1 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure Statement on Fair Use

Statement on Fair Use

RELEASE NO. 15, August 2010

LexisNexis Matthew Bender recognizes the balance that must be achieved between the operation of the fair use doctrine, whose basis is to avoid the rigid application of the copyright statute, and the protection of the creative rights and economic interests of authors, publishers and other copyright holders.

We are also aware of the countervailing forces that exist between the ever greater technological advances for making both print and electronic copies and the reduction in the value of copyrighted works that must result from a consistent and pervasive reliance on these new copying technologies. It is LexisNexis Matthew Bender's position that if the "progress of science and useful arts" is promoted by granting copyright protection to authors, such progress may well be impeded if copyright protection is diminished in the name of fair use. (See Nimmer on Copyright § 13.05[E][1].) This holds true whether the parameters of the fair use doctrine are considered in either the print or the electronic environment as it is the integrity of the copyright that is at issue, not the media under which the protected work may become available. Therefore, the fair use guidelines we propose apply equally to our print and electronic information, and apply, within §§ 107 and 108 of the Copyright Act, regardless of the professional status of the user.

Our draft guidelines would allow for the copying of limited materials, which would include synopses and tables of contents, primary source and government materials that may have a minimal amount of editorial enhancements, individual forms to aid in the drafting of applications and pleadings, and miscellaneous pages from any of our newsletters, treatises and practice guides. This copying would be permitted provided it is performed for internal use and solely for the purpose of facilitating individual research or for creating documents produced in the course of the user's professional practice, and the original from which the copy is made has been purchased or licensed as part of the user's existing in-house collection.

LexisNexis Matthew Bender fully supports educational awareness programs designed to increase the public's recognition of its fair use rights. We also support the operation of collective licensing organizations with regard to our print and electronic information.

No copyright is claimed in the text of statutes, regulation, and excerpts from court opinions quoted within this work.

Paul R. Kiesel

Mr. Kiesel is a partner with Kiesel, Boucher & Larson, LLP, Beverly Hills, California. His practice is devoted to the representation of consumers in personal injury, products liability, class action, construction defect and toxic tort litigation. After serving on the Board of Governors for the California and Los Angeles Trial Lawyers Association (now the Consumer Attorneys Association of California and Los Angeles), he has been elected an Emeritus Board Member of both organizations. Mr. Kiesel is also serving a two-year term on the Board of Governors for the Association of Business Trial Lawyers. Mr. Kiesel has been recognized as one of the top 50 trial lawyers by the Los Angeles Business Journal and by California Law Business as one of the 100 most influential attorneys in the State of California. He writes a monthly technology column for the Los Angeles Daily Journal and is a frequent presenter at continuing legal education programs. Mr. Kiesel is also a member of the LexisNexis California Advisory Board; and he is the 2008 incoming Chair for the Los Angeles County Bar Association's Litigation Section.

The Honorable Peter D. Lichtman

The Honorable Peter D. Lichtman is a Judge of the Los Angeles Superior Court and former Supervising Judge of the Complex Litigation Program. Prior to that, Judge Lichtman served as a civil fast track judge. He was previously an attorney in private practice for 17 years, with concentration in the area of complex civil litigation. He has authored numerous articles and contributed to legal publications, as well as lecturing widely in the area of civil litigation.

Edith R. Matthai

Edith R. Matthai is a partner with Robie & Matthai, a Professional Corporation, in Los Angeles, California, where her practice centers on professional malpractice defense, insurance related litigation and business litigation. Ms. Matthai served as a Trustee of the Los Angeles County Bar Association. She is Senior Vice President of the Los Angeles County Bar Association and will serve as its President in 2005. Ms. Matthai has served for six years on the Judicial Council Task Force that has prepared the new Judicial Council Civil Jury Instructions for California. Ms. Matthai was named by California Lawyer as one of the prominent California attorneys in the defense of legal malpractice actions, and by the Los Angeles Daily Journal/San Francisco Recorder as one of the top 30 women litigators in California.

Richard L. Seabolt

Richard L. Seabolt is a partner in the San Francisco office of Duane Morris LLP. Mr. Seabolt has extensive experience in complex trials and appeals arising from commercial disputes in the technology, entertainment, construction, and insurance industries. He serves as Chair of the Litigation Section of the State Bar of California for 2005-2006. He also is a member of the Judicial Council's Civil Jury Instruction Committee ("CACI") Advisory Committee, the Board of Governors of the Association of Business Trial Lawyers (ABTL), and the American Arbitration Association's Large Complex Case Panel. Mr. Seabolt frequently speaks and writes on civil litigation topics and topics involving his particular practice areas.

Scope

HIGHLIGHTS

Release 15 August 2010

Choice of Law

McCann v. Foster Wheeler LLC (2010) 48 C4th 68 holds California has replaced the doctrine of the law of the forum state with a governmental interest analysis for choice of law determinations.

Settlement

Goodman v. Lozano (2010) 47 C4th 1327 holds if the amount of settlement with fewer than all defendants before judgment exceeds the award in the judgment against remaining defendants, those defendants are deemed the prevailing parties for purposes of attorney fees under CCP § 877.

Up-To-Date Cases, Rules, and Judicial Council Forms

This release updates the publication throughout with the 2010 legislative changes, changes to the Rules of Court and Judicial Council Forms that are effective July 1, 2010, and the latest California Supreme Court and Courts of Appeal cases.

BEGINNING AND TERMINATING THE ATTORNEY-CLIENT RELATIONSHIP

Disqualification of Attorney. This chapter is updated with Kirk v. First Am. Title Ins. Co. (2010) 183 CA4th 776, which holds some courts of appeal view the rule of vicarious disqualification to be a rebuttable presumption, and lists the elements for rebutting this presumption that an appropriate screen has been put in place. In evaluating whether the properties of an appropriate screen meet the test, the trial court must be satisfied that the tainted attorney has not had and will not have any improper communication with others at the firm concerning the litigation. See Ch. 3, Beginning and Terminating the Attorney-Client Relationship, 3.36[5].

LIMITATION OF ACTIONS

Choice of Law for Limitation of Actions. This chapter is updated with McCann v. Foster Wheeler LLC (2010) 48 C4th 68, which holds California has replaced the doctrine of the law of the forum state with a governmental interest analysis for choice of law determinations. To limit forum shopping by plaintiffs, California has adopted a "borrowing statute." The borrowing statute provides that when a cause of action has arisen in another state or country, and by the laws of that other jurisdiction an action could not be maintained thereon by reason of lapse of time, the cause of action cannot be brought in California even if the California statute of limitations has not run. See Ch. 4, Limitation of Actions, 4.10[1], [2].

PARTIES

Standing and Shareholder Derivative Suits. This chapter is updated with Haro v. Ibarra (2009) 180 CA4th 823, which holds a plaintiff in a shareholder's derivative suit generally must maintain continuous stock ownership throughout the pendency of the litigation; and the only exception to this rule applies when equitable considerations warrant an exception to the continuous ownership requirement because the stockholder was wrongfully deprived of standing. See Ch. 5, Parties, 5.05[5].

DETERMINING FORUM

Class Action Arbitration Clauses. This chapter is updated with Cellphone Termination Fee Cases (2009) 180 CA4th 1110, which holds if a class action settlement contains a clause calling for arbitration of claims, the validity of the arbitration clause will rest not only on principles applicable to arbitration clauses generally, but on the standards of fairness applicable to court approval of the class action settlement itself. See Ch. 6, Determining Forum, 6.22[8].

Unconscionable Arbitration Agreements. This chapter is updated with Suh v. Superior Court (2010) 181 CA4th 1504, which holds an arbitration agreement is unconscionable where an employer required that the employees sign a waiver of notice and acceptance of terms of an agreement that they had not read and that contained the arbitration clause and limits on remedies; and with Lhotka v. Geographic Expeditions, Inc. (2010) 181 CA4th 816, which holds an arbitration agreement is unconscionable where the terms and conditions of a recreational release agreement were nonnegotiable, and defendant's statement that plaintiffs would encounter the same requirements with any other recreational company. See Ch. 6, Determining Forum, 6.24[2][b], 6.24[4].

PERSONAL JURISDICTION

General Appearance and Appeal. This chapter is updated with State Farm General Ins. Co. v. JT's Frames, Inc. (2010) 181 CA4th 429 , which holds waiver of the lack of personal jurisdiction by a general appearance of the defendant waives the right to raise the jurisdictional question on appeal. See Ch. 9, Motions to Quash and Other Objections to Personal Jurisdiction, 9.07[3][b].

SUBJECT MATTER JURISDICTION

Doctrine of Primary Jurisdiction and Administrative Agencies. This chapter is updated with Blue Cross of California, Inc. v. Superior Court (2009) 180 CA4th 1237 , which holds a trial court does not abuse its discretion by refusing to defer litigation that presents issues that are within the conventional competence of the courts if the judgment of a technically expert body would not aid judicial decisionmaking. See Ch. 10, Dismissal for Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction, 10.04[11][b].

Abstention Doctrine and Equitable Remedies. This chapter is updated with Arce v. Kaiser Foundation Health Plan, Inc. (2010) 181 CA4th 471 , which holds a court may abstain from adjudicating a suit that seeks equitable remedies if 1) granting the requested relief would require a trial court to assume the functions of an administrative agency, or to interfere with the functions of an administrative agency, 2) the lawsuit involves determining complex economic policy, which is best handled by the Legislature or an administrative agency, or 3) granting injunctive relief would be unnecessarily burdensome for the trial court to monitor and enforce given the availability of more effective means of redress. See Ch. 10, Dismissal for Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction, 10.04[12].

Doctrine of Exclusive Concurrent Jurisdiction. This chapter is updated with California Attorneys, etc. v. Schwarzenegger (2010) 182 CA4th 1424 , which holds the exclusive jurisdiction rule does not apply where the parties and legal issues are so different that both judgment in the first case is not binding on the parties as to the issues in the second case, and the second case does not threaten or produce a conclusion that is irreconcilable with the judgment in the first case. See Ch. 10, Dismissal for Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction, 10.05[3][a].

ANTI-SLAPP MOTIONS

Non-Protected Activity Subject to the Anti-SLAPP Statute. This chapter is updated with cases that highlight causes of action that are not protected activity under the anti-SLAPP statute [CCP § 425.16]: All One God Faith, Inc. v. Organic and Sustainable Industry Standards, Inc. (2010) 183 CA4th 1186 (certification of products as complying with a proposed industry "organic" standard and commercial advertising); Graffiti Protective Coatings, Inc. v. City of Pico Rivera (2010) 181 CA4th 1207 (termination of a public contract in accordance with its terms and sealing a contract with another vendor without competitive bid); Oasis West Realty, LLC v. Goldman (2010) 182 CA4th 688 (litigation concerning an attorney's breach of the duty of loyalty in violation of Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310); Robles v. Chalilpoyil (2010) 181 CA4th 566 (defective expert testimony on behalf of the plaintiff in an underlying action). See Ch. 13, Anti-SLAPP Motions, 13.06[1][a].

Statements Made In Official Proceedings. This chapter is updated with new cases that include statements made in connection with official proceedings for purposes of CCP § 425.16: Seltzer v. Barnes (2010) 182 CA4th 953 (lawful settlement negotiations between homeowner and homeowners association); Park 100 Investment Group II, LLC. v. Ryan (2009) 180 CA4th 795 (filing a lawful lis pendens). See Ch. 13, Anti-SLAPP Motions, 13.06[2][b].

Protected Activity and True Threats. This chapter is updated with D.C. v. R.R. (2010) 182 CA4th 1190 , which holds written or oral statements made in a public forum must be speech protected by the First Amendment; and actions based on unprotected "true threats," i.e., statements where the speaker means to communicate a serious expression of an intent to commit an act of unlawful violence to a particular individual or group of individuals, are not subject to anti-SLAPP motions. See Ch. 13, Anti-SLAPP Motions, 13.06[2][c].

Business Exception to Anti-SLAPP Statute. This chapter is updated with cases highlighting entities and actions that are not business related such that the business exception to the anti-SLAPP suit apply under CCP § 425.17(c): All One God Faith, Inc. v. Organic and Sustainable Industry Standards, Inc. (2010) 183 CA4th 1186 (a nonprofit trade association is not "a person primarily engaged in the business of selling or leasing goods or services"); Stewart v. Rolling Stone LLC (2010) 181 CA4th 664 (a magazine's use of the name of a rock band on its cover does not constitute "representations of fact about the operations, goods, or services" of the publisher). See Ch. 13, Anti-SLAPP Motions, 13.06[3][b].

Timing of Costs Memorandum. This chapter is updated with Daniels v. Robbins (2010) 182 CA4th 204, which holds a memorandum for costs from an anti-SLAPP motion must be filed within the time specified by Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1700, and for purposes of Rule 3.1700, a minute order granting the motion does not trigger the 15-day deadline for filing for costs, only a judgment or dismissal after the order is granted does that under CCP § 581. See Ch. 13, Anti-SLAPP Motions, 13.136[7]

INJUNCTIONS

Injunction Undertakings. This chapter is updated with Smith v. Adventist Health System/West (2010) 182 CA4th 729, which holds a waiver of the right to plaintiff's undertaking is a question of fact, and a finding of waiver requires the defendant's showing the intentional relinquishment or abandonment of the right to plaintiff's undertaking. The intent to waive may be expressed in words, either oral or written, or implied by a party's conduct, and the right to require plaintiff to post an undertaking on a preliminary injunction may be forfeited by the untimeliness of the request. See Ch. 18, TROs and Preliminary Injunctions, 18.11[6][f].

ATTACHMENT

Judicial Council Forms. This chapter is updated with the July 1, 2010 updates to the Judicial Council Forms for obtaining a writ of attachment or temporary protective order: AT-105, AT-115, AT-120, AT-125, AT-140. See Ch. 19, Attachment, 19.41 -19.45.

DISQUALIFICATION OF JUDGE

Writ Review on Disqualification. This chapter is updated with People v. Freeman (2010) 47 C4th 993, which holds a defendant's failure to seek writ review pursuant to CCP § 170.3(d), of the denial of his or her statutory disqualification motions, forfeits the potential statutory claims that the trial judge should have been disqualified for cause and, having once recused himself, was statutorily precluded from subsequently accepting reassignment of the case. See Ch. 22, Disqualification of Judge, 22.35[2].

LAW AND MOTION PROCEDURE

Telephonic Appearance. This chapter is updated with the new optional Judicial Council Forms for telephonic appearances: Judicial Council Form CIV-020 Notice of Intent to Appear by Telephone. See Ch. 26, Law and Motion Procedure, 26.69.

STIPULATIONS

Appeal of Stipulated Judgment. This chapter is updated with Villano v. Waterman Convalescent Hosp., Inc. (2010) 181 CA4th 1189, which highlights a split of authority. In most instances a stipulated judgment is not appealable. An exception to this rule permits an appeal if consent was merely given to facilitate an appeal following adverse determination of a critical issue. The Courts of Appeal are divided on when there has been an adverse determination of a critical issue. See Ch. 28, Stipulations, 28.09[1].

MOTION FOR RECONSIDERATION

Motion to Reconsider and Postjudgment Motions. This chapter is updated with D.R.S. Trading Co., Inc. v. Barnes (2009) 180 CA4th 815 , which holds, contrary to the general rule that reconsideration is not allowed after entry of judgment, that a motion for reconsideration is permissible of a determination on a postjudgment motion filed and decided after entry of default judgment, and relied on CCP § 1008(e) to affirm reconsideration of motion to vacate based on attorney fault under CCP § 473(b). See Ch. 29, Motions to Reconsider and Renewed Motions, 29.05[2].

INTERVENTION

Direct Interest. This chapter is updated with Gray v. Begley (2010) 182 CA4th 1509 , which holds an insurer providing defense to an insured under policy has a direct interest to intervene in an attempt by the insured and tortfeasor to settle the case without the participation of the insurer. See Ch. 31, Intervention, 31.05[3][a].

CLASS ACTIONS

Class Certification. This chapter is updated with cases where class certification is appropriate where the community of interest is less than total: McAdams v. Monier, Inc. (2010) 182 CA4th 174 (an inference of common reliance was adequate to show causation as to each class member sufficient to establish common issues predominate); Arce v. Kaiser Foundation Health Plan, Inc. (2010) 181 CA4th 471 (certification warranted despite individual issues because two central legal issues that are common to all putative class members); Steroid Hormone Product Cases (2010) 181 CA4th 145 (common issues of unlawful sales and the amount of restitution in a Consumers Legal Remedies Act, Civ. Code, § 1750 et seq., were not dominated by individual issues of causation and injury). See Ch. 33, Class Actions, 33.04[2][a].

Prima Facie Showing of Community of Interest Must Be Reasonable Possibility. This chapter is updated with Arce v. Kaiser Foundation Health Plan, Inc. (2010) 181 CA4th 471 , which holds in seeking class certification, the class action plaintiff must only establish that there is a reasonable possibility that plaintiffs can establish a prima facie community of interest among the class members. Where there is a reasonable possibility that the plaintiff in a class action can establish a community of interest among class members, the preferred course is to defer decision on the propriety of the class action until an evidentiary hearing has been held on the appropriateness of class litigation. See Ch. 33, Class Actions, 33.04[6].

Pick Off Cases. This chapter is updated with Wallace v. Geico Gen. Ins. Co. (2010) 183 CA4th 1390 , which holds where a defendant in a class action has forced an involuntary settlement on the representative plaintiff after the lawsuit is filed, a representative plaintiff may continue to be a member of the proposed class. These cases so-called "pick off" cases arise when, prior to class certification, a defendant in a proposed class action gives the named plaintiff the entirety of the relief claimed by that individual. The proper procedure in a pickoff case is for the trial court to consider whether the named plaintiff will continue fairly to represent the class in light of the individual relief offered by the defendant. As a practical matter, in most cases, that evaluation may be performed in the context of a ruling on a motion for class certification. See Ch. 33, Class Actions, 33.08[2].

Private Attorney General Theory and Attorneys' Fees. This chapter is updated with McGuigan v. City of San Diego (2010) 183 CA4th 610 , which holds only an opposing party can be liable for attorney fees under CCP § 1021.5. Defining "opposing party" requires consideration of both the origin and the entire procedural history of the subject action between the parties. First, determine who is the successful party in favor of whom fees may be awarded. The courts utilize a broad, pragmatic view of what constitutes a "successful party" in order to effectuate the policy underlying CCP § 1021.5. It is the "impact" of the case as a whole that is to be considered. This must include a recognition of the roles of all the different participants or parties, as of all the relevant time periods. Once the successful party is ascertained, the "opposing party" is one party whose position in the litigation was adverse to that of the successful party. See Ch. 33, Class Actions, 33.43[2].

SANCTIONS

Vexatious Litigants. This chapter is updated with Shalant v. Girardi (2010) 183 CA4th 545, which holds CCP § 391.7(c) does not prevent a vexatious litigant who is plaintiff in an action filed by his or her counsel from continuing to prosecute it in propria persona after substituting himself or herself in as attorney in the case. See Ch. 35, Sanctions, 35.15G[1A].

DEFAULTS

Motion to Reconsider. This chapter is updated with D.R.S. Trading Co., Inc. v. Barnes (2009) 180 CA4th 815, which holds after the substituted attorney's motion to vacate default judgment based on the original attorney's fault under CCP § 473(b) was denied due to the failure to submit the necessary declaration of the original attorney, the trial court properly granted reconsideration within the statutory period for doing so based on the submission of the declaration as new evidence. See Ch. 36, Defaults and Motions for Relief, 36.67[6].

SETTLEMENT AND RELEASE

Settlement With Less Than All Parties. This chapter is updated with Goodman v. Lozano (2010) 47 C4th 1327, which holds if the amount of settlement with fewer than all defendants before judgment exceeds the award in the judgment against remaining defendants, those defendants are deemed the prevailing parties for purposes of attorney fees under CCP § 877. See Ch. 37, Settlement and Release, 37.23[2].

SUMMARY JUDGMENT

Grounds Not Raised By Pleadings. This chapter is updated with Kendall v. Walker (2009) 181 CA4th 584, which holds while a motion for summary judgment may be granted on an issue the moving party has not raised, summary judgment cannot be denied on a ground not raised by the pleadings. See Ch. 38, Summary Judgment, 38.39.

DISMISSAL FOR DELAY

Estoppel. This chapter is updated with Jordan v. Superstar Sandcars (2010) 182 CA4th 1416, which holds the plaintiff's assumption that defense counsel's declaration of unavailability until after the expiration of the five-year period meant that defendant would agree to an extension does not support equitable estoppel. See Ch. 40, Dismissal for Delay in Bringing to Trial, 40.16[2][a].

How To Use lexis.com (R) With This Publication

1- MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure How To. 01

How To. 01 Finding This Publication and Other Sources on lexis.com.

[1] Contact LexisNexis.

New customers can contact a LexisNexis Account Representative at <http://www.lexisnexis.com/trial/contactrepNALM.asp> or by calling (800) 227-4908.

Existing subscribers can reach LexisNexis Customer Support 24/7/365 at 800-227-4908 or can contact their Account Representative.

[2] Using Content Online at lexis.com.

Online subscribers have access to the Total Research System at lexis.com. When searching at lexis.com tabs lead users to Legal Sources, Public Records, and News and Business Sources. Additional tabs, such as My Sources and California, can be readily created by the user through the Add/Edit Tabs link directly above the first tab on the left. Sources preceded by a dollar sign and/or an "interrupt" message indicates content outside a subscription plan. These sources may be accessed when available under a customer's alternate transactional pricing plan.

A searchable Directory of Online Sources can be viewed without an ID at <http://web.nexis.com/sources/>

Additionally, a task-based web page is available for this publication at <http://www.lexisnexis.com/mbpracticeguide/CA/>

[3] Selecting a Source on lexis.com.

Use Source Searches to select the source you wish to search. For example, on the Legal tab see the States Legal -- US list and follow this jurisdictional path:

California > Search Analysis & CLE Materials > CA Treatises & Analytical Materials > Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure.

Content can also be accessed from topical paths related to the publication, e.g., Legal tab > Area of Law -- By Topic > Litigation Practice & Procedure > Search Analysis, Law Reviews & Journals > By State > California > Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure.

Use the Find a Source tab to locate available paths and sources by entering an exact word or phrase from the source name, or if known, by entering the source library and file. Users may consult the Source Description link following each source (click on the "i" symbol), LexisNexis Customer Support, or the Directory of Online Sources to get information regarding sources, search strategy, or coverage. The standard search price for each source is contained at the bottom of the Source Description page for that source.

1- MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure How To. 02

How To. 02 Authority and Sources Referenced in This Publication.

[1] Using lexis.com resources to update cases.

The Matthew Bender[(R)] Practice Guide series is updated twice a year and cites the strongest, most recent cases available as of its last update. New cases are added to lexis.com daily, and can be combined with additional cases online to update, validate, and research fact patterns, issues, and points of law.

[2] California Case Databases.

Several sources may assist research needs. They include:

CA Federal & State Cases, Combined (CAL;CAMEGA)

CA Cases, Administrative Decisions & Attorney General Opinions, Combined (CAL;CACASE)

CA Published Cases, Combined (CAL;CACTSP)

CA State Cases, Combined (CAL;CACTS) (includes unpublished as well as published cases)

CA Supreme Court Cases from 1850 (CAL;CAL)

CA Courts of Appeal Cases from 1905 (CAL;APP)

Published CA Court of Appeal Cases from 1905 (CAL;APP-P)

Unpublished CA Court of Appeal Cases from 1966 (CAL;APP-U) n1

Although unpublished cases are not citable in California courts, users may wish to search the CA State Cases, Combined to get ideas about possible legal arguments. That source would also be preferable to CA Published Cases, Combined if a user is searching for any appellate cases in which a party, attorney, or judge has been involved.

Case law from all 50 states, the Virgin Islands, Guam, Northern Marianas Islands, Washington D.C. federal courts, state and federal agencies are also available on lexis.com through the Legal tab > Cases -- U.S.

[3] Hypertext Links.

Click the hypertext link to jump to the corresponding cases, codes, rules, and other publications online.

[4] Finding Related Sources and Suggested Searches.

This publication highlights additional online sources to assist your research tasks, both legal and factual, related to pretrial civil procedure. Thousands of additional sources are also available on lexis.com. The following list highlights frequently used sources and sample search strategies relevant to topics contained in this publication:

REFERENCED CASE LAW SOURCES ON lexis.com:

CA Federal & State Cases, Combined (see Sample Search in section 5.02)

To learn about other litigation in which the person or entity was a party, try a NAME segment search of the case law: name (name of company) (see 5.02)

CA State Cases, Combined (see Sample Searches in section 6.04, 6.32, 22.02)

To investigate judges for appellate rulings regardless of topic, use the HISTORY segment with the judge's last name in this format: history (first name /3 last name /3 j or judge or judicial or mag or hon!) (see 6.04, 6.32, 22.02)

For appellate decisions on a judge's rulings in a particular procedural setting or on a particular substantive topic, use the HISTORY segment with the judge's last name in this format plus words for finding the specific topic, for example: summary judgment and history (first name /3 last name /3 j or judge or judicial or mag or hon!) (see 6.04, 6.32)

9th Circuit-Federal and State Cases, Combined (see Sample Search in section 17.04)

For appellate rulings regardless of topic, use the HISTORY segment with the judge's last name in this format: history (first name /3 last name /3 j or judge or judicial or mag or hon!) (see 17.04)

REFERENCED TOPICAL, PUBLIC RECORDS, COURT FILINGS, AND NEWS SOURCES ON lexis.com:

All Company Information (excluding Investext & D&B) (see Sample Search in section 3.04)

To identify potential conflicts when representing a company, find profiles of companies and company executives, annual reports and other SEC filings, bankruptcy reports, merger and acquisition transactions, and earnings reports for all US public companies, more than 200,000 private US companies, and thousands of international companies by using this search format: company (name of company) (see 3.04)

All Motor Vehicle Registrations (see Sample Search in section 2.10)

To uncover personal property held by a party, check for motor vehicle registration records by using this search format: name (first name /3 last name) (see 2.10)

Biographies (see Sample Searches in sections 24.08, 25.05)

To find biographical information about an arbitrator, try this NAME segment search: first name /3 last name (see 24.08)

To find biographical information about a referee, try this NAME segment search: first name /3 last name (see 25.05)

CA Bankruptcy Filings (see Sample Searches in sections 5.02, 5.12, 5.14)

A single search of bankruptcy filings, real property records, person and business locator sources, liens, federal district court docket information, secretary of state, and license information may be done in this search format: name (name of company) or first name /3 last name (see 5.02)

To discover potentially valuable information about a decedent's (or any other person's) possible previous bankruptcy, try a search in this format: first name /3 last name (see 5.12)

To discover potentially valuable information about a corporation's bankruptcy-related background, try a search in this format: name (name of company) (see 5.14)

CA Business and Corporation Information (see Sample Search in section 3.04)

To identify potential conflicts when representing a company or individual, find information from the California Business Locator, California State Board of Equalization Sales and Use Tax, California Contractors State License Board, California Secretary of State and all California counties in the Fictitious Business Names file and locate active and inactive corporations, limited partnerships, contractors, and other businesses, including fictitious business names, registered in California by using this search format: company (name of company) or name (first name /3 last name) (see 3.04)

CA Combined Civil Court Filings From Superior and Municipal Courts (see Sample Search in section 5.02)

A NAME segment search in docket materials may provide information about other litigation in which the person or entity was a party: name (name of company) (see 5.02)

CA Combined Jury Verdicts and Settlements (see Sample Searches in section 37.06)

To find examples of California verdicts or settlements in a products liability action involving quadriplegia injuries from a "rollover" accident, try this search: product liability and quadr! and rollover or roll over (see 37.06)

To find examples of California verdicts or settlements in a wrongful death action based on misdiagnosis, try this TOPIC segment search: topic (wrongful death and misdiagnos! or diagnos! and cancer!) (see 37.06)

CA Criminal Case Filings (see Sample Search in section 5.02)

To discover possible criminal activity of a party, try a search in criminal case filings: first name /3 last name (see 5.02)

CA Deed Transfers, Tax Assessor Records and Mortgage Records--Selected Counties (see Sample Searches in sections 5.02, 5.14)

To discover real estate owned by a person or entity, try a search of tax assessor, deed transfer, and mortgage records in this format: first name /3 last name (see 5.02, 5.14)

CA Judgment and Lien Filings (see Sample Search in section 5.02)

A NAME segment search in the Judgment and Lien Filings also provides information about past litigation: name (name of company) (see 5.02)

CA Listings-Martindale Hubbell[(R)] Law Directory (see Sample Search in section 37.38)

To find a person with prior special master qualifications in California, try a search in the Martindale Hubbell[(R)] Law Directory such as: special master. If a special master is sought for a particular area of the state, try a search in this type of format: special master /100 los angeles (see 37.38)

CA Person Locator (see Sample Searches in section 8.11)

To find a possible Los Angeles address of an individual for purposes of summons and other procedures, try a NAME and ADDRESS segment search in the People Locator databases such as: name (first name /3 last name) and address (los angeles) (see 8.11)

CA Professional Licenses (see Sample Search in section 5.09)

To learn information pertaining to professional licensing, try a search in this format: first name /3 last name (see 5.09)

CA Secretary of State Corporation, LP and LLC Information (see Sample Searches in sections 3.04, 5.13, 5.14)

To determine selected director and officer records of California corporations and limited partnerships (some director and officer information may not be listed) for conflicts of interest, check the corporation and limited partnership records using this search: first name /3 last name (see 3.04)

To discover potentially valuable information about a limited partnership's status and/or registered agent for service of process, try a NAME segment search in this format: name (name of company) (see 5.13)

To discover potentially valuable information about a corporation's financial status, try a NAME segment search in this format: name (name of company) (see 5.14)

CA Uniform Commercial Code Lien Filings (see Sample Search in section 5.29)

To learn about liens on a party's personal property interests (or liens a party holds on another's interests), try a search in this format: name (name of company) (see 5.29)

California News Publications (see Sample Searches in section 6.04, 6.32, 17.04, 22.02, 24.08, 25.05)

How To Use lexis.com (R) With This Publication

1- MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure How To. 03

How To. 03 Formulating a Search Query on lexis.com.

[1] Frame Your Search.

After you have selected your source, you can use available tables of contents or enter search terms to retrieve relevant documents. This sample search form provides tips about structuring your search, search connectors, segment searching and date restrictions:

[2] Develop Your Search Strategy.

Identify relevant terms, their variations, synonyms, necessity, proximity, and relationship to your research issue. Your first search should be structured broadly, then results can be narrowed without additional search transactions through Focus[™] by adding terms to reduce your search results set.

[3] Narrow Your Search.

Additional parameters, like Restrict by Segment (field) and Restrict by Date are available. Available Segments are displayed in a drop down box. For example, the NAME segment of a case contains the names of the parties to the action. To research your adversary's litigation history, you can do a NAME segment search in cases and jury verdicts. You can Add the segment restriction, or type this restriction in your search query as: name (Party Name). Targeted results can also be obtained by restricting the search results to documents that have multiple references to a term or phrase by using ATLEAST#. For example, including atleast5 (fair use) as a search term will restrict your search results to documents that reference the phrase "fair use" a minimum of five times.

[4] Find More Authorities Like This.

When you find cases or other documents that are helpful (or hurtful) and you want (or need) to find whether there are other similar materials, you can click the More Like This link at the top of the page. More Like This extracts the relevant search terms for the document you are viewing and gives you the option to use these terms to locate additional materials in the same or a different database. Cases have an additional benefit using More Like This to extract citations from an on-point case and use similar citation patterns to locate other cases, treatises, or law reviews. Similarly, the More Like Selected Text link at the top of documents can be used to target specific paragraphs or language you highlight in an on-point document to locate similar materials. In Case law, More Like This Headnote creates a virtual case law digest online based on the language, law, and topic discussed in headnotes.

[5] Keep Current With Alerts.

To keep your search results current, update your search results by saving an Alert. From your online search results screen, select Save as Alert link at the top of the screen. You will be given options for how often the search should be run (including daily or weekly) and for how to have the results delivered or a notification sent to you by email.

Shepardize [(R)] the cases that you intend to cite to be sure that they are still good law. Additionally, Shepard's can be used as a case-finding and research tool to lead you to other cases, statutes, treatises, and authority on a given issue. You can FOCUS within a Shepard's report on particular terms or phrases. Additionally, the Custom Restrictions link at the top of the Shepard's report allows you to narrow results by jurisdiction, date and/or headnote restriction. Use the Shepard's Signals to help you analyze validity and subsequent treatment of the case. Chapter 1 Litigation Milestone Checklists
I. SCOPE

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 1.01

1.01 Scope.

This chapter provides an outline of procedures that should be followed in the pretrial phases of a civil action. This chapter covers civil actions generally.

Special proceedings covered in other publications include:

- Eminent domain. For procedures in eminent domain proceedings, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 247, Eminent Domain (Matthew Bender).
- Family law. For procedures in family law proceedings, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 220, Dissolution of Marriage and Related Proceedings (Matthew Bender), and many other chapters on family law topics in that publication, or California Family Law Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).
- Juvenile courts. For procedures in juvenile court proceedings, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 327, Juvenile Courts: Jurisdiction and General Procedures; Ch. 328, Juvenile Courts: Dependency Proceedings; and Ch. 329, Juvenile Courts: Delinquency Proceedings; or California Juvenile Courts Practice and Procedure (Matthew Bender).
- Probate. For procedures in probate proceedings, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 440, Probate; and Ch. 560, Trusts; or California Probate Practice (Matthew Bender).
- Unlawful or forcible detainer. For procedures in unlawful detainer and forcible detainer proceedings, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Landlord-Tenant Litigation, Ch. 5, Unlawful Detainer; California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Actions (Matthew Bender).

Warning:

Counsel should always check local rules to determine whether a different procedure applies in a particular situation.

II. FIRST STEPS IN FILING OR RESPONDING TO A LAWSUIT

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 1.02

1.02 CHECKLIST: Steps to Take Before Filing a Lawsuit.

- ☐ Gather initial facts from potential client [ see Ch. 2, Client Interview].
- ☐ Perform conflicts check [ see Ch. 3, Beginning and Terminating the Attorney-Client Relationship, 3.03 et seq.].
- ☐ Identify potential causes of action and applicable statutes of limitation [ see Ch. 4, Limitation of Actions], including:
  - ☐ Any claim period if public entity is potential defendant.
  - ☐ Any claim period if person who would be potential defendant is deceased.
  - ☐ Any claim period for making a claim or providing notice in a relevant insurance policy or other contract.
  - ☐ Any shortened period of limitation imposed by insurance policy or contract.
- ☐ Determine whether dispute is or may be within scope of an arbitration agreement [ see Ch. 6, Determining Forum, 6.03 et seq.].
- ☐ Verify plaintiff's capacity to bring action [ see Ch. 5, Parties, 5.08 et seq.]:
  - ☐ If entity, is entity suspended?

- ☐ If plaintiff is transacting business under a fictitious name, has plaintiff filed fictitious business name statement?
- ☐ Is guardian ad litem required?
- ☐ Can attorney's fees be recovered from the opposing party if your client is the prevailing party?
  - ☐ If contract is involved, check for attorney fee clause.
  - ☐ Determine if statutory attorney fee award available.
- ☐ Review costs and risks of representing client in litigation:
  - ☐ Can client afford to pay attorney fees and costs?
  - ☐ Is case strong enough to take on contingency fee basis?
  - ☐ Are you knowledgeable enough in area of law to competently handle case?
  - ☐ Will case occupy too much time for you to afford to take it on a contingency fee basis?
  - ☐ If contingency fee arrangement, is client able to pay out of pocket costs?
  - ☐ Is client credible?
  - ☐ Will client make a good witness?
  - ☐ Has client been interviewed by other attorneys who would not take case?
  - ☐ Has client been represented by another attorney? If so, approach case with great caution.
  - ☐ How settled is the area of law on which the plaintiff's claim is based?
  - ☐ What are nature and extent of client's injuries and anticipated range of recovery versus time and expense associated with achieving a successful outcome?
- ☐ Decide on fee arrangement with client [ see Ch. 3, Beginning and Terminating the Attorney-Client Relationship, 3.11 et seq.]:

- ☐ If hourly fee, try to obtain advance fee (or retainer) from client.
- ☐ If contingency fee, determine if client can pay costs as they are incurred.
- ☐ Prepare and have client execute retention letter.
- ☐ Investigate potential defendants [ see Ch. 5, Parties, 5.02]:
  - ☐ Identify.
  - ☐ Determine whether any are judgment proof.
  - ☐ If an entity, does entity have capacity to defend suit?
- ☐ Further investigate facts of the case, including:
  - ☐ Comprehensive interview with client [ see Ch. 2, Client Interview].
  - ☐ Thorough review and analysis of client documents, including:
    - ☐ Any correspondence between the parties.
    - ☐ Written statements made by the parties to others.
  - ☐ Witness interviews. Determine:
    - ☐ Do witnesses verify client's version of event?
    - ☐ Will key witnesses be available to testify at trial?
  - ☐ View publicly accessible sites.
  - ☐ Gather publicly available documents.
  - ☐ Ensure protection of tangible evidence in hands of third parties.

Cross Reference:

☐ Review the scope and technology aspects of data storage systems that may be involved in the matter and determine the potential discovery of electronically stored information ("ESI") and the requirements for preserving ESI.

➤ Cross References:

Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California E-Discovery and Evidence.

☐ Verify causes of action to be pursued.

☐ Review jury instructions for causes of action and perform legal research to determine what proof is needed.

➤ Cross References:

Substance of jury instructions, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, 16.06.

☐ Consider all potential affirmative defenses [ see Ch. 14, Answers, 14.19].

☐ Consider burdens of proof and persuasion for each cause to be pursued and each potential affirmative defense.

➤ Cross Reference:

Burdens of proof and persuasion, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, Ch. 9, Burden of Proof and Persuasion.

☐ Satisfy any claim requirements [ see Ch. 4, Limitation of Actions, 4.07 -4.09]:

☐ Government claims.

☐ Claims against decedent's estates.

☐ Insurance claims.

☐ Exhaust any administrative remedies.

☐ Identify forum [ see Ch. 6, Determining Forum]:

☐ Contractual arbitration:

☐ To be pursued; or ☐ Resisted.

☐ Action in state or federal court.

☐ In which county or federal district.

☐ In which courthouse.

☐ If state, unlimited or limited jurisdiction.

☐ Identify any related cases [ see Ch. 32, Notice of Related Cases, Consolidation, Coordination, and Severance of Actions, 32.03 et seq.].

☐ Continuing duty while case is pending.

☐ Draft complaint [ see Ch. 7, Complaints].

Warning:

Filing the signed complaint without adequate investigation of underlying facts and law may result in sanctions [CCP § 128.7(a)].

☐ Exclude or redact social security and financial account numbers and consider filing optional confidential identifier reference list [see 7.06[10]].

☐ Fill out Civil Case Cover Sheet [ see Ch. 7, Complaints].

☐ Determine whether to identify case as complex on Civil Case Cover Sheet [ see Ch. 7, Complaints, and Ch. 23, Case Management].

☐ Fill out Civil Case Cover Sheet [ see Ch. 7, Complaints, 7.20, 7.43].

☐ If not identifying case as complex, consider which case management plan case is likely to be assigned or if it is likely to be exempt [ see Ch. 23, Case Management].

☐ Include certificate of merit if case is professional negligence action against an architect, engineer, or land surveyor [CCP § 411.35].

- ☐ Determine if TRO should be requested to protect status quo [ see Ch. 18, TROs and Preliminary Injunctions].

Timing:

File with complaint or anytime thereafter [CCP § 527(c); Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1150(b)].

- ☐ Determine whether writ of attachment should be requested to secure recovery [ see Ch. 19, Attachment].

Timing:

File with complaint or anytime thereafter [CCP §§ 483.010-483.020, 484.010, 484.020, 484.030, 485.210].

- ☐ If action concerns real property, consider filing notice of pendency of action in county recorder's office where property is situated [ see Ch. 21, Lis Pendens].

Timing:

File notice of lis pendens at time complaint filed or anytime thereafter [CCP § 405.20].

- ☐ Determine whether grounds exist for gag order at this stage of the action.

Cross Reference:

Gag orders, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, 2.30 et seq.

- ☐ Consider motion to seal complaint in whole or in part, and if so, initially lodging complete complaint with court conditionally under seal, along with filing of redacted complaint.

Cross Reference:

Sealing court records, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, 2.11 et seq.

- ☐ File complaint and have summons issued.

II. FIRST STEPS IN FILING OR RESPONDING TO A LAWSUIT

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 1.03

1.03 CHECKLIST: Plaintiff's Next Steps When Lawsuit Is Filed.

- ☐ Serve summons and complaint [ see Ch. 8, Service of Summons].

Timing:

Within 60 days of filing under trial court delay reduction rules.

- ☐ Consider whether voluntary mediation or arbitration might be beneficial.

Cross Reference:

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 30, Using Alternative Dispute Resolution;
Ch. 31, Mediation (Matthew Bender).

- ☐ Be prepared to discuss possibility of judicially mandated mediation or arbitration [ see Ch. 24, Pretrial ADR].

Timing:

Mediation may occur as soon as 60 days after the complaint is filed and must be completed within 60 days after referral [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.876(c)]. Arbitration cannot occur until a minimum of 210 days after the filing of the complaint [Gov Code § 68616(g)].

- ☐ Prepare discovery plan if not done.

Cross References:

Planning: Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California E-Discovery and Evidence, Ch. 4, Planning E-Discovery.

☐ Commence early discovery.

Timing:

Written discovery can be served by plaintiff 10 days after serving summons and complaint [CCP §§ 2030.020(b), 2031.020(b), 2033.020(b)], except in unlawful detainer actions or other proceedings under CCP § 1159-1179a, in which case the waiting period is 5 days [CCP §§ 2030.020(c), 2031.020(c), 2033.020(c)]. Deposition notice can be served by plaintiff 20 days after service of summons and complaint or appearance of defendant [CCP § 2025.210(b)].

Chapter 1 Litigation Milestone Checklists
II. FIRST STEPS IN FILING OR RESPONDING TO A LAWSUIT

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 1.04

1.04 CHECKLIST: Defendant's First Steps.

Calendar time for response; generally 30 days after service of summons [CCP § 412.20(a)(3)].

Review complaint.

Gather additional initial facts from potential client [ see Ch. 2, Client Interview].

Perform conflicts check [ see Ch. 3, Beginning and Terminating the Attorney-Client Relationship, 3.03 et seq.].

Review costs and risks of representing client in litigation:

Can client afford to pay attorney fees and costs?

Are you knowledgeable enough in area of law to competently handle case?

Is client credible?

Will client make a good witness?

Has client been interviewed by other attorneys who would not take case?

Has client been represented by another attorney? If so, approach case with great caution.

- ☐ How settled is the area of law on which the plaintiff's claim is based?
- ☐ If contract is involved, check for attorney fee clause.
- ☐ Decide on fee arrangement with client [ see Ch. 3, Beginning and Terminating the Attorney-Client Relationship, 3.11 et seq.]:
  - ☐ If hourly fee, try to obtain advance fee (or retainer) from client.
  - ☐ Prepare and have client execute retention letter.
- ☐ Determine whether defendant has the capacity to defend the action [ see Ch. 5, Parties, 5.08 et seq.].
  - ☐ If entity, is entity suspended?
  - ☐ Is guardian ad litem required?
- ☐ Determine whether dispute is or may be within scope of an arbitration agreement [ see Ch. 6, Determining Forum, 6.03 et seq.].
- ☐ Further investigate facts of the case, including:
  - ☐ Obtain all relevant documents in the client's possession, including:
    - ☐ Any correspondence between the parties.
    - ☐ Written statements made by the parties to others.
    - ☐ Insurance policies.
  - ☐ Witness interviews. Determine:
    - ☐ Do witnesses verify client's version of event?
    - ☐ Will key witnesses be available to testify at trial?
  - ☐ View publicly accessible sites.

- ☐ Gather publicly available documents.
- ☐ Ensure protection of tangible evidence in hands of third parties.
- ☐ Give notice to insurance carrier if there is any potential for coverage under any of client's insurance policies [ see Ch. 4, Limitation of Actions, 4.07].
- ☐ Consider counterdesignation of any matter on Civil Case Cover Sheet, such as whether case is complex [ see Ch. 23, Case Management].
- ☐ Determine whether court has personal jurisdiction over defendant [ see Ch. 9, Motions to Quash and Other Objections to Personal Jurisdiction, 9.03 et seq.]:
  - ☐ Was defendant served with summons and complaint?
  - ☐ Was summons or service defective?
  - ☐ Does non-resident defendant have sufficient contacts with California so as to justify exercise of jurisdiction?
  - ☐ If not, prepare and file motion to quash service of summons.

Timing:

File on or before last day on which defendant is required to plead [CCP § 418.10(a)(1)], prior to or concurrent with the filing of answer, demurrer, or motion to strike the complaint.

Warning:

Filing of demurrer or motion to strike the complaint without moving to quash results in defendant waiving the issues of personal jurisdiction and adequacy of service of process [CCP § 418.10(e)(3)]. In addition, prudent counsel would not answer without moving to quash, even though section 418.10(e)(3) does not refer to answering without moving to quash.

- ☐ Determine whether suitable alternative forum for trial exists outside of California or contract in dispute between the parties contains forum selection clause directing use of different forum [ see Ch. 9, Motions to Quash and Other Objections to Personal Jurisdiction, 9.23 et seq.]. If so:
  - ☐ Prepare and file motion to dismiss or stay on the ground of inconvenient forum [CCP § 430.30].

Timing:

File on or before last day on which defendant is required to plead [CCP § 418.10(a)(2)], prior to or concurrent with the filing of answer, demurrer, or motion to strike the complaint.

Warning:

Defendant's failure to file motion to dismiss on ground of inconvenient forum before or with demurrer or motion to strike results in defendant waiving the issue of inconvenient forum [CCP § 418.10(e)(3)]. In addition, prudent counsel would not answer without moving to quash, even though section 418.10(e)(3) does not refer to answering without moving to quash.

☐ Determine whether any grounds exist for a mandatory or discretionary dismissal for delay in serving summons and complaint under CCP §§ 583.210-583.250, 583.410-583.430.

☐ If so, prepare and file motion to dismiss for delay in serving summons and complaint [ see Ch. 9, Motions to Quash and Other Objections to Personal Jurisdiction, 9.40 et seq.].

Timing:

On or before last day on which defendant is required to plead [CCP § 418.10(a)(3)], prior to or concurrent with filing of answer, demurrer, or motion to strike the complaint.

Warning:

Defendant's failure to file motion to dismiss for before or with demurrer or motion to strike results in defendant waiving the issue of delay in serving summons and complaint [CCP § 418.10(e)(3)]. In addition, prudent counsel would not answer without moving to quash, even though section 418.10(e)(3) does not refer to answering without moving to quash.

☐ If motions to quash, dismiss on the ground of inconvenient forum, or delay in serving summons and complaint are denied, defendant may file petition for writ of mandate with appellate court, file demurrer or motion to strike complaint, or file answer [ see Ch. 9, Motions to Quash and Other Objections to Personal Jurisdiction, 9.48 et seq.].

☐ Examine complaint for facial defects and consider defenses that can be established by facts of which the court can take judicial notice, including:

☐ Lack of subject matter jurisdiction [ see Ch. 10, Dismissal for Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction].

☐ Failure to state cause of action [ see Ch. 11, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings, 11.03 et seq.].

☐ Is action barred by statute of limitations or laches [ see Ch. 4, Limitation of Actions], res judicata, or some other affirmative defense?

Cross References:

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions, Appendix,

Table of Limitation Periods, § 345.150; Ch. 491, Res Judicata (Matthew Bender).

- ☐ Does complaint fail to plead an essential element of a cause of action?
- ☐ Is action premature?
- ☐ Does plaintiff lack capacity or standing to sue [ see Ch. 5, Parties]?
- ☐ Did plaintiff state legally cognizable cause of action that is only maintainable against someone other than defendant?
- ☐ Is complaint uncertain, ambiguous, or unintelligible?
- ☐ Have the proper parties been joined?
- ☐ Is there another action pending between same parties on same cause(s) of action?
- ☐ If a contract action, is it ascertainable from complaint whether contract was written, oral, or implied by conduct?
- ☐ Have the requisite certificates been filed with complaint?
  - ☐ E.g., a certificate indicating merit to a professional negligence action under CCP § 411.35.
- ☐ If a facial deficiency is found, prepare and file a demurrer [ see Ch. 11, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings, 11.15 et seq.].

Timing:

File within 30 days of service of complaint [CCP § 430.40(a)].

- ☐ If demurrer is overruled, generally file answer within 10 days [CCP § 472a(b); Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1320(g)].
- ☐ Determine whether all or any part of complaint contains irrelevant, false or improper matter or is not in conformity with law [CCP § 436]. If so, file motion to strike [ see Ch. 12, Motions to Strike].

Timing:

File concurrently with demurrer or within time allowed to file answer [CCP § 435(b)].

Warning:

If motion to strike is filed without a demurrer, the time to answer is extended but not the time to file demurrer [CCP § 435(c), (d)].

- ☐ Determine whether complaint constitutes strategic litigation against public participation (SLAPP) [CCP § 425.16].
If so, file special motion to strike [ see Ch. 13, Anti-SLAPP Motions].

Timing:

File within 60 days of service of complaint or in court's discretion, at later time [CCP § 425.16(f)].

Warning:

Motion stays discovery [CCP § 425.16(g)].

- ☐ Determine whether the complaint constitutes a SLAPPback action [CCP § 425.18(b)(1)]. If so, file special motion to strike [ see Ch. 13, Anti-SLAPP Motions, 13.22A et seq.].

Timing:

File within 120 days of service of complaint or as court permits within statutory bounds of its discretion [CCP § 425.18(d)].

- ☐ If motion to strike entire complaint or portion thereof is denied, prepare and file answer. If motion to strike portion of complaint is granted, file answer to remaining portions of complaint [see Ch. 14, Answers].

Timing:

Time to file answer is within court's discretion [CCP § 472a(d)].

- ☐ Determine whether action was filed in the proper court [ see Ch. 6, Determining Forum, 6.45 et seq.].

If not, prepare and file a motion to transfer to a court of proper venue.

Timing:

File motion to transfer with answer, demurrer, or motion to strike, or without answering or demurring, within time allowed to respond to complaint [CCP § 396b(a)].

- ☐ If motion to transfer to a court of proper venue is denied, defendant may file petition for writ of mandate with appellate court or file answer [ see Ch. 6, Determining Forum, 6.56 et seq.].

Timing:

File answer within 30 days if not already filed [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1326].

- ☐ If motion to transfer to a court of proper venue is granted, file answer within 30 days from the date the receiving court mails notice of receipt of the case and its new case number [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1326].

- ☐ Determine whether complaint misstated jurisdictional classification of case or failed to state that action is limited civil case [ see Ch. 15, Reclassification of Cases].

- ☐ If so, file motion for reclassification.

Timing:

File motion for reclassification within time allowed for filing the answer [CCP § 403.040(a)].

Warning:

Motion for reclassification does not extend the time to answer [CCP § 403.040(a)].

- ☐ Before preparing answer, consider whether grounds exist to compel contractual arbitration [see CCP § 1281.2; Ch. 6, Determining Forum, 6.03 et seq.].

- ☐ If so, file petition to compel arbitration.

Timing:

File petition within time allowed for filing answer.

- ☐ If petition is denied, defendant may file appeal or has 15 days from the date of denial to file answer [CCP § 1281.7].

Strategic Point:

Since order denying arbitration is directly appealable, all proceedings in trial court are stayed pending resolution of appeal [CCP § 916].

- ☐ Determine whether the plaintiff is or has been declared a vexatious litigant [CCP §§ 391, 391.7]. If so, file motion for order for plaintiff to provide security for defendant's costs and to require plaintiff to obtain leave of court to file new litigation in propria persona [ see Ch. 35, Sanctions, 35.15A et seq.].

Timing:

File at any time before entry of final judgment [CCP § 391.1].

- ☐ Prepare answer [ see Ch. 14, Answers].

Go through each allegation of complaint with defendant to determine which facts and claims are untrue.

Identify potential defenses and affirmative defenses.

Review jury instructions (search by cause of action) for affirmative defenses to determine what proof is needed.

➤ Cross References:

Text of jury instructions, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions (Matthew Bender, Official Publisher).

Substance of jury instructions, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, 16.06.

☐ Determine whether any information collected from client constitutes basis for cross-complaint against any plaintiff, co-defendant, or nonparty [ see Ch. 16, Cross-Complaints].

☐ If so, and cross-complaint is against plaintiff, file before or with answer [CCP § 428.50(a)].

☐ If so, and cross-complaint is against a co-defendant or nonparty, file at any time before court has set date for trial [CCP § 428.50(b)].

☐ Consider burdens of proof and persuasion for each of plaintiff's causes and each potential affirmative defense.

➤ Cross Reference:

Burdens of proof and persuasion, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, Ch. 9, Burden of Proof and Persuasion.

☐ Exclude or redact social security and financial account numbers and consider filing optional confidential identifier reference list [see 7.06[10]].

☐ If plaintiff filed motion for gag order and/or to seal part or all of complaint, consider opposing the filed motion(s) by filing memorandum of points and authorities and, if proof of facts is required, supporting affidavits or declarations.

➤ Cross Reference:

Opposing motion for gag order, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, 2.30 et seq.

☐ Determine whether grounds exist for filing motion for gag order at this stage of the action.

➤ Cross Reference:

Gag orders, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, 2.30 et seq.

☐ Consider motion to seal response(s) in whole or in part, and if so, initially lodging the respective complete response with court conditionally under seal, along with filing of redacted response.

 Cross Reference:

Sealing court records, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, 2.11 et seq.

- ☐ File and serve answer [ see Ch. 14, Answers].

 Timing:

Generally, within 30 days after receiving summons and complaint [CCP § 412.20(a)(3)].

- ☐ Initiate discovery.

 Timing:

Defendant may commence discovery at any time after being served with complaint or appearing in action [CCP §§ 2025.210(a), 2031.020(a), 2033.020(a)].

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 1.05

1.05 CHECKLIST: Plaintiff's Responses.

☐ If defendant does not answer within 30 days or otherwise appear in action within time limits in CCP § 585, plaintiff should file and serve on defendant request for entry of default [ see Ch. 36, Defaults and Motions for Relief, 36.11 et seq.].

☐ If amount of damages are not specified in complaint or punitive damages are sought, serve defendant with statement of damages in same manner as service of summons [CCP §§ 425.11 (c), (d), 425.115].

☐ After entry of default, seek entry of default judgment [see CCP § 585; see also Ch. 36, Defaults and Motions for Relief, 36.44 et seq.].

Timing:

Within 45 days of entry of default unless court granted extension of time [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.110(h)].

☐ File opposing memorandum, attaching affidavits or declarations if proof of facts is required, as needed to oppose any of the following actions taken by defendant:

☐ Petition to compel arbitration [ see Ch. 6, Determining Forum, 6.20 et seq.].

☐ Motion to quash [ see Ch. 9, Motions to Quash and Other Objections to Personal Jurisdiction, 9.14 et seq.].

☐ Motion to stay or dismiss for inconvenient forum [ see Ch. 9, Motions to Quash and Other

Objections to Personal Jurisdiction, 9.33 et seq.].

- ☐ Demurrer [ see Ch. 11, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings, 11.20 et seq.].
- ☐ Motion to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction [ see Ch. 10, Dismissal for Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction].
- ☐ Motion to change venue under CCP § 396b [ see Ch. 6, Determining Forum, 6.50 et seq.].
- ☐ Motion to dismiss for delay in prosecution [ see Ch. 9, Motions to Quash and Other Objections to Personal Jurisdiction, 9.45 et seq.].
- ☐ Motion to strike [ see Ch. 12, Motions to Strike, 12.15 et seq.].

- ☐ Special motion to strike SLAPPback action [ see Ch. 13, Anti-SLAPP Motions, 13.22F].
- ☐ Motion for declaration that plaintiff is vexatious litigant, or for order for plaintiff to provide security for defendant's costs or requiring plaintiff to obtain leave of court to file new litigation in propria persona [ see Ch. 35, Sanctions, 35.15A et seq.].

Timing:

File and serve opposition papers at least 9 court days prior to day scheduled for hearing [CCP §§ 465, 1005(b), 1011-1013, 1015].

Cross References:

See applicable chapters in Matthew Bender's California Points and Authorities for numerous memoranda.

- ☐ Motion for gag order.

- ☐ Motion to seal response.

Cross Reference:

Opposing motion to seal court records, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, 2.11 et seq.

☐ Plaintiff may respond to defendant's answer by:

☐ Filing and serving a demurrer to the answer [CCP § 430.40(b); see Ch. 11, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings, 11.03 et seq.].

☐ Filing and serving a motion to strike the answer [CCP §§ 435(b)(1), 430.40(b); see Ch. 12, Motions to Strike. 12.03 et seq.].

Timing:

Must be served and filed within 10 days of service of answer [CCP § 430.40(b)].

☐ Plaintiff must respond to cross-complaint by:

☐ Filing and serving a demurrer to the cross-complaint [ see Ch. 11, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings, 11.03 et seq.].

☐ Filing and serving a motion to strike the cross-complaint [ see Ch. 12, Motions to Strike. 12.03 et seq.].

☐ Motion to quash [ see Ch. 9, Motions to Quash and Other Objections to Personal Jurisdiction, 9.03 et seq.].

☐ Motion to stay or dismiss for inconvenient forum [ see Ch. 9, Motions to Quash and Other Objections to Personal Jurisdiction, 9.23 et seq.].

☐ Motion to change venue under CCP § 396b [ see Ch. 6, Determining Forum, 6.45 et seq.].

☐ Motion to dismiss for delay in service of summons under CCP §§ 583.210-583.250 [ see Ch. 9, Motions to Quash and Other Objections to Personal Jurisdiction, 9.40 et seq.].

☐ Filing and serving an answer to the cross-complaint [ see Ch. 14, Answers].

Timing:

Must be filed within 30 days after service of the cross-complaint to avoid default [CCP §§ 432.10, 585(e)].

1.06 CHECKLIST: Case Management Process.

- ☐ Calendar date for case management conference [ see Ch. 23, Case Management, 23.06 et seq.].

Timing:

Court must give at least 45 days notice to all parties.

- ☐ Meet and confer with all other parties before conference [ see Ch. 23, Case Management].

Discuss discovery schedule and any anticipated motions, try to reach stipulations on uncontested issues, and discuss settlement possibilities.

Timing:

Meet and confer must be held at least 30 days prior to case management conference.

- ☐ Determine whether action is entitled to precedence or preference in the setting of trial date. If so, and you want an early trial date, indicate grounds on case management statement and file motion in time to be heard at case management conference [ see Ch. 23, Case Management].

- ☐ Determine whether to request jury trial.

- ☐ Determine whether to request bifurcated trial.

Cross Reference:

Requesting separate trials of issue or phased trials, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, 1.15 et seq.

- ☐ Identify any related cases.
- ☐ Determine whether action is subject to mandatory judicial arbitration; if not, consider agreeing to submit action to mediation or arbitration [ see Ch. 24, Pretrial ADR].
- ☐ Prepare, file, and serve case management statement [ see Ch. 23, Case Management].

Timing:

Must be served no later than 15 days before date set for case management conference.

- ☐ Attend case management conference in person and be prepared to discuss and commit to positions on the issues listed in Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.724, 3.727, 3.729 [ see Ch. 23, Case Management].
- ☐ Review case management order, which controls unless modified, and calendar deadlines set by the order.

Chapter 1 Litigation Milestone Checklists
III. PRETRIAL STEPS

1.07 CHECKLIST: Pretrial Motions and Steps Initiated by Plaintiff.

☐ Consider moving for summary judgment if undisputed facts show that there is no defense to plaintiff's action or that a cross-complaint filed by defendant lacks merit [ see Ch. 38, Summary Judgment].

☐ Consider moving for summary adjudication as to one or more causes of action to which there is no defense in the alternative in the summary judgment motion or as a separate motion.

Timing:

File motion for summary judgment any time after 60 days have elapsed since general appearance of defendant against whom motion is directed. Motion must be heard but no later than 30 days before the trial date and on 75 days' notice (with longer periods required based on manner of service) [CCP § 437c(a), (c)].

☐ If defendant pleads special defenses, such as statute of limitations or res judicata, consider moving for separate trial of those defenses [ see Ch. 23, Case Management, 23.20 et seq.].

Intent to bifurcate should have been indicated in case management statement.

Timing:

CCP § 597 does not provide a particular procedure for the making of a motion for a separate trial on defenses that do not relate to the merits of the action. Three different practices are commonly used:

- Counsel makes a motion on written notice before trial.
- Motion is brought in limine and is heard by the trial judge.
- Court, on its own motion, orders a separate trial in accordance with its discretionary authority to regulate the order of proof under Evid Code § 320.

Cross Reference:

Requesting separate trials of special defenses, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, 1.15 et seq.

Making motions in limine, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, 4.20 et seq.

- ☐ If separate trials of the issues will further convenience, avoid prejudice, or be expeditious, consider moving for separate trials [ see Ch. 23, Case Management, 23.20 et seq.].

Timing:

Motion for bifurcation must be heard not later than the pretrial conference if one is held, or, if none, no later than 30 days before trial. The court, acting on its own motion, may make the order at any time [CCP § 598].

Warning:

Since very few, if any, local rules currently refer to the final conference before trial as a "pretrial conference," counsel should file and serve bifurcation motion in time to be heard at the conference designated in the local rules as the final conference before trial.

Cross Reference:

Final pretrial conferences, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, Ch. 4, Final Pretrial Conference.

Cross Reference:

Requesting separate trials of issue or phased trials, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, 1.15 et seq.

- ☐ If multiple actions are pending that concern common questions of law or fact, consider moving for consolidation of cases for all purposes or only for trial of certain common issues [CCP § 1048; Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.350; see Ch. 32, Notice of Related Cases, Consolidation, Coordination, and Severance of Actions, 32.07 et seq.].

Timing:

Motion can be filed at any time and should be made as soon as counsel determines the value of consolidation.

Distinguish:

Consolidation applies to cases filed in the same county; coordination is the assignment of cases filed in different counties to a single judge in one of the counties [CCP §§ 403, 404 et seq.].

☐ If needed or desired, amend complaint or answer to cross-complaint [ see Ch. 34, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings, 34.03 et seq.].

☐ Amendment is allowed once as matter of right before responsive pleading is filed [CCP § 472].

☐ Later amendments may be allowed by noticed motion if they are in furtherance of justice [CCP §§ 473(a), 576].

Timing:

Motion may be filed at any time before or after trial commences [CCP § 576].

☐ If pleadings should be modified to reflect recent facts, move to supplement complaint or answer to cross-complaint [ see Ch. 34, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings, 34.22 et seq.].

Timing:

No time limits on motion.

Distinguish:

Amendments correct errors in pleadings; supplemental pleadings add material facts that occurred after the original pleading was filed [CCP § 464].

☐ Consider filing a motion for judgment on the pleadings if the complaint states a cause of action and the answer does not state facts sufficient to constitute a defense to the complaint [CCP § 438(c)(1)(A); see Ch. 11, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings, 11.38 et seq.].

Timing:

Motion for judgment on the pleadings may be filed at anytime, except that it cannot be filed after entry of any pretrial conference order or within 30 days of date set for trial, whichever is later [CCP § 438(e)].

Warning:

Motion for judgment on the pleadings cannot be based on same grounds as prior demurrer that was overruled [CCP § 438(g)].

☐ Move for continuance of trial date, if necessary [ see Ch. 30, Continuances].

Timing:

Motion for continuance must be filed when necessity of continuance becomes reasonably apparent.

☐ Consider making an offer to compromise or a settlement offer [ see Ch. 37, Settlement and Release, 37.03 et seq.].

Timing:

CCP § 998 offer to compromise can be made at any time but not less than 10 days before trial. Offer expires 30 days after it is made or at start of trial or arbitration [CCP § 998(b)].

III. PRETRIAL STEPS

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 1.08

1.08 CHECKLIST: Defendant's Responses to Pretrial Motions and Steps Initiated by Plaintiff.

☐ If default judgment is entered against defendant, determine whether grounds exist to have it set aside under CCP § 473 or any other applicable statute [ see Ch. 36, Defaults and Motions for Relief, 36.65].

Timing:

Move for relief should be sought as soon as possible after learning of default. Follow time limits set forth in particular statute that authorized the default judgment.

Grounds:

Defendant must show mistake, inadvertence, surprise or excusable neglect [CCP § 473(b)].

☐ File and serve any responses to all motions made by plaintiff at least 9 court days prior to the hearing scheduled on any such motion unless otherwise indicated by applicable statute [see CCP § 1005(b); Cal Rules Ct, Rules 3.1103(a)(2), 3.1300].

☐ If plaintiff demurs to defendant's cross-complaint or moves to strike it, file and serve a memorandum in opposition to the demurrer or motion [ see Ch. 11, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings, 11.20; Ch. 12, Motions to Strike, 12.15 et seq.].

☐ If plaintiff answers the cross-complaint, determine whether grounds exist for a demurrer or motion to strike the answer and file and serve accordingly [ see Ch. 11, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings, 11.03 et seq.; Ch. 12, Motions to Strike, 12.03 et seq.].

Timing:

Demurrer or motion to strike the answer must be filed and served within 10 days after service of the answer [CCP § 430.4(b)].

☐ If plaintiff files a motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication, file opposition papers not less than 14 days prior to noticed or continued date of hearing [CCP § 437c(b)(2); see Ch. 38, Summary Judgment, 38.19 et seq.].

☐ Consider filing a cross-motion for summary judgment.

Warning:

Cross motion requires 75 days' notice and must be heard by the court no later than 30 days before trial, so if original moving party files summary judgment motion on last day to do so (105 days before trial), it will be too late for opposing party to make cross motion without a stipulation or court approval [see CCP § 437c(a)]. Counsel should try to coordinate so that motion and cross motion are heard at same time by court.

☐ If plaintiff has made a settlement offer or offer to compromise, consider and accept or reject offer as appropriate.

Timing:

CCP § 998 offer to compromise can be made at any time but not less than 10 days before trial. If offer to compromise is not accepted prior to trial or arbitration or within 30 days after it is made, whichever occurs first, the offer is deemed withdrawn [CCP § 998(b)(2)].

III. PRETRIAL STEPS

1-1 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 1.09

1.09 CHECKLIST: Additional Pretrial Motions and Steps That May Be Initiated by Defendant.

☐ Consider moving for summary judgment if undisputed facts show that (1) plaintiff's causes of action have no merit because they are lacking an essential element or (2) defendant can establish an affirmative defense to each cause of action [ see Ch. 38, Summary Judgment].

☐ Consider moving for summary adjudication as to one or more causes of action to which there is no defense in the alternative in the summary judgment motion or as a separate motion.

Timing:

File motion for summary judgment any time after 60 days have elapsed since general appearance of defendant against whom motion is directed. Motion must be heard but no later than 30 days before the trial date and on 75 days' notice (with longer periods required based on manner of service) [CCP § 437c(a), (c)].

☐ To avoid multiplicity of actions or inconsistent decisions, consider moving to join a third party who should be a part of the case because he or she has the same rights against the defendant that plaintiff has [CCP §§ 378, 379, 389; see Ch. 5, Parties, 5.30 et seq.]. Defendant may also bring a new party into the action by cross-complaint [ see Ch. 16, Cross-Complaints, 16.03 et seq.].

Timing:

Motion or cross-complaint should be filed as early as possible to avoid prejudice to new party.

☐ If defendant has pled special defenses, such as statute of limitations or res judicata, defendant may want to move for separate trial of those [ see Ch. 23, Case Management, 23.20 et seq.].

- ☐ Intent to bifurcate should have been indicated in case management statement.

Timing:

CCP § 597 does not provide a particular procedure for the making of a motion for a separate trial on defenses that do not relate to the merits of the action. Three different practices are commonly used:

Amend answer or cross-complaint if needed or desired [ see Ch. 34, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings, 34.03 et seq.].

Amendment allowed once as matter of right before responsive pleading is filed [CCP § 472].

Later amendments may be allowed by noticed motion if they are in the furtherance of justice [CCP §§ 473(a), 576].

Timing:

Motion may be filed at any time before or after trial commences [CCP § 576].

If pleadings should be modified to reflect recent facts, move to supplement answer or cross-complaint [ see Ch. 34, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings, 34.22 et seq.].

Timing:

No time limits on motion.

Distinguish:

Amendments correct errors in pleadings; supplemental pleadings add material facts that occurred after the complaint or cross-complaint were filed [CCP § 464].

Consider filing a motion for judgment on the pleadings if complaint fails to state a cause of action or the court does not have subject matter jurisdiction over the case [CCP § 438 (c)(1)(B); see Ch. 11, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings, 11.38].

Timing:

Motion for judgment on the pleadings may be filed at anytime, except that it cannot be filed after entry of any pretrial conference order or within 30 days of date set for trial, whichever is later [CCP § 438(e)].

Warning:

Motion for judgment on the pleadings cannot be based on same grounds as a demurrer that has been overruled [CCP § 438(g)].

If grounds exist for discretionary [CCP §§ 583.410-583.430] or mandatory [CCP §§ 583.310-583.360] dismissal for failure to bring action to trial, serve and file motion for dismissal [see Ch. 40, Dismissal for Delay in Bringing to Trial]. The court may also make the motion [CCP § 583.360; Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1340].

Timing:

The earliest possible time for a discretionary dismissal for delay in bringing to trial is two years after the action was commenced [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1340(a)]. A motion for discretionary dismissal filed by a party is heard on 45 days' notice [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1342(a)].

Mandatory dismissal applies if the case is not brought to trial within five years after the action was commenced [CCP §§ 583.310-583.360].

Consider making an offer to compromise or a settlement offer [ see Ch. 37, Settlement and Release, 37.03 et seq.].

Timing:

CCP § 998 offer to compromise can be made at any time but not less than 10 days before trial. Offer expires 30 days after it is made or at start of trial or arbitration [CCP § 998(b)].

☐ If defendant files a motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication, file opposition papers not less than 14 days prior to noticed or continued date of hearing [CCP § 437c(b)(2); see Ch. 38, Summary Judgment, 38.19 et seq.].

☐ If plaintiff has not done so already, he or she should consider filing a cross motion for summary judgment.

Warning:

Cross motion also requires 75 days' notice and must be heard by the court no later than 30 days before trial so if original moving party files summary judgment motion on last day to do so (105 days before trial), it will be too late for opposing party to make a cross motion without a stipulation or court approval. Chapter 2 Client Interview
I. STRATEGY

2.02 Objective and Strategy.

The primary objective of the client interview is to gather information from a potential client to determine whether a viable cause of action exists and whether you can provide effective representation. Another purpose is to obtain information necessary to determine whether there are potential or actual conflicts with current or former clients that could prevent representation of the potential client or require disclosure and consent to the proposed representation.

The attorney should also be aware of the probability that the client might be attorney shopping. Instilling confidence in the prospective client by providing examples of similar cases handled and results achieved by the attorney are important in helping to assist a client in selecting you as their lawyer. With the very large number of lawyers in the State of California, it is essential to provide the perspective client with good reasons for retaining you as their counsel.

It is also important for you to consider the client's objectives and goals in the litigation. Do not undertake the representation of a client whose goals or expectation exceed that which you believe can realistically be achieved. The attorney who ignores this "warning signal" is likely to windup a defendant in a malpractice action.

Trap:

As a preliminary matter, obtain information to determine whether the statute of limitations for the prospective client's claim is about to expire [ see Ch. 4, Limitation of Actions].

Chapter 2 Client Interview
II. CLIENT INTERVIEW

1-2 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 2.03

2.03 CHECKLIST: Client Interview by Plaintiff's Attorney.

☐ Obtain basic information from potential client during an initial telephone conversation or at outset of initial meeting. Basic information should include:

☐ Type of claim.

Discussion:

See 2.05[1][a]

☐ When potential client first became aware of existence of claim.

Discussion:

See 2.05[1][b]

☐ Names of potential defendants.

Discussion:

See 2.05[1][c]

☐ Determine from initial conversation (or a subsequent meeting) whether it will be necessary to:

☐ Decline representation and/or refer matter to another attorney because of:

☐ Insufficient client financial resources to cover costs and attorney's fees (if representation will be on non-contingency basis).

Discussion:

See 2.10[1]

- ☐ Conflict of interest with potential defendant that cannot be waived by disclosure and consent.

Authority:Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310Discussion:

See 2.10[2]

- ☐ Lack of competence with subject matter of claim.

Authority:Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-110(A)Discussion:

See 2.10[3]

- ☐ Lack of time to devote to matter and effectively represent potential client.

Discussion:

See 2.10[4]

- ☐ Determination that claim is not viable.

Authority:Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-200(B)Discussion:

See 2.10[5]

- ☐ Determination that opposing party is insolvent or judgment-proof.

Discussion:

See 2.10[6]

- ☐ Associate with another attorney.

Discussion:

See 2.10[3]

- ☐ If initial contact is by telephone:

- ☐ Set a date and time for potential client to meet at attorney's office for an initial consultation.

Prerequisite:

If associating with another attorney, it will be necessary to coordinate the date and time of the meeting with the associated attorney so that the attorney can attend.

- ☐ Inform potential client of the fee, if any, that will be charged for the initial consultation.
- ☐ Request that potential client bring to the meeting all relevant documents.

Discussion:

See 2.05[1][d]

- ☐ Tell potential client that a questionnaire will be sent prior to meeting and that potential client is to complete the questionnaire and return it or bring it to the meeting.
- ☐ Prepare and send to potential client a questionnaire that is tailored as closely as possible for the type of claim asserted by potential client.

Chapter 2 Client Interview
II. CLIENT INTERVIEW

1-2 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 2.05

2.05 Gathering All Relevant Facts.

2.05[1] Obtaining Basic Information.

2.05[1][a] Type of Claim. In the initial contact with a potential client, which typically will be a telephone conversation, find out first what type of claim is involved. For example, if the claim involves a will contest and you have no probate experience the client will likely be better served by an attorney who has the requisite knowledge and experience. Then, you have the choice to decline representation, associate with another attorney who has probate experience, or refer the matter outright to another attorney.

Cross References:

Discussion of the consideration of an attorney's competence to handle a particular matter, see 2.10[3].

Discussion of the duty to practice with competence, see Ch. 3, Beginning and Terminating the Attorney-Client Relationship, 3.06[4].

2.05[1][b] When Claim First Became Known to Potential Client. You must also determine when the claim arose. If the potential client has a claim, the statute of limitations will be an issue. Based on the type of claim and when the client first knew of the claim (or should have first become aware of the claim), you must evaluate the risk that the claim will become time barred if not filed soon. Similarly, when the potential client has a belief that a claim will soon be filed in court against him or her, if you determine that the claim may soon become time barred, you will not want the potential client to do or say anything to provoke an immediate filing.

Cross References:

Determining applicable statute of limitations, see Ch. 4, Limitation of Actions, 4.03 -4.11. Determining when limitation period begins to run, see Ch. 4, Limitation of Actions, 4.12 -4.15.

2.05[1][c] Names of Opposing Party or Parties. You will need to ascertain the names of the opposing party or parties. If you, or someone in your firm, represents or formerly represented one of the opposing parties, representation may not be possible. At the very least, representation may be possible only after the required disclosures are made, and in certain circumstances, consents obtained.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the consideration of actual or potential conflicts to representation of a potential client, see 2.10[1].

Strategic Point:

The basic information, such as the type of claim, when the claim arose, and the identities of the opposing parties, could be obtained in a face-to-face meeting. However, gathering this information can be done quickly over the phone and will speed up the process. If the basic information leads you to the conclusion that you cannot represent the potential client, neither you nor the potential client will have lost valuable time in a face-to-face meeting. In addition, if you decide that you need to associate with another attorney, arrangements can be made to have the other attorney present at the initial meeting.

2.05[1][d] Potential Client Should Bring All Relevant Documents to Initial Meeting. You should request that the potential client bring copies of all documents relevant to the claim. If the potential client is a defendant in an action, the potential client should also bring all court papers received, including, if available, the envelopes that the papers came in.

Example:

A former employee who believes he or she was wrongfully terminated should bring:

- Employment contract, if one exists.
- Performance evaluations.
- Employee handbook, manual, or policy memos.
- All documents pertaining to benefits and compensation.
- Termination letter.
- Any other documents that the potential client believes may be relevant.

Strategic Point:

Consider preparing or obtaining checklists of documents that can be used to request documents from a potential client. Each checklist could be based on a basic claim, such as an employment dispute, a personal injury action, marriage dissolution, a medical malpractice action, and a breach of contract claim. The appropriate checklist could be sent to the potential client prior to the initial meeting or its contents could be read over the phone.

2.05[2] Questionnaire to Potential Client. Prior to the initial meeting, it is good practice to send the potential client a questionnaire. In addition to asking basic information about the client, the questionnaire can seek information on the claim and the opposing parties. Each page of the questionnaire should be marked as attorney/client work product and privileged communication. The potential client may either return the completed questionnaire prior to the meeting or bring it to the meeting. The questionnaire facilitates the information gathering process and also forces the potential client to organize his or her thoughts. The questionnaire will also be part of the client file--available for reference from time to time as the matter progresses.

Form:

See 2.13.

If time does not permit sending the questionnaire to the potential client before the meeting, the questionnaire may instead be provided at the initial meeting, in which case the client should be given time at the meeting to complete it.

2.05[3] Meeting With Potential Client to Obtain More Detailed Information.

2.05[3][a] Information About Potential Client. Although much information can be gathered over the phone or by mail or fax, there is no substitute for a face-to-face meeting with the potential client. It will give the client the opportunity to meet you and gain a degree of comfort with the person who may be handling the claim. It also gives you an opportunity to gauge what type of client you may be representing. Will the client make a good witness? Is the client credible?

Strategic Point:

To better assess the quality and credibility of the client as a witness, consider giving the client a "practice" witness preparation and questioning session up front to test the person's ability to convey the facts within his or her own knowledge.

Cross Reference:

Preparation of witnesses for examination, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, 7.21 et seq.

In addition, if the potential client is an entity, such as a corporation or a partnership, gather as much information as possible about the entity's senior officers or partners.

Strategic Point:

Prior to the meeting, inform the potential client as to the fee, if any, that will be charged for the initial meeting.

2.05[3][b] Information About Claim. Details of the potential client's claim need to be obtained during the initial meeting. If the potential client brought the relevant documents, these documents can be briefly reviewed in the presence of the potential client. You should have the potential client recount his or her version of the events that gave rise to the claim in detail, even if this was already covered in the questionnaire. Your questions may elicit additional information. In addition, any discrepancies between the information in the questionnaire and the information given at the meeting could be a red flag, prompting you to delve deeper into the matter to determine the potential client's veracity.

Strategic Point:

If the claim involves a contract, pay particular attention to provisions in the contract that govern disputes, such as:

- Notice requirements.
- Shortened period of limitation.
- Forum selection provision.
- Arbitration provision.
- Releases of liability.
- Attorney's fees provision.
- Precondition to attorney's fees (e.g., participation in mediation).

2.05[3][c] Information About Opposing Party or Parties. The potential client should give you any information he or she has about the opposing party or parties. Often, the opposing party will be a former employer, a fellow businessman, or a medical professional who treated the potential client. In such case, the party or parties will have a history with the potential client that will be highly relevant to the litigation. If the claim involves a personal injury, such as an automobile accident, the client's recollection of the opposing party's demeanor and statements made at the accident could be critical to the outcome.

2.05[3][d] Information About Witnesses. You should ask the potential client the identity of all potential fact witnesses, both friendly and adverse. You will want to contact and interview key witnesses early on if you decide to take the case. If possible, the witnesses should be interviewed before filing the complaint or, if you represent the defendant, before filing an answer or cross-complaint.

Strategic Point:

To better assess the quality and credibility of the potential favorable witnesses, consider giving them a "practice" witness preparation and questioning session up front to test the person's ability to convey the facts within his or her own knowledge.

Preparation of witnesses for examination, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, 7.21 et seq.

2.06 Explaining Costs of Litigation.

Once you learn the basic factual information and legal authority regarding the claim or case, try to estimate the likely cost of pursuing the litigation and discuss this with the potential client. Unless you are willing to take the case on a contingency, the client's ability to pay will be a major factor in deciding whether or not to represent the client.

2.07 Explaining Litigation Process.

Depending on the level of sophistication of the potential client, it may be necessary to provide some basic information on the litigation process. The potential client with a claim may have unrealistic expectations as to how quickly the court will dispense justice. The potential client has to understand that the process will take time and will involve the filing of a complaint, a response by the defendant, the taking of depositions, and, likely, a discussion of settlement. Likewise, the potential client who has had a claim filed against him or her may have a wrong impression of the process. Any misunderstandings at the early stage of litigation will often cause problems later. Regardless of whether you decide at the meeting to represent the potential client or inform the client that you still have to perform a conflict check or conduct further investigation, you should give the potential client a letter outlining the litigation process and the next steps in the process.

2.08 Outlining Steps to Be Taken After Interview.

The potential client should be informed at the conclusion of the initial meeting what will happen next. If you decide on the basis of the meeting that you will represent the potential client, advise the potential client that the next step is the signing of a fee agreement. At this point, you should have in mind what type of fee will be charged. For example, if the potential client has a claim, will the fee be a contingency fee, an hourly fee, or a fixed fee subject to an additional fee if the matter later requires the rendering of unexpected services? If the potential client is a defendant, will the fee be charged on an hourly basis or will you charge a fixed fee in advance? The type of fee will largely rest on the type of claim and the resources of the potential client.

In addition, if possible, you should obtain an advance fee or retainer to cover your fees for the initial period of the litigation.

If you conclude after the initial meeting that you lack sufficient information to make a decision on representation because of the need for a conflict check, doubts over the viability of the claim, or some lingering questions, you should inform the client that additional information will need to be gathered and that a decision on representation will soon be forthcoming. You should determine whether the client can afford to pay the fees that will be required to properly handle the case and you may want to discuss a possible fee agreement at this point.

Warning:

If there is an impending statute of limitations or filing deadline, you will have to make the decision very quickly or else risk malpractice liability for putting the potential client in a position of losing his or her rights [see Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 C4th 275, 290, 36 CR2d 537, 885 P2d 950 ].

Strategic Point:

At the initial consultation stage, make it clear to the potential client that, because you have not yet fully reviewed the relevant documents or carefully researched the applicable law, the comments made regarding the matter are preliminary and subject to modification based on further investigation.

II. CLIENT INTERVIEW

1-2 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 2.09

2.09 Attorney Must Review All Documents Obtained From Potential Client.

Whether you decide to represent the potential client or determine that additional investigation is necessary, review the documents provided by the potential client. If you will be representing the client, the review is the first step in preparing a complaint or responding to a complaint. You may have a duty to investigate the facts and not rely solely on client statements if circumstances call for further inquiry [ Butler v. State Bar (1986) 42 C3d 323, 329, 228 CR 499, 721 P2d 585 ]. If you still have doubts as to representation for reasons other than the client's ability to pay his or her fees, a review will be necessary to aid in the decision.

Warning:

Even when declining representation, you may still have a fiduciary duty to the potential client. Information that you gather may constitute confidential information that must be protected [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 366 (1970) (protection afforded client confidences and secrets under B&P Code § 6068(e) applies when an attorney is consulted before actual employment even when no employment ensues); see In re Marriage of Zimmerman (1993) 16 CA4th 556, 564, 20 CR2d 132 (finding minimal contact did not create fiduciary duty but recognizing possibility of duty when no formal relationship created)]. Any confidential information obtained may not be used against the potential client in future representation of another client without the written consent of the potential client [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(E)].

Example:

An attorney was employed by a widower to settle the estate of his late wife. The attorney had previously drafted the will and was in possession of it. The widower told the attorney that all of the known assets were held jointly, which, if true, would have defeated the disposition of certain assets as contemplated by the will. Although the attorney checked the title to some of the assets, he made no effort to check the title to certain other assets, which turned out to be solely owned by the decedent. Based on the failure to investigate and a failure to communicate with the client, the court suspended the attorney from the practice of law for two years, staying all but 60 days and placing the attorney on probation for the remainder of the two-year period [ Butler v. State Bar (1986) 42 C3d 323, 228 CR 499, 721 P2d 585 ].

Chapter 2 Client Interview
II. CLIENT INTERVIEW

1-2 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 2.10

2.10 Factors to Consider in Determining Whether to Represent Potential Client.

2.10[1] Financial Resources of Potential Client. Unless you are willing to represent the potential client on a contingency fee basis, you must make a practical decision whether or not to assume representation of a client who may have very limited resources. Very often, a contingency fee arrangement is not possible, such as when representing a defendant or when the claim is for reinstatement by a terminated employee or for injunctive relief instead of monetary damages.

When possible, you should obtain an advance fee to cover the initial period of the litigation. You should not agree to represent a client if there is a strong possibility you will later seek to withdraw as counsel for non-payment of fees.

Warning:

An attorney must not unlawfully discriminate or knowingly permit unlawful discrimination when accepting representation of a client on the basis of race, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, religion, age or disability [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 2-400(B)].

2.10[2] Existence of and Types of Conflicts With Current or Former Clients. The identification of potential and actual conflicts of interest is an essential prerequisite to entering into the representation of a client. Failure to take the necessary steps to comply with the requirements of the ethics rules and laws could lead to disqualification of representation and severe sanctions, including suspension and disbarment, as well as potential malpractice liability [see B&P Code §§ 6077, 6078]. Among the actual or potential conflicts that need to be identified include:

- Conflicts from representing multiple clients [see Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(C)].
- Conflicts from representing a client when confidential information has been obtained from a former or current client and the representation is adverse to the former or current client [see Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(E)].
- Conflicts when a third party is paying the client's legal bills [see Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(F)].

- Conflicts when the attorney has a current relationship or had a past relationship with a party or witness in the same matter [see Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)].
- Conflicts when the attorney has a relationship with another person or entity who would be substantially affected by a resolution of the matter [see Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)].
- Conflicts when the attorney has certain relationships with the opposing party's attorney [see Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-320(B)].

Each of these situations will likely require written disclosure of the potential or actual conflicts and, in some cases, written consent to representation. There may even be circumstances in which representation is not possible, such as:

- Representing opposing sides in a contested hearing [ Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 C4th 275, 288, 36 CR2d 537, 885 P2d 950 ; McPhearson v. The Michaels Co. (2002) 96 CA4th 843, 850, 117 CR2d 489 ].
- When potential client lacks capacity to give consent to the representation [see LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].
- When disclosure of the potential or actual conflicts is precluded by law [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310, Discussion].
- When, because of the potential or actual conflicts, the attorney cannot represent the potential client effectively [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].

Warning:

A potential or actual conflict that arises because of a relationship between a person or entity and a member of the attorney's firm may be imputed to the attorney [see Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310, Discussion; Rosenfeld Constr. Co., Inc. v. Superior Court (1991) 235 CA3d 566, 573, 286 CR 609 ]. The attorney must conduct a firm-wide conflict check as part of the determination of whether to represent a potential client.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the obligations of an attorney to manage conflict of interest situations, see Ch. 3, Beginning and Terminating the Attorney-Client Relationship, 3.03 -3.10.

2.10[3] Competence to Handle Matter. An attorney may not intentionally, recklessly, or repeatedly fail to perform legal service with competence [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-110(A)]. "Competence" means to apply the diligence, learning and skill, and mental, emotional, and physical ability reasonably necessary for the performance of the legal services [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-110(B)].

If you do not have sufficient learning and skill to handle a particular case, you may nonetheless perform such services competently by associating with or, where appropriate, professionally consulting another lawyer reasonably believed to be competent, or by acquiring sufficient learning and skill before performance is required [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-110(C)].

Example:

A lawyer may not wish to turn down a significant wrongful death personal injury action but not have the experience in litigating such claims. Initiating representation and then associating in experienced counsel is an extremely effective way for an attorney to secure a financial interest while, at the same time, protecting the client's interests.

The duty to practice with competence includes the duty to supervise the work of subordinate attorneys and non-attorney employees or agents [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-110(C), Discussion].

2.10[4] Availability to Represent Potential Client Effectively. You must be reasonably certain that you will have the time to represent the potential client effectively. A large volume of case work for other clients will not excuse an attorney who fails to represent a client competently [ Blair v. State Bar (1989) 49 C3d 762, 780, 263 CR 641, 781 P2d 933 ; Garlow v. State Bar (1988) 44 C3d 689, 711, 244 CR 452, 749 P2d 1307 ]. If you lack the time and resources to pursue a client's case with reasonable diligence, you must decline representation, regardless of whether you are being paid or are performing services pro bono [ Segal v. State Bar (1988) 44 C3d 1077, 1084, 245 CR 404, 751 P2d 463 ].

2.10[5] Viability of Claim or Defense. An attorney's duty is to maintain only such actions as appear to him or her to be legal or just [B&P Code § 6068(c)]. An attorney may not present a claim or defense in litigation that is not warranted under existing law, unless it can be supported by good faith argument for an extension, modification, or reversal of existing law [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-200(B)]. Furthermore, when an attorney forms the belief that the case has no merit and the client refuses to settle or dismiss the action, he or she should withdraw from the case [see Kirsch v. Duryea (1978) 21 C3d 303, 309-310, 146 CR 218, 578 P2d 935 ].

Strategic Point:

An efficient method of identifying whether a claim or defense is viable is to consult Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions (CACI) (LexisNexis(R) Matthew Bender(R), Official Publisher). Knowing what eventually will have to be proved at trial is essential to planning a case and developing strategies. It is common for attorneys to include excerpts of jury instructions in their initial letters to clients about the merits and difficulties of the case. Advising the client about the elements needed to prove or defend an action at the outset goes a long way in developing reasonable expectations for both attorney and client. For example, including the jury instruction regarding loss of consortium [CACI No. 3920] in a client letter might help a spouse to decide whether to pursue a claim or decline its pursuit.

2.10[6] Financial Resources of Opposing Party. The best claim is of no value to a claimant if there is no person or entity from which damages can be collected. You should determine, to the extent possible, the financial resources of all parties who could be liable if the claim is adjudicated in the potential client's favor. If the opposing party is insolvent or judgment-proof, there is no point in wasting the client's money in pursuing litigation against that party.

Exception:

The financial resources of the opposing parties may be irrelevant if the relief sought is not monetary, such as injunctive relief or specific performance.

Locating Opposing Party's Financial Resource Information With the Help of Online Resources:

Many online resources are available for obtaining detailed information about an opposing party's financial resources. These resources can aid you in determining if the opposing party has assets sufficient to satisfy the anticipated award, what property may be used to enforce the judgment, and to determine if any prejudgment remedies should be sought regarding the property, such as attachment, claim and delivery, or lis pendens. For example, helpful resources at lexis.com include:

■ Public Records > Find Assets > Combined Deed Transfers, Tax Assessor Records and Mortgage Records

☐ Sample Search: To uncover real estate currently or previously held by a party, check for deed, tax, and mortgage records by using this search format: name (first name /3 last name).

■ Public Records > Find Assets > All Motor Vehicle Registrations

☐ Sample Search: To uncover personal property held by a party, check for motor vehicle registration records by using this search format: name (first name /3 last name).

■ Public Records > Find Assets > Combined State Boat Registrations and U.S. Coast Guard

☐ Sample Search: To uncover personal property held by a party, check for boat registration records by using this search format: name (first name /3 last name).

■ Public Records > Find Assets > Federal Aviation Administration Aircraft Registrations

☐ Sample Search: To uncover personal property held by a party, check for aircraft registration records by using this search format: name (first name /3 last name).

■ News & Business tab > Combined Sources > News, All (English, Full Text)

☐ Sample Search: To uncover real and personal property and important financial developments, search for news reports that cite the opposing party and may include financial announcements, investments, assets, and other information pertaining to the party's ownership of property using this search format: name (first name /3 last name).

2.11 Procedure to Decline Representation.

If the decision is to decline representation of the potential client, you should inform the potential client of the decision in writing. If the decision was originally communicated orally, confirm it in writing. The letter should warn of the existence of the statute of limitations and warn that the statute may bar the claim if the potential client does not commence an action by a certain date. If the potential client is a defendant, warn the client of the need to file a responsive pleading, or seek an extension, by a certain date.

Example:

An attorney, who had met for an hour with a potential client about a legal malpractice action, withdrew a week later after she discovered that her firm represented the potential defendant in an unrelated matter. The potential client failed to secure new counsel prior to the expiration of the statute of limitations and sued the attorney for malpractice on the grounds that she should have advised him on the limitation issues prior to withdrawing. The California Supreme Court found no liability, holding that the attorney's duty of loyalty to the firm's existing client was paramount. The Court however, in dicta, suggested that in a different factual situation, in which there was the lapse of considerable time and the expenditure of substantial resources before discovery of the conflicting dual representation, an attorney's mere withdrawal from the second representation might not be sufficient in itself to resolve all ethical responsibilities [ Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 C4th 275, 290, 36 CR2d 537, 885 P2d 950 ].

Usually it would be prudent when declining representation, to recommend that the potential client promptly consult another attorney.

2.12 Steps Prior to Representation.

2.12[1] Disclosing Potential or Actual Conflicts. When the proposed representation may create an actual or potential conflict of interest between the duties owed by the attorney to the potential client and the duties owed by the attorney (or a member of his or her firm) to a current or former client, disclosure of the conflict may be required prior to representation of the client. The written disclosure must be made prior to or at the same time as the fee agreement is signed [see Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)].

➤ Cross Reference:

Discussion of the obligations of an attorney to disclose potential or actual conflicts of interests, see Ch. 3, Beginning and Terminating the Attorney-Client Relationship, 3.09.

2.12[2] Obtaining Client Consent to Potential or Actual Conflicts. In addition to the requirement of written disclosure of any potential or actual conflicts of interest, you may be required to obtain the consent of the potential client and/or the current or former client. Such situations include:

- Representing multiple clients, including representing the clients in a settlement of their respective claims [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(C), (D)].
- Representing a client when confidential information has been obtained from a former or current client and the representation is adverse to the former or current client [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(E)].
- Representing a client when a third party is paying the client's legal bills [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(F)].

➤ Cross Reference:

Discussion of the obligations of an attorney to obtain consent to potential or actual conflicts of interests, see Ch. 3, Beginning and Terminating the Attorney-Client Relationship, 3.08.

2.12[3] Entering Into Fee Agreement.

2.12[3][a] Contingency Fee Cases. A contingency fee agreement must be in writing and contain information specified in B&P Code § 6147(a). Failure to comply renders the agreement voidable at the option of the client; however, the attorney is then entitled to collect a reasonable fee [B&P Code § 6147(b)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of non-contingency fee agreements, see Ch. 3, Beginning and Terminating the Attorney-Client Relationship, 3.16[6].

2.12[3][b] Non-Contingency Fee Cases. In any non-contingency case in which it is reasonably foreseeable that total expenses to a client, including attorney fees, will exceed $1,000, the contract for services must be in writing [B&P Code § 6148(a)]. The contract must explain the basis and terms of the attorney's compensation, the nature of the services to be provided and the respective responsibilities of the attorney and the client [B&P Code § 6148(a)].

Failure to comply with these requirements renders the agreement voidable at the option of the client. If the agreement is voided, or if there is no written fee agreement in the first place, counsel will only be entitled to compensation for the reasonable value of his or her services [B&P Code § 6148(c); Flannery v. Prentice (2001) 26 C4th 572, 589, 110 CR2d 809, 28 P3d 860 ].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of non-contingency fee agreements, see Ch. 3, Beginning and Terminating the Attorney-Client Relationship, 3.16[6].

2.12[3][c] Fee Agreement Is Not Prerequisite to Attorney-Client Relationship. A written fee agreement is not necessary to establish an attorney/client relationship [ Lister v. State Bar (1990) 51 C3d 1117, 1126, 275 CR 802, 800 P2d 1232 ; Farnham v. State Bar (1976) 17 C3d 605, 612, 131 CR 661, 552 P2d 445 ]. Nonetheless, entering into such an agreement is strongly advised even if not required by B&P Code § 6148(a). The agreement will set out what type of fee will be charged. Even if no fee is to be paid, a clear writing specifying the exact parameters of the representation is important to avoid disputes with the client and potential malpractice liability.

2.14 Letter From Attorney Declining Representation.

Dear _____ [name]:

Thank you for considering _____ [identify law firm] to represent you in your possible lawsuit arising out of injuries sustained on _____ [date].

Our response in this letter should not be construed as a negative evaluation of the possible lawsuit against the party or parties or any other potential defendants in your potential case. However, we regret to advise you that our firm will not be able to represent you. Please be assured we gave this case every consideration.

[Provide explanation if desired, e.g., Based on our interview with you and the client questionnaire you filled out, our office has determined that _____ (summarize facts of case, e.g.,). Thus, it is our conclusion that, although you suffered significant injuries, a civil suit would be difficult to prove, at best.]

Because we are not accepting representation, neither our firm nor any of its individual attorneys will have responsibility for taking any steps to prosecute or defend your rights in any manner. This firm will not be filing a lawsuit before any applicable statute of limitations expires. In general, a statute of limitation proscribes the time period during which a lawsuit must be filed. Failing to file a lawsuit within the proscribed limitation period means that the Court will not allow you to maintain the action even if the action would have been meritorious, had it been filed before the limitation period expired. In other words, the passage of time alone can extinguish valuable legal rights.

It is important is that you seek legal counsel as quickly as possible to protect your rights. The determination of when the statute of limitations period expires can be a complicated legal analysis which is further reason that you should seek other legal counsel immediately.

Thank you very much for considering our office for your representation. We are sorry we are not able to represent you in this matter.

Chapter 3 Beginning and Terminating the Attorney-Client Relationship
I. STRATEGY

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 3.02

3.02 Objective and Strategy.

A complete understanding of the ethical issues addressed in this chapter is essential in order to promote competent representation and to prevent malpractice liability and disciplinary action by the State Bar.

Strategic Point:

It is important for the attorney to make clear at the outset of the attorney/client relationship what his or her objectives are and to be certain to spell out the limitations, if any, of the attorney's representation. Having clear goals at the start of the attorney/client relationship is important for long-term client happiness. It is also important that attorneys indicate what the level of communication between the attorney and client will be and, while encouraging the client to communicate frequently with the attorney, is important to note that this access should not either be underutilized or overutilized.

Detailed Discussion/Forms:

See California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics (Matthew Bender).

Chapter 3 Beginning and Terminating the Attorney-Client Relationship
II. IDENTIFYING AND DISCLOSING CONFLICTS OF INTEREST

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 3.03

3.03 CHECKLIST: Conflicts of Interest.

3.03[1] Representation of One Client.

Determine whether:

Potential client's interest in a matter handled by you for an existing client is adverse to the existing client.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(C)(3)

Discussion:

See 3.08[3][e]

Representation of potential client is adverse to current or former client when, by reason of the representation of the client or former client, you have obtained confidential information material to the proposed representation.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(E)

Discussion:

See 3.08[5]

☐

You have a current legal, business, financial, professional, or personal relationship with a party or witness in the matter.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(1)

Discussion:

See 3.09[2]

☐ You had a prior legal, business, financial, professional, or personal relationship with a party or witness in the matter.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(2)

Discussion:

See 3.09[3]

☐ You have or had a legal, business, financial, professional, or personal relationship with a person or entity that you know or should know would be substantially affected by the resolution of the matter.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(3)

Discussion:

See 3.09[4]

☐ You have or had a legal, business, financial, or professional interest in the subject matter of the proposed representation.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(4)

Discussion:

See 3.09[5]

☐ You have a relationship with the other party's attorney:

☐ You are a spouse, parent, child, or sibling of the attorney.

☐ You live with the attorney or have an intimate personal relationship with the attorney.

☐ You are a client of the attorney.

Exception:

This does not apply to a relationship with another attorney who is merely a partner or associate in the same law firm as the adverse party's counsel, and who has no direct involvement in the matter.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-320

Discussion:

See 3.09[6]

☐ Determine whether any attorney in your firm has any of the above listed relationships or interests.

☐ If you or any attorney in your firm has any of the above listed relationships or interests, you cannot represent the client if:

☐ You already represent the opposing party;

☐ The client lacks capacity to understand and assess a disclosure of the applicable relationships or interests;

☐ By making an adequate disclosure to the potential client concerning the applicable relationships or interests, you would be violating the confidences or secrets of a current or former client or you would be in violation of a law or rule; or ☐ Even if the potential client waives any potential or actual conflict, it is unlikely that you could represent the client competently.

Authority:

Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 C4th 275, 288, 36 CR2d 537, 885 P2d 950 ; see LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992); Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310

Discussion:

See 3.10

☐ If you or an attorney in your firm has any of the above listed relationships or interests and no absolute bar to representation as set forth directly above applies, you may represent the client provided that sufficient disclosure in writing is made.

☐ The disclosure should include:

☐ The nature of the relationship or interest.

☐ The length of the relationship.

☐ The frequency of contact with the other person or entity.

☐ If applicable, when the relationship terminated, the circumstances and reasons for the termination, and the potential for a reestablishment of the relationship.

☐ If applicable, explain how the other person or entity would be substantially affected by a resolution of the matter.

☐ Any significant events that have affected the relationship positively or negatively.

☐ Your personal feelings toward the person or entity.

☐ Explain why you believe that your representation will not be adversely affected by the relationship and/or interest.

☐ Explain that if circumstances change you might have to withdraw if the change would adversely affect your representation.

☐ Any other factors that would assist in providing the potential client with a clear picture of the relationship and/or interest.

☐ If the other relationship involves a current client, you should also disclose (without disclosing any confidences and secrets):

☐ The number of matters handled for the other client.

☐ The volume of billings to the other client.

☐ The potential for future business from the other client.

☐ The extent of any personal, social, or other relationship you have with the other client that goes beyond the attorney/client relationship.

☐ If the situation is one in which representation of the potential client is adverse to a current or former client when, by reason of the representation of the client or former client, you have obtained confidential information material to the proposed representation, you should also:

☐ Disclose to the current or former client the fact and circumstances of the lawyer's proposed representation, the confidential information you acquired that is material to the proposed representation, how the information could be used in the proposed representation, and the potential adverse consequences to the current or former client as a result of the information's use.

☐ Obtain the written consent of the current or former client.

☐ Disclose to the potential client that the former or current client's consent is required and that, even if the former or current client consents, he or she could attempt later to withdraw consent or circumstances could change so that additional consent would be required.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(E)

Discussion:

See 3.08[5]

Form:

See 3.37

☐ If disclosure is required because the potential client's interest in a matter handled by you for an existing client is adverse to the existing client, you must also obtain the written consent to the proposed representation from both clients.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(C)(3)

Discussion:

See 3.08[3][e]

☐ If a person or entity other than the potential client will be paying the legal fees for the client and that person or entity will not be jointly represented by you, ensure that:

- ☐ There is no interference with your independent professional judgment or with the attorney/client relationship.
- ☐ Information relating to representation of the client is protected as required by B&P Code § 6068(e).
- ☐ You disclose to the client the manner of compensation.
- ☐ You obtain the client's informed written consent.
- ☐ You obtain the third party's agreement in writing that the party may not interfere with your representation of the client or your independent judgment and an acknowledgment that any communications between you and the client are confidential and will not be disclosed to the third party.

Exception:

No disclosure or consent is required if: (a) the nondisclosure is otherwise authorized by law; or (b) you are rendering legal services on behalf of any public agency that provides legal services to other public agencies or the public.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(F)

Discussion:

See 3.08[6]

☐ If a person or entity other than the potential client will be paying the legal fees for the client and that person or entity will be jointly represented by you, follow the steps under 3.03[2].

3.03[2] Representation of Multiple Clients.

- ☐ Determine whether interests of the clients potentially or actually conflict.
- ☐ If there are potential or actual conflicts, make written disclosure and obtain written consent to the representation from all clients.
  - ☐ Written disclosure should include:
    - ☐ Nature and extent of any past relationship with any of the clients.
    - ☐ Explanation of why you believe you can represent all clients effectively.
    - ☐ Suggestion that clients may want to consult with independent counsel before consenting to the multiple representation (particularly if clients lack experience or sophistication).
    - ☐ Depending on whether or not clients agree to allow sharing by you of a client's confidential information with the other clients, explanation of ramifications of their decision.
    - ☐ Statement stressing the importance that you receive a common set of instructions from clients that can be followed so that a conflict of interest does not arise that would require withdrawal.
    - ☐ Statement stressing the importance of pursuing common objectives.
    - ☐ Explanation that if future conflict arises and is not consented to by clients you may be required to withdraw from representation of one, some, or all of the clients.
  - ☐ Written consent should include:
    - ☐ Agreement among clients that either:
      - ☐ You can disclose confidential or secret information obtained about any one of the clients to the other clients, or
      - ☐ You may not disclose confidential or secret information obtained about any one of the clients to the other clients.
    - ☐ Agreement among clients that you retain the original file until you receive a common set of instructions to deliver the file to someone else, and that you will provide copies of the file to any client who requests a copy, at the requesting client's expense.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(C)(1), (2)

Discussion:

See 3.08

Form:

See 3.38

- ☐ If consent is obtained despite potential conflicts and actual conflicts later arise, make written disclosure to all clients of the actual conflicts and obtain new written consent to continued representation from all clients.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310

- ☐ If you determine at any time that continued representation of the clients is not ethically possible, immediately take steps to withdraw representation of one, some, or all of the clients.

Authority:

Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 C4th 275, 290, 36 CR2d 537, 885 P2d 950

Discussion:

See 3.08[3][g]

- ☐ If a person or entity other than the potential clients is paying the legal fees for the clients, ensure that:
- ☐ There is no interference with your independence of professional judgment or with the attorney/client relationship.
  - ☐ Information relating to representation of the clients is protected as required by B&P Code § 6068(e).
  - ☐ You obtain the clients' informed written consent.
  - ☐ You obtain the third party's agreement in writing that the party may not interfere with your representation of the clients or your independent judgment and an acknowledgment that any communications between you and the clients are confidential and will not be disclosed to the third party.

Exception:

No disclosure or consent is required if the nondisclosure is otherwise authorized by law or you are rendering legal services on behalf of any public agency which provides legal services to other public agencies or the public.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(F)

3.04 Options and Strategies.

Before entering into representation of a client, identifying potential and actual conflicts of interest is an essential step. Failure to take the necessary measures to comply with the ethics rules and laws can lead to disqualification and severe sanctions, including suspension and disbarment, as well as potential malpractice liability.

► Locating Conflict of Interest Information With the Help of Online Resources:

Many resources are available online for investigating detailed information about past, present, and prospective clients. These resources can aid you in determining whether you are able to accept an engagement with a prospective client or whether you have a conflict requiring you to decline. For example, helpful resources at lexis.com include:

- News & Business tab > Company & Financial > Company Directors & Executives > D & B Executive Affiliations

- Sample Search: To identify potential conflicts of an individual party, check the executive affiliations using this search format: first name /3 last name

- Legal tab > States Legal--U.S. > California > Public Records > Find a Business > Corporation and Partnership Registration by State > Corporation Findings

- Sample Search: To determine selected director and officer records of California corporations and limited partnerships (some director and officer information may not be listed) for conflicts of interest, check the corporation and limited partnership records using this search: first name /3 last name

- News & Business > Combined Sources > News, Most Recent Two Years (English, Full Text)

- Sample Search: To locate information about a person associated with a particular company, check the news sources using this search: first name /3 last name /25 company name

- News & Business tab > Company & Financial > Company Profiles & Directories > U.S. and International Company Intelligence Reports

☐ Sample Search: To identify potential conflicts when representing a U.S. company, find a list of subsidiaries of public and private U.S. companies by retrieving the company's profile by using this search format: company (name of company).

- News & Business tab > Company & Financial > Company Profiles & Directories > International Company Reports

☐ Sample Search: To identify potential conflicts when representing an international company, find a list of subsidiaries of public and private non-U.S. companies by retrieving the company's profile by using this search format: company (name of company).

- News & Business tab > Company & Financial > Mergers & Acquisitions > Mergers and Acquisitions Reports--Company Reports

☐ Sample Search: To identify potential conflicts when representing a company, find a list of mergers and acquisitions to determine if the scope of the company's business has changed since prior representation by using this search format: company (name of company).

- News & Business tab > Company & Financial > All Company Information (excluding Investext & D&B)

☐ Sample Search: To identify potential conflicts when representing a company, find profiles of companies and company executives, annual reports and other SEC filings, bankruptcy reports, merger and acquisition transactions, and earnings reports for all US public companies, more than 200,000 private US companies, and thousands of international companies by using this search format: company (name of company).

- News & Business tab > Company & Financial > Company Directors & Executives > The Executive Directories

☐ Sample Search: To identify potential conflicts, find useful biographical information on persons and their business affiliations by using this search format: name (first name /3 last name).

- Public Records tab > Find a Business > D & B Business Reports

☐ Sample Search: To identify potential conflicts when representing a company, find useful information on a company's history and operations as well as a business background of its management and a business summary by using this search format: company (name of company).

● Public Records tab > Courts & Filings > Civil and Criminal Court Filings and Regulatory Actions > Combined State Civil and Criminal Filings

Sample Search: To identify potential conflicts when representing a company or individual, find civil and criminal filings by that company or individual that may be against a previously represented client by using this search format: company (name of company) or name (first name /3 last name).

● Public Records tab > Courts & Filings > Judgments & Liens > Combined Judgments & Liens > Combined Judgments & Liens Filings

Sample Search: To identify potential conflicts when representing a company or individual, find judgments and liens that may be filed against the company or individual by a previously represented client by using this search format: company (name of company) or name (first name /3 last name).

3.05 Conflict of Interest Is Situation That Interferes With Attorney's Fulfillment of Basic Duties Owed to Client.

A conflict of interest is a situation that interferes with a lawyer's ability to fulfill basic duties to a client [see State Bar Formal Opinion 1982-69 (1982); LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)]. Four basic duties are involved in conflict situations:

- The duty of undivided loyalty.
- The duty to inform the client.
- The duty to maintain client confidences and secrets.
- The duty to represent a client competently.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of these duties, see 3.06.

Chapter 3 Beginning and Terminating the Attorney-Client Relationship
II. IDENTIFYING AND DISCLOSING CONFLICTS OF INTEREST

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 3.06

3.06 Attorney's Duties Underlying Conflicts of Interest.

3.06[1] Duty of Undivided Loyalty to Client.

3.06[1][a] Any Act That Interferes With Client's Interests Is Forbidden. The duty of loyalty precludes an attorney from assuming any relationship that would prevent him or her from devoting his or her entire energies to the client's interests [ Santa Clara County Counsel Attorneys Ass'n v. Woodside (1994) 7 C4th 525, 548, 28 CR2d 617, 869 P2d 1142 ; Anderson v. Eaton (1930) 211 C 113, 116, 293 P 788 ].

3.06[1][b] Duty of Loyalty Continues After Termination of Attorney/Client Relationship. The duty of loyalty continues after the attorney/client relationship terminates. The duty forbids [ Frazier v. Superior Court (2002) 97 CA4th 23, 35, 118 CR2d 129 ; see Wutchumna Water Co. v. Bailey (1932) 216 C 564, 571, 15 P2d 505 ]:

- Any act that would injure the former client in matters involving the former representation; or
- Use against the former client of any information acquired during the relationship.

Example:

By buying an interest in the judgment against his former client from his former client's opponent, and by seeking to oppose his client's efforts to reverse the judgment, the attorney violated a myriad of ethical duties [ Styles v. Mumbert (2008) 164 CA4th 1163, 1167-1169, 79 CR3d 880 ].

3.06[2] Duty to Inform. An attorney must keep a client reasonably informed about significant developments relating to the employment or representation, including promptly complying with reasonable requests for information and copies of significant documents when necessary to keep the client so informed [ Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-500]. In addition, an attorney must respond promptly to reasonable status inquiries of clients and keep clients reasonably informed of significant developments in matters with regard to which the attorney has agreed to provide legal services [ B&P Code § 6068(m)].

3.06[3] Duty to Maintain Confidences and Secrets.

3.06[3][a] Attorney Has Strict Duty to Maintain Confidence and Preserve Secrets of Client. It is an attorney's duty to maintain inviolate the confidence, and at every peril to himself or herself to preserve the secrets, of his or her client [B&P Code § 6068(e)(1)].

Exception:

Effective July 1, 2004, California codifies an exception to the duty of confidentiality when "disclosure is necessary to prevent a criminal act that the attorney reasonably believes is likely to result in death, or substantial bodily harm to, an individual" [see B&P Code § 6068(e)(2)]. For this and other recognized exceptions, see 3.06[3][e].

3.06[3][b] "Confidence" and "Secret" Defined. "Confidence" refers to information protected by the attorney/client privilege under applicable law. "Secret" refers to other information gained in the professional relationship that the client has requested be held inviolate or the disclosure of which would be embarrassing or would likely be a detriment to the client [State Bar Formal Opinion Nos. 1976-37, 1980-52, 1981-58, 1986-87 and 1993-133 (adopting definitions contained in Model Code of Prof'l Responsibility DR 4-101(A) (1980))].

Examples:

The scope of the duty is quite broad. It includes:

- Information obtained before employment even if no employment ensues [ Pound v. Demera Demera Cameron (2005) 135 CA4th 70, 80, 36 CR3d 922 ; LACBA Formal Opinion No. 366 (1970)].
- Information that could link a client to criminal activity [ Ex parte McDonough (1915) 170 C 230, 233, 149 P 566 ].
- Information that a client has filed a fraudulent bankruptcy petition or that the client is receiving money to which the client is not entitled [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 422 (1983)].

3.06[3][c] Duty Continues After Termination of Attorney/Client Relationship. The duty to maintain client confidences and secrets survives the termination of the attorney/client relationship [ Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Inc. v. Tracinda Corp. (1995) 36 CA4th 1832, 1841-1842, 43 CR2d 327 ; Commercial Standard Title Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 92 CA3d 934, 945, 155 CR 393 ].

3.06[3][d] Inadvertent Disclosure Is Not Waiver of Attorney/Client Privilege. The accidental, inadvertent disclosure of privileged matter by the client's attorney does not constitute a waiver of the attorney/client privilege under Evid Code § 912 [ State Comp. Ins. Fund v. WPS, Inc. (1999) 70 CA4th 644, 652-654, 82 CR2d 799 ]. When a lawyer seeks to hold another lawyer accountable for misuse of inadvertently received confidential materials, the burden rests on the complaining lawyer to show persuasively the inadvertence of the disclosure [ State Comp. Ins. Fund v. WPS, Inc. (1999) 70 CA4th 644, 657, 82 CR2d 799 ].

Warning--Receipt of Inadvertently Disclosed Privileged Material:

An attorney who receives materials that appear to have been provided or made available through inadvertence and appear to be subject to an attorney/client privilege, or otherwise appear to be confidential and privileged, should [ State Comp. Ins. Fund v. WPS, Inc. (1999) 70 CA4th 644, 656-657, 82 CR2d 799 ]:

- Refrain from examining the materials any more than is essential to determine if the materials are privileged; and

- Immediately notify the sender that he or she possesses material that appears to be privileged.

Disqualification might be justified if an attorney who inadvertently receives confidential materials fails to so act, assuming other factors compel disqualification [ State Comp. Ins. Fund v. WPS, Inc. (1999) 70 CA4th 644, 656-657, 82 CR2d 799 ].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of disqualification of opposing counsel, see 3.36.

3.06[3][e] Exceptions May Permit Disclosure. The following exceptions to the duty to maintain confidences and secrets have been recognized by case authority or have been codified:

- Effective July 1, 2004, an attorney may, but is not required to, reveal confidential information relating to the representation of a client to the extent that the attorney reasonably believes the disclosure is necessary to prevent a criminal act that the attorney reasonably believes is likely to result in death of, or substantial bodily harm to, an individual [B&P Code § 6068(e)(2)]. There is no attorney/client privilege if the lawyer reasonably believes that disclosure of any confidential communication relating to representation of a client is necessary to prevent a criminal act that the lawyer reasonable believes is likely to result in death of, or substantial bodily harm to, an individual [Evid Code § 956.5]. Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-100, adopted in response to the 2004 amendments to B&P Code § 6068(e)(2) elaborates on the parameters of this disclosure requirement, and is annotated with an extensive discussion on the duty of confidentiality, exposure to discipline, scope of disclosure, counseling clients or third persons not to commit a criminal act, and withdrawal after disclosure.

- A client may consent to disclosure of confidential and secret information [ Commercial Standard Title Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 92 CA3d 934, 945, 155 CR 393 ].

- An attorney may be legally compelled to disclose confidences and secrets [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 456 (1990)].

- When an attorney represents two or more clients in a matter, one client's communications with the attorney are not privileged as between the clients [Evid Code § 962].

Warning:

For the protection of Evid Code § 962 to apply, the clients must be parties in the same action, and the protection does not apply to clients in separate related actions [ Roush v. Seagate Technology, LLC (2007) 150 CA4th 210, 224-225, 58 CR3d 275 ].

Strategic Point:

When cooperating and sharing information with someone who appears to have a common interest, counsel should consider a confidentiality agreement to preclude the other party from settling and disclosing the shared information with the common adverse party. The result in Roush probably would have been different if there had been such a confidentiality agreement that referred to parties' common interest and required both parties to maintain the confidentiality of any shared confidential information.

- An attorney cannot suppress any evidence that the attorney or the client has a legal obligation to reveal or to produce [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 5-220].

- An attorney may reveal relevant confidences and secrets when the attorney is responding to a client's attacks on the attorney's integrity, good faith, authority, or performance of duty [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 396 (1982)].

- An attorney may disclose client confidences to his or her own attorney for the purpose of determining whether the information is admissible evidence under an exception to the attorney/client privilege [ Fox Searchlight Pictures, Inc. v. Paladino (2001) 89 CA4th 294, 314, 106 CR2d 906 (in-house counsel who sued her former employer for wrongful termination was permitted to disclose to her attorney confidential and privileged information to the extent necessary for the prosecution of the action)].

3.06[4] Duty to Practice With Competence. An attorney may not intentionally, recklessly, or repeatedly fail to perform legal services with competence [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-110(A)]. "Competence" means to apply the diligence, learning and skill, and mental, emotional, and physical ability reasonably necessary for the performance of the legal services [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-110(B)]. If the attorney does not have sufficient learning and skill, the attorney may nonetheless perform legal services competently by associating with or, when appropriate, professionally consulting another lawyer reasonably believed to be competent, or by acquiring sufficient learning and skill before performance is required [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-110(C)]. The duty to practice with competence includes the duty to supervise the work of subordinate attorneys and non-attorney employees or agents [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-110(C), Discussion].

Exception:

In an emergency, an attorney may advise or assist in a matter in which the lawyer does not have the skill ordinarily required, when referral to or consultation with another lawyer would be impractical [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-110(C), Discussion]. Even in an emergency, however, assistance should be limited to that reasonably necessary in the circumstances [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-110(C), Discussion].

3.07 Attorney Usually Owes Duty Exclusively to Client.

3.07[1] Attorney's Duties Are Owed to Client. An attorney's duties are owed to a client [see Major Clients Agency v. Diemer (1998) 67 CA4th 1116, 1132, 79 CR2d 613 ]. "Client" is defined as a person or entity who, directly or through an authorized representative, consults a lawyer for the purpose of retaining the lawyer or securing legal service or advice from the lawyer in the lawyer's professional capacity [Evid Code § 951].

Whenever a party seeking legal advice consults a lawyer, the relation of attorney and client is established prima facie [ Beery v. State Bar (1987) 43 C3d 802, 811, 239 CR 121, 739 P2d 1289 ]. Payment of attorney fees alone does not determine an attorney/client relationship; it is merely a factor [ Strasbourg Pearson Tulcin Wolff, Inc. v. Wiz Tech., Inc. (1999) 69 CA4th 1399, 1404, 82 CR2d 326 ]. The primary factor is whether and to what extent the attorney acquired confidential information [ People ex rel. Dep't of Corps. v. Speedee Oil Change Sys., Inc. (1999) 20 C4th 1135, 1147, 86 CR2d 816, 980 P2d 371 ].

3.07[2] Attorney May Owe Duties to Nonclient. In some instances, an attorney may owe duties to a nonclient [ American Airlines, Inc. v. Sheppard, Mullin, Richter & Hampton (2002) 96 CA4th 1017, 1032-1037, 117 CR2d 685 ; William H. Raley Co. v. Superior Court (1983) 149 CA3d 1042, 1047-1048, 197 CR 232 (decided under former Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 5-102(B))].

Example:

A law firm represented a client in an action against a corporation. A partner in the law firm was a director of a bank, which was trustee for a trust that was the sole shareholder of the defendant corporation. The bank's board and its trust investment committee, of which the lawyer was also a member, had the authority to settle lawsuits involving wholly owned corporations such as the defendant. Even though the lawyer did not represent the bank as trustee, the court disqualified the firm from representing the plaintiff against the corporation because the lawyer had fiduciary duties to the corporation trust beneficiaries [ William H. Raley Co. v. Superior Court (1983) 149 CA3d 1042, 1050, 197 CR 232 (decided under former Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 5-102(B))].

3.07[3] Organization As Client.

3.07[3][a] Attorney Who Represents an Organization Represents That Organization, Not Individuals. When an attorney represents an organization, the client is the organization, not the organization's constituents [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-600(A)].

Exception:

An attorney representing an organization may also represent any of its directors, officers, employees, members, shareholders, or other constituents, subject to Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310 [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-600(E)]. If the organization's consent to the dual representation is required by Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310, the consent must be given by an appropriate constituent of the organization other than the individual or constituent who is to be represented, or by the shareholder(s) or organization members [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-600(E)].

3.07[3][b] Attorney Must Disclose Identity of Client for Whom Attorney Is Acting If Organization's Interests Are or May Become Adverse to the Organization's Constituents. In dealing with an organization's directors, officers, employees, members, shareholders, or other constituents, an attorney must explain the identity of the client for whom the attorney acts, whenever it is or becomes apparent that the organization's interests are or may become adverse to those of the constituents with whom the attorney is dealing [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-600(D)]. The attorney must not mislead a constituent into believing that the constituent may communicate confidential information to the attorney in a way that will not be used in the organization's interest if that interest is or becomes adverse to the constituent [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-600(D)].

3.07[3][c] Attorney Has Duty to Act If Agent for Organization Acts or Intends or Refuses to Act in Manner That Is Likely to Result in Injury to the Organization. An attorney must take such actions as appear to the attorney to be in the best lawful interest of the organization if an actual or apparent agent of the organization acts or intends or refuses to act in a manner that is or may be a violation of law reasonably imputable to the organization, or in a manner that is likely to result in substantial injury to the organization [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-600(B)]. So long as the attorney does not violate the duty to maintain client confidences and secrets, such actions may include among others: (1) urging reconsideration of the matter while explaining its likely consequences to the organization; or (2) referring the matter to the next higher authority in the organization, including, if warranted by the seriousness of the matter, referral to the highest internal authority that can act on behalf of the organization [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-600(B)].

If, despite the attorney's actions, the highest authority that can act on behalf of the organization insists on action or a refusal to act that is a violation of law and is likely to result in substantial injury to the organization, the attorney's response is limited to the attorney's right, and, when appropriate, duty to resign in accordance with Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700 [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-600(C)].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of an attorney's withdrawal from representation, see 3.29.

3.07[3][d] Corporation As Client. For an attorney representing a corporation, the client is the corporation itself, not the shareholders, officers, or employees of the corporation [see Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-600(A)]. The attorney's duty to the corporation takes precedence even though the legal advice rendered to the corporation may adversely affect the shareholders [ Thomas v. Gordon (2000) 85 CA4th 113, 122, 102 CR2d 28 ].

3.07[3][e] Affiliates of Corporation. When an attorney represents a corporation, the client is the corporate entity actually represented, not any affiliated corporations [ Brooklyn Navy Yard Cogeneration Partners v. Superior Court (1997) 60 CA4th 248, 254, 70 CR2d 419 ].

Exception:

A subsidiary of a corporate client may also be considered a client of a law firm for conflict of interest purposes if the corporation is an alter ego of the subsidiary, if the two entities have a sufficient unity of interest, or if the attorney has obtained confidential information from the subsidiary and the matter relates to the subject matter of the confidential information [ Morrison Knudsen Corp. v. Hancock, Rothert & Bunshoft (1999) 69 CA4th 223, 239-252, 81 CR2d 425 ].

3.07[3][f] Close Corporation As Client. In dealing with a close corporation or small association, attorneys commonly perform professional engagements for both the organization and its major constituents [ Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-600, Discussion]. While under Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-600 an attorney for a close corporation does not necessarily have an attorney/client relationship with the corporation's shareholders, such a relationship may arise when the attorney has a close interaction with a shareholder [ Skarbrevik v. Cohen, England & Whitfield (1991) 231 CA3d 692, 705, 282 CR 627 (corporate attorney, because of a close interaction with a shareholder or shareholders, may stand in confidential relationships in respect to both the corporation and individual shareholders)].

3.07[3][g] Partnership As Client. A partnership is an organization within the meaning of Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-600 [ Responsible Citizens v. Superior Court (1993) 16 CA4th 1717, 1729-1731, 20 CR2d 756 ]. Whether an attorney/client relationship exists between the partnership's attorney and one of the partners depends on the particular facts and circumstances. Among the factors are [ Responsible Citizens v. Superior Court (1993) 16 CA4th 1717, 1733, 20 CR2d 756 ]:

- The type and size of the partnership.
- The nature and scope of the lawyer's engagement by the partnership.
- The kind and extent of contacts between the attorney and the individual partner.
- The attorney's access to information (e.g., partnership financial information) relating to the individual partner's interests.

3.07[3][h] Trade Association As Client. Generally an attorney can be adverse to a member of an incorporated trade association when he or she represents the trade association itself [ Glueck v. Jonathan Logan, Inc. (2d Cir 1981) 653 F2d 746, 748-749 ].

Exception:

There is an exception to this general rule when an attorney receives confidential information from an association member under circumstances in which the association member has a reasonable expectation that the attorney will use the information for the member's benefit [ Glueck v. Jonathan Logan, Inc. (2d Cir 1981) 653 F2d 746, 748-749 ; Westinghouse Elec. Corp. v. Kerr-McGee Corp. (7th Cir 1978) 580 F2d 1311, 1318-1320 , cert. denied, 439 US 955 (1978) ].

Chapter 3 Beginning and Terminating the Attorney-Client Relationship
II. IDENTIFYING AND DISCLOSING CONFLICTS OF INTEREST

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 3.08

3.08 Client's Informed Written Consent to Conflict Is Required in Some Situations.

3.08[1] Consent Must Be Preceded by Written Disclosure That Sufficiently Informs Client of Conflicts.

When the informed written consent of the client or former client is required, the consent must be preceded by written disclosure [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)]. "Disclosure" is defined as "informing the client or former client of the relevant circumstances and of the actual and reasonably foreseeable adverse consequences to the client or former client" [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(A)(1)]. The disclosure must include all facts and circumstances that, in the judgment of a lawyer of ordinary skill and capacity, are necessary to enable the client to make free and intelligent decisions regarding the subject matter of the representation [ Ishmael v. Millington (1966) 241 CA2d 520, 528, 50 CR 592 ]. The attorney should include the areas of potential conflict and the possibility and desirability of seeking independent legal advice [ Civil Serv. Comm'n v. Superior Court (1984) 163 CA3d 70, 82, 209 CR 159 ].

Distinguish:

Rule 3-310 controls conflicts of interest and disqualification motions only in the context of attorney-client relationships [ Oaks Management Corporation v. Superior Court (2006) 145 CA4th 453, 465, 51 CR3d 561 (mere exposure to the confidences of an adversary does not alone warrant disqualification)].

3.08[2] "Informed Written Consent" Defined. "Informed written consent" is the client's or former client's written agreement to the representation following written disclosure [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(A)(2)].

"Written" is defined as handwriting, typewriting, printing, photostating, photographing, photocopying, transmitting by electronic mail or facsimile, and every other means of recording on any tangible thing, any form of communication or representation, including letters, words, pictures, sounds, or symbols, or combinations thereof, and any record thereby created, regardless of the manner in which the record has been stored [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(A)(3) (incorporating definition in Evid Code § 250)].

3.08[3] Disclosing and Obtaining Consent to Representation of Multiple Clients.

3.08[3][a] Both Actual and Potential Conflicts Must Be Disclosed. An attorney may not, without the informed written consent of each client, accept representation of more than one client in a matter in which the interests of the clients potentially conflict or accept or continue representation of more than one client in a matter in which the interests of the clients actually conflict [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(C)(1), (2)].

 Cross Reference:

Form, see 3.38.

3.08[3][b] Separate Consents Are Required for Potential and Actual Conflicts. The rules contemplate that after consent to a representation involving a potential conflict is obtained, an additional consent would be required if an actual conflict later arises [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310, Discussion].

3.08[3][c] Disclosure and Consent to Potential Conflicts. Sometimes it may be advantageous, for the sake of convenience or economy, for an attorney to represent multiple clients when the representation presents potential conflicts.

Multiple representation is not automatically prohibited, but is allowed provided that disclosure is sufficient to enable the clients to make free and intelligent decisions regarding the subject matter of the representation [ Day v. Rosenthal (1985) 170 CA3d 1125, 1148-1149, 217 CR 89 ] and the attorney obtains the informed written consent of all of the clients.

3.08[3][d] Disclosure and Consent to Actual Conflicts. If an actual conflict exists or, if during representation, an actual conflict develops, the attorney must immediately disclose the problem in writing to all of the clients. To continue the multiple representation, the attorney must obtain the written consent of each client. However, when the representation involves a litigation matter, informed consent may not be sufficient [ Klemm v. Superior Court (1977) 75 CA3d 893, 898, 142 CR 509 ("purported consent to dual representation of litigants with adverse interests at a contested hearing would be neither intelligent nor informed") ].

If the attorney chooses or is required to withdraw from the multiple representation, he or she may have to withdraw from representing all parties, unless the party the attorney will no longer represent gives informed written consent to the continued representation. Consent is required if the attorney obtained confidential information during the course of representing the soon-to-be client [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(E)].

Warning:

Although Rules 3-310(B) and 3-310(C) permit multiple representation when there are actual conflicts between clients, as long as informed written consent is obtained, an attorney generally should not continue to represent both clients in such a situation.

Although there are a few limited circumstances when the co-parties may wish to proceed with the same attorney, to avoid potential malpractice liability, the attorney must be very diligent to assure that the clients are aware that they may be giving up their right to pursue a damage claim against the other party, and obtain from the clients a knowing and intelligent waiver of this right.

 Cross References:

Discussion of an attorney's withdrawal from representation, see 3.29.

Discussion of disclosing and obtaining consent to adverse representation when confidential information has been obtained, see 3.08[5].

3.08[3][e] Disclosing and Obtaining Consent to Representation Adverse to a Client. An attorney may not, without the informed written consent of each client, represent a client in a matter and at the same time in a separate matter accept as a client a person or entity whose interest in the first matter is adverse to the client in the first matter [

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(C)(3)].

Warning:

Although Rule 3-310(C)(3) does not refer to a situation in which another attorney in the law firm has a relationship adverse to an attorney's client, courts have held under prior rules that the Rule applied when the adverse representation was handled by a different attorney in the firm [ Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 C4th 275, 285, 36 CR2d 537, 885 P2d 950 ; Truck Ins. Exch. v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1992) 6 CA4th 1050, 1055-1056, 8 CR2d 228 ]; see also Cal W. Nurseries v. Superior Court (2005) 129 CA4th 1170, 1172-1177 ].

Distinguish:

Rule 3-310(C)(3) prohibits the concurrent representation of clients without informed written consent only if the attorney represents one of the clients in a matter in which the clients' interests are adverse. This rule does not prohibit the concurrent representation of clients whose interests are adverse only in a matter in which the attorney does not represent either client [ Fremont Ind. Co. v. Fremont Gen. Corp. (2006) 143 CA4th 50, 65, 49 CR3d 82 (interests of parties adverse only in third matter)].

Strategic Point:

Although Rule 3-310(C)(3) would permit adverse representation with the informed, written consent of the clients, it is not advisable to proceed under such circumstances. The California Supreme Court has stated that the cases in which simultaneous representation is permissible are rare, typically involving corporate clients, and overcoming the presumption of "prima facie impropriety" is not easily accomplished [ Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 C4th 275, 285, 36 CR2d 537, 885 P2d 950 ].

3.08[3][f] Withdrawal From Representing Existing Client Not Permitted to Avoid Conflict. An attorney cannot avoid obtaining the informed, written consent of a client in order to take on adverse representation of a second client by withdrawing from representing the first client [ Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 C4th 275, 288, 36 CR2d 537, 885 P2d 950 ; American Airlines, Inc. v. Sheppard, Mullin, Richter & Hampton (2002) 96 CA4th 1017, 1037, 117 CR2d 685 ].

Example:

A law firm representing a client against a party in one suit may not avoid the need for consent to represent the adverse party in that suit with respect to other claims against other parties in that suit by withdrawing only with respect to representation of the adverse party on claims that the client has against the adverse party [ Cal W. Nurseries v. Superior Court (2005) 129 CA4th 1170, 1177 ].

3.08[3][g] When Attorney Is Required to Sever Relationship With New Client. On determining that withdrawal is necessary to avoid ethical problems, the attorney should withdraw as soon as he or she learns that the new matter is adverse to an existing client. Any delay in withdrawing might be insufficient to avoid a problem [ Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 C4th 275, 290, 36 CR2d 537, 885 P2d 950 ].

Example:

An attorney, who had met for an hour with a prospective client about a legal malpractice action, withdrew a week later after she discovered that her firm represented the potential defendant in an unrelated matter. The prospective client failed to secure new counsel prior to the expiration of the statute of limitations and sued the attorney for malpractice on the grounds that she should have advised him on the limitation issues prior to withdrawing. The California Supreme Court found no liability, holding that the attorney's duty of loyalty to the firm's existing client was paramount. The Court however, in dicta, suggested that in a different factual situation, in which there was the lapse of considerable time and the expenditure of substantial resources before discovery of the conflicting dual representation, an attorney's mere withdrawal from the second representation might not be sufficient in itself to resolve all ethical responsibilities [ Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 C4th 275, 290, 36 CR2d 537, 885 P2d 950 ].

3.08[4] Disclosing and Obtaining Consent to Aggregate Settlement of Claim Involving Two or More Clients.

An attorney who represents two or more clients cannot enter into an aggregate settlement of the claims of or against the clients without the informed written consent of each client [ Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(D) ]. An aggregate settlement is one in which more than one client's claim or defense is settled at once.

Exception:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(D) does not apply to class action settlements subject to court approval [ Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310, Discussion ].

3.08[5] Disclosing and Obtaining Consent to Adverse Representation When Confidential Information Has Been Obtained.

3.08[5][a] Purpose of Rule Is to Protect Present or Former Client. An attorney may not, without the informed written consent of the client or former client, accept employment adverse to the client or former client when, by reason of the representation of the client or former client, the attorney has obtained confidential information material to the employment [ Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(E) ]. The purpose of Rule 3-310(E) is to prevent an attorney from doing anything that would injuriously affect his or her client in any matter in which he or she formerly represented the client--at no time may the attorney use against the client knowledge or information acquired by virtue of the previous relationship [ Galbraith v. The State Bar (1933) 218 C 329, 333, 23 P2d 291 ].

3.08[5][b] Confidential Information Is Defined. Although "confidential" information is not defined in Rule 3-310(E), it has been defined in the courts to include the confidences and secrets protected under B&P Code § 6068(e) [ American Airlines, Inc. v. Sheppard, Mullin, Richter & Hampton (2002) 96 CA4th 1017, 1040-1041, 117 CR2d 685 ; Goldstein v. Lees (1975) 46 CA3d 614, 620-621, 120 CR 253 ].

Cross Reference:

Form, see 3.37.

3.08[5][c] Informed Written Consent Must Be Obtained From the Former or Current Client From Whom Confidential Information Was Obtained. Informed written consent must be obtained from the current or former client from whom the material, confidential information was obtained [ Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(E) ].

Warning:

A person with whom the attorney consulted can be a former client even though no actual employment resulted from the consultation [see In re Marriage of Zimmerman (1993) 16 CA4th 556, 564, 20 CR2d 132 (finding minimal contact did not create fiduciary duty but recognizing possibility of duty when no formal relationship created)].

Distinguish:

When a lawyer represents or seeks to represent a class of plaintiffs or defendants in a class-action lawsuit, unnamed members of the class are ordinarily not considered to be clients of the lawyer for purposes of applying the rule that restricts representation when there are concurrent conflicts of interest; and the lawyer does not typically need to get the consent of such a person before representing a client suing the person in an unrelated matter [ Sharp v. Next Entertainment Inc. (2008) 163 CA4th 410, 433-435, 78 CR3d 37 ].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of when attorney/client relationship can be created without formal agreement, see 3.13.

3.08[5][d] Representation Must Be Adverse. The representation must be adverse for the attorney to be required to obtain informed written consent from the current or former client [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(E)].

3.08[5][e] Required Disclosure Includes Potential As Well As Actual Use of Confidential Information. The later representation of a client against a former client is forbidden not merely when the attorney will be called on to use material, confidential information obtained in the course of the former employment, but in every case when, by reason of such subsequent employment, he or she may be called on to use such information [ Galbraith v. State Bar (1933) 218 C 329, 332-333, 23 P2d 291 ; Woods v. Superior Court (1983) 149 CA3d 931, 936, 197 CR 185 ].

3.08[5][f] Attorney Is Presumed to Have Confidential Information If Two Matters Are Substantially Related. When a substantial relationship has been shown to exist between the former representation and the current representation, and when it appears by virtue of the nature of the former representation or the relationship of the attorney to the former client confidential information material to the current dispute would normally have been imparted to the attorney or to subordinates for whose legal work the attorney was responsible, the attorney's knowledge of confidential information is presumed [ Adams v. Aerojet-General Corp. (2001) 86 CA4th 1324, 1331, 104 CR2d 116 ]. The presumption is not rebuttable [ People ex rel. Deukmejian v. Brown (1981) 29 C3d 150, 156, 172 CR 478, 624 P2d 1206 ].

Exception:

There is a limited exception to the conclusive presumption when the attorney can show that there was no opportunity for confidential information to be divulged [ H.F. Ahmanson & Co. v. Salomon Bros., Inc. (1991) 229 CA3d 1445, 1455, 280 CR 614 ]. Generally, the exception will apply when the attorney works in a firm. Factors to examine include [ Adams v. Aerojet-General Corp. (2001) 86 CA4th 1324, 1331, 104 CR2d 116 ]:

- The time spent by the attorney working on behalf of the former client.
- The attorney's possible exposure to formulation of policy or strategy in matters relating to the current dispute.
- Whether the attorney worked out of the same branch office that handled the former litigation.
- Whether the attorney's administrative or management duties may have placed him or her in a position where he or she would have been exposed to matters relevant to the current dispute.

3.08[5][g] Knowledge of Confidential Information Is Imputed to Members of Attorney's Firm. Knowledge obtained by one member of a firm of lawyers is imputed to all the other members [ Rosenfeld Constr. Co. v. Superior Court (1991) 235 CA3d 566, 573, 286 CR 609 ].

Strategic Point:

Law firms should adopt a firm-wide conflict check procedure. Computer tracking is the most effective way to avoid potential conflicts with future clients. A thorough computer check should be made of your firm's database before undertaking representation. Upon joining a firm, new associates and partners should be asked if they have previously represented any of the firm's existing clients. All attorneys should be asked if they have previously represented a prospective client or a potentially adverse party prior to the initiation of any new action.

3.08[6] Disclosing and Obtaining Consent When Third Party Is Paying Client's Bill Is Required.

3.08[6][a] Prerequisites for Accepting Compensation. An attorney may not accept compensation for representing a client from someone other than the client unless all of the following requirements are met [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(F)]:

- There is no interference with the attorney's independence of professional judgment or with the attorney/client relationship.
- Information relating to representation of the client is protected as required by B&P Code § 6068(e).
- The attorney obtains the client's informed written consent, provided that no disclosure or consent is required if:
  - ☐ Such nondisclosure is otherwise authorized by law; or
  - ☐ The attorney is rendering legal services on behalf of any public agency that provides legal services to other public agencies or the public.

3.08[6][b] If Third Party Is a Client. When the party paying the legal bills for a client is also a client, Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(F) still applies [see LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].

Example:

An action is brought against a corporation and one of its employees. The corporation elects to retain one lawyer to represent it and the employee and pay for the representation. The attorney must obtain the employee's informed written consent [see LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].

3.08[6][c] If Third Party Is Not a Client. If the third party paying the legal bills is not a client, the attorney does not represent the third party and the attorney's duties are to the client. The attorney must not disclose to the third party the client's confidences and secrets [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(F)(2)].

3.08[6][d] There Must Be No Interference With Attorney's Independence of Professional Judgment or With Attorney/Client Relationship. There can be no interference with the attorney's independence of professional judgment or with the attorney/client relationship [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(F)(1)].

Warning:

You should be very careful to avoid even the appearance that the party paying the bills is interfering, particularly when the party paying the bill is an employer on behalf of an employee. Consent to the payment arrangement by the client is not sufficient by itself to avoid ethical problems. It must be clear that you are representing the client without interference that affects your judgment or your relationship with the client.

3.08[6][e] Circumstances When Disclosure and Consent Not Required. Disclosure of and written consent to a third party payment arrangement is not required when the attorney is rendering legal services on behalf of any public agency that provides legal services to other public agencies or the public or when nondisclosure is otherwise not required by law [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(F)(3)].

Example:

An insurer has a contractual right to select counsel for the insured unilaterally. Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(F)(3) does not abrogate this contractual right when there is no conflict of interest, and does not require the attorney retained by the insurer for the insured to obtain the insured's written consent to accept compensation from the insurer [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310, Discussion]. However, disclosure and consent is required when there is a potential or actual conflict of interest between the insured and the insurer [ San Diego Fed. Credit Union v. Cumis Ins. Soc'y, Inc. (1984) 162 CA3d 358, 364-365 (disclosure and consent required if, based on the outcome of the litigation, the insured's liability may be determined to be outside the scope of coverage)]. When there is a conflict, the insured has the right to independent counsel of its choosing, paid by the insurer [CC § 2860].

Chapter 3 Beginning and Terminating the Attorney-Client Relationship
II. IDENTIFYING AND DISCLOSING CONFLICTS OF INTEREST

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 3.09

3.09 Written Disclosure of Conflict Without Client's Written Consent Is Adequate in Some Situations.

3.09[1] Disclosure Must Be in Writing and Sufficiently Inform Client of Conflict. In conflict situations in which informed written consent is not required, written disclosure must still be made and the extent of the disclosure is the same as is required in situations in which informed written consent is required [see Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(A), (B)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of what constitutes sufficient disclosure, see 3.08[1].

3.09[2] Disclosing Current Relationship With a Party or Witness in Same Matter Is Required.

3.09[2][a] Five Types of Relationships Must Be Disclosed. An attorney may not accept or continue representation of a client without providing written disclosure to the client when the attorney has a "legal, business, financial, professional, or personal" relationship with a party or witness in the same matter [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)]. The types of relationships are not defined in the Rule.

3.09[2][b] Who Is a Party or Witness. In a litigation context, "party" refers to those by or against whom a legal suit is brought [ Poe v. Diamond (1987) 191 CA3d 1394, 1399, 237 CR 80 ]. "Witness" is defined as a person whose declaration under oath is received as evidence for any purpose, whether such declaration is made on oral examination, or by deposition or affidavit [CCP § 1878]. In a nonlitigation context, the precise definitions are unclear.

Warning:

Because the extent to which a person may be considered a party or witness could be quite broad, particularly in a nonlitigation context, you should err on the side of caution and disclose any relationship that could affect your loyalty or independent judgment.

3.09[2][c] Disclosure May Include Relationship Between a Party or Witness and a Member of Attorney's Firm. Although Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(B) is intended to apply only to an attorney's own relationships or interests, if the attorney knows that a partner or associate in the same firm as the attorney has or had a relationship with another party or witness or has or had an interest in the subject matter of the representation, disclosure of the relationship is required [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310, Discussion].

Strategic Point:

Although this aspect of Rule 3-310(B) only requires disclosure if the attorney knows of a relationship with another partner or associate, not relationships that the attorney should know of, because of the difficulty in proving or disproving who knew what and when, you should include an inquiry in a firm-wide conflict check.

3.09[2][d] To Whom Disclosure Is Made. The required disclosure need be made only to the client being represented in the matter [see LACBA Formal Opinion No. 463 (1990)].

3.09[3] Disclosing Past Relationship With Party or Witness in Same Matter.

3.09[3][a] Types of Relationships to Be Disclosed Are Same As for Disclosing Current Relationship. An attorney may not accept or continue representation of a client without providing written disclosure to the client when the attorney knows or reasonably should know that the he or she previously had a legal, business, financial, professional, or personal relationship with a party or witness in the same matter and the previous relationship would substantially affect the attorney's representation [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(2)].

3.09[3][b] Who Is a Party or Witness Is Same As for Disclosing Current Relationship. Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(2) involves the same requirement as Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(1), that the relationship involve a party or witness.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of who is a party or witness, see 3.09[2][b].

3.09[3][c] Disclosure May Include Relationship Between a Party or Witness and a Member of Attorney's Firm. As with disclosing current relationships, the attorney must disclose past relationships he or she knows other attorneys in the firm had with a party or witness [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310, Discussion].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of disclosing relationships of other firm members, see 3.09[2][c].

3.09[3][d] Standard Is Whether Attorney Knows or Reasonably Should Know About the Past Relationship and Its Effect on Current Representation. Unlike the requirement for disclosing current relationships, written disclosure of past relationships is only required when the attorney knows or reasonably should know of both the prior relationship and its effect on the representation [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(2)(a)].

Warning:

The "reasonably should know" standard suggests that the attorney has an obligation to investigate the existence of a prior relationship and its effect on the current or proposed representation.

3.09[3][e] Disclosure Is Required Only If Past Relationship Would Substantially Affect Attorney's Representation. Another difference from the requirement for disclosing current relationships is that disclosure of past relationships is only required if the past relationship would substantially affect the representation [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(2)(b)].

3.09[3][f] Effect Need Not Be Negative, Only Substantial. The disclosure requirement is not dependent on a finding that the effect of the representation on another person or entity would be negative, only that the effect would be "substantial" [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(2)(b)].

3.09[3][g] Disclosure Is Not Required to Former Client. Disclosure of the new engagement to a former client or the consent of the former client to the new engagement is not required [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310, Discussion].

Exception:

Disclosure and consent is required if Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(E) applies (requiring disclosure of employment adverse to the former client when, by reason of the representation of the former client, the attorney has obtained confidential information material to the employment) [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310, Discussion].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of the requirement of disclosing and obtaining consent to adverse employment when the attorney has obtained material, confidential information, see 3.08[5].

3.09[4] Disclosing Relationship With Another Person or Entity Who Would Be Substantially Affected by Resolution of Matter.

3.09[4][a] Types of Relationships to Be Disclosed Are Same As for Disclosing Current or Past Relationship.

An attorney may not accept or continue representation of a client without providing written disclosure to the client when the attorney has or had a legal, business, financial, professional, or personal relationship with another person or entity the attorney knows or reasonably should know would be substantially affected by resolution of the matter [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(3)].

3.09[4][b] Disclosure Is Not Limited to Parties or Witnesses. Disclosure is not limited to parties and witnesses. It applies to any person or entity [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(3)].

Exception:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(3) does not apply to the relationship of an attorney to another party's attorney. Such relationships are governed by Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-320 (requiring disclosure of certain relationships with the other party's attorney) [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310, Discussion].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of the requirement to disclose certain relationships with the other party's attorney, see 3.09[6].

3.09[4][c] Effect Need Not Be Negative, Only Substantial. The disclosure requirement is not dependent on a finding that the effect of the representation on another person or entity would be negative, only that the effect would be "substantial" [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(3)].

3.09[5] Disclosing Attorney's Interest in Subject Matter.

3.09[5][a] Disclosure Applies to Current and Past Interests. An attorney may not accept or continue representation of a client without providing written disclosure to the client when the attorney has or had a legal, business, financial, or professional interest in the subject matter of the representation [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(B)(4)].

3.09[5][b] Disclosure of Attorney's Personal Interest Is Not Required. Unlike other parts of Cal Rules Prof

Conduct, Rule 3-310(B), Rule 3-310(B)(4) does not require disclosure of an attorney's personal interest in the subject matter.

3.09[6] Disclosing Relationships With Other Party's Attorney. An attorney may not represent a client in a matter in which another party's lawyer is a spouse, parent, child, or sibling of the attorney, lives with the attorney, is a client of the attorney, or has an intimate personal relationship with the attorney, unless the attorney informs the client in writing of the relationship [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-320].

Exception:

The rule does not apply to circumstances in which the attorney has a relationship with another lawyer who is merely a partner or associate in the same law firm as the adverse party's counsel, and who has no direct involvement in the matter [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-320, Discussion].

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 3.10

3.10 Conflicts That Cannot Be Consented to by Client.

3.10[1] Representing Opposing Sides in Contested Hearing. An attorney may not concurrently represent parties pursuing opposing claims in a trial or a hearing [ Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 C4th 275, 288, 36 CR2d 537, 885 P2d 950 ; McPhearson v. Michaels Co. (2002) 96 CA4th 843, 850, 117 CR2d 489 ].

Example:

In a derivative suit, the organization named as a defendant is actually a plaintiff, and case law forbids dual representation in a derivative suit alleging fraud by the principals, because the principals and the organization have adverse, conflicting interests [ Gong v. RFG Oil, Inc. (2008) 166 CA4th 209, 215, 82 CR3d 416 ].

3.10[2] When Client Lacks Capacity to Give Consent. When the client lacks the capacity to understand and assess the attorney's disclosure and the consent sought, informed consent is not possible [see LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].

3.10[3] When Disclosure Is Precluded by Law. If other rules or laws prevent an attorney from making adequate disclosure, informed written consent is not possible [ Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310, Discussion].

Example:

In order to provide adequate disclosure to a client, the attorney must reveal confidences or secrets of another client. Because such disclosure would violate the law that an attorney maintain inviolate the confidence and preserve the secrets of his or her client [see B&P Code § 6068(e)], the attorney cannot make the required disclosure.

3.10[4] When Competent Representation Is Unlikely. A client cannot waive a conflict that makes it unlikely that the attorney can competently represent the client [LACBA Formal Opinion No. 471 (1992)].

Chapter 3 Beginning and Terminating the Attorney-Client Relationship
III. BEGINNING THE ATTORNEY/CLIENT RELATIONSHIP

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 3.11

3.11 CHECKLIST: Beginning the Attorney/Client Relationship.

☐ If deciding not to undertake the relationship:

- ☐ Inform the potential client in writing of the decision.
- ☐ If decision was communicated orally, confirm in writing.
- ☐ Include warning as to statute of limitations.
- ☐ If appropriate, advise potential client to seek another attorney promptly.

☐ Decide scope of tasks to be performed as part of representation.

☐ If representation is to be limited in scope and involves court appearance by the attorney, determine whether the representation constitutes "noticed representation."

☐ If representation constitutes "noticed representation":

☐ Establish agreement with client over specific tasks to be performed under terms of limited scope representation.

☐ Give court notice of the agreement for limited scope representation on Judicial Council Form MC-950 Notice of Limited Scope Representation.

Authority:

Cal Rules Ct, Rules 3.35, 3.36(a)

Discussion:

See 3.13[2]

Form:

See 3.38A

☐ Decide on what basis services for the client will be charged:

- ☐ Hourly fee.
- ☐ Contingency fee.
- ☐ Retainer fee.
- ☐ Exploratory or diagnostic fee.
- ☐ Per diem fee.
- ☐ Transaction or lump sum fee.
- ☐ A combination of the above.

Discussion:

See 3.14[1]

☐ In establishing the amount of the fee:

- ☐ Determine whether, based on the type of matter to be handled, there are any statutes or local court rules that restrict the fees that can be charged.

Discussion:

See 3.14[2][a]

- ☐ Consider the factors outlined in Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-200(B).

