bar of the applicable statute [see, e.g., Isaacson v. Oakland (1968) 263 CA2d 414, 419, 69 CR 379 ; Atlas Fin. Corp. v. Kenny (1945) 68 CA2d 504, 517, 157 P2d 401].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of waiving limitations by agreement, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 345.28[1] (Matthew Bender).

4.11[5] Contractual Provision Altering Statute of Limitations Applies Only to Parties With Whom Privity Exists. Although parties may contract to extend the limitations period, such an agreement has no effect on other potential parties with whom there is no privity [FNB Mortgage Corp. v. Pacific Gen. Group (1999) 76 CA4th 1116, 1121, 1135, 90 CR2d 841 (defendant's tolling agreement with plaintiff did not extend defendant's time to file cross-complaint against developer for indemnity)].

Third-party beneficiaries may have to take the contract as they find it and be bound by the contractual statute of limitations [see Kaichen's Metal Mart, Inc. v. Ferro Cast Co. (1995) 33 CA4th 8, 14-16, 39 CR2d 233 (agreement to extend statute of limitations made between senior secured lienholder creditor and debtor was binding on junior lienholder)].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of effect of waiving limitations by agreement, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 345.28[1] (Matthew Bender).

Jury Instructions:

Statute of Limitations Against Third Party Beneficiary, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3F, Instr. MB 300F.53 (Matthew Bender).

4.11[6] Insurance Policy Provisions Can Affect Limitations Period. Insurance policies frequently require notice of a claim, which can be a contractual condition precedent to the running of the statute of limitations [see California Shoppers, Inc. v. Royal Globe Ins. Co. (1985) 175 CA3d 1, 56, 221 CR 171]. In addition, many insurance policies contain a time limit, different from the notice requirement, for filing an action against the insurer. This effectively operates as a contractual statute of limitations [see Ins Code § 2071 (fire insurance policy must require loss actions to be brought within 12 months of loss); Akin v. Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's London (2006) 140 CA4th 291, 299, 44 CR3d 284 (plaintiff's claim was barred by the one-year limitations period provided in homeowner's insurance policy)].

 Cross Reference:

Further discussion of statutes of limitation and insurance policies, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 308, Insurance (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesStatutes of LimitationsTime LimitationsContracts LawContract
Conditions & ProvisionsGeneral OverviewContracts LawDefensesStatutes of LimitationsContracts LawSales of GoodsStatutes of LimitationsGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsGeneral Overview

111 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action

II. DETERMINING APPLICABLE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.12

4.12 Special Statutes of Limitations Apply for Breach of Construction Contracts Involving Latent Defects, Actions for Breach of Warranty, and Legal Malpractice Actions.

4.12[1] Breaches of Construction Contracts Involving Latent Defects Have 10-Year Statute of Repose. When a defect is latent (not apparent from a reasonable inspection), the four-year statute of limitations in CCP § 337 begins to run only after the damage is sufficiently obvious to give a reasonable person notice [Siegel v. Anderson Homes (2004) 118 CA4th 994, 1014]. However, for latent defect in construction, there is a 10-year repose period after substantial completion of improvement, which imposes an absolute 10-year bar based on the date of substantial completion, regardless of discovery of the defect [CCP § 337.15; see San Diego Unified School Dist. v. County of San Diego (2009) 170 CA4th 288, 301-302, 87 CR3d 796]. This 10-year limitation is a statute of repose rather than a statute of limitations.

Jury Instructions:

Statute of Repose, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3I, Instr. MB 300I.76 (Matthew Bender).

These statutes set up two related rules [Angeles Chem. Co., Inc. v. Spencer, Inc. & Jones (1996) 44 CA4th 112, 51 CR2d 594]:

- Actions for a latent construction defect must be filed within four years of discovery (if CCP § 337 applies); but
- In any event, such actions must be filed within 10 years of substantial completion.

➡ Cross Reference:

Discussion of statute of limitations in building contracts, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 104.10 et seq. (Matthew Bender).

4.12[2] Four-Year Statute Applies to Legal Malpractice Actions Based on Contract, Obligation, or Written Instrument. Although most legal malpractice actions are based on negligence and subject to a one-year statute of limitations [see CCP § 340.6], a legal malpractice action based on a contract, obligation, or liability founded on an instrument in writing must be brought within the four-year limitations period of CCP § 337 [see Benard v. Walkup (1969) 272 CA2d 595, 601, 77 CR 544 (legal malpractice action based on defendant's failure to prosecute plaintiff's personal injury claim pursuant to a written contingent fee agreement was timely filed within the four-year period)].

The contract need not require the attorney to take any specific action or promise a specific result [see, e.g., Benard v. Walkup (1969) 272 CA2d 595, 601, 77 CR 544 (contingent fee contract did not require any specific action by attorney or that he obtain specific result or exercise particular skill in prosecuting plaintiff's action, requirement that writing express obligation sued on was satisfied because agreement employed defendant to "commence and prosecute such claims" and stated over defendant's signature: "I accept said employment and agree to do all things necessary to prosecute said claim")].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of action for legal malpractice, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 76, Attorney Professional Liability (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawBreachCauses of ActionBreach of WarrantyContracts LawDefensesStatutes of LimitationsContracts LawSales of GoodsStatutes of LimitationsTime LimitationsGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime LimitationsTortsMalpractice & Professional LiabilityAttorneys

112 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action
II. DETERMINING APPLICABLE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.13

4.13 Federal Law May Dictate Statute of Limitations.

Federal law may preempt the applicable California statute of limitations when Congress has provided a specific statute of limitations in a controlling statute [see, e.g., Angeles Chem. Co., Inc. v. Spencer, Inc. & Jones (1996) 44 CA4th 112, 127, 51 CR2d 594 (CERCLA eliminated 10-year bar of CCP § 337.15 in certain environmental cases)].

Example:

A chemical company sued a contractor based on faulty construction work that led to the contamination of subsoil. The chemical company filed its action within three years of discovering the defective work, but more than 10 years after its completion. Under the California statute governing latent construction defects, the action would not have been timely. However, the court held that the statute of limitations under federal law (CERCLA) explicitly preempted the state statute, such that the court was required to apply a discovery rule in all instances [Angeles Chem. Co., Inc. v. Spencer, Inc. & Jones (1996) 44 CA4th 112, 127, 51 CR2d 594].

Strategic Point--All Parties:

Statutes of limitations arguably are no longer considered procedural under conflict of laws analysis or in interpreting choice-of-law provisions [see Ashland Chem. Co. v. Provence (1982) 129 CA3d 790, 793-794, 181 CR 340]. As the Supreme Court has stated, "except at the extremes, the terms 'substance' and 'procedure' precisely define very little except a dichotomy" [Sun Oil Co. v. Wortman (1988) 486 US 717, 726, 736, 108 S Ct 2117, 100 L Ed2d 743 ; Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners v. American Med. Int'l, Inc. (1995) 38 CA4th 1532, 1542, 46 CR2d 33]. Further, what these two terms mean in any particular context is determined by the purpose for which the dichotomy is made [Sun Oil Co. v. Wortman (1988) 486 US 717, 726-727, 108 S Ct 2117, 100 L Ed2d 743]. Accordingly, the parties should be prepared to argue the underlying purpose for which the distinction is made, and not the distinction itself [see Lackner v. LaCroix (1979) 25 C3d 747, 750-752, 159 CR 693, 602 P2d 393], and recall that in applying choice of law principles, courts generally will defer to another state's substantive laws, but not its procedural laws [see Klingebiel v. Lockheed Aircraft Corp. (ND Cal 1971) 372 F Supp 1086, 1089].

Consider:

Federal procedure requires that in a pleading to a preceding pleading, affirmative defenses including the statute of limitations should be set forth affirmatively [Fed R Civ P 8(c)]. In federal cases, problems relating to the statute of limitations should appear on the face of the complaint, because averments of time and place are material and must be considered when evaluating the sufficiency of pleadings [Fed R Civ P 9(f)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of impact of federal rules on state statutes of limitation, see Moore's Federal Practice, § 6.03 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsChoice of LawGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsFederal Common LawPreemptionContracts LawDefensesStatutes of LimitationsGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsGeneral Overview

113 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action

II. DETERMINING APPLICABLE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.14

4.14 Law of Forum State Governs Determination of Applicable Statute of Limitations.

The law of the forum state, rather than the law of the state where the obligation arose, governs the determination of the applicable statute of limitations [Western Coal & Mining Co. v. Jones (1946) 27 C2d 819, 828, 167 P2d 719].

Judge's Perspective:

Whether the holding of Western Coal & Mining is still good law after cases like Hambrecht & Quist [Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners v. American Med. Int'l, Inc. (1995) 38 CA4th 1532, 1542, 46 CR2d 33] remains to be seen. Under Western Coal, the law of the forum state applies in a breach of contract case, even if the California court would otherwise apply another state's law to interpret or enforce the contract (for example, under traditional choice of law principles) [Western Coal & Mining Co. v. Jones (1946) 27 C2d 819, 828, 167 P2d 719]. This holding is based on the longstanding legal distinction between laws that are "procedural" and laws that are "substantive"; in applying choice of law principles, courts generally will defer to another state's substantive laws, but not its procedural laws [Klingebiel v. Lockheed Aircraft Corp. (ND Cal 1971) 372 F Supp 1086, 1089 (discussing the distinction in California law)]. The line of cases including Hambrecht & Quist, however, has swept aside that distinction. These cases reject that distinction as it applies to statutes of limitation, holding that another state's statute of limitations is part of the "law" the parties choose when they agree on a choice-of-law provision [see Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners v. American Med. Int'l, Inc. (1995) 38 CA4th 1532, 1542, 46 CR2d 33]. That same analysis should apply whenever a California court applies another state's law to a contract, regardless of whether the reason is a choice of law provision in the contract or the application of California's choice of law doctrine to the facts of the case. Thus, a California trial court applying Ohio law to the interpretation and enforcement of a contract should be free to apply Ohio's statute of limitations, even if prior cases held to the contrary [see, e.g., Boyle v. Lampe (1963) 223 CA2d 715, 719, 35 CR 910]. In this context, it is likely that California's borrowing statute [CCP § 361] does apply to contract cases, though there is as yet no case authority for this proposition.

► Cross Reference:

Discussion of application of forum state statute of limitations, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 4, Limitation of Actions.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsChoice of LawGeneral OverviewContracts LawDefensesStatutes of LimitationsGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsGeneral Overview

114 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action
 II. DETERMINING APPLICABLE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.15

4.15 Contractual Choice-of-Law Clause Incorporates Statute of Limitations From Chosen State.

A choice-of-law clause providing that a contract will be governed by the law of a particular state incorporates that state's statute of limitations [Taylor v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2000) 78 CA4th 472, 487, 92 CR2d 873 (citing Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners v. American Med. Int'l, Inc. (1995) 38 CA4th 1532, 1536, 1538-1544, 46 CR2d 33)].

Example:

A stock purchase agreement that stated that it was to be governed and construed in accordance with Delaware law incorporated Delaware's three-year statute of limitations on written contracts rather than California's four-year statute, even though the Delaware corporation's principal place of business was in California [Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners v. American Med. Int'l, Inc. (1995) 38 CA4th 1532, 1536, 1538-1544, 46 CR2d 33].

➡ Cross Reference:

Discussion of contractual choice-of-law clauses, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, 4.10[3].

Distinguish:

If the cause of action arising in another state is in favor of a plaintiff who has resided in California continuously from the time the cause of action accrued, the plaintiff may invoke a more favorable California statute of limitations to defeat a bar by the foreign state's more restrictive limitation period [CCP § 361; see, e.g., Grant v. McAuliffe (1953) 41 C2d 859, 864-865, 264 P2d 944 (California-resident victims of Arizona auto accident could sue deceased Arizona driver's estate under California statutes permitting survival of negligence actions against deceased)].

For a contractual choice-of-law provision to be enforceable [see Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners v. American Med. Int'l, Inc. (1995) 38 CA4th 1532, 1539-1544, 46 CR2d 33]:

- The chosen state must have a substantial relationship to the parties; or
- There must be any other reasonable basis for the parties' choice; and

- The chosen state's law may not fundamentally conflict with a policy of California.

If there is a fundamental conflict, the choice-of-law provision will not be enforced if California has a materially greater interest than the chosen state in the determination of the issue [Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners v. American Med. Int'l, Inc. (1995) 38 CA4th 1532, 1536, 1534-1545, 46 CR2d 33].

Cross Reference:

Further discussion of contractual choice of law provisions, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 140.30[3][a] (Matthew Bender).

The law of the forum state, rather than the law of the place where the obligation arose, governs the determination of the applicable statute of limitations [Western Coal & Mining Co. v. Jones (1946) 27 C2d 819, 828, 167 P2d 719].

Judge's Perspective:

Whether the holding of Western Coal & Mining is still good law after cases like Hambrecht & Quist is uncertain [see Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners v. American Med. Int'l, Inc. (1995) 38 CA4th 1532, 1536, 1534-1545, 46 CR2d 33]. For further discussion, see the Judge's Perspective to 4.14.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsChoice of LawGeneral OverviewContracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsForum Selection ClausesContracts LawDefensesStatutes of LimitationsGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsGeneral Overview

115 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action

II. DETERMINING APPLICABLE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.16

4.16 If Case Can Be Covered by Two Statutes of Limitation, Only One Applies.

It is possible that more than one statute of limitations can apply to a particular situation. In that case, when one statute is more general and another is more specific, the more specific statute applies [Collection Bureau of San Jose v. Rumsey (2000) 24 C4th 301, 310-311, 99 CR2d 792, 6 P3d 713]. If two statutes apply and neither is more specific, the statute with the shorter limitation period controls [Anson v. County of Merced (1988) 202 CA3d 1195, 1199].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of limitation period when more than one statute of limitations applies, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, 4.11.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsChoice of LawGeneral OverviewContracts LawDefensesStatutes of LimitationsGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsGeneral Overview

116 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action

III. DETERMINING WHEN LIMITATIONS PERIOD EXPIRES

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.17

4.17 CHECKLIST: Determining When Limitations Period Expires.

☐ Determine when cause of action accrued.

☐ Cause of action under written or oral contract accrues at time of breach.

Authority:

CCP § 337; Angeles Chem. Co., Inc. v. Spencer, Inc. & Jones (1996) 44 CA4th 112, 119, 51 CR2d 594

Discussion:

See 4.19[1]

☐ Cause of action for breach of UCC sales contract accrues when breach occurs, regardless of aggrieved party's knowledge of breach.

Authority:

Com Code § 2725(2)

Discussion:

See 4.19[3]

☐ Statute does not begin to run until conditions precedent are satisfied.

Authority:

Ghirardelli v. Peninsula Props. Co. (1940) 16 C2d 494, 498, 107 P2d 41

Discussion:

See 4.19[4]

- ☐ If contract designates fixed time for performance, statute does not begin until expiration of that time period.

Authority:

Bank of Am. v. McLaughlin (1957) 152 CA2d Supp 911, 915, 313 P2d 220

Discussion:

See 4.19[5]

- ☐ If demand is integral to contract, period of limitations does not run until demand is made.

Authority:

Phillis v. Santa Barbara (1964) 229 CA2d 45, 55, 40 CR 27

Discussion:

See 4.19[6]

- ☐ Timeliness of complaint is determined based on date on which action is filed.

Authority:

Cuadra v. Millan (1998) 17 C4th 855, 864, 72 CR2d 687, 952 P2d 704

Discussion:

See 4.19[7]

- ☐ Single event may trigger running of statute for multiple causes of action.

Authority:

Forcier v. Microsoft Corp (ND Cal 2000) 123 F Supp2d 520, 527

Discussion:

See 4.19[8]

- ☐ Ascertain whether applicable statute of limitations has been tolled or suspended for any reason, such as:

- ☐ Discovery rule.

Authority:

Mills v. Forestex Co. (2003) 108 CA4th 625, 642-643, 134 CR2d 273

Discussion:

See 4.21[1]

- ☐ Fraud.

Authority:

CCP § 338; Regents of Univ. Cal. v. Superior Court (1999) 20 C4th 509, 533, 85 CR2d 257, 976 P2d 808

Discussion:

See 4.21[2]

- ☐ Resident's absence from state.

Authority:

CCP § 351

Discussion:

See 4.21[3]

- ☐ Commencement of action.

Authority:

Record Mach. & Tool Co. v. Pageman Holding Corp. (1959) 172 CA2d 164, 175-176, 342 P2d 402

Discussion:

See 4.21[4]

- ☐ Agreement of Parties.

Authority:

American Cemwood Corp. v. American Home Assurance Co. (2001) 87 CA4th 431, 434, 104 CR2d 670

Discussion:

See 4.21[5]

- ☐ Equitable Estoppel.

Authority:

Ashou v. Liberty Mut. Fire Ins. Co. (2006) 138 CA4th 748, 766-767, 41 CR3d 819

Discussion:

See 4.21[6]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawDefensesStatutes of LimitationsGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime Limitations

117 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action
III. DETERMINING WHEN LIMITATIONS PERIOD EXPIRES

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.18

4.18 Options and Strategy.

After determining what statute of limitation applies [see 4.03-4.16], the attorney must determine when the applicable limitations period is going to expire. This determination obviously is critical to every party to the litigation.

For the plaintiff's attorney, it is essential to determine at the outset when the statute will expire, first so that it can be determined whether the action can be filed at all, and second (and equally important) so that the limitations period will not inadvertently be allowed to expire before the case is filed. Every attorney has experienced or heard horror stories involving clients who wait until the eleventh hour to consult an attorney, leaving the attorney with little or no time to become familiar with the facts before the action must be filed.

Conversely, for a defense attorney whose client has just been served in the litigation, it is important to determine at the outset whether or the not action was filed before the statute of limitations expired. If the statute has run, expiration of the limitations period provides an immediate defense.

Determining when the statute of limitations will expire involves the following steps:

- Determining which statute of limitations applies [see 4.04].
- Determining when the cause of action accrued [see 4.19].
- Determining whether the statute arguably was tolled for any reason once the running of the limitations period commenced [see 4.21].
- Computing the date on which the limitations period will expire, beginning on the date when it began to run, calculating the date at which the end of the basic applicable limitations period will expire, and adding any periods of time during which the statute was tolled.

Warning:

The plaintiff's attorney should not wait until the very end of the period computed above to file the action if it can be filed earlier. The date of accrual and issues of tolling are not always clear-cut, especially in discovery rule situations, and a plaintiff's attorney who waits until the last minute to file suit risks waiting too long. Allowing the statute of limitations to run before filing suit is one of the classic mistakes leading to legal malpractice claims. The plaintiff's attorney should be alert to possible issues regarding discovery and tolling and, if at all possible, file the action early enough that any statute of limitations issues, even if resolved against his/her client, would not affect the timeliness of the action.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law
Defenses
Statutes of Limitations
Governments
Legislation
Statutes of Limitations
General
Overview
Governments
Legislation
Statutes of Limitations
Time Limitations

118 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action
 III. DETERMINING WHEN LIMITATIONS PERIOD EXPIRES

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.19

4.19 Statute of Limitations Begins to Run When Cause of Action Accrues.

4.19[1] Cause of Action Accrues When Claim Becomes Actionable. Civil actions can be commenced only within periods of limitations, after the cause of action accrues [CCP § 312; Angeles Chem. Co., Inc. v. Spencer, Inc. & Jones (1996) 44 CA4th 112, 120, 51 CR2d 594]. A cause of action accrues when a claim becomes legally actionable [Glue-Fold, Inc. v. Slatutterback Corp. (2000) 82 CA4th 1018, 1029, 98 CR2d 661], such as when there is a remedy available [People v. Barger (1979) 97 CA3d 661, 663, 158 CR 825 ; Heyer v. Flaig (1969) 70 C2d 223, 230, 74 CR 225, 449 P2d 161]. Thus, the statute of limitations begins to run on the occurrence of the last element essential to the cause of action [Norgart v. Upjohn Co. (1999) 21 C4th 383, 389, 397, 87 CR2d 453, 981 P2d 79 ; Neel v. Magana, Olney, Levy, Cathcart & Gelfand (1971) 6 C3d 176, 187, 98 CR 837, 491 P2d 421].

► Cross References:

Discussion of when cause of action accrues in particular contract cases, see 4.19[2] -[8].

Further discussion of accrual of causes of action, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 4, Limitation of Actions.

4.19[2] For Oral and Written Contracts, Statute Begins to Run at Time of Breach. The statute of limitations does not begin to run from the time of the making of a contract, but from the date of the breach of the obligation [Spear v. California State Automobile Ass'n (1992) 2 C4th 1035, 1043, 9 CR2d 381, 831 P2d 821 ; Fox v. Dehn (1974) 42 CA3d 165, 173, 116 CR 786 ; see also Waxman v. Citizens Nat'l Trust & Sav. Bank (1954) 123 CA2d 145, 149, 266 P2d 48 ("[A] cause of action for breach of contract accrues on the failure of the promisor to do the thing contracted for at the time and in the manner contracted")].

Examples:

■ In the case of a personal performance contract, breach of the contract (that is, breach of the obligation to pay) occurs at the time the other party completes the required performance and payment is not made [E.O.C. Ord, Inc. v. Kovakovich (1988) 200 CA3d 1194, 1203, 246 CR 456].

- In a general liability insurance coverage "duty to defend" case, breach of the insurance policy occurs when the insurer refuses to defend the insured in the underlying litigation [Eaton Hydraulics Inc. v. Continental Cas. Co. (2005) 132 CA4th 966, 968].

- In an action against an insurer for breaching the implied covenant by unreasonably failing to accept a settlement offer within policy limits, the breach occurs upon the entry of the judgment for an amount in excess of the insurance policy limits (but the statute of limitations is equitably tolled until the judgment is final) [Archdale v. American Int'l Specialty Lines Ins. Co. (2007) 154 CA4th 449, 474, 478, 64 CR3d 632].

- Statute of limitations on landlord's claim against tenant for breach of its agreement to remodel premises began to run on date remodeling was to be completed; landlord's letter two and a half years after performance was due, reminding tenant that it continued to be in breach, did not constitute retroactive written approval of a new performance date [Tin Tin Corp. v. Pacific Rim Park, LLC (2009) 170 CA4th 1220, 1234, 88 CR3d 816].

- In an action for breach of an implied contract not to use a screenplay without paying for it, the breach did not occur until the defendant disclosed the idea to a substantial segment of the public, because such disclosure tends to destroy any further marketability of the idea [Benay v. Warner Bros. Entm't, Inc. (9th Cir 2010) 607 F3d 620, 633].

► Cross Reference:

Discussion of condition precedent to running of statute, see 4.19[4].

Consider:

The running of the statute of limitations is subject to the tolling provisions such as the discovery rule, whereby the claim accrues when the plaintiff discovers, or could have discovered through reasonable diligence, the injury and its cause [Angeles Chem. Co., Inc. v. Spencer, Inc. & Jones (1996) 44 CA4th 112, 119, 51 CR2d 594].

Jury Instructions:

Statute of Limitations--Discovery of Claim, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3F, Instr. MB 300F.54 (Matthew Bender).

► Cross Reference:

Discussion of discovery rule and other tolling provisions, see 4.21.

4.19[3] For UCC Sales Contracts, Cause of Action Accrues When Breach Occurs, Regardless of Aggrieved Party's Knowledge of Breach. For a UCC sales contract, the cause of action accrues when the breach occurs, regardless of the aggrieved party's lack of knowledge of the breach [Com Code § 2725(2)].

Distinguish:

A breach of warranty occurs when tender of delivery is made. However, when a warranty explicitly extends to future performance of the goods, and discovery of the breach must await the time of that performance, the cause of action accrues when the breach is or should have been discovered [Com Code § 2725; see Ch. 24, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Warranty]. This "future performance" exception to the four-year limitations period in Com Code § 2725 applies only when the seller explicitly agreed to warrant its product for a defined period of time [Cardinal Health 301, Inc. v. Tyco Electronics Corp. (2008) 169 CA4th 116, 131-132, 87 CR3d 5 (promise by manufacturer that a part would work for 50,000 cycles did not bring the warranty within the "future performance" exception because it did not specify a date or time in the future); Carrau v. Marvin Lumber & Cedar Co. (2001) 93 CA4th 281, 291, 112 CR2d 869 (general assertions as to performance or durability of product, such as assertions made by defendant window manufacturer in its advertisements, were not warranties extending to future performance of product)].

Jury Instructions:

Statute of Limitations for Breach of Prospective Warranty, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3I, Instr. MB 300I.79 (Matthew Bender).

Statute of Limitations for Breach of Prospective Warranty in Case of Progressively Developing Damage, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3I, Instr. MB 300I.7 (Matthew Bender).

Cross Reference:

Further discussion of issues pertaining to actions for breach of warranty, see Ch. 24, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Warranty.

4.19[4] Statute Does Not Begin to Run Until Conditions Precedent Are Satisfied. The statute of limitations does not begin to run until the performance of an act that is a condition precedent to the commencement of an action, such as a contract condition or breach. In this situation, to preserve the action, the plaintiff must amend the complaint within the limitation period after the condition has occurred [Ghirardelli v. Peninsula Props. Co. (1940) 16 C2d 494, 498, 107 P2d 41].

Example:

In an action arising out of a conditional sales contract for furniture, full accounting and return of uncollected notes were conditions precedent to commencement of the action [Ghirardelli v. Peninsula Props. Co. (1940) 16 C2d 494, 498, 107 P2d 41].

4.19[5] When Contract Designates Fixed Time for Performance, Statute Does Not Begin Until Expiration of That Time Period. When a contract fixes a time for performance, the statute of limitations does not begin to run until expiration of that time [Armstrong Petroleum Corp. v. Tri-Valley Oil & Gas Co. (2004) 116 CA4th 1375, 1388]. When a contract is still executory, such as a settlement agreement that has no expiration date, the promisee is not bound to treat the contract as abandoned on the first breach or any particular breach, and the statute of limitations does not begin to run as long as the promisee elects to rely on the contract [Baugh v. Garl (2006) 137 CA4th 737, 747, 40 CR3d 539].

4.19[6] When Contract Calls for Demand, Demand Must Be Made Before Cause of Action Accrues. When a demand is an integral part of the cause of action, the right of action does not accrue until the demand is made, although plaintiff cannot suspend the running of the period indefinitely by delaying to make the demand [Phillis v. Santa Barbara (1964) 229 CA2d 45, 55, 40 CR 27].

In an action based on an oral contract, plaintiff may establish the right of action at any time by making a demand on the defendant. The demand must be made within a reasonable time after it can be lawfully made, and it must be made within the two-year period of limitations [Stafford v. Oil Tool Corp. (1955) 133 CA2d 763, 766, 284 P2d 937].

When demand is necessary to perfect the right of action and no time for demand is specified in the contract, the period of limitations begins to run within a reasonable time after a demand can lawfully be made [Phillis v. Santa Barbara (1964) 229 CA2d 45, 55, 40 CR 27].

Warning:

It is not enough to notify one's opponent, even in writing, that a claim has arisen and to threaten suit. To be timely, the action must be on file with the court before the statute of limitations expires. If a party is negotiating or planning to negotiate with an opponent and fears that a lawsuit will jeopardize the negotiations, the party can file a complaint and withhold service. However, be sure to check the applicable rules of civil procedure and local court rules to determine how long an action may remain unserved before being dismissed for failure to prosecute [see CCP § 583.410 et seq.].

4.19[7] Timeliness of Complaint Is Determined Based on Date on Which Action Is Filed. The plaintiff's act of filing the complaint fixes the date on which the action is commenced. It is from this date that the defendant and the court determine whether the action is commenced within the period prescribed by the applicable statute of limitations, and thus whether it is timely [CC § 350; Cuadra v. Millan (1998) 17 C4th 855, 864, 72 CR2d 687, 952 P2d 704 , overruled on other grounds, 22 C4th 1 (1999)].

4.19[8] Single Event May Trigger Running of Statute for Multiple Causes of Action. A plaintiff's claims for multiple causes of action may accrue at the same time [see, e.g., Forcier v. Microsoft Corp. (ND Cal 2000) 123 F Supp2d 520, 527 (plaintiff's claims for fraud, constructive fraud, breach of contract, and unfair competition arose out of alleged misappropriation of plaintiff's trade secrets, thus, statute of limitations on all claims began running at once)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Defenses Statutes of Limitations Governments Legislation Statutes of Limitations Time Limitations

119 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action

III. DETERMINING WHEN LIMITATIONS PERIOD EXPIRES

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.20

4.20 Amended Complaint Relates Back and Thus Avoids Statute of Limitations If Recovery Is Based on Same General Set of Facts.

Generally, an amended complaint relates back to the filing of the original complaint and thus avoids the bar of the statute of limitations if both pleadings [Norgart v. Upjohn Co. (1999) 21 C4th 383, 408-409, 87 CR2d 453, 981 P2d 79]:

- Rest on the same general set of facts;
- Involve the same injury; and
- Refer to the same instrumentality.

A plaintiff may not state a new cause of action by amending the complaint when the statute of limitations has run on the new cause of action [Stark v. Coker (1942) 20 C2d 839, 845, 129 P2d 390].

Example:

In a later proceeding in a case involving rescission of a contract to sell shares of stock, the court did not allow relation back after the statute of limitations had run, due to the party's failure to make an appearance in the initial action [Luna Records Corp. v. Alvarado (1991) 232 CA3d 1023, 1028-1031, 283 CR 865].

Distinguish--Equitable Estoppel:

The equitable estoppel doctrine applies and an amendment for the purpose of avoiding a bar by the statute of limitations is allowed if the plaintiff establishes [see Kleinecke v. Montecito Water Dist. (1983) 147 CA3d 240, 245-247, 195 CR 58]:

- That the defendant was aware of the limitation period;
- That he or she intended that the plaintiff should rely on his or her conduct or statements;
- That the plaintiff was ignorant of the true facts; and

- That the plaintiff relied on the defendant's conduct or statements to his or her detriment.

Cross References:

Discussion of equitable estoppel, see 4.21[6]. Further discussion of the effect of amended complaints on the statute of limitations, including relation back, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, 34.09.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Pleadings Amended Pleadings Relation Back Contracts Law Defenses Statutes of Limitations Governments Legislation Statutes of Limitations Time Limitations

120 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action
III. DETERMINING WHEN LIMITATIONS PERIOD EXPIRES

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.21

4.21 Statute of Limitations May Be Tolled.

4.21[1] Discovery Rule May Toll Statute of Limitations. Although the statute of limitations begins to run on breach of the contract, California courts have held that it is manifestly unjust to deprive plaintiffs of a cause of action before they are aware that they have been injured. Accordingly, a cause of action under the discovery rule accrues when the plaintiff discovers or should have discovered all facts essential to the cause of action [Mills v. Forestex Co. (2003) 108 CA4th 625, 640, 134 CR2d 273 ; April Enterprises, Inc. v. KTTV (1983) 147 CA3d 805, 832, 195 CR 421]. The discovery rule is satisfied when plaintiff either (1) actually discovered his injury and its cause, or (2) could have discovered the injury and cause through the exercise of reasonable diligence. The discovery rule avoids dismissing a suit on grounds of limitation when a plaintiff is blamelessly ignorant of the cause of action [April Enterprises, Inc. v. KTTV (1983) 147 CA3d 805, 832, 195 CR 421].

Jury Instructions:

Statute of Limitations--Discovery of Claim, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3F, Instr. MB 300F.54 (Matthew Bender).

The discovery rule can be applied to breaches of contract that can be, and are, committed in secret, when the harm flowing from those breaches will not reasonably be discoverable by plaintiffs until a future time [April Enterprises, Inc. v. KTTV (1983) 147 CA3d 805, 832, 195 CR 421].

Generally, courts have applied the discovery rule when [Gryczman v. 4550 Pico Partners, Ltd. (2003) 107 CA4th 1, 5, 131 CR2d 680]:

- The injury or the act causing the injury, or both, have been difficult for the plaintiff to detect;
- The defendant has been in a far superior position to comprehend the act and the injury; and
- The defendant has reason to believe the plaintiff remained ignorant of the fact that he or she has been wronged.

Example:

The discovery rule was applied to toll the statute of limitations when a TV station secretly erased programs from videotapes, in violation of contract, which the plaintiff TV producer was not able to discover until several years after limitations period [April Enterprises, Inc. v. KTTV (1983) 147 CA3d 805, 832-833, 195 CR 421].

Under the discovery rule, the limitations period begins once the plaintiff has notice or information of circumstances to put a reasonable person on inquiry about the injury [Mills v. Forestex Co. (2003) 108 CA4th 625, 642, 134 CR2d 273].

A plaintiff need not be aware of the specific facts necessary to establish the claim [Mills v. Forestex Co. (2003) 108 CA4th 625, 643, 134 CR2d 273].

Warning:

Once a plaintiff suspects wrongdoing and has an incentive to sue, the plaintiff must decide whether to file suit or sit on his or her rights. As long as a suspicion exists, the plaintiff must go find the facts [Mills v. Forestex Co. (2003) 108 CA4th 625, 643, 134 CR2d 273]. But it is unreasonable to expect a contracting party to continually monitor whether the other party is performing some act inconsistent with one of the many possible terms in a contract, especially when the breaching party can commit the offending act secretly [Gryczman v. 4550 Pico Partners, Ltd. (2003) 107 CA4th 1, 5, 131 CR2d 680].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of breach of contract committed in secret, and form for memorandum, see California Points and Authorities, Form 25.6 (Matthew Bender).

4.21[2] Fraud Tolls Running of Statute.

4.21[2][a] Contract Breach Involving Fraud Is Treated As Fraud. When fraud is mixed with a breach of contract, the action, as regards the bar of the statute of limitations, must be treated as one for relief on the ground of fraud, and the limitation period does not run until the discovery of the facts constituting the fraud [CCP § 338; Gregory v. Spieker (1895) 110 C 150, 153, 42 P 576].

Jury Instructions:

Statute of Limitations--Discovery of Claim, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3F, Instr. MB 300F.54 (Matthew Bender).

Cross Reference:

Discussion of fraud in contract actions, see Ch. 17, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Fraud, Duress, Menace, and Undue Influence.

When a breach of contract is accomplished by the defendant's secret confederacy with another person in which the other person's name is used to hide the defendant's actions, fraud is so ingrained with the breach of a contract that the action, as to the bar of the statute of limitations, must be treated as for relief on the ground of fraud [Gregory v. Spieker (1895) 110 C 150, 153, 42 P 576].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of effect of discovery rule, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, 4.15[1].

4.21[2][b] If Breach Involves Fraud, Statute Begins to Run From Date Plaintiff Discovers Facts Constituting Fraud. When a breach of contract involves fraud, the statute of limitations begins to run from the date the plaintiff discovers or reasonably should have discovered the facts constituting the fraud. In these cases, the rights arising out of fraud and contract are blended [San Filippo v. Griffiths (1975) 51 CA3d 640, 645, 124 CR 399].

Jury Instructions:

Statute of Limitations--Discovery of Claim, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3F, Instr. MB 300F.54 (Matthew Bender).

 Cross References:

Form for memorandum asserting fraud statute applies, see 4.28.

Further discussion of contract breach involving fraud, see Ch. 17, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Fraud, Duress, Menace, and Undue Influence.

4.21[2][c] Statute Is Told by Fraudulent Concealment of Facts. Fraudulent concealment of the facts on which the plaintiff's action and right of recovery are based, under proper circumstances, tolls the statute of limitations until plaintiff discovers or should have discovered facts about the fraudulent concealment through a reasonable exercise of diligence [Hernandez v. Garcetti (1998) 68 CA4th 675, 681, 80 CR2d 443].

Examples:

- In a dispute over restaurant franchise agreements, the district court did not err in applying the discovery rule to toll the statute of limitations when the franchisee's alleged misrepresentations and forgery hindered the franchisor's discovery that the franchisee had breached the agreement by operating competing restaurants [El Pollo Loco, Inc. v. Hashim (9th Cir 2003) 316 F3d 1032, 1039-1040 (applying California law)].

- In an action against a bank for breach of contract, fraud, and truth in lending violations, a letter from the bank to plaintiff was misleading and dissuaded plaintiff from suing, the statute of limitations on the breach of contract claims was tolled [Hubbard v. Fidelity Fed. Bank (9th Cir 1996) 91 F3d 75, 78-79].

4.21[3] Resident's Absence From State Tolls Statute. The statute of limitations in a cause of action for breach of contract is tolled by a resident's absence from the state if the out-of-state travel is unrelated to interstate commerce [CCP § 351; Filet Menu, Inc. v. Cheng (1999) 71 CA4th 1276, 1280-1284, 84 CR2d 384].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of effect of resident's absence from forum, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, 4.18.

4.21[4] Commencement of Action Suspends Running of Limitations Period. The commencement of an action suspends the running of a period of limitation as to matters arising out of the transaction set forth in the complaint [Record Mach. & Tool Co. v. Pageman Holding Corp. (1959) 172 CA2d 164, 175, 342 P2d 402].

 Cross Reference:

Further discussion of factors that may toll the statute of limitations, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 4, Limitation of Actions.

4.21[5] Tolling Agreement Can Suspend Limitations Period. It is not uncommon for a party contemplating suit to request from the opposing party a tolling agreement as to the statute of limitations to allow the parties time to negotiate [American Cemwood Corp. v. American Home Assurance Co. (2001) 87 CA4th 431, 434, 104 CR2d 670 ; see FNB Mortgage Corp. v. Pacific Gen. Group (1999) 76 CA4th 1116, 1121, 1135, 90 CR2d 841].

Warning:

Although tolling agreements are sometimes advisable, such as when negotiations cannot be concluded before the expiration of the statute of limitations, many defense attorneys advise against their use because they create perverse incentives (delaying the case and pushing for better deals), and can unfairly increase the potential plaintiff's leverage in the case.

4.21[6] Defendant May Be Equitably Estopped to Assert Statute of Limitations. A defendant will be estopped to assert the statute of limitations if the defendant's conduct, relied on by the plaintiff, has induced the plaintiff to postpone filing the action until after the statute has run [Mills v. Forestex Co. (2003) 108 CA4th 625, 652, 134 CR2d 273] .

To establish equitable estoppel, a plaintiff must prove the following four elements [Ashou v. Liberty Mut. Fire Ins. Co. (2006) 138 CA4th 748, 766-767, 41 CR3d 819] :

- The party to be estopped must know the facts;
- The party must intend that his or her conduct shall be acted upon, or must so act that the party asserting the estoppel had the right to believe that it was so intended;
- The party asserting the estoppel must be ignorant of the true state of facts; and
- The party must rely upon the conduct, causing him or her injury.

It is not necessary that the defendant act in bad faith or intend to mislead the plaintiff; it is sufficient that the defendant's conduct induces the plaintiff to refrain from instituting legal proceedings [Mills v. Forestex Co. (2003) 108 CA4th 625, 652, 134 CR2d 273] .

Examples:

- In an insurance coverage case involving damage from the 1994 Northridge earthquake, the insured plead sufficient facts for the application of equitable estoppel by alleging that the insurer told the insured that damage to its property was less than the amount of the deductible, that damage actually exceeded the deductible, and that the insured reasonably relied on the insurer's representations in delaying filing suit until after the statute of limitations had run [Doheny Park Terrace Homeowners Ass'n, Inc. v. Truck Ins. Exch. (2005) 132 CA4th 1076, 1096-1099, 34 CR3d 157] .

- In another insurance coverage case involving damage from the 1994 Northridge earthquake, the insured could not establish the second element of equitable estoppel because the insurer sent her a letter expressly stating that although it would reconsider her claim, it would not waive any defenses [Ashou v. Liberty Mut. Fire Ins. Co. (2006) 138 CA4th 748, 767, 41 CR3d 819] .

- In an action for specific performance brought by the seller of oilfields against the buyer, the buyer was estopped from asserting the statute of limitations as a defense because the seller suspended legal actions in reliance on the buyer's promise to amend the contracts between them [Union Oil Co. of California v. Greka Energy Corp. (2008) 165 CA4th 129, 138, 80 CR3d 738] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesStatutes of LimitationsTerminations & TollingContracts
LawDefensesStatutes of LimitationsContracts LawSales of GoodsStatutes of LimitationsTerminations &
TollingGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTolling

121 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action
IV. RAISING STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS DEFENSE

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.22

4.22 CHECKLIST: Raising Statute of Limitations Defense.

- ☐ Recognize that statute of limitations is an affirmative defense.

Authority:

Union Sugar Co. v. Hollister Estate Co. (1935) 3 C2d 740, 744, 47 P2d 273 ; County of San Mateo v. Booth (1982) 135 CA3d 388, 399, 185 CR 349

Discussion:

See 4.23[1]

- ☐ Be aware that defendant has burden to plead and prove defense of statute of limitations.

Authority:

Burgen v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1979) 93 CA3d 813, 824, 155 CR 763 , overruled in part on other grounds, (1999),

Discussion:

See 4.23[2]

- ☐ Determine when "earliest opportunity" to raise defense properly and in a timely manner will arise, in order to avoid any possibility of inadvertently waiving defense.

Authority:

Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners v. American Med. Int'l, Inc. (1995) 38 CA4th 1532, 1548, 46 CR2d 33

Discussion:

See 4.23[3]

☐ To raise defense at "earliest opportunity," assert it either in demurrer or in answer to complaint.

Authority:

Isaac v. A & B Loan Co. (1988) 201 CA3d 307, 311-312, 247 CR 104

☐ Verify that statute of limitations has lapsed.

Authority:

CCP §§ 337, 339; Com Code § 2725

Discussion:

See 4.18

☐ Determine whether complaint states sufficient facts to warrant demurrer.

Authority:

Marshall v. Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher (1995) 37 CA4th 1397, 1403, 44 CR2d 339

Discussion:

See 4.24[2]

Form:

See 4.26

☐ Determine whether defense of limitations should be raised in answer.

Authority:

Union Sugar Co. v. Hollister Estate Co. (1935) 3 C2d 740, 744, 47 P2d 273

Discussion:

See 4.24

Form:

See 4.27

☐ If raising defense of limitations in answer, verify that either all necessary facts are stated, or relevant provision of Code of Civil Procedure is cited.

Authority:

CCP § 458

Discussion:

See 4.24[3]

☐ If raising defense of limitations by motion to strike, verify that demurrer accompanies motion.

Authority:

Sullivan v. Wright (1954) 124 CA2d 836, 837-838, 269 P2d 671

Discussion:

See 4.24[6]

- ☐ Determine whether plaintiff's claim is barred by the doctrine of laches.

Authority:

Miller v. Glenn Miller Prods. (CD Cal 2004) 318 F Supp2d 923, 944-945

Discussion:

See 4.25

Form:

See 4.31

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsAnswersContracts LawDefensesStatutes of LimitationsGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsPleading & Proof

122 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action
IV. RAISING STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS DEFENSE

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.23

4.23 Options and Strategy.

4.23[1] Statute of Limitations Is Affirmative Defense. A party who wishes to rely on the defense that an action is barred by a statute of limitation must affirmatively raise that defense in an appropriate pleading [see Union Sugar Co. v. Hollister Estate Co. (1935) 3 C2d 740, 744, 47 P2d 273 ; see also County of San Mateo v. Booth (1982) 135 CA3d 388, 399, 185 CR 349].

Search California Points and Authorities:

Use lexis.com to search for documents discussing statute of limitations defense issues:

■ Legal > States Legal--U.S. > California > Search Analysis & CLE Materials > CA Treatises & Analytical Materials > California Forms of Pleading and Practice

Sample Search: To find forms for the affirmative defense of statute of limitations try: heading (forms and affirmative defense and statute limitations).

Cross Reference:

Full discussion of asserting affirmative defenses, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 14, Answers.

4.23[2] Defendant Has Burden of Proof to Establish Statute of Limitations. The defendant has the burden to establish a prima facie case that the statute of limitations applies [Burton v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1979) 93 CA3d 813, 824, 155 CR 763 , overruled in part on other grounds, (1999),].

4.23[3] Failure to Properly and Timely Raise Defense May Result in Waiver of Defense. A defendant who fails to raise the defense of the statute of limitations by an appropriate pleading may be held to have waived the right to rely on the defense [In re Andrew V. (1991) 232 CA3d 1286, 1291, 284 CR 38]. The defense typically is waived by failure to plead or to adequately plead the defense [see Hall v. Chamberlain (1948) 31 C2d 673, 679-680, 192 P2d 759 ; Hambrech & Quist Venture Partners v. American Med. Int'l, Inc. (1995) 38 CA4th 1532, 1548, 46 CR2d 33 (defendant who does not timely raise limitations defense waives defense no matter how long plaintiff delayed in suing); Stalberg v. Western Title Ins. Co. (1991) 230 CA3d 1223, 1232, 282 CR 43 (statute of limitations defense not raised in trial court waived and could not be raised on appeal)].

To avoid possible waiver, an affirmative defense such as the statute of limitations should be raised at the earliest possible time [see California Concrete Co. v. Beverly Hills Savings & Loan Assn. (1989) 215 CA3d 260, 272-273]. Ordinarily, the earliest opportunity is when the defendant demurs or files an answer to a complaint [Isaac v. A & B Loan Co. (1988) 201 CA3d 307, 311-312, 247 CR 104].

Judge's Perspective:

The defendant's failure to raise a statute of limitations defense as soon as possible does not necessarily mean that the defense is waived. The defendant can always move the court for permission to amend the answer, and the court is likely to grant the motion unless the plaintiff can demonstrate incurable prejudice. This is because courts have a strong policy in favor of resolving litigation on the merits, and allowing a claim that is otherwise time-barred to go forward would violate this policy by requiring a defendant to litigate a stale claim. Certainly, however, failure to assert a statute of limitations defense early will prevent the defendant from disposing of the litigation on that ground, at least until the answer has been amended [see California Concrete Co. v. Beverly Hills Savings & Loan Assn. (1989) 215 CA3d 260, 273 (reversing grant of summary judgment on statute of limitations grounds when that defense had not been raised in answer)].

Cross References:

Raising statute of limitations defense in amended answer, see 4.24[4].

Detailed discussion of asserting defense of statute of limitations, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 4, Limitation of Actions.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Defenses, Demurrers & Objections Affirmative Defenses General Overview Contracts Law Defenses Statutes of Limitations Governments Legislation Statutes of Limitations Pleading & Proof

123 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action

IV. RAISING STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS DEFENSE

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.24

4.24 Defense Generally Is Raised in Answer or Demurrer.

4.24[1] Defect on Face of Complaint Can Be Addressed by Demurrer. If the defect appears on the face of a complaint, a defendant may invoke the statute of limitation defense either by demurrer or by answer. The failure to urge the defense by way of demurrer does not deprive the defendant of the right to rely on the defense in the answer [Stafford v. Russell (1953) 117 CA2d 319, 321, 255 P2d 872].

Warning:

A party relying on the defense of limitations must affirmatively raise the defense in an appropriate pleading at the earliest opportunity [see Union Sugar Co. v. Hollister Estate Co. (1935) 3 C2d 740, 744, 47 P2d 273 ; Isaac v. A & B Loan Co. (1988) 201 CA3d 307, 311-312, 247 CR 104 ; see also County of San Mateo v. Booth (1982) 135 CA3d 388, 399, 185 CR 349]. Failure to raise the defense by an appropriate pleading can result in waiver of the right to rely on it [In re Andrew V. (1991) 232 CA3d 1286, 1291, 284 CR 38 (court's jurisdiction not affected by running of statute; party must plead defense of limitation or it is waived)].

Cross References:

Discussion of waiver of defense of limitations, see 4.23[3].

Form for answer, see 4.27.

Form for demurrer, see 4.26.

Further discussion of answers and demurrers, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 11, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings; see also Ch. 14, Answers.

4.24[2] Sufficient Facts Must Exist in Pleadings to Demur on Statute of Limitations Issue. A demurrer on the ground of bar of a statute of limitation does not lie if the complaint shows merely that the action might be barred. The defense must state affirmatively that, on the facts stated in the complaint, the right to maintain an action is necessarily barred [see Marshall v. Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher (1995) 37 CA4th 1397, 1403, 44 CR2d 339 ; Farris v. Merritt

(1883) 63 C 118, 119].

A demurrer based on statute of limitations is valid if the dates in question are shown on the face of the pleading. If those dates are missing or ambiguous, it may not be proper to respond with a general demurrer [United W. Med. Ctrs. v. Superior Court (1996) 42 CA4th 500, 505, 49 CR2d 682], although it may be possible to file a demurrer for uncertainty [see Moya v. Northrup (1970) 10 CA3d 276, 282, 88 CR 783].

Example:

A complaint that alleged that a notice of rejection of a claim presented to a public entity was mailed "on or about" a date six months and one day before the complaint was filed was held sufficient to withstand a general demurrer based on the six-month statute of limitations in Gov Code § 945.6(a)(1) [Childs v. State of California (1983) 144 CA3d 155, 159-162, 192 CR 526].

 Cross References:

Form for demurrer based on ground of limitations, see 4.26.

Further discussion of demurrers, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 11, Demurrers.

4.24[3] Statute of Limitations Defense Generally Is Raised in Answer Either by Alleging All Facts or by Citing Specific Code Section. There are two ways to make a plea of bar of a statute of limitation. The first is by alleging all of the facts showing that the action is barred and indicating that the lateness of the commencement of the action is being urged as a defense [Brown v. World Church (1969) 272 CA2d 684, 691, 77 CR 669].

The second does not require that the facts showing the defense be stated, but rather states the cause of action is barred by the provisions of a specified code section, giving the number of the section relied on [CCP § 458; Brown v. World Church (1969) 272 CA2d 684, 691, 77 CR 669].

 Warning:

CCP § 458's section-pleading requirement is highly technical and includes number subsections. If a defendant following CCP § 458 fails to specify the applicable section (and subsections, if applicable) the plea is insufficient [Brown v. World Church (1969) 272 CA2d 684, 691, 77 CR 669] and the defense may be deemed waived for failure to comply with this requirement [see Mysel v. Gross (1977) 70 CA3d Supp 10, 15, 138 CR 873, disapproved on other grounds, Carrier Corp. v. Detrex Corp. (1992) 4 CA4th 1522, 6 CR2d 565]. The court may allow an amendment of the answer for the purpose of inserting the omitted reference [St. Paul Title & Trust Co. v. Stensgaard (1912) 162 C 178, 180, 121 P 731]. However, a safer approach is to plead all potentially applicable sections or subsections; inapplicable sections will be disregarded by the court.

 Cross References:

Form for memorandum asserting action is barred by statute of limitations, see 4.29.

Further discussion of answers, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 14, Answers.

4.24[4] Statute of Limitations Defense May Be Raised in Amended Answer. An amendment of the answer may be allowed for the purpose of raising the defense of bar of a statute of limitation, even though no attempt was made originally to plead that defense [Wrightson v. Dougherty (1936) 5 C2d 257, 265-266, 54 P2d 13]. An amendment may be allowed any time before there is a decision, verdict, or judgment [see Trower v. City & County of San Francisco (1910) 157 C 762, 766-767, 109 P 617 (amendment allowed after cause submitted)]. Absent a showing of prejudice to the other side, leave to amend typically is liberally granted.

Warning:

A request to amend an answer to plead the defense of limitations may be denied if it is made too late or if the circumstances of the case show that the defendant has no tenable ground on which to base it [see, e.g., L.B. Labs., Inc. v. Mitchell (1952) 39 C2d 56, 61, 244 P2d 385 (denial of request to amend answer to plead bar of CCP § 337 was proper when complaint showed action was based on contract, plaintiff's opening argument so stated without objection from defendant, and request was made only after defendant's motion for nonsuit on ground of lack of evidence of negligence was opposed by plaintiff's argument that action was based on contract)].

Cross Reference:

Further discussion of amended pleadings, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 34, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings.

4.24[5] Statute of Limitations Defense May Be Raised by Motion for Summary Judgment. If a defendant asserting a statute of limitation fails to raise it by demurrer or in the answer, the defendant may nevertheless be permitted to assert it by moving for summary judgment on the basis of a declaration stating the facts that show the action to be barred. The granting of a motion for summary judgment in such a case has been upheld, in derogation of the plaintiff's argument that the defendant's right to assert the bar of the applicable statute was waived, or the defendant was estopped to assert it, because of failure to demur or plead the bar in the answer. The reasoning was that because the defendant could have amended the answer and then moved for judgment on the pleadings, the granting of the motion for summary judgment achieved a proper result by a more direct method [see Hunter v. Los Angeles County (1968) 262 CA2d 820, 823, 69 CR 288 ; but see California Concrete Co. v. Beverly Hills Savings & Loan Assn. (1989) 215 CA3d 260, 273 (reversing grant of summary judgment on statute of limitations grounds when that defense had not been raised in answer, and noting that defendant should have filed motion to amend answer, which would have required defendant to explain why it had delayed in raising defense)].

Although resolution of a statute of limitations issue normally is a question of fact, summary judgment is proper when the uncontradicted facts established through discovery are susceptible of only one legitimate inference [Mills v. Forestex Co. (2003) 108 CA4th 625, 640, 134 CR2d 273].

Strategic Point--Defendant:

Although the use of demurrer or motion to dismiss is preferable in cases involving the statute of limitations, summary judgment can be appropriate if the defense does not appear on the face of the complaint. In this case, the defense must be specially pleaded in the answer, and presumably cannot be decided until summary judgment, at the earliest. A motion for summary judgment should be brought as early as the defendant believes a dispositive victory on this issues is possible, thus resulting in the dismissal of, or favorable judgment on, a cause of action.

Judge's Perspective:

Generally, summary judgment is an excellent way to assert a statute of limitations defense. Unlike some defenses, statutes of limitation usually describe a "bright line," which can be easy for the trial court to apply. When a plaintiff simply has failed to bring a claim within the required time, or admits knowing the facts necessary to have brought a claim but has failed to do so, the court will be receptive to a motion for summary judgment. This will not be true when there is a question as to the reasonableness of one party's conduct, such as whether the plaintiff exercised reasonable diligence in determining whether the contract had been breached, since such an inquiry is fact-intensive [see, e.g., Gryczman v. 4550 Pico Partners, Ltd. (2003) 107 CA4th 1, 6-7, 131 CR2d 680].

Cross Reference:

Further discussion of moving for summary judgment, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 38, Summary Judgment.

4.24[6] Statute of Limitations Defense May Be Raised by Motion to Strike If Motion Is Accompanied by Demurrer. Raising the defense of a statute of limitation as a motion to strike the complaint has been upheld when the motion was accompanied by a demurrer pleading the same objection, as well as an answer pleading the bar [see Sullivan v. Wright (1954) 124 CA2d 836, 837-838, 269 P2d 671]. The rationale was that if the appellate court were to reverse the order striking the complaint on the basis that the bar of a statute of limitation cannot be a ground for granting a motion to strike, the demurrer raising the bar nevertheless would remain intact even though the action was in fact barred. Thus, reversing the order to strike would have achieved no useful purpose [Sullivan v. Wright (1954) 124 CA2d 836, 837-838, 269 P2d 671].

Strategic Point:

It is not advisable to bring a demurrer or motion to strike unless there is a strong likelihood that it would be granted without leave to amend; to bring such a demurrer against a curable complaint is a waste of time and money. In the case of the statute of limitations, however, it may be difficult for the plaintiff to "fix" this problem even if leave to amend the complaint is granted, assuming the limitations period has truly expired.

Cross References:

Further discussion of motions to strike, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 12, Motions to Strike.

Discussion of pleading bar of statute, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 345.100 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsAffirmative DefensesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsDemurrersCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsAnswersContracts LawDefensesStatutes of LimitationsGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsPleading & Proof

124 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action

IV. RAISING STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS DEFENSE

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.25

4.25 Raising Defense of Laches.

4.25[1] Defendant May Assert Laches Defense If Prejudiced by Plaintiff's Unreasonable Delay. A plaintiff's breach of contract claim may be barred by the doctrine of laches if [Johnson v. City of Loma Linda (2000) 24 C4th 61, 68, 99 CR2d 316, 5 P3d 874]:

- The plaintiff unreasonably delays bringing the suit; and
- The defendant is prejudiced by the delay.

Example:

The plaintiffs sought to bring claims for breach of contract and other claims against a corporation; the plaintiffs' claims were barred by the doctrine of laches because the plaintiffs unreasonably delayed well beyond the four-year limitations period in filing their suit against the corporation, which was prejudiced by the delay [Miller v. Glenn Miller Prods. (CD Cal 2004) 318 F Supp2d 923, 944-945].

Search California Contracts Cases:

Use lexis.com to search for cases discussing the laches defense:

- Legal > States Legal--U.S. > California > Cases > By Area of Law > CA Contract Cases

Sample Search: To find cases regarding laches as a defense, try: laches w/10 element OR test OR standard OR prong OR requir! OR factor.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of defense of laches, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 345.40 et seq. (Matthew Bender).

4.25[2] Laches Can Apply Even If Action Was Timely Under Statute of Limitations. The defense of laches applies without regard to the applicable statute of limitations [Johnson v. City of Loma Linda (2000) 24 C4th 61, 68,

99 CR2d 316, 5 P3d 874]. Under the doctrine of laches the plaintiff will be refused equitable relief because of his or her delay in bringing suit, even if the suit is commenced within the statutory period of limitation [see In re Marriage of Dancy (2000) 82 CA4th 1142, 1150, 98 CR2d 775].

Cross Reference:

Form for demurrer asserting defense of laches, see 4.31.

4.25[3] Unclear Whether Defense of Laches Applies in California to Actions for Money Had and Received. It is unsettled in California whether the equitable defense of laches applies to an action for money had and received. Although such an action is an action at law, it is governed by equitable principles [Creditors Collection Serv. v. Castaldi (1995) 38 CA4th 1039, 1044 n4, 45 CR2d 511].

4.25[4] Laches Is Question of Fact. Laches is a question of fact, which must be determined on the evidence by all of the circumstances of each particular case [see In re Marriage of Plescia (1997) 59 CA4th 252, 256, 69 CR2d 120].

There is no hard and fast rule, either as to the lapse of time or as to the circumstances, that will justify the application of the doctrine of laches [see Wolpert v. Gripton (1931) 213 C 474, 483, 2 P2d 767].

Warning:

The defense of laches is a principle of equity, not a defense at law. In an action at law, or when the plaintiff asserts no equitable rights, the statute of limitation rather than the doctrine of laches governs. Therefore, whether laches or the statute of limitations applies will depend on the nature of the underlying action [see United States Capital Corp. v. Nickelberry (1981) 120 CA3d 864, 867-868, 174 CR 814 (defense of laches not available in action on judgment, which is action at law); but see In re Marriage of Dancy (2000) 82 CA4th 1142, 1148-1149, 98 CR2d 775 (although child support is legal right, actions to determine arrearages are equitable proceedings to which laches may be a defense)].

4.25[5] Defendant Cannot Raise Laches Defense Unless Pleaded Facts Show Laches. The general rule is that defendant cannot raise laches when neither the defendant nor the complaint pleaded facts showing laches [see Hamud v. Hawthorne (1959) 52 C2d 78, 84, 338 P2d 387 ; Reed v. Norman (1953) 41 C2d 17, 21-22, 256 P2d 930].

Distinguish:

In extraordinary cases, a court may deny equitable relief on its own initiative if the evidence shows that the plaintiff is guilty of laches [Akley v. Bassett (1922) 189 C 625, 648, 209 P 576].

4.25[6] Laches May Be Raised on Demurrer. Laches may be raised by demurrer if the facts constituting laches are apparent on the face of the complaint [see Neet v. Holmes (1944) 25 C2d 447, 460, 154 P2d 854]. If the facts constituting laches are not apparent, laches should be raised in the answer [Sangiolo v. Sangiolo (1978) 87 CA3d 511, 514, 151 CR 27].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of raising defense of laches, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 4, Limitation of Actions.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Defenses, Demurrers & Objections Affirmative Defenses General Overview

125 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action
V. FORMS

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.26

4.26 Demurrer to Complaint on Ground That Claim Is Barred by Statute of Limitations.Demurrer to Complaint on Ground That Claim Is Barred by Statute of Limitations.

_____ [Name of attorney]
 _____ [Street address]
 _____ [City, state, and ZIP]
 _____ [Area code and phone number]
 _____ [State Bar no. of attorney]
 Attorney for _____ [name of party]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

[name] _____,	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO.
vs.	)	_____
[name] _____,	)	_____
Defendant.	)	DEMURRER OF
	)	_____
	)	_____ [identify defendant, e.g.,
	)	DEFENDANT MARY JONES] TO COMPLAINT
	)	OF
	)	_____ [identify plaintiff or
	)	cross-complainant, e.g., PLAINTIFF JOHN SMITH]
	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]
	)	Judge:
	)	_____ Department:
	)	_____
	)	_____

 _____ Identify defendant, e.g., Defendant
 Mary Jones] demurs to the [First or other designation _____] Cause of Action specified in the [complaint or _____ cross-complaint] of
 [identify plaintiff or cross-complainant, e.g.,
 _____ Plaintiff John Smith], on the ground that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action because it appears from the face of the complaint that the action is barred by the statute of limitation [e.g., of four years pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure
Section 337].

WHEREFORE, Defendant prays as follows:

1. That Plaintiff take nothing by his/her complaint herein;
2. For costs of suit; and
3. For such other and further relief as the court deems proper.

Dated: _____

[firm name, if any] _____

By: [signature] _____

[typed name] _____

Attorney for Defendant

[Add memorandum supporting demurrer]

[Attach required notice of hearing]

NOTES.

Authority:

CCP §§ 337, 339, 430.10, 458

Using Demurrer to Assert That Claim Is Barred by Statute of Limitations:

See 4.24[3]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Defenses, Demurrers & Objections Demurrers Contracts Law Defenses Statutes of

LimitationsGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsGeneral Overview

126 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action
V. FORMS

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.27

4.27 Answer Raising Affirmative Defense of Statute of Limitations.Answer Raising Affirmative Defense of Statute of Limitations.

_____ [Name of attorney]
 _____ [Street address]
 _____ [City, state, and ZIP]
 _____ [Area code and phone number]
 _____ [State Bar no. of attorney]
 Attorney for _____ [name of party]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

[name] _____,	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO.
vs.	)	_____
[name] _____,	)	_____
Defendant.	)	ANSWER OF
	)	_____
	)	_____ [identify defendant, e.g.,
		DEFENDANT MARY JONES] TO COMPLAINT
		OF
		_____ [identify plaintiff, e.g.,
		PLAINTIFF JOHN SMITH]
		[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]
		Judge:

		Department:

Defendant answers the complaint as follows:

[Include general denial below, or set forth, in numbered paragraphs, specific denials, admissions, and allegations in response to those in complaint, in the order in which they are alleged in complaint:]

1. Pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 431.30(b)(1), Defendant generally denies each and every allegation of Plaintiff's Complaint, including all the purported causes of action contained therein, and further denies that Plaintiff is entitled to any equitable or legal relief, or any damages whatsoever.

[Defendant asserts the following affirmative defenses. By doing so, defendant shall not be deemed to have assumed the burden of proving any matters that otherwise would be plaintiff's burden.]

[Allege any affirmative defenses, e.g.,]

[If alleging that plaintiff's action is barred by statute of limitations]

FIRST AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Cause of Action Is Barred by Statute of Limitations)

2. Plaintiff's cause of action is barred by the statute of limitation of four [or other applicable limitations period] years _____ [cite specific section of Code of Civil Procedure, such as: pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 337(1).]

[AND/OR, if alleging that plaintiff's action is barred under contract provision setting contractual limit on time for bringing action]

SECOND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Cause of Action Is Barred By Contractual Limitation Period)

3. The contract referred to in Plaintiff's complaint [, as set forth in the copy of the agreement attached as Exhibit _____ and incorporated by reference,] contains a clause _____ [requiring that any action arising out of the contract be brought within (time period) _____ after the cause of action accrues or quote contractual limitation provision verbatim, e.g., as follows: _____]. Plaintiff's claim was not brought within the time required by that provision, and the action therefore is barred.

[ADD additional affirmative defenses, if any]

[CONTINUE]

WHEREFORE, Defendant prays as follows:

1. That Plaintiff take nothing by his/her complaint herein;
2. For costs of suit; and
3. For such other and further relief as the court deems proper.

Dated: _____

[firm name, if any] _____

By: [signature] _____

[typed name] _____

Attorney for Defendant

[ADD following verification, if applicable]

VERIFICATION

I am the defendant in the above entitled action; I have read the foregoing answer and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[date] _____

[signature] _____

[typed name] _____

NOTES.

Authority:

CCP §§ 337, 339, 360.5, 458

Responding to Complaint With Answer Raising Affirmative Defense of Statute of Limitations:

See 4.24[4]

Asserting Defense of Contractually Shortened Limitations Period:

See 4.11

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsAffirmative DefensesGeneral OverviewCivil
ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsAnswersContracts LawDefensesStatutes of LimitationsGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsGeneral Overview

127 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action
V. FORMS

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.28

4.28 Memorandum for Party Asserting That Statute of Limitations Applicable to Fraud Should Apply.

Memorandum for Party Asserting That Statute of Limitations Applicable to Fraud Should Apply.

[Include the following, if appropriate under the circumstances of the case, in a memorandum by the party asserting that the statute of limitations applicable to fraud should apply, along with factual discussion demonstrating how the principles of law stated below are applicable to the particular case]

WHEN A BREACH OF CONTRACT INTEGRALLY INVOLVES FRAUD, THE ELEMENTS OF WHICH HAVE BEEN PLEADED, THE ACTION MUST BE TREATED AS ONE FOR RELIEF ON THE GROUND OF FRAUD, AND THE ACTION IS GOVERNED BY THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS FOR FRAUD, WHICH DOES NOT BEGIN UNTIL DISCOVERY OF THE FACT CONSTITUTING THE FRAUD, AS PRESCRIBED BY CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 338.

A. Fraud Tolls Running of Statute. When fraud is ingrained with a breach of contract, the action, regarding the bar of the statute of limitations, must be treated as one for relief on the ground of fraud, and the limitation period does not begin to run until the plaintiff's discovery of the facts constituting the fraud as prescribed by Code of Civil Procedure Section 338 [Gregory v. Spieker (1895) 110 Cal. 150, 153, 42 P. 576].

[AND/OR]

[Optional] B. Breach Accomplished Secretly. When a contract is breached by the defendant's secret confederacy with another person in which the other person's name is used to hide the defendant's actions, fraud is so ingrained with the breach of a contract that the action, regarding the bar of the statute of limitations, must be treated as one for relief on the ground of fraud [Gregory v. Spieker (1895) 110 Cal. 150, 153, 42 P. 576].

NOTES.

Authority:
CCP § 338

Asserting Defense of Statute of Limitations Applicable to Fraud:

See 4.08, 4.21[2]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesFraudCommercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesStatutes of LimitationsGeneral OverviewContracts LawDefensesStatutes of LimitationsContracts LawSales of GoodsStatutes of LimitationsGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsGeneral Overview

128 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action
V. FORMS

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.29

4.29 Memorandum for Party Asserting That Action Is Barred by Statute of Limitations.

Memorandum for Party Asserting That Action Is Barred by Statute of Limitations.

[Include the following, if appropriate under the circumstances of the case, in a memorandum by the party asserting that the action is barred by the statute of limitations, along with factual discussion demonstrating how the principles of law stated below are applicable to the particular case]

THIS ACTION IS BARRED BY THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS.

A. Accrual of Cause of Action. A cause of action for breach of contract accrues at the time of the breach [E.O.C. Ord, Inc. v. Kovakovich (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1194, 1203, 246 Cal. Rptr. 456]. This generally is on the failure of the promisor to do the thing contracted for at the time and in the manner contracted [Waxman v. Citizens Nat'l Trust & Sav. Bank (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 145, 149, 266 P.2d 48].

[AND/OR]

B. Running of Limitation Period. The limitation period begins to run at the time of the breach of the contract [Baker v. Joseph (1860) 16 Cal. 173, 177 ; Barlow v. Collins (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 274, 278-279, 333 P.2d 64].

[EITHER]

B. Limitation Period. An action on a written contract must be commenced within four years after the cause of action has accrued [Code Civ. Proc. § 337].

[OR]

B. Limitation Period. An action on a contract not founded on an instrument in writing must be commenced within two years after the cause of action has accrued [Code Civ. Proc. § 339].

[CONTINUE]

[Optional] C. Requirement That Writing Contain Contract. An instrument in writing is not a contract unless it contains the contract to do the thing for the nonperformance of which an action may be brought. The writing must create a duty before a duty may be inferred from the writing. It is not sufficient that a cause of action is in some way remotely or indirectly connected with an instrument in writing or that the instrument is a link in the chain establishing the cause of action [Citizens Cas. Co. v. Otis Clark & Co. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 294, 299-300, 96 Cal. Rptr. 838].

[AND/OR]

[Optional] D. Requirement of Indication of Acceptance. In order for an action to be founded on an instrument in writing, there must be some tangible written indication of acceptance of the terms of the writing by the defendant [James De Nicholas Assocs., Inc. v. Heritage Constr. Corp. (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 421, 424, 85 Cal. Rptr. 233].

[AND/OR]

[Optional] E. Tolling of Limitation Period. The statute of limitations in a cause of action for breach of contract is tolled by a resident's absence from the state pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 351 if the out-of-state travel is unrelated to interstate commerce [Filet Menu, Inc. v. Cheng (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1276, 1282-1284, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 384].

NOTES.

Authority:

CCP §§ 337, 339, 351

Raising Affirmative Defense of Statute of Limitations:

See 4.24[4]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Defenses, Demurrers & Objections Affirmative Defenses General
Overview Commercial Law (UCC) Sales (Article 2) Remedies Statutes of Limitations General Overview Contracts
Law Defenses Statutes of Limitations Contracts Law Sales of Goods Statutes of Limitations General
Overview Governments Legislation Statutes of Limitations Pleading & Proof

129 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action
V. FORMS

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.30

4.30 Memorandum for Party Asserting That Four-Year Limitation Period to Action on Contract Evidenced by Writing.

Memorandum for Party Asserting That Four-Year Limitation Period to Action on Contract Evidenced by Writing.

[Include the following, if appropriate under the circumstances of the case, in a memorandum by the party asserting that the action is barred by the four-year statute of limitation for contracts founded on an instrument in writing, along with factual discussion demonstrating how the principles of law stated below are applicable to the particular case]

THE FOUR-YEAR LIMITATION PERIOD APPLIES TO A CONTRACT FOUNDED ON AN INSTRUMENT IN WRITING.

A. Limitation Period for Written Contract. The four-year limitation period applies to a contract founded on an instrument in writing [Code Civ. Proc. § 337(1)].

[CONTINUE]

[Optional] B. Letter Accepted by Party Is Instrument in Writing. A letter that constitutes an offer and was accepted by the plaintiff is evidence of a writing signed by the party to be charged. Therefore, the four-year statute of limitations is applicable to an action for damages for breach of the contract by the offeror [Ravel v. Hubbard (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 255, 258-259, 246 P.2d 88].

[AND/OR]

[Optional] C. Receipt for Money Containing Promise Is Instrument in Writing. A written receipt for money that contains words from which a promise may be inferred, arising directly from the receipt itself and including its terms, is an instrument in writing to which the four-year statute of limitations provided by Code of Civil Procedure Section 337(1) applies. All obligations and promises that the writing's words necessarily import must be regarded as being included in the terms of the writing [O'Brien v. King (1917) 174 Cal. 769, 773, 164 P. 631 ; Ashley v. Vischer (1864)].

24 Cal. 322, 327-329].

[AND/OR]

[Optional] D. Action by Third-Party Beneficiary Is on Written Contract. An action by a third-party beneficiary is one on an obligation founded on a written instrument within the meaning of Code of Civil Procedure Section 337, although parol evidence may be necessary to show that the party maintaining the action is within the class intended to be benefitted by the contract and to show the extent of the party's interest [Division of Labor Law Enforcement v. Dennis (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 306, 311, 183 P.2d 932].

[AND/OR]

[Optional] E. Action by Employees Involving Collective Bargaining Agreement. The four-year limitation period prescribed by Code of Civil Procedure Section 337(1) applies to an action by orally hired employees to recover the difference between the wages actually received and the amounts claimed to have been payable to them under the provisions of collective bargaining agreements between the employer and unions [Division of Labor Law Enforcement v. Dennis (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 306, 310-311, 183 P.2d 932].

[AND/OR]

[Optional] F. Escrow Instructions in Writing Constitute Written Contract. An action for failure to comply with escrow instructions is on a written contract to which the four-year limitation period prescribed in Code of Civil Procedure section 337 applies, if the instructions are in writing and the escrow holder accepts them, or if the escrow holder prepares the instructions and offers to perform them, and the buyer and seller accept the offer [Amen v. Merced County Title Co. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 528, 532, 25 Cal. Rptr. 65, 375 P.2d 33].

[AND/OR]

[Optional] G. Blanks in Contract. The omission of information to be inserted in blanks in a written instrument does not invalidate the agreement as a written contract [Benard v. Walkup (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 595, 602, 77 Cal. Rptr. 544].

NOTES.

Authority:

CCP § 337

Asserting Applicability of Four-Year Statute of Limitations:

See 4.05

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Defenses, Demurrers & Objections Affirmative Defenses General Overview Commercial Law (UCC) Sales (Article 2) Remedies Statutes of Limitations General Overview Contracts Law Defenses Statutes of Limitations Contracts Law Sales of Goods Statutes of Limitations General Overview Governments Legislation Statutes of Limitations Pleading & Proof

130 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action
V. FORMS*1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.314.31 Demurrer to Complaint on Ground That Claim Is Barred by Laches.*Demurrer to Complaint on Ground That Claim Is Barred by Laches.

_____[Name of attorney]
 _____[Street address]
 _____[City, state, and ZIP]
 _____[Area code and phone number]
 _____[State Bar no. of attorney]
 Attorney for _____[name of party]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
 COUNTY OF _____

[name] _____,	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO.
vs.	)	_____
[name] _____,	)	_____
Defendant.	)	DEMURRER OF
	)	_____
	)	_____ [identify defendant, e.g.,
		DEFENDANT MARY JONES] TO COMPLAINT
		OF
		_____ [identify plaintiff or
		cross-complainant, e.g., PLAINTIFF JOHN SMITH]
		[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]
		Judge:

		Department:

_____ Identify defendant, e.g., Defendant Mary Jones] demurs to the [First or other designation _____] Cause of Action specified in the [complaint or _____ cross-complaint] of [identify plaintiff or cross-complainant, e.g., Plaintiff John Smith], on the ground that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action because it appears from the face of the complaint that the action is barred by laches, in that Plaintiff has inexcusably and unreasonably delayed commencement of the action to the prejudice of Defendant.

WHEREFORE, Defendant prays as follows:

1. That Plaintiff take nothing by his/her complaint herein;
2. For costs of suit; and
3. For such other and further relief as the court deems proper.

Dated: _____

[firm name, if any] _____

By: [signature] _____

[typed name] _____

Attorney for Defendant

[Add memorandum supporting demurrer]

[Attach required notice of hearing]

NOTES.

Authority:

Johnson v. City of Loma Linda (2000) 24 C4th 61, 68, 99 CR2d 316, 5 P3d 874

Using Demurrer to Assert That Claim Is Barred by Laches:

See 4.25[6]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Defenses, Demurrers & Objections Affirmative Defenses General Overview Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Defenses, Demurrers & Objections Demurrers

131 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 4 Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action
V. FORMS

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 4.32

4.32 Allegation for Party Asserting Contractual Extension of Limitation Period.

Allegation for Party Asserting Contractual Extension of Limitation Period.

[Include the following allegation in appropriate circumstances in a complaint to assert that the parties agreed to a longer limitation period than provided by statute]

1. The agreement referred to above contains a clause

_____ [authorizing suit to be brought on the contract with (specify contractual period in excess of applicable statute of limitations) _____ years after the cause of action accrues, without regard to the statute of limitations that otherwise would be applicable or that makes (other state)

_____ 's _____-year statute of limitations applicable to the contract, rather than California's four-year statute of limitations or quote contractual limitation provision verbatim, e.g., that provides as follows: _____]. Plaintiff has commenced this action within the time period permitted by the agreement.

NOTES.

Authority:

CCP § 360.5

Asserting Applicability of Contractually Extended Limitations Period:

See 4.11

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesStatutes of LimitationsTime LimitationsContracts
LawDefensesStatutes of LimitationsContracts LawSales of GoodsStatutes of LimitationsTime
LimitationsGovernmentsLegislationExtension & Revival

132 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.syn

§ 5.syn Synopsis to Chapter 5: Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate

5.01 Scope.

5.02 Objective and Strategy.

5.03 CHECKLIST: Determining Whether Arbitration or Other Alternative Dispute Resolution Is Required.

5.04 Options and Strategy.

5.05 Determining If Judicial Arbitration Is Required.

5.06 Determining If Mediation Is Required.

5.06[1] Statute May Require Mediation.

5.06[2] Mediation May Be Required by Contract or by Choice of Parties.

5.07 Determining If Contract Requires Arbitration.

5.07[1] General Contract Principles Determine Validity of Agreement.

5.07[1][a] Contract Principles Determine Validity and Defenses to Enforcement.

5.07[1][b] Arbitration of Statutory Claims Generally Is Enforceable.

5.07[1][c] Arbitration Clause May Be Incorporated by Reference.

5.07[1][d] "Service of Suit" Clause Does Not Preclude Arbitration of Claims.

5.07[1][e] Claims for Injunctive Relief under Consumer Legal Remedies Act and Business and Professions Code Sections 17200 and 17500 Are Not Arbitrable.

5.07[1][f] Mandatory Fee Arbitration Act Does Not Limit Ability of Attorneys and Clients to Enter Into Binding

Contractual Arbitration.

5.07[2] Federal Arbitration Act May Preempt Statutory Requirements.

5.07[2][a] FAA Preempts Statutes That Apply Only to Arbitration Agreements.

5.07[2][b] FAA's Reach Is Broadly Defined.

5.07[2][c] Only Substantive FAA Provisions Preempt State Law.

5.08 Determining If Contract Requires Reference.

5.09 Determining If Combined ADR Methods Will Be Required.

5.10 CHECKLIST: Determining Whether Arbitration or Other ADR Is Preferable to Litigation.

5.11 Options and Strategy.

5.12 Advantages and Disadvantages of Mediation.

5.12[1] Mediation Is Often Faster, Less Expensive, and Allows More Participation.

5.12[2] Mediation Is Inappropriate If Parties Are of Uneven Strength or Are Unwilling to Negotiate.

5.13 Judicial Arbitration and Contractual Arbitration Have Different Characteristics.

5.13[1] Absent Stipulation, Judicial Arbitration Is Limited to Claims Under $50,000 Per Party.

5.13[2] Discovery and Hearing Formalities Differ.

5.13[3] Contractual Arbitration Award Generally Is Binding.

5.13[4] Judicial Arbitration Award Generally Is Nonbinding.

5.13[5] Judicial Arbitration Expenses Generally Are Paid by Court; Contractual Arbitration Expenses by Parties.

5.13[6] Provisional Remedies Are Available During Contractual Arbitration.

5.14 Contractual Hearing Before Referee May Be Faster and Allow for Selecting a Referee With Expertise, but Costs Are Paid by Parties.

5.15 CHECKLIST: Submitting to or Compelling Arbitration.

5.16 Options and Strategy.

5.17 Demanding Arbitration.

5.17[1] Aggrieved Party Must Demand Arbitration.

5.17[2] Demand Usually Is Made by Letter.

5.17[3] Underlying Contract Determines Timing of Demand.

5.17[4] Arbitration Agreements Generally Are Not Self-Executing.

5.18 Agreeing to Arbitrate.

5.18[1] Parties May Enter Into Pre- or Post-Dispute Arbitration Agreement.

5.18[2] Post-Dispute Arbitration Agreement.

5.18[2][a] Post-Dispute Arbitration Agreements Must Be in Writing.

5.18[2][b] If Parties Are in Litigation, Post-Dispute Arbitration Agreement Must Be by Stipulation.

5.18[2][c] Post-Dispute Arbitration Agreement May Include Detailed Provisions Governing Arbitration.

5.19 Arbitration Agreement May Be Enforced by a Nonsignatory.

5.19[1] Arbitration Agreement May Be Enforced by an Intended Third-Party Beneficiary.

5.19[2] Arbitration Agreement May Be Enforced by a Nonsignatory Based on Equitable Estoppel.

5.20 Petitioning to Compel Arbitration.

5.20[1] Contents and Allegations of Petition.

5.20[1][a] Plaintiff or Defendant May Petition to Compel Arbitration.

5.20[1][b] Specific Allegations Are Required to Obtain Order Compelling Arbitration.

5.20[2] Superior Court Has Jurisdiction; Venue Is Determined by Statute.

5.20[3] Petition to Compel Arbitration Must Be Filed Within Four Years After Refusal to Arbitrate.

5.20[4] Notice of Hearing Must Be Served Not Less Than 10 Days Prior to Hearing.

5.20[5] Service of Petition to Enforce Arbitration Agreement.

5.20[5][a] Parties Must Be Served More Than 10 Days Prior to Hearing.

5.20[5][b] Persons Who Have Not Previously Appeared Must Be Served Pursuant to Statute.

5.20[5][c] Service on Persons Outside of California Must Meet Statutory Requirements.

5.20[5][d] Service to Others Is Governed by Statute.

5.20[6] Court's Options After Hearing of Petition to Compel Arbitration.

5.20[6][a] Court May Order Parties to Arbitrate Entire Controversy.

5.20[6][b] Court May Sever Issue or Stay Action or Arbitration on Severed Issue.

5.20[6][c] Court May Act to Avoid Inconsistent Rulings in Different Forums.

5.20[6][d] Court May Consolidate Separate Arbitration Proceedings.

5.20[7] Order Compelling Arbitration.

5.20[7][a] Order Compelling Arbitration Must Be in Writing.

5.20[7][b] Order Compelling Arbitration Is Not Immediately Appealable.

5.20[8] Order Denying Arbitration Is Appealable and Statement of Decision Is Required.

5.20[9] Order Determining Who Decides Arbitrability Is Not Appealable.

5.21 Court May Stay Action or Proceeding Pending Arbitration.

5.22 Appeals of Denials to Compel Arbitration and Stays of Arbitration.

5.22[1] Denial of Petition to Compel Arbitration Requires Immediate Appeal.

5.22[2] Order to Stay Arbitration Is Immediately Appealable.

5.23 CHECKLIST: Opposing Arbitration.

5.24 Options and Strategy.

5.25 Disputing Existence of Arbitration Agreement.

5.25[1] Party Resisting Arbitration Must File Response.

5.25[2] Burden of Proof Is on Party Resisting Arbitration.

5.25[3] Existence of Agreement to Arbitrate Is Question of Fact.

5.25[4] Agreement Not Formed If Court Finds Lack of Mutual Assent.

5.25[5] Lack of Contractual Capacity Voids Arbitration Agreement.

5.25[6] Attempt to Add Arbitration Clause Unilaterally May Be Defeated.

5.26 Party May Oppose Arbitration If Issue Is Beyond Scope of Agreement.

5.27 Party May Oppose Arbitration If Nonsignatory Is Indispensable Party.

5.28 Opposing Arbitration on Grounds of Fraud.

5.28[1] Claim of Fraud Affecting Primary Contract May Be Subject to Arbitration.

5.28[2] Fraud May Invalidate Arbitration Clause Under Specific Conditions.

5.28[3] Motion to Compel Arbitration May Be Defeated by Allegations in Verified Complaint or by Affidavit or Declaration.

5.29 Opposing Arbitration on Ground That Agreement Is Unconscionable.

5.29[1] Court Should Refuse to Enforce Unconscionable Agreement or Clause.

5.29[2] Unconscionability Determined by Procedural and Substantive Aspects.

5.29[3] Contracts of Adhesion May Not Be Enforced Unless Terms Meet Specific Conditions.

5.29[4] Court May Sever Unconscionable Term and Enforce Remainder of Contract.

5.29[5] Arbitration Agreement Must Meet Specific Requirements If Claim Arises From Unwaivable Public Right.

5.30 Party May Oppose Arbitration on Grounds of Waiver.

5.30[1] Waiver May Be Explicit or Implied.

5.30[2] Party Urging Arbitration Must Have Prejudiced Other Party's Rights.

5.30[3] Time and Expense Alone Usually Do Not Constitute Sufficient Prejudice.

5.31 Party May Oppose Arbitration Provision in Health Care Service Plan That Fails to Comply With H&S Code § 1363.1.

5.31[1] H&S Code § 1363.1 Imposes Format Requirements.

5.31[2] H&S Code § 1363.1 Is Not Preempted by FAA.

5.31[3] H&S Code § 1363.1 May Be Preempted by Medicare Law.

5.31A CHECKLIST: Moving to Vacate or Correct Arbitration Award.

5.31B Options and Strategy.

5.31C Scope of Judicial Review Generally Is Limited.

5.31D Court Must Vacate Arbitration Award Under Specified Circumstances.

5.31E Court Must Correct Arbitration Award Under Specified Circumstances.

5.32 Demand for Arbitration.

Demand for Arbitration.

5.33 Petition to Compel Arbitration.

Petition to Compel Arbitration.

5.34 Notice of Hearing on Petition to Compel Arbitration.

Notice of Hearing on Petition to Compel Arbitration.

5.35 Order Compelling Arbitration.

Order Compelling Arbitration.

5.36 Order Denying Arbitration and Dismissing Proceeding.

Order Denying Arbitration and Dismissing Proceeding.

5.37 Notice of Motion to Stay Pending Action Until Arbitration Is Completed.

Notice of Motion to Stay Pending Action Until Arbitration Is Completed.

5.38 Order Staying Proceedings in Pending Action.

Order Staying Proceedings in Pending Action.

133 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate

I. STRATEGY

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.01

5.01 Scope.

This chapter covers:

- Objectives and strategy for determining whether judicial arbitration, contractual arbitration, mediation, or consensual reference is a required or desirable alternative to litigation [see 5.02].
- Characteristics, advantages, and disadvantages of judicial arbitration, contractual arbitration, mediation, and consensual reference [see 5.05 -5.14].
- Demanding arbitration [see 5.17; Form: see 5.32].
- Use of post-dispute arbitration agreements [see 5.18].
- Petitioning to compel arbitration [see 5.19, 5.20; Forms: see 5.33 -5.36].
- Staying action or proceeding on arbitrable issue(s) [see 5.21; Forms: see 5.37, 5.38].
- Resisting contractual arbitration [see 5.23 -5.31].
- Moving to correct or vacate an arbitration award [see 5.31A -5.31E].

Core Statutes:

CCP §§ 638, 1141.10 et seq., 1280 et seq.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMediations

134 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate

I. STRATEGY

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.02

5.02 Objective and Strategy.

In any contract dispute, the parties must consider whether or not they desire to pursue alternative dispute resolution (ADR), or whether they are required to do so by law or the contract itself. The four most popular types of alternative dispute resolution (ADR) are:

- Mediation.
- Judicial arbitration.
- Consensual reference.
- Contractual arbitration.

If the parties have an agreement for contractual arbitration [CCP § 1280 et seq.; 9 USC § 1 et seq.], each party needs to consider whether contractual arbitration is desirable under the circumstances, whether grounds to resist arbitration exist, and whether another ADR method or litigation is preferable.

If a party to an arbitration agreement files an action in court, the opposing party should consider which of the following alternative courses to pursue:

- To acquiesce in the litigation by filing an answer;
- To compel arbitration under the terms of the contract; or
- To negotiate for use of another ADR method, such as mediation or consensual reference, with respect to some or all issues.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMandatory ADRCivil

ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMediationsContracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsArbitration
Clauses

135 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate

II. DETERMINING IF ARBITRATION OR OTHER ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION IS REQUIRED

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.03

5.03 CHECKLIST: Determining Whether Arbitration or Other Alternative Dispute Resolution Is Required.

☐ Determine whether matter is subject to mandatory judicial arbitration:

- ☐ Is amount in controversy likely to be $50,000 or less for each plaintiff?
- ☐ Does plea for equitable relief exempt matter from judicial arbitration?
- ☐ Is it unlikely that arbitration will reduce probable time and expense necessary to resolve the litigation?
- ☐ Has plaintiff filed election for judicial arbitration?

Authority:

CCP §§ 1141.11, 1141.12(b), 1141.13; Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.811(a)(1)-(3), (5)

Discussion

See 5.05

☐ Determine whether mediation will be required by statute.

Authority:

CCP § 1775.3(a)

Discussion:

See 5.06[1]

☐ Review complaint and parties' contract to determine if mediation will be required either by itself or as first step before arbitration or other ADR.

Discussion:

See 5.06[2], 5.09

☐ Review complaint and/or parties' contract to determine if arbitration will be required, giving consideration to the following:

- ☐ Whether dispute is within scope of matters required by contract to be arbitrated.
- ☐ Whether contract provides time within which arbitration must be demanded.
- ☐ Whether any prerequisites to arbitration exist, and if so, if they have been met.
- ☐ Whether any defenses exist to enforcement of the arbitration agreement, and if so, whether client wishes to waive or assert them.
- ☐ Whether any state statute imposing requirements for the enforceability of the arbitration agreement are preempted by the Federal Arbitration Act.

Authority:

CCP § 1280 et seq.

Discussion:

See 5.07, 5.13

☐ Review complaint and contract to determine if consensual reference will be required, giving consideration to the following:

- ☐ Whether dispute is within scope of matters required to be determined by consensual reference.
- ☐ Whether any prerequisites to consensual reference exist, and if so, if they have been met.
- ☐ Whether any defenses exist to enforcement of the reference agreement, and if so, whether client wishes to waive or assert them.

Authority:

CCP § 639

Discussion:

See 5.08, 5.14

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Alternative Dispute Resolution Mandatory ADR Contracts Law Contract Conditions &

ProvisionsArbitration Clauses

136 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate

II. DETERMINING IF ARBITRATION OR OTHER ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION IS REQUIRED

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.04

5.04 Options and Strategy.

The first thing to determine is whether the parties' contract contains a valid and enforceable provision that will require the dispute to be determined by some type of ADR. Counsel should carefully consider review the advantages and disadvantages of each type of ADR. Part of this determination involves evaluating any defenses that may be available to any type of ADR required by the contract.

Consider:

If there is a contractual provision, consider any ways the provision may be set aside. If the matter involves less than $50,000, the court may require judicial arbitration or mediation [CCP §§ 1141.10-1141.31].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of opposing arbitration, see 5.23 -5.31.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewContracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsArbitration Clauses

137 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate

II. DETERMINING IF ARBITRATION OR OTHER ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION IS REQUIRED

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.05

5.05 Determining If Judicial Arbitration Is Required.

In counties with more than 18 superior court judges, and in other counties that have so provided by local rule, parties will be forced to judicial arbitration [CCP §§ 1141.10-1141.31] if the court determines that the amount in controversy does not exceed more than $50,000 for each plaintiff [CCP § 1141.11(a)-(c); Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.811(a)(1)-(3)]. The court makes that determination at the first case management conference held after all named parties have appeared or defaulted [CCP § 1141.16(a); Cal Rules Ct, Rules 3.727(b), 3.812(d)], and has discretion not to order judicial arbitration if it finds that arbitration would not reduce the probable time and expense necessary to resolve the litigation [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.811(b)(6), (7)]. Actions with a prayer for equitable relief that is not frivolous or insubstantial are excluded from mandatory judicial arbitration [CCP § 1141.13; Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.811(b)(1)], as are cases involving multiple causes of action or a cross-complaint if the court determines that the amount in controversy any given cause of action or cross-complaint exceeds $50,000 [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.811(b)(8)].

Judge's Perspective:

Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.810 et seq. and CCP § 1141.10 et seq. provide a comprehensive set of rules and procedures governing judicial arbitration. The California Rules of Court list other types of cases that are not subject to judicial arbitration. These include all class actions, unlawful detainer proceedings, and "any case otherwise subject to arbitration that is found by the court not to be amenable to arbitration on the ground that arbitration would not reduce the probable time and expense necessary to resolve the litigation" [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.811(b)(6)]. In addition, the superior courts of each county have the authority to exempt whole categories of cases as "not amenable to arbitration" [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.811(b)(7)]. Counsel should check the local rules to determine whether any such categories exist in his or her county, and should also find out whether the local court has a practice (rather than a rule) of excluding particular categories of cases. For example, the court may exclude certain types of actions, such as personal injury cases, because one of the parties always requests a trial de novo, eliminating any savings to the parties or the court.

➡ Cross Reference:

Discussion and forms, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 24, Pretrial ADR; or California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMandatory ADR

138 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate

II. DETERMINING IF ARBITRATION OR OTHER ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION IS REQUIRED

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.06

5.06 Determining If Mediation Is Required.

5.06[1] Statute May Require Mediation. Mediation is a process in which a neutral person or persons facilitate communication between disputants to assist them in reaching a mutually acceptable resolution to a dispute [CCP § 1775.1(a); Evid Code § 1115(a)]. Courts in Los Angeles County, and any other counties that have opted into the program, may order any at-issue civil action in which judicial arbitration is otherwise required [see CCP § 1141.11] to mediation as an alternative to judicial arbitration. This power applies even if there is a prayer for equitable relief, which would otherwise exempt the matter from judicial arbitration [CCP § 1775.3(a)].

Strategic Point:

Even though parties may be required by a court to go to mediation, once they are there each participant has the right to decide the extent of his or her participation in the mediation, including the right to withdraw from the mediation at any time [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.853(2)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of requirements for judicial arbitration, see 5.05.

5.06[2] Mediation May Be Required by Contract or by Choice of Parties. Mediation is voluntary. Thus, most mediations arise from contracts or because the parties chose to mediate after their dispute arose. Mediation begins, continues, and concludes by agreement of the parties. Any party is free to withdraw from the process at any time after it has commenced [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.853(2); Kirschenman v. Superior Court (1994) 30 CA4th 832, 835, 36 CR2d 166].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the advantages of mediation, see 5.12[1].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMandatory ADRCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute

ResolutionMediationsContracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsArbitration Clauses

139 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate

II. DETERMINING IF ARBITRATION OR OTHER ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION IS REQUIRED

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.07

5.07 Determining If Contract Requires Arbitration.

5.07[1] General Contract Principles Determine Validity of Agreement.

5.07[1][a] Contract Principles Determine Validity and Defenses to Enforcement. A written agreement to submit an existing controversy to arbitration or a subsequent agreement to arbitrate is valid, irrevocable, and enforceable under the California Arbitration Act (CAA) [CCP §§ 1280-1294.2], except on the grounds that exist for the revocation of any contract [CCP § 1281]. The CAA establishes rules for enforcement of agreements to arbitrate and for conduct of the arbitration proceedings except as otherwise agreed by the parties. It also describes the circumstances under which arbitration awards may be judicially vacated, corrected, confirmed, and enforced [CCP § 1280-1294.2]. The most common defenses to enforcement of arbitration agreements are waiver and unconscionability of all or a part of the arbitration clause.

Example--Arbitration Clauses Covering All Claims:

An arbitration clause that covers any claim "arising out of or relating to the contract or the breach thereof" has been held to cover all claims [Larkin v. Williams, Woolley, Cogswell, Nakazawa & Russell (1999) 76 CA4th 227, 230, 90 CR2d 195]. An arbitration clause that covers "all disputes arising in connection with the agreement" also was interpreted broadly and held to cover all claims [Simula, Inc. v. Autoliv, Inc. (9th Cir 1999) 175 F3d 716, 720-725].

Example--Arbitration Clause Covering Some Claims:

A contract that failed to add the phrase "or relating to" may exclude arbitration of certain claims [Tracer Research v. National Envtl. Servs. Co. (9th Cir 1994) 42 F3d 1292, 1295].

Judge's Perspective:

The arbitrator, and not the court, will decide whether a particular dispute is arbitrable if the parties have "clearly and unmistakably" so provided in their contract [see Hartnell Community College Dist. v. Superior Court (2005) 124 CA4th 1443, 1449 ; Dream Theater, Inc. v. Dream Theater (2004) 124 CA4th 547, 552]. In case of any ambiguity, the matter of arbitrability will be decided by the court [Baker v. Osborne Development Corp. (2008) 159 CA4th 884, 893-894, 71 CR3d 854 ; Hartnell Community College Dist. v. Superior Court (2005) 124 CA4th 1443, 1449].

Example:

An agreement containing a severability provision stating that "[i]n the event that any provision of this Agreement shall be determined by a trier of fact of competent jurisdiction to be unenforceable in any jurisdiction, such provision shall be unenforceable in that jurisdiction" did not clearly and unmistakably reserve to the arbitration panel the issue whether those arbitration provisions were unenforceable, because "trier of fact of competent jurisdiction" referred to a trial court. [Parada v. Superior Court (2009) 176 CA4th 1554, 1566, 98 CR3d 743] .

Exception:

Even if the contract clearly and unmistakably provides that the arbitrator should determine arbitrability, if the court finds that provision to be unconscionable, then the court rather than the arbitrator will decide whether the arbitration agreement is unconscionable [Murphy v. Check ' N Go of California, Inc. (2007) 156 CA4th 138, 145, 67 CR3d 120 ; see Ontiveros v. DHL Express (USA), Inc. (2008) 164 CA4th 494, 505, 79 CR3d 471 (expressing concern about potential for inequitable use of such provisions in areas, such as employment, in which one party tends to be a "repeat player," thereby giving the arbitrator a self-interest in deciding that a dispute is arbitrable)].

Strategic Points--All Parties:

- Whether a party wishes to enforce arbitration agreement or oppose its enforcement, that party should determine at the outset whether any defenses are likely to invalidate the arbitration agreement in whole or in part.
- In case of ambiguity on the issue of arbitrability, extrinsic evidence is admissible to aid in interpreting the parties' intent [Hartnell Community College Dist. v. Superior Court (2005) 124 CA4th 1443, 1451, 22 CR3d 410].

Warning:

If the procedure identified in the contract has failed and the other party does not consent to the proposed method, arbitration cannot be ordered. For example, if a party is no longer a member of the organization that was to conduct the arbitration and therefore is not entitled to use that organization's arbitration services absent consent, and consent is not forthcoming, a court will not order arbitration [Provencio v. WMA Sec., Inc. (2005) 125 CA4th 1028, 1032-1033, 23 CR3d 524 (defendant no longer member of NASD; plaintiff would not consent to arbitration before NASD)].

Cross References:

Discussion of court's options regarding petition to arbitrate, see 5.20[6].

Discussion of defenses to enforcement of arbitration agreements, see 5.25-5.31.

Discussion of enforcement by or against third party, see 5.19.

5.07[1][b] Arbitration of Statutory Claims Generally Is Enforceable. Unless Congress has evinced an intention to preclude a waiver of judicial remedies for the particular statutory rights at issue, statutory claims are arbitrable under most broadly worded arbitration clauses. The burden of proving otherwise is on the party seeking to avoid arbitration [Gilmer v. Interstate/Johnson Lane Corp. (1991) 500 US 20, 26, 111 S Ct 1647, 114 L Ed2d 26]. California public policy strongly encourages enforcement of arbitration clauses [Ericksen, Arbuthnot, McCarthy, Kearney & Walsh, Inc. v. 100 Oak St. (1983) 35 C3d 312, 323, 197 CR 581, 673 P2d 251].

Cross Reference:

Comprehensive list of statutes under which claims are arbitrable, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 6, Determining Forum; or California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration (Matthew Bender).

5.07[1][c] Arbitration Clause May Be Incorporated by Reference. An entire arbitration clause can be incorporated by reference into the primary contract as long as the arbitration provision is clearly referred to and identified and is available for inspection [Wolschlag v. Fidelity Nat'l Title Ins. Co. (2003) 111 CA4th 784, 790-791 (incorporation of C.L.T.A. Coverage Policy form by preliminary title report's clear and unequivocal reference); Kleveland v. Chicago Title Ins. Co. (2006) 141 CA4th 761, 763, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 314 (distinguishing Wolschlag; arbitration clause was not incorporated by reference into preliminary title report when arbitration was not mentioned in preliminary title report and report referred to a policy that was different than that actually issued by the insurer)]. More often an arbitration agreement incorporates only the arbitration rules of a specific entity or organization that are to be used in any arbitration in accordance with the agreement [Ware v. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. (1972) 24 CA3d 35, 40-42, 100 CR 791].

5.07[1][d] "Service of Suit" Clause Does Not Preclude Arbitration of Claims. An arbitration clause is enforceable even if it appears in a contract also containing a "service of suit" clause, under which a party agrees to submit to the jurisdiction of a particular court, if the contract contains language establishing priority of the arbitration clause over the service of suit clause [Boghos v. Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's of London (2005) 36 C4th 495, 501-503, (no conflict existed between service of suit clause and arbitration clause when insurance policy also provided that "[n]otwithstanding any other item set forth herein, the parties hereby agree that any dispute which arises shall be settled in Binding Arbitration")].

5.07[1][e] Claims for Injunctive Relief under Consumer Legal Remedies Act and Business and Professions Code Sections 17200 and 17500 Are Not Arbitrable. Claims for injunctive relief on behalf of the general public under the Consumer Legal Remedies Act [CC§ 1770] and B&P Code §§ 17200 and 17500 are not subject to arbitration [Cruz v. PacifiCare Health Sys., Inc. (2003) 30 C4th 303, 315, 133 CR2d 58, 66 P3d 1157; Broughton v. Cigna Healthplans (1999) 21 C4th 1066, 1079-1080, 90 CR2d 334, 988 P2d 67] .

Distinguish:

Statutory claims for damages, restitution, and disgorgement are arbitrable [Cruz v. PacifiCare Health Sys., Inc. (2003) 30 C4th 303, 317-320, 133 CR2d 58, 66 P3d 1157] .

When a party brings a claim under B&P Code § 17200 seeking both injunctive and restitutionary relief and the dispute is subject to arbitration, the proper procedure is to sever the claim for injunctive relief and compel arbitration of the claim for restitutionary relief only [Aral v. Earthlink, Inc. (2005) 134 CA4th 544, 553, 36 CR3d 229] . The trial court has the discretion to stay proceedings on the inarbitrable claims pending resolution of the arbitration [CCP § 1281.4; Cruz v. PacifiCare Health Sys., Inc. (2003) 30 C4th 303, 320, 133 CR2d 58, 66 P3d 1157] .

Warning:

California's Proposition 64 amended B&P Code § 17204 to require that a plaintiff asserting a cause of action under B&P Code § 17200 must have suffered injury in fact and lost money or property as a result of the alleged violation.

► Cross Reference:

Actions under B&P Code § 17200 and discussion of effect of Proposition 64, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Unfair Competition and Business Torts, Ch. 2, Unfair Competition.

5.07[1][f] Mandatory Fee Arbitration Act Does Not Limit Ability of Attorneys and Clients to Enter Into Binding Contractual Arbitration. The Mandatory Fee Arbitration Act (MFAA) [B&P § 6200 et seq.] allows a client to choose to submit a fee dispute with an attorney to arbitration by a local bar association. Unless the attorney and client agree in writing after the dispute has arisen that the arbitration will be binding, however, either party may request a trial de novo within 30 days after the arbitration has concluded [B&P § 6204(a)]. However, if an attorney and client have entered into a valid predispute agreement to binding arbitration pursuant to the California Arbitration Act [CCP § 1280 et seq.], the MFAA does not override the contractual obligation to submit to binding arbitration [Schatz v. Allen Matkins Leck Gamble & Mallory LLP (2009) 45 C4th 557, 575, 87 CR 3d 700, 198 P3d 1109] .

5.07[2] Federal Arbitration Act May Preempt Statutory Requirements.

5.07[2][a] FAA Preempts Statutes That Apply Only to Arbitration Agreements. If the matter involves interstate commerce, the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) will apply [9 USC § 1 et seq.]. Under the FAA, an arbitration contract must be enforced according to its terms subject to state law defenses applicable to all disputes under general contract principles, such as fraud, duress, or unconscionability [Discover Bank v. Superior Court (2005) 36 C4th 148, 165-166, 30 CR3d 76, 113 P3d 1100]. A court may not invalidate an arbitration agreement under a state law that is applicable only to arbitration agreements [Allied-Bruce Terminix Cos., Inc. v. Dobson (1995) 513 US 265, 281, 115 S Ct 834, 130 L Ed2d 753 ; Hedges v. Carrigan (2004) 117 CA4th 578, 583-584, 11 CR3d 787]. Thus, particular California statutes, such as CCP § 1298, which imposes format and initialing requirements on arbitration agreements that are not imposed on other agreements, are preempted if the matter involves interstate commerce. Failure of the arbitration agreement to conform to the preempted statute does not bar its enforcement on all other grounds [Hedges v. Carrigan (2004) 117 CA4th 578, 587, 11 CR3d 787]. In addition, the FAA preempts California statutes that refer certain disputes initially to a judicial forum or an administrative agency [Preston v. Ferrer (2008) 552 US 346, 128 S Ct 978, 169 L Ed2d 917, 2008 U.S. LEXIS 2011] .

Other California statutes that have been held preempted by the FAA include the following:

- Corp Code § 31512 is preempted to the extent that it can be interpreted to require a judicial forum for resolution of claims under the Franchise Investment Law. Those claims can be arbitrated [Southland Corp. v. Keating (1984) 465 US 1, 10-16, 104 S Ct 852, 79 L Ed2d 1] .
- A provision of the California Talent Agencies Act [Lab Code § 1700.44(a)] that grants the Labor Commissioner exclusive jurisdiction to decide an issue that the parties agreed to arbitrate is preempted by the FAA [Preston v. Ferrer (2008) 552 U.S. 346, 128 S. Ct. 978, 169 L. Ed. 2d 917, 2008 U.S. LEXIS 2011] .
- CC §§ 1781(a), 1783, parts of the California Legal Remedies Act that prohibit waiver of a consumer's right to bring class action lawsuits within three years, are preempted by the FAA. However, an arbitration agreement prohibiting class actions and imposing a shorter limitation period would be enforceable were it not also unconscionable [see Ting v. AT&T (9th Cir 2003) 319 F3d 1126, 1148-1152] .
- CCP § 1298.7, which would otherwise allow a purchaser to pursue a court action against a developer for construction and design defects despite having signed an arbitration agreement, is preempted by the FAA. The purchaser would be compelled to arbitrate the construction or design defect claim [Shepard v. Edward Mackay Enterprises, Inc. (2007) 148 CA4th 1092, 1101, 56 CR3d 326 ; Basura v. U.S. Home

Corp. (2002) 98 CA4th 1205, 1213-1214, 120 CR2d 328].

- Lab Code § 229, which invalidates an arbitration agreement in favor of a judicial forum for statutory wage claims, was preempted in the case of a corporate officer's unpaid wages claim against his former employer, because his work involved significant interstate business activities [Giuliano v. Inland Empire Personnel, Inc. (2007) 149 CA4th 1276, 1287-1288, 58 CR3d 5] .

Distinguish:

In cases that do not involve interstate commerce, state requirements for arbitration provisions will not be preempted [see, e.g., Woolls v. Superior Court (2005) 127 CA4th 197, 25 CR3d 426 (agreement between a California homeowner and a California contractor to renovate a single family residence in California does not implicate interstate commerce; failure to comply with formalities required by B&P Code § 7191 renders arbitration clause unenforceable against homeowner)].

Arbitration and conciliation of international commercial disputes are governed by CCP § 1297.11 et seq.

5.07[2][b] FAA's Reach Is Broadly Defined. "Involving commerce" is given the broadest interpretation possible consistent with Congress' exercise of its Commerce Clause power. A matter need not be shown to have any specific effect on interstate commerce if the economic activity in question, such as commercial banking or mortgage lending, generally is subject to federal control [Citizens Bank v. Alafabco, Inc. (2003) 539 US 52, 56-58, 123 S Ct 2037, 156 L Ed2d 46 ; Hedges v. Carrigan (2004) 117 CA4th 578, 585-587, 11 CR3d 787].

5.07[2][c] Only Substantive FAA Provisions Preempt State Law. The substantive provisions of the FAA [9 USC §§ 1, 2] apply in state court proceedings, but the procedural terms of the FAA [9 USC §§ 3, 4] apply only in federal court [Rosenthal v. Great W. Fin. Sec. Corp. (1996) 14 C4th 394, 405-407, 58 CR2d 875, 926 P2d 1061 ; see Ovitz v. Schulman (2005) 133 CA4th 830, 851, 35 CR3d 117 (9 USC §§ 10, 12 apply only in federal court)]. One major procedural difference is that federal law provides for a jury trial on the issue of whether an arbitration agreement exists, while California law does not [compare 9 USC § 4 with CCP § 1290.2]. Other procedural differences between the FAA and California law include the following:

- Stay of arbitration. The FAA does not provide for a stay of arbitration if third parties who have not signed the arbitration agreement are necessary to resolution of the dispute. However, by an appropriate choice of law provision in their arbitration agreement, the parties can make CCP § 1281.2(c) applicable, which provides for a stay in those circumstances [see Volt Information Sciences v. Board of Trustees (1989) 489 US 468, 477-478, 109 S Ct 1248, 103 L Ed2d 488 (abrogating Energy Group, Inc. v. Liddington (1987) 192 CA3d 1520, 1522-1528, 238 CR 202 ; Cronus Investments, Inc. v. Concierge Services (2005) 35 C4th 376, 394, CR3d 540, 107 P3d 217 (arbitration clause containing California choice-of-law provision and providing for application of the FAA "if it would be applicable" does not preclude application of CCP § 1281.2(c); disapproving Warren-Guthrie v. Health Net (2000) 84 CA4th 804, 101 CR2d 260 and Energy Group, Inc. v. Liddington (1987) 192 CA3d 1520, 238 CR 202); Best Interiors, Inc. v. Millie & Severson, Inc. (2008) 161 CA4th 1320, 1329, 75 CR3d 1 (FAA does not preempt CCP § 1281.2(c))].

- California law requires the vacating of any award rendered by an arbitrator who failed timely to disclose a ground for disqualification of which he or she was aware, while the FAA permits the vacating of an arbitration award only on a showing of "evident partiality" by the arbitrator, when the undisclosed facts create a "reasonable impression of partiality" [compare CCP § 1286.2(a)(6)(A) with 9 USC § 10(a)(2)]. CCP § 1286.2(a)(6)(A) is not preempted by the FAA because 9 USC § 10(a)(2) is a procedural rather than substantive provision, and because CCP § 1286.2(a)(6)(A) neither limits the rights of contracting parties to submit disputes to arbitration nor discourages persons from using arbitration [

Ovitz v. Schulman (2005) 133 CA4th 830, 853, 35 CR3d 117] .

Strategic Point:

Parties wishing to avoid application of California's procedural rules for arbitration can expressly designate in their arbitration agreement that any arbitration proceeding will be governed by the FAA's procedural provisions rather than the California Arbitration Act [Cronus Investments, Inc. v. Concierge Services (2005) 35 C4th 376, 394, CR3d 540, 107 P3d 217 ; see, e.g., Rodriguez v. American Techs., Inc. (2006) 136 CA4th 1110, 1121-1122, 39 CR3d 437 (FAA's procedural provisions governed contract that provided that any claims were to be arbitrated "pursuant to the Federal Arbitration Act" and contained no express choice-of-law provision designating California law generally)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsArbitrabilityContracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsArbitration Clauses

140 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate

II. DETERMINING IF ARBITRATION OR OTHER ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION IS REQUIRED

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.08

5.08 Determining If Contract Requires Reference.

A general reference is one in which the referee is empowered to hear and determine any or all issues in an action or proceeding, whether of fact or of law, and to make a binding decision that must stand as the decision of the court [CCP §§ 638, 644(a)]. A general reference must be based on the agreement of the parties filed with the clerk or judge or entered in the minutes, or on the motion of a party to enforce a written contract or lease that requires the controversy to be heard by a referee [CCP §§ 638, 644(a); Greenbriar Homes Cmtys., Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 117 CA4th 337, 342-343, 11 CR3d 371].

Contractual provisions for general reference of all or some issues are becoming common in residential building and development contracts. A predispute agreement for appointment of a referee is determined under standard rules of contract interpretation [Greenbriar Homes Cmtys., Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 117 CA4th 337, 343, 11 CR3d 371] and is subject to standard contract defenses, including:

- Unconscionability [Greenbriar Homes Cmtys., Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 117 CA4th 337, 343-346, 11 CR3d 371 ; Woodside Homes of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (2003) 107 CA4th 723, 735-736, 132 CR2d 35]; and

- Lack of mutual assent. Thus, an agreement for judicial reference in a development contract is not enforceable against a subsequent purchaser who has never assented to judicial reference [Greenbriar Homes Cmtys., Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 117 CA4th 337, 343, 11 CR3d 371 ; see Treo @ Kettner Homeowners Assn. v. Superior Court (2008) 166 CA4th 1055, 1067, 83 CR3d 318 (a developer-written requirement in a homeowners association's covenants, conditions and restrictions (CC&Rs) that all disputes between owners and the developer and disputes between the association and the developer be decided by a general judicial reference is not enforceable, because almost all of the association members are purchasers who effectively have no choice but to accept the CC&Rs prepared by the developer)].

The fact that a judicial reference provision is silent regarding the reference costs does not render that provision unconscionable or unenforceable [Trend Homes, Inc. v. Superior Court (2005) 131 CA4th 950, 959-960, 32 CR3d 411].

A court does not have authority to invalidate a judicial reference agreement on the ground that a multiplicity of suits might result, as it would under CCP § 1281.2(c) if the contract called for arbitration [Greenbriar Homes Cmtys., Inc. v.

Superior Court (2004) 117 CA4th 337, 347-348].

Cross Reference:

Discussion and forms, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 25, Reference; or California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 38, Reference (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersRefereesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewContracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsArbitration Clauses

141 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate

II. DETERMINING IF ARBITRATION OR OTHER ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION IS REQUIRED

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.09

5.09 Determining If Combined ADR Methods Will Be Required.

It is not uncommon for an agreement to provide for a multi-step protocol involving several types of ADR, beginning with one using fewer resources and graduating to contractual arbitration.

Examples:

An employment contract specified that an employee's first step in contesting his or her termination was a termination review board with members chosen by the employer and the employee [see Saeta v. Superior Court (2004) 117 CA4th 261, 264-265, 11 CR3d 610].

■ A subcontract agreement between a contractor and a subcontractor required that any dispute between the parties must be submitted to mediation before resorting to arbitration or litigation [see Templeton Development Corp. v. Superior Court (2006) 144 CA4th 1073, 1077-1078, 51 CR3d 19].

Besides the obvious ability to prevent arbitration or litigation by asserting the opposing party's failure to exhaust prerequisite remedies, many contracts contain penalties for failure to attempt ADR in the sequence required by the contract [see Leamon v. Krajewicz (2003) 107 CA4th 424, 431-433, 132 CR2d 362].

Example:

An agreement that requires a party to attempt mediation before arbitration in order to recover attorney's fees is enforceable, even against a party who successfully asserts that the contract is void [Leamon v. Krajewicz (2003) 107 CA4th 424, 431-433, 132 CR2d 362].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure
Alternative Dispute Resolution
General Overview
Civil Procedure
Alternative Dispute Resolution
Mandatory ADR
Contracts Law
Contract Conditions & Provisions
Arbitration Clauses

142 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate

III. DETERMINING WHETHER ARBITRATION OR OTHER ADR IS PREFERABLE TO LITIGATION

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.10

5.10 CHECKLIST: Determining Whether Arbitration or Other ADR Is Preferable to Litigation.

☐ Review characteristics of ADR methods and client's preferences to determine which ADR method is preferable, giving consideration to the following:

- ☐ What degree of formality is appropriate or required?
- ☐ Will client require a judgment, or will a written settlement agreement suffice?
- ☐ Is confidentiality an issue?

Authority:

Evid Code § 1119

Discussion:

See 5.12

- ☐ Is issue more emotional than legal?
- ☐ Are parties of equal bargaining strength?
- ☐ Do parties have a relationship they wish to maintain, and if so, is informality of ADR, and specifically mediation, preferable?
- ☐ Is special expertise required of trier of fact?

Discussion:

See 5.14

- ☐ Is expense of ADR method an issue?

Authority:

CCP § 1141.28

Discussion:

See 5.13[5], 5.14

- ☐ Consider whether judicial arbitration is most inexpensive and expeditious method of resolving dispute:

- ☐ If each plaintiff agrees to limit any recovery to $50,000; or

- ☐ If parties stipulate to submit case to arbitration.

Authority:

CCP § 1141.12; Cal Rules Ct, Rules 3.811(a)(4), (5), 3.812(a), (b)

Discussion:

See 5.05, 5.13

- ☐ If no ADR method is required by statute or contract, determine whether parties can agree to one.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMediationsCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionSummary Jury TrialsCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionValidity of ADR MethodsContracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsArbitration Clauses

143 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate

III. DETERMINING WHETHER ARBITRATION OR OTHER ADR IS PREFERABLE TO LITIGATION

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.11

5.11 Options and Strategy.

Once counsel knows whether any type of ADR is ostensibly required and what options, if any, are available to resist it, counsel can review the characteristics of other ADR methods and discuss the client's needs and preferences to determine whether it is preferable to negotiate the use of some other type of ADR. Mediation may be the best option if the parties have a relationship that they feel should be continued, but is not recommended for parties with unequal bargaining positions [see 5.12]. Arbitration can be useful, but can be quite expensive [see 5.13].

Strategic Point:

Careful consideration of the various attributes of each method of ADR should be undertaken early in the case to assess how the dispute may be settled most advantageously for all parties, but particularly the client.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of opposing arbitration, see 5.23 -5.31.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Alternative Dispute Resolution General Overview Contracts Law Contract Conditions & Provisions Arbitration Clauses

144 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate

III. DETERMINING WHETHER ARBITRATION OR OTHER ADR IS PREFERABLE TO LITIGATION

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.12

5.12 Advantages and Disadvantages of Mediation.

5.12[1] Mediation Is Often Faster, Less Expensive, and Allows More Participation. Mediation is likely to be faster and less expensive than more formal ADR processes, and should be considered early on in a dispute. Unlike binding arbitration, submitting to mediation does not restrict a party's recourse to the courts. Typically, mediation involves factual presentations by lawyers, followed by negotiations between the parties involved in the dispute with the assistance of a mediator, with or without an evaluative component.

Mediation allows the participants to be involved in the process fully and may provide emotional resolution not available through other ADR methods. Mediation therefore is appropriate when the "real issue" is not a legal one. Active participation, a feeling of ability to control the process, and focus on the issues most important to the disputants are likely to result in compliance with any settlement reached and to preserve any ongoing relationship between the disputants if that is what they desire.

Another advantage of mediation is its confidentiality. No public record of the dispute or its resolution need exist. There is no binding legal precedent to govern future cases or future proceedings in a particular case if they are necessary. No evidence of anything said or any admission made for the purpose of, in the course of, or pursuant to, a mediation or a mediation consultation is admissible or subject to discovery, and disclosure of that evidence cannot be compelled in any arbitration, administrative adjudication, civil action, or other noncriminal proceeding [Evid Code § 1119(a)]. Writings prepared in the course of mediation are similarly protected [Evid Code § 1119(b)].

5.12[2] Mediation Is Inappropriate If Parties Are of Uneven Strength or Are Unwilling to Negotiate.

Mediation is not appropriate if the parties are of unequal strength in terms of bargaining power or ability to negotiate. Nor is it appropriate if one party does not actually want resolution, but prefers delay and obfuscation. Mediation also is not appropriate in the following situations:

- If the matter involves public interest, such as statutory or constitutional interpretation, or deterrence of illegal, fraudulent, or deceptive practices. The public interest in such cases may be better served by a judgment, injunction, fine, and/or punitive damages, which may serve as a future deterrent to similar conduct.
- Cases in which extensive discovery will be required, such as those involving pattern and practice.

These types of cases are also likely to involve some public concern.

Strategic Point--Both Parties:

A danger of mediation is that if, during the mediation, one shows one's hand, strategy, and feelings, those present will learn and may make use of that information if the mediation is unsuccessful and litigation ensues, despite the protections from discovery provided in Evid Code § 1119. However, this is a two-edged sword, since all parties may have to disclose enough about their respective positions to put the other parties on notice of the strengths and weaknesses of their respective positions.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Alternative Dispute Resolution Mediations

145 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate

III. DETERMINING WHETHER ARBITRATION OR OTHER ADR IS PREFERABLE TO LITIGATION

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.13

5.13 Judicial Arbitration and Contractual Arbitration Have Different Characteristics.

5.13[1] Absent Stipulation, Judicial Arbitration Is Limited to Claims Under $50,000 Per Party. Mandatory judicial arbitration is limited to matters in which there is less than $50,000 in controversy for each plaintiff [CCP §§ 1141.11(a)-(c), 1141.12(b); Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.811(a)(1)-(3), (5)].

When it is not mandatory, all plaintiffs may force a matter to judicial arbitration by agreeing that the award will not exceed $50,000 for each plaintiff [CCP § 1141.12(b); Cal Rules Ct, Rules 3.811(a)(5), 3.812(b)]. However, nothing prohibits a judicial arbitrator from issuing an award in excess of $50,000 [CCP § 1141.26]. The parties also may stipulate to submit the matter to judicial arbitration prior to any trial, regardless of the amount in controversy [CCP § 1141.12(a); Cal Rules Ct, Rules 3.811(a)(4), 3.812(a)], but in that case, they must pay the arbitrator [CCP § 1141.28(b)].

Cross References:

Discussion of court ordered judicial arbitration costs, see 5.05.

Discussion of comparisons of arbitration expenses, see 5.13[5].

5.13[2] Discovery and Hearing Formalities Differ. In judicial arbitration, the parties have all the rights and remedies with respect to discovery afforded by CCP § 1985 et seq. [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.822(a)], except that a court order is required to obtain discovery with respect to punitive damages [CCP § 1141.19.5]. The rules of evidence governing civil actions apply in judicial arbitration hearings, except that certain reports and documents must be provided to the opposing parties 20 days before the hearing [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.823(b)]. Although the arbitrator may make a record of a judicial arbitration proceeding, no other record can be made of a judicial arbitration hearing, and no stenographer, court reporter, or recording device may be present [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.824(b)].

In contractual arbitration, unless the matter involves wrongful death or personal injury or the arbitration agreement provides otherwise, once the arbitrator has been appointed, the parties have the same rights and remedies with respect to discovery as those set forth in CCP §§ 1985-1997 (subpoenas) and 2016.010 et seq. (depositions and discovery) [CCP §§ 1283.05, 1283.1].

Strategic Point--Both Parties:

Although CCP § 1283.05(e) requires leave of the arbitrator to take depositions, the expense of obtaining an order can be avoided if the parties agree to the depositions. Always consider requesting a stipulation from opposing counsel prior to seeking leave of court.

Unless the arbitration agreement or the parties provide otherwise, all parties to the arbitration are entitled to be heard, to present evidence and to cross-examine witnesses appearing at the hearing, but rules of evidence and rules of judicial procedure need not be observed. On request of a party, testimony of witnesses must be given under oath [CCP § 1282.2(d)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of stipulations, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 28, Stipulations.

5.13[3] Contractual Arbitration Award Generally Is Binding. Contractual arbitration [CCP §§ 1280-1294.2] is sometimes referred to as binding arbitration because there are very limited grounds for judicial review of the arbitrator's award [CCP § 1286.2], which is generally confirmed and entered as a judgment [CCP §§ 1285-1287.6].

Unless the agreement provides otherwise, arbitrators are not bound to decide cases in accordance with the law, but may base an award on principles of justice and equity [Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 C4th 1, 10-11, 10 CR2d 183, 832 P2d 899 ; Sy First Family Ltd. P'ship v. Cheung (1999) 70 CA4th 1334, 1342, 83 CR2d 340].

Parties to an arbitration agreement may expand the scope of judicial review of an arbitration award, however, by expressly providing that legal errors are an excess of arbitral authority subject to judicial review [Cable Connection, Inc. v. DIRECTV, Inc. (2008) 44 C4th 1334, 1361, 82 CR3d 229, 190 P3d 586 (disapproving Court of Appeal opinions refusing to enforce specific provisions for judicial review of the merits)].

Distinguish:

Under the Federal Arbitration Act, parties cannot expand the scope of review by contract, and any provision for review of an award for legal error is void and unenforceable [Hall St. Assocs., L.L.C. v. Mattel, Inc. (2008) 552 U.S. 576, 128 S. Ct. 1396, 1400, 170 L. Ed. 2d 254 ; Kyocera Corp. v. Prudential-Bache Trade Servs., Inc. (9th Cir 2003) 341 F3d 987, 1000 (Ninth Circuit rule under FAA)].

A provision for review by a second arbitrator is enforceable as long as it is truly bilateral [Finley v. Saturn of Roseville (2004) 117 CA4th 1253, 1257-1260, 12 CR3d 561] .

5.13[4] Judicial Arbitration Award Generally Is Nonbinding. Although a party may stipulate away his or her right to a trial de novo [cf. Blanton v. Womancare, Inc. (1985) 38 C3d 396, 407-408, 212 CR 151, 696 P2d 645 (attorney had no authority to so stipulate)], judicial arbitration is not binding to the extent that any party dissatisfied with an award may elect trial de novo [CCP § 1141.20].

Trial de novo must be requested within 30 days after the judicial arbitration award is filed with the court clerk [CCP § 1141.20(b); Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.826(a)]. However, except in the case of an award in excess of $50,000, if the party who requested trial de novo fails to obtain a judgment more favorable than the arbitration award, he or she will be liable for significant costs and fees [see CCP § 1141.21].

If no party requests a trial, the arbitration award is entered as a judgment and is not subject to appeal [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.827]. A party may move to vacate the judgment within six months after entry only on certain specified grounds [see

Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.828].

5.13[5] Judicial Arbitration Expenses Generally Are Paid by Court; Contractual Arbitration Expenses by Parties. All administrative costs of judicial arbitration, including compensation of arbitrators, must be paid for by the court in which the arbitration costs are incurred [CCP § 1141.28(a)]. However, if the matter is in judicial arbitration solely because of the stipulation of the parties, the parties must pay the arbitrator's fees in equal shares, absent evidence that equal division would create substantial economic hardship for any party [CCP § 1141.28(b)].

In contractual arbitration, unless the arbitration agreement or parties otherwise provide, each party pays his or her pro rata share of the expenses and fees of the neutral arbitrator and any other expenses of the arbitration incurred or approved by the neutral arbitrator. Each party also is responsible for counsel fees, witness fees, and other expenses incurred for his or her own benefit [CCP § 1284.2].

Exceptions:

- In a dispute brought under a consumer protection statute that provides for a prevailing plaintiff to recover costs and attorneys fees, those costs and fees will be awarded under the governing statute [Broughton v. Cigna Healthplans of Cal. (1999) 21 C4th 1066, 1086-1087, 90 CR2d 334, 988 P2d 67 ; see CC § 1780(e)].
- In arbitration under an employer-employee agreement in which the employee seeks to vindicate statutory or other unwaivable rights, the employee cannot be required to pay any costs or expenses that are unique to the arbitral forum [Little v. Auto Stiegler, Inc. (2003) 29 C4th 1064, 1080-1081, 1094-1095, 130 CR2d 892, 63 P3d 979 ; Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Servs., Inc. (2000) 24 C4th 83, 110-113, 99 CR2d 745, 6 P3d 669 ; Abramson v. Juniper Networks, Inc. (2004) 115 CA4th 638, 661, 9 CR3d 422 ; see 5.29[5]].

Judge's Perspective:

This means that courts generally will not enforce an arbitration clause that imposes any expense on an employee litigant beyond what that employee would have had to pay to litigate in court [see Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Servs., Inc (2000) 24 C4th 83, 110-111, 99 CR2d 745, 6 P3d 669 ("when an employer imposes mandatory arbitration as a condition of employment, the arbitration agreement or arbitration process cannot generally require the employee to bear any type of expense that the employee would not be required to bear if he or she were free to bring the action in court")]. This is true even if the employer pays the lion's share of any extra arbitration expenses, leaving a smaller fraction for the employee. However, note that if the arbitration agreement is silent about the payment of costs, the court will interpret the agreement as requiring the employer to pay any costs that are unique to arbitration [Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Servs., Inc (2000) 24 C4th 83, 113, 99 CR2d 745, 6 P3d 669] .

- In a consumer arbitration involving unwaivable statutory rights, the court may impose an implied agreement that unaffordable fees not be allocated to the consumer at any in point in the arbitration process, and that the determination of what is affordable be made on a case by case basis, with the consumer bearing the burden of proof as to what he or she cannot afford [Gutierrez v. Autowest, Inc. (2003) 114 CA4th 77, 83, 92-99, 7 CR3d 267] .

- In an arbitration mandated by a school enrollment contract of a student's claims under California hate crimes laws [CC §§ 51.7, 52.1], a student and the parents may not be required to pay any type of arbitral expense that would not be imposed were the dispute adjudicated in court [D.C. v. Harvard-Westlake School (2009) 176 CA4th 836, 862, 98 CR3d 300] .

In a proceeding to confirm, correct or vacate a contractual arbitration award pursuant to CCP § 1285, a court must award costs to the prevailing party [CCP § 1293.2; Marcus & Millichap Real Estate Investment Brokerage Co. v. Woodman Investment Group (2005) 129 CA4th 508, 513, 28 CR3d 584]. Attorney's fees are recoverable as costs if authorized by the arbitration agreement [CCP § 1033.5(a)(10)(A)].

5.13[6] Provisional Remedies Are Available During Contractual Arbitration. Parties to a contractual arbitration agreement have the option, if they need it, of applying to a court for a provisional remedy if one is necessary to insure that the arbitration award not be rendered ineffectual [CCP § 1281.8(b); see Jay Bharat Developers, Inc. v. Minidis (2008) 167 CA4th 437, 446-447, 84 CR3d 267 (injunction prohibiting terminated franchisees from continuing to use franchisor's trademark)]. Provisional remedies include [CCP § 1281.8(a)]:

- Attachments and temporary protective orders issued pursuant to CCP § 481.010 et seq.
- Writs of possession issued pursuant to CCP § 512.010 et seq.
- Preliminary injunctions and temporary restraining orders issued pursuant to CCP § 527.
- Receivers appointed pursuant to CCP § 564.

The party requesting a provisional remedy must meet the requirements for the particular remedy sought.

Cross Reference:

Provisional remedies, see Ch. 6, Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Alternative Dispute Resolution Arbitrations General Overview Contracts Law Contract Conditions & Provisions Arbitration Clauses

146 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate

III. DETERMINING WHETHER ARBITRATION OR OTHER ADR IS PREFERABLE TO LITIGATION

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.14

5.14 Contractual Hearing Before Referee May Be Faster and Allow for Selecting a Referee With Expertise, but Costs Are Paid by Parties.

A hearing before a referee is conducted in the same manner as a court trial [In re McNamee (1933) 131 CA 30, 31, 20 P2d 722]. The Evidence Code applies [Evid Code § 300]. The parties to a consensual reference pursuant to CCP § 638 must pay the referee's fees. If the parties cannot agree on the division of responsibility for the referee's fees, the court may apportion the responsibility for fees in accordance with CCP § 645.1(b) [CCP § 645.1(a)]. Parties to a contractual reference also will have to pay for the place where the reference is held, because court facilities and court personnel cannot be used for a private reference pursuant to CCP § 638, except on a finding by the presiding judge or his or her designee that the use would further the interests of justice [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.907].

Although some have claimed that a consensual reference can be heard sooner than a court trial, this may or may not be so in a particular county [see Pardee Constr. Co. v. Superior Court (2002) 100 CA4th 1081, 1090-1091, 123 CR2d 288] .

Perhaps the greatest advantage of contractual reference is that the parties can choose a person with a particular expertise as their referee. Up to three persons may be appointed as referees [CCP § 640(a)]. The court must appoint the referee(s) agreed on by the parties [CCP § 640(a)]. If the parties do not agree on a referee, each party submits up to three nominees to the court and the court appoints the referee(s), from those nominated [CCP § 640(b)]. If the proposed referee is a former California judicial officer, he or she must be an active or inactive member of the State Bar [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.903].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersRefereesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewContracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsArbitration Clauses

147 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate
IV. SUBMITTING TO OR COMPELLING ARBITRATION

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.15

5.15 CHECKLIST: Submitting to or Compelling Arbitration.

☐ Review arbitration agreement to determine the following:

- ☐ Whether all or part of dispute is within scope of agreement.
- ☐ Whether all parties necessary to resolution of dispute are parties to arbitration agreement.
- ☐ Whether there are any defenses to formation or enforcement of the agreement.
- ☐ Whether there are any prerequisites to arbitration.

Authority:

Leamon v. Krajewicz (2003) 107 CA4th 424, 431-433, 132 CR2d 362

Discussion:

See 5.18

- ☐ What particular choice of law or arbitration rules/procedures are specified as applicable.
- ☐ Whether any arbitration service provider is designated.
- ☐ Time within which arbitration must be demanded, commenced, or completed.
- ☐ How arbitral costs and expenses are apportioned and when they must be paid.

Authority:CCP § 1284.2Discussion:See 5.13[5]

- ☐ Prepare and serve a demand for arbitration within time required.
- ☐ If an arbitration service is designated and has its own demand form, use that form.
- ☐ Serve demand in accordance with rules of arbitration service, usually by certified mail to provide signature of recipient, on:
- ☐ All parties to dispute.
- ☐ The arbitration service provider, including payment of any fee required to initiate arbitration.
- ☐ If arbitration service is not used, prepare demand in letter form and include the following:
- ☐ Description of the issues to be arbitrated.
- ☐ Identification of agreement that requires arbitration.
- ☐ Number of arbitrators, method by which, and time within which they are to be chosen.
- ☐ Name of desired arbitrator or several arbitrators from whom respondent may choose.
- ☐ Serve demand, by certified mail to provide signature of recipient, on:
- ☐ All parties to dispute.
- ☐ Any arbitrators who are nominated.

Authority:CCP § 1281.2Discussion:See 5.17Form:See 5.32

- ☐ Consider postdispute arbitration agreement, if parties agree on particulars.

☐ If parties agree to use arbitration service that has its own form of submission agreement or stipulation, use that form; or

☐ Draft and execute arbitration submission agreement or stipulation, setting forth as much detail as desired, e.g.:

☐ Issues to be arbitrated.

☐ Name(s) of arbitrators, or method by and time within which they are to be chosen.

☐ Applicable law and rules, including rules of evidence to be followed.

☐ Extent of discovery.

☐ Time, place, or length of arbitration hearings.

☐ Who will pay arbitration fees.

Authority:

CCP § 1284.2

Discussion:

See 5.13[5]

☐ Whether hearing will be reported, and if so, who will pay reporter.

☐ Any minimum or maximum award.

☐ Limit, if any, on amount of time (measured from close of hearing or post-hearing briefing) the panel has to render its decision.

☐ The form of decision.

☐ If a court action or proceeding has been commenced, file stipulation, which should also provide for stay of action or proceeding.

Authority:

CCP § 1281; Cal Rules Ct, Rules 3.221(a)(4), 3.726

Discussion:

See 5.18

☐ If parties desire to clarify or narrow scope of pre-dispute arbitration agreement, draft and execute agreement, setting forth as much detail as desired, e.g.:

- ☐ Issues to be arbitrated.
- ☐ Name(s) of arbitrators, or method by and time within which they are to be chosen.
- ☐ Applicable law and rules, including rules of evidence to be followed.
- ☐ Extent of discovery.
- ☐ Time, place, or length of arbitration hearings.
- ☐ Who will pay arbitration fees.

Authority:

CCP § 1281

Discussion:

See 5.18

☐ If party refuses to arbitrate after demand and arbitration agreement is not self-executing, petition to compel arbitration.

- ☐ Include the following in petition:
 - ☐ Existence and description of arbitration agreement, by quoting relevant portions of agreement or attaching copy as exhibit and incorporate in petition by reference.
 - ☐ Existence of dispute within scope of arbitration agreement.
 - ☐ Service of demand to arbitrate.
 - ☐ Respondent's refusal to arbitrate.
- ☐ Obtain hearing date and prepare notice of hearing of petition to compel arbitration.
- ☐ Prepare memorandum in support of petition.
- ☐ Prepare any necessary declarations in support of petition.
- ☐ Serve and file petition, notice and supporting documents.

Timing:

Notice of hearing must be served no less than 10 days before hearing date or, if served on party outside California, no less than 30 days before hearing date.

☐ Service on parties who have not yet appeared is made in same manner as service of summons.

☐ Service on parties who have appeared or been served in accordance with CCP § 1290.4(b), is made in manner provided for other papers in CCP §§ 1010-1020.

Authority:

CCP §§ 1281.2, 1281.7, 1290

Discussion:

See 5.20

Form:

See 5.33

- ☐ If action or proceeding is pending to resolve arbitrable issue:
- ☐ File motion to stay action or proceeding during pendency of arbitration.
 - ☐ Prepare supporting declarations and memorandum.
 - ☐ Serve and file notice of motion and accompanying papers.
 - ☐ If a case is stayed, immediately file and serve notice of the stay on Judicial Council Form CM-180 and attach a copy of the order or other document staying the proceedings.

Authority:

CCP § 1281.4; Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.650

Discussion:

See 5.21

Form:

See 5.37

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsArbitrabilityCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsFederal Arbitration ActOrders to Compel ArbitrationCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionValidity of ADR MethodsContracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsArbitration Clauses

148 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate
IV. SUBMITTING TO OR COMPELLING ARBITRATION

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.16

5.16 Options and Strategy.

If there is a pre-dispute arbitration agreement, the process is usually commenced first by sending a demand for arbitration and later by petitioning to compel arbitration if the other party does not comply with the demand. If there is no arbitration agreement between the parties but arbitration seems a preferred method for resolving the dispute, counsel should consider negotiating a post-dispute arbitration agreement. Even if the parties are bound by a pre-dispute arbitration agreement, they may wish to change it or refine it.

Strategic Point--All Parties:

If the parties are going to create a post dispute arbitration agreement, remember that it is a negotiation. Discuss with your client what is most important. Then you can fight for those characteristics in the agreement, allowing the other party some of the attributes they feel are important.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsFederal Arbitration ActOrders to Compel ArbitrationCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionValidity of ADR MethodsContracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsArbitration Clauses

149 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate
IV. SUBMITTING TO OR COMPELLING ARBITRATION

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.17

5.17 Demanding Arbitration.

5.17[1] Aggrieved Party Must Demand Arbitration. The first step in enforcing an agreement to arbitrate is to demand arbitration under the agreement [see CCP § 1281.2; Charles J. Rounds Co. v. Joint Council of Teamsters (1971) 4 C3d 888, 892-894 (failure of other party to arbitrate must be alleged in petition to compel arbitration)].

Cross Reference:

Form for demand for arbitration, see 5.32.

5.17[2] Demand Usually Is Made by Letter. A demand for arbitration usually is submitted in the form of a letter. The demand should identify the underlying contract and describe the dispute. The demand may include nomination of persons to serve as neutral arbitrator, may name a party arbitrator, or if the contract is silent on the procedure for selecting the arbitrator(s), may suggest a procedure for selecting the arbitrator(s) [see CCP § 1281.6].

If the arbitration agreement calls for arbitration by a specific arbitration service provider, such as the American Arbitration Association, the demand for arbitration should comply with that service provider's form and requirements and any arbitration rules that may have been adopted by the parties.

Example:

The American Arbitration Association's (AAA) demand forms require the demand to contain a statement of the matter in dispute, the names and addresses of all parties, the amount of money involved, if any, the remedy sought, and the hearing locale requested. AAA has a variety of submission agreements to choose from, depending on subject matter and size of case, and desired tribunal, among other factors. In addition, the form agreement can be varied by the parties if mutually desired. Two copies of the demand must be submitted to the regional office.

Warning:

If the procedure identified in the contract has failed and the other party does not consent to the proposed method, arbitration cannot be ordered. For example, if a party is no longer a member of the organization that was to conduct the arbitration and therefore is not entitled to use that organization's arbitration services absent consent, and consent is not forthcoming, a court will not order arbitration [Provencio v.

WMA Sec., Inc. (2005) 125 CA4th 1028, 1032-1033 (defendant no longer member of NASD; plaintiff would not consent to arbitration before NASD)].

The demand should be sent by certified mail to provide a record of signature and delivery. Copies of the demand should be mailed to any arbitration association or arbitrators selected under the contract.

5.17[3] Underlying Contract Determines Timing of Demand. A contract may require a party to demand arbitration within a certain time. Failure to make a demand for arbitration within the time required by the contract may constitute a waiver of the right to arbitrate [see Spear v. California State Automobile Ass'n (1992) 2 C4th 1035, 1043, 9 CR2d 381, 831 P2d 821]. If the arbitration agreement does not specify a time within which arbitration must be demanded, a reasonable time is allowed [Sawday v. Vista Irrigation Dist. (1966) 64 C2d 833, 836, 52 CR 1, 415 P2d 816]. What constitutes a reasonable time is a question of fact depending on the situation of the parties, the nature of the transaction, and the facts of the particular case [see, e.g., Spear v. California State Automobile Ass'n (1992) 2 C4th 1035, 1043-1044, 9 CR2d 381, 831 P2d 821].

Strategic Point--Commencing Civil Action Tolls Time for Making Arbitration Demand.

Commencing a civil action within the time required to demand arbitration tolls that deadline from the date the civil action is commenced until 30 days after a final determination by the court that the controversy must be arbitrated, or 30 days after the final termination of the civil action, whichever occurs first [CCP § 1281.12].

5.17[4] Arbitration Agreements Generally Are Not Self-Executing. Agreements to arbitrate are not usually self-executing. An agreement is self-executing if it specifically provides that in the event there is a dispute and either party refuses to arbitrate, after demand, the other party may unilaterally select an arbitrator and proceed with the arbitration. It is not necessary for the party seeking arbitration to obtain a court order to arbitrate [Brink v. Allegro Builders, Inc. (1962) 58 C2d 577, 579-580, 25 CR 556, 375 P2d 436]. A party to a self-executing agreement who fails to select an arbitrator is still entitled to notice of the arbitration hearing and an opportunity to be heard [see CCP § 1282.2(a), (d), (e); Smith v. Campbell & Facciolla, Inc. (1962) 202 CA2d 134, 135-136, 20 CR 606 (notice of arbitration is required by the due process clause of the US Const, art XIV)].

If arbitration proceeds under a self-executing agreement without a court order to arbitrate, the party who did not make the demand is required to participate in the arbitration and raise its objections in a petition to vacate the award under CCP § 1286.2 or to oppose the petition to confirm the award [National Marble Co. of Cal., Inc. v. Bricklayers & Allied Craftsmen (1986) 184 CA3d 1057, 1064].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsFederal Arbitration ActOrders to Compel ArbitrationCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionValidity of ADR Methods

150 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate
IV. SUBMITTING TO OR COMPELLING ARBITRATION

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.18

5.18 Agreeing to Arbitrate.

5.18[1] Parties May Enter Into Pre- or Post-Dispute Arbitration Agreement. Parties may agree to submit an existing or future controversy to arbitration [CCP § 1281; Platt Pac., Inc. v. Andelson (1993) 6 C4th 307, 313-314, 24 CR2d 597, 862 P2d 158]. A pre-dispute arbitration agreement usually is contained in the underlying or "primary" contract between the parties. It may or may not be extremely detailed with respect to procedures and rules governing the arbitration. A post-dispute arbitration agreement may be the only agreement addressing the procedures for arbitration of the dispute, or it may add specificity to a pre-dispute agreement.

Distinguish--Contractual Waiver of Right to Jury Trial Is Invalid:

A pre-dispute agreement to adjudicate disputes in a court trial and not by jury trial is unenforceable because it violates CC § 631, which specifies the six means by which parties to a civil lawsuit may waive their right to have their disputes adjudicated in a jury trial rather than in a court trial [Grafton Partners L.P. v. Superior Court (2005) 36 C4th 944].

5.18[2] Post-Dispute Arbitration Agreement.

5.18[2][a] Post-Dispute Arbitration Agreements Must Be in Writing. An agreement to arbitrate must be in writing [CCP § 1281]. A written agreement includes a written agreement that has been extended or renewed by an oral or implied agreement [CCP § 1280(f)].

5.18[2][b] If Parties Are in Litigation, Post-Dispute Arbitration Agreement Must Be by Stipulation. If a matter is in litigation when the parties decide to submit it to arbitration, their agreement must be in the form of a stipulation [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.726]. The clerk provides the plaintiff with a form stipulation to ADR process as part of an ADR information package when the complaint is filed, which the plaintiff must serve with the complaint [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.221(a)].

Cross-complainants also must serve copies of the ADR information package on any new parties to the action along with the cross-complaint [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.221(c)]. If the parties agree to use an ADR process, they must complete the form stipulation jointly and file it with the court [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.726].

Strategic Point--Both Parties:

If the parties agree to use a specific arbitration service provider, such as the American Arbitration Association, that organization will likely have its own form of submission agreement.

5.18[2][c] Post-Dispute Arbitration Agreement May Include Detailed Provisions Governing Arbitration.

Among the matter the parties may wish their arbitration agreement to include are:

- The existence and particulars of the dispute.
- Identification of issues that are and are not to be arbitrated, as well as list of any facts on which the parties agree.
- Waiver of the right to a jury trial.
- Agreement on specific terms and conditions of the arbitration, such as discovery, and dates by which discovery must be compelled.
- Specification of whether the Evidence Code will apply.
- Specification of whether arbitration rules and procedures of a specific organization or arbitration service will control.
- Identification of the single neutral arbitrator, and the method by which arbitrator(s) will be selected.
- Provision of a time within which the arbitration must commence and terminate.
- Time(s) and place(s) for the hearings, or location(s), or authority for the arbitrator(s) to set the times and places for all hearings, and specification of any notice requirements desired.
- Any limitation on the amount of time (measured from close of hearing or post-hearing briefing) the panel has to render its decision.
- The form of decision.
- Addresses for notices to be given.
- Specification of any limit on the arbitrator's power.
- Requirement that the award to be made by a certain date.
- Provision of a minimum and maximum amount of the award, and state whether those are to be disclosed to the arbitrator.
- If the parties have an ongoing contractual relationship, provision that the parties' further dealings under the contract will be conducted in accordance with the interpretation of the agreement made by the arbitrator.
- Provision for the parties to bear the arbitrator's compensation and expenses of arbitration equally.

- Provision for the prevailing party to recover costs or attorney's fees.
- Provision for joinder of necessary parties.

Warning--Be Specific in Allocating Costs and Expenses:

The agreement should be explicit as to what arbitration expenses are to be borne equally by the parties and which must be borne by the party incurring them. Unless the agreement expressly provides, each party pays its pro rata share of the expenses and fees of the neutral arbitrator together with the expenses of the arbitration incurred or approved by the arbitrator. Examples of common expenses are subpoenas, witness fees, transcripts and cost of a hearing room. Costs are not recoverable in contractual arbitrations unless the parties so agree [CCP § 1284.2].

Strategic Points--All Parties:

- Remember that the arbitration agreement is a negotiation. Plan ahead for the provisions you feel are most important and fight for those, leaving room to "give" on those provisions which are less important to your client.
- Arbitrators are costly. It is more economical for the parties to dispose of by agreement as many of the administrative details as possible. Consider also the expenses of the hearing room.
- Consider having the arbitration agreement signed by the parties rather than, or as well as, by their attorneys, to avoid the argument that a party did not consent to arbitration [see, e.g., Toal v. Tardif (2009) 178 CA4th 1208, 1221, 101 CR3d 97 (a client is bound by an arbitration agreement signed by his or her counsel only if the client consented to or ratified the agreement); CPI Builders, Inc. v. Impco Techs., Inc. (2001) 94 CA4th 1167, 1172-1174, 114 CR2d 851 (party claimed that it withdrew its consent to its attorney to enter into binding arbitration)].

Cross References:

Discussion of joinder of necessary parties, see 5.27.

Form for arbitration agreement, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Alternative Dispute Resolution General Overview Contracts Law Contract Conditions & Provisions Arbitration Clauses

151 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate
IV. SUBMITTING TO OR COMPELLING ARBITRATION

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.19

5.19 Arbitration Agreement May Be Enforced by a Nonsignatory.

5.19[1] Arbitration Agreement May Be Enforced by an Intended Third-Party Beneficiary. An arbitration agreement may be enforced by an intended non-party beneficiary. The third party has the burden of proving that the contracting parties intended to benefit that third party. It is not enough that a literal interpretation of the contract would result in a benefit to the third party [City of Hope v. Bryan Cave, L.L.P. (2002) 102 CA4th 1356, 1369-1370, 126 CR2d 283 (general release held insufficient to allow third party to demand arbitration)]. The determination of the third party's status usually is made by the court, not the arbitrator [Smith v. Microskills San Diego L.P. (2007) 153 CA4th 892, 900, 63 CR3d 608 ; Valley Casework, Inc. v. Comfort Constr., Inc. (1999) 76 CA4th 1013, 1023-1024, 90 CR2d 779].

5.19[2] Arbitration Agreement May Be Enforced by a Nonsignatory Based on Equitable Estoppel. Principles of equitable estoppel may permit a nonsignatory defendant to compel a signatory plaintiff to arbitrate its claims when the plaintiff's claims against the nonsignatory are intimately founded in and intertwined with the obligations of the contract containing the arbitration clause [Nguyen v. Tran (2007) 157 CA4th 1032, 1034, 68 CR3d 906 (nonsignatory buyers' agents could compel signatory buyers to arbitrate, but could not compel arbitration against listing brokers, who did not sign arbitration agreement and had no preexisting confidential or contractual relationship with buyers' agents)].

