6.11[2][b] Particular Circumstances of Fraud Must Be Alleged. The requirements of particularity may differ with the facts of each case. However, the circumstances constituting fraud usually include the following [see In re Glenfed, Inc. Sec. Litig. (9th Cir 1994) 42 F3d 1541, 1547 n7 (en banc) (citing Moore's)]:

- The fraudulent statement.
- The time and place of the fraudulent statement.
- The person or persons making the fraudulent statement.
- The method of communicating the fraudulent statement.
- An explanation of why the statement was misleading.
- The resulting injury.

Example--Insufficient Detail:

A complaint that alleges corporate fraud does not meet the particularity requirement by making a general allegation of "confidential non-public information" that would reveal "true facts" inconsistent with the allegedly fraudulent statements [Yourish v. California Amplifier (9th Cir 1999) 191 F3d 983, 994-996 ; see Glazer Capital Mgmt., LP v. Magistri (9th Cir 2008) 549 F3d 736, 743-745 (discussing doctrines of "collective scienter" and "group pleading," but declining to decide whether it is possible to plead scienter under collective theory); *cf. McCasland v. FormFactor Inc. (ND Cal 2008) 2008 US Dist LEXIS 60544, at *22-23 (rejecting concept of "collective scienter" and holding that for each allegedly false or misleading statement, plaintiff must specify statement, describe circumstances under which it occurred, identify declarant, state why statement was false when made, and plead facts that give rise to strong inference of recklessness and strongly suggest scienter)].

Strategic Point--Defendant:

If the plaintiff has not done so, the defendant should move to require the plaintiff to attach copies of documents forming the basis of the fraud claim to the complaint [see, e.g., United States v. Sequel Contractors, Inc. (CD Cal 2005) 402 F Supp2d 1142, 1154].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of additional requirements for pleading fraud in a private securities fraud action under the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995 [15 USC § 78u-4(b)], see § 6.11[4].

6.11[2][c] Each Defendant's Participation in Fraud Must Be Described. If multiple defendants are accused of committing a fraud, the complaint should make specific and separate allegations against each defendant [*see Middlesex Ret. Sys. v. Quest Software, Inc. (CD Cal 2008) 2008 US Dist LEXIS 68419, at 7] .

6.11[2][d] Substantive Elements of Fraud Must Be Alleged. The particular circumstances that must be pleaded in a fraud case depend on the substantive elements of a fraud claim under applicable substantive law. Thus, if a claim is based on substantive federal law, the elements of fraud are defined by federal law [Pence v. United States (1942) 316 US 332, 334, 62 S Ct 1080, 86 L Ed 1510]. If the federal court's jurisdiction over a claim is based on diversity of citizenship or supplemental jurisdiction, state substantive law usually defines fraud [see 389 Orange St. Partners v. Arnold (9th Cir 1999) 170 F3d 1200, 1205 n2].

Warning:

In an action in federal district court, even if state law provides the elements of fraud, the plaintiff must plead the circumstances constituting the fraud with particularity [389 Orange St. Partners v. Arnold (9th Cir 1999) 170 F3d 1200, 1205 n2 ; see Fed R Civ P 9(b)].

6.11[2][e] Fraud Is Alleged on Information and Belief When Details Are Inaccessible. Pleadings alleging fraud based on information and belief usually do not satisfy the particularity requirement. However, when the facts constituting fraud are particularly within the defendant's knowledge or are otherwise inaccessible to the plaintiff, the particularity requirement may be satisfied by pleading fraud on information and belief, if the complaint identifies the available information on which the allegation of fraud is founded, as well as the efforts made to obtain additional information [see United States ex rel. Lee v. SmithKline Beecham, Inc. (9th Cir 2001) 245 F3d 1048, 1051-1052]. This rule excuses a party from pleading intent under an elevated pleading standard; it does not allow a party to evade Rule 8's pleading requirements that plaintiff allege enough facts to state a claim for relief that is plausible on its face [see Ashcroft v. Iqbal (2009) ___ US ___, 129 S Ct 1937, 173 L Ed2d 868, 889 (discrimination action)].

Example--Insufficient Basis for Pleading on Information and Belief:

In one case, the Ninth Circuit held that, although the particularity requirement may be relaxed if evidence of fraud is within the defendant's exclusive possession, there was insufficient reason to relax the requirement for a plaintiff who brought a False Claims Act suit against his former employer. Having been an employee of the defendant, the plaintiff had had adequate access to necessary facts and had no legitimate excuse for filing a vague complaint [United States ex rel. Lee v. SmithKline Beecham, Inc. (9th Cir 2001) 245 F3d 1048, 1051-1052].

6.11[2][f] Particularity in Pleading Mixed Claims. The particularity requirement applies to all averments of fraud, whether in the context of common-law or statutory claims [In re Glenfed, Inc. Sec. Litig. (9th Cir 1994) 42 F3d 1541, 1545 n3 (en banc)].

Example:

The particularity requirement applied to plaintiff's fraud claims in his putative class action against defendant car dealership, alleging violation of California's consumer protection statutes (California's Consumers Legal Remedies Act, CC §§ 1750-1784, and California's Unfair Competition Law, B & P C §§ 17200-17210), related to misrepresentations and fraud by defendant regarding its "certified pre-owned" vehicles program. Even though fraud was not a necessary element of plaintiff's claims under either statute, his claims were all grounded in fraud [Kearns v. Ford Motor Co. (9th Cir 2009) 567 F3d 1120, 1125-1126] .

Distinguish:

If fraud is an essential element of a claim, then the pleading of that claim as a whole must satisfy the particularity requirement [Vess v. Ciba-Geigy Corp. USA (9th Cir 2003) 317 F3d 1097, 1103-1104]. However, if a claim combines an allegation of fraud with an allegation of nonfraudulent wrongdoing, only the fraud is subject to the particularity requirement [Vess v. Ciba-Geigy Corp. USA (9th Cir 2003) 317 F3d 1097, 1104-1105 ; Lewis v. Sporck (ND Cal 1985) 612 F Supp 1316, 1324].

Example:

A civil claim under the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act (RICO) involves predicate racketeering acts that may be based on fraud, as well as the existence of an enterprise to carry on the racketeering [see 18 USC § 1961 et seq.]. Although fraud-based predicate acts in a RICO civil claim must be pleaded with particularity, nonfraudulent predicate acts, and the existence of the racketeering enterprise, in the same action may be averred generally [Lewis v. Sporck (ND Cal 1985) 612 F Supp 1316, 1324].

6.11[2][g] Consequences of Failure to Comply With Particularity Requirement. The defendant may raise a failure to plead fraud or mistake with sufficient particularity by a motion to dismiss or a motion for a more definite statement [see Fed R Civ P 12(b)(6), (e)].

Consider:

If the complaint fails to satisfy the particularity requirement, the court will usually allow the plaintiff to amend the complaint to bring it into compliance, unless an amendment would be futile [see Doe v. United States (9th Cir 1995) 58 F3d 494, 497].

Cross References:

6.11[3] Pleading Conditions of Mind.

6.11[3][a] Averring Conditions of Mind Generally. Malice, intent, knowledge, and any other condition of mind of a person may be averred generally [Fed R Civ P 9(b)].

6.11[3][b] Making General Averment of Scienter in Fraud Claim. Because state of mind may be averred generally, the particularity requirement for pleading a claim of fraud applies only to the specific statements or conduct giving rise to the fraud claim. Scienter, the defendant's specific intent to defraud, may be averred generally [In re GlenFed, Inc. Sec. Litig. (9th Cir 1994) 42 F3d 1541, 1547 (en banc)].

Exception:

In a securities fraud class action, the complaint must include a statement that identifies with particularity the facts giving rise to a strong inference that the defendant acted with an intent to defraud [15 USC § 78u-4(b)(2)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of special requirements for pleading securities fraud in a class action, see § 6.11[4].

6.11[3][c] Defendant's Motion for More Definite Statement. If a general averment of condition of mind is so vague or ambiguous thatthe defendant cannot reasonably be required to frame a responsive pleading, the court may require more detail of the plaintiff by granting the defendant's motion for a more definite statement [see Fed R Civ P 12(e)].

Cross Reference:

Coverage of a motion for a more definite statement, see Ch. 8, Answers and Responsive Motions Under Rule 12, § 8.25.

6.11[4] Alleging Fraud Under Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995.

6.11[4][a] Pleading Securities Fraud Is Subject to Special Statutory Requirements. The Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995 (PSLRA) adds special pleading requirements for a private claim of securities fraud under Section 10(b) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 [see 15 USC § 78j] and its accompanying rules and regulations, most notably Securities Exchange Act Rule 10b-5 [see 17 CFR § 240.10b-5]. Under the PSLRA, a complaint alleging securities fraud in such an action must contain all of the following [15 USC § 78u-4(b)(1), (2)]:

- A specification of each statement alleged to be misleading.

- The reason or reasons that each specified statement is misleading [see 6.11[4][b]].

- If an allegation regarding the statement or omission is made on information and belief, a statement that identifies with particularity all the facts on which that belief is formed [see 6.11[4][c]].

- A scienter allegation that identifies with particularity facts giving rise to a strong inference that the defendant acted with the requisite state of mind [see 6.11[4][d]].

- A "loss causation" allegation that provides the defendant with notice of what the relevant loss might be and of what the causal connection might be between that loss and the alleged misrepresentation [see 6.11[4][e]].

Consider:

The PSLRA does not completely supersede the general requirements of Fed R Civ P 8(a) and (d) that the complaint should be in the form of a "short and plain statement" of the claims and that pleadings should be "simple, concise, and direct." To the extent possible, the information required by the PSLRA should be stated in short, plain, and non-redundant allegations [Wenger v. Lumisys, Inc. (ND Cal 1998) 2 F Supp2d 1231, 1240].

6.11[4][b] Alleging That Particular Statement Is Misleading. Under the PSLRA, an allegation of fraud must explain why the statement was misleading as of the time it was made [Fischer v. Vantive Corp. (In re Vantive Corp. Secs. Litig.) (9th Cir 2002) 283 F3d 1079, 1091-1092].

6.11[4][c] Making Allegations on Information and Belief. Under the PSLRA, an allegation made on information and belief must include a statement that identifies with particularity all the facts on which that belief is formed [15 USC § 78u-4(b)(1)]. Included among these facts are the sources of the plaintiff's information and belief [In re Silicon Graphics Sec. Litig. (9th Cir 1999) 183 F3d 970, 985].

A personal source of information, such as a confidential witness, relied on in a complaint need not be named but must be described in the complaint with enough particularity to support the probability that a person in the position occupied by the source would possess the information alleged [In re Daou Sys. (9th Cir 2005) 411 F3d 1006, 1015 ; Nursing Home Pension Fund, Local 144 v. Oracle Corp. (9th Cir 2004) 380 F3d 1226, 1233].

Example--Insufficient Detail:

It is not sufficient for a plaintiff's complaint to state a belief that certain unspecified sources will reveal, after discovery, facts that will validate the claim of fraud [In re Silicon Graphics Sec. Litig. (9th Cir 1999) 183 F3d 970, 985]; see Swartz v. KPMG LLP (9th Cir 2007) 476 F3d 756, 765 (conclusory allegations of fraud were insufficient as a matter of law)].

6.11[4][d] Alleging Scienter With Particularity. The Supreme Court has held that in order to plead a "strong inference" of scienter as required in secuirty fraud actions by the PSLRA, a complaint must include allegations that give rise to an inference of fraudulent intent that is not merely plausible or reasonable, but is "cogent and at lease as compelling as any opposing inference of nonfraudulent intent" [Tellabs, Inc. v. Makor Issues & Rights, Ltd. (2007) 551 US 308, 127 S Ct 2499, 168 L Ed2d 179, 187-188 (establishing methodology to be applied by lower courts); see Gompper v. VISX, Inc. (9th Cir 2002) 298 F3d 893, 897 (in determining whether plaintiffs have shown a strong inference of scienter under PRSLA, court must consider all reasonable inferences to be drawn from allegations, including inferences unfavorable to plaintiffs)].

In the Ninth Circuit, a complaint under the PSLRA alleges scienter sufficiently only if it alleges facts that "create a strong inference of knowing or intentional conduct." The complaint must contain allegations of specific contemporaneous statements or conditions that demonstrate the intentional or the deliberately reckless false or misleading nature of the statements when made [In re Read-Rite Corp. Sec. Litig (9th Cir. 2003) 335 F3d 843, 846 ; In re Silicon Graphics Sec. Litig. (9th Cir 1999) 183 F3d 970, 974 ; *see, e.g., Middlesex Ret. Sys. v. Quest Software, Inc. (CD Cal 2008) 2008 US Dist LEXIS 68419, at 26 (allegations supported strong inference that defendants knew or were deliberately reckless in not knowing that their intentional backdating procedures rendered Quest's financial statements misstated)].

The Ninth Circuit conducts a dual inquiry to analyze different types of scienter allegations. First, the court determines whether any of the plaintiff's allegations, standing alone, are sufficient to create a strong inference of scienter. Second, if no individual allegations are sufficient, the court conducts a "holistic" review of the same allegations to determine whether the insufficient allegations combine to create a strong inference of intentional conduct or deliberate recklessness [*Zucco Partners, LLC v. Digimarc Corp. (9th Cir. 2009) 2009 US App LEXIS 7025, at *17-18 ; see Rubke v. Capitol Bancorp, Ltd. (9th Cir 2009) 551 F3d 1156, 1165 (before summarily dismissing complaint whose individual allegations are insufficient under PSLRA, court must perform second holistic analysis to determine whether complaint contains an inference of scienter that is greater than the sum of its parts)].

Example:

Plaintiffs' complaint alleged that defendants used accounting manipulations to deceive investors into believing that the corporation had become profitable. Plaintiffs argued that the district court applied a more stringent standard than required in Tellabs, Inc. v. Makor Issues & Rights, Ltd. (2007) 551 US 308, 313-314, 127 S Ct 2499, 168 L Ed2d 179 in determining that the complaint failed to allege a strong inference of scienter as required under the PSLRA. The Ninth Circuit, however, held that Tellabs did not materially alter the particularity requirement for scienter claims established in the circuit's previous decisions, but instead added an additional "holistic" component to those requirements. In this case, none of plaintiffs' allegations, standing alone, were sufficient to create a strong inference of scienter. And in considering the complaint in its entirety, the voluminous allegations taken together were not as cogent or compelling as a plausible alternative inference--that although the corporation was experiencing problems controlling and updating its accounting and inventory practices, there was no specific intent to fabricate the accounting misstatements at issue [*Zucco Partners, LLC v. Digimarc Corp., 2009 US App LEXIS 7025, at *28-42 ; *see, e.g., City of Westland Police & Fire Ret. Sys. v. Sonic Solutions (2009) 2009 US Dist LEXIS 33339, at *22-26 (lead plaintiffs have not plead with particularity any other facts that would show how defendants' insider trading supported strong inference of scienter); cf. Berson v. Applied Signal Tech., Inc. (9th Cir 2008) 527 F3d 982, 987-990 (permitting securities plaintiff to rely on core operations inference without particularized allegations about defendants' access to relevant information)].