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-200(B)

Discussion:

See 3.14[2][b]

☐ If you decide to associate with an attorney who is not a partner of, associate of, or shareholder with you or if you decide to refer the matter to another attorney:

- ☐ Prepare fee-splitting agreement for signature by other attorney and client.

Discussion:

See 3.17

Form:

See 3.40

- ☐ If you decide to associate with another attorney:

☐ Prepare and file with court notice of association of counsel, signed by other attorney and client.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 2-200(A)

Discussion:

See 3.17[1]

Form:

See 3.41

- ☐ Serve notice of association on opposing party.

Form:

See 3.42

- ☐ If you decide to refer the matter to another attorney and you have made an appearance in court on behalf of the client:

☐ Prepare and file notice of substitution, signed by you, the client, and new attorney, with clerk of court.

Form:

See 3.47

- ☐ Serve adverse party by mail with notice of substitution.

- ☐ Based on the type of fee arrangement, prepare an appropriate fee agreement.

- ☐ If the agreement is a contingency fee agreement, ensure that:

☐ Statements required under B&P Code § 6147(a)(1)-(5) are included.

Authority:

B&P Code § 6147(a)(1)-(5)

Discussion:

See 3.16[7][b]

☐ The agreement contains a provision for a lien on the proceeds of a prospective judgment or settlement in favor of the client for legal services rendered.

Discussion:

See 3.16[7][e]

☐ If agreement is for the collection of a contingency fee for representing any person seeking damages in connection with an action for injury or damage against a health care provider based on the person's alleged professional negligence, the fee is within the limits proscribed in B&P Code § 6146(a).

Authority:

B&P Code § 6146(a)

Discussion:

See 3.16[7][g]

☐ The agreement does not contain a provision that the client may not compromise the suit without the consent of the attorney.

Authority:

Calvert v. Stoner (1948) 33 C2d 97, 103, 199 P2d 297

Discussion:

See 3.16[7][h]

☐ When required, obtain court or administrative approval to fee agreement:

☐ If fee agreement is for services in litigation on behalf of a minor, obtain approval of court in which the litigation is pending.

Authority:

Fam Code § 6602

Discussion:

See 3.16[3][a]

☐ If fee agreement is a contingency agreement involving a ward or conservatee, obtain court order authorizing guardian or conservator to execute the fee agreement.

Authority:

Prob Code § 2644(a)

Discussion:

See 3.16[3][b]

- ☐ If action is an appeal before the California Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board, obtain approval of fee agreement from the Board.

Authority:

UI Code § 1957

Discussion:

See 3.16[3][c]

- ☐ Obtain signature of client on fee agreement and provide client with a copy of the signed agreement.

Prerequisite:

If necessary or required, provide conflicts of interest disclosure and obtain written consent to representation prior to (or at the same time of) execution of fee agreement.

- ☐ If fees are to be paid by a person or entity other than the client:

- ☐ Obtain signature of paying party on fee agreement.

- ☐ Make required disclosure to client and obtain client's written consent to payment arrangement.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(F)

Discussion:

See 3.08[6]; 3.18

Chapter 3 Beginning and Terminating the Attorney-Client Relationship
III. BEGINNING THE ATTORNEY/CLIENT RELATIONSHIP

3.12 Options and Strategies.

With the adoption of court rules permitting limited scope representation of a client by an attorney in all civil cases, the Judicial Council envisions that rule will help litigants who cannot afford full representation to [Judicial Council of California Report, Limited Scope Representation in Civil Cases ..., at 2-3 (October 6, 2006)]:

- Prepare court documents legibly, completely, and accurately;
- Prepare cases based on a better understanding of the law and procedures;
- Obtain representation for portions of cases; and
- Obtain assistance in understanding, preparing, and enforcing court orders.

Accordingly, the new rules [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.35 et seq.] provide for two types of limited scope representation:

- Noticed representation [see 3.13[2][b]].
- Undisclosed representation [see 3.13[2][c]].

Distinguish:

The distinction between the two types of limited scope representation is whether the attorney appears in court. If so, the attorney-client relationship constitutes "noticed representation," which must be established by serving and filing a notice [see 3.13[2]]. Likewise, completed limited scope representation requires a withdrawal using specifically applicable procedures [see 3.29[7], 3.30[4]].

Strategic Point:

Entering into a limited representation relationship may be used to avoid problems associated with the fact that there is no absolute right to withdraw as counsel [see 3.29].

Several types of fees can be charged for the rendering of legal services. The fee should be of an amount that fairly compensates the attorney for his or her services but is not so large that it is considered unconscionable. Charging an unconscionable fee could subject the attorney to disciplinary action and render the fee agreement unenforceable. In addition, attention must be given to a proper fee-splitting arrangement if it is determined that an association with an outside attorney is necessary or that the handling of the matter needs to be referred to another attorney. Finally, if the fee is to be paid by a person or entity other than the client, certain requirements must be met.

Chapter 3 Beginning and Terminating the Attorney-Client Relationship
III. BEGINNING THE ATTORNEY/CLIENT RELATIONSHIP

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 3.13

3.13 Formal Requirements for Establishing Representation.

3.13[1] Neither a Retainer Nor Formal Agreement Is Required to Establish Attorney/Client Relationship.

Although typically an attorney will enter into a contract or retainer agreement with the client, neither a retainer nor other formal agreement is required to establish the attorney/client relationship [ Lister v. State Bar (1990) 51 C3d 1117, 1126, 275 CR 802, 800 P2d 1232 ; Farnham v. State Bar (1976) 17 C3d 605, 612, 131 CR 661, 552 P2d 445 ].

Examples:

An attorney/client relationship has been established without retainer or other formal agreement when:

- An attorney volunteers his or her services [see Miller v. Metzinger (1979) 91 CA3d 31, 39, 154 CR 22 ].
- An attorney is appointed by the court to represent a client [see Houston Gen. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1980) 108 CA3d 958, 964, 166 CR 904 ].
- An attorney makes a single, special appearance for a litigant [see Streit v. Covington & Crowe (2000) 82 CA4th 441, 447, 98 CR2d 193 ].
- An attorney agrees to provide legal advice to a prospective client without an agreement as to fees [ Beery v. State Bar (1987) 43 C3d 802, 811-812, 239 CR 121, 739 P2d 1289 ].

Trap:

Avoid the trap of representing a client without a written agreement of some kind. Even if no fee is to be paid, a clear writing specifying the exact parameters of the representation is profoundly important to avoid disputes with the client and potential malpractice liability. Counsel may intend to give some preliminary advice and have no intention of undertaking full representation in the matter, but the new unintended client may think that he or she has left the matter in counsel's hands. When the statute of limitations runs without further action the nonclient may well be looking to counsel for the recovery.

Strategic Point:

If the client waives nonbinding arbitration under the California Mandatory Fee Arbitration Act [B&P Code § 6200 et seq.], a pre-dispute arbitration agreement is enforceable [ Ervin, Cohen & Jessup, LLP v. Kassel (2007) 147 CA4th 821, 827 ].

3.13[2] Establishing Limited Scope Representation.

3.13[2][a] Special Rules Apply to Limited Scope Representation. Cal Rules Ct, Rules 3.35-3.37 apply to cases involving limited scope representation of a client by an attorney [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.35(b)].

Distinguish:

"Limited scope representation" is an attorney-client relationship in which the attorney and client agree to a scope of legal services to be provided that is limited to specific tasks [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.35(a)].

3.13[2][b] Agreement and Notice to Court Required for Limited Scope Representation. "Noticed representation" of limited scope, which arises in civil cases other than family law cases [Cal Rules Ct., Rule 3.35(b)] from notice by the client and his or her attorney to the court and other parties of the limited scope representation, is subject to Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.36 [Cal Rules Ct., Rule 3.35(c)(1)]. To establish noticed representation, the party and his or her attorney "may" provide notice of their agreement to limited scope representation on Judicial Council Form MC-950 Notice of Limited Scope Representation, a mandatory form [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.36(a)].

Cross Reference:

Judicial Council Form MC-950, see 3.38A.

The Judicial Council intended that under this rule, "the attorney and client must give the court notice of the limited representation" [Judicial Council of California Report, Limited Scope Representation in Civil Cases ..., at 3 (October 6, 2006)].

Cross References:

Grounds for obtaining order to be relieved as attorney upon completion of noticed representation limited in scope, see 3.29[7].

Effect of limited scope representation on requirements for service of documents by other parties, see Ch. 26, Law and Motion Procedure, 26.10[3].

3.13[2][c] Notice of Agreement Not Required for Representation Limited to Preparation of Legal Documents and Not Involving Court Appearance. The notice requirement does not apply to "undisclosed representation," which is limited representation that is not disclosed [Cal Rules Ct., Rule 3.35(c)(2)]. Under this type of representation, the attorney may draft legal documents that the client submits, but does not make an appearance before the court. The attorney in this situation need not disclose in the text of the documents his or her role in drafting the documents [Cal Rules Ct., Rule 3.37(a)].

Strategic Point:

In undisclosed representation, the client must seek attorney's fees to which he or she may be entitled by submitting required information on his or her own [see Cal Rules Ct., Rule 3.37(b)]. Thus, an attorney undisclosedly representing a client should negotiate for a term of the representation that makes assistance with the preparation of the documents necessary for the client's obtaining an order for attorney fees a part of the attorney's undisclosed representation of the client in the matter.

3.14 Fees.

3.14[1] Types of Fees That Can Be Charged.

3.14[1][a] Hourly Fee. The fee can be based on payments at set hourly rates.

Strategic Point:

Most attorneys bill in quarter hour increments. The increments on which the billing will be based should be set forth in the fee agreement with the client. For example, the agreement should state that the attorney's fees are $100 per hour with fees billed on 0.25 hour minimum increments.

3.14[1][b] Contingency Fee. In a contingency fee arrangement, the attorney can receive a fee only if a specific contingency occurs, such as a settlement of the client's claim or a money judgment in favor of the client.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of contingency fee agreements, see 3.16[7].

3.14[1][c] Retainer Fee. A retainer is a sum of money paid by a client to secure an attorney's availability over a given period of time [ Baranowski v. State Bar (1979) 24 C3d 153, 164 n4, 154 CR 752, 593 P2d 613 ]. The fee is earned by the attorney when paid because the attorney is entitled to the money regardless of whether he or she actually performs any services for the client [ Baranowski v. State Bar (1979) 24 C3d 153, 164 n4, 154 CR 752, 593 P2d 613 ].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of retainer fee agreements, see 3.16[6][c].

3.14[1][d] Exploratory or Diagnostic Fee. An exploratory or diagnostic fee is a fixed fee arrangement only for the attorney's services in performing preliminary work on a matter. After the preliminary work is completed, the attorney and client can then make an arrangement for payment for additional work.

3.14[1][e] Per Diem Fee. A per diem fee arrangement, primarily used in litigation matters, provides for a set rate for a particular type of service performed, such as appearance at a court hearing, filing, serving, and appearing on a motion, or attendance on a trial day.

3.14[1][f] Transaction or Lump Sum Fee. In a transaction or lump sum fee arrangement, the attorney charges a fixed fee for a particular matter.

3.14[2] Amount of Fees Must Not Be Illegal or Unconscionable.

3.14[2][a] Attorney Cannot Enter Into an Agreement for, Charge, or Collect an Illegal or Unconscionable Fee. An attorney may not enter into an agreement for, charge, or collect an illegal or unconscionable fee [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-200(A)]. Not only may an attorney be disciplined for entering into an unconscionable fee agreement, but the fee agreement may be held unenforceable [ Baron v. Mare (1975) 47 CA3d 304, 312, 120 CR 675 ].

Warning:

Several statutes and rules restrict the fees that can be charged in particular cases, such as medical malpractice, workers' compensation, and claims under the Federal Tort Claims Act [see, e.g., B&P Code § 6146 (medical malpractice); Lab Code § 4906 (workers' compensation); 28 USC § 2678 (federal tort claims)]. Local court rules can also have an impact on attorney's fees [see, e.g., Los Angeles Super Ct Rules, Rules 3.2(a) (calculation of attorney's fees for recovery on a note)].

3.14[2][b] Unconscionability Determined on Basis of Facts and Circumstances. Unconscionability of a fee is determined on the basis of all the facts and circumstances existing at the time the agreement is entered into [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-200(B)]. Among the factors to be considered, when appropriate, in determining the unconscionability of a fee are the following [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-200(B)]:

- The amount of the fee in proportion to the value of the services performed.
- The relative sophistication of the attorney and the client.
- The novelty and difficulty of the questions involved and the skill requisite to perform the legal service properly.
- The likelihood, if apparent to the client, that the acceptance of the particular employment will preclude other employment by the attorney.
- The amount involved and the results obtained.
- The time limitations imposed by the client or by the circumstances.
- The nature and length of the professional relationship with the client.
- The experience, reputation, and ability of the attorney or attorneys performing the services.
- Whether the fee is fixed or contingent.
- The time and labor required.
- The informed consent of the client to the fee.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of certain of these factors and additional factors that courts have considered, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics, § 72.190 et seq. (Matthew Bender).

3.15 Recovery of Costs and Expenses by Attorney.

An attorney can advance the costs of prosecuting or defending a claim or action or otherwise protecting or promoting the client's interests, the repayment of which may be contingent on the outcome of the matter [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-210(A)(3)]. The costs are limited to all reasonable expenses of litigation or reasonable expenses in preparation for litigation or in providing any legal services to the client [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-210(A)(3)]. A client is obligated to repay the advances made by the attorney [ Cooley v. Miller & Lux (1909) 156 C 510, 525-526, 105 P 981 ; Ripley v. Pappadopoulos (1994) 23 CA4th 1616, 1626, 28 CR2d 878 ]. An attorney's travel expenses can also be recovered if there is an agreement with the client permitting the recovery [see Darnell v. Woodruff (1936) 14 CA2d 628, 634, 58 P2d 975 ].

Strategic Point:

You should always include in the fee agreement a provision for repayment of costs and expenses advanced.

3.16 Fee Agreements.

3.16[1] Fee Agreement May Be Express or Implied. A fee agreement may be in a detailed contract [see Preston v. Herminghaus (1930) 211 C 1, 5-7, 292 P 953 ], a letter [see Goldberg v. City of Santa Clara (1971) 21 CA3d 857, 861, 98 CR 862 ], or a memorandum [see Model Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 1.5, cmt. (1994)]. Without an express agreement, the agreement may also be implied [ Flannery v. Prentice (2001) 26 C4th 572, 589, 110 CR2d 809, 28 P3d 860 (citing "well-established rule" that in the absence of an agreement on the subject, the client must be deemed to have promised to pay the attorney the reasonable value of the services performed on the client's behalf and with the client's consent and knowledge)].

Warning:

Mediation confidentiality under Evid Code § 1119(a) does not apply to conversations between client and counsel about altering a fee arrangement, merely because they are participating in a mediation, where the adverse party was not present for the discussion [Porter v. Wyner (2010) 183 CA4th 949, 961, 107 CR3d 653].

3.16[2] Fee Agreement Construed Against Attorney. Fee agreements are strictly construed against the attorney [ Reynolds v. Sorosis Fruit Co. (1901) 133 C 625, 630, 66 P 21 ; Severson & Werson v. Bolinger (1991) 235 CA3d 1569, 1572, 1 CR2d 531 ]. A fee agreement is evaluated at the time of its making and must be fair, reasonable, and fully explained to the client [ Severson & Werson v. Bolinger (1991) 235 CA3d 1569, 1572, 1 CR2d 531 ].

3.16[3] Court Approval of Fee Agreement Required in Certain Cases.

3.16[3][a] Services Provided to a Minor in Litigation. A contract for attorney's fees for services in litigation, made by or on behalf of a minor, is void unless the contract is approved, on petition by an interested person, by the court in which the litigation is pending or by the court having jurisdiction of the guardianship estate of the minor [Fam Code § 6602]. If the contract is not approved and a judgment is recovered by or on behalf of the minor, the attorney's fees chargeable against the minor must be fixed by the court rendering the judgment [Fam Code § 6602].

3.16[3][b] Contingency Fee Agreement With Guardian or Conservator. A contingency fee agreement involving a ward or conservatee is valid only if the agreement is made pursuant to an order of the court authorizing the guardian or conservator to execute the contract or the contract is approved by order of the court [Prob Code § 2644(a)].

3.16[3][c] Unemployment Insurance Appeal. When an attorney brings an appeal before the California Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board, the attorney's charge for services provided must be approved by the Board [UI Code § 1957]. Failure to secure Board approval may result in a fine of up to $1,000, imprisonment up to six months, or both [UI Code § 1957].

3.16[4] Fee Agreement for Illegal Fee Is Void. An attorney is subject to discipline if he or she enters into a fee agreement for charging or collecting an illegal fee [see Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-200(A)]. A fee is illegal if it is in violation of:

- A statute [ Estate of Hastings (1952) 108 CA2d 713, 716, 239 P2d 684 (indefinite contingency fee rather than fixed fee in probate matter violated former Prob Code § 910)].
- Public policy [ Calvert v. Stoner (1948) 33 C2d 97, 103, 199 P2d 297 ("contingent fee contract providing that the client may not compromise the suit without the consent of his attorney is against public policy and void")].
- California Rules of Professional Conduct [ Goldstein v. Lees (1975) 46 CA3d 614, 618-619, 120 CR 253 ("attorney may not recover for services rendered if those services are rendered in contradiction to the requirements of professional responsibility")].

Example:

A client with negligence claims arising out of two automobile accidents desired to change attorneys. Her first attorney refused to execute a substitution agreement or transmit the case files to the new attorney unless the client signed a fee agreement for 40 percent of any sums collected by settlement or judgment. The client signed the agreement but later challenged its validity. The court held that the agreement was void because it violated the attorney's ethical duties to the client [ Kallen v. Delug (1984) 157 CA3d 940, 951, 203 CR 879 ].

3.16[5] Fee Agreement With Out-of-State Attorney or Law Firm. The practice of law in California by an out-of-state attorney not licensed to practice law in California constitutes the unauthorized practice of law [B&P Code § 6125] and precludes the collection of attorney fees under fee agreements for work performed in California [ Birbrower, Montalbano, Condon & Frank v. Superior Court (1998) 17 C4th 119, 124, 70 CR2d 304, 949 P2d 1 ].

Warning:

A person may be found to have practiced law in California without actual physical presence in the state [ Birbrower, Montalbano, Condon & Frank v. Superior Court (1998) 17 C4th 119, 124, 128-129, 70 CR2d 304, 949 P2d 1 ("one may practice law in the state in violation of B&P Code § 6125 although not physically present [in California] by advising a California client on California law in connection with a California legal dispute by telephone, fax, computer, or other modern technological means")].

3.16[6] Non-Contingency Fee Agreements.

3.16[6][a] Certain Non-Contingency Fee Arrangements Must Be in Writing. In any non-contingency case in which it is reasonably foreseeable that total expenses to a client, including attorney fees, will exceed $1,000, the contract for services must be in writing [B&P Code § 6148(a)]. At the time the fee agreement is entered into, the attorney must provide a duplicate copy of the agreement signed by both the attorney and the client, or the client's guardian or representative, to the client or to the client's guardian or representative [B&P Code § 6148(a)]. The contract must contain the following [B&P Code § 6148(a)]:

- Any basis of compensation including, but not limited to, hourly rates, statutory fees or flat fees, and other standard rates, fees, and charges applicable to the case.
- The general nature of the legal services to be provided to the client.
- The respective responsibilities of the attorney and the client as to the performance of the contract.

Failure to comply with these requirements renders the agreement voidable at the option of the client. If the agreement is voided, the attorney will still be entitled to collect a reasonable fee [B&P Code § 6148(c)].

Exceptions:

B&P Code § 6148 does not apply [B&P Code § 6148(d)]:

- To services rendered in an emergency to avoid foreseeable prejudice to the rights or interests of the client or when a writing is otherwise impractical.
- To an arrangement as to the fee implied by the fact that the attorney's services are of the same general kind as previously rendered to and paid for by the client.
- If the client knowingly states in writing, after full disclosure of B&P Code § 6148, that a writing concerning fees is not required.
- When the client is a corporation.

➤ Cross Reference:

Forms, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics, § 72.670-72.676 (Matthew Bender).

3.16[6][b] Hourly Fee Agreements. Under an hourly fee agreement, the attorney charges a fee based on time worked on the matter at set hourly rates.

➤ Cross Reference:

Forms, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics, §§ 72.670, 72.671, 72.673, (Matthew Bender).

3.16[6][c] Retainer Fee Agreements. A retainer is a sum of money paid by a client to secure an attorney's availability over a given period of time [ Baranowski v. State Bar (1979) 24 C3d 153, 164 n4, 154 CR 752, 593 P2d 613 ]. The fee is earned by the attorney when paid because the attorney is entitled to the money regardless of whether he or she actually performs any services for the client [ Baranowski v. State Bar (1979) 24 C3d 153, 164 n4, 154 CR 752, 593 P2d 613 ].

Distinguish:

A retainer fee agreement is not to be confused with an advance fee agreement although in common practice, the terms are used interchangeably. In an advance fee agreement, the fee paid is not earned until the services are actually performed. If all or part of the contemplated services are not performed, the fee, or an appropriate portion, must be returned.

➤ Cross References:

Discussion of advance fee agreements, see 3.16[6][g].

Form of retainer agreement, see 3.39.

3.16[6][d] Transaction or Lump Sum Fee Agreements. In a transaction or lump sum fee agreement, the attorney charges a fixed fee for a particular transaction. Such an arrangement is common in bankruptcy matters. A risk in this type of agreement for the attorney is underestimating the work involved in the matter. This potential problem can be alleviated somewhat in the agreement by being careful to specify what services the agreement covers and the charges for any additional work.

➡ Cross Reference:

Form, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics, § 72.672 (Matthew Bender).

3.16[6][e] Exploratory or Diagnostic Fee Agreements. This type of agreement can be useful to fix a fee for preliminary work on a matter when there is not enough known of the extent of the ultimate work needed in order to set a fixed fee for the entire transaction. The agreement gives the client the comfort of a limit on the preliminary cost of representation while giving the parties flexibility to agree on a different type of fee arrangement once the extent of the services needed comes into clearer focus.

➡ Cross Reference:

Form, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics, § 72.678 (Matthew Bender).

3.16[6][f] Per Diem Fee Agreements. A per diem fee agreement is best utilized for setting a fixed fee for certain litigation services, such as attending a pretrial conference, or preparing, serving, and appearing on a motion.

➡ Cross Reference:

Form, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics, § 72.679 (Matthew Bender).

3.16[6][g] Advance Payment Fee Agreements. An advance fee agreement can be entered into when the attorney wants to prevent not being paid for performing services. Advance fee agreements are frequently used in family law and criminal law matters. The funds received under an advance payment agreement remain the property of the client until earned by the attorney [ T&R Foods, Inc. v. Rose (1996) 47 CA4th Supp 1, 7, 56 CR2d 41 ]. The failure of the attorney to segregate the client's funds from the attorney's funds constitutes breach of fiduciary duty and professional negligence [ T&R Foods, Inc. v. Rose (1996) 47 CA4th Supp 1, 8, 56 CR2d 41 ].

Distinguish:

In connection with an hourly fee agreement, it is common practice for attorneys to refer to an advance fee received from a client to be applied against the time billed to the case as a "retainer" even though any unearned portion of the fee will be returned to the client.

➡ Cross Reference:

Forms of advance payment provision, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics, § 72.682 (Matthew Bender).

3.16[6][h] Fee Agreement Should Contain Lien Provision. An attorney can expressly provide in the hourly fee agreement for a lien on the proceeds of a prospective judgment in favor of the client for legal services rendered. Commonly known as a "charging lien," this lien may be used to secure either an hourly fee or a contingency fee [ Fletcher v. Davis (2004) 33 C4th 61, 66 ].

Warning:

An attorney who secures payment of hourly fees by acquiring a charging lien against a client's future judgment or recovery has acquired an interest that is adverse to the client, and so must comply with Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-300 requiring the attorney who wishes to obtain such a lien to explain the transaction fully, to offer fair and reasonable terms, to provide a copy of the agreement, to give the client an opportunity to seek independent legal advice, and to secure the client's written consent [ Fletcher v. Davis (2004) 33 C4th 61, 71-72 ; Hawk v. State Bar (1988) 45 C3d 589, 601, 247 CR 599, 754 P2d 1096 ]. In light of Fletcher, prior case law finding an "implied" lien when the agreement is not in writing no longer appears to be valid, and any lien provisions should be clearly written and comply with all requirements of Rule 3-300 (compare Fletcher v. Davis (2004) 33 C4th 61 , with Cetenko v. United Cal. Bank (1982) 30 C3d 528, 531-532, 179 CR 902, 638 P2d 1299 ]. Note that, contrary to commonly held belief, the retention of independent counsel may not, in and of itself, protect against a violation of Rule 3-300; even if independent counsel is retained the agreement still must be fair and in writing to comply with Rule 3-300 [see BGJ Assocs. v. Wilson (2004) 113 CA4th 1217, 1227, 7 CR3d 140 ].

Distinguish:

A contingency fee agreement need not comply with Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-300, to create an attorney's lien [ Plummer v. Day/Eisenberg, LLP (2010) 184 CA4th 38, 49, 108 CR3d 455].

3.16[7] Contingency Fee Agreements.

3.16[7][a] Written Fee Agreement Mandatory for Contingency Fee Arrangements. A contingency fee agreement must be in writing and contain certain statutorily required information [ B&P Code § 6147(a) ]. Failure to comply renders the agreement voidable at the option of the client, and the attorney is then only entitled to collect a reasonable fee [ B&P Code § 6147(b) ; Alderman v. Hamilton (1988) 205 CA3d 1033, 1037-1038, 252 CR 845 ].

Exceptions:

The requirement that the contingency fee agreement be in writing does not apply to contingency fee agreements for the recovery of worker's compensation benefits [ B&P Code § 6147(c) ] and contingency fee agreements involving certain claims between merchants [ B&P Code § 6147.5 ].

A modification or amendment of an original contingency fee agreement is independently subject to the same requirements [ Stroud v. Tunzi (2008) 160 CA4th 377, 382-383, 72 CR3d 756 (documents modifying original contingent-fee agreement voided); Fergus v. Songer (2007) 150 CA4th 552, 570, 59 CR3d 273 (letter amending contingency rate voided)].

Cross Reference:

Forms, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics, §§ 72.675, 72.676 (Matthew Bender).

3.16[7][b] Contingency Fee Agreement Requirements. A contingency fee agreement must include, but is not limited to, statements of the following [ B&P Code § 6147(a)(1)-(5) ]:

- A statement of the contingency fee rate that the client and attorney have agreed on.
- A statement as to how disbursements and costs incurred in connection with the prosecution or settlement of the claim will affect the contingency fee and the client's recovery.
- A statement as to what extent, if any, the client could be required to pay any compensation to the attorney for related matters that arise out of their relationship not covered by their contingency fee contract, including any amounts collected for the client by the attorney.

- Unless the claim is subject to B&P Code § 6146 (governing contingency fee agreements in negligence actions against health care providers), a statement that the fee is not set by law but is negotiable between attorney and client.
- If the claim is subject to B&P Code § 6146, a statement that the rates set forth in that section are the maximum limits for the contingency fee agreement, and that the attorney and client may negotiate a lower rate.

Strategic Point:

Since a contingency fee agreement should indicate that the fees are negotiable and not set by law it is advisable that the actual percentages not be preprinted but should be hand written by the attorney once the percentage fee has been agreed upon. This is a demonstration and manifestation of the negotiability of the fee itself.

3.16[7][c] Contingency Fee Agreement Must Not Charge Unconscionable Fees. Contingency fee agreements may not charge a fee that is unconscionable [see Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-200].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the factors involved in determining the unconscionability of fees generally, see 3.14[2][b].

3.16[7][d] Contingency Fee Based on Client's Gross Recovery Is Permitted. A contingency fee that is based on a percentage of the gross recovery rather than the net recovery after costs is not unfair so long as the fee is not so exorbitant and wholly disproportionate to the services performed as to shock the conscience [ Ramirez v. Sturdevant (1994) 21 CA4th 904, 913-914, 26 CR2d 554 ].

3.16[7][e] Contingency Fee Agreement Should Contain Lien Provision. An attorney can expressly provide in the contingency fee agreement for a lien on the proceeds of a prospective judgment in favor of the client for legal services rendered. Commonly known as a "charging lien," this lien may be used to secure either an hourly fee or a contingency fee [ Fletcher v. Davis (2004) 33 C4th 61, 66 ; Flannery v. Prentice (2001) 26 C4th 572, 597, 110 CR2d 809, 28 P3d 860 ].

Warning:

An attorney who secures payment of contingency fees by acquiring a charging lien against a client's future judgment or recovery has acquired an interest that is adverse to the client, and so must comply with Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-300 requiring the attorney who wishes to obtain such a lien to explain the transaction fully, to offer fair and reasonable terms, to provide a copy of the agreement, to give the client an opportunity to seek independent legal advice, and to secure the client's written consent [ Fletcher v. Davis (2004) 33 C4th 61, 71-72 ; Hawk v. State Bar (1988) 45 C3d 589, 601, 247 CR 599, 754 P2d 1096 ]. In light of Fletcher, prior case law finding an "implied" lien when the agreement is not in writing no longer appears to be valid, and any lien provisions should be clearly written and comply with all requirements of Rule 3-300 [compare Fletcher v. Davis (2004) 33 C4th 61, 71-72 , with Cetenko v. United Cal. Bank (1982) 30 C3d 528, 531-532, 179 CR 902, 638 P2d 1299 ]. Note that, contrary to commonly held belief, the retention of independent counsel may not, in and of itself, protect against a violation of Rule 3-300; even if independent counsel is retained the agreement still must be fair and in writing to comply with Rule 3-300 [see BGJ Assocs. v. Wilson (2004) 113 CA4th 1217, 1227, 7 CR3d 140 ].

3.16[7][f] On Discharge, Attorney Limited to Reasonable Value of Services Rendered. An attorney discharged with or without cause is entitled to recover the reasonable value of his or her services rendered to the time of discharge. However, the cause of action to recover compensation for services rendered under a contingent fee agreement does not accrue until the occurrence of the stated contingency [ Fracasse v. Brent (1972) 6 C3d 784, 792, 100 CR 385, 494 P2d 9 ].

3.16[7][g] Contingency Fee Agreements Are Restricted in Medical Malpractice Actions. In an action seeking damages for injury or damage against a health care provider based on the provider's alleged professional negligence, contingency fees are restricted by statute. In these medical malpractice cases, an attorney may not contract for or collect a contingency fee for representing any person in excess of the following limits [B&P Code § 6146(a)]:

- Forty percent of the first $50,000 recovered.
- Thirty-Three and One-Third percent of the next $50,000 recovered.
- Twenty-Five percent of the next $500,000 recovered.
- Fifteen percent of any amount on which the recovery exceeds $600,000.

Warning:

Additional statutory requirements govern contingency fee agreements in medical malpractice actions. Be sure to review carefully B&P Code § 6146.

3.16[7][h] Contingency Fee Agreement Cannot Prohibit Settlement by Client Without Attorney's Consent. A contingent fee contract providing that the client may not compromise the suit without the consent of his or her attorney is against public policy and void [ Calvert v. Stoner (1948) 33 C2d 97, 103, 199 P2d 297 ].

3.16[8] Attorney May Contractually Secure Payment of Fees by Lien on Client's Recovery. A charging or nonpossessory lien in favor of an attorney on the proceeds of a prospective judgment or recovery in favor of his or her client for legal services rendered may be created by contract [ Cetenko v. United Cal. Bank (1982) 30 C3d 528, 531 (judgment); Levin v. Gulf Ins. Group (1999) 69 CA4th 1282, 1286, 82 CR2d 228 (recovery)].

3.16[9] Fee Agreement Is Confidential. A written fee agreement is a confidential communication within the meaning of B&P Code § 6068(e) (attorney's duty to preserve client confidences and secrets) and Evid Code § 952 (attorney/client privilege) [B&P Code § 6149].

3.17 Fee-Splitting Arrangements.

3.17[1] Fee-Splitting Arrangement Between Attorney and Outside Associated Counsel Is Permitted. An attorney may hire outside counsel on behalf of a client. Outside counsel is an attorney who is not a partner of, associate of, or shareholder with the attorney [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 2-200(A)]. The client is not liable, however, for the expense of the associated counsel absent an express agreement [ Streit v. Covington & Crowe (2000) 82 CA4th 441, 446, 98 CR2d 193 ].

Warning:

If you enter into a fee-splitting agreement with associated counsel, you must disclose in writing to the client the existence of the agreement and obtain the client's written consent [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 2-200(A); Chambers v. Kay (2002) 29 C4th 142, 156, 126 CR2d 536, 56 P3d 645 ]. The total fee charged may not be increased solely because of the fee-splitting arrangement and cannot be unconscionable, as that term is defined in Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-200 [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 2-200(A)(2)].

Exception:

An attorney may recover fees in quantum meruit for services rendered even though the fee splitting agreement was not in writing nor disclosed to the client; however, the amount recovered will most likely be lower than the fee set by oral agreement [ Huskinson & Brown v. Wolf (2004) 32 C4th 453, 460 ].

Timing:

While Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 2-200 requires the client's written consent be obtained prior to any division of fees, the rule does not require the client's written consent prior to the lawyers' entering into a fee-splitting arrangement, or prior to the commencement of work, or at any time other than prior to any division of fees; however, written consents obtained early in the process are preferable to those obtained after-the-fact [ Mink v. Maccabee (2004) 121 CA4th 835, 838 ].

► Cross References:

 Discussion of attorney requirement to obtain client's informed and written consent before asserting charging lien against future judgments, see 3.16[6][h], [7][e].

3.17[2] Fee-Splitting Arrangement Between Referring Attorney and Referred Attorney Is Permitted. If an attorney decides to refer a matter to another attorney, who is not a partner of, associate of, or shareholder with the attorney, the two attorneys may enter into a fee-splitting agreement even if the first attorney's involvement is limited to making the referral. The requirements for disclosure and consent are the same as when the attorney hires an associated counsel [see Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 2-200(A)].

Distinguish:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 2-200 does not require the fee-splitting agreement between the attorneys to be in writing, although the preferable practice is to have a written agreement [ Mink v. Maccabee (2004) 121 CA4th 835, 838 ].

► Cross Reference:

Form, see 3.40.

3.17[3] Fee-Splitting Arrangement Between Attorney and Non-Attorney Is Prohibited. Neither an attorney nor a law firm may directly or indirectly share legal fees with a person who is not a lawyer, except with the following:

- A deceased attorney's estate [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 1-320(A)(1), (2)].
- Non-attorney employees in a compensation, profit-sharing, or retirement plan, provided that the plan does not circumvent the rules or B&P Code §§ 6000-6238 [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 1-320(A)(3)].
- A lawyer referral service established, sponsored, and operated in accordance with the State Bar of California's Minimum Standards for a Lawyer Referral Service [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 1-320(A)(4)].

3.18 Requirements When Fees Are Paid by Third Person.

An attorney may not accept compensation for representing a client from someone other than the client unless all of the following requirements are met [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310(F)]:

- There is no interference with the attorney's independence of professional judgment or with the attorney/client relationship.
- Information relating to representation of the client is protected as required by B&P Code § 6068(e).
- The attorney obtains the client's informed written consent, provided that no disclosure or consent is required if:
  - ☐ Such nondisclosure is otherwise authorized by law; or
  - ☐ The attorney is rendering legal services on behalf of any public agency that provides legal services to other public agencies or the public.

IV. HANDLING CLIENT FUNDS AND PROPERTY

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 3.19

3.19 CHECKLIST: Handling Client Funds and Property.

- ☐ Deposit all funds received or held for the benefit of the client, including advances for costs and expenses, in one or more client-only interest bearing trust account established in California.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-100(A)

Discussion:

See 3.21[1]

Exception:

If funds received by you are paid as a true retainer fee to assure your availability for future legal services, the amount need not be placed in a trust account but rather can be placed in your general account.

Discussion:

See 3.25

Exception:

If you receive funds that are nominal in amount or are on deposit for a short period of time, funds must be placed in a separate interest bearing or dividend paying account with the interest or dividends paid to the State Bar.

Authority:

B&P Code § 6211(a)

Discussion:

See 3.23

- ☐ Do not commingle law firm funds with funds received from clients.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-100(A)

Discussion:

See 3.21[1]

- ☐ Promptly identify and label securities and property received or held for the benefit of the client and place it in a safe deposit box or other place of safekeeping as soon as practicable.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-100(B)(2)

Discussion:

See 3.21[3]

- ☐ Promptly notify client of the receipt of the client's funds, securities, or other property.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-100(B)(1)

Discussion:

See 3.21[2]

- ☐ Maintain record of all funds, securities, or other property received for a period of five years after the final distribution of the funds, securities, or other property. Record must include:

☐ A written ledger for each client on whose behalf funds are held that sets forth:

☐ The name of the client.

☐ The date, amount, and source of all funds received on behalf of the client.

☐ The date, amount, payee, and purpose of each disbursement made on behalf of the client.

☐ The current balance for the client.

☐ A written journal for each bank account that sets forth:

☐ The name of the account.

☐ The date, amount, and client affected by each debit and credit.

☐ The current balance in the account.

- ☐ All bank statements and cancelled checks for each bank account.
- ☐ Each monthly reconciliation (balancing) of the above items.
- ☐ Each item of security and property held.
- ☐ The person on whose behalf the security or property is held.
- ☐ The date of receipt of the security or property.
- ☐ The date of distribution of the security or property.
- ☐ Each person to whom the security or property was distributed.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-100(B)(3); Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-100, Standards

Discussion:

See 3.21[4]

- ☐ If client requests funds, securities, other properties in trust account, promptly pay or deliver the requested items.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-100(B)(4)

Exception:

If there is a dispute as to whether the funds belong to the client or to you, the funds must remain in the client trust account until the dispute is resolved.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-100(A)(2)

Discussion:

See 3.21[5]

- ☐ If client requests trust account statement, furnish client with complete statement of the funds and property received and disbursed, and any charges on the account.

Timing:

Statement must be furnished within 10 calendar days after receipt of the request. The requests cannot be made more often than once each 30 days unless a client files a complaint with the California State Bar and the State Bar determines that more statements are warranted.

Authority:

B&P Code § 6091

Discussion:

See 3.24

☐ When your right to any of the funds in the client trust account become fixed, withdraw such portion of the funds at the earliest possible time.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-100(A)(2)

3.20 Options and Strategies.

Mismanagement of client funds by an attorney is treated as a very serious offense, often leading to the disbarment of the attorney. An attorney must diligently adhere to the rules governing handling of the client's funds and other property, including the keeping of detailed records.

IV. HANDLING CLIENT FUNDS AND PROPERTY

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 3.21

3.21 Attorney Has a Duty to Properly Handle Client's Funds and Property.

3.21[1] Client's Funds Must Be Segregated From Attorney's Funds. All funds received or held for the benefit of a client by an attorney, including advances for costs and expenses, must be segregated from the attorney's funds and deposited in a trust account maintained in the state of California [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-100(A)].

Warning:

The prohibition on commingling client funds with attorney funds is strict. A violation occurs even if the failure to segregate client funds does not harm the client and is never discovered by the client [ Murray v. State Bar (1985) 40 C3d 575, 584, 220 CR 677, 709 P2d 480 ]. The "usual" discipline for an attorney who wilfully misappropriates a client's funds is disbarment [ Edwards v. State Bar (1990) 52 C3d 28, 37, 276 CR 153, 801 P2d 396 ]. Willful misappropriation may be found even in the absence of deliberate wrongdoing [ Palomo v. State Bar (1984) 36 C3d 785, 795, 205 CR 834, 685 P2d 1185 ("where fiduciary violations occur as the result of serious and inexcusable lapses in office procedure, they may be deemed 'willful' for disciplinary purposes, even if there was no deliberate wrongdoing")].

Strategic Point:

There is no need to segregate individual client's funds. All client funds can be commingled in one client trust account.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the sanctions for trust account mismanagement, see 3.26.

3.21[2] Attorney Must Promptly Notify Client of Receipt of Funds and Property of Client. An attorney must promptly notify a client of the receipt of the client's funds, securities, or other properties [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-100(B)(1)].

3.21[3] Attorney Must Identify Client's Property and Keep It Safe. An attorney must promptly identify and label securities and property of the client and place it in a safe deposit box or other place of safekeeping as soon as practicable [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-100(B)(2)]. The safekeeping duty is nondelegable. An attorney will be subject to discipline due to the negligence of an office employee [ Palomo v. State Bar (1984) 36 C3d 785, 795-796, 205 CR 834, 685 P2d 1185 ].

3.21[4] Attorney Must Keep Appropriate Records.

3.21[4][a] Attorney Must Maintain Complete Records and Preserve Records for at Least Five Years After Distribution. An attorney must [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-100(B)(3)]:

- Maintain complete records of all funds, securities, and other properties of a client coming into the possession of the attorney or law firm.
- Render appropriate accounts to the client regarding the funds or properties.
- Preserve the records for a period of no less than five years after final appropriate distribution of the funds or properties.
- Comply with any order for an audit of the records issued pursuant to the Rules of Procedure of the State Bar.

3.21[4][b] Specific Recordkeeping Standards Must Be Followed. The Board of Governors of the State Bar has adopted standards as to what records must be maintained by attorneys and law firms in accordance with Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-100(B)(3). An attorney must, from the date of receipt of client funds through the period ending five years from the date of appropriate disbursement of such funds, maintain [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-100, Standards]:

- A written ledger for each client on whose behalf funds are held that sets forth:
  - ☐ The name of the client.
  - ☐ The date, amount, and source of all funds received on behalf of the client.
  - ☐ The date, amount, payee, and purpose of each disbursement made on behalf of the client.
  - ☐ The current balance for the client.
- A written journal for each bank account that sets forth:
  - ☐ The name of the account.
  - ☐ The date, amount, and client affected by each debit and credit.
  - ☐ The current balance in such account.
- All bank statements and cancelled checks for each bank account.

- Each monthly reconciliation (balancing) of the above items.

In addition, an attorney must, from the date of receipt of all securities and other properties held for the benefit of client through the period ending five years from the date of appropriate disbursement of such securities and other properties, maintain a written journal that specifies [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-100, Standards]:

- Each item of security and property held.
- The person on whose behalf the security or property is held.
- The date of receipt of the security or property.
- The date of distribution of the security or property.
- Each person to whom the security or property was distributed.

3.21[4][c] Recordkeeping Duty Is Nondelegable. As with the safekeeping requirement, the duty to maintain appropriate records of the client's funds, securities, and other property is nondelegable [ Palomo v. State Bar (1984) 36 C3d 785, 795-796, 205 CR 834, 685 P2d 1185 ].

3.21[5] Attorney Must Pay or Deliver Client's Funds and Property on Client's Request. An attorney must promptly pay or deliver, as requested by the client, any funds, securities, or other properties in the possession of the attorney that the client is entitled to receive [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-100(B)(4)]. If there is a dispute as to whether the funds belong to the client or to the attorney, the funds must remain in the client trust account until the dispute is finally resolved [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-100(A)(2)].

3.22 Attorney May Have Fiduciary Duty Concerning Funds and Property of Nonclient.

An attorney may be disciplined for breach of a fiduciary duty owed to a nonclient [ Hartford v. State Bar (1990) 50 C3d 1139, 1153, 270 CR 12, 791 P2d 598 ].

Example:

An attorney representing the husband in a dissolution action received funds in which both the client husband and the nonclient wife had an interest. The attorney misappropriated, commingled, and failed to account for the funds. The attorney argued that, as the wife was represented by separate counsel and she was not his client, he had no obligation to pay funds or account to her. The court rejected the contention, holding that the circumstances under which the attorney received the funds (receipt in trust of the proceeds of sale of the community property residence) created a duty to the wife as well as to the client husband [ Guzzetta v. State Bar (1987) 43 C3d 962, 979 ].

3.23 Certain Amount of Client's Funds Must Be Placed in IOLTA Account.

An attorney or law firm receiving or disbursing trust funds must establish and maintain an interest bearing or dividend paying IOLTA (Interest on Lawyers Trust Accounts) account in which to deposit or invest all client funds that are nominal in amount or on deposit for a short period of time. Interest and dividends earned on IOLTA accounts must be paid to the State Bar of California [B&P Code § 6211(a)]. Funds are nominal if it is impractical to segregate them to earn income for the benefit of the client, in light of the income the funds could earn or the costs involved in earning or accounting for the income [Rules Regulating Interest-Bearing Trust Fund Accounts, Rule 1.4].

Strategic Point:

Although not required, the client trust account for non-IOLTA funds should be an interest bearing account with the interest payable to the client.

At the client's written request, the attorney must furnish the client with a complete statement of the funds received and disbursed and any charges on the trust account, within 10 calendar days after receipt of the request [B&P Code § 6091]. The requests may not be made more often than once each 30 days unless a client files a complaint with the State Bar and the State Bar determines that more statements are warranted [B&P Code § 6091].

3.25 Withdrawal From Trust Account for Attorney's Fees Must Be Made at Earliest Reasonable Time After Attorney's Fee Becomes Fixed.

The funds in the trust account belonging to the attorney must be withdrawn at the earliest reasonable time after the attorney's interest becomes fixed [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-100(A)(2)]. When there is a dispute, however, between the attorney and the client over the right of the attorney to make a withdrawal, the disputed amount must not be withdrawn until the dispute is finally resolved [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-100(A)(2)].

3.26 Sanctions for Trust Account Mismanagement.

3.26[1] Disbarment Is Usual Discipline for Willful Misappropriation. The usual discipline for an attorney who willfully misappropriates a client's funds is disbarment [ Edwards v. State Bar (1990) 52 C3d 28, 37, 276 CR 153, 801 P2d 396 ]. Willful misappropriation may be found even in the absence of deliberate wrongdoing [ Palomo v. State Bar (1984) 36 C3d 785, 795, 205 CR 834, 685 P2d 1185 ("where fiduciary violations occur as the result of serious and inexcusable lapses in office procedure, they may be deemed willful for disciplinary purposes, even if there was no deliberate wrongdoing")]. Pursuant to the State Bar's Standards For Attorney Sanctions For Professional Misconduct (contained in Title IV of the Rules of Procedure of the State Bar of California), willful misappropriation of entrusted funds or property must result in disbarment, unless the amount of funds or property misappropriated is insignificant or the most compelling mitigating circumstances clearly predominate [Standards For Attorney Sanctions For Professional Misconduct, Standard 2.2(a)]. In the latter cases, the discipline must not be less than one year suspension, regardless of mitigating circumstances.

Warning:

The California Supreme Court is not bound by the State Bar Standards but will accord them great weight [ In re Lamb (1989) 49 C3d 239, 245, 260 CR 856, 776 P2d 765 ]. The Supreme Court has not hesitated to impose a harsher sanction than recommended by the State Bar, and even has rejected a recommendation of suspension and disbarred an attorney [ In re Morse (1995) 11 C4th 184, 205, 44 CR2d 620, 900 P2d 1170 ].

3.26[2] Suspension for Commingling or Other Failure to Safeguard Client's Property. If there is no willful misappropriation, an attorney guilty of commingling, failure to properly safeguard the client's property, or failure to maintain adequate records and deliver client property to the client on request, must receive at least a three-month actual suspension from the practice of law. The punishment must be imposed regardless of mitigating circumstances [see Standards For Attorney Sanctions For Professional Misconduct, Standard 2.2(b) (referring to violations of Cal Rules Prof Conduct, former Rule 8-101)].

3.27 CHECKLIST: Terminating the Attorney/Client Relationship.

3.27[1] Withdrawal by Attorney.

- ☐ If grounds for a mandatory withdrawal are present, you must withdraw from representation.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700(B)

Grounds:

See 3.29[3]

- ☐ If withdrawal is being made on a permissive or nonmandatory basis, ensure that sufficient grounds for a permissible withdrawal are present.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700(C)

Grounds:

See 3.29[4]

- ☐ To withdraw from representation when no action or special proceeding is pending involving the client:

- ☐ Provide notice of withdrawal to client, allowing time for the client to retain new counsel.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700(A)(2)

Discussion:

See 3.30[1]

- ☐ Perform duties of attorney upon withdrawal.

Standard Checklist:

See 3.27[2]

- ☐ To withdraw from representation that is not limited in scope while a court proceeding is pending involving the client:

- ☐ If the client consents to the withdrawal:

☐ Prepare and have client, and, if applicable, new attorney, sign Judicial Council Form MC-050, Substitution of Attorney.

Exception:

If client is not an individual but an entity or representative (such as a corporation or trustee) that cannot represent itself in court, Judicial Council Form MC-050 can only be used if signed by a new attorney for the client.

Authority:

CCP § 284

Discussion:

Discussion:

See 3.30[3][d]

☐ If client is served by mail, the papers must be accompanied by a declaration stating facts showing that either (1) the service address is the current residence or business address of the client or (2) the service address is the last known residence or business address of the client and the attorney has been unable to locate a more current address after making reasonable efforts to do so within 30 days prior to the filing of the motion to be relieved.

Authority:

Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1362(d)

Discussion:

See 3.30[3][d]

Content Note:

"Current" means that the address was confirmed within 30 days prior to the filing of the motion to withdraw. Merely demonstrating that the notice was sent to the client's last known address and was not returned will not, by itself, be sufficient to demonstrate that the address is current.

- ☐ After the order granting leave to withdraw is signed, serve a copy of the order on the client and all parties who have appeared in the action or proceeding.

Authority:

Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1362(e)

Discussion:

See 3.30[3][d]

Form:

See 3.45

- ☐ After consent to withdrawal or a court order granting leave to withdraw is obtained, perform duties of attorney upon withdrawal.

Standard Checklist:

See 3.27[2]

- ☐ To withdraw from noticed representation that is limited in scope and completed, while a court proceeding is pending:

- ☐ Apply for order to be relieved as attorney upon completion of limited scope representation.

- ☐ Prepare Judicial Council Form MC-955 Application to Be Relieved as Attorney on Completion of Limited Scope Representation.

- ☐ Obtain blank copy of Judicial Council Form MC-956 Objection to Application to Be Relieved as Attorney on Completion of Limited Scope Representation.

- ☐ Serve application on client and all parties and file with court, and include blank objection form with service on client.

Authority:

Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.36(c)-(e)

Discussion:

See 3.30[4][a]

Forms:

See 3.38B (application), 3.38C (objection)

☐ If client serves objection form:

☐ Calendar anticipated receipt of notice of hearing on the objection schedule within 25 days of the filing of the objection.

☐ Determine whether the form was properly completed and was served and filed within 15 days of the date the blank form is served on the client.

☐ Calendar hearing date after receiving notice of date from court clerk.

☐ Prepare documentation that all tasks agreed to on notice of limited scope representation have been completed.

☐ Attend hearing and present evidence contesting client's objection to the application for withdrawal.

Authority:

Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.36(f), (g)

Discussion:

See 3.30[4][b]

☐ If client does not serve objection form:

☐ File:

☐ "Updated" application indicating the lack of objection by the client, on Judicial Council Form MC-955 Application to Be Relieved as Attorney on Completion of Limited Scope Representation.

☐ Proposed order for relief as limited representation attorney on Judicial Council Form MC-958 Order on Application to Be Relieved as Attorney on Completion of Limited Scope Representation.

☐ After clerk has judge sign order, serve copy of signed order on client and all parties or their attorneys who appeared in the action.

Authority:

Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.36(f), (h)

Discussion:

See 3.30[4][c]

Forms:

See 3.38B (application), 3.38D (order)

- ☐ After court order granting leave to withdraw is obtained, perform duties of attorney upon withdrawal.

Standard Checklist:

See 3.27[2]

3.27[2] Duties of Attorney on Withdrawal or Discharge.

- ☐ If you are discharged and there is a pending action or proceeding, make sure that a notice of substitution of attorney is filed with the clerk of court.

Discussion:

See 3.33[2]

- ☐ Regardless of whether there is a pending action or proceeding:

- ☐ Return original file to client or, at the written direction of the client, to the new attorney, making copies as desired.

Exception:

The obligation to return the client's property is subject to any protective order or non-disclosure agreement.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700(D)(1)

Discussion:

See 3.32[1]

- ☐ Return to client all funds and property in client trust account.

Exception:

If there is a dispute as to whether the funds belong to the client or to you, the funds must remain in the client trust account until the dispute is resolved.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700(D)(1)

Discussion:

See 3.32[1]

- ☐ To the extent that the funds are not in the client trust account, return to client any part of fee paid in advance that has not been earned as of the date of withdrawal.

Exception:

If the fee paid was a true retainer fee, paid by a client to secure an attorney's availability over a given period of time, the fee does not have to be returned.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700(D)(2)

Discussion:

See 3.32[2]

3.27[3] Substitution of Attorneys--New Attorney Checklist.

☐ Substitution by consent of client and current attorney:

☐ Prepare and file Substitution of Attorney, Judicial Council Form MC-050, signed by client, current attorney, and new attorney, with clerk of court.

Authority:

CCP § 284(1)

Discussion:

See 3.34[1]

See 3.34[3]

Form:

See 3.50

- ☐ Obtain client file from client or former attorney.

3.27[4] Substitution of Attorneys--Current Attorney Checklist.

- ☐ Execute Substitution of Attorney, Judicial Council Form MC-050.

Form:

See 3.47

- ☐ Make sure that Substitution has been filed with the clerk of court.
- ☐ After employment has been terminated or attorney stops providing services to client:

- ☐ Return original file to client or, at the written direction of the client, to the new attorney, making copies as desired.

Exception:

The obligation to return the client's property is subject to any protective order or non-disclosure agreement.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700(D)(1)

Discussion:

See 3.32[1]

- ☐ Return to client all funds and property in client trust account.

Exception:

If there is a dispute as to whether the funds belong to the client or to you, the funds must remain in the client trust account until the dispute is resolved.

Authority:

Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700(D)(1)

Discussion:

See 3.32[1]

- ☐ To the extent that the funds are not in the client trust account, return to client any part of fee paid in advance that has not been earned as of the date of withdrawal.

3.28 Options and Strategies.

An attorney's withdrawal from representation may be necessary for any one of several reasons, such as conflict with the representation of another client or when the client insists on pursuing an illegal course of conduct. Because of the potential for prejudice to the client when an attorney withdraws, the withdrawing attorney must take the appropriate steps, including, when required, obtaining the approval of the court before which the matter is pending. Failure to account for and return a client's funds and property can result in severe disciplinary sanctions.

Chapter 3 Beginning and Terminating the Attorney-Client Relationship
V. TERMINATING THE ATTORNEY/CLIENT RELATIONSHIP

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 3.29

3.29 Withdrawal of Attorney From Representation.

3.29[1] Attorney Does Not Have Absolute Right to Withdraw. The right of an attorney to withdraw from employment is not absolute [ Vann v. Shilleh (1975) 54 CA3d 192, 197, 126 CR 401 ]. The right is limited by the following:

- Statutes [see, e.g., CCP § 284 (attorney may be changed with consent of client or on order of court); CCP § 285.2 (withdrawal when public funding reduced)].
- Rules of Professional Conduct [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700 (attorney may not withdraw until the attorney has taken steps to avoid prejudice to client)].
- California Rules of Court [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 8.36 (withdrawal or substitution of attorney pending appeal)].
- Case law [ De Recat Corp. v. Dunn (1926) 197 C 787, 791, 242 P 936 (attorney subject to supervision and authority of court); Manfredi & Levine v. Superior Court (1998) 66 CA4th 1128, 1132-1136, 78 CR2d 494 (court can require attorney to disclose substance of alleged conflict of interest before granting motion to withdraw)].

3.29[2] Attorney May Not Withdraw at Will or for Personal Considerations Unless Released by Client or Court. An attorney may withdraw at will or for personal reasons only with the consent of his or her client, or without that consent if withdrawal is approved by the court [ Ramirez v. Sturdevant (1994) 21 CA4th 904, 915, 26 CR2d 554 ].

3.29[3] Circumstances When Withdrawal Is Mandatory.

3.29[3][a] Client's Conduct Is Without Probable Cause and for Purpose of Harassment or Malicious Injury. An attorney representing a client before a tribunal must withdraw from employment with the permission of the tribunal, if required by its rules, and an attorney representing a client in other matters must withdraw from employment, if the attorney knows or should know that the client is bringing an action, conducting a defense, asserting a position in litigation, or taking an appeal, without probable cause and for the purpose of harassing or maliciously injuring any person [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700(B)(1)].

3.29[3][b] Attorney's Continued Employment Will Violate Ethics Rules or Statutes. An attorney representing a client before a tribunal must withdraw from employment with the permission of the tribunal, if required by its rules, and an attorney representing a client in other matters must withdraw from employment if the attorney knows or should know that continued employment will result in violation of the Rules of Professional Conduct or the State Bar Act, B&P Code §§ 6000-6238 [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700(B)(2)].

Example:

Attorneys filed a motion to reconsider a court order. The court later determines that the statements in support of the motion were false and known to the attorneys to be false, and that the motion was made solely to cause unnecessary delay. The attorneys, in response to sanctions imposed on them, argued that they were forced to file the motion by the client and could not withdraw their representation because they could not have withdrawn from the case without adversely affecting the client's position, and that the attorney/client privilege prevented them from being able to exonerate themselves. The court held that an attorney does not have an ethical obligation to his client to perjure himself or to file a knowingly frivolous or bad faith motion. The court concluded that, if the client demanded the filing of the false motion, the attorneys had an ethical obligation to withdraw immediately from the case [ Young v. Rosenthal (1989) 212 CA3d 96, 126-128, 260 CR 369 ].

3.29[3][c] Attorney's Mental or Physical Condition Renders It Unreasonably Difficult to Continue Employment. An attorney representing a client before a tribunal must withdraw from employment with the permission of the tribunal, if required by its rules, and an attorney representing a client in other matters must withdraw from employment if the attorney's mental or physical condition renders it unreasonably difficult to carry out the employment effectively [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700(B)(3)].

3.29[3][d] Attorney Entitled to Recover Reasonable Value of Services Rendered Prior to Mandatory Withdrawal. An attorney representing a client under a contingency fee agreement who withdraws from the representation for reasons that are mandatory under the Rules of Professional Conduct or statute is deemed to have withdrawn for good cause and is entitled to compensation for the reasonable value of his or her services if there is a future recovery in the action [ Estate of Falco (1987) 188 CA3d 1004, 1013-1017, 233 CR 807 ; Hensel v. Cohen (1984) 155 CA3d 563, 568, 202 CR 85 (both declining to follow Pearlmutter v. Alexander (1979) 97 CA3d Supp 16, 20, 158 CR 762 , which awarded fees to an attorney with a lien on any recovery who had voluntarily withdrawn when he was not legally or ethically compelled to do so)]. However, an attorney who voluntarily withdraws, without any justifiable cause or an ethical reason for doing so, will generally not be entitled to any attorney's fees from a future recovery [ Estate of Falco (1987) 188 CA3d 1004, 1013-1017, 233 CR 807 ].

3.29[4] Circumstances When Withdrawal Is Permissible.

3.29[4][a] Client Knowingly and Freely Assents to Termination of Employment. An attorney may withdraw with the permission of the tribunal, if the client knowingly and freely assents to termination of the employment [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700(C)(5)].

3.29[4][b] Client Insists on Presenting Unwarranted Claim or Defense. An attorney may withdraw with the permission of the tribunal, if the client insists on presenting a claim or defense that is not warranted under existing law and cannot be supported by good faith argument for an extension, modification, or reversal of existing law [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700(C)(1)(a); see, e.g., Metzger v. Silverman (1976) 62 CA3d Supp 30, 39, 133 CR 355 (attorney may withdraw if client insists on filing action in the wrong venue)].

3.29[4][c] Client Seeks to Pursue or Insists That Attorney Pursue an Illegal Course of Conduct. An attorney may withdraw with the permission of the tribunal, if the client seeks to pursue an illegal course of conduct, or insists that the attorney pursue a course of conduct that is illegal or that is prohibited under the Rules of Professional Conduct or the State Bar Act, B&P Code §§ 6000-6238 [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700(C)(1)(b), (c)].

3.29[4][d] Client Renders It Unreasonably Difficult for Attorney to Effectively Represent Client. An attorney may withdraw with the permission of the tribunal, if the client by other conduct renders it unreasonably difficult for the attorney to carry out the employment effectively [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700(C)(1)(d)].

Example:

A client authorized his attorney to negotiate a settlement of his claim but the client later refused to go forward with the settlement. The court authorized the attorney's withdrawal as counsel on the ground that the client's refusal to consummate the agreed-on settlement rendered it unreasonably difficult for the attorney to carry out his employment effectively [ Pearlmutter v. Alexander (1979) 97 CA3d Supp 16, 20, 158 CR 762 ].

3.29[4][e] Client Insists That Attorney Engage in Conduct That Does Not Violate Ethics Rules but Is Contrary to Judgment and Advice of Attorney. An attorney may withdraw with the permission of the tribunal, if the client insists, in a matter not pending before a tribunal, that the attorney engage in conduct that is contrary to the judgment and advice of the attorney but not prohibited under the Rules of Professional Conduct or the State Bar Act [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700(C)(1)(e)].

3.29[4][f] Client Breaches an Agreement or Obligation to Attorney Regarding Expenses or Fees. An attorney may withdraw with the permission of the tribunal, if the client breaches an agreement or obligation to the attorney as to expenses or fees [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700(C)(1)(f)].

3.29[4][g] Attorney's Continued Employment Is Likely to Result in a Violation of Ethics Rule or Statute. An attorney may withdraw with the permission of the tribunal, if the continued employment is likely to result in a violation of the Rules of Professional Conduct or the State Bar Act [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700(C)(2)].

3.29[4][h] Attorney's Inability to Work With Co-Counsel Indicates That Best Interest of Client Would Be Served by Withdrawal. An attorney may withdraw with the permission of the tribunal, if the inability to work with co-counsel indicates that the best interests of the client likely will be served by withdrawal [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700(C)(3)].

3.29[4][i] Attorney's Mental or Physical Condition Renders It Difficult to Carry Out Employment Effectively. An attorney may withdraw with the permission of the tribunal, if the attorney's mental or physical condition renders it difficult for the attorney to carry out the employment effectively [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700(C)(4)].

3.29[4][j] Attorney Believes in Good Faith That Tribunal Will Find Existence of Other Good Cause for Withdrawal. An attorney may withdraw with the permission of the tribunal, if the attorney believes in good faith, in a proceeding pending before a tribunal, that the tribunal will find the existence of other good cause for withdrawal [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700(C)(6)].

3.29[4][k] Attorney May Be Entitled to Recover Reasonable Value of Services Rendered Prior to Permissive Withdrawal. An attorney with a contingency fee agreement with a client who withdraws from the representation of that client for reasons that are under the permissive withdrawal provisions of the Rules of Professional Conduct or statute may, in the discretion of the court, be deemed to have withdrawn for good cause and be entitled to compensation for the reasonable value of his or her services if there is a future recovery in the action [ Estate of Falco (1987) 188 CA3d 1004, 1013-1017, 233 CR 807 ; Hensel v. Cohen (1984) 155 CA3d 563, 568, 202 CR 85 (both declining to follow Pearlmutter v. Alexander (1979) 97 CA3d Supp 16, 20, 158 CR 762 , which awarded fees to an attorney with a lien on any recovery who had voluntarily withdrawn when he was not legally or ethically compelled to do so)]. In order to recover fees in this situation, the attorney has the burden of showing that the primary motivation for his or her withdrawal was the obligation to adhere to the ethical imperatives of the Rules of Professional Conduct or statute as opposed to being for financial reasons [ Estate of Falco (1987) 188 CA3d 1004, 1016, 233 CR 807 ]. However, an attorney who voluntarily withdraws, without any justifiable cause or an ethical reason for doing so, will generally not be entitled to any attorney's fees from a future recovery [ Estate of Falco (1987) 188 CA3d 1004, 1013-1017, 233 CR 807 ].

3.29[5] Withdrawal May Be Permitted for Attorney Representing Indigent Client. If a reduction in public funding for legal service materially impairs a legal service agency attorney's ability to represent an indigent client, the court, on its own motion or on the motion of either the client or attorney, may permit the withdrawal of the attorney on a showing that all of the following apply [CCP § 285.2]:

- There are not adequate public funds to continue the effective representation of the indigent client.
- A good faith effort was made to find alternate representation for the indigent client.
- All reasonable steps to reduce the legal prejudice to the client have been taken.

A showing of indigency of the client, in and of itself, will not be deemed sufficient cause to deny the application for withdrawal [CCP § 285.2].

3.29[6] Withdrawal Permitted Within Specific Time Periods in Domestic Relations Cases. An attorney of record for any party in any civil action or proceeding for dissolution of marriage, legal separation, or for a declaration of void or voidable marriage, or for the support, maintenance or custody of minor children may withdraw by filing a notice of withdrawal. The withdrawal can be made at any time, within two time periods [CCP § 285.1]:

- Prior to service on the attorney of pleadings or motion papers in any proceeding then pending in the cause; and
- After any judgment in the action or proceeding, other than an interlocutory judgment, becomes final.

3.29[7] Attorney Providing Noticed Representation Limited in Scope May Withdraw Upon Completion of Agreed Tasks. An attorney who has completed the tasks specified in the notice of limited scope representation may request that he or she be relieved as attorney from a case in which he or she has provided noticed representation limited in scope [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.36(c)].

Exception:

Withdrawal as attorney need not be sought if the client has signed a substitution of attorney [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.36(c)].

Chapter 3 Beginning and Terminating the Attorney-Client Relationship
V. TERMINATING THE ATTORNEY/CLIENT RELATIONSHIP

3.30 Steps to Be Relieved As Counsel.

3.30[1] Attorney Must Avoid Foreseeable Prejudice to Client's Rights. An attorney may not withdraw from employment until the attorney has taken reasonable steps to avoid reasonably foreseeable prejudice to the rights of the client, including [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700(A)(2)]:

- Giving due notice to the client, allowing time for employment of other counsel.
- Complying with Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700(A)(2) (return of papers, property, and unearned fees).
- Complying with applicable laws and rules.

3.30[2] Withdrawal Can Be Accomplished With or Without Consent of Client. An attorney in an action or special proceeding may be changed at any time before or after judgment or final determination [CCP § 284]:

- On the consent of both client and attorney, filed with the clerk, or entered on the minutes; or
- On the order of the court, on the application of either client or attorney, after notice from one to the other.

Strategic Point:

Because withdrawal without consent of the client may signal the attorney's lack of confidence in the merits of the case, or another serious problem, and thereby prejudice the client, an attorney should first attempt to obtain the client's consent before making a motion for leave to withdraw.

Cross Reference:

Form of consent to substitution, see 3.47.

3.30[3] Withdrawal Without Consent of Client.

3.30[3][a] Notice of Motion and Motion Must Be Made on Specific Form. If an attorney in an action or proceeding is unable to obtain the client's consent to withdraw or chooses not to obtain consent, the attorney must apply for leave to withdraw by notice of motion and motion on Judicial Council Form MC-051 Notice of Motion to Be Relieved as Counsel--Civil [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1362(a)].

 Cross Reference:

Form, see 3.43.

3.30[3][b] No Memorandum Is Required. The attorney need not file a memorandum in support of the motion [Cal Rules Ct, Rules 3.1114(a)(3), 3.1362(b)]. The court may order, or a party may submit, a memorandum in support of the motion if it would further the interests of justice [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1114(b)].

3.30[3][c] Motion Must Be Supported by a Declaration. The motion must be supported by a declaration on Judicial Council Form MC-052 Declaration in Support of Attorney's Motion to Be Relieved as Counsel--Civil. The declaration must state in general terms, and without compromising the confidentiality of the attorney/client relationship, why a motion is being made under CCP § 284(2) as opposed to filing a consent to substitution under CCP § 284(1) [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1362(c)].

 Cross Reference:

Form, see 3.44.

3.30[3][d] Motion Must Be Served on Client. The notice of motion, the declaration, and the proposed order [see 3.30[3][e]] must be served on the client and on all other parties who have appeared in the case [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1362(d)]. The notice may be by personal service or mail. If the notice is served on the client by mail under CCP § 1013, it must be accompanied by a declaration stating facts showing that either [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1362(d)]:

- The service address is the current residence or business address of the client; or
- The service address is the last known residence or business address of the client and the attorney has been unable to locate a more current address after making reasonable efforts to do so within 30 days prior to the filing of the motion to be relieved.

"Current" means that the address was confirmed within 30 days prior to the filing of the motion to be relieved [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1362(d)]. Merely demonstrating that the notice was sent to the client's last known address and was not returned will not, by itself, be sufficient to demonstrate that the address is current [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1362(d)]. If the service is by mail, CCP § 1011(b) applies [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1362(d)].

3.30[3][e] Proposed Order Granting Leave to Withdraw Must Be Prepared on Specific Form. The proposed order granting leave to withdraw must be prepared on Judicial form MC-053 Order Granting Attorney's Motion to Be Relieved as Counsel--Civil, and be lodged with the court and served on the client with the moving papers [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1362(d), (e)]. The order must specify all hearing dates scheduled in the action or proceeding, including the date of trial, if known. If no hearing date is presently scheduled, the court may set one and specify the date in the order [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1362(e)]. After the order is signed, a copy of the signed order must be served on the client and on all parties that have appeared in the case [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1362(e)]. The court may delay the effective date of the order relieving counsel until proof of service of a copy of the signed order on the client has been filed with the court [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1362(e)].

 Cross Reference:

Form, see 3.45.

3.30[3][f] Court Has Discretion to Deny Motion. The court has the discretion to deny the motion to withdraw if the withdrawal might work an injustice [ People v. McCracken (1952) 39 C2d 336, 350, 246 P2d 913 ] or cause undue delay in the proceedings [ Manfredi & Levine v. Superior Court (1998) 66 CA4th 1128, 1133-1136, 78 CR2d 494 ]. The court's discretion, however, must be exercised reasonably [ Mandell v. Superior Court (1977) 67 CA3d 1, 4, 136 CR 354 ].

3.30[4] Withdrawal Upon Completion of Noticed Representation Limited in Scope.

3.30[4][a] Attorney Must Serve and File Application, and Include Objection Form to Client. An attorney who has completed the tasks required in his or her noticed representation limited in scope [see 3.29[7]] must direct an application for relief as attorney under CCP § 284(2) on Judicial Council Form MC-955 Application to Be Relieved as Attorney on Completion of Limited Scope Representation to the client, an optional form [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.36(c), (d)].

Cross Reference:

Judicial Council Form MC-955 Application to Be Relieved as Attorney on Completion of Limited Scope Representation, see 3.38B.

The attorney must file the application with the court and serve a copy on the client and all other parties or their attorneys in the case. Service on the client must include a blank copy of Judicial Council Form MC-956 Objection to Application to Be Relieved as Attorney on Completion of Limited Scope Representation, an optional form [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.36(e)].

Cross Reference:

Judicial Council Form MC-956 Objection to Application to Be Relieved as Attorney on Completion of Limited Scope Representation, see 3.38C.

3.30[4][b] If Objection Is Served and Filed Within 15 Days, Hearing Is Scheduled for Date Within 25 Days.

To contest the application for relief as limited representation attorney, the client must serve and file a completed objection form [see 3.30[4][a]] within 15 days of the date it is served on the client [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.36(f), (g)].

After the filing of the objection form, the clerk of court must schedule a hearing on the objection for a date within 25 days of what the form is filed. The clerk is to send notice of the hearing date to the client and the attorney [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.36(g)].

3.30[4][c] If No Objection Is Filed, Attorney Files Updated Application and Proposed Order, and Serves Order After It Is Signed. If the client does not serve and file a timely objection to the attorney's application for an order for relief as limited representation attorney [see 3.30[4][b]], the attorney must file an "updated" application with the court, indicating the lack of objection, on Judicial Council Form MC-955, Application to Be Relieved as Attorney on Completion of Limited Scope Representation, an optional form [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.36(f)].

Cross Reference:

Judicial Council Form MC-955 Application to Be Relieved as Attorney on Completion of Limited Scope Representation, see 3.38B.

The attorney must file along with the updated application a proposed order for relief as limited representation attorney on Judicial Council Form MC-958 Order on Application to Be Relieved as Attorney on Completion of Limited Scope Representation, an optional form [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.36(f)].

 Cross Reference:

Judicial Council Form MC-958 Order on Application to Be Relieved as Attorney on Completion of Limited Scope Representation, see 3.38D.

The clerk forwards the application and proposed order for signature by the judge [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.36(f)]. Thereafter, the attorney must serve a copy of the signed order on the client and all parties or their attorneys who have appeared in the action. The court may delay the effective date of the order until proof of service of the order on the client is filed with the court [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.36(h)].

3.31 Attorney May Be Subject to Disciplinary Action and Civil Liability for Wrongful Withdrawal.

An attorney who withdraws from representation of a client without the consent of either the client or the court may be subject to disciplinary action [ Vann v. Shilleh (1975) 54 CA3d 192, 197, 126 CR 401 ]. In addition, if the client can show that he or she was damaged by or suffered a loss as a result of the attorney's wrongful withdrawal, the attorney may be subject to civil liability [ Lane v. Storke (1909) 10 CA 347, 351-352, 101 P 937 ].

3.32 Attorney's Duties on Withdrawal.

3.32[1] Attorney Must Return Client's Property. An attorney whose employment has terminated must promptly release to the client, at the request of the client, all the client papers and property [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700(D)(1)]. "Client papers and property" includes correspondence, pleadings, deposition transcripts, exhibits, physical evidence, expert's reports, and other items reasonably necessary to the client's representation, whether the client has paid for them or not [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700(D)(1)]. An attorney may not retain a client's papers or files to secure payment of fees or costs, even if the client has granted the lawyer a contractual lien on the papers [ Academy of Cal. Optometrists, Inc. v. Superior Court (1975) 51 CA3d 999, 1006, 124 CR 668 ]. An attorney is not prohibited from making, at the attorney's own expense, and retaining, copies of papers released to the client, nor is an attorney prohibited from making a claim for the recovery of the attorney's expense in any subsequent legal proceeding [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700, Discussion].

The requirement to return all papers and property arises when the attorney stops providing services to the client, prior to even forming the intent to withdraw as counsel [ Baker v. State Bar (1989) 49 C3d 804, 817 n5, 263 CR 798, 781 P2d 1344 ].

Exception--Protective Order or Non-Disclosure Agreement:

The obligation to return the client's property is subject to any protective order or non-disclosure agreement [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700(D)(1)].

Consider:

Only make copies of documents in the file you may need in the future. Documents to copy include any the attorney may need in a future fee dispute or malpractice action, documents that may be useful in future litigation with third parties, and documents containing attorney work product.

3.32[2] Attorney Must Refund Unearned Fees Paid in Advance. An attorney whose employment has terminated must promptly refund any part of a fee paid in advance that has not been earned [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700(D)(2)].

Exception--Retainer Fee:

A true retainer fee, which was paid solely for the purpose of ensuring the availability of the attorney for the matter, does not have to be refunded [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700(D)(2)].

3.33 Discharge of Attorney.

3.33[1] Client's Right to Discharge or Change Attorney Is Absolute. The client has the absolute power to discharge an attorney, with or without cause [ Santa Clara Counsel Attorneys Ass'n v. Woodside (1994) 7 C4th 525, 555, 28 CR2d 617, 869 P2d 1142 ]. The fact that the attorney has rendered valuable services, or that the client is indebted to the attorney for moneys advanced in the prosecution or defense of the action, does not deprive the client of this right [ Fracasse v. Brent (1972) 6 C3d 784, 790, 100 CR 385, 494 P2d 9 ].

3.33[2] Formal Substitution Required for Change in Attorney. Whenever an attorney has undertaken the representation of a client and filed a pleading, the execution and filing of a substitution of attorney is essential to an effective change in representation [ Kallen v. Delug (1984) 157 CA3d 940, 950, 203 CR 879 ]. Until the substitution is a matter of record, the successor attorney cannot act affirmatively to protect the client's interests and the original attorney retains the power to bind the client by his or her actions [ Kallen v. Delug (1984) 157 CA3d 940, 950, 203 CR 879 ].

Warning:

An attorney who refuses to execute a consent to a substitution of attorney breaches the ethical duty of fidelity to the client [ Kallen v. Delug (1984) 157 CA3d 940, 951, 203 CR 879 (attorney breached ethical duty when he used his refusal to execute a substitution of attorney as a device to protect his fees)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of substitution of attorneys, see 3.34.

3.33[3] Attorney's Duties on Discharge. The duties of an attorney who is discharged are the same as if the attorney had voluntarily withdrawn [ Kallen v. Delug (1984) 157 CA3d 940, 950, 203 CR 879 ]. Thus, an attorney must promptly release to the client, at the request of the client, all the client papers and property and promptly refund any part of a fee paid in advance that has not been earned [ Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-700(D) ].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of an attorney's duties on withdrawal, see 3.32.

3.33[4] Discharged Attorney Entitled to Recover Reasonable Value of Services Rendered Prior to Discharge.

An attorney discharged with or without cause is entitled to recover the reasonable value of his or her services rendered to the time of discharge [ Fracasse v. Brent (1972) 6 C3d 784, 790-792, 100 CR 385, 494 P2d 9 ].

3.34 Substitution of Attorneys.

3.34[1] Substitution May Be Made With Consent of Attorney and Client. The attorney in an action or special proceeding may be changed at any time before or after judgment or final determination on the consent of both client and attorney [CCP § 284(1)]. The consent must be filed with the clerk, or entered on the minutes [CCP § 284(1)].

Cross Reference:

Judicial Council Form MC-050 Substitution of Attorney, see 3.46.

3.34[2] Substitution May Be Made Without Consent of Attorney or Client Pursuant to Noticed Motion. If either the client or the attorney will not consent to a substitution or is unable to do so, the client or the attorney can obtain an order of substitution from the court after notice is given from one to the other [CCP § 284(2)].

Warning:

An attorney who refuses to execute a consent to a substitution of attorney breaches his or her ethical duty of fidelity to the client [ Kallen v. Delug (1984) 157 CA3d 940, 951, 203 CR 879 (attorney breaches ethical duty when using refusal to execute a substitution as a device to protect fees)].

Cross References:

Form of notice of motion to substitute attorneys, see 3.48.

Form of order granting motion to substitute, see 3.49.

3.34[3] Notice of Substitution Must Be Given to Adverse Party. When an attorney is changed pursuant to CCP § 284, written notice of the change and of the substitution of a new attorney, or of the appearance of the party in pro per, must be given to the adverse party [CCP § 285]. Until then the adverse party must recognize the former attorney [CCP § 285]. If the substitution was made by consent, Judicial Form MC-050 operates as the notice.

Warning:

If the client is one that cannot represent itself in court, such as a corporation, trustee or the other entities or party representatives listed on Judicial Council Form MC-050, the attorney cannot withdraw until the client has a new attorney to substitute in as counsel, except by noticed motion. This situation might arise if the client stops paying the attorney's fees.

 Cross References:

Judicial Council Form MC-050, see 3.47.

Form of notice if substitution is by court order, see 3.50.

3.34[4] Substitution of Attorneys on Appeal. The substitution of an attorney pending an appeal may be made by serving and filing in the reviewing court a substitution signed by the party represented and the new attorney [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 8.36(b) (appeal from superior court); Cal Rules Ct, Rule 8.768(b) (appeal in limited civil case to superior court appellate division)]. In all appeals and in original proceedings related to a superior court proceeding, the party must also serve the superior court [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 8.36(b)].

In the absence of a substitution, an attorney may request withdrawal by filing a motion to withdraw, and the motion need be served only on the party represented and the attorneys directly affected, unless the court orders otherwise [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 8.36(c)(1) (appeal from superior court); Cal Rules Ct, Rule 8.768(b) (appeal in limited civil case to superior court appellate division)]. If withdrawing in an appeal from superior court, proof of service of the motion need not include the address of the party represented; but if the motion is granted, the withdrawing attorney must promptly provide the court and the opposing party with the party's current or last known address and telephone number [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 8.36(c)(2)]. In all appeals and in original proceedings related to a superior court proceeding, the reviewing court clerk must notify the superior court of any ruling on the motion; and if the motion is filed in any proceeding pending in the Supreme Court after grant of review, the Supreme Court clerk must also notify the Court of Appeal of any ruling on the motion [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 8.36(c)(3), (4)]. If a notification of any withdrawal or substitution is made in an appeal to the superior court appellate division, substituted counsel also must give notice to all parties [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 8.768(b)].

Chapter 3 Beginning and Terminating the Attorney-Client Relationship
VI. DISQUALIFICATION OF OPPOSING COUNSEL FOR REPRESENTATION ADVERSE TO FORMER CLIENT OR TO PARTY OWED DUTY OF FIDELITY OR CONFIDENTIALITY

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 3.36

3.36 Disqualification of Opposing Counsel for Representation Adverse to Former Client.

3.36[1] Representation Adverse to Former Client Is Ethically Prohibited. An attorney may not do anything that would injuriously affect a former client in any matter in which the attorney formerly represented the client, nor may an attorney at any time use against a former client knowledge or information acquired by virtue of the previous relationship [ Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310; People ex rel. Deukmejian v. Brown (1981) 29 C3d 150, 155-156, 172 CR 478, 624 P2d 1206 ; City Nat'l Bank v. Adams (2002) 96 CA4th 315, 323-324, 117 CR2d 125 ].

3.36[2] Former Client Can Move to Disqualify Attorney for Adverse Party. A former client may seek to disqualify a former attorney from representing an adverse party by showing that the former attorney possesses confidential information adverse to the former client [ H.F. Ahmanson & Co. v. Salomon Bros. (1991) 229 CA3d 1445, 1452, 280 CR 614 ].

Warning:

A conflict of interest warranting disqualification can arise from a single preliminary consultation in which confidential information is disclosed even if actual employment of the attorney does not result [ People ex rel. Dep't of Corps. v. Speedee Oil Change Sys. (1999) 20 C4th 1135, 1147-1148, 86 CR2d 816, 980 P2d 371 ]. In such a case, the party seeking disqualification must show, directly or by reasonable inference, that the attorney acquired confidential information in the conversation [ Med-Trans Corp., Inc. v. City of California City (2007) 156 CA4th 655, 668, 68 CR3d 17 ].

Example:

City failed to establish that confidential information was imparted to the attorney in the prior meeting that was an initial consultation, and initial discussion never went beyond the preliminary stages, and no actual representation occurred for purposes of showing a conflict of interest, so that disqualification of attorney was error [ Med-Trans Corp., Inc. v. City of California City (2007) 156 CA4th 655, 668-669, 68 CR3d 17 ].

3.36[3] Possession of Confidential Information May Be Presumed Depending on Attorney's Relationship

With Former Client. To disqualify current counsel where the facts involve successive representation, there must be a "substantial relationship" between the subjects of the prior and current representations [ Flatt v. Superior Court (1994) 9 C4th 275, 283, 36 CR2d 537, 885 P2d 950 ; Jessen v. Hartford Cas., Ins. Co. (2003) 111 CA4th 698, 710 ]. The former client need not establish that the attorney actually possesses confidential information [ People ex rel. Deukmejian v. Brown (1981) 29 C3d 150, 156-157, 172 CR 478, 624 P2d 1206 ].

When ruling on a disqualification motion in a successive representation case, the court will first identify where the attorney's former representation placed the attorney with respect to the prior client [ Jessen v. Hartford Cas., Ins. Co. (2003) 111 CA4th 698, 710 ]:

- If the attorney's relationship was direct and personal--providing legal advice and services to the former client--then confidential information is conclusively presumed to have passed to the attorney, and disqualification will depend on the strength of the similarities between the legal problem involved in the former representation and the legal problem involved in the current representation [ Meza v. H. Muehlstein & Co., Inc. (2009) 176 CA4th 969, 977-978, 98 CR3d 422 ; Jessen v. Hartford Cas., Ins. Co. (2003) 111 CA4th 698, 710 ; H.F. Ahmanson & Co. v. Salomon Bros. (1991) 229 CA3d 1445, 1453-1455, 280 CR 614 ]. Information acquired during the first representation must be "material" to the second, in that it would materially advance the present client's position in the subsequent matter to use confidential information obtained in the prior representation [ Farris v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (2004) 119 CA4th 671, 680 ].

Example:

In addition to the attorney-client privilege, the substantial relationship test can be used to protect the work-product privilege. Thus, defendants who shared work product under the common interest doctrine had standing and grounds for disqualification of attorney for codefendant and plaintiffs' counsel's firm where the attorney became associate of plaintiffs' counsel's firm during the pendency of the action between the parties [ Meza v. H. Muehlstein & Co., Inc. (2009) 176 CA4th 969, 977-983, 98 CR3d 422 ] .

- If the attorney's relationship was not direct and personal, then the court must assess whether the attorney was positioned during the first representation so as to make it likely the attorney acquired confidential information relevant to the current representation, given the similarities or lack of similarities between the two [ Faughn v. Perez (2006) 145 CA4th 592, 605, 51 CR3d 692 ; Jessen v. Hartford Cas., Ins. Co. (2003) 111 CA4th 698, 711 ]. The possibility that counsel had access to confidential information of the former client may not be merely speculative [ Derivi Constr. & Architecture, Inc. v. Wong (2004) 118 CA4th 1268, 1273 ].

Accordingly, disqualification under Rule 3-310(E) is not warranted where the circumstances and issues involved in successive actions are totally unrelated [ Fremont Ind. Co. v. Fremont Gen. Corp. (2006) 143 CA4th 50, 69, 49 CR3d 82 ].

If the facts do show a substantial relationship, a firm-switching attorney then has the burden of proving that he or she had no exposure to confidential information relevant to the current action while he or she was a member of the former firm. That burden requires an affirmative showing and is not satisfied by a cursory denial [ Ochoa v. Fordel, Inc. (2007) 146 CA4th 898, 908-909, 53 CR3d 277 ].

Distinguish:

Without a second relationship, there is no violation of Rule 3-310(E) [ Oasis West Realty, LLC v. Goldman (2010) 182 CA4th 688, 698, 106 CR3d 539 ] .

► Cross References:

Discussion of the substantial relationship test, see 3.08[5][f].

Form of notice of motion to disqualify attorney, see 3.51.

Form of order granting motion to disqualify, see 3.52.

3.36[4] Moving Party Must Exercise Diligence. A party must exercise reasonable diligence when making a motion to disqualify [ Earl Scheib, Inc. v. Superior Court (1967) 253 CA2d 703, 709, 61 CR 386 ]. Disqualification is not automatic if the current client opposing disqualification of its counsel offers prima facie evidence of an unreasonable delay by the former client in making the motion and resulting prejudice to the current client [ River W., Inc. v. Nickel (1987) 188 CA3d 1297, 1309, 234 CR 33 ]. The burden then shifts back to the party seeking disqualification to justify the delay, who must address [ River W., Inc. v. Nickel (1987) 188 CA3d 1297, 1309, 234 CR 33 ]:

- How long it has known of the potential conflict.
- Whether it has been represented by counsel since it has known of the potential conflict.
- Whether anyone prevented the moving party from making the motion earlier, and if so, under what circumstances.
- Whether an earlier motion to disqualify would have been inappropriate or futile and why.

Prerequisite:

Delay and prejudice will not necessarily result in the denial of a disqualification motion; the delay and the ensuing prejudice must be extreme [ Gong v. RFG Oil, Inc. (2008) 166 CA4th 209, 217, 82 CR3d 416 ].

3.36[5] Disqualification Extends to Entire Firm, But Exceptions Exist for Public Law Offices. If the substantial relationship test is satisfied, disqualification will be ordered [ Rosenfeld Constr. Co. v. Superior Court (1991) 235 CA3d 566, 574, 286 CR 609 ]. Moreover, the disqualification will be extended vicariously to the attorney's entire firm [ City and County of San Francisco v. Cobra Solutions, Inc. (2006) 38 C4th 839, 854, 43 CR3d 771, 135 P3d 20 (city attorney's office); Meza v. H. Muehlstein & Co., Inc. (2009) 176 CA4th 969, 978, 98 CR3d 422 ; People ex rel. Dep't of Corps. v. Speedee Oil Change Sys. (1999) 20 C4th 1135, 1146, 86 CR2d 816, 980 P2d 371 ].

Exception:

While the Supreme Court has not clearly ruled that this is so, and the courts of appeal have not necessarily accepted it consistently, some courts of appeals view the rule of vicarious disqualification to be a rebuttable presumption [ Kirk v. First Am. Title Ins. Co. (2010) 183 CA4th 776, 792-800 (overruling trial court's determination of automatic disqualification)]. Specifically, the presumption of disqualification may be rebutted by showing that:

- The screen was timely imposed.
- The screen consists of preventive measures that guarantee that information will not be conveyed.

To establish the second element of a screen rebutting the presumption of vicarious disqualification, the screen must include [ Kirk v. First Am. Title Ins. Co. (2010) 183 CA4th 776, 810-811 (discussing first four elements)]:

- Physical, geographic, and departmental separation of attorneys.
- Prohibitions against and sanctions for discussing confidential matters.
- Rules and procedures preventing access to confidential information and files.
- Procedures preventing a disqualified attorney from sharing in the profits from the representation.
- Continuing education in professional responsibility.

In evaluating whether these properties of the screen meet the second element, the trial court must be satisfied that the tainted attorney has not had and will not have any improper communication with others at the firm concerning the litigation [ Kirk v. First Am. Title Ins. Co. (2010) 183 CA4th 776, 811 (ordering trial court to determine whether screen rebutted presumption)].

Exception:

California courts have generally declined to apply an automatic and inflexible rule of vicarious disqualification in the context of public law offices. Instead, in this context, courts have looked to whether a public law office has adequately protected, and will continue to adequately protect, a former client's confidences through timely, appropriate, and effective screening measures and/or structural safeguards [ In re Charlissee C. (2008) 45 C4th 145, 162, 84 CR3d 597, 194 P3d 330 ].

Example:

Ethical screening might suffice to shield a senior supervisory attorney with a personal conflict and thus avoid vicarious disqualification of the entire government legal unit under that attorney's supervision. In ruling on a disqualification motion involving this situation, a trial court should make a factual inquiry into [ In re Charlissee C. (2008) 45 C4th 145, 165, 84 CR3d 597, 194 P3d 330 ]:

- The supervisor's actual duties with respect to those attorneys who will be ethically screened.
- The supervisor's responsibility for setting policies that might bear on the subordinate attorney's handling of the litigation.
- Whether public awareness of the case, the conflicted attorney's role in the litigation, or any other circumstance is likely to cast doubt on the integrity of the governmental law office's continued participation in the matter.

3.36[6] Order Granting or Denying Motion to Disqualify Is Reviewable. An order granting or denying a motion to disqualify is reviewable by a petition for writ of mandate [ Rosenfeld Constr. Co. v. Superior Court (1991) 235 CA3d 566, 572, 286 CR 609 ] or by direct appeal [ Truck Ins. Exch. v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1992) 6 CA4th 1050, 1052 n1, 8 CR2d 228 (order is appealable as a final order on a collateral matter unrelated to the merits of the underlying litigation)]. If the issue of attorney disqualification is not raised until an appeal from a final judgment on the underlying action, the party raising the issue must show that the erroneous granting or denial of the motion to disqualify affected the outcome of the proceeding to the prejudice of the complaining party [ In re Sophia B. (1988) 203 CA3d 1436, 1439, 250 CR 802 ].

Strategic Point:

Because petitions for extraordinary writs are generally determined quicker than direct appeals, a petition for a writ of mandate, coupled with a request for an immediate stay of the underlying action, is preferable [ Reed v. Superior Court (2001) 92 CA4th 448, 455, 111 CR2d 842 ("specter of disqualification of counsel should not be allowed to hover over the proceedings for an extended period of time for an appeal")].

Chapter 3 Beginning and Terminating the Attorney-Client Relationship
VI. DISQUALIFICATION OF OPPOSING COUNSEL FOR REPRESENTATION ADVERSE TO FORMER CLIENT OR TO PARTY OWED DUTY OF FIDELITY OR CONFIDENTIALITY

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 3.36A

3.36A Disqualification Outside of Attorney-Client Relationship Under Court's Power to Control Court Officers.

3.36A[1] Court Has Inherent Power to Disqualify Attorney. A trial court may disqualify an adverse party's attorney under its the inherent power in the furtherance of justice to control the conduct of ministerial officers and other persons in pending judicial proceedings, as codified in CCP § 128(a)(5) [ Dino v. Pelayo (2006) 145 CA4th 347, 351, 51 CR3d 620 ; Oaks Management Corporation v. Superior Court (2006) 145 CA4th 453, 462, 51 CR3d 561 ]. A trial court's power within the context of an attorney-client relationship is codified as Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310 [see Oaks Management Corporation v. Superior Court (2006) 145 CA4th 453, 463-465, 51 CR3d 561 ].

Warning:

Amendments to the California Rules of Professional Conduct in 1988 may limit the effect of cases on the court's inherent power to disqualify an attorney outside an attorney-client relationship that were decided prior to those amendments [see Oaks Management Corporation v. Superior Court (2006) 145 CA4th 453, 465, 51 CR3d 561 ].

Distinguish:

Opposing counsel may not be disqualified for communicating with a pro se litigant who is working with an attorney who is not of record in the case, even if the nonrecord attorney has told opposing counsel of his limited participation in the case [ McMillan v. Shadow Ridge at Oak Park Homeowner's Assn. (2008) 165 CA4th 960, 965, 81 CR3d 550 ].

Cross Reference:

Disqualification of adverse counsel under Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310, see 3.36.

3.36A[2] Grounds for Disqualification Outside of Context of Attorney-Client Relationship.

3.36A[2][a] When Attorney Owes Duty of Fidelity. The power of the court to disqualify an adverse party extends to conflicts of interest arising from an attorney's relationship with a nonclient when the relationship creates an expectation that the attorney owes a duty of fidelity [ Oaks Management Corporation v. Superior Court (2006) 145

CA4th 453, 464, 51 CR3d 561 (no duty of fidelity); William H. Raley Co. v. Superior Court (1983) 149 CA3d 1042, 1047, 197 CR 232 (attorney had duty of fidelity)].

The court must weigh the combined effect of a party's right to counsel of choice, an attorney's interest in representing a client, the financial burden on a client of replacing disqualified counsel and any tactical abuse underlying a disqualification proceeding against the fundamental principle that the fair resolution of disputes within our adversary system requires vigorous representation of parties by independent counsel unencumbered by conflicts of interest [ McMillan v. Shadow Ridge at Oak Park Homeowner's Assn. (2008) 165 CA4th 960, 965, 81 CR3d 550 ; Oaks Management Corporation v. Superior Court (2006) 145 CA4th 453, 464, 51 CR3d 561 ].

3.36A[2][b] When Attorney Owes Duty of Confidentiality. Grounds for disqualifying the attorney of an adverse party may also arise where the attorney has acquired confidential information in the course of a relationship with a nonclient that will be, or may appear to the person or entity to be, useful in the attorney's representation in an action on behalf of a client [ Oaks Management Corporation v. Superior Court (2006) 145 CA4th 453, 464, 467, 51 CR3d 561 (no violation of confidentiality); Gregori v. Bank of America (1989) 207 CA3d 291, 300, 308-309, 254 CR 853 ].

Under California law, a confidential relationship "is not created simply by the receipt of confidential information. Instead, its creation generally hinges on " 'an unequal relationship between parties in which one surrenders to the other some degree of control because of the trust and confidence which he reposes in the other' " [ Dino v. Pelayo (2006) 145 CA4th 347, 356, 51 CR3d 620 ].

Example:

A lawyer may be disqualified under CCP § 128(a)(5) after improper contacts with an opposing party's expert witness [ County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1990) 222 CA3d 647, 658, 271 CR 698 ]. However, the rebuttable presumption that the moving party's attorney disclosed confidential work-product materials to an expert later hired by the adversary's attorney does not apply when the expert remains a consultant to the moving party's counsel [ Shandralina G. v. Homonchuk (2007) 147 CA4th 395, 410, 54 CR3d 207 ].

Distinguish:

The decision of two adverse parties, as evidenced by their written waiver, to maintain common representation by an attorney with whom the party seeking disqualification of the adverse parties' attorney had never had a confidential relationship was not grounds for disqualifying the attorney under CCP § 128(a)(5) [ Dino v. Pelayo (2006) 145 CA4th 347, 357, 51 CR3d 620 ].

The disqualification of an adverse party's attorney whose spouse was a member of the board of directors of the foundation that ran a hospital corporation seeking the attorney's disqualification was improper under CCP § 128(a)(5), because there was no confidential relationship between the attorney and the corporation, so that the corporation had no standing [ DCH Health Services Corp. v. Waite (2002) 95 CA4th 829, 115 CR2d 847 ].

 Cross Reference:

Disqualification as a result of use of inadvertently disclosed evidence or work product, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Civil Discovery, Ch. 2, Scope of Discovery.

3.36A[3] Disqualification Extends to Entire Firm. If the court finds grounds to disqualify the attorney of an adverse party outside an attorney-client relationship, the disqualification generally extends to the attorney's entire firm [ William H. Raley Co. v. Superior Court (1983) 149 CA3d 1042, 1048-1049, 197 CR 232 ].

3.37 Written Informed Consent by Former Client to Adverse Representation by Former Attorney.

_____ [Name of former client], former client of _____ [name of attorney], Attorney, gives his/her informed consent to Attorney for Attorney to _____ [specify action to be taken by attorney that is potentially adverse to former client, e.g., represent _____'s [name of former client] wife in a dissolution action against _____ [name of former client]. Attorney has fully informed _____ [name of former client] of the potentially adverse nature of such representation because of the potential for the disclosure of confidential information concerning _____ [name of former client], which was obtained by Attorney while Attorney represented _____ [name of former client] and _____ [name of any other parties represented with former client], in that Attorney had access to information of a confidential nature by virtue of such representation.

_____ [Name of former client] acknowledges that he/she has read the foregoing consent carefully, that he/she fully understands that the contemplated representation of _____ [specify party to be represented by attorney] by Attorney is potentially adverse to _____ [name of former client] for the foregoing reasons, and _____ [name of former client] nevertheless knowingly and voluntarily consents to such representation by Attorney.

VII. FORMS

A. Identifying and Disclosing Conflicts of Interest

1-3 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 3.38

3.38 Disclosure and Consent to Joint Representation of Defendants.

Re: _____[identify lawsuit]

Dear _____[names of all clients]: You have asked our firm to represent each of you in the lawsuit referenced above. Because we will be representing all of you in this matter, the California Rules of Professional Conduct require that we make certain disclosures to you and obtain your informed written consent to our representation of all of you together.

Absence of Conflicts of Interest. At this stage, it does not appear that there is a conflict of interest that would prevent us from representing you. Each of you shares the same defenses to the claims which have been alleged by the plaintiffs. Nevertheless, it is possible that a conflict of interest could arise in the future which would require us to withdraw.

Request for Common Instructions. One way in which a conflict of interest could occur is if we receive conflicting instructions from you. For example, if one of you instructs us to take certain actions on your behalf which another of you instructs us not to take, we would be placed in a position where we could not follow one of the instructions without violating the other. That situation, if unresolved, could create a conflict of interest that would require each of you to seek new attorneys. It is therefore important that we receive a common set of instructions from you that we can follow so that a conflict of interest does not arise that would require our withdrawal.

Pursuit of Common Objectives. Another way in which a conflict could arise is if in the course of litigation, you develop inconsistent defenses or objectives. For example, if one of you wants us to pursue a defense that could adversely affect the defenses of the rest, a conflict of interest would exist that could require us to withdraw as your counsel. It will therefore be important during the course of our engagement to make sure that we are pursuing common objectives and defenses for all of you so that we will not be required to withdraw later. At the same time, if any of you determine that pursuing a common objective is not in your best interests, we may be required to withdraw from representing you.

Indemnification Rights. You should be aware that each of you may have indemnification rights against the others. Because we are representing your common interest in this lawsuit, we cannot represent or advise you with respect to those claims. We strongly urge you to consult separate counsel with respect to any such claims. To the extent that you choose to assert claims against each other in this lawsuit, we again, may be required to withdraw.

Preventing Potential Conflicts From Becoming Real. At present it does not appear that any of these conflict of interest situations exist. Nevertheless, we cannot rule out the possibility that these conflicts could arise during the course of the representation. Since changing counsel in the midst of litigation can be expensive and detrimental to your interests, it is important that you are comfortable with us representing all of you together in light of these potential conflicts of interest. In addition, we will need you to work with us through the course of the litigation to keep these potential conflicts from becoming real.

Disclosure of Information to All Clients. In addition, because we represent all of you together, each of you has a right to learn the substance of the communications that we have with the rest of you. In other words, if one of you tells us something, that information may be disclosed to the rest of you. Although the attorney-client privilege will bar disclosure of our conversations with any of you to the outside world, the privilege does not bar disclosure to the rest of you of what any one of you tells us. Indeed, if the information is significant, we may have a duty to disclose information from or about one of you to the rest of you.

Comfort Zone. Here again, it is extremely important that you are comfortable with this arrangement. If each of you were separately represented, your lawyers would not be required to disclose your communications with them to the rest of you. Each of you needs to consider whether you will be as candid with us as you would be with a lawyer representing your interests alone. If you believe that you would not be comfortable with this arrangement or that there would be information that you would be unwilling to disclose to us, because you would not want to disclose to the others, you should obtain your own separate counsel.

Access to Case File. As you know, during the course of this lawsuit, we will be maintaining a file which will contain original correspondence, evidence, pleadings and other documentation. In the event we are required to withdraw from representing all of you, we will retain the original file until we receive a common set of instructions to transmit the file somewhere else. At your request, we will provide you or your new counsel with a copy of the file.

Costs and Attorneys Fees. As you know, _____[name of paying client] has agreed to pay our attorneys' fees and costs incurred in defending the rest of you in this action. The California Rules of Professional Conduct require us to obtain consent from the rest of you to this arrangement. The Rules are intended to allow the rest of you to consider whether the fact that _____[name of paying client] is paying our fees will interfere with our ability to represent the rest of you with the same degree of loyalty and independent judgment that you would expect from a lawyer you were paying. In other words, the rest of you should consider whether we would tend to favor the interests of _____[name of paying client] because _____[name of paying client] is paying our fees in this matter. While this risk exists, it is our intention to represent all of you without regard to which of you is paying our fees. Nevertheless, each of you must be comfortable with this arrangement.

Questions. Please forgive the relative length and formality of this letter. However, we want to be certain that you are fully informed about these important issues and that you are comfortable proceeding with our representation of all of you. Please do not hesitate to call if you have any questions about this letter. In addition, if you are having any trouble understanding the nature of the disclosures in this letter, you may want to consult with a separate lawyer.

Informed Consent. Once you had an opportunity to review this letter, kindly sign and date the enclosed copy of this letter where indicated below, and return the signed copy to me in the enclosed self-addressed and stamped envelope. By signing this letter, you are agreeing to our representing all of you jointly in light of the disclosures above.

Thanks for your cooperation in connection with this matter.

SUPPORTING DECLARATION OF _____ [name]

I, _____ [name], declare:

1. I am [identify declarant, e.g., an attorney at law duly admitted to practice before all the courts of the State of California and the attorney of record herein for Plaintiff John Smith in the action described above].

2. On or about _____ [date], I was retained by _____ [specify party, e.g., Plaintiff John Smith] to represent him/her in this _____ [action or proceeding] and I agreed to do so.

[Set forth evidentiary facts within declarant's personal knowledge that establish the grounds set forth in the notice of motion, such as the following:]

3. By letter dated _____, a copy of which is attached as Exhibit A and made a part hereof, I notified _____ [name of original attorney of record, e.g., Tom Doe] of my employment by _____ [specify party, e.g., Plaintiff John Smith] and of _____ [specify party, e.g., Plaintiff John Smith's] wish to replace him/her with me as _____ [specify party, e.g., Plaintiff John Smith's] attorney of record. I enclosed a Substitution of Attorneys form that had been signed by the _____ [specify party, e.g., plaintiff] with the request that _____ [name of original attorney of record, e.g., Tom Doe] sign and return it in the stamped, self-addressed return envelope that I also enclosed. I requested in the letter that _____ [name of original attorney of record, e.g., Tom Doe] forward to me any papers or records in his/her possession belonging to _____ [specify party, e.g., plaintiff] or related to this case. _____ [Name of original attorney of record, e.g., Tom Doe] failed to return the form, to forward the papers and records in his/her possession, or to otherwise reply to my letter.

4. Over the next several weeks, I phoned _____ [identify original attorney of record, e.g., Tom Doe's] office numerous times, but was unable to reach him/her. On each occasion, I left my name and phone number with _____ [identify original attorney of record, e.g., Tom Doe's] _____ [assistant or answering service or other] with a request that _____ [name of original attorney of record, e.g., Tom Doe] return my call. He/She failed to do so.

SUPPORTING DECLARATION OF _____ [name of party]

I, _____ [name], declare:

1. I am the _____ [specify party, e.g., plaintiff] in this _____ [action or proceeding] and the moving party herein.

[Set forth evidentiary facts within declarant's personal knowledge that establish the grounds set forth in the notice of motion, e.g.:]

2. I originally employed _____ [name of original attorney of record, e.g., Tom Doe] as my attorney to represent me in this matter.

3. On or about _____ [date], I retained _____ [name of new attorney, e.g., Ann Carter] to represent me in the place of _____ [name of original attorney of record, e.g., Tom Doe].

4. By letter dated _____ [date], a copy of which is attached as Exhibit B and made a part hereof, I discharged _____ [name of original attorney of record, e.g., Tom Doe], as my attorney in this case and requested that he/she send all papers and records in his/her possession relating to this case to _____ [name of new attorney, e.g., Ann Carter].

5. I wish to remove _____ [name of original attorney of record, e.g., Tom Doe] and to substitute _____ [name of new attorney, e.g., Ann Carter] as my attorney of record in this _____ [action or proceeding].

Chapter 4 Limitation of Actions
I. STRATEGY

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.02

4.02 Objective and Strategy.

A defendant may raise the statute of limitations as a defense to bar a plaintiff's action as untimely. Statutes of limitations prevent the need to defend stale claims and require plaintiffs to pursue their claims in a timely manner. Statutes of limitations are intended to promote justice by preventing [ Gutierrez v. Mofid (1985) 39 C3d 892, 898, 218 CR 313, 705 P2d 886 ]:

- Revival of claims that were not diligently brought by plaintiffs, and
- Revival of claims for which evidence has been lost, memories have faded, and witnesses have disappeared.

Distinguish:

A statute of repose limits the time within which an action may be brought and is not related to accrual. A statute of repose is a bar on all suits brought after a specified period [ Giest v. Sequoia Ventures, Inc. (2000) 83 CA4th 300, 305-306, 99 CR2d 476 ].

Exception:

The statutes of limitations set forth in the Code of Civil Procedure do not apply to administrative proceedings [ Coachella Valley Mosquito & Vector Control Dist. v. California Pub. Employment Relations Bd. (2005) 35 C4th 1072, 1088, 112 P3d 623 ].

II. DETERMINING APPLICABLE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.03

4.03 CHECKLIST: Determining Applicable Statute of Limitations.

- ☐ Determine nature of cause of action.
  - ☐ Consider main issue underlying action.
  - ☐ Ignore caption and form of relief requested.

Discussion:

See 4.04

- ☐ Consult statutes to determine which limitation period applies to action.

Discussion:

See 4.05

- ☐ If no statute of limitations is provided, apply four-year period.

Authority:

CCP § 343

Discussion:

See 4.06

- ☐ Consider contract to stipulate choice of law if applicable statute of limitations is not beneficial.

Discussion:

See 4.10[3]

- ☐ Determine if California's borrowing statute bars action arising in another state or foreign country.

Chapter 4 Limitation of Actions
II. DETERMINING APPLICABLE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.04

4.04 Gravamen of Action Determines Applicable Limitation Period.

The gravamen of the cause of action or the nature of the right sued upon determines the statute of limitation period [ Day v. Greene (1963) 59 C2d 404, 411, 29 CR 785, 380 P2d 385 ; Marin Healthcare Dist. v. Sutter Health (2002) 103 CA4th 861, 874, 127 CR2d 113 ]. For limitations purposes, courts will look to the primary interest invaded by defendant's wrongful conduct [ Marin Healthcare Dist. v. Sutter Health (2002) 103 CA4th 861, 875, 127 CR2d 113 ].

Warning--Plaintiff:

The form of relief that plaintiff demands does not determine the applicable statute of limitations [ Day v. Greene (1963) 59 C2d 404, 411, 29 CR 785, 380 P2d 385 ; Marin Healthcare Dist. v. Sutter Health (2002) 103 CA4th 861, 875, 127 CR2d 113 ]. In addition, neither the caption nor the form of the complaint is conclusive in determining the nature of the cause of action [ Parker v. Walker (1992) 5 CA4th 1173, 1189, 6 CR2d 908 ; Agair, Inc. v. Shaeffer (1965) 232 CA2d 513, 516, 42 CR 883 ].

Chapter 4 Limitation of Actions
II. DETERMINING APPLICABLE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.05

4.05 Types of Actions.

4.05[1] Contract. A four-year statute of limitations applies to an action, on or for rescission of, a written contract [CCP § 337(1), (3)].

Trap:

The failure to observe a contractual limitation on the time in which to make a demand for arbitration under a mandatory arbitration clause may waive the right to arbitration and the claim as a whole [see Pearson Dental Supplies, Inc. v. Superior Court (2008) 166 CA4th 71, 86-87, 82 CR3d 154 (not citable--superseded by grant of review 2008 Cal. LEXIS 13526 ) (demand for arbitration made after expiration of one-year contractual limitation was untimely)]. Check the contract for a mandatory arbitration clause and, if it contains one, a limitation on the time in which to make a demand for arbitration. Take necessary steps to demand arbitration within the limitation period.

Cross Reference:

Contractual time limits on demanding arbitration under mandatory arbitration clause, see Ch. 6, Determining Forum, 6.11[2].

A two-year statute of limitations applies to an action, on or for rescission of, an oral contract [CCP § 339(1), (3)].

Distinguish:

A contract may be "in writing" for purposes of the statute of limitations even though it was accepted orally or by an act other than signing [ Pietrobon v. Libarle (2006) 137 CA4th 992, 997, 40 CR3d 718 ].

An action for breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing sounds in both tort and contract and is subject to the contract limitation period if plaintiff is pursuing the contract theory [see Krieger v. Nick Alexander Imports, Inc. (1991) 234 CA3d 205, 220-221, 285 CR 717 (CCP § 337(1) applies to written contract rather than tort or oral contract periods)].

An action for negligent performance of an implied obligation based on contract is also subject to the contract limitation period [see Bruckman v. Parliament Escrow Corp. (1987) 190 CA3d 1051, 1057-1058, 235 CR 813 (CCP § 337(1) applies to written contract rather than period applicable to fraud, mistake, oral contract, or negligence)].

A two-year statute of limitations applies to an action in quantum meruit [CCP § 339; Iverson, Yoakum, Papiano & Hatch v. Berwald (1999) 76 CA4th 990, 996, 90 CR2d 665 ].

Cross Reference:

See California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 345, Appendix: Table of Limitation Periods (Matthew Bender).

4.05[2] Personal Injury or Wrongful Death. A two-year statute of limitations applies to an action for personal injury caused by wrongful act or neglect [CCP § 335.1].

A two-year statute of limitations applies to an action for death of person caused by wrongful act or neglect of another [CCP § 335.1].

The phrase "injury to, or for the death of, an individual caused by the wrongful act or neglect of another" is to be interpreted as embracing all infringements of personal rights, including malicious prosecution [ Stavropoulos v. Superior Court (2006) 141 CA4th 190, 197, 45 CR3d 705 ].

Exceptions:

Exceptions to the general two-year rule include:

- Intentional infliction of emotional distress--one year [CCP § 340; Magpali v. Farmers Group, Inc. (1996) 48 CA4th 471, 485, 55 CR2d 225 ].
- Domestic violence--three years from last act or discovery [CCP § 340.15].
- Childhood sexual abuse--the later of eight years from the date plaintiff attained the age of majority or three years from the date plaintiff discovered or reasonably should have discovered that the injury was caused by sexual abuse [CCP § 340.1].
- Asbestos injury or wrongful death--one year, but have special provisions for delayed discovery [CCP § 340.2]. Toxic injury or wrongful death cases are two years, but have special provisions for delayed discovery [CCP § 340.8].
- Minor's injuries sustained before or during birth--six years from the date of birth [CCP § 340.4].
- Professional negligence of a healthcare provider--the earlier of three years after the date of injury or one year after plaintiff discovers, or through the use of reasonable diligence should have discovered, the injury [CCP § 340.5].

Cross Reference:

See California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 345, Appendix: Table of Limitation Periods (Matthew Bender).

4.05[3] Negligence Other Than Personal Injury. A three-year statute of limitations applies to an action for negligent property damage [CCP § 338(c)].

For an action against an accountant for malpractice, an action must be brought within two years after plaintiff discovers, or should have discovered, loss or damage, plus actual injury [CCP § 339(1); International Engine Parts, Inc. v. Feddersen & Co. (1995) 9 C4th 606, 608-609, 613, 38 CR2d 150, 888 P2d 1279 ; Apple Valley Unified Sch. Dist. v. Vavrinek, Trine, Day & Co. (2002) 98 CA4th 934, 942, 120 CR2d 629 ].

For an action against an attorney based on professional errors and omissions, an action must be brought within one year after plaintiff discovers, or should have discovered, facts constituting wrongful act or omission, or four years after the error or omission, subject to suspension of the period for certain causes [CCP § 340.6(a)].

 Cross Reference:

See California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 345, Appendix: Table of Limitation Periods (Matthew Bender).

4.05[4] Real Property. For an action to quiet title based on entry on real property, an action must be brought within one year after entry and five years after accrual of the right to enter [CCP § 320].

For an action to recover real property or possession of real property, an action must be brought within five years of the other party's adverse possession of property [CCP § 321].

A five-year statute of limitations applies to an action in ejectment against a tenant [CCP § 326].

 Cross Reference:

See California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 345, Appendix: Table of Limitation Periods (Matthew Bender).

4.05[5] Actions Based on Liability Created by Statute. A three-year statute of limitations applies to an action based on a liability created by statute, other than a penalty or forfeiture [CCP § 338(a)].

A one-year statute of limitations applies to an action on a statute for a penalty or forfeiture, unless the statute imposing it prescribes a different limitation [CCP § 340(a)].

A three-year statute of limitations applies to an action for actual damages [CCP § 338(a)], and a one-year statute of limitations for an action for treble damages [CCP § 340(a)].

 Cross Reference:

See California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 345, Appendix: Table of Limitation Periods (Matthew Bender).

4.05[6] Insurance Claims. A one-year limitation period applies to insurance claims [Ins Code § 2071; Vu v. Prudential Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co. (2001) 26 C4th 1142, 1148, 113 CR2d 70, 33 P3d 487 ].

4.05[7] Other Types of Actions. Many types of actions have specific statutory limitation periods, such as actions for foreclosure of street improvements, actions for mesne profits on real property, actions to recover damages from latent deficiencies in planning or construction or improvement to real property; therefore, a careful check of all limitations statutes is warranted [see CCP §§ 315-366.3].

4.07[1] Notice to Insurer Is Required.

4.07[1][a] Form and Manner of Notice Varies Among Policies. Almost all insurance policies require that the insured give prompt notice of the claim. Depending on the terms of the policy, acceptable notice may be either written or oral; it may be given either to the agent or to the insurance company or its claims department; and it may be received either from the insured or directly from the claimant [10 CCR § 2695.2(o) ("notice of claim" defined); but see California Shoppers, Inc. v. Royal Globe Ins. Co. (1985) 175 CA3d 1, 58, 221 CR 171 (constructive notice insufficient)]. Large commercial policies may have very specialized reporting requirements.

4.07[1][b] Notice Prejudice Rule May Save Defective Compliance. Under California's "notice prejudice" rule, an insured's defective compliance with notice requirements will not bar recovery unless the insurer has been substantially prejudiced [ Campbell v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1963) 60 C2d 303, 306, 32 CR 827, 384 P2d 155 (no prejudice because police report clearly revealed insured's liability for auto accident)].

4.07[2] Contractual Limitation Period May Control. Many policies state a time limit, distinct from the notice requirement, for filing an action against the insurer. The law requires that insurers advise insureds of applicable claim time limits [10 CCR § 2695.1]. Policy-based contractual limitations operate as statutes of limitations [see, e.g., Ins Code § 2071 (fire insurance policies must require loss actions against insured commence within 12 months of inception of loss)].

4.08 Prerequisite Procedures Affecting Limitations on Claims Against Decedents.

4.08[1] Time for Filing Claims Against Probate Estates Runs From Personal Representative's Notice.

Decedent's representative must give notice of estate administration under Prob Code §§ 9050-9054 by both publication of notice to all creditors and personal notice to known and reasonably ascertainable creditors. Notice to creditors must be given within the later of [Prob Code § 9051]:

- Four months after letters are first issued to a general personal representative; or
- 30 days after the personal representative first has knowledge of the creditor.

Nevertheless, a creditor may file a claim without receiving notice, and the personal representative is excused from giving notice to a creditor whose demand for payment is treated as a claim under Prob Code § 9054.

4.08[2] Claims Must Be Filed Within Claim-Filing Time Period. Following proper notice, claims must be filed within the later of [Prob Code § 9100(a)]:

- Four months after letters are first issued to a general personal representative; or
- 60 days after the date notice of administration is mailed or personally delivered to the creditor.

Creditors may petition to file late claims and may file amended or revised claims [Prob Code §§ 9103, 9104]. However, a personal representative may not allow, and the court may not approve, a claim barred by a statute of limitations [Prob Code §§ 9103(f), 9104(c)(2), 9253].

4.08[3] Manner of Filing Claims. Claims must be filed with the court, and a copy must be served on the personal representative or other duly appointed person [Prob Code § 9150(b), (c)]. Failure to properly file and serve a claim will cause it to be invalid [Prob Code § 9150(d)].

4.08[4] Proper Claim Filing Tolls Limitation Period. The filing of a claim or a petition under Prob Code § 9103 tolls the statute of limitations otherwise applicable to the claim until allowance, approval, or rejection [Prob Code § 9352(a)].

The uniform one-year statute of limitations in CCP § 366.2 applies to actions on all claims against a decedent that survive the decedent's death. However, this limitation period is tolled by [ Levine v. Levine (2002) 102 CA4th 1256, 1261, 126 CR2d 255 ]:

- The timely filing of a creditor's claim,
- The filing of a petition for payment of debts, claims, or expenses, or
- A proceeding to construe a no contest provision judicially.

Chapter 4 Limitation of Actions
II. DETERMINING APPLICABLE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.09

4.09 Prerequisite Procedures Affecting Limitations on Claims Against Public Entities.

4.09[1] Most Cases Against Public Entities Require a Prerequisite Presentation of the Claim. In the vast majority of actions--both tort and contract--against the State of California or other public entities in the state, it is necessary to file statutorily governed claims prior to filing suit. The California Tort Claims Act is set forth in Gov Code § 810 et seq.; general provisions governing claims are set forth in Gov Code § 900 et seq.; the presentation and consideration of claims against public entities and public employees are governed by Gov Code § 910 et seq.

Subject to several exceptions (such as claims for childhood sexual abuse under CCP § 340.1 arising out of conduct occurring on or after January 1, 2009, mechanics' and materialmen's liens, workers' compensation, public-employee wage claims, and public assistance claims), all claims for money or damages against local public entities must be presented in accordance with the requirements of Gov Code §§ 900-915.4 [Gov Code § 905].

Trap:

Gov Code §§ 930.2, 930.4, 930.6 allow local entities to develop their own claims procedures for contractual disputes as an alternative to the Gov Code § 910, statutory claim requirements. Local alternative procedures in a contract are exclusively controlling, in that a statutory claim presentation is not necessary, except these alternative claims procedures must conform to statutory claims procedures in three--and only three--particulars [ Arntz Builders v. City of Berkeley (2008) 166 CA4th 276, 288, 82 CR3d 605 ]:

- Time for filing suit on a claim,
- Limitations on the scope of a claim that can be sued upon, and
- Access to late claim procedures in certain circumstances.

After determining that a claim against a local entity is subject to Gov. Code § 910, check the contract language for local contractual alternative claim procedures.

Trap:

Due diligence does not end with a determination that a claim against a local governmental entity is not subject to Gov Code § 910. Local ordinances may also establish a presentment requirement that applies to specific types of claims not subject to § 910 [see, e.g., Los Angeles County Code § 4.04.010]. Counsel must therefore always check local ordinances for presentment requirements applicable to any claim against local public entities not subject to Gov Code § 910.

Distinguish:

In a class action, the requirement in Gov Code § 910 that a "claimant" must present claims to local governmental entities refers to the class itself rather than to each individual class member [ County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (2008) 159 CA4th 353, 362, 71 CR3d 485, overruled in part, Ardon v. City of Los Angeles (2009) 2009 Cal. App. LEXIS 860 ].

Exception:

The presentment requirement does not apply to claims against a public entity under federal law [ State of California v. Superior Court (2004) 32 C4th 1234, 1240, 90 P3d 116 ].

Warning:

Failure to allege facts in the complaint that demonstrate or excuse compliance with the claim presentation requirement subjects a claim against a public entity to a demurrer for failure to state a cause of action under CCP § 340.10[e] [ State of California v. Superior Court (2004) 32 C4th 1234, 1242-1243 ].

4.09[2] Time Limitations for Claim Filing Depends on Type of Claim.

4.09[2][a] Six Months for Tort Claims. Claims for death or injury to person, or to personal property or growing crops, must be presented within six months after accrual, including the following claims [Gov Code § 911.2(a)]:

- Negligence, negligence per se, intentional infliction of emotional distress, and violation of Gov Code § 845.6;
- False arrest and false imprisonment [ Ridley v. City etc. of San Francisco (1969) 272 CA2d 290, 292, 77 CR 199 ];
- Malicious prosecution and tortious interference with contract [ Meester v. Davies (1970) 11 CA3d 342, 345-348, 89 CR 711 ];
- Defamation [ Miller v. Hoagland (1966) 247 CA2d 57, 61, 55 CR 311 ]; and
- Breach of warranty or strict liability theory for personal injury or property damages [ Voth v. Wasco Public Util. Dist. (1976) 56 CA3d 353, 359, 128 CR 608 (dictum)].

4.09[2][b] One Year for Contract and Real Property Claims. Claims arising out of contract and claims for injuries to real property, such as a claim for damages to growing crops based on breach of promise of fitness of water implied from written lease, must be filed within one year of accrual [Gov Code § 911.2(a); see Voth v. Wasco Public Util. Dist. (1976) 56 CA3d 353, 356, 128 CR 608 ].

4.09[2][c] Nature of Right Sued on Determines Type of Claim. An action for breach of promise is contractual; an action for breach of duty is a tort action. If both types of harm are implicated, the type of claim depends on the "quintessence of the action" [ Voth v. Wasco Public Util. Dist. (1976) 56 CA3d 353, 356, 128 CR 608 ].

4.09[2][d] Payment or Obtaining Waiver of Filing Fee Necessary to Meeting Statute of Limitations. A claimant against the state must pay the requisite filing fee or obtain a waiver of payment of the fee [see CCP § 905.2(c)] within the statutory time frame in order for his or her presentment of the claim to be considered to have been timely filed [CCP § 911.2(b)].

Chapter 4 Limitation of Actions
II. DETERMINING APPLICABLE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.10

4.10 Choice-of-Law Factors Determine Applicable Limitation Period.

4.10[1] Court Conducts Governmental Interest Analysis. California has replaced the doctrine of the law of the forum state with a governmental interest analysis for choice of law determinations [ Reich v. Purcell (1967) 67 C2d 551, 554, 63 CR 31, 432 P2d 727] . Under the governmental interest analysis, the court [ McCann v. Foster Wheeler LLC (2010) 48 C4th 68, 87-88, 105 CA3d 378, 225 P3d 516 ; Kearney v. Salomon Smith Barney, Inc. (2006) 39 C4th 95, 107-108, 45 CR 3d 730, 137 P3d 914] .

- Determines whether the relevant law of each of the potentially affected jurisdictions with regard to the particular issue in question is the same or different.
- If there is a difference, examines each jurisdiction's interest in the application of its own law under the circumstances of the particular case to determine whether a true conflict exists.

Distinguish:

On the one hand, a true conflict exists if both California and a foreign state have a strong interest in applying their respective laws. On the other hand, a false conflict exists if only one of two involved states has an interest in having its law applied. The court will apply the law of the interested state [ Hambrech & Quist Venture Partners v. American Med. Int'l, Inc. (1995) 38 CA4th 1532, 1543, 46 CR2d 33] .

- If there is a true conflict, carefully evaluates and compares the nature and strength of the interest of each jurisdiction in the application of its own law to determine which state's interest would be more impaired if its policy were subordinated to the policy of the other state, and then ultimately applies the law of the state whose interest would be more impaired if its law were not applied.

4.10[2] Borrowing Statute May Bar Action Arising in Another State or Country. To limit forum shopping by plaintiffs, California has adopted a "borrowing statute." The borrowing statute provides that when a cause of action has arisen in another state or country, and by the laws of that other jurisdiction an action could not be maintained thereon by reason of lapse of time, the cause of action cannot be brought in California even if the California statute of limitations has not run [CCP § 361; McCann v. Foster Wheeler LLC (2010) 48 C4th 68, 83-84, 105 CA3d 378, 225 P3d 516 ;

Delfosse v. C.A.C.I., Inc.-Federal (1990) 218 CA3d 683, 691] .

Warning:

Cases involving delayed onset of disease or other harm in personal injury cases present more difficult questions of the applicability of CCP § 361 with respect to which state the cause of action "has arisen in" [see McCann v. Foster Wheeler LLC (2010) 48 C4th 68, 85-87, 105 CA3d 378, 225 P3d 516 (court suggested, but did not rule that mesothelioma appeared while plaintiff resided in California 50 years after exposure to asbestos in another state)].

Prerequisites:

CCP § 361 applies only to causes of action barred by the law of the state of creation, but not by California law [ Biewend v. Biewend (1941) 17 C2d 108, 115, 109 P2d 701 ] . The "borrowing statute" does not apply to a plaintiff who became a citizen of California after the cause of action accrued but before the lawsuit in question was filed [ McCann v. Foster Wheeler LLC (2010) 48 C4th 68, 85, 105 CA3d 378, 225 P3d 516 ] .

Distinguish:

In cases in which CCP § 361 does not require the application of the other state's limitation, it does not compel application of the California statute of limitations without consideration of California's generally applicable choice-of-law principles [ McCann v. Foster Wheeler LLC (2010) 48 C4th 68, 87, 105 CA3d 378, 225 P3d 516 ] .

Cross Reference:

Discussion of California's choice-of-law principles, see 4.10[1].

4.10[3] Contractual Choice-of-Law Clause Incorporates Statute of Limitations From Chosen State. A choice-of-law provision providing that a contract will be governed by the law of a particular jurisdiction incorporates that state's statute of limitations [ Taylor v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2000) 78 CA4th 472, 487, 92 CR2d 873 (citing Hambrech & Quist Venture Partners v. American Med. Int'l, Inc. (1995) 38 CA4th 1532, 1536, 1538-1544, 46 CR2d 33 )].

Example--Borrowing Statute:

A contractual choice-of-law clause that does not refer to nor attempt to distinguish or exclude the chosen state's substantive laws from its procedural provisions renders that state's borrowing statute applicable so the complaint filing must satisfy both the statute of limitations of the state whose law was chosen by contract, as well as the statute of limitations that is "borrowed" under that state's borrowing statute [ Hughes Elec. Corp. v. Citibank Del. (2004) 120 CA4th 251, 259 ].

For a contractual choice-of-law provision to be enforceable [ Nedlloyd Lines B.V. v. Superior Court (1992) 3 C4th 459, 466, 11 CR2d 330, 834 P2d 1148 ; Hughes Elecs. Corp. v. Citibank Del. (2004) 120 CA4th 251, 258 ]:

- The chosen state must have a substantial relationship to the parties; or
- There must be any other reasonable basis for the parties' choice; and
- The chosen state's law may not fundamentally conflict with a policy of California.

If there is a fundamental conflict, the choice-of-law provision will not be enforced if California has a materially greater interest than the chosen state in the determination of the issue.

II. DETERMINING APPLICABLE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.11

4.11 Choice Between Two Applicable Statutes Is Needed.

4.11[1] More Specific Statute of Limitations Applies. When two statutes of limitations may apply to a cause of action and one is general and the other is specific, the specific limitation period applies [ Collection Bureau of San Jose v. Rumsey (2000) 24 C4th 301, 310-311, 99 CR2d 792, 6 P3d 713 ; see Levine v. Levine (2002) 102 CA4th 1256, 1264, 126 CR2d 255 ].

Example:

In a quasi-contract action based on mistake, the three-year limitation period under CCP § 338(d) applied because it pertains to quasi-contract actions that seek recovery of money obtained by fraud or mistake. The two-year statute of limitations under CCP § 339 did not apply because it pertains generally to quasi-contract actions based on contract, obligation, or liability not founded on a written instrument [see Creditors Collection Serv. v. Castaldi (1995) 38 CA4th 1039, 1043-1044, 45 CR2d 511 ].

4.11[2] Shorter Statute of Limitations Applies When Neither Is More Specific. If two statutes of limitations are applicable to a cause of action and neither is more specific, the statute with the shorter limitation period controls [see Anson v. County of Merced (1988) 202 CA3d 1195, 1199, 1202, 249 CR 457 ].

Chapter 4 Limitation of Actions

III. DETERMINING WHEN LIMITATION PERIOD BEGINS TO RUN

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.13

4.13 Accrual May Depend on Purpose for Determination.

A cause of action may accrue on different dates, depending on the purpose for determining the date of accrual [ Buttram v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1997) 16 C4th 520, 530, 66 CR2d 438, 941 P2d 71 ].

Examples:

- The discovery of one asbestos-related disease did not start the running of the limitation period on all separate and distinct asbestos-related diseases caused by the same asbestos exposure [ Wagner v. Apex Marine Ship Mgmt. Corp. (2000) 83 CA4th 1444, 1446, 1453, 100 CR2d 533 ].

- Monthly installment contract payments are divisible performance obligations as determined by the provisions of the contract and the conduct of the parties; the statute of limitations begins to run from the time of each breach [ Armstrong Petroleum Corp. v. Tri-Valley Oil & Gas Co. (2004) 116 CA4th 1375, 1388 ].

- When there are ongoing contractual obligations the plaintiff may elect to rely on the contract despite a breach, and the statute of limitations does not begin to run until the plaintiff has elected to treat the breach as terminating the contract. In the context of successive breaches of a continuing contractual obligation, "where the parties did not mutually abandon or rescind it upon a breach or successive breaches, the injured party could wait until the time arrived for a complete performance by the other party and then bring an action for damages for such breaches. [The injured party] was not bound to treat the contract as abandoned on the first breach of it, or on any particular breach, but had his election to still rely on it, and the statute of limitations could not begin to run until it had made its election" [ Romano v. Rockwell Int'l. Inc. (1996) 14 C4th 479, 489-490, 59 CR2d 20, 926 P2d 1114 ].

Chapter 4 Limitation of Actions
III. DETERMINING WHEN LIMITATION PERIOD BEGINS TO RUN

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.14

4.14 Limitation Period Begins to Run When Cause of Action Accrues.

4.14[1] Claim Must Be Legally Actionable. A cause of action accrues when a claim becomes legally actionable [ Glue-Fold, Inc. v. Slautterback Corp. (2000) 82 CA4th 1018, 1029, 98 CR2d 661 ].

Examples:

- In tort and contract actions, the statute of limitations begins to run on the occurrence of the last element essential to the cause of action [ Norgart v. Upjohn Co. (1999) 21 C4th 383, 389, 397, 87 CR2d 453, 981 P2d 79 ; Neel v. Magana, Olney, Levy, Cathcart & Gelfand (1971) 6 C3d 176, 187, 98 CR 837, 491 P2d 421 ].

- In actions for an insurance company's refusal to defend, the cause of action accrues not with the filing of the action to be defended, but by the insurer's refusal to defend [ Eaton Hydraulics Inc. v. Continental Cas. Co. (2005) 132 CA4th 966, 973-974 ].

4.14[2] Appreciable Harm Is Required. Plaintiff must suffer appreciable harm so that he or she is entitled to a real legal remedy rather than merely a symbolic judgment, such as nominal damages. Indeed, the appreciable harm may be the last element essential to the action [ Jordache Enters., Inc. v. Brobeck, Phleger & Harrison (1998) 18 C4th 739, 76 CR2d 749, 958 P2d 1062 (appreciable harm accrued on legal malpractice claim when defense costs paid by law firm's client instead of by insurer, which had duty to defend)]. The actual harm suffered need not be certain in amount [ Davies v. Krasna (1975) 14 C3d 502, 121 CR 705, 535 P2d 1161 ; Barton v. New United Motor Mfg. (1996) 43 CA4th 1200, 1209, 51 CR2d 328 ].

In addition to suffering appreciable harm, plaintiff must also be aware of necessary facts that connect defendant to such harm [ Curtis v. Kellogg & Andelson (1999) 73 CA4th 492, 501, 86 CR2d 536 ].

Speculative harm or threats of future harm do not constitute appreciable harm suffered [ San Francisco Unified Sch. Dist. v. W.R. Grace & Co. (1995) 37 CA4th 1318, 1326, 44 CR2d 305 ].

III. DETERMINING WHEN LIMITATION PERIOD BEGINS TO RUN

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.15

4.15 Accrual of Cause of Action May Be Delayed.

4.15[1] Discovery Rule May Delay Accrual.

4.15[1][a] Factors for Delayed Discovery Must Be Plead. Under the delayed discovery rule, a cause of action accrues and the statute of limitations begins to run when the plaintiff has reason to suspect an injury and some wrongful cause, unless the plaintiff pleads and proves that a reasonable investigation at that time would not have revealed a factual basis for that particular cause of action; in that case, the statute of limitations for that cause of action will be tolled until such time as a reasonable investigation would have revealed its factual basis [ Fox v. Ethicon Endo-Surgery, Inc. (2005) 35 C4th 797, 803 ]. Ignorance of the identity of the defendant does not delay accrual of a cause of action, but ignorance of a generic element of the cause of action does [ Norgart v. Upjohn Co. (1999) 21 C4th 383, 399, 87 CR2d 453, 981 P2d 79 ; see also Burdette v. Carrier Corp. (2008) 158 CA4th 1668, 1693, 71 CR3d 185 ].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

The initial limitation period applicable to an action in which the exact causality and, therefore, the identity of liable parties are not immediately known may be extended by the proper filing and amendment of a Doe complaint [see Knowles v. Superior Court (2004) 118 CA4th 1290, 1300 ].

Trap--Public Entity Defendants:

While the delayed discovery rule applies to actions against public entities, plaintiffs still must file the prerequisite claim with the public entity within six months of its discovery in accordance with CCP § 945.6 [ K.J. v. Arcadia Unified School Dist. (2009) 172 CA4th 1229, 1237-1238, 92 CR3d 1 ; for discussion of CCP § 945.6, see 4.09].

Cross Reference:

Filing and amendment of a Doe complaint, see 5.39 et seq.

To be entitled to the benefit of the discovery rule, plaintiff must plead the time and manner of discovery and show the following [ E-Fab, Inc. v. Accountants, Inc. Services (2007) 153 CA4th 1308, 1319, 1324-1325, 64 CR3d 9 ; McKelvey v. Boeing N. Am., Inc. (1999) 74 CA4th 151, 160, 86 CR2d 645 , superseded by statute as stated in Bonds v. Nicoletti Oil, Inc. (2008) 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 47054 ]:

- Plaintiff had an excuse for late discovery.
- Plaintiff was not at fault in discovering facts late.
- Plaintiff did not have actual or presumptive knowledge to be put on inquiry.
- Plaintiff was unable to make earlier discovery despite reasonable diligence.

Example:

A doctor left a foreign object inside a patient's body during surgery, and the patient could not have discovered the presence of the object immediately [see, e.g., Artal v. Allen (2003) 111 CA4th 273, 280-281 (exploratory surgery needed to discover negligence)].

Distinguish--Separate Wrongs for Same Physical Injury:

In products liability cases, a plaintiff's ignorance of wrongdoing involving a product's defect will usually delay accrual because such wrongdoing is essential to that cause of action. The delayed discovery rule applies even when a related medical malpractice claim has already accrued, unless the plaintiff has reason to suspect that his or her injury resulted from a defective product. More broadly stated, if a plaintiff's reasonable and diligent investigation discloses only one kind of wrongdoing when the injury was actually caused by tortious conduct of a wholly different sort, the discovery rule postpones accrual of the statute of limitations on the newly discovered claim. The investigation may only disclose an action for one type of tort (e.g., medical malpractice), and facts supporting an entirely different type of tort action (e.g., products liability) may, through no fault of the plaintiff, only come to light at a later date. Although both claims seek to redress the same physical injury to the plaintiff, they are based on two distinct types of wrongdoing and should be treated separately in that regard [ Fox v. Ethicon Endo-Surgery, Inc. (2005) 35 C4th 797, 813-815 ].

Warning--Plaintiff:

The discovery rule may not apply if the basis for a claim has been published in the public record or has been the subject of publicity. Under the single publication rule, the cause of action accrues and the period of limitations commences upon the first general distribution of the publication to the public, and the discovery rule does not apply [ Shively v. Bozanich (2003) 31 C4th 1230, 1245 ; see Traditional Cat Ass'n, Inc. v. Gilbreath (2004) 118 CA4th 392, 404, 13 CR3d 353 (internet publishing subject to single publication rule)].

Cross Reference:

Single publication rule, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 345.19 (Matthew Bender).

Plaintiff is charged with presumptive knowledge so as to commence the running of the statute of limitations once he or she has notice or information of circumstances to put a reasonable person on inquiry or has the opportunity to obtain knowledge [ Sanchez v. South Hoover Hosp. (1976) 18 C3d 93, 101, 132 CR 657, 553 P2d 1129 ; Wilshire Westwood Assocs. v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (1993) 20 CA4th 732, 740, 24 CR2d 562 ]. Suspicion of one or more of the elements of a cause of action, coupled with knowledge of any remaining elements, will generally trigger the statute of limitations period [ Cypress Semiconductor Corp. v. Superior Court (2008) 163 CA4th 575, 586, 77 CR3d 685 (where a defendant's state of mind is an element, such as in bad faith, plaintiff is not expected or allowed to wait until he or she has direct proof of the defendant's mental state before filing the lawsuit)]. The running of the period is not affected by the plaintiff's diligence thereafter in finding facts to support the lawsuit [ Knowles v. Superior Court (2004) 118 CA4th 1290, 1300 ].

Warning--Plaintiff:

Conclusory allegations are not allowable.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of pleadings, see Ch. 7, Complaints.

Example:

If a plaintiff's reasonable and diligent investigation discloses only one kind of wrongdoing when the injury was actually caused by tortious conduct of a wholly different sort, the discovery rule postpones accrual of the statute of limitations on the newly discovered claim [ E-Fab, Inc. v. Accountants, Inc. Services (2007) 153 CA4th 1308, 1323, 64 CR3d 9 ]. Accordingly, claims based on two independent legal theories against separate defendants or the same defendant can accrue at different times [ E-Fab, Inc. v. Accountants, Inc. Services (2007) 153 CA4th 1308, 1323, 64 CR3d 9 ].

Distinguish:

Within the requirement of diligence in the discovery rule, plaintiff's duty to investigate does not begin until the plaintiff actually has a reason to investigate, and the theory of "constructive suspicion" is not California law [ Unruh-Haxton v. Regents of the University of California (2008) 162 CA4th 343, 360, 76 CR3d 146] . Circumstances that are dubious or equivocal are not sufficient to take the place of actual notice; the circumstances must be such that further inquiry is not merely suggested, but becomes an imperative duty, so that failure to make it constitutes a negligent omission [ Cleveland v. Internet Specialties West, Inc. (2009) 171 CA4th 24, 33, 88 CR3d 892] .

Distinguish:

The discovery rule is different than tolling [see Cuadra v. Millan (1998) 17 C4th 855, 865, 72 CR2d 687, 952 P2d 704 ] .

Cross Reference:

Discussion of tolling, see 4.16 et seq.

4.15[1][b] Complication After Original Injury Is Separate Cause of Action. The discovery rule may apply if a complication arises after defendant's tort has caused an earlier injury to plaintiff and if the complication was of a different type than the earlier injury. In such a case, plaintiff is considered to have separate causes of action for the independent injuries [see Zambrano v. Dorough (1986) 179 CA3d 169, 173-174, 224 CR 323 ] .

4.15[1][c] Special Rules Apply to Asbestos Cases. CCP § 340.2 applies to cases of injury or illness from asbestos exposure.

CCP § 340.2 excepts the limitation period commencing with the date of the injury or illness or its discovery.

Rather under CCP § 340.2(a), an action for injury or illness based on exposure to asbestos must be commenced within the later of:

- One year after the date plaintiff first suffered the disability; or

- One year after the date plaintiff either knew or should have known through the exercise of reasonable diligence that such disability was caused by asbestos exposure.

"Disability" under CCP § 340.2(a) means the loss of time from work as a result of asbestos exposure that precludes plaintiff's regular occupation [CCP § 340.2(b)].

4.15[1][d] Special Rules Apply to Toxic Injury Cases. CCP § 340.8 applies to cases of injury or illness, from exposure to a hazardous material or toxic substance, other than asbestos claims or actions against a health care provider, and an action must be commenced within no later than:

- Two years after the plaintiff's date of injury; or
- Two years after the plaintiff becomes aware of, or reasonably should have become aware of: (1) an injury, (2) the physical cause of the injury or death, and (3) sufficient facts to put a reasonable person on inquiry notice that the injury or death was caused or contributed to by the wrongful act of another.

Media reports regarding the hazardous material or toxic substance contamination do not, in and of themselves, constitute sufficient facts to put a reasonable person on inquiry notice that the injury or death was caused or contributed to by the wrongful act of another [CCP § 340.8(c)(2)].

4.15[1][e] Exemptions From Discovery Rule. An action for unfair competition under B&P Code § 17200 is exempt from the discovery rule [see Snapp & Assocs. Ins. Serv. v. Robertson (2002) 96 CA4th 884, 891, 117 CR2d 331, among conflicting authorities as noted in, Broberg v. The Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 912, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 225, 2009 Cal. App. LEXIS 271 ].

Cross Reference:

Detailed analysis of unfair competition law, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Unfair Competition and Business Torts, Ch. 2, Unfair Competition (Matthew Bender).

4.15[2] Fiduciary Relationship.

4.15[2][a] Fiduciaries Have Duty to Disclose Facts. The statute of limitations for actions involving a fiduciary obligation normally is not triggered until plaintiff discovers or should have discovered the negligence [ Field v. Century 21 Klowden-Forness Realty (1998) 63 CA4th 18, 20-21 ].

However, plaintiff's burden of discovery is reduced while a fiduciary relationship continues, and he or she may rely on the fiduciary's statements and advice [ Eisenbaum v. Western Energy Res., Inc. (1990) 218 CA3d 314, 324, 267 CR 5 ]. Plaintiff's burden does not entail establishing that he or she used due diligence to discover the facts within the limitation period unless a duty existed to inquire and the circumstances were such that failure to inquire would be negligent [see, e.g., Amtower v. Photon Dynamics, Inc. (2008) 158 CA4th 1582, 1597, 71 CR3d 361 ].

4.15[2][b] Limitation Period Does Not Run Until Repudiation. The limitation period on an action by a beneficiary against a fiduciary generally does not run as long as the fiduciary relationship has not been repudiated [ Estate of Clary (1928) 203 C 335, 341, 264 P 242 ; Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 C2d 540, 561, 305 P2d 20 ]. Repudiation by the fiduciary must be brought to the beneficiary's attention for the limitation period to start running [ MacMullan v. Kelly (1912) 19 CA 700, 706, 127 P 819 ].

4.15[2][c] Anticipatory Repudiation Does Not Start Running of Limitation Period. An anticipatory breach of the fiduciary relationship does not start the running of the limitation period [ Romano v. Rockwell Int'l, Inc. (1996) 14 CA4th 479, 489, 59 CR2d 20, 926 P2d 1114 ; Brewer v. Simpson (1960) 53 C2d 567, 593, 2 CR 609, 349 P2d 289 ].

4.15[3] Other Delays.

4.15[3][a] Statutes Expressly Delay Accrual. Some statutes expressly delay the time when the cause of action accrues.

Example:

An action for fraud or mistake does not accrue until plaintiff actually discovers the facts constituting the fraud or mistake [CCP § 338(d)].

4.15[3][b] Delay Prevents Manifest Unjustness. A court may allow delayed discovery in a cause of action when it would be manifestly unjust to deprive plaintiff of a cause of action prior to plaintiff's awareness of the injury [see Leaf v. City of San Mateo (1980) 104 CA3d 398, 406-408, 163 CR 711 ; Mangini v. Aerojet-General Corp. (1991) 227 CA3d 1248, 1269, 278 CR 395 ].

4.15[3][c] Court Looks to Parties' Relationship. The discovery rule generally applies in actions between parties in a fiduciary or confidential relationship [ United States Liab. Ins. Co. v. Haidinger-Hayes, Inc. (1970) 1 C3d 586, 595-597, 83 CR 418, 463 P2d 770 ; Mark K. v. Roman Catholic Archbishop of Los Angeles (1998) 67 CA4th 603, 611, 79 CR2d 73 ].

4.15[3][d] Judicial Opinion Does Not Delay Accrual. When a new judicial opinion clarifies that a right of action exists, it does not extend the running of the statute of limitations [ Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Assn. v. City of La Habra (2001) 25 C4th 809, 815-816, 107 CR2d 369, 23 P3d 601 ].

4.16 CHECKLIST: Determining If Statute of Limitations Has Been Tolled.

☐ Calculate limitation period.

Discussion:

See 4.34 -4.37

☐ Determine whether plaintiff timely filed complaint within limitation period.

Discussion:

See 4.17[1]

☐ Examine complaint for defects.

Discussion:

See 4.17[3], [4], [6]

☐ Plaintiff--file amendment to cure defective complaint.

Discussion:

See 4.17[6]

☐ Defendant--allege that defects cannot be cured.

☐ If applicable, plaintiff should plead tolling of limitation period.

☐ Grounds:

☐ Defendant was absent from state:

- ☐ Ensure allegation of absence is contained in complaint.
- ☐ Allege date cause of action accrued.
- ☐ Allege dates that defendant was outside state.
- ☐ State whether defendant returned to state or remained outside state.

Authority:

CCP § 351

Discussion:

See 4.18

Forms:

See 4.56, 4.57

☐ Party to the action has died:

- ☐ Allege name of party who died.
- ☐ Allege party died on date after cause of action accrued and before limitation period expired.

Discussion:

See 4.19, 4.20

Form:

See 4.59

☐ Plaintiff was a minor:

- ☐ Allege date cause of action accrued.
- ☐ Allege plaintiff's age at accrual.
- ☐ Allege date plaintiff became 18 years old.

Authority:

CCP § 352(a)

Discussion:

See 4.21[3]

Form:

See 4.58

☐ Plaintiff was insane:

- ☐ Allege date cause of action accrued.
- ☐ Allege facts showing plaintiff's insanity.
- ☐ State that plaintiff recovered on a certain date or remains insane.

Authority:

CCP § 352(a)

Discussion:

See 4.21[4]

Form:See California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 345.74 (Matthew Bender).☐ Plaintiff was in prison:

- ☐ Allege date cause of action accrued.
- ☐ Allege that plaintiff was imprisoned and his or her term.
- ☐ State whether plaintiff was released or remains in prison.

Chapter 4 Limitation of Actions
IV. DETERMINING IF STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS HAS BEEN TOLLED

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.17

4.17 Commencing Action Tolls Limitation Period.

4.17[1] Complaint Must Be Filed. An action commences under CCP § 312 et seq. when the complaint is filed [CCP § 350]. A complaint is considered filed when it is presented to the court clerk in the requisite form for filing during business hours [ Carlson v. Department of Fish & Game (1998) 68 CA4th 1268, 1270, 1272-1276, 80 CR2d 601 ; but see Duran v. St. Luke's Hosp. (2003) 114 CA4th 457, 459 (actions filed before January 1, 2005, are not considered filed if full fee not tendered at time of filing)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of filing fees with complaint, 20-day period to cure dishonored check, and voided complaint for nonpayment, see 7.26.

4.17[2] Limitation Period Suspended While Action Is Pending. The commencement of an action suspends the running of the limitation period as to matters arising out of the transaction in the complaint. The suspension continues while the action is pending [see Record Machine & Tool Co. v. Pageman Holding Corp. (1959) 172 CA2d 164, 175-176, 342 P2d 402 ].

4.17[3] Court May Lack Jurisdiction.

4.17[3][a] Action Must Be Seasonably Commenced. Plaintiff must seasonably file the action to be entitled to a trial on the merits, despite a choice of the wrong court. Plaintiff cannot sleep on his or her rights [ Friends of Mammoth v. Board of Supervisors (1972) 8 C3d 247, 269, 104 CR 761, 502 P2d 1049 ; Morgan v. Somervell (1940) 40 CA2d 398, 400, 104 P2d 866 ].

4.17[3][b] Action May Be Transferred After Limitation Period Expired. Defendant's constitutional rights are not impaired if plaintiff's seasonably commenced action is transferred from a court without jurisdiction to a court with jurisdiction [see Morgan v. Somervell (1940) 40 CA2d 398, 400, 104 P2d 866 ; Friends of Mammoth v. Board of Supervisors (1972) 8 C3d 247, 269, 104 CR 761, 502 P2d 1049 ].

4.17[4] Defect in Designating Party.

4.17[4][a] Defective Description of Defendant Does Not Affect Limitation Period. Plaintiff's error in describing defendant that is an excusable mistake can be corrected by amendment [see CCP § 473(a)(1)] after the limitation period has otherwise expired that changes a misnomer by which an "old" defendant was sued that is strikingly similar to a fictitious business name used by the originally intended defendant, even though no deceit was intended [ Hawkins v. Pacific Coast Bldg. Prods., Inc. (2005) 124 CA4th 1497, 1503-1504 ].

Examples:

- Naming defendant as a partnership instead of a corporation [see Mayberry v. Coca Cola Bottling Co. (1966) 244 CA2d 350, 352-353, 53 CR 317 ].
- Misnaming a defendant corporation where similar entities share similar names and involve the same officers and/or owners, or where the corporation has changed names and the plaintiff is unaware of the prior name [see Cuadros v. Superior Court (1992) 6 CA4th 671, 676, 8 CR2d 18 ; Hawkins v. Pacific Coast Bldg. Prods., Inc. (2005) 124 CA4th 1497, 1503-1504 ].

 Cross Reference:

Amendment of complaint to correct misnomer of defendant, see 34.09.

4.17[4][b] Wrong Defendant Does Not Toll Limitation Period. The naming of a wrong defendant is not curable by amendment after the limitation period has expired as to the defendant that should have been named [see Chitwood v. County of Los Angeles (1971) 14 CA3d 522, 525, 92 CR 441 ].

4.17[4][c] Technical Defect Related to Plaintiff Is Curable by Amendment. A technical defect in the designation of plaintiff in a complaint that is otherwise adequate is curable by amendment that will relate back to the filing of the original complaint, even if the limitation period has otherwise expired before the filing of the amendment [ Cloud v. Northrop Grumman Corp. (1998) 67 CA4th 995, 1011, 79 CR2d 544 ].

Example:

Designating plaintiff in a representative, rather than an individual, capacity.

4.17[5] Plaintiff May Sue Defendant by Fictitious Name.

4.17[5][a] Plaintiff's Ignorance of Name Must Be Genuine. If plaintiff is genuinely ignorant as to defendant's true name, plaintiff may sue defendant by a fictitious name under CCP § 474 as a means of bringing suit before it is barred by the statute of limitations.