Examples--Arbitration Agreement Enforced:

- Plaintiff employee was equitably required to arbitrate his causes of action against a nonsignatory to his employment agreement, which contained an arbitration clause, because plaintiff's claims relied on the employment agreement between plaintiff and a codefendant [Boucher v. Alliance Title Co., Inc. (2005) 127 CA4th 262, 272, 25 CR3d 440] .
- Claims against nonsignatory defendant, who agreed to submit to arbitration, arose out of the settlement agreement and were essentially the same as those against signatory defendants [Evans v. Centerstone Dev. Co. (2005) 134 CA4th 151, 165, 35 CR3d 745] .
- A nonsignatory who is sued as a corporate signatory's alter ego may compel arbitration [Rowe v. Exline (2007) 153 CA4th 1276, 1285, 63 CR3d 787] .

Examples--Arbitration Agreement Not Enforced:

■ A vocational school had no right to compel a student to arbitrate claims against the school based on an arbitration agreement in a student loan agreement, to which the school was a nonsignatory [Smith v. Microskills San Diego L.P. (2007) 153 CA4th 892, 899-900, 63 CR3d 608] .

■ A talent agency could not bind a deceased actor's heir to the actor's agreement to arbitrate disputes with the agency [Matthau v. Superior Court (2007) 151 CA4th 593, 598-600, 60 CR3d 93] .

■ First group of insurers could not compel arbitration against a second group of insurers based on an arbitration agreement between the insured and the first group of insurers, to which the insurers in the second group were nonsignatories [Crowley Maritime Corp. v. Boston Old Colony Ins. Co. (2008) 158 CA4th 1061, 1072, 70 CR3d 605] .

■ Nonsignatory accountants and lawyers could not compel plaintiff investors to arbitrate their claims against them because the contractual obligations in the operating agreements containing an arbitration clause were unrelated to plaintiffs' claims against the accountants and lawyers [Goldman v. KPMG, LLP (2009) 173 CA4th 209, 213-214, 92 CR3d 534] .

■ An insurance company that issued credit insurance to cover the amount of a loan taken out by its policyholder could not compel the policyholder's widow to arbitrate her claims against it, because her claim that the insurance company breached the insurance policy was not intertwined with the loan agreement containing the arbitration provision [Mundi v. Union Sec. Life Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2009) 555 F3d 1042, 1047] .

The same rules of equitable estoppel apply to arbitration agreements governed by the Federal Arbitration Act [see Turtle Ridge Media Group, Inc. v. Pacific Bell Directory (2006) 140 CA4th 828, 835, 44 CR3d 817 (defendant, whose contract with a third party was incorporated into the third party's contract with the plaintiff, could enforce the arbitration provision with the third party against the plaintiff, even though the plaintiff had no direct contractual relationship with the defendant)].

In addition, equity may require joinder of nonsignatories to the arbitration agreement [see Metalclad Corp. v. Ventana Envtl. Organizational P'ship (2003) 109 CA4th 1705, 1713-1719, 1 CR3d 328 (parent corporation that was to fund acquisition); Norcal Mut. Ins. Co. v. Newton (2000) 84 CA4th 64, 73-78, 100 CR2d 683 (based on acceptance of defense under malpractice policy); see also RN Solution, Inc. v. Catholic Healthcare West (2008) 165 CA4th 1511, 1521, 81 CR3d 892 (plaintiff signed arbitration agreement only in her capacity as defendant's president and CEO); but see Suh v. Superior Court (2010) 181 CA4th 1504, 1514, 105 CR3d 585 (shareholders of a corporation could not be compelled to arbitrate based on arbitration agreement entered into by corporation)].

Cross References:

Detailed discussion of enforcement of arbitration clause by and against nonsignatories, see Ch. 19, Seeking or Opposing Recovery As Third Party Beneficiary of Contract.

Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 6, Determining Forum.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsFederal Arbitration ActOrders to Compel ArbitrationCivil
ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionValidity of ADR MethodsContracts LawContract Conditions &
ProvisionsArbitration Clauses

152 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate
IV. SUBMITTING TO OR COMPELLING ARBITRATION

*1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.205.20 Petitioning to Compel Arbitration.*5.20[1] Contents and Allegations of Petition.

5.20[1][a] Plaintiff or Defendant May Petition to Compel Arbitration. The claimant or plaintiff may use a petition to obtain a court order compelling arbitration [see CCP §§ 1281.2, 1290].

A defendant served with a complaint involving matters required to be arbitrated in accordance with an arbitration agreement may file a petition to compel arbitration in lieu of an answer to the complaint [see CCP § 1281.1, 1281.2].

Timing:

If the petition is denied, the defendant has 15 days from denial to plead to the complaint [CCP § 1281.7].

Consider:

Proceedings to compel arbitration are given preference over all other civil actions or proceedings, except older matters of the same character and matters to which special precedence may be given by law [CCP § 1291.2]. Because a petition to compel arbitration is heard as a motion, the facts ordinarily are proven by affidavit or declaration and documentary evidence, with oral testimony taken only in the court's discretion [Rosenthal v. Great W. Fin. Sec. Corp. (1996) 14 C4th 394, 413-414, 58 CR2d 875, 926 P2d 1061].

Strategic Point--Defendant:

When the petition to compel arbitration is used by a defendant in lieu of an answer, the prayer of the petition should include a request that the action or proceeding be stayed during the pendency of the arbitration in accordance with CCP § 1281.4, and the caption should show the status of the parties in both roles, for example, "Defendant and Petitioner."

Cross Reference:

Form for petition to compel arbitration, see 5.33.

5.20[1][b] Specific Allegations Are Required to Obtain Order Compelling Arbitration. A petition to compel arbitration must allege the following [CCP § 1281.2]:

- An agreement to arbitrate;
- A controversy within the scope of that agreement; and
- Respondent's refusal to arbitrate after demand.

The petition can allege the provisions of the written agreement and the paragraph that provides for arbitration verbatim or attach a copy of the agreement to the petition and incorporate it by reference [see Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1330]. The burden then shifts to the party resisting arbitration to prove the invalidity of the alleged agreement [Condee v. Longwood Mgmt. Corp. (2001) 88 CA4th 215, 219, 105 CR2d 597].

A trial court must deny a petition to compel arbitration if the moving party fails to allege the existence of a written agreement containing an arbitration clause [Brodke v. Alphatec Spine Inc. (2008) 160 CA4th 1569, 1571, 73 CR3d 554 ; see also Adajar v. RWR Homes, Inc. (2008) 160 CA4th 563, 566, 73 CR3d 17 (motion to compel arbitration denied because moving party failed to submit the arbitration agreement that was allegedly incorporated by reference in home buyers' applications for warranty protection); Mitri v. Arnel Management Co. (2007) 157 CA4th 1164, 1171, 69 CR3d 223 (motion to compel arbitration denied when defendant employer submitted employee handbook stating a policy in favor of arbitration, but failed to produce evidence of an arbitration agreement signed by plaintiffs)].

If the petition to compel arbitration is used to commence a proceeding, it also must contain an allegation regarding venue [see CCP § 1292; see also 5.20[2]].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

If the agreement or the incorporated arbitration rules provide for joinder of necessary third parties, that fact should also be alleged in order to anticipate opposition on the ground that a third party who is not a party to the arbitration agreement is necessary to the resolution of the matter [Zakarian v. Bekov (2002) 98 CA4th 316, 325-327, 119 CR2d 623].

Strategic Point--All Parties:

Review the arbitration agreement to determine whether it includes the signatories' consent to joinder of any necessary third parties in the arbitration.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of jurisdiction and venue, see 5.20[2].

5.20[2] Superior Court Has Jurisdiction; Venue Is Determined by Statute. Superior courts have jurisdiction over petitions to compel arbitration, whether the matter is a limited or unlimited civil case [see Cal Const, art VI, § 10].

Venue for filing a petition to compel arbitration, other than in a pending action, is the court having jurisdiction in any of the following [CCP § 1292]:

- The county where the agreement is to be performed or was made.

- If the agreement does not specify the county where it is to be performed and was not made in any county in California, the county where any party resides or has a place of business.
- In cases not covered by the two previous options, any county in California.

If an action or proceeding is already pending regarding the controversy to be arbitrated, a petition to compel arbitration must be filed in that action or proceeding [CCP § 1292.4].

Judge's Perspective:

The arbitrator, and not the court, will decide whether a particular dispute is arbitrable if the parties have "clearly and unmistakably" so provided in their contract [see Dream Theater, Inc. v. Dream Theater (2004) 124 CA4th 547, 552, 21 CR3d 322]. In case of any ambiguity, the matter of arbitrability will be decided by the court [Dream Theater, Inc. v. Dream Theater (2004) 124 CA4th 547, 552-553, 21 CR3d 322].

Exception:

Even if the contract clearly and unmistakably provides that the arbitrator should determine arbitrability, if the court finds that provision to be itself unconscionable, then the court rather than the arbitrator will decide whether the arbitration agreement is unconscionable [Murphy v. Check ' N Go of California, Inc. (2007) 156 CA4th 138, 145, 67 CR3d 120 ; see Ontiveros v. DHL Express (USA), Inc. (2008) 164 CA4th 494, 505, 79 CR3d 471 (expressing concern about potential for inequitable use of such provisions in areas, such as employment, in which one party tends to be a "repeat player," thereby giving the arbitrator a self-interest in deciding that a dispute is arbitrable)].

Strategic Points--All Parties:

In case of ambiguity on the issue of arbitrability, extrinsic evidence is admissible to aid in interpreting the parties' intent [Hartnell Community College Dist. v. Superior Court (2005) 124 CA4th 1443, 1451, 22 CR3d 410].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of whether court or arbitrator determines arbitrability, see 5.26.

5.20[3] Petition to Compel Arbitration Must Be Filed Within Four Years After Refusal to Arbitrate. A petition to compel arbitration must be filed within four years after the respondent's refusal to arbitrate [Spear v. California State Automobile Ass'n (1992) 2 C4th 1035, 1040-1043, 9 CR2d 381, 831 P2d 821 ; see CCP § 337 (four-year limitation applicable to breach of written contract)].

Warning--Shortened Limitation Period:

The arbitration agreement or the rules of arbitration specified in the arbitration agreement may provide for a modified limitation period, which will govern in place of four-year limitation of CCP § 337 [see Boys Club of San Fernando Valley, Inc. v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1992) 6 CA4th 1266, 1276 n4, 8 CR2d 587 ; Hamaker v. Williams (1937) 22 CA2d 256, 259, 70 P2d 973]. If the agreement does not provide a time for the parties to seek arbitration, a court may consider whether the petitioning party has sought arbitration within a reasonable time under the circumstances, which may or may not be as long as the four-year limitation period [see Meyer v. Carnow (1986) 185 CA3d 169, 175, 229 CR 617]. A shortened limitation period may be so short that it would be unconscionable to enforce it [see Circuit City Stores, Inc. v. Mantor (9th Cir 2003) 335 F3d 1101, 1107 ; Ingle v. Circuit City Stores, Inc. (9th Cir 2003) 328 F3d 1165, 1175 (one-year limitation period); Davis v. O'Melveny & Myers (9th Cir 2007)

485 F3d 1066, 1076-1078 (one year); Martinez v. Master Prot. Corp. (2004) 118 CA4th 107, 117, 12 CR3d 663 (6 months)].

Distinguish:

A court may not deny a petition to compel arbitration on the ground the statute of limitations has run on the claims the parties agreed to arbitrate. That is an affirmative defense to be decided by the arbitrator [Wagner Construction Co. v. Pacific Mechanical Corp. (2007) 41 C4th 19, 25-26, 58 CR3d 434, 157 P3d 1029] .

5.20[4] Notice of Hearing Must Be Served Not Less Than 10 Days Prior to Hearing. Written notice of the time and place of the hearing on a petition to compel arbitration must be served along with a copy of the petition and any other papers on which the petition is based [see CCP § 1290.4(a)]. Not less than 10 days notice of the date set for the hearing on the petition must be given [CCP § 1290.2; see CCP §§ 1003-1020 (motions and notices)], unless the petition is served outside California, in which case the petition may not be heard until at least 30 days after the date of service [CCP § 1290.4(b)(2)].

Cross References:

Form for notice of hearing on petition to compel arbitration, see 5.34.

Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 26, Law and Motion Procedure.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 372, Motions and Orders (Matthew Bender).

5.20[5] Service of Petition to Enforce Arbitration Agreement.

5.20[5][a] Parties Must Be Served More Than 10 Days Prior to Hearing. The petitioner must serve all other parties with sufficient time to give the other parties not less than 10 days notice of the date set for the hearing on the petition [CCP §§ 1290.2, 1209.4]. If the arbitration agreement specifies the manner of service, use that method [CCP § 1290.4(a)].

5.20[5][b] Persons Who Have Not Previously Appeared Must Be Served Pursuant to Statute. Service on persons who have not previously appeared in the proceeding, or who have not previously been served in accordance with CCP § 1290.4(b), must be made in the manner provided by law for the service of summons in an action [CCP § 1290.4(b)(1); see CCP §§ 413.10-417.40].

Cross Reference:

Rules governing service of summons, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 8, Service of Summons.

5.20[5][c] Service on Persons Outside of California Must Meet Statutory Requirements. Service outside California must be made by mailing a copy of the petition, notice, and other papers on which the petition is based by registered or certified mail, although personal service is the equivalent of this service by mail. An affidavit of proof of service by mail must show the mailing together with the return receipt of the United States Post Office bearing the signature of the person on whom service was made [CCP § 1290.4(b)(2)].

Timing:

When service is made, the petition may not be heard until at least 30 days after the date of service [CCP § 1290.4(b)(2)].

5.20[5][d] Service to Others Is Governed by Statute. If the arbitration agreement does not provide the manner in which service is to be made and the person to be served has previously appeared in the proceeding or has previously been served in accordance with CCP § 1290.4(b), service must be made in the manner provided by CCP §§ 1010-1020 governing service of papers other than summons [CCP § 1290.4(c)].

Cross Reference:

Rules governing service of papers, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 27, Service of Papers.

5.20[6] Court's Options After Hearing of Petition to Compel Arbitration.

5.20[6][a] Court May Order Parties to Arbitrate Entire Controversy. If the court determines that an agreement to arbitrate the controversy exists and that the dispute falls within the scope of that agreement, the court must order the parties to arbitrate the controversy, unless it determines that one of the following is the case:

- The petitioner waived the right [CCP § 1281.2(a)];
- Grounds exist for revocation of the agreement [CCP § 1281.2(b)]; or
- A party to the arbitration agreement is also a party to a pending court action or special proceeding with a third party, arising out of the same transaction or series of related transactions, and there is a possibility of conflicting rulings on a common issue of law or fact [CCP § 1281.2(c)].

If the court determines that a written agreement to arbitrate a controversy exists, it may not deny a petition to compel arbitration on the ground that the petitioner's contentions lack substantive merit [CCP § 1281.2(c); Wagner Construction Co. v. Pacific Mechanical Corp. (2007) 41 C4th 19, 26, 58 CR3d 434, 157 P3d 1029 (court erred when it denied petition to compel arbitration on ground that statute of limitations had run on claims that parties agreed to arbitrate)].

In a matter governed by the Federal Arbitration Act, it is error for the court to deny arbitration without first determining two "gateway" issues [Howsam v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. (2002) 537 US 79, 83-85, 123 S Ct 588, 154 L Ed2d 491]:

- Whether the parties are bound by a valid and enforceable arbitration agreement; and
- Whether that binding agreement applies to the particular controversy.

Distinguish:

Under the Federal Arbitration Act, a challenge to the arbitration clause itself must be decided by the court [Winter v. Window Fashions Professionals, Inc. (2008) 166 CA4th 943, 948, 83 CR3d 89] . However, a challenge to the validity of the contract as a whole, and not specifically to the arbitration clause, must be decided by the arbitrator rather than the court [Buckeye Check Cashing, Inc. v. Cardegna (2006) 546 US 440, 449, 126 S Ct 1204, 163 L Ed2d 1038 ; Higgins v. Superior Court (2006) 140 CA4th 1238, 1249, 45 CR3d 293 ; but compare Hotels Nevada LLC v. Bridge Banc, LLC (2005) 130 CA4th 1431, 1437, 30 CR3d 903 (under contract governed by FAA and California law, it was proper for court to decide illegality of the contract after the issue had first been presented to arbitrator, who acknowledged his authority to determine that issue, but ceded it to court)].

Exception:

CCP § 1281.2(c) expressly exempts agreements to arbitrate disputes regarding a health care provider's professional negligence in accordance with CCP § 1295.

Cross References:

Discussion of waiver of right to arbitration, see 5.30.

Discussion of revocation of arbitration agreement, see 5.25.

Discussion of court's options with possible conflicting rulings, see 5.20[6][c].

5.20[6][b] Court May Sever Issue or Stay Action or Arbitration on Severed Issue. If the court determines that there are other issues between the petitioner and respondent, not subject to arbitration, which are being litigated in another pending action or special proceeding between those parties, and the resolution in that action or proceeding may make the arbitration unnecessary, the court may delay its order to arbitrate until a determination of those other issues or until any earlier time the court specifies [CCP § 1281.2]. If arbitration could make trial of the severable issues unnecessary, the court may order arbitration and stay action on the severable issues or remedies pending the completion of the arbitration [see Coast Plaza Doctors Hosp. v. Blue Cross of Cal. (2000) 83 CA4th 677, 691-693, 99 CR2d 809].

Cross References:

Discussion of staying case pending arbitration results, see 5.21.

Form for notice of motion to stay pending action until arbitration completed, see 5.37.

Form for order staying proceeding pending action, see 5.38.

5.20[6][c] Court May Act to Avoid Inconsistent Rulings in Different Forums. If a party to an arbitration agreement is also a party to a pending court action or special proceeding with a third party, arising out of the same transaction or series of related transactions, and there is a possibility of conflicting rulings on a common issue of law or fact, the court may do any of the following [CCP § 1281.2(c)]:

- Refuse to enforce the arbitration agreement and order intervention or joinder of all parties in a single action or special proceeding.
- Order intervention or joinder as to all or only certain issues.
- Order arbitration among the parties who have agreed to arbitration and stay the court action or special proceeding pending the outcome of the arbitration proceeding.
- Stay arbitration pending the outcome of the court action or special proceeding.

Example--Arbitration Stayed:

A homeowner sued home improvement contractors and the lender that financed the improvements. The only arbitration clause was in the loan application, to which the contractors and their agents were not parties. The trial court stayed arbitration under CCP § 1281.2(c) [Henry v. Alcove Inv., Inc. (1991) 233 CA3d 94, 101-102, 284 CR 255].

Examples--Arbitration Denied:

- In an action brought by a subcontractor against a general contractor, property owner, and building inspectors, the trial court properly exercised its discretion in refusing to enforce an arbitration agreement in the construction contract to which the inspectors were not parties [Best Interiors, Inc. v. Millie & Severson, Inc. (2008) 161 CA4th 1320, 1330, 75 CR3d 1] .

■ In a case brought by the wife and adult daughters of a deceased nursing home patient alleging wrongful death, elder abuse, and related causes of action against a nursing home, a hospital, and several doctors, the trial court properly exercised its discretion in refusing to enforce the patient's arbitration agreement with the nursing home, because the hospital and the doctors were not parties to the arbitration agreement, and because plaintiffs alleged several causes of action in their individual capacities as third parties not bound by the arbitration agreement [Birl v. Heritage Care, LLC (2009) 172 CA4th 1313, 1318-1321, 91 CR3d 777] .

Distinguish:

If the defendants who are not signatories to the arbitration agreement have an equitable right to compel a signatory plaintiff to arbitrate its claims, then the defendants are not "third parties" and CCP § 1281.2(c) does not apply [see Rowe v. Exline (2007) 153 CA4th 1276, 1290, 63 CR3d 787 ; see also RN Solution, Inc. v. Catholic Healthcare West (2008) 165 CA4th 1511, 1521, 81 CR3d 892 (although plaintiff signed arbitration agreement only in her capacity as defendant's president and CEO, she benefited financially and professionally from the contract and was bound by the arbitration agreement both as an agent-employee of defendant and as a third party beneficiary of the contract; therefore, she was not a third party to arbitration agreement); Segal v. Silberstein (2007) 156 CA4th 627, 636, 67 CR3d 426 (trial court erred in denying petition to compel arbitration on grounds that parties were involved in pending court action, because court action involved separate issues beyond terms of arbitration provision)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of staying case pending arbitration results, see 5.21.

5.20[6][d] Court May Consolidate Separate Arbitration Proceedings. A party to an arbitration agreement may petition the court to consolidate separate arbitration proceedings under the following circumstances [CCP § 1281.3]:

- Separate arbitration agreements or proceedings exist between the same parties, or one party is a party to a separate arbitration agreement or proceeding with a third party.
- The disputes arise from the same transactions or series of related transactions.
- There is a common issue or issues of law or fact creating the possibility of conflicting rulings by more than one arbitrator or panel of arbitrators.

If the arbitration agreements name separate arbitrators, panels, or tribunals, in the absence of an agreed method of selection by all parties to the consolidated arbitration, the court must appoint an arbitrator according to the procedures set forth in CCP § 1281.6 [CCP § 1281.3]. If the arbitration agreements contain inconsistent provisions, the court must resolve all conflicts and determine the rights and duties of the various parties to achieve substantial justice under all the circumstances [CCP § 1281.3].

Examples:

- The trial court acted within its discretion under CCP § 1281.3 when it ordered combined arbitration of uninsured motorist claims under Ins Code § 11580.2(f) and third-party claims arising from the same incident subject to judicial arbitration under CCP § 1141.10 et seq. [Gordon v. G.R.O.U.P., Inc. (1996) 49 CA4th 998, 1001, 56 CR2d 914].

- When one agreement provided for arbitration before a single arbitrator and another provided for arbitration before a three-arbitrator panel, the trial court erred by resolving the conflicting arbitration provisions in favor of a single arbitrator; the right to a three-arbitrator panel was a substantial contractual right [Parker v. McCaw (2005) 125 CA4th 1494, 1506].

- When one arbitration agreement permitted group arbitration proceedings and another arbitration agreement did not, and the petitioner made an adequate showing under CCP § 1281.3 that there were common issues of law and fact, the trial court erred by refusing to strike the ban on group arbitration [Independent Ass'n of Mailbox Ctr. Owners, Inc. v. Superior Court (2005) 133 CA4th 396, 410-411].

Exception:

CCP § 1281.3 expressly exempts agreements to arbitrate disputes regarding a health care provider's professional negligence in accordance with CCP § 1295.

5.20[7] Order Compelling Arbitration.

5.20[7][a] Order Compelling Arbitration Must Be in Writing. An order compelling arbitration must specify the act directed by the court and be made or entered in writing [CCP §§ 1003, 1064]. Because an order compelling arbitration is not appealable, no statement of decision is required [CCP §§ 1291, 1294].

The order compelling arbitration generally is prepared by the attorney for the petitioner and presented to the court for signature. Once signed, it is filed and served on the same persons on whom the petition was served unless notice is waived by all parties in open court and entered into the minutes [CCP § 1019.5].

5.20[7][b] Order Compelling Arbitration Is Not Immediately Appealable. An order compelling arbitration is not immediately reviewable. Usually one must arbitrate and raise the matter as part of an appeal from a judgment confirming the arbitration award [CCP §§ 1294, 1294.2; Graham v. Scissor-Tail, Inc. (1981) 28 C3d 807, 811 n1, 171 CR 604, 623 P2d 165 ; Muao v. Grosvenor Props., Ltd. (2002) 99 CA4th 1085, 1090-1092, 122 CR2d 131]. On appeal of the judgment confirming an arbitration award, the order compelling arbitration may be reviewed as an order that involves the merits or necessarily affects that judgment [CCP § 1294.2]. If the order compelling arbitration dismisses rather than stays any underlying action, that order of dismissal may be appealed and the order compelling arbitration reviewed as part of that appeal [Muao v. Grosvenor Props., Ltd. (2002) 99 CA4th 1085, 1093, 122 CR2d 131].

Exception--Immediate Writ:

In rare instances, an order compelling arbitration may be reviewed by writ of mandate or prohibition when the matters ordered arbitrated are clearly beyond the scope of the arbitration agreement and the arbitration process would appear to be unduly time-consuming or expensive [International Film Investors v. Arbitration Tribunal of Dirs. Guild of Am., Inc. (1984) 152 CA3d 699, 704, 199 CR 690 (dicta; prohibition found not proper); Dinong v. Superior Court (1980) 102 CA3d 845, 848, 162 CR 606 (mandate)].

Cross Reference:

Form for order compelling arbitration, see 5.35.

5.20[8] Order Denying Arbitration Is Appealable and Statement of Decision Is Required. Because an order denying arbitration is appealable, the court must issue a statement of decision pursuant to CCP § 632 if requested by a party [CCP § 1291].

 Cross Reference:

Form for order denying arbitration and dismissing proceeding, see 5.36.

5.20[9] Order Determining Who Decides Arbitrability Is Not Appealable. A ruling on who decides a matter's arbitrability--the arbitrator or the court--is not an appealable final order [Vivid Video, Inc. v. Playboy Entertainment Group, Inc. (2007) 147 CA4th 434, 436-437, 54 CR3d 232] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsFederal Arbitration ActOrders to Compel ArbitrationCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionValidity of ADR Methods

153 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate
IV. SUBMITTING TO OR COMPELLING ARBITRATION

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.21

5.21 Court May Stay Action or Proceeding Pending Arbitration.

On a party's motion, a California court must stay an action or proceeding pending before it if a court of competent jurisdiction has ordered arbitration of a controversy that is an issue involved in the case or an application has been made to a court of competent jurisdiction for an order to arbitrate a controversy that is an issue in the case, and the application is undetermined [CCP § 1281.4]. When arbitration has been ordered or an application has been made, the court must stay the action or proceeding until there is arbitration, or until such earlier time as the court specifies. If the issue subject to arbitration is severable, the stay may be with respect to that issue only [CCP § 1281.4]. The party moving to stay an action under CCP § 1281.4 need not be a party to the arbitration agreement [Rodriguez v. American Techs., Inc. (2006) 136 CA4th 1110, 1123, 39 CR3d 437] .

Strategic Point:

If an action has been filed on the arbitrable issue, it is good practice to apply for a stay of the action at the same time the petition to compel arbitration is filed.

The motion for stay must be made in the court where the action is pending [CCP §§ 1281.4, 1292.8].

Once the stay is granted, the party requesting the stay must immediately serve and file a notice of the stay on Judicial Council Form CM-180 and attach a copy of the order or other document staying the proceedings [CCP § 1281.4; Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.650(a)]. The notice must state whether the stay applies to the entire action and to all parties or only to certain causes of action and parties. The notice must be served on all parties who have appeared in the case [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.650]. When the stay is vacated, is no longer in effect, or is modified, the party who filed the notice of the stay must immediately serve and file a notice of termination or modification of stay. If that party fails to do so, any other party in the action who has knowledge of the termination or modification of the stay must serve and file a notice of termination or modification of stay [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.650(d)].

Warning--Sanctions for Failure to File Notice of Stay:

Sanctions may be imposed for failure to file and serve the notice of stay [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.30].

Cross References:

Form for notice of motion to stay pending action until arbitration completed, see 5.37.

Form for order staying proceeding pending action, see 5.38.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute
ResolutionArbitrationsFederal Arbitration ActStays Pending Arbitration

154 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate
IV. SUBMITTING TO OR COMPELLING ARBITRATION

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.22

5.22 Appeals of Denials to Compel Arbitration and Stays of Arbitration.

5.22[1] Denial of Petition to Compel Arbitration Requires Immediate Appeal. An order denying a petition to compel arbitration is immediately appealable [CCP § 1294(a); Mayhew v. Benninghoff (1997) 53 CA4th 1365, 1369, 62 CR2d 27]. An immediate appeal must be taken, because subsequent review of an order denying a petition to compel arbitration, on appeal from the final judgment, is precluded by CCP § 906 [see Hobbs v. Bateman Eichler (1985) 164 CA3d 174, 190-191, 210 CR 387].

On appeal from an order denying a petition to compel arbitration, the court may review the decision on the petition and any intermediate ruling, proceeding, order, or decision that involves the merits or necessarily affects the order or judgment [CCP § 1294.2].

When the language of an arbitration provision is not in dispute, the trial court's decision as to arbitrability is subject to de novo review [Gravillis v. Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage Co. (2006) 143 CA4th 761, 771, 49 CR3d 531] .

5.22[2] Order to Stay Arbitration Is Immediately Appealable. An order staying arbitration is immediately appealable [Sanders v. Kinko's, Inc. (2002) 99 CA4th 1106, 1109-1110, 121 CR2d 766 ; Henry v. Alcove Inv., Inc. (1991) 233 CA3d 94, 99-100, 284 CR 255].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsFederal Arbitration ActOrders to Compel ArbitrationCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsFederal Arbitration ActStays Pending ArbitrationCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsReviewabilityGeneral Overview

155 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate
V. OPPOSING ARBITRATION

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.23

5.23 CHECKLIST: Opposing Arbitration.

☐ Review arbitration agreement and facts surrounding its formation to determine if any potential defenses are applicable, including the following:

☐ Failure of mutual assent.

Authority:

*CC §§ 1550, 1565, 1567, 1580; CCP § 1281; Lopez v. Charles Schwab & Co. (2004)
118 CA4th 1224, 1230*

Discussion:

See 5.25[4]

☐ Lack of contractual capacity.

Authority:

CC § 1550

Discussion:

See 5.25[5]

☐ Invalid attempt to unilaterally add arbitration clause.

☐ Did agreement authorize unilateral modification?

☐ Was addition of arbitration clause within scope of unilateral modification allowed?

☐ Were all formalities for unilateral modification complied with?

Authority:

Perdue v. Crocker Nat'l Bank (1985) 38 C3d 913, 921-924, 216 CR 345, 702 P2d 503

Discussion:

See 5.25[6]

- ☐ Issue is beyond scope of arbitration agreement.

Authority:

CCP § 1281.2(c); Engineers & Architects Assn. v. Community Development Dept. (1994) 30 CA4th 644, 652, 35 CR2d 800

Discussion:

See 5.26

- ☐ Nonsignatory is indispensable party.

Authority:

CCP § 1281.2(c)

Discussion:

See 5.27

- ☐ Fraud.

☐ Determine whether any misrepresentations were made inducing client to enter into contract.

☐ Determine whether any misrepresentations were made as to existence or nature of arbitration provisions.

☐ Determine whether any misrepresentation caused client to execute contract.

☐ Determine whether client relied on misrepresentation and whether misrepresentation was material.

Authority:

Engalla v. Permanente Med. Group, Inc. (1997) 15 C4th 951, 973-975, 64 CR2d 843, 938 P2d 903 ; Rosenthal v. Great W. Fin. Sec. Corp. (1996) 14 C4th 394, 419, 58 CR2d 875, 926 P2d 1061 ; Ericksen, Arbuthnot, McCarthy, Kearney & Walsh, Inc. v. 100 Oak St. (1983) 35 C3d 312, 323, 197 CR 581, 673 P2d 251 ; Lynch v. Cruttenden & Co. (1993) 18 CA4th 802, 807-809, 22 CR2d 636

Discussion:

See 5.28

- ☐ Unconscionability.

- ☐ Determine whether contract was negotiated or offered on a take-it-or-leave-it basis by stronger/drafting party.
- ☐ Determine whether arbitration provision was reasonably to be expected.
- ☐ Determine whether arbitration provision is unduly oppressive to one party.
- ☐ Determine whether provisions for arbitration procedures lack minimum levels of integrity.
- ☐ Determine whether arbitration provisions result in surprise, oppression, or unreasonable allocation of risk to one party.
- ☐ If any of the above apply, determine whether offending term(s) are severable so that remainder of arbitration provision can be enforced.
- ☐ If unwaivable rights are at issue, determine whether arbitration costs are payable by party drafting agreement, or whether consumer may have to bear unaffordable costs.

Authority:

CC § 1670.5; CCP § 1281

Discussion:

See 5.29

☐ Waiver.

- ☐ Determine whether party seeking arbitration has prejudiced client's ability to derive benefits expected from arbitration.
- ☐ Determine whether party seeking arbitration has unreasonably delayed before demanding arbitration.

Authority:

Saint Agnes Med. Ctr. v. PacifiCare of Cal. (2003) 31 C4th 1187, 1200-1205 ; Engalla v. Permanente Med. Group, Inc. (1997) 15 C4th 951, 983-984, 64 CR2d 843, 938 P2d 903

Discussion:

See 5.30

☐ Failure of arbitration agreement in health care service plan to comply with statutory formalities.

Authority:

H&S Code § 1363.1; Robertson v. Health Net of Cal., Inc. (2005) 132 CA4th 1419, 1429 ; Pagarigan v. Superior Court (2002) 102 CA4th 1121, 1134

Discussion:

See 5.31

☐ Prepare response to petition to compel, asserting all contractual or other defenses of client.

☐ Prepare declarations or affidavits establishing defenses.

Authority:

CCP §§ 1281, 1290, 1290.6, 1290.8

Discussion:

See 5.25[1]

☐ Serve and file response on all parties.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsFederal Arbitration ActOrders to Compel ArbitrationCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionValidity of ADR MethodsContracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsArbitration Clauses

156 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate
V. OPPOSING ARBITRATION

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.24

5.24 Options and Strategy.

Whether counsel intends enforcing an existing arbitration agreement or resisting arbitration under an agreement, it is appropriate to investigate, consider, and evaluate the most common available defenses to enforcement of arbitration agreements. Counsel should bear in mind that public policy strongly favors enforcement of arbitration agreements [Eriksen, Arbuthnot, McCarthy, Kearney & Walsh, Inc. v. 100 Oak St. (1983) 35 C3d 312, 323, 197 CR 581, 673 P2d 251]. The burden is squarely on the shoulders of the party who is seeking to vacate the arbitration [Balandran v. Labor Ready Inc. (2004) 124 CA4th 1522, 1527].

Judge's Perspective:

A court can invalidate contractual arbitration provisions, just as it can any other provision of the contract, based on contract law [see CCP § 1281 ("a written agreement to submit to arbitration an existing controversy or a controversy thereafter arising is valid, enforceable and irrevocable, save upon such grounds as exist for the revocation of any contract"); see also 9 USC § 2 (Federal Arbitration Act provision holding that contractual arbitration provision is valid "save upon such grounds as exist at law or in equity for the revocation of any contract")]. This means that almost any defense to the validity of a contract generally can also be raised to the application of a contractual arbitration provision. Thus, these strategies are not exhaustive.

Search California Forms of Pleading and Practice:

Use lexis.com to find a form opposing arbitration:

■ Legal > States Legal--U.S. > California > Search Analysis & CLE Materials > CA Treatises & Analytical Materials > California Forms of Pleading and Practice

Sample Search: To find a complaint to opposing arbitration, try: heading (forms) AND section (restraining order OR preliminary injunction AND arbitration).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Alternative Dispute Resolution Arbitrations Federal Arbitration Act Orders to Compel Arbitration Civil

ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionValidity of ADR MethodsContracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsArbitration Clauses

157 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate
V. OPPOSING ARBITRATION

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.25

5.25 Disputing Existence of Arbitration Agreement.

5.25[1] Party Resisting Arbitration Must File Response. A respondent resists arbitration by filing a response. If the respondent fails to file a response, he or she will be deemed to have admitted the allegations of the petition [CCP § 1290]. A response must be served as provided in CCP §§ 1010-1020 [CCP § 1290.8].

Timing:

A response must be filed and served within 10 days after service of the petition, unless the petition is served out of state, in which case the response must be served and filed within 30 days after service of the petition. The parties may extend the time for response by a written agreement, or the court, for good cause, may order an extension [CCP §§ 1290.4(b), 1290.6].

Cross References:

Discussion and form for demanding or petitioning to compel arbitration, see 5.20[1], 5.32, 5.33.

Form for response to petition to compel arbitration, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 6, Determining Forum.

Service of Papers, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 27, Service of Papers.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration (Matthew Bender).

5.25[2] Burden of Proof Is on Party Resisting Arbitration. Once the existence of a written arbitration agreement is alleged [see CCP § 1281.2; Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1330], the burden shifts to the party resisting arbitration to prove the invalidity of the alleged agreement [Condee v. Longwood Mgmt. Corp. (2001) 88 CA4th 215, 219, 105 CR2d 597].

Strategic Point--Party Resisting Arbitration:

Note that California public policy strongly encourages enforcement of arbitration clauses [Ericksen, Arbuthnot, McCarthy, Kearney & Walsh, Inc. v. 100 Oak St. (1983) 35 C3d 312, 323, 197 CR 581, 673 P2d 251], so it may be difficult to strike an arbitration clause.

Consider:

An arbitration clause in a contract that has been terminated can still require arbitration of a dispute that arose under the contract while it was in force [see, e.g., Ajida Techs., Inc. v. Roos Instruments, Inc. (2001) 87 CA4th 534, 545, 104 CR2d 686].

5.25[3] Existence of Agreement to Arbitrate Is Question of Fact. Whether a contract to arbitrate exists is a question of fact [Cochran v. Rubens (1996) 42 CA4th 481, 485, 49 CR2d 672]. Facts relevant to enforcement of the arbitration agreement must be determined in the manner provided by law for the hearing of motions [Rosenthal v. Great W. Fin. Sec. Corp. (1996) 14 C4th 394, 413, 58 CR2d 875, 926 P2d 1061]. The court may examine affidavits or declarations, and even oral testimony at its discretion, to interpret the agreement [see Brookwood v. Bank of Am. (1996) 45 CA4th 1667, 1670, 53 CR2d 515]. It is error for the trial court to deny a motion to compel arbitration in reliance on allegations in an unverified complaint without holding an evidentiary hearing [Hotels Nevada v. L.A. Pacific Center, Inc. (2006) 144 CA4th 754, 762, 50 CR3d 700].

5.25[4] Agreement Not Formed If Court Finds Lack of Mutual Assent. No enforceable contract will be formed if the parties do not freely consent [CC § 1565; see CC § 1567 (fraud, duress, menace, including threat of criminal prosecution); Bayscene Resident Negotiators v. Bayscene Mobilehome Park (1993) 15 CA4th 119, 127-129, 18 CR2d 626]. Mutual assent usually rests on an offer and acceptance [CC §§ 1550, 1565, 1580] evidenced by objective manifestations, not the subjective intent of any individual involved [Lopez v. Charles Schwab & Co. (2004) 118 CA4th 1224, 1230].

Cross References:

Discussion of capacity of parties, see Ch. 13, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element.

Discussion of fraud, menace, duress, see Ch. 17, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Fraud, Duress, Menace, and Undue Influence.

5.25[5] Lack of Contractual Capacity Voids Arbitration Agreement. Like all contracts, an arbitration agreement can be defeated by a party without contractual capacity [CC § 1550], or in the case of an organization or entity, when the requisite formalities are not observed [see, e.g., Hydrothermal Energy Corp. v. Fort Bidwell Indian Cmty. Council (1985) 170 CA3d 489, 495-496, 216 CR 59 (Native American tribal council had not agreed to arbitrate)].

Example--Lack of Capacity to Contract:

A patient admitted to nursing home while comatose could neither execute the agreement containing the arbitration provision herself nor authorize execution by a relative [Pagarigan v. Libby Care Center, Inc. (2002) 99 CA4th 298, 301-303, 120 CR2d 892 ; see Flores v. Evergreen at San Diego, LLC (2007) 148 CA4th 581, 587-589, 55 CR3d 823 (husband did not have authority to bind wife to nursing home's arbitration agreement because he had no power of attorney and wife did not indicate that her husband was to act as her agent); Warfield v. Summerville Senior Living, Inc. (2007) 158 CA4th 443, 445, 69 CR3d 783 (same)].

Example--Capacity to Contract:

A daughter who was authorized under a durable power of attorney to make all health care decisions for her mother had authority to enter into an arbitration agreement on behalf of her mother requiring arbitration of medical malpractice claims [Garrison v. Superior Court (2005) 132 CA4th 253, 265-267 ;

Hogan v. Country Villa Health Services (2007) 148 CA4th 259, 264-268, 55 CR3d 450] .

Cross Reference:

Discussion of capacity of parties, see Ch. 14, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Lack of Capacity.

Jury Instructions:

Contract Formation--Essential Factual Elements, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 302 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

5.25[6] Attempt to Add Arbitration Clause Unilaterally May Be Defeated. If the arbitration clause was added by one party after the contract of which it is a part was executed, the arbitration provision will be valid only if the following occur [Perdue v. Crocker Nat'l Bank (1985) 38 C3d 913, 922-924, 216 CR 345, 702 P2d 503 ; Badie v. Bank of Am. (1998) 67 CA4th 779, 797-806, 79 CR2d 273].

- The primary contract allows one party to change the terms of the agreement unilaterally.
- The arbitration provision is within the scope of the modifications contemplated by the provision allowing unilateral modification.
- All other requirements for unilateral modification, such as written notification, are met. Based on federal Truth in Lending regulations, cases may require that after a unilateral modification of a credit card agreement, the cardholder be given a chance to "opt out" of the arbitration provision [see Shea v. Household Bank (SB) (2003) 105 CA4th 85, 90, 129 CR2d 387 ; Szetela v. Discover Bank (2002) 97 CA4th 1094, 1100, 118 CR2d 862].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsFederal Arbitration ActOrders to Compel ArbitrationCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionValidity of ADR MethodsContracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsArbitration Clauses

158 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate
V. OPPOSING ARBITRATION

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.26

5.26 Party May Oppose Arbitration If Issue Is Beyond Scope of Agreement.

One can resist arbitration by proving that a particular dispute is not within the scope of the arbitration agreement that is the basis for the petition to compel arbitration. Doubts as to whether an arbitration clause applies to a particular dispute are to be resolved in favor of arbitration [Engineers & Architects Assn. v. Community Development Dept. (1994) 30 CA4th 644, 652, 35 CR2d 800], but one may not be required to arbitrate a dispute that he or she has not agreed to arbitrate [Titolo v. Cano (2007) 157 CA4th 310, 317, 68 CR3d 616] .

Examples--Issue Beyond Scope of Agreement:

- Plaintiffs successfully opposed a petition to compel arbitration when the arbitration clause covered any disputes arising out of plaintiffs' employment, and plaintiffs' claim involved a pre-employment dispute [Balandran v. Labor Ready, Inc. (2004) 124 CA 4th 1522, 1528-1530].
- Medical group's claim that its insurance provider had defamed it by stating that its physicians performed unnecessary procedures was outside the scope of an agreement limiting arbitration to disputes over the payment of claims [Medical Staff of Doctors Med. Ctr. in Modesto v. Kamil (2005) 132 CA4th 679, 684-685, 33 CR3d 853].
- Arbitration clause in land development agreement covering controversies involving "the construction and application of any provision of this Agreement" was not broad enough to require arbitration of defamation action brought by one party to agreement against another [Bono v. David (2007) 147 CA4th 1055, 1067, 54 CR3d 837] .
- Arbitration clause in contract between plaintiff and a computer software developer stating that "any dispute ... arising from or out of this ... agreement shall be submitted to arbitration" was broad enough to cover tort claims brought by plaintiff against former officers, directors, and employees of the software developer, even though those individuals were not signatories to the agreement and claims were extracontractual [EFund Capital Partners v. Pless (2007) 150 CA4th 1311, 1330, 59 CR3d 340] .
- Arbitration clause in recruitment contract between two companies did not cover tort claims arising from alleged violent physical assault by employee of one company against employee of the other in the context of an intimate domestic relationship between them [RN Solution, Inc. v. Catholic Healthcare West (2008) 165 CA4th 1511, 1523, 81 CR3d 892] .

■ Because an arbitration provision was incomplete, the court could not determine whether the dispute was one the parties agreed to arbitrate; therefore, the trial court should have denied the petition for arbitration and refused to confirm the arbitration award [Villacreses v. Molinari (2005) 132 CA4th 1223, 1232-1233, 34 CR3d 281].

Generally, the court determines the question of the arbitrability of a particular dispute. However, the parties' agreement may be shown by "clear and unmistakable evidence" to provide for the arbitrator to determine the issue of arbitrability [First Options of Chicago, Inc. v. Kaplan (1995) 514 US 938, 944, 115 S Ct 1920, 131 L Ed2d 985 ; Rodriguez v. American Techs., Inc. (2006) 136 CA4th 1110, 1123, 39 CR3d 437].

Strategic Point:

Note that California public policy strongly encourages enforcement of arbitration clauses [Ericksen, Arbuthnot, McCarthy, Kearney & Walsh, Inc. v. 100 Oak St. (1983) 35 C3d 312, 323, 197 CR 581, 673 P2d 251].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of contract interpretation, see Ch. 21, Asserting a Particular Construction of Contract.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsArbitrabilityCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsFederal Arbitration ActOrders to Compel ArbitrationCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionValidity of ADR MethodsContracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsArbitration Clauses

159 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate
V. OPPOSING ARBITRATION

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.27

5.27 Party May Oppose Arbitration If Nonsignatory Is Indispensable Party.

If a party to an arbitration agreement is also a party to a pending court action or special proceeding with a third party, arising out of the same transaction or series of related transactions, and there is a possibility of conflicting rulings on a common issue of law or fact, the court may, among other things, refuse to enforce the arbitration agreement and order intervention or joinder of all parties in a single action or special proceeding or stay arbitration pending the outcome of the court action or special proceeding [CCP § 1281.2(c); see Gravillis v. Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage Co. (2006) 143 CA4th 761, 782-784, 49 CR3d 531].

Exceptions:

CCP § 1281.2(c) does not apply to agreements governed by CCP § 1295 relating to health care provider's professional negligence.

Strategic Point--All Parties:

Avoiding arbitration altogether is only one of the court's options in this situation, and it may be the most expensive option. Joinder of all parties in the arbitration may save time and money. When negotiating the arbitration agreement consider providing for, and contain the consent of all parties to, the joinder of necessary third parties [see Zakarian v. Bekov (2002) 98 CA4th 316, 325-326, 119 CR2d 623].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsFederal Arbitration ActOrders to Compel ArbitrationCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionValidity of ADR MethodsContracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsArbitration Clauses

160 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate
V. OPPOSING ARBITRATION

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.28

5.28 Opposing Arbitration on Grounds of Fraud.

5.28[1] Claim of Fraud Affecting Primary Contract May Be Subject to Arbitration. If a contract containing an arbitration agreement is induced, or claimed to have been induced, by fraud, that claim itself is arbitrable unless the parties have specifically provided otherwise [Rosenthal v. Great W. Fin. Sec. Corp. (1996) 14 C4th 394, 419, 58 CR2d 875, 926 P2d 1061 ; Ericksen, Arbuthnot, McCarthy, Kearney & Walsh, Inc. v. 100 Oak St. (1983) 35 C3d 312, 323, 197 CR 581, 673 P2d 251 ; accord Prima Paint Corp. v. Flood & Conklin Mfg. Co. (1967) 388 US 395, 403-404, 87 S Ct 1801, 18 L Ed2d 1270 ; Mago v. Shearson Lehman Hutton, Inc. (9th Cir 1992) 956 F2d 932, 934].

Exception:

If fraud in the inception or execution of a contract caused the promisor to be deceived as to the nature of his or her act, he or she did not know what he or she was signing, and did not intend to enter into a contract at all. In that situation mutual assent is lacking, and arbitration cannot be compelled [Rosenthal v. Great W. Fin. Sec. Corp. (1996) 14 C4th 394, 415-416, 58 CR2d 875, 926 P2d 1061 ; Brown v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A. (2008) 168 CA4th 938, 958, 85 CR3d 817] .

Consider:

If the arbitration clause is contained in an agreement that lacked essential language required by a statutory scheme, and the agreement was entered into under misleading circumstances, which also violates the statute, then the entire contract is void and unenforceable, and its arbitration provisions likewise are not enforceable [Duffens v. Valenti (2008) 161 CA4th 434, 441, 74 CR3d 311 (invalidating contracts that violated dating service statutes, CC § 1694 et seq.)].

Warning:

Cases analyzing this issue in terms of fraud "permeating" the contract may use that terminology to refer to fraud in the inception or execution of the contract, and conclude that there is no valid and enforceable agreement. However, cases dealing with the "permeation doctrine" should not be relied on if they fail to recognize that the arbitration clause is severable from the rest of the contract when the issue is fraud in the inducement [see Rosenthal v. Great W. Fin. Sec. Corp. (1996) 14 C4th 394, 418, 58 CR2d 875, 926 P2d 1061 (criticizing Ford v. Shearson Lehman Am. Express, Inc. (1986) 180 CA3d 1011, 1019-1028, 225 CR 895)].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of fraud, and forms, see Ch. 17, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Fraud, Duress, Menace, and Undue Influence.

5.28[2] Fraud May Invalidate Arbitration Clause Under Specific Conditions. For fraud to invalidate an arbitration clause, the fraud must specifically affect the agreement to arbitrate so that it nullifies the apparent consent to that agreement; for example, by actively concealing the nature of the arbitration clause, its existence, or misrepresenting its meaning or value [Rosenthal v. Great W. Fin. Sec. Corp. (1996) 14 C4th 394, 419, 58 CR2d 875, 926 P2d 1061 ; Ericksen, Arbuthnot, McCarthy, Kearney & Walsh, Inc. v. 100 Oak St. (1983) 35 C3d 312, 323, 197 CR 581, 673 P2d 251 ; Hayes Children Leasing Co. v. NCR Corp. (1995) 37 CA4th 775, 784-785, 43 CR2d 650]. The following elements must be proven to establish fraud as to the arbitration agreement [Engalla v. Permanente Med. Group, Inc. (1997) 15 C4th 951, 973-975, 64 CR2d 843, 938 P2d 903]:

- Misrepresentation (false representation, concealment, or nondisclosure).
- Knowledge of falsity ("scienter").
- Intent to defraud (intent to induce reliance).
- Justifiable reliance.
- Resulting damage.

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of fraud, and forms, see Ch. 17, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Fraud, Duress, Menace, and Undue Influence.

5.28[3] Motion to Compel Arbitration May Be Defeated by Allegations in Verified Complaint or by Affidavit or Declaration. Allegations in a verified complaint may be sufficient to defeat a motion to compel arbitration [see Rice v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. (1991) 235 CA3d 1016, 1027-1028, 1 CR2d 265 disapproved on other grounds in Rosenthal v. Great Western Fin. Securities Corp. (1996) 14 C4th 394, 926 P.2d 1061 (to be so used verified complaint must allege ultimate facts rather than evidentiary facts). However, the better practice is to submit affidavits or declarations under penalty of perjury in opposition to the petition to compel arbitration [Strauch v. Eyring (1994) 30 CA4th 181, 185-186, 35 CR2d 747 ; see also Rosenthal v. Great W. Fin. Sec. Corp. (1996) 14 C4th 394, 413-414, 58 CR2d 875, 926 P2d 1061].

Distinguish:

It is error for the trial court to deny a motion to compel arbitration in reliance on allegations in an unverified complaint [Hotels Nevada v. L.A. Pacific Center, Inc. (2006) 144 CA4th 754, 762, 50 CR3d 700] .

 Cross References:

Discussion of fraud, and forms, see Ch. 17, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Fraud, Duress, Menace, and Undue Influence.

Discussion and forms, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 6, Determining Forum.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 269, Fraud and Deceit (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsFederal Arbitration ActOrders to Compel ArbitrationCivil
ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionValidity of ADR MethodsContracts LawContract Conditions &
ProvisionsArbitration ClausesContracts LawDefensesFraud & MisrepresentationGeneral Overview

161 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate
V. OPPOSING ARBITRATION

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.29

5.29 Opposing Arbitration on Ground That Agreement Is Unconscionable.

5.29[1] Court Should Refuse to Enforce Unconscionable Agreement or Clause. A court should refuse to enforce an agreement, or any clause, that it finds unconscionable at the time it was made [CC § 1670.5(a)]. The court should first rule on the "gateway" issue of whether an arbitration agreement is enforceable, including claims of unconscionability, before considering whether a particular dispute is within the scope of the arbitration clause [Independent Ass'n of Mailbox Ctr. Owners, Inc. v. Superior Court (2005) 133 CA4th 396, 407-408 ; Omar v. Ralphs Grocery Co. (2004) 118 CA4th 955, 961].

Distinguish:

Under the Federal Arbitration Act, while the court properly determines whether an arbitration provision is unenforceable, a challenge to the validity of the contract as a whole, and not specifically to the arbitration clause, must go to the arbitrator [Buckeye Check Cashing, Inc. v. Cardegna (2006) 546 US 440, 449, 126 S Ct 1204, 163 L Ed2d 1038 ; Higgins v. Superior Court (2006) 140 CA4th 1238, 1249, 45 CR3d 293 ; but compare Hotels Nevada LLC v. Bridge Banc, LLC (2005) 130 CA4th 1431, 1437, 30 CR3d 903 (under contract governed by FAA and California law, it was proper for court to decide illegality of the contract after the issue had first been presented to arbitrator, who acknowledged his authority to determine that issue, but ceded it to court)].

There are two approaches to determining unconscionability, both of which should reach the same result [Patterson v. ITT Consumer Fin. Corp. (1993) 14 CA4th 1659, 1663-1664, 18 CR2d 563]. These two approaches are discussed in 5.29[2] and [3], respectively.

Unconscionability is a defense applicable to enforcement of contracts generally and therefore is applicable in disputes governed by the Federal Arbitration Act [Ingle v. Circuit City Stores, Inc. (9th Cir 2003) 328 F3d 1165, 1170 ; Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Servs., Inc. (2000) 24 C4th 83, 98-99, 119, 99 CR2d 745, 6 P3d 669 ; see County of Solano v. Lionsgate Corp. (2005) 126 CA4th 741, 750].

Cross Reference:

General discussion of unconscionability in contract context, see Ch. 18, Attacking or Defending Claim That Contract Is Illegal, Contrary to Public Policy, or Unconscionable, 18.13 -18.19, 18.24 -18.28.

5.29[2] Unconscionability Determined by Procedural and Substantive Aspects. One approach analyzes the contract in terms of its procedural and substantive aspects [Abramson v. Juniper Networks, Inc. (2004) 115 CA4th 638, 655-658 ; Stirlen v. Supercuts, Inc. (1997) 51 CA4th 1519, 1532-1534, 60 CR2d 138 .] Both procedural and substantive unconscionability must be present before a court can refuse to enforce an arbitration provision based on unconscionability [Brown v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A. (2008) 168 CA4th 938, 955, 85 CR3d 817] . However, the two elements need not be present in the same degree [Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Servs., Inc. (2000) 24 C4th 83, 114, 99 CR2d 745, 6 P3d 669 ; Abramson v. Juniper Networks, Inc. (2004) 115 CA4th 638, 655].

Procedural unconscionability concerns the manner in which the contract was negotiated and the circumstances of the parties at that time, focusing on surprise and oppression. Oppression arises from an inequality of bargaining power and the absence of real negotiation or meaningful choice on the part of the weaker party [Abramson v. Juniper Networks, Inc. (2004) 115 CA4th 638, 656 ; Kinney v. United Healthcare Servs., Inc. (1999) 70 CA4th 1322, 1329, 83 CR2d 348]. Surprise arises when the challenged terms are hidden in a preprinted form drafted by the party seeking to enforce them [Abramson v. Juniper Networks, Inc. (2004) 115 CA4th 638, 656 ; Metters v. Ralphs Grocery Co. (2008) 161 CA4th 696, 703, 74 CR3d 210 (arbitration agreement was contained not in an employment contract, where it might have been expected, but in a form on which employee was directed to submit grievance)].

Substantive unconscionability focuses on terms so harsh or one-sided as to "shock the conscience" [Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Servs., Inc. (2000) 24 C4th 83, 115-121, 99 CR2d 745, 6 P3d 669 ; Abramson v. Juniper Networks, Inc. (2004) 115 CA4th 638, 656]. A wide variety of attributes may affect the determination of substantive unconscionability, but the key factor is lack of mutuality [Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Servs., Inc. (2000) 24 C4th 83, 114-120, 99 CR2d 745, 6 P3d 669 ; Higgins v. Superior Court (2006) 140 CA4th 1238, 1253-1254, 45 CR3d 293 ; see Sanchez v. Western Pizza Enterprises, Inc. (2009) 172 CA4th 154, 177-178, 90 CR3d 818 (designation of a "panel" of arbitrators consisting of a single arbitrator selected by the employer created a false appearance of mutuality in the selection of an arbitrator and gave rise to a significant risk of financial interdependence between the employer and the arbitrator)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion and forms, see Ch. 18, Asserting or Defending Claim That Contract Is Illegal, Contrary to Public Policy, or Unconscionable, 18.13 -18.19, 18.29 -18.32.

5.29[3] Contracts of Adhesion May Not Be Enforced Unless Terms Meet Specific Conditions. The other approach begins by determining whether the contract is one of adhesion [Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Servs., Inc. (2000) 24 C4th 83, 113, 99 CR2d 745, 6 P3d 669 ; Abramson v. Juniper Networks, Inc. (2004) 115 CA4th 638, 655]. An adhesion contract is a standardized contract, imposed and drafted by the party of superior bargaining strength, which relegates to the subscribing party only the opportunity to adhere to the contract or reject it [Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Servs., Inc. (2000) 24 C4th 83, 113, 99 CR2d 745, 6 P3d 669]. Absent unusual circumstances, use of a contract of adhesion establishes a minimal degree of procedural unconscionability notwithstanding the availability of market alternatives [Gatton v. T-Mobile USA, Inc. (2007) 152 CA4th 571, 585, 61 CR3d 344] . A court will not enforce an arbitration provision in an adhesion contract unless its terms fall within the reasonable expectations of the weaker party and are not unduly oppressive or unconscionable [Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Servs., Inc. (2000) 24 C4th 83, 113, 99 CR2d 745, 6 P3d 669 ; see County of Solano v. Lionsgate Corp. (2005) 126 CA4th 741, 750].

Cross Reference:

Detailed discussion and forms, see Ch. 18, Asserting or Defending Claim That Contract Is Illegal, Contrary to Public Policy, or Unconscionable, 18.13 -18.19, 18.29 -18.32.

5.29[4] Court May Sever Unconscionable Term and Enforce Remainder of Contract. A court has the power to sever an unconscionable provision and enforce the remainder of the contract in order to preserve the contractual relationship and to prevent the parties from gaining undeserved benefit or suffering undeserved detriment [CC § 1670.5(a); Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Servs., Inc. (2000) 24 C4th 83, 123-124, 99 CR2d 745, 6 P3d 669; Abramson v. Juniper Networks, Inc. (2004) 115 CA4th 638, 658-659]. However, an unconscionable provision cannot be severed when the unconscionability or illegality is pervasive, and in that case the entire contract is unenforceable [Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Servs., Inc. (2000) 24 C4th 83, 123-124, 99 CR2d 745, 6 P3d 669; Abramson v. Juniper Networks, Inc. (2004) 115 CA4th 638, 659-660; Davis v. O'Melveny & Myers (9th Cir 2007) 485 F3d 1066, 1084 (arbitration agreement containing four substantively unconscionable or void terms was unenforceable because those terms could not be stricken or excised without gutting the agreement); Sanchez v. Western Pizza Enterprises, Inc. (2009) 172 CA4th 154, 181, 90 CR3d 818 (arbitration agreement containing a class arbitration waiver that was contrary to public policy and an unconscionable arbitrator selection clause was permeated by an unlawful purpose and thus unenforceable); Suh v. Superior Court (2010) 181 CA4th 1504, 1517, 105 CR3d 585 (absolute prohibition of consequential, punitive, incidental, or special damages in employment-related cases was so egregious and so draconian that the arbitration clause was not severable); Lhotka v. Geographic Expeditions, Inc. (2010) 181 CA4th 816, 826, 104 CR3d 844 (arbitration agreement in hiking expedition company's release form that limited plaintiffs' recovery to the amount they paid the company for their trip, required them to arbitrate in a distant forum, and required them to indemnify the company for its costs and attorney fees for defending any claims was permeated with unconscionability)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion and forms, see Ch. 18, Asserting or Defending Claim That Contract Is Illegal, Contrary to Public Policy, or Unconscionable.

5.29[5] Arbitration Agreement Must Meet Specific Requirements If Claim Arises From Unwaivable Public Right. When plaintiff's claims arise from unwaivable public rights, whether statutory or non-statutory, the arbitration agreement must satisfy the following additional criteria [Abramson v. Juniper Networks, Inc. (2004) 115 CA4th 638, 653-654; see Little v. Auto Stiegler, Inc. (2003) 29 C4th 1064, 1076-1077, 130 CR2d 892, 63 P3d 979; Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Servs., Inc. (2000) 24 C4th 83, 102, 99 CR2d 745, 6 P3d 669]:

- The agreement must provide for adequate discovery.
- It must require a written decision allowing limited judicial review.
- The agreement must permit the types of relief available in court.
- It must provide for the employer to pay all types of costs that are unique to arbitration.
- The agreement must provide for a neutral arbitrator.

Examples:

■ Claims under the California Fair Employment and Housing Act (FEHA) are an example of a statutory "unwaivable public right" referred to above [see Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Servs., Inc. (2000) 24 C4th 83, 101, 99 CR2d 745, 6 P3d 669].

■ Actions alleging wrongful termination of employment in violation of public policy (known as Tameny actions, after Tameny v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (1980) 27 C3d 167, 164 CR 839, 610 P2d 1330) are an example of a nonstatutory right [see Little v. Auto Stiegler, Inc. (2003) 29 C4th 1064, 1077, 130 CR2d 892, 63 P3d 979].

● Under some circumstances, a class arbitration waiver in an employment agreement impermissibly interferes with employees' ability to vindicate unwaivable rights under overtime laws [Gentry v. Superior Court (2007) 42 C4th 443, 457, 64 CR3d 773, 165 P3d 556 ; see Sanchez v. Western Pizza Enterprises, Inc. (2009) 172 CA4th 154, 171, 90 CR3d 818 ; Franco v. Athens Disposal Co., Inc. (2009) 171 CA4th 1277, 1290, 90 CR3d 539 (Gentry applies to claims for meal and rest periods)].

Distinguish:

In a case brought by a corporate officer against his former employer, the court held that the employee's claim did not arise from unwaivable public rights, even though the employee asserted a wage claim under Lab Code § 229, because the employee sought a multimillion-dollar bonus and severance payment, not minimum wage or overtime payments [Giuliano v. Inland Empire Personnel, Inc. (2007) 149 CA4th 1276, 1290, 58 CR3d 5] .

If the agreement is silent as to arbitral forum costs, the court can infer the employer's obligation to pay arbitral forum costs [Little v. Auto Stiegler, Inc. (2003) 29 C4th 1064, 1082, 130 CR2d 892, 63 P3d 979 ; Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Servs., Inc. (2000) 24 C4th 83, 112-113, 99 CR2d 745, 6 P3d 669] but an explicit cost-sharing provision does not permit such an inference and cannot be enforced [Abramson v. Juniper Networks, Inc. (2004) 115 CA4th 638, 661 ; see D.C. v. Harvard-Westlake School (2009) 176 CA4th 836, 862, 98 CR3d 300 (plaintiff bringing claims under California hate crimes laws, CC §§ 51.7, 52.1, may not be required to pay any type of arbitral expense that would not be imposed were the dispute adjudicated in court)]. In a consumer arbitration involving unwaivable statutory rights under the Consumer Legal Remedies Act [CC § 1750 et seq.] and the Vehicle Leasing Act [CC § 2985.7 et seq.], the court did not require the non-consumer party to pay all arbitral costs but imposed an implied agreement that unaffordable fees not be allocated to the consumer at any in point in the arbitration process, and that the determination of what is affordable be made on a case by case basis, with the consumer bearing the burden of proof as to what he or she cannot afford [Gutierrez v. Autowest, Inc. (2003) 114 CA4th 77, 89-92].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure
Alternative Dispute Resolution
Arbitrations
Federal Arbitration Act
Orders to Compel Arbitration
Civil Procedure
Alternative Dispute Resolution
Validity of ADR Methods
Contracts Law
Contract Conditions & Provisions
Arbitration Clauses
Contracts Law
Defenses
Unconscionability
Arbitration Agreements

162 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate
V. OPPOSING ARBITRATION

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.30

5.30 Party May Oppose Arbitration on Grounds of Waiver.

5.30[1] Waiver May Be Explicit or Implied. One can resist arbitration on the ground that the party seeking to compel it has waived the right to do so [CCP § 1281.2(c); Wagner Construction Co. v. Pacific Mechanical Corp. (2007) 41 C4th 19, 27-31, 58 CR3d 434, 157 P3d 1029]. Waiver may be explicit [see Gustafson v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1973) 31 CA3d 361, 365, 107 CR 243 (settlement and release of arbitrable claim)], but more often it is implied.

5.30[2] Party Urging Arbitration Must Have Prejudiced Other Party's Rights. The primary evidence needed to establish waiver is that the party urging arbitration has done something to prejudice the other party's ability to receive the benefits of arbitration [see Doers v. Golden Gate Bridge, Highway & Transp. Dist. (1979) 23 C3d 180, 188, 151 CR 837, 588 P2d 1261; McMillin Dev., Inc. v. Home Buyers Warranty (1998) 68 CA4th 896, 909, 80 CR2d 611]. In determining whether there has been an implied waiver of the right to compel arbitration, the court may consider whether the party urging arbitration has done any of the following [Saint Agnes Med. Ctr. v. PacifiCare of Cal. (2003) 31 C4th 1187, 1200-1205; Engalla v. Permanente Med. Group, Inc. (1997) 15 C4th 951, 983-984, 64 CR2d 843, 938 P2d 903; Christensen v. Dewor Devs. (1983) 33 C3d 778, 781-783, 191 CR 8, 661 P2d 1088; Law Offices of Dixon R. Howell v. Valley (2005) 129 CA4th 1076, 1096-1098]:

- Previously took steps inconsistent with an intent to invoke arbitration.
- Unreasonably delayed seeking arbitration or delayed in a way that affected, misled, or prejudiced the opposing party.
- Acted in bad faith or with willful misconduct.
- Invoked the litigation machinery so substantially that the parties were well into preparation of a lawsuit before the party notified the opposing party of intent to arbitrate.
- Either requested arbitration enforcement close to the trial date or delayed for a long period before seeking a stay.
- Filed a counterclaim without asking for a stay of the proceedings.

- Took advantage of judicial discovery procedures not available in arbitration.

Examples--No Waiver:

- Two lawsuits were filed--one in Los Angeles County and the other in Fresno County--relating to two health services contracts, only one of which contained an arbitration clause. Plaintiff in the Los Angeles County action claimed the contract containing the arbitration clause was void ab initio based on the occurrence of a condition subsequent. Defendant in the Los Angeles action then filed the second action in Fresno County. Each party sought to have venue transferred to the county in which the lawsuit it initiated was pending. The actions ended up in Los Angeles. Four months after initiating the first action, plaintiff in that action petitioned to compel arbitration of portions of the Fresno action and to stay other proceedings pending completion of the arbitration. Although the party resisting arbitration had incurred expenses, neither attacking the validity of the contract containing the arbitration clause, nor seeking or opposing a change of venue amounted to waiver [Saint Agnes Med. Ctr. v. PacificCare of Cal. (2003) 31 C4th 1187].

- Without mentioning arbitration, the defendant filed a demurrer, served objections to discovery requests, and, a few weeks after filing its motion to compel arbitration, filed a motion in superior court to compel the plaintiff's deposition, asserting in that motion that it intended to file a motion for summary judgment. The court held that these facts did not demonstrate waiver of arbitration, because when the defendant filed its notice of petition to compel arbitration a little more than two months after the plaintiff filed the complaint, no substantive discovery responses had yet been served by either side, and no formal hearings had taken place on the discovery issues. Moreover, the discovery requests served by the defendant (a set of form interrogatories and a request for production of documents) were authorized under arbitration rules [Roman v. Superior Court (2009) 172 CA4th 1462, 1478-1479, 92 CR3d 153] .

Examples--Waiver:

- In an action for sexual harassment, defendant employer did not seek to compel arbitration until seven months after raising that right as an affirmative defense in its answer. During that time, defendant obtained 1,600 pages of documents from plaintiff and took plaintiff's two-day, 410-page videotaped deposition. Defendant was held to have unreasonably delayed the motion to compel arbitration to use discovery to learn plaintiff's strategies, evidence, and witnesses and to pin plaintiff down to a particular version of the facts, all to plaintiff's prejudice [Davis v. Continental Airlines, Inc. (1997) 59 CA4th 205, 211-217, 69 CR2d 79].

- Defendant waived its right to arbitrate when it attempted to obtain a broad release of class claims by misleading the class members and the court about the benefits of a proposed settlement [Aviation Data, Inc. v. American Express Travel Related Services Co., Inc. (2007) 152 CA4th 1522, 1539, 62 CR3d 396 (applying FAA)].

5.30[3] Time and Expense Alone Usually Do Not Constitute Sufficient Prejudice. Prejudice may consist of attorney's fees incurred, and delays causing lost records and faded memories [Christensen v. Dewor Devs. (1983) 33 C3d 778, 784, 191 CR 8, 661 P2d 1088]. However, time and expense alone do not constitute the prejudice necessary to waive the right to compel arbitration [Groom v. Health Net (2000) 82 CA4th 1189, 1195-1197, 98 CR2d 836]. Prejudice usually requires the party resisting arbitration to have disclosed facts, witnesses, and legal strategies in discovery, which necessarily deprives the party resisting arbitration of the efficiencies that would have been available by arbitration [McMillin Dev., Inc. v. Home Buyers Warranty (1998) 68 CA4th 896, 909-910, 80 CR2d 611]. Being forced to articulate a legal theory clearly enough to withstand a demurrer is not prejudice [Groom v. Health Net (2000) 82 CA4th 1189, 1195-1197, 98 CR2d 836].

Warning--Failure to Pay Fee Required to Initiate Arbitration:

In one case, though the court did not refer to it as waiver, after the party responsible for paying the arbitrator's fees was ordered to pay the fees necessary to initiate arbitration and failed to do so, the court lifted the stay and sent the matter to be tried [Sink v. Aden Enters., Inc. (9th Cir 2003) 352 F3d 1197, 1201-1202].

Judge's Perspective:

The rule applied in the foregoing cases is an equitable one, and counsel seeking to persuade the court that a party has or has not demonstrated fairness should make arguments that emphasize fairness. In Groom v. Health Net (2000) 82 CA4th 1189, 1195-1197, 98 CR2d 836 , for example, the court concluded that the plaintiff had intentionally drafted her complaint so as to avoid arbitration. Thus, the court found that the expense and trouble of the demurrer proceedings was largely of her own making, since she could have avoided the process by drafting her complaint more clearly to begin with, so as to acknowledge the arbitration provision in the parties' contract.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsFederal Arbitration ActOrders to Compel ArbitrationCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionValidity of ADR MethodsContracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsArbitration ClausesContracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsWaiversGeneral OverviewContracts LawDefensesGeneral Overview

163 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate
V. OPPOSING ARBITRATION

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.31

5.31 Party May Oppose Arbitration Provision in Health Care Service Plan That Fails to Comply With H&S Code § 1363.1.

5.31[1] H&S Code § 1363.1 Imposes Format Requirements. H&S Code § 1363.1 requires arbitration clauses in health care plans to be prominently displayed and to be placed immediately before the signature line provided for the subscriber's signature on the enrollment form [H&S Code § 1363.1(b), (d); Robertson v. Health Net of Cal., Inc. (2005) 132 CA4th 1419, 1422]. Arbitration clauses that do not meet these requirements are unenforceable [Robertson v. Health Net of Cal., Inc. (2005) 132 CA4th 1419, 1429; Medeiros v. Superior Court (2007) 146 CA4th 1008, 1017-1018, 53 CR3d 307 (H&S Code § 1363.1 requirements apply to employer's benefits election form)].

Examples:

- The court denied an HMO's petition to compel arbitration for failure to comply with H&S Code § 1363.1 because the enrollment form's arbitration agreement did not appear directly above the enrollee signature line and was in the same typeface as the rest of the document with only its two-word title in bolded print [Robertson v. Health Net of Cal., Inc. (2005) 132 CA4th 1419, 1428-1429].
- Although an arbitration disclosure appeared immediately before the signature line of the enrollment form, it was not prominently displayed because it had no heading, was in a plain, small typeface, and most of the rest of the form contained larger typeface, some of which was bold and some of which was highlighted by a different background color [Burks v. Kaiser Foundation Health Plan, Inc. (2008) 160 CA4th 1021, 1029, 73 CR3d 257].

5.31[2] H&S Code § 1363.1 Is Not Preempted by FAA. Notwithstanding that H&S Code § 1363.1 imposes format requirements on arbitration agreements that are not imposed on other agreements, most courts have held that H&S Code § 1363.1 is not preempted by the FAA. FAA preemption of H&S Code § 1363.1 is blocked by the McCarran-Ferguson Act, 15 USC § 1012, which prevents a federal law that does not specifically relate to the business of insurance from invalidating a state law enacted for the purpose of regulating the business of insurance [15 USC § 1012(b); see Pagarigan v. Superior Court (2002) 102 CA4th 1121, 1134; Smith v. PacifiCare Behavioral Health Plan of Cal., Inc. (2001) 93 CA4th 139, 143].

Warning:

The cases are not unanimous. For a contrary view, see Erickson v. Aetna Health Plans of Cal. (1999) 71 CA4th 646, 652 (H&S Code § 1363.1 preempted by FAA).

Cross Reference:

Discussion of FAA preemption, see 5.07[2].

5.31[3] H&S Code § 1363.1 May Be Preempted by Medicare Law. Depending on the date of the plan, plan enrollment documents for Medicare+Choice plans may or may not be subject to the requirements of H&S Code § 1363.1.

Arbitration provisions in plan enrollment documents for Medicare+Choice plans submitted to the Health Care Financing Agency (HCFA) for approval before December 21, 2000 must comply with H&S Code § 1363.1 to be enforceable.

Medicare law [42 USC § 1395w-26(b)(3)] was amended, effective December 21, 2000 [see Pub L No 106-554, Dec 21, 2000, 114 Stats 2763, 2763A], to add Medicare plan marketing materials to the matters expressly preempting state laws, and to authorize regulations providing model language for marketing materials. That amendment was prospective only, and it provided that no state law is preempted unless it is inconsistent with Medicare law [42 CFR § 422.402]. Whether H&S Code § 1363.1 is preempted by Medicare law with respect to health care plan marketing materials submitted for HCFA approval after the 2000 amendment is undetermined.

Medicare law [42 USC § 1395w-26(b)(3)] again was amended, effective December 8, 2003 [see Pub L No 108-173, Dec 8, 2003, 117 Stat 2066]. That amendment broadened the scope of federal preemption regarding Medicare Advantage plans to include any state law or regulation other than state licensing laws or state laws relating to plan solvency [42 CFR § 422.402], making a stronger case for preemption of H&S Code § 1363.1 after December 8, 2003.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of H&S Code § 1363.1 and federal preemption, see California Points and Authorities, § 20.194.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure
Alternative Dispute Resolution
Arbitration
Federal Arbitration Act
Orders to Compel Arbitration
Civil Procedure
Alternative Dispute Resolution
Validity of ADR Methods
Contracts Law
Contract Conditions & Provisions
Arbitration Clauses
Insurance Law
Claims & Contracts
Arbitration

164 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate
VI. MOVING TO VACATE OR CORRECT ARBITRATION AWARD

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.31A

5.31A CHECKLIST: Moving to Vacate or Correct Arbitration Award.

☐ Determine whether grounds exist for motion to vacate arbitration award.

☐ Did arbitrator commit legal error, and does arbitration provision expressly provide that legal errors are an excess of arbitral authority reviewable by the courts?

Authority:

Cable Connection, Inc. v. DIRECTV, Inc. (2008) 44 C4th 1334, 1361, 82 CR3d 229, 190 P3d 586

Discussion:

See 5.31C

☐ Was award procured by corruption, fraud or other undue means?

☐ Was there corruption on part of arbitrator?

☐ Were rights of potential moving party substantially prejudiced by misconduct of a neutral arbitrator?

☐ Did arbitrator exceed his or her powers and, if so, can award not be corrected without affecting merits of decision?

☐ Were rights of potential moving party party substantially prejudiced by refusal of arbitrator to postpone hearing despite showing of sufficient cause for postponement?

☐ Were rights of potential moving party substantially prejudiced by the refusal of the arbitrator to hear evidence material to the controversy or by other conduct of the arbitrator contrary to the provisions of CCP § 1280 et seq.?

☐ Did an arbitrator making award fail to disclose a ground for disqualification?

☐ Was an arbitrator making award subject to disqualification under CCP § 1281.91 but failed to disqualify himself or herself?

Authority:

CCP § 1286.2

☐ Does contract contain an illegal provision that would cause granting of finality to the arbitrator's decision to be inconsistent with protection of a party's statutory rights?

Authority:

Jones v. Humanscale Corp. (2005) 130 CA4th 401, 409-410, 29 CR3d 881

Discussion:

See 5.31D

Timing:

Petition to vacate award must be served and filed not later than 100 days after date of service of signed copy of award on petitioner.

Authority:

CCP § 1288

☐ Determine whether grounds exist for motion to correct arbitration award.

☐ Was there an evident miscalculation of figures or an evident mistake in description of any person, thing, or property referred to in award?

☐ Did arbitrator exceed his or her powers, and if so, can award be corrected without affecting merits of decision upon controversy submitted?

☐ Is award imperfect in a matter of form, not affecting merits of controversy?

Authority:

CCP § 1286.6

Discussion:

See 5.31E

Timing:

Petition to correct award must be served and filed not later than 100 days after date of service of signed copy of award on petitioner.

Authority:

CCP § 1288

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionJudicial ReviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionValidity
of ADR Methods

165 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate
VI. MOVING TO VACATE OR CORRECT ARBITRATION AWARD

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.31B

5.31B Options and Strategy.

In most cases, an arbitration award is final and not subject to judicial review. This is true even when the arbitrator's legal analysis is incorrect. Counsel may, however, move to vacate or correct an arbitration award under limited statutory grounds.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionJudicial ReviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionValidity of ADR Methods

166 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate
VI. MOVING TO VACATE OR CORRECT ARBITRATION AWARD

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.31C

5.31C Scope of Judicial Review Generally Is Limited.

An arbitration award generally is not subject to judicial review [Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 C4th 1, 11, 10 CR2d 183, 832 P2d 899]. A court is not permitted to review the validity of the arbitrator's reasoning or the sufficiency of the evidence supporting an arbitrator's award [Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 C4th 1, 11, 10 CR2d 183, 832 P2d 899]. Nor may a party challenge the arbitrator's rulings on discovery, admission of evidence, or conduct of the proceedings [Evans v. Centerstone Dev. Co. (2005) 134 CA4th 151, 167, 35 CR3d 745 (awarding sanctions for frivolous appeal)]. Furthermore, a court may not vacate or correct an arbitration award merely because it disagrees with the arbitrator's choice of remedy [Taylor v. Van-Catlin Constr. (2005) 130 CA4th 1061, 1066, 30 CR3d 690]. However, a court may vacate or correct an award under limited circumstances prescribed by statute [Jones v. Humanscale Corp. (2005) 130 CA4th 401, 408, 29 CR3d 881 ; see 5.31D, 5.31E].

Exceptions:

- Parties to an arbitration agreement may expand the scope of review of an arbitration award by expressly providing that legal errors are an excess of arbitral authority reviewable by the courts [Cable Connection, Inc. v. DIRECTV, Inc. (2008) 44 C4th 1334, 1361, 82 CR3d 229, 190 P3d 586] . An arbitration provision requiring the arbitrator to apply California law or to render an award in accordance with California law does not, by itself, mandate review of the award on the merits [Gravillis v. Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage Co. (2010) 182 CA4th 503, 519, 106 CR3d 70 ; Baize v. Eastridge Companies, LLC (2006) 142 CA4th 293, 301-302, 47 CR3d 763] .

- In a case alleging violations of statutory rights, judicial review of an arbitrator's decision may be justified when granting finality to an arbitrator's decision would be inconsistent with the protection of those rights [Pearson Dental Supplies, Inc. v. Superior Court (2010) 48 C4th 665, 676-679, 108 CR3d 171, 229 P3d 83 (arbitrator's award should be vacated because arbitrator's clear legal error caused plaintiff's FEHA claim to be incorrectly deemed time-barred)].

Distinguish:

Although a discovery dispute involving a nonparty to an arbitration proceeding must be submitted first to the arbitrator, the nonparty is entitled to full judicial review of the arbitrator's discovery order [Berglund v. Arthroscopic & Laser Surgery Center of San Diego, L.P. (2008) 44 C4th 528, 532, 79 CR3d 370, 187 P3d 86] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionJudicial ReviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionValidity
of ADR Methods

167 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate
VI. MOVING TO VACATE OR CORRECT ARBITRATION AWARD

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.31D

5.31D Court Must Vacate Arbitration Award Under Specified Circumstances.

The court must vacate the award if it determines any of the following [CCP § 1286.2]:

- The award was procured by corruption, fraud or other undue means.
- There was corruption in any of the arbitrators.
- The rights of a party were substantially prejudiced by misconduct of a neutral arbitrator.
- The arbitrators exceeded their powers and the award cannot be corrected without affecting the merits of the decision.
- The rights of a party were substantially prejudiced by the refusal of the arbitrators to postpone the hearing upon sufficient cause being shown for postponement, or by the refusal of the arbitrators to hear evidence material to the controversy, or by other conduct of the arbitrators contrary to the provisions of CCP § 1280 et seq.
- An arbitrator making the award failed to disclose a ground for disqualification or was subject to disqualification under CCP § 1281.91 but failed to disqualify himself or herself.

Exception:

This last ground does not apply to arbitration proceedings conducted under a collective bargaining agreement between employers and employees or between their respective representatives [CCP § 1286.2(a)(6)].

Timing:

A petition to vacate an award must be served and filed not later than 100 days after the date of the service of a signed copy of the award on the petitioner [CCP § 1288; see Eternity Investments, Inc. v. Brown (2007) 151 CA4th 739, 745-746, 60 CR3d 134] .

Strategic Point:

A party may not submit an issue to the arbitrator for decision and later argue that an adverse decision on the issue exceeded the arbitrator's powers [see J.C. Gury Co. v. Nippon Carbide Indus. (USA) Inc. (2007) 152 CA4th 1300, 1304-1306, 62 CR3d 118] .

Examples:

- The court acted properly in vacating an arbitration award when the arbitrator exceeded his authority by reexamining whether the parties were bound by the arbitration provision in the plaintiffs' enrollment form; that decision was in the province of the trial court, which had previously determined arbitrability [Malek v. Blue Cross of Cal. (2004) 121 CA4th 44, 56, 16 CR3d 687] .

- The court acted properly in vacating arbitration award under CCP § 1286.2(a)(6)(A) because the arbitrator had not disclosed an intent to entertain additional offers from the parties or their lawyers, but nonetheless accepted such an offer while the arbitration was pending without disclosing that fact [Ovitz v. Schulman (2005) 133 CA4th 830, 844-845, 35 CR3d 117] .

- An arbitrator was not required to disclose employment arrangements with a bank whose corporate parent acquired a party to the arbitration before the arbitration award was final, and arbitration award was not subject to being vacated [Hayden v. Robertson Stephens, Inc. (2007) 150 CA4th 360, 366-368, 58 CR3d 333] .

- An arbitrator who issued an award in an initial dispute between the parties did not exceed his powers when, after one party demanded a second arbitration, the arbitrator construed the arbitration agreement as authorizing him to act as the arbitrator for subsequent disputes between the parties [Patchett v. Bergamot Station, Ltd. (2006) 143 CA4th 1390, 1392, 49 CR3d 941] .

- The trial court erred in vacating an arbitration award based on the arbitrators' denial of a continuance request; the arbitrators could reasonably have concluded there was no good cause to further delay the arbitration, and the trial court also had no discretion to vacate the arbitration award based on the arbitrators' refusal to allow plaintiff to amend its statement of claims [*SWAB Financial, LLC v. E*Trade Securities, LLC* (2007) 150 CA4th 1181, 1198, 58 CR3d 904] .

- An arbitrator did not exceed his powers by declining, on equitable grounds, to enforce a notice-and-cure condition against the plaintiff, even though the arbitration agreement provided that the arbitrator could not modify or change any material provisions in the agreement [Gueyffier v. Ann Summers, Ltd. (2008) 43 C4th 1179, 1188, 77 CR3d 613, 184 P3d 739] .

- The court properly vacated an arbitration award when the arbitrator failed to disclose that he and his law firm represented marine insurers that were affiliated with the plaintiff's insurer, a representative of whom attended the arbitration [Advantage Medical Services, LLC v. Hoffman (2008) 160 CA4th 806, 809, 72 CR3d 935] .

- In an arbitration of a commercial rent dispute before a panel of three real estate brokers, the neutral arbitrator was not required to disclose that he had contributed $500 to the mayoral campaign of the arbitrator selected by the tenant or that the neutral arbitrator's employer, an international real estate firm, had prior business dealings with the tenant and its arbitrator, when the neutral arbitrator himself was not involved in those business dealings; the trial court erred in vacating the arbitration award [Casden Park La Brea Retail LLC v. Ross Dress for Less, Inc. (2008) 162 CA4th 468, 478, 75 CR3d 763] .

- The court properly vacated an arbitration award in a dispute between the buyer and seller of real property after the arbitrator excluded material evidence of a lot line adjustment, substantially prejudicing the seller [Burlage v. Superior Court (2009) 178 CA4th 524, 527, 100 CR3d 531] .

- An arbitrator whose legal error barred an employee subject to a mandatory arbitration agreement from obtaining a hearing on the merits of a FEHA claim exceeded his powers under CCP § 1286.2 [Pearson Dental Supplies, Inc. v. Superior Court (2010) 48 C4th 665, 680, 108 CR3d 171, 229 P3d 83] .

- An arbitrator did not exceed her powers by ordering an employer who violated a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) to place an employee in a position that was filled by temporary or term employees. Although the MOU did not expressly provide for the arbitrator's remedy, it did not expressly prohibit it [San Francisco Housing Authority v. Service Employees Internat. Union, Local 790 (2010) 182 CA4th 933, 951, 107 CR3d 62] .

In addition to the statutory grounds for vacating an arbitration award listed above, courts have recognized a limited exception to the rule of arbitral finality when a contract contains an illegal provision and granting finality to an arbitrator's decision would be inconsistent with the protection of a party's statutory rights [Jones v. Humanscale Corp. (2005) 130 CA4th 401, 409-410, 29 CR3d 881].

Example:

In a dispute between an attorney and a former client, judicial review was appropriate because enforcement of a private arbitration clause that violates the client's rights under mandatory fee arbitration law would exceed an arbitrator's powers [Aguilar v. Lerner (2004) 32 C4th 974, 982-983, 12 CR3d 287 (by filing a malpractice action, the client waived his right to arbitrate the fee dispute under the mandatory fee arbitration law; therefore the attorney was entitled to binding contractual arbitration); see Schatz v. Allen Matkins Leck Gamble & Mallory LLP (2009) 45 C4th 557, 575, 87 CR3d 700, 198 P3d 1109 (mandatory fee arbitration law does not limit the ability of attorneys and clients to enter into binding contractual arbitration)].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of Mandatory Fee Arbitration Act, see 5.07[1][f].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionJudicial ReviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionValidity of ADR Methods

168 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate
VI. MOVING TO VACATE OR CORRECT ARBITRATION AWARD

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.31E

5.31E Court Must Correct Arbitration Award Under Specified Circumstances.

The court must correct the award and confirm it as corrected if the court determines any of the following [CCP § 1286.6]:

- There was an evident miscalculation of figures or an evident mistake in the description of any person, thing or property referred to in the award.
- The arbitrators exceeded their powers but the award may be corrected without affecting the merits of the decision upon the controversy submitted.
- The award is imperfect in a matter of form, not affecting the merits of the controversy.

Timing:

A petition to correct an award must be served and filed not later than 100 days after the date of the service of a signed copy of the award on the petitioner [CCP § 1288; see Eternity Investments, Inc. v. Brown (2007) 151 CA4th 739, 745-746, 60 CR3d 134].

Examples:

- In a wage claim case, the arbitrator exceeded his power by directing employee to pay half of the costs of arbitration. The trial court erred by vacating the entire award rather than merely correcting it because the correction would not affect the merits of the arbitrator's decision [Jones v. Humanscale Corp. (2005) 130 CA4th 401, 411-412, 29 CR3d 881].
- The trial court erred in correcting an arbitration award by striking an award of attorney's fees because it believed that the arbitrator failed to apply case law interpreting a statute. The arbitrator's alleged mistake was an error of law, not an act exceeding his powers, and the award was therefore not subject to judicial review [Taylor v. Van-Catlin Constr. (2005) 130 CA4th 1061, 1068].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionJudicial ReviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionValidity
of ADR Methods

169 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate
VII. FORMS

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.32

5.32 Demand for Arbitration.Demand for Arbitration.

Director, Litigation
Corporation, Inc.
1000 Main Street, Suite 4200
Farallon, CA 94000

_____ Re: Agreement dated

DEMAND FOR ARBITRATION

A dispute exists between you and the undersigned, _____ [name], relating to the agreement dated _____, for _____ [state nature of agreement or otherwise identify it, e.g. delivery of packaging equipment.] ("Agreement").

Under Paragraph _____ of the Agreement, disputes arising under the Agreement are to be settled by arbitration. That provision states the following: _____ [set out paragraph of agreement providing for arbitration].

THEREFORE, THE UNDERSIGNED HEREBY DEMANDS that the following dispute(s) be submitted to arbitration: _____ [set forth nature of dispute, e.g., the undersigned's entitlement to damages in the amount of $65,000, which resulted from defects in the packaging equipment delivered to the undersigned on September 16, 2008].

[EITHER, if single neutral arbitrator is to be used and contract specifies method of selection, demand compliance with the contractual procedure in as many paragraphs as necessary, for example]

TAKE NOTICE that the undersigned proposes any the following three persons as the neutral arbitrator:
 _____ [list names, addresses, and telephone numbers of proposed arbitrators].

TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that under Paragraph _____ of the Agreement, you have _____ days to agree to one of these persons as neutral arbitrator or to propose a counter list, and if you fail to do so, the undersigned has the right to petition the court for appointment of a neutral arbitrator pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 1281.6.

[OR, if single neutral arbitrator is to be used and contract does not specify method of selection, request agreement on a procedure in as many paragraphs as necessary, for example]

TAKE NOTICE that the undersigned intends to exercise his or her right to petition the court for appointment of a neutral arbitrator under Code of Civil Procedure Section 1281.6 if we have not selected a neutral arbitrator by _____ [date]. The undersigned suggests _____ [name persons who would be acceptable as neutral arbitrator or outline a procedure for selecting an arbitrator].

[OR, if panel of arbitrators it to be used, initiate contractual procedure for selecting panel, for example]

TAKE NOTICE that the undersigned has selected _____ [name] as a party arbitrator to act on their behalf in the dispute and hereby demands that you select a party arbitrator to act on your behalf in the dispute. Your selection must be made within _____ days after this demand is served on you.

TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that the party arbitrator acting on behalf of the undersigned will be ready to cooperate with the party arbitrator acting on your behalf, in the selection of a third, neutral arbitrator; in the settlement of the claims, controversies, and disputes existing between yourselves and the undersigned; and in the determination of all demands and differences arising out of the Agreement.

TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that should you refuse to select a party arbitrator to act on your behalf, as stated above, or should you otherwise refuse to arbitrate the disputes mentioned above, the undersigned will take further steps to proceed with arbitration according to law.

[CONTINUE]

Dated: _____

_____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

NOTES.

Authority:

CCP § 1281.2

Timing:

See 5.17[3]

Related Petition to Compel Arbitration:

See 5.33

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsFederal Arbitration ActOrders to Compel ArbitrationCivil
ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionValidity of ADR Methods

170 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate
VII. FORMS

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.33

5.33 Petition to Compel Arbitration.Petition to Compel Arbitration.

_____ [Name of attorney]
 _____ [Street address]
 _____ [City, state, and ZIP]
 _____ [Area code and phone number]
 _____ [State Bar no. of attorney]
 Attorney for _____ [name of party]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

[name] _____,
 Petitioner,
 vs.
 [name] _____,
 Respondent.

)
) NO.
) _____
)
) PETITION TO COMPEL ARBITRATION
) [LIMITED CIVIL CASE]
) [Amount demanded]
) _____
) _____ (exceeds or does not ex) ceed) $10,000]
) Date:
) _____
)
) _____
) Time:
) _____
) _____
) Dept:
) _____
) _____

Judge:

Date Action Filed:

Trial Date:

Petitioner alleges:

[EITHER]

1. The agreement alleged below _____ [is to be performed or was made] in Farallon County, California.

[OR]

1. The agreement alleged below does not specify a county where it is to be performed and was not made in California. _____ [Petitioner or Respondent] _____ [resides or has a place of business] in Farallon County, California at 1000 Main Street, Suite 4200, Farallon, CA 94000].

[CONTINUE]

2. On or about _____ [date], Petitioner and Respondent entered into a written agreement in which, in Paragraph _____, the parties agreed to arbitrate _____ [specify controversy subject to arbitration, e.g., all disputes arising out of the agreement]. A copy of the agreement is attached as Exhibit "A" and incorporated by reference.

3. On or about _____ [date], a controversy arose between Petitioner and Respondent in that _____ [describe controversy, e.g., Respondent refused to accept delivery of goods, which it claimed did not conform to the specifications agreed in the contract]. The arbitration agreement herein alleged requires that Petitioner and Respondent arbitrate their controversy _____ [as to the following issues: _____ (specify, e.g., contract specifications) or in its entirety].

4. On or about _____, Petitioner demanded that Respondent submit the _____ [issues or controversy] to arbitration as agreed. Respondent has at all times refused, and still refuses, to arbitrate.

[If agreement provides for joinder in arbitration of any third party who is not a party to the agreement but who is necessary for complete resolution of any matter required to be arbitrated and requires the arbitrator to determine whether anyone must be so joined, ADD]

5. The arbitration agreement which is Exhibit "A" to this petition includes in Paragraph _____ Respondent's consent to the intervention or joinder in the arbitration proceeding of all parties relevant for a full and complete settlement of any dispute arbitrated under the agreement which provides that the arbitrator determine, prior to the date set for the arbitration hearing, any person whose participation is material or relevant to a complete resolution of this dispute. Thus, the fact that _____ [name] has been named in the complaint but is not a party to the arbitration agreement does not prevent arbitration of this matter because Petitioner contends, and will seek to have the neutral arbitrator determine before the arbitration hearing, that _____ [name] is required to be joined in the arbitration.

[CONTINUE]

WHEREFORE, Petitioner prays:

1. That the court order Respondent to arbitrate the controversy as herein alleged.
2. That Petitioner be awarded costs of suit herein incurred.
3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Petitioner _____

NOTES.

Authority:

CCP §§ 1281.2, 1281.7, 1290

Drafting Petition:

See 5.20[1], [4]

Timing:

See 5.20[3]

Service:

See 5.20[4], [5]

Related Orders Granting or Denying Petition to Compel Arbitration:

See 5.20[7], [8], 5.21

Appealing Denial:

See 5.22

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsFederal Arbitration ActOrders to Compel ArbitrationCivil
ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionValidity of ADR Methods

171 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate

VII. FORMS

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.34

5.34 Notice of Hearing on Petition to Compel Arbitration.Notice of Hearing on Petition to Compel Arbitration.

_____ [Name of attorney]
 _____ [Street address]
 _____ [City, state, and ZIP]
 _____ [Area code and phone number]
 _____ [State Bar no. of attorney]
 Attorney for _____ [name of party]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
 COUNTY OF _____

[name] _____,
 Petitioner,
 vs.
 [name] _____,
 Respondent.

)
) NO.
) _____
) _____
) NOTICE OF HEARING ON PETITION TO COM-) PEL ARBITRATION
) [LIMITED CIVIL CASE]
) [Amount demanded]
) _____
) _____ (exceeds or does not ex) ceed) $10,000]
) Date:
) _____
) _____
) Time:
) _____
) _____
) Dept:
) _____

Judge:

Date Action Filed:

Trial Date:

To Respondent _____[name] and to _____[name], his/her attorney of record:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on _____[date], at _____[time], or as soon thereafter as the matter can be heard, in [Department _____ of] this court, located at _____[street address], _____[city], California, the petition of _____[name] for an order to arbitrate certain controversies specified in the petition, a copy of which is served herewith, will be heard by the court.

This petition is based on the following described papers which are served with this petition:

_____ [describe, e.g., motion, memorandum, and declaration of Petitioner, John Smith].

Dated: _____

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Petitioner _____

NOTES.

Authority:

CCP §§ 1290.2, 1290.4

Timing:

See 5.20[3]

Service:

See 5.20[4], [5]

Related Petition to Compel Arbitration:

See 5.33

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsFederal Arbitration ActOrders to Compel ArbitrationCivil
ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionValidity of ADR Methods

172 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate

VII. FORMS

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.35

5.35 Order Compelling Arbitration.Order Compelling Arbitration.

_____ [Name of attorney]
 _____ [Street address]
 _____ [City, state, and ZIP]
 _____ [Area code and phone number]
 _____ [State Bar no. of attorney]
 Attorney for _____ [name of party]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,

COUNTY OF _____

[name] _____,	)
Petitioner,	)	NO.
vs.	)	_____
[name] _____,	)
Respondent.	)	ORDER COMPELLING ARBITRATION
	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]
	)

_____ The petition of [name, e.g., John Smith] for an order compelling arbitration came on regularly for hearing on _____ [date]
 _____. Petitioner appeared through his/her counsel [name, e.g., _____] Tom Doe] and Respondent appeared through his/her counsel [name, e.g., Jane Lee].

Due and proper notice of the hearing of the petition having been given and proof having been made to the satisfaction of the court that the petition should be granted,

_____ IT IS ORDERED that Petitioner
[name, e.g., _____ John Smith] and Respondent [name, e.g., Mary Jones] arbitrate the controversies existing between them in accordance with the provisions of their agreement dated _____ [date], and that Petitioner recover his/her costs of this proceeding.

Dated: _____

_____ [signature]

Judge of the Superior Court

NOTES.

Authority:

CCP § 1281.2

Discussion:

See 5.20[7]

Related Petition to Compel Arbitration:

See 5.33, 5.34

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsFederal Arbitration ActOrders to Compel ArbitrationCivil
ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionValidity of ADR Methods

173 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate

VII. FORMS

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.36

5.36 Order Denying Arbitration and Dismissing Proceeding.Order Denying Arbitration and Dismissing Proceeding.

_____ [Name of attorney]
 _____ [Street address]
 _____ [City, state, and ZIP]
 _____ [Area code and phone number]
 _____ [State Bar no. of attorney]
 Attorney for _____ [name of party]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,

COUNTY OF _____

[name] _____,	)
Petitioner,	)	NO.
vs.	)	_____
[name] _____,	)	_____
Respondent.	)	ORDER DENYING ARBITRATION AND DIS-
	)	MISSING PROCEEDING
	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

_____ The petition of [name, e.g.,
 _____ John Smith] for an order compelling arbitration came on regularly for hearing on this date. Petitioner appeared through his/her counsel, [name, e.g., _____ Tom Doe] and Respondent appeared through his/her counsel, [name, e.g., Jane Lee].

_____ The court, having considered the [affidavit(s) or declaration(s)] and other documents and evidence in support of and in opposition to the petition, having heard the arguments of counsel, and being fully advised in the premises,

IT IS ORDERED that the petition to order arbitration is denied and the proceeding is dismissed, Respondent to recover his/her costs herein incurred.

Dated: _____

_____ [signature]

Judge of the Superior Court

NOTES.

Authority:

CCP § 1281.2

Related Forms:

See 5.33, 5.34

Appeal:

See 5.22

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsFederal Arbitration ActOrders to Compel ArbitrationCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionValidity of ADR Methods

174 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate
VII. FORMS

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.37

5.37 Notice of Motion to Stay Pending Action Until Arbitration Is Completed.Notice of Motion to Stay Pending Action Until Arbitration Is Completed.

_____ [Name of attorney]
 _____ [Street address]
 _____ [City, state, and ZIP]
 _____ [Area code and phone number]
 _____ [State Bar no. of attorney]
 Attorney for _____ [name of party]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

[name] _____,
 Plaintiff,
 vs.
 [name] _____,
 Defendant.

)
) NO.
) _____
)
) NOTICE OF MOTION TO STAY PROCEEDINGS
) [LIMITED CIVIL CASE]
) [Amount demanded]
) _____
) _____ (exceeds or does not ex) ceed) $10,000]
) Date:
) _____
)
)
) Time:
) _____
)
) Dept:
) _____
) _____

Judge:

Date Action Filed:

Trial Date:

_____ To [identify party, e.g., Plaintiff John Smith], and to his/her attorney of record:

[EITHER, if application for arbitration is pending]

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on _____ [date], at _____ [time] , or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in [_____ (Department or Division) of] this court, located at _____ [street address], _____ [city] _____, [specify moving party, e.g., Defendant Mary Jones] will, and hereby does, move for an order staying the proceedings herein until [identify party, e.g., defendant's] application to arbitrate, now pending before _____ [specify court], is determined and there is an arbitration, if it is ordered. The motion will be made on the ground that the controversy to be arbitrated pursuant to the application is an issue involved in the above entitled cause now pending before this court.

[OR, If arbitration has been ordered]

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on _____ [date], at _____ [time] , or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in [_____ (Department or Division) of] this court, located at _____ [street address], _____ [city] _____, [specify moving party, e.g., Defendant] will move for an order staying the proceedings herein until there is an arbitration in accordance with the order by _____ [specify court], a copy of which is attached to, and served with, this notice of motion, or until such earlier time as the court may order. The motion will be made on the ground that the controversy to be arbitrated pursuant to the order is an issue involved in the above entitled cause now pending before this court.

[CONTINUE]

_____ The motion will be based on this notice of motion, the declaration of [name, e.g., Defendant Mary Jones], and the memorandum served and filed with this notice, on the records and file of this case, and on any evidence that may be presented at the hearing of the motion.

Dated: _____

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____

[party's status, e.g., defendant]

SUPPORTING DECLARATION OF [name]

_____, I, [name, e.g., Mary Jones], say:

1. I am _____ [specify, e.g., the defendant in this action].

2. On _____ [date], I obtained an order compelling arbitration from] the Superior Court of California, County of Farallon.

3. The controversy subject to arbitration as _____ [stated in the petition mentioned above or ordered] is _____ [describe, e.g., regarding damages for failure to accept delivery of goods Plaintiff John Smith alleges were substandard]. This controversy is an issue involved in the above entitled cause now pending before this court in that _____ [specify, e.g., Plaintiff John Smith has filed the subject lawsuit claiming damages for delivery of substandard goods based upon the same shipment. This could result in potentially conflicting rulings].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

MEMORANDUM

[Add memorandum supporting motion]

NOTES.

Authority:

CCP § 1281.4

Related Order Staying Proceeding:

See 5.38

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsFederal Arbitration ActStays Pending Arbitration

175 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 5 Determining Whether to Arbitrate or Litigate
VII. FORMS

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 5.38

5.38 Order Staying Proceedings in Pending Action.Order Staying Proceedings in Pending Action.

_____ [Name of attorney]
 _____ [Street address]
 _____ [City, state, and ZIP]
 _____ [Area code and phone number]
 _____ [State Bar no. of attorney]
 Attorney for _____ [name of party]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

[name] _____,	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO.
[name] _____,	)	_____
Defendant.	)	_____
	)	ORDER
	)

The motion of _____ [name] _____ for an order to stay proceedings in the above entitled cause came on regularly for hearing this date. [identify party, e.g., plaintiff] appeared by his/her counsel _____ [name]
 _____ and [identify party, e.g., defendant] appeared by his/her counsel _____ [name].

Proof having been made to the satisfaction of the court that the motion should be granted and good cause appearing therefor,

_____. IT IS ORDERED that the above entitled [action or _____ proceeding] be stayed [specify, e.g., _____ as to all proceedings therein] until [arbitration has been concluded and award made in accordance with the Order Compelling Arbitration made by the Superior Court of California, County of Farallon, dated _____,

_____, or the Petition to Compel Arbitration now pending before the Superior Court of California, County of Farallon, is determined and arbitration is concluded if ordered therein or (date) _____,

_____, as specified by the court].
Dated: _____

_____ [signature]

Judge of the Superior Court

NOTES.

Authority:

CCP § 1281.4

Related Form:

See 5.37

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsFederal Arbitration ActStays Pending Arbitration

1 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.syn

§ 6.syn Synopsis to Chapter 6: Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions

6.01 Scope.

6.02 Objective and Strategy.

6.03 CHECKLIST: Seeking or Opposing Preliminary Injunction.

6.04 Options and Strategies.

6.05 Breach of Contract Can Be Enjoined in Some Cases.

6.05[1] Injunctive Relief Is Limited.

6.05[2] Injunction Can Obviate Specific Performance.

6.05[3] Injunction Can Enforce Personal Services Contract in Limited Situations.

6.05[4] Injunction Can Enforce Cooperative Marketing Contract.

6.05[5] Injunction Can Enforce Trust Agreement.

6.05[6] Injunction Can Enforce Noncompetition Agreement.

6.06 Preliminary Injunction May Protect Party During Litigation.

6.06[1] Injunction Can Preserve Status Quo.

6.06[2] Injunction Can Preclude Ineffectual Judgment.

6.06[3] Injunction Can Prevent Multiple Proceedings.

6.07 Circumstances Must Warrant Preliminary Injunction.

6.08 CHECKLIST: Seeking or Opposing Attachment.

6.09 Options and Strategies.

6.10 Attachment Is Available in Some Contract Actions.

6.10[1] Plaintiff Must Claim at Least $500 in Damages.

6.10[2] Claim May Be Secured by Personal Property.

6.10[3] Attachment Is Specifically Precluded by Statute in Some Cases.

6.10[3][a] Claim Secured by Real Property May Be Disqualified.

6.10[3][b] Claim Against Individual for Consumer Debt Is Disqualified.

6.10[3][c] Claim Against Individual Not Arising From Business Is Disqualified.

6.10[4] Plaintiff Must Show Probable Validity of Claim.

6.10[5] Unlawful Detainer Presents Special Case.

6.11 All Property of Corporation, Partnership, or Association Can Be Attached.

6.12 Only Nonexempt Property of Individual Can Be Attached.

6.12[1] Defendant Must Claim Exemption.

6.12[2] Fraudulent Transfer Could Generate Exception.

6.12[3] Subject Property Is Specified in Statutes.

6.12[3][a] Community Property Can Be Attached.

6.12[3][b] Declared Homestead Can Be Attached.

6.12[3][c] Attachment Lien on Homestead Is Limited.

6.12[3][d] Real Property Can Be Attached.

6.12[3][e] Mineral Interests Can Be Attached.

6.12[3][f] Equipment, Farm Products, and Inventory Can Be Attached.

6.12[3][g] Business-Related Intangible Property Can Be Attached.

6.12[3][h] Money Can Be Attached.

6.12[3][i] Negotiable Instruments Can Be Attached.

6.13 Plaintiff Can Obtain Provisional Injunctive Relief (Temporary Protective Order).

6.13[1] Plaintiff May Request Relief.

6.13[1][a] Plaintiff Must Show Great or Irreparable Injury.

6.13[1][b] Plaintiff Must Show Probable Validity of Claim.

6.13[2] Court May Issue Injunction in Lieu of Attachment.

6.13[3] Injunction Is Subject to Statutory Requirements.

6.13[3][a] Equitable Considerations Are Paramount.

6.13[3][b] Transfer of Property Generally May Be Prohibited.

6.13[3][c] Farm Products or Inventory Will Remain Transferrable.

6.13[3][d] Defendant May Continue to Issue Checks.

6.13[4] Service of Injunction Creates Lien on Attachable Property.

6.13[5] Injunction Is Short-Lived.

6.14 Plaintiff Can Obtain Turnover Order.

6.15 CHECKLIST: Seeking or Opposing Claim and Delivery.

6.16 Options and Strategies.

6.17 Application for Writ of Possession Is by Notice of Motion or Ex Parte.

6.18 Plaintiff Must Show Probable Validity of Claim.

6.19 Plaintiff Can Obtain Provisional Injunctive Relief.

6.20 Plaintiff Can Obtain Turnover Order.

6.21 Court Can Make Supplemental Orders.

6.22 CHECKLIST: Seeking or Opposing Appointment of Receiver.

6.23 Options and Strategies.

6.24 Existence of Alternative Remedy Does Not Bar Receivership.

6.25 Seller's Action to Recover Property Can Involve Receivership.

6.26 Creditor's Equitable Action Can Involve Receivership.

6.27 Equitable Action Between Partners, Joint Venturers, or Like Parties Can Involve Receivership.

6.28 Lender's Action to Enforce Assignment of Real Property Rents Can Involve Receivership.

6.29 Receiver Can Be Appointed Whenever Necessary to Preserve Property or Party's Rights.

6.30 Receiver Can Be Appointed for Property Subjected to Attachment.

6.31 Court May Appoint Receiver on Its Own Initiative.

6.32 CHECKLIST: Seeking or Opposing Turnover or Deposit in Court.

6.33 Options and Strategies.

6.34 Party Can Request Turnover of Money or Thing.

6.34[1] Court Has Power to Issue Turnover Order.

6.34[2] Claimant Must Move for Order.

6.34[3] Court May Impose Conditions or Order Deposit in Court.

6.35 Party Can Request Order for Deposit of Money or Thing in Court.

6.36 Defendant Can Preemptively Deposit Money in Court.

6.36[1] Defendant Must Tender, Allege, and Deposit Full Amount to Which Plaintiff Is Entitled.

6.36[2] Defendant Can Recover Costs.

6.36[3] Defendant Can Recover Attorney's Fees.

2 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions

I. STRATEGY

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.01

6.01 Scope.

This chapter covers selecting an appropriate provisional remedy, and determining how to oppose an application for such a remedy, in an action based on a contract. Possible remedies include:

- Preliminary injunction [see 6.03 -6.07].
- Attachment [see 6.08 -6.12].
- Provisional relief specific to attachment [see 6.13, 6.14, 6.30].
- Claim and delivery [see 6.15 -6.18].
- Provisional relief in aid of a writ of possession (for claim and delivery), including:
 - ☐ Injunctive relief [see 6.19];
 - ☐ A turnover order [see 6.20]; and
 - ☐ Supplemental orders [see 6.21].
- Appointment of a receiver [see 6.22 -6.29].
- Turnover orders and deposits in court [see 6.33 -6.36].

Core Statutes:

CCP §§ 481.010 et seq., 511.010 et seq., 525 et seq., 564 et seq., 572 et seq.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Injunctions General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Prejudgment Remedies General

OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesGeneral Overview

3 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions

I. STRATEGY

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.02

6.02 Objective and Strategy.

Provisional remedies in actions on contracts have the general purpose of holding one party (usually the defendant) in a stand-still position with respect to either property that is the subject of the litigation, or the party's conduct during the litigation, or the party's potential ability to pay damages if adjudged liable.

To protect any potential rights in property that is the subject of the litigation, the plaintiff can either:

- Use claim and delivery to obtain immediate possession, in a suit to recover the property (or, in lieu of obtaining possession, force the defendant to provide an undertaking to cover the plaintiff's potential damages if the property is not eventually delivered after a judgment) [see 6.16];
- Ask for appointment of a receiver, if there is a risk that the property will be harmed or removed by the defendant before a judgment can be enforced [see 6.23]; or
- Ask for an order that the property be deposited in court until a judgment can be rendered [see 6.33].

If the defendant has threatened to breach the parties' contract, in some cases the plaintiff can sue for a final injunction to prevent the breach, and in those cases the plaintiff can also obtain a preliminary injunction to prevent the breach from occurring during the litigation [see 6.04, 6.05].

With respect to either party's conduct during the litigation, the other party could obtain a preliminary injunction to preserve the status quo, prevent an ineffectual judgment, or prevent multiple proceedings [see 6.04, 6.06].

When the plaintiff sues for more than $500 in damages for breach of a commercial contract, and has reason to fear that the defendant's property, which could be levied on to enforce a judgment for damages, might be otherwise consumed or removed before a judgment could be enforced, the plaintiff can obtain issuance of a writ of attachment, for the purpose of keeping the defendant's property available for satisfaction of a judgment [see 6.09].

Detailed Discussion/Forms:

Permanent injunctions, see Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions, 8.59-8.71.

Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 18, TROs and Preliminary Injunctions; Ch. 19, Attachment; Ch. 20, Claim and Delivery.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 62, Attachment; Ch. 119, Claim and Delivery; Ch. 211, Deposit in Court; Ch. 303, Injunctions; Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender).

California Points and Authorities, Ch. 23, Attachment; Ch. 40, Claim and Delivery; Ch. 116, Injunctions; Ch. 200, Receivers (Matthew Bender).

Cross Reference:

For Tips on updating case law and expanding your research with additional resources, see How to Use Lexis.com With This Publication at the front of this volume.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Injunctions Preliminary & Temporary Injunctions Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Receiverships General Overview

4 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING OR OPPOSING PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.03

6.03 CHECKLIST: Seeking or Opposing Preliminary Injunction.

☐ If plaintiff is suing for breach of contract, determine if contract is one of following types for which injunctive relief is available:

☐ Contract, performance of which could be specifically enforced.

Authority:

CC § 3423(e); CCP § 526(b)(5)

Discussion:

See 6.05[2]

☐ Contract for personal services of actor or performing musician (or any other personal services contract meeting statutory compensation requirements).

Authority:

CC § 3423(e); CCP § 526(b)(5)

Discussion:

See 6.05[3]

☐ Exclusive output contract by member or shareholder of nonprofit cooperative marketing corporation or association.

Authority:

CC § 3423(e); CCP § 526(b)(5)

Discussion:

See 6.05[4]

- ☐ Trust agreement, if plaintiff is suing to prevent breach by trustee.

Authority:

CC § 3422; CCP § 526(a)(7)

Discussion:

See 6.05[5]

- ☐ Enforceable noncompetition agreement.

Authority:

B&P Code §§ 16601-16602.5; CCP §§ 526(a)(1), 527(a); Monogram Indus., Inc. v. Sar Indus., Inc. (1976) 64 CA3d 692, 703, 134 CR 714

Discussion:

See 6.05[6]

- ☐ Determine whether preliminary injunction can be obtained by either party (although usually by plaintiff) because of necessity.

- ☐ Is injunction needed to preserve status quo by preventing commission or continuance of some act during litigation that would produce waste, or great or irreparable injury, to moving party?

Authority:

CCP § 526(a)(2)

Discussion:

See 6.06[1]

- ☐ Is injunction needed to protect moving party by preventing some act in violation of party's rights respecting subject of action and tending to render judgment ineffectual?

Authority:

CCP § 526(a)(3)

Discussion:

See 6.06[2]

- ☐ Is injunction needed to prevent multiple proceedings?

Authority:

CCP § 526(a)(6)

Discussion:

See 6.06[3]

- ☐ Determine whether preliminary injunction can be obtained because circumstances warrant it, in exercise of judicial discretion.

Authority:

CCP § 527(a); Common Cause of Cal. v. Board of Supervisors (1989) 49 C3d 432, 441-442, 261 CR 574, 777 P2d 610

Discussion:

See 6.07

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Injunctions Preliminary & Temporary Injunctions Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies General Overview

5 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING OR OPPOSING PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.04

6.04 Options and Strategies.

Injunctive relief as a provisional remedy in an action based on a contract can be obtained in three basic contexts:

- When the complaint demands an injunction as ultimate relief, the plaintiff can sometimes obtain the same relief on a preliminary basis for the duration of the litigation (and usually from the outset), provided there is compelling evidence of the need for that relief and of the propriety of giving it [see CCP §§ 525, 526(a)(1), 527(a)]. That remedy is called a preliminary injunction. There are situations in which the impending breach of a contract can be enjoined [see 6.05], and in such a case, the plaintiff may be entitled to a preliminary injunction.
- When a party demands other equitable relief--such as rescission and restitution, reformation of the contract, or cancellation of the contract--the party can sometimes obtain temporary injunctive relief, if necessary, on the ground that damages would not afford adequate relief or that computing the amount of damages would be extremely difficult [see CCP §§ 525, 526(a)(4), (5), 527(a)]. That remedy, too, is called a preliminary injunction. As one or both of those grounds would be proved, or be taken as given, in an action for equitable relief, and since in any case those grounds would be considered by the court whenever a party applies for a preliminary injunction [see 6.07], they are not discussed further in this chapter.
- In any kind of case, regardless of the ultimate relief demanded, a party can sometimes obtain temporary injunctive relief when it is necessary and appropriate to restrain another party from doing some act while the litigation is pending. That remedy, too, is called a preliminary injunction. The situations in which it could be available in an action based on a contract are prescribed by statute [see CCP §§ 525, 526(a)(2), (3), 527(a); 6.06].

A temporary restraining order (TRO) is a procedural device in aid of a preliminary injunction, which a judge will issue to maintain the status quo between the parties until the application for the preliminary injunction can be heard. In practice, a TRO is almost always obtained ex parte, for which the applicant for the preliminary injunction must show that:

- Unless the TRO is issued, great or irreparable injury will result to the applicant before the matter can be heard on notice [CCP § 527(c)(1)]; and

- The applicant gave the other party reasonable notice of the time and place for requesting the TRO, or a good faith attempt to do that was unavailing, or for a specified reason no such notice should be given to the other party [CCP § 527(c)(2)].

Strategic Point:

A preliminary injunction cannot be issued without prior notice to the other party [CCP § 527(a)]. Normally a hearing on the application for a preliminary injunction is set by a regular notice of motion; but if the applicant obtains a TRO, then the preliminary injunction hearing is set by an order to show cause.

Distinguish--Prohibitory and Mandatory Injunctions:

By statute, a preliminary injunction requires a person to refrain from a particular act [see CCP § 525; see also CC §§ 3420, 3421 (injunctions give "preventive relief"; provisional injunctions are governed by Code of Civil Procedure)]. There is no statutory authority for a court to issue a mandatory preliminary injunction, that is, one directing a person to do a particular act. Nevertheless, courts have been willing to issue mandatory preliminary injunctions. An order granting an application for a preliminary injunction can be immediately appealed [CCP § 904.1(a)(6)]; and to the extent that the injunction is mandatory, enforcement of it is automatically stayed by the filing of a notice of appeal [Kettenhofen v. Superior Court (1961) 55 C2d 189, 191, 10 CR 356, 358 P2d 684].

Consider--Union Contracts; Arbitration Agreements:

Preliminary injunctions affecting the enforcement of collective bargaining agreements or the enforcement of arbitration agreements can be obtained in appropriate cases, but they are beyond the scope of this chapter.

Cross References:

Seeking permanent injunctions in contract actions, see Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions, 8.59 -8.71.

Checklist for seeking injunctive relief, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, 18.03.

Checklist for opposing injunctive relief, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, 18.12.

Forms for obtaining TRO and preliminary injunction, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, 18.26 -18.30.

Discussion of practice respecting notice of motion or order to show cause, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 372, Motions and Orders (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Injunctions Preliminary & Temporary Injunctions Civil Procedure Remedies Prejudgment Remedies General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies General Overview

6 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING OR OPPOSING PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.05

6.05 Breach of Contract Can Be Enjoined in Some Cases.

6.05[1] Injunctive Relief Is Limited. Injunctive relief, including a preliminary injunction, can be obtained to prevent the breach of a contract in the following situations:

- To prevent the breach of a contract the performance of which could be specifically enforced [see CC § 3423(e); CCP § 526(b)(5); see also 6.05[2]].
- To prevent the breach of a written contract by an actor or a performing musician (or the breach of any other personal-services contract), provided certain conditions exist [see CC § 3423(e); CCP § 526(b)(5); see also 6.05[3]].
- To prevent the breach of an exclusive output contract by a member or shareholder of a nonprofit cooperative marketing corporation or association [see CC § 3423(e); CCP § 526(b)(5); see also 6.05[4]].
- To prevent the breach of a trust agreement by the trustee [see CC § 3422; CCP § 526(a)(7); see also 6.05[5]].
- To prevent the breach of an enforceable noncompetition agreement [see 6.05[6]].

Strategic Point:

Apart from the above situations, an injunction usually will not be issued to prevent the breach of a contract because, in any other situation, obtaining injunctive relief would require proof of one of the following conditions [see CC § 3422; CCP § 526(a)(4), (5); see also 6.07], which usually cannot be proved with respect to the breach of a contract:

- Damages (on being recovered after a breach) would not afford adequate relief; or
- It would be extremely difficult to ascertain the amount of compensation that would afford adequate relief.

Cross Reference:

Detailed discussion of circumstances under which a permanent injunction may be granted in a contract action, see Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions, 8.63 -8.67.

6.05[2] Injunction Can Obviate Specific Performance. Since an injunction cannot be granted to prevent the breach of a contract the performance of which could not be specifically enforced [see CC § 3423(e)], implicitly an injunction can be granted to prevent the breach of a contract the performance of which would be specifically enforced. In other words, if the breach of a contract would entitle the aggrieved party to have a decree of specific performance, then the aggrieved party may obtain an injunction to prevent the breach (on proof of required conditions). The aggrieved party can obtain a preliminary injunction in such a case [CCP § 526(b)(5)], on a showing of sufficient grounds [CCP § 527(a)].

Strategic Point--Applicant:

Whether specific performance actually would be decreed is beside the point. The preliminary injunction can be issued if specific performance would be a possible remedy for breach of the contract [see, e.g., Southern Christian Leadership Conference v. Al Malaikah Auditorium Co. (1991) 230 CA3d 207, 224, 281 CR 216 (action to enforce contract to make lease); Steinmeyer v. Warner Consol. Corp. (1974) 42 CA3d 515, 519-520, 116 CR 57 (action to enforce contract to transfer corporation stock that was not obtainable on market)].

Strategic Point--Opponent:

The obvious line of attack is to argue that the contract could not be specifically enforced. When that argument is convincing, the application for a preliminary injunction should be denied [see CCP § 526(b)(5); see, e.g., Thayer Plymouth Ctr., Inc. v. Chrysler Motors Corp. (1967) 255 CA2d 300, 303-305, 63 CR 148 (car dealership contract could not be specifically enforced against manufacturer; trial court improperly issued preliminary injunction)]. If the complaint requests specific performance in such a case, then parallel arguments could be that (1) the applicant cannot be expected to prevail on the merits and (2) damages would be an adequate remedy, since each of those is a basis for denying an application for a preliminary injunction [see 6.07].

Consider:

Whether the contract could be specifically enforced might be determined in reliance on a provision of the contract authorizing a party to enforce the other party's obligations by any proceeding in law or equity [see Zakaria v. Lincoln Prop. Co. (1986) 185 CA3d 500, 510, 229 CR 669].

Cross References:

Requirement to show sufficient grounds for preliminary injunction, see 6.07.

Seeking permanent injunctions in contract actions, see Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions, 8.59 -8.71.

Discussion of specific performance as remedy for breach of contract, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 528, Specific Performance (Matthew Bender).

Memorandum supporting or opposing issuance of preliminary injunction to prevent breach of contract that would be specifically enforceable, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 116, Injunctions (Matthew Bender).

6.05[3] Injunction Can Enforce Personal Services Contract in Limited Situations. An injunction can be granted to prevent the breach of a contract in writing for the rendition of personal services from one person to another if both of the following conditions are satisfied [CC § 3423(e)]:

- The promised service is of a special, unique, unusual, extraordinary, or intellectual character, which gives it peculiar value, the loss of which cannot be reasonably or adequately compensated in damages in an action at law; and
- The individual who promised to render the service has received compensation for the covered personal services commensurate with a detailed and complex statutory formula [see CC § 3423(e)(2)].

The aggrieved party can obtain a preliminary injunction in such a case [CCP § 526(b)(5)(B)], on a showing of sufficient grounds [CCP § 527(a)].

Consider:

Attorneys may find the statute confusing because it speaks in general terms and prescribes an arcane compensation formula as a test for when the statute can be applied. In practice, the statute usually will be applied to an exclusive performance contract between an athlete, actor, or musician (or some other performance artist) and a producer or impresario [see, e.g., MCA Records, Inc. v. Newton-John (1979) 90 CA3d 18, 22, 153 CR 153 (applying former version of statute)]. The peculiar compensation formula is the result of negotiations between the legislative sponsor of the 1993 amendment putting it in place and various interested persons including talent attorneys, representatives from the recording, television, and motion picture industry, and unions for performing artists [see generally Assembly Committee on Judiciary, Report on SB 487 (Aug. 18, 1993); see also Motown Record Corp. v. Brockert (1984) 160 CA3d 123, 128-129, 207 CR 574 (description and explanation of practical problems caused by previous version of statute, which 1993 negotiated amendment was expected to cure)].

The compensation formula refers to an employment period of up to seven years because, under the Labor Code, a contract to render personal service, other than a contract of apprenticeship, generally may not be enforced against the employee beyond seven years from the commencement of service under the contract [see Lab Code § 2855(a)]. When a court issues a preliminary injunction under CCP § 526(b)(5), it cannot endure beyond the expiration of the contract being enforced, or beyond the statutory period of seven years, whichever period of duration would be shorter. Because it is a preliminary injunction, it also cannot endure beyond the conclusion of the action in which it is issued; and a plaintiff's general duty to exercise due diligence in the prosecution of an action and to bring it to conclusion within a reasonable time [see CCP §§ 581, 583.310 et seq., 583.410 et seq.] is particularly strong when a preliminary injunction is in effect [see MCA Records, Inc. v. Newton-John (1979) 90 CA3d 18, 24, 153 CR 153].

Strategic Point:

Generally a contract to render personal services or to employ a person in personal service cannot be specifically enforced [CC § 3390; see generally, e.g., Woolley v. Embassy Suites, Inc. (1991) 227 CA3d 1520, 1533-1534, 278 CR 719 (reasons why such contracts are not specifically enforceable)]. Therefore, except when the foregoing special statute applies, the breach of such a contract cannot be prevented by an injunction [CC § 3423(e); CCP § 526(b)(5)].

Cross References:

Requirement to show sufficient grounds for preliminary injunction, see 6.07.

Discussion of injunctive relief to enforce personal services contract, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 249, Employment Law: Termination and Discipline; see also Ch. 528, Specific Performance (Matthew Bender).

Memorandum supporting issuance of preliminary injunction to prevent breach of personal-services contract, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 116, Injunctions (Matthew Bender).

6.05[4] Injunction Can Enforce Cooperative Marketing Contract. Two statutory provisions authorize a cooperative marketing association to obtain an injunction to prevent the breach of a cooperative marketing agreement by a producer or provider of a commodity covered by the agreement:

- An injunction may be granted to prevent the breach of a contract entered into between any nonprofit cooperative corporation or association and a member of the association or shareholder of the corporation, in respect to any provision regarding the sale or delivery to the association or corporation of the products produced or acquired by the member or shareholder [CC § 3423(e); see generally Poultry Producers of S. Cal., Inc. v. Barlow (1922) 189 C 278, 285-286, 208 P 93 (opinion that was partially abrogated by 1925 amendment adding this statutory provision)]. The association can obtain a preliminary injunction in such a case [CCP § 526(b)(5)], on a showing of sufficient grounds [CCP § 527(a)].

- If there is a threatened breach of a marketing contract by a member of an association that is governed by the nonprofit cooperative associations law [see F&A Code § 54001 et seq.], the association is entitled to an injunction to prevent the threatened breach and is entitled to a decree of specific performance of the contract. Pending the adjudication of the action, the association is entitled to a temporary restraining order and a preliminary injunction against the member [F&A Code § 54265].

Distinguish:

When the association can invoke F&A Code § 54265, no showing of other "sufficient grounds" [see CCP § 527(a); see also 6.07] is required to support the issuance of a preliminary injunction or a temporary restraining order [cf. In re Marriage of Van Hook (1983) 147 CA3d 970, 984-985, 195 CR 541 (usual equitable grounds need not be shown to obtain injunctive relief authorized by statute--in this case, former CC § 4359--when statutory conditions for issuance are satisfied)].

Decision Point:

Cooperative marketing contracts are specifically enforceable by the marketing association in many cases [see, e.g., Corp Code § 13356 (nonprofit fish-marketing association's contract); F&A Code §§ 54263, 54265 (nonprofit cooperative association's contract); see also Colma Vegetable Ass'n v. Bonetti (1928) 91 CA 103, 114, 267 P 172 (application of former cooperative marketing act)], and thus they would also be enforceable by injunction on that ground [see 6.05[2]].

Cross Reference:

Requirement to show sufficient grounds for preliminary injunction, see 6.07.

6.05[5] Injunction Can Enforce Trust Agreement. An injunction may be granted to prevent the breach of an obligation arising from a trust [CC § 3422]. The aggrieved party can obtain a preliminary injunction in such a case [CCP § 526(a)(7)], on a showing of sufficient grounds [CCP § 527(a)].

► Cross Reference:

Requirement to show sufficient grounds for preliminary injunction, see 6.07.

6.05[6] Injunction Can Enforce Noncompetition Agreement. Although noncompetition agreements generally are prohibited [see B&P Code § 16600], it is possible to make an enforceable noncompetition agreement in limited circumstances:

- The seller of a business can agree not to compete with the buyer [B&P Code § 16601].
- A withdrawing partner can agree not to compete with the partnership [B&P Code § 16602].
- A withdrawing member of a limited liability company can agree not to compete with the company [B&P Code § 16602.5].

Such an agreement can be enforced by a final injunction [see, e.g., Martinez v. Martinez (1953) 41 C2d 704, 706, 263 P2d 617; City Carpet Beating etc. Works v. Jones (1894) 102 C 506, 509-515, 36 P 841]. Therefore, the aggrieved party can obtain a preliminary injunction in a suit for a final injunction [CCP § 526(a)(1)], on a showing of sufficient grounds [CCP § 527(a); e.g., Monogram Indus., Inc. v. Sar Indus., Inc. (1976) 64 CA3d 692, 703, 134 CR 714].

Distinguish:

An employee's contractual obligation not to compete with the employer after termination of the employment generally is not enforceable except as necessary to protect the employer's trade secrets and properly confidential information [B&P Code § 16600; see, e.g., Fortna v. Martin (1958) 158 CA2d 634, 638-640, 323 P2d 146 (judgment granting final injunction against employee was reversed)].

► Cross References:

Requirement to show sufficient grounds for preliminary injunction, see 6.07.

Permanent injunction enforcing noncompetition agreement, see Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions, 8.65.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Injunctions Preliminary & Temporary Injunctions Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Injunctive Relief Contracts Law Remedies Specific Performance Contracts Law Types of Contracts Personal Service Agreements

7 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING OR OPPOSING PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.06

6.06 Preliminary Injunction May Protect Party During Litigation.

6.06[1] Injunction Can Preserve Status Quo. A preliminary injunction may be granted when it appears from the complaint or affidavits that the commission or continuance of some act during the litigation would produce waste, or great or irreparable injury, to a party to the action [CCP § 526(a)(2)].

Example:

Defendant, the owner of a parcel of land, agreed to build a house on it and then to convey the house and land to plaintiff, who opened an escrow account with a deposit for the transaction. When the house was finished, defendant directed the escrow agent to cancel the escrow, since plaintiff had failed (unwittingly, because of the escrow agent's misinformation) to place additional money in the escrow account. Defendant conveyed the house and land to a third person. Plaintiff was determined to have the house and promptly sued both defendant and the third person, asking for specific performance of the contract between plaintiff and defendant, and other appropriate relief. Plaintiff also obtained a temporary restraining order preventing the third person from moving in, which the court continued in the form of a preliminary injunction. On appeal, the injunction was upheld. The appellate court observed that while the question was a close one, plaintiff had made a convincing argument that the difference between a new house and a used one, as perceived by a buyer of ordinary sensitivity, is a difference of character and not merely of value. Viewed in this light, there was substantial evidence from which the trial court could find a risk of irreparable injury to plaintiff if the third person were allowed to move in. Further, the trial court could find that this risk outweighed the risk of harm likely to result from issuance of the preliminary injunction [Grey v. Webb (1979) 97 CA3d 232, 237-238, 158 CR 595].

Distinguish:

In a federal court action governed by the Erie doctrine, this ground will be treated as one of the equitable considerations in determining whether to issue a preliminary injunction [see 6.07]--that is, it will always be considered--and will be expressed as the principle that maintenance of the status quo (or "status quo ante litem") is the purpose of a preliminary injunction [see, e.g., Kaiser Trading Co. v. Associated Metals & Minerals Corp. (ND Cal 1970) 321 F Supp 923, 935].

6.06[2] Injunction Can Preclude Ineffectual Judgment. A preliminary injunction may be granted when it appears, during the litigation, that a party to the action is doing, or threatens, or is about to do, or is procuring or suffering to be done, some act in violation of the rights of another party to the action respecting the subject of the action, and tending to render the judgment ineffectual [CCP § 526(a)(3)].

Example:

Defendant agreed to sell all of the stock of a corporation to plaintiff, who in return gave defendant a promissory note backed by a letter of credit, which was payable by the issuing bank on its presentment along with the note and defendant's statement that plaintiff had defaulted in payment on the note. The note entitled plaintiff to an offset for the amount of any loss, liability, or damages suffered in connection with the parties' agreement. On discovering substantial undisclosed liabilities on the corporation's books, plaintiff gave notice of intention to exercise the offset right--which would reduce the unpaid principal on the note by 80 percent. Intending to have the stock at the reduced price, plaintiff sued defendant and the bank, and the trial court issued a preliminary injunction to prohibit defendant's presentment to the bank of the documents needed to authorize payment of the letter of credit. The injunction was proper for two reasons, one being that the stock transfer agreement was specifically enforceable because the corporation stock could not be obtained on the market and therefore had peculiar value [see CCP § 526(b)(5); see also 6.05[2]]. In addition, plaintiff had argued, defendant and affiliated parties were not California residents and had few assets in California; therefore, any judgment against them for wrongfully negotiating the letter of credit probably could not be satisfied except through litigation elsewhere. The appellate court observed that this consideration was sufficient to invoke the trial court's power to grant a preliminary injunction when a party is threatening to do an act that would render the court's judgment ineffectual [Steinmeyer v. Warner Consol. Corp. (1974) 42 CA3d 515, 520, 116 CR 57].

Strategic Point--Protection of Procedural Rights:

The rights protectable by the injunction include a party's procedural rights, such as the right to have discovery. A preliminary injunction can require the other party to refrain from destroying potentially relevant evidence--for instance, refrain from modifying or deleting computer files--in the party's possession or control [Dodge, Warren & Peters Ins. Servs., Inc. v. Riley (2003) 105 CA4th 1414, 1418-1419, 130 CR2d 385].

Strategic Point--Defendant's Potential Insolvency:

If the defendant can be expected to be insolvent (or otherwise unable to pay damages) by the time a judgment for damages would be collectable, the court may take that expectation into account in determining whether the plaintiff may have a preliminary injunction aimed at keeping the defendant solvent [West Coast Constr. Co. v. Oceano Sanitary Dist. (1971) 17 CA3d 693, 700, 95 CR 169 (sanitation district could be prevented from spending money dedicated sewer construction fund during pendency of construction company's action to be paid for sewer construction)].

6.06[3] Injunction Can Prevent Multiple Proceedings. A preliminary injunction may be granted when the restraint is necessary to prevent a multiplicity of judicial proceedings [CCP § 526(a)(6); see generally Advanced Bionics Corp. v. Medtronic, Inc. (2002) 29 C4th 697, 704-708, 128 CR2d 172, 59 P3d 231 (discussion of power to enjoin other judicial proceedings)].

Distinguish:

On this ground, but not for any other reason, the injunction may stay a judicial proceeding pending at the commencement of the action in which the injunction is demanded [CCP § 526(b)(1)]. Ordinarily, the injunction would be aimed at staying proceedings not then pending, which a party subsequently attempts to get underway in another court [see Glade v. Glade (1995) 38 CA4th 1441, 1455, 45 CR2d 695].

Exceptions:

The injunction cannot do either of the following:

- Stay proceedings in a court of the United States [CCP § 526(b)(2)]; or
- Stay proceedings in another state on a judgment of a court of that state [CCP § 526(b)(3)].

Strategic Point--Power to Restrain Subsequent Proceeding:

The first court to assert subject matter jurisdiction possesses the power and authority to grant equitable relief restraining proceedings in another court that threaten to impair the judgment in the first court [Franklin & Franklin v. 7- Eleven Owners for Fair Franchising (2000) 85 CA4th 1168, 1176, 102 CR2d 770 ; see, e.g., In re Marriage of Van Hook (1983) 147 CA3d 970, 987, 195 CR 541].

Strategic Point--Risk That Court Will Stay Proceedings:

A party planning to apply for a preliminary injunction on the ground of avoiding a multiplicity of actions should bear in mind that the court could decide that the other proceedings should continue, and therefore the court might, either spontaneously or on the other party's motion, stay proceedings in the present action [see, e.g., Seidman & Seidman v. Wolfson (1975) 50 CA3d 826, 833-834, 123 CR 873].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Injunctions Preliminary & Temporary Injunctions Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Injunctive Relief

8 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING OR OPPOSING PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.07

6.07 Circumstances Must Warrant Preliminary Injunction.

The governing statute requires a showing of "sufficient grounds" for the issuance of a preliminary injunction [CCP § 527(a)]. This is not a reference to one of the statutory grounds listed in CCP § 526 (which of course must be shown) but is an invocation of the judicial discretion that must be applied in the exercise of equity jurisdiction [cf. Kaiser Trading Co. v. Associated Metals & Minerals Corp. (ND Cal 1970) 321 F Supp 923, 933 (even though preliminary injunction is allowed, or is not prohibited, by CCP § 526, issuance is still in court's discretion and requires showing of equitable grounds)]. Trial courts traditionally consider and weigh two factors in determining whether to issue a preliminary injunction [e.g., Common Cause of Cal. v. Board of Supervisors (1989) 49 C3d 432, 441-442, 261 CR 574, 777 P2d 610; Jay Bharat Developers, Inc. v. Minidis (2008) 167 CA4th 437, 443-444, 84 CR3d 267 (injunction prohibiting terminated franchisees from continuing to use franchisor's trademark was appropriate)]:

- Is the applicant likely to prevail on the merits in the action?
- Would the applicant be more harmed by withholding the injunction than the other party would be harmed by issuing it?

The greater the showing on one factor, the less must be shown on the other to support an injunction [Butt v. State (1992) 4 C4th 668, 678, 15 CR2d 480, 842 P2d 1240].

Strategic Point--Risk of Great or Irreparable Harm:

There is no requirement to show the probability of great or irreparable harm to the applicant in the event the injunction is not issued, except in a situation in which that requirement is imposed by the governing statute [see, e.g., CCP § 526(a)(2); see also 6.06[1]; but see, e.g., Kaiser Trading Co. v. Associated Metals & Minerals Corp. (ND Cal 1970) 321 F Supp 923, 930-931 (showing of irreparable harm is required to obtain preliminary injunction in federal court)]. Nevertheless, courts usually consider that probability when determining to what extent the applicant would be harmed by withholding the injunction [see, e.g., Dodge, Warren & Peters Ins. Servs., Inc. v. Riley (2003) 105 CA4th 1414, 1420-1421, 130 CR2d 385].

Strategic Point--Absence of Adequate Alternative Remedy:

There also is no requirement to show the absence of an adequate alternative remedy. Again, however, the court, in determining to what extent the applicant would be harmed by withholding the injunction, usually will consider whether an adequate alternative remedy is available [see, e.g., Abrams v. St. John's Hosp. & Health Ctr. (1994) 25 CA4th 628, 636, 30 CR2d 603] .

Consider:

A contract provision for liquidated damages anticipates the possibility that it could be extremely difficult to ascertain the amount of compensation affording adequate relief in the event of a breach [see, e.g., CC § 1671]; thus a liquidated damages provision tends to negate an argument that damages would not afford adequate relief.

Strategic Point--Opponent:

An application for a preliminary injunction usually can be defeated by showing simply that one of the two factors cannot be established--that is, either (1) the applicant cannot be expected to prevail in the action or (2) the balance of potential harms does not tip in the applicant's favor [e.g., Jessen v. Keystone Savings & Loan Assn. (1983) 142 CA3d 454, 459, 191 CR 104] . However, the California Supreme Court has indicated a willingness to allow the issuance of a preliminary injunction if the party seeking the injunction can make a sufficiently strong showing of likelihood of success on the merits, notwithstanding an inability to show that the balance of harms tips in that party's favor [see Common Cause of Cal. v. Board of Supervisors (1989) 49 C3d 432, 446-447, 261 CR 574, 777 P2d 610 ; but see White v. Davis (2003) 30 C4th 528, 561, 133 CR2d 648, 68 P3d 74 (explaining that statement in Common Cause did not suggest that when applicant makes sufficient showing of likely success on merits, court need not consider relative balance of hardships at all, or that when balance of hardships dramatically favors denial of preliminary injunction, court nonetheless may grant preliminary injunction on basis of likelihood-of-success factor alone)].

Decision Point:

If the court fails to make explicit findings of fact with respect to the equitable grounds for a preliminary injunction, but there is evidence in the record that could support any unexpressed findings of fact, an appellate court may presume that the trial court made the necessary findings [MCA Records, Inc. v. Newton-John (1979) 90 CA3d 18, 23, 153 CR 153] . The parties should bear this in mind when deciding whether to request explicit findings.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of how court determines whether to issue preliminary injunction, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 303.43 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Injunctions Preliminary & Temporary Injunctions Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Injunctive Relief

9 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions

III. SEEKING OR OPPOSING ATTACHMENT

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.08

6.08 CHECKLIST: Seeking or Opposing Attachment.

☐ Determine whether attachment is available in present action.

☐ Confirm that plaintiff is seeking at least $500 in damages for breach of contract.

Authority:

CCP § 483.010(a)

Discussion:

See 6.10[1]

☐ Ascertain that claim is not adequately secured by real property.

Authority:

CCP § 483.010(b)

Discussion:

See 6.10[3][a]

☐ Confirm that claim is not against individual for consumer debt.

Authority:

CCP § 483.010(c)

Discussion:

See 6.10[3][b]

☐ If claim is against individual, confirm that it arose from defendant's conduct of trade, business, or profession.

Authority:*CCP § 483.010(c)Discussion:

See 6.10[3][c]

- ☐ Determine if plaintiff can show probable validity of claim.

Authority:*CCP §§ 484.090(a)(2), 485.220(a)(2)Discussion:

See 6.10[4]

- ☐ Determine if defendant has property that could be levied on under writ of attachment.

- ☐ Confirm that defendant is corporation, partnership, or other unincorporated association, all of whose property is subject to attachment.

Authority:*CCP § 487.010(a), (b)Discussion:

See 6.11

- ☐ Determine whether individual defendant has nonexempt property that is subject to attachment.

Authority:*CCP § 487.010(c)Discussion:

See 6.12

- ☐ Determine whether plaintiff should apply for provisional relief in aid of attachment.

- ☐ Determine whether injunctive relief (temporary protective order) is appropriate.

Authority:*CCP § 486.010Discussion:

See 6.13

- ☐ Determine whether turnover order is appropriate, provided writ of attachment has been issued.

Authority:*CCP § 482.080Discussion:

See 6.14

- ☐ Determine whether appointment of receiver for property subjected to attachment is appropriate.

Authority:

CCP § 488.700

Discussion:

See 6.30

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Prejudgment Remedies General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies Attachments

10 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions
III. SEEKING OR OPPOSING ATTACHMENT

*1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.096.09 Options and Strategies.

The provisional remedy called attachment generally is available only in an action asserting a claim for money that is based--or multiple claims for money, each of which is based--on a contract, express or implied, if the total amount claimed is a fixed or readily ascertainable amount not less than $500 exclusive of costs, interest, and attorney's fees [CCP § 483.010(a)]. In some cases, however, attachment is specifically precluded by statute [see 6.10[3]]. Attachment is intended to be limited to cases arising out of commercial transactions [Law Revision Commission cmt to CCP § 483.010, 11 Cal L Rev Comm'n Reports 562 (1973)] and usually is ineffectual or unavailable in actions on secured claims [see 6.10[2], [3][a]].

Strategic Points:

- An attachment may be issued whether or not other forms of relief are demanded [CCP § 483.010(d)].
- If a specific statute authorizes attachment in a particular situation, that statute is not abrogated by the Attachment Law [see Law Revision Commission cmt to CCP § 483.010, 11 Cal L Rev Comm'n Reports 562 (1973)].

Distinguish--Individual As Defendant Compared to Entity As Defendant:

When the defendant is an individual, the availability of attachment is limited to situations in which the plaintiff's claim arose from the defendant's conduct of a trade, business, or profession [see CCP § 483.010(c); see also 6.10[3][c]]. When the defendant is a corporation or a partnership or some unincorporated association, it does not matter whether the defendant is organized for profit or not for profit, nor does it matter whether the plaintiff's claim arose from an activity in which the entity was engaged for profit [Law Revision Commission cmt to CCP § 483.010, 26 Cal L Rev Comm'n Reports 321 (1996)].

Decision Point--Attachment Compared to Claim and Delivery:

Attachment is a remedy by which a plaintiff with a contractual claim to money may have various items of the defendant's property seized before judgment and held by the levying officer for execution after judgment. The attachment statutes contain no provision for releasing attached property to the plaintiff before judgment; instead, the attached property is held for possible execution after judgment, in the event the plaintiff succeeds in obtaining a judgment. Claim and delivery, in contrast, is a remedy by which a plaintiff with a superior right to a specific item of personal property (created, most commonly, by a contractual lien) may recover possession of that specific property before judgment [Waffer Int'l Corp. v. Khorsandi (1999) 69 CA4th 1261, 1271, 82 CR2d 241 ; see 6.15 et seq. (claim and delivery)].

Strategic Point--Attachment Compared to Preliminary Injunction:

Nothing in the Attachment Law precludes granting provisional injunctive relief [CCP § 482.020]. Thus, the availability of attachment as a remedy should not be a reason for the court to refuse to issue a preliminary injunction. The remedies provided by the Attachment Law are not intended to be exclusive. In some circumstances, attachment, while theoretically available, may be impractical or ineffectual; or attachment may be withheld because of a close factual issue respecting liability. In these situations, an injunction may provide a more satisfactory remedy, and so the ruling on an application for injunctive relief should not be prejudiced by the theoretical availability of attachment as an alternative remedy [Law Revision Commission cmt to CCP § 482.020, 11 Cal L Rev Comm'n Reports 559 (1973); see 6.03 et seq. (discussion of preliminary injunctions in contract actions)].

Because a "hearing" is required [CCP § 484.040; see generally Hobbs v. Weiss (1999) 73 CA4th 76, 78-82, 86 CR2d 146 (what is necessary for compliance with requirement for hearing)], the plaintiff usually applies for a right-to-attach order (which mandates issuance of a writ of attachment) by a verified notice of motion supported by affidavits [see CCP §§ 484.010-484.030]. However, on a likewise verified showing of one of the following additional facts, the plaintiff may obtain issuance of a right-to-attach order ex parte [see CCP § 485.210]:

- There is a danger that the property sought to be attached would be concealed, substantially impaired in value, or otherwise made unavailable to levy if issuance of the order were delayed until the matter could be heard on notice [CCP § 485.010(b)(1)].
- The defendant has failed to pay the debt underlying the requested attachment, and the defendant is insolvent in the sense that the defendant generally is not paying debts as those debts become due, unless the debts are subject to a bona fide dispute [CCP § 485.010(b)(2)].
- With respect to a bulk transfer by the defendant, a bulk sale notice has been recorded and published pursuant to Division 6 of the Commercial Code [CCP § 485.010(b)(3)].
- With respect to the sale by the defendant of a liquor license, an escrow has been opened pursuant to the provisions of B&P Code § 24074 with respect to the sale by the defendant of a liquor license [CCP § 485.010(b)(4)].
- Any other circumstances exist showing that great or irreparable injury would result to the plaintiff if issuance of the order were delayed until the matter could be heard on notice [CCP § 485.010(b)(5)].

Strategic Point:

The defendant can move to set aside a right-to-attach order issued ex parte (and to quash the writ, if issued), but not on the ground that the plaintiff would not have suffered great or irreparable injury if issuance of the order had been delayed until the matter could have been heard on notice [CCP §

485.240(b); see generally Western Steel & Ship Repair, Inc. v. RMI, Inc. (1986) 176 CA3d 1108, 1113-1114, 222 CR 556 (explaining defendant's options)].

The facts supporting ex parte issuance of a right-to-attach order also are grounds for obtaining provisional injunctive relief, called a temporary protective order, in aid of the application for a writ of attachment [see CCP § 486.010 et seq.; see also 6.13].

A receiver can be appointed for attached property [see CCP § 488.700; see also 6.30].

Cross References:

Checklist for obtaining writ of attachment or temporary protective order, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, 19.03.

Checklist for opposing attachment or temporary protective order, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, 19.14.

Memorandum supporting defendant's notice of opposition to plaintiff's application for right-to-attach order, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 23, Attachment (Matthew Bender).

Memorandum in reply to notice of opposition to plaintiff's application for right-to-attach order, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 23, Attachment (Matthew Bender).