Warning:

Drawing an inference that facts crucial to company's "core operations" (or to a particular important transaction) were known by the company's key officers, while permissible, is not alone sufficient--except in unusual circumstances--to adequately plead scienter [South Ferry LP, No. 2 v. Killinger (9th Cir 2008) 542 F3d 776, 784-785 ("Tellabs counsels us to consider the totality of the circumstances, rather than to develop separately rules of thumb for each type of scienter allegation.")].

Pleadings showing only motive and opportunity, or nondeliberate recklessness, do not adequately plead scienter. The Ninth Circuit requires the pleadings to show intentional acts or deliberate recklessness [In re Silicon Graphics Sec. Litig. (9th Cir 1999) 183 F3d 970, 974] .

Stock sale allegations only raise an inference of scienter if specific facts are alleged that show that the sales were "dramatically out of line with prior trading practices at times calculated to maximize the personal benefit from undisclosed inside information" [In re Silicon Graphics Sec. Litig. (9th Cir 1999) 183 F3d 970, 986 ; In re Gilead Scis. Sec. Litig. (ND Cal 2005) 2005 US Dist LEXIS 3170, at *30].

Strategic Point:

Courts will consider allegations of scienter collectively. Even if individual allegations are lacking by themselves, the totality of the allegations may create a strong inference that defendants acted with deliberate recklessness [No. 84 Employer-Teamster Joint Council Pension Trust Fund v. America W. Holding Corp. (9th Cir 2003) 320 F3d 920, 938 , cert. denied, 540 US 966 (2003)].

Prior to the enactment of the PSLRA, securities fraud plaintiffs could plead on information and belief that members of corporate management had the required scienter if alleged corporate misrepresentations appeared in "group published" documents such as prospectuses, annual reports, and press releases [see In re Glenfed, Inc. Sec. Litig. (9th Cir 1995) 60 F3d 591, 593]. The extent to which this "group published" or "group pleading" doctrine continues to apply in actions subject to the PSLRA, which heightened the particularity requirement for pleading scienter, is unclear. The Ninth Circuit has not squarely addressed the issue [see Howard v. Everex Sys., Inc. (9th Cir 2000) 228 F3d 1057, 1065-1066 (arguably recognizing continuing existence of group pleading doctrine)]. California district courts are in conflict [compare In re Real Estate Assocs. Ltd. P'ship Litig. (CD Cal 2002) 223 F Supp2d 1142, 1149-1150 (recognizing doctrine's continuing viability); In re Secure Computing Corp. Sec. Litig. (ND Cal 2000) 120 F Supp2d 810, 821 (same); with In re Lockheed Martin (CD Cal 2002) 272 F Supp2d 928, 936 (finding doctrine inconsistent with PSLRA)].

Distinguish:

Because actions brought by the SEC are not subject to the PSLRA, the "group published" information doctrine may apply but the presumption must be reasonable in the particular case [see, e.g., SEC v. Yuen (CD Cal 2004) 221 FRD 631, 637 (given substantial discovery engaged in by SEC, reliance on doctrine with respect to three defendants was misplaced and inappropriate)].

6.11[4][e] Alleging Loss Causation. The securities fraud plaintiff must allege and prove that the alleged misleading statements caused the loss for which the plaintiff seeks to recover [15 USC § 78u-4(b)(4)]. This requirement is not satisfied by merely alleging in the complaint, and subsequently establishing, that the price of the security was inflated on the date of purchase because of the misrepresentation. An inflated purchase price does not itself constitute, and may not proximately cause, the required economic loss. The complaint must provide the defendant with an indication of the loss and the causal connection between the misrepresentation and that loss [Dura Pharms., Inc. v. Broudo (2005) 544 US 336, 342-346, 125 S Ct 1627, 161 L Ed2d 577].

In order to satisfy these requirement, the plaintiff need only allege "facts that, if taken as true, plausibly establish loss causation" [In re Gilead Sciences Sec. Litig. (9th Cir 2008) 536 F3d 1049, 1057 (citing with approval decisions by other circuits suggesting that loss causation is fact-intensive inquiry better suited for determination at trial than at pleading stage)].

6.11[5] Pleading Conditions Precedent.

6.11[5][a] Make General Averment of Performance or Occurrence of Condition Precedent. In pleading the performance or occurrence of conditions precedent, it is sufficient to aver generally that all conditions precedent have been performed or have occurred [Fed R Civ P 9(c)].

6.11[5][b] Make Specific Denial of Performance or Occurrence of Condition Precedent. A denial of the performance or occurrence of a condition precedent must be made specifically and with particularity [Fed R Civ P 9(c)].

6.11[6] Pleading Official Document or Act. In pleading an official document or official act it is sufficient to aver that the document was issued or the act done in compliance with law [Fed R Civ P 9(d)].

Examples:

A complaint in a patent infringement action may allege that "Letters Patent Nos _____ ... were duly and legally issued" [Fed R Civ P Appendix of Forms, Form 18]. A complaint in a copyright infringement action may allege that the plaintiff "complied in all respects with" the applicable copyright law and "received from the Register of Copyrights a certificate of registration" [Fed R Civ P Appendix of Forms, Form 19].

6.11[7] Pleading Judgment. In pleading a judgment or decision of a domestic or foreign court, a judicial or quasi-judicial tribunal, or a board or officer, it is sufficient to aver the judgment or decision without setting forth any matter showing jurisdiction to render it [Fed R Civ P 9(e)].

6.11[8] Alleging Time and Place.

6.11[8][a] Make Averments of Time and Place With Precision. Averments of time and place are material and must be made with precision. In testing the sufficiency of the complaint, the court will treat averments of time and place like all other averments of material matter [Fed R Civ P 9(f)].

Warning:

Because it is deemed a material allegation, a date used by a plaintiff in pleading a claim may trigger a dismissal if the face of the complaint shows that the statute of limitations has run [see Suckow Borax Mines Consol., Inc. v. Borax Consol., Ltd. (9th Cir 1950) 185 F2d 196, 204].

6.11[8][b] Determine Whether Averments of Time and Place Are Necessary. That averments of time and place are deemed material does not mean that all complaints must contain averments of time and place [see Fed R Civ P 9(f)]. Whether time and place must be alleged depends on the substantive law that provides the elements of the plaintiff's claim and on any other applicable pleading rules.

Example:

A complaint asserting a fraud claim must allege the circumstances constituting the fraud, including the time and place of the fraud [see Fed R Civ P 9(b); In re Glenfed, Inc. Sec. Litig. (9th Cir 1994) 42 F3d 1541, 1547 n7 (en banc) (citing Moore's)].

Cross References:

Discussion of the requirements for pleading fraud in most cases, see § 6.11[2]. Discussion of the special requirements for pleading securities fraud, see § 6.11[4].

6.11[8][c] Consequences of Insufficient Averments of Time and Place. If the complaint does not contain averments of time and place, the defendant may make one of the following motions to determine whether issues of time and place foreclose the plaintiff's claim:

- A motion to dismiss [see Fed R Civ P 41(b)].
- A motion for a more definite statement [see Fed R Civ P 12(e)].
- A motion for summary judgment [see Fed R Civ P 56].

If the court finds that the complaint contains insufficient averments of time and place, the court will usually allow the plaintiff to amend the complaint to bring it into compliance, unless an amendment would be futile [see Fed R Civ P 15(a); see Doe v. United States (9th Cir 1995) 58 F3d 494, 497].

6.11[9] Pleading Special Damages.

6.11[9][a] Specifically State Items of Special Damages. If the plaintiff claims any items of special damages, they must be specifically stated in the complaint [Fed R Civ P 9(g)].

6.11[9][b] Special Damages Defined. "Special damages" are damages that, although resulting from the commission of the wrong, are unusual for the claim in question and not normally associated with the claim [Avitia v. Metropolitan Club, Inc. (7th Cir 1995) 49 F3d 1219, 1226 ; Botosan v. Fitzhugh (SD Cal 1998) 13 F Supp2d 1047, 1053].

Example:

In contract cases, damages for personal injury are special damages, because they are not normally associated with contract breach. In contrast, personal-injury damages are normal in automobile accident cases [see Avitia v. Metropolitan Club, Inc. (7th Cir 1995) 49 F3d 1219, 1226].

6.11[9][c] Alleging Special Damages for Certain Libel Claims. Under California law, when an alleged libel is not actionable per se, an allegation of special damages is an essential element of the claim [CC § 45a].

Under California law, libel per se is a libel that is defamatory of the plaintiff without the necessity of explanatory matter or any other extrinsic fact [CC § 45a]. Special damages are all damages that the plaintiff alleges and proves that he or she has suffered in respect to his or her property, business, trade, profession, or occupation, including money the plaintiff alleges and proves that he or she has expended as a result of the alleged libel [CC § 48a(4)(b)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of libel actions under California law, see 30 California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 340, Libel and Slander (Matthew Bender).

6.11[9][d] Drafting Special Damages Allegation. Special damages should be stated in an itemized form rather than in a lump sum. Itemization, however, is not required beyond the point at which it becomes evidentiary rather than allegational [Kuenzell v. United States (ND Cal 1957) 20 FRD 96, 100].

Example:

In one case, the plaintiffs alleged special damages of $500,000 in lost profits from several businesses; the court required the plaintiffs to amend the complaint to itemize the amount of damage suffered by each business. However, the court did not require the complaint to specify evidentiary matters such as where the businesses were located and the circumstances giving rise to the loss of profits [Kuenzell v. United States (ND Cal 1957) 20 FRD 96, 100].

6.11[9][e] Consequences of Failure to Plead Special Damages. If the complaint fails to specify special damages, the defendant may make one of the following motions:

- A motion to dismiss [see Fed R Civ P 41(b)].
- A motion for a more definite statement [see Fed R Civ P 12(e)].

- A motion for summary judgment [see Fed R Civ P 56].

- A motion to exclude evidence of special damages as being irrelevant to the issues raised by the pleadings [see Fed R Evid 103, 401].

Recovery of damages may be denied if the complaint fails to state the damages specifically. However, leave to amend the complaint usually will be granted unless allowing the amendment would result in prejudice to the defendant [see Fed R Civ P 15(b)].

6.11[10] Pleading Admiralty and Maritime Claims.

6.11[10][a] Electing to Invoke Admiralty and Maritime Jurisdiction. If a complaint sets forth a claim that is within the admiralty and maritime jurisdiction and within the jurisdiction of the federal district court on some other ground, the plaintiff may elect to have the claim treated as an admiralty or maritime claim for certain purposes. To make the election, the plaintiff must include in the complaint a statement identifying the claim as an admiralty or maritime claim for the purposes of Fed R Civ P 14(c) (impleading third parties), Fed R Civ P 38(e) (jury), Fed R Civ P 82 (venue), and the Supplemental Rules for Admiralty or Maritime Claims and Asset Forfeiture Actions [Fed R Civ P 9(h)].

Distinguish:

If a claim is cognizable only in admiralty, it will be treated as an admiralty or maritime claim for the purposes of Fed R Civ P 14(c), 38(c), and 82, and the Supplemental Rules for Admiralty or Maritime Claims and Asset Forfeiture Actions whether or not the complaint identifies it as such [Fed R Civ P 9(h)].

Substantive admiralty and maritime law will apply regardless of whether the plaintiff expressly invokes admiralty and maritime jurisdiction [Carey v. Bahama Cruise Lines (1st Cir 1988) 864 F2d 201, 206 ; see Chan v. Society Expeditions, Inc. (9th Cir 1994) 39 F3d 1398, 1403].

6.11[10][b] Procedural Consequences of Pleading Admiralty or Maritime Claim. Electing to proceed under the court's admiralty and maritime jurisdiction has the following procedural consequences:

- The claim will not be triable by a jury [Fed R Civ P 9(h), 38(e); Fitzgerald v. United States Lines Co. (1963) 374 US 16, 20, 83 S Ct 1646, 10 L Ed2d 720].

Exception:

The election to proceed in admiralty does not deprive the defendant of a jury trial on properly joined counterclaims, even if the result is a jury trial of the entire case [Wilmington Trust v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 1991) 934 F2d 1026, 1032].

- The general venue statutes will not apply to the claim; instead, general admiralty practice controls. Venue of an admiralty action in personam is in any district where service of process could have been made on a defending party, and venue of an admiralty action in rem is in the district where seizure of a vessel is made or other property is found or a substitute of the res exists [see Fed R Civ P, Supplemental Rules for Certain Admiralty and Maritime Claims, Rule F(9)].

- If the defendant impleads a third party and alleges that the third party is liable to the plaintiff on the original claim, the action will proceed as if the plaintiff had originally brought the claim against the third party as well as the defendant [Fed R Civ P 9(h), 14(c); see Fed R Civ P, Supplemental Rules for Admiralty or Maritime Claims and Asset Forfeiture Actions, Rule C(6)(a)(1)].

- An interlocutory appeal may be taken from an interim decree that determines the rights and liabilities of the parties on any admiralty or nonadmiralty claim that is properly joined in the case [28 USC § 1292(a)(3); Fed R Civ P 9(h)].

- Depending on the nature of the claim, the Supplemental Rules for Admiralty or Maritime Claims and Asset Forfeiture Actions may apply [see Fed R Civ P, Supplemental Rules for Certain Admiralty and Maritime Claims, Rule A].

6.11[10][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Admiralty Requirements.

Caption: To proceed under admiralty and maritime jurisdiction, the complaint must state "In Admiralty" following the name of the court, in addition to the necessary statement identifying the claim as an admiralty or maritime claim in the body of the complaint [ED Cal Adm LR 510(a)]. If the complaint also contains one or more claims at law, it must state "At Law and In Admiralty" following the name of the court [ED Cal Adm LR 510(a)].

Mandatory Allegations: A complaint in a Supplemental Rule B or C action [Fed R Civ P, Supplemental Rules for Admiralty or Maritime Claims and Asset Forfeiture Actions Rules B, C] must state the dollar amount of the debt, damages, or salvage for which the action is brought. This dollar amount must also be stated in the process, together with a description of the nature of any other items of damage, including any unliquidated items claimed, such as attorney's fees. The defendant or claimant may post bond pursuant to Supplemental Rule E(5) based on such allegations [ED Cal Adm LR 510(b); see ED Cal Gen LR 151; ED Cal Adm LR 523].

Mandatory Allegations in Salvage Actions: In a salvage action, the complaint must state the known or estimated dollar value of the hull, cargo, freight, and other property salved, the dollar amount claimed, and the names of the principal salvers. The complaint must also state that the action is instituted in their behalf and in behalf of all other persons interested or associated with them [ED Cal Adm LR 510(c)].

Affidavit Showing Defendant's Absence: In an in personam action, if the defendant cannot be found within the district, the complaint offered for filing must be accompanied by an affidavit of the plaintiff or plaintiff's attorney stating with particularity the efforts made to obtain in personam jurisdiction over the defendant within the district. In this context, the phrase "not found within the district" means that, in an in personam action, the defendant cannot be served with the summons and complaint as provided in Fed R Civ P 4 [ED Cal Adm LR 510(d)].