4.17[5][b] Complaint May Be Amended to Add Real Name. If plaintiff sues defendant by fictitious name, plaintiff may amend the complaint after the limitation period has run. In such a case, defendant is considered a party to the action from its commencement so that the limitation period stops running as of the date of the original pleading [ Bernson v. Browning-Ferris Indus. (1994) 7 C4th 926, 930, 30 CR2d 440, 873 P2d 613 ; Austin v. Massachusetts Bonding & Ins. Co. (1961) 56 C2d 596, 599, 600, 602, 15 CR 817, 364 P2d 681 ].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of proper fictitious name allegation, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used (Matthew Bender).

4.17[6] Form of Complaint May Be Defective but Must Be Curable by Amendment. If a complaint filed within the limitation period is defective but curable by amendment, the running of the limitation period is suspended by the filing of the complaint [ Cloud v. Northrop Grumman Corp. (1998) 67 CA4th 995, 1011, 79 CR2d 544 ].

Example:

Failing to verify a pleading [see United Farm Workers of Am. v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1985) 37 C3d 912, 210 CR 453, 694 P2d 138 ].

 Cross References:

Discussion of amended pleadings, see Ch. 34, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings; and California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 21, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings (Matthew Bender).

4.17[7] Cross-Complaints Are Affected by Statute of Limitations.

4.17[7][a] Cross-Complaint May Be Barred on Otherwise Barred Action. The filing of a complaint suspends the running of the statute of limitations as to an action that may be raised as a cross-complaint, if the action that may be raised on the cross-complaint is not already time barred [see Union Sugar Co. v. Hollister Estate Co. (1935) 3 C2d 740, 746, 47 P2d 273 ; Sidney v. Superior Court (1988) 198 CA3d 710, 715-716, 717, 244 CR 31 ].

However, an action that is already barred when the complaint is filed may not be raised by cross-complaint [see Strong v. Strong (1943) 22 C2d 540, 544-545, 140 P2d 386 ].

Exception:

A cross-complaint on an action otherwise barred is not barred if plaintiff took unfair advantage of an extended limitation period to delay filing the complaint until the cross-complaint was barred [see Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v. Fales (1973) 8 C3d 712, 717, 106 CR 21, 505 P2d 213 ].

Strategic Point--Cross-Complainant:

Although cross-complaint may be barred and affirmative relief precluded, the claim may be used to offset the plaintiff's claim [ Safine v. Sinnott (1993) 15 CA4th 614, 619, 19 CR2d 52 (in attorney's collection action against client, although client's legal malpractice cross-action was time-barred, court permitted client to assert malpractice harm as means of offsetting attorney's collection claim)].

4.17[7][b] Action That Should Have Been Cross-Complaint Does Not Relate Back. An action that could have been asserted as a cross-complaint in an original action, but that was filed as a separate action, does not relate back to the filing of the original action. Therefore, the limitation period is not tolled during the pendency of the original action [ Luna Records Corp., Inc. v. Alvarado (1991) 232 CA3d 1023, 1026-1028, 1030, 283 CR 865 ].

 Cross References:

Discussion of cross-complaints, see Ch. 16, Cross-Complaints; and California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints (Matthew Bender).

4.17[8] Dismissal Restores Limitation Period. When an action is dismissed without prejudice by voluntary dismissal without prejudice or by involuntary dismissal, the limitation period is restored as if no action had been brought [ Wood v. Elling Corp. (1977) 20 C3d 353, 359, 142 CR 696, 572 P2d 755 ; Thomas v. Gilliland (2002) 95 CA4th 427, 430-433, 115 CR2d 520 ].

Chapter 4 Limitation of Actions
IV. DETERMINING IF STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS HAS BEEN TOLLED

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.18

4.18 Defendant's Absence or Departure From State Tolls Limitation Period.

4.18[1] Time of Absence Is Not Counted. If defendant is out of the state when a cause of action accrues against him or her, the action may be commenced within the statutory period after he or she returns to the state. If defendant leaves the state after a cause of action accrues against him or her, the time of his or her absence is not part of the time limited for the commencement of the action [CCP § 351].

Strategic Point:

Plaintiff may conduct discovery to determine whether defendant has been out of the state during the applicable limitation period [see Kaplan v. Mamelak (2008) 162 CA4th 637, 644-645, 75 CR3d 861 ].

Forms alleging defendant's absence and departure from the state, see 4.56, 4.57.

Form supporting motion, see California Points and Authorities, § 143.34 (Matthew Bender).

4.18[2] Defendant Need Not Have Resided in State. The provision in CCP § 351 that an action may be commenced against defendant after his or her return to the state applies if defendant was once a resident of the state, left the state, and returned. It also applies if defendant has never been present in or resided in the state [see Cvecich v. Giardino (1940) 37 CA2d 394, 399-400, 99 P2d 573 ; Green v. Zissis (1992) 5 CA4th 1219, 1222-1223, 7 CR2d 406 ].

4.18[3] Defendant's Secret Return to State Is Not Counted, but Open Return Is Counted. If defendant returns to the state in a secret manner, such time in the state will not be counted in his or her favor for the purpose of ascertaining the time of absence from the state. If defendant returns openly, the fact that the plaintiff did not learn of his or her presence in the state prior to departure is immaterial [ Stewart v. Stewart (1907) 152 C 162, 166, 92 P 87 ].

4.18[4] Period of Absence Coinciding With Plaintiff's Disability to Bring Action. A period during which defendant was absent from the state while plaintiff was under a disability may not be added to the period within which plaintiff must bring an action after the disability is removed [see Rafael v. Superior Court (1969) 1 CA3d 457, 458-460, 81 CR 748 ].

4.18[5] Plaintiff Need Not Be a Resident of State. The provision of CCP § 351 that the limitation period on a cause of action does not begin to run while defendant is absent from the state is given effect even if plaintiff is a nonresident of the state [ Cvecich v. Giardino (1940) 37 CA2d 394, 400-402, 99 P2d 573 ].

4.18[6] Absence of One Joint Defendant Does Not Affect Limitation Period for Other Defendant. When two or more defendants are jointly liable on an obligation, the fact that the limitation period has expired as to one of them who resides in the state does not affect the running of the period as to another of them who is absent from the state. The running of the limitation period remains suspended as to the absent defendant under CCP § 351 during his or her absence [see Arocena v. Sawyer (1923) 60 CA 581, 591-592, 213 P 523 ].

4.18[7] Tolling Provisions Do Not Apply to Motorists. Veh Code § 17463 provides that the tolling provisions of CCP § 351 do not apply to a resident motorist who could be served in the state. This exemption has been extended to a nonresident motorist [ Bigelow v. Smik (1970) 6 CA3d 10, 12-13, 85 CR 613 ; see Dew v. Appleberry (1979) 23 C3d 630, 635, 153 CR 219, 591 P2d 509 ].

4.18[8] Tolling Provisions Do Not Apply to Create Violation of Commerce Clause. CCP § 351 may not be applied to a nonresident defendant sued on a contractual obligation incurred in interstate commerce because such application would violate the Commerce Clause of the United States Constitution [ Abramson v. Brownstein (9th Cir 1990) 897 F2d 389, 391-393 ].

Chapter 4 Limitation of Actions

IV. DETERMINING IF STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS HAS BEEN TOLLED

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.19

4.19 Special Rules Apply If Defendant Dies.

4.19[1] One-Year Period Replaces Otherwise Applicable Limitation Period. CCP § 366.2(a) provides that if defendant dies before the expiration of the otherwise applicable limitation period and if the cause of action survives, an action may be commenced within one year after the date of death. In essence, the one-year period in CCP § 366.2(a) replaces the otherwise applicable statute of limitations. As other limitations, the end date of the one-year period is calculated under the rules in CCP §§ 12, 12a, 12b [CCP § 366.2(b)(1)].

Examples:

- Claim that was filed more than one year after decedent's death against decedent's irrevocable trust for decedent's acts while decedent was trustee of the trust was barred [ Stoltenberg v. Newman (2009) 179 CA4th 287, 296-297, 101 CR3d 606 ].
- Without regard to the location of the decedent's personal representative or estate, the one-year limitation period barred an action arising from a surrogacy contract between the decedent and his former wife and a surrogate mother [ Farb v. Superior Ct. (2009) 174 CA4th 678, 684-686, 94 CR3d 586 ].

➡ Cross Reference:

Calculation of end date of limitation period under CCP §§ 12, 12a, 12b, see 4.37.

If plaintiff is unaware of defendant's death, the action is timely if the complaint that names defendant is filed within one year of defendant's death. Plaintiff may later amend the complaint to name the personal representative of defendant's estate. If the amended complaint seeks recovery on the same general facts and for the same injuries as the original complaint, the amended complaint will relate back and be considered filed as of the date of the original complaint [ Burgos v. Tamulonis (1994) 28 CA4th 757, 762-763, 33 CR2d 728 ].

➡ Cross Reference:

Discussion of relation back of amended pleadings, see 4.44.

4.19[2] One-Year Period Generally May Not Be Tolled. Although the one-year limitation period of CCP § 366.2(a) that applies when defendant dies is not tolled, it is subject to equitable estoppel [CCP § 366.2(b); Farb v. Superior Ct. (2009) 174 CA4th 678, 683, 94 CR3d 586 (not tolled for minority); Battuello v. Battuello (1998) 64 CA4th 842, 848, 75 CR2d 548 ].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of equitable estoppel, see 4.42.

4.19[3] Replacement of Limitation Period May Not Apply.

4.19[3][a] Claims Against Decedent's Estate. The replacement of the otherwise applicable limitation period by the one-year limitation period of CCP § 366.2(a) when defendant dies does not apply to claims against the decedent's estate [CCP § 366.2(b)(2)].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of claims procedures in decedents' estates, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 454, Probate: Claims Against the Estate (Matthew Bender).

4.19[3][b] Claims Against Decedent's Revocable Trust. The replacement of the otherwise applicable limitation period by the one-year limitation period of CCP § 366.2(a) when defendant dies does not apply with respect to claims against a decedent's revocable trust [CCP § 366.2(b)(3)].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of claims procedures in revocable trusts, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 560, Trusts: Express, Public, Charitable, and Totten Trusts (Matthew Bender).

4.19[3][c] Actions to Recover Decedent's Insurance Proceeds. Actions under Prob Code § 550 et seq. to establish a decedent's liability covered by liability insurance may be brought within one year of the end of the otherwise applicable limitation period, if it has not expired at the time of the decedent's death. This is an express exception to CCP § 366.2 [Prob Code § 551].

4.19[3][d] Actions to Enforce Lien on Property in Decedent's Estate. Prob Code § 9391 authorizes an action to enforce a lien on property in a decedent's estate when plaintiff has waived all recourse against other property in the estate. The limitations provisions of CCP § 366.2 do not apply in such an action.

4.19[3][e] Will Contests. CCP § 366.2 does not apply to motions, petitions, or other acts by a beneficiary as to which the statute of limitations is tolled pending a determination of whether the motion, petition, or act constitutes a contest within the meaning of a no-contest clause as determined under the relevant portion of the Probate Code as it read prior to its repeal in 2008 [CCP § 366.2(b)(4)].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of will contests, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 444, Probate: Will Contests (Matthew Bender).

IV. DETERMINING IF STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS HAS BEEN TOLLED

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.20

4.20 Special Rules Apply If Plaintiff Dies.

4.20[1] Action Must Be Commenced Before Expiration of the Later of Six Months After Death or Otherwise Applicable Limitation Period. If plaintiff dies before the expiration of the applicable limitation period and if the cause of action survives, an action may be commenced before the expiration of the later of [CCP § 366.1]:

- Six months after plaintiff's death; or
- The limitation period that would have applied if plaintiff had not died.

► Cross References:

Form supporting motion, see California Points and Authorities, § 143.40 (Matthew Bender).

4.20[2] Discovery Rule May Apply. The time limitations in CCP § 366.1 for bringing an action when plaintiff dies may be subject to the discovery rule [see Parsons v. Tickner (1995) 31 CA4th 1513, 1525-1529, 37 CR2d 810 ].

► Cross Reference:

Discussion of discovery rule, see 4.15[1].

4.20[3] Heirs Do Not Derive Barred Cause of Action. If plaintiff's action was barred when he or she died, plaintiff's heirs do not derive any cause of action from plaintiff [ Manti v. Gunari (1970) 5 CA3d 442, 446, 85 CR 366 ; Rogers v. Bank of Am. (1956) 140 CA2d 228, 231, 294 P2d 959 ].

Exception:

If the heirs correctly allege circumstances causing suspension of the running of the limitation period, the action will not be barred.

► Cross Reference:

Discussion of suspension of limitation period, see 4.16 -4.30.

Chapter 4 Limitation of Actions
IV. DETERMINING IF STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS HAS BEEN TOLLED

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.21

4.21 Disability of Plaintiff Tolls Limitation Period.

4.21[1] Court Inquires As to When Disability Arose. A disability does not extend a limitation period unless it existed when the cause of action accrued [CCP § 357; Weinstock v. Eissler (1964) 224 CA2d 212, 231, 36 CR 537 ].

4.21[2] Disability Must Be Continuing. The tacking of disabilities, some of which did not exist when cause of action accrued, is not allowed [ Rose v. Petaluma & Santa Rosa Ry. Co. (1923) 64 CA 213, 217, 221 P 406 ].

4.21[3] Minority May Toll Limitation Period.

4.21[3][a] Limitation Period Tolloed While Minor Is Under 18. If plaintiff is under 18 years of age when his or her cause of action accrues, the limitation period under CCP § 335 et seq. is tolled during plaintiff's minority [CCP § 352(a)].

➡ Cross References:

Form alleging disability of minority, see 4.58.

Discussion of minors, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 364, Minors: Claims and Property of Minors; Ch. 365, Minors: Contract Actions; Ch. 367A, Minors: Tort Actions (Matthew Bender).

Form supporting motion, see California Points and Authorities, § 143.35 (Matthew Bender).

4.21[3][b] Special Rules Apply to Actions for Prenatal Injuries, Medical Malpractice, and Sexual Abuse. Actions based on prenatal injuries are subject to a specific limitation period that is not tolled by minority [see CCP § 340.4].

A specific limitation period applies to a minor's action against a health care provider for professional negligence [see CCP § 340.5]. The time for commencement of the action may not exceed three years unless tolled for any of the following reasons:

- Proof of fraud;
- Intentional concealment; or
- The presence of a foreign body in the injured person.

Trap:

In a suit for medical malpractice involving a government health care facility, the plaintiff must comply with the prerequisite procedures for actions against public entities set forth in Gov Code § 900 et seq. [see 4.09], during which the limitation period of CCP § 340.5 is not tolled [ Roberts v. Cty. of L.A. (2009) 175 CA4th 474, 486-487, 96 CR3d 60] .

For an action by a minor under the age of six, the limitation period may be tolled for any period during which a parent or guardian and defendant's insurer or health care provider have committed fraud or collusion in the failure to bring a professional negligence action on behalf of the injured minor for professional negligence.

Actions based on the sexual abuse of a minor are subject to an extended period of limitation [see CCP § 340.1]. There is a split of authority on the application of CCP § 340.1 [see Quarry v. Doe 1 (First Dist., Div. Four 2009) 170 CA4th 1574, 1584, 1589, 89 CR3d 640 (claims not barred by one-year rule in CCP § 340.1(c); cf. K.J. v. Roman Catholic Bishop of Stockton (2009) 172 CA4th 1388, 1399-1403, 92 CR3d 673 (CCP § 340.1(b)(2) does not have retroactive effect)].

Example:

CCP § 340.1(a) applies in an action against the defendant who perpetrated the abuse, or a third party whose liability stems from a negligent or intentional act that was the legal cause of the abuse that resulted in the injury [ Joseph v. Johnson (2009) 178 CA4th 1404, 1413-1415, 101 CR3d 248] .

Cross Reference:

Discussion of abuse, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 5, Abuse of Minors and Elderly (Matthew Bender).

4.21[3][c] Existence of Custodians and Guardians Is Immaterial. The existence of a custodian under the Uniform Transfers to Minor Act does not affect the tolling of the statute of limitations as to a cause of action accruing to a minor [see Epstein v. Frank (1981) 125 CA3d 111, 122, 177 CR 831 ].

The appointment of a general guardian does not affect the tolling of the statute of limitations as to a cause of action accruing to a minor [ Epstein v. Frank (1981) 125 CA3d 111, 122, 177 CR 831 ; Aronson v. Bank of Am. (1941) 42 CA2d 710, 720, 109 P2d 1001 ].

4.21[3][d] Tolling Does Not Apply to Emancipated Minor. A minor who is emancipated by court order under Fam Code § 7000 et seq. has the right to sue and is subject to suit in his or her own name. The statute of limitations begins to run on the date of emancipation [ West Shield Investigations & Sec. Consultants v. Superior Court (2000) 82 CA4th 935, 940, 949-951, 98 CR2d 612 ].

4.21[4] Insanity May Toll Limitation Period.

4.21[4][a] Plaintiff Must Be Incapable of Caring for Property or Understanding Acts. If plaintiff is insane when a cause of action accrues, the limitation period under CCP § 335 et seq. is tolled for the time of the insanity [CCP § 352(a)]. Plaintiff is considered "insane" if he or she is incapable of caring for his or her property, transacting business, or understanding the nature or effects of his or her acts [ Alcott Rehabilitation Hosp. v. Superior Court (2001) 93

CA4th 94, 101, 112 CR2d 807 ].

4.21[4][b] Unconsciousness Qualifies As Insanity. Unconsciousness constitutes insanity sufficient to toll the limitation period [ Feeley v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1991) 234 CA3d 949, 951-953, 285 CR 666 ].

4.21[4][c] Having Conservator Is Immaterial. The limitation period remains tolled even when a conservator is appointed for an incompetent person [ Tzolov v. International Jet Leasing, Inc. (1991) 232 CA3d 117, 118, 120, 283 CR 314 ; see Alcott Rehabilitation Hosp. v. Superior Court (2001) 93 CA4th 94, 106, 112 CR2d 807 ]. Thus, a cause of action that belongs to an incompetent person is not affected by a conservator's failure to sue during the limitation period [ Tzolov v. International Jet Leasing, Inc. (1991) 232 CA3d 117, 120 ; Gottesman v. Simon (1959) 169 CA2d 494, 502-503, 337 P2d 906 ].

Cross Reference:

Form alleging disability of insanity, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 345.74 (Matthew Bender).

4.21[5] Imprisonment May Toll Limitation Period.

4.21[5][a] Prisoner Must Be Imprisoned or in Execution Under Sentence for Term Less Than Life. If plaintiff is imprisoned on a criminal charge or is in execution under the sentence of a criminal court for a term of less than life when his or her cause of action accrues, the limitation period under CCP § 335 et seq. is tolled for the time of the imprisonment [CCP § 352.1(a)].

4.21[5][b] Tolling May Not Exceed Two Years. The tolling of the limitation period arising from imprisonment may not exceed two years [CCP § 352.1(a)].

CCP § 352.1(a) applies to causes of action that accrued before January 1, 1995. Thus, claims that accrued before that effective date are tolled for two years from accrual or until January 1, 1995, whichever occurs later, as long as such an application does not result in manifest injustice [ Carlson v. Blatt (2001) 87 CA4th 646, 650, 105 CR2d 42 ].

Exceptions:

The tolling provision of CCP § 352.1 does not apply to:

- An action against a public entity or public employee on a cause of action subject to a claim requirement under Gov Code §§ 900 et seq., 910 et seq., or 950 et seq.
- An action relating to the conditions of confinement, including an action brought under 42 USC § 1983 [CCP § 352.1(b), (c)].

Chapter 4 Limitation of Actions

IV. DETERMINING IF STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS HAS BEEN TOLLED

4.22 Equitable Tolling Suspends Limitation Period.

4.22[1] Equitable Tolling Applies When Plaintiff Has Several Remedies. Equitable tolling applies when plaintiff possesses several legal remedies and pursues one designed to lessen the extent of his or her injuries or damage. The running of the limitation period may be tolled with respect to plaintiff's other available remedies [ Ashou v. Liberty Mut. Fire Ins. Co. (2006) 138 CA4th 748, 758, 763-764, 41 CR3d 819 ; Hu v. Silgan Containers Corp. (1999) 70 CA4th 1261, 1270, 83 CR2d 333 ]. The remedy pursued need not be a legal remedy.

Exceptions:

- Equitable tolling does not apply when a plaintiff who has suffered several different wrongs pursues only one remedy as to one of those wrongs [ Aerojet-General Corp. v. Superior Court (1986) 177 CA3d 950, 956, 223 CR 249 ].

- Merely engaging in negotiations is not adequate to support equitable tolling [see 65 Butterfield v. Chicago Title Ins. Co. (1999) 70 CA4th 1047, 1063, 83 CR2d 40 ].

➤ Cross Reference:

Form alleging equitable tolling, see 4.62.

4.22[2] Three-Pronged Test Must Be Satisfied. A limitation period may be tolled when plaintiff has sought an alternative form of relief and a three-prong test is satisfied [ Addison v. State of California (1978) 21 C3d 313, 319, 146 CR 224, 578 P2d 941 ; Waterman Convalescent Hosp., Inc. v. Department of Health Servs. (2002) 101 CA4th 1433, 1441, 125 CR2d 168 ]:

- Plaintiff provided timely notice of the first claim to defendant.

The first claim must be filed within the statutory period [ Tarkington v. California Unemployment Ins.

Appeals Bd. (2009) 172 CA4th 1494, 1503, 92 CR3d 131 ; 65 Butterfield v. Chicago Title Ins. Co. (1999) 70 CA4th 1047, 1063, 83 CR2d 40 ].

The filing of the first claim must alert defendant in subsequent claims of the need to begin investigating the facts that form the basis for the subsequent claims. Generally, this means that the defendant in the first claim is the same one in the subsequent claims [ Tarkington v. California Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (2009) 172 CA4th 1494, 1503, 92 CR3d 131 ; Downs v. Department of Water & Power (1997) 58 CA4th 1093, 1100, 68 CR2d 590 ].

- Defendant was not prejudiced in gathering evidence for the subsequent claims.

The facts of the claims must be identical or similar enough that defendant's investigation of the first claim will put him or her in a position to defend the other claims [ Tarkington v. California Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (2009) 172 CA4th 1494, 1504, 92 CR3d 131 ; Downs v. Department of Water & Power (1997) 58 CA4th 1093, 1100, 68 CR2d 590 ].

- Plaintiff acted reasonably and in good faith in filing the subsequent claims.

The element of good faith is not clearly defined. However, plaintiff should proceed in a diligent manner. Plaintiff must not intentionally lead defendant into believing that subsequent claims will not be filed [ Structural Steel Fabricators, Inc. v. City of Orange (1995) 40 CA4th 459, 464-465, 46 CR2d 867 ].

Whether a plaintiff has exercised due diligence may depend on whether plaintiff delayed filing the second claim until the statute on that claim had nearly run [ Tarkington v. California Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (2009) 172 CA4th 1494, 1505, 92 CR3d 131 ].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

File the subsequent claims a short time after tolling ends.

4.22[3] Equitable Tolling Must Be Consistent With Relevant Statute of Limitations. Equitable tolling is not permissible when it is inconsistent with the text of the relevant statute of limitations [ Young v. United States (2002) 535 US 43, 49, 122 S Ct 1036, 152 L Ed2d 79 ; United States v. Beggerly (1998) 524 US 38, 48, 118 S Ct 1862, 141 L Ed2d 32 ; Lantzy v. Centex Homes (2003) 31 C4th 363, 371 ].

4.22[4] Tolling Cannot Revive Already Expired Statute of Limitations. Tolling can only suspend the running of a statute that still has time to run. It cannot revive a statute that has already expired [ 65 Butterfield v. Chicago Title Ins. Co. (1999) 70 CA4th 1047, 1062, 83 CR2d 40 ].

Cross References:

Form alleging equitable tolling, see 4.62.

Form supporting motion, see California Points and Authorities, § 143.46 (Matthew Bender).

4.22[5] Special Rules Apply to Equitable Tolling for Exhaustion of Administrative Remedies. Where exhaustion of an administrative remedy is mandatory prior to filing suit, equitable tolling is automatic [ McDonald v. Antelope Valley Community College Dist. (2008) 45 C4th 88, 101, 84 CR3d 734 ]. Tolling may extend even to the voluntary pursuit of alternate administrative remedies, so long as the general requirements for equitable tolling [see 4.22[2]] are satisfied [ McDonald v. Antelope Valley Community College Dist. (2008) 45 C4th 88, 101-102, 84 CR3d 734 ].

Example:

Exhaustion of internal administrative remedies prior to filing a Fair Employment and Housing Act (FEHA) [see Gov Code § 12900 et seq.] claim is not mandatory, but may support equitable tolling of the statute of limitation on the filing of the FEHA claim [ McDonald v. Antelope Valley Community College Dist. (2008) 45 C4th 88, 104, 84 CR3d 734 ].

Distinguish:

Issues of judicial or administrative exhaustion and equitable tolling are distinct. A complaint may be timely on grounds of equitable tolling but fail for reasons of judicial exhaustion, or a complainant may exhaust available judicial review procedures only to find a subsequent complaint time-barred. One inquiry has little bearing on the other [ McDonald v. Antelope Valley Community College Dist. (2008) 45 C4th 88, 113, 84 CR3d 734 ].

Exhaustion of administrative remedies as a jurisdictional requirement, see 10.04[11].

Chapter 4 Limitation of Actions

IV. DETERMINING IF STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS HAS BEEN TOLLED

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.23

4.23 Doctrine of Continuing Wrongs Suspends Limitation Period.

With respect to actions based on progressively developing or continuing wrongs when the nature, extent, or permanence of the harm is difficult to discover, the running of the limitation period is suspended until the time of discovery of, or the opportunity to discover, the facts [see Bradler v. Craig (1969) 274 CA2d 466, 471, 79 CR 401 ].

The key is whether the conduct complained of constitutes a continuing pattern and course of conduct as opposed to unrelated discrete acts. If there is a pattern, then the suit is timely so long as the action is filed within one year of the most recent violation, and the entire course of conduct is at issue [ Komarova v. National Credit Acceptance, Inc. (2009) 175 CA4th 324, 344, 95 CR3d 880] .

Example:

Unreasonably frequent calling in violation of CC § 1788.11(e) is clearly a continuing course of conduct because the violation occurs only through repetition. Calling without disclosure of identity in violation of CC § 1788.11(b) and improper communication with an employer in violation of CC § 1788.12(a) could be single, discrete acts; however, the continuing violation doctrine can be applied to those acts if they are part of a pattern of unreasonably frequent calling that extends into the limitations period. In that event, they are not "unrelated" discrete acts. Use of judicial proceedings to collect a debt without service of process in violation of CC § 1788.15(a) will also be a continuing course of conduct insofar as the conduct involves multiple acts, such as obtaining and collecting on a judgment, that extend over a period of time before the proceedings are concluded [ Komarova v. National Credit Acceptance, Inc. (2009) 175 CA4th 324, 344, 95 CR3d 880] .

Example:

The statute of limitations for an action against an attorney for wrongful act or omission other than fraud tolls so long as that attorney continues to represent the plaintiff regarding the specific subject matter in which the alleged wrongful act or omission occurred [ Beal Bank, SSB v. Arter & Hadden, LLP (2007) 42 C4th 503, 508, 66 CR3d 52, 167 P3d 666 ] .

Distinguish:

If the wrong is permanent, the plaintiff ordinarily must bring one action for all past, present and future damage within the limitation period after the creation of the wrong [ McCoy v. Gustafson (2009) 180 CA4th 56, 106, 103 CR3d 37] . The crucial test of the permanency of a trespass or nuisance is whether the trespass or nuisance can be discontinued or abated. "Abatable" means that the nuisance can be remedied at a reasonable cost by reasonable means [ McCoy v. Gustafson (2009) 180 CA4th 56, 84, 103 CR3d 37] .

Warning:

The lack of evidence of nature and extent of the continuing wrong precludes a finding of a continuing wrong [see, e.g., McCoy v. Gustafson (2009) 180 CA4th 56, 84, 103 CR3d 37] . To defeat a demurrer [see Chapter 11], plaintiff's counsel must therefore be prepared before trial to be able show the nature and extent of the continuing wrong, as well as the means by which it can be abated.

4.25 Filing Class Action Tolls Limitation Period Pending Certification.

4.25[1] Tolling Occurs Pending Certification. The filing of a class action may toll the running of the statute of limitations for the members of the putative class until class certification is denied [see Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 C3d 1103, 1121-1125, 245 CR 658, 751 P2d 923; Becker v. McMillin Constr. Co. (1991) 226 CA3d 1493, 1498-1502, 277 CR 491 ].

4.25[2] Two-Pronged Test Must Be Satisfied. Tolling occurs if the following two-pronged test is satisfied [ American Pipe & Constr. Co. v. Utah (1974) 414 US 538, 553, 94 S Ct 756, 38 L Ed2d 713 ]:

- Class action must protect efficiency and economy of litigation.
- Class action must notify defendant of claims and plaintiffs.

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.26

4.26 Condition on Obligation Tolls Limitation Period.

4.26[1] Complaint Should Not Be Filed Before Performance of Condition. If plaintiff files a complaint before performance of a condition precedent upon which the right to maintain an action against defendant depends, the complaint does not state a cause of action [ Wilson v. People ex rel. Dept. of Public Works (1969) 271 CA2d 665, 667-669, 76 CR 906 ]. Plaintiff must amend the complaint within the limitation period after the condition precedent has occurred.

Cross References:

Discussion of amended pleadings, see Ch. 34, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings; and California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 21, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings (Matthew Bender).

4.26[2] Limitation Period Begins When Condition Occurs. The limitation period for an action based on a liability that does not arise until the occurrence of a condition precedent commences to run only when that condition occurs [see Rose v. Foord (1892) 96 C 152, 154, 30 P 1114 ].

4.26[3] Plaintiff May Not Indefinitely Delay Performance of Condition. The running of the limitation period is not suspended when plaintiff indefinitely delays performance of a condition. A reasonable amount of time for performance is allowed, which is generally the statutory period [ Bass v. Hueter (1928) 205 C 284, 287, 270 P 958 ; Stafford v. Oil Tool Corp. (1955) 133 CA2d 763, 766, 284 P2d 937 ].

IV. DETERMINING IF STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS HAS BEEN TOLLED

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.27

4.27 Legal Inhibition to Sue Tolls Limitation Period.

4.27[1] Injunction or Statute Stays Action. When the commencement of an action is stayed by injunction or statutory prohibition, the time of the continuance of the injunction or prohibition is not part of the time limited for the commencement of the action [CCP § 356]. The running of the limitation period is suspended during any period in which plaintiff is legally restrained from taking action [see Eistrat v. Cekada (1958) 50 C2d 289, 291-292, 324 P2d 881 ; Record Machine & Tool Co. v. Pageman Holding Corp. (1959) 172 CA2d 164, 175, 342 P2d 402 ].

Exception:

The existence of a rule of law propounded in a judicial opinion that would defeat plaintiff's cause of action cannot be used as a legal inhibition to sue [ Estate of Horman (1971) 5 C3d 62, 71, cert. denied, 404 US 1015 (1972) ].

Cross References:

See 4.15[3][d].

Form alleging legal inhibition to sue, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 345.80 (Matthew Bender).

4.27[2] Special Rules Apply to Medical Malpractice Action. Because a plaintiff is not legally prevented from commencing a medical malpractice suit during the mandatory 90-day waiting period of CCP §§ 364, 365, there is no statutory prohibition requiring tolling under CCP § 356 during the 90-day waiting period [ Woods v. Young (1991) 53 C3d 315, 324, 279 CR 613, 807 P2d 455 ].

Exception:

Under certain circumstances, CCP § 364(d) tolls for 90 days the applicable statute of limitations for a health care provider's professional negligence. With regard to the one-year limitation period after discovery in CCP § 340.5, if the notice of intent to sue is served during the last 90 days of that one-year limitation period, the one-year period is tolled under CCP § 364(d) for 90 days. If the notice of intent to sue is served before the last 90 days of the one-year limitation period, CCP § 364(d) does not toll the one-year limitation period [ Woods v. Young (1991) 53 C3d 315, 325-326, 328, 279 CR 613, 807 P2d

4.28 Statute of Limitations Restarts After Appeal.

An action on a judgment may not be commenced until the judgment has become final, either on expiration of the period within which an appeal may be taken or, if an appeal is taken, on the issuance of the remittitur when the judgment has been affirmed [ Hoover v. Galbraith (1972) 7 C3d 519, 525-526, 102 CR 733, 498 P2d 981 ; Green v. Zissis (1992) 5 CA4th 1219, 1223, 7 CR2d 406 ].

If an appeal is taken, the statute of limitations restarts on the date the appellate court issues a remittitur. If it is not possible to bring an action to trial pending determination of an appeal in a related case, the time taken on that appeal is excluded from the limitation period [ Hoover v. Galbraith (1972) 7 C3d 519, 526, 102 CR 733, 498 P2d 981 ; Green v. Zissis (1992) 5 CA4th 1219, 1223, 7 CR2d 406 ].

4.29 Exhausting Administrative Remedies Suspends Statute of Limitations.

An attempt to exhaust administrative remedies before suing suspends the limitation period, even if exhaustion is not required. The attempt must be reasonable and made in good faith [ Campbell v. Graham-Armstrong (1973) 9 C3d 482, 490, 107 CR 777, 509 P2d 689 ; Permanente Med. Group v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1985) 171 CA3d 1171, 1183, 217 CR 873 ]. When exhaustion is required prior to filing suit, this exhaustion suspends the running of the limitation period from the time the claim is made until the decision [ Dillon v. Board of Pension Comm'rs (1941) 18 C2d 427, 431, 116 P2d 37 ; Community Cause v. Boatwright (1981) 124 CA3d 888, 903, 177 CR 657 ].

Chapter 4 Limitation of Actions
V. DETERMINING IF LIMITATION PERIOD HAS BEEN CHANGED

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.32

4.32 Limitation Period May Be Extended.

4.32[1] Amended Statute May Extend Limitation Period. The legislature may extend a limitation period by amending a statute of limitations. Extension is generally valid as to any cause of action then pending and not already barred [ Mudd v. McColgan (1947) 30 C2d 463, 468, 183 P2d 10 ; Battle v. Kessler (1983) 149 CA3d 853, 860, 197 CR 170 ].

A civil statute of limitations may also be extended retroactively to revive an action that was barred under the former statute of limitations [ Mid-Century Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2006) 138 CA4th 769, 776-777, 41 CR3d 833 ; Hellinger v. Farmers Group, Inc. (2001) 91 CA4th 1049, 1061, 111 CR2d 268 ].

4.32[2] Parties May Extend Limitation Period by Agreement. Parties to a contract are permitted to extend the limitation period for a cause of action [ Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners v. American Med. Int'l, Inc. (1995) 38 CA4th 1532, 1547-1548, 1549, 46 CR2d 33 ; FNB Mortgage Corp. v. Pacific Gen. Group (1999) 76 CA4th 1116, 1135, 90 CR2d 841 ].

Chapter 4 Limitation of Actions
V. DETERMINING IF LIMITATION PERIOD HAS BEEN CHANGED

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.33

4.33 Limitation Period May Be Shortened.

4.33[1] Amended Statute May Shorten Limitation Period.

4.33[1][a] Shortened Limitation Period Generally May Not Be Applied Retroactively. The legislature may shorten a limitation period, but the shortened period may not be applied retroactively to defeat an accrued cause of action that is not barred by the statute of limitations applicable before the new statute became effective [ Krusesky v. Baugh (1982) 138 CA3d 562, 566, 188 CR 57 ; Niagara Fire Ins. Co. v. Cole (1965) 235 CA2d 40, 42-43, 44 CR 889 ].

Exception:

Retroactive application of a shortened limitation period is permissible if the party has a reasonable amount of time to avail himself or herself of the remedy before the statute cuts off his or her rights [see Edward Fineman Co. v. Superior Court (1998) 66 CA4th 1110, 1125, 78 CR2d 478 ].

4.33[1][b] Affected Party Receives Grace Period. When a shortened limitation period is applied prospectively, a reasonable amount of time must be permitted for plaintiff to avail himself or herself of a remedy before the new statute takes effect [ Scheas v. Robertson (1951) 38 C2d 119, 125, 238 P2d 982 ; Espinosa v. Superior Court (1988) 202 CA3d 409, 413, 248 CR 375 ].

Warning--Plaintiff:

The court will not consider individual hardship if there was a reasonable time for the exercise of a remedy before the shortened limitation period became fixed by the new statute of limitations [ Rosefield Packing Co. v. Superior Court (1935) 4 C2d 120, 122, 124, 47 P2d 716 ; Mohlmann v. City of Burbank (1986) 179 CA3d 1037, 1044, 225 CR 109 ].

4.33[1][c] Court Conducts Due Process Analysis. When a statute of limitations is applied retroactively to accrued causes of action, a court must inquire whether retroactive application violates due process. If the time that is left to file suit is reasonable, no constitutional violation occurs and the statute will be applied. If no time is left or only an unreasonably short time remains, the statute will not be applied [ Fink v. Shedler (9th Cir 1999) 192 F3d 911, 915 ; Aronson v. Superior Court (1987) 191 CA3d 294, 297-298, 236 CR 347 ].

4.33[2] Clarified Statute May Be Applied Retroactively. Retroactive application of an amendment that merely clarifies a statute of limitations is permissible [ Noggle v. Bank of Am. (1999) 70 CA4th 853, 859, 82 CR2d 829 ].

4.33[3] Parties May Shorten Limitation Period by Agreement.

4.33[3][a] Shortened Limitation Period Must Be Reasonable. Parties may agree to shorten the limitation period by agreement. However, the limitation period cannot be so short as to show undue advantage in favor of one party [ Beeson v. Schloss (1920) 183 C 618, 622, 192 P 292 ; see West v. Henderson (1991) 227 CA3d 1578, 1585, 278 CR 570 ].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

If plaintiff opposes enforcement of the agreement that shortens the limitation period, he or she can show that the agreed upon period is unreasonable because its commencement fluctuating, vague, and indefinite.

Cross References:

Form alleging affirmative defense of shortened limitation period by agreement, see 4.67.

Discussion of shortening time, see Ch. 27, Service of Papers.

4.33[3][b] Strict Construction Applies When Limitation Period Is Shortened. Contractual provisions that limit the right to sue to a period shorter than that granted by a statute of limitations are disfavored and are generally strictly construed, although the entire contract need not be destroyed. Also, the rule should not be used to destroy the effect of a more specific rule of law that applies to the case [ Sanders v. American Cas. Co. (1969) 269 CA2d 306, 309, 74 CR 634 ].

VI. CALCULATING LIMITATION PERIOD

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.35

4.35 Courts Strictly Construe Statute of Limitations.

Statutes of limitations are generally strictly construed and applied according to their plain meaning [ Skidmore v. County of Alameda (1939) 13 C2d 534, 540, 90 P2d 577 ]. However, if there is doubt as to whether an action was timely brought, a court should not strain its construction of the statute to support defendant's plea of bar because of the statute [see County of Los Angeles v. Security First Nat'l Bank (1948) 84 CA2d 575, 580, 191 P2d 78 ; Herman v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transp. Auth. (1999) 71 CA4th 819, 826-827, 84 CR2d 144 ].

Warning--Plaintiff:

Courts that strictly construe statutes of limitations will bar an untimely action regardless of plaintiff's hardship or the underlying merits of the claim [see Skidmore v. County of Alameda (1939) 13 C2d 534, 540, 90 P2d 577 ; State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 210 CA3d 604, 612, 258 CR 413 ].

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.37

4.37 Number of Days Must Be Calculated.

4.37[1] First Day Is Excluded, Last Day Is Included. The limitation period is calculated by excluding the first day and including the last day [CCP § 12].

4.37[2] Saturdays, Sundays, and Holidays May Not Be Last Day. If the last day of the limitation period is a Saturday, Sunday, or holiday, it is excluded [CCP §§ 10, 12, 12a; Gov Code § 6700(a)]. The next day that is not a Saturday, Sunday, or holiday becomes the last day of the limitation period [CCP § 12a]. Holidays are listed in Gov Code § 6700.

4.37[3] Government Office Closure Considered Holiday. If any city, county, or state office, other than a branch office, is closed for the whole day, that day is considered a holiday for the purposes of computing the limitation period [CCP § 12b].

VII. RAISING STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS AS BAR TO ACTION

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.38

4.38 CHECKLIST: Raising Statute of Limitations As Bar to Action.

- ☐ Determine whether plaintiff's action was untimely.

Discussion:

See 4.39[1]

- ☐ Consider whether asserting bar of statute of limitations will be successful.

- ☐ Assert bar by demurrer to complaint if defect appears on face of complaint.

Authority:

CCP § 430.10

Form:

See 4.64

Grounds:

State that action is barred by statute of limitations.

- ☐ File and serve notice of hearing with demurrer.

Authority:

Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1320(c)

- ☐ Accompany demurrer with memorandum in support of each ground of demurrer.

Authority:

Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1113(a)

☐ Assert bar by answer as affirmative defense if pleading does not show on its face that limitation period has expired.

Authority:

CCP § 431.30(b)(2)

☐ Allege facts showing action is barred and indicate that lateness of commencement of action is urged as defense, or ☐ State generally that action is barred by provisions of specified section of California Code of Civil Procedure.

Authority:

CCP § 458

Form:

See 4.65

☐ Set up bar by amendment if answer did not raise defense.

☐ Assert bar in motion for summary judgment.

☐ File motion to strike the complaint with demurrer pleading same objection.

☐ Plaintiff may attack sufficiency of defendant's plea:

☐ By demurrer.

Timing:

Before trial and judgment.

Grounds:

Allege uncertainty if defendant's form of allegation under CCP § 458 is defective.

☐ By objection.

Timing:

At trial.

VII. RAISING STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS AS BAR TO ACTION

4.39 Burden-Shifting Analysis Applies.

4.39[1] Defendant Must Establish That Statute of Limitations Applies. Defendant must establish a prima facie case that the statute of limitations applies [ Burgon v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1979) 93 CA3d 813, 824, 155 CR 763 (overruled in part on other grounds in Samuels v. Mix (1999) 22 C4th 1, 91 CR2d 273, 989 P2d 701 )]. However, defendant need not show prejudice in order to have the statute of limitations enforced [ 65 Butterfield v. Chicago Title Ins. Co. (1999) 70 CA4th 1047, 1063, 83 CR2d 40 ; State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 210 CA3d 604, 612, 258 CR 413 ].

4.39[2] Plaintiff Must Establish Facts to Avoid Statute of Limitations. Once defendant establishes a prima facie case that the statute of limitations applies, the burden shifts to plaintiff to prove facts to avoid the statute of limitations [ Burgon v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1979) 93 CA3d 813, 824, 155 CR 763 (overruled in part on other grounds in Samuels v. Mix (1999) 22 C4th 1, 91 CR2d 273, 989 P2d 701 )]. When there is a reasonable possibility the complaint can be amended to allege facts sufficient to invoke a delayed discovery rule of accrual, the trial court abuses its discretion in sustaining a demurrer without leave to amend [ Curtis T. v. County of Los Angeles (2004) 123 CA4th 1405, 1422 ].

VIII. OBTAINING RELIEF FROM BAR OF STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.40

4.40 CHECKLIST: Obtaining Relief From Bar of Statute of Limitations.

- ☐ Examine statute of limitations for constitutional violations of due process.

Discussion:

See 4.41

- ☐ Plead equitable estoppel to bar defense of statute of limitations.

☐ Grounds are:

- ☐ Defendant was aware of limitation period.
- ☐ Defendant intended plaintiff to rely on conduct or statements.
- ☐ Plaintiff was ignorant of true facts.
- ☐ Plaintiff detrimentally relied on defendant's conduct or statements.

Discussion:

See 4.42

Form:

See 4.61

- ☐ Plead that defendant waived bar of statute of limitations.

☐ Grounds are:

- ☐ Defendant waived bar by agreement:
  - ☐ Set out clause from agreement waiving limitation period, or
  - ☐ Attach copy of agreement to complaint.

☐ Defendant waived bar by conduct.

☐ Defendant waived bar by failure to plead.

Discussion:

See 4.43

Form:

See 4.63

☐ If plaintiff must amend or supplement complaint, assert that it relates back to original complaint.

Discussion:

See 4.44, 4.45

☐ Defendant should plead that plaintiff is barred from raising equitable estoppel.

Grounds:

Plaintiff failed to use reasonable diligence to discover cause of action.

Discussion:

See 4.42[4]

☐ Defendant should assert that amended or supplemental complaint asserts new cause of action.

VIII. OBTAINING RELIEF FROM BAR OF STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.41

4.41 Statute of Limitations May Be Challenged As Unconstitutional.

The legislature may not provide for a statute of limitations that is so manifestly inequitable as to amount to a denial of justice [ Valley Circle Estates v. VTN Consol., Inc. (1983) 33 C3d 604, 615, 189 CR 871, 659 P2d 1160 ; Ocean S. R. Co. v. Santa Cruz (1961) 198 CA2d 267, 273, 17 CR 892 ].

When a statute of limitations is not self-executing and limits a cause of action that amounts to a property interest, it violates due process if it does not provide actual notice of the limitation period [ Tulsa Collection Servs. v. Pope (1988) 485 US 478, 486-488, 491, 108 S Ct 1340, 99 L Ed2d 565 ].

VIII. OBTAINING RELIEF FROM BAR OF STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.42

4.42 Equitable Estoppel May Prevent Defendant From Raising Bar of Statute of Limitations.

4.42[1] Equitable Estoppel Applies After Limitation Period Expires. Equitable estoppel applies after the limitation period has expired. The doctrine prevents defendant from benefitting from the defense of the statute of limitations because he or she acted in such a manner as to induce plaintiff into not bringing suit. Application of equitable estoppel is independent of the limitation period itself [ Lantzy v. Centex Homes (2003) 31 C4th 363, 383-384 ; Northwest Airlines, Inc. v. Ontario Aircraft Servs., Inc. (2002) 104 CA4th 1053, 1060-1061, 129 CR2d 146 ; Battuello v. Battuello (1998) 64 CA4th 842, 847-848, 75 CR2d 548 ].

Distinguish:

Equitable estoppel differs from tolling, which is concerned with the point at which the limitation period commences to run or the circumstances that may suspend the running of the limitation period [ Lantzy v. Centex Homes (2003) 31 C4th 363, 383-384 ; Leasequip, Inc. v. Dapeer (2002) 103 CA4th 394, 407, 126 CR2d 782 ; Battuello v. Battuello (1998) 64 CA4th 842, 847, 75 CR2d 548 ].

➡ Cross Reference:

Discussion of tolling, see 4.16 -4.30.

4.42[2] Plead Equitable Estoppel As Affirmative Bar to Defense of Statute of Limitations. Equitable estoppel must be pleaded and proved as an affirmative bar to the defense of the statute of limitations [ Hanson v. Garden Grove Unified Sch. Dist. (1982) 129 CA3d 942, 948, 181 CR 378 ]. The complaint must contain a statement of facts, not conclusions, constituting the grounds for estoppel [see Negaard v. Department of Aeronautics (1973) 32 CA3d 92 , cert. denied, 414 US 1069 (1973) ].

➡ Cross References:

Form of allegation raising equitable estoppel, see 4.61.

Form supporting motion, see California Points and Authorities, § 143.50 (Matthew Bender).

4.42[3] Plaintiff Must Establish Requirements for Equitable Estoppel.

4.42[3][a] Defendant Was Aware of Limitation Period. Plaintiff must show that defendant knew of the statute of limitations [ Kleinecke v. Montecito Water Dist. (1983) 147 CA3d 240, 245-247, 195 CR 58 ].

4.42[3][b] Defendant Intended That Plaintiff Should Rely on His or Her Conduct or Statements. Plaintiff must establish that defendant intentionally acted or made statements in order to induce plaintiff to rely on such conduct or statements [ Kleinecke v. Montecito Water Dist. (1983) 147 CA3d 240, 245-247, 195 CR 58 ].

4.42[3][c] Plaintiff Was Ignorant of True Facts. Plaintiff must prove that he or she was genuinely ignorant of the true state of facts [ Kleinecke v. Montecito Water Dist. (1983) 147 CA3d 240, 245-247, 195 CR 58 ].

4.42[3][d] Plaintiff Relied on Defendant's Conduct or Statements to His or Her Detriment. Plaintiff must show that he or she in fact relied on defendant's conduct or statements to his or her detriment [ Kleinecke v. Montecito Water Dist. (1983) 147 CA3d 240, 245-247, 195 CR 58 ].

The conduct that forms the estoppel need not be performed in bad faith or with an intent to mislead plaintiff [ Barr v. ACandS, Inc. (1997) 57 CA4th 1038, 1057, 67 CR2d 494 (overruled in part on other grounds in Hamilton v. Asbestos Corp. (2000) 22 C4th 1127, 95 CR2d 701, 998 P2d 403 )].

Warning:

Should defendant's conduct include offers to fix problem in lieu of suit, failure to adequately plead facts that defendant's conduct actually and reasonably induced plaintiff to forebear suing within limitations period will preclude equitable estoppel. Complaint must include facts indicating defendant's conduct directly prevented plaintiff from filing suit on time [ Lantzy v. Centex Homes (2003) 31 C4th 363, 383-385 ].

4.42[4] Court Applies Reasonable Diligence Test to Plaintiff's Actions. The court must determine whether plaintiff's failure to discover the cause of action earlier was due to plaintiff's failure to act with reasonable diligence. The test of reasonable diligence is whether plaintiff had sufficient information to put a reasonable person on inquiry or opportunity to obtain knowledge from sources open to investigation. [ Snow v. A.H. Robins Co. (1985) 165 CA3d 120, 128, 129, 211 CR 271 ]. After estoppel has expired, plaintiff has a reasonable time within which to bring an action.

Reasonable Diligence:

Filing a timely Doe complaint to facilitate discovery of defendant's identity within the requisite time period for service of process [ Bernson v. Browning-Ferris Indus. (1994) 7 C4th 926, 936-937, 30 CR2d 440, 873 P2d 613 ].

If possible, before litigation has commenced, use an investigator and Internet searches to ascertain the identity of a prospective defendant or the relationship between the parties--including research to identify other, similar litigation. After litigation has commenced, make discovery inquiries of the other parties, some of which may have a relationship with the party that had not yet been sued.

Unreasonable Diligence:

The statute of limitations in plaintiff's products liability action against a manufacturer of intrauterine contraceptive devices was not tolled, even though the manufacturer allegedly fraudulently concealed the actual pregnancy rate associated with the use of the device. Plaintiff failed to use reasonable diligence because she became aware of facts giving rise to the cause of action within the limitation period by virtue of her miscarriage [ Braxton-Secret v. A.H. Robins Co. (9th Cir 1985) 769 F2d 528, 531-532 ].

4.42[5] Court Inquires Into Timing of Defendant's Fraudulent Act. A fraudulent act committed after the limitation period has expired is not considered fraudulent concealment of a cause of action by defendant [ Scafidi v. Western Loan & Bldg. Co. (1946) 72 CA2d 550, 566, 165 P2d 260 ].

4.42[6] Examples of Establishing Equitable Estoppel.

4.42[6][a] Defendant Was Silent. Equitable estoppel may arise when defendant remained silent while he or she had a duty to speak [see Spray, Gould & Bowers v. Associated Int'l Ins. Co. (1999) 71 CA4th 1260, 1265, 1267-1269, 84 CR2d 552 (insurer that failed to satisfy duty to notify insured of time limits pertaining to claim was equitably estopped from asserting statute of limitations as defense); Northwest Airlines, Inc. v. Ontario Aircraft Servs., Inc. (2002) 104 CA4th 1053, 1060, 129 CR2d 146 ].

4.42[6][b] Defendant Fraudulently Concealed Cause of Action. When defendant is guilty of fraudulently concealing the facts on which plaintiff's cause of action depends, the statute of limitations is tolled until plaintiff discovers or should have discovered the facts [ Hernandez v. Garcetti (1998) 68 CA4th 675, 680-681, 80 CR2d 443 ].

Warning--Plaintiff:

Defendant's negligent failure to disclose a cause of action is not sufficient to toll the statute of limitations [ Community Cause v. Boatwright (1981) 124 CA3d 888, 901, 177 CR 657 ]. In addition, nondisclosure of a material fact is not fraudulent concealment of a cause of action [ Hesse v. Vinatieri (1956) 145 CA2d 448, 451, 302 P2d 699 ].

Exception:

When defendant has a duty of disclosure.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of defendant's duty of disclosure, see 4.42[6][a].

Warning--Plaintiff:

If plaintiff is aware of the cause of action, defendant's fraudulent concealment will not toll the limitation period [ Snyder v. Boy Scouts of Am., Inc. (1988) 205 CA3d 1318, 1323, 253 CR 156 ].

4.42[6][c] Defendant Fraudulently Concealed His or Her Identity. Defendant may be equitably estopped from asserting the statute of limitations as a defense if his or her intentional concealment caused plaintiff to be unable to discover defendant's actual identity [ Bernson v. Browning-Ferris Indus. (1994) 7 C4th 926, 936, 30 CR2d 440, 873 P2d 613 ].

Warning--Plaintiff:

Plaintiff's lack of knowledge alone is not sufficient to stay the statute of limitations [ Bernson v. Browning-Ferris Indus. (1994) 7 C4th 926, 936, 30 CR2d 440, 873 P2d 613 ].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

Plaintiff should use reasonable diligence to discover defendant's identity and investigate reasonably available avenues of inquiry.

Cross References:

Discussion of plaintiff's reasonable diligence, see 4.42[4].

4.42[6][d] Defendant's Fraud Induced Plaintiff to Refrain From Suing. Equitable estoppel may apply if defendant induced plaintiff to refrain from bringing a timely action by fraud, misrepresentation, or other deception, with regard to factors other than the existence of the actual cause of action [ Kleinecke v. Montecito Water Dist. (1983) 147

CA3d 240, 245-247, 195 CR 58 ].

4.42[6][e] Defendant's Intimidation or Violence Induced Plaintiff to Refrain From Suing. Estoppel may be established by acts of intimidation or violence that are intended to prevent the filing of claim [ V.C. v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (2006) 139 CA4th 499, 516, 43 CR3d 103 ]. In assessing the propriety of applying equitable estoppel in view of evidence of intimidation or violence, the court must assess not only whether the threats occurred, but also when the effect of the threat ceased and whether plaintiff acted within a reasonable time after the coercive effect of the threat ended [ V.C. v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (2006) 139 CA4th 499, 517, 43 CR3d 103 (plaintiff failed to bring claim diligently after effect of coercion ended)].

Chapter 4 Limitation of Actions
VIII. OBTAINING RELIEF FROM BAR OF STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.43

4.43 Defendant May Waive Bar of Statute of Limitations.

4.43[1] By Agreement.

4.43[1][a] Limitation Period May Be Extended. Parties to a cause of action may agree to forego the statute of limitations for a certain period. The agreement is considered an estoppel against the pleading of the bar of the statute of limitations [ Kemper v. Industrial Accident Comm'n (1918) 177 C 618, 620, 171 P 426 ; FNB Mortgage Corp. v. Pacific Gen. Group (1999) 76 CA4th 1116, 90 CR2d 841 ]. The agreement may give plaintiff the right to sue at his or her convenience and whenever desired [ Atlas Fin. Corp. v. Kenny (1945) 68 CA2d 504, 514-517, 157 P2d 401 ]. The agreement may waive forever defendant's right to plead the bar of the statute in certain cases [ Brownrigg v. DeFrees (1925) 196 C 534, 546, 238 P 714 ].

Exception:

CCP § 360.5 provides that no waiver executed prior to the expiration of the statute limitations may be effective for a period exceeding four years from the date of expiration of the limitation period, and no waiver executed after the expiration of the period may be effective for a period exceeding four years from the date thereof. However, any such waiver may be renewed for a period not exceeding four years from the expiration of the preceding waiver. Such waivers may be made successively [CCP § 360.5; Carlton Browne & Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 210 CA3d 35, 40-46, 258 CR 118 ].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff or Cross-Plaintiff:

Often, a tolling agreement is a useful means of preserving a claim that would be undesirable to assert because it would be inconsistent with a claim that is the subject of pending litigation. Although permitted, alternative and inconsistent pleading is often undesirable from a tactical standpoint. For example, a policyholder may sue an insurer claiming that the policy provides coverage and enter a tolling agreement against its insurance broker for a potential claim if the court determines that the insurance policy did not provide coverage.

Frequently, tolling and standstill agreements are also helpful means of allowing the parties to attempt to negotiate a settlement while preserving the status quo. They allow the parties to preserve prospective claims or defenses without waiver caused by the mere passage of time.

Cross References:

Discussion of extension of limitation period by agreement, see 4.32[2].

Form alleging extension of limitation period by agreement, see 4.63.

4.43[1][b] Writing Is Required When Defense Is Barred. A written instrument is required when a party's waiver is designed to bar the defense of the statute of limitations. The writing must be signed by the person obligated [CCP § 360.5] or by the authorized agent of the person obligated [ Carlton Browne & Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 210 CA3d 35, 46, 258 CR 118 ].

4.43[1][c] Waiver Binds Persons in Privity. An agreement to extend the limitation period binds the parties to the agreement but has no effect on other potential parties with whom no privity exists [ FNB Mortgage Corp. v. Pacific Gen. Group (1999) 76 CA4th 1116, 1121, 1129-1131, 1135-1136, 90 CR2d 841 ].

Exception:

A non-party to the agreement, such as a third-party beneficiary, must take the contract as he or she finds it in order to benefit under it [see Sanders v. American Cas. Co. (1969) 269 CA2d 306, 308-310, 74 CR 634 ; Marina Tenants Assn. v. Deauville Marina Dev. Co. (1986) 181 CA3d 122, 132, 226 CR 321 ].

4.43[2] By Conduct.

4.43[2][a] Defendant May Waive Bar by Being Silent. Under some circumstances, defendant's silence may create an equitable estoppel that would deprive him or her of the right to plead the bar of the statute of limitations [ Atlas Fin. Corp. v. Kenny (1945) 68 CA2d 504, 517, 157 P2d 401 ].

4.43[2][b] Defendant May Waive Bar by Acting Inconsistently With Claim of Bar. A defendant who acted inconsistently with a claim of bar of a statute of limitations before plaintiff filed suit may be considered to have waived his or her right to plead the statute as a defense [ Lerner v. Los Angeles Bd. of Educ. (1963) 59 C2d 382, 396, 29 CR 657, 380 P2d 97 ; Isaacson v. Oakland (1968) 263 CA2d 414, 419, 69 CR 379 ].

4.43[3] By Failure to Plead.

4.43[3][a] Statute of Limitations Defense Must Be Raised in Trial Court. The defense of the statute of limitations is typically waived by failure to plead, or to adequately plead, the defense [see Hall v. Chamberlain (1948) 31 C2d 673, 679-680, 192 P2d 759 ; O'Neil v. Spillane (1975) 45 CA3d 147, 156, 119 CR 245 ] in the trial court [ Trabuco Highlands Cmty. Ass'n v. Head (2002) 96 CA4th 1183, 1192, 117 CR2d 842 ; Stalberg v. Western Title Ins. Co. (1991) 230 CA3d 1223, 1232, 282 CR 43 ].

4.43[3][b] Plaintiff's Delay Is Immaterial. Once plaintiff files suit, defendant waives the defense of the statute of limitations if he or she does not timely raise the bar, no matter how long plaintiff delayed [ Hambrech & Quist Venture Partners v. American Med. Int'l, Inc. (1995) 38 CA4th 1532, 1548, 46 CR2d 33 ].

Chapter 4 Limitation of Actions

VIII. OBTAINING RELIEF FROM BAR OF STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.44

4.44 Plaintiff's Amended Complaint May Relate Back.

4.44[1] Relation Back Occurs If Test Is Met. Plaintiff's amended complaint may relate back to the filing of the original complaint and avoid the bar of the statute of limitations if the following conditions are met [ Norgart v. Upjohn Co. (1999) 21 C4th 383, 409, 87 CR2d 453, 981 P2d 79 ; Edwards v. Superior Court (2001) 93 CA4th 172, 180, 112 CR2d 838 ]:

- Both pleadings must rest on the same general set of facts.
- Both pleadings must involve the same injury.
- Both pleadings must refer to the same instrumentality.

► Cross References:

Discussion of amended complaints in general, see Ch. 34, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings; and California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 21, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings (Matthew Bender).

4.44[2] Changing or Adding Information Is Permitted.

4.44[2][a] Legal Theory May Be Changed If Parties Stay the Same. An amended complaint that merely changes the legal theory of the original complaint is allowable, even if additional incidental facts are alleged, provided the parties remain the same [ Grudt v. City of Los Angeles (1970) 2 C3d 575, 584, 86 CR 465, 468 P2d 825 ].

An amended complaint does not relate back if a new plaintiff joins a suit brought before the statute of limitations has run against the original plaintiff and seeks to enforce an independent right [ Quiroz v. Seventh Ave. Center (2006) 140 CA4th 1256, 1278-1279, 45 CR3d 222 ; Parker v. Superior Court (1985) 175 CA3d 1082, 1088-1091, 223 CR 292 ].

4.44[2][b] Facts May Be Added. An amended complaint that merely adds matters as a means of completing the original cause of action relates back to the time of the commencement of the actions even if the amendment is made after the limitation period has expired, as long as the amendment does not state a new cause of action [ Stockwell v.

McAlvay (1937) 10 C2d 368, 375, 74 P2d 504 ]. An allegation in the amended complaint may merely add an incidental fact reasonably inferential from the facts alleged in the original complaint [see Grudt v. City of Los Angeles (1970) 2 C3d 575, 584, 86 CR 465, 468 P2d 825 ; Barnes v. Wilson (1974) 40 CA3d 199, 205, 114 CR 839 ].

4.44[2][c] Damages May Be Added. An amended complaint alleging special damages not mentioned in the original complaint may relate back to the original complaint, as long as the special damages are the result of the injury alleged in the original complaint [ Walton v. Guinn (1986) 187 CA3d 1354, 1362, 232 CR 451 ].

4.44[2][d] Caption or Prayer May Be Changed. An amended complaint that merely changes the caption or relief prayed for has no effect on whether the complaint was originally filed within the limitation period, as long as it does not state a new cause of action or bring in new parties [ Kent v. San Francisco Sav. Union (1900) 130 C 401, 406, 62 P 620 ].

4.44[2][e] New Plaintiff May Be Substituted Based on Technical Defect. Courts generally allow leave to substitute a new plaintiff based on a technical defect in plaintiff's status, such as an honest mistake in the naming of the party [ Cloud v. Northrop Grumman Corp. (1998) 67 CA4th 995, 1000, 1004-1008, 1011, 79 CR2d 544 ]. However, courts will not allow an amendment that interjects a new party into the litigation for the first time under the guise of a misnomer [ Meller & Snyder v. R & T Props., Inc. (1998) 62 CA4th 1303, 1313, 73 CR2d 740 ; Kerr-McGee Chem. Corp. v. Superior Court (1984) 160 CA3d 594, 598-605, 206 CR 654 ].

To determine whether an amendment to change plaintiff's name relates back to avoid the bar of the statute of limitations, a court will look at whether the nature of the action is substantially changed [ Cloud v. Northrop Grumman Corp. (1998) 67 CA4th 995, 1000, 1006-1008, 1011, 79 CR2d 544 ].

4.44[2][f] Defendant's True Name May Be Added. A party sued by fictitious name under CCP § 474 and later brought into the proceeding by an amendment substituting his or her true name for the fictitious name is considered a party to the proceeding from its commencement for the purpose of the statute of limitations [ Austin v. Massachusetts Bonding & Ins. Co. (1961) 56 C2d 596, 600, 15 CR 817, 364 P2d 681 ; Woo v. Superior Court (1999) 75 CA4th 169, 176, 89 CR2d 20 ]. CCP § 474 should be liberally construed [ Austin v. Massachusetts Bonding & Ins. Co. (1961) 56 C2d 596, 602-603 ; Barnes v. Wilson (1974) 40 CA3d 199, 203, 114 CR 839 ].

An amended pleading may rest on a different legal theory and state a different cause of action, even against a defendant not named in the original complaint, and still relate back to the time the original complaint was filed if plaintiff seeks recovery for the same accident and the same injuries [see Olson v. Volkswagen of Am. (1988) 201 CA3d 1437, 1442-1443, 247 CR 719 ]. The new defendant needs no previously established relationship with the original defendant in order that the amended complaint relate back to the original complaint [see Barnes v. Wilson (1974) 40 CA3d 199, 202-205, 114 CR 839 ].

Warning--Plaintiff:

Plaintiff's ignorance of the identity of the fictitiously named defendant at the time the complaint is filed must be real and not feigned [CCP § 474].

4.44[3] Variance of Proof May Be Cured. As long as plaintiff does not change the cause of action, an amendment to cure a variance between allegations and proof has no effect on whether the action was originally filed within the limitation period. Such an amendment relates back to the time when the complaint was originally filed [see Smullen v. Phillips (1891) 92 C 408, 411, 28 P 442 ].

4.45 Plaintiff's Supplemental Complaint May Relate Back.

4.45[1] Supplemental Claims Must Relate to Those in Original Complaint. Whether a supplemental complaint may encompass the entire period following commencement of suit depends on the nature of the claims raised in the supplemental pleading. The statute of limitations will not be applied if the claims are related to those alleged in the initial complaint or rely on conduct or events that are the same as those involved in the original action. [ Bendix Corp. v. City of Los Angeles (1984) 150 CA3d 921, 926, 198 CR 370 ].

4.45[2] Original Pleading Must Have Given Notice That Wrongful Conduct Was Continuing. If the original pleading gave notice that the alleged wrongful conduct was of a continuing nature, supplemental pleadings addressed to the same conduct will relate back to the date of the original pleading [ Bendix Corp. v. City of Los Angeles (1984) 150 CA3d 921, 926, 198 CR 370 ; see Ocean Servs. Corp. v. Ventura Port Dist. (1993) 15 CA4th 1762, 1778, 19 CR2d 750 ].

Chapter 4 Limitation of Actions

VIII. OBTAINING RELIEF FROM BAR OF STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.46

4.46 Certain Procedures Should Be Considered.

4.46[1] Reversed Judgment. If an action is commenced within the applicable limitation period and a judgment for plaintiff is reversed on appeal on grounds other than the merits, plaintiff may commence a new action within one year after the reversal [CCP § 355]. CCP § 355 does not apply if judgment for plaintiff is reversed on appeal and the cause is remanded for a new trial [see Watterson v. Owens River Canal Co. (1922) 190 C 88, 95, 210 P 625 ].

Cross Reference:

Form supporting motion, see California Points and Authorities, § 143.43 (Matthew Bender).

4.46[2] Dismissal. The protection of CCP § 355 should extend to a plaintiff who was not allowed to proceed to trial on the merits because of a trial court's error [ Bollinger v. National Fire Ins. Co. (1944) 25 C2d 399, 409-410, 411, 154 P2d 399 ]. However, if the court properly declares an involuntary dismissal because of plaintiff's lack of prosecution, the failure to secure a trial on the merits could be seen as plaintiff's own failure. In such a case, a new action is barred if the limitation period has expired before the action is again commenced [see Tannhauser v. Adams (1947) 31 C2d 169, 177-178, 187 P2d 716 ; Stuckman v. Woodhull (1959) 170 CA2d 424, 426-427, 338 P2d 934 ].

4.46[3] Summary Judgment. Although resolution of the statute-of-limitations issue is normally a question of fact, summary judgment is proper if there are uncontradicted facts that are susceptible of only one legitimate inference [ San Diego Unified School Dist. v. County of San Diego (2009) 170 CA4th 288, 300, 87 CR3d 796 ; Romano v. Rockwell Int'l, Inc. (1996) 14 C4th 479, 487, 59 CR2d 20, 926 P2d 1114 ].

VIII. OBTAINING RELIEF FROM BAR OF STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.47

4.47 Mistake by Court Clerk May Provide Relief From Bar.

Representations made by a court clerk may be construed as an extrinsic mistake giving rise to equitable relief and may therefore preclude application of a statute of limitations [see Mirvis v. Crowder (1995) 32 CA4th 1684, 1686-1688, 38 CR2d 644 ].

Exception:

A motion under CCP § 473(b) for relief based on mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect is not available to provide relief from an error that results in the running of the statute of limitations [see Life Sav. Bank v. Wilhelm (2000) 84 CA4th 174, 177, 100 CR2d 657 ; Carlson v. Department of Fish & Game (1998) 68 CA4th 1268, 1279, 80 CR2d 601 ].

IX. RAISING AND OPPOSING LACHES

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.49

4.49 CHECKLIST: Raising and Opposing Laches.

4.49[1] Defendant's Checklist.

- ☐ Determine whether to raise the issue of laches.
  - ☐ Grounds are:
    - ☐ Plaintiff inexcusably and unreasonably delayed commencement of action, and
    - ☐ Defendant was prejudiced by plaintiff's delay.
  - ☐ Consider probability of success:
    - ☐ If plaintiff's delay was minimal, likelihood of success is lower.
    - ☐ If plaintiff's delay was lengthy, likelihood of success is higher.
    - ☐ Delay caused by defendant may estop defendant from relying on laches.
    - ☐ Compare any applicable statute of limitations.

Discussion:

See 4.53 -4.55

- ☐ Determine how to raise the issue of laches:

- ☐ If facts constituting laches appear on face of complaint, raise by demurrer.
- ☐ Otherwise, raise by affirmative defense in answer.

☐ If plaintiff contests issue and summary adjudication does not settle issue, consider seeking trial of defense before other issues.

Authority:

CCP §§ 430.10, 597

Discussion:

See 4.52

Form:

See 4.68

4.49[2] Plaintiff's Checklist.

- ☐ Evaluate the defense.
  - ☐ Grounds are:
    - ☐ Plaintiff inexcusably and unreasonably delayed commencement of action, and
    - ☐ Defendant was prejudiced by plaintiff's delay.
- ☐ Facts to gather and consider are:
  - ☐ Whether plaintiff had good reason for delay.
  - ☐ Whether defendant caused or contributed to delay.
  - ☐ What prejudice defendant experienced as a result of any delay caused by plaintiff.

Discussion:

See 4.54, 4.55

- ☐ Respond by:
  - ☐ Opposing demurrer.
  - ☐ Resisting affirmative defense as appropriate by:

☐ Demurrer to answer.

☐ Summary judgment or summary adjudication of the defense.

☐ If summary adjudication does not settle issue, consider seeking trial of defense before trial of other issues.

IX. RAISING AND OPPOSING LACHES

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.50

4.50 Laches Provides an Equitable Defense.

Laches is a defense to a suit in equity whereby plaintiff may be refused equitable relief because of his or her delay in bringing suit, even though the suit is commenced within the statutory limitation period [ Trail v. Firth (1921) 186 C 68, 69, 198 P 1033 ; see In re Marriage of Dancy (2000) 82 CA4th 1142, 1150, 98 CR2d 775 ].

Chapter 4 Limitation of Actions
IX. RAISING AND OPPOSING LACHES

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.51

4.51 Plaintiff Must Assert Equitable Rights.

The defense of laches is a creature of equity and not a defense at law [ Barkley v. City of Blue Lake (1996) 47 CA4th 309, 315, 54 CR2d 679 ]. In an action at law or an action in which plaintiff asserts no equitable rights, the statute of limitations rather than the doctrine of laches governs [see Brownrigg v. DeFrees (1925) 196 C 534, 539, 238 P 714 ; see United States Capital Corp. v. Nickelberry (1981) 120 CA3d 864, 867-868, 174 CR 814 ].

Chapter 4 Limitation of Actions
IX. RAISING AND OPPOSING LACHES

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.52

4.52 Laches Should Be Pleaded.

The general rule is that defendant cannot raise laches when neither defendant nor the complaint pleaded facts showing laches [see Hamud v. Hawthorne (1959) 52 C2d 78, 84, 338 P2d 387 ; Reed v. Norman (1953) 41 C2d 17, 21-22, 256 P2d 930 ].

Exception:

In extraordinary cases, a court may deny equitable relief on its own initiative if the evidence shows that plaintiff is guilty of laches [ Akley v. Bassett (1922) 189 C 625, 648, 209 P 576 ].

Laches may be raised by demurrer if the facts constituting laches are apparent on the face of the complaint [see Neet v. Holmes (1944) 25 C2d 447, 460 ]. Where the facts constituting laches are not so apparent, laches should be raised in an answer [ Sangiolo v. Sangiolo (1978) 87 CA3d 511, 514, 151 CR 27 ].

When the answer or demurrer pleads that the action is barred by the statute of limitations or sets up any other defense not involving the merits of plaintiff's cause of action, but constituting a bar or ground of abatement, the court may, either upon its own motion or upon the motion of any party, proceed to the trial of the special defense or defenses before the trial of any other issue in the case [CCP § 597].

Cross References:

Strategic Point--Defendant:

Plead laches so that the court need not determine whether the case is extraordinary.

Chapter 4 Limitation of Actions
IX. RAISING AND OPPOSING LACHES

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.53

4.53 Court Considers Two Factors When Laches Is Asserted.

4.53[1] Unreasonable Delay Plus Plaintiff's Acquiescence or Material Change to Defendant's Prejudice. The defense of laches requires unreasonable delay plus either acquiescence in the act about which plaintiff complains or prejudice to defendant resulting from the delay [ Johnson v. City of Loma Linda (2000) 24 C4th 61, 68, 99 CR2d 316 ; Bono v. Clark (2002) 103 CA4th 1409, 1418, 128 CR2d 31 ].

There is no rule specifying the lapse of time that will justify the application of the doctrine of laches. The court will look to the extent of prejudice to defendant and to the reasonableness of plaintiff's actions. The greater the prejudice, the more timely the relief should have been sought [see In re Marriage of Modnick (1983) 33 C3d 897, 909, 191 CR 629, 663 P2d 187 ].

4.53[2] Statute of Limitations. In determining whether plaintiff's delay in bringing suit has been reasonable, the court may use a statute of limitations as a guide [see Vai v. Bank of Am. (1961) 56 C2d 329, 343, 15 CR 71, 364 P2d 247 ; Robert F. Kennedy Med. Ctr. v. Department of Health Servs. (1998) 61 CA4th 1357, 1362, 72 CR2d 180 ]. The court will look to the strength of analogy between the statute of limitations and the circumstances under which laches is sought [ Fountain Valley Reg'l Hosp. & Med. Ctr. v. Bonta (1999) 75 CA4th 316, 323-325, 89 CR2d 139 ].

IX. RAISING AND OPPOSING LACHES

1-4 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 4.54

4.54 Burden of Proof May Shift.

4.54[1] Proponent of Laches Has Burden When Demonstrating Unreasonable Delay and Prejudice by Evidence. The proponent of laches has the burden of proof on the issue, which may be shown by the evidence in the case [ Fountain Valley Reg'l Hosp. & Med. Ctr. v. Bonta (1999) 75 CA4th 316, 323-325, 89 CR2d 139 ].

Exception:

If the delay exceeds an analogous statute of limitations, a presumption may shift the burden of proof [ Fountain Valley Reg'l Hosp. & Med. Ctr. v. Bonta (1999) 75 CA4th 316, 323-325, 89 CR2d 139 ].

4.54[2] Opponent of Laches Has Burden If Delay Exceeds Analogous Limitation Period. The element of prejudice may be presumed if a statute of limitations exists that is sufficiently analogous to the facts of the case and the limitation period has been exceeded by plaintiff. In such case, the limitation period is borrowed from the analogous statute [see City of Oakland v. Public Employees' Ret. Sys. (2002) 95 CA4th 29, 51, 115 CR2d 151 ], and the burden of proof shifts from the party asserting laches to the party opposing laches. The party opposing the application of laches must [ Fountain Valley Reg'l Hosp. & Med. Ctr. v. Bonta (1999) 75 CA4th 316, 323-325, 89 CR2d 139 ]:

- Show that the delay was excusable.
- Rebut the presumption of prejudice.

When no statute of limitations sufficiently analogous to the facts of the case exists, prejudice is not presumed and defendant must affirmatively demonstrate prejudice to sustain his or her burden of proof [see Miller v. Eisenhower Med. Ctr. (1980) 27 C3d 614, 624, 166 CR 826, 614 P2d 258 ; Board of Admin. v. Wilson (1997) 52 CA4th 1109, 1126-1127, 61 CR2d 207 ].

4.55[2] Defendant Cannot Have Unclean Hands. Because laches is an equitable remedy, defendant must come into court with clean hands [ In re Marriage of Dancy (2000) 82 CA4th 1142, 1157, 98 CR2d 775 ; see Piscioneri v. City of Ontario (2002) 95 CA4th 1037, 1053, 116 CR2d 38 ].

4.60 Allegation--Suspension of Period of Limitation--Reversal of Judgment for Plaintiff on Appeal.

1. On _____ [date], Plaintiff filed a complaint against Defendant _____ [name, unless there is only one defendant] in _____ [this court or name and location of court] for the same relief sought in the present action. Judgment in that former action was entered for Plaintiff, but that judgment was reversed on appeal other than on the merits by _____ [name of appellate court and, if not California court, jurisdiction]. _____ [Date of "reversal" as referred to in CCP § 355; if California appellate court, e.g., On January 1, 2000, the remittitur was entered by the clerk of the Court of Appeal of California, Sixth Appellate District in the register].

4.61 Allegation--Defendant Estopped to Raise Defense of Bar.

1. On _____ [date], Defendant _____ [name, unless there is only one defendant] _____ [specify acts establishing estoppel, e.g., informed Plaintiff that Defendant would settle Plaintiff's claim and pay Plaintiff the sum of $ 100, which was acceptable to Plaintiff. Defendant promised to pay that sum forthwith. However, no payment was made as of _____ (date of last day of period of limitation). Between those dates, Plaintiff refrained from filing a complaint because of Defendant's continued assurances that payment was forthcoming. Plaintiff relied on Defendant's promises to pay because of Defendant's relationship to plaintiff as plaintiff's _____ (specify, e.g., employer). On _____ (date), Plaintiff discovered that Defendant never had any intention of paying any settlement sum but, instead, intended to induce Plaintiff not to commence an action and, thus, to prevent Plaintiff not to commence an action within the period of limitation].

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 5.01

5.01 Scope.

This chapter covers:

- Standing, including issues of real parties in interest [see 5.03 -5.07].
- Capacity, including issues regarding corporations, limited liability companies, unincorporated associations, partnerships, decedents and their representatives, businesses with fictitious names, minors, and incompetents [see 5.08 -5.17].
- Guardians ad litem [see 5.18 -5.29; Forms: see 5.56, 5.57].
- Joinder of parties, both compulsory and permissive [see 5.30-5.33; Forms: see 5.53 -5.55].
- Objecting to nonjoinder and misjoinder [see 5.34 -5.38].
- Fictitiously named defendants [see 5.39 -5.43].
- Interpleading parties [see 5.44 -5.52; Forms: see 5.58 -5.63].

Discussion/checklists/forms relating to personal jurisdiction, see Ch. 9, Motions to Quash and Other Objections to Personal Jurisdiction.

Discussion/checklists/forms relating to service of summons, see Ch. 8, Service of Summons.

Chapter 5 Parties
I. STRATEGY

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 5.02

5.02 Objective and Strategy.

5.02[1] Capacity and Standing. The objective of the standing requirement is to avoid wasting judicial resources in litigation by parties who lack a real interest in the subject matter. Standing refers to a right to relief on the cause of action alleged. By comparison, capacity to sue is the right to come into court [ Parker v. Bowron (1953) 40 C2d 344, 351, 254 P2d 6 ]. A defendant uses challenges to both standing and capacity to collaterally attack plaintiff's action. Plaintiffs can challenge capacity if a defendant is an entity that lacks the capacity to defend an action [see, e.g., R&T Code § 23301 (failure of corporation to pay taxes)].

Lack of capacity is a plea in abatement, which is waived if not raised by demurrer or answer [see Color-Vue, Inc. v. Abrams (1996) 44 CA4th 1599, 1604, 52 CR2d 443 (plea waived)].

Because it goes to the right to relief, lack of standing may be raised at any point in the proceeding [ Common Cause of Cal. v. Board of Supervisors (1989) 49 C3d 432, 438, 261 CR 574, 777 P2d 610 (plaintiffs had standing); Parker v. Bowron (1953) 40 C2d 344, 351, 254 P2d 6 (distinguishing capacity and standing; plaintiffs lacked standing)].

Investigating Potential Parties Using Online Resources:

The attorney's investigation of existing and potential adversaries (and perhaps allied parties) who may have been parties in other litigation can be greatly facilitated by information and leads from online resources. For example, helpful resources at lexis.com include:

- Legal tab > States Legal--U.S. > California > Find Cases > CA Federal & State Cases, Combined.

Sample Search: To learn about other litigation in which the person or entity was a party, try a NAME segment search of the case law: name(name of company).

- Legal tab > States Legal--U.S. > California > Public Records > Find Filings > Civil & Criminal Court Filings and Regulatory Actions > Combined State Civil and Criminal Filings.

☐ Sample Search: A NAME segment search in docket materials may provide information about other litigation in which the person or entity was a party: name(name of company).

■ Legal tab > States Legal--U.S. > California > Public Records > Find Filings > Civil & Criminal Court Filings and Regulatory Actions > Combined State Civil and Criminal Filings.

☐ Sample Search: To discover possible criminal activity of a party, try a search in criminal case filings: first name /3 last name.

■ Legal tab > States Legal--U.S. > California > Public Records > Find Filings > Civil & Criminal Court Filings and Regulatory Actions > Judgments and Liens.

☐ Sample Search: A NAME segment search in the Judgment and Lien Filings also provides information about past litigation: name(name of company).

■ Legal tab > States Legal--U.S. > California > Public Records > Find Filings > Civil & Criminal Court Filings and Regulatory Actions > Bankruptcy Filings.

☐ Sample Search: A single search of bankruptcy filings, real property records, person and business locator sources, liens, federal district court docket information, secretary of state, and license information may be done in this search format: name(name of company) or first name /3 last name.

5.02[2] Guardian Ad Litem. Minors and incompetents, who lack capacity on their own, usually must be represented by a guardian ad litem, unless there is a guardian or conservator of the estate [CCP § 372(a)].

Attorneys, whether representing or opposing a minor or incompetent, want to ensure that the minor or incompetent is properly before the court. The former seeks to provide proper representation; the latter seeks a judgment that will not be disaffirmed or vacated [ Keane v. Penha (1946) 76 CA2d 693, 696, 173 P2d 835 (minor); Briggs v. Briggs (1958) 160 CA2d 312, 318-319, 325 P2d 219 (incompetent)].

5.02[3] Joinder. Compulsory joinder ensures that complete relief can be accorded among the parties and creates finality in the issues [see CCP § 389(a)].

Permissive joinder fosters judicial efficiency by creating a single forum for litigating related issues or diverse issues among the same parties [see CCP § 428.20].

5.02[4] Fictitiously Named Parties. California law entitles plaintiffs to bring suit against unknown parties for two purposes:

- To bring suit on the action before limitations bars suit, even though plaintiff may not know the defendant(s)' name(s) [ Smeltzley v. Nicholson Mfg. Co. (1977) 18 C3d 932, 939 n1, 136 CR 269, 559 P2d 624 ; Austin v. Massachusetts Bonding & Ins. Co. (1961) 56 C2d 596, 602, 15 CR 817, 364 P2d

681 ]; or

- To bring a newly discovered cause of action against a known defendant [ General Motors Corp. v. Superior Court (1996) 48 CA4th 580, 593-594, 55 CR2d 871 ].

5.02[5] Interpleader. Interpleader is a procedure to allow a stakeholder who has no claim to disputed property or who is potentially exposed to multiple claims, to escape litigation and to leave the competing claimants to sort out their rights and obligations.

A stakeholder who has been made a defendant in an action may seek an order substituting a nonparty in the stakeholder's stead, or may bring the party in by cross-complaint [CCP § 386(a), (b)].

A stakeholder who may be subject to multiple liabilities for a single obligation may also bring an action against all the claimants to compel them to litigate their claims [CCP § 386(a), (b)].

Also, if the stakeholder is one of the defendants, but is subject only to the claim of withholding of a stated amount of money, the stakeholder may seek an order discharging the liability on depositing the amount with the court [CCP § 386.5].

Chapter 5 Parties

II. ESTABLISHING AND ATTACKING STANDING

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 5.04

5.04 Establish Standing by Identifying Real Party in Interest.

Apart from certain statutory exceptions (discussed in 5.05), every action must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest [CCP § 367]. The real party in interest is the person possessing the right sued upon by reason of the substantive law [ Ventura County Ry. Co. v. Hadley Auto Transport (1995) 38 CA4th 878, 880, 45 CR2d 362 ].

If the cause of action alleged shows an invasion of plaintiff's legally protected interests under the substantive law, nothing further is required. But if the cause of action exists in favor of some person other than the plaintiff, the plaintiff is not the real party in interest; although having the legal capacity to sue, he or she lacks standing to sue on the cause of action pleaded [ Pillsbury v. Karmgard (1994) 22 CA4th 743, 756, 27 CR2d 491 (trust beneficiary lacked standing to bring action for malicious prosecution of litigation third party had brought against trust); Torres v. City of Yorba Linda (1993) 13 CA4th 1035, 1041, 1043, 17 CR2d 400 (nonresidents lacked standing to challenge city's redevelopment plan)].

A person lacks standing if he or she, or those whom he or she properly represents, lacks a real interest in the ultimate adjudication because neither past nor future injury is of sufficient magnitude reasonably to assure that all relevant facts and issues will be adequately presented [ Fladeboe v. American Isuzu Motors, Inc. (2007) 150 CA4th 42, 55, 58 CR3d 225 ; Schmier v. Supreme Court (2000) 78 CA4th 703, 707-708, 93 CR2d 580 ]. The injury required for standing need not be actualized; a party facing prospective injury has standing to sue where the threatened injury is real, immediate, and direct [ Davis v. FEC (2008) -- US --, 128 S Ct 2759, 2769, 171 L Ed2d 737, 748 ]. Standing goes to the issue of the right of a person to sue for relief on the cause of action alleged [ Sacramento County Fire Protection Dist. v. Sacramento County Assessment Appeals Bd. II (1999) 75 CA4th 327, 331, 89 CR2d 215 ; American Alternative Energy Partners II v. Windridge, Inc. (1996) 42 CA4th 551, 559, 49 CR2d 686 ].

In general, a plaintiff may assert a claim on behalf of a third party only when [ Singleton v. Wulff (1976) 428 U.S. 106, 113-116, 96 S. Ct. 2868, 49 L. Ed. 2d 826 ; Novartis Vaccines & Diagnostics, Inc. v. Stop Huntingdon Animal Cruelty USA, Inc. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1284, 1297, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 27 ]:

- Plaintiff has suffered an injury in fact;
- Plaintiff has a relationship with the third party so that it can, and will, effectively present the third party's rights; and

- Obstacles exist preventing the third party from asserting his or her own rights.

Strategic Point:

Some statutes, such as the Unfair Competition Law [see B & P Code § 17204] and the Labor Code Private Attorneys General Act of 2004 [see Lab Code § 2699], allow representational actions only in the form of class actions [ Amalgamated Transit Union, Local 1756, AFL-CIO v. Superior Ct. (2009) 46 C4th 993, 1002, 1005, 95 CR3d 605, 209 P3d 937 ; Arias v. Superior Ct. (2009) 46 C4th 969, 980, 95 C R3d 588, 209 P3d 923 (representative actions not permitted under the Law)]. But under the Labor Code Private Attorneys General Act of 2004, that restriction does not apply to a suit for civil penalties [ Arias v. Superior Ct. (2009) 46 C4th 969, 982-987, 95 C R3d 588, 209 P3d 923] .

Chapter 5 Parties

II. ESTABLISHING AND ATTACKING STANDING

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 5.05

5.05 Particular Parties Who Have Standing.

5.05[1] Assignee May Bring Claim in Own Name. Generally, the assignee of a properly assigned claim may maintain an action on the claim in his or her own name [see CC §§ 953-954]. Even if the assignment is for collection only, the assignee takes legal title to the claim and may sue despite a lack of beneficial interest [ Harrison v. Adams (1942) 20 C2d 646, 650, 128 P2d 9 ; National Reserve Co. v. Metropolitan Trust Co. (1941) 17 C2d 827, 831, 112 P2d 598 ].

Exceptions:

Under the Unfair Competition Law [see B & P Code § 17204] an injured employee's assignment of rights cannot confer standing on an uninjured assignee [ Amalgamated Transit Union, Local 1756, AFL-CIO v. Superior Ct. (2009) 46 C4th 993, 1002, 1005, 95 CR3d 605, 209 P3d 937 (all representational actions under the Law must be brought as class actions)]. Under the Labor Code Private Attorneys General Act of 2004 [see Lab Code § 2699], an aggrieved employee cannot assign a claim for statutory penalties because the employee does not own an assignable interest [ Amalgamated Transit Union, Local 1756, AFL-CIO v. Superior Ct. (2009) 46 C4th 993, 1003, 1005, 95 CR3d 605, 209 P3d 937 (all representational actions under the Act must be brought as class actions)].

A collateral assignee can sue on the claim and recover the entire amount, but must hold any excess for the claim's assignor [ Ginocchio v. Amador Canal & Mining Co. (1885) 67 C 493, 496, 8 P 29 ; Wetmore v. City of San Francisco (1872) 44 C 294, 302 ].

A partial assignee may not sue individually, but can and should join both the assignor and any other partial assignees [see Stein v. Cobb (1940) 38 CA2d 8, 10, 100 P2d 358 ].

➡ Cross Reference:

Discussion and form of complaint on assigned claim, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 60, Assignments (Matthew Bender).

5.05[2] Subrogee May Bring Claim in Own Name. A subrogee may sue in his or her own name on a subrogated claim [see generally CCP § 368.5 (after transfer of interest in action, action may continue in transferor's name or transferee may be substituted)]. An equitable subrogee, similarly, has standing to assert the claim to which it has become subrogated [see Chang v. Redding Bank of Commerce (1994) 29 CA4th 673, 678, 35 CR2d 64 ].

Cross Reference:

Discussion and forms for suing on subrogated claims, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 536, Subrogation (Matthew Bender).

5.05[3] Class Action Representative Must Be Member of Class and Justify Class Representation. In a class action, the named class representatives must be members of the class alleged, at least at the time the action is commenced [ La Sala v. American Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1971) 5 C3d 864, 872, 97 CR 849, 489 P2d 1113 ].

Warning:

Including representatives whose claims do not include those reasonably expected to be raised by class members may prevent class certification [ City of San Jose v. Superior Court (1974) 12 C3d 447, 457-464 ].

Example:

The standing requirements of the Unfair Competition Law [see B & P Code § 17204] are applicable only to the class representatives and not to all absent class members, but under them, the class representative must show an injury in fact [In Re Tobacco II Cases (2009) 46 C4th 298, 323-324, 93 CR3d 559, 207 P3d 20 (requirement of actual injury did not apply to absent class members)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion and forms, see Ch. 33, Class Actions.

5.05[4] Association May Sue on Members' Behalf. An association may sue on behalf of its members if [ Driving Sch. Ass'n of California v. San Mateo Union High Sch. Dist. (1992) 11 CA4th 1513, 1517, 14 CR2d 908 (plaintiff had standing as to some, but not all issues)]:

- Its members would otherwise have standing to sue individually;
- The interests it seeks to protect are germane to the organization's purpose; and
- Neither the claim asserted nor the relief requested requires the participation of individual members in the lawsuit.

If an unincorporated association has been injured as an entity, it can sue in a representative capacity seeking prospective relief, such as an injunction or a declaration of rights on behalf of its members [ Tenants Assn. of Park Santa Anita v. Southers (1990) 222 CA3d 1293, 1302, 272 CR 361 ]. An association may also sue for some damages incurred by its members, although not for personal injuries that vary from member to member [ Tenants Assn. of Park Santa Anita v. Southers (1990) 222 CA3d 1293, 1304, 272 CR 361 ].

Exception:

Associational standing may be barred by the language of statutes creating statutory causes of action, such as the Unfair Competition Law and the Labor Code Private Attorneys General Act of 2004 [ Amalgamated Transit Union, Local 1756, AFL-CIO v. Superior Ct. (2009) 46 C4th 993, 1005, 95 CR3d 605, 209 P3d 937 ].

The issue of whether the association can fairly and adequately represent its members is for the trial court [ Tenants

Assn. of Park Santa Anita v. Southers (1990) 222 CA3d 1293, 1300, 1303-1304, 272 CR 361 ].

Example:

An organization composed of tenants and past tenants of a mobilehome park, formed to pursue the legal rights of its members in a dispute with the park owners, had standing to sue for damages incurred by its members in seeking to enforce their rights before the city council and for statutory fines for willful violations of the Mobilehome Residency Law. The organization also had standing to seek injunctive relief against further violations and for abatement of nuisance. In these matters, the members of the organization had a community of interest in law and fact. However, because claims for emotional distress were too personal to reasonably constitute a community of interest, the association lacked standing to sue on those causes of action [ Tenants Assn. of Park Santa Anita v. Southers (1990) 222 CA3d 1293, 1300, 1303-1304, 272 CR 361 ].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of capacity of unincorporated associations, see 5.13.

5.05[5] Shareholder or Limited Partner May Bring Derivative Suit. A shareholder has standing to assert a cause of action of the corporation in a derivative suit [see Corp Code § 800(b); see also Klopstock v. Superior Court (1941) 17 C2d 13, 16, 108 P2d 906 ; Patrick v. Alacer Corp. (2008) 167 CA4th 995, 1003, 84 CR3d 642 ].

Trap:

Consider choice of law issues in determining whether standing is automatic or is subject to a prerequisite under applicable foreign law [see, e.g., Vaughn v. LJ Internat., Inc. (2009) 174 CA4th 213, 222-229, 94 CR3d 166] .

A limited partner's derivative suit is filed in the name of a limited partner, and the partnership is named as a defendant. Although a limited partner is named as the plaintiff, it is the limited partnership that derives the benefits of the action [ Wallner v. Parry Prof'l Bldg. (1994) 22 CA4th 1446, 1449-1450, 27 CR2d 834 ].

Standing is conferred not only on a record owner, but also on an equitable or beneficial shareholder or unregistered owner of shares [ Patrick v. Alacer Corp. (2008) 167 CA4th 995, 1011, 84 CR3d 642 (demurrer denied due to potential claim of community property in stock)].

Trap:

A plaintiff in a shareholder's derivative suit generally must maintain continuous stock ownership throughout the pendency of the litigation [ Grosset v. Wenaas (2008) 42 C4th 1100, 1119, 72 CR3d 129, 175 P3d 1184] . The only exception to this rule applies when equitable considerations warrant an exception to the continuous ownership requirement because the stockholder was wrongfully deprived of standing [ Haro v. Ibarra (2009) 180 CA4th 823, 836-837, 103 CR3d 340] .

 Cross References:

Discussion, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 168, Corporations: Derivative Actions; Ch. 404, Partnerships: Actions between Limited Partners and Partnerships, § 404.40 (Matthew Bender).

5.05[6] Personal Representative of Decedent's Estate. A personal representative of a decedent's estate, as defined in Prob Code § 58, has standing to sue without joining the heirs, devisees, or other parties who are represented [CCP § 369(a)(1)]. "Personal representative" means executor, administrator, administrator with the will annexed, special administrator, successor personal representative, or a person who performs substantially the same function under the law of another jurisdiction governing the person's status [Prob Code § 58].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of capacity regarding decedents and estates, see 5.08.

5.05[7] Trustee or Beneficiary of Express Trust. A trustee of an express trust has standing to sue without joining any other parties to the trust, such as settlors or beneficiaries [CCP § 369(a)(2); see Wolf v. Mitchell, Silberberg & Knupp (1999) 76 CA4th 1030, 1036, 90 CR2d 792 ]. Conversely, a trust beneficiary cannot sue in the name of the trust; however, a trust beneficiary can bring a proceeding against a trustee for breach of trust. Moreover, a trust beneficiary can pursue a cause of action against a third party who actively participates in or knowingly benefits from a trustee's breach of trust [ Estate of Bowles (2008) 169 CA4th 684, 691-692, 87 CR3d 122 ].

5.05[8] Party to Third-Party Beneficiary Contract. A person with whom, or in whose name, a contract is made for the benefit of another has standing to sue without the need to join any other party, except for a person on whom a power of sale has been conferred under a deed of trust or mortgage [CCP § 369(a)(3)]. However, a trustee holding a power of sale under a deed of trust or mortgage may, sue to exercise a trustee's powers and duties under CC §§ 2920-2967 [CCP § 369(b)].

5.05[9] Community Association Managing Common-Interest Development. An association established to manage a common-interest development has standing to sue in its own name as the realparty in interest in matters pertaining to the enforcement of the governing documents and some types of property damage [CC § 1368.3; see Windham at Carmel Mountain Ranch Ass'n v. Superior Court (2003) 109 CA4th 1162, 1168-1177, 135 CR2d 834 (applying former statute, CCP § 383)].

5.05[10] Receiver Has Standing and May Sue in Own Name As Receiver. A receiver may bring and defend actions in his or her own name as receiver [CCP § 568].

5.05[11] Employer Has Standing to Sue on Behalf of Employees. An employer may have grounds for bringing suit on behalf of its employees under the test set out by the U.S. Supreme Court for third-party suits generally [ Novartis Vaccines & Diagnostics, Inc. v. Stop Huntingdon Animal Cruelty USA, Inc. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1284, 1298, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 27 (citing Singleton v. Wulff (1976) 428 U.S. 106, 113-116, 96 S. Ct. 2868, 49 L. Ed. 2d 826 ); see 5.04].

Example:

An employer had standing to sue for its employees for injunctive relief against organization and its members who perpetrated acts of harassment, infliction of emotional distress, intrusion, and trespass against its employees, where [ Novartis Vaccines & Diagnostics, Inc. v. Stop Huntingdon Animal Cruelty USA, Inc. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1284, 1298, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 27 ]:

- The employer also suffered harm at the hands of the perpetrators.
- The strong relationship of employer-employee was the reason the employees were targeted, so that their interests coincided.
- The fear of being named plaintiff on a lawsuit against the perpetrators was sufficient obstacle to suits by individual employees.

5.05[12] Corporation May Qualify for Standing as Citizen. A corporation attempting to vindicate or enforce an important public right may enjoy citizen standing if it meets certain criteria. These criteria include [ Regency Outdoor Advertising, Inc. v. City of West Hollywood (2007) 153 CA4th 825, 833, 63 CR3d 287 (financial self-interest of for-profit corporation masquerading as environmentalism does not qualify)]:

- A continuing interest or commitment to the subject matter.
- By a corporation consisting of or representing individuals beneficially interested in the action.
- Who would find it difficult or impossible to act on their own.
- Citizen standing for the corporation does not conflict with other public policies.

5.05[13] Former Owner May Sue on Accrued Property Damage Action. One whose property has been wrongfully damaged by another does not lose the right to recover for that damage merely because he or she has sold the property at the time of suit [ Jasmine Networks, Inc. v. Superior Court (2009) 180 CA4th 980, 993, 103 CR3d 426] .

II. ESTABLISHING AND ATTACKING STANDING

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 5.06

5.06 Objecting to Lack of Standing.

5.06[1] Lack of Standing May Be Raised at Any Time. Lack of standing can be raised at any time in the proceeding, even for first time on appeal [ Associated Builders & Contractors Inc. v. San Francisco Airports Comm'n (1999) 21 C4th 352, 361-363, 87 CR2d 654, 981 P2d 499 (plaintiff had standing on some issues, but not others)]. However, reversal of a judgment on this ground is justified and required only if the error complained of was prejudicial and resulted in a miscarriage of justice [ County of Riverside v. Loma Linda Univ. (1981) 118 CA3d 300, 319-320, 173 CR 371 (affirming judgment)].

5.06[2] Raise Objection by General Demurrer. Plaintiff's lack of standing is normally raised by a general demurrer alleging that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. Standing to sue goes to the existence of the cause of action [ Sacramento County Fire Prot. Dist. v. Sacramento County Assessment Appeals Bd II (1999) 75 CA4th 327, 331, 89 CR2d 215 ; see CCP § 430.10(e)]. If the complaint shows that plaintiff is not a real party in interest and therefore lacks standing to sue, the general demurrer will be sustained [ Friendly Village Cmty. Ass'n v. Silva & Hill Constr. Co. (1973) 31 CA3d 220, 224, 107 CR 123 ].

5.07 Real Party in Interest May Be Substituted Freely.

If the plaintiff can amend the complaint to substitute the real party in interest, the substitution should be allowed so long as the amended complaint does not introduce a wholly different cause of action [see Klopstock v. Superior Court (1941) 17 C2d 13, 19-20, 108 P2d 906 ; Haley v. Dow Lewis Motors, Inc. (1999) 72 CA4th 497, 507, 85 CR2d 352 ]. Amendments to substitute a plaintiff with standing for one who is not a real party in interest are freely allowed [ Foundation for Taxpayer & Consumer Rights v. Nextel Communications, Inc. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 131, 136, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 836 ; Charpentier v. Los Angeles Rams Football Co. (1999) 75 CA4th 301, 308, 89 CR2d 115 ]. But if the complaint cannot be amended to state a cause of action in the plaintiff, a demurrer will be properly sustained without leave to amend [see Friendly Village Cmty. Ass'n, Inc. v. Silva & Hill Constr. Co. (1973) 31 CA3d 220, 225-226, 107 CR 123 .

Chapter 5 Parties

III. ESTABLISHING AND ATTACKING CAPACITY

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 5.09

5.09 Capacity Generally.

5.09[1] All Parties Must Have Capacity to Appear in Court. The capacity to sue is the right to come into court [ Parker v. Bowron (1953) 40 C2d 344, 351, 254 P2d 6 (incapacity deprives party of right to come into court); see also Klopstock v. Superior Court (1941) 17 C2d 13, 18-19, 108 P2d 906 ]. All persons have the capacity to sue unless that capacity is limited by statute. This includes:

- Corporations [see Corp Code § 207 (granting corporations powers of a natural person in carrying out business activities)];
- Unincorporated associations [see CCP § 369.5(a)];
- Partnerships [see CCP § 369.5(a)]; and
- Public entities [see Gov Code § 945].

A civil action must target some existing entity against whom the court's judgment will operate [ Johnston v. Long (1947), 30 C2d 54, 61, 181 P2d 645 ; Tanner v. Estate of Best (1940) 40 CA2d 442, 445, 104 P2d 1084 (estate is not an entity that can be sued)].

► Investigating Potential Parties Using Online Resources:

The attorney's investigation of existing and potential professional adversaries (and perhaps allied parties) who may present professional licensing issues can be greatly facilitated by information and leads from online resources. For example, helpful resources at lexis.com include:

- Legal tab > States Legal--U.S. > California > Public Records > Find Licenses > Professional Licenses.

Sample Search: To learn information pertaining to professional licensing, try a search in this format: first name /3 last name.

Cross References:

Discussion of corporations as parties, see 5.14; limited liability companies, see 5.15; partnerships, see 5.13; unincorporated associations, see 5.16; decedents' representatives, see 5.12; minors, see 5.10; incompetent persons, see 5.11; businesses with fictitious names, see 5.17.

5.09[2] Objecting to Lack of Capacity.

5.09[2][a] Lack of Capacity Appearing on Face of Complaint May Be Raised by Demurrer. When plaintiff's lack of capacity to sue appears on the face of the complaint or from a matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice, the objection is properly made by a special demurrer [CCP §§ 430.10(b), 430.30(a); but see Hydrotech Systems, Ltd. v. Oasis Waterpark (1991) 52 C3d 988, 994, 803 P2d 370 (non-obvious lack of capacity requires affirmative defense, not demurrer)]. Special demurrers, however, are not allowed in limited civil cases [CCP § 92(c)].

Cross Reference:

See Ch. 11, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings.

5.09[2][b] Lack of Capacity Shown by Extrinsic Evidence Must Be Raised by Affirmative Defense. When the lack of capacity is not obvious and must be shown by extrinsic evidence, the proper response is by affirmative defense [ Hydrotech Systems, Ltd. v. Oasis Waterpark (1991) 52 C3d 988, 994, 803 P2d 370 ].

5.09[2][c] Lack of Capacity Must Be Pleaded Specifically. Lack of capacity is a technical objection and must be pleaded specifically. Thus, an affirmative defense or demurrer that contains a general assertion that plaintiff has not stated a cause of action is insufficient [ Color-Vue, Inc. v. Abrams (1996) 44 CA4th 1599, 1604, 52 CR2d 443 ].

An allegation that plaintiff has no legal capacity to sue is only a legal conclusion. Without specifying the cause of the incapacity, it tenders no issue of fact and the objection is waived [ Ontario State Bank v. Tibbits (1889) 80 C 68, 69-70, 22 P 66 ; Kadota Fig Ass'n v. Case-Swayne Co. (1946) 73 CA2d 796, 805, 167 P2d 518 ]. Because the objection is a ground for abatement and dilatory, it is strictly construed and may not be pleaded on information and belief [ Home Owners' Loan Corp. v. Gordon (1939) 36 CA2d 189, 192, 97 P2d 845 ].

5.09[2][d] Failure to Object Constitutes Waiver. Failure to object by demurrer or answer constitutes a waiver of the objection [CCP § 430.80(a)]. The objection cannot, therefore, be urged for the first time on appeal [ Parker v. Bowron (1953) 40 C2d 344, 351, 254 P2d 6 ; American Alternative Energy Partners II v. Windridge, Inc. (1996) 42 CA4th 551, 559, 49 CR2d 686 ]. Once a plea in abatement is waived, a court will rarely be justified in permitting the defense later. However, in the unusual circumstance of a plaintiff corporation announcing it does not intend to pay its delinquent taxes, trial court may properly relieve a defendant of a waiver and permit assertion of the object that the corporation lacks the capacity to sue [ Color-Vue, Inc. v. Abrams (1996) 44 CA4th 1599, 1604 n.5, 1605, 52 CR2d 443 ].

5.09[2][e] Objection for Lack of Capacity Does Not Test Existence of Cause of Action. An objection on the ground of lack of capacity questions only whether plaintiff is free from legal disabilities, such as infancy or insanity, and is improper to test whether the plaintiff has stated a cause of action [ Klopstock v. Superior Court (1941) 17 C2d 13, 17-18, 108 P2d 906 ]. If plaintiff states a cause of action but the cause of action is in someone else, the proper objection is failure to state a cause of action and not lack of capacity to sue [see CCP § 430.10(e); Klopstock v. Superior Court (1941) 17 C2d 13, 19-20, 108 P2d 906 ]. This distinction is significant because an objection on the ground of lack of capacity is waived if not seasonably raised. But an objection on the ground of failure to state a cause of action is not waived [see CCP § 430.80(a)] and may even be raised for the first time on appeal [see Parker v. Bowron (1953) 40 C2d 344, 351, 254 P2d 6 ; Klopstock v. Superior Court (1941) 17 C2d 13, 19-20, 108 P2d 906 ].

5.09[3] Cure Lack of Capacity by Substitution. If the court sustains an objection for lack of capacity to sue, it may grant leave to substitute a party or entity having the requisite capacity [ Lazar v. Estate of Lazar (1962) 208 CA2d 554, 559, 25 CR 354 ; see American Alternative Energy Partners II v. Windridge, Inc. (1996) 42 CA4th 551, 559, 49 CR2d 686 (dicta)].

III. ESTABLISHING AND ATTACKING CAPACITY

5.10 Minors.

5.10[1] Minor Defined. A minor is a person under 18 years of age [Fam Code § 6500].

5.10[2] Minors Generally Must Have Guardian or Guardian Ad Litem to Conduct Court Action. A minor may enforce his or her legal rights by civil action or other legal proceedings in the same manner as an adult, except that a guardian must conduct the action or proceeding [Fam Code § 6601]. A party who is a minor must appear either by a guardian of his or her estate under Prob Code §§ 1440-1444 or by a guardian ad litem appointed by the court in which the action is pending or by a judge of that court [CCP § 372(a)].

➤ Cross References:

Discussion of guardians ad litem, see 5.18 -5.29.

Discussion and forms regarding minors, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 364, Minors: Claims and Property of Minors; Ch. 365, Minors: Contract Actions (Matthew Bender).

Exception--Emancipated Minor Has Capacity:

A minor will be considered to be over the age of majority for all purposes, including the capacity to sue and be sued in his or her own name if he or she [Fam Code § 7002]:

- Has entered into a valid marriage;
- Is on active duty with the armed forces; or
- Has received a declaration of emancipation.

Exception--Certain Family Law Matters:

A minor who is the parent in proceedings for child custody, visitation, or support in which the child is a parent and whom the court has not found to not understand the proceedings does not need a guardian ad litem for those proceedings [see CCP § 372(c)].

5.10[3] Minor May Appear Unaccompanied to Obtain Certain Injunctions or Protective Orders. A minor 12 years of age or older may appear without a guardian, counsel, or guardian ad litem to request or oppose a request for the following [CCP § 372(b)(1)]:

- An injunction or temporary restraining order, or both, to prohibit harassment [see CCP §§ 527.6, 527.10];
- An injunction or temporary restraining order or both against violence or a credible threat of violence in the workplace [see CCP §§ 527.8, 527.10];
- A protective order pursuant to the Domestic Violence Prevention Act [see Fam Code § 6200 et seq.]; or
- A protective order pursuant to in connection with proceedings under the Uniform Parentage Act [see Fam Code §§ 7710 and 7720].

The court may appoint a guardian ad litem to assist the minor in these matters.

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 5.11

5.11 Incompetent Persons.

5.11[1] Determining Individual's Incompetence.

5.11[1][a] Capacity to Make Decision. A person lacks the capacity to make a decision unless the person has the ability to communicate the decision verbally, or by any other means, and to understand and appreciate, to the extent relevant, all of the following [Prob Code § 812]:

- The rights, duties, and responsibilities created by, or affected by the decision;
- The probable consequences for both the decision maker and, if appropriate, the persons affected by the decision; and
- The significant risks, benefits, and reasonable alternatives involved in the decision.

5.11[1][b] Unsound Mind or Incapacity. Prob Code § 811 enumerates pertinent mental functions and requires that a person adjudged incompetent must have a deficit in at least one of these functions [Prob Code § 811(a)]:

- Alertness and attention, including, but not limited to, the following:
  - ☐ Level of arousal or consciousness,
  - ☐ Orientation to time, place, person, and situation,
  - ☐ Ability to attend and concentrate.
- Information processing, including, but not limited to, the following:
  - ☐ Short- and long-term memory, including immediate recall,

- ☐ Ability to understand or communicate with others, either verbally or otherwise,
- ☐ Recognition of familiar objects and familiar persons,
- ☐ Ability to understand and appreciate quantities,
- ☐ Ability to reason using abstract concepts,
- ☐ Ability to plan, organize, and carry out actions in one's own rational self-interest,
- ☐ Ability to reason logically.
- Thought processes whose deficits may be demonstrated by the presence of the following:
  - ☐ Severely disorganized thinking,
  - ☐ Hallucinations,
  - ☐ Delusions,
  - ☐ Uncontrollable, repetitive, or intrusive thoughts.
- Ability to modulate mood and affect, with deficits demonstrated by the presence of a pervasive and persistent or recurrent state of euphoria, anger, anxiety, fear, panic, depression, hopelessness or despair, helplessness, apathy or indifference, that is inappropriate in degree to the individual's circumstances.

These deficits may be considered--individually or in combination--only if they impair the person's ability to understand and appreciate the consequences of his or her actions with regard to the type of act or decision in question [Prob Code § 811(b)].

5.11[2] Incompetent Must Be Represented by Conservator or Guardian Ad Litem. An incompetent appearing as a party must be represented by a conservator or guardian ad litem. A guardian ad litem must be appointed for the incompetent if there is no conservator [CCP § 372(a)].

Cross References:

Discussion of guardians ad litem, see 5.18 -5.29.

Discussion and forms relating to conservatorships, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 281, Guardianship and Conservatorship: Appointment of Conservators (Matthew Bender).

5.11[3] Judgment Against Incompetent Can Be Vacated or Disaffirmed. A judgment taken against an insane or incompetent person who is not represented by a guardian or guardian ad litem can be disaffirmed and vacated if no innocent purchaser has acquired rights under it [ Briggs v. Briggs (1958) 160 CA2d 312, 318-319, 325 P2d 219 ].

5.12 Decedents and Decedents' Representatives.

5.12[1] Personal Representative or Successor in Interest May Bring Decedent's Cause of Action. A cause of action that survives the death of the person entitled to commence an action or proceeding passes to the decedent's successor in interest, subject to Prob Code §§ 7000-7001, and an action may be commenced by the decedent's personal representative or, if none, by the decedent's successor in interest [CCP § 377.30].

► Cross Reference:

Discussion of personal representative's standing, see 5.05[6].

5.12[2] Cause of Action Against Decedent May Be Asserted Against Personal Representative or Successor in Interest. Subject to Prob Code §§ 9000-9399 governing creditor claims, a surviving cause of action against a decedent may be asserted against the decedent's personal representative or, to the extent provided by statute, against the decedent's successor in interest [CCP § 377.40].

5.12[3] Decedent's Estate Cannot Be a Party. An estate is not an entity and cannot be a party to an action. It is neither a natural nor an artificial person. It is merely a name to indicate the sum total of the assets and liabilities of a decedent, or of an incompetent, or of a bankrupt [ Tanner v. Estate of Best (1940) 40 CA2d 442, 445, 104 P2d 1084 ].

► Investigating Potential Parties Using Online Resources:

The attorney's investigation of existing and potential adversaries (and perhaps allied parties) who may have been involved in bankruptcy proceedings can be greatly facilitated by information and leads from online resources. For example, helpful resources at lexis.com include:

5.13 Partnerships.

5.13[1] Partnership's Capacity.

5.13[1][a] Partnership May Sue or Be Sued in Its Assumed, Generally Known, or Partnership Name. Any partnership or other unincorporated association, whether or not organized for profit, may sue or be sued in the name which it has assumed or by which it is known [CCP § 369.5(a)]. A partnership may sue or be sued in the partnership name [Corp Code § 16307(a)].

► Cross Reference:

Forms of allegations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used, §§ 20.35 (plaintiff), 20.37 (defendant) (Matthew Bender).

5.13[1][b] Partnership May Not Sue in Fictitious Name Unless Fictitious Name Statement Is Filed. A partnership that is transacting business under a fictitious business name may not maintain any action on or on account of any contract made, or transaction had, in the fictitious business name in any state court until a fictitious business name statement has been executed, filed, and published [B&P Code § 17918].

► Investigating Potential Parties Using Online Resources:

The attorney's investigation of existing and potential partnership adversaries (and perhaps allied parties) can be greatly facilitated by information and leads from online resources. For example, helpful resources at lexis.com include:

- Legal tab > States Legal--U.S. > California > Public Records > Find a Business > Corporation & Partnership Registration by State > Corporation Filings.

Sample Search: To discover potentially valuable information about a limited partnership's status and/or registered agent for service of process, try a NAME segment search in this format: name(name of business).

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of parties with fictitious names, see 5.17.

5.13[2] Liability Issues of Partnership and Partners.

5.13[2][a] Must Sue Partnership, Not Just Partners, for Jurisdiction Over Partnership. To acquire jurisdiction over a partnership, the partnership entity must be designated as a defendant; naming only the individual partners in the complaint is not sufficient [ Epstein v. Frank (1981) 125 CA3d 111, 119-120, 177 CR 831 ; Hildebrand v. Stonecrest Corp. (1959) 174 CA2d 158, 169, 344 P2d 378 ].

5.13[2][b] Partner May Be Joined in Suit Against Partnership. Any member of a partnership (other than a registered limited liability partnership) may be joined as a party in an action against the partnership, and a personal judgment against that partner may be obtained [ Corp Code § 16307(b); see CCP § 369.5(b) ].

5.13[2][c] Partner's Liability for Partnership Obligations. All partners are (as a general rule) jointly and severally liable for partnership obligations [ Corp Code § 16306 ]. A judgment against the partnership alone, however, is not a judgment against a partner. [ Corp Code § 16307(c) ]. Execution on a judgment solely against the partnership can only be levied against a partner if a writ of execution against the partnership is returned unsatisfied in whole or part, the partnership is a bankrupt debtor, the partner has agreed that the creditor need not exhaust partnership assets first, a court grants permission for such levy after finding that the partnership assets would be clearly insufficient, or if the partner is otherwise liable under contract or law [ Corp Code § 16307(d) ].

Warning:

Because claims against partnerships may exceed available assets and expose individual partners' assets [see e.g., Black v. Shearson, Hammill & Co. (1968) 266 CA 2d 362, 369, 72 CR 157 (punitive damages against partner and partnership proper given partner's malice)], a punitive damages claim against the partnership may create conflicts among the partners. To protect against the risk of individual exposure to the punitive damages claim, partners may require separate representation of each partner's interest.

III. ESTABLISHING AND ATTACKING CAPACITY

5.14 Corporations.

5.14[1] Corporations Generally Have Same Capacity As Natural Persons. Because a corporation is considered a person and (in most cases) has the powers of a natural person under California law, it has the same capacity to sue and be sued in any court as does a natural person [see CCP § 17; Corp Code § 207]. A corporation may be sued as otherwise provided for in the Code of Civil Procedure [Corp Code § 105].

► Investigating Potential Parties Using Online Resources:

The attorney's investigation of existing and potential corporate adversaries (and perhaps allied parties) can be greatly facilitated by information and leads from online resources. For example, helpful resources at lexis.com include:

- Legal tab > States Legal--U.S. > California > Public Records > Find a Business > Corporation & Partnership Registration by State > Corporation Filings.

☐ Sample Search: To discover potentially valuable information about a corporation's financial status, try a NAME segment search in this format: name(name of corporation).

- Legal tab > States Legal--U.S. > California > Public Records > Find Filings > Civil & Criminal Court Filings and Regulatory Actions > Bankruptcy Filings.

☐ Sample Search: To discover potentially valuable information about a corporation's bankruptcy-related background, try a search in this format: name(name of corporation).

► Cross References:

Forms alleging corporate status of parties, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used, §§ 20.38 (domestic corporation), 20.39 (foreign corporation), 20.40 (foreign corporation transacting intrastate business) (Matthew Bender).

5.14[2] Status of Corporation Can Be Checked Through Secretary of State. The California Secretary of State provides a convenient clearinghouse for corporation status. Enter the corporation's name at the Secretary's web site, <http://kepler.ss.ca.gov/list.html>, to obtain status information.

5.14[3] Dissolved Corporations Have Capacity for Limited Purposes. A dissolved corporation has a capacity to sue and defend, and otherwise continues to exist, but only for the limited purpose of winding up its affairs [Corp Code § 2010(a)]. An action or proceeding to which a corporation is a party does not abate on account of the dissolution of the corporation or the proceedings for winding up and dissolution [Corp Code § 2010(b)].

Exception:

Corp Code § 2010 does not apply to foreign corporations [Greb v. Diamond Int'l Corp. (2010) 184 CA4th 15, 27, ___ CR3d ___].

Warning:

Some jurisdictions, including California [Corp Code § 2011(a)], allow post-dissolution actions against the former corporation's shareholders only if the cause of action arose prior to dissolution; other jurisdictions permit actions arising after dissolution [see e.g., Levin Metals Corp. v. Parr-Richmond Terminal Co. (9th Cir 1987) 817 F2d 1448, 1451 (because statute creating cause of action not enacted until after dissolution, action was barred notwithstanding statute's application to harm caused during period corporation existed)]. Because a corporation's successor capacity is a question of state law, it is important to review the corporation law of a corporate defendant's domicile state, which will control even if the harm occurred in California.

Example:

Trial court dismissal of action against dissolved Delaware corporation was affirmed because the action did not comply with Delaware law prohibiting the commencement of actions by or against dissolved corporations more than three years after their dissolution, so that the corporation lacked the capacity to be sued [Greb v. Diamond Int'l Corp. (2010) 184 CA4th 15, 27, ___ CR3d ___].

5.14[4] Merged Corporation Loses Right to Bring Suit. A merged corporation loses its corporate existence and cannot bring suit [ J.C. Peacock, Inc. v. Hasko (1960) 184 CA2d 142, 150, 7 CR 490 ]. However, when a statutory merger becomes effective, the surviving corporation automatically succeeds, without further transfer, to all the rights and property of each of the disappearing corporations [Corp Code § 1107(a)].

5.14[5] Domestic Corporation's Rights May Be Suspended.

5.14[5][a] Nonpayment of Taxes. A domestic corporation's rights, powers, and privileges, including its ability to sue or be sued are suspended for failure to pay corporate taxes [R&T Code § 23301]. During the period of the suspension or forfeiture of its corporate powers, a corporation may neither prosecute [ Ransome--Crummey Co. v. Superior Court (1922) 188 C 393, 394-397, 466 ] nor defend an action [ Alhambra-Shumway Mines, Inc. v. Alhambra Gold Mine Corp. (1957) 155 CA2d 46, 49, 317 P2d 649 ]. Neither may the corporation seek a writ of mandate [ Brown v. Superior Court (1966) 242 CA2d 519, 522, 51 CR 633 ]. Further, the corporation may not appeal from an adverse judgment during the period of suspension or forfeiture [ Boyle v. Lakeview Creamery Co. (1937) 9 C2d 16, 20, 68 P2d 968 ].

The suspension prescribed by R&T Code § 23301 is not automatic; it takes effect only when the Franchise Tax Board transmits the name of the tax-delinquent corporation to the Secretary of State [R&T Code § 23302]. If this has not been done, the corporation will continue to have the capacity to sue and defend, even though the corporation may, in fact, have failed to pay its taxes [R&T Code § 23302; see Mediterranean Exports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1981) 119 CA3d 605, 615, 617-618, 174 CR 169 ].

Distinguish:

However, a foreign corporation can be subject to jurisdiction based on "minimum contacts," as opposed to actually doing business within the state. In such situations, the foreign corporation need not be qualified to defend itself in California courts. Only a foreign corporation transacting intrastate business without having qualified pursuant to Corp Code § 2105 is penalized by the provisions of Corp Code § 2203(c). It is a well-established principle flowing from the commerce clause of the federal Constitution [US Const, art I, § 8, cl 3] that a state may not compel a purely interstate seller of goods to qualify to do business in the state [ Allenberg Cotton Co. v. Pittman (1974) 419 US 20, 33-34, 95 S Ct 260, 42 L Ed2d 195 ].

5.14[5][b] Failure to File Return. Except for the purpose of filing an application for exempt status, or amending the articles of incorporation as necessary either to perfect the application or to set forth a new name, and subject to R&T Code § 23301.6, the corporate powers, rights, and privileges of a domestic corporation may be suspended if the taxpayer fails to file a tax return required by Corporation Tax Code [R&T Code § 23301.5].

5.14[5][c] Failure to File Information Statement. A domestic corporation is required to file initial and annual statements setting out information about, among other things, its officers, directors, and business and auditing practices [Corp Code § 1502]. Failure to file this statement will result first in an assessment of penalty [Corp Code § 2204], then suspension of corporate rights, powers, and privileges [Corp Code § 2205]. A corporation suspended for failure to file this statement is disabled from participating in any litigation activities to the same extent as a corporation suspended for failure to pay taxes under R&T Code § 23301 [ Palm Valley Homeowners Ass'n, Inc. v. Design MTC (2000) 85 CA4th 553, 560, 102 CR2d 350 ].

5.14[5][d] Raise Corporation's Lack of Capacity by Affirmative Defense. If a domestic corporation's rights are suspended, the opposing party should raise the issue by affirmative defense [see Maryland Cas. Co. v. Superior Court (1928) 91 CA 356, 361, 267 P 169 (loss of corporate status treated as plea in abatement properly addressed by affirmative defense)]. The matter has also been raised by motion to strike the corporation's pleadings [see Mediterranean Exports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1981) 119 CA3d 605, 609, 174 CR 169 ].

5.14[6] Foreign Corporation May Lose Rights.

5.14[6][a] Nonpayment of Taxes. A foreign corporation's ability to sue or be sued is forfeited for nonpayment of corporate taxes [R&T Code § 23301]. This forfeiture is essentially the same action, and has the same effect, as the suspension of a domestic corporation's right to sue and be sued, and the same rules and effects apply.

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of suspension of domestic corporation, see 5.14[5][a].

5.14[6][b] Failure to File Return. Foreign corporations, like domestic corporations, may have their corporate powers, rights, and privileges suspended for failure to file the tax return required by the Corporation Tax Code [R&T Code § 23301.5].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of suspension of a domestic corporation, see 5.14[5][b].

5.14[6][c] Failure to File Certificate of Qualification. A foreign corporation subject to Corp Code § 2100 et seq. (qualification for transaction of intrastate business) that transacts intrastate business in California must file a certificate of qualification [Corp Code § 2105]. A corporation that fails to do so is not authorized to maintain any action or proceeding on any intrastate business in any California court until it has filed the certificate and has paid the applicable fees and penalties [Corp Code § 2203(c)]. The corporation must also file, with the clerk of the court in which its action is pending, receipts showing the payment of the fees and penalty and all franchise taxes and any other taxes on business or property in California that should have been paid for the period during which it transacted intrastate business [Corp Code § 2203(c)].

Example:

A foreign corporation that converted during the pendency of litigation from a Nevada to a Delaware corporation and immediately filed a new certificate of qualification was not barred from continuing the legislation, because the law of the other states permitted the continuation. The conversion requirements set forth in Corp Code § 1157 do not apply to a foreign corporation's conversion to another foreign corporation, and the procedures under Corp Code § 2107 for notice of certain corporate changes are inapplicable to a change in the state of incorporation of a foreign corporation, even though the corporation did not immediately file a certificate of surrender under Corp Code § 2112 [ The Capital Gold Group, Inc. v. Nortier (2009) 176 CA4th 1119, 1127-1134, 98 CR3d 439] .

5.14[6][d] Failure to File Information Statement. Foreign corporations, like domestic corporations, may have their corporate powers, rights, and privileges suspended for failure to file the information statement required by Corp Code § 1502 [Corp Code § 2205].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of suspension of domestic corporation, see 5.14[5][c].

5.14[6][e] Object to Corporation's Lack of Capacity by Affirmative Defense. If a foreign corporation's rights are forfeited or suspended, the opposing party should raise the issue by affirmative defense [see Maryland Cas. Co. v. Superior Court (1928) 91 CA 356, 361, 267 P 169 (loss of corporate status treated as plea in abatement properly addressed by affirmative defense)]. The matter also may be raised by motion to strike the corporation's pleadings [see Mediterranean Exports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1981) 119 CA3d 605, 609, 174 CR 169] .

5.14[7] Curing the Corporation's Default.

5.14[7][a] Seek Continuance to Cure Default and Reinstate Corporate Privileges. When a corporation's status only comes to light during litigation, the normal practice is for the trial court to grant a short continuance to enable a suspended corporation to effect reinstatement (by paying back taxes, interest and penalties) to defend itself in court [ Cadle Co. v. World Wide Hospitality Furniture, Inc. (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 504, 512-513, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 480 ; see Timberline Inc. v. Jaisinghani (1997) 54 CA4th 1361, 1366, 64 CR2d 4 ] .

5.14[7][b] Cure Corporation's Default and Obtain Certificate of Revivor. A corporation that has suffered a suspension or forfeiture of its corporate powers may be reinstated by applying to the Franchise Tax Board for a certificate of revivor, filing all required tax returns, and paying the taxes, interest, and penalties due. Application for revivor may be made by any shareholder or creditor, by a majority of the surviving trustees or directors, by an officer, or by any other person who has interest in the relief [R&T Code § 23305].

Reinstatement without full payment of taxes, penalties, and interest due may be allowed by the Franchise Tax Board if it determines that the revivor will improve the prospects for collection of the full amount due. There is currently a benign attitude that revival can validate otherwise invalid prior action [see Peacock Hill Ass'n v. Peacock Lagoon Constr. Co.(1972) 8 C3d 369, 371 n1, 373, 105 CR 29, 503 P2d 285 ; Reed v. Norman (1957) 48 C2d 338, 343, 309 P2d 809] .

The revivor may be limited as to time and/or functions that the revived corporation can perform, and the corporate powers may be again suspended or forfeited if the Franchise Tax Board determines that the prospects for full collection have not been improved by the revivor [R&T Code § 23305b]. In addition, a suspended corporation or one whose powers have been forfeited may obtain relief by providing the Franchise Tax Board with an acceptable assumption of liability, or a bond, deposit, or other security for its liability [R&T Code § 23305.2].

5.14[8] Attorney Representation of Corporation in Court.

5.14[8][a] Corporation Must Be Represented by Attorney in Courts Other Than Small Claims Court. Except for small claims court, a corporation can act only through licensed attorneys and may not appear in propria persona or by a non-attorney officer [ Merco Constr. Eng'rs, Inc. v. Municipal Court (1978) 21 C3d 724, 729, 147 CR 631, 581 P2d 636 (municipal court); Himmel v. City Council (1959) 169 CA2d 97, 100, 336 P2d 996 (superior court); Paradise v. Nowlin (1948) 86 CA2d 897, 898, 195 P2d 867 (appeal)].

Strategic Point--Opposing Party:

When a corporation attempts to appear without an attorney, the opposing party should file a motion to strike the corporation's complaint, answer, or other pleading [see Himmel v. City Council (1959) 169 CA2d 97, 100, 336 P2d 996 ; see also CCP §§ 435(b), 436].

Consider:

While a prior ruling of the Court of Appeal held that a corporate complaint not submitted by an attorney of the corporation is incurable and void [ Paradise v. Nowlin (1948) 86 CA2d 897, 899, 195 P2d 867 ], a subsequent opinion rejected that rule, found the defect curable, and required the trial court to grant leave to the corporation plaintiff to amend [ CLD Constr., Inc. v. City of San Ramon (2004) 120 CA4th 1141, 1146 ].

5.14[8][b] Corporation Attorney May Not Appear in Small Claims Court. In small claims court, a corporation may appear only through a regular employee or a duly appointed or elected officer or director who is employed, appointed, or elected for purposes other than solely representing the corporation in small claims court [CCP § 116.540(b)]. Except as otherwise provided, no attorney may take part in the conduct or defense of a small claims action [CCP § 116.530(a) (attorneys generally may not appear)].

Exceptions:

Attorneys may participate in a corporation's small claims court action [CCP § 116.530(b)]:

- If the attorney is a party; or
- If the attorney is appearing to maintain or defend an action by or against a professional corporation of which he or she is an officer or director and of which all other officers and directors are attorneys.

5.15 Limited Liability Company.

5.15[1] Limited Liability Company Loses Right to Sue or Defend for Failure to Pay Taxes. Both foreign and domestic limited liability companies are subject to the provisions of R&T Code § 23301 et seq. [R&T Code § 23305.5(a)]. In applying those provisions to limited liability companies, the term "tax" includes the tax and fee imposed by R&T Code §§ 17941 and 17942 (or former R&T Code §§ 23091 and 23092), respectively [R&T Code § 23305.5(b)].

5.15[2] Failure of Foreign Limited Liability Company to Register Forfeits Rights. A foreign limited liability company transacting intrastate business in California is not authorized to maintain any action, suit, or proceeding in any California state court until it has registered in California [Corp Code § 17456(a); see also Corp Code § 17456(b)].

◆ Cross Reference:

5.15[3] Raise Company's Lack of Capacity by Affirmative Defense. If a limited liability company's rights are suspended, the opposing party should raise the issue by affirmative defense [*see Maryland Cas. 5.16[1][b] Defunct Association Cannot Be Defendant. An unincorporated association that has ceased to exist cannot be a defendant [ Oliver v. Swiss Club Tell (1963) 222 CA2d 528, 537, 35 CR 324 ].

5.16[2] Association Membership Alone Not Enough to Establish Member's Liability for Association's Acts. Mere membership in an unincorporated association does not make a member liable for unlawful acts of other members, there must also be participation, knowledge, or approval. Liability may exist, however, based on a member's personal participation in an unlawful activity or the fact that he or she set the unlawful activity in motion. The liability of members cannot extend beyond the principles of agency on which the liability of each copartner for the acts of his or her fellow partners is grounded [ *Orser v. ### III. ESTABLISHING AND ATTACKING CAPACITY

5.17 Businesses With Fictitious Names.

5.17[1] Business With Fictitious Business Name Must File Statement and Publish Notice. Every person ("person" being defined as including individuals, limited liability companies, partnerships and other associations, and corporations) who regularly transacts business for profit in California under a fictitious business name must file a fictitious business name statement and refile as set out by law [B&P Code § 17915].

A "fictitious business name" is [B&P Code § 17900(b)]:

- For an individual, a name that does not include the surname of the individual or a name that suggests the existence of additional owners.
- For a partnership or other association of persons other than a limited partnership or limited liability partnership, a name that does not include the surname of each general partner or a name that suggests the existence of additional owners.
- For a corporation, any name other than the corporate name stated in the articles of incorporation.
- For a limited partnership, any name other than the name of the limited partnership as on file with the Secretary of State.
- For a limited liability company, any name other than the name stated in its articles of organization; for a foreign limited liability company, any name other than the name on file with the Secretary of State.

A name that "suggests the existence of additional owners" is one which includes words such as "Company," "& Company," "& Son," "& Sons," "& Associates," "Brothers," and the like, but not words that merely describe the business being conducted [B&P Code § 17900(c)].

The statement must be filed with the clerk of the county where the registrant has his or her principal place of business or, if there is no place of business in California, with the county clerk of Sacramento County [B&P Code § 17915].

There is also a newspaper publication requirement [B&P Code § 17917].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of capacity of partnership with fictitious business name, see 5.13[1][b].

5.17[2] Failure to File Fictitious Business Name Statement Suspends Right to Maintain Action Until Statement Filed. Failure to file and publish a fictitious name statement as required by B&P Code §§ 17910 and 17917 suspends the business's right to bring any action upon or on account of any contract made, or transaction had, in the fictitious business name in any court of this state until the fictitious business name statement has been executed, filed, and published [B&P Code § 17918].

The commencement of an action is not prohibited by B&P Code § 17918. It merely forbids the maintenance of the action until the certificate has been filed and the publication has been made. Before an action is finally dismissed on that ground, the plaintiff should be given an opportunity prior to the trial to comply with the statute [ Kadota Fig Ass'n v. Case-Swayne Co. (1946) 73 CA2d 796, 804-805, 167 P2d 518 ].

5.17[3] Fictitiously Named Business's Complaint Failing to Affirmatively Allege Compliance With Statute Subject to Demurrer. If the complaint shows that plaintiff does business under a fictitious business name [see B&P Code §§ 17910-17918], but does not affirmatively allege compliance with the requirements of those sections, the opposing party may demur on the ground of lack of capacity to sue [ Pleaters & Stitchers Ass'n v. Davis (1934) 140 CA 403, 406, 35 P2d 401 ].

 Cross Reference:

See Ch. 11, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings.

5.17[4] Assignees of Persons Transacting Under Fictitious Business Name Cannot Maintain Action Until Certificate Filed. No assignee of a person transacting business under a fictitious business name may maintain any action on, or on account of, any contract made, or transaction had, in the fictitious business name in any California court until a fictitious business name statement has been executed, filed, and published as required by law [B&P Code § 17918]. A fictitious business name statement may be executed, filed, and published by an assignee of the business at any time after the assignment, if a failure to comply with the statute would otherwise preclude the maintenance of an action to recover any sums due to the assignee by reason of the assignment [B&P Code § 17919(c)].

IV. GUARDIANS AD LITEM

5.19 When Appointment of Guardian Ad Litem Required.

5.19[1] Guardian Ad Litem Required for Minors and Incompetent Persons. When a minor or an incompetent person is a party to a civil action and does not have a guardian or conservator of the estate, a guardian ad litem must be appointed by the court in which the action is pending [CCP § 372]. A guardian ad litem can be appointed for an incompetent person without any prior finding of incompetency in an independent proceeding [ Sarracino v. Superior Court (1974) 13 C3d 1, 12, 118 CR 21, 529 P2d 53 ]. An "incompetent person," for purposes of CCP § 372, includes a person for whom a conservator has been appointed.

➤ Cross References:

Discussion of minority and emancipation, see 5.10; discussion of incompetence, see 5.11.

Form alleging appearance by guardian ad litem, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used, § 20.46 (Matthew Bender).

5.19[2] Judgment Against Unrepresented Minor or Incompetent Can Be Vacated or Disaffirmed. A judgment against a minor or an insane or incompetent person who was not represented by a guardian or guardian ad litem can be disaffirmed and vacated if no innocent purchaser has acquired rights under it [ Briggs v. Briggs (1958) 160 CA2d 312, 318-319, 325 P2d 219 (incompetent); Keane v. Penha (1946) 76 CA2d 693, 696, 173 P2d 835 (minor)]. However, failure to appoint a guardian ad litem is not jurisdictional and the court may decline to set aside a judgment if the minor's interests were not substantially prejudiced and there is no claim that there was a defense to the action [ Pacific Coast Joint Stock Land Bank v. Clausen (1937) 8 C2d 364, 366, 65 P2d 352 ]. The same harmless-error analysis applies to appointment of guardian ad litem for a person who is incompetent or subject to a conservator [ In re A.C. (2008) 166 CA4th 146, 157, 82 CR3d 542 ; In re Esmeralda S. (2008) 165 CA4th 84, 95-96, 80 CR3d 585 ].

The court does not have a duty to appoint a guardian ad litem for a person who is not a party to the action [ In re Emily R. (2000) 80 CA4th 1344, 1356, 96 CR2d 285 (alleged father who had not appeared in dependency proceedings not a party entitled to appointment of ad litem)].

IV. GUARDIANS AD LITEM

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 5.20

5.20 When Guardian Ad Litem May Be Appointed.

5.20[1] If Guardian or Conservator Is Already Appointed. If the court deems it expedient in the case before it, a guardian ad litem may be appointed in any case, even if the minor, incompetent person, or conservatee may have a guardian or conservator of the estate and may have appeared by him or her [CCP § 372].

5.20[2] If Representation of Certain Classes Would Otherwise Be Inadequate (Probate Code Proceedings). In a proceeding under the Probate Code, the court may, on its own motion or on request of a personal representative, guardian, conservator, trustee, or other interested person, appoint a guardian ad litem at any stage of a proceeding to represent the interest of any of the following persons, if the court determines that representation of the interest otherwise would be inadequate [Prob Code § 1003(a)]:

- A minor;
- An incapacitated person;
- An unborn person;
- An unascertained person;
- A person whose identity or address is unknown; or
- A designated class of persons who are not ascertained or are not in being.

5.20[3] To Represent Unascertained or Unknown Persons or Persons Not in Being (Actions Concerning Property). In an action relative to or affecting real or personal property, the court has the power to appoint a guardian ad litem to represent a person or persons of a designated class who are not ascertained or who are not in being, or a person or persons who are unknown, who may be or may become interested in the property. This may be done on the representation of any party to the action or any interested person. The ad litem has the power, with the court's permission, to compromise the action, agree to any order or judgment entered for against the represented parties, to satisfy any judgment or order in their favor, and to release or discharge any of their claims. Any judgment, order, or decree rendered after such appointment shall be conclusive on the persons the ad litem was appointed to represent [CCP § 373.5].

IV. GUARDIANS AD LITEM

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 5.21

5.21 When Guardian Ad Litem Is Not Needed.

5.21[1] For Settlement If No Action Pending. If a minor who has a disputed claim for damages, money, or other property does not have a guardian of the estate, either parent, if the parents are not living separate and apart, or the parent having the care, custody, or control of the minor, has the right to compromise the claim, or to execute a covenant not to sue or not to enforce judgment on the claim, unless the claim is against that parent. Such a compromise or covenant requires court approval, but appointment of a guardian ad litem is not necessary if no action is pending on the claim [Prob. Code § 3500].

The guardian of the estate of a minor or the conservator of the estate of an adult has powers to compromise the claims of a minor or conservatee under the general provisions pertaining to guardianship and conservatorship [Prob Code §§ 2500-2507].

- An injunction or temporary restraining order, or both, pursuant to CCP §§ 527.6, 527.10, to prohibit harassment;
- An injunction or temporary restraining order, or both, against violence or a credible threat of violence in the workplace pursuant to CCP §§ 527.8, 527.10;
- A protective order pursuant to Fam Code §§ 6200-6409, the Domestic Violence Prevention Act; or
- A protective order pursuant to Fam Code §§ 7710 and 7720, in connection with proceedings under the Uniform Parentage Act.

The court may appoint a guardian ad litem to assist the minor in this matter.

5.22[2] Minor Defendant--Minor, Friend or Relative, Any Party, or Court Sua Sponte. The application may be made by the minor if he or she is 14 or older and applies within 10 days after service of summons. If the minor is under 14, or neglects to apply within 10 days of service, it may be made by a relative or friend, any other party to the action, or by the court on its own motion [CCP § 373(b)].

5.22[3] Insane or Incompetent Plaintiff or Defendant--Friend, Relative, Any Party, or Court Sua Sponte. The application may be made by a relative or friend, any other party to the action, or the court on its own motion [CCP § 373(c)].

5.23 Time of Application.

5.23[1] Minor Plaintiff--Apply Before Summons Issued, Preferably Before Complaint Filed. For a minor plaintiff, the guardian ad litem must be appointed before the summons is issued [CCP § 373(a)]. The appointment of a guardian ad litem should be obtained before the complaint is filed so that the complaint can allege the appointment of the guardian ad litem and avoid a potential demurrer [see City of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1968) 264 CA2d 766, 772, 70 CR 826 ; Crawford v. Neal (1880) 56 C 321, 322 (failure to affirmatively set out appointment renders complaint subject to demurrer)].

5.23[2] Minor Defendant--Apply Within 10 Days of Service If Minor Over 14. For a minor defendant, the minor can apply if he or she is over age 14 and applies within 10 days after service of summons [CCP § 373(b)]. If the minor is under age 14 or neglects to apply within the 10-day limit, a relative or friend of the minor or any party to the action may apply, or the court may act on its own motion [CCP § 373(b)].

5.23[3] Insane or Incompetent Person--Apply When Need Apparent. The court should appoint a guardian ad litem whenever the need for one is brought to the court's attention. CCP § 373(c), governing ad litem appointments for incompetent persons, gives no time deadline.

Chapter 5 Parties
IV. GUARDIANS AD LITEM

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 5.25

5.25 Powers of Guardian Ad Litem.

The guardian ad litem has the power, with the court's permission, to [CCP §§ 372(a), 373.5]:

- Compromise the action;
- Agree to any order or judgment entered for against the represented parties;
- Satisfy any judgment or order in their favor; and
- Release or discharge any of their claims.

The guardian ad litem has the right to control the litigation on behalf of the minor or incompetent [ Regency Health Serv., Inc. v. Superior Court (1998) 64 CA4th 1496, 1504, 76 CR2d 95 ; In re Christina B. (1993) 19 CA4th 1441, 1453, 23 CR2d 918 ]. The guardian ad litem may even voluntarily dismiss the action without prejudice, and without first obtaining a court order, but the court retains the power to rescind or modify any action that is inimical to the interests of the ward [ Zapanta v. Universal Care, Inc. (2003) 107 CA4th 1167, 1174-1175, 132 CR2d 842 ; see Safai v. Safai (2008) 164 CA4th 233, 245-246, 78 CR3d 759 ].

With regard to fundamental decisions affecting the litigation, the guardian ad litem may act only with the interest of his or her charge in mind. Specifically, the guardian may not compromise fundamental rights, including the right to trial, without some countervailing and significant benefit [ In re Christina B. (1993) 19 CA4th 1441, 1454, 23 CR2d 918 ].

A guardian ad litem's role is more than an attorney's but less than a party's. The guardian ad litem oversees any attorney representing a minor's litigation-related interests and may make tactical and even fundamental decisions affecting the litigation, but always with the interest of the child in mind [ County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (2001) 91 CA4th 1303, 1312, 111 CR2d 471 ].

5.26 Guardians Ad Litem and Attorneys.

5.26[1] Guardian Ad Litem Who Is Not Attorney Cannot Act in Propria Persona. A guardian ad litem who is not an attorney may not act in propria persona to represent the minor or incompetent in legal proceedings. To do so would constitute the unauthorized practice of law [see J.W. v. Superior Court (1993) 17 CA4th 958, 969, 22 CR2d 527 ].

5.26[2] If Guardian Ad Litem Is Attorney, Must Prove Need to Hire Another Attorney. If the guardian ad litem is an attorney, the estate of the minor or incompetent cannot be charged with the expense of employing another attorney without proof of a need for assistance [ In re Price(1923) 61 CA 592, 600, 215 P 710 ].

5.26[3] Hiring Attorney for Minor Requires Court Approval. A contract for attorney's fees for services in litigation, made by or on behalf of a minor, is void unless the contract is approved by the court in which the litigation is pending or the court having jurisdiction of the guardianship estate of the minor. Any interested person may petition for approval. If no contract has been approved and a judgment is recovered by or on behalf of a minor, the court rendering the judgment must fix the attorney's fees chargeable against the minor [Fam Code § 6602; Prob Code § 3601].

While there is no similar statutory requirement of court approval when an attorney is hired by or on behalf of an incompetent person, the prudent attorney should submit such a contract for court approval as well [see Stafford v. Superior Court (1934) 1 C2d 321, 324, 325, 34 P2d 998 (applying prior law)].

IV. GUARDIANS AD LITEM

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 5.27

5.27 Opposing Party Represented by Guardian Ad Litem.

5.27[1] Raise Affirmative Defense to Complaint Brought by Minor Alone. When a minor brings a complaint without representation by a guardian or guardian ad litem (and the minor is neither emancipated nor bringing the complaint for one of the reasons set out in 5.21[2]), respond to the incapacity by affirmative defense [see CCP §§ 372(a), 430.10(b); Fam Code § 6500].

5.27[2] Demurrer to Guardian Ad Litem's Complaint May Be Available If Complaint Fails to Affirmatively Allege Appointment. The appointment of a guardian ad litem for a minor plaintiff is a traversable fact. Therefore, a failure to affirmatively set out the appointment in the complaint makes it subject to demurrer [ Crawford v. Neal (1880) 56 C 321, 322 ]. However, since appointment of the guardian ad litem need not be done before the summons is issued [CCP § 373], it is possible to appoint the guardian ad litem after filing suit but before issuing summons.

Warning:

To avoid pursuing a baseless demurrer, counsel should determine whether the guardian ad litem was appointed after the complaint was filed but before issuance of summons. Generally, a defendant should raise the failure to appoint a guardian ad litem with plaintiff's counsel before incurring the expense of raising the issue by demurrer.

5.27[3] Guardian Ad Litem May Be Removed for Conflict of Interest or Improper Motives. In the event of a conflict of interest or disclosure of improper motives, a guardian ad litem should be removed [ Estate of Lacy (1975) 54 CA3d 172, 185, 126 CR 432 ; Estate of Emery (1962) 199 CA2d 22, 29, 18 CR 86 ].

Chapter 5 Parties
IV. GUARDIANS AD LITEM

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 5.28

5.28 Judgment Must Be for or Against Party, Not Guardian Ad Litem.

A guardian ad litem is not a party to an action, but merely a party's representative [ Sarracino v. Superior Court (1974) 13 C3d 1, 13, 118 CR 21, 529 P2d 53 ; Regency Health Servs., Inc. v. Superior Court (1998) 64 CA4th 1496, 1499, 76 CR2d 95 ]. For that reason, a judgment may not be rendered for or against a guardian ad litem, but only for or against the party he or she represents [ Estate of Cochems (1952) 110 CA2d 27, 242 P2d 56 ].

5.29 Disposition of Money or Property Recovered on Minor's Behalf.

5.29[1] Expenses, Costs, and Attorney's Fees Awarded to Guardian Ad Litem From Recovery. Reasonable expenses, costs, and attorney's fees may be awarded to a guardian ad litem out of minor's or incompetent person's recovery, pursuant to a judgment or to a compromise of a pending action or proceeding to which a minor or incompetent person is a party, or in the case of a minor only, to the compromise or execution of a covenant not to sue or not to enforce judgment on the minor's claim [Prob Code § 3601; CCP § 373.5].

➡ Investigating Potential Parties Using Online Resources:

The attorney's investigation of whether a party's personal property is subject to existing security interests, can be greatly facilitated by information and leads from online resources. For example, helpful resources at lexis.com include:

● Legal tab > States Legal--U.S. > California > Public Records > Find Filings > Civil & Criminal Court Filings and Regulatory Actions > Judgments and Liens.

○ Sample Search: To learn about liens on a party's personal property interests (or liens a party holds on another's interests), try a search in this format: name(name of business) or name (first name/3 last name).

V. JOINING PARTIES

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 5.30

5.30 CHECKLIST: Joining Parties.

5.30[1] Checklist for Compulsory Joinder.

- ☐ Determine whether compulsory joinder applies to party. Applies if:
- ☐ Complete relief cannot be accorded among existing parties in party's absence; or
  - ☐ Person claims interest in subject matter of action and disposition of action in his or her absence:
    - ☐ May, as a practical matter, impair or impede his or her ability to protect that interest; or
    - ☐ Leave any existing parties subject to substantial risk of incurring double, multiple, or otherwise inconsistent obligations.

- ☐ Party seeking to be joined must be subject to service of process and must not deprive court of jurisdiction.

Authority:

CCP § 389(a)

Discussion:

See 5.31[1]

- ☐ If party who should be joined is not in complaint or cross-complaint, state names if known and reasons not joined.

- ☐ Court determines whether in equity and good conscience action should proceed.

☐ Any party, including omitted party, can file notice of motion for order to bring in omitted party.

☐ Defendant may file cross-complaint to join party.

Authority:

CCP § 389; see De La Beckwith v. Superior Court (1905) 146 C 496, 498, 80 P 717 ; CCP § 428.20

Discussion:

See 5.31

5.30[2] Checklist for Permissive Joinder of Plaintiff.

☐ Determine whom to join as plaintiff. May join parties who:

☐ Have a right to relief arising from the same transaction, occurrence, or series thereof; or

☐ Have a claim, right, or interest adverse to defendant in the property or controversy.

☐ Join plaintiff by:

☐ Amending complaint as a matter of course before answer or demurrer is filed, or after the demurrer and before trial;

☐ Seeking leave to amend complaint to add willing plaintiff.

☐ If party is not willing to be joined as plaintiff, join by naming and aligning as a defendant.

Authority:

CCP §§ 379.5, 382, 428.20

Discussion:

See 5.32

5.30[3] Checklist for Permissive Joinder of Defendant.

☐ Determine whether to join omitted party as defendant. May join if:

☐ Omitted party would be subject to claim of any right to relief jointly, severally, or in the alternative, arising from the same transaction or occurrence.

☐ Omitted party would be subject to claim, right, or interest adverse to him or her in the subject matter of the action.

☐ Plaintiff has doubt regarding party from which he or she can seek redress.

☐ Join defendant by:

☐ Amending complaint as a matter of course before answer or demurrer is filed or after demurrer but before trial;

☐ Seeking leave to add new defendant.

Authority:

CCP §§ 379(a), (c), 472, 473(a)

Discussion:

See 5.32

5.30[4] Checklist for Petition for Joinder by Omitted Party Claiming Interest in Property.

☐ Determine whether joinder is available. Party may join if:

☐ Action is for recovery of real or personal property;

☐ Action is to determine conflicting claims to real property; or ☐ Omitted party has interest in subject matter of action.

☐ Omitted party makes application to be made a party.

Chapter 5 Parties
V. JOINING PARTIES

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 5.31

5.31 Compulsory Joinder.

5.31[1] When Joinder of Party Is Compulsory. A person who is subject to service of process and whose joinder will not deprive the court of jurisdiction over the subject matter of the action must be joined as a party in the action if [CCP § 389(a)]:

- In the party's absence, complete relief cannot be accorded among those already parties; or
- A person claims an interest relating to the subject of the action and is so situated that the disposition of the action in his or her absence may:
  - ☐ As a practical matter, impair or impede his or her ability to protect that interest; or
  - ☐ Leave any of the persons already parties subject to a substantial risk of incurring double, multiple, or otherwise inconsistent obligations by reason of his or her claimed interest.