Memorandum supporting contention that receiver should be appointed in attachment proceeding, see California Points and Authorities, § 200.270 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Prejudgment Remedies General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies Attachments

11 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions
III. SEEKING OR OPPOSING ATTACHMENT

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.10

6.10 Attachment Is Available in Some Contract Actions.

6.10[1] Plaintiff Must Claim at Least $500 in Damages. In general, attachment is available only in an action asserting a claim for money that is based--or multiple claims for money, each of which is based--on a contract, express or implied, if the total amount claimed is a fixed or readily ascertainable amount not less than $500 exclusive of costs, interest, and attorney's fees [CCP § 483.010(a)]. The term "contract" as used in the statute includes leases of real property and leases of personal property [see CIT Group/Equip. Fin., Inc. v. Super DVD, Inc. (2004) 115 CA4th 537, 540].

The damages must be readily ascertainable by reference to the contract, and the basis of the computation of damages must be reasonable and definite. The fact that the damages are unliquidated is not determinative, but the contract must furnish a standard by which the amount due can be clearly ascertained, and there must be a basis on which the damages can be determined by proof. It is not necessary that the amount owed appear on the face of the contract; it often happens that the amount due under a contract does not appear in the contract [CIT Group/Equip. Fin., Inc. v. Super DVD, Inc. (2004) 115 CA4th 537, 541 (master lease and corresponding lease schedules provided clear and definite formula for computation of damages: monthly rent multiplied by unexpired term)].

Exception--Nonresident Defendant:

When the defendant is a nonresident individual, a foreign corporation not qualified to do business in California, or a foreign partnership that has not filed a designation of an agent for service of process, the essential prerequisite for attachment is simply that the action be for the recovery of money [CCP § 492.010]. The plaintiff must show the same facts, apart from the nature of the action, as are required in an application for a right-to-attach order when the defendant is not a nonresident, but the order can always be sought and issued ex parte [see CCP §§ 492.020, 492.030]. Any property of the defendant in California can be levied on under the writ, but the defendant, after making a general appearance, can claim any applicable exemption, and so exempt property can be released from the levy [CCP § 492.040]. The defendant also can move to have the order set aside and the writ quashed [CCP § 492.050].

6.10[2] Claim May Be Secured by Personal Property. Although attachment usually is sought by a plaintiff whose claim is not secured [see North Hollywood Marble Co. v. Superior Court (1984) 157 CA3d 683, 690, 204 CR 55 (primary purpose of attachment is to give unsecured creditor assurance that debtor's assets will not be dissipated before creditor can obtain and enforce judgment)], the remedy is available even if the plaintiff's claim is secured by personal property. The effect of the plaintiff's security interest is to reduce the amount that can be covered by the attachment lien [see CCP § 483.015(b)(4)].

Warning:

If that reduction produces zero (or less than zero) as the amount to be covered by the attachment lien, the plaintiff will not obtain a right-to-attach order [see CCP § 484.090(a)(4)].

Cross Reference:

Attachment precluded for claim secured by real property, see 6.10[3][a].

6.10[3] Attachment Is Specifically Precluded by Statute in Some Cases.

6.10[3][a] Claim Secured by Real Property May Be Disqualified. An attachment generally may not be issued on a claim secured by any interest in real property arising from an agreement, a statute, or any other rule of law, including any mortgage or deed of trust of real property and any statutory, common law, or equitable lien on real property, but excluding any security interest in fixtures subject to Division 9 of the Commercial Code [CCP § 483.010(b)]. The effect of this statute is that the plaintiff may not simply waive the security interest and so become eligible to pursue attachment [Law Revision Commission cmt to CCP § 483.010, 13 Cal L Rev Comm'n Reports 28 (1976)].

Exception--When Security Becomes Inadequate:

An attachment may be issued if the claim originally was secured as described above but, without any act by the plaintiff or the person to whom the security was given, the security has become valueless or has decreased in value to less than the amount then owing on the claim. In that event the amount to be secured by the attachment cannot exceed the lesser of the amount of the decrease or the difference between the value of the security and the amount then owing on the claim [CCP § 483.010(b)].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff's Burden of Proof:

It is the plaintiff's burden, in seeking attachment for a claim based on a contract that was originally secured by real property, to prove that (1) the security has diminished in value and (2) the plaintiff was not responsible for the diminution. The plaintiff's required affidavit [see CCP § 484.030; see also 6.10[4]] is not required to contain averments of those facts, but including such averments would be prudent, since the court need not consider additional evidence at the application hearing without good cause [Bank of Am. v. Salinas Nissan, Inc. (1989) 207 CA3d 260, 273, 254 CR 748 ; see CCP § 484.090(d); see also 6.10[4]].

6.10[3][b] Claim Against Individual for Consumer Debt Is Disqualified. If the action is against an individual, an attachment may not be issued on a claim against the defendant that is based on the sale or lease of property, a license to use property, the furnishing of services, or the loan of money, if the defendant used the property, services, or money primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [CCP § 483.010(c)].

6.10[3][c] Claim Against Individual Not Arising From Business Is Disqualified. If the action is against an individual, an attachment may be issued only on a claim that arises out of the defendant's conduct of a trade, business, or profession [CCP § 483.010(c); e.g., Advance Transformer Co. v. Superior Court (1974) 44 CA3d 127, 144, 118 CR 350 (attachment may issue against individual who guaranteed corporate obligations or business debts only if guaranty sued on was part and parcel of activity that occupied time, attention, and effort of individual guarantor for purpose of livelihood or profit on continuing basis)].

6.10[4] Plaintiff Must Show Probable Validity of Claim. At the hearing on the application, the court may not issue a right-to-attach order--nor may the court issue the order ex parte--unless the court finds that the plaintiff has established the probable validity of the claim on which the attachment is based [CCP §§ 484.090(a)(2), 485.220(a)(2)]. The application must be supported by an affidavit showing that the plaintiff, on the facts presented, would be entitled to a judgment on the claim on which the attachment is based [CCP § 484.030; see Bank of Am. v. Salinas Nissan, Inc. (1989) 207 CA3d 260, 272, 254 CR 748 (affidavit should be geared to establishing probable validity of plaintiff's claim)].

Consider:

The plaintiff's claim has probable validity if it is more likely than not that the plaintiff will obtain a judgment against the defendant on that claim [CCP § 481.190]. In determining the probable validity of a claim, when the defendant makes an appearance, the court must consider the relative merits of the positions of the parties and make a determination of the probable outcome of the litigation [Loeb & Loeb v. Beverly Glen Music, Inc. (1985) 166 CA3d 1110, 1120, 212 CR 830] . This may involve some complicated issues that might entail, for example, construing the contract in question [e.g., Homes & Land Publ'g, Ltd. v. ApartmentNet Corp. (SD Cal 2000) 100 F Supp2d 1248, 1252-1253] and dissecting the plaintiff's theory of recovery [e.g., Hobbs v. Weiss (1999) 73 CA4th 76, 82-83, 86 CR2d 146] .

Decision Point:

The court's determination on this issue usually will be made on the basis of the pleadings and papers in the record. On good cause shown, however, the court may receive and consider at the hearing additional evidence, oral or documentary, and additional points and authorities, or may continue the hearing for the production of the additional evidence or points and authorities [CCP § 484.090(d); see generally Pos-A-Traction, Inc. v. Kelly-Springfield Tire Co. (CD Cal 1999) 112 F Supp2d 1178, 1182 (summarizing what court may and should consider)].

6.10[5] Unlawful Detainer Presents Special Case. Special rules apply when attachment is sought in an unlawful detainer case [see CCP § 483.020].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of unlawful detainer proceedings, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Landlord-Tenant Litigation, Ch. 5, Unlawful Detainer.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Prejudgment Remedies General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies Attachments

12 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions
III. SEEKING OR OPPOSING ATTACHMENT

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.11

6.11 All Property of Corporation, Partnership, or Association Can Be Attached.

If the defendant is a corporation or a partnership or other unincorporated association, all property of the defendant is subject to attachment, to the extent that a method of levy is prescribed by the Attachment Law [CCP § 487.010(a), (b); see generally CCP § 488.300 et seq. (methods of levy); cf. CCP § 484.020(e) (application for attachment may describe property to be attached as simply "all ... property which is subject to attachment")].

Distinguish--No Exemption:

The Attachment Law provides for exemptions from attachment, but they apply only to the property of individuals [see 6.12[1]]. No property of a corporation, partnership, or association is exempt from attachment [see CCP § 487.020; Law Revision Commission cmt to CCP § 484.020, 11 Cal L Rev Comm'n Reports 766-767 (1973)], just as no such property is exempt from enforcement of a money judgment [see CCP § 703.020(a)].

Strategic Point--Partners:

While there is no exemption for partnership property, an individual defendant who is a partner and whose property is reached pursuant to CCP § 487.010 could claim an exemption [see Corp Code § 16504(d) (Uniform Partnership Act of 1994 does not deprive partner of rights under exemption laws with respect to partner's interest in partnership)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Prejudgment Remedies General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies Attachments

13 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions
III. SEEKING OR OPPOSING ATTACHMENT

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.12

6.12 Only Nonexempt Property of Individual Can Be Attached.

6.12[1] Defendant Must Claim Exemption. If an exemption is duly claimed [see CCP §§ 482.100, 485.610, 487.030] and not preempted by a fraudulent transfer [see 6.12[2]], the following property of an individual defendant is exempt from attachment [CCP § 487.020]:

- All property exempt from enforcement of a money judgment. This includes not only the exemptions allowed in the Enforcement of Judgments Law [see CCP § 703.010 et seq.], but also any other special exemptions allowed by law [Leg Comm cmt to 1974 amendment of CCP § 487.020], such as the exemption for spendthrift trusts [see Estate of Lawrence (1968) 267 CA2d 77, 82, 72 CR 851] and the exemption for property in custodia legis [see Robbins v. Bueno (1968) 262 CA2d 79, 83, 68 CR 347].
- Property that is necessary for the defendant's support or for the support of the defendant's family whom the defendant supports in whole or in part [see generally Randone v. Appellate Dep't (1971) 5 C3d 536, 562, 96 CR 709, 488 P2d 13 (rationale for this exemption)].
- Earnings [see CCP § 706.011 (definition, which is in Wage Garnishment Law)].
- All property not subject to attachment, namely:
 - ☐ Any leasehold estate in real property with an unexpired term of less than one year [see CCP § 487.010(c)(1); see also 6.12[3][d]].
 - ☐ An account receivable (or the like) with an unpaid principal of less than $150 [see CCP § 487.010(c)(2); see also 6.12[3][g]].
 - ☐ The first $1,000 of money located elsewhere than on premises where the defendant conducts a trade, business, or profession [see CCP § 487.010(c)(7); see also 6.12[3][h]].

Decision Point:

The Attachment Law specifies that when the defendant is an individual, the application for a right-to-attach order must contain a "description of the property ... reasonably adequate to permit the defendant to identify the specific property sought to be attached" [CCP § 484.020(e); but see Bank of Am. v. Salinas Nissan, Inc. (1989) 207 CA3d 260, 268, 254 CR 748 (description in general terms was "all-inclusive" but was reasonably adequate to inform individual guarantors what property was targeted for attachment)]. One purpose of that requirement is to assist the defendant in determining whether to make a claim for exemption [Law Revision Commission cmt to CCP § 484.020, 11 Cal L Rev Comm'n Reports 766-767 (1973)]. As to the specified property, the defendant might decide that making a claim for exemption would not be worthwhile. However, the defendant should bear in mind that as to the specified property, once a claim for exemption is forgone, it usually cannot be made later [CCP § 484.070(a)]. As to any exempt property not described in the application, the defendant should consider whether to make a claim for exemption now, which if allowed would shield the property from levy under any later-issued supplemental writ of attachment [see generally CCP § 484.510 et seq. (supplemental writs)]. If the defendant makes such a forward-looking claim, and it is not allowed, then the defendant generally may not claim the exemption again later (when the plaintiff obtains a supplemental writ, for instance); however, failure to make such a claim in opposition to the plaintiff's original application would not preclude making it later [CCP § 484.070(b)].

Strategic Point:

If the defendant makes a claim of exemption, and the plaintiff fails to oppose it [see CCP § 484.070(f) (plaintiff's opposition)], the court must allow the exemption, even if it probably could not be sustained if opposed [Bank of Am. v. Salinas Nissan, Inc. (1989) 207 CA3d 260, 270, 254 CR 748].

Cross Reference:

Memorandum supporting claim of exemption, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 23, Attachment (Matthew Bender).

6.12[2] Fraudulent Transfer Could Generate Exception. In an action against an individual for relief under the Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act [see CC § 3439 et seq.], a creditor may obtain an attachment or another provisional remedy against the asset transferred or its proceeds, in accordance with the Attachment Law [CC § 3439.07(a)(2)], and no exemption that would otherwise be applicable can be invoked by the defendant to prevent that attachment or other provisional remedy [see CCP § 487.020].

6.12[3] Subject Property Is Specified in Statutes.

6.12[3][a] Community Property Can Be Attached. Community property is subject to attachment if it is property of a type described in CCP § 487.010(c) [see 6.12[3][d] -[i]] and would be subject to enforcement of the judgment obtained in the action in which the attachment is sought [CCP § 487.010(d)].

Strategic Point:

If community property is subject to attachment, then [CCP § 487.010(d)]:

- Any provision of the Attachment Law that applies to the defendant's property or to obligations owed to the defendant also applies to the community property interest of the defendant's spouse and to obligations owed to either spouse that are community property; and

- Any provision of the Attachment Law that applies to property in the defendant's possession or under the defendant's control also applies to community property in the possession or under the control of the defendant's spouse.

6.12[3][b] Declared Homestead Can Be Attached. The recording of a homestead declaration [see CCP § 704.910(d) (definition)] does not limit or affect the right of a plaintiff to attach the declared homestead, whether the homestead declaration is recorded before or after the declared homestead is attached [CCP § 487.025(a)].

Distinguish:

This does not limit the defendant's right to an exemption under CCP § 487.020(b) for property necessary for the support of the defendant or the defendant's family [CCP § 487.025(c)].

Cross Reference:

Defendant's claim of exemption, see 6.12[1].

6.12[3][c] Attachment Lien on Homestead Is Limited. An attachment lien attaches to a homestead [see CCP § 704.710(c) (definition)] in the amount of any surplus over the sum of (1) all liens and encumbrances on the homestead at the time the attachment lien is created, plus (2) the homestead exemption amount set forth in CCP § 704.730, which is at least $50,000 [CCP § 487.025(b)].

Distinguish:

This does not limit the defendant's right to an exemption under CCP § 487.020(b) for property necessary for the support of the defendant or the defendant's family [CCP § 487.025(c)].

Strategic Point:

The homestead is exempt from sale to the extent provided in CCP § 704.800 when it is sought to be sold to enforce the judgment obtained in the action in which the attachment was obtained [CCP § 487.025(d)]. Therefore, it cannot be sold if no bid at the execution sale exceeds the aggregate of (1) the sum of liens, encumbrances, and the exemption amount described above and (2) the judgment lien.

Cross Reference:

Defendant's claim of exemption, see 6.12[1].

6.12[3][d] Real Property Can Be Attached. Interests in real property, except a leasehold estate with an unexpired term of less than one year, are subject to attachment [CCP § 487.010(c)].

Distinguish--Real Property:

Real property includes any right in real property, including, but not limited to, a leasehold interest in real property [CCP § 481.203].

6.12[3][e] Mineral Interests Can Be Attached. Minerals or the like (including oil and gas) to be extracted are subject to attachment [CCP § 487.010(c)(11)].

6.12[3][f] Equipment, Farm Products, and Inventory Can Be Attached. Equipment, farm products, and inventory are subject to attachment [CCP § 487.010(c)(3)-(5)]:

- "Equipment" means tangible personal property in the possession of the defendant and used or bought for use primarily in the defendant's trade, business, or profession, if it is not included in the definitions of inventory or farm products [CCP § 481.100].

- "Farm products" means crops or livestock or supplies used or produced in farming operations or products of crops or livestock in an unmanufactured state (such as ginned cotton, wool clip, maple syrup, milk, and eggs), while in the possession of the defendant, if the defendant is engaged in raising, fattening, grazing, or other farming operations. If tangible personal property is a farm product, it is neither equipment nor inventory [CCP § 481.110].

- "Inventory" means tangible personal property in the possession of the defendant that is either [CCP § 481.120]:

- ☐ Held by the defendant for sale or lease or to be furnished under contracts of service;
- or
- ☐ Raw materials, work in process, or materials used or consumed in the defendant's trade, business, or profession. Inventory is not to be classified as equipment.

Tangible personal property can include, in this context, chattel paper, documents of title, instruments, securities, and money [CCP § 481.225].

Cross References:

Attachment of chattel paper, see 6.12[3][g].

Attachment of documents of title, instruments, and securities, see 6.12[3][i].

Attachment of money, see 6.12[3][h].

6.12[3][g] Business-Related Intangible Property Can Be Attached. The following business-related intangible property is subject to attachment:

- Accounts receivable, chattel paper, and general intangibles arising out of the defendant's conduct of a trade, business, or profession, except any such individual claim with a principal balance of less than $150 [CCP § 487.010(c)(2)]. "Account receivable" means an account as defined in Com Code § 9102(a)(2) [CCP § 481.030]. "Chattel paper" means chattel paper as defined in Com Code § 9102(a)(11) [CCP § 481.040]. "General intangibles" means general intangibles as defined in Com Code § 9102(a)(42), consisting of rights to payment [CCP § 481.115].

- Final money judgments arising out of the defendant's conduct of a trade, business, or profession [CCP § 487.010(c)(6)].

6.12[3][h] Money Can Be Attached. Money that is located on the premises where the defendant conducts a trade, business, or profession is subject to attachment. Money located elsewhere, except for the first $1,000, is subject to attachment. Deposit accounts are subject to attachment [CCP § 487.010(c)(7); see CCP § 481.080; Com Code § 9102(a)(29) (definition of "deposit account")].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

If the defendant has more than one deposit account or has at least one deposit account and money located elsewhere than on the premises where the defendant conducts a trade, business, or profession, then the court, on the plaintiff's application, may order that the writ of attachment be levied so that an aggregate amount of $1,000 of that money and in those accounts will remain free of levy [CCP § 487.010(c)(7)].

6.12[3][i] Negotiable Instruments Can Be Attached. The following types of instruments are subject to attachment [CCP § 487.010(c)(8)-(10)]:

- Negotiable documents of title [see Com Code § 9102(a)(30) (definition)]. A document of title is negotiable if it is negotiable within the meaning of Com Code § 7104 [CCP § 481.090].
- Instruments [see Com Code § 9102(a)(47) (definition); CCP § 481.117].
- Securities [see Com Code § 8102 (definition); CCP § 481.210].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionExemptionsCivil
ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional
RemediesAttachments

14 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions
III. SEEKING OR OPPOSING ATTACHMENT

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.13

6.13 Plaintiff Can Obtain Provisional Injunctive Relief (Temporary Protective Order).

6.13[1] Plaintiff May Request Relief.

6.13[1][a] Plaintiff Must Show Great or Irreparable Injury. If the plaintiff would suffer great or irreparable injury unless a temporary protective order were issued, then, at the time of applying for a right-to-attach order, the plaintiff may apply for a temporary protective order by filing an application for the order with the court in which the action is brought [CCP § 486.010]. The standard for determining whether the plaintiff would suffer great or irreparable injury is the same as for determining whether a right-to-attach order can be issued ex parte [CCP § 486.010(b); see CCP § 485.010; see also 6.09].

➤ Cross Reference:

Form for application for temporary protective order, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, 19.41.

6.13[1][b] Plaintiff Must Show Probable Validity of Claim. The court may issue the temporary protective order if it finds all of the following facts [CCP § 486.020]:

- The claim on which the application for attachment is based is one on which an attachment may be issued [see 6.10].
- The plaintiff has established the probable validity of the claim on which the application for the attachment is based. The plaintiff's claim has probable validity if it is more likely than not that the plaintiff will obtain a judgment against the defendant on that claim [CCP § 481.190].
- The temporary protective order is not sought for a purpose other than the recovery on the claim on which the application for the attachment is based.
- The plaintiff will suffer great or irreparable injury if the temporary protective order is not issued [see CCP § 485.010; see also 6.09].

➤ Cross Reference:

Requirement to show probable validity of claim in order to obtain right-to-attach order, see 6.10[4].

6.13[2] Court May Issue Injunction in Lieu of Attachment. If the plaintiff has made an ex parte application for a right-to-attach order and a writ of attachment [see CCP § 485.010 et seq.; 6.09], the court may in its discretion deny the application and issue instead a temporary protective order, on determining that the requirements for ex parte issuance of a right-to-attach order and a writ are met [see CCP § 485.220; see also 6.09] and that issuance of the temporary protective order instead of a right-to-attach order and a writ would be in the interest of justice and equity to the parties, taking into account the effect on the defendant of issuing a writ of attachment ex parte, the effect on the plaintiff of issuing the temporary protective order instead of the writ, and other factors that bear on equity and justice in the circumstances of the case [CCP § 486.030(a)].

Strategic Point:

If the court issues the temporary protective order, the plaintiff's ex parte application for a right-to-attach order and writ must be treated as a regular application for a right-to-attach order and writ, and the plaintiff must comply with the requirements of service provided in CCP § 484.040 [CCP § 486.030(b)].

Cross Reference:

Complying with service requirements, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, 19.06.

6.13[3] Injunction Is Subject to Statutory Requirements.

6.13[3][a] Equitable Considerations Are Paramount. The temporary protective order must contain whatever provisions the court determines would be in the interest of justice and equity to the parties, taking into account the effects on both the defendant and the plaintiff in the circumstances of the case [CCP § 486.040].

Strategic Point--Defendant:

On the defendant's ex parte application or, if the court so orders, after a noticed hearing, the court may modify or vacate the temporary protective order if it determines that modifying or vacating it would be in the interest of justice and equity to the parties, taking into account the effect on the defendant of the continuance of the original order, the effect on the plaintiff of modifying or vacating it, and any other factors [CCP § 486.100].

6.13[3][b] Transfer of Property Generally May Be Prohibited. In general, the temporary protective order may prohibit a transfer by the defendant of any of the defendant's property in California subject to the levy of the writ of attachment. The order must describe the property in a manner adequate to permit the defendant to identify the property subject to the order [CCP § 486.050(a)].

Strategic Point--Only Defendant Is Bound:

The temporary protective order will bind only the defendant, whether or not any other person knows of or is served with a copy of the order [CCP § 486.070]. However, a lien created by service of the order on the defendant will continue on the affected property, in most cases, after transfer or encumbrance of the property [CCP §§ 486.070, 486.110; see 6.13[4]].

Cross Reference:

Form for temporary protective order, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, 19.45.

6.13[3][c] Farm Products or Inventory Will Remain Transferrable. If the temporary protective order covers farm products held for sale or covers inventory, the order may not prohibit the defendant from transferring that property in the ordinary course of business, but may impose appropriate restrictions on the disposition of the proceeds from that type of transfer [CCP § 486.050(b)].

Cross Reference:

Definitions of "farm products" and "inventory," see 6.12[3][f].

6.13[3][d] Defendant May Continue to Issue Checks. Notwithstanding any terms of the temporary protective order, the defendant may issue any number of checks against any of the defendant's accounts in a financial institution in California for the following purposes [CCP § 486.060].

- Payment of any payroll expense (including fringe benefits and taxes and premiums for worker's compensation and unemployment insurance) falling due in the ordinary course of business before the levy of a writ of attachment.
- Payment for goods thereafter delivered to the defendant C.O.D. for use in the defendant's trade, business, or profession.
- Payment of taxes if payment is necessary to avoid penalties that will accrue if there is any further delay in payment.
- Payment of reasonable legal fees and reasonable costs and expenses (including, but not limited to, statutory fees, charges, commissions, and expenses) required for the defendant's representation in the action.
- Any other purpose, provided the aggregate amount of the checks for other purposes does not exceed the greater of the following:

$1,000; or

The amount by which the total amount on deposit exceeds the sum of (1) the amount sought to be secured by the attachment and (2) the amounts permitted to be paid for the specific purposes listed above.

"Financial institution" means a state or national bank, state or federal savings and loan association or credit union, or like organization [CCP § 481.113].

6.13[4] Service of Injunction Creates Lien on Attachable Property. Service of a temporary protective order on the defendant [see CCP § 486.080 (personal service is required)] creates a lien on any property, or the proceeds of any property, that the order describes and that the defendant owns at the time of service, if the property is subject to attachment pursuant to the Attachment Law [CCP § 486.110(a)].

Strategic Pointss--Continuance of Lien:

- The lien continues on property subject to the lien, notwithstanding the transfer or encumbrance of the property, unless the person receiving the property, whether it is real property or personal property, is a person listed in CCP § 697.740, which describes situations in which property subject to an execution lien is no longer subject to that lien after being transferred or encumbered [CCP § 486.110(a)].

- After expiration of the temporary protective order, the lien continues on property that was levied on, while the temporary protective order was in effect, under a writ of attachment issued on the plaintiff's application; but with respect to any other property, the lien terminates [CCP § 486.110(b)].

6.13[5] Injunction Is Short-Lived. The temporary protective order expires at the earliest of the following times [CCP § 486.090]:

- Forty days after issuance of the order;
- At any earlier date prescribed in the order; or
- As to specific property described in the order: when the plaintiff makes a levy of attachment on that property.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Injunctions Temporary Restraining Orders Civil Procedure Remedies Prejudgment Remedies General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies General Overview

15 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions
III. SEEKING OR OPPOSING ATTACHMENT

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.14

6.14 Plaintiff Can Obtain Turnover Order.

If a writ of attachment is issued, the court also may issue an order directing the defendant to transfer to the levying officer possession of either or both of the following [CCP § 482.080(a)]:

- The property to be attached, if the property is sought to be attached by taking it into custody; and
- Documentary evidence of title to property of or a debt owed to the defendant that is sought to be attached.

The order may be served when the property or debt is levied on or thereafter [CCP § 482.080(a)].

Strategic Point:

The purpose of a turnover order is to compel the defendant to cooperate with the levying officer when the levy must be made by taking possession of the property or documentary evidence of title to property or of a debt. Issuance of a turnover order is plainly conditioned on the issuance of a writ of attachment. A naked turnover order is not authorized. Because a turnover order is issued in aid of a writ, and not as an independent order, it must order the defendant to transfer possession of the attached property or documentary evidence of the attached property to the levying officer to whom the writ of attachment is directed. That is the officer who will need the defendant's cooperation when the levy requires a transfer of possession [Pacific Decision Scis. Corp. v. Superior Court (2004) 121 CA4th 1100, 1106 (turnover order could not cover Florida bank account because California court could not issue writ of attachment to any levying officer in Florida)].

Cross References:

Seeking turnover order, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, § 20.16.

Discussion and forms for obtaining turnover orders, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 62, Attachment; see also Ch. 254, Execution and Enforcement of Judgments.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Prejudgment Remedies General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies Replevin

16 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions

IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING CLAIM AND DELIVERY

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.15

6.15 CHECKLIST: Seeking or Opposing Claim and Delivery.

- ☐ Determine whether plaintiff can obtain issuance of writ of possession because plaintiff can show probable validity of plaintiff's claim to recover specific personal property.

Authority:

CCP § 512.060(a)(1)

Discussion:

See 6.18

- ☐ Determine whether plaintiff should seek additional provisional relief in aid of a writ of possession.

- ☐ Determine whether injunctive relief is needed because there is immediate danger that property will become unavailable to levy by reason of being transferred, concealed, or removed, or that it will become substantially impaired in value.

Authority:

CCP §§ 513.010, 513.020

Discussion:

See 6.19

- ☐ Determine whether turnover order, aimed at getting defendant to cooperate in transferring possession of property to plaintiff, is appropriate.

Authority:

CCP § 512.070

Discussion:

See 6.20

☐ Determine whether supplemental orders are needed because seizing property will involve substantial risk of death or serious bodily harm to any person.

Authority:

CCP § 514.010(c)

Discussion:

See 6.21

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Prejudgment Remedies Applications Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies Replevins

17 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING CLAIM AND DELIVERY

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.16

6.16 Options and Strategies.

The provisional remedy called claim and delivery can be used by a plaintiff suing, on a contract, to recover personal property, when the plaintiff's claim is "probably valid" [see 6.18]. The remedy focuses on the plaintiff's right to possession [see CCP § 512.010(b)(1)]; the plaintiff is not necessarily the owner of the property (but, for instance, might be a lessee), and the owner (such as a lessor) is not necessarily entitled to possession.

If the plaintiff is entitled to the provisional relief, and files an undertaking, the court issues a writ of possession directing a sheriff, constable, or marshal to take possession of the property [CCP § 512.080]. Once that officer has custody of the property, it will be held or disposed of as follows:

- The plaintiff can obtain possession of the property if certain conditions are satisfied [see CCP §§ 514.030(a)(1), 515.030(b), (d)]. If the plaintiff subsequently fails to obtain a judgment for the property, the plaintiff must return it to the defendant, and the plaintiff and the plaintiff's surety will be liable to the defendant for damages [CCP § 512.120].
- The defendant can prevent the plaintiff from getting possession, and can get the property back, if certain conditions are satisfied [see CCP §§ 514.030(a)(2), 515.020, 515.030(a), (c)]. The defendant and the defendant's surety will be liable to the plaintiff for damages, based on the plaintiff's lack of possession, in the event the plaintiff obtains a judgment for the property [CCP § 515.020(a)].
- When the defendant has not taken the prescribed steps to regain possession of the property, the court may order the officer to sell it, and deposit the proceeds in court for eventual disposition according to the judgment, if the property is perishable or for some other reason the parties' interests will be served best by selling the property [CCP § 514.030(b)]. Either party may move for such an order.

Distinguish--Claim and Delivery Compared to Attachment:

Claim and delivery is a remedy by which a plaintiff with a superior right to a specific item of personal property (created, most commonly, by a contractual lien) may recover possession of that property before judgment. Attachment, by contrast, is a remedy by which a plaintiff with a contractual claim to money--as opposed to a specific item of property--may have various items of the defendant's property seized before judgment and held by the levying officer for execution after judgment [see 6.09]. The attachment statutes contain no provision for releasing attached property to the plaintiff before judgment;

instead, the attached property is held for possible execution after judgment, in the event the plaintiff succeeds in obtaining a judgment [Waffer Int'l Corp. v. Khorsandi (1999) 69 CA4th 1261, 1271, 82 CR2d 241] .

Distinguish--Claim and Delivery Compared to Preliminary Injunction:

The claim and delivery law provides a complete prejudgment remedy to recover possession of personal property. It appears that since there is an adequate remedy under the claim and delivery law, a preliminary injunction is not a proper remedy to recover possession of personal property [Simms v. NPCK Enters., Inc. (2003) 109 CA4th 233, 242-243, 134 CR2d 557] . However, nothing in the claim and delivery statutes precludes granting provisional injunctive relief [CCP § 516.050]. Thus, the availability of claim and delivery as a remedy should not be a reason for the court to refuse to issue a preliminary injunction whenever that would be a satisfactory remedy [cf. Law Revision Commission cmt to CCP § 482.020, 11 Cal L Rev Comm'n Reports 559 (1973) (intended effect of identical provision in Attachment Law); see 6.09].

Cross References:

Detailed discussion of claim and delivery, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 20, Claim and Delivery.

Discussion of attachment, see 6.08 et seq.

Discussion of preliminary injunctions, see 6.03 et seq.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Prejudgment Remedies General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies Replevin

18 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING CLAIM AND DELIVERY

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.17

6.17 Application for Writ of Possession Is by Notice of Motion or Ex Parte.

The plaintiff usually applies for the writ of possession by a notice of motion [CCP § 512.020(a)], which must be verified [CCP § 512.010(b)] and state specified facts [see CCP § 512.010(b)(1)-(5)] or must be accompanied by affidavits stating those facts [CCP § 512.010(c)]. However, on a verified showing of one of the following additional facts, the plaintiff may obtain issuance of the writ ex parte [CCP § 512.020(b)]:

- The defendant feloniously took the property from the plaintiff, other than by (1) fraudulent appropriation after the property was entrusted to the defendant; (2) false or fraudulent representation or pretense; or (3) embezzlement [CCP § 512.020(b)(1)].
- The property is a credit card [CCP § 512.020(b)(2)].
- The defendant acquired the property in the ordinary course of a trade or business and for commercial purposes, provided all of the following conditions exist [CCP § 512.020(b)(3)]:
 - ☐ The property is not necessary for the support of the defendant or the defendant's family;
 - ☐ There is an immediate danger that the property will become unavailable to levy by reason of being transferred, concealed, or removed from California or will become substantially impaired in value by acts of destruction or by failure to take care of the property in a reasonable manner; and
 - ☐ Ex parte issuance of the writ of possession is necessary to protect the property.

If a writ is issued ex parte, the defendant may move for an order quashing it (and directing the release of the seized property); and pending the disposition of that motion, the court may order the levying officer not to deliver the property to the plaintiff [CCP § 512.020(b)]. An alternative to seeking ex parte issuance of the writ is to apply for provisional injunctive relief [see CCP §§ 513.010, 513.020; see also 6.19].

Consider:

A seizure of property under the claim and delivery procedure would violate due process if it occurred before a hearing on the merits, unless the seizure were justified by weighty state interests or creditor interests [Blair v. Pitchess (1971) 5 C3d 258, 278, 96 CR 42, 486 P2d 1242] . The current statutory scheme was put in place specifically to meet constitutional standards [Simms v. NPCK Enters., Inc. (2003) 109 CA4th 233, 242, 134 CR2d 557]

Cross References:

Checklist for applying for writ of possession, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, 20.03.

Checklist for opposing application for writ of possession, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, 20.20.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Prejudgment Remedies General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Prejudgment Remedies Applications Civil Procedure Remedies Prejudgment Remedies Notices Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies Replevin

19 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING CLAIM AND DELIVERY

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.18

6.18 Plaintiff Must Show Probable Validity of Claim.

At the hearing on the plaintiff's application, the court will not issue a writ--nor will the court issue a writ ex parte--unless the plaintiff has established the probable validity of the plaintiff's claim to possession of the property [CCP § 512.060(a)(1)]. The plaintiff's claim has probable validity when it is more likely than not that the plaintiff will obtain a judgment against the defendant on that claim [CCP § 511.090].

Example:

A lessee leased television and telephone equipment from the lessor, and failed to make full payment under the lease agreements, on the ground that the telephone equipment was defective. The lessor sued to repossess all of the equipment and applied for a writ of possession. The facts established the probable validity of the lessor's claim for possession. Whatever the lessee's right may have been to recover damages for the alleged defects in the equipment, it could not defeat the lessor's right to reclaim the equipment. The claim for possession and the claim for damages were unrelated. The lessor was entitled to the writ [RCA Serv. Co. v. Superior Court (1982) 137 CA3d 1, 2-3, 187 CR 602] .

Strategic Points:

- The court's determination to issue the writ has no legal effect on the ultimate determination of the plaintiff's claim [CCP § 512.110]. However, if the plaintiff's claim is probably valid so as to warrant issuance of the writ, then the plaintiff might effectively conclude the lawsuit by getting possession of the property through the use of the writ. The defendant's tactical loss at that stage of the proceedings could be a strong incentive to settle the case.

- The plaintiff will fail to satisfy this requirement if the defendant shows that there is a reasonable probability that the defendant can assert a successful defense to the action.

Strategic Point:

The plaintiff must file an undertaking for the defendant's protection [CCP § 512.060(a)(2)], which will entail some expense. Moreover, if the property to be seized is used as a dwelling (such as a mobilehome or a houseboat), then the levying officer must install a keeper for two days (presumably long enough to allow the occupants to leave and take whatever contents they are entitled to take), at the plaintiff's expense [CCP § 514.010(b)]. The plaintiff should determine whether getting provisional possession of the property will be worth the aggregate expense for the undertaking, for a keeper if necessary, for the levying officer's fees, and for the officer's costs incurred to seize and hold the property. The plaintiff should bear in mind, however, that these costs will be recoverable if the plaintiff prevails.

Cross Reference:

Recovery of costs, see Ch. 12, Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Prejudgment Remedies General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Prejudgment Remedies Hearings Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies Replevins

20 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING CLAIM AND DELIVERY

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.19

6.19 Plaintiff Can Obtain Provisional Injunctive Relief.

Whenever there is an immediate danger that the property will become unavailable to levy by reason of being transferred, concealed, or removed, or that it will become substantially impaired in value, the plaintiff can obtain, ex parte, a temporary restraining order in aid of the application for a writ of possession [see CCP §§ 513.010(a), (b), 513.020]. After a hearing, the TRO can be supplanted by a preliminary injunction [CCP § 513.010(c)].

Strategic Point:

This is an alternative to seeking ex parte issuance of the writ, and these grounds for injunctive relief are somewhat more accommodating than the comparatively narrower grounds for ex parte issuance of the writ [see CCP § 512.020 (ex parte issuance of writ); see also 6.16].

Cross References:

Use of TRO and obtaining of preliminary injunction, see 6.04.

Form for declaration for ex parte writ of possession, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, 20.35.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Injunctions Temporary Restraining Orders Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies General Overview

21 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions

IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING CLAIM AND DELIVERY

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.20

6.20 Plaintiff Can Obtain Turnover Order.

If necessary, once a writ of possession is issued, the court also may order the defendant to transfer possession of the property to the plaintiff [CCP § 512.070].

Strategic Point:

This turnover order is not an alternative to the writ of possession but is an order that the court may "also" issue if a writ is issued. The order should be aimed at getting the defendant to cooperate in transferring possession of the property to the plaintiff [Edwards v. Superior Court (1991) 230 CA3d 173, 178, 281 CR 30] . Thus the inconvenience and expense of a levy under the writ might be avoided.

Distinguish:

The turnover order has been characterized as a form of mandatory injunctive relief [Pillsbury, Madison & Sutro v. Schectman (1997) 55 CA4th 1279, 1283, 64 CR2d 698] , but there is a difference of opinion in that regard [Edwards v. Superior Court (1991) 230 CA3d 173, 178, 281 CR 30 (refusing to treat turnover order as mandatory injunction)].

Cross Reference:

Distinction between prohibitory preliminary injunction and mandatory preliminary injunction, see 6.04.

Seeking turnover order, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, 20.16.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Prejudgment Remedies General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies Replevins

22 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions

IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING CLAIM AND DELIVERY

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.21

6.21 Court Can Make Supplemental Orders.

If the levying officer reasonably believes that seizing the property will involve a substantial risk of death or serious bodily harm to any person, the officer must refrain from seizing the property and must promptly make a return to the court from which the writ issued, setting forth the reasons for believing that the risk exists. The court then must make whatever orders may be appropriate [CCP § 514.010(c)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies General Overview

23 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions
V. SEEKING OR OPPOSING APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.22

6.22 CHECKLIST: Seeking or Opposing Appointment of Receiver.

☐ Determine whether plaintiff can obtain appointment of receiver.

☐ Determine whether claim satisfies following set of criteria for appointment of receiver:

☐ Seller is suing for rescission on ground of fraud;

☐ Buyer has possession of property; and

☐ There is substantial risk that property will be lost, removed, or materially harmed.

Authority:

CCP § 564(b)(1)

Discussion:

See 6.25

☐ Determine whether claim satisfies following set of criteria for appointment of receiver:

☐ Creditor is suing to subject particular property to creditor's claim;

☐ Debtor has possession or control of property; and

☐ There is substantial risk that property will be lost, removed, or materially harmed.

Authority:

CCP § 564(b)(1)

Discussion:

See 6.26

☐ Determine whether claim satisfies following set of criteria for appointment of receiver:

☐ Plaintiff and defendant are jointly interested, as partners or joint venturers or otherwise under contract, in property or fund that is subject of litigation;

☐ One of them has possession or control of it; and

☐ There is substantial risk that property or fund will be lost, removed, or materially harmed.

Authority:

CCP § 564(b)(1)

Discussion:

See 6.27

☐ Determine whether receiver may be appointed because claim involves secured lender suing for specific performance of assignment-of-rents provision in deed of trust, mortgage, or separate assignment document.

Authority:

CCP § 564(b)(11)

Discussion:

See 6.28

☐ In other cases, determine whether plaintiff or defendant can obtain appointment of receiver because appointment is necessary.

☐ Is receiver needed to preserve property or rights of party?

Authority:

CCP § 564(b)(9)

Discussion:

See 6.29

☐ Is receiver needed to preserve value of property subjected to attachment.

Authority:

CCP § 488.700

Discussion:

See 6.30

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsGeneral Overview

24 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions
V. SEEKING OR OPPOSING APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.23

6.23 Options and Strategies.

Generally a receiver is appointed during litigation, usually at the outset, when the subject of the litigation is particular property or a particular fund and it is necessary to take the property or fund out of the hands of the party possessing or controlling it, because otherwise the property or fund might not survive intact until the expected judgment can be enforced [see La Societe Francaise d'Epargnes et de Prevoyance Mutuelle v. District Court (1879) 53 C 495, 553]. In an action based on a contract, there could be grounds for appointment of a receiver in any of the following situations:

- A seller sues for rescission on the ground of fraud, the buyer has possession of the property, and there is a substantial risk that the property will be lost, removed, or materially harmed [see CCP § 564(b)(1); see also 6.25].
- A creditor sues to subject particular property to the creditor's claim, the debtor has possession or control of the property, and there is a substantial risk that the property will be lost, removed, or materially harmed [see CCP § 564(b)(1); see also 6.26].
- The plaintiff and the defendant are jointly interested, as partners or joint venturers or otherwise under a contract, in the property or fund that is the subject of the litigation, one of them has possession or control of it, and there is a substantial risk that the property or fund will be lost, removed, or materially harmed [see CCP § 564(b)(1); see also 6.27].
- A secured lender sues for specific performance of an assignment-of-rents provision in a deed of trust, mortgage, or separate assignment document [see CCP § 564(b)(11); see also 6.28].

It is also possible to seek appointment of a receiver to protect property rights or for property subject to attachment [see CCP §§ 564(b)(9), 488.700; see also 6.29].

The governing statutes do not prescribe any particular procedure for how a party is to apply for appointment of a receiver [see CCP § 564 et seq.; Neider v. Dardi (1955) 130 CA2d 646, 650, 279 P2d 598]. In an appropriate case the appointment of a receiver can be obtained ex parte (usually on the basis of a verified pleading) [see Cal Rules Ct, Rules 3.1175, 3.1176]. When ex parte appointment cannot be justified, the common practice is to use a noticed motion.

Decision Point--Receivership and Attachment:

Receivership is not a substitute for attachment [Rogers v. Smith (1946) 76 CA2d 16, 21, 172 P2d 365 (order appointing receiver was reversed)]. If a plaintiff needs the protection that attachment can provide [see 6.09], then attachment is the remedy to pursue. (Generally speaking, the purpose of attachment is to ensure that the plaintiff's expected judgment in a commercial contract action for damages will not be worthless when eventually it is entered.) However, once property has been subjected to attachment, grounds may exist for appointing a receiver to take possession of the property [see CCP § 488.700; see also 6.30].

Strategic Point--Expenses and Risks of Receivership:

A receiver is entitled to fees and reimbursement of expenses, which could make the remedy somewhat costly if the assets in receivership happen to need substantial management. If management of the assets will require any kind of expertise because of the nature of the assets or other peculiar circumstances, both parties should make a strenuous effort to find and nominate a receiver who has that expertise.

Cross References:

Discussion of procedure for appointment of receiver, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 486.15 (Matthew Bender).

Procedural checklists for obtaining appointment and opposing application for appointment of receiver, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, §§ 486.90, 486.91 (Matthew Bender).

Memorandum supporting court's own motion to appoint receiver, see California Points and Authorities, § 200.70 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsGeneral Overview

25 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions
V. SEEKING OR OPPOSING APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.24

6.24 Existence of Alternative Remedy Does Not Bar Receivership.

The existence of an alternative remedy does not preclude appointment of a receiver in a proper case [Sibert v. Shaver (1952) 113 CA2d 19, 21, 247 P2d 609 ; see Sunset Farms, Inc. v. Superior Court (1935) 9 CA2d 389, 405, 50 P2d 106] . It follows that the applicant should not be required to show the absence of an effective alternative remedy in order to obtain appointment of a receiver.

Strategic Point--Opponent:

Although the absence of an alternative remedy is not required as a condition of appointing a receiver, the opposing party nevertheless should always argue in support of an alternative remedy (such as an injunction). A court normally should prefer a viable alternative remedy [see Alhambra-Shumway Mines, Inc. v. Alhambra Gold Mine Corp. (1953) 116 CA2d 869, 873, 254 P2d 599] .

Exception--Ex Parte Appointment:

When the applicant seeks appointment of a receiver ex parte, if any other remedy would be less severe in its results than appointment of a receiver and would adequately protect the rights of the parties, the court should not take property out of the hands of its owners [Golden State Glass Corp. v. Superior Court (1939) 13 C2d 384, 393, 90 P2d 75] . The general rule is that the appointment of a receiver to take property out of a party's possession without a hearing is unjustifiable without prior notice to that party, unless it clearly appears that irreparable injury would be done during the few days necessary for a hearing on notice. Even in such an extreme case, a temporary injunction [see 6.04] usually will be sufficient [Fischer v. Superior Court (1895) 110 C 129, 138, 42 P 561] .

Exception:

Some courts espouse the view that appointment of a receiver is an "extraordinary and harsh" remedy in any case and is therefore "to be allowed cautiously and only where less onerous remedies would be inadequate or unavailable" [Cohen v. Herbert (1960) 186 CA2d 488, 495, 8 CR 922] . Usually this attitude prevails in the cases falling under CCP § 564(b)(9) [see 6.29].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsGeneral
OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversAppointments

26 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions
V. SEEKING OR OPPOSING APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.25

6.25 Seller's Action to Recover Property Can Involve Receivership.

In an action by a vendor to vacate a fraudulent purchase of property, a receiver may be appointed by the court in which the action is pending, or by a judge of that court, on the application of the plaintiff or of any other party to the pending action, when [CCP § 564(b)(1)]:

- The applicant's right to or interest in the property, or the proceeds of the property, is probable; and
- It is shown that the property is in danger of being either:
 - ☐ Lost;
 - ☐ Removed; or
 - ☐ Materially injured.

Example:

A buyer made a successful bid and paid a deposit to buy a farm that was part of the estate of which the seller was the administrator. The probate judge confirmed the sale and ordered prompt payment of the balance of the price. The buyer then failed to pay the balance of the price and admitted to seller that he was unable to pay it. Nevertheless, the buyer immediately, and without legal right, put a tenant in possession of the farm under a purported sharecropping lease. The tenant planted crops. The seller declared the deposit forfeited and demanded possession of the farm. When the demand was ignored, the seller sued for a decree forfeiting the deposit, terminating the claims of the buyer and the tenant to the farm and the growing crops, and enjoining the buyer and the tenant from interfering with the seller's right of possession and title. In addition, the seller asked that a receiver be appointed to harvest and market the crops (which were then ready to be harvested) and to hold the proceeds during the litigation. The trial court appointed a receiver but then revoked the appointment. The appellate court ordered reinstatement of the receivership, on the ground that if crops are planted by a trespasser who wrongfully assumes to hold possession of the land and threatens to harvest and market the crops, CCP § 564(b)(1) authorizes the appointment of a receiver in an appropriate proceeding. In effect, the court noted, the result of the probate court proceedings had been a contract between the buyer and seller, and the action was based on a breach of that contract by an insolvent buyer. (Implicitly, an offer to buy is fraudulent if the buyer is insolvent.) The complaint sought appropriate equitable relief, and the appointment of the receiver was proper [Barnes v. Morrison (1929) 102 CA 152, 156-159, 282 P 986] .

Distinguish--Buyer in Default Without Fraud:

When a buyer falls into default under an executory contract for land, but there was no fraud on the buyer's part in making the contract, the seller has no standing under CCP § 564(b)(1) to obtain appointment of a receiver to harvest and sell crops growing on the land. Once the seller regains possession of the land in an ejectment action, the seller's only additional remedy is to sue the defaulted buyer for the value of the use of the land during the period of the buyer's wrongful possession. As the value of the crop would not be the measure of damages (because the crop embodies the value of the farmer's labor in addition to the value of the use of the land), the seller has no claim on the crop [California Delta Farms, Inc. v. Chinese Am. Farms, Inc. (1928) 204 C 524, 526-528, 269 P 443] . (If the seller happened to have a security interest in the crop, however, that would make a difference [see 6.26].)

Cross References:

Forms for use in obtaining appointment of receiver, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender).

Memorandum supporting appointment of receiver in action by vendor to vacate fraudulent purchase of property, see California Points and Authorities, § 200.80 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Receiverships General Overview

27 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions
V. SEEKING OR OPPOSING APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.26

6.26 Creditor's Equitable Action Can Involve Receivership.

In an action by a creditor to subject any property or fund to the creditor's claim, a receiver may be appointed by the court in which the action is pending, or by a judge of that court, on the application of the plaintiff or of any other party to the pending action, when [CCP § 564(b)(1)]:

- The applicant's right to or interest in the property or fund, or the proceeds of the property, is probable; and
- It is shown that the property or fund is in danger of being either:
 - ☐ Lost;
 - ☐ Removed; or
 - ☐ Materially injured.

Example:

A buyer made an installment-sale contract to buy an orchard from a seller, with payments to extend over a nine-year period, during which the seller retained the title as security. The buyer was to cultivate the orchard during the payment period, and the seller was to remain entitled to the proceeds of sale of the fruit. The buyer fell behind in payments after four years. The value of the property had depreciated since the contract was entered into, so that it was probably insufficient to cover the balance due. The property was in danger of being materially injured because of the buyer's failure to care properly for the grove, failure to irrigate at proper times, failure to disc, and failure to fertilize, all of which were contrary to accepted agricultural practice. Unless those matters could be attended to immediately, in the period when the trees were blooming and setting fruit, irreparable damage would be caused to the soil, trees, and crop. The seller sued to foreclose the buyer's interest in the property under the contract, and obtained the ex parte appointment of a receiver to effect the necessary cultivation. At a subsequent hearing the court confirmed and extended the receivership for the duration of the litigation. This was a proper exercise of the court's power to appoint a receiver [Snidow v. Hill (1948) 84 CA2d 702, 704-708, 191 P2d 513] .

Distinguish:

The statute authorizes appointment of a receiver "in aid of a creditor's bill" [La Societe Francaise d'Epargnes et de Prevoyance Mutuelle v. District Court (1879) 53 C 495, 552] ; that is, it aids a creditor with a lien (or some equivalent claim) on the property or fund in question. A general (unsecured) creditor has no standing under CCP § 564(b)(1) to obtain appointment of a receiver for property in the debtor's possession [California Delta Farms, Inc. v. Chinese Am. Farms, Inc. (1928) 204 C 524, 526, 269 P 443] .

 Cross References:

Allegations and prayer for appointment of receiver in action by secured creditor to enforce personal property security agreement, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 486.136 (Matthew Bender).

Memorandum supporting appointment of receiver in action by creditor to subject property or fund to creditor's claim, see California Points and Authorities, § 200.220 (Matthew Bender).

Memorandum opposing appointment of receiver in action by creditor to subject property or fund to creditor's claim, see California Points and Authorities, §§ 200.230, 200.231 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Equitable Accountings General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Receiverships Receivers General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief General Overview

28 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions
V. SEEKING OR OPPOSING APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.27

6.27 Equitable Action Between Partners, Joint Venturers, or Like Parties Can Involve Receivership.

In an action between partners or others jointly owning or interested in any property or fund, a receiver may be appointed by the court in which the action is pending, or by a judge of that court, on the application of the plaintiff or of any other party to the pending action, when [CCP § 564(b)(1)]:

- The applicant's right to or interest in the property or fund, or the proceeds of the property, is probable; and
- It is shown that the property or fund is in danger of being either:
 - ☐ Lost;
 - ☐ Removed; or
 - ☐ Materially injured.

Example:

Plaintiff and defendant formed a joint venture to own a parcel of real property and manage it under a long-term lease. Plaintiff, in order to enjoy his rights under their agreement, eventually had to sue defendant; and plaintiff obtained appointment of a receiver to manage their property during the litigation. The case for appointing a receiver was made by evidence that defendant had excluded plaintiff from participation in the management of their enterprise, from receipt of any share of the profits, and from all knowledge of defendant's transactions respecting the property. In addition, there was evidence of defendant's dissipation of a considerable portion of the receipts of the enterprise and defendant's hazarding the loss of the venture's sole asset. The need for the appointment of a receiver to protect and conserve the assets and plaintiff's share of future revenue during the litigation was "well nigh compelling" [Neider v. Dardi (1955) 130 CA2d 646, 649, 279 P2d 598] .

Strategic Point:

The parties in cases of this type usually have a common interest in preserving property that is the subject of litigation between them. In that event, they can stipulate to the appointment of a receiver [see, e.g., Cal-American Income Prop. Fund VII v. Brown Dev. Corp. (1982) 138 CA3d 268, 271-272, 187 CR 703]

Trap:

A careless stipulation could subvert the parties' purpose of preserving the property. For instance, they might unwittingly empower the receiver to sell the property if they stipulate to an order of appointment that does not withhold that power; and then the court might approve a sale, even though neither party wanted that outcome [see, e.g., Cal-American Income Prop. Fund VII v. Brown Dev. Corp. (1982) 138 CA3d 268, 274, 187 CR 703 (stipulated order of appointment broadly authorized receiver "generally to do such acts respecting the property as the court may authorize"; when receiver sought confirmation of sale, court correctly concluded that receiver had power to sell subject to court's confirmation; court confirmed sale but abused discretion because evidence was not sufficient to warrant confirmation)].

Cross References:

Allegations and prayer for appointment of receiver to take possession of property or fund in which parties have joint interest, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 486.130 (Matthew Bender).

Memorandum supporting appointment of receiver in action between parties jointly owning or interested in property or fund, action between partners, action between vendor and vendee, or action between joint venturers, see California Points and Authorities, §§ 200.90, 200.91, 200.100, 200.101, 200.110, 200.120, 200.121 (Matthew Bender).

Memorandum opposing appointment of receiver in action between parties jointly owning or interested in property or fund, action between partners, action between vendor and vendee, or action between joint venturers, see California Points and Authorities, §§ 200.130, 200.140, 200.141, 200.150, 200.160 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Equitable Accountings Partnerships Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Receiverships General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief General Overview

29 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions
V. SEEKING OR OPPOSING APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.28

6.28 Lender's Action to Enforce Assignment of Real Property Rents Can Involve Receivership.

In an action by a secured lender for specific performance of an assignment-of-rents provision in a deed of trust, mortgage, or separate assignment document, a receiver may be appointed by the court in which the action is pending, or by a judge of that court [CCP § 564(b)(11)].

Strategic Point:

The appointment may be continued after entry of a judgment for specific performance if appropriate to protect, operate, or maintain the real property encumbered by the deed of trust or mortgages or to collect rents from the property while a pending nonjudicial foreclosure under power of sale in the deed of trust or mortgage is being completed [CCP § 564(b)(11)].

Cross References:

Appointment of receiver in lender's action for specific performance of some other provision in deed of trust or mortgage, see 6.25.

Allegations and prayer for appointment of receiver in action to enforce assignment of rents, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 486.132 (Matthew Bender).

Memorandum supporting appointment of receiver in action for specific performance of assignment-of-rents provision, see California Points and Authorities, § 200.190 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Receiverships General Overview

30 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions
V. SEEKING OR OPPOSING APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.29

6.29 Receiver Can Be Appointed Whenever Necessary to Preserve Property or Party's Rights.

A receiver may be appointed by the court in which an action or proceeding is pending, or by a judge of that court, in any case if necessary to preserve the property or rights of any party [CCP § 564(b)(9)].

Exception:

If the facts bring the case within the purview of one of the more specific grants of authority to appoint a receiver [see CCP § 564(b)-(d)], then the specific statutory provision is controlling [Marsch v. Williams (1994) 23 CA4th 238, 246 n8, 28 CR2d 402 ; Dabney Oil Co. v. Providence Oil Co. (1913) 22 CA 233, 237, 133 P 1155] . Usually only two of those specific provisions would be applicable in contract actions [see CCP § 564(b)(1), (11); see also 6.25 -6.28].

Strategic Point--Limitation to Equity Cases:

The statute allows appointment of a receiver "in any case" as necessary; however, in practice, since the remedy is equitable, it is available only insofar as a party has invoked the court's equity jurisdiction [see, e.g., Snidow v. Hill (1948) 84 CA2d 702, 704-705, 191 P2d 513 ; see also O'Flaherty v. Belgum (2004) 115 CA4th 1044, 1092 (Grignon, J. dissenting; observation that remedy is equitable and implicitly available only in case in equity)].

Example--Specific Performance of Mortgage Provision:

A creditor held a mortgage on a railroad company's property to secure the payment of principal and interest on the company's bonds that creditor had taken up. The mortgage expressly entitled the creditor to enter the company's property covered by the mortgage and take possession of it, in the event of a default in the payment of principal or interest (and the existence of various additional conditions). The default occurred as provided for, and the creditor sued for specific performance of the mortgage provision after the railroad company declined to hand over possession of its property. At the creditor's request, the trial court appointed a receiver ex parte to take possession of the company's property during the litigation. The appointment was a proper exercise of the trial court's power under CCP § 564(b)(9) [Sacramento & Placerville R.R. Co. v. Superior Court (1880) 55 C 453, 456-457].

Distinguish--Buyer's Action for Specific Performance:

In a normal case when the buyer sues for specific performance of a contract to convey real property, there should be no basis for appointing a receiver to take possession of the property. If the seller in possession of the property is engaged in harvesting and selling crops, or otherwise using the property, the buyer cannot make a case for receivership, even if the seller's use of the property violates the buyer's contract rights. The buyer's remedy is to await judgment on the specific performance complaint, and then (on a favorable judgment) sue for damages for the seller's use of the property during whatever period the buyer was entitled to possession [see Khatchadourian v. Davidian (1947) 79 CA2d 539, 541, 179 P2d 853]. Only when the seller in possession is doing something harmful to the property or violating the buyer's rights in some way not redressable by damages might the buyer make a case for receivership.

Cross References:

Forms for use in obtaining appointment of receiver, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender).

Memorandum supporting appointment of receiver in case to preserve property or rights of party, see California Points and Authorities, §§ 200.250, 200.251 (Matthew Bender).

Memorandum opposing appointment of receiver in case to preserve property or rights of party, see California Points and Authorities, § 200.260 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Receiverships General Overview

31 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions
V. SEEKING OR OPPOSING APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.30

6.30 Receiver Can Be Appointed for Property Subjected to Attachment.

If property has been or is sought to be attached, the court may appoint a receiver to preserve the value of the property, including but not limited to selling the property, if the court determines that either [CCP § 488.700]:

- The property is perishable or will greatly deteriorate or greatly depreciate in value; or
- For some other reason the interests of the parties will be best served by the order.

Distinguish:

Receivership is not a substitute for attachment [Rogers v. Smith (1946) 76 CA2d 16, 21, 172 P2d 365] but, under this statute, can be used in aid of attachment.

Cross References:

Attachment as provisional remedy, see 6.09.

Forms for use in obtaining appointment of receiver, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender).

Memorandum supporting appointment of receiver in attachment proceeding, see California Points and Authorities, § 200.270 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies Attachments Civil Procedure Remedies Receiverships General Overview

32 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions
V. SEEKING OR OPPOSING APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.31

6.31 Court May Appoint Receiver on Its Own Initiative.

A court may appoint a receiver whenever a proper case is made, even if no party has requested it [Neider v. Dardi (1955) 130 CA2d 646, 650, 279 P2d 598] . A "proper case" would entail, at least:

- A party's request for some type of equitable remedy (other than appointment of a receiver) in circumstances in which appointment of a receiver would be appropriate [see Venza v. Venza (1949) 94 CA2d 878, 880-883, 211 P2d 913] .

Example:

In an ex-wife's action against her ex-husband for an accounting and equitable division of former community assets, including business they had operated together, the court properly appointed a receiver to operate the business during litigation, even though neither party asked for that remedy, in light of allegations of the ex-husband's fraudulent concealment of business's revenue and other assets, and his fraudulent inducement of his ex-wife to enter into the marital settlement agreement, on which division of their community property had been predicated in their divorce judgment [see Venza v. Venza (1949) 94 CA2d 878, 880-883, 211 P2d 913] .

- The absence of any party's well-taken and timely objection to the court's spontaneous appointment of a receiver [see Whitney v. Buckman (1864) 26 C 447, 453] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Receiverships Receivers Appointments

33 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions
VI. SEEKING OR OPPOSING TURNOVER OR DEPOSIT IN COURT

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.32

6.32 CHECKLIST: Seeking or Opposing Turnover or Deposit in Court.

☐ Determine whether client can obtain turnover order because other party:

- ☐ Admits having sum of money or anything capable of being delivered; and
- ☐ Admits that it belongs to client.

Authority:

CCP § 572

Discussion:

See 6.34

☐ Determine whether client can obtain order for deposit in court because:

- ☐ Other party admits having sum of money or anything capable of being delivered; and
- ☐ Under circumstances of case, it should be held by court pending final disposition of action.

Authority:

CCP § 572

Discussion:

See 6.35

☐ If representing defendant, determine whether client can and should make preemptive deposit of money in court to become eligible to recover costs and attorney's fees.

☐ Ascertain whether, before commencement of action, client tendered to plaintiff full amount to which plaintiff is entitled.

Authority:

CCP § 1025

Discussion:

See 6.36

☐ Ascertain whether, before filing answer, client is able and willing to tender to plaintiff full amount to which plaintiff is entitled.

Authority:

CC § 1717(b)(2)

Discussion:

See 6.36

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Deposits in Court Civil Procedure Remedies Prejudgment Remedies General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies General Overview

34 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions
VI. SEEKING OR OPPOSING TURNOVER OR DEPOSIT IN COURT

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.33

6.33 Options and Strategies.

In any action, if either party admits having a sum of money or anything capable of being delivered, and admits that it belongs to the other party, the other party can request a turnover order [see CCP § 572; see also 6.34].

Either party can request an order for deposit in court when a sum of money or anything capable of being delivered should be taken out of the hands of the other party, who admittedly has it, and placed in the court's custody during litigation [see CCP § 572; see also 6.35]. Usually the money or thing is the subject of the litigation.

A defendant who tendered payment of the plaintiff's claim before the lawsuit was commenced or before filing an answer can deposit the amount in court, and by doing so might become entitled to recover costs [see CCP § 1025] and attorney's fees [see CC § 1717(b)(2)], if the plaintiff fails to obtain a judgment for more than the tendered amount [see 6.36].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Deposits in Court Civil Procedure Remedies Prejudgment Remedies General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies General Overview

35 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions
VI. SEEKING OR OPPOSING TURNOVER OR DEPOSIT IN COURT

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.34

6.34 Party Can Request Turnover of Money or Thing.

6.34[1] Court Has Power to Issue Turnover Order. The court may order the turnover of money or anything capable of being delivered, subject to the further direction of the court, when a party to the action has admitted by the party's pleadings, or the examination of the party has shown, that the money or thing [CCP § 572]:

- Is in that party's possession or control; and
- Belongs or is due to the other party.

It is not necessary that the money or thing be the subject of the litigation, unless the party possessing or controlling the money or thing holds it as trustee for the party claiming it [see CCP § 572].

Warning:

Demurrers and cross complaints are both "pleadings" for these purposes [CCP § 422.10]. Counsel should consider whether any such pleadings may contain admissions that might justify a request for a turnover order. Counsel should also bear in mind that a material allegation in a complaint or cross-complaint that is not controverted by the answer will be taken as true for purposes of the action [CCP § 431.20(a); see CCP § 431.10(a)].

Decision Point--Defendant Holding Money:

When the defendant holds money (rather than a thing) that could be the subject of a turnover order, the defendant should consider preemptively depositing it in court, which could not only preclude a turnover order but also position the defendant to claim costs and attorney's fees [see CC § 1717(b)(2); CCP § 1025; see also 6.36].

Strategic Points:

- Under the statutory language, the essential facts do not have to be established in the same way; one fact could be admitted in the pleadings of the party having or controlling the money or thing, while the other fact could be shown on the examination of the party [see CCP § 572].

- A fact shown on the examination of a witness other than a party cannot support a turnover order (even if the witness' statement would be deemed an admission by the party under a rule of evidence), since the statute specifically refers to "the examination of a party to the action" [see CCP § 572].

- The statutory reference to "the examination" of the other party [see CCP § 572] is broad enough to encompass a deposition. However, there is no reported case showing that a court has considered this interpretation.

- A fact can be "shown on the examination" of a party even if the party does not admit it.

6.34[2] Claimant Must Move for Order. The party laying claim to the money or thing must move for the turnover order [CCP § 572]. There is no time limit for making the motion. The motion can be made orally during the trial or in a pretrial hearing. The statute requires a motion but does not specify a noticed motion [see generally CCP § 1005(a) (motions that must be made on written notice)].

Strategic Point:

The judge is not authorized to order a turnover unless a party requests it [see CCP § 572 (order may be made "upon motion")].

Cross References:

Notice of motion for turnover order, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 211.50 (Matthew Bender).

Additional discussion of procedure for turnover orders, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, 20.16.

6.34[3] Court May Impose Conditions or Order Deposit in Court. The turnover order may impose "those conditions that may be just" [CCP § 572]. In lieu of ordering a turnover to the claimant, the court may mandate that the money or thing be deposited in court, subject to the further direction of the court [CCP § 572; see 6.35].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Deposits in Court Civil Procedure Remedies Prejudgment Remedies General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies General Overview

36 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions
VI. SEEKING OR OPPOSING TURNOVER OR DEPOSIT IN COURT

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.35

6.35 Party Can Request Order for Deposit of Money or Thing in Court.

The court may order that money, or anything capable of being delivered, be deposited in court, subject to the further direction of the court, when [CCP § 572]:

- A party to the action has admitted in the party's pleadings, or the examination of the party has shown, that the money or thing is in that party's possession or control; and
- In the circumstances of the case, the money or thing should be held by the court pending final disposition of the action.

The party believing that the money or thing should be deposited in court must move for the order [see CCP § 572].

The statutory requirements, as well as considerations and procedures, governing orders for deposit in court are the same as for turnover orders, since both are governed by the same provisions of CC § 572 [see 6.34].

Strategic Point--Defendant Holding Money:

When the defendant holds money (rather than a thing) that could be the subject of an order for deposit in court, the defendant can preemptively deposit it in court, which could not only obviate an order but also position the defendant to claim costs and attorney's fees [see CC § 1717(b)(2); CCP § 1025; see also 6.36].

Cross Reference:

Notice of motion for order to deposit money or thing in court, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 211.50 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Deposits in Court Civil Procedure Remedies Prejudgment Remedies General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies General Overview

37 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 6 Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions
VI. SEEKING OR OPPOSING TURNOVER OR DEPOSIT IN COURT

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 6.36

6.36 Defendant Can Preemptively Deposit Money in Court.

6.36[1] Defendant Must Tender, Allege, and Deposit Full Amount to Which Plaintiff Is Entitled. In a contract action for damages, the defendant can make a preemptive deposit of money in court, so as to become entitled to recover costs [see 6.36[2]] or attorney's fees [see 6.36[3]], or both, even if judgment is rendered for the plaintiff. The following conditions must be satisfied [see CC § 1717(b)(2); CCP § 1025]:

- The defendant must have tendered to the plaintiff the full amount to which the plaintiff is entitled.
- The defendant's answer must allege that fact.
- The defendant must deposit that same amount in court, for the plaintiff.
- The allegation must be found to be true.

Warning:

The statute applies in an action for the recovery of "money only" [CCP § 1025]. In no reported case has a court examined how this condition should be applied in practice.

Strategic Point:

While the defendant's deposit in court could position the defendant to claim costs and attorney's fees, it also should preclude a turnover order--which the plaintiff could possibly obtain, in the absence of a deposit in court, if the answer admitted that a specified amount was due to the plaintiff [see CCP § 572; see also 6.34].

Cross References:

Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 14, Answers.

Discussion of contents of answer, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 26, Answers

(Matthew Bender).

6.36[2] Defendant Can Recover Costs. If the statutory conditions are satisfied [see 6.36[1]], and the defendant made the tender to the plaintiff before commencement of the action, then the plaintiff cannot recover costs, but instead must pay costs to the defendant [CCP § 1025].

 Cross References:

Detailed discussion of recovery of costs and attorney's fees, see Ch. 12, Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation.

Discussion of party's right to recover costs, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 174.10 et seq. (Matthew Bender).

6.36[3] Defendant Can Recover Attorney's Fees. If the statutory conditions are satisfied [see 6.36[1]], and CC § 1717 applies (entitling the prevailing party to recover attorney's fees in an action on a contract that provides for attorney's fees), then the defendant is deemed to be a party prevailing on the contract within the meaning of CC § 1717 [CC § 1717(b)(2)].

Consider:

Unlike the recovery of costs under CCP § 1025 [see 6.36[2]], the defendant need not have tendered the amount in question to the plaintiff before the commencement of the action. CC § 1717 does not impose that condition. It should be sufficient to make the tender before the answer is filed, since the statute requires only that the answer must allege the fact of making the tender [see CC § 1717(b)(2)].

The court, on application of any party to the action, must order the deposited money to be invested in an insured, interest-bearing account. Interest on the amount must be allocated to the parties in the same proportion as the original funds are allocated [CC § 1717(b)(2)].

 Cross References:

Detailed discussion of recovery of costs and attorney's fees, see Ch. 12, Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation.

Discussion of party's right to recover attorney's fees, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 174.50 et seq. (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Deposits in Court Civil Procedure Remedies Prejudgment Remedies General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Provisional Remedies General Overview

38 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 7 Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 7.syn

§ 7.syn Synopsis to Chapter 7: Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions

7.01 Scope.

7.02 Objective and Strategy.

7.03 CHECKLIST: Determining Measure of Damages.

7.04 Damages Compensate Plaintiff for Detriment Caused by Breach.

7.04[1] Unless Otherwise Provided by Statute, General Measure of Contract Damages Applies.

7.04[2] Damages Must Have Been Contemplated by Parties.

7.04[2][a] General Damages Must Naturally Arise From Breach or Have Been Reasonably Foreseeable by Parties.

7.04[2][b] Generally No Recovery for Unanticipated Damage or Injury.

7.04[3] Damages Must Be Clearly Ascertainable.

7.04[4] Plaintiff Is Entitled to Benefit of Bargain.

7.04[5] Damages Are Not Measured by Savings or Benefit to Defendant Resulting From Breach.

7.04[6] Secondary or Derivative Losses May Be Recoverable as Special Damages.

7.04[6][a] Special Damages Are Secondary and Derivative Losses Arising From Circumstances Peculiar to Specific Contract.

7.04[6][b] Special Damages Generally Are Nonrecoverable.

7.04[6][c] Special Damages Are Recoverable If Breaching Party Voluntarily Assumed Risk of Liability for Unusual Losses.

7.04[6][d] Special Damages Are Recoverable If Circumstances Compel Inference that Breaching Party Should Have Contemplated Possibility of Loss.

7.04[7] Measure of Damages for Breach of Particular Contracts Are Specified by Statute.

7.04[7][a] Obligation to Pay Money Only.

7.04[7][b] Covenant of Seisin, Right to Convey, Warranty, or Quiet Enjoyment.

7.04[7][c] Covenant Against Encumbrances.

7.04[7][d] Contract to Convey Land.

7.04[7][e] Agreement to Deliver Quitclaim Deed.

7.04[7][f] Agreement to Purchase Real Property.

7.04[7][g] Leases of Real or Personal Property.

7.04[7][h] Obligations of Carriers of Passengers, Freight, and Messages.

7.04[7][i] Warranty of Agent's Authority.

7.04[8] Measure of Damages May Be Included in Statutory Scheme Governing Transaction.

7.04[9] Measure of Damages for Particular Circumstances May Be Established by Case Law.

7.04[10] More Than One Method of Determining Damages May Apply.

7.04[11] Nominal Damages Are Presumed.

7.05 Amount of Damages May Be Limited by Contract or Circumstances.

7.05[1] Prospective Damages Are Not Available for Partial Breach.

7.05[2] Damages Are Limited When Contract Contains Termination Provision.

7.05[3] Liquidated Damages Provisions May Specify Recovery.

7.05[3][a] Reasonable Liquidated Damages Provisions Generally Are Valid Under CC § 1671.

7.05[3][b] Liquidated Damages Provisions in Consumer Contracts and Residential Leases Are Enforceable Only in Limited Circumstances.

7.05[3][c] Deposit May Constitute Liquidated Damages.

7.05[4] Provisions in Real Estate Purchase Contracts for Liquidated Damages to Seller Upon Default by Buyer.

7.05[4][a] Liquidated Damages Provisions Must Meet Requirements of CC §§ 1677 and 1671(b).

7.05[4][b] CC § 1677 Specifies Format and Signature Requirements for Liquidated Damages Provision.

7.05[4][c] CC § 1671(b) Requires Provision to Have Been Reasonable Under Circumstances When Made.

7.05[4][d] Provisions in Contracts for Purchase of Residential Property Are Subject to Additional Requirements.

7.05[5] Other Liquidated Damages Provisions in Real Estate Purchase Contracts Are Governed by CC § 1671.

7.06 Facts May Support Claim for Either Tort or Contract Damages.

7.06[1] Tort Claim Exists If Conduct Violates Duty Independent of Contract Arising from Principles of Tort Law.

7.06[2] Economic Loss Rule Bars Tort Recovery by Purchaser Absent Personal Injury or Damage to Other Property.

7.06[3] Affirmative Misrepresentations Made in Performance of Contract May Support Action for Fraud.

7.07 CHECKLIST: Pleading and Proving Damages.

7.08 Damages Must Be Alleged.

7.08[1] Allegation of Damages Is Essential to State Cause of Action.

7.08[2] General Damages Need Not Be Alleged in Detail.

7.08[3] Plaintiff Must Allege Particular Facts to Recover Special Damages.

7.09 Plaintiff Must Prove Damages With Reasonable Certainty.

7.09[1] Plaintiff Must Prove Damages Were Suffered and Were Caused by Defendant's Breach.

7.09[2] Certainty As to Amount Is Not Required.

7.09[3] Future Damages Are Recoverable If Proven With Reasonable Certainty.

7.09[4] Requirement of "Reasonable Certainty" Does Not Affect Burden of Proof.

7.09[5] Issue of "Reasonable Certainty" Is Generally for Trier of Fact.

7.10 Plaintiff Must Show Causation.

7.10[1] Damages Must Be Proximately Caused by Breach.

7.10[2] Breach Must Be Cause-in-Fact for Loss or Harm.

7.10[3] Breach Need Not Be Sole Cause of Damages.

7.11 Damages Must Have Been Foreseeable.

7.12 Proving Entitlement to Particular Elements of Damages.

7.12[1] Loss of Profits May Be Recoverable As General Damages.

7.12[1][a] Extent and Occurrence Must Be Ascertained With Reasonable Certainty.

7.12[1][b] Anticipated Profits of Unestablished Business May Be Recoverable.

7.12[1][c] Anticipated Profits for Unestablished Business May Be Shown in Various Ways.

7.12[1][d] Measure of Damages Is Net Profits.

7.12[1][e] Special Allegations Usually Are Not Required.

7.12[2] Damages for Physical or Mental Suffering Arising From Breach.

7.12[2][a] Generally Not Recoverable in Claim for Breach of Contract.

7.12[2][b] May Be Recoverable When Foreseeable and Contemplated Result of Breach of Particular Contract.

7.12[3] Loss of Goodwill May Be Element of Damages.

7.12[3][a] Goodwill Must Have Been Within Contemplation of Parties.

7.12[3][b] Difficulty of Proof Does Not Preclude Recovery.

7.12[3][c] Facts Concerning Loss of Goodwill Should Be Alleged With Particularity.

7.12[4] Damage to Reputation Generally Is Not Recoverable.

7.12[5] Plaintiff May Recover Expenditures Incurred in Performance If Not Awarded Full Benefit of Bargain.

7.12[5][a] Reasonably Necessary Expenditures or Value of Services Rendered May Be Recoverable.

7.12[5][b] Plaintiff Also May Recover Net Profit, If Established.

7.12[5][c] Defendant Has Burden of Showing Expenses Were Extravagant and Unnecessary.

7.12[6] Expenses Incurred Because of Breach May Be Recovered.

7.12[6][a] Plaintiff Is Entitled to Reasonable and Necessary Expenses.

7.12[6][b] Damages Include Expenses Incurred in Mitigation.

7.12[7] Prejudgment Interest.

7.12[7][a] Party Entitled to Recover Damages Certain Is Entitled to Interest From Day Right of Recovery Vests.

7.12[7][b] Court May Allow Prejudgment Interest When Claim Was Unliquidated.

7.12[7][c] Contract May Stipulate Rate of Interest.

7.12[7][d] Accepting Payment of Whole Principal Waives Claim to Interest.

7.12[8] Punitive or Exemplary Damages Are Unavailable for Breach of Contract.

7.13 CHECKLIST: Contesting Damages.

7.14 Claim for Damages May Be Subject to Attack on Various Grounds.

7.14[1] Defendant May Demur to Complaint If Damages Are Not Properly Alleged.

7.14[2] Defendant's Liability for Damages Alleged May Be Contested.

7.14[3] Plaintiff's Entitlement to Particular Damages May Be Contested.

7.15 Defendant May Assert Affirmative Defense of Failure to Mitigate Damages.

7.15[1] Plaintiff Must Make Reasonable Effort to Mitigate.

7.15[2] Reasonableness of Effort Depends on Circumstances.

7.15[3] Plaintiff Cannot Recover Avoidable Damages.

7.15[4] Mitigation May Not Be Required Under Circumstances.

7.15[4][a] Obligation to Mitigate Is Excused by Reliance on Defendant's Promises.

7.15[4][b] Nature of Contract or Extent of Plaintiff's Performance May Excuse Obligation to Mitigate.

7.15[4][c] Obligation to Mitigate May Not Be Imposed to Deprive Plaintiff of Benefit of Subsequent Contracts.

7.15[4][d] Obligation to Mitigate Does Not Apply When Plaintiff Has Fully Performed.

7.15[4][e] Obligation to Mitigate Does Not Require Obligations Beyond Plaintiff's Means.

7.15[5] Failure to Mitigate Is Affirmative Defense.

7.16 Complaint for Breach of Contract With Allegation(s) of Damages.

Complaint for Breach of Contract With Allegation(s) of Damages.

7.17 Answer to Complaint for Breach of Contract With Affirmative Defense Based on Plaintiff's Failure to Mitigate Damages.

Answer to Complaint for Breach of Contract With Affirmative Defense Based on Plaintiff's Failure to Mitigate Damages.

7.18 Memorandum for Party Seeking Damages--General Damages Sufficiently Alleged.

Memorandum for Party Seeking Damages--General Damages Sufficiently Alleged.

7.19 Memorandum for Party Seeking Damages--Loss of Profits Recoverable.

Memorandum for Party Seeking Damages--Loss of Profits Recoverable.

7.20 Memorandum for Party Seeking Damages--Mental or Emotional Distress Damages Recoverable.

Memorandum for Party Seeking Damages--Mental or Emotional Distress Damages Recoverable.

7.21 Memorandum for Party Seeking Damages--Plaintiff's Effort to Mitigate Was Reasonable.

Memorandum for Party Seeking Damages--Plaintiff's Effort to Mitigate Was Reasonable.

7.22 Memorandum for Party Seeking Damages--Mitigation Not Required Under Circumstances.

Memorandum for Party Seeking Damages--Mitigation Not Required Under Circumstances.

7.23 Memorandum for Party Contesting Damages--Allegations Insufficient to Recover Special Damages.

Memorandum for Party Contesting Damages--Allegations Insufficient to Recover Special Damages.

7.24 Memorandum for Party Contesting Damages--Damages Not Recoverable Because Plaintiff Failed to Mitigate.

Memorandum for Party Contesting Damages--Damages Not Recoverable Because Plaintiff Failed to Mitigate.

39 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 7 Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions

I. STRATEGY

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 7.01

7.01 Scope.

This chapter covers:

- Objective and strategy for seeking or contesting the award of damages in contract actions [see 7.02].
- Determining the appropriate measure of damages [see 7.03 -7.06], including the general measure of contract damages [see 7.04[1] -[5]], the availability of special damages [see 7.04[6]], measures of damages specified by statute and case law [see 7.04[7] -[9]], and the award of nominal damages when plaintiff has suffered no appreciable detriment [see 7.04[11]].
- Determining the correct measure of damages when more than one method of determining damages may apply [see 7.04[10]].
- Determining whether the amount of damages is limited because breach was partial [see 7.05[1]], the contract was terminated according to its terms [see 7.05[2]], or the contract contains a liquidated damages provision [see 7.05[3] -[5]].
- Determining whether facts support an alternative claim for tort damages [see 7.06].
- Pleading and proving the damages sought [see 7.07 -7.12; Forms: see 7.16, 7.18 -7.22], including alleging damages [see 7.08], proving damages with reasonable certainty [see 7.09], and showing causation [see 7.10] and foreseeability [see 7.11].
- Proving entitlement to particular elements of damages [see 7.12; Forms: see 7.18 -7.22], including loss of profits [see 7.12[1]], damages for physical or mental suffering [see 7.12[2]], loss of goodwill [see 7.12[3]], expenses incurred in performance [see 7.12[5]], expenses incurred because of breach [see 7.12[6]], and prejudgment interest [see 7.12[7]].
- Contesting damages, including the affirmative defense of plaintiff's failure to mitigate [see 7.13 -7.15; Forms: see 7.17, 7.23, 7.24].

Core Statutes:

CC §§ 1671-1681 (liquidated damages), 3287-3289 (interest on damages), 3300-3318 (measure of damages)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Compensatory Damages General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Foreseeable Damages General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Liquidated Damages Contracts Law Remedies Punitive Damages

40 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 7 Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions

I. STRATEGY

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 7.02

7.02 Objective and Strategy.

Damages are an essential element of a cause of action for breach of contract [see 7.08[1]]. Because contract damages are more limited in scope than tort damages [see CC §§ 3300, 3333], the plaintiff must determine the appropriate measure of damages to optimize recovery [see 7.04] and prepare the case accordingly. The plaintiff also must determine his or her entitlement to particular types of damages, such as loss of goodwill, to comply with any particular requirements of pleading and proof [see 7.12]. The plaintiff must properly allege and prove all of the damages sought [see 7.08 -7.10].

The defendant in a breach of contract action must consider how best to minimize his or her exposure for the damages sought by the complaint. The defendant is liable for foreseeable damages that were proximately caused by his or her breach [see 7.10, 7.11]. The defendant therefore must consider whether his or her liability for the damages sought can be disputed because of lack of foreseeability or causation [see 7.14[1], [2]].

The defendant also must consider whether to dispute plaintiff's entitlement to particular items of damages [see 7.14[3]]. For example, a plaintiff may be requesting punitive damages under a breach-of-contract cause of action that permits only compensatory damages. A motion to strike or for summary judgment would be likely to succeed and thereby significantly limit defendant's risk at trial.

Even if liability for damages cannot be contested completely, the defendant must consider whether an affirmative defense, such as the existence of a liquidated damages provision or plaintiff's failure to mitigate, can be asserted to limit the plaintiff's potential recovery [see 7.15].

Strategic Point--All Parties:

Damages often involve issues of fact that cannot be resolved prior to trial. However, the defendant should consider whether, under the circumstances of the case, any damages issues can be resolved prior to or during trial, by demurrer or motion. In some circumstances, raising a damages issue by demurrer or motion may result in dismissal of the case or, at least, a limit on the type or amount of damages that ultimately can be awarded [see 7.14].

Detailed Discussion/Forms:

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts; Ch. 177, Damages (Matthew Bender).

California Legal Forms, Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions (Matthew Bender).

California Points and Authorities, Ch. 50, Contracts; Ch. 65, Damages (Matthew Bender).

 Cross Reference:

For Tips on updating case law and expanding your research with additional resources, see How to Use Lexis.com With This Publication at the front of this volume.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawRemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesCompensatory DamagesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesForeseeable DamagesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesLiquidated DamagesContracts LawRemediesPunitive Damages

41 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 7 Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions

II. DETERMINING MEASURE OF DAMAGES

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 7.03

7.03 CHECKLIST: Determining Measure of Damages.

☐ Determine whether measure of damages for breach of contract at issue has been established:

☐ By statute:

☐ Obligation to pay money only.

Authority:

CC § 3302

Discussion:

See 7.04[7][a]

☐ Covenant of seisin, right to convey, warranty, or quiet enjoyment.

Authority:

CC § 3304

Discussion:

See 7.04[7][b]

☐ Covenant against encumbrances.

Authority:

CC § 3305

Discussion:

See 7.04[7][c]

- ☐ Contract to convey land.

Authority:

CC § 3306

Discussion:

See 7.04[7][d]

- ☐ Agreement to deliver quitclaim deed.

Authority:

CC § 3306a

Discussion:

See 7.04[7][e]

- ☐ Agreement to purchase real property.

Authority:

CC § 3307

Discussion:

See 7.04[7][f]

- ☐ Leases of real or personal property.

Authority:

CC § 1951.2; Com Code §§ 10602, 10519, 10520, 10527-10532, 10600

Discussion:

See 7.04[7][g]

- ☐ Obligations of carrier of passengers, freight, and messages.

Authority:

CC §§ 3315, 3316

Discussion:

See 7.04[7][h]

- ☐ Warranty of agent's authority.

Authority:

CC § 3318

Discussion:

See 7.04[7][i]

- ☐ Other statutory scheme governing transaction.

Discussion:

See 7.04[8]

☐ If measure of damages is not established by statute, determine damages using general measure of contract damages provided by CC § 3300 considering that

- ☐ Damages must compensate plaintiff for harm proximately caused by breach.

Authority:

CC § 3300

Discussion:

See 7.04[1]

- ☐ Damages must have been contemplated by parties.

Authority:*California Press Mfg. Co. v. Stafford Packing Co. (1923) 192 C 479, 483, 221 P 345Discussion:

See 7.04[2]

- ☐ Damages must be clearly ascertainable.

Authority:CC § 3301; *Benach v. County of Los Angeles (2007) 149 CA4th 836, 848, 57 CR3d 363Discussion:

See 7.04[3]

- ☐ Plaintiff is entitled to benefit of bargain.

Authority:*Martin v. U-Haul Co. of Fresno (1988) 204 CA3d 396, 409, 251 CR 17Discussion:

See 7.04[4]

- ☐ Damages cannot be measured by savings or benefit to defendant resulting from breach.

Authority:*Gregory v. Spieker (1895) 110 C 150, 155, 42 P 576Discussion:

See 7.04[5]

- ☐ Measure of general damages for particular circumstances may have been established by case law.

Discussion:

See 7.04[9]

- ☐ Even if breach has caused no appreciable detriment to plaintiff, nominal damages are presumed.

Authority:

CC § 3360

Discussion:

See 7.04[11]

- ☐ If plaintiff has incurred some harm as a result of the breach because of special circumstances concerning the contract, determine whether plaintiff is entitled to special, as well as general, damages.

Authority:

Brandon & Tibbs v. George Kevorkian Accountancy Corp. (1990) 226 CA3d 442, 455, 277 CR 40

Discussion:

See 7.04[6]

- ☐ If more than one method of determining damages applies, select appropriate method:

- ☐ If one of the methods is a specific measure of damages, determine damages according to that measure.

Authority:

CC § 3300

Discussion:

See 7.04[10]

- ☐ If both methods are adequate and permissible, determine damages according to method yielding the more accurate and certain result.

Authority:

California Press Mfg. Co. v. Stafford Packing Co. (1923) 192 C 479, 485, 221 P 345

Discussion:

See 7.04[10]

- ☐ If two measures are accurate and will fully compensate plaintiff, determine damages according to method less expensive to defendant.

Authority:

A.A. Baxter Corp. v. Colt Indus., Inc. (1970) 10 CA3d 144, 160, 88 CR 842

Discussion:

See 7.04[10]

☐ Determine whether amount of damages is limited because of circumstances such as:

☐ Breach was partial, so prospective damages are not available.

Authority:

Coughlin v. Blair (1953) 41 C2d 587, 598, 262 P2d 305

Discussion:

See 7.05[1]

☐ Contract was terminated according to its terms, so damages are limited to those that accrued prior to termination.

Authority:

Martin v. U-Haul Co. of Fresno (1988) 204 CA3d 396, 409-411, 251 CR 17

Discussion:

See 7.05[2]

☐ A liquidated damages provision specifies amount of recovery.

Authority:

CC §§ 1671-1681

Discussion:

See 7.05[3] -[5]

☐ Determine whether facts will support alternative claim for tort damages.

Authority:

Applied Equip. Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 C4th 503, 515, 28 CR2d 475, 869 P2d 454 ;
Robinson Helicopter Co., Inc. v. Dana Corp. (2004) 34 C4th 979, 990-991

Discussion:

See 7.06

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawRemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesCompensatory DamagesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesForeseeable DamagesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesLiquidated DamagesContracts LawRemediesPunitive Damages

42 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 7 Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions
II. DETERMINING MEASURE OF DAMAGES

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 7.04

7.04 Damages Compensate Plaintiff for Detriment Caused by Breach.

7.04[1] Unless Otherwise Provided by Statute, General Measure of Contract Damages Applies. Every person who suffers loss or harm as a result of the unlawful act or omission of another is entitled to recover monetary compensation, known as damages [CC §§ 3281, 3282].

Unless otherwise expressly provided by statute, the measure of damages for breach of an obligation arising from contract is the amount that will compensate the aggrieved party for all the detriment proximately caused by the breach, or which, in the ordinary course of things, would be likely to result from the breach [CC § 3300].

Strategic Point--All Parties:

If the contract at issue is subject to specific statutory requirements, such as a residential lease [see CC § 1940 et seq.], the measure of damages for certain breaches of the contract may be included in those requirements [see, e.g., CC § 1951.2 (damages recoverable by lessor upon breach and abandonment by lessee)]. Counsel should review any such governing statutes to determine whether a particular measure of damages has been provided.

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

Plaintiff's counsel should evaluate potential damages in the total context of the case. Sometimes the highest possible dollar amount of damages may not be the best one to assert, strategically speaking, if it is speculative, difficult to prove, or subject to an affirmative defense that would not be relevant if the claim for damages was limited to a lesser amount.

Jury Instructions:

Introduction to Contract Damages, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 350 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Introductory Instruction: Right to Recover Damages and Determination of Damages, see California

Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3E, Instr. MB 300E.01 (Matthew Bender).

General Measure of Damages, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3E, Instr. MB 300E.02 (Matthew Bender).

Recovery Limited to Damages Proximately Caused by Breach, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3E, Instr. MB 300E.03 (Matthew Bender).

Damages Not Recoverable Unless Loss or Harm Would Not Have Occurred "But For" Breach, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3E, Instr. MB 300E.04 (Matthew Bender).

Concurrent Causes, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3E, Instr. MB 300E.05 (Matthew Bender).

Cross References:

Discussion of statutes providing measure of damages, see 7.04[7], [8].

Discussion of proximate cause, see 7.10[1].

7.04[2] Damages Must Have Been Contemplated by Parties.

7.04[2][a] General Damages Must Naturally Arise From Breach or Have Been Reasonably Foreseeable by Parties. The damages recoverable for breach of contract are limited to damages that actually were contemplated by or within the reasonable contemplation of the parties at the time they entered into the contract [California Press Mfg. Co. v. Stafford Packing Co. (1923) 192 C 479, 483, 221 P 345 ; Brandon & Tibbs v. George Kevorkian Accountancy Corp. (1990) 226 CA3d 442, 457]. "General" damages are those that naturally arise from the breach, or might have been reasonably contemplated or foreseen by the parties as the probable result of the breach [Glendale Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Marina View Heights Dev. Co. (1977) 66 CA3d 101, 125].

Cross Reference:

Distinction between general and special damages, see 7.04[6][a].

7.04[2][b] Generally No Recovery for Unanticipated Damage or Injury. Contract damages, unlike tort damages, ordinarily do not include recovery for unanticipated damage or injury. This rule is often referred to as the rule of Hadley v. Baxendale [Hadley v. Baxendale (1854) 156 Eng Rep 145]. California courts view this rule as having been incorporated into CC § 3300 [Lewis Jorge Constr. Mgmt., Inc. v. Pomona Unified Sch. Dist. (2004) 34 C4th 960, 969]. Under this rule, damages for breach of contract are limited to losses that were either actually foreseen or were reasonably foreseeable when the contract was formed [Lewis Jorge Constr. Mgmt., Inc. v. Pomona Unified Sch. Dist. (2004) 34 C4th 960, 970].

Cross Reference:

Circumstances under which special damages are recoverable, see 7.04[6][b] -[d].

7.04[3] Damages Must Be Clearly Ascertainable. No damages can be recovered for a breach of contract that are not clearly ascertainable in both their nature and origin [CC § 3301; Benach v. County of Los Angeles (2007) 149 CA4th 836, 848, 57 CR3d 363 (mere delay, without proof of actual harm suffered as a result of the delay, is not an actionable breach)]. However, when it is clear that a party suffered damages, the fact that the amount of damage may not be susceptible of exact proof or may be uncertain, contingent, or difficult to ascertain does not bar recovery [Dillingham-Ray Wilson v. City of Los Angeles (2010) 182 CA4th 1396, 1406, 106 CR3d 691 (public works contractor could use engineering estimates to prove its damages for breach of contract if those estimates were the best evidence of damages available)].

Example--Damages Ascertainable:

An insured injured in a single car accident sued his insurer, alleging that the insurer disposed of a defective tire after being informed of the importance of the tire to a case against the manufacturer. The court held that the damages sought by the insured were ascertainable in both their nature and origin; the origin of the damages was the insurer's destruction of the tire, and the nature of the damages was what the insured would have probably recovered in the underlying action had the tire not been destroyed, less the amount received in settlement from the tire manufacturer [Cooper v. State Farm Mutual Automobile Ins. Co. (2009) 177 CA4th 876, 900, 99 CR3d 870] .

Judge's Perspective:

Future lost profits are the key component of many breach of contract claims but, unless the contract provided for a fixed number of goods or amount of services, the amount of such profits is open to debate (putting aside precedent questions such as whether the contract was breached). Plaintiff's counsel would do well to retain an expert early in the litigation to assist with the collection and presentation of evidence on this topic. A good expert can help counsel defeat a claim that such damages are too speculative, and can repeat and emphasize the evidence that is most likely to lead to a high damages award. Similarly, counsel for defendant should retain an expert familiar with the relevant industry to explore whether plaintiff's damage claims are inflated, since plaintiff's lost profits will often depend on many factors outside of plaintiff's control and specific to the industry, such as the availability of substitutes, labor costs, and other similar factors. To the extent that plaintiff has an obligation to mitigate damages, a good expert will also be able to identify lost opportunities for plaintiff to have done so.

Jury Instructions:

Damage Must Be Reasonably Certain; Certainty as to Amount Not Required, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3E, Instr. MB 300E.06 (Matthew Bender).

Cross Reference:

Discussion of pleading and proving damages, see 7.08 -7.12.

7.04[4] Plaintiff Is Entitled to Benefit of Bargain. Damages for breach of contract are intended to give the injured party the benefit of his or her bargain [Martin v. U-Haul Co. of Fresno (1988) 204 CA3d 396, 409, 251 CR 17]. The aim is to put the injured party in as good a position as he or she would have been in had performance been rendered as promised [Brandon & Tibbs v. George Kevorkian Accountancy Corp. (1990) 226 CA3d 442, 468, 277 CR 40].

Except as expressly provided by statute, a person cannot recover a greater amount in damages for the breach of an obligation that he or she could have gained by the full performance of the obligation on both sides [CC § 3358].

Jury Instructions:

Damages May Not Exceed What Plaintiff Would Have Received From Full Performance, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3E, Instr. MB 300E.09 (Matthew Bender).

7.04[5] Damages Are Not Measured by Savings or Benefit to Defendant Resulting From Breach. Evidence of what it would have cost the defendant to perform or of the benefit the defendant obtained as a result of the breach is admissible if it tends to prove the amount of the plaintiff's loss or harm [Macken v. Martinez (1963) 214 CA2d 784, 789, 29 CR 867 ; General Paint Corp. v. Seymour (1932) 124 CA 611, 615-616, 12 P2d 990]. However, damages for breach of contract cannot be based on or measured by the amount it would have cost the defendant to perform, or on the amount of savings or benefit the defendant obtained as a result of the breach [Gregory v. Spieker (1895) 110 C 150, 155, 42 P 576 ; County of Ventura v. Channel Islands Marina, Inc. (2008) 159 CA4th 615, 627, 71 CR3d 762] .

Example:

Defendants were given the right to remove sand from plaintiff's land. They removed the sand, but failed to level the land and replace the top soil, as they had agreed to do. The value of the land was not diminished by the excavation, and the leveling would not have increased the value. Plaintiff was fully compensated by the award of the value of the land, even though the value of the land was less than the cost of leveling and replacing the top soil. Neither the value of the sand taken by the defendants, nor the cost defendants would have incurred in restoring the land, was the measure of plaintiff's damage [Avery v. Fredericksen & Westbrook (1944) 67 CA2d 334, 336-341, 154 P2d 41].

Jury Instructions:

Damages Not to Be Measured by Defendant's Savings or Costs, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3E, Instr. MB 300E.11 (Matthew Bender).

7.04[6] Secondary or Derivative Losses May Be Recoverable as Special Damages.

7.04[6][a] Special Damages Are Secondary and Derivative Losses Arising From Circumstances Peculiar to Specific Contract. Special damages are those losses that do not arise directly and inevitably from any similar breach of any similar agreement. Instead, they are secondary or derivative losses arising from circumstances that are particular to the contract or to the parties [Lewis Jorge Constr. Mgmt., Inc. v. Pomona Unified Sch. Dist. (2004) 34 C4th 960, 968].

Jury Instructions:

Special Damages, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 351 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Cross References:

General damages, see 7.04[2][a].

Discussion of pleading entitlement to special damages, see 7.08[3].

7.04[6][b] Special Damages Generally Are Nonrecoverable. If special circumstances caused some unusual injury, special damages are not recoverable unless the circumstances were known or should have been known to the breaching party at the time that party entered into the contract. The requirement of knowledge or notice as a prerequisite to the recovery of special damages is based on the theory that a party does not and cannot assume limitless responsibility for all consequences of a breach, and that at the time of contracting must be advised of the facts concerning special harm that might result from a breach, so that the party may determine whether or not to accept the risk of contracting [Brandon & Tibbs v. George Kevorkian Accountancy Corp. (1990) 226 CA3d 442, 456].

Example:

Plaintiff contractor was hired by defendant school district to complete a construction project. After the project was begun, the district terminated the contract. The contractor's bonding company then reduced the amount of bond it would issue to the plaintiff, which in turn reduced the number of projects the plaintiff could bid on. The construction company eventually ceased bidding and closed down. The trial court awarded damages based on the work the plaintiff could no longer bid on because the amount of its bond had been reduced. The Supreme Court reversed, holding that although termination of the contract was "the first event in series of misfortunes," the consequences plaintiff suffered were not the natural and necessary result of the breach of every construction contract involving bonding. Therefore, lost profits on other contracts were not actually foreseen or foreseeable as reasonably probable to result from the district's breach, and were not recoverable as special damages [Lewis Jorge Constr. Mgmt., Inc. v. Pomona Unified Sch. Dist. (2004) 34 C4th 960, 977].

Special damages therefore are recoverable only in either of the following situations [Lewis Jorge Constr. Mgmt., Inc.

v. Pomona Unified Sch. Dist. (2004) 34 C4th 960, 968-969]:

- The special or particular circumstances from which the damages arise were actually communicated to or known by the breaching party (a subjective test) [see 7.04[6][c]]; or
- The special or particular circumstances from which the damages arise were matters of which the breaching party should have been aware at the time of contracting (an objective test) [see 7.04[6][d]].

Cross Reference:

General rule precluding recovery of damages that were not contemplated by parties; application of rule in Hadley v. Baxendale, see 7.04[2][b].

7.04[6][c] Special Damages Are Recoverable If Breaching Party Voluntarily Assumed Risk of Liability for Unusual Losses. Parties may voluntarily assume the risk of liability for unusual losses, but to do so they must be told, at the time the contract is made, of any special harm likely to result from a breach [Lewis Jorge Constr. Mgmt., Inc. v. Pomona Unified Sch. Dist. (2004) 34 C4th 960, 970, 102 P3d 257 ; Brandon & Tibbs v. George Kevorkian Accountancy Corp. (1990) 226 CA3d 442, 456]. A party is not deemed to have assumed such additional risk simply by entering into the contract [Lewis Jorge Constr. Mgmt., Inc. v. Pomona Unified Sch. Dist. (2004) 34 C4th 960, 970, 102 P3d 257].

7.04[6][d] Special Damages Are Recoverable If Circumstances Compel Inference that Breaching Party Should Have Contemplated Possibility of Loss. The nature of the contract or the circumstances in which it is made may compel an inference that the defendant should have contemplated the fact that such a loss would be the probable result of the defendant's breach [Burnett & Doty Dev. Co. v. Phillips (1978) 84 CA3d 384, 389-390 (loss of anticipated profits recoverable when foreseeable and reasonably certain)].

Example:

Lost profits were recoverable as damages when evidence showed that plaintiff's sole business was the construction of single family residences, that plaintiff was unable to complete homes during the forced shutdown period caused by defendant's breach of contract, and that the parties contemplated completion of the contract by specified date; evidence supported determination that the parties contemplated or should have contemplated at the time of contracting that the interruption of plaintiff's business, and attendant loss of profits, was likely to result from defendant's failure of timely performance. Thus, plaintiff's losses were a foreseeable result of any extensive delay in performance of the agreement [Burnett & Doty Dev. Co. v. Phillips (1978) 84 CA3d 384, 389-390].

7.04[7] Measure of Damages for Breach of Particular Contracts Are Specified by Statute.

7.04[7][a] Obligation to Pay Money Only. The detriment caused by the breach of an obligation to pay money only is the amount due by the terms of the obligation, plus interest on that amount [CC § 3302].

Jury Instructions:

Obligation to Pay Money Only, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 355 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

7.04[7][b] Covenant of Seisin, Right to Convey, Warranty, or Quiet Enjoyment. The detriment caused by the breach of a covenant of "seisin," of "right to convey," of "warranty," or of "quiet enjoyment," in a grant of an estate in real property, is [CC § 3304]:

- The price paid to the grantor; or, if a breach is partial, the proportion of the price as the value of the property affected by the breach bore at the time of the grant to the value of the whole property;

- Interest on the amount for the time during which the grantee derived no benefit from the property, not exceeding five years; and
- Any expenses properly incurred by the covenantee in defending his or her possession.

7.04[7][c] Covenant Against Encumbrances. The detriment caused by the breach of a covenant against encumbrances in a grant of an estate in real property is deemed to be the amount which has been actually expended by the covenantee in extinguishing either the principal or interest. In the case of principal, this amount may not exceed a proportion of the price paid to the grantor equivalent to the relative value at the time of the grant of the property affected by the breach, as compared with the whole. In the case of interest, this amount may not exceed interest on a like amount [CC § 3305].

7.04[7][d] Contract to Convey Land. The detriment caused by the breach of an agreement to convey an estate in real property is [CC § 3306]:

- The price paid;
- The expenses properly incurred in examining the title and preparing the necessary papers;
- The difference between the price agreed to be paid and the value of the estate agreed to be conveyed at the time of the breach;
- The expenses properly incurred in preparing to enter upon the land, consequential damages according to proof; and
- Interest.

Jury Instructions:

Buyer's Damages for Breach of Contract for Sale of Real Property, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 356 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

7.04[7][e] Agreement to Deliver Quitclaim Deed. The minimum detriment caused by the breach of an agreement to execute and deliver a quitclaim deed to real property is [CC § 3306a]:

- The expenses incurred by the promisee in quieting title to the property; and
- The expenses incidental to the entry upon the property.

The expenses, which include reasonable attorneys' fees, must be fixed by the court in the quiet title action [CC § 3306a].

7.04[7][f] Agreement to Purchase Real Property. The detriment caused by the breach of an agreement to purchase an estate in real property is deemed to be the excess, if any, of the amount which would have been due to the seller under the contract over the value of the property to him or her, consequential damages according to proof, and interest [CC § 3307].

Example:

Plaintiff buyer entered into a contract to buy sellers' home and then unilaterally cancelled escrow. The sellers sold the property for $1 million more than the plaintiff had agreed to pay. Other than $9,000 in damages sustained to the roof during plaintiff's staking of the property, the sellers did not contend they sustained any consequential damages as a result of plaintiff's breach. The court held that the sellers were entitled to retain plaintiff's $600,000 deposit only to the extent of the $9,000 in actual damages that were incurred; the excess over actual damages must be refunded to the buyer, regardless of whether the breach was innocent or willful [Kuish v. Smith (2010) 181 CA4th 1419, 1429, 105 CR3d 475] .

Jury Instructions:

Seller's Damages for Breach of Contract to Purchase Real Property, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 357 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

7.04[7][g] Leases of Real or Personal Property. The specialized provisions of the California landlord-tenant statutes govern damages on termination of leases of real property executed on or after July 1, 1971 [see CC § 1951.2; see also CC § 3308 (applicable to leases of real property executed before July 1, 1971)].

Damages on termination of leases for personal property entered on or after January 1, 1990 are governed by Division 10 of the California Commercial Code [Com Code § 10101 et seq.; see Com Code §§ 10602 (application to leases), 10600 (effective dates)]. Division 10 specifies in detail the damages for default by the lessor [see Com Code §§ 10519, 10520] or the lessee [see Com Code §§ 10527-10532] under a personal property lease. Division 10 is inapplicable, however, to personal property leases entered into prior to January 1, 1990, and extension, renewals, modifications, and supplements to those leases, unless the parties specifically agree otherwise [Com Code § 10600; see CC § 3308 (agreement regarding measure of damages when lease is not subject to Division 10)].

Cross References:

Discussion of parties' rights upon termination of lease and measure of damages under CC § 1951.2, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Landlord-Tenant Litigation, Ch. 7, Suing a Tenant for Unpaid Rent and Damages.

Discussion and forms for recovery damages under personal property lease governed by Division 10 of Commercial Code, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 413, Personal Property Leases (Matthew Bender).

7.04[7][h] Obligations of Carriers of Passengers, Freight, and Messages. Damages caused by the breach of a carrier's obligation to accept freight, messages, or passengers, are the difference between the amount that the carrier had the right to charge for the carriage and the amount that would be necessary to pay for the same service when it ought to be performed [CC § 3315].

Damages caused by the breach of a carrier's obligation to deliver freight, when the carrier has not converted it to its own use, are the value at the place and on the day at which it should have been delivered, deducting the freightage to which the carrier would have been entitled if it had completed the delivery [CC § 3316].

The detriment caused by a carrier's delay in the delivery of freight is the depreciation in the intrinsic value of the freight during the delay, and also the depreciation, if any, in the market value of the freight, other than by reason of a depreciation in its intrinsic value, at the place where it ought to have been delivered, and between the day at which it ought to have been delivered, and the day of its actual delivery [CC § 3317].

7.04[7][i] Warranty of Agent's Authority. Damages for the breach of a warranty of an agent's authority are [CC § 3318]:

- The amount that could have been recovered and collected from the principal if the warranty had been complied with; and

- The reasonable expenses of legal proceedings taken, in good faith, to enforce the act of the agent against the principal.

Cross Reference:

Complaint for breach of warranty of authority, see Ch. 20, Asserting Agency Issues in Contract Actions, 20.22.

7.04[8] Measure of Damages May Be Included in Statutory Scheme Governing Transaction. If the transaction at issue is regulated by statute, the measure of damages for a particular breach may be included in that statutory scheme. Counsel should scrutinize any statutes governing the transaction to determine if a specific measure of damages is provided. If a statute provides a specific measure of damages, that statute controls [CC § 3300; CCP § 1859].

Examples:

- Damages recoverable by lessor of real property on breach by lessee and termination of lease [CC § 1951.2].
- Damages recoverable by buyer of consumer goods for breach of warranty or service contract [CC § 1794].

7.04[9] Measure of Damages for Particular Circumstances May Be Established by Case Law. The measure of damages under CC § 3300 may be established by case law for specific types of contracts and particular fact situations.

Examples:

- Breach of employment contract [Parker v. Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp. (1970) 3 C3d 176, 181-182, 89 CR 737, 474 P2d 689].
- Breach of contract to construct improvements [Coughlin v. Blair (1953) 41 C2d 587, 600, 262 P2d 305].
- Wrongful cancellation of insurance policy [Caminetti v. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. (1943) 23 C2d 94, 104-110, 142 P2d 741].

Counsel therefore should review the substantive law for the specific transaction at issue to determine the appropriate measure of damages under CC § 3300.

Jury Instructions:

Owner's/Lessee's Damages for Breach of Contract to Construct Improvements on Real Property, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 354 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Cross Reference:

Detailed discussion of the substantive law governing the contract at issue, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 104, Building Contracts;

Ch. 127, Consumer Contracts and Loans;

Ch. 128, Consumer Contracts: Statutes Regulating Specific Types of Contracts; and

Ch. 249, Employment Law: Termination and Discipline (Matthew Bender).

7.04[10] More Than One Method of Determining Damages May Apply. If there is a more specific measure of damages than the general measure provided by CC § 3300, the more specific measure applies [see CC § 3300 (general measure applies except as otherwise provided by statute); Boshes v. Miller (1953) 119 CA2d 332, 336, 259 P2d 447].

However, if there are two measures or methods of determining damages that are otherwise adequate and permissible, the one yielding the more accurate and certain result should be used [California Press Mfg. Co. v. Stafford Packing Co. (1923) 192 C 479, 485, 221 P 345]. If two measures of damages are accurate and each will fully compensate the plaintiff for his or her loss, the measure that is less expensive to the defendant should be used [A.A. Baxter Corp. v. Colt Indus., Inc. (1970) 10 CA3d 144, 160, 88 CR 842].

Jury Instructions:

Choice of Alternative Methods of Determining Plaintiff's Damages, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3E, Instr. MB 300E.10 (Matthew Bender).

7.04[11] Nominal Damages Are Presumed. Nominal damages are available when a breach of duty has caused no appreciable detriment to the plaintiff [CC § 3360]. Nominal damages are properly awarded in two circumstances [Avina v. Spurlock (1972) 28 CA3d 1086, 1088, 105 CR 198 (wrongful eviction case)]:

- When there is no loss or injury to be compensated, but the law still recognizes a technical invasion of a plaintiff's rights or a breach of a defendant's duty.
- Although the plaintiff suffered a real, actual injury, and damages, the extent of the plaintiff's injury and damages cannot be determined from the evidence presented.

The plaintiff is entitled to recover nominal damages for the breach of contract, despite an inability to show actual damage, because the defendant's failure to perform a contractual duty is, in itself, a legal wrong that is fully distinct from the actual damages [Sweet v. Johnson (1959) 169 CA2d 630, 632-633, 337 P2d 499]. The court can award no more than nominal damages when the proof of actual or punitive damages fails [Avina v. Spurlock (1972) 28 CA3d 1086, 1088, 105 CR 198].

Nominal damages ordinarily are limited to an amount of a few cents or a dollar [Avina v. Spurlock (1972) 28 CA3d 1086, 1089, 105 CR 198].

Example:

Plaintiff, an actor, agreed to have his photograph appear, without compensation, in a magazine published by defendant. Plaintiff later sued defendant for breach of contract, alleging that defendant breached an agreement to place his photo on the cover of the magazine. Plaintiff sought damages for the loss of publicity. Because of the wholly speculative nature of the detriment suffered, plaintiff was not entitled to compensatory damages. However, plaintiff was entitled to nominal damages for breach of contract [Ericson v. Playgirl, Inc. (1977) 73 CA3d 850, 859, 140 CR 921].

Jury Instructions:

Nominal Damages, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 360 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Judge's Perspective:

Nominal damages are different from no damages at all, and a case involving the latter should not be filed. Damages are an element of a cause of action for breach of contract [see, e.g., Amelco Elec. v. City of Thousand Oaks (2002) 27 C4th 228, 243, 115 CR2d 900, 38 P3d 1120 ("under a breach of contract theory, the plaintiff must demonstrate a contract, the plaintiff's performance or excuse for nonperformance, the defendant's breach, and damage to the plaintiff"). A complete failure to prove damages to the plaintiff is grounds for nonsuit. A plaintiff who deserves nominal damages clearly has suffered damage, although it might be difficult to say in what amount. In Ericson v. Playgirl, Inc. (1977) 73 CA3d 850, 859, 140 CR 921, the jury originally awarded plaintiff $12,500. The Court of Appeal found that damages were too speculative to support that amount, and reduced the award to $300. It was clear from the evidence that plaintiff had suffered some harm, but it was difficult to quantify.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesBuyer's RemediesDamagesGeneral OverviewCommercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesSeller's RemediesDamagesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesCompensatory DamagesConsequential Damages

43 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 7 Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions
II. DETERMINING MEASURE OF DAMAGES

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 7.05

7.05 Amount of Damages May Be Limited by Contract or Circumstances.

7.05[1] Prospective Damages Are Not Available for Partial Breach. When a breach of contract is partial, the aggrieved party may recover damages for nonperformance only to the time of trial and may not recover damages for anticipated future nonperformance [Coughlin v. Blair (1953) 41 C2d 587, 598, 262 P2d 305] .

Cross Reference:

Discussion of partial and total breach, see Ch. 22, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract.

7.05[2] Damages Are Limited When Contract Contains Termination Provision. If the contract contains a provision allowing either party to terminate the contract without cause by giving notice to the other party, damages for breach of the contract are limited to those that could potentially accrue during the period of the required notice [Martin v. U-Haul Co. of Fresno (1988) 204 CA3d 396, 409-411, 251 CR 17].

Example:

Plaintiff was a distributor of defendant's products. Under the termination provision of their agreement, plaintiff was entitled to sell defendant's products for 30 days after termination. Defendant notified plaintiff that the agreement would terminate on February 28, 1954. Defendant breached the agreement by failing to deliver products that plaintiff had ordered to be delivered during February. However, defendant did not breach the contract by refusing to deliver products plaintiff had ordered to be delivered in March, after the agreement terminated [California Beverage & Supply Co. v. Distillers Distrib. Corp. (1958) 158 CA2d 758, 764-767, 323 P2d 517].

7.05[3] Liquidated Damages Provisions May Specify Recovery.

7.05[3][a] Reasonable Liquidated Damages Provisions Generally Are Valid Under CC § 1671. A provision in a contract, other than a retail consumer contract or residential lease, liquidating the damages for the breach of the contract is valid unless the party seeking to invalidate the provision establishes that the provision was unreasonable under the circumstances existing at the time the contract was made [CC § 1671(b); see Roodenburg v. Pavestone Co., L.P. (2009) 171 CA4th 185, 194-195, 89 CR3d 558 (defendant failed to satisfy its burden of establishing an 18 percent interest charge was an unreasonable estimate of damages)]. Such a provision will be considered unreasonable, however, if the amount specified bears no reasonable relationship to the range of actual damages the parties could have contemplated at the time of contracting [Poseidon Development, Inc. v. Woodland Lane Estates, LLC (2007) 152 CA4th 1106, 1115, 62 CR3d 59 (in promissory note, late charge of 10 percent of the overdue amount, which could range from $642 to over $77,000, was unlawful penalty).

Example--Liquidated Damages Upheld:

After a commercial tenant ceased operations at a shopping center before the end of its lease term, the landlord charged it 10 cents per leased square foot per day, according to a liquidated damages provision in the lease. The trial court concluded that the tenant failed to carry its burden of demonstrating that the liquidated damages provision was an unlawful penalty, and the court of appeal affirmed. Although the tenant presented evidence that the liquidated damages provision was arbitrarily applied to the tenants at the shopping center and therefore could not be a reasonable estimate of potential damages at the time the lease was signed, the landlord countered with evidence that the liquidated damages clause was intended to reimburse it for the synergy, goodwill, and patronage the shopping center would lose if the tenant ceased operation [El Centro Mall, LLC v. Payless ShoeSource, Inc. (2009) 174 CA4th 58, 64-65, 94 CR3d 43] .

Exception:

If another statute expressly applicable to the contract prescribes the rules or standard for determining the validity of a liquid damages provision, the rules or standard of that statute apply [CC § 1671(a)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of standard for determining validity of liquidated damages provision in real property purchase contract, see 7.05[4].

7.05[3][b] Liquidated Damages Provisions in Consumer Contracts and Residential Leases Are Enforceable Only in Limited Circumstances. A provision in a consumer contract or residential lease specifying liquidated damages for breach is void, except that the parties to such a contract may agree in the contract on an amount that will be presumed to be the amount of damage sustained by a breach when, from the nature of the case, it would be impracticable or extremely difficult to fix the actual damage [CC § 1671(c), (d)]. The amount selected must represent a reasonable endeavor by the parties to estimate fair compensation for the loss sustained [Utility Consumers' Action Network, Inc. v. AT&T Broadband of S. Cal., Inc. (2006) 135 CA4th 1023, 1029, 37 CR3d 827] . If the amount selected is designed to substantially exceed the damages suffered, and its primary purpose is to serve as a threat to compel compliance through the imposition of charges bearing little or no relationship to the amount of actual loss, then the purported liquidated damages provision is an invalid attempt to impose a penalty [Utility Consumers' Action Network, Inc. v. AT&T Broadband of S. Cal., Inc. (2006) 135 CA4th 1023, 1029, 37 CR3d 827] . The requirement that the selected amount of liquidated damages must result from a reasonable endeavor by the parties does not mean that mutual negotiation is required; a liquidated damages provision is not invalid simply because it is contained in one party's preprinted form contract [Utility Consumers' Action Network, Inc. v. AT&T Broadband of S. Cal., Inc. (2006) 135 CA4th 1023, 1029, 37 CR3d 827] .

Distinguish:

A fee imposed by a bank when a merchant terminates a credit card merchant account is a deferred charge, and not liquidated damages, because it is not dependent on a breach of the merchant agreement [Morris v. Redwood Empire Bancorp (2005) 128 CA4th 1305, 1315].

The non-breaching party who seeks to enforce the liquidated damages provision has the burden of showing that it was impracticable or extremely difficult to fix the actual damages [Orozco v. Casimiro (2004) 121 CA4th Supp 7, 11].

7.05[3][c] Deposit May Constitute Liquidated Damages. Instead of promising to pay a fixed sum as liquidated damages in case of a breach, a party to a contract may provide a deposit as security for the performance of his or her contractual obligations [Recommendation Relating to Liquid Damages, 13 Cal L Rev Comm'n Rpts 1736, 1752 (1976)].

If the parties provide that the deposit will be liquidated damages for a breach of the contract, the question of whether the deposit may be retained in case of a breach is determined in accordance with the standard provided in CC § 1671(b) or (d), whichever applies [Recommendation Relating to Liquid Damages, 13 Cal L Rev Comm'n Rpts 1736, 1752 (1976)].

If the parties do not intend that the deposit will constitute liquidated damages in the event of a breach, the deposit is merely a fund to secure the payment of actual damages, if any are determined [Recommendation Relating to Liquid Damages, 13 Cal L Rev Comm'n Rpts 1736, 1752 (1976)].

7.05[4] Provisions in Real Estate Purchase Contracts for Liquidated Damages to Seller Upon Default by Buyer.

7.05[4][a] Liquidated Damages Provisions Must Meet Requirements of CC §§ 1677 and 1671(b). Except as provided in CC § 1675 for contracts for the purchase of residential property, a provision in a contract to purchase and sell real property liquidating the damages to the seller if the buyer fails to complete the purchase of the property is valid if it satisfies the requirements of CC §§ 1677 and 1671(b), noted below [CC § 1676].

7.05[4][b] CC § 1677 Specifies Format and Signature Requirements for Liquidated Damages Provision. A provision in a contract to purchase and sell real property liquidating damages to the seller if the buyer fails to complete the purchase of the property is invalid unless [CC § 1677]:

- The provision is separately signed or initialed by each party to the contract; and
- If the provision is included in a printed contract, it is set out either in at least 10-point bold type or in contrasting read print in at least eight-point bold type.

7.05[4][c] CC § 1671(b) Requires Provision to Have Been Reasonable Under Circumstances When Made. Under CC § 1671(b), a provision liquidating damages for the breach of the contract is valid unless the party seeking to invalidate the provision establishes that the provision was unreasonable under the circumstances existing at the time the contract was made [CC § 1671(b)].

7.05[4][d] Provisions in Contracts for Purchase of Residential Property Are Subject to Additional Requirements. A contract to purchase and sell residential property that provides that any or any part of a payment made by the buyer will constitute liquidated damages to the seller upon the buyer's failure to complete the purchase is enforceable if it complies with both the format and signature requirements of CC § 1677 and the limitations as to amount and additional requirements imposed by CC § 1675 [CC § 1675(b); see Kuish v. Smith (2010) 181 CA4th 1419, 1429, 105 CR3d 475].

Cross Reference:

Detailed discussion of requirements imposed by CC §§ 1675-1681, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 569, Vendor and Purchaser (Matthew Bender).

7.05[5] Other Liquidated Damages Provisions in Real Estate Purchase Contracts Are Governed by CC § 1671. The limitations and requirements imposed by CC §§ 1675-1681 on purchase contracts for real property apply only to provisions for liquidated damages to the seller if the buyer fails to complete the purchase [CC § 1679].

The validity of any other provisions for liquidated damages in a contract to purchase and sell real property must be determined under CC § 1671 [CC § 1679].

The limitations and requirements imposed by CC §§ 1675-1681 are inapplicable to real property sales contracts under which one party agrees to convey title to real property to another party upon the satisfaction of specified conditions set forth in the contract and which does not require conveyance of title within one year from the date the contract is formed [CC §§ 1681, 2985].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of validity of liquidated damages provisions under CC § 1671, see 7.05[3].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesBuyer's RemediesDamagesGeneral OverviewCommercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesSeller's RemediesDamagesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesCompensatory DamagesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesLiquidated DamagesReal Property LawPurchase & SaleRemediesDamagesGeneral Overview

44 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 7 Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions
II. DETERMINING MEASURE OF DAMAGES

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 7.06

7.06 Facts May Support Claim for Either Tort or Contract Damages.

7.06[1] Tort Claim Exists If Conduct Violates Duty Independent of Contract Arising from Principles of Tort Law. If the conduct amounting to a breach of contract also violates an independent duty arising from principles of tort law, the plaintiff may be able to allege both contract and tort causes of action [Applied Equip. Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 C4th 503, 515]. However, the mere negligent breach of a contract is not a sufficient basis for tort liability [Stop Loss Ins. Brokers, Inc. v. Brown & Toland Medical Group (2006) 143 CA4th 1036, 1043, 49 CR3d 609] .

Examples--Tort Damages Permitted:

- Negligence in the performance of a contract, directly causing physical injury [Fuentes v. Perez (1977) 66 CA3d 163, 168].
- Breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing in an insurance contract [Crisci v. Security Ins. Co. (1967) 66 C2d 425, 433-434].
- Wrongful discharge in violation of fundamental public policy [Tameny v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (1980) 27 C3d 167, 175-176].
- Fraudulent inducement to enter into a contract [Las Palmas Assocs. v. Las Palmas Ctr. Assocs. (1991) 235 CA3d 1220, 1238-1239].

Distinguish:

California courts do not recognize a tort of bad faith denial of the existence of, or liability under, a breached contract [Freeman & Mills, Inc. v. Belcher Oil Co. (1995) 11 C4th 85, 102]. Nor do they recognize a tort of breach of commercial contract in violation of public policy [Harris v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (1993) 14 CA4th 70, 82].

Strategic Point--Duplicate Award of Damages Not Permitted:

Although a plaintiff may allege both tort and contract causes of action in the complaint, the plaintiff is not entitled to a duplicate award of damages [see Acadia, Cal., Ltd. v. Herbert (1960) 54 C2d 328, 337].

Strategic Point--Punitive or Exemplary Damages May Be Available in Tort:

If the facts support a tort cause of action and claim for tort damages, the plaintiff may also be able to recover punitive or exemplary damages in appropriate cases [see CC § 3294].

Jury Instructions:

Plaintiff May Not Recover Duplicate Contract and Tort Damages, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 361 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Cross References:

Discussion of unavailability of punitive or exemplary damages for breach of contract, see 7.12[8].

Discussion of determining whether to sue in contract, tort, or both, see Ch. 2, Determining What Causes of Action Exist.

Discussion of breach of the duty of good faith and fair dealing, see Ch. 23, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Duty of Good Faith and Fair Dealing.

7.06[2] Economic Loss Rule Bars Tort Recovery by Purchaser Absent Personal Injury or Damage to Other Property. The "economic loss rule" provides that if a purchaser's expectations in a sale are frustrated because a product is not working properly, the purchaser is limited to contract remedies, for the purchaser has suffered only "economic losses" [Robinson Helicopter Co., Inc. v. Dana Corp. (2004) 34 C4th 979, 988-989, 102 P3d 268]. A purchaser can recover in tort only if he or she can demonstrate harm above and beyond a broken contractual promise, such as personal injury or damage to property other than the product itself [Robinson Helicopter Co., Inc. v. Dana Corp. (2004) 34 C4th 979, 988-989, 102 P3d 268 ; see also Butler-Rupp v. Lourdeaux (2005) 134 CA4th 1220, 1229, 36 CR3d 685 (commercial tenant who suffered no physical injury could recover only in contract for economic losses deriving from landlords' failure to perform their contract obligations)].

Exception:

In cases involving contracts for the performance of services rather than the sale of goods, the economic loss rule does not bar tort recovery for solely economic losses, provided that the negligent performance of the contract results in foreseeable economic losses, and a "special relationship" between the parties exists [North Am. Chem. Co. v. Superior Court (1997) 59 CA4th 764, 785]. The existence of a special relationship is determined according to the following six criteria [North Am. Chem. Co. v. Superior Court (1997) 59 CA4th 764, 782 (citing)]:

- The extent to which the transaction was intended to affect the plaintiff.
- The foreseeability of harm to the plaintiff.
- The degree of certainty that the plaintiff suffered injury.
- The closeness of the connection between the defendant's conduct and the injury suffered.

- The moral blame attached to the defendant's conduct.
- The policy of preventing future harm.

Exception:

California's Right to Repair Act, CC § 895 et seq., applicable to contracts signed in 2003 or later, establishes a set of standards for residential construction and allows a homeowner to recover economic losses from a builder without having to show that the violation caused property damage or personal injury [see Greystone Homes, Inc. v. Midtec, Inc. (2008) 168 CA4th 1194, 1210-1211, 86 CR3d 196].

Example--Negligence Claim Permitted:

A chemical manufacturer stated a claim against a transportation company for negligent performance of its contract to ship the manufacturer's product, resulting in contamination of its product during shipment. The manufacturer alleged, or asserted that it could allege, facts sufficient to establish the existence of the special relationship required to justify the recovery of economic losses [North Am. Chem. Co. v. Superior Court (1997) 59 CA4th 764, 787].

Example--Negligence Claim Not Permitted:

Homeowners alleging construction defects could not recover damages for a developer's negligence because the construction defects had not caused any property damage; homeowners could not show the required special relationship [Aas v. Superior Court (2000) 24 C4th 627, 632, superseded by CC § 895 et seq. for post-2002 contracts as to construction defect claims regarding new residential units].

7.06[3] Affirmative Misrepresentations Made in Performance of Contract May Support Action for Fraud.

The economic loss rule does not bar an action for fraud when a defendant makes affirmative misrepresentations on which a plaintiff relies and which expose a plaintiff to liability for personal damages independent of the plaintiff's economic loss [Robinson Helicopter Co., Inc. v. Dana Corp. (2004) 34 C4th 979, 993, 102 P3d 268].

Example:

In Robinson Helicopter Co., Inc. v. Dana Corp. (2004) 34 C4th 979, 102 P3d 268, the plaintiff helicopter manufacturer entered into a contract with the defendant parts manufacturer for the purchase of helicopter parts. The contract required that the parts conform to certain specifications and that the defendant supply certificates of conformance. After the defendant changed its manufacturing process, resulting in parts that no longer met the contract's specifications, it continued to provide certificates of conformance falsely stating that the parts met the specifications. Even though the plaintiff suffered no personal injury or damage to property other than the helicopter parts, the Supreme Court held that the economic loss rule did not bar the helicopter manufacturer's fraud and intentional misrepresentation claims, because the affirmative intentional misrepresentation of fact in the certificates of conformance was an independent tort separate from the breach of contract (the supplying of nonconforming parts).

Strategic Point:

The Robinson case is a departure from the Supreme Court's previous cases relying on the economic loss rule to bar tort recovery in contract cases. It remains to be seen whether courts will extend its holding beyond the particular facts of the case. At the very least, a purchaser of a defective product should be able to state a claim for fraud if the supplier has stated, orally or in writing, that it is supplying the product ordered. It is not clear whether courts will read Robinson to allow fraud claims based on alleged affirmative misrepresentations in the terms of a contract itself, as opposed to statements made in the performance of the contract.

Cross Reference:

Detailed discussion of tort damages in contract actions, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 177, Damages (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Punitive Damages Torts Damages General Overview Torts Damages Punitive Damages General Overview

45 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 7 Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions

III. PLEADING AND PROVING DAMAGES

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 7.07

7.07 CHECKLIST: Pleading and Proving Damages.

- ☐ Determine if complaint for breach of contract contains allegations of damages, which are essential to state cause of action for breach.

Authority:

Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 C2d 822, 830, 69 CR 321, 442 P2d 377

Discussion:

See 7.08[1]

Form:

See 7.16 (complaint for breach of contract)

- ☐ Determine if allegations are sufficient for type of damages sought:

- ☐ General damages need not be alleged in detail.

Authority:

Colvig v. RKO Gen., Inc. (1965) 232 CA2d 56, 68-69, 42 CR 473

Discussion:

See 7.08[2]

Forms:

See 7.16 (complaint for breach of contract), 7.18 (memorandum for party seeking damages)

- ☐ Allegations of special damages must be alleged with particularity.

Authority:

Shook v. Pearson (1950) 99 CA2d 348, 351-352, 221 P2d 757

Discussion:

See 7.08[3]

☐ Determine if evidence is sufficient to prove damages sought with reasonable certainty:

- ☐ Plaintiff must prove that damages were suffered and were caused by defendant's breach.

Authority:

Stott v. Johnston (1951) 36 C2d 864, 875, 229 P2d 348

Discussion:

See 7.09[1]

- ☐ Certainty as to amount is not required.

Authority:

Acree v. General Motors Acceptance Corp. (2001) 92 CA4th 385, 398, 112 CR2d 99

Discussion:

See 7.09[2]

- ☐ Future damages are recoverable if requirement of reasonable certainty is satisfied.

Authority:

Caminetti v. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co (1943) 23 C2d 94, 103, 142 P2d 741

Discussion:

See 7.09[3]

- ☐ "Reasonable certainty" must be established by a preponderance of the evidence.

Authority:

Khan v. Southern Pac. Co. (1955) 132 CA2d 410, 416, 282 P2d 78

Discussion:

See 7.09[4], [5]

☐ Determine if evidence is sufficient to show causation:

- ☐ Damages must have been proximately caused by breach.

Authority:

CC § 3300

Discussion:

See 7.10[1]

- ☐ Breach must have been cause-in-fact for loss or harm.

Authority:

Never v. King (1969) 276 CA2d 461, 471, 81 CR 161

Discussion:

See 7.10[2]

- ☐ Breach need not have been sole cause of damages.

Authority:

Bruckman v. Parliament Escrow Corp. (1987) 190 CA3d 1051, 1061-1063, 235 CR 813

Discussion:

See 7.10[3]

- ☐ Determine if evidence is sufficient to show that damages were foreseeable, that is:

- ☐ In contemplation of parties as probable result of breach at the time they made contract; or
- ☐ Likely to follow, in the ordinary course of things, from a breach.

Authority:

Overstreet v. Merritt (1921) 186 C 494, 503, 200 P 11 ; A.A. Baxter Corp. v. Colt Indus., Inc. (1970) 10 CA3d 144, 155, 88 CR 842

Discussion:

See 7.11

- ☐ Determine if, under the circumstances, evidence supports claim(s) for particular elements of damages, such as:

- ☐ Loss of profits.

Authority:

Resort Video, Ltd. v. Laser Video, Inc. (1995) 35 CA4th 1679, 1697-1698, 42 CR2d 136

Discussion:

See 7.12[1]

Form:

See 7.19 (memorandum for party seeking damages)

- ☐ Damages for physical or mental suffering arising from breach.

Authority:

Chelini v. Nieri (1948) 32 C2d 480, 482, 196 P2d 915

Discussion:

See 7.12[2]

Form:

See 7.20 (memorandum for party seeking damages)

- ☐ Loss of goodwill.

Authority:

Stott v. Johnston (1951) 36 C2d 864, 872, 229 P2d 348

Discussion:

See 7.12[3], [4]

- ☐ Expenditures incurred in performance.

Authority:

Patty v. Berryman (1949) 95 CA2d 159, 172, 212 P2d 937

Discussion:

See 7.12[5]

- ☐ Expenses incurred because of breach.

Authority:

Walpole v. Prefab Mfg. Co. (1951) 103 CA2d 472, 489, 230 P2d 36

Discussion:

See 7.12[6]

- ☐ Prejudgment interest.

Authority:

CC §§ 3287, 3289

Discussion:

See 7.12[7]

- ☐ Punitive or exemplary damages, if tort as well as contract cause of action is alleged.

Authority:

CC § 3294

Discussion:

See 7.12[8]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Pleadings Complaints Requirements Civil Procedure Remedies Damages General

OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesDamagesCompensatory DamagesCivil ProcedureRemediesDamagesGeneral
DamagesContracts LawRemediesGeneral Overview

46 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 7 Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions
III. PLEADING AND PROVING DAMAGES

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 7.08

7.08 Damages Must Be Alleged.

7.08[1] Allegation of Damages Is Essential to State Cause of Action. To state a cause of action for damages for breach of contract, the plaintiff must allege [Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 C2d 822, 830, 69 CR 321, 442 P2d 377]:

- The existence of a contract;
- Plaintiff's performance or excuse for nonperformance;
- Defendant's breach; and
- The resulting damages to the plaintiff.

When damages do not necessarily result from the breach of contract, a general allegation of damages is insufficient, and the defendant may demur to the complaint on the ground that the pleading is uncertain [Comstock v. Coronet Heating Supply Co. (1952) 111 CA2d 600, 603-604, 245 P2d 35, 245 P2d 357 ; see CCP § 430.10(f) (uncertain pleading as grounds for demurrer)].

Example:

Plaintiff sued defendant, her partner, for breach of an agreement to defend plaintiff in an action brought against them by a third party. Plaintiff had provided her own defense and lost, resulting in a judgment that was executed against her interest in the partnership. Because the agreement to defend was not an agreement to defend the suit successfully, the damages to plaintiff could not be measured by the judgment in the suit. Rather, the damages were to be measured by the cost of defending the suit. Because the complaint did not contain any allegations that it cost plaintiff anything to defend the suit, the complaint was defective because it did not allege damages [Brumfield v. Crocker-Anglo Nat'l Bank (1960) 185 CA2d 759, 763-765, 8 CR 591].

Cross Reference:

Form for complaint for breach of contract with allegation(s) of damages, see 7.16.

7.08[2] General Damages Need Not Be Alleged in Detail. Although the complaint must allege that damages were suffered, a claim for general damages does not need to allege in detail the nature and extent of the damages [Colvig v. RKO Gen., Inc. (1965) 232 CA2d 56, 68-69, 42 CR 473].

 Cross Reference:

Form for memorandum for party seeking damages, see 7.18 (general damages sufficiently alleged).

7.08[3] Plaintiff Must Allege Particular Facts to Recover Special Damages. To recover special damages, the complaint must include the following [Shook v. Pearson (1950) 99 CA2d 348, 351-352, 221 P2d 757]:

- The facts as to special damages must be stated with particularity.
- The amount of the special damages must be stated with particularity.
- The amount of the special damages must be given, and the means of occasioning them must be set forth.
- When the damages depend on proof of different circumstances from the general damages, the grounds of each claim must be alleged.

The plaintiff must show that the injury was one reasonably within the contemplation of the parties and that the conditions likely to result in the special injury complained of were brought to the attention of the defendant at the time the contract was made [Shook v. Pearson (1950) 99 CA2d 348, 351-352, 221 P2d 757].

Jury Instructions:

Special Damages, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 351 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

 Cross Reference:

Form for memorandum for party contesting damages, see 7.23 (allegations insufficient to recover special damages).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsRequirementsCivil ProcedureRemediesDamagesGeneral OverviewContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesCompensatory DamagesGeneral Overview

47 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 7 Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions

III. PLEADING AND PROVING DAMAGES

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 7.09

7.09 Plaintiff Must Prove Damages With Reasonable Certainty.

7.09[1] Plaintiff Must Prove Damages Were Suffered and Were Caused by Defendant's Breach. The plaintiff must prove with reasonable certainty that the elements of damage for which recovery is sought were in fact suffered and were in fact caused by the defendant's breach of contract [Stott v. Johnston (1951) 36 C2d 864, 875, 229 P2d 348].

7.09[2] Certainty As to Amount Is Not Required. Certainty as to the amount of damages is not required [GHK Assocs. v. Mayer Group, Inc. (1990) 224 CA3d 856, 873, 274 CR 168]. The plaintiff may recover damages if he or she presents some reasonable basis for estimating or approximating the amount [Acree v. General Motors Acceptance Corp. (2001) 92 CA4th 385, 398, 112 CR2d 99 ; see Dillingham-Ray Wilson v. City of Los Angeles (2010) 182 CA4th 1396, 1406, 106 CR3d 691 (public works contractor could use engineering estimates to prove its damages for breach of contract if those estimates were the best evidence of damages available)].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

It is common practice to establish the amount of plaintiff's damages by presenting expert testimony regarding the amount of damages. This is especially important with respect to future damages, loss of profits, loss of goodwill, and other damages that may be difficult to ascertain with certainty. Plaintiff should engage experts in the field as soon as possible to evaluate the nature and dollar amount of such damages and prepare evaluations in support of plaintiff's claims with respect to the amount of damages plaintiff has suffered.

Jury Instructions:

Damage Must Be Reasonably Certain; Certainty as to Amount Not Required, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3E, Instr. MB 300E.06 (Matthew Bender).

7.09[3] Future Damages Are Recoverable If Proven With Reasonable Certainty. The plaintiff may recover damages for detriment that will be suffered in the future because of the defendant's breach, if the nature, existence, and cause of those future damages is proven with reasonable certainty [Caminetti v. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co (1943) 23 C2d 94, 103, 142 P2d 741 ; see CC § 3283 (recovery of future damages)].

Jury Instructions:

Present Cash Value of Future Damages, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 359 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Effect of Contingencies That May Increase Future Damages, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3E, Instr. MB 300E.07 (Matthew Bender).

Effect of Contingencies That May Decrease Amount of Future Damages, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3E, Instr. MB 300E.08 (Matthew Bender).

7.09[4] Requirement of "Reasonable Certainty" Does Not Affect Burden of Proof. Although the plaintiff must show with reasonable certainty that damages were suffered as a result of defendant's breach, the "reasonable certainty" requirement does not affect the burden of proof. The requirement of "reasonable certainty" must be established by a preponderance of the evidence [see Khan v. Southern Pac. Co. (1955) 132 CA2d 410, 416, 282 P2d 78].

7.09[5] Issue of "Reasonable Certainty" Is Generally for Trier of Fact. The determination of whether the plaintiff has shown claimed elements of damage with "reasonable certainty" is generally regarded as one to be made by the trier of fact [Varjabedian v. City of Madera (1977) 20 C3d 285, 294-295, 142 CR 429, 572 P2d 43].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Damages General Overview Commercial Law (UCC) Sales (Article 2) Remedies Buyer's Remedies Damages General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Compensatory Damages General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Foreseeable Damages General Overview Evidence Procedural Considerations Burdens of Proof General Overview

48 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 7 Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions

III. PLEADING AND PROVING DAMAGES

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 7.10

7.10 Plaintiff Must Show Causation.

7.10[1] Damages Must Be Proximately Caused by Breach. The plaintiff's recovery in an action for breach of contract is limited to those damages "proximately caused" by the breach [see CC § 3300]. The damages must immediately follow and be produced by the act or omission complained of or, in the ordinary course of things, must be likely to result from the breach [Friend & Terry Lumber Co. v. Miller (1885) 67 C 464, 467, 8 P 40].

Example:

Plaintiff was a contestant in a spelling bee sponsored by defendant. Plaintiff came in second in the bee, after misspelling a word. Plaintiff filed suit against defendant, alleging that defendant had breached its agreement with the contestants by improperly allowing the winner to advance in the contest. Even if defendant had allowed the winner to advance in violation of the contest rules, as alleged, the plaintiff could not show that his damage was caused by that breach. Plaintiff could not show that he otherwise would not have misspelled the word that disqualified him, or that he would not have been defeated by another contestant [McDonald v. John P. Scripps Newspaper (1989) 210 CA3d 100, 104, 257 CR 473].

Jury Instructions:

Recovery Limited to Damages Proximately Caused by Breach, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3E, Instr. MB 300E.03 (Matthew Bender).

7.10[2] Breach Must Be Cause-in-Fact for Loss or Harm. To be entitled to damages, the plaintiff generally must show that the loss or harm would not have occurred "but for" the defendant's breach [Never v. King (1969) 276 CA2d 461, 471, 81 CR 161]. If the loss or harm would have occurred even if the defendant had fully performed his or her obligations under the contract, the defendant's breach of the contract cannot be considered a cause of the plaintiff's loss or harm [Metzenbaum v. R.O.S. Associates (1986) 188 CA3d 202, 213-214, 232 CR 741].

Examples:

- Defendant, a property owner, entered into an exclusive agency agreement with plaintiff, a mortgage loan broker, to obtain a loan commitment. Plaintiff was unable to obtain a loan for defendant with the required terms. A few days before plaintiff's exclusive agency agreement expired, defendant obtained a loan through another mortgage broker. Plaintiff sued defendant to recover a commission, alleging breach of the exclusive agency agreement. Defendant's motion for a directed verdict was properly granted because plaintiff, who had been unable to obtain a loan commitment for defendant, could not show that he could have performed, and been entitled to the commission, but for the defendant's breach [Metzenbaum v. R.O.S. Associates (1986) 188 CA3d 202, 211-214, 232 CR 741].

■ Lessee sued lessor for breach of contract when the lessor opposed the lessee's attempts to obtain the necessary permits for removal, at the end of the lease period, of improvements constructed by the lessee. Because the Coastal Commission would not have allowed removal of the improvements even if the lessor had cooperated with the lessee, the cause of the lessee's loss was not the lessor's breach of the lease, but the Coastal Commission's regulations [County of Ventura v. Channel Islands Marina, Inc. (2008) 159 CA4th 615, 627-628, 71 CR3d 762].

Jury Instructions:

Damages Not Recoverable Unless Loss or Harm Would Not Have Occurred "But For" Breach, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3E, Instr. MB 300E.04 (Matthew Bender).

7.10[3] Breach Need Not Be Sole Cause of Damages. The defendant's breach need not be the sole cause of plaintiff's damages. The defendant may be liable for plaintiff's damages, even though other factors contributed, as long as the breach was a substantial factor in bringing about the loss or harm to plaintiff [Bruckman v. Parliament Escrow Corp. (1987) 190 CA3d 1051, 1061-1063, 235 CR 813].

Example:

A seller sued an escrow company for negligence and breach of contract after escrow collapsed and the would-be buyer sued the seller for specific performance. The escrow company was found liable for attorneys' fees and litigation expenses incurred by the seller in the action brought by the buyer because the escrow company's failure to perform its duties with reasonable care was a substantial factor in the collapse of escrow [Bruckman v. Parliament Escrow Corp. (1987) 190 CA3d 1051, 1061-1063, 235 CR 813].

Jury Instructions:

Recovery Limited to Damages Proximately Caused by Breach, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3E, Instr. MB 300E.03 (Matthew Bender).

Concurrent Causes, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3E, Instr. MB 300E.05 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Damages General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Compensatory Damages General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Compensatory Damages Consequential Damages

49 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 7 Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions

III. PLEADING AND PROVING DAMAGES

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 7.11

7.11 Damages Must Have Been Foreseeable.

The plaintiff may recover for only those damages that may reasonably be supposed to have been in the contemplation of both parties at the time they made the contract, as the probable result of the breach [Overstreet v. Merritt (1921) 186 C 494, 503, 200 P 11].

The parties are not required to have actually contemplated the very consequence that occurred, if the consequence was one that the parties, in the light of all the facts known, or which should have been known to them, may be reasonably supposed to have considered as likely to follow, in the ordinary course of things, from a breach [A.A. Baxter Corp. v. Colt Indus., Inc. (1970) 10 CA3d 144, 155, 88 CR 842].

Foreseeability is determined as of the time the contract was entered into and not as of the time of the breach or some other subsequent event [Gerwin v. Southeastern Cal. Assn. of Seventh Day Adventists (1971) 14 CA3d 209, 220, 92 CR 111].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawRemediesForeseeable DamagesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesForeseeable DamagesBenefit of the BargainContracts LawRemediesForeseeable DamagesLost Profits

50 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 7 Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions
III. PLEADING AND PROVING DAMAGES

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 7.12

7.12 Proving Entitlement to Particular Elements of Damages.

7.12[1] Loss of Profits May Be Recoverable As General Damages.

7.12[1][a] Extent and Occurrence Must Be Ascertained With Reasonable Certainty. Loss of profits to an established business may be recovered if their extent and occurrence can be ascertained with reasonable certainty [Resort Video, Ltd. v. Laser Video, Inc. (1995) 35 CA4th 1679, 1697-1698, 42 CR2d 136].

The extent of loss of profits may be measured by the past volume of business and other provable data relevant to the probable future sales [Shade Foods, Inc. v. Innovative Prods. Sales & Mktg., Inc. (2000) 78 CA4th 847, 890, 93 CR2d 364].

Jury Instructions:

Loss of Profits--No Profits Earned, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 352 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Loss of Profits--Some Profits Earned, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 353 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Cross Reference:

Form for memorandum for party seeking damages, see 7.19 (loss of profits recoverable).

7.12[1][b] Anticipated Profits of Unestablished Business May Be Recoverable. If a business is new, anticipated profits may be too speculative to support a damage award [Resort Video, Ltd. v. Laser Video, Inc. (1995) 35 CA4th 1679, 1698, 42 CR2d 136]. However, the loss of prospective profits for a new business may be allowed if the evidence meets the legal standard of reasonable certainty as to both the occurrence and extent of such profits, such as when the owners have experience in the business they are seeking to establish, and when the business is in an established market [Resort Video, Ltd. v. Laser Video, Inc. (1995) 35 CA4th 1679, 1698, 42 CR2d 136].

Cross Reference:

Form for memorandum for party seeking damages, see 7.19 (loss of profits recoverable).

7.12[1][c] Anticipated Profits for Unestablished Business May Be Shown in Various Ways. Loss of profits for an unestablished business may be shown with reasonable certainty in various ways, such as the following [Kids' Universe v. In2Labs (2002) 95 CA4th 870, 884, 116 CR2d 158]:

- Expert testimony.
- Economic and financial data.
- Market surveys and analyses.
- Business records of similar enterprises.

Example:

- A parking garage operator was awarded loss of profits in an action against the developer who failed to construct a parking garage, as agreed. Although the garage was a new venture, loss of profits could be established with reasonable certainty because (1) the parking business was an established business; (2) the parking garage operator was highly experienced in the business; (3) running a parking garage was a relatively simple operation; (4) an experienced land economist concluded, based on feasibility studies and the evidence developed at the trial, that the garage would have been very profitable; and (5) a longtime employee of the garage operator testified to the profitability of a similar garage already operated by the plaintiff [S. Jon Kreedman & Co. v. Meyers Bros. Parking-Western Corp. (1976) 58 CA3d 173, 184-185, 130 CR 41].

- A franchisee sought to recover damages for lost profits after the franchisors unilaterally terminated a subfranchise agreement. The court found the evidence insufficient to establish the amount of lost anticipated profits. There was no evidence that the franchisee's expert's projections were based on facts that were substantially similar to the lost business opportunity, and the franchisee failed to establish that other restaurants' profit and loss experience were sufficiently similar to the franchisee's to be relevant. However, although the franchisee could not recover lost franchise fees based on unreliable projections of future revenues for proposed restaurants, it was entitled to recover lost franchise fees for a restaurant that had opened, because those projected fees were based on the actual revenues and growth rate of that restaurant [Parlour Enterprises, Inc. v. The Kirin Group, Inc. (2007) 152 CA4th 281, 288-294, 61 CR3d 243] .

7.12[1][d] Measure of Damages Is Net Profits. The measure of damages for loss of anticipated profits is the amount of net profits, not gross profits [Gerwin v. Southeastern Cal. Assn. of Seventh Day Adventists (1971) 14 CA3d 209, 222, 92 CR 111]. In calculating the net profit, all the costs of producing the gross income should be deducted, including the value of labor, materials, rents, and all expenses, together with the interest of the capital employed [Gerwin v. Southeastern Cal. Assn. of Seventh Day Adventists (1971) 14 CA3d 209, 223, 92 CR 111].