6.11[11] Pleading Copyright Infringement. To prevail on a claim of copyright infringement, the plaintiff must establish the plaintiff's ownership of the copyright and the defendant's infringement of that copyright. A complaint may allege infringement either by alleging specific acts of copying or by alleging (1) the defendant's access to the copyrighted work and (2) substantial similarity between the copyrighted work and the defendant's work [see Litchfield v. Spielberg (9th Cir 1984) 736 F2d 1352, 1355]. In alleging particular infringing acts, some specificity is required [see Fed R Civ P Appendix of Forms, Form 19; see also Hartman v. Hallmark Cards, Inc. (WD Mo 1986) 639 F Supp 816, 820].

Cross Reference:

Form illustrating the specificity required in stating a claim of copyright infringement, see § 6.27.

6.11[12] Making Necessary Allegations in Shareholder Derivative Action.

6.11[12][a] Determine Whether Action Is Derivative Action. A "derivative action" is one brought by one or more shareholders or members of a corporation or of an unincorporated association to enforce a right that the corporation or association could assert but has failed to assert [Fed R Civ P 23.1].

Prerequisite:

The action may not be maintained if it appears that the plaintiff does not fairly and adequately represent the interests of the shareholders or members similarly situated in enforcing the right of the corporation or association [Fed R Civ P 23.1].

6.11[12][b] Required Allegations. In a derivative action, in addition to the allegations necessary to establish the corporation or association's substantive right to relief, the complaint must include all of the following [Fed R Civ P 23.1]:

- An allegation that the plaintiff was a shareholder or member at the time of the transaction of which the plaintiff complains, or that the plaintiff's share or membership thereafter devolved on the plaintiff by operation of law (the "contemporary ownership requirement").

- An allegation that the action is not a collusive one to confer jurisdiction on the federal district court that it would not otherwise have.

- Allegations stating with particularity the efforts, if any, made by the plaintiff to obtain the action the plaintiff desires from the directors or comparable authority of the corporation or association, and from the shareholders or members if necessary, and the reasons for the plaintiff's failure to obtain the action or for not making the effort. (the "demand requirement")

- A verification.

If the pleading requirements of Fed R Civ P 23.1 are not satisfied, the complaint may be dismissed for failing to state a claim under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(6) [see, e.g., Mitzner v. Hastings (ND Cal 2005) 2005 US Dist LEXIS 835 (plaintiff failed to sufficiently plead futility of making demand on board of directors); In re OmniVision Techs., Inc. (ND Cal 2004) 2004 US Dist LEXIS 22215 (plaintiffs were not shareholders at time of transactions of which they complained)]. However, failure to meet the demand requirement may be excused if the facts show that demand would have been futile [Potter v. Hughes (9th Cir 2008) 546 F3d 1051, 1056 (shareholder was not excused from demand requirement on grounds of futility)].

Complaint and allegations forms for use in shareholder derivative actions, see 5 Bender's Federal Practice Forms, Forms 23.1:1- 23.1:13 (Matthew Bender).

6.11[13] Alleging Specific Facts in Support of Request for Ex Parte Temporary Restraining Order. A complaint that requests an ex parte temporary restraining order must allege specific facts sufficient to prove that the plaintiff will suffer immediate and irreparable injury, loss, or damage before the defendant can be heard in opposition to the request [Fed R Civ P 65(b)(1)(A)]. The complaint must be verified [Fed R Civ P 65(b)(1)(A)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of requirements for temporary restraining orders, see Ch. 19, Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies, § 19.09.

6.11[14] LOCAL PRACTICE: Special Pleading Requirements.

6.11[14][a] CD Cal Requirements: Notice of Interested Parties. To enable the court to evaluate possible disqualification or recusal, counsel for all parties must file with their first appearance a specified "Notice of Interested Parties," listing all persons, associations, firms, partnerships, and corporations that have a direct pecuniary interest in the outcome of the case, including an insurance carrier that may be liable for a judgment entered in the action or for the cost of defense [CD Cal Civ LR 7.1-1].

6.11[14][b] ED Cal Requirements: Social Security Number in Certain Actions. A complaint under Title II, XVI, or XVIII of the Social Security Act [see 42 USC §§ 405(g), 1383(c)(3), 1395ff], or under Part B, Title N, of the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969 [see 30 USC § 801 et seq.], must contain the following information [ED Cal Civ LR 206(a)(1), (2)]:

- In an action involving a claim for retirement, survivors, disability, health insurance, or black lung benefits, the last four digits of the social security number of the worker on whose wage record the application for benefits was filed (who may or may not be the plaintiff).

- In an action involving a claim for supplemental security income benefits, the last four digits of the social security number of the plaintiff.

The plaintiff must disclose the full social security number of the worker or plaintiff, as the case may be, to the defendant within seven days after a request for the full number [ED Cal Civ LR 206(a)].

6.11[14][c] ND Cal Requirements: Certification of Interested Persons. To enable the court's judges to evaluate any need for disqualification or recusal early in the course of any case, the plaintiff must include a "Certification of Interested Entities or Persons." The Certification must be filed as a separate document [ND Cal Civ LR 3-16(a), (b), (c)(3); see 28 USC § 455]. This requirement does not apply, however, if the plaintiff is any governmental entity or agency [ND Cal Civ LR 3-16(a)]. The certification must be signed by the plaintiff's attorney and must take one of the following forms [ND Cal Civ LR 3-16(c)(1), (2)]:

- "Pursuant to Civil L.R. 3-16, the undersigned certifies that the following listed persons, associations of persons, firms, partnerships, corporations (including parent corporations) or other entities (i) have a financial interest in the subject matter in controversy or in a party to the proceeding, or (ii) have a nonfinancial interest in that subject matter or in a party that could be substantially affected by the outcome of this proceeding: (list names and identify their connection and interest)."

- "Pursuant to Civil L.R. 3-16, the undersigned certifies that as of this date, other than the named parties, there is no such interest to report."

6.11[14][d] SD Cal Requirements: Three-Judge Court. If the plaintiff contends that the case requires hearing by a three-judge district court [see 28 USC § 2284], and if the basis for the request is not otherwise apparent from the allegations of the complaint, the basis must be stated in the complaint or in a brief statement attached to it [SD Cal Civ LR 9.2(a)].

Example:

A three-judge court is used when specifically required by an act of Congress, such as when the action challenges the constitutionality of the apportionment of congressional districts or the apportionment of any statewide legislative body [see 28 USC § 2284(a)].

6.12 Complaint Must Include Prayer Demanding Relief.

6.12[1] Demanding Relief.

6.12[1][a] State Demand for Relief in Complaint. A complaint must contain a prayer, that is, a demand for judgment for the relief the plaintiff seeks [Fed R Civ P 8(a)].

6.12[1][b] Making General Demand for Relief. The demand for judgment may be stated in general terms [see, e.g., Fed R Civ P Appendix of Forms, Form 11].

Example:
A complaint may demand a single sum of money for an act of negligence that resulted in physical injury, physical and mental suffering, and loss of business income [see, e.g., Fed R Civ P Appendix of Forms, Form 11].

Distinguish:
Although special damages must be specifically stated in the body of the complaint [see Fed R Civ P 9(g)], the demand for judgment need not distinguish or itemize special damages [see Fed R Civ P Appendix of Forms, Forms 11, 13].

6.12[1][c] Demanding Alternative or Multiple Forms of Relief. The demand for judgment may demand relief in the alternative or of several different types [Fed R Civ P 8(a)].

Example:
A complaint may demand specific performance of a contract or, if specific performance is not granted, a money judgment [see, e.g., Fed R Civ P Appendix of Forms, Form 17].

6.12[2] Effect of Demand for Relief.

6.12[2][a] In Non-Default Case, Demand Does Not Limit Actual Award. The demand for judgment ordinarily will not limit the relief that can be ordered by the court. Except as to a party against whom a judgment is entered by default, every final judgment must grant the relief to which the party in whose favor it is rendered is entitled, even if the party's pleadings have not demanded that relief [Fed R Civ P 54(c)].

Exception:

If the failure to request a particular form of relief prejudices the opposing party in its defense of the claim asserted, granting that relief would be improper [Albemarle Paper Co. v. Moody (1975) 422 US 405, 423-425, 95 S Ct 2362, 45 L Ed2d 280]. Prejudice may result if the plaintiff delays in requesting particular relief, or if the plaintiff expressly disclaims or abandons a request for particular relief and later seeks to obtain that relief [see, e.g., Albemarle Paper Co. v. Moody (1975) 422 US 405, 423-425, 95 S Ct 2362, 45 L Ed2d 280 ; Seven Words LLC v. Network Solutions (9th Cir 2001) 260 F3d 1089, 1097-1098].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

Despite the court's power to award relief not demanded, it is good practice for the prayer to list every form of relief sought by the plaintiff, to ensure that adverse parties and the court are put on notice of the full extent of the plaintiff's demand for relief.

6.12[2][b] In Default Case, Actual Award May Not Exceed Demand. A default judgment cannot be different in kind from, or exceed in amount, the relief prayed for in the demand for judgment [Fed R Civ P 54(c)].

Cross Reference:

Default judgment as limited by relief prayed for in demand for judgment, see Ch. 27, Defaults and Motions for Relief From Default, see § 27.13.

6.12[2][c] Demand That Seeks Only Equitable Relief Prevents Jury Trial. If only equitable relief is sought, neither party can request a jury trial, because there is no right to a jury trial on equitable issues [see Tull v. United States (1987) 481 US 412, 417, 107 S Ct 1831, 95 L Ed2d 365].

Cross Reference:

Restrictions on availability of jury trial, see Ch. 13, Demanding a Jury Trial, § 13.04[3][b].

6.13 Complaint May Include Jury Demand.

6.13[1] Preserving Right to Jury Trial. The complaint may include a demand for a jury trial of any issue triable of right by a jury [Fed R Civ P 38(b)].

A demand for a jury trial on an issue may also be served and filed by any party at any time after the commencement of the action and not later than 14 days after the service of the last pleading directed to that issue [Fed R Civ P 38(b)].

Warning:

The failure to demand a jury trial constitutes a waiver of trial by jury, although in such a case the court has discretion to try any issue with an advisory jury [Fed R Civ P 38(d), 39(c)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of jury demands made after commencement of an action, see Ch. 13, Demanding a Jury Trial, § 13.05[2].

6.13[2] Jury Demand May Be Endorsed on Face of Complaint. A demand for a trial by jury may be endorsed on the complaint [Fed R Civ P 38(b)].

Example:

The usual method of endorsing the demand on the complaint is to place a notation such as "Jury Demanded" on the first page of the complaint [see Gargiulo v. Delsole (2d Cir 1985) 769 F2d 77, 78-79].

Although local rules may require a separate demand in the body of the complaint, in addition to the endorsement [see, e.g., CD Cal Civ LR 38-1; ND Cal Civ LR 3-6(a); § 16.13[3]], once the demand for a jury trial has been properly made under Fed R Civ P 38(b), the "failure to fulfill an additional requirement of a local rule ... cannot constitute a waiver of a trial by jury" [Solis v. County of Los Angeles (9th Cir 2008) 514 F3d 946, 955 (district court's determination that pro se plaintiff's failure to file proposed jury instructions and special verdict forms constituted waiver of his right to jury trial was erroneous)].

Example:

A pro se plaintiff's request for a jury trial in the complaint, in both the caption and at the end of the pleading, complied with both the "spirit and the letter of Federal Rule 38(b)." Because the plaintiff's jury demand was sufficiently clear to alert both the defendants and the district court that a jury trial was requested, the district court's finding that plaintiff did not "file a jury demand" was clearly erroneous [Solis v. County of Los Angeles (9th Cir 2008) 514 F3d 946, 954] .

6.13[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: Jury Demand.

6.13[3][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. If the jury demand is included in the complaint, it must be stated at the end of the complaint and be signed by the attorney for the plaintiff. The caption of the complaint must also contain the words "DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL" [CD Cal Civ LR 38-1].

6.13[3][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. A jury demand made in the complaint must appear immediately following the title of the complaint. Alternatively, a jury demand may be made in any other document permitted by Fed Civ P 38(b) [ED Cal Civ LR 201].

6.13[3][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. In the caption of the complaint, immediately following the designation of the pleading as a complaint, the following must appear: "DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL." A demand for a jury trial must also be separately stated at the end of the complaint. If the plaintiff is represented by counsel, the complaint and the jury demand must be signed by the plaintiff's attorney [ND Cal Civ LR 3-6(a)].

6.13[3][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. If a jury is demanded, the words "Demand for Jury Trial" must appear on the first page of the complaint, to the right of center, across from the title of the action and following the designation of the document as the complaint [SD Cal Civ LR 5.1(j.3), 38.1].

6.13[4] Indicating Jury Demand on Civil Cover Sheet Is Insufficient. Indicating on the civil cover sheet that a jury is demanded does not constitute a valid demand for jury trial [Wall v. National R.R. Passenger Corp. (9th Cir 1983) 718 F2d 906, 909 ; CD Cal Civ LR 38-3; ED Cal Civ LR 200, 201; ND Cal Civ LR 3-6(b); SD Cal Civ LR 38.1].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the preparation of the civil cover sheet, see § 6.20.

6.13[5] Specifying Issues for Jury Trial. In the jury demand the plaintiff may specify the issues for trial by jury [Fed R Civ P 38(c)]. If the jury demand does not specify any issues, the plaintiff will be deemed to have demanded a jury on all issues triable by jury [Fed R Civ P 38(c)].

Strategic Point--Defendant:

If a party has demanded trial by jury for only some of the issues, any other party may, within 14 days after service of the demand or a lesser time ordered by the court, serve a demand for trial by jury of any other or all issues of fact in the action [Fed R Civ P 38(c)]. However, if the plaintiff has demanded a jury trial on only some of the issues, this rule should not be applied to cut off the jury right of a defendant who fails to make a jury demand within 14 days after service of the complaint. Even if the defendant allows the 14-day period to lapse, the defendant may demand a jury up to 14 days after service of the last pleading directed to the issue [Fed R Civ P 38(b)]. That last pleading presumably will be the defendant's answer, which generally may be served up to 21 days after service of the complaint [Fed R Civ P 12(a)(1)(A)(i)].

6.14 Complaint Must Be Signed.

6.14[1] Complying With Signature Requirement.

6.14[1][a] Sign Original Complaint. The complaint filed with the court must be signed [Fed R Civ P 11(a)]. The signature must be accompanied by the signer's address, e-mail address, and telephone number, if any [Fed R Civ P 11(a)].

Warning:

An unsigned complaint will be stricken if the omission is not corrected promptly after being called to the attention of the attorney or party [Fed R Civ P 11(a)].

6.14[1][b] Omit Signature From Unfiled Copies. Copies of the complaint need not be signed [see CD Cal Civ LR 11-4.4].

6.14[1][c] Courts May Allow or Require Electronic Filing, Signing, and Verification by Electronic Means. A court may by local rule permit or require papers to be filed, signed, or verified by electronic means [Fed R Civ P 5(d)(3)].

6.14[1][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Complaints Covered in Electronic Case Filing Program. A Case Management/Electronic Case Files (CM/ECF) docketing and filing system took effect in the Eastern District on January 3, 2005. Unless specifically excused, electronic filing of complaints is mandatory for attorneys [see ED Cal Gen LR 133(a)]. When a complaint is submitted via portable electronic media, signatures must appear either as a facsimile of the original in the scanned complaint placed on portable electronic media, or on a separate, scanned signature page if the complaint was published to.pdf and then placed on portable electronic media. If the signature is submitted on a separate scanned page, the docket will reflect the submission of the signature page [ED Cal Gen LR 131(b)]. Anything filed using an attorney's name, login and password will be deemed to have been signed by that attorney [ED Cal Gen LR 131(c)]. An objection to the authenticity of an attorney's electronic signature generally must be made within 21 days of receipt of a notice of electronic filing, but may be made at a later time for good cause shown by an attorney exercising due diligence [ED Cal Gen LR 131(d)].