The "complete relief" clause of CCP § 389(a) focuses not on whether complete relief can be afforded all possible parties to the action, but on whether complete relief can be afforded the parties named in the action [ Deltakeeper v. Oakdale Irrigation Dist.(2001) 94 CA4th 1092, 1101, 115 CR2d 244 ].

5.31[2] "Necessary" Parties. A person joined as a party pursuant to CCP § 389(a) is also deemed a "necessary" party [see Countrywide Home Loans, Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 69 CA4th 785, 791, 82 CR2d 63 ]. The term "necessary party" is also used to refer to a party that should have been joined as required by CCP § 389(a) and was not, even though the court was able to proceed to make a valid judgment between the parties present without seriously affecting the interests of the nonjoined parties [see Camp v. Board of Supervisors (1981) 123 CA3d 334, 354, 176 CR 620 ; Noguera v. North Monterey County Unified Sch. Dist. (1980) 106 CA3d 64, 73, 164 CR 808 ].

Joint tortfeasors with joint and several liability are not necessary parties under CCP § 389(a), but rather are permissive parties whose joinder is governed by CCP §§ 378 and 379 [ Countrywide Home Loans, Inc. v. Superior Court (1999)

69 CA4th 785, 794, 82 CR2d 63 ].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of permissive joinder, see 5.32.

5.31[3] "Indispensable" Parties. A party is "indispensable" when it cannot be joined and the court finds it would be preferable to dismiss the action without prejudice; but a person is an indispensable party only when the judgment to be rendered necessarily must affect his or her rights [see CCP § 389(b); Olszewski v. Scripps Health (2003) 30 C4th 798, 808-809, 135 CR2d 1, 69 P3d 927 ; see also Siena Court Homeowners Assn. v. Green Valley Corp. (2008) 164 CA4th 1416, 1427, 79 CR3d 915 ; County of San Joaquin v. State Water Res. Control Bd. (1997) 54 CA4th 1144, 1149, 63 CR2d 277 ].

5.31[4] Plead Omitted Parties in Complaint or Cross-Complaint and State Reasons for Omission. When there are omitted parties who under CCP § 389(a) would be required to be joined in a complaint or cross-complaint, and are not joined, the complaint or cross-complaint must state their names, if known to the pleader, and the reasons why they are not joined [CCP § 389(c)].

5.31[5] If Joinder Is Impossible, Court May Dismiss or Proceed Without Missing Party. If a person as described in CCP § 389(a)(1) or (2) cannot be made a party, the court determines whether in equity and good conscience the action should proceed among the parties before it, or should be dismissed without prejudice, the absent person being thus regarded as indispensable. The factors to be considered by the court include [CCP § 389(b); Tracy Press, Inc. v. Superior Court (2008) 164 CA4th 1290, 1298, 80 CR3d 464 ]:

- To what extent a judgment rendered in the person's absence might be prejudicial to him or her, or to those already parties;
- The extent to which, by protective provisions in the judgment, by the shaping of relief, or other measures, the prejudice can be lessened or avoided;
- Whether a judgment rendered in the person's absence will be adequate; and
- Whether the plaintiff or cross-complainant will have an adequate remedy if the action is dismissed for nonjoinder.

Whether a party is necessary and/or indispensable is a matter of trial court discretion in which the court weighs "factors of practical realities and other considerations." Accordingly, the determination is reviewed for abuse of discretion [ Hayes v. State Dept. of Developmental Services (2006) 138 CA4th 1523, 1529, 42 CR3d 363 ].

5.31[6] Compel Joinder by Motion to Bring in New Party. Either the plaintiff or the defendant may move the court to compel joinder of an omitted party by filing a notice of motion for an order to bring in the omitted party as a new party plaintiff or defendant under CCP § 389 [see De La Beckwith v. Superior Court (1905) 146 C 496, 498, 80 P 717 ]. The court, on learning that a party required to be joined has not been joined, must order that party joined, if feasible [CCP § 389(a); see Conrad v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1975) 47 CA3d 237, 241, 120 CR 803 ].

Cross References:

Forms, see 5.53 (notice of motion), 5.54 (supporting declaration), 5.55 (order granting motion).

5.31[7] Defendant May File Cross-Complaint to Join Party. A person filing a cross-complaint as authorized by CCP § 428.10 may join any person as a cross-complainant or cross-defendant, whether or not that person is already a party to the action, if, had the cross-complaint been filed as an independent action, the joinder of that party would have been permitted by the statutes governing joinder of parties [CCP § 428.20].

Chapter 5 Parties
V. JOINING PARTIES

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 5.32

5.32 Permissive Joinder.

5.32[1] When Permissive Joinder of Plaintiffs Allowed. All persons may join in one action as plaintiffs if [CCP § 378(a)]:

- They assert any right to relief jointly, severally, or in the alternative, in respect of or arising out of the same transaction, occurrence, or series of transactions or occurrences; and
- If any question of law or fact common to all these persons will arise in the action; or
- They have a claim, right, or interest adverse to the defendant in the property or controversy that is the subject of the action.

It is not necessary that each plaintiff be interested as to every cause of action or as to all relief sought. Judgment may be given for one or more of the plaintiffs according to their respective rights to relief [CCP § 378(b)].

5.32[2] When Permissive Joinder of Defendants Allowed. All persons may be joined in one action as defendants if either [CCP § 379(a)]:

- Any right to relief is alleged against such persons jointly, severally, or in the alternative, in respect of or arising out of the same transaction, occurrence, or series of transactions or occurrences; and
- If any question of law or fact common to all these persons will arise in the action; or
- A claim, right, or interest is alleged adverse to them in the property or controversy that is the subject of the action.

It is not necessary that each defendant be interested as to every cause of action or as to all relief sought. Judgment may be given against one or more defendants according to their respective liabilities [CCP § 379(b)].

5.32[3] "Proper" Parties. Proper parties are those parties who have some interest in the action, whose rights it will be convenient to settle in the same action, and who may be joined under the rules of permissive joinder [ General Ins. Co. v. Whitmore (1965) 235 CA2d 670, 674, 45 CR 556 ].

5.32[4] Defendants May Be Joined If Plaintiff Is Unsure Which One Is Liable. If the plaintiff is in doubt as to the person from whom he or she is entitled to redress, he or she may join two or more defendants, with the intent that questions regarding their respective liabilities may be determined between the parties [CCP § 379(c); see Colusa Air Pollution Control Dist. v. Superior Court (1991) 226 CA3d 880, 885-886, 277 CR 110 ].

5.32[5] Unwilling Plaintiff May Be Joined As Defendant. If the consent of anyone who should have been joined as a plaintiff under the provisions of CCP § 389 cannot be obtained, he or she may be made a party defendant in the action. In joining the unwilling party as a defendant, the plaintiff must state the reasons for doing so in the complaint [CCP § 382; see also Estate of Kuebler v. Superior Court (1978) 81 CA3d 500, 503-504, 146 CR 481 ].

5.32[6] Court May Make Orders to Protect Parties. When parties have been joined under CCP § 378 or 379, the court may make such orders as may appear just to prevent any party from being embarrassed, delayed, or put to undue expense, and may order separate trials or make such other order as the interests of justice may require [CCP § 379.5].

5.32[7] Parties Joined by Amending Pleading or by Seeking Leave to Amend. A party seeking to add a nonjoined party after the complaint or cross-complaint has been filed may amend the pleading by joining the desired party. This may be done once as a matter of course any time before the answer or demurrer is filed or after demurrer and before the trial of the relevant issue [CCP § 472; Gross v. Department of Transp. (1986) 180 CA3d 1102, 1104, 226 CR 49 ]. Alternatively, a party may seek leave of the court to amend the pleadings to add a nonjoined party [see CCP § 473(a)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion, checklists, and forms relating to amended pleadings, see Ch. 34, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings.

5.32[8] Defendant May File Cross-Complaint to Join Party. A person filing a cross-complaint as authorized by CCP § 428.10, may join any person as a cross-complainant or cross-defendant, whether or not that person is already a party to the action, if, had the cross-complaint been filed as an independent action, the joinder of that party would have been permitted by the statutes governing joinder of parties [CCP § 428.20].

5.38 Immediate Review of Joinder Order Obtained by Writ of Mandate.

Appeals from orders granting or denying joinder of a new party are not specifically authorized by CCP § 904.1 or 904.2. Parties seeking immediate review of an order compelling joinder can seek a writ of mandate [see Peerless Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1970) 6 CA3d 358, 363, 85 CR 679 ; People v. Superior Court (1969) 1 CA3d 167, 172, 81 CR 555 ]. A trial court's order denying joinder can also be reviewed by petition for writ of mandate [see Bank of Orient v. Superior Court (1977) 67 CA3d 588, 599, 136 CR 741 ].

5.40 Suing Defendants by Fictitious Names Authorized.

When the plaintiff is ignorant of the name of a defendant, the plaintiff must state that fact either in the complaint [CCP § 474] or in the affidavit, if the action is commenced by affidavit [see CCP § 116.320 (claim under oath in small claims court); see also CCP § 2015.5 (use of declarations in lieu of affidavits)].

The defendant may be designated in any pleading or proceeding by any name [CCP § 474]. The most commonly used name is Doe, the allegation often referred to as a "Doe allegation," and the party is commonly referred to as a "Doe defendant."

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 5.41

5.41 Fictitious Defendant Allegation Allows Action to Be Filed Within Period of Limitations.

Fictitious defendant actions enable a plaintiff who is ignorant of the true name of a defendant to bring an action against that defendant before it is barred by the statute of limitations [ Bernson v. Browning-Ferris Indus. (1994) 7 C4th 926, 930, 30 CR 2d 440, 873 P2d 613 ; Austin v. Massachusetts Bonding & Ins. Co. (1961) 56 C2d 596, 602, 15 CR 817, 364 P2d 681 ].

If the defendant's name is not discovered until after the statute of limitations has expired, the plaintiff's amended complaint naming the defendant may "relate back" to the time the original complaint was filed. This will avoid the bar of the statute of limitations if the requirements of the doctrine of relation back are satisfied [see Austin v. Massachusetts Bonding & Ins. Co. (1961) 56 C2d 596, 599, 15 CR 817, 364 P2d 681 ].

➤ Cross Reference:

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 5.42

5.42 Fictitiously Named Defendant May Be Used to Allege Recently Discovered Cause of Action Against Known Defendant.

Even though the plaintiff knows of the existence of the defendant sued by a fictitious name, and even though the plaintiff knows the defendant's actual identity (that is, his or her name), the plaintiff is "ignorant" within the meaning of the statute if unaware of that person's connection with the case or with the injuries [ General Motors Corp. v. Superior Court (1996) 48 CA4th 580, 593-594, 55 CR2d 871 ; Wallis v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1976) 61 CA3d 782, 786, 132 CR 631 ]. Therefore, an original complaint against a Doe defendant allows a plaintiff to allege a new cause of action against a new, previously known defendant, if the plaintiff was actually ignorant of the cause of action when the original complaint was filed.

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 5.43

5.43 Procedure for Including Fictitiously Named Defendants.

5.43[1] Allege Ignorance of Defendant's True Name. The allegation must state plaintiff's ignorance of the defendant's true name [CCP § 474; see Dieckmann v. Superior Court (1985) 175 CA3d 345, 351-364, 220 CR 602 ]. This requirement may be satisfied by stating that the fictitiously named defendant is sued pursuant to provisions of CCP § 474 [ Motor City Sales v. Superior Court (1973) 31 CA3d 342, 347-348, 107 CR 280 ].

► Cross Reference:

Forms of allegations against fictitiously named defendants, see Ch. 7, Complaints, 7.36 -7.39.
Form of Doe allegation, Ch. 7, Complaints, 7.36.

5.43[2] Must State Cause of Action Against Fictitious Defendant. Although named in the complaint, if no cause of action is stated against a fictitious defendant, the statute of limitations is not tolled as to that defendant [ Williams v. Goodman (1963) 214 CA2d 856, 861, 29 CR 877 ]. If the complaint merely alleges plaintiff's ignorance of the true names of fictitiously named defendants without including them in any way in the charging allegations, any attempt to amend a cause of action against such a defendant will fail if the amended complaint is filed after the statute of limitations has expired [ Williams v. Goodman (1963) 214 CA2d 856, 861-862, 29 CR 877 ; Kolodziejski v. Hover (1954) 124 CA2d 731, 732-733, 269 P2d 163 ]. If the complaint states a cause of action against all defendants, such accusation includes the fictitiously named ones [see Breceda v. Gamsby (1968) 267 CA2d 167, 171-172, 72 CR 832 ; Garrett v. Crown Coach Corp. (1968) 259 CA2d 647, 649, 66 CR 590 ].

Distinguish:

However, a charging allegation in a complaint that refers to "defendants" in the plural necessarily includes fictitiously named defendants, and amendment is permitted to state a new theory of liability based on those facts alleged in the original complaint [see Austin v. Massachusetts Bonding & Ins. Co. (1961) 56 C2d 596, 598-603, 15 CR 817, 364 P2d 681 ; Breceda v. Gamsby (1968) 267 CA2d 167, 173-179, 72 CR 832 ].

5.43[3] When True Name Learned, Amend Pleading. When the defendant's true name is discovered, the plaintiff must amend the pleading or proceeding accordingly and serve the newly named party [CCP § 474].

Chapter 5 Parties
VIII. INTERPLEADING PARTIES

1-5 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 5.45

5.45 When Interpleader Is Available.

5.45[1] Person Is Subject to Conflicting Claims to Property or Contract Obligation. A party who is subject to conflicting claims to specific personal property or a contractual obligation, or any portion thereof, may obtain interpleader relief [CCP § 386(a)].

The third party or parties need not be parties to the litigation when the party institutes the interpleader action [see CCP § 386(a)].

A party who has already been sued on the obligation may:

- Seek to obtain an order substituting a nonparty for the party;
- File a verified cross-complaint in interpleader; or
- Institute a separate complaint in interpleader.

A party who has not been sued may bring a complaint in interpleader [CCP § 386(a)].

► Cross References:

Discussion of procedure for party who has been sued to seek interpleader relief, see 5.44[2].

Discussion of procedure for party who has not been sued, see 5.44[1].

5.45[2] Person Is Subject to Multiple Claims of Liability for Single Obligation. Any person or entity against whom double or multiple claims have been made, or may be made, and which may give rise to double or multiple liability, may compel the claimants to interplead their claims in a single proceeding. The person or entity need not admit liability to any of the claimants; what liability that may exist need not have arisen yet, and the claims may still be unliquidated when interpleader is sought [CCP § 386(b); Dial 800 v. Fesbinder (2004) 118 CA4th 32, 42 ].

Strategic Point--Escrow:

When counsel has doubt about the proper disposition of an escrow, counsel can avoid the danger inherent in closing the escrow by pursuing the interpleader remedy [ Virtanen v. O'Connell (2006) 140 CA4th 688, 692, 44 CR3d 702 ].

A party who has already been sued may file a verified cross-complaint in interpleader, while a party who has not been sued may bring an interpleader action [CCP § 386(b)].

Cross References:

Discussion of procedure for party who has been sued to seek interpleader relief, see 5.45[2].

Discussion of procedure for party who has not been sued, see 5.45[1].

5.45[3] Defendant Is Subject to Multiple Demands by Parties to Litigation. A defendant may apply to the court for an order discharging him or her from liability and dismissing him or her from an action on executing an application and affidavit and depositing the claimed amount with the clerk of the court when [CCP § 386.5]:

- The only relief sought against one of two or more defendants is the payment of a stated amount of money alleged to be wrongfully withheld;
- Two or more parties to the litigation are making conflicting claims to the money; and
- That defendant alleges that he or she is a mere stakeholder and has no interest in the money,

Cross Reference:

Discussion of procedure for obtaining relief under CCP § 386.5, see 5.46[2][d].

5.45[4] Competing Claims May Be Independent of One Another. Interpleader relief under either CCP § 386(a) or (b) may be available even though the claims or titles of the adverse claimants do not have a common origin or are not identical but are adverse to and independent of another. However, the claimants must seek the same thing, debt, or duty. If the claims do not relate to the same thing, debt, or duty, interpleader is improper [ City of Morgan Hill v. Brown (1999) 71 CA4th 1114, 1123, 84 CR2d 361 (interpleader not proper)].

5.45[5] Party Seeking Interpleader Need Not Be Disinterested Stakeholder As to Part or All of Property or Obligation. Both CCP § 386(a) and 386(b) allow the party seeking interpleader to interplead only a portion of the property or obligation in question and claim an interest in the rest. Similarly, CCP § 386(b) allows the party to deny liability in whole or in part. These provisions abrogate the common-law requirement that a party seeking interpleader be a disinterested stakeholder. However, a plaintiff (i.e., a party initiating an interpleader action without first being sued) cannot claim a partial interest in property if suing under CCP § 386(a). Interpleader relief under CCP § 386(a) may only be brought as a cross-complaint.

5.46 Initiating Interpleader.

5.46[1] As Plaintiff by Filing Complaint in Interpleader Under CCP § 386(a) or 386(b). A party who has not been sued can seek interpleader relief by filing a complaint in interpleader. The complaint must allege [ Fidelity Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Rodgers (1919) 180 C 683, 684-685, 182 P 426 ]:

- The parties sought to be interpleaded are claiming the same thing;
- The claims are adverse to each other; and
- Plaintiff cannot determine which claim is lawful.

It is not necessary to allege the legal probability of recovery of each claimant [ Fidelity Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Rodgers (1919) 180 C 683, 684, 182 P 426 ].

Cross Reference:

Form of complaint, see 5.58.

5.46[2] As Defendant.

5.46[2][a] By Applying for Order of Substitution Under CCP § 386(a). A defendant against whom an action is pending on a contract, or for specific personal property, may apply for an order to substitute a nonparty in his or her place by filing an application and affidavit [CCP § 386(a)]. The affidavit must state that a person not a party to the action has made a claim on the contract or against the property and that the claim was made without collusion with the defendant [CCP § 386(a)]. The application must be made on notice to both the adverse party and the nonparty, and it must be filed before the defendant files an answer [CCP § 386(a)]. However, if the defendant fails to apply before filing an answer, the court has discretion to permit the answer to be withdrawn, to grant additional time for it to be refiled, and to permit the defendant to apply for the order of substitution before the answer is refiled [ Israel v. Bryan (1921) 52 CA 66, 71-72, 197 P 121 ].

If the claim is for money, the defendant may deposit the money with the court clerk without requiring a court order. If personal property is in question, the defendant must deliver the property to the person designated by the court [CCP § 386(a)].

Cross Reference:

Forms, see 5.61 (notice of motion), 5.62 (declaration), 5.63 (order).

5.46[2][b] By Filing Verified Cross-Complaint in Interpleader Under CCP § 386(a) or 386(b). A defendant subject to either conflicting claims to property or a contract obligation or multiple claims of liability for a single obligation may file a verified cross-complaint in interpleader [CCP § 386(a), (b)]. The cross-complaint must [CCP § 386(a), (b)]:

- Admit that the defendant has no interest in the money or property claimed or in a portion thereof;
- Allege that all or a portion of the money or property is demanded by parties to the action or cross-action (although a new cross-defendant may, and often is, introduced by this cross-complaint); and
- Request an order that the defendant deliver the money or property claimed to such persons as the court may direct.

5.46[2][c] By Filing Separate Interpleader Action Under CCP § 386(b). Any person or entity against whom double or multiple claims have been made, or may be made, which may give rise to double or multiple liability, may file a separate interpleader action [CCP § 386(b)]. This action is described at 5.45[1].

A separate interpleader action appears to be the only procedural vehicle for a defendant who wishes to contest his or her liability on the claim, since a cross-complaint must include an admission that the defendant has no interest in all or part of the claim [see CCP § 386(a), (b)].

5.46[2][d] By Applying for Order of Discharge Under CCP § 386.5. When the only relief sought against one of two or more defendants is the payment of a stated amount of money alleged to be wrongfully withheld, that defendant may apply to the court for an order discharging him or her from liability and dismissing him or her from the action, on deposit of the claimed amount with the clerk of the court [CCP § 386.5; see also Pasadena Inv. Co. v. Peerless Cas. Co. (1955) 134 CA2d Supp 902, 904 ].

The application is to be made on affidavit (or declaration under CCP § 2015.5) that he or she is a mere stakeholder with no interest in the amount whatever, who has received conflicting demands for the amount by parties to the action. The application must be made on notice to the parties who made the conflicting demands [CCP § 386.5].

5.48[1] Objections and Answers to Complaint in Interpleader.

5.48[1][a] Objections Raised by Demurrer or Cross-Complaint in Interpleader. The interpleaded or adverse claimants may contest the issue of the interpleading party's entitlement to the remedy of interpleader at the time the trial court is determining that issue. They may raise this objection by demurrer to the interpleader complaint or cross-complaint [see Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 C2d 497, 501-502, 510, 150 P2d 463 ; City of Los Angeles v. Amidor (1903) 140 C 400, 401, 73 P 1049 ] or in the answer [see San Francisco Sav. Union v. Long (1898) 123 C 107, 109, 55 P 708 ; Williams v. Gilmore (1942) 51 CA2d 684, 689, 125 P2d 539 ].

5.48[1][b] Failure to Object Deemed Consent to Interpleader. If the interpleaded or adverse claimants fail to object to the interpleading party's right to maintain an interpleader action at the first stage of the proceeding, but proceed without objection to litigate their claims fully in the action, they are deemed to have consented to the interpleader remedy. Later, they may not object that the complaint did not state a cause of action for interpleader, or that the facts were such that the interpleading party was not entitled to compel the claimants to interplead [ Conner v. Bank of Bakersfield (1920) 183 C 199, 202-203, 190 P 801 ; O'Connell v. Zimmerman (1958) 157 CA2d 330, 337, 321 P2d 161 ].

5.48[1][c] Adjudication Regarding Interpleader May Be by Trial or on Review of Pleadings. The first stage of an interpleader action may require a full trial on the issue of whether interpleader lies in the particular action. The court may, however, issue an interlocutory decree on the pleadings alone, if the allegations of the complaint, coupled with admissions in the answer or answers, show that the interpleading party is entitled to the relief sought [see Williams v. Gilmore (1942) 51 CA2d 684, 689-690, 125 P2d 539 ].

5.48[2] Interlocutory Decree Requiring Interpleader and Discharging Party Seeking Interpleader. Following the entry of an interlocutory decree requiring the adverse claimants to litigate their claims between themselves, the interpleading party ceases to be a party to the action and is usually discharged [ San Francisco Sav. Union v. Long (1898) 123 C 107, 109, 55 P 708 ; Great-West Life Assurance Co. v. Superior Court (1969) 271 CA2d 124, 127, 76 CR 284 ].

Exceptions:

An interlocutory order will not, however, completely discharge the interpleading party, even though by its terms it purports to do so, in either of the following situations [ Great-West Life Assurance Co. v. Superior Court (1969) 271 CA2d 124, 127-128, 76 CR 284 ]:

- When the interlocutory order fails to discharge the interpleading party from the claims of all the adverse or conflicting claimants, and if it specifically directs the interpleading party to deposit additional sums with the clerk as they become due although such sums may not be necessary to satisfy the conflicting claimants; or
- If the order states that costs and attorney's fees will be paid to interpleading party, but defers the determination of this award until the trial between the claimants.

In each of these cases, the first stage of the interpleader action remains partially undetermined, and the interpleading party necessarily remains an active participant in the case [ Great-West Life Assurance Co. v. Superior Court (1969) 271 CA2d 124, 127-128, 76 CR 284 ].

 Cross Reference:

Form of interlocutory order, see 5.60.

5.48[3] Answers of Contesting Parties. A party who has been interpleaded may, in lieu of or in addition to any other pleading, file an answer to the complaint or cross-complaint in interpleader. The answer must include [CCP § 386(d)]:

- Allegations of fact regarding the pleader's ownership or other interest in the amount or property;
- Any affirmative defenses; and
- The relief requested.

This answer must be served on all other parties to the action [CCP § 386(d)]. The allegations of each answer are deemed denied by all other parties unless otherwise admitted in the pleadings [CCP § 386(d)].

 Cross Reference:

Form of answer, see 5.59.

5.48[4] Objecting Party's Objection to Inadequacy of Fund or Property Raised in Next Stage. If the amount deposited is less than the amount claimed to be due by one or more of the claimants, or if the property or its value is less than one or more claimants alleges it should be, that issue is adjudicated in the second stage, after issuance of the order of interpleader. This issue, unlike any others arising from interpleader, may be tried to a jury [CCP §§ 386(e), 607-630].

5.48[5] Deposit of Money or Delivery of Property May Sometimes Require Court Order. At the time of the filing a complaint or cross-complaint in interpleader, the plaintiff or cross-complainant may deposit any amount he or she admits is payable with the clerk of the court, without first obtaining an order of the court for the deposit [CCP § 386(c)]. CCP § 386(c) permits a partial deposit--that is, a sum which the party admits it owes but which is less than the amount claimed by the opponent--to be made without court order. However, the court may not accept a deposit that is less than the total amount at issue if the making of the deposit is conditioned on the court granting the party making the deposit a complete discharge. Such a deposit would not qualify as a partial deposit and the court has no power to accept it on those terms [ Crocker-Anglo Nat'l Bank v. American Trust Co. (1959) 170 CA2d 289, 300, 338 P2d 617 ].

In the case of substitution of defendants under CCP § 386(a) or discharge of a defendant under CCP § 386.5, a court order is required before the money in dispute may be deposited with the court.

When the subject matter of the dispute is personal property, the property may be delivered only pursuant to court order. The property must be delivered to the person designated in the order [CCP § 386(a), (b)].

5.49 Stakeholder's Liability.

5.49[1] Independent Liability of Stakeholder to Claimant Ordinarily Precludes Interpleader. Generally, interpleader relief is not available to a stakeholder who has incurred some personal obligation to any of the claimants that is independent of the title or right of possession of the fund or property in question [ Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins(1944) 24 C2d 497, 505, 150 P2d 463 ]. To justify dismissal of an interpleader action, this independent obligation must be such that it will not be resolved by the litigation between the interpleaded defendants [ Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 C2d 497, 505, 150 P2d 463 ].

Not every independent obligation will negate interpleader relief. If the court's determines the responsibility of the interpleading party to be that of a mere stakeholder for the purposes of CCP §§ 386-386.6, interpleader is available [see Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 C2d 497, 505-506, 150 P2d 463 (interpleader of adverse claimants to rent held by tenant not barred by independent obligation of tenant to landlord under terms of lease); Security Trust & Sav. Bank v. Carlsen (1928) 205 C 309, 316-317, 271 P 100 ].

5.49[2] Liability for Interest or Wrongful Withholding Ceases on Deposit. Any interest on amounts deposited with the court clerk and any right to damages for detention of property delivered to the court pursuant to court order ceases to accrue after the date of deposit or delivery [CCP § 386(c)]. Prior to such deposit or delivery, the stakeholder may be liable to the successful interpleaded claimant for interest on the money or damages for wrongful withholding of the property claimed [see Conner v. Bank of Bakersfield (1917) 174 C 400, 402-403, 163 P 353 (interest)].

5.49[3] Stakeholder Immune From Tort Liability. As a matter of law and public policy, an interpleader plaintiff is not liable in tort for naming someone as a potential claimant in an interpleader action. Thus, a claimant to the fund at issue may not successfully sue the interpleader plaintiff for malicious prosecution, abuse of process, or intentional infliction of emotional distress [ Cantu v. Resolution Trust Corp. (1992) 4 CA4th 857, 873, 6 CR2d 151 ].

5.49[4] Interpleaded Funds Not Subject to Further Claims. When in the legal custody of the court, the funds deposited no longer are subject to further claims, such as claims made by writs of attachment or execution that purport to levy on all or part of the funds in question [see Van Orden v. Anderson (1932) 122 CA 132, 141, 9 P2d 572 (attachment); Durkin v. Durkin (1955) 133 CA 2d 283, 293, 284 P2d 185 (execution)].

5.50 Interest on Interpleaded Funds May Be Ordered, Then Paid to Parties in Proportion to Award of Original Funds.

When a deposit has been made pursuant to CCP § 386, the court, on application of any party to the action, must order the deposit to be invested in an insured interest-bearing account. The interest earned should be allocated to the parties in the same proportion as are the original funds [CCP § 386.1].

5.51 Costs and Attorney's Fees.

5.51[1] Stakeholder Must Follow Procedure to Obtain Costs and Attorney's Fees. A party to an action who follows the procedure set forth in CCP § 386 (complaints and cross-complaints in interpleader and application for substitution) or CCP § 386.5 (application for dismissal), may insert in his or her motion, petition, complaint, or cross-complaint a request for allowance of costs and reasonable attorney fees incurred in the action [CCP § 386.6].

The party must follow the procedures set out in CCP § 386 or 386.5 to qualify for costs and fees.

Distinguish:

A stakeholder who merely files an answer stating that he or she is a stakeholder with no interest in the amount in question, but does not follow through with the statutory interpleader procedures, does not qualify for attorney's fees [ Phillips v. Barton (1962) 207 CA2d 488, 495, 24 CR 527 ].

A defendant's opposition to deposit of the disputed funds does not excuse the stakeholder's failure to deposit the funds with the court in furtherance of gaining entitlement to an award of attorney's fees from those funds [ Wells Fargo Bank v. Zinnel (2004) 125 CA4th 393, 401 ].

5.51[2] Court Has Discretion in Award of Costs and Fees. In ordering the discharge of an interpleader party, the court has discretion to award that party costs and reasonable attorney fees from the disputed amount deposited with the court [CCP § 386.6(a)]. An award of attorney's fees to a discharged stakeholder may only be made from funds deposited with the court [ Wells Fargo Bank v. Zinnel (2004) 125 CA4th 393, 403 ].

At the time of the final judgment in the action, the court may make such further provisions for assumption of costs and attorney fees by one or more of the adverse claimants as may appear proper [CCP § 386.6(a)].

5.52 Order of Discharge Is Not Appealable but Final Judgment Is Appealable.

Generally, an order of discharge is not appealable because it does not make a final disposition of money or property [see CCP § 904.1(a); Camp v. Oakland Mortgage & Fin. Co. (1928) 205 C 380, 381-383, 270 P 685 ; Neilsen v. Saylor (1956) 146 CA2d 139, 140, 303 P2d 781 ]. Only the final judgment in interpleader is appealable [ Lincoln Nat'l Life Ins. Co. v. Mitchell (1974) 41 CA3d 16, 19, 115 CR 723 ].

|                             | ) |                           |

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendants _____ [names] are, and at all times mentioned herein were, residents of _____ County, California _____ [or allege other capacity and residence of defendants].

[2. Defendants Doe I through Doe _____, inclusive, are sued herein under fictitious names. Their true names and capacities are unknown to Plaintiff. When their true names and capacities are ascertained, Plaintiff will amend this complaint by inserting their true names and capacities herein. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges, that each of the fictitiously named Defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that Plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by those Defendants.)] (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of these fictitiously named Defendants is making or has a claim to the _____ [property or funds or obligation] described in this complaint which is conflicting with the claims of Defendants herein and which may subject Plaintiff to vexatious litigation with respect to _____ [that property or those funds or that obligation].)

3. _____ [Describe personal property, funds, or obligation, or portion thereof, to which conflicting claims have been made, e.g., On or about _____ (date), Plaintiff entered into a written contract with Defendant _____ (name) for the construction of a sidewalk over Plaintiff's property. Under this contract Defendant _____ (name) promised to perform all necessary labor and supply all necessary materials for the construction of the sidewalk and Plaintiff promised to pay Defendant _____ (name) the sum of $_____ on completion of the sidewalk. Defendant _____ (name) has fully performed all conditions, covenants, and promises under the contract and Plaintiff now holds the sum of $_____, (the sum due under the contract or after deduction of all sums of money consisting of prior payments or specify other portion of sum that is not in dispute)].

4. _____ [State conflicting claims that have been made on Plaintiff relating to personal property or performance of obligation, or portion thereof, so that Plaintiff shows reasonable probability of vexatious litigation, e.g., Defendant _____ (name of claimant under contract) has demanded that Plaintiff pay the sum due under the contract (, specifically making a written demand for this sum on _____ [date], a copy of which is attached as Exhibit A and made a part hereof). However, Plaintiff has refused to pay that sum because Defendant _____ (name of assignee) has claimed that this sum is now due and owing to him/her under an assignment of all right, title, and interest in and to the contract mentioned above, allegedly made by Defendant _____ (name of claimant under contract) to Defendant _____ (name of assignee) on or about _____ [date], and of which Plaintiff was given notice by _____ (specify manner in which notice was given) (, a copy of which is attached as Exhibit B and made a part hereof)].

5. Plaintiff is indifferent with respect to which Defendant Plaintiff should _____ [deliver the property described above or pay the $_____ or perform the obligation described above] and _____ [claims no interest in the property or claims no interest in the $_____ or does not dispute that he/she is required to perform such obligation].

6. The respective claims made by Defendants _____ [names] are adverse and conflicting and are made without Plaintiff's collusion. Plaintiff is unable to safely determine which of the claims is valid.

[7. Plaintiff has deposited the sum of $_____, being the entire amount in dispute which is due and unpaid at this time with the clerk of this court on the filing of this complaint.]

[8. Defendants _____ (names) have commenced separate actions against Plaintiff on their respective claims. These actions have been commenced in _____ (list title of court and number of each action). Defendants _____ (names) have threatened to file actions against Plaintiff on their respective claims and Plaintiff fears that unless restrained by an order of the court, these Defendants will file such actions on their claims. Therefore, it is necessary to restrain the prosecution of those actions which have been commenced against Plaintiff and to restrain the filing of those actions which have been threatened to be filed, in order to prevent a multiplicity of judicial proceedings and to prevent Plaintiff from facing vexatious litigation with respect to the _____ (property or $_____ or obligation) described above.]

9. Plaintiff has incurred attorney fees and costs as a result of these proceedings.

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff prays judgment against Defendants, and each of them, as follows:

1. That Defendants be ordered to interplead and litigate their respective rights to the _____ [property or $ _____ or obligation] described above;

2. That Plaintiff be discharged from any and all liability on account of the claims of each of the Defendants;

[3. That Defendants _____ (names) be restrained from prosecution of their actions against Plaintiff on their respective claims and that Defendants _____ (names) be restrained from instituting any actions against Plaintiff on their respective claims;]

4. That Plaintiff be awarded costs and reasonable attorney fees to be determined by the court [and to be paid out of the money deposited with the court]; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the Plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [Defendant or Cross-Defendant] _____ [name] answers the _____ [complaint or cross-complaint] herein as follows:

1. _____ [Defendant or Cross-Defendant] admits each and every allegation set forth in Paragraph(s) _____ of the _____ [complaint or cross-complaint] herein, and, in particular, the allegation that _____ [Plaintiff or Cross-Complainant] has no interest in the _____ [sum of $ _____ or describe personal property][, or in any portion thereof,] as alleged in Paragraph(s) _____ of the _____ [complaint or cross-complaint].
2. _____ [Defendant or Cross-Defendant] denies each and every allegation set forth in Paragraph(s) _____ of the _____ [and, in particular, the allegation that there is a conflict between this answering (Cross-) Defendant and (Cross-) Defendant _____ (name of other interpleaded claimant) over the _____ ($ _____ or property) as alleged in Paragraph(s) _____ of the _____ [complaint or cross-complaint] (and affirmatively alleges that there is no such conflict)].
3. This answering [Cross-] Defendant further denies that [Cross-] Defendant _____ [name of adverse claimant] has any right to or interest in the _____ [sum of $ _____ or property described] as alleged in Paragraph(s) _____ of the _____ [complaint or cross-complaint] herein[, other than _____ (the sum of $ _____ or describe property),] for the reason that _____ [specify].
4. _____ [Allege facts in this paragraph, and in succeeding paragraphs if required, showing (cross-) defendant's right to the money or property in dispute, e.g., On or about October 15, 2003, the contract referred to in Paragraph 3 of the complaint herein was duly assigned in writing by Defendant John Lee to this answering Defendant Mary Jones, and, thereafter, on or about October 27, 2003, notice of the assignment was given to Plaintiff John Smith. Copies of the assignment and of the notice are attached as Exhibits A and B, respectively, and made a part hereof. By the terms of the assignment, this answering Defendant Mary Jones has been and now is entitled to the full sum of $87,500].

[If alleging affirmative defense or defenses, ADD]

AS A (FIRST) SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE, (Cross-) Defendant alleges:

1. _____ [Set forth any facts constituting affirmative defense].

[CONTINUE with any additional affirmative defenses.]

WHEREFORE, this answering [Cross-] Defendant prays judgment as follows:

- [1. For a determination that this is not a proper case for interpleader and that _____ (Plaintiff or Cross-Complainant) is therefore not entitled to compel (Cross-) Defendants to interplead and litigate their claims to the _____ (money or property) in question;]

2. That the _____ [money or property] in question be awarded to this answering [Cross-] Defendant; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

Chapter 6 Determining Forum

I. STRATEGY

6.02 Objective and Strategy.

The objective in determining the forum in which to proceed is to have a case heard before a forum with jurisdiction to hear the case, and when there are options, to select that jurisdiction which is most convenient and which you perceive to be most likely to take a favorable view of your position.

Many factors must be considered in forum selection. The initial factor is whether one must or desires to pursue alternative dispute resolution [see, e.g., CC § 1369.510 et seq. (requires attempt at alternative dispute resolution prior to filing enforcement action concerning common interest development)]. Most importantly is the determination whether the dispute is governed by a contractual arbitration requirement [see CCP § 1280 et seq.; 9 USC § 1 et seq.]. If a contractual arbitration agreement is involved, each party needs to consider whether arbitration is desirable under the circumstances and whether grounds to resist arbitration may exist.

Strategic Point:

Although arbitration offers flexibility and finality, the lack of substantial judicial involvement and precedential value may make it less appropriate for some cases [see CCP §§ 1286-1286.8 (grounds for vacating or correcting arbitration decisions)]. Enforceability particularly should be scrutinized if the parties are not of equal bargaining power, as in consumer and employment situations.

Whether or not arbitration is mandatory, a party should always consider whether mediation is an appropriate way to dispose of a dispute promptly and efficiently. If a party to an arbitration agreement pursues a case through the superior court, the opposing party has an alternative whether or not to compel arbitration pursuant to the terms of the contract, or simply to respond by filing an answer or otherwise pleading in the superior court.

If a party prefers or is left with no option but to litigate the dispute in court, the first consideration is identifying the courts with jurisdiction. In addition to simply determining whether California state courts have jurisdiction, this might mean choosing between California and another state's courts, state versus federal court, or even a foreign tribunal.

If an action is to be brought in California courts, it will almost certainly be brought in the superior court, although a small category of cases are brought in the court of appeal or the Supreme Court in the first instance. In selecting the appropriate superior court, the final consideration is venue, which will depend on the nature of the claim and the parties

[see CCP § 392 et seq.].

II. ANALYZING ARBITRATION REQUIREMENTS AND ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION (ADR) OPTIONS

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 6.03

6.03 CHECKLIST: Analyzing Arbitration Requirements and Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR) Options.

- ☐ Determine if dispute is governed by contractual or statutory arbitration requirements.
  - ☐ If dispute involves a contract, review contract for arbitration agreement/clause.
    - ☐ If contract contains an arbitration agreement:
      - ☐ Determine scope of topics to be addressed in arbitration, and whether dispute at issue is within that scope.
  - ☐ Review for preconditions or time limits placed on arbitration.
  - ☐ Assess whether any party has waived right to arbitrate by:
    - ☐ Waiving arbitration in a written release.
    - ☐ Taking steps inconsistent with the intent to invoke arbitration.

Discussion:

See 6.10, 6.11, 6.15, 6.29, 6.30

Authority:

CCP § 1280 et seq.; 9 USC § 1 et seq.

- ☐ If agreement to arbitrate includes arbitration of rights conferred by statute, analyze whether Congress or legislature indicated judicial remedies for such rights could not be waived.

☐ If so, jury trial may be available as to statutory claims.

☐ Claims under the following acts may be subject to arbitration:

☐ Age Discrimination in Employment Act, 29 USC § 621 et seq.

☐ California Franchise Investment Law, Corp Code § 31000 et seq.

☐ Cartwright Act, B&P Code § 16700 et seq.

☐ Consumer Legal Remedies Act, CC § 1750 et seq.

☐ Sherman Act, 15 USC § 1 et seq.

☐ Unfair Trade Practices Act, see B&P Code § 17000 et seq.

☐ Unfair Competition Act, see B&P Code §§ 17200, 17203.

☐ Unruh Civil Rights Act, CC § 51 et seq.

☐ Uninsured Motorist Statute, see Ins Code § 11580.2(a), (f).

Authority:

9 USC § 1 et seq.; Gilmer v. Interstate/Johnson Lane Corp. (1991) 500 US 20, 26, 111 S Ct 1647, 114 L Ed2d 26

Discussion:

See 6.28

☐ If a contract appears to require arbitration, consider whether to seek to compel or avoid arbitration.

☐ Follow procedures required to compel or avoid arbitration.

Authority:

CCP § 1280 et seq.

Discussion:

See 6.11, 6.15

☐ If arbitration is not required by contract or statute, consider whether alternative dispute resolution is desirable:

- ☐ Consider ADR opportunities and requirements for cases in litigation.
- ☐ Distinguish judicial arbitration, reference, and trial by judge pro tem from other forms of ADR.

Discussion:

See 6.05 -6.07

- ☐ Consider whether mediation would be adequate.

Discussion:

See 6.05

- ☐ Consider whether arbitration would be desirable.

☐ Consider arbitration service provider rules, procedures and costs.

Discussion:

See 6.06, 6.08

☐ Review pros and cons of available alternatives with client, advising client of any relevant statute of limitations issues.

- ☐ Select forum, and take any necessary steps to preserve client's right to relief in other forums if possible.

Discussion:

See 6.05 -6.10

II. ANALYZING ARBITRATION REQUIREMENTS AND ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION (ADR) OPTIONS

6.04 Options and Strategies.

Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR) is generally defined to be a process, other than formal litigation, in which a neutral person or persons resolve a dispute or assist parties in resolving their dispute [see Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.800(1); see also CCP § 1731(a)]. In some cases, ADR is neither required, nor appropriate. For example, traditional litigation is preferred where:

- There is a significant public interest in a question of statutory or constitutional interpretation.
- Deterrence of recurring issues or injuries is important.
- There is a public interest in sanctioning unacceptable conduct.
- The parties are incompetent negotiators.
- Serious issues of compliance requiring discovery or injunctive relief are involved.

In the vast majority of cases, though, ADR processes are likely to offer significant advantages over traditional, full-scale litigation.

Alternative dispute resolution may be required as a prerequisite to filing a court action and may be subject to statutory rules [see, e.g., CC § 1369.510 et seq. (requires attempt at alternative dispute resolution subject to certain statutory rules prior to filing enforcement action concerning common interest development)].

Strategic Point:

If your case is assigned to a judge who is likely to be unfavorably disposed to make rulings in your favor, alternative dispute resolution may be an attractive alternative.

Investigating Judges Using Online Resources:

Many resources are available online for investigating judges. These resources can help you find information and cases pertaining to your assigned judge. For example, helpful resources at lexis.com include:

- For opinions or decisions affirming or reversing a judge's ruling, search in Legal tab > States Legal--U.S. > California > Find Cases > CA State Cases, Combined.

☐ Sample search: For appellate rulings regardless of topic, use the HISTORY segment with the judge's last name in this format: history (first name /3 last name /3 j or judge or judicial or mag or hon!).

☐ Sample search: For appellate decisions on a judge's rulings in a particular procedural setting or on a particular substantive topic, use the HISTORY segment with the judge's last name in this format plus words for finding the specific topic, for example: summary judgment and history (first name /3 last name /3 j or judge or judicial or mag or hon!).

- To find biographical information about a federal judge, search the biographies in Legal tab > Reference > Law > Legal Reference Materials > Judicial Staff Directory.

☐ Sample search: For a particular judge, try: name (first name /3 last name).

- To find news articles about a judge, search in the California news files Legal tab > States Legal--U.S. > California > Search News > General News > California News Publications.

☐ Sample search: For articles on particular judge, try a simple search: first name /3 last name.

- To find articles about a judge or legal articles written by the judge both before and after the judge took the bench, search the law reviews and other periodicals in Legal tab > Secondary Legal > Law Reviews, CLE, Legal Journals & Periodicals, Combined.

☐ Sample search: For legal articles written by a particular judge, try a simple search: first name /3 last name.

Timing:

Since one of the primary advantages of ADR is to save disputants time and money, ADR should be a threshold consideration for a party determining in what forum to resolve a claim. In the many cases that would be subject to mandatory judicial mediation or arbitration if filed in court [see CCP §§ 1141.11, 1775 et seq.], the inevitability of mandatory ADR, and the attendant restrictions placed on parties, might persuade disputants first to attempt a voluntary form of ADR, over which they could maintain greater control.

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 6.05

6.05 Mediating Disputes.

6.05[1] Voluntary Mediation. Mediation is a process in which a neutral person or persons facilitate communication between disputants to assist them in reaching a mutually acceptable resolution to a dispute [see CCP § 1775.1(a)]. Mediation is likely to be faster and less expensive than more formal ADR processes, and should be considered early on in a dispute. Unlike binding arbitration, submitting to mediation does not restrict a party's recourse to the courts. Typically, mediation involves factual presentations by lawyers, followed by negotiations between the parties involved in the dispute with the assistance of a mediator, with or without an evaluative component.

► Finding and Investigating Mediators Using Online Resources:

Many resources are available online for finding and investigating mediators. These resources can help you select a mediator and also help you assess the strengths and weaknesses of both your and your opponent's cases. For example, helpful resources at lexis.com include:

- To locate dispute resolution practitioners in a particular County listed in the Martindale-Hubbell(R) Dispute Resolution Directory. Search Legal tab > Area of Law--By Topic > Alternative Dispute Resolution > Access Directories > Martindale-Hubbell(R) Dispute Resolution Directory.

☐ Sample search: To locate mediators in Los Angeles county, use this segment search:
COUNTY (los angeles).

- To investigate a mediator that is being considered or has been selected, search the Martindale-Hubbell(R) listings. Legal tab > Reference > Martindale-Hubbell(R) > Combined Law Directory Listings > Martindale-Hubbell(R) Listings, All.

☐ Sample search: To find biographical and practice information on a mediator, use this search: name (first name /3 last name).

● To find articles about a judge or legal articles written by the judge both before and after the judge took the bench, search the law reviews and other periodicals in Legal tab > Secondary Legal > Law Reviews, CLE, Legal Journals & Periodicals, Combined.

○ Sample search: For legal articles written by a particular mediator, try a simple search: first name /3 last name.

Furthermore, courts are authorized to provide lists of mediators if they choose to do so. Under Cal Rules Ct, effective January 1, 2011, courts that supply lists of mediators to parties or that recommend, select, appoint, or compensate mediators to mediate general civil cases pending in the court must establish minimum qualifications for those mediators [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 10.781, as amended effective January 1, 2011].

6.05[2] Courts Will Order Mediation in Certain Cases. Courts in Los Angeles County may order all at-issue civil actions in which arbitration is otherwise required by CCP § 1141.11 (nonexempt unlimited civil cases, where amount in controversy does not exceed $50,000 per plaintiff) to mediation as an alternative to judicial arbitration [see CCP § 1775 et seq.]. Courts in other counties may opt to do so as well [see CCP § 1775.3]. Thus, when mediation is inevitable in a given case, it would behoove the disputants to opt for voluntary mediation prior to incurring the expense of filing suit.

Strategic Point:

Parties to a dispute first might attempt a lawyers-and-parties-only mediation. If the mediation does not result in a settlement, the mediation still may help the parties identify those issues on which there appears to be the most serious disagreement, and then have a mini-trial or summary jury trial, preceded by limited discovery focused on those narrowed issues.

II. ANALYZING ARBITRATION REQUIREMENTS AND ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION (ADR) OPTIONS

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 6.06

6.06 Contractual Arbitration.

6.06[1] Arbitration Provides Decision by Neutral Third Party That May Be Binding or Nonbinding.

Arbitration is the submission of factual and/or legal issues to a neutral third party, or panel of neutral third parties, who renders a decision similar to that which a judge or jury would render in a court proceeding [see Cheng-Canindin v. Renaissance Hotel Assocs. (1996) 50 CA4th 676, 687-688, 57 CR2d 867]. The decision rendered in arbitration may be binding or nonbinding. If nonbinding, it is essentially mediation by another name, or judicially mandated arbitration. Contractual arbitration proceedings are typically binding, and are governed by CCP § 1280 et seq.

6.06[2] Arbitration Is Substitute for Court Proceedings, but Rules of Evidence and Procedure May Not Apply. Contractual arbitration is a substitute for proceedings in court, but, unless the parties agree otherwise, the rules of evidence and judicial procedure do not apply in arbitration proceedings [CCP § 1282.2(d)]. Despite the relaxed procedures and evidentiary rules, binding arbitration is the most formal ADR process, and the one most similar to a court trial. Consequently, arbitration may well be as expensive as a court trial, and may involve similar time delays.

6.06[3] Arbitration Decisions Are Usually Final, Subject to Limited Judicial Review. Binding arbitration is substantially insulated from judicial review [see CCP §§ 1286-1287.2; see also Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase (1992) 3 C4th 1, 26-28, 33, 10 CR2d 183, 832 P2d 899]. Arbitrators are not bound to decide cases in accordance with the law, and may base a decision on principles of justice and equity; thus, it is considered inappropriate for a court to review an arbitration decision [Sy First Family Ltd. P'ship v. Cheung (1999) 70 CA4th 1334, 1341-1344, 83 CR2d 340; Gueyffier v. Ann Summers, Ltd. (2008) 43 C4th 1179, 1184, 77 CR3d 613, 184 P3d 739 (arbitrator had authority to apply equitable defenses to excuse party from performing material condition of agreement that provided arbitrator could not modify or change any material provisions in agreement)]. If judicial review of an arbitration decision is sought, the available grounds for challenge are extremely limited [CCP §§ 1286.2-1286.8].

Decision Point:

Parties to a dispute may agree to arbitration after the dispute arises, rather than beforehand in their contract. The benefits of post-dispute arbitration agreements include the ability of the parties to structure more precisely the scope of the arbitration, for example, in a way such that the arbitrator's role is to choose among possible outcomes negotiated by the parties.

Drawback:

Because the grounds for judicial review of arbitration decisions are very limited, an arbitrator's decision will be relatively final. The inability to obtain substantive review of an arbitration decision could be a factor weighing against binding arbitration, particularly if a case contains important or novel questions of law.

Exception:

The parties to an arbitration agreement may take themselves out of the general rule that the merits of the award are not subject to judicial review by clearly agreeing that legal errors are an excess of arbitral authority reviewable by the courts under CCP §§ 1286.2, 1286.6 [Cable Connection, Inc. v. Directv, Inc. (2008) 44 C4th 1334, 1354-1364, 82 CR3d 229, 190 P3d 586 ; Gravillis v. Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage Co. (2010) 182 CA4th 503, 516, 106 CR3d 70 (requiring application of California law is insufficient to impose judicial review); Oaktree Capital Mgmt., L.P. v. Bernard (2010) 182 CA4th 60, 71, 106 CR3d 16] .

Cross Reference:

Discussion of language of clauses that impose judicial review for legal error, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 34, Contractual Arbitration: Judicial Review, § 34.10 (Matthew Bender).

6.06[4] Public Policy Strongly Favors Arbitration. Public policy strongly favors arbitration as a speedy and relatively inexpensive means of dispute resolution [ Ericksen, Arbuthnot, McCarthy, Kearney & Walsh, Inc. v. 100 Oak St. (1983) 35 C3d 312, 322, 197 CR 581, 673 P2d 251 ]. The right to arbitration, however, depends on the existence of a contract, and there is no public policy favoring arbitration of disputes that the parties have not agreed to arbitrate [ Marcus & Millichap Real Estate Inv. Brokerage Co. v. Hock Inv. Co. (1998) 68 CA4th 83, 88, 80 CR2d 147 ].

II. ANALYZING ARBITRATION REQUIREMENTS AND ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION (ADR) OPTIONS

6.07 Alternative Dispute Resolution Options for Cases in Litigation.

6.07[1] Judicial Arbitration Preserves Right to Trial De Novo. Judicial arbitration is nonbinding arbitration that is a mandatory part of pretrial procedure in many litigated civil cases, and is governed by CCP §§ 1141.10-1141.31, Cal Rules Ct, Rules 3.720 et seq., 3.810 et seq., and local court rules. When not mandatory, judicial arbitration may be opted for by parties in litigation [see CCP § 1141.12].

Judicial arbitration is required when any party to a civil action is a public agency or public entity [CCP § 1141.27], and may also be ordered in the following situations:

- When the court determines the amount in controversy will not exceed $50,000 for each plaintiff [CCP § 1141.11(a), (b)];
- When the plaintiff elects to place the matter into arbitration and agrees no arbitration award will exceed $50,000 [CCP § 1141.12(b)];
- When the parties agree by stipulation to submit the matter to arbitration prior to any trial, regardless of the amount in controversy [CCP § 1141.12(a)].

The purpose of judicial arbitration is to provide parties already involved in legal proceedings a simplified alternative to a trial for resolving their dispute, yet retain their right to a civil trial if they are not satisfied with the results of the arbitration proceeding [see CCP § 1141.20 (providing for trial de novo following arbitration decision)].

Drawback:

If a party requests a trial de novo after judicial arbitration and fails to obtain a judgment more favorable than the arbitration award, he or she will be liable for significant costs and fees [see CCP § 1141.21]; thus, there is a disincentive to requesting a trial de novo following judicial arbitration.

Exception:

On motion of a party, if the court makes a written finding that the imposition of costs and fees would create such a substantial economic hardship as not to be in the interest of justice, it may decline to impose costs and fees against the party who requested trial de novo [CCP § 1141.21].

◆ Cross Reference:

Detailed discussion of judicial arbitration, see Ch. 24, Pretrial ADR.

6.07[2] Reference of Cases.

6.07[2][a] Case May Be Referred by Agreement, or Upon Motion of a Party or the Court. An action or proceeding, or a particular issue in an action or proceeding, may be referred to a referee by agreement of the parties or on the motion of a party or the court in certain cases [CCP §§ 638, 639]. A "general reference" is a trial before a referee on all issues of fact and law, and may occur only with the parties' consent [CCP § 638(a)]. The decision of a referee in a general reference stands as the decision of the court upon the filing of the decision of statement with the clerk of the court or judge, and judgment may be entered on the decision [CCP § 644(a)].

Prerequisite:

For a case to be referred based on the motion of a party, the court must find that a written reference agreement exists between the parties [CCP § 638].

A "special reference" is where a referee is appointed for one of several limited purposes listed in CCP § 639, including the resolution of discovery disputes, to aid the court in reaching its decision [ Ellsworth v. Ellsworth (1954) 42 C2d 719, 722-723, 269 P2d 3 ]. A special reference may be made with or without the consent of the parties [see CCP §§ 638, 639(a); Cal Rules Ct, Rules 3.900 et seq., 3.920 et seq.].

Drawback:

Unless the referee is an employee or officer of the court at the time of the reference, the court may order the parties to pay the referee's fees [see CCP §§ 645.1, 1023].

6.07[2][b] Rules of Evidence Apply. A hearing before a referee is conducted in the same way it would be before a court, under the rules of evidence applicable to judicial proceedings [ Sy First Family Ltd. P'ship v. Cheung (1999) 70 CA4th 1334, 1341, 83 CR2d 340 ; see Evid Code § 300].

6.07[2][c] Trial Court Independently Reviews Referee's Decision. In most cases, the decision of a referee is only advisory, but the court may adopt the decision in whole or in part after independently considering the referee's findings and any objections and responses filed with the court [CCP § 644(b); see also Nat'l. Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Nationwide Ins. (1999) 69 CA4th 709, 716, 82 CR2d 16 ].

Exception:

In consensual general references, the decision of a referee stands as the decision of the court, upon the filing of the decision of statement with the clerk of the court or judge [CCP § 644(a)].

◆ Cross Reference:

Detailed discussion, see Ch. 25, Reference.

6.07[3] Temporary Judge May Try Case to Final Determination and Render Judgment. Parties in litigation may stipulate to appoint a member of the State Bar as a "judge pro tem," who can try the case and render judgment as would a regular judge of the court [Cal Const, art VI, § 21; Cal Rules Ct, Rules 2.830, 2.831]. The stipulation must be in writing and be submitted for approval to the presiding judge or, in a branch court, the supervising judge [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.831(a)]. Despite this writing requirement, under the tantamount stipulation doctrine, a stipulation may also be implied by a party's or counsel's conduct in participating in a case before a judge pro tem with knowledge of the judge's status [ In re Horton (1991) 54 C3d 82, 91-92, 284 CR 305, 813 P2d 1335 ; Estate of Fain (1999) 75 CA4th 973, 988, 89 CR2d 618 ].

Drawbacks:

If a judge pro tem hears a case, the ruling issued is not confirmed by the trial court, but is reviewable only by writ to the appellate court [see Old Republic Ins. Co. v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. (1996) 45 CA4th 631, 635, 53 CR2d 50 (a temporary judge has the power to render a judgment appealable in the same manner as one rendered by a constitutional judge); Kajima Eng'g & Constr., Inc. v. Pacific Bell (2002) 103 CA4th 1397, 1401, 127 CR2d 464 ].

6.08 Using Arbitration Service Providers.

6.08[1] Arbitration Service Provider Rules May Be Incorporated Into Contract. Some of the commonly used arbitration service providers in California are the American Arbitration Association, CPR Institute for Dispute Resolution, JAMS/Endispute, and Los Angeles County Bar Association Dispute Resolution Services, Inc., as well as many other county bars. An arbitration service provider's rules may be incorporated by reference into a contract. In such a case, the provider is the administrator of any arbitration initiated pursuant to the agreement. The entire scheme for arbitration established by a provider may be comprehensive enough to be self-executing, so that a court order to compel arbitration is not required [see Kustom Kraft Homes v. Leivenstein (1971) 14 CA3d 805, 810-811, 92 CR 650 ].

6.08[2] American Arbitration Association Has Specialized Rules. The American Arbitration Association (AAA), a private nonprofit organization founded in 1926 to advance arbitration, has formulated a comprehensive set of specialized rules for the arbitration of various types of controversies. The AAA does not act as arbitrator; its function is to administer arbitrations in accordance with the agreement of the parties and to maintain panels from which the parties may choose arbitrators. Once chosen, the arbitrator decides the issues, and his or her award is final and binding.

Specialized sets of rules established by the AAA include the following:

- Accident Claims Rules for arbitration of disputes involving motor vehicle liability insurance policies;
- Construction Industry Arbitration Rules for arbitration of disputes under construction contracts;
- Voluntary Labor Arbitration Rules and Expedited Labor Arbitration Rules for arbitration of labor disputes; and
- Commercial Arbitration Rules for arbitration of disputes under commercial contracts.

The Commercial Arbitration Rules include Procedures for Large, Complex Commercial Disputes, typically those in which the claim or counterclaim of any party is at least $500,000. An important feature of these procedures is the arbiter's broad authority and discretion to order and control discovery.

III. SUBMITTING TO OR COMPELLING ARBITRATION

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 6.09

6.09 CHECKLIST: Submitting to or Compelling Arbitration.

☐ Review arbitration agreement, if any, checking for the following potential terms:

- ☐ Preconditions to arbitration.
- ☐ Time limits.
- ☐ Fee posting requirements.
- ☐ Designation of a specific arbitration service provider and incorporation of that provider's rules.

☐ Prepare written demand for arbitration that complies with arbitration agreement and, if appropriate, arbitration service provider's rules.

- ☐ Use form required by arbitration service selected; or
- ☐ Prepare a letter demanding arbitration.
- ☐ Identify the underlying agreement, pursuant to which demand is being made.
- ☐ Describe the dispute to be arbitrated.

☐ Serve demand within time specified in arbitration agreement or, if not stated, within a reasonable time.

- ☐ Serve on parties to agreement via certified mail.
- ☐ Send demand to arbitration service selected, if applicable.

Form:

See 6.57 (demand for arbitration)

Authority:

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 6.10

6.10 Options and Strategies for Plaintiffs and Defendants.

6.10[1] Using Pre- or Post-Dispute Arbitration Agreements.

6.10[1][a] Agreement to Arbitrate Is a Contract. Parties may agree to submit an existing controversy or future disputes to arbitration. Private arbitration is a matter of agreement between the parties, and is governed by contract law [ Platt Pac., Inc. v. Andelson (1993) 6 C4th 307, 313-314, 24 CR2d 597, 862 P2d 158 ]. A written agreement to submit an existing or future controversy to arbitration is valid, enforceable, and irrevocable except on such grounds as exist for revocation of any contract [CCP § 1281].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of contract defenses to arbitration agreements, see 6.24, 6.25.

Strategic Point:

A pre-dispute arbitration agreement is usually contained in or incorporated into an underlying contract between the parties, and might not be extremely detailed with respect to arbitration, whereas a post-dispute arbitration agreement might be a free-standing agreement addressing only the dispute to be arbitrated. Thus, a post-dispute arbitration agreement may allow for greater specificity with respect to how, and on what issues, the arbitration will proceed.

Cross Reference:

Discussion, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration Agreements & Compelling Arbitration (Matthew Bender).

Strategic Point--Attorney Fee Arbitration:

An award of attorney fees rendered pursuant to an arbitration under the Mandatory Fee Arbitration Act is nonbinding, and either party may seek a trial de novo under Bus & Prof Code § 6204(a), unless the parties have agreed that the MFAA arbitrator's award is binding [ Schatz v. Allen Matkins Leck Gamble & Mallory LLP (2009) 45 C4th 557, 565, 87 CR3d 700, 198 P3d 1109] . Contractual arbitration under the California Arbitration Act, CCP § 1280 et seq., may be the proceeding constituting "trial de novo" with respect to the proceeding that follows rejection of the mandatory award by either party [ Schatz v. Allen Matkins Leck Gamble & Mallory LLP (2009) 45 C4th 557, 566, 87 CR3d 700, 198 P3d 1109] .

Distinguish:

If a matter is in litigation when the parties decide to submit it to arbitration, their agreement must be in the form of a stipulation [ Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.726]. Specifically, the clerk provides the plaintiff with a form stipulation to ADR process as part of an ADR information package when the complaint is filed, which the plaintiff must serve with the complaint [see Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.221]. Cross-complainants must also serve copies of the ADR information package on any new parties to the action along with the cross-complaint [see Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.221]. If the parties agree to use an ADR process, they are to complete the form stipulation jointly and file it with the court [see Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.726].

Finding and Investigating Arbitrators Using Online Resources:

Many resources are available online for finding and investigating arbitrators. These resources can help you select and/or investigate an arbitrator. For example, helpful resources at lexis.com include:

- To locate potential arbitrators, search the directory in Legal tab > Area of Law--By Topic > Alternative Dispute Resolution > Access Directories > Martindale-Hubbell(R) Dispute Resolution Directory.

☐ Sample search: To locate arbitrators in Los Angeles county, use this segment search: COUNTY (los angeles).

- To find biographical and practice information on an arbitrator, search the Martindale-Hubbell(R) listing in Legal tab > Reference > Martindale-Hubbell(R) > Combined Law Directory Listings > Martindale-Hubbell(R) Listings, All.

☐ Sample search: To find information on a arbitrator that is being considered or has been selected, use this search: name (first name /3 last name).

- To find articles about or written by an arbitrator, search the law reviews and other periodical articles in Legal tab> Secondary Legal > Law Reviews, CLE, Legal Journals & Periodicals, Combined.

☐ Sample search: For legal articles written by a particular arbitrator, try a simple search: first name /3 last name.

6.10[1][b] Arbitration Agreement Covers Broad Range of Issues. If disputants can agree to submit their dispute to arbitration, they can negotiate a submission agreement to identify issues and establish ground rules for the arbitration.

Example:

A stipulation or submission agreement can be used to do any or all of the following:

- Expressly identify issues that are, and are not, to be arbitrated.

- Expressly waive any right to a jury trial.
- Identify an arbitrator or state the method in which arbitrators will be selected.
- Provide a time within which the arbitration must commence and terminate.
- Require all hearings to be held in a specific geographical area.
- Require that the procedures contained in the Federal Arbitration Act apply in proceedings in state court to compel arbitration.
- Establish notice requirements.
- Provide for each party to comply with discovery called for by the arbitrator.
- Specify any limitations on the arbitrator's power.
- Provide for payment of the arbitrator's compensation and the arbitration expenses.
- In an ongoing contractual relationship, provide that the parties' further dealings under the contract will be conducted in accordance with the arbitrator's interpretation of the agreement.

The contractual nature of private arbitration dictates that the scope and effect of an arbitral award must derive from the parties' consent [ Vandenberg v. Superior Court (1999) 21 C4th 815, 830, 88 CR2d 366, 982 P2d 229 ]; accordingly, an arbitration may proceed against some parties without violating the rule against splitting causes of action or the one judgment rule [ Cuevas v. Truline Corp. (2004) 118 CA4th 56, 61 ].

Cross References:

Improperly splitting causes of action, see § 7.12[5].

Form of submission to arbitration, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, § 32.80.

Discussion of different arbitration structures parties may select in post-dispute agreements, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 30.11[5][c] (Matthew Bender).

6.10[1][c] Consider Expenses When Drafting Agreement. Retaining multiple arbitrators is expensive; therefore, a panel of arbitrators is particularly inappropriate in small disputes and in disputes in which one party has much less economic power than the other. In those situations, the economically weaker party should, if possible, resist attempts by the stronger party to require a panel. On the other hand, a panel may be appropriate in a high stakes, complex dispute between parties with ample resources, who value the interaction of the panel in solving the dispute because of its complexity.

Strategic Point:

Unless the parties agree otherwise, expenses and fees are not recoverable in contractual arbitrations [CCP § 1284.2; Dickinson v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1980) 112 CA3d 952, 954, 169 CR 493 ]. If the parties intend for the prevailing party to recover costs, they must so specify in their submission agreement or stipulation. An arbitration agreement should be explicit about what arbitration expenses will be paid equally by the parties. Common expenses would be subpoenas, witness fees, transcripts, and cost of a hearing room.

6.10[2] Judicial Involvement Is Limited When Contractual Arbitration Agreement Exists. When disputants have a contractual agreement to arbitrate a controversy, judicial proceedings surrounding the arbitration itself will be limited to [CCP §§ 1286.2-1286.8]:

- Determining whether a party resisting arbitration in fact agreed to arbitrate the controversy at issue [see CCP § 1281.2; State Farm Mut. Auto Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1994) 23 CA4th 1297, 1301, 28 CR2d 711 ].

- Enforcing the arbitration award [see CCP §§ 1287.4, 1293; Devonwood Condominium Owners Assn. v. Farmers Ins. Exchange (2008) 162 CA4th 1498, 1506, 77 CR3d 88 ].

Thus, an arbitrator's decision is even more final than that of a judge or jury because the grounds for reversal are very limited.

Exception:

The parties to an arbitration agreement may take themselves out of the general rule that the merits of the award are not subject to judicial review by clearly agreeing that legal errors are an excess of arbitral authority reviewable by the courts under CCP §§ 1286.2, 1286.6 [ Cable Connection, Inc. v. Directv, Inc. (2008) 44 C4th 1334, 1354-1364, 82 CR3d 229, 190 P3d 586 ; see Christensen v. Smith (2009) 171 CA4th 931, 937, 90 CR3d 57] .

Strategic Point:

In reviewing an arbitration award, an administrative board is required to apply the same standards as the courts [ California School Employees Assn. v. Bonita Unified School Dist. (2008) 163 CA4th 387, 406, 77 CR3d 486 (applying Ed Code § 45113(e))].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of judicial review of arbitration proceedings, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 34, Contractual Arbitration: Judicial Review (Matthew Bender).

6.10[3] Grounds for Vacating, Correcting, or Dismissing Arbitration Decision Are Limited. If judicial review of an arbitration decision is sought, the available grounds for vacating, correcting, or dismissing the award are very limited [see CCP § 1286 et seq. (corruption, fraud, misconduct or prejudice required to vacate arbitration awards, mistake required to correct)].

Exception:

Under California law as well as the Federal Arbitration Act, the question whether an arbitration agreement is unenforceable, in whole or in part, based on general contract law principles, is a question for the court to decide, rather than an arbitrator. This includes the determination whether an arbitration agreement is unconscionable or contrary to public policy [ Sanchez v. Western Pizza Enterprises, Inc. (2009) 172 CA4th 154, 165, 90 CR3d 818] .

6.10[4] File Contemporaneous Complaint to Avoid Statute of Limitation and Facilitate Arbitration. A party seeking resolution of a dispute through contractual arbitration should also file a complaint asserting his or her substantive claims in court because, if it is later determined that the arbitration agreement does not apply to the subject matter of the dispute or is unenforceable, the party's cause of action may already be time-barred by the applicable limitation period. Courts frequently hold status conferences even when a complaint is stayed and a matter is in arbitration, which can help prevent delays in the arbitration. Moreover, if there are parties to a dispute who are not parties to the agreement to arbitrate, the court may order the joinder of all of the parties in the court action or consolidate multiple arbitration proceedings to prevent conflicting rulings on common issues of law or fact [CCP §§ 1281.2(c), 1281.3].

Strategic Point:

Commencing a civil action tolls any time limitations in arbitration agreement requiring commencing party to demand or initiate arbitration within a specified period of time [CCP § 1281.12; see 6.11[2][a]].

6.11 Enforcing Arbitration Agreements.

6.11[1] Timely Demand for Arbitration Must Be Made. The first step in enforcing an agreement to arbitrate is to demand arbitration under the agreement [see Charles J. Rounds Co. v. Joint Council of Teamsters No. 42 (1971) 4 C3d 888, 894, 95 CR 53, 484 P2d 1397 (arbitration, or unsuccessful attempt to secure arbitration, is condition precedent to right to maintain enforcement action)].

Cross Reference:

Form of demand for arbitration, see 6.57.

Example:

A demand for arbitration is usually submitted in the form of a letter. The purpose of a demand for arbitration is to inform the other party that the party making the demand intends to ask for a determination of the dispute between them. The demand should identify the underlying contract and describe the dispute, and should be sent by certified mail.

Exception:

A defendant named in a complaint may seek to enforce an arbitration agreement by filing a petition to compel arbitration in lieu of filing an answer to the complaint [see CCP §§ 1281.2, 1281.7].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of compelling arbitration as a defendant, see 6.17.

Warning--Demanding Party:

Prior to demanding arbitration, counsel should study the contract requiring arbitration. Many arbitration clauses have preconditions, time limits, fee posting requirements, and forms under the rules of certain arbitration service providers, such as the American Arbitration Association or JAMS/Endispute. A demand for arbitration should comply with the contract and any arbitration rules that may have been adopted by the parties. Copies of the demand should be mailed to any arbitration association or arbitrators selected under the contract [see, e.g., Mansouri v. Superior Court (2010) 181 CA4th 633, 641-642, 104 CR3d 824 (demand for one-arbitrator arbitration under agreement calling for three arbitrators not valid); Maggio v. Windward Capital Mgmt., Co. (2000) 80 CA4th 1210, 1215, 96 CR2d 168 ].

Example:

If, under the disputants' agreement, arbitration is to be conducted pursuant to the rules of the American Arbitration Association (AAA), the AAA has its own forms of demand that are available at any of its regional offices or from its website. Rule 5 of AAA's Commercial Arbitration Rules (2003) requires the demand to contain a statement of the matter in dispute, the names and addresses of all parties, the amount of money involved, if any, the remedy sought, and the hearing locale requested. Two copies of the demand must be submitted to the regional office.

6.11[2] Delay in Making Demand May Result in Waiver of Right to Arbitrate.

6.11[2][a] Arbitration Must Be Demanded Within Time Specified in Agreement, Unless Tolloed by Commencement of Civil Action. Where a contract requires a party's demand for arbitration to be made within a certain time, a timely demand is a condition precedent to the other party's obligation to submit to arbitration, and an unreasonable delay in demanding arbitration may constitute a waiver of the right to arbitrate [see Spear v. California State Automobile Ass'n (1992) 2 C4th 1035, 1043, 9 CR2d 381, 831 P2d 821 ; see also Sawday v. Vista Irrigation Dist. (1966) 64 C2d 833, 836-837, 52 CR 1, 415 P2d 816 ; see also CC § 1657].

Exception:

When an arbitration agreement requires that arbitration of a controversy be demanded or initiated by a party to the arbitration agreement within a period of time, the commencement of a civil action by that party based upon that controversy, within that period of time, tolls the applicable time limitations contained in the arbitration agreement with respect to that controversy. The tolling period lasts from the date the civil action is commenced until the earlier of [CCP § 1281.12]:

- 30 days after a final determination by the court that the party is required to arbitrate the controversy.
- 30 days after the final termination of the civil action that was commenced and initiated the tolling.

Distinguish:

A party's failure to make a timely demand constitutes a waiver of the right to arbitrate in the sense of losing a right based on the failure to perform an obligation, rather than making a knowing, voluntary waiver, and is not dependent on the party's intent to waive [see Platt Pac., Inc. v. Andelson (1993) 6 C4th 307, 313-314, 24 CR2d 597, 862 P2d 158 ; Pearson Dental Supplies, Inc. v. Superior Court (2008) 166 CA4th 71, 86-87, 82 CR3d 154 (not citable--superseded by grant of review 2008 Cal. LEXIS 13526 )].

6.11[2][b] Demand Must Be Within Reasonable Time If Agreement Does Not Specify Time. If an arbitration agreement does not specify a time within which arbitration must be demanded, a reasonable time is allowed [ Sawday v. Vista Irrigation Dist. (1966) 64 C2d 833, 836, 52 CR 1, 415 P2d 816 ]. What constitutes a reasonable time is a question of fact depending on the situation of the parties, the nature of the transaction, and the facts of the particular case [see, e.g., Spear v. California State Automobile Ass'n (1992) 2 C4th 1035, 1043-1044, 9 CR2d 381, 831 P2d 821 ].

Example:

A delay of several years has been found to be reasonable when the delay was occasioned by the party opposing the demand for arbitration [ Spear v. California State Automobile Ass'n (1992) 2 C4th 1035,

1043-1044, 9 CR2d 381, 831 P2d 821 ].

6.12 Parties May Seek Provisional Remedies.

6.12[1] Provisional Remedies Protect Potential Arbitration Award. A party to an arbitration agreement may apply for a provisional remedy in connection with an arbitrable controversy [see CCP § 1281.8(b)]. The sole ground for the application is that the award to which the applicant may be entitled may be rendered ineffectual without provisional relief [CCP § 1281.8(b)]. Conversely, it is improper for a court to grant provisional relief that could render the arbitration ineffective [see, e.g., Davenport v. Blue Cross of Cal. (1997) 52 CA4th 435, 453-454, 60 CR2d 641 ].

Examples:

"Provisional remedies" include the following: attachments and temporary protective orders issued pursuant to CCP § 481.010 et seq.; writs of possession issued pursuant to CCP § 512.010 et seq.; preliminary injunctions and temporary restraining orders issued pursuant to CCP § 527; and receivers appointed pursuant to CCP § 564 [CCP § 1281.8(a)].

Prerequisite:

In addition to the requirements of CCP § 1281.8(b) itself, a petition for a provisional remedy must also meet the requirements of the statutes governing the specific remedy sought [see, e.g., CCP §§ 526, 527 (establishing requirements for obtaining preliminary injunctions)].

➡ Cross References:

See Ch. 18, TROs and Preliminary Injunctions; Ch. 19, Attachment; and Ch. 20, Claim and Delivery.

6.12[2] Provisional Remedy Is Sought Where Arbitration Is Pending or in Any Proper Court. An application for a provisional remedy may be filed in the court in the county in which an arbitration is pending or, if an arbitration proceeding has not been commenced, in any proper court [CCP § 1281.8(b)]. The application must be accompanied by a complaint or by copies of the demand for arbitration and any responses to it and, if accompanied by a complaint, the application also must be accompanied by a statement stating whether or not the applicant is reserving his or her right to arbitration [CCP § 1281.8(b)].

6.12[3] Objection As to Arbitrability of Dispute Not Relevant. A claim by the party opposing issuance of a provisional remedy, that the controversy is not subject to arbitration, is not grounds for denial of any provisional remedy

[CCP § 1281.8(c)].

6.12[4] Arbitration Right Not Waived If Applicant Requests Stay of Proceedings. An application for a provisional remedy under CCP § 1281.8(b) will not operate to waive any right of arbitration the applicant may have pursuant to a written arbitration agreement if, at the same time as the application for provisional relief is presented to the court, the applicant also presents an application asking that other proceedings in the action be stayed pending the arbitration of any issue, question, or dispute that is claimed to be arbitrable under the agreement and that is relevant to the action pursuant to which the provisional remedy is sought [CCP § 1281.8(d)].

6.13 State Laws Affecting Arbitration Agreements May Be Preempted.

6.13[1] State Laws That Invalidate Arbitration Agreements May Be Preempted in Cases Involving Interstate Commerce. Congress has not completely displaced state regulation of arbitration, but in cases involving interstate commerce, the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) [9 USC § 1 et seq.] preempts state laws that seek to invalidate arbitration agreements [ Allied-Bruce Terminix Cos., Inc. v. Dobson (1995) 513 US 265, 270, 281, 115 S Ct 834, 130 L Ed2d 753 ; Volt Info. Scis. v. Board of Trs. (1989) 489 US 468, 477, 109 S Ct 1248, 103 L Ed2d 488 ; Southland Corp. v. Keating (1984) 465 US 1, 15-16, 104 S Ct 852, 79 L Ed2d 1 ].

The state law designated by parties in a contract will not be preempted, and will govern arbitration under the contract, unless enforcement of the particular state provision would undermine the goals and policies of the FAA, which are to favor arbitration and the enforcement of agreements to arbitrate [ Volt Info. Scis. v. Board of Trs. of Leland Stanford Univ. (1989) 489 US 468, 477-478, 109 S Ct 1248, 103 L Ed2d 488 ; Garden Grove Cmty. Church v. Pittsburgh-Des Moines Steel Co. (1983) 140 CA3d 251, 262, 191 CR 15 ].

States may regulate contracts, including arbitration clauses, under general contract law principles, and they may invalidate an arbitration clause on such grounds as exist at law or in equity for the revocation of any contract [see 9 USC § 2; see also CCP § 1281]. Under the FAA, arbitration clauses simply must be treated the same as any other contract clause under state law [see Allied-Bruce Terminix Cos., Inc. v. Dobson (1995) 513 US 265, 281, 115 S Ct 834, 130 L Ed2d 753 ].

Exception:

The FAA [9 USC § 1 et seq.] does not apply to contracts of transportation workers [ Harden v. Roadway Packaging Sys. (9th Cir 2001) 249 F3d 1137, 1140-1142 (arbitration of former delivery service driver's wrongful termination claims could not be compelled under FAA)]. All other employment contracts "evidencing transactions involving commerce" are governed by the FAA [ Circuit City Stores, Inc. v. Adams (2001) 532 US 105, 118, 121 S Ct 1302, 149 L Ed2d 234 (overruling Ninth Circuit minority position articulated in Craft v. Campbell Soup Co. (9th Cir 1998) 177 F3d 1083 )].

6.13[2] Federal Arbitration Act's Substantive, Not Procedural, Provisions Apply in State Court. The substantive provisions of 9 USC §§ 1, 2 apply in state court proceedings, but the procedural terms of 9 USC §§ 3, 4 only apply to proceedings in federal court [ Rosenthal v. Great W. Fin. Sec. Corp. (1996) 14 C4th 394, 405, 407, 58 CR2d 875, 926 P2d 1061 ]. State procedures may be followed as long as they do not defeat the rights granted by Congress [ Rosenthal v. Great W. Fin. Sec. Corp. (1996) 14 C4th 394, 406-407, 58 CR2d 875, 926 P2d 1061 ].

Exception:

The parties may expressly set forth in their arbitration agreement that the procedures contained in the FAA apply in proceedings in state court to compel arbitration [ Aviation Data, Inc. v. American Express Travel Related Services Co., Inc. (2007) 152 CA4th 1522, 1535-1536, 62 CR3d 396 (waiver); Rodriguez v. American Technologies, Inc. (2006) 136 CA4th 1110, 1121, 39 CR3d 437 ].

Distinguish:

California procedure relating to the enforcement of arbitration agreements is substantially similar to federal law [ Rosenthal v. Great W. Fin. Sec. Corp. (1996) 14 C4th 394, 406-407, 58 CR2d 875, 926 P2d 1061 (comparing CCP §§ 1281, 1281.2, 1281.3 with 9 USC §§ 2-4)]. However, a major difference is that federal law provides for a jury trial on the issue of whether an arbitration agreement exists, whereas California law does not [see 9 USC § 4; CCP § 1290.2 (providing for summary determination of issue)]. Yet, because this state procedure furthers the federal policy encouraging enforcement of arbitration clauses, it is not preempted [see 9 USC § 1 et seq.].

Strategic Point:

Additional distinction between Federal Arbitration Act and California law is that while 9 USCS § 3 requires the court to stay all judicial proceedings until contemporaneous arbitration is completed, CCP § 1281.2(c) gives the trial court discretion to stay the judicial proceedings or stay the arbitration proceedings, in order to prevent separate conflicting decisions on the claims [ Rodriguez v. American Technologies, Inc. (2006) 136 CA4th 1110, 1117, 39 CR3d 437 ].

Strategic Point:

Unlike the California Arbitration Act, the Federal Arbitration Act does not permit an arbitration agreement to expressly authorize judicial review of legal error [ Christensen v. Smith (2009) 171 CA4th 931, 937, 90 CR3d 57] .

6.13[3] Preemption Is Determined Case by Case. The determination of whether a specific California statute or policy is preempted by the FAA is made on a case-by-case basis [see, e.g., Volt Info. Scis. v. Board of Trs. of Leland Stanford Univ. (1989) 489 US 468, 477-478, 109 S Ct 1248, 103 L Ed2d 488 ].

Examples:

Cases interpreting federal preemption include:

- The FAA does not provide for a stay of arbitration when third parties who have not agreed to arbitrate are necessary to the resolution of the dispute, but CCP § 1281.2(c) does. Under a contract provision that provides for arbitration in accordance with California law, CCP § 1281.2 is not in conflict with the policies of the FAA, and is therefore not preempted by it [ Volt Info. Scis. v. Board of Trs. of Leland Stanford Univ. (1998) 489 US 468, 477-478, 109 S Ct 1248, 103 L Ed2d 488 ].
- A reading of the California Arbitration Act that permits the enforcement of agreements for merits review is fully consistent with and not preempted by the Federal Arbitration Act [ Cable Connection,

Inc. v. Directv, Inc. (2008) 44 C4th 1334, 1354, 82 CR3d 229, 190 P3d 586 ].

■ Where arbitration agreements contained a choice-of-law clause for California and further provided that "designation of a situs or specifically a governing law for this agreement or the arbitration shall not be deemed an election to preclude application of the [FAA], if it would be applicable," the FAA was found not to preempt the application of CCP § 1281.2(c) because the FAA does not have any procedural provisions applicable in state court, and because CCP § 1281.2(c) it is an evenhanded law that allows the trial court to stay arbitration proceedings while the concurrent lawsuit proceeds or stay the lawsuit while arbitration proceeds to avoid conflicting rulings on common issues of fact and law amongst interrelated parties [ Cronus Investments, Inc. v. Concierge Services (2005) 35 C4th 376, 393, 25 CR3d 540, 107 P3d 217 (disapproving Warren-Guthrie v. Health Net (2000) 84 CA4th 804, 814-816, 101 CR2d 260 and The Energy Group, Inc. v. Liddington (1987) 192 CA3d 1520, 1522-1528, 238 CR 202 to the extent their holdings are predicated on the conclusion that CCP § 1281.2(c) limits the authority of arbitrators and conflicts with the FAA); Best Interiors, Inc. v. Millie & Severson, Inc. (2008) 161 CA4th 1320, 1329, 75 CR3d 1 ].

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 6.13A

6.13A Class Arbitration.

6.13A[1] Class Arbitration May Be Allowed.

6.13A[1][a] Class Arbitration May Be Authorized By Agreement. California law recognizes classwide arbitration as a means of bringing collective legal action by parties bound to an arbitration agreement [ Cruz v. PacifiCare Health Systems, Inc. (2004) 30 C4th 303, 319, 133 CR2d 58, 66 P3d 1157 ]. An agreement may authorize class arbitration if it contains a general arbitration agreement calling for arbitration under the rules of an arbitration service that allow for class arbitration [see Cable Connection, Inc. v. DirecTV, Inc. (2008) 44 C4th 1334, 1365-1366, 82 CR3d 229, 190 P3d 586 (remanding for determination by arbitrator of whether American Arbitration Association rules permit class arbitration)].

Prerequisite:

Where there is an issue of whether class arbitration is forbidden under an arbitration agreement, it is recommended that the arbitrator rule on this issue [see Green Tree Fin. Corp. v. Bazzle (2003) 539 US 444, 453, 123 S Ct 2402, 156 L Ed2d 414 (Breyer, J. plurality op.) (whether classwide arbitration should proceed determined by arbitrator and not by trial court)].

Exception:

Statutory claims may not be subject to class arbitration if a statute prohibits arbitration and, where applicable, if statutory rights have not been properly waived [see Cruz v. PacifiCare Health Systems, Inc. (2004) 30 C4th 303, 319, 133 CR2d 58, 66 P3d 1157 (class arbitration of private attorney general suits for claims for public injunctive relief under Unfair Competition Law (B&P Code § 17203), for public injunctive relief on false advertising claims under B&P Code § 17535, or for public injunctive relief under the Consumer Legal Remedies Act (CCP Code § 1780(a)(2)), cannot be compelled under the Federal Arbitration Act, but class arbitration of restitution and disgorgement claims under the Unfair Competition Law (B&P Code § 17203), and common-law restitution claims in a private attorney general action, may be compelled)].

➤ Cross Reference:

Arbitrability of statutory claims, see 6.28.

Distinguish:

A plaintiff who did not sign an arbitration agreement cannot be compelled to arbitrate claims on a class basis because the plaintiff's complaint was filed as a putative class or representative action [ Lee v. S. Cal. Univ. for Prof. Studies (2007) 148 CA4th 782, 788, 56 CR3d 134 ].

6.13A[1][b] Class Arbitration May Be Ordered to Preserve Individual Right to Arbitrate. When a properly-maintained class action arises from a contract that contains an arbitration provision, even an adhesion contract, the court may permit arbitration on a class-wide basis rather than allow a defendant automatically to eliminate the right to a class proceeding by compelling individual arbitration [ Keating v. Superior Court (1982) 31 C3d 584, 609, 612-614, 183 CR 360, 645 P2d 1192 (overruled on other grounds in Southland Corp. v. Keating (1984) 465 US 1, 104 S Ct 852, 79 L Ed2d 1 ); Blue Cross of Cal. v. Superior Court (1998) 67 CA4th 42, 46, 65-66, 78 CR2d 779 ].

Distinguish:

The Keating rule does not apply where the party seeking class arbitration did not claim and the arbitrators did not find that the contract was adhesive, or that a denial of classwide arbitration would lead to gross unfairness. Furthermore, Keating did not address whether arbitrators can order class arbitration under the rule, as opposed to courts [ Cable Connection, Inc. v. DirecTV, Inc. (2008) 44 C4th 1334, 1365, 82 CR3d 229, 190 P3d 586 ].

6.13A[2] Class Arbitration Waiver Must Not Be Unconscionable. Arbitration agreements that prohibit arbitration of class or representative claims have been found to be unconscionable and unenforceable [ Discover Bank v. Superior Court (2005) 36 C4th 148, 161, 166-167, 30 CR3d 76, 113 P3d 1100 (credit card agreement's prohibition of class action claim stricken; see also 33.04[5])].

Warning:

As with class action waivers [see Ch. 33, Class Actions, 33.04[5]], choice of law clauses can play a role in the unconscionability determination [ Hoffman v. Citibank (South Dakota), N.A. (9th Cir. 2008) 546 F3d 1078 (California law against unconscionable class arbitration waivers gives California additional interest in applying its law where the other state is likely to enforce the waiver)].

Strategic Point:

The analysis of class arbitration waivers for unconscionability mirrors that used for determining the unconscionability of arbitration agreements and class action waivers generally [see, e.g., Gentry v. Superior Court (2007) 42 C4th 443, 468-473, 64 CR3d 773, 165 P3d 556 ].

Example:

Employer's explanation of class arbitration waiver to employee was procedurally unconscionable, even though an option to opt out of the waiver was given [ Gentry v. Superior Court (2007) 42 C4th 443, 469-473, 64 CR3d 773, 165 P3d 556 ].

If an arbitration provision is unconscionable and unenforceable, the trial court in a class action, even one in which no class has yet been certified, has authority to order that the arbitration provision not be enforced against potential class members [ Patterson v. ITT Consumer Fin. Corp. (1993) 14 CA4th 1659, 1667-1668, 18 CR2d 563 ; see also CCP §§ 187, 527].

Cross References:

Discussion of unconscionability of arbitration agreements and provisions, see 6.24. Discussion of unconscionability of class action waivers, see Ch. 33, Class Actions, 33.04[5].

6.13A[3] Class Certification Issues May Be Determined Before Class Arbitration Is Ordered. The kind of inquiry a trial court must make in certifying the arbitration class is similar to the one it makes to determine whether class actions are appropriate [ Gentry v. Superior Court (2007) 42 C4th 443, 463, 64 CR3d 773, 165 P3d 556 ].

Timing:

Class certification issues may be determined before arbitration is ordered, and arbitration may be stayed and a petition for individual arbitration denied "without prejudice," so class certification issues can be determined first [ Sanders v. Kinko's, Inc. (2002) 99 CA4th 1106, 1112-1113, 121 CR2d 766 ].

6.14 Self-Executing Arbitration Agreements Require No Court Action.

6.14[1] Arbitration Agreements Ordinarily Are Not Self-Executing. Agreements to arbitrate are ordinarily not self-executing, which means that where the parties do not agree to arbitrate a dispute, court intervention will be required to compel arbitration [see Sauter v. Superior Court (1969) 2 CA3d 25, 29, 82 CR 395 ; see American Home Assurance Co. v. Benowitz (1991) 234 CA3d 192, 198-199, 285 CR 626 ].

6.14[2] Parties May Expressly Agree to Make Agreement Self-Executing. The parties may, by specific terms, make an arbitration agreement self-executing [see, e.g., Brink v. Allegro Builders, Inc. (1962) 58 C2d 577, 579-580, 25 CR 556, 375 P2d 436 ; see also Kustom Kraft Homes v. Leivenstein (1971) 14 CA3d 805, 810-811, 92 CR 650 ; Smith v. Campbell & Facciolla, Inc. (1962) 202 CA2d 134, 137, 20 CR 606 ]. When parties expressly agree that in the event there is a dispute and either party refuses to arbitrate, after demand is made, the other party may unilaterally select one arbitrator and proceed with the arbitration, such an agreement is self-executing, and it is not necessary for the party seeking arbitration to obtain a court order to arbitrate [ Brink v. Allegro Builders, Inc. (1962) 58 C2d 577, 579-580, 25 CR 556, 375 P2d 436 ].

A party to a self-executing agreement who fails to select an arbitrator is still entitled to notice of the arbitration hearing and an opportunity to be heard [see CCP § 1282.2(a), (d), (e); see also Smith v. Campbell & Facciolla, Inc. (1962) 202 CA2d 134, 135, 137, 20 CR 606 (notice of arbitration is required by the due process clause of the US Const, amend XIV)].

6.14[3] Objecting to Arbitration Under Self-Executing Agreement. When arbitration proceeds under a self-executing agreement without a court order to arbitrate, the party who opposes arbitration is required to participate in the arbitration and then raise its objections in a petition to vacate the award under CCP § 1286.2, or oppose the petition to confirm the award [see CCP § 1281.2; National Marble Co. v. Bricklayers & Allied Craftsmen (1986) 184 CA3d 1057, 1064, 229 CR 653 ].

6.15 Petitioning Courts to Compel Arbitration.

6.15[1] Who May Compel Arbitration or Be Compelled to Arbitrate.

6.15[1][a] Party to Arbitration Agreement May Petition Court to Compel Arbitration by Another Party to Agreement. A party to a written arbitration agreement may petition the court for an order compelling arbitration if another party to the agreement refuses to arbitrate a controversy covered by the agreement [see CCP §§ 1281, 1281.2, 1290].

Cross Reference:

Form of petition to compel arbitration, see 6.58.

6.15[1][b] Limited Exceptions Permit Nonsignatory to Compel Arbitration or Be Compelled to Arbitrate.

Subject to limited exceptions, only parties to an arbitration contract may enforce it or be required to arbitrate [ Nguyen v. Tran (2007) 157 CA4th 1032, 1036-1037, 68 CR3d 906] . Accordingly, a petition to compel nonsignatories will be denied if the suit is based on equitable contribution instead of contractual obligations [ Crowley Maritime Corp. v. Boston Old Colony Ins. Co. (2008) 158 CA4th 1061, 1072, 70 CR3d 605] .

6.15[1][c] Nonsignatories to Arbitration Agreement May Compel Arbitration or Be Compelled to Arbitrate By Equitable Estoppel. Under equitable estoppel principles and in appropriate factual circumstances, a signatory to a agreement containing an arbitration clause may be compelled to arbitrate its claims against a nonsignatory when the relevant causes of action rely on and presume the existence of the contract [ Boucher v. Alliance Title Co., Inc. (2005) 127 CA4th 262, 269, 25 CR3d 440] . The cause of action against the nonsignatory must be "intimately founded in and intertwined" with the underlying contract obligations [ Goldman v. KPMG LLP (2009) 173 CA4th 209, 92 CR3d 534, 2009 Cal. App. LEXIS 592 at 20 (denying arbitration by equitable estoppel); Boucher v. Alliance Title Co., Inc. (2005) 127 CA4th 262, 271, 25 CR3d 440] .

Distinguish:

Doctors suing a medical group and a hospital for discrimination could not be compelled to arbitrate under an agreement providing for arbitration of claims between the medical group and the hospital [ Suh v. Superior Court (2010) 181 CA4th 1504, 1514, 105 CR3d 585] .

Distinguish:

Defendant-insurer could not use equitable estoppel to compel plaintiff in survivor's action to arbitrate survivorship claim arising from insurer's policy on decedent's life on the basis of an arbitration clause in a loan agreement between the decedent and a creditor to whom the life insurance benefits were to be paid [ Mundi v. Union Security Life Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 2009) 555 F.3d 1042, 1045-1047 ].

 Cross Reference:

Form of petition to compel arbitration, see 6.58.

6.15[1][d] Nonsignatories to Arbitration Agreement May Compel Arbitration or Be Compelled to Arbitrate By Agency Principles. Exceptions in which an arbitration agreement may be enforced by or against nonsignatories include when a nonsignatory and one of the parties to the agreement have a preexisting agency relationship that makes it equitable to impose the duty to arbitrate on either of them [ Nguyen v. Tran (2007) 157 CA4th 1032, 1036-1037, 68 CR3d 906 (compelling buyers as principles of cooperating brokers to arbitrate claims against nonsignatory cooperating brokers)].

Distinguish:

Doctors who had contract with hospital were not agents of the hospital for purposes of compelling them to arbitrate, because they were not agents of the corporate defendant or alleged to be parties to the agreement, and had not sought the benefit of the arbitration clause in the contract [ Suh v. Superior Court (2010) 181 CA4th 1504, 1514, 105 CR3d 585 ].

 Cross Reference:

Form of petition to compel arbitration, see 6.58.

6.15[1][e] Nonsignatory Third-Party Beneficiaries of Arbitration Agreement May Compel Arbitration or Be Compelled to Arbitrate. Exceptions in which an arbitration agreement may be enforced by or against nonsignatories include when a nonsignatory is a third party beneficiary of the agreement [ Nguyen v. Tran (2007) 157 CA4th 1032, 1036-1037, 68 CR3d 906 (denying arbitration against nonsignatory listing brokers by nonsignatory cooperating brokers)].

 Cross Reference:

Form of petition to compel arbitration, see 6.58.

6.15[1][f] Nonsignatories to Arbitration Agreement May Compel Arbitration or Be Compelled to Arbitrate By Doctrine of Alter Ego. Individual defendants, who are not signatories to a contract containing an arbitration provision but are sued as alter egos of a corporate defendant who was a signatory, may compel another signatory party to arbitrate the controversies raised in the complaint [ Rowe v. Exline (2007) 153 CA4th 1276, 1285, 63 CR3d 787 ; but see Hayden v. Robertson Stephens, Inc. (2007) 150 CA4th 360, 368, 58 CR3d 333 (corporate parent is not a party to arbitration absent involvement in underlying transaction)].

 Cross Reference:

Form of petition to compel arbitration, see 6.58.

6.15[2] Preparing, Filing, and Serving a Petition to Compel Arbitration.

6.15[2][a] Petition Must Allege Written Agreement to Arbitrate Controversy and Refusal by Other Party to Arbitrate. A petition to compel arbitration must allege there is a written agreement to arbitrate a controversy, and a refusal to arbitrate by a party to the agreement [see CCP § 1281.2]. Additionally, the petition must set forth the provisions of the written agreement and the paragraph that provides for arbitration verbatim, or by a copy attached to the petition and incorporated by reference [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1330].

6.15[2][b] Venue Is County Where Agreement to Be Performed or Was Made, or Where Any Party Resides or Has Place of Business. Except as otherwise provided in CCP §§ 1292-1293.2, any petition made prior to the commencement of arbitration must be filed in a court having jurisdiction in the county where the agreement was to be performed or was made [CCP § 1292(a)]. If the agreement does not specify a county where the agreement was to be performed, and the agreement was not made in any county in California, the petition must be filed in the county where any party to the court proceeding resides or has a place of business or, in any other case, in any California county [CCP § 1292(b), (c)].

Any petition made after the commencement or completion of an arbitration must be filed in a court having jurisdiction in the county where the arbitration is being, or was, held [CCP § 1292.2].

Exceptions:

When the petition relates to a controversy that is involved in a pending superior court action or proceeding, the petition must be filed in that action or proceeding [CCP § 1292.4]. When arbitration is not held exclusively in any one county of California or outside this state, and a petition is made after commencement or arbitration, venue is determined the same as for petitions filed prior to arbitration [CCP § 1292.2; see CCP § 1292].

6.15[2][c] Caption of Petition Must Indicate If Limited Civil Case. If a matter is a limited civil case, and the petition to compel arbitration is the first paper filed, the caption must state that the matter is a limited civil case, and also indicate whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 [CCP § 422.30(b); Gov Code § 70613(b); Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.111(9), (10)]. Otherwise, a petition to compel arbitration is classified as a case of unlimited jurisdiction [see Cal Const, art VI, § 10].

6.15[2][d] Serving the Petition. A copy of the petition and a written notice of the time and place of the hearing, and any other papers on which the petition is based, must be served in the manner provided in the arbitration agreement if it so provides [CCP § 1290.4(a)].

When the arbitration agreement does not set out service requirements, if the person on whom service is to be made has not previously appeared in the proceeding or been served in accordance with CCP § 1290.4(b), service within California is to be performed in the manner provided by law for the service of summons in an action [CCP § 1290.4(b)(1); see CCP §§ 413.10-417.40 (service of summons)]. If service is to be made outside California, it is to be made by mailing a copy of the petition, notice, and other papers on which the petition is based by registered or certified mail, or by personal service. Proof of service by mail must be made by affidavit and return receipt from the United States Post Office [CCP § 1290.4(b)(2)].

If the person to be served has previously appeared in the proceeding or been served in accordance with CCP § 1290.4(b), service is to be made in the manner provided in CCP §§ 1010-1020 (service of papers other than summonses) [CCP § 1290.4(c)].

Timing:

A petition to compel arbitration is heard on the notice provided for the making and hearing of motions, except that not less than 10 days' notice of the hearing date may be given [CCP § 1290.2; see CCP § 1010 (notice requirements)]. If a petition is served out of state under the provisions of CCP § 1290.4(b), it may not be heard until at least 30 days after the date of service [CCP § 1290.4(b)(2)].

6.15[3] California Superior Courts Have Jurisdiction Over Arbitration-Related Matters. When parties enter into an agreement to arbitrate a matter in California, the agreement is deemed a consent to the jurisdiction of the California courts to enforce the agreement by issuing orders provided in CCP § 1280 et seq. and by entering of judgment on an award under the agreement [CCP § 1293].

The superior court has jurisdiction over arbitration-related matters, including limited civil cases [see Cal Const, art VI, § 10; CCP §§ 85, 86]. "Limited civil cases" include all arbitration-related petitions filed under CCP §§ 1292-1293.2 if the petition is filed before the arbitration award becomes final and the matter to be resolved by arbitration is a limited civil case under CCP § 86(a)(1)-(9); or, after the arbitration award becomes final and the amount of the award and all other rulings, pronouncements, and decisions made in the award are within CCP § 86(a)(1)-(9) [CCP §§ 85, 86(a)(10)(A)].

Exception:

Uninsured motorist proceedings under Ins Code § 11580.2 are not limited civil cases [CCP § 86(a)(10)(A)].

After a petition to compel arbitration has been filed, the court in which the petition was filed retains jurisdiction to determine any subsequent petition involving the same agreement to arbitrate and the same controversy, and any subsequent petition must be filed in the same proceeding [CCP § 1292.6].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of jurisdiction in limited civil cases, see Ch. 10, Dismissal for Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction.

6.15[4] Responding to a Petition to Compel Arbitration. Once a petitioner has alleged that a written agreement to arbitrate exists, the burden shifts to the party resisting arbitration to prove the alleged agreement does not govern the parties' dispute [see Condee v. Longwood Mgmt. Corp. (2001) 88 CA4th 215, 218-219, 105 CR2d 597]. Any person named as a respondent in a petition to compel arbitration may file a response to the petition, and a respondent who fails to duly serve and file his or her response will be deemed to have admitted the allegations of the petition [see CCP § 1290]. A response must be served as provided in CCP §§ 1010-1020 [CCP § 1290.8]. The allegations of a response are deemed controverted or avoided [CCP § 1290].

Timing:

A response must be filed and served within 10 days after service of the petition, unless the petition is served out of state, in which case the response must be served and filed within 30 days after service of the petition [CCP § 1290.6; see CCP § 1290.4(b)(2) (out-of-state service)].

Exception:

The time for filing and serving a response may be extended by a written agreement of the parties or, for good cause, by order of the court [CCP § 1290.6].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of grounds for avoiding arbitration, see 6.21 -6.30.

6.15[5] Judicial Involvement Is Limited and Doubts Are Resolved in Favor of Arbitration. Judicial involvement in arbitration proceedings is strictly limited to a determination of whether the party resisting arbitration in fact agreed to arbitrate the dispute at issue [ State Farm Mut. Auto Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1994) 23 CA4th 1297, 28 CR2d 711 ]. The court's function is to ascertain whether the party seeking arbitration is making a claim that on its face is governed by the contract [ Charles J. Rounds Co. v. Joint Council of Teamsters (1971) 4 C3d 888, 892 ]. Doubts as to whether an arbitration clause applies to a particular dispute are to be resolved in favor of sending the parties to arbitration [ Service Employees Int'l Union, Local 347 v. City of Los Angeles (1994) 24 CA4th 136, 143, 29 CR2d 357 ].

Cross Reference:

Additional discussion of construction of arbitration agreements, see 6.15[12].

6.15[6] Limitation Period for Enforcing Arbitration Agreements Is Four Years. An action to compel arbitration is in essence a suit in equity to compel specific performance of a contract; the contract is considered breached, and the cause of action accrues, when the other party refuses a demand to arbitrate [ Wagner Construction Co. v. Pacific Mechanical Corp. (2007) 41 C4th 19, 29, 58 CR3d 434, 157 P3d 1029 ; City of Hope v. Bryan Cave, L.L.P., (2002) 102 CA4th 1356, 1369, 126 CR2d 283 (citing Spear v. California State Automobile Ass'n (1992) 2 C4th 1035, 1040-1043, 9 CR2d 381, 831 P2d 821 )]. Thus, the four-year limitation period applicable to breach of contract actions [see CCP § 337] applies, requiring a petition to compel arbitration to be filed within four years of the refusal to arbitrate [ Wagner Construction Co. v. Pacific Mechanical Corp. (2007) 41 C4th 19, 29, 58 CR3d 434, 157 P3d 1029 ; Spear v. California State Automobile Ass'n (1992) 2 C4th 1035, 1040, 9 CR2d 381, 831 P2d 821 ].

Warning--Modified Limitation Period:

The statutory four year limitation period may be shortened by a provision in the parties' arbitration agreement [see generally Hamaker v. Williams (1937) 22 CA2d 256, 259, 70 P2d 973 ]. If the agreement does not provide a time for the parties to seek arbitration, a court may consider whether the petitioning party has sought arbitration within a reasonable time under the circumstances, which may or may not be as long as the four-year limitation period [see Meyer v. Carnow (1986) 185 CA3d 169, 175, 229 CR 617 ].

Distinguish--Medical Malpractice:

When the underlying dispute involves medical malpractice, the four-year period of CCP § 337 governs, but in determining whether the party seeking arbitration has petitioned to compel within a reasonable time, the court may look to CCP § 340.5 to the extent that section demonstrates the legislature's determination of what is a reasonable time in which to file a lawsuit alleging medical malpractice [ Meyer v. Carnow (1986) 185 CA3d 169, 175, 229 CR 617 ].

Exception--Uninsured Motorist:

In the case of uninsured motorist arbitration, the insured is required to conclude arbitration within five years after it is instituted [ Ins Code § 11580.2(i)(2)(A) ]. Arbitration may be considered instituted on the date the insured sends his or her demand for arbitration [ Santangelo v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1998) 65 CA4th 804, 812, 76 CR2d 735 ]. Thus, if an insured does not conclude the arbitration within five years after demanding it, and he or she cannot establish any basis for waiver or estoppel of the five-year period for completion of arbitration, any petition for an order to compel that arbitration must be denied [ Santangelo v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1998) 65 CA4th 804, 812, 816-818, 76 CR2d 735 ].

6.15[7] Arbitrator Determines Compliance With Contract's Time Limits. Where the parties' arbitration agreement contains time limits for actions taken in connection with arbitration, a party's compliance with contractual time limits is generally determined in the arbitration proceeding, not by the court deciding whether to compel arbitration [see Boys Club of San Fernando Valley, Inc. v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1992) 6 CA4th 1266, 1276, 8 CR2d 587 (analyzing compliance with two-year contractual limitation period)]. Neither CCP § 1281.2 nor any other statute permits a court to deny a petition to compel arbitration based on a party's assertion that the statute of limitations has run on the claims the parties agreed to arbitrate [ Wagner Construction Co. v. Pacific Mechanical Corp. (2007) 41 C4th 19, 28, 58 CR3d 434, 157 P3d 1029 ].

Distinguish:

Issues regarding compliance with statutes of limitation, however, are for the court to determine on the petition to compel arbitration, if failure to comply may constitute waiver of the right to arbitrate [ Freeman v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1975) 14 C3d 473, 485-486, 121 CR 477, 535 P2d 341 (limitation period for uninsured motorist actions under Ins. Code § 11580.2); see CCP § 1281.2(a); but see Kennedy, Cabot & Co. v. National Assn. of Securities Dealers, Inc. (1996) 41 CA4th 1167, 1176-1179, 49 CR2d 66 (statutory limitation period issue raised by broad arbitration clause was subject to arbitration)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion, see Ch. 4, Limitation of Actions.

6.15[8] Petitions Are Heard Summarily and Given Precedence. A petition for an order to compel arbitration is heard in a summary way, in the manner and on the notice provided for the making and hearing of motions [see CCP § 1003 et seq.], except that not less than 10 days' notice of the hearing date may be given [CCP § 1290.2]. Proceedings to compel arbitration are to be given preference over all other civil actions or proceedings, except older matters of the same character and matters to which special precedence may be given by law, so that they can be quickly determined [see CCP § 1291.2].

A hearing is required on a petition to compel, because the existence of the agreement to arbitrate is a question of fact [ Hotels Nevada v. L.A. Pacific Center, Inc. (2006) 144 CA4th 754, 762-763, 765, 50 CR3d 700 ].

Cross References:

6.15[9] Submitting Evidence in Support of and Opposition to Petition. In ruling on a petition to compel arbitration, the trial court may consider evidence on factual issues relating to the threshold issue of arbitrability, i.e., whether the contract includes or excludes the dispute from its arbitration clause, and parties may submit declarations on those factual issues [ Eng's & Architects Ass'n v. Cmty. Dev. Dept. (1994) 30 CA4th 644, 653, 35 CR2d 800 ].

Warning--Respondents:

A party resisting arbitration must provide evidence by declaration or otherwise to support the facts underlying the argument in opposition to a petition to compel; otherwise, the agreement must be enforced as a matter of law [see Owens v. Intertec Design, Inc. (1995) 38 CA4th 72, 74-75, 44 CR2d 840 ].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of grounds for avoiding arbitration, see 6.22 -6.30.

6.15[10] Court Will Compel Arbitration Unless It Finds Grounds for Avoiding Arbitration. If the court determines that a written agreement to arbitrate a controversy exists, an order to arbitrate may not be refused on the ground that the petitioner's contentions lack substantive merit [CCP § 1281.2(c)], and the court will order the parties to arbitrate the controversy, unless it determines that any of the following apply [CCP § 1281.2]:

- The right to compel arbitration has been waived by the petitioner [CCP § 1281.2(a)].
- Grounds exist for revocation of the agreement [CCP § 1281.2(b); Rodriguez v. Superior Ct. (2009) 176 CA4th 1461, 1469-1470, 98 CR3d 728 (expiration of 30-day revocation period necessary for valid arbitration agreement subject to CCP § 1295)].
- A party to the arbitration agreement is also a party to a pending court action or special proceeding with a third party, arising out of the same transaction or series of related transactions, and there is a possibility of conflicting rulings on a common issue of law or fact [CCP § 1281.2(c)].

Distinguish:

The exception in CCP § 1281.2(c) applies only to the peculiar situation that arises when a controversy also affects claims by or against other parties not bound by the arbitration agreement [ Cronus Investments, Inc. v. Concierge Services (2005) 35 C4th 376, 393, 25 CR3d 540, 107 P3d 217 ; Birl v. Heritage Care, LLC (2009) 172 CA4th 1313, 1317-1321, 91 CR3d 777 , (plaintiffs and codefendants were "other parties"); RN Solution, Inc. v. Catholic Healthcare West (2008) 165 CA4th 1511, 1520, 81 CR3d 892 ]. Persons who can enforce the arbitration agreement are not "third parties" within the meaning of CCP § 1281.2(c), and it therefore may not be used to deny enforcement of arbitration against them [ RN Solution, Inc. v. Catholic Healthcare West (2008) 165 CA4th 1511, 1520-1521, 81 CR3d 892 ; Rowe v. Exline (2007) 153 CA4th 1276, 1290, 63 CR3d 787 (denial of enforcement overturned)].

Distinguish:

"Court actions or proceedings" under CCP § 1281.2(c) include proceedings initiated by the party refusing to arbitrate after the petition to compel arbitration has been filed but on or before the date of the hearing on the petition [CCP § 1281.2(c)].

Exception:

CCP § 1281.2(c) does not apply to agreements to arbitrate disputes as to the professional negligence of a health care provider made pursuant to CCP § 1295 [CCP § 1281.2(c); see Reigelsperger v. Siller (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 574, 578-580, 53 CR3d 887 ].

Cross References:

Discussion of waiver of the right to compel arbitration, see 6.29, 6.30. Forms of orders relating to proceedings to compel arbitration, see 6.61, 6.62, 6.64.

6.15[11] Right to Compel Arbitration Depends on Parties' Contract. The right to compel arbitration depends on the parties' contract, and the general policy favoring arbitration cannot take the place of an agreement to arbitrate [ Mayhew v. Benninghoff (1997) 53 CA4th 1365, 1371, 62 CR2d 27 ]. In determining whether a particular dispute falls within the purview of an arbitration agreement, effect must be given to the parties' intentions in light of the usual and ordinary meaning of the contractual language and the circumstances under which the agreement was made [ EFund Capital Partners v. Pless (2007) 150 CA4th 1311, 1321, 59 CR3d 340 ; see Victoria v. Superior Court (1985) 40 C3d 734, 744, 222 CR 1, 710 P2d 833 ].

6.15[12] Agreements Are Construed in Favor of Arbitration. Because arbitration is a favored method of dispute resolution, arbitration agreements will be liberally construed [ Baker v. Sadick (1984) 162 CA3d 618, 623, 208 CR 676 ]. Doubts as to whether an arbitration clause applies to a particular dispute are to be resolved in favor of sending the parties to arbitration [ Eng'rs & Architects Ass'n v. Cmty. Dev. Dept. (1994) 30 CA4th 644, 652, 35 CR2d 800 ]. Only a clear-cut expression to exclude a claim from arbitration can prevail and, absent an expressly stated exclusionary purpose, an ambiguity must be resolved in favor of the arbitration process [ Taylor v. Crane (1979) 24 C3d 442, 450-451, 155 CR 695, 595 P2d 129 ]. The strong policy in favor of arbitration may not be used to permit a party to enforce provisions of an arbitration agreement that either do not exist or were so poorly drafted that another party cannot be presumed to have agreed to them [ Thompson v. Toll Dublin, LLC (2008) 165 CA4th 1360, 1370, 81 CR3d 736 ].

Exception:

In certain situations, other rules of construction may prevail over the rule of liberal construction of arbitration agreements. For example, ambiguities in an arbitration clause in a standardized contract may be construed against its drafter [see Victoria v. Superior Court (1985) 40 C3d 734, 740-747, 222 CR 1, 710 P2d 833 (sexual assault by hospital employee on patient outside scope of arbitration provision requiring arbitration of all claims "arising from rendition or failure to render services")].

Exception:

In certain situations, the court may give greater weight to the significant right to jury trial and the rule that in cases of doubt, the issue should be resolved in favor of preserving a litigant's right to jury trial [ Titan Group, Inc. v. Sonoma Valley County Sanitation Dist. (1985) 164 CA3d 1122, 1127-1129, 211 CR 62 ].

III. SUBMITTING TO OR COMPELLING ARBITRATION

6.16 Rulings on Petitions to Compel Arbitration.

6.16[1] Entire Controversy Subject to Arbitration Unless Severable Issues Exist. When a valid agreement to arbitrate exists and neither has been waived nor is subject to revocation, the entirety of the controversy must be determined by the arbitrator [CCP § 1281.2; Orpustan v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1972) 7 C3d 988, 991-992, 103 CR 919, 500 P2d 1119 ]. The court has no discretion but to order arbitration, and its refusal to do so is reversible error [ Valsan Partners Ltd. P'ship v. Calcor Space Facility (1994), 25 CA4th 809, 817, 30 CR2d 785 ].

Exception:

If the court determines there are other issues between the petitioner and respondent, which are not subject to arbitration and are the subject of a pending action or special proceeding between the parties, and a determination of such issues may make the arbitration unnecessary, the court may delay its order to arbitrate until a determination of such other issues or until such earlier time as the court specifies [CCP § 1281.2].

Strategic Point:

Prior to implementing CCP § 1281.2(c), the court first determines the arbitrable and nonarbitrable claims alleged in the complaint, orders all of the arbitrable claims to arbitration and stays all nonarbitrable claims pending arbitration. The court then has discretion to delay its order to arbitrate the arbitrable claims under 1281.2(c), but only if it determines that the adjudication of the nonarbitrable claims in court might make the arbitration unnecessary. Absent that determination, the arbitrable claims would proceed to arbitration and the nonarbitrable claims would continue to be litigated in court unless a party moved successfully pursuant to CCP § 1281.4 9 [see 6.17[2]], to stay further litigation of the nonarbitrable claims [ RN Solution, Inc. v. Catholic Healthcare West (2008) 165 CA4th 1511, 1521-1522, 81 CR3d 892 ]. Alternatively, if arbitration could make trial of the severable issues unnecessary, the court may order arbitration and stay action on the severable issues or remedies, such as injunctions, pending resolution of the arbitration [see, e.g., Coast Plaza Doctors Hospital v. Blue Cross of California (2000) 83 CA4th 677, 691-692, 99 CR2d 809 ].

6.16[2] Intervention, Joinder, or Stay May Be Ordered Where There Is Pending Court Action With Third Party Arising Out of Same Transaction. If the court determines that a party to an arbitration agreement is also a party to a pending court action or special proceeding with a third party, arising out of the same transaction or series of related transactions, and there is a possibility of conflicting rulings on a common issue of law or fact, the court has the following options [CCP § 1281.2(c)]:

- Refuse to enforce the arbitration agreement and order intervention or joinder of all parties in a single action or special proceeding.
- Order intervention or joinder as to all or only certain issues.
- Order arbitration among the parties who have agreed to arbitration and stay the court action or special proceeding pending the outcome of the arbitration proceeding.
- Stay arbitration pending the outcome of the court action or special proceeding.

Strategic Point:

In addition to avoiding inconsistent rulings, by avoiding two forums hearing the same facts and issues, joinder will save time and money.

Examples:

- Inspectors could not be compelled to arbitrate under agreement between disputing general contractor and subcontractor [ Best Interiors, Inc. v. Millie & Severson, Inc. (2008) 161 CA4th 1320, 1328, 75 CR3d 1 ].
- The power of the court under CCP § 1281.2(c) to order joinder of parties and issues to avoid inconsistent rulings extends to cases involving uninsured motorist arbitration to avoid inconsistent rulings involving a combination of insured and uninsured parties [see Mercury Ins. Group v. Superior Court (1998) 19 C4th 332, 345, 79 CR2d 308, 965 P2d 1178 ; Prudential Property & Cas. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1995) 36 CA4th 275, 278-279, 42 CR2d 227 ; see Ins Code § 11580.2].

Exception:

These options do not apply when the arbitration agreement was made under CCP § 1295, relating to arbitration of medical malpractice disputes [CCP § 1281.2(c)]. However, many contracts for medical services are not subject to CCP § 1295, and the options available under CCP § 1281.2(c) are therefore available in many situations involving medical malpractice [see CCP § 1295(f) (exception for health care service plan contracts offered by organizations registered under H&S Code § 1340 et seq. or former Gov Code § 12530 et seq. that comply with Health & Safety Code requirements for arbitration clauses)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of options when third parties involved in controversy, see 6.26.

6.16[3] Court Must Make Statement of Decision Only If Petition Is Denied. A court is not required to make a requested statement of decision when it issues an order compelling arbitration [CCP §§ 1291, 1294]. When a court has issued an order dismissing or denying a petition to compel arbitration, however, the court must make a statement of decision if one is requested pursuant to CCP § 632 [CCP §§ 1291, 1294(a)].

Strategic Point:

Whether to request a statement of decision and whether to object may have an effect on the degree of deferential treatment by the appellate court on appeal [see Yield Dynamics, Inc. v. TEA Systems Corp. (2007) 154 CA4th 547, 558, 66 CR3d 1 ].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of procedure, form statements of decision, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 529, Statement of Decision (Matthew Bender).

6.16[4] Court May Award Attorney Fees Under Contractual Provision for Fees to Party Against Whom Action Was Brought Before Arbitration. If a contractual arbitration clause provides that a party against whom legal action was brought by any method other than arbitration, and the court in compelling arbitration, in the absence of contractual language to the contrary [ Acosta v. Kerrigan (2007) 150 CA4th 1124, 1130, 1132, 58 CR3d 865 ]:

- Has jurisdiction to determine the award of attorney fees arising from the proceeding to compel arbitration to the sued party.
- May do so before the arbitration is complete.
- May do so before any party has prevailed in the arbitration.

Cross References:

Discussion of recovery of attorney fees, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, Ch. 25, Attorney Fees.

6.16[5] Trial Court May Reconsider Decision on Arbitrability on Its Own Motion. In the absence of a provision of the arbitration agreement barring it from doing so, a trial court may on its own motion reconsider its ruling on the question of whether particular issues are subject to arbitration under an arbitration agreement [ Clark v. First Union Securities, Inc. (2007) 153 CA4th 1595, 1608-1609, 64 CR3d 313 (trial court properly reconsidered its own order compelling arbitration)].

Example:

Trial court properly reconsidered its decision finding that two issues were arbitrable where the arbitration agreement allowed either the court or the arbitrator to determine the question and, subsequent to the court's initial ruling, the arbitrator ruled that the issues were not arbitrable, but failed to remand the issues back to the trial court [ Clark v. First Union Securities, Inc. (2007) 153 CA4th 1595, 1609, 64 CR3d 313 ].

III. SUBMITTING TO OR COMPELLING ARBITRATION

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 6.17

6.17 Defense Options When Suit Is Brought on Arbitrable Issue.

6.17[1] Defendant May File Petition to Compel Arbitration in Lieu of Answer. If a controversy that is referable to arbitration under an alleged agreement is the subject of an action or proceeding in a superior court, a defendant may file a petition to compel arbitration in the action or proceeding, in lieu of filing an answer to the complaint [CCP § 1281.7; see also CCP § 1292.4]. If the petition is denied, the defendant has 15 days from denial to plead to the complaint [CCP § 1281.7].

➡ Cross References:

Discussion of petitions to compel arbitration, see 6.15.

Forms, see 6.58 -6.61.

6.17[2] Defendant May Obtain Stay of Court Action to Permit Arbitration.

6.17[2][a] Stay Required When Arbitration or Application for Arbitration Order Is Pending. On a party's motion [see Heritage Provider Network, Inc. v. Superior Court (2008) 158 CA4th 1146, 1152, 70 CR3d 645 (in limited circumstances movant need not be a party to arbitration agreement); see also 6.15[1]], a California court is required to stay an action or proceeding pending before the court if either of the following circumstances apply [CCP § 1281.4]:

- A court of competent jurisdiction has ordered arbitration of a controversy that is an issue involved in the case; or
- An application has been made to a court of competent jurisdiction, whether in California or not, for an order to arbitrate a controversy that is an issue in the case, and the application is undetermined.

The trial court generally does not have discretion to deny a stay if there is a single overlapping issue [ Heritage Provider Network, Inc. v. Superior Court (2008) 158 CA4th 1146, 1153, 70 CR3d 645 ].

This rule applies whether the court that ordered arbitration, or before which an application for such an order is pending, is in California or not [CCP § 1281.4].

Under either of the above circumstances, the court must stay the action or proceeding until there is arbitration in accordance with the order to arbitrate, or until such earlier time as the court specifies [CCP § 1281.4]. Relief based on a claim of delay, as well as any substantive arguments relating to whether arbitration is appropriate under the facts presented, should be presented to the court in which the application to arbitrate was filed [CCP § 1281.4].

The motion for a stay of proceedings must be made in the court where the action is pending [CCP §§ 1281.4, 1292.8; see also CCP §§ 85, 86(a)(10)(A) (limited civil cases)].

Cross Reference:

Form, motion to stay proceedings, see 6.63.

6.17[2][b] Notice of Stay Must Be Immediately Filed. If a case is stayed due to contractual arbitration under CCP § 1281.4, the party who requested or caused the stay must immediately file a notice of the stay and attach a copy of the order or other document showing that the proceedings are stayed [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.650(a), (b)(2)]. If the person who requested or caused the stay has not appeared, or is not subject to the jurisdiction of the court, the plaintiff must immediately file the notice and attach a copy of the order showing the proceedings are stayed [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.650(a)]. When the stay is vacated, no longer in effect, or modified, the party who filed the notice of stay must immediately file and serve a notice of termination or modification of the stay, and upon that party's failure to give notice, any party with knowledge of the termination or modification must file and serve the notice [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.650(d)].

Cross References:

Form, notice of stay of proceedings, see 6.64A.

Form, notice of termination or modification of stay, see 6.64B.

Warning--Sanctions:

Failure to comply with these notice requirements may be deemed an unlawful interference with the proceedings of the court, and sanctions may be imposed [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.30]. Thus, a party would be prudent to prepare the notice in advance and have it ready for immediate filing once the court issues the order staying the action.

6.17[2][c] Issue Subject to Arbitration May Be Severed for Purposes of Stay. If an issue subject to arbitration is severable, the stay may be with respect to that issue only [CCP § 1281.4]. Conversely, if arbitration could make trial of the severable issues unnecessary, the court may order arbitration and stay the action on the severable issues or remedies, such as injunctions, pending resolution of the arbitration [see, e.g., Coast Plaza Doctors Hospital v. Blue Cross of California (2000) 83 Cal 677, 693, 99 CR2d 809 ].

6.17[3] Defendant May Raise Arbitration Issue by Demurrer or Summary Judgment. If the only issue to be litigated is covered by the arbitration agreement, and a plaintiff has not first pursued or attempted to pursue his or her arbitration remedy, a defendant may elect to demur or move for summary judgment on the ground that the plaintiff has failed to exhaust arbitration remedies [ Charles J. Rounds Co. v. Joint Council of Teamsters (1971) 4 C3d 888, 899 ].

Exceptions:

If the complaint also raises issues not susceptible to arbitration, the defendant may not raise a request to arbitrate by way of demurrer; in that situation, the defendant must demand arbitration and seek a stay of the litigation [ Badgley v. Van Upp (1993) 20 CA4th 218, 221, 24 CR2d 406 ]. Similarly, if the arbitration agreement is binding only with respect to some defendants, summary judgment is proper only as to those defendants [see 24 Hour Fitness, Inc. v. Superior Court (1998) 66 CA4th 1199, 1204, 1212, 1215, 78 CR2d 533 ]. An exception for cases in which the plaintiff would suffer irreparable injury is rarely granted [ Service Employees Int'l Union, Local 1000 v. Dep't of Personnel Admin. (2006) 142 CA4th 866, 872-873, 48 CR3d 457 ].

Strategic Point--Defendant:

A defendant may prefer to move for summary judgment rather than moving to compel arbitration because, in arguing against summary judgment, the plaintiff may waive his or her right to arbitration, and judgment may be entered in accordance with the summary judgment motion, leaving the plaintiff without a remedy [see, e.g., Martinez v. Scott Specialty Gases, Inc. (2000) 83 CA4th 1236, 1250-1251, 100 CR2d 403 ; but see Johnson v. Siegel (2000) 84 CA4th 1087, 1095-1100, 101 CR2d 412 (no waiver found and grant of summary judgment not res judicata as to plaintiff's right to arbitrate)].

6.17[4] Defendant May Raise Final Arbitration Award As Affirmative Defense. A party may raise the existence of a final and binding arbitration award that fully adjudicated the dispute as an affirmative defense [see Archuleta v. Grand Lodge of the Int'l Ass'n of Machinists and Aerospace Workers (1968) 262 CA2d 202, 208, 68 CR 694 ].

6.18 Five-Year or Three-Year Dismissal Statutes May Apply to Lawsuits Subject to Arbitration.

Several courts have held that the statutes allowing dismissal of an action that is not brought to trial within five years [see CCP §§ 583.310-583.360 (mandatory dismissal)] or three years [see CCP §§ 583.410, 583.420 (discretionary dismissal)] apply to lawsuits that are subject to contractual arbitration, even if a case is in arbitration [ Kuzmanoff v. Kron (1988) 207 CA3d Supp 1, 3, 255 CR 168 (citing cases)]. The courts of appeal, however, are not in complete agreement as to the manner in which the dismissal statutes apply [see Brock v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1992) 10 CA4th 1790, 1801, 1805, 1808, 13 CR2d 678 (holding court has no jurisdiction to dismiss arbitration, and may not dismiss action while stayed for arbitration); Preston v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1981) 126 CA3d 402, 406-407, 178 CR 882 (holding court retains jurisdiction to entertain certain motions even after ordering arbitration)].

Warning:

While the courts agree the dismissal statutes do not apply directly to arbitrations, the concepts and limits of those statutes may be used as guidelines for determining whether a matter submitted to contractual arbitration should be dismissed for unreasonable delay in bringing the matter to conclusion [see, e.g., Burgess v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1993) 16 CA4th 1077, 1081, 20 CR2d 488 ; Byerly v. Sale (1988) 204 CA3d 1312, 1315, 251 CR 749 ]. An arbitrator's order dismissing a matter for failure to conclude arbitration within five years may be confirmed or vacated by the trial court [see Burgess v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1993) 16 CA4th 1077, 1081-1082, 20 CR2d 488 ].

6.19 Appealing Adverse Decisions on Petitions to Compel Arbitration.

6.19[1] Order Denying Petition or Staying Arbitration.

6.19[1][a] Order Denying Petition Immediately Appealable. An aggrieved party may immediately appeal from an order dismissing or denying a petition to compel arbitration [CCP § 1294(a); Mayhew v. Benninghoff (1997) 53 CA4th 1365, 1369, 62 CR2d 27 ].

Trap:

An immediate appeal must be taken under CCP § 1294(a), because subsequent review of such an order, on appeal from the final judgment, is precluded by CCP § 906 [see Hobbs v. Eichler (1985) 164 CA3d 174, 190-191, 210 CR 387 ].

Distinguish:

An appeal may not be taken if the court denies a motion to compel that only seeks resolution of the question of arbitrability; the court order must finally determine all issues before the court to be appealable [ Vivid Video, Inc. v. Playboy Entertainment Group, Inc. (2007) 147 CA4th 434, 442-444, 54 CR3d 232 ].

6.19[1][b] Order Staying Petition Immediately Appealable Because Equivalent to Denial. An order staying arbitration is appealable because it is the functional equivalent of an order refusing to compel arbitration [ Sanders v. Kinko's, Inc. (2002) 99 CA4th 1106, 1109-1110, 121 CR2d 766 (order stayed arbitration until class certification issues were resolved)]. Denying immediate review would subject the party who claimed to have a right to arbitrate to significant delay, and defeat the purpose of arbitration [ Henry v. Alcove Inv., Inc. (1991) 233 CA3d 94, 99-100, 284 CR 255 (arbitration stayed under CCP § 1281.2(c))].

6.19[1][c] Appeal Brought in Same Manner As Civil Action Appeal. An appeal from an order dismissing or denying a petition to compel arbitration is taken in the same manner as an appeal from an order or judgment in a civil action [CCP § 1294.2]. On appeal, the court may review the decision on the petition and any intermediate ruling, proceeding, order, or decision that involves the merits or necessarily affects the order or judgment appealed from, or that substantially affects the rights of a party [CCP § 1294.2].

Strategic Point--Respondent:

The party in whose favor the judgment or order was given may, without appealing from that decision, ask the court to review any of the rulings described above to determine whether the party appealing the decision was prejudiced by the error on which he or she relies for reversal or modification of the decision [CCP § 1294.2].

Exception:

The provisions of CCP § 1294.2 do not authorize the court to review any decision or order from which an appeal might have been taken [CCP § 1294.2].

6.19[2] Order Granting Petition and Compelling Arbitration.

6.19[2][a] Order Compelling Arbitration Not Immediately Appealable. An order compelling arbitration is not immediately appealable under CCP § 1294 [ Muao v. Grosvenor Properties, Ltd. (2002) 99 CA4th 1085, 1090, 122 CR2d 131 ; see also Melchor Inv. Co. v. Rolm Sys. (1992) 3 CA4th 587, 591, 4 CR2d 343 (order denying preliminary injunction barring arbitration as nonappealable)]. However, the order compelling arbitration is reviewable on appeal from a judgment confirming an arbitration award, which itself is appealable under CCP § 1294(d) [ State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Hardin (1989) 211 CA3d 501, 506, 259 CR 433 ; Lesser Towers, Inc. v. Roscoe-Ajax Constr. Co. (1969) 271 CA2d 675, 692, 77 CR 100 ]. Additionally, if the court that orders arbitration also dismisses, rather than stays, the related civil action, the dismissal may be appealed, and the propriety of the arbitration order necessarily will be reviewed [ Muao v. Grosvenor Properties, Ltd. (2002) 99 CA4th 1085, 1094, 122 CR2d 131 ].

6.19[2][b] Relief by Writ of Mandate or Prohibition Available Under Limited Circumstances. If matters ordered arbitrated fall clearly outside the scope of the arbitration agreement and the arbitration process would appear to be unduly time-consuming or expensive, relief may be sought by writ of prohibition, prohibiting the court from enforcing the order compelling arbitration, or by writ of mandate, compelling the trial court to set aside its order to arbitrate and exercise its jurisdiction to hear and decide any pending civil action involving the nonarbitrable dispute [ Int'l Film Investors v. Arbitration Tribunal of Directors Guild (1984) 152 CA3d 699, 704, 199 CR 690 ; Dinong v. Superior Court (1980) 102 CA3d 845, 848, 162 CR 606 (writ of mandate denied)].

Cross Reference:

Procedure and forms, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition (Matthew Bender).

6.19[3] Standard of Review of Ruling on Scope of Arbitration Clause Depends on Need for Extrinsic Evidence. The standard of review of a ruling on the scope of an arbitration provision is de novo when the interpretation of the provision does not depend on conflicting extrinsic evidence [ RN Solution, Inc. v. Catholic Healthcare West (2008) 165 CA4th 1511, 1522, 81 CR3d 892 ; Coast Plaza Doctors Hospital v. Blue Cross of California (2000) 83 CA4th 677, 684, 99 CR2d 809 ].

IV. OPPOSING ARBITRATION

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 6.20

6.20 CHECKLIST: Opposing Arbitration.

☐ Review petition to compel arbitration and arbitration agreement, and analyze contractual defenses that may apply.

☐ Analyze whether contract is arguably an adhesion contract.

☐ Unequal bargaining power of parties.

☐ Contract offered on a take-it-or-leave-it basis.

☐ No alternatives available.

☐ Determine whether arbitration provisions are unconscionable, either on their face or in practice.

☐ Analyze whether arbitration provision was reasonably to be expected.

☐ Analyze whether arbitration provision is unduly oppressive to one party.

☐ Determine whether provisions for arbitration procedures lack minimum levels of integrity.

☐ Determine whether arbitration provisions result in surprise, oppression, or an unreasonable allocation of risk to one party.

☐ If any of the above apply, resulting in both procedural and substantive unconscionability, prepare opposition to arbitration based on unconscionability.

☐ Consider whether unconscionable provisions are severable from contract.

☐ If arbitration provisions were added unilaterally, review underlying contract to determine if addition of those terms was within scope of agreement; if not, arbitration may be avoidable.

☐ If arbitration agreement is not in underlying contract, determine whether it was properly incorporated by reference into contract; if not, arbitration may be avoidable.

Authority:

CCP § 1281; CC § 1670.5(a)

Discussion:

See 6.22, 6.24

☐ Analyze whether dispute at issue falls within scope of arbitrable issues defined in contract; if not, arbitration may be avoidable.

Authority:

CCP § 1281

Discussion:

See 6.23

☐ Investigate facts surrounding the parties' contract.

☐ Determine whether any misrepresentations were made inducing client to enter into contract.

☐ Determine whether any misrepresentations were made as to existence or nature of arbitration provisions.

☐ Determine whether any misrepresentation caused client to execute contract.

☐ Analyze client's reliance on misrepresentation and materiality of misrepresentation.

Authority:

See CCP § 1281

Discussion:

See 6.25

☐ If client is a third party to the arbitration agreement, assert that client cannot be compelled to arbitrate.

Authority:

See American Builder's Ass'n v. Au-Yang (1990) 226 CA3d 170, 177-180, 276 CR 262

Discussion:

See 6.26

- ☐ If arbitration will affect rights conferred by statute, research statute for indication that right to jury may not be waived, or requires knowing waiver.

Authority:

Chapter 6 Determining Forum
IV. OPPOSING ARBITRATION

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 6.21

6.21 Options and Strategies.

There are four general categories for opposing enforcement of an arbitration agreement:

- The arbitration agreement itself is unenforceable due to unconscionable terms, fraud, improper unilateral amendment, or claims that are not subject to arbitration.
- Even if the arbitration agreement is a valid contract, the issues of the dispute are not the subject of the agreement.
- Third parties affect enforcement of the agreement.
- The party seeking the agreement's enforcement has waived the right to arbitrate.

Strategic Point:

Commencing a civil action tolls any time limitations in arbitration agreement requiring commencing party to demand or initiate arbitration within a specified period of time [CCP § 1281.12; see 6.22[6]]. Thus, a plaintiff with grounds to challenge a contractual arbitration requirement [see, e.g., 6.24, 6.25, 6.27] or its applicability to the plaintiff's cause [see, e.g., 6.23, 6.29] can, instead of demanding or initiating arbitration of the cause, bring suit on the claim in anticipation that the defendant will seek arbitration of the matter, and litigate the challenge or the issue of applicability before pursuing arbitration under such an agreement.

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

If a suit ordered to arbitration consists of multiple counts, some of which are subject to arbitration and some of which are not, the plaintiff may dismiss the action without prejudice and file a second action on only the nonarbitrable causes. The trial court loses jurisdiction to enforce its order compelling arbitration in the first action, so long as the dismissal is taken before arbitration commences [ Cardiff Equities, Inc. v. Superior Court (2008) 166 CA4th 1541, 1543-1544, 83 CR3d 699] .

A party opposing arbitration should develop a coordinated attack using any or all of these grounds. The central issue of arbitration is that the parties have made an agreement, a contract, to use an alternative system for disputes. Therefore, to oppose arbitration, use contract defenses to defeat enforcement of the contract. Start by determining if the contract is valid from the outset, and then turn to whether the contract was procured by improper means. If a valid contract was fairly bargained, seek to limit its terms, and to show how third parties may affect its enforcement. Lastly, show how the terms of the contract have been expressly or implied waived.

Case law has indicated that unconscionable arbitration terms have been forced on persons and entities that do not have sufficient bargaining strength, and that statutory claims serving important governmental interests are being adversely affected. A central theme in these cases is that the courts favor an alternative system that may be less expensive and time consuming, but not when the person opposing arbitration has effectively had no choice but to accept arbitration or the alternative system falls below a basic level of fairness. Demonstrating this lack of fairness can be a strong central theme in developing a coordinated opposition to arbitration.

IV. OPPOSING ARBITRATION

6.22 Rules Impacting Enforcement of Arbitration Agreements.

6.22[1] Enforceability of Agreement Is Governed by Contract Law. Whether an agreement to arbitrate is enforceable will be determined under principles of contract law [ Platt Pac., Inc. v. Andelson (1993) 6 C4th 307, 313, 24 CR2d 597, 862 P2d 158 ]. Accordingly, the grounds available for avoiding most contracts are available for avoiding arbitration agreements, including lack of capacity, duress, unconscionability, and fraud [see, e.g., Armendariz v. Found. Health Psychcare Servs., Inc. (2000) 24 C4th 83, 114, 99 CR2d 745, 6 P3d 669 (analyzing unconscionability); Engalla v. Permanente Med. Group, Inc. (1997) 15 C4th 951, 64 CR2d 843, 938 P2d 903 (fraudulent misrepresentation)].

Cross References:

Discussion of contract defenses, see 6.22 -6.25; and California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts; Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake (Matthew Bender).

6.22[2] Existence of Contract Is Factual Determination. The threshold determination a court will make in determining the arbitrability of a dispute--whether a contract to arbitrate exists--is a question of fact [see Cochran v. Rubens (1996) 42 CA4th 481, 485, 49 CR2d 672 ]. In establishing the existence of an agreement to arbitrate, the party seeking to compel arbitration need only allege the existence of an agreement, and support the allegation as provided in Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1330 [ Condee v. Longwood Mgmt. Corp. (2001) 88 CA4th 215, 218, 105 CR2d 597 ]. The party seeking to compel arbitration does not have to introduce the agreement into evidence or provide the court with anything more than a copy or recitation of its terms [see Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1330].

The petitioner seeking to compel arbitration bears the burden of proving the agreement's existence by a preponderance of the evidence [ Mitri v. Arnel Management Co. (2007) 157 CA4th 1164, 1169, 69 CR3d 223 (employee handbook insufficient proof)].

An arbitration clause in a contract that has been terminated can require arbitration of a dispute that arose under the contract while the agreement was still in force [see, e.g., Ajida Techs., Inc. v. Roos Instruments, Inc. (2001) 87 CA4th 534, 545, 104 CR2d 686 ; Coast Plaza Doctors Hosp. v. Blue Cross of California (2000) 83 CA4th 677, 685-687, 99

CR2d 809 ].

6.22[3] Party Resisting Arbitration Must Prove Alleged Arbitration Agreement Does Not Apply to Dispute.

Once the petitioner has alleged that an arbitration agreement exists, the burden shifts to the party resisting arbitration to prove that the alleged arbitration agreement does not cover the dispute at issue [see O'Malley v. Wilshire Oil Co. (1963) 59 C2d 482, 491-492, 30 CR 452, 381 P2d 188 ; Condee v. Longwood Mgmt. Corp. (2001) 88 CA4th 215, 218-219, 105 CR2d 597, 381 P2d 188 ; Weeks v. Crow (1980) 113 CA3d 350, 352-353, 169 CR 830 ].

Factual issues are resolved by the trial court based on conflicting affidavits or declarations and, at the court's discretion, even oral testimony [ Brookwood v. Bank of Am. (1996) 45 CA4th 1667, 1670, 53 CR2d 515 ]. In determining whether an arbitration agreement applies to a specific dispute, the court may examine only the agreement itself and the pleading filed by the party refusing arbitration [ Leon Handbag Co. v. Leather, Luggage & Handbag Workers (1969) 276 CA2d 240, 243, 81 CR 63 ]. The court should attempt to give effect to the parties' intentions, in light of the usual and ordinary meaning of the contractual language and the circumstances under which the agreement was made.

Examples:

- Agreement to arbitrate contained in a dispute form on which the employee was directed to submit his grievance, and the form did not look like a contract and did not alert the employee he was agreeing to binding arbitration was unenforceable [ Metters v. Ralphs Grocery Co. (2008) 161 CA4th 696, 703, 74 CR3d 210 ].
- Insurers not signatories to arbitration agreements between insured and third-party insurers could not be compelled to arbitrate their equitable contribution claim against third-party insurers [ Crowley Maritime Corp. v. Boston Old Colony Ins. Co. (2008) 158 CA4th 1061, 1071-1072, 70 CR3d 605 ].
- In the absence of conduct of the principal creating an ostensible agency, an arbitration agreement signed by one spouse is not enforceable against the other spouse [ Warfield v. Summerville Senior Living, Inc. (2007) 158 CA4th 443, 451, 69 CR3d 783 ].
- Trial court improperly denied motion to compel under agreements that provided "any action" to enforce or interpret those agreements "shall be settled by arbitration" [ Segal v. Silberstein (2007) 156 CA4th 627, 634-635, 67 CR3d 426 ].

Distinguish:

A meritorious defense to the enforcement of the arbitration provision is not properly raised as a defense to a petition to compel arbitration. Rather, it is subject to arbitration [ United Teachers L.A. v. L.A. Unified Sch. Dist. (2009) 177 CA4th 863, 871, 99 CR3d 524 (ordering arbitration of defense of preemption by state law)].

6.22[4] Arbitration Clause May Be Incorporated by Reference. An arbitration clause need not be contained in the contract under which a dispute arises, but may be contained in a collateral agreement [ Marsch v. Williams (1994) 23 CA4th 250, 255, 28 CR2d 398 ]. Thus, a dispute under a contract that does not include an arbitration clause may be subject to arbitration if that contract incorporates another contract that includes an arbitration clause [ Boys Club of San Fernando Valley, Inc. v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1992) 6 CA4th 1266, 1271-1274, 8 CR2d 587 ].

Prerequisite:

To be effective, the arbitration provision must be properly incorporated by a clear reference to and identification of the incorporated document in which the arbitration clause appears [ Adajar v. RWR Homes, Inc. (2008) 160 CA4th 563, 569-571, 73 CR3d 17 (insufficient evidence); Metters v. Ralphs

Grocery Co. (2008) 161 CA4th 696, 703, 74 CR3d 210 (insufficient reference); Chan v. Drexel Burnham Lambert, Inc. (1986) 178 CA3d 632, 643-645, 223 CR 838 (reference and availability were insufficient for incorporation); cf. Baker v. Aubry (1989) 216 CA3d 1259, 1264-1265, 265 CR 381 (agreement contained promise to arbitrate, but rules incorporated by reference defined scope of arbitration clause)].

6.22[5] Agreement to Arbitrate Operates As Waiver of Jury Trial. An agreement to arbitrate operates as a waiver of the right to a jury trial. The right to a jury trial in California courts under Cal Const, art I, § 16 may be waived in a civil matter by the consent of the parties expressed as prescribed by statute [CCP § 631]. Although CCP § 631 applies only to waiver by a party to a pending action, it does not prevent parties from avoiding a jury trial by agreeing to a method of resolving a controversy, such as arbitration, that does not invoke a judicial forum [ Madden v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1976) 17 C3d 699, 713, 131 CR 882, 552 P2d 1178 ].

Distinguish:

Pre-dispute contractual jury trial waivers generally are invalid unless the procedure is authorized by statute, for example, arbitration or judicial reference [ Grafton Partners v. Superior Court (2005) 36 C4th 944, 956, 964-965, 116 P3d 479 ]. Even when authorized by statute, pre-dispute agreements requiring arbitration or judicial reference can be subject to attack as procedurally or substantively unconscionable [see Trend Homes, Inc. v. Superior Court (2005) 131 CA4th 950 ].

An arbitration agreement need not expressly waive the parties' constitutional right to jury trial in order to result in waiver. When parties agree to submit their disputes to arbitration, they select an alternative that is independent of the judicial forum; the parties know arbitrated disputes are not resolved by juries [ Madden v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1976) 17 C3d 699, 713-714, 131 CR 882, 552 P2d 1178 ; Powers v. Dickson, Carlson & Campillo (1997) 54 CA4th 1102, 1109, 63 CR2d 261 ].

Neither California law nor public policy is offended by requiring an employee to waive his or her right to a jury trial as a condition of employment [ Lagatree v. Luce, Forward, Hamilton & Scripps (1999) 74 CA4th 1105, 1127-1128, 88 CR2d 664 ], and predispute arbitration agreements, even if compulsory, are enforceable [ City of Vista v. Sutro & Co. (1997) 52 CA4th 401, 411, 60 CR2d 488 ].

When the requirement to arbitrate is based on a statute, such as CC § 2860(c) (arbitration of disputes involving attorney's fees of independent counsel retained by an insured but to be paid by an insurer), the statute may be construed to avoid requiring arbitration of claims to which the right to a jury trial applies [see Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. v. Younesi (1996) 48 CA4th 451, 458-459, 55 CR2d 671 (fraud claim not subject to arbitration under CC § 2860(c))].

6.22[6] Commencing Court Action Tolls Agreement's Time Limitation on Demanding or Initiating Arbitration. When an arbitration agreement requires that arbitration of a controversy be demanded or initiated by a party to the arbitration agreement within a period of time, the commencement of a civil action by that party based upon that controversy, within that period of time, tolls the applicable time limitations contained in the arbitration agreement with respect to that controversy. The tolling period lasts from the date the civil action is commenced until the earlier of [CCP § 1281.12]:

- 30 days after a final determination by the court that the party is required to arbitrate the controversy.
- 30 days after the final termination of the civil action that was commenced and initiated the tolling.

6.22[7] Court May Award Attorney Fees Under Contractual Provision for Fees to Party Obtaining Denial of Petition to Compel Arbitration. In an action that is brought solely to compel arbitration of contractual disputes between the parties, a party who succeeds in obtaining an order denying the petition to compel arbitration is a prevailing party in the action on the contract even though the merits of the parties' underlying contractual disputes have not yet been resolved [ Otay River Constructors v. San Diego Expressway (2008) 158 CA4th 796, 799, 808, 70 CR3d 434 (denial of fees under CC § 1717 is appealable as special order)].

6.22[8] Validity of Arbitration Clause of Class Action Settlement Is Subject to Class Action Settlement

Rules. If a class action settlement contains a clause calling for arbitration of claims, the validity of the arbitration clause will rest not only on principles applicable to arbitration clauses generally, but on the standards of fairness applicable to court approval of the class action settlement itself [ Cellphone Termination Fee Cases (2009) 180 CA4th 1110, 1123-1125, 104 CR3d 275 ] .

IV. OPPOSING ARBITRATION

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 6.23

6.23 Issue May Not Be Subject to Arbitration.

6.23[1] Parties May Limit Arbitrable Issues. A person may not be required to submit to arbitration any dispute that he or she has not agreed to arbitrate [ Unimart v. Superior Court (1969) 1 CA3d 1039, 1045, 82 CR 249 ]. In a written arbitration agreement, the parties may delineate the areas to which an arbitration provision applies, and, because an agreement to arbitrate is a contract, an arbitrator may consider only those disputes that are covered by the arbitration agreement [ Morris v. Zukerman (1967) 257 CA2d 91, 96, 64 CR 714 ]. An arbitration award may be vacated if the arbitrator has exceeded his or her power in this regard [CCP § 1286.2(a)(4)].

Whether a contractual arbitration clause covers a particular dispute rests substantially on whether the clause in question is "broad" or "narrow" [ Bono v. David (2007) 147 CA4th 1055, 1067, 54 CR3d 837 ]. In determining the scope of an arbitration clause, a court gives effect to the parties' intentions, in light of the usual and ordinary meaning of the contractual language and the circumstances under which the agreement was made [ Victoria v. Superior Court (1985) 40 C3d 734, 744, 222 CR 1, 710 P.2d 833 ; RN Solution, Inc. v. Catholic Healthcare West (2008) 165 CA4th 1511, 1523, 81 CR3d 892 ]. Even a broad form arbitration clause will not cover every type of dispute that might arise between those bound by it. "However broad may be the terms of a contract, it extends only to those things concerning which it appears that the parties intended to contract" [ RN Solution, Inc. v. Catholic Healthcare West (2008) 165 CA4th 1511, 1523, 81 CR3d 892 (quoting Civ Code § 1648)].

Examples:

- The phrase "all disputes arising in connection with this agreement" includes "every dispute between the parties having a significant relationship to the contract and all disputes having their origin or genesis in the contract," including antitrust, trade secrets, defamation, and misrepresentation claims [ Simula, Inc. v. Autoliv, Inc. (9th Cir. 1999) 175 F.3d 716, 720-725 ].
- While claims framed in tort are subject to contractual arbitration provisions when they arise out of the contractual relationship between the parties, a party cannot seriously argue that the parties intended it to cover tort claims arising from an alleged violent physical assault by an employee of one company against an employee of the other in the context of an intimate domestic relationship between them [ RN

Solution, Inc. v. Catholic Healthcare West (2008) 165 CA4th 1511, 1523, 81 CR3d 892 (battery-related claim not arbitrable)].

Warning:

The right to enforce a limitation in an arbitration agreement on arbitration of a specific issue is waived if the party seeking to exercise the right has not raised the limitation before the arbitrator [ J.C. Gury Co. v. Nippon Carbide Indus. (USA) Inc. (2007) 152 CA4th 1300, 1304-1306, 62 CR3d 118 ].

6.23[2] Court Decides Arbitrability Unless Agreement Provides Otherwise. Unless parties to a dispute agreed to submit the question of arbitrability to an arbitrator, the court will decide that issue independently [ First Options of Chicago, Inc. v. Kaplan (1995) 514 US 938, 943, 115 S Ct 1920, 131 L Ed2d 985 (under the FAA, court has primary power to decide arbitrability of a dispute unless clear and unmistakable evidence shows parties agreed arbitrator would decide)]. To divest a court of jurisdiction over the issue, the agreement must "clearly and unmistakably" reserve the issue of enforceability to the arbitrator [ Baker v. Osborne Development Corp. (2008) 159 CA4th 884, 893, 71 CR3d 854 ; see Sanchez v. Western Pizza Enterprises, Inc. (2009) 172 CA4th 154, 165, 90 CR3d 818]. If, however, the issue of arbitrability is submitted to an arbitrator, a court reviewing the arbitrator's determination must defer to the arbitrator's decision on that issue [ First Options of Chicago, Inc. v. Kaplan (1995) 514 US 938, 943, 115 S Ct 1920, 131 L Ed2d 985 ].