7.12[1][e] Special Allegations Usually Are Not Required. Loss of profits generally is recoverable without pleading special allegations [Myers v. Stephens (1965) 233 CA2d 104, 121, 43 CR 420]. Loss of profits usually is the direct and natural result of a breach of contract and may fairly be supposed to have entered into the contemplation of the parties when they made the contract [Myers v. Stephens (1965) 233 CA2d 104, 121, 43 CR 420].

Cross Reference:

Form for memorandum for party seeking damages, see 7.19 (loss of profits recoverable).

7.12[2] Damages for Physical or Mental Suffering Arising From Breach.

7.12[2][a] Generally Not Recoverable in Claim for Breach of Contract. Damages for physical or mental suffering generally are not recoverable in a claim for breach of contract [Westwater v. Grace Church (1903) 140 C 339, 341, 73 P 1055 ; Erlich v. Menezes (1999) 21 C4th 543, 558, 87 CR2d 886, 981 P2d 978].

Examples:

- Plaintiffs could not recover emotional distress damages in a breach of contract claim against their contractor for construction defects in the building of their home [Erlich v. Menezes (1999) 21 C4th 543, 558-561, 87 CR2d 886, 981 P2d 978].
- Commercial tenant could not recover emotional distress damages against her landlord when the tenant suffered no physical injury and proved no intentional tort. Because the tenant's damages derived solely from the landlords' failure to perform their contract obligations, she could recover only in contract for the economic losses due to her disappointed contractual expectations [Butler-Rupp v. Lourdeaux (2005) 134 CA4th 1220, 1229, 36 CR3d 685].

Distinguish--Availability of Tort Damages:

Although damages for physical or mental suffering are not available for a breach of contract claim, the plaintiff may have a tort, as well as contract, cause of action arising out of the same circumstances that would allow recovery of the broader range of tort damages [see Applied Equip. Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 C4th 503, 515, 28 CR2d 475, 869 P2d 454].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of availability of tort damages, see 7.06.

7.12[2][b] May Be Recoverable When Foreseeable and Contemplated Result of Breach of Particular Contract. When the terms of a contract relate to matters that directly concern the comfort, happiness, or personal welfare of one of the parties, or the subject matter of the contract directly affects or moves the affection, self-esteem, or tender feelings of that party, the plaintiff may be entitled to recover damages for physical or emotional suffering or illness proximately caused by the breach [Chelini v. Nieri (1948) 32 C2d 480, 482, 196 P2d 915]. Such damages are allowed when it is apparent from the particular subject matter of the contract that mental suffering or emotional distress is a foreseeable and contemplated result of the breach [Rogoff v. Grabowski (1988) 200 CA3d 624, 633, 246 CR 185].

Examples--Mental or Emotional Distress Damages Allowed:

- Breach of contract by a mortician to preserve a body [Chelini v. Nieri (1948) 32 C2d 480, 482, 196 P2d 915].
- Breach of a promise not to advance funds to allow a spouse to gamble in defendant's club [Wynn v. Monterey Club (1980) 111 CA3d 789, 799-801, 168 CR 878].
- Breach of a bailment contract involving cherished family jewelry [Windeler v. Scheers Jewelers (1970) 8 CA3d 844, 851-852, 88 CR 39].

Example--Mental or Emotional Distress Damages Not Allowed:

Breach of contract to provide veterinary care, resulting in death of companion pet [McMahon v. Craig

(2009) 176 CA4th 1502, 1513-1515] .

Cross References:

Form for memorandum for party seeking damages, see 7.20 (mental or emotional distress damages recoverable).

Detailed discussion of damages for mental suffering resulting from breach of contract, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 362, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress (Matthew Bender).

7.12[3] Loss of Goodwill May Be Element of Damages.

7.12[3][a] Goodwill Must Have Been Within Contemplation of Parties. The goodwill of a business is the expectation of continued patronage by the public [B&P Code § 14100]. The plaintiff in a breach of contract action may recover damages for loss of goodwill resulting from the breach, if those damages were a direct and natural result of the breach within the contemplation of the parties at the time they entered into the contract [Stott v. Johnston (1951) 36 C2d 864, 872, 229 P2d 348].

Example:

A painting contractor was entitled to recover damages for loss of goodwill in a suit against the defendant paint company for breach of warranty. The plaintiff contractor had agreed to purchase the defendant's paint for the many jobs he had at the time of the contract, based on the defendant's assurances concerning the quality of the paint and the company's willingness to remedy any problems with it. The defendant knew the particular purpose for which the plaintiff bought the paint and the plaintiff's reliance on the defendant's judgment. Under the circumstances, damages for the loss of goodwill were within the contemplation of the parties as a detriment directly and naturally resulting from the breach of warranty [Stott v. Johnston (1951) 36 C2d 864, 872, 229 P2d 348].

7.12[3][b] Difficulty of Proof Does Not Preclude Recovery. There is no rule as to what evidence must be introduced to prove damages for loss of goodwill [Stott v. Johnston (1951) 36 C2d 864, 873-874, 229 P2d 348].

The trier of fact is entitled to award damages for loss of goodwill based on the evidence of the particular case, even though such damages cannot be measured with precision [Ross v. Frank W. Dunne Co. (1953) 119 CA2d 690, 701-703, 260 P2d 104].

Example:

Defendant, a paint company, sold defective paint to plaintiff, a painting contractor. Plaintiff painted over 50 houses and buildings with the paint, which began to peel, crack, discolor, and come off within six months or less. The damages awarded for loss of goodwill were supported by evidence showing that although plaintiff had increased business capacity, efficiency and promotion activities to take advantage of the postwar building boom, he was unable to expand his business after receiving complaints from customers on whose buildings he had used defendant's paint [Stott v. Johnston (1951) 36 C2d 864, 876, 229 P2d 348].

Strategic Point--All Parties:

Courts have wide discretion in determining goodwill value [In re Marriage of Iredale & Cates (2004) 121 CA4th 321, 329 (value of professional practice in context of marital dissolution)]. As a result, it is common for expert testimony to be used to support (and to attack) plaintiff's allegations of lost goodwill. Often courts are faced with a choice between more than one perfectly valid, well-established method of valuing goodwill [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Iredale & Cates (2004) 121 CA4th 321, 330-331]. In In re Marriage of Iredale & Cates (2004) 121 CA4th 321, 330, for example, the court rejected the "average salaried person" standard in favor of the "similarly situated professional" standard.

7.12[3][c] Facts Concerning Loss of Goodwill Should Be Alleged With Particularity. Facts concerning damages claimed for the loss of goodwill should be alleged with particularity to show that such damages were within the contemplation of the parties and resulted directly and naturally in the ordinary course of events from the breach of the contract [see Stott v. Johnston (1951) 36 C2d 864, 871-872, 229 P2d 348; Walpole v. Prefab Mfg. Co. (1951) 103 CA2d 472, 490, 230 P2d 36].

Example:

Plaintiff's allegations that, because of defendant's breach of a contract to deliver goods, she was forced to employ additional clerks to handle customer complaints and to make refunds of deposits to placate customers, were sufficient to state a claim for damages for loss of goodwill [Walpole v. Prefab Mfg. Co. (1951) 103 CA2d 472, 490, 230 P2d 36].

7.12[4] Damage to Reputation Generally Is Not Recoverable. Damages for injury to an individual's name, character, or personal reputation arising from a breach of contract generally are not recoverable because they are considered too uncertain, speculative, and remote [Walpole v. Prefab Mfg. Co. (1951) 103 CA2d 472, 489, 230 P2d 36].

Exception:

Damages for loss of publicity caused by a breach of contract may be recoverable if they are related to the loss of publicity for some particular event, such as a musical concert or a prize fight, or loss of publicity for some continuing activity, such as the conduct of a specific business at a specific location or the practice of a particular skill or art [Ericson v. Playgirl, Inc. (1977) 73 CA3d 850, 856, 140 CR 921].

7.12[5] Plaintiff May Recover Expenditures Incurred in Performance If Not Awarded Full Benefit of Bargain.

7.12[5][a] Reasonably Necessary Expenditures or Value of Services Rendered May Be Recoverable.

Reasonably necessary expenditures incurred, and the value of services rendered, by the contracting party not in default, may be recovered as damages for breach of contract if the plaintiff has not also recovered the full price of the value of the benefits expected under the contract [Patty v. Berryman (1949) 95 CA2d 159, 172, 212 P2d 937].

Examples:

- Plaintiff company entered into a concession agreement with defendant county. Plaintiff brought an action against the defendant for breach of contract. Under the circumstances, loss of profits was too conjectural to be a basis for damages. Therefore, plaintiff was entitled to recover compensation for the 1,250 hours of time expended by the president and secretary of the company in attempting to carry out the contract [Mendoyoma v. County of Mendocino (1970) 8 CA3d 873, 881-882, 87 CR 740].

- After franchisors unilaterally terminated a subfranchise agreement, franchisee was entitled to recover its expenditures in developing different restaurant locations [Parlour Enterprises, Inc. v. The Kirin Group, Inc. (2007) 152 CA4th 294, 61 CR3d 281].

7.12[5][b] Plaintiff Also May Recover Net Profit, If Established. In addition to expenses, the plaintiff is entitled to the net profit he or she would have made on the entire contract, if it can be established [Patty v. Berryman (1949) 95 CA2d 159, 172-173, 212 P2d 937]. The net profit is the contract price less the total amount of expenditures, including those already incurred, which the plaintiff would have made from the beginning to the end of the contract [Patty v. Berryman (1949) 95 CA2d 159, 173, 212 P2d 937].

7.12[5][c] Defendant Has Burden of Showing Expenses Were Extravagant and Unnecessary. If the plaintiff establishes the amount he or she was induced to expend, the defendant has the burden of establishing that those expenses were extravagant and unnecessary for the purpose of carrying out the contract [Mendoyoma v. County of Mendocino (1970) 8 CA3d 873, 879, 87 CR 740].

Strategic Point--All Parties:

Even if expenditures incurred in performance of the contract were not extravagant or unnecessary, they may not be recoverable as general damages. Expenditures, like other elements of damages, are not recoverable as general damages unless they were foreseeable as a natural result of the breach. If such expenditures cannot be considered to arise naturally from the breach, the plaintiff must plead and prove them as elements of special damages, the special circumstances of which were known to the defendant when the parties entered into the contract [see Mendoyoma v. County of Mendocino (1970) 8 CA3d 873, 879, 87 CR 740].

Example:

Plaintiff company sued defendant county for breach of a concession agreement. Plaintiff could not recover amounts incurred for interest on loans that it had obtained to finance its operations because there was no evidence that defendant was aware that performance of the contract was to be financed through loans at the time the parties entered into the agreement [Mendoyoma v. County of Mendocino (1970) 8 CA3d 873, 880, 87 CR 740].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of pleading special damages, see 7.08[3].

7.12[6] Expenses Incurred Because of Breach May Be Recovered.

7.12[6][a] Plaintiff Is Entitled to Reasonable and Necessary Expenses. The plaintiff is entitled to recover all reasonable and necessary expenses he or she was required to incur because of a breach of contract [Walpole v. Prefab Mfg. Co. (1951) 103 CA2d 472, 489, 230 P2d 36].

Example:

Defendant leased an entire office building from plaintiff for a term of five years. After only three years, defendant abandoned the property. Plaintiff listed the property for lease or sale. Plaintiff received no offers to lease the property, so the property was eventually sold. Under the circumstances of the case, the sale of the building was a reasonably foreseeable consequence of defendant's breach. Plaintiff therefore was entitled to recover the expenses of the sale as an item of damages, unless defendant could prove that the expenses incurred were unreasonable or unnecessary [Millikan v. American Spectrum Real Estate Servs. Cal., Inc. (2004) 117 CA4th 1094, 1105-1106].

7.12[6][b] Damages Include Expenses Incurred in Mitigation. If, in a good faith attempt to mitigate damages, the plaintiff incurs expenses that he or she would not otherwise have incurred, and thereby succeeds in preventing a still greater loss, those expenses become an item of damages the plaintiff is entitled to recover [W.C. Cook & Co. v. White Truck & Transfer Co. (1932) 124 CA 721, 727, 13 P2d 549].

7.12[7] Prejudgment Interest.

7.12[7][a] Party Entitled to Recover Damages Certain Is Entitled to Interest From Day Right of Recovery

Vests. If a person is entitled to recover damages certain, or capable of being made certain by calculation, and the right to recover those damages is vested in that person on a particular day, the person also is entitled to recover interest on the amount of damages from that day [CC § 3287(a)].

Exception:

The party entitled to damages is not entitled to interest during such time as the debtor is prevented by law, or by the act of the creditor, from paying the debt [CC § 3287(a)].

Distinguish:

The requirement of CC § 3287(a) that the amount of damages be certain or capable of being made certain by calculation does not apply when prejudgment interest is part of the contractual amount owed [Roodenburg v. Pavestone Co., L.P. (2009) 171 CA4th 185, 191-192, 89 CR3d 558 (operating agreement required defendant to pay interest to plaintiff on any amount not paid within 30 days of a triggering event)].

This entitlement is applicable to recovery of damages and interest from any debtor, including the state or any county, city, city and county, municipal corporation, public district, public agency, or any political subdivision of the state [CC § 3287(a)].

7.12[7][b] Court May Allow Prejudgment Interest When Claim Was Unliquidated. A person who is entitled under any judgment to receive damages based on a cause of action in contract when the claim was unliquidated also may recover interest on the amount of damages from a date prior to the entry of judgment that the court, in its discretion, may fix, but that date may not be earlier than the date the action was filed [CC § 3287(b)]. An award of unliquidated damages to a cross-complainant is a setoff against prejudgment interest awarded a plaintiff for liquidated damages [Great Western Drywall, Inc. v. Roel Construction Co., Inc. (2008) 166 CA4th 761, 768, 83 CR3d 235 (subcontractor was entitled to no prejudgment interest because the entire amount of general contractor's recovery was an offset as it arose from subcontractor's deficient performance of the subcontract)].

7.12[7][c] Contract May Stipulate Rate of Interest. Any legal rate of interest stipulated by a contract remains chargeable after a breach of the contract, as before, until the contract is superseded by a verdict or other new obligation [CC § 3289(a)]. For this purpose, the rate of the contracted finance charge is the legal rate of interest stipulated by a retail installment contract subject to the Unruh Act [CC §§ 1801 et seq., 3289.5].

Cross Reference:

Detailed discussion of retail installment contracts, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales (Matthew Bender).

If a contract entered into after January 1, 1986, does not stipulate a legal rate of interest, the obligation bears interest at a rate of 10 percent per annum after a breach [CC § 3289(b)].

Exception:

The term "contract" in this context does not include a note secured by a deed of trust on real property [CC § 3289(b)].

If a contract was entered into prior to January 1, 1986, the rate of interest is seven percent per annum [Cal Const, art XV, § 1; see Green v. Future Two (1986) 179 CA3d 738, 744, 225 CR 3].

7.12[7][d] Accepting Payment of Whole Principal Waives Claim to Interest. Accepting payment of the whole principal, as such, waives all claim to interest [CC § 3290].

Distinguish--Interest Owed Pursuant to Contract Provision to Pay Interest:

CC § 3290 applies only to interest claimed as damages for nonpayment or default in payment of a debt. If interest is claimed as part of a debt on the basis of a contract provision to pay interest, the interest is an accretion to principal. Payment of less than the aggregate of principal and interest constitutes nothing more than a payment on account and does not extinguish the right to interest on the principal [Kawasho Int'l U.S.A., Inc. v. Lakewood Pipe Serv., Inc. (1983) 152 CA3d 785, 794-795, 201 CR 640].

7.12[8] Punitive or Exemplary Damages Are Unavailable for Breach of Contract. Punitive or exemplary damages are not recoverable in an action based solely on breach of contract [CC § 3294]. Such damages are unavailable in an action on contract even if the defendant's conduct amounts to oppression, fraud, or malice [see Myers Bldg. Industries, Ltd. v. Interface Technology, Inc. (1993) 13 CA4th 949, 960, 17 CR2d 242].

Distinguish--Case Involving Both Contract and Tort Causes of Action:

If the defendant's conduct constituted both a breach of contract and a tort, and the plaintiff alleges and establishes both the defendant's liability for tort damages and the fraud, oppression, or malice sufficient to sustain a punitive damages award, punitive damages are recoverable [Haigler v. Donnelly (1941) 18 C2d 674, 680, 117 P2d 331].

Example:

A jury completed a special verdict form, awarding compensatory damages on plaintiff's breach of contract claim. Although the form stated that the jury awarded "no further damages" on plaintiff's tort claim, the form indicated that there was a finding of liability on that claim. No further compensatory damages were awarded because such damages would have been duplicative of those awarded on the breach of contract cause of action. Because the plaintiff otherwise would have been entitled to compensatory damages on the tort claim, had the verdict form addressed that cause of action first, the jury was not precluded from awarding punitive damages on the tort claim [All-West Design, Inc. v. Boozer (1986) 183 CA3d 1212, 1222-1225, 228 CR 736].

Jury Instructions:

Punitive Damages Not Recoverable (Jury Instructed Only on Breach of Contract), see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3E, Instr. MB 300E.12 (Matthew Bender).

Punitive Damages Not Recoverable (Jury Also Instructed on Non-Contract Punitive Damage Claims), see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3E, Instr. MB 300E.13 (Matthew Bender).

 Cross References:

Discussion of recovery of damages when both tort and contract causes of action exist, see 7.06.

Discussion of determining whether to sue in contract, tort, or both, see Ch. 2, Determining What Causes of Action Exist.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Remedies Compensatory Damages General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Compensatory Damages Consequential Damages Contracts Law Remedies Compensatory Damages Interest Contracts Law Remedies Foreseeable Damages General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Foreseeable Damages Lost Profits

51 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 7 Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions
IV. CONTESTING DAMAGES

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 7.13

7.13 CHECKLIST: Contesting Damages.

☐ Determine whether plaintiff has properly alleged damages in complaint for breach of contract, and file demurrer or answer to complaint, as appropriate:

- ☐ Complaint must contain allegation of damages to state claim for breach of contract.
- ☐ Complaint must allege particular facts if special damages are sought.

Authority:

Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 C2d 822, 830, 69 CR 321, 442 P2d 377 ; Shook v. Pearson (1950) 99 CA2d 348, 351-352, 221 P2d 757

Discussion:

See 7.14[1]

Form:

See 7.23 (memorandum for party contesting damages)

☐ Determine whether damages can be contested, in answer to complaint and appropriately during course of the action, on ground(s) that plaintiff cannot prove with reasonable certainty that damages were:

- ☐ Suffered by plaintiff;
- ☐ Proximately caused by defendant's breach; and/or
- ☐ Foreseeable, at time parties made contract, as probable result of breach.

Authority:

CC § 3300; Stott v. Johnston (1951) 36 C2d 864, 875, 229 P2d 348 ; A.A. Baxter Corp. v. Colt Indus., Inc. (1970) 10 CA3d 144, 160, 88 CR 842

Discussion:

See 7.14[2]

☐ Determine whether damages sought can be contested, in answer to complaint and appropriately during course of action, on ground(s) that:

- ☐ Plaintiff is not seeking correct measure of damages, such as when measure of damages is established by statute and plaintiff is seeking different measure of damages;
- ☐ There is a limitation on recoverable damages, such as an enforceable liquidated damages provision in parties' agreement; and/or
- ☐ Particular items of damages sought by plaintiff, such as loss of profits, are not recoverable under circumstances of case.

Discussion:

See 7.14[3]

☐ Determine whether to contest damages sought by asserting affirmative defense of plaintiff's failure to mitigate damages because:

- ☐ Plaintiff had obligation to make reasonable effort to mitigate damages; and
- ☐ Obligation to mitigate was not excused under circumstances of case.

Authority:

Valle de Oro Bank v. Gamboa (1994) 26 CA4th 1686, 1691, 32 CR2d 329 ; Shaffer v. Debbas (1993) 17 CA4th 33, 41, 21 CR2d 110

Discussion:

See 7.15

Forms:

See 7.17 (answer to complaint for breach of contract with affirmative defense(s)), 7.24 (memorandum for party contesting damages)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Damages General Overview Commercial Law (UCC) Sales (Article 2) Remedies Buyer's Remedies Damages General Overview Commercial Law (UCC) Sales (Article 2) Remedies Seller's Remedies Damages General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Compensatory Damages General Overview

52 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 7 Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions
IV. CONTESTING DAMAGES

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 7.14

7.14 Claim for Damages May Be Subject to Attack on Various Grounds.

7.14[1] Defendant May Demur to Complaint If Damages Are Not Properly Alleged. An allegation of damages is essential to state a cause of action for breach of contract [Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 C2d 822, 830, 69 CR 321, 442 P2d 377]. If the complaint contains no allegation of damages, the defendant may demur to the complaint for failure to state a cause of action [see CCP § 430.10(e)].

If the plaintiff is seeking special damages, the complaint must allege particular facts concerning the plaintiff's entitlement to those damages [Shook v. Pearson (1950) 99 CA2d 348, 351-352, 221 P2d 757]. If the plaintiff fails to do so, the defendant may demur to the complaint on the ground the pleading is uncertain [see CCP § 430.10(f)].

► Cross References:

Discussion of requirements for allegation of damages, see 7.08.

Form for memorandum for party contesting damages, see 7.23 (allegations insufficient to recover special damages).

Detailed discussion of demurrers, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 11, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings; or California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings (Matthew Bender).

7.14[2] Defendant's Liability for Damages Alleged May Be Contested. The plaintiff must prove with reasonable certainty that the damages for which recovery is sought were:

- Suffered by plaintiff [Stott v. Johnston (1951) 36 C2d 864, 875, 229 P2d 348];
- Proximately caused by the defendant's breach of contract [CC § 3300]; and
- Foreseeable, at the time the parties made the contract, as the probable result of a breach [A.A.

Baxter Corp. v. Colt Indus., Inc. (1970) 10 CA3d 144, 160, 88 CR 842].

Decision Point:

Defendant should determine whether to dispute the existence, proximate cause, or foreseeability of the damages sought by plaintiff. If any of those matters are in dispute, defendant should demur to or deny the allegations of the complaint related to those issues and contest liability appropriately during the course of the action.

Strategic Point--Defendant:

The appropriate manner of contesting defendant's liability for the damages sought will depend on plaintiff's pleadings and proof. Issues such as proximate cause and foreseeability generally involve questions of fact that cannot be resolved prior to trial. However, under the circumstances of the particular action, the defendant may be able to raise those issues and have them resolved favorably prior to or during the trial.

Example--Demurrer Sustained When Causation Could Not Be Shown:

Plaintiff was a contestant in a spelling bee sponsored by defendant. Plaintiff came in second in the bee, after misspelling a word. Plaintiff filed suit against defendant, alleging that defendant had breached its agreement with the contestants by improperly allowing the winner to advance in the contest. Even if defendant had allowed the winner to advance in violation of the contest rules, as alleged, the plaintiff could not show that his damage was caused by that breach. Defendant's demurrer was properly sustained without leave to amend because plaintiff would not be able to prove causation under any theory [McDonald v. John P. Scripps Newspaper (1989) 210 CA3d 100, 103-104, 257 CR 473].

Example--Motion for Directed Verdict Granted Because Plaintiff Could Not Show Causation:

Defendant, a property owner, entered into an exclusive agency agreement with plaintiff, a mortgage loan broker, to obtain a loan commitment. Plaintiff was unable to obtain a loan for defendant with the required terms. During a few days before plaintiff's exclusive agency agreement expired, defendant obtained a loan through another mortgage broker. Plaintiff sued defendant to recover a commission, alleging breach of the exclusive agency agreement. Defendant's motion for a directed verdict was properly granted because plaintiff, who had been unable to obtain a loan commitment for defendant, could not show that he could have performed, and been entitled to the commission, but for defendant's breach [Metzenbaum v. R.O.S. Associates (1986) 188 CA3d 202, 211-214, 232 CR 741].

Cross References:

Discussion of certainty, causation, and foreseeability of damages, see 7.09 -7.11.

Form for answer to complaint for breach of contract, see 7.17.

Detailed discussion of denials in answers, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 14, Answers; or California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 26, Answers (Matthew Bender).

7.14[3] Plaintiff's Entitlement to Particular Damages May Be Contested. The defendant should scrutinize the amount and particular items of damages sought and plaintiff's entitlement to those damages. Defendant should answer with denials of the allegations related to those damages, assert affirmative defenses, or move to strike, as appropriate under the circumstances. Defendant should consider:

- The correct measure of damages, under the circumstances of the case, including whether the measure of damages is established by statute or case law [see 7.03 -7.06];
- Limitations on the damages sought, if any, under the circumstances of the case, such as a liquidated damages provision in the parties' agreement [see 7.05[3]]; and
- Whether particular items of damages sought by plaintiff, such as loss of profits, are recoverable under the circumstances of the case [see 7.12].

Strategic Points--Defendant:

- Issues as to amounts of damages generally are issues of fact that cannot be resolved prior to trial, and defendant should deny the allegations of the complaint accordingly. However, defendant also should consider whether entitlement to particular items of damages can be challenged prior to trial to minimize his or her exposure. For example, if the complaint seeks items of damages for breach of contract which are not recoverable, such as punitive damages [see CC § 3294(a)], defendant should consider filing a motion to strike in response [see CCP § 435(b)].
- If there is a limitation on the damages sought by plaintiff, such as the existence of a liquidated damages provision, which is not put into issue by the allegations of the complaint, defendant should assert the existence of that limitation by way of an affirmative defense [see CCP § 431.30(b)(2)]. Plaintiff's failure to mitigate damages also should be asserted with an affirmative defense [see 7.15].
- It is common practice to present expert testimony regarding the amount of damages. The defense should assume that plaintiff will present expert testimony on this issue and should begin as soon as possible to locate appropriate experts who will refute the plaintiff's claims with respect to the dollar amount of damages.

Cross References:

Discussion of limitations on damages, see 7.05.

Discussion of entitlement to particular elements of damages, see 7.12.

Form for answer to complaint for breach of contract, see 7.17.

Detailed discussion of answers, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 14, Answers; or California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 26, Answers (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsDemurrersCivil

ProcedureRemediesDamagesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesCompensatory DamagesGeneral Overview

53 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 7 Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions
IV. CONTESTING DAMAGES

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 7.15

7.15 Defendant May Assert Affirmative Defense of Failure to Mitigate Damages.

7.15[1] Plaintiff Must Make Reasonable Effort to Mitigate. A plaintiff who is injured by a breach of contract must take reasonable steps to mitigate his or her damages [Valle de Oro Bank v. Gamboa (1994) 26 CA4th 1686, 1691, 32 CR2d 329; Shaffer v. Debbas (1993) 17 CA4th 33, 41, 21 CR2d 110]. If a plaintiff suffers losses that could have been prevented by his or her own reasonable efforts, those losses are considered to have been proximately caused by the plaintiff's, rather than the defendant's, conduct [Valencia v. Shell Oil Co. (1944) 23 C2d 840, 846-847, 147 P2d 558].

Example:

Plaintiffs sued defendant for breach of contract after defendant refused to complete his purchase of plaintiffs' home for $385,000. After filing suit, plaintiffs relisted the property for sale at $390,000, then dropped the price to $365,000. Within five months of filing suit, plaintiffs removed the property from the market. Plaintiffs then continued to live in the home, did not sell it, did not reoffer it for sale, and did not intend to sell it. The property had increased in value by the time of trial to an amount exceeding the contract price plus plaintiffs' expenses. Because the plaintiffs had taken the property off the market for their own benefit and for reasons unrelated to marketability, plaintiffs did not fulfill their duty to mitigate damages as a matter of law and could no longer maintain their action against the defendant [Spurgeon v. Drumheller (1985) 174 CA3d 659, 665, 220 CR 195].

Jury Instructions:

Mitigation of Damages, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 358 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Extent of Plaintiff's Obligation to Avoid or Minimize Damages, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3E, Instr. MB 300E.14 (Matthew Bender).

➤ Cross Reference:

Form for memorandum for party contesting damages, see 7.24 (damages not recoverable because of failure to mitigate).

7.15[2] Reasonableness of Effort Depends on Circumstances. Whether a plaintiff has acted reasonably to mitigate damages is determined in light of the situation with which the plaintiff was confronted at the time the loss was threatened and not by the judgment of hindsight [Green v. Smith (1968) 261 CA2d 392, 396, 67 CR 796].

Example:

Although a landlord generally will attempt to mitigate damages after a tenant abandons a lease by making reasonable efforts to relet the property, the landlord's sale of the property is not a breach of a duty to mitigate if the trier of fact finds the sale to have been a reasonable means to avoid further loss of rental revenue under the circumstances [Millikan v. American Spectrum Real Estate Servs. Cal., Inc. (2004) 117 CA4th 1094, 1100].

The fact that reasonable measures other than the one taken would have avoided damage is not, in and of itself, proof of the fact that the one taken, though unsuccessful, was unreasonable [Green v. Smith (1968) 261 CA2d 392, 397, 67 CR 796].

Cross Reference:

Form for memorandum for party seeking damages, see 7.21 (plaintiff's effort to mitigate was reasonable).

7.15[3] Plaintiff Cannot Recover Avoidable Damages. Damages that the injured party could have avoided by making reasonable efforts or expenditures may not be recovered [Valencia v. Shell Oil Co. (1944) 23 C2d 840, 844, 147 P2d 558].

However, the plaintiff is not precluded from recovery to the extent that he or she has made reasonable efforts to avoid the loss, even though those efforts were unsuccessful [Brandon & Tibbs v. George Kevorkian Accountancy Corp. (1990) 226 CA3d 442, 460, 277 CR 40].

Cross Reference:

Form for memorandum for party contesting damages, see 7.24 (damages not recoverable because of failure to mitigate).

7.15[4] Mitigation May Not Be Required Under Circumstances.

7.15[4][a] Obligation to Mitigate Is Excused by Reliance on Defendant's Promises. A plaintiff's failure to mitigate damages does not bar recovery if the failure to take action is the result of a reasonable belief, induced by the promises or actions of the defendant, that the defendant will perform its obligations at issue or take steps to minimize the plaintiff's damages [Valencia v. Shell Oil Co. (1944) 23 C2d 840, 844-846, 147 P2d 558 ; Questo v. Dorado (1955) 136 CA2d 332, 335-336, 288 P2d 529].

Example:

The lessor of farm land sued a lessee for rent due. The lessee cross-complained, alleging that the lessor breached their agreement by failing to provide water for the irrigation of lessee's tomato crop. The damage to the lessee was caused solely by the lessor's failure to furnish water in accordance with the parties' agreement. The lessee had a right to rely on the continuing representations of the lessor that the lessor would furnish water. Under the circumstances, the lessee was not required to mitigate damages by assuming the burden of the lessor [Questo v. Dorado (1955) 136 CA2d 332, 335-336, 288 P2d 529].

The issue of whether the plaintiff was excused from the obligation to mitigate damages because of reliance on the defendant's express or implied promises generally is a question of fact [see Questo v. Dorado (1955) 136 CA2d 332, 335-336, 288 P2d 529].

Jury Instructions:

Obligation to Mitigate Is Excused by Reliance on Defendant's Promises, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3E, Instr. MB 300E.16 (Matthew Bender).

Cross Reference:

Form for memorandum for party seeking damages, see 7.22 (mitigation not required under circumstances).

7.15[4][b] Nature of Contract or Extent of Plaintiff's Performance May Excuse Obligation to Mitigate.

Generally, either party to an executory contract has the power to stop performance of the contract by giving notice or direction to that effect, subjecting himself or herself to liability for damages [Bomberger v. McKelvey (1950) 35 C2d 607, 613-614, 220 P2d 729]. Because of the obligation to mitigate damages, the injured party, upon receiving such a notice, cannot continue to perform and recover damages based on full performance [Bomberger v. McKelvey (1950) 35 C2d 607, 614, 220 P2d 729].

However, the injured party may go forward, complete his or her performance, and insist on specific performance of the agreement if [Bomberger v. McKelvey (1950) 35 C2d 607, 614, 220 P2d 729]:

- The injured party must proceed with his or her performance under the contract to fulfill contract obligations to others;
- The injured party has progressed so far in his or her performance that it would be impracticable to attempt to make a reasonable estimate of damages; or
- To complete the work would diminish damages, or, at least, not enhance them.

Example:

Defendants agreed to pay plaintiffs to demolish a building and remove the salvage. Defendants breached the agreement by notifying plaintiffs that they were not to enter the land or demolish the building. Plaintiffs demolished the building, as originally agreed, and sued to recover the contract amount. During the negotiations for the agreement, plaintiffs had informed defendants that they planned to use the salvage in the construction of another building because the materials were then scarce. Under the circumstances, plaintiffs were not obligated to mitigate damages upon defendants' breach, but were entitled to specific performance of the agreement [Bomberger v. McKelvey (1950) 35 C2d 607, 615-616, 220 P2d 729].

7.15[4][c] Obligation to Mitigate May Not Be Imposed to Deprive Plaintiff of Benefit of Subsequent Contracts. The obligation to mitigate damages does not apply to contracts that do not require all or a great portion of the plaintiff's time, or that do not preclude plaintiff from undertaking and being engaged contemporaneously in the performance of other contracts [Seaboard Music Co. v. Germano (1972) 24 CA3d 618, 622-623, 101 CR 255]. A plaintiff is not required to mitigate damages if the effect would be to require the plaintiff to sacrifice and surrender valuable rights in subsequent contracts that would have been available to plaintiff irrespective of the breach of the contract at issue [Seaboard Music Co. v. Germano (1972) 24 CA3d 618, 623, 101 CR 255].

Example:

Plaintiff was in the business of leasing coin-operated juke boxes and other amusement equipment to businesses. Plaintiff leased a juke box and pool table to defendant, a tavern owner. Under the agreement, plaintiff and defendant were to split the gross income from the equipment. When defendant breached the agreement during the term of the lease, plaintiff repossessed the equipment and sued to recover loss of profits. Plaintiff had a warehouse full of similar equipment from which it serviced its customers and from which it could service any additional leases negotiated. Plaintiff was not obligated to re-lease the equipment repossessed from defendant, in preference to using its other equipment to carry on its normal business. Plaintiff was not required to mitigate its damages, and reduce defendants' liability, by foregoing profit which it would otherwise make in the normal course of its business [Seaboard Music Co. v. Germano (1972) 24 CA3d 618, 623, 101 CR 255].

 Cross Reference:

Form for memorandum for party seeking damages, see 7.22 (mitigation not required under circumstances).

7.15[4][d] Obligation to Mitigate Does Not Apply When Plaintiff Has Fully Performed. The obligation to mitigate does not apply when the plaintiff has fully performed his or her obligations under the contract at the time of the other party's breach [see Capaldi v. Levy (1969) 1 CA3d 274, 282, 81 CR 629].

 Cross Reference:

Form for memorandum for party seeking damages, see 7.22 (mitigation not required under circumstances).

7.15[4][e] Obligation to Mitigate Does Not Require Obligations Beyond Plaintiff's Means. The duty to minimize damages does not require the plaintiff to do what is unreasonable or impracticable. Consequently, when expenditures are necessary for mitigation of damages, the duty does not run to a person who is financially unable to make those expenditures [Jordan v. Talbot (1961) 55 C2d 597, 611, 12 CR 488, 361 P2d 20]. Whether a particular expenditure that allegedly would have reduced the plaintiff's damages was beyond the plaintiff's financial means generally is a question of fact [see Berge v. International Harvester Co. (1983) 142 CA3d 152, 163, 190 CR 815 ; Gerwin v. Southeastern Cal. Assn. of Seventh Day Adventists (1971) 14 CA3d 209, 219-220, 92 CR 111].

Jury Instructions:

Obligation to Mitigate Does Not Require Obligations Beyond Plaintiff's Means, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3E, Instr. MB 300E.15 (Matthew Bender).

 Cross Reference:

Form for memorandum for party seeking damages, see 7.22 (mitigation not required under circumstances).

7.15[5] Failure to Mitigate Is Affirmative Defense. The failure to mitigate damages is an affirmative defense that must be pleaded and proved by the defendant [Baruh v. Kuhl (1963) 213 CA2d 266, 273, 28 CR 573].

The defendant bears the burden of proving that all or part of the plaintiff's losses were reasonably avoidable [Brandon & Tibbs v. George Kevorkian Accountancy Corp. (1990) 226 CA3d 442, 460, 277 CR 40].

 Cross Reference:

Form for answer with affirmative defense alleging failure to mitigate, see 7.17.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Defenses, Demurrers & Objections Affirmative Defenses General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Damages General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Avoidable Consequences Labor & Employment Law Discrimination Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 Remedies Mitigation of Damages Real Property Law Purchase & Sale Remedies Damages Duty to Mitigate

54 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 7 Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions
V. FORMS

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 7.16

7.16 Complaint for Breach of Contract With Allegation(s) of Damages.Complaint for Breach of Contract With Allegation(s) of Damages.

_____[Name of attorney]
 _____[Street address]
 _____[City, state, and ZIP]
 _____[Area code and phone number]
 _____[State Bar no. of attorney]
 Attorney for _____[name of party]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
 COUNTY OF _____

[name(s)] _____,	)
Plaintiff(s),	)	No.
vs.	)	_____
[name(s)] _____	)	_____
[and DOES 1 THROUGH _____]	)	COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES FOR BREACH OF _____]	)	CONTRACT [LIMITED CIVIL CASE]
Defendant(s).	)	[Amount Demanded _____]
		(Exceeds or Does Not Exceed) $10,000]

Plaintiff _____[name] alleges:

[For an individual plaintiff]

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 7.16

1. Plaintiff is an individual residing in _____ [city, if any, and county], California, [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____], [and therein doing business under the fictitious business name of _____].

_____. Plaintiff has duly complied in all respects with the requirements of Business and Professions Code Sections 17910 through 17917 with respect to this fictitious business name].

[OR, for a domestic corporation or domestic limited liability company]

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of California, with its principal place of business in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____], [and therein doing business under the fictitious business name of _____]. Plaintiff has duly complied in all respects with the requirements of Business and Professions Code Sections 17910 through 17917 with respect to this fictitious business name].

[OR, for a foreign corporation or foreign limited liability company]

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of _____ [state or foreign country], and _____ [for foreign corporation authorized to do business and doing business in California or, for foreign limited liability company maintaining action or intrastate business, and registered to transact intrastate business in California], with its principal place of business in California in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____].

[OR, for a general or limited partnership or an unincorporated association]

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [partnership or unincorporated association] with its principal place of business in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____], [and therein doing business under the fictitious business name of _____]. Plaintiff has duly complied in all respects with the requirements of Business and Professions Code Sections 17910 through 17917 with respect to this fictitious business name].

[CONTINUE]

[For an individual defendant]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is an individual residing in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____].

_____] [and doing business therein under the fictitious business name of _____].

[OR, for a domestic corporation or domestic limited liability company]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of California, [with its principal place of business in (city, if any, and county) _____, California, (in the _____ [name of judicial district, if any])].

[OR, for a foreign corporation or foreign limited liability company]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of _____ [state or foreign country], [with its principal place of business in (city, if any, and county) _____, California, (in the _____ [name of judicial district, if any])].

[OR, for a general or limited partnership or an unincorporated association]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [a partnership or an unincorporated association] sued herein under the name _____ [it has assumed or by which it is known], [with its principal place of business in (city, if any, and county) _____, California, (in the _____ [name of judicial district, if any])]. [Defendants (names of individual partners or members) _____ are, and at all times herein mentioned were, members of that _____ (partnership or unincorporated association) (and are, and at all times herein mentioned were, residents of _____ County, California)].

[CONTINUE]

3. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of Defendants sued herein as DOES 1 through _____ [numeral, e.g., 50], inclusive, and therefore sues these Defendants by these fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by those defendants.]

4. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that at all times material to this complaint, _____ [identify defendants to whom agency allegation applies, e.g., each of the defendants or each of the individual defendants or Defendant Harry Jones], [and each of the defendants fictitiously named in this complaint,] in addition to acting for himself, herself, or itself and on his, her, or its own behalf individually, is and was acting as the agent, servant, employee and representative of, and with the knowledge, consent and permission of, and in conspiracy with, each and all of the Defendants and within the course, scope and authority of that agency, service, employment, representation, and conspiracy. Plaintiff further alleges on information and belief that the acts of each of the Defendants were fully ratified by each and all of the Defendants. Specifically, and without limitation, Plaintiff alleges on information and belief that the actions, failures to act, breaches, conspiracy, and misrepresentations alleged herein and attributed to one or more of the specific Defendants were approved, ratified, and done with the cooperation and knowledge of each and all of the Defendants.

5. _____ [Set forth in this and subsequently numbered paragraphs allegations stating facts concerning existence and terms of contract and/or referring to attached contract.]

6. _____ [Set forth in this and subsequently numbered paragraphs allegations stating facts concerning plaintiff's performance or excuse for nonperformance.]

7. _____ [Set forth in this and subsequently numbered paragraphs allegations stating facts concerning defendant's breach.]

[EITHER, to allege general damages]

8. As a proximate result of Defendant's breach of the contract, as alleged, Plaintiff has suffered damages in the sum of $_____.

[OR, to allege damages pursuant to a liquidated damages provision in a contract entered into after July 1, 1978, other than consumer contract or residential lease]

8. The parties agreed in Paragraph _____ [specify paragraph of contract containing liquidated damages provision] of the contract that _____ [in the event of a breach by either party or specify conditions under which liquidated damages provision would apply], Plaintiff would be entitled to recover _____ [specify amount and/or formula to calculate amount].

[OR, to allege that the parties agreed in the contract that a deposit would constitute liquidated damages]

8. When the parties entered into the contract, Defendant provided a deposit of $_____ as security for the performance of his/her/its contractual obligations. The contract provided that this deposit would be liquidated damages in the event of a breach of the contract. Defendant has breached the contract, as alleged, entitling Plaintiff to the sum of $_____ as damages.

[ADD, to allege special damages, if appropriate]

9. At the time the parties entered into the contract, _____ [plaintiff told defendant or defendant knew, or had reason to know,] that _____ [specify facts indicating that the special damages suffered were reasonably within the contemplation of the parties at the time of contracting]. As a result of Defendant's breach, as alleged, _____ [specify facts concerning how, and in what amount, special damages were suffered by plaintiff]. Plaintiff therefore is entitled to special damages in the amount of _____

$_____.

[CONTINUE]

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff prays judgment against Defendant as follows:

1. For compensatory damages, in the sum of

$_____;

2. For interest at the _____ [legal rate or specify other rate provided by contract] on the sum of

$_____ from and after
_____ [date];

[ADD, if provided by contract or statute]

3. For reasonable attorney's fees _____ [in the amount of $_____ or according to proof];

[CONTINUE]

4. For costs of suit; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[firm name, if any] _____

By: [signature] _____

[typed name] _____

Attorney for Plaintiff

[ADD verification, if desired]

VERIFICATION

I am the plaintiff in the above entitled action; I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[date] _____

[signature] _____

[typed name] _____

NOTES.

Authority:

CC § 3300; CCP § 425.10

Allegations of Damages:

See 7.08

More Detailed Form for Complaint for Breach of Contract:

See Ch. 22, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawBreachCauses of ActionGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesGeneral Overview

55 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 7 Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions
V. FORMS

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 7.17

7.17 Answer to Complaint for Breach of Contract With Affirmative Defense Based on Plaintiff's Failure to Mitigate Damages.Answer to Complaint for Breach of Contract With Affirmative Defense Based on Plaintiff's Failure to Mitigate Damages.

_____ [Name of attorney]
 _____ [Street address]
 _____ [City, state, and ZIP]
 _____ [Area code and phone number]
 _____ [State Bar no. of attorney]
 Attorney for _____ [name of party]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

[name(s)] _____,	)
Plaintiff(s),	)
vs.	)	No.
[name(s)] _____	)	_____
[and DOES 1 THROUGH	)	_____
_____]	)	ANSWER OF
Defendant(s).	)	_____ [identify defendant, e.g.,
		DEFENDANT MARY JONES] TO COMPLAINT
		OF
		_____ [identify plaintiff, e.g.,
		PLAINTIFF JOHN SMITH]
		[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

Judge:

Department: _____
_____]

[FIRST] AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Failure to mitigate damages)

2. Plaintiff is not entitled to recover damages from Defendant because Plaintiff has failed and refused, and continues to fail and refuse, to make a reasonable effort to mitigate damages.

3. By the exercise of reasonable effort, Plaintiff could have mitigated the amount of damages allegedly suffered by _____ [specify facts, e.g., placing plaintiff's property, which has substantially increased in value since the time of the purported contract for sale to defendant, and selling it to another purchaser for the increased price].

[ADD additional affirmative defenses, if any]

[CONTINUE]

WHEREFORE, Defendant prays as follows:

1. That Plaintiff take nothing by his/her complaint herein;
2. For costs of suit; and
3. For such other and further relief as the court deems proper.

Dated: _____

[firm name, if any] _____

By: [signature] _____

[typed name] _____

Attorney for _____ Attorney for Defendant

[ADD following verification, if applicable]

VERIFICATION

I am the defendant in the above entitled action; I have read the foregoing answer and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[date] _____

[signature] _____

[typed name] _____

NOTES.

Authority:

CCP § 431.30(b)(2); Baruh v. Kuhl (1963) 213 CA2d 266, 273, 28 CR 573

Plaintiff's Obligation to Mitigate Damages:

See 7.15

More Detailed Form for Answer in Response to Complaint for Breach of Contract:

See Ch. 22, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Defenses, Demurrers & Objections Affirmative Defenses General Overview Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Pleadings Answers Contracts Law Breach Causes of Action General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Avoidable Consequences

56 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 7 Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions
V. FORMS

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 7.18

7.18 Memorandum for Party Seeking Damages--General Damages Sufficiently Alleged.

Memorandum for Party Seeking Damages--General Damages Sufficiently Alleged.

[Include the following, if appropriate under the circumstances of the case, in a memorandum by the party seeking damages]

THE COMPLAINT SUFFICIENTLY ALLEGES DAMAGES BECAUSE GENERAL DAMAGES NEED NOT BE ALLEGED IN DETAIL

A. Cause of Action for Breach of Contract Is Stated When Plaintiff Alleges Damages Proximately Caused by Defendant's Breach. To state a cause of action for breach of contract, the plaintiff must allege the existence of a contract, plaintiff's performance or excuse for nonperformance, defendant's breach, and the resulting damages to Plaintiff (Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 442 P2d 377).

B. Nature and Extent of General Damages Need Not Be Alleged. A claim for general damages does not need to allege in detail the nature and extent of the damages (Colvig v. RKO Gen., Inc. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 56, 68-69, 42 Cal. Rptr. 473).

C. Damages Naturally Resulting From Breach May Be Alleged Generally. The natural and ordinary damages resulting from a breach of contract may be recovered under a general allegation of damages without alleging how the damages have arisen (Colvig v. RKO Gen., Inc. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 56, 69, 42 Cal. Rptr. 473).

NOTES.

Allegation of Damages:

See 7.08

Detailed Discussion of Format/Skeletal Forms for Memoranda:

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 417, Points and Authorities (Matthew Bender);
California Points and Authorities, Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs (Matthew Bender)

Additional Memoranda Relating to Contract Damages:

California Points and Authorities, Ch. 50, Contracts; Ch. 65, Damages (Matthew Bender)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Damages General Damages Contracts Law Breach Causes of Action General Overview Contracts
Law Remedies General Overview

57 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 7 Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions
V. FORMS

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 7.19

7.19 Memorandum for Party Seeking Damages--Loss of Profits Recoverable.

Memorandum for Party Seeking Damages--Loss of Profits Recoverable.

[Include the following, if appropriate under the circumstances of the case, in a memorandum by the party seeking damages]

PLAINTIFF IS ENTITLED TO RECOVER THE LOSS OF PROFITS CAUSED BY DEFENDANT'S BREACH

A. Loss of Profits Is Recoverable As General Damages. Loss of profits generally is recoverable without pleading special allegations (Myers v. Stephens (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 104, 121, 43 Cal. Rptr. 420). Loss of profits usually is the direct and natural result of a breach of contract and may fairly be supposed to have entered into the contemplation of the parties when they made the contract (Myers v. Stephens (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 104, 121, 43 Cal. Rptr. 420).

[ADD, if appropriate]

B. Loss of Profits of New Business Is Recoverable. The loss of prospective profits for a new business is recoverable when both the occurrence and extent of the lost profits can be shown with reasonable certainty, such as when the owners have experience in the business they are seeking to establish and the business is in an established market (Resort Video, Ltd. v. Laser Video, Inc. (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 1679, 1698, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 136).

NOTES.

Loss of Profits Recoverable As Element of Damages:

See 7.12[1]

Detailed Discussion of Format/Skeletal Forms for Memoranda:

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 417, Points and Authorities (Matthew Bender);
California Points and Authorities, Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs (Matthew Bender)

Additional Memoranda Relating to Contract Damages:

California Points and Authorities, Ch. 50, Contracts; Ch. 65, Damages (Matthew Bender)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawBreachCauses of ActionGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesForeseeable DamagesLost Profits

58 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 7 Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions
V. FORMS

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 7.20

7.20 Memorandum for Party Seeking Damages--Mental or Emotional Distress Damages Recoverable.

Memorandum for Party Seeking Damages--Mental or Emotional Distress Damages Recoverable.

[Include the following, if appropriate under the circumstances of the case, in a memorandum by the party seeking damages]

PLAINTIFF IS ENTITLED TO RECOVER DAMAGES FOR MENTAL SUFFERING ARISING FROM DEFENDANT'S BREACH OF THE CONTRACT IN THIS CASE

A. Damages for Mental Suffering Are Recoverable When Contract Relates to Comfort, Happiness, or Personal Welfare. When the terms of a contract relate to matters that directly concern the comfort, happiness, or personal welfare of one of the parties, or the subject matter of the contract directly affects or moves the affection, self-esteem, or tender feelings of that party, the Plaintiff may be entitled to recover damages for physical or emotional suffering or illness proximately caused by the breach (Chelini v. Nieri (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 480, 482, 196 P.2d 915).

B. Damages for Mental Suffering Are Recoverable When Foreseeable and Contemplated as Result of Breach. Damages for mental suffering are allowed when it is apparent from the particular subject matter of the contract that mental suffering or emotional distress is a foreseeable and contemplated result of the breach (Rogoff v. Grabowski (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 624, 633, 246 Cal. Rptr. 185).

NOTES.

Damages for Mental Suffering Arising From Breach:

See 7.12[2]

Detailed Discussion of Format/Skeletal Forms for Memoranda:

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 417, Points and Authorities (Matthew Bender); and
California Points and Authorities, Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs (Matthew Bender)

Additional Memoranda Relating to Contract Damages:

California Points and Authorities, Ch. 50, Contracts; Ch. 65, Damages (Matthew Bender)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawBreachCauses of ActionGeneral OverviewContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionElements of ClaimsContracts LawRemediesGeneral Overview

59 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 7 Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions
V. FORMS

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 7.21

7.21 Memorandum for Party Seeking Damages--Plaintiff's Effort to Mitigate Was Reasonable.

Memorandum for Party Seeking Damages--Plaintiff's Effort to Mitigate Was Reasonable.

[Include the following, if appropriate under the circumstances of the case, in a memorandum by the party seeking damages]

PLAINTIFF IS ENTITLED TO RECOVER THE DAMAGES SOUGHT BECAUSE PLAINTIFF MADE A REASONABLE EFFORT TO MITIGATE

A. Recovery Is Not Precluded if Effort to Mitigate Was Reasonable. A plaintiff is not precluded from recovering damages to the extent that he or she has made reasonable efforts to avoid the loss, even though those efforts were unsuccessful (Brandon & Tibbs v. George Kevorkian Accountancy Corp. (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 442, 460, 277 Cal. Rptr. 40).

B. Reasonableness Is Not Judged in Hindsight. Whether a plaintiff has acted reasonably to mitigate damages is determined in light of the situation with which the plaintiff was confronted at the time the loss was threatened, and not by the judgment of hindsight (Green v. Smith (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 392, 396, 67 Cal. Rptr. 796).

C. Defendant Has Burden of Proving Failure to Mitigate. The defendant bears the burden of proving that all or part of the plaintiff's losses were reasonably avoidable (Brandon & Tibbs v. George Kevorkian Accountancy Corp. (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 442, 460, 277 Cal. Rptr. 40).

D. Existence of Other Reasonable Measures Does Not Prove Unreasonableness of Measure Taken. The fact that reasonable measures other than the one taken would have avoided damage is not, in and of itself, proof of the fact that the one taken, though unsuccessful, was unreasonable (Green v. Smith (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 392, 397, 67 Cal. Rptr. 796).

NOTES.

Reasonableness of Effort to Mitigate:

See 7.15[2]

Burden of Proving Failure to Mitigate:

See 7.15[5]

Detailed Discussion of Format/Skeletal Forms for Memoranda:

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 417, Points and Authorities (Matthew Bender); and
California Points and Authorities, Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs (Matthew Bender)

Additional Memoranda Relating to Contract Damages:

California Points and Authorities, Ch. 50, Contracts; Ch. 65, Damages (Matthew Bender)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawBreachCauses of ActionGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesAvoidable Consequences

60 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 7 Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions
V. FORMS

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 7.22

7.22 Memorandum for Party Seeking Damages--Mitigation Not Required Under Circumstances.

Memorandum for Party Seeking Damages--Mitigation Not Required Under Circumstances.

[Include the following, if appropriate under the circumstances of the case, in a memorandum by the party seeking damages]

[EITHER]

PLAINTIFF WAS NOT REQUIRED TO MITIGATE DAMAGES BECAUSE OF HIS/HER RELIANCE ON DEFENDANT'S PROMISES

An Obligation to Mitigate Is Excused by Reliance on Defendant's Promises. A plaintiff's failure to mitigate damages does not bar recovery if the failure to take action is the result of a reasonable belief, induced by the promises or actions of the defendant, that the defendant will perform its obligations at issue or take steps to minimize the plaintiff's damages (Valencia v. Shell Oil Co. (1944) 23 Cal. 2d 840, 844-846, 147 P.2d 558 ; Questo v. Dorado (1955) 136 Cal. App. 2d 332, 335-336, 288 P.2d 529).

[OR]

PLAINTIFF WAS NOT REQUIRED TO MITIGATE DAMAGES AND DEPRIVE HIMSELF/HERSELF OF THE BENEFIT OF SUBSEQUENT CONTRACTS

A. Obligation to Mitigate Does Not Apply to Contracts That Can Performed Contemporaneously. The obligation to mitigate damages does not apply to contracts that do not require all or a great portion of the time of the plaintiff, or that do not preclude plaintiff from undertaking and being engaged contemporaneously in the performance of other contracts (Seaboard Music Co. v. Germano (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 618, 622-623, 101 Cal. Rptr. 255).

B. Obligation to Mitigate Cannot Be Imposed to Deprive Plaintiff of Benefit of Other Contracts. A plaintiff is not required to mitigate damages if the effect would be to require the plaintiff to sacrifice and surrender valuable rights in subsequent contracts that would have been available to the plaintiff irrespective of the breach of the contract at issue (Seaboard Music Co. v. Germano (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 618, 623, 101 Cal. Rptr. 255).

[OR]

PLAINTIFF HAD NO DUTY TO MITIGATE DAMAGES BECAUSE PLAINTIFF'S PERFORMANCE WAS COMPLETE AT THE TIME OF BREACH

Obligation to Mitigate Does Not Apply When Plaintiff Has Fully Performed. The obligation to mitigate does not apply when the plaintiff has fully performed his or her obligations under the contract at the time of the defendant's breach (Capaldi v. Levy (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 274, 282, 81 Cal. Rptr. 629).

[OR]

PLAINTIFF HAD NO DUTY TO MITIGATE BECAUSE MITIGATION WOULD HAVE REQUIRED EXPENDITURES BEYOND PLAINTIFF'S MEANS

Obligation to Mitigate Does Not Require Expenditures Beyond Plaintiff's Means. The duty to minimize damages does not require the plaintiff to do what is unreasonable or impracticable, and consequently, when expenditures are necessary for mitigation of damages, the duty does not run to a person who is financially unable to make those expenditures (Jordan v. Talbot (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 597, 611, 12 Cal. Rptr. 488, 361 P.2d 20).

NOTES.

Circumstances When Mitigation Is Not Required:

See 7.15[4]

Detailed Discussion of Format/Skeletal Forms for Memoranda:

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 417, Points and Authorities (Matthew Bender);

California Points and Authorities, Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs (Matthew Bender)

Additional Memoranda Relating to Contract Damages:

California Points and Authorities, Ch. 50, Contracts; Ch. 65, Damages (Matthew Bender)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawBreachCauses of ActionGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesAvoidable Consequences

61 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 7 Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions
V. FORMS

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 7.23

7.23 Memorandum for Party Contesting Damages--Allegations Insufficient to Recover Special Damages.

Memorandum for Party Contesting Damages--Allegations Insufficient to Recover Special Damages.

[Include the following, if appropriate under the circumstances of the case, in a memorandum by the party contesting damages]

THE COMPLAINT FAILS TO SUFFICIENTLY ALLEGE SPECIAL DAMAGES

A. General Allegation of Damages Is Insufficient. When damages do not necessarily result from the breach of contract, a general allegation of damages is insufficient (Comstock v. Coronet Heating Supply Co. (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 600, 603-604, 245 P.2d 35, 245 P.2d 357).

B. Complaint Must Allege Particular Facts to Recover Special Damages. To recover special damages, the complaint must state the facts concerning those damages with particularity (Shook v. Pearson (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 348, 351-352, 221 P.2d 757).

C. Special Damages Are Recoverable Only If Contemplated by Parties. Plaintiff can recover special damages only if the circumstances regarding those damages were known, or should have been known, to defendant at the time the parties entered into the contract (Brandon & Tibbs v. George Kevorkian Accountancy Corp. (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 442, 455, 277 Cal. Rptr. 40).

D. Failure to Properly Allege Special Damages Constitutes Grounds for Demurrer Under CCP § 430.10(f). When a complaint fails to properly allege the particular facts concerning special damages, the defendant may demur to the complaint on the ground that the pleading is uncertain (Comstock v. Coronet Heating Supply Co. (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 600, 603-604, 245 P.2d 35, 245 P.2d 357).

NOTES.

Recovery of Special Damages:

See 7.04[6]

Alleging Special Damages:

See 7.08[3]

Detailed Discussion of Format/Skeletal Forms for Memoranda:

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 417, Points and Authorities (Matthew Bender);

California Points and Authorities, Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs (Matthew Bender)

Additional Memoranda Relating to Contract Damages:

California Points and Authorities, Ch. 50, Contracts; Ch. 65, Damages (Matthew Bender)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Damages Special Damages Contracts Law Breach Causes of Action General Overview Contracts
Law Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Foreseeable Damages General Overview

62 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 7 Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions
V. FORMS

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 7.24

7.24 Memorandum for Party Contesting Damages--Damages Not Recoverable Because Plaintiff Failed to Mitigate.

Memorandum for Party Contesting Damages--Damages Not Recoverable Because Plaintiff Failed to Mitigate.

[Include the following, if appropriate under the circumstances of the case, in a memorandum by the party contesting damages]

PLAINTIFF IS NOT ENTITLED TO THE RECOVERY SOUGHT BECAUSE HE/SHE FAILED TO MITIGATE DAMAGES

A. Plaintiff Had a Duty to Mitigate Damages. A plaintiff who is injured by a breach of contract must take reasonable steps to mitigate his or her damages (Valle de Oro Bank v. Gamboa (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 1686, 1691, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 329 ; Shaffer v. Debbas (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 33, 41, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 110).

B. Plaintiff Cannot Recover Damages That Were Avoidable. Damages that an injured party could have avoided by making reasonable efforts or expenditures may not be recovered (Valencia v. Shell Oil Co. (1944) 23 Cal. 2d 840, 844, 147 P.2d 558).

NOTES.

Plaintiff's Duty to Mitigate:

See 7.15[1] -[3]

Detailed Discussion of Format/Skeletal Forms for Memoranda:

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 417, Points and Authorities (Matthew Bender);

California Points and Authorities, Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs (Matthew Bender)

Additional Memoranda Relating to Contract Damages:

California Points and Authorities, Ch. 50, Contracts; Ch. 65, Damages (Matthew Bender)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsAffirmative DefensesGeneral OverviewCivil
ProcedureRemediesDamagesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesAvoidable ConsequencesReal Property
LawLandlord & TenantLease AgreementsDamagesMitigationReal Property LawPurchase &
SaleRemediesDamagesDuty to Mitigate

63 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.syn

§ 8.syn Synopsis to Chapter 8: Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions

8.01 Scope.

8.02 Objective and Strategy.

8.03 CHECKLIST: Seeking or Opposing Rescission of Contract.

8.03[1] Determining Whether Contract May Be Rescinded.

8.03[2] Giving Notice and Consent to Rescission.

8.03[3] Seeking Relief Based on Rescission.

8.03[4] Opposing Claim for Rescission.

8.04 Options and Strategies.

8.04[1] Rescission "Unmakes" Contract.

8.04[2] Any Party May Seek Relief Based on Rescission of Contract.

8.04[3] Void Contract May Be Disregarded Without Rescission, but Rescission Action Still May Be Safest Practice.

8.04[4] Plaintiff Can Seek Both Rescission and Damages, but Must Elect One or the Other.

8.04[5] Entire Contract Must Be Rescinded Unless It Is Divisible.

8.04[6] Opposing Party Should Consider Various Defenses to Rescission Action.

8.05 General List of Grounds for Rescinding Contract.

8.06 Both Parties May Rescind Contract by Mutual Consent.

8.06[1] Elements of Claim for Mutual Rescission.

8.06[2] Consent of Parties Is Basis for Mutual Rescission.

8.06[3] Unequivocal Conduct Is Required for Mutual Rescission.

8.06[4] Third Party Beneficiary Contract May Be Mutually Rescinded.

8.06[5] Basic Four-Year or Two-Year Statute of Limitations Apply.

8.07 One Party May Unilaterally Rescind Contract.

8.07[1] Elements of Claim for Unilateral Rescission.

8.07[2] Basic Four-Year or Two-Year Statute of Limitations Apply.

8.07[3] Party May Unilaterally Rescind If Rescinding Party's Consent to Contract Was Given by Mistake or Obtained Through Duress, Menace, Fraud, or Undue Influence.

8.07[4] Party May Unilaterally Rescind for Other Party's Breach.

8.07[5] Party May Unilaterally Rescind If Consideration for Rescinding Party's Obligation Failed or Is Void.

8.07[6] Party May Unilaterally Rescind If Contract Is Unlawful.

8.07[7] Party May Unilaterally Rescind If Public Interest Will Be Damaged by Permitting Contract to Stand.

8.07[8] Party May Unilaterally Rescind If Statute Specifically Allows Rescission.

8.08 Either or Both Parties May Seek Partial Rescission of Contract.

8.09 Effecting Rescission.

8.09[1] Rescinding Party Can Give Notice of Rescission by Informing Other Party of Intent to Rescind or Serving Pleading in Action for Rescission.

8.09[2] Offer of Restoration Is Not Required If Rescinding Party Received Nothing of Value.

8.09[3] Plaintiff's Delay in Providing Prompt Notice May Be Excused.

8.09[4] Plaintiff's Delay in Providing Notice Will Not Bar Relief Unless Delay Is Substantially Prejudicial.

8.10 Pleading Requirements for Complaint Seeking Rescission.

8.10[1] General List of Pleading Requirements.

8.10[2] Complaint Must Set Forth Formation and Relevant Terms of Contract.

8.10[3] Complaint Must Allege Facts Showing Ground for Rescission.

8.10[4] Complaint Must Allege Plaintiff's Performance or Excuse for Nonperformance.

8.10[5] Complaint Must Allege Injury or Harm Suffered by Plaintiff.

8.10[6] Complaint Must Allege That Plaintiff Gave Notice of Rescission or State That Summons and Complaint Are to Serve As Notice.

8.11 Every Party to Contract Must Be Joined in Rescission Action.

8.12 Complaint Must Be Brought Within Applicable Limitations Period.

8.13 Right to Jury Trial for Rescission.

8.14 Relief Available After Rescission.

8.14[1] Parties Have Right to Seek Relief After Rescission.

8.14[2] Plaintiff May Recover Consequential Damages.

8.14[3] Plaintiff May Recover Interest.

8.14[4] Plaintiff May Recover Punitive Damages.

8.14[5] Plaintiff May Recover Attorney's Fees.

8.14[6] Attachment May Be Available to Plaintiff.

8.14[7] Court May Require Plaintiff to Compensate Defendant.

8.15 Opposing Claim for Rescission.

8.16 Defendant Can Assert Affirmative Defenses.

8.16[1] Plaintiff Seeking Rescission Is in Material Default of Performance.

8.16[2] Plaintiff's Knowing Acceptance of Contract Benefits Waives Right to Rescind Contract.

8.16[3] Action Is Barred If Plaintiff Failed to Bring Claim Within Applicable Statute of Limitations.

8.16[4] Plaintiff's Delay in Giving Notice of Rescission or Tendering Restoration Was Prejudicial.

8.16[5] Impossibility Excuses Defendant's Performance.

8.16[6] Rescission Is Unavailable If Third Party's Rights Would Be Harmed.

8.17 Defendant May Be Able to Obtain Setoff Against Plaintiff's Damages.

8.18 CHECKLIST: Seeking or Opposing Reformation of Contract.

8.18[1] Determining Whether Contract Can Be Reformed.

8.18[2] Pleading to Reform Contract.

8.18[3] Opposing Claim for Reformation.

8.19 Options and Strategies.

8.20 Elements of Cause of Action for Reformation.

8.21 Statute of Limitations Is Three Years.

8.22 Only Written Contracts Can Be Reformed.

8.23 Void Contracts Generally Cannot Be Reformed.

8.24 Contract Must Fail to Express Parties' True Intent.

8.24[1] Failure to Express Parties' True Intent Must Be Due to Fraud, Mutual Mistake, or Unilateral Mistake.

8.24[2] Fraud Is Basis for Reformation.

8.24[3] Mutual Mistake Is Basis for Reformation.

8.24[4] Unilateral Mistake Is Basis for Reformation.

8.24[5] Complaint Must Allege Fraud, Mutual Mistake, or Unilateral Mistake.

8.25 All Parties Must Have Complete, Mutual Understanding of All Essential Terms of Contract.

8.26 Complaint Must Allege Plaintiff's Status As Aggrieved Party.

8.27 Complaint Must Allege Parties' True Intent.

8.28 Complaint Must Allege Contract As It Was Written.

8.29 Burden of Proof, Presumptions, and Scope of Inquiry in Reformation of Contract.

8.29[1] Plaintiff Has Burden of Proving Parties' True Intent and That Failure Was Due to Fraud or Mistake.

8.29[2] Court Presumes That Parties Intended to Make Equitable Contract.

8.29[3] Court May Inquire Into Intended Meaning of Contract.

8.30 Party May Seek Specific Performance After Reformation.

8.31 Party May Not Seek Jury Trial for Reformation.

8.32 Opposing Claim for Reformation.

8.32[1] Defendant Can Rebut Essential Elements of Plaintiff's Claim.

8.32[2] Defendant Can Demur or Answer Defects in Complaint.

8.32[3] Defendant Can Assert Affirmative Defenses in Answer.

8.32[3][a] Three-Year Statute of Limitations Is Affirmative Defense.

8.32[3][b] Res Judicata Is Affirmative Defense.

8.32[3][c] Unclean Hands Is Affirmative Defense.

8.32[3][d] Waiver of Right to Reform and Ratification of Contract Are Affirmative Defenses.

8.32[3][e] Laches Is Affirmative Defense.

8.32[3][f] Plaintiff's Negligent Failure to Discover Mistake Is Affirmative Defense.

8.33 CHECKLIST: Seeking or Opposing Specific Performance of Contract.

8.33[1] Determining Whether Specific Performance Is Available.

8.33[2] Pleading Claim for Specific Performance.

8.33[3] Opposing Claim for Specific Performance.

8.34 Options and Strategies.

8.35 Elements of Cause of Action for Specific Performance.

8.36 Either Four-Year or Two-Year Statute of Limitations Applies.

8.37 Plaintiff Must Have No Adequate Remedy at Law.

8.37[1] Specific Performance Is Unavailable When Damages Will Adequately Compensate Plaintiff.

8.37[2] Personal Property Must Be Rare or Unique.

8.37[3] Damages Presumed Inadequate Compensation for Real Property.

8.37[4] Specific Performance of Entire Contract May Be Available If Contract Relates to Both Real and Personal Property.

8.37[5] Complaint Must Allege Facts Showing That Damages Are Inadequate.

8.37[6] Contract Provision for Equitable Remedy Will Be Enforced Unless Adequate Legal Remedy Exists or Contract Is Contrary to Law or Public Policy.

8.38 Contract Must Not Be for Personal Services.

8.39 Specific Performance Cannot Be Used to Compel Performance of Obligation Party Cannot Lawfully Perform.

8.40 Contract Must Not Be Impossible to Perform.

8.41 Contract Must Not Be to Procure Act or Consent of Third Party.

8.42 Obligation Must Be Sufficiently Certain to Be Enforced.

- 8.43 Party Against Whom Specific Performance Is Sought Must Have Received Adequate Consideration.
- 8.44 Contract Must Be Just and Reasonable As to Party Against Whom Specific Performance Is Sought.
- 8.45 Contract Must Not Be Unconscionable.
- 8.46 Defendant's Assent Must Not Have Been Obtained by Misrepresentation, Concealment, Circumvention, or Unfair Practices.
- 8.47 Defendant's Assent Must Not Have Been Given Under Influence of Mistake, Misapprehension, or Surprise.
- 8.48 Plaintiff Must Have Fully Performed Conditions Precedent to Defendant's Performance.
- 8.48[1] Performance of Conditions Precedent Is Required.
- 8.48[2] Complaint Must Allege Plaintiff's Performance or Excuse.
- 8.48[3] Failure to Sign Contract Does Not Bar Specific Performance When Other Party Has Performed.
- 8.49 Contract Must Not Require Succession of Continuous Acts.
- 8.50 Complaint Must Allege Defendant's Failure to Perform.
- 8.51 For Oral Contract Within Statute of Frauds, Complaint Must Allege That Defendant Is Estopped From Relying on Statute of Frauds.
- 8.52 Complaint May Allege Alternative Theories of Recovery.
- 8.53 Plaintiff May Recover Damages Incidental to Specific Performance.
- 8.53[1] Incidental Damages Are Available in Specific Performance Actions.
- 8.53[2] Specific Performance Claim Must First Be Established.
- 8.53[3] Specific Allegation and Prayer for Incidental Damages Is Not Required.
- 8.54 Party Can Seek Specific Performance After Reformation.
- 8.55 Party May Not Seek Jury Trial for Specific Performance.
- 8.56 Plaintiff May Bring Action for Quasi-Specific Performance Against Deceased Person.
- 8.57 Opposing Claim for Specific Performance.
- 8.58 Defendant Can Assert Affirmative Defenses.
- 8.58[1] Specific Performance Is Unavailable If Contract Is for Personal Services.
- 8.58[2] Specific Performance Is Unavailable If Defendant's Assent to Contract Was Obtained by Misrepresentation, Concealment, Circumvention, or Unfair Practices.
- 8.58[3] Specific Performance Is Unavailable If Defendant's Assent to Contract Was Given Under Mistake, Misapprehension, or Surprise.

8.58[4] Specific Performance Is Unavailable If Contract Is for Performance of Unlawful Act.

8.58[5] Specific Performance Is Unavailable If Contract Is Too Uncertain to Enforce.

8.58[6] Specific Performance Is Unavailable If Plaintiff Waived Right to Specific Performance by Accepting Consideration.

8.58[7] Specific Performance Is Unavailable If Contract Is Impossible to Perform.

8.58[8] Specific Performance Is Unavailable If Contract Procures Act of Third Person.

8.58[9] Specific Performance Is Unavailable If Seller's Title in Contract for Real Property Is in Doubt.

8.58[10] Specific Performance Is Unavailable If Contract Requires Succession of Continuous Acts.

8.58[11] Specific Performance Is Unavailable If Claim Was Not Brought Within Applicable Limitations Period.

8.58[12] Specific Performance Is Unavailable If Claim Is Barred by Laches.

8.58[13] Specific Performance Is Unavailable If Plaintiff Has Adequate Remedy at Law.

8.59 CHECKLIST: Seeking or Opposing Injunctions in Contract Actions.

8.59[1] Determining Whether Injunctive Relief Is Available.

8.59[2] Seeking Injunctive Relief.

8.59[3] Opposing Claim for Injunctive Relief.

8.60 Options and Strategies.

8.61 Grounds for Obtaining Permanent Injunction to Prevent Breach of Contract.

8.62 Plaintiff Must Have No Adequate Remedy at Law.

8.63 Injunction to Enforce Personal Services Contract Is Available Only Under Very Limited Circumstances.

8.63[1] Injunctive Relief Generally Is Unavailable to Enforce Personal Service Contracts.

8.63[2] Injunction Is Available When Personal Services Are Extraordinary or Unique.

8.64 Injunction Can Enforce Trust Agreement.

8.65 Injunction Can Enforce Noncompetition Agreement.

8.66 Injunction Can Enforce Nonprofit Cooperative Marketing Contract.

8.67 Requirements to Obtain Permanent Injunction.

8.68 Permanent Injunction Can Be Obtained by Seeking Judgment Granting Desired Relief.

8.69 Jury Trial Is Unavailable.

8.70 Opposing Party Can Contest Existence of Essential Element.

8.71 Defendant Can Raise Affirmative Defenses.

8.71[1] Changed Circumstances Render Injunctive Relief Unnecessary.

8.71[2] Plaintiff's Claim Can Be Barred by Laches.

8.71[3] Injunction Is Unavailable If Plaintiff Has Adequate Remedy at Law.

8.71[4] Injunction Is Unavailable If Not in Public Interest.

8.71[5] Injunction Is Unavailable If Relief Granted Would Be Contrary to Law.

8.71[6] Injunction Is Unavailable If Plaintiff Has Unclean Hands.

8.71[7] Injunctive Relief Is Unavailable If Relief Sought Is Overbroad.

8.71[8] Injunctive Relief Is Unavailable If Contract Cannot Be Specifically Enforced.

8.72 Notice of Rescission of Contract.

Notice of Rescission of Contract.

8.73 Complaint for Relief Based on Rescission of Contract.

Complaint for Relief Based on Rescission of Contract.

8.74 Complaint for Reformation of Contract.

Complaint for Reformation of Contract.

8.75 Complaint for Specific Performance of Contract.

Complaint for Specific Performance of Contract.

8.76 Complaint for Permanent Injunction Enjoining Breach of Personal Services Contract.

Complaint for Permanent Injunction Enjoining Breach of Personal Services Contract.

8.77 Answer to Complaint for Rescission.

Answer to Complaint for Rescission.

8.78 Answer to Complaint for Reformation.

Answer to Complaint for Reformation.

8.79 Answer to Complaint for Specific Performance.

Answer to Complaint for Specific Performance.

8.80 Answer to Complaint for Injunction.

Answer to Complaint for Injunction.

64 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
I. STRATEGY

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.01

8.01 Scope.

This chapter covers:

- Objectives and strategies for seeking or opposing various equitable remedies in contract actions, including rescission, reformation, specific performance, injunctions [see 8.02].
- Procedures and considerations in seeking or opposing rescission of a contract [see 8.03 -8.17].
- Procedures and considerations in seeking or opposing reformation of a contract [see 8.18 -8.32].
- Procedures and considerations in seeking or opposing specific performance of a contract [see 8.33 -8.58].
- Procedures and considerations in seeking or opposing injunctive relief in a contract action [see 8.59 -8.71].
- Forms for use in all of these actions [see 8.72 -8.80].

Core Statutes:

CC §§ 1688-1693, 3399-3402, 3384-3395, 3420-3423; CCP § 525 et seq.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Injunctive Relief Contracts Law Remedies Reformation Contracts Law Remedies Rescission & Redhibition General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Specific Performance

65 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions

I. STRATEGY

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.02

8.02 Objective and Strategy.

To ensure that a party obtains all relief available in a contract, the aggrieved party must consider equitable remedies in addition to legal remedies. In contract actions, courts have broad equitable power to fashion appropriate remedies [Zarrah v. Zarrah (1988) 205 CA3d 1, 4-5, 252 CR 20]. Equitable remedies may be sought alone, in conjunction with other equitable remedies, or in conjunction with legal remedies.

The remedy of rescission extinguishes a contract as if it never existed [Asmus v. Pacific Bell (2000) 23 C4th 1, 6 n1, 96 CR2d 179, 999 P2d 71 ; see CC § 1688 ("a contract is extinguished by its rescission")]. The purpose of rescission is to restore both parties to their pre-contract positions as far as possible [Gardiner Solder Co. v. Supalloy Corp. (1991) 232 CA3d 1537, 1544, 284 CR 206 ; see 8.03 et seq.].

The remedy of reformation is used to reframe a written instrument to accurately express the parties' true agreement when, through fraud, mutual mistake, or certain types of unilateral mistake, the writing does not embody their agreement [CC § 3399; Bailard v. Marden (1951) 36 C2d 703, 708, 227 P2d 10]. The purpose of reformation is to make a written agreement fully express the intention of the parties [American Home Ins. Co. v. Travelers Indem. Co. (1981) 122 CA3d 951, 963, 175 CR 826 ; see 8.18 et seq.].

The remedy of specific performance is used to procure the promised performance of a contract by a party who has failed or refused to perform, when there is no adequate remedy at law [CC §§ 3384-3395; Schaefer v. United Bank & Trust Co. (1930) 104 CA 635, 641, 286 P 723 ; Patterson v. Reddish (1922) 56 CA 197, 202, 204 P 565 ; see 8.33 et seq.].

An injunction is a writ or order requiring a person to refrain from doing a particular act [CCP § 525; Long Beach Drug Co. v. United Drug Co. (1939) 13 C2d 158, 170-171, 88 P2d 698] . Injunctions can be preliminary or permanent. Injunctions normally are not granted in advance to prevent breaches of contract. However, they are granted in limited circumstances to prevent the breach of a contract that would be specifically enforceable [CC § 3423(e); Steinmeyer v. Warner Consol. Corp. (1974) 42 CA3d 515, 519, 116 CR 57 ; see 8.59 et seq.].

A jury trial generally is not available in an action seeking equitable remedies [Porter v. Superior Court (1977) 73 CA3d 793, 798-801, 141 CR 59] . This includes actions under the Unfair Competition Law (UCL) [B&P Code § 17200 et seq.], because that law provides an equitable cause of action. Thus, there is no right to a jury trial in a UCL action, even if contract issues are implicated [Hodge v. Superior Court (2006) 145 CA4th 278, 284-285, 51 CR3d 519] .

However, when legal and equitable issues are joined in the same action, the parties may demand a jury trial on the legal issues [Abbott v. City of Los Angeles (1958) 50 C2d 438, 462, 326 P2d 484 ; see also Runyan v. Pacific Air Indus., Inc. (1970) 2 C3d 304, 312-313, 85 CR 138, 466 P2d 682 (right to jury trial is determined by nature of substantive relief requested)].

Strategic Point:

Judges will sometimes allow advisory juries when the equitable claims require broad factual determinations [see, e.g., Saret-Cook v. Gilbert, Kelly, Crowley & Jennett (1999) 74 CA4th 1211, 1227, 88 CR2d 732].

Cross References:

See Ch. 2, Determining What Causes of Action Exist;

Ch. 6, Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions;

Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions;

Ch. 9, Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions;

Ch. 10, Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions;

Ch. 11, Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters;

Ch. 12, Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation;

Ch. 13, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element;

Ch. 14, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Lack of Capacity;

Ch. 15, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Failure to Comply With Applicable Formalities;

Ch. 16, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Mistake;

Ch. 17, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Fraud, Duress, Menace, and Undue Influence;

Ch. 18, Asserting or Defending Claim That Contract Is Illegal, Contrary to Public Policy, or Unconscionable; and

Ch. 22, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract.

For Tips on updating case law and expanding your research with additional resources, see How to Use Lexis.com With This Publication at the front of this volume.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Reformation Contracts Law Remedies Rescission & Redhibition General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Specific Performance

66 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING OR OPPOSING RESCISSION OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.03

8.03 CHECKLIST: Seeking or Opposing Rescission of Contract.

8.03[1] Determining Whether Contract May Be Rescinded.

- ☐ Determine whether all parties to contract will mutually consent to rescission.

Authority:

CC § 1689(a)

Discussion:

See 8.06

- ☐ If only one party wants to unilaterally rescind contract, determine if any of following grounds for unilateral rescission exist:

Authority:

CC § 1689(b)

Discussion:

See 8.07

- ☐ Was either or both parties' consent to contract the result of mistake?

Authority:

CC § 1689(b)(1)

Discussion:

See 8.07[3]

- ☐ Was consent to contract by party seeking rescission obtained through duress, menace, fraud, or undue influence?

Authority:

CC § 1689(b)(1)

Discussion:

See 8.07[3]

- ☐ Did party not seeking rescission breach any of its obligations under contract?

Authority:

CC § 1689(b)(2)

Discussion:

See 8.07[4]

- ☐ Was there a there was a failure of consideration for obligation of party seeking rescission?

Authority:

CC § 1689(b)(2)-(4)

Discussion:

See 8.07[5]

- ☐ Was consideration for rescinding party's obligation entirely void?

Authority:

CC § 1689(b)(3)

Discussion:

See 8.07[5]

- ☐ Did consideration for rescinding party's obligation fail in a material respect?

Authority:

CC § 1689(b)(4)

Discussion:

See 8.07[5]

- ☐ Is contract unlawful for causes that do not appear in contract itself?

Authority:

CC § 1689(b)(5)

Discussion:

See 8.07[6]

- ☐ Would public interest will be prejudiced by permitting contract to stand?

Authority:*CC § 1689(b)(6)Discussion:

See 8.07[7]

- ☐ Is rescission is permitted by statute?

Authority:*CC § 1689(b)(7)Discussion:

See 8.07[8]

- ☐ Determine whether partial rescission is appropriate or possible.

Authority:*Simmons v. California Inst. of Tech. (1949) 34 C2d 264, 275, 209 P2d 581Discussion:

See 8.08

8.03[2] Giving Notice and Consent to Rescission.

- ☐ If issue exists as to whether mutual rescission occurred, verify that all parties to contract clearly and unequivocally agreed to rescind it.

Authority:*CC § 1689(a)Discussion:

See 8.06

- ☐ Determine whether party seeking unilateral rescission promptly notified other parties of intent to rescind.

- ☐ If not, attorney representing party seeking rescission should advise party to give such notice immediately by either:

- ☐ Informing other parties of intent to rescind; or

- ☐ Serving other parties with a pleading in an action for rescission.

Authority:*CC § 1691(a)Discussion:

See 8.09

Form:

See 8.72

- ☐ Determine whether party seeking unilateral rescission has restored all consideration received under contract.

☐ If not, attorney representing party seeking rescission should advise party to restore all consideration immediately.

Authority: CC § 1691(b)

Discussion:

See 8.09

8.03[3] Seeking Relief Based on Rescission.

- ☐ Allege all of following in complaint:

☐ Relevant terms of contract.

Authority:*CC §§ 1688-1692Discussion:

See 8.10[2]

Form:

See 8.73

- ☐ Facts showing existence of a ground for rescission.

Authority:*CC §§ 1688-1692Discussion:

See 8.10[3]

Form:

See 8.73

- ☐ Plaintiff's performance or excuse for nonperformance.

Authority:*Consolidated Concessions Co. v. McConnell (1919) 40 CA 443, 444-445, 180 P 842Discussion:

See 8.10[4]

Form:

See 8.73

- ☐ Injury or harm suffered by plaintiff.

Authority:*Guthrie v. Times-Mirror Co. (1975) 51 CA3d 879, 886, 124 CR 577Discussion:

See 8.10[5]

Form:

See 8.73

- ☐ One or more of following allegations, as appropriate:

☐ Allegation that plaintiff gave notice of rescission and offered to restore consideration received;

☐ Facts showing that restoration is not necessary; or

☐ Statement that service of summons and complaint is to serve as notice of rescission and offer of restoration.

Authority:*CC § 1691Discussion:

See 8.10[6]

Form:

See 8.73

- ☐ Relief based on rescission that plaintiff seeks to obtain.

Authority:*CC § 1692Discussion:

See 8.14

Form:

See 8.73

- ☐ Ensure that all required contracting parties are joined in action.

Authority:Hartman Ranch Co. v. Associated Oil Co. (1937) 10 C2d 232, 262-265, 73 P2d 1163

Discussion:

See 8.11

- ☐ Bring claim within time permitted by applicable statute of limitations.

Authority:

CCP § 337

Discussion:

See 8.12

8.03[4] Opposing Claim for Rescission.

- ☐ Analyze complaint to determine appropriate response.

Authority:

CCP § 430.10

Discussion:

See 8.15

- ☐ Rebut any essential elements of plaintiff's claim if possible.

Authority:

CCP § 430.30

Discussion:

See 8.15

Form:

See 8.77

- ☐ Plead any appropriate affirmative defenses, such as:

Authority:

CCP § 430.30

Discussion:

See 8.16

Form:

See 8.77

- ☐ Plaintiff is in material default of performance.

Authority:

Nelson v. Spence (1960) 182 CA2d 493, 499, 6 CR 312

Discussion:

See 8.16[1]

- ☐ Plaintiff has waived right to rescind.

Authority:

Whitney Inv. Co. v. Westview Dev. Co. (1969) 273 CA2d 594, 603, 78 CR 302

Discussion:

See 8.16[2]

- ☐ Claim was not brought within applicable limitations period.

Authority:

CCP § 337(3); Miller v. Bechtel Corp. (1983) 33 C3d 868, 873, 191 CR 619, 663 P2d 177

Discussion:

See 8.16[3]

- ☐ Plaintiff delayed giving notice of rescission and delay was substantially prejudicial.

Authority:

CC § 1693

Discussion:

See 8.16[4]

- ☐ It is impossible for defendant to perform under contract.

Authority:

Calabrese v. Rexall Drug & Chem. Co. (1963) 218 CA2d 774, 784, 32 CR 665

Discussion:

See 8.16[5]

- ☐ Rescission would harm an innocent third party's rights.

Authority:

Gill v. Rich (2005) 128 CA4th 1254, 1265

Discussion:

See 8.16[6]

- ☐ Determine whether defendant might be able to obtain a setoff in event that plaintiff prevails on rescission claim.

Authority: CC § 1692

Discussion:

See 8.17; see 8.14[7]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC) Sales (Article 2) Form, Formation & Readjustment Modification, Rescission & Waiver Contracts
Law Remedies Rescission & Redhibition General Overview Real Property Law Purchase & Sale Remedies Rescission &
Restitution

67 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING OR OPPOSING RESCISSION OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.04

8.04 Options and Strategies.

8.04[1] Rescission "Unmakes" Contract. Rescission of a contract is a statutory process that extinguishes a contract as if it never existed [Asmus v. Pacific Bell (2000) 23 C4th 1, 6 n1, 96 CR2d 179, 999 P2d 71 ; see CC § 1688]. It is tantamount to "unmaking" the contract [People ex rel. Kennedy v. Beaumont Inv., Ltd. (2003) 111 CA4th 102, 133], as if it were void from the outset [see PWS, Inc. v. Ban (1991) 234 CA3d 223, 228, 285 CR 598]. Rescission is intended to restore both parties to their pre-contract position as much as possible [Gardiner Solder Co. v. Supalloy Corp. (1991) 232 CA3d 1537, 1544, 284 CR 206 ; Fireman's Fund Am. Ins. Co. v. Escobedo (1978) 80 CA3d 610, 619, 145 CR 785].

Rescission is effected by the parties' mutual consent, or by one party unilaterally as prescribed by CC § 1689 [Asmus v. Pacific Bell (2000) 23 C4th 1, 12, 96 CR2d 179, 999 P2d 71].

8.04[2] Any Party May Seek Relief Based on Rescission of Contract. Once a contract has been rescinded (either by the mutual consent of the parties or unilaterally by one party), any party to the contract may seek relief based on the rescission [CC § 1692; see 8.14].

8.04[3] Void Contract May Be Disregarded Without Rescission, but Rescission Action Still May Be Safest Practice. If a contract is void, it may be disregarded without the necessity of rescission, and a party can seek relief on other theories of recovery [Ford v. Shearson Lehman Am. Express, Inc. (1986) 180 CA3d 1011, 1015, 1028, 225 CR 895].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

Even if a party believes a contract to be void, it may be the better practice to include a cause of action for rescission, along with other theories of recovery, to be safe.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of void and voidable contracts, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts (Matthew Bender).

8.04[4] Plaintiff Can Seek Both Rescission and Damages, but Must Elect One or the Other. Bringing a claim for contract damages is not inconsistent with a claim for relief based on rescission. An aggrieved party is entitled to complete relief, including restitution of any benefits conferred as a result of the transaction, and appropriate consequential damages [CC § 1692].

Duplicate recovery or inconsistent items of recovery are not permitted, however [CC § 1692]. Because an action for damages is based on affirmance of a contract (whereas rescission is based on the disaffirmance of a contract), the plaintiff cannot have it both ways, and damages cannot be recovered if a contract is rescinded [Sharabianlou v. Karp (2010) 181 CA4th 1133, 1146, 105 CR3d 300 (trial court erred in awarding "benefit of the bargain" damages in rescission action); Akin v. Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's London (2006) 140 CA4th 291, 296, 44 CR3d 284]. Therefore, a party may plead both a claim for damages and a claim for rescission, and if the court determines that the contract cannot be rescinded, the court can award other relief, including damages [CC § 1692; Walters v. Marler (1978) 83 CA3d 1, 16, 147 CR 655]. The plaintiff is not required to elect remedies in advance unless prejudice to the other party will otherwise result [Warfield v. Richey (1959) 167 CA2d 93, 99, 334 P2d 101]. Thus, the plaintiff is not required to make an election of remedies before the case is submitted to the jury, but if the plaintiff thereafter makes an election in favor of rescission, items of damages that are "duplicate" of recovery will be stricken [see Jahn v. Brickey (1985) 168 CA3d 399, 406, 214 CR 119].

Cross Reference:

See Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions.

8.04[5] Entire Contract Must Be Rescinded Unless It Is Divisible. A party generally must rescind the entire contract [IMO Dev. Corp. v. Dow Corning Corp. (1982) 135 CA3d 451, 458, 185 CR 341], but partial rescission is possible if the contract is divisible [Merced County Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. State of California (1991) 233 CA3d 765, 775-776, 284 CR 680].

8.04[6] Opposing Party Should Consider Various Defenses to Rescission Action. A party opposing rescission should consider the potential applicability of a variety of defenses, including the defenses that the other party:

- Is in material default under the contract;
- Waived the right to rescind;
- Did not bring the action within the applicable limitations period;
- Delayed in giving notice;
- Did not properly elect remedies; or
- Is subject to any of the other defenses that are potentially available in equitable actions, such as unclean hands, laches, and the like.

In addition, the party opposing rescission may assert that rescission is precluded, that impossibility of performance is a bar, or that the party seeking rescission has not complied with proper procedure [see 8.16, 8.17].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)Form, Formation & ReadjustmentModification, Rescission & WaiverContracts LawRemediesRescission & RedhibitionGeneral OverviewReal Property LawPurchase & SaleRemediesRescission &

Restitution

68 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING OR OPPOSING RESCISSION OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.05

8.05 General List of Grounds for Rescinding Contract.

Grounds for rescission include the following:

- The parties can mutually rescind if all parties consent to rescission [CC § 1689(a); see 8.06].
- One party may unilaterally rescind if any of the following applies [CC § 1689(b)]:
 - ☐ The rescinding party's consent to the contract was given by mistake or obtained through duress, menace, fraud, or undue influence [see 8.07[3]].
 - ☐ Consideration for the rescinding party's obligation failed, in whole or in part, through the fault of the other party [see 8.07[5]].
 - ☐ Consideration for the rescinding party's obligation is void [see 8.07[5]].
 - ☐ Consideration for the rescinding party's obligation failed in a material respect before it was rendered [see 8.07[5]].
 - ☐ The contract is unlawful for reasons that do not appear in the contract, and the parties are not equally at fault [see 8.07[6]].
 - ☐ It is contrary to the public interest to permit the contract to stand [see 8.07[7]].
 - ☐ Statutory conditions are met [see 8.07[8]].

Jury Instructions:

Rescission, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3G, Instr. MB 300G.01 (Matthew Bender).

Distinguish--Abandonment Versus Rescission:

Abandonment of duties under a contract by one party is likely to be a breach of the contract, while a mutual abandonment by both parties effectively amounts to mutual rescission of the contract [C. Norman Peterson Co. v. Container Corp. of Am. (1985) 172 CA3d 628, 640-644, 218 CR 592 ; see 8.06].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)Form, Formation & ReadjustmentModification, Rescission & WaiverContracts
LawRemediesRescission & RedhibitionGeneral OverviewReal Property LawPurchase & SaleRemediesRescission &
Restitution

69 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING OR OPPOSING RESCISSION OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.06

8.06 Both Parties May Rescind Contract by Mutual Consent.

8.06[1] Elements of Claim for Mutual Rescission. The formalities required for mutual rescission of a contract are the same as those required for formation of a contract [Harriman v. Tetik (1961) 56 C2d 805, 810, 17 CR 134, 366 P2d 486] :

- A meeting of the minds;
- An offer;
- Acceptance of the offer; and
- Consideration.

The mutual promises to waive rights under the contract to be rescinded are consideration for the rescission [Schertzinger v. Williams (1961) 198 CA2d 242, 246, 17 CR 719] .

Consider:

Since mutual rescission, by definition, involves the consent of both parties, normally it is accomplished without resort to litigation. If all parties want to abrogate the contract, there is no need for anyone to ask a court to intervene. The problems in this area more often arise when a question is raised after the fact as to whether mutual rescission actually occurred--in other words, whether or not the parties had actually intended to and did abrogate the contract. For example, one party may sue another for breach of contract, and the other, believing that the contract had been mutually rescinded and that performance was no longer required, may be compelled to raise prior mutual rescission as a defense. The best defense to this kind of problem is clarity. At the time of the rescission, the parties should clearly and unequivocally indicate in writing their intent to rescind the contract, just as they should have been clear and unequivocal in the original contract itself. It is hard to dispute the status of the contract if a written agreement expressly rescinding it exists (unless of course the rescinding agreement itself is subject to attack). Conversely, if a party refuses to execute a written rescission agreement, the other party will at least be put on notice of that party's resistance to rescission, and is less likely to be misled into suspending performance under the contract in the mistaken belief that rescission had occurred.

 Cross References:

See Ch. 13, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element.

Form for written agreement to rescind contract by mutual consent, see California Legal Forms, § 77.330 (Matthew Bender).

Unless the contract being rescinded is for the sale of goods governed by UCC Division 2 and provides that it can only be rescinded in writing, an oral agreement to rescind is sufficient [Sass v. Hank (1951) 108 CA2d 207, 215, 238 P2d 652].

 Cross References:

See Ch. 26, Contract for Sale of Goods--Seeking Remedies Under California Commercial Code.

See also Ch. 27, Contract for Sale of Goods--Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract Under California Commercial Code.

An oral agreement to rescind a written contract is sufficient even if the underlying contract is within the statute of frauds [Hastings v. Matlock (1985) 171 CA3d 826, 837, 217 CR 856].

Warning:

Although an oral agreement may be legally sufficient, it is more likely to be a source of misunderstanding among the parties, and can be much harder to prove if problems arise after the fact. Written agreements are far better.

Strategic Point--Both Parties:

An oral agreement for mutual rescission may be specifically enforced [see Hastings v. Matlock (1985) 171 CA3d 826, 840-842, 217 CR 856].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of seeking or opposing specific performance of a contract, see 8.33 et seq.

A mutual rescission need not be express, but the intent to mutually rescind may be implied from the conduct of the parties [Unger v. Isaacs (1954) 123 CA2d 533, 535, 266 P2d 869]. The intent of the parties is determined by the facts and circumstances of the particular case.

Example:

If the parties negotiate a new and different contract concerning the same subject matter as the original agreement, an intent to mutually rescind the original contract can be implied by that conduct [Busch v. Globe Indus. (1962) 200 CA2d 315, 320, 19 CR 441 ; Honda v. Reed (1958) 156 CA2d 536, 539, 319 P2d 728].

8.06[2] Consent of Parties Is Basis for Mutual Rescission. A contract may be rescinded if all the parties consent to the rescission [CC § 1689(a)]. After a mutual rescission, either party may seek relief based on the rescission [see, e.g., Luna Records Corp. v. Alvarado (1991) 232 CA3d 1023, 1026, 283 CR 865], such as by an action to recover money or property owed to by the other party as a consequence of the rescission [CC § 1692; see Alder v. Drudis (1947) 30 C2d 372, 384-385, 182 P2d 195 (recovery of specific property)].

 Cross Reference:

Relief available after rescission, see 8.14.

Jury Instructions:

Rescission by Consent, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3G, Instr. MB 300G.02 (Matthew Bender).

Strategic Point--Both Parties:

If the parties mutually rescind the contract, the statute of limitations for an action seeking relief based on the rescission begins to run on the date of the rescission [see Luna Records Corp. v. Alvarado (1991) 232 CA3d 1023, 1026, 283 CR 865] .

 Cross Reference:

Statute of limitations in rescission actions, see 8.12.

8.06[3] Unequivocal Conduct Is Required for Mutual Rescission. The conduct of the parties relied on to establish mutual rescission must be positive, unequivocal, and inconsistent with the continued assertion of rights under the contract [Pennel v. Pond Union Sch. Dist. (1973) 29 CA3d 832, 838, 105 CR 817] .

Example:

Conduct equally consistent with illness, as claimed by one party, will not establish an intent to rescind or abandon the contract [Pennel v. Pond Union Sch. Dist. (1973) 29 CA3d 832, 838, 105 CR 817 ; Ross v. Tabor (1921) 53 CA 605, 615, 200 P 971].

 Cross Reference:

See California Points and Authorities, § 50.470 (Matthew Bender).

8.06[4] Third Party Beneficiary Contract May Be Mutually Rescinded. Absent estoppel, the parties to a third-party beneficiary contract may rescind the agreement at any time before commencement of an action by the third party [CC § 1559; R.J. Cardinal Co. v. Ritchie (1963) 218 CA2d 124, 136, 32 CR 545] .

Distinguish:

A third party beneficiary has the right to enforce a contract, but not to rescind it [Schauer v. Mandarin Gems of Cal., Inc. (2005) 125 CA4th 949, 959-960].

Jury Instructions:

Rescission of Third Party Beneficiary Contract, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3G, Instr. MB 300G.04 (Matthew Bender).

Rescission Based on Improper Conduct of Third Party, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3G, Instr. MB 300G.06 (Matthew Bender).

Estoppel to Rescind Third Party Beneficiary Contract, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3F, Instr. MB 300F.28 (Matthew Bender).

 Cross Reference:

See Ch. 19, Seeking or Opposing Recovery As Third Party Beneficiary of Contract.

8.06[5] Basic Four-Year or Two-Year Statute of Limitations Apply. An action based on the rescission of a contract in writing is subject to the four-year statute of limitations [CCP § 337(3)]. An action based on the rescission of an oral contract is subject to the two-year statute of limitations [CCP § 339(3)].

Cross Reference:

Detailed discussion of applicable statutes of limitation in contract actions, see 8.12.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)Form, Formation & ReadjustmentModification, Rescission & WaiverContracts
LawRemediesRescission & RedhibitionGeneral OverviewReal Property LawPurchase & SaleRemediesRescission &
Restitution

70 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING OR OPPOSING RESCISSION OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.07

8.07 One Party May Unilaterally Rescind Contract.

8.07[1] Elements of Claim for Unilateral Rescission. To establish a claim for unilateral rescission, the plaintiff must show all of the following [see Guthrie v. Times-Mirror Co. (1975) 51 CA3d 879, 883-886, 124 CR 577] :

- Formation of the contract.
- The ground for rescission [see 8.07[3] -[8]].
- The plaintiff's performance or excuse for nonperformance.
- The defendant's nonperformance.
- The plaintiff's discovery of the basis for rescission.
- The injury or harm suffered by the plaintiff.
- Proper notice of rescission and an offer of restoration.

8.07[2] Basic Four-Year or Two-Year Statute of Limitations Apply. An action based on the rescission of a contract in writing is subject to the four-year statute of limitations [CCP § 337(3)]. An action based on the rescission of an oral contract is subject to the two-year statute of limitations [CCP § 339(3)].

Cross Reference:

Detailed discussion of applicable statutes of limitation in contract actions, see 8.12.

8.07[3] Party May Unilaterally Rescind If Rescinding Party's Consent to Contract Was Given by Mistake or Obtained Through Duress, Menace, Fraud, or Undue Influence. A party may unilaterally rescind a contract if the consent of rescinding party was [CC § 1689(b)(1)]:

- Given by mistake; or

- Obtained through duress, menace, fraud, or undue influence.

Jury Instructions:

Improperly Obtained Consent, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3G, Instr. MB 300G.05 (Matthew Bender).

Jury instructions relating to mistake, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3G, Instrs. MB 300G.20 -MB 300G.28 (Matthew Bender).

Cross References:

See Ch. 16, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Mistake.

See also Ch. 17, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Fraud, Duress, Menace, and Undue Influence.

8.07[4] Party May Unilaterally Rescind for Other Party's Breach. A contract may be rescinded if the other party fails to perform its obligations under the contract, such as by failing to provide the agreed consideration, whether the performance of some task, or payment of money [CC § 1689(b)(2); Wylar v. Feuer (1978) 85 CA3d 392, 403-404, 149 CR 626].

Example:

Wife was not entitled to rescind postmarital agreement based on purported anticipatory breach by husband because wife previously had repudiated the agreement, excusing any further performance by the husband [In re Marriage of Burkle (2006) 139 CA4th 712, 749-751, 43 CR3d 181] .

Jury Instructions:

Rescission for Breach, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3G, Instr. MB 300G.08 (Matthew Bender).

8.07[5] Party May Unilaterally Rescind If Consideration for Rescinding Party's Obligation Failed or Is Void. A party may unilaterally rescind a contract in any of the following circumstances [CC § 1689(b)(2)-(4)]:

- Consideration for the rescinding party's obligation failed, in whole or in part, through the fault of the other party.
- Consideration for the rescinding party's obligation is entirely void.
- Consideration for the rescinding party's obligation failed in a material respect before it was rendered.

Jury Instructions:

Material Failure of Consideration, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3G, Instr. MB 300G.07 (Matthew Bender).

8.07[6] Party May Unilaterally Rescind If Contract Is Unlawful. A party may unilaterally rescind a contract if the contract is unlawful for causes that do not appear in the contract and the parties are not equally at fault [CC § 1689(b)(5)]. A contract is unlawful if its consideration or object is any of the following [CC § 1667]:

- Contrary to an express provision of law.
- Contrary to the policy of express law.

- Otherwise contrary to good morals.

Example:

A corporation that was involved in an illegal stock purchase could not rescind the purchase agreement [Tiedje v. Aluminum Taper Milling Co. (1956) 46 C2d 450, 453-454, 296 P2d 554] .

Judge's Perspective:

Just because one party to an illegal contract may not rescind it does not mean that the courts will require performance. Rather, the purpose of the rule is to ensure that neither party can seek the assistance of the court in connection with the illegal contract: the promisee cannot enforce it, and the promisor cannot seek rescission. "Ordinarily, a party to an illegal contract can neither recover damages for breach nor, by rescinding, recover the performance that he has rendered or its value" [Tiedje v. Aluminum Taper Milling Co. (1956) 46 C2d 450, 453, 296 P2d 554] . However, this rule is subject to exceptions, the primary of which is that if one party is ignorant of the facts giving rise to the illegality and the other party is not, the first party may seek rescission against the second [Tiedje v. Aluminum Taper Milling Co. (1956) 46 C2d 450, 454, 296 P2d 554 (citing Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 599(a))].

 Cross Reference:

See Ch. 18, Asserting or Defending Claim That Contract Is Illegal, Contrary to Public Policy, or Unconscionable.

8.07[7] Party May Unilaterally Rescind If Public Interest Will Be Damaged by Permitting Contract to Stand. A party may unilaterally rescind a contract if the public interest will be prejudiced by letting the contract stand [CC § 1689(b)(6)].

 Cross Reference:

See Ch. 18, Asserting or Defending Claim That Contract Is Illegal, Contrary to Public Policy, or Unconscionable.

8.07[8] Party May Unilaterally Rescind If Statute Specifically Allows Rescission. A party may unilaterally rescind a contract if a statute specifically provides for rescission [CC § 1689(b)(7); see CC §§ 39, 1533, 1566, 1785, 1789, 1930, 2314; Corp Code § 2470; Ins Code §§ 331, 338, 359, 447, 1904, 2030].

Many specific types of contracts, most relating to consumer transactions, provide for cancellation by the consumer within a specified period [see CC §§ 1689.2-1689.24, 2945.2; see, e.g., CC § 1689.6 (right to cancel home solicitation contract or offer within three days of signing)].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of types of consumer contracts subject to rescission, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 127, Consumer Contracts and Loans (Matthew Bender); or California Legal Forms, § 77.22.

An insurance company may rescind a contract of insurance for a variety of improper acts by the insured, including concealment and fraudulent omissions [Ins Code § 650; see Ins Code § 330 et seq.; O'Riordan v. Federal Kemper Life Assurance (2005) 36 C4th 281, 286-287 (disputed material fact as to whether in her application for life insurance policy, insured concealed her past smoking in order to obtain nonsmoker rate, entitling insurer to rescind policy)]. Even a negligent or unintentional misrepresentation by an insured permits an insurer to rescind an insurance policy [Ins Code § 331; Mitchell v. United National Ins. Co. (2005) 127 CA4th 457, 473].

Exception:

An insurance company waives disclosure of material facts in an application when the facts are distinctly implied by other information communicated to it and the company fails to make inquiries as to such facts [Ins Code § 336; West Coast Life Ins. Co. v. Ward (2005) 132 CA4th 181, 192, 33 CR3d 319] .

Jury Instructions:

Rescission for Misrepresentation or Concealment in Insurance Application--Essential Factual Elements, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 2308 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Cross Reference:

Grounds for rescission of insurance contract, see California Insurance Law and Practice, Ch. 8, The Insurance Contract.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)Form, Formation & ReadjustmentModification, Rescission & WaiverCommercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesStatutes of LimitationsTime LimitationsContracts LawRemediesRescission & RedhibitionGeneral OverviewReal Property LawPurchase & SaleRemediesRescission & Restitution

71 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING OR OPPOSING RESCISSION OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.08

8.08 Either or Both Parties May Seek Partial Rescission of Contract.

One or both of the parties may seek partial rescission on proper grounds if a contract is severable or divisible. This is commonly shown by consideration that is apportioned [Simmons v. California Inst. of Tech. (1949) 34 C2d 264, 275, 209 P2d 581] . If the contract is entire and not severable, partial rescission is not available [IMO Dev. Corp. v. Dow Corning Corp. (1982) 135 CA3d 451, 458-459, 185 CR 341 ; see Habitat Trust for Wildlife, Inc. v. City of Rancho Cucamonga (2009) 175 CA4th 1306, 1344, 96 CR3d 813 (savings clause was of no effect after rescission because entire contract was extinguished)].

Example:

A construction contract that covered two buildings with separate payments for each building was divisible because the consideration was apportioned. A severable part of the contract could be rescinded while the rest of the contract remained operable [Simmons v. California Inst. of Tech. (1949) 34 C2d 264, 275, 209 P2d 581] .

Distinguish:

A court has the equitable power to set aside a release in a contract induced by fraud. This is different from partial rescission, and a party fraudulently induced to execute a contract containing a release is not required to rescind the contract and return consideration received in order to pursue a fraud claim [Persson v. Smart Inventions, Inc. (2005) 125 CA4th 1141, 1152-1156, 23 CR3d 335].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)Form, Formation & ReadjustmentModification, Rescission & WaiverContracts
LawRemediesRescission & RedhibitionGeneral OverviewReal Property LawPurchase & SaleRemediesRescission &
Restitution

72 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING OR OPPOSING RESCISSION OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.09

8.09 Effecting Rescission.

8.09[1] Rescinding Party Can Give Notice of Rescission by Informing Other Party of Intent to Rescind or Serving Pleading in Action for Rescission. On discovering facts that provide the ground or grounds for rescission, a party seeking to unilaterally rescind a contract must [CC § 1691(a), (b)].

- Promptly give notice to the other contracting party or parties of the intent to rescind; and
- Restore or offer to restore, to its original owner, all consideration received under the contract to the date of rescission, or offer to restore the same on condition that the other party do likewise, unless the latter is unable or refuses to do so.

When notice of rescission has not otherwise been given, or an offer to restore the benefits received under the contract has not otherwise been made, the service of a pleading in an action that seeks relief based on rescission is deemed to be notice or offer or both [CC § 1691]. A pleading seeking relief based upon rescission must allege facts demonstrating a rescission has been effected—not merely facts that, if proved correct, would establish a legal basis to elect a rescission at some point in the future [Myerchin v. Family Benefits, Inc. (2008) 162 CA4th 1526, 1533, 76 CR3d 816].

Notice of rescission need not be formal and explicit. A notice is sufficient if it clearly shows the intention of the person rescinding to consider the contract at an end [Wilson v. Lewis (1980) 106 CA3d 802, 809, 165 CR 396].

Judge's Perspective:

Although the courts will apply the rule stated in the text that a notice of rescission need not be formal and explicit, the better practice is to make the notice as clear and unambiguous as possible. Oral notice is discouraged. There is no advantage to sending a notice whose purpose is unclear. Moreover, a party seeking rescission has a duty to act promptly; failure to act promptly waives the right to rescind [Cutter Labs., Inc. v. Twining (1963) 221 CA2d 302, 317, 34 CR 317]. Therefore, a party seeking rescission who sends a notice that is unclear risks the other party's continuing performance under the contract. If the other party is substantially prejudiced by the delay, the court will not order rescission.

➡ Cross References:

Pleading requirements for rescission claim, see 8.10.

Form for notice of rescission, see 8.72.

Form for complaint for relief based on rescission, see 8.73.

8.09[2] Offer of Restoration Is Not Required If Rescinding Party Received Nothing of Value. No offer to restore is required if:

- The rescinding party did not receive anything of value [Realty Co. of Am. v. Burton (1958) 160 CA2d 178, 195-196, 325 P2d 171] ; or
- Through no fault of the rescinding party, restoration cannot be made [Carruth v. Fritch (1950) 36 C2d 426, 430-431, 224 P2d 702] .

Examples:

■ The plaintiff owners of an oil and gas lease hired the defendants to drill an oil well. The defendants abandoned the work after drilling a crooked well short of the agreed depth, leaving their equipment in the well, thereby making other drilling impossible. The court found that under these circumstances, the plaintiffs had received nothing of value and were not required to make restoration [Modoc Mineral & Oil Co. v. Cal-Vada Drilling & Exploration Co. (1965) 236 CA2d 868, 873-874, 46 CR 508] .

■ The plaintiff, injured in a car accident, was improperly coerced into signing an agreement by the defendant's insurance adjuster to release the insurer from all liability for the accident. The plaintiff later sued for more than the settlement amount, and when the insurance company demanded restoration of the consideration (the release of liability) on appeal, the court held that the plaintiff was not required to do so, because of the settlement agreement was void due to the coercive negotiations [Wetzstein v. Thomasson (1939) 34 CA2d 554, 558-559, 93 P2d 1028] .

8.09[3] Plaintiff's Delay in Providing Prompt Notice May Be Excused. The requirement for prompt notice and tender of consideration is excused if the rescinding party was subject to duress, menace, undue influence, or disability [CC § 1691].

In addition, a party must be aware of the right to rescind before failure to give prompt notice or offer to restore can bar rescission [CC § 1691].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of fraud, duress, menace, or undue influence in the context of contracts generally, see Ch. 17, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Fraud, Duress, Menace, and Undue Influence, 17.03-17.06.

8.09[4] Plaintiff's Delay in Providing Notice Will Not Bar Relief Unless Delay Is Substantially Prejudicial. A plaintiff seeking rescission will not be denied relief because of a delay in giving notice of intent to rescind unless the delay substantially prejudiced the other parties to the contract [CC § 1693; Saret-Cook v. Gilbert, Kelly, Crowley & Jennett (1999) 74 CA4th 1211, 1227, 88 CR2d 732] . Prejudice is a question of fact to be determined from the circumstances of the case [see Saret-Cook v. Gilbert, Kelly, Crowley & Jennett (1999) 74 CA4th 1211, 1225-1227, 88 CR2d 732] .

Example--Substantially Prejudicial Delay:

A plaintiff employee's failure to provide notice of rescission of a settlement agreement involving an employment dispute was found to be substantially prejudicial to the defendant law firm. The lack of notice precluded the firm from discharging the employee and excluding her from the office, rather than enduring an ensuing period of suffering, turmoil, and damage caused by the plaintiff's behavior [Saret-Cook v. Gilbert, Kelly, Crowley & Jennett (1999) 74 CA4th 1211, 1227, 88 CR2d 732] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)Form, Formation & ReadjustmentModification, Rescission & WaiverContracts
LawRemediesRescission & RedhibitionGeneral OverviewReal Property LawPurchase & SaleRemediesRescission &
Restitution

73 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING OR OPPOSING RESCISSION OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.10

8.10 Pleading Requirements for Complaint Seeking Rescission.

8.10[1] General List of Pleading Requirements. A complaint for rescission must allege all of the following:

- The formation and relevant terms of the contract [see 8.10[2]].
- Facts showing the existence of a ground for rescission [see 8.10[3]].
- The plaintiff's performance or excuse for nonperformance [see 8.10[4]].
- The injury or harm suffered by the plaintiff [see 8.10[5]].
- That plaintiff gave notice of rescission [see 8.10[6]].

8.10[2] Complaint Must Set Forth Formation and Relevant Terms of Contract. To plead for the rescission of a contract, the plaintiff must set forth in the complaint the facts of the contract formation and the terms of the contract [CC §§ 1688-1692].

8.10[3] Complaint Must Allege Facts Showing Ground for Rescission. A complaint for rescission must set forth the ground for rescission [CC §§ 1688-1692]. The grounds for rescission will vary with each case, and, depending on the ground, specific information must be provided.

Cross Reference:

Coverage of the grounds of rescission, see 8.06, 8.07.

Example--Alleging Fraudulent Representations:

In an action for rescission on the ground of fraudulent representations, the complaint should allege that representations were made with the intent to induce the plaintiff to enter into the contract [Hall v. Mitchell (1922) 59 CA 743, 748, 211 P 853].

Example--No Allegation of Failure of Consideration:

A plaintiff was not entitled to rescission on the ground of failure of consideration when he had alleged only fraud and undue influence, and did not allege failure of consideration [Clancy v. Becker-Arbuckle-Wright Corp. (1934) 137 CA 43, 47, 29 P2d 868] .

Example--Complaint Insufficient to Show Fraud:

A complaint failed to state a cause of action for rescission on the ground of fraud when it did not indicate that the contract was unfair or that the plaintiff had suffered any damage [Molfino v. Levinson Produce Co. (1947) 79 CA2d 587, 589, 180 P2d 365] .

8.10[4] Complaint Must Allege Plaintiff's Performance or Excuse for Nonperformance. A complaint for rescission must allege either the extent of the plaintiff's performance, or an excuse for nonperformance [see Consolidated Concessions Co. v. McConnell (1919) 40 CA 443, 444-445, 180 P 842] .

8.10[5] Complaint Must Allege Injury or Harm Suffered by Plaintiff. A complaint for rescission must allege some injury or harm to the plaintiff, or it is fatally defective [Guthrie v. Times-Mirror Co. (1975) 51 CA3d 879, 886, 124 CR 577] . The plaintiff need not show pecuniary damage, but only that an essential character of the transaction has changed [see Engalla v. Permanente Med. Group, Inc. (1997) 15 C4th 951, 979-980, 64 CR2d 843, 938 P2d 903] .

8.10[6] Complaint Must Allege That Plaintiff Gave Notice of Rescission or State That Summons and Complaint Are to Serve As Notice. The complaint must state one of the following with respect to plaintiff's obligation to give notice of rescission [CC § 1691]:

- That plaintiff gave notice of rescission and made an offer of restoration to the other party.
- Facts demonstrating that restoration is not necessary.
- That service of the summons and complaint will serve as notice of rescission and/or offer of restoration, if no other notice or offer of restoration was given.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Pleadings Complaints Requirements Commercial Law (UCC) Sales (Article 2) Form, Formation & Readjustment Modification, Rescission & Waiver Contracts Law Remedies Rescission & Redhibition General Overview Real Property Law Purchase & Sale Remedies Rescission & Restitution

74 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING OR OPPOSING RESCISSION OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.11

8.11 Every Party to Contract Must Be Joined in Rescission Action.

Every party to the rescinded contract or lease is an indispensable party to an action for relief based on rescission, and therefore must be joined as either a plaintiff or a defendant [Hartman Ranch Co. v. Associated Oil Co (1937) 10 C2d 232, 262-265, 73 P2d 1163] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsRequirementsCivil ProcedurePartiesJoinderNecessary PartiesCommercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)Form, Formation & ReadjustmentModification, Rescission & WaiverContracts LawRemediesRescission & RedhibitionGeneral OverviewReal Property LawPurchase & SaleRemediesRescission & Restitution

75 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
II. SEEKING OR OPPOSING RESCISSION OF CONTRACT

*1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.128.12 Complaint Must Be Brought Within Applicable Limitations Period.

An action based on the rescission of a written contract is subject to a four-year limitations period beginning on the date the facts entitling the aggrieved party to rescind occurred [CCP § 337(3); Miller v. Bechtel Corp. (1983) 33 C3d 868, 873, 191 CR 619, 663 P2d 177]. An action based on the rescission of an oral contract is subject to a two-year limitations period beginning on the date the facts entitling the aggrieved party to rescind occurred [CCP § 339(3)].

For rescission of both written and oral contracts, the discovery rule provides that when the ground is fraud or mistake, the statute does not begin to run until discovery of the facts constituting the fraud or mistake [CCP §§ 337(3), 339(3); see CCP § 337(3) (discovery rule for misrepresentation in insurance contracts)].

Examples:

- In an action filed in 1978 for rescission of a marital settlement agreement based on misrepresentation of the value of stock, the statute commenced when the spouse first had constructive notice of the misrepresentation, in 1972. The duty to inquire arose in 1972, not in 1977, when the spouse's stock was sold [Miller v. Bechtel Corp. (1983) 33 C3d 868, 873, 191 CR 619, 663 P2d 177].
- An action for rescission on the ground of fraud filed one year after the discovery of the basis for the rescission was barred by the doctrine of laches [Keidatz v. Albany (1952) 39 C2d 826, 829, 249 P2d 264].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

A complaint filed after the statute limitations has run is vulnerable to demurrer based on statutory limitations if it fails to allege the circumstances of the rescinding party's discovery of the grounds for rescission and the facts justifying the delay in filing the complaint [Tarrant v. Butler (1960) 180 CA2d 235, 239, 4 CR 230]. Therefore, if there was a delay in filing the complaint, the plaintiff should ensure that the circumstances surrounding the plaintiff's discovery of the grounds for rescission and the facts justifying the plaintiff's delay in filing the complaint are set forth in the complaint.

Cross Reference:

See Ch. 4, Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)Form, Formation & ReadjustmentModification, Rescission & WaiverCommercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesStatutes of LimitationsTime LimitationsContracts LawDefensesStatutes of LimitationsContracts LawRemediesRescission & RedhibitionGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime Limitations

76 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING OR OPPOSING RESCISSION OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.13

8.13 Right to Jury Trial for Rescission.

The right to a jury trial is determined by the nature of the relief requested [Runyan v. Pacific Air Industries, Inc. (1970) 2 C3d 304, 313, 85 CR 138, 466 P2d 682] . When restitution or damages are sought and there is a question of fact to be resolved regarding the amount of damages or restitution, a party is entitled to a jury trial [Paularena v. Superior Court (1965) 231 CA2d 906, 911-913, 42 CR 366] . This is true even if the parties seek ancillary relief of an equitable nature that is incidental to the recovery of a money judgment [Nmsbpcslldhb v. County of Fresno (2007) 152 CA4th 954, 964, 61 CR3d 425] .

When a party is not seeking restitution or damages, but only relief of an equitable nature, there is no right to a jury trial [Porter v. Superior Court (1977) 73 CA3d 793, 798-801, 141 CR 59] .

If a party in a rescission action seeks to recover something other than the consideration it gave under the contract, even if what it seeks to recover is money, the action is equitable in nature and there is no right to a jury trial [Nmsbpcslldhb v. County of Fresno (2007) 152 CA4th 954, 962, 61 CR3d 425] .

Example:

Whether there is material failure in consideration to be rendered to the rescinding party is a question of fact for the jury [Calabrese v. Rexall Drug & Chem. Co. (1963) 218 CA2d 774, 782, 32 CR 665] .

Jury Instructions:

Rescission, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3G, Instr. MB 300G.01 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Trials Jury Trials Actions in Equity Contracts Law Remedies Rescission & Redhibition General Overview Real Property Law Purchase & Sale Remedies Rescission & Restitution

77 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING OR OPPOSING RESCISSION OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.14

8.14 Relief Available After Rescission.

8.14[1] Parties Have Right to Seek Relief After Rescission. When a contract has been rescinded in whole or in part, any party to the contract may seek relief based on the rescission by bringing an action to recover any money or thing owed by any other party to the contract as a consequence of the rescission, or for any other relief to which the party is entitled [CC § 1692(a)].

A claim for damages is not inconsistent with a claim for relief based on rescission [CC § 1692]. The plaintiff is not required to elect remedies unless prejudice to the other party will otherwise result [Warfield v. Richey (1959) 167 CA2d 93, 99, 334 P2d 101]. The court will decide, after seeing the evidence, whether rescission or an action for breach of the contract is appropriate [Walters v. Marler (1978) 83 CA3d 1, 16, 147 CR 655]. If an action seeks relief based on rescission and the court determines that the contract has not been rescinded, the court may grant any party to the action any other relief to which the party is entitled [CC § 1692].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

Because the court is able to grant rescission or damages, depending on the proof, a plaintiff should always seek damages in any rescission action. The plaintiff should allege all applicable remedies and make an election only when the court requires it.

Cross References:

See Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions.

See also Ch. 22, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract.

8.14[2] Plaintiff May Recover Consequential Damages. Some courts have allowed claims for damages for fraud, as well as consequential damages, based on CC § 1692, to make the rescinding party whole [see, e.g., Jahn v. Brickey (1985) 168 CA3d 399, 406-407, 214 CR 119]. Other courts have required the rescinding party to elect between damages for fraud and rescissionary relief [see, e.g., Whistler v. Ondulando Highlands Corp. (1970) 13 CA3d 108, 118, 91 CR 879].

Some courts have observed that consequential damages are available when rescission is based on the fault of the nonrescinding party (such as cases of fraud or misrepresentation) but not when rescission is sought based on mistake [see Runyan v. Pacific Air Industries, Inc. (1970) 2 C3d 304, 317, 85 CR 138, 466 P2d 682 ; Sharabianlou v. Karp (2010) 181 CA4th 1133, 1145, 105 CR3d 300] .

Examples--Consequential Damages Allowed:

- The court awarded consequential damages after rescission, and emotional distress damages for fraud and breach of fiduciary duty [Jahn v. Brickey (1985) 168 CA3d 399, 406-407, 214 CR 119] .

- A franchisee who quit his job to operate the franchise and later rescinded the franchise contract was entitled, in addition to the return of the franchise fee, to consequential damages including loss of income from the date the franchise contract was signed to the date of the notice of rescission at the rate of his former salary, plus his training and operating expenses, less the gross income from the franchise operation [Runyan v. Pacific Air Indus., Inc. (1970) 2 C3d 304, 308 n3, 318-319, 85 CR 138, 466 P2d 682] .

Example--Consequential Damages for Emotional Distress Denied:

When rescission was granted on the ground of undue influence or fraud, damages for emotional distress were denied under both CC §§ 1692 and 3343 [O'Neil v. Spillane (1975) 45 CA3d 147, 158-159, 119 CR 245] .

Example--Consequential Damages for Emotional Distress Permitted:

Damages for emotional distress were sustained on the theory that the plaintiff had also prevailed on tort theories. The court said that just because rescission was available did not require the plaintiff to elect between rescission and tort remedies [Jahn v. Brickey (1985) 168 CA3d 399, 406-407, 214 CR 119] .

Warning:

Damages for emotional distress are not recoverable as consequential damages for breach of contract (subject to a narrow exception when emotional tranquility is the essence of the contract) [see Erlich v. Menezes (1999) 21 C4th 543, 558-560, 87 CR2d 886, 981 P2d 978] .

Distinguish:

The court may not award "benefit of the bargain" damages in a rescission action. Such damages are available only in an action for breach of contract [Sharabianlou v. Karp (2010) 181 CA4th 1133, 1146, 105 CR3d 300 (in action for rescission of contract to purchase real property, trial court erred in awarding sellers the difference between the rescinded contract's sale price and the amount received from a later sale to a different buyer)].

Cross References:

General discussion of damages, see Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions.

Discussion of the availability of damages for emotional distress, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 362, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress (Matthew Bender).

8.14[3] Plaintiff May Recover Interest. In an action for relief based on rescission of a contract, the right to the repayment of money paid under the contract is fixed by the rescission, and interest on that money is recoverable from the date of rescission. When the elements of consequential damages are met, interest on those damages is also recoverable from the date of rescission [Leaf v. Phil Rauch, Inc. (1975) 47 CA3d 371, 376-377, 120 CR 749] .

 Cross Reference:

See Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions.

8.14[4] Plaintiff May Recover Punitive Damages. If the plaintiff can establish by clear and convincing evidence that the defendant acted with malice, fraud, or oppression, punitive damages are available in a rescission action [CC § 3294(a)].

 Warning:

Punitive damages can be awarded under CC § 3294(a) only in addition to actual damages [see Douglas v. Ostermeier (1991) 1 CA4th 729, 750, 2 CR2d 594].

Judge's Perspective:

Punitive damages are not available for breach of contract, "even where the defendant's conduct in breaching the contract was wilful, fraudulent, or malicious" [Cates Constr., Inc. v. Talbot Partners (1999) 21 C4th 28, 61, 86 CR2d 855, 980 P2d 407] . However, rescission is not technically an action on the contract, but an action to be relieved of the contract, and so rescission actions are not subject to this rule. When alleging rescission based on fraud, it is recommended to always seek punitive damages whenever justified.

 Cross Reference:

See Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions.

8.14[5] Plaintiff May Recover Attorney's Fees. If the contract that has been rescinded contained a provision for attorney's fees that did not limit its operation to particular types of actions on the contract, attorney's fees are recoverable in an action for relief based on rescission [Hastings v. Matlock (1985) 171 CA3d 826, 840-842, 217 CR 856 ; see CC § 1717].

 Cross Reference:

See Ch. 12, Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation.

8.14[6] Attachment May Be Available to Plaintiff. The remedy of attachment is available to a party seeking restitution based on rescission because the basis of recovery is the implied contract for repayment [see, e.g., CCP § 483.010(a) (attachment available in action on implied contract when more than $500 is involved); Landry v. Marshall (1966) 243 CA2d 170, 177-178, 52 CR 119].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of attachment procedures, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 62, Attachment (Matthew Bender).

8.14[7] Court May Require Plaintiff to Compensate Defendant. If a party seeks relief based on rescission, the court may require the party to whom the relief is granted to compensate the other party, as justice requires, and also may adjust the equities between the parties in other ways [CC § 1692].

Examples:

■ When a purchaser rescinds a sale of real or personal property, the seller ordinarily is entitled to payment or credit for the value of the property during the time the purchaser had possession [Kent v. Clark (1942) 20 C2d 779, 785-786, 128 P2d 868].

■ In a transaction involving the sale of a business, recovery by the seller against whom the sale is rescinded is limited to the lesser of the reasonable rental value of the property involved or the profits, if any, generated by the purchaser from the subject matter [McCoy v. West (1977) 70 CA3d 295, 303, 138 CR 660].

Distinguish:

The court may not award "benefit of the bargain" damages in a rescission action. Such damages are available only in an action for breach of contract [Sharabianlou v. Karp (2010) 181 CA4th 1133, 1146, 105 CR3d 300 (in action for rescission of contract to purchase real property, trial court erred in awarding sellers the difference between the rescinded contract's sale price and the amount received from a later sale to a different buyer)].

Cross Reference:

See Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)Form, Formation & ReadjustmentModification, Rescission & WaiverContracts
LawRemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesRescission & RedhibitionGeneral OverviewReal Property
LawPurchase & SaleRemediesRescission & Restitution

78 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING OR OPPOSING RESCISSION OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.15

8.15 Opposing Claim for Rescission.

The party against whom rescission is sought, in addition to raising affirmative defenses, may simply rebut one or more of the essential elements that must be proven.

If a defect appears on the face of the complaint, defendant may raise that issue by demurrer [CCP § 430.10(e)]. If the defect does not appear on the face of the complaint, the defendant should consider raising the defenses by answer or in a motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication [CCP §§ 430.30(b), 437c].

Cross References:

Affirmative defenses to rescission, see 8.16.

Grounds for rescission, see 8.05.

Pleading requirements for claim of rescission, see 8.10.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)Form, Formation & ReadjustmentModification, Rescission & WaiverContracts
LawRemediesRescission & RedhibitionGeneral OverviewReal Property LawPurchase & SaleRemediesRescission &
Restitution

79 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING OR OPPOSING RESCISSION OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.16

8.16 Defendant Can Assert Affirmative Defenses.

8.16[1] Plaintiff Seeking Rescission Is in Material Default of Performance. A plaintiff cannot unilaterally rescind a contract if he or she is in material default of performance of an obligation that affects the other party's performance or duty to perform [Nelson v. Spence (1960) 182 CA2d 493, 499, 6 CR 312 ; Joshua Tree Townsite Co. v. Joshua Tree Land Co. (1950) 100 CA2d 590, 596, 224 P2d 85] . The defendant can assert this default as an affirmative defense.

Exceptions:

If the plaintiff's default is unrelated to the other party's obligation on which the asserted right of rescission is based, the plaintiff may rescind the contract [Integrated, Inc. v. Alec Fergusson Elec. Contractor (1967) 250 CA2d 287, 298, 58 CR 503] . A purchaser who has been defrauded also may rescind, even if in default, because the purchaser has a right to withhold payments on learning the grounds for rescission [Warfield v. Richey (1959) 167 CA2d 93, 97-98, 334 P2d 101] .

Cross Reference:

Form, see 8.77.

8.16[2] Plaintiff's Knowing Acceptance of Contract Benefits Waives Right to Rescind Contract. When a party has full knowledge of the facts that warrant rescission, but accepts and receives benefits under a contract, waiver of the right to rescind is presumed [Whitney Inv. Co. v. Westview Dev. Co. (1969) 273 CA2d 594, 603, 78 CR 302] . The plaintiff's conduct must be so inconsistent with an intent to enforce the contract as to induce a reasonable belief that the right to rescind has been relinquished [Soon v. Beckman (1965) 234 CA2d 33, 36, 44 CR 190] .

Examples:

- Acceptance of rent accruing after a known default is a waiver [Soon v. Beckman (1965) 234 CA2d 33, 36, 44 CR 190] .
- Acceptance of performance later than agreed waives the right to rescind for failure of compliance with a time provision [Leiter v. Eltinge (1966) 246 CA2d 306, 317, 54 CR 703].

- Acceptance by physicians of coverage for medical malpractice through interindemnity arrangement waives the right to rescind interindemnity agreement [Gill v. Rich (2005) 128 CA4th 1254, 1264].

- Acceptance of annual payments from former husband under postmarital agreement for five years waives the right to rescind the agreement [In re Marriage of Burkle (2006) 139 CA4th 712, 751-752, 43 CR3d 181].

Cross Reference:

Waiver by delay, see 8.16[4].

Plaintiff's waiver of the right to rescind is an affirmative defense that must be pleaded and cannot be raised for first time on appeal [Calabrese v. Rexall Drug & Chem. Co. (1963) 218 CA2d 774, 785, 32 CR 665].

Acts by which the rescinding party preserves the subject matter to be able to restore it to the party against whom he or she rescinds do not amount to waiver.

Example:

To avoid default, the plaintiff made payments on a mortgage after giving notice of rescission. This conduct did not constitute a waiver of the right to rescind [Hefferan v. Freebairn (1950) 34 C2d 715, 723, 214 P2d 386].

Cross Reference:

Form, see 8.77.

8.16[3] Action Is Barred If Plaintiff Failed to Bring Claim Within Applicable Statute of Limitations. The plaintiff's claim for rescission must be brought within the period of the applicable statute of limitations: four years for written contracts and two years for oral contracts [see CCP §§ 337(3), 339(3)].

Cross References:

Determining the statute of limitations for claim of rescission and determining when cause of action accrues, see 8.12.

Detailed discussion of applicable statutes of limitation, see Ch. 4, Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action.

Strategic Point--Defendant:

A complaint filed after statutory period of limitations has run is vulnerable to demurrer based on the statute of limitations if it fails to allege the circumstances of the rescinding party's discovery of the grounds for rescission and the facts justifying the delay in filing the complaint [Tarrant v. Butler (1960) 180 CA2d 235, 239, 4 CR 230].

8.16[4] Plaintiff's Delay in Giving Notice of Rescission or Tendering Restoration Was Prejudicial. Under the doctrine of laches, a delay in giving notice of rescission or tendering restoration of benefits received does not bar relief based on rescission unless the delay has substantially prejudiced the other party [CC § 1693]. The defendant bears the burden of proving that he or she has been prejudiced by any delay [see Saret-Cook v. Gilbert, Kelly, Crowley & Jennett (1999) 74 CA4th 1211, 1225-1227, 88 CR2d 732].

Laches and waiver are sometimes pleaded or established together [see, e.g., Neet v. Holmes (1944) 25 C2d 447, 458-461, 154 P2d 854].

Cross References:

Form, see 8.77.

Discussion of what constitutes prejudicial delay, see 8.09[4].

Discussion of laches, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 4, Limitation of Actions.

8.16[5] Impossibility Excuses Defendant's Performance. In an action to rescind a contract for the defendant's failure to perform, the defendant can plead impossibility of performance as an affirmative defense [Calabrese v. Rexall Drug & Chem. Co. (1963) 218 CA2d 774, 784-785, 32 CR 665] .

Example:

An allegation that promissory notes relevant to a transaction were stolen, if proved, would establish the impossibility of performance by the party required to endorse and deliver the notes [Calabrese v. Rexall Drug & Chem. Co. (1963) 218 CA2d 774, 785, 32 CR 665] .

Cross References:

Form, see 8.77.

See also Ch. 13, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element; and

Ch. 22, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract.

8.16[6] Rescission Is Unavailable If Third Party's Rights Would Be Harmed. Rescission will not be granted if it will cause harm to the interests of innocent third parties [Gill v. Rich (2005) 128 CA4th 1254, 1265].

Examples--Rescission Denied:

- A surety company was not entitled to rescission of a bond guaranteeing the performance of an attorney who embezzled from estate property because, among other reasons, permitting rescission would adversely and unfairly injure the beneficiaries of the estate [Conservatorship of O'Connor (1996) 48 CA4th 1076, 1098-1099, 56 CR2d 386] .

- Physicians could not rescind an interindemnity agreement, which provided them with coverage for medical malpractice, because rescission would harm the rights of innocent third parties, including nonrescinding physicians who relied on all members' final contributions and patients with medical malpractice claims [Gill v. Rich (2005) 128 CA4th 1254, 1267-1268].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)Form, Formation & ReadjustmentModification, Rescission & WaiverContracts LawDefensesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesRescission & RedhibitionGeneral OverviewReal Property LawPurchase & SaleRemediesRescission & Restitution

80 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING OR OPPOSING RESCISSION OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.17

8.17 Defendant May Be Able to Obtain Setoff Against Plaintiff's Damages.

If a party seeks relief based on rescission, the court may require the party to whom relief is granted to make any compensation to the other party that justice may require, and may otherwise adjust the equities between the parties [CC § 1692; see 8.14[7]].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesRescission & RedhibitionGeneral OverviewReal Property LawPurchase & SaleRemediesRescission & Restitution

81 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions

III. SEEKING OR OPPOSING REFORMATION OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.18

8.18 CHECKLIST: Seeking or Opposing Reformation of Contract.

8.18[1] Determining Whether Contract Can Be Reformed.

☐ Verify that contract is written.

Authority:

CC § 3399

Discussion:

See 8.22

☐ Determine that contract is not void.

Authority:

Ainsworth v. Morrill (1916) 31 CA 509, 510, 160 P 1089

Discussion:

See 8.23

☐ Confirm that because of fraud, mutual mistake, or unilateral mistake, contract does not express parties' true intention.

Authority:

CC § 3399

Discussion:

See 8.24

☐ Confirm that all parties have a complete, mutual understanding of all essential terms of contract.

Authority:

Bailard v. Marden (1951) 36 C2d 703, 708, 227 P2d 10

Discussion:

See 8.25

8.18[2] Pleading to Reform Contract.

☐ Allege the following in complaint:

☐ Plaintiff's status as an aggrieved party.

Authority:

CC § 3399

Discussion:

See 8.26

Form:

See 8.74

☐ Parties' true intention.

Authority:

CC § 3399

Discussion:

See 8.27

Form:

See 8.74

☐ Contract language as it was written.

Authority:

CC § 3399

Discussion:

See 8.28

Form:

See 8.74

☐ That failure of contract to reflect parties' true agreement resulted from fraud, mutual mistake of fact, or unilateral mistake of fact.

Authority:

CC § 3399

Discussion:

See 8.24[5]

Form:

See 8.74

8.18[3] Opposing Claim for Reformation.

- ☐ Analyze complaint to determine the appropriate response.

Authority:

CCP § 430.10

Discussion:

See 8.32

Form:

See 8.78

- ☐ Determine if plaintiff's complaint states all essential elements of a reformation claim.

Authority:

CCP § 430.30

Discussion:

See 8.32[1]

Form:

See 8.78

- ☐ Assert affirmative defenses as appropriate:

Authority:

CCP § 430.30

Discussion:

See 8.32[3]

Form:

See 8.78

- ☐ Claim was not brought within applicable statute of limitations period.

Authority:

CCP § 338(d)

Discussion:

See 8.32[3][a]

- ☐ Action is barred by res judicata.

Authority:

Getty v. Getty (1986) 187 CA3d 1159, 1173, 232 CR 603

Discussion:

See 8.32[3][b]

- ☐ Plaintiff has unclean hands.

Authority:

Seymour v. Cariker (1963) 220 CA2d 300, 305, 33 CR 727

Discussion:

See 8.32[3][c]

- ☐ Plaintiff waived right to reform contract or has ratified contract.

Authority:

San Fernando Valley Chamber of Commerce v. Thomas (1954) 123 CA2d 348, 350-351, 266 P2d 891

Discussion:

See 8.32[3][d]

- ☐ Plaintiff's claim is barred by laches.

Authority:

Getty v. Getty (1986) 187 CA3d 1159, 1170, 232 CR 603

Discussion:

See 8.32[3][e]

- ☐ Plaintiff was inexcusably negligent in failing to discover mistake for which reformation is sought.

Authority:

Voge, Inc. v. Rose (1962) 205 CA2d 534, 539, 23 CR 87

Discussion:

See 8.32[3][f]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Contracts Law Remedies Reformation

82 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
III. SEEKING OR OPPOSING REFORMATION OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.19

8.19 Options and Strategies.

Reformation is an equitable remedy used to reframe a written instrument to accurately express the parties' true agreement when, through fraud, mutual mistake, or unilateral mistake the writing does not embody their agreement [CC § 3399; Bailard v. Marden (1951) 36 C2d 703, 708, 227 P2d 10]. The purpose of reformation is to make a written agreement fully express the intention of the parties [American Home Ins. Co. v. Travelers Indem. Co. (1981) 122 CA3d 951, 963, 175 CR 826] .

The party seeking to reform the contract should focus on establishing that the contract requires reformation because it does not reflect the parties' true intention due to fraud, mutual mistake, or unilateral mistake [see 8.24]. Showing that there was no mutual understanding of all essential terms of the contract is key in this regard [see 8.25]. After a party has succeeded in reforming a contract, the party then may seek to specifically enforce the contract [CC § 3402; see 8.30].

The party opposing reformation should seek to establish that there is no dispute as to the intention of the parties, and that no fraud or mistake was involved [see 8.24]. This party will want to establish that there was a mutual understanding of the terms of the contract [see 8.25]. The party opposing reformation also may assert that an essential element of the cause of action is not established, as well as a variety of affirmative defenses related to the plaintiff's conduct rendering reformation unavailable [see 8.32]. To keep the plaintiff from obtaining a jury trial, the defendant will want to preempt any legal issues, such as breach of contract, and keep the case focused on equitable issues, tried to the court [see 8.31].

Cross References:

Discussion of seeking or opposing specific performance of a contract, see 8.33 et seq.

Discussion of mistake, see Ch. 16, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Mistake.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Contracts Law Remedies Reformation

83 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions

III. SEEKING OR OPPOSING REFORMATION OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.20

8.20 Elements of Cause of Action for Reformation.

A contract may be reformed if it meets all of the following requirements [see, e.g., American Home Ins. Co. v. Travelers Indem. Co. (1981) 122 CA3d 951, 961, 175 CR 826] :

- The contract is a written contract [see 8.22].
- The contract is not void [see 8.23].
- Because of fraud, mutual mistake, or unilateral mistake, the contract does not express the true intention of the parties [see 8.24].
- All parties have a complete, mutual understanding of the essential terms of the contract [see 8.25].
- The party seeking reformation has standing as an aggrieved party [see 8.26].
- The party seeking reformation must show the true intention of the parties [see 8.27].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawDefensesAmbiguity & MistakeMutual MistakeContracts LawDefensesAmbiguity & MistakeUnilateral MistakeContracts LawDefensesFraud & MisrepresentationGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesReformation

84 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
III. SEEKING OR OPPOSING REFORMATION OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.21

8.21 Statute of Limitations Is Three Years.

An action for reformation on the ground of fraud or mistake is required to be brought within three years [CCP § 338(d)]. A cause of action for reformation based on fraud or mistake does not accrue until the aggrieved party discovers the facts constituting the fraud or mistake [CCP § 338(d); see Welsher v. Glickman (1969) 272 CA2d 134, 140, 77 CR 141].

Cross Reference:

Applicable statutes of limitations in contract actions, see Ch. 4, Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesStatutes of LimitationsTime LimitationsContracts
LawDefensesStatutes of LimitationsContracts LawRemediesReformationGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime Limitations

85 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions

III. SEEKING OR OPPOSING REFORMATION OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.22

8.22 Only Written Contracts Can Be Reformed.

Only written contracts can be reformed [CC § 3399].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Remedies Reformation

86 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
III. SEEKING OR OPPOSING REFORMATION OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.23

8.23 Void Contracts Generally Cannot Be Reformed.

Because a void agreement has no standing in the law, it cannot be reformed [see, e.g., Ainsworth v. Morrill (1916) 31 CA 509, 511, 160 P 1089]. A court will not make a new contract from a void one when it appears that the parties never intended to make a legal, valid agreement [see First Am. Title Ins. & Trust Co. v. Cook (1970) 12 CA3d 592, 597-598, 90 CR 645].

Exception:

Reformation will reform an otherwise valid instrument by removing an illegal term that was never intended by the parties, but was erroneously included [see First Am. Title Ins. & Trust Co. v. Cook (1970) 12 CA3d 592, 597-598, 90 CR 645].

Whether a contract that is void under the statute of frauds may be reformed depends on how it fails to satisfy the statute [see Oatman v. Niemeyer (1929) 207 C 424, 426-427, 278 P 1043].

➡ Cross Reference:

Discussion of effect of statute of frauds on reformation claim, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 488, Reformation of Instruments (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Contracts Law Remedies Reformation

87 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions

III. SEEKING OR OPPOSING REFORMATION OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.24

8.24 Contract Must Fail to Express Parties' True Intent.

8.24[1] Failure to Express Parties' True Intent Must Be Due to Fraud, Mutual Mistake, or Unilateral Mistake. A written contract that does not embody the parties' true intention may be reformed because of fraud, mutual mistake, or unilateral mistake [CC § 3399; Bailard v. Marden (1951) 36 C2d 703, 708, 227 P2d 10 ; see 8.24[2] -[4]].

Cross References:

Discussion of fraud see Ch. 17, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Fraud, Duress, Menace, and Undue Influence.

Discussion of mistake, see Ch. 16, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Mistake.

8.24[2] Fraud Is Basis for Reformation. Fraud, as a basis for reformation, consists of the following elements [Security-First Nat'l Bank v. Earp (1942) 19 C2d 774, 777-778, 122 P2d 900] :

- A false representation by one party.
- Knowledge of the falsity by that party.
- Intent that the other party rely on the false representation.
- Justifiable reliance on the false representation by the other party.

Specifically, when one party justifiably relies on the other party's false representation that the written instrument either already conforms, or will conform, to the parties' true intent, reformation is appropriate [Security-First Nat'l Bank v. Earp (1942) 19 C2d 774, 777-778, 122 P2d 900 see R & B Auto Center, Inc. v. Farmers Group, Inc. (2006) 140 CA4th 327, 351, 44 CR3d 426 (insured could seek reformation of contract if its insurance agents misrepresented coverage and the coverage that was delivered did not conform to the agreement of the parties)].

Warning:

Fraudulent inducement to enter into a written agreement is not a basis for reformation because, although fraudulently induced, the contract reflects the intent of the parties [Lane v. Davis (1959) 172 CA2d 302, 307-308, 342 P2d 267].

Reformation also may be available to correct a defect in a deed resulting from the unconscionable conduct of one party that is neither fraudulent nor illegal [MacFarlane v. Peters (1980) 103 CA3d 627, 631, 163 CR 655]. This type of conduct should be the basis of a reformation action, as it is for a rescission action.

Cross References:

Discussion of fraud, duress, menace, or undue influence in the context of contracts generally, see Ch. 17, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Fraud, Duress, Menace, and Undue Influence, 17.03-17.06.

Unconscionability in the context of contracts generally, see Ch. 18, Asserting or Defending Claim That Contract Is Illegal, Contrary to Public Policy, or Unconscionable.

8.24[3] Mutual Mistake Is Basis for Reformation. A mutual mistake by both parties is a ground for reformation [CC § 3399; Shupe v. Nelson (1967) 254 CA2d 693, 700, 62 CR 352]. It is irrelevant who drafted the writing to be reformed, as long as both parties shared the common mistake about the writing's contents [Renshaw v. Happy Valley Water Co. (1952) 114 CA2d 521, 524-525, 250 P2d 612].

Example:

A party may seek to reform a contract when the mistake of a third person acting for the parties, such as an attorney, is responsible for the contract's failure to express the parties' true intent. A mistake attributable to a third person in reducing the common intent of the parties to writing is a ground for reformation based on mutual mistake [Breen v. Donnelly (1887) 74 C 301, 304, 15 P 845 (surveyor's mistake in surveying boundary line); see Mills v. Schulba (1950) 95 CA2d 559, 561-562, 213 P2d 408 (attorney's mistake in transferring title)].

8.24[4] Unilateral Mistake Is Basis for Reformation. A unilateral mistake by one party is a ground for reformation when the other party knew of, or suspected, the mistake [CC § 3399]. Constructive notice of a unilateral mistake is insufficient for reformation [see, e.g., La Mancha Dev. Corp. v. Sheegog (1978) 78 CA3d 9, 16-17, 144 CR 59 (reformation of deed to insert land use restriction on ground of unilateral mistake was improper because grantees did not know of or suspect mistake)].

Examples:

- A contract arising out of a contractor's bid was not subject to reformation even though the bid contained a clerical error. The other party never agreed to pay more than the sum designated in the bid. Even if the understanding of the parties was based on a mistaken assumption of fact, a court cannot improve the parties' understanding through reformation of the written instrument. To do so would be to create a new contract based on terms to which the parties never agreed [Lemoge Elec. v. County of San Mateo (1956) 46 C2d 659, 663-664, 297 P2d 638].

- A hospital was not entitled to reformation of a contract for treatment of Medi-Cal beneficiaries. Although the hospital alleged that both it and the state were mistaken about the payment rate for the treatment of certain patients provided in the contract, no evidence existed showing that the state knew or suspected that the hospital intended the contract to exclude certain categories of patients at the time the parties entered into the contract, because these topics were never discussed during the negotiations and the hospital never expressed its intention [Cedars-Sinai Med. Ctr. v. Shewry (2006) 137 CA4th 964,

985, 41 CR3d 48] .

8.24[5] Complaint Must Allege Fraud, Mutual Mistake, or Unilateral Mistake. The complaint must allege that the contract's failure to express the parties' true agreement was due to fraud, mutual mistake, or unilateral mistake [Bailard v. Marden (1951) 36 C2d 703, 708, 227 P2d 10 ; see CC § 3399].

Cross Reference:

Form, see 8.74.

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

If there was a delay between the fraud or mistake and the filing of the action, the defendant may raise the defenses of laches and/or statute of limitations. Therefore, the plaintiff should consider including in the complaint allegations pertaining to the discovery of the fraud or mistake, the plaintiff's diligence in bringing the action on discovering the fraud or mistake, and other circumstances that show the delay was excusable [see Miller v. Lantz (1937) 9 C2d 544, 548, 71 P2d 585 ; see also CCP § 338(d)].