Cross References:

Discussion of Eastern District electronic signature requirements, see Ch. 5, Formatting, Serving, and Filing Papers, 5.10[4][b]. Discussion of electronic filing, see Ch. 5, Formatting, Serving, and Filing Papers, §§ 5.29 -5.31.

6.14[1][e] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements--Complaints Not Covered in Electronic Case Filing Program. The Northern District of California's Electronic Case Filing Program provides that complaints and other initiating documents are to be filed, fees paid, and summons issued and served in the traditional manner on paper rather than electronically [ND Cal General Order 45, V(A)]. Consequently, electronic signatures are not utilized for complaints.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of electronic filing, see Ch. 5, Formatting, Serving, and Filing Papers, §§ 5.29 -5.31.

6.14[1][f] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements--Complaints Not Covered in Electronic Case Filing Program. The Southern District's electronic case filing program provides that complaints and other initiating documents are to filed in paper format at the clerk's office [SD Cal Electronic Case Filing Admin Policies & Procedures Manual 1(b)].

6.14[2] Determining Proper Person to Sign Complaint. If the plaintiff is represented by counsel, the complaint must be signed by at least one attorney of record. The signature must be in the attorney's individual name [Fed R Civ P 11(a)].

If the plaintiff is not represented by counsel and appears pro se, the complaint must be signed by the plaintiff [Fed R Civ P 11(a)].

6.14[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: Additional Signature Requirements.

6.14[3][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. The name of the person signing the complaint must be clearly typed below the signature line [CD Cal Civ LR 11-1]. If the person signing is a member of a law firm, the firm's name should also be indicated [see CD Cal Civ LR 83-2.5.2].

6.14[3][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. The name of the person signing the complaint must be clearly typed below the signature line [ED Cal Gen LR 131(b)].

6.14[3][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. The name of the person signing the complaint must be typed below the signature line [SD Cal Civ LR 5.1(j.5)].

6.14[4] Signing Complaint Makes Implicit Certifications to Court.

6.14[4][a] Elements of Certification Under Rule 11. An attorney or unrepresented plaintiff who signs a complaint or other paper certifies, to the best of his or her knowledge, information, and belief, formed after reasonable inquiry, all of the following [Fed R Civ P 11(b)]:

- The paper is not being presented for any improper purpose [see 6.14[4][c]].

- The paper's claims, defenses, and other legal contentions are warranted by existing law or by a nonfrivolous argument for the extension, modification, or reversal of existing law or the establishment of new law [see 6.14[4][d], [e], [f]].

- The paper's allegations and other factual contentions have evidentiary support or, if specifically so identified, are likely to have evidentiary support after a reasonable opportunity for further investigation or discovery.

- Any denials of factual contentions are warranted on the evidence or, if specifically so identified, are reasonably based on a lack of information or belief.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the duty to make a reasonable inquiry before signing, see § 6.14[5].

6.14[4][b] Signing in Violation of Implicit Certifications May Result in Sanctions. Signing or otherwise presenting a complaint or other paper in violation of the implicit certifications may result in the imposition of sanctions [Fed R Civ P 11(c)]. Generally, sanctions will be imposed on the signer of a complaint if either [Townsend v. Holman Consulting Corp. (9th Cir 1990) 929 F2d 1358, 1362 (en banc)]:

- The complaint is filed for an improper purpose [see 6.14[4][c]].
- The complaint is frivolous [see 6.14[4][d]].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of Rule 11 sanctions, see Ch. 33, Rule 11, Sanctions.

§ 6.14[4][c] Complaint Must Not Be Filed for Improper Purpose. Improper purposes for signing and filing a complaint include the following [Fed R Civ P 11(b)(1)]:

- Harassment of an opposing party.
- Delay.
- Needless increase in litigation costs.

In determining whether a person's purpose in signing and filing a complaint is improper, the standard is objective reasonableness, and the subjective intent of the signer is immaterial. Thus, whether the signer had an improper purpose is determined from the signer's point of view, objectively tested, rather than from the consequences of the signer's act, subjectively viewed by the signer's opponent. The "reasonable person" against which conduct is tested is a competent attorney admitted to practice before the district court [see G.C. & K.B. Invs., Inc. v. Wilson (9th Cir 2003) 326 F3d 1096, 1109 ; Zaldivar v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir 1986) 780 F2d 823, 832].

Distinguish--Well-Founded Complaint:

The Ninth Circuit has held that the filing of a well-founded (that is, nonfrivolous) complaint is not sanctionable, regardless of the subjective intent of the attorney or litigant [Townsend v. Holman Consulting Corp. (9th Cir 1990) 929 F2d 1358, 1362 (en banc); Hudson v. Moore Bus. Forms, Inc. (9th Cir 1987) 836 F2d 1156, 1159]. In contrast, once the action has been commenced, a well-founded motion may be sanctioned if it is part of a campaign of successive harassing and vexatious motions [Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Alla Med. Servs., Inc. (9th Cir 1988) 855 F2d 1470, 1476].

Distinguish--Venue Selection:

The choice of a proper but inconvenient forum is not sanctionable unless the choice is made for an improper purpose such as harassment [Newton v. Thomason (9th Cir 1994) 22 F3d 1455, 1463-1464].

Distinguish--Seeking Publicity:

The signing and filing of a nonfrivolous complaint in order to generate adverse publicity for the defendant is not an improper purpose [see Sussman v. Bank of Israel (2d Cir 1995) 56 F3d 450, 459 , quoting Townsend v. Holman Consulting Corp. (9th Cir 1990) 929 F2d 1358, 1362 (en banc)].

6.14[4][d] None of Plaintiff's Claims May Be Frivolous. A frivolous complaint is one that is both baseless and made without a reasonable and competent inquiry [Montrose Chem. Corp. v. American Motorists Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1997) 117 F3d 1128, 1133].

A complaint that contains one frivolous claim violates the signer's certification, even if other material in the complaint is not frivolous [Townsend v. Holman Consulting Corp. (9th Cir 1990) 929 F2d 1358, 1362-1365 (en banc)].

A claim will not be deemed baseless or frivolous if it is supported by a nonfrivolous argument for the extension, modification, or reversal of existing law, or for establishing new law [Fed R Civ P 11(b)(2)].

6.14[5] Inquiry Must Precede Signing.

6.14[5][a] Reasonable Investigation Is Required. Attorneys and unrepresented parties have an affirmative duty to make a reasonable investigation of the facts and the law before signing and submitting any pleading, motion, or other paper [Fed R Civ P 11(b)].

6.14[5][b] Investigation Evaluated Under Objective Standard. The reasonableness of a pre-signing investigation is measured by an objective standard based on the circumstances of the case [Fed R Civ P 11(b); see Business Guides, Inc. v. Chromatic Communications Enters., Inc. (1991) 498 US 533, 549, 111 S Ct 922, 112 L Ed2d 1140].

6.14[5][c] Attorney May Rely on Statements of Client. In making a pre-signing investigation, an attorney may rely on the statements of his or her client [Hamer v. Career Coll. Ass'n (9th Cir 1992) 979 F2d 758, 759].

Distinguish:

Depending on the circumstances of the case, reliance on information received from sources other than the client might not be reasonable if the attorney has an opportunity to verify the information independently [see Fed R Civ P 11(b)].

6.14[5][d] Failure to Make Inquiry May Result in Sanctions. A failure to make a reasonable investigation prior to signing the complaint may result in the imposition of sanctions [Fed R Civ P 11(c)].

Exception:

Sanctions may not be imposed for a failure to conduct a reasonable inquiry if the complaint turns out to be well-founded [In re Keegan Mgmt. Co. Sec. Litig. (9th Cir 1996) 78 F3d 431, 434].

6.15 Verification of Complaint May Be Required.

6.15[1] Verification Is Unnecessary Unless Specifically Required by Rule or Statute. Except as otherwise specifically provided by rule or statute, a complaint need not be verified or accompanied by an affidavit [Fed R Civ P 11(a)].

Examples:

Cases in which the complaint must be verified include the following:

- A shareholder derivative action [Fed R Civ P 23.1].
- Any case in which the complaint requests an ex parte temporary restraining order [Fed R Civ P 65(b)].
- An admiralty case that includes a quasi-in-rem or in-rem claim [Fed R Civ P, Supplemental Rules for Admiralty or Maritime Claims and Asset Forfeiture Actions Rules B, C].

6.15[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal--Request for Temporary Receiver. A complaint seeking the appointment of a temporary receiver must be verified [CD Cal Civ LR 66-1].

Cross Reference:

Appointment of receivers, see Ch. 19, Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies, §§ 19.85 -19.113.

6.15[3] Signing Verification Makes Same Certifications to Court As Signature on Complaint. If a verification or affidavit is submitted with a complaint, it must be signed in accordance with Fed R Civ P 11. The signature denotes the same certifications to the court as does a signature on the complaint [Fed R Civ P 11(a), (b); Business Guides, Inc. v. Chromatic Communications Enters., Inc. (1991) 498 US 533, 549, 111 S Ct 922, 112 L Ed2d 1140].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the certifications implicit in the signature, see § 6.14[4].

6.15[4] Appropriate Individual Must Sign Verification. A verification of a complaint must be signed by a plaintiff [see Fed R Civ P 23.1; Surowitz v. Hilton Hotels Corp. (1966) 383 US 363, 365, 86 S Ct 845, 15 L Ed2d 807]. A verification on behalf of a corporate plaintiff should be signed by a corporate officer or agent having knowledge of the matters alleged [see In re Ben Weiss Co. (7th Cir 1959) 271 F2d 234, 235].

6.15[5] Direct Knowledge Is Not Required. If a verification is required, it is sufficient if the person signing states that he or she knows or believes the facts stated in the complaint to be true [Surowitz v. Hilton Hotels Corp. (1966) 383 US 363, 365, 86 S Ct 845, 15 L Ed2d 807].

Example:

The person signing the verification need not have direct knowledge of the facts on which the complaint is based. Thus, in a shareholder derivative action, a plaintiff shareholder may verify the complaint based on truthful explanations of the case by others [Surowitz v. Hilton Hotels Corp. (1966) 383 US 363, 370-371, 86 S Ct 845, 15 L Ed2d 807].

Cross Reference:

Form of verification, see § 6.32.

6.15[6] Verification of Complaint Does Not Impose Obligation on Defendant to Verify Answer. In an unlimited civil case filed in California superior court, verification of the complaint requires the defendant's answer to be verified [CCP § 446(a); see CCP § 92(b)]. This effect of verification does not exist under federal practice, which requires verification only as specifically provided by rule or statute [Fed R Civ P 11(a)].

CHAPTER 6 Drafting the Summons and Complaint
II. PREPARING COMPLAINT

1-6 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 6.16

6.16 Exhibits May Be Attached.

6.16[1] Plaintiff May Attach Written Instrument to Complaint. If a written instrument is material to the allegations of the complaint, the plaintiff may attach a copy of the instrument as an exhibit to the complaint [Fed R Civ P 10(c)].

Strategic Points--Plaintiff:

Only documents that are essential to the case or that make the complaint easier to understand should be attached as exhibits. For example, exhibits may be essential when seeking provisional relief, such as attachment or an injunction. In such cases, copies of the relevant documents are typically necessary to establish the basis and scope of any court order granting provisional relief.

If a case involves only one or a few documents, such as a note, contract, or deed, attaching copies as exhibits will aid the judge's review of the pleadings in response to pretrial motions or conferences. If able to see the entire document, the judge will have a better view of the dispute than if only "relevant" paragraphs are quoted in the complaint.

There are important considerations in deciding whether to use a complaint strategically before filing it. One the one hand, showing the defendant the complaint before filing it in appropriate cases can have a positive effect. Informally mailing a factually rich complaint, based on a strong claim, to the prospective defendant may precipitate settlement. On the other hand, there can be great risk involved in providing a copy of the complaint to the potential defendant before filing. If the claims asserted by the plaintiff are not particularly strong, the weaknesses in the plaintiff's position may become more apparent and have a negative effect on reaching a pre-litigation settlement, as well as prompting the prospective defendant to preemptively file an action [see § 6.02].

6.16[2] Exhibit Will Be Treated As Part of Complaint. A copy of any written instrument that is an exhibit to the complaint is a part of it for all purposes [Fed R Civ P 10(c)].

Example:

Because it is part of the complaint for all purposes, an exhibit will be considered by the court in deciding a motion to dismiss the complaint [Hall v. Bellmon (10th Cir 1991) 935 F2d 1106, 1112].

6.16[3] Plaintiff May Controvert Statements Contained in Exhibit. Although an exhibit becomes a part of the complaint "for all purposes," the plaintiff does not necessarily adopt as true the full contents of the exhibit.

Example:

A libel plaintiff may attach a copy of the allegedly libelous document without risking that the court will deem true the statements contained in the exhibit [Gant v. Wallingford Bd. of Educ. (2d Cir 1995) 69 F3d 669, 674-675].

Exception:

If a written instrument contradicts material allegations in the complaint to which it is attached, the exhibit usually controls [Ott v. Home Sav. & Loan Ass'n (9th Cir 1958) 265 F2d 643, 646, n1].

6.16[4] Plaintiff May Refer to Written Instrument Without Attaching It. The attachment of exhibits to a complaint is permissive, not mandatory [see Fed R Civ P 10(c)]. Therefore, instead of attaching a copy of a written instrument as an exhibit, the plaintiff may include an allegation identifying the document and setting forth the relevant contents of the document.

Warning:

The plaintiff may not avoid the consequences of an entire document by quoting from it selectively in the complaint and not attaching it as an exhibit [I. Meyer Pincus & Assocs. v. Oppenheimer & Co. (2d Cir 1991) 936 F2d 759, 762 ; see Fecht v. Price Co. (9th Cir 1995) 70 F3d 1078, 1080].

6.16[5] LOCAL PRACTICE: Attaching Exhibits.

6.16[5][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. Unless compliance is impracticable, a paper exhibit must be scanned and electronically filed with the complaint, and the pages of the exhibit must be numbered at the bottom of each page consecutively to the pages of the complaint [CD Cal Civ LR 11-5.2]. Exhibits must be tabbed in sequential order, and the exhibit number must also be placed immediately above or below the page number on each page of the exhibit [CD Cal Civ LR 11-5.3]. Exhibits must not exceed 8 1/2 x 11 inches in size and should be scanned and electronically filed whenever practicable. Exhibits that are too large to scan shall be folded in such a manner as not to exceed an 8 1/2 x 11 inch sheet, and filed as paper exhibits. CM/ECF users must file electronically a Notice of Manual Filing setting forth the reason(s) why the exhibit cannot be filed electronically and present the Notice of Electronic Filing with the exhibits to be filed or lodged [CD Cal Civ LR 11-5.4]. An exhibit smaller than 81/2 x 11 inches must be attached to an 81/2 x 11-inch sheet [CD Cal Civ LR 11-5.5].