6.23[3] Clear and Unmistakable Evidence Is Required to Order Arbitration. There must be "clear and unmistakable evidence" that the parties agreed to arbitrate the issue of arbitrability, for a court to order arbitration of that issue [ First Options of Chicago, Inc. v. Kaplan (1995) 514 US 938, 944, 115 S Ct 1920, 131 L Ed2d 985 ].

The rule of liberal construction of agreements to arbitrate may be offset by other presumptions [ Mayhew v. Benninghoff (1997) 53 CA4th 1365, 1367, 62 CR2d 27 ].

Example:

Presumptions relating to business transactions between an attorney and his or her clients may preclude the extension of an ambiguous arbitration clause in an engagement letter to cover a dispute between the attorney and client [ Mayhew v. Benninghoff (1997) 53 CA4th 1365, 1369-1370, 62 CR2d 27 (attorney could not enforce arbitration clause in engagement letter relating to representation of client in divorce proceedings with respect to dispute involving unrelated financial investments); cf. Powers v. Dickson, Carlson & Campillo (1997) 54 CA4th 1102, 1113, 63 CR2d 261 (unambiguous arbitration clause in retainer agreement and amendment to retainer agreement was broad enough to cover malpractice as well as fee disputes)].

6.24 Arbitration Agreement May Be Avoided on Unconscionability Grounds.

6.24[1] Unconscionability Under Adhesion Contract Analysis.

6.24[1][a] Arbitration Provisions in Adhesion Contracts Are Scrutinized Closely. In analyzing whether an arbitration provision is unconscionable, a court will first determine whether the contract in which the provision appears is a contract of adhesion [ Armendariz v. Found. Health Psychcare Servs., Inc. (2000) 24 C4th 83, 113, 99 CR2d 745, 6 P3d 669 ]. An adhesion contract is a standardized contract, imposed and drafted by the party of superior bargaining strength, which relegates to the subscribing party only the opportunity to adhere to the contract or reject it [ Armendariz v. Found. Health Psychcare Servs., Inc. (2000) 24 C4th 83, 113, 99 CR2d 745, 6 P3d 669 ].

The determination of whether a contract is one of adhesion will depend on factors such as the bargaining power of the parties, whether alternative contracts were available, and whether the challenged clause limited one party's liability or could be beneficial to all parties [see, e.g., Engalla v. Permanente Med. Group, Inc. (1997) 15 C4th 951, 985, 64 CR2d 843, 938 P2d 903 ].

Example:

An agreement between a group health care plan and a state employee was held not to be an adhesion contract, even though presented to the employee on a take it or leave it basis, where the parties who negotiated the contract were of equal power (insurer and the State of California), the employee had a number of different plans from which to choose, and the challenged clause did not limit the liability or obligations of a stronger party, but could prove helpful to all parties [see Madden v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1976) 17 C3d 699, 710-711, 131 CR 882, 552 P2d 1178 ].

Compare:

A group health care plan containing an arbitration clause was found to have more indicia of an adhesion contract when the employees were offered few plans, the employer had only a small number of employees enrolled in the plan containing the challenged arbitration clause, the employer lacked the strength to bargain with the health care provider, and the claim was not that the clause was unconscionable, but that the arbitration program established under the clause was biased [see Engalla v. Permanente Med. Group, Inc. (1997) 15 C4th 951, 985, 64 CR2d 843, 938 P2d 903 (distinguishing Madden v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1976) 17 C3d 699, 710-711, 131 CR 882, 552 P2d 1178, but finding contract did not lack minimum level of integrity)].

6.24[1][b] Arbitration Provisions in Adhesion Contracts Will Not Be Enforced If Not Reasonably Expected, or If Unduly Oppressive or Unconscionable. Courts impose the following limitations on enforcement of adhesion contracts [ Armendariz v. Found. Health Psychcare Servs., Inc. (2000) 24 C4th 83, 113, 99 CR2d 745, 6 P3d 669 ]:

- A contract or provision that does not fall within the reasonable expectations of the weaker party (in terms of negotiating the contract) will not be enforced against him or her.
- A contract provision, even if within the reasonable expectations of the parties, will not be enforced if it is unduly oppressive or unconscionable.

If the facts show that the parties could reasonably anticipate an arbitration clause, and that the agreement is not unduly oppressive, the arbitration provision will be enforced even though it is contained in an adhesion contract [see Keating v. Superior Court (1982) 31 C3d 584, 594-595, 183 CR 360, 645 P2d 1192 (reversed in part on other grounds by Southland Corp. v. Keating (1984) 465 US 1, 16-17, 104 S Ct 852, 79 L Ed2d 1 )].

6.24[1][c] Where Arbitration Procedures Lack Minimum Levels of Integrity, Agreement Will Not Be Enforced. An agreement to arbitrate will be denied enforcement on grounds of unconscionability if the procedures outlined for the arbitration in the contract lack minimum levels of integrity [ Graham v. Scissor-Tail, Inc. (1981) 28 C3d 807, 825, 171 CR 604, 623 P2d 165 ; see Patterson v. ITT Consumer Fin. Corp. (1993) 14 CA4th 1659, 1664-1667, 18 CR2d 563 ; see also Spinello v. Amblin Entm't (1994) 29 CA4th 1390, 1397-1398, 34 CR2d 695 (upholding clause)]. Whether the contractual arrangements for arbitration proceedings possess minimum levels of integrity is determined from the face of the contract [ Engalla v. Permanente Med. Group, Inc. (1997) 15 C4th 951, 985-986, 64 CR2d 843, 938 P2d 903 ].

Example:

An arbitration clause providing for neutral arbitrators to be selected by party arbitrators is not per se unconscionable; if, however, a gap exists between the contractual provisions and the actual workings of the arbitration program, other theories, such as fraud or waiver, may be used to address a discrepancy between contractual representations regarding the arbitration procedures, and reality [ Engalla v. Permanente Med. Group, Inc. (1997) 15 C4th 951, 986, 64 CR2d 843, 938 P2d 903 ].

6.24[2] Unconscionability Under Procedural and Substantive Analysis.

6.24[2][a] Procedural and Substantive Elements of Arbitration Provisions Will Affect Enforcement. To determine whether an arbitration agreement is unenforceable due to unconscionability, courts often follow the traditional analysis set forth in A&M Produce Co. v. FMC Corp. (1982) 135 CA3d 473, 485-487, 489-490, 186 CR 114, which is based on CCP § 1670.5, and assesses both the procedural and substantive elements of an agreement [ Flores v. Transamerica HomeFirst, Inc. (2001) 93 CA4th 846, 852-853, 113 CR2d 376 ; see also Stirlen v. Supercuts, Inc. (1997) 51 CA4th 1519, 1533-1534, 60 CR2d 138 ].

Distinguish:

A court may not consider a claim that an arbitration provision is unenforceable if it is a subterfuge for a challenge that the entire agreement (in which the arbitration clause is only a part) is unconscionable. That contention must be presented to the arbitrator [ Higgins v. Superior Court (2006) 140 CA4th 1238, 1249, 45 CR3d 293 ; see also Buckeye Check Cashing, Inc. v. Cardegna (2006) 546 US 440, 445 ].

An analysis under either this framework or the adhesion-contract framework should reach the same result [ Patterson v. ITT Consumer Fin. Corp. (1993) 14 CA4th 1659, 1663-1664, 18 CR2d 563 ].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of adhesion contract analysis, see 6.24[1].

6.24[2][b] Analysis Focuses on Surprise, Oppression, and Allocation of Risk. Procedural unconscionability focuses on oppression or surprise due to unequal bargaining power, such as exists when there is an adhesion contract. Surprise involves the extent to which the allegedly agreed-upon term is hidden in a preprinted form drafted by the party seeking to enforce the disputed term [ Kinney v. United Healthcare Services, Inc. (1999) 70 CA4th 1322, 1329, 83 CR2d 348 ], or a term providing for a particular protection of a party's rights is illusory [see Sanchez v. Western Pizza Enterprises, Inc. (2009) 172 CA4th 154, 174, 90 CR3d 818] . Oppression exists where there is no real negotiation of contract terms because of unequal bargaining power and the absence of meaningful choice [ Baker v. Osborne Development Corp. (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 884, 894, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 854 ; Flores v. Transamerica HomeFirst, Inc. (2001) 93 CA4th 846, 853, 113 CR2d 376 ; Kinney v. United Healthcare Servs., Inc. (1999) 70 CA4th 1322, 1330, 83 CR2d 348 ].

Examples:

The following are examples of factual bases for finding procedural unconscionability:

- An employer's requirement that the employees sign a waiver of notice and acceptance of terms of an agreement that they had not read and that contained the arbitration clause and limits on remedies [ Suh v. Superior Court (2010) 181 CA4th 1504, 1516, 105 CR3d 585] .
- Terms and conditions of a recreational release agreement that are nonnegotiable, and defendant's statement that plaintiffs would encounter the same requirements with any other recreational company [ Lhotka v. Geographic Expeditions, Inc. (2010) 181 CA4th 816, 822, 104 CR3d 844] .

Substantive unconscionability focuses on overly harsh or one-sided terms or results [ Little v. Auto Stiegler, Inc. (2003) 29 C4th 1064, 1071, 130 CR2d 892, 63 P3d 979 ; Armendariz v. Found. Health Psychcare Servs., Inc. (2000) 24 C4th 83, 114, 99 CR2d 745, 6 P3d 669 ]. Specifically, a court will look to whether the contract allocates the risks of the parties' bargain in an objectively unreasonable or unexpected manner [ Patterson v. ITT Consumer Fin. Corp. (1993) 14 CA4th 1659, 1664, 18 CR2d 563 ].

Example:

A clause in an employment contract that allowed the employer to bring claims against the employee in court, limited the employee's rights in the litigation, and stripped the employee of his or her job and salary pending the litigation even if the employer's claim proved unmeritorious, was unconscionable [ Stirlen v. Supercuts, Inc. (1997) 51 CA4th 1519, 1541-1542, 60 CR2d 138 ].

Example:

Although parties are free to contract for asymmetrical remedies, if the arbitration agreement requires arbitration only for the claims of the weaker party but a choice of forums for the claims of the stronger party, the agreement lacks the modicum of bilaterality needed to make it enforceable [ Armendariz v. Found. Health Psychcare Servs., Inc. (2000) 24 C4th 83, 117-118, 99 CR2d 745 ; Jaramillo v. JH Real Estate Partners, Inc. (2003) 111 CA4th 394, 405 ].

Example:

American Health Lawyers Association Alternative Dispute Resolution Service Rules of Procedure for Arbitration that limit the award of consequential, exemplary, incidental, punitive or special damages to narrow circumstances, were substantively unconscionable, because they force a party to separately sue to obtain those remedies [ Suh v. Superior Court (2010) 181 CA4th 1504, 1515-1516, 105 CR3d 585] .

Example:

Limitation of the amount of recovery to the cost of a recreational trip is without more substantively unconscionable [ Lhotka v. Geographic Expeditions, Inc. (2010) 181 CA4th 816, 825-826, 104 CR3d 844] .

Example:

Contractual arbitration provision in employment agreement was unenforceable as illegal and unconscionable because of requirement that effectively required employees to share arbitration costs in pursuing public rights claims [ Ontiveros v. DHL Express (USA), Inc. (2008) 164 CA4th 494, 510-511, 79 CR3d 471 ; Abramson v. Juniper Networks, Inc. (2004) 115 CA4th 638, 666 ] .

Example:

An arbitration agreement that only permits an amount of discovery that is so low while the burden for showing a need for more discovery is so high that plaintiff's ability to prove his or her claims would be unlawfully thwarted is substantively unconscionable [ Ontiveros v. DHL Express (USA), Inc. (2008) 164 CA4th 494, 513, 79 CR3d 471 ; cf., Dotson v. Amgen, Inc. (2010) 181 CA4th 975, 983-985, 104 CR3d 341 (discovery restriction interpreted as not narrow enough to be unconscionable)].

Strategic Point:

A party, such as a company, that repeatedly appears before the same group of arbitrators, has a distinct advantage over the individual employee or consumer. This "repeat player effect" occurs when an arbitration agreement requires the arbitrator to be from a specific dispute resolution organization before which the stronger (usually drafting) party appears frequently. A party that employs this tactic should consider its benefits and drawbacks. Although the "repeat player effect" has never been held sufficient by itself to render an arbitration agreement unconscionable, it is a factor to be considered in determining substantive unconscionability because it deprives the weaker party of the chance to participate in the selection of the arbitrator [ Mercuro v. Superior Court (2002) 96 CA4th 167, 178-179, 116 CR2d 671 ] . Nonetheless, it may be enough to render a arbitrator selection clause unconscionable, when it is in combination with only the unequal bargaining position of the parties [see Sanchez v. Western Pizza Enterprises, Inc. (2009) 172 CA4th 154, 174, 90 CR3d 818] .

6.24[2][c] Agreement Must Be Both Procedurally and Substantively Unconscionable to Be Unenforceable.

To be denied enforcement, an arbitration agreement must be both procedurally and substantively unconscionable, though not necessarily in equal degrees [ Armendariz v. Found. Health Psychcare Servs., Inc. (2000) 24 C4th 83, 114, 99 CR2d 745, 6 P3d 669 ] .

The more substantively oppressive the contract term, the less evidence of procedural unconscionability is required to come to the conclusion that the term is unenforceable, and vice versa [ Gentry v. Superior Court (2007) 42 C4th 443, 469, 64 CR3d 773, 165 P3d 556 ; Gatton v. T-Mobile USA Inc. (2007) 152 CA4th 571, 584, 61 CR3d 344 ] .

Cross Reference:

Further discussion of unconscionability, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts (Matthew Bender).

6.24[3] Unconscionability Analyzed As of Time Contract Made, Under California Law. The factors that help determine whether an agreement is unconscionable will be examined as they existed when the contract was made [see Tate v. Saratoga Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1989) 216 CA3d 843, 852-853, 265 CR 440 ].

If a contract is within the scope of the Commerce Clause, the FAA will govern enforceability of the arbitration clause, but a federal court deciding such a case should apply California law on the issue of unconscionability [see Circuit City Stores, Inc. v. Adams (9th Cir 2002) 279 F3d 889, 892-893 ].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of federal preemption, see 6.13.

6.24[4] Unconscionable Provisions May Be Severable. When a contract is found to contain an unconscionable provision, a court may enforce the remainder of the contract without the unconscionable clause, or may limit the application of any unconscionable clause so as to avoid any unconscionable result [CC § 1670.5(a)].

Example:

One type of unconscionable arbitration provision that is severable is a provision that negates the neutrality of the arbitrator. When such a provision exists, a party may have such a provision severed, after which the rest of the arbitration clause can be enforced, and the arbitrator chosen in accordance with CCP § 1281.6 [ Graham v. Scissor-Tail, Inc. (1981) 28 C3d 807, 831, 171 CR 604, 623 P2d 165 ; Lewis v. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. (1986) 183 CA3d 1097, 1106-1107, 228 CR 345 ].

Example:

Although the employment contract containing an arbitration clause was procedurally unconscionable due to its being a contract of adhesion, where the only substantively unconscionable provision was an unlawful fee shifting clause, it would be severed and arbitration compelled under the remainder of the agreement [ Roman v. Superior Court (2009) 172 CA4th 1462, 1477, 92 CR3d 153] .

Exception:

When an entire arbitration provision is unilateral, and multiple defects indicate a systematic effort to impose arbitration on the weaker party as an inferior forum that works to the stronger party's advantage, severing the unconscionable portions within the clause and compelling arbitration is not appropriate [ Armendariz v. Found. Health Psychcare Servs., Inc. (2000) 24 C4th 83, 121-122, 124, 99 CR2d 745, 6 P3d 669 ; Mercurio v. Superior Court (Countrywide Sec. Corp.) (2002) 96 CA4th 167, 184-186, 116 CR2d 671 ; Flores v. Transamerica HomeFirst, Inc. (2001) 93 CA4th 846, 857, 113 CR2d 376 ].

Examples:

The following are examples of factual bases for finding lack of severability of an unconscionable clause of an arbitration agreement:

- Provision limiting the award of consequential, exemplary, incidental, punitive or special damages to narrow circumstances in the American Health Lawyers Association Alternative Dispute Resolution Service Rules of Procedure for Arbitration could not be severed, because the Rules are applicable as a whole [ Suh v. Superior Court (2010) 181 CA4th 1504, 1516-1517, 105 CR3d 585] .
- Provisions greatly limiting plaintiffs' recovery, requiring plaintiffs to indemnify the other party for its legal costs and fees if plaintiffs pursued any claims covered by the release agreement, and to pay half of any mediation fees and mediate and arbitrate in defendant's choice of venue, far from plaintiffs [ Lhotka v. Geographic Expeditions, Inc. (2010) 181 CA4th 816, 826, 104 CR3d 844] .

6.24[5] Federal Arbitration Act Does Not Preempt California Law on Unconscionability. State-court refusal to enforce arbitration clauses that are clearly unconscionable, under a general contract law principle that is not at all hostile to arbitration, presents no obstacle to the objective of the FAA, and state law is not preempted. In fact, the analysis of unconscionability under the FAA is the same as under California law [ Armendariz v. Found. Health Psychcare Servs., Inc. (2000) 24 C4th 83, 98-99, 119, 99 CR2d 745, 6 P3d 669 ; Flores v. Transamerica HomeFirst, Inc. (2001) 93 CA4th 846, 856, 113 CR2d 376 ; Stirlen v. Supercuts, Inc. (1997) 51 CA4th 1519, 1551-1552, 60 CR2d 138 (distinguishing cases where California law preempted by other federal statutes or because of specific anti-arbitration policy)].

IV. OPPOSING ARBITRATION

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 6.25

6.25 Arbitration Agreements May Be Unenforceable Due to Fraud.

6.25[1] Fraud May Relate to Entire Contract or Only Arbitration Provisions. Three types of fraud might affect the enforceability of arbitration agreements:

- Fraud in the making of the arbitration agreement itself.
- Fraud in the inception (or execution) of the contract (party never intended to enter into any contract).
- Fraud in the inducement of the contract as a whole (party intended to contract, but would not have done so but for other party's misrepresentations).

For fraud to invalidate an arbitration clause, the fraud must specifically and unquestionably infect the agreement to arbitrate such that it nullifies the apparent consent to that agreement [ Hayes Children Leasing Co. v. NCR Corp. (1995) 37 CA4th 775, 785, 43 CR2d 650 ].

6.25[2] Alleging Fraud in Response to Petition to Compel Arbitration. A petition to compel arbitration may not be denied based on an allegation of fraud asserted in an unverified pleading, but only on evidence, supplied by affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury [ Strauch v. Eyring (1994) 30 CA4th 181, 185-186, 35 CR2d 747 ; see also Rosenthal v. Great W. Fin. Sec. Corp. (1996) 14 C4th 394, 415, 58 CR2d 875, 926 P2d 1061 ].

Allegations in a verified complaint may be sufficient to defeat a motion to compel arbitration [see Rice v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. (1991) 235 CA3d 1016, 1027-1028, 1 CR2d 265 (under CCP §§ 2009, 2011, a verified complaint constitutes prima facie evidence of facts stated therein)], but even if a complaint is verified, it may not necessarily be used to defeat a petition to compel arbitration, because pleadings usually contain allegations of ultimate facts rather than evidentiary facts.

On a petition to compel arbitration, the trial court is the trier of fact and must decide the fraud issue in order to rule on the petition [ Engalla v. Permanente Med. Group, Inc. (1997) 15 C4th 951, 974, 64 CR2d 843, 938 P2d 903 ]. There is no right to a jury trial on the existence or validity of an arbitration agreement [ Rosenthal v. Great W. Fin. Sec. Corp. (1996) 14 C4th 394, 409-410, 411-413, 58 CR2d 875, 926 P2d 1061 (disapproving cases to the contrary)].

6.25[3] If Fraud Induced Agreement to Arbitrate, Arbitration May Be Avoided.

6.25[3][a] Elements of Fraud. A claim of fraud specifically as to an arbitration provision amounts to a claim of promissory estoppel--alleging a promise was made regarding the arbitration of disputes, with no intent to perform it. The following are the elements of such a claim [ Engalla v. Permanente Med. Group, Inc. (1997) 15 C4th 951, 973-974, 64 CR2d 843, 938 P2d 903 ]:

- Misrepresentation (false representation, concealment, or nondisclosure);
- Knowledge of falsity;
- Intent to defraud (intent to induce reliance);
- Justifiable reliance; and
- Damage.

Example:

A statement in an arbitration provision that indicated the selection of arbitrators would be expeditious, when drafter of agreement knew that previous selections under that provision had taken considerably longer than the provision would suggest (an average of two years rather than the 60 days indicated in the provision), was found to be fraudulent, and the arbitration agreement was not enforced [ Engalla v. Permanente Med. Group, Inc. (1997) 15 C4th 951, 974, 64 CR2d 843, 938 P2d 903 ].

6.25[3][b] Reliance May Be Inferred When Misrepresentation Is Material. Actual reliance occurs when a misrepresentation is an immediate cause of a party's conduct, which alters his or her legal relations if, absent the representation, the party, in all reasonable probability, would not have entered into the contract or other transaction. Reliance may be inferred from a showing that the misrepresentation was material, that is, that a reasonable person would attach importance to its existence or nonexistence in determining his or her choice of action in the transaction in question [ Engalla v. Permanente Med. Group, Inc. (1997) 15 C4th 951, 977, 64 CR2d 843, 938 P2d 903 ].

6.25[3][c] Pecuniary Damage Need Not Be Shown. A defrauded party need not show pecuniary damage to defeat a petition to compel arbitration. It is not, however, adequate merely to show that the other party has engaged generally in fraudulent misrepresentation. The defrauded party must show that in their particular case, some aspect of arbitration was contrary to their reasonable, fraudulently induced, contractual expectations [ Engalla v. Permanente Med. Group, Inc. (1997) 15 C4th 951, 979, 64 CR2d 843, 938 P2d 903 ].

6.25[3][d] Court Determines Issue of Fraud. Claims that a party has employed fraud in inducing consent specifically to an agreement to arbitrate--for example, by actively concealing the agreement's existence or misrepresenting its meaning or value--are to be decided by a court because they go to the validity of the making of the arbitration agreement itself [ Rosenthal v. Great W. Fin. Sec. Corp. (1996) 14 C4th 394, 419, 58 CR2d 875, 926 P2d 1061 ].

6.25[4] Fraud in Inception or Execution of Contract Also May Be Ground for Avoiding Arbitration. Fraud in the inception or execution of a contract occurs when the promisor is deceived as to the nature of his or her act, and actually does not know what he or she is signing, or does not intend to enter into a contract at all. In such a situation, mutual assent is lacking, and the contract is void [ Rosenthal v. Great W. Fin. Sec. Corp. (1996) 14 C4th 394, 415, 58 CR2d 875, 926 P2d 1061 ; Jones v. Adams Fin. Servs. (1999) 71 CA4th 831, 835, 84 CR2d 151 ]. If the entire contract is void from its inception because of fraud, the parties have not agreed to arbitrate any controversy, and arbitration will not be compelled [ Rosenthal v. Great W. Fin. Sec. Corp. (1996) 14 C4th 394, 415-416, 58 CR2d 875, 926 P2d 1061 ].

Warning:

To the extent that cases issue analyzing this issue in terms of fraud "permeating" the contract have used that terminology as another name for fraud in the inception or execution of the contract, those cases may illustrate situations in which the arbitration agreement was void and unenforceable. However, to the extent that they fail to recognize that the arbitration clause is severable from the rest of the contract when the issue is fraud in the inducement, cases dealing with the "permeation doctrine" should not be relied on [see Rosenthal v. Great W. Fin. Sec. Corp. (1996) 14 C4th 394, 418, 58 CR2d 875, 926 P2d 1061 (criticizing Ford v. Shearson Lehman Am. Express, Inc. (1986) 180 CA3d 1011, 225 CR 895 )].

6.25[5] Allegation That Fraud Induced Agreement to the Contract As a Whole Is Subject to Arbitration.

Absent an indication of contrary intent by the parties, claims of fraud in the inducement of a contract (as distinguished from claims of fraud directed to the arbitration clause itself) are deemed subject to arbitration [ Ericksen, Arbuthnot, McCarthy, Kearney & Walsh, Inc. v. 100 Oak St. (1983) 35 C3d 312, 323, 197 CR 581, 673 P2d 251 (noting that the fraud did not permeate the entire contract, including the arbitration clause, because the plaintiff did not deny ever agreeing to anything and was concededly aware of the arbitration clause); King v. Prudential-Bache Sec., Inc. (1990) 226 CA3d 749, 753, 277 CR 214 ].

This follows the federal rule that, under a broadly-worded arbitration provision, fraud in the making or performance of the principal contract is to be decided by the arbitrator, and the issue of fraud is to be decided by the court only when it is alleged that the arbitration provision itself was obtained by fraud or as part of a fraudulent scheme [ Prima Paint Corp. v. Flood & Conklin (1967) 388 US 395, 403-404, 87 S Ct 1801, 18 L Ed2d 1270 ]. Thus, to state a claim for judicial relief rather than arbitration, plaintiff must not attack the entire contract, but the arbitration agreement only [ Mago v. Shearson Lehman Hutton, Inc. (9th Cir 1992) 956 F2d 932, 934 ].

6.25A Arbitration Agreements May Be Unenforceable Due to Illegality.

Arbitration agreements contrary to express statutes or to the policy of express statutes are illegal; and such illegality voids the entire agreement, including the arbitration clause, if the taint of illegality cannot be removed from the agreement by severing or restricting the objectionable terms [ Duffens v. Valenti (2008) 161 CA4th 434, 455, 74 CR3d 311 ]. Illegality of the entire agreement may be raised either before or after arbitration has taken place [ Duffens v. Valenti (2008) 161 CA4th 434, 443, 74 CR3d 311 ].

If the central purpose of the contract is tainted with illegality, then the contract as a whole cannot be enforced [see Franco v. Athens Disposal Co., Inc. (2009) 171 CA4th 1277, 1299, 90 CR3d 539 ; Sanchez v. Western Pizza Enterprises, Inc. (2009) 172 CA4th 154, 181, 90 CR3d 818 ] .

IV. OPPOSING ARBITRATION

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 6.26

6.26 Arbitrator Does Not Have Jurisdiction to Determine Enforceability by or Against Third Parties.

6.26[1] Court Must Decide Third Party's Status. An arbitrator generally does not have jurisdiction to determine any question regarding a third party's status, such as whether a third party can enforce an arbitration agreement, either for its own benefit or "on behalf" of a party to the arbitration agreement, and cannot order joinder of a third party of undetermined status [ American Builder's Ass'n v. Au-Yang (1990) 226 CA3d 170, 177-180, 276 CR 262 ]. This precludes an arbitrator from determining whether a third party is an undisclosed principal of a signatory to the arbitration agreement [ Valley Casework, Inc. v. Comfort Constr., Inc. (1999) 76 CA4th 1013, 1024, 90 CR2d 779 ].

Exception:

When an arbitration agreement provides for any third party who is not a party to the agreement but is necessary for complete resolution of any matter required to be arbitrated under the agreement to be joined in the arbitration, and also provides, or incorporates arbitration rules or procedures providing, that the arbitrator determine whether anyone must be joined in the arbitration to provide a complete resolution [see, e.g., Zakarian v. Bekov (2002) 98 CA4th 316, 325-327, 119 CR2d 623 ].

Example:

The California Hospital Association-California Medical Association Rules for the Arbitration of Hospital and Medical Fee Disputes (CHA-CMA Rules) contain such a provision. Thus, an agreement to be arbitrated under those or similar rules will be enforced to refer the issue of the third party's joinder to the arbitrator [ Zakarian v. Bekov (2002) 98 CA4th 316, 325-327, 119 CR2d 623 (third party wanted to be joined in arbitration)]. A well-drafted arbitration provision of this nature will include the signatories' consent to joinder of any person necessary to full resolution of an arbitrable dispute.

6.26[2] Standing to Arbitrate Is Question of Law. The determination of standing to arbitrate as a party to the contractual arbitration agreement is a question of law for the trial court in the first instance [ City of Hope v. Bryan Cave, L.L.P. (2002), 102 CA4th 1356, 1369, 126 CR2d 283 ; accord, Three Valleys Mun. Water Dist. v. E.F. Hutton & Co., Inc. (9th Cir 1991) 925 F2d 1136, 1140-1142, 1144 (under federal rule and FAA)].

6.26[3] Arbitration Should Be Stayed Until Status of Indispensable Party to Arbitration Determined by Court. If arbitration has already commenced between the signatories, and a nonparty of undetermined status appears to be an indispensable party to the arbitration, the arbitration proceeding should be stayed until the nonsignatory's status is determined in a declaratory relief action [see American Builder's Ass'n v. Au-Yang (1990) 226 CA3d 170, 179-180, 276 CR 262 ].

6.27 Unilaterally Added Arbitration Provisions May Not Be Enforceable.

General contract principles will determine whether an arbitration provision added unilaterally, after the primary contract is made, is enforceable as part of the primary contract. A threshold requirement for enforcement of the arbitration provision is that there must be a clause in the primary contract that allows one party unilaterally to change the terms of the agreement. That clause will be examined to determine whether addition of an arbitration provision is within the scope of the terms a party was allowed to change unilaterally [ Badie v. Bank of Am. (1998) 67 CA4th 779, 790, 791, 796-807, 79 CR2d 273 ].

Example:

An arbitration requirement added in a "bill stuffer" was not binding on credit cardholders because it was beyond the scope of what customers would reasonably believe the bank intended by reserving to itself the power to change terms. The bank's power was reasonably interpreted to reserve to the bank the power to change financial terms, such as interest rate and service charges, but not to deprive cardholders of the right to a jury trial to resolve disputes with the bank [see Badie v. Bank of Am. (1998) 67 CA4th 779, 802-803, 79 CR2d 273 ].

6.28 Statutory Claim May Not Be Subject to Arbitration.

6.28[1] Arbitration Agreements Affecting Statutory Rights Are Enforced Unless Legislative Intent Indicates Otherwise. Parties may agree to arbitrate rights conferred by statute, and their agreements will be enforceable under the FAA. Although all statutory claims may not be appropriate for arbitration, a party will be held to a contractual arbitration clause unless Congress or the legislature indicated that judicial remedies for the statutory rights at issue could not be waived [ Gilmer v. Interstate/Johnson Lane Corp. (1991) 500 US 20, 26, 111 S Ct 1647, 114 L Ed2d 26, 37 ; Gentry v. Superior Court (2007) 42 C4th 443, 456-457, 463, 64 CR3d 773, 165 P3d 556 ].

Strategic Point:

In order for statutory claims, i.e., violation of statutory rights, to be subject to arbitration, the agreement must state that violations of statutory rights are arbitrable. Merely restating the right in the text of the agreement does not itself make violations of it arbitrable [ Zavala v. Scott Brothers Dairy, Inc. (2006) 143 CA4th 585, 594-595, 49 CR3d 503 ].

Example:

Prelitigation class arbitration waiver that attempts to waive specified nonwaivable statutory rights to overtime pay under Lab Code § 1194 may be voided if the trial court considers and concludes both that [ Gentry v. Superior Court (2007) 42 C4th 443, 456-457, 463, 64 CR3d 773, 165 P3d 556 ]:

- A class arbitration is likely to be a significantly more effective practical means of vindicating the rights of the affected employees than individual litigation or arbitration, and
- The disallowance of the class action will likely lead to a less comprehensive enforcement of overtime laws for the employees alleged to be affected by the employer's violations.

In determining its conclusions on these two points, the court is to consider the following factors [ Gentry v. Superior Court (2007) 42 C4th 443, 463, 64 CR3d 773, 165 P3d 556 ; Sanchez v. Western Pizza Enterprises, Inc. (2009) 172

CA4th 154, 168, 90 CR3d 818] :

- The modest size of the potential individual recovery.
- The potential for retaliation against members of the class.
- The fact that absent members of the class may be ill informed about their rights.
- Other real world obstacles to the vindication of class members' right to overtime pay through individual arbitration.

Statutory claims that may be subject to arbitration include claims under the following laws:

- Age Discrimination in Employment Act (29 USC § 621 et seq.) [ Gilmer v. Interstate/Johnson Lane Corp. (1991) 500 US 20, 26, 111 S Ct 1647, 114 L Ed2d 26 ].
- California Franchise Investment Law (Corp Code § 31000 et seq.) [ Southland Corp. v. Keating (1984) 465 US 1, 10-16, 104 S Ct 852, 79 L Ed2d 1 (preempting Corp Code § 31512)].
- Cartwright Act (B&P Code § 16700 et seq.) [ Wolitarsky v. Blue Cross of Cal. (1997) 53 CA4th 338, 345, 61 CR2d 629 ; Crown Homes, Inc. v. Landes (1994) 22 CA4th 1273, 1276, 27 CR2d 827 ].
- Consumer Legal Remedies Act (CC § 1750 et seq.) claims for damages, at least to the extent those claims are governed by the Federal Arbitration Act, but not claims for injunctive relief in which the plaintiff is acting as private attorney general, for example, a claim seeking to enjoin deceptive business practices [ Cruz v. PacifiCare Health Systems, Inc. (2004) 30 C4th 303, 307, 133 CR2d 58, 66 P3d 1157 (affirming Broughton in light of recent federal rulings)]. Broughton v. Cigna Healthplans of Cal. (1999) 21 C4th 1066, 1072, 1079-1080, 1088, 90 CR2d 334, 988 P2d 67 (remanding for determination regarding existence of arbitration agreement and applicability of FAA)].
- Fair Employment and Housing Act (Gov Code § 12900 et seq.), as long as the arbitration procedures allow the plaintiff to vindicate his or her statutory rights [ Armendariz v. Found. Health Psychcare Servs., Inc. (2000) 24 C4th 83, 93-96, 102-113, 99 CR2d 745, 6 P3d 669 (finding as unpersuasive and refusing to follow Duffield v. Robertson Stephens & Co. (9th Cir 1998) 144 F3d 1182 ); Blake v. Ecker (2001) 93 CA4th 728, 733, 741, 113 CR2d 422 (holding Armendariz must be applied retroactively); but see Circuit City Stores, Inc. v. Najd (9th Cir 2002) 294 F3d 1104, 1108 ; Circuit City Stores, Inc. v. Ahmed (9th Cir 2002) 283 F3d 1198, 1200 (ordering arbitration of FEHA claims)].
- False advertising claims in a private attorney general action for public injunctive relief under B&P Code § 17535 are not arbitrable [ Cruz v. PacifiCare Health Systems, Inc. (2004) 30 C4th 303, 316, 133 CR2d 58, 66 P3d 1157 ].
- Federal Labor Standards Act (29 USC § 201 et seq.) [ Kuehner v. Dickinson & Co. (9th Cir 1996) 84 F3d 316, 319-320 ].
- Wage disputes under contracts involving interstate commerce [ Perry v. Thomas (1987) 482 US 483, 491-492, 107 S Ct 2520, 96 L Ed2d 426 (preempting Lab Code § 229); Giuliano v. Inland Empire Personnel, Inc. (2007) 149 CA4th 1276, 1287 ].
- Securities Act of 1933 (15 USC § 77a et seq.) and Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 USC § 78a et seq.) [ Elliot v. Albright (1989) 209 CA3d 1028, 1036-1037 ].

- Sherman Act (15 USC § 1 et seq.) [ Mitsubishi Motors v. Soler Chrysler-Plymouth, Inc. (1985) 473 US 614, 624-626, 105 S Ct 3346, 87 L Ed2d 444 ].

- Unfair Trade Practices Act (B&P Code § 17000 et seq.) and Unfair Competition Law (B&P Code §§ 17200, 17203) damage claims are arbitrable, but related remedy of injunction, sought by plaintiff acting as private attorney general, is not arbitrable; and action, including related discovery, on injunction must be stayed until resolution of arbitration on damages claims [ Cruz v. PacifiCare Health Systems, Inc. (2004) 30 C4th 303, 316, 133 CR2d 58, 66 P3d 1157 (claims for public injunctive relief under UCL); Coast Plaza Doctors' Hosp. v. Blue Cross of Cal. (2000) 83 CA4th 677, 691-693, 99 CR2d 809 ].

► Cross Reference:

Limitation of ability to compel arbitration in unfair competition action, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Unfair Competition and Business Torts, 2.46.

- Unruh Civil Rights Act (CC § 51 et seq.) [ Wolitorsky v. Blue Cross of Cal. (1997) 53 CA4th 338, 345-348, 61 CR2d 629 ].

► Cross Reference:

List of statutes governing specific types of controversies in California, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, § 32.10 (Matthew Bender).

6.28[2] Minimum Requirements Must Be Met for Fair Employment and Housing Act Claims. In the context of statutory claims under the Fair Employment and Housing Act (Gov Code § 12900 et seq.), the minimum requirements of an arbitration procedure necessary for the plaintiff to vindicate his or her statutory rights are the following: neutrality of the arbitrator; adequate discovery; arbitrator authority to award all types of relief authorized by the statute--injunctive relief, punitive damages, attorney's fees; a written decision to permit a limited form of judicial review; and limitations on the costs of arbitration [ Armendariz v. Found. Health Psychcare Servs., Inc. (2000) 24 C4th 83, 103-113, 99 CR2d 745, 6 P3d 669 ].

Under the FAA, the fact that an agreement is silent as to who bears the costs of arbitration is not in itself enough to establish that the party seeking to invalidate the arbitration agreement will be burdened with prohibitive costs that prevent him or her from vindicating his or her statutory rights. The party resisting arbitration has the burden of showing the likelihood of incurring prohibitive costs [see Green Tree Fin. Corp. v. Randolph (2000) 531 US 79, 89-92, 121 S Ct 513, 148 L Ed2d 373 ].

Distinguish:

An arbitration agreement explicitly eliminating an administrative proceeding or a lawsuit as a dispute resolution vehicle and setting a reasonable period in which to seek arbitration does not unreasonably burden plaintiff's ability to vindicate his or her statutory rights under the Fair Employment and Housing Act [ Pearson Dental Supplies, Inc. v. Superior Court (2008) 166 CA4th 71, 85, 82 CR3d 154 (not citable--superseded by grant of review 2008 Cal. LEXIS 13526 )].

6.28[3] Disputes Over Damages Involving Uninsured Motorists Must Be Resolved by Arbitration.

Automobile insurance policies containing uninsured motorist coverage must provide that the determination of whether the insured is legally entitled to recover damages, and if so, the amount of the damages, is to be made by agreement between the insured and the insurer, or, in the event of disagreement, by arbitration conducted by a single neutral arbitrator [Ins Code § 11580.2(a), (f); Bouton v. USAA Cas. Ins. Co. (2008) 43 C4th 1190 1201, 78 CR3d 519, 186

P3d 1 (Ins Code § 11580.2(f) requires arbitration of only: (1) whether the insured is entitled to recover against the uninsured motorist and (2) if so, the amount of the damages); see also Bouton v. USAA Cas. Ins. Co. (2008) 167 CA4th 412, 427-429, 84 CR3d 152 (ordering trial court to decide whether plaintiff is an "insured" after discovery and summary proceeding)].

The power of the court to order joinder of an arbitration proceeding and a civil action to avoid inconsistent rulings extends to cases involving uninsured motorist arbitration [CCP § 1281.2(c); Mercury Ins. Group v. Superior Court (1998) 19 C4th 332, 345, 79 CR2d 308, 965 P2d 1178; Prudential Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1995) 36 CA4th 275, 278-279, 42 CR2d 227; see Ins Code § 11580.2].

Exception:

Uninsured motorist coverage does not apply in any instance in which it would inure directly or indirectly to the benefit of any workers' compensation carrier or to any person qualified as a self-insurer under any workers' compensation law, or directly to the benefit of the United States, or any state or any political subdivision of the United States [Ins Code § 11580.2(c)(4)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of uninsured motorist arbitration, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 32.92[3][e] (Matthew Bender).

6.28[4] Party With Dominant Economic Power Cannot Force Waiver of Statutory Rights in Arbitration

Clause. An arbitration clause may not be used by a party with dominant economic power to force another party to surrender rights and benefits conferred by statute [ Graham Oil v. Arco Prods. Co. (9th Cir 1994) 43 F3d 1244, 1247 ]. If the arbitration procedure set out in an arbitration agreement does not allow the plaintiff to pursue his or her statutory rights, the arbitration clause cannot be enforced [ Armendariz v. Found. Health Psychcare Servs., Inc. (2000) 24 C4th 83, 101, 99 CR2d 745, 6 P3d 669 ].

Example:

An arbitration clause under which a franchisee waived its rights to exemplary damages, recovery of attorney's fees, and a one-year statute of limitations under the Petroleum Marketing Practices Act (PMPA), was held to contravene that Act and was severed from the contract [ Graham Oil v. Arco Prods. Co. (9th Cir 1994) 43 F3d 1244, 1247-1248 ].

If an arbitration clause contains invalid provisions of this nature, the court must determine whether the clause is severable from the contract and, applying the same principles, whether the invalid parts of the clause are severable from the remainder of the arbitration clause [see Graham Oil v. Arco Prods. Co. (9th Cir 1994) 43 F3d 1244, 1248-1249 (striking entire arbitration clause)].

6.28[5] Arbitration of Some Statutory Claims Requires Knowing Waiver of Right to Jury Trial. Some statutes demonstrate a Congressional or legislative intent to require a knowing jury trial waiver in favor of arbitration. Two such statutes are:

- Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (42 USC § 2000e et seq.) [ Renteria v. Prudential Ins. Co. of Am. (9th Cir 1997) 113 F3d 1104, 1108; Prudential Ins. Co. of Am. v. Lai (9th Cir 1994) 42 F3d 1299, 1304-1305, cert. denied, 516 US 812 (1995) (sexual harassment and sexual discrimination claims); but see Armendariz v. Found. Health Psychcare Servs., Inc. (2000) 24 C4th 83, 99 n7, 99 CR2d 745, 6 P3d 669 (establishing minimum procedural safeguards for arbitration of claims under California's Fair Employment and Housing Act (Gov Code § 12900 et seq.) and possibly declining to follow Prudential Ins. Co. of Am. v. Lai (9th Cir 1994) 42 F3d 1299 )].

● The Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (ADA) (42 USC §§ 12101-12213) [ Kummetz v. Tech Mold, Inc. (9th Cir 1998) 152 F3d 1153, 1155-1156 ; Nelson v. Cyprus Bagdad Copper Corp. (9th Cir 1997) 119 F3d 756, 761, 763 ].

Where a governing statute requires a knowing jury trial waiver, the arbitration agreement at issue must specifically refer to the type of statutory claim to be arbitrated, in clear and unmistakable language [ Kummetz v. Tech Mold, Inc. (9th Cir 1998) 152 F3d 1153, 1155-1156 ; Nelson v. Cyprus Bagdad Copper Corp. (9th Cir 1997) 119 F3d 756, 762 ; Prudential Ins. Co. of Am. v. Lai (9th Cir 1994) 42 F3d 1299, 1304-1305 ; see Vasquez v. Superior Court (2000) 80 CA4th 430, 435-436, 95 CR2d 294 (waiver not established where agreement did not specifically refer to anti-discrimination statutes under which plaintiff was suing)].

Example:

In interpreting an arbitration provision in a collective bargaining agreement, the Supreme Court found the language not "clear and unmistakable" enough to waive an employee's right to a judicial forum for determination of an ADA claim [ Wright v. Univ. Maritime Serv. Corp. (1998) 525 US 70, 82, 119 S Ct 391, 142 L Ed2d 361 ].

Warning:

The issue of whether predispute jury waivers in civil cases is enforceable in California is currently before the state Supreme Court. The court has taken review of Grafton Partners v. Superior Court (2004) 115 CA4th 700 (superseded by grant of review, 12 CR3d 287 (2004)) where the appellate court reasoned that the California Constitution allowed a jury trial waiver only if specifically authorized by the Legislature and that CCP § 631 allows a jury trial waiver only during the course of litigation.

Similarly, California courts of appeal have held that a union may not prospectively waive an employee's right to a judicial forum for his or her statutory discrimination or state claims by agreeing to arbitration in a collective bargaining agreement [ Deschene v. Pinole Point Steel Co. (1999) 76 CA4th 33, 48-49, 90 CR2d 15 ; Torrez v. Consol. Freightways Corp. (1997) 58 CA4th 1247, 1259, 68 CR2d 792 (FEHA case)].

Distinguish--EEOC Not Bound By Agreement:

The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission is not bound by an arbitration agreement entered into by an employee when enforcing the ADA provisions on discrimination, which adopt the discrimination provisions of Title VII [ EEOC v. Waffle House, Inc. (2002) 534 US 279, 291-292, 306, 122 S Ct 754, 151 L Ed2d 755 ]. If the employee files a complaint with the EEOC, rather than pursuing arbitration, and the EEOC brings an enforcement action, arbitration cannot be compelled against the EEOC, because it was not a party to the agreement. The Federal Arbitration Act does not prohibit the EEOC from recovering victim-specific relief such as back pay, reinstatement, compensatory damages, and punitive damages in that action [ EEOC v. Waffle House, Inc. (2002) 534 US 279, 306, 122 S Ct 754, 151 L Ed2d 755 ].

6.29 Right to Compel Arbitration May Be Waived.

6.29[1] Waiver Can Be Intentional or Based on Failure to Act. The term "waiver" generally means the voluntary relinquishment of a known right. However, it can also mean the loss of an opportunity or a right as a result of a party's failure to perform an act it is required to perform, regardless of the party's intent to abandon or relinquish the right [ Engalla v. Permanente Med. Group, Inc. (1997) 15 C4th 951, 982-983, 64 CR2d 843, 938 P2d 903 ; Platt Pac., Inc. v. Andelson (1993) 6 C4th 307, 315, 24 CR2d 597, 862 P2d 158 ]. It is also used as a shorthand statement for the conclusion that a contractual right to arbitration has been lost [ Platt Pac., Inc. v. Andelson (1993) 6 C4th 307, 315-316, 24 CR2d 597, 862 P2d 158 ].

Warning:

If an arbitration agreement calls for application of the Federal Arbitration Act, federal law concerning waiver of the right to arbitration preempts state law on the subject [ Aviation Data, Inc. v. American Express Travel Related Services Co., Inc. (2007) 152 CA4th 1522, 1535-1536, 62 CR3d 396 ].

Example:

When a contract provides that arbitration may be demanded within a stated time, failure to make a demand within that time constitutes a waiver of the right to arbitrate, in the sense of a forfeiture of a right resulting from the failure to perform a required act [ Platt Pac., Inc. v. Andelson (1993) 6 C4th 307, 315-316, 24 CR2d 597, 862 P2d 158 ].

Three separate issues that courts loosely refer to as "waiver" may be identified as follows:

- Waiver--an intentional relinquishment of a known right, demonstrated explicitly or implicitly.
- Estoppel--conduct by an insurer that reasonably causes an insured to rely to his or her detriment.
- Forfeiture--the assessment of a penalty against an insurer for either misconduct or failure to perform an obligation under a contract [ Chase v. Blue Cross of Cal. (1996) 42 CA4th 1142, 1149, 1151, 50 CR2d 178 ].

6.29[2] Issue of Waiver Is Preliminary Question for Court. Waiver of the right to compel arbitration is a preliminary question that the trial court must decide in considering the petition to compel arbitration [CCP § 1281.2(a); Boys Club of San Fernando Valley, Inc. v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1992) 6 CA4th 1266, 1274, 8 CR2d 587 ]. On appeal, the question is whether there is substantial evidence to support the trial court's finding of waiver [ Groom v. Health Net (2000) 82 CA4th 1189, 1198, 98 CR2d 836 ].

The court will closely scrutinize any claims of waiver and indulge every intendment to give effect to arbitration proceedings [ Christensen v. Dewor Devs. (1983) 33 C3d 778, 782, 191 CR 8, 661 P2d 1088 ; Chase v. Blue Cross of Cal. (1996) 42 CA4th 1142, 1151, 50 CR2d 178 ].

6.29[3] Burden of Proving Waiver Is on Party Resisting Arbitration. Whether there has been a waiver is ordinarily a question of fact [ Engalla v. Permanente Med. Group, Inc. (1997) 15 C4th 951, 983, 64 CR2d 843, 938 P2d 903 ; Guess?, Inc. v. Superior Court (2000) 79 CA4th 553, 557 ]. The burden of proving waiver is on the party resisting arbitration.

The defense of waiver, like any other defense in a civil case, must be proved by a preponderance of the evidence [ Engalla v. Permanente Med. Group, Inc. (1997) 15 C4th 951, 984, 64 CR2d 843, 938 P2d 903 ; Rosenthal v. Great W. Fin. Sec. Corp. (1996) 14 C4th 394, 413, 58 CR2d 875, 926 P2d 1061 ]. Similarly, if the issue is framed as forfeiture rather than waiver, the burden of proof is on the party asserting forfeiture and must be demonstrated by clear and convincing evidence [ Chase v. Blue Cross of Cal. (1996) 42 CA4th 1142, 1157, 50 CR2d 178 ].

Exception:

If the facts are undisputed and only one inference may reasonably be drawn, the issue is one of law [ Platt Pac., Inc. v. Andelson (1993) 6 C4th 307, 319, 24 CR2d 597, 862 P2d 158 ].

6.29[4] Express Waiver in Written Release Settling Arbitrable Dispute Is a Waiver. A valid release in settlement of an arbitrable claim constitutes a waiver of the right to compel arbitration [ Gustafson v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1973) 31 CA3d 361, 365, 107 CR 243 ].

IV. OPPOSING ARBITRATION

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 6.30

6.30 Right to Arbitrate May Be Impliedly Waived.

6.30[1] Implied Waiver May Be Shown by a Number of Factors. No single test delineates the nature of the conduct that will constitute waiver of arbitration [ Engalla v. Permanente Med. Group, Inc. (1997) 15 C4th 951, 983, 64 CR2d 843, 938 P2d 903 ; Sobremonte v. Superior Court (1998) 61 CA4th 980, 992, 72 CR2d 43 ].

However, factors that will be considered in determining whether there has been an implied waiver include whether the party seeking arbitration has done any of the following [ Engalla v. Permanente Med. Group, Inc. (1997) 15 C4th 951, 983, 64 CR2d 843, 938 P2d 903 ; Christensen v. Dewor Devs. (1983) 33 C3d 778, 782, 191 CR 8, 661 P2d 1088 ; Sobremonte v. Superior Court (1998) 61 CA4th 980, 992, 72 CR2d 43 ; see Berman v. Health Net (2000) 80 CA4th 1359, 1363, 96 CR2d 295 ; Davis v. Cont'l Airlines, Inc. (1997) 59 CA4th 205, 211-212, 69 CR2d 79 ]:

- Previously took steps inconsistent with an intent to invoke arbitration.
- Unreasonably delayed seeking arbitration.
- Acted in bad faith or with willful misconduct.
- Invoked the litigation machinery so substantially that the parties were well into preparation of a lawsuit before the party notified the opposing party of intent to arbitrate.
- Either requested arbitration enforcement close to the trial date or delayed for a long period before seeking a stay.
- Filed a counterclaim without asking for a stay of the proceedings.
- Took important intervening steps, such as one party's taking advantage of judicial discovery procedures not available in arbitration.
- Delayed the demand for arbitration in a way that affected, misled, or prejudiced the opposing party.

6.30[2] Prejudice and Knowledge Are Factors. The presence or absence of prejudice is also an important consideration in determining the issue of waiver, as is whether or not the party who brought the action was a party to the arbitration agreement, acting in knowing disregard of the arbitration agreement's provisions [ Christensen v. Dewor Devs. (1983) 33 C3d 778, 782-783, 191 CR 8, 661 P2d 1088 ; see Berman v. Health Net (2000) 80 CA4th 1359, 1363-1364, 96 CR2d 295 ; Boys Club of San Fernando Valley, Inc. v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1992) 6 CA4th 1266, 1275-1276, 8 CR2d 587 (unexcused delay of three years not waiver when no prejudice was caused to defendant by delay)].

6.30[3] Waiver by Acts Inconsistent With Agreement to Arbitrate.

6.30[3][a] Acting Inconsistent With Intention to Arbitrate May Imply Waiver. Waiver may be implied where a party acts inconsistent with the agreement to submit a dispute to arbitration [ Palm Springs Homes, Inc. v. W. Desert, Inc. (1963) 215 CA2d 270, 276-277, 30 CR 34 ].

Example:

One party to an arbitration agreement may, by delay tactics or express refusal to proceed with arbitration, place himself or herself in such a position that the other party may acquiesce in the implied abandonment of arbitration, and resort to court action [ Grunwald-Marx, Inc. v. Los Angeles Joint Bd., Amalgamated Clothing Workers (1961) 192 CA2d 268, 277, 280, 13 CR 446 ].

A party who moves to stay an action while arbitration involving a party to the action is pending, while contending in the motion that he or she is not a party to the arbitration agreement, will likely be deemed to have acted wholly inconsistent with a desire to arbitrate [ Guess?, Inc. v. Superior Court (2000) 79 CA4th 553, 558 ].

6.30[3][b] Failure to Plead Arbitration As Affirmative Defense. At a minimum, the failure to plead the arbitration requirement as an affirmative defense is an act inconsistent with a later assertion of the right to arbitrate [ Guess?, Inc. v. Superior Court (2000) 79 CA4th 553, 558 ].

6.30[3][c] Ignoring Demands for Arbitration May Result in Waiver. An arbitration clause may not be used to support an objection to a party's right to sue on an arbitrable dispute when the defendant ignored the party's prior demands for arbitration [ Grunwald-Marx, Inc. v. Los Angeles Joint Bd., Amalgamated Clothing Workers (1961) 192 CA2d 268, 280, 13 CR 446 ].

6.30[3][d] Waiver by Conducting Discovery. Prejudice can result from the disclosure of defenses and strategies during discovery. If one party uses the discovery process to obtain information about the other party's case that could not be obtained in arbitration, and then, having gained that information, seeks to compel arbitration, the court may reasonably find that the party who conducted discovery has waived its right to compel arbitration. This is especially true if the party resisting arbitration will not have equivalent discovery rights [ Sobremonte v. Superior Court (1998) 61 CA4th 980, 996-997, 72 CR2d 43 ; Guess?, Inc. v. Superior Court (2000) 79 CA4th 553, 558, 94 CR2d 201 ; Davis v. Cont'l Airlines, Inc. (1997) 59 CA4th 205, 215, 69 CR2d 79 ; see also Berman v. Health Net (2000) 80 CA4th 1359, 1370-1371, 96 CR2d 295 (prejudice can be found when both parties engaged in discovery)].

Example:

In an action for sexual harassment in employment, defendant employer claimed the dispute had to be resolved by arbitration as specified in the employee handbook. Seven months after filing an answer in which the right to arbitrate was raised as an affirmative defense, defendants moved to compel arbitration. During those seven months, defendant obtained 1,600 pages of documents from plaintiff in 86 categories and took plaintiff's two-day, 410-page videotaped deposition. Although defendant claimed much of the discovery was designed to prove the agreement to arbitrate, the deposition covered typical broad-ranging issues, such as plaintiff's attitude towards vulgar remarks and how she handled them. The trial court denied the motion to compel arbitration. The record amply supported the inference that defendant unreasonably delayed the motion to compel arbitration to use discovery to learn plaintiff's strategies, evidence, and witnesses and to pin plaintiff down to a particular version of the facts. Plaintiff was prejudiced by incurring court costs and legal expenses and by disclosure of defenses and strategies [ Davis v. Cont'l Airlines, Inc. (1997) 59 CA4th 205, 213-217, 69 CR2d 79 ].

6.30[4] Unreasonable Delay in Seeking Arbitration May Result in Waiver. For delay in seeking arbitration to constitute waiver, the delay must be substantial, unreasonable, and in spite of the reasonable diligence of the party claiming waiver [ Engalla v. Permanente Med. Group, Inc. (1997) 15 C4th 951, 984, 64 CR2d 843, 938 P2d 903 ]. The party asserting the defense of waiver must show delay amounting to laches, which requires a showing of prejudice, namely, that he or she did or omitted to do something that impaired his or her ability to participate in the arbitration in a meaningful way [ Engalla v. Permanente Med. Group, Inc. (1997) 15 C4th 951, 983-984, 64 CR2d 843, 938 P2d 903 ; Boys Club of San Fernando Valley, Inc. v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1992) 6 CA4th 1266, 1275, 8 CR2d 587 ; see Sawday v. Vista Irrigation Dist. (1966) 64 C2d 833, 836-837, 52 CR 1, 415 P2d 816 ].

Distinguish:

When the delay is in the selection of an arbitrator, and is the result of reasonable and good faith disagreements between the parties, the remedy for the delay is to petition the court to choose an arbitrator under CCP § 1281.6, rather than evasion of the agreement to arbitrate. To avoid arbitration entirely, the burden would be on the party opposing arbitration to prove that the other party's dilatory conduct rises to such a level of misfeasance as to constitute waiver of the right to arbitrate [ Engalla v. Permanente Med. Group, Inc. (1997) 15 C4th 951, 984, 64 CR2d 843, 938 P2d 903 ].

6.30[5] Litigation on the Merits or That Prejudices a Party May Waive Arbitration. Arbitration may be waived by litigating an arbitrable dispute without seeking arbitration [ Case v. Kadota Fig Ass'n of Producers (1950) 35 C2d 596, 604-605, 606, 220 P2d 912 ; Martinez v. Scott Specialty Gases, Inc. (2000) 83 CA4th 1236, 1250, 100 CR2d 403 ]. For an arbitration waiver to be found, however, the action ordinarily must be litigated on the merits or result in prejudice to the other party [see Doers v. Golden Gate Bridge, Highway and Transp. Dist. (1979) 23 C3d 180, 188, 151 CR 837, 588 P2d 1261 ; McMillin Dev., Inc. v. Home Buyers Warranty (1998) 68 CA4th 896, 909, 80 CR2d 611 ]. Thus, a dismissal that is not based on the merits of the action, such as a dismissal due to lack of subject-matter jurisdiction, does not constitute a waiver of the right to arbitration, absent prejudice to the other party [ Doers v. Golden Gate Bridge, Highway and Transp. Dist. (1979) 23 C3d 180, 188, 151 CR 837, 588 P2d 1261 ].

Conversely, if prejudice is established, waiver may be found even though the case was not litigated on the merits. It is sufficient that the litigation was undertaken in bad faith, for example, for the purpose of determining the other party's defenses in the arbitration proceeding [ Christensen v. Dewor Devs. (1983) 33 C3d 778, 783-784, 191 CR 8, 661 P2d 1088 ].

Examples:

Prejudice may consist of attorney's fees incurred and delays causing lost records and faded memories [ Christensen v. Dewor Devs. (1983) 33 C3d 778, 783-784, 191 CR 8, 661 P2d 1088 ]. However, time and expense alone do not constitute the prejudice that bars a related petition to compel arbitration [ Groom v. Health Net (2000) 82 CA4th 1189, 1197, 98 CR2d 836 ]. Prejudice can be established when discovery and motions have given the party seeking to arbitrate an opportunity to test both the legal validity and the factual persuasiveness of its opponent's position, usually at considerable expense to that opponent and while depriving that opponent of the efficiencies that would have been available to it by way of arbitration [ McMillin Dev., Inc. v. Home Buyers Warranty (1998) 68 CA4th 896, 910, 80 CR2d 611 ]. However, being forced to articulate a legal theory clear enough to withstand a demurrer is not prejudice [ Groom v. Health Net (2000) 82 CA4th 1189, 1195, 98 CR2d 836 ].

Distinguish:

If the litigation seeks relief that is not inconsistent with, or available in, arbitration proceedings, the right to arbitrate will not be deemed waived [ Schwartz v. Leibel (1967) 249 CA2d 761, 763-764, 57 CR 831 (arbitration not waived by suit for injunction to restrain breach of agreement containing arbitration clause), disapproved on other grounds in Doers v. Golden Gate Bridge, Highway and Transp. Dist. (1979) 23 C3d 180, 188, 151 CR 837, 588 P2d 1261 ].

6.30[6] American Arbitration Association Non-Waiver Rule Must Comport With Caselaw. Rule 26(a) of the American Arbitration Association's Home Warranty Arbitration Rules states that no judicial proceeding by a party relating to the subject matter of the arbitration shall be deemed a waiver of the party's right to arbitrate. It has been held, however, that the AAA cannot by rule deprive courts of their power over parties who have appeared before for them, especially in light of CCP § 1281.2(a), which gives the court the power to deny arbitration if a party has waived its right to arbitration [ McMillin Dev., Inc. v. Home Buyers Warranty (1998) 68 CA4th 896, 909, 80 CR2d 611 ]. Thus, the AAA rule has been interpreted to mean that arbitration will not be waived by mere participation in litigation, and that substantial prejudice to a party or litigation on the merits must be established to result in waiver [ McMillin Dev., Inc. v. Home Buyers Warranty (1998) 68 CA4th 896, 909, 80 CR2d 611 ].

6.30[7] Failure to Make Timely Demand for Arbitration May Constitute Waiver. When the parties have agreed that a demand for arbitration must be made within a certain time, that demand is a condition precedent that must be performed before the contractual duty to submit the dispute to arbitration arises. A party's failure to make a timely demand constitutes a waiver of the right to arbitrate in the sense of a loss of a right based on a failure to perform an obligation. It is not relevant that the party did not intend to waive the right to arbitrate the dispute [ Platt Pac., Inc. v. Andelson (1993) 6 C4th 307, 313-314, 24 CR2d 597, 862 P2d 158 ].

Exception:

Commencing a civil action tolls any time limitations in arbitration agreement requiring commencing party to demand or initiate arbitration within a specified period of time [CCP § 1281.12; see 6.11[2][a]].

When the arbitration agreement does not specify a time within which arbitration must be demanded, an unreasonable delay in demanding arbitration may constitute a waiver of the right to arbitrate [ Spear v. California State Automobile Ass'n (1992) 2 C4th 1035, 1043, 9 CR2d 381, 831 P2d 821 ; Sawday v. Vista Irrigation Dist. (1966) 64 C2d 833, 836-837, 52 CR 1, 415 P2d 816 ; see also CC § 1657].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff in Medical Malpractice Case:

In a medical malpractice case, a plaintiff may wish to include a notice to arbitrate in the Notice of Intent to Commence Action that is required by CCP § 364. If the recipient ignores the Notice of Intent and does not promptly seek arbitration, inclusion of the arbitration notice could strengthen an argument by the plaintiff that the healthcare provider has waived arbitration by failing to demand it in a timely fashion.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of timely demand for arbitration, see 6.11[1].

6.30[8] Insurer That Misleads Insured May Forfeit Right to Arbitration. Waiver, or more properly, forfeiture, of the right to invoke arbitration may be based on an insurer's failure to inform an insured about an arbitration provision and conduct designed to mislead the policyholder. The court's focus for a determination of bad faith will be on the insurer's subjective intent, under the totality of the circumstances [ Chase v. Blue Cross of Cal. (1996) 42 CA4th 1142, 1148, 50 CR2d 178 ; see Davis v. Blue Cross of N. Cal. (1979) 25 C3d 418, 158 CR 828, 600 P2d 1060 ; see also Sarchett v. Blue Shield of Cal. (1987) 43 C3d 1, 233 CR 76, 729 P2d 267 (mere failure to inform adequately was not enough to find that the insurer has relinquished its right to arbitration)].

Distinguish:

The intent to mislead required for a forfeiture of arbitration distinguishes the situation from one where estoppel would apply. An insurer may be estopped from compelling arbitration even if it did not intend to mislead the insured, as long as the insured reasonably relied to its detriment on the insurer's actions. Forfeiture is satisfied whether or not the insured is, in fact, misled. Thus, even if the insured is aware of the arbitration right, bad faith tactics designed to mislead the insured merit the sanction of forfeiture. [ Chase v. Blue Cross of Cal. (1996) 42 CA4th 1142, 1157, 50 CR2d 178 ].

The principle that an insurer forfeits the right to arbitrate if the covenant of good faith and fair dealing is breached is an application of general contract principles, and therefore is not preempted by the Federal Arbitration Act (9 USC § 1) [ Chase v. Blue Cross of Cal. (1996) 42 CA4th 1142, 1158-1160, 50 CR2d 178 ].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of federal preemption, see 6.13.

6.30[9] In Suit to Enforce Mechanics' Lien, Right to Arbitrate Is Not Waived If Stay Requested Within 30 Days. A person who begins an action to enforce a mechanics' lien under CC § 3082 et seq. does not necessarily waive his or her right to arbitrate under a written agreement if, in beginning the action, the plaintiff does either of the following [CCP § 1281.5(a)]:

- Includes an allegation in the complaint that the claimant does not intend to waive any right of arbitration, and intends to move the court, within 30 days after service of the summons and complaint, for an order to stay further proceedings in the action; or
- At the same time the complaint is filed the claimant files an application that the action be stayed pending the arbitration of any issue, question, or dispute that is claimed arbitrable under the agreement and that is relevant to the action.

Warning--Plaintiff:

The plaintiff must file and serve a notice of motion and motion under CCP § 1281.4 to stay the action pending arbitration within 30 days after service of summons and complaint or the plaintiff will waive the right to compel arbitration [CCP § 1281.5(b); compare Sobremonte v. Superior Court (1998) 61 CA4th 980, 992, 72 CR2d 43 (waiver of right to arbitrate ordinarily occurs only when parties' actions are inconsistent with arbitration)].

Distinguish:

Filing the application to stay the action will prevent a finding of waiver that is based only on the filing of the complaint to enforce a mechanics' lien, but waiver may still be found based on other factors [ Kaneko Ford Design v. Citipark, Inc. (1988) 202 CA3d 1220, 1227, 249 CR 544 ].

Warning--Defendant:

The failure of a defendant to file a petition for an order to arbitrate pursuant to CCP § 1281.2 at or before the time he or she answers a complaint to enforce a mechanics' lien constitutes a waiver of the defendant's right to compel arbitration [CCP § 1281.5(c)].

V. SELECTING THE VENUE FOR TRIAL

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 6.31

6.31 CHECKLIST: Selecting the Place for Trial.

☐ If case is brought under a specific act or statute, check act or statute for specific venue provisions.

☐ Actions based on consumer obligations brought under CCP § 395(b) are subject to venue provisions of that statute:

☐ Venue is proper where:

☐ Buyer or lessee signed contract.

☐ Buyer resided at time of contracting.

☐ Buyer resides at commencement of action.

☐ Proper court location for trial is location where such actions are tried and that is nearest or most accessible to buyer or lessee, or as court specifies otherwise by local rule.

Authority:

CCP § 395(b)

Discussion:

See 6.35[4]

☐ Actions based on a retail installment sale, under the Unruh Act (CC § 1801 et seq.), are subject to venue provisions in that Act:

☐ Venue is proper where:

- ☐ Contract signed by buyer.
- ☐ Buyer resided at time of contracting.
- ☐ Buyer resides at commencement of action.
- ☐ If goods have been affixed to real property so as to become part of that property, where goods are located.

☐ Proper court location for trial is location where such actions are tried, and that is nearest or most accessible to buyer, or as court specifies otherwise by local rule.

Authority:

CC § 1812.10

Discussion:

See 6.35[5]

☐ Actions based on motor vehicle sales contracts, under the Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act (CC § 2981 et seq.), are subject to venue provisions in that Act:

☐ Venue is proper where:

- ☐ Contract or purchase order was signed by buyer.
- ☐ Buyer resided when contract entered into.
- ☐ Buyer resides at commencement of action.
- ☐ Motor vehicle is permanently garaged.

☐ Proper court location for trial is location where such actions are tried and that is nearest or most accessible to buyer, or as court specifies otherwise by local rule.

☐ This Act's venue provisions apply in actions involving multiple claims or causes of action, as long as at least one claim arises from a contract subject to the Act.

Authority:

CC § 2984.4

Discussion:

See 6.35[6]

☐ In proceedings to determine parental relationship under the Uniform Parentage Act (Fam Code § 7600 et seq.), or to enforce support obligations (Fam Code § 3900 et seq.), venue is proper in county where child resides.

Authority:

CCP § 395(a)

Discussion:

See 6.35[7]

☐ Determine whether the type of party suing or being sued controls or affects venue. The following are subject to specific venue rules:

☐ Actions against the State.

☐ General venue rules apply unless otherwise indicated, such as in the following types of cases:

☐ Actions for personal injury or wrongful death that occurred within the state should be brought in county where injury occurred.

☐ Actions for money or damages, for which filing of a claim is a statutory prerequisite or specifically exempted, must be brought in any city or city and county where the Attorney General has an office (Sacramento, Los Angeles or San Francisco).

☐ Actions by a city, county, city and county, or local agency may be tried in any county where the local government entity is situated.

☐ Before answering, the Attorney General may move to change the place of trial to any city or city and county where the Attorney General has an office (Sacramento, Los Angeles, San Francisco).

Authority:

Regents of Univ. of Cal. v. Superior Court (1970) 3 C3d 529, 534-535, 91 CR 57, 476 P2d 457 ; Gov Code §§ 955, 955.2, 955.3; CCP §§ 401(1), 397

Discussion:

See 6.43[1]

☐ Actions by the State.

☐ May be removed on motion of defendant to the city or city and county in which the Attorney General has an office that is nearest to the county where defendants, or some of them, reside.

Authority:

CCP § 401(2)

Discussion:

See 6.43[2]

☐ Actions against public officers.

☐ Bring in county where the act giving rise to cause of action occurred.

Authority:

CCP § 393(b)

Discussion:

See 6.42[1]

☐ Actions against executors, administrators, guardians, conservators, or trustees in representative capacities.

☐ Bring in county having jurisdiction over the estate.

Authority:

CCP § 395.1

Discussion:

See 6.38

☐ Actions by or against a city, county, city/county, or local agency ("local government entity").

☐ Action against a local government entity may be brought and tried in county where defendant entity is situated, unless plaintiff is another local government entity, in which case, action will be transferred to neutral county.

☐ Exception--action against a local government entity for personal injury occurring within county in which defendant entity is situated, due to alleged negligence of defendant entity, will be transferred to county where local government entity is situated.

☐ Plaintiff may still seek discretionary change of venue under CCP § 397(b).

☐ Actions brought in otherwise proper venues are subject to transfer to neutral county or, in nonjury cases, assignment of disinterested judge.

☐ Action by local government entity against a resident of, or corporation doing business in, another county may be transferred on motion of either party.

☐ Corporate defendant might not obtain transfer if "doing business" in forum county, and not seen as an outsider.

☐ Exception--parties may stipulate to place of trial.

- ☐ Right to transfer can be waived based on unreasonable delay.
- ☐ Motions for transfer under CCP § 394 are not subject to procedural requirements of CCP § 396b(a).

Authority:

CCP § 394; San Francisco Found. v. Superior Court (1984) 37 C3d 285, 297-298, 208 CR 31, 690 P2d 1; *Newman v. Discussion:

See 6.43[3], [4]

- ☐ Transitory actions against corporations and unincorporated associations.

☐ Bring in county where:

- ☐ Contract made or to be performed,
- ☐ Obligation or liability arose,
- ☐ Breach occurred, or
- ☐ Corporation's or unincorporated association's principal place of business is situated.

☐ For venue to be proper in unincorporated association's principal place of business, association must have filed statement under Corp Code § 18200.

Authority:

CCP § 395.5

Discussion:

See 6.35, 6.39, 6.41

- ☐ Research and comply with specific venue rules when case involves one of the entities as a party.

Authority:

CCP §§ 392, 393(b), 394, 395.1, 395.5, 401; Gov Code §§ 955, 955.2, 955.3

Discussion:

See 6.31 et seq.

- ☐ If no specific venue provisions apply to cause of action, determine whether action is transitory or local.

- ☐ Transitory actions involve primarily financial obligations or personal relationships.
- ☐ Local actions involve title or injury to real property.
- ☐ If complaint alleges one cause of action but seeks both local and transitory relief, apply "main relief" rule.
- ☐ If complaint joins multiple causes of action, some transitory, some local, action generally classified as transitory.

Authority:

CCP §§ 392-403; Brown v. Superior Court (1984) 37 C3d 477, 482 n5, 208 CR 724, 691 P2d 272; Carlton v. Superior Court (1966) 240 CA2d 586, 589, 49 CR 759

Discussion:

See 6.34 -6.36

- ☐ General rule in transitory actions: venue is proper where defendant, or any of them, reside.

Authority:

CCP § 395(a)

Discussion:

See 6.35[1]

- ☐ If action is against multiple defendants, commence action where any defendant resides.
  - ☐ Rule applies where individual and corporate defendants are joined.
  - ☐ Where a corporate defendant and the State are joined in a personal injury action, plaintiff waives venue rules for corporations under CCP § 395.5.
  - ☐ Do not join any defendant, who is not a real party in interest, solely for venue purposes.

Authority:

CCP § 395(a)

Discussion:

See 6.42

- ☐ General rule in local actions: venue is proper in county where some or all of the real property that is subject of action is situated.

Authority:

CCP § 392(a)

Discussion:

See 6.36[2]

☐ Check additional venue options for specific causes of action.

☐ In physical personal-injury and wrongful death cases, venue proper in defendant's residence or place of injury.

☐ In contract actions, venue proper where defendant resides, contract made, contract breached, and, in some cases, where contract to be performed.

☐ Unless contract specifies otherwise, contract to be performed where made.

☐ If contract specifies the place for defendant's performance, venue is also proper where obligation to be performed.

Authority:CCP § 395(a)Discussion:

See 6.35[3][b], [c]

☐ In actions for penalty or forfeiture imposed by statute, venue is proper where some part of the cause of action arose.

☐ If penalty or forfeiture imposed for offense committed on a lake, river, or other stream of water situated in two or more counties, venue proper in any bordering county.

Authority:CCP § 393(a)Discussion:

See 6.37[1]

☐ Prepare complaint containing allegations sufficient to establish venue.

☐ If action is based on any of the following, prepare affidavit or verified complaint stating facts showing that action is commenced in proper court and court location, and is subject to CCP § 395(b), CC § 1801 et seq., or CC § 2981 et seq., as appropriate:

☐ A consumer obligation under CCP § 395(b), arising from:

☐ The offer or provision of goods, services, loans, or extensions of credit intended primarily for personal, family or household use; or

- ☐ A transaction consummated as the result of either: unsolicited phone calls by sellers engaged in consummating transactions of that kind; or, a telephone or electronic transmission made by a buyer or lessee in response to a solicitation by a seller.
- ☐ A retail installment sale under the Unruh Act (CC § 1801 et seq.); or
- ☐ A motor vehicle sales contract under the Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act (CC § 2981 et seq.).

Authority:

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 6.32

6.32 Options and Strategies.

The statutes governing venue often list multiple places where the action may be brought. The ability to choose from two or more appropriate venues provides the opportunity to select a venue that favors the party's strategy.

Strategic Point:

Consider witness availability, jury pool, costs, time, availability of records, and potential judges, all of which play a role in making an effective venue choice.

The plaintiff makes the initial choice of venue by filing the complaint. It is up to the defendant to move for change of venue, unless the plaintiff later decides that another venue is appropriate. Plaintiffs should use the advantage of selecting the initial venue to best support their case. Issues such as impartiality and witness convenience will need to be raised by the opposition, which may yield early clues about the opposition's strategy. However, be mindful that the courts are averse to gamesmanship, and a judge that detects "forum shopping" will more likely grant a motion for change of venue. Moreover, losing a motion for change of venue would be time consuming and potentially costly if the court orders payment fees and costs and the imposition of sanctions.

Investigating Judges Using Online Resources:

Many resources are available online for investigating judges. These resources can help you find information and cases pertaining to your assigned judge. For example, helpful resources at lexis.com include:

- For opinions or decisions affirming or reversing a judge's ruling, search in Legal tab > States Legal--U.S. > California > Find Cases > CA State Cases, Combined.

○ Sample search: For appellate rulings regardless of topic, use the HISTORY segment with the judge's last name in this format: history (first name /3 last name /3 j or judge or judicial or mag or hon!).

 Sample search: For appellate decisions on a judge's rulings in a particular procedural setting or on a particular substantive topic, use the HISTORY segment with the judge's last name in this format plus words for finding the specific topic, for example: summary judgment and history (first name /3 last name /3 j or judge or judicial or mag or hon!).

■ To find biographical information about a federal judge, search the biographies in Legal tab > Reference > Law > Judicial Staff Directory.

 Sample search: For a particular judge, try: name (first name /3 last name).

■ To find news articles about a judge, search in the California news files Legal tab > States Legal--U.S. > California > Search News > General News > California News Publications.

 Sample search: For articles on a particular judge, try a simple search: first name /3 last name.

■ To find articles about a judge or legal articles written by the judge both before and after the judge took the bench, search the law reviews and other periodicals in Legal tab > Secondary Legal > Law Reviews, CLE, Legal Journals & Periodicals, Combined.

 Sample search: For legal articles written by a particular judge, try a simple search: first name /3 last name.

Warning:

Several statutes govern venue in specific actions or proceedings that are not addressed in the general venue rules set forth in CCP §§ 392-403 [see, e.g., Fam Code § 8714(a) (agency adoptions), Fam Code § 8802(a) (independent adoptions); Prob Code §§ 2201, 2202 (venue in conservatorship or guardianship proceedings); Corp Code §§ 177, 1800 (dissolution and winding up of corporations)].

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 6.33

6.33 Venue and the Superior Courts.

6.33[1] Venue Is Geographical Location and Political Subdivision Where Court Will Hear Cause. Venue relates to and defines the particular county or city in which a court having jurisdiction may properly hear and determine a case [ Arganbright v. Good (1941) 46 CA2d Supp 877, 878, 116 P2d 186 ].

6.33[2] Superior Court Can Specify Locations for Filing and Hearing Certain Cases, and May Transfer Cases Accordingly. Except as otherwise provided by law, a superior court may specify by local rule the locations where certain types of actions or proceedings are to be filed, and where cases are to be heard or tried [CCP § 402]. A superior court may not dismiss a case, and the clerk may not reject a case for filing, because it is filed, or a person seeks to file it, in a court location other than the location specified by local rule. However, the court may transfer the case to the proper court location on its own motion [CCP § 402(a)(3)].

6.34 Cases Are Classified As Transitory or Local to Determine Venue.

6.34[1] Transitory Action Involves Financial Obligations and Personal Relationships While Local Action Involves Real Property. The rules of venue generally require actions to be classified as mainly transitory or local [ Brown v. Superior Court (1984) 37 C3d 477, 482 n5, 208 CR 724, 691 P2d 272 ; see CCP §§ 392, 395]. The cause of action asserted affects or determines the place of trial, and whether an action is transitory or local will be ascertained from the complaint alone [ Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 C2d 594, 603, 328 P2d 953 ].

- An action is transitory if it deals primarily with financial obligations or personal relationships;
- An action is local if title or injury to real property is the focus of trial [ Carlton v. Superior Court (1966) 240 CA2d 586, 589, 49 CR 759 ].

6.34[2] Main Relief Sought by Complaint Determines Whether Action Is Transitory or Local. The court will inspect the complaint to determine the character of the action and judgment that may be rendered on default [ Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 C2d 594, 603, 328 P2d 953 ; Eckstrand v. Wilshusen (1933) 217 C 380, 381-382, 18 P2d 931 ].

Venue problems arise when a complaint, although stating a single cause of action, demands both local and transitory relief. The nature of the "main relief" sought or "principal object" of the action is what determines whether the action is classified as transitory or local [ Massae v. Superior Court (1981) 118 CA3d 527, 535, 173 CR 527 ]. If there is other relief sought that would be characterized differently, the nature of the main relief will control [ Massae v. Superior Court (1981) 118 CA3d 527, 535-536, 173 CR 527 ].

Example:

An action to recover damages for injury to real property is local even if the complaint is framed in various counts according to theories of negligence, negligent breach of contract, and breach of warranty [see CCP § 392(a)]. The addition of a breach of warranty theory, which is transitory, does not transform the action into a transitory one because the "main relief" sought is for damages based on injury to real property [ Stauffer Chem. Co. v. Superior Court (1968) 265 CA2d 1, 4, 71 CR 202 ; see CCP§ 392(a) (location of subject matter controls in actions for injuries to real property)].

V. SELECTING THE VENUE FOR TRIAL

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 6.35

6.35 Venue Rules for Transitory Actions.

6.35[1] Residence of Defendant or Some Defendants Generally Determines Venue. Except as otherwise provided by law and subject to the power of the court to transfer actions or proceedings [see CCP §§ 392-404.9], the superior court in the county where the defendants or some of them reside at the commencement of a transitory action is the proper court for the trial of the action [CCP § 395(a); see, e.g., Turlock Theatre Co. v. Laws (1939) 12 C2d 573, 576, 86 P2d 345 ; Smith v. Smith (1891) 88 C 572, 575, 26 P 356 ].

Exception:

If another venue provision applies to the same cause of action, CCP § 395(a) might not control [see Brown v. Superior Court (1984) 37 C3d 477, 482, 208 CR 724, 691 P2d 272 (venue provisions in the California Fair Employment and Housing Act, Gov Code § 12965, prevailed over CCP § 395)].

Compare:

Where a complaint alleges multiple causes of action that are subject to different venue statutes, the case is a "mixed action," and CCP § 395 might prevail over more specific provisions [ Gallin v. Superior Court (1991) 230 CA3d 541, 545, 281 CR 304 ].

Distinguish--Multiple Defendants:

When a case involves multiple defendants who reside in different counties, a defendant is not entitled to have a transitory action tried in the county of his or her residence. In such a case, the action may be brought in the county of any defendant who is a proper party, and a nonresident defendant cannot obtain a change of venue even if a resident defendant joins in the motion [ Colusa Air Pollution Control Dist. v. Superior Court (1991) 226 CA3d 880, 890, 277 CR 110 ].

► Cross Reference:

Discussion of mixed actions, see 6.42[2].

6.35[2] Alleging Residence.

6.35[2][a] A Person Has Only One Residence for Venue Purposes. For venue purposes, a person can have only one residence [see CCP § 395(a)]. The material question is the intent to establish a permanent residence. Residence has ordinarily been accepted to mean the fixed home of a person as understood by that person and his or her neighbors and friends [ Burt v. Scarborough (1961) 56 C2d 817, 820-821, 17 CR 146, 366 P2d 498 ; see Gov Code § 244(a) (residence as place where one remains when not called elsewhere for labor or other special or temporary purpose)].

6.35[2][b] Plaintiff May Designate County in Case With Nonresident Defendant or Defendant Whose County of Residence Unknown. If none of the defendants reside in the state, or if they reside in the state but the county in which they reside is unknown to the plaintiff, the action may be tried in any county which the plaintiff may designate in his or her complaint [CCP § 395(a)].

6.35[2][c] Venue Proper Where Parties Reside or Service Made If Defendant Is About to Leave State. If the defendant is about to depart from the state, the action may be tried in any county where either of the parties resides or service is made [CCP § 395(a)].

6.35[2][d] Residence of Improper Defendant Not Considered. If a person is improperly joined as a defendant, or has been made a defendant solely for the purpose of establishing venue where that defendant resides, his or her residence will not be considered in determining proper venue [CCP § 395(a)].

6.35[3] Additional Venue Provisions in Tort and Contract Cases.

6.35[3][a] Defendant's Residence Establishes Venue in Nonphysical Tort Cases. Generally, the residence of the defendant is the proper place for the trial of a personal tort case not involving physical injury, such as conversion [CCP § 395(a); see Haurat v. Superior Court (1966) 241 CA2d 330, 333, 50 CR 520 ; Mason v. Buck (1929) 99 CA 219, 221, 278 P 461 ]. Similarly, actions for libel, malicious prosecution, abuse of process, and false imprisonment are triable solely where the defendant resides [ Johnson v. Superior Court (1965) 232 CA2d 212, 218, 42 CR 645 ; see Cacciaguidi v. Superior Court (1990) 226 CA3d 181, 184-186, 276 CR 465 (abuse of process action)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of venue in physical injury tort cases, see 6.35[3][b].

6.35[3][b] In Personal Injury and Wrongful Death Actions, Place of Injury Is Also Proper for Trial. If an action is for injury to a person or personal property from a wrongful act or negligence, either the county where the injury occurs, or in which the defendants, or some of them, reside at the commencement of the action, is the proper county for the trial of the action [CCP § 395(a)]. Thus, a defendant is entitled to have a negligence action tried either in the county of his or her residence or the county in which the tort occurred [ Maxwell v. Murray (1961) 190 CA2d 440, 443, 11 CR 916 ].

Distinguish:

The phrase "injury to person" in this context is limited to physical injury, incapacity, or death caused by the wrongful or negligent act of another. It does not apply to:

- Nonphysical injuries resulting from false imprisonment or malicious prosecution [ Monk v. Ehret (1923) 192 C 186, 191-193, 219 P 452 ; Cacciaguidi v. Superior Court (1990) 226 CA3d 181, 187, 276 CR 465 ];
- Injuries to character or reputation [ Carruth v. Superior Court (1978) 80 CA3d 215, 219, 145 CR 344 ]; or
- Actions sounding in tort, such as severe humiliation, anguish, emotional distress, and trauma [ Cubic Corp. v. Superior Court (1986) 186 CA3d 622, 625, 231 CR 18 ].

In such cases, venue is only proper in the defendant's place of residence [CCP § 395(a)].

6.35[3][c] Venue In Contract Actions Is Proper Where Defendant Resides, Where Contract Was Made, and, in Some Cases, Where Contract to Be Performed. Absent a special written contract to the contrary, it is presumed that an obligation under a contract will be performed where the contract was made [see CCP § 395(a); Braunstein v. Superior Court (1964) 225 CA2d 691, 694-695, 37 CR 666 ]. In a breach of contract action, unless the defendant has contracted specially in writing designating the county in which his or her obligation is to be performed, the proper county for the trial of an action founded on the contract is either:

- The county in which the contract was made; or
- The county in which the defendant or any defendant resides at the commencement of the action [CCP § 395(a); Armstrong v. Smith (1942) 49 CA2d 528, 531-532, 122 P2d 115 ].

Thus, a defendant is entitled to have a contract action transferred to the county of his or her residence unless:

- The contract was made in another county; or
- The defendant specifically contracted to perform his or her obligation in another county [see CCP § 395(a); Braunstein v. Superior Court (1964) 225 CA2d 691, 694, 37 CR 666 ; Richardson v. Rose (1961) 197 CA2d 318, 322, 17 CR 84 ].

If the defendant has contracted specially and in writing as to the county in which his or her obligation is to be performed, then such county is also a proper county for the trial of the action [CCP § 395(a); Armstrong v. Smith (1942) 49 CA2d 528, 531-532, 122 P2d 115 ; see also Mitchell v. Superior Court (1986) 186 CA3d 1040, 1046, 231 CR 176 ].

Compare:

The language of CCP § 395(a) suggests that these venue rules apply only "if a defendant has contracted to perform an obligation in a particular county," which would seem to obviate the need for the exception that is created for cases in which a contract designates the place of performance. However, courts have dismissed this prefatory language as being of "no great consequence," since any existing obligation must be performable at some place, and interpret the statute as allowing trial in the place of performance only if a special written contract designates such place [see CCP § 395(a); Armstrong v. Smith (1942) 49 CA2d 528, 531-532, 122 P2d 115 ].

6.35[3][d] In Contract Actions, Place of Performance Must Be Certain, and Extrinsic Evidence Will Not Be Allowed to Establish Venue There. A special contract is one in which particular stipulations with respect to the obligations of the parties are expressed, which, if omitted, the law will not supply [ Armstrong v. Smith (1942) 49 CA2d 528, 535, 122 P2d 115 ; see also Wathen v. Superior Court (1963) 212 CA2d 125, 129, 27 CR 840 ]. Thus, the contract required under CCP § 395(a), to establish venue in the place of performance, must specify a geographic location for performance and, if it does not, extrinsic evidence may not be introduced to show the alleged proper county for trial [ Morthrift Plan v. Fischer (1961) 196 CA2d Supp 865, 868-869, 17 CR 607 ; see also Fidelity Thrift & Loan Ass'n v. Hall (1960) 186 CA2d Supp 895, 899 ].

Examples:

An agreement to pay money in a particular county, or to deliver goods at a particular place, or to perform an obligation in a particular city could be sufficient to establish venue based on place of performance [see Wathen v. Superior Court (1963) 212 CA2d 125, 129, 27 CR 840 ]. A designation of the city or county of performance, without a specific address, is enough to establish the place of performance. Thus, when a contract stated the place of payment as the office of a trustee in a particular county, it was sufficient to give the plaintiff the right to specify that county as the proper place of trial in an action on the contract [ Stute v. Burinda (1981) 123 CA3d Supp. 11, 16, 177 CR 102 ].

6.35[3][e] Contract Is Made Where the Last Act Necessary for Its Validity Is Done. The place where a contract was made is the place where the last act necessary for its validity was done. This is usually the act constituting acceptance [see Braunstein v. Superior Court (1964) 225 CA2d 691, 696-697, 37 CR 666 ].

Examples:

When a contract is prepared in one county, and is forwarded to a party in another county for acceptance and signature, the latter county is the proper place for trial because that is where the contract was made [ Braunstein v. Superior Court (1964) 225 CA2d 691, 696-697, 37 CR 666 ]. Similarly, when a contract is made by telephone, the contract is entered into at the place where offer is accepted [ Friedman Bag Co., Inc. v. Shrier (1961) 194 CA2d 561, 564, 15 CR 38 ; Wilson v. Scannavino (1958) 159 CA2d 369, 371, 324 P2d 350 ].

6.35[4] Actions Based on Consumer Obligations Under CCP § 395(b).

6.35[4][a] Buyer's Location During Specific Events Determines Venue. Actions arising from the offer or provision of goods, services, loans, or extensions of credit intended primarily for personal, family or household use, as well as actions arising from transactions consummated as the result of either: (1) unsolicited phone calls by sellers engaged in the business of consummating transactions of that kind; or (2) a telephone call or electronic transmission made by a buyer or lessee in response to a solicitation by a seller, are governed by CCP § 395(b).

Example:

Collection efforts "aris[e] from" a consumer loan and determine the basis for venue in an action alleging illegal collection efforts, and CCP § 395(b) applies as long as the action arises from a consumer transaction specified in the statute [ Fontaine v. Superior Ct. (2009) 175 CA4th 830, 841, 96 CR3d 607] .

In such actions, venue is proper in the superior court in the county where the buyer or lessee [CCP § 395(b)]:

- Signed the contract;
- Resided at the time the contract was entered into; or,
- Resides at the commencement of the action.

In the superior court designated as the proper court under CCP § 395(b), the proper location for trial is the location of the court where such actions are tried and that is nearest or most accessible to the buyer or lessee under the above criteria, which the superior court may specify by local rule [CCP § 395(b)]. Otherwise, any location of the superior court designated as the proper court under CCP § 395(b) is a proper court location for the trial [CCP § 395(b)].

Any term of a consumer obligation described in CCP § 395(b) waiving these venue provisions is void and unenforceable [CCP § 395(c)].

Exceptions:

CCP § 395(b) does not apply to an action under CC § 1812.10 (Retail Installment Sales Contract Actions (Unruh Act)) or CC § 2984.4 (Motor Vehicle Sales Contract Actions (Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act)) [CCP § 395(b)].

6.35[4][b] Plaintiff Must File Affidavit Showing Action Commenced in Proper Place. In any action under CCP § 395(b), the plaintiff must state facts in a verified complaint, or an affidavit filed concurrently with the complaint, showing that the action has been commenced in the proper superior court and court location, and is subject to CCP § 395(b) [CCP § 396a]. When filed with the complaint, a copy of the affidavit must be served with the summons [CCP § 396a].

Warning:

If a plaintiff fails to file the required affidavit or a verified complaint, no further proceedings may occur except the dismissal of the action without prejudice [CCP § 396a].

Exception:

The court may, on terms that are just, permit the affidavit to be filed after the complaint is filed, and a copy of the affidavit must be served on the defendant. The time to answer or otherwise plead will date from that service [CCP § 396a].

6.35[5] Venue in Retail Installment Sales Contract Actions (Unruh Act).

6.35[5][a] Location of Buyer, or Goods If Affixed to Real Property, Determines Venue. An action on a contract or installment account under the Unruh Act, CC § 1801 et seq., must be tried in the superior court in the county where [CC § 1812.10(a)]:

- The contract was in fact signed by the buyer;
- The buyer resided at the time the contract was entered into;
- The buyer resides at the commencement of the action; or
- The goods purchased pursuant to the contract have been so affixed to real property as to become a part of that real property.

In the superior court designated as the proper court under CC § 1812.10(a), the proper location for trial is the location of the court where such actions are tried and that is nearest or most accessible to the buyer under the above criteria, which the superior court may specify by local rule [CC § 1812.10(b)]. Otherwise, any location of the superior court designated as the proper court under CC § 1812.10(a) is a proper court location for the trial [CC § 1812.10(b)].

6.35[5][b] Plaintiff Must File Affidavit Showing Action Commenced in Proper Place. In any action subject to CC § 1812.10, the plaintiff must state facts in a verified complaint, or an affidavit filed concurrently with the complaint, showing that the action has been commenced in the proper superior court and court location, and is subject to CCP § 1812.10 [CC § 1812.10(c); CCP § 396a]. When filed with the complaint, a copy of the affidavit must be served with the summons [CC § 1812.10(c)].

Warning:

If a plaintiff fails to file the required affidavit or a verified complaint, no further proceedings may occur except the dismissal of the action without prejudice [CC § 1812.10(c); CCP § 396a].

Exception:

The court may, on terms that are just, permit the affidavit to be after the complaint is filed, and a copy of the affidavit must be served on the defendant. The time to answer or otherwise plead will date from that service [CC § 1812.10(c); CCP § 396a].

6.35[6] Venue in Motor Vehicle Sales Contract Actions (Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act).

6.35[6][a] Location of Buyer or Permanently Garaged Vehicle Determines Venue. The Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act, CC § 2981 et seq., applies to all conditional sale contracts, for the sale or lease of motor vehicles for primarily personal purposes, between a buyer and any person engaged in the business of selling or leasing motor vehicles under conditional sale contracts. An action on a contract or purchase order governed by that act must be tried in the county in which [CC § 2984.4(a)]:

- The contract or purchase order was signed by the buyer;
- The buyer resided at the time the contract or purchase order was entered into;
- The buyer resides at the commencement of the action; or
- The motor vehicle purchased pursuant to the contract or purchase order is permanently garaged.

These venue provisions will apply in actions that involve multiple claims, or causes of action, so long as there is at least one claim or cause of action arising from a contract subject to the act [CC § 2984.4(a)].

In the superior court designated as the proper court under CC § 2984.4(a), the proper location for trial is the location of the court where such actions are tried and that is nearest or most accessible to the buyer under the above criteria, which the superior court may specify by local rule [CC § 2984.4(b)]. Otherwise, any location of the superior court designated as the proper court under CC § 2984.4(a) is a proper court location for the trial [CC § 2984.4(b)].

6.35[6][b] Plaintiff Must File Affidavit Showing Action Commenced in Proper Place. In any action subject to CC § 2984.4, the plaintiff must state facts in a verified complaint, or an affidavit filed concurrently with the complaint, showing that the action has been commenced in the proper superior court and court location, and is subject to CC § 2984.4 [CC § 2984.4(c); CCP § 396a]. When filed with the complaint, a copy of the affidavit must be served with the summons [CC § 2984.4(c); CCP § 396a].

Warning:

If a plaintiff fails to file the required affidavit or a verified complaint, no further proceedings may occur except the dismissal of the action without prejudice [CC § 2984.4(c); CCP § 396a].

Exception:

The court may, on terms that are just, permit the affidavit to be filed after the complaint is filed, and a copy of the affidavit must be served on the defendant. The time to answer or otherwise plead will date from that service [CC § 2984.4(c); CCP § 396a].

6.35[7] Venue in Proceedings to Determine Parental Relationship or Enforce Support Obligations. In a proceeding to determine parental relation under Fam Code § 7600 et seq. (Uniform Parentage Act), the county in which the child resides is the proper county for the trial of the action [CCP § 395(a)]. In a proceeding to enforce an obligation of support under Fam Code § 3900 (civil suit on behalf of child to enforce parents' obligations), or to establish and enforce a foreign judgment or court order for the support of a minor child, the county in which the child resides is the proper county for the trial of the action [CCP § 395(a)].

6.36 Venue in Local Actions.

6.36[1] In Local Actions, Location of Property Controls. In the following types of actions, the county in which some or all of the real property that is the subject of the action is situated is the proper county for trial [CCP § 392(a)]:

- An action for the recovery of real property, or an estate or interest therein;
- An action for a determination in any form of a right or interest in real property;
- An action for injuries to real property;
- An action for the foreclosure of all liens and mortgages on real property.

6.36[2] Local Classification Turns on Title to or Possession of Real Property. An action must be wholly local in nature to be governed by CCP § 392(1)(a) [ Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 C2d 594, 605, 328 P2d 953 ]. An action is local when it turns on title to property as distinct from a personal obligation, and a judgment granting the relief requested will affect title [ Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 C2d 594, 604, 328 P2d 953 ; Thielen v. Superior Court (1963) 219 CA2d 217, 221-222, 33 CR 1 ].

Example:

An action that has for its sole and exclusive object the cancellation of a deed or a deed of trust is wholly local in nature [ Beutke v. Am Sec. Co. (1955) 132 CA2d 354, 359, 282 P2d 201 ].

6.36[3] Action Not Local If Title or Possession Is Incidental. When title to or possession of real property is only incidentally involved in an action, the action is not local [ Marcacci v. Cont'l Baking Co. (1962) 202 CA2d 224, 226, 20 CR 567 ]. This distinction is most clearly established when the main relief sought consists of a money judgment.

Examples:

An action for specific performance of a contract for the sale of realty is not local if it is brought by the seller, since the seller merely seeks the purchase price. Conversely, if the buyer brings the action, it is local because the buyer seeks possession of the property [ Hammon v. Am. Exploration and Mining Co.

(1962) 203 CA2d 306, 309, 21 CR 409 ].

Similarly, an action for damages for deceit in inducing a buyer to purchase real property, rather than for rescission and restitution resulting in reconveyance, is not a local action [ Kaluzok v. Brisson (1946) 27 C2d 760, 763-764, 167 P2d 481 ; but see Etter v. Vollmer (1956) 139 CA2d 718, 720, 294 P2d 55 (action for fraud with respect to conveyance of real property local if buyer seeks to reobtain title)].

Compare:

The fact that a complaint seeks a money judgment does not necessarily mean the action is not local, if the judgment is predicated on damages to real property [ Strosnider v. Pomin (1939) 32 CA2d 103, 109, 89 P2d 179 ; see CCP § 392(a)(1)].

Example:

A complaint in an action to foreclose a mechanic's lien on real property may also seek a personal judgment for the amount of the debt secured by the lien without removing the action from CCP § 392(a)(2). As long as the complaint also alleges that the defendants against whom the personal judgment is sought have an interest in the property, and that the interest is subject to the lien, the action is still one to foreclose a lien; therefore, it must be tried in the county in which the real property is situated [ Case v. Kirkwood (1931) 119 CA 207, 211, 6 P2d 110 ].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of characterization of relief sought and "main relief" rule, see 6.34[2].

6.36[4] Injury to Real Property Is Broadly Construed. For venue purposes, the phrase "injury to real property" is not limited to physical injury to or interference with land [see CCP § 392(a)(1)]. It embraces every wrong that in legal contemplation is an injury to real property, including actions for damage to buildings affixed to real property based on construction defects [see Found. Eng'rs, Inc. v. Superior Court (1993) 19 CA4th 104, 111-113, 23 CR2d 469 ]. It includes not only direct and forcible injury, but also consequential and threatened injuries to land. It even includes nonfeasance, such as permissive waste [ Coley v. Hecker (1928) 206 C 22, 28, 272 P 1045 ; Strosnider v. Pomin (1939) 32 CA2d 103, 108, 89 P2d 179 ].

Example:

Where a plaintiff sought damages because he was fraudulently compelled to dismiss a separate action to quiet title to a right of way, and the defendant thereafter erected an obstruction on the right of way, the injury to the real property represented by the obstruction was a consequential injury resulting from the defendant's fraud, and plaintiff's action for damages was local under CCP § 392(a)(1) [ Strosnider v. Pomin (1939) 32 CA2d 103, 108-109, 89 P2d 179 ].

Compare:

Slander of title is also considered an indirect and consequential injury to real property [ Wick v. Mattison (1962) 207 CA2d 608, 610, 24 CR 677 ; see also Coley v. Hecker (1928) 206 C 22, 26, 28, 272 P 1045 (action is one in which determination of rights or interest in title is properly adjudicated)]. Similarly, a malicious prosecution action for damages has been found to be an action for injury to real property when it flows from an unfounded action to set aside a trustee's sale on the false ground that there was no default under a trust deed [ Wick v. Mattison (1962) 207 CA2d 608, 609-610, 24 CR 677 ].

6.36[5] Unlawful Detainer Actions Require Verified Complaint or Affidavit Showing Action Filed in Proper Place. Actions for unlawful detainer are local actions, governed by CCP § 392 [ Childs v. Eltinge (1973) 29 CA3d 843, 851, 105 CR 864 ]. In an unlawful detainer action, the plaintiff must state facts in a verified complaint or concurrently filed affidavit, stating facts showing that the action has been commenced in the proper superior court and court location [CCP § 396a]. When filed with the complaint, a copy of the affidavit must be served with the summons [CCP § 396a];

see also CCP § 1161 (defining unlawful detainer)].

The proper court location for trial of an unlawful detainer proceeding is the location where the court tries that type of proceeding that is nearest or most accessible to where some or all of the real property is situated, or otherwise as designated by the court [CCP § 392(b)].

Warning:

If a plaintiff fails to file the required affidavit or a verified complaint, no further proceedings may occur except the dismissal of the action without prejudice [CCP § 396a(a)].

Exception:

The court may, on terms that are just, permit the affidavit to be filed subsequent to the filing of the complaint, and a copy of the affidavit must be served on the defendant. The time to answer or otherwise plead will date from that service [CCP § 396a(a)].

6.37 In Actions for Recovery of Penalty or Forfeiture, or Against Public Officers, Venue Proper Where Cause Arose.

6.37[1] Actions for Recovery of Penalty or Forfeiture Imposed by Statute. The county in which some or all of the causes of action arose is the proper venue for an action to recover a penalty or forfeiture imposed by statute [CCP § 393(a)].

If the penalty or forfeiture is imposed for an offense committed on a lake, river, or other stream of water situated in two or more counties, the action may be tried in any county bordering on the lake, river, or stream, and opposite to the place where the offense was committed. Within such counties, the proper place for trial is the court nearest to the place where the offense was committed [CCP § 393(a)].

6.37[2] Actions Against Public Officers. In any action against a public officer or person especially appointed to execute the duties of a public officer, for an act done by him or her by virtue of his or her office, or against a person who, by his or her command or in his or her aid, does anything touching the duties of an officer, venue is proper where the cause of action arose [CCP § 393(b); Colusa Air Pollution Control Dist. v. Superior Court (1991) 226 CA3d 880, 887-888, 277 CR 110 ].

A "public officer" in this context is not restricted to an individual. Absent a statutory designation of an administrative or enforcement officer, the term "public officer" also includes state agencies, departments, institutions, boards, or other public entities. This is the case even if an entity's individual members are not "public officers," as long as the members collectively constitute the entity [see Regents of Univ. of Cal. v. Superior Court (1970) 3 C3d 529, 537-538, 91 CR 57, 476 P2d 457 ; see also Sutter Union High Sch. Dist. v. Superior Court (1983) 140 CA3d 795, 797, 190 CR 182 (governing board of school district is a "public officer")].

CCP § 393(b) only applies to actions taken, that is, acts done as distinguished from acts threatened [ California State Parks Foundation v. Superior Court (2007) 150 CA4th 826, 834, 58 CR3d 715 ]. The language in the statute does not expressly or impliedly limit its purview to actions seeking to vindicate private, as opposed to public, rights [ California State Parks Foundation v. Superior Court (2007) 150 CA4th 826, 834-835, 58 CR3d 715 (rule applied to action on public right)].

Example:

CCP § 393(b) would apply in an action against a state agency that deprives the plaintiff of his or her right to do business, and the county where the plaintiff carries on the business and in which he or she will be hurt by the agency's action is the proper county for trial [ Regents of Univ. of Cal. v. Superior Court (1970) 3 C3d 529, 538, 91 CR 57, 476 P2d 457 ; see Colusa Air Pollution Control Dist. v. Superior Court (1991) 226 CA3d 880, 888, 277 CR 110 ].

Compare:

Where a petitioner sought a writ of prohibition to restrain a state board from taking further action, CCP § 393(b) did not apply [ Harris v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Bd. (1961) 197 CA2d 759, 768, 18 CR 151 ].

6.38 Proper Venue in Actions Against Individuals in Representative Capacities Is County Having Jurisdiction Over Estate.

Except as otherwise provided in Prob Code § 17005 (venue for proceedings brought under the Trust Law), when a defendant is sued in an official or representative capacity as executor, administrator, guardian, conservator, or trustee on a claim for the payment of money or for the recovery of personal property, the county having jurisdiction over the estate is the proper county for trial [CCP § 395.1; see Prob Code § 15000 et seq. (Trust Law)].

In this context, the word "claim" does not have any technical meaning. It is commonly defined to mean simply a demand for something rightfully or allegedly due. Therefore, application of CCP § 395.1 is not limited only to suits on rejected creditors' claims [see, e.g., Metzger v. Silverman (1976) 62 CA3d Supp 30, 36-37, 133 CR 355 ].

Example:

An action against an administratrix and her attorney for the value of tax services performed for an estate is properly brought in the county that has jurisdiction over the estate [ Metzger v. Silverman (1976) 62 CA3d Supp 30, 36-37, 133 CR 355 ].

6.39 Venue in Actions Against Domestic Corporations.

6.39[1] Transitory Action May Be Brought Where Cause of Action Arose or at Corporation's Principal Place of Business. Subject to the court's power to change the place of trial [see CCP §§ 392-402], a corporation may be sued in a transitory action in the county where [CCP § 395.5]:

- The contract was made;
- The contract was to be performed;
- The obligation or liability arose;
- The breach occurred; or
- The corporation's principal place of business is situated.

These five bases for establishing venue have been construed more generally as permitting trial in:

- The place where the cause of action arose; or
- The corporation's principal place of business.

This rule allows wider venue than is afforded in actions against individuals, by allowing a corporate defendant to be sued other than in its principal place of business (considered to be its "residence") [see CCP §§ 395(a), 395.5; Mission Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1982) 31 C3d 921, 928, 184 CR 296, 647 P2d 1075 ; Jhirmack Enters., Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 96 CA3d 715, 723-724, 158 CR 192 ; Hale v. Bohannon (1952) 38 C2d 458, 476, 241 P2d 4 ].

Cross References:

Discussion of transitory actions, see 6.35.

Discussion of how CCP § 395(a) may determine venue in actions in which corporate and individual defendants are joined, see 6.42[5].

6.39[2] Terms of CCP § 395.5 Relate to Contract, Tort, and Statutory Actions.

6.39[2][a] Contract Cause of Action Arises Where Contract Made or to Be Performed. A contract is "made," and contractual obligations generally arise, where the last act necessary to the contract's validity, usually the act constituting acceptance, occurs [ Braunstein v. Superior Court (1964) 225 CA2d 691, 696-697, 37 CR 666 ]. The place of performance of a contract is generally also where the breach occurs [ Hale v. Bohannon (1952) 38 C2d 458, 479, 241 P2d 4 ].

Thus, a contract cause of action generally will be found to have arisen either where the contract was made or to be performed, which place, in some cases, might also be the corporation's principal place of business [see Mission Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1982) 31 C3d 921, 928, 184 CR 296, 647 P2d 1075 ; Hale v. Bohannon (1952) 38 C2d 458, 479, 241 P2d 4 ; Jhirmack Enters., Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 96 CA3d 715, 724, 158 CR 192 ].

Distinguish:

Unlike the general statute addressing venue in contract actions [see CCP § 395(a)], CCP § 395.5 does not require a special contract in writing to establish venue where the contract was to be performed; where no place of performance is expressly stated, a corporation's contract will be held performable in the place where the circumstances, viewed in light of pertinent code provisions, indicate the parties expected or intended it to be performed [ Burr v. W. States Life Ins. Co. (1931) 211 C 568, 574, 296 P 273 ].

Example:

Com Code § 2319(1)(a) indicates that in certain f.o.b. shipments, a seller completes delivery and no longer bears the risk when it places goods in the possession of a carrier at the place of shipment. Thus, the place of performance is established, by application of a statute rather than contract provision, as being the county from which shipment is being made, and not the county in which the shipment is to be delivered to the buyer [see Jhirmack Enters., Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 96 CA3d 715, 723-724, 158 CR 192 ].

6.39[2][b] Tort Actions May Be Brought Where Liability Arises. Although CCP § 395.5 appears to be addressing contract actions, it also governs actions sounding in tort [ Mission Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1982) 31 C3d 921, 928, 184 CR 296, 647 P2d 1075 ]. Tort claims against a corporation may be tried in any county in which the liability arises [CCP § 395.5].

Example:

In an action for wrongful interference with contractual relations when the cause of action is based on an intimidating letter sent to persons in several counties, venue is properly laid in any of the counties in which the plaintiff suffered injury resulting from the letters [ Mission Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1982) 31 C3d 921, 928-929, 184 CR 296, 647 P2d 1075 ].

6.39[2][c] Statutory Action May Be Brought Where Liability or Obligation Arises. Statutory actions may be brought where the liability or obligation arises, and the defendant need not perform any act inside the county to permit venue there as long as the obligation arises there [ Black Diamond Asphalt, Inc. v. Superior Court (2003) 109 CA4th 166, 171-174, 134 CR2d 510 ].

Example:

A statutory action by a third party against an insurer may be commenced in the county where the third party files suit because that is where the insurer's liability arises [ Black Diamond Asphalt, Inc. v. Superior Court (2003) 109 CA4th 166, 171-174, 134 CR2d 510 ].

6.39[3] Alter Ego Allegation Allows Venue to Be Based on Corporate or Individual Defendant. In an action for breach of contract, an alter ego allegation places the individual in the same position as the corporation, as a party to the contract, and venue is proper where the action could be brought against either the individual or corporate defendant [ Lebastchi v. Superior Court (1995) 33 CA4th 1465, 1467, 39 CR2d 787 ]. If there is only one cause of action alleged against the individual and corporation, the suit does not constitute a "mixed action," which could be transferred to the individual defendant's county of residence [ Lebastchi v. Superior Court (1995) 33 CA4th 1465, 1470, 39 CR2d 787 (denying change of venue from San Diego County, where corporation entered, performed, and breached contract, to Placer County, where individual defendant lived)].

V. SELECTING THE VENUE FOR TRIAL

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 6.40

6.40 In Some Cases, Foreign Corporations May Invoke Venue Rules Applicable to Domestic Corporations; Otherwise, Venue Proper in Any County.

A foreign corporation that establishes it has qualified to do business in California under Corp Code § 2105 may invoke the venue rules of CCP § 395.5 in the same manner as a domestic corporation [see Easton v. Superior Court (1970) 12 CA3d 243, 246, 90 CR 642 (decided under former Cal Const, art XII, § 16, now CCP § 395.5, and former Corp Code § 6403, now Corp Code § 2105)].

The foreign corporation's principal place of business in California will be designated in the corporation's statement filed with the Secretary of State, under Corp Code § 2105 [ Bohn v. Better Biscuits, Inc. (1938) 26 CA2d 61, 64, 78 P2d 1177 (decided under former CC § 405, now Corp Code § 2105)].

Compare:

A foreign corporation that does not establish it has qualified to do business in California under Corp Code § 2105 may be sued in any county in the state [ Easton v. Superior Court (1970) 12 CA3d 243, 246-247, 90 CR 642 ].

6.40A Venue in Actions Against Limited Liability Companies.

The statute governing venue for corporations and associations, CCP § 395.5, does not expressly state that this section is applicable to limited liability companies [see Corp Code § 17000 et seq.]. However, the term "association" may be broadly interpreted to include limited liability companies within the scope of CCP § 395.5 [see, e.g., Buran Equipment Co. v. Superior Court (1987) 190 CA3d 1662, 1665-1666, 236 CR 171 (law partnership treated as "association" under related statute)]; and the provision of CCP § 395.5 and cases interpreting it would likely apply to limited liability companies.

Note that CCP § 395.5 provides for additional venue "[i]n the county where the principal place of business of such corporation is situated ... ." One court has interpreted this alternative to lay venue did not apply to unincorporated associations because the clause only states "corporation" by its own terms [see Mosby v. Superior Court (1974) 43 CA3d 219, 225, 117 CR 588 ]. However, venue for an unincorporated association is the same as a corporation if the unincorporated association has filed a statement with the Secretary of State designating its principal office in California [CCP § 395.2]. Given that a limited liability company must file articles of organization with the Secretary of State [see Corp Code § 17050], it is probable that a limited liability company will be treated like a corporation for venue purposes, but clarification of this issue awaits a judicial decision or amendments to the Code of Civil Procedure and/or Corporations Code.

6.41 Venue in Actions Against Unincorporated Associations.

An unincorporated association is an unincorporated group of two or more persons joined by mutual consent for a common lawful purpose, whether organized for profit or not [Corp Code § 18035(a)]. However, joint tenancy, tenancy in common, community property, or other forms of property tenure does not by itself establish an unincorporated association, even if coowners share ownership of the property for a common purpose [Corp Code § 18035(b)]. Similarly, marriage or the creation of a registered domestic partnership does not by itself establish an unincorporated association [Corp Code § 18035(c)]. An action may be brought against an unincorporated association in any county where [CCP § 395.5]:

- The contract was made;
- The contract was to be performed;
- The obligation or liability arose; or
- The breach occurred.

Compare:

The provision in CCP § 395.5, permitting venue in a corporation's principal place of business, does not apply to unincorporated associations.

Exception:

If an unincorporated association has filed a statement with the Secretary of State pursuant to Corp Code § 18200, venue is the same as it would be if the unincorporated association were a corporation, and the county of its principal place of business would be a proper county for venue [CCP § 395.2; see CCP § 395.5]. While partnerships may no longer file new statements as unincorporated associations with the Secretary of State under Corp Code § 18200 [Corp Code § 18055(c)], statements properly filed under former Corp Code § 24003 remain subject to Corp Code § 18200 until they expire or are revoked [Corp Code § 18200(g)]. In determining that county, the association's principal place of business will be deemed to be its principal office in California, listed in the statement filed with the Secretary of State [CCP § 395.2; see also CCP § 395.5]. If an unincorporated association has no principal place of business, venue is proper in the county where any member of the association resides [ Mosby v.

Superior Court (1974) 43 CA3d 219, 229 n7, 117 CR 588 ].

Cross Reference:

Forms and discussion of the effect of former Corp Code § 24003 statements on venue in actions against partnerships, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 402, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners or Partnership and Third Parties (Matthew Bender).

Strategic Point--Individual Defendants:

When a plaintiff brings an action against several defendants, including both individuals and unincorporated associations, in a county that is neither the residence nor principal place of business of any defendant, the individual defendant has the right, on a proper showing, to a change of venue to the county of his or her residence, even if venue as initially laid may otherwise be justifiable on one of the four alternative grounds in CCP § 395.5 [ Mosby v. Superior Court (1974) 43 CA3d 219, 226, 117 CR 588 ; CCP § 395(a)].

Compare:

When an action is brought in the county in which an individual partner resides, rather than in the county specified as the partnership's principal place of business, the individual partners have no right to a change of venue to the location of the partnership's office [ Buran Equip. Co. v. Superior Court (1987) 190 CA3d 1662, 1666-1667, 236 CR 171 ].

V. SELECTING THE VENUE FOR TRIAL

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 6.42

6.42 Venue in Actions Involving Multiple Defendants or Causes of Action.

6.42[1] Multiple Causes of Action or Defendants May Create a Mixed Venue Action. Mixed venue actions exist when a plaintiff alleges two or more causes of action, each of which is governed by a different venue statute, or names two or more defendants, who are subject to different venue standards [ Brown v. Superior Court (1984) 37 C3d 477, 488, 208 CR 724, 691 P2d 272 ; see also Gallin v. Superior Court (1991) 230 CA3d 541, 544, 281 CR 304 ].

Distinguish:

Cases in which there is only one cause of action, but which seek different forms of relief, are not mixed venue actions but, rather, call for application of the main relief rule [ see Smith v. Smith (1891) 88 C 572, 576, 26 P 356 ].

➡ Cross Reference:

Discussion of main relief rule, see 6.34[2].

Distinguish:

In a case where the complaint set forth only one cause of action, but based it on several different legal theories, labeled as separate causes of action, the court held there were not separate causes of action, but alternative methods of pleading the plaintiffs' right to recover. Because the plaintiffs had alleged only one wrong, the main relief rule was applied [ Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 C2d 594, 605, 328 P2d 953 ].

6.42[2] In Mixed Venue Actions, Motion for Change of Venue Must Be Granted If Defendant Entitled to Transfer on Any Cause of Action. When two or more inconsistent venue provisions apply in the same case, a defendant's motion for change of venue must be granted if that defendant is entitled to a change of venue on any one cause of action [ see Capp Care, Inc. v. Superior Court (1987) 195 CA3d 504, 508, 241 CR 741 ].

Example:

Involuntary dissolution of a corporation is a local action, for which the proper venue is the county in which the corporation maintains its principal office. Thus, in an action for involuntary dissolution of a corporation, the corporation was entitled to have venue changed to the county in which it maintained its principal office, even though venue was proper as to nine other causes of action [ Capp Care, Inc. v.

Superior Court (1987) 195 CA3d 504, 508, 241 CR 741 ].

When a complaint states multiple causes of action, a corporate defendant that is entitled to a change of venue as to one cause of action is entitled to a transfer of the entire action [ Jhirmack Enters. v. Superior Court (1979) 96 CA3d 715, 720, 158 CR 192 ; Sanborn v. Pomona Pump Co. (1933) 131 CA 241, 244, 21 P2d 124 ].

6.42[3] When Transitory and Local Actions Are Joined, Action Will Be Treated As Transitory. When transitory and local causes of action are joined in a single complaint, the general rule is that the action will be regarded as transitory for determining the place of trial, and the defendant will be entitled to have the case transferred to the county of his or her residence [ Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 C2d 594, 605, 328 P2d 953 ; see also Smith v. Smith (1891) 88 C 572, 576-577, 26 P 356 ; Channell v. Superior Court (1964) 226 CA2d 246, 251, 38 CR 13 ].

Cross References:

Discussion of local and transitory actions, see 6.34.

Discussion of permissive joinder of actions generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints (Matthew Bender).

6.42[4] Plaintiff May Commence Action in County Where Any Defendant Resides. When there are several defendants who reside in different counties, the plaintiff may commence the action in a county where any one of the defendants resides [ Taff v. Goodman (1940) 41 CA2d 771, 776, 107 P2d 431 ; CCP § 395(a)]. Thus, a defendant is not entitled to have an action removed to the county of his or her residence unless it appears that none of the other defendants are residents of the county where the action was brought. Even when all of the defendants join in a demand for a change of venue, the case will not be transferred if the complaint attempts, in apparent good faith, to state a cause of action against a defendant who resides in the county where the action was commenced [ Monogram Co. v. Kingsley (1951) 38 C2d 28, 30, 237 P2d 265 ].

Example:

A cross-defendant may not obtain a change of venue to the county in which he or she resides if proper venue of that case is established under the complaint in a county in which any defendant resides [ K.R.L. P'ship v. Superior Court (2004) 120 CA4th 490, 498 ].

Distinguish:

A plaintiff cannot join as a defendant one who is not a real party in interest, merely to obtain trial in the county of that defendant's residence [ see CCP § 395(a); Neet v. Holmes (1942) 19 C2d 605, 612, 122 P2d 557 ]. The test to determine whether the resident defendant has been joined solely for the purpose of having the action tried in the county of his or her residence is whether, based on an examination of pleadings, it appears the plaintiff pleaded a cause of action against him or her in good faith [ Russello v. Mori (1957) 153 CA2d 828, 830, 315 P2d 343 ; Taff v. Goodman (1940) 41 CA2d 771, 776, 107 P2d 431 ]. A purported cause of action stated in the pleadings against the defendant, apparently in good faith, is sufficient proof if it is not so defective as to be beyond correction by amendment [ Russello v. Mori (1957) 153 CA2d 828, 830, 315 P2d 343 ; see also Taff v. Goodman (1940) 41 CA2d 771, 776, 107 P2d 431 ].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of joinder of parties generally, see Ch. 5, Parties.

6.42[5] General Rules Apply Whether Individual or Corporate Defendants Are Joined. The general rules governing the effect of joinder of defendants on venue apply whether the defendants are individuals or corporations. A plaintiff may fix venue at the residence of either the individual or the corporation in an action against both, as long as the joinder is proper under the joinder statutes [ Dillman v. Superior Court (1962) 205 CA2d 769, 772, 23 CR 498 ; CCP § 395(a)].

Example:

When a corporation and an individual are properly joined as defendants, and the action is commenced in a county where the corporation has its principal place of business, but which is not the county in which the individual defendant resides, the individual defendant may not have the action moved to the county of his or her residence because the preference for residence venue under CCP § 395(a) is satisfied when venue is laid in a corporation's "residence," which is its principal place of business [see CCP § 395(a); see also Hale v. Bohannon (1952) 38 C2d 458, 472-473, 241 P2d 4 ; McClung v. Watt (1922) 190 C 155, 158-159, 211 P 17 ].

Distinguish:

If an action is commenced in a county that, although proper as to the corporate defendant, under one of the transaction-based venue provisions of CCP § 395.5 (county where contract made or to be performed, where obligation or liability arose, or where breach occurred), is not a proper venue for the individual defendant, the individual defendant is entitled to have the venue changed to the county where he or she resides [CCP § 395(a); State of Cal. v. Superior Court (1967) 252 CA2d 637, 642-643, 60 CR 653 ; see also Walker v. Wells Fargo Bank & Union Trust Co. (1937) 24 CA2d 220, 222-223, 74 P2d 849 (decided under former Cal Const, art XXI, § 16)].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of venue relating to corporate defendants generally, see 6.39.

6.42[6] When State and Corporate Defendants Are Joined in Personal Injury Actions, Venue Provisions of Gov Code § 955.2 Controls. When a plaintiff joins the state and a corporation as defendants in an action for personal injuries, the venue provisions in Gov Code § 955.2 takes precedence, and the plaintiff waives the procedural rights granted by CCP § 395.5 [ State v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1967) 252 CA2d 637, 643, 60 CR 653 ].

6.43 Venue in Actions by or Against Government Entities.

6.43[1] Venue in Actions Against the State.

6.43[1][a] General Venue Rules Apply Unless Another Statute Addresses Venue. Unless otherwise designated by statute, the provisions for venue that pertain to other civil actions apply to actions against the state and its agencies [ Regents of Univ. of Cal. v. Superior Court (1970) 3 C3d 529, 534-535, 91 CR 57, 476 P2d 457 ; see, e.g., CCP §§ 392, 393, 395 (general venue provisions)]. There are, however, several statutes governing actions against state agencies, officers, or public entities, which operate to override the general venue rules.

Examples:

Declaratory actions to establish nonresident tax status can be commenced only in Sacramento, San Francisco, or Los Angeles [CCP § 1060.5]. Inverse condemnation actions against the state must be brought in the county in which the property is situated [Gov Code § 955]. Actions against public officers should be brought where the cause of action, or some part thereof, arose [CCP § 393(b); see also Tharp v. Superior Court (1982) 32 C3d 496, 500-503, 186 CR 335, 651 P2d 1141 ].

6.43[1][b] Actions for Money or Damages May Be Transferred on Demand of Attorney General. In most actions against the state for money or damages, for which filing of a claim is a statutory prerequisite or specifically exempted (see Gov Code §§ 905, 905.1, 905.2, 905.7), the place of trial will be changed to Sacramento County on written demand by the Attorney General on or before answering [Gov Code § 955; but see Gov Code §§ 955.2, 955.3 (exceptions in actions for death or personal injury, or where local government entity is plaintiff)].

Distinguish:

Whenever any law of California provides that an action or proceeding against the state or any state department, institution, board, commission, bureau, officer, or other agency shall or may be commenced in, tried in, or removed to the County of Sacramento, the case may be commenced and tried in any city or city and county of California in which the Attorney General has an office, that is, San Francisco, Los Angeles County, or Sacramento County [CCP § 401(1); Harris v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Bd. (1961) 197 CA2d 759, 762, 18 CR 151 ].

 Cross References:

Discussion of general venue rules in transitory and local actions, see 6.35, 6.36.

Forms and discussion of claim filing requirements in actions against the state and local public entities, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act (Matthew Bender).

6.43[1][c] Proper Venue in Actions for Death or Injury to Person or Personal Property Is County Where Injury Occurred. When the state is named as a defendant in any action or proceeding for death or injury to person or personal property that occurred within the state, venue is proper in the county where the injury occurred [Gov Code § 955.2].

Exception:

The court may, on motion, change the place of the trial in the same manner and under the same circumstances as the place of trial may be changed where an action is between private parties [Gov Code § 955.2; see, e.g., CCP § 397 (change of venue motions)].

6.43[1][d] Actions by City, County, or Local Agency Against State. When a city, county, city and county, or local agency ("local government entity") is a plaintiff in an action or proceeding against the state, the action may be tried in any city or county where the local government entity is situated [Gov Code § 955.3].

Exception:

On behalf of the State of California and before answering, the Attorney General may move, under CCP § 397, to change the place of trial to Sacramento County, San Francisco County, or Los Angeles County [Gov Code § 955.3; CCP § 401 (allowing actions to be moved to any city or city and county in which the Attorney General has an office)].

In this context, "local agency" means any governmental district, board or agency, or any other local governmental body or corporation or elected local public official, but shall not include the state or any of its agencies, departments, commissions, or boards, or elected public officials in the state's executive branch [Gov Code § 955.3].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of actions by or against local government entities, see 6.43[3].

6.43[2] Actions by the State May Be Transferred on Defendant's Motion. Whenever any law of California provides that the state or any state department, institution, board, commission, bureau, officer, or other agency shall or may commence an action or proceeding in Sacramento County, on motion of the defendants or some of them, the case must be removed for trial to the county or city and county in which the Attorney General has an office nearest to the county in which the defendants or some of them reside or have their principal office in California [CCP § 401(2)].

6.43[3] Actions Involving Local Government Entities.

6.43[3][a] Action Against City, County, or Local Agency May Be Tried in Defendant County Unless Plaintiff Is Another Local Government Entity. An action or proceeding against a city, county, city and county ("city/county"), or local agency may be tried in the county or city/county in which that local government entity is situated [CCP § 394(a)]. In this context, a "local agency" is any governmental district, board or agency, or any other local governmental body or corporation not including the State of California or any of its agencies, departments, commissions or boards [CCP § 394(b)].

Exception:

If the action or proceeding is brought by another local government entity, it must be tried in a neutral county, which would be any county that is not a party to the action or in which either party is situated [CCP § 394(a); see Westinghouse Elec. Corp. v. Superior Court (1976) 17 C3d 259, 267-268, 131 CR 231, 551 P2d 847; see also San Francisco Found. v. Superior Court (1984) 37 C3d 285, 296, 208 CR 31, 690 P2d 1; City of Stockton v. Wilson (1926) 79 CA 422, 424, 249 P 835 ].

Thus, a plaintiff, other than a local government entity, is permitted to file and proceed to trial in an action or proceeding against a local government entity in the defendant county [ Fitzpatrick v. Sonoma County (1929) 97 CA 588, 591, 276 P 113; CCP § 394(a)].

6.43[3][b] Cases Are Subject to Transfer to Neutral County. Actions involving local government entities are subject to CCP § 394, which operates as a removal statute, providing for the transfer of an action by or against a local public entity to a neutral county, to avoid local bias [ County of Riverside v. Superior Court (1968) 69 C2d 828, 830-831, 73 CR 386, 447 P2d 626; Fin. & Constr. Co. v. Sacramento (1928) 204 C 491, 493, 269 P 167; see also San Francisco Found. v. Superior Court (1984) 37 C3d 285, 296, 208 CR 31, 690 P2d 1 ].

The statute operates when an action, to which a local government entity is a party, is pending in a county that is otherwise proper under venue rules [ County of San Bernardino v. Superior Court (1994) 30 CA4th 378, 381, 388-389, 35 CR2d 760; Dorame v. Superior Court (1978) 81 CA3d 70, 72, 146 CR 162 ]. Thus, venue statutes that specify the proper counties for the initial filing of actions (e.g., CCP §§ 392, 393, and 395), are subject to the court's power to transfer under CCP § 394 [ County of Riverside v. Superior Court (1968) 69 C2d 828, 831, 73 CR 386, 447 P2d 626 ].

Example:

This transfer statute modifies the venue rules in local actions, such that an eminent domain proceeding properly brought in the county where the property sought to be taken is located may be transferred to a neutral county on a motion by the plaintiff county [ City of Stockton v. Ellingwood (1926) 78 CA 117, 121, 248 P 272; see City of Stockton v. Wilson (1926) 79 CA 422, 424-425, 249 P 835; see CCP § 1250.020].

When transfer is indicated, the trial court will select the neutral county to which a case will be transferred [ Cent. Contra Costa Sanitary Dist. v. Superior Court (1978) 84 CA3d 702, 706, 148 CR 801 ].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of venue in transitory actions, see 6.35, and local actions, see 6.36.

Compare:

The California appellate court districts disagree over whether CCP § 394, which refers specifically only to plaintiffs and defendants, applies to cross-complainants and cross-defendants [see, e.g., Ohio Cas. Ins. Group v. Superior Court (1994) 30 CA4th 444, 450-451, 35 CR2d 771 (Third Dist.; criticizing and declining to follow City of Chico v. Superior Court (1979) 89 CA3d 187, 152 CR 380 (First Dist., Div. Four)); Kennedy/Jenks Consultants, Inc. v. Superior Court (2000) 80 CA4th 948, 955-956, 95 CR2d 817 (First Dist., Div. Five; following Third Dist.); Metropolitan Transit System v. Superior Court (2007) 153 CA4th 293, 302, 62 CR3d 517 (Fourth Dist., Div. One; following Third Dist.)].

6.43[3][c] Government Entity's Role in Action Determines Whether CCP § 394 Applies. Whether an action is brought by a local government entity within the meaning of CCP § 394 depends on the role of the government entity in the lawsuit [see Transamerica Homefirst, Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 69 CA4th 577, 579-580, 81 CR2d 705 ].

Examples:

When a district attorney represents the People of the State of California in a red light abatement action pursuant to Pen Code § 11226, the district attorney acts on behalf of the state rather than the county, and the mandatory transfer provisions of CCP § 394(a) do not apply [ Nguyen v. Superior Court (1996) 49

CA4th 1781, 1784, 1786-1791, 57 CR2d 611 ]. Similarly, when a county's public guardian brings an action on behalf of a conservatee, against a nonresident defendant, the action is not brought by a county agency within the meaning of CCP § 394, and the action need not be transferred [ Transamerica Homefirst, Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 69 CA4th 577, 579-581, 81 CR2d 705 ].

Exception:

Venue in actions initiated by local child support agencies under Fam. Code §§ 17400, 17402, 17404, and 17416 is governed by the venue provision in Fam Code § 17400(n) [see CCP § 394(a)].

6.43[3][d] Parties May Stipulate to Place of Trial. In actions that are subject to CCP § 394, the parties may, by stipulation in writing, or made in open court and entered in the minutes, agree on any county for the place of trial [CCP § 394(a); Newman v. County of Sonoma (1961) 56 C2d 625, 627, 15 CR 914, 364 P2d 850 ].

6.43[3][e] In Nonjury Cases, Disinterested Judge May Be Assigned in Lieu of Transfer. When the action or proceeding is one in which a jury is not of right, or if a jury is waived, in lieu of transferring the case, the court in the original county may request the chairman of the Judicial Council to assign a disinterested judge from a neutral county to hear the case and all proceedings in connection with it [CCP § 394(a)].

This rule applies despite the presence of another party plaintiff, who has the right to a jury trial, and it is error for the court to deny the governmental entity's motion based on the presence of the nongovernmental party, who is subject to the general venue rules [see Brennan v. Superior Court (1994) 30 CA4th 454, 460-462, 35 CR2d 693 ].

6.43[4] Specific Transfer Rules for Certain Actions by Local Government Entities.

6.43[4][a] Action Against a Resident of, or Corporation Doing Business in, Another City or County Must Be Transferred on Motion of Either Party. Whenever an action or proceeding is brought by a local government entity within a certain county against a resident of, or a corporation doing business in, another city or county, on motion of either party, the case must be transferred for trial to a neutral county [CCP § 394(a); see Kennedy/Jenks Consultants, Inc. v. Superior Court (2000) 80 CA4th 948, 953-964, 95 CR2d 817 ].

Exception:

A corporation "doing business" within the forum county might not obtain a transfer when there is a small likelihood of local bias against the corporation [see San Francisco Found. v. Superior Court (1984) 37 C3d 285, 297-298, 208 CR 31, 690 P2d 1 ]. When the nature of the case poses a reasonable risk that the defendant would be viewed as an outsider, however, a change of venue under CCP § 394(a) is proper [see San Francisco Found. v. Superior Court (1984) 37 C3d 285, 299, 208 CR 31, 690 P2d 1 ; Kennedy/Jenks Consultants, Inc. v. Superior Court (2000) 80 CA4th 948, 963-964, 95 CR2d 817 ].

For venue transfer purposes, whether a corporation is "doing business" in the forum county turns on the extent to which the corporation is viewed as an outsider by the community [ San Francisco Found. v. Superior Court (1984) 37 C3d 285, 298, 208 CR 31, 690 P2d 1 ; see Kennedy/Jenks Consultants, Inc. v. Superior Court (2000) 80 CA4th 948, 957-958, 95 CR2d 817 ; see also Westinghouse Elec. Corp. v. Superior Court (1976) 17 C3d 259, 270, 131 CR 231, 551 P2d 847 ].

 Cross Reference:

Definition of "neutral county," see exception in 6.43[3][b].

6.43[4][b] Personal Injury Actions Against Local Government Entities Must Be Transferred to Defendant County. Any action or proceeding against a local government entity for injury occurring to person or property within the defendant county, city/county, or county in which the local agency is situated, caused by the alleged negligence of such local government entity, or its agents or employees, must be tried in the defendant county, city/county, or county in which the local agency is situated [CCP § 394(a); see also Ventura Unified Sch. Dist. v. Superior Court (2001) 92 CA4th 811, 814, 112 CR2d 260 ].

Example:

If a plaintiff sues both a county and individual defendants, who reside outside the county, for injuries occurring within the county, CCP § 394 requires the suit to be tried in defendant county, even though the general venue statute (see CCP § 395) would have permitted trial in the county where the individual defendants reside [ County of Orange v. Superior Court (1999) 73 CA4th 1189, 1192-1193, 86 CR2d 923 ].

Exceptions:

Despite the mandatory language of CCP § 394, a plaintiff may seek and obtain a discretionary change of venue to another county under CCP § 397(b) [see Paesano v. Superior Court (1988) 204 CA3d 17, 19-20, 250 CR 842 ].

The right to transfer under CCP § 394 may be waived if there is unreasonable delay in seeking a change of venue [ Ventura Unified Sch. Dist. v. Superior Court (2001) 92 CA4th 811, 815, 112 CR2d 260 (citing Newman v. County of Sonoma (1961) 56 C2d 625, 627-628, 15 CR 914, 364 P2d 850 )].

6.44 Moving for Change of Venue in Actions by or Against Local Government Entities.

6.44[1] Motions Not Subject to Procedural Requirements of CCP § 396b(a). The procedural requirements of CCP § 396b(a), governing motions for change of venue generally, do not govern venue transfer motions under CCP § 394 [ Channell v. Superior Court (1964) 226 CA2d 246, 252, 38 CR 13 ].

Timing:

CCP § 394 does not prescribe a time within which a motion for transfer to a neutral county must be made, but courts have held the motion may be made within a reasonable time after the time to answer or bring a counterclaim, and even after a demurrer has been heard and submitted for decision [see, e.g., Adams v. Superior Court (1964) 226 CA2d 365, 367-369, 38 CR 164 ]. Nonetheless, the right to a change of venue may be deemed waived for lack of diligence in prosecuting the motion, and if the motion is made after the demurrer has been submitted to the court for decision, the issues of law raised by the demurrer may be decided by the original court [see Adams v. Superior Court (1964) 226 CA2d 365, 367-369, 38 CR 164 ].

Generally, however, the motion will not be denied on the ground that it is untimely unless it is pursued for dilatory purposes and unless the government entity can show substantial prejudice [ Marin Cmty. College Dist. v. Superior Court (1977) 72 CA3d 719, 723, 140 CR 310 ].

6.44[2] Moving Party Has Burden of Proof. The burden of proof justifying a change of venue rests on the moving party [ City of Los Angeles v. Pac. Tel. & Tel. Co. (1958) 164 CA2d 253, 260, 330 P2d 888 ]. However, the moving party is not required to show possible prejudice [ City of Alameda v. Superior Court (1974) 42 CA3d 312, 317, 116 CR 806 ]. The moving party is only required to show the following:

- That the proceeding was brought in the county in which plaintiff government entity was situated; and
- That the defendant lived in another county.

Once the moving party has met its burden, change of venue to a neutral county is mandatory [CCP § 394; see San Francisco Found. v. Superior Court (1984) 37 C3d 285, 296-297 208 CR 31, 690 P2d 1 ; City of Oakland v. Darbee (1951) 102 CA2d 493, 500, 227 P2d 909 ; see also Ohio Cas. Ins. Group v. Superior Court (1994) 30 CA4th 444, 452, 35 CR2d 771 (stating in dicta that prejudice is presumed and transfer mandatory unless nonmoving party would suffer actual prejudice from transfer)].

6.45 CHECKLIST: Moving for Change of Venue.

- ☐ Determine whether a change of venue is necessary or would benefit client.
- ☐ Determine whether venue was proper when/where case filed by analyzing applicable venue statutes.
- ☐ Determine whether any of the following grounds for change of venue apply:
  - ☐ Action not filed in proper court.
  - ☐ Impartial trial cannot be had.
  - ☐ Convenience of witnesses and interests of justice.
  - ☐ No qualified judge available.

Authority:
CCP § 397

Discussion:
See 6.47

- ☐ Draft motion for change of venue, supporting declarations and memorandum, and proposed order.

Timing:

Simultaneous with answering, demurring, or moving to strike, or without answering, demurring, or moving to strike, within the time allowed to respond to the complaint [CCP § 396b(a)].

VI. MOVING FOR CHANGE OF VENUE

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 6.46

6.46 Options and Strategy.

If the defendant does not agree with the plaintiff's choice venue for a case, the defendant may move for change of venue.

Strategic Point:

Consider witness availability, jury pool, costs, time, availability of records, and potential judges. If the defendant's case is adversely affected by plaintiff's choice of venue and a good argument can be made for moving to another California superior court, move for change of venue immediately.

The first step is to seek a stipulation between the parties to change venue. The plaintiff's initial choice may well have been made without knowledge of certain facts. Educate the plaintiff about how a change of venue will benefit all parties involved and make for a more just and speedy resolution. If a stipulation is not forthcoming, move the court to make the change in forum.

The plaintiff's venue choice will be presumed valid, and the defendant will have the burden of showing the original court to be improper under any applicable theory and that the other venue sought is a proper court. Emphasize the fairness of moving the action for all involved, as well as the best use of court resources. If the plaintiff's choice of venue is not supported by the facts, consider requesting attorney fees and expenses. Even if the motion is unsuccessful, the motion may yield insights into the plaintiff's case.

Chapter 6 Determining Forum
VI. MOVING FOR CHANGE OF VENUE

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 6.47

6.47 Grounds for Motion for Change of Venue.

6.47[1] Action Commenced in Wrong Court.

6.47[1][a] Defendant May File Motion for Order Transferring Action to Proper Court in Lieu of Answer.

Except as otherwise provided in CCP § 396a, if an action or proceeding is commenced in a court other than the court designated as the proper place for trial by CCP §§ 392-395.5, the defendant may file a notice of motion for an order transferring the case to the proper court with the clerk of the court, together with proof of service of such papers on adverse parties [CCP § 396b(a); see also CCP §§ 397(a), 1010; Otsuka v. Balangue (1949) 92 CA2d 788, 790, 208 P2d 65; Bohn v. Bohn (1913) 164 C 532, 536, 129 P 981 (requirements of CCP § 1010 apply)].

Strategic Point:

Before proceeding on a motion for transfer order, the parties should first consider entering a stipulation to change venue.

Timing:

A defendant seeking a change of venue based on this ground must move for an order transferring the action at the time he or she answers, demurs, or moves to strike, or, at his or her option, without answering, demurring, or moving to strike and within the time otherwise allowed to respond to the complaint [CCP § 396b(a)].

On the hearing of a motion for an order transferring an action to the proper court, if it appears the action was not commenced in the proper court, the original court must order the case transferred to the proper court [CCP § 396b(a)].

Exception:

Actions involving installment or automotive sales, certain consumer obligations, or unlawful detainer are excepted from CCP § 396b(a) [see CCP §§ 396a, 396b(a)].

Cross References:

Form notice of motion, see 6.65.

Form declarations in support of motion, see 6.66, 6.67.

Discussion of selection of transferee court, see 6.53.

6.47[1][b] Court May Order Payment of Prevailing Party's Expenses and Attorney Fees in Making or Resisting Motion. In its discretion, the court may order the payment to the prevailing party of reasonable expenses and attorney's fees incurred in making or resisting the motion to transfer [CCP § 396b(b)]. In determining whether an order for expenses and fees will be made, the court must take into consideration:

- Whether an offer to stipulate to change of venue was reasonably made and rejected; and
- Whether the motion or selection of venue was made in good faith, given the facts and law the party making the motion or selecting the venue knew or should have known.

Such sanctions may not be imposed unless there is notice, contained in a party's papers or on the court's own noticed motion, and an opportunity to be heard [CCP § 396b(b)].

Warning:

The expenses and fees to be paid to the prevailing party will be the personal liability of the attorney, and are not chargeable to the party [CCP § 396b(b)]. The court may award attorney's fees if, after reviewing the factual and legal presentation made by the losing party, it finds that no reasonable attorney would have honestly chosen the forum, and that it appears to have been selected to impair the defendant's right to defend.

Reasonable Investigation and Selection of Forum:

An attorney must carefully investigate the facts of a case to determine which court is proper for bringing an action. If, following a thorough investigation, an attorney has an honest and reasonable belief that his or her client has a tenable contention, and that he or she can provide facts supporting the choice of venue to the court's satisfaction, the investigation and forum selection will likely be considered reasonable [see Metzger v. Silverman (1976) 62 CA3d Supp 30, 38-39, 133 CR 355 ; see also Cacciaguidi v. Superior Court (1990) 226 CA3d 181, 187, 276 CR 465 ].

Strategic Point--Prevailing Party:

If the motion for transfer or the opposition to it is frivolous or otherwise improper, sanctions may also be available under the general provisions of CCP § 128.7.

Cross References:

Discussion of sanctions under CCP § 128.7, see Ch. 35, Sanctions.

Discussion of recovery of costs and attorney's fees, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, Chs. 24, Costs, and 25, Attorney's Fees.

6.47[1][c] If Motion for Transfer Order Is Denied, Defendant Is Allowed Time to Plead. If a motion for change of venue is denied, the court will allow the defendant time to move to strike, demur, or otherwise plead if he or she has not previously filed a response to the complaint [CCP § 396b(e)].

6.47[2] Impartial Trial Cannot Be Had.

6.47[2][a] Party May Move for Change of Venue Based on Inability to Obtain Impartial Trial. On motion of a party, a court may change the place of trial when there is reason to believe that an impartial trial cannot be had in the forum [CCP § 397(b)].

6.47[2][b] Motion Filed After Answer or After Jury Impaneled. While the transfer statute itself is silent on the issue of timing, caselaw indicates that a motion based on CCP § 397(b) must be made after the answer has been filed [see, e.g., Cook v. Pendergast (1882) 61 C 72, 79]. However, courts may differ regarding whether there must be a failed attempt to impanel an impartial jury before such a motion can be filed [see, e.g., J.I. Case Threshing Co. v. Copren Bros. (1917) 35 CA 70, 79, 169 P 443]. One court has held there is no need to delay the transfer decision until an attempt to secure a fair and impartial jury has been made if, at the motion hearing, there is sufficient reason to believe an impartial trial cannot be had [see People v. Ocean S. R., Inc. (1938) 24 CA2d 420, 426-427, 75 P2d 560].

Cross References:

Form of notice of motion, see 6.65.

Form of declaration in support of motions under CCP § 397, see 6.66.

6.47[3] Convenience of Witnesses and Ends of Justice Would Be Promoted by Transfer.

6.47[3][a] Procedure for Noticed Motions Applies. A party may base a motion for change of venue on the ground that the convenience of witnesses and the ends of justice would be promoted [CCP § 397(c)]. There is no stated procedure for bringing a motion on this basis; however, caselaw indicates that CCP § 1010 (requisites of written notice) governs notice of motions brought under CCP § 397(c) [see Willingham v. Pecora (1941) 44 CA2d 289, 295, 112 P2d 328].

Cross References:

Form notice of motion and motion, see 6.65.

Form declaration in support of motion, see 6.66.

6.47[3][b] Motion Must Be Filed Within Reasonable Time After Answer. There is no express time limit within which a motion for change of venue must be made under CCP § 397(c); however, a court will not entertain a motion based on witness convenience when the defendant has not yet filed an answer because, until the issues are joined, the court cannot determine what testimony will be material [ Johnson v. Superior Court (1965) 232 CA2d 212, 214, 42 CR 645]. For similar reasons, the court cannot entertain a CCP § 397(c) motion when the defendant has appeared only by demurrer [ Russello v. Mori (1957) 153 CA2d 828, 834, 315 P2d 343]. Thus, the rule courts employ is that a motion based on this ground must be made within a reasonable time after the answer is filed [ Cooney v. Cooney (1944) 25 C2d 202, 208, 153 P2d 334; Thompson v. Superior Court (1972) 26 CA3d 300, 306, 103 CR 94].

6.47[3][c] Court Considers Convenience of Nonparty Witnesses Only. The court should not grant a CCP § 397(c) motion unless both the convenience of the witnesses will be served and the ends of justice will be promoted. In this regard, the court will normally consider the convenience only of witnesses who are neither parties to the action nor employees of a party [see Lieberman v. Superior Court (1987) 194 CA3d 396, 401, 239 CR 450; Dillman v. Superior Court (1962) 205 CA2d 769, 773, 23 CR 498; Harden v. Skinner & Hammond (1955) 130 CA2d 750, 754, 279 P2d 978; see also Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 C2d 594, 611, 328 P2d 953 (convenience of expert witnesses not considered unless they have personal knowledge of facts, i.e., they are percipient witnesses)].

Exceptions:

A court may consider a party's convenience when the serious illness of the party will prevent his or her traveling to attend the trial in the other county and his or her testimony is material [ Lieberman v. Superior Court (1987) 194 CA3d 396, 401, 239 CR 450 ]. Likewise, the court may consider the convenience of witnesses who are employees of a party when the employees are called as witnesses by the adverse party rather than on behalf of their employer [ Lieberman v. Superior Court (1987) 194 CA3d 396, 401-402, 239 CR 450 ].

6.47[3][d] Moving Party Must Show Testimony Is Admissible, Relevant and Material, and That Witness Will Be Inconvenienced. The moving party will meet part of his or her burden by showing that the proposed testimony of the witnesses is admissible, relevant, and material to some issue in the case, and that it will be inconvenient for the witnesses to attend trial [ Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 C2d 594, 607, 328 P2d 953 ; Willingham v. Pecora (1941) 44 CA2d 289, 293, 112 P2d 328 ]. The inconvenience to witnesses in attending trial, not simply where they reside, is the issue the court considers [ Willingham v. Pecora (1941) 44 CA2d 289, 293, 112 P2d 328 ]. Although the witnesses' residences are not determinative, the fact that all the witnesses reside in the county to which the transfer is requested will be relevant to the issue of convenience. Further, inconvenience may be presumed from the witnesses' distance from the county where the case is pending [ Pearson v. Superior Court (1962) 199 CA2d 69, 77, 18 CR 578 ].

The moving party may show that the ends of justice will be promoted by demonstrating that delay and expense in court proceedings will be avoided, and transfer will save the witnesses' time and expenses [ Pearson v. Superior Court (1962) 199 CA2d 69, 77, 18 CR 578 ; Harden v. Skinner & Hammond (1955) 130 CA2d 750, 754, 279 P2d 978 ].

6.47[4] All Judges in County Disqualified. The place of trial may be changed when the judges of the court in which the action is brought are disqualified to try the case [CCP § 397(d); Hancock v. Burton (1882) 61 C 70, 71 ]. However, even if all judges in the original county are disqualified from trying a case, a qualified judge from another county may be assigned, and the case need not be transferred [ People v. Spring Valley Co. (1952) 109 CA2d 656, 672, 241 P2d 1069 ]. Thus, motions brought on this basis are rare.

6.48 Who May Bring Motion to Transfer Venue.

6.48[1] Defendant May Demand Transfer--If No Other Defendant Resides in Forum. When an action is not brought in the proper county, any defendant may move for a transfer to the proper county, without joining any codefendants [ People v. Ocean S. R., Inc. (1938) 24 CA2d 420, 424, 75 P2d 560 ; see CCP §§ 396b, 397(a)]. The moving defendant or defendants must show that none of the other defendants reside in the forum [ Goossen v. Clifton (1946) 75 CA2d 44, 51, 170 P2d 104 ]. These rules apply to motions based on any of the grounds stated in CCP § 397 [ People v. Ocean S. R., Inc. (1938) 24 CA2d 420, 424, 75 P2d 560 ].

6.48[2] Plaintiffs May Seek Transfer on Grounds Other Than Case Brought in Wrong County. A plaintiff may move to change the place of trial on all of the grounds enumerated in CCP § 397, except the ground that he or she has brought the action in the wrong county [see Cook v. Pendergast (1882) 61 C 72, 79 ; CCP § 397].

6.49 Until Motion for Change of Venue Decided, Court May Not Proceed With Any Other Issue in Case.

The filing of motion for change of venue suspends the power of the trial court to act on any other question until the motion has been determined, and any order made before the motion is determined is a nullity [ Moore v. Powell (1977) 70 CA3d 583, 587, 138 CR 914 ; Adams v. Superior Court (1964) 226 CA2d 365, 368, 38 CR 164 ; Beard v. Superior Court (1940) 39 CA2d 284, 286, 102 P2d 1087 ].

Examples:

The court has no authority to issue a temporary restraining order relating to the main action after a notice of motion for transfer has been filed [ County of Riverside v. Superior Court (1968) 69 C2d 828, 831, 73 CR 386, 447 P2d 626 ].

Similarly, the court may not issue an order passing on a demurrer to the complaint [see City of Oakland v. Darbee (1951) 102 CA2d 493, 503, 227 P2d 909 (also holding rule applicable to CCP § 394 transfer motions)].

Exceptions:

Exceptions to this rule apply to certain rulings in dissolution of marriage or separation proceedings and to proceedings under the Uniform Parentage Act [see CCP §§ 396b(c), 397(e)].

VI. MOVING FOR CHANGE OF VENUE

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 6.50

6.50 Opposing Motions for Change of Venue.

6.50[1] Original Court Considers Opposition. If an answer has been filed, the original court may consider opposition to the motion to transfer, and retain the action in the forum county if it appears that will promote the convenience of the witnesses or the ends of justice [CCP § 396b(d)].