Cross References:

Defense of laches to an action seeking reformation, see 8.32[3][e].

Defense of statute of limitations to an action seeking reformation, see 8.32[3][a].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawDefensesAmbiguity & MistakeMutual MistakeContracts LawDefensesAmbiguity & MistakeUnilateral MistakeContracts LawDefensesFraud & MisrepresentationGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesReformation

88 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
III. SEEKING OR OPPOSING REFORMATION OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.25

8.25 All Parties Must Have Complete, Mutual Understanding of All Essential Terms of Contract.

To obtain reformation of a contract, the parties must have a complete mutual understanding of all of the contract's essential terms. Otherwise, there is no standard by which the writing can be reformed [Bailard v. Marden (1951) 36 C2d 703, 708, 227 P2d 10].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

Although a contract that accurately reflects a common intent based on a mistake of fact cannot be reformed, the mistake may be ground for rescission [see, e.g., White v. Berrenda Mesa Water Dist. of Kern County (1970) 7 CA3d 894, 900-908, 87 CR 338].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of seeking or opposing rescission of a contract, see 8.03 et seq.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawFormationGeneral OverviewContracts LawFormationMeeting of MindsContracts LawRemediesReformation

89 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions

III. SEEKING OR OPPOSING REFORMATION OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.26

8.26 Complaint Must Allege Plaintiff's Status As Aggrieved Party.

The party seeking reformation must show his or her standing as an aggrieved party [CC § 3399; American Home Ins. Co. v. Travelers Indem. Co. (1981) 122 CA3d 951, 961, 175 CR 826] .

Strategic Point:

The availability of reformation is not limited to the parties to the contract, but includes all aggrieved parties [CC § 3399]. A person who suffers prejudice or pecuniary loss as a result of the contract is an aggrieved party who may seek to reform it [Orcutt v. Ferranini (1965) 237 CA2d 216, 224, 46 CR 715].

Cross Reference:

Form, see 8.74.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Contracts Law Remedies Reformation

90 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions

III. SEEKING OR OPPOSING REFORMATION OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.27

8.27 Complaint Must Allege Parties' True Intent.

The party seeking reformation of a contract must allege the parties' true intention [CC § 3399; American Home Ins. Co. v. Travelers Indem. Co. (1981) 122 CA3d 951, 961, 175 CR 826] .

Cross Reference:

Form, see 8.74.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Contracts Law Remedies Reformation

91 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions

III. SEEKING OR OPPOSING REFORMATION OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.28

8.28 Complaint Must Allege Contract As It Was Written.

The complaint must allege the contract as it was written [Johnson v. Sun Realty Co. (1934) 138 CA 296, 300-301, 32 P2d 393 ; see CC § 3399].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

The best way to establish the contents of the contract is to attach a copy of the contract to the complaint and incorporate it by reference.

Cross Reference:

Form, see 8.74.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Contracts Law Remedies Reformation

92 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
III. SEEKING OR OPPOSING REFORMATION OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.29

8.29 Burden of Proof, Presumptions, and Scope of Inquiry in Reformation of Contract.

8.29[1] Plaintiff Has Burden of Proving Parties' True Intent and That Failure Was Due to Fraud or Mistake. To reform a written instrument, the party seeking relief must establish by clear and convincing evidence the true intent of the parties and that the defect in the contract resulted from fraud or mistake [Shupe v. Nelson (1967) 254 CA2d 693, 700, 62 CR 352].

8.29[2] Court Presumes That Parties Intended to Make Equitable Contract. For the purpose of reforming a contract, the court will presume that all the parties to the contract intended to make an equitable and conscientious agreement [CC § 3400]. This presumption is not conclusive and may be overcome by evidence showing that the written instrument is not in conformity with true agreement of parties. The burden of overcoming the presumption is on the party who seeks to avoid the plain terms of the written contract [California Trust Co. v. Cohn (1935) 9 CA2d 33, 40, 48 P2d 744].

8.29[3] Court May Inquire Into Intended Meaning of Contract. In reforming a written instrument, the court may inquire what the instrument was intended to mean and what its legal consequences were meant to be. The court is not confined to the inquiry of what the language of the instrument was intended to be [CC § 3401].

Example:

An insurance policy may be reformed to show the premises intended to be covered, the persons included in the coverage, the name and capacity of the insured, the nature of the coverage and its extent, and the amount payable under the policy [Modica v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1965) 236 CA2d 588, 595-596, 46 CR 158].

Judge's Perspective:

The court will make the inquiry suggested by CC § 3401 only if it has already determined to reform the contract.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Remedies Reformation Evidence Inferences & Presumptions Presumptions Evidence Procedural

ConsiderationsBurdens of ProofClear & Convincing Proof

93 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions

III. SEEKING OR OPPOSING REFORMATION OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.30

8.30 Party May Seek Specific Performance After Reformation.

A party who has succeeded in reforming a contract then may seek to specifically enforce that contract [CC § 3402]. The contract may be reformed and specifically enforced in the same action. The court also may reform the contract and then give money damages, if it finds that specific performance cannot be given in the circumstances [Tomas v. Vaughn (1944) 63 CA2d 188, 193-194, 146 P2d 499] .

Cross Reference:

Seeking specific performance, see 8.33 et seq.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawRemediesReformationContracts LawRemediesSpecific Performance

94 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions

III. SEEKING OR OPPOSING REFORMATION OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.31

8.31 Party May Not Seek Jury Trial for Reformation.

In a reformation action there is generally no right to a jury trial [Martinez v. Martinez (1950) 99 CA2d 425, 428, 221 P2d 986] . However, if a plaintiff joins legal and equitable issues in the same action, such as by seeking reformation of the contract and damages for breach of the contract as reformed, the plaintiff may demand a jury trial on the legal issues [Abbott v. City of Los Angeles (1958) 50 C2d 438, 462, 326 P2d 484] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsActions in EquityCivil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsRight to Jury TrialContracts
LawRemediesReformation

95 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions

III. SEEKING OR OPPOSING REFORMATION OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.32

8.32 Opposing Claim for Reformation.

8.32[1] Defendant Can Rebut Essential Elements of Plaintiff's Claim. The party against whom reformation is sought may rebut one or more of the essential elements of the claim for reformation that must be proven. For example, the defending party may show that the writing does in fact reflect the true intent of the parties [see Getty v. Getty (1986) 187 CA3d 1159, 1178, 232 CR 603].

► Cross References:

Grounds for reformation, see 8.20.

Pleading requirements for plaintiff seeking reformation, see 8.26 -8.29.

8.32[2] Defendant Can Demur or Answer Defects in Complaint. If a defect appears on the face of the complaint, the defendant may raise a defense to it by demurrer [CCP § 430.10(e)]. If the defect does not appear on the face of the complaint, the defendant should consider raising the defenses by answer or in a motion for summary judgment [CCP §§ 430.30(b), 437c].

► Cross Reference:

Discussion of demurrers and answers, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 11, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings; and Ch. 14, Answers.

8.32[3] Defendant Can Assert Affirmative Defenses in Answer.

8.32[3][a] Three-Year Statute of Limitations Is Affirmative Defense. An action for relief on the ground of fraud or mistake, including a reformation action, must be brought within three years of the time the cause of action arises [CCP § 338(d)]. A cause of action for reformation based on fraud or mistake does not accrue until the aggrieved party discovers the facts constituting the fraud or mistake [CCP § 338(d); Welsher v. Glickman (1969) 272 CA2d 134, 140, 77 CR 141].

When there is considerable delay between the occurrence of fraud or mistake and its discovery by the aggrieved party, the court uses a reasonable diligence standard to determine the point at which the aggrieved party should be charged with constructive notice of the facts [Laing v. Occidental Life Ins. Co. (1966) 244 CA2d 811, 820, 53 CR 681] .

Exception:

Constructive notice of a unilateral mistake is an insufficient ground for reformation [see, e.g., La Mancha Dev. Corp. v. Sheegog (1978) 78 CA3d 9, 16-17, 144 CR 59 (reformation of deed to insert land use restriction on ground of unilateral mistake was improper because defendant grantees did not know or suspect mistake)].

➡ Cross References:

Form, see 8.78.

Defense of laches in action for reformation, see 8.32[3][e].

Ch. 4, Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action.

8.32[3][b] Res Judicata Is Affirmative Defense. An action for reformation may be barred by the doctrine of res judicata if an earlier judgment binds the parties on a litigated issue sought to be relitigated in a later action [Getty v. Getty (1986) 187 CA3d 1159, 1172-1174, 232 CR 603 (trust instrument's irrevocability and distribution provisions were reformed in earlier action, binding parties in later action)].

➡ Cross References:

Form, see 8.78.

See also Ch. 22, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract.

8.32[3][c] Unclean Hands Is Affirmative Defense. Reformation is subject to the equitable defense of unclean hands, by which the plaintiff is precluded from recovery due to plaintiff's own dishonest, unfair, or unconscionable conduct [Seymour v. Cariker (1963) 220 CA2d 300, 305-306, 33 CR 727] .

➡ Cross Reference:

Form, see 8.78.

8.32[3][d] Waiver of Right to Reform and Ratification of Contract Are Affirmative Defenses. Reformation is subject to the equitable defenses of waiver and ratification [San Fernando Valley Chamber of Commerce v. Thomas (1954) 123 CA2d 348, 350-351, 266 P2d 891]. An executed contract cannot be reformed if the aggrieved party, with knowledge of the facts, waived the right to reform by ratifying it through accepting performance in accordance with the terms of the contract as written [Vantress Farms, Inc. v. Sydenstricker (1970) 11 CA3d 943, 951, 90 CR 251] .

➡ Cross References:

Form, see 8.78.

Defense of waiver in breach of contract actions, see Ch. 22, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract, 22.68.

8.32[3][e] Laches Is Affirmative Defense. Reformation is subject to the equitable defense of laches, by which a delay in complaining of the need for reformation bars relief because the delay has substantially prejudiced the other party [Getty v. Getty (1986) 187 CA3d 1159, 1170-1171, 232 CR 603 (plaintiff's delay of 25 years after reaching age of majority in bringing action to reform trust was barred by laches)].

➡ Cross References:

Form, see 8.78.

See also Ch. 22, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract.

8.32[3][f] Plaintiff's Negligent Failure to Discover Mistake Is Affirmative Defense. As a general equitable rule, inexcusable negligence in failing to discover the mistake for which a remedy is sought bars the granting of equitable relief [Voge, Inc. v. Rose (1962) 205 CA2d 534, 539, 23 CR 87]. However, negligence is not a blanket bar to reformation. Instead, the court analyzes the circumstances of the case and determines the extent to which the aggrieved party was negligent [Voge, Inc. v. Rose (1962) 205 CA2d 534, 539, 23 CR 87].

Courts will excuse negligence if a person of ordinary prudence would have been negligent in the same circumstances [Voge, Inc. v. Rose (1962) 205 CA2d 534, 539, 23 CR 87]. Negligence in failing to read a written instrument sought to be reformed is not necessarily a bar to relief [see Baines v. Zuieback (1948) 84 CA2d 483, 491, 191 P2d 67]. However, negligence that is so gross as to constitute a neglect of legal duty will bar the granting of relief [Los Angeles & Redondo R.R. Co. v. New Liverpool Salt Co. (1906) 150 C 21, 28, 87 P 1029 ; see also CC § 1577].

Example--Reformation Barred:

Reformation was denied when the party seeking reformation failed to read the contents of the contract through the party's own carelessness [Miller v. Lantz (1937) 9 C2d 544, 548, 71 P2d 585 (no showing that defendant was prevented from reading the contract or from fully comprehending the meaning of the language used)].

Example--Reformation Not Barred:

Reformation was allowed when the party's failure to read the instrument was attributable to fraud and false representations by the other party about the contents of the writing [California Trust Co. v. Cohn (1932) 214 C 619, 627, 7 P2d 297] .

Cross References:

Form, see 8.78.

Discussion of circumstances in which plaintiff's negligence bars reformation, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 488, Reformation of Instruments (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Contracts Law Remedies Reformation

96 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.33

8.33 CHECKLIST: Seeking or Opposing Specific Performance of Contract.

8.33[1] Determining Whether Specific Performance Is Available.

☐ Verify that there is no adequate remedy at law.

Authority:

Morrison v. Land (1915) 169 C 580, 586, 147 P 259

Discussion:

See 8.37

☐ Confirm that obligation sought to be enforced is not any of the following:

☐ Obligation to render personal services.

Authority:

CC § 3390(1)

Discussion:

See 8.38

☐ Obligation to employ another person in personal service.

Authority:

CC § 3390(2)

Discussion:

See 8.38

- ☐ Obligation to perform an act that party cannot lawfully perform.

Authority:

CC § 3390(3)

Discussion:

See 8.39

- ☐ Obligation that is impossible to perform.

Authority:

Anderson v. Neal Insts. Co. (1918) 37 CA 174, 176, 173 P 779 ; see CC § 3423(e)

Discussion:

See 8.40

- ☐ Obligation to procure act or consent of a third party.

Authority:

CC § 3390(4)

Discussion:

See 8.41

- ☐ Confirm that obligation sought to be enforced is an agreement with terms that are sufficiently certain to make the act to be ordered clearly ascertainable.

Authority:

CC § 3390(5)

Discussion:

See 8.42

- ☐ Confirm that party against whom specific performance is sought has received adequate consideration.

Authority:

CC § 3391(1)

Discussion:

See 8.43

- ☐ Confirm that contract is just and reasonable as to party against whom specific performance is sought.

Authority:

CC § 3391(2)

Discussion:

See 8.44

- ☐ Confirm that contract is not unconscionable.

Authority:

CC § 1670.5

Discussion:

See 8.45

- ☐ Verify that consent of party against whom specific performance is sought was not obtained by misrepresentation, concealment, circumvention, or unfair practices.

Authority:

CC § 3391(3)

Discussion:

See 8.46

- ☐ Verify that assent of party against whom specific performance is sought was not given under influence of mistake, misapprehension, or surprise.

Authority:

CC § 3391(4)

Discussion:

See 8.47

- ☐ Confirm that party seeking specific performance has fully and fairly performed all conditions precedent to other party's performance under contract.

Authority:

CC § 3392

Discussion:

See 8.48

- ☐ Confirm that contract does not require a succession of continuous acts.

Authority:

Ellison v. Ventura Port Dist. (1978) 80 CA3d 574, 580, 145 CR 665

Discussion:

See 8.49

- ☐ If specific performance is being sought from deceased person, file action for quasi-specific performance.

Authority:

Estate of Brenzikofer v. Schwarz (1996) 49 CA4th 1461, 1467, 57 CR2d 401

Discussion:

See 8.56

8.33[2] Pleading Claim for Specific Performance.

- ☐ Allege that contract is sufficiently definite and certain in its terms to be enforced.

Authority:

Hennefer v. Butcher (1986) 182 CA3d 492, 227 CR 318

Discussion:

See 8.42

Form:

See 8.75

- ☐ Allege that consideration was adequate and contract just and reasonable.

Authority:

Young v. Matthew Turner Co. (1914) 168 C 671, 675, 143 P 1029

Discussion:

See 8.43, 8.44

Form:

See 8.75

- ☐ Allege that plaintiff has performed his or her obligations under contract.

Authority:

Cockrill v. Boas (1931) 213 C 490, 492, 2 P2d 774

Discussion:

See 8.48

Form:

See 8.75

- ☐ Allege that plaintiff has satisfied all conditions precedent under contract.

Authority:

Byrne v. Harvey (1962) 211 CA2d 92, 112-113, 27 CR 110

Discussion:

See 8.48

Form:

See 8.75

- ☐ Allege that defendant failed to perform obligations under contract.

Authority:

CC § 3384

Discussion:

See 8.50

Form:

See 8.75

- ☐ Allege that plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law.

Authority:

Wait v. Kern River Mining, Milling, & Developing Co. (1909) 157 C 16, 24, 106 P 98

Discussion:

See 8.37

Form:

See 8.75

- ☐ If contract is oral, allege that defendant is estopped from relying on statute of frauds.

Authority:

Porporato v. Devincenzi (1968) 261 CA2d 670, 675, 68 CR 210

Discussion:

See 8.51

Form:

See 8.75

- ☐ If appropriate, plead alternative remedies of specific performance and damages.

Authority:

Foreman & Clark Corp. v. Fallon (1971) 3 C3d 875, 883, 92 CR 162, 479 P2d 362

Discussion:

See 8.52

- ☐ File action within applicable limitations period.

Authority:

CCP §§ 337, 339

Discussion:

See 8.36

8.33[3] Opposing Claim for Specific Performance.

- ☐ Analyze complaint to determine appropriate response.

Authority:*CCP § 430.10Discussion:

See 8.57

Form:

See 8.79

☐ Assert any applicable affirmative defenses, such as:Authority:CCP § 430.30Discussion:

See 8.58

Form:

See 8.79

☐ Contract is for personal services.Authority:CC § 3390(1)Discussion:

See 8.58[1]

☐ Defendant's assent to contract was obtained by misrepresentation, concealment, circumvention, or unfair practices.Authority:CC § 3391(3)Discussion:

See 8.58[2]

☐ Defendant's assent to contract was given under mistake, misapprehension, or surprise.Authority:CC § 3391(4)Discussion:

See 8.58[3]

☐ Contract is for performance of an unlawful act.Authority:CC § 3390(3)*

Discussion:

See 8.58[4]

- ☐ Contract is too uncertain to specifically enforce.

Authority:

Henderson v. Fisher (1965) 236 CA2d 468, 477, 46 CR 173

Discussion:

See 8.58[5]

- ☐ Contract is impossible to perform.

Authority:

Anderson v. Neal Insts. Co. (1918) 37 CA 174, 176, 173 P 779

Discussion:

See 8.58[7]

- ☐ Contract is to procure act of a third person.

Authority:

CC § 3390(4)

Discussion:

See 8.58[8]

- ☐ If contract pertains to real property, seller's title is in doubt.

Authority:

CC § 3394

Discussion:

See 8.58[9]

- ☐ Contract requires a succession of continuous acts.

Authority:

Ellison v. Ventura Port Dist. (1978) 80 CA3d 574, 580, 145 CR 665

Discussion:

See 8.58[10]

- ☐ Claim was not brought within applicable limitations period.

Authority:

CCP §§ 337, 339

Discussion:

See 8.58[11]

- ☐ Claim is barred by laches.

Authority:

McGibbon v. Schmidt (1916) 172 C 70, 74, 155 P 460

Discussion:

See 8.58[12]

- ☐ Plaintiff has an adequate remedy at law.

Authority:

Wilkison v. Wiederkehr (2002) 101 CA4th 822, 832-833, 124 CR2d 631

Discussion:

See 8.58[13]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesBuyer's RemediesReplevin & Specific PerformanceContracts
LawRemediesSpecific PerformanceReal Property LawPurchase & SaleRemediesSpecific Performance

97 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.34

8.34 Options and Strategies.

Specific performance is an equitable action to obtain the performance of a contract when a party refuses, or has failed, to perform [Schaefer v. United Bank & Trust Co. (1930) 104 CA 635, 641, 286 P 723]. Specific performance is granted to compel the performance of an affirmative obligation in a contract [see Long Beach Drug Co. v. United Drug Co. (1939) 13 C2d 158, 170-171, 88 P2d 698]. The specific performance of a contract may be compelled except when precluded by statute [CC § 3384; see CC §§ 3386-3395].

A plaintiff alternatively may seek specific performance of an agreement and damages for the breach of that agreement, and the court may award damages if the plaintiff is not entitled to specific performance [Foreman & Clark Corp. v. Fallon (1971) 3 C3d 875, 883, 92 CR 162, 479 P2d 362]. The remedies of damages for breach of contract and specific performance are inconsistent, so a plaintiff cannot receive both [Mycogen Corp. v. Monsanto Co. (2002) 28 C4th 888, 906, 123 CR2d 432, 51 P3d 297 ; see 8.52]. Chiefly, the plaintiff will want to assert that there is no adequate remedy at law, making specific performance the only equitable remedy [see 8.37].

The party opposing specific performance will want to assert that the contract is not suitable for specific performance [see 8.38 -8.42], that the plaintiff has an adequate remedy at law, usually in the form of money damages [see 8.37], or that another affirmative defense such as the statute or limitations, laches, or unclean hands is applicable [see 8.32].

A party who has signed a written contract may be compelled specifically to perform it even if the other party has not signed the contract, if the other party has performed or offers to perform it and the case is otherwise proper for enforcing specific performance [CC § 3388].

If a party wants to compel an agreement not to do something, or to prevent the breach of an affirmative obligation, the appropriate course of action is to seek injunctive relief [see Smith v. Mendonsa (1952) 108 CA2d 540, 542-544, 238 P2d 1039].

Cross References:

Seeking or opposing injunctions and similar relief in contract actions, see 8.59 -8.71.

Seeking temporary injunctions, see Ch. 6, Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesBuyer's RemediesReplevin & Specific PerformanceContracts
LawRemediesSpecific PerformanceReal Property LawPurchase & SaleRemediesSpecific Performance

98 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.35

8.35 Elements of Cause of Action for Specific Performance.

To establish a cause of action for specific performance, the plaintiff must establish all of the following [see generally Henderson v. Fisher (1965) 236 CA2d 468, 472-474, 46 CR 173] :

- There is no adequate remedy at law [see 8.37].
- The obligation sought to be enforced is not one to render personal services or to employ another person in personal service [see 8.38].
- The obligation sought to be enforced is not one to perform an act that the party cannot lawfully perform [see 8.39].
- The obligation sought to be enforced is not one to procure the act or consent of a third party [see 8.41].
- The terms of the agreement sought to be enforced are sufficiently certain to make the precise act to be done clearly ascertainable [see 8.42].
- The party against whom specific performance is sought has received adequate consideration [see 8.43].
- The contract is just and reasonable as to the party against whom specific performance is sought [see 8.44].
- The party seeking specific performance has fully and fairly performed all the conditions precedent to performance under the contract [see 8.48].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesBuyer's RemediesReplevin & Specific PerformanceContracts
LawBreachCauses of ActionGeneral OverviewContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionElements of ClaimsContracts

LawRemediesSpecific PerformanceReal Property LawPurchase & SaleRemediesSpecific Performance

99 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.36

8.36 Either Four-Year or Two-Year Statute of Limitations Applies.

A claim for specific performance of a written contract is subject to the four-year statute of limitations [CCP § 337(1); Estate of Brenzikofer v. Schwarz (1996) 49 CA4th 1461, 1468-1469, 57 CR2d 401]. A claim for specific performance of an oral contract is subject to the two-year statute of limitations [CCP § 339(1); see 8.58[11]].

The statute of limitations begins to run when the cause of action accrues [CCP § 312]. When the cause of action accrues depends on the circumstances of the case [Spear v. California State Automobile Ass'n (1992) 2 C4th 1035, 1040, 9 CR2d 381, 831 P2d 821].

Examples:

- A cause of action for specific performance of an installment contract accrues when the last installment is due [Tahoe Pines Co. v. Newman (1922) 59 CA 186, 190, 210 P 445] .
- An action to compel arbitration, which is essentially an action in equity to compel specific performance of a contract, accrues when one party has refused to arbitrate the controversy [Spear v. California State Automobile Ass'n (1992) 2 C4th 1035, 1042, 9 CR2d 381, 831 P2d 821].
- A contract to make a will is breached only if it has not been complied with on the promisor's death. The cause of action accrues when the promisor dies [Estate of Brenzikofer v. Schwarz (1996) 49 CA4th 1461, 1468-1469, 57 CR2d 401] .

Cross Reference:

See Ch. 4, Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesBuyer's RemediesReplevin & Specific PerformanceCommercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesStatutes of LimitationsTime LimitationsContracts LawRemediesSpecific

Performance Governments Legislation Statutes of Limitations Time Limitations Real Property Law Purchase & Sale Remedies Specific Performance

100 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.37

8.37 Plaintiff Must Have No Adequate Remedy at Law.

8.37[1] Specific Performance Is Unavailable When Damages Will Adequately Compensate Plaintiff. Specific performance is available only when no adequate remedy at law is available to the plaintiff. Most commonly, this means that specific performance is not available if the plaintiff can be adequately compensated by money damages [Palo Alto-Menlo Park Yellow Cab Co. v. Santa Clara County Transit Dist. (1976) 65 CA3d 121, 133, 135 CR 192 ; see DVD Copy Control Assn., Inc. v. Kaleidescape, Inc. (2009) 176 CA4th 697, 725-726, 97 CR3d 856 (contract provision calling for equitable remedy in event of breach will be enforced unless the evidence shows that an aggrieved party has adequate remedy at law or provision is otherwise contrary to law or public policy)].

In determining the adequacy of the plaintiff's remedy at law, the court will look at whether the remedy at law on the contract itself is sufficient, rather than whether the plaintiff has some remedy at law outside the contract [Henderson v. Fisher (1965) 236 CA2d 468, 474, 46 CR 173].

➤ Cross Reference:

Form, see 8.75.

8.37[2] Personal Property Must Be Rare or Unique. Specific performance is not available on contracts relating to personal property when the property does not have a special value to the contracting party and the recovery of damages will enable the plaintiff to purchase other property of like kind and quality [Emirzian v. Asato (1913) 23 CA 251, 256, 137 P 1072]. When the property has rare or sentimental value that cannot be duplicated or replaced, specific performance may be granted [Wehen v. Lundgaard (1940) 41 CA2d 610, 613, 107 P2d 491].

➤ Cross Reference:

Form, see 8.75.

8.37[3] Damages Presumed Inadequate Compensation for Real Property. It is presumed that the breach of an agreement to transfer real property cannot be adequately compensated by monetary damages, and so specific performance is appropriate. For a single-family dwelling that the party seeking performance intends to occupy, the presumption is conclusive. In other cases, this presumption affects the burden of proof [CC § 3387]. The presumption extends to agreements containing covenants to maintain property in a specified condition [Union Oil Co. of California

v. Greka Energy Corp. (2008) 165 CA4th 129, 134, 80 CR3d 738 .

Examples:

- The fact that the buyer in a commercial real property transaction was motivated solely to make a profit from the purchase of the property was insufficient to overcome the strong statutory presumption that damages were inadequate [Real Estate Analytics, LLC v. Vallas (2008) 160 CA4th 463, 476, 72 CR3d 835] .

- The trial court properly ordered specific performance of an oilfield purchaser's contractual obligation to the seller to plug and abandon idle oil wells on the property; the seller obtained the promises to plug and abandon the wells in an effort to avoid future liability to regulatory agencies and landowners [Union Oil Co. of California v. Greka Energy Corp. (2008) 165 CA4th 129, 135, 80 CR3d 738] .

 Cross Reference:

Form, see 8.75.

8.37[4] Specific Performance of Entire Contract May Be Available If Contract Relates to Both Real and Personal Property. If the subject matter of the contract consists partly of land and partly of personal property, specific performance of the entire contract may be available, even though compensation in money would be an adequate remedy for the failure to perform the part of the contract relating to personal property [Henderson v. Fisher (1965) 236 CA2d 468, 473, 46 CR 173] .

 Cross Reference:

Form, see 8.75.

8.37[5] Complaint Must Allege Facts Showing That Damages Are Inadequate. The complaint must allege facts showing the inadequacy of the legal remedy of damages [Korabek v. Weaver Aircraft Corp. (1944) 65 CA2d 32, 40, 149 P2d 876] . It is insufficient to merely allege that the legal remedy is inadequate or that the breach cannot be adequately compensated by damages, which is a conclusion of law [Wait v. Kern River Mining, Milling, & Developing Co. (1909) 157 C 16, 24, 106 P 98] . The plaintiff must allege specific facts showing the inadequacy of the remedy at law [Korabek v. Weaver Aircraft Corp. (1944) 65 CA2d 32, 40, 149 P2d 876] .

Exception:

Because it is presumed that the breach of an agreement to transfer real property cannot be adequately remedied by damages, an allegation of the inadequacy of the legal remedy is not required in this case [see CC § 3387].

 Warning:

Because damages ordinarily are deemed adequate to compensate a party for the loss of personal property, special care should be taken in alleging the reasons why the property in question is unique or why damages otherwise would not be an adequate remedy. The unique characteristics of the property should be noted and the reasons why it is unique should be described. If sentimental value is the reason why damages would be inadequate, that fact should be noted.

 Cross Reference:

Form, see 8.75.

8.37[6] Contract Provision for Equitable Remedy Will Be Enforced Unless Adequate Legal Remedy Exists or Contract Is Contrary to Law or Public Policy. When a contract contains a provision calling for an equitable remedy in the event of breach, a court will honor the parties' agreement and enforce the stipulation, unless the evidence shows that an aggrieved party actually has an adequate remedy at law, or that the provision is otherwise contrary to law or public policy [DVD Copy Control Assn., Inc. v. Kaleidescape, Inc. (2009) 176 CA4th 697, 725-726, 97 CR3d 856] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesBuyer's RemediesReplevin & Specific PerformanceContracts

LawRemediesEquitable ReliefGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesSpecific PerformanceReal Property

LawPurchase & SaleRemediesSpecific Performance

101 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.38

8.38 Contract Must Not Be for Personal Services.

Generally, contracts to render a personal service or to employ another person in personal service may not be specifically enforced [CC § 3390(1), (2); Barndt v. County of Los Angeles (1989) 211 CA3d 397, 404-405, 259 CR 372 (contract for appointment as cardiologist); Lyon v. Goss (1942) 19 C2d 659, 674-675, 123 P2d 11 (contract to employ personal sales representative)]. This is especially true when the relationship between the contracting parties is one of mutual confidence, and the contract stipulates for acts that require special knowledge, skill, or ability, or the exercise of judgment, discretion, integrity, and like personal qualities [Poultry Producers of S. Cal., Inc. v. Barlow (1922) 189 C 278, 288, 208 P 93] .

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

Although a contract to render personal services generally cannot be enforced, an injunction may be granted to prevent breach of a personal service contract [CC § 3423(e); CCP § 526(b)(5)].

Cross Reference:

Injunctive relief for contracts for personal services, see 8.59, 8.76.

Exceptions:

A court may order specific performance of an obligation to perform personal services when the corresponding services by the plaintiff have been fully or substantially performed, making the contract no longer executory [Stone v. Burke (1952) 110 CA2d 748, 756, 244 P2d 51 (employee had already performed his obligation under employment contract by giving up previous employment and had begun taking care of real property for employers)].

An agreement for personal services is subject to specific performance if the services are of such a peculiar, extraordinary, or exceptional character that it is impossible to estimate their value by any pecuniary standard or to adequately compensate for them in money [Porporato v. Devincenzi (1968) 261 CA2d 670, 676-677, 68 CR 210] . When a contract for personal services is specifically enforced, it may not be enforced beyond seven years from the commencement of service under the contract [Lab Code § 2855; De Haviland v. Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc. (1944) 67 CA2d 225, 153 P2d 983] .

Cross References:

Availability of injunctive relief under personal service contracts, see 8.63.

Discussion of contracts for personal services, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 249, Employment Law: Termination and Discipline (Matthew Bender).

Detailed coverage of employment law and contracts, see California Employment Law (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Remedies Specific Performance Contracts Law Types of Contracts Personal Service Agreements

102 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.39

8.39 Specific Performance Cannot Be Used to Compel Performance of Obligation Party Cannot Lawfully Perform.

An agreement to perform an act that the party does not have the power lawfully to perform when required to do so cannot be specifically enforced [CC § 3390(3); Kreamer v. Earl (1891) 91 C 112, 117, 27 P 735 (prospective property owner, who was not U.S. citizen, was not legally entitled to homestead California property)].

Cross Reference:

See Ch. 18, Asserting or Defending Claim That Contract Is Illegal, Contrary to Public Policy, or Unconscionable.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Specific Performance

103 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.40

8.40 Contract Must Not Be Impossible to Perform.

To be subject to specific performance, a contract must call for something that is possible to perform. If there are no means available for the accomplishment of the objects of the contract, whether difficult or practically impossible, the agreement cannot be specifically enforced [Dulin v. Pacific Wood & Coal Co. (1894) 103 C 357, 364, 37 P 207] .

Example:

It was not possible for the court to order, and monitor, one company to make medicinal remedies as specified by another competing company [Anderson v. Neal Insts. Co. (1918) 37 CA 174, 176, 173 P 779] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesBuyer's RemediesReplevin & Specific PerformanceContracts
LawRemediesEquitable ReliefGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesSpecific PerformanceReal Property
LawPurchase & SaleRemediesSpecific Performance

104 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.41

8.41 Contract Must Not Be to Procure Act or Consent of Third Party.

An agreement to procure the act or consent of a third person, including the spouse of the contracting party, is not specifically enforceable [CC § 3390(4); Casady v. Modern Metal Spinning & Mfg. Co. (1961) 188 CA2d 728, 731, 10 CR 790].

Example:

If a co-owner of real property contracts to convey the property and signs the name of the other co-owner to the contract without his or her consent, and that co-owner refuses to perform, the court will not order specific performance of the contract [see Olson v. Lovell (1891) 91 C 506, 508, 27 P 765].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesBuyer's RemediesReplevin & Specific PerformanceContracts
LawRemediesSpecific PerformanceReal Property LawPurchase & SaleRemediesSpecific Performance

105 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.42

8.42 Obligation Must Be Sufficiently Certain to Be Enforced.

For a contract to be specifically enforced, the terms of the contract must be sufficiently certain to make the precise act to be done clearly ascertainable [CC § 3390(5); Crail v. Blakely (1973) 8 C3d 744, 753-754, 106 CR 187, 505 P2d 1027] .

Whether the contractual terms are sufficiently certain for specific enforcement depends on the circumstances of the case. Every term and condition of an agreement need not be set forth in contract, and custom, usage and other extrinsic evidence may assist in making an agreement sufficiently certain for specific performance [Larwin-Southern Cal., Inc. v. JGB Inv. Co. (1979) 101 CA3d 626, 641, 162 CR 52 ; see Patel v. Liebermensch (2008) 45 C4th 344, 351, 86 CR3d 366, 197 P3d 177 (escrow specifications are not necessary terms in contract for sale of real estate)]. Although custom is admissible for the purpose of interpreting the agreement of the parties and for furnishing details not expressly covered, it is not admissible to establish the existence of a contract [White Point Co. v. Herrington (1968) 268 CA2d 458, 468, 73 CR 885] .

Examples:

- A real estate option contract was sufficiently certain to be specifically enforced despite the fact that the length of the escrow period was not specified in the contract; that term could be determined by implication [Patel v. Liebermensch (2008) 45 C4th 344, 350, 86 CR3d 366, 197 P3d 177] .

- An agreement to convey real property that did not include a definite description of the land to be conveyed was not sufficiently certain to warrant specific performance [Carlson v. Richardson (1968) 267 CA2d 204, 206-207, 72 CR 769] .

- A provision in a license agreement stating that the technology that was the subject of the agreement was "intended to prevent casual users from the unauthorized copying of copyrighted materials recorded on DVDs" set forth a standard by which the licensee's performance could be measured. Although the parties disagreed on what that standard required, that dispute could be resolved by the trial court and did not preclude specific performance [DVD Copy Control Assn., Inc. v. Kaleidescape, Inc. (2009) 176 CA4th 697, 719, 97 CR3d 856] .

Consider:

- The terms of a contract to be specifically enforced must be significantly more certain than a contract for which the plaintiff seeks damages [Larwin-Southern Cal., Inc. v. JGB Inv. Co. (1979) 101 CA3d 626, 636, 162 CR 52] .
- If only part of a contract is certain enough for specific performance, the court can order specific performance of just that part of the contract [Lawrence v. Shutt (1969) 269 CA2d 749, 763-764, 75 CR 533] .

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

If the contract is ambiguous, the plaintiff should set forth in the complaint the meaning of the contract; if the plaintiff's construction is reasonable, the plaintiff's construction will be given deference if challenged by demurrer [Connell v. Zaid (1969) 268 CA2d 788, 794-795, 74 CR 371] .

Cross Reference:

Form, see 8.75.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesBuyer's RemediesReplevin & Specific PerformanceContracts
LawRemediesSpecific PerformanceReal Property LawPurchase & SaleRemediesSpecific Performance

106 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT

*1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.438.43 Party Against Whom Specific Performance Is Sought Must Have Received Adequate Consideration.

Specific performance cannot be ordered against a party to a contract unless that party has received adequate consideration for the contract [CC § 3391(1)]. The adequacy of the consideration is a question of fact that depends on the circumstances of the case [Henderson v. Fisher (1965) 236 CA2d 468, 475, 46 CR 173].

"Adequate consideration" does not mean the highest price obtainable, equality of price, or a consideration measuring the value of the property to the fullest extent. It means only a price that is fair and reasonable under the circumstances [Chalmers v. Raras (1962) 200 CA2d 682, 689, 19 CR 531].

Judge's Perspective:

Although "adequate consideration" does not mean the highest price obtainable, it clearly imposes some requirement of fairness on the party seeking specific performance. In one case, for example, a land purchase agreement set a price of $65,000, and expert testimony at trial set fair market value at $99,000. The court found the consideration inadequate [Loeb v. Wilson (1967) 253 CA2d 383, 388, 61 CR 377]. For the purpose of determining whether consideration is adequate, the value of the promised performance is measured as of the time the contract is executed [Paratore v. Perry (1966) 239 CA2d 384, 386, 48 CR 682].

Warning:

The acceptance of the agreed consideration waives any claim of inadequacy, and thus is a waiver of any cause of action for specific performance [Peters v. Binnard (1933) 219 C 141, 150, 25 P2d 834 ; see 8.58[6]].

Cross Reference:

See Ch. 13, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesBuyer's RemediesReplevin & Specific PerformanceContracts LawConsiderationAdequate ConsiderationContracts LawRemediesSpecific PerformanceReal Property LawPurchase & SaleRemediesSpecific Performance

107 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.44

8.44 Contract Must Be Just and Reasonable As to Party Against Whom Specific Performance Is Sought.

Specific performance cannot be enforced against a party to a contract if the contract is not just and reasonable as to that party [CC § 3391(2); Berkeley Lawn Bowling Club v. City of Berkeley (1974) 42 CA3d 280, 290, 116 CR 762] .

Whether a contract is fair and reasonable is determined from the circumstances that existed at the time the contract was made [Ellison v. Ventura Port Dist. (1978) 80 CA3d 574, 582, 145 CR 665] . A change of circumstances that makes performance more difficult or more expensive than expected is not necessarily a bar to specific performance [Ellison v. Ventura Port Dist. (1978) 80 CA3d 574, 582, 145 CR 665] .

To state a cause of action for specific performance, the complaint must allege that the defendant has received adequate consideration and that the contract was just and reasonable as to the defendant [Young v. Matthew Turner Co. (1914) 168 C 671, 675, 143 P 1029 ; Rose v. Lawton (1963) 215 CA2d 18, 19, 29 CR 844 (plaintiff was not entitled to judgment for specific performance when complaint did not allege adequate consideration and that contract was just and reasonable as to defendant)]. The complaint must allege facts supporting the conclusion that the contract is fair and the consideration adequate [Lifton v. Harshman (1947) 80 CA2d 422, 434-435, 182 P2d 222 , disapproved on other grounds, Pao Ch'en Lee v. Gregoriou (1958) 50 C2d 502, 326 P2d 135].

Exception:

The plaintiff need not allege fairness and adequacy of consideration if the defendant has accepted an agreed consideration, because the acceptance of the consideration waives a claim of its inadequacy [Beab, Inc. v. First W. Bank & Trust Co. (1962) 204 CA2d 680, 685, 22 CR 583 ; Conway v. Moore (1945) 70 CA2d 166, 174, 160 P2d 865].

Cross References:

Form, see 8.79.

See also Ch. 18, Asserting or Defending Claim That Contract Is Illegal, Contrary to Public Policy, or Unconscionable.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesBuyer's RemediesReplevin & Specific PerformanceContracts
LawRemediesSpecific PerformanceReal Property LawPurchase & SaleRemediesSpecific Performance

108 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.45

8.45 Contract Must Not Be Unconscionable.

If a court finds, as a matter of law, that a contract or any clause of the contract was unconscionable at the time it was made, it may refuse to enforce the contract, may enforce the remainder of the contract without the unconscionable clause, or may so limit the application of any unconscionable clause as to avoid any unconscionable result [CC § 1670.5(a)]. An "unconscionable" contract is one that is outside the weaker party's expectation, and typically is one-sided and harsh [see Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Servs., Inc. (2000) 24 C4th 83, 113, 99 CR2d 745, 6 P3d 669].

➤ Cross References:

See Ch. 18, Asserting or Defending Claim That Contract Is Illegal, Contrary to Public Policy, or Unconscionable.

See also Ch. 21, Asserting a Particular Construction of Contract.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesBuyer's RemediesReplevin & Specific PerformanceContracts
LawDefensesUnconscionabilityGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesSpecific PerformanceReal Property
LawPurchase & SaleRemediesSpecific Performance

109 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.46

8.46 Defendant's Assent Must Not Have Been Obtained by Misrepresentation, Concealment, Circumvention, or Unfair Practices.

A contract cannot be specifically enforced against a party if that party's assent was obtained by the misrepresentation, concealment, circumvention, or unfair practices of a party to whom performance would become due under the contract, or by a promise of that party that has not been substantially fulfilled [CC § 3391(3)].

➡ Cross Reference:

See Ch. 17, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Fraud, Duress, Menace, and Undue Influence.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC) Sales (Article 2) Remedies Buyer's Remedies Replevin & Specific Performance Contracts Law Defenses Fraud & Misrepresentation General Overview Contracts Law Defenses Fraud & Misrepresentation Material Misrepresentation Contracts Law Remedies Specific Performance Real Property Law Purchase & Sale Remedies Specific Performance

110 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.47

8.47 Defendant's Assent Must Not Have Been Given Under Influence of Mistake, Misapprehension, or Surprise.

A contract will not be specifically enforced if the defendant's assent was given under the influence of mistake, misapprehension, or surprise. However, when the contract provides for compensation in case of mistake, a mistake within the scope of the provision may be compensated, and the contract specifically enforced in other respects, if enforcement is otherwise proper [CC § 3391(4)].

Cross References:

See Ch. 16, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Mistake.

See also Ch. 17, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Fraud, Duress, Menace, and Undue Influence.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesBuyer's RemediesReplevin & Specific PerformanceContracts
LawDefensesGeneral OverviewContracts LawDefensesAmbiguity & MistakeGeneral OverviewContracts
LawRemediesSpecific PerformanceReal Property LawPurchase & SaleRemediesSpecific Performance

111 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.48

8.48 Plaintiff Must Have Fully Performed Conditions Precedent to Defendant's Performance.

8.48[1] Performance of Conditions Precedent Is Required. The party seeking specific performance must first have fully and fairly performed all the conditions precedent on that party's part to the obligation of the other party [CC § 3392].

When that party's failure to perform is only partial and either is entirely immaterial or is capable of being fully compensated, specific performance may be compelled on full compensation being made for the default [CC § 3392; Crail v. Blakely (1973) 8 C3d 744, 754, 106 CR 187, 505 P2d 1027]. Incomplete performance is not a defense to an action for specific performance when there has been substantial performance and full performance was prevented by the defendant [Ambrose v. Alioto (1944) 65 CA2d 362, 369, 150 P2d 502].

➡ Cross Reference:

Discussion of conditions precedent, see Ch. 22, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract.

Exceptions:

Notwithstanding that the agreed counterperformance for the contract is not or would not have been specifically enforceable, specific performance may be compelled if [CC § 3386]:

- Specific performance would otherwise be an appropriate remedy; and
- The agreed counterperformance has been substantially performed or its concurrent or future performance is assured or, if the court deems necessary, can be secured to the satisfaction of the court.

8.48[2] Complaint Must Allege Plaintiff's Performance or Excuse. The plaintiff must allege performance, offer of performance, or excuse for nonperformance of the contract terms and conditions in the complaint [Cockrill v. Boas (1931) 213 C 490, 492, 2 P2d 774 ; Reyburn v. Young (1936) 11 CA2d 478, 479, 54 P2d 86].

A general allegation that plaintiff has duly performed all conditions is sufficient [CCP § 457; Lynn v. Knob Hill Improvement Co. (1917) 177 C 56, 60, 169 P 1009]. However, the plaintiff's excuse for nonperformance must be pleaded specifically [Nelson v. Specialty Records, Inc. (1970) 11 CA3d 126, 141, 89 CR 540] . If a condition precedent must occur before the defendant's duty of performance accrues, a specific allegation of this event must be pleaded [Byrne v. Harvey (1962) 211 CA2d 92, 112-113, 27 CR 110] .

Example:

If the defendant's promise to pay money is conditioned on his or her ability to pay or on the existence of a fund from which payment is to be made, to state a claim for specific performance, the complaint must allege that the condition has been satisfied [Byrne v. Harvey (1962) 211 CA2d 92, 112-113, 27 CR 110] .

8.48[3] Failure to Sign Contract Does Not Bar Specific Performance When Other Party Has Performed. A party who has signed a written contract may be compelled specifically to perform it even though the other party has not signed the contract, if the other party has performed it, or offers to perform it, and the case is otherwise proper for enforcing specific performance [CC § 3388].

Example:

When the purchaser under a written contract for the sale of real property, which was signed only by vendor, took possession of the property after making a down payment, paid the purchase price of $2,400 less $15, placed improvements on the property of $3,500, and nothing remained to be done except deliver the deed, the contract was held enforceable [Boehle v. Benson (1957) 150 CA2d 696, 700-701, 310 P2d 650] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesBuyer's RemediesReplevin & Specific PerformanceContracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsConditions PrecedentContracts LawRemediesSpecific PerformanceReal Property LawPurchase & SaleRemediesSpecific Performance

112 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.49

8.49 Contract Must Not Require Succession of Continuous Acts.

Courts generally will deny specific performance of a contract providing for a succession of continuous acts calling for the exercise of special knowledge, skill, and judgment by the parties, requiring protracted supervision and direction by the court [Ellison v. Ventura Port Dist. (1978) 80 CA3d 574, 580, 145 CR 665] . However, specific performance has been granted in cases in which a party claimed that continuous supervision would be required by the court [see, e.g., Gale v. Seymour (1949) 91 CA2d 727, 728, 205 P2d 752 ; Bakersfield Country Club v. Pacific Water Co. (1961) 192 CA2d 528, 539, 13 CR 573] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesBuyer's RemediesReplevin & Specific PerformanceContracts
LawRemediesSpecific PerformanceReal Property LawPurchase & SaleRemediesSpecific Performance

113 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.50

8.50 Complaint Must Allege Defendant's Failure to Perform.

A complaint must allege facts setting forth the defendant's failure or refusal to perform [see CC § 3384].

Cross Reference:

Form, see 8.75.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesBuyer's RemediesReplevin & Specific PerformanceContracts
LawRemediesSpecific PerformanceReal Property LawPurchase & SaleRemediesSpecific Performance

114 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.51

8.51 For Oral Contract Within Statute of Frauds, Complaint Must Allege That Defendant Is Estopped From Relying on Statute of Frauds.

If a contract is oral and within the statute of frauds, the complaint must allege that the defendant is estopped from relying on the statute of frauds [Porporato v. Devincenzi (1968) 261 CA2d 670, 675, 68 CR 210].

➡ Cross References:

Statute of frauds issues in contract actions, see Ch. 15, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Failure to Comply With Applicable Formalities.

Discussion of the statute of frauds, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 530, Statute of Frauds (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesBuyer's RemediesReplevin & Specific PerformanceContracts LawRemediesSpecific PerformanceContracts LawStatutes of FraudsGeneral OverviewContracts LawStatutes of FraudsExceptionsGeneral OverviewReal Property LawPurchase & SaleRemediesSpecific Performance

115 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.52

8.52 Complaint May Allege Alternative Theories of Recovery.

A plaintiff may seek specific performance of an agreement or, in the alternative, damages for the breach of that agreement, and the court may award damages if the plaintiff is not entitled to specific performance [Foreman & Clark Corp. v. Fallon (1971) 3 C3d 875, 883, 92 CR 162, 479 P2d 362] . However, the remedies of damages for breach of contract and specific performance are inconsistent, so a plaintiff cannot receive both [Tri-Continent Int'l Corp. v. Paris Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1993) 12 CA4th 1354, 1358-1359, 16 CR2d 508].

The plaintiff may seek specific performance in conjunction with other compatible remedies. For example, after a party has succeeded in reforming a contract, the party then may seek to specifically enforce the contract [CC § 3402].

A contract that provides for liquidated damages or a penalty for breach still may be specifically enforced, regardless of whether the breaching party is willing to pay the damages or penalty [CC § 3389; see Dyer Bros. Golden W. Iron Works v. Central Iron Works (1920) 182 C 588, 596, 189 P 445] .

 Cross References:

Discussion of seeking or opposing reformation, see 8.18 et seq.

General discussion of liquidated damages provisions, see Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions, 7.05[3] -[5].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesBuyer's RemediesReplevin & Specific PerformanceContracts
LawRemediesSpecific PerformanceReal Property LawPurchase & SaleRemediesSpecific Performance

116 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.53

8.53 Plaintiff May Recover Damages Incidental to Specific Performance.

8.53[1] Incidental Damages Are Available in Specific Performance Actions. In an action for specific performance, damages incidental to the specific performance decree, such as damages for delay in performance, may be awarded [see Ellis v. Mihelis (1963) 60 C2d 206, 219, 32 CR 415, 384 P2d 7] .

Example:

A party to a contract for the purchase of real property who is entitled to a decree of specific performance also is ordinarily entitled to a judgment for the property's rents and profits from the time the party was entitled to a conveyance [Ellis v. Mihelis (1963) 60 C2d 206, 219, 32 CR 415, 384 P2d 7] .

8.53[2] Specific Performance Claim Must First Be Established. A court cannot award incidental damages unless a cause of action for specific performance has been successfully established [Paratore v. Perry (1966) 239 CA2d 384, 388, 48 CR 682] .

8.53[3] Specific Allegation and Prayer for Incidental Damages Is Not Required. It is not necessary to specifically request incidental damages, though it is advisable to do so if they are justifiable. The prayer for specific performance and the general prayer "for such other and further relief as the court may deem just" are sufficient [Greenstone v. Claretian Theological Seminary (1959) 173 CA2d 21, 32, 343 P2d 161 , disapproved on other grounds, Ellis v. Mihelis (1963) 60 C2d 206, 221, 32 CR 415, 384 P2d 7] .

Cross Reference:

Discussion of calculating incidental damages in specific performance actions, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 528, Specific Performance (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC) Sales (Article 2) Remedies Buyer's Remedies Replevin & Specific Performance Contracts Law Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Specific Performance Real Property Law Purchase & Sale Remedies Specific Performance

117 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.54

8.54 Party Can Seek Specific Performance After Reformation.

A party who has succeeded in reforming a contract may seek to specifically enforce that contract [CC § 3402]. The contract may be reformed and specifically enforced in the same action. The court may also reform the contract and then give money damages, if it finds that specific performance cannot be given in the circumstances [Tomas v. Vaughn (1944) 63 CA2d 188, 193-194, 146 P2d 499] .

Cross Reference:

Seeking reformation, see 8.18 et seq.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesBuyer's RemediesReplevin & Specific PerformanceContracts
LawRemediesReformationContracts LawRemediesSpecific PerformanceReal Property LawPurchase &
SaleRemediesSpecific Performance

118 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.55

8.55 Party May Not Seek Jury Trial for Specific Performance.

In an action for specific performance there is generally no right to a jury trial [Gregory v. Hamilton (1978) 77 CA3d 213, 219-220, 142 CR 563] . In classifying a given action as legal or equitable, the court looks to the nature of the rights at issue and the remedy sought; the label attached to a complaint or cause of action does not control [Benach v. County of Los Angeles (2007) 149 CA4th 836, 845-846, 57 CR3d 363 (prayer for "incidental monetary damages" was insufficient to convert equitable action for specific performance into one at law for which jury trial is required). However, if a plaintiff joins legal and equitable issues in the same action, the plaintiff may demand a jury trial on the legal issues [Farnsworth v. Hunter (1938) 11 C2d 27, 31-32, 77 P2d 840] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsActions in EquityCivil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsRight to Jury TrialCommercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesBuyer's RemediesReplevin & Specific PerformanceContracts LawRemediesSpecific PerformanceReal Property LawPurchase & SaleRemediesSpecific Performance

119 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.56

8.56 Plaintiff May Bring Action for Quasi-Specific Performance Against Deceased Person.

An action for quasi-specific performance is an action for specific performance between the plaintiff and a deceased person. This action technically is not an action for specific performance, because the decedent obviously cannot be compelled to execute a contract. However, if the plaintiff is entitled to receive the performance promised in the contract, the court can declare a constructive trust in the successors to the decedent's estate, who then can be compelled to complete performance [Estate of Brenzikofer v. Schwarz (1996) 49 CA4th 1461, 1467, 57 CR2d 401] .

A cause of action for quasi-specific performance has the same requirements as a cause of action for specific performance [see Henderson v. Fisher (1965) 236 CA2d 468, 473, 46 CR 173 ; see 8.35].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Specific Performance Estate, Gift & Trust Law Trusts Constructive Trusts Real Property Law Purchase & Sale Remedies Specific Performance Real Property Law Trusts Constructive Trusts

120 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.57

8.57 Opposing Claim for Specific Performance.

The party against whom specific performance is sought may rebut one or more of the essential elements that must be proven [see 8.35], as well as raise appropriate affirmative defenses [see 8.58].

If a defect appears on the face of the complaint, the defendant should raise the defenses by demurrer [CCP § 430.10(e)]. If a defect does not appear on the face of the complaint, the defendant should consider raising the defenses by answer or in a motion for summary judgment [CCP §§ 430.30(b), 437c].

➡ Cross Reference:

Discussion of demurrers and answers, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 11, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings; and Ch. 14, Answers.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesBuyer's RemediesReplevin & Specific PerformanceContracts
LawDefensesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesSpecific PerformanceReal Property LawPurchase &
SaleRemediesSpecific Performance

121 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.58

8.58 Defendant Can Assert Affirmative Defenses.

8.58[1] Specific Performance Is Unavailable If Contract Is for Personal Services. If a contract requires performance of personal services, the defendant can raise that fact as an affirmative defense. In most cases, neither an obligation to render personal service nor an obligation to employ another person in personal service can be specifically enforced [CC § 3390(1), (2); but see CC § 3423(e); CCP § 526(b)(5) (specific performance is available for personal services of special, unique, extraordinary, or intellectual character)].

Cross References:

Discussion, see 8.38.

Form, see 8.79.

8.58[2] Specific Performance Is Unavailable If Defendant's Assent to Contract Was Obtained by Misrepresentation, Concealment, Circumvention, or Unfair Practices. Specific performance cannot be enforced against a party to a contract whose assent was obtained by the misrepresentation, concealment, circumvention, or unfair practices of a party to whom performance would become due under the contract, or by the promise of that party, which is not substantially fulfilled [CC § 3391(3)].

Cross References:

Discussion, see 8.46.

Form, see 8.79.

8.58[3] Specific Performance Is Unavailable If Defendant's Assent to Contract Was Given Under Mistake, Misapprehension, or Surprise. Specific performance cannot be enforced against a party to a contract whose assent was given under the influence of mistake, misapprehension, or surprise [CC § 3391(4)].

Cross References:

Discussion, see 8.47

Form, see 8.79.

8.58[4] Specific Performance Is Unavailable If Contract Is for Performance of Unlawful Act. An agreement to perform an act which the party does not have the power lawfully to perform when required to do so cannot be specifically enforced [CC § 3390(3)].

➤ Cross References:

Discussion, see 8.39.

Form, see 8.79.

8.58[5] Specific Performance Is Unavailable If Contract Is Too Uncertain to Enforce. When a contract is uncertain or incomplete, a court will not be able to order specific enforcement, because the terms are too vague to allow the court to be able to craft an order [Henderson v. Fisher (1965) 236 CA2d 468, 477, 46 CR 173].

➤ Cross References:

Discussion, see 8.42.

Form, see 8.79.

8.58[6] Specific Performance Is Unavailable If Plaintiff Waived Right to Specific Performance by Accepting Consideration. The plaintiff's acceptance of the agreed consideration under the contract waives any claim of inadequacy, and thus is a waiver of any cause of action for specific performance [Peters v. Binnard (1933) 219 C 141, 150, 25 P2d 834].

➤ Cross References:

Discussion, see 8.43.

Form, see 8.79.

8.58[7] Specific Performance Is Unavailable If Contract Is Impossible to Perform. Impossibility is a ground for denying specific performance [Anderson v. Neal Insts. Co. (1918) 37 CA 174, 176, 173 P 779 ; see CC § 3423(e)]. If there are no means available for the accomplishment of the objects of the contract, the agreement cannot be specifically enforced [Dulin v. Pacific Wood & Coal Co. (1894) 103 C 357, 364, 37 P 207] .

➤ Cross References:

Discussion, see 8.40.

Form, see 8.79.

8.58[8] Specific Performance Is Unavailable If Contract Procures Act of Third Person. An agreement to procure the act or consent of a third person cannot be enforced [CC § 3390(4)].

➤ Cross References:

Discussion, see 8.41.

Form, see 8.79.

8.58[9] Specific Performance Is Unavailable If Seller's Title in Contract for Real Property Is in Doubt. An agreement for the sale of property cannot be specifically enforced in favor of a seller who cannot give the buyer a title free from reasonable doubt [CC § 3394]. This defense generally is used in situations involving the sale of real property. If the seller has any claim to the property, he or she cannot avoid specific performance just because the title is not exactly as agreed [Groobman v. Kirk (1958) 159 CA2d 117, 126, 323 P2d 867].

Exception:

Although a seller who has no title or interest in land to be conveyed cannot be required to specifically perform, the seller may be required to do so if he or she is equitable owner of the property and has the right to call for legal title [Weisberg v. Ashcraft (1961) 194 CA2d 225, 232, 14 CR 817].

When an obligation as to real property can be specifically enforced against a particular person, it may be enforced against any other person claiming under that person by a title created subsequently to the obligation. However, this does not include a purchaser or encumbrancer in good faith and for value. In addition, any such person can be exonerated by conveying all the estate to the person entitled to enforce the obligations [CC § 3395].

➤ Cross Reference:

Discussion of contracts for the purchase and sale of real property, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 569, Vendor and Purchaser (Matthew Bender).

8.58[10] Specific Performance Is Unavailable If Contract Requires Succession of Continuous Acts. A contract that provides for a succession of continuous acts requiring protracted supervision and direction by the court with the exercise of special knowledge, skill, and judgment by the parties performing the acts will not be specifically enforced [Ellison v. Ventura Port Dist. (1978) 80 CA3d 574, 580, 145 CR 665 ; see 8.49].

➤ Cross References:

Discussion, see 8.49.

Form, see 8.79.

8.58[11] Specific Performance Is Unavailable If Claim Was Not Brought Within Applicable Limitations Period. Specific performance of a written contract is subject to a four-year statute of limitations; specific performance of an oral contract is subject to a two-year statute of limitations [CCP §§ 337(1), 339(1); see 8.36]. Actions not brought within those periods are subject to this affirmative defense.

➤ Cross References:

Discussion, see 8.36.

Form, see 8.79.

General discussion of statutes of limitations, see Ch. 4, Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action.

8.58[12] Specific Performance Is Unavailable If Claim Is Barred by Laches. The defense of laches may be raised when the plaintiff has delayed prosecuting the action, regardless of whether the statute of limitations has not run [Jones v. H.F. Ahmanson & Co. (1969) 1 C3d 93, 120, 81 CR 592, 460 P2d 464].

➤ Cross Reference:

See Ch. 4, Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action, 4.25.

8.58[13] Specific Performance Is Unavailable If Plaintiff Has Adequate Remedy at Law. Specific performance is not available if the plaintiff has an adequate remedy at law, such as monetary damages [Wilkison v.

Wiederkehr (2002) 101 CA4th 822, 832-833, 124 CR2d 631 ; see 8.37].

Cross References:

Discussion, see 8.37.

Form, see 8.79.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Defenses, Demurrers & Objections Affirmative Defenses General Overview Contracts Law Defenses General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Specific Performance Contracts Law Types of Contracts Personal Service Agreements Real Property Law Purchase & Sale Remedies Specific Performance

122 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
V. SEEKING OR OPPOSING INJUNCTIONS IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.59

8.59 CHECKLIST: Seeking or Opposing Injunctions in Contract Actions.

8.59[1] Determining Whether Injunctive Relief Is Available.

☐ Do any of following grounds for injunctive relief exist?

☐ Pecuniary compensation (damages) will not afford adequate relief.

Authority:

CC § 3422(1)

Discussion:

See 8.62

☐ It is extremely difficult to ascertain amount of compensation that would afford adequate relief.

Authority:

CC § 3422(2)

Discussion:

See 8.62

☐ Restraint is necessary to prevent a multiplicity of judicial proceedings.

Authority:

CC § 3422(3)

Discussion:

See 8.61

☐ Is a party to action doing, threatening, about to do, or procuring to be done, some act in violation of rights of another party to action respecting subject of action, and tending to render judgment ineffectual?

Authority:

CCP § 526(a)(3)

Discussion:

See 8.61

☐ Is injunctive relief barred because obligation in question cannot be specifically enforced (with limited exception for personal services contracts)?

Authority:

CC § 3423(e); CCP § 526(a), (b)

Discussion:

See 8.61

☐ If obligation is one for personal services, are services of special, unique, unusual, extraordinary, or intellectual character that give services particular value the loss of which cannot reasonably be compensated by damages?

Authority:

CC § 3423(e); CCP § 526(a)

Discussion:

See 8.63

☐ Does obligation arise out of any of the following?

☐ Trust agreement.

Authority:

CC § 3422; CCP § 526(a)(7)

Discussion:

See 8.64

☐ Valid noncompetition agreement.

Authority:

Martinez v. Martinez (1953) 41 C2d 704, 706, 263 P2d 617 ; City Carpet Beating etc. Works v. Jones (1894) 102 C 506, 509-515, 36 P 841

Discussion:

See 8.65

☐ Cooperative marketing agreement between nonprofit cooperative association or association and member or stockholder.

Authority:

CC § 3423(e)(3); CCP § 526(b)(5)(C); F&A Code § 54265

Discussion:

See 8.66

8.59[2] Seeking Injunctive Relief.

☐ Allege all of following in complaint for injunctive relief:

☐ Elements of a cause of action for wrongful act sought to be enjoined.

Authority:

Art Movers, Inc. v. Ni W., Inc. (1992) 3 CA4th 640, 646-647, 4 CR2d 689

Discussion:

See 8.67

Form:

See 8.76

☐ Grounds for equitable relief.

Authority:

Art Movers, Inc. v. Ni W., Inc. (1992) 3 CA4th 640, 646-647, 4 CR2d 689

Discussion:

See 8.67

Form:

See 8.76

☐ That plaintiff has suffered or will suffer irreparable harm and that plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law.

Authority:

CCP § 526(a)

Discussion:

See 8.67

Form:

See 8.76

☐ Seek injunction in conjunction with final judgment granting desired relief.

Authority:

Art Movers, Inc. v. Ni W., Inc. (1992) 3 CA4th 640, 646-647, 4 CR2d 689

Discussion:

See 8.68

8.59[3] Opposing Claim for Injunctive Relief.

- ☐ Analyze complaint to determine appropriate response and potential affirmative defenses:

Authority:

CCP § 430.10

Discussion:

See 8.70, 8.71

Form:

See 8.80

- ☐ Are acts unlikely to be repeated in future?

Authority:

Early v. Santa Clara Broad. Co. (1962) 211 CA2d 367, 373, 27 CR 212

Discussion:

See 8.71[1]

- ☐ Is plaintiff's claim arguably barred by laches?

Authority:

Gravelly Ford Canal Co. v. Pope & Talbot Land Co. (1918) 36 CA 717, 737, 178 P 155

Discussion:

See 8.71[2]

- ☐ Does plaintiff have an adequate remedy at law?

Authority:

CC § 3422

Discussion:

See 8.71[3]

- ☐ Does public interest require that injunction not be granted?

Authority:

Lamb v. Cal. Water & Tel. Co. (1942) 21 C2d 33, 39, 129 P2d 371

Discussion:

See 8.71[4]

- ☐ Is relief sought contrary to law?

Authority:

Armstrong v. Picquelle (1984) 157 CA3d 122, 129, 203 CR 552

Discussion:

See 8.71[5]

- ☐ Does plaintiff have unclean hands?

Authority:

Art Movers, Inc. v. Ni W., Inc. (1992) 3 CA4th 640, 646-647, 4 CR2d 689

Discussion:

See 8.71[6]

- ☐ Is requested relief overbroad?

Authority:

Aguilar v. Avis Rent A Car Sys. (1999) 21 C4th 121, 178-179, 87 CR2d 132, 980 P2d 846 (employment discrimination case)

Discussion:

See 8.71[7]

- ☐ Is contract one that could not be specifically enforced?

Authority:

CC § 3423(e)

Discussion:

See 8.71[8]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Injunctions General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Injunctive Relief

123 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
V. SEEKING OR OPPOSING INJUNCTIONS IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.60

8.60 Options and Strategies.

An injunction is a writ or order requiring a person to refrain from doing a particular act [CCP § 525; Long Beach Drug Co. v. United Drug Co. (1939) 13 C2d 158, 170-171, 88 P2d 698] .

An injunction to prevent the breach of a contract normally is not granted except in limited situations [CC § 3423; Steinmeyer v. Warner Consol. Corp. (1974) 42 CA3d 515, 519, 116 CR 57 ; see 8.61]. The plaintiff therefore will want to establish the extraordinary circumstances of the case, while the defendant will seek to minimize those circumstances. If the contract is to render personal services, the defendant can establish this as a defense to injunctive relief unless the personal services are of a special, unique, extraordinary, or intellectual nature [see 8.63].

A defendant seeking to avoid imposition of an injunction can assert a variety of defenses, including changed circumstances, laches, the existence of an adequate remedy at law, a public interest overriding the need for the injunction, the plaintiff's unclean hands, and an overbroad injunction [see 8.71].

Distinguish--Injunctions and Specific Performance:

Injunctions differ from the remedy of specific performance in that specific performance normally compels the performance of an affirmative obligation in a contract, while an injunction prohibits an act [see 8.33 et seq.].

Distinguish--Preliminary Injunctions and Permanent Injunctions:

Unlike a preliminary injunction, a permanent injunction is not issued to maintain the status quo [Art Movers, Inc. v. Ni W., Inc. (1992) 3 CA4th 640, 646, 4 CR2d 689 ; CC § 3420]. A permanent injunction is a determination on the merits that a plaintiff has prevailed on a cause of action against a defendant and that equitable relief is appropriate [Art Movers, Inc. v. Ni W., Inc. (1992) 3 CA4th 640, 646, 4 CR2d 689] . A permanent injunction may be the same in scope and effect as a previously granted preliminary injunction, or it may be different, because it is a restraint imposed by a new and distinct order [San Diego Water Co. v. Pacific Coast Steamship Co. (1894) 101 C 216, 221, 35 P 651] .

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

A plaintiff who is seeking injunctive relief should consider whether to first obtain a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction to preserve the status quo and prevent irreparable damage while the litigation seeking a permanent injunction is in progress.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of preliminary injunctions, temporary restraining orders, and other interim remedies, see Ch. 6, Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Injunctions General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Injunctive Relief

124 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
V. SEEKING OR OPPOSING INJUNCTIONS IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.61

8.61 Grounds for Obtaining Permanent Injunction to Prevent Breach of Contract.

To obtain a permanent injunction, the plaintiff must establish one of the following grounds to prevent the breach of an obligation [CCP § 526(a); CC § 3422]:

- Pecuniary compensation would not afford adequate relief.
- It would be extremely difficult to ascertain the amount of compensation that would afford adequate relief.
- The restraint is necessary to prevent a multiplicity of judicial proceedings.
- The obligation arises from a trust.
- The plaintiff is entitled to the relief demanded, and the relief consists in restraining the commission or continuance of an act, for a limited period or perpetually.
- The complaint or affidavits show that the commission or continuance of an act during the litigation would produce waste, or great or irreparable injury, to a party to the action.
- During the litigation, a party to the action is doing, threatens, is about to do, or is planning to some act that violates the rights of another party to the action as to the subject of the action, which tends to render the judgment ineffectual.

Example--Injunction Used to Prevent Party From Acting in Violation of Other Party's Rights:

A permanent injunction has been used in a contract action when a party is threatening to, or about to, destroy potentially discoverable evidence related to the contract [Zakaria v. Lincoln Prop. Co. (1986) 185 CA3d 500, 504-505, 229 CR 669 (seeking preliminary and permanent injunction to enjoin allegedly discriminatory housing policy)].

Prerequisite--Specific Performance Must Be Available:

Ordinarily in order for injunctive relief to be granted, specific performance must be available to enforce the contract in question. If the contract cannot be specifically enforced, injunctive relief cannot be granted [CC § 3423(e); Steinmeyer v. Warner Consol. Corp. (1974) 42 CA3d 515, 519, 116 CR 57 ;

Golden W. Baseball Co. v. City of Anaheim (1994) 25 CA4th 11, 49-50, 31 CR2d 378 ; see 8.33 et seq.].

Examples--Injunction Granted:

- A contracting party enjoined a stranger to the contract from unlawfully interfering with business or rights under the contract when the stranger's acts would result in irreparable injury [California Grape Control Bd., Ltd. v. California Produce Corp. (1935) 4 CA2d 242, 244, 40 P2d 846].
- A party who bought a business and its goodwill, and agreed that the seller would refrain from carrying on a similar business within a specified area for a specified time, could enforce the agreement by injunction against the seller [General Paint Corp. v. Seymour (1932) 124 CA 611, 615, 12 P2d 990].
- A searcher of title records who contracted with the purchaser of the abstracting company not to engage in abstracting work in a particular locality during a particular time could seek an injunction to restrain the breach of that contract [Ragsdale v. Nagle (1895) 106 C 332, 334-335, 39 P 628].
- In a transaction in which a party who leased premises to sell candy and fountain drinks, in which the parties contracted that the lessor would not rent, for a similar purpose, any other part of the building abutting on that street, the parties' covenant could be protected by injunction [Pappadatos v. Market St. Bldg. Corp. (1900) 130 CA 62, 64, 19 P2d 517].

Examples--Injunction Denied:

- In a written contract that contained a negative covenant of exclusive agency and affirmative covenants for the defendant to sell products to the plaintiff and for the plaintiff to purchase them, the affirmative covenant could not be specifically enforced, so an injunction was not available to prevent a breach of the negative covenant [Long Beach Drug Co. v. United Drug Co. (1939) 13 C2d 158, 172, 88 P2d 698].
- A permanent injunction prohibiting an automobile manufacturer from breaching its contract with a distributor was not granted when the effect of the injunction would have been to specifically enforce the dealership agreement requiring the manufacturer to sell its products to the dealer over an indefinite term, and the decree would impose on the court the impossible task of supervising continuous performance by the parties [Thayer Plymouth Ctr., Inc. v. Chrysler Motors Corp. (1967) 255 CA2d 300, 304, 63 CR 148].
- Because an oral contract to make a will cannot be specifically enforced, an injunction is not available to prevent the breach of the parties' oral contract [O'Brien v. O'Brien (1925) 197 C 577, 588, 241 P 861].

Search California State and Federal Cases:

Use lexis.com to search for contract cases involving injunctive relief:

- Legal > States Legal--U.S. > California > Cases > CA Federal and State Cases, Combined

○ Sample Search: To find California federal and state contract cases involving a request for injunction, try: core-terms(contract) and disposition(injunct!).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Injunctions Elements General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Injunctions Permanent Injunctions Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Injunctive Relief

125 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
V. SEEKING OR OPPOSING INJUNCTIONS IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.62

8.62 Plaintiff Must Have No Adequate Remedy at Law.

If monetary damages give the plaintiff adequate relief and the amount of monetary damages is not extremely difficult to ascertain, an injunction may not be granted [Thayer Plymouth Ctr., Inc. v. Chrysler Motors Corp. (1967) 255 CA2d 300, 306, 63 CR 148] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Injunctions General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Injunctions Elements Irreparable Harm Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Injunctive Relief

126 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
V. SEEKING OR OPPOSING INJUNCTIONS IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.63

8.63 Injunction to Enforce Personal Services Contract Is Available Only Under Very Limited Circumstances.

8.63[1] Injunctive Relief Generally Is Unavailable to Enforce Personal Service Contracts. Generally, contracts to render personal service and to employ another person in personal service are not specifically enforceable [CC § 3390; see 8.38], and hence an injunction to enforce performance of such a contract generally is unavailable [see CC § 3423(e); CCP § 526(b)(5); see generally, e.g., Woolley v. Embassy Suites, Inc. (1991) 227 CA3d 1520, 1533-1534, 278 CR 719 (reasons why such contracts are not specifically enforceable)]. However, there are a number of very specific exceptions to this rule that may permit use of injunctions to enforce personal service contracts under limited circumstances [see 8.63[2]].

Cross References:

Form, see 8.76.

Discussion of contracts for personal services, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 249, Employment Law: Termination and Discipline (Matthew Bender).

8.63[2] Injunction Is Available When Personal Services Are Extraordinary or Unique. An injunction can be granted to prevent the breach of a contract in writing for the rendition of personal services from one person to another if both of the following conditions are satisfied [CC § 3423(e); CCP § 526(b)]:

- The promised service is of a special, unique, unusual, extraordinary, or intellectual character, which gives it peculiar value, the loss of which cannot be reasonably or adequately compensated in damages in an action at law; and
- The individual who promised to render the service has received compensation for the covered personal services commensurate with a complex statutory formula [see CC § 3423(e)(2); CC § 526(b)(5)].

Consider:

Attorneys may find the statute confusing because it speaks in general terms and prescribes an arcane compensation formula as a test for when the statute can be applied. In practice, the statute usually will be applied to exclusive performance contracts between athletes, actors, musicians, or other performance artists on one hand, and teams, producers, or impresarios on the other [see, e.g., Lemat Corp. v. Barry (1969) 275 CA2d 671, 675-676, 80 CR 240 (basketball player); Foxx v. Williams (1966) 244 CA2d 223, 235, 52 CR 896 (comedian/actor); MCA Records, Inc. v. Newton-John (1979) 90 CA3d 18, 22, 153 CR 153 (singer)]. When the performance of an artist or athlete is at issue, the employer normally has contracted for the exclusive right to the performer's services for a specified period. That no other person may employ the performer during that period is considered part of the right for which the employer has bargained and compensated the performer [Lemat Corp. v. Barry (1969) 275 CA2d 671, 677-678, 80 CR 240] . The peculiar compensation formula is the result of negotiations between the legislative sponsor of the 1993 amendment putting it in place and various interested persons including talent attorneys, representatives from the recording, television, and motion picture industry, and unions for performing artists [see generally Assembly Committee on Judiciary, Report on SB 487 (Aug. 18, 1993); see also Motown Record Corp. v. Brockert (1984) 160 CA3d 123, 128-129, 207 CR 574 (description and explanation of practical problems caused by previous version of statute, which 1993 negotiated amendment was expected to cure)].

The ability to enjoin a contract for personal services is subject to the compensation requirements set forth in CC § 3423 and duration limits Lab Code § 2855 [see, e.g., Motown Record Corp. v. Brockert (1984) 160 CA3d 123, 134, 207 CR 574] .

Consider:

The statutory compensation formula [see CC § 3423(e)(2); CC § 526(b)(5)] refers to an employment period of up to seven years because under the Labor Code, a contract to render personal service (other than a contract of apprenticeship) generally may not be enforced against the employee beyond seven years from the commencement of service under the contract [see Lab Code § 2855(a)]. When a court issues an injunction under CCP § 526(b)(5), it cannot endure beyond the expiration of the contract being enforced, or beyond the statutory period of seven years, whichever period of duration would be shorter.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Injunctions General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Injunctive Relief Contracts Law Types of Contracts Personal Service Agreements

127 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
V. SEEKING OR OPPOSING INJUNCTIONS IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.64

8.64 Injunction Can Enforce Trust Agreement.

An injunction may be granted to prevent the breach of an obligation arising from a trust [CC § 3422; CCP § 526(a)(7)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Injunctions General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Injunctive Relief Estate, Gift & Trust Law Trusts General Overview Real Property Law Trusts General Overview

128 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
V. SEEKING OR OPPOSING INJUNCTIONS IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.65

8.65 Injunction Can Enforce Noncompetition Agreement.

Although noncompetition agreements generally are prohibited [see B&P Code § 16600], it is possible to make an enforceable noncompetition agreement in limited circumstances:

- The seller of a business can agree not to compete with the buyer [B&P Code § 16601].
- A withdrawing partner can agree not to compete with the partnership [B&P Code § 16602].
- A withdrawing member of a limited liability company can agree not to compete with the company [B&P Code § 16602.5].

Such an agreement can be enforced by injunction [see, e.g., Martinez v. Martinez (1953) 41 C2d 704, 706, 263 P2d 617; City Carpet Beating etc. Works v. Jones (1894) 102 C 506, 509-515, 36 P 841] .

Distinguish:

An employee's contractual obligation not to compete with the employer after termination of the employment generally is not enforceable except as necessary to protect the employer's trade secrets and properly confidential information [B&P Code § 16600; see, e.g., Fortna v. Martin (1958) 158 CA2d 634, 638-640, 323 P2d 146 (judgment granting injunction against employee was reversed)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Injunctions General Overview Computer & Internet Law Trade Secret Protection Noncompetition & Nondisclosure Agreements Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Injunctive Relief Labor & Employment Law Employment Relationships Employment Contracts Conditions & Terms Trade Secrets & Unfair Competition Noncompetition & Nondisclosure Agreements Trade Secrets Law Ownership Rights Covenants Not to Compete

129 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
V. SEEKING OR OPPOSING INJUNCTIONS IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.66

8.66 Injunction Can Enforce Nonprofit Cooperative Marketing Contract.

Two statutory provisions authorize a cooperative marketing association to obtain an injunction to prevent the breach of a cooperative marketing agreement by a producer or provider of a commodity covered by the agreement:

- An injunction may be granted to prevent the breach of a contract entered into between any nonprofit cooperative corporation or association and a member of the association or shareholder of the corporation, in respect to any provision regarding the sale or delivery to the association or corporation of the products produced or acquired by the member or shareholder [CC § 3423(e)(3); CCP § 526(b)(5)(C); see generally Poultry Producers of S. Cal., Inc. v. Barlow (1922) 189 C 278, 285-286, 208 P 93 (opinion that was partially abrogated by 1925 amendment adding this statutory provision)].
- If there is a threatened breach of a marketing contract by a member of an association that is governed by the nonprofit cooperative associations law [see F&A Code § 54001 et seq.], the association is entitled to an injunction to prevent the threatened breach and is entitled to a decree of specific performance of the contract [F&A Code § 54265].

Consider:

Cooperative marketing contracts are specifically enforceable by the marketing association in many cases [see, e.g., Corp Code § 13356 (nonprofit fish-marketing association's contract); F&A Code §§ 54263, 54265 (nonprofit cooperative association's contract); see also Colma Vegetable Ass'n v. Bonetti (1928) 91 CA 103, 114, 267 P 172 (application of former cooperative marketing act)], and thus they would also be enforceable by injunction on that ground [see Ch. 6, Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions, 6.05[4]].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Injunctive Relief

130 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
V. SEEKING OR OPPOSING INJUNCTIONS IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.67

8.67 Requirements to Obtain Permanent Injunction.

To obtain a permanent injunction, the plaintiff must allege in the complaint and prove the following [Art Movers, Inc. v. Ni W., Inc. (1992) 3 CA4th 640, 646-647, 4 CR2d 689] :

- The elements of a cause of action involving the wrongful act sought to be enjoined.
- The grounds for equitable relief, such as inadequacy of the remedy at law.

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

Although they appear to be separate grounds for relief, allegations of irreparable injury and an inadequate remedy at law are traditionally included in a complaint for injunctive relief [see Art Movers, Inc. v. Ni W., Inc. (1992) 3 CA4th 640, 646-647, 4 CR2d 689] . This is true even though CC § 3422, which governs the issuance of final injunctions, does not list irreparable injury as a ground for obtaining a final injunction. This is because an injury is not considered irreparable when it can be adequately compensated in damages, i.e., when the remedy at law is adequate [Helms Bakeries v. State Bd. of Equalization (1942) 53 CA2d 417, 425, 128 P2d 167 (revocation of resale permit)]. The questions of whether an actual or threatened injury is irreparable and whether the legal remedy is adequate are so inextricable that the two should be considered together [People v. Monterey Fish Prods. Co. (1925) 195 C 548, 564, 234 P 398 (injunction to prevent improper handling of fish products)]. Therefore, the complaint should allege facts showing actual or threatened injury and facts showing that the legal remedy of an action for damages is inadequate [see Brownfield v. Daniel Freeman Marina Hosp. (1989) 208 CA3d 405, 410, 256 CR 240 (injunction seeking to require hospital to counsel rape victims)].

Cross Reference:

Form, see 8.76.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Injunctions Elements General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Injunctions Permanent

Injunctions Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Injunctive Relief

131 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
V. SEEKING OR OPPOSING INJUNCTIONS IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.68

8.68 Permanent Injunction Can Be Obtained by Seeking Judgment Granting Desired Relief.

As in other civil actions, a permanent injunction can be obtained by seeking a judgment that grants the desired relief [see Art Movers, Inc. v. Ni W., Inc. (1992) 3 CA4th 640, 646-647, 4 CR2d 689] .

Strategic Point:

When an injunction is a part of the final judgment that adjudicates all of the rights of the parties, a notice or an order to show cause (as is required before the issuance of a preliminary injunction) is not necessary [Knox v. Wolfe (1946) 73 CA2d 494, 506, 167 P2d 3].

Cross Reference:

Discussion and forms relating to obtaining and entering judgments in general, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 318, Judgments (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Injunctions Permanent Injunctions Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Injunctive Relief

132 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
V. SEEKING OR OPPOSING INJUNCTIONS IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.69

8.69 Jury Trial Is Unavailable.

Because an injunction is an equitable remedy [Tide Water Associated Oil Co. v. Superior Court (1955) 43 C2d 815, 822, 279 P2d 35 (waste of petroleum resources)], there is generally no right to a jury trial [People v. Englebrecht (2001) 88 CA4th 1236, 1245, 106 CR2d 738 (action to abate public nuisance and for injunctive relief)]. However, a plaintiff's suit may combine legal and equitable relief and seek both a money judgment and injunctive relief, for which a jury trial is appropriate on the legal issues [St. James Church of Christ Holiness v. Superior Court (1955) 135 CA2d 352, 361, 287 P2d 387 (action to restrain trustee from improperly collecting church's rental income)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsActions in EquityCivil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsRight to Jury TrialCivil
ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesEquitable ReliefInjunctive Relief

133 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
V. SEEKING OR OPPOSING INJUNCTIONS IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.70

8.70 Opposing Party Can Contest Existence of Essential Element.

The party against whom a permanent injunction is sought may rebut one or more of the essential elements that must be proven [see 8.61, 8.67], as well as raise applicable affirmative defenses [see 8.71].

If a defect appears on the face of the complaint, the defendant should raise the defenses by demurrer [CCP § 430.10(e)]. If a defect does not appear on the face of the complaint, the defendant should consider raising the defenses by answer or a motion for summary judgment [CCP § 430.30(b)].

► Cross References:

Requirements for pleading injunctive relief, see 8.67.

Form, see 8.80.

Discussion of demurrers and answers, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 11, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleading; and Ch. 14, Answers.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Injunctions Elements General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Injunctive Relief

134 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
V. SEEKING OR OPPOSING INJUNCTIONS IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.71

8.71 Defendant Can Raise Affirmative Defenses.

8.71[1] Changed Circumstances Render Injunctive Relief Unnecessary. To justify injunctive relief, it must appear with reasonable certainty that the wrongful acts will be continued or repeated [Early v. Santa Clara Broad. Co., (1962) 211 CA2d 367, 373, 27 CR 212 ; see Sahlolbei v. Providence Healthcare, Inc. (2003) 112 CA4th 1137, 1156-1157 (termination of doctor's hospital staff privileges)]. Absent extraordinary circumstances, injunctive relief may not be granted when events have rendered the relief unnecessary or ineffectual [Paul v. Milk Depots, Inc. (1964) 62 C2d 129, 133 (regulation of milk prices)].

Injunctive relief is not applicable to wrongs that have been completed or that have voluntarily ceased; relief will be denied absent a showing that past violations will probably recur [Cisneros v. U.D. Registry, Inc. (1995) 39 CA4th 548, 574, 46 CR2d 233 (improper credit reporting practices)].

➤ Cross Reference:

Form, see 8.80.

8.71[2] Plaintiff's Claim Can Be Barred by Laches. The equitable defense of laches may be asserted in a suit for an injunction by showing unreasonable delay in bringing the action and prejudice to the responding party from the delay [Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 CA3d 1, 14, 244 CR 581 (action to enjoin election regarding ballot measure)]. There is no bright-line rule as to the length of time that operates to bring about laches, and the defense may be invoked even if the delay is less than an applicable limitation period [Holt v. County of Monterey (1982) 128 CA3d 797, 801, 180 CR 514 (challenging approval of condominium development plan)].

➤ Cross Reference:

Form, see 8.80.

8.71[3] Injunction Is Unavailable If Plaintiff Has Adequate Remedy at Law. A responding party may challenge an injunction on the ground that a legal remedy (i.e., monetary damages) would be adequate, and hence injunctive relief is not called for [see CC § 3422; Thayer Plymouth Ctr., Inc. v. Chrysler Motors Corp. (1967) 255 CA2d 300, 306, 63 CR 148] .

 Cross References:

Form, see 8.80.

Discussion, see 8.62.

8.71[4] Injunction Is Unavailable If Not in Public Interest. Although a party may have made a prima facie case for injunctive relief, the court must consider the interests of third persons, if any, and the general public before issuing an injunction, and may decline to issue an injunction if it is in the public interest to do so [see Lamb v. Cal. Water & Tel. Co. (1942) 21 C2d 33, 39, 129 P2d 371] .

Example:

When a landowner was not being deprived of water to be delivered under a contract, but merely disputed the price to be paid for the water and wanted the water delivered by a mandatory order for an unspecified "necessary" amount without state regulation, the public interest in appropriate public use of water made damages, not injunctive relief, the appropriate remedy [Lamb v. Cal. Water & Tel. Co. (1942) 21 C2d 33, 40-43, 129 P2d 371] .

8.71[5] Injunction Is Unavailable If Relief Granted Would Be Contrary to Law. An injunction may not be granted when the relief requested would be contrary to the requirements of the law [Armstrong v. Picquelle (1984) 157 CA3d 122, 129, 203 CR 552].

Example:

A court could not validly order interest to be paid on partnership loan transactions, as specified in a contract at 14 percent, which was above the constitutional legal maximum limit of 7 percent [Armstrong v. Picquelle (1984) 157 CA3d 122, 129, 203 CR 552].

8.71[6] Injunction Is Unavailable If Plaintiff Has Unclean Hands. The defendant may challenge an action for an injunction by claiming that the plaintiff has unclean hands, by which the plaintiff is precluded from recovery due to dishonest, unfair, or unconscionable conduct [see Art Movers, Inc. v. Ni W., Inc. (1992) 3 CA4th 640, 646-647, 4 CR2d 689] . The misconduct must relate directly to the cause of action and prejudicially affect the rights of the person against whom the relief is sought so that it would be inequitable to grant such relief [Jay Bharat Developers, Inc. v. Minidis (2008) 167 CA4th 437, 446, 84 CR3d 267 (franchisees' allegations that franchisor failed to disclose pending litigation when the parties entered into a franchise agreement did not preclude franchisor from obtaining preliminary injunction prohibiting franchisees from using franchisor's trademarks after franchisor terminated franchise agreement)].

 Cross Reference:

Form, see 8.80.

8.71[7] Injunctive Relief Is Unavailable If Relief Sought Is Overbroad. The defendant may assert that an injunction is overbroad. For example, an injunction cannot issue in a vacuum based on the proponent's fear about something that may happen in the future--it must be specific and be supported by actual evidence that there is a realistic prospect that the party enjoined intends to engage in the prohibited activity [Aguilar v. Avis Rent A Car Sys. (1999) 21 C4th 121, 178-179, 87 CR2d 132, 980 P2d 846 (injunction prohibiting racial epithets not overbroad); see Korean Philadelphia Presbyterian Church v. California Presbyterian (2000) 77 CA4th 1069, 1083, 92 CR2d 275].

Strategic Point--Defendant:

The defendant should evaluate the possible overbreadth of the proposed injunction and determine whether a more limited order is justified.

8.71[8] Injunctive Relief Is Unavailable If Contract Cannot Be Specifically Enforced. If specific performance would be unavailable to enforce an obligation, injunctive relief ordinarily also is unavailable, except in the case of personal service contracts meeting detailed criteria [CC § 3423(e); Golden W. Baseball Co. v. City of Anaheim (1994) 25 CA4th 11, 49-50, 31 CR2d 378 ; see 8.61]. Therefore, if the contract is of a type that cannot be specifically enforced, the defendant should assert that fact in response to a complaint seeking injunctive relief.

Cross Reference:

Form, see 8.80.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Defenses, Demurrers & Objections Affirmative Defenses General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Injunctions General Overview Contracts Law Defenses General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Injunctive Relief

135 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions

VI. FORMS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.72

8.72 Notice of Rescission of Contract.Notice of Rescission of Contract.

 _____ TO: [name, e.g., Mary Jones]
 _____ [address]

 _____ You are hereby notified that the undersigned hereby rescinds that certain contract between [identify parties, e.g., _____ John Smith and Mary Jones] dated _____, for [specify subject matter of contract, e.g., the sale of Mary Jones' original, signed copy of Charles Dickens' novel Bleak House to John Smith for the sum of $5,000].

 _____ This rescission is made on the ground that [e.g., Mary Jones' copy of Bleak House is not an original copy, and the signature of Charles Dickens' name therein is a forgery].

 _____ The undersigned hereby offers to restore and tenders to you all consideration and benefits received pursuant to the contract, specifically [e.g., Mary Jones' copy of the novel Bleak House _____]. This offer is conditioned on you restoring the consideration you received under this contract, specifically [specify, e.g., the sum of $5,000 that the undersigned previously tendered you for the item described above]. The undersigned hereby demands that you restore that consideration to him/her immediately.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

NOTES.

Authority:

CC § 1691

Use of Form:

See 8.10

Timing:

See 8.10

Complaint for Relief Based on Rescission:

See 8.73

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)Form, Formation & ReadjustmentModification, Rescission & WaiverContracts
LawRemediesRescission & RedhibitionGeneral Overview

136 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
VI. FORMS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.73

8.73 Complaint for Relief Based on Rescission of Contract.Complaint for Relief Based on Rescission of Contract.

[Name of attorney]

_____[Street address]

_____[City, state, and ZIP]

_____[Area code and phone number]

_____[State Bar no. of attorney]

Attorney for _____[name of party]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,

COUNTY OF _____

[name(s)] _____,

Plaintiff(s), _____)

vs. _____)

[name(s)] _____,

[and DOES 1 THROUGH _____,

_____,]

Defendant(s). _____)

NO.

COMPLAINT FOR RESCISSION

[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

[Amount Demanded _____

_____) (Exceeds or Does Not Exceed) $10,000]

Plaintiff _____[name] alleges:

[For an individual plaintiff]

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.73

1. Plaintiff is an individual residing in _____ [city, if any, and county], California, [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____] [, and therein doing business under the fictitious business name of _____.

Plaintiff has duly complied in all respects with the requirements of Business and Professions Code Sections 17910 through 17917 with respect to this fictitious business name].

[OR, for a domestic corporation or domestic limited liability company]

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of California, with its principal place of business in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____] [, and therein doing business under the fictitious business name of _____.

Plaintiff has duly complied in all respects with the requirements of Business and Professions Code Sections 17910 through 17917 with respect to this fictitious business name].

[OR, for a foreign corporation or foreign limited liability company]

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of _____ [state or foreign country], and _____ [for foreign corporation authorized to do business and doing business in California or, for foreign limited liability company maintaining action or intrastate business, and registered to transact intrastate business in California], with its principal place of business in California in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____].

[OR, for a general or limited partnership or an unincorporated association]

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [partnership or unincorporated association] with its principal place of business in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____] [, and therein doing business under the fictitious business name of _____.

Plaintiff has duly complied in all respects with the requirements of Business and Professions Code Sections 17910 through 17917 with respect to this fictitious business name].

[CONTINUE]

[For an individual defendant]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is an individual residing in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____].

_____] [and doing business therein under the fictitious business name of _____].

[OR, for a domestic corporation or domestic limited liability company]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of California [, with its principal place of business in _____ (city, if any, and county), California (, in the _____ [name of judicial district, if any])].

[OR, for a foreign corporation or foreign limited liability company]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of _____ [state or foreign country], with its principal place of business in _____ (city, if any, and county), California (, in the _____ [name of judicial district, if any])].

[OR, for a general or limited partnership or an unincorporated association]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [a partnership or an unincorporated association] sued herein under the name _____ [it has assumed or by which it is known], with its principal place of business in _____ (city, if any, and county), California (, in the _____ [name of judicial district, if any]). [Defendants (names of individual partners or members) _____ are, and at all times herein mentioned were, members of that _____ (partnership or unincorporated association) (and are, and at all times herein mentioned were, residents of _____ County, California)].

[CONTINUE]

3. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of Defendants sued herein as DOES 1 through _____ [numeral, e.g., 50], inclusive, and therefore sues these Defendants by these fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named Defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that Plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by those Defendants.]

4. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that at all times material to this complaint, _____ [identify defendants to whom agency allegation applies, e.g., each of the Defendants or each of the individual Defendants or Defendant Harry Jones], [and each of the Defendants fictitiously named in this complaint,] in addition to acting for himself, herself, or itself and on his, her, or its own behalf individually, is and was acting as the agent, servant, employee and representative of, and with the knowledge, consent and permission of, and in conspiracy with, each and all of the Defendants and within the course, scope and authority of that agency, service, employment, representation, and conspiracy. Plaintiff further alleges on information and belief that the acts of each of the Defendants were fully ratified by each and all of the Defendants. Specifically, and without limitation, Plaintiff alleges on information and belief that the actions, failures to act, breaches, conspiracy, and misrepresentations alleged herein and attributed to one or more of the specific Defendants were approved, ratified, and done with the cooperation and knowledge of each and all of the Defendants.

5. On or about _____ [date], at _____ [place], Plaintiff and Defendant entered into _____ [a written or an oral] contract whereby Plaintiff agreed to _____ [specify plaintiff's obligation, e.g., purchase from Defendant] and Defendant agreed to _____ [specify defendant's obligation; e.g., sell to Plaintiff Defendant's 1997 Mercedes 500 SEL automobile, California license number 1STU123, for the sum of $10,000]. [A copy of the contract is attached as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference].

6. _____ [Set forth in this and subsequently numbered paragraphs allegations specifying details of factual basis for rescission, as illustrated in the example in Paragraphs 6 through 10, below; e.g., On or about June 15, 2005, in San Francisco, California, Defendant, knowing the representations to be false and with the intent to deceive Plaintiff and to induce him/her to enter into the contract, falsely and fraudulently represented to Plaintiff that the odometer correctly indicated that the automobile had only been driven approximately 25,000 miles and that no repairs to the automobile other than normal maintenance had ever been necessary or made.

7. The representations made by Defendant were in fact false. The true facts were that _____ (specify, e.g., the odometer had been turned back and the automobile had in fact been driven approximately 125,000 miles by the date the parties made their contract. Further, the automobile had been involved in a collision and although major repairs were made to it on account of the collision, it was never thereafter possible to align it properly)].

8. At the time the representations were made, and at the time Plaintiff entered into the contract, and at the time Plaintiff rendered his/her performance under the contract, Plaintiff did not know the representations were false, but believed them to be true and reasonably relied on them. Had Plaintiff known the true facts, he/she would not have entered into the contract and would not have rendered or accepted performance thereunder.

9. Under the terms of the contract, _____ [specify plaintiff's performance of contractual obligations, e.g., on or about June 20, 2003, Plaintiff personally delivered to Defendant a cashier's check number 123-4567 payable to Defendant in the amount of $10,000, the full purchase price].

10. On or about June 21, 2005, Defendant delivered possession of the automobile to Plaintiff, along with the registration and certificate of ownership that he/she had properly endorsed. Thereafter, _____ (specify facts showing plaintiff's discovery of basis for rescission, e.g., on or about June 25, 2005, Plaintiff discovered the true facts to be those alleged in Paragraph 7. The automobile overheated often in traffic and after Plaintiff had owned it for a few days, pulled to the right when the brakes were applied, and the tires were wearing unevenly. In the course of having these problems repaired, Plaintiff discovered the true facts)].

[CONTINUE]

[EITHER, if notice of rescission has not been given and plaintiff has not received anything of value]

12. Plaintiff intends service of the summons and complaint in this action to serve as notice of rescission of the contract, and hereby demands that Defendant restore to him/her the consideration furnished by Plaintiff, specifically _____ [specify, e.g., $15,000, representing the contract price of $10,000, plus $5,000 representing consequential damages, for repairs, gas, and the cost of rental cars].

[OR, if notice of rescission has not been given and plaintiff has received something of value]

13. Plaintiff intends service of the summons and complaint in this action to serve as notice of rescission of the contract, and hereby offers to restore all consideration furnished by Defendant under the contract, on condition that Defendant restore to him/her the consideration furnished by Plaintiff, specifically _____ [specify, e.g., the sum of $10,000 plus $5,000 consequential damages, less the reasonable value to Plaintiff of the use of the automobile for the few days before the misrepresentations were discovered].

[OR, if a notice of rescission and, when necessary, an offer to restore, which sufficiently set forth all claims and demands, have already been given]

13. On or about _____ [date], Plaintiff notified Defendant in writing that Plaintiff had rescinded the contract on the ground of _____ [specify, e.g., fraudulent misrepresentation]. A copy of that notice is attached as Exhibit B and incorporated by reference. Defendant refused, and continues to refuse, to restore to Plaintiff, in whole or in part, the consideration paid by Plaintiff or to recognize that the contract has been rescinded.

[CONTINUE]

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff prays as follows:

1. That this court declare that the contract has been rescinded;

2. That Defendant be ordered to pay Plaintiff the following sums:

_____ [specify damages, e.g., the consideration paid by Plaintiff in the sum of $10,000, with interest at 5 percent per annum from July 1, 2003; and the sums paid, by Plaintiff for gas, repairs, and rental cars in the sum of $5,000 with interest thereon at 5 percent per annum from July 1, 2003].

3. For costs of suit; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court deems proper.

Dated: _____

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Defendant _____

[ADD following verification, if applicable]

VERIFICATION

I am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action; I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

NOTES.

Authority:

CC §§ 1688-1693

Grounds for Rescission:

See 8.05

Pleading Requirements:

See 8.10

Notice of Rescission:

See 8.72

Damages Available to Plaintiff:

See 8.14

Additional Forms:

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution (Matthew Bender)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Pleadings Complaints General Overview Commercial Law (UCC) Sales (Article 2) Form, Formation & Readjustment Modification, Rescission & Waiver Contracts Law Remedies Rescission & Redhibition General Overview

137 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
VI. FORMS

*1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.748.74 Complaint for Reformation of Contract.*Complaint for Reformation of Contract.

[Name of attorney]

_____[Street address]

_____[City, state, and ZIP]

_____[Area code and phone number]

_____[State Bar no. of attorney]

Attorney for _____[name of party]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,

COUNTY OF _____

[name(s)] _____,

Plaintiff(s), _____)

vs. _____)

[name(s)] _____,

[and DOES 1 THROUGH _____)

_____,]

Defendant(s). _____)

_____)

NO.

COMPLAINT FOR REFORMATION

[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

[Amount Demanded

_____(Exceeds or Does Not Exceed) $10,000]

Plaintiff _____[name] alleges:

[For an individual plaintiff]

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.74

1. Plaintiff is an individual residing in _____ [city, if any, and county], California, [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____] [, and therein doing business under the fictitious business name of _____.

Plaintiff has duly complied in all respects with the requirements of Business and Professions Code Sections 17910 through 17917 with respect to this fictitious business name].

[OR, for a domestic corporation or domestic limited liability company]

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of California, with its principal place of business in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____] [, and therein doing business under the fictitious business name of _____.

Plaintiff has duly complied in all respects with the requirements of Business and Professions Code Sections 17910 through 17917 with respect to this fictitious business name].

[OR, for a foreign corporation or foreign limited liability company]

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of _____ [state or foreign country], and _____ [for foreign corporation authorized to do business and doing business in California or, for foreign limited liability company maintaining action or intrastate business, and registered to transact intrastate business in California], with its principal place of business in California in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____].

[OR, for a general or limited partnership or an unincorporated association]

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [partnership or unincorporated association] with its principal place of business in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____] [, and therein doing business under the fictitious business name of _____.

Plaintiff has duly complied in all respects with the requirements of Business and Professions Code Sections 17910 through 17917 with respect to this fictitious business name].

[CONTINUE]

[For an individual defendant]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is an individual residing in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____].

_____] [and doing business therein under the fictitious business name of _____].

[OR, for a domestic corporation or domestic limited liability company]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of California [, with its principal place of business in _____ (city, if any, and county), California (, in the _____ [name of judicial district, if any])].

[OR, for a foreign corporation or foreign limited liability company]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of _____ [state or foreign country], with its principal place of business in _____ (city, if any, and county), California (, in the _____ [name of judicial district, if any])].

[OR, for a general or limited partnership or an unincorporated association]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [a partnership or an unincorporated association] sued herein under the name _____ [it has assumed or by which it is known], with its principal place of business in _____ (city, if any, and county), California (, in the _____ [name of judicial district, if any]). [Defendants (names of individual partners or members) _____ are, and at all times herein mentioned were, members of that _____ (partnership or unincorporated association) (and are, and at all times herein mentioned were, residents of _____ County, California)].

[CONTINUE]

3. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of Defendants sued herein as DOES 1 through _____ [numeral, e.g., 50], inclusive, and therefore sues these Defendants by these fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named Defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that Plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by those Defendants.]

4. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that at all times material to this complaint, _____ [identify defendants to whom agency allegation applies, e.g., each of the Defendants or each of the individual Defendants or Defendant Harry Jones], [and each of the Defendants fictitiously named in this complaint,] in addition to acting for himself, herself, or itself and on his, her, or its own behalf individually, is and was acting as the agent, servant, employee and representative of, and with the knowledge, consent and permission of, and in conspiracy with, each and all of the Defendants and within the course, scope and authority of that agency, service, employment, representation, and conspiracy. Plaintiff further alleges on information and belief that the acts of each of the Defendants were fully ratified by each and all of the Defendants. Specifically, and without limitation, Plaintiff alleges on information and belief that the actions, failures to act, breaches, conspiracy, and misrepresentations alleged herein and attributed to one or more of the specific Defendants were approved, ratified, and done with the cooperation and knowledge of each and all of the Defendants.

5. On or about _____ [date], at _____ [place], Plaintiff and Defendant entered into _____ [a written or an oral] contract whereby Plaintiff agreed to _____ [specify plaintiff's obligation, e.g., lease from Defendant] and Defendant agreed to _____ [specify defendant's obligation; e.g., lease to Plaintiff commercial property located at 123 Main Street, Los Angeles, California. The purpose of this agreement was to enable Plaintiff to open and operate a second business location]. [A copy of the contract is attached as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference].

6. The _____ [written or oral] agreement of Plaintiff and Defendant consisted, in pertinent part, of the following terms: _____ [specify relevant terms of contract, e.g., Defendant agreed to lease the premises to Plaintiff for a fixed term of five years, commencing on August 1, 2005. Plaintiff agreed to pay Defendant, as the monthly rent for the premises, a sum equal to 10 percent of the gross income for that month from Plaintiff's second place of business located on the leased premises].

7. _____ [Specify how contract departs from oral agreement, e.g., On July 1, 2005, at Los Angeles, California, Plaintiff and Defendant executed a written lease agreement to carry out their intended agreement, a copy of which is attached as Exhibit B and incorporated by reference. The written lease fails to reflect the true intent of the parties in that it provides that the monthly rent equal 10 percent of the gross income for that month from both Plaintiff's principal place of business and Plaintiff's second place of business].

8. To reflect the true intent of the parties, the written agreement should instead provide that _____ [specify how contract should be reformed, e.g., the monthly rent will be a sum equal to 10 percent of the gross income for that month from Plaintiff's second place of business only; that is, the place of business located on the premises that Defendant leased to Plaintiff].

9. The above-described failure of the written agreement to reflect the true intent of the parties resulted from a unilateral mistake on the part of Plaintiff, in that _____ [specify how need for reformation arose, e.g., Plaintiff made a clerical error in drafting the rental clause of the lease agreement, but mistakenly believed, in presenting the lease agreement to Defendant for execution, that the clause correctly expressed the terms for rental intended by the parties].

10. On or about _____ [date], Plaintiff discovered the error in the written agreement and notified Defendant, but Defendant has declined to modify the written agreement and indicated an intent to hold Plaintiff to the terms of the written agreement, rather than the correct terms of the original contract between the parties.

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff prays as follows:

1. For the reformation of the written agreement to reflect the true intent of the parties, such that it provides _____ [specify, e.g., that the monthly rent will be a sum equal to 10 percent of the gross income for that month from Plaintiff's second place of business only, that is, the place of business located on the premises].

2. For costs of suit; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court deems proper.

Dated: _____

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Defendant _____

[ADD following verification, if applicable]

VERIFICATION

I am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action; I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

NOTES.

Authority:

CC §§ 1688-1693

Grounds for Reformation:

See 8.20

Pleading Requirements:

See 8.26 -8.29

Additional Forms:

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 488, Reformation of Instruments (Matthew Bender)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Pleadings Complaints General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Reformation

138 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
VI. FORMS

*1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.758.75 Complaint for Specific Performance of Contract.*Complaint for Specific Performance of Contract.

[Name of attorney]

_____[Street address]

_____[City, state, and ZIP]

_____[Area code and phone number]

_____[State Bar no. of attorney]

Attorney for _____[name of party]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,

COUNTY OF _____

[name(s)] _____,

Plaintiff(s), _____)

vs. _____)

[name(s)] _____,

[and DOES 1 THROUGH _____,

_____,]

Defendant(s). _____)

_____)

NO.

COMPLAINT FOR SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE

[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

[Amount Demanded _____]

_____ (Exceeds or Does Not Exceed) $10,000]

Plaintiff _____[name] alleges:

[For an individual plaintiff]

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.75

1. Plaintiff is an individual residing in _____ [city, if any, and county], California, [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____] [, and therein doing business under the fictitious business name of _____.

Plaintiff has duly complied in all respects with the requirements of Business and Professions Code Sections 17910 through 17917 with respect to this fictitious business name].

[OR, for a domestic corporation or domestic limited liability company]

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of California, with its principal place of business in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____] [, and therein doing business under the fictitious business name of _____.

Plaintiff has duly complied in all respects with the requirements of Business and Professions Code Sections 17910 through 17917 with respect to this fictitious business name].

[OR, for a foreign corporation or foreign limited liability company]

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of _____ [state or foreign country], and _____ [for foreign corporation authorized to do business and doing business in California or, for foreign limited liability company maintaining action or intrastate business, and registered to transact intrastate business in California], with its principal place of business in California in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____].

[OR, for a general or limited partnership or an unincorporated association]

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [partnership or unincorporated association] with its principal place of business in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____] [, and therein doing business under the fictitious business name of _____.

Plaintiff has duly complied in all respects with the requirements of Business and Professions Code Sections 17910 through 17917 with respect to this fictitious business name].

[CONTINUE]

[For an individual defendant]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is an individual residing in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____].

_____] [and doing business therein under the fictitious business name of _____].

[OR, for a domestic corporation or domestic limited liability company]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of California [, with its principal place of business in _____ (city, if any, and county), California (, in the _____ [name of judicial district, if any])].

[OR, for a foreign corporation or foreign limited liability company]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of _____ [state or foreign country], with its principal place of business in _____ (city, if any, and county), California (, in the _____ [name of judicial district, if any])].

[OR, for a general or limited partnership or an unincorporated association]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [a partnership or an unincorporated association] sued herein under the name _____ [it has assumed or by which it is known], with its principal place of business in _____ (city, if any, and county), California (, in the _____ [name of judicial district, if any]). [Defendants (names of individual partners or members) _____ are, and at all times herein mentioned were, members of that _____ (partnership or unincorporated association) (and are, and at all times herein mentioned were, residents of _____ County, California)].

[CONTINUE]

3. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of Defendants sued herein as DOES 1 through _____ [numeral, e.g., 50], inclusive, and therefore sues these Defendants by these fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named Defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that Plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by those Defendants.]

4. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that at all times material to this complaint, _____ [identify defendants to whom agency allegation applies, e.g., each of the Defendants or each of the individual Defendants or Defendant Harry Jones], [and each of the Defendants fictitiously named in this complaint,] in addition to acting for himself, herself, or itself and on his, her, or its own behalf individually, is and was acting as the agent, servant, employee and representative of, and with the knowledge, consent and permission of, and in conspiracy with, each and all of the Defendants and within the course, scope and authority of that agency, service, employment, representation, and conspiracy. Plaintiff further alleges on information and belief that the acts of each of the Defendants were fully ratified by each and all of the Defendants. Specifically, and without limitation, Plaintiff alleges on information and belief that the actions, failures to act, breaches, conspiracy, and misrepresentations alleged herein and attributed to one or more of the specific Defendants were approved, ratified, and done with the cooperation and knowledge of each and all of the Defendants.

5. On or about _____ [date], in _____ [place], Plaintiff and Defendant entered into _____ [a written or an oral] agreement whereby Plaintiff agreed to _____ [specify what plaintiff agreed to do, e.g., buy Defendant's original Picasso pencil drawing dated 1931 and known as "Two Donkeys"] and Defendant agreed to _____ [specify what defendant agreed to do, e.g., sell that drawing to Plaintiff for the price of $250,000]. [A copy of that agreement is attached as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference.]

6. The consideration set forth in the agreement, as specified in Paragraph 5, above, is adequate as to the Defendant and is fair and reasonable. [Add facts supporting fairness of consideration, if desired, e.g., One week before the parties entered into this contract, the drawing was valued at $230,000 by an independent professional art appraiser selected by the Defendant].

[EITHER, if plaintiff has performed all contractual requirements]

7. Plaintiff has performed all conditions, covenants, and promises that he/she is required to perform, in accordance with the terms of the contract.

[OR, if plaintiff has not performed all contractual requirements]

7. Plaintiff has performed all conditions, covenants, and promises that he/she is required to perform, in accordance with the terms of the contract, except that _____ [specify facts alleging remaining performance, e.g., Plaintiff has not arranged for a professional art shipper to package and deliver the drawing to Plaintiff because Defendant subsequently notified Plaintiff of Defendant's refusal to complete the transaction, as specified below]. Plaintiff remains ready, willing, and able to perform all remaining terms and conditions of the contract that he/she is required to perform, and has offered, and continues to offer, to do so.

[OR, if plaintiff has offered to perform all contractual requirements]

7. Plaintiff has offered, and continues to offer, to _____ [specify facts alleging plaintiff's readiness, e.g., pay the Defendant the sum of $250,000 as provided for in the agreement]. Plaintiff remains ready, willing, and able to perform all terms and conditions of the contract that he/she is required to perform and has offered, and continues to offer, to do so.

[CONTINUE]

8. Defendant has failed and refused, and continues to fail and refuse, to perform the conditions of the contract on her part, in that _____ [specify facts alleging defendant's breach, e.g., Defendant notified Plaintiff that Defendant has changed his/her mind about the transaction and wishes to keep the drawing, and refuses to deliver it to Plaintiff].

10. Plaintiff has no adequate legal remedy in that

_____ [specify facts alleging that plaintiff has not adequate remedy at law, e.g., the drawing bargained for by the parties is a one-of-a kind original drawing by the renowned artist Pablo Picasso. No other drawing like it exists, and Defendant contracted to purchase it because of certain features of its subject matter and composition that are unique to this particular drawing and therefore make it impossible for Plaintiff to obtain a suitable substitute or replacement at any price. For these reasons, an award of damages would not adequately compensate the Plaintiff for the detriment Defendant's breach has caused Plaintiff].

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff prays as follows:

1. That Defendant be ordered _____ [specify desired action, e.g., to execute and deliver to Plaintiff a sufficient conveyance of the drawing described herein];
2. For costs of suit; and
3. For such other and further relief as the court deems proper.

Dated: _____

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Defendant _____

[ADD following verification, if applicable]

VERIFICATION

I am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action; I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

NOTES.

Authority:

CC § 3384

Grounds for Specific Performance:

See 8.35

Pleading Requirements:

See 8.35 et seq.

Additional Forms:

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 528, Specific Performance (Matthew Bender)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Pleadings Complaints General Overview Commercial Law (UCC) Sales (Article 2) Remedies Buyer's Remedies Replevin & Specific Performance Contracts Law Remedies Specific Performance Real Property Law Purchase & Sale Remedies Specific Performance

139 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
VI. FORMS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.76

8.76 Complaint for Permanent Injunction Enjoining Breach of Personal Services Contract.Complaint for Permanent Injunction Enjoining Breach of Personal Services Contract.

[Name of attorney]

_____[Street address]

_____[City, state, and ZIP]

_____[Area code and phone number]

_____[State Bar no. of attorney]

Attorney for _____[name of party]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,

COUNTY OF _____

[name(s)] _____,

Plaintiff(s), _____)

vs. _____)

[name(s)] _____,

[and DOES 1 THROUGH _____,

_____,]

Defendant(s). _____)

NO.

COMPLAINT FOR INJUNCTIVE RELIEF

[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

[Amount Demanded _____]

_____(Exceeds or Does Not Exceed) $10,000]

Plaintiff _____[name] alleges:

[For an individual plaintiff]

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.76

1. Plaintiff is an individual residing in _____ [city, if any, and county], California, [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____] [, and therein doing business under the fictitious business name of _____.

Plaintiff has duly complied in all respects with the requirements of Business and Professions Code Sections 17910 through 17917 with respect to this fictitious business name].

[OR, for a domestic corporation or domestic limited liability company]

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of California, with its principal place of business in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____] [, and therein doing business under the fictitious business name of _____.

Plaintiff has duly complied in all respects with the requirements of Business and Professions Code Sections 17910 through 17917 with respect to this fictitious business name].

[OR, for a foreign corporation or foreign limited liability company]

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of _____ [state or foreign country], and _____ [for foreign corporation authorized to do business and doing business in California or, for foreign limited liability company maintaining action or intrastate business, and registered to transact intrastate business in California], with its principal place of business in California in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____].

[OR, for a general or limited partnership or an unincorporated association]

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [partnership or unincorporated association] with its principal place of business in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____] [, and therein doing business under the fictitious business name of _____.

Plaintiff has duly complied in all respects with the requirements of Business and Professions Code Sections 17910 through 17917 with respect to this fictitious business name].

[CONTINUE]

[For an individual defendant]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is an individual residing in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____].

_____] [and doing business therein under the fictitious business name of _____].

[OR, for a domestic corporation or domestic limited liability company]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of California [, with its principal place of business in _____ (city, if any, and county), California (, in the _____ [name of judicial district, if any])].

[OR, for a foreign corporation or foreign limited liability company]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of _____ [state or foreign country], with its principal place of business in _____ (city, if any, and county), California (, in the _____ [name of judicial district, if any])].

[OR, for a general or limited partnership or an unincorporated association]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [a partnership or an unincorporated association] sued herein under the name _____ [it has assumed or by which it is known], with its principal place of business in _____ (city, if any, and county), California (, in the _____ [name of judicial district, if any]). [Defendants (names of individual partners or members) _____ are, and at all times herein mentioned were, members of that _____ (partnership or unincorporated association) (and are, and at all times herein mentioned were, residents of _____ County, California)].

[CONTINUE]

3. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of Defendants sued herein as DOES 1 through _____ [numeral, e.g., 50], inclusive, and therefore sues these Defendants by these fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named Defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that Plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by those Defendants.]

4. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that at all times material to this complaint, _____ [identify defendants to whom agency allegation applies, e.g., each of the Defendants or each of the individual Defendants or Defendant Harry Jones], [and each of the Defendants fictitiously named in this complaint,] in addition to acting for himself, herself, or itself and on his, her, or its own behalf individually, is and was acting as the agent, servant, employee and representative of, and with the knowledge, consent and permission of, and in conspiracy with, each and all of the Defendants and within the course, scope and authority of that agency, service, employment, representation, and conspiracy. Plaintiff further alleges on information and belief that the acts of each of the Defendants were fully ratified by each and all of the Defendants. Specifically, and without limitation, Plaintiff alleges on information and belief that the actions, failures to act, breaches, conspiracy, and misrepresentations alleged herein and attributed to one or more of the specific Defendants were approved, ratified, and done with the cooperation and knowledge of each and all of the Defendants.

5. On or about _____ [date], Plaintiff and Defendant entered into a written contract whereby Defendant agreed to render personal services to Plaintiff, consisting of _____. [specify nature of services, e.g., the writing of an original romance novel about Queen Elizabeth I of England, to be written by Defendant for publication in September, 2006]. A copy of this contract is attached as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference.

6. The services promised by Defendant are special, unique, unusual, and extraordinary in character, which gives them peculiar value, the loss of which cannot be reasonably or adequately compensated in damages in an action at law, because _____. [specify facts establishing why remedy at law is inadequate, e.g., Defendant is internationally known and recognized as a highly successful writer of historical romances, and Plaintiff entered into this contract with Defendant relying on Defendant's name and reputation as an essential element in the successful marketing and sale of the novel to the public].

7. The consideration Plaintiff agreed to pay Defendant for the services described in Paragraph 6 was

_____. [e.g., $500,000 over the one-year term of the contract, plus royalties of _____ percent of net sales and other residual compensation as specified in the attached Exhibit A]. This compensation exceeds the minimum rate of compensation required by Code of Civil Procedure Section 526 and Civil Code Section 3423(e). Further, at the time of the filing of this complaint, payments actually made by Plaintiff to Defendant during the term of the contract aggregated in excess of $ _____. [e.g., $200,000], which exceeds the minimum rate of compensation required by Code of Civil Procedure Section 526 and Civil Code Section 3423(e).

8. Plaintiff has performed all conditions, covenants, and promises required to be performed on Plaintiff's part in accordance with the terms and conditions of the contract up to this time and is ready, willing, and able to perform all conditions required to be performed on Plaintiff's part in the future.

9. On or about _____ [date], Defendant

_____. [specify facts about defendant's breach, e.g., stopped performing the personal services she was obligated to render under the contract with Plaintiff. Plaintiff has asked Defendant to continue performing the services but Defendant refused, and continues to refuse, to do so. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that Defendant has contracted with a third party to perform services for that party that are substantially similar to the services Defendant contracted to perform for Plaintiff].

10. Plaintiff will suffer great and irreparable injury unless Defendant is enjoined and restrained by order of this court from performing services for anyone else, in that _____. [specify facts alleging harm suffered by plaintiff, e.g., Plaintiff has devoted considerable time and resources in developing the project that Defendant was to complete, has turned down other projects to be able to adequately perform under the agreement, and has entered into numerous agreements, including marketing, distribution, and promotional agreements, based on the Defendant's agreement with the Plaintiff, and will therefore suffer irreparable harm if the Defendant's conduct is not restrained].

11. Plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law for the because it will be impossible for Plaintiff to determine the precise amount of damage that Plaintiff will suffer if Defendant's conduct is not restrained.

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff prays as follows:

1. For a permanent injunction enjoining Defendant from _____ [specify, e.g., performing the services set forth in the contract attached as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference for any other person, corporation, or association during the period of the contract with Plaintiff].

2. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

Dated: _____

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Defendant _____

[ADD following verification, if applicable]

VERIFICATION

I am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action; I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

NOTES.

Authority:

CCP §§ 526(b), 527(a); CC §§ 3422, 3423(e)

Grounds for Injunctive Relief:

See 8.61

Pleading Requirements:

See 8.67

Preliminary Injunctions:

See Ch. 6, Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsGeneral OverviewCivil
ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPermanent InjunctionsContracts LawRemediesEquitable ReliefInjunctive
ReliefContracts LawTypes of ContractsPersonal Service Agreements

140 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
VI. FORMS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.77

8.77 Answer to Complaint for Rescission.Answer to Complaint for Rescission.

[Name of attorney]

_____[Street address]

_____[City, state, and ZIP]

_____[Area code and phone number]

_____[State Bar no. of attorney]

Attorney for _____[name of party]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,

COUNTY OF _____

[name] _____,

Plaintiff,

vs.

[name] _____,

Defendant.

)

)

)

)

)

)

)

NO.

ANSWER OF

_____[identify defendant, e.g.,
DEFENDANT MARY JONES] TO COMPLAINT
OF

_____[identify plaintiff, e.g.,
PLAINTIFF JOHN SMITH]

Judge:

Department:

Defendant answers the complaint as follows:

[Include general denial below, or set forth, in numbered paragraphs, specific denials, admissions, and allegations in response to those in complaint, in the order in which they are alleged in complaint:]

1. Pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 431.30(b)(1), Defendant generally denies each and every allegation of Plaintiff's complaint, including all the purported causes of action contained therein, and further denies that Plaintiff is entitled to any equitable or legal relief, or any damages whatsoever.

[Defendant asserts the following affirmative defenses. By doing so, Defendant shall not be deemed to have assumed the burden of proving any matters that otherwise would be Plaintiff's burden.]

[Allege any affirmative defenses, e.g.,]

FIRST AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Plaintiff Is in Material Default of Performance)

2. Plaintiff's claim is barred because Plaintiff is in material default of performance of an obligation that affects the Defendant's duty to perform under the contract, in that _____ [specify in general terms the nature of plaintiff's default, e.g., Plaintiff has failed to pay the last three monthly advances due under the contract].

[AND/OR]

SECOND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Plaintiff Waived the Right to Rescind the Contract)

3. Plaintiff has received and accepted benefits under the contract and therefore has waived the right to rescind the contract.

[AND/OR]

THIRD AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Claim Barred by Statute of Limitations)

4. Plaintiff's claim is barred by the statute of limitations set forth in Code of Civil Procedure section _____ [337(3) or 339(3)].

[AND/OR]

FOURTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Plaintiff's Delay in Providing Notice of Rescission Was Prejudicial to Defendant)

5. Plaintiff's delay in providing Defendant with notice of the rescission was substantially prejudicial to the Defendant.

[AND/OR]

FIFTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Agreement Is Impossible to Perform)

6. Plaintiff is not entitled to rescission of the contract based on Defendant's nonperformance of the conditions of the agreement as specified in Plaintiff's complaint, because the conditions in question were impossible for Defendant to perform, in that _____ [specify, e.g., at least twelve of the trees that Defendant was required to trim were destroyed in a fire on Plaintiff's property].

[ADD additional affirmative defenses, if any]

[CONTINUE]

WHEREFORE, Defendant prays as follows:

1. That Plaintiff take nothing by his/her complain;
2. For costs of suit; and
3. For such other and further relief as the court deems proper.

Dated: _____

_____ [firm name, if any]By: _____ [signature]_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Defendant _____

[ADD following verification, if applicable]

VERIFICATION

I am the defendant in the above entitled action; I have read the foregoing answer and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

NOTES.

Authority:

McDonald v. Pacific Debenture Co. (1905) 146 C 667, 669, 80 P 1090

Opposing Claim for Rescission:

See 8.15

Defense That Plaintiff Is In Material Default of Performance:

See 8.16[1]

Defense That Plaintiff Waived Right to Rescind Contract:

See 8.16[2]

Statute of Limitations Defense:

See 8.16[3]

Defense That Plaintiff's Delay in Giving Notice of Rescission Was Prejudicial:

See 8.16[4]

Defense That Contract Is Impossible to Perform:

See 8.16[5]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Pleadings Answers Commercial Law (UCC) Sales (Article 2) Form, Formation & Readjustment Modification, Rescission & Waiver Contracts Law Remedies Rescission & Redhibition General Overview

141 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
VI. FORMS

*1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.788.78 Answer to Complaint for Reformation.*Answer to Complaint for Reformation.

[Name of attorney]

_____[Street address]

_____[City, state, and ZIP]

_____[Area code and phone number]

_____[State Bar no. of attorney]

Attorney for _____[name of party]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,

COUNTY OF _____

[name] _____,

Plaintiff,

vs.

[name] _____,

Defendant.

)

)

)

)

)

)

)

NO.

ANSWER OF

_____ [identify defendant, e.g.,
DEFENDANT MARY JONES] TO COMPLAINT
OF

_____ [identify plaintiff, e.g.,
PLAINTIFF JOHN SMITH]

Judge:

Department:

Defendant answers the complaint as follows:

[Include general denial below, or set forth, in numbered paragraphs, specific denials, admissions, and allegations in response to those in complaint, in the order in which they are alleged in complaint:]

1. Pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 431.30(b)(1), Defendant generally denies each and every allegation of Plaintiff's complaint, including all the purported causes of action contained therein, and further denies that Plaintiff is entitled to any equitable or legal relief, or any damages whatsoever.

[Defendant asserts the following affirmative defenses. By doing so, Defendant shall not be deemed to have assumed the burden of proving any matters that otherwise would be Plaintiff's burden.]

[Allege any affirmative defenses, e.g.,]

FIRST AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Claim Is Barred by Statute of Limitations)

2. Plaintiff's claim is barred by the statute of limitations set forth in Code of Civil Procedure Section 337(d).

[AND/OR]

SECOND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Plaintiff's Claim Is Barred by Res Judicata)

3. Plaintiff's claim is barred by the doctrine of res judicata in that

_____. [specify, e.g., the issues raised in Plaintiff's complaint were previously adjudicated in another action, (specify case name, number, court, and date judgment or other adjudication was rendered)

_____].

[AND/OR]

THIRD AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Plaintiff Has Unclean Hands)

4. Plaintiff's is precluded from recovery because Plaintiff has unclean hands, in that Plaintiff has _____ [specify facts supporting affirmative defense of unclean hands].

[AND/OR]

FOURTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Plaintiff Has Waived the Right to Reform the Contract)

5. Plaintiff has already ratified the contract and therefore has waived the right to rescind the contract.

[AND/OR]

FIFTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Plaintiff Was Inexcusably Negligent in Failing to Discover Mistake)

6. Plaintiff was inexcusably negligent in failing to discover the mistake that is the basis for Plaintiff's claim for relief.

[ADD additional affirmative defenses, if any]

[CONTINUE]

WHEREFORE, Defendant prays as follows:

1. That Plaintiff take nothing by his/her complaint herein;
2. For costs of suit; and
3. For such other and further relief as the court deems proper.

Dated: _____

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Defendant _____

[ADD following verification, if applicable]

VERIFICATION

I am the defendant in the above entitled action; I have read the foregoing answer and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

NOTES.

Authority:

CC § 3399

Opposing Claim for Reformation:

See 8.32

Defense That Claim Is Barred by Statute of Limitations:

See 8.32[3][a]

Defense That Claim Is Barred by Res Judicata:

See 8.32[3][b]

Defense That Plaintiff Has Unclean Hands:

See 8.32[3][c]

Defense That Plaintiff Has Waived Right to Reform Contract:

See 8.32[3][d]

Defense That Plaintiff Was Inexcusably Negligent in Failing to Discover Mistake That Is Basis of Plaintiff's Claim:

See 8.32[3][e]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Pleadings Answers Contracts Law Remedies Reformation

142 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
VI. FORMS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.79

8.79 Answer to Complaint for Specific Performance.Answer to Complaint for Specific Performance.

[Name of attorney]

_____[Street address]

_____[City, state, and ZIP]

_____[Area code and phone number]

_____[State Bar no. of attorney]

Attorney for _____[name of party]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,

COUNTY OF _____

[name] _____,

Plaintiff,

vs.

[name] _____,

Defendant.

)

)

)

)

)

)

)

)

NO.

ANSWER OF

_____ [identify defendant, e.g.,
DEFENDANT MARY JONES] TO COMPLAINT
OF

_____ [identify plaintiff, e.g.,
PLAINTIFF JOHN SMITH]

Judge:

Department:

Defendant answers the complaint as follows:

[Include general denial below, or set forth, in numbered paragraphs, specific denials, admissions, and allegations in response to those in complaint, in the order in which they are alleged in complaint:]

1. Pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 431.30(b)(1), Defendant generally denies each and every allegation of Plaintiff's complaint, including all the purported causes of action contained therein, and further denies that Plaintiff is entitled to any equitable or legal relief, or any damages whatsoever.

[Defendant asserts the following affirmative defenses. By doing so, Defendant shall not be deemed to have assumed the burden of proving any matters that otherwise would be Plaintiff's burden.]

[Allege any affirmative defenses, e.g.,]

FIRST AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Defendant's Assent to Contract Obtained by Misrepresentation)

2. Plaintiff's claim is barred because Defendant's assent to the underlying contract was obtained by misrepresentation by Plaintiff, in that _____*[specify nature of plaintiff's misrepresentations]*.

[AND/OR]

SECOND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Defendant's Assent to Contract Given by Mistake)

3. Plaintiff's claim is barred because Defendant's assent to the underlying contract was mistakenly given, in that _____*[specify nature of plaintiff's mistake]*.

[AND/OR]

THIRD AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Contract is for Personal Services)

4. The contract cannot be specifically enforced because it involves the rendering of personal services.

[AND/OR]

FOURTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Contract Requires Performance of an Unlawful Act)

5. The contract cannot be enforced because it requires the performance of an unlawful act, in that _____ [specify nature of act, e.g., sale of the materials Defendant was required to deliver to Defendant under the terms of the contract was subsequently banned by the United States Environmental Protection Agency, and Defendant would now be violating federal regulations by complying with the terms of the contract].

[AND/OR]

FIFTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE
(Agreement Is Impossible to Perform)

6. The parties' agreement cannot be enforced because it is impossible to perform, in that _____ [specify, e.g., the vehicle that Defendant was supposed to convey to Plaintiff under the terms of the contract was stolen before Defendant could convey it to Plaintiff, and was never recovered].

[AND/OR]

SIXTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE
(Contract Procures Act of Third Party)

7. The agreement cannot be enforced because it requires Defendant to procure the act of a third party.

[AND/OR]

SEVENTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE
(Seller's Title Is in Doubt)

8. The agreement cannot be enforced because the Defendant's title to the goods that are the subject matter of the contract is in doubt.

[AND/OR]

EIGHTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE
(Contract Requires a Succession of Continuous Acts)

9. The agreement cannot be specifically enforced because it requires the succession of continuous acts.

[AND/OR]

NINTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE
(Claim Is Barred by Statute of Limitations)

10. Plaintiff's claim is barred by the statute of limitations set forth in Code of Civil Procedure Section _____ [337(1) or 339(1)].

[AND/OR]

TENTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE
(Claim is Barred by Doctrine of Laches)

11. Plaintiff's claim is barred by the doctrine of laches.

[AND/OR]

ELEVENTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE
(Plaintiff Has an Adequate Remedy at Law)

12. Plaintiff is not entitled to specific performance because Plaintiff has an adequate remedy at law, in that money damages are sufficient to compensate Plaintiff for any nonperformance by Defendant.

[ADD additional affirmative defenses, if any]

[CONTINUE]

WHEREFORE, Defendant prays as follows:

1. That Plaintiff take nothing by his/her complaint herein;
2. For costs of suit; and
3. For such other and further relief as the court deems proper.

Dated: _____

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Defendant _____

[ADD following verification, if applicable]

VERIFICATION

I am the defendant in the above entitled action; I have read the foregoing answer and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

NOTES.

Authority:

CC §§ 3384-3395

Opposing Claim for Specific Performance:

See 8.57

Defense That Contract Is for Personal Services:

See 8.58[1]

Defense That Defendant's Assent to Contract Was Obtained by Misrepresentation:

See 8.58[2]

Defense That Defendant's Assent to Contract Was Given by Mistake:

See 8.58[3]

Defense That Contract Is for the Performance of an Unlawful Act:

See 8.58[4]

Defense That Contract Is Impossible to Perform:

See 8.58[7]

Defense That Contract Procures Act of Third Party:

See 8.58[8]

Defense That Seller's Title Is in Doubt:

See 8.58[9]

Defense That Contract Requires the Succession of Continuous Acts:

See 8.58[10]

Statute of Limitations Defense:

See 8.58[11]

Laches Defense:

See 8.58[12]

Defense That Plaintiff Does Not Have Adequate Remedy at Law:

See 8.58[13]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Pleadings Answers Commercial Law (UCC) Sales (Article 2) Remedies Buyer's Remedies Replevin & Specific Performance Contracts Law Remedies Specific Performance Real Property Law Purchase & Sale Remedies Specific Performance

143 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 8 Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions
VI. FORMS*1-8 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 8.808.80 Answer to Complaint for Injunction.*Answer to Complaint for Injunction.

[Name of attorney]

_____[Street address]

_____[City, state, and ZIP]

_____[Area code and phone number]

_____[State Bar no. of attorney]

Attorney for _____[name of party]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,

COUNTY OF _____

[name] _____,

Plaintiff,

vs.

[name] _____,

Defendant.

)

)

)

)

)

)

)

NO.

ANSWER OF

_____[identify defendant, e.g.,
DEFENDANT MARY JONES] TO COMPLAINT
OF_____[identify plaintiff, e.g.,
PLAINTIFF JOHN SMITH]

Judge:

Department:

Defendant answers the complaint as follows:

[Include general denial below, or set forth, in numbered paragraphs, specific denials, admissions, and allegations in response to those in complaint, in the order in which they are alleged in complaint:]

1. Pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 431.30(b)(1), Defendant generally denies each and every allegation of Plaintiff's complaint, including all the purported causes of action contained therein, and further denies that Plaintiff is entitled to any equitable or legal relief, or any damages whatsoever.

[Defendant asserts the following affirmative defenses. By doing so, Defendant shall not be deemed to have assumed the burden of proving any matters that otherwise would be Plaintiff's burden.]

[Allege any affirmative defenses, e.g.,]

FIRST AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Changed Circumstances Render Injunction Unnecessary)

2. Changed circumstances between the parties have eliminated the need for an injunction, in that _____ [specify circumstances that have eliminated need for injunctive relief].

[AND/OR]

SECOND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Claim Barred by Doctrine of Laches)

3. Plaintiff's claim is barred by the doctrine of laches.

[AND/OR]

THIRD AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Plaintiff Has an Adequate Remedy at Law)

4. Plaintiff is not entitled to injunctive relief because the Plaintiff has an adequate remedy at law, in that money damages are sufficient to compensate Plaintiff for any acts performed or not performed by Defendant.

[AND/OR]

FOURTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Public Interest Requires Injunction Not be Granted)

5. The contract cannot be enforced because, if granted, the relief sought would be contrary to the public interest, in that _____[specify public interest affected].

[AND/OR]

FIFTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Relief Granted Would Be Contrary to Existing Law)

6. The contract cannot be enforced because, if granted, the relief sought would be contrary to existing law, in that _____[specify how relief would be contrary to law].

[AND/OR]

SIXTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Plaintiff Has Unclean Hands)

7. Plaintiff is precluded from recovery because Plaintiff has unclean hands, in that Plaintiff has _____[specify facts supporting affirmative defense of unclean hands].

[AND/OR]

SEVENTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Contract Could Not Be Specifically Enforced)

8. Injunctive relief is unavailable with respect to the contract referred to in Plaintiff's complaint because the performance of that contract could not be specifically enforced and it does not meet the criteria specified in Civil Code Section 3423(e) for availability of injunctive relief with respect to a contract for personal services.

[ADD additional affirmative defenses, if any]

[CONTINUE]

WHEREFORE, Defendant prays as follows:

1. That Plaintiff take nothing by his/her complaint herein;
2. For costs of suit; and
3. For such other and further relief as the court deems proper.

Dated: _____

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Defendant _____

[ADD following verification, if applicable]

VERIFICATION

I am the defendant in the above entitled action; I have read the foregoing answer and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

NOTES.

Authority:

CC §§ 3384-3395

Opposing a Claim for Injunction:

See 8.70

Defense That Changed Circumstances Have Rendered Injunctive Relief Unnecessary:

See 8.71[1]

Defense of Laches:

See 8.71[2]

Defense That Plaintiff Has an Adequate Remedy at Law:

See 8.71[3]

Defense That Relief Granted Is Contrary to Law:

See 8.71[5]

Defense That Plaintiff Has Unclean Hands:

See 8.71[6]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsAnswersCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsGeneral OverviewContracts
LawRemediesEquitable ReliefInjunctive Relief

144 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.syn

§ 9.syn Synopsis to Chapter 9: Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions

9.01 Scope.

9.02 Objective and Strategy.

9.02[1] Quantum Meruit Is a Common Count.

9.02[2] Quantum Meruit Is Often Used in Contract-Related Actions.

9.02[3] Quantum Meruit Recovery Is Quasi-Contractual.

9.02[4] Quantum Meruit Is Unavailable When Express Contract Governs Compensation.

9.02[5] Quantum Valebant Is Used to Recover Value of Goods Sold and Delivered.

9.03 CHECKLIST: Seeking Quantum Meruit Recovery in Contract Actions.

9.04 Options and Strategies.

9.04[1] Quantum Meruit Claims and Other Contract Claims May Be Asserted in Same Action.

9.04[2] Jury Trial Is Available for Quantum Meruit Claims.

9.05 Elements of Quantum Meruit Claim.

9.06 Plaintiff Has Burden of Proving Each Element of Quantum Meruit Claim.

9.07 Defendant Must Have Expressly or Impliedly Requested Plaintiff's Performance.

9.08 Both Parties Must Have Understood Plaintiff Would Be Compensated for Services Rendered.

9.09 Services Must Have Benefitted Defendant.

9.10 Claim Must Be Made Within Applicable Statute of Limitations.

9.11 Quantum Meruit Recovery May Be Available When Plaintiff Renders Incomplete or Imperfect Performance.

9.11[1] Quantum Meruit Recovery Available When Plaintiff Renders Part Performance on Express Contract.

9.11[2] Quantum Meruit Recovery Available If Defendant Accepted Plaintiff's Imperfect Performance Rendered in Good Faith.

9.12 Existence of Contract Is Not Necessary.

9.12[1] Quantum Meruit Recovery Is Quasi-Contractual.

9.12[2] Quantum Meruit Recovery Is Available for Void Contracts.

9.13 Quantum Meruit Recovery Is Not Available for Liquidated Debts.

9.14 Measure of Recovery Is Reasonable Value of Beneficial Services.

9.15 Pleading Quantum Meruit Claims.

9.15[1] Judicial Council Form for Common Counts May Be Used to Plead Quantum Meruit Claim.

9.15[2] Complaint Must Meet Specific Pleading Requirements.

9.15[3] Complaint Must Allege That Plaintiff Performed Services for Defendant's Benefit.

9.15[4] Complaint Must Allege Reasonable Value of Services Rendered.

9.15[5] Complaint Must Allege That Services Were Rendered at Defendant's Request.

9.15[6] Complaint Must Allege That Services Are Unpaid.

9.15[7] Not Necessary to Specify When Indebtedness Accrued.

9.15[8] Not Necessary to Specify When Services Were Rendered.

9.15[9] Demand for Payment Is Not Required.

9.16 CHECKLIST: Opposing Quantum Meruit Claims in Contract Actions.

9.17 Options and Strategies.

9.18 Defending Against Quantum Meruit Claims

9.18[1] Claim Must Be Premised on Services Actually Rendered to Defendant.

9.18[2] Defendant Can Claim No Evidence Exists of Value of Services Rendered.

9.18[3] Defendant Must Have Accepted Services and Derived Benefit From Them.

9.18[4] Defendant Can Claim Contract Contains Terms Specifying Payment.

9.18[5] Services Must Not Have Been Intended to Be Gratuitous.

9.18[6] Claim Must Have Been Brought Within Applicable Statute of Limitations.

9.19 General Denial Is Sufficient to Raise Almost Any Defense, Except Some Affirmative Defenses.

9.20 Statute of Frauds Is Not an Appropriate Defense.

9.21 Quantum Meruit Usually Is Not Subject to Demurrer.

9.22 Summary Judgment May Be Available on Quantum Meruit Claims.

9.23 Defendant May Demand Bill of Particulars.

9.23[1] Defendant Has Right to Learn Specifics of Plaintiff's Claim.

9.23[2] Bill of Particulars Is Not a Pleading and Cannot Be Answered.

9.23[3] Items in Bill Must Be Set Forth Precisely and Definitely in Good Faith.

9.24 CHECKLIST: Seeking or Opposing Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions.

9.24[1] Determining Whether Quantum Valebant Is Available.

9.24[2] Pleading Claims for Quantum Valebant.

9.24[3] Opposing Claims for Quantum Valebant.

9.25 Options and Strategies.

9.26 Elements of Quantum Valebant Claim.

9.27 Basic Two-Year or Four-Year Statute of Limitations Applies.

9.28 Defendant Must Not Have Refused to Accept Goods.

9.29 Defendant Must Have Used Property in Way That Created Duty of Compensation for Use.

9.30 Measure of Recovery Is Reasonable Value of Goods Sold and Delivered.

9.31 Plaintiff Need Not Specify When Indebtedness Accrued.

9.32 Judicial Council Form for Common Counts May Be Used to Plead Quantum Valebant Claim.

9.33 Demand for Payment Is Not Required.

9.34 Defending Against Quantum Valebant Claim.

9.35 General Denial Sufficient to Raise Most Defenses.

9.36 Quantum Valebant Generally Not Subject to Demurrer.

9.37 Defenses Should Be Raised in Answer or Summary Judgment Motion.

9.38 Defendant May Demand Bill of Particulars.

9.39 Judicial Council Form PLD-C-001(2) Cause of Action--Common Counts.

Judicial Council Form PLD-C-001(2) Cause of Action--Common Counts.

9.40 Complaint for Quantum Meruit Seeking Reasonable Value of Work, Labor, and Services.

Complaint for Quantum Meruit Seeking Reasonable Value of Work, Labor, and Services.

9.41 Answer to Complaint Seeking Quantum Meruit Recovery With Affirmative Defenses.

Answer to Complaint Seeking Quantum Meruit Recovery With Affirmative Defenses.

9.42 Demand for Bill of Particulars.

Demand for Bill of Particulars.

9.43 Bill of Particulars

Bill of Particulars

9.44 Complaint for Reasonable Value of Goods Sold and Delivered (Quantum Valebant).

Complaint for Reasonable Value of Goods Sold and Delivered (Quantum Valebant).

9.45 Answer to Complaint for Reasonable Value of Goods Sold (Quantum Valebant).

Answer to Complaint for Reasonable Value of Goods Sold (Quantum Valebant).

145 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions

I. STRATEGY

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.01

9.01 Scope.

This chapter covers:

- Objective and strategies for seeking or opposing quantum meruit recovery in contract actions [see 9.02].
- Determining whether quantum meruit is available [see 9.02 -9.15].
- Raising a quantum meruit claim (pleading issues) [see 9.03 -9.15; Form: see 9.40].
- Opposing a quantum meruit claim [see 9.16 -9.23; Form: see 9.41].
- Raising a quantum valebant claim recovery in a contract action [see 9.24 -9.38; Forms: see 9.39, 9.44].
- Opposing a quantum valebant claim in a contract action [Form: see 9.45].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Quantum Meruit Contracts Law Types of Contracts Implied-in-Law Contracts

146 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions
I. STRATEGY

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.02

9.02 Objective and Strategy.

9.02[1] Quantum Meruit Is a Common Count. Quantum meruit is a "common count," which is an abbreviated statement alleging that the defendant is indebted to the plaintiff for a particular sum and for a particular reason [see Philpott v. Superior Court (1934) 1 C2d 512, 518, 36 P2d 635] .

➡ Cross Reference:

Discussion of other common counts and common counts in general, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 121, Common Counts (Matthew Bender).

9.02[2] Quantum Meruit Is Often Used in Contract-Related Actions. Practitioners often plead a quantum meruit claim as an alternative to, or in addition to, a breach of contract claim. When doing so, however, a plaintiff should rely on a quantum meruit claim only when the terms of the contract discussing the defendant's obligations are unclear, uncertain, or logistically difficult to enforce.

Quantum meruit is one of the most frequently used forms of the common counts. It is proper in a variety of situations:

- When services are rendered under a contract that does not specify the compensation to be paid [Meredith v. Marks (1963) 212 CA2d 265, 272-273, 27 CR 737] .
- When an express contract includes a method for calculating compensation that cannot be followed under the circumstances [Miller v. San Francisco Church Extension Soc'y (1932) 125 CA 85, 94, 95, 13 P2d 824] .
- When the terms of a contract have been modified by mutual agreement [Castagnino v. Balletta (1889) 82 C 250, 258, 23 P 127 ; Dodge v. Harbor Boat Bldg. Co. (1950) 99 CA2d 782, 791, 222 P2d 697] .
- When a plaintiff, working under an express contract, performs additional work at the defendant's request that is not specified in the contract [Combs v. California Cotton Mills Co. (1952) 112 CA2d 781, 786-787, 247 P2d 382] .

- When the services rendered by one party to a void contract are not illegal [Sims v. Petaluma Gas Light Co. (1901) 131 C 656, 660, 63 P 1011 ; Lawn v. Camino Heights, Inc. (1971) 15 CA3d 973, 980-983, 93 CR 621].

- When the defendant breaches an express contract before the plaintiff has completed performance [Oliver v. Campbell (1954) 43 C2d 298, 301-302, 273 P2d 15].

- When the plaintiff has fully performed, and any part of the consideration due from the defendant is something other than a liquidated debt [Chodos v. West Publ'g Co., Inc. (9th Cir 2002) 292 F3d 992, 1001-1002] .

- When plaintiff's performance was imperfect, but the services were rendered in good faith and the defendant accepted them [Roseleaf Corp. v. Radis (1953) 122 CA2d 196, 207, 264 P2d 964] .

Cross Reference:

Detailed discussion of the circumstances in which quantum meruit recovery is appropriate, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 121.25 (Matthew Bender).

9.02[3] Quantum Meruit Recovery Is Quasi-Contractual. Quantum meruit recovery is quasi-contractual, a theory implying the existence of a contract for the payment of services to satisfy the ends of justice [see Maglica v. Maglica (1998) 66 CA4th 442, 449-450, 78 CR2d 101 (to recover in quantum meruit, a party need not prove the existence of a contract)].

Warning:

The line between an implied-in-fact contract and recovery in quantum meruit is "fuzzy" [Maglica v. Maglica (1998) 66 CA4th 442, 456 n14, 78 CR2d 101]. One court distinguished the two as follows: Quantum meruit is a theory that implies a promise to pay for services as a matter of law for reasons of justice, while implied-in-fact contracts are predicated on actual agreements, albeit not ones expressed in words [Maglica v. Maglica (1998) 66 CA4th 442, 456 n14, 78 CR2d 101].

9.02[4] Quantum Meruit Is Unavailable When Express Contract Governs Compensation. Quantum meruit is an equitable theory that supplies missing contractual terms, and contractual terms are not "missing" when the parties have agreed on express terms [Hedging Concepts, Inc. v. First Alliance Mortgage Co. (1996) 41 CA4th 1410, 1419, 49 CR2d 191]. When an express contract between the parties exists governing compensation, the remedy of quantum meruit is not available. The law will not imply a promise to pay the reasonable value of services when the parties have an express agreement governing compensation [Hedging Concepts, Inc. v. First Alliance Mortgage Co. (1996) 41 CA4th 1410, 1419-1420, 49 CR2d 191].

A plaintiff, therefore, has a choice to recover damages based on the express terms of the contract or on a theory of quantum meruit seeking the reasonable value of services rendered [Haggerty v. Warner (1953) 115 CA2d 468, 475, 252 P2d 373]. In either case, however, a plaintiff may plead both the breach of contract claim and the quantum meruit claim in the same action, which is often the better practice in many situations [see 9.03 -9.28].

9.02[5] Quantum Valebant Is Used to Recover Value of Goods Sold and Delivered. Quantum valebant, like quantum meruit is a common count. It is used to recover the reasonable value of goods sold and delivered [Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 C2d 778, 792-794, 256 P2d 947 ; see 9.03]. Quantum valebant differs from quantum meruit in that quantum meruit is used to recover the reasonable value of services rendered, while quantum valebant is used to recover the reasonable value of goods sold and delivered [Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 C2d 778, 792-794, 256 P2d 947]. Most attorneys are less familiar with quantum valebant than quantum meruit, but it is nevertheless a viable remedy that should be considered in situations in which quantum meruit would be considered but for the fact that goods rather than services are involved.

Cross References:

See Ch. 2, Determining What Causes of Action Exist;

Ch. 4, Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action;

Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions;

Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions;

Ch. 10, Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions;

Ch. 12, Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation; and

Ch. 22, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract.

For tips on updating case law and expanding your research with additional resources, see How to Use Lexis.com With This Publication at the front of this volume.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Quantum Meruit Contracts Law Types of Contracts Implied-in-Law Contracts

147 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING QUANTUM MERUIT RECOVERY IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.03

9.03 CHECKLIST: Seeking Quantum Meruit Recovery in Contract Actions.

- ☐ Determine whether plaintiff performed services for defendant.

Authority:

Day v. Alta Bates Med. Ctr. (2002) 98 CA4th 243, 248, 119 CR2d 606

Discussion:

See 9.05

- ☐ Determine whether plaintiff's performance was made pursuant to defendant's express or implied request.