A nonpaper physical exhibit must not be attached to the complaint. Rather, it must be placed in a secure container identified by the case name and number and the name, address, and telephone number of the plaintiff's attorney (or the plaintiff, if unrepresented). The exhibit must be lodged with a separately filed Notice of Lodging [CD Cal Civ LR 11-5.1].

CM/ECF users must first file electronically a Notice of Manual Filing setting forth the reason(s) why the exhibit cannot be filed electronically and present the Notice of Electronic Filing with the exhibits to be lodged [CD Cal Civ LR 11-5.1].

6.16[5][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. Unless compliance is impracticable, exhibits must be paginated in consecutive numerical order, and each page must show the exhibit number either immediately above or below the page number. Unless the physical nature of an exhibit renders it impracticable, it must be attached to the complaint and must be readable without detaching it from the accompanying document [SD Cal Civ LR 5.1(e)]. If the complaint contains any exhibits it must have, as a cover page to the exhibits, a table of contents indicating the page number of each of the succeeding exhibits. If exhibits are tabbed, the tabs must be at the bottom and not at the sides [SD Cal Civ LR 5.1(e)].

6.17 Copies of Complaint Should Be Prepared for Service and Other Purposes.

6.17[1] Prepare Extra Copies of Complaint for Service. In addition to the original of the complaint that will be filed with the court, counsel should prepare additional copies for service on the defendants [see Fed R Civ P 4(c)(1)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of service of process, see Ch. 7, Service of Summons.

6.17[2] Prepare Extra Copies of Complaint for Miscellaneous Purposes. In addition to the original of the complaint and service copies, counsel should prepare additional copies of the complaint for office use and for distribution to the client.

6.17[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: Copies of Complaint.

6.17[3][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. The original of the complaint, if filed in paper format, must be filed with one clear, conformed, and legible copy for the use of the judge [CD Cal Civ LR 11-4.1]. Unless the assigned judge's orders or written procedures otherwise specify, a mandatory chambers copy of all electronically filed documents must be delivered to the assigned judge [CD Cal Civ LR 11-4.1]. If the case is to be heard by a three-judge court [see 28 USC § 2284], three paper copies must be filed with the original [CD Cal Civ LR 11-4.2]. If the plaintiff presenting a complaint for filing in paper format wishes the clerk to return a conformed copy of the complaint by mail, the plaintiff must submit an extra copy with a postage-paid, self-addressed envelope [CD Cal Civ LR 11-4.5].

Copies must be conformed to the original but need not be signed. Conformed copies must be identical to the original in content, pagination, deletions, and interlineations [CD Cal Civ LR 11-4.4].

6.17[3][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. In the Eastern District, electronic filing of the complaint is mandatory for attorneys unless it is specifically excused by the court or by local rule [ED Cal Gen LR 133(a)].

Cross Reference:

Eastern District requirement for electronic filing, see § 5.31[2].

6.17[3][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. An extra copy of the complaint, marked by counsel as the copy for "Chambers," generally must accompany the original of the complaint when it is submitted for filing [ND Cal Civ LR 5-1(b)].

6.17[3][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. The original of the complaint must be labeled as the original, and all copies must be clearly identified as such [SD Cal Civ LR 5.1(b)]. When the original of the complaint is filed, it must be accompanied by one legible conformed copy of the complaint, including any exhibits, for the court's use [SD Cal Civ LR 5.1(i.1)]. In an action to be heard by a three-judge court [see 28 USC § 2284], three copies must accompany the original [SD Cal Civ LR 5.1(i.2), 9.2(b)]. If the plaintiff requests the clerk to return a conformed copy by mail, an extra copy must be submitted and must be accompanied by a self-addressed envelope bearing sufficient postage [SD Cal Civ LR 5.1(i.4)].

CHAPTER 6 Drafting the Summons and Complaint
III. PREPARING SUMMONS AND OTHER DOCUMENTS NECESSARY AT COMMENCEMENT OF ACTION

1-6 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 6.19

6.19 Summons Generally Must Be Served With Complaint, Unless Service Waived.

6.19[1] Summons Generally Must Be Served With Complaint. A summons ordinarily must accompany the copy of the complaint that is served on the defendant [Fed R Civ P 4(c)(1)]. Service of a summons is the usual manner in which the court obtains personal jurisdiction over the defendant [see Fed R Civ P 4(k); Omni Capital Int'l, Ltd. v. Rudolf Wolff & Co. (1987) 484 US 97, 104, 108 S Ct 404, 98 L Ed2d 415].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of procedures for service of the summons and complaint, see Ch. 7, Service of Summons.

6.19[2] Service of Summons May Be Waived.

6.19[2][a] Cost of Service May Be Avoided. To avoid the cost of service, the plaintiff may in most cases notify the defendant of the commencement of the action and request that the defendant waive service of a summons [Fed R Civ P 4(d)].

6.19[2][b] Situations When Waiver Not Available. Waiver of service is not available if the defendant is [Fed R Civ P 4(d)(1); see Fed R Civ P 4(g), (i), (j)]:

- A minor or incompetent person.
- The United States.
- A federal agency or corporation.
- A federal officer or employee sued in an official capacity or in an individual capacity for conduct in connection with federal duties.
- A foreign, state, or local government.

6.19[2][c] Costs May Be Assessed Against Defendant Who Refuses to Waive Service. If the defendant agrees to waive service of the summons, the plaintiff will have saved the cost of service. If a defendant located in the United States refuses to waive service, the court will impose the costs of service on the defendant unless the defendant shows good cause for the refusal to waive service [Fed R Civ P 4(d)(2)]. An award of costs will also include costs and attorney's fees incurred by the plaintiff in making a motion to collect the costs of service [Fed R Civ P 4(d)(2)(B)].

6.19[2][d] Time for Response to Complaint Increases If Defendant Waives Service. If the defendant waives service of the summons, the defendant will have an additional 40 days to respond to the complaint, or an additional 90 days if the defendant is outside the United States [Fed R Civ P 4(d)(3), 12(a)(1)].

6.19[2][e] Plaintiff May Use Official Form to Request Waiver of Service. The Appendix of Forms to the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure includes forms for a Notice of Lawsuit and Request for Waiver of Service of Summons [Fed R Civ P Appendix of Forms, Form 5] and a Waiver of Service of Summons [Fed R Civ P Appendix of Forms, Form 6]. Forms are also available from the court clerk and may be downloaded from the court websites:

- United States District Court for the Central District of California: www.cacd.uscourts.gov.
- United States District Court for the Eastern District of California: www.caed.uscourts.gov.

Cross Reference:

Local district court forms, see § 6.34. Waiver of service, see Ch. 7, Service of Summons, §§ 7.12 -7.19.

6.19[3] Drafting Summons.

6.19[3][a] All Elements of Summons Must Be Included. The summons must contain the following elements [Fed R Civ P 4(a); see Fed R Civ P Appendix of Forms, Forms 1, 3]:

- The name and address of the plaintiff's attorney or, if the plaintiff is unrepresented, of the plaintiff.
- A caption identifying the court and the parties.
- A statement, directed to the defendant, that sets forth the following:
  - The time within which the defendant must appear and defend:
    - General rule: 21 days after service of the summons [Fed R Civ P 12(a)(1)(A)(i)].
    - If the defendant is the United States, an agency of the United States, or an officer or employee of the United States served in an official capacity: 60 days after service on the United States Attorney [Fed R Civ P 12(a)(2)].
    - If the defendant is a United States officer or employee who is sued in an individual capacity for acts or omissions in connection with duties performed on behalf of the United States: 60 days after service on the officer or employee, or service on the United States Attorney, whichever is later [Fed R Civ P 12(a)(3)].

Exception--Additional Time If Defendant Waives Service of Summons:

If service of the summons is timely waived and the defendant was addressed within a United States judicial district, the defendant will have 60 days to respond after the request for waiver was sent [Fed R Civ P 12(a)(1)(A)(ii); see Fed R Civ P 4(d)]. If service of the summons is timely waived and the defendant was addressed outside any United States judicial district, the defendant will have 90 days to respond after the request for waiver was sent [Fed R Civ P 12(a)(1)(A)(ii); see Fed R Civ P 4(d)]. Because these response periods apply only if service of the summons has been waived, they would not be mentioned in any summons.

- A notification that a failure to appear and defend will result in a judgment by default against the defendant for the relief demanded in the complaint.

- The signature of the court clerk.

- The seal of the court.

6.19[3][b] Plaintiff May Use Official Form. The plaintiff may use the official summons form in the Appendix of Forms to the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure [see Fed R Civ P Appendix of Forms, Form 3]. Use of the official form is not mandatory [Fed R Civ P 84].

The court clerk also supplies summons forms, which may be downloaded from the court's website:

- United States District Court for the Central District of California: www.cacd.uscourts.gov.

- United States District Court for the Eastern District of California: www.caed.uscourts.gov.

- United States District Court for the Northern District of California: www.cand.uscourts.gov.

- United States District Court for the Southern District of California: www.casd.uscourts.gov.

Cross Reference:

Local district court forms, see § 6.34.

6.19[3][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal--Mandatory Use of Court-Supplied Form. The summons must be prepared on forms supplied by the court clerk CD Cal Civ LR 4-1].

6.19[4] Prepare Summons for Each Defendant. A summons must be issued for each defendant to be served [Fed R Civ P 4(b)]. Thus, the plaintiff may prepare a separate summons directed to each defendant. Alternatively, the plaintiff may prepare a single summons directed to all defendants, with a separate copy to be issued for each defendant to be served [Fed R Civ P 4(b)].

6.19[5] Obtain Issuance of Summons by Court Clerk. At or after the filing of the complaint, the plaintiff may present a summons to the clerk for signature and seal. If the summons is in proper form, the clerk will sign, seal, and issue it to the plaintiff for service on the defendant [Fed R Civ P 4(b); ED Cal Civ LR 210(a)].

At the time of issuance of the summons, the court clerk may provide additional materials that must be served on the defendant along with the summons and complaint. Such materials might include, for example, an order setting an initial case management conference, and ADR deadlines and pertinent standing orders of the court [see, e.g., ND Cal Civ LR 4-2, 16-2(a)].

6.19[6] Effect of Errors in Summons. Even if the summons fails to name all of the defendants, or the summons specifies the incorrect time for filing of the answer, dismissal is generally not justified unless the defect in the summons is prejudicial to the defendant [UFCW, Locals 197 & 373 v. Alpha Beta Co. (9th Cir 1984) 736 F2d 1371, 1382].

Example:

A summons that incorrectly specified 10 days to answer the complaint, rather than the correct 20 days, did not warrant dismissal in a case in which the defendant filed a timely answer and suffered no prejudice from the defect in the summons [UFCW, Locals 197 & 373 v. Alpha Beta Co. (9th Cir 1984) 736 F2d 1371, 1382].

If the defendant is unable to demonstrate to the court that a defect in the summons is prejudicial, the plaintiff will be granted permission to amend the summons and re-serve the defendant or defense counsel with the corrected summons [see Great Plains Crop Mgmt., Inc. v. Tryco Mfg. Co. (D Mont 1983) 554 F Supp 1025, 1028].

6.20 Civil Cover Sheet Is Required Under Local Rules.

6.20[1] Function of Civil Cover Sheet. Local rules require the plaintiff to complete and submit a civil cover sheet when the complaint is submitted for filing. The sheet is usually available from the court clerk and on the court's web site. The sheet typically seeks statistical information for the benefit of the clerk and court in administering the court's caseload, and it is not served on opposing parties [see Wall v. National R.R. Passenger Corp. (9th Cir 1983) 718 F2d 906, 909 ; see also CD Cal Civ LR 3-1; ED Cal Civ LR 200; ND Cal Civ LR 3-2(a); SD Cal Civ LR 3.1].

Warning:

If there is an error on the cover sheet, the clerk will generally issue an error sheet describing the error and instructing counsel to file a revised cover sheet. It is not clear what the clerk's response would be if the cover sheet was omitted, but it is likely the clerk would instruct counsel to complete and file one.

6.20[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Civil Cover Sheets.

6.20[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. The complaint presented to the clerk for filing must be accompanied by a Civil Cover Sheet, in duplicate, completed and signed by the plaintiff's attorney or the plaintiff. Copies of the Civil Cover Sheet are available from the clerk [CD Cal Civ LR 3-1]. A copy of the Civil Cover Sheet may be downloaded form the court's website: www.cacd.uscourts.gov.

6.20[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. The complaint must be accompanied by a completed civil cover sheet, on a form available from the court clerk [ED Cal Civ LR 200]. A copy of the Civil Cover Sheet may be downloaded form the court's website: www.caed.uscourts.gov.

6.20[2][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. The complaintmust be filed with a completed civil cover sheet on a form approved by the court [ND Cal Civ LR 3-2(a)]. A copy of the Civil Cover Sheet may be downloaded form the court's website: www.cand.uscourts.gov.

6.20[2][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. The complaint initiating the action must be accompanied by a completed civil cover sheet [SD Cal Civ LR 3.1]. A copy of the Civil Cover Sheet may be downloaded form the court's website: www.casd.uscourts.gov.

6.21 Other Documents May Be Required to Accompany Complaint.

6.21[1] Preparing Corporate Disclosure Statement.

6.21[1][a] Determine Whether Plaintiff Must File Disclosure Statement. To enable judges to make informed decisions concerning possible disqualification based on financial interest, any nongovernmental corporate party to a civil action in a federal district court must file a statement that either [Fed R Civ P 7.1(a); SD Cal Civ LR 40.2]:

- Identifies any parent corporation and any publicly held corporation that owns 10 percent or more of the party's stock.

- States that there is no parent corporation or any publicly held corporation that owns 10 percent or more of the party's stock.

6.21[1][b] Filing of Disclosure Statement. A disclosure statement must be filed with the party's first appearance in the action. Thus, a nongovernmental corporate plaintiff ordinarily must file its disclosure statement with the complaint [Fed R Civ P 7.1(b); SD Cal Civ LR 40.2].

Two copies of the disclosure statement must be filed [Fed R Civ P 7.1(a)].

Warning:

If there is any change in the information provided in the disclosure statement, the corporate plaintiff must promptly file a supplemental disclosure statement [Fed R Civ P 7.1(b)].

6.21[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Identifying Interested Parties.

6.21[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. To enable the court to evaluate possible disqualification or recusal, the plaintiff's attorney must file with the complaint an original and two copies of a Notice of Interested Parties. The Notice must list all persons, associations of persons, firms, partnerships, and corporations (including parent corporations) that have a direct, pecuniary interest in the outcome of the case, including any insurance carrier that might be liable in whole or in part (directly or indirectly) for a judgment that may be entered in the action or for the cost of defense [CD Cal Civ LR 7.1- 1] . The Notice must include the following certification [CD Cal Civ LR 83-1.5]:

The undersigned, counsel of record for the plaintiff, certifies that the following listed parties have a direct, pecuniary interest in the outcome of this case, These representations are made to enable the Court to evaluate possible disqualification or recusal.