6.50[2] Plaintiff May File Counteraffidavit in Opposition to Motion. If a defendant's motion is made on any of the following grounds, the plaintiff may file counteraffidavits in response to the motion:

- An impartial trial cannot be had [CCP § 397(b)];
- The change will promote the convenience of the witnesses and the ends of justice [CCP § 397(c)]; or
- No judge of the court is qualified to act [CCP § 397(d)].

6.50[3] If Defendant's Motion Is Based on Residence in Another County, Plaintiff May File Countermotion Based on Witness Convenience or Interests of Justice. A plaintiff has the right to oppose a defense motion that asserts the action was not brought in the county of defendant's residence, by showing, on countermotion, that the convenience of the witnesses or the ends of justice would be promoted by refusing to change counties [CCP § 396b(d); see Cook v. Pendergast (1882) 61 C 72, 76 ; Braunstein v. Superior Court (1964) 225 CA2d 691, 697, 37 CR 666 ].

Timing:

Like a motion under CCP § 397(c), a countermotion to retain a cause on the ground of witness convenience is not proper unless the defendant has filed his or her answer, because, until the issues of fact are joined by the answer, the court cannot determine what testimony will be material [CCP § 396b(d); Gilman v. Nordin (1952) 112 CA2d 788, 793, 247 P2d 394 ]. Similarly, an attempt to retain the original venue for the convenience of the witnesses cannot be made when only a demurrer has been filed [ Johnson v. Superior Court (1965) 232 CA2d 212, 214, 42 CR 645 ].

Cross Reference:

Form of notice of countermotion, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 571, Venue, § 571.104 (Matthew Bender).

Distinguish:

The courts of appeal are in conflict over whether CCP § 396b(d) requires a plaintiff to show both that the convenience of the witnesses and the ends of justice will be served by retaining the action in the original county (as required in motions brought under CCP § 397(c)), or if the plaintiff may prevail by showing that either interest would be promoted [see Braunstein v. Superior Court (1964) 225 CA2d 691, 698 n2, 37 CR 666 (1st Dist., either factor is sufficient); Maxwell v. Murray (1961) 190 CA2d 440, 443, 11 CR 916 (2nd Dist., requiring both factors)].

6.50[4] Plaintiff's Choice of Venue Is Presumptively Correct. The plaintiff's choice of venue is presumptively correct [ Buran Equip. Co., Inc. v. Superior Court (1987) 190 CA3d 1662, 1666, 236 CR 171 ; Easton v. Superior Court (1970) 12 CA3d 243, 247, 90 CR 642 ]. Thus, the county in which the action is brought is, prima facie, the proper county for the filing and trial of the action absent an affirmative showing to the contrary [ Mission Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1982) 31 C3d 921, 928, 184 CR 296, 647 P2d 1075 ].

6.51 Burdens of Proof on Motions for Transfer.

6.51[1] Moving Party Must Show Original Court Is Improper Under Any Applicable Theory and County to Which Transfer Is Sought Is Proper. The general rule is that the party moving for a change of venue must show the following [ Mosby v. Superior Court (1974) 43 CA3d 219, 228, 117 CR 588 ]:

- That the county in which the action was filed is improper under any applicable theory; and
- That the action is proper in the county to which he or she seeks a transfer.

Example:

A corporate defendant seeking a change of venue in a contract action brought in a county other than where it has its principal place of business must show that [ Shores v. Chip Steak Co. (1955) 130 CA2d 620, 623, 279 P2d 591 ; see CCP § 395.5 (venue in actions against corporations and associations)]:

- The contract was not made or to be performed in that county;
- The obligation or liability of the defendant did not arise there; and
- Any breach of obligation did not occur there.

➡ Cross Reference:

Discussion of burdens of proof and persuasion, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, Ch. 9, Burden of Proof and Persuasion.

6.51[2] Defendant Has Initial Burden on Motion Alleging Action Commenced in Wrong Court. When a motion to change venue is based on the ground that the original court is "not the proper court" for the action, the defendant bears the burden of showing facts justifying a change of venue [ Massae v. Superior Court (1981) 118 CA3d

527, 530, 173 CR 527 ; see CCP § 397(a)].

Example:

If the motion is based on the defendant's residence under CCP § 395(a), the defendant is required to show that at the commencement of the action, he or she was not a resident of the county where the action was brought, and is currently a resident of the county to which he or she wishes the case transferred [ Sequoia Pine Mills, Inc. v. Superior Court (1968) 258 CA2d 65, 67-68, 65 CR 353 ]. If the defendant makes this showing, the burden of proof shifts back to the plaintiff, who must then show that the case comes clearly within one of the statutory exceptions to the general rule that actions are triable at the place of defendant's residence [ Stute v. Burinda (1981) 123 CA3d Supp 11, 15, 177 CR 102 ; Archer v. Superior Court (1961) 202 CA2d 417, 420, 21 CR 48 ].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of burdens of proof and persuasion, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, Ch. 9, Burden of Proof and Persuasion.

6.51[3] Moving Party Has Burden of Proof When Motion Based on Other Grounds. If the motion is based on CCP § 397(b)-(d), the burden is on the moving party, whether he or she is plaintiff or defendant [see City of Stockton v. Ellingwood (1926) 78 CA 117, 121-122, 248 P 272 (countermotion by defendant based on witness convenience); see also J.I. Case Threshing Co. v. Copren Bros. (1917) 35 CA 70, 75-76, 169 P 443 (motion by plaintiff based on inability to have impartial trial)].

6.52 Actions Involving Installment or Automotive Sales, Consumer Obligations, or Unlawful Detainer.

6.52[1] Case Not Commenced in Proper Court Will Be Transferred. If it appears from the complaint, affidavit or declaration, or otherwise, that the court in which the case was commenced is not the proper court for its trial, the original court must, whenever that fact appears, transfer the case to the proper court on its own motion, or on motion of the defendant [CCP § 396a(b)].

Exception:

If the defendant consents in writing, or in open court with consent being entered in the minutes of the court, to keeping the case in the court where it was filed, the case may continue in that court [see CCP § 396a(b) (requiring defendant to be represented by counsel at time of giving consent)].

If a case is ordered transferred under CCP § 396a(b), and summons is served on a defendant before the case is filed in the transferee court, as to any defendant so served who has not appeared in the case, the time to answer or otherwise plead dates from service on that defendant of written notice of the filing [CCP § 396a(c)].

6.52[2] Case Commenced in Proper Court May Be Transferred. Even if it appears from the plaintiff's complaint or affidavit that the court in which an action or proceeding was commenced is a proper court for its trial, a motion for transfer may be made as in other cases, within the time, on the grounds, and in the manner provided in other cases. If, on such a motion, it appears the case is not pending in the proper court, or should for other reason be transferred, it must be ordered transferred as provided in CCP § 392 et seq. [CCP § 396a(e)].

6.52[3] Transfer Procedures and Fees Are As in Other Cases. When any action or proceeding is ordered transferred as provided in CCP § 396a, the procedures, and the costs and fees to be paid, will be as provided in CCP §§ 398 and 399 [CCP § 396a].

6.53 Transfer of Case After Motion for Change of Venue Granted.

6.53[1] If Action Commenced in Wrong Court, Transfer Will Be to Proper Court As Agreed by Parties, or As Designated by Defendant or Transferor Court. If the court orders the action or proceeding transferred on the ground that it was commenced in the wrong court, it must be transferred to any proper court that the parties may agree on by stipulation in writing, or made in open court and entered in the minutes or docket. If the parties do not so agree, the case must be transferred to any proper court in the county in which the action or proceeding was commenced that the defendant may designate, or, if there is no proper court in that county, to any proper court, in a proper county, designated by the defendant. If the parties do not agree, and the defendant does not designate a court, or if the court orders the transfer on its own motion as provided in CCP §§ 392-404.8, then the case will be transferred to a proper court as determined by the transferor court [CCP § 398; Cubic Corp. v. Superior Court (1986) 186 CA3d 622, 625, 231 CR 18 ].

6.53[2] Transfer of a Case Brought in Proper Court Will Be to Court As Agreed by Parties, or to Nearest or Most Accessible Proper Court. If the court orders the transfer of a case for any reason specified in CCP § 397(b)-(d), transfer must be to a court having subject matter jurisdiction that the parties agree on by stipulation in writing, or made in open court and entered in the minutes or docket, or, if they do not so agree, then to the nearest or most accessible court where the objection or cause for making the order does not exist [CCP § 398].

6.53[3] Transfer Costs and Fees Paid by Moving Party or, If Action in Wrong Court, by Plaintiff. When a transfer is sought on any ground stated in CCP § 397(b)-(e), the costs and fees of the transfer, and of filing the papers in the transferee court, must be paid at the time the moving party files the motion for transfer [CCP § 399(a)].

When a transfer occurs solely because the action was commenced in the wrong court, the costs and fees, including any expenses and attorney fees awarded the defendant under CCP § 396b, must be paid by the plaintiff before the case is transferred, and any costs or fees paid by the defendant on filing the transfer motion must be repaid by the plaintiff when transfer is ordered [CCP § 399(a)].

Exception:

If the plaintiff does not pay the costs and fees within five days after service of notice of the transfer order, any other interested party, whether named in the complaint or not, may pay the costs and fees, and the clerk must transmit the papers and pleadings as if the plaintiff had paid them. In that case, the costs and fees will be a proper cost item recoverable by the party who paid them if he or she prevails in the action. Otherwise, the costs and fees will be offset against and deducted from the amount, if any, awarded the plaintiff if he or she prevails in the action [CCP § 399(a)].

Warning:

An action will not be prosecuted further in any court until the transfer costs and fees are paid. If they are not paid within 30 days after notice of the transfer order (or notice of its finality following a petition for writ of mandate or appeal) is served, the court may dismiss the action without prejudice, on any party's duly noticed motion. Following such a dismissal, no other action on the cause may be commenced until the court's order for fees and costs is satisfied [CCP § 399(a)].

Exception:

If the writ of mandate proceeding or appeal does not stay proceedings, costs must be paid 60 days after notice of the transfer order is served [CCP § 399(a)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of transfer costs and fees, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 571, Venue (Matthew Bender).

6.53[4] Clerks of Courts Must Provide Notice of Transfer and New Case Number. When an order is made transferring an action or proceeding under any of the provisions of CCP §§ 392-404.9, and transfer costs and fees have been paid, the clerk must transmit the pleadings and papers in the case to the clerk of the court to which the action or proceeding is being transferred, once the time for filing a petition for writ of mandate under CCP § 400 has expired, or, if a petition is filed, after judgment denying the writ becomes final [CCP § 399(a)].

When the clerk transmits the papers and pleadings, he or she must mail notice to all parties who have appeared in the case, stating the date on which the transmittal occurred. Promptly on receipt of the papers and pleadings, the clerk of the transferee court must mail notice to all parties who have appeared in the case, stating the date of the filing of the case and the number assigned to it [CCP § 399(b)].

6.54 Jurisdiction Following Change of Venue.

6.54[1] Transferee Court Has Same Jurisdiction As If Action Commenced There. The court to which an action or proceeding is transferred under CCP §§ 392-404.8 will have the same jurisdiction over the case as if it had been originally commenced there, and the court may require the filing and service of amended, additional, or supplemental pleadings as may be necessary for the proper presentation and determination of the case [CCP § 399(c)].

6.54[2] Transferor Court Lacks Jurisdiction to Take Any Further Steps. The court granting a motion for a change of venue is without jurisdiction to make any further order or take any further steps in the action [ Moore v. Powell (1977) 70 CA3d 583, 587, 138 CR 914 ].

Exception:

The transferor court may consider a motion to vacate the transfer order brought under CCP § 473, based on mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [ Badella v. Miller (1955) 44 C2d 81, 86, 279 P2d 729 ].

VI. MOVING FOR CHANGE OF VENUE

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 6.55

6.55 Motion for Change of Venue May Be Renewed If Circumstances Change.

A court has jurisdiction to consider a renewal of a motion for change of venue, but as a matter of policy and practice, renewal of the same motion is discouraged, and the renewed motion will almost invariably be denied when the grounds are the same. However, when circumstances have changed, renewal of the motion may be proper. In such a case, the renewed motion must be made within a reasonable time after the changed circumstances are, or should be, known [ Thompson v. Superior Court (1972) 26 CA3d 300, 306, 103 CR 94 ]. A renewed motion may also be proper if it is made on a different ground than the previous motion [ Seybert v. County of Imperial (1956) 139 CA2d 221, 226-230, 293 P2d 135 ].

In addition, a court may entertain a renewed motion if the first motion was expressly denied without prejudice [ Lundy v. Lettunich (1920) 50 CA 451, 454-455, 195 P 451 ]. Successive motions may be considered if they are made by different parties [ Marshall v. Dunlap (1955) 138 CA2d 59, 60-61, 291 P2d 538 ].

VI. MOVING FOR CHANGE OF VENUE

1-6 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 6.56

6.56 Seeking Review of Orders Issued on Motions to Change Venue.

6.56[1] Aggrieved Party May Petition Court of Appeal for Writ of Mandate. When the superior court grants or denies a motion to change the place of trial, the party aggrieved by the court's order may petition the court of appeal, for the district in which the court that issued the order is situated, for a writ of mandate requiring trial of the case in the proper court. [CCP § 400].

Timing:

The petition must be filed within 20 days after written notice of the order is served. However, prior to the expiration of this initial 20-day period, the superior court may extend the time to file a petition, for good cause, for one additional period not to exceed 10 days [CCP § 400].

The petitioner must file a copy of the petition in the trial court immediately after the petition is filed in the court of appeal. The court of appeal may stay all proceedings in the case, pending judgment on the petition becoming final. The clerk of the court of appeal must file with the clerk of the trial court a copy of any final order or judgment immediately after the order or judgment becomes final [CCP § 400].

Cross Reference:

Forms and discussion of mandate proceedings in general, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition (Matthew Bender).

6.56[2] Standard of Review on Appeal.

6.56[2][a] When Transfer Is Matter of Right, Only Arbitrary Rulings Are Disturbed. When a change of venue is a matter of right, an appellate court will not disturb an order made on conflicting evidence unless it is clear that the order was the result of arbitrary action [see Swartz v. Cal. Olive Growers' Packing Corp. (1942) 56 CA2d 168, 170-171, 133 P2d 20 ; see CCP § 396b(a) (mandatory language of statute requires action not commenced in proper court to be transferred to proper court)].

6.56[2][b] Discretionary Rulings Are Disturbed Only for Abuse of Discretion. Granting or denying a CCP §

397(c) motion is discretionary with the trial court, and an appellate court will reverse such an order only on a clear showing of abuse of discretion. Thus, the appellate court is required to determine whether sufficient facts have been shown on which the trial court could base its exercise of discretion [ Fontaine v. Superior Ct. (2009) 175 CA4th 830, 836, 96 CR3d 607 (discretion not abused); Dillman v. Superior Court (1962) 205 CA2d 769, 774, 23 CR 498 ].

Example:

The denial of a motion to change venue would be an abuse of discretion if there was a showing that the convenience of witnesses and ends of justice would be promoted by the change, and there was no showing to the contrary. Under these circumstances, there would be no evidence to support the decision of the trial court [see Union Trust Life Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1968) 259 CA2d 23, 28, 66 CR 270 ].

A judgment on a motion for change of venue will not be disturbed when the evidence is conflicting, as all conflicts are required to be resolved in favor of the prevailing party, and all reasonable inferences must be drawn in support of the trial court's order [ Wheeler v. Moschetti (1961) 188 CA2d 827, 829, 10 CR 722 ; City of Long Beach v. Lakewood Park (1953) 118 CA2d 596, 598, 258 P2d 538 ].

6.56[3] Defendant Allowed Reasonable Time to Respond to Complaint After Review of Order. If an order granting or denying a motion to transfer under CCP § 396a or 396b is the subject of an appeal in which a stay is granted, or of a mandate proceeding, the court having jurisdiction over the trial, on application or on its own motion after the appeal or mandate proceeding becomes final or on earlier termination of a stay, must allow the defendant a reasonable time to respond to the complaint [CCP § 586(a)(6)(C); see CCP § 904.2 (appeals in limited civil cases); CCP § 400 (mandate proceedings)]. Notice of the order allowing the defendant further time to respond to the complaint must be promptly served by the party who obtained the order, or by the clerk if the order was made on the court's own motion [CCP § 586(a)(6)(C)].

DEMAND FOR ARBITRATION

There is a dispute between you and the undersigned relating to the agreement dated _____, for _____ [state nature of agreement or otherwise identify it] ("Agreement").

Under Paragraph _____ of the Agreement, disputes arising under the Agreement are to be settled by arbitration. That provision states the following: _____ [set out paragraph in agreement providing for arbitration].

THEREFORE, THE UNDERSIGNED HEREBY DEMANDS that the following dispute(s) be submitted to arbitration:
_____ [set forth nature of dispute, e.g., the undersigned's entitlement to damages in the amount of $65,000, resulting from defects in the packaging equipment delivered to the undersigned on March 12, 1996].

[EITHER, if single neutral arbitrator is to be used and contract specifies method of selection, demand compliance with the contractual procedure in as many paragraphs as necessary, for example]

TAKE NOTICE that the undersigned proposes any the following three persons as the neutral arbitrator:

_____ [list names, addresses, and telephone numbers of proposed arbitrators].

TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that under Paragraph _____ of the Agreement, you have 30 days to agree to one of these persons as neutral arbitrator or to propose a counter list, and if you fail to do so, the undersigned has the right to petition the court for appointment of a neutral arbitrator pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 1281.6.

[OR, if single neutral arbitrator is to be used and contract does not specify method of selection, request agreement on a procedure in as many paragraphs as necessary, for example]

TAKE NOTICE that the undersigned intends to exercise his/her/its right to petition the court for appointment of a neutral arbitrator under Code of Civil Procedure Section 1281.6 if we have not selected a neutral arbitrator by _____ [date]. The undersigned suggests _____ [name persons who would be acceptable as neutral arbitrator or outline a procedure for selecting an arbitrator].

[OR, if panel of arbitrators is to be used, initiate contractual procedure for selecting panel, for example]

TAKE NOTICE that the undersigned, under that Paragraph, has selected _____ [name] as a party arbitrator to act on their behalf in the dispute, and hereby demand that you select a party arbitrator to act on your behalf in the dispute. Your selection must be made within _____ days after this demand is served on you.

TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that the party arbitrator acting on behalf of the undersigned will be ready to cooperate with the party arbitrator acting on your behalf in: the selection of a third, neutral arbitrator; the settlement of the claims, controversies, and disputes existing between you and the undersigned; and, the determination of all demands and differences arising out of the Agreement.

TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that should you refuse to select a party arbitrator to act on your behalf, as stated above, or should you otherwise refuse to arbitrate the disputes mentioned above, the undersigned will take further steps to proceed with arbitration according to law.

3. On or about _____, a controversy arose between petitioner and respondent in that _____ [describe controversy]. The arbitration agreement herein alleged requires that petitioner and respondent arbitrate their controversy _____ [as to the following issues: _____ (specify) or in its entirety].

4. On or about _____, petitioner demanded that respondent submit the _____ [issues or controversy] to arbitration as agreed. Respondent has at all times refused, and still refuses, to arbitrate.

[If agreement provides for joinder in arbitration of any third party who is not a party to the agreement but who is necessary for complete resolution of any matter required to be arbitrated and requires the arbitrator to determine whether anyone must be so joined, ADD]

5. The arbitration agreement which is Exhibit "A" to this petition includes at Paragraph _____ respondent's consent to the intervention or joinder in the arbitration proceeding of all parties relevant to a full and complete settlement of any dispute arbitrated under the agreement _____ [as set forth in the _____ (specify any rules incorporated in agreement), which provide or and further provides] that the arbitrator determine, prior to the date set for the arbitration hearing, any person whose participation is material or relevant to a complete resolution of this dispute. Thus, the fact that _____ [name] has been named in the complaint but is not a party to the arbitration agreement does not prevent arbitration of this matter because petitioner contends, and will seek to have the neutral arbitrator determine before the arbitration hearing, that _____ [name] is required to be joined in the arbitration.

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays:

1. That the court order respondent to arbitrate the controversy as herein alleged.
2. That petitioner be awarded costs of suit herein incurred.
3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

6.60 Responding to Petition to Compel Arbitration--Admissions, Denials, and Defenses.

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____ _____, [name],

) [Time: _____]
) [Location: _____]
) [Judge: _____]
) [Date Action Filed: _____]
) [Trial Date: _____]

Respondent _____ [name] answers and responds to the petition herein as follows:

1. Answering [Paragraph(s) _____ of] the petition, respondent denies each and every, all and singular, generally and specifically, the allegations therein[, except that respondent admits _____ (specify)].

2. _____ [Continue with denials].

FIRST AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE
(Waiver of Arbitration)

1. The alleged controversy that petitioner seeks to arbitrate allegedly arose on or about _____ [date], and any right to arbitrate existed, if at all, at that time.

[EITHER, if written agreement specifies a time within which to demand arbitration]

2. Under the terms of the arbitration agreement of _____ [date], between petitioner and respondent, a demand for arbitration must be filed not later than _____ [specify time limitation on demand, e.g., 60 days after the occurrence of the disputed event].

3. _____ [Set forth facts showing waiver, e.g., Petitioner did not make any demand on respondent to arbitrate the controversy and did not take any steps to enforce his/her right to arbitrate until _____ (date), when for the first time petitioner demanded that the controversy be submitted to arbitration].

4. This failure to make a timely demand constitutes a waiver and forfeiture of any right petitioner may have to arbitrate this controversy.

[OR, if written agreement does not specify a certain time within which to demand arbitration]

2. _____ [Set forth facts showing waiver, e.g., Petitioner did not make any demand on respondent to arbitrate the controversy and did not take any steps to enforce his/her right to arbitration until _____ [date], when for the first time petitioner demanded that the controversy be submitted to arbitration. The delay was unreasonable in that _____ (set forth circumstances showing delay was unreasonable)].

3. In so doing petitioner, with full knowledge of the existence of the controversy and his/her alleged right to arbitrate, intentionally waived and relinquished any such right to settle the controversy by arbitration.

[CONTINUE]

SECOND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Grounds for Revoking Agreement to Arbitrate)

1. Respondent admits that on or about _____ [date] petitioner and respondent entered into a written agreement requiring that the controversy alleged in the petition be submitted to arbitration.

2. Grounds exist for revocation of the agreement to arbitrate the alleged controversy in that _____ [specify].

THIRD AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Insufficient Facts Alleged)

The facts alleged in the petition are insufficient for the court to order arbitration in that _____ [specify, e.g., the petition does not allege that there is a written agreement to arbitrate].

FOURTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(Possibility of Conflicting Rulings)

1. _____ [Party designation] is also a party to the proceeding now pending in the _____ [specify court, e.g., United States District Court for the Northern District of California], entitled _____ [title of case], No. _____, which arises out of the same _____ [transaction or series of related transactions] from which the present matter arose.
2. If that proceeding and the present proceeding are both allowed to proceed simultaneously, there is a possibility of conflicting rulings on a common issue of _____ [law or fact], namely _____ [specify common issue].

FIFTH AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE

(The Parties Have No Agreement to Arbitrate)

1. Respondent admits that on or about _____ [date], petitioner and respondent began negotiations for a contract [and exchanged drafts of proposed agreements], but the parties intended[, and the draft agreements specifically provided,] that no agreement between the parties would constitute a legal and binding obligation of the parties until and unless it was signed. [A copy of the draft agreement dated _____ and incorporating that provision at paragraph _____ is attached hereto and made a part hereof by this reference.]
2. Respondent never signed the agreement and notified petitioner on or about _____ [date], that it was terminating their negotiations because agreement could not be reached on material terms.
3. No contract to arbitrate was ever formed between petitioner and respondent.

WHEREFORE, respondent prays:

1. That the petition be denied;
2. That respondent be awarded costs of suit herein incurred; and
3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

Chapter 7 Complaints
I. STRATEGY

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 7.01

7.01 Scope.

This chapter covers:

- Objective and strategy for complaints [see 7.02].
- Rules and considerations for drafting a complaint, including sample allegations [see 7.03 -7.15; Forms: see 7.35 -7.42].
- Filing of a complaint, including fees and the case cover sheet [see 7.16 -7.27; Form: see 7.43].
- Procedure for serving a complaint on a defendant [see 7.28 -7.32; Forms: see Ch. 8, Service of Summons].
- The effect that a dismissal has on a complaint [see 7.33, 7.34; for related information and forms, see Ch. 37, Settlement and Release, and Ch. 40, Dismissal for Delay in Bringing to Trial].

Core Statutes:

CCP §§ 422.30, 422.40, 425.10-425.12; Cal Rules Ct, Rules 1.20(b), 1.200, 2.100 et seq.

Chapter 7 Complaints
I. STRATEGY

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 7.02

7.02 Objective and Strategy.

Complaints are the pleadings by which a party who initiates a civil action seeks affirmative relief. The complaint presents and defines the issues, forms a foundation for proof, limits the proof to be submitted, and advises the court and the adverse party as to what is being relied on as a cause of action [see Hughes v. Western MacArthur Co. (1987) 192 CA3d 951, 956, 237 CR 738 ; Roth v. Cottrell (1952) 112 CA2d 621, 624, 246 P2d 958 ].

Strategic Point--Reasons Not to Rush to File:

The complaint can be useful before it is filed. Mailing a factually rich complaint to the prospective defendant may precipitate settlement. Also, a defendant who does not want publicity may be more likely to settle before the complaint is filed, so that plaintiff could benefit from delaying filing until it is clear that there will be no possibility of settlement before the period of limitation runs.

By the same token, one's own client may be the one hoping to avoid the publicity that can come with filing an action. In response to a client's concerns of that nature, counsel should consider the acceptability on the part of the client and chances of success in court of filing with the complaint a motion to seal sensitive portions of a complaint (and subsequently filed papers), as well as a motion for a gag order, although in the latter case the courts rarely oblige.

Cross References:

Discussion of sealing court records, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, 2.11 et seq.

Discussion of gag orders, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, 2.30 et seq.

If you do not need to file to comply with the statute of limitations or to obtain a provisional remedy, such as preliminary injunctive relief or attachment, consider delaying as long as possible so you can develop the case as fully as possible without discovery and allow time for settlement negotiations.

A plaintiff might decide to wait to file a complaint until just before the expiration of the statute of limitations to allow further time to investigate the facts giving rise to a claim and to interview current and former employees of prospective corporate defendant [see Triple A Machine Shop Inc. v. State of California (1989) 213 CA3d 131, 139-140, 261 CR 493 (lawyers are not prohibited from interviewing ex parte former employees of opponent corporation or its present employees, other than officers, directors, managing agents or those whose communications may bind the corporation)]. Once the action is filed, defense counsel is likely to contact former and current employees of a corporate defendant [see, e.g., In re Coordinated Pretrial Proceedings in Petroleum Prods. Antitrust Litig. (9th Cir 1981) 658 F2d 1355, 1359-1362 (defense counsel can represent corporate defendant and corporate defendants former employees)]. If defense counsel undertakes the representation of the former and current employees, ethical rules will preclude the plaintiff's counsel from having any ex parte contacts with these potential witnesses [Cal Rules of Prof Conduct, Rule 2-100].

A plaintiff might also decide to wait to file a complaint for personal injuries until sufficient time has elapsed to permit medical experts to make a reasoned prognosis of the extent to which the injuries might or might not be permanent. Conversely, a plaintiff might decide to file a complaint as early as possible to minimize the risk that the plaintiff might die before trial [see Williamson v. Plant Insulation Co. (1994) 23 CA4th 1406, 1417, 28 CR2d 751 (plaintiff's death prior to entry of a verdict precluded awards to the plaintiff's personal representative of noneconomic damages or anticipated economic damages)].

Judge's Perspective:

Counsel should remember that the filing of the complaint triggers all of the fast track deadlines. Accordingly, counsel should be prepared to comply with those deadlines once the complaint is filed. If counsel needs more time for case preparation and no statute of limitations is looming then thought should be given to a delay in the filing until such time as case preparation is further along.

Strategic Point--Reasons Not to Wait to File:

If insurance is involved, it may be necessary to file a lawsuit to discover the policy limits. Until suit is filed, insurers cannot reveal the policy limits without the insured's permission [ Griffith v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1991) 230 CA3d 59, 66-67, 281 CR 165 (construing Ins Code §§ 791.02(s), (v), 791.13); see Boicourt v. Amex Assurance Co. (2000) 78 CA4th 1390, 1392, 93 CR2d 763 (insurer's blanket rule against disclosing policy limits may lead to bad faith liability for failure to settle within policy limits; disclosure usually helps the policyholders by removing extra months of having a claim with a potential excess verdict hanging over their heads)].

It may be necessary to file to pursue other discovery as well because a person seeking CCP § 2035.010(a) perpetuation of testimony or preservation of evidence before an action is commenced must show a present inability to bring the action or cause it to be brought [see CCP § 2035.030(b)(2); see also CCP § 2035.010(b) (procedure not to be used to ascertain existence of cause of action or defense or to identify potential parties to action not yet filed)].

Strategic Point--Seeking Declaratory Relief:

An action for declaratory relief can resolve a difference of opinion about rights under an instrument or interpretation of law before a full cause of action accrues. It does not require a breach of an obligation [CCP § 1060], and is to be used to eliminate uncertainties and controversies that may result in future litigation [ Interstate Marina Development Co. v. County of Los Angeles (1984) 155 CA3d 435, 443 ]. Given the high priority afforded trials in purely declaratory actions [see 7.12[6][g]], and the preservation of other avenues for relief [see 7.13[1][a]], counsel should consider filing such an action to forestall a future breach or violation and the more expensive litigation resulting from it.

Strategic Point--Scope of Complaint and Res Judicata Effects:

When drafting a complaint for declaratory relief consider the scope of the declaration that is sought. Unlike a complaint for coercive relief (typically damages or equitable relief), which will finally determine all issues that were raised or could have been raised under principles of merger and bar, a declaratory relief action can seek a declaration as to a single element of a cause of action or a single affirmative defense. While it may be advantageous for a plaintiff to define the scope of the declaratory relief action in broad, generic terms based on the assumption that the plaintiff will prevail, the plaintiff that loses a declaratory relief action runs the risk of losing on the same broad basis sought in the complaint. A declaratory relief action will be given preclusive effect as to all matters declared in the judgment. If the scope of the declaratory relief complaint is broad and the case is lost, the scope of the matters declared by the judgment is likely to be equally broad [see Aerojet-General Corp. v. American Excess Ins. Co. (2002) 97 CA4th 387, 398, 414, 117 CR2d 427 (plaintiff "sought the broad judgment it got, albeit not its substance, and it is thus bound thereby")]. Additionally, in a claim for coercive relief (damages or injunction), be sure to include all claims that could be brought that arise from the same primary right or any attempt to bring later claims can be barred by res judicata and the rule against splitting a cause of action [ Lincoln Property Co., N.C., Inc. v. Travelers Indemnity Co. (2006) 137 CA4th 905 ].

Chapter 7 Complaints
II. DRAFTING A COMPLAINT

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 7.04

7.04 Use of Judicial Council Complaint Forms.

7.04[1] Judicial Council Complaint Forms Are Not Mandatory. The Judicial Council is required to provide official forms for use in California trial courts for any complaint that is based on personal injury, property damage, wrongful death, unlawful detainer, breach of contract, or fraud [CCP § 425.12]. However, use of these forms is optional [Cal Rules Ct, Rules 1.35, 1.45].

Strategic Point:

The Judicial Council pleading forms can be very useful for uncomplicated limited civil cases. However, in other cases using the form pleading may send the wrong message. If there is any complexity at all in the case, using the form could imply that plaintiff's counsel does not place a high value on the case, possibly because it is not strong enough to be worth the effort of drafting a complaint.

7.04[2] Judicial Council Forms May Be Duplicated and Typewritten. A plaintiff may file a duplicate of a Judicial Council form that has been reproduced by a laser printer or other similar device. The device may also fill in information that would normally have been done by a typewriter or word processor providing that the typestyle is contrasting to that in the form and equivalent to that produced by a typewriter or word processor [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 1.44]. By filing the form, the plaintiff certifies that it is a true and correct copy of a Judicial Council form [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.132].

7.04[3] Attachment Forms Are Required for Tort or Contract Actions Using General Complaint Forms.

7.04[3][a] Attachment Forms Must Be Used to Allege Specific Causes of Action. If a plaintiff uses one of the general complaint forms for a tort or contract action, one or more attachments must be used to allege specific causes of action [see Judicial Council Forms PLD-PI-001, PLD-PI-003, PLD-C-001, PLD-C-001(3)].

Warning:

When specific allegations need to be set forth, the plaintiff must add the details because the form complaint, standing alone, is no more immune to demurrer than any other complaint that fails to properly assert a cause of action [see People ex rel. Dep't of Transp. v. Superior Court (1992) 5 CA4th 1480, 1486, 7 CR2d 498 ].

7.04[3][b] Cause of Action Attachments Must Be Numbered Consecutively Beginning With One. Each paragraph within a cause of action attachment must be numbered consecutively, beginning with one, and each paragraph must be preceded with one or more identifying letters derived from the title of the cause of action [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 1.45(c)].

7.04[3][c] Causes of Action for Which No Form Has Been Approved May Be Prepared in Alternate Format. If no specific form has been approved for a certain cause of action, the plaintiff may prepare the allegation in the format prescribed by Cal Rules Ct, Rules 2.100 et seq. [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 1.45(c)].

7.04[4] Attachment Forms May Be Used to Supplement Information on Forms. Attachment forms may also be used to provide information for which there was insufficient space on the form. When using attachments, the format prescribed by Cal Rules Ct, Rules 2.100 et seq. should be followed, and each attachment and paragraph therein should be sufficiently labeled as to its identity and relationship to the form. Any attachment used should also contain the short title of the case at the top and a space designated for the case number [see Cal Rules Ct, Rule 1.45(c)].

Chapter 7 Complaints
II. DRAFTING A COMPLAINT

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 7.05

7.05 Local Courts May Not Condition Filing of Complaint on Local Rule Requirements.

As long as a complaint is in a form that complies with Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.100 et seq., the clerk has a ministerial duty to file it. A superior court may not condition the filing of a complaint on local rule requirements [ Carlson v. Department of Fish & Game (1998) 68 CA4th 1268, 1276, 1280, 1282-1283, 80 CR2d 601 (action not barred by statute of limitations when clerk improperly returned complaint based on local rule)].

Warning:

Be aware of local requirements. It is not desirable to fail to comply with local rules and to have a clerk refuse to file a complaint when timely filing is important for statute of limitations or "race to the courthouse" reasons and then have to argue that the clerk should have filed the complaint.

Although a clerk may not refuse to file a complaint because it does not comply with local rule requirements, once the complaint is filed, the court may use its power to impose sanctions to redress any violation of local rule requirements [CCP § 575.2; Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.30; Maginn v. City of Glendale (1999) 72 CA4th 1102, 1107, 85 CR2d 639 ].

Chapter 7 Complaints
II. DRAFTING A COMPLAINT

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 7.06

7.06 Format Is Governed by California Rules of Court Requirements.

7.06[1] Paper Must Be Opaque, Recycled, and 8 1/2 by 11 Inches in Size. Complaints must be drafted on recycled paper that is opaque, unglazed, white or unbleached, of a quality of at least 20-pound weight, and 8 1/2 by 11 inches in size [Cal Rules Ct, Rules 1.22(a), 2.101(a), 2.103]. The attorney, party, or other person filing the complaint certifies, by the act of filing, that the document was produced on paper purchased as recycled [Cal Rules Ct, Rules 1.22(b), 2.101(b)] as defined by PR Code § 42202 [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 1.6(22)]. Only one side of the paper may be used [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.102].

7.06[2] Print May Not Be Smaller Than 12 Points. Complaints must be typewritten or printed or prepared by a photocopying or other duplication process that produces clear and permanent copies that are at least as legible as printing. The type must be at least 12 points in size, and the typeface must be the equivalent of Courier, Times Roman, or Helvetica. The color of the print must be either black or blue-black [Cal Rules Ct, Rules 2.104-2.106].

7.06[3] Spacing Must Be Double or One and One-Half. The lines on each page of the complaint must be one and one-half spaced or double spaced and numbered consecutively [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.108(1)].

Exception:

Descriptions of real property may be single-spaced. Quotations may be single spaced and have unnumbered lines if they generally comply with the space requirements of Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.111 [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.108(2), (3)].

2.108(4)].

7.06[6] Pages Must Be Consecutively Numbered at Bottom. Each page of a complaint must be consecutively numbered at the bottom and consist of original pages without riders. The pages must be firmly bound together at the top. Exhibits may be fastened to the pages and, if prepared by a machine copying process, must be equal to typewritten material in terms of legibility and permanency of image [Cal Rules Ct, Rules 2.109, 2.113, 2.114].

7.06[7] Pre-Punched Holes Are Required. Each page of a complaint presented for filing must contain two pre-punched normal sized holes, centered 2 1/2 inches apart and 5/8 of an inch from the top of the paper [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.115].

7.06[8] Footers Are Required on All Pages Except Exhibits. Except for any exhibits, each page of a complaint must have a footer in the bottom margin of each page, placed below the page number and divided from the rest of the page by a printed line. The footer must be set in type that is no smaller than 10 points and must contain the title of the paper or some clear and concise abbreviation [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.110].

Example:

"Complaint" [see Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.110(b)].

7.06[9] Legal Citations Must Follow Consistent Format. In accordance with the general requirement for each document filed with the court [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 1.200], the style of citations to legal sources in the entire complaint must comport consistently with the style guidelines contained in one of either the California Style Manual or The Bluebook: Uniform System of Citation.

7.06[10] Certain Identifiers Must Be Excluded or Redacted from Complaint.

7.06[10][a] Certain Identifiers Generally Must Be Excluded. In accordance with the general requirement for each document filed with the court, the plaintiff and plaintiff's counsel must not include the following identifiers in the complaint filed in the court's public file, whether filed in paper or electronic form [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 1.20(b)(2)]:

- Social security numbers.
- Financial account numbers.

Exceptions:

The requirement to exclude the specified identifiers does not apply where otherwise provided by law or ordered by the court [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 1.20(b)(2)].

7.06[10][b] Where Identifiers Are Necessary, They Must Be Redacted. If a social security number or financial account number is required in a pleading or other paper filed in the public file, only the last four digits of that number may be used [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 1.20(b)(2)(A), (B)].

Exceptions:

If the court orders on a showing of good cause, a party filing a document containing identifiers may file, along with the redacted document that will be placed in the public file, a reference list. The reference list is confidential. The confidential list must [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 1.20(b)(4)]:

- Identify each item of redacted information and
- Specify an appropriate reference that uniquely corresponds to each item of redacted information listed.

All references in the case to the redacted identifiers included in the confidential reference list will be understood to refer to the corresponding complete identifier. A party may amend its reference list as of right. A party filing a confidential reference list must use Judicial Council Form MC-120, Confidential Reference List of Identifiers, for that purpose. [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 1.20(b)(4)].

➤ Cross Reference:

Judicial Council Form MC-120, Confidential Reference List of Identifiers, see 7.45.

7.06[10][c] Exclusion and Redaction Requirements Do Not Apply to Documents Subject to Order of Confidentiality or to Seal. The requirements to exclude the specified identifiers, or to redact them where it is necessary that they be included, does not apply to documents or records that by court order or operation of law are filed in their entirety either confidentially or under seal [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 1.20(b)(1)].

➤ Cross Reference:

Obtaining or opposing orders to seal or unseal court records, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, 2.11 et seq.

7.06[10][d] Court Clerk Not Responsible for Ensuring Exclusion or Redaction. The court clerk is not required to review pleadings or other papers for compliance with the exclusion or redaction of the specified identifiers. The responsibility for excluding or redacting identifiers from all documents filed with the court rests solely with the parties and their attorneys [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 1.20(b)(3)].

Chapter 7 Complaints
II. DRAFTING A COMPLAINT

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 7.07

7.07 First Page Must Conform to Particular Format.

7.07[1] Attorney Information Is Required. Attorney information is required in the space commencing one inch from the top of the page with line 1, to the left of the center of the page. List the name, office address or, if none, residence address, telephone number, and State Bar membership number of the attorney presenting the complaint, in whose behalf the complaint is presented, or of the party if he or she is appearing in without counsel [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.111(1)].

The inclusion of a fax number or e-mail address on the first page of a complaint is optional [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.118(b)], and its inclusion does not constitute consent to service by those methods unless otherwise provided by law [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.111(1)].

If a complaint is filed with co-counsel who is not admitted in California, co-counsel's name may be followed by the notation "Pro Hac Vice Application Pending," instead of a State Bar Number [see Cal Rules Ct, Rule 9.40 (pro hac vice applications)]. Although not expressly authorized, this notation explains on the face of the complaint why no State Bar member number is included.

Warning:

A party or attorney whose address changes while an action is pending must file and serve written notice of the address change on all parties [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.200].

Chapter 7 Complaints
II. DRAFTING A COMPLAINT

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 7.08

7.08 Captions Are Mandatory.

7.08[1] Every Complaint Must Contain Caption. Every complaint must contain a caption [CCP § 422.30; Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.111]. The contents of a caption are listed in CCP §§ 422.30, 422.40, and the formats of captions are governed by Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.111.

7.08[2] Every Caption Used in Complaint Must Contain Certain Information.

7.08[2][a] Title of Court. Following the required attorney information [see 7.07[1]], the caption begins with the name of the court and the county in which the complaint is filed [CCP § 422.30(a)]. The name or title of the court is placed on line 8, at or below 31/3 inches from the top of the page, on the first page of the complaint [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.111(3)].

7.08[2][b] Title of Case. The title of the case is set forth below the title of the court and to the left of the center of the page [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.111(4)]. The title of the case in a complaint must set forth the names of all parties to the action [CCP § 422.40], with each name commencing on a separate line starting at the left margin of the page [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.111(4)].

On any subsequent pleadings or papers, the title of the case may simply state the name of the first party on each side, with an appropriate indication of other parties, and to state that a cross-action or cross-actions are involved, if applicable [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.111(4)].

7.08[2][c] Description of Parties. A party may be sued in any name in which he or she is known and recognized, even an assumed name [ Cabrera v. McMullen (1988) 204 CA3d 1, 3-4, 251 CR 34 ; Emery v. Kipp (1908) 154 C 83, 84, 97 P 17 ].

When a party is acting on his or her own behalf, rather than in a representative capacity, it is sufficient to include the party's name. The party's name should include a first and last name, as well as a middle name or middle initial if the name is a common one or is likely to be confused with another party. If a party is an individual acting in a representative capacity, such as a guardian ad litem for a minor, a short description to that effect should follow the party's name. If a party is an entity other than an individual, such as a corporation or association, the party's name should be followed by a description of its status.

If the body of the complaint correctly identifies a defendant who has been omitted from the caption, and that defendant has been properly served with process, the court will usually allow an amendment to correct technical defects in the caption [ United Food & Commercial Workers Union v. Superior Court (2000) 83 CA4th 566, 571, 99 CR2d 849 ; Bell v. Tri-City Hosp. Dist. (1987) 196 CA3d 438, 445-446, 449, 241 CR 796 ].

7.08[2][d] Number of Case. The case number must be placed to the right of and opposite the title [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.111(5)]. Because a case number is not assigned until the complaint has been filed, the phrase "NO. _____" should be provided. The clerk will stamp on the number after the complaint is filed.

The case number that is assigned by the clerk should be included on all subsequent pleadings and papers.

7.08[2][e] Description of Complaint. A description of the complaint must appear below the case number [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.111(6)]. The description of the nature of the complaint should be stated in capital letters.

A brief description of the character of the action must appear below the description of the nature of the complaint [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.111(6)].

Example:

"COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES".

"Personal Injury and Property Damages".

7.08[2][f] Statements Required to Identify Limited Civil Case. The caption of every pleading in a limited civil case must contain the words "Limited Civil Case" [CCP § 422.30(b); Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.111(10)].

The first page of the complaint must state either "Amount demanded exceeds $10,000" or "Amount demanded does not exceed $10,000" [Gov Code § 70613(b); Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.111(9)].

If a cross-complaint or any amended pleading results in reclassification of the case, the caption must indicate that the pleading reclassifies the case [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.111(11); see also CCP §§ 403.020, 403.030, or 403.050].

Warning:

There are economies in filing as a limited civil case. If the value of the case is close to the $25,000 jurisdictional limit between limited and unlimited civil cases, counsel may want to weigh whether the potential for recovery in excess of $25,000 is likely to cover the increased expense of filing as an unlimited civil case given the inability to use the economic litigation procedures of CCP §§ 90-100. However, if there is any potential for recovery of more than $25,000, before filing an action as a limited civil case, counsel should disclose the limitation to the client to get the client's written agreement to file as a limited civil case.

Strategic Point:

If you file as a limited civil case but the injury develops or is revealed to be greater than initially thought, you can reclassify the case to unlimited by filing an amended or supplemental complaint and paying the appropriate fee [see CCP § 403.020].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of what constitutes limited civil case and changing classification, see Ch. 15, Reclassification of Cases, 15.03 et seq. and 15.07 et seq.

7.08[2][g] Assigned Judge and Department, If Any. The name of the assigned judge and department, if any, must appear below the nature of the paper or the character of the action [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.111(7)]. This, of course, would not apply to filing the initial complaint in a case.

Although not required by statute, an introductory phrase usually follows the caption and leads into the body of the complaint. The introduction typically identifies the plaintiff and may also state the nature of the pleading. Simple introductions, such as "Plaintiff alleges" are most commonly used.

Chapter 7 Complaints
II. DRAFTING A COMPLAINT

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 7.10

7.10 Plaintiff Must Be Identified Unless Suing in Individual Capacity.

7.10[1] Real Party in Interest Must Prosecute Action. An action must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest [CCP § 367].

➤ Cross Reference:

Discussion regarding plaintiffs suing a representative capacity, see 7.08[2][c].

7.10[2] Individual Plaintiff Need Not Be Further Identified. Beyond providing his or her name, an individual plaintiff does not need to identify himself or herself further in the complaint.

➤ Cross Reference:

Discussion regarding plaintiff's use of an assumed name, see 7.08[2][c].

7.10[3] Guardian ad Litem for Minor Must Be Identified. An unemancipated minor must sue by the guardian of his or her estate or by a guardian ad litem [CCP § 372(a); Fam Code § 6601].

Counsel should obtain appointment of the guardian appearing on a minor's behalf before filing the complaint, and the complaint should allege the appointment to avoid a potential demurrer [see City of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1968) 264 CA2d 766, 772, 70 CR 826 ; Crawford v. Neal (1880) 56 C 321, 321-322 ; but see CCP § 373(a) (appointment of guardian ad litem for a minor must be made before summons is issued)].

Exceptions:

A minor 12 or older may appear without a guardian or counsel to request or oppose injunctions and temporary restraining orders relating to domestic and other violence [CCP § 372(b)]. A minor who is the parent in proceedings for child custody, visitation, or support in which the child is a parent and whom the court has not found to not understand the proceedings does not need a guardian ad litem for those proceedings [see CCP § 372(c)].

➤ Cross References:

Discussion and forms for appointment of guardian ad litem, see Ch. 5, Parties, 5.18 et seq.

Discussion of emancipated minors, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 245, Emancipation of Minors (Matthew Bender).

7.10[4] Guardian ad Litem for Incompetent Person Should Be Identified. An incompetent person or person for whom a conservator has been appointed must sue by the conservator of his or her estate or by a guardian ad litem [CCP § 372(a)].

The complaint may be filed and summons served without appointment of a guardian or conservator [see CCP § 373]. However, if the plaintiff's incompetence appears on the face of the complaint, for example, when the complaint alleges that the plaintiff was rendered unconscious or brain damaged by the occurrence that is the subject of the action and remains so, appointment of a guardian ad litem or conservator of the estate should be obtained before the complaint is filed and the appointment should be alleged to avoid demurrer [see City of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1968) 264 CA2d 766, 772, 70 CR 826 ; Crawford v. Neal (1880) 56 C 321, 321-322 (both involving minors)].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion and forms for appointment of guardian ad litem, see Ch. 5, Parties, 5.18 et seq.

7.10[5] Identification of Non-Individual Plaintiffs Is Customary. If a plaintiff is other than an individual, such as an association or a corporation, it is customary to identify the plaintiff as such in the complaint.

7.10[6] Allegation of Plaintiff's Status or Capacity Must Be Included If It Affects Action. If the status or capacity of the plaintiff affects the action, an allegation of the plaintiff's status or capacity must be included in the complaint.

Examples:

- A foreign corporate plaintiff that does only intrastate business does not have the capacity to maintain an action unless it has qualified to do business in California and has paid its corporate franchise taxes [Corp Code § 2203].

- In general, a contractor may not bring an action based on a contract without alleging that he or she was a duly licensed contractor at all times during the performance of that contract [B&P Code § 7031(a)].

 Cross References:

Discussion of capacity, see Ch. 5, Parties, 5.08 et seq.

7.10[7] Plaintiff Transacting Business Under Fictitious Business Name May Not Maintain Action Unless Fictitious Business Name Statement Has Been Executed. If a plaintiff is doing business under a fictitious name and brings an action in that name, an allegation to that effect must be made. The plaintiff must also show that it has complied with the fictitious name statement requirements of B&P Code § 17913 [B&P Code § 17918].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of what constitutes a fictitious business name, see Ch. 5, Parties, 5.17.

7.10[8] Partnerships and Associations May Sue Under Names by Which They Are Known. Any partnership or other unincorporated association, whether established for profit or not, may file a complaint in the name that it has assumed or by which it is known [CCP § 369.5(a)].

Chapter 7 Complaints
II. DRAFTING A COMPLAINT

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 7.11

7.11 Allegation of Status and Capacity of Defendant Is Customary but Is Not Required.

7.11[1] Allegation of Status and Capacity of Defendant Is Not Mandatory in Most Cases. A plaintiff is not usually required to allege the status and capacity of any defendant in the complaint.

Strategic Point:

A plaintiff may want to consider including in the complaint an allegation of the status, capacity, and residence (i.e., county and state) of each defendant in order to obtain an admission by way of answer as to these matters and to allege venue, which is in the county of the defendant's residence [CCP § 395(a)].

7.11[2] Allegation of Status and Capacity of Defendant Is Required in Certain Consumer and Unlawful Detainer Litigation. In the following cases, a plaintiff must state facts in the complaint, verified by plaintiff's oath or plaintiff's attorney's oath, which show that the complaint has been filed in the proper court and that the action is subject to the provisions of one of the following statutes [CCP § 396a]:

- Any case subject to the Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act [CC § 1801 et seq.].
- Any case subject to the Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Financing Act [CC § 2981 et seq.].
- Any limited civil case subject to CCP § 395(b) that concerns:
  - ☐ Actions arising from an offer or provision of goods, services, loans, or extensions of credit intended primarily for personal, family, or household use; or
  - ☐ Actions arising from a transaction consummated as a proximate result of either an unsolicited telephone call made by a seller engaged in the business of consummating transactions of that kind or a telephone call or electronic transmission made by the buyer or lessee in response to a solicitation by the seller.

- Any limited civil case that is an action for unlawful detainer as defined by CCP § 1161.

Decision Point:

Instead of stating the facts in the complaint, the plaintiff may file an affidavit or a declaration made under penalty of perjury [CCP § 2015.5] stating facts showing that the action has been commenced in the proper court and is subject to the provisions of CC § 1812.10 or 2984.4 or CCP § 395(b) or is an action for unlawful detainer [see 7.23].

Warning:

In cases subject to CC § 1812.10 or 2984.4, if the facts are stated in a verified complaint, they may not be stated on information and belief [CC §§ 1812.10, 2984.4].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of declaration or affidavit, see 7.23.

7.11[3] Designation of Defendant by Fictitious Name; When Allowed.

7.11[3][a] Genuine Ignorance Required. If a plaintiff is genuinely ignorant of a defendant's name [ Kerr-McGee Chemical Corp. v. Superior Court (1984) 160 CA3d 594-597, 206 CR 654 ; Nissan v. Barton (1970) 4 CA3d 76, 79-81, 84 CR 36 ] or lacks knowledge of acts giving him or her a cause of action against that person [see Westfour Corp. v. California First Bank (1992) 3 CA4th 1554, 1560, 5 CR2d 394 ], the plaintiff must state that fact in the complaint [CCP § 474]. Such a defendant may be designated in the complaint by any name.

Fictitiously named defendants are commonly designated as DOES 1 through 50 (or whatever number are to be designated) and are commonly referred to as Doe allegations.

Warning:

An allegation as to a fictitiously named defendant should be used whenever there is the possibility that another defendant may be liable because the allegation will toll the statute of limitations against such defendant [see Barrington v. A.H. Robins Co. (1985) 39 C3d 146, 150, 151, 216 CR 405, 702 P2d 563 ; Austin v. Massachusetts Bonding & Ins. Co. (1961) 56 C2d 596, 602, 15 CR 817, 364 P2d 681 ].

Trap:

If no attempt is made to state any cause of action against a fictitiously named defendant, then the statute of limitations is not tolled as to that person [ Williams v. Goodman (1963) 214 CA2d 856, 861, 29 CR 877 ].

Strategic Points:

- Adding a charging allegation as to each fictitiously named defendant may facilitate later amendments to the complaint [see Smeltzley v. Nicholson Mfg. Co. (1977) 18 C3d 932, 940, 136 CR 269, 559 P2d 624 ; Sobeck & Assocs. v. B & R Invs. No. 24 (1989) 215 CA3d 861, 867, 264 CR 156 ].

- Naming Does is free; do not be stingy. If there is any potential for a large number of Doe defendants, name a lot of them. Name Does 1 to 100. When you are amending the complaint to identify defendants, this may save you from later having to identify Doe 5.1, 5.2, etc.

Cross References:

Forms of sample allegations involving fictitious names, see 7.36-7.39.

Form of sample Doe allegation, see 7.36.

7.11[3][b] No Duty to Exercise Reasonable Diligence to Discover Name. CCP § 474 does not require a plaintiff to use due diligence to ascertain the true identity of a fictitiously named defendant or the facts giving rise to a cause of action against such a defendant [ Westfour Corp. v. California First Bank (1992) 3 CA4th 1554, 1560, 5 CR2d 394 ; Joslin v. H.A.S. Ins. Brokerage (1986) 184 CA3d 369, 376, 228 CR 878 ]. Whether the plaintiff's ignorance of the defendant's true identity is the result of misinformation or negligence is irrelevant [ Fuller v. Tucker (2000) 84 CA4th 1163, 1170, 101 CR2d 776 ; General Motors Corp. v. Superior Court (1996) 48 CA4th 580, 592-594, 55 CR2d 871 ]. To defeat a claim of ignorance, it must generally be shown that the plaintiff had actual knowledge of the basic facts [ General Motors Corp. v. Superior Court (1996) 48 CA4th 580, 594, 55 CR2d 871 ].

Warning:

Courts vary as to how to evaluate whether a plaintiff is genuinely ignorant of the identity of a fictitiously named defendant because the plaintiff has forgotten the defendant's name. In Woo v. Superior Court (1999) 75 CA4th 169, 179-180, 89 CR2d 20 , (Fourth Dist., Div. One), the court held that a plaintiff who forgot a defendant's identity was required to resort to readily available information to ascertain the defendant's identity and criticized the approach of Balon v. Drost (1993) 20 CA4th 483, 488-490, 25 CR2d 12 (First Dist., Div. Two), which did not require any diligence to relearn the defendant's name.

Trap:

At the first status conference, the court will commonly ask whether there are to be any additional defendants and will seek to dismiss all unnamed fictitious defendants. Plaintiff should not stipulate to dismiss fictitiously-named defendants at this point. Under the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act, the court cannot compel the dismissal or severance of the fictitiously-named defendants until the conclusion of the introduction of evidence at trial except on stipulation or motion of the parties [Gov Code § 68616(h)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of fictitiously named defendants, including the "ignorance" requirement, see Ch. 34, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings, 34.33.

7.11[3][c] Ignorance Measured at Time Complaint Is Filed. A plaintiff's ignorance of the identity of a fictitiously named defendant is measured at the time the plaintiff files the complaint [ Woo v. Superior Court (1999) 75 CA4th 169, 177, 89 CR2d 20 ].

7.11[3][d] Default Judgment May Not Be Entered Against Fictitious Defendant Unless He or She Has Been Served. No default or default judgment may be entered against a fictitiously named defendant unless a copy of the summons, a copy of process, or some other form of notice is served on that defendant [CCP § 474]. The notice must state in substance, on its face: "To the person served: You are hereby served in the within action (or proceeding) as (or on behalf of) the person sued under the fictitious name of (designating it)" [CCP § 474].

7.11[3][e] Plaintiff Must Amend Complaint When Defendant's True Name Is Discovered. A plaintiff must amend the complaint to include the actual name of a fictitiously named defendant when the name is discovered [CCP § 474].

Unreasonable delay in amending the complaint after discovery of the defendant's identity may bar a plaintiff from using the fictitious name device. However, there is no specific time limit for when the amendment must be made after discovery of the defendant's identity. To preclude relation back the plaintiff must be dilatory and the defendant must be prejudiced by the delay [ Winding Creek v. McGlashan (1996) 44 CA4th 933, 942-943, 52 CR2d 236 (no prejudice shown; 2-year delay); Sobeck & Assocs., Inc. v. B & R Invs. No. 24 (1989) 215 CA3d 861, 867-869, 264 CR 156 (no prejudice shown; running of period of limitation measured from time of discovery of identity does not bar relation back)].

7.11[4] Complaint Must State Names of Persons Not Joined As Defendants Who Must Be Joined Under Compulsory Joinder Rules. If a plaintiff has not joined any person or persons who must be joined under compulsory joinder rules [see CCP § 389(a), (b)], the plaintiff must state so in the complaint, as well as provide the reason or reasons why they are not so joined [CCP § 389(c)].

Chapter 7 Complaints
II. DRAFTING A COMPLAINT

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 7.12

7.12 Complaint Must State One or More Causes of Action.

7.12[1] Each Cause of Action Must Be Separately Numbered. Each separately stated cause of action or count in a complaint must be separately numbered. Each separate cause of action in a complaint must be identified with all of the following information [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.112]:

- Its number (e.g., "Second Cause of Action").
- Its nature (e.g., "for breach of warranty").
- The plaintiff asserting it, if more than one plaintiff is represented in the complaint (e.g., "by Plaintiff Wilson").
- The defendant or defendants to whom it is directed (e.g., "against Defendant Miller").

➡ Cross Reference:

Discussion of distinction between cause of action and count, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 123.13 (Matthew Bender).

7.12[2] Incorporation by Reference Is Generally Allowed. If a complaint sets forth more than one cause of action or count, the plaintiff need not repeat in each cause of action facts stated in preceding causes of action [ Lambert v. Southern Counties Gas Co. (1959) 52 C2d 347, 352, 340 P2d 608 ]. Allegations of a preceding cause of action may be incorporated by reference into later ones [ Clark v. Berlin Realty Co. (1917) 33 CA 50, 53, 164 P 333 ].

Warning:

The references will not be subject to serious objection if they are definite and certain [ Treweek v. Howard (1895) 105 C 434, 442, 39 P 20 ]. However, each count must be complete in itself and contain all of the facts necessary to constitute a cause of action. The defects in one count may not be supplied from other statements unless those statements are expressly referred to in the incomplete count and adopted as a part of it [ Priola v. Paulino (1977) 72 CA3d 380, 383, 140 CR 186 ].

Warning:

When incorporating allegations from other counts, a plaintiff should be careful not to incorporate conflicting facts, thereby rendering the complaint uncertain and subject to demurrer [see CCP § 430.10(f)].

A complaint may also incorporate by reference a document that is attached as an exhibit, so as to allow the plaintiff to provide material facts that comprise the cause of action in which the reference is made [ Ludgate Ins. Co. v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2000) 82 CA4th 592, 609, 98 CR2d 277 ; In Re Parker (1998) 60 CA4th 1453, 1469, 71 CR2d 167 ].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

Avoid incorporating all or most prior paragraphs with each purported cause of action. This type of pleading is disfavored because it causes ambiguity and creates redundancy [ Uhrich v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (2003) 109 CA4th 598, 605, 135 CR2d 131 ].

7.12[3] Statement of Facts Constitutes Cause of Action. A statement of facts, in ordinary and concise language, constitutes a cause of action in a complaint [CCP § 425.10(a)(1)].

The nature of a cause of action is determined by the facts pleaded and not by the title the pleader gives it [see Bloniarz v. Roloson (1969) 70 C2d 143, 149, 74 CR 285, 449 P2d 221 ; Nymark v. Heart Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1991) 231 CA3d 1089, 1093, 283 CR 53 ].

Ultimate facts, rather than evidentiary facts or conclusions of law, must be alleged [ Logan v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1982) 136 CA3d 116, 126, 185 CR 878 ; Krug v. Meeham (1952) 109 CA2d 274, 277, 240 P2d 732 ]. An allegation of ultimate fact usually involves one or more conclusions of fact [ In re Estate of Bixler (1924) 194 C 585, 589, 229 P 704 ]. Distinguishing ultimate facts from evidentiary facts and conclusions of law is sometimes difficult and involves a matter of degree [ Burks v. Poppy Constr. Co. (1962) 57 C2d 463, 473, 20 CR 609, 370 P2d 313 ; Bach v. County of Butte (1983) 147 CA3d 554, 563, 195 CR 268 ]. A plaintiff is required only to set forth the essential facts of the case with reasonable precision and with particularity sufficient to acquaint a defendant with the nature, source, and extent of the cause of action [ Ludgate Ins. Co. v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2000) 82 Cal.App.4th 592, 608, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 277 ; Schulz v. Neovi Data Corp. (2007) 152 CA4th 86, 95, 60 CR3d 810 ].

Trap:

General pleadings are controlled by specific allegations. For that reason, where plaintiff alleges a permissible conclusion of law but also avers specific additional facts that either do not support that conclusion or are inconsistent with it, the specific allegations will control, and a complaint that might have been sufficient with general allegations alone may be rendered defective [ Melican v. Regents of University of California (2007) 151 CA4th 168, 174-175, 59 CR3d 672 ].

Warning:

In stating a cause of action, a plaintiff should consider trying to strike a balance between being so specific that the proof of particular facts may be difficult and being so general that the complaint may be subject to demurrer for failing to state a cause of action or for being uncertain. Although a complaint is not subject to a demurrer without leave to amend when it can be amended to state a cause of action, a demurrer sustained with leave to amend results in delay and additional work and may result in some embarrassment to the plaintiff or his or her attorney, giving a psychological advantage to the defendant.

Example:

Pleadings that are so vague may render the complaint the "functional equivalent of no complaint at all," preventing amendment that relates back to the original complaint after the expiration of the applicable limitations period [ Davaloo v. State Farm Ins. Co. (2005) 135 CA4th 409, 417, 37 CR3d 528 ; see Ch. 34, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings, 34.09].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of the distinction between ultimate facts and evidentiary facts or conclusions of law, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, § 123.18[2], [3] (Matthew Bender).

7.12[4] Plaintiff May Plead Inconsistent Theories of Recovery. A plaintiff may plead inconsistent theories of recovery in separate counts and is entitled to recover on whichever count is supported by the evidence [ Grudt v. City of Los Angeles (1970) 2 C3d 575, 586, 86 CR 465, 468 P2d 825 ].

Strategic Point:

It is good practice to state a separate count for each separate theory of liability, instead of combining theories in a single cause of action or count. This will help to avoid inconsistent pleading and confusion in the framing of the issues [see Zumbrun v. University of S. Cal. (1972) 25 CA3d 1, 9, 101 CR 499 ].

7.12[5] Plaintiff May Join Some Defendants Under Permissive Joinder Rules. A plaintiff who alleges a cause of action against one or more defendants may combine with that cause any other causes he or she has, either alone or with co-plaintiffs, against any of the defendants [CCP § 427.10; see CCP §§ 378, 379 (permissive joinder of parties generally)].

Strategic Point:

When deciding whether to allege a particular cause of action, consider that the claim may be subject to a plea of abatement if another action is pending or that objections may be raised on grounds of claim-splitting because of a prior action [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 3, Abatement of Actions, and Ch. 491, Res Judicata (Matthew Bender)]. Consider also the need to avoid splitting a claim and the obligation to assert the cause of action in light of professional standards of conduct [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rules 3-110, 3-200]. For a detailed discussion, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics, § 72.270 et seq. (Matthew Bender).

7.12[6] Special Requirements for Pleading in Particular Situations.

7.12[6][a] Action for Recovery of Real Property Must Describe Land. In an action for the recovery of real property, the land at issue must be described in the complaint with enough certainty to allow its identification on execution [CCP § 455].

7.12[6][b] Action on Contract Must Plead Its Terms or Incorporate Contract. A complaint based on a contract is subject to demurrer if one cannot ascertain whether the contract is written, oral, or implied in law [CCP § 430.10(g)]. If a party relies on a written contract, and it affirmatively appears that all the terms of the contract are not set forth verbatim, nor stated in their legal effect, but that a portion which may be material has been omitted, the complaint is insufficient [ Gilmore v. Lycoming Fire Ins. Co. (1880) 55 C 123, 124-125 (demurrer should have been sustained when complaint showed that insurance policy incorporated insured's application, but content of application was not alleged); Otworth v. Southern Pacific Trans. Co. (1985) 166 CA3d 452, 459, 212 CR 743 (complaint alleges none of the contract terms, nor asserts contract performed or performance excused)].

7.12[6][c] Action on Contract Must Plead Occurrence of Conditions Precedent. The pleading of the occurrence of conditions precedent is necessary for recovery on a contract with such conditions [ Careau & Co. v. Security Pac. Bus. Credit, Inc. (1990) 222 CA3d 1371, 1389, 272 CR 387 ; Clack v. State of California ex rel. Dep't Pub. Works (1969) 275 CA2d 743, 748, 80 CR 274 ]. In pleading the performance of conditions precedent, it may be stated generally that the plaintiff duly performed all of the conditions required on his or her part [CCP § 457]. It is not necessary to state the facts that show performance.

7.12[6][d] Judgments and Other Determinations May Be Stated to Have Been Duly Made. When pleading a judgment or other determination of a court, officer, or board, the judgment or determination may be stated to have been duly made and to have become final [CCP § 456]. It is not necessary to state the facts conferring jurisdiction.

7.12[6][e] Actions Based on Statutes or Ordinances. It is sufficient to refer to a private statute or ordinance by its title and the day of its passage when pleading a private statute or a county or municipal ordinance or a right derived therefrom.

When an action is based on a statute, it is usually sufficient to frame the complaint in the statute's language [ Goss v. Fano (1952) 114 CA2d 819, 823, 251 P2d 337 ].

It is not necessary to state the facts showing performance of conditions precedent when pleading a statute or ordinance or a right derived from a statute or ordinance. The plaintiff can instead state generally that he or she duly performed all of the conditions precedent required of him or her [CCP § 459].

Cross Reference:

Discussion and forms relating to pleading of statutes and ordinances, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 531, Statutes and Ordinances (Matthew Bender).

7.12[6][f] Pleading on Information and Belief. Allegations that concern matters that are within only a defendant's knowledge may be based on information and belief. However, a plaintiff may not allege in this manner facts presumably within his or her knowledge [ Seamen's Bank v. Superior Court (1987) 190 CA3d 1485, 1495, 236 CR 31 ], for example, facts that are a matter of public record [ Ramsey v. City of Lake Elsinore (1990) 220 CA3d 1530, 1541, 270 CR 198 ].

Warning:

Take care in pleading on information and belief because by filing the complaint, counsel is certifying to the court that there is evidentiary support for the allegations or, if specifically so identified, that the allegations are likely to have evidentiary support after a reasonable opportunity for further investigation or discovery [CCP § 128.7(b)(3), (4)].

7.12[6][g] Seeking Declaratory Relief. A complaint for declaratory relief must set forth facts showing the existence of an actual justiciable controversy that is definite, concrete, and touching [ LePage v. Oakland (1970) 13 CA3d 689, 692, 91 CR 806 ] or relating to the rights and duties of the respective parties under a written instrument or contract [ Maquire v. Hibernia S. & L. Soc. (1944) 23 C2d 719, 728, 146 P2d 673 ; see CCP § 1060] other than a will or trust [CCP § 1060], which may include the interpretation of a law [e.g., Wollam v. Palm Springs (1963) 59 C2d 276, 279, 29 CR 1, 379 P2d 481 (statute or ordinance)].

A complaint seeking declaratory relief must demonstrate that this relief is, under all the circumstances, a necessary and proper means to stabilize a justiciable controversy that otherwise may lead to disastrous results or, if it involves a contract, defer the realization of the purposes of the contract [CCP § 1061; C.J.L. Constr., Inc. v. Universal Plumbing (1993) 18 CA4th 376, 390, 22 CR2d 360 (availability of another form of relief that is adequate usually justifies refusal to grant declaratory relief); Southern Counties Gas Co. v. Ventura Pipeline Constr. Co. (1971) 19 CA3d 372, 377, 96

CR 825 ].

Example:

To present a justiciable dispute, a statutory validation action must involve a claim by parties directly affected by a public entity's proposed action or involve a public official whose refusal to perform a public duty impedes the entity from fulfilling its functions [ City of Santa Monica v. Stewart (2005) 126 CA4th 43, 67 ].

Exception:

A trial court may properly grant declaratory relief on a question that is not in dispute when it is necessary for the court to determine that question before it can decide the issue in dispute for which declaratory relief is proper [ Application Group, Inc. v. Hunter Group, Inc. (1998) 61 CA4th 881, 893-894, 72 CR2d 73 ].

Distinguish:

CCP § 1060 contains no suggestion that the plaintiff must allege facts entitling him or her to a favorable decision [ Maquire v. Hibernia S. & L. Soc. (1944) 23 C2d 719, 728, 146 P2d 673 ].

Warning:

While the court must rule on the parties' contested rights even if the plaintiff's factual allegations compel an adverse ruling [ Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 C2d 540, 550, 305 P2d 20 ; Southern Counties Gas Co. v. Ventura Pipeline Constr. Co. (1971) 19 CA3d 372, 377, 96 CR 825 ], the statutes on sanctions for frivolous actions and vexatious litigants do not contain exceptions for actions for declaratory relief [see Ch. 35, Sanctions].

Timing:

The concept of justiciability involves the intertwined criteria of ripeness and standing [ City of Santa Monica v. Stewart (2005) 126 CA4th 43, 59 ]. A plaintiff has standing to raise a controversy for declaratory relief if the plaintiff has a real interest in the ultimate adjudication because he or she has suffered or is about to suffer an injury of sufficient magnitude to reasonably assure that all of the relevant facts and issues will be adequately presented [ California Water & Tel. Co. v. Los Angeles (1967) 253 CA2d 16, 22-23, 61 CR 618 ]. A party lacks standing if it does not have an actual and substantial interest in, or would not be benefited or harmed by, the ultimate outcome of an action. Standing is a function not just of a party's stake in a case, but the degree of vigor or intensity with which the presents its arguments. "Ripeness" refers to the requirements of a current controversy. An action not founded upon an actual controversy between the parties to it, and brought for the purpose of securing a determination of a point of law will not be entertained. A controversy becomes "ripe" once it reaches, but has not passed, the point that the facts have sufficiently congealed to permit an intelligent and useful decision to be made [ City of Santa Monica v. Stewart (2005) 126 CA4th 43, 59 ]. If the parameters of the controversy are as yet unknown, the controversy is not yet ripe for declaratory relief, and a decision would be merely an advisory opinion [ Sanctity of Human Life Network v. California Highway Patrol (2003) 105 CA4th 858, 872, 129 CR2d 708 ]. Conversely, an action that has already accrued and in which the only question for determination is the ultimate liability of one party on account of consequential relief to which another is shown to be entitled, the nature of the action is no longer a cause for declaratory relief [ Standard Brands of California v. Bryce (1934) 1 C2d 718, 721, 37 P2d 446 ; C.J.L. Constr., Inc. v. Universal Plumbing (1993) 18 CA4th 376, 390, 22 CR2d 360 ].

Test:

A two-pronged test is used to determine the ripeness of a controversy:

- Whether the dispute is sufficiently concrete so that declaratory relief is appropriate; and
- Whether the parties will suffer hardship if judicial consideration is withheld.

Under the first prong, the courts will decline to adjudicate a dispute if the abstract posture of the proceeding makes it difficult to evaluate the issues, if the court is asked to speculate on the resolution of hypothetical situations, or if the case presents a contrived inquiry. Under the second prong, the courts will not intervene merely to settle a difference of opinion. There must be an imminent and significant hardship inherent in further delay [ Stonehouse Homes LLC v. City of Sierra Madre (2008) 167 CA4th 531, 540, 84 CR3d 223 ; City of Santa Monica v. Stewart (2005) 126 CA4th 43, 59 ].

Example:

Action for declaratory relief concerning a municipal resolution failed under the first prong because it would require the court to speculate about hypothetical future actions by the City, the city council, and planning commission [ Stonehouse Homes LLC v. City of Sierra Madre (2008) 167 CA4th 531, 540-541, 84 CR3d 223 ].

Strategic Point--Complaint on Contract:

To convince the court that it should consider an action for declaratory relief, plaintiffs must allege with particularity that the resolution of the declaratory relief action concerning contractual remedies would have practical consequences. Pleadings must allege that a dispute has arisen that would cause these remedial provisions to come into play or that the continuation of the contractual relationship depends on the resolution of these questions [ Meyer v. Sprint Spectrum L.P. (2009) 45 C4th 634, 648, 88 CR3d 859, 200 P3d 295 ].

Strategic Point--Preference:

While a purely declaratory action is automatically entitled to priority in setting trial dates [CCP § 1062.3(a)], an action for declaratory as well as other relief has preference only upon motion and showing that the action requires a speedy trial [CCP § 1062.3(b)].

Warning:

If the scope of the declaratory relief complaint is broad and the case is lost, the scope of the matters declared by the judgment is likely to be equally broad [see Aerojet-General Corp. v. American Excess Ins. Co. (2002) 97 CA4th 387, 398, 414, 117 CR2d 427 ]. For discussion of strategy when determining the scope of the declaratory relief sought, see 7.02.

Cross References:

Noticed motion for preference, see Ch. 23, Case Management, 23.34.

For detailed discussion of declaratory relief, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief (Matthew Bender).

7.12[7] Over-Pleading May Expose Plaintiff to Liability for Malicious Prosecution. To establish a cause of action for the tort of malicious prosecution, a plaintiff must plead and prove that the prior action was [ Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Olier (1989) 47 C3d 863, 871, 254 CR 336, 765 P2d 498 ]:

- Commenced by or at the direction of the malicious prosecution defendant and was pursued to a legal termination in plaintiff's favor;
- Brought without probable cause; and
- Initiated with malice.

When the prior action involved multiple claims, liability for malicious prosecution can attach based on the absence of probable cause for any one claim, even though probable cause existed for other claims. The malicious prosecution plaintiff, however, must have had a favorable termination as to the entire prior action [see Crowley v. Katleman (1994) 8 C4th 666, 686, 34 CR2d 386, 881 P2d 1083 ].

Warning:

Beware of over-pleading your case. The Supreme Court in Crowley made clear that kitchen-sink pleading can result in liability for malicious prosecution.

Be sure to investigate the facts and compile the necessary supporting data before filing the complaint [see Centers v. Dollar Markets (1950) 99 CA2d 534, 543, 222 P2d 136 ; cf. Fuss v. Superior Court (1969) 273 CA2d 807, 817 n2, 78 CR 583 (when plaintiff objected to interrogatories on basis that request was burdensome, court noted in dicta that the burden asserted consisted of compiling the data on which plaintiff's claim was based, which plaintiff must have been done before filing the complaint if the litigation was commenced in good faith)].

Chapter 7 Complaints
II. DRAFTING A COMPLAINT

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 7.13

7.13 Demand for Judgment Is Required.

7.13[1] Complaint Must Include Demand for Judgment.

7.13[1][a] Complaint Must Demand Judgment for Relief Claimed, Including Any Amount Demanded. A complaint must contain a demand for judgment for the relief that the plaintiff claims he or she is entitled to receive. If the recovery of money or damages is demanded, the plaintiff must state the amount demanded [CCP § 425.10(a)(2)]. However, the actual amount is often unknown at the time the complaint is being filed. In that instance the complaint will commonly pray for "an amount to be determined at trial" or "an amount in excess of [a specific amount] to be proven at trial." The absence of a specific amount from the complaint is not necessarily fatal as long as the pleaded facts entitle the plaintiff to relief [ Furia v. Helm (2003) 111 CA4th 945, 957 ].

Exceptions:

- A specific amount will be necessary before a default judgment may be entered [see 7.13[2]].
- A party petitioning to confirm an arbitration award does not have to affirmatively plead entitlement to costs or prejudgment interest to be able to recover them [ Pilimai v. Farmers Ins. Exch. Co. (2006) 39 C4th 133, 148-151, 137 P3d 939 ].

Strategic Point:

Exercise judgment in setting the amount of any monetary demand in the prayer. A prayer that is too low can have the effect of limiting recovery, but a prayer that is too high can create credibility problems.

Also, if the complaint is filed as a limited civil case, it must state whether it involves damages more or less than $10,000, which affects the filing fee [Gov Code § 70613(b); Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.111(9)].

Distinguish:

While an action for declaratory relief must demand that the respective rights of the parties be determined and declared, it does not have to allege damages [ Caira v. Offner (2005) 126 CA4th 12, 24-25 ; Twain Harte Homeowners Assn. v. Patterson (1987) 193 CA3d 184, 188, 239 CR 316 ], and the seeking of declaratory relief does not foreclose seeking other remedies in the same or another action [CCP § 1062].

7.13[1][b] Exception: Punitive Damages Amounts Must Not Be Stated. No claim for punitive damages may state the amount of the punitive damages being requested [CC § 3295(e)].

If the plaintiff is going to take the defendant's default and is requesting punitive damages as part of the default judgment, the plaintiff must serve on the defendant a statement reserving the right to a specific amount of punitive damages sought before taking the default [CCP § 425.11(c)].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion and form of statement for reserving damages, see Ch. 36, Defaults and Motions for Relief, 36.83.

7.13[1][c] Exception: Actual and Punitive Damages Amounts in Personal Injury or Wrongful Death Cases Must Not Be Stated. The amount of damages sought, actual and punitive, may not be stated in an action for personal injury or wrongful death [CCP § 425.10(b)].

When the plaintiff is seeking actual or punitive damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the defendant may, at any time, request a CCP § 425.11 statement of damages. If the defendant does not make such a request, the plaintiff must give the defendant notice of the special and general damages sought before a default may be taken [CCP § 425.11(c)].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion and form of statement of damages, see Ch. 36, Defaults and Motions for Relief, 36.84.

7.13[2] Demand Defines Scope of Default Judgment. On a default judgment, the plaintiff may not recover more than the demand in the complaint, in a CCP § 425.11 statement of damages, or in a CCP § 425.115 statement reserving the right to punitive damages [CCP § 580(a); Becker v. S.P.V. Constr. Co. (1980) 27 C3d 489, 493, 165 CR 825, 612 P2d 915 ; Janssen v. Luu (1997) 57 CA4th 272, 275, 66 CR2d 838 ].

No damages can be awarded on a default judgment unless a specific amount of damages is alleged in the body of a complaint [ Schwab v. Rondel Homes, Inc. (1991) 53 C3d 428, 434, 280 CR 83, 808 P2d 226 ; Becker v. S.P.V. Constr. Co. (1980) 27 C3d 489, 494, 165 CR 825, 612 P2d 915 ]. A default judgment that gives relief when no demand is made for relief is void as in excess of the court's jurisdiction and is not res judicata [ Becker v. S.P.V. Constr. Co. (1980) 27 C3d 489, 493, 165 CR 825, 612 P2d 915 ]. A demand that only partially exceeds the relief demanded may be modified to save the portion that is not void [ Becker v. S.P.V. Constr. Co. (1980) 27 C3d 489, 495, 165 CR 825, 612 P2d 915 ].

7.13[3] Awards in Contested Cases May Exceed Prayer. In a contested case, the court may grant any relief justified by the allegations, even if that relief is greater than or different from that which is requested in the prayer, subject to the restriction that certain relief may not be granted in limited civil cases [CCP § 580(b); Nevada County & Sacramento Canal Co. v. Kidd (1869) 37 C 282, 305 ; Romanchek v. Romanchek (1967) 248 CA2d 337, 343, 56 CR 360 ]. However, if a particular sum of damages is specified in the complaint, the court may not award an amount in excess of that sum without an amendment of the prayer [ Crofoot v. Blair Holdings Corp. (1953) 119 CA2d 156, 195, 260 P2d 156 ].

Interest may be awarded in a contested case even when the complaint does not contain a prayer requesting interest [ Sanders v. City of Los Angeles (1970) 3 C3d 252, 263, 90 CR 169, 475 P2d 201 ; Newby v. Vroman (1992) 11 CA4th 283, 286, 14 CR 2d 44 ].

Strategic Point:

It is an error for the court, in the jury's presence, to sustain a motion to increase the amount of the prayer [ Sanguinetti v. Moore Dry Dock Co. (1951) 36 C2d 812, 819, 228 P2d 557 ; Neumann v. Bishop (1976) 59 CA3d 451, 485, 130 CR 786 ].

7.13[4] Prayer Should Be Included, but Absence Is Not Fatal. The absence of a prayer does not expose a complaint to general demurrer [ Greenup v. Rodman (1986) 42 C3d 822, 826, 231 CR 220, 726 P2d 1295 ]. Because the prayer is not part of the cause of action, and the issues involved are determinable from the facts alleged rather than from the prayer [ Berg v. Investors Real Estate Loan Co. (1962) 207 CA2d 808, 815, 24 CR 701 ], a defective prayer will not destroy an otherwise sufficient complaint [ Carney v. Simmonds (1957) 49 C2d 84, 96, 315 P2d 305 ].

While it may not be a fatal omission, a prayer to a complaint is essential in clearly communicating to the court and opposing counsel the relief that is being requested.

In a contested case recovery may be allowed despite the absence of a prayer [ Estate of Kalal (1981) 121 CA3d 841, 845, 175 CR 582 ]. The nature of the action and the amount in controversy, for purposes of subject matter jurisdiction, may be determined from examining the complaint as a whole [ Sellery v. Ward (1942) 21 C2d 300, 305, 131 P2d 550 ; Davis v. Superior Court (1972) 25 CA3d 596, 599, 102 CR 238 ].

Distinguish:

Inclusion of a prayer, or a CCP § 425.11 or 425.115 statement of damages, is a prerequisite to a default judgment [ Greenup v. Rodman (1986) 42 C3d 822, 826, 231 CR 220, 726 P2d 1295 ; see 7.13[2] ].

7.13[5] All Claims Arising From the Same Cause of Action Must Eventually Be Raised in the Same Action.

Under the doctrine of res judicata, if a plaintiff prevails in an action, the cause is merged into the judgment and may not be asserted in a subsequent lawsuit. Under this doctrine, all claims based on the same cause of action existing as of the filing of the action must be decided in a single suit. If some claims are not brought in the initial action, they may not be raised at a later date in a new action [ Allied Fire Protection v. Diede Constr. Inc. (2005) 127 CA4th 150, 154-155 ]. Thus, while not all demands must be made in the initial complaint, every type of relief desired from a given cause of action must eventually be demanded in the same suit.

Chapter 7 Complaints
II. DRAFTING A COMPLAINT

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 7.14

7.14 Attorney or Unrepresented Party Must Sign Complaint.

7.14[1] Signature of Attorney of Record or Unrepresented Party Is Required. A complaint must be signed by at least one attorney of record in the attorney's individual name. If the plaintiff is not represented by counsel, the plaintiff must sign the complaint. Each signature must be accompanied by the signer's address and telephone number, if any [CCP § 128.7(a)].

Warning:

An unsigned complaint will be stricken unless the omission is corrected promptly after being called to the attention of the attorney or the party [CCP § 128.7(a)].

The failure to include a signature in the complaint does not deprive the court of jurisdiction [ Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Leale (1910) 14 CA 307, 309, 111 P 759 ; see United Farm Workers of Am. v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1985) 37 C3d 912, 915, 210 CR 453, 694 P2d 138 (lack of verification; citing Canadian Bank)].

Further, an unsigned complaint is sufficient to institute the action for purposes of the applicable statute of limitation [ Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Leale (1910) 14 CA 307, 308-309, 111 P 759 ].

7.14[2] Presentation of Signed Complaint Equals Certification.

7.14[2][a] Complaint Is Presented by Signing, Filing, Submitting, or Later Advocating. A complaint is presented to the court by signing, filing, submitting, or later advocating [CCP § 128.7(b)]. By presenting a complaint to the court, an attorney or unrepresented party certifies under CCP § 128.7(b), that to the best of the person's knowledge, information, and belief, formed after an inquiry reasonable under the circumstances, the complaint meets the three conditions outlined in 7.14[2][b]-[d].

The term "inquiry reasonable under the circumstances" is not defined by CCP § 128.7. The standard under Fed R Civ P 11, on which CCP § 128.7 is patterned, is based on what was reasonable to believe at the time the complaint was submitted. Thus, what amounts to a reasonable inquiry may depend on factors such as how much investigation time was available to the signer, whether the attorney had to rely on the client for facts set forth in the complaint, whether the complaint was based on a plausible view of the law, and whether the attorney relied on forwarding counsel or another member of the bar. This comports with California cases requiring the court to consider timing considerations when imposing sanctions under CCP § 128.5 [see Atchison, Topeka, & Santa Fe Ry. Co. v. Stockton Port Dist. (1983) 140 CA3d 111, 115, 117, 189 CR 208 ].

7.14[2][b] Complaint Not Presented Primarily for Improper Purpose. The signature on the complaint amounts to a certification that the complaint is not being filed for an improper purpose such as to harass, cause unnecessary delay, or increase litigation costs [CCP § 128.7(b)(1)].

7.14[2][c] Legal Contentions Are Not Unwarranted. The signature on the complaint amounts to a certification that the claims and other legal contentions set forth therein are warranted by existing law or by a nonfrivolous argument for the extension, modification, or reversal of existing law or the establishment of new law [CCP § 128.7(b)(2)].

7.14[2][d] Evidentiary Support Exists or Is Likely to Exist. The signature on the complaint amounts to a certification that there is evidentiary support for the allegations and other factual contentions therein, or if specifically so identified, that the allegations and other factual contentions are likely to have evidentiary support after a reasonable opportunity for further investigation or discovery [CCP § 128.7(b)(3)].

7.14[3] Sanctions May Be Imposed for Violation of Certification. In actions filed on or after January 1, 1995, the court may impose sanctions under CCP § 128.7 if the certification of the four conditions discussed in 7.14[2] is false and the attorney or plaintiff fails to withdraw or correct the complaint [CCP § 128.7(c), (i)].

Chapter 7 Complaints
II. DRAFTING A COMPLAINT

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 7.15

7.15 Verification Is Generally Not Required.

As a general rule, a complaint need not be verified or accompanied by an affidavit [CCP § 128.7(a); CCP § 446 (verification of pleadings generally)].

Exceptions:

Narrow exceptions scattered through the codes require verified complaints in some specific situations. For example:

- Complaints to enforce self-storage facility owner's lien if declaration in opposition to sale is given to owner before sale [B&P Code § 21710].
- Complaints to re-establish destroyed land records [CCP § 751.04].
- Complaints to quiet title [CCP § 761.020].
- Complaints for unlawful detainer or forcible entry or detainer [CCP § 1166].
- Complaints in actions brought against vessels [H&N Code § 495].

Verification of a complaint consists of an affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury that the complaint is true, except as to matters stated on information and belief, and as to those matters, that the persons signing the verification believe it to be true [CCP §§ 446, 2015.5]. If a complaint is verified, the plaintiff ordinarily signs the verification, but in certain circumstances the plaintiff's attorney or another person having knowledge of the facts may verify a complaint [CCP § 446 (if verification is not by plaintiff, reason must be explained in affidavit)].

If an attorney verifies the complaint because the parties are absent from the county in which the attorney's office is located or for some other reason the parties cannot verify the complaint, the attorney's affidavit or declaration must state that the attorney has read the complaint and is informed and believes the matters therein to be true and on that ground alleges that the matters stated therein are true. The same provision applies to verifications by an officer of a corporation or public agency [CCP §§ 446 (requirement), 2015.5 (use of declaration)]. In these instances, the complaint cannot be used to establish the facts alleged in it [CCP § 446].

Verifying the complaint in an unlimited civil case usually precludes a general denial and forces the defendant to verify the answer [see CCP § 431.30(d)]. In limited civil cases the answer need not be verified even when the complaint has been verified, except in actions on claims assigned for collection [CCP §§ 91, 92(b), 431.30(d)].

Strategic Points:

Although verifying the complaint in an unlimited civil case usually precludes a general denial and forces the defendant to verify the answer [see CCP § 431.30(d)], any benefit that might be derived from that is likely overshadowed by the drawbacks of verifying the complaint. A verified complaint may later be used to impeach the plaintiff. Also, while verification does not preclude the assertion of inconsistent theories of recovery, verification of inconsistent facts exposes the plaintiff to charges of perjury [see Pen Code § 118(a); People v. Agnew (1947) 77 CA2d 748, 753-755, 176 P2d 724 (upholding conviction based on statements made on information and belief in verified complaint; swearing to belief in fact known to be untrue is just as much perjury as swearing directly to the fact); Manti v. Gunari (1970) 5 CA3d 442, 449, 85 CR 366 (dicta while criticizing inconsistent facts in unverified complaint)].

In some situations a plaintiff may use a verified complaint that alleges evidentiary facts within the verifier's personal knowledge as an evidentiary statement. A verified complaint may support a temporary restraining order [CCP § 527(a)] or be used to oppose a motion to change venue or to quash a service of summons [see Kroopf v. Guffey (1986) 183 CA3d 1351, 1356, 228 CR 807; Atkins, Kroll & Co. v. Broadway Labor Co. (1963) 222 CA2d 646, 654, 35 CR 385; see also CC §§ 1812.10, 2984.4; CCP § 396a]. However, in these instances a plaintiff may also rely on a separate affidavit or declaration, and this may be preferable because the affidavit or declaration can target exactly the facts needed without having to verify other allegations contained in the complaint.

Trap:

If you decide to verify a complaint give careful consideration to the consequences. For example, verification of a complaint that contains relatively common allegations that each defendant was the agent acting on behalf of the other defendants may create an agent's privilege defense to a claim of conspiracy [see Black v. Bank of Am. N.T. & S.A. (1994) 30 CA4th 1, 6 n3, 35 CR2d 725 (party not permitted to contradict verified pleading that defendant was agent acting within scope of agency to avoid application of rule that an agent cannot conspire with its corporate principal)].

Warning:

The attorney must sign the complaint even if the plaintiff verifies it [see CCP § 128.7(a)].

Judge's Perspective:

Counsel should be careful when considering the filing of a verified complaint. If a successful challenge is made to the pleading such that an amendment will become necessary, the subsequent amended allegations will be the subject of much scrutiny if factual inconsistencies exist between the amended pleading and the original complaint. These inconsistencies can lead to further challenges to the pleadings.

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 7.20

7.20 Case Cover Sheets Are Required in Every Civil Case.

7.20[1] Case Cover Sheet Must Be Included With Complaint. A case cover sheet must be filed with the complaint in every civil case [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.220(a)].

If the plaintiff indicates that his or her case is "complex" under Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.400 or a collections case under Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.740, he or she must serve a copy of the cover sheet with the complaint [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.220(a)]. In all other cases, the plaintiff is not required to serve the cover sheet with the complaint [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.220(a)]. Factors considered by the court in deciding whether a case is complex and the types of cases provisionally designated as complex are listed in Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.400.

➡ Cross Reference:

Form, see 7.43.

7.20[2] Must Use Form Prescribed by Judicial Council. The use of Judicial Council Form CM-010 is required in each civil action, except those filed in small claims court or filed under the Probate Code, Family Law Code, or Welfare and Institutions Code [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.220(b)(1)].

7.20[3] Civil Case Cover Sheet Is Required in Addition to Any Cover Sheet Required by Local Rules. Judicial Council Form CM-010 must be filed in addition to any cover sheet required by local court rules [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.220(a)].

7.20[4] Failure to File Case Cover Sheet May Result in Sanctions. If a plaintiff fails to file a case cover sheet under Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.220(a) or any local court rule or files a defective or incomplete cover sheet when filing the complaint, the clerk is required to file the paper [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.220(c)]. However, the plaintiff, his or her attorney, or both may be subject to sanctions under Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.30 if the case cover sheet is not filed as required by Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.220(a) [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.220(c)].

7.23 Affidavits May Be Required in Actions Involving Installment or Automotive Sales, Consumer Obligations, or Unlawful Detainer.

For the types of actions listed in 7.11[2], if the plaintiff does not state in a verified the complaint facts showing that the complaint has been filed in the proper court and that the action is subject to the provisions of one of the acts named in 7.11[2], then the plaintiff must file an affidavit or declaration made under penalty of perjury [CCP § 2015.5] that states facts showing that the action has been commenced in the proper court and is subject to the provisions of CC § 1812.10 or 2984.4 or CCP § 395(b) or is an action for unlawful detainer [see 7.11[2]]. The affidavit must be served with the summons and complaint [CC §§ 1812.10, 2984.4; CCP § 396a(a)].

Warning:

Failure to include the affidavit, declaration, or the facts in a verified complaint may result in dismissal of the action without prejudice [CC §§ 1812.10(c), 2984.4(c); CCP § 396a(a)].

7.24 Plaintiff May Be Required to File Additional Documents in Some Counties If Case Is Governed by Trial Court Delay Reduction Program.

Superior courts in every California county are required to institute trial court delay reduction programs for limited civil cases [Gov Code §§ 68605.5, 68620]. Several counties require additional documents to be filed with the complaint. However, as long as the complaint is in a form that complies with Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.100 et seq., the clerk has a ministerial duty to file it [see 7.05].

When a party filing a complaint knows of a related action pending before, or dismissed with or without prejudice or disposed of by judgment by, any state or federal court in California, he or she has a duty to file and serve a Notice of Related Case. This duty is a continuing one that applies anytime thereafter that the party learns of a related action [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.300(b), (f); see, e.g., Los Angeles Super Ct Rules, Rule 7.3(f)].

Chapter 7 Complaints
III. FILING A COMPLAINT

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 7.26

7.26 Filing Fees Must Be Included With Complaint.

7.26[1] Uniform Filing Fee Set By Statute. As of January 1, 2006, the uniform filing fee statutory structure for first papers filed in a general civil action (not including adoption, probate, or family law actions) applies to the filing of a complaint [Gov Code § 70611 (unlimited civil actions); Gov Code § 70613 (limited civil actions)].

Exceptions:

Surcharges may be tacked onto the uniform fee for complaints in complex cases [see Gov Code § 70603(a)(1)], unlawful detainer actions [see Gov Code § 70603(a)(2)], and, where imposed, for court construction funds in the county or county and city of Riverside, San Bernardino, and San Francisco [see Gov Code §§ 70603(a)(3)-(5), 70622, 70624, 70625].

7.26[2] Party Tendering Partial Payment or Check Returned for Nonpayment Has 20 Days to Complete Payment of Fee and Administrative Charge. If a party filing a complaint tenders partial payment of the filing fee or a check for the fee that is returned for nonpayment, the clerk must give specified notice to the party who tendered the payment, or the person who tendered payment on behalf of the party and the party that they must complete payment of the fee together with an administrative charge [see CCP §§ 411.20(g), 411.21(g)] for the notice [CCP §§ 411.20(a), 411.21(a)].

Exceptions:

The provision concerning the tendering of partial payment does not apply to unlawful detainer actions [CCP § 411.21(a)].

In the alternative, a party who has tendered partial payment or a person who has tendered partial payment on behalf of a party may request a refund in the amount of the partial payment less the administrative charge allowed in CCP § 411.21(g) [CCP § 411.21(c)].

Timing:

The party or person filing on behalf of the party must pay the outstanding amount due on the fee and the administrative charge, or, in the case of a party or person tendering partial payment, request a refund of the partial payment, within 20 days from the date of the mailing of the clerk's notice [CCP §§ 411.20(a), 411.21(a), (c)].

Exception:

If trial or hearing is scheduled within the 20-day period for completing payment, the fee must be paid before the trial or hearing [CCP §§ 411.20(e), 411.21(f)].

Warning:

The clerk's certificate of notice of the mailing creates a rebuttable presumption that the fees were not paid. This presumption affects the burden of producing evidence [CCP §§ 411.20(a), 411.21(a); see Hu v. Silgan Containers Corp. (1999) 70 CA4th 1261, 1268, 83 CR2d 333 (returned check)].

7.26[3] Failure to Complete Payment of Fee and Administrative Charge Results in Voided Complaint and Forfeiture of Partial Payment. If the plaintiff does not pay the full filing fee and administrative charge by an authorized means within the 20-day period described under 7.26[2], the clerk must void the filing [CCP §§ 411.20(b), 411.21(b)] as well as any responsive pleading filed by the defendant [CCP §§ 411.20(c), 411.21(d)].

Warning:

Payment of the amount due within the 20-day period is mandatory and jurisdictional. If the amount due is not paid, the court loses jurisdiction over the complaint and can act only to void it. The trial court does not possess authority to thereafter reinstate the complaint [ Hu v. Silgan Containers Corp. (1999) 70 CA4th 1261, 1266, 1268-1269, 83 CR2d 333 (decided prior to amendment adding administrative charge)]. Further, CCP § 473 will not provide relief from the dismissal unless the amount due was actually paid during the 20-day period or the plaintiff was prevented from paying the amount due because of fraud or some other conduct on the part of the defendant [ Hu v. Silgan Containers Corp. (1999) 70 CA4th 1261, 1267, 1269-1270, 83 CR2d 333 (decided prior to amendment adding administrative charge)].

Similarly, if the fee is not paid before any trial or hearing scheduled within 20 days of the date of mailing of the clerk's notice of nonpayment or partial payment, the court will void the complaint and proceed as if it had never been filed [CCP §§ 411.20(e), 411.21(f)].

In addition, a party who has tendered partial payment or person who has tendered partial payment on behalf of a party, and in either case, who has not made a timely request for a refund [see 7.26[2]] forfeits the partial payment [CCP § 411.21(c)].

The court mails notice of the avoidance of the complaint and any responding papers to the parties or their counsel. If a defendant has filed a response to the complaint that does not include a cross complaint or other pleading for affirmative relief, together with a filing fee, and the complaint is voided for nonpayment of filing fee and administrative charge, defendant can obtain a refund of his or her filing fee by making a request within 20 days of the date on which notice of the avoidance was mailed [CCP §§ 411.20(c), 411.21(d)].

7.26[4] Seeking Initial Waiver of Filing and Other Fees and Costs.

7.26[4][a] Party Seeking Initial Waiver Must Meet One of Four Grounds for Indigency. An initial fee waiver excusing the applicant from paying some or all fees and costs for the first pleading or other paper [Gov Code § 68631] may be granted on four possible grounds:

- Receipt of financial assistance under one of the designated programs [Gov Code § 68632(a)];

- Receipt of monthly income no greater than 125 percent of the poverty line established by the U.S. Secretary of Health and Human Services [Gov Code § 68632(b)];
- Inability to proceed without using money committed to pay for necessities of life [Gov Code § 68632(c)]; or
- The inherent power of trial courts [ Martin v. Superior Court (1917) 176 C 289, 293-294, 296, 168 P 135] and appellate courts [ Ferguson v. Keays (1971) 4 C3d 649, 654-656, 656 n6, 94 CR 398, 484 P2d 70] to waive fees for indigent parties.

Cross Reference:

Detailed discussion of costs and fees, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees (Matthew Bender).

7.26[4][b] Confidential Application Granted Automatically Unless Court or Authorized Clerk Acts. Judicial Council Form FW-001 is a mandatory form [see Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.51] that must be filed with the court to obtain a waiver of fees, along with specific information depending on the ground for seeking the waiver [see Gov Code § 68633(a)-(c)]. Upon receipt of this confidential [see Gov Code § 68633(f); Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.54] application, the clerk must file it and any accompanying pleading or other papers, but may request that the applicant supply documentation requested on the form and not supplied by the applicant [Gov Code § 68634(b)].

Warning:

Counsel representing an applicant who is filing in a general jurisdiction civil case pursuant to an agreement that counsel will advance litigation costs must indicate that agreement on the application form. The court must set a hearing to determine whether or not the applicant is able to pay court fees without using moneys that normally would pay for the common necessities of life [Gov Code § 68633(g)].

Exception:

This provision does not apply if the applicant is represented by counsel for, or affiliated with, a qualified legal services project, as defined in Bus & Prof Code 6213 [Gov Code § 68633(g)].

The application is granted automatically unless the court or, if authorized by the court [see Gov Code § 68634(d)], the clerk acts upon the application within five days of its filing [Gov Code § 68634(f); Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.53]. In doing so, if the application is incomplete, the court may deny it, specifying the information lacking, with leave to submit a new one [Gov Code § 68634(e)(2)]. The court may grant or deny waiver without hearing on the face of an application conclusively showing justification for either [Gov Code § 68634(e)(1), (3)]. On a question of credibility or sufficiency of evidence concerning the applicant's eligibility, the court must hold a private hearing with at least ten days notice. In those circumstances, the court may request additional documentation to be submitted [Gov Code § 68634(e)(4), (5)]. The court must use the appropriate Judicial Council forms for its orders [see Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.52] and may order partial payment of fees and costs [see Gov Code §§ 68631, 68632, 68640]. Additional mandatory Judicial Council Forms have been issued for the fee waiver process:

- FW-002, Request to Waive Additional Court Fees (Superior Court)
- FW-003, Order on Court Fee Waiver (Superior Court)
- FW-005, Notice: Waiver of Court Fees (Superior Court)

- FW-006, Request for Hearing About Court Fee Waiver Order (Superior Court)
- FW-007, Notice on Hearing About Court Fees
- FW-008, Order on Fee Waiver After Hearing (Superior Court)
- FW-010, Notice to Court of Improved Financial Situation or Settlement
- FW-011, Notice to Appear for Reconsideration of Fee Waiver
- FW-012, Order on Court Fee Waiver After Reconsideration Hearing (Superior Court)

Warning:

The applicant must inform the court if his or her financial situation changes in a manner affecting his or her ability to pay waived fees and costs [Gov Code § 68636(a)]. The court has authority to order a party who has received a waiver to pay waived fees and costs upon determining after a hearing that the party was in fact not eligible for the waiver or to order a party whose financial condition has changed to pay costs and fees going forward [Gov Code § 68636(b)].

Cross Reference:

Form of waiver application, see 7.44.

7.26[4][c] Specific Fees and Costs Waived Depend on Application. The fees and costs waived by the granting of an initial application for fee and cost waiver include [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.55]:

- Clerk's fees for filing papers;
- Clerk's fees for reasonably necessary certification and copying;
- Clerk's fees for issuance of process and certificate;
- Clerk's fees for transmittal of papers;
- Court appointed interpreter's fees for parties in small claims actions;
- Sheriff's fees and marshal's fees required by specified statutes;
- Reporter's fees for attendance at hearings and trials within 60 days of the date of the order granting the application;
- The fee for a telephone appearance pursuant to statute; and
- Clerk's fees for preparing, certifying, and transmitting the transcript on appeal.

The applicant may request on the same application or later file another application on a separate Judicial Council form [see Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.51] for waiver of additional fees and costs [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.56].

Distinguish:

A waiver granted to a plaintiff who has been adjudged a vexatious litigant, and the facts warranting the waiver, do not bear on the setting of security required of the vexatious litigant [ McColm v. Westwood Park Assn. (1998) 62 CA4th 1211, 1219, 73 CR2d 288 (decided under prior waiver statute); see 35.15E[5]].

Chapter 7 Complaints
IV. SERVING COMPLAINT ON DEFENDANT

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 7.29

7.29 Service Must Be Completed Within 60 Days of Filing Complaint in All Civil Cases Except Unlawful Detainer Actions, Proceedings Under the Family Code, and Any Other Proceedings for Which Different Service Requirements Are Prescribed by Law.

Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.110(b) requires that the complaint, summons, and ADR information package [see 7.32] be served on all named defendants in an action and that proofs of service be filed with the court within 60 days after the complaint's filing.

Exceptions:

The 60-day rule in Rule 3.110(b) does not apply to the service of complaints or petitions in unlawful detainer actions, proceedings under the Family Code, and other proceedings for which different service requirements are prescribed by law [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.110(a)].

Similarly, the 60-day rule does not apply to collections cases as defined in Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.740(a) [Cal Rules Ct, Rules, 3.110(a), 3.740(c)(1)]. Instead, the complaint must be served and proof of service filed, or an order for summons obtained, within 180 days of the filing of the complaint in those cases [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.740(d)].

If the plaintiff indicates on the cover sheet that the case is complex under Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.400 et seq. or a collections case under Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.740, the plaintiff must also serve a copy of the cover sheet with the complaint [Cal Rules Ct, Rules 3.220(a), 3.740(b)].

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of "collections case" as defined in Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.740(a), see Ch. 23, Case Management, 23.04[1][i].

The court, on its own motion or on the plaintiff's application, may extend the time provided for service of a complaint under Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.110(b) [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.110(e)].

Warning:

An application for an order to extend the time to serve the complaint must be made within the original 60-day period and must be accompanied by a declaration showing why service has not yet been effected, documenting the efforts that have been made to effect service, and specifying the date by which service is proposed to be effected [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.110(e)].

Strategic Point:

An ex parte application for extension of time to serve pleadings may be considered without a personal appearance of the applicant [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1207(2)].

Trap:

When amending the complaint to add a defendant, the added defendant must be served and proof of service must be filed within 30 days after the filing of the amended complaint [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.110(b)].

Chapter 7 Complaints
V. EFFECT OF DISMISSAL OF A COMPLAINT

1-7 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 7.33

7.33 Dismissals Without Prejudice.

Dismissal without prejudice occurs when the dismissal is not rendered on the merits of the action [ Wilson v. Bittick (1965) 63 C2d 30, 35, 45 CR 31, 403 P2d 159 ]. A dismissal without prejudice does not bar the filing of a subsequent action based on the same set of facts [ Stephan v. American Home Builders (1971) 21 CA3d 402, 406, 98 CR 354 ].

Involuntary dismissal under CCP §§ 583.110-583.430 for delay in prosecution is always without prejudice because it is not considered to have been made on the merits [CCP § 581(b)(4), (g); Ashworth v. Memorial Hosp. (1988) 206 CA3d 1046, 1063, 254 CR 104 ].

Strategic Point:

Try to avoid even a dismissal without prejudice because as a practical matter, the filing of a subsequent action based on the same set of facts often may be barred by the statute of limitations [ Stephan v. American Home Builders (1971) 21 CA3d 402, 407, 98 CR 354 ]. When an action is dismissed, the limitation period is restored as if no complaint had ever been filed [ Wood v. Elling Corp. (1977) 20 C3d 353, 359, 142 CR 696, 572 P2d 755 ; Thomas v. Gilliland (2002) 95 CA4th 427, 433, 115 CR2d 520 ].

Distinguish:

If the prior action dismissed without prejudice was in federal court, the doctrine of equitable tolling may allow the case to be filed in state court, if the filing is done promptly [see Addison v. State of California (1978) 21 C3d 313, 317-319, 146 CR 224, 578 P2d 941 ; Kolani v. Gluska (1998) 64 CA4th 402, 409-411, 75 CR2d 257 (statute not tolled because of delay after dismissal); see also 28 USC § 1367(d)].

V. EFFECT OF DISMISSAL OF A COMPLAINT

7.34 Dismissals With Prejudice.

Dismissal with prejudice occurs when there is a final judgment on the merits of the action. Such a dismissal may be the result of an actual determination on the merits of the case, a settlement, or because there exists a statutory requirement for a dismissal with prejudice [see CCP § 581(d), (e); Stephan v. American Home Builders (1971) 21 CA3d 402, 407, 98 CR 354 ]. A dismissal with prejudice bars a plaintiff from filing a subsequent action based on the same set of facts [ Gagnon Co., Inc. v. Nevada Desert Inn (1955) 45 C2d 448, 455, 289 P2d 466 ; Roybal v. University Ford (1989) 207 CA3d 1080, 1086, 255 CR 469 ].

A dismissal that does not specify whether it was ordered with or without prejudice is considered to have been made with prejudice [ Tudor Ranches, Inc. v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (1998) 65 CA4th 1422, 1430, 77 CR2d 574 ]. Voluntary dismissals under CCP § 581 are made with prejudice when entered in open court pursuant to a stipulation or motion [ Gagnon Co., Inc. v. Nevada Desert Inn (1955) 45 C2d 448, 455, 289 P2d 466 ] but are presumed to have been made without prejudice when the dismissal is accomplished by the clerk's entry.

Chapter 12 Motions to Strike
I. STRATEGY

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 12.02

12.02 Objective and Strategy.

A motion to strike is the only pleading that allows an attack on a portion of a cause of action. A demurrer or motion for summary judgment requires that an entire cause of action be subject to defeat; thus, a motion to strike can be used to strike a particular claim for relief (e.g., an emotional distress claim in a legal malpractice action, or a claim for punitive damages) and to strike unnecessary, scurrilous or offensive matter from the complaint. For example, a motion to strike would be filed in conjunction with a demurrer to a claim for punitive damages in order to remove from the complaint, if the demurrer were successful, those allegations which purportedly supported the claim for punitives.

Before filing a motion to strike, counsel should seek a stipulation from the opposing party that any offensive matter be voluntarily removed from the pleading.

If a pleading contains irrelevant, false, or improper matter, or if all or part of a pleading does not conform with California law, a governing court rule, or court order, a party may file a motion to strike all or part of the pleading [see CCP § 436; see 12.08[1], [2]]. Grounds for the motion to strike must appear on the face of the challenged pleading or from any matter of which the court may take judicial notice [CCP § 437(a); see 12.05[3]].

Distinguish:

In cases designated as "limited civil cases" (cases generally involving less than $25,000 in controversy), motions to strike may only be used when the damages or relief sought are "not supported by the allegations of the complaint" [CCP §§ 86(a), 91, 92(d); see 12.08[3]].

Motions to strike in civil cases are governed generally by CCP §§ 435-437. In specific causes of action, other statutes and rules may provide their own motion to strike rules [see 12.08[4]]. As noted above, limitations on the availability of motions in limited civil cases are addressed in CCP §§ 91, 92 [see 12.08[3]]. A special type of motion to strike, governed by CCP § 425.16 and discussed in Chapter 13, addresses a cause of action arising from an act in furtherance of the defendant's Constitutional rights of petition or free speech regarding a public issue [see CCP § 425.16(b)(1)].

Chapter 12 Motions to Strike
II. MAKING MOTION TO STRIKE

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 12.04

12.04 Options and Strategies for Moving Party.

12.04[1] Consider Whether Demurrer Is More Appropriate or Should Be Concurrently Filed. The function of both a demurrer and a motion to strike is to raise objections to pleadings on grounds that appear on the face of the pleading or from matters of which the court may take judicial notice [see CCP §§ 430.30(a), 430.70, 437]. However, the two procedural devices have some differences:

- A demurrer is itself a pleading [see CCP § 435(a)(2)]. It raises specific statutory objections to a complaint, cross-complaint, or answer (e.g., that a complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action) [see CCP §§ 430.10, 430.20].
- A motion to strike is not a pleading. It can be used against a demurrer, as well as a complaint, cross-complaint, or answer. The grounds for the motion to strike, set forth in CCP § 436, somewhat overlap with the grounds for demurrer, but are more broadly defined (e.g., material not in conformity with state law is subject to being stricken) [see CCP §§ 435(a)(2), 436; Warren v. Atchison, T. & S.F. Ry. Co. (1971) 19 CA3d 24, 41, 96 CR 317 ].

A typical use of a demurrer and motion to strike would be to demur on the grounds that there are insufficient facts pled to support a claim for punitive damages, coupled with a motion to strike those allegations which purportedly support the punitive damage claim. A motion to strike alone may be appropriate in those circumstances in which the sole object is to remove unnecessary and inflammatory material from a complaint which otherwise appropriately states a cause of action.

► Cross References:

Grounds for motion to strike, see 12.08.

Grounds for demurrer, see Ch. 11, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings, 11.05.

12.04[2] Consider Stipulation. If the parties can reach agreement, a written stipulation to remove objectionable material from a pleading may be used as an alternative to the motion to strike. The better practice is to submit such a stipulation to the court to sign as an Order.

Discussion of stipulations, see Ch. 28, Stipulations.

Chapter 12 Motions to Strike
II. MAKING MOTION TO STRIKE

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 12.05

12.05 Features of Motion to Strike.

12.05[1] Can Be Asserted Against Complaint, Answer, Demurrer, or Cross-Complaint. The general motion to strike under CCP §§ 435-437 can be asserted against any defective pleading. Complaints, answers, demurrers, and cross-complaints may be subject to the motion [see CCP § 435(a), (b)].

Distinguish:

The special anti-SLAPP motion to strike under CCP § 425.16 is only available with respect to complaints and cross-complaints [see CCP § 425.16(f), (h)].

12.05[2] Can Be Asserted Against All or Part of Pleading. The motion to strike under CCP §§ 435-437 is most often used against specific parts of a defective pleading. However, it can be used to strike out all of a pleading not drawn or filed in conformity with California law, a court rule, or a court order [CCP § 436(b)].

12.05[3] Grounds Must Appear on Face of Pleading or From Judicially Noticed Matter. The grounds for a motion to strike must appear on the face of the challenged pleading or from any matter of which the court may take judicial notice [CCP § 437(a); City and County of San Francisco v. Strahlendorf (1992) 7 CA4th 1911, 1913, 9 CR2d 817].

Distinguish:

Special anti-SLAPP motions to strike do not have this restriction; the parties may submit supporting affidavits [CCP § 425.16(b)(2); see Ch. 13, Anti-SLAPP Motions, 13.02].

If the motion is based on judicially noticeable matter [Evid Code §§ 452, 453], then the notice of motion, supporting memorandum, or other means specified by the court must set forth the judicially noticed matter [CCP § 437(b)]. Judicial notice may be taken of facts asserted in documents such as orders, findings of fact and conclusions of law, and judgments [ Day v. Sharp (1975) 50 CA3d 904, 914, 123 CR 918 ]. However, the pleading party's deposition or sworn testimony is not subject to judicial notice [ Garcia v. Sterling (1985) 176 CA3d 17, 22, 221 CR 349 ].

► Cross Reference:

Discussion of judicial notice, California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 321, Judicial Notice

(Matthew Bender).

Against a motion to strike, the complaint as a whole is read, all parts in context with all allegations assumed to be true [ Courtesy Ambulance Serv. v. Superior Court (1992) 8 CA4th 1504, 1519, 11 CR2d 161 ].

Distinguish:

In a summary judgment motion proceeding, where the court determines whether there are any disputed material facts, the parties submit supporting materials outside of the pleadings (e.g., affidavits, declarations, admissions, answers to interrogatories, and depositions) [CCP § 437c(a); see Ch. 38, Summary Judgment, 38.05].

12.05[4] Motion Constitutes Making of General Appearance. The filing of a notice of a motion to strike constitutes the making of a general appearance in the case [CCP § 1014], and thereby confers jurisdiction over the moving party [see Creed v. Schultz (1983) 148 CA3d 733, 740, 196 CR 252 ]. A motion to strike in response to being brought into a suit as a party via a cross-complaint submits the party to the jurisdiction of the court [ Halterman v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1937) 22 CA2d 592, 594, 71 P2d 855 ].

Similarly, appearing at a hearing on a motion to strike is regarded as a general appearance in the case [ Zobel v. Zobel (1907) 151 C 98, 101, 90 P 191 ].

Warning:

If the court lacks personal jurisdiction over a defendant, defense counsel must address that issue before bringing a motion to strike the complaint (e.g., by making a formal motion to quash service of summons under CCP § 418.10) [see Ch. 9, Motions to Quash and Other Objections to Personal Jurisdiction, 9.03].

12.05[5] Motion Does Not Waive Right to Move for Change of Venue. Filing a motion to strike does not waive the moving party's right to move for a change of venue [ Wood, Curtis & Co. v. Herman Mining Co. (1903) 139 C 713, 717, 73 P 588 ; Marshall v. Benedict (1958) 161 CA2d 284, 326 P2d 516 ].

Chapter 12 Motions to Strike
II. MAKING MOTION TO STRIKE

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 12.06

12.06 Timing of Motion to Strike.

12.06[1] Motion Generally Must Be Filed Within Time Limit for Response to Pleading. A motion to strike a pleading generally must be filed within the time allowed to respond to the specific pleading [CCP § 435(b)(1); Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1322(b); City and County of San Francisco v. Strahlendorf (1992) 7 CA4th 1911, 1913, 9 CR2d 817 ].

➤ Cross Reference:

Discussion of the time limits for response to specific pleadings, see Ch. 14, Answers, 14.03.

12.06[2] Moving and Supporting Papers Generally Must Be Served and Filed at Least 16 Court Days Before Hearing.

12.06[2][a] Basic 16-Day Period Applies for Personal Delivery. All moving and supporting papers must be served and filed at least 16 court days before the hearing on the motion to strike [CCP § 1005(b); see CCP § 435(b)(2); Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1300(a)].

Exceptions:

The 16-day time period applies when service is by personal delivery. The period will be increased when service is by mail or electronic transmission [see 12.06[2][b] -[d]]. Also, the court may shorten the statutory time period either on its own motion or on a motion by a party [see 12.06[2][e]].

➤ Cross Reference:

See Ch. 27, Service of Papers, 27.29.

12.06[2][b] Time Period Increased When Notice Served by Mail. If notice is served by mail, the required 16-day period is increased by five calendar days if both the place of mailing and the place of address are within California; by 10 calendar days if either the place of mailing or the place of address is outside the California but within the United States; and by 20 calendar days if either the place of mailing or the place of address is outside the United States [CCP § 1005(b); see CCP § 435(b)(2); Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1300(a)].

12.06[2][c] Time Period Increased When Notice Served by Fax, Express Mail, or Overnight Delivery

Method. If the notice is served by facsimile transmission, express mail, or another method of delivery providing for overnight delivery, the 16-day period is increased by two calendar days [CCP § 1005(b); see CCP § 435(b)(2); Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1300(a)].

12.06[2][d] Time Period Increased When Notice Served by Electronic Service. Electronic service, which may be used by agreement of the parties or court order, may increase the 16-day period by two court days [CCP § 1010.6(a)(6); Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.260(e)(2)].

12.06[2][e] Court May Shorten Duration Between Service and Motion Hearing. On its own motion or on a motion for an order shortening time supported by a declaration showing good cause, the court may prescribe shorter times than those ordinarily required by statute [CCP § 1005(b); Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1300(b)].

12.06[3] Time to Demur Not Extended. The filing of a notice of motion to strike all or part of an answer or complaint does not extend the time within which to demur [CCP § 435(d)].

Warning:

Because CCP § 435(d) does not extend the time for demurrer, the movant must address any defects in the pleading that are subject to demurrer concurrently with the defects that are subject to the motion to strike [see 12.06[5], 12.07].

12.06[4] Motion to Strike Complaint or Cross-Complaint Extends Time to Answer. The filing of a motion to strike a complaint or cross-complaint, without demurring, extends the time to answer, and no default may be entered against a defendant timely moving to strike [CCP § 435(a)(1), (c)].

Warning:

A default may be entered against the defendant if the motion to strike the complaint or cross-complaint is untimely and no other response to the pleading has been made [CCP § 585(c), (e)].

12.06[5] Local Rules Under Trial Court Delay Reduction Act May Affect Timing Requirements. The Judicial Council preempts local court rules pertaining to pleadings, motions and form and format of papers. All local rules concerning these fields are void [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.20(a)]. However, that mandated preemption does not apply to local court rules adopted pursuant to the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act [Gov Code § 68600 et. seq.; Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.20(b)(4)].

The Trial Court Delay Reduction Act states that no delay reduction rules may require a time period shorter than 30 days after service of the complaint for service of responsive pleadings. However, the parties may stipulate to an additional 15 days. However, local rules may establish longer periods of time [Gov Code § 68616(b)].

The Trial Court Delay Reduction Act also states that no delay reduction rules may require a time for service of notice or other paper under CCP §§ 1005 and 1013, except as may be noted in those sections, or a time to plead after service of summons under CCP § 412.20, except as may be noted in that section [Gov Code § 68616(c)].

II. MAKING MOTION TO STRIKE

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 12.07

12.07 Motion to Strike May Be Made in Conjunction With Answer or Demurrer.

A motion to strike can be made simultaneously with a responsive pleading such as an answer or demurrer.

Decision Point:

Determine whether an answer or demurrer should be served and filed concurrently with the motion to strike:

- If the motion to strike only targets part of a complaint, counsel should either file an answer to the remaining portion concurrently with the motion to strike, or calendar the need to answer once the motion to strike has been heard [see Ch. 14, Answers].
- If certain elements of the pleading are subject to statutory grounds for demurrer [see CCP §§ 430.10, 430.30] and party wishes to demur, prepare the demurrer at the same time as the motion to strike [see Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1322(b); see Ch. 11, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings, 11.03].

Chapter 12 Motions to Strike
II. MAKING MOTION TO STRIKE

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 12.08

12.08 Grounds for Motion to Strike.

12.08[1] Irrelevant, False or Improper Matter May Be Stricken. Any party, or the court itself, may move to strike any irrelevant, false, or improper matter from any pleading [CCP §§ 435(b)(1), 436(a)].

Examples:

Examples of materials that may been stricken include:

- A moot question affecting the entire subject matter of the complaint [ Honan v. Title Ins. & Trust Co. (1935) 9 CA2d 675, 679, 50 P2d 1068 ].
- A conclusory allegation [ Bartling v. Glendale Adventist Med. Ctr. (1986) 184 CA3d 961, 969, 229 CR 360 ].
- An indemnity action filed subsequent to a good faith settlement barring further action against the defendant [ Greshko v. County of Los Angeles (1987) 194 CA3d 822, 830, 239 CR 846 ; Hale v. Laden (1986) 178 CA3d 668, 673, 224 CR 182 ].
- Redundant matter in a complaint [ Henke v. Eureka Endowment Asso. (1893) 100 C 429, 433, 34 P 1089 ].
- Language that goes "into unnecessary detail" in setting forth a cause of action [ Smithson v. Sparber (1932) 123 CA 225, 232, 11 P2d 90 ].
- A pleading that is in disregard of or violative of orderly judicial administration [ Kronsberg v. Milton J. Wershow Co. (1965) 238 CA2d 170, 173, 47 CR 592 ].
- An improper claim for punitive damages [see e.g., College Hosp., Inc. v. Superior Court (1994) 8 C4th 704, 34 CR2d 898 ; Erlich v. Menezes (1999) 21 C4th 543, 87 CR2d 886 ].

Distinguish:

Failure to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action should be attacked either by demurrer [CCP § 430.10(e)] or by a motion for judgment on the pleadings [ Pierson v. Sharp Mem. Hosp., Inc. (1989) 216 CA3d 340, 343, 264 CR 673 ]. General uncertainty in the complaint should be attacked by demurrer [see CCP § 430.10(f); Allerton v. King (1929) 96 CA 230, 234, 274 P 90 ].

Warning:

When citing decisions based on former CCP § 453, which governed motions to strike before its 1982 repeal, be aware that the word "sham" in the prior statute, although used in decisions post-dating the repeal [see Roberts v. Los Angeles County Bar Assn. (2003) 105 CA4th 604, 613, 129 CR2d 546 ; Ricard v. Grobstein, Goldman, Stevenson, Siegel, LeVine & Mangel et. al (1992) 6 CA4th 157, 162, 8 CR2d 139 ] is not interchangeable with the word "false," as used in the current CCP § 436(a). The different phraseology utilized in the two different statutes is presumed to show an intent to change the law [ Garcia v. Sterling (1985) 176 CA3d 17, 21, 221 CR 349 ]. A dictionary definition of "false" taken from the American Heritage Dictionary (2d College Ed. 1982), "contrary to fact or truth," has been relied on to distinguish it from "sham" [ Garcia v. Sterling (1985) 176 CA3d 17, 21, 221 CR 349 ]. A "sham" allegation is so inherently and utterly devoid of merit as to be "radically insufficient" on which to found a cause of action [ McClung v. Watt (1922) 190 C 155, 160, 211 P 17 ].

12.08[2] Pleading Not Drawn or Filed in Accordance With Law. Any party, or the court itself, may move to strike all or part of any pleading not drawn or filed in conformity with state law, court rules or court order [CCP §§ 435(b)(1), 436(b)].

Examples:

Materials that have been stricken include:

- An amended complaint that merely repeated allegations to which a demurrer had been sustained and made no appreciable effort to meet the objections [ Taliaferro v. Prettner (1955) 135 CA2d 157, 159, 286 P2d 977 ].
- An amended complaint that did not conform to previous rulings of the court [ Janis v. California State Lottery Comm'n (1998) 68 CA4th 824, 829, 80 CR2d 549 ; Kronsberg v. Milton J. Wershow Co. (1965) 238 CA2d 170, 173, 47 CR 592 ].
- A complaint in a suit "filed solely to circumvent the court's prior adverse ruling" in a case arising from the same facts is subject to a motion to strike [ Ricard v. Grobstein, Goldman, Stevenson, Siegel, LeVine & Mangel et. al (1992) 6 CA4th 157, 162, 8 CR2d 139 ].
- The pleading of a nonparty [ Milstein v. Turner (1951) 107 CA2d 184, 185, 236 P2d 606 ].
- Any untimely filed pleading [ Buck v. Morrossis (1952) 114 CA2d 461, 464, 250 P2d 270 ].
- An unsigned pleading, when the omission of the signature was not rectified after called to the attention of the attorney and the party [CCP § 128.7; Vaccaro v. Kaiman (1998) 63 CA4th 761, 767-768, 73 CR2d 829 ].
- A complaint failing to state facts showing a primary right by plaintiff or a primary duty devolving on defendant or a wrong done by defendant [CCP § 425.10; Lodi v. Lodi (1985) 173 CA3d 628, 631, 219 CR 116 ].

- Allegations in a complaint for punitive damages when punitive damages are not available [ Grieves v. Superior Court (1984) 157 CA3d 159, 163-164, 203 CR 556 ] or a complaint that improperly states the amount of punitive damages being sought [ Cummings Medical Corp. v. Occupational Medical Corp. (1992) 10 CA4th 1291, 1298, 13 CR2d 585, 13 CR 2 ].
- A complaint brought in the absence of subject matter jurisdiction of the court [ Greener v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1993) 6 C4th 1028, 1036, 25 CR2d 539 ].
- An unverified pleading, when a verified pleading is required [ Hearst v. Hart (1900) 128 C 327, 328, 60 P 846 ; Henderson v. Palmer Union Oil Co. (1923) 64 CA 81, 84, 220 P 672 ].
- A pleading filed by a corporation that is prohibited by statute from maintaining or defending an action in a California court [ Mediterranean Exports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1981) 119 CA3d 605, 616, 174 CR 169 ].
- An amended pleading filed after a motion for judgment on the pleadings has been granted with leave to amend, if the pleading is untimely or violates the court's prior ruling on the motion [CCP § 438(i)(1)(A)].

Distinguish:

If an evidentiary showing is necessary, then summary judgment or another motion is proper [ Mediterranean Exports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1981) 119 CA3d 605, 616, 174 CR 169 ].

Warning:

A motion to strike presenting only objections that the complaint failed to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action may be treated as a general demurrer [see, e.g., Ferraro v. Camarlinghi (2008) 161 CA4th 509, 529, 75 CR3d 19 ].

Cross Reference:

Demurrers generally, see Ch. 11, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on Pleadings.

Cross References:

See Ch. 10, Dismissal for Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction; Ch. 11, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings; Ch. 38, Summary Judgment. Format of citations to legal sources, see Ch. 7, Complaints, 7.06[9]. Exclusion or redaction of social security and financial account numbers from documents filed in the court's public file, see Ch. 7, Complaints, 7.06[10].

12.08[3] Unsupported Damages or Relief Is Sole Ground in Limited Civil Cases. In general, civil cases involving an amount in controversy of $25,000 or less are classified as limited civil cases [CCP §§ 85(a), 86] and all other cases are unlimited civil cases [CCP § 88]. The only permissible ground for a motion to strike in a limited civil case is that the damages or relief sought are not supported by the allegations of the complaint [CCP § 92(d)].

A case may be removed from the auspices of the limited civil case rules on a showing that it is impractical to prosecute or defend within the limited civil case limitations [CCP § 91(c)].

Cross Reference:

Classification of case as "limited" or "unlimited," see Ch. 15, Reclassification of Cases, 15.04.

12.08[4] Special Statutory Grounds for Motion.

12.08[4][a] Failure to File Certificate in Action Against Architect, Engineer, or Land Surveyor. In actions, including cross-complaints for damages or indemnity, "arising out of the professional negligence" of a person holding an architect's certificate, professional engineer registration, or land surveyor's license, failure to file the certificate required by CCP § 411.35(b) is grounds for a motion to strike or demurrer [CCP §§ 411.35(g), 430.10(h); Price v. Dames & Moore (2001) 92 CA4th 355, 360, 112 CR2d 65 ].

However, leave to amend is routinely and liberally granted in order to allow plaintiff to cure the defect of not filing the required certificate [ Price v. Dames & Moore (2001) 92 CA4th 355, 360, 112 CR2d 65 ].

12.08[4][b] Failure to Obtain Leave to Bring Suit in Civil Conspiracy Action Against Attorney Under CC § 1714.10. A plaintiff bringing a civil conspiracy suit against an attorney under CC § 1714.10 must first obtain a court order authorizing the suit. The attorney defendant may move to strike the complaint if the plaintiff has failed to first obtain the order [CC § 1714.10(b)].

The basic characteristics of a 1714.10 civil conspiracy suit are [CC § 1714.10(a)]:

- It alleges a conspiracy between attorney and client.
- The alleged conspiracy arises from an attempt to contest or compromise a claim or dispute.
- The alleged conspiracy is based on the attorney's representation of the client.

Cross Reference:

Special civil proceeding against attorney for conspiracy under CC § 1714.10, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 126, Conspiracy (Matthew Bender).

Warning:

Failure to raise timely the defense of lack of compliance with the court order requirement will constitute a waiver of the requirement [CC § 1714.10(b); Villa Pacific Bldg. Co. v. Superior Court (1991) 233 CA3d 8, 9, 284 CR 227 ].

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 12.09

12.09 Contents of Motion to Strike.

12.09[1] Papers Included. A motion to strike includes the following elements:

- A notice of motion to strike [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1322(a); forms, see 12.23, 12.24].
- Supporting memorandum [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1113; see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 160, Motions to Strike (Matthew Bender)].
- Proof of service [see Ch. 27, Service of Papers, 27.29].
- Proposed order, if desired [form, see 12.25].

12.09[2] Format Requirements for Notice of Motion. The notice of motion must quote in full the portions sought to be stricken except when the motion is to strike an entire paragraph, cause of action, count, or defense [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1322(a)].

Specifications in the notice of motion must be numbered consecutively [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1322(a)].

12.10 Serving and Filing Motion Papers.

Serve and file the papers by:

- Serving a conformed copy of the notice of motion, proof of service, and accompanying papers on the other party's attorney, or on the other party if he or she has no attorney in accordance with CCP §§ 1005, 1010.6, 1013, 1015 and Cal Rules Ct, Rules 3.1103, 3.1300 [see Ch. 27, Service of Papers, 27.29].
- Delivering the originals of the notice of motion and accompanying papers to the court clerk's office for filing at least 16 court days, plus any applicable additional period, before the hearing and pay the required fee [see Ch. 27, Service of Papers, 27.29]. If not filed with the original papers, deliver the proof of service of the moving papers for filing no later than five court days before the time appointed for the hearing [see Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1300].

II. MAKING MOTION TO STRIKE

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 12.12

12.12 Order and Notice of Ruling.

12.12[1] Prevailing Party Prepares Order. If the court grants the motion to strike, counsel for the prevailing defendant ordinarily prepares the formal order for the judge's signature. When the court denies the motion, counsel for the prevailing plaintiff may prepare the formal order for the judge's signature. More typically, no order is prepared if the motion is denied, unless a party intends to take a writ from the denial.

12.12[2] Prevailing Party Must Follow Notice Requirements. The prevailing party must give notice to all other parties or their attorneys [see CCP § 1015] the notice required by CCP § 1019.5(a) in the manner provided in CCP §§ 1010-1020, unless the court otherwise orders or unless notice is waived by all parties in open court and is entered in the minutes [see CCP § 1019.5(a)]. The prevailing party must, pursuant to CCP § 1019.5:

- Prepare a notice of the court's order and a proof of service [see Ch. 26, Law and Motion Procedure, 26.62];
- Serve the ruling on opposing counsel; and
- File the original of the notice and proof of service with the court.

Chapter 12 Motions to Strike
II. MAKING MOTION TO STRIKE

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 12.13

12.13 Considerations When Motion to Strike Granted.

12.13[1] Direct Appeal Is Generally Not Available. In general, an order granting a motion to strike is not directly appealable, but it can be reviewed on appeal from final judgment [ Oeth v. Mason (1967) 247 CA2d 805, 808, 56 CR 69 ].

However, if the court order on the motion to strike has removed from the case the pleader's only cause of action or defense, or leaves no further issue to be determined between the pleader and his or her adversary, the order is directly appealable [ Timberidge Enters., Inc. v. City of Santa Rosa (1978) 86 CA3d 873, 878-879, 150 CR 606 ].

Cross Reference:

Appellate review, see 12.21.

Counsel can seek relief by writ proceeding, although it is unlikely to be granted.

12.13[2] If Stricken Pleading Is Complaint, Court May Grant Leave to Amend.

12.13[2][a] Court May Allow Amendment on Terms It Deems Proper. If a motion to strike is granted, the court may order that an amendment or amended pleading be filed on terms it deems proper [CCP § 472a(d)]. If the defect in the pleading is capable of cure, the court should allow leave to amend [ Vaccaro v. Kaiman (1998) 63 CA4th 761, 768, 73 CR2d 829 ].

Cross Reference:

Amendment of pleadings, see Ch. 34, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings.

The granting of a motion to strike at the same time as the sustaining of a demurrer includes an implied leave to amend [ B.F.G. Builders v. Weisner & Coover Co. (1962) 206 CA2d 752, 758-759, 23 CR 815 ].

Warning:

If the plaintiff fails to amend within the time specified by the court, then either party may move for dismissal. Thereafter, the court may enter a judgment of dismissal [CCP § 581(f)(4)]. It appears such a dismissal is with prejudice. Although section (f) of 581 does not state with prejudice, the fact that the other sections refer to without prejudice would suggest that this dismissal is dispositive.

12.13[2][b] Defendant May Recover Expenses and Fees of Bringing Motion. As a condition of being granted leave to amend the complaint, the plaintiff may be ordered to pay the defendant's expenses in bringing the motion to strike [CCP § 436; Vaccaro v. Kaiman (1998) 63 CA4th 761, 769, 73 CR2d 829 ].

12.13[2][c] If Court Denies Leave to Amend, Party May Move for Dismissal. If a motion to strike the whole of a complaint is granted without leave to amend, either party may move for dismissal, allowing the court to enter a judgment of dismissal [CCP § 581(f)(3)].

Cross Reference:

Moving for voluntary dismissal, see Ch. 39, Voluntary Dismissal, 39.09.

12.13[3] If Stricken Pleading Is Demurrer, Court Will Allow Time for Answer. If a motion to strike a demurrer is granted and there is no answer filed, the court shall allow an answer to be filed on terms that are "just" [CCP §§ 436, 472a(c)].

II. MAKING MOTION TO STRIKE

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 12.14

12.14 Considerations When Motion to Strike Denied.

12.14[1] Direct Appeal Is Not Available. In general, an order denying a motion to strike is not directly appealable, but it can be reviewed on appeal from final judgment [ Oeth v. Mason (1967) 247 CA2d 805, 808, 56 CR 69 ].

► Cross Reference:

Appellate review, see 12.22.

12.14[2] Moving Party Must Have Opportunity to File Answer. If a motion to strike a complaint, cross-complaint, or portion thereof, is denied, then the court must allow the moving party to file an answer [CCP 472a(d)].

III. OPPOSING MOTION TO STRIKE

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 12.15

12.15 CHECKLIST: Opposing Motion to Strike.

☐ Examine the notice of motion and memorandum for the following:

☐ Timeliness of service.

☐ Issues raised by the motion:

☐ Issues raised are not evident from the face of the pleading.

☐ Issues raised are inappropriate for the cause of action.

☐ Improper evidentiary showing.

☐ Oppose?

☐ Not oppose?

Authority:

CCP §§ 91, 92(d), 437(a); Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1322

Discussion:

See 12.05, 12.06, 12.08

Standard Procedure Checklist:

See Ch. 26, Law and Motion Procedure, 26.46

☐ Prepare the following papers:

- ☐ Opposition memorandum.
- ☐ Any applicable certificates, affidavits or documentation of proof of service.

☐ Serve and file the opposition memorandum on the moving party or the moving party's attorney, whichever is appropriate, keeping in mind the following:

- ☐ Time limits.
- ☐ Allowable methods of service.

☐ File the originals with the clerk of court and pay filing fee.

Authority:

CCP §§ 1005, 1011, 1012, 1015

Discussion:

See 12.17 -12.19

☐ Upon denial of motion:

- ☐ Challenge on review of final judgment.

☐ Upon granting of motion:

- ☐ Amend.
- ☐ Move to dismiss.
- ☐ Challenge on review of final judgment.

Authority:

CCP § 436

Discussion:

See 12.13, 12.14

Exceptions:

If the court order on the motion to strike has removed from the case the pleader's only cause of action or defense, or leaves no further issue to be determined between the pleader and his or her adversary, the order is directly appealable [ *Timberidge Enters., Inc. v. Chapter 12 Motions to Strike
IV. REVIEWING GRANT OR DENIAL OF MOTION TO STRIKE

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 12.21

12.21 Appellate Review of Granting of Motion to Strike.

In general, an order granting a motion to strike is interlocutory and not immediately subject to appellate review [ Oeth v. Mason (1967) 247 CA2d 805, 808, 56 CR 69 ].

12.21[1] Review by Appeal.

12.21[1][a] Review Is From Final Judgment. An order granting a motion to strike that operates "to remove from the case the only cause of action alleged" and "to leave no issues to be determined" is appealable as a "final judgment" [ Wilson v. Sharp (1954) 42 C2d 675, 677, 268 P2d 1062 ; Adohr Milk Farms, Inc. v. Love (1967) 255 CA2d 366, 370, 63 CR 123 ; CCP § 904.1(a)(1)].

If the parties to a complaint and cross-complaint are not the same, an order striking a cross-complaint is "immediately appealable" [ Herrscher v. Herrscher (1953) 41 C2d 300, 303 ; Lerner v. Ehrlich (1963) 222 CA2d 168, 170, 35 CR 106 ]

Example:

An order striking a complaint in intervention is a final determination by that court of the interveners' rights. Therefore, it is the equivalent of judgments of dismissal and is appealable [ Timberidge Enters., Inc. v. City of Santa Rosa (1978) 86 CA3d 873, 878, 150 CR 606 ].

In an action against an attorney for civil conspiracy, an order granting a motion to strike under CC § 1714.10(b) that determines the rights of a petitioner or an attorney against whom a pleading has been or is proposed to be filed, will be appealable as a final judgment in a civil action [CC § 1714.10(d)].

Distinguish:

Review by extraordinary writ [see 12.21[2]].

12.21[1][b] Standard of Review. The decision of a court to strike a pleading is reviewed under the "abuse of discretion" standard [ Leader v. Health Indus. of Am., Inc. (2001) 89 CA4th 603, 612, 107 CR2d 489 ].

The burden of proof to establish that the trial court abused its discretion is on the party against whom the motion was granted [ Leader v. Health Indus. of Am., Inc. (2001) 89 CA4th 603, 612, 107 CR2d 489 ; Harding v. Collazo (1986)

177 CA3d 1044, 1054, 223 CR 329 ].

Example:

A motion to strike an allegation of punitive damages was reversed when sufficient facts were pled to support the damages even though plaintiffs might not be able to collect punitive damages on a common law claim and specific remedies under statutory causes of action that also were pled [ Clauson v. Superior Court (1998) 67 CA4th 1253, 1256, 79 CR2d 747 ].

12.21[2] Review by Extraordinary Writ. In some instances, interlocutory review of an order granting a motion to strike is available by extraordinary writ [ Clauson v. Superior Court (1998) 67 CA4th 1253, 1255, 79 CR2d 747 ].

Example:

A motion striking an affirmative defense of collateral estoppel is appealable by extraordinary writ [ Ford Motor Co. v. Superior Court (1971) 16 CA3d 442, 449, 94 CR 127 ].

Distinguish:

Appeal as from a final judgment [see 12.21[1][a]].

1-12 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 12.22

12.22 Appellate Review of Denial of Motion to Strike.

12.22[1] Review by Appeal. In general, the denial of a motion to strike is reviewed as part of an appeal of the final judgment in a matter.

12.22[2] Review by Extraordinary Writ. In some instances, interlocutory review of an order denying a motion to strike may be available by extraordinary writ [see Evans v. Superior Court (1977) 67 CA3d 162, 170, 136 CR 596 ].

Example:

Writ of mandate issued to direct trial court to enter order striking cross-complaint [ Evans v. Superior Court (1977) 67 CA3d 162, 170-171, 136 CR 596 ].

Chapter 13 Anti-SLAPP Motions
I. STRATEGY

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 13.02

13.02 Objective and Strategy.

The special motion to strike under CCP § 425.16 is available to a defendant who has been targeted with a lawsuit filed primarily to chill the defendant's exercise of First Amendment Rights. This type of suit is known as a "SLAPP" suit, the acronym referring to "Strategic Litigation Against Public Participation" [see CCP § 425.16; Bradbury v. Superior Court (1996) 49 CA4th 1108, 1113, 57 CR2d 207 ; see 13.06[1][a] (defining "SLAPP" suit)]. The special motion to strike under CCP § 425.16, also known as an "anti-SLAPP motion," affords the defendant an opportunity to have nonmeritorious actions that chill the valid exercise of freedom of speech exposed and dismissed at an early stage of the litigation [see CCP § 425.16(a); Averill v. Superior Court (1996) 42 CA4th 1170, 1175, 50 CR2d 62 ].

The court applies a two-part test under CCP § 425.16 to determine whether a special motion to strike should be granted [see Matson v. Dvorak (1995) 40 CA4th 539, 548, 46 CR2d 880 ]:

- The movant/defendant must first make a prima facie showing that the action is a SLAPP suit subject to a motion to strike [see 13.06].
- If the action is subject to CCP § 425.16, the burden shifts to the plaintiff to establish the probability of prevailing on the complaint [see 13.18].

On considering an anti-SLAPP motion to strike, the court reviews not only pleadings, but also supporting and opposing affidavits of the parties [CCP § 425.16(b)(2)].

Because the SLAPP motion is a powerful weapon for the defendant, parties have attempted to stretch the outer limits of the applicability of the statute. As the statute states that it should be "construed broadly," it has been successfully utilized in actions for abuse of process and barratry [ Ramona Unified School Dist. v. Tsiknas (2005) 135 CA4th 510, 525, 37 CR3d 381 ], libel [ Lafayette Morehouse, Inc. v. Chronicle Publ'g Co. (1995) 37 CA4th 855, 864, 44 CR2d 46 ], defamation and conspiracy to restrain trade [ Wilcox v. Superior Court (1994) 27 CA4th 809, 816, 33 CR2d 446 ], malicious prosecution [ Jarrow Formulas, Inc. v. LaMarche (2003) 31 C4th 728, 741, 3 CR3d 636, 31 C4th 728, 3 CR3d 636, 74 P3d 737 ], actions involving disputes over political campaigns [ Roberts v. Los Angeles County Bar Assn. (2003) 105 CA4th 604, 614-615, 129 CR2d 546 ], actions over the exercise of rights during litigation [ Equilon Enters. v. Consumer Cause, Inc. (2002) 29 C4th 53, 67, 124 CR2d 507, 52 P3d 685 ], actions for unfair competition and nuisance [ Fashion 21 v. Coalition for Humane Immigrant Rights of Los Angeles (2004) 117 CA4th 1138 ], petitions for permanent injunctive relief against civil harassment [ Thomas v. Quintero (2005) 126 CA4th 635, 652 (but not an application for TRO)], and workplace violence [ City of Los Angeles v. Animal Def. League (2005) 135 CA4th 606, 628, 37 CR3d 632 ], and to challenges to a rebuttal argument in a voter's pamphlet [ Moraga-Orinda Fire Prot. Dist. v. Weir (2004) 115 CA4th 477, 483 ].

In response to what the Legislature finds as a "disturbing abuse" of anti-SLAPP motions and recognition that continued participation in matters of public significance should not be chilled through abuse of the judicial process or use of CCP § 425.16 [CCP § 425.17(a)], the scope of § 425.16 has been limited and the motion may not be used in the following types of actions [CCP § 425.17(b), (c)]:

- Specified actions brought solely in the public interest or on behalf of the general public.
- Specified actions brought against a person primarily engaged in the business of selling or leasing goods or services.

These exceptions to the use of anti-SLAPP motions have their own limitations, and do not apply if the matter involves [CCP § 425.17(d)]:

- Specified persons engaged in the dissemination of ideas to the public.
- Specified actions based on the creation and dissemination of various political and artistic works.
- Specified nonprofit organizations.

The CCP § 425.17 limitations now require a thorough analysis of all parties and causes before deciding on the use of an anti-SLAPP motion, and involve the delicate task of determining exceptions to the exceptions.

Judge's Perspective:

Anti-SLAPP motions are becoming increasingly more popular with defense counsel. However, counsel need to think through all of the ramifications of such a motion prior to service. While these motions are powerful tools in fending off SLAPP suits, counsel need to satisfy themselves that such a motion is merited. The reason is twofold: first, the granting of the motion summarily ends the action or cause of action and flags appellate review for the plaintiff rather immediately; second, denial of the motion, if appealed, stays the entirety of the action pending final appellate review. If the trial court's denial is affirmed on appeal the potential for sizeable attorneys fees to be awarded the plaintiff is quite significant. These motions focus the court quickly as to the allegations contained in the complaint and the arguments of the defense. While this may be warranted in some cases, the overuse of these motions can nullify the intended affect of the statute.

Effective January 1, 2006, CCP § 425.18 is added to the Code concerning the application of special motions to strike under CCP § 425.16 to actions for malicious prosecution and abuse of process against instigators of SLAPP actions, and provides new protections for victims of SLAPP actions. The provisions, applicable to the aforementioned types of actions after the underlying action is dismissed by a grant of a special motion to strike under 425.16, prevent the SLAPP litigant from obtaining costs and fees and an automatic stay of discovery in the victim's action for damages arising from the SLAPP action. The only relief to the SLAPPback defendant is dismissal of the tort action, while the tort plaintiff retains the ability to obtain costs and fees for an anti-SLAPPback motion filed frivolously or only for purposes of unnecessary delay.

Chapter 13 Anti-SLAPP Motions
II. MAKING ANTI-SLAPP MOTION

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 13.03

13.03 CHECKLIST: Making Anti-SLAPP Motion.

☐ Examine pleading at issue to determine whether it would be susceptible to an anti-SLAPP motion to strike:

☐ A suit targeting a written statement, oral statement or writing made:

☐ Before a legislative, executive, or judicial proceeding, or any other official proceeding authorized by law;

☐ In connection with an issue under consideration by a legislative, executive, or judicial body, or any other official proceeding authorized by law; or

☐ In a place open to the public or in a public forum in connection with an issue that is of public interest; or

☐ A suit targeting any other conduct in furtherance of the right of free speech, as guaranteed by the United States or California Constitutions, in connection with a public issue of an issue of public interest.

Authority:

CCP § 425.16(e)

Discussion:

See 13.06[2]

☐ Determine whether any exceptions to availability of anti-SLAPP motion apply:

☐ Statutory exceptions for certain actions:

☐ Specified actions brought solely in the public interest or on behalf of the general public.

☐ Specified actions brought against a person primarily engaged in the business of selling or leasing goods or services.

☐ Action does not involve persons engaged in dissemination of ideas to the public, is not based on the creation and dissemination of various political and artistic works, or is not brought against specified nonprofit organizations.

☐ Enforcement action brought in name of people of State of California by Attorney General, district attorney, or city attorney, acting as public prosecutor.

☐ The act is illegal, irrespective of free speech element.

☐ The defendant has validly waived anti-SLAPP protections.

Authority:

CCP §§ 425.16(d), 425.17; Navellier v. Sletten (2002) 29 C4th 82, 94, 124 CR2d 530, 52 P3d 703 ; Paul for Council v. Hanyecz (2001) 85 CA4th 1356, 1366, 102 CR2d 864

Discussion:

See 13.06[3]

Timing: Consider timing issues:

☐ Motion must be made within 60 days of the service of the complaint or, per discretion of the court, at a later time on terms the court deems proper.

☐ Motion must be scheduled for hearing not more than 30 days after service unless the docket conditions necessitate a later hearing.

Authority:

CCP § 425.16(f)

Discussion:

See 13.05

☐ Examine effect on discovery:

☐ All discovery proceedings are stayed on the filing of a notice of motion.

☐ Stay remains in effect until notice of entry of the order ruling on the motion.

☐ Specified discovery may be still conducted if ordered by the court on noticed motion and for good cause shown.

Authority:

CCP § 425.16(g)

Discussion:

See 13.05[4]

Exception:

When anti-SLAPP discovery rules directly conflict with federal rules in SLAPP actions brought in federal court, federal rules control [see 13.05[4][b]].

☐ Prepare the following papers:

☐ Notice of motion to strike.

Timing:

Motion must be scheduled for hearing not more than 30 days after service unless the docket condition of the court requires a later date [CCP § 425.16(f)]

☐ Declarations or affidavits in support of motion.

☐ Statement regarding oral evidence proposed to be introduced and reasonable time estimate for hearing.

☐ Supporting memorandum.

☐ Proof of service.

☐ Proposed order.

☐ Consider options other than a special anti-SLAPP motion to strike, if available.

Authority:

CCP § 425.16

Discussion:

See 13.05[2]; 13.08

Forms:

See 13.24, 13.25

☐ Serve the notice and declarations on the opposing party or the party's attorney.

☐ File the originals with the clerk of court and pay filing fee.

☐ File copies of motion papers with Judicial Council.

Authority:

CCP §§ 425.16(j)(1), 1005, 1010-1013

Discussion:

See 13.09, 13.10

☐ Follow standard noticed motion procedure.

Exception:

A standard motion to strike does not require an evidentiary showing, but a special anti-SLAPP motion to strike does [see CCP §§ 425.16(b), 435-437].

Standard Procedure Checklist:

See Ch. 26, Law and Motion Procedure, 26.39

Chapter 13 Anti-SLAPP Motions
II. MAKING ANTI-SLAPP MOTION

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 13.04

13.04 Options and Strategies for Defendant.

A CCP § 425.16 motion presents extraordinary advantages. It, in effect, provides an immediate motion for summary judgment without a 60-day waiting period and 75-day notice period. Moreover, because discovery is stayed while the motion (and any appeal) is pending, the defendant can save significant expense. To conduct discovery, the plaintiff must bring a motion and demonstrate to the court "good cause." In addition, if the defendant prevails on the anti-SLAPP motion, he or she is entitled to attorney's fees and costs as a matter of right. A prevailing plaintiff may only collect attorney's fees and costs if the special motion to strike was "frivolous or solely intended to cause unnecessary delay." Thus, a CCP § 425.16 motion is often preferable to filing a demurrer, a regular motion to strike, or waiting until a summary judgment motion can be served and heard.

However, if a cause of action would be subject to a demurrer or regular motion to strike if not eliminated by the anti-SLAPP motion, the defendant should demurrer or make a regular motion to strike in addition to making the CCP § 425.16 motion.