Authority:

Day v. Alta Bates Med. Ctr. (2002) 98 CA4th 243, 249, 119 CR2d 606

Discussion:

See 9.07

- ☐ Determine whether both parties understood that plaintiff would be compensated for services rendered.

Authority:

Day v. Alta Bates Med. Ctr. (2002) 98 CA4th 243, 249, 119 CR2d 606

Discussion:

See 9.08

- ☐ Determine whether services rendered benefitted defendant.

Authority:

Day v. Alta Bates Med. Ctr. (2002) 98 CA4th 243, 119 CR2d 606

Discussion:

See 9.09

- ☐ Determine whether claim is being brought within applicable statute of limitations.

Authority:

CCP § 339

Discussion:

See 9.10

- ☐ To plead a quantum meruit cause of action:

- ☐ Allege that plaintiff performed services for defendant.

Authority:

Haggerty v. Warner (1953) 115 CA2d 468, 475, 252 P2d 373

Discussion:

See 9.15[3]

- ☐ Allege reasonable value of services that plaintiff performed.

Authority:

Haggerty v. Warner (1953) 115 CA2d 468, 475, 252 P2d 373

Discussion:

See 9.15[4]

- ☐ Allege that services plaintiff performed were rendered at defendant's request.

Authority:

Haggerty v. Warner (1953) 115 CA2d 468, 475, 252 P2d 373

Discussion:

See 9.15[5]

- ☐ Allege that plaintiff has not received payment for services rendered.

Authority:

Haggerty v. Warner (1953) 115 CA2d 468, 475, 252 P2d 373

Discussion:

See 9.15[6]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Quantum Meruit Contracts Law Types of Contracts Implied-in-Law Contracts

148 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING QUANTUM MERUIT RECOVERY IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.04

9.04 Options and Strategies.

9.04[1] Quantum Meruit Claims and Other Contract Claims May Be Asserted in Same Action. A plaintiff may plead both contract damages and quantum meruit in the same action. California courts recognize the general principle that if a fair and reasonable doubt exists as to whether a plaintiff is entitled to recover upon an express or an implied contract for services rendered, the plaintiff may plead a claim based upon each and recover according to the proof [see, e.g., Leoni v. Delany (1948) 83 CA2d 303, 307-308, 188 P2d 765 ; Wilkerson v. Seib (1942) 20 C2d 556, 563, 127 P2d 904 ; see also Bay Cities Paving & Grading, Inc. v. Lawyers' Mut. Ins. Co. (1993) 5 C4th 854, 860, 21 CR2d 691, 855 P2d 1263 (seeking different kinds of relief does not establish different causes of action; cause of action should be distinguished from remedy and relief sought because a plaintiff may be entitled to several different remedies within a single cause of action)].

Example:

In an action seeking quantum meruit recovery, the court held that when a plaintiff renders personal services to the defendant at the defendant's request, and the defendant refuses to compensate the plaintiff for those services, the plaintiff may elect to plead either on the express terms of the contract or in quantum meruit for the reasonable value of the services rendered [see Haggerty v. Warner (1953) 115 CA2d 468, 475, 252 P2d 373].

Judge's Perspective:

A plaintiff suing for breach of contract should also consider bringing a quantum meruit claim. Defendants frequently contest the validity of contracts, and a plaintiff's chances of recovery increase if the plaintiff has also brought a quantum meruit claim in the event that the court invalidates the contract. In addition, even if a defendant does not question the validity of the contract, a plaintiff may also seek payment for work performed outside the scope of the contract, which the plaintiff might only recover under a quantum meruit claim.

Warning:

If a plaintiff pleads both a quantum meruit claim and a breach of contract claim based on the same contract, and the claim for breach is defective, the court may dismiss both claims upon demurrer [Jones v. Daly (1981) 122 CA3d 500, 509-510, 176 CR 130].

9.04[2] Jury Trial Is Available for Quantum Meruit Claims. The plaintiff should also consider whether to try the quantum meruit claim before a jury. Although quantum meruit is described as an "equitable theory" of recovery, jury trials are available for plaintiffs seeking quantum meruit recovery [see Philpott v. Superior Court (1934) 1 C2d 512, 522, 36 P2d 635 ("that an action is of an equitable nature does not make it an action in equity"); Jogani v. Superior Court (2008) 165 CA4th 901, 909, 81 CR3d 503 (the fact that equitable principles are applied in an action does not necessarily identify the resultant relief as equitable)]. California juries have decided many quantum meruit claims.

Examples:

- A jury found in the plaintiffs' favor on their quantum meruit claim and awarded them $320,066 [see Valentine v. Read (1996) 50 CA4th 787, 791, 57 CR2d 836].
- A jury heard plaintiff's quantum meruit claim and determined that the reasonable value of employee's services rendered was $96,000 [George v. Double D Foods, Inc. (1984) 155 CA3d 36, 39].

Strategic Point--Both Parties:

A party seeking or opposing a quantum meruit claim should weigh these factors when considering the possibility of a jury trial:

- Whether the defendant's reason for not paying the plaintiff for services rendered will make the jury frown on one party or the other.
- Whether either party will have a difficult time explaining to the jury the arguments and evidence supporting or opposing a quantum meruit claim.
- Whether the value of the case warrants a jury trial, which is often up to twice as expensive as a bench trial.

Jury Instructions:

Reasonable Value of Services, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 71A, Instr. MB 7100A.05 (Matthew Bender).

Search California Forms of Jury Instruction:

Use lexis.com to search for jury instructions discussing quantum meruit actions:

■ Legal > States Legal--U.S. > California > Jury Instruction & Verdicts > California Forms of Jury Instruction

Sample Search: To find jury instructions regarding quantum meruit actions, try:
quantum meruit.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Pleadings Complaints General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Equitable
Relief Quantum Meruit Contracts Law Types of Contracts Implied-in-Law Contracts

149 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING QUANTUM MERUIT RECOVERY IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.05

9.05 Elements of Quantum Meruit Claim.

A plaintiff pleading a claim of quantum meruit has the burden of proving each element of the claim [Foye v. Board of Trade (1936) 11 CA2d 734, 738, 54 P2d 761]. The essential elements of a quantum meruit claim are:

- The plaintiff must have performed services pursuant to the defendant's express or implied request [Day v. Alta Bates Med. Ctr. (2002) 98 CA4th 243, 248, 119 CR2d 606 ; see 9.07];
- Both parties must have understood that the plaintiff would be compensated for the services [Huskinson & Brown, LLP v. Wolf (2004) 32 C4th 453, 458 ; see 9.08];
- The services must have benefitted the defendant [Day v. Alta Bates Med. Ctr. (2002) 98 CA4th 243, 249, 119 CR2d 606 ; see 9.09]; and
- The claim must have been made within the applicable statute of limitations [see 9.10].

Jury Instructions:

Contracts--Common Count: Goods and Services Rendered, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 371 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Search California Combined Federal and State Cases:

Use lexis.com to search for forms for complaints alleging claims for quantum meruit:

■ Legal > States Legal--U.S. > California > Search Analysis & CLE Materials > CA Treatises & Analytical Materials > California Forms of Pleading and Practice

Sample Search: To find complaint for quantum meruit actions, try: heading(forms) and section(quantum meruit).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Quantum Meruit Contracts Law Types of Contracts Implied-in-Law Contracts

150 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING QUANTUM MERUIT RECOVERY IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.06

9.06 Plaintiff Has Burden of Proving Each Element of Quantum Meruit Claim.

A plaintiff pleading a claim of quantum meruit has the burden of proving each element of the claim [Foye v. Board of Trade (1936) 11 CA2d 734, 738, 54 P2d 761].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Quantum Meruit Contracts Law Types of Contracts Implied-in-Law Contracts

151 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING QUANTUM MERUIT RECOVERY IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.07

9.07 Defendant Must Have Expressly or Impliedly Requested Plaintiff's Performance.

In order to recover under a quantum meruit theory, a plaintiff must establish that he or she performed services pursuant to the defendant's express or implied request [Day v. Alta Bates Med. Ctr. (2002) 98 CA4th 243, 248, 119 CR2d 606 ; Producers Cotton Oil Co. v. Amstar Corp. (1988) 197 CA3d 638, 659, 242 CR 914] .

Example:

A plaintiff attorney performed services for clients regarding an estate property in which the defendants were jointly interested. The defendants actively participated in conferences and court proceedings, consulted with the plaintiff about the matter at various stages, and expressly agreed to negotiate for a compromise. The court found that the defendants, as evidenced by their conduct, had impliedly agreed to pay the plaintiff for services rendered and should have reasonably known that they would be expected to pay for the services despite not having expressly requested them [Young v. Bruere (1926) 78 CA 127, 132, 248 P 301].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Quantum Meruit Contracts Law Types of Contracts Implied-in-Law Contracts

152 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING QUANTUM MERUIT RECOVERY IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.08

9.08 Both Parties Must Have Understood Plaintiff Would Be Compensated for Services Rendered.

To recover in quantum meruit, a plaintiff must show that both parties understood or expected that the defendant would compensate the plaintiff for the services rendered [Huskinson & Brown, LLP v. Wolf (2004) 32 C4th 453, 458].

Example:

A law firm sued a second law firm to which it had referred a medical malpractice claim against a health care provider for recovery in quantum meruit. In exchange for the referral, the second law firm orally agreed to pay the referring firm 25 percent of any attorney fees recovered. Although the second firm prosecuted the action, the referring firm had paid $800 to a medical expert and performed 20 hours of legal services on the case. Following a successful judgment, the second firm received attorney fees but failed to pay the referring firm. The court found that the referring firm did not gratuitously offer the services rendered and that all parties expected the second firm to compensate the referring firm for its services if the second firm recovered attorney's fees [Huskinson & Brown, LLP v. Wolf (2004) 32 C4th 453, 458].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Formation Meeting of Minds Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Quantum Meruit Contracts Law Types of Contracts Implied-in-Law Contracts

153 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING QUANTUM MERUIT RECOVERY IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.09

9.09 Services Must Have Benefitted Defendant.

The services that the plaintiff performed must have benefitted the defendant [Day v. Alta Bates Med. Ctr. (2002) 98 CA4th 243, 249, 119 CR2d 606 ; Maglica v. Maglica (1998) 66 CA4th 442, 445-446, 78 CR2d 101 ; Earhart v. William Low Co. (1979) 25 C3d 503, 510, 158 CR 887, 600 P2d 1344] .

Exception:

A party who expends funds and performs services for a third party at the request of another, under the reasonable belief that the requesting party will compensate the performing party for the services, may recover in quantum meruit even if the services do not directly benefit the requesting party [Earhart v. William Low Co. (1979) 25 C3d 503, 515, 158 CR 887, 600 P2d 1344] .

Example:

At the defendant's request, the plaintiff commenced construction of a mobile home park on land owned by the defendant and on an adjacent parcel owned by a third party. The defendant refused to compensate the plaintiff for any of the plaintiff's services, and the plaintiff sued in quantum meruit. The court ruled that the plaintiff could recover the reasonable value of the services rendered on both parcels, including the plaintiff's services performed on the third party's parcel of land even though those services did not directly benefit the defendant's property [Earhart v. William Low Co. (1979) 25 C3d 503, 515, 158 CR 887, 600 P2d 1344] .

Example--Services Found Not to Benefit Defendant:

An attorney who had previously represented a plaintiff in an unsuccessful medical malpractice action brought a quantum meruit claim against a hospital, which was the lien claimant in the malpractice action, seeking payment from the attorney's client for unpaid medical services. The attorney asserted that the hospital owed him payment for services rendered in the underlying medical malpractice action that, arguably, could have incidentally benefitted the hospital in relation to its lien. The appellate court affirmed a grant of summary judgment to the hospital, explaining that the attorney could not properly sue the hospital in quantum meruit, in part because the hospital actually received no direct benefit from the attorney's services as a result of the bifurcated underlying medical malpractice suit having failed to proceed beyond the liability phase to the damages phase [Day v. Alta Bates Med. Ctr. (2002) 98 CA4th 243, 249, 119 CR2d 606] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Quantum Meruit Contracts Law Types of Contracts Implied-in-Law Contracts

154 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING QUANTUM MERUIT RECOVERY IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.10

9.10 Claim Must Be Made Within Applicable Statute of Limitations.

The statute of limitations for quantum meruit claims is two years [Maglica v. Maglica (1998) 66 CA4th 442, 452, 78 CR2d 101 ; CCP § 339 (action upon an "obligation" ... not founded upon an instrument of writing)].

The date when the statute begins to run depends on the circumstances of the case. Generally, a statute of limitations begins to run when a cause of action accrues, which is the occurrence of the last essential element of the claim [Spear v. California State Automobile Ass'n (1992) 2 C4th 1035, 1040, 9 CR2d 381, 831 P2d 821]. The date upon which a cause of action accrues depends on the facts.

Examples:

- If an attorney is discharged by a client, quantum meruit recovery for work performed on a contingency fee matter is not available until "after the matter is concluded successfully" [Trimble v. Steinfeldt (1986) 178 CA3d 646, 651-652, 224 CR 195] .
- If the contract is for an indefinite period of time and no time for payment is specified, the statute does not begin to run until the services end [Long v. Rumsey (1938) 12 C2d 334, 342, 84 P2d 146].
- The facts of the case may demonstrate that the parties understood that payment would be made upon termination of the services, and therefore the statute would begin to run upon the termination of the services [see Maglica v. Maglica (1998) 66 CA4th 442, 453, 78 CR2d 101].
- The terms of a construction contract may provide that a contractor's compensation would be a percentage of the net profits derived from the sale of the building with the consent of both parties. If the building is sold without the contractor's consent, then the statute of limitations would begin to run when the building was sold. Therefore, a contractor's suit brought within two years after the sale seeking the reasonable value of services rendered is timely [see Hayes v. 2831 Ellendale Place, Inc. (1963) 223 CA2d 362, 367, 36 CR 94] .

➡ Cross Reference:

See Ch. 4, Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law
Defenses
Statutes of Limitations
Contracts Law
Remedies
Equitable Relief
Quantum Meruit
Contracts Law
Types of Contracts
Implied-in-Law Contracts
Governments
Legislation
Statutes of Limitations
Pleading & Proof
Governments
Legislation
Statutes of Limitations
Time Limitations

155 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING QUANTUM MERUIT RECOVERY IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.11

9.11 Quantum Meruit Recovery May Be Available When Plaintiff Renders Incomplete or Imperfect Performance.

9.11[1] Quantum Meruit Recovery Available When Plaintiff Renders Part Performance on Express Contract. When the parties executed an express contract and the defendant breaches the contract before the plaintiff completes performance, the plaintiff may [Oliver v. Campbell (1954) 43 C2d 298, 301-302, 273 P2d 15] :

- Affirm the contract and bring an action to recover damages for the breach; or
- Disaffirm the contract and seek to recover the reasonable value of the services rendered, even if the value exceeds the contract price.

9.11[2] Quantum Meruit Recovery Available If Defendant Accepted Plaintiff's Imperfect Performance Rendered in Good Faith. A plaintiff may recover in quantum meruit, even if the plaintiff rendered imperfect performance, as long as the plaintiff rendered the services in good faith and the defendant accepted them [Roseleaf Corp. v. Radis (1953) 122 CA2d 196, 207, 264 P2d 964] .

Warning:

It is unclear whether quantum meruit is available when the defendant's obligation under the contract is conditional. Some early cases prevented recovery [see Davisson v. East Whittier Land & Water Co. (1908) 153 C 81, 84-85, 96 P 88] , but others upheld the use of the remedy in actions when the defendant's obligation to perform was conditioned on third-party approval [Castagnino v. Balletta (1889) 82 C 250, 260-261, 23 P 127] . Later decisions also are divided on this issue [see Oliver v. Campbell (1954) 43 C2d 298, 305, 273 P2d 15 ; Draper v. Patterson (1958) 156 CA2d 606, 608-609, 319 P2d 694] .

Cross Reference:

Detailed discussion of the circumstances in which quantum meruit recovery is appropriate, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 1212.25 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Quantum Meruit Contracts Law Types of Contracts Implied-in-Law Contracts

156 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING QUANTUM MERUIT RECOVERY IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.12

9.12 Existence of Contract Is Not Necessary.

9.12[1] Quantum Meruit Recovery Is Quasi-Contractual. To recover in quantum meruit, a party need not prove the existence of a contract [Maglica v. Maglica (1998) 66 CA4th 442, 449, 78 CR2d 101]. Recovery under quantum meruit is quasi-contractual, based on an implied contract for the payment of services to satisfy the ends of justice [see Maglica v. Maglica (1998) 66 CA4th 442, 446 n2, 78 CR2d 101].

Warning:

The line separating recovery based on implied-in-fact contracts from recovery based in quantum meruit is "fuzzy" [Maglica v. Maglica (1998) 66 CA4th 442, 456 n14, 78 CR2d 101]. One court distinguished the two this way: Quantum meruit is a theory that implies a promise to pay for services as a matter of law for reasons of justice, while implied-in-fact contracts are predicated on actual agreements, albeit not ones expressed in words [Maglica v. Maglica (1998) 66 CA4th 442, 456 n14, 78 CR2d 101]. Thus, quantum meruit is a different theory altogether from contracts implied-in-fact [Maglica v. Maglica (1998) 66 CA4th 442, 456 n14, 78 CR2d 101].

9.12[2] Quantum Meruit Recovery Is Available for Void Contracts. Quantum meruit recovery also is available when the contract governing the parties' obligations is void, as long as the consideration underlying the parties' agreement is not illegal [Sims v. Petaluma Gas Light Co. (1901) 131 C 656, 660, 63 P 1011 ; Lawn v. Camino Heights, Inc. (1971) 15 CA3d 973, 980-983, 93 CR 621] .

Example:

Plaintiff referred a client to defendants, who represented the client in her claim against a health care provider. Defendants agreed to pay plaintiff 25 percent of any attorney fee recovered in the case in exchange for the referral. Plaintiff also performed 20 hours of legal services and paid an expert fee in the case. When the client prevailed and attorney fees were awarded, defendants refused to pay plaintiff. Plaintiff sued on various theories, including quantum meruit. The court ruled that the fee-splitting agreement was unenforceable under Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 2-200, but that plaintiff was allowed to recover the reasonable value of his services under a quantum meruit theory [see Huskinson & Brown, LLP v. Wolf (2004) 32 C4th 453, 457-458 ; see also Cohen v. Brown (2009) 173 CA4th 302, 320, 93 CR3d 24 (attorney may recover in quantum meruit when fee-splitting agreement is unenforceable under Rule 2-200); but see Strong v. Beydoun (2008) 166 CA4th 1398, 1404, 83 CR3d 632 (attorney cannot recover from the client the reasonable value of attorney's services that were performed pursuant to an unenforceable fee-sharing agreement with another attorney to which the client did not consent)].

Distinguish:

When regulatory statutes require written agreements or licensure, a party generally may not recover in quantum meruit for that which cannot be recovered on the unenforceable contract [see Castillo v. Barrera (2007) 146 CA4th 1317, 2007 Cal App LEXIS 73 (denying quantum meruit recovery to boxing manager who lacked license and written contract required by Boxing Act, B&P Code § 18600 et seq.)].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of denial of recovery by unlicensed persons, see Ch. 18, Asserting or Defending Claim That Contract Is Illegal, Contrary to Public Policy, or Unconscionable, 18.06[2][a].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Quantum Meruit Contracts Law Types of Contracts Implied-in-Law Contracts

157 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING QUANTUM MERUIT RECOVERY IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.13

9.13 Quantum Meruit Recovery Is Not Available for Liquidated Debts.

If the contract contains terms that specify payment or reduce the parties' obligations to liquidated debts, quantum meruit recovery is not available [Hedging Concepts, Inc. v. First Alliance Mortgage Co. (1996) 41 CA4th 1410, 1419, 49 CR2d 191] .

Example:

A legal publisher contracted with an author to write a publication. After the author submitted the manuscript, the company decided not to publish the book and declined to compensate the author. The author sought recovery under a theory of quantum meruit. The court proceeded on the assumption that the plaintiff had completed performance on the contract, which provided that the plaintiff was entitled to 15 percent of the gross revenues from the publication. The plaintiff's ability to recover in quantum meruit turned on whether the 15 percent of the gross revenues constituted a "liquidated debt." The court found that the plaintiff's entitlement to 15 percent of the revenues from the book was not a liquidated debt under California law because it was not a certain or readily ascertainable figure. The court explained that the mere existence of a fixed percentage royalty in a contract does not render that royalty a "liquidated debt" if the revenues to which that percentage figure is to be applied cannot be calculated with reasonable certainty. Under the facts, it was impossible to determine what the revenues would have been because the publisher did not publish the book [Chodos v. West Publ'g Co., Inc. (9th Cir 2002) 292 F3d 992, 1001-1002 ; see also Hedging Concepts, Inc. v. First Alliance Mortgage Co. (1996) 41 CA4th 1410, 1419, 49 CR2d 191] .

This rule exists because it would be inequitable for courts to impose onto parties obligations different from those that the parties freely, fairly, and voluntarily bargained for in the contract [Hedging Concepts, Inc. v. First Alliance Mortgage Co. (1996) 41 CA4th 1410, 1419, 49 CR2d 191 ; Wal-Noon Corp. v. Hill (1975) 45 CA3d 605, 613, 119 CR 646] .

Cross References:

Discussion of availability of quantum meruit recovery when contract specifies terms of payment, see 9.02.

Form, see 9.40.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Quantum Meruit Contracts Law Types of Contracts Implied-in-Law Contracts

158 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING QUANTUM MERUIT RECOVERY IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.14

9.14 Measure of Recovery Is Reasonable Value of Beneficial Services.

Quantum meruit allows recovery only for the value of services rendered, not the value of the benefit accruing from the rendering of those services [Maglica v. Maglica (1998) 66 CA4th 442, 449-452, 78 CR2d 101 ; Palmer v. Gregg (1967) 65 C2d 657, 660, 56 CR 97, 422 P2d 985] .

Example:

In a case involving a plaintiff's quantum meruit claim seeking the value of her services provided to the defendant's business during the parties' 21-year period of cohabitation without marriage, an appellate court reversed an $84 million jury verdict for the plaintiff because the trial court mistakenly instructed the jury concerning the manner in which the jury could calculate the reasonable value of the plaintiff's services. The trial court's instructions permitted the jury to calculate the value of the plaintiff's services based, erroneously, on the value of the defendant's benefit that accrued over time as a result of the plaintiff having rendered those services, allowing the jury to value plaintiff's services as having bought her an ownership interest in the defendant's business, even though the defendant never agreed to transfer any interest in his business to the plaintiff [Maglica v. Maglica (1998) 66 CA4th 442, 450, 78 CR2d 101].

California courts generally hold that the reasonable value of a plaintiff's services is [Maglica v. Maglica (1998) 66 CA4th 442, 450-452, 78 CR2d 101] :

- The amount that it would have cost the defendant to obtain the services from another person;
 - The amount the defendant would have had to pay on the "open market" to obtain the same services;
- or
- The "comparable charge" for the services.

In determining the amount of damages to be awarded in a quantum meruit claim, the court may consider the "extent, character and value of the plaintiff's services" [George v. Double D. Foods, Inc. (1984) 155 CA3d 36, 46, 201 CR 870] .

Judge's Perspective:

Often, a plaintiff may establish the value of services rendered with evidence that the plaintiff has charged the same price to others for having performed similar services. Obviously, the more frequently a plaintiff has charged and received payment of that price, the more credible the plaintiff's valuation is. The plaintiff may also introduce evidence of the prices that the defendant has paid to others for the same type of work that plaintiff has performed. When the plaintiff's evidence is lacking, however, the plaintiff instead may establish the value of services rendered through expert testimony concerning the value of similar services performed within the relevant market.

Strategic Point--Both Parties:

It is important to keep in mind that the contract price and the reasonable value of services rendered are two separate issues [Maglica v. Maglica (1998) 66 CA4th 442, 450, 78 CR2d 101]. Sometimes the reasonable value of services exceeds the contract price, while at other times the opposite is true [Maglica v. Maglica (1998) 66 CA4th 442, 450, 78 CR2d 101]. The contract price, however, is competent evidence bearing on the reasonable value of the rendered services [Oliver v. Campbell (1954) 43 C2d 298, 305, 273 P2d 15]. The plaintiff should be mindful of these considerations when formulating a recovery strategy in order to ensure the greatest recovery. Similarly, when determining a defense strategy, the defendant should also be mindful of these considerations in an effort to minimize liability.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Quantum Meruit Contracts Law Types of Contracts Implied-in-Law Contracts

159 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions

II. SEEKING QUANTUM MERUIT RECOVERY IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.15

9.15 Pleading Quantum Meruit Claims.

9.15[1] Judicial Council Form for Common Counts May Be Used to Plead Quantum Meruit Claim. The California Judicial Council has approved a pleading form, Judicial Council Form PLD-C-001(2), for alleging a common count cause of action [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 1.45(a), (b)]. Use of this form is optional rather than mandatory. This form may be used for any of a number of common count causes of action, including quantum meruit.

Cross Reference:

Judicial Council Form PLD-C-001(2) Cause of Action--Common Counts, see 9.39.

9.15[2] Complaint Must Meet Specific Pleading Requirements. A plaintiff bringing a quantum meruit claim should ensure that the complaint satisfies the applicable pleading requirements, that the complaint sufficiently sets forth the elements of the claim, and that the claim is timely [see 9.05 -9.18]. The plaintiff should allege all of the following in the complaint [Haggerty v. Warner (1953) 115 CA2d 468, 475, 252 P2d 373 (citing Brown v. Crown Gold Milling Co. (1907) 150 C 376, 382, 89 P 86)]:

- That the plaintiff performed certain services for the benefit of the defendant.
- The reasonable value of the services rendered.
- That those services were rendered at the request of the defendant.
- That those services are unpaid.

9.15[3] Complaint Must Allege That Plaintiff Performed Services for Defendant's Benefit. A quantum meruit claim must allege that the plaintiff performed services for the benefit of the defendant [Haggerty v. Warner (1953) 115 CA2d 468, 475, 252 P2d 373 (citing Brown v. Crown Gold Milling Co. (1907) 150 C 376, 382, 89 P 86)].

Exception:

A party who expends funds and performs services for a third party at the request of another, under the reasonable belief that the requesting party will compensate the performing party for the services, may recover in quantum meruit even if the services do not directly benefit the requesting party [Earhart v.

William Low Co. (1979) 25 C3d 503, 515, 158 CR 887, 600 P2d 1344 . If the plaintiff intends to rely on this exception to the benefit rule, the facts should be pled with sufficient clarity to establish applicability of this exception [see 9.18[1]].

Cross Reference:

Forms, see 9.39, 9.40.

9.15[4] Complaint Must Allege Reasonable Value of Services Rendered. A quantum meruit claim must also allege the reasonable value of the plaintiff's services performed for the defendant's benefit [Haggerty v. Warner (1953) 115 CA2d 468, 475, 252 P2d 373 (citing Brown v. Crown Gold Milling Co. (1907) 150 C 376, 382, 89 P 86)].

Warning:

A plaintiff should thoroughly investigate the reasonable value of services rendered before filing the complaint. This process may even include retaining the services of an expert witness to help the plaintiff determine the value of the rendered services before filing.

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

When pleading a quantum meruit claim, a plaintiff need not specify the items that form the basis of the indebtedness alleged in the complaint [McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 C 84, 87, 55 P 761]. Rather, depending on the circumstances of the case, the plaintiff may wish instead to omit from the complaint specific information about the services rendered and wait until the defendant demands a bill of particulars to provide that information. The plaintiff must provide the bill of particulars within 10 days of receiving the demand [CCP § 454; see 9.23].

Cross References:

Discussion of bill of particulars, see 9.23.

Forms, see 9.42, 9.43.

9.15[5] Complaint Must Allege That Services Were Rendered at Defendant's Request. A complaint seeking quantum meruit recovery must allege that the plaintiff performed services at the request of the defendant [Haggerty v. Warner (1953) 115 CA2d 468, 475, 252 P2d 373 (citing Brown v. Crown Gold Milling Co. (1907) 150 C 376, 382, 89 P 86)].

Cross Reference:

Forms, see 9.39, 9.40.

9.15[6] Complaint Must Allege That Services Are Unpaid. The complaint must also allege that the plaintiff's services performed for the defendant's benefit remain unpaid [Haggerty v. Warner (1953) 115 CA2d 468, 475, 252 P2d 373 (citing Brown v. Crown Gold Milling Co. (1907) 150 C 376, 382, 89 P 86)].

Cross Reference:

Forms, see 9.39, 9.40.

9.15[7] Not Necessary to Specify When Indebtedness Accrued. A quantum meruit claim is not deficient if it fails to state when the defendant became indebted to the plaintiff [Evans v. Zeigler (1949) 91 CA2d 226, 230, 204 P2d 902].

9.15[8] Not Necessary to Specify When Services Were Rendered. It is not necessary to specify the date upon which the plaintiff's services were rendered in an action seeking to recover their reasonable value [Evans v. Zeigler (1949) 91 CA2d 226, 230, 204 P2d 902].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

Nevertheless, it is customary to specify the date or periods of indebtedness in order to establish the timeliness of the action under the statute of limitations [Evans v. Zeigler (1949) 91 CA2d 226, 230, 204 P2d 902].

Warning:

The defendant may attack any uncertainty or ambiguity in the complaint regarding the date upon which the services were rendered by demurrer [Miller v. Brown (1951) 107 CA2d 304, 307, 237 P2d 320].

Cross Reference:

Demurring to claim on quantum meruit where date services rendered is ambiguous, see 9.21.

9.15[9] Demand for Payment Is Not Required. The plaintiff is not required to make a demand for payment before instituting a claim for quantum meruit [McDonald v. Filice (1967) 252 CA2d 613, 623, 60 CR 832].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Pleadings Complaints General Overview Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Pleadings Complaints Requirements Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Quantum Meruit Contracts Law Types of Contracts Implied-in-Law Contracts

160 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions

III. OPPOSING QUANTUM MERUIT CLAIMS IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.16

9.16 CHECKLIST: Opposing Quantum Meruit Claims in Contract Actions.

☐ Analyze complaint to determine appropriate response.

Authority:

McDonald v. Pacific Debenture Co. (1905) 146 C 667, 669, 80 P 1090 ; Interstate Group Adm'rs, Inc. v. Cravens, Dargan & Co. (1985) 174 CA3d 700, 706, 220 CR 250

Discussion:

See 9.17 -9.23

☐ Answer.

Authority:

McDonald v. Pacific Debenture Co. (1905) 146 C 667, 669, 80 P 1090

Discussion:

See 9.17 -9.23

Form:

See 9.41

☐ Demurrer.

Authority:

McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 C 84, 87, 55 P 761 ; Iverson, Yoakum, Papiano & Hatch v. Berwald (1999) 76 CA4th 990, 995, 90 CR2d 665, 669

Discussion:

See 9.17 -9.23

- ☐ Summary judgment motion.

Authority:

Day v. Alta Bates Med. Ctr. (2002) 98 CA4th 243, 247-249, 119 CR2d 606

Discussion:

See 9.22

- ☐ Determine whether claim is sufficiently pled, considering:

- ☐ Whether claim is premised on services actually rendered to defendant or at defendant's request.

Authority:

Parker v. Solomon (1959) 171 CA2d 125, 135-136, 340 P2d 353 ; Earhart v. William Low Co. (1979) 25 C3d 503, 515, 158 CR 887, 600 P2d 1344

Discussion:

See 9.18[1]

- ☐ Whether plaintiff alleged reasonable value of services rendered.

Authority:

Hocker v. Glover (1931) 113 CA 152, 156

Discussion:

See 9.18[2]

- ☐ Whether defendant accepted the services or derived benefit from them.

Authority:

Spurgeon v. Buchter (1961) 192 CA2d 198, 206, 207, 13 CR 354

Discussion:

See 9.18[3]

- ☐ Whether parties entered into special agreement to pay particular amount or in particular manner.

Authority:

Hedging Concepts, Inc. v. First Alliance Mortgage Co. (1996) 41 CA4th 1410, 1419-1420, 49 CR2d 191

Discussion:

See 9.18[4]

- ☐ Whether services were intended to be gratuitous.

Authority:

Huskinson & Brown, LLP v. Wolf (2004) 32 C4th 453, 458

Discussion:

See 9.18[5]

- ☐ Whether claim was brought within applicable statute of limitations.

Authority:Maglica v. Maglica (1998) 66 CA4th 442, 452, 78 CR2d 101 ; CCP § 339Discussion:

See 9.18[6]

- ☐ Whether plaintiff fully performed and consideration due from defendant is a liquidated debt, thereby rendering plaintiff's quantum meruit claim improper.

Authority:Chodos v. West Publ'g Co., Inc. (9th Cir 2002) 292 F3d 992, 1001-1002Discussion:

See 9.13

- ☐ Determine whether to demand a bill of particulars.

Authority:

CCP § 454

Discussion:

See 9.23

Form:

See 9.42, 9.43

- ☐ Verify that bill of particulars is available under the circumstances.

Authority:

CCP § 454

Discussion:

See 9.23

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Defenses, Demurrers & Objections General Overview Contracts

Law Defenses General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Quantum Meruit Contracts Law Types of Contracts Implied-in-Law Contracts

161 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions
 III. OPPOSING QUANTUM MERUIT CLAIMS IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.17

9.17 Options and Strategies.

In defending against a quantum meruit claim, the defendant should analyze the complaint to determine the sufficiency of the plaintiff's allegations, whether the defendant can rebut any of the elements of the claim that the plaintiff must prove, and whether the claim was brought within the applicable statute of limitations.

Cross Reference:

Detailed discussion of defenses to equitable remedies, see Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions.

The plaintiff's complaint may not allege a sufficient amount of information to allow the defendant to form an adequate response. This is because, when pleading quantum meruit, a plaintiff need not specify the items alleged in the pleadings or the date the services were rendered [McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 C 84, 87, 55 P 761 ; Evans v. Zeigler (1949) 91 CA2d 226, 230, 204 P2d 902 ; see 9.11]. In response, however, a defendant has the right to demand a bill of particulars in order to learn the specifics of the alleged claim [Auzerais v. Naglee (1887) 74 C 60, 64, 15 P 371 ; CCP § 454; see 9.23]. This procedure forces the plaintiff to itemize the total amount on which the complaint is based so that the defendant is not taken by surprise and is in a position to answer or otherwise respond to the complaint [Halagan v. Ohanesian (1967) 257 CA2d 14, 17, 64 CR 792 ; see 9.23].

A bill of particulars may be requested in a variety of situations, such as when the defendant seeks an itemization of services rendered [see Baroni v. Musick (1934) 3 CA2d 419, 421, 39 P2d 435].

A bill of particulars is not a pleading and cannot be answered [Chamberlain v. Loewenthal (1902) 138 C 47, 49, 70 P 932 ; Weiner v. Davies (1967) 248 CA2d 387, 391, 56 CR 546]. The bill, however, amplifies the complaint and is considered incorporated into the complaint as originally filed [Kurokawa v. Saroyan (1928) 95 CA 772, 775, 273 P 613]. The items specified in the bill, therefore, act to limit the nature and amount of the plaintiff's recovery, as well to determine the admissibility of evidence offered in support of the plaintiff's claim at trial [Abbott v. Limited Mut. Comp. Ins. Co. (1938) 30 CA2d 157, 161, 85 P2d 961 ; see Gough v. Security Trust & Sav. Bank (1958) 162 CA2d 90, 94, 327 P2d 555] .

Strategic Point--Defendant:

Although the defendant can obtain through the course of the normal discovery process the same information that a plaintiff would set forth in a bill of particulars, a demand for a bill of particulars is usually less costly than discovery proceedings, which involve the expenses of significant attorney hours and other costs related to document requests and depositions.

A defendant generally may not demur to a quantum meruit claim. However, demurrer is appropriate in limited circumstances, such as when the complaint affirmatively demonstrates that the plaintiff's action is barred by the statute of limitations [see 9.21].

Summary judgment may also be appropriate under some circumstances [see 9.22].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Quantum Meruit Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Unclean Hands Contracts Law Types of Contracts Implied-in-Law Contracts

162 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions

III. OPPOSING QUANTUM MERUIT CLAIMS IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.18

9.18 Defending Against Quantum Meruit Claims

9.18[1] Claim Must Be Premised on Services Actually Rendered to Defendant. A count is defective if the quantum meruit claim is not premised on any services actually rendered to the defendant that might serve as a basis of the plaintiff's recovery [Parker v. Solomon (1959) 171 CA2d 125, 134-135, 340 P2d 353] .

➡ Cross Reference:

Discussion of requirement that services be rendered to the defendant, see 9.07 -9.09.

Warning:

The plaintiff need not have been rendered services directly to the defendant in order for the defendant to have benefitted from the services [Earhart v. William Low Co. (1979) 25 C3d 503, 515, 158 CR 887, 600 P2d 1344] .

Cross References:

Discussion of circumstances in which court found that defendant benefitted from services rendered to a third party, see 9.09.

Form, see 9.41.

9.18[2] Defendant Can Claim No Evidence Exists of Value of Services Rendered. Although a plaintiff's quantum meruit claim is proper if it alleges only the reasonable value of the services performed for the defendant's benefit [Haggerty v. Warner (1953) 115 CA2d 468, 475, 252 P2d 373 (citing Brown v. Crown Gold Milling Co. (1907) 150 C 376, 382, 89 P 86)], the plaintiff may not recover the reasonable value of those services without sufficient evidence of their value [Hocker v. Glover (1931) 113 CA 152, 156] .

Cross References:

Discussion of requirement that plaintiff allege the reasonable value of services rendered, see 9.15[4].

Form, see 9.39, 9.40.

9.18[3] Defendant Must Have Accepted Services and Derived Benefit From Them. A plaintiff may not imply the existence of a contract if the defendant neither accepted the plaintiff's services nor derived a benefit from them [Spurgeon v. Buchter (1961) 192 CA2d 198, 206, 207, 13 CR 354] .

The plaintiff must prove that the services rendered benefitted the defendant [Day v. Alta Bates Med. Ctr. (2002) 98 CA4th 243, 248-249, 119 CR2d 606] . If it is unclear whether or not the services actually benefitted the defendant, the defendant should raise that issue.

Warning:

The plaintiff need not have rendered the services directly to the defendant in order for the defendant to have benefitted from the services [see 9.15[3]].

Cross References:

Discussion of circumstances in which court found that defendant benefitted from services rendered to a third party, see 9.09.

Forms, see 9.39, 9.40.

9.18[4] Defendant Can Claim Contract Contains Terms Specifying Payment. If the contract contains terms that specify payment, quantum meruit recovery is not available [Hedging Concepts, Inc. v. First Alliance Mortgage Co. (1996) 41 CA4th 1410, 1419, 49 CR2d 191 ; see also Chodos v. West Publ'g Co., Inc. (9th Cir 2002) 292 F3d 992, 1001-1002 (quantum meruit recovery available because fixed percentage royalty clause in publishing contract does not amount to "liquidated debt" when revenues to which percentage figure is to be applied cannot be calculated with reasonable certainty and when it was impossible to determine what revenues would have been because publisher did not publish book)].

Cross References:

Discussion of availability of quantum meruit recovery when contract specifies terms of payment, see 9.02.

Forms, see 9.39, 9.40.

9.18[5] Services Must Not Have Been Intended to Be Gratuitous. It must be apparent that the plaintiff did not perform the services gratuitously [Huskinson & Brown, LLP v. Wolf (2004) 32 C4th 453, 458]. If not, the defendant should raise this issue as a defense to the plaintiff's claim. Unless the parties are near relatives, the recipient of the services has the burden to prove the defense that the services were rendered gratuitously or without obligation to pay on the recipient's part [Miller v. Campbell, Warburton, Fitzsimmons, Smith, Mendel & Pastore (2008) 162 CA4th 1331, 1344, 76 CR3d 649] .

Cross Reference:

Form, see 9.39, 9.40.

9.18[6] Claim Must Have Been Brought Within Applicable Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for quantum meruit claims is two years [Maglica v. Maglica (1998) 66 CA4th 442, 452, 78 CR2d 101 ; CCP § 339 (action upon an "obligation" ... not founded upon an instrument of writing)]. The date upon which the statute begins to run depends on the circumstances of the case [see 9.10].

Cross Reference:

General discussion of statutes of limitations, see Ch. 4, Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action, 4.03 -4.16.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Quantum Meruit Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Unclean Hands Contracts Law Types of Contracts Implied-in-Law Contracts

163 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions
III. OPPOSING QUANTUM MERUIT CLAIMS IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.19

9.19 General Denial Is Sufficient to Raise Almost Any Defense, Except Some Affirmative Defenses.

If the complaint is in the form of a common count, the defendant need not deny the allegations in the answer in any more specific language than that used by the plaintiff [McDonald v. Pacific Debenture Co. (1905) 146 C 667, 669, 80 P 1090]. For example, an answer may, but is not required to, specifically take issue with the indebtedness alleged by the plaintiff [McDonald v. Pacific Debenture Co. (1905) 146 C 667, 669, 80 P 1090].

A general denial is sufficient to raise almost any defense, including some defenses that customarily require special pleading [Interstate Group Adm'rs, Inc. v. Cravens, Dargan & Co. (1985) 174 CA3d 700, 706, 220 CR 250].

Exception:

Some affirmative defenses must be specifically pleaded, such as:

- The defense of the statute of limitations [McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 C 84, 87, 55 P 761].
- Estoppel [Grove v. Charles W. Barrett Co. (1927) 87 CA 165, 168, 261 P 739].
- Lack of capacity to sue [Grove v. Charles W. Barrett Co. (1927) 87 CA 165, 168, 261 P 739].
- Any new matter relied on by the defendant that was not put in issue by the plaintiff [see Interstate Group Adm'rs, Inc. v. Cravens, Dargan & Co. (1985) 174 CA3d 700, 706-707, 220 CR 250].

Cross Reference:

Form, see 9.41.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Defenses, Demurrers & Objections Affirmative Defenses General Overview Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Defenses, Demurrers & Objections Denials Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Quantum Meruit Contracts Law Types of Contracts Implied-in-Law Contracts

164 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions

III. OPPOSING QUANTUM MERUIT CLAIMS IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.20

9.20 Statute of Frauds Is Not an Appropriate Defense.

The statute of frauds does not render defective a common count seeking the reasonable value of services, even if the contract itself may be unenforceable under the statute of frauds [Leoni v. Delany (1948) 83 CA2d 303, 307, 188 P2d 765 ; McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 C 84, 87, 55 P 761].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Defenses, Demurrers & Objections Affirmative Defenses General Overview Contracts Law Defenses General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Quantum Meruit Contracts Law Statutes of Frauds General Overview Contracts Law Types of Contracts Implied-in-Law Contracts

165 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions
III. OPPOSING QUANTUM MERUIT CLAIMS IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.21

9.21 Quantum Meruit Usually Is Not Subject to Demurrer.

A defendant generally may not demur to the complaint of a common count [McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 C 84, 87, 55 P 761].

Exception:

A defendant should raise the statute of limitations defense by demurrer when the face of the complaint affirmatively demonstrates that the action is untimely or when the complaint is vague regarding this issue [Iverson, Yoakum, Papiano & Hatch v. Berwald (1999) 76 CA4th 990, 995, 90 CR2d 665 ; Miller v. Brown (1951) 107 CA2d 304, 306-307, 237 P2d 320 ; Evans v. Zeigler (1949) 91 CA2d 226, 230, 204 P2d 902]. In addition, as a general rule, a defendant may demur to a complaint alleging a common count when it is based on the same facts as a specific count alleging an express contract, but only when the specific count fails to state a cause of action [White Lighting Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 C2d 336, 346, 66 CR 697, 438 P2d 345 ; see also Farmers Ins. Exch. v. Zerlin (1997) 53 CA4th 445, 460, 61 CR2d 707 ; Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 C2d 822, 837, 69 CR 321, 442 P2d 377] .

Strategic Point--Defendant:

Even if the face of the complaint does not affirmatively demonstrate the untimeliness of the plaintiff's claim, the defendant still may wish to specially demur based on the ambiguity or uncertainty of the actual dates concerning the limitations defense [Miller v. Brown (1951) 107 CA2d 304, 307, 237 P2d 320].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Defenses, Demurrers & Objections Demurrers Contracts Law Defenses General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Quantum Meruit Contracts Law Types of Contracts Implied-in-Law Contracts

166 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions

III. OPPOSING QUANTUM MERUIT CLAIMS IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.22

9.22 Summary Judgment May Be Available on Quantum Meruit Claims.

A defendant should move for summary judgment if the plaintiff cannot establish that he or she did both of the following [Day v. Alta Bates Med. Ctr. (2002) 98 CA4th 243, 248-249, 119 CR2d 606] :

- Performed services pursuant to the defendant's express or implied request; and
- Intended to and did benefit the defendant by performing those services.

Cross Reference:

California Points and Authorities, Ch. 43, Common Counts and Bills of Particulars, Form 14 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Summary Judgment General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Quantum Meruit Contracts Law Types of Contracts Implied-in-Law Contracts

167 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions

III. OPPOSING QUANTUM MERUIT CLAIMS IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

*1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.239.23 Defendant May Demand Bill of Particulars.

9.23[1] Defendant Has Right to Learn Specifics of Plaintiff's Claim. The defendant should, in most cases, demand a bill of particulars in order to learn about the specifics of the plaintiff's claim [CCP § 454; Caruso v. Snap-Tite, Inc. (1969) 275 CA2d 211, 212-213, 79 CR 642] .

The demand need not take any particular form, but the defendant must give it to the plaintiff in writing [CCP § 454]. The party making the demand should also be the party to sign it [see Elmore v. Tingley (1926) 78 CA 460, 467-468, 468, 248 P 706] .

The demand need not be made at any particular time [CCP § 454].

➡ Cross Reference:

Form, see 9.42.

Strategic Point--Defendant:

Making a demand does not extend the defendant's time to answer the complaint. If the defendant needs the additional information requested from the plaintiff in the bill of particulars to answer the complaint, the defendant should request additional time either by stipulation or court order, unless doing so would violate local court rules [see, e.g., Dobbins v. Hardister (1966) 242 CA2d 787, 794, 51 CR 866] .

9.23[2] Bill of Particulars Is Not a Pleading and Cannot Be Answered. The bill of particulars is not a pleading, and cannot be answered [Chamberlain v. Loewenthal (1902) 138 C 47, 49, 70 P 932 ; Weiner v. Davies (1967) 248 CA2d 387, 391, 56 CR 546]. The bill, however, amplifies the plaintiff's complaint and is considered incorporated into the complaint as originally filed. The items specified in the bill therefore act to limit the nature and amount of the plaintiff's recovery, as well to determine the admissibility of evidence offered in support of the plaintiff's claim at trial [Kurokawa v. Saroyan (1928) 95 CA 772, 775, 273 P 613].

➡ Cross Reference:

Form, see 9.43.

9.23[3] Items in Bill Must Be Set Forth Precisely and Definitely in Good Faith. The plaintiff must set forth the items in a bill of particulars in good faith, as precisely and as definitely as possible [Meredith v. Marks (1963) 212 CA2d 265, 270, 27 CR 737]. The court determines whether the plaintiff's response to a demand for a bill of particulars is sufficient [Butler Bros. v. Connolly (1962) 204 CA2d 22, 26, 22 CR 175] .

If the plaintiff delivers a bill of particulars that is too general, or defective in other ways, the defendant may demand a further bill of particulars [CCP § 454; Burton v. Santa Barbara Nat'l Bank (1966) 247 CA2d 427, 433, 55 CR 529] .

Cross References:

Form, see 9.43.

Discussion of bill of particulars, additional forms, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 121, Common Counts (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Pleadings Bills of Particulars Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Quantum Meruit Contracts Law Types of Contracts Implied-in-Law Contracts

168 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING QUANTUM VALEBANT RECOVERY IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.24

9.24 CHECKLIST: Seeking or Opposing Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions.

9.24[1] Determining Whether Quantum Valebant Is Available.

☐ Did plaintiff sell or deliver goods to defendant?

Authority:

Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 C2d 778, 792-794, 256 P2d 947

Discussion:

See 9.26

☐ Did defendant expressly or impliedly request plaintiff's performance?

Authority:

Day v. Alta Bates Med. Ctr. (2002) 98 CA4th 243, 248, 119 CR2d 606

Discussion:

See 9.26

☐ Did both parties understand that plaintiff would be compensated for the goods?

Authority:

Hallidie v. Enginger (1917) 175 C 505, 508, 166 P 1

Discussion:

See 9.26

☐ Does defendant's use of goods for his or her benefit warrant imposition of a duty of compensation for that use?

Authority:

Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 C2d 778, 792-794, 256 P2d 947

Discussion:

See 9.26

- ☐ Was there no refusal by defendant to accept goods?

Authority:

Hallidie v. Sutter S.R. Co. (1883) 63 C 575, 577

Discussion:

See 9.26

- ☐ Was claim brought within applicable statute of limitations period?

Authority:

CCP §§ 337, 339

Discussion:

See 9.26

9.24[2] Pleading Claims for Quantum Valebant.

- ☐ Allege in complaint that plaintiff delivered goods to defendant.

Authority:

Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 C2d 778, 792-794, 256 P2d 947

Discussion:

See 9.25, 9.26

Forms:

See 9.39, 9.44

- ☐ Allege reasonable value of goods.

Authority:

Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 C2d 778, 792-794, 256 P2d 947

Discussion:

See 9.25, 9.26

Forms:

See 9.39, 9.44

- ☐ Allege that goods were delivered at defendant's request.

Authority:

Day v. Alta Bates Med. Ctr. (2002) 98 CA4th 243, 249, 119 CR2d 606

Discussion:

See 9.25, 9.26

Forms:

See 9.39, 9.44

- ☐ Allege that defendant did not pay for goods.

Authority:

First Interstate Bank of Cal. v. State of California (1987) 197 CA3d 627, 635, 243 CR 8

Discussion:

See 9.25, 9.26

Forms:

See 9.39,

9.24[3] Opposing Claims for Quantum Valebant.

- ☐ Analyze complaint to determine potential defenses, including:

Authority:

CCP § 430.10

Discussion:

See 9.34

Form:

See 9.45

- ☐ Plaintiff's claim is not premised on goods delivered to defendant.

Authority:

Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 C2d 778, 792-794, 256 P2d 947

Discussion:

See 9.34

Form:

See 9.45

- ☐ Plaintiff failed to allege value of delivered goods.

Authority:

Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 C2d 778, 792-794, 256 P2d 947

Discussion:

See 9.34

Form:

See 9.45

- ☐ No proof exists of special agreement to pay particular amount for goods.

Authority:

Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 C2d 778, 792-794, 256 P2d 947

Discussion:

See 9.34

Form:

See 9.45

- ☐ Plaintiff intended to deliver goods to defendant gratuitously.

Authority:

Huskinson & Brown, LLP v. Wolf (2004) 32 C4th 453, 458

Discussion:

See 9.34

Form:

See 9.45

- ☐ Plaintiff failed to bring claim within applicable limitations period.

Authority:

CCP §§ 337, 339

Discussion:

See 9.34

Form:

See 9.45

- ☐ Defendant did not accept goods or use them in a way warranting imposition of a duty of compensation for that use.

Authority:

Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 C2d 778, 792-794, 256 P2d 947

Discussion:

See 9.34

Form:

See 9.45

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief General Overview

169 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING QUANTUM VALEBANT RECOVERY IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.25

9.25 Options and Strategies.

Quantum valebant is used to recover the reasonable value of goods sold and delivered and differs from a quantum meruit claim, which seeks to recover the value of services rendered [Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 C2d 778, 792-794, 256 P2d 947 ; see 9.03]. Quantum valebant, like quantum meruit, is a common count, which is a common law action in which the law, in order to prevent the defendant's unjust enrichment by the plaintiff's property, implies the defendant's promise to repay the sum demanded [see Philpott v. Superior Court (1934) 1 C2d 512, 518, 36 P2d 635] .

► Cross Reference:

Discussion of common counts, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 121, Common Counts (Matthew Bender).

Quantum valebant is based on the legal fiction that when one person delivers goods to another person at the latter's request, the latter makes an implied promise to pay for them, even if he or she never intended to pay for them in the first place [Hallidie v. Enginger (1917) 175 C 505, 508, 166 P 1 ; see 9.29]. Accordingly, the elements of a quantum valebant claim, and the defenses to the claim, are similar to those for quantum meruit [see 9.05, 9.18].

The plaintiff needs to establish that the goods were delivered at the defendant's request and that the defendant did not refuse to accept them. The plaintiff should also establish that the defendant used the goods for his or her own benefit [see 9.26]. In response, the defendant should attempt to refute both of these claims [see 9.34].

If the plaintiff seeks to recover a specific sum, rather than the reasonable value of the goods sold and delivered, the common count action of goods sold and delivered (indebitatus assumpsit) is more appropriate. Alternatively, if the plaintiff can establish that the defendant breached an oral or written contract made with the plaintiff, then the plaintiff can bring a contract action seeking damages for breach.

► Cross References:

Discussion of other common counts and common counts in general, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 121, Common Counts (Matthew Bender).

Discussion of breach of contract, see Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawRemediesEquitable ReliefGeneral OverviewContracts LawSales of GoodsGeneral Overview

170 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING QUANTUM VALEBANT RECOVERY IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.26

9.26 Elements of Quantum Valebant Claim.

A plaintiff who brings a quantum valebant claim does not need to prove the existence of a contract with the defendant. Rather, in order to properly plead a quantum valebant claim, the plaintiff must establish all of the following [Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 C2d 778, 792-794, 256 P2d 947] :

- The plaintiff sold or delivered goods to the defendant.
- The sale and delivery was pursuant to the defendant's express or implied request.
- Both parties understood that the plaintiff would be compensated for the goods.
- The defendant's use of the goods for his or her benefit warrants the imposition of a duty of compensation for that use [see 9.29].
- The defendant did not refuse to accept the goods [see 9.28].
- The claim was made within the applicable statute of limitations period [see 9.27].
- The defendant did not pay for the goods.

Cross Reference:

Forms, see 9.39, 9.44.

Jury Instructions:

Contracts--Common Count: Goods and Services Rendered, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 371 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief General Overview Contracts Law Sales of Goods General Overview

171 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING QUANTUM VALEBANT RECOVERY IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.27

9.27 Basic Two-Year or Four-Year Statute of Limitations Applies.

A four-year statute of limitations period applies to quantum valebant claims if based on the existence of a writing [CCP § 337(1)], but a two-year statute of limitations period applies to quantum valebant claims based on representations that are oral or implied in fact [CCP § 339(1); Maglica v. Maglica (1998) 66 CA4th 442, 452-454, 78 CR2d 101] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief General Overview Contracts Law Sales of Goods General Overview Contracts Law Sales of Goods Statutes of Limitations Time Limitations

172 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING QUANTUM VALEBANT RECOVERY IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.28

9.28 Defendant Must Not Have Refused to Accept Goods.

A plaintiff's quantum valebant claim will not succeed if the defendant refused to accept the plaintiff's delivery of the goods [Hallidie v. Sutter S. R. Co. (1883) 63 C 575, 577].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief General Overview Contracts Law Sales of Goods General Overview Contracts Law Sales of Goods Breach, Repudiation & Excuse General Overview

173 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING QUANTUM VALEBANT RECOVERY IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.29

9.29 Defendant Must Have Used Property in Way That Created Duty of Compensation for Use.

The defendant must have used the goods for his or her benefit, warranting the imposition of a duty of compensation for that use [Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 C2d 778, 794, 256 P2d 947] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawRemediesEquitable ReliefGeneral OverviewContracts LawSales of GoodsGeneral Overview

174 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING QUANTUM VALEBANT RECOVERY IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.30

9.30 Measure of Recovery Is Reasonable Value of Goods Sold and Delivered.

The recovery in a quantum valebant claim is limited to the reasonable value of an item, or the portion of the item that the defendant used [Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 C2d 778, 792-793, 256 P2d 947] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawRemediesEquitable ReliefGeneral OverviewContracts LawSales of GoodsGeneral Overview

175 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING QUANTUM VALEBANT RECOVERY IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.31

9.31 Plaintiff Need Not Specify When Indebtedness Accrued.

The plaintiff need not specify the date upon which the goods were delivered in a quantum valebant action [Evans v. Zeigler (1949) 91 CA2d 226, 230, 204 P2d 902].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

Nonetheless, the plaintiff should specify the date of delivery or periods of indebtedness in order to establish the timeliness of the action under the statute of limitations [Evans v. Zeigler (1949) 91 CA2d 226, 230, 204 P2d 902].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief General Overview Contracts Law Sales of Goods General Overview

176 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING QUANTUM VALEBANT RECOVERY IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.32

9.32 Judicial Council Form for Common Counts May Be Used to Plead Quantum Valebant Claim.

The California Judicial Council has approved a pleading form, Judicial Council Form PLD-C-001(2), for alleging a common count cause of action [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 1.45(a), (b)]. Use of this form is optional rather than mandatory.

Cross Reference:

Judicial Council Form PLD-C-001(2) Cause of Action--Common Counts, see 9.39.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Pleadings Complaints General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief General Overview

177 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Volebant Recovery in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING QUANTUM VALEBANT RECOVERY IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.33

9.33 Demand for Payment Is Not Required.

Although customarily alleged, the plaintiff need not demand payment from the defendant in a quantum valebant case; the complaint itself serves as the plaintiff's demand [Samuels v. Larrimore (1909) 11 CA 337, 339, 104 P 1001].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawRemediesEquitable ReliefGeneral OverviewContracts LawSales of GoodsGeneral Overview

178 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING QUANTUM VALEBANT RECOVERY IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.34

9.34 Defending Against Quantum Valebant Claim.

The defendant in a quantum valebant action can deny the allegations in an answer [see 9.35], disprove one or more elements of the cause of action [see 9.34], or assert any applicable affirmative defense, such as the statute of limitations [see 9.27, 9.37].

To defeat a claim for quantum valebant, the defendant should assert any of the following, as appropriate [Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 C2d 778, 792-794, 256 P2d 947] :

- The plaintiff's claim is not premised on goods delivered to the defendant.
- No evidence exists of the value of goods delivered.
- A special agreement exists specifying the payment terms of a particular amount for the goods.
- The plaintiff intended to deliver the goods to the defendant gratuitously.
- The plaintiff's claim was not brought within the applicable statute of limitations period [see 9.27].
- The defendant did not accept the goods or use them for his or her benefit [see 9.28].

Cross References:

Form, see 9.45.

Defenses to a quantum meruit claim, which is similar to a quantum valebant claim, see 9.18.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief General Overview Contracts Law Sales of Goods General Overview

179 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING QUANTUM VALEBANT RECOVERY IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.35

9.35 General Denial Sufficient to Raise Most Defenses.

If the plaintiff's complaint seeking recovery in quantum valebant is in the form of a common count, the defendant need not deny the allegations in the answer in any more specific language than that used by the plaintiff [McDonald v. Pacific Debenture Co. (1905) 146 C 667, 669, 80 P 1090]. For example, an answer may, but is not required to, specifically deny the plaintiff's allegations of indebtedness [McDonald v. Pacific Debenture Co. (1905) 146 C 667, 669, 80 P 1090].

A general denial is sufficient to raise almost any defense, including some defenses that customarily require special pleading [Interstate Group Adm'rs, Inc. v. Cravens, Dargan & Co. (1985) 174 CA3d 700, 706, 220 CR 250].

Some affirmative defenses must be specifically pleaded, such as:

- The statute of limitations [McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 C 84, 87, 55 P 761].
- Estoppel [Grove v. Charles W. Barrett Co. (1927) 87 CA 165, 168, 261 P 739].
- Lack of capacity to sue [Grove v. Charles W. Barrett Co. (1927) 87 CA 165, 168, 261 P 739].
- Any new matter relied on by the defendant that was not put in issue by the plaintiff [see Interstate Group Adm'rs, Inc. v. Cravens, Dargan & Co. (1985) 174 CA3d 700, 706-707, 220 CR 250].

Cross References:

Form, see 9.45.

Discussion of defenses to common counts, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 121, Common Counts (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Defenses, Demurrers & Objections Affirmative Defenses General Overview Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Defenses, Demurrers & Objections Denials Contracts Law Remedies Equitable

ReliefGeneral Overview

180 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING QUANTUM VALEBANT RECOVERY IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.36

9.36 Quantum Valebant Generally Not Subject to Demurrer.

A defendant generally may not demur to the complaint of a common count [McFarland v. Holcomb (1898) 123 C 84, 87, 55 P 761]. Further, a defendant may not specially demur to a complaint on the ground of uncertainty if the plaintiff failed to specify whether the action is based on a theory of quantum valebant or on the breach of an express contract [Preston v. Central Cal. Water & Irrigation Co. (1909) 11 CA 190, 196-197, 104 P 462].

Exception:

A defendant may properly raise the statute of limitations defense by demurrer when the face of the plaintiff's complaint affirmatively demonstrates that the plaintiff's quantum valebant claim is untimely [Iverson, Yoakum, Papiano & Hatch v. Berwald (1999) 76 CA4th 990, 995, 90 CR2d 665 ; Evans v. Zeigler (1949) 91 CA2d 226, 230, 204 P2d 902]. In addition, as a general rule, a defendant may demur to a complaint alleging a common count when it is based on the same facts as a specific count alleging an express contract, but only when the specific count fails to state a cause of action [White Lighting Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 C2d 336, 346, 66 CR 697, 438 P2d 345 ; see also Farmers Ins. Exch. v. Zerin (1997) 53 CA4th 445, 460, 61 CR2d 707 ; Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 C2d 822, 837, 69 CR 321, 442 P2d 377] .

Strategic Point--Defendant:

Even if the face of the complaint does not affirmatively demonstrate the untimeliness of the plaintiff's claim, the defendant still may wish to specially demur based on the ambiguity or uncertainty of the actual dates concerning the limitations defense [Miller v. Brown (1951) 107 CA2d 304, 307, 237 P2d 320].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Defenses, Demurrers & Objections Demurrers Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief General Overview

181 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING QUANTUM VALEBANT RECOVERY IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.37

9.37 Defenses Should Be Raised in Answer or Summary Judgment Motion.

Because a defendant generally may not demur to the complaint of a common count such as quantum valebant, the defendant should raise in the answer or a motion for summary judgment any response to a pleading defect not appearing on the face of the complaint [CCP § 430.30(b); see CCP § 430.10(e)].

➡ Cross Reference:

Form for answer to complaint alleging quantum valebant, see 9.45.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsAnswersCivil ProcedureSummary JudgmentGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesEquitable ReliefGeneral OverviewContracts LawSales of GoodsGeneral Overview

182 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions
IV. SEEKING OR OPPOSING QUANTUM VALEBANT RECOVERY IN CONTRACT ACTIONS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.38

9.38 Defendant May Demand Bill of Particulars.

The defendant has the right to demand a bill of particulars in order to learn about the specifics of the plaintiff's claim [CCP § 454; Caruso v. Snap-Tite, Inc. (1969) 275 CA2d 211, 212-213, 79 CR 642]. The demand need not take any particular form, but the defendant must give it to the plaintiff in writing [CCP § 454]. The party making the demand also should be the party to sign it [see Elmore v. Tingley (1926) 78 CA 460, 467, 248 P 706]. Further, the demand need not be made at any particular time [CCP § 454].

Cross References:

Procedure for demanding bill of particulars, see 9.23.

Form for demand for bill of particulars, see 9.42.

Form for bill of particulars, see 9.43.

Further discussion of bill of particulars, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 121, Common Counts (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Pleadings Bills of Particulars Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief General Overview

183 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions
V. FORMS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.39

9.39 Judicial Council Form PLD-C-001(2) Cause of Action--Common Counts.

Judicial Council Form PLD-C-001(2) Cause of Action--Common Counts.

Click here to view image.

NOTES.

Authority:

Cal Rules Ct, Rule 1.45(a), (b)

Use of Form:

See 9.15

Elements of Quantum Meruit Claim:

See 9.05

Elements of Quantum Valebant Claim:

See 9.26

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesEquitable
ReliefGeneral Overview

184 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions
V. FORMS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.40

9.40 Complaint for Quantum Meruit Seeking Reasonable Value of Work, Labor, and Services.Complaint for Quantum Meruit Seeking Reasonable Value of Work, Labor, and Services.

[Name of attorney]

_____[Street address]

_____[City, state, and ZIP]

_____[Area code and phone number]

_____[State Bar no. of attorney]

Attorney for _____[name of party]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,

COUNTY OF _____

[name(s)] _____,

Plaintiff(s)

vs.

[name(s)] _____

[and DOES 1 THROUGH

_____] _____

Defendant(s).

)

)

)

)

)

)

)

)

NO.

COMPLAINT FOR REASONABLE VALUE OF WORK, LABOR AND SERVICES (COMMON COUNT IN QUANTUM MERUIT)

[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

[Amount Demanded

_____(Exceeds or Does Not Exceed) $10,000]

Plaintiff _____[name] alleges:

[For an individual plaintiff]

1. Plaintiff is an individual residing in _____ [city, if any, and county], California, [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____] [, and therein doing business under the fictitious business name of _____].
Plaintiff has duly complied in all respects with the requirements of Business and Professions Code Sections 17910 through 17917 with respect to this fictitious business name].

[OR, for a domestic corporation or domestic limited liability company]

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of California, with its principal place of business in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____] [, and therein doing business under the fictitious business name of _____].
Plaintiff has duly complied in all respects with the requirements of Business and Professions Code Sections 17910 through 17917 with respect to this fictitious business name].

[OR, for a foreign corporation or foreign limited liability company]

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of _____ [state or foreign country], and _____ [for foreign corporation authorized to do business and doing business in California or, for foreign limited liability company maintaining action or intrastate business, and registered to transact intrastate business in California], with its principal place of business in California in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____].

[OR, for a general or limited partnership or an unincorporated association]

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [partnership or unincorporated association] with its principal place of business in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____] [, and therein doing business under the fictitious business name of _____].
Plaintiff has duly complied in all respects with the requirements of Business and Professions Code Sections 17910 through 17917 with respect to this fictitious business name].

[CONTINUE]

[For an individual defendant]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is an individual residing in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____] [and doing business therein under the fictitious business name of _____].

[OR, for a domestic corporation or domestic limited liability company]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of California [, with its principal place of business in _____ (city, if any, and county), California (, in the _____ [name of judicial district, if any])].

[OR, for a foreign corporation or foreign limited liability company]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of _____ [state or foreign country][, with its principal place of business in _____ (city, if any, and county), California (, in the _____ [name of judicial district, if any])].

[OR, for a general or limited partnership or an unincorporated association]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [a partnership or an unincorporated association] sued herein under the name _____ [it has assumed or by which it is known][, with its principal place of business in _____ (city, if any, and county), California (, in the _____ [name of judicial district, if any])]. [Defendants (names of individual partners or members) _____ are, and at all times herein mentioned were, members of that _____ (partnership or unincorporated association) (and are, and at all times herein mentioned were, residents of _____ County, California)].

[CONTINUE]

3. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of Defendants sued herein as DOES 1 through _____ [numeral, e.g., 50], inclusive, and therefore sues these Defendants by these fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named Defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that Plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by those Defendants.]

4. Within the last year, at Defendant's request, Plaintiff performed

_____ [specify type of services, e.g., construction services] for the Defendant in [_____ insert name of the city and county where the plaintiff performed services rendered]. Plaintiff and Defendant both understood that Plaintiff would be compensated for performing these services. Defendant knew that these services were being provided and never told Plaintiff to stop performing the services. Defendant accepted, used, and enjoyed the services provided by Plaintiff.

5. The fair and reasonable value of the services Plaintiff provided to Defendant is at least $_____.

[If plaintiff has demanded payment, add]

6. Plaintiff has demanded payment from Defendant for Plaintiff's services as specified in Paragraph 4, above. Plaintiff's last demand for payment was made on _____[date]. [A copy of Plaintiff's letter demanding payment on that occasion is attached as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference.]

[Continue]

[If defendant has not paid anything]

7. Defendant has failed and refused, and still refuses, to pay Plaintiff all or any part of the reasonable value of the services specified in Paragraph 4. As a result of Defendant's failure to pay, Defendant is now indebted to Plaintiff in the sum of at least $_____, representing the fair and reasonable value of Plaintiff's services as specified in Paragraph 4, above.

[OR, if partial payment has been made]

7. Defendant has paid only the sum of $_____ to Plaintiff for the services specified in Paragraph 4, and has refused, and still refuses, to pay Plaintiff any additional sum for those services. As a result of Defendant's failure to pay, Defendant is now indebted to Plaintiff in the sum of at least $_____, representing the balance due to Plaintiff for the fair and reasonable value of Plaintiff's services as specified in Paragraph 4, above.

[CONTINUE]

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff prays as follows:

1. That judgment be rendered against the Defendant for the reasonable value of the services rendered to the Defendant;
2. For costs of suit; and
3. For such other and further relief as the court deems proper.

Dated: _____

[firm name, if any] _____

By: [signature] _____

[typed name] _____

Attorney for Defendant

[ADD following verification, if applicable]

VERIFICATION

_____, I, , am the Plaintiff in the above-entitled action; I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[date] _____

[signature] _____

[typed name] _____

NOTES.

Authority:

Haggerty v. Warner (1953) 115 CA2d 468, 475, 252 P2d 373 (citing Brown v. Crown Gold Milling Co. (1907) 150 C 376, 382, 89 P 86)

Elements of Quantum Meruit Claim:

See 9.05

Pleading Requirements:

See 9.15

Jurisdiction and Venue:

See Ch. 3, Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions

Demand for Payment Not Necessary:

See 9.15[9]

Judicial Council Form for Cause of Action on Common Counts:

See 9.39

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesEquitable
ReliefQuantum MeruitContracts LawTypes of ContractsImplied-in-Law Contracts

185 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions
V. FORMS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.41

9.41 Answer to Complaint Seeking Quantum Meruit Recovery With Affirmative Defenses.Answer to Complaint Seeking Quantum Meruit Recovery With Affirmative Defenses.

[Name of attorney]

_____[Street address]

_____[City, state, and ZIP]

_____[Area code and phone number]

_____[State Bar no. of attorney]

Attorney for _____[name of party]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,

COUNTY OF _____

[name] _____,

Plaintiff,

vs.

[name] _____,

Defendant.

)

)

)

)

)

)

)

NO.

ANSWER OF

_____[identify defendant, e.g.,
DEFENDANT MARY JONES] TO COMPLAINT
OF

_____[identify plaintiff, e.g.,
PLAINTIFF JOHN SMITH]

Judge:

Department:

Defendant answers the complaint as follows:

[Include general denial below, or set forth, in numbered paragraphs, specific denials, admissions, and allegations in response to those in complaint, in the order in which they are alleged in complaint:]

1. Pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 431.30(b)(1), Defendant generally denies each and every allegation of Plaintiff's complaint, including all the purported causes of action contained therein, and further denies that Plaintiff is entitled to any equitable or legal relief, or any damages whatsoever.

[Defendant asserts the following affirmative defenses. By doing so, Defendant shall not be deemed to have assumed the burden of proving any matters that otherwise would be Plaintiff's burden.]

[Allege any affirmative defenses, e.g.,]

[EITHER, if alleging that plaintiff's claim is barred by the statute of limitations]

FIRST AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Claim is Barred by Statute of Limitations)

2. Plaintiff's claim is barred by the two-year statute of limitations set forth in Code of Civil Procedure Section 339.

[AND/OR, if alleging that the claim is premised on services actually rendered to the defendant]

SECOND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Plaintiff Did Not Render Services to Defendant)

3. Plaintiff's claim is not premised on services actually rendered to Defendant, and Plaintiff therefore may not seek quantum meruit recovery for the value of those services.

[AND/OR, if alleging that the defendant neither accepted the services nor derived a benefit from them]

THIRD AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Defendant Did Not Accept or Derive a Benefit From Plaintiff's Services)

4. Defendant neither accepted nor derived a benefit from services alleged to have been performed by Plaintiff, and Plaintiff therefore may not seek quantum meruit recovery for the value of those services.

[AND/OR, if alleging that the parties entered into a special agreement to pay a particular amount or in a particular manner]

FOURTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Defendant Has Agreed to Particular Amount for Services Rendered)

5. Plaintiff and Defendant have entered into a special agreement whereby Defendant has agreed to pay a particular amount for the services rendered, and Plaintiff therefore may not seek quantum meruit recovery for the value of those services.

[AND/OR, if the parties' agreement provides express terms regarding compensation]

FIFTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Agreement Specifies Compensation Terms)

6. The agreement between Plaintiff and Defendant contains express terms regarding compensation for Plaintiff's services, and Plaintiff therefore may not seek quantum meruit recovery for the value of those services.

[AND/OR, if the services were intended to be gratuitous]

SIXTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Services Were Gratuitous)

7. Plaintiff and Defendant did not agree that payment would be rendered for the services, but rather understood that the rendering of the services was to be gratuitous, and Plaintiff therefore may not seek quantum meruit recovery for the value of those services.

[ADD additional affirmative defenses, if any]

[CONTINUE]

WHEREFORE, Defendant prays as follows:

1. That Plaintiff take nothing by his/her complaint herein;

2. For costs of suit; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court deems proper.

Dated: _____

[firm name, if any] _____

By: [signature] _____

[typed name] _____

Attorney for Defendant

[ADD following verification, if applicable]

VERIFICATION

_____, I, , am the defendant in the above-entitled action; I have read the foregoing answer and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[date] _____

[signature] _____

[typed name] _____

NOTES.

Authority:

McDonald v. Pacific Debenture Co. (1905) 146 C 667, 669, 80 P 1090

Opposing a Quantum Meruit Claim:

See 9.16 -9.23

Statute of Limitations Defense:

See 9.18[6]

Defense That Plaintiff Did Not Render Services to Defendant:

See 9.18[1]

Defense That Defendant Did Not Accept or Derive a Benefit From the Services:

See 9.18[3]

Defense of Parties' Agreement to Pay a Particular Amount for the Services Rendered:

See 9.18[4]

Defense That Parties' Agreement Contains Compensation Terms:

See 9.18[4]

Defense That Services Were Intended to Be Gratuitous:

See 9.18[5]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Pleadings Answers Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Quantum
Meruit Contracts Law Types of Contracts Implied-in-Law Contracts

186 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions
V. FORMS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.42

9.42 Demand for Bill of Particulars.Demand for Bill of Particulars.

[Name of attorney]

_____[Street address]

_____[City, state, and ZIP]

_____[Area code and phone number]

_____[State Bar no. of attorney]

Attorney for _____[name of party]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,

COUNTY OF _____

[name] _____,

Plaintiff,)

vs.)

[name] _____,

Defendant.)

NO.

)))

DEMAND FOR BILL OF PARTICULARS

_____ To Plaintiff and to , Plaintiff's
attorney of record:

[Set forth the demand for the bill of particulars]

[EITHER state that the defendant seeks a bill of particulars that sets forth the type of services rendered to the plaintiff]

PLEASE BE ADVISED that, pursuant to Civil Procedure Code Section 454, Defendant demands that you provide a bill of particulars, setting forth the type of services rendered by Plaintiff to the Defendant on which this action is based. The bill of particulars must be delivered to Defendant within 10 days after service of this demand.

[OR state that the defendant seeks a bill of particulars that sets forth the type of services rendered to the plaintiff set forth in specific paragraphs of the complaint]

PLEASE BE ADVISED that, pursuant to Civil Procedure Code Section 454, Defendant demands that you provide a bill of particulars, setting forth the type of services rendered by Plaintiff to the Defendant on which Paragraphs 8, 9, 10, and 11 of Plaintiff's complaint are based. The bill of particulars must be delivered to Defendant within 10 days after service of this demand.

[CONTINUE]

[Optional: _____ In particular, demand is made on you to provide (if more specific information about when the services were rendered and what specific charges are being sought: the dates when the services were rendered, and the specific charges for the services or, if more specific information about when and where the services were rendered is sought: the date and place of the performance of the services alleged in the complaint).]

Dated: _____

[firm name, if any] _____

By: [signature] _____

[typed name] _____

Attorney for Defendant

[name] _____

[INCLUDE verification, if desired]

VERIFICATION

_____, I, , am the defendant in the above entitled action. I have read the foregoing demand for bill of particulars and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[date] _____

[signature] _____

NOTES.

Authority:

CCP § 454; Auzerais v. Naglee (1887) 74 C 60, 64, 15 P 371

Timing:

See 9.23

Additional Forms:

See California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 121, Common Counts (Matthew Bender)

Form for Bill of Particulars:

See 9.43

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Pleadings Bills of Particulars Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Quantum Meruit Contracts Law Types of Contracts Implied-in-Law Contracts

187 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions
V. FORMS

*1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.439.43 Bill of Particulars*Bill of Particulars

[Name of attorney]

_____[Street address]

_____[City, state, and ZIP]

_____[Area code and phone number]

_____[State Bar no. of attorney]

Attorney for _____[name of party]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,

COUNTY OF _____

[name] _____,

)

Plaintiff,

)

vs.

)

NO.

[name] _____,

)

Defendant.

)

)

)

BILL OF PARTICULARS

_____ To Defendant and to , Defendant's
attorney of record:

[Set forth information responsive to defendant's demand]

_____ In compliance with Defendant's demand for a bill of particulars, Plaintiff sets forth the following items on which this action is based:

[Set out individual items in separately numbered statements that respond to defendant's demand, e.g.

1. Construction services rendered on 12/01/04 ($2,500).
2. Construction services rendered on 12/02/04 ($5,000).
3. Construction services rendered on 12/3/04 ($10,000).
4. Engineering consulting services rendered on 12/4/04 ($15,000).]

[CONTINUE]

Dated: _____

[firm name, if any] _____

By: [signature] _____

[typed name] _____

Attorney for Plaintiff [name] _____

[INCLUDE, if demand was verified]

VERIFICATION

_____ I, , am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing bill of particulars and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[date] _____

[signature] _____

NOTES.

Authority:

CCP § 454; Auzerais v. Naglee (1887) 74 C 60, 64, 15 P 371

Use of Bill of Particulars:

See 9.23

Pleading Requirements:

See 9.23[2]

Additional Forms:

See California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 121, Common Counts (Matthew Bender)

Form for Demand for Bill of Particulars:

See 9.42

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Pleadings Bills of Particulars Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief Quantum Meruit Contracts Law Types of Contracts Implied-in-Law Contracts

188 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions
V. FORMS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.44

9.44 Complaint for Reasonable Value of Goods Sold and Delivered (Quantum Valebant).Complaint for Reasonable Value of Goods Sold and Delivered (Quantum Valebant).

[Name of attorney]

[Street address]

[City, state, and ZIP]

[Area code and phone number]

[State Bar no. of attorney]

Attorney for [name of party]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,

COUNTY OF _____

[name(s)] _____,

Plaintiff(s)

vs.

[name(s)] _____

[and DOES 1 THROUGH _____]

Defendant(s).

)

)

)

)

)

)

)

)

NO.

COMPLAINT FOR REASONABLE VALUE OF GOODS SOLD AND DELIVERED (COMMON COUNT IN QUANTUM VALEBANT)

[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

[Amount Demanded _____]

_____ (Exceeds or Does Not Exceed) $10,000]

Plaintiff _____ [name] alleges:

[For an individual plaintiff]

1. Plaintiff is an individual residing in _____ [city, if any, and county], California, [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____] [, and therein doing business under the fictitious business name of _____].
Plaintiff has duly complied in all respects with the requirements of Business and Professions Code Sections 17910 through 17917 with respect to this fictitious business name].

[OR, for a domestic corporation or domestic limited liability company]

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of California, with its principal place of business in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____] [, and therein doing business under the fictitious business name of _____].
Plaintiff has duly complied in all respects with the requirements of Business and Professions Code Sections 17910 through 17917 with respect to this fictitious business name].

[OR, for a foreign corporation or foreign limited liability company]

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of _____ [state or foreign country], and _____ [for foreign corporation authorized to do business and doing business in California or, for foreign limited liability company maintaining action or intrastate business, and registered to transact intrastate business in California], with its principal place of business in California in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____].

[OR, for a general or limited partnership or an unincorporated association]

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [partnership or unincorporated association] with its principal place of business in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____] [, and therein doing business under the fictitious business name of _____].
Plaintiff has duly complied in all respects with the requirements of Business and Professions Code Sections 17910 through 17917 with respect to this fictitious business name].

[CONTINUE]

[For an individual defendant]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is an individual residing in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____] [and doing business therein under the fictitious business name of _____].

[OR, for a domestic corporation or domestic limited liability company]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of California [, with its principal place of business in _____ (city, if any, and county), California (, in the _____ [name of judicial district, if any])].

[OR, for a foreign corporation or foreign limited liability company]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of _____ [state or foreign country][, with its principal place of business in _____ (city, if any, and county), California (, in the _____ [name of judicial district, if any])].

[OR, for a general or limited partnership or an unincorporated association]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [a partnership or an unincorporated association] sued herein under the name _____ [it has assumed or by which it is known][, with its principal place of business in _____ (city, if any, and county), California (, in the _____ [name of judicial district, if any])]. [Defendants (names of individual partners or members) _____ are, and at all times herein mentioned were, members of that _____ (partnership or unincorporated association) (and are, and at all times herein mentioned were, residents of _____ County, California)].

[CONTINUE]

3. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of Defendants sued herein as DOES 1 through _____ [numeral, e.g., 50], inclusive, and therefore sues these Defendants by these fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named Defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that Plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by those Defendants.]

4. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that at all times material to this complaint, _____ [identify defendants to whom agency

allegation applies, e.g., each of the defendants or each of the individual defendants or Defendant Harry Jones], [and each of the defendants fictitiously named in this complaint,] in addition to acting for himself, herself, or itself and on his, her, or its own behalf individually, is and was acting as the agent, servant, employee and representative of, and with the knowledge, consent and permission of, and in conspiracy with, each and all of the Defendants and within the course, scope and authority of that agency, service, employment, representation, and conspiracy. Plaintiff further alleges on information and belief that the acts of each of the Defendants were fully ratified by each and all of the Defendants. Specifically, and without limitation, Plaintiff alleges on information and belief that the actions, failures to act, breaches, conspiracy, and misrepresentations alleged herein and attributed to one or more of the specific Defendants were approved, ratified, and done with the cooperation and knowledge of each and all of the Defendants.

5. On or about _____ [date], in _____ [location], at the special request of Defendant, Plaintiff sold and delivered to Defendant goods consisting of _____ [describe goods, e.g., 100 pairs of handmade women's leather shoes, 50 handmade women's cashmere sweaters, and 50 handmade women's suede jackets]. Defendant agreed to pay Plaintiff the reasonable value of those goods.

[If plaintiff has demanded payment, add]

6. Plaintiff has demanded payment from Defendant for the goods specified in Paragraph 5, above. Plaintiff's last demand for payment was made on _____ [date]. [A copy of Plaintiff's letter demanding payment on that occasion is attached as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference.]

[Continue]

[If defendant has not paid anything]

7. Defendant has failed and refused, and still refuses, to pay Plaintiff all or any part of the reasonable value of the goods specified in Paragraph 5, above. As a result of Defendant's failure to pay, Defendant is now indebted to Plaintiff in the sum of at least $ _____, representing the fair and reasonable value of the goods as specified in Paragraph 5, above.

[OR, if partial payment has been made]

7. Defendant has paid only the sum of $ _____ to Plaintiff for the goods specified in Paragraph 5, above, and has refused, and still refuses, to pay Plaintiff any additional sum for the goods. As a result of Defendant's failure to pay, Defendant is now indebted to Plaintiff in the sum of at least $ _____, representing the balance due to Plaintiff for the fair and reasonable value of the goods as specified in Paragraph 4, above.

[CONTINUE]

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff prays as follows:

1. That judgment be rendered against the Defendant for the reasonable value of the goods delivered to the Defendant;

2. For costs of suit; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court deems proper.

Dated: _____

[firm name, if any] _____

By: [signature] _____

[typed name] _____

Attorney for Defendant

[ADD following verification, if applicable]

VERIFICATION

_____, I, , am the Plaintiff in the above-entitled action; I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[date] _____

[signature] _____

NOTES.

Authority:

CC § 3384

Elements of Quantum Valebant Claim:

See 9.26

Pleading Requirements:

See 9.24

Judicial Council Form--Common Counts:

See 9.39

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Pleadings Complaints General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Equitable Relief General Overview Contracts Law Sales of Goods General Overview

189 of 189 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 9 Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions
V. FORMS

1-9 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 9.45

9.45 Answer to Complaint for Reasonable Value of Goods Sold (Quantum Valebant).Answer to Complaint for Reasonable Value of Goods Sold (Quantum Valebant).

[Name of attorney]

_____[Street address]

_____[City, state, and ZIP]

_____[Area code and phone number]

_____[State Bar no. of attorney]

Attorney for _____[name of party]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,

COUNTY OF _____

[name] _____,

Plaintiff,

vs.

[name] _____,

Defendant.

)

)

)

)

)

)

)

NO.

ANSWER OF

_____[identify defendant, e.g.,
DEFENDANT MARY JONES] TO COMPLAINT
OF

_____[identify plaintiff, e.g.,
PLAINTIFF JOHN SMITH]

Judge:

Department:

Defendant answers the complaint as follows:

[Include general denial below, or set forth, in numbered paragraphs, specific denials, admissions, and allegations in response to those in complaint, in the order in which they are alleged in complaint:]

1. Pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 431.30(b)(1), Defendant generally denies each and every allegation of Plaintiff's complaint, including all the purported causes of action contained therein, and further denies that Plaintiff is entitled to any equitable or legal relief, or any damages whatsoever.

[Defendant asserts the following affirmative defenses. By doing so, Defendant shall not be deemed to have assumed the burden of proving any matters that otherwise would be Plaintiff's burden.]

[Allege any affirmative defenses, e.g.,]

FIRST AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Plaintiff's Claim Not Premised on Goods Delivered to Defendant)

1. Plaintiff's claim is not premised on any goods that were actually delivered to Defendant, and Plaintiff therefore may not seek quantum valebant recovery for the value of those goods.

[AND/OR]

SECOND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(No Value Alleged of Goods Delivered)

2. Plaintiff has not alleged the value of the goods allegedly sold and delivered, and Plaintiff therefore may not seek quantum valebant recovery for the value of those goods.

[AND/OR]

THIRD AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Parties Have an Agreement Regarding the Value of the Goods)

3. Plaintiff is not entitled to the reasonable value of the goods delivered because Plaintiff and Defendant have a valid agreement as to the value of those goods, and Plaintiff therefore may not seek quantum valebant recovery for the value of those goods.

[AND/OR]

FOURTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Delivery of Goods Intended to Be Gratuitous)

4. Plaintiff's delivery of the goods to Defendant was intended to be gratuitous, and Plaintiff therefore may not seek quantum valebant recovery for the value of those goods.

[AND/OR]

FIFTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Claim Barred by Statute of Limitations)

5. Plaintiff's claim is barred by the statute of limitations set forth in Code of Civil Procedure Section _____ [337(1) or 339(1)].

[AND/OR]

SIXTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Defendant Refused to Accept the Goods)

6. Plaintiff's claim is barred because Defendant justifiably refused to accept the goods.

[ADD additional affirmative defenses, if any]

[CONTINUE]

WHEREFORE, Defendant prays as follows:

1. That Plaintiff take nothing by his/her complaint herein;
2. For costs of suit; and
3. For such other and further relief as the court deems proper.

Dated: _____

[firm name, if any] _____

By: [signature] _____

[typed name] _____

_____. Attorney for Defendant

[ADD following verification, if applicable]

VERIFICATION

_____, I, , am the defendant in the above entitled action; I have read the foregoing answer and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[date] _____

[signature] _____

[typed name] _____

NOTES.

Authority:

CC §§ 3384-3395

Opposing Claim for Quantum Valebant:

See 9.24, 9.34

Defense That Plaintiff's Claim Must Be Premised on Goods Delivered to the Defendant:

See 9.28

Defense That There Is No Value of Goods Delivered:

See 9.28, 9.29

Defense That Delivery of Goods Was Intended to Be Gratuitous:

See 9.34

Statute of Limitations Defense:

See 9.27

Defense That Defendant Refused to Accept Goods:

See 9.28

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsAnswersContracts LawRemediesEquitable ReliefGeneral
OverviewContracts LawSales of GoodsGeneral Overview

1 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 10 Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions

1-10 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 10.syn

§ 10.syn Synopsis to Chapter 10: Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions

10.01 Scope.

10.02 Objective and Strategy.

10.03 CHECKLIST: Determining Whether Statutory Damages or Civil Penalties Are Available in Contract Action.

10.04 Options and Strategies.

10.04[1] Availability of Statutory Damages and Penalties Should Be Considered in Contract Actions.

10.04[2] Provisions Regulating Contracts Exist Throughout California Codes.

10.04[3] Provisions Regulating Contracts Sometimes Include Statutory Damage Provisions.

10.05 Determining Whether Subject Matter of Contract Is Regulated by Statute.

10.05[1] Actions Arising Out of Motor Vehicle Leases, Sales, and Repairs.

10.05[1][a] Vehicle Leasing Act Provides for Statutory Damages.

10.05[1][b] Rees-Levering Automobile Sales Finance Act Provides Penalty for Violation of Prepayment Provision.

10.05[1][c] Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act Provides for Civil Penalties for Violations Relating to Vehicle Warranties and Repair Contracts.

10.05[2] Actions Arising out of Home Improvements and/or Repairs.

10.05[2][a] B&P Code § 7160 Provides Penalty for Fraudulent Inducement Into Home Improvement Contract.

10.05[2][b] CCP § 1029.8(c) Provides for Treble Damages When Unlicensed Contractor Causes Damages.

10.05[2][c] Unruh Act Provides Statutory Penalty to Extent Home Improvement Contract Is an Installment Contract.

10.05[3] Actions Arising Out of Sales of Consumer Goods.

10.05[3][a] Unruh Act Provides for Penalty for Willful Violation of Finance Charge Rules.

10.05[3][b] Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act Provides for Civil Penalties for Breach of Warranty.

10.05[4] Statutory Damages for Senior Citizens and Disabled Persons.

10.05[4][a] Consumer Legal Remedies Act Provides Specific Penalty for Actions Damaging Senior Citizens or Disabled Persons.

10.05[4][b] Civil Code Provides for Trebling Any Existing Statutory Damages for Unfair Competition Against Senior Citizens or Disabled Persons.

10.05[5] Usury Laws Provide Statutory Damages and Civil Penalties.

10.05[6] Other Statutory Schemes Provide Statutory Damages and Penalties Relating to Specific Types of Contracts.

10.06 Assessing Whether Defendant Complied With All Statutory Requirements.

10.06[1] Defendant Must Have Included Any Required Provisions in Contract.

10.06[2] Defendant Must Have Complied With Applicable Time Periods.

10.06[3] Defendant Must Have Made All Required Disclosures.

10.06[4] Defendant Must Have Complied With All Other Statutory Requirements.

10.07 Defendant's Specific Violation Must Be One for Which Statute Authorizes Statutory Damages or Civil Penalties.

10.08 Plaintiff Must Be One of Those Eligible for Statutory Damages or Civil Penalties.

10.09 CHECKLIST: Determining Whether to Seek Statutory Damages or Civil Penalties If Available.

10.10 Options and Strategies.

10.11 Determining Types of Statutory Damages Available.

10.11[1] Some Statutes Authorize Statutory Damages or Penalties in Addition to Actual Damages.

10.11[2] In Some Cases Statutory Penalty May Be Sole Remedy for Defendant's Violation of Statutory Scheme.

10.12 Analyzing Whether Seeking Statutory Damages Precludes Seeking Common Law Remedies.

10.12[1] Statutory Damage Provisions Often Only Pertain to Specific Violations.

10.12[2] Statutes May Provide Choice Between Statutory Damages and Common Law Remedy.

10.12[3] Many Schemes Provide for Doubling or Trebling of Actual Damages.

10.13 CHECKLIST: Pleading Entitlement to Statutory Damages or Civil Penalties in Contract Action.

10.14 Options and Strategies.

10.15 Complaint or Cross-Complaint Must Assert Violation of Statute in Addition to Contract Causes of Action.

10.16 Complaint or Cross-Complaint Must Plead Any Prerequisites to Award of Statutory Damages.

10.17 Complaint or Cross-Complaint Prayer Must Demand Statutory Damages.

10.18 CHECKLIST: Opposing Request for Statutory Damages in Contract Action.

10.19 Options and Strategies.

10.20 Determining Whether Complaint Alleges Violation Sufficient to Support Award of Statutory Damages.

10.20[1] Underlying Transaction Must Fall Within Statutory Scheme.

10.20[2] Plaintiff Must Be Entitled to Statutory Damages for Alleged Violation.

10.21 Drafting Appropriate Responsive Pleading.

10.21[1] Demurrer May Be Filed If Transaction Is Not Covered by Statutory Scheme or Statutory Damages Are Not Available for Alleged Violation.

10.21[2] Motion to Strike May Be Used If It Is Inappropriate to Demur to Entire Cause of Action.

10.21[3] Party Should File Answer If There Are No Grounds for Demurrer or Motion to Strike.

10.22 Complaint for Damages and Statutory Penalty for False Representations Under Home Improvement Contract [B&P Code § 7160]--Optional Allegations for Treble Damages Against Unlicensed Contractor [CCP Code § 1029.8].

Complaint for Statutory Damages Under Home Improvement Contract [B&P Code § 7160]--Optional Allegations for Treble Damages Against Unlicensed Contractor [CCP Code § 1029.8].

10.23 Complaint for Statutory Penalty--Retail Installment Contract [CC § 1812.9].

Complaint for Statutory Penalty--Retail Installment Contract [CC § 1812.9].

2 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 10 Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions

I. STRATEGY

1-10 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 10.01

10.01 Scope.

This chapter covers:

- Objectives and strategy for evaluating the availability of, seeking, and opposing statutory remedies in a contract action [see 10.02].
- Statutory damages and penalties arising out of motor vehicle transactions [see 10.05[1]].
- Statutory damages and penalties arising out of home improvements and/or repairs [see 10.05[2]; Form: see 10.22].
- Statutory damages and penalties relating to retail installment sales and retail sales warranties [see 10.05[3]; Form: see 10.23].
- Various statutory damage provisions protecting senior citizens and disabled persons [see 10.05[4]].
- Statutory damages and penalties in usury laws and other miscellaneous statutory schemes relating to contracts [see 10.05[5], [6]].
- Making a determination regarding whether to seek statutory damages or penalties if available [see 10.06 -10.13].
- Pleading entitlement to statutory damages or penalties [see 10.13 -10.20; Forms: see 10.22, 10.23].
- Opposing plaintiff's request for statutory damages or penalties [see 10.18-10.21].

Core Statutes:

B&P Code § 7160 et seq.; CC §§ 1750-1784 (Consumer Legal Remedies Act), 1790 et seq. (Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act), 1801 et seq. (Unruh Act [Retail Installment Sales]), 2981 et seq. (Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Financing Act), 2985.7 et seq. (Vehicle Leasing Act); CCP § 1029.8

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesGeneral
OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutory Remedies & Rights

3 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 10 Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions

I. STRATEGY

1-10 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 10.02

10.02 Objective and Strategy.

This chapter covers the diverse area of statutory damages and penalties in actions arising out of contracts. While money damages and equitable remedies generally are available in contract actions, the legislature has provided for specific statutory remedies in actions involving specific types of transactions. While the statutory penalties may have a punitive or deterrent aspect, their primary purpose is to secure obedience to statutes and regulations imposed to assure important public policy objectives [Hale v. Morgan (1978) 22 C3d 388, 398, 149 CR 375, 584 P2d 512] see also Beeman v. Burling (1990) 216 CA3d 1586, 1598, 265 CR 719].

Strategic Point:

Attorneys involved in actions involving contracts tend to be concerned primarily with issues such as damages and may tend to overlook statutory provisions imposing specific penalties on the types of actions in question [see 10.04]. Consideration of potential statutory damages and penalties should be part of the evaluation of every contract action.

This chapter uses the general term "statutory damages and penalties" to describe these types of remedies. Statutory damages and penalties can be distinguished as follows: a statutory damages provision doubles or trebles the amount of plaintiff's actual damages, while a statutory penalty provision provides for a penalty in an arbitrary amount set by the legislature. In both cases the legislature has determined that a plaintiff should be entitled to money damages beyond customary compensatory damages.

Statutory damage and penalty provisions are widespread through California law. This chapter does not cover statutory damage provisions relating to landlord/tenant law, employment law, unfair competition law, and real property law, as those are covered in other publications, but rather cross-references to texts discussing statutory damages and penalties in these substantive areas. This chapter is not intended as an exhaustive guide to every penalty provision contained in the California statutes, but rather as a guide to the types of issues that typically arise in contract litigation with respect to statutory damages and penalties.

Detailed Discussion/Forms:

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 89, Automobiles: Sales and Financing Under the Rees-Levering Act; Ch. 90, Automobiles: Vehicle Leasing Act; Ch. 104, Building Contracts; Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales; Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties; Ch. 568, Usury (Matthew Bender)

Cross References:

Guide to provisional remedies, see Ch. 6, Using or Opposing Provisional Remedies in Contract Actions.

Guide to seeking compensatory money damages, see Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions.

Guide to equitable remedies, see Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions.

Guide to recovering costs and attorney's fees, see Ch. 12, Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation.

Discussion and forms relating to contracts and statutory damages and penalties in the context of a landlord/tenant relationship, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Landlord/Tenant Litigation, Ch. 6, Suing a Landlord for Damages; Ch. 7, Suing a Tenant for Unpaid Rent and Damages.

Discussion and forms relating to contracts and statutory damages and penalties in the context of civil rights laws, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 116, Civil Rights: Discrimination in Business Establishments (Matthew Bender).

Discussion and forms relating to contracts and statutory damages and penalties in the context of employment law, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 249, Employment Law: Termination and Discipline; see also Ch. 250, Employment Law: Wage and Hour Disputes (Matthew Bender).

Discussion and forms relating to contracts and statutory damages and penalties in the context of real property transactions, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 569, Vendor and Purchaser (Matthew Bender).

Discussion and forms relating to contracts and statutory damages and penalties in the context of unfair competition laws, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Unfair Competition and Business Torts, Ch. 2, Unfair Competition; California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 565, Unfair Competition (Matthew Bender).

For Tips on updating case law and expanding your research with additional resources, see How to Use Lexis.com With This Publication at the front of this volume.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutory Remedies & Rights

4 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 10 Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions

II. DETERMINING WHETHER ANY STATUTORY DAMAGES OR CIVIL PENALTIES ARE AVAILABLE IN CONTRACT ACTION

1-10 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 10.03

10.03 CHECKLIST: Determining Whether Statutory Damages or Civil Penalties Are Available in Contract Action.

☐ Research whether subject matter of contract is regulated by a statutory scheme, such as:

☐ Motor vehicle leasing.

Authority:

CC § 2985.7 et seq.

Discussion:

See 10.05[1][a]

☐ Motor vehicle sales.

Authority:

CC § 2981 et seq.

Discussion:

See 10.05[1][b]

☐ Motor vehicle repairs.

Authority:

CC § 1790 et seq.

Discussion:

See 10.05[1][c]

☐ Home improvement and/or repair contracts:☐ Fraudulent inducement.Authority:B&P Code § 7160 et seq.Discussion:See 10.05[2][a]Form:See 10.22*☐ Unlicensed contractors.Authority:CCP § 1029.8Discussion:See 10.05[2][b]Form:See 10.22*☐ Installment contracts.Authority:CC § 1801 et seq.Discussion:See 10.05[2][c]Form:See 10.23*☐ Contracts arising out of sale of goods:☐ Retail installment sales.Authority:CC § 1801 et seq.Discussion:See 10.05[3][a]Form:See 10.23*☐ Consumer warranties.

Authority:

CC § 1790 et seq.

Discussion:

See 10.05[3][b]

- ☐ Contracts involving senior citizens or disabled persons.

Authority:

CC §§ 1750-1784

Discussion:

See 10.05[4]

- ☐ Contracts covered by anti-usury laws.

Authority:

CC § 1916-3(a)

Discussion:

See 10.05[5]

- ☐ Other types of consumer contracts.

Authority:

CC § 1812.50 et seq.

Discussion:

See 10.05[6]

- ☐ Determine whether defendant violated statutory scheme applicable to type of contract at issue:

- ☐ Did defendant include all required provisions in contract?

Authority:

CC § 2985.8

Discussion:

See 10.06[1]

- ☐ Did defendant comply with applicable time periods?

Authority:

CC § 1812.53

Discussion:

See 10.06[2]

- ☐ Did defendant make all required disclosures?

Authority:

CC § 2985.8(c)(5)

Discussion:

See 10.06[3]

- ☐ Did defendant comply with all other statutory requirements?

Authority:

CC § 1812.54

Discussion:

See 10.06[4]

- ☐ Assess whether statutory damages or penalties are available as a result of defendant's violation.

Authority:

CC § 2988.5(a)

Discussion:

See 10.07

- ☐ Assess whether plaintiff is eligible for statutory damages or penalties.

Authority:

CC §§ 1791, 1794

Discussion:

See 10.08

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawSales of GoodsDamages & RemediesGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutory Remedies & Rights

5 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 10 Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions

II. DETERMINING WHETHER ANY STATUTORY DAMAGES OR CIVIL PENALTIES ARE AVAILABLE IN CONTRACT ACTION

1-10 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 10.04

10.04 Options and Strategies.

10.04[1] Availability of Statutory Damages and Penalties Should Be Considered in Contract Actions.

Attorneys handling contract disputes sometimes overlook the possibility that in addition to ordinary damages, statutory damages and penalties may be available. When handling any contract action, the attorney should undertake some basic research to see if any special statutes regulating the type of contract or transaction at issue in the litigation provide for penalties or damages in addition to those otherwise available at law. Although in many cases the amount of these statutory damages and penalties will not be substantial, nevertheless they should not be overlooked.

Strategic Point:

Many California statutes regulate specific types of contracts, or contracts involving specific classes of parties. An attorney handling a contract case should first research the law to determine if the subject matter of the agreement, for example, installment sales contracts, is regulated by any special statutes [see 10.04[2]]. The attorney then should determine whether the applicable statute provides for any statutory damages or penalties for noncompliance with statutory requirements [see 10.04[3]].

Many but not all of the special statutes imposing penalties or statutory damages deal with consumer transactions. Some require that the contracts in question contain specified provisions and provide remedies in the event that a contract does not meet the statutory requirements. The applicable statutes also may make the contract void or voidable if the contract fails to include specified provisions or meet other specific requirements.

Judge's Perspective:

Although statutory damages or penalties may be too small to litigate on behalf of an individual plaintiff, they can sometimes be effectively aggregated when asserted in a class action [see generally King v. Central Bank (1977) 18 C3d 840, 843-848, 135 CR 771, 558 P2d 857 (upholding class action complaint for violation of the Unruh Act); Corbett v. Superior Court (2002) 101 CA4th 649, 655, 125 CR2d 46 (class action under Consumer Legal Remedies Act)]. Counsel should avoid invoking a statute just to obtain civil penalties, however, because the courts are unfriendly to attempts to broaden these statutes beyond their original purpose [see, e.g., Mackey v. Bristol West Ins. Servs. of Cal., Inc. (2003) 105

CA4th 1247, 1270-1271, 130 CR2d 536 (affirming sustaining of demurrer on grounds that contract in question was not "retail installment contract" within meaning of the Unruh Act)]. This general statement, however, is qualified; the Legislature has made it clear that some of the statutes discussed in this chapter are to be construed broadly so as to effectuate their remedial purpose [see, e.g., CC § 1760 (Consumer Legal Remedies Act "shall be liberally construed and applied to promote its underlying purposes, which are to protect consumers against unfair and deceptive business practices and to provide efficient and economical procedures to secure such protection")].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of voiding contracts, see Ch. 15, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Failure to Comply With Applicable Formalities.

10.04[2] Provisions Regulating Contracts Exist Throughout California Codes. There is no single California code containing all provisions relating to contracts and damages that might conceivably be available based on a contractual relationship. Rather, relevant provisions may be found in any of the 29 different codes that make up California statutory law.

The Civil Code contains the majority of provisions regulating contractual relationships. This code also contains provisions relating generally to damages under California law. The Code of Civil Procedure contains some general provisions, such as CCP § 1029.8, addressing unlicensed persons. Most of the other codes are topical. For example, the Business and Professions Code may address a contractual relationship with someone who is required under California law to have a professional license, such as an attorney or contractor. The Health and Safety Code may contain provisions relating to contracts for medical care. Attorneys should search both the general codes, such as the Civil Code and Code of Civil Procedure, as well as the pertinent topical code to determine whether there are relevant statutory provisions.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of additional sources to assist in locating statutory damage provisions, see 10.02.

10.04[3] Provisions Regulating Contracts Sometimes Include Statutory Damage Provisions. After locating any code sections that address the subject matter of the contract in question, the attorney should carefully review the statutory scheme applicable to that type of contract. Not all schemes authorize statutory damages or penalties. Alleging violations of the scheme may, instead, simply be a means of obtaining common law damages for breach of contract. Additionally, often not all violations of the statutory scheme entitle the aggrieved party to statutory damages or penalties. Some schemes provide for statutory damages for "any violation," while others enumerate violations that may serve as a basis for the statutory damages.

If the scheme regulating the relevant contract does contain a statutory damage or penalty provision, a determination then must be made as to whether the provision is intended to supplement otherwise available legal and equitable remedies or replace them. For further discussion, see 10.09 -10.12.

Judge's Perspective:

Before seeking statutory penalties, there is no substitute for a thorough knowledge of the relevant law, which otherwise can be a trap for the unwary. For example, counsel asserting a violation of the Consumer Legal Remedies Act should know that "the Plaintiff shall file an affidavit stating facts showing that the action has been commenced in a county described in this section as a proper place for the trial of the action" [CC § 1780(d)]; and, at least 30 days prior to filing the action, Plaintiff must send the Defendant a notice identifying the objectionable goods or services and "demand[ing] that [the Defendant] correct, repair, replace, or otherwise rectify the goods or services alleged to be in violation of [the CLRA]" [CC § 1782(a)]. Failure to comply with these provisions is grounds for demurrer. Thus, counsel should be completely familiar with the entire statutory scheme that provides for a statutory penalty before filing a complaint.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawSales of GoodsDamages & RemediesGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutory Remedies & Rights

6 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 10 Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions

II. DETERMINING WHETHER ANY STATUTORY DAMAGES OR CIVIL PENALTIES ARE AVAILABLE IN CONTRACT ACTION

1-10 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 10.05

10.05 Determining Whether Subject Matter of Contract Is Regulated by Statute.

10.05[1] Actions Arising Out of Motor Vehicle Leases, Sales, and Repairs.

10.05[1][a] Vehicle Leasing Act Provides for Statutory Damages. The Vehicle Leasing Act [CC § 2985.7 et seq.] authorizes statutory damages for violations of its provisions in the amount of 25 percent of the total amount of monthly payments under the lease, except the total may not be less than $100 nor greater than $1,000 [CC § 2988.5(a)(2)]. A separate statutory damage provision applies to class actions [CC § 2988.5(a)(2)]. The statutory damages are available for violations of provisions requiring a specific format and specific disclosures in the written lease contract, and provisions regarding depreciation and residual value of vehicles [CC §§ 2988.5(a), 2985.8, 2988].

Timing:

Actions under the Vehicle Leasing Act must be brought within one year of the termination of the lease contract [CC § 2988.5(1)].

Exceptions:

The statutory damages provisions of the Vehicle Leasing Act contain two exceptions: first, when the lessor notifies the lessee of its error and corrects the error within 15 days; and second, when the lessor shows by a preponderance of the evidence that the violation was not intentional and resulted from a bona fide error notwithstanding the maintenance of procedures reasonably adopted to avoid any such error [CC § 2988.5(c), (d)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion/Forms, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 90, Automobiles: Vehicle Leasing Act (Matthew Bender).

10.05[1][b] Rees-Levering Automobile Sales Finance Act Provides Penalty for Violation of Prepayment Provision. The Rees-Levering Automobile Sales Finance Act (Rees-Levering Act) provides that the buyer of an automobile may prepay the entire indebtedness without penalty [CC § 2982(1)]. If the seller or holder of the sales contract violates the prepayment provisions, the buyer may recover as damages three times the amount of any finance charges paid [CC § 2983.1].

Exception:

The statutory damage provision of the Rees-Levering Automobile Act contains an exception for accidental or bona fide error of computation [CC § 2983.1].

Cross Reference:

Discussion/Forms, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 89, Automobiles: Sales and Financing Under the Rees-Levering Act (Matthew Bender).

10.05[1][c] Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act Provides for Civil Penalties for Violations Relating to Vehicle Warranties and Repair Contracts. The Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act authorizes statutory damages for willful violations of the Act's provisions. The amount of damages is unspecified, but may not exceed two times the amount of actual damages, in addition to any actual damages recovered [CC § 1794(c)]. The Act also authorizes a statutory civil penalty of up to two times the amount of actual damages for violation of CC § 1793.2(d)(2), which mandates that a vehicle manufacturer either replace the vehicle or make restitution if the manufacturer cannot repair a vehicle to conform to the express warranty after a reasonable number of attempts [CC § 1794(e)]. A consumer may not recover under both of these provisions for the same violation [CC § 1794(e)(5)].

Distinguish:

The basic statutory damage provision of CC § 1794(c) necessitates a finding that the seller's failure to comply was willful. The provision of CC § 1794(e), relating to motor vehicle repair, does not require such a finding.

Exceptions:

- The Song-Beverly Act applies only to vehicles purchased in California [Cummins, Inc. v. Superior Court (2005) 36 C4th 478, 483].
- An exception in the Song-Beverly Act eliminates statutory damages when a motor vehicle manufacturer maintains a qualified third-party dispute resolution process in accordance with CC § 1793.22 [CC § 1794(e)(2)].

Warning:

A motor vehicle buyer must serve a written notice requesting that the manufacturer comply with CC § 1793.2(d)(2) before the buyer can recover statutory damages under CC § 1794(e) [CC § 1794(e)(3)].

Judge's Perspective:

Counsel should be aware that seeking treble damages under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act might prevent recovery of punitive damages that might otherwise be available for the same conduct [see Troensegaard v. Silvercrest Indus., Inc. (1985) 175 CA3d 218, 228, 220 CR 712 ; (striking a punitive damage award when the trial court also awarded civil penalties under CC § 1794)].

Cross References:

Discussion/Forms, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties (Matthew Bender).

Breach of warranty actions under the Song-Beverly Act, see Ch. 24, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Warranty.

10.05[2] Actions Arising out of Home Improvements and/or Repairs.10.05[2][a] B&P Code § 7160 Provides Penalty for Fraudulent Inducement Into Home Improvement

Contract. Any person who is induced to contract for a work of improvement based on false or fraudulent representations or false statements knowingly made may recover a statutory penalty of $500, in addition to attorney's fees and actual damages [B&P Code § 7160].

 Cross References:

Form, see 10.22.

Discussion, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 104, Building Contracts (Matthew Bender).

10.05[2][b] CCP § 1029.8(c) Provides for Treble Damages When Unlicensed Contractor Causes Damages.

Any unlicensed person who causes injury or damage as a result of providing goods or performing services for which a license is required (including, but not limited to, a contractor's license) is liable to the injured person for treble the amount of actual damages assessed in a civil action [CCP § 1029.8(a)]. The additional damages may not exceed $10,000 [CCP § 1029.8(c)].

Exception:

This statute does not apply to persons acting under the good-faith belief that they are licensed or to persons whose license has expired due to the nonpayment of renewal fees but who are otherwise eligible for renewal without applying for an original license [CCP § 1029.8(d)].

 Cross References:

Form for complaint with treble damages against unlicensed contractor, see 10.22.

Discussion, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 104, Building Contracts (Matthew Bender).

10.05[2][c] Unruh Act Provides Statutory Penalty to Extent Home Improvement Contract Is an Installment

Contract. California's Unruh Act [CC § 1801 et seq.] applies to retail installment contracts, defined as contracts providing for repayment in installments [CC § 1802.6]. The Unruh Act, by definition, does not apply to contracts providing for the construction of an entire residence or all or part of a structure designed for commercial or industrial occupancy [CC § 1801.4]. The Unruh Act does apply to services furnished in connection with the improvement of real property [CC § 1802.2].

The Unruh Act provides for statutory damages of three times the total of the finance charges and any delinquency, collection, extension, deferral or refinance charges imposed, contracted for or received on all contracts in the case of a willful violation of the Act's provisions pertaining to finance charges on installment contracts [CC § 1812.9].

 Cross References:

Form, see 10.23.

Finance charge provisions of Unruh Act, see 10.05[3][a]

Discussion/forms, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales (Matthew Bender).

10.05[3] Actions Arising Out of Sales of Consumer Goods.

10.05[3][a] Unruh Act Provides for Penalty for Willful Violation of Finance Charge Rules. The Unruh Act applies to the sale of goods bought for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes and bought by way of an installment contract [CC §§ 1802.1, 1802.6]. The Act provides for statutory damages of three times the total of the finance charges and any delinquency, collection, extension, deferral or refinance charges imposed, contracted for or received on all contracts in the case of a willful violation of the Act's provisions pertaining to finance charges on installment contracts [CC § 1812.9].

 Cross References:

Discussion, see 10.05[2][c].

Form, see 10.23.

Discussion/forms, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales (Matthew Bender).

10.05[3][b] Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act Provides for Civil Penalties for Breach of Warranty. A seller of consumer goods who willfully fails to comply with any provision of the Song-Beverly Act may be liable for statutory damages not exceeding twice the amount of actual damages, in addition to the actual damages themselves [CC § 1794(c)]. "Consumer goods" are any new product or part thereof that is used, bought, or leased for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, except for clothing and consumables [CC § 1791(a)].

Distinguish:

While the Song-Beverly Act itself applies to both express and implied warranties, the statutory damage provision does not apply to claims based solely on a breach of an implied warranty [CC § 1794(c)].

 Cross References:

Discussion, see 10.05[1][c].

Discussion of implied warranties under the Song-Beverly Act, see Ch. 24, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Warranty.

Discussion/forms, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties (Matthew Bender).

10.05[4] Statutory Damages for Senior Citizens and Disabled Persons.

10.05[4][a] Consumer Legal Remedies Act Provides Specific Penalty for Actions Damaging Senior Citizens or Disabled Persons. The Consumer Legal Remedies Act, which prohibits various methods of unfair competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices, permits a court to award a senior citizen or disabled person (as defined in CC § 1761) up to $5,000 if the trier of fact finds all of the following [CC §§ 1770, 1780(b)(1)]:

- The consumer has suffered substantial physical, emotional, or economic damage;
- There is a finding of any one of the following [see CC § 3345(b)]:
 - ☐ That the defendant knew or should have known that his or her conduct was directed to one or more senior citizens or disabled persons; or
 - ☐ That the defendant's conduct caused the person to suffer a loss such as loss of a primary residence, principal employment, source of income, property set aside for retirement or personal care, or a pension or retirement plan; or

☐ That senior citizens or disabled persons are substantially more vulnerable than other members of the public to the defendant's conduct due to their circumstances; and

- An additional award is appropriate.

Strategic Point:

The remedies of the Consumer Legal Remedies Act are not exclusive and therefore are in addition to other available statutory remedies [CC § 1752].

Distinguish:

The Consumer Legal Remedies Act also prohibits various unfair practices against persons who are not senior citizens or disabled persons, but the statutory damages of $5,000 are not available to those persons [CC § 1780(b)].

10.05[4][b] Civil Code Provides for Trebling Any Existing Statutory Damages for Unfair Competition Against Senior Citizens or Disabled Persons. In any action for the benefit of senior citizens or disabled persons to redress unfair or deceptive acts or practice, or unfair methods of competition, whenever a trier of fact is authorized by statute to impose a fine, penalty, or other remedy to punish and deter, it may impose a fine or penalty of up to three times greater than authorized by the statute if an affirmative finding is made regarding at least one of three factors [CC § 3345(a), (b)]:

- A finding that the defendant knew or should have known that his or her conduct was directed to one or more senior citizens or disabled persons;
- The defendant's conduct caused the person to suffer a loss such as loss of a primary residence or other losses enumerated in CC § 3345(b) [see 10.05[4][a]]; or
- A finding that senior citizens or disabled persons are substantially more vulnerable than other members of the public to the defendant's conduct due to their circumstances.

Cross Reference:

Discussion/Forms relating to unfair competition, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Unfair Competition and Business Torts, Ch. 2, Unfair Competition.

10.05[5] Usury Laws Provide Statutory Damages and Civil Penalties. Any person, company, association, or corporation who has paid a greater sum than that allowed under laws regulating the legal rate of interest may recover treble the amount of money paid or value delivered [CC § 1916.12-3(a) (Appx § 3(a))]. The legal rates of interest are established by CC §§ 1916.12-1-1916.12-2 (Appx §§ 1-2).

Timing:

An action under CC § 1916.12-3 (Appx § 3) must be brought within one year after payment [CC § 1916.12-3(a) (Appx § 3)(a)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion/Forms, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 568: Usury.

10.05[6] Other Statutory Schemes Provide Statutory Damages and Penalties Relating to Specific Types of Contracts. Numerous other statutory schemes provide statutory damages and penalties in the context of contract actions. Listed below are some commonly used provisions authorizing statutory damages and penalties. The list below is not intended to be comprehensive, but merely illustrative:

- Use of term "prize" or "gift" in misleading fashion [B&P Code § 17537 et seq.].
- Cause of action for failure to return funds deposited in escrow [CC § 1057.3(b)].
- Dating service contracts [CC § 1694.4].
- Prohibition against requiring a credit card in connection with accepting a negotiable instrument [CC § 1725(e)].
- Breach of contract action by independent wholesale sales representative [CC § 1738.15].
- Sales of fine art multiples [CC § 1745.5(c), (d)].
- Prohibition against recording personal information in credit card transactions [CC § 1747.8(e)].
- Penalties for wrongfully obtaining or using consumer credit data [CC § 1785.19].
- Check cashing businesses [CC § 1789.35].
- Dance Studio and Health Studio Act [CC § 1812.50 et seq.].
- Discount buying services [CC § 1812.100 et seq.].
- Failure of auctioneer to perform statutory duties [CC § 1812.600(l)].
- Item pricing in grocery stores and grocery departments using automatic checkout system [CC § 7101(a), (d)].
- Willful violation of provisions governing consumer loans secured by real property [Fin Code § 4970 et seq.].
- Health facility's retaliation for patient complaints [H&S Code §§ 1278.5(b)(3), 1432].
- Negligent or willful disclosure of HIV test results [H&S Code § 120980].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawSales of GoodsDamages & RemediesGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutory Remedies & Rights

7 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 10 Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions

II. DETERMINING WHETHER ANY STATUTORY DAMAGES OR CIVIL PENALTIES ARE AVAILABLE IN CONTRACT ACTION

1-10 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 10.06

10.06 Assessing Whether Defendant Complied With All Statutory Requirements.

10.06[1] Defendant Must Have Included Any Required Provisions in Contract. Many schemes for which statutory damages are available require the seller (or other vendor) to include specified provisions in any contract. In many instances, such details as the required size of the contract's typeface, as well as the location of specified provisions in the contract, are included in the statutory scheme as well.

Example:

The Vehicle Leasing Act mandates the inclusion of a paragraph specifying that there is no cooling off period in California for vehicle leases, among other provisions, and failure to include these provisions may result in statutory damages under CC § 2988.5 [CC § 2985.8].

10.06[2] Defendant Must Have Complied With Applicable Time Periods. Some statutory schemes provide time frames for contractual relationships. Failure to observe these time periods may give rise to a cause of action under the statute.

Example:

No contract for dance studio lessons and other services may require payments or financing by the buyer in excess of one year from the date the contract is entered into [CC § 1812.53]. Violation of this provision may entitle the injured buyer to treble damages [CC § 1812.62].

10.06[3] Defendant Must Have Made All Required Disclosures. Failure to make required contractual disclosures is a common basis for statutory damages. For example, the Vehicle Leasing Act requires the disclosure, among other things, of any fee to be retained by the lessor for document preparation [CC § 2985.8(c)(5)].

10.06[4] Defendant Must Have Complied With All Other Statutory Requirements. Statutory schemes regulating contracts have a multitude of different requirements.

Example:

The Dance Studio and Health Studio Act, for example, provides that a contract for dance studio lessons may be canceled at any time with written notice [CC § 1812.54(b)].

The applicable provision authorizing the statutory damages must be scrutinized to determine which violations may be the basis for such damages. In some statutory schemes, any violation may form the basis [see, e.g., Dance and Health Studio Act, CC § 1812.50 et seq.], while in others, only violations of particular sections may lead to statutory damages [see, e.g., Vehicle Leasing Act, CC § 2985.7 et seq.].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesGeneral
OverviewContracts LawSales of GoodsDamages & RemediesGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutory
Remedies & Rights

8 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 10 Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions

II. DETERMINING WHETHER ANY STATUTORY DAMAGES OR CIVIL PENALTIES ARE AVAILABLE IN CONTRACT ACTION

1-10 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 10.07

10.07 Defendant's Specific Violation Must Be One for Which Statute Authorizes Statutory Damages or Civil Penalties.

Statutory damage provisions often are specific with regard to which violations of the relevant statutory scheme may serve as the basis for statutory damages or penalties.

Example:

In the Vehicle Leasing Act, the statutory damages provision, CC § 2988.5(a), authorizes an award of statutory damages for only violation of CC §§ 2985.8 and 2988. There are many other provisions in the Vehicle Leasing Act that do not provide the basis for statutory damages under CC § 2988.5(a). CC § 2986.12, for example, prohibits the lessor from offering a discount, rebate, or other consideration to a lessee on the condition that the lessee assist the lessor in leasing or selling a motor vehicle to another person. However, a violation of this section may not provide the basis for a statutory damage award under CC § 2988.5(a).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawSales of GoodsDamages & RemediesGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutory Remedies & Rights

9 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 10 Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions

II. DETERMINING WHETHER ANY STATUTORY DAMAGES OR CIVIL PENALTIES ARE AVAILABLE IN CONTRACT ACTION

1-10 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 10.08

10.08 Plaintiff Must Be One of Those Eligible for Statutory Damages or Civil Penalties.

In addition to setting out the factual situations necessary for obtaining statutory penalties, many statutes also use defined terms. Counsel should make sure that the facts fit both.

Example:

The Song-Beverly Act provides that "any buyer of consumer goods who is damaged by a failure to comply with any obligation under this chapter or under an implied or express warranty or service contract may bring an action for the recovery of damages" [CC § 1794(a)]. "Buyer" and "consumer goods" are both defined in CC § 1791.

Warnings:

- Each statutory scheme is unique. Be sure to review the statutory requirements specific to the situation.
- The court may award payment of attorney fees to a prevailing defendant if it finds plaintiff's prosecution was not in good faith [see, e.g., CC § 1080(d)].

Cross Reference:

Applicability of warranties under Song-Beverly Act, see Ch. 24, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Warranty.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC) Sales (Article 2) Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Sales of Goods Damages & Remedies General Overview Governments Legislation Statutory Remedies & Rights

10 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 10 Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions

III. DETERMINING WHETHER TO SEEK STATUTORY DAMAGES OR CIVIL PENALTIES IF AVAILABLE

1-10 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 10.09

10.09 CHECKLIST: Determining Whether to Seek Statutory Damages or Civil Penalties If Available.

☐ Determine effect of relevant statutory scheme on availability of general contract remedies; e.g.:

☐ Statutory damages or penalties may be available in addition to actual damages.

Authority:

CC § 1780(b)

Discussion:

See 10.11[1]

☐ Statutory damages or penalties may be available for specific violations of a broader statutory scheme.

Authority:

CC § 2988.5

Discussion:

See 10.12[1]

☐ Statutory damages or penalties may be sole remedy for violation of scheme.

Authority:

CC § 1812.9

Discussion:

See 10.11[2]

☐ Determine what common law remedies are available in addition to statutory remedies.

- ☐ Actual or compensatory damages.

Authority:

B&P Code § 7160

Discussion:

See 10.11[1], 10.12[1], [3]

- ☐ Equitable remedies such as rescission.

Authority:

CC § 2988.7

Discussion:

See 10.12[2]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesGeneral
OverviewContracts LawSales of GoodsDamages & RemediesGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutory
Remedies & Rights

11 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 10 Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions

III. DETERMINING WHETHER TO SEEK STATUTORY DAMAGES OR CIVIL PENALTIES IF AVAILABLE

1-10 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 10.10

10.10 Options and Strategies.

Some statutes provide statutory damages and penalties that limit or curtail the availability of more general remedies (such as damages) that otherwise would exist. In these situations, statutory damages and penalties may provide the plaintiff with the only possible basis of recovery, and the plaintiff must decide whether the potential recovery makes the action worthwhile. In other cases, the attorney should consider the following points in deciding whether to pursue statutory remedies and penalties in addition to other more general contract remedies:

- In some cases, a statutory damage or penalty provision is intended to supplement actual damages available to plaintiff. In such cases, there is no drawback to seeking statutory damages.
- A statutory damage provision may authorize statutory damages "in addition to" actual damages, or may double or treble the actual damages. In these circumstances, there is no reason not to seek statutory damages if the facts warrant such a strategy.
- Some statutory damage provisions require a finding of willfulness before the damages are available. In such a case, an assessment must be made as to whether plaintiff can make the requisite showing.
- In some instances, however, statutory penalties are an alternative to other remedies, and so the plaintiff must make an election.

Distinguish--Statutory Damages Differ From Punitive Damages:

Punitive damages should not be equated with statutory damages awarded in situations in which the legislature has determined that damages in excess of compensatory or actual damages are appropriate. Although both punitive damages and statutory damages serve to motivate compliance with the law and punish wrongdoers, they are distinct legal concepts, one of which is entrusted to the fact finder and the other to the legislature. The standards applicable to punitive damages do not apply to these other statutory damage awards [Kizer v. County of San Mateo (1991) 53 C3d 139, 146-148, 279 CR 318, 806 P2d 1353 (statutory penalties need not be based on showing of harm to plaintiff, and may be recovered from public entity notwithstanding Gov Code § 818); Beeman v. Burling (1990) 216 CA3d 1586, 1597-1598, 1601, 265 CR 719 (defendant's wealth irrelevant to award of statutory damages for violation of rent control ordinance)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesGeneral
OverviewContracts LawSales of GoodsDamages & RemediesGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutory
Remedies & Rights

12 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 10 Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions

III. DETERMINING WHETHER TO SEEK STATUTORY DAMAGES OR CIVIL PENALTIES IF AVAILABLE

1-10 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 10.11

10.11 Determining Types of Statutory Damages Available.

10.11[1] Some Statutes Authorize Statutory Damages or Penalties in Addition to Actual Damages. The code section authorizing the statutory damages or penalties generally specifies whether or not the statutory remedy is the sole remedy available to a plaintiff. For example, the Vehicle Leasing Act statutory damage provision states that a lessor who fails to comply with the requirements imposed under CC § 2985.5 or 2988 is liable in an amount equal to the sum of the following [CC § 2988.5(a)]:

- Any actual damages sustained by the plaintiff.
- 25 percent of the total monthly payments, not less than $100 or more than $1,000.
- Costs and a reasonable attorney's fee.

Similarly, the Consumer Legal Remedies Act specifies that a senior citizen or disabled person may recover, in addition to actual damages and other remedies specified, up to $5,000 as a statutory penalty [CC § 1780(b)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion/forms relating to recovering actual damages in contract actions, see Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions.

10.11[2] In Some Cases Statutory Penalty May Be Sole Remedy for Defendant's Violation of Statutory Scheme. Some statutory schemes provide the exclusive remedy for violation of the statutory requirements.

Example:

A statutory penalty provision in the Unruh Act allows a buyer to recover three times the amount of the total finance charges and related fees from a seller who willfully violates the Act in connection with the imposition, computation, or disclosures relating to finance charges on a retail installment contract [CC § 1812.9]. Nothing in this provision, however, authorizes any other recovery or remedy such as, for example, indirect or consequential damages.

Strategic Point:

Costs and attorneys' fees are often available in addition to the statutory damages or penalties. Statutory schemes should be scrutinized carefully for authorization of costs and fees [see, e.g., CC § 1811.1].

Cross Reference:

Discussion/forms relating to costs and attorneys' fees in contract actions, see Ch. 12, Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawSales of GoodsDamages & RemediesGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutory Remedies & Rights

13 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 10 Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions

III. DETERMINING WHETHER TO SEEK STATUTORY DAMAGES OR CIVIL PENALTIES IF AVAILABLE

1-10 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 10.12

10.12 Analyzing Whether Seeking Statutory Damages Precludes Seeking Common Law Remedies.

10.12[1] Statutory Damage Provisions Often Only Pertain to Specific Violations. Frequently, a code section authorizing statutory damages or penalties will apply only to one or two provisions of a voluminous statutory scheme. For example, the Vehicle Leasing Act's penalty provision only applies to violations of CC §§ 2985.8 and 2988 [CC § 2988.5(a)]. However, the plaintiff still may seek common law remedies such as money damages if he or she is otherwise damaged by a breach of a leasing contract [CC § 3300].

10.12[2] Statutes May Provide Choice Between Statutory Damages and Common Law Remedy. Some statutes may require a plaintiff to elect between statutory and non-statutory remedies. The Vehicle Leasing Act, for example, permits the lessee to choose between the statutory damage provision of CC § 2988.5 and rescission if the failure to comply with specified provisions of the Act was willful [CC § 2988.7].

Cross Reference:

Discussion/forms relating to rescission, see Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions.

10.12[3] Many Schemes Provide for Doubling or Trebling of Actual Damages. A number of statutory damage or penalty schemes authorize a doubling or trebling of actual damages, so that the damage amount is based on plaintiff's actual damages [see, e.g., CC § 1794(c) (doubling of actual damages for willful violation of Song-Beverly Act); CCP § 1029.8 (trebling of actual damages when contractor causing damage is unlicensed)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion/forms relating to recovering actual damages in contract actions, see Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawSales of GoodsDamages & RemediesGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutory

Remedies & Rights

14 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 10 Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions

IV. PLEADING ENTITLEMENT TO STATUTORY DAMAGES OR CIVIL PENALTIES IN CONTRACT ACTION

1-10 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 10.13

10.13 CHECKLIST: Pleading Entitlement to Statutory Damages or Civil Penalties in Contract Action.

- ☐ If complaint alleges common law causes of action in addition to statutory causes of action, plead statutory violation as a separate cause of action.

Authority:

CCP § 425.10(a)(1); Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.112

Discussion:

See 10.15

- ☐ Plead all prerequisites to award of statutory damages in complaint.

Authority:

Bach v. McNelis (1989) 207 CA3d 852, 865, 255 CR 232

Discussion:

See 10.16

- ☐ Request statutory damages in complaint's prayer.

Authority:

CCP § 425.10(a)(2)

Discussion:

See 10.17

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Pleadings Complaints General Overview Commercial Law (UCC) Sales (Article

2) Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Sales of Goods Damages &
Remedies General Overview Governments Legislation Statutory Remedies & Rights

15 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 10 Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions

IV. PLEADING ENTITLEMENT TO STATUTORY DAMAGES OR CIVIL PENALTIES IN CONTRACT ACTION

1-10 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 10.14

10.14 Options and Strategies.

Often a request for statutory damages will be included in a complaint with other causes of action (e.g., for breach of contract). The attorney must allege statutory violation in such a manner as to cover all essential elements of a cause of action as established by the statute. Additionally, the prayer must include a specific demand for the damages authorized by the statute.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Pleadings Complaints General Overview Commercial Law (UCC) Sales (Article 2) Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Sales of Goods Damages & Remedies General Overview Governments Legislation Statutory Remedies & Rights

16 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 10 Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions

IV. PLEADING ENTITLEMENT TO STATUTORY DAMAGES OR CIVIL PENALTIES IN CONTRACT ACTION

*1-10 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 10.1510.15 Complaint or Cross-Complaint Must Assert Violation of Statute in Addition to Contract Causes of Action.

The general pleading statutes do not specify any special rules or requirements for pleading statutory remedies. Although there is little law directly on point, it appears that if a statutory remedy arises out of the same facts as a breach of contract remedy, it should be permissible to seek the statutory remedy as part of the breach of contract cause of action. In any event, this appears to be a common practice. The important consideration is that the defendant must be put on notice that statutory remedies are being sought [see Ostling v. Loring (1994) 27 CA4th 1731, 1736, 1750].

Strategic Point:

As a matter of good drafting practice, if the statutory remedy is pled in the same count as a breach of contract, the violation of the statute should be stated in a separate paragraph for clarity, in ordinary and concise language [see CCP § 425.10(a)(1)], and the prayer must specifically request the statutory damages [see CCP § 425.10(a)(2)].

If it is necessary to plead different facts to establish a statutory remedy, it is advisable to plead the statutory violation as a separate cause of action. Combining different claims involving separate and distinct acts in the same cause of action risks a demurrer [see, e.g., Zumbrun v. University of Southern California (1972) 25 CA3d 1, 9 (special demurrer sustained when plaintiff combined breach of contract and third party beneficiary claims--each involving separate and distinct acts--in single cause of action; court observed that plaintiff should set forth separate theories in separate counts to facilitate adjudication of their validity)]. When a complaint contains separate causes of action, each must be separately numbered [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.112].

It is not essential that the complaint cite the exact statute under which the damages are sought, or, in appropriate cases, state that double or treble damages are a possible outcome. The complaint need only notify the defendant of the prospect of statutory damages. This is sufficient to put the defendant on notice to inquire which statutes might apply [Ostling v. Loring (1994) 27 CA4th 1731, 1750]. Nevertheless, the better practice is to plead both the statutory violation and the remedy as clearly as possible.

Cross References:

Discussion/forms relating to preparing complaints, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 7, Complaints.

Discussion/forms relating to pleading of statutes and ordinances, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 531, Statutes and Ordinances (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Pleadings Complaints General Overview Commercial Law (UCC) Sales (Article 2) Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Sales of Goods Damages & Remedies General Overview Governments Legislation Statutory Remedies & Rights

17 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 10 Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions

IV. PLEADING ENTITLEMENT TO STATUTORY DAMAGES OR CIVIL PENALTIES IN CONTRACT ACTION

1-10 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 10.16

10.16 Complaint or Cross-Complaint Must Plead Any Prerequisites to Award of Statutory Damages.

The complaint or cross-complaint must plead every fact that is essential to the cause of action under the statute [Bach v. McNelis (1989) 207 CA3d 852, 865, 255 CR 232]. The complaint may be framed in the language of the statute [Goss v. Fano (1952) 114 CA2d 819, 823, 251 P2d 337]. Thus, if a statute imposes statutory damages or a penalty for violation of a specific requirement, facts supporting that violation must be pled.

Cross Reference:

Discussion/forms relating to preparing complaints, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 7, Complaints.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Pleadings Complaints General Overview Commercial Law (UCC) Sales (Article 2) Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Sales of Goods Damages & Remedies General Overview Governments Legislation Statutory Remedies & Rights

18 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 10 Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions

IV. PLEADING ENTITLEMENT TO STATUTORY DAMAGES OR CIVIL PENALTIES IN CONTRACT ACTION

1-10 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 10.17

10.17 Complaint or Cross-Complaint Prayer Must Demand Statutory Damages.

The complaint or cross-complaint must contain a demand for the damages to which the plaintiff or cross-complainant claims he or she is entitled, along with the amount [CCP § 425.10(a)(2)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion/forms relating to preparing complaints, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 7, Complaints.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsGeneral OverviewCommercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawSales of GoodsDamages & RemediesGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutory Remedies & Rights

19 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 10 Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions
V. OPPOSING REQUEST FOR STATUTORY DAMAGES IN CONTRACT ACTION

1-10 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 10.18

10.18 CHECKLIST: Opposing Request for Statutory Damages in Contract Action.

☐ Determine whether complaint, on its face, alleges facts sufficient to support an award of statutory damages.

☐ Determine whether plaintiff is proper party to seek statutory damages.

Authority:

CC § 2985.7

Discussion:

See 10.20

☐ Determine whether complaint alleges facts sufficient to support statutory damage award.

Authority:

CC § 1812.62

Discussion:

See 10.20

☐ Determine which type of responsive pleading is most appropriate.

☐ If complaint does not allege facts sufficient to support statutory damage award, consider demurrer.

Authority:

CCP § 430.10

Discussion:

See 10.21

☐ If plaintiff is not appropriate person to seek statutory damages pursuant to the statutory scheme, consider demurrer.

Authority:

CCP § 431.30

Discussion:

See 10.21[1]

☐ If complaint properly alleges breach of contract cause of action, but not statutory damages cause of action, consider motion to strike.

Authority:

CCP §§ 435-437

Discussion:

See 10.21[2]

☐ If complaint alleges sufficient facts to support statutory damages claim, file answer.

Authority:

CCP § 431.30

Discussion:

See 10.21[3]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Defenses, Demurrers & Objections General Overview Commercial Law (UCC) Sales (Article 2) Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Sales of Goods Damages & Remedies General Overview Governments Legislation Statutory Remedies & Rights

20 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 10 Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions
V. OPPOSING REQUEST FOR STATUTORY DAMAGES IN CONTRACT ACTION

1-10 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 10.19

10.19 Options and Strategies.

Responding to a complaint requesting statutory damages or penalties requires a thorough examination of the statutory scheme. Counsel must make certain that the transaction which led to the complaint's filing is covered by the statutory scheme. Counsel should read the definitions section of the scheme carefully to ensure that the parties and the contract fit the definitions. After this has been determined, counsel should read the operative provision authorizing statutory damages to ascertain whether the violation alleged, if proven, entitles plaintiff to statutory damages or penalties. At this point, a decision can be made as to which type of responsive pleading to file: a demurrer, a motion to strike, or an answer.

➡ Cross References:

Discussion/forms relating to demurrers, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 11, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings.

Discussion/forms relating to motions to strike, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 12, Motions to Strike.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Defenses, Demurrers & Objections General Overview Commercial Law (UCC) Sales (Article 2) Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Sales of Goods Damages & Remedies General Overview Governments Legislation Statutory Remedies & Rights

21 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 10 Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions
V. OPPOSING REQUEST FOR STATUTORY DAMAGES IN CONTRACT ACTION

1-10 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 10.20

10.20 Determining Whether Complaint Alleges Violation Sufficient to Support Award of Statutory Damages.

10.20[1] Underlying Transaction Must Fall Within Statutory Scheme. In determining how to respond to a complaint seeking statutory damages, the first step is to determine whether or not the underlying transaction in question is covered by the statutory scheme. The definitions section of the relevant statutory scheme usually will specify which transactions are covered.

Example:

In the Vehicle Leasing Act, the terms "motor vehicle," "lessor," "lessee," and "lease contract" define the scope of the statutory scheme [CC § 2985.7].

10.20[2] Plaintiff Must Be Entitled to Statutory Damages for Alleged Violation. If the underlying transaction falls within the statute under which plaintiff is seeking recovery, defendant must determine if the alleged violation will support the recovery requested. The operative provision imposing the statutory damages or penalties usually will specify the violations for which the damages or penalties are available. In some statutory schemes, statutory damages or penalties are available only for specified violations [see, e.g., Vehicle Leasing Act, CC § 2985.7 et seq.]. In others, statutory damages or penalties are available for any "violation of this title" [see, e.g., Dance Studio and Health Studio Act, CC § 1812.50 et seq.].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Defenses, Demurrers & Objections General Overview Commercial Law (UCC) Sales (Article 2) Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Sales of Goods Damages & Remedies General Overview Governments Legislation Statutory Remedies & Rights

22 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 10 Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions
V. OPPOSING REQUEST FOR STATUTORY DAMAGES IN CONTRACT ACTION

1-10 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 10.21

10.21 Drafting Appropriate Responsive Pleading.

10.21[1] Demurrer May Be Filed If Transaction Is Not Covered by Statutory Scheme or Statutory Damages Are Not Available for Alleged Violation. If the transaction is not covered by the statutory scheme or if the complaint alleges a violation which does not entitle plaintiff to statutory damages, defendant may file a demurrer on the ground that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [CCP § 430.10(e)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion/forms relating to demurrers, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 11, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings.

Warning: A demurrer may be taken only to an entire cause of action [CCP § 430.50(a)]. If the same general facts constituting the cause of action for statutory damages also constitute a cause of action for breach of contract, defendant should consider a motion to strike instead.

Strategic Point:

Motions to strike and motions for demurrer are rarely granted without leave to amend. Counsel may wish to consider waiting to bring a summary judgment motion instead.

10.21[2] Motion to Strike May Be Used If It Is Inappropriate to Demur to Entire Cause of Action. A motion to strike enables defendant to strike a portion of a cause of action, particular language in a pleading, or a claim for damages [CCP § 436].

Cross Reference:

Discussion/forms relating to motions to strike, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 12, Motions to Strike.

Strategic Point--Defendant:

Motions to strike also may be brought in conjunction with a motion for judgment on the pleadings [CCP §§ 435(e), 438].

10.21[3] Party Should File Answer If There Are No Grounds for Demurrer or Motion to Strike. Defendant's answer must controvert, either by general or specific denials, the material allegations of the complaint, or raise new matter constituting an affirmative defense [CCP § 431.30(b)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion/forms relating to answers, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 14, Answers.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Defenses, Demurrers & Objections Demurrers Commercial Law (UCC) Sales (Article 2) Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Sales of Goods Damages & Remedies General Overview Governments Legislation Statutory Remedies & Rights

23 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 10 Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions
VI. FORMS*1-10 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 10.2210.22 Complaint for Damages and Statutory Penalty for False Representations Under Home Improvement Contract [B&P Code § 7160]--Optional Allegations for Treble Damages Against Unlicensed Contractor [CCP Code § 1029.8].*Complaint for Statutory Damages Under Home Improvement Contract [B&P Code § 7160]--Optional Allegations for Treble Damages Against Unlicensed Contractor [CCP Code § 1029.8].

[Name of attorney]

_____[Street address]

_____[City, state, and ZIP]

_____[Area code and phone number]

_____[State Bar no. of attorney]

Attorney for _____[name of party]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

[name(s)] _____,

Plaintiff(s)

vs.

[name(s)] _____

[and DOES 1 THROUGH _____]

Defendant(s).

)

)

)

)

)

)

)

)

NO.

COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES, PENALTY, AND ATTORNEY'S FEES

[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

[Amount Demanded _____]

_____(Exceeds or Does Not Exceed) $10,000]

1-10 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 10.22

Plaintiff _____ [name] alleges:

1. Plaintiff is an individual residing in _____ [city, if any, and county], California.

[For an individual defendant]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is an individual residing in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____] [and doing business therein under the fictitious business name of _____].

[OR, for a domestic corporation or domestic limited liability company]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of California [, with its principal place of business in _____ (city, if any, and county), California (, in the _____ [name of judicial district, if any])].

[OR, for a foreign corporation or foreign limited liability company]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of _____ [state or foreign country][, with its principal place of business in _____ (city, if any, and county), California (, in the _____ [name of judicial district, if any])].

[OR, for a general or limited partnership or an unincorporated association]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [a partnership or an unincorporated association] sued herein under the name _____ [it has assumed or by which it is known][, with its principal place of business in _____ (city, if any, and county), California (, in the _____ [name of judicial district, if any])]. [Defendants (names of individual partners or members) _____ are, and at all times herein mentioned were, members of that _____ (partnership or unincorporated association) (and are, and at all times herein mentioned were, residents of _____ County, California)].

[CONTINUE]

3. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of Defendants sued herein as DOES 1 through _____ [numeral, e.g., 50], inclusive, and therefore sues these Defendants by these fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named Defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that Plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by those Defendants.]

4. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that at all times material to this complaint, _____ [identify defendants to whom agency allegation applies, e.g., each of the Defendants or each of the individual Defendants or Defendant Harry Jones], [and each of the Defendants fictitiously named in this complaint,] in addition to acting for himself, herself, or itself and on his, her, or its own behalf individually, is and was acting as the agent, servant, employee and representative of, and with the knowledge, consent and permission of, and in conspiracy with, each and all of the Defendants and within the course, scope and authority of that agency, service, employment, representation, and conspiracy. Plaintiff further alleges on information and belief that the acts of each of the Defendants were fully ratified by each and all of the Defendants. Specifically, and without limitation, Plaintiff alleges on information and belief that the actions, failures to act, breaches, conspiracy, and misrepresentations alleged herein and attributed to one or more of the specific Defendants were approved, ratified, and done with the cooperation and knowledge of each and all of the Defendants.

5. On or about _____ [date], in _____ [city], _____ County, California, Defendant _____ [name of contractor] represented to Plaintiff that _____ [specify false representation, e.g., the installation of certain materials in the outer walls of Plaintiff's home would reduce Plaintiff's heating costs by 90 percent].

6. The representation made by Defendant was in fact false. The true facts were _____ [specify, e.g., that the installation of the materials would reduce Plaintiff's heating costs by only five percent].

7. When Defendant made the representation, he/she knew it to be false and made it with the intent to defraud and deceive Plaintiff and to induce Plaintiff to contract for the work of improvement.

8. Plaintiff, at the time the representation was made, was ignorant of its falsity and believed it to be true. Plaintiff was induced to enter into a contract for _____ [specify work of improvement, e.g., the installation of certain materials in the outer walls of Plaintiff's home to reduce Plaintiff's heating bill] in reliance on the false representation, and would not have entered into the contract had he/she known the true facts. [A copy of the contract is attached as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference.]

9. As a proximate result of Defendant's false representation, Plaintiff has been damaged in the sum of $ _____ in that _____ [specify measure of damages, e.g., Plaintiff paid Defendant $5,000 for the installation while the actual value of the installation was only $2,500].

[ADD if plaintiff is seeking statutory treble damages on ground that defendant is an unlicensed contractor]

10. Defendant entered into the above-referenced contract with Plaintiff, and acted as a contractor within the meaning of Business and Professions Code Section 7026 [or 7026.1] at all times relevant to this action, without holding a valid contractor's license as required by Business and Professions Code Section 7028. Therefore, Plaintiff is entitled to treble damages and, if the court in its discretion so determines, attorney's fees and costs incurred in connection with this action, as provided by Code of Civil Procedure Section 1029.8.

[CONTINUE]

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff prays judgment against Defendant[s, and each of them,] as follows:

[EITHER]

1. For damages in the sum of $ _____;

[OR, if seeking treble damages based on fact that contractor is unlicensed:]

1. For treble damages in the sum of $ _____, as provided by Code of Civil Procedure Section 1029.8;

[CONTINUE]

2. For a penalty of $500, as provided by Business and Professions Code Section 7160;

3. For reasonable attorney's fees in the sum of $ _____ [amount], as provided by Business and Professions Code Section[s 1029.8] and 7160;

4. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

Dated: _____

[firm name, if any] _____

By: [signature] _____

[typed name] _____

Attorney for [party's status and name] _____

[ADD following verification, if applicable]

VERIFICATION

I am the Plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents of the complaint. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are alleged in the complaint on information and belief, and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[date] _____

[signature] _____

[typed name] _____

NOTES.

Authority:

B&P Code § 7160; CCP § 1029.8

Grounds for Complaint:

See 10.05[2][a], [b]

Drafting Complaint:

See 10.13-10.20

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsGeneral OverviewCommercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawSales of GoodsDamages & RemediesGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutory Remedies & Rights

24 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 10 Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions
VI. FORMS*1-10 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 10.2310.23 Complaint for Statutory Penalty--Retail Installment Contract [CC § 1812.9].*Complaint for Statutory Penalty--Retail Installment Contract [CC § 1812.9].

[Name of attorney]

_____[Street address]

_____[City, state, and ZIP]

_____[Area code and phone number]

_____[State Bar no. of attorney]

Attorney for _____[name of party]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,

COUNTY OF _____

[name(s)] _____,

Plaintiff(s)

vs.

[name(s)] _____

[and DOES 1 THROUGH

_____] _____

Defendant(s).

)

)

)

)

)

)

)

)

NO.

COMPLAINT FOR STATUTORY PENALTY,
DAMAGES, AND ATTORNEY'S FEES
[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]
[Amount Demanded]_____(Exceeds or Does Not Exceed) $10,000]

Plaintiff _____[name] alleges:

1. Plaintiff is an individual residing in _____[city, if any, and county], California, [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____].

[CONTINUE]

[For an individual defendant]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is an individual residing in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____] [and doing business therein under the fictitious business name of _____], and is _____ [authorized or licensed] to engage in, and engaging in, business as a retail seller, within the meaning of Civil Code Section 1802.3, of _____ [describe defendant's business, e.g., household goods and appliances].

[OR, for a domestic corporation or domestic limited liability company]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of California [, with its principal place of business in _____ (city, if any, and county), California (, in the _____ [name of judicial district, if any])], and is _____ [authorized or licensed] to engage in, and engaging in, business as a retail seller, within the meaning of Civil Code Section 1802.3, of _____ [describe defendant's business, e.g., household goods and appliances].

[OR, for a foreign corporation or foreign limited liability company]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of _____ [state or foreign country], with its principal place of business in _____ (city, if any, and county), California (, in the _____ [name of judicial district, if any])], and is _____ [authorized or licensed] to engage in, and engaging in, business as a retail seller, within the meaning of Civil Code Section 1802.3, of _____ [describe defendant's business, e.g., household goods and appliances].