6.21[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. To enable the court's judges to evaluate any need for disqualification or recusal early in the course of any case, the plaintiff must file a "Certification of Interested Entities or Persons." The Certification must be filed as a separate document [ND Cal Civ LR 3-16(a), (b), (c)(3); see 28 USC § 455(d)(1), (3), (4)]. This requirement does not apply, however, if the plaintiff is any governmental entity or agency [ND Cal Civ LR 3-16(a)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the required contents of the Certification of Interested Entities or Persons, see § 6.11[14][b].

6.21[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: Designating Related Cases.

6.21[3][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Notice of Related Cases. When the complaint is filed, or as soon as known thereafter, the plaintiff's attorney must file a Notice of Related Cases. The Notice must state whether any action previously filed or currently pending in the Central District and the action being filed appear [CD Cal Civ LR 83-1.3.1; see CD Cal Civ LR 83-1.3.1.1, CD Cal Gen Order 224, 5.0]:

- To arise from the same or substantially identical transactions, happenings, or events.
- To involve the same patent, trademark, or copyright, unless one of the actions joins the patent, trademark, or copyright with others that do not cover the same or substantially identical subject matter.
- To call for a determination of the same or substantially identical questions of law or fact.
- Likely for other reasons to entail substantial duplication of labor if heard by different judges.

The Notice of Related Cases must also include a brief factual statement setting forth the basis for the attorney's belief that the action qualifies for related-case transfer [CD Cal Civ LR 83-1.3.1]. The Notice of Related Cases must be served concurrently with service of the complaint [CD Cal Civ LR 83-1.3.1]. The plaintiff's attorney has a continuing duty to supplement the information required in the Notice of Related Cases [CD Cal Civ LR 83-1.3.3].

6.21[3][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Notice of Pendency of Other Actions or Proceedings. If the action involves all or a material part of the subject matter of an action pending before the Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit, Bankruptcy Appellate Panel, Bankruptcy Court, or any other federal or state court or administrative agency the plaintiff's attorney must file a Notice of Pendency of Other Actions or Proceedings with the original complaint [CD Cal Civ LR 83-1.4.1]. The Notice of Pendency of Other Actions or Proceedings must contain the following [CD Cal Civ LR 83-1.4.2]:

- A description sufficient to identify all the other actions or proceedings.
- The title of the court or administrative body in which the other actions or proceedings are pending.

- The names of the parties or participants in the other proceedings.

- The names, addresses, and telephone numbers of the attorneys in the other actions or proceedings.

- A brief factual statement setting forth the basis for the attorney's belief that the action involves all or a material part of the subject matter of the other actions or proceedings.

The duty to file a Notice of Pendency of Other Actions or Proceedings continues throughout the time the action is before the district court [CD Cal Civ LR 83-1.4.1]. The Notice must also be filed if the action is the subject of or is related to an action that is before, or has been transferred by, the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation [CD Cal Civ LR 83-1.4.3; see 28 USC § 1407].

6.21[3][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Notice of Related Cases. If the plaintiff's attorney has reason to believe that the action about to be filed is related to another action (whether or not dismissed or otherwise terminated), he or she must file (and serve on all parties in each action) a Notice of Related Cases [ED Cal Gen LR 123(b)]. For this purpose, two actions are "related" if any of the following circumstances exists [ED Cal Gen LR 123(a)]:

- Both actions involve the same parties and are based on the same or a similar claim.

- Both actions involve the same property, transaction, or event.

- Both actions involve similar questions of fact and the same question of law, and their assignment to the same judge or magistrate judge is likely to effect a substantial savings or judicial effort, either because the same result should follow in both actions or otherwise.

- For any other reasons, it would entail substantial duplication of labor if the actions were heard by different judges or magistrate judges.

The Notice of Related Cases must state the title and number of each possibly related action, together with a brief statement of their relationship and the reasons that assignment to a single judge or magistrate judge is likely to effect a savings of judicial effort and other economies [ED Cal Gen LR 123(b)].

6.21[3][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements--Administrative Motion to Consider Whether Cases Should Be Related. If the plaintiff knows or believes that the action is related to an action that is or was pending in the Northern District of California, the plaintiff must file an Administrative Motion to Consider Whether Cases Should Be Related in the earliest-filed case. The motion must comply with ND Cal Civ LR 7-11 and must contain [ND Cal Civ LR 3-12(b), (d)]:

- The title and case number of each apparently related case.

- A brief statement of the relationship of the actions [see ND Cal Civ LR 3-12(a)].

- A statement addressing whether assignment to a single judge is likely to conserve judicial resources and promote an efficient determination of the actions.

In this context, two cases are "related" if both of the following circumstances exist [ND Cal Civ LR 3-12(a)]:

- Both cases concern substantially the same parties, property, transaction or event.

- It appears likely that there will be an unduly burdensome duplication of labor and expense or conflicting results if the cases are conducted before different judges.

The plaintiff must serve a copy of the notice on all known parties to each identified case. Also, a chambers copy of the notice must be lodged for the assigned judge in each identified case [ND Cal Civ LR 3-12(b)].

6.21[3][e] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements--Notice of Pendency of Other Action or Proceeding. If the plaintiff knows that the action being filed involves all or a material part of the same subject matter and all or substantially all of the same parties as another action that is pending in any other federal or state court, the plaintiff must promptly file (presumably with the complaint), and serve on all opposing parties, a Notice of Pendency of Other Action or Proceeding [ND Cal Civ LR 3-13(a)]. The notice must contain all of the following [ND Cal Civ LR 3-13(b)]:

- A description of the other action.
- The title and location of the court in which the other action or proceeding is pending.
- A brief statement of the following:
  - The relationship of the other action to the action being filed by the plaintiff.
  - If the other action is pending in another federal district court, whether transfer should be effected pursuant to 28 USC § 1407 (multidistrict litigation procedures) or whether other coordination might avoid conflicts, conserve resources, and promote an efficient determination of the action.
  - If the other action is pending before any state court, whether proceedings should be coordinated to avoid conflicts, conserve resources, and promote an efficient determination of the action.

6.21[3][f] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements--Notice of Related Case. If the plaintiff's attorney has reason to believe that the action about to be filed is related to another pending action or proceeding on file in the Southern District of California or in any other federal or state court (whether pending, dismissed, or otherwise terminated), the attorney must file (and serve on all known parties to each related action or proceeding) a notice of related case. The notice must state the following [SD Cal Civ LR 40.1(e)]:

- The title, number, and filing date of each action or proceeding believed to be related.
- A brief statement of the cases' relationship and the reasons why assignment to a single district judge is or is not likely to effect a saving of judicial effort and other economies.

For this purpose, two cases are "related" if any of the following circumstances exists [SD Cal Civ LR 40.1(f)]:

- The cases involve some of the same parties and are based on the same or similar claims.
- The cases involve the same property, transaction, or event.
- The cases involve substantially the same facts and the same questions of law.

6.21[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Preparing Designation of Counsel for Service. If multiple attorneys from a single law firm, organization, public entity, agency or department are listed as counsel for a plaintiff, one of the listed attorneys must be designated as counsel for service. That designation may be made in the heading of the complaint, or by filing and serving a document entitled "Designation of Counsel for Service," stating the name, address, and telephone number of the designated counsel for service, and signed by that counsel [ED Cal Gen LR 182(c)(1)].

If no designation of counsel for service has been made, the court clerk may select the attorney for service from the heading on the first page of the complaint or from the signature block [ED Cal Gen LR 182(c)(2)].

6.21[5] Establishing or Securing Representation of Minor or Incompetent. If the action will be brought on behalf of a minor or incompetent person, counsel should either [see Fed R Civ P 17(c); ED Cal Civ LR 202(a)]:

- Prepare to present documentation of the appointment of a representative for the minor or incompetent person under state law.

- Prepare a motion for the appointment of a guardian ad litem.

6.21[6] Applying for Leave to Proceed in Forma Pauperis.

6.21[6][a] Court Permission Required. If the plaintiff cannot afford to pay the filing fee at the time of filing the complaint, an application for in forma pauperis status should be prepared and submitted with the complaint [see 28 USC § 1915].

A pending application to proceed in forma pauperis, filed with a complaint, temporarily tolls a statute of limitations period, even if the filing fee is not paid at the time of the filing [Gilardi v. Schroeder (7th Cir 1987) 833 F2d 1226, 1233].

6.21[6][b] Affidavit Required. An application for in forma pauperis status must be accompanied by an affidavit that includes a statement documenting the plaintiff's financial condition and inability to pay the filing fee, plus a statement of the nature of the action and the plaintiff's belief that he or she is entitled to redress [28 USC § 1915(a)(1)]. If the plaintiff is a prisoner, the affidavit must be accompanied by a copy of the prisoner's trust fund account statement (or institutional equivalent) for the prisoner for the 6-month period immediately preceding the filing of the complaint, obtained from the appropriate official of each prison at which the prisoner is or was confined [28 USC § 1915(a)(1)].

The court clerk provides forms for use in applying for in forma pauperis status. These forms should be used, since they incorporate the requirements of applicable local rules. Forms may be obtained from the clerk's office and may also be downloaded from the court's website:

- United States District Court for the Central District of California: www.cacd.uscourts.gov.

- United States District Court for the Eastern District of California: www.caed.uscourts.gov.

- United States District Court for the Northern District of California: www.cand.uscourts.gov.

- United States District Court for the Southern District of California: www.casd.uscourts.gov.

6.21[6][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. If the plaintiff wishes to proceed in forma pauperis [see 28 USC § 1915], the complaint must be accompanied by a motion and supporting declaration that sets forth information sufficient to establish that the plaintiff will be unable to pay the fees and costs or give security for them. The clerk supplies forms that may be used to prepare the application to proceed in forma pauperis [CD Cal Civ LR 5-2].

6.21[6][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. If the plaintiff wishes to proceed in forma pauperis [see 28 USC § 1915], the complaint must be accompanied by an ex parte motion to proceed in forma pauperis [see ND Cal Civ LR 7-10(a)] containing a request to so proceed, an affidavit or declaration executed under penalty of perjury, and a proposed order [ND Cal Civ LR 3-10(a), (b)]. The clerk supplies forms that may be used to prepare the affidavit [ND Cal Civ LR 3-10(b)] which must contain the information required by 28 USC § 1915. The clerk will file the complaint, assign a case number, and deliver a copy to the assigned judge for determination [ND Cal Civ LR 3-10(a)]. If the judge grants the motion in part, or denies it, the order will state that the action is dismissed unless any outstanding fees, costs, or security is paid within the time set forth in the order [ND Cal Civ LR 3-10(c)].

6.21[6][e] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. If the plaintiff wishes to file the complaint in forma pauperis [see 28 USC § 1915], the complaint must be accompanied by an affidavit, executed under penalty of perjury, that includes the following [SD Cal Civ LR 3.2(a), (f)]:

- A statement as to current employment, including the amount of wages or salary per month and the name and address of the current employer.

- A statement, if not currently employed, as to the date of last employment and the amount of wages or salary per month that was received.

- A statement as to any money received within the past twelve months from any of the following sources:

  - Business, profession, or self-employment.

  - Rent payments, interest, or dividends.

  - Pensions, annuities, or life insurance payments.

  - Gifts or inheritances.

  - Any other source.

- A statement as to any cash in possession and as to any money in a financial institution, including checking, savings, and any other accounts. The statement must include any money available to the plaintiff.

- A statement as to any real estate, stocks, bonds, notes, automobiles, investments, or other valuable property (excluding ordinary household furnishings and clothing), describing the property and stating its approximate value.

- A statement as to all persons who depend on the plaintiff for support. The statement must include the relationship of the dependents and the amount contributed toward their support.

- A statement that, because of poverty, there is an inability to pay the initial costs of the proceeding or give security for costs, and the plaintiff's belief that he or she is entitled to relief.

6.21[7] LOCAL PRACTICE: Application to File Complaint Under Seal.

6.21[7][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. To obtain court approval to file the complaint under seal, the plaintiff must submit a written application and proposed order, along with the complaint. The original complaint and the judge's copy must be sealed in separate envelopes, with a copy of the title page attached to the front of each envelope. Conformed copies need not be placed in sealed envelopes [CD Cal Civ LR 79-5.1]. Applications and orders to seal, along with the material to be placed under seal, may not be electronically filed but must be filed manually, as prescribed by Local Rule 79-5. A Notice of Manual Filing must also be electronically filed identifying materials being manually filed [CD Cal LR 79-5.1].

6.21[7][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. A sealing order is required to allow the filing of documents under seal; a stipulation or a blanket protective order that allows a party to designate documents as sealable is insufficient [ND Cal Civ LR 79-5(a)]. To obtain a court order authorizing the sealing of the complaint, or portions thereof, the plaintiff must file and serve an administrative motion to file under seal [see ND Cal Civ LR 7-11], along with an accompanying declaration establishing that the complaint, or a portion of it, is sealable, and lodge the complaint with the court clerk [ND Cal Civ LR 79-5(a)-(c)].

Pending consideration of a revision to ND Cal Civ LR 79-5, the following procedures apply, effective May 10, 2010, to the filing of sealed documents in civil cases [ND Cal Gen Order 62]:

- Motions to file documents under seal must be made electronically.

- In order to move to electronically file (e-file) either an entire document under seal pursuant to ND Cal Civ LR 79-5(b), or a portion of a document under seal pursuant to ND Cal Civ LR 79-5(c):

  - E-file an Administrative Motion to File Under Seal [see ND Cal Civ LR 7-11];

  - E-file under seal and serve manually one or more Declarations (instructions on how to e-file under seal are available on the ECF website under FAQs at https://ecf.cand.uscourts.gov/cand/index.html);

  - E-file the Proposed Order (filed unsealed) and e-mail the Proposed Order to the Judge's proposed order e-mail address; and

  - Serve manually, but do not e-file, the documents to be filed under seal.

- Lodge with the clerk for delivery to the judge's chambers a copy of the entire filing including the documents to be filed under seal, contained in an 81/2-inch by 11-inch sealed envelope or other suitable sealed container, with a cover sheet affixed to the envelope or container, setting out the information required by ND Cal Civ LR 3-4(a) and (b), prominently displaying the notation: "DOCUMENT SUBMITTED UNDER SEAL AND CHAMBERS COPY" no later than noon on the business day following the day that the administrative motion is filed electronically.

If the motion to file under seal is denied in part or in full, neither the document nor any proposed redacted version may be e-filed under seal. If the motion is denied in full, the submitting party may retain the document and not make it part of the record in the case, or, within 4 days, e-file the document unsealed. If the motion is denied in part and granted in part, the party may within 4 days resubmit the document in a manner that conforms to the Court's order and this rule [ND Cal Gen Order 62].

If a motion to file under seal is granted in part or full, the requesting party will e-file the document under seal according to the procedures outlined in the FAQs on the ECF website at https://ecf.cand.uscourts.gov/cand/index.html [ND Cal Gen Order 62].

Unless otherwise ordered by the court, any document filed under seal must be kept from public inspection, including inspection by attorneys and parties to the action, during the pendency of the case. The chambers copy of sealed documents will be disposed of in accordance with the assigned Judge's discretion. Ordinarily these copies will be recycled, not shredded, unless special arrangements are made [ND Cal Gen Order 62].