The limitations imposed by CCP § 425.17 add a whole new set of issues to consider when deciding to use an anti-SLAPP motion. Before bringing the motion, conduct a thorough analysis of the parties and causes of action to assess whether the restrictions of CCP § 425.17 clearly apply or if the factual issues required for the restrictions will be the subject of extended litigation. If the motion is proper but the facts supporting the decision are likely to be contested, thoroughly develop the facts in the motion's supporting declarations and consider whether specified discovery will be required after the motion is filed.

Judge's Perspective:

Once counsel for the defendant has analyzed the pleading for a determination as to the nature of the allegations, the decision then turns on what procedural device should be employed to challenge the action. Demurrers are quite limited as to what can be challenged since the court must accept all charging allegations as true. Moreover, with demurrers the court is not permitted to review matters outside the pleading itself. While summary judgment motions offer a more expansive record, there are still procedural formats that must be rigidly followed and therefore do not provide the flexibility of the anti-SLAPP motion. However, it bears repeating that the anti-SLAPP motion has significant risks if improperly used. In addition to attorneys fees that can be assessed the risk of losing credibility with the court can have long lasting effects.

Distinguish:

The principal differences between an anti-SLAPP motion and a motion for summary judgment are that:

- A defendant seeking summary judgment may not make the motion until 60 days after the complaint was filed, and must give 75-days notice of the hearing, while an anti-SLAPP Motion must be filed within 60 days of service of the complaint (unless the court allows a later motion) and will be scheduled for hearing within 30 days after service (unless docket conditions require later hearing) [compare CCP § 437c(a) with CCP § 425.16(f)];
- A defendant seeking summary judgment must produce competent facts defeating plaintiff's alleged causes of action or establishing a defense, while on the anti-SLAPP motion, the defendant only need show that his or her conduct falls within the statute's protection [compare CCP § 437c(a), (o), (p)(2) with CCP § 425.16(b), (e)]; and
- A defendant seeking summary judgment must present a statement of undisputed material facts, which is not required for an anti-SLAPP motion [see CCP § 437c(b)(1)].

Chapter 13 Anti-SLAPP Motions
II. MAKING ANTI-SLAPP MOTION

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 13.05

13.05 Timing of Anti-SLAPP Motion.

13.05[1] Filing of Motion.

13.05[1][a] Defendant Has 60 Days After Service of Complaint; Otherwise Court Permission Required. A motion to strike under CCP § 425.16 (also referred in this chapter to as an "anti-SLAPP motion") may be filed within 60 days of the service of the complaint. In the court's discretion, on "terms it deems proper," the motion to strike may be filed at a later time [CCP § 425.16(f); see Platypus Wear, Inc. v. Goldberg (2008) 166 CA4th 772, 784-787, 83 CR3d 95 (abuse of discretion to consider anti-SLAPP motion two years after filing of complaint in absence of extenuating circumstances)].

Warning:

A stipulation without a court order is ineffective to extend the 60-day period. Anti-SLAPP motion does not exceed the bounds of reason if the conduct of the defendant does not reflect the defendant's desire to effectuate the statute's allowance for "prompt exposure and dismissal of SLAPP suits" [Morin v. Rosenthal (2004) 122 CA4th 673, 681 ].

A plaintiff opposing a late anti-SLAPP motion need not demonstrate prejudice [ Olsen v. Harbison (2005) 134 CA4th 278, 287 ].

13.05[1][b] Service of Amended Complaint Resets 60-Day Period. If an amended complaint is the target of a special anti-SLAPP motion to strike, the 60-day time period within which a motion may be filed without seeking approval from the court begins to run with the service of the amended complaint [ Lam v. Ngo (2001) 91 CA4th 832, 842, 111 CR2d 582 ].

13.05[1][c] Remand From Federal Court Resets 60-Day Period, But Transfer Between Superior Courts Does Not. In an action remanded from federal court to state court, the 60-day time period within which an anti-SLAPP motion may be filed without seeking approval from the court is reset as of the date of service of notice of remand [ Morin v. Rosenthal (2004) 122 CA4th 673, 679 ]. Conversely, the time in which to file an anti-SLAPP motion is not reset or tolled during the pendency of a motion to transfer the case to another superior court district or another court within a superior court district. Nothing prevents a defendant from filing the motion while the transfer motion is pending, which would stay the hearing on the anti-SLAPP motion [ Morin v. Rosenthal (2004) 122 CA4th 673, 679 ].

13.05[1][d] Five-Day Extension for Service by Mail. The extra five days added for mailing prescribed by CCP § 1013 applies to the 60-day time period prescribed for the filing of a special anti-SLAPP motion to strike [ Lam v. Ngo (2001) 91 CA4th 832, 842-843, 111 CR2d 582 ].

Cross Reference:

Ch. 27, Service of Papers.

13.05[1][e] Motion Must Be Filed and Granted Before Plaintiff Dismisses Voluntarily. If a plaintiff voluntarily dismisses his or her claims before the defendant files an anti-SLAPP motion, there is nothing left for the court to strike [ S. B. Beach Properties v. Berti (2006) 39 C4th 374, 383, 46 CR3d 380, 138 P3d 713 ; Chambers v. Miller (2006) 140 CA4th 821, 825 (motion untimely)]. Similarly, the trial court loses jurisdiction to rule on an anti-SLAPP motion upon the voluntary dismissal of the action [ Law Offices of Andrew L. Ellis v. Yang (2009) 178 CA4th 869, 879, 881, 100 CR3d 771 ].

Cross Reference:

For discussion of the impact of voluntary dismissal on defendant's right to attorney fees, see 13.13[5].

13.05[2] Motion Must Be Scheduled for Hearing Within 30 Days of Service Unless Court Docket Conditions Require Later Hearing. Effective October 5, 2005 [see Stats 2005, ch 535, § 4], the clerk of court must schedule the motion to be heard within 30 days of service of the motion unless the docket conditions of the court require a later hearing [CCP § 425.16(f)].

Prerequisite:

In order for the court clerk to ascertain whether a given hearing date will be within 30 days of service of the motion, it would appear that this amendment requires service of motion prior to obtaining the hearing date. Therefore, it appears to require obtaining the hearing date after service of the motion and, therefore, a notice of hearing separate from the notice of motion. As a general practice, counsel file and serve the notice of motion and motion with "TBD" in the caption regarding the date of the motion; "TBD" meaning "to be determined by the court."

Warning:

Amended CCP § 425.16(f), effective October 5, 2005, are intended to overrule Decker v. U.D. Registry, Inc. (2003) 105 CA4th 1382, 1387-1390, 129 CR2d 892 and Fair Political Practices Comm'n v. American Civil Rights Coalition, Inc. (2004) 121 CA4th 1171, 1174-1178, 18 CR3d 157 , 121 CA4th 1171, 18 CR3d 157 [Cal Stat 2005, ch 535, § 3; Hall v. Time Warner, Inc. (2007) 153 CA4th 1337, 1348-1349, 63 CR3d 798 (reversing denial of motion because of untimely hearing)]. It would appear that the same logic applies to render obsolete the ruling on timeliness in Greka Integrated, Inc. v. Lowrey (2005) 133 CA4th 1572, 1577-1578, 35 CR3d 684 , as well.

Example:

A court may continue the hearing to a later date so that the discovery it authorized can be completed [ Lafayette Morehouse, Inc. v. Chronicle Publ'g Co. (1995) 37 CA4th 855, 868, 44 CR2d 46 ].

Cross References:

Service of motion on other parties with 16 court days plus additional days for method of service, see 13.09.

Continuances, see Ch. 30, Continuances.

13.05[3] Response Due at Least Nine Court Days Before Hearing. The anti-SLAPP statute does not establish a specific time limit for a response to a special anti-SLAPP motion to strike [See CCP § 425.16(f)]. However, all opposing papers must be filed at least nine court days before the designated time of the hearing [CCP § 1005(b); Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1300].

13.05[4] Effect on Pending Discovery.

13.05[4][a] Mandatory Stay on Filing of Anti-SLAPP Motion. All discovery proceedings in an action will be stayed on the filing of a 425.16 notice of motion and the stay will remain in effect until notice of entry of the order ruling on the motion [CCP § 425.16(g); Britts v. Superior Court (2006) 145 CA4th 1112, 1127 (includes pending discovery motions)].

Exception:

On "noticed motion and for good cause shown" the court may order that specified discovery be conducted notwithstanding the mandatory stay provision [CCP § 425.16(g); Robertson v. Rodriguez (1995) 36 CA4th 347, 357, 42 CR2d 464; see 1-800 Contacts, Inc. v. Steinberg (2003) 107 CA4th 568, 593-594, 132 CR2d 789]. The factors that the trial court considers in deciding whether to grant a motion for limited discovery for good cause include [ The Garment Workers Ctr. v. Superior Court (2004) 117 CA4th 1156, 1162, 12 CR3d 506 ]:

- Whether evidence necessary to establish the plaintiff's prima facie case is in the hands of the defendant or a third party;
- Whether the information the plaintiff seeks to obtain through formal discovery proceedings is readily available from other sources or can be obtained through informal discovery;
- The plaintiff's need for discovery in the context of the issues raised in the anti-SLAPP motion, such as whether the complaint is legally sufficient, whether requested discovery concerns contested issues, and whether other issues could preclude success for which discovery is not sought; and
- The relative circumstances of the parties and the importance of freezing discovery as protection for the defendant.

Warning:

Counsel must carefully consider whether forcing discovery is necessary to have a sufficient record to succeed on the anti-SLAPP motion, because the remedy after the fact of a writ of coram nobis is "drastic" [ Daniels v. Robbins (2010) 182 CA4th 204, 228, 105 CR3d 683 ].

Cross Reference:

Writs of coram nobis, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, Ch. 19, Introduction to Judgments, § 19.27[2].

Prerequisite:

A plaintiff in a defamation action subject to the constitutional malice standard must demonstrate that the allegedly defamatory statements are provably false factual assertions in order to establish "good cause" under CCP § 425.16(g) for an exception to conduct discovery concerning actual malice [ Paterno v. Superior Court (2008) 163 CA4th 1342, 1345-1346, 78 CR3d 244 ].

Warning:

An ex parte motion for discovery under CCP § 425.16(g) may be denied for failing to comply with the requirement of a noticed motion for discovery under that statute [ Contemporary Servs. Corp. v. Staff Pro Inc. (2007) 152 CA4th 1043, 1061-1062, 61 CR3d 434 ].

Strategic Point:

Because of the speed in which these motions are generally heard, motions to lift the discovery stay are not common. The motion may be appropriate, however, if some information needs to be gathered right away so as to preserve testimony or evidence.

13.05[4][b] Specific Discovery Limitations of CCP § 425.16 Inapplicable in Federal Court Action. The mandatory stay on discovery does not apply when a defendant attempts to assert the anti-SLAPP motion in a federal court action [ Metabolife Int'l, Inc. v. Wornick (9th Cir 2001) 264 F3d 832, 846 ].

The combination of subsections (f) and (g) of CCP § 425.16 creates "a default rule that allows the defendant served with a complaint to immediately put the plaintiff to his or her proof before the plaintiff can conduct discovery" [ Rogers v. Home Shopping Network, Inc. (CD Cal 1999) 57 F Supp2d 973, 980 ]. The applicable federal rule on summary judgment, Fed R Civ P, Rule 56, does not limit discovery in order to ensure that adequate discovery occurs prior to consideration of a summary judgment motion. Because the pertinent subsections of § 425.16 do limit discovery and make discovery after the filing of a special anti-SLAPP motion to strike an exception to the general rule, the discovery-limiting aspect of the two subsections directly collides with federal discovery rules. Consequently, the discovery stay cannot apply to a SLAPP action in federal court [ Metabolife Int'l, Inc. v. Wornick (9th Cir 2001) 264 F3d 832, 846 ].

Chapter 13 Anti-SLAPP Motions
II. MAKING ANTI-SLAPP MOTION

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 13.06

13.06 Availability of Anti-SLAPP Motion to Defendant.

13.06[1] Nature of SLAPP Action.

13.06[1][a] "SLAPP" Defined. For the anti-SLAPP motion to be available to a defendant, the plaintiff's lawsuit must be a qualifying SLAPP action [see CCP § 425.16(b)(1), (e)].

The acronym "SLAPP" stands for "strategic lawsuit against public participation" [ Equilon Enters., LLC v. Consumer Cause, Inc. (2002) 29 CA4th 53, 57, 124 CR2d 507, 52 P3d 685 ].

A SLAPP action is "a meritless suit filed primarily to chill the defendant's exercise of First Amendment rights" [ Bradbury v. Superior Court (1996) 49 CA4th 1108, 1113, 57 CR2d 207 ]. The anti-SLAPP statute, CCP § 425.16, refers to a "cause of action against a person arising from any act of that person in furtherance of the person's right of petition or free speech under the United States or California Constitution in connection with a public issue" [CCP § 425.16(b)].

Examples:

The paradigm SLAPP is a suit filed by a large land developer against environmental activists or a neighborhood association intended to chill political or legal opposition to the developer's plans. Although SLAPP suits often arise out of environmental disputes, such suits are not limited to environmental litigation. The favored causes of action in SLAPP suits are defamation, malicious prosecution, various business torts such as interference with prospective economic advantage, nuisance, and intentional infliction of emotional distress [ Chavez v. Mendoza (2001) 94 CA4th 1083, 1087-1090, 114 CR2d 825 ; Wilcox v. Superior Court (1994) 27 CA4th 809, 815-816, 33 CR2d 446 ].

Petitions for permanent injunctive relief against tenants' civil harassment consisting of protests outside a landlord's church are SLAPP suits [ Thomas v. Quintero (2005) 126 CA4th 635, 652, 24 CR3d 619 ].

Tenants' complaint alleging wrongful service of a termination notice is a SLAPP suit [ Birkner v. Lam (2007) 156 CA4th 275, 283-284, 67 CR3d 190 ].

Declaratory relief action against defendant, along with her attorney, requesting a determination of whether the restaurant's food products complied with Proposition 65 was a SLAPP action [ CKE Restaurants, Inc. v. Moore (2008) 159 CA4th 262, 271, 70 CR3d 921 ].

For purposes of CCP § 425.16(b)(1), the mere fact that an action was filed after protected activity took place does not mean the action arose from that activity for the purposes of the anti-SLAPP statute. Moreover, that a cause of action arguably may have been 'triggered' by protected activity does not entail that it is one arising from such. In the anti-SLAPP context, the critical consideration is whether the cause of action is based on the defendant's protected free speech or petitioning activity [ Episcopal Church Cases (2009) 45 C4th 467, 477, 87 CR3d 275] .

Examples:

The following cases illustrate causes of action that do not arise from protected activity.

- Dispute over ownership of property by general and local churches, while motivated by First Amendment right of local church to disaffiliate from general church, was based in right to own and control property not protected by the anti-SLAPP statute, not in free-speech rights of the local church [ Episcopal Church Cases (2009) 45 C4th 467, 476-478, 87 CR3d 275] .
- Certification of products as complying with a proposed industry "organic" standard and commercial advertising [ All One God Faith, Inc. v. Organic and Sustainable Industry Standards, Inc. (2010) 183 CA4th 1186, 1203, 107 CR3d 861] .
- Termination of a public contract in accordance with its terms and sealing a contract with another vendor without competitive bid [ Graffiti Protective Coatings, Inc. v. City of Pico Rivera (2010) 181 CA4th 1207, 1218, 104 CR3d 692] .
- Litigation concerning an attorney's breach of the duty of loyalty in violation of Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 3-310 [ Oasis West Realty, LLC v. Goldman (2010) 182 CA4th 688, 696, 106 CR3d 539] .
- Defective expert testimony on behalf of the plaintiff in an underlying action [ Robles v. Chalilpoyil (2010) 181 CA4th 566, 575-580, 104 CR3d 628] .
- Petitioning activity undertaken in a foreign country [ Guessous v. Chrome Hearts, LLC (2009) 179 CA4th 1177, 1186, 102 CR3d 214] .
- A client's action against his or her attorney, whether pleaded as a malpractice claim, a breach of fiduciary duty claim, or any other theory of recovery, is not subject to the anti-SLAPP statute merely because some of the allegations refer to the attorney's actions in court [ Hylton v. Frank E. Rogozienski, Inc. (2009) 177 CA4th 1264, 1275, 99 CR3d 805] .
- Breach of a settlement agreement after the underlying action is concluded is not protected activity [ Applied Bus. Software, Inc. v. Pacific Mtg. Exch., Inc. (2008) 164 CA4th 1108, 1118, 79 CR3d 849] .
- Attorney's disbursement of the proceeds of personal injury settlements without notifying respondent medical providers or satisfying the medical liens was not protected activity [ California Back Specialists Medical Group v. Rand (2008) 160 CA4th 1032, 1037, 73 CR3d 268] .
- Pursuing a nonjudicial foreclosure sale does not qualify as constitutionally protected activity [ Garretson v. Post (2007) 156 CA4th 1508, 1525, 68 CR3d 230] .

- There is no constitutional right to have a ballot initiative appear on the ballot, so a suit challenging the validity of an initiative petition does not arise from protected activity [ City of Riverside v. Stansbury (2007) 155 CA4th 1582, 1590-1593, 66 CR3d 862 ] .

- Legal malpractice committed during representation of a party is not constitutionally protected First Amendment activity [ Freeman v. Schack (2007) 154 CA4th 719, 732, 64 CR3d 867 ; Kolar v. Donahue, McIntosh & Hammerton (2006) 145 CA4th 1532, 1537-1540, 52 CR3d 712 ] .

- A second lawsuit that arises from the same underlying controversy cannot be a SLAPP suit against the first action filed concerning that controversy [ Visher v. City of Malibu (2005) 126 CA4th 364, 370, 23 CR3d 816 ] .

13.06[1][b] Anti-SLAPP Provisions Construed Broadly. Anti-SLAPP provisions contained in CCP § 425.16 are to be construed broadly so as to best serve the legislative intent behind the anti-SLAPP motion. The Legislature has stated that it is in the public interest to encourage continued participation in matters of public significance, and that this participation should not be chilled through abuse of the judicial process [CCP § 425.16(a); Briggs v. Eden Council For Hope & Opportunity (1999) 19 C4th 1106, 1118, 81 CR2d 471, 969 P2d 564 ] .

13.06[2] Lawsuits Subject to Anti-SLAPP Motion.

13.06[2][a] Four Categories of Protected Conduct. The defendant pursuing an anti-SLAPP motion must make an initial prima facie showing that plaintiff's suit arose from an act in furtherance of defendant's right of petition or free speech. A defendant can meet this burden by demonstrating that the act underlying the plaintiff's cause arises out of one of the four categories listed in CCP § 425.16(e) [ Braun v. Chronicle Publ'g Co. (1997) 52 CA4th 1036, 1042-1043, 61 CR2d 58 ]:

- Any written or oral statement or writing made before a legislative, executive, or judicial proceeding, or any other official proceeding authorized by law [CCP § 425.16(e)(1); see 13.06[2][b]].
- Any written or oral statement made in connection with an issue under consideration or review by a legislative, executive or judicial body, or any other official proceeding authorized by law [CCP § 425.16(e)(2); see 13.06[2][b]].
- Any written or oral statement or writing made in a place open to the public or a public forum in connection with an issue of public interest [CCP § 425.16(e)(3); see 13.06[2][c]].
- Any other conduct in furtherance of the exercise of the constitutional right of petition or the constitutional right of free speech in connection with a public issue or an issue of public interest [CCP § 425.16(e)(4); see 13.06[2][c]].

These four categories are not intended to be all-inclusive, and other types of acts in furtherance of the right of petition or free speech in connection with a public issue may also be protected [see Averill v. Superior Court (1996) 42 CA4th 1170, 1175, 50 CR2d 62 ] .

Exceptions:

As noted in 13.06[3], several exceptions will disqualify a defendant from using the anti-SLAPP motion, even if one or more of the above categories applies.

13.06[2][b] Motion Can Apply to Exercise of Free Speech or Petition Rights in Connection With Official Proceeding. Without any other evidentiary showing, a suit may qualify as a SLAPP action if the targeted act by the defendant is a written or oral statement or writing made before a legislative, executive, or judicial proceeding, or any other proceeding authorized by law, or a written or oral statement with an issue under consideration by such a body. The issue of whether an event qualifies as an official proceedings is broadly construed [CCP § 425.16(e)(1), (2); Briggs v. Eden Council for Hope & Opportunity (1999) 19 C4th 1106, 1113, 81 CR2d 471, 969 P2d 564 ].

Where a cause of action alleges both protected and unprotected activity concerning an official proceeding, the cause of action will be subject to an anti-SLAPP motion unless the protected conduct is "merely incidental" to the unprotected conduct. It is the principal thrust or gravamen of the plaintiff's cause of action that determines whether the anti-SLAPP statute applies [ Raining Data Corp. v. Barrenechea (2009) 175 CA4th 1363, 1369, 97 CR3d 196 ].

Examples:

■ The litigation privilege of CC § 47(b) may serve as an aid in determining whether a given communication falls within the scope of CCP § 425.16(e)(1), (2) [ Flatley v. Mauro (2006) 39 C4th 299, 322-323, 48 CR3d 606 ], but is a substantively different statute that serves quite different purposes [ Flatley v. Mauro (2006) 39 C4th 299, 322, 323-324, 48 CR3d 606 ]. Thus, the fact that CC § 47(b) may limit the liability of a party for a communication with the opposing party of proposed litigation does not mean that the communication is also a protected communication for purposes of CCP § 425.16(e)(1), (2) [ Flatley v. Mauro (2006) 39 C4th 299, 325, 48 CR3d 606 ]. Consequently, while some communications protected by CC § 47(b) may also be the basis for an anti-SLAPP motion in litigation [ Taheri Law Group v. Evans (2008) 160 CA4th 482, 489, 72 CR3d 847 (communications between the client and defendant about pending lawsuits against the client); Healy v. Tuscany Hills Landscape & Recreation Corp. (2006) 137 CA4th 1, 5-6 (letter concerning litigation to members of association)], and others may not be entitled to protection under either statute [e.g., Robles v. Chalilpoyil (2010) 181 CA4th 566, 580-582, 104 CR3d 628 (claims against expert witness analogous to legal malpractice claims); Haneline Pacific Props., LLC v. May (2008) 167 CA4th 311, 320, 83 CR3d 919 (attempt at persuasion and negotiation between co-owners of property regarding how best to manage their property); A.F. Brown Elec. Contractor, Inc. v. Rhino Elec. Supply, Inc. (2006) 137 CA4th 1118, 1126, 41 CR3d 1 (stop notices and collection efforts)], litigation-related communications that do not involve a public issue [ Briggs v. Eden Council for Hope & Opportunity (1999) 19 C4th 1106 ; Garretson v. Post (2007) 156 CA4th 1508, 1519, 68 CR3d 230 (private nonjudicial foreclosure);] or to which a statutory exception to the coverage of CCP § 425.16(e)(1), (2) applies [see Flatley v. Mauro (2006) 39 C4th 299, 325, 328-333, 48 CR3d 606 (extortionate demand letter as illegal activity)] are not entitled to anti-SLAPP protection even if they are subject to protection from liability under CC § 47(b). Similarly, litigation-related communications to which a statutory exception to the protection from liability under CC § 47(b) does not apply may still be the basis for an anti-SLAPP motion [ Jarrow Formulas, Inc. v. LaMarche (2003) 31 C4th 728, 737 (malicious prosecution actions not protected by CC § 47(b))].

 Cross Reference:

Illegal communications not covered by anti-SLAPP statute, see 13.06[3][d].

■ A claim for relief filed in federal district court is a statement or writing made before a judicial proceeding for purposes of the CCP § 425.16 special anti-SLAPP motion to strike [ Navellier v. Sletten

(2002) 29 C4th 82, 90 ].

While demonstrating that plaintiff's suit arises from a written or oral statement made in a public place or otherwise targeting conduct in furtherance of the constitutional right of petition or of free speech in connection with a public issue or an issue of public interest requires a showing that the issue is of public significance [CCP § 425.16(e)(3), (4); see 13.06[2][c]], demonstrating that the action arises from a written or oral statement made in connection with an official proceeding does not [ Briggs v. Eden Council for Hope & Opportunity (1999) 19 C4th 1106, 1123, 81 CR2d 471, 969 P2d 564 ; Olaes v. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. (2006) 135 CA4th 1501, 1506-1510, 38 CR3d 467 (corporations sexual harassment dispute resolution procedure was not quasi-judicial proceeding)].

Distinguish:

"Official proceedings" included within the scope of CCP § 425.16(e)(2) are not limited to proceedings by governmental entities [ Kibler v. Northern Inyo County Local Hospital Dist. (2006) 39 C4th 192, 201-203, 46 CR3d 41, 138 P3d 193 ]. A comprehensive scheme of government regulation that incorporates a proceeding conducted by peers may be an "official proceeding authorized by law" subject to anti-SLAPP protection [ Kibler v. Northern Inyo County Local Hospital Dist. (2006) 39 C4th 192, 199-200, 46 CR3d 41, 138 P3d 193 ], especially if the results of that process are made subject to judicial review by statute [ Kibler v. Northern Inyo County Local Hospital Dist. (2006) 39 C4th 192, 200, 46 CR3d 41, 138 P3d 193 (hospital peer review process under B&P Code § 809(a)(8) has both characteristics and is official proceeding authorized by law subject to anti-SLAPP protection)].

Distinguish:

A private, contractual arbitration is not an "official proceeding" for purposes of 425.16(e)(1), (2), because it was a nongovernmental activity not reviewable by administrative mandate or required by statute [Century 21 Chamberlain & Associates v. Haberman. (2009) 173 CA4th 1, 7-8, 92 CR3d 249 (denying anti-SLAPP motion based on statements in arbitration)].

Distinguish:

Where no litigation is ever commenced, even if possibly contemplated by one side or another, and instead, an agreement is entered into to resolve the parties' disputes, a later suit alleging breach of that agreement and related tortious conduct does not constitute the sort of activity encompassed by the anti-SLAPP statute's protection of communications made in connection with official proceedings [ Delois v. Barrett Block Partners (2009) 177 CA4th 940, 948-949, 99 CR3d 609] .

Distinguish:

As for when an official proceeding becomes a proceeding, the courts have looked to the application of the litigation privilege under CC § 47(b). Accordingly, just as communications preparatory to or in anticipation of the bringing of an action or other official proceeding are within the protection of the litigation privilege, those statements are equally entitled to the benefits of CCP § 425.16. The protection of CCP § 425.16 arises at the point in time when litigation is no longer a mere possibility, but has instead ripened into a proposed proceeding that is actually contemplated in good faith and under serious consideration as a means of obtaining access to the courts for the purpose of resolving the dispute. A complaint does not have to be drafted before the protection will apply [ Rohde v. Wolf (2007) 154 CA4th 28, 36, 64 CR3d 348 (litigation was actually contemplated and seriously considered at time of prelitigation statements)].

Examples:

Statements made in connection with an official proceeding include:

- Lawful settlement negotiations [ Seltzer v. Barnes (2010) 182 CA4th 953, 963, 106 CR3d 290

(between homeowner and homeowners association)].

- Filing a lawful lis pendens [ Park 100 Investment Group II, LLC. v. Ryan (2009) 180 CA4th 795, 805-806, 812-813, 103 CR3d 218 ] .

- An attorney's communication with opposing counsel on behalf of a client regarding pending litigation [ Genethera, Inc. v. Troy & Gould P.C. (2009) 171 CA4th 901, 908, 90 CR3d 218 (settlement offer)].

- Police officers' statements supporting criminal charges against plaintiff in connection with an issue under consideration by the district attorney [ Schaffer v. City and County of San Francisco (2008) 168 CA4th 992, 1003, 85 CR3d 880 , modified and rehearing denied, Schaffer v. City and County of San Francisco (2008) 2008 Cal. App. LEXIS 2457 ].

- Employer's attorney's letter to the employer's customers that accused the employee of breach of contract and misappropriation of trade secrets and indicated that the employer intended to commence litigation against the employee, which the employer subsequently did [ Neville v. Gregory Chudacoff (2008) 160 CA4th 1255, 1269, 73 CR3d 383 ].

- Communications between the client and defendant about pending lawsuits against the client [ Taheri Law Group v. Evans (2008) 160 CA4th 482, 489, 72 CR3d 847 ].

- The conduct underlying a properly pleaded abuse of process action are official proceedings [ Booker v. Rountree (2007) 155 CA4th 1366, 1370-1371, 66 CR3d 733 (abuse of process claims are subject to anti-SLAPP statute, citing Rusheen v. Cohen (2006) 37 C4th 1048, 39 CR3d 516, 128 P3d 713 as example)].

- Initiation of a State Bar-sponsored attorney fee arbitration proceeding [ Philipson & Simon v. Gulsvig (2007) 154 CA4th 347, 358, 64 CR3d 504 ].

- Statements and communicative conduct of hearing officers in handling an employee's grievances in an official administrative proceeding subject to statutory hearing procedures [ Vergos v. McNeal (2007) 146 CA4th 1387, 1396-1399, 53 CR3d 647 ].

- City councilor's discussion of zoning enforcement matter with city planning staff [ Levy v. City of Santa Monica (2004) 114 CA4th 1252, 1259].

- Communications seeking official investigations into perceived wrongdoing, which may culminate in criminal prosecution or other official proceedings [ Salma v. Capon (2008) 161 CA4th 1275, 1287, 74 CR3d 873 (contacting police and district attorney); Mann v. Quality Old Time Serv., Inc. (2004) 120 CA4th 90, 103, 15 CR3d 215 (no privilege necessary for solicitation of investigation of business competitor's activities)].

- Statements made in a newspaper concerning pending lawsuit [ Annette F. v. Sharon S. (2004) 119 CA4th 1146, 1160 ].

Statements that are not made in connection with an official proceeding include:

- A city's attempt to use land-use guidelines to alter the backfilling standards for a particular landfill operation [ USA Waste of Cal., Inc. v. City of Irwindale (2010) 184 CA4th 53, 62-63, 108 CR3d 466] .

- Request for subpoena for information pursuant to an action filed in another state's court [Tendler v. www.jewishsurvivors.blogspot.com (2008) 164 CA4th 802, 809, 79 CR3d 407] .

- Landlord's unlawful housing discrimination in violation of housing discrimination, disability discrimination and civil rights laws, despite their connection to a rent control removal proceeding [ Department of Fair Employment & Housing v. 1105 Alta Loma Road Apartments, LLC (2007) 154 CA4th 1273, 1284, 65 CR3d 469] .

- Landlord's notice to tenant terminating tenancy [ Clark v. Mazgani (2009) 170 CA4th 1281, 1286-1287, 89 CR3d 24 (fraudulent removal of rent control unit); Marlin v. Aimco Venezia, LLC (2007) 154 CA4th 154, 162, 64 CR3d 488 (landlord's claim that action arose from landlord's subsequent unlawful retainer action was not accepted)] .

- Statement concerning an issue not under consideration or review in the proceeding but related to a contractual transaction from which the proceeding arose [ Wang v. Wal-Mart Real Estate Business Trust (2007) 153 CA4th 790, 809-810, 811, 63 CR3d 575] .

- Drafting a legal document to terminate a trust [ Moore v. Shaw (2004) 116 CA4th 182, 197] .

- A court-ordered sale of property [ Blackburn v. Brady (2004) 116 CA4th 670, 677 , 10 CR3d 696] .

- An allegation by plaintiff insurer against defendant consulting company for assisting insurance policyholders in preparing earthquake damage estimates in violation of a state statute. Although "some of the reports eventually were used in official proceedings or litigation, they were not created 'before' or 'in connection' with an issue under consideration or review" in a proceeding delineated by the anti-SLAPP statute [ People ex. rel. 20th Century Ins. Co. v. Building Permit Consultants, Inc. (2000) 86 CA4th 280, 283-285, 103 CR2d 71] .

13.06[2][c] Motion Can Apply to Exercise of Free Speech or Petition Rights in Public Forum or in Connection With Issue of Public Interest. An anti-SLAPP motion to strike is available to attack a suit targeting any written or oral statement or writing made in a place open to the public or public forum, or targeting any other conduct in furtherance of the exercise of constitutional rights of petition or free speech or in connection with a public issue or an issue of public interest [CCP § 425.16(e)(3), (4)].

Written or oral statements made in a public forum must be speech protected by the First Amendment. Thus, actions based on unprotected "true threats," i.e., statements where the speaker means to communicate a serious expression of an intent to commit an act of unlawful violence to a particular individual or group of individuals, are not subject to anti-SLAPP motions [ D.C. v. R.R. (2010) 182 CA4th 1190, 1218, 106 CR3d 399] .

A "public forum" is not limited to a physical setting [ ComputerXpress, Inc. v. Jackson (2001) 93 CA4th 993, 1006, 113 CR2d 625] . Whether a statement is "made in a place open to the public or in a public forum" depends on whether the means of communicating the statement permits open debate [ Wilbanks v. Wolk (2004) 121 CA4th 883, 896, 17 CR3d 497 ; see Kurwa v. Harrington, Foxx, Dubrow & Canter, LLP (2007) 146 CA4th 841, 846, 53 CR3d 256 (letter sent to CEO of HMO not in public forum)] .

Examples:

- Magazines are public fora within the meaning of CCP § 425.16(e)(3) [ Nygard, Inc. v. Uusi-Kerttula (2008) 159 CA4th 1027, 1038, 72 CR3d 210 ].
- Statements made in Internet chat room regarding a publicly traded company involved matters of public significance [ Ampex Corp. v. Cargle (2005) 128 CA4th 1569 ; ComputerXpress, Inc. v. Jackson (2001) 93 CA4th 993, 1007, 113 CR2d 625; ]. However, an internet posting must occur in the context of an ongoing controversy [ Du Charme v. International Brotherhood of Elec. Workers, Local 45 (2003) 110 CA4th 107, 119, 1 CR3d 501 ].
- A magazine's five-page composition concerning an extremely popular genre of music, and that is a creatively crafted, whimsical editorial commentary on the many bands whose musical works have contributed to the development of the genre, which included a listing of the name of plaintiffs' band in a graphic, was done in connection with a public issue or an issue of public interest, because there is a public interest that attaches to people who, by their accomplishments, mode of living, professional standing, or calling, create a legitimate and widespread attention to their activities [ Stewart v. Rolling Stone LLC (2010) 181 CA4th 664, 677-678, 105 CR3d 98] .
- Statements posted on a website concerning the character of candidates for public office [ Vogel v. Felice (2005) 127 CA4th 1006, 22 CR3d 724 ].
- Statements at a meeting of a homeowners' association board of directors [ Damon v. Ocean Hills Journalism Club (2000) 85 CA4th 468, 475-476, 102 CR2d 205 ].
- Publication of consumer protection information is a contribution to the public debate [ Wilbanks v. Wolk (2004) 121 CA4th 883, 899, 17 CR3d 497 ].
- Allegations of domestic abuse against a political consultant [ Sipple v. Foundation For Nat'l Progress (1999) 71 CA4th 226, 238, 83 CR2d 677 ].
- A suit to compel municipal officers to certify the vote on a voter initiative [ City of Santa Monica v. Stewart (2005) 126 CA4th 43 ].

Warning--Moving Party:

A claim asserted in an action that "arguably" was filed in retaliation against free speech or petition rights is not automatically subject to CCP § 425.16 if the claim did not arise from the exercise of those rights [ ComputerXpress, Inc. v. Jackson (2001) 93 CA4th 993, 1002, 113 CR2d 625 ]. The "act underlying the plaintiff's cause" or "the act which forms the basis for the plaintiff's cause of action" must "itself have been an act in furtherance of the right of petition or free speech" [ Santa Monica Rent Control Board v. Pearl Street, LLC (2003) 109 CA4th 1308, 1316-1319, 135 CR2d 903 ; ComputerXpress, Inc. v. Jackson (2001) 93 CA4th 993, 1003, 113 CR2d 625 ; Braun v. Chronicle Publ'g Co. (1997) 52 CA4th 1036, 1043, 61 CR2d 58 ; Dowling v. Zimmerman (2001) 85 CA4th 1400, 1417, 103 CR2d 174 ].

On the other hand, an omission may constitute an "act underlying the plaintiff's cause," where it is the refusal to comply with an unconstitutional statute attempting to compel speech in contravention of the right to freedom of speech, which includes the right to not speak [ ARP Pharmacy Servs., Inc. v. Gallagher Bassett Servs., Inc. (2006) 138 CA4th 1307, 1323, 42 CR3d 256 (plaintiff's action under unconstitutional statute was SLAPP)].

Distinguish:

A "connection with a public issue" generally requires the statement or activity to be educational, informative, or political advocacy. Furthermore, the requisite connection is only implicated if the subject of the statement or activity underlying the claim, regardless whether it is intermingled with issues of only private interest [ Integrated Healthcare Holdings, Inc. v. Fitzgibbons (2006) 140 CA4th 515, 525, 44 CR3d 517 ; Jewett v. Capital One Bank (2003) 113 CA4th 805 ]:

- Was a person or entity in the public eye;
- Could affect large numbers of people beyond the direct participants; or
- Involved a topic of widespread, public interest.

Thus, "public interest" in a defamation context does not equate with mere curiosity. A matter of public interest should be something of concern to a substantial number of people, so that a matter of concern to the speaker and a relatively small, specific audience is not a matter of public interest. Furthermore, there should be some degree of closeness between the challenged statements and the asserted public interest; the assertion of a broad and amorphous public interest is not sufficient. In addition, the focus of the speaker's conduct should be the public interest rather than a mere effort to gather ammunition for another round of private controversy. Finally, those charged with defamation cannot, by their own conduct, create their own defense by making the claimant a public figure [ Terry v. Davis Community Church (2005) 131 CA4th 1534, 1547, 33 CR3d 145 ].

Example:

The trial court applied the considerations outlined in Terry to university administrators' statements concerning plaintiff's employment termination as a university's sports coach qualified plaintiff's defamation action based on those statements for anti-SLAPP treatment. Plaintiff's termination was of concern to a substantial number of people, and there was great "closeness" between the topic of the public interest (the termination) and the challenged statements (the reasons for the termination). For the focus of the speakers' statements was to respond to the public interest rather than a mere effort to gather ammunition for another round of private controversy. Finally, defendants did not by their conduct create a defense by thrusting plaintiff into the public eye. Plaintiff's role as head coach of a local university's football team already made plaintiff a public figure, and the termination of the coach's employment was already a topic of widespread public interest [ McGarry v. University of San Diego (2007) 154 CA4th 97, 110, 111, 64 CR3d 467 ].

Where the issue is not of interest to the public at large, but rather to a limited, but definable portion of the public, such as a private group, organization, or community; the constitutionally protected activity must, at a minimum, occur in the context of an ongoing controversy, dispute, or discussion [ Hailstone v. Martinez (2008) 169 CA4th 728, 738, 87 CR3d 347 (controversy of interest to 10,000 members of union); Ruiz v. Harbor View Comm. Ass'n (2005) 134 CA4th 1456, 1468-1470, 37 CR3d 133 (private communications with organization members concerning developer's development plans were in the public interest)].

Similarly, statements about corporate activity constitute an issue of public importance upon considering the following pertinent factors [ Ampex Corp. v. Cargle (2005) 128 CA4th 1569 (Internet message board postings were in public interest)]:

- Whether the company is publicly traded,
- The number of investors, and

- Whether the company has promoted itself by means of numerous press releases.

Distinguish:

Allegedly wrongful conduct and speech attributed to defendants that was committed entirely in a business capacity directed at a competitor's associates and customers for the sole purpose of promoting the competing business was not in the public interest [ World Financial Group, Inc. v. HBW Ins. & Financial Services, Inc. (2009) 172 C4th 1561, 1569-1570, 1572-1574, 92 CR3d 227 ].

Distinguish:

A portrayal of a private person as a rebellious slacker is not a matter of public interest where there is no public interest in the person's persona [ Dyer v. Childress (2007) 147 CA4th 1273, 1281, 55 CR3d 544 ].

Distinguish:

When allegations of nonprotected activity are incidental or collateral to a plaintiff's claim challenging primarily the exercise of the rights of free speech or petition, they may be disregarded in determining whether the cause of action arises from protected activity. When the allegations referring to arguably protected activity are only incidental to a cause of action based essentially on nonprotected activity, collateral allusions to protected activity do not subject the cause of action to the anti-SLAPP statute [ Gallanis-Politis v. Medina (2007) 152 CA4th 600, 614, 61 CR3d 701 ; Martinez v. Metabolife Internat., Inc. (2003) 113 CA4th 181, 188, 6 CR3d 494 ].

Distinguish:

While an action for malicious prosecution based on the defendant's initiation of a civil suit [ Jarrow Formulas, Inc. v. LaMarche (2003) 31 C4th 728, 741, 3 CR3d 636, 31 C4th 728, 3 CR3d 636, 74 P3d 737 ] or participation in procurement of a criminal prosecution [ Dickens v. Provident Life & Accident Ins. Co. (2004) 117 CA4th 705, 716, 11 CR3d 877 ] is an action arising from an act in furtherance of the right of petition or free speech, a malicious prosecution action based on the defendant's citizen's arrest of the plaintiff is not [ Wang v. Hartunian (2003) 111 CA4th 744, 752 ].

Distinguish:

Drafting a legal document to terminate a trust is not an exercise of the rights of free speech or petition [ Moore v. Shaw (2004) 116 CA4th 182, 197 ], nor is an attorney's failure to exercise his or her client's right to petition [ Jespersen v. Zubiate-Beauchamp (2003) 114 CA4th 624, 632 (malpractice action)].

Distinguish:

Acts of governance mandated by law, without more, are not exercises of free speech or petition, and suits challenging those acts are not SLAPP suits [ San Ramon Valley Fire Protection Dist. v. Contra Costa County Employees' Retirement Assn. (2005) 125 CA4th 343, 22 CR3d 724 ].

Unlike CCP § 425.16(e)(1)-(3), which pertain to oral or written statements, CCP § 425.16(e)(4) pertains to conduct. The protected conduct must consist of an act of that person in furtherance of the person's right of petition or free speech [ Castillo v. Pacheco (2007) 150 CA4th 242, 250-252, 58 CR3d 305 ].

Example:

Conduct in furtherance of the exercise of constitutional rights of petition or free speech in connection with a public issue or an issue of public interest includes:

- The visitation of, filming of an interview with, and broadcasting the interview with a private person suffering dementia in a retirement home named heir in the will of a famous actor [ Hall v. Time Warner, Inc. (2007) 153 CA4th 1337, 1347, 63 CR3d 798 ].

Conduct that does not have that purpose includes:

- An act of a person in furtherance of the person's right of free exercise of religion [ Castillo v. Pacheco (2007) 150 CA4th 242, 250-252, 58 CR3d 305 (ceremonial fires for purposes of religious ritual not protected by CCP § 425.16)].
- Homeowners association's written demands to a homeowner concerning the conditions, covenants, and restrictions on the homeowner's property [ Turner v. Vista Pointe Ridge Homeowners Ass'n (2009) 180 CA4th 676, 687, 102 CR3d 750] .

13.06[2][d] Motion Can Apply to Private Communications. The anti-SLAPP protections of CCP § 425.16 can apply "to events that transpire between two private individuals" [ Terry v. Davis Community Church (2005) 131 CA4th 1534, 33 CR3d 145 ; Navellier v. Sletten (2002) 29 C4th 82, 91 ]. Private communications may be covered if the communications concern a public issue [ Averill v. Superior Court (1996) 42 CA4th 1170, 1174, 50 CR2d 62 ].

Examples:

- Statements made to an employer [ Averill v. Superior Court (1996) 42 CA4th 1170, 1175, 50 CR2d 62 ].
- Letter from law firm stating intent to file complaint with Attorney General [ Dove Audio, Inc. v. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman (1996) 47 CA4th 777, 784, 54 CR2d 830 ].

13.06[2][e] Plaintiff's Specific Intent to Chill Speech Need Not Be Demonstrated. CCP § 425.16 does not require that in order to prevail on an anti-SLAPP motion, a defendant must demonstrate that the plaintiff brought the cause of action complained of with the intent of chilling the defendant's exercise of speech or petition rights [ Equilon Enters., LLC v. Consumer Cause, Inc. (2002) 29 C4th 53, 58, 124 CR2d 507, 52 P3d 685 ; City of Cotati v. Cashman (2002) 29 C4th 69, 75, 124 CR2d 519, 53 P3d 695 ].

13.06[2][f] Mixed Causes of Action Have Differing Interpretations in the Courts of Appeal. Some courts of appeal have held that a mixed cause of action (alleging both protected and unprotected conduct) is subject to a special motion to strike if at least one of the underlying acts is protected conduct, unless the allegations of protected conduct are merely incidental to the unprotected activity [see Salma v. Capon (First Dist., Div. Five 2008) 161 CA4th 1275, 1287, 74 CR3d 873 ; Peregrine Funding, Inc. v. Sheppard Mullin Richter & Hampton LLP (First Dist., Div. Three 2005) 133 CA4th 658, 672, 35 CR3d 31] , while others have held that mixed causes of action come within the ambit of the special motion to strike if the gravamen or principal thrust of the claim is protected activity [see United States Fire Ins. Co. v. Sheppard, Mullin, Richter & Hampton, LLP (First Dist., Div. Four 2009) 171 CA4th 1617, 1625, 90 CR3d 669 ; California Back Specialists Medical Group v. Rand (Second Dist., Div. Six 2008) 160 CA4th 1032, 1036-1037, 73 CR3d 268 ; Freeman v. Schack (Fourth Dist., Div. One 2007) 154 CA4th 719, 727, 64 CR3d 867] .

13.06[3] Exceptions Where Anti-SLAPP Motion Unavailable.

13.06[3][a] CCP § 425.17 Exceptions to Use of Anti-SLAPP Motion. CCP § 425.17 establishes exceptions to the use of anti-SLAPP motions and prohibits their use in two circumstances. First, an anti-SLAPP motion may not be used in any action brought solely in the public interest or on behalf of the general public if three conditions are met [CCP § 425.17(b)].

Distinguish:

The use of the term "solely" in 425.17(b) expressly conveys the Legislative intent that it not apply to an action that seeks a more narrow advantage for a particular plaintiff. Such an action would not be brought "solely" in the public's interest. The statutory language of 425.17(b) is unambiguous and bars a litigant seeking "any" personal relief from relying on the 425.17(b) exception [Club Members for an Honest Election v. Sierra Club, 45 C4th 309, 316-317, 86 CR3d 288] . In addition, the word "solely" applies separately to both "in the public interest" and "on behalf of the general public" [Club Members for an Honest Election v. Sierra Club, 45 C4th 309, 317 n6, 86 CR3d 288] .

Warning:

While the two statutes are similar in certain ways, the Supreme Court specifically disapproves of the use of caselaw determining eligibility for an attorney fee award under the private attorney general doctrine codified in CCP § 1021.5 in interpreting the preamble to 425.17(b) [Club Members for an Honest Election v. Sierra Club, 45 C4th 309, 315, 317-319, 86 CR3d 288]

Example:

Complaint that brought action related to participation in elections within environmental organization advanced both a personal advantage and the public interest, where relief sought included installment of defeated candidates into seats on the organization's board of directors [Club Members for an Honest Election v. Sierra Club, 45 C4th 309, 317, 86 CR3d 288 (reversing court of appeals' partial grant of anti-SLAPP motion to strike)].

Distinguish:

The "public interest" referred to in 425.17(b), does not simply describe topics that members of the public might find interesting. Instead the term "public interest" is used to define suits brought for the public's good or on behalf of the public. To qualify under the 425.17(b) exception, suits must be brought solely to secure this public benefit. In so holding, the Supreme Court specifically disapproved of the use of caselaw defining "public interest" as used in the anti-SLAPP statute itself, CCP § 425.16.

Warning:

Given the Supreme Court's interpretation of "public interest" as used in 425.17(b), the "principal thrust or gravamen" applied to 425.16 is inappropriate for applying 425.17(b) [Club Members for an Honest Election v. Sierra Club, 45 C4th 309, 318, 319-320, 86 CR3d 288] .

The three conditions that must be met under CCP § 425.17(b) are as follows:

- The plaintiff does not seek any relief greater than or different from the relief sought for the general public or a class of which the plaintiff is a member; and a claim for attorney's fees, costs, or penalties does not constitute greater or different relief;
- The action, if successful, would enforce an important right affecting the public interest, and would confer a significant benefit, whether pecuniary or nonpecuniary, on the general public or a large class of persons; and

Example:

- Notwithstanding a large number of the recipients, there is no public interest principle being vindicated by a suit challenging a company's sending of demand letters to purchasers of a device that could allow them to steal the company's satellite TV programming [ Blanchard v. DIRECTV, Inc. (2004) 123 CA4th 903, 914].

- Private enforcement is necessary and places a disproportionate financial burden on the plaintiff in relation to the plaintiff's stake in the matter.

Example:

- If plaintiffs' personal stake in a lawsuit far exceeds the effect that this lawsuit could possibly have on the public at large, then the financial burden on the plaintiffs is not disproportionate [ Blanchard v. DIRECTV, Inc. (2004) 123 CA4th 903, 915 ].

Second, an anti-SLAPP motion may not be used in any cause of action brought against a person primarily engaged in the business of selling or leasing goods or services, including, but not limited to, insurance, securities, or financial instruments, arising from any statement or conduct by that person if two conditions exist [CCP § 425.17(c)].

Exception:

A cause of action arising from a lawyer's conduct, when the conduct includes advice to a prospective client on pending litigation, does not fall within the statutory exemption in CCP § 425.17(c) [ Taheri Law Group v. Evans (2008) 160 CA4th 482, 490, 72 CR3d 847 ].

Example:

Filing an involuntary bankruptcy petition is "conduct" under CCP § 425.17(c) [ Brill Media Co. v. TCW Group, Inc. (2005) 132 CA4th 324, 340 ].

The two conditions are as follows:

- The statement or conduct consists of representations of fact about that person's or a business competitor's business operations, goods, or services, that is made for the purpose of obtaining approval for, promoting, or securing sales or leases of, or commercial transactions in, the person's goods or services, or the statement or conduct was made in the course of delivering the person's goods or services, [CCP § 425.17(c)(1)], and

Examples:

- A nonprofit trade association is not "a person primarily engaged in the business of selling or leasing goods or services" [ All One God Faith, Inc. v. Organic and Sustainable Industry Standards, Inc. (2010) 183 CA4th 1186, 1212, 187 CR3d 861 ].
- A magazine's use of the name of a rock band on its cover does not constitute "representations of fact about the operations, goods, or services" of the publisher [ Stewart v. Rolling Stone LLC (2010) 181 CA4th 664, 677, 105 CR3d 98 ].
- Defendants' act of filing an underlying action for defamation and unfair competition does not fall within CCP § 425.17(c)(1), because plaintiff was not in the business of litigating claims against defendants [ Contemporary Servs. Corp. v. Staff Pro Inc. (2007) 152 CA4th 1043, 1053-1054, 61 CR3d 434 ].

- Statements made during the administrative and litigation process in an effort to forestall environmental approval of plaintiff's project were not made for the purpose of obtaining approval for, promoting, or securing sales or leases of, or commercial transactions in, defendant's goods or services and were likewise not made in the course of delivering the defendant's goods or services [ Sunset Millennium Associates, LLC v. LHO Grafton Hotel, L.P. (2006) 146 CA4th 300, 313, 52 CR3d 828 ].

- Under CCP § 425.17(c)(1), large financial management and services conglomerates involved in the purchase and sale of financial instruments and investing in companies are "primarily engaged in the business of selling ... goods or services, including ... securities, or financial instruments," and a statement made and conduct engaged in as part of an effort to secure control of the party bringing suit is a "statement or conduct ... made in the course of delivering the person's goods or services" [ Brill Media Co. v. TCW Group, Inc. (2005) 132 CA4th 324, 341 ].

- The intended audience is an actual or potential buyer or customer, or a person likely to repeat the statement to, or otherwise influence, an actual or potential buyer or customer, or the statement or conduct arose out of or within the context of a regulatory approval process, proceeding, or investigation, except where the statement or conduct was made by a telephone corporation in the course of a proceeding before the California Public Utilities Commission and is the subject of a lawsuit brought by a competitor, notwithstanding that the conduct or statement concerns an important public issue. [CCP § 425.17(c)(2)].

Example:

Under CCP § 425.17(c)(2), statements made by large financial management and services conglomerates involved in the purchase and sale of financial instruments and investing in companies to potential buyers of the party bringing suit are an "intended audience [who] is an actual or potential buyer or customer, or a person likely to repeat the statement to, or otherwise influence, an actual or potential buyer or customer" [ Brill Media Co. v. TCW Group, Inc. (2005) 132 CA4th 324, 341 ].

Distinguish:

CCP § 425.17(c)(2) does not require that the customer or buyer be one entering into a commercial relationship with the defendant [ Brill Media Co. v. TCW Group, Inc. (2005) 132 CA4th 324, 342 ].

CCP § 425.17(c) is intended to exempt from anti-SLAPP motions those causes of action arising from the business' commercial speech or activity [ Brill Media Co. v. TCW Group, Inc. (2005) 132 CA4th 324, 342 ].

Examples:

- Statements by seller of chicken products directed to the sale of the products [ Physicians Com. for Responsible Medicine v. Tyson Foods, Inc. (2004) 119 CA4th 120, 127 ].

- An advertisement's purported quote from the review of a movie by a nonexistent movie critic [ Rezec v. Sony Pictures Entm't, Inc. (2004) 116 CA4th 135, 141 ]

- A manufacturer's list of ingredients on a product [ Scott v. Metabolife Int'l, Inc. (2004) 115 CA4th 404, 423, 9 CR3d 242 ] is commercial speech.
- On the other hand, a statement that is educational in nature, and does not propose a commercial transaction, is not commercial speech, and an action based on it is not subject to anti-SLAPP motions [ Bernardo v. Planned Parenthood Fed'n of Am. (2004) 115 CA4th 322, 347 ].
- An interpretation of scientific evidence concerning the safety of abortion on a website of a family planning provider is educational noncommercial speech [ Bernardo v. Planned Parenthood Fed'n of Am. (2004) 115 CA4th 322, 359 (not within speaker's own knowledge)].

The exceptions of CCP § 425.17(b) and (c) have their own exceptions, and do not apply to any of the following [CCP § 425.17(d)]:

- Any person enumerated in Cal Const, art I, § 2(b) (liberty of speech and press), Evid Code § 1070 (newsperson's privilege), or any person engaged in the dissemination of ideas or expression in any book or academic journal, while engaged in the gathering, receiving, or processing of information for communication to the public.
- Any action against any person or entity based upon the creation, dissemination, exhibition, advertisement, or other similar promotion of any dramatic, literary, musical, political, or artistic work, including, but not limited to, a motion picture or television program, or an article published in a newspaper or magazine of general circulation.

Example:

Mailing letters and taking out advertisements in support of political candidates are activities falling within the exception for dissemination of political work that itself is an exception from the exemption of public interest litigation and commercial speech from the use of anti-SLAPP motions [ Major v. Silna (2005) 134 CA4th 1485, 1494-1497, 36 CR3d 875 ].

- Any nonprofit organization that receives more than 50 percent of its annual revenues from federal, state, or local government grants, awards, programs, or reimbursements for services rendered.

When enacting these exceptions and counter exceptions, the Legislature specifically found and declared that there has been a disturbing abuse of CCP § 425.16, which has undermined the exercise of the constitutional rights of freedom of speech and petition for the redress of grievances, contrary to the purpose and intent of § 425.16; and that it is in the public interest to encourage continued participation in matters of public significance, and that this participation should not be chilled through abuse of the judicial process or § 425.16 [CCP § 425.17(a)].

The exceptions in CCP § 425.17(b) apply to all actions decided after the effective date of the statutory amendment, January 1, 2004, because the anti-SLAPP statute is procedural in nature [ Brenton v. Metabolife Internat., Inc. (2004) 116 CA4th 679, 710, 10 CR3d 702 ]. Any action in which an appeal was pending on January 1, 2004 is subject to the exceptions [ Physicians Com. for Responsible Medicine v. Tyson Foods, Inc. (2004) 119 CA4th 120 (exception applied to reverse decision of trial court); Metcalf v. U-Haul Int'l, Inc. (2004) 118 CA4th 1261, 1265, 13 CR3d 686 ].

13.06[3][b] Enforcement Actions by Attorney General, District Attorney, or City Attorney. Enforcement actions "brought in the name of the people of the State of California by the Attorney General, district attorney, or city attorney, acting as a public prosecutor" are not subject to an anti-SLAPP motion to strike [CCP § 425.16(d); City of Long Beach v. California Citizens for Neighborhood Empowerment (2003) 111 CA4th 302, 308 ; People v. Health

Labs. of N. Am., Inc. (2001) 87 CA4th 442, 451, 104 CR2d 618 ].

Distinguish:

Only actions brought by a governmental agency to enforce laws aimed generally at public protection qualify for this exemption to anti-SLAPP scrutiny; and a municipality's workplace violence petitions on behalf of two employees does not constitute civil enforcement actions [ City of Los Angeles v. Animal Def. League (2005) 135 CA4th 606, 618, 37 CR3d 632 ].

13.06[3][c] Defendant Has Waived CCP § 425.16 Rights. A person may validly waive the right to speak or petition regarding a given issue of public importance, and thereby relinquish the right to bring an anti-SLAPP motion to strike [Navellier v. Sletten (2002) 29 C4th 82, 94, 124 CR2d 530, 52 P3d 703].

Example:

A valid contract not to speak on an issue within the scope of CCP § 425.16 acts as a waiver of the person's right to the protections established by CCP § 425.16 and an anti-SLAPP motion is not available to the person on a subsequent breach of the contract [ DaimlerChrysler Motors Co. v. Lew Williams, Inc. (2006) 142 CA4th 344, 351, 48 CR3d 233 ; Navellier v. Sletten (2002) 29 C4th 82, 94, 124 CR2d 530, 52 P3d 703 ].

13.06[3][d] Defendant Has Committed Illegal Act. Illegal acts, even if in furtherance of otherwise-protected free speech rights, are not covered under the anti-SLAPP provisions. In order to bar an anti-SLAPP motion, either the defendant must concede that his or her conduct was illegal, or it must be illegal as a matter of law [ Flatley v. Mauro (2006) 39 C4th 299, 314-318, 320, 48 CR3d 606 ].

Distinguish:

An allegation of illegality without evidentiary support may not preclude use of the SLAPP statute [ Vargas v. City of Salinas (2009) 45 C4th 1, 20-41, 92 CR3d 286, 205 P3d 207 (informational communications by municipality were not illegal campaigning under Gov Code § 54964); Paul For Council v. Hanyecz (2001) 85 CA4th 1356, 1366, 102 CR2d 864 ; People ex. rel. 20th Century Ins. Co. v. Building Permit Consultants, Inc. (2000) 86 CA4th 280, 285, 103 CR2d 71 ]. Thus, disputed allegations that the communication that is the subject of the suit against which an anti-SLAPP motion is made was itself illegal cannot be the basis for a claim that the anti-SLAPP statute does not apply [ Cabral v. Martins (2009) 177 CA4th 471, 482, 99 CR3d 394 (legality of estate plan change was disputed); City of Los Angeles v. Animal Def. League (2005) 135 CA4th 606, 618, 37 CR3d 632 (legality of protest was disputed)].

Examples:

- Extortion [ Flatley v. Mauro (2006) 39 C4th 299, 333, 48 CR3d 606 ; Cohen v. Brown (2009) 173 CA4th 302, 317, 93 CR3d 24 (informational communications by municipality were not illegal campaigning under Gov Code § 54964)].
- Conspiracy to commit harassment, infliction of emotional distress, intrusion, and trespass [ Novartis Vaccines & Diagnostics, Inc. v. Stop Huntingdon Animal Cruelty USA, Inc. (2006) 143 CA4th 1284, 1296, 50 CR3d 27 ].
- Money laundering [ Paul For Council v. Hanyecz (2001) 85 CA4th 1356, 1366, 102 CR2d 864 ].
- Insurance fraud [ People ex. rel. 20th Century Ins. Co. v. Building Permit Consultants, Inc. (2000)

86 CA4th 280, 285, 103 CR2d 71 ].

- Arson [ Wilcox v. Superior Court (1994) 27 CA4th 809, 820, 33 CR2d 446 ].

13.06[4] Parties Protected Under Anti-SLAPP Statute.

13.06[4][a] Persons Targeted Because of Having Exercised Their Own Rights. Any person who has been targeted by a cause of action "arising from any act of that person in furtherance of the person's" protected rights is covered by the anti-SLAPP statute [CCP § 425.16(b)(1), (e)].

Exceptions:

As noted in 13.06[3], a targeted defendant will be disqualified from using the anti-SLAPP motion to strike if the defendant has waived his or her rights under CCP § 425.16, the defendant has committed illegal acts, or the action is an enforcement action instituted by the Attorney General, or a district or city attorney, acting as public prosecutor [CCP § 425.16(d); Navellier v. Sletten (2002) 29 C4th 82, 94, 124 CR2d 530, 52 P3d 703 ; Paul For Council v. Hanyecz (2001) 85 CA4th 1356, 1366, 102 CR2d 864 ].

13.06[4][b] Persons Targeted Because of Speaking on Behalf of Others. Protected statements or writings made by a SLAPP suit defendant need not have been made on the defendant's own direct behalf in order for the defendant to use a special anti-SLAPP motion to strike against the SLAPP complaint [ Briggs v. Eden Council for Hope & Opportunity (1999) 19 C4th 1106, 1116, 81 CR2d 471, 969 P2d 564 ].

Examples:

- An attorney being sued for malicious prosecution for statements concerning the underlying litigation made inside the courtroom [see Mattel, Inc. v. Luce, Forward, Hamilton & Scripps (2002) 99 CA4th 1179, 1188, 121 CR2d 794 ] or sued for defamation for statements concerning the underlying litigation made outside the courtroom [ Shekhter v. Financial Indem. Co. (2001) 89 CA4th 141, 153, 106 CR2d 843 ].
- Counseling a tenant in a dispute with a landlord in anticipation of litigation [ Briggs v. Eden Council for Hope & Opportunity (1999) 19 C4th 1106, 1115, 81 CR2d 471, 969 P2d 564 ].
- Funding legitimate litigation [ Ludwig v. Superior Court (1995) 37 CA4th 8, 18, 43 CR2d 350 ].
- Encouraging others to participate at a public hearing on a matter of public interest [ Ludwig v. Superior Court (1995) 37 CA4th 8, 18, 43 CR2d 350 ].

13.06[4][c] Governmental Entities and Employees. The anti-SLAPP motion CCP § 425.16 is available to a governmental entity and its representatives who are sued for their written and verbal comments concerning an official investigation [ Santa Barbara County Coalition Against Automobile Subsidies v. Santa Barbara Cty. Ass'n of Gov'ts (2008) 167 CA4th 1229, 1237-1238, 84 CR3d 714 ; Bradbury v. Superior Court (1996) 49 CA4th 1108, 1111, 57 CR2d 207 ].

Examples:

- CCP § 425.16 extends to government entities and employees who issue reports and take positions on issues of public interest relating to their official duties [ Santa Barbara County Coalition Against Automobile Subsidies v. Santa Barbara Cty. Ass'n of Gov'ts (2008) 167 CA4th 1229, 1237-1238, 84 CR3d 714 ].

- The protections of CCP § 425.16 encompass "utterances by a district attorney on a matter of public interest, even if erroneous" [ Bradbury v. Superior Court (1996) 49 CA4th 1108, 1111, 57 CR2d 207 ].

- The preparation of an environmental impact report for a county is protected by CCP § 425.16 [ Mission Oaks Ranch, Ltd. v. County of Santa Barbara (1998) 65 CA4th 713, 729, 77 CR2d 1 ].

Distinguish:

- A defendant may not utilize the anti-SLAPP motion against enforcement actions brought by governmental officials or entities [CCP § 425.16(d); see 13.06[3][a]].

- Acts of governance mandated by law, without more, are not exercises of free speech or petition, and suits challenging those acts are not SLAPP suits [ San Ramon Valley Fire Protection Dist. v. Contra Costa County Employees' Retirement Assn. (2005) 125 CA4th 343, 354 , 22 CR3d 724 ].

13.06[4][d] Corporations. The word "person" as used in CCP § 425.16 includes a corporation, and the 425.16 anti-SLAPP motion to strike is available to corporate defendants [ Mattel, Inc. v. Luce, Forward, Hamilton & Scripps (2002) 99 CA4th 1179, 1188, 121 CR2d 794 ; Lafayette Morehouse, Inc. v. Chronicle Publ'g Co. (1995) 37 CA4th 855, 862-863, 44 CR2d 46 ].

13.06[4][e] Persons Not Subject to CCP § 425.17 Exceptions to Use of Anti-SLAPP Motion. Even if the CCP § 425.17(b) and (c) exceptions to the use of anti-SLAPP motions apply [see § 13.06[3][a]], an anti-SLAPP motion may be brought for any of the following persons [CCP § 425.17(d)]:

- Any person enumerated in Cal Const, art I, § 2(b) (liberty of speech and press), Evid Code § 1070 (newsperson's privilege), or any person engaged in the dissemination of ideas or expression in any book or academic journal, while engaged in the gathering, receiving, or processing of information for communication to the public [ Mattel, Inc. v. Luce, Forward, Hamilton & Scripps (2002) 99 CA4th 1179, 1188, 121 CR2d 794 ; Lafayette Morehouse, Inc. v. Chronicle Publ'g Co. (1995) 37 CA4th 855, 862-863, 44 CR2d 46 ].

- Any action against any person or entity based upon the creation, dissemination, exhibition, advertisement, or other similar promotion of any dramatic, literary, musical, political, or artistic work, including, but not limited to, a motion picture or television program, or an article published in a newspaper or magazine of general circulation.

- Any nonprofit organization that receives more than 50 percent of its annual revenues from federal, state, or local government grants, awards, programs, or reimbursements for services rendered.

13.06[5] Applicability of Motion to Cross-Complaints, Amended Complaints, and Petitions. For purposes of the special anti-SLAPP motion to strike, "complaint" includes "cross-complaint" and "petition" [CCP § 425.16(h); City of Cotati v. Cashman (2002) 29 C4th 69, 78, 124 CR2d 519, 52 P3d 695 ]. The term "complaint" as used in CCP § 425.16, also includes "amended complaint" [ Lam v. Ngo (2001) 91 CA4th 832, 842, 111 CR2d 582 ].

Warning:

As a practical matter, a compulsory cross-complaint on a related cause of action [see CCP §§ 426.10, 426.30] would rarely qualify as a SLAPP suit arising from petition activity, although sanctions may be available under CCP § 128.7 for a meritless retaliatory countersuit [see Kajima Eng'g & Constr., Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (2002) 95 CA4th 921, 933-934, 116 CR2d 187 ].

Distinguish:

CCP § 425.16 does not authorize a superior court to grant a motion to strike an arbitration claim filed only in an agreed arbitral forum and not asserted by the claimant in any complaint, cross-complaint, or petition filed in court [ Sheppard v. Lightpost Museum Fund (2006) 146 CA4th 315, 318, 324, 52 CR3d 821 ].

13.06[6] Applicability of Motion to Action Brought in State Court Under Federal Statute. The anti-SLAPP provisions of CCP § 425.16 generally apply to federal statutory claims (e.g., civil rights claims under 42 USCS § 1983) brought in California state court. In such actions, state procedural rules control unless the applicable federal statute mandates otherwise [see Bradbury v. Superior Court (1996) 49 CA4th 1108, 1118, 57 CR2d 207 ].

Distinguish:

Actions in federal court, see 13.06[7].

13.06[7] Applicability of Motion in Federal Court Actions. The anti-SLAPP motion under CCP § 425.16 has substantive elements for purposes of an analysis under the Erie doctrine. Consequently, the motion can apply in actions in federal court that qualify as SLAPP actions [ United States ex. rel. Newsham v. Lockheed Missiles & Space Co., Inc. (9th Cir 1999) 190 F3d 963, 973 , cert. denied, 530 US 1203 (2002) ; see generally Erie R.R. Co. v. Tompkins (1938) 114 A.L.R. 1487, 304 US 64, 58 S Ct 817, 82 L Ed 1188, 11 Ohio Op. 246 ].

CCP § 425.16 applies to state law counterclaims asserted in federal court diversity actions [ United States ex. rel. Newsham v. Lockheed Missiles & Space Co., Inc. (9th Cir 1999) 190 F3d 963, 973 , cert. denied, 530 US 1203 (2002) ].

In addition, CCP § 425.16 applies in federal court to state law claims brought pendent to federal question claims [ Globetrotter Software, Inc. v. Elan Computer Group, Inc. (ND Cal 1999) 63 F Supp2d 1127, 1130 ].

Warning:

An anti-SLAPP motion under § 425.16 will not alter discovery timelines in federal court if the anti-SLAPP statute conflicts with federal discovery rules [ Metabolife Int'l, Inc. v. Wornick (9th Cir 2001) 264 F3d 832, 846 ; see 13.05[4][b]].

13.07 Determining Whether Plaintiff Has Probability of Prevailing in Suit.

If the defendant establishes that the plaintiff's action is a SLAPP action covered by 425.16, the plaintiff must establish by admissible evidence a probability of prevailing in the suit in order to defeat the motion [CCP § 425.16(b)(1)]. In determining whether the plaintiff has established a probability of prevailing on the claim, the court will consider the pleadings and supporting and opposing affidavits [CCP § 425.16(b)(2)].

Cross Reference:

Showing required by plaintiff on anti-SLAPP motion, see 13.18.

Potential grounds for challenging the plaintiff's factual showing include the following [ Tuchscher Dev. Enters., Inc. v. San Diego Unified Port Dist. (2003) 106 CA4th 1219, 1235-1239, 132 CR2d 57 ; Church of Scientology of Cal. v. Wollersheim (1996) 42 CA4th 628, 654-656, 49 CR2d 620 ]:

- Plaintiff has not based his or her prima facie showing on admissible evidence.
- Plaintiff has based averments on information and belief.
- Plaintiff has merely relied on allegations in its own pleadings.

13.08 Contents of Anti-SLAPP Motion.

An anti-SLAPP motion includes the following elements:

- Notice of motion to strike under CCP § 425.16 [for timing, see 13.05; for form, see 13.24].
- Supporting declarations or affidavits [for form, see 13.25].

Distinguish:

A standard motion to strike does not require an evidentiary showing, but a special anti-SLAPP motion to strike does [see CCP §§ 425.16(b), 435-437].

- Supporting memorandum [see Ch. 26, Law and Motion Procedure, 26.43[5]; see also California Points and Authorities, Ch. 160, Motions to Strike (Matthew Bender), for examples of memoranda in support of an anti-SLAPP motion].
- Proof of service [see Ch. 27, Service of Papers, 27.32-27.35].
- Proposed order, if desired.

Serve and file the papers by:

- Serving a conformed copy of the notice of motion, proof of service, and accompanying papers on the other party's attorney, or on the other party if he or she has no attorney in accordance with CCP §§ 1005, 1010.6, 1013, 1015 and Cal Rules Ct, Rules 3.1103, 3.1300 [see Ch. 27, Service of Papers, 27.32-27.35].
- Delivering the originals of the notice of motion and accompanying papers to the court clerk's office for filing at least 16 court days, plus any applicable additional period, before the hearing and pay the required fee [see Ch. 27, Service of Papers, 27.32-27.35]. If not filed with the original papers, deliver the proof of service of the moving papers for filing no later than five court days before the time appointed for the hearing [see Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1300].
- If there is a statement regarding oral testimony, file it no later than three days before the hearing; and if it is filed less than five court days before the hearing, serve a conformed copy of it on the opposing party in a manner to assure delivery no later than two days before the hearing [see Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1306(a)].

Chapter 13 Anti-SLAPP Motions
II. MAKING ANTI-SLAPP MOTION

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 13.12

13.12 Order and Notice of Ruling.

13.12[1] Prevailing Party Prepares Order. If the court grants the anti-SLAPP motion, counsel for the prevailing defendant ordinarily prepares the formal order for the judge's signature. When the court denies the motion, counsel for the prevailing plaintiff usually prepares the formal order for the judge's signature.

Strategic Point:

CCP § 425.16 contains no requirement for a statement of decision when a trial court grants an anti-SLAPP motion [ Lien v. Lucky United Props. Inv., Inc. (2008) 163 CA4th 620, 624, 77 CR3d 707 ].

13.12[2] Prevailing Party Must Follow Notice Requirements. The prevailing party must give to all other parties or their attorneys the notice required by CCP § 1019.5(a) in the manner provided in CCP §§ 1010-1020, unless the court otherwise orders or unless notice is waived by all parties in open court and is entered in the minutes [CCP § 1019.5(a)]. The prevailing party must, pursuant to CCP § 1019.5:

- Prepare a notice of the court's order and a proof of service [see Ch. 26, Law and Motion Procedure, 26.44[4]];
- Serve the ruling on opposing counsel; and
- File the original of the notice and proof of service with the court.

13.12[3] Ruling May Be Reconsidered. A motion for reconsideration under CCP § 1008(b) is permitted in the context of anti-SLAPP motions [ Kunysz v. Sandler (2007) 146 CA4th 1540, 1543, 53 CR3d 779 ].

Timing:

Such motions, however, must also take into account the timeliness provision of the anti-SLAPP statute itself, and meet the requirements of both statutes [ Kunysz v. Sandler (2007) 146 CA4th 1540, 1543, 53 CR3d 779 (motion for reconsideration was untimely where filed more than 60 days after complaint served)].

Warning:

A motion for reconsideration of a ruling on a special motion to strike that is not valid when filed does not extend the appeal period on the ruling on the special motion to strike [ Branner v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (2009) 175 CA4th 1043, 1049-1050, 96 CR3d 690 (appeal of ruling on special motion to strike dismissed because motion for reconsideration not accompanied by required affidavit)].

Strategic Point:

Rather than filing a motion to reconsider long after the initial ruling on an anti-SLAPP motion (after answer is filed, etc.), which likely will be denied [see Kunysz v. Sandler (2007) 146 CA4th 1540, 1543, 53 CR3d 779 ], counsel should consider whether the same issues may be the basis for a motion for summary judgment or a motion for judgment on the pleadings.

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 13.12A

13.12A No Right to Amend Pleadings After Ruling.

There is no express or implied right for the plaintiff to amend a SLAPP complaint once the motion has been granted [ Schaffer v. City and Cty. of San Francisco (2008) 168 CA4th 992, 1005, 85 CR3d 880 (motion to amend properly denied); Simmons v. Allstate Ins. Co. (2001) 92 CA4th 1068, 1074, 112 CR2d 397 ] even if the amendment is filed before the ruling on the motion [ Salma v. Capon (2008) 161 CA4th 1275, 1294, 74 CR3d 873 (amendment rejected)]. A plaintiff may not amend the complaint if the motion is denied and the defendant appeals the ruling [ Roberts v. Los Angeles County Bar Assn. (2003) 105 CA4th 604, 614-615, 129 CR2d 546 ].

Chapter 13 Anti-SLAPP Motions
II. MAKING ANTI-SLAPP MOTION

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 13.13

13.13 Recovery of Attorney's Fees and Costs by Prevailing Defendant.

13.13[1] Prevailing Defendant Entitled to Attorney's Fees and Costs. The anti-SLAPP statute provides that a defendant who prevails on a special anti-SLAPP motion to strike is entitled to recover attorney's fees and costs [CCP § 425.16(b), (c)]. Even though CCP § 425.16(c)(1) refers to recovery of attorney's fees pursuant to CCP § 128.5, a code section interpreted not to apply generally to actions filed after December 31, 2004, the authority for recovery of fees is derived from CCP § 425.16(c)(1) and not from CCP § 128.5, thus the provisions of CCP § 128.5 are still applicable under this statute [see Olmstead v. Arthur J. Gallagher & Co. (2004) 32 C4th 804, 819, 11 CR3d 298, 86 P3d 354].

Exception:

Effective January 1, 2010, an award of attorney fees is not available under CCP § 425.16(c)(1) in actions brought under Gov Code § 6259, 11130, 11130.3, 54960, or 54960.1 [CCP § 425.16(c)(2)].

Distinguish:

A defendant is the prevailing party so long as the granting of the motion to strike significantly narrows the scope of the lawsuit [ Mann v. Quality Old Time Service, Inc. (2006) 139 CA4th 328, 339-340, 42 CR3d 607 (result does not have to be the elimination of all causes of action)]. A plaintiff who alleges limited or no effect of the granting of an anti-SLAPP motion for purposes of reducing or preventing the award of costs and fees to the defendant has the burden of proof [see Morrow v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (2007) 149 CA4th 1424, 1446, 57 CR3d 885].

Examples:

The following are prevailing defendants for purposes of entitlement to attorney's fees and costs:

- A defendant who successfully defends an action under a statute by having the statute declared unconstitutional [ ARP Pharmacy Servs., Inc. v. Gallagher Bassett Servs., Inc. (2006) 138 CA4th 1307, 1323, 42 CR3d 256 ].
- A prevailing defendant whose fees were paid by a third party may, nevertheless, recover fees on prevailing in an anti-SLAPP motion [ Macias v. Hartwell (1997) 55 CA4th 669, 675-676, 64 CR2d 222 ].

].

- A defendant in a SLAPP action who initially appears pro se but retains counsel prior to successfully bringing a successful special anti-SLAPP motion is entitled to award of attorney's fees [ Dowling v. Zimmerman (2001) 85 CA4th 1400, 1422-1423, 103 CR2d 174 ].

The following is not a prevailing defendant for purposes of entitlement to attorney's fees and costs:

- The striking of a cause of action for conspiracy, which is based on the facts of underlying causes of action not stricken, does not constitute prevailing in the action necessary for an award of attorney fees [ Endres v. Moran (2006) 135 CA4th 952, 954-956, 37 CR3d 786 ].

Warning:

A prevailing plaintiff also may recover if the special anti-SLAPP motion to strike is itself determined to be frivolous or solely intended to cause unnecessary delay [see 13.22].

Strategic Point:

The resolution of the underlying action provides the basis for determining the prevailing party entitled to costs and attorney's fees. The disposition, even by involuntary dismissal, such as for bar of the claim by statute of limitations [ White v. Lieberman (2002) 103 CA4th 210, 220-221, 126 CR2d 608 (demurrer)], the unconstitutionality of the statute basing a statutory claim [ ARP Pharmacy Servs., Inc. v. Gallagher Bassett Servs., Inc. (2006) 138 CA4th 1307, 1323-1324, 42 CR3d 256 (judgment on the pleadings)], or lack of standing [ Moraga-Orinda Fire Prot. Dist. v. Weir (2004) 115 CA4th 477, 480, 10 CR3d 13 (challenge to rebuttal argument in voter's pamphlet not exempt from general rule)], does not moot a prevailing defendant's request for fees and costs under the anti-SLAPP statute.

Strategic Point:

In a subsequent malicious prosecution action, the successful plaintiff (defendant in the action involving the anti-SLAPP motion) is permitted to recover all the costs of defending the prior action, including reasonable attorney fees. To the extent there is an overlap in legal services covered by that award and the award of attorney fees for an anti-SLAPP motion under 425.16(c) in the underlying action, the court properly requires a setoff to prevent a double recovery [ Jackson v. Yarbray (2009) 179 CA4th 75, 98, 101 CR3d 303] ,

Cross References:

Recovery of fees and costs on appeal from grant or denial of motion, see 13.23[3].

Recovery of costs and attorney's fees generally, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, Chs. 24, Costs, and 25, Attorney's Fees.

13.13[2] Parameters of Recoverable Fees and Costs. A defendant who prevails on a special anti-SLAPP motion to strike may recover attorney's fees that will adequately compensate the defendant for the expense of responding to a baseless lawsuit [ Dove Audio, Inc. v. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman (1996) 47 CA4th 777, 785, 54 CR2d 830 ; see Russell v. Foglio (2008) 160 CA4th 653, 662, 73 CR3d 87 (trial court's determination of reasonable rate for junior associate affirmed)].

Warning:

Division Five of the First Appellate District [ Lafayette Morehouse, Inc. v. Chronicle Publishing Co. (1995) 39 CA4th 1379, 1384, 46 CR2d 542 ], Division Seven of the Second Appellate District [ Jackson v. Yarbray (2009) 179 CA4th 75, 92, 101 CR3d 303 ], and Division Three of the Fourth Appellate District [ Christian Research Institute v. Alnor (2008) 165 CA4th 1315, 1320, 81 CR3d 866 ] have limited the fees and costs recoverable to those related only to the special anti-SLAPP motion to strike rather than to the entire suit. The Fourth District cited the Supreme Court and quoted its reference to the First District's decision and legislative analysis to the effect that CCP § 425.16(c) "applies only to the motion to strike, and not to the entire action" in S. B. Beach Properties v. Berti (2006) 39 C4th 374, 381, 46 CR3d 380, 138 P3d 713 , although the Supreme Court's references are arguably dicta, in that they are not necessary to the Supreme Court's ruling that the prevailing defendant's motion for fees was not timely made. Of course, the legislative analysis may carry the day in any subsequent Supreme Court decision directly deciding the merits of the issue.

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

Counsel for plaintiff seeking to challenge claim for fees by defendant prevailing on special motion to strike must provide evidence in the form of declarations in support of their opposition to the fees claimed in the motion [see Premier Med. Mgmt. Systems, Inc. v. Cal. Ins. Guar. Ass'n (2008) 163 CA4th 550, 564, 77 CR3d 695 (plaintiff's challenges denied for failure to rebut defendant's evidence on fees claimed)]

Distinguish:

An award of sanctions is markedly different from an award of attorney fees under CCP § 425.16. Like a punitive damages award in civil litigation, an award of sanctions is intended to punish a party for bad faith conduct, not to compensate or reward the opposing party. CCP § 425.16(c), on the other hand, is intended to compensate the SLAPP defendant for attorney fees incurred in bringing a motion to strike, not to punish the SLAPP plaintiff [ Witte v. Kaufman, 141 CA4th 1201, 1209, 46 CR3d 845 ].

Example:

Attorneys bringing suit on behalf of themselves or their firm are working on behalf of their own interests. For that reason, they are not entitled to attorney fees after successfully bringing an anti-SLAPP motion in a case of that nature [ Witte v. Kaufman, 141 Cal. App. 4th 1201, 1209-1211, 46 CR3d 845 (fees denied self-represented attorney)]. However, to the extent that they can document attorney fees attributable to a hired attorney, rather than to their own labor, they may obtain those fees after a successful anti-SLAPP motion [ Witte v. Kaufman, 141 Cal. App. 4th 1201, 1212-1213, 46 CR3d 845 (trial court ordered to determine number of hours hired attorney actually worked on case)].

That a defendant only partially prevails on an anti-SLAPP motion to strike but prevails sufficiently to be a prevailing party requires that the partial success be a factor in calculating the award under the lodestar method [ Jackson v. Yarbray (2009) 179 CA4th 75, 92, 101 CR3d 303 ; Mann v. Quality Old Time Service, Inc. (2006) 139 CA4th 328, 339-340, 42 CR3d 607 (result does not have to be the elimination of all causes of action)].

Cross Reference:

Calculation of fee award using lodestar method, see 13.13[6].

13.13[3] Adequate Record Must Be Maintained for Use on Appeal. An adequate record must be supplied to the appellate court by the appealing party on appeal from proceedings pertaining to attorney's fees. Failure to provide the record will allow the appellate court to resolve the claim of inappropriate findings against the appealing party [

Ketchum v. Moses (2001) 24 C4th 1122, 1141, 104 CR2d 377, 17 P3d 735 ].

13.13[4] No Automatic Stay of Judgment Pending Appeal. The perfection of an appeal from a judgment awarding attorney's fees and costs to a defendant who has prevailed on a CCP § 425.16 anti-SLAPP motion to strike will not automatically stay enforcement of the judgment. Because this type of judgment has been interpreted as being for "money or the payment of money," some other undertaking is necessary to stay enforcement, e.g., an appeal bond [CCP § 917.1(a)(1), (d); Dowling v. Zimmerman (2001) 85 CA4th 1400, 1427-1433, 103 CR2d 174 ].

13.13[5] Defendant May Recover Fees Even If Plaintiff Voluntarily Dismisses Suit.

13.13[5][a] Court Retains Jurisdiction Over Fees After Voluntary Dismissal. The filing of a CCP § 425.16 motion by a defendant and a hearing on the motion does not preclude the plaintiff from having a voluntary dismissal of the action entered by the clerk prior to the court's ruling on the motion [ Kyle v. Carmon (1999) 71 CA4th 901, 908 n4, 84 CR2d 303 ].

The court retains jurisdiction over the issue of attorney's fees related to a CCP § 425.16 special motion to strike filed prior to a voluntary dismissal of the targeted SLAPP action [ Coltrain v. Shewalter (1998) 66 CA4th 94, 107, 77 CR2d 600 ].

Warning:

The failure to file the motion to strike before the plaintiff files a voluntary dismissal bars an award of attorney fees and costs to the prevailing defendant under the anti-SLAPP statutes [ S. B. Beach Properties v. Berti (2006) 39 C4th 374, 383, 46 CR3d 380, 138 P3d 713 (motion untimely); Chambers v. Miller (2006) 140 CA4th 821, 825-826 (fees denied)].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

A plaintiff wishing to voluntarily dismiss after the defendant has filed an anti-SLAPP motion should consider seeking a voluntary waiver of costs and fees from the defendant.

Distinguish:

An order striking a complaint pursuant to CCP § 425.16 is void due to a lack of jurisdiction when a plaintiff validly dismisses the action prior to a ruling on the CCP § 425.16 motion [ Kyle v. Carmon (1999) 71 CA4th 901, 908 n4, 84 CR2d 303 ].

A voluntary dismissal during the pendency of a special motion to strike precludes CCP § 128.7 operating as an alternative to the provisions of CCP § 425.16 governing attorney's fees and costs [ Liu v. Moore (1999) 69 CA4th 745, 752, 81 CR2d 807 ].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of recovery of attorney's fees, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, Ch. 25, Attorney's Fees.

13.13[5][b] Standard for Determining "Prevailing Party" on Voluntary Dismissal Is Unsettled. Courts have disagreed as to the standard for determining who is the "prevailing party" for purposes of an attorney's fee award after a voluntary dismissal during the pendency of a anti-SLAPP motion. Several courts have stated that the fee motion is wholly dependent on a determination of the merits of the anti-SLAPP motion itself [ Pfeiffer Venice Props. v. Bernard (2002) 101 CA4th 211, 218, 123 CR2d 647 ; Liu v. Moore (1999) 69 CA4th 745, 751, 81 CR2d 807 ]. However, one court has indicated that the plaintiff's reasons for voluntarily dismissing the action should bear on the issue of attorney's fees; this court stated that "the critical issue is which party realized its objectives in the litigation." The court implied that a SLAPP plaintiff could prevail by showing "it actually dismissed because it had substantially achieved its goals through a settlement or other means, because the defendant was insolvent, or for other reasons unrelated to the probability of success on the merits" [ Coltrain v. Shewalter (1998) 66 CA4th 94, 107, 77 CR2d 600 ].

13.13[5][c] Court Retains Jurisdiction Over Costs and Fees After Amendment of Complaint. The plaintiff's amendment of the complaint as a matter of right under CCP § 472 after the filing of, but before the determination on defendant's anti-SLAPP motion, does not prevent the imposition of attorney fees and costs on the plaintiff for the original complaint [ Sylmar Air Conditioning v. Pueblo Contracting Services, Inc. (2004) 122 CA4th 1049, 1054, 18 CR3d 882 ].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

A plaintiff wishing to amend the complaint after the defendant has filed an anti-SLAPP motion should consider seeking a voluntary waiver of costs and fees from the defendant.

13.13[6] Fees Calculable by Lodestar Adjustment Method. The fee-recovery provision of CCP § 425.16 permits the use of the lodestar adjustment method of determining attorney's fees [CCP § 425.16(c); Ketchum v. Moses (2001) 24 C4th 1122, 1131, 104 CR2d 377, 17 P3d 735 ].

Exception:

A fee request that appears unreasonably inflated is a special circumstance permitting the trial court to reduce the award or deny one altogether [ Ketchum v. Moses (2001) 24 C4th 1122, 1137, 104 CR2d 377, 17 P3d 735 ; Christian Research Institute v. Alnor (2008) 165 CA4th 1315, 1322, 81 CR3d 866 ].

The lodestar is the basic fee for comparable legal services in the community and may be adjusted by the court based on factors including, (1) the novelty and difficulty of the questions involved, (2) the skill displayed in presenting them, (3) the extent to which the nature of the litigation precluded other employment by the attorneys, (4) the contingent nature of the fee award [ Ketchum v. Moses (2001) 24 C4th 1122, 1132, 104 CR2d 377, 17 P3d 735 ; Serrano v. Priest (1977) 20 C3d 25, 49, 141 CR 315, 569 P2d 1303 ].

Example:

The court of appeals upheld the trial court's award of $ 30,000 as attorney fees to one defendant, consisting of 75 hours at $ 400 per hour; $ 14,000 as attorney fees to a second defendant, consisting of 70 hours at $ 200 per hour; and $ 14,600 as attorney fees to a third defendant, consisting of three hours at $ 200 per hour for one attorney and 80 hours at $ 175 per hour for another attorney. In each instance, the court expressly found that the hours expended and the hourly rate were reasonable for an attorney with the experience of the counsel for whose services on the anti-SLAPP motion the fees were awarded [ Cabral v. Martins (2009) 177 CA4th 471, 490, 99 CR3d 394 ] .

In determining the lodestar amount, a prevailing party generally may not recover for work on causes of action on which the party was unsuccessful. Therefore, a defendant who partially prevails on an anti-SLAPP motion to strike but prevails sufficiently to be a prevailing party may be limited to the amount attributable to the successful part of the motion, depending on the balancing of two public policies [ Mann v. Quality Old Time Service, Inc. (2006) 139 CA4th 328, 342-344, 42 CR3d 607 (result does not have to be the elimination of all causes of action)]:

- The public policy to discourage meritless SLAPP claims by compelling a SLAPP plaintiff to bear a defendant's litigation costs incurred to eliminate the claim from the lawsuit; and
- The public policy to provide a plaintiff who has facially valid claims to exercise his or her constitutional petition rights by filing a complaint and litigating those claims in court.

When causes contested by an anti-SLAPP motion are overlapping, and some are struck and some are not, then the court has discretion to award fees for all of the work on the combined motion, or to apportion the fees [ Mann v. Quality Old Time Service, Inc. (2006) 139 CA4th 328, 344-345, 42 CR3d 607 (no entitlement to all fees as matter of right; court must balance specific considerations)].

13.13[7] Three Ways for Defendant to Seek Attorney Fees and Costs. There are three ways in which a defendant may seek an award of attorney fees and costs in connection with a special motion to strike under CCP § 425.16 [see Carpenter v. Jack in the Box Corp. (2007) 151 CA4th 454, 468, 59 CR3d 839 (separate motion for fees)]:

- Including a motion may seek attorney fees in its moving papers,
- Bringing a separate, subsequently filed motion for fees and costs, or
- Seeking attorney fees as part of a cost memorandum at the conclusion of the litigation.

Timing--Attorney's Fees:

The timing of a motion for attorney fees under CCP § 425.16(c) is governed by Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1702 [see Carpenter v. Jack in the Box Corp. (2007) 151 CA4th 454, 462-468, 59 CR3d 839 ]. A defendant's motion for attorney fees under CCP § 425.16(c) for services up to and including the rendition of judgment in the trial court, which may include attorney's fees on an appeal before the rendition of judgment in the trial court, must be served and filed within the time for filing a notice of appeal under Cal Rules Ct, Rules 8.104 and 8.108 [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1702(b)(1)]. Under that rule, the deadlines in Rules 8.104 and 8.108 apply from the entry of final judgment in the action, rather than from the determination on the anti-SLAPP motion, because "the rendition of judgment" means the signing and filing of the court's findings, conclusions, and final judgment in a case [ Carpenter v. Jack in the Box Corp. (2007) 151 CA4th 454, 466 and n.9, 468, 59 CR3d 839 (finding plaintiff's motion filed before entry of judgment timely)].

Timing--Costs:

A memorandum for costs from an anti-SLAPP motion must be filed within the time specified by Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1700 [ Daniels v. Robbins (2010) 182 CA4th 204, 229, 105 CR3d 683] .

Distinguish:

For purposes of Rule 3.1700, a minute order granting the motion does not trigger the 15-day deadline for filing for costs, only a judgment or dismissal after the order is granted does that under CCP § 581 [ Daniels v. Robbins (2010) 182 CA4th 204, 229, 105 CR3d 683] .

Prerequisite:

The law is clear that an award of attorney fees may be based on counsel's declarations, without production of detailed time records [ Raining Data Corp. v. Barrenechea (2009) 175 CA4th 1363, 1375, 97 CR3d 196 (counsel's declarations not controverted)].

III. OPPOSING ANTI-SLAPP MOTION

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 13.14

13.14 CHECKLIST: Opposing Anti-SLAPP Motion.

- ☐ Examine the motion, notice, and supporting documents.
  - ☐ Determine whether motion was timely filed.
  - ☐ Determine whether motion was properly set for hearing within 30 days of its filing.
  - ☐ Review motion for defects.
  - ☐ Consider whether complaint is supported by a sufficient prima facie showing of facts to sustain a favorable judgment if plaintiff's evidence is credited.
  - ☐ Determine if statutory exceptions for certain actions prohibit use of motion:
    - ☐ Specified actions brought solely in the public interest or on behalf of the general public.
    - ☐ Specified actions brought against a person primarily engaged in the business of selling or leasing goods or services.
    - ☐ Action does not involve persons engaged in dissemination of ideas to the public, is not based on the creation and dissemination of various political and artistic works, or is not brought against specified nonprofit organizations.

Authority:

CCP § 425.17(b), (c)

Discussion:

See 13.06[3][a], 13.17A

- ☐ Decide whether to oppose the motion.
- ☐ Consider possibility of voluntary dismissal.
  - ☐ If agreeing to voluntary dismissal, try to get agreement for voluntary waiver of fees from defendant.

Authority:

CCP § 425.16(b)(1)

Discussion:

See 13.05, 13.06, 13.13[5], 13.17, 13.18

- ☐ Prepare:
  - ☐ Declarations and/or affidavits.
  - ☐ Opposing memorandum.
  - ☐ Documentation of proof of service.
  - ☐ Proposed order, if desired.

Authority:

CCP §§ 425.16, 2009, 2015.5

Discussion:

See 13.19

- ☐ Serve and file the opposing memorandum on the moving party or the moving party's attorney, keeping in mind the following:

- ☐ Time limits.
- ☐ Allowable methods of service.

- ☐ File the originals with the clerk of court and pay filing fee.
- ☐ File copies of motion papers with Judicial Council.

Chapter 13 Anti-SLAPP Motions
III. OPPOSING ANTI-SLAPP MOTION

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 13.15

13.15 Options and Strategies for Plaintiff.

Plaintiff's first strategy should be to thoroughly brief the issue of whether the SLAPP statute applies. This is a purely legal question.

If the statute is applicable, plaintiff must be able to show that he or she has a probability of prevailing. Plaintiff can utilize declarations and other matters subject to judicial notice to support claim. The plaintiff must ensure that every legal defense which has been raised in the anti-SLAPP motion is addressed as a single defense to the entire action can cause the motion to be granted. For example, in a malicious prosecution action, to show a probability of prevailing, the plaintiff must establish that the underlying action was filed without probable cause, there was a favorable determination in the underlying action, and the underlying action was filed with malice. If any of the elements is defeated, the anti-SLAPP motion can be granted.

The addition of CCP § 425.17, with its exceptions to the filing of anti-SLAPP motions, and exceptions to the exceptions, requires a thorough analysis of the factual issues that invoke the prohibitions. Be prepared to submit declarations supporting assertions that CCP § 425.17(b) and (c) apply to the case and prohibit the use of the motion.

Strategic Point:

In opposing an anti-SLAPP motion, the plaintiff would be well advised to not hold anything back for strategic reasons but to put the best case forward immediately. The risk of losing is too great to try to sandbag the defense.

If plaintiff opts for voluntary dismissal of the action, plaintiff should ask defendant for a voluntary waiver of fees.

III. OPPOSING ANTI-SLAPP MOTION

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 13.16

13.16 Time Limitations for Plaintiff.

A plaintiff's response to the anti-SLAPP motion must generally be filed at least nine court days before the designated time of the hearing [CCP § 1005(b); Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1300].

A plaintiff may challenge the defendant's anti-SLAPP motion as untimely if it was filed more than 60 days after service of the complaint (or amended complaint) and the court did not extend the 60-day period [see CCP § 425.16(f); Lam v. Ngo (2001) 91 CA4th 832, 842, 111 CR2d 582]. A five-day extension to the 60-day period applies when service is by mail [see CCP § 1013, Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1300].

Timing:

General timing requirements, see 13.05[1]-[3].

Both plaintiff's and defendant's discovery are stayed pending resolution of the motion. On noticed motion, the court may allow that specified discovery be conducted [CCP § 425.16(g)].

Chapter 13 Anti-SLAPP Motions
III. OPPOSING ANTI-SLAPP MOTION

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 13.17

13.17 Rebutting Defendant's Argument That Case Is a SLAPP.

The plaintiff has two general grounds on which to attack a SLAPP motion:

- The action is not a SLAPP action to which CCP § 425.16 is applicable [see 13.06].
- The plaintiff has a probability of prevailing in the suit [see 13.18].

If the court determines that the action is not a SLAPP action, the probability of prevailing does not need to be addressed [ Ericsson GE Mobile Communications, Inc. v. C.S.I. Telecomms. Eng'rs (1996) 49 CA4th 1591, 1603, 57 CR2d 491 ]. Consequently, plaintiff should always consider whether the motion can be attacked on the ground that 425.16 is inapplicable.

To make its initial showing that the case is a SLAPP, the defendant will argue that the act underlying plaintiff's cause of action is protected. Protected actions include the following [see CCP § 425.16(b)(1), (e)]:

- Any written or oral statement or writing made before a legislative, executive, or judicial proceeding, or any other official proceeding authorized by law [CCP § 425.16(e)(1); see 13.06[2][b]].
- Any written or oral statement made in connection with an issue under consideration or review by a legislative, executive or judicial body, or any other official proceeding authorized by law [CCP § 425.16(e)(2); see 13.06[2][b]].
- Any written or oral statement or writing made in a place open to the public or a public forum in connection with an issue of public interest [CCP § 425.16(e)(3); see 13.06[2][c]].
- Any other conduct in furtherance of the exercise of the constitutional right of petition or the constitutional right of free speech in connection with a public issue or an issue of public interest [CCP § 425.16(e)(4); see 13.06[2][c]].

To overcome this showing, the defendant must demonstrate that the targeted action is not one protected by CCP § 425.16.

III. OPPOSING ANTI-SLAPP MOTION

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 13.17A

13.17A Asserting CCP § 425.17 Exceptions to Use of Anti-SLAPP Motion.

The plaintiff may oppose an anti-SLAPP motion on the grounds that the motion may not be brought when [CCP § 425.17(b)-(d)]:

- The action is brought solely in the public interest or on behalf of the general public, and specific requirements are met.
- The action is brought against a person primarily engaged in the business of selling or leasing goods or services, and specific requirements are met.
- The action does not involve persons engaged in dissemination of ideas to the public, is not based on the creation and dissemination of various political and artistic works, or is not brought against specified nonprofit organizations, as specified.

CCP § 425.17(c) does not provide an independent basis for upholding the trial court's denial of the motion and only excludes certain claims that would otherwise fall within the reach of an anti-SLAPP statute [ Mann v. Quality Old Time Serv., Inc. (2004) 120 CA4th 90 ].

Chapter 13 Anti-SLAPP Motions
III. OPPOSING ANTI-SLAPP MOTION

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 13.18

13.18 Determining Whether Plaintiff Has Probability of Success in Suit.

13.18[1] Plaintiff May Defeat Motion If Probability of Prevailing in Suit Is Shown. If a court ruling on an anti-SLAPP motion concludes the challenged cause of action arises from protected speech or petitioning, it then determines whether the plaintiff has demonstrated a probability of prevailing on the claim. To satisfy this prong, the plaintiff must state and substantiate a legally sufficient claim. Specifically, the plaintiff must demonstrate that the complaint is both legally sufficient and supported by a sufficient prima facie showing of facts to sustain a favorable judgment if the evidence submitted by the plaintiff is credited [ Jarrow Formulas, Inc. v. LaMarche (2003) 31 C4th 728, 741 ].

If a cause of action refers to both protected and unprotected activity and a plaintiff can show a probability of prevailing on any part of the claim, the cause of action is not meritless and will not be subject to the anti-SLAPP procedure [ Mann v. Quality Old Time Serv., Inc. (2004) 120 CA4th 90, 100 ]. In a case involving protected and unprotected activity, the court does not have to consider defenses that do not relate to the defendant's protected petitioning activity [ Mann v. Quality Old Time Serv., Inc. (2004) 120 CA4th 90, 107 ].

13.18[2] Basis for Determination by Court. In making a determination on an anti-SLAPP motion to strike, the court will consider the pleadings, and supporting and opposing affidavits stating the facts on which the liability or defense is based [CCP § 425.16(b)(2); Nguyen-Lam v. Cao (2009) 171 CA4th 858, 871, 90 CR3d 205 (facts developed at hearing on motion to strike may establish probability of prevailing on merits); Gallant v. City of Carson (2005) 128 CA4th 705 ].

The court may rule on the admissibility of evidence submitted in support or opposition to a finding of probability of prevailing in the underlying action [see Raining Data Corp. v. Barrenechea (2009) 175 CA4th 1363, 1372, 97 CR3d 196 (right waived)].

Warnings:

- Because averment on information and belief is inadmissible at trial, it cannot be utilized to demonstrate the probability of prevailing for purposes of a special anti-SLAPP motion to strike [Evid Code § 702(a); Beilenson v. Superior Court (1996) 44 CA4th 944, 952, 52 CR2d 357]. The plaintiff's showing must be made by competent admissible evidence within the personal knowledge of the declarant(s) [Gallant v. City of Carson (2005) 128 CA4th 705, 710].

- The failure to challenge the trial court's determination of whether particular evidence may be considered in its determination of the probability of success waives the right to challenge it on appeal [Gallant v. City of Carson (2005) 128 CA4th 705, 710; Gallagher v. Connell (2004) 123 CA4th 1260, 1264]. Furthermore, even if objection is entered, the failure to obtain the trial court's ruling on it constitutes a waiver of the objection [Gallant v. City of Carson (2005) 128 CA4th 705, 713].

Example:

Two of cross-complainant's declarations were inadmissible pursuant to CCP § 2015.5 because they were not executed under California law. Four other declarations contained matters without proper foundation and hearsay. The separate statement of material facts and evidence offered in opposition to the anti-SLAPP motion was an unauthorized attempt to circumvent the page limits on defendants' opposition brief. As a result, cross-complainant failed to meet the burden of proof of the probability of prevailing on the merits [Raining Data Corp. v. Barrenechea (2009) 175 CA4th 1363, 1372, 97 CR3d 196].

The court must consider the substantive merits of the plaintiff's complaint, as well as all available defenses to it, including, but not limited to, constitutional defenses [ARP Pharmacy Servs., Inc. v. Gallagher Bassett Servs., Inc. (2006) 138 CA4th 1307, 1323, 42 CR3d 256; Traditional Cat Assn., Inc. v. Gilbreath (2004) 118 CA4th 392, 398].

Examples:

Defenses that have precluded a finding that the plaintiff has probability of prevailing in a suit subject to an anti-SLAPP motion to strike include:

- Collateral estoppel for failure to exhaust judicial remedies to administrative decision [Miller v. City of Los Angeles (2008) 169 CA4th 1373, 1383, 87 CR3d 510 (plaintiff's Fair Employment and Housing Act claim was collaterally estopped by his dismissal of judicial appeal of civil service commission decision)].

- The statute grounding plaintiff's cause of action was not yet enacted when the cause of action accrued [Cabral v. Martins (2009) 177 CA4th 471, 484-485, 99 CR3d 394].

- Statements that come under the protection of the official-duty privilege of CC § 47(a) [Morrow v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (2007) 149 CA4th 1424, 1439-1444, 57 CR3d 885; Tutor-Saliba Corp. v. Herrera (2006) 136 CA4th 604, 615-616, 39 CR3d 21].

- Lack of standing on the face of the complaint [Major v. Silna (2005) 134 CA4th 1485, 1497-1503; 36 CR3d 875].

- First Amendment rights to freedom of speech and of the press [Stewart v. Rolling Stone LLC (2010) 181 CA4th 664, 680, 105 CR3d 98 (misappropriation under CC § 3344)].

- Litigation privilege under CC § 47(b) [Seltzer v. Barnes (2010) 182 CA4th 953, 972, 106 CR3d 290 (settlement negotiations); Daniels v. Robbins (2010) 182 CA4th 204, 216, 105 CR3d 683 (abuse of process, negligence, intentional infliction torts); Cabral v. Martins (2009) 177 CA4th 471, 485-490, 99

CR3d 394 ; Kashian v. Harriman (2002) 98 CA4th 892, 926-927, 120 CR2d 576 (defamation action); Dove Audio, Inc. v. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman (1996) 47 CA4th 777, 783-785, 54 CR 2d 830 (prelitigation communication)].

■ Minor's statements to police, her parents, and her paralegal alleging child abuse were covered by the litigation privilege in CC § 47(b), and plaintiff failed to show a probability of prevailing on a liability claim for false report of child abuse under Pen Code § 11172 filed by the alleged victim of the abuse, even though a similar report by a third party is not entitled to protection under the litigation privilege from § 11172 liability [ Chabak v. Monroy (2007) 154 CA4th 1502, 1514, 1516-1519, 65 CR3d 641 (citing Siam v. Kizilbash (2005) 130 CA4th 1563, 1577, 31 CR3d 368 )].

The court thus determines whether the defendant's opposing evidence defeats the plaintiff's showing as a matter of law [ Overstock.com, Inc. v. Gradient Analytics, Inc. (2007) 151 CA4th 688, 700, 61 CR3d 29 ; Mann v. Quality Old Time Serv., Inc. (2004) 120 CA4th 90, 106 ].

Example:

A plaintiff suing a public employee who is statutorily protected from liability for injury caused by his or her instituting or prosecuting a judicial or administrative proceeding within the scope of his or her employment, which applies even if he or she acts maliciously and without probable cause [Gov Code § 821.6], has no probability of success in the suit [see Miller v. Filter (2007) 150 CA4th 652, 665-667, 58 CR3d 671 ].

The determination will come from the ability of the parties to put forth their prima facie cases, not from a weighing of the evidence [ Kyle v. Carmon (1999) 71 CA4th 901, 907-908, 84 CR2d 303 ]. Essentially, the trial court is to test each party's prima facie case against each other [see, e.g., Booker v. Rountree (2007) 155 CA4th 1366, 1371-1373, 66 CR3d 733 ].

Example:

A defendant has prima facie probability of prevailing on a slander of title claim arising from a lis pendens filed in reference to two arbitration proceedings, because lis pendens may not be used for arbitration proceedings [ Manhattan Loft, LLC v. Mercury Liquors, Inc. (2009) 173 CA4th 1040, 1052-1054, 93 CR3d 457 (anti-SLAPP motion granted)].

Example:

A public figure must allege facts sufficient to show actual malice on the part of the defendant in a libel action. A conclusory boilerplate allegation that a defendant acted maliciously and oppressively, and in conscious disregard of the plaintiff's rights is insufficient to state a cause of action in a case where "actual malice" of the Sullivan type is required [ Vogel v. Felice (2005) 127 CA4th 1006, 1018 , 22 CR3d 724 ].

In making its determination, the trial court does not read allegations in isolation [ Clauson v. Superior Court (1998) 67 CA4th 1253, 1255, 79 CR2d 747 ]. The trial court may consider permissible inferences from the parties' evidence [see, e.g., Booker v. Rountree (2007) 155 CA4th 1366, 1372, 66 CR3d 733 ]. Likewise, courts must consider the pertinent burden of proof in ascertaining whether the plaintiff has shown a probability of prevailing [ Ampex Corp. v. Cargle (2005) 128 CA4th 1569, 1578 ].

Example:

Limited purpose public figures such as respondents who sue for defamation must establish a probability that they can produce clear and convincing evidence that the allegedly defamatory statements were made with knowledge of their falsity or with reckless disregard of their truth or falsity [ Overstock.com, Inc. v. Gradient Analytics, Inc. (2007) 151 CA4th 688, 700, 61 CR3d 29 ; Ampex Corp. v. Cargle (2005) 128

CA4th 1569, 1578 ].

Strategic Point:

In contesting the plaintiff's probability of prevailing, both parties must be prepared to vigorously argue the merits of the claims and defenses on the underlying action [see Annette F. v. Sharon S. (2004) 119 CA4th 1146, 1166 ]. The plaintiff must be prepared to respond if the defendant establishes a defense that shifts the burden of proof back to the plaintiff [see Mann v. Quality Old Time Serv., Inc. (2004) 120 CA4th 90, 108 (defendant failed to show conditional privilege, so plaintiff did not have to show statements were made with malice)].

Distinguish:

- A defamation claim fails as a matter of law if the publication was not reasonably susceptible of a defamatory meaning and cannot be reasonably understood in the defamatory sense pleaded by the plaintiffs [ Balzaga v. Fox News Network, LLC (2009) 173 CA4th 1325, 1342-1343, 93 CR3d 782 (anti-SLAPP motion granted)].
- In a case involving protected and unprotected activity, the court does not have to consider defenses that do not relate to the defendant's protected petitioning activity [ Mann v. Quality Old Time Serv., Inc. (2004) 120 CA4th 90, 107 ].
- The fact that the plaintiff prevailed in a subsequently filed timely action is irrelevant to whether the plaintiff could prevail in an earlier untimely action on the same cause [ City of Santa Monica v. Stewart (2005) 126 CA4th 43, 75-76 ].
- A plaintiff has no chance of success in a lawsuit for invasion of privacy resulting from a newspaper's publication of information gathered from public sources, so that the plaintiff cannot stave off an anti-SLAPP motion filed in the case [ Gates v. Discovery Communications, Inc. (2004) 34 C4th 679, 696 ].
- Grounds for a standard motion to strike must be evident solely from the face of the pleading [see Ch. 12, Motions to Strike, 12.08].

Example:

Two of cross-complainant's declarations were inadmissible pursuant to CCP § 2015.5 because they were not executed under California law. Four other declarations contained matters without proper foundation and hearsay. The separate statement of material facts and evidence offered in opposition to the anti-SLAPP motion was an unauthorized attempt to circumvent the page limits on defendants' opposition brief. As a result, cross-complainant failed to meet the burden of proof of the probability of prevailing on the merits [ Raining Data Corp. v. Barrenechea (2009) 175 CA4th 1363, 1372, 97 CR3d 196 ].

13.18[2A] Special Considerations in Malicious Prosecution Actions. The question of probability of prevailing in considering an anti-SLAPP motion and the lack-of-probable-cause element of malicious prosecution are perhaps similarly focused, but they are not duplicates. Given that lack of probable cause is not the only element of a malicious prosecution claim, such a claim may lack merit even if the plaintiff can prove lack of probable cause [ Jarrow Formulas, Inc. v. LaMarche (2003) 31 C4th 728, 741 ]. Conversely, a plaintiff may have probable cause even if the suit lacked merit [ Paulus v. Bob Lynch Ford, Inc. (2006) 139 CA4th 659, 675, 43 CR3d 148 (anti-SLAPP motion granted where lack of probable cause not shown)].

The denial of initial motions for nonsuit on a cause of action subsequently nonsuited properly on a new motion based on additional facts does not constitute a determination that probable cause existed to bar a determination of the probability that the defendant in the nonsuited case would prevail in a malicious prosecution action in which the nonsuited plaintiff brings an anti-SLAPP motion where other evidence supported the finding of a probability of prevailing due to a lack of probable cause [ Slaney v. Ranger Ins. Co. (2004) 115 CA4th 306, 318 ]. The same rule applies to the entry of a default against the plaintiff, because the judgment was not the result of a full adversary hearing [ Bergman v. Drum (2005) 129 CA4th 11, 21-23 ].

The 2005 amendment to CCP § 425.16(b)(3) barring use later in the proceeding or in subsequent proceedings of the trial court's denial of a determination on an anti-SLAPP motion that plaintiff has a probability of prevailing in the case did not abrogate the well-settled rule that in a malicious prosecution action, the denial of a summary judgment motion in the underlying action establishes probable cause to file that lawsuit [ Hutton v. Hafif (2007) 150 CA4th 527, 549, 59 CR3d 109 (citing Wilson v. Parker, Covert & Chidester (2002) 28 C4th 811, 824, 123 CR2d 19, 50 P3d 733 for the rule)].

Strategic Point:

The 2005 amendment to CCP § 425.16(b)(3) barring use later in the proceeding or in subsequent proceedings of the trial court's denial of a determination on an anti-SLAPP motion that plaintiff has a probability of prevailing in the case abrogated the separate holding in Wilson [see Wilson v. Parker, Covert & Chidester (2002) 28 C4th 811, 821-822, 123 CR2d 19, 50 P3d 733)] that denial of an anti-SLAPP motion demonstrates there was probable cause to commence that action [ Hutton v. Hafif (2007) 150 CA4th 527, 547-550, 59 CR3d 109 ]. Accordingly, the denial of defendant's anti-SLAPP motion in the underlying action is no longer a probable-cause defense to the defendant's subsequent SLAPPback malicious prosecution action [see Hutton v. Hafif (2007) 150 CA4th 527, 549, 550, 59 CR3d 109 ].

A defendant's dismissal on summary judgment for lack of sufficient evidence in the action underlying a malicious prosecution action is not proof as a matter of law that the defendant can prevail in a subsequent malicious prosecution action or that the plaintiff lacked probable cause or acted with malice for purposes of determining whether the plaintiff meets the prima facie showing necessary on those elements of a subsequent malicious prosecution action for avoiding the granting of an anti-SLAPP motion [ Jarrow Formulas, Inc. v. LaMarche (2003) 31 C4th 728, 741 ]. The dismissal on summary judgment is some, but not necessarily sufficient evidence, in support of a finding that there was no probable cause [ Slaney v. Ranger Ins. Co. (2004) 115 CA4th 306, 318 ].

Findings made in support of sanctions under Fed R Civ P, Rule 11 that the underlying claim was meritless are evidence that the underlying action was filed without probable cause [ Mattel, Inc. v. Luce, Forward, Hamilton & Scripps (2002) 99 CA4th 1179, 1191, 121 CR2d 794 ].

The fact that the action forming the basis for a subsequent malicious prosecution action was itself dismissed on an anti-SLAPP motion does not establish a prima facie showing in the SLAPPback action that the SLAPP action was brought with malice [ Soukup v. Law Offices of Herbert Hafif (2006) 39 C4th 260, 295-296, 46 CR3d 638 ].

Cross Reference:

Motions to strike in SLAPPback actions, see 13.22A et seq.

Objection to the judicial notice of or consideration of the statement of decision of the underlying case for determining if malicious-prosecution plaintiff met its burden must be made before the trial court hearing the malicious prosecution action [ HMS Capital, Inc. v. Lawyers Title Co. (2004) 118 CA4th 204, 217, 12 CR3d 786 ].

13.18[3] Plaintiff's Securing of Preliminary Injunction Does Not Preclude Anti-SLAPP Motion to Strike by Defendant. The issue before a court on a motion for a preliminary injunction is not only "the likelihood that plaintiff will prevail at trial" but also "the interim harm that the plaintiff will likely sustain if the injunction were denied," which is not the same standard for granting a defendant's anti-SLAPP motion. Therefore, collateral estoppel does not mandate the denial of a defendant's special anti-SLAPP motion to strike when a plaintiff has already succeeded in obtaining a preliminary injunction [ Lam v. Ngo (2001) 91 CA4th 832, 843, 111 CR2d 582 ]. However, the facts behind the granting of an injunction may support the denial of an anti-SLAPP motion [ Slauson P'ship v. Ochoa (2003) 112 CA4th 1005, 1026-1029 ].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of preliminary injunctions, see Ch. 18, TROs and Preliminary Injunctions.

Distinguish:

The denial of the anti-SLAPP motion to strike on the basis that plaintiff has shown a probability of success precludes the defendant from bringing a malicious prosecution claim unless plaintiff prevailed on the anti-SLAPP motion via fraud or perjury [ Wilson v. Parker, Covert & Chidester (2002) 28 C4th 811, 820, 123 CR2d 19, 50 P3d 733 ].

13.18[4] Determination on Probability of Success Not Admissible in Evidence. If the court determines that the plaintiff has established a probability that he or she will prevail on the claim, neither that determination nor the fact of that determination will be admissible in evidence at any later stage of the case or in any subsequent action, and no burden of proof or degree of proof otherwise applicable will be affected by that determination in any later stage of the case or in any subsequent proceeding [ CCP § 425.16(b)(3); Hutton v. Hafif (2007) 150 CA4th 527, 547, 59 CR3d 109 (2005 amendment to CCP § 425.16(b)(3) did not affect case law holding that denial of a summary judgment motion in an underlying lawsuit demonstrates there was probable cause to commence that action); Robertson v. Rodriguez (1995) 36 CA4th 347, 355, 42 CR2d 464 ].

Example:

The 2005 amendment to CCP § 425.16(b)(3) barring use later in the proceeding or in subsequent proceedings of the trial court's denial of a determination on an anti-SLAPP motion that plaintiff has a probability of prevailing in the case abrogated prior caselaw holding that denial of an anti-SLAPP motion demonstrates there was probable cause to commence that action [ Hutton v. Hafif (2007) 150 CA4th 527, 547-550, 59 CR3d 109 (citing Wilson v. Parker, Covert & Chidester (2002) 28 C4th 811, 821-822, 123 CR2d 19, 50 P3d 733 )].

13.20 Serving and Filing Motion Papers.

Serve and file the papers by:

- Serving a conformed copy of the above described papers on the other party's attorney, or on the other party if he or she has no attorney, at least nine court days before the hearing [see CCP § 1005(a)(13), (b); Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1300(a); see Ch. 27, Service of Papers, 27.32-27.35].
- Attaching a copy of proof of service to the papers.
- Delivering the originals of the notice of motion and accompanying papers to the court clerk's office for filing at least nine court days before the hearing and paying the required fee.

Any party who opposes a special motion to strike under CCP § 425.16 must promptly transmit to the Judicial Council, by e-mail or facsimile, a copy of the endorsed-filed caption page of the opposition, a copy of any related notice of appeal or petition for a writ, and a conformed copy of any order issued pursuant to CCP § 425.16, including any order granting or denying a special motion to strike, discovery, or fees [CCP § 425.16(j)(1)].

Instructions on how to transmit and access documents required by CCP § 425.16(j) are available in a PDF file on the Judicial Council's website. See www.courtinfo.ca.gov/reference/documents/transmit.pdf.

The Judicial Council will maintain a public record of information transmitted pursuant to this subdivision for at least three years, and may store the information on microfilm or other appropriate electronic media [CCP § 425.16(j)(2)].

Chapter 13 Anti-SLAPP Motions
III. OPPOSING ANTI-SLAPP MOTION

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 13.22

13.22 Recovery of Attorney's Fees and Costs by Prevailing Plaintiff.

13.22[1] Denial of Frivolous Anti-SLAPP Motion Entitles Plaintiff to Attorney Fees. If the court finds that an anti-SLAPP motion is frivolous or is solely intended to cause unnecessary delay, the court will award costs and reasonable attorney's fees to the plaintiff [CCP § 425.16(c)]. A determination of frivolousness requires a finding the motion is "totally and completely without merit" in that "any reasonable attorney would agree such motion is totally devoid of merit" [ Carpenter v. Jack in the Box Corp. (2007) 151 CA4th 454, 469, 59 CR3d 839 (citing CCP § 128.5(b)(2))].

Example:

Given that unlawful workplace activity was not necessarily an issue of public interest, the trial court did not abuse its discretion in finding that the special motion to strike was frivolous [ Carpenter v. Jack in the Box Corp. (2007) 151 CA4th 454, 472, 59 CR3d 839 ].

Timing:

The timing of a motion for attorney fees under CCP § 425.16(c) is governed by Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1702 [see Carpenter v. Jack in the Box Corp. (2007) 151 CA4th 454, 462-468, 59 CR3d 839 ]. A plaintiff's motion for attorney fees under CCP § 425.16(c) for services up to and including the rendition of judgment in the trial court, which may include attorney's fees on an appeal before the rendition of judgment in the trial court, must be served and filed within the time for filing a notice of appeal under Cal Rules Ct, Rules 8.104 and 8.108 [ Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1702(b)(1) ]. Under that rule, the deadlines in Rules 8.104 and 8.108 apply from the entry of final judgment in the action, rather than from the determination on the anti-SLAPP motion, because "the rendition of judgment" means the signing and filing of the court's findings, conclusions, and final judgment in a case [ Carpenter v. Jack in the Box Corp. (2007) 151 CA4th 454, 466 and n.9, 468, 59 CR3d 839 (finding motion filed before entry of judgment timely)].

Failure of the court to adequately state grounds for sanction and to follow procedural requirements of CCP § 128.5 will obviate sanction order [ Morin v. Rosenthal (2004) 122 CA4th 673, 682 ]. To justify a sanctions award, the trial court must state no more than a written factual recital, with reasonable specificity, of the circumstances that led it to find the conduct before it sanctionable [ Carpenter v. Jack in the Box Corp. (2007) 151 CA4th 454, 470, 59 CR3d 839 ].

Example:

The trial court's statement of reasons, although brief, for its finding that the motion to strike was frivolous incorporated by reference both defendants' moving papers and a previous appellate opinion in the case affirming the denial of the special motion to strike adequately stated the trial court's grounds for awarding attorney fees to the plaintiff [ Carpenter v. Jack in the Box Corp. (2007) 151 CA4th 454, 470, 59 CR3d 839 ].

Warning:

If the defendant prevails on an anti-SLAPP motion, defendant is entitled to recover attorney's fees and costs [CCP § 425.16(c)]. Even if the plaintiff voluntarily dismisses the action [ Coltrain v. Shewalter (1998) 66 CA4th 94, 107, 77 CR2d 600 ] or amends the complaint as a matter or right under CCP § 472 [ Sylmar Air Conditioning v. Pueblo Contracting Services, Inc. (2004) 122 CA4th 1049, 1054, 18 CR3d 882 ] after the anti-SLAPP motion is filed but before the court determines the motion, the court may impose costs and fees on the plaintiff for the original complaint.

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

A plaintiff wishing to voluntarily dismiss or amend the complaint after the defendant has filed an anti-SLAPP motion should consider seeking a voluntary waiver of costs and fees from the defendant.

Cross References:

Recovery of costs on anti-SLAPP motion by prevailing defendant, see 13.13.

Discussion of recovery of costs and attorney's fees, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, Chs. 24, Costs, and 25, Attorney's Fees.

13.22[2] Three Ways for Plaintiff to Seek Attorney Fees. There are three ways in which a plaintiff may seek an award of attorney fees and costs in connection with a special motion to strike under CCP § 425.16 [ Carpenter v. Jack in the Box Corp. (2007) 151 CA4th 454, 468, 59 CR3d 839 (separate motion for fees)]:

- Including a motion may seek attorney fees in its moving papers,
- Bringing a separate, subsequently filed motion for fees and costs, or
- Seeking attorney fees as part of a cost memorandum at the conclusion of the litigation.

Check timing.

Anti-SLAPPback motion must be filed within 120 days of service of complaint unless permission of court is obtained for later filing.

Authority:

CCP § 425.18(d)(1)

Discussion:

See 13.22D

Determine whether action is SLAPPback:

Action must be for malicious prosecution or abuse of process arising from the filing or maintenance of the underlying action described below.

Underlying action must have been brought by defendant in present action.

Underlying action must have been dismissed by grant of special motion to strike under CCP § 425.16.

Authority:

CCP § 425.18(b)(1)

Discussion:

See 13.22C

- ☐ Determine whether anti-SLAPPback procedures apply.
- ☐ Party whose filing or maintenance of the prior cause of action from which the SLAPPback arises was illegal as a matter of law may not file an anti-SLAPPback motion.
- ☐ The regular anti-SLAPP provisions, not the anti-SLAPPback provisions, do apply to SLAPPbacks filed by public entities.

Authority:

CCP § 425.18(h), (i)

Discussion:

See 13.22C

- ☐ Follow standard procedure for making special motion to strike under CCP § 425.16.

Standard Procedure Checklist:

See 13.03

13.22A[2] Opposing an Anti-SLAPPback Motion.

- ☐ Follow standard procedure for opposing special motion to strike under CCP § 425.16.

Standard Procedure Checklist:

See 13.14

- ☐ If discovery is needed for showing probability of prevailing on the merits, file ex parte application for continuance to conduct discovery.

Authority:

CCP § 425.18(e)

Discussion:

See 13.22E

- ☐ If anti-SLAPPback motion is frivolous or filed only for purposes of delay, file motion for costs and reasonable attorney's fees.

Chapter 13 Anti-SLAPP Motions
IV. MAKING AND OPPOSING ANTI-SLAPBACK MOTIONS

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 13.22B

13.22B Options and Strategies.

By urgency legislation effective October 5, 2005 [Cal. Stats 2005, ch 535, § 4], the Legislature limited the scope of relief available from a special motion to strike under CCP § 425.16 in any action, now known as a "SLAPPback" action, for malicious prosecution or abuse of process in which the underlying action was itself dismissed under CCP § 425.16. The change extends the time in which to file a special motion to strike a SLAPPback action, but limits review of denial of the motion to writ review.

In the words of the Legislature, "a SLAPPback is distinguishable in character and origin from the ordinary malicious prosecution action. The Legislature further finds and declares that a SLAPPback cause of action should be treated differently, as provided in this section, from an ordinary malicious prosecution action because a SLAPPback is consistent with the Legislature's intent to protect the valid exercise of the constitutional rights of free speech and petition by its deterrent effect on SLAPP (strategic lawsuit against public participation) litigation and by its restoration of public confidence in participatory democracy" [CCP § 425.18(a)].

Chapter 13 Anti-SLAPP Motions
IV. MAKING AND OPPOSING ANTI-SLAPPBACK MOTIONS

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 13.22C

13.22C SLAPPback Is Malicious Prosecution or Abuse of Process Action Based on SLAPP Dismissed Under CCP § 425.16.

A "SLAPPback" is a cause of action for malicious prosecution or abuse of process arising from the filing or maintenance of a prior cause of action that has been dismissed pursuant to a special motion to strike under CCP § 425.16 [CCP § 425.18(b)(1)]. A special motion to strike under CCP § 425.16 may be filed against a SLAPPback [see CCP § 425.18(c)].

Exceptions:

A special motion to strike may not be filed against a SLAPPback by a party whose filing or maintenance of the prior cause of action from which the SLAPPback arises was illegal as a matter of law [CCP § 425.18(h)]. The filing or maintenance of the prior cause of action was illegal as a matter of law if either [ Soukup v. Law Offices of Herbert Hafif (2006) 39 C4th 260, 286-287, 46 CR3d 638 ]:

- The defendant concedes the illegality of the assertedly protected activity, or
- The illegality is conclusively established by the evidence presented in connection with the motion to strike.

Trap:

The burden of proof that the underlying action was illegal as a matter of law is on the plaintiff in the SLAPPback action [ Soukup v. Law Offices of Herbert Hafif (2006) 39 C4th 260, 287, 46 CR3d 638 ].

Distinguish:

As a matter of law, the filing or maintenance of a SLAPPback of which any material part does not violate a statute cannot be "illegal as a matter of law" for purposes of CCP § 425.18(h) [ Hutton v. Hafif (2007) 150 CA4th 527, 545, 59 CR3d 109 (affirming order granting anti-SLAPP motion in SLAPPback in which material part did not violate any statute)].

Example:

Defendant's retaliatory conduct was not illegal as a matter of law under Lab Code § 1102.5(b), because at the time of conduct, plaintiff did not meet the requirement of that statute that she be an employee of the defendant [ Soukup v. Law Offices of Herbert Hafif (2006) 39 C4th 260, 287-289, 46 CR3d 638 ].

Strategic Point:

Even if the court finds that the filing and maintenance of the prior cause of action was not illegal as a matter of law, it still applies the usual anti-SLAPP analysis concerning whether the plaintiff has a probability of prevailing on the merits [ Soukup v. Law Offices of Herbert Hafif (2006) 39 C4th 260, 290-291, 46 CR3d 638 ].

Example:

Defendant's retaliatory conduct was not illegal as a matter of law, but the plaintiff demonstrated a probability of prevailing on the malicious prosecution claim, so the anti-SLAPP motion was denied in the SLAPPback action [ Soukup v. Law Offices of Herbert Hafif (2006) 39 C4th 260, 292-297, 46 CR3d 638 ].

Cross Reference:

Determining plaintiff's probability of prevailing, see 13.18.

In doing so, the plaintiff must identify with particularity [ Soukup v. Law Offices of Herbert Hafif (2006) 39 C4th 260, 287, 46 CR3d 638 ]:

- The statute or statutes violated by the filing and maintenance of the underlying action, and
- The specific manner in which the statute or statutes were violated with reference to their elements.

Distinguish:

The provisions of CCP § 425.18 do not apply to SLAPPback actions filed by public entities [CCP § 425.18(i)].

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 13.22D

13.22D Anti-SLAPPback Motion, Without Permission of Court for Later Filing, Must Be Filed Within 120 Days of Service of Complaint.

A special motion to strike a SLAPPback under CCP § 425.16 must be filed within 120 days of the service of the complaint.

Exception:

The trial court has the discretion to permit filing of the motion within six months of the service of the complaint or, in extraordinary cases due to no fault of the defendant and upon written findings of the court stating the extraordinary case and circumstance, at any later time [CCP § 425.18(d)(1)].

Upon filing of the motion, the clerk of the court must schedule the hearing on the motion not more than 30 days after the service of the motion unless the docket conditions of the court require a later hearing [CCP § 425.18(d)(2)].

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 13.22E

13.22E No Automatic Stay of Discovery, But Opposing Party May Obtain Continuance for Discovery on Motion.

The provision calling for an automatic stay of discovery for anti-SLAPP motions [CCP § 425.16(g); see 13.05[4]] do not apply to anti-SLAPPback motions [CCP § 425.18(c)].

However, a party opposing a special motion to strike a SLAPPback may file an ex parte application for a continuance to obtain necessary discovery. If it appears that facts essential to justify opposition to that motion may exist, but cannot then be presented, the court must grant a reasonable continuance to permit the party to obtain affidavits or conduct discovery or may make any other order as may be just [CCP § 425.18(e)].

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 13.22F

13.22F Moving Party May Not Obtain Fees and Costs, But Plaintiff May Obtain Costs for Frivolous or Delaying Motion.

The provision allowing the moving party to obtain costs and fees from the plaintiff upon the grant of anti-SLAPP motions [see CCP § 425.16(c); 13.13] does not apply to anti-SLAPPback motions [CCP § 425.18(c); Hutton v. Hafif (2007) 150 CA4th 527, 540, 59 CR3d 109 (order granting fees reversed)].

However, an opposing party prevailing on an anti-SLAPPback motion may obtain an award of costs and reasonable attorney's fees if the court finds that the anti-SLAPPback motion is frivolous or solely intended to cause unnecessary delay [CCP § 425.18(f)].

Chapter 13 Anti-SLAPP Motions
V. REVIEWING GRANT OR DENIAL OF ANTI-SLAPP OR ANTI-SLAPP BACK MOTION

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 13.23

13.23 Obtaining Appellate Review of Decision on Anti-SLAPP Motion.

13.23[1] Order on Anti-SLAPP Motion Is Appealable If Not Subject to CCP § 425.17 Exceptions. An order granting or denying a motion for an anti-SLAPP motion to strike is appealable [CCP §§ 425.16(i), 904.1(a)(13)]. An award of attorney fees under the anti-SLAPP statute is also appealable [ Johnston v. Corrigan (2005) 127 CA4th 553, 556 , 25 CR3d 657 ].

Trap:

If the court issues judgment without ruling on a request for attorney fees, that constitutes final judgment for appeal purposes, and the notice of appeal must be filed within 60 days of that judgment. The failure to do so by waiting to file an appeal after the court rules on the request for attorney fees will forfeit the right of appeal if the notice of appeal is filed more than 60 days after the entry of judgment on the merits [ Maughan v. Google Technology, Inc. (2006) 143 CA4th 1242, 1246-1247, 49 CR3d 861 (appeal on merits dismissed)]. Counsel must not wait for a ruling on the request for attorney fees to file an appeal on an anti-SLAPP motion.

Trap:

The granting of an anti-SLAPP motion is a judgment for purposes of CCP § 577 and therefore starts the filing period under CCP § 904.1(a)(2) for appealing rulings on orders made after judgment [ Melbostad v. Fisher (2008) 165 CA4th 987, 996, 81 CR3d 354 ]. Counsel must therefore file appeals of any such orders within 60 days of the granting of the special motion to strike.

Exceptions:

- If any trial court denies an anti-SLAPP motion on the grounds that the action or cause of action is exempt pursuant to CCP § 425.17, the appeal provisions of CCP §§ 425.16(j) and 904.1(a)(13) do not apply [CCP § 425.17(e)]. Even where this provision applies, a party with valid grounds may still bring a writ petition [ Goldstein v. Ralphs Grocery Co. (2004) 122 CA4th 229 ].

- The appellate court may dismiss the appeal of the denial of an anti-SLAPP motion if the appeal is brought solely for purposes of delay [People ex rel. Lockyer v. Brar (2004) 115 CA4th 1315, 1318 ("appeal practically has the words 'brought for reasons of delay' virtually tattooed on its forehead")].

13.23[2] Determine the Standard of Review.

13.23[2][a] Court Applies Independent Judgment Review to Decision on Motion. When reviewing the granting of an anti-SLAPP motion to strike, the appellate court uses independent judgment to determine whether defendants acted in furtherance of their right of petition or free speech in connection with a public issue [ Seelig v. Infinity Broad. Corp. (2002) 97 CA4th 798, 806-807, 119 CR2d 108 ; Mission Oaks Ranch, Ltd. v. County of Santa Barbara (1998) 65 CA4th 713, 721, 77 CR2d 1 ].

The defendant bears the burden of making the prima facie case as to the action involving free speech or petition rights, but when the burden is met, the appellate court then considers whether the plaintiff has produced sufficient admissible evidence to establish the probability of prevailing on the merits on every cause of action asserted [ Navellier v. Sletten (2003) 106 CA4th 763, 768, 131 CR2d 201 ; Mission Oaks Ranch, Ltd. v. County of Santa Barbara (1998) 65 CA4th 713, 721, 77 CR2d 1 ].

Strategic Point:

If the trial court did not reach the issue of probability of the plaintiff's prevailing, but the issue was fully litigated in the trial court, the appellate court may choose to decide the issue if it finds grounds for reversing the trial court on the issue of protected activity and the issue was fully litigated before the trial court [see, e.g., Booker v. Rountree (2007) 155 CA4th 1366, 1371, 66 CR3d 733 ]. Counsel for plaintiff should therefore consider briefing and arguing the issue before the appellate court, and counsel for the defense should be prepared for that possibility.

The plaintiff may waive the right on appeal to establish a probability of prevailing on the merits [ Raining Data Corp. v. Barrenechea (2009) 175 CA4th 1363, 1372, 97 CR3d 196 (right waived)].

13.23[2][b] Court Applies Abuse of Discretion Review to Evidentiary Rulings. When reviewing the evidentiary rulings made pursuant to an anti-SLAPP motion to strike, the reviewing court applies the standard of abuse of discretion [ Morrow v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (2007) 149 CA4th 1424, 1440, 1444, 57 CR3d 885 ].

As it involves a trial court's assessment of an attorney's declaration, an appeal of a motion for attorney fees by the prevailing party is subject to the same standard of review [ Christian Research Institute v. Alnor (2008) 165 CA4th 1315, 1323, 81 CR3d 866 ].

13.23[3] Fees and Costs Pertaining to Appeal Are Recoverable.

13.23[3][a] Defendant Prevailing on Appeal May Recover Reasonable Attorney Fees Incurred on Appeal. A defendant who prevails on an anti-SLAPP motion to strike will recover attorney's fees and costs related to an appeal on the issue [ Dove Audio, Inc. v. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman (1996) 47 CA4th 777, 785, 54 CR2d 830 ; Church of Scientology of Cal. v. Wollersheim (1996) 42 CA4th 628, 659, 49 CR2d 620 ].

Warning:

A defendant may recover fees reasonably incurred in connection with an appeal even when the plaintiff who initially appeals the granting of a special motion to strike against it does not pursue the appeal to a final determination [ Wilkerson v. Sullivan (2002) 99 CA4th 443, 448, 121 CR2d 275 ].

Example:

A post-judgment order awarding costs and attorney fees may include costs and fees for a challenge to an inadequate undertaking submitted to stay enforcement of an award of attorney fees under § 425.16(c) [ Wanland v. Law Offices of Mastagni, Holstedt & Chiurazzi (2006) 141 CA4th 15, 21, 45 CR3d 633 ].

13.23[3][b] Plaintiff Prevailing on Appeal from Anti-SLAPP Motion May Recover Attorney Fees Under Certain Circumstances. A plaintiff prevailing on the appeal of a trial court determination of an anti-SLAPP motion to strike may recover attorney fees if the defendant's anti-SLAPP motion was frivolous or filed only for purposes of delay [see Carpenter v. Jack in the Box Corp. (2007) 151 CA4th 454, 462-468, 59 CR3d 839 (plaintiff awarded fees incurred on appeal from frivolous motion)].

13.23[3][c] Timing of Motion Depends on Whether Appeal Includes Final Judgment. Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1702 sets forth timing for seeking attorney fees by the prevailing party on appeal from judgment on an anti-SLAPP motion to strike [see Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1702(a); Carpenter v. Jack in the Box Corp. (2007) 151 CA4th 454, 462-468, 59 CR3d 839 ].

Distinguish:

On the one hand, a motion for attorney fees under CCP § 425.16(c) made before trial court judgment for services up to and including the rendition of judgment in the trial court, including attorney's fees on an appeal before the rendition of judgment in the trial court, must be served and filed within the time for filing a notice of appeal under Cal Rules Ct, Rules 8.104 and 8.108 [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1702(b)(1)]. Under that rule, the deadlines in Rules 8.104 and 8.108 apply from the entry of final judgment in the action, rather than from the determination on the anti-SLAPP motion, because "the rendition of judgment" means the signing and filing of the court's findings, conclusions, and final judgment in a case [ Carpenter v. Jack in the Box Corp. (2007) 151 CA4th 454, 466 and n.9, 468, 59 CR3d 839 (citing Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1702(b)(1) in finding motion filed before entry of judgment timely)]. On the other hand, notice of motion to claim attorney's fees incurred on other appeals must be served and filed within the time for serving and filing the memorandum of costs under Cal Rules Ct, Rule 8.278(c) [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1702(c)(1)]. In either case, time for appeal may be extended by stipulation under specified conditions [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1702(b)(2), (c)(2)].

13.23[4] Decision on Request for Attorney Fees Not Subject to Appeal Before Judgment. The plain meaning of the words used in CCP § 425.16(i) manifests the Legislature's intent to limit this exception to the one final judgment rule to allow the appeal of the court's ruling on the special motion to strike itself, not to make related, but ancillary, rulings or orders separately appealable, including rulings on requests for attorney fees by the prevailing party on an anti-SLAPP motion [ Doe v. Luster, 145 CA4th 139, 146, 150, 51 CR3d 403 ].

1-13 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 13.23A

13.23A Automatic Stay Upon Perfection of Appeal from Denial of Anti-SLAPP Motion.

Under CCP § 916(a), the perfecting of an appeal from the denial of a special motion to strike under CCP § 425.16 automatically stays all further trial court proceedings on the merits upon the causes of action affected by the anti-SLAPP motion. The appeal divests the trial court of subject matter jurisdiction over the matters embraced by the anti-SLAPP motion during the pendency of the appeal [ Varian Medical Systems, Inc. v. Delfino (2005) 35 C4th 180, 193-197 (new trial ordered)].

Distinguish:

Further proceedings on matters not subject to the anti-SLAPP motion are not stayed by the appeal [ Varian Medical Systems, Inc. v. Delfino (2005) 35 C4th 180, 195 ]. Specifically, matters that do not go to the merits of the causes of action subject to the motion to strike are not stayed [ Novartis Vaccines & Diagnostics, Inc. v. Stop Huntingdon Animal Cruelty USA, Inc. (2006) 143 CA4th 1284, 1302, 50 CR3d 27 (granting of preliminary injunction did not go to merits of case)].

In addition, the appeal of the denial of a motion to strike on the grounds that a cause of action is exempt under CCP § 425.17 is not subject to the automatic stay [ Varian Medical Systems, Inc. v. Delfino (2005) 35 C4th 180, 195 ].

The provision allowing the moving party to appeal the grant or denial of anti-SLAPP motions [see CCP § 425.16(i); see also 13.23[1]] do not apply to anti-SLAPPback motions [CCP § 425.18(c)].

Chapter 14 Answers
I. STRATEGY

1-14 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 14.01

14.01 Scope.

This chapter covers:

- Objectives and strategies for responding to a complaint [see 14.04, 14.05].
- Ascertaining deadlines for serving and filing answers, including obtaining extensions of time and how other responses to a complaint may affect answer deadline [ see 14.07 -14.11].
- Elements that must/may be included in an answer (general and specific denials, affirmative defenses, objections, admissions) [ see 14.13 -14.19].
- Waiver of defenses [see 14.18[1]].
- Verifying answers and the signature requirement [see 14.20, 14.21].
- Filing and serving answers [see 14.24].
- Responding to answers [ see 14.26 -14.32].

Other ways to respond to a complaint or cross-complaint, other than by answering, are covered in detail elsewhere in this publication. These include:

- Motion for change of venue [see Ch. 6, Determining Forum].
- Application to proceed in forma pauperis [see Ch. 7, Complaints, 7.26[4]].
- Motion to quash service of summons for lack of personal jurisdiction [see Ch. 9, Motions to Quash and Other Objections to Personal Jurisdiction].
- Motion to stay or dismiss for inconvenient forum [see Ch. 9, Motions to Quash and Other Objections to Personal Jurisdiction].

- Demurrer [see Ch. 11, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings].
- Motion to strike [see Ch. 12, Motions to Strike].
- SLAPP motion [see Ch. 13, Anti-SLAPP Motions].
- Cross-complaint [see Ch. 16, Cross-Complaints].
- Removal to federal court [see Ch. 17, Removal to Federal Court].
- Motion for sanctions, security, or restrictions on vexatious litigants [see Ch. 35, Sanctions].

Chapter 14 Answers
I. STRATEGY

1-14 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 14.02

14.02 Objective and Strategy.

Counsel for a defendant in a newly filed action should first consult the general checklists for pretrial action by defendants provided in Chapter 1, for an overview of possible avenues of response. For responses such as proposing or compelling arbitration [see Ch. 6, Determining Forum], offering to settle [see Ch. 37, Settlement and Release], seeking removal to federal court [see Ch. 17, Removal to Federal Court], or concerning a plaintiff who is a vexatious litigant [see 35.15A et seq.], consult the respective chapter, keeping in mind, where necessary, the deadline for filing an answer. For other responses, consult the checklist in 14.03 for details of possible courses of action.

If you are moving forward with a response discussed in this chapter, and your client would like to avoid the publicity that can come with the filing of an action, counsel should consider the chances of success in court of filing with the response a motion to seal sensitive portions of it (as well as the complaint and any subsequent filings), as well as a motion for a gag order, although in the latter case the courts rarely oblige.

➤ Cross References:

Discussion of sealing court records, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, 2.11 et seq.

Discussion of gag orders, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Trial and Post-Trial Civil Procedure, 2.30 et seq.

An answer is a pleading filed by a defendant or cross-defendant in a civil action in response to a complaint or cross-complaint, which apprises the plaintiff of the defendant's or cross-defendant's position with respect to the allegations of the complaint [see CCP § 431.30(a), (b)]. In this chapter, all references to defendants include cross-defendants, and references to plaintiffs include cross-complainants, unless otherwise indicated [see CCP § 431.30(a)(2)].

The answer performs two essential functions; first, it serves as an appearance in the action, unless filed simultaneously with a motion to quash service of summons, stay or dismiss based on inconvenient forum, or dismiss based on delay in prosecution [CCP §§ 418.10(d), (e), 1014]. Appearing in a case entitles the defendant to notice of all subsequent proceedings for which notice must be given, as well as service of papers in the action [CCP § 1014].

Second, the answer raises the material issues of fact to be tried [see Fuentes v. Tucker (1947) 31 C2d 1, 4, 187 P2d 752 ]. For there to be triable issues in a case, the answer must controvert, either through general or specific denials, the material allegations of the complaint, and/or raise new matter constituting a defense to the claims asserted [see CCP § 431.30(b); see also Fuentes v. Tucker (1947) 31 C2d 1, 7, 187 P2d 752 ; Amusing Sandwich, Inc. v. City of Palm Springs (1985) 165 CA3d 1116, 1130, 211 CR 911 ]. Although fact issues are raised by the material allegations of the complaint, only those issues joined through a defendant's denials and affirmative defenses, set forth in the answer and deemed denied by the plaintiff, must be tried [see CCP § 431.20(b); Carlton v. Superior Court (1968) 261 CA2d 282, 289, 67 CR 568 ].

II. RESPONDING TO COMPLAINT OR CROSS-COMPLAINT

1-14 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 14.03

14.03 CHECKLIST: Responding to Complaint or Cross-Complaint.

☐ Determine when client was served with complaint, cross-complaint, or amended complaint.

☐ Obtain proof of service from client.

☐ Obtain complaint from client.

☐ Determine if motion to quash service of summons, to stay or dismiss for inconvenient forum or dismiss for delay in prosecution is appropriate.

Authority:

CCP § 418.10(d), (e)

Discussion:

See 14.04

Timing:

Motion(s) must be filed within 30 days after service of summons.

☐ Determine if objection to complaint should be brought by affirmative defense or demurrer.

Authority:

CCP §§ 430.10, 430.30(a), (b), (c); Four Star Elec., Inc. v. F & H Constr. (1992) 7 CA4th 1375, 1379, 10 CR2d 1

Discussion:

See 14.05

- ☐ Analyze relief requested, which dictates type of action.

Authority:

CCP §§ 20, 21, 23, 25-30

Discussion:

See 14.07[1]

- ☐ Determine timing of response to complaint.

- ☐ Answer original complaint in a civil action within 30 days after service of summons.

Authority:

CCP § 412.20(a)(3)

Discussion:

See 14.07[2]

- ☐ Answer cross-complaints within 30 days after service.

Authority:

CCP § 432.10

Discussion:

See 14.07[3]

- ☐ Answer forcible entry, forcible detainer, and unlawful detainer complaints within five days after service.

Authority:

CCP § 1167

Discussion:

See 14.07[4]

- ☐ Answer complaints in certain defamation actions within 20 days after service.

Authority:

See CCP § 460.7(a); see also CCP § 460.5(a) (on application of plaintiff for good cause shown)

Discussion:

See 14.07[2]

- ☐ Determine procedural posture of case, the effect other responsive pleadings have on answer deadline, and develop strategy for responding to answer.

- ☐ If complaint has been amended, serve answer within 30 days after service of amendments or amended complaint, and if complaint has been amended "of course," serve answer within 30 days after notice of amendment.

Authority:

CCP §§ 471.5, 472

Discussion:

See 14.08

- ☐ Determine if court has set specific time limit for responding to an amended complaint.

Authority:

See CCP §§ 471.5, 472; Gov Code § 68600 et seq.

Discussion:

See 14.08[3]

- ☐ Answer amended complaints in certain defamation actions within 10 days.

Authority:

CCP §§ 460.5(b), 460.7(b), 586

Discussion:

See 14.08[1]

- ☐ If defendant files a CCP § 418.10 motion and it is denied, defendant must file answer, demurrer, or motion to strike 15 days after he or she is served with written notice of the entry of an order denying the motion.

Authority:

CCP § 418.10(b)

Discussion:

See 14.06[1]

☐ If defendant files a demurrer or motion to strike simultaneously with a CCP § 418.10 motion, and all motions are denied, defendant must answer within 15 days after he or she is served with written notice of entry of order denying motions.

☐ Time to respond after CCP § 418.10 motion may be extended by court for an additional 20 days upon a showing of good cause.

Authority:

CCP § 418.10(b)

Discussion:

See 14.09[1]

- ☐ Defendant may file petition for writ of mandate seeking appellate review of denial of CCP §

418.10 motion, which extends time to plead until 10 days after defendant is served with notice of final judgment in mandate proceeding.

☐ Time to plead may be extended by court for an additional 20 days upon a showing of good cause.

Authority:

CCP § 418.10(c)

Discussion:

See 14.09[2]

☐ Consider filing motion to strike which extends the time to answer until date set by court.

Authority:

CCP § 435(c)

Discussion:

See 14.09[3]

☐ Consider filing a demurrer. A demurrer to any cause of action within complaint extends deadline for answering entire complaint until at least 10 days after ruling on demurrer is made.

Authority:

Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1320(j); CCP § 472a(b), (c)

Discussion:

See 14.09[4]

☐ Consider moving to strike, demur, or otherwise plead to complaint or remaining causes of action within 10 days of:

☐ Overruling of demurrer to less than all causes of action;

☐ Amendment of complaint or expiration of time to do so if demurrer sustained with leave to amend;

or

☐ Sustaining of demurrer to less than all causes of action if demurrer was sustained without leave to amend.

Authority:

Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1320(j)

Discussion:

See 14.09[4]

☐ If no answer has been filed, following overruling of demurrer, answer complaint within 10 days.

Authority:Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1320(g)Discussion:See 14.09[5]*

- ☐ Compute date when answer (and/or other response) is due.
- ☐ Exclude day of service and include last day, unless it is a weekend or holiday.

Authority:CCP §§ 10, 12, 12a, 135Discussion:See 14.10*

- ☐ Calendar deadline for serving and filing answer (and/or other response).
- ☐ Check Local Rules of Court for jurisdiction's rules, which might allow extensions of time to answer.

Authority:Gov Code § 68600 et seq.Discussion:See 14.07[5]*

- ☐ Determine if verification of answer is required. If it is, allow sufficient time to obtain client's signature on verification.

Authority:CCP § 446Discussion:See 14.21*

- ☐ If unable to answer or otherwise respond to complaint by statutory deadline, try to obtain stipulation of the parties for extension of time, and/or seek enlargement or extension of time to answer from court.

Authority:CCP §§ 283(1), 473(a)(1), 1054Discussion:See 14.11*

II. RESPONDING TO COMPLAINT OR CROSS-COMPLAINT

1-14 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 14.04

14.04 Defendant May Move to Quash Service of Summons, to Stay or Dismiss for Inconvenient Forum, or to Dismiss for Delay in Prosecution Without Making a General Appearance.

A defendant may move to quash service of summons, to stay or dismiss an action on the grounds of inconvenient forum, or to dismiss for delay in prosecution, and simultaneously answer, demur, or move to strike the complaint, without being deemed to have made a general appearance until an order denying the motion is entered [CCP § 418.10(d), (e)].

Warning:

The failure to bring a CCP § 418.10 motion at the time of filing a demurrer or motion to strike constitutes a waiver of the issues of lack of personal jurisdiction, defective summons, inadequacy of service of process, inconvenient forum, and delay in prosecution [CCP § 418.10(e)(3)]. A party wishing to contest personal jurisdiction, process, forum, or prosecution of the case based on delay should bring a CCP § 418.10 motion prior to, or simultaneously with, filing his or her answer [see CCP § 418.10(e)].