[OR, for a general or limited partnership or an unincorporated association]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [a partnership or an unincorporated association] sued herein under the name _____ [it has assumed or by which it is known], with its principal place of business in _____

_____ (city, if any, and county), California
 (, in the _____ [name of judicial district, if any]). [Defendants (names of individual partners or members) _____ are, and at all times herein mentioned were, members of that _____ (partnership or unincorporated association) (and are, and at all times herein mentioned were, residents of _____ County, California)], and is _____ [authorized or licensed] to engage in,
 and engaging in, business as a retail seller, within the meaning of Civil Code Section 1802.3, of _____ [describe defendant's business, e.g., household goods and appliances].

[CONTINUE]

3. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of Defendants sued herein as DOES 1 through _____ [numeral, e.g., 50], inclusive, and therefore sues these Defendants by these fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named Defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that Plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by those Defendants.]

4. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that at all times material to this complaint, _____ [identify defendants to whom agency
 allegation applies, e.g., each of the Defendants or each of the individual Defendants or Defendant Harry Jones], [and each of the Defendants fictitiously named in this complaint,] in addition to acting for himself, herself, or itself and on his, her, or its own behalf individually, is and was acting as the agent, servant, employee and representative of, and with the knowledge, consent and permission of, and in conspiracy with, each and all of the Defendants and within the course, scope and authority of that agency, service, employment, representation, and conspiracy. Plaintiff further alleges on information and belief that the acts of each of the Defendants were fully ratified by each and all of the Defendants.
 Specifically, and without limitation, Plaintiff alleges on information and belief that the actions, failures to act, breaches, conspiracy, and misrepresentations alleged herein and attributed to one or more of the specific Defendants were approved, ratified, and done with the cooperation and knowledge of each and all of the Defendants.

[EITHER]

5. On or about _____ [date], in _____ County, California, Plaintiff and
 Defendant _____ [name] entered into a written retail installment contract by the terms of which Defendant _____ [name] agreed to sell and Plaintiff agreed to buy the following _____ [goods or services]:
 _____ [describe goods or services, e.g.,
 Lucky Stove Model 3372] for a price payable in installments. A copy of the contract is attached to this complaint as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference.

[OR]

5. On or about _____ [date], Plaintiff and Defendant _____ [name of lender] entered into a written agreement by the terms of which Defendant _____ [name of lender] agreed to lend to

Plaintiff the sum of $ _____, and Plaintiff agreed to repay this sum with interest. Plaintiff entered into the loan agreement for the purpose of financing the purchase of the following _____ [goods or services] from Defendant _____ [name of seller]:
 _____ [describe goods or services purchased, e.g., Lucky Stove Model 3372]. A copy of the loan agreement is attached as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that Defendant _____ [name of lender] and Defendant _____ [name of seller]
 _____ [specify facts of relationship, e.g., are related by common ownership and control and the relationship was a material factor in the loan transaction or share in the profits and losses of either or both the sale of the above-described goods or services and the loan agreement or both].

[CONTINUE]

6. The _____ [goods or other as appropriate services] purchased pursuant to the above-described retail installment contract and all _____ [goods or other as appropriate services] subsequently purchased by Plaintiff from Defendant were bought primarily for Plaintiff's _____ [personal or family or household] purposes, thereby subjecting the contract to the requirements of the Retail Installment Sales Act, Civil Code Section 1801 et seq.

7. The above-described retail installment contract provided in part that _____ [show that contract is within the provisions of CC § 1801.1, e.g., the Defendant, may, at its option, add subsequent purchases made by the buyer, Plaintiff, to the contract, and that the total price of the goods covered by the contract is to be increased by the price of such additional goods, and that all finance charges and installment payments, at the seller's option, may be increased proportionately, and that all terms and conditions of the contract apply equally to any subsequent purchases].

8. On or about _____ [date], in _____ [city], _____ County, California, Plaintiff made a subsequent purchase from Defendant _____ of the following _____ [goods or services], all of which were purchased by Plaintiff primarily for _____ [personal or family or household] purposes: _____ [list goods and/or services purchased].

9. _____ [Set forth violation(s) of Unruh Act in connection with imposing, computing, or disclosing finance charge on consolidated total of two or more contracts under CC § 1808.1 et seq., e.g., Defendant has violated the provisions of Civil Code Section 1808.2 with respect to the subsequent purchase described above in that Defendant has failed to provide Plaintiff with a memorandum disclosing the amount of the finance charge and other information pertinent to the transaction prior to the due date of the first installment, or at any time thereafter, as required by that section].

10. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that the violation(s) of _____ [specify Civil Code section(s) violated by defendant as alleged in this complaint, e.g., Civil Code Section 1801 et seq.] was/were willful.

11. By reason of the above-described willful violation[s] of Civil Code Section[s] _____ [specify], Plaintiff is entitled to recover from Defendant three times the sum of $ _____,

_____ , which is the total amount of finance charges and delinquency, collection, extension, deferral, and refinance charges imposed, contracted for, or received on the consolidated total of the above-described retail installment contracts.

12. By reason of the above-described willful violation(s) of Civil Code Section[s] _____

_____ [specify, e.g., 1801 et seq.],

Defendant _____ [name] is barred from recovering any finance, delinquency, collection, extension, deferral, or refinance charges in connection with the above-described retail installment contract(s)[, and any subsequent purchases made by Plaintiff under that contract].

13. Under Civil Code Section 1811.1, Plaintiff is entitled to recover reasonable attorney's fees and costs incurred, and to be incurred, in this action, in an amount to be determined by the court.

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff prays judgment against Defendant as follows:

1. For the sum of $ _____, which is three times the total of all _____ [finance charges and/or finance and/or delinquency and/or collection and/or extension and/or deferral and/or refinance charges] imposed, contracted for, or received by Defendant in connection with the above-described retail installment contract(s)[, and all subsequent purchases thereunder];

2. For a declaration that Defendant is barred from any recovery of those charges;

3. For reasonable attorney's fees in an amount to be determined by the court;

4. For costs of suit incurred; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

Dated: _____

[firm name, if any] _____

By: [signature] _____

[typed name] _____

Attorney for [party's status and name] _____

[ADD following verification, if applicable]

VERIFICATION

I am the Plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents of the complaint. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are alleged in the complaint on information and belief, and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[date] _____

[signature] _____

[typed name] _____

NOTES.

Authority:

CC § 1812.9

Grounds for Complaint:

See 10.05[2][c], [3][a]

Drafting Complaint:

See 10.13 -10.20

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Pleadings Complaints General Overview Commercial Law (UCC) Sales (Article 2) Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Sales of Goods Damages & Remedies General Overview Governments Legislation Statutory Remedies & Rights

25 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.syn

§ 11.syn Synopsis to Chapter 11: Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters

11.01 Scope.

11.02 Objective and Strategy.

11.02[1] Declaratory Relief Can Eliminate Uncertainties and Controversies.

11.02[2] Use of Action by Party Seeking Enforcement of Contract.

11.02[3] Use of Action by Party Opposing Enforcement of Contract.

11.03 CHECKLIST: Seeking Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters.

11.04 Actual Controversy Is Required for Declaratory Relief; Breach of Obligation Is Not Required.

11.05 Controversy Involving Past Wrongs May Be Basis for Declaratory Relief When Wrongs May Be Repeated.

11.05[1] Declaratory Relief Not Available for Past Wrongs Alone.

11.05[2] Declaratory Relief Available When Parties Have Continuing Relationship.

11.05[3] Declaratory Relief Available When There Is Reasonable Expectation Wrong Will Be Repeated.

11.06 Specific Situations in Which Declaratory Relief Is Appropriate.

11.07 Plaintiff Must Exhaust Administrative Remedies.

11.08 Plaintiff Generally Must Seek Declaratory Relief Within Limitations Period on Underlying Cause of Action.

11.09 Declaratory Relief Does Not Preclude Other Remedies.

11.10 Pleading Requirements.

11.10[1] Complaint or Cross-Complaint Must Show Existence of Controversy.

11.10[2] Facts Need Not Establish Plaintiff Is Entitled to Favorable Judgment.

11.10[3] Noticed Motion Required for Declaratory Relief Action to Take Trial Precedence.

11.11 Declaratory Relief Action Has Precedence on Trial Calendar.

11.12 Right to Jury Trial Depends on Nature of Issues.

11.13 Court's Declaration Has Force of Final Judgment.

11.13[1] Declaration May Be Affirmative or Negative.

11.13[2] Judgment Has Res Judicata Effect As to Issues Declared.

11.13[3] Declaration May Be Rendered on Motion for Summary Judgment.

11.14 Court Has Discretion to Refuse Declaratory Relief.

11.15 Prevailing Party May Recover Attorney's Fees If Contract So Provides.

11.16 CHECKLIST: Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters.

11.17 Declaratory Relief Is Barred If Statute of Limitations Has Run on Cause of Action Arising From Breach.

11.18 Complaint for Declaratory Relief May Be Subject to Defense of Res Judicata.

11.19 Declaratory Relief May Be Denied If Not Necessary or Proper.

11.20 Party May Object to Granting of Declaratory Relief by Demurrer to Complaint or Affirmative Defenses in Answer.

11.21 Party May Obtain Declaration Adverse to Party Seeking Declaratory Relief by Pretrial Motion.

11.21[1] Court May Render Judgment on Merits on Motion for Judgment on Pleadings.

11.21[2] Summary Judgment Is Appropriate When Issues Can Be Resolved As Matter of Law.

11.22 Complaint for Declaratory Relief.

Complaint for Declaratory Relief.

11.23 Answer to Complaint for Declaratory Relief With Affirmative Defenses.

Answer to Complaint for Declaratory Relief With Affirmative Defenses.

11.24 Points and Authorities for Party Seeking Declaratory Relief--Sufficiency of Complaint As to Declaratory Relief.

Points and Authorities for Party Seeking Declaratory Relief--Sufficiency of Complaint As to Declaratory Relief.

11.25 Points and Authorities for Party Seeking Declaratory Relief--Action Not Barred by Statute of Limitations.

Points and Authorities for Party Seeking Declaratory Relief--Action Not Barred by Statute of Limitations.

11.26 Points and Authorities for Party Seeking Declaratory Relief--Declaratory Relief Appropriate When Parties Have Continuing Relationship and/or Wrong May Be Repeated.

Points and Authorities for Party Seeking Declaratory Relief--Declaratory Relief Appropriate When Parties Have Continuing Relationship and/or Wrong May Be Repeated.

11.27 Points and Authorities for Party Opposing Declaratory Relief--Action Barred by Statute of Limitations.

Points and Authorities for Party Opposing Declaratory Relief--Action Barred by Statute of Limitations.

11.28 Points and Authorities for Party Opposing Declaratory Relief--Declaratory Relief Not Necessary or Proper.

Points and Authorities for Party Opposing Declaratory Relief--Declaratory Relief Not Necessary or Proper.

11.29 Points and Authorities for Party Opposing Declaratory Relief--Opposing Party Entitled to Declaration Adverse to Party Seeking Relief--On Motion for Judgment on Pleadings.

Points and Authorities for Party Opposing Declaratory Relief--Opposing Party Entitled to Declaration Adverse to Party Seeking Relief--On Motion for Judgment on Pleadings.

11.30 Points and Authorities for Party Opposing Declaratory Relief--Opposing Party Entitled to Declaration Adverse to Party Seeking Relief--On Motion for Summary Judgment.

Points and Authorities for Party Opposing Declaratory Relief--Opposing Party Entitled to Declaration Adverse to Party Seeking Relief--On Motion for Summary Judgment.

26 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters

I. STRATEGY

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.01

11.01 Scope.

This chapter covers:

- Objectives and strategy for seeking or opposing declaratory relief in contract matters [see 11.02].
- Determining whether to seek declaratory relief [see 11.03 -11.14], including:
 - ☐ Whether an actual controversy exists for which declaratory relief would be appropriate [see 11.04, 11.05].
 - ☐ Whether to seek additional remedies in the same action [see 11.09].
 - ☐ Whether the pleading requirements for declaratory relief can be satisfied [see 11.10; Form: see 11.22].
 - ☐ Whether the precedence given to declaratory relief actions on the trial calendar is desirable under the circumstances [see 11.11, 11.12].
 - ☐ The effect of a grant or denial of declaratory relief [see 11.13, 11.14].
- Determining whether a declaratory relief action is barred by the statute of limitations [see 11.17; Forms: see 11.23, 11.25, 11.27].
- Determining whether the complaint for declaratory relief is subject to the defense of res judicata [see 11.18; Form: see 11.23].
- Determining whether declaratory relief will be denied because it is not necessary or proper under the circumstances [see 11.19; Forms: see 11.23, 11.28].
- Determining whether and how to oppose declaratory relief [see 11.16 -11.21], including:

- ☐ Objecting to the granting of declaratory relief by demurrer or affirmative defenses in the answer [see 11.20; Form: see 11.23].
- ☐ Moving for judgment on the pleadings to obtain a declaration adverse to the party seeking declaratory relief [see 11.21[1]; Form: see 11.29].
- ☐ Moving for summary judgment to obtain a declaration adverse to the party seeking declaratory relief when justiciable issues can be resolved as a matter of law [see 11.21[2]; Form: see 11.30].

Core Statutes:

CCP §§ 1060-1062.5

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Declaratory Judgment Actions State Judgments General Overview Contracts Law Remedies General Overview

27 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters

I. STRATEGY

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.02

11.02 Objective and Strategy.

11.02[1] Declaratory Relief Can Eliminate Uncertainties and Controversies. The purpose of declaratory relief is to eliminate uncertainties and controversies that may result in future litigation [Fagerstedt v. Continental Ins. Co. (1968) 266 CA2d 370, 372, 72 CR 126]. Declaratory relief is available in numerous circumstances, including contract matters [see CCP §§ 1060-1062.5].

A person interested under a contract may seek declaratory relief to obtain a declaration of the rights and duties of the respective parties to the contract, or a determination of any question of construction or validity arising under the contract [CCP § 1060]. Declaratory relief may be sought by filing an original action or by filing a cross-complaint in an existing action [CCP § 1060].

Example:

Plaintiff claimed that an agreement for the purchase of a vehicle was not a valid contract and returned the vehicle to defendant. Defendant claimed that the contract was enforceable and informed plaintiff that it had placed the vehicle in storage for plaintiff's protection. Plaintiff was entitled to bring an action for declaratory relief to determine the existence and validity of the purported contract [Foster v. Masters Pontiac Co., Inc. (1958) 158 CA2d 481, 486, 322 P2d 592] .

Declaratory relief is available for controversies arising under oral as well as written contracts [Zimmer v. Gorelnik (1941) 42 CA2d 440, 445, 109 P2d 34].

Judge's Perspective:

Declaratory relief is a broad and powerful tool for resolving disputes over the content and meaning of contracts, provided that there is an actual controversy between the parties regarding their legal rights and duties. Thus, for example, although there are few cases on the subject, it is clear that the declaratory relief statute applies to oral contracts as well as written ones [see Bouchard v. Cole (1956) 143 CA2d 93, 97, 299 P2d 697 ; Herrmann v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1954) 127 CA2d 560, 566, 274 P2d 501] . Moreover, actions for declaratory relief can lie even when the plaintiff would be unable to bring an action for breach or to obtain damages [see, e.g., Universal Sales Corp. v. California Press Mfg. Co. (1942) 20 C2d 751, 773-774, 128 P2d 665 (declaratory judgment proper even though its terms might amount to judgment for specific performance to which plaintiff would not otherwise be entitled);

Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1967) 254 CA2d 126, 136, 62 CR 714 ("the fact that the oral contract may be one of employment, involving personal services and hence not specifically enforceable, does not necessarily render declaratory relief improper or unnecessary. This is merely a factor to be considered by the trial court in determining what declaration would be appropriate"). An action for declaratory relief may not be brought when the statute of limitations on an action for coercive relief has expired, however [see 11.13].

One of the many useful applications of the declaratory relief remedy is in situations involving insurance coverage, particularly when the coverage relates to other litigation involving the insured. In such instances, the insurer needs to know if it will be obligated to pay the insured's litigation expenses or any judgment against the insured. If so, the insurer has an interest in the underlying litigation. Conversely, the insured needs to know whether it will be required to pay these expenses from its own pocket. The answers to this question might dramatically affect the insured's position in the same underlying litigation.

Declaratory relief is also useful to determine the parties' rights and obligations under partnership or joint venture agreements, in which clarity in the parties' obligations is needed for the ongoing operation of the business.

Detailed Discussion/Forms:

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief (Matthew Bender).

California Points and Authorities, Ch. 67, Declaratory Relief (Matthew Bender).

11.02[2] Use of Action by Party Seeking Enforcement of Contract. The party seeking to enforce a contract should consider filing an action for declaratory relief after a controversy has arisen between the parties concerning the validity of the contract or the interpretation of contract terms, whether or not an actual breach has occurred [see CCP § 1060]. Obtaining a declaration of the rights and duties of the parties may be particularly helpful when the parties have an ongoing contractual relationship and the same issues concerning the contract may arise again in the future. Because declaratory relief actions are entitled to precedence on the trial calendar [see CCP § 1062.3(a)], such an action may be used to resolve a dispute between the parties expeditiously, before damages have been incurred.

11.02[3] Use of Action by Party Opposing Enforcement of Contract. The party opposing enforcement of a contract should consider seeking declaratory relief to resolve issues concerning the construction or validity of the contract. If the party opposing enforcement of the contract seeks declaratory relief before the other party can claim an alleged breach [see CCP § 1060], the party opposing enforcement may be able to have the matter resolved in his or her favor without exposure to liability for damages. Because of the priority given to declaratory relief actions [see CCP § 1062.3(a)], seeking such relief may be particularly helpful when the party opposing enforcement needs to resolve the controversy with the party seeking enforcement before entering into a contract with a third party.

Strategic Point--All Parties:

Filing a declaratory relief action (as opposed to waiting to be sued) enables a party who would normally be the defendant to become the plaintiff, with all the attendant advantages including determining the date of filing, venue, initial scope of the case, and the like.

Cross Reference:

Constructions and interpretation of contract provisions, see Ch. 21, Asserting a Particular Construction of Contract.

In evaluating whether to seek a declaratory judgment, the attorney should consider whether attorney's fees will be awarded to the prevailing party. Many contractual attorney's fees provisions allow attorney's fees to the prevailing party in "any dispute concerning enforcement or interpretation" of the contract (or similar language). The potential award of fees to the prevailing party might very well tip the scales in favor of--or away from--a desire to seek a declaratory judgment.

 Cross References:

Discussion of attorney's fees, see 11.15.

Recovery of costs and attorney's fees in contract actions, see Ch. 12, Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation.

Declaratory relief claims are equitable in nature, and thus, absent other factors, generally are tried to the judge rather than to a jury.

Strategic Point--All Parties:

Filing an equitable claim will entitle the opposing party to assert equitable defenses that might not be available in an action at law, such as unclean hands. This has an effect on both the scope of the case and the possible outcome on the merits.

 Cross References:

Discussion of jury trial demands, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 23, Case Management.

For Tips on updating case law and expanding your research with additional resources, see How to Use Lexis.com With This Publication at the front of this volume.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Declaratory Judgment Actions State Judgments Scope Contracts Law Remedies General Overview

28 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters

II. SEEKING DECLARATORY RELIEF IN CONTRACT MATTERS

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.03

11.03 CHECKLIST: Seeking Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters.

☐ Determine whether actual controversy exists relating to legal rights and duties of respective parties for which declaratory relief would be appropriate.

Authority:

CCP § 1060

See 11.04

☐ If controversy involves past wrong, determine if declaratory relief is nonetheless appropriate because of:

☐ Continuing relationship of parties.

☐ Reasonable expectation that wrong will be repeated.

Authority:

*Warren v. Kaiser Found. Health Plan, Inc. (1975) 47 CA3d 678, 683-684, 121 CR 19 ;
Southern Counties Gas Co. v. Ventura Pipeline Constr. Co. (1971) 19 CA3d 372, 381, 96
CR 825*

Discussion:

See 11.05

☐ If applicable, exhaust any administrative remedies before filing for declaratory relief.

Authority:

Pan Pac. Props., Inc. v. County of Santa Cruz (1978) 81 CA3d 244, 249, 146 CR 428 ; Holden v.

Arnebergh (1968) 265 CA2d 87, 91-92, 71 CR 401

Discussion:

See 11.07

- ☐ Determine time period within which to bring declaratory relief action.

Authority:

Maquire v. Hibernia Sav. & Loan Soc'y (1944) 23 C2d 719, 734, 146 P2d 673

Discussion:

See 11.08

- ☐ Decide whether to seek other remedies as well as declaratory relief, in same action.

Authority:

CCP § 1060

Discussion:

See 11.09

- ☐ Determine whether complaint or cross-complaint for declaratory relief can set forth facts showing existence of actual controversy.

Authority:

Maquire v. Hibernia Sav. & Loan Soc'y (1944) 23 C2d 719, 728, 146 P2d 673

Discussion:

See 11.10

Form:

See 11.22 (complaint for declaratory relief)

- ☐ Determine whether declaratory relief action will be given precedence on trial calendar.

Authority:

CCP § 1062.3(a)

Discussion:

See 11.11

- ☐ Determine whether right to jury trial exists for declaratory relief action.

Authority:

Interinsurance Exch. v. Savior (1975) 51 CA3d 691, 694, 124 CR 239

Discussion:

See 11.12

- ☐ Determine probable effect of court's declaration on controversy between parties, and whether overall effect will be positive or negative.

Authority:

CCP § 1060

Discussion:

See 11.13

- ☐ Determine if court may refuse to grant declaratory relief.

Authority:

CCP § 1061

Discussion:

See 11.14

- ☐ Determine if attorney's fees can be recovered.

Authority:

CC § 1717

Discussion:

See 11.15

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState JudgmentsFactorsCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState JudgmentsScopeContracts LawRemediesGeneral Overview

29 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters
II. SEEKING DECLARATORY RELIEF IN CONTRACT MATTERS

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.04

11.04 Actual Controversy Is Required for Declaratory Relief; Breach of Obligation Is Not Required.

A party may seek declaratory relief when an actual controversy relating to the legal rights and duties of the respective parties exists [CCP § 1060]. The declaration may be had before there has been any breach of the obligation in respect to which the declaration is sought [CCP § 1060].

An "actual controversy" is a controversy that admits of definitive and conclusive relief by judgment within the field of judicial administration, as distinguished from an advisory opinion on a particular or hypothetical state of facts. The judgment must decree, not suggest, what the parties may or may not do [Green v. Travelers Indem. Co. (1986) 185 CA3d 544, 557, 230 CR 13 ; Selby Realty Co. v. San Buenaventura (1973) 10 C3d 110, 117-118, 109 CR 799, 514 P2d 111 (mere fact of county's drafting tentative general plan that ultimately could affect plaintiff's property was not "actual controversy")].

Judge's Perspective:

The court's judgment cannot be based on events that have not yet taken place. Thus, when an injured plaintiff sought relief against the alleged tortfeasor's insurance company before the tortfeasor's liability to the plaintiff had been established, the suit was properly dismissed on demurrer [Green v. Travelers Indem. Co. (1986) 185 CA3d 544, 553, 230 CR 13] .

Search California Forms of Pleading and Practice:

Use lexis.com to search for discussion of obtaining declaratory relief in contract cases:

■ Legal > States Legal-U.S. > California > Search Analysis & CLE Materials > CA Treatises & Analytical Materials > California Forms of Pleading and Practice

Sample Search: California Forms of Pleading and Practice has helpful discussion regarding declaratory relief in contract matters. Use this search to view them: heading (contract!) AND declaratory relief.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState JudgmentsFactorsCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment
ActionsState JudgmentsScopeContracts LawRemediesGeneral Overview

30 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters

II. SEEKING DECLARATORY RELIEF IN CONTRACT MATTERS

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.05

11.05 Controversy Involving Past Wrongs May Be Basis for Declaratory Relief When Wrongs May Be Repeated.

11.05[1] Declaratory Relief Not Available for Past Wrongs Alone. Declaratory relief operates prospectively, serving to set controversies at rest that otherwise would continue. When only past wrongs are involved, there is no basis for declaratory relief [Baldwin v. Marina City Props., Inc. (1978) 79 CA3d 393, 407, 145 CR 406].

Example:

Plaintiffs sold their interest in a limited partnership, retaining a purchase money security interest. When the party to whom the limited partnership interest was sold defaulted on the payments, plaintiffs sued the general partner for breach of the partnership agreement, breach of fiduciary duty, and declaratory relief. The defendant's demurrer to the count for declaratory relief was properly sustained. The action involved only past wrongs, and plaintiffs were no longer limited partners. Plaintiffs had a present accrued right as a secured party to foreclose on the collateral or to sue for an alleged impairment of the value of the collateral. Because there was no continuing relationship between the plaintiffs and the general partner, declaratory relief was not required to guide the future conduct of the relationship between the parties [Baldwin v. Marina City Props., Inc. (1978) 79 CA3d 393, 407-408, 145 CR 406].

11.05[2] Declaratory Relief Available When Parties Have Continuing Relationship. The court ordinarily will refuse declaratory relief when the rights of the complaining party have crystallized into a cause of action for past wrongs and all relationship between the parties has ceased to exist. In that case, an action for damages is appropriate [see Travers v. Loudon (1967) 254 CA2d 926, 929-930, 62 CR 654].

Consider:

There is no present actual controversy concerning contractual interpretation when the parties have already acted based on their own respective contract interpretations. In this case, one party is right (or more right) than the other party, or they are both wrong, because the contract is to be interpreted in a different way from both of their interpretations. Either way, the remedy is damages for breach of contract, and not a declaration governing interpretation of the contract.

When the parties maintain a contractual relationship that will continue after resolution of the immediate dispute, and that may give rise to additional claims, declaratory relief can help guide their future conduct and avoid multiple lawsuits [Warren v. Kaiser Found. Health Plan, Inc. (1975) 47 CA3d 678, 683-684, 121 CR 19].

Consider:

The reference to the parties' conduct is important, because declaratory relief may be sought to assist the parties in governing themselves appropriately prospectively. An action for declaratory relief can be more than merely resolving the proper interpretation of the written words, and serve to guide parties' future dealings [see Warren v. Kaiser Found. Health Plan, Inc. (1975) 47 CA3d 678, 683-684, 121 CR 19] .

Example:

Plaintiff was a member of defendant health plan. Plaintiff's wife was injured in automobile accident and taken to a non-plan hospital by emergency service personnel. Plaintiff sued for declaratory relief and breach of contract after defendant refused to pay for services rendered by the non-plan hospital. Plaintiff was entitled to declaratory relief because plaintiff continued to be a member of the plan after the claimed breach, and a declaration of the right of a member for reimbursement under the circumstances would guide the future conduct of the parties. Declaratory relief also would avoid multiplicity of litigation because a declaration that defendant was required to reimburse plaintiff would prevent threatened lawsuits by the people who provided medical and hospital care to plaintiff's wife [Warren v. Kaiser Found. Health Plan, Inc. (1975) 47 CA3d 678, 684, 121 CR 19] .

Jury Instructions:

Nature of Declaratory Relief Action--General Liability, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 23A, Instr. MB 2300A.04 (Matthew Bender).

Cross References:

Points and authorities for party seeking declaratory relief, see 11.26.

Discussion of action for damages, see Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions.

11.05[3] Declaratory Relief Available When There Is Reasonable Expectation Wrong Will Be Repeated. In actions for declaratory relief, future and contingent legal rights may be encompassed by the relief granted [Southern Counties Gas Co. v. Ventura Pipeline Constr. Co. (1971) 19 CA3d 372, 381, 96 CR 825]. Although declaratory relief deals with present rights, the "present right" contemplated is the right to have immediate judicial assurance that advantages will be enjoyed or liabilities escaped in the future [Southern Counties Gas Co. v. Ventura Pipeline Constr. Co. (1971) 19 CA3d 372, 381, 96 CR 825]. If there is a reasonable expectation that the wrong, if any, will be repeated, declaratory relief is available [Southern Counties Gas Co. v. Ventura Pipeline Constr. Co. (1971) 19 CA3d 372, 381, 96 CR 825].

Example:

Defendant installed underground pipelines for plaintiff utility company pursuant to a series of contracts. When the lines began to leak, the investigation revealed that they had corroded due to a lack of protective coating. Plaintiff sued defendant for the cost of repairs and for a declaratory judgment determining the respective rights and duties of each party under the series of contracts. Because the plaintiff had not only present claims for indemnification as to corrosion damage previously discovered, but also the prospect that additional incidents would recur, the matter was a continuing controversy, ripe for decision, for which declaratory relief was appropriate [Southern Counties Gas Co. v. Ventura Pipeline Constr. Co. (1971) 19 CA3d 372, 381, 96 CR 825].

Cross Reference:

Points and authorities for party seeking declaratory relief, see 11.26.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment
ActionsState JudgmentsFactorsContracts LawRemediesGeneral Overview

31 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters
II. SEEKING DECLARATORY RELIEF IN CONTRACT MATTERS

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.06

11.06 Specific Situations in Which Declaratory Relief Is Appropriate.

A party may seek declaratory relief in the following situations, among others:

- A party may seek declaratory relief when an actual controversy relating to the legal rights and duties of the respective parties exists [CCP § 1060; see 11.04].
- A person may obtain a judicial declaration as to the validity of an administrative rule, regulation, order, or standard [Gov Code §§ 11350, 11350.3].
- An interested person may bring a declaratory action as to the validity of decisions of the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board [UI Code § 409.2].
- A person claiming to be a nonresident of California for income tax purposes may commence a declaratory relief action to determine the fact of his or her residence [CCP § 1060.5].
- Professional liability insurers for health care providers, health care providers, and other aggrieved persons may file a declaratory relief action for a declaration of rights, duties, and obligations relating to professional negligence [CCP § 1062.5].
- When a federal court has abstained from resolving an important issue of state law in deference to a state court, a party may seek declaratory relief to resolve that issue [National Audubon Society v. Superior Court (1983) 33 C3d 419, 432-433 n14, 189 CR 346, 658 P2d 709].

Distinguish:

One way to contrast the basic roles of declaratory judgment and damages in contract litigation is that declaratory judgment is requested to address future misconduct, while damages are sought to address harm from past misconduct.

Cross Reference:

Further discussion of appropriate situations for declaratory relief, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment
ActionsState JudgmentsScopeContracts LawRemediesGeneral Overview

32 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters

II. SEEKING DECLARATORY RELIEF IN CONTRACT MATTERS

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.07

11.07 Plaintiff Must Exhaust Administrative Remedies.

A person who objects to the application of a statute or ordinance normally must invoke any available administrative remedies before seeking relief in court, including bringing an action for declaratory relief [Pan Pac. Props., Inc. v. County of Santa Cruz (1978) 81 CA3d 244, 249, 146 CR 428 ; see Holden v. Arnebergh (1968) 265 CA2d 87, 91-92, 71 CR 401] .

Cross Reference:

Further discussion of steps in seeking declaratory relief, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJusticiabilityExhaustion of RemediesAdministrative RemediesCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment
ActionsState JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState
JudgmentsFactorsContracts LawRemediesGeneral Overview

33 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters

II. SEEKING DECLARATORY RELIEF IN CONTRACT MATTERS

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.08

11.08 Plaintiff Generally Must Seek Declaratory Relief Within Limitations Period on Underlying Cause of Action.

If declaratory relief is sought as to an obligation that has been breached, and the right to commence a coercive action (i.e., action for damages, specific performance, or injunction) on the cause of action arising from the breach is barred by the statute of limitations, the right to declaratory relief is likewise barred [Maguire v. Hibernia Sav. & Loan Soc'y (1944) 23 C2d 719, 734, 146 P2d 673] . If declaratory relief is sought before breach of the obligation as to which the declaration is sought or within the statutory period after the breach, the right to relief is not barred [Maguire v. Hibernia Sav. & Loan Soc'y (1944) 23 C2d 719, 734, 146 P2d 673] .

➡ Cross Reference:

Discussion of statute of limitations as defense, see 11.17.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState JudgmentsFactorsCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState JudgmentsScopeContracts LawDefensesStatutes of LimitationsContracts LawRemediesGeneral Overview

34 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters
II. SEEKING DECLARATORY RELIEF IN CONTRACT MATTERS

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.09

11.09 Declaratory Relief Does Not Preclude Other Remedies.

A party seeking declaratory relief may ask for a declaration of rights and duties, either alone or with other relief [CCP § 1060]. The court may make a binding declaration of the parties' respective rights and duties, whether or not further relief is or could be claimed at the time [CCP § 1060].

The declaratory relief remedies provided by CCP §§ 1060-1062.5 are cumulative and do not restrict any remedy, provisional or otherwise, provided by law for the benefit of any party to such an action [CCP § 1062]. No judgment under CCP §§ 1060-1062.5 precludes any party from obtaining additional relief based on the same facts [CCP § 1062].

In appropriate cases, a declaratory relief action can be combined with an action for damages for past wrongs, specific performance, or injunctive relief [see Southern Counties Gas Co. v. Ventura Pipeline Constr. Co. (1971) 19 CA3d 372, 380, 96 CR 825 ; Eye Dog Found. v. State Bd. of Guide Dogs for the Blind (1967) 67 C2d 536, 544, 63 CR 21, 432 P2d 717]. In addition, attorney's fees and costs can also be recovered.

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of other relief, see Ch. 7, Seeking or Opposing Damages in Contract Actions;
Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions;
Ch. 9, Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions; and
Ch. 10, Seeking or Opposing Statutory Remedies in Contract Actions.

Strategic Point:

CCP § 1062 provides an exemption from the bar of res judicata, allowing another action seeking additional relief based on the same facts, when the plaintiff seeks solely declaratory relief in the initial action [Mycogen Corp. v. Monsanto Co. (2002) 28 C4th 888, 898-901, 123 CR2d 432, 51 P3d 297]. If the plaintiff seeks both declaratory and relief for breach of contract in the same action (i.e., damages, specific performance, or injunction), a later action seeking further relief based on the same breach of contract is barred by the doctrine of res judicata [Mycogen Corp. v. Monsanto Co. (2002) 28 C4th 888, 898-901, 123 CR2d 432, 51 P3d 297].

Example:

Plaintiff brought an action against defendant for declaratory relief and specific performance of a license agreement. Summary judgment was granted in favor of plaintiff. Plaintiff subsequently brought another action for damages based on the same breach of the contract. Because the relief requested in both suits sought to vindicate the same right, the second action was barred by the doctrine of res judicata. All remedies, other than declaratory relief, arising out of the single breach of contract, were required to be brought in the same action or be forfeited [Mycogen Corp. v. Monsanto Co. (2002) 28 C4th 888, 904-908, 123 CR2d 432, 51 P3d 297].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of defense of res judicata in declaratory relief actions, see 11.18.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Declaratory Judgment Actions State Judgments General Overview Contracts Law Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Election of Remedies

35 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters

II. SEEKING DECLARATORY RELIEF IN CONTRACT MATTERS

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.10

11.10 Pleading Requirements.

11.10[1] Complaint or Cross-Complaint Must Show Existence of Controversy. A complaint for declaratory relief is legally sufficient if it does both of the following [Maguire v. Hibernia Sav. & Loan Soc'y (1944) 23 C2d 719, 728, 146 P2d 673 ; see Nahrstedt v. Lakeside Village Condominium Assn. (1994) 8 C4th 361, 379, 33 CR2d 63, 878 P2d 1275]:

- Sets forth facts showing the existence of an actual controversy relating to the legal rights and duties of the respective parties under a contract or statute [see 11.04 -11.06]; and
- Requests that those rights and duties be adjudged by the court.

A complaint is sufficient if a decree would serve in a practical way to stabilize a dispute that otherwise may lead to disastrous results or, if it involves a contract, defer the realization of the purposes of the contract [Southern Counties Gas Co. v. Ventura Pipeline Constr. Co. (1971) 19 CA3d 372, 377, 96 CR 825].

Example:

Plaintiff alleged that (1) defendants agreed to pay him a specified sum in cash on delivery of a deed to his real property following a foreclosure sale; and (2) defendants obtained possession of the deed by means of false representation and recorded it without paying plaintiff the agreed compensation. Plaintiff's allegations sufficiently alleged the existence of an actual controversy relating to the legal rights and duties of the parties under both a deed and a contract to state a cause of action for declaratory relief [Strozier v. Williams (1960) 187 CA2d 528, 531-532, 9 CR 683] .

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

Some practitioners prefer to plead declaratory relief complaints in as spare a form as possible, unless there is some compelling reason to do otherwise. This involves setting out whatever minimum facts are needed to satisfy the actual controversy requirement. Very often, this may entail simply attaching a complaining letter from the other side, and essentially stating that the client disagrees with it.

► Cross References:

Form for complaint for declaratory relief, see 11.22.

Discussion of plaintiff's pleading requirements, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 7, Complaints.

11.10[2] Facts Need Not Establish Plaintiff Is Entitled to Favorable Judgment. The plaintiff is not required to allege facts entitling him or her to a favorable decision [Maquire v. Hibernia Sav. & Loan Soc'y (1944) 23 C2d 719, 730, 146 P2d 673] . The point of a declaratory relief action is to get a ruling; if the plaintiff is not entitled to a favorable decision, the court must render a judgment embodying that determination, and not merely dismiss the action [Maquire v. Hibernia Sav. & Loan Soc'y (1944) 23 C2d 719, 731, 146 P2d 673] .

► Cross Reference:

Discussion of obtaining declaration adverse to party seeking declaratory relief by motion for judgment on the pleadings or summary judgment, see 11.21.

11.10[3] Noticed Motion Required for Declaratory Relief Action to Take Trial Precedence. In a declaratory relief action that includes other relief, in which the plaintiff seeks precedence on the trial calendar [see 11.11], the plaintiff is entitled to precedence only on noticed motion and a showing that the action requires a speedy trial [CCP § 1062.3(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsRequirementsCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment
ActionsState JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState
JudgmentsFactorsContracts LawRemediesGeneral Overview

36 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters

II. SEEKING DECLARATORY RELIEF IN CONTRACT MATTERS

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.11

11.11 Declaratory Relief Action Has Precedence on Trial Calendar.

An action for declaratory relief must be set for trial at the earliest possible date and takes precedence over all other cases, except older matter of the same character and matters to which special precedence is given by law [CCP § 1062.3(a)]. However, this advantage is inapplicable if the plaintiff seeks other relief in the action. When the plaintiff seeks additional relief in addition to a declaration of rights and duties, the action takes precedence only on noticed motion and a showing that the action requires a speedy trial [CCP § 1062.3(b)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of motions for precedences, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 23, Case Management.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementContracts LawRemediesGeneral Overview

37 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters
 II. SEEKING DECLARATORY RELIEF IN CONTRACT MATTERS

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.12

11.12 Right to Jury Trial Depends on Nature of Issues.

Whether a right to jury trial exists in a declaratory relief action depends on whether the issues to be tried in the declaratory relief action are equitable or legal in nature [Interinsurance Exch. v. Savior (1975) 51 CA3d 691, 694, 124 CR 239] . A jury trial generally is a matter of right in a civil action at law, but not in equity [C & K Eng'g Contractors v. Amber Steel Co. (1978) 23 C3d 1, 8, 151 CR 323, 587 P2d 1136]. Therefore, if the declaratory relief action is a substitute for an action at law for breach of contract, the parties are entitled to a jury trial [Interinsurance Exch. v. Savior (1975) 51 CA3d 691, 694, 124 CR 239] . If the declaratory relief action is a substitute for an equitable claim, such as a claim for specific performance, there is no right to a jury trial [Nwosu v. Uba (2004) 122 CA4th 1229, 1241].

Example:

In his claim for declaratory relief, plaintiff requested a judicial determination that he was entitled to conveyance of title to certain property from defendant. Because the declaratory relief claim appeared to be a hybrid of his equitable claims for specific performance, to quiet title, and to foreclose an equitable lien, plaintiff's claim for declaratory relief was similarly an equitable claim for which there was no right to a trial by jury [Nwosu v. Uba (2004) 122 CA4th 1229, 1241].

Strategic Points:

- Most judges see declaratory relief claims as being equitable, and thus not triable to a jury, even if they are a purported substitute for an action at law. Judges often will look at the labels of the causes of action to determine whether a claim predominantly seeks equitable relief, rather than looking at the totality of the circumstances alleged in the complaint.
- One sometimes overlooked significance of pleading a case that will be tried to the court rather than to the jury is that bench trials typically are faster and cheaper and are easier for judges to fit into their schedules, so they usually go to trial sooner.

Jury Instructions:

Role of Jury--Declaratory Judgment or Contract Action, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 23A, Instr. MB 2300A.07 (Matthew Bender).

Cross Reference:

Discussion of jury trial demands, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 23, Case Management.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsActions in EquityCivil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsRight to Jury TrialContracts LawRemediesGeneral Overview

38 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters

II. SEEKING DECLARATORY RELIEF IN CONTRACT MATTERS

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.13

11.13 Court's Declaration Has Force of Final Judgment.

11.13[1] Declaration May Be Affirmative or Negative. The declaration made by the court may be either affirmative or negative in form and effect [CCP § 1060]. The declaration has the force of a final judgment [CCP § 1060].

11.13[2] Judgment Has Res Judicata Effect As to Issues Declared. Although a judgment seeking solely declaratory relief does not preclude a subsequent suit for damages, specific performance, or injunction based on the same facts [see CCP § 1062], the judgment in the declaratory relief action has a res judicata effect as to those issues and claims expressly and unambiguously declared in the judgment [Aerojet-General Corp. v. American Excess Ins. Co. (2002) 97 CA4th 387, 413-414, 117 CR2d 427].

Judge's Perspective:

Counsel must be mindful of the specific language of the judgment. The party who has prevailed in a declaratory relief action should be careful to request a judgment from the court that confines itself only to declaratory relief if that party later wants to bring another action for coercive relief. "[P]urely declaratory judgments are exempt from the bar of res judicata" [Mycogen Corp. v. Monsanto Co. (2002) 28 C4th 888, 899, 123 CR2d 432, 51 P3d 297], and will not affect the prevailing party's ability to seek coercive relief in a later action. If the court issues its own judgment or statement of decision, and that document provides for coercive relief, counsel should seek modification within the appropriate time limits to protect the ability to seek additional relief in a later action.

11.13[3] Declaration May Be Rendered on Motion for Summary Judgment. Summary judgment is appropriate in a declaratory relief action when only legal issues are presented for the court's determination [Siemon v. Russell (1961) 194 CA2d 592, 595, 15 CR 218]. Summary judgment disposes of the issues considered as matter of law [City of Tiburon v. Northwestern P. R. Co. (1970) 4 CA3d 160, 172 n5, 84 CR 469].

Example:

A professor and the university that hired him entered into a patent agreement at the time of hire. Three years later, the university revised its patent policy and announced that it would pay the professor a lesser amount of royalties for the inventions and patents he was required to assign to the university. The professor brought an action for declaratory relief, seeking a declaration that he was entitled to the amount of royalties to which the parties originally agreed. The trial court properly granted the professor's motion for summary judgment and declared that he was entitled to the original amount of royalties because the written agreement was enforceable and explicit, and there were no issues of material fact in dispute [Shaw v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (1997) 58 CA4th 44, 52-54, 67 CR2d 850] .

Warning:

Declaratory relief actions often seek interpretation of ambiguous contract provisions. In these cases, the court must examine parol evidence, thus precluding summary judgment as a practical matter.

Cross References:

Discussion of motion for summary judgment by party opposing declaratory relief action, see 11.21[2].

Discussion of parol evidence, see Ch. 21, Asserting a Particular Construction of Contract.

Discussion of summary judgment, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 38, Summary Judgment.

Construction and interpretation of contract provisions, see Ch. 21, Asserting a Particular Construction of Contract.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Declaratory Judgment Actions State Judgments Appellate Review Contracts Law Remedies General Overview

39 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters

II. SEEKING DECLARATORY RELIEF IN CONTRACT MATTERS

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.14

11.14 Court Has Discretion to Refuse Declaratory Relief.

The court may refuse to grant declaratory relief if its declaration or determination is not necessary or proper at the time under all the circumstances [CCP § 1061].

► Cross Reference:

Discussion of opposing declaratory relief on ground that it is not necessary or proper, see 11.19.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Declaratory Judgment Actions State Judgments Discretion Contracts Law Remedies General Overview

40 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters

II. SEEKING DECLARATORY RELIEF IN CONTRACT MATTERS

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.15

11.15 Prevailing Party May Recover Attorney's Fees If Contract So Provides.

Under the mutuality of remedy statute [see CC § 1717], a prevailing party in a declaratory relief action relating to a contract may recover attorney's fees if the contract includes an attorney's fees provision [Carroll v. Hanover Ins. Co. (1968) 266 CA2d 47, 49-51, 71 CR 868 ; see Reynolds Metals Co. v. Alperson (1979) 25 C3d 124, 128, 158 CR 1, 599 P2d 83] .

Cross Reference:

Discussion of attorney's fees, see Ch. 12, Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState JudgmentsScopeCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesGeneral OverviewContracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesGeneral Overview

41 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters
III. OPPOSING DECLARATORY RELIEF IN CONTRACT MATTERS

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.16

11.16 CHECKLIST: Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters.

☐ Determine whether declaratory relief may be unavailable because:

☐ Action is barred by statute of limitations.

Authority:

Maguire v. Hibernia Sav. & Loan Soc'y (1944) 23 C2d 719, 734, 146 P2d 673

Discussion:

See 11.17

Forms:

See 11.23 (answer to complaint for declaratory relief with affirmative defenses), 11.25 (points and authorities for party seeking declaratory relief), 11.27 (points and authorities for party opposing declaratory relief)

☐ Action is subject to defense of res judicata.

Authority:

Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 C2d 540, 550, 554, 305 P2d 20

Discussion:

See 11.18

Form:

See 11.23 (answer to complaint for declaratory relief with affirmative defenses)

☐ Declaratory relief is not necessary or proper under circumstances of particular case.

Authority:

CCP § 1061

Discussion:

See 11.19

Forms:

See 11.23 (answer to complaint for declaratory relief with affirmative defenses), 11.28 (points and authorities for party opposing declaratory relief)

☐ Oppose granting of declaratory relief with appropriate responsive pleading:

☐ Demurrer for failure to state a cause of action.

Authority:

CCP §§ 430.10(e), 430.30

Discussion:

See 11.20

☐ Answer, with any applicable affirmative defenses.

Authority:

CCP §§ 430.10(e), 430.30

Discussion:

See 11.20

Form:

See 11.23 (answer to complaint for declaratory relief with affirmative defenses)

☐ Determine whether declaration of rights and duties of parties adverse to party seeking declaratory relief may be obtained before trial by:

☐ Motion for judgment on pleadings.

Authority:

Fisher v. City of Berkeley (1984) 37 C3d 644, 679 n31, 209 CR 682, 693 P2d 261

Discussion:

See 11.21[1]

Form:

See 11.29 (points and authorities for party opposing declaratory relief)

☐ Motion for summary judgment.

Authority:

Siemon v. Russell (1961) 194 CA2d 592, 595, 15 CR 218

Discussion:

See 11.21[2]

Form:

See 11.30 (points and authorities for party opposing declaratory relief)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment
ActionsState JudgmentsFactorsContracts LawRemediesGeneral Overview

42 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters
III. OPPOSING DECLARATORY RELIEF IN CONTRACT MATTERS

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.17

11.17 Declaratory Relief Is Barred If Statute of Limitations Has Run on Cause of Action Arising From Breach.

If declaratory relief is sought with reference to an obligation that has been breached, and the right to commence an action for other relief (damages, specific performance, or injunction) on the cause of action arising from the breach is barred by the statute of limitations, the right to declaratory relief is likewise barred [Maquire v. Hibernia Sav. & Loan Soc'y (1944) 23 C2d 719, 734, 146 P2d 673] .

If declaratory relief is sought before there has been a breach of the obligation in respect to which the declaration is sought or within the statutory period after the breach, the right to relief is not barred by the lapse of time [Maquire v. Hibernia Sav. & Loan Soc'y (1944) 23 C2d 719, 734, 146 P2d 673] .

➤ Cross References:

Form for answer to complaint for declaratory relief with affirmative defenses, see 11.23.

Form for points and authorities for party seeking declaratory relief, see 11.25.

Form for points and authorities for party opposing declaratory relief, see 11.27.

Discussion of limitations in contract actions, see Ch. 4, Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations and Effect on Potential Action.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState JudgmentsFactorsContracts LawDefensesStatutes of LimitationsContracts LawRemediesGeneral Overview

43 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters
 III. OPPOSING DECLARATORY RELIEF IN CONTRACT MATTERS

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.18

11.18 Complaint for Declaratory Relief May Be Subject to Defense of Res Judicata.

If the entire controversy between the parties has been settled by a prior judgment, the action is subject to the defense of res judicata, unless additional facts are alleged that justify setting that judgment aside [Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 C2d 540, 550, 554, 305 P2d 20].

Example:

Plaintiffs, the distributees of the estate of a person who had been a member of a bank, brought a declaratory relief action to establish their membership rights in the bank. In an earlier in rem action, the bank obtained a judgment determining all claims to membership rights. Because that judgment had the effect of determining that plaintiffs had no membership rights, the complaint for declaratory relief was subject to demurrer on the ground of res judicata, unless plaintiffs could plead and prove their claim that the previous judgment was obtained without proper service of process and by extrinsic fraud [Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 C2d 540, 553-555, 305 P2d 20].

Cross Reference:

Form for answer to complaint for declaratory relief with affirmative defenses, see 11.23.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Declaratory Judgment Actions State Judgments General Overview Contracts Law Defenses General Overview Contracts Law Remedies General Overview

44 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters
 III. OPPOSING DECLARATORY RELIEF IN CONTRACT MATTERS

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.19

11.19 Declaratory Relief May Be Denied If Not Necessary or Proper.

The court may refuse to grant declaratory relief if the court's declaration or determination is not necessary or proper at the time, under all the circumstances [CCP § 1061]. When facts appear from the face of the complaint that would justify the trial court in concluding that its determination is not necessary or proper, the court may refuse to grant relief by sustaining a general demurrer to the complaint [Moss v. Moss (1942) 20 C2d 640, 642, 128 P2d 526]. If the objection to the necessity or propriety of declaratory relief is raised in the answer of the opposing party, the court may refuse to grant relief in a judgment entered after a separate trial of that issue [see CCP § 597] or, if there is no trial issue of fact, on a motion for summary judgment [see CCP § 437c]. Declaratory relief has been refused in various circumstances, such as [C.J.L. Constr., Inc. v. Universal Plumbing (1993) 18 CA4th 376, 390-391, 22 CR2d 360]:

- When evidence in the trial of the legal claim in the action would be substantially the same as evidence presented in connection with the declaratory relief claim.
- When another adequate form for relief is available because a cause of action has accrued.
- When a matter can be raised as an affirmative defense.
- When the court believes declaratory relief is being used to circumvent a jury's adjudication of legal claims that predominate, or to unfairly get an expedited trial when the legal claims predominate.

With limited exceptions, the state or a public agency can be sued in declaratory relief only when governmental immunity does not exist or is waived; immunity is a defense to a declaratory relief action [see California Physicians' Serv. v. Garrison (1946) 28 C2d 790, 800, 172 P2d 4 ; People v. Buellton Dev. Co. (1943) 58 CA2d 178, 185, 136 P2d 793].

Example:

Plaintiff, a building contractor, filed an action for declaratory relief, seeking a determination that a worker who had been killed in an industrial accident was a special employee. Although it was not disclosed by the complaint, the trial court had judicial knowledge that the worker's heirs had sought and obtained a workers' compensation award against the worker's employer, which made any issue of plaintiff's potential liability under the Workers' Compensation Law moot. The heirs had also filed a negligence action for damages against plaintiff, which was pending when plaintiff filed the action for declaratory relief. Because the judgment in the negligence action would resolve every issue raised in the declaratory relief action, the trial court acted within its discretion in refusing declaratory relief because it was not necessary under the circumstances [Fagerstedt v. Continental Ins. Co. (1968) 266 CA2d 370, 371-373, 72 CR 126].

Cross References:

Form for answer to complaint for declaratory relief with affirmative defenses, see 11.23.

Form for points and authorities for party opposing declaratory relief, see 11.28.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState JudgmentsDiscretionCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState JudgmentsFactorsContracts LawRemediesGeneral Overview

45 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters
III. OPPOSING DECLARATORY RELIEF IN CONTRACT MATTERS

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.20

11.20 Party May Object to Granting of Declaratory Relief by Demurrer to Complaint or Affirmative Defenses in Answer.

If an action for declaratory relief is barred by the statute of limitations or the doctrine of res judicata, and that fact appears from the face of the complaint or from matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice [see Evid Code §§ 451, 452], the party opposing declaratory relief may raise the objection by general demurrer to the complaint, or by motion for judgment on the pleadings, on the ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that it appears that the action is barred [see CCP §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a), 438(c)(1)(B)].

If the action for declaratory relief is barred by the defense of the statute of limitations or res judicata, but does not appear from the face of the complaint or from judicially noticed matter, the objection may be raised by affirmative defense in the answer to the complaint [see CCP §§ 430.30(b), 431.30(b)(2)].

Similarly, if it appears from the face of the complaint or from matter of which the court may take judicial notice [see Evid Code §§ 451, 452] that declaratory relief is not necessary or proper under the circumstances [see CCP § 1061], the party opposing relief may raise the objection by general demurrer to the complaint, or by motion for judgment on the pleadings [see CCP §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]. If those facts do not appear from the face of the complaint or from matter of which the court may take judicial notice, they may be raised as an affirmative defense in the answer [see CCP §§ 430.30(b), 431.30(b)(2)].

➡ Cross References:

Form for answer to complaint for declaratory relief with affirmative defenses, see 11.23.

Discussion of demurrers and motions for judgment on the pleadings, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 11, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings.

Discussion of pleading affirmative defenses in an answer, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 14, Answers.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsAffirmative DefensesGeneral OverviewCivil
ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsDemurrersCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment
ActionsState JudgmentsGeneral OverviewContracts LawDefensesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesGeneral
Overview

46 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters
III. OPPOSING DECLARATORY RELIEF IN CONTRACT MATTERS

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.21

11.21 Party May Obtain Declaration Adverse to Party Seeking Declaratory Relief by Pretrial Motion.

11.21[1] Court May Render Judgment on Merits on Motion for Judgment on Pleadings. A motion for judgment on the pleadings may be used in an action for declaratory relief to obtain a declaratory judgment on the merits in the defendant's favor, rather than a dismissal of the plaintiff's suit [Fisher v. City of Berkeley (1984) 37 C3d 644, 679 n31, 209 CR 682, 693 P2d 261] .

When the opposing party moves for judgment on the pleadings in a declaratory relief action on the ground that the complaint fails to state a cause of action, the court is not limited to rendering a judgment of dismissal [Wilson v. Board of Ret. (1957) 156 CA2d 195, 203, 319 P2d 426] . Because of the constructive admission of the facts pled in the complaint, the court may render a judgment on the merits declaring the rights and duties of the parties with respect to the controversies alleged [Wilson v. Board of Ret. (1957) 156 CA2d 195, 203, 319 P2d 426] .

► Cross References:

Form for points and authorities for party opposing declaratory relief, see 11.29.

Discussion of demurrers and motions for judgment on the pleadings, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 11, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings.

11.21[2] Summary Judgment Is Appropriate When Issues Can Be Resolved As Matter of Law. Summary judgment is appropriate in a declaratory relief action when only legal issues are presented for the court's determination [Siemon v. Russell (1961) 194 CA2d 592, 595, 15 CR 218] .

Summary judgment disposes of the issues considered as matter of law [City of Tiburon v. Northwestern P. R. Co. (1970) 4 CA3d 160, 172 n5, 84 CR 469] . If a grant of summary judgment is not favorable to the party seeking declaratory relief, the court must declare that the plaintiff is not entitled to a declaration in his or her favor, rather than enter a judgment of dismissal [Siemon v. Russell (1961) 194 CA2d 592, 595, 15 CR 218] .

Example:

Plaintiffs purchased property that was subject to defendant's 20-year oil and gas lease. The lease stated that the defendant had sole and exclusive possession of the land, except that the lessor could use the land for agricultural uses. Plaintiffs wanted to subdivide the property into residential lots, and brought an action for declaratory relief. The terms of the lease were explicit, so no triable issue of facts existed that, if decided in plaintiff's favor, would entitle them to use the property for subdivision purposes. The court properly granted summary judgment in favor of defendant, declaring that plaintiffs' ownership was subject to the lease, that plaintiffs were not entitled to subdivide the property, and that defendant did not have a duty to quitclaim any surface rights to any part of the property to plaintiffs [Siemon v. Russell (1961) 194 CA2d 592, 595-597, 15 CR 218].

Cross References:

Form for points and authorities for party opposing declaratory relief, see 11.30.

Discussion of motions for summary judgment, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 38, Summary Judgment.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure
Declaratory Judgment Actions
State Judgments
General Overview
Civil Procedure
Pretrial Judgments
Judgment on the Pleadings
Contracts Law
Remedies
General Overview

47 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters
IV. FORMS

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.22

11.22 Complaint for Declaratory Relief.Complaint for Declaratory Relief.

[Name of attorney]

_____[Street address]

_____[City, state, and ZIP]

_____[Area code and phone number]

_____[State Bar no. of attorney]

Attorney for _____[name of party]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,

COUNTY OF _____

[name(s)] _____,

Plaintiff(s)

vs.

[name(s)] _____

[and DOES 1 THROUGH

_____]

_____]

Defendant(s)

)

)

)

)

)

)

)

)

NO.

COMPLAINT FOR DECLARATORY RELIEF

Plaintiff _____[name] alleges:

[For an individual plaintiff]

1. Plaintiff is an individual residing in _____[city, if any, and county], California, [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____] [, and therein doing business under the fictitious business name of _____. Plaintiff has duly complied in all respects with the requirements of Business and Professions Code Sections 17910 through 17917 with respect to this fictitious business name].

[OR, for a domestic corporation or domestic limited liability company]

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of California, with its principal place of business in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____], and therein doing business under the fictitious business name of _____. Plaintiff has duly complied in all respects with the requirements of Business and Professions Code Sections 17910 through 17917 with respect to this fictitious business name].

[OR, for a foreign corporation or foreign limited liability company]

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of _____ [state or foreign country], and _____ [for foreign corporation authorized to do business and doing business in California or, for foreign limited liability company maintaining action or intrastate business, and registered to transact intrastate business in California], with its principal place of business in California in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____].

[OR, for a general or limited partnership or an unincorporated association]

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [partnership or unincorporated association] with its principal place of business in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____], and therein doing business under the fictitious business name of _____. Plaintiff has duly complied in all respects with the requirements of Business and Professions Code Sections 17910 through 17917 with respect to this fictitious business name].

[CONTINUE]

[For an individual defendant]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is an individual residing in _____ [city, if any, and county], California [in the (name of judicial district, if any) _____] [and doing business therein under the fictitious business name of _____].

[OR, for a domestic corporation or domestic limited liability company]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of California [, with its principal place of business in _____ (city, if any, and county), California (, in the _____ [name of judicial district, if any])].

[OR, for a foreign corporation or foreign limited liability company]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [corporation or limited liability company] organized and existing under the laws of _____ [state or foreign country][, with its principal place of business in _____ (city, if any, and county), California (, in the _____ [name of judicial district, if any])].

[OR, for a general or limited partnership or an unincorporated association]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [a partnership or an unincorporated association] sued herein under the name _____ [it has assumed or by which it is known][, with its principal place of business in _____ (city, if any, and county), California (, in the _____ [name of judicial district, if any])]. [Defendants (names of individual partners or members) _____ are, and at all times herein mentioned were, members of that _____ (partnership or unincorporated association) (and are, and at all times herein mentioned were, residents of _____ County, California)].

[CONTINUE]

3. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of Defendants sued herein as DOES 1 through _____ [numeral, e.g., 50], inclusive, and therefore sues these Defendants by these fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named Defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that Plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by those Defendants.]

4. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that at all times material to this complaint, _____ [identify Defendants to whom agency allegation applies, e.g., each of the Defendants or each of the individual Defendants or Defendant Harry Jones], [and each of the Defendants fictitiously named in this complaint,] in addition to acting for himself, herself, or itself and on his, her, or its own behalf individually, is and was acting as the agent, servant, employee and representative of, and with the knowledge, consent and permission of, and in conspiracy with, each and all of the Defendants and within the course, scope and authority of that agency, service, employment, representation, and conspiracy. Plaintiff further alleges on information and belief that the acts of each of the Defendants were fully ratified by each and all of the Defendants. Specifically, and without limitation, Plaintiff alleges on information and belief that the actions, failures to act, breaches, conspiracy, and misrepresentations alleged herein and attributed to one or more of the specific Defendants were approved, ratified, and done with the cooperation and knowledge of each and all of the Defendants.

5. _____ [Set forth facts showing the existence of an actual controversy relating to the legal rights and duties of the parties under a contract, e.g., On or about January 1, 2005, Plaintiff requested in writing a quotation from Defendant to print and supply 10,000 T-shirts, to shipped to Plaintiff by June 1, 2005, for sale in its clothing stores. A copy of the request is attached to this complaint as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference. On February 1, 2005, Plaintiff sent a letter to Defendant stating it had found another manufacturer for the shirts and would not need Defendant's service. A copy of the letter is attached to this complaint as Exhibit B and incorporated by reference. Meanwhile, without Plaintiff's knowledge or agreement, Defendant produced the shirts and on February 18, 2005, notified Plaintiff it was prepared to ship the T-shirts, and demanded payment of $25,000 for them. A copy of Defendant's notice is attached to this complaint as Exhibit C and incorporated by reference. On February 19, 2005, Plaintiff notified Defendant that the offer to make the shirts had been revoked by its February 1, 2005, letter, and that it did not want, and would not accept or pay for, the shirts made by Defendant. A copy of this letter is attached to this complaint as Exhibit D and incorporated by reference].

6. An actual controversy has arisen and now exists between Plaintiff and Defendant concerning their respective rights and duties in that Plaintiff contends _____ [specify Plaintiff's contentions as to controversy, e.g., the offer made by Plaintiff was revoked before Defendant's alleged acceptance, so that no contract exists], whereas Defendant disputes these contentions and contends that _____ [specify, e.g., the offer was not revoked before acceptance and an enforceable contract exists between the parties].

7. Plaintiff has no adequate and speedy remedy to resolve the parties' dispute other than by a declaratory judgment from this court. Because of the urgency and importance of the issues presented by the parties' dispute, it is necessary and appropriate for the court to resolve this dispute by issuing a judicial declaration determining the respective rights and obligations of the parties _____ [specify, e.g., with respect to the alleged agreement].

[Allege additional causes of action, if appropriate]

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff prays for judgment as follows:

1. For a judicial determination of his/her rights and duties and a declaration that _____ [specify, e.g., the offer to enter into a contract was revoked by Plaintiff before acceptance by Defendant, and no enforceable contract exists between the parties].

2. _____ [Specify any other relief requested, pursuant to any additional causes of action alleged.];

3. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

Dated: _____

[firm name, if any] _____

By: [signature] _____*[typed name]* __________
Attorney for Plaintiff*[ADD following verification, if applicable]VERIFICATION

I am the Plaintiff in the above entitled action; I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[date] _____*[signature]* _____*[typed name]* _____NOTES.*Authority:CCP § 1060Breach Not Required to Seek Declaratory Relief:See 11.04Complaint Must Show Existence of Controversy:See 11.10[1]Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Pleadings Complaints Requirements Civil Procedure Declaratory Judgment
Actions State Judgments General Overview Contracts Law Remedies General Overview

48 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters
IV. FORMS

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.23

11.23 Answer to Complaint for Declaratory Relief With Affirmative Defenses.Answer to Complaint for Declaratory Relief With Affirmative Defenses.

[Name of attorney]

_____[Street address]

_____[City, state, and ZIP]

_____[Area code and phone number]

_____[State Bar no. of attorney]

Attorney for _____[name of party]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,

COUNTY OF _____

[name] _____,

Plaintiff,

vs.

[name] _____,

Defendant.

)

)

)

)

)

)

)

NO.

ANSWER OF

_____[identify Defendant, e.g.,
DEFENDANT MARY JONES] TO COMPLAINT
OF

_____[identify Plaintiff, e.g.,
PLAINTIFF JOHN SMITH]

Judge:

Department:

Defendant _____ [name] answers the complaint as follows:

[Include general denial below, or set forth, in numbered paragraphs, specific denials, admissions, and allegations in response to those in complaint, in order in which they are alleged in complaint:]

1. Pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 431.30(b)(1), Defendant denies each and every allegation of the complaint, including all the purported causes of action contained therein, and further denies that Plaintiff is entitled to any equitable or legal relief whatsoever.

[Defendant asserts the following affirmative defenses. By doing so, Defendant shall not be deemed to have assumed the burden of proving any matters that otherwise would be Plaintiff's burden.]

[Allege any affirmative defenses, e.g.,]

[EITHER, if alleging that action for declaratory relief is barred by statute of limitations]

FIRST AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Statute of Limitations)

2. Plaintiff's action for declaratory relief arises out of an alleged contract that Plaintiff alleges was entered into on or about _____ [date] and breached on or about _____ [date]. Pursuant to _____ [specify limitations provision, e.g., Code of Civil Procedure Section 337(1)], any action arising out of that breach must have been brought within _____ [specify, e.g., four years]. Plaintiff's action for declaratory relief was brought on _____ [date], after the statute of limitations had run.

[AND/OR, if alleging that action for declaratory relief is subject to defense of res judicata]

SECOND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Res Judicata)

3. Plaintiff's claim is for declaratory relief is barred by the doctrine of res judicata in that _____ [specify, e.g., the issues raised in Plaintiff's complaint were previously adjudicated in another action, (specify case name, number, court, and date judgment or other adjudication was rendered) _____]. [A certified copy of the judgment is attached as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference.]

[AND/OR, if alleging that declaratory relief is not necessary or proper]

THIRD AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Declaratory Relief Is Not Necessary or Proper)

4. The declaratory relief requested by Plaintiff is neither necessary nor proper under the circumstances, because _____ [specify reason(s) why relief is not necessary or proper, such as: another action, (specify case name, number, and court) _____ is already pending between the parties, and that action will resolve all issues with respect to which Plaintiff's complaint in this action seeks declaratory relief or Plaintiff's complaint alleges a fully matured claim for breach of contract and there is no other continuing relationship between the parties for which declaratory relief would be appropriate or there is no actual controversy between the parties relating to their legal rights and duties, in that the parties have not yet entered into a valid and binding contract].

[ADD additional affirmative defenses, if any]

[CONTINUE]

WHEREFORE, Defendant prays as follows:

1. That the court refuse the declaratory relief requested by Plaintiff;
2. For costs of suit; and
3. For such other and further relief as the court deems proper.

Dated: _____

[firm name, if any] _____

By: [signature] _____

[typed name] _____

Attorney for Defendant

[ADD following verification, if applicable]

VERIFICATION

I am the Defendant in the above entitled action; I have read the foregoing answer and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[date] _____

[signature] _____

[typed name] _____

NOTES.

Authority:

CCP §§ 431.30(b)(2), 1061; Maguire v. Hibernia Sav. & Loan Soc'y (1944) 23 C2d 719, 734, 146 P2d 673 ; Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 C2d 540, 550, 554, 305 P2d 20

Declaratory Relief Barred by Statute of Limitations:

See 11.17

Declaratory Relief Action Subject to Defense of Res Judicata:

See 11.18

Court's Discretion to Refuse Declaratory Relief When Not Necessary or Proper:

See 11.19

Asserting Affirmative Defenses in Answer to Complaint for Declaratory Relief:

See 11.20

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsAnswersCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState JudgmentsGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesGeneral Overview

49 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters
IV. FORMS

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.24

11.24 Points and Authorities for Party Seeking Declaratory Relief--Sufficiency of Complaint As to Declaratory Relief.

Points and Authorities for Party Seeking Declaratory Relief--Sufficiency of Complaint As to Declaratory Relief.

[Include the following, if appropriate under circumstances of the case, in a memorandum of points and authorities by the party seeking declaratory relief]

THE COMPLAINT STATES FACTS SUFFICIENT TO CONSTITUTE A CAUSE OF ACTION FOR DECLARATORY RELIEF

A. Complaint Is Sufficient If Facts Show Actual Controversy. A complaint for declaratory relief is legally sufficient if it sets forth facts showing the existence of an actual controversy relating to the legal rights and duties of the respective parties under a contract and requests that those rights and duties be adjudged by the court (Maguire v. Hibernia Sav. & Loan Soc'y (1944) 23 Cal. 2d 719, 728, 146 P.2d 673).

[ADD, if appropriate]

B. Breach Is Not a Prerequisite to Declaratory Relief. A party may seek declaratory relief when an actual controversy relating to the legal rights and duties of the respective parties exists (Code Civ. Proc. § 1060). The declaration may be had before there has been any breach of the obligation in respect to which the declaration is sought (Code Civ. Proc. § 1060).

NOTES.

Breach Not Required to Seek Declaratory Relief:

See 11.04

Pleading Requirements:

See 11.10

Detailed Discussion of Format/Skeletal Forms for Points and Authorities:

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 417, Points and Authorities (Matthew Bender); and
California Points and Authorities, Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs (Matthew Bender)

Additional Points and Authorities Relating to Declaratory Relief:

California Points and Authorities, Ch. 67, Declaratory Relief (Matthew Bender)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsRequirementsCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment
ActionsState JudgmentsGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesGeneral Overview

50 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters
IV. FORMS

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.25

11.25 Points and Authorities for Party Seeking Declaratory Relief--Action Not Barred by Statute of Limitations.

Points and Authorities for Party Seeking Declaratory Relief--Action Not Barred by Statute of Limitations.

[Include the following, if appropriate under circumstances of the case, in a memorandum of points and authorities by the party seeking declaratory relief]

THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS DOES NOT BAR AN ACTION FOR DECLARATORY RELIEF BROUGHT BEFORE ACTUAL BREACH

No Cause of Action Has Accrued. If declaratory relief is sought before there has been a breach of the obligation in respect to which the declaration is sought, the right to relief is not barred by the statute of limitations because no cause of action has accrued (Maguire v. Hibernia Sav. & Loan Soc'y (1944) 23 Cal. 2d 719, 734, 146 P.2d 673 ; United Pacific/Reliance Ins. Co. v. DiDomenico (1985) 173 CA3d 673, 676-677, 219 CR 119).

NOTES.

Statute of Limitations Governing Action for Declaratory Relief:

See 11.17

Detailed Discussion of Format/Skeletal Forms for Points & Authorities:

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 417, Points and Authorities (Matthew Bender); and
California Points and Authorities, Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs (Matthew Bender)

Additional Points and Authorities Relating to Declaratory Relief:

California Points and Authorities, Ch. 67, Declaratory Relief (Matthew Bender)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState JudgmentsGeneral OverviewContracts LawDefensesStatutes of LimitationsContracts LawRemediesGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsGeneral Overview

51 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters
IV. FORMS

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.26

11.26 Points and Authorities for Party Seeking Declaratory Relief--Declaratory Relief Appropriate When Parties Have Continuing Relationship and/or Wrong May Be Repeated.

Points and Authorities for Party Seeking Declaratory Relief--Declaratory Relief Appropriate When Parties Have Continuing Relationship and/or Wrong May Be Repeated.

[Include the following, if appropriate under circumstances of the case, in a memorandum of points and authorities by the party seeking declaratory relief]

DECLARATORY RELIEF IS APPROPRIATE WHEN THE PARTIES HAVE A CONTINUING RELATIONSHIP AND/OR THE WRONG MAY BE REPEATED

A. Declaratory Relief Is Appropriate to Guide Future Conduct in Continuing Relationship. When the parties maintain a contractual relationship that will continue after resolution of the immediate dispute, and may give rise to additional claims, declaratory relief can help guide their future conduct and avoid multiple lawsuits (Warren v. Kaiser Found. Health Plan, Inc. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 678, 683-684, 121 Cal. Rptr. 19).

B. Declaratory Relief Is Appropriate When Wrong May Be Repeated. Although declaratory relief deals with present rights, the "present right" contemplated is the right to have immediate judicial assurance that advantages will be enjoyed or liabilities escaped in the future (Southern Counties Gas Co. v. Ventura Pipeline Constr. Co. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 372, 381, 96 Cal. Rptr. 825). If there is a reasonable expectation that the wrong, if any, will be repeated, declaratory relief is available (Southern Counties Gas Co. v. Ventura Pipeline Constr. Co. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 372, 381, 96 Cal. Rptr. 825).

NOTES.

Declaratory Relief When Parties Have Continuing Relationship or Wrong May Be Repeated:

See 11.05

Detailed Discussion of Format/Skeletal Forms for Points and Authorities:

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 417, Points and Authorities (Matthew Bender); and

California Points and Authorities, Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs (Matthew Bender)

Additional Points and Authorities Relating to Declaratory Relief:

California Points and Authorities, Ch. 67, Declaratory Relief (Matthew Bender)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment
ActionsState JudgmentsFactorsContracts LawRemediesGeneral Overview

52 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters
IV. FORMS

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.27

11.27 Points and Authorities for Party Opposing Declaratory Relief--Action Barred by Statute of Limitations.

Points and Authorities for Party Opposing Declaratory Relief--Action Barred by Statute of Limitations.

[Include the following, if appropriate under circumstances of the case, in a memorandum of points and authorities by the party seeking declaratory relief]

THE ACTION FOR DECLARATORY RELIEF IS BARRED BECAUSE THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS HAS RUN ON AN ACTION FOR RELIEF

Statute of Limitations on Action for Relief Also Applies to Action for Declaratory Relief. If declaratory relief is sought with reference to an obligation that has been breached, and the right to commence an action for relief such as damages, specific performance, or injunction on the cause of action arising from the breach is barred by the statute of limitations, the right to declaratory relief is likewise barred (Maquire v. Hibernia Sav. & Loan Soc'y (1944) 23 Cal. 2d 719, 734, 146 P.2d 673).

NOTES.

Statute of Limitations Applicable to Action for Declaratory Relief:

See 11.17

Detailed Discussion of Format/Skeletal Forms for Points and Authorities:

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 417, Points and Authorities (Matthew Bender); and
California Points and Authorities, Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs (Matthew Bender)

Additional Points and Authorities Relating to Declaratory Relief:

California Points and Authorities, Ch. 67, Declaratory Relief (Matthew Bender)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState JudgmentsGeneral OverviewContracts LawDefensesStatutes of

LimitationsContracts LawRemediesGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsGeneral Overview

53 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters
IV. FORMS

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.28

11.28 Points and Authorities for Party Opposing Declaratory Relief--Declaratory Relief Not Necessary or Proper.

Points and Authorities for Party Opposing Declaratory Relief--Declaratory Relief Not Necessary or Proper.

[Include the following, if appropriate under circumstances of the case, in a memorandum of points and authorities by the party seeking declaratory relief]

A JUDICIAL DECLARATION OR DETERMINATION IS NOT NECESSARY OR PROPER AT THIS TIME
UNDER ALL THE CIRCUMSTANCES

A. Court Has Discretion to Refuse Relief. The court may refuse to grant declaratory relief if its declaration or determination is not necessary or proper at the time under all the circumstances (Code Civ. Proc. § 1061).

[ADD, if appropriate]

B. Declaratory Relief Unnecessary When Matter Can Be Raised as Affirmative Defense. When a matter can be raised as an affirmative defense in a pending action, the court can prevent the filing of a separate declaratory relief action by the defendant (C.J.L. Constr., Inc. v. Universal Plumbing (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 376, 391, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360).

[ADD, if appropriate]

C. Declaratory Relief Unnecessary If Party Has Adequate Remedy. The availability of another form of relief that is adequate justifies the refusal to grant declaratory relief (California Ins. Guarantee Assn. v. Superior Court (1991) 231 CA3d 1617, 1624, 283 CR 104).

[ADD, if appropriate]

D. Declaratory Relief Sought by Cross-Complaint Properly Denied When Issues and Evidence Will Be Presented in Main Action. Declaratory relief may be properly denied when the issues and evidence in the trial of the main action would be substantially the same as that presented in connection with the cross-complaint (International Ass'n of Fire Fighters v. City of Palo Alto (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 295, 301-302, 32 Cal. Rptr. 842, 384 P.2d 170).

Denial of Declaratory Relief If Not Necessary or Proper:

See 11.19

Detailed Discussion of Format/Skeletal Forms for Points and Authorities:

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 417, Points and Authorities (Matthew Bender); and
California Points and Authorities, Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs (Matthew Bender)

Additional Points and Authorities Relating to Declaratory Relief:

California Points and Authorities, Ch. 67, Declaratory Relief (Matthew Bender)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment
ActionsState JudgmentsFactorsContracts LawRemediesGeneral Overview

54 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters
IV. FORMS

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.29

11.29 Points and Authorities for Party Opposing Declaratory Relief--Opposing Party Entitled to Declaration Adverse to Party Seeking Relief--On Motion for Judgment on Pleadings.

Points and Authorities for Party Opposing Declaratory Relief--Opposing Party Entitled to Declaration Adverse to Party Seeking Relief--On Motion for Judgment on Pleadings.

[Include the following, if appropriate under circumstances of the case, in a memorandum of points and authorities by the party seeking declaratory relief]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS AND RENDER A DECLARATORY JUDGMENT ON THE MERITS IN DEFENDANT'S FAVOR

Court Should Render Judgment on Merits Rather Than Dismiss Case. A motion for judgment on the pleadings may be used in an action for declaratory relief to obtain a declaratory judgment on the merits in the defendant's favor, rather than a dismissal of the plaintiff's suit (Fisher v. City of Berkeley (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 644, 679 n.31, 209 Cal. Rptr. 682, 693 P.2d 261). Because of the constructive admission of the facts pled in the complaint, the court may render a judgment on the merits declaring the rights and duties of the parties with respect to the controversies alleged (Wilson v. Board of Ret. (1957) 156 Cal. App. 2d 195, 203, 319 P.2d 426).

Judgment on Pleadings in Declaratory Relief Action:

See 11.21[1]

Detailed Discussion of Format/Skeletal Forms for Points and Authorities:

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 417, Points and Authorities (Matthew Bender); and
California Points and Authorities, Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs (Matthew Bender)

Additional Points and Authorities Relating to Declaratory Relief:

California Points and Authorities, Ch. 67, Declaratory Relief (Matthew Bender)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure
Declaratory Judgment Actions
State Judgments
General Overview
Civil Procedure
Pretrial Judgments
Judgment on the Pleadings
Contracts Law
Remedies
General Overview

55 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 11 Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters
IV. FORMS

1-11 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 11.30

11.30 Points and Authorities for Party Opposing Declaratory Relief--Opposing Party Entitled to Declaration Adverse to Party Seeking Relief--On Motion for Summary Judgment.

Points and Authorities for Party Opposing Declaratory Relief--Opposing Party Entitled to Declaration Adverse to Party Seeking Relief--On Motion for Summary Judgment.

[Include following, if appropriate under circumstances of case, in memorandum of points and authorities by party opposing declaratory relief]

THE COURT SHOULD ENTER SUMMARY JUDGMENT FOR DEFENDANT AND DECLARE THAT PLAINTIFF IS NOT ENTITLED TO A DECLARATION IN HIS/HER FAVOR

A. Summary Judgment Is Proper. Summary judgment is appropriate in a declaratory relief action when only legal issues are presented for the court's determination (Siemon v. Russell (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 592, 595, 15 Cal. Rptr. 218).

B. Court Must Declare Plaintiff Is Not Entitled to Declaration Sought. If summary judgment is granted that is not favorable to the party seeking declaratory relief, the court must declare that the plaintiff is not entitled to a declaration in his or her favor, rather than enter a judgment of dismissal (Siemon v. Russell (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 592, 595, 15 Cal. Rptr. 218).

Summary Judgment in Declaratory Relief Action:

See 11.21[2]

Detailed Discussion of Format/Skeletal Forms for Points and Authorities:

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 417, Points and Authorities (Matthew Bender); and
California Points and Authorities, Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs (Matthew Bender)

Additional Points and Authorities Relating to Declaratory Relief:

California Points and Authorities, Ch. 67, Declaratory Relief (Matthew Bender)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSummary
JudgmentMotions for Summary JudgmentGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesGeneral Overview

56 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 12 Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 12.syn

AUTHOR: James E. Wright II

§ 12.syn Synopsis to Chapter 12: Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation

12.01 Scope.

12.02 Objective and Strategy.

12.03 CHECKLIST: Recovering Attorney's Fees by Statute or Contract.

12.04 Attorney's Fees Generally Not Recoverable.

12.05 Attorney's Fees Recoverable When Specifically Allowed by Contract or Statute.

12.05[1] Contract May Provide for Recovery.

12.05[2] Attorney's Fees Are Recoverable on Some Categories of Contracts by Statute.

12.05[3] Contingency Representation Does Not Bar Recovery of Fees.

12.05[4] Recovery Under Statute or Contract May Include Fees Incurred In Related Noncontract Causes of Action.

12.05[4][a] Attorneys' Fees Under CC § 1717 Are Apportioned Between Contract and Noncontract Claims Unless Incurred for Representation on Issue Common to Both.

12.05[4][b] Cause of Action Based on Breach of a Promise Is Contractual for Purposes of CC § 1717.

12.05[4][c] Scope of Particular Contractual Fee Provision May Be Broad Enough to Apply to Related Cause of Action.

12.05[5] Attorney's Time Need Not Be Allocated Between Parties Entitled and Not Entitled to Fees If It Cannot Be Separated Into Compensable and Noncompensable Units.

12.06 CC § 1717 Controls Scope of Contractual Provisions Governing Attorney's Fees.

12.06[1] Contract May Not Award Fees Unilaterally.

12.06[2] Contract Provision May Not Allow Award of Fees When Action Is Voluntarily Dismissed or Settled.

12.06[3] Contractual Provision for Fees Generally Applies to Entire Agreement.

12.07 Contract May Specifically Address What Fees Are Allowable.

12.08 Provisions for Attorney's Fees Appearing in One Document May Apply to Other Documents If Part of Same Agreement.

12.09 Actions for Rescission or Reformation Are Actions on Contract Under CC § 1717.

12.10 Finding That No Contract Exists Does Not Prevent Fee Recovery.

12.11 Condition Precedent of Initiating Mediation Before Litigation Is Valid.

12.12 Procedural Requirements Governing Recovery of Attorney's Fees.

12.12[1] Attorney's Fees Allowed by Contract Under CCP § 1033.5 Need Not Be Specifically Pleaded or Proven at Trial.

12.12[2] Noticed Motion Required for Award of Fees by Contract As Costs Pursuant to CCP § 1033.5.

12.12[3] Noticed Motion Not Required for Award of Fees by Statute Pursuant to CCP § 1033.5.

12.12[4] California Rules of Court Dictate Timing and Procedural Requirements for Recovery of Attorney's Fees.

12.13 Court Has Broad Discretion in Determining Reasonableness of Fee Awards.

12.13[1] Moving Party Bears Burden of Proof for Fees Not Fixed by Formula.

12.13[2] Factors Considered in Determining Reasonable Compensation.

12.13[3] Lodestar Method Uses Number of Hours Reasonably Expended Multiplied by Reasonable Hourly Rate.

12.14 Settlement Offers May Shift Fee Burden If Offer Is As Good As or Better Than Resulting Judgment Under CCP § 998.

12.15 Fees Incurred on Appeal May Be Recovered.

12.16 Attorney's Fees Are Recoverable for Services of In-House Counsel, but Not for Pro Se Representation.

12.16[1] Fees May Be Recovered for Representation by In-House Counsel.

12.16[2] Fees May Be Recovered for Representation by Other Members of Same Firm.

12.16[3] Pro Se Litigants May Not Recover Fees Not Actually Incurred.

12.17 Attorney's Fees May Be Recoverable By Party Who Is Not Signatory to Agreement.

12.18 CHECKLIST: Recovering Costs Allowed by Statute.

12.19 General Rule Allows Recovery of Reasonable and Necessary Costs.

12.19[1] Costs Recoverable by Prevailing Party.

12.19[1][a] Prevailing Party May Recover Costs.

12.19[1][b] Costs Must Be Reasonable in Amount and Necessarily Incurred.

12.19[1][c] Trial Court Has Discretion to Determine Allowable Costs Not Expressly Allowed by Statute.

12.19[1][d] Certain Types of Contracts Have Particular Categories of Recoverable Costs.

12.19[2] Judgment Required to Collect Costs.

12.19[2][a] Dismissal and Settlement Generally Allow Recovery of Costs.

12.19[2][b] Costs of Arbitration Are Recoverable.

12.19[2][c] Judicial Referee's Fees Are Recoverable.

12.19[3] CCP § 1033.5 Expressly Allows and Disallows Certain Categories of Costs.

12.19[4] Expert Witness Fees May Be Recovered As Item of Damages.

12.20 Burden of Proving Costs Falls on Moving Party.

12.20[1] Prima Facie Case Made and Burden Shifts to Respondent When Cost Allowed by Statute.

12.20[2] Party Seeking Costs Not Specifically Allowed by Statute Has Burden of Proof.

12.21 Actions or Conditions May Reduce Recoverable Costs.

12.21[1] Offers to Pay or Settle May Halt Accrual of Recoverable Costs.

12.21[1][a] Tender of Money Owed Prior to Commencement of Action for Money May Shift Costs to Plaintiff.

12.21[1][b] Good Faith Offers to Settle May Halt Accrual of Costs As of Time of Offer.

12.21[2] Incorrect Jurisdictional Classification May Reduce Recoverable Costs.

12.21[3] Separate Actions Against Multiple Parties for Single Cause When Single Action Could Have Been Filed May Reduce Recoverable Costs in Single Action.

12.21[4] When Multiple Defendants Are Sued With Different Outcomes, Costs Generally May Not Be Shifted Between Defendants.

12.22 California Rules of Court Dictate Timing and Procedural Requirements.

12.23 CHECKLIST: Determining Prevailing Party for Recovery of Costs or Fees.

12.24 Prevailing Party Is Different for Purpose of Recovering Costs Than for Purpose of Recovering Attorney's Fees.

12.24[1] Definition of Prevailing Party for Cost Purposes Under CCP § 1032.

12.24[2] Definition of Prevailing Party for Purpose of Recovering Attorney's Fees Under CC § 1717.

12.25 Courts Adopt Practical Approach When Prevailing Party Is Not Defined by Statute.

12.26 Discretion of Court Under CC § 1717 Is Not Unlimited.

12.27 Court Determines Prevailing Party on Noticed Motion in Request for Fees Allocated by Contract.

12.28 In Actions on Multiple Agreements That Stand on Their Own, Multiple Prevailing Parties May Exist for Purpose of Allocating Costs and Fees.

12.29 Notice of Motion to Determine Party Prevailing on Contract and to Fix Amount of Attorney's Fees to Be Awarded As Costs, With Supporting Declaration.

Notice of Motion to Determine Party Prevailing on Contract and to Fix Amount of Attorney's Fees to Be Awarded As Costs and Supporting Declaration.

James E. Wright II n*

FOOTNOTES:

(n2)Footnote *. Mr. Wright is a graduate of Harvard Law School and an attorney with Sidley Austin Brown & Wood LLP specializing in technology transactions and intellectual property related litigation. Mr. Wright also is an experienced software engineer and manager and has spoken and written on a variety of topics in software development.

57 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 12 Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation

I. STRATEGY

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 12.01

AUTHOR: James E. Wright II

12.01 Scope.

This chapter covers issues relating to the recovery of costs and attorney's fees in actions arising out of a contract, specifically:

- Rules regarding recovery of attorney's fees as authorized by contract or statute [see 12.03 -12.11, 12.14 -12.17].
- Procedural requirements governing the recovery of attorney's fees [see 12.12].
- Determining the reasonableness of fee awards [see 12.13].
- Rules regarding recovery of costs [see 12.18 -12.21].
- Timing and procedural requirements for the recovery of costs [see 12.22].
- Determining the prevailing party [see 12.23 -12.28].

Core Statutes:

CCP §§ 1021, 1032, 1033.5; CC § 1717

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees American Rule Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees Reasonable Fees Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees Statutory Awards Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Costs General Overview Contracts Law Remedies General Overview

58 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 12 Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation

I. STRATEGY

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 12.02

AUTHOR: James E. Wright II

12.02 Objective and Strategy.

The prevailing party in a contract action may be able to compel the losing party to pay the prevailing party's attorney's fees and costs in the action if such an award is authorized in the action either by contract or by statute.

Costs of litigation may be recovered by the prevailing party in California litigation as a matter of right [CCP § 1032], and CCP § 1033.5 specifically delineates those costs that are allowable and those that are not. Attorney's fees also may be recovered as costs in litigation when allowed by contract or by law [CCP § 1033.5(a)(10)]. The award of attorney's fees is relatively rare, but such recoveries typically are larger than the recovery of costs.

CC § 1717 controls the scope of contractual attorney's fees provisions. This section provides that [CC § 1717]:

- Unilateral fee provisions must be interpreted to award fees to either party.
- Attorney's fees may not be recovered when an action is voluntarily dismissed or settled.
- A provision limiting fee recovery to breach under particular sections of a contract will be interpreted to apply to the entire contract, unless both parties were represented by counsel in the negotiation of the contract.

A party seeking to recover attorney's fees under a contract need not plead or prove its entitlement to fees, but after judgment must file a noticed motion to determine the prevailing party and for the award of fees.

Central to the recovery of costs and/or attorney's fees is the determination of the prevailing party, which may have different meanings for the purposes of costs, attorney's fees in contract actions, attorney's fees specifically allowed by statute, and attorney's fees in other causes of action.

While a contract providing for the recovery of attorney's fees may seem clear on its face, the recoverability of costs and fees is influenced by a variety of factors beginning before the initial filing of a case and continuing until after a judgment is entered. Careful evaluation and reconsideration of these factors is warranted during the pre-filing investigation, during litigation, before and during any settlement discussions, and on later requests for costs or fees or opposition to these requests.

Warning:

Parties should be mindful of the factors distinguishing cost recoveries from fee recoveries. Courts allow parties to recover costs with relative ease, but more rarely permit the recovery of fees. This is due primarily to the need for parties to provide explicitly in the contract for the recovery of fees, as well as to the different standards applicable to the recovery of costs and to the recovery of fees when attempting to prove a party's status as the prevailing party, discussed in 12.25.

Detailed Discussion/Forms:

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 174, Attorney's Fees (Matthew Bender).

California Points and Authorities, Ch. 60, Costs (Matthew Bender).

Cross Reference:

For Tips on updating case law and expanding your research with additional resources, see How to Use Lexis.com With This Publication at the front of this volume.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees American Rule Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees Statutory Awards Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Costs General Overview Contracts Law Remedies General Overview

59 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 12 Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation
II. RECOVERING ATTORNEY'S FEES BY STATUTE OR CONTRACT

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 12.03

AUTHOR: James E. Wright II

12.03 CHECKLIST: Recovering Attorney's Fees by Statute or Contract.

☐ Are attorney's fees allowed by statute or contract?

☐ Does a contractual provision for attorney's fees cover cause(s) of action on which requesting party recovered?

Authority:

CCP §§ 1021, 1033.5; Santisas v. Goodin (1998) 17 C4th 599, 71 CR2d 830, 951 P2d 399

Discussion:

See 12.05[4]

Form:

See 12.29

☐ Does contract allow fees for particular party seeking recovery?

Authority:

Reynolds Metals Co. v. Alperson (1979) 25 C3d 124, 158 CR 1, 599 P2d 83

Discussion:

See 12.17

☐ Was a statute specifically allowing fees pleaded?

Authority:

CCP § 1033.5(a)(10)

Discussion:

See 12.05[2]

☐ Were notice and motion requirements for recovery of fees met?

☐ Was there a timely served and filed notice and motion for fees?

Authority:

CCP § 1033.5(c)(5)

Discussion:

See 12.12

☐ If fees are sought for a contract cause of action, did court, on notice and motion, determine identity of prevailing party?

Authority:

CC § 1717

Discussion:

See 12.27

☐ Are fees requested of a type whose recovery is permitted under statute?

Authority:

CCP § 1033.5(b); First Nationwide Bank v. Mountain Cascade, Inc. (2000) 77 CA4th 871, 878-879, 92 CR2d 145

Discussion:

See 12.05, 12.07, 12.11, 12.16, 12.17

☐ Did moving party submit evidence supporting its fee request under lodestar or other methods?

Authority:

Melnyk v. Robledo (1976) 64 CA3d 618, 623-624, 134 CR 602

Discussion:

See 12.13

☐ Did an offer of settlement greater than recovery shift fee burden?

Authority:

CCP § 998

Discussion:

See 12.14

- ☐ Is recovery sought on contract causes of action for which it is barred by settlement or voluntary dismissal?

Authority:

CC § 1717

Discussion:

See 12.06[2]

- ☐ Were any contractual conditions precedent to fee recovery under agreement fulfilled?

Authority:

Leamon v. Krajewicz (2003) 107 CA4th 424, 433, 132 CR2d 362

Discussion:

See 12.11

- ☐ Is recovery of fees barred because prevailing party litigated pro se?

Authority:

Trope v. Katz (1995) 11 C4th 274, 292, 45 CR2d 241, 902 P2d 259

Discussion:

See 12.16

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees General Overview Civil
 Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees American Rule Civil Procedure Remedies Costs &
 Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees Statutory Awards Contracts Law Contract Conditions & Provisions General
 Overview Contracts Law Remedies General Overview

60 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 12 Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation
II. RECOVERING ATTORNEY'S FEES BY STATUTE OR CONTRACT

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 12.04

AUTHOR: James E. Wright II

12.04 Attorney's Fees Generally Not Recoverable.

In the absence of either a provision in the parties' agreement for the allocation of attorney's fees to the prevailing party (or otherwise), or a statute dictating an award of fees, each party bears its own attorney's fees [Salgado v. County of Los Angeles (1998) 19 C4th 629, 651, 80 CR2d 46, 967 P2d 585].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of general rule regarding attorney's fees, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 174.50 et seq. (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees General Overview Civil
Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees American Rule Civil Procedure Remedies Costs &
Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees Statutory Awards Contracts Law Remedies General Overview

61 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 12 Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation
II. RECOVERING ATTORNEY'S FEES BY STATUTE OR CONTRACT

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 12.05

AUTHOR: James E. Wright II

12.05 Attorney's Fees Recoverable When Specifically Allowed by Contract or Statute.

12.05[1] Contract May Provide for Recovery. CCP § 1021 allows the recovery of fees when the contract provides for their recovery, in conjunction with the cost recovery mechanisms of CCP §§ 1032 and 1033.5. CCP § 1033.5(a)(10) provides that attorney's fees may be recovered as costs when an award of fees is provided by contract, law, or statute. The party seeking fees bears the burden of proof when the fees sought are not based on the court's established fee schedule [CCP § 1033.5(c)(5)].

Distinguish:

Provisions in public construction contracts requiring the contractor to indemnify and hold harmless the city from losses and expenses, including attorney fees, were standard indemnity clauses intended to apply only to expenses incurred in defending against third party tort claims, and not to claims on the contract itself [Carr Business Enterprises, Inc. v. City of Chowchilla (2008) 166 CA4th 14, 23, 82 CR3d 128] .

Cross Reference:

Discussion of fee schedule, see 12.13[1].

Search California Combined Federal and State Cases:

Use lexis.com to search for cases discussing whether a statute or contract allows for attorney's fees:

- Legal > States Legal--U.S. > California > Cases > CA Federal & State Cases, Combined

Sample Search: To find California federal and state cases that discuss whether a statute or contract allows for attorney's fees, try: statut! OR law OR code OR contract! /10 prevail! /10 attorney fees OR costs.

12.05[2] Attorney's Fees Are Recoverable on Some Categories of Contracts by Statute. "Literally hundreds" of statutes provide for or govern the recovery of attorney's fees in contracts or actions of particular types and subject areas [Damian v. Tamondong (1998) 65 CA4th 1115, 1125, n11, 77 CR2d 262]. Just a few of these provisions include:

- Actions under the Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Financing Act [CC § 2983.4].
- Actions under the Vehicle Leasing Act [CC § 2988.9].
- Actions for nonpayment of wages or benefits [Lab Code § 218.5].
- Actions on contract for book accounts [CC § 1717.5].
- Actions against unlicensed persons acting in licensed professions [CCP § 1029.8(a)].
- Actions on retail installment sales contracts [CC § 1801 et seq., and in particular, CC § 1811.1].
- Actions brought by independent sales representatives under the Independent Wholesale Sales Representatives Contractual Relations Act of 1990 [CC § 1738.10 et seq.].
- Actions under the Consumer Legal Remedies Act [CC § 1750 et seq.].
- Actions under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act (also known as the California "Lemon Law") [CC § 1790 et seq.].

CCP § 1033.5(a)(10)(B) provides for the recovery of fees awarded by statute, and CCP § 1033.5(c)(5) provides for the award of statutory fees on application supported by affidavit made concurrently with a claim for other costs.

12.05[3] Contingency Representation Does Not Bar Recovery of Fees. Representation by counsel on a contingency basis does not bar recovery of attorney's fees [Gonzales v. Personal Storage, Inc. (1997) 56 CA4th 464, 478-480, 65 CR2d 473].

Judge's Perspective:

The "reasonable fees" to which a party is entitled under a contract [see CC § 1717] is not always the same as the amount owed under the contingency fee agreement between the successful party and the attorney; that agreement is merely one factor to be considered [Vella v. Hudgins (1984) 151 CA3d 515, 520, 198 CR 725 ; see 12.13[1]]. The prevailing party therefore should be prepared to demonstrate that the fee was reasonable given the difficulty of the case, the quality of the legal work performed, and the other factors that a court might consider for any other fee [see 12.12[5]]. Otherwise, the prevailing party might be left to pay the difference between the court's "reasonable fee" and the amount of the contingency fee actually due.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of determining reasonableness of fee award, see 12.13.

12.05[4] Recovery Under Statute or Contract May Include Fees Incurred In Related Noncontract Causes of Action.

12.05[4][a] Attorneys' Fees Under CC § 1717 Are Apportioned Between Contract and Noncontract Claims Unless Incurred for Representation on Issue Common to Both. When a party prevails on a cause of action for breach of contract as well as other causes of action not on the contract, ordinarily the prevailing party may recover attorney's fees under CC § 1717 only as they relate to the contract cause of action [Reynolds Metals Co. v. Alperson (1979) 25 C3d 124, 129, 158 CR 1, 599 P2d 83]. A party who prevails on a contract cause of action is entitled to recover attorney's fees under CC § 1717, regardless of whether the party recovers damages or only specific performance [Baugh v. Garl (2006) 137 CA4th 737, 742, 40 CR3d 539 ; see Kachlon v. Markowitz (2008) 168 CA4th 316, 347, 85 CR3d 532 (claims arising out of promissory note and deed of trust were contract claims even though remedies sought were equitable)].

Exception:

However, attorney's fees need not be apportioned when incurred for representation on an issue common to both the contract cause of action and another cause of action for which fees are not recoverable [Reynolds Metals Co. v. Alperson (1979) 25 C3d 124, 129-130, 158 CR 1, 599 P2d 83].

Apportionment of a fee award between fees incurred on a contract cause of action and those incurred on other causes of action is within the trial court's discretion [El Escorial Owners' Assn. v. DLC Plastering, Inc. (2007) 154 CA4th 1337, 1365, 65 CR3d 524 (court apportioned fees because tort and toxic mold issues were severable from contractual indemnity issues)].

Judge's Perspective:

When a party prevails on both contract theories and non-contract theories, the attorney's fees must be apportioned between the theories of relief. Lawyers involved in cases containing both contractual and non-contractual claims should be accounting for their time accordingly. Note, however, that this requirement will be excused if "the claims for relief are so intertwined that it would be impracticable" to separate the attorney's time between the compensable and non-compensable claims [Bell v. Vista Unified Sch. Dist. (2000) 82 CA4th 672, 687, 98 CR2d 263]. When a case goes to the jury on both contract and noncontract theories of relief without election, and the measure of damages is the same, the prevailing plaintiff may elect the contract theory after a successful verdict in order to recover attorney's fees [Fairchild v. Park (2001) 90 CA4th 919, 926-927, 109 CR2d 442].

Examples:

- In construction defect litigation, court acted within its discretion by awarding attorney's fees incurred in litigating issues common to contractual and non-contractual claims; further, the tort issues were determinative of the contractual claims [Erickson v. R.E.M. Concepts, Inc. (2005) 126 CA4th 1073, 1086, 28 CR3d 39].

- In a case alleging misuse of trade secrets, fraud, and breach of several contracts, only one of which contained an attorney's fees clause, trial court was not required to apportion fees because claims involved issues so interrelated that it would have been impossible to separate them [Yield Dynamics, Inc. v. TEA Systems Corp. (2007) 154 CA4th 547, 580, 66 CR3d 1].

- Because plaintiffs' tort theories and defendant's contract based cross-complaint were interrelated and required presentation of virtually identical evidence, the trial court properly could conclude a 10 percent reduction in the total amount of attorney fees was adequate to reduce the fee award to that amount attributable to the defense of the contract claim [PM Group, Inc. v. Stewart (2007) 154 CA4th 55, 68-69, 64 CR3d 227].

- In an action arising out of a corporate merger brought by the former president of the acquired corporation, the court awarded the defendants fees under the plaintiff's employment contract, which included an attorney's fees clause, for defense of the plaintiff's breach of contract cause of action. The court of appeal agreed with the trial court that the allegations in seven tort causes of action overlapped the contract allegations to such an extent that allocation was not required [Amtower v. Photon Dynamics, Inc. (2008) 158 CA4th 1582, 1604-1605, 71 CR3d 361] .

- Plaintiffs who purchased a parcel of land from defendants sued claiming defendants falsely misrepresented to plaintiffs that the land could be subdivided. Before proceeding to trial, plaintiffs voluntarily dismissed their contract causes of action, opting instead to try only their fraud claim. After the jury returned a verdict in defendants' favor, the trial court refused to grant defendants' request for attorney's fees because it believed attorney fees were not recoverable in a tort action for fraud, even if the fraud arose out of the contract. The appellate court reversed, holding that defendants were entitled to recover fees under CCP § 1021. The court explained that although the dismissal of the contract action prevented defendants' recovery of fees under CC § 1717, the language in the contract permitting the prevailing party to recover attorney fees "in any action or proceeding arising out of [the] agreement" allowed defendants to recover fees even if plaintiffs' claim was based on tort rather than contract because plaintiffs' fraud claim arose out of the parties' agreement [Lerner v. Ward (1993) 13 CA4th 155, 160, 16 CR2d 486].

Cross References:

Discussion of fee recoveries under CC § 1717, see 12.06.

Discussion of procedures for recovering fees under CCP § 1033.5(a)(10)(A), see 12.12.

12.05[4][b] Cause of Action Based on Breach of a Promise Is Contractual for Purposes of CC § 1717. In some cases, a party who prevails on a cause of action other than a strict breach of contract claim still may recover attorney's fees under a contract provision pursuant to CC § 1717 if that claim is based on contract. Whether a claim is based on contract or tort depends on the nature of the right sued upon, not the form of the pleading or relief demanded. A claim based on breach of a promise is contractual; a claim based on breach of a noncontractual duty is a tort [Kangarlou v. Progressive Title Co., Inc. (2005) 128 CA4th 1174, 1178, 27 CR3d 754].

Examples:

- A landlord's breach of the implied warranty of habitability can warrant an award of fees under CC § 1717 based on a fee provision in the rental agreement [Fairchild v. Park (2001) 90 CA4th 919, 924-925, 109 CR2d 442].

- Plaintiff who prevailed on a breach of fiduciary duty claim against an escrow agent could recover attorney's fees under CC § 1717 because the escrow agent assumed fiduciary duties to the plaintiff only by entering the contract to execute the escrow; thus the fiduciary duties arose out of the contract [Kangarlou v. Progressive Title Co., Inc. (2005) 128 CA4th 1174, 1179, 27 CR3d 754].

Cross References:

Discussion of fee recoveries under CC § 1717, see 12.06.

Discussion of fee recovery for non-contract causes of action, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 174.50 et seq. (Matthew Bender).

Implied warranties in general, see Ch. 24, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Warranty, 24.07.

12.05[4][c] Scope of Particular Contractual Fee Provision May Be Broad Enough to Apply to Related Cause of Action. A contract provision for attorney's fees may be phrased broadly enough to cover causes of action in tort and other non-contractual claims between the parties related to the contract [Exxess Electronixx v. Heger Realty Corp. (1998) 64 CA4th 698, 708, 75 CR2d 376 ; Santisas v. Goodin (1998) 17 C4th 599, 608, 71 CR2d 830, 951 P2d 399]. Because these claims are not contract causes of action, recovery of fees is not governed by CC § 1717, but fees may be awarded under CCP § 1033.5(a)(10)(A) (providing for an award of fees to the prevailing party when authorized by contract). The restrictions found in CC § 1717, therefore, do not apply [see Lerner v. Ward (1993) 13 CA4th 155, 160-161, 16 CR2d 486 (although prevailing plaintiffs could not recover attorney's fees on dismissed contract cause of action under CC § 1717, they nonetheless could recover fees on tort action arising out of contract pursuant to CCP § 1021 and CCP § 1033(a)(10)(A))].

Strategic Point--Prevailing Party:

All attorney's fees provisions are not the same! Although it is standard practice to include an attorney's fees provision in contracts, the wording of such provisions varies. A prevailing party should always examine the language of the underlying attorney's fees provision carefully to ascertain whether or not that language might be broad enough to encompass fees incurred in connection with related claims.

Examples--Fee Provision Covers Tort Claims:

- An attorney's fees clause in a real estate purchase agreement providing for recovery of fees by the prevailing party in "any action, proceeding, or arbitration between Buyer and Seller arising out of this Agreement" was broad enough to cover fraud and negligent misrepresentation claims brought by the buyer against the seller [Johnson v. Siegel (2000) 84 CA4th 1087, 1101, 101 CR2d 412 ; see Wakefield v. Bohlin (2006) 145 CA4th 963, 987-989, 52 CR3d 400] .
- An attorney's fees clause in a real estate purchase agreement providing for recovery of fees by the prevailing party in any "lawsuit or other legal proceeding" to which "this Agreement gives rise" was broad enough to cover claims for negligence, breach of fiduciary duty, concealment and misrepresentation brought by buyers against their real estate agent [Xuereb v. Marcus & Millichap, Inc. (1992) 3 CA4th 1338, 1344-1345 , disapproved on other grounds, as stated in Damian v. Tamondong (1998) 65 CA4th 1115, 1127].
- An attorney's fees clause in a lease providing for the award of fees to the prevailing party "[i]n any legal action brought by either party to enforce the terms hereof or relating to the demised premises" was broad enough to cover claims for negligence, failure to disclose a latent defect, and breach of an implied warranty of habitability brought by the lessee's property insurer against the lessor [Allstate Ins. Co. v. Loo (1996) 46 CA4th 1794, 1799, 54 CR2d 541].
- An attorney's fees clause in a lease providing for recovery of fees by the prevailing party in any civil action "instituted in connection with this Agreement" was broad enough to cover claims for forcible detainer, wrongful eviction, and negligent infliction of emotional distress, in addition to breach of the lease agreement [Cruz v. Ayromloo (2007) 155 CA4th 1270, 1277, 66 CR3d 725] .
- A fee provision in a lease providing for attorney's fees to the prevailing party in "any legal action or proceeding brought by either party to this agreement" was exceptionally broad and encompassed an award of fees to the prevailing party in a tort action brought by tenants against their landlord [Chinn v.

KMR Property Management (2008) 166 CA4th 175, 183, 82 CR3d 586 .

Examples--Fee Provision Does Not Cover Tort Claims:

- A fee provision in a lease providing for recovery of fees by the prevailing party in any "action or proceeding to enforce the terms" of the lease or to "declare rights" under the lease did not extend to claims for constructive fraud and breach of fiduciary duty [Exxess Electronixx v. Heger Realty Corp. (1998) 64 CA4th 698, 709-713, 75 CR2d 376].

- A provision providing for recovery of fees by the prevailing party in "any action or proceeding brought to construe or enforce the terms of this Subcontract" did not cover claims for negligence in a construction defect case [El Escorial Owners' Assn. v. DLC Plastering, Inc. (2007) 154 CA4th 1337, 1365, 65 CR3d 524] .

- A provision that provided for recovery of fees "incurred in enforcing or attempting to enforce any of the terms, covenants or conditions" of an employment agreement did not support recovery of fees incurred in the prosecution of an employee's tort claims against his former employer [Casella v. SouthWest Dealer Services, Inc. (2007) 157 CA4th 1127, 1162, 69 CR3d 445] .

Example--Fee Provision May Cover Fees Incurred In Related Bankruptcy Action:

In a landlord-tenant dispute, the landlord successfully moved to dismiss the tenant's bankruptcy case and then filed an action in state court for breach of lease and other claims, and attorney's fees incurred in obtaining the dismissal of the bankruptcy case. The Court of Appeal held that the trial court erred in striking the claim for attorney's fees because the court was required to consider extrinsic evidence allegedly showing that the attorney's fees clause in the lease was broad enough to encompass bankruptcy proceedings [Circle Star Center Associates, L.P. v. Liberate Technologies (2007) 147 CA4th 1203, 1211, 55 CR3d 232] .

Cross References:

Discussion of fee recoveries under CC § 1717, see 12.06.

Recovery of expert witness fees as damages, see 12.19[4].

12.05[5] Attorney's Time Need Not Be Allocated Between Parties Entitled and Not Entitled to Fees If It Cannot Be Separated Into Compensable and Noncompensable Units. Allocation of fees incurred in representing multiple parties, some of whom are entitled to contractual attorney's fees and others who are not, is not required when the liability of the parties is so factually interrelated that it would be impossible to separate the attorney's activities into compensable and noncompensable time units [Cruz v. Ayromloo (2007) 155 CA4th 1270, 1277, 66 CR3d 725 ; Liton Gen. Eng'g Contractor v. United Pac. Ins. (1993) 16 CA4th 577, 588, 20 CR2d 200] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees American Rule Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees Statutory Awards Contracts Law Contract Conditions & Provisions General Overview Contracts Law Remedies General Overview Governments Legislation Statutory Remedies & Rights

62 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 12 Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation
 II. RECOVERING ATTORNEY'S FEES BY STATUTE OR CONTRACT

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 12.06

AUTHOR: James E. Wright II12.06 CC § 1717 Controls Scope of Contractual Provisions Governing Attorney's Fees.

12.06[1] Contract May Not Award Fees Unilaterally. In the litigation of any contract that awards fees to one party, or to the prevailing party, CC § 1717 entitles the prevailing party, as defined and determined by the court under that section, to reasonable attorney's fees in addition to other costs. One-sided attorney's fee provisions, therefore, are turned into bilateral fee provisions by force of law [Kachlon v. Markowitz (2008) 168 CA4th 316, 347, 85 CR3d 532 (unilateral attorney's fees provisions in favor of lender in promissory note and deed of trust made reciprocal by CC § 1717)]. CC § 1717(a) voids any provision in a contract that waives attorney's fees, and CC § 1717(b)(1) provides that the court will decide the prevailing party for the purpose of attorney's fees on notice and motion.

Example:

Under reciprocity principles of CC § 1717, an indemnity agreement requiring subcontractors to indemnify a builder against claims arising out of the performance of subcontracts provided the basis for prevailing subcontractors to recover attorney's fees incurred in defending the builder's action to enforce the indemnity agreement [Baldwin Builders v. Coast Plastering Corp. (2005) 125 CA4th 1339, 1343-1346, 24 CR3d 9].

Courts have applied CC § 1717 broadly to include deeds of trust and other instruments [see, e.g., Mackinder v. OSCA Dev. Co. (1984) 151 CA3d 728, 739, 198 CR 864 ("regardless of the form of the instrument, whether by contract, deed, or binding equitable servitude, an instrument containing a provision for the recovery of attorney fees in the event of litigation is governed by the reciprocity provisions" of CC § 1717)].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of the prevailing party under CC § 1717, see 12.24[2].

Consider:

The inclusion of attorney's fee clauses in contracts may not be desirable in some areas of consumer law due to the reciprocity provisions of CC § 1717. Some consumer laws, for example, containing non-waivable implied warranties (such as those in landlord-tenant law) may favor the non-drafting party to the contract, in which case the plaintiff may net a small award, only to have it greatly compounded by fees that eventually exceed the total amount of the award.

12.06[2] Contract Provision May Not Allow Award of Fees When Action Is Voluntarily Dismissed or Settled. CC § 1717(b)(2) prohibits recovery of attorney's fees when an action has been voluntarily dismissed or settled (other than when fees are expressly included in the settlement). CC § 1717(b)(2) contains no temporal limitation [Marina Glencoe, L.P. v. Neue Sentimental Film AG (2008) 168 CA4th 874, 876, 85 CR3d 800 (defendant is not entitled to attorney fees as the prevailing party when plaintiff dismisses action with prejudice after the start of trial)]. This provision has the effect of "overriding or nullifying conflicting contractual provisions, such as provisions expressly allowing recovery of attorney fees in the event of voluntary dismissal or defining 'prevailing party' as including parties in whose favor a dismissal has been entered" [Santisas v. Goodin (1998) 17 C4th 599, 617, 71 CR2d 830, 951 P2d 399 ; see Ford Motor Credit Co. v. Hunsberger (2008) 163 CA4th 1526, 1532, 78 CR3d 661 (CC § 1717(b)(2) prevents recovery of fees by defendant when plaintiff voluntarily dismisses its only cause of action against that defendant)]. Thus, a contractual provision that provides for recovery of attorney's fees on settlement is void insofar as it awards fees for causes of action based on the contract.

A party, however, may still recover attorney's fees under the contractual provision on related causes of action not based on the contract. For example, when the agreement allows recovery of fees for both tort and contract claims, and settlement bars recovery for the contract fees under CC § 1717(b)(2), a party may still recover attorney's fees incurred in litigating the tort or other non-contract claims [Santisas v. Goodin (1998) 17 C4th 599, 621, 71 CR2d 830, 951 P2d 399 ; Gogri v. Jack in the Box Inc. (2008) 166 CA4th 255, 274, 82 CR3d 629] .

Exception:

CC § 1717(b)(2) will not bar the recovery of attorney's fees in a contract case when recovery of fees is authorized by a fee-shifting statute [Kim v. Euromotors West/The Auto Gallery (2007) 149 CA4th 170, 178, 56 CR3d 780] . Furthermore, despite the ruling in Santisas, courts apparently still construe CC § 1717 to allow parties broad latitude in making attorney's fee arrangements. For example, the court in Jackson v. Homeowners Assn. Monte Vista Estates-East (2001) 93 CA4th 773, 779, 113 CR2d 363 explained that CC § 1717 "cannot be said to supersede or limit the broad right of parties pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 1021 to make attorney fees agreements."

➡ Cross Reference:

Forms and discussion addressing dismissal and prevailing party requirement under CC § 1717, see California Points and Authorities, §§ 60.461-60.464, 60.466 (Matthew Bender).

12.06[3] Contractual Provision for Fees Generally Applies to Entire Agreement. Awards of attorney's fees may be limited to specific sections of a contract only if each party was represented by counsel in the negotiation and execution of the contract, and the fact of this representation is clearly stated in the agreement [CC § 1717(a)]. Thus, common consumer agreements in which one party is not represented by counsel cannot limit awards of attorney's fees to breach under particular sections.

Example:

An attorney's fees provision in escrow instructions giving the escrow company the right to recover fees if the buyer failed to pay escrow costs provided the basis under CC § 1717 for the buyer to recover fees from the escrow company for its breach of fiduciary duties to the buyer [Kangarlou v. Progressive Title Co., Inc. (2005) 128 CA4th 1174, 1178, 27 CR3d 754] .

Distinguish:

A similar attorney's fees provision in escrow instructions did not indicate the parties' intent for recovery of fees in a dispute between the buyer and seller that had nothing to do with the performance of escrow services [Paul v. Schoellkopf (2005) 128 CA4th 147, 153-154, 26 CR3d 766] .

 Cross References:

Discussion of scope expansion under CC § 1717, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 174.50 et seq. (Matthew Bender).

Forms and discussion addressing scope of attorney's fee provisions under CC § 1717, see California Points and Authorities, §§ 60.441 -60.442 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees Statutory Awards Contracts Law Contract
Conditions & Provisions General Overview Contracts Law Remedies General Overview Governments Legislation Statutory Remedies & Rights

63 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 12 Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation
II. RECOVERING ATTORNEY'S FEES BY STATUTE OR CONTRACT

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 12.07

AUTHOR: James E. Wright II

12.07 Contract May Specifically Address What Fees Are Allowable.

When a contract provides that the prevailing party may recover expert witness fees, those fees may not be recovered as an element of attorney's fees or costs, but may be recovered as damages if specially pled and proven at trial [Carwash of America-PO, LLC v. Windswept Ventures, No. 1, LLC (2002) 97 CA4th 540, 544, 118 CR2d 536].

Warning:

Bussey v. Affleck (1990) 225 CA3d 1162, 275 CR 646 , decided by Division Four of the First District, took a contrary view, holding that litigation costs such as expert witness fees could be awarded as an element of attorney fees because they represented expenses ordinarily billed to a client and not included in the overhead component of counsel's hourly rate. Bussey was criticized in subsequent decisions [see Carwash of America-PO v. Windswept Ventures No. 1 (2002) 97 CA4th 540, 544, 118 CR2d 536 ; Ripley v. Pappadopoulos (1994) 23 CA4th 1616, 1627, 28 CR2d 878] and disavowed by Division Four of the First District in Hsu v. Semiconductor Systems, Inc. (2005) 126 CA4th 1330, 1342, 25 CR3d 82 .

Cross Reference:

Recovery of expert witness fees as damages, see 12.19[4].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees Reasonable Fees Contracts Law Contract Conditions & Provisions General Overview Contracts Law Remedies General Overview

64 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 12 Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation
II. RECOVERING ATTORNEY'S FEES BY STATUTE OR CONTRACT

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 12.08

AUTHOR: James E. Wright II

12.08 Provisions for Attorney's Fees Appearing in One Document May Apply to Other Documents If Part of Same Agreement.

Multiple instruments that are a part of the same agreement are to be construed together [CC § 1642; BMP Prop. Dev. v. Melvin (1988) 198 CA3d 526, 531, 243 CR 715]. When a fee provision covering the entire contract is found in one instrument, courts construe it to cover all of the other documents of the agreement as well [Ganey v. Doran (1987) 191 CA3d 901, 912, 236 CR 787 (fees provision from one contract could apply to others that form part of the same agreement under CC § 1642, and these fees need not be pleaded and proved when allowed as costs under CC § 1717 and CCP § 1033.5)].

However, if the different contracts are not between the same parties and do not constitute one transaction, a fee provision in one contract will not extend to the other contract.

Examples:

- In a dispute between real estate investors, a plaintiff who asserted claims on a memorandum of understanding, which did not contain a fee provision, could not recover fees based on fee provisions in two other agreements because those agreements were peripheral to the memorandum of understanding and were not part of an integrated agreement [Pellegrini v. Weiss (2008) 165 CA4th 515, 535, 81 CR3d 387] .
- In a breach of contract action based on an affiliate agreement brought by the former president of an acquired corporation, the defendants were not entitled to recover fees based on a fee provision in a separate merger agreement, which the affiliate agreement mentioned but did not expressly incorporate by reference, and to which the plaintiff was not a party [Amtower v. Photon Dynamics, Inc. (2008) 158 CA4th 1582, 1605-1610, 71 CR3d 361] .
- In a construction defect action, the purchaser of a shopping center who asserted claims on a contractor's warranty assigned to the purchaser by the developer, which did not contain a fee provision, could not recover fees based on a fee provision in the construction contract between the contractor and the developer, which was not assigned to the purchaser of the property. There was no action on the construction contract, and none of its terms was necessarily interpreted [Vons Cos., Inc. v. Lyle Parks Jr., Inc. (2009) 177 CA4th 823, 835, 99 CR3d 562] .

Cross Reference:

Discussion of broadening of fee provisions when one party is not represented by counsel, see 12.06[3].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees General Overview Contracts Law Contract Conditions & Provisions General Overview Contracts Law Remedies General Overview

65 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 12 Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation
II. RECOVERING ATTORNEY'S FEES BY STATUTE OR CONTRACT

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 12.09

AUTHOR: James E. Wright II

12.09 Actions for Rescission or Reformation Are Actions on Contract Under CC § 1717.

Courts have upheld attorney's fee awards in claims for rescission [Neptune Soc'y Corp. v. Longanecker (1987) 194 CA3d 1233, 1249-1251, 240 CR 117] and reformation [Wong v. Davidian (1988) 206 CA3d 264, 270-271, 253 CR 675] under CC § 1717 when the contracts contained attorney's fee provisions.

Cross References:

Discussion of fees under rescinded and reformed agreements, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 174.50 et seq. (Matthew Bender).

Forms and discussion addressing recovery under attorney's fee provisions when contract is rescinded, canceled, or unenforceable, see California Points and Authorities, §§ 60.447 -60.449 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees Statutory Awards Contracts
Law Remedies General Overview Contracts Law Remedies Reformation Contracts Law Remedies Rescission &
Redhibition General Overview

66 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 12 Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation
II. RECOVERING ATTORNEY'S FEES BY STATUTE OR CONTRACT

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 12.10

AUTHOR: James E. Wright II

12.10 Finding That No Contract Exists Does Not Prevent Fee Recovery.

A party is entitled to attorney fees under CC § 1717 even if the party prevails on grounds that the contract is inapplicable, invalid, unenforceable, or nonexistent, if the other party would have been entitled to attorney's fees had that party prevailed [Hsu v. Abbata (1995) 9 C4th 863, 870, 39 CR2d 824, 891 P2d 804 ; PM Group, Inc. v. Stewart (2007) 154 CA4th 55, 68, 64 CR3d 227 .

Example:

A prevailing defendant sued for breach of a contract containing an attorney's fees provision was entitled to recover its own attorney's fees and costs, even though the trial court found that no contract existed [Cano v. Glover (2006) 143 CA4th 326, 331, 48 CR3d 871] .

Distinguish:

Attorney's fees are not recoverable under CC § 1717 when the contract providing for such fees has been excluded as inadmissible under Evid Code § 1115 et seq. because it was prepared in the course of a mediation [Rael v. Davis (2008) 166 CA4th 1608, 1622, 83 CR3d 745] .

Distinguish:

A prevailing party cannot obtain attorney's fees under CC § 1717 if the contract it relied on did not contain an attorney's fee provision, notwithstanding that the losing party defended the matter by relying on a different contract that did contain an attorney's fee provision [Brittalia Ventures v. Stuke Nursery Co., Inc. (2007) 153 CA4th 17, 20, 62 CR3d 467] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees Statutory Awards Contracts Law Remedies General Overview

67 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 12 Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation
II. RECOVERING ATTORNEY'S FEES BY STATUTE OR CONTRACT

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 12.11

AUTHOR: James E. Wright II

12.11 Condition Precedent of Initiating Mediation Before Litigation Is Valid.

Courts have upheld contracts providing that as a condition precedent to recovering attorney's fees, a party must first attempt to resolve the dispute through mediation before commencing litigation.

Examples:

- A plaintiff who prevailed in a quiet title action by establishing that a real estate contract was invalid was prevented from recovering attorney's fees under the contract because she failed to mediate the dispute as required by the contract [Leamon v. Krajciwicz (2003) 107 CA4th 424, 433].

- An arbitrator found that plaintiffs who filed suit before mediation nonetheless were entitled to recover attorney's fees because they filed suit only to preserve their legal rights against a looming statute of limitations and did not intend to pursue the suit [Kahn v. Chetcuti (2002) 101 CA4th 61, 67].

Distinguish:

Prevailing defendants did not lose their right to recover contractual attorney's fees as a result of a plaintiff's failure to pursue mediation before filing suit; the condition precedent applied only to the party who initiated the action [Johnson v. Siegel (2000) 84 CA4th 1087, 1100-1101 ; see Van Slyke v. Gibson (2007) 146 CA4th 1296, 1299, 53 CR3d 491 (defendant is not required to seek mediation as a condition precedent to recovery of attorney's fees for defense of plaintiff's claims)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMediationsCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesGeneral OverviewContracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsConditions Precedent

68 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 12 Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation
II. RECOVERING ATTORNEY'S FEES BY STATUTE OR CONTRACT

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 12.12

AUTHOR: James E. Wright II

12.12 Procedural Requirements Governing Recovery of Attorney's Fees.

12.12[1] Attorney's Fees Allowed by Contract Under CCP § 1033.5 Need Not Be Specifically Pleaded or Proven at Trial. The recovery of attorney's fees as costs under CCP § 1033.5 does not require the party to plead specifically the attorney's fee provision in the agreement or the amount of fees incurred. Rather, it is sufficient that all of the contract documents in question are attached to the complaint [Ganey v. Doran (1987) 191 CA3d 901, 911-912, 236 CR 787]. Courts have even held that a prayer for fees, while customary, is unnecessary for recovery as long as the attorney's fee provision is in the contract submitted with the pleadings [Martin v. Pacific Southwest Royalties, Inc. (1940) 41 CA2d 161, 172, 106 P2d 443 ; North Associates v. Bell (1986) 184 CA3d 860, 866 n2, 229 CR 305].

Distinguish:

When the fees sought are not allowed as costs under CCP § 1033.5, a party's entitlement to them as an item of damages must be separately and specifically pleaded and proven at trial to the trier of fact [First Nationwide Bank v. Mountain Cascade, Inc. (2000) 77 CA4th 871, 877, 92 CR2d 145 ; Carwash of America-PO v. Windswept Ventures No. 1 (2002) 97 CA4th 540, 544].

12.12[2] Noticed Motion Required for Award of Fees by Contract As Costs Pursuant to CCP § 1033.5. A party seeking the award of fees as costs pursuant to a provision in a contract under CCP § 1033.5 first must file a noticed motion with the court, except in the case of a default judgment (or unless authorized by a stipulation of the parties) [CCP § 1033.5(c)(5)]. Under CCP § 1033.5, a party also must file a noticed motion for the award of fees as costs to the prevailing party under CC § 1717 (which also independently requires a noticed motion to determine the prevailing party) [CCP § 1033.5(c)(5); CC § 1717].

Judge's Perspective:

Although CCP § 1033.5 clearly states that a motion is required, the courts have shown "substantial latitude in allowing fees to be awarded without strict compliance with statutory temporal and procedural limitations" when a party is entitled to such fees as a matter of contract or statute [Gunlock Corp. v. Walk On Water, Inc. (1993) 15 CA4th 1301, 1305, 19 CR2d 197]. The Gunlock case discusses the many appellate courts that have awarded fees to the prevailing party, even in the absence of a noticed motion or other statutory noncompliance. The better practice, of course, is to comply with all applicable statutes and Rules of Court. A party, however, opposes a request for attorney's fees based solely on statutory noncompliance at its peril. With respect to the time limits for filing such a motion, see 12.12[4].

Cross Reference:

Form, see 12.29.

12.12[3] Noticed Motion Not Required for Award of Fees by Statute Pursuant to CCP § 1033.5. When the award of fees is made pursuant to a statutory fee allocation, however, CCP § 1033.5 does not require a noticed motion. Thus, if the statute awarding fees does not require a noticed motion to determine the prevailing party, recovery is allowed either by an affidavit supporting the award submitted along with the memorandum of costs, or at the time a statement of decision is rendered by the court [CCP § 1033.5(c)(5)].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

It is important to determine if the contract being litigated is covered by a statutory provision specifically awarding attorney's fees. This may eliminate the requirement for a noticed motion in order to claim a fee award under CCP § 1033.5(c)(5) and also potentially avoid a loss of attorney's fees due to voluntary dismissal.

12.12[4] California Rules of Court Dictate Timing and Procedural Requirements for Recovery of Attorney's Fees. The notice and motion for recovery of attorney's fees generally must be filed and served within the time set for filing a notice of appeal for any case in which the amount of or entitlement to fees requires a court determination [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1702]. This time limit applies whether or not the order or judgment actually is appealable [Sanabria v. Embrey (2001) 92 CA4th 422, 425-426, 111 CR2d 837].

Judge's Perspective:

The Sanabria case reversed a trial court that had awarded attorneys' fees and costs in violation of the time limits set forth in Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1702 [Sanabria v. Embrey (2001) 92 CA4th 422, 425-426, 111 CR2d 837]. A few years earlier, however, the Court of Appeal in Gunlock Corp. v. Walk On Water, Inc. (1993) 15 CA4th 1301, 1304, 19 CR2d 197 , ruled that the time limits of Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1702 are not jurisdictional. The conflict between these authorities (and the authority cited by the Gunlock court) has not been resolved.

Strategic Points--Both Parties:

Courts generally will entertain omnibus motions seeking to determine both the identity of the prevailing party as well as the reasonableness of attorney's fees, and parties need not necessarily file separate motions for each inquiry. Note, however, that tactical advantages may exist warranting the filing of separate motions. Filing a separate motion first to establish oneself as the prevailing party may actually lead one's opponent to settle the case, thus avoiding the time and expense involved in proving the reasonableness of fees [see 12.23].

Cross References:

Form, see 12.29.

Discussion of recovery of fees as costs under Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1702, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 174.50 et seq. (Matthew Bender).

Form and discussion addressing failure to file timely noticed motion, see California Points and Authorities, § 60.465 (Matthew Bender).

Cross References:

Discussion of fee calculation, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 174.50 et seq. (Matthew Bender).

Form and discussion addressing requirement for evidence to support fees award, see California Points and Authorities, § 60.551 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees Reasonable Fees Civil

Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees Statutory Awards Contracts Law Remedies General Overview

69 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 12 Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation
II. RECOVERING ATTORNEY'S FEES BY STATUTE OR CONTRACT

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 12.13

AUTHOR: James E. Wright II

12.13 Court Has Broad Discretion in Determining Reasonableness of Fee Awards.

12.13[1] Moving Party Bears Burden of Proof for Fees Not Fixed by Formula. As a general rule, the determination of what constitutes reasonable attorney's fees is committed to the discretion of the trial court [PLCM Group, Inc. v. Drexler (2000) 22 C4th 1084, 1095-1096, 95 CR2d 198, 997 P2d 511 ; Cruz v. Ayromloo (2007) 155 CA4th 1270, 1275-1276, 66 CR3d 725 (no abuse of discretion when trial court permissibly departed from Los Angeles Superior Court guidelines and based its fee award on lodestar method)].

Local court rules may provide guidelines for determining the amount of an award of attorney's fees under CC § 1717. For example, Los Angeles Sup Ct Rule 3.2 provides that its fee guidelines apply when a contract provides for reasonable attorney's fees unless otherwise determined by the court. However, judges are free to depart from its provisions whenever the interests of justice require it [Los Angeles Sup Ct Rule 3.2(a)]. To the extent a local rule conflicts with the state statute (CC § 1717(a), which provides that a reasonable attorney's fee will be fixed by the court), the rule is invalid [see Cruz v. Ayromloo (2007) 155 CA4th 1270, 1275, 66 CR3d 725 ; see also Contractors Labor Pool, Inc. v. Westway Contractors, Inc. (1997) 53 CA4th 152, 169, 61 CR2d 715] .

A party seeking to recover attorney's fees bears the burden of proof for fees that are not fixed by the court's established schedule [CCP § 1033.5(c)(5); see El Escorial Owners' Assn. v. DLC Plastering, Inc. (2007) 154 CA4th 1337, 1366, 65 CR3d 524 (party failed to prove all the fees it sought were reasonable and necessary)]. If the party seeking fees wishes to collect more than the scheduled amount under CCP § 1033.5(a)(10)(A) and CC § 1717, it may do so by presenting evidence supporting a greater award by using, for example, the lodestar method of fee calculation [see, e.g., Sternwest Corp. v. Ash (1986) 183 CA3d 74, 76, 227 CR 804 (approving lodestar award under prior version of CC § 1717)].

Cross Reference:

Superior Court fee schedules, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 174.50 et seq. (Matthew Bender).

12.13[2] Factors Considered in Determining Reasonable Compensation. Among the many factors courts examine when determining the reasonableness of fee awards are [Melnyk v. Robledo (1976) 64 CA3d 618, 623-624, 134 CR 602 ; see Contractors Labor Pool, Inc. v. Westway Contractors, Inc. (1997) 53 CA4th 152, 168, 61 CR2d 715]:

- The nature and difficulty of the litigation.
- The amount involved in the litigation.
- The skill and abilities required in handling the litigation.
- The skill employed in handling the litigation.
- The attorney's attention given and labor expended in the litigation.
- The success or failure of the attorney's efforts in trying the cause.
- The attorney's learning, age, and experience in the particular type of work demanded by the litigation.
- The intricacies and importance of the litigation.
- The attorney's time consumed by the litigation.

The trial court has discretion to reduce the lodestar amount according to equitable considerations [EnPalm, LLC v. Teitler (2008) 162 CA4th 770, 774-775, 75 CR3d 902 (reducing fee award by 90 percent because prevailing party engaged in conduct that made much of the litigation unnecessary; as a result, most of the lodestar figure represented attorney fees that were unreasonable)].

The fact that a fee award is higher than the overall damages awarded to the plaintiffs does not indicate that the fee is unreasonable or an abuse of the court's discretion [Cruz v. Ayromloo (2007) 155 CA4th 1270, 1276, 66 CR3d 725 ; see Peak-Las Positas Partners v. Bollag (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 101, 113-114, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 775 (defendant may not litigate tenaciously and then complain about the time necessarily spent by the plaintiff in response)].

The pleadings and depositions in the case can be used as evidence of the work performed [Dover Mobile Estates v. Fiber Form Prods., Inc. (1990) 220 CA3d 1494, 1501, 270 CR 183].

Strategic Point--Moving Party:

Counsel filing a motion for attorney's fees needs to be prepared to have his or her fees examined in minute detail by the other side and by the court.

Strategic Point--Both Parties:

Courts have a significant amount of flexibility and discretion to determine the reasonableness of fee awards, and parties seeking fee recoveries should consider obtaining discovery from a number of different sources to support their contention that the fees sought are reasonable. These sources include testimony from experts, petitions filed in bankruptcy proceedings seeking approval of fee awards, and the amount of opposing counsel's own attorney's fees. Although discovery into the latter can be a sensitive matter, this request may have the added benefit of forcing opposing counsel to stipulate to the reasonableness of fees rather than submit to discovery into the amount of its own attorney's fees.

12.13[3] Lodestar Method Uses Number of Hours Reasonably Expended Multiplied by Reasonable Hourly Rate. "The fee setting inquiry in California ordinarily begins with the 'lodestar,' which is the number of hours reasonably expended multiplied by the reasonable hourly rate," while also taking into account the numerous factors listed by courts when determining reasonable compensation, or "[t]he reasonable hourly rate is that prevailing in the community for similar work" [PLCM Group, Inc. v. Drexler (2000) 22 C4th 1084, 1095, 95 CR2d 198, 997 P2d 511]. Expert opinions on reasonable fees for the services rendered are also relevant [Martino v. Denevi (1986) 182 CA3d 553, 559-560, 227 CR 354].

Detailed billing records are not necessarily required in order to support a motion for fees, as counsel's testimony and declarations may be sufficient to support the motion [Padilla v. McClellan (2001) 93 CA4th 1100, 1106, 113 CR2d 680]. The fee agreement between attorney and client is relevant to the determination of fees but not dispositive. "[T]he contract is some evidence of the value of an attorney's services, but as with other items of evidence, it is not controlling" [Vella v. Hudgins (1984) 151 CA3d 515, 521, 198 CR 725].

When the fee agreement between attorney and client is a contingency fee agreement, the reasonable fee determined by the court may be greater or less than the amount to which the attorney is entitled under the contingency fee agreement [Persson v. Smart Inventions, Inc. (2005) 125 CA4th 1141, 1176].

Cross References:

Discussion of fee recovery and contingency representation, see 12.05[3].

Form and discussion addressing applicability of lodestar method, see California Points and Authorities, § 60.482 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDiscretionCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesReasonable FeesCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesStatutory AwardsContracts LawRemediesGeneral Overview

70 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 12 Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation
II. RECOVERING ATTORNEY'S FEES BY STATUTE OR CONTRACT

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 12.14

AUTHOR: James E. Wright II

12.14 Settlement Offers May Shift Fee Burden If Offer Is As Good As or Better Than Resulting Judgment Under CCP § 998.

Under CCP § 998, an offer of settlement may shift the burden of fees under CCP §§ 1032 and 1033.5 if the amount ultimately recovered is less than the amount of the offer. The fees incurred shift, beginning from the time of the offer, so that a prevailing plaintiff who receives less than the amount offered by a defendant in settlement can recover its fees against that defendant up to the time of the settlement offer, while the defendant receives its fees from that time forward [Scott Co. of Cal. v. Blount, Inc. (1999) 20 C4th 1103, 1107, 86 CR2d 614, 979 P2d 974]. When determining whether a settlement offer was greater than an amount recovered in litigation under CCP § 998, the attorney's fees and costs of the party who recovered them will be included if that party would be entitled to them under CCP § 1021 [Adam v. DeCharon (1995) 31 CA4th 708, 713-714, 37 CR2d 195].

CCP §§ 998(c)(1) and 998(d) expressly allow cost awards to include expert witness fees, satisfying the express allowance requirement of CCP § 1033.5(b), although these fees may not exceed those allowed under Gov Code § 68092.5 [CCP § 998(h)].

Exception:

CCP § 998 may not apply in all proceedings; in family law cases, for example, courts have broader discretion under Fam Code § 270 et seq. than under CCP § 998.

Cross References:

Discussions of award of costs and fees under CCP § 998, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 174.10 et seq. (Matthew Bender).

Discussion of settlement offers pursuant to CCP § 998, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 37, Settlement and Release, 37.03 -37.27 (Matthew Bender).

Form and discussion addressing fee shifting under CCP § 998, see California Points and Authorities, § 60.444 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureSettlementsOffers of JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney
FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesReasonable FeesCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses &
FeesStatutory AwardsContracts LawRemediesGeneral Overview

71 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 12 Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation
II. RECOVERING ATTORNEY'S FEES BY STATUTE OR CONTRACT

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 12.15

AUTHOR: James E. Wright II

12.15 Fees Incurred on Appeal May Be Recovered.

Courts have construed contracts and statutes providing for an award of attorney's fees to the prevailing party to include fees for appellate proceedings [Morcos v. Board of Retirement (1990) 51 C3d 924, 927, 275 CR 187, 800 P2d 543]. Courts also have held that CC § 1717 allows recovery of fees incurred on appeal [Mackinder v. OSCA Dev. Co. (1984) 151 CA3d 728, 739-740, 198 CR 864].

Distinguish:

A statute providing for an award of attorney's fees "upon the trial of the action" does not include the recovery of attorney's fees on appeal [Lewis & Queen v. S. Edmondson & Sons (1952) 113 CA2d 705, 709-710, 248 P2d 973]. Courts probably would interpret a similar limitation in a contract the same way.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees American Rule Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees Statutory Awards Civil Procedure Appeals Costs &
Attorney Fees Contracts Law Remedies General Overview

72 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 12 Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation
II. RECOVERING ATTORNEY'S FEES BY STATUTE OR CONTRACT

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 12.16

AUTHOR: James E. Wright II

12.16 Attorney's Fees Are Recoverable for Services of In-House Counsel, but Not for Pro Se Representation.

12.16[1] Fees May Be Recovered for Representation by In-House Counsel. Adopting the reasoning of federal courts, California courts have by awarded fees to corporations represented by in-house counsel under CC § 1717 when allowed by contract [PLCM Group, Inc. v. Drexler (2000) 22 C4th 1084, 1091, 95 CR2d 198, 997 P2d 511] .

12.16[2] Fees May Be Recovered for Representation by Other Members of Same Firm. When a lawyer is represented by other members of his or her law firm, and the representation involves the lawyer's personal interests and not those of the firm, an attorney-client relationship is formed, and the lawyer is entitled to recover reasonable attorney's fees under CC § 1717 [Gilbert v. Master Washer & Stamping Co. (2001) 87 CA4th 212, 216-223, 104 CR2d 461 , applying the same logic used in Trope v. Katz (1995) 11 C4th 274, 292, 45 CR2d 241, 902 P2d 259 and PLCM Group, Inc. v. Drexler (2000) 22 C4th 1084, 1091, 95 CR2d 198, 997 P2d 511] .

Example:

Homeowner who was an attorney could not recover contractual attorney fees for representing himself and his wife in a construction defect case, but he could recover for work done by other attorneys and paralegals in his law firm [Gorman v. Tassajara Development Corp. (2009) 178 CA4th 44, 96, 100 CR3d 152] .

Neither attorneys nor others appearing in propria persona are entitled to recover fees for opportunity costs or otherwise [Trope v. Katz (1995) 11 C4th 274, 292, 45 CR2d 241, 902 P2d 259] .

12.16[3] Pro Se Litigants May Not Recover Fees Not Actually Incurred.

Cross Reference:

Form and discussion addressing inability to recover fees when proceeding pro se, see California Points and Authorities, § 60.467 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees Reasonable Fees Contracts Law Remedies General
Overview

73 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 12 Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation
II. RECOVERING ATTORNEY'S FEES BY STATUTE OR CONTRACT

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 12.17

AUTHOR: James E. Wright II

12.17 Attorney's Fees May Be Recoverable By Party Who Is Not Signatory to Agreement.

Under CC § 1717, a party to litigation who did not sign the contract may recover fees under the agreement if the party against whom the non-signatory is attempting to enforce the contract could recover them if it prevailed [Reynolds Metals Co. v. Alperson (1979) 25 C3d 124, 128, 158 CR 1, 599 P2d 83].

Distinguish:

If the terms of the fee provision allow an award of fees only in litigation between the parties to the agreement, then no fees may be recovered by either a signatory or a nonsignatory to the agreement in litigation between them [Blickman Turkus, LP v. MF Downtown Sunnyvale, LLC (2008) 162 CA4th 858, 896, 76 CR3d 325].

A third party beneficiary who prevails in litigation under the contract may recover attorney's fees under Civ. Code § 1717 if the contract contains an attorney's fees provision [see, e.g., Loduca v. Polyzos (2007) 153 CA4th 334, 341-345, 62 CR3d 780]. Courts, however, may refuse to award fees to parties of contracts containing fee provisions drafted to cover only actions by parties who (1) are not signatories to the agreement, and (2) are not intended third-party beneficiaries of the agreement [Kahn v. Chetcuti (2002) 101 CA4th 61, 67, 123 CR2d 606].

Distinguish:

Only a party against whom an agreement can be enforced generally may recover attorney's fees for non-contract claims. The mutuality of remedy provision of CC § 1717, which the Reynolds Metals Co. case (discussed above) also extended to non-signatory parties, does not apply to non-contract causes of action [Topanga & Victory Partners, LLP v. Toghia (2002) 103 CA4th 775, 787, 127 CR2d 104].

Examples--Mutuality of Remedies:

- A bank entered into a security agreement with a general contractor. The security agreement permitted the bank to direct one of the general contractor's customers to make payments directly to the bank. The bank sued the customer after the customer failed to make payments to the bank. The customer prevailed and sought attorney's fees under CC § 1717. The court held that the customer, a non-signatory to the security agreement, was entitled to attorney's fees because the action was "on the contract" within the meaning of CC § 1717, and the bank would have been entitled to fees if it had prevailed against the customer [Dell Merk, Inc. v. Franzia (2005) 132 CA4th 443,454-455].

■ In an unsuccessful action brought against a bank by a grandson as successor-in-interest to his deceased grandmother, the bank was entitled to a fee award against the grandson because of a fee provision in the deposit agreement between the grandmother and the bank. As successor-in-interest to his grandmother, the grandson stepped into her position, and would have been entitled to an award of attorney fees had he prevailed in the action against the bank [Exarhos v. Exarhos (2008) 159 CA4th 898, 905-907, 72 CR3d 409] .

Example--Third-Party Beneficiary:

■ Because an attorney's fee clause in a construction contract between a subcontractor and a general contractor made no reference to a party to the contract bringing the suit, the owner, who was an intended third party beneficiary to the contract, could recover attorney fees against the subcontractor under CC § 1717 [Loduca v. Polyzos (2007) 153 CA4th 334, 340, 62 CR3d 780] .

Cross Reference:

Form and discussion supporting entitlement to fees for a non-signatory to agreement under CC § 1717, see California Points and Authorities, § 60.446 (Matthew Bender).

Determining whether or not a party qualifies as a third-party beneficiary of a contract, see §§ 19.03 et seq.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees American Rule Contracts Law Remedies General Overview

74 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 12 Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation

III. RECOVERING COSTS ALLOWED BY STATUTE

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 12.18

AUTHOR: James E. Wright II

12.18 CHECKLIST: Recovering Costs Allowed by Statute.

☐ Is cost in question expressly allowed or disallowed by statute?

Authority:

CCP § 1033.5

Discussion:

See 12.19[3]

☐ Allowed costs:

☐ Filing, motion, and jury fees.

☐ Juror food and lodging expenses.

☐ Expenses of taking, taping, and transcribing depositions, including travel expenses.

☐ Costs of service of process.

☐ Expenses of attachment.

☐ Surety bond premiums.

☐ Ordinary witness fees under Gov Code § 68093.

- ☐ Court appointed expert fees.
- ☐ Court transcript fees.
- ☐ Court reporter's fees by statute.
- ☐ Models, enlargements, and copies.

☐ Disallowed costs:

- ☐ Expert witness fees for other than court appointed experts.
- ☐ Expenses of pre-filing investigation.
- ☐ Postage, telephone, and copying charges other than for exhibits.
- ☐ Juror investigation or voir dire preparation expenses.
- ☐ Transcripts of proceedings when not court ordered.

☐ Does an exception to general statutory rule allowing costs apply?

☐ Is action governed by a statute specially allowing the cost?

Authority:

CCP § 1033.5(b)

Discussion:

See 12.19[1][d]

☐ Does contract specifically allow the cost?

Authority:

Carwash of America-PO v. Windswept Ventures No. 1 (2002) 97 CA4th 540, 543-544

Discussion:

See 12.19[4]

☐ Did other party offer to pay all money owed before filing suit, thereby shifting cost burden?

Authority:

CCP § 1025

Discussion:

See 12.21[1][a]

☐ Was an offer of compromise exceeding amount recovered made before cost accrued, thereby shifting cost burden?

Authority:

CCP § 998

Discussion:

See 12.21[1][b]

☐ Was action brought in a court of higher jurisdictional classification than necessary, potentially reducing recoverable costs?

Authority:

CCP § 1033

Discussion:

See 12.21[2]

☐ Were multiple actions filed when a single action would have sufficed?

Authority:

CCP § 1022

Discussion:

See 12.21[3]

☐ Is cost reasonable, and was it necessarily incurred?

Authority:

CCP § 1033.5(c)

Discussion:

See 12.19[1][b]

☐ If not expressly allowed by statute, has cost been recognized as recoverable within court's discretion?

Authority:

CCP § 1033.5(c)(4)

Discussion:

See 12.19[1][c]

☐ Does cost more properly belong to another defendant?

Authority:

Transamerica Title Ins. Co. v. Green (1970) 11 CA3d 693, 704, 89 CR 915

Discussion:

See 12.21[4]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Costs General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Costs Court & Marshal Fees Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Costs Depositions & Transcripts Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Costs Reproduction Costs Contracts Law Remedies General Overview

75 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 12 Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation

III. RECOVERING COSTS ALLOWED BY STATUTE

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 12.19

AUTHOR: James E. Wright II12.19 General Rule Allows Recovery of Reasonable and Necessary Costs.*12.19[1] Costs Recoverable by Prevailing Party.

12.19[1][a] Prevailing Party May Recover Costs. The right to recover costs in litigation at the trial court level in California is statutory, and only other statutes, not the courts, may create exceptions to this rule [Murillo v. Fleetwood Enters., Inc. (1998) 17 C4th 985, 989, 73 CR2d 682, 953 P2d 858]. The statutory provisions governing the award of costs are found in CCP §§ 1021-1038, and costs are awarded to the "prevailing party" in many cases as a matter of right under CCP § 1032. For cases in which CCP § 1032 does not define the prevailing party or in which a party recovers something other than monetary relief, courts have the discretion to award costs and to apportion them between the parties. CCP § 1033.5 lists many items allowable as costs under CCP § 1032 as well as several items not allowable except when expressly authorized by law [CCP § 1033.5(a), (b)].

Exception:

The right to allowable costs and the procedure for claiming them on appeal are within the province of the California Judicial Council under CCP § 1034(b), and therefore are controlled by Cal Rules Ct, Rules 8.278 and 8.891.

 Cross References:

Discussion of prevailing party for cost purposes under CCP § 1032, see 12.24[1].

Summary of cost allocation statutes, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 174.10 et seq. (Matthew Bender).

12.19[1][b] Costs Must Be Reasonable in Amount and Necessarily Incurred. Costs must be:

- Reasonable in amount under CCP § 1033.5(c)(3);
- Reasonably necessary to the conduct of the litigation rather than merely convenient [CCP § 1033.5(c)(2)]; and

- Actually incurred, whether or not paid [CCP § 1033.5(c)(1)].

For costs to be "incurred" the claimant must be legally liable for the costs. If a discount has been applied on a cost, only the discounted rate may be recovered [Nightingale v. Hyundai Motor Am. (1994) 31 CA4th 99, 104, 37 CR2d 149 (portion of attorney fee award resulting from higher hourly rates for which plaintiff was not billed nor under any obligation to pay could not be recovered)].