Any document filed under seal in a civil case will be open to public inspection without further action by the court 10 years from the date the case is closed. However, a party that submitted documents that were placed under seal may, on showing good cause at the conclusion of the case, seek an order that would continue the seal until a specific date beyond 10 years. Nothing in this rule is intended to affect the normal records destruction policy of the United States Courts [ND Cal Gen Order 62].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the information required on the first page of the complaint, see § 6.06.

6.21[8] Application for Temporary Restraining Order.

6.21[8][a] Application Must Be Supported by Affidavit or Verified Complaint. If the plaintiff will seek a temporary restraining order (TRO), the complaint presented for filing should be accompanied by an application for a TRO, which must be supported by an affidavit or the verified allegations of the complaint [Fed R Civ P 65(b)]. If the TRO is sought ex parte, the plaintiff's attorney should also certify to the court in writing the efforts, if any, that have been made to notify the defendant of the application and the reasons that notice should not be required [Fed R Civ P 65(b)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of temporary restraining orders, see Ch. 19, Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies, § 19.09.

6.21[8][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. If the plaintiff will seek a temporary restraining order (TRO), the complaint presented for filing should be accompanied by an application for a TRO, a proposed TRO, and an order to show cause why a preliminary injunction should not issue [CD Cal Civ LR 65-1].

6.21[8][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. If the plaintiff will seek a temporary restraining order (TRO), the complaint presented for filing should be accompanied by the following [ED Cal Civ LR 231(c)]:

- A motion for a TRO.
- A brief on the legal issues presented by the motion.
- An affidavit supporting the existence of an irreparable injury.
- An affidavit detailing the notice given to affected parties or counsel, or detailing the efforts made to effect notice, or showing good cause why notice should not be given.
- A proposed TRO.
- A proposed order with blanks fixing the time and date for a hearing on a motion for a preliminary injunction, the date for filing responsive papers, the amount of any bond, and the date and hour of issuance. If the TRO is sought ex parte, this proposed order must also notify the affected party of the right to request modification or dissolution of the TRO on two days' notice, or shorter notice if allowed by the court [see Fed R Civ P 65(b)].

A motion for a temporary restraining order filed electronically after normal business hours of the clerk's office will not be reviewed by the court until the next business day, at the earliest [ED Cal Gen LR 134(d)].

6.21[8][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. If the plaintiff will seek an ex parte temporary restraining order (TRO), the complaint presented for filing should be accompanied by the following [ND Cal Civ LR 65-1(a), (c)]:

- A motion for a TRO.
- A memorandum of points and authorities in support of the motion.
- A proposed TRO.
- A proposed order to show cause setting a hearing on a motion for a preliminary injunction.

6.21[9] Notice of Claim of Unconstitutionality.

6.21[9][a] Court Required to Notify Appropriate Authority. If the complaint challenges the constitutionality of an act of Congress or a state statute, and neither the appropriate government nor any of its officers, agencies, or employees is a party to the action, the plaintiff must notify the appropriate federal or state authority, who may then intervene in the action [28 USC § 2403; Fed R Civ P 5.1]. Local rules may require the plaintiff to provide similar notice.

6.21[9][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. If the complaint challenges the constitutionality of any federal or state administrative regulation of general applicability, and neither the appropriate government nor any of its officers, agencies, or employees is a party to the action, the plaintiff must file a notice identifying the regulation and setting forth in what respects its constitutionality is questioned. Thereupon, or sua sponte, the court must serve the notice on the United States Attorney General, on the United States Attorney, and on all other parties [ED Cal Gen LR 132].

Distinguish:

The foregoing provision applies only to claims of unconstitutionality of administrative regulations [ED Cal Gen LR 132]; the District Court for the Eastern District of California does not appear to impose on the parties a similar requirement to provide the court with notice of a claim of unconstitutionality of a federal or state statute.

6.21[9][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. If the complaint challenges the constitutionality of any an act of Congress or a state statute, and neither the appropriate government nor any of its officers, agencies, or employees is a party to the action, the plaintiff must file with the court a notice of the claim of unconstitutionality with the assigned judge (or, if no assignment has been made, with the chief judge). The notice must identify the statute and describe the basis for the claim that it is unconstitutional. The notice must be served on the United States Attorney for the Northern District of California, or on the state attorney general, as appropriate [ND Cal Civ LR 3-8].

6.21[10] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Notice of Requirement of Three-Judge Court. If the action is required to be heard and determined by a three-judge court [see 28 USC § 2284], the plaintiff must immediately file a notice to that effect with the clerk. A copy of the notice must served on all other parties [ED Cal Civ LR 203].

Example:

A three-judge court is required when specifically required by an act of Congress, such as when the action challenges the constitutionality of the apportionment of congressional districts or the apportionment of any statewide legislative body [see 28 USC § 2284(a)].

6.21[11] Additional Documents in Class Action Subject to Private Securities Litigation Reform Act.

6.21[11][a] Certification by Potential Lead Plaintiff. In a private plaintiff class action brought under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 [15 USC § 78a et seq.], the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995 (PSLRA) [see 15 USC §§ 77z-1, 78u-4] requires each plaintiff seeking to serve as a representative party on behalf of a class to provide a sworn certification for filing with the complaint. The certification, which must be personally signed by the plaintiff, must contain all of the following [15 USC § 78u-4(a)(2)(A)]:

- A statement that the plaintiff has reviewed the complaint and authorized its filing.
- A statement that the plaintiff did not purchase the security that is the subject of the complaint at the direction of the plaintiff's counsel or in order to participate in any private action arising under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934.
- A statement that the plaintiff is willing to serve as a representative party on behalf of a class, including providing testimony at deposition and trial, if necessary.
- A statement setting forth all of the transactions of the plaintiff in the security that is the subject of the complaint during the class period specified in the complaint.
- An identification of any other action under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, filed during the three-year period preceding the date on which the certification is signed by the plaintiff, in which the plaintiff sought to serve as a representative party on behalf of a class.
- A statement that the plaintiff will not accept any payment for serving as a representative party on behalf of a class beyond the plaintiff's pro rata share of any recovery, except as ordered or approved by the court.

The certification will not be construed to be a waiver of the plaintiff's attorney-client privilege [15 USC § 78u-4(a)(2)(B)].

The PSLRA requires that the potential lead plaintiff's certification be filed [15 USC § 78u-4(a)(2)], but it does not require service of the certification. Local rules, however, may require service [see, e.g., ND Cal Civ LR 3-7(b)].

6.21[11][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements--Certification by Potential Class Counsel. In an action governed by the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995 (PSLRA) [see 15 USC §§ 77z-1, 78u-4], any attorney seeking to serve as class counsel must serve and file a certificate under penalty of perjury that either [ND Cal Civ LR 3-7(d)]:

- Affirms that the attorney does not directly own or otherwise have a beneficial interest in securities that are the subject of the action.
- Sets forth with specificity the extent of any such ownership or interest and explains why that ownership or interest does not constitute a conflict of interest sufficient to disqualify the attorney from representing the class.

6.21[11][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements--Electronic Copy of Complaint. In an action governed by the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995 (PSLRA) [see 15 USC §§ 77z-1, 78u-4], the complaint (and certain other documents in the action) must be posted at a Designated Internet Site to which potential class members will have access [ND Cal Civ LR 23-2(a), (b)(1)]. The plaintiff's attorney must post the complaint on the day it is filed with the court, by forwarding an electronic copy of the complaint to a qualifying Designated Internet Site [ND Cal Civ LR 23-2(c), (d)].

6.21[12] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Filing Required Notice in Patent, Plant Variety Protection, Trademark, or Copyright Case. In a patent, plant variety protection, or trademark case in which jurisdiction is invoked in whole or in part under 28 USC § 1338, the complaint presented to the clerk for filing must be accompanied by the original and two copies of the required notice to the Patent and Trademark Office (Form AO 120, Report on the Filing or Determination of an Action Regarding a Patent or Trademark) [see 15 USC § 1116(c); 35 USC § 290]. Copies of the notice are available from the clerk and may be downloaded from the court's website (www.cacd.uscourts.gov) [CD Cal Civ LR 3-1].

In a copyright case in which jurisdiction is invoked in whole or in part under 28 USC § 1338, the complaint presented to the clerk for filing must be accompanied by the original and four copies of the required notice to the Patent and Trademark Office (Form AO 121, Report on the Filing or Determination of an Action or Appeal Regarding a Copyright) [see 17 USC § 508]. Copies of the notice are available from the clerk and may be downloaded from the court's website (www.cacd.uscourts.gov) [CD Cal Civ LR 3-1].

Unit 3 Pleading Stage
CHAPTER 7 Service of Summons

1-7 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 7.syn

§ 7.syn Synopsis to Chapter 7: Service of Summons

7.01 Scope.

7.02 Objective and Strategy.

7.02[1] Service of Summons or Waiver of Service Is Prerequisite to Invoking Personal Jurisdiction Over Defendant.

7.02[2] Consider Advantages and Disadvantages of Various Methods for Service.

7.02A CHECKLIST: Avoiding Dismissal for Untimely Service.

7.03 Service of Summons and Complaint Must Be Timely.

7.03[1] Plaintiff Usually Has Only 120 Days From Filing of Complaint to Serve Defendants.

7.03[2] Failure to Meet Service Deadline May Result in Dismissal.

7.04 Dismissal for Failure to Serve Within 120 Days Follows Notice to Plaintiff.

7.04[1] Notice Is Prerequisite to Dismissal.

7.04[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements--Clerk Prepares OSC Re Dismissal Following Lack of Timely Service.

7.04[3] Dismissal Is Without Prejudice.

7.04[4] Defendant May Waive Untimely Service by Failure to Object.

7.05 Extension of 120-Day Deadline for Good Cause.

7.05[1] Court May Grant Extension After Original 120-Day Period Expires.

7.05[2] Court Will Grant Extension If Plaintiff Shows Good Cause.

7.05[3] "Good Cause" Is Not Clearly Defined.

7.06 Court May Extend Deadline Even If No Good Cause Shown.

7.06[1] Extension Without Good Cause Is Rare.

7.06[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements--Court's Policy of No Extensions, Except on Good Cause.

7.07 Court Weighs Effect of Statute of Limitations in Deciding to Grant Extension.

7.07[1] Expiration of Statute of Limitations Weighs in Favor of Extension.

7.07[2] Expiration of 120-Day Time Limit Does Not Restart Statute of Limitations.

7.08 CHECKLIST: Choosing Process Server for Summons and Complaint.

7.09 Plaintiff Is Responsible for Serving Summons and Complaint.

7.10 Any Person Not Party to Action and 18 Years of Age or Older May Serve Summons.

7.11 Court May Appoint Marshal or Other Person on Request of Plaintiff.

7.11[1] Marshal or Special Appointee Not Needed in Most Cases.

7.11[2] Exception When Statute Requires Court to Appoint Process Server.

7.11[3] Other Circumstances May Justify Appointment of Special Process Server, but Local Rules Are Restrictive.

7.11[3][a] Court May Appoint Process Server on Plaintiff's Request in Unique Circumstances.

7.11[3][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Limitation on Service by U.S. Marshal.

7.11[3][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements--Limitation on Service by U.S. Marshal.

7.11[3][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements--Providing Instructions to Marshal's Office.

7.12 CHECKLIST: Determining Whether to Seek Waiver of Service.

7.13 CHECKLIST: Seeking Waiver of Service of Summons.

7.14 CHECKLIST: Responding to Request for Waiver of Service.

7.15 Certain Defendants Have Obligation to Avoid Unnecessary Costs When Faced With Waiver Request.

7.15[1] Plaintiff May Seek Waiver From Most Types of Defendants.

7.15[2] Defendant Who Refuses Waiver Usually Will Pay Costs for Service of Process.

7.16 Rule 4 Prescribes Form of Request for Waiver of Service.

7.16[1] Plaintiffs Use Official Forms to Send Notice of Action and Waiver Forms to Defendants.

7.16[1][a] Official Form 5 Sets Out Notice of Action and Request for Waiver.

7.16[1][b] Official Form 6 Sets Out Form of Waiver That Defendant May Complete.

7.16[1][c] Official Form 6 Sets Out Required Warning Language.

7.16[2] Rule 4 Specifies Contents for Notice Form.

7.16[3] Copy of Complaint Must Accompany Request for Waiver.

7.16[4] Defendant Must Receive Extra Copy.

7.16[5] Plaintiff Must Send Defendant a Prepaid Means of Returning Waiver of Service of Summons.

7.17 Plaintiff Must Send Request for Waiver by Mail or Other Reliable Means.

7.18 Defendant Obtains Extension of Time to Plead by Waiving Service of Summons.

7.19 After Waiver of Service of Summons, Action Proceeds As If Service Made When Waiver Filed.

7.19[1] Waiver of Service Is Not Waiver of Jurisdictional or Venue Objections.

7.19[2] Action Proceeds As If Summons Served on Date Waiver Is Filed.

7.19[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Waiver Must Be Filed Immediately.

7.20 CHECKLIST: Choosing Method for Serving Individual.

7.21 CHECKLIST: Choosing Method for Serving Minor or Incompetent Person.

Unit 3 Pleading Stage
CHAPTER 7 Service of Summons
I. STRATEGY

7.02 Objective and Strategy.

7.02[1] Service of Summons or Waiver of Service Is Prerequisite to Invoking Personal Jurisdiction Over Defendant. "Service of process" is a term that means formal delivery of documents to the defendant that will charge the defendant with notice of a pending action [Volkswagenwerk Aktiengesellschaft v. Schlunk (1988) 486 US 694, 700, 108 S Ct 2104, 100 L Ed2d 722]. Rule 4 mandates the documents that a plaintiff must deliver in order to serve process--the "summons" and the "complaint" [see Fed R Civ P 4(c)(1)]. The contents of the "summons" are set by Rule 4. The summons is a formal notice that announces the existence of the suit and informs the defendant of the duty to respond within a fixed time or face a default judgement [see Fed R Civ P 4(a)(1)]. The "complaint" is the document that describes the plaintiff's claim against the defendant [see Fed R Civ P 7(a), 8(a)].

Cross Reference:

Ch. 6, Drafting the Summons and Complaint.

Service of process is not synonymous with invocation of personal service. Service of process gives a defendant the official notice of the pendency of the action, and it is that notice that compels a defendant to respond and defend and be bound by the judgment of the court [see Henderson v. United States (1996) 517 US 654, 671, 116 S Ct 1638, 134 L Ed2d 880]. In practical terms, however, the ultimate purpose of serving a summons (or obtaining a waiver of service) is to invoke the court's personal jurisdiction over the defendant served [Fed R Civ P 4(k)].

There is a two-pronged test for invoking personal jurisdiction [see, e.g., Greenspun v. Del E. Webb Corp. (9th Cir 1980) 634 F2d 1204, 1207]:

- First, the requirements of Rule 4 must be satisfied.
- Second, the constitutional limits of due process must be satisfied, regardless of service of summons under Rule 4.

The constitutional limits are beyond the scope of this chapter [see Ch. 2, Determining Forum (Jurisdiction and Venue),

2.40[1]]. This chapter focuses on the options and requirements set out directly in Rule 4 or incorporated by reference into Rule 4 from other statutes and rules.