II. RESPONDING TO COMPLAINT OR CROSS-COMPLAINT

1-14 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 14.05

14.05 Defendant May Object to Complaint by Answer or Demurrer.

A defendant responding to a complaint may make one or more of the following objections either as an affirmative defense in the answer, or by demurrer [CCP § 430.10]:

- Court does not have subject matter jurisdiction [CCP § 430.10(a)];
- Plaintiff lacks legal capacity to sue [CCP § 430.10(b)];
- Another action is pending between the same parties on the same cause of action [CCP § 430.10(c)];
- There is a defect or misjoinder of parties [CCP § 430.10(d)];
- Complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [CCP § 430.10(e)];
- Complaint is uncertain (applies if complaint is ambiguous or unintelligible) [CCP § 430.10(f)];
- In an action founded on contract, it cannot be ascertained from the complaint whether the contract is written or oral, or whether it is implied by conduct [CCP § 430.10(g)];
- Certificate required by CCP § 411.35 (relating to actions against architects, engineers, or land surveyors) was not filed [CCP § 430.10(h)].

If the ground for objection does not appear on the face of the pleading, the objection may be taken by answer [CCP § 430.30(b)]. If the ground for objection appears from the face of the complaint, or from a matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice, the objection may be raised by demurrer [CCP § 430.30(a); Four Star Elec., Inc. v. F & H Constr. (1992) 7 CA4th 1375, 1379, 10 CR2d 1 ]. A party objecting to a complaint may demur and answer at the same time [CCP § 430.30(c)].

II. RESPONDING TO COMPLAINT OR CROSS-COMPLAINT

1-14 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 14.06

14.06 Subject to Limited Exceptions, Objections Are Waived If Not Pleased.

If the defendant fails to object to the complaint, either by demurrer or answer, the party is deemed to have waived the objection, unless the objection is one of the following [CCP § 430.80(a)]:

- That the court has no jurisdiction over the subject of the cause of action alleged in the pleading; or
- That the pleading does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action.

Strategic Point:

Even though the defenses may be raised later, it is advisable to raise all known objections to the complaint at the earliest stage possible in an attempt to obtain a judgment in your client's favor at the least expense.

Chapter 14 Answers

II. RESPONDING TO COMPLAINT OR CROSS-COMPLAINT

1-14 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 14.07

14.07 Answering Original Complaints and Cross-Complaints.

14.07[1] Distinguishing Civil Actions From Special Proceedings. The two types of judicial remedies, "actions" and "special proceedings," are distinguished by the relief the parties are seeking [see CCP §§ 20, 21]. An "action" seeks the declaration, enforcement, or protection of a right, the redress or prevention of a wrong, or the punishment of a public offense [CCP § 22]. CCP §§ 307-1062.20 sets forth the procedural rules applicable to them.

A "special proceeding" exists when the parties seek any remedy other than those sought in an "action" [CCP § 23]. CCP §§ 1063-1822.60 sets forth the procedural rules applicable to them. The time for responding to a complaint in a special proceeding is usually established in the statutes governing the specific type of proceeding [see, e.g., CCP §§ 1167, 1167.3, 1170 (establishing answer deadline for forcible entry, forcible detainer, or unlawful detainer proceeding)].

14.07[2] Complaints in Civil Actions Must Be Answered Within 30 Days of Service. An answer to a complaint in a civil action must be served and filed on all parties who have appeared in the action within 30 days after service of summons [see CCP §§ 412.20(a)(3), 1014].

Exception:

In certain defamation actions involving candidates for public office, the defendant must respond to the complaint within 20 days after service of summons [CCP § 460.7(a)] and, in cases where continuing publication is alleged, the court may order the defendant, for good cause shown, to respond to the complaint within 20 days after service of summons [CCP § 460.5].

14.07[3] Cross-Complaints Must Be Answered Within 30 Days of Service. A party served with a cross-complaint in a civil action must, within 30 days after service, move, demur, or otherwise plead to the cross-complaint in the same manner as to an original complaint [CCP § 432.10].

14.07[4] Forcible Entry, Forcible Detainer, and Unlawful Detainer Complaints Must Be Answered Within Five Days of Service. Complaints alleging forcible entry, forcible detainer, or unlawful detainer must be answered within five days after service [CCP § 1167].

14.07[5] Trial Court Delay Reduction Act May Affect Answer Deadlines. Local delay reduction rules under the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act [Gov Code § 68600 et seq.] can affect the date by which a party must respond to a complaint.

Local delay reduction rules may not require responsive pleadings to be filed less than 30 days after service of the complaint, the parties may stipulate to an additional 15 days to respond, and the courts may make exceptions for longer periods of time to respond [Gov Code § 68616(b)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of service of summons, see Ch. 8, Service of Summons.

Warning:

The failure to answer or otherwise respond timely to the complaint within the statutory deadlines enables the plaintiff to seek an entry of default, and obtain judgment against the defendant [CCP § 585(a)-(c)]. Similarly, a failure to respond to a cross-complaint entitles the cross plaintiff to judgment [CCP § 585(e)], and a failure to file an answer after the court rules on a CCP § 418.10 motion or dilatory pleas, such as demurrers and motions to strike, also may result in a default judgment against the defendant [CCP § 586].

Cross Reference:

1-14 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 14.08

14.08 Answering Amended Complaints.

14.08[1] Most Amended Complaints Must Be Answered Within 30 Days of Service. An answer to an amended complaint in a civil action must be served and filed within 30 days after the amendments or complaint as amended is served, or such other time as the court may direct [CCP §§ 471.5, 586]. When a complaint is amended "of course," the time within which the defendant must respond is computed from the date of notice of the amendment [CCP § 472].

Exception:

In certain defamation actions, the time to respond to an amended complaint is 10 days [CCP §§ 460.7(b), 586]. Also, in any action where continuous defamatory publication is alleged, if the court shortened the time to respond to the original complaint to 20 days, the time to respond to amended complaint or amend answer is 10 days [CCP §§ 460.5(b), 586].

14.08[2] Amended Complaints in Forcible Entry, Forcible Detainer, and Unlawful Detainer Actions Must Be Answered Within Five Days. The time allowed for a defendant to respond to an amended complaint in an action for forcible entry or detainer, or for unlawful detainer, will not exceed five days, unless otherwise ordered on good cause shown [CCP § 1167.3].

14.08[3] Trial Court Delay Reduction Act May Affect Deadlines for Answering Amended Complaints. Local rules promulgated pursuant to the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act may affect the date by which a party must respond to an amended complaint [see Gov Code § 68616(b); see, e.g., Los Angeles Super Ct Rules, Rule 7.7(b)].

Chapter 14 Answers

II. RESPONDING TO COMPLAINT OR CROSS-COMPLAINT

1-14 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 14.09

14.09 Filing Other Responses Affects Deadline for Answer.

14.09[1] Moving to Quash, Stay, or Dismiss Extends Time to Answer. Before or on a defendant's last day to plead, or within any additional time the court may allow for good cause, the defendant may serve and file a notice of motion to quash service of summons on the ground of lack of personal jurisdiction, which will extend the time to answer [CCP § 418.10(a)(1)]. A defendant also may file a notice of motion to stay or dismiss the action based on inconvenient forum [CCP § 418.10(a)(2)], or move to dismiss based on delay in prosecution [CCP § 418.10(a)(3)], to similar effect.

Bringing the 418.10 motion will extend the defendant's time to plead until 15 days after he or she is served with written notice of the entry of an order denying his or her motion unless, for good cause shown, the court extends the defendant's time to plead for an additional period not exceeding 20 days [CCP § 418.10(b)].

A defendant may bring the 418.10 motion simultaneously with filing an answer, demurrer, or motion to strike. In such a case, defendant will not be deemed to have made a general appearance until entry of a final order denying the 418.10 motion [CCP § 418.10(e)(1)].

14.09[2] Filing Petition for Writ of Mandate Following Denial of CCP § 418.10 Motion Further Extends Time to Answer. If a CCP § 418.10 motion is denied, within 10 days after the defendant is served with written notice of entry of the court's order, or within any additional time not exceeding 20 days which the court grants for good cause shown, the defendant may petition a reviewing court for a writ of mandate to require the trial court to quash the service of summons or stay or dismiss the action [CCP § 418.10(c)]. The defendant's service and filing of a notice of a petition for writ of mandate extends the time to plead until 10 days after he or she is served with written notice of the final judgment in the mandate proceeding [CCP § 418.10(c)].

14.09[3] Filing Motion to Strike Extends Time to Answer. If a defendant serves and files a notice of motion to strike without demurring to the complaint, the time to answer is extended and default may not be entered against that defendant, except as provided in CCP §§ 585 and 586 [CCP § 435(c)].

► Cross Reference:

Discussion of motions to strike, see Ch. 12, Motions to Strike.

14.09[4] Demurring to Complaint Extends Time to Answer. Filing a demurrer to any cause of action within the complaint obviates the need to answer the other causes of action alleged in the complaint until a ruling on the demurrer [Cal Rules of Ct, Rule 3.1320(j)]. Following a ruling on a demurrer, unless otherwise ordered, leave to answer within 10 days is deemed granted [Cal Rules of Ct, Rule 3.1320(g)].

Exception:

In actions for forcible entry or detainer, or unlawful detainer, five days' leave to answer is deemed granted following a ruling on a demurrer [Cal Rules of Ct, Rule 3.1320(g)].

When a demurrer has been made to fewer than all the causes of action alleged in a complaint, unless otherwise ordered by the court, the defendant has 10 days to move to strike, demur, or otherwise plead to the complaint or to the remaining causes of action after any of the following [Cal Rules of Ct, Rule 3.1320(j)]:

- Overruling of the demurrer;
- Amendment of the complaint or the expiration of the time to amend if the demurrer was sustained with leave to amend;
- Sustaining of the demurrer if the demurrer was sustained without leave to amend.

 Cross Reference:

Discussion of objections a defendant can make by answer or demurrer, see 14.05.

14.09[5] Courts Allow Answer Following Overruling or Striking of Demurrer. If the court overrules or strikes defendant's demurrer and no answer has been previously filed, the court will allow an answer to be filed on such terms as are just [CCP § 472a(b), (c)].

14.10 Computing Time to Answer.

The time in which any act provided by law is to be done is computed by excluding the first day and including the last, unless the last day is a Saturday, Sunday, or holiday, in which case it is also excluded and the period is extended to and includes the next day that is not a holiday [CCP §§ 10, 12, 12a, 12b, 135].

II. RESPONDING TO COMPLAINT OR CROSS-COMPLAINT

1-14 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 14.11

14.11 Court May Extend Time to Answer or Allow Answer to Be Made Beyond Statutory Deadline.

The court may, in furtherance of justice and on such terms as may be proper, extend the time for an answer to be filed, or allow an answer to be made beyond the statutory deadline [CCP § 473(a)(1)].

Extensions of time may also be granted under CCP § 1054 (for good cause shown), CCP § 1054.1 (where attorney is member of California Legislature), or on the stipulation of the parties pursuant to CCP § 283(1) (authority of attorney to bind client).

Warning:

Local trial court delay reduction rules may limit or prescribe specific procedures for obtaining extensions of time to plead [see Gov Code § 68600 et seq.]. Such rules should be checked before assuming an extension or enlargement of time will be obtainable.

Strategic Point:

An ex parte application for extension of time to serve pleadings may be considered without a personal appearance of the applicant [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.1207(2)].

Strategic Point:

When stipulating to an extension of time in which the defendant may file an answer, specifying that the extension applies only to the filing of an answer and nothing else, or additional named motions or responses, can preclude the defendant from filing other motions [see Olinick v. BMG Entertainment (2006) 138 CA4th 1286, 1295, 42 CR3d 268 (plaintiff's letter extending time for defendant "to answer or otherwise respond to Complaint" allowed motion for inconvenient forum that would have otherwise been untimely)].

III. PREPARING THE ANSWER: FORM AND CONTENT

1-14 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 14.12

14.12 CHECKLIST: Preparing the Answer: Form and Content.

☐ Determine whether to file general or specific denials to plaintiff's allegations considering:

☐ Use general denial to answer most unverified complaints.

Authority:

CCP § 431.30(d)

Discussion:

See 14.14[1]

☐ Cannot use general denial to answer verified complaint.

Exception:

General denial may be used to answer a verified complaint in a limited civil case that is not a third party collection claim.

Authority:

CCP § 431.30(d)

Discussion:

See 14.15[2]

☐ Must use Judicial Council Form PLD-050 (General Denial) if action in which demand for money or value of property at issue does not exceed $1,000.

Authority:

CCP § 431.40(a); Cal Rules Ct, Rule 1.31

Discussion:

See 14.23

Form:

See 14.34

☐ May use Judicial Council Form PLD-050 (General Denial) if the complaint is not verified or the action is subject to economic litigation procedures in limited civil cases.

Authority:

CCP § 431.30(d)

Form:

See 14.34

☐ General denial will put only material allegations at issue.

Authority:

CCP § 431.30(b)(1), (d)

Discussion:

See 14.14[2]

☐ If making specific denials:

☐ Make specific denials:

☐ Positively, or

☐ According to information and belief; or

☐ By stating that defendant has insufficient information or belief to answer allegation.

Authority:

CCP § 431.30(b), (d), (e)

Discussion:

See 14.15

Form:

See 14.35

☐ Word specific denials carefully, avoiding implied admissions.

☐ Re-read allegation being denied; test all possible implications of language; make sure denial addresses full scope of allegation.

Authority:

CCP § 431.20(a); see also Kennedy v. Rosecrans Gardens, Inc. (1952) 114 CA2d 87, 89, 249 P2d 593

Discussion:

See 14.15[4]

☐ When appropriate, deny by affirmative allegation.

Authority:

Burris v. People's Ditch Co. (1894) 104 C 248, 253, 37 P 922 ; Blume v. MacGregor (1944) 64 CA2d 244, 253, 148 P2d 656

Discussion:

See 14.16

☐ Ensure that all allegations have been controverted by general or specific denial.

Authority:

CCP § 431.20(a)

Discussion:

See 14.14

☐ Raise new matter as needed.

☐ Evaluate whether issue sought to be raised is "new matter," i.e., issue relied on by defendant outside of complaint, rather than "controverting matter," which serves only to controvert an allegation of the complaint.

Authority:

CCP § 431.30(b)(2); see also Walsh v. W. Valley Mission Cmty. Coll. Dist. (1998) 66 CA4th 1532, 1546, 78 CR2d 725

Discussion:

See 14.18[2]

☐ Determine whether to raise new matter by demurrer or affirmative defense.

☐ Raise by demurrer if:

☐ Grounds exist as listed in CCP § 430.10.

☐ Grounds for objection appear on face of complaint or from matters subject to judicial notice.

☐ Raise as affirmative defense in answer if:

☐ Grounds listed in CCP § 430.10; and

☐ Ground for objection does not appear on face of complaint or from matter subject to judicial notice.

Authority:
CCP § 430.10

Discussion:
See 14.05, 14.19

☐ Assert affirmative defenses.

☐ Affirmative defenses which are not raised are waived.

Authority:
California Acad. of Scis. v. County of Fresno (1987) 192 CA3d 1436, 1442, 238 CR 154

Discussion:
See 14.18[1]

☐ Defenses may be inconsistent with each other but must be internally consistent.

Authority:
Allstate Ins. Co. v. Kim W. (1984) 160 CA3d 326, 334, 206 CR 609

Discussion:
See 14.18[4]

☐ State and number defenses separately, and refer to cause of action answered.

Authority:
CCP § 431.30(g); Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.112

Discussion:
See 14.18[5]

☐ Determine whether defendant could claim setoff.

☐ Plaintiff has sued defendant.

☐ Plaintiff and defendant had cross demands for money at any point when neither claim was barred by limitations.

☐ Irrelevant that defendant's claim would be barred by statute of limitations if brought as separate action.

☐ Defendant's claim does not have to be liquidated.

Authority:
CCP § 431.70

Discussion:

See 14.19[2]

☐ Setoff unavailable if:

☐ Defendant failed to raise earlier as compulsory cross-complaint;

☐ Money sought by setoff is exempt from execution; or ☐ Defendant is an employer seeking setoff from employee-plaintiff in employee's suit for unpaid wages.

Authority:

CCP § 431.70; Kruger v. Wells Fargo Bank (1974) 11 C3d 352, 367, 113 CR 449, 521 P2d 441 (exempt monies); Barnhill v. Robert Saunders & Co. (1981) 125 CA3d 1, 4-6, 177 CR 803 (employer's setoff claim)

Discussion:

See 14.19[3]

☐ Plead admissions if appropriate.

☐ Consider expressly admitting specific allegation(s) to preclude admission of potentially inflammatory or prejudicial evidence at trial.

Authority:

See CCP §§ 431.20(a), 431.30(f)

Discussion:

See 14.17[1]

Form:

See 14.36

☐ Consider using Judicial Council Answer forms.

☐ Available but not required for personal injury, property damage, wrongful death, contract, unlawful detainer actions.

☐ Required in cases not exceeding $1,000.

Authority:

See CCP § 425.12; Cal Rules Ct, Rules 1.35, 1.45

Discussion:

See 14.23

☐ Draft answer and confirm all answer requirements are met.

☐ Answer must contain the following [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.100 et seq.]:

☐ Identification of attorney or party;

☐ Title of Court;

☐ Title of Case;

☐ Case number;

☐ Nature of paper;

☐ In any case having multiple parties, identification of complaining party and complaint being answered;

☐ Designation, if appropriate and filed in a unified court, as "Limited Civil Case";

☐ Introductory language (optional);

☐ Body, which should contain one or both of the following:

☐ At least one general or specific denial, or affirmative allegation controverting allegation(s) of complaint;

☐ Affirmative defenses to cause(s) of action;

☐ Signature by attorney or party (if unrepresented); and

- ☐ Verification in superior court action (if complaint is verified or verification is otherwise required).

Authority:

CCP §§ 92(b), 128.7, 422.30(b), 431.30(b), 446

Discussion:

See 14.22

 Cross References:

Format of citations to legal sources, see Ch. 7, Complaints, 7.06[9]. Exclusion or redaction of social security and financial account numbers from documents filed in the court's public file, see Ch. 7, Complaints, 7.06[10].

- ☐ Send answer to client for review and, if applicable, signature of verification.

Authority:

CCP §§ 128.7, 446

Discussion:

See 14.20, 14.21

- ☐ Sign answer and attach client verification if applicable.

- ☐ Attorney must sign answer unless party appears in pro per.
- ☐ Attorney may verify answer if client out of county or has sufficient information to verify answer.
- ☐ Verification of corporate defendant made by corporate officer.

Authority:

CCP §§ 128.7(a), 446

Discussion:

See 14.20, 14.21

Form:

See 14.33

- ☐ Avoid possibility of sanctions by ensuring that:

- ☐ Answer is not being presented for an improper purpose;
- ☐ Claims, defenses, and other legal contentions set forth in answer are warranted by existing law or by nonfrivolous argument for change of law;

- ☐ Evidentiary support exists for allegations and other factual contentions; and
- ☐ Denials of factual contentions are warranted on the evidence or on lack of information and belief.

Authority:

CCP § 128.7(b)

Discussion:

See 14.20[2], [3]

- ☐ Make complex case designation if appropriate (complete civil cover sheet).

III. PREPARING THE ANSWER: FORM AND CONTENT

1-14 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 14.13

14.13 Answer Must Contain Denials or New Matter to Raise Triable Issues.

For there to be triable issues in a case, the answer must controvert, either by general or specific denials, the material allegations of the complaint, or raise new matter constituting a defense to the claims asserted [see CCP § 431.30(b); see also Fuentes v. Tucker (1947) 31 C2d 1, 7, 187 P2d 752 ].

Although fact issues are raised by the material allegations of the complaint, only those issues joined through a defendant's denials and affirmative defenses, set forth in the answer and deemed denied by the plaintiff, must be tried [see CCP § 431.20(b); Carlton v. Superior Court (1968) 261 CA2d 282, 289, 67 CR 568 ].

III. PREPARING THE ANSWER: FORM AND CONTENT

1-14 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 14.14

14.14 Making General Denials.

14.14[1] General Denials May Be Used to Answer Unverified Complaints and, in Most Limited Civil Cases, Verified Complaints. Defendants may use general denials to answer unverified complaints and, in most limited civil cases, even verified complaints [CCP § 431.30(d)].

Exception:

Verified complaints in limited civil cases that involve third party collection claims must be answered "positively" or "according to information and belief" [CCP § 431.30(d)].

➡ Cross References:

Discussion of limited versus unlimited civil actions, see Ch. 10, Dismissal for Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction; see also Ch. 6, Determining Forum.

14.14[2] General Denials Controvert All Allegations, Put Material Allegations in Issue. A general denial controverts, usually in a single sentence, each and every allegation of the complaint [see CCP § 431.30(b)(1); Advantec Group, Inc. v. Edwin's Plumbing Co., Inc. (2007) 153 CA4th 621, 628, 63 CR3d 195 (statutorily required allegation of plaintiff's capacity is denied by general denial)].

However, a general denial puts in issue only the material allegations of the complaint [CCP § 431.30(d); see FPI Dev. Inc. v. Nakashima (1991) 231 CA3d 367, 383, 282 CR 508 (action for breach of promissory note)].

Warning:

In responding to unverified complaints or verified complaints in limited civil actions (other than third party collection claims), it is almost always preferable to make a general denial, rather than specific denials, of all of the allegations of the complaint. This avoids many of the pitfalls associated with specific denials, such as the hazardous task of restating the allegations of the complaint and ensuring that each one is denied specifically or generally, and the danger of phrasing a specific denial in such a way that it is deemed to contain an admission.

Prerequisite:

When the demand, exclusive of interest, or the value of the property in controversy does not exceed $1,000, a defendant filing a general denial must use Judicial Council Form PLD-050. The form sets forth a general written denial and allows for a brief statement of any new matter constituting a defense [CCP § 431.40(a)].

Judicial Council Form PLD-050, see 14.34.

Chapter 14 Answers

III. PREPARING THE ANSWER: FORM AND CONTENT

1-14 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 14.15

14.15 Making Specific Denials.

14.15[1] Verified Complaints in Unlimited Civil Cases Require Specific Denials. In any unlimited civil case, a defendant must answer the allegations of a verified complaint with specific denials [CCP § 431.30(d)].

Cross Reference:

Form for specific denial, see 14.35.

14.15[2] Verified Complaints in Limited Civil Cases Usually Do Not Require Specific Denials. In limited civil cases, the answer usually may be made by general denial, even if the complaint is verified [CCP § 431.30(d)].

Exception:

If the cause of action asserted in a verified complaint is a third party collection claim, the allegations must be answered "positively" or "according to information and belief" [CCP § 431.30(d)].

14.15[3] Specific Denials Controvert Specific Allegations of Complaint. Specific denials identify specific allegations of the complaint that the defendant disputes [see CCP § 431.30(b)(1), (f), (g)], and positively, or according to information and belief, deny each allegation in turn [CCP § 431.30(d)]. If a defendant has insufficient information or belief to answer certain allegations, he or she may state his or her denials on that ground [CCP § 431.30(e)].

A defendant may deny the allegations in the following ways [CCP § 431.30(f)]:

- By denying paragraphs or specific parts of the complaint;
- By expressly admitting certain, enumerated allegations, and generally denying all allegations not so admitted;
- By denying certain, enumerated allegations on information and belief, and generally denying all allegations not so denied or expressly admitted; or
- By denying certain, enumerated allegations based on a lack of sufficient information or belief to answer the allegations, and generally denying all allegations not so denied or expressly admitted.

Warning:

In making specific denials, it is extremely important to verify that all specific denials, including those being made contemporaneously with express admissions and/or general denials, accurately reference the paragraphs or parts of the complaint they are intended to answer. This can be done by thoroughly proofreading the answer, and will ensure that the defendant does not inadvertently admit or improperly deny allegations of the complaint.

14.15[4] Specific Denial That Fails to Controvert the Entire Allegation May Imply Admission. California courts have read specific denials to contain implied admissions when it was grammatically possible to do so, even when the defendants did not intend to make admissions [see, e.g., Kennedy v. Rosecrans Gardens, Inc. (1952) 114 CA2d 87, 89, 249 P2d 593 ]. The careless wording of a specific denial can be perilous, as such a denial might be held to contain a "negative pregnant," e.g., a denial implying its affirmative opposite by seeming to deny only a portion, rather than the entirety, of the allegation [see Kennedy v. Rosecrans Gardens, Inc. (1952) 114 CA2d 87, 89, 249 P2d 593 ].

Warning:

When drafting specific denials, it is advisable to address the substance, rather than the form of the allegations. For example, the statement, "Defendant denies that said allegation is true in manner and form as stated" is not a clear specific denial, and could be deemed an admission that the substance of the allegation is true.

Examples:

Examples of situations in which specific denials were deemed to contain implied admissions include:

- In response to plaintiff's allegation that the whole of certain property was necessary for a particular purpose, defendant answered that the whole of the property was not so needed. That was held to be an admission that a portion of the property was needed [ Cal. Corrugated Culvert Co. v. Stewart (1932) 215 C 120, 123, 8 P2d 1013 ].
- In response to plaintiff's allegation that defendant "made, executed, and delivered" a contract, defendant's response that he did not "make, execute, and deliver" the contract was held to be an admission that he did two of the three [ Janeway & Carpenter v. Long Beach Paper & Paint Co. (1922) 190 C 150, 153, 211 P 6 ]. This example of a conjunctive denial could have been fixed by denying that the defendant "made, executed, or delivered" the contract.
- Real party in interest ex-husband's answer denying that child was born as the "issue of" marriage, but not that he was the child's father, was a negative pregnant, impliedly admitting allegation of paternity [ Craig v. Superior Court of Sacramento County (1975) 45 CA3d 675, 119 CR 692, 696 (recognizing Cal. Corrugated Culvert Co. v. Stewart (1932) 215 C 120, 123, 8 P2d 1013 )].
- In response to plaintiff's allegation that defendant owed him $1,000, defendant's specific denial stating that he did not owe plaintiff $1,000 was held to be an admission that he owed plaintiff some sum other than $1,000 [ Kennedy v. Rosecrans Gardens, Inc. (1952) 114 CA2d 87, 89, 249 P2d 593 ]. The admission could have been avoided by denying that defendant owed $1,000 "or any other sum."
- Defendant's denial that debt in question was "wholly due and payable" was held to be an admission that all but a dollar of the debt in question was due and payable [ Armer v. Dorton (1942) 50 CA2d 413,

415, 123 P2d 94 ; see also Conn. Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Most (1940) 39 CA2d 634, 640, 103 P2d 1013 ].

III. PREPARING THE ANSWER: FORM AND CONTENT

1-14 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 14.16

14.16 Affirmative Allegations Can Constitute Denials.

In addition to general or specific denials, affirmative allegations made in the answer can controvert allegations of the complaint [see, e.g., Blume v. MacGregor (1944) 64 CA2d 244, 253, 148 P2d 656]. Any allegation in the answer that, if found to be true, necessarily shows that an allegation of the complaint as to the same matter is untrue, is sufficient as a denial [see, e.g., Simoneau v. Pac. Elec. Ry. Co. (1911) 159 C 494, 502, 115 P 320]. Examples include:

- Plaintiff's allegation that rail car was in city intersection disputed by answer stating rail car was in private right of way [ Simoneau v. Pac. Elec. Ry. Co. (1911) 159 C 494, 502, 115 P 320 ].
- Defendant's allegation that a ditch had not been widened or deepened contravened plaintiff's allegation of deepening and widening of ditch [ Burris v. People's Ditch Co. (1894) 104 C 248, 253, 37 P 922 ].
- Defendant's allegation that property parcels were located in block 22 rather than in Channel Street, as alleged by plaintiff, put location of property in issue [ People ex rel. Bd. of State Harbor Comm'rs v. S. Pac. Co. (1918) 177 C 555, 557, 171 P 294 ].
- Defendant's affirmative allegation of ownership of particular property equivalent to denial of plaintiff's allegation that plaintiff owned the property [ Blume v. MacGregor (1944) 64 CA2d 244, 253, 148 P2d 656 ; Elliott v. Bertsch (1943) 59 CA2d 543, 547, 139 P2d 332 ].

III. PREPARING THE ANSWER: FORM AND CONTENT

1-14 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 14.17

14.17 Making Admissions.

14.17[1] Express Admissions Are Necessary Only If Making a Qualified General Denial. Unless defense counsel decides to couple an express admission of certain allegations with a general denial of all allegations not so admitted, there is usually no need to make an express admission [see CCP §§ 431.20(a), 431.30(f)]. However, one might do so in order to preclude the plaintiff from offering proof on the matter [see Evid Code §§ 210, 350].

Cross References:

Form for express admission of certain allegations with general denial of all others, see 14.36.

Form for denial with affirmative allegation, see 14.37.

Strategic Point:

When a defendant admits an allegation, plaintiff no longer has the obligation, or ability, to present evidence in support of the allegation at trial [see Fuentes v. Tucker (1947) 31 C2d 1, 7, 187 P2d 752 ; see also Evid Code §§ 210, 350]. Therefore, a defendant who wishes to preclude the plaintiff from presenting potentially inflammatory or prejudicial evidence on certain allegations should consider admitting the allegations [see Lever v. Garoogian (1974) 41 CA3d 37, 39, 115 CR 856 (evidence cannot be used to establish issue that parties have not made in pleadings)].

Exceptions:

The introduction of evidence even on admitted facts is permissible if the admission is ambiguous in form or limited in scope, or when, during trial, a party seeks to deprive his or her opponent of the legitimate force and effect of material evidence by the bald admission of a probative fact [ Fuentes v. Tucker (1947) 31 C2d 1, 7, 187 P2d 752 ].

14.17[2] Failing to Controvert Allegation Results in Admission. Allegations in a complaint may be admitted expressly or by the simple failure to controvert them [see CCP §§ 431.20(a), 431.30(f); see also Fuentes v. Tucker (1947) 31 C2d 1, 5, 187 P2d 752 ; Amusing Sandwich, Inc. v. City of Palm Springs (1985) 165 CA3d 1116, 1130, 211 CR 911 ]. Thereafter, barring any amendments to the pleadings, such allegations will be taken as true [CCP § 431.20].

Warning:

To avoid inadvertent admissions, after drafting the desired response for each allegation of the complaint, go through every allegation of each paragraph of the complaint again and, in setting forth denials and defenses, ensure that each is separately stated (except in the case of one general denial that encompasses a number of allegations), references accurately the allegation or cause of action it is intended to answer, and answers the entire scope of the allegation.

Chapter 14 Answers

III. PREPARING THE ANSWER: FORM AND CONTENT

1-14 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 14.18

14.18 Pleading Affirmative Defenses in the Answer.

14.18[1] Failure to Plead Affirmative Defenses Results in Waiver. A party who fails to plead affirmative defenses waives them [ Cal. Acad. of Scis. v. County of Fresno (1987) 192 CA3d 1436, 1442, 238 CR 154 ].

Exceptions:

It is well-settled rule that a defense of illegality based on public policy is not waived by the defendant's failure to include it as an affirmative defense in the answer to the complaint [ Yoo v. Robi (2005) 126 CA4th 1089, 1103, 24 CR3d 740 ].

Unlike the related doctrine of res judicata, which precludes the relitigation of claims, collateral estoppel, which precludes the relitigation of issues, is not waived if it is not pleaded [ Rodgers v. Sargent Controls & Aerospace (2006) 136 CA4th 82, 88-89, 38 CR3d 528 ]

14.18[2] "New Matter" Stated in the Answer Constitutes Affirmative Defense. A defendant may raise "new matter" in his or her answer, which may constitute an affirmative defense to the plaintiff's claims [CCP § 431.30(b)(2)]. Whether something is a denial ("controverting matter"), rather than an affirmative defense ("new matter"), depends on whether it denies allegations of the complaint, or asserts the existence of a defense even if the plaintiff's allegations are true [see Lever v. Garoogian (1974) 41 CA3d 37, 39, 115 CR 856 ].

Facts that show the untruth of an essential allegation of the complaint constitute denials, not new matter [ Bevill v. Zoura (1994) 27 CA4th 694, 698, 32 CR2d 635 ].

Examples:

- A general denial of allegation claiming breach of contract put plaintiff's nonperformance under contract in issue, obviating the need to plead the defense as a new matter [ Walsh v. W. Valley Mission Cmty. Coll. Dist. (1998) 66 CA4th 1532, 1546, 78 CR2d 725 ].

- The defense of good faith reliance on advice of counsel is directed to an essential element of the plaintiff's insurance bad faith claim; it does not constitute new matter that must be specifically alleged [ State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1991) 228 CA3d 721, 725, 279 CR 116 ].

Facts that indicate plaintiff had no cause of action at the time the action was brought, regardless of the truth of the complaint's allegations, constitute new matter [see, e.g., W. Pipe & Steel Co. v. Tuolumne Gold Dredging Corp. (1944) 63 CA2d 21, 27-28, 146 P2d 61 (defense of another pending action)]. "New matter" is also something relied on by the defendant that is not put in issue by the plaintiff [see Goddard v. Fulton (1863) 21 C 430, 436 ; Four Star Elec., Inc. v. F & H Constr. (1992) 7 CA4th 1375, 1382, 10 CR2d 1 ]; the answer may allege any new matter constituting a defense not otherwise disclosed by the pleadings [CCP § 431.30(b)(2); Jetty v. Craco (1954) 123 CA2d 876, 880, 267 P2d 1055 ].

14.18[3] Pleading Ultimate Facts Raises Affirmative Defense. Each affirmative defense should plead the ultimate facts that establish the defense such that, if the defense were admitted as pleaded, judgment would have to be for the defendant [see Greiss v. State Inv. and Ins. Co. (1893) 98 C 241, 244, 33 P 195 ; see also California Packing Corp. v. Larsen (1921) 187 C 610, 612, 203 P 102 ; FPI Development, Inc. v. Nakashima (1991) 231 CA3d 367, 384, 282 CR 508 ].

14.18[4] Defenses and Admissions May Be Inconsistent With Each Other But Must Be Internally Consistent. A defendant may set up as many defenses as he or she may have [CCP § 431.30(b)(2)]. The defendant may plead defenses that are inconsistent with each other, but each defense must be consistent in itself [ Allstate Ins. Co. v. Kim W. (1984) 160 CA3d 326, 334, 206 CR 609 ; Poe v. Francis (1933) 132 CA 330, 335, 22 P2d 801 ]. Each defense or response set forth in an answer will be considered separately, without regard to any other defense or response [ Miller & Lux, Inc. v. San Joaquin Light & Power Corp. (1932) 120 CA 589, 601, 8 P2d 560 ].

If one portion of an answer denies all allegations of the complaint, the plaintiff will be required to prove the material allegations of the complaint even if some were admitted in another portion of the answer [ S. Shore Land Co. v. Petersen (1964) 226 CA2d 725, 734, 38 CR 392 ]. A defendant may deny certain material allegations of the complaint and, in an affirmative defense, allege that the same allegations are true, yet the allegations in the affirmative defense will not constitute an admission of the truth of those allegations in the complaint [ Edger v. Foster (1941) 48 CA2d 580, 583, 120 P2d 134 ].

Warning:

When a defendant alleges facts in a pleading in one action, and those facts are inconsistent with a position taken by that party in a subsequent action, statements made in that party's pleading in the first action may be used against the defendant in the subsequent action as an admission against interest [see Jones v. Tierney-Sinclair (1945) 71 CA2d 366, 374, 162 P2d 669 (allegations in verified answer contrary to party's claim in subsequent action); Fibreboard Paper Prods. Corp. v. E. Bay Union of Machinists (1964) 227 CA2d 675, 711-712, 39 CR 64 (statements in unverified appeal board document admitted in subsequent action, as admissions against interest)].

14.18[5] Defenses Must Be Stated and Numbered Separately, and Refer to Cause of Action Answered. Defenses must be separately stated, separately numbered, and refer to the causes of action they are intended to answer, in a manner by which they may be intelligibly distinguished [ Cal Rules of Ct, Rule 2.112 ].

III. PREPARING THE ANSWER: FORM AND CONTENT

1-14 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 14.19

14.19 Raising Specific Affirmative Defenses.

14.19[1] Commonly Asserted Affirmative Defenses. Commonly asserted affirmative defenses include:

- Claim is barred for failure to raise as compulsory cross-complaint in prior related action [CCP §§ 426.10(c), 426.30].
- Related action is pending.
- Action is premature (failure to state a cause of action).
- Assumption of risk.
- Comparative negligence.
- Misjoinder or nonjoinder of a party or parties.
- Plaintiff lacks legal capacity to sue.
- Expiration of statute of limitations period.
- Accord and satisfaction.
- Duress or undue influence.
- Fraud or mistake.
- Res judicata.

Warning:

When raising the affirmative defense that the action is barred by the statute of limitations, the defendant must either state the specific section of the Code of Civil Procedure that establishes the limitations period or state the facts showing the defense [CCP § 458]. It is better practice to do both.

Cross Reference:

Table of Affirmative Defense Forms, California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 26, Answers, Appendix VI, § 26.150 et seq.

14.19[2] Pleading Setoff As an Affirmative Defense. If cross demands for money have existed between persons at any point in time when neither demand was barred by the statute of limitations, and an action is thereafter commenced by one of those persons, the defendant may assert the defense of payment, in that the two demands for payment are compensated to the extent that they equal each other [CCP § 431.70]. This defense is known as "setoff," and may be raised in the answer [CCP § 431.70]. In this context, a money judgment is considered a "demand for money" [CCP § 431.70].

A setoff claim may be raised by cross-complaint as well as by affirmative defense [see American Nat'l Bank v. Stanfill (1988) 205 CA3d 1089, 1097, 252 CR 861 ], and a defendant should plead his or her cross demand in a cross-complaint if [see CCP § 428.80]:

- The cross demand exceeds or might exceed the amount awarded the plaintiff; and
- The claim is not barred by the statute of limitations.

14.19[3] When Setoff Is Not Allowed. Setoff is not allowed when:

- The cross demand is barred for failure to raise it as a compulsory cross-complaint under CCP § 426.30 [CCP § 431.70];
- The money sought in the cross demand is exempt from execution [ Kruger v. Wells Fargo Bank (1974) 11 C3d 352, 367, 113 CR 449, 521 P2d 441 ];
- The cross recovery is sought from an employee when the employee brought suit for unpaid wages [ Barnhill v. Robert Saunders & Co. (1981) 125 CA3d 1, 4-6, 177 CR 803 ].

Drawback:

A defendant may only assert setoff to defeat all or part of the plaintiff's claim. Setoff under CCP § 431.70 cannot be used to obtain an award of affirmative relief against the plaintiff [ Constr. Protective Servs., Inc. v. Tig Specialty Ins. Co. (2002) 29 C4th 189, 197-198, 126 CR2d 908, 57 P3d 372 ].

III. PREPARING THE ANSWER: FORM AND CONTENT

1-14 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 14.20

14.20 Answers Must Be Signed.

14.20[1] Attorney or Unrepresented Party Must Sign Answer. Every pleading must be signed by at least one attorney of record or, if the party is not represented by an attorney, by the party [CCP § 128.7(a)]. Every pleading must also state the signer's address and telephone number [CCP § 128.7(a)].

An unsigned pleading must be stricken unless the omission of the signature is corrected promptly after being called to the attorney's or party's attention [CCP § 128.7(a)].

14.20[2] Signature Certifies That Specific Conditions Have Been Met. An attorney's or party's signature on an answer constitutes a certification that:

- The answer is not being presented primarily for an improper purpose, such as to harass or to cause unnecessary delay or needless increase in litigation costs [CCP § 128.7(b)(1)];
- The claims, defenses, and other legal contentions set forth in the answer are warranted by existing law or by a nonfrivolous argument for the extension, modification, or reversal of existing law, or the establishment of new law [CCP § 128.7(b)(2)];
- There is evidentiary support for the allegations and other factual contentions or, if specifically so identified, the allegations and other factual contentions are likely to have evidentiary support after a reasonable opportunity for further investigation or discovery [CCP § 128.7(b)(3)];
- The denials of factual contentions are warranted on the evidence or, if specifically so identified, are reasonably based on a lack of information or belief [CCP § 128.7(b)(4)].

14.20[3] Violations of Conditions May Result in Sanctions. The court may, on its own motion or the motion of a party, impose sanctions under CCP § 128.7 if it appears the certification of any of the conditions is false, after the party is given an opportunity to withdraw or correct the challenged pleading [CCP § 128.7(c)].

Chapter 14 Answers

III. PREPARING THE ANSWER: FORM AND CONTENT

1-14 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 14.21

14.21 Verifying Answers.

14.21[1] Verification Is Affidavit or Declaration Verifying Truth of Matters Stated in Answer. Verification consists of an affidavit verifying the truth of the matters stated in the document to which the affidavit refers [see Star Motor Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 88 CA3d 201, 204, 151 CR 721 ].

To verify an answer, the answering party must state in an affidavit that the content of the answer is true of his or her own knowledge, except where it is stated that matters are stated on information or belief, and as to those matters, the affiant believes them to be true [CCP § 446(a)].

A declaration, certified pursuant to [CCP § 2015.5], is typically used to verify a pleading.

► Cross Reference:

Form of answer with verification, see 14.33.

14.21[2] Complaints Usually Do Not Require Verified Answers. Unless specifically required by statute, a complaint need not be verified and, if a complaint is not verified, the answer need not be verified [CCP § 446(a)].

Exception:

If the plaintiff is the state, a county, city, school district, district, public agency, or public corporation, or an officer of such an entity acting in his or her official capacity, the answer must be verified unless an admission of the truth of the complaint might subject the party to criminal prosecution, or if an officer of one of the listed entities is a defendant in his or her official capacity [CCP § 446(a)].

14.21[3] Verified Answer Is Required If Complaint Is Verified. If the complaint is verified and is filed in a superior court, the answer must be verified [see CCP § 446(a)].

Exception:

If the complaint is subject to CCP § 90 et seq., which includes most limited civil cases, a verified answer is not required even if the complaint is verified [CCP § 92(b)], subject to certain narrow exceptions [see CCP § 91(b), (c)].

14.21[4] Person With Knowledge Verifies Answer. The affidavit or declaration verifying an answer must be made by the defendant or cross-defendant unless [CCP § 446(a)]:

- The defendant is absent from the county where defendant's attorney has his or her office;
- The defendant is otherwise unable to verify the answer; or
- The facts are within the knowledge of the defendant's attorney or other person making the verification.

When the pleading is verified by the attorney, or any person other than one of the parties, the affidavit must set forth the reasons why it is not made by one of the parties [CCP § 446(a)].

When the verification is made by the attorney because the party is absent from the county where the attorney has his or her office, or for some other reason is unable to verify the answer, the affidavit must state that the attorney has read the pleading and that he or she is informed and believes the matters therein to be true and on that ground alleges that the matters stated therein are true [CCP § 446(a)].

14.21[5] Corporate Officer Verifies Corporation's Pleadings. An officer of a corporation may verify the corporation's pleadings [CCP § 446(a)]. The officer's affidavit or declaration must state that he or she has read the pleading, that he or she is informed and believes the matters stated in the pleading to be true, and on that ground alleges that the matters stated therein are true [CCP § 446(a)].

14.22 Elements Required in Answer.

In answering a complaint, a defendant (or his or her attorney) should confirm that the answer includes the following elements [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.100 et seq.]:

- Identification of attorney or party;
- Title of court;
- Title of case;
- Case number;
- Nature of paper;
- In any case having multiple parties, identification of complaining party and complaint being answered;
- Designation, if appropriate and filed in a unified court, as "Limited Civil Case" [CCP § 422.30(b)];
- Introductory language (optional);
- Body, which should contain one or both of the following [CCP § 431.30(b)]:
  - ☐ At least one general or specific denial, or affirmative allegation controverting allegation(s) of complaint;
  - ☐ Affirmative defenses to cause(s) of action;
- Subscription by attorney or party (if unrepresented) [CCP § 128.7];

■ Verification in superior court action (if complaint is verified or verification is otherwise required) [CCP §§ 92(b), 446, 2015.5].

IV. RESPONDING TO ANSWER

1-14 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 14.26

14.26 CHECKLIST: Responding to Answer.

☐ Review answer, including new matter and controverting matter alleged by defendant.

☐ No response is required or permitted to controvert new matter presented by defendant.

Authority:
CCP § 431.20(b)

Discussion:
See 14.28

☐ Track responses to material allegations of the complaint and make note of any allegations not controverted either by denial or affirmative allegation(s).

Authority:
CCP § 431.20(b)

Discussion:
See 14.14

☐ Demur to answer if appropriate:

☐ Grounds:

☐ Answer does not state facts sufficient to constitute a defense;

☐ Answer is uncertain (i.e., ambiguous or unintelligible); or

☐ Answer pleads a contract and it cannot be ascertained from the answer whether the contract is written or oral.

Authority:

CCP § 430.20

Discussion:

See 14.29

☐ Grounds must appear on face of answer or from matter subject to judicial notice.

Authority:

CCP § 430.30(a)

Discussion:

See 14.29

☐ Determine timing for demurrer.

☐ Demur within 10 days after answer is served.

Authority:

CCP § 430.40(b)

Discussion:

See 14.29

☐ Demur within 10 days after amended answer is served.

Authority:

CCP § 471.5(b)

Discussion:

See 14.29

☐ Failure to demur waives objection unless objection is that answer fails to state facts sufficient to state cause of action.

Authority:

CCP § 430.80(b)

Discussion:

See 14.29

☐ Bring motion for judgment on the pleadings, if appropriate:

☐ Grounds:

☐ Answer does not state facts sufficient to constitute a defense to the complaint.

Authority:

CCP § 438(c)(1)(A)

Discussion:

See 14.30

☐ Time to demur to answer has expired with no demurrer made, or a demurrer to the answer was previously overruled but there has been a material change in the law since the ruling on the demurrer.

Authority:

CCP § 438(f)(1), (g)

Discussion:

See 14.29

☐ File motion to strike answer, if appropriate:

☐ Grounds:

☐ Answer contains irrelevant, false or improper matter; or

☐ Answer is not drawn or filed in conformity with laws, court rules, or court orders.

☐ Grounds for motion must appear on face of answer or from matter of which court must or may take judicial notice.

Exception:

Motion to strike not allowed in limited civil cases except when damages or relief sought are not supported by the allegations of the complaint.

Authority:

CCP §§ 91, 92(d), 436, 437(a)

Discussion:

See 14.31

☐ File motion for summary judgment if there is no defense to action.

☐ 60 days must have elapsed since general appearance of defendant.

- ☐ Serve notice of motion and all supporting papers at least 75 days before hearing date.
- ☐ Motion must be heard no later than 30 days before date of trial, except by order of court for good cause shown.
- ☐ File other responsive pleading(s) as necessary, as filing motion does not extend time to plead.

Authority:

CCP § 437c(a)

Discussion:

See 14.32

- ☐ Seek extension of time to respond to answer if necessary.

Authority:

IV. RESPONDING TO ANSWER

1-14 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 14.27

14.27 Options and Strategies for Responding to Answer.

Scrutinize the contents of the answer and hold the defendant to the required pleading standards. Avoid waiver of issues by demurring or moving to strike inartful or sloppy pleading at the outset. This is the opportunity to get the defendant pinned down to his or her position and force the defendant's hand at the earliest possible time. Other responses such as moving for judgment on the pleading or for summary judgment occur later along the litigation time line, but review these statutes to avoid waiver of issues that could have been brought immediately after the filing of the answer.

14.28 No Response Is Necessary, or Permitted, to Controvert New Matter Stated in Answer.

The statement of any new matter in the answer, in avoidance or constituting a defense in a civil action, is deemed controverted by the opposing party [CCP § 431.20(b); Arciniega v. Bank of San Bernardino (1997) 52 CA4th 213, 226, 60 CR2d 495 ]. A response to the answer is not necessary or permitted [CCP §§ 422.10, 431.20(b), 590(2)].

IV. RESPONDING TO ANSWER

1-14 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 14.29

14.29 Party May Object to Answer by Demurrer.

A party against whom an answer has been filed may object to it by demurrer on any one or more of the following grounds [CCP § 430.20]:

- The answer does not state facts sufficient to constitute a defense;
- The answer is uncertain; "uncertain" includes ambiguous and unintelligible; or,
- When the answer pleads a contract, it cannot be ascertained from the answer whether the contract is written or oral.

A demurrer is proper, however, only when the ground for objection appears on the face of the answer or from any matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice [CCP § 430.30(a); see CCP § 430.20].

The demurrer may be to the whole answer or to any one or more of the several defenses set up in the answer [CCP § 430.50(b)]. The time for filing a demurrer to an amended answer is within 10 days of service [CCP §§ 471.5(b), 472]. If a party against whom an answer has been filed fails to demur to it, that party is deemed to have waived the objection unless the objection is that the answer does not state facts sufficient to constitute a defense [CCP § 430.80(b)].

Timing:

Demurrer must be filed within 10 days after service of the answer [CCP § 430.40(b)].

Chapter 14 Answers
IV. RESPONDING TO ANSWER

1-14 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 14.30

14.30 Party May Move for Judgment on the Pleadings.

A party responding to an answer may move for judgment on the pleadings if the answer does not state facts sufficient to constitute a defense to the complaint [CCP § 438(c)]. The ground must appear on the face of the pleading or be subject to judicial notice [CCP § 438(d)]. A CCP § 438 motion may be made as to the entire answer, or as to one or more of the affirmative defenses set forth in the answer [CCP § 438(c)(2)(B)].

The objection that the answer fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a defense is not waived by failure to raise it by demurrer [see CCP § 430.80(b)], and plaintiff may move for a judgment on the pleadings after the defendant has answered if such a defect exists [see CCP § 438(g)(2); MacIsaac v. Pozzo (1945) 26 C2d 809, 812-813, 161 P2d 449 ].

Timing:

A party may bring a motion for judgment on the pleadings if the time to demur to the answer has expired with no demurrer having been made, or if a demurrer to the answer was previously overruled but there has been a material change in the law since the ruling on the demurrer [CCP § 438(f)(1), (g)]. Unless otherwise permitted by the court, a motion for judgment on the pleadings may not be brought if a pretrial conference has been ordered pursuant to CCP § 575, or within 30 days of the date the action is initially set for trial, whichever is later [CCP § 438(e)]. The court has discretion to accept a motion filed late without good cause [CCP § 438(e); Burnett v. Chimney Sweep LLC (2004) 123 CA4th 1057, 1063, 20 CR3d 562 ].

Chapter 14 Answers
IV. RESPONDING TO ANSWER

1-14 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 14.31

14.31 Party May Move to Strike Answer.

A party responding to an answer may move to strike all or part of the answer [CCP § 435(b)(1)]. The grounds for a motion to strike must appear from the face of the challenged pleading, or from matter subject to judicial notice [CCP §§ 437(a), (b)]. The notice of motion must specify a hearing date, set in accordance with CCP § 1005 [CCP § 435(b)(2)].

Timing:

A party may bring a motion to strike "within the time allowed to respond to a pleading" [CCP § 435(b)(1)]. Since the time for filing a demurrer to an answer is 10 days after service, the motion to strike limit is the same [CCP §§ 435(d), 430.40(b)].

The time limitation set forth in CCP § 435(b)(1) does not apply if the motion is to strike an untimely or otherwise improper amended pleading, filed after a motion for judgment on the pleadings has been granted under CCP § 438(i)(1)(A) [CCP § 435(b)(1), (e)].

Exception:

Motions to strike an answer are not allowed in limited civil cases except when damages or relief sought are not supported by the allegations of the complaint [CCP §§ 91, 92(d)].

See Ch. 12, Motions to Strike.

IV. RESPONDING TO ANSWER

1-14 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 14.32

14.32 Party May Move for Summary Judgment.

Plaintiff may move for summary judgment on the grounds no material fact is in dispute and there is no defense to the action [CCP § 437c(a)].

Timing:

The plaintiff may move for summary judgment once 60 days have elapsed after the defendant's general appearance, or at any earlier time following such appearances as the court may direct on good cause shown [CCP § 437c(a)]. The notice of motion and supporting papers must be served on all parties at least 75 days before the appointed hearing date, and additional notice may be required depending on the method of service [CCP § 437c(a)]. The motion must be heard no later than 30 days before the date of trial unless the court orders otherwise for good cause [CCP § 437c(a)]. The filing of the motion will not extend the time within which a party must otherwise file a responsive pleading [CCP § 437c(a)].

Chapter 15 Reclassification of Cases

1-15 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 15.syn

§ 15.syn Synopsis to Chapter 15: Reclassification of Cases

15.01 Scope.

15.02 Objective and Strategy.

15.03 CHECKLIST: Determining Appropriate Classification.

15.04 Case May Be Classified As Limited Civil Case or Unlimited Civil Case.

15.05 Limited Civil Cases Involve $25,000 or Less and Not All Types of Relief Are Available.

15.05[1] Limited Civil Cases Are Determined by Amount in Controversy, Relief Sought, and Type of Action.

15.05[2] Amount in Controversy Is Limited to $25,000, Exclusive of Attorneys' Fees, Interest, and Costs.

15.05[2][a] Prayer of Complaint Is Relevant in Assessing Amount in Controversy.

15.05[2][b] Court May Hold Pretrial Hearing to Determine Amount in Controversy.

15.05[3] Actions Which May Qualify As Limited Civil Cases.

15.05[3][a] Cases at Law With Demand or Property Value in Controversy of $25,000 or Less Are Generally Limited Civil Cases.

15.05[3][b] Dissolution of Partnership May Qualify If Assets Do Not Exceed $25,000.

15.05[3][c] Interpleader Actions Are Limited Civil Cases If Money or Property Is $25,000 or Less.

15.05[3][d] Actions to Cancel, Rescind, or Revise Contract Are Limited Civil Cases If $25,000 or Less.

15.05[3][e] Eviction Actions Qualify If Damages Do Not Exceed $25,000.

15.05[3][f] Actions for Enforcement of Personal Property Liens Which Are $25,000 or Less Are Limited Civil Actions.

15.05[3][g] Actions for Enforcement of Mechanics' Liens and Similar Liens Are Limited Civil Cases As Long As Aggregate Claims Are $25,000 or Less.

15.05[3][h] Declaratory Relief May Be Available Under Limited Circumstances.

15.05[3][i] Court in Limited Civil Cases May Grant TROs, Preliminary Injunctive Relief and Accountings, and Appoint Receivers.

15.05[3][j] Court May Determine Title to Personal Property Seized in Limited Civil Cases.

15.05[3][k] Creditors' Suits Are Limited Civil Cases If Property or Interest Is Less Than $25,000.

15.05[3][l] Arbitration-Related Petitions Are Limited Civil Cases Under Defined Conditions.

15.05[3][m] Long-Term Health Care Cases Qualify If Amount Does Not Exceed $25,000.

15.05[3][n] Certain Cases in Equity Qualify As Limited Civil Cases.

15.05[4] Relief Sought Must Be Described by Statutes Which Classify Action As Limited Civil Case.

15.06 Unlimited Civil Cases Are Those That Do Not Match Criteria for Limited Civil Cases.

15.06[1] Unlimited Civil Case Is Case Other Than Limited Civil Case.

15.06[2] Cases Which Request Relief in Excess of $25,000 Are Unlimited Civil Cases.

15.06[3] Permanent Injunctive Relief May Only Be Granted With Unlimited Civil Case.

15.06[4] Only Unlimited Civil Case May Determine Title to Real Property.

15.06[5] [Reserved].

15.06[6] Declaratory Relief May Be Granted Through Unlimited Civil Case.

15.07 CHECKLIST: Obtaining Reclassification.

15.07[1] Plaintiff's Checklist for Obtaining Reclassification.

15.07[2] Defendant's Checklist for Obtaining Reclassification.

15.08 Options and Strategies for Seeking Appropriate Classification.

15.08[1] Plaintiff's Options and Strategies.

15.08[2] Defendant's Options and Strategies.

15.09 Plaintiff Classifies Case in Initial Pleading.

15.10 Plaintiff May Reclassify Case.

15.10[1] Case May Be Reclassified by Amending Initial Pleading.

15.10[2] Plaintiff May Bring Motion to Reclassify.

15.10[3] Right to Amend Pleadings Is Not Affected.

15.11 Parties May Stipulate to Reclassification.

15.11[1] Stipulation Must Occur Within Time for Responding to Initial Pleading.

15.11[2] Title of Stipulation Must Indicate Reclassification.

15.11[3] Fee Is Required If Case Is Reclassified As Unlimited Civil Case.

15.12 Filing Cross-Complaint May Reclassify Case.

15.12[1] Cross-Complaint May Reclassify Limited Civil Case to Unlimited Civil Case.

15.12[2] Cross-Complainant Must Pay Reclassification Fee.

15.12[3] Right to Amend Pleadings Is Not Affected.

15.13 Defendant May Move for Reclassification.

15.13[1] Motion May Be Filed Within Time to Respond to Initial Pleading.

15.13[1][a] Motion Is Mandatory If It Is Timely.

15.13[1][b] Motion Does Not Extend Time to Respond.

15.13[1][c] Motion Constitutes Appearance.

15.13[2] If Motion Filed After Expiration of Time to Respond to Initial Pleading, Ruling Is Not Mandatory.

15.14 Court May Reclassify Case on Own Motion.

15.14[1] Court May Act at Any Time.

15.14[2] Court Must Give Parties Notice and Opportunity to Be Heard.

15.15 Case May Continue as Limited Civil Case if Amount in Excess of Jurisdiction Is Remitted.

15.16 Costs and Fees Are Due on Reclassification.

15.16[1] Reclassification Fee Is Usually Due When Case Is Reclassified As Unlimited.

15.16[2] No Fee Is Required When Case Is Reclassified As Limited.

15.16[3] Party Responsible for Reclassification Must Pay Fee.

15.17 Failure to Pay Reclassification Fee Results in Dismissal.

15.17[1] No Further Action Permitted Until Reclassification Fee Is Paid.

15.17[2] If Reclassification Fee Is Not Paid in 30 Days, Court May Dismiss Case.

15.18 CHECKLIST: Obtaining Appellate Review of Order Granting or Denying Reclassification.

15.19 Appellate Review of Order Granting or Denying Reclassification.

15.19[1] Petition for Writ of Mandate May Be Filed by Aggrieved Party.

15.19[2] Petition Must Be Filed Within 20 Days After Service of Order of Reclassification.

15.19[3] Court of Appeal May Stay Proceedings Pending Decision.

15.20 Notice of Motion and Motion to Reclassify Case Within Time Allowed for Responding to Initial Pleading.

15.21 Notice of Motion and Motion to Reclassify Case After Time to Amend or Respond to Initial Pleading.

Chapter 15 Reclassification of Cases
I. STRATEGY

1-15 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 15.01

15.01 Scope.

This chapter covers:

- Objectives and strategy for reclassifying actions [see 15.02].
- How to determine the proper classification of a case [see 15.05, 15.06].
- Proper classification of a case in the initial pleading [see 15.09].
- Reclassification of a case by the plaintiff [see 15.10; Forms: see 15.20, 15.21].
- Reclassification of a case by stipulation of the parties [see 15.11].
- Reclassification of a case by filing a cross-complaint [see 15.12].
- Reclassification of a case by the defendant [see 15.13; Forms: see 15.20, 15.21].
- Costs and fees due on reclassification, and the consequences of failure to pay costs and fees [see 15.16, 15.17].
- Appellate review of an order granting or denying reclassification [see 15.19].

Chapter 15 Reclassification of Cases
I. STRATEGY

1-15 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 15.02

15.02 Objective and Strategy.

The jurisdictional classification of a case means its classification as a limited civil case or an unlimited civil case [CCP § 32.5].

Limited civil cases have abridged pleading, discovery, and evidentiary procedures relative to unlimited civil cases [see CCP §§ 90-100]. Therefore, limited civil cases are less expensive to pursue and may be resolved more quickly than unlimited civil cases. However, recovery in a limited civil case is generally limited to $25,000, and the abridged pleading, discovery, and evidentiary procedures may not be well-suited to complex issues. It is important to determine the proper classification of a case at the outset. If the plaintiff does not properly classify the case in the initial pleading, reclassification will be required.

Chapter 15 Reclassification of Cases
II. DETERMINING APPROPRIATE CLASSIFICATION

1-15 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 15.03

15.03 CHECKLIST: Determining Appropriate Classification.

☐ Determine classification as either limited or unlimited; case is unlimited unless it falls within criteria for limited civil case, which are:

☐ Amount in controversy is limited to $25,000.

☐ Relief sought is type that may be recovered in limited civil case, which does not include:

☐ Permanent injunctive relief, except as otherwise authorized by statute.

☐ Determination of title to real property.

☐ Declaratory relief, except as provided in CCP § 86.

☐ Relief sought is described by statutes classifying action as limited civil case.

Authority:

CCP §§ 85, 86, 88, 580(b)

Discussion:

See 15.05, 15.05[3][h], 15.06

Exception:

Declaratory relief may be granted in limited civil cases in certain situations [CCP § 86(a)(7)].

☐ In determining value of case, exclude from $25,000 determination:

- ☐ Attorneys' fees.
- ☐ Interest.
- ☐ Costs.

Authority:

CCP § 85(a)

Discussion:

Chapter 15 Reclassification of Cases
II. DETERMINING APPROPRIATE CLASSIFICATION

1-15 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 15.04

15.04 Case May Be Classified As Limited Civil Case or Unlimited Civil Case.

A civil case may be classified as either a limited civil case or an unlimited civil case [CCP § 32.5].

Generally, limited civil cases have a jurisdictional limit of $25,000 or less and do not allow for all types of relief that may be available in an unlimited civil case, such as permanent injunctive relief [see CCP § 85(a)]. A civil case that is not a limited civil case is referred to as an unlimited civil case [CCP § 88].

Consider:

The definition of what constitutes a limited civil case parallels the jurisdiction of the now-abolished municipal courts. Case law construing the limits of municipal court jurisdiction may be persuasive in determining issues relating to the classification of civil cases as limited or unlimited until more case law on classification has developed [see Stern v. Superior Court (2003) 105 CA4th 223, 227, 129 CR2d 275 (prior substantive and procedural law continues to govern how a trial court determines whether a case should be reclassified)].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

Before filing a case valued at slightly over $25,000, exclusive of attorneys' fees, interests, and costs, consider whether to waive the value in excess of $25,000 so that the case can be filed as a limited civil case. Weigh the additional expense of prosecuting the case as an unlimited civil case against the value in excess of $25,000 and the likelihood of recovering that value. Also consider restrictions on pleadings and discovery that generally apply to limited civil cases in evaluating whether to file as limited or unlimited. Note, though, that a party may move to withdraw a limited civil case from those restrictions entirely [CCP § 91(c)] or may move for additional discovery [CCP § 95]. On the other hand, keep in mind that the court in a limited civil case may not grant relief exceeding $25,000 [CCP §§ 85(a), 580(b)(1)]. However, the fact that a case could be reclassified upon proper motion and payment of the reclassification fee by a party does not affect the court's fundamental subject matter jurisdiction over the matter [ Pajaro Valley Water Mgmt. Agency v. McGrath (2005) 128 CA4th 1093, 1101-1104, 27 CR3d 741 ].

Warning:

If you opt to classify a claim with a value exceeding $25,000 as a limited civil case to take advantage of the abridged procedures, you will waive the right to recover amounts in excess of $25,000. However, if there is any potential for recovery of more than $25,000, before filing an action as a limited civil case, counsel should disclose the limitation to the client to get the client's written agreement to file as a limited civil case.

Chapter 15 Reclassification of Cases
II. DETERMINING APPROPRIATE CLASSIFICATION

1-15 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 15.05

15.05 Limited Civil Cases Involve $25,000 or Less and Not All Types of Relief Are Available.

15.05[1] Limited Civil Cases Are Determined by Amount in Controversy, Relief Sought, and Type of Action.

An action is treated as a limited civil case if all of the following three conditions are satisfied [CCP § 85]:

- The amount in controversy does not exceed $25,000 [see 15.05[2]].
- The relief sought is a type that may be granted in a limited civil case [see 15.05[3]].
- The relief sought is described in one or more statutes classifying actions as limited civil cases [see 15.05[4]].

An action is not a limited civil case if any of these conditions is not satisfied.

15.05[2] Amount in Controversy Is Limited to $25,000, Exclusive of Attorneys' Fees, Interest, and Costs.

15.05[2][a] Prayer of Complaint Is Relevant in Assessing Amount in Controversy. For a case to be classified as a limited civil case, the amount in controversy cannot exceed $25,000. "Amount in controversy" means the amount of the demand, the recovery sought, the value of the property, or the amount of the lien that is in controversy in the action, exclusive of attorneys' fees, interest, and costs [CCP § 85(a)].

The nature and amount of the demand are normally shown by the prayer of the complaint [see CCP § 425.10(b)]. Thus, the prayer or demand for relief in the complaint is relevant to valuation of 2d [ Stern v. Superior Court (2003) 105 CA4th 223, 233, 129 CR2d 275 ].

Before unification of the trial courts, a case whose amount in controversy did not meet the jurisdictional minimum was subject to transfer from the superior court to the municipal court. With municipal courts no longer in existence, the statutory scheme now authorizes reclassification. The "amount in controversy" continues to provide a ground for reclassifying an action, and prior case law on this issue continues to determine whether a case should be classified [ Stern v. Superior Court (2003) 105 CA4th 223, 229-230, 129 CR2d 275 ].

15.05[2][b] Court May Hold Pretrial Hearing to Determine Amount in Controversy. A trial court has authority to conduct a pretrial hearing to obtain information about whether the amount of the judgment will require reclassification [ Stern v. Superior Court (2003) 105 CA4th 223, 230, 129 CR2d 275 ; Walker v. Superior Court (1991) 53 C3d 257, 262, 279 CR 576, 807 P2d 418 (pre-unification case)]. A matter can be reclassified only when it is clear that the matter will "necessarily" result in a verdict below the jurisdictional amount [ Stern v. Superior Court (2003) 105 CA4th 223, 230-231, 129 CR2d 275 ; Walker v. Superior Court (1991) 53 C3d 257, 262, 279 CR 576, 807 P2d 418 (pre-unification case)].

A party moving to reclassify a case from limited to unlimited must present evidence to demonstrate a possibility that the damages will exceed $25,000. The trial court, without adjudicating the merits of the underlying case, should review the record to determine whether a judgment in excess of $25,000 is obtainable. If a jurisdictionally appropriate verdict may result, (i.e., if such a verdict is not virtually unobtainable) the court should grant the motion to reclassify the case as "unlimited." Concomitantly, the court may deny the motion only where it appears to a legal certainty that the plaintiff's damages will necessarily be $25,000 or less [ Ytuarte v. Superior Court (2005) 129 CA4th 266, 279, 28 CR3d 474 ].

The trial court evaluates the amount fairly in controversy, not the merits of the claim. It must reasonably determine that the verdict will "necessarily" fall short of the $25,001 required for an unlimited civil case [ Stern v. Superior Court (2003) 105 CA4th 223, 233, 129 CR2d 275 ; Chahal v. Superior Court (1999) 73 CA4th 399, 402, 86 CR2d 428 (pre-unification case)]. Reviewing the record to determine whether the result is obtainable, the trial court looks to the possibility of a jurisdictionally appropriate verdict, not to its probability [ Stern v. Superior Court (2003) 105 CA4th 223, 233, 129 CR2d 275 ; Maldonado v. Superior Court (1996) 45 CA4th 397, 402, 52 CR2d 805 (pre-unification case)].

15.05[3] Actions Which May Qualify As Limited Civil Cases.

15.05[3][a] Cases at Law With Demand or Property Value in Controversy of $25,000 or Less Are Generally Limited Civil Cases. All cases at law in which the demand, exclusive of interest, or the value of the property in controversy amounts to $25,000 or less, are limited civil cases [CCP § 86(a)(1)].

Exception:

This provision does not apply to cases involving the legality of a tax, impost, assessment, toll, or municipal fine, but does apply to actions to enforce payment of delinquent unsecured personal property taxes if the legality of the tax is not contested by the defendant [CCP § 86(a)(1)].

15.05[3][b] Dissolution of Partnership May Qualify If Assets Do Not Exceed $25,000. Actions to dissolve partnerships when the total partnership assets do not exceed $25,000 are limited civil cases [CCP § 86(a)(2)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 406, Partnerships: Dissolution (Matthew Bender).

15.05[3][c] Interpleader Actions Are Limited Civil Cases If Money or Property Is $25,000 or Less. Interpleader actions are limited civil cases when the amount of money or the value of the property involved does not exceed $25,000 [CCP § 86(a)(2)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 314, Interpleader (Matthew Bender).

15.05[3][d] Actions to Cancel, Rescind, or Revise Contract Are Limited Civil Cases If $25,000 or Less. Limited civil cases include:

- Actions to cancel or rescind a contract sought in connection with an action to recover money not exceeding $25,000 or property of a value not exceeding $25,000 paid or delivered under, or in consideration of, the contract.

- Actions to revise a contract when sought in an action upon the contract if the action is otherwise a limited civil case [CCP § 86(a)(3)].

➡ Cross References:

Discussion of actions seeking rescission, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution (Matthew Bender).

15.05[3][e] Eviction Actions Qualify If Damages Do Not Exceed $25,000. Proceedings in forcible entry, forcible detainer, or unlawful detainer when the whole amount of damage claimed is $25,000 or less are limited civil cases [CCP § 86(a)(4)].

➡ Cross Reference:

Discussion of eviction actions, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Action (Matthew Bender).

15.05[3][f] Actions for Enforcement of Personal Property Liens Which Are $25,000 or Less Are Limited Civil Actions. Actions to enforce and foreclose liens on personal property when the amount of the lien is $25,000 or less are limited civil cases [CCP § 86(a)(5)].

➡ Cross Reference:

Discussion, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 342, Liens and Wage Preferences (Matthew Bender).

15.05[3][g] Actions for Enforcement of Mechanics' Liens and Similar Liens Are Limited Civil Cases As Long As Aggregate Claims Are $25,000 or Less. When the amount of the lien is $25,000 or less, actions to enforce and foreclose, or petitions to release, liens of mechanics, material persons, artisans, laborers, and of all other persons to whom liens are given under the Civil Code [see CC § 3109 et seq. (works of improvement)] are limited civil cases [CCP § 86(a)(6)]. In addition, actions to enforce and foreclose an assessment lien on a common interest development as defined in CC § 1351 are limited civil cases when the amount of the lien is $25,000 or less [CCP § 86(a)(6)].

Distinguish:

On the other hand, when an action to enforce the lien affects property that is also affected by a similar pending action that is not a limited civil case, or when the total amount of the liens sought to be foreclosed against the same property aggregates an amount in excess of $25,000, the action is not a limited civil case [CCP § 86(a)(6)].

➡ Cross Reference:

Discussion of mechanics' liens, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 361, Mechanics' Liens (Matthew Bender).

15.05[3][h] Declaratory Relief May Be Available Under Limited Circumstances. Declaratory relief actions may be available in limited civil cases [CCP § 86(a)(7)]:

- When brought by way of (1) a cross-complaint as to a right of indemnity with respect to the relief demanded in the complaint or (2) a cross-complaint in an action that is otherwise a limited civil case.
- When brought to conduct a trial after a nonbinding fee arbitration between an attorney and client [see B&P Code § 6200 et seq.] when the amount in controversy is $25,000 or less.

Other than these two situations, declaratory relief may not be granted in a limited civil case [CCP § 580(b)(4)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of declaratory relief, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief (Matthew Bender).

15.05[3][i] Court in Limited Civil Cases May Grant TROs, Preliminary Injunctive Relief and Accountings, and Appoint Receivers. The court in a limited civil case has jurisdiction to take the following actions when necessary to preserve the property or rights of any party to a limited civil case [CCP § 86(a)(8)]:

- Issue temporary restraining orders and preliminary injunctions, and to take accounts, when necessary to preserve the property or rights of any party to a limited civil case.
- Make any order or perform any act, pursuant to the Enforcement of Judgment Law [see CCP § 680.010 et seq.].
- Appoint a receiver [see CCP §§ 564-570].

Cross References:

Discussion of temporary injunctive relief, see Ch. 18, TROs and Preliminary Injunctions.

Discussion of receivers, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender).

15.05[3][j] Court May Determine Title to Personal Property Seized in Limited Civil Cases. The court in a limited civil case has jurisdiction to determine title to personal property seized in a limited civil case [CCP § 86(a)(8)].

15.05[3][k] Creditors' Suits Are Limited Civil Cases If Property or Interest Is Less Than $25,000. Actions relating to creditors' suits [see CCP § 708.210 et seq.] to recover an interest in personal property or to enforce the liability of the debtor of a judgment debtor when the interest claimed adversely is of a value not exceeding $25,000 or the debt denied does not exceed $25,000 are limited civil cases [CCP § 86(a)(9)].

15.05[3][l] Arbitration-Related Petitions Are Limited Civil Cases Under Defined Conditions. All arbitration-related petitions filed pursuant to CCP § 1292 et seq., except for uninsured motorist arbitration proceedings [see Ins Code § 11580.2], are limited civil cases if either [CCP § 86(a)(10)(A)]:

- The petition is filed before the arbitration award becomes final and the matter to be resolved by arbitration is a limited civil case under CCP § 86(a)(1)-(9).
- The petition is filed after the arbitration award becomes final and the amount of the award and all other rulings, pronouncements, and decisions made in the award are within CCP § 86(a)(1)-(9).

All arbitration petitions filed to confirm, correct, or vacate a fee arbitration award between an attorney and client that is binding or has become binding pursuant to B&P Code § 6200 et seq. are limited civil cases if the arbitration award is $25,000 or less [CCP § 86(a)(10)(B)].

15.05[3][m] Long-Term Health Care Cases Qualify If Amount Does Not Exceed $25,000. An action brought pursuant to the Long-Term Care, Health, Safety, and Security Act of 1973 [see H&S Code § 1417 et seq.] is a limited civil case if civil penalties are not sought or amount to $25,000 or less [CCP § 86.1].

15.05[3][n] Certain Cases in Equity Qualify As Limited Civil Cases. The following cases in equity are limited civil cases [CCP § 86(b)]:

- Cases in equity to try title to personal property when the amount involved is not more than $25,000.
- Cases when equity is pleaded as a defensive matter in any case that is otherwise a limited civil case.
- Cases to vacate a judgment or order of the court obtained in a limited civil case through extrinsic fraud, mistake, inadvertence, or excusable neglect.

15.05[4] Relief Sought Must Be Described by Statutes Which Classify Action As Limited Civil Case. In a limited civil case, the relief sought, whether in the complaint, a cross-complaint, or otherwise, must be exclusively of a type described in one or more statutes that classify an action as a limited civil case or that provide that an action is within the original jurisdiction of the municipal court, including but not limited to, the following provisions [CCP § 85(c)]:

- CC § 798.61 (abandoned mobile homes).
- CC § 1719 (passing a check on insufficient funds).
- CC § 3342.5 (dog bites).
- CCP § 86 (jurisdiction).
- CCP § 86.1 (long-term health care).
- CCP § 1710.20 (enforcement of sister state judgments of $25,000 or less).
- F&A Code §§ 7581, 12647, 27601, 52514, 53564 (abatement as a public nuisance of various products that are contaminated or otherwise not in compliance with law).
- F&A Code § 31503 (loss or damage of livestock caused by a dog).
- F&A Code § 31621 (vicious dogs).
- Gov Code § 53069.4 (appeal of fine or penalty imposed under local ordinance).
- Gov Code §§ 53075.6, 53075.61 (impounding vehicle operated by person without valid certificate, license, or permit).
- PU Code § 5411.5 (arrest, seizure, and impoundment of vehicles at airport or Mexican border).
- Veh Code § 9872.1 (impoundment of vessel with hull identification number removed).

- Veh Code § 10751 (disposition of vehicle or part thereof the identification number of which has been removed, defaced, altered, or destroyed).

- Veh Code § 14607.6 (impoundment and forfeiture of vehicle driven by unlicensed driver).

- Veh Code § 40230 (parking violation appeals).

- Veh Code § 40256 (notice of toll evasion appeals).

II. DETERMINING APPROPRIATE CLASSIFICATION

1-15 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 15.06

15.06 Unlimited Civil Cases Are Those That Do Not Match Criteria for Limited Civil Cases.

15.06[1] Unlimited Civil Case Is Case Other Than Limited Civil Case. An unlimited civil case is any civil action or proceeding that is not a limited civil case [CCP § 88]. In an unlimited civil case, the court can award relief not available in a limited civil case [see 15.06[2] -[6]].

15.06[2] Cases Which Request Relief in Excess of $25,000 Are Unlimited Civil Cases. Relief exceeding $25,000 may be awarded only in an unlimited civil case. The court in a limited civil case may not grant relief exceeding $25,000, exclusive of attorneys' fees, interest, and costs [CCP §§ 85(a), 580(b)(1)].

15.06[3] Permanent Injunctive Relief May Only Be Granted With Unlimited Civil Case. The court in an unlimited civil case may grant a permanent injunction. In a limited civil case, the court may not grant a permanent injunction, except as otherwise authorized by statute [CCP § 580(b)(2)].

15.06[4] Only Unlimited Civil Case May Determine Title to Real Property. The court in an unlimited civil case may determine title to real property. In a limited civil case, the court may not grant as relief a determination of title to real property [CCP § 580(b)(3)].

15.06[5] [Reserved].

15.06[6] Declaratory Relief May Be Granted Through Unlimited Civil Case. The court in an unlimited civil case may grant declaratory relief. In a limited civil case, the court may not grant declaratory relief, except as authorized by CCP § 86(a)(7) [CCP § 580(b)(4)].

Chapter 15 Reclassification of Cases
III. OBTAINING RECLASSIFICATION

1-15 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 15.07

15.07 CHECKLIST: Obtaining Reclassification.

15.07[1] Plaintiff's Checklist for Obtaining Reclassification.

- ☐ Choose method for reclassification:
- ☐ Amend initial pleading.
  - ☐ Move to reclassify.
  - ☐ Obtain stipulation for reclassification from other parties.

Authority:

CCP §§ 403.020, 403.040, 403.050

Discussion:

See 15.08[1]

- ☐ If plaintiff is seeking reclassification through amendment of complaint:
- ☐ Prepare amended complaint.
  - ☐ Draft caption to indicate that action is being reclassified by this pleading, stating either:
    - ☐ Case is limited civil case reclassified as an unlimited case.

- ☐ Case is an unlimited civil case reclassified as a limited civil case.
- ☐ Present amended complaint to clerk for filing within time for filing amendments.
- ☐ At time of filing, pay reclassification fee of $125 if case is being reclassified from limited civil case to unlimited civil case.
- ☐ If amended pleading is properly captioned and any required reclassification fee is paid, no further action is required to obtain reclassification; clerk promptly reclassifies matter.

Authority:

CCP § 403.020

Discussion:

See 15.10[1]

Form:

See Ch. 34, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings, 34.46

Timing:

Reclassification does not expand time for filing amendment to complaint.

- ☐ If plaintiff is seeking reclassification through motion:
  - ☐ Draft motion and notice of motion for reclassification, with supporting declaration and memorandum.
  - ☐ Draft proposed order.
  - ☐ Serve and file motion, following standard noticed motion procedure.
  - ☐ Calendar response and hearing dates.
  - ☐ Be prepared to pay reclassification fee if motion is granted.

Authority:

CCP § 403.040

Discussion:

See 15.10[2]

Form:

See 15.20, 15.21

Standard Procedure Checklist:

See Ch. 26, Law and Motion Procedure, 26.39

Timing:

If motion is filed after time to amend complaint has expired, state grounds for not seeking reclassification earlier.

- ☐ If parties are stipulating to reclassification:
- ☐ Draft stipulation:
    - ☐ Have title state that case is reclassified by the stipulation.
    - ☐ Have caption state that case is limited civil case reclassified as unlimited civil case, or unlimited civil case reclassified as limited civil case.
  - ☐ If classification is changed from limited to unlimited, decide who will pay reclassification fee.
  - ☐ File stipulation with court within time to respond to initial pleading.
  - ☐ Pay reclassification fee.

Authority:

CCP § 403.050

Discussion:

See 15.11

Timing:

Stipulation must be filed within time allowed to respond to initial pleading.

15.07[2] Defendant's Checklist for Obtaining Reclassification.

- ☐ Choose method for reclassification:
- ☐ File cross-complaint.
  - ☐ Move to reclassify.
  - ☐ Obtain stipulation for reclassification from other parties.

Authority:

CCP §§ 403.030-403.050

Discussion:

See 15.08[2], 15.11-15.13

☐ If defendant is seeking reclassification through cross-complaint:

- ☐ Prepare cross-complaint.
- ☐ Draft caption to indicate that action is limited civil case to be reclassified by cross-complaint, or words to that effect.
- ☐ Present cross-complaint to clerk for filing.
- ☐ At time of filing, pay reclassification fee.
- ☐ If cross-complaint is properly captioned and reclassification fee is paid, no further action is required to obtain reclassification; clerk promptly reclassifies matter.

Authority:

CCP § 403.030

Discussion:

See 15.12

Forms:

See Ch. 16, Cross-Complaints

☐ If defendant is moving for reclassification:

- ☐ Draft motion and notice of motion for reclassification, with supporting declaration and memorandum.
- ☐ Draft proposed order.
- ☐ Serve and file motion, following standard noticed motion procedure.
- ☐ Calendar response and hearing dates.
- ☐ Be prepared to pay reclassification fee if motion is granted.

Authority:

CCP § 403.040

Discussion:

See 15.13

Forms:

See 15.20, 15.21

Standard Procedure Checklist:

See Ch. 26, Law and Motion Procedure, 26.39

Timing:

File motion within time allowed to respond to complaint; if later, argue good cause for not seeking reclassification earlier.

- ☐ If parties are stipulating to reclassification:
  - ☐ Draft stipulation:
    - ☐ Have title state that case is reclassified by the stipulation.
    - ☐ Have caption state that case is limited civil case reclassified as unlimited civil case, or unlimited civil case reclassified as limited civil case.
  - ☐ If classification is changed from limited to unlimited, decide who will pay reclassification fee.
  - ☐ File stipulation with court within time to respond to initial pleading.
  - ☐ Pay reclassification fee.

Authority:

CCP § 403.050

Discussion:

See 15.11

Timing:

Stipulation must be filed within time allowed to respond to initial pleading.

Chapter 15 Reclassification of Cases
III. OBTAINING RECLASSIFICATION

1-15 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 15.08

15.08 Options and Strategies for Seeking Appropriate Classification.

15.08[1] Plaintiff's Options and Strategies. Ideally, a case will be properly classified in the complaint or other initial pleading, and there will be no need to consider reclassification [see 15.09].

But plaintiff may desire reclassification from a limited civil case to an unlimited civil case if, after filing the initial pleading, it is determined that the plaintiff has damages in excess of $25,000, or otherwise seeks relief the court is not authorized to grant in a limited civil case.

Plaintiff's options for reclassification are:

- ☐ Reclassification through amendment of the complaint.

Timing:

This option is available only if the time for amendments has not expired [see CCP § 403.010].

- ☐ Reclassification through a motion.

Timing:

This option is available at any time, but if plaintiff moves for reclassification after the time for amendment to the pleadings, plaintiff must establish good cause for not seeking reclassification earlier [see CCP § 403.040(b)(2)].

- ☐ Reclassification through stipulation.

Timing:

This option is available only during the time allowed to respond to the initial pleading [see CCP § 403.050].

 Cross References:

Discussion of reclassification by amendment of complaint, see 15.10[1], by motion, see 15.10[2], by stipulation, see 15.11.

15.08[2] Defendant's Options and Strategies. Defendant's options for reclassification are:

- Filing a cross-complaint that changes classification of the case.
- Filing a motion for reclassification.

Timing:

This option is available at any time, but if defendant moves for reclassification after the time for responding to the initial pleading, defendant must establish good cause for not seeking reclassification earlier [see CCP § 403.040(b)(2)].

Warning:

A motion for reclassification constitutes an appearance.

- Reclassification through stipulation.

Timing:

This option is available only during the time allowed to respond to the initial pleading [see CCP § 403.050].

Cross References:

Discussion of filing cross-complaint that changes classification of the case, see 15.12.

III. OBTAINING RECLASSIFICATION

1-15 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 15.09

15.09 Plaintiff Classifies Case in Initial Pleading.

Plaintiff first classifies a case in the initial pleading. In limited civil cases, the caption of every pleading must state that the case is a limited civil case, and the clerk classifies the case accordingly [CCP § 422.30(b); Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.111(10)].

Chapter 15 Reclassification of Cases
III. OBTAINING RECLASSIFICATION

1-15 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 15.10

15.10 Plaintiff May Reclassify Case.

15.10[1] Case May Be Reclassified by Amending Initial Pleading. A plaintiff, cross-complainant, or petitioner may reclassify an action by filing an amended complaint or other amended initial pleading [see CCP § 403.020(a)].

If the case is reclassified by an amended complaint or other initial pleading, draft the caption of the amended pleading to indicate that the action is reclassified by the pleading. The caption must state that the case is a limited civil case reclassified as an unlimited civil case, or an unlimited civil case reclassified as a limited civil case, or words to that effect [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.111(11)].

If the amended complaint or other initial pleading changes the jurisdictional classification from limited to unlimited, the plaintiff when filing the amended pleading must pay the reclassification fee [see CCP § 403.060], and the clerk must promptly reclassify the case. If the amendment changes the jurisdictional classification from unlimited to limited, no reclassification fee is required, and the clerk must promptly reclassify the case [CCP § 403.020(a)].

Warning:

Failure to pay the reclassification fee may result in dismissal [see 15.17].

15.10[2] Plaintiff May Bring Motion to Reclassify. A plaintiff, cross-complainant, or petitioner may file a motion for reclassification within the time allowed for that party to amend the initial pleading. If the motion is filed within the time to amend and the case has been classified in an incorrect jurisdictional classification, the court must grant the motion and enter an order for reclassification, regardless of any fault or lack of fault [CCP § 403.040(a)].

A motion for reclassification does not extend the party's time to amend.

Distinguish:

When a party files a motion for reclassification after the time to amend the initial pleading, the court may grant the motion and enter an order for reclassification only if both of the following conditions are satisfied [CCP § 403.040(b)]:

- The case is incorrectly classified.
- The party shows good cause for not seeking reclassification earlier.

 Cross Reference:

Forms, see 15.20, 15.21.

15.10[3] Right to Amend Pleadings Is Not Affected. The reclassification provisions do not expand or limit the law on whether a plaintiff may file an amended complaint. Nor do the reclassification provisions affect whether and to what extent an amendment relates back to the date of filing the original complaint [CCP § 403.010].

III. OBTAINING RECLASSIFICATION

1-15 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 15.11

15.11 Parties May Stipulate to Reclassification.

15.11[1] Stipulation Must Occur Within Time for Responding to Initial Pleading. The parties to the action or proceeding may stipulate to reclassification of the case within the time allowed to respond to the initial pleading [CCP § 403.050(a)].

15.11[2] Title of Stipulation Must Indicate Reclassification. If a case is reclassified by stipulation, the title of the stipulation must state that the case is reclassified by the stipulation. The caption or title must state that the case is a limited civil case reclassified as an unlimited civil case, or an unlimited civil case reclassified as a limited civil case, or words to that effect [Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.111(11)].

15.11[3] Fee Is Required If Case Is Reclassified As Unlimited Civil Case. If the stipulation for reclassification changes the jurisdictional classification of the case from limited to unlimited, the reclassification fee provided by statute [see CCP § 403.060] must be paid at the time the stipulation is filed [CCP § 403.050(b)]. Upon filing of the stipulation and the payment of the reclassification fee, if required, the clerk must promptly reclassify the case [CCP § 403.050(c)].

III. OBTAINING RECLASSIFICATION

1-15 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 15.12

15.12 Filing Cross-Complaint May Reclassify Case.

15.12[1] Cross-Complaint May Reclassify Limited Civil Case to Unlimited Civil Case. A party may reclassify a case by filing a cross-complaint. If a party in a limited civil case files a cross-complaint that causes the action or proceeding to exceed the maximum amount in controversy for a limited civil case or otherwise to fail to satisfy the requirements for a limited civil case, the caption of the cross-complaint must state that the action or proceeding is a limited civil case to be reclassified by cross-complaint, or words to that effect [CCP § 403.030].

15.12[2] Cross-Complainant Must Pay Reclassification Fee. At the time of filing the cross-complaint, the party must pay the reclassification fee [see CCP § 403.060], and the clerk must promptly reclassify the case [CCP § 403.030].

15.12[3] Right to Amend Pleadings Is Not Affected. The law and procedure related to reclassification does not expand or limit the law on whether a plaintiff or cross-complainant may file an amended complaint or other amended initial pleading. Furthermore, it does not expand or limit the law on whether, and to what extent, an amendment relates back to the date of filing the original complaint or other initial pleading [CCP § 403.010].

Chapter 15 Reclassification of Cases
III. OBTAINING RECLASSIFICATION

1-15 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 15.13

15.13 Defendant May Move for Reclassification.

15.13[1] Motion May Be Filed Within Time to Respond to Initial Pleading.

15.13[1][a] Motion Is Mandatory If It Is Timely. If the complaint or other initial pleading erroneously states or fails to state that the action is a limited civil case, the defendant may file a motion for reclassification within the time allowed for the defendant to respond to the initial pleading [CCP § 403.040(a)].

If the defendant files the motion within the time to respond to the initial pleading and the case has been classified in an incorrect jurisdictional classification, the court must grant the motion and enter an order for reclassification, regardless of any fault or lack of fault [CCP § 403.040(a)].

15.13[1][b] Motion Does Not Extend Time to Respond. A motion for reclassification does not extend the moving party's time to respond to the initial pleading [CCP § 403.040(a)].

15.13[1][c] Motion Constitutes Appearance. A defendant's motion for reclassification constitutes an appearance in the action [CCP § 1014].

15.13[2] If Motion Filed After Expiration of Time to Respond to Initial Pleading, Ruling Is Not Mandatory. If a defendant files a motion for reclassification after the time for the defendant to respond to the initial pleading, the court may grant the motion only if [CCP § 403.040(b)]:

- The case is incorrectly classified.
- The defendant shows good cause for not seeking reclassification earlier.

Chapter 15 Reclassification of Cases
III. OBTAINING RECLASSIFICATION

1-15 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 15.14

15.14 Court May Reclassify Case on Own Motion.

15.14[1] Court May Act at Any Time. A case may be reclassified on the court's own motion at any time [CCP § 403.040(a)].

Strategic Point:

The fact that the court has reclassified an action on its own motion does not appear to preclude a party from filing a subsequent motion to reclassify back to the original classification [see, e.g., Ytuarte v. Superior Court (2005) 129 CA4th 266, 279-280, 28 CR3d 474 ].

15.14[2] Court Must Give Parties Notice and Opportunity to Be Heard. A court contemplating reclassification on its own motion must provide notice to the parties and provide sufficient opportunity to respond to the issue. Even if no hearing is held, the court must afford the parties an opportunity to contest reclassification [ Stern v. Superior Court (2003) 105 CA4th 223, 230, 129 CR2d 275 ; Walker v. Superior Court (1991) 53 C3d 257, 271, 279 CR 576, 807 P2d 418 (pre-unification case)]. Lack of notice and an opportunity to be heard requires reversal of the reclassification order [ Stern v. Superior Court (2003) 105 CA4th 223, 231, 129 CR2d 275 ].

Chapter 15 Reclassification of Cases
III. OBTAINING RECLASSIFICATION

1-15 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 15.16

15.16 Costs and Fees Are Due on Reclassification.

15.16[1] Reclassification Fee Is Usually Due When Case Is Reclassified As Unlimited. A reclassification fee is due if any of the following occur:

- Plaintiff files an amended complaint or other pleading that reclassifies a case from limited to unlimited [CCP § 403.020(a)].
- A party files a cross-complaint that reclassifies a limited civil case as an unlimited civil case [CCP § 403.030].
- Parties stipulate to the reclassification of a case from limited to unlimited [CCP § 403.050(a)].
- The court grants a motion for reclassification [CCP § 403.040(c)(1)].

The fee for reclassification of a case from a limited civil case to an unlimited civil case is in addition to any other fee for that appearance or filing in a limited civil case. After reclassification, the fees ordinarily charged in an unlimited case will be charged [CCP § 403.060(a)].

► Cross References:

Discussion of reclassification by amended complaint, see 15.10[1], by cross-complaint, see 15.12, by stipulation 15.11, or by motion, see 15.10[2], 15.13.

15.16[2] No Fee Is Required When Case Is Reclassified As Limited. When a case is reclassified from an unlimited civil case to a limited civil case, no reclassification fee is required [CCP §§ 403.040(c)(2), 403.060(c)]. After reclassification, the fees ordinarily charged in a limited civil case will be charged [CCP § 403.060(c)].

Parties are not entitled to a refund of the difference between any fees previously paid in an unlimited civil case and the fees due in a limited civil case when the case is reclassified from unlimited to limited [CCP § 403.060(c)].

15.16[3] Party Responsible for Reclassification Must Pay Fee. When an amended complaint, a cross-complaint, or other pleading results in reclassification from limited to unlimited, the party filing the pleading must pay the required fee at the time of the filing [CCP §§ 403.020(a), 403.030].

When a court grants a motion for reclassification from limited to unlimited, the party whose pleading causes the action to exceed the maximum amount in controversy for a limited civil case or otherwise fails to satisfy the requirements for a limited civil case must pay the reclassification fee [CCP § 403.040(c)(1)].

Exception:

When the court grants a motion for reclassification and the fee has not been paid within five days after service of notice of the order, any party interested in the case, regardless of whether that party is named in the complaint, may pay the fee. The clerk will then reclassify the case as if the fees had been paid by the proper party [CCP § 403.040(d)(2)].

If the reclassification fee is paid by someone other than the person responsible for payment, the fee becomes an item of costs of the party paying it, recoverable if that party prevails in the action. If that party does not prevail, the fee is offset against and deducted from the amount, if any, awarded to the party responsible for the fee, if that party prevails in the action [CCP § 403.040(d)(2)].

15.17[2] If Reclassification Fee Is Not Paid in 30 Days, Court May Dismiss Case. If the reclassification fee is not paid within 30 days after service of notice of an order for reclassification, the court on its own motion or motion of any party may take any of the following actions [CCP § 403.040(d)(3)]:

- Order the case to proceed as a limited civil case.
- Dismiss the action or cross-action without prejudice on the condition that no other action or proceeding on the same matters be commenced in any other court until the reclassification fee is paid.
- Take any other action the court deems appropriate.

IV. OBTAINING APPELLATE REVIEW OF ORDER GRANTING OR DENYING RECLASSIFICATION

1-15 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 15.19

15.19 Appellate Review of Order Granting or Denying Reclassification.

15.19[1] Petition for Writ of Mandate May Be Filed by Aggrieved Party. When an order is made by the superior court granting or denying a motion to reclassify an action, the party aggrieved by the order may petition the court of appeal for the district in which the court granting or denying the motion is situated for a writ requiring proper classification of the action or proceeding [CCP § 403.080].

Strategic Point:

Orders under CCP § 403.080 reclassifying actions are not appealable [ Garau v. Torrance Unified School Dist. (2006) 137 CA4th 192, 199, 40 CR3d 108 ]. In the alternative, a party may appeal the final judgment of dismissal of the summarily adjudicated causes of action [ Garau v. Torrance Unified School Dist. (2006) 137 CA4th 192, 201, 40 CR3d 108 ].

The petitioner must file a copy of the petition in the superior court immediately after the petition is filed in the court of appeal [CCP § 403.080].

15.19[2] Petition Must Be Filed Within 20 Days After Service of Order of Reclassification. The petition must be filed within 20 days after service of a written notice of the order of reclassification. The superior court may, for good cause, and prior to the expiration of the initial 20-day period, extend the time for one additional period not to exceed 10 days [CCP § 403.080].

Strategic Point:

Where the trial court denies a party's motion to reclassify after the court has reclassified an action on its own motion, the moving party may obtain relief by appeal of the denial, without also appealing the court's decision on its own motion [see, e.g., Ytuarte v. Superior Court (2005) 129 CA4th 266, 273, 28 CR3d 474 ].

15.19[3] Court of Appeal May Stay Proceedings Pending Decision. The court of appeal may stay all proceedings in the case pending judgment on the petition becoming final [CCP § 403.080].

Chapter 16 Cross-Complaints
I. STRATEGY

1-16 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 16.02

16.02 Objective and Strategy.

The objective underlying cross-complaints is to have a complete determination of a controversy among the parties in one action, thus avoiding circuitry and multiplicity of actions [ City of Hanford v. Superior Court (1989) 208 CA3d 580, 587, 256 CR 274 ; Sattinger v. Newbauer (1954) 123 CA2d 365, 369, 266 P2d 586 ].

Cross-complaints are either compulsory or permissive. Compulsory cross-complaints address claims related to those alleged in the plaintiff's complaint (or in a cross-complaint). If a defendant or cross-defendant fails to assert any related claims against the plaintiff, the claims will be barred [CCP § 428.50(a)].

Permissive cross-complaints allow a party to bring any claims against the other party or parties who filed a complaint (or cross-complaint) against the party. Permissive cross-complaints also allow a party to bring claims germane to the action against other parties or nonparties [CCP § 428.50(b)].

The only claims against plaintiff that are compulsory cross-complaints are those that exist at the time they file an answer [see Crocker Nat'l Bank v. Emerald (1990) 221 CA3d 852, 864, 270 CR 699 (defendant's claims against plaintiff based on conduct after answer is filed must be asserted in permissive cross-complaint filed pursuant to leave of court)].

Warning:

Filing a cross-complaint without probable cause may give rise to a malicious prosecution action [ Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1974) 13 C3d 43, 50-53, 118 CR 184, 529 P2d 608 ].

Strategic Points--Defendant:

- Defendants with claims that must be asserted via compulsory cross-complaint should first determine if they can successfully demur to plaintiff's claims. Even if the demurrer is overruled, plaintiff's opposition may provide valuable assistance in preparation of the cross-complaint. If the demurrer is sustained only as to a portion of plaintiff's claims, or sustained with leave to amend, defendants should nevertheless file a cross-complaint because if plaintiff later voluntarily dismisses any claims but fails to answer the cross-complaint, all plaintiff's claims arising from the same transaction will be forever barred [see Carroll v. Import Motors, Inc. (1995) 33 CA4th 1429, 1436, 39 CR2d 791 ].

- Although a defendant may obtain an offset through pleading an affirmative defense, the right to recovery can be obtained only by filing a cross-complaint. Counsel should discuss thoroughly with their clients, at the outset, all matters that could provide a basis for affirmative relief against the plaintiff. Clients, even those who are fairly sophisticated, sometimes assume that since the plaintiff has brought an action against them, they will automatically be able to assert their claims against the plaintiff. The client should be counseled that if those claims are not raised by a cross-complaint at the outset, they may be lost.

- Defendants should be mindful that the trial court is likely to dismiss as unnecessary a permissive cross-complaint for declaratory relief if the same rights may be asserted by other means, such as by assertion of an affirmative defense [see C.J.L. Constr., Inc. v. Universal Plumbing (1993) 18 CA4th 376, 389-391, 22 CR2d 360 (cross-complaint for declaratory relief regarding offset properly dismissed; review of illustrative examples)].

If the cross-complaint is not compulsory, a separate action can be filed for the claims that would otherwise have been included in the cross-complaint. If a new action is filed under these circumstances, the party filing the new action is obligated to file a Notice of Related Cases [see Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.300].

If your client would like to avoid the publicity that can come with filing an action, counsel should consider the chances of success in court of filing with the cross-complaint a motion to seal sensitive portions of it (as well as previously and subsequently filed papers), as well as a motion for a gag order, although in the latter case the courts rarely oblige.

II. DETERMINING TYPE OF CROSS-COMPLAINT

1-16 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 16.03

16.03 CHECKLIST: Determining Type of Cross-Complaint.

☐ Decide if a permissive cross-complaint should be filed in response to the complaint.

☐ Determine if defendant has any claims against an adverse party.

Authority:
CCP § 428.10(a)

Discussion:
See 16.05[1]

☐ Determine if defendant has claims against any party or nonparty either:

☐ Arising out the the same transaction, occurrence, or series of transactions or occurrences, or ☐ Asserting a claim, right, or interest in the same property or controversy.

Authority:
CCP § 428.10(b)

Discussion:
See 16.05[2]

☐ Determine if a compulsory cross-complaint is necessary to preserve any claim against a plaintiff because defendant's claim is a related cause of action.

- ☐ Determine if defendant's cause of action is related because it arises out of the same transaction, occurrence, or series thereof as the cause brought against him or her.

Authority:

CCP § 426.10(c)

Discussion:

See 16.06[1]

- ☐ If defendant's cause of action is related, determine if it is a type of action that is exempted from the compulsory filing requirement for one of the following reasons:

☐ The defendant's cause of action requires the presence of additional parties over whom the court cannot acquire jurisdiction;

☐ The court hearing plaintiff's action and any court to which defendant's action is transferable under CCP § 396 are prohibited by federal or state constitution or statute from trying defendant's claim;

☐ The plaintiff's action is a special proceeding or is in small claims court; or

☐ The plaintiff's action is for declaratory relief only.

Authority:

CCP §§ 426.30(a), 426.40, 426.60

Discussion:

See 16.06 -16.08

- ☐ Draft any desired permissive or necessary compulsory cross-complaint cross-complaint.

- ☐ Make cross-complaint a separate document in the same format as a complaint.

Authority:

Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.100 et seq.; CCP § 428.40

Discussion:

See 16.04

- ☐ If the cross-complaint causes a limited civil case to be reclassified, so identify it in the caption.

Chapter 16 Cross-Complaints
II. DETERMINING TYPE OF CROSS-COMPLAINT

1-16 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 16.04

16.04 Format of Cross-Complaint.

16.04[1] Format of Cross-Complaint Is Same As Complaint.

16.04[1][a] General Format Follows Rules for "Papers." Cross-complaints are "papers" under Cal Rules Ct, Rule 2.100 et seq. and should comply with all format requirements of that rule. The cross-complainant is akin to a plaintiff and the cross-defendant is akin to a defendant [ Wilson, McCall & Daoro v. American Qualified Plans, Inc. (1999) 70 CA4th 1030, 1036, 83 CR2d 192 ].

16.04[1][b] Optional California Judicial Council Forms Are Acceptable. The Judicial Council has approved the general breach-of-contract complaint form [see Judicial Council Form PLD-C-001] for use in cross-complaints, as well as a separate cross-complaint form for use in personal injury, property damage, or wrongful death actions and an attachment pleading for exemplary damages [see Judicial Council Forms PLD-PI-002, PLD-PI-001(6)].

Cross References:

See Ch. 7, Complaints.

For fillable versions of the forms in electronic format, see LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexis.com/forms.

16.04[2] Cross-Complaint Is Separate Document. The cross-complaint should be a separate document [CCP § 428.40]. It is a separate pleading, based on an independent cause of action. It must adhere to the same completeness and sufficiency standards as the complaint on an independent cause of action [ Wilson, McCall & Daoro v. American Qualified Plans, Inc. (1999) 70 CA4th 1030, 1036, 83 CR2d 192 ].

Exception:

In accordance with the general rule, in the absence of restrictions imposed by statute or by rules of court, facts alleged in other pleadings in the same case may be incorporated by reference in a subsequent cross-complaint in the case [ Pine Terrace Apartments, L.P. v. Windscape, LLC (2009) 170 CA4th 1, 17, 87 CR3d 630] .

Chapter 16 Cross-Complaints
II. DETERMINING TYPE OF CROSS-COMPLAINT

1-16 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 16.05

16.05 Permissive Cross-Complaints May Be Filed Under Two Circumstances.

16.05[1] Permissive Cross-Complaint May Be Filed on Any Cause of Action Against and Adverse Party. A party against whom a cause of action has been asserted in a complaint or cross-complaint may file a permissive cross-complaint setting forth any cause of action against any of the other parties who filed the complaint or cross-complaint against him [CCP § 428.10(a)]. A cross-complaint against an adverse party need not have any factual relationship to the claims in the original adverse pleading against the cross-complainant [see Assembly Legislative Committee Comment to CCP § 428.10].

Timing:

In some cases filing a cross-complaint may be premature [compare Babb v. Superior Court (1971) 3 C3d 841, 846-847, 92 CR 179, 479 P2d 379 (malicious prosecution cross-complaint premature), with English v. English (1937) 9 C2d 358, 364, 70 P2d 625 (single breach of continuing contract not premature)].

16.05[2] Permissive Cross-Complaint May Be Filed Against Party or Nonparty Regarding Same Transaction or Occurrence, or Asserting Related Claim, Right, or Interest. A party against whom a cause of action has been asserted in a complaint or cross-complaint may file a permissive cross-complaint setting forth any cause of action he or she has against a person alleged to be liable thereon, whether or not that person is already a party to the action, if the cause of action asserted in his or her cross-complaint does one of the following [CCP § 428.10(b); see, e.g., Leko v. Cornerstone Bldg. Inspection Serv. (2001) 86 CA4th 1109, 1119, 103 CR2d 858 (cross-complaint for equitable indemnity, contribution, declaratory relief)]:

- Arises out of the same transaction, occurrence, or series of transactions or occurrences as the cause brought against him or her.
- Asserts a claim, right, or interest in the property or controversy that is the subject of the cause brought against him or her.

Examples:

- In a negligence case arising from a construction project, a transactionally related cross-complaint is one against others who participated in the same project and whose negligence may have contributed to the damages [ NewhallLand & Farming Co. v. McCarthy Constr. (2001) 88 CA4th 769, 773, 106 CR2d 10 ].

- An attorney's cause of action against clients for unpaid legal fees is a "related cause of action" to the clients' causes of action for legal malpractice and breach of fiduciary duty asserted against the attorney, and therefore the attorney's cross-complaint is compulsory [ K.R.L. P'ship v. Superior Court (2004) 120 CA4th 490, 498, 15 CR3d 517 ].

- A defendant may file a cross-complaint against any person from whom the defendant seeks total or partial indemnity on the basis of comparative fault. Without a special relationship among parties, a cross-complaint for equitable indemnity is not subject to dismissal solely because an apportionment of fault is available through the assertion of affirmative defenses. On a claim from a real estate transaction, a cross-complaint protected the buyer's brokers from the possibility that the seller's brokers could be dismissed as a result of a settlement [ Paragon Real Estate Group of San Francisco, Inc. v. Hansen (2009) 178 CA4th 177, 182-191, 100 CR3d 234 ].

Warning--Carefully Analyze Limitations Period:

The limitations period applicable to the claim set forth in the cross-complaint may bar the action on the cross-complaint [see, e.g., Jang v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (2000) 80 CA4th 1291, 1296-1303, 95 CR2d 917 (cross-complaint in foreclosure action was action on insurance policy, barred by one-year limitations period)]. However, in some instances the limitations period is tolled for compulsory cross-complaints (or amendments thereto), e.g., for actions not barred when the original action was filed [see Sidney v. Superior Court (1988) 198 CA3d 710, 713-714, 244 CR 31 (different injury caused by same accident)].

Exception--No Cross-Complaint for Legal Malpractice Indemnity:

A lawyer sued by a former client for legal malpractice may not cross-complain against plaintiff's present lawyer for indemnity or contribution [see, e.g., Austin v. Superior Court (1999) 72 CA4th 1126, 1129, 85 CR2d 644 ; see also Musser v. Provencher (2002) 28 C4th 274, 281, 121 CR2d 373, 48 P3d 408 (public policy disfavors suits between past and present counsel); Kroll & Tract v. Paris & Paris (1999) 72 CA4th 1537, 1542-1545, 86 CR2d 78 (no equitable indemnity between insurance and Cumis counsel, on cross-complaint filed by defendant insurance counsel in legal malpractice action); but see Parker v. Morton (1981) 117 CA3d 751, 767, 173 CR 197 (cause of action for indemnity and contribution could be asserted by defendant lawyer against successor lawyer)].

Chapter 16 Cross-Complaints
II. DETERMINING TYPE OF CROSS-COMPLAINT

1-16 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 16.06

16.06 Cause of Action May Be Precluded If Not Raised in Compulsory Cross-Complaint.

16.06[1] Related Cause of Actions Against Plaintiff Precluded If Not Raised in Cross-Complaint. Except as between plaintiffs and defendants, there is no compulsory cross-complaint in California procedure [ Banerian v. O'Malley (1974) 42 CA3d 604, 612, 116 CR 919 ]. If a party against whom a complaint or cross-complaint has been filed and served fails to allege in a cross-complaint any related cause of action that (at the time of serving the answer to the complaint) he or she has against the plaintiff, that party may not thereafter in any other action assert against the plaintiff the related cause of action not pleaded. This provision applies except as otherwise provided by statute [CCP §§ 426.10(a) (definition of complaint includes cross-complaint), 426.30(a)]. A "plaintiff" means a person who files a complaint or cross-complaint [CCP § 426.10(b)].

A related cause of action means a cause of action that arises out of the same transaction, occurrence, or series of transactions or occurrences as the cause of action that the plaintiff alleges in the complaint [CCP § 426.10(c)].

Example:

In one action in which the assignee of a claim brought an action against a party who had previously sued the assignor on a related claim, the defendant's demurrer to the complaint was sustained on the ground that the assignor failed to file a compulsory cross-complaint on that claim at the time of filing its answer to that complaint, even though the claim against the assignor was voluntarily dismissed [ AL Holding Co. v. O'Brien & Hicks, Inc. (1999) 75 CA4th 1310, 1313, 89 CR2d 918 ].

Distinguish:

The bar on related actions brought after conclusion of first action does not apply if the related cause of action did not exist at the time the answer was due [ Babb v. Superior Court (1971) 3 C3d 841, 846-847, 92 CR 179, 479 P2d 379 (malicious prosecution cross-complaint premature before conclusion of legal malpractice action); Align Technology, Inc. v. Tran (2009) 179 CA4th 949, 960, 102 CR3d 343 (related cause of action barred because it existed at time answer was due)].

When a defendant has failed to allege a related cause of action by cross-complaint in a prior action, the bar of compulsory cross-complaint rule is raised by demurrer in the subsequent action [see also AL Holding Co. v. O'Brien & Hicks, Inc. (1999) 75 CA4th 1310, 1313, 89 CR2d 918 ].

Answer. CCP § 426.30 does not apply if either of the following are established [CCP § 426.30(b)]:

- The court in which the action is pending does not have jurisdiction to render a personal judgment against the person who failed to plead the related cause of action.
- The person who failed to plead the related cause of action did not file an answer to the complaint against him or her.

16.07 When Compulsory Cross-Complaint Provisions Apply.

16.07[1] Compulsory Cross-Complaint Provisions Do Not Apply to Special Proceedings. CCP § 426.10 et seq. applies only to civil actions and does not apply to special proceedings [CCP § 426.60(a)].

16.07[2] Compulsory Cross-Complaint Provisions Apply to Plaintiff in Eminent Domain Proceedings. CCP § 426.10 et seq. applies to eminent domain proceedings, notwithstanding CCP § 426.60(a), set forth above [CCP § 426.70(a)]. The related cause of action may be asserted by cross-complaint in an eminent domain proceeding whether or not the party asserting the cause of action has presented a claim in compliance with Gov Code § 900 et seq. to the plaintiff in the original eminent domain proceeding [CCP § 426.70(b)].

Distinguish:

However, CCP § 426.70(b) eliminates the claim against the public entity requirement only as against the plaintiff. Actions against third parties are not affected, nor are any relevant statutes of limitations [CCP § 426.70, Law Revision Comm'n cmt].

Chapter 16 Cross-Complaints
II. DETERMINING TYPE OF CROSS-COMPLAINT

1-16 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 16.08

16.08 When Compulsory Cross-Complaint Provisions Do Not Apply.

16.08[1] Compulsory Cross-Complaint Provisions Do Not Apply If Court Has No Jurisdiction Over Additional Necessary Parties. CCP § 426.10 et seq. does not apply if the cause of action not pleaded requires for its adjudication the presence of additional parties over whom the court cannot acquire jurisdiction [CCP § 426.40(a)].

16.08[2] Compulsory Cross-Complaint Provisions Do Not Apply If Cause of Action Is Prohibited by Courts. CCP § 426.10 et seq. does not apply if both the court in which the action is pending and any other court to which the action is transferrable pursuant to CCP § 396 (transfer to court with jurisdiction over action or proceedings) are prohibited by the federal or state constitution or by a statute from entertaining the cause of action not pleaded [CCP § 426.40(b)].

16.08[3] Compulsory Cross-Complaint Provisions Do Not Apply If Unpleaded Cause of Action Is Subject of a Pending Action. Compulsory cross-complaint provisions do not apply if at the time the action was commenced, the cause of action not pleaded was the subject of another pending action [CCP § 426.40(c)].

16.08[4] Compulsory Cross-Complaint Provisions Do Not Apply to Small Claims Court Cases. CCP § 426.10 et seq. do not apply to actions in the small claims court [CCP § 426.60(b)].

Cross Reference:

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 526, Small Claims (Matthew Bender).

16.08[5] Compulsory Cross-Complaint Provisions Do Not Apply to Declaratory Relief Actions. CCP § 426.10 et seq. do not apply when the only relief sought is a declaration of the rights and duties of the respective parties in an action for declaratory relief under CCP § 1060 et seq. [CCP § 426.60(c)]. The rationale for this rule is that declaratory relief actions afford a prompt adjudication of the parties' legal rights and duties, unencumbered by the litigation of other related disputes between the parties. Further, CCP § 1062.3(b) explicitly precludes an award of purely declaratory relief from limiting the availability of other types of relief on the same facts [ Mycogen Corp. v. Monsanto Co (2002) 28 C4th 888, 898, 123 CR2d 432, 51 P3d 297 ], and the same matters can sometimes be raised as affirmative defenses [see, e.g., C.J.L. Constr., Inc. v. Universal Plumbing (1990) 18 CA4th 376, 22 CR2d 360, 369-371 (worker's compensation insurer can seek offset for employer negligence as affirmative defense without requiring employer undergo participation in law suit without its consent)].

Chapter 16 Cross-Complaints
II. DETERMINING TYPE OF CROSS-COMPLAINT

1-16 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 16.09

16.09 Application for Leave to Amend Pleading or File Cross-Complaint.

16.09[1] Party May Seek to Amend Pleading or File Cross-Complaint After Inadvertently Failing to Plead Cause of Action. A party that fails to plead a cause of action subject to the requirements of CCP § 426.10 et seq., whether through oversight, inadvertence, mistake, neglect, or other cause, may apply to the court for leave to amend the pleading, or to file a cross-complaint, to assert that cause at any time during the course of the action [CCP § 426.50].

Cross Reference:

Ch. 34, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings.

16.09[2] Court Must Grant Relief If Party Acted in Good Faith. The court, after notice to the adverse party, shall grant, on such terms as may be just to the parties, leave to amend the pleading, or to file the cross-complaint, to assert the cause if the party who failed to plead the cause acted in good faith. CCP § 426.50 must be liberally construed to avoid forfeiture of causes of action [CCP § 426.50].

"Bad faith" is the opposite of good faith. Generally, it implies or involves actual or constructive fraud, a design to mislead or deceive another, or a neglect or refusal to fulfill some duty or some contractual obligation. Bad faith conduct is prompted not by an honest mistake, but rather by some interested or sinister motive; not simply by bad judgment or negligence, but rather by the conscious doing of a wrong because of dishonest purpose or moral obliquity. It contemplates a state of mind affirmatively operating with furtive design or ill will [ Silver Org. Ltd. v. Frank (1990) 217 CA3d 94, 100, 265 CR 681 ].

Example:

A motion seeking leave to file a cross-complaint should have been granted when the defendant attempted to settle the case in propria persona, then sought counsel, at first unsuccessfully. The attorney he finally retained conducted discovery, causing him to find grounds for the cross-complaint under CCP § 426.50. Although the motion was made shortly before trial, the defendant acted in good faith [ Silver Org. Ltd. v. Frank (1990) 217 CA3d 94, 99-101, 265 CR 681 ].

Strategic Point:

Although courts are required to construe the statute authorizing permissive cross-complaints liberally, parties should be mindful that leave to file cross-complaints is subject to a rule of reason, and denial of leave to amend will be reviewed on appeal only for abuse of discretion [see Flynn v. Page (1990) 218 CA3d 342, 347, 266 CR 830 ].

16.10 Reclassification of Case by Cross-Complaint.

16.10[1] If Cross-Complaint Causes Limited Civil Case to Be Reclassified, Caption Must So State. If a party in a limited civil case files a cross-complaint that causes the action or proceeding to exceed the maximum amount in controversy for a limited civil case or otherwise fail to satisfy the requirements for a limited civil case as prescribed by CCP § 85, the caption of the cross-complaint must state that the action or proceeding is a limited civil case to be reclassified by cross-complaint, or words to that effect [CCP § 403.030; see generally CCP § 403.010 et seq.; see also CCP §§ 403.040 (motion for reclassification), 403.050 (stipulation for reclassification)].

16.10[2] If Amended Cross-Complaint, or Other Amended Initial Pleading, Causes Limited Civil Case to Be Reclassified, Cross-Complainant Must Pay Additional Fee. If a plaintiff, cross-complainant, or petitioner files an amended complaint or other amended initial pleading that changes the jurisdictional classification from limited to unlimited, the party at the time of filing the pleading must pay the reclassification fee provided in CCP § 403.060, and the clerk shall promptly reclassify the case [CCP § 403.020(a)].

Distinguish--No Fee If Classification Is to Limited Civil Case:

If the amendment changes the jurisdictional classification from unlimited to limited, no reclassification fee is required, and the clerk shall promptly reclassify the case [CCP § 403.020(a)].

16.12 Time for Filing Cross-Complaint.

16.12[1] Cross-Complaint Against Party Who Filed Complaint or Cross-Complaint Must Be Filed With Answer. A party must file a cross-complaint against any of the parties who filed the complaint or cross-complaint against him or her before or at the same time as the answer to the complaint or cross-complaint [CCP § 428.50(a)].

16.12[2] Cross-Complaints Against Other Adverse Parties May Be Filed Before Trial Date Set. A party may file any other cross-complaints, other than those filed against adverse parties, at any time before the court has set a date for trial [CCP § 428.50(b)]. These cross-complaints may be filed without leave of the court at any time before the court has set a date for trial [see City of Hanford v. Superior Court (1989) 208 CA3d 580, 587, 256 CR 274 ].

16.12[3] Party Must Obtain Permission to File All Other Cross-Complaints. A party must obtain leave of court to file any cross-complaint except one filed within the time specified in CCP § 428.50(a) or (b). Leave may be granted in the interest of justice at any time during the course of the action [CCP § 428.50(c)]. CCP § 428.50(c) addresses all other cross-complaints not subject to CCP § 428.50(a) or (b) [see City of Hanford v. Superior Court (1989) 208 CA3d 580, 587, 256 CR 274 ].

Exception--No Cross-Complaint After Final Judgment:

A party may not file a cross-complaint after final judgment has been entered on the underlying complaint [ City of Hanford v. Superior Court (1989) 208 CA3d 580, 587, 256 CR 274 ].

III. FILING AND SERVING CROSS-COMPLAINTS

1-16 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 16.14

16.14 Filing and Service of Cross-Complaints and Related Matters Under Local Court Rules.

Local rules of court commonly reiterate the requirements of Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.110 for time and service requirements of cross-complaints. However, local rules do provide some variations that should be checked before preparing, serving, and filing a cross-complaint. Examples include:

- The court may extend the time standards for serving and filing a cross-complaint on noticed motion, but the parties may not do so by stipulation [Los Angeles Super Ct Rules, Rule 7.7(b)].
- A cross-complainant may not grant any cross-defendant an extension of time to file a responsive pleading to a cross-complaint beyond the date set for the case evaluation conference; a cross-complaint against an existing or new party must be served within 10 days of its filing unless a Certificate of Progress is filed indicating why service has not been effected and what is being done to effect service; and the court, on noticed motion by any party or its own motion, may sever a cross-complaint when continued processing of the cross-complaint will result in undue delay in bringing the underlying complaint to trial [Orange Super Ct Rules, Rule 440].
- A blank copy of the Judicial Council Case Management Statement and a copy of the local rules governing case management must be served along with the cross-complaint; and the 30-day time period after answering in which to file any cross-complaint is extended to 50 days if compliance with a government claims statute is a prerequisite to the cross-complaint [San Mateo Super Ct Rules, Rule 2.3(d)(2)].

Be sure to review the local rules regarding time extensions, sanctions, and orders to show cause for failing to follow delay reduction rules.

17.09[2] Specific Statutes Confer Jurisdiction on the Federal District Courts.

17.09[3] "Well-Pleaded Complaint Rule" Means Federal Question Must Appear on the Face of Plaintiff's Claim.

17.09[4] "Artful Pleading Exception" to "Well-Pleaded Complaint" Rule.

17.09[5] Complete Preemption by Federal Statute May Necessitate Removal.

17.10 Actions Involving Diversity Jurisdiction Are Removable to Federal Court.

17.10[1] Action Involving Diversity of Citizenship and Matter in Controversy Exceeding $75,000 Is Removable.

17.10[2] Diversity Case Removable Only If No Party Legitimately Joined As a Defendant Is a Citizen of the State Where the Action Is Brought.

17.10[3] Diversity Must Exist When the State Action Is Filed and When the Defendant Petitions for Removal.

17.10[4] Citizenship of Fictitious Defendant Is Irrelevant.

17.10[5] Fraudulent Joinder of Parties to Defeat Diversity May Preclude Removal.

17.10[6] Minimal Diversity Jurisdiction Is Basis for Removal.

17.10[7] Class Actions With Diversity of Plaintiffs and Involving More Than $5,000,000 May Be Removable.

17.10[7][a] Removal Statute Authorizes Removal of All Class Actions, Regardless of Whether A Defendant Is Citizen of State in Which Action Is Brought.

17.10[7][b] Federal Courts Have Jurisdiction of Class Actions Involving A Minimum of Diversity and More Than $5,000,000.

17.10[7][c] Federal Courts Have Jurisdiction of Mass Actions Constituting Class Actions.

17.10[7][d] Federal Jurisdiction Is Excepted for Certain Cases Where Two-Thirds of Class Members and Certain Defendants Are In-State.

17.10[7][e] Federal District Court Has Discretion to Decline Jurisdiction If More Than One-Third But Less Than Two-Thirds of Class Members and All Primary Defendants Are In-State.

17.10[7][f] Determination of Citizenship of Class Members.

17.11 Action May Be Removable Under Special Removal Statute.

17.11[1] Removal Available If Defendant Is United States or Its Agencies or Officers.

17.11[2] Removal of Certain Civil Rights Actions Available.

17.11[3] Removal Available if Defendant Is Foreign State.

17.11[4] Removal Available in Foreclosure Actions Against the United States.

17.11[5] Involvement of Certain Federal Agencies Is Basis for Removal.

17.11[6] Removal Available in Claims Related to Bankruptcy Cases.

17.12 When Federal Question Claim Is Joined With a State Claim, the Entire Case Is Removable.

17.13 Party Must File Notice of Removal.

17.13[1] Party Must File Notice in District Court.

17.13[2] Notice Must Contain Statement of Grounds for Removal.

17.13[3] Notice Must Be Filed Within 30 Days of Defendant Receiving Initial Pleading.

17.13[4] Removing Party Must Notify All Adverse Parties and File Copy of Notice With State Court.

17.14 All Defendants Must Join in Removal.

17.15 Party May File Notice of Removal If Amended Pleading or Motion Renders Case Removable.

17.16 Party May File Notice of Removal If Dismissal of a Resident Defendant Creates Diversity.

17.17 Plaintiff May Waive Objection to Notice of Removal by Appearing in District Court.

17.18 Removal Provides District Court With Immediate Jurisdiction.

17.18[1] Filing of Notice of Removal and Notice to Adverse Parties Effects Removal.

17.18[2] District Court May Determine Whether It Has Jurisdiction After Removal Is Effected.

17.18[3] Changes in Case Ordinarily Do Not Defeat Federal Jurisdiction.

17.18[4] Federal Court May Exercise Supplemental Jurisdiction to Hear State Law Claims.

17.18[5] Federal Rules of Civil Procedure Apply to Removed Action.

17.18[6] Federal Court May Issue Orders and Process.

17.19 Removal Terminates State Court's Jurisdiction.

17.20 Federal Court Takes Removed Case As It Finds It.

17.21 Court Has Several Options When Plaintiff Joins New Defendant After Removal.

17.22 Defendant Who Has Not Answered As of Time of Removal Generally Has 20 Days to Do So.

17.23 Party May Demand Jury Trial After Removal.

17.24 CHECKLIST: Moving to Remand and Seeking Appellate Review of Removal.

17.24[1] Checklist for Party Making Motion to Remand.

17.24[2] Checklist for Party Opposing Motion to Remand.

17.25 Options and Strategies for Party Moving to Remand and Seeking Appellate Review of Removal.

17.26 Grounds for Remand.

17.26[1] Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction Is Basis for Remand.

Chapter 17 Removal to Federal Court
I. STRATEGY

1-17 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 17.02

17.02 Objective and Strategy.

Removal is a procedure used by defendants to remove an action from a state court to a federal district court. A party may move to remand the action if there was a defect in the removal procedure or the district court lacks subject matter jurisdiction.

Removal is sought by defendants for several reasons:

- A preference for the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure;
- A preference for the federal bench, such as its perceived relative proclivity to deny certification of class in class actions;
- Differing federal standards applicable to a motion for summary judgment;
- A desire to have certain issues decided by the federal bench when they are more frequently litigated in federal court and thus the federal judge is more familiar with the issues;
- The federal courts have exclusive jurisdiction over the action (e.g., ERISA) [see 17.09[2],[5]];
  - Preference for the applicable provisions of federal law, such as the "Consumer Class Action Bill of Rights" [see 28 USC § 1711 et seq.].

Depending on the jurisdiction, the federal court may move faster or slower than state court proceedings and thus counsel should consider the likely timing of the action in considering whether or not to remove.

Chapter 17 Removal to Federal Court
II. REMOVING ACTION TO FEDERAL COURT

1-17 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 17.03

17.03 CHECKLIST: Removing Action to Federal Court.

☐ Determine whether federal court has original jurisdiction over action:

☐ Federal question involving a claim or right arising out of the Constitution, treaties, or laws of the United States.

Authority:

28 USC § 1441(b)

Discussion:

See 17.05[2], 17.09

☐ Action involving diversity of citizenship.

☐ No defendant is a citizen of California.

☐ Matter in controversy exceeds $75,000 exclusive of interest and costs.

Authority:

28 USC §§ 1332(a), 1441(b)

Discussion:

See 17.05[3], 17.10

☐ Actions brought against the United States or its agencies or officers.

Authority:

28 USC § 1442(a)(1)

Discussion:

See 17.11[1]

- ☐ Actions brought by an alien against a non-resident federal civil officer.

Authority:

28 USC § 1442(b)

Discussion:

See 17.11[1]

- ☐ Certain civil rights actions.

Authority:

28 USC § 1443

Discussion:

See 17.11[2]

- ☐ Actions against foreign states.

Authority:

28 USC § 1441(d)

Discussion:

See 17.11[3]

- ☐ Foreclosure Actions against the United States.

Authority:

28 USC § 1444

Discussion:

See 17.11[4]

- ☐ Actions involving certain federal agencies.

Authority:

12 USC § 1441a(a)(11) (Resolution Trust Corporation); 12 USC § 1819(b)(2)(B) (Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation)

Discussion:

See 17.11[5]

- ☐ Claims related to bankruptcy cases.

Authority:

28 USC § 1452(a)

Discussion:

See 17.11[6]

☐ Action involving "minimal diversity" that arises from single accident at a discrete location with at least 75 fatalities, if one of the following exists:

☐ A defendant reside sin one state and a substantial part of the accident took place in another state or other location, regardless of whether that defendant is also a resident of the state where a substantial part of the accident took place;

☐ Any two defendants reside in different states, regardless of whether those defendants are also residents of the same state or states; or ☐ Substantial parts of the accident took place in different states.

Authority:

28 USC §§ 1369(a), 1441(e)

Discussion:

See 17.10[6]

☐ Class action, and certain mass actions otherwise qualifying for class action jurisdiction, that involve an amount in controversy greater than $5,000,000 and one of the following applies:

☐ Any class member is a citizen of a state different from any defendant;

☐ Any class member is a foreign state or a citizen or subject of a foreign state, and any defendant is a citizen of a state; or ☐ Any class member is a citizen of a state and any defendant is a foreign state or a citizen or subject of a foreign state.

Authority:

28 USC §§ 1332(d)(2), 1453(b)

Exceptions:

Exceptions to federal district court jurisdiction of class actions in these categories exist for certain actions involving covered securities or securities under the Securities Act of 1933 and the Securities and Exchange Act of 1934, state law claims concerning internal affairs or corporate governance of corporations, governmental defendants, small classes, and certain cases in which more than two-thirds of class members are citizens on the same state. Further, the federal court may decline under statutory criteria to exercise jurisdiction over class actions in which more than one-third but less than two-thirds of class members are citizens on the same state.

Discussion:

See 17.10[7]

☐ Determine if action is non-removable:

- ☐ An action against a railroad or its receivers or trustees arising under 45 USC §§ 51-60.
- ☐ An action against a carrier or its receivers or trustees to recover damages for delay, loss, or injury of shipments arising under 49 USC § 11706 or 14706, unless the matter in controversy exceeds $10,000, exclusive of interest and costs.
- ☐ An action arising under state worker's compensation laws.
- ☐ An action arising under section 40302 of the Violence Against Women Act of 1994 [see 42 USC § 13981].

Authority:

28 USC § 1445

Discussion:

See 17.06

☐ Verify defendant has not waived right to removal by:

- ☐ Filing permissive counterclaim;
- ☐ Filing third party complaint; or
- ☐ Other qualifying action.

Authority:

California Republican Party v. Mercier (CD Cal 1986) 652 F Supp 928, 931-932

Discussion:

See 17.08

☐ Obtain all defendants' agreement to remove action.

Authority:

Varney v. Johns-Manville Corp. (ND Cal 1987) 653 F Supp 839, 840 n1

Exception:

Removal of a class action does not require the consent of any other defendant [28 USC § 1453(b)].

Discussion:

See 17.14

☐ File notice of removal in federal district court for district and division where action is pending.

- ☐ Include short, plain statement of grounds for removal.
- ☐ Sign the notice pursuant to Fed R Civ P, Rule 11.
- ☐ Include a copy of all process, pleadings, and orders served in state action.

Authority:

28 USC § 1446(a)

Discussion:

See 17.15

Forms:

See 17.34, 17.35

Determine timing:

- ☐ File notice within the shorter of thirty days after:
  - ☐ Defendant's receipt of a copy of the initial pleading, or
  - ☐ Service of summons on defendant.

Authority:

28 USC § 1446(b)

Exception:

In an action removed under 28 USC § 1441(e)(1) the notice of removal may also be filed before trial of the state court action within 30 days after defendant first becomes a party to a minimal diversity action under 28 USC § 1369 that arises from the same accident as the state court action, or at a later time with leave of the district court [28 USC § 1441(e)(1)].

Discussion:

See 17.13[3]

☐ When case as stated by initial pleadings is not removable, but subsequently becomes removable, defendant must file notice of removal within 30 days after receipt of copy of pleading, motion, order, or other paper that first demonstrates that a case has become removable.

Authority:

28 USC § 1446(b)

Discussion:

See 17.15

Exception:

A case may not be removed on the basis of diversity of citizenship more than one year after commencement of the action [28 USC §§ 1332, 1446(b)], unless the action is a class action [28 USC § 1453(b)].

- ☐ Give written notice to all adverse parties, including other defendants not joining in the removal of a class action.

Timing:

Promptly after filing the notice of removal.

Authority:

28 USC § 1446(d)

Discussion:

See 17.13[4]

- ☐ File copy of notice with state court.

Authority:

28 USC § 1446(d)

Discussion:

See 17.13[4]

Form:

Chapter 17 Removal to Federal Court
II. REMOVING ACTION TO FEDERAL COURT

1-17 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 17.04

17.04 Options and Strategies for Party Seeking to Remove Action.

The removing party must consider the appropriate timing for removal [see 17.13[3]]. One should ensure that the client did not receive a "courtesy copy" of the complaint without taking action, which may defeat the 30-day timing requirement for removal.

The party should also consider the local state and federal dockets to assess the relative timing of the suit in state or federal court.

A federal judge will not be happy to receive a case of either de minimis value or without a truly significant legal question. Parties should consider the need for the consent of all parties. One option for a defendant is to offer the plaintiff the opportunity to stipulate that the damages sought are not in excess of $75,000 in return for an agreement that the matter will not be removed to federal court.

Under the federal Class Action Fairness Act of 2005 [Pub L 109-2], a single defendant may remove a qualifying case to federal court even before certification of class. This use of a version of minimal diversity [see StateFarm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Tashire, 386 US 523, 530, 87 S Ct 1199, 18 L Ed2d 270 (1967)] along with the relative proclivity of federal judges to deny class certification makes this provision advantageous to even single defendants opposing making the action a class action. Furthermore, the Act broadens the right to remove cases to test jurisdiction and to interlocutory appeal of remand decisions to federal appellate courts, giving defendants every opportunity to have federal rather than state courts deciding the extent of their jurisdiction under the complicated and unrefined provisions of the Act.

The defendant must recognize that the federal court procedures do not allow the equivalent of a disqualification of a judge by peremptory challenge [see CCP § 170.6]. Thus, if there are any members of the local federal bench not desirable for a particular case, removal should be carefully considered.

➤ Investigating Judges Using Online Resources:

Many resources are available online for investigating judges. These resources can help you find information and cases pertaining to your assigned judge. For example, helpful resources at lexis.com include:

- For opinions or decisions affirming or reversing a judge's rulings, search in, search the biographies in Legal tab > Cases--U.S. > All Courts--By Circuit > 9th Circuit--Federal and State Cases, Combined

☐ Sample search: For appellate rulings regardless of topic, use the HISTORY segment with the judge's last name in this format: history (first name /3 last name /3 j or judge or judicial or mag or hon!).

- To find biographical information about a federal judge, search the biographies in Legal tab > Reference > Law > Judicial Staff Directory

☐ Sample search: For a particular judge, try: name (first name /3 lastname).

- To find news articles about a judge, search in the California news files Legal tab > States Legal--U.S. > California > Search News > General News > California News Publications

☐ Sample search: For a particular judge, try a simple search: first name/3 last name.

- To find articles about a judge or legal articles written by the judge both before and after the judge took the bench, search the law reviews and other periodicals in Legal tab > Secondary Legal > Law Reviews, CLE, Legal Journals & Periodicals, Combined

☐ Sample search: For legal articles written by a particular judge, try a simple search: firstname /3 last name.

Most federal courts employ magistrate judges for discovery disputes. This may be an advantage or disadvantage, depending on the particular circumstances of the case. The timing and meet and confer requirements for discovery motions also differ in federal court.

Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 16, Pretrial Conferences; Scheduling; Management (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure provide for voluntary disclosures of evidence, as well as an entirely different procedure for the disclosure of expert witness information [see Fed R Civ P 26]. Federal courts generally impose far more significant requirements for pretrial orders and procedures, which should be considered as well.

Chapter 17 Removal to Federal Court
II. REMOVING ACTION TO FEDERAL COURT

1-17 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 17.05

17.05 Grounds for Removal to Federal District Court.

17.05[1] Federal Court Must Have Original Jurisdiction. Generally, any civil action in which a federal district court has original jurisdiction may be removed from state court to the federal district court for the district and division embracing the place where the state action is pending [28 USC § 1441(a)].

Exceptions:

Congress has specified certain instances in which civil actions in a state court are not removable to federal court. For a discussion of these exceptions, see 17.06.

The Supreme Court has held that the All Writs Act [28 USC § 1651], either by itself or in conjunction with the doctrine of ancillary enforcement jurisdiction, does not supply a basis of removal jurisdiction over a state court action that does not fall within the original jurisdiction of the federal courts [ Syngenta Crop Prot., Inc. v. Henson (2002) 537 US 28, 123 S Ct 366, 154 L Ed2d 368 ].

It appears that cases involving special proceedings as well as civil proceedings are removable to federal court [see, e.g., Drainage Dist. No.19 v. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co. (WD Mo 1912) 198 F 253 6 (assessment proceeding)].

Distinguish:

The Ninth Circuit has held that a court-like proceeding conducted by a state administrative agency is not subject to removal [ Oregon Bureau of Labor & Indus., ex rel. Richardson v. U.S. W. Communications, Inc. (9th Cir 2002) 288 F3d 414, 417-420 (state administrative agency proceeding)]. By adopting a literal reading of the general removal statute, the court rejected the "functional test" approach that focuses on the nature of the proceeding rather than the nature of the tribunal [see, e.g., Volkswagen de Puerto Rico, Inc. v. Puerto Rico Labor Relations Bd. (1st Cir 1972) 454 F2d 38 ; Wirtz Corp. v. United Distillers & Vintners, N. Am., Inc. (7th Cir 2000) 224 F3d 708 ].

➤ Cross Reference:

Discussion, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, 3.05

; or

Moore's Federal Practice, § 107.14 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

17.05[2] Federal Question Is Basis for Removal. Removal to federal court is available in cases involving a claim or right arising under the Constitution, treaties, or laws of the United States (federal question) [28 USC § 1331].

 Cross References:

Discussion, see 17.09.

Additional analysis of federal question, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, 3.09.

17.05[3] Diversity of Citizenship Is Basis for Removal. Removal to federal court is available in actions brought between citizens of different states when the matter in controversy exceeds $75,000, exclusive of interest and costs [28 USC § 1332].

 Cross References:

Discussion, see 17.10.

Additional analysis of diversity, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, 3.10.

In addition, class actions, including certain mass actions treated as class actions, for more than $5,000,000 involving minimal diversity jurisdiction may be removable to federal court [28 USC § 1332(d)].

 Cross Reference:

Detailed discussion, see Cabraser, California Class Actions Practice and Procedure, Ch. 11, Removal and Remand of Class Actions Filed in State Court (Matthew Bender).

17.05[4] Special Removal Statute Is Basis for Removal. Certain federal statutes allow for removal to federal court, in some cases even when the federal court does not have original jurisdiction. Such statutes include:

- Removal of actions brought against certain federal agencies and officers [28 USC § 1442; see 17.11[1]];
- Removal of certain civil rights actions [28 USC § 1443; see 17.11[2]];
- Civil actions against foreign states [28 USC § 1441(d); see 17.11[3]];
- Foreclosure actions against the United States [28 USC §§ 1444; see 17.11[4]];
- Resolution Trust Corporation cases [12 USC § 1441a(l)(3); see 17.11[5]];
- Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation cases [12 USC § 1819(b)(2)(A); see 17.11[5]]; and
- Claims related to bankruptcy cases [28 USC § 1452(a); see 17.11[6]].

Chapter 17 Removal to Federal Court
II. REMOVING ACTION TO FEDERAL COURT

1-17 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 17.06

17.06 Federal Statute Prohibits Removal in Certain Actions.

Congress has specified certain civil actions that are not removable to federal district court. These include the following:

- An action against a railroad or its receivers or trustees arising under 45 USC §§ 51-60 [28 USC § 1445(a)].
- An action against a carrier or its receivers or trustees to recover damages for delay, loss, or injury of shipments arising under 49 USC § 11706 or 14706, unless the matter in controversy exceeds $10,000, exclusive of interest and costs [28 USC § 1445(b)].
- An action arising under state worker's compensation laws [28 USC § 1445(c)].
- An action arising under section 40302 of the Violence Against Women Act of 1994 [28 USC § 1445(d); see 42 USC § 13981].

Distinguish:

The Ninth Circuit has held that the statutory bar against removal of workers' compensation cases does not bar removal of a city's claim against the transit board for recovery of workers' compensation benefits paid to a police officer injured while on duty, even though the city served the state court complaint on the other defendants before removal. The city's claim was first properly filed in federal court and the other defendants waived their right to remand the city's claim to state court [ Vasquez v. North County Transit Dist. (9th Cir 2002) 292 F3d 1049, 1060-1062 ]. The court noted that the unusual circumstances of this case permitted removal.

Removal of an action from state court to federal court is purely statutory in nature and cannot be conferred by consent of the parties [ *Pennsylvania v. II. REMOVING ACTION TO FEDERAL COURT

1-17 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 17.08

17.08 Defendant May Waive Removal Right.

Certain affirmative actions by a defendant in state court can constitute waiver and defeat the defendant's right to remove the action to federal court.

Examples:

The filing of a permissive counterclaim, filing of a third-party complaint, and seeking of a continuance in an unlawful detainer proceeding all constitute waiver [ Schmitt v. Insurance Co. of North America, (9th Cir 1988) 845 F2d 1546, 1548 ; California Republican Party v. Mercier (CD Cal 1986) 652 F Supp 928, 931-932 ].

The following have all been held not to constitute a waiver:

- Filing an answer [ Haun v. Retail Credit Co. (WD Pa 1976) 420 F Supp 859, 864 ].
- Filing a demurrer [ Hildreth v. General Instrument, Inc. (D SC 1966) 258 F Supp 29, 30-31 ].
- Motion to abate and dismiss, and appearance in opposition to a temporary injunction [ Bedell v. HRC Ltd. (ED Ky 1981) 522 F Supp 732, 738 ].

Strategic Point:

A defendant's action taken before it is apparent that the case can be removed will not constitute waiver [ Akin v. Ashland Chem. Co. (10th Cir 1998) 156 F3d 1030, 1036 ; California Republican Party v. Mercier (CD Cal 1986) 652 F Supp 928, 931-932 ].

Chapter 17 Removal to Federal Court
II. REMOVING ACTION TO FEDERAL COURT

1-17 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 17.09

17.09 Actions Involving a Federal Question Are Removable to Federal Court.

17.09[1] Action Founded on a Claim or Right Arising Under U.S. Constitution, Laws, or Treaties Is Removable. When a plaintiff's cause of action presents a substantial dispute over the effect of a federal law and the result turns on the federal question, the federal courts have federal question jurisdiction and the case is removable to federal court [28 USC §§ 1331, 1441(a), (b)].

Distinguish:

The federal law upon which federal question jurisdiction is based must provide a private right of action in order for the case to raise a substantial federal question. Otherwise, the action is properly a state law action based on the violation of a federal law [ Merrell Dow Pharm. v. Thompson (1986) 478 US 804, 813-814, 478 US 804, 92 L Ed2d 650 ; Utley v. Varian Assocs., Inc. (9th Cir 1987) 811 F2d 1279, 1283, 1286 ].

➡ Cross Reference:

Discussion of federal question, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, 3.09; or Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 103.30-103.33; 107.14[3] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

17.09[2] Specific Statutes Confer Jurisdiction on the Federal District Courts. Certain federal statutes specifically confer jurisdiction on federal district courts. Examples of specific federal question statutes include:

- Actions against foreign states pursuant to the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act [28 USC § 1330 (exclusive federal jurisdiction)];
- Suits arising under patent, trademarks, copyright, and plant-protection laws (exclusive federal jurisdiction) [28 USC § 1338];
- Suits arising under any act of Congress regulating interstate commerce or protecting trade and commerce against restraints and monopolies (concurrent jurisdiction) [28 USC § 1337];

- Bankruptcy actions (exclusive federal jurisdiction) [28 USC § 1334];
- Actions involving the Internal Revenue Service (exclusive federal jurisdiction) [28 USC § 1340];
- Admiralty Cases (exclusive jurisdiction) [28 USC § 1333];
- Civil rights actions (concurrent jurisdiction) [28 USC § 1343];
- Certain specific actions against the United States (concurrent jurisdiction) [28 USC §§ 1346(a), (d), 1491], including tort claims [28 USC § 1346(b)];
- Securities actions based on federal statutes (exclusive jurisdiction) [15 USC § 78aa];
- Suits arising under any laws relating to the post office (concurrent jurisdiction) [28 USC § 1339];
- Employment discrimination actions arising under Title VII (exclusive jurisdiction) [42 USC § 2000e-5(f)];
- Pension benefits actions arising under ERISA (exclusive jurisdiction) [29 USC § 1132(e)]; and
- Actions for environmental damage brought under CERCLA (exclusive jurisdiction) [42 USC § 9613(b)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of specific removal statutes, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, 3.13; or Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 104.05-104.55; 107.14[5] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

17.09[3] "Well-Pleaded Complaint Rule" Means Federal Question Must Appear on the Face of Plaintiff's Claim. "[T]he 'well-pleaded complaint rule' provides that federal jurisdiction exists only when a federal question is presented on the face of the plaintiff's properly pleaded complaint" [ Aetna Health, Inc. v. Juan Davila Cigna Healthcare of Texas, Inc. (2004) 542 US 200, 124 S Ct 2488, 159 L Ed2d 312 ; Caterpillar, Inc. v. Williams (1987) 482 US 386, 107 S Ct 2425, 96 L Ed2d 318 ; Westinghouse Elec. Corp. v. Newman & Holtzinger, P.C. (9th Cir 1993) 992 F2d 932, 934 ]. Plaintiff's statement of his or her claim must demonstrate the existence of a federal question, and a right or immunity created by the United States Constitution, laws, or treaties must be an essential element of plaintiff's cause of action. This is known as the "well-pleaded complaint" rule [ FranchiseTax Bd. of Cal. v. Construction Laborers Vacation Trust for S. Cal. (1983) 463 US 1, 9-12, 103 S Ct 2841, 77 L Ed2d 420 ; Ramirez v. Fox Television Station, Inc. (9th Cir 1993) 998 F2d 743, 747 ; Carpenters S. Cal. Admin. Corp. v. Majestic Housing (9th Cir 1984) 743 F2d 1341, 1344 ].

Strategic Point:

The well-pleaded complaint rule means, for practical purposes, that there is no federal question jurisdiction when plaintiff pleads a state law cause of action, even if a federal defense is available to defendant.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of well-pleaded complaint rule, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial

Civil Procedure in California, 2.07[2]; or Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 103.40-103.47 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

17.09[4] "Artful Pleading Exception" to "Well-Pleaded Complaint" Rule. In certain cases a plaintiff may attempt to plead a state law claim in order to defeat the defendant's right to a federal forum (the "artful pleading exception"). If the only remedy available to the plaintiff is federal, and the court must necessarily look to federal law to adjudicate the claim, the case is removable to federal court [ Salveson v. Western States Bankcard Ass'n (9th Cir 1984) 731 F2d 1423, 1426-1427 ; Sullivan v. First Affiliated Sec., Inc. (9th Cir 1987) 813 F2d 1368, 1372 ].

Exception to "Well-Pleaded Complaint" Rule: When removal is expressly authorized by statute [ Mesa v. California (1989) 489 US 121, 134-136, 109 S Ct 959, 103 L Ed2d 99 ].

Warning:

This is a narrow exception and will be applied only if the complained of conduct is governed exclusively by federal law [ Sullivan v. First Affiliated Sec., Inc. (9th Cir 1987) 813 F2d 1368, 1372 ].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of artful pleading exception, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California, 2.07[2][c]; or Moore's Federal Practice, § 103.43 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

17.09[5] Complete Preemption by Federal Statute May Necessitate Removal. In some areas, a federal law may completely preempt state laws. In such a situation, an action framed by a plaintiff as being based on state law is removable to federal court despite the "well-pleaded complaint" rule because of the complete preemption by federal law [see Beneficial Nat'l Bank v. Anderson (2003) 539 US 1, 4, 123 S Ct 2058, 156 L Ed2d 1 ; Ramirez v. Fox Television Station, Inc. (9th Cir 1993) 998 F2d 743, 747 ; see also Caterpillar v. Williams (1987) 482 US 386, 392-393, 107 S Ct 2425, 96 L Ed2d 318 ; Metropolitan Life Ins.Co. v. Taylor (1987) 481 US 58, 63-64, 107 S Ct 1542, 95 L Ed2d 55 ].

Examples:

Complete preemption has been found in the following cases:

- Beneficial Nat'l Bank v. Anderson (2003) 539 US 1, 5, 123 S Ct 2058, 156 L Ed2d 1 (state law usury claims against national bank completely preempted by National Bank Act).
- Aetna Health, Inc. v. Juan Davila Cigna Healthcare of Texas, Inc. (2004) 542 US 200, 124 S Ct 2488, 159 L Ed2d 312 (state statutory claims against health maintenance organizations for alleged failures to exercise ordinary care in the handling of coverage decisions preempted by ERISA (29 USC § 1132(a) et seq.)).
- Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Taylor (1987) 481 US 58, 64, 107 S Ct 1542, 95 L Ed2d 55 (state contract and tort claims for improper processing of disability claim and wrongful termination completely preempted by and within civil enforcement provisions of ERISA).
- Oneida Indian Nation of New York v. County of Oneida (1974) 414 US 661, 675-676, 94 S Ct 772, 39 L Ed2d 73 (state law complaint alleging right of possession to Indian tribal lands completely preempted).
- Avco Corp. v. Aero Lodge No. 735, Int'l Ass'n of Machinists & Aerospace Workers (1968) 390 US 557, 559-561, 88 S Ct 1235, 20 L Ed2d 126 (state law action to enforce collective bargaining contracts).

completely preempted by § 301 of Labor Management Relations Act).

- Falkowski v. Imation Corp. (9th Cir 2002) 309 F3d 1123, 1129-1131 (Securities Litigation Uniform Standards Act (SLUSA) completely preempts employees state court class action claims alleging that their employer fraudulently induced them to remain by misrepresenting the worth of stock options).

- Stikes v. Chevron USA, Inc. (9th Cir 1991) 914 F2d 1265, 1267 (state law claim based on Cal Const, art I, § 1 for an employer's alleged violation of employee's right to privacy completely preempted by Section 301 of the Labor Management Relations Act of 1947 29 USC § 185).

Distinguish:

The above situation only applies when federal law has completely preempted state law in a given circumstance. In other cases, a defendant may simply raise preemption as a defense to plaintiff's state law claim, and a court determining whether removal is proper must look to the true nature of plaintiff's complaint and whether Congress intended complete preemption [see Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Taylor (1987) 481 US 58, 66-67, 107 S Ct 1542, 95 L Ed2d 55 ; see also Caterpillar v. Williams (1987) 482 US 386, 393, 107 S Ct 2425, 96 L Ed2d 318 ; Ramirez v. Fox Television Station, Inc. (9th Cir 1993) 998 F2d 743, 747 ].

Chapter 17 Removal to Federal Court
II. REMOVING ACTION TO FEDERAL COURT

1-17 MB Practice Guide: CA Pretrial Civil Procedure 17.10

17.10 Actions Involving Diversity Jurisdiction Are Removable to Federal Court.

17.10[1] Action Involving Diversity of Citizenship and Matter in Controversy Exceeding $75,000 Is Removable. Federal district courts have jurisdiction in civil actions in which the matter in controversy exceeds $75,000, exclusive of interest and costs, and the action is between either [28 USC § 1332(a)]:

- Citizens of different states;
- Citizens of a state and citizens or subjects of a foreign state;
- Citizens of different states and in which citizens or subjects of a foreign state thereof are additional parties;
- A foreign state as plaintiff and citizens of a state or of different states.

For purposes of diversity jurisdiction, the citizenship of a corporation is its state of incorporation and the state where its principal place of business is located [28 USC § 1332(a)(c)(1)].

➡ Cross Reference:

Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 102, Diversity Jurisdiction; Ch. 107, Removal, § 107.14[2] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

17.10[2] Diversity Case Removable Only If No Party Legitimately Joined As a Defendant Is a Citizen of the State Where the Action Is Brought. In order for a diversity case to be removable, no party in interest properly joined as a defendant may be a citizen of the state in which the action is brought [28 USC § 1441(b); City & County of San Francisco v. Civil Serv. Comm'n (NDCal 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 13523, at *20-21 ; Motor Vehicle Cas. Co. v.

Russian River County Sanitation Dist. (ND Cal 1981) 538 F Supp 488, 491 n5 ].

If it is not facially evident from the complaint that more than $ 75,000 is in controversy, the court may look to the removal notice and extrinsic evidence. The moving party must prove by a preponderance of the evidence that the amount in controversy meets the jurisdictional threshold [ Valdez v. Allstate Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2004) 372 F3d 1115, 1117 (conclusory allegation insufficient proof)].