Reasonableness is a question of fact "peculiarly within the trial court's discretion." The level of discretion ascribed to the trial court with respect to this determination under CCP § 1033.5(c)(4) is "broad" [Baker-Hoey v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2003) 111 CA4th 592, 605, 3 CR3d 593 , (fees of special master, although not recoverable as matter of right under CCP § 1032(b), could be awarded as costs under broad discretion given to trial court under CCP § 1033.5(c)(4))].

Cross Reference:

Forms and discussion addressing reasonableness of amounts and necessity of costs, see California Points and Authorities, §§ 60.41, 60.45 (Matthew Bender).

12.19[1][c] Trial Court Has Discretion to Determine Allowable Costs Not Expressly Allowed by Statute.

CCP § 1033.5(c)(4) allows the court, in its discretion, to award as costs items not specifically allowed under CCP § 1033.5(a) or denied under CCP § 1033.5(b). As with all cost awards, the parties must actually have incurred the costs, and they must be reasonably necessary to the conduct of the litigation and reasonable in amount [see CCP § 1033.5(c)(1)-(3)]. Necessity to the conduct of the litigation is a common issue addressed in discretionary awards.

Judge's Perspective:

Courts are more likely to award costs if the party has kept detailed records of the costs incurred, including not only receipts and invoices, but also detailed records of the reasons for incurring the costs. If a cost seems higher than it should be, the party should be able to explain the reason. Finally, the party should provide any information about similar expenditures by the opposing party, making it more difficult for the opposing party to claim that the expenditures were unnecessary to the conduct of the litigation.

Example--Reasonably Necessary Costs:

Courts have held that reasonably necessary costs include [Gibson v. Bobroff (1996) 49 CA4th 1202, 1207-1208, 57 CR2d 235 ; Cobler v. Stanley, Barber, Southard, Brown & Assocs. (1990) 217 CA3d 518, 533, 265 CR 868 ; Science Applications Int'l Corp. v. Superior Court (1995) 39 CA4th 1095, 1104-1105, 46 CR2d 332 ; Benach v. County of Los Angeles (2007) 149 CA4th 836, 857-858, 57 CR3d 363] :

- Fees for court-ordered mediation.
- Fees for contractual arbitration.
- Costs of graphic exhibit boards and video analogous to models and blowups.
- Messenger services fees.

Example--Not Reasonably Necessary Costs:

Courts have disallowed other costs as not having been reasonably necessary because they amounted to

"high tech," including [Science Applications Int'l Corp. v. Superior Court (1995) 39 CA4th 1095, 1104-1105, 46 CR2d 332]:

- Expenses for high tech discovery tools.
- Costs of document control amounting to "high tech" paralegal services.
- Production of laser disks containing exhibits and a graphics communication system amounting to "high tech" document retrieval.

12.19[1][d] Certain Types of Contracts Have Particular Categories of Recoverable Costs. Some types of contracts have particular costs allocated by statute, allowing recovery of costs that are not otherwise specifically allowed under CCP § 1033. Even costs that generally are not allowed under CCP § 1033.5(b) can be recovered "where expressly authorized by law." One cost sometimes specifically allocated by statute is expert witness fees (for expert witnesses not appointed by the court), the expenses for which are ordinarily not allowed under CCP § 1033.5(b)(1) [see, e.g., CC § 1745(d), which specifically provides for the award of expert witness fees in some actions on sale of fine prints by art dealers].

12.19[2] Judgment Required to Collect Costs.

12.19[2][a] Dismissal and Settlement Generally Allow Recovery of Costs. The right to recover costs arises exclusively from a statutory grant [Crib Retaining Walls, Inc. v. NBS/Lowry, Inc. (1996) 47 CA4th 886, 889, 54 CR2d 850 ; La Mesa-Spring Valley Sch. Dist. v. Otsuka (1962) 57 C2d 309, 312, 19 CR 479, 369 P2d 7]. The award of costs arises solely as an incident to the judgment on the action [Folsom v. Butte County Ass'n of Gov'ts (1982) 32 C3d 668, 677, 186 CR 589, 652 P2d 437]. Under CCP § 581d, dismissal of the action constitutes a judgment, and whether a dismissal is voluntary or involuntary is irrelevant to the recovery of costs under CCP § 1032 [D & J, Inc. v. Ferro Corp. (1986) 176 CA3d 1191, 1193-1194, 222 CR 656]. Absent an allocation of costs in the settlement agreement, a voluntary dismissal by the plaintiff may result in a determination of the prevailing party under CCP § 1032 and an award of costs by the court [Crib Retaining Walls, Inc. v. NBS/Lowry, Inc. (1996) 47 CA4th 886, 890, 54 CR2d 850 ; see Chinn v. KMR Property Management (2008) 166 CA4th 175, 190, 82 CR3d 586 (after plaintiff voluntarily dismissed action as part of settlement, defendants were prevailing parties for purposes of an award of costs)].

Warning:

If any doubts exist about whether the opposing party might be the prevailing party under CCP § 1032, make sure to allocate costs expressly in any settlement agreement. Failure to do so may result in an award of costs after the dismissal is entered.

Distinguish:

Attorney's fees, unlike costs, may not be awarded when an action is voluntarily dismissed or settled, unless an award of fees is expressly included in the settlement agreement [CC § 1717(b)(2)].

Cross References:

Discussion of prevailing party for cost purposes and attorney's fees purposes under CCP § 1032, CC § 1717, and using "practical" methodology under other circumstances, see 12.25.

Discussion of inability to recover attorney's fees under CC § 1717 when action is dismissed or settled, see 12.06[2].

12.19[2][b] Costs of Arbitration Are Recoverable. The arbitration award of contractual disputes constitutes a judgment, and courts have held that arbitration by contractual requirement satisfies the requirements of CCP § 1033.5 for recovery of arbitration fees by the prevailing party [Cobler v. Stanley, Barber, Southard, Brown & Assocs. (1990) 217 CA3d 518, 533, 265 CR 868]. The prevailing party also is entitled to costs incurred in a proceeding to confirm, correct or vacate a contractual arbitration award pursuant to CCP § 1285 [CCP § 1293.2; Marcus & Millichap Real Estate Investment Brokerage Co. v. Woodman Investment Group (2005) 129 CA4th 508, 513, 28 CR3d 584]. Attorney's fees are recoverable as costs if authorized by the arbitration agreement [CCP § 1033.5(a)(10)(A)]. Parties also may recover the costs of judicial arbitration as a method of alternative dispute resolution under CCP § 1141.21 [Muega v. Menocal (1996) 50 CA4th 868, 875, 57 CR2d 697 ; Boyd v. Oscar Fisher Co. (1989) 210 CA3d 368, 382, 258 CR 473].

Strategic Point--Both Parties:

Unlike most other allowable costs, the costs of arbitration can be compared to attorney's fees because most arbitrators are attorneys and bill their time accordingly.

12.19[2][c] Judicial Referee's Fees Are Recoverable. A judicial referee's fees are recoverable by the prevailing party as costs [Trend Homes, Inc. v. Superior Court (2005) 131 CA4th 950, 962, 32 CR3d 411].

Distinguish:

If the parties stipulate that a case will be submitted to a referee pursuant to CCP § 638 and agree to split the referee's fees between them, that agreement controls, and the court has no authority to award the referee's fees as a cost item to the prevailing party [Carr Business Enterprises, Inc. v. City of Chowchilla (2008) 166 CA4th 25, 28-30, 82 CR3d 135] .

12.19[3] CCP § 1033.5 Expressly Allows and Disallows Certain Categories of Costs. Costs expressly allowed under CCP § 1033.5(a) include:

- Filing, motion, and jury fees.
- Juror food and lodging expenses.
- Expenses of taking, video recording, and transcribing depositions, including travel expenses.
- Costs of service of process.
- Expenses of attachment.
- Surety bond premiums.
- Ordinary witness fees under Gov Code § 68093.
- Court appointed expert fees.
- Court transcript fees.
- Court reporter fees by statute.
- Models, enlargements, and copies.
- Attorney's fees [see discussion in 12.03 et seq.].

Costs expressly disallowed by CCP § 1033.5(b) except when otherwise provided by statute include:

- Expert witness fees for other than court appointed experts.
- Expenses of pre-filing investigation.
- Postage, telephone, and copying charges other than for exhibits.
- Juror investigation or voir dire preparation expenses.
- Transcripts of proceedings when not court ordered.

Cross References:

Discussion of allowable cost items under CCP § 1033.5, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 174.10 et seq. (Matthew Bender).

Forms and discussion addressing recoverability of and motions to tax costs for specific items, see California Points and Authorities, §§ 60.40 -60.56, 60.90 -60.105 (Matthew Bender).

12.19[4] Expert Witness Fees May Be Recovered As Item of Damages. Although expert witness fees for experts retained by parties are disallowed as costs under CCP § 1033.5(b)(1), they nonetheless may be awarded to a prevailing party as damages when the contract expressly provides for their award [Carwash of America-PO, LLC v. Windswept Ventures, No. 1, LLC (2002) 97 CA4th 540, 544, 118 CR2d 536].

Expert fees may not be recovered using the procedures provided in CCP § 1032 and CCP § 1033.5, but rather must be pleaded and proven at trial as an item of damages [Carwash of America-PO, LLC v. Windswept Ventures, No. 1, LLC (2002) 97 CA4th 540, 544, 118 CR2d 536 (prevailing defendant); Ripley v. Pappadopoulos (1994) 23 CA4th 1616, 1627, 28 CR2d 878 (prevailing plaintiff); see First Nationwide Bank v. Mountain Cascade, Inc. (2000) 77 CA4th 871, 878-879, 92 CR2d 145 (legislature did not intend to prevent sophisticated parties from making their own arrangements, but those items deliberately excluded by the legislature are not recoverable as costs under CCP § 1033.5)].

Prerequisite:

If the contract awards "reasonable fees and costs, including expert costs to the prevailing party," then these items typically are presented to the judge by way of motion [see CCP § 1033.5(c)(5)]. The judge determines both "reasonableness" and the identity of the prevailing party [see Baker-Hoey v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2003) 111 CA4th 592, 605, 3 CR3d 593 ; Hsu v. Abbara (1995) 9 C4th 863, 876-877, 39 CR2d 824, 891 P2d 804].

Strategic Point--Prevailing Party:

Courts have held that some common, substantial expenses do not qualify for recovery as costs under CCP § 1033.5 [see, e.g., Science Applications Int'l Corp. v. Superior Court (1995) 39 CA4th 1095, 1104-1105 (barring cost recovery for use of high-tech discovery tools)]. Drafters of contracts may increase the likelihood of recovering these items by expressly providing for their award as damages to the prevailing party.

Cross References:

Discussion of items disallowed as costs and limiting effect of CCP § 1033.5(b), see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 174.10 et seq. (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Costs General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Costs Court & Marshal Fees Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Costs Depositions & Transcripts Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Costs Reproduction Costs Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Costs Witnesses

76 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 12 Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation

III. RECOVERING COSTS ALLOWED BY STATUTE

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 12.20

AUTHOR: James E. Wright II

12.20 Burden of Proving Costs Falls on Moving Party.

12.20[1] Prima Facie Case Made and Burden Shifts to Respondent When Cost Allowed by Statute. When a specific cost is listed under CCP § 1033.5, and therefore is expressly recoverable under CCP § 1032, the burden for challenging the cost falls on the opposing party [Ladas v. California State Auto. Ass'n (1993) 19 CA4th 761, 774, 23 CR2d 810]. The verified cost bill is prima facie evidence that the items were necessarily incurred [Melnyk v. Robledo (1976) 64 CA3d 618, 624, 134 CR 602]. Once the party seeking costs makes a prima facie case for those costs, "mere statements in the points and authorities accompanying its notice of motion to strike cost bill and the declaration of its counsel are insufficient to rebut the prima facie showing" [Rappenecker v. Sea-Land Serv., Inc. (1979) 93 CA3d 256, 266, 155 CR 516]. If the items appear to be proper charges, the prevailing party's verified memorandum is prima facie evidence that costs, expenses, and services listed were necessarily incurred by the prevailing party, and the burden of showing that an item is not properly chargeable or is unreasonable is on the objecting party [Benach v. County of Los Angeles (2007) 149 CA4th 836, 856, 57 CR3d 363] .

12.20[2] Party Seeking Costs Not Specifically Allowed by Statute Has Burden of Proof. If items in a cost bill are properly objected to, the party claiming the items has the burden of proving the necessity and reasonableness of the cost [Ladas v. California State Auto. Ass'n (1993) 19 CA4th 761, 774, 23 CR2d 810]. This burden sometimes may be met with relatively little evidence, and the opposing party's pleadings alone may not suffice to defeat a showing. For example, when "[n]o counter-declarations or other rebuttal documents" were offered by the opposing party, courts have held that expert witness fees recoverable under CCP § 998 were sufficiently substantiated by the expert disclosure and invoices [Jones v. Dumrichob (1998) 63 CA4th 1258, 1268, 74 CR2d 607].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Costs General Overview Contracts Law Remedies General Overview

77 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 12 Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation

III. RECOVERING COSTS ALLOWED BY STATUTE

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 12.21

AUTHOR: James E. Wright II12.21 Actions or Conditions May Reduce Recoverable Costs.*12.21[1] Offers to Pay or Settle May Halt Accrual of Recoverable Costs.

12.21[1][a] Tender of Money Owed Prior to Commencement of Action for Money May Shift Costs to Plaintiff. In a dispute that is only for the recovery of money, a defendant who has tendered to a plaintiff all moneys owed prior to the filing of the action may shift all costs to the plaintiff, including its own [CCP § 1025]. The defendant need only allege its pre-filing offer in its answer and deposit that amount with the court for the plaintiff [CCP § 1025].

Distinguish:

Note, however, that a deficient offer or an offer made after filing would not satisfy these requirements [see CCP § 1025].

Cross Reference:

Form and discussion addressing fee shifting after tender and deposit, see California Points and Authorities, § 60.443 (Matthew Bender).

12.21[1][b] Good Faith Offers to Settle May Halt Accrual of Costs As of Time of Offer. A defendant's offer to settle under CCP § 998 may shift costs to the plaintiff as of the date of the offer. In addition, if a plaintiff rejects the defendant's offer and the plaintiff fails to obtain a judgment more favorable than the defendant's offer, a court or arbitrator, in its discretion, may require the plaintiff to pay the defendant's reasonable post-offers expert witness fees [CCP § 998(d)].

To qualify as an offer of compromise under CCP § 998, the settlement offer must expressly refer to the statute and be rejected by the plaintiff prior to trial or arbitration, or within 30 days of having been made, whichever occurs first [Stell v. Jay Hales Dev. Co. (1992) 11 CA4th 1214, 1232, 15 CR2d 220 , overruled on other grounds by Citizens for Covenant Compliance v. Anderson (1995) 12 C4th 345, 359, 47 CR2d 898, 906 P2d 1314].

Cross References:

Discussion of settlement offers pursuant to CCP § 998, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 37, Settlement and Release, 37.03 -37.27 (Matthew Bender).

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 174.10 et seq. (Matthew Bender).

Forms and discussion addressing fee shifting after CCP § 998 offer, see California Points and Authorities, §§ 60.16, 60.83 -60.86 (Matthew Bender).

12.21[2] Incorrect Jurisdictional Classification May Reduce Recoverable Costs. If the judgment recovered by a prevailing party in an unlimited civil case could have been rendered in a limited civil case, the court may determine costs or any portion of claimed costs in its discretion [see CCP § 1033(a); see also CCP § 85 (limited civil case defined)].

Similarly, if a prevailing plaintiff in a limited civil case could have brought the action in small claims court and recovers an amount that a small claims court could have awarded, the court has discretion to allow or deny costs in whole or in part [CCP § 1033(b)(1), see CCP § 116.220 (small claims jurisdiction)]. If the limited civil case plaintiff recovers an amount that a small claims court could have awarded, but the plaintiff could not have brought the action in small claims court, then recoverable costs are limited to the filing fee and actual cost of service of process (and attorney's fees if otherwise allowed by law). The plaintiff can recover those costs only once the court is satisfied that the plaintiff informed the defendant in writing of the intended legal action and that the judgment would result in an award of costs and necessary disbursements allowed by CCP § 1033(b)(2) [CCP § 1033(b)(2)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of jurisdictional classification and filing strategy, see Ch. 3, Determining Jurisdiction and Venue in Contract Actions, 3.08[4].

12.21[3] Separate Actions Against Multiple Parties for Single Cause When Single Action Could Have Been Filed May Reduce Recoverable Costs in Single Action. If multiple actions are brought on a single note, bill, or other instrument, "or in any other case for the same cause of action, against several parties who might have been joined as defendants in the same action," the plaintiff may only recover costs from one of the actions if the other actions were against in-state defendants [CCP § 1022]. The plaintiff may still recover his or her "disbursements," which are specifically distinguished under this section, in each action [People v. One 1950 Ford Sedan (1956) 140 CA2d 647, 649]. The meaning of the term disbursements is "funds paid out," and is otherwise similar to the meaning of costs. Disbursements do not include items that would be excluded as costs under CCP § 1033.5 [Ferrell v. County of San Diego (2001) 90 CA4th 537, 542-544, 108 CR2d 681].

Consider:

Only CCP § 1033.5(c)(1) notes any difference between barred costs and allowed disbursements under CCP § 1022, which says that costs may be recovered whether or not paid, if they are incurred.

12.21[4] When Multiple Defendants Are Sued With Different Outcomes, Costs Generally May Not Be Shifted Between Defendants. When courts are asked to allocate costs among multiple defendants, a court may not shift liability for costs onto one defendant when the costs are properly attributable to another defendant. When one defendant settles with an agreement that each party will bear its own costs, the non-settling defendant will not be held responsible for costs incurred with respect to the other settling defendant [Levy v. Toyota Motor Sales USA, Inc. (1992) 4 CA4th 807, 813, 5 CR2d 770]. Likewise, a defendant who is unsuccessful against a plaintiff will not be held responsible for the plaintiff's costs against a successful defendant, if the unsuccessful defendant did not bring the successful one into the case and was not responsible for the plaintiff having done so [Transamerica Title Ins. Co. v. Green (1970) 11 CA3d 693, 704, 89 CR 915].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Costs General Overview Contracts Law Remedies General Overview

78 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 12 Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation

III. RECOVERING COSTS ALLOWED BY STATUTE

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 12.22

AUTHOR: James E. Wright II

12.22 California Rules of Court Dictate Timing and Procedural Requirements.

The timing and procedure for recovery of costs at the trial court level is dictated by the Judicial Council under CCP § 1034(a), and therefore is governed by Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1700. Rule 3.1700 requires service of a verified memorandum of costs "within 15 days after the date of mailing of the notice of entry of judgment or dismissal by the clerk under Code of Civil Procedure Section 664.5 or the date of service of written notice of entry of judgment or dismissal, or within 180 days after entry of judgment, whichever is first." Under Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1700(a)(2), a party seeking a default judgment should request costs at that time by including the cost request on the form requesting the court to enter default.

➤ Cross References:

Forms and discussion addressing failures of timing or verification, see California Points and Authorities, §§ 60.13, 60.14, 60.70, 60.122 -60.124, 60.140, 60.150 -60.152 (Matthew Bender).

Discussion of procedural requirements for memoranda of costs and motions to tax, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 174.10 et seq. (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Costs General Overview Contracts Law Remedies General Overview

79 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 12 Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation
IV. DETERMINING PREVAILING PARTY FOR RECOVERY OF COSTS OR FEES

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 12.23

AUTHOR: James E. Wright II

12.23 CHECKLIST: Determining Prevailing Party for Recovery of Costs or Fees.

☐ Who is prevailing party for purpose of recovering costs?

☐ If one party obtained a net monetary recovery against the other, that party is prevailing party against the other.

Authority:
CCP § 1032

Discussion:
See 12.24[1]

☐ If defendant obtained dismissal, defendant is prevailing party.

Authority:
CCP § 1032

Discussion:
See 12.24[1]

☐ If defendant avoided any relief to a particular plaintiff, defendant is prevailing party against that plaintiff.

Authority:
CCP § 1032

Discussion:
See 12.24[1]

- ☐ If neither party obtained relief, defendant is prevailing party.

Authority:

CCP § 1032

Discussion:

See 12.24[1]

- ☐ Who is prevailing party for purpose of recovering attorney's fees?

- ☐ If action was voluntarily dismissed, neither party is prevailing party for recovery of attorney's fees on contract causes of action.

Authority:

CC § 1717; Santisas v. Goodin (1998) 17 C4th 599, 602, 71 CR2d 830, 951 P2d 399

Discussion:

See 12.06[2], 12.19[2][a], 12.24[2]

- ☐ Was there a notice and motion on which court determined who was prevailing party?

Authority:

CC § 1717(b)(1)

Discussion:

See 12.27

- ☐ Does contract define prevailing party?

Authority:

CCP § 1021; CC § 1717; Santisas v. Goodin (1998) 17 C4th 599, 622, 71 CR2d 830, 951 P2d 399

Discussion:

See 12.25

- ☐ Did one party clearly win or achieve its litigation objectives?

Authority:

Hsu v. Abbata (1995) 9 C4th 863, 876, 39 CR2d 824, 891 P2d 804

Discussion:

See 12.25, 12.26

- ☐ If multiple agreements exist with possibly different prevailing parties, prevailing party must be determined for each agreement.

Authority:

CC § 1717; Myers Bldg. Industries, Ltd. v. Interface Technology, Inc. (1993) 13 CA4th 949, 975, n21, 17 CR2d 242

Form:

See 12.28

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Costs General Overview

80 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 12 Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation
IV. DETERMINING PREVAILING PARTY FOR RECOVERY OF COSTS OR FEES

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 12.24

AUTHOR: James E. Wright II

12.24 Prevailing Party Is Different for Purpose of Recovering Costs Than for Purpose of Recovering Attorney's Fees.

12.24[1] Definition of Prevailing Party for Cost Purposes Under CCP § 1032. CCP § 1032(a)(4) defines the prevailing party for the purpose of recovering costs. The prevailing party is specifically defined in certain cases as:

- The party with a net monetary recovery;
- A defendant against whom a dismissal is entered;
- A defendant when neither party obtains any relief; and
- A defendant against those plaintiffs who do not recover relief against that defendant.

In other situations and when any party recovers other than monetary relief, the court is required to determine the identity of the prevailing party for cost purposes, and the court has discretion to allocate costs among the various parties. In exercising that discretion, the court should consider the necessity for the claimed costs, fairness, and whether the parties achieved their principal litigation objectives [Wakefield v. Bohlin (2006) 145 CA4th 963, 986-987, 52 CR3d 400] .

When a jury verdict results in a damage award for one litigant, that litigant is a "party with a net monetary recovery" under CCP § 1032, even if the judgment is later reduced to zero as a result of offsets for good faith settlements under CCP § 877 [Wakefield v. Bohlin (2006) 145 CA4th 963, 982-983, 52 CR3d 400] .

12.24[2] Definition of Prevailing Party for Purpose of Recovering Attorney's Fees Under CC § 1717. The definition of the prevailing party for the purpose of attorney's fees under CC § 1717 is different than it is for costs under CCP § 1032 [Sears v. Baccaglio (1998) 60 CA4th 1136, 1142, 70 CR2d 769]. Thus, a prevailing party for the award of costs under CC § 1032 is not necessarily the prevailing party for purposes of the award of attorney's fees [McLarand, Vasquez & Partners, Inc. v. Downey Savings & Loan Assn. (1991) 231 CA3d 1450, 1456, 282 CR 828 ("[w]e emphatically reject the contention that the prevailing party for the award of costs under section 1032 is necessarily the prevailing party for the award of attorneys' fees")].

CC § 1717(b)(1) provides that the court may decide that no prevailing party exists for the purpose of a fee award. In such a case, no attorney's fee award under CC § 1717 is possible, excepting, of course, a contractual provision to the contrary that expressly awards fees in the absence of a prevailing party.

Examples:

- When the defendant successfully attacked the plaintiff's complaint by motions for summary adjudication and judgment on the pleadings, the plaintiff successfully demurred to the defendant's cross-complaint, and the court entered a judgment by which neither party took anything, each party prevailed on the other's action on a contract and neither prevailed on the matter as a whole [Blickman Turkus, LP v. MF Downtown Sunnyvale, LLC (2008) 162 CA4th 858, 866, 894, 76 CR3d 325] .
- In litigation brought by a former chief executive officer against a company under an employment agreement and several other benefits contracts, the trial court did not err in finding that neither party was the prevailing party. The court was not required to determine separately whether the plaintiff was the prevailing party under each benefits contract, because the plaintiff did not file separate contract actions on the different contracts, and by virtue of the judgment, his rights were limited to those arising out of the employment contract [Roden v. AmerisourceBergen Corp. (2007) 155 CA4th 1548, 1578-1579, 67 CR3d 26].

CC § 1717(b)(2) provides that no prevailing party exists when a case is voluntarily dismissed or settled. Courts have construed this provision to nullify any contract language that purports to award attorney's fees on contract causes of action under these circumstances [Santisas v. Goodin (1998) 17 C4th 599, 621-622, 71 CR2d 830, 951 P2d 399]. CC § 1717(b)(2) also does not control the determination of a prevailing party (or recovery of fees) specified by statute without reference to the terms of the agreement [Parrott v. Mooring Townhomes Assn., Inc. (2003) 112 CA4th 873, 879].

Strategic Points--Both Parties:

- A party that may not recover fees under CC § 1717(b)(2) still may be able to recover sanctions under CCP § 128.5, even against a plaintiff that has voluntarily dismissed its case.
- The prevailing party status generally is determined at each level of the proceedings, and a party need not exhaust all appeals before a court makes its prevailing party status determination. But a reversal on the merits may result in the reversal of a fee award as well, so a party should consider the tactical advantages of seeking costs and fees as soon as possible during the proceedings. Parties should always be prepared, however, for the possibility that any recovery may have to be returned later.

Cross References:

Discussion of awards for other causes of action based on contractual fee provisions, see 12.05[4].

Discussion of Santisas holding regarding application of CC § 1717(b)(2), see 12.06[2].

Form, see 12.29.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Costs General Overview Contracts Law Remedies General Overview

81 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 12 Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation
IV. DETERMINING PREVAILING PARTY FOR RECOVERY OF COSTS OR FEES

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 12.25

AUTHOR: James E. Wright II

12.25 Courts Adopt Practical Approach When Prevailing Party Is Not Defined by Statute.

Although under CC § 1717(b)(2) there is no prevailing party for causes of action based on contract when the case is dismissed or settled, CC § 1717 does not apply to non-contract causes of action [Damian v. Tamondong (1998) 65 CA4th 1115, 1124, 77 CR2d 262]. CC § 1717 permits parties to define the prevailing party in their agreements on both contract and non-contract causes of action [Santisas v. Goodin (1998) 17 C4th 599, 622, 71 CR2d 830, 951 P2d 399].

In determining the identity of the prevailing party under statutes requiring such a determination, but also not defining the term, courts have adopted a practical approach [Heather Farms Homeowners Assn. v. Robinson (1994) 21 CA4th 1568, 1572, 26 CR2d 758]. The California Supreme Court has described the process under CC § 1717 as one that evaluates which party has achieved its litigation objectives [Hsu v. Abbata (1995) 9 C4th 863, 876, 39 CR2d 824, 891 P2d 804]. The trial court must compare the relief awarded on the contract claim or claims with the parties' demands on those same claims and their litigation objectives as disclosed by the pleadings, trial briefs, opening statements, and similar sources. The prevailing party determination is to be made only upon final resolution of the contract claims and only by "a comparison of the extent to which each party ha[s] succeeded and failed to succeed in its contentions" [Hsu v. Abbata (1995) 9 C4th 863, 876, 39 CR2d 824, 891 P2d 804].

Under this analysis, "a party who is denied direct relief on a claim may nonetheless be found to be a prevailing party if it is clear that the party has otherwise achieved its main litigation objective" [Hsu v. Abbata (1995) 9 C4th 863, 877, 39 CR2d 824, 891 P2d 804]. Thus, not all examples of prevailing parties are obvious ones.

Examples:

- A plaintiff was the prevailing party despite having only recovered less than one fourth of the original amount prayed for [Scott Co. of Cal. v. Blount, Inc. (1999) 20 C4th 1103, 1109, 86 CR2d 614, 979 P2d 974].
- The defendants were the prevailing party in a declaratory relief action because they were able to prove that their alleged signatures on the contract were forgeries [Milman v. Shukhat (1994) 22 CA4th 538, 545, 27 CR2d 526].

- When a party's petition was dismissed in probate court but still could be pursued in a related civil action, the opposing party was not a prevailing party because the contract claim had not yet been resolved [Estate of Drummond (2007) 149 CA4th 46, 51, 56 CR3d691] .

- The defendant was the prevailing party when the trial court granted his motion to quash service for lack of personal jurisdiction and dismissed plaintiff's complaint [Profit Concepts Management, Inc. v. Griffith (2008) 162 CA4th 950, 952, 76 CR3d 396] .

- A party who successfully defeated a petition to compel arbitration was the prevailing party in the action on the contract, even though the merits of the parties' underlying contractual disputes were not yet resolved [Otay River Constructors v. San Diego Expressway (2008) 158 CA4th 796, 807, 70 CR3d 434] .

- The trial court did not abuse its discretion in determining that borrowers were entitled to attorney's fees as prevailing parties from a substituted trustee that conducted a nonjudicial foreclosure. Although the court ruled in favor of the trustee on the borrowers' negligence and slander of title claims, the court found the trustee jointly and severally liable with the lenders for the borrowers' attorney fees on their equitable claims because the trustee had consistently allied itself with the lenders on the essential issues relevant to claims on the note and deed of trust, on which the borrowers had prevailed [Kachlon v. Markowitz (2008) 168 CA4th 316, 349, 85 CR3d 532] .

- In litigation brought by homeowners against the board of directors of their condominium association, the trial court did not abuse its discretion in determining that the homeowners, who prevailed on their legal and equitable causes of action, were prevailing parties. Although the homeowners' monetary damages were not substantial, they avoided the association's cross-complaint. In their claims for injunctive relief, although the homeowners did not achieve their litigation "dream," they did accomplish a main litigation objective [Ritter & Ritter, Inc. Pension & Profit Plan v. The Churchill Condominium Assn. (2008) 166 CA4th 103, 126-127, 82 CR3d 389] .

- In an action brought by a bank against a borrower who failed to repay a home loan, the trial court erred in denying the borrower's motion for an award of attorney fees incurred in successfully defending against the bank's breach of contract cause of action. Even though the bank recovered a judgment on its unjust enrichment cause of action, the court could not properly consider the bank's success on its noncontract causes of action in making its determination of which party prevailed on the contract cause of action [Federal Deposit Ins. Corp. v. Dintino (2008) 167 CA4th 333, 358, 84 CR3d 38] .

- When a plaintiff unsuccessfully sought declaratory and injunctive relief to prevent arbitration, the defendants were prevailing parties on that discrete action, irrespective of who became the prevailing party in the subsequent arbitration [Turner v. Schultz (2009) 175 CA4th 974, 983-984, 96 CR3d 659] .

Cross Reference:

Discussion of fee recoveries under CC § 1717, see 12.06.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney

FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesCostsGeneral
OverviewContracts LawRemediesGeneral Overview

82 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 12 Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation
IV. DETERMINING PREVAILING PARTY FOR RECOVERY OF COSTS OR FEES

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 12.26

AUTHOR: James E. Wright II

12.26 Discretion of Court Under CC § 1717 Is Not Unlimited.

While the practical approach to determining litigation success affords great flexibility to the court, sensible boundaries must be imposed on the court's discretion. When the decision on the litigated contract claims is "purely good news for one party and bad news for the other," a trial court has no discretion to deny attorney's fees to the successful litigant. Thus, when a defendant defeats recovery by the plaintiff on the only contract claim in the action, the defendant is the party prevailing on the contract under CC § 1717 as a matter of law [Hsu v. Abbata (1995) 9 C4th 863, 876, 39 CR2d 824, 891 P2d 804].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDiscretionCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesGeneral
OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesReasonable FeesCivil
ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesCostsGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesGeneral Overview

83 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 12 Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation
IV. DETERMINING PREVAILING PARTY FOR RECOVERY OF COSTS OR FEES

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 12.27

AUTHOR: James E. Wright II

12.27 Court Determines Prevailing Party on Noticed Motion in Request for Fees Allocated by Contract.

CC § 1717(b)(1) requires a noticed motion for a determination of the prevailing party. When seeking to recover fees under the contract for a contract cause of action invoking CC § 1717, a party should move for a determination of the prevailing party under that section. Absent the application of CC § 1717 (for example, a tort award when a contract's fee provision is broad enough to cover such an award), no such requirement exists. However, in order to recover attorney's fees as costs under CCP § 1021, a party still must file a noticed motion in order to fix the fee award under CCP § 1033.5(c)(5).

Cross Reference:

Form, see 12.29.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees Reasonable Fees Contracts Law Remedies General Overview

84 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 12 Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation
IV. DETERMINING PREVAILING PARTY FOR RECOVERY OF COSTS OR FEES

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 12.28

AUTHOR: James E. Wright II

12.28 In Actions on Multiple Agreements That Stand on Their Own, Multiple Prevailing Parties May Exist for Purpose of Allocating Costs and Fees.

In a lawsuit involving several contracts, attorney's fees may be awarded under CC § 1717 to the prevailing party on each contract, whether or not that party is a prevailing party in the lawsuit [Hunt v. Fahnestock (1990) 220 CA3d 628, 630, 269 CR 614]. In cases involving multiple parties and independent agreements, fees may be awarded to the different parties who prevailed on each agreement. Moreover, which party obtained a higher net recovery in the lawsuit is irrelevant to the determination of which party prevailed in any particular action on a contract. Courts may award attorney's fees allocated by contract under CC § 1717 under each particular agreement. Courts also may award fees based on other independent sources if those fee awards are based on the outcome of the suit as a whole. This is in contrast to CCP § 1032, which requires that costs be awarded to the party "with a net monetary recovery" [Myers Bldg. Industries, Ltd. v. Interface Technology, Inc. (1993) 13 CA4th 949, 975, n21, 17 CR2d 242].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Costs General Overview Contracts Law Remedies General Overview

85 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 12 Recovering Attorney's Fees and Costs in Contract Litigation
V. FORMS

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 12.29

AUTHOR: James E. Wright II12.29 Notice of Motion to Determine Party Prevailing on Contract and to Fix Amount of Attorney's Fees to Be Awarded As Costs, With Supporting Declaration.*Notice of Motion to Determine Party Prevailing on Contract and to Fix Amount of Attorney's Fees to Be Awarded As Costs and Supporting Declaration.

_____ [Name of attorney]
 _____ [Street address]
 _____ [City, state, and ZIP]
 _____ [Area code and phone number]
 _____ [State Bar no. of attorney]
 Attorney for _____ [name of party]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
 COUNTY OF _____

[name] _____,	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO.
vs.	)	_____
[name] _____,	)
Defendant.	)	NOTICE OF MO-
	)	TION _____
	)	_____ [TO DETERM-
		INE PARTY PREVAILING ON CONTRACT and/or
		TO FIX AMOUNT OF ATTORNEY'S FEES
		AWARDABLE AS ITEM OF COSTS], SUPPORT-ING DECLARATION OF
		_____ [identify party, e.g., DE-
		FENDANT MARY JONES] [, AND MEMOR-ANDUM]

Judge:

Department:

To _____ [identify party, e.g., Defendant]
 _____ [name] and to his/her attorney of record:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that, on _____ [date], at _____ [time], or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in [ _____ (Department or _____ Division) of] this court, located at _____ [street address], _____ [city]

_____, [specify party, e.g.,
 _____ Plaintiff] will move for an order

[determining that he/she/it is the party prevailing on the contract for purposes of Civil Code Section 1717 and is entitled under that section to an award of attorney's fees as an item of costs and/or _____ fixing the amount of attorney's fees to which he/she/it is entitled as the party prevailing on the contract in this action]. This motion will be made on the ground that [specify moving party, e.g.,

_____ Plaintiff] [recovered the greater relief in this action on the contract and is therefore the party prevailing on the contract within the meaning of Civil Code
Section 1717 and/or _____ has paid or incurred liability for attorney's fees to (prosecute or defend) this action, which he/she/it is entitled, as the party prevailing on the contract, to recover as part of his/her/its costs of suit].

The motion will be based on this notice of motion, on the declaration(s) of _____ [name(s)] and the memorandum served and filed herewith, on the records and file herein, and on such evidence as may be presented at the hearing of the motion.

Dated: _____

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

.....

SUPPORTING DECLARATION OF

_____ [name]

I, _____ [name], declare:

1. I am _____ [identify declarant, e. g., an attorney at law duly admitted to practice before all the courts of the State of California and the attorney of record herein for _____ (specify moving party, e.g., Plaintiff) in the above-described action].

2. This declaration is submitted in support of the motion by _____ [specify moving party, e.g., Plaintiff] for an order _____ [determining that he/she/it is the party prevailing on the contract for purposes of Civil Code Section 1717 and is entitled under that section to an award of attorney's fees as an item of costs and/or fixing the amount of attorney's fees to which he/she/it is entitled as the party prevailing on the contract in the above-entitled action].

3. The above-entitled action is _____ [specify nature of action, e.g., for damages for breach of the contract that is set out in Exhibit "A" to the complaint in this action and that was also Plaintiff's Exhibit "D" in evidence at the trial)]. Paragraph _____ [specify letter or number] of that contract provides that _____ [set forth contract provision for recovery of attorney's fees, e.g., if any party to that contract is required to retain the services of an attorney to enforce his or her rights under the contract or to acquire possession of the subject matter of the contract, that party will be entitled to recover reasonable attorney's fees in addition to any other relief to which he or she is entitled].

4. The above-entitled action resulted in _____ [specify result of action showing that moving party is the party prevailing on the contract whether or not it proceeded to final judgment, e.g., a judgment of this court in favor of Plaintiff entered on (date)

_____, in which this court awarded damages to Plaintiff in the sum of $ _____].

[ADD, if declaration is supporting motion to fix amount of attorney's fees to be awarded as costs]

5. _____ [State here and in succeeding paragraphs, as necessary, facts showing the amount of attorney's fees incurred by moving party, and facts supporting an award in that amount].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the state of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

.....

MEMORANDUM

[If desired, add memorandum supporting motion]

NOTES.

Authority:

CC § 1717(a), (b); CCP § 1033.5(a)(10)(B), (c)(5)

Attorney's Fees Authorized by Contract As Element of Costs:

See 12.05 -12.07

Attorney's Fees Authorized by Statute As Element of Costs:

See 12.05 -12.07

Claim for Attorney's Fees Not Based on Court's Established Schedule of Fees:

See 12.13

Court Authorized to Fix Attorney's Fees Authorized by Statute on Noticed Motion on Application Supported by Affidavit:

See 12.13

Prevailing Party Defined:

See 12.24, 12.25

Prevailing Party Entitled to Recover Costs Generally:

See 12.19[1]

Court Determines Prevailing Party on Noticed Motion:

See 12.27

Service and Filing of Notice of Motion for Attorney's Fees and Memorandum of Costs:

See 12.12[2] -[4]

Detailed Discussion of Format/Skeletal Forms for Memoranda:

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 417, Points and Authorities (Matthew Bender);
California Points and Authorities, Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs (Matthew Bender)

Additional Memoranda Related to Motions for Attorney's Fees Under CC § 1717:

See California Points and Authorities, Ch. 60, Costs (Matthew Bender)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Motion Practice Content & Form Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees General Overview Civil Procedure Remedies Costs & Attorney Fees Attorney Expenses & Fees Reasonable Fees Contracts Law Remedies General Overview

86 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.syn

§ 13.syn Synopsis to Chapter 13: Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element

Scope.

13.02 Objective and Strategy.

13.03 CHECKLIST: Determining Whether Essential Elements of Valid Contract Are Present.

13.04 Elements of Contract.

13.04A Contract May Be Either Express or Implied.

13.05 Parties Must Be Identifiable.

13.06 Parties Must Be Capable of Contracting.

13.07 Parties Must Consent to Contract.

13.07[1] Consent Must Be Mutual.

13.07[2] Consent Must Be Freely Given.

13.07[3] Consent Must Be Communicated.

13.07[3][a] Each Party Must Communicate Consent to Other Party.

13.07[3][b] Signing Contract Ordinarily Communicates Consent, Even If Party Did Not Read Contract Before Signing.

13.07[3][c] Exchanging Formal Offer and Acceptance Communicates Consent.

13.07[3][d] Receiving and Accepting Contract Signed by Other Party Communicates Consent.

13.07[4] Real, but Unexpressed, Intention of Party Is Immaterial.

13.07[4][a] Mutuality of Consent Is Judged by Objective Standard.

13.07[4][b] Test Is Whether Reasonable Person Would Conclude Consent Was Mutual.

13.07[4][c] Manifestation of Consent May Be Shown by Words, Acts, or Failure to Act.

13.07[4][d] Undisclosed Intentions Are Not Determinative.

13.08 Contract Must Have Lawful Object.

13.09 Contract Must Have Sufficient Cause or Consideration.

13.10 Contract Must Be Reasonably Definite.

13.10[1] Terms of Contract Must Be Expressed With Reasonable Certainty.

13.10[2] Issue of Certainty Is Question of Law.

13.11 CHECKLIST: Challenging Existence of Contract Based on Absence of Essential Element.

13.12 Procedural Context in Which Issue of Existence of Contract May Be Raised Depends on Circumstances of Case.

13.12[1] Party Seeking to Avoid Potential Action on Contract May Raise Issue in Action for Declaratory Relief.

13.12[2] Party Bringing Action on Contract Must Plead and Prove Existence of Contract.

13.12[3] Defendant Must Raise Issue Regarding Existence of Contract in Responsive Pleadings.

13.12[4] Issue May Be Resolved on Motion for Summary Judgment If Existence of Contract Is Question of Law.

13.13 Action for Declaratory Relief May Seek to Challenge or Confirm Existence of Contract.

13.14 Issue May Be Raised by Demurrer If Complaint Based on Contract Fails to Plead Essential Element for Existence of Contract.

13.14[1] Complaint May Fail to State Facts Sufficient to Constitute Cause of Action.

13.14[2] Objection Is Not Waived by Failure to Raise by Demurrer.

13.15 Answer May Deny Existence of Contract Pled by Complaint.

13.16 Absence of Essential Element Not Raised by Complaint May Be Raised by Affirmative Defense in Answer.

13.16[1] Absence of Essential Element of Contract May Constitute New Matter That Must Be Alleged As Affirmative Defense.

13.16[1][a] "New Matter" Is Anything Not Put in Issue by Allegations of Complaint.

13.16[1][b] Lack of Consideration Is Affirmative Defense.

13.16[1][c] Unlawful Object May Be Affirmative Defense.

13.16[2] Failure to Plead Affirmative Defenses Generally Waives Them.

13.16[3] Defendant Generally Has Burden of Proof As to Affirmative Defenses.

13.17 Issue of Existence of Contract May Be Determined on Motion for Summary Judgment If Absence of Essential Element Is Question of Law.

13.17[1] Certain or Undisputed Facts May Make Absence of Essential Element a Question of Law.

13.17[2] Triable Issues of Fact As to Essential Element of Contract Preclude Summary Judgment.

13.18 CHECKLIST: Determining Whether Valid Offer Was Made.

13.19 Elements of Valid Offer.

13.20 Offeror Must Have Intent to Contract.

13.20[1] Offer Indicates Offeror's Willingness to Enter Into Bargain.

13.20[2] Circumstances May Indicate Lack of Intent.

13.20[3] Offeror's Intent Is Question of Fact.

13.21 Offer Must Be Reasonably Definite.

13.22 Offer Must Be Received by Offeree.

13.23 Offer Must Not Be Revoked by Offeror Before Acceptance.

13.23[1] Offer Generally May Be Revoked Before Acceptance by Offeree.

13.23[2] Offer May Be Revoked by Notice to Offeree.

13.23[3] Offer May Be Revoked by Lapse of Time.

13.23[4] Offer May Be Revoked by Failure to Fulfill Condition Precedent to Acceptance.

13.23[5] Offer May Be Revoked by Death or Insanity of Offeror.

13.24 Some Offers Are Irrevocable.

13.24[1] Offer That Is Subject of Option Supported by Consideration Is Irrevocable.

13.24[2] Offer May Be Made Irrevocable by Statute or Regulation.

13.25 CHECKLIST: Determining Whether There Has Been a Valid Acceptance.

13.26 Elements of Valid Acceptance.

13.27 Acceptance Must Indicate Assent to Terms of Offer.

13.27[1] Acceptance May Be Expressed by Written or Oral Words or by Conduct Unless Offer or Statute Specifies Otherwise.

13.27[2] Performance of Conditions of Offer or Acceptance of Consideration Constitutes Acceptance.

13.28 Acceptance Must Be Absolute and Unqualified.

13.28[1] Terms of Offer Must Be Met Unequivocally.

13.28[2] Qualified Acceptance Constitutes Counteroffer.

13.28[3] "Grumbling" Acceptance Is Not Necessarily Rejection of Offer.

13.28[4] Issue of Acceptance or Rejection of Offer Is Question of Fact.

13.29 Acceptance Generally Must Be Communicated to Offeror.

13.29[1] Offeree Must Perform Act or Omission Intended to Communicate Acceptance.

13.29[2] Acceptance Must Satisfy Any Conditions Prescribed by Offer.

13.29[3] Unilateral Contract Is Accepted by Performance.

13.30 Acceptance Is Effective When Offeree Puts Acceptance in Course of Transmission to Offeror.

13.30[1] Transmission of Acceptance Must Comply With Requirements Specified by Offer.

13.30[2] Acceptance by Mail Is Effective Upon Posting.

13.31 Silence Generally May Not Constitute Acceptance.

13.32 CHECKLIST: Determining Whether Parties Intended to Contract.

13.33 Parties Must Manifest Intention to Agree in Regard to Matter in Question.

13.34 Parties' Promise to Agree in Future Does Not Necessarily Render Contract Unenforceable.

13.34[1] Law Favors Enforcement of Contracts.

13.34[2] Contract Is Enforceable If Court Can Determine What to Enforce.

13.35 Parties' Intention Determines Whether Contract Arises From Agreement to Execute Written Agreement.

13.35[1] Parties May Intend Informal Agreement to Be Binding.

13.35[2] Parties May Intend Contract to Be Effective Only After Formal Agreement Is Signed.

13.35[3] Parties' Intention Regarding Oral Agreement Is Question of Fact.

13.36 CHECKLIST: Determining Existence of Adequate Consideration.

13.37 Consideration Generally Is Required for Valid Contract.

13.38 Party Seeking to Avoid Written Contract Must Overcome Presumption of Consideration.

13.38[1] Presumption May Be Rebutted by Evidence Showing Lack of Consideration.

13.38[2] Presumption May Affect Burden of Producing Evidence, Not Burden of Proof.

13.39 Specified Contracts Are Exempted by Statute From Consideration Requirement.

13.39[1] Written Release of Debtor Does Not Require Consideration.

13.39[2] Written Acceptance of Part Performance in Satisfaction of Obligation Does Not Require Consideration.

13.39[3] Written Modification of Oral Contract Does Not Require Consideration.

13.39[4] Authorization of Agent Does Not Require Consideration.

13.39[5] Some Surety Obligations Do Not Require Consideration.

13.40 Consideration May Be Benefit to Promisor or Detriment to Promisee.

13.41 Consideration Must Be Part of Bargain or Agreed Exchange.

13.42 Consideration Must Be Sufficient.

13.42[1] Existing Legal or Moral Obligation of Promisor May Constitute Consideration Only in Limited Circumstances.

13.42[1][a] Existing Obligation May Constitute Consideration Only to Extent of Obligation.

13.42[1][b] Moral Consideration Is Sufficient Only If Enforceable Obligation Once Existed.

13.42[2] Promises Mutual in Obligation Constitute Consideration.

13.42[3] Sufficiency of Consideration Does Not Depend on Intrinsic Value.

13.42[4] Consideration Must Not Violate Law or Public Policy.

13.42[5] Amount of Consideration Need Not Be Specified.

13.42[5][a] Amount May Be Determined by Third Party or According to Specified Standard.

13.42[5][b] Amount Otherwise Must Be What Object of Contract Is Reasonably Worth.

13.42[5][c] Contract Is Void If Method for Ascertaining Consideration Is Impossible.

13.42[6] Promise to Perform Existing Duty Is Not Adequate Consideration.

13.42[7] Relinquishment of Claimed Right May Constitute Adequate Consideration.

13.43 Requirements Contracts Do Not Lack Consideration.

13.44 Contracts Containing Satisfaction Clauses Do Not Lack Consideration.

13.45 Promissory Estoppel May Substitute for Consideration.

13.45[1] Promise Without Consideration May Be Binding to Avoid Injustice.

13.45[2] Promise Must Be Clear and Unambiguous.

13.45[3] If Reliance Was Part of Bargain, Doctrine Does Not Apply.

13.45[4] Plaintiff Must Prove That Defendant Caused Plaintiff's Damages.

13.46 CHECKLIST: Determining Effect of Absence of a Contract Term.

13.47 Contract Need Not Set Forth Every Term and Condition to Be Enforceable.

13.47[1] Contract Must Evidence Agreement on Essential Items.

13.47[2] Law Disfavors Holding Contracts Unenforceable.

13.47[3] Inferences From Contract and Extrinsic Evidence May Supply Missing Terms.

13.47[4] Uncertainty May Be Resolved by Rules of Contract Interpretation.

13.48 Failure to Specify Price Does Not Necessarily Void Contract.

13.49 Time for Performance or Duration of Contract May Be Implied.

13.49[1] Time for Performance May Be Deemed to Be Within Reasonable Time.

13.49[2] Payment Is Deemed to Be Due Immediately.

13.49[3] Duration of Contract May Be Implied.

13.50 Failure to Specify Quantity Does Not Render Requirements Contract Unenforceable.

13.51 Conduct of Parties May Render Contract Enforceable Despite Uncertainty.

13.52 Specific Contract Terms May Be Required by Statute.

13.52[1] Many Types of Contracts Are Governed by Statute.

13.52[2] Particular Contract Terms May Be Specified.

13.52[3] Particular Contract Terms May Be Prohibited.

13.52[4] Failure to Comply May Render Contract Void or Voidable.

13.52[5] Statute May Provide Remedies for Violation.

13.53 Answer to Complaint for Breach of Contract With Affirmative Defense(s) Based on Absence of Essential Element.

Answer to Complaint for Breach of Contract With Affirmative Defense(s) Based on Absence of Essential Element.

13.54 Notice of Motion for Summary Judgment/Absence of Essential Element of Contract Is Question of Law.

Notice of Motion for Summary Judgment/Absence of Essential Element of Contract Is Question of Law.

13.55 Declaration in Support of Motion for Summary Judgment/Absence of Essential Element of Contract Is Question of Law.

Declaration in Support of Motion for Summary Judgment/Absence of Essential Element of Contract Is Question of Law.

13.56 Separate Statement of Undisputed Facts and Supporting Evidence in Support of Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment

Separate Statement of Undisputed Facts and Supporting Evidence in Support of Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment

13.57 Memorandum for Party Attacking Existence of Contract--Lack of Mutual Consent.

Memorandum for Party Attacking Existence of Contract--Lack of Mutual Consent.

13.58 Memorandum for Party Attacking Existence of Contract--Offer Revoked Before Acceptance.

Memorandum for Party Attacking Existence of Contract--Offer Revoked Before Acceptance.

13.59 Memorandum for Party Attacking Existence of Contract--Offer Not Accepted.

Memorandum for Party Attacking Existence of Contract--Offer Not Accepted.

13.60 Memorandum for Party Attacking Existence of Contract--Formal Agreement Not Signed.

Memorandum for Party Attacking Existence of Contract--Formal Agreement Not Signed.

13.61 Memorandum for Party Attacking Existence of Contract--Lack of Consideration.

Memorandum for Party Attacking Existence of Contract--Lack of Consideration.

13.62 Memorandum for Party Defending Existence of Contract--Signing Agreement Communicates Consent.

Memorandum for Party Defending Existence of Contract--Signing Agreement Communicates Consent.

13.63 Memorandum for Party Defending Existence of Contract--Revocation Not Communicated Before Acceptance.

Memorandum for Party Defending Existence of Contract--Revocation Not Communicated Before Acceptance.

13.64 Memorandum for Party Defending Existence of Contract--Oral Contract Enforceable Without Signed Agreement.

Memorandum for Party Defending Existence of Contract--Oral Contract Enforceable Without Signed Agreement.

13.65 Memorandum for Party Defending Existence of Contract--Promise Enforceable Without Consideration Under Doctrine of Promissory Estoppel.

Memorandum for Party Defending Existence of Contract--Promise Enforceable Without Consideration Under Doctrine of Promissory Estoppel.

13.66 Memorandum for Party Defending Existence of Contract--Contract Enforceable Despite Absence of Missing Term.

Memorandum for Party Defending Existence of Contract--Contract Enforceable Despite Absence of Missing Term.

13.67 Memorandum for Party Defending Existence of Contract--Implied Contract Enforceable Without Express Statement of Terms.

Memorandum for Party Defending Existence of Contract--Implied Contract Enforceable Without Express Statement of Terms.

87 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element

I. STRATEGY

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation

Scope.

This chapter covers:

- Objective and strategy for attacking or defending the existence of a contract, based on the absence of an essential element [see 13.02].
- Determining whether the essential elements required for a valid contract are present [see 13.03 -13.09], including:
 - ☐ Parties who are identifiable and capable of contracting [see 13.05, 13.06].
 - ☐ Mutual consent of the parties to contract [see 13.07].
 - ☐ A lawful object [see 13.08].
 - ☐ Sufficient consideration [see 13.09].
 - ☐ Terms sufficiently definite to be enforceable [see 13.10].
- Determining how and when to challenge the existence of a contract based on the absence of an essential element [see 13.11 -13.17].
- Determining whether there was a valid offer to contract [see 13.18 -13.24].
- Determining whether there was a valid acceptance of an offer to contract [see 13.25 -13.31].
- Determining whether the parties intended to agree [see 13.32 -13.35].
- Determining the existence of adequate consideration [see 13.36 -13.45].

- Determining the effect of the absence of a contract term [see 13.46 -13.52], such as:

- ☐ Terms specifying price [see 13.48].

- ☐ Terms stating time for performance, payment, or duration of the contract [see 13.49].

- ☐ Terms of quantity [see 13.50].

- ☐ Terms required by statute [see 13.52].

- Determining whether the conduct of the parties renders a contract enforceable despite the absence of an essential term [see 13.51].

Core Statutes:

CC §§ 1549, 1550, 1565, 1566, 1580-1587, 1605-1615, 1667

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawFormationAcceptanceGeneral OverviewContracts LawFormationCapacity of PartiesGeneral OverviewContracts LawFormationDefinite TermsContracts LawFormationMeeting of MindsContracts LawFormationOffersGeneral Overview

88 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
I. STRATEGY

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.02

13.02 Objective and Strategy.

The existence of a valid contract is fundamental to maintaining an action to enforce a contract or recover damages for its breach. A party bringing an action based on contract must plead and prove that the parties had a valid contract [see Evid Code § 500]. Thus, in enforcing or attempting to enforce a contract, the first step is to determine whether a valid contract actually exists.

Conversely, in opposing an action for nonperformance or breach of a contract, the defendant's first step should be to determine whether or not a valid contract was formed. A party sued for breach of contract may escape all or some liability if no valid enforceable contract existed.

Strategic Point--All Parties:

In some cases, quantum meruit recovery is possible even when no valid contract was formed. For discussion, see Ch. 9, Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions.

A challenge to the existence of a contract generally will be raised by the defendant in an action based on the purported contract [see 13.12 -13.16]. However, a party may also challenge the existence of a contract in an action for declaratory relief to avoid a potential action on the contract by the opposing party [see 13.13].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of declaratory relief actions, see Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions.

The party disputing the existence of the contract must determine the appropriate time and manner of raising the issue, based on the circumstances of the particular case [see 13.12]. The determination of how and when to raise the issue depends on whether the opposing party has filed an action based on the contract [see 13.12], how the existence of the purported contract is pled by the opposing party [see 13.11 -13.16], and whether the absence of an essential element of the contract is a question of law or a question of fact [see 13.17].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

One disadvantage of attacking the contract's existence (as opposed to arguing that it was breached) is that the attacking party may deprive itself of the ability to enforce the contract.

Detailed Discussion/Forms:

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts (Matthew Bender);

California Legal Forms, Ch. 75, Formation of Contracts and Standard Contractual Provisions (Matthew Bender); and California Points and Authorities, Ch. 50, Contracts (Matthew Bender).

Cross Reference:

For Tips on updating case law and expanding your research with additional resources, see How to Use Lexis.com With This Publication at the front of this volume.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawConsiderationGeneral OverviewContracts LawFormationGeneral OverviewContracts

LawFormationAcceptanceGeneral OverviewContracts LawFormationCapacity of PartiesGeneral OverviewContracts

LawFormationMeeting of Minds

89 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
II. DETERMINING WHETHER ESSENTIAL ELEMENTS OF VALID CONTRACT ARE PRESENT

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.03

13.03 CHECKLIST: Determining Whether Essential Elements of Valid Contract Are Present.

- ☐ Determine whether parties to purported contract are identifiable.

Authority:

CC § 1558

Discussion:

See 13.05

- ☐ Determine whether parties were capable of contracting.

Authority:

CC § 1550

Discussion:

See 13.06

- ☐ Determine whether parties' consent to the contract was:

☐ Mutual.

Authority:

CC §§ 1550, 1565

Discussion:

See 13.07[1]

Forms:

See 13.57 (memorandum for party attacking existence of contract), 13.63 (memorandum for party defending existence of contract)

☐ Freely given.

Authority:

CC § 1565

Discussion:

See 13.07[2]

☐ Communicated by each party to the other.

Authority:

CC § 1565

Discussion:

See 13.07[3]

☐ Determine whether contract has lawful object.

Authority:

CC §§ 1550, 1596

Discussion:

See 13.08

☐ Determine whether contract has sufficient cause or consideration.

Authority:

CC § 1550

Discussion:

See 13.09

Forms:

See 13.53 (answer with affirmative defenses), 13.61 (memorandum for party attacking existence of contract), 13.65 (memorandum for party defending existence of contract)

☐ Determine whether terms of contract are sufficiently definite to be enforceable.

Authority:

Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 302 P 2 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender); Weddington Productions, Inc. v. Flick (1998) 60 CA4th 793, 811 ; Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 33(1), (2)

Discussion:

See 13.10

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawConsiderationGeneral OverviewContracts LawFormationAcceptanceGeneral OverviewContracts
LawFormationCapacity of PartiesGeneral OverviewContracts LawFormationDefinite TermsContracts
LawFormationMeeting of Minds

90 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
II. DETERMINING WHETHER ESSENTIAL ELEMENTS OF VALID CONTRACT ARE PRESENT

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.04

13.04 Elements of Contract.

A contract is an agreement to do or not to do a certain thing [CC § 1549]. The existence of a contract requires the presence of these essential elements [CC § 1550; see 13.05 -13.09]:

- Parties identifiable [see 13.05] and capable of contracting [see 13.06].
- The parties' consent to contract. The parties' consent to contract may be shown by a signed written agreement, by a valid offer to contract made by one party and a valid acceptance of that offer by the other, or by conduct indicating consent [see 13.07].
- A lawful object [see 13.08; see also Ch. 18, Asserting or Defending Claim That Contract Is Illegal, Contrary to Public Policy, or Unconscionable].
- Sufficient cause or consideration [see 13.09].

The absence of any of these elements will preclude an action for breach of the purported contract.

Under Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 302 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender), a party seeking to prove that a contract was created must prove all of the following:

- That the parties were legally capable of entering into the contract [see 13.06].
- That the contract terms were clear enough that the parties could understand what each was required to do [see 13.21].
- That the contract had a legal purpose [see 13.08; see also Ch. 18, Asserting or Defending Claim That Contract Is Illegal, Contrary to Public Policy, or Unconscionable].
- That the parties agreed to give each other something of value. A promise to do something or not to do something may have value [see 13.09].
- That the parties agreed to the terms of the contract [see 13.07].

Strategic Point--All Parties:

In some cases, quantum meruit recovery is possible even when no valid contract was formed. See Ch. 9, Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions.

Cross Reference:

Discussion, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, §§ 140.20 -140.24 (Matthew Bender).

Search California Points and Authorities:

Use lexis.com to search California Points and Authorities regarding the elements of a contract:

■ Legal > States Legal--U.S. > California > Search Analysis & CLE Materials > CA Treatises & Analytical Materials > California Points & Authorities

Sample Search: For California Points and Authorities on the elements of a contract, use this search: element /10 contract! OR agreement.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawConsiderationGeneral OverviewContracts LawFormationGeneral OverviewContracts LawFormationCapacity of PartiesGeneral OverviewContracts LawFormationDefinite TermsContracts LawFormationMeeting of Minds

91 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
II. DETERMINING WHETHER ESSENTIAL ELEMENTS OF VALID CONTRACT ARE PRESENT

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.04A

13.04A Contract May Be Either Express or Implied.

A contract may be either express or implied. An express contract is one in which the terms are stated in words, either oral or written [CC § 1620]. The terms of an implied contract, by contrast, are manifested by conduct [CC § 1621; Silva v. Providence Hospital of Oakland (1939) 14 C2d 762, 773, 97 P2d 798 ; Division of Labor Law Enforcement v. Transpacific Transportation Co. (1977) 69 CA3d 268, 275, 137 CR 855].

The elements of both express and implied contracts are the same [see 13.04]. Both require the parties' consent to contract; they differ only in the manner in which the parties' consent is established.

An implied contract cannot override the terms of an express agreement between the parties [Falkowski v. Imation Corp. (2005) 132 CA4th 499, 518].

Examples--Implied Contracts:

- Plaintiff's allegation that during almost seven years of employment he received repeated oral assurances of job security and consistent promotions, salary increases, and bonuses stated a cause of action for an implied contract limiting his employer's right to terminate him arbitrarily [Foley v. Interactive Data Corp. (1988) 47 C3d 654, 681-682, 254 CR 211, 765 P2d 373].
- When plaintiff presented a toy manufacturer with an idea for a cartoon and related toy line, and the manufacturer later produced a toy based on a concept similar to plaintiff's, the toy manufacturer could be bound by an implied promise to pay the plaintiff for using his idea, even if the plaintiff did not expressly condition disclosure on the toy manufacturer's agreement to pay for his idea [Gunther-Wahl Productions, Inc. v. Mattel, Inc. (2002) 104 CA4th 27, 35-43, 128 CR2d 50].
- When a distributor purchased wine from a supplier for resale to retailers in its assigned territories for many years, but the parties never discussed the terms of their distributorship relationship, an implied contract existed, the terms of which the court would determine from the parties' course of conduct [Varni Bros. Corp. v. Wine World, Inc. (1995) 35 CA4th 880, 889, 41 CR2d740].

■ An implied contract between a university and its students was created by the students' conduct when they accepted the university's offer of enrollment, and statements on the university's web site and in its catalogues promising not to raise the professional degree fee for continuing students became a term of their implied contracts [Kashmiri v. Regents of University of California (2007) 156 CA4th 809, 829-833, 67 CR3d 635] .

■ An implied contract not to use a screenplay without paying for it existed when (1) plaintiff submitted a screenplay for sale to defendant, (2) plaintiff conditioned use of the screenplay on payment, (3) defendant knew or should have known of the condition, (4) defendant voluntarily accepted the screenplay, (5) defendant actually used the screenplay, and (6) the screenplay had value [Mann v. Columbia Pictures, Inc. (1982) 128 CA3d 628, 646-647, 180 CR 522 ; Benay v. Warner Bros. Entm't, Inc. (9th Cir 2010) 607 F3d 620, 629] .

Example--No Implied Contract:

Application for an Academy Award did not create an implied contract [Yari v. Producers Guild of America, Inc. (2008) 161 CA4th 172, 182, 73 CR3d 803] .

Jury Instructions:

Implied-in-Fact Contract, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 305 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Contract--Express or Implied, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3A, Instr. MB 300A.05 (Matthew Bender).

Implied Contracts (Literary Property), see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3A, Instr. MB 300A.06 (Matthew Bender).

Cross References:

Memorandum for party defending existence of contract, see 13.62A.

Discussion of implied contracts, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 140.10[5][a] (Matthew Bender).

Distinguish--Contracts Implied By Law:

Implied contracts are sometimes referred to as "implied-in-fact contracts" to distinguish them from contracts "implied in law" or "quasi-contracts." Unlike implied-in-fact contracts, which are based on the intention of the parties, contracts implied in law are not contracts at all, but rather obligations imposed by law to prevent unjust enrichment [Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 C2d 778, 794, 256 P2d 947 ; Davies v. Krasna (1970) 12 CA3d 1049, 1054, 91 CR 250].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of implied-by-law contracts, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 140.10[5][b] (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawFormationGeneral OverviewContracts LawTypes of ContractsExecuted ContractsContracts LawTypes of ContractsExpress ContractsContracts LawTypes of ContractsImplied-in-Fact ContractsContracts LawTypes of ContractsOral Agreements

92 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
II. DETERMINING WHETHER ESSENTIAL ELEMENTS OF VALID CONTRACT ARE PRESENT

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.05

13.05 Parties Must Be Identifiable.

It is essential to the existence of a contract that the parties be identifiable [CC § 1558].

Examples:

■ When series of documents executed between a borrower and a real estate loan broker specifically stated that the broker was not the lender and that the borrower was not guaranteed a loan by signing the loan documents, and when the deed of trust and promissory note signed by the borrower left the name of the lender blank and granted the broker authority to fill in those blanks when a lender was arranged, the court held that it was clear that no one, including the broker, had agreed to extend credit to the borrower as of date of the borrower-broker agreement; the lender was unidentifiable and therefore no valid loan contract existed [Jackson v. Grant (9th Cir 1989) 890 F2d 118, 121].

■ In a products liability action by an injured skier against the lessor and distributor of defective ski equipment, the distributor was not entitled to claim the benefits of a release in a ski rental agreement executed by the skier and lessor because the agreement did not identify the distributor as a party to be bound or benefitted by agreement; the distributor therefore had the burden of showing some basis for extending the agreement to it, and failure to do so barred the distributor from invoking the contract [Westlye v. Look Sports, Inc. (1993) 17 CA4th 1715, 1728, 22 CR2d 781].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawFormationCapacity of PartiesGeneral OverviewContracts LawFormationDefinite Terms

93 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
II. DETERMINING WHETHER ESSENTIAL ELEMENTS OF VALID CONTRACT ARE PRESENT

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.06

13.06 Parties Must Be Capable of Contracting.

For a contract to be valid, the parties must be capable of contracting [CC § 1550].

Jury Instructions:

Contract Formation--Essential Factual Elements, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 302 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Cross Reference:

Discussion of capacity of parties, see Ch. 14, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Lack of Capacity.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawFormationCapacity of PartiesGeneral OverviewContracts LawFormationCapacity of PartiesAgeContracts LawFormationCapacity of PartiesMental Capacity

94 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
II. DETERMINING WHETHER ESSENTIAL ELEMENTS OF VALID CONTRACT ARE PRESENT

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.07

13.07 Parties Must Consent to Contract.

13.07[1] Consent Must Be Mutual. The consent of the parties is required for a valid contract [CC § 1550]. The consent must be mutual [CC § 1565]. Consent is not mutual unless the parties all agree on the same thing in the same sense [CC § 1580].

Example--Mutual Consent:

A lender's closing instructions to an escrow bank regarding the sale of a business exhibited mutual consent and created contract between them [Money Store Inv. Corp. v. Southern Cal. Bank (2002) 98 CA4th 722, 728, 120 CR2d 58].

Example--Lack of Mutual Consent:

A settlement agreement imposed on the parties by a mediator was lacking mutual consent and was unenforceable because the defendants never agreed to its terms [Weddington Prods., Inc. v. Flick (1998) 60 CA4th 793, 811, 71 CR2d 265].

Warning:

It can be very difficult to prove state-of-mind issues after the fact. Generally speaking, a contemporaneous writing (no matter how informal) works much better than interested testimony.

Strategic Points--Both Parties:

- Evid Code § 622 provides that facts recited in a written instrument (other than recitals of consideration) are conclusively presumed to be true as between the parties to that instrument. If the contract contains a statement of the parties' consent, this rule may be cited in opposition to the argument that no consent was given.

- If one party has led another to believe that he or she has given consent to a contract, only to recant later, the party arguing that consent was given should refer to Evid Code § 623, which provides that a party who has intentionally and deliberately led another to believe that a particular thing is true, and to act on that belief, is not permitted to contradict it in any litigation arising out of the statement.

Jury Instructions:

Contract Formation--Essential Factual Elements, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 302 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Objective Test of Agreement, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3A, Instr. MB 300A.03 (Matthew Bender).

 Cross References:

Memorandum for party attacking existence of contract, see 13.57.

Memorandum for party defending existence of contract, see 13.62.

13.07[2] Consent Must Be Freely Given. The consent of the parties to the contract must be freely given [CC § 1565]. A consent that is not freely given does not render the contract absolutely void [CC § 1566]. If consent is not freely given, the contract may be rescinded by the parties [CC § 1566; see CC §§ 1688-1693].

An apparent consent is not real or free when obtained through any of the following [CC § 1657]:

- Duress.
- Menace.
- Fraud.
- Undue influence.
- Mistake.

Consent is deemed to have been obtained through one of these causes only when it would not have been given had that cause not existed [CC § 1568].

Example:

When loan documents that were signed by an elderly, blind, mentally impaired woman were obtained through fraud in the execution, mutual assent was lacking [Jones v. Adams Fin. Servs. (1999) 71 CA4th 831, 840, 84 CR2d 151].

 Cross References:

Discussion of seeking rescission in contract actions, see Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions.

Discussion of asserting a mistake, see Ch. 16, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Mistake.

Discussion of fraud, duress, menace, and undue influence, see Ch. 17, Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Fraud, Duress, Menace, and Undue Influence.

13.07[3] Consent Must Be Communicated.

13.07[3][a] Each Party Must Communicate Consent to Other Party. The consent of the parties to a contract must be communicated by each to the other [CC § 1565].

Consent can be communicated effectively only by an act or omission of the contracting party [CC § 1581]:

- By which that party intends to communicate consent; or
- That necessarily tends to communicate consent.

13.07[3][b] Signing Contract Ordinarily Communicates Consent, Even If Party Did Not Read Contract Before Signing. Consent may be communicated between the parties by signing a contract [Banner Entm't, Inc. v. Superior Court (1998) 62 CA4th 348, 357-358, 72 CR2d 598].

Ordinarily, one who signs an instrument that on its face is a contract is deemed to assent to all its terms. A party cannot avoid the terms of a contract on the ground that he or she failed to read it before signing [Marin Storage & Trucking, Inc. v. Benco Contracting & Eng'g, Inc. (2001) 89 CA4th 1042, 1049, 107 CR2d 645] .

Example:

In an action to enforce a settlement agreement, the plaintiff could not defeat summary judgment by claiming that he had not read or understood the agreement before signing it [Stewart v. Preston Pipeline Inc. (2005) 134 CA4th 1565, 1587, 36 CR3d 901] .

Exception:

When the writing does not appear to be a contract, and the terms are not called to the attention of the recipient, no contract is formed with respect to the undisclosed term [Marin Storage & Trucking, Inc. v. Benco Contracting & Eng'g, Inc. (2001) 89 CA4th 1042, 1049-1050, 107 CR2d 645] .

➡ Cross Reference:

Memorandum for party defending existence of contract, see 13.62.

13.07[3][c] Exchanging Formal Offer and Acceptance Communicates Consent. The parties may communicate their consent to a contract by exchanging a formal offer and acceptance [Schreiber v. Hooker (1952) 114 CA2d 634, 637-640, 251 P2d 55] .

➡ Cross References:

Discussion of requirements for a valid offer, see 13.18 -13.24.

Discussion of requirements for a valid acceptance, see 13.25 -13.31.

13.07[3][d] Receiving and Accepting Contract Signed by Other Party Communicates Consent. The parties may communicate their consent to a contract if one party receives and accepts a contract signed by the other [Dallman Supply Co. v. Smith-Blair, Inc. (1951) 103 CA2d 129, 132, 228 P2d 886] .

13.07[4] Real, but Unexpressed, Intention of Party Is Immaterial.

13.07[4][a] Mutuality of Consent Is Judged by Objective Standard. The mutuality of the parties' consent is judged by an objective standard, based on the outward manifestation of consent [Stewart v. Preston Pipeline Inc. (2005) 134 CA4th 1565, 1587, 36 CR3d 901 ; Leo F. Piazza Paving Co. v. Bebek & Brkich (1956) 141 CA2d 226, 230, 296 P2d 368] .

Jury Instructions:

Objective Test of Agreement, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3A, Instr. MB 300A.03

(Matthew Bender).

13.07[4][b] Test Is Whether Reasonable Person Would Conclude Consent Was Mutual. The test to determine mutual consent is whether a reasonable person would conclude, from the conduct of the parties, that there was mutual agreement [Beard v. Goodrich (2003) 110 CA4th 1031, 1040].

13.07[4][c] Manifestation of Consent May Be Shown by Words, Acts, or Failure to Act. The manifestation of consent to a contract may be wholly or partly by written or spoken words or by other acts or by failure to act [Merced County Sheriff's Employees' Assn. v. County of Merced (1987) 188 CA3d 662, 670, 233 CR 519] . If the parties' consent is manifested through acts rather than words, the contract is sometimes referred to as an implied contract [CC § 1621; Division of Labor Law Enforcement v. Transpacific Transportation Co. (1977) 69 CA 3d 268, 275, 137 CR 855] .

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of implied contracts, see 13.04A.

13.07[4][d] Undisclosed Intentions Are Not Determinative. The real, but unexpressed, state of a party's mind on the subject is immaterial [Brant v. California Dairies, Inc. (1935) 4 C2d 128, 133, 48 P2d 13] . Therefore, a party who signs a contract may be bound by the terms of the contract even if he or she had a different, undisclosed intention [Palmquist v. Mercer (1954) 43 C2d 92, 98, 272 P2d 26 ; Myers v. Carter (1963) 215 CA2d 238, 241, 30 CR 91] .

 Cross Reference:

Memorandum for party defending existence of contract, see 13.62.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawFormationAcceptanceGeneral OverviewContracts LawFormationMeeting of MindsContracts LawFormationOffersGeneral Overview

95 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
 II. DETERMINING WHETHER ESSENTIAL ELEMENTS OF VALID CONTRACT ARE PRESENT

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.08

13.08 Contract Must Have Lawful Object.

The object of a contract--the thing which it is agreed, on the part of the party receiving the consideration, to do or not do [CC § 1595]--must be lawful when the contract is made, and possible and ascertainable by the time the contract is to be performed [CC §§ 1550, 1596]. Contracts may be void or voidable for illegality, unconscionability, or because they are contrary to public policy.

Distinguish:

A contract that contemplates the doing of a thing that is at first lawful but that afterward and during the running of the contract term becomes unlawful ceases to be operative when a prohibitory law takes effect [Industrial Dev. & Land Co. v. Goldschmidt (1922) 56 CA 507, 509, 206 P 134 (effect of Prohibition on lease restricting use of leased property to liquor business)]. This situation is governed by CC § 1511, which states that performance of a contract is excused when prevented by operation of law [see, e.g., Baird v. Wendt Enterprises, Inc. (1967) 248 CA2d 52, 55, 56 CR 118 (foreign jurisdiction's adoption of building code precluding issuance of permit to construct building "prevented" performance of contract within meaning CC § 1511)]. For discussion of the defense of excuse, and its limitations, see Ch. 22, Suing or Defending Action for Breach of Contract, 22.65.

Cross Reference:

Detailed discussion of voiding a contract or contract term for illegality, unconscionability, or violation of public policy, see Ch. 18, Asserting or Defending Claim That Contract Is Illegal, Contrary to Public Policy, or Unconscionable.

Jury Instructions:

Contract Formation--Essential Factual Elements, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 302 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Object of Contract Must Be Legal, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3F, Instr. MB 300F.90 (Matthew Bender).

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

Although a party may be prevented from recovering for breach of an illegal contract, quantum meruit recovery may still be possible. For example, when services are rendered under a contractual compensation arrangement that is unenforceable as against public policy, but the subject services are not otherwise prohibited, quantum meruit may be allowed [see, e.g., Huskinson & Brown, LLP v. Wolf (2004) 32 C4th 453, 463, 84 P3d 379 , (law firm could recover in quantum meruit despite fact that fee contract was unenforceable due to fee-splitting arrangement)].

Cross References:

See Ch. 9, Seeking or Opposing Quantum Meruit or Quantum Valebant Recovery in Contract Actions.

See also Ch. 18, Asserting or Defending Claim That Contract Is Illegal, Contrary to Public Policy, or Unconscionable.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawDefensesIllegal BargainsContracts LawFormationDefinite Terms

96 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
II. DETERMINING WHETHER ESSENTIAL ELEMENTS OF VALID CONTRACT ARE PRESENT

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.09

13.09 Contract Must Have Sufficient Cause or Consideration.

A contract must have a sufficient cause or consideration [CC § 1550].

However, the requirement of consideration applies only to executory contracts. After the contract is fully performed on both sides, the question of consideration becomes immaterial [Schiffman v. Atlas Mill Supply, Inc. (1961) 193 CA2d 847, 853, 14 CR 708] .

Jury Instructions:

Contract Formation--Essential Factual Elements, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 302 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Consideration--Thing of Value, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3A, Instr. MB 300A.40 (Matthew Bender).

► Cross References:

Discussion of determining whether consideration is adequate, see 13.36 -13.45.

Answer with affirmative defenses, see 13.53.

Memorandum for party attacking existence of contract, see 13.61.

Memorandum for party defending existence of contract, see 13.65.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawConsiderationGeneral OverviewContracts LawConsiderationSufficient ConsiderationContracts LawTypes of ContractsExecutory Contracts

97 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
II. DETERMINING WHETHER ESSENTIAL ELEMENTS OF VALID CONTRACT ARE PRESENT

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.10

13.10 Contract Must Be Reasonably Definite.

13.10[1] Terms of Contract Must Be Expressed With Reasonable Certainty. The contract terms must be clear enough that the parties could understand what each was required to do [Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 302 P 2 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender); Estate of Thottam (2008) 165 CA4th 1331, 1340, 81 CR3d 856] . Even though a manifestation of intention is intended to be understood as an offer, it cannot be accepted so as to form a contract unless the terms of the contract are reasonably certain [Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 33(1)]. The terms of a contract are reasonably certain if they provide a basis for determining the existence of a breach and for giving an appropriate remedy [Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 33(2); Alexander v. Codemasters Group Ltd. (2002) 104 CA4th 129, 141, 127 CR2d 145] .

Examples:

- An amorphous promise to "consider" the amount employees at other companies were earning was too uncertain to be an enforceable contractual duty [Ladas v. California State Auto. Ass'n (1993) 19 CA4th 761, 771, 23 CR2d 810] .
- A lender's "letter of commitment" that did not specify the borrower's identity, amount of loan, percentage of purchase price, interest rates, or repayment terms did not state essential terms with sufficient certainty; the terms were not capable of being made certain and no binding agreement could have been reached to supply permanent financing on mutually agreed-upon terms; hence, no enforceable contract was created [Peterson Dev. Co. v. Torrey Pines Bank (1991) 233 CA3d 103, 115, 284 CR 367] .
- A contract between an attorney and a city providing for additional compensation for the attorney if he achieved "savings to the City of such magnitude" as (in the city's judgment) would justify additional compensation was uncertain not only as to the amount of additional compensation to be paid, but also what it was to be paid for, and was too vague to permit a true meeting of the minds [Goldberg v. City of Santa Clara (1971) 21 CA3d 857, 861-863, 98 CR 862] .

- A purported settlement agreement was not an enforceable contract because although the parties agreed to the goals of the settlement, they did not agree to the means of achieving the goals, which were material terms [Terry v. Conlan (2005) 131 CA4th 1445, 1459].
- A settlement agreement was not enforceable because the court could not tell what the parties meant when they provided for "binding mediation" of a payment dispute [Lindsay v. Lewandowski (2006) 139 CA4th 1618, 1623, 43 CR3d 846] .
- An agreement to form a joint venture to market an American company's software to users in Mexico was not sufficiently definite to be enforceable because the following material terms were unsettled: the form and amount of the plaintiff's compensation; the extent, duration, and nature of his management role, if any; the amount of the company's royalty; the equity percentage held by the plaintiff, "the management team," the company, and outside investors; and the liquidity path for both the plaintiff and investors [Bustamante v. Intuit, Inc. (2006) 141 CA4th 199, 211, 45 CR3d 692] .
- An arbitration clause and a Texas choice of law provision in a franchise agreement were unenforceable because the Uniform Franchise Offering Circular stated that those provisions "may not be enforceable under California law." As a result, there was no meeting of the minds on these issues [Winter v. Window Fashions Professionals, Inc. (2008) 166 CA4th 943, 949-950, 83 CR3d 89] .
- A chart prepared at a mediation session was a settlement agreement because it provided sufficient information about allocation of assets to indicate the intended obligations of the parties (but court did not decide question of the settlement agreement's enforceability) [Estate of Thottam (2008) 165 CA4th 1331, 1340-1341, 81 CR3d 856] .
- A rhetorical comment ("Why would [defendant] terminate anybody who is doing such a good job?") was not sufficient evidence that the defendant intended to agree that a distribution arrangement with the plaintiff could not be terminated except for good cause [Unterberger v. Red Bull North America, Inc. (2008) 162 CA4th 414, 420, 75 CR3d 368] .

Exception:

When minor matters in a contract are left for future agreement, it does not necessarily mean that the entire contract is unenforceable. The question is one of degree, and the issue is whether the indefinite portions are so essential to the bargain that inability to enforce it would make it unfair to enforce the remainder of the agreement [Weddington Prods., Inc. v. Flick (1998) 60 CA4th 793, 813, 71 CR2d 265 (citing Williston on Contracts, § 4:28)]. For additional discussion, see 13.34.

Judge's Perspective:

One of the recurring problems in contract litigation is that the party suing for breach comes into court unable to show clearly and specifically what the other side was required to do.

Jury Instructions:

Clarity of contract terms, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 302 P 2 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Contract Formation--Offer, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 307 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Cross References:

Discussion of the absence of an essential term of a contract, see 13.46 -13.52.

Discussion of alleging ambiguities in a contract, see Ch. 21, Asserting a Particular Construction of Contract.

13.10[2] Issue of Certainty Is Question of Law. The issue of whether a contract is sufficiently definite is a question of law for the court [Ladas v. California State Auto. Ass'n (1993) 19 CA4th 761, 770 n2, 23 CR2d 810] .

Judge's Perspective:

Generally, an indefinite term will not stop a court from enforcing a contract, provided that the court can imply a definite term [see California Sch. Employees Assn. v. Sunnyvale Elementary Sch. Dist. (1973) 36 CA3d 46, 71, 111 CR 433 ("a court will enforce even an indefinite contract if it is capable of being identified and rendered definite"); see also 13.45[2] (promissory estoppel)]. However, an indefinite term may affect the plaintiff's ability to obtain certain types of relief, including specific performance.

Cross References:

Interpretation of contract terms, see Ch. 21, Asserting a Particular Construction of Contract.

Discussion of specific performance, see Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Contracts Law Formation Definite Terms

98 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
III. CHALLENGING EXISTENCE OF CONTRACT BASED ON ABSENCE OF ESSENTIAL ELEMENT

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.11

13.11 CHECKLIST: Challenging Existence of Contract Based on Absence of Essential Element.

☐ If opposing party has not yet filed action based on purported contract, but actual controversy exists as to rights and duties of parties under purported contract, consider raising issue of existence of valid contract by filing action for declaratory relief.

Authority:

CCP § 1060

Discussion:

See 13.13

☐ If opposing party has filed complaint based on purported contract, and existence of contract can be challenged because of absence of essential element for valid contract, determine appropriate response to complaint:

☐ Demurrer, on ground that complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute cause of action, if absence of essential element of contract appears on face of complaint.

Authority:

CCP § 430.10(e)

Discussion:

See 13.14

Forms:

See 13.57 -13.61 (memorandum for party attacking existence of contract), 13.62-13.66 (memorandum for party defending existence of contract)

☐ Answer, with general denial or specific denials of allegations of complaint that plead essential elements for creation of contract.

Authority:

CCP § 431.30(b)(1)

Discussion:

See 13.15

- ☐ Affirmative defense(s) in answer, if absence of essential element for contract is not put into issue by allegations of complaint.

Authority:

CCP § 431.30(b)(2)

Discussion:

See 13.16

Form:

See 13.53 (answer with affirmative defense(s) based on absence of essential element)

- ☐ Determine whether issue of existence of valid contract can be resolved on motion for summary judgment:

- ☐ Issue can be resolved by motion for summary judgment if certain or undisputed state of facts make issue of absence of essential element a question of law.

Authority:

CCP § 437c

Discussion:

See 13.17[1]

Forms:

See 13.54 (notice of motion for summary judgment), 13.55 (declaration in support of motion), 13.56 (separate statement of undisputed facts and supporting evidence), 13.57-13.61 (memorandum for party attacking existence of contract), 13.62-13.66 (memorandum for party defending existence of contract)

- ☐ Issue cannot be resolved by motion for summary judgment if triable issues of fact exist as to presence or absence of essential element of contract.

Authority:

CCP § 437c

Discussion:

See 13.17[2]

Forms:

See 13.62 -13.66 (memorandum for party defending existence of contract)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState JudgmentsGeneral OverviewContracts LawDefensesGeneral
OverviewContracts LawFormationGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesGeneral Overview

99 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
III. CHALLENGING EXISTENCE OF CONTRACT BASED ON ABSENCE OF ESSENTIAL ELEMENT

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.12

13.12 Procedural Context in Which Issue of Existence of Contract May Be Raised Depends on Circumstances of Case.

13.12[1] Party Seeking to Avoid Potential Action on Contract May Raise Issue in Action for Declaratory Relief. A challenge to the existence of a valid contract generally arises after an action is brought on the purported contract. However, the party seeking to avoid enforcement of the purported contract, or a party seeking to enforce the contract, may also raise the issue in an action for declaratory relief [see CCP § 1060].

Cross Reference:

Discussion, see 13.13.

13.12[2] Party Bringing Action on Contract Must Plead and Prove Existence of Contract. Except as otherwise provided by law, a plaintiff has the burden of proof as to each fact the existence or nonexistence of which is essential to the claim for relief [Evid Code § 500].

In an action based on contract, the plaintiff must plead and prove the existence of the contract [Walsh v. West Valley Mission Cmty. Coll. Dist. (1998) 66 CA4th 1532, 1545, 78 CR2d 725] .

Example:

Plaintiffs failed to meet their burden of proving an alleged oral contract when there was a serious conflict of evidence concerning the making of a contract. Plaintiffs' evidence consisted of conversations allegedly had with defendants, in which plaintiffs expressed their desire to have a contract, and defendants denied having had such conversations [Sully v. Kern Drilling Corp. (1954) 126 CA2d 651, 653-654, 272 P2d 549] .

Jury Instructions:

Contract Formation--Essential Factual Elements, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 302 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

13.12[3] Defendant Must Raise Issue Regarding Existence of Contract in Responsive Pleadings. If the defendant maintains that no contract exists between the parties, the defendant must determine the appropriate time and method for raising the issue under the circumstances of the particular case.

Challenging the contract will depend initially on how the existence of the contract is pled in the complaint. If the pleading indicates on its face the absence of an essential element for a contract, the defendant may demur to the complaint on the ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action based on contract [see CCP § 430.10].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion, see 13.14.

If the defendant disputes the elements of a contract which are pled in the complaint, the defendant should answer with a general denial or with specific denials of those allegations [see CCP § 431.30(b)(1)].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion, see 13.15.

If the existence or absence of an essential element of a contract is not put into issue by the allegations of the complaint, the defendant must raise the issue by pleading an affirmative defense [see CCP § 431.30(b)(2)].

 Cross References:

Discussion, see 13.16.

Form, see 13.53.

13.12[4] Issue May Be Resolved on Motion for Summary Judgment If Existence of Contract Is Question of Law. The defendant may be able to move for summary judgment if the existence of the contract is a question of law [see CCP § 437c].

 Cross References:

Discussion, see 13.17.

Forms, see 13.54 -13.66.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure
Declaratory Judgment Actions
State Judgments
General Overview
Contracts Law
Defenses
General Overview
Contracts Law
Formation
General Overview

100 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
 III. CHALLENGING EXISTENCE OF CONTRACT BASED ON ABSENCE OF ESSENTIAL ELEMENT

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.13

13.13 Action for Declaratory Relief May Seek to Challenge or Confirm Existence of Contract.

The issue of the existence of a valid contract generally will be raised defensively after an action is brought to enforce the contract or recover damages for its breach. However, if there is an actual controversy relating to the rights and duties of the parties to a purported contract, a party may bring an action for declaratory relief to have the purported contract declared invalid [see CCP § 1060]. Issues relating to the formation of a contract and its validity are proper subjects for declaratory relief [Foster v. Masters Pontiac Co., Inc. (1958) 158 CA2d 481, 486, 322 P2d 592 ; Howard v. Howard (1955) 131 CA2d 308, 313, 280 P2d 802] .

Example:

Plaintiff claimed that an agreement for the purchase of a vehicle was not a valid contract and returned the vehicle to defendant. Defendant claimed that the contract was enforceable and informed plaintiff that it had placed the vehicle in storage for plaintiff's protection. Plaintiff was entitled to bring an action for declaratory relief to determine the existence and validity of purported contract [Foster v. Masters Pontiac Co., Inc. (1958) 158 CA2d 481, 486, 322 P2d 592] .

Cross References:

Seeking declaratory relief in contract actions, see Ch. 11, Seeking or Opposing Declaratory Relief in Contract Matters, 11.03 -11.15.

Discussion of actions for declaratory relief, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Declaratory Judgment Actions State Judgments General Overview Contracts Law Remedies General Overview

101 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
III. CHALLENGING EXISTENCE OF CONTRACT BASED ON ABSENCE OF ESSENTIAL ELEMENT

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.14

13.14 Issue May Be Raised by Demurrer If Complaint Based on Contract Fails to Plead Essential Element for Existence of Contract.

13.14[1] Complaint May Fail to State Facts Sufficient to Constitute Cause of Action. If a complaint based on a purported contract fails to plead an essential element for the existence of a valid contract, the defendant may demur on the ground that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see CCP § 430.10(e)].

Examples--Complaint Failed to State Cause of Action:

- Demurrer was properly sustained when plaintiff attempted to state cause of action for breach of an oral agreement to loan money for a construction project, but there was no allegation that parties had settled on definite terms, essential for a binding contract, concerning the dwellings to be built [Mason v. Woodland Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1967) 254 CA2d 41, 44, 61 CR 740] .

- Demurrer was properly sustained when plaintiffs, real estate brokers, brought an action to recover commissions from defendant sellers pursuant to written "authorization to sell" after plaintiffs produced a buyer. The prospective buyer and seller did not consummate a sale. The complaint failed to state a cause of action because the terms of the "authorization to sell" were too indefinite to constitute a binding contract until a prospective buyer and sellers reached a formal agreement for the sale [Devereaux v. Harper (1962) 210 CA2d 519, 528, 26 CR 837] .

Examples--Complaint Stated Cause of Action:

- In cause of action for breach of contract, plaintiff adequately pled existence of a contract by alleging that (1) defendant made an offer to sell the registration rights to an Internet domain name to the highest bidder, pursuant to the terms of an auction posted on its web site, (2) plaintiff's bid accepted the offer, in the exact terms in which it was made, and (3) because there were no higher bids, a contract was formed selling the registration rights to plaintiff [Lim v. The.TV Corp. Internat., (2002) 99 CA4th 684, 690, 121

CR2d 333] .

■ In cause of action for breach of implied contract to provide annual salary increases, plaintiff union adequately pled existence of implied contract by alleging that (1) defendant employer had a practice of granting annual wage increases, (2) this practice was adopted after negotiation with the union, (3) the employees were aware of the practice, and (4) the employer had complied with its practice in the prior year [Youngman v. Nevada Irrigation Dist. (1969) 70 C2d 240, 246-247, 74 CR 398, 449 P2d 462] .

Strategic Point--Defendant:

Before demurring, defendant should determine whether the complaint fails to state a cause of action based on contract because an essential element for the contract alleged in the complaint is absent under the circumstances of the case, or because the plaintiff simply has done an inadequate job of pleading the essential elements. If failure to plead a cause of action is merely the result of inadequately pleading the facts, defendant may consider stipulating to an amendment of the complaint, instead of demurring. If there is a reasonable possibility that the plaintiff can cure the defects in the complaint, if given the opportunity to amend, it is an abuse of discretion for the court to sustain the demurrer without leave to amend [Larwin-Southern Cal., Inc. v. JGB Inv. Co. (1979) 101 CA3d 626, 634, 162 CR 52] .

Cross References:

Memorandum for party attacking existence of contract, see 13.57 -13.61.

Memorandum for party defending existence of contract, see 13.62 -13.66.

Discussion of demurrers and motions for judgment on the pleadings, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 11, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings; or California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings (Matthew Bender).

13.14[2] Objection Is Not Waived by Failure to Raise by Demurrer. The objection that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action is not waived by the failure to raise it by demurrer or answer [CCP § 430.80(a)].

Distinguish--Objection When Pleading Is Ambiguous As to Type of Contract May Be Waived:

A special demurrer may be filed in an action based on a contract if it cannot be ascertained from the complaint whether the contract is written, oral, or implied by conduct [CCP § 430.10(g)]. If the defendant does not object to the ambiguous pleading of the type of contract by demurrer or answer, the objection is deemed waived [CCP § 430.80(a)].

Strategic Point--Motion for Judgment on the Pleadings As Alternative to Demurrer:

A defendant disputing the existence of a contract may move for judgment on the pleadings on the ground that the complaint fails to state a cause of action, because of the absence of an essential element for a valid contract, after the time for filing a demurrer has run [see CCP § 438(f)(2)]. A motion for judgment on the pleadings can be a back up procedure if the defect in the pleadings was not discovered and a demurrer was not filed on time.

Cross References:

Memorandum for party attacking existence of contract, see 13.57 -13.61.

Memorandum for party defending existence of contract, see 13.62 -13.66.

Discussion of deciding whether to raise the objection to the complaint by demurrer or by a motion for judgment on the pleadings, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 11, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsDemurrersContracts LawDefensesGeneral OverviewContracts LawFormationGeneral Overview

102 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
 III. CHALLENGING EXISTENCE OF CONTRACT BASED ON ABSENCE OF ESSENTIAL ELEMENT

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.15

13.15 Answer May Deny Existence of Contract Pled by Complaint.

The defendant's answer can raise the issue of the existence of a valid contract by [see CCP § 431.30(b)(1)]:

- A general denial; or
- Specific denials of the material allegations of the complaint that plead the essential elements for creation of a contract.

A general denial denies in one sentence all the allegations of the complaint [FPI Dev., Inc. v. Nakashima (1991) 231 CA3d 367, 383, 282 CR 508] , including the existence of a contract [Walsh v. West Valley Mission Cmty. Coll. Dist. (1998) 66 CA4th 1532, 1545, 78 CR2d 725] . Denying the allegations of the complaint that plead the existence of a contract allows the denying party the opportunity to present evidence to refute the allegations in the complaint [see Walsh v. West Valley Mission Cmty. Coll. Dist. (1998) 66 CA4th 1532, 1545, 78 CR2d 725] .

Example:

When a plaintiff alleged that defendants' oral offer to do work at quoted prices gave rise to an enforceable contract, and the defendants claimed that they did not intend to contract to do the work, but only to submit a quotation of prices, the issue of the parties' intent to contract was raised by the defendants' denial of the allegations of the complaint [Leo F. Piazza Paving Co. v. Bebek & Brkich (1956) 141 CA2d 226, 232, 296 P2d 368] .

Strategic Point--Defendant:

Most commonly, the defendant's answer contains a general denial. In practice, specific denials are the exception in contract actions in California superior courts, and usually are made only if the complaint is verified [see CCP § 431.30(d)]. Attorneys generally prefer to use general rather than specific denials because they are concerned that specific denials can lock them into positions, and, in effect, create burdens of proof, that the attorney may later regret. The sample answer form in 13.53 contains a general denial.

Cross References:

Form for answer to complaint, see 13.53.

Discussion of denials in answers, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 14, Answers; or California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 26, Answers (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil Procedure Pleading & Practice Pleadings Answers Contracts Law Breach Causes of Action General
Overview Contracts Law Formation General Overview

103 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
III. CHALLENGING EXISTENCE OF CONTRACT BASED ON ABSENCE OF ESSENTIAL ELEMENT

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.16

13.16 Absence of Essential Element Not Raised by Complaint May Be Raised by Affirmative Defense in Answer.

13.16[1] Absence of Essential Element of Contract May Constitute New Matter That Must Be Alleged As Affirmative Defense.

13.16[1][a] "New Matter" Is Anything Not Put in Issue by Allegations of Complaint. A defendant may raise "new matter" in his or her answer as an affirmative defense to the plaintiff's claims [CCP § 431.30(b)(2)]. "New matter" is something relied on by a defendant which is not put in issue by the allegations of the complaint. Thus, matters not responsive to essential allegations of the complaint must be raised in the answer as "new matter." However, if the answer sets forth facts showing some essential allegation of the complaint is not true, those facts are not "new matter," but only a denial [Walsh v. West Valley Mission Cmty. Coll. Dist. (1998) 66 CA4th 1532, 1546, 78 CR2d 725] .

Strategic Point--Defendant--Pleading Affirmative Defenses:

Although it may be technically unnecessary in most cases, the better practice for the defense attorney is to plead the lack of an essential element of the contract as an affirmative defense.

The plaintiff has the burden of proving each element of each cause of action [Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 302 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender)]. However, under some circumstances, despite the plaintiff's burden, the courts have held that the nonexistence of an essential element--such as the lack of consideration--must be pled as an affirmative defense [see, e.g., National Farm Workers Serv. Ctr., Inc. v. M. Caratan, Inc. (1983) 146 CA3d 796, 808, 194 CR 617, discussed in 13.16[1][b] (lack of consideration must be pled as affirmative defense); but see CC § 1550; Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 302 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender) (consideration is essential element of contract)]. To avoid any likelihood--even if remote--of inadvertently waiving a defense through failure to plead it, defense attorneys routinely plead the lack of any such element as an affirmative defense. Pleading it as an affirmative defense is so easy that it is hard to justify not doing so.

Strategic Point--Defendant--Pleading Affirmative Defenses in General Terms:

Since California is a "notice pleading" state, affirmative defenses, like the allegations in the complaint itself, do not require much specificity. Most defense attorneys prefer to plead affirmative defenses, like denials, in general terms. At the outset of the case, the defense attorney often may not be confident enough of his or her knowledge of the facts to assert them with specificity, although he or she may well know enough to know that a particular defense may apply. Secondly, if an affirmative defense is spelled out too specifically in the answer, it opens the client up to examination at deposition as to the specific factual basis of the affirmative defense. When the affirmative defense is pled generally, few attorneys will examine a deponent about it, and if they do the deponent can simply say: "I don't know. That is a purely legal matter handled by the attorney."

If an affirmative defense is pled in very general terms, there is the possibility that the plaintiff may demur. However, the court is required to liberally construe the pleading with a view to substantial justice [CCP § 452]. At worst, defendant may be required to re-allege the defense with greater specificity. On the other hand, plaintiffs may forgo asserting such easily cured objections, and failure to object will result in the objection being deemed waived [see Henderson v. Northam (1917) 176 C 493, 496, 168 P 1044 (plaintiff who treated answer that was "somewhat complex and artificially drawn" as sufficient to require proof of allegation of complaint was deemed to have waived all objections to sufficiency of denial)].

The exception is that if a cause of action requires specificity when pled in a complaint or cross-complaint (such as fraud), then it also must be specifically pled if asserted as an affirmative defense in an answer.

The affirmative defenses illustrated in are stated in very general terms in accordance with the principles stated above.

Cross References:

Form for answer with affirmative defenses, see 13.53.

Discussion of pleading affirmative defenses in an answer, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 14, Answers; or California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 26, Answers (Matthew Bender).

Sample Judicial Council form for answer and discussion of use of form, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts (Matthew Bender).

13.16[1][b] Lack of Consideration Is Affirmative Defense. Although lack of consideration is an essential element of a contract [CC § 1550; Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 302 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender)], it nevertheless has been held to be "new matter" [see CCP § 431.30(b)(2)] that must be raised as an affirmative defense or waived [National Farm Workers Serv. Ctr., Inc. v. M. Caratan, Inc. (1983) 146 CA3d 796, 808, 194 CR 617 ; Bryan v. Banks (1929) 98 CA 748, 755, 277 P 1075] .

Cross Reference:

Discussion of a written instrument as presumptive evidence of consideration, see 13.38.

13.16[1][c] Unlawful Object May Be Affirmative Defense. A lawful object is an essential element of a contract [CC § 1550]. Generally, illegality of a contract is an affirmative defense and should be specially pleaded if the illegality does not appear from the face of the complaint [see Eaton v. Brock (1954) 124 CA2d 10, 13, 268 P2d 58] .

Cross References:

Discussion of lawful object of contract, see 13.08.

Discussion of claims of illegality, see Ch. 18, Asserting or Defending Claim That Contract Is Illegal, Contrary to Public Policy, or Unconscionable.

13.16[2] Failure to Plead Affirmative Defenses Generally Waives Them. A party who fails to plead affirmative defenses generally waives them [California Acad. of Scis. v. County of Fresno (1987) 192 CA3d 1436, 1442, 238 CR 154] .

Exception--Issue of Illegality Not Waived:

The court may raise the issue of illegality on its own motion when the evidence shows illegality, even if the parties did not raise the issue at trial [see Yoo v. Robi (2005) 126 CA4th 1089, 1103 ; Bovard v. American Horse Enters., Inc. (1988) 201 CA3d 832, 838, 247 CR 340] . The defense of illegality also may be raised for the first time on appeal when the evidence at trial discloses the illegality [Lewis & Queen v. N.M. Ball Sons (1957) 48 C2d 141, 147-148, 308 P2d 713] .

13.16[3] Defendant Generally Has Burden of Proof As to Affirmative Defenses. Except as otherwise provided by law, a party has the burden of proof as to each fact the existence or nonexistence of which is essential to the defense that he or she is asserting [Evid Code § 500].

Example:

When the illegality of a contract does not appear on the face of a complaint, it becomes a matter of affirmative defense that must be specially pled, and the burden of proving illegality is on the defendant [Eaton v. Brock (1954) 124 CA2d 10, 13, 268 P2d 58] .

Cross Reference:

Discussion of burden of proof, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 551, Trial (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsAffirmative DefensesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsAnswersContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionElements of ClaimsContracts LawDefensesGeneral Overview

104 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
 III. CHALLENGING EXISTENCE OF CONTRACT BASED ON ABSENCE OF ESSENTIAL ELEMENT

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.17

13.17 Issue of Existence of Contract May Be Determined on Motion for Summary Judgment If Absence of Essential Element Is Question of Law.

13.17[1] Certain or Undisputed Facts May Make Absence of Essential Element a Question of Law. The existence of the essential elements of a contract may be determined on a motion for summary judgment if a certain or undisputed state of facts make the issue a question of law [Alexander v. Codemasters Group Ltd. (2002) 104 CA4th 129, 141, 127 CR2d 145] .

Examples:

- Summary judgment was properly granted for defendant hospital on breach of contract claim brought by plaintiff physician. The contract claim was based on hospital bylaws, which the hospital was required by law to adopt. Because no consideration was given for bylaws, an essential element for a contract was absent, and bylaws did not constitute a contract between the parties as a matter of law [O'Byrne v. Santa Monica-UCLA Med. Ctr. (2001) 94 CA4th 797, 810, 114 CR2d 575] .

- A buyer made a written offer to buy real property. The seller made a written counteroffer on a standard form. Instead of signing the "acceptance" line of the form, the buyer signed the portion of the form entitled "counter to counteroffer." The buyer also wrote in certain terms of the purchase in a portion of the form entitled "changes/amendments," although, ultimately, it turned out that the terms did not vary from the terms of the seller's counteroffer. Viewing the counter-counteroffer in its entirety and objectively, the counter-counteroffer called for a response from the seller before a contract could be formed. Defendant seller therefore was entitled to summary judgment in buyer's action for specific performance, because seller negated the existence of a contract, a necessary element of buyer's case [Roth v. Malson (1998) 67 CA4th 552, 556-559, 79 CR2d 226] .

► Cross References:

Forms, see 13.54 -13.66.

Discussion of motions for summary judgment, see Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 38, Summary Judgment; or California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 537, Summary Judgment (Matthew Bender).

13.17[2] Triable Issues of Fact As to Essential Element of Contract Preclude Summary Judgment. If the existence of a contract is in issue, and the evidence is conflicting or admits of more than one inference, the jury or other trier of fact must determine whether the contract did in fact exist [Alexander v. Codemasters Group Ltd. (2002) 104 CA4th 129, 141, 127 CR2d 145] .

Examples:

- Summary judgment for defendant employer was improper when differing inferences could be drawn from the evidence concerning the parties' mutual assent to the vesting of stock options for terminated employee. Mutual assent was a question of fact [Alexander v. Codemasters Group Ltd. (2002) 104 CA4th 129, 141-147, 127 CR2d 145] .

- Summary judgment for defendant producer was held improper when plaintiff submitted a synopsis of his screenplay to defendant's secretary and defendant later produced a motion picture based on a similar story. A triable issue of fact existed as to whether an implied contract had been formed, requiring defendant to pay plaintiff for use of his screenplay [Desny v. Wilder (1956) 46 C2d 715, 744-750, 299 P2d 257] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureSummary JudgmentMotions for Summary JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSummary JudgmentStandardsLegal EntitlementContracts LawBreachCauses of ActionElements of ClaimsContracts LawDefensesGeneral Overview

105 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element

IV. DETERMINING WHETHER VALID OFFER WAS MADE

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.18

13.18 CHECKLIST: Determining Whether Valid Offer Was Made.

☐ Determine whether offeror had intent to contract:

☐ Did offer manifest offeror's intent to enter into a bargain?

Authority:

City of Moorpark v. Moorpark Unified Sch. Dist. (1991) 54 C3d 921, 930, 1 CR2d 896, 819 P2d 854

Discussion:

See 13.20[1]

☐ Did circumstances fail to indicate lack of intent?

Authority:

Scott v. Lee (1962) 208 CA2d 12, 15, 24 CR 824

Discussion:

See 13.20[2]

☐ Would reasonable person assume offeror's willingness to contract?

Authority:

In re First Capital Life Ins. Co. (1995) 34 CA4th 1283, 1287, 40 CR2d 816

Discussion:

See 13.20[3]

☐ Determine whether offer expressed terms of contract with reasonable certainty.

Authority:

Alexander v. Codemasters Group Ltd. (2002) 104 CA4th 129, 141, 127 CR2d 145

Discussion:

See 13.21

- ☐ Determine whether offer was received by offeree.

Authority:

American Bldg. Maint. Co. v. Indemnity Ins. Co. of N. Am. (1932) 214 C 608, 616, 7 P2d 305

Discussion:

See 13.22

- ☐ Determine whether offer was revoked by:

- ☐ Notice to offeree before acceptance.

Authority:

CC § 1587(1)

Discussion:

See 13.23[2]

Forms:

See 13.58 (memorandum for party attacking existence of contract), 13.63 (memorandum for party defending existence of contract)

- ☐ Lapse of time.

Authority:

CC § 1587(2)

Discussion:

See 13.23[3]

- ☐ Failure of offeree to fulfill condition precedent.

Authority:

CC § 1587(3)

Discussion:

See 13.23[4]

- ☐ Death or insanity of offeror.

Authority:

CC § 1587(4)

Discussion:

See 13.23[5]

☐ If offeror attempted to revoke offer, determine whether offer was irrevocable, such as:

☐ Option supported by consideration.

Authority:*Steiner v. Thexton (2010) 48 C4th 411, 420, 106 CR3d 252, 226 P3d 359Discussion:

See 13.24[1]

☐ Offer made irrevocable by statute or regulation.

Discussion:

See 13.24[2]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawFormationOffersGeneral OverviewContracts LawFormationOffersIrrevocable OffersContracts LawFormationOffersRejectionsContracts LawFormationOffersRevocable Offers

106 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element

IV. DETERMINING WHETHER VALID OFFER WAS MADE

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.19

13.19 Elements of Valid Offer.

The following elements must be satisfied for there to be a valid offer to form a contract:

- The person making the offer must have the intent to contract [see 13.20].
- The offer must be reasonably definite [see 13.21].
- The offer must be received by the offeree [see 13.22].
- The offer must not have been revoked by the offeree prior to acceptance [see 13.23].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawFormationOffersGeneral Overview

107 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
IV. DETERMINING WHETHER VALID OFFER WAS MADE

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.20

13.20 Offeror Must Have Intent to Contract.

13.20[1] Offer Indicates Offeror's Willingness to Enter Into Bargain. An offer is the manifestation of the offeror's willingness to enter into a bargain, so made as to justify another person in understanding that the person's assent to that bargain is invited and will conclude it [City of Moorpark v. Moorpark Unified Sch. Dist. (1991) 54 C3d 921, 930, 1 CR2d 896, 819 P2d 854] .

Example:

An automobile dealer's advertisement was an objective manifestation of its intention to make an offer for the sale of the vehicle advertised at the stated price. A contract was formed when the buyer accepted the offer by tendering the advertised price [Donovan v. RRL Corp. (2001) 26 C4th 261, 278, 109 CR2d 807, 27 P3d 702] .

Jury Instructions:

Contract Formation--Offer, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 307 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Offer Defined, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3A, Instr. MB 300A.20 (Matthew Bender).

13.20[2] Circumstances May Indicate Lack of Intent. A purported offer cannot be the basis of a contract if the circumstances indicate that the alleged offeror did not intend to create a contract [Scott v. Lee (1962) 208 CA2d 12, 15, 24 CR 824] .

Example:

An insurer mistakenly sent a late notice to the insured, announcing a grace period for premium payment, six months after the policy had lapsed. The insured had received several notices prior to the lapse, had allowed the policy to lapse, and had purchased replacement coverage. Under the circumstances, the insured had reason to know that the notice announcing a grace period was in error and that the insurer did not intend to offer to continue coverage [In re First Capital Life Ins. Co. (1995) 34 CA4th 1283, 1288-1289, 40 CR2d 816] .

➡ Cross Reference:

Discussion of acceptance of an offer, see 13.25 -13.31.

13.20[3] Offeror's Intent Is Question of Fact. The trier of fact must determine whether a reasonable person would necessarily assume a willingness to enter into a contract [In re First Capital Life Ins. Co. (1995) 34 CA4th 1283, 1287, 40 CR2d 816] .

Jury Instructions:

Contract Formation--Offer, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 307 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Contracts LawFormationOffersGeneral Overview

108 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element

IV. DETERMINING WHETHER VALID OFFER WAS MADE

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.21

13.21 Offer Must Be Reasonably Definite.

An offer must express the terms of the contract with reasonable certainty to be the basis of a contract [Alexander v. Codemasters Group Ltd. (2002) 104 CA4th 129, 141, 127 CR2d 145] .

Jury Instructions:

Contract Formation--Offer, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 307 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Cross References:

Requirement that contract be definite in order to be enforceable, see 13.10.

Discussion of the absence of an essential term of a contract, see 13.46 -13.52.

Specific Performance, see Ch. 8, Seeking or Opposing Equitable Remedies in Contract Actions.

Discussion of alleging ambiguities in a contract and discussion of interpretation of contract terms, see Ch. 21, Asserting a Particular Construction of Contract.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawFormationOffersGeneral Overview

109 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element

IV. DETERMINING WHETHER VALID OFFER WAS MADE

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.22

13.22 Offer Must Be Received by Offeree.

An offer must be received by the offeree. The burden of determining whether it did reach the offeree is on the offeror [American Bldg. Maint. Co. v. Indemnity Ins. Co. of N. Am. (1932) 214 C 608, 616, 7 P2d 305] .

Jury Instructions:

Contract Formation--Offer, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 307 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawFormationOffersGeneral Overview

110 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
IV. DETERMINING WHETHER VALID OFFER WAS MADE

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.23

13.23 Offer Must Not Be Revoked by Offeror Before Acceptance.

13.23[1] Offer Generally May Be Revoked Before Acceptance by Offeree. An offer may be revoked at any time before its acceptance is communicated to the offeror, but not afterwards [CC § 1586]. Even an offer that states that it will remain open for a given length of time may be withdrawn at any time prior to acceptance, unless the offer is based on a valuable consideration [Davies v. Langin (1962) 203 CA2d 579, 584, 21 CR 682] .

Jury Instructions:

Contract Formation--Revocation of Offer, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 308 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Revocation, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3A, Instr. MB 300A.21 (Matthew Bender).

13.23[2] Offer May Be Revoked by Notice to Offeree. An offer may be revoked by the communication of a notice of revocation by the offeror to the offeree, in the manner prescribed by CC §§ 1581, 1583, for the communication of consent [CC § 1587(1)]. The notice of revocation must be communicated to the offeree before the offeree's acceptance has been communicated to the offeror [CC § 1587(1)].

Examples--Offer Not Revoked Before Acceptance:

- The offeror's communication of revocation to the offeror's own agent did not revoke the offer when the agent did not notify the offeree of revocation before the offeree accepted [Ersa Grae Corp. v. Fluor Corp. (1991) 1 CA4th 613, 622-623, 2 CR2d 288] .

- Communication of revocation to the offeror's attorney did not revoke offer when the offeror's attorney did not notify the offeree's attorney of revocation before the offeree accepted [CPI Builders, Inc. v. Impco Techs., Inc. (2001) 94 CA4th 1167, 1173-1174, 114 CR2d 851] .

Cross References:

Discussion of effective communication of consent, see 13.07[3].

Discussion of communication of the offeree's acceptance, see 13.29.

Memorandum for party attacking existence of contract, see 13.58.

Memorandum for party defending existence of contract, see 13.63.

13.23[3] Offer May Be Revoked by Lapse of Time. An offer is revoked by [CC § 1587(2)]:

- The lapse of the time prescribed in the offer for its acceptance; or
- The lapse of a reasonable time without communication of the acceptance, if no time is prescribed.

13.23[4] Offer May Be Revoked by Failure to Fulfill Condition Precedent to Acceptance. An offer is revoked by the failure of the offeree to fulfill a condition precedent to acceptance [CC § 1587(3)].

Example:

Plaintiff signed a document agreeing to dismiss its claim against defendants in exchange for the payment of money. Defendants neither signed the document nor made any promise in exchange for plaintiff's promise. Plaintiff's promise therefore constituted a unilateral offer that was revocable until accepted by defendants by the tender of payment [Sully-Miller Contracting Co. v. Gledson/Cashman Constr., Inc. (2002) 103 CA4th 30, 36, 126 CR2d 400] .

13.23[5] Offer May Be Revoked by Death or Insanity of Offeror. An offer is revoked by the death or insanity of the offeror before acceptance [CC § 1587(4)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawFormationOffersIrrevocable OffersContracts LawFormationOffersRevocable Offers

111 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
IV. DETERMINING WHETHER VALID OFFER WAS MADE

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.24

13.24 Some Offers Are Irrevocable.

13.24[1] Offer That Is Subject of Option Supported by Consideration Is Irrevocable. An option supported by consideration is a right acquired by contract to accept or reject an offer within a limited time in the future [County of San Diego v. Miller (1975) 13 C3d 684, 688, 119 CR 491, 532 P2d 139] .

An option is considered to have a dual nature: on the one hand it is an irrevocable offer, which upon acceptance ripens into a bilateral contract; on the other hand, it is a unilateral contract that binds the optionor to perform an underlying agreement upon the optionee's performance of a condition precedent [Palo Alto Town & Country Vill., Inc. v. BBTC Co. (1974) 11 C3d 494, 502-503, 113 CR 705, 521 P2d 1097] .

An option supported by sufficient bargained-for consideration is irrevocable for the negotiated period of time [Steiner v. Thexton (2010) 48 C4th 411, 420, 106 CR3d 252, 226 P3d 359 ; City of Orange v. San Diego County Employees Retirement Assn. (2002) 103 CA4th 45, 51, 126 CR2d 405] .

Cross Reference:

Discussion of option contracts, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts (Matthew Bender).

13.24[2] Offer May Be Made Irrevocable by Statute or Regulation. Specific types of offers are made irrevocable by statute or regulation [see, e.g., Com Code § 2205(a)].

Example:

A firm offer by a merchant to buy or sell goods is irrevocable if the offer by its terms gives assurance that it will be held open [Com Code § 2205(a)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of offers under the Uniform Commercial Code, see Ch. 27, Contract for Sale of Goods--Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract Under California Commercial Code.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Contracts LawFormationOffersIrrevocable Offers

112 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
V. DETERMINING WHETHER THERE HAS BEEN A VALID ACCEPTANCE

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.25

13.25 CHECKLIST: Determining Whether There Has Been a Valid Acceptance.

☐ Determine whether offeree assented to the terms of the offer by any of the following:

☐ Written or oral acceptance.

Authority:

CC § 1581; Riverside Fence Co. v. Novak (1969) 273 CA2d 656, 661, 78 CR 536

Discussion:

See 13.27[1]

☐ Conduct, or combination of words and conduct, indicating acceptance.

Authority:

CC § 1581; Beatty v. Oakland Sheet Metal Supply Co. (1952) 111 CA2d 53, 62, 244 P2d 25

Discussion:

See 13.27[1]

☐ Performance of conditions of offer.

Authority:

CC § 1584

Discussion:

See 13.27[2]

☐ Acceptance of consideration offered.

Authority:CC § 1584Discussion:See 13.27[2]

- ☐ Determine whether acceptance was absolute and unqualified:

Authority:CC § 1585Discussion:See 13.28Form:See 13.59 (memorandum for party attacking existence of contract)

- ☐ Determine whether acceptance was communicated to offeror by:

- ☐ Performance of act or omission intended to communicate acceptance.

Authority:CC § 1581Discussion:See 13.29[1]

- ☐ Satisfaction of conditions for communication of acceptance prescribed by offer, if any.

Authority:CC § 1582Discussion:See 13.29[2]

- ☐ Performance of offer for unilateral contract.

Authority:Asmus v. Pacific Bell (2000) 23 C4th 1, 14-15, 96 CR2d 179, 999 P2d 71Discussion:See 13.29[3]

- ☐ Determine when acceptance became effective, if time of acceptance is at issue.

Authority:*CC §§ 1582, 1583Discussion:

See 13.30

☐ Determine whether, if applicable under circumstances of case, silence of offeree constituted acceptance because:

- ☐ Offeree had a duty to act to reject a benefit;
- ☐ Offeree retained a benefit conferred [see CC § 1589];
- ☐ Past relations of parties indicated that silence would constitute acceptance; or
- ☐ Offeror had given offeree reason to believe that acceptance would be manifested by silence.

Authority:

Golden Eagle Ins. Co. v. Foremost Ins. Co. (1993) 20 CA4th 1372, 1385-1387, 25 CR2d 242

Discussion:

See 13.31

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawFormationAcceptanceGeneral OverviewContracts LawFormationAcceptanceMailbox RuleContracts LawFormationAcceptanceMethods of AcceptanceGeneral Overview

113 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
V. DETERMINING WHETHER THERE HAS BEEN A VALID ACCEPTANCE

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.26

13.26 Elements of Valid Acceptance.

The following elements must be satisfied to show valid acceptance of an offer:

- The acceptance must indicate assent to the terms of the offer [see 13.27].
- The acceptance must be absolute and unqualified [see 13.28].
- The acceptance must be communicated to the offeror [see 13.29 -13.31], except in the case of a contract that may be accepted by performance [see 13.29[3]].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawFormationAcceptanceGeneral OverviewContracts LawFormationAcceptanceMethods of AcceptanceGeneral Overview

114 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
V. DETERMINING WHETHER THERE HAS BEEN A VALID ACCEPTANCE

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.27

13.27 Acceptance Must Indicate Assent to Terms of Offer.

13.27[1] Acceptance May Be Expressed by Written or Oral Words or by Conduct Unless Offer or Statute Specifies Otherwise. An acceptance of an offer must indicate the offeree's assent to the terms of the offer [CC §§ 1581, 1585]. An offer expressed in words may be accepted by either words or conduct, or by a combination of words and conduct that indicates to the offeror that the offer has been accepted [Beatty v. Oakland Sheet Metal Supply Co. (1952) 111 CA2d 53, 62, 244 P2d 25] .

In the case of an implied contract, both the offer and the acceptance are expressed by conduct rather than words [CC § 1621; Division of Labor Law Enforcement v. Transpacific Transportation Co. (1977) 69 CA3d 268, 275, 137 CR 855] .

➡ Cross Reference:

Discussion of implied contracts, see 13.04A.

Unless otherwise required by statute or by the terms of the offer [see Estate of Crossman (1964) 231 CA2d 370, 372, 41 CR 800] , an acceptance may be written or oral [Riverside Fence Co. v. Novak (1969) 273 CA2d 656, 661, 78 CR 536] .

If the offer does not contain any conditions concerning the communication of acceptance [see 13.29[2]], acceptance may be communicated by any reasonable and usual mode [CC § 1582].

Jury Instructions:

Contract Formation--Acceptance, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 309 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Acceptance by Words or Conduct, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3A, Instr. MB 300A.22 (Matthew Bender).

Method of Acceptance Specified by Offer, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3A, Instr. MB 300A.24 (Matthew Bender).

Acceptance, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3A, Instr. MB 300A.25 (Matthew Bender).

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of communication of acceptance to offeror, see 13.29.

13.27[2] Performance of Conditions of Offer or Acceptance of Consideration Constitutes Acceptance. An offer may be accepted by [CC § 1584]:

- Performance of the conditions of the offer; or
- Acceptance of the consideration offered.

Jury Instructions:

Acceptance by Words or Conduct, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3A, Instr. MB 300A.22 (Matthew Bender).

Acceptance of Benefits Assumes Duties, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3A, Instr. MB 300A.26 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawFormationAcceptanceGeneral OverviewContracts LawFormationAcceptanceMethods of AcceptanceGeneral Overview

115 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
V. DETERMINING WHETHER THERE HAS BEEN A VALID ACCEPTANCE

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.28

13.28 Acceptance Must Be Absolute and Unqualified.

13.28[1] Terms of Offer Must Be Met Unequivocally. An acceptance must be absolute and unqualified [CC § 1585].

The terms proposed in an offer must be met exactly, precisely, and unequivocally for its acceptance to result in the formation of a binding contract [Panagotacos v. Bank of Am. (1998) 60 CA4th 851, 855-856, 70 CR2d 595] .

However, an acceptance does not need to repeat the identical language of the offer [Schreiber v. Hooker (1952) 114 CA2d 634, 639, 251 P2d 55] .

Distinguish--Sales of Goods:

Under the Commercial Code, a definite and seasonable expression of acceptance or a written confirmation that is sent within a reasonable time operates as an acceptance even if it contains additional or different terms [Com Code § 2207; see 27.09[5][a]].

Jury Instructions:

Acceptance of Same Thing Offered, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3A, Instr. MB 300A.27 (Matthew Bender).

► Cross References:

Memorandum for party attacking existence of contract, see 13.59.

More liberal offer and acceptance rules under the Commercial Code, see Ch. 27, Contract for Sale of Goods--Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract Under California Commercial Code, 27.09.

13.28[2] Qualified Acceptance Constitutes Counteroffer. A qualified acceptance is a new proposal [CC § 1585]. The qualified acceptance constitutes a rejection of the original offer and the making of a counteroffer to the original offeror [Panagotacos v. Bank of Am. (1998) 60 CA4th 851, 855-856, 70 CR2d 595 ; Landberg v. Landberg (1972) 24 CA3d 742, 750, 101 CR 335] .

Example--Response to Offer Constituted Counteroffer:

A buyer made a written offer to buy real property. The seller made a written counteroffer on a standard form. Instead of signing the "acceptance" line of the form, the buyer signed the portion of the form entitled "counter to counteroffer." The buyer also wrote in certain terms of the purchase in a portion of the form entitled "changes/amendments," although, ultimately, it turned out that the terms did not vary from the terms of the seller's counteroffer. No contract was formed because the buyer's "counter to counteroffer" was a qualified acceptance of the seller's counteroffer [Roth v. Malson (1998) 67 CA4th 552, 554, 557-559, 79 CR2d 226] .

Example--Response Characterized As Counteroffer Did Not Constitute Acceptance:

A boilerplate document that was entitled "Counter Counter Offer" and began by stating "this is a counter offer" would not be construed as an acceptance of the plaintiff's counteroffer which had previously lapsed, even though the "time is of the essence" provision and lapse provision in plaintiff's counteroffer were for plaintiff's own benefit and plaintiff could have waived them. It was irrelevant whether or not adding an acceleration clause requirement to plaintiff's original counteroffer materially varied its terms; "the courts should treat a document as what it says it is unless extrinsic evidence supplies notice of ambiguities" [Krasley v. Superior Court (1980) 101 CA3d 425, 429-430, 161 CR 629] .

Cross References:

Memorandum for party attacking existence of contract, see 13.59.

Counteroffer can be acceptance under the Commercial Code, see Ch. 27, Contract for Sale of Goods--Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract Under California Commercial Code, 27.09[5].

13.28[3] "Grumbling" Acceptance Is Not Necessarily Rejection of Offer. An acceptance is not invalidated by the fact that it is "grumbling," or that the offeree makes some simultaneous "request." Nevertheless, it must appear that the "grumble" does not go so far as to make it doubtful that the expression is really one of assent. Similarly, the "request" must not add additional or different terms from those offered. Otherwise, the acceptance becomes a counteroffer [Guzman v. Visalia Cmty. Bank (1999) 71 CA4th 1370, 1376, 84 CR2d 581 (plaintiff's attorney's characterization of CCP § 998 offer of compromise as "insulting" and "demeaning" did not constitute a rejection of the offer; as a result, plaintiff's later acceptance of the offer was binding)].

13.28[4] Issue of Acceptance or Rejection of Offer Is Question of Fact. The interpretation of the purported acceptance or rejection of an offer is a question of fact. Based on the general rule that manifested mutual assent, rather than actual mental assent, is the essential element in the formation of contracts, the test of the true meaning of an acceptance or rejection is not what the party making it thought it meant or intended it to mean. Rather, the test is what a reasonable person in the position of the parties would have thought it meant [Guzman v. Visalia Cmty. Bank (1999) 71 CA4th 1370, 1376-1377, 84 CR2d 581] .

Jury Instructions:

Contract Formation--Acceptance, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI 309 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Contract Formation--Rejection of Offer, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 311 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawFormationAcceptanceGeneral OverviewContracts LawFormationAcceptanceMethods of AcceptanceGeneral Overview

116 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
V. DETERMINING WHETHER THERE HAS BEEN A VALID ACCEPTANCE

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.29

13.29 Acceptance Generally Must Be Communicated to Offeror.

13.29[1] Offeree Must Perform Act or Omission Intended to Communicate Acceptance. The acceptance of an offer must be communicated to the offeror [Commercial Cas. Ins. Co. v. Industrial Accident Comm'n (1953) 116 CA2d 901, 907, 254 P2d 954] .

Acceptance can be effectively communicated by some action or omission of the party accepting [CC § 1581]:

- By which he or she intends to communicate acceptance; or
- Which necessarily tends to communicate acceptance.

➤ Cross Reference:

Discussion of acceptance of unilateral contract by performance, see 13.29[3].

13.29[2] Acceptance Must Satisfy Any Conditions Prescribed by Offer. If an offer contains any conditions concerning the communication of its acceptance, a contract does not result unless the acceptance conforms to those conditions [CC § 1582].

If the offer does not contain any conditions concerning the communication of acceptance, acceptance may be communicated by any reasonable and usual mode [CC § 1582].

Jury Instructions:

Method of Acceptance Specified by Offer, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3A, Instr. MB 300A.24 (Matthew Bender).

➤ Cross Reference:

More liberal offer and acceptance rules under the Commercial Code, see Ch. 27, Contract for Sale of Goods--Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract Under California Commercial Code, 27.09.

13.29[3] Unilateral Contract Is Accepted by Performance. A unilateral contract is one in which no promisor receives a promise as consideration for his or her own promise [Smith v. Hermann (1962) 199 CA2d 748, 753, 18 CR 833] . In a unilateral contract, there is only one promisor. The promise is given in consideration of the promisee's act or forbearance [Asmus v. Pacific Bell (2000) 23 C4th 1, 10, 96 CR2d 179, 999 P2d 71] . Thus, an offer for a unilateral contract is accepted, and the contract is formed, when the offeree performs [see Asmus v. Pacific Bell (2000) 23 C4th 1, 14-15, 96 CR2d 179, 999 P2d 71] .

After accepting the contract by performance, the offeree must give notice of the performance to the offeror within a reasonable time, to prevent the offeror from treating the offer as lapsed [Harris v. Time, Inc. (1987) 191 CA3d 449, 456-457, 237 CR 584] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawFormationAcceptanceGeneral OverviewContracts LawFormationAcceptanceMailbox RuleContracts LawFormationAcceptanceMethods of AcceptanceGeneral OverviewContracts LawFormationAcceptanceMethods of AcceptanceOvert ActsContracts LawFormationAcceptanceMethods of AcceptanceSilence

117 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
V. DETERMINING WHETHER THERE HAS BEEN A VALID ACCEPTANCE

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.30

13.30 Acceptance Is Effective When Offeree Puts Acceptance in Course of Transmission to Offeror.

13.30[1] Transmission of Acceptance Must Comply With Requirements Specified by Offer. An acceptance becomes effective when the offeree puts the acceptance in the course of transmission to the offeror, in accordance with any requirements for communicating acceptance specified in the offer [CC §§ 1582, 1583].

13.30[2] Acceptance by Mail Is Effective Upon Posting. An acceptance by mail, properly addressed and with correct postage, is considered communicated to the offeror when the letter of acceptance is posted [Palo Alto Town & Country Vill., Inc. v. BBTC Co. (1974) 11 C3d 494, 500-501, 113 CR 705, 521 P2d 1097 ; see CC §§ 1582, 1583].

Similarly, the exercise of an option becomes effective at the time written notice of acceptance is deposited in the mail, unless the option contract provides otherwise [Palo Alto Town & Country Vill., Inc. v. BBTC Co. (1974) 11 C3d 494, 501, 113 CR 705, 521 P2d 1097 ; see CC §§ 1582, 1583].

If a letter of acceptance is delivered to a third person for posting, the acceptance is effective only upon posting, not upon the delivery to the third person [Gibbs v. American Savings & Loan Assn. (1990) 217 CA3d 1372, 1376, 266 CR 517].

Jury Instructions:

Offer Accepted by Mailing of Acceptance, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3A, Instr. MB 300A.23 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawFormationAcceptanceGeneral OverviewContracts LawFormationAcceptanceMailbox Rule

118 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
V. DETERMINING WHETHER THERE HAS BEEN A VALID ACCEPTANCE

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.31

13.31 Silence Generally May Not Constitute Acceptance.

Silence generally may not constitute an acceptance [Southern Cal. Acoustics Co. v. C.V. Holder, Inc. (1969) 71 C2d 719, 722, 79 CR 319, 456 P2d 975] .

However, acceptance may be inferred from inaction in the following circumstances [Golden Eagle Ins. Co. v. Foremost Ins. Co. (1993) 20 CA4th 1372, 1385-1387, 25 CR2d 242] :

- The offeree had a duty to act to reject a benefit.
- The offeree retained a benefit conferred [see CC § 1589].
- The past relations of the parties indicated that silence would constitute acceptance.
- The offeror had given the offeree reason to believe that acceptance would be manifested by silence.

Examples:

■ Insureds' conduct in retaining insurance renewal policy for nearly two months before objecting to the amount of the premium, together with existence of an ongoing relationship between the insureds and the insurer, was sufficient evidence of acceptance of the renewal policy [Golden Eagle Ins. Co. v. Foremost Ins. Co. (1993) 20 CA4th 1372, 1386-1387, 25 CR2d 242] .

■ When a commercial lease provided that lessee could request an additional 10-year extension of lease and that the lessor was required to inform the lessee within 90 days of such a request whether that request was accepted or rejected, the lessor's failure to respond to the lessee's request for extension constituted acceptance of that request, when the parties had ongoing seven-year relationship and the lessor was aware that the lessee was expending substantial amounts for improvements to the property in anticipation of long term occupancy. Under the facts, the lessor was held to have had an affirmative duty to reply in order to reject the lessee's request for an extension [McAulay v. Jones (1952) 110 CA2d 302, 306-308, 242 P2d 650] .

Jury Instructions:

Contract Formation--Acceptance by Silence, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 310 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Silence as Acceptance, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3A, Instr. MB 300A.28 (Matthew Bender).

Acceptance of Benefits Assumes Duties, see California Forms of Jury Instruction, Ch. 3A, Instr. MB 300A.26 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawFormationAcceptanceMethods of AcceptanceGeneral OverviewContracts
LawFormationAcceptanceMethods of AcceptanceSilence

119 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element

VI. DETERMINING WHETHER PARTIES INTENDED TO CONTRACT

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.32

13.32 CHECKLIST: Determining Whether Parties Intended to Contract.

☐ Determine whether parties' intention to contract is at issue because:

☐ Parties have merely "agreed to agree" in future;

Discussion:

See 13.33, 13.34

☐ Parties have informally agreed in writing to execute formal agreement; or

Discussion:

See 13.33, 13.35[1], [2]

☐ Parties have orally agreed to proposed written agreement.

Discussion:

See 13.33, 13.35[3]

☐ If parties have "agreed to agree," determine whether:

☐ Agreement is unenforceable because matter left to the future is too uncertain for court to determine what to enforce; or ☐ Agreement is enforceable because it appears parties intended to contract, and court could reach a fair result based on terms of contract and extrinsic evidence.

Authority:

Okun v. Morton (1988) 203 CA3d 805, 817, 250 CR 220

Discussion:

See 13.34[2]

☐ If parties have agreed to execute a formal writing, determine whether:

☐ Agreement is enforceable because parties have agreed on all essential terms in an informal writing.

Authority:

Harris v. Rudin, Richman & Appel (1999) 74 CA4th 299, 306-309, 87 CR2d 822

Discussion:

See 13.35[1]

☐ Agreement is unenforceable because informal written agreement manifests intention not to be bound until final, formal agreement is executed.

Authority:

Beck v. American Health Group Int'l, Inc. (1989) 211 CA3d 1555, 1562-1563, 260 CR 237

Discussion:

See 13.35[1]

Form:

See 13.60 (memorandum for party attacking existence of contract)

☐ Enforceability of oral agreement to execute written agreement is question of fact for trial court.

Authority:

Banner Entm't, Inc. v. Superior Court (1998) 62 CA4th 348, 358, 72 CR2d 598

Discussion:

See 13.35[3]

Form:

See 13.64 (memorandum for party defending existence of contract)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawFormationGeneral OverviewContracts LawFormationDefinite TermsContracts LawFormationMeeting of Minds

120 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
VI. DETERMINING WHETHER PARTIES INTENDED TO CONTRACT

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.33

13.33 Parties Must Manifest Intention to Agree in Regard to Matter in Question.

To have a valid contract, the parties must consent to contract [CC §§ 1550, 1565], and must agree upon the same thing in the same sense [CC § 1580]. The parties must manifest an intention, by their words and acts, to agree in regard to the matter in question [Beard v. Goodrich (2003) 110 CA4th 1031, 1040 ; Merced County Sheriff's Employees' Assn. v. County of Merced (1987) 188 CA3d 662, 670, 233 CR 519] .

When the parties have agreed to agree, or to formalize their agreement, in the future, the manifestation of the parties' intent to be bound immediately determines whether an enforceable contract has been formed upon the initial agreement [Banner Entm't, Inc. v. Superior Court (1998) 62 CA4th 348, 358-359, 72 CR2d 598] .

➡ Cross Reference:

Discussion of parties' consent to contract, see 13.07.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawFormationAcceptanceGeneral OverviewContracts LawFormationAcceptanceMethods of AcceptanceGeneral OverviewContracts LawFormationAcceptanceMethods of AcceptanceOvert ActsContracts
LawFormationMeeting of MindsContracts LawFormationOffersGeneral Overview

121 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
VI. DETERMINING WHETHER PARTIES INTENDED TO CONTRACT

*1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.3413.34 Parties' Promise to Agree in Future Does Not Necessarily Render Contract Unenforceable.

13.34[1] Law Favors Enforcement of Contracts. The general rule is that if an essential element of a promise is reserved for the future agreement of both parties, the promise gives rise to no legal obligation until the future agreement is made [Coleman Eng'g Co. v. North Am. Aviation, Inc. (1966) 65 C2d 396, 405, 55 CR 1, 420 P2d 713] . However, the law favors carrying out the parties' intentions through the enforcement of contracts and disfavors holding them unenforceable because of uncertainty [Okun v. Morton (1988) 203 CA3d 805, 817, 250 CR 220] .

➡ Cross Reference:

Discussion of construing ambiguities in a contract, see Ch. 21, Asserting a Particular Construction of Contract.

13.34[2] Contract Is Enforceable If Court Can Determine What to Enforce. The enforceability of a contract containing a promise to agree depends on the relative importance and the severability of the matter left to the future; it is a question of degree and may be settled by determining whether the indefinite promise is so essential to the bargain that the inability to enforce that promise strictly according to its terms would make the enforcement of the rest of the contract unfair [Coleman Eng'g Co. v. North Am. Aviation, Inc. (1966) 65 C2d 396, 405, 55 CR 1, 420 P2d 713] .

A promise to agree in the future is unenforceable when the uncertainty or incompleteness prevents the court from knowing, with the aid of extrinsic evidence if necessary, what to enforce [Bustamante v. Intuit, Inc. (2006) 141 CA4th 199, 213, 45 CR3d 692 ; Okun v. Morton (1988) 203 CA3d 805, 817, 250 CR 220] . If the parties have concluded a transaction in which it appears that they intended to make a contract, the court should not frustrate their intention if it is possible to reach a fair and just result, even though that requires a choice among conflicting meanings and the filling of some gaps that the parties have left [Okun v. Morton (1988) 203 CA3d 805, 817, 250 CR 220] .

Examples:

- A metropolitan transit authority abolished its police force and contracted with the county to provide law enforcement through the county sheriff. The agencies agreed that transit authority officers who passed the sheriff's review process would be transferred to the sheriff's department. The agencies also agreed that they would "meet and reach mutual agreement" on the placement of former police officers who did not pass the sheriff's review process. The agreement to agree in the future did not void the contract for failure to reach agreement on an essential term because at the time the agreement was made, the agencies had no way of knowing which officers, if any, would not pass the review or what jobs would be available and appropriate for the placement of each of those officers [Herman v. County of L.A. (2002) 98 CA4th 484, 486-488, 119 CR2d 691] .

- A contract between partners in a restaurant enterprise for joint exploitation of future business ventures on a "mutually agreeable basis" was enforceable because the conduct of the parties after execution of the agreement and before any controversy had arisen was persuasive evidence in determining the meaning of the allegedly fatally uncertain contract provision [Okun v. Morton (1988) 203 CA3d 805, 819, 250 CR 220] .

Cross Reference:

Discussion of determining the effect of the absence of a term of a contract regarding price, quantity, or time, see 13.46 -13.52.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawFormationGeneral OverviewContracts LawFormationDefinite Terms

122 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
VI. DETERMINING WHETHER PARTIES INTENDED TO CONTRACT

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.35

13.35 Parties' Intention Determines Whether Contract Arises From Agreement to Execute Written Agreement.

13.35[1] Parties May Intend Informal Agreement to Be Binding. If the parties definitely agree on all of the essential terms of an agreement in an informal writing, that agreement may constitute an enforceable contract, even though the parties intend to execute a formal writing later [Harris v. Rudin, Richman & Appel (1999) 74 CA4th 299, 306-309, 87 CR2d 822] .

Example:

Plaintiff and defendants engaged in settlement negotiations, which plaintiff claimed resulted in a settlement agreement. The terms of the alleged agreement were set out in a letter from defendants' counsel to plaintiffs' counsel. When plaintiff brought action alleging breach of the agreement, defendants demurred, asserting that the letter was merely an agreement to agree in the future. The trial court erred in sustaining the demurrer because the allegations of the complaint were sufficient, at a minimum, to state a claim for breach of an oral contract. Whether the parties intended their communications to be a binding settlement agreement or an agreement to further negotiate after a formal draft was prepared was a factual question not properly the subject of a demurrer [Harris v. Rudin, Richman & Appel (1999) 74 CA4th 299, 306-309, 87 CR2d 822] .

Jury Instructions:

Unformalized Agreement, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 306 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

13.35[2] Parties May Intend Contract to Be Effective Only After Formal Agreement Is Signed. If an agreement to agree shows a manifest intention that the parties not be bound until a final, formal agreement is executed, there is no enforceable contract [Beck v. American Health Group Int'l, Inc. (1989) 211 CA3d 1555, 1562-1563, 260 CR 237] .

Examples:

- Defendants sent a letter to plaintiff, stating that the letter was an outline of their future agreement. Defendants asked plaintiff to sign the letter to confirm their general understanding, so that defendants could forward the letter to counsel to draft a contract. The letter also stated that the parties would discuss the contract when they had a draft. Under the circumstances, the letter did not constitute a binding contract, but was merely "an agreement to agree," which could not be the basis of a cause of action for breach of contract [Beck v. American Health Group Int'l, Inc. (1989) 211 CA3d 1555, 1562-1563, 260 CR 237] .

■ An entrepreneur attempted to create a joint venture with an American company to market the company's software to users in Mexico. After attempts to secure outside funding for the enterprise failed, the company stopped working with the entrepreneur, who then sued the company for breach of an agreement to "form and launch" the Mexican company. Because the parties always understood that it would not be possible to "form and launch" the Mexican company without significant third party investment, the failure of the parties' money-raising efforts meant that they were unable to create a working relationship with each other, and consequently no obligation arose or could arise to "form and launch" the new company on any terms [Bustamante v. Intuit, Inc. (2006) 141 CA4th 199, 212-213, 45 CR3d 692] .

Distinguish--Contract to Negotiate Agreement:

A contract to negotiate an agreement is distinguishable from an "agreement to agree." A contract to negotiate the terms of an agreement differs from a mere agreement to agree because failure to agree is not itself a breach of a contract to negotiate. Nevertheless, a party may be liable for breach of the contract to negotiate an agreement if a failure to reach an ultimate agreement results from a breach of that party's obligation to negotiate or to negotiate in good faith [Copeland v. Baskin Robbins U.S.A. (2002) 96 CA4th 1251, 1257, 117 CR2d 875] .

Jury Instructions:

Unformalized Agreement, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 306 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Cross Reference:

Memorandum for party attacking existence of contract, see 13.60.

13.35[3] Parties' Intention Regarding Oral Agreement Is Question of Fact. If the parties orally agree on all of the terms and conditions of a proposed written agreement with the mutual intention that the oral agreement should be binding, the mere fact that a formal written agreement to the same effect has not yet been signed does not alter the binding validity of the oral agreement [Elyaoudayan v. Hoffman (2003) 104 CA4th 1421, 1430, 129 CR2d 41 ; Banner Entm't, Inc. v. Superior Court (1998) 62 CA4th 348, 358, 72 CR2d 598] .

Whether it was the parties' mutual intention that their oral agreement to the terms contained in a proposed written agreement should be binding immediately is to be determined from the surrounding facts and circumstances of a particular case and is a question of fact for the trial court [Banner Entm't, Inc. v. Superior Court (1998) 62 CA4th 348, 358, 72 CR2d 598] .

Strategic Point--All Parties:

Whether a party to an oral agreement intended to be immediately bound can be shown by that party's conduct. For example, did the party stop negotiating with others? Did the party tell others (employees, customers, etc.) that it had entered into a contract? Did it treat the other party to the oral agreement as though there was already an agreement in place; for example, by placing orders?

Warning--Oral Agreement Is Limited to Its Terms:

Even if the parties intend their oral agreement to be binding immediately, the oral agreement is limited to its own terms. Provisions added to the subsequent written agreement, which were not agreed to orally, are not enforceable unless the written agreement is signed [Khajavi v. Feather River Anesthesia Med. Group (2000) 84 CA4th 32, 61-62, 100 CR2d 627] .

Example:

A physician had an oral employment agreement with a medical group. A subsequent written agreement was never executed. When the physician brought an action for breach of the oral employment agreement, he claimed entitlement to an award of attorney's fees, based on the fact that written employment agreements signed by his colleagues subsequent to their oral agreements contained attorney's fees provisions. The physician was not entitled to fees, because the attorney's fees provision had not been discussed or agreed to as part of the oral agreement, and a subsequent written agreement had never been signed [Khajavi v. Feather River Anesthesia Med. Group (2000) 84 CA4th 32, 59-62, 100 CR2d 627] .

Jury Instructions:

Unformalized Agreement, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 306 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender).

Cross Reference:

Memorandum for party defending existence of contract, see 13.64.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawFormationExecutionContracts LawFormationMeeting of Minds

123 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
VII. DETERMINING EXISTENCE OF ADEQUATE CONSIDERATION

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.36

13.36 CHECKLIST: Determining Existence of Adequate Consideration.

- ☐ Determine whether contract is executory (and therefore requires consideration).

Authority:

CC § 1550; Schiffman v. Atlas Mill Supply, Inc. (1961) 193 CA2d 847, 851-853, 14 CR 708

Discussion:

See 13.37

- ☐ Determine whether party seeking to avoid contract must overcome presumption of consideration for written contracts.

Authority:

CC §§ 1614, 1615

Discussion:

See 13.38

- ☐ Determine whether contract is exempt from consideration requirement because contract is one of the following:

- ☐ Written release of debtor.

Authority:

CC § 1541

Discussion:

See 13.39[1]

- ☐ Written acceptance of part performance in satisfaction of obligation.

Authority:

CC § 1524

Discussion:

See 13.39[2]

- ☐ Written modification of oral contract.

Authority:

CC § 1697

Discussion:

See 13.39[3]

- ☐ Authorization of agent.

Authority:

CC § 2308

Discussion:

See 13.39[4]

- ☐ Suretyship obligation entered into at same time with original obligation, or with acceptance of original obligation by creditor.

Authority:

CC § 2792

Discussion:

See 13.39[5]

- ☐ If consideration is required, determine whether adequate consideration exists:

- ☐ Consideration is:

☐ Benefit to promisor; or

☐ Detriment to promisee.

Authority:

CC § 1605

Discussion:

See 13.40

- ☐ Consideration must be part of bargain or agreed exchange.

Authority:

Steiner v. Thexton (2010) 48 C4th 411, 422, 106 CR3d 252, 226 P3d 359

Discussion:

See 13.41

Form:

See 13.61 (memorandum for party attacking existence of contract)

- ☐ Consideration must be sufficient:

- ☐ Existing legal or moral obligation constitutes consideration only in limited circumstances.

Authority:

CC § 1606

Discussion:

See 13.42[1]

- ☐ Promises mutual in obligation constitute consideration.

Authority:

CC § 1605

Discussion:

See 13.42[2]

Form:

See 13.61 (memorandum for party attacking existence of contract)

- ☐ Sufficiency does not depend on intrinsic value.

Authority:

Horton v. Kyburz (1959) 53 C2d 59, 65, 346 P2d 399

Discussion:

See 13.42[3]

- ☐ Consideration must be lawful.

Authority:

CC § 1607

Discussion:

See 13.42[4]

- ☐ Amount of consideration need not be specified.

Authority:

CC § 1610

Discussion:

See 13.42[5]

- ☐ Promise to perform existing duty is not adequate consideration.

Authority:

Grant v. The Aerodraulics Co. (1949) 91 CA2d 68, 75, 204 P2d 683

Discussion:

See 13.42[6]

- ☐ Relinquishment of claimed right may constitute adequate consideration.

Authority:

Walters v. Calderon (1972) 25 CA3d 863, 873-874, 102 CR 89

Discussion:

See 13.42[7]

- ☐ Requirements contracts do not lack consideration.

Authority:

Ross v. Frank W. Dunne Co. (1953) 119 CA2d 690, 698, 260 P2d 104

Discussion:

See 13.43

- ☐ Contracts containing satisfaction clauses do not lack consideration.

Authority:

Mattei v. Hopper (1958) 51 C2d 119, 122-123, 126, 330 P2d 625

Discussion:

See 13.44

- ☐ If promise lacks consideration, determine whether promise is enforceable under doctrine of promissory estoppel.

Authority:

C & K Eng'g Contractors v. Amber Steel Co. (1978) 23 C3d 1, 6, 151 CR 323, 587 P2d 1136

Discussion:

See 13.45

Form:

See 13.65 (memorandum for party defending existence of contract)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawConsiderationGeneral OverviewContracts LawConsiderationAdequate Consideration

124 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: California Contract Litigation

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Chapter 13 Attacking or Defending Existence of Contract--Absence of Essential Element
VII. DETERMINING EXISTENCE OF ADEQUATE CONSIDERATION

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Contract Litigation 13.37

13.37 Consideration Generally Is Required for Valid Contract.