Warning--Compliance With Rule 4 Is Critical:

Satisfaction of the Rule 4 requirements is critical. Without effective service of process, a defendant has no obligation to participate in the case [see Murphy Bros., Inc. v. Michetti Pipe Stringing, Inc. (1999) 526 US 344, 350-351, 119 S Ct 1322, 143 L Ed2d 448] and the judgment will not bind the defendant [McDonald v. Mabee (1917) 243 US 90, 92, 37 S Ct 343, 61 L Ed 608].

Warning--Defendant's Knowledge About Case Is Not Substitute for Service of Process:

A defendant's informal knowledge about a case is not a substitute for proper service of process, and will not invoke the court's personal jurisdiction over that defendant [see, e.g., SEC v. Ross (9th Cir 2007) 504 F3d 1130, 1140 ("the ability to obtain jurisdiction coupled with actual notice of an intent to exercise jurisdiction" did not confer personal jurisdiction without proper service) (emphasis in original)].

7.02[2] Consider Advantages and Disadvantages of Various Methods for Service. Rule 4 offers a variety of methods for service of process, depending on what type of defendant is being served and where that defendant is located [see 7.20 -7.42, 7.47, 7.48].

Example:

Rule 4 authorizes three different methods for serving an individual [see Fed R Civ P 4(e)(2) (personal service, service on agent, and serving on person at defendant's "usual place of abode")]. In addition to those three methods, Rule 4 authorizes service on an individual defendant by any methods authorized by the law of the state in which the district court is located [Fed R Civ P 4(e)(1)]. Thus, all of the methods for service of process that would apply in California state courts will also apply in California's federal district courts [see CCP § 415.10 et seq.].

When several methods are available in a particular set of circumstances, be sure to consider the possible advantages and disadvantages of each.

Example--Seeking Waiver of Service From Evasive Defendants.

Both Rule 4 and California statutes authorize service by mailing a copy of the summons and complaint together with a request that the defendant waive more formal service. Under both Rule 4 and the California statute, if the defendant declines to accept service by this inexpensive means, the defendant may be charged with the costs of subsequent service by more elaborate means [see Fed R Civ P 4(d)(2); CCP § 415.30]. If there is time (that is, if the defendant's presence need not be compelled immediately, such as for a TRO or preliminary injunction), service by mail with a waiver or notice and acknowledgment may be the ideal method for serving such a reluctant defendant. Even if it is ineffective, only time has been lost. Resort to this method of service can shift to the defendant the burden of subsequent, perhaps costly, attempts at service.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of waiver of service, see §§ 7.12 -7.19.

Consider--Multiple Attempts and Methods for Evasive Defendants:

Whenever a defendant is evading service, the best course may be to attempt service multiple times and by multiple means. Within California, various forms of substituted service will be less costly than repeated attempts at personal service. Outside California, service by certified mail is another inexpensive alternative. In any event, careful documentation of these multiple attempts and multiple means will establish the basis for "good cause" if the plaintiff needs to seek an extension of time for service of process, or if the plaintiff needs to request the court for authority to resort to a rare method of service, such as service by publication.

Discussion of methods for service within United States, see §§ 7.20 -7.31. Discussion of methods of service in foreign countries, see §§ 7.32 -7.42. Discussion of extension of time for service of process, see §§ 7.05 -7.07.

Consider--Assistance of Private Investigators and Local Counsel:

Private investigators may be of substantial assistance in locating and serving defendants. Even when the plaintiff seeks substituted service, such as leaving the summons and complaint at the defendant's usual place of abode, a professional investigator may be able to determine all of the relevant facts, and make an proper declaration concerning them, more quickly, efficiently, and cheaply than could an attorney. For service on defendants located outside of California or outside of the United States, local investigators and local counsel may prove well worth their initial expense.

II. MAKING SERVICE TIMELY

1-7 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 7.03

7.03 Service of Summons and Complaint Must Be Timely.

7.03[1] Plaintiff Usually Has Only 120 Days From Filing of Complaint to Serve Defendants. A plaintiff has 120 days from the filing of the complaint to effect service of the summons and complaint on each defendant [Fed R Civ P 4(m)].

Warning:

A federal court borrowing a state's time period for filing suit should not also borrow the state's time limits for service of process [S.J. v. Issaquah Sch. Dist. No. 411 (9th Cir 2006) 470 F3d 1288, 1293 (Fed R Civ P 4(m) governed time limit for filing complaint in Individuals with Disabilities Education Act action)].

If a defendant is added later, by way of amendment to the complaint, the 120-day period runs from the date of the amendment [McGuckin v. United States (9th Cir 1990) 918 F2d 811, 812-813].

There are two exceptions to the 120-day time limit:

- Extension of time. As with most time limits set in the Federal Rules, prior to its expiration, the court may extend the time limit and may do so on motion, on an ex parte request [so far as local rules permit ex parte requests], or sua sponte [Fed R Civ P 6(b)(1)(A)].

- Service in foreign countries. The 120-day time limit does not apply to service of a defendant in a foreign country that is made pursuant either to Rule 4(f) (service on individuals in foreign countries) or Rule 4(j)(1) (service on foreign governments of government instrumentalities) [Fed R Civ P 4(m); see Fed R Civ P 4(f), (j)(1)]. It is not clear whether this exception applies to service on foreign corporations, partnerships, or associations.

Cross References:

Discussion of limits on foreign defendant exception to 120-day time limit, see § 7.41. Discussion of extension of time, see § 7.05. Discussion of international service, see §§ 7.32 -7.42. Discussion of extension of time by noticed motion, see Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, § 26.35.

7.03[2] Failure to Meet Service Deadline May Result in Dismissal. If the plaintiff fails to serve the summons and complaint on a defendant within 120 days after the filing of the complaint, the court has the discretion to dismiss the complaint. Unless the plaintiff makes a showing of good cause for the failure to make service within the 120-day time limit, the court has two options:

- Dismissal. Dismissal of the unserved defendant is the usual remedy for failure to serve a defendant within the time limit [see 7.04].

- Setting new deadline. If the court chooses not to dismiss, the court may set a new time limit for service on the unserved defendant on motion or on its own initiative after notice to the plaintiff [see 7.06].

II. MAKING SERVICE TIMELY

1-7 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 7.04

7.04 Dismissal for Failure to Serve Within 120 Days Follows Notice to Plaintiff.

7.04[1] Notice Is Prerequisite to Dismissal. A court may dismiss a defendant because of a plaintiff's failure to serve that defendant in a timely manner. The court may do so on the motion of a party or on its own motion. However, the court may dismiss only after giving notice to the plaintiff of its intention to do so [Fed R Civ P 4(m)]. The purpose of the notice to the plaintiff is to give the plaintiff an opportunity to establish the type of good cause that will compel the court to grant the plaintiff an extension of time to complete the service on the defendant [see, e.g., Thompson v. Maldonado (2d Cir 2002) 309 F3d 107, 109-110].

7.04[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements--Clerk Prepares OSC Re Dismissal Following Lack of Timely Service. In the Southern District, on the 130th day following the filing of the complaint, or on the 14th day following an extension of time to serve, if proof of service has not yet been filed, the clerk will automatically prepare an order to show cause and submit it to the assigned district judge for signature. Once the clerk presents the order to the plaintiff, the plaintiff has the required notice authorizing the court to dismiss and the plaintiff must appear and show why the case should not be dismissed [SD Cal Civ LR 4.1(b)].

7.04[3] Dismissal Is Without Prejudice. The dismissal that a court grants a defendant for the plaintiff's failure to serve that defendant within 120 days is without prejudice [see, e.g., United States v. 2,164 Watches (9th Cir 2004) 366 F3d 767, 772 ; Johnson v. Meltzer (9th Cir 1998) 134 F3d 1393, 1396 (Fed R Civ P 4(m) does not authorize dismissal with prejudice)]. If the statute of limitations has not expired, the plaintiff is free to file a new suit and start another 120-day period for service [see United States v. 2,164 Watches (9th Cir 2004) 366 F3d 767, 772-773].

7.04[4] Defendant May Waive Untimely Service by Failure to Object. The 120-day time limit for service of process is not jurisdictional. If the plaintiff serves a defendant after the 120-day time limit has expired, and the defendant does not raise an objection to the untimely service either in a responsive pleading or a Rule 12 motion, the objection is waived [McCurdy v. American Bd. of Plastic Surgery (3d Cir 1998) 157 F3d 191, 194].

II. MAKING SERVICE TIMELY

7.05 Extension of 120-Day Deadline for Good Cause.

7.05[1] Court May Grant Extension After Original 120-Day Period Expires. A district court may grant an extension of time to serve the complaint after the expiration of the 120-day period [Mann v. American Airlines (9th Cir 2003) 324 F3d 1088, 1090 ; see Henderson v. United States (1996) 517 US 654, 661, 116 S Ct 1638, 134 L Ed2d 880].

Distinguish:

Extensions prior to the expiration of the time limit are available as well, under Rule 6, which generally allows motions for extension of time on a showing of good cause and excusable neglect [see Fed R Civ P 6(b)(1)].

7.05[2] Court Will Grant Extension If Plaintiff Shows Good Cause. If the plaintiff shows good cause for the failure to serve the summons and complaint within 120 days, the court is required to extend the time for service for an appropriate period [Fed R Civ P 4(m)]. Failure to grant an extension when good cause is shown constitutes an abuse of discretion [see, e.g., De Tie v. Orange County (9th Cir 1998) 152 F3d 1109, 1111-1112].

7.05[3] "Good Cause" Is Not Clearly Defined. There is no definite or bright-line test for what does and does not constitute "good cause." The Ninth Circuit has characterized good cause, at a minimum, as similar to the "excusable neglect" required for an extension of time under Fed R Civ P 6(b)(1)(B) [see Electrical Specialty Co. v. Road & Ranch Supply, Inc. (9th Cir 1992) 967 F2d 309, 312 ; Boudette v. Barnette (9th Cir 1991) 923 F2d 754, 756]. Under Fed R Civ P 6(b), "excusable neglect" is a discretionary determination, in which the court considers whether the party seeking the extension of time has demonstrated both good faith and a reasonable basis for noncompliance with the time limit [see, e.g., In re Prudential Sec., Inc. (SDNY 1994) 158 FRD 301, 303-304].

Example--Good Cause Shown When Defendant Evading Service:

Good cause for an extension may be shown if the defendant is evading service or conceals a defect in earlier attempts at service [see Fed R Civ P 4, Committee Note of 1993; see, e.g., Williams-Guice v. Board of Educ. (7th Cir 1995) 45 F3d 161, 164 (defendant evaded service by convincing process server not to leave papers); Benjamin v. Grosnick (1st Cir 1993) 999 F2d 590, 591-593 (defendant concealed defect in service)].

Example--Good Cause Shown When Defendant Relied on U.S. Marshal:

Good cause for an extension was shown by an incarcerated plaintiff whose reliance on service by the U.S. Marshal resulted in ineffective service. The Marshal failed to effect service in a manner permitted by the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure [see Puett v. Blandford (9th Cir 1990) 912 F2d 270, 275-276].

Example--Simple Mistake or Inadvertence Is Not Good Cause:

An attorney's mistake, even when abetted by reliance on erroneous advice by the court clerk, is not good cause. It is the attorney's job to research the law and comply with its requirements [see Gabriel v. United States (7th Cir 1994) 30 F3d 75, 77 ("reliance on the advice of a Clerk's office employee cannot excuse plaintiff's counsel's failure to do basic research")].

Example--Reliance on Agents Is Not Good Cause:

Counsel may not assert good cause merely by asserting that he or she relied on a process server [see, e.g., Putnam v. Morris (10th Cir 1987) 833 F2d 903, 905] or a secretary [see, e.g., McGinnis v. Shalala (5th Cir 1993) 2 F3d 548, 550-551]. Nor, in most cases, may a party claim good cause merely by asserting reliance on a neglectful attorney [see, e.g., Tso v. Delaney (7th Cir 1992) 969 F2d 373, 375-376].

Example--Reliance on Other Conduct in Litigation Is Not Good Cause:

The mere fact that a party or counsel took other steps to further the litigation is not good cause for failure to effect timely service of process. Plaintiff's desire to amend the complaint before serving it [see, e.g., Wei v. Hawaii (9th Cir 1985) 763 F2d 370, 372] or even adding new parties or new claims [see, e.g., Tso v. Delaney (7th Cir 1992) 969 F2d 373, 377] is not good cause. Similarly, engagement in settlement negotiations with a defendant is not good cause for failure to serve that defendant in a timely manner [see, e.g., Davis-Wilson v. Hilton Hotels Corp. (ED La 1985) 106 FRD 505, 506].

Example--Ignorance of Law Is Not Good Cause:

Plaintiff's attorney's ignorance concerning the requirements of Rule 4 is never good cause [Hamilton v. Endell (9th Cir 1992) 981 F2d 1062, 1065 ; Townsel v. County of Contra Costa (9th Cir 1987) 820 F2d 319, 320].

7.06 Court May Extend Deadline Even If No Good Cause Shown.

7.06[1] Extension Without Good Cause Is Rare. A district court may enlarge the time for service even if no good cause is shown [Fed R Civ P 4(m); see Henderson v. United States (1996) 517 US 654, 658 n5, 663 n10, 116 S Ct 1638, 134 L Ed2d 880 ; Mann v. American Airlines (9th Cir 2003) 324 F3d 1088, 1091].

Example:

Plaintiffs' suit against the State of California and four individual Highway Patrol officers stemmed from their arrests at a demonstration at the Golden Gate Bridge. The four officers were served, but not within 120 days of the filing of the complaint. Although good cause was not shown for this failure, the district court exercised its discretion to grant an extension of time to serve the officers nunc pro tunc. The court pointed out that the plaintiffs would be barred from refiling by the statute of limitations, the officers had actual notice of the complaint well within the 120-day period, and the officers would not suffer prejudice from the untimely service [Ibrahim v. California (ND Cal 2004) 2004 US Dist LEXIS 22149, at *5-*9].

Warning:

Given the calendar pressure that virtually all federal courts face, a plaintiff should not rely on a court's willingness to enlarge the time for service without a showing of good cause.

7.06[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements--Court's Policy of No Extensions, Except on Good Cause. The policy of the Southern District of California is that plaintiffs must complete service of process within the 120-day time limit. The only extensions of time that the court will grant are on good cause shown [SD Cal Civ LR 4.1(a)].

II. MAKING SERVICE TIMELY

1-7 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 7.07

7.07 Court Weighs Effect of Statute of Limitations in Deciding to Grant Extension.

7.07[1] Expiration of Statute of Limitations Weighs in Favor of Extension. If the statute of limitations would bar refiling of the suit if the court were to dismiss the case instead of granting an extension, the bar is a factor that weighs heavily in favor of granting an extension [Fed R Civ P 4, Committee Note of 1993 ("Relief may be justified, for example, if the applicable statute of limitations would bar the re-filed action"); see Mann v. American Airlines (9th Cir 2003) 324 F3d 1088, 1090-1091 ; see also De Tie v. Orange County (9th Cir 1998) 152 F3d 1109, 1111 n5 ; Tyson v. Sunnyvale (ND Cal 1995) 159 FRD 528, 530].

Consider:

In appropriate circumstances, the court has the discretion to dismiss a case rather than grant an extension even if the statute of limitations has expired [see, e.g., Townsel v. County of Contra Costa (9th Cir 1987) 820 F2d 319, 320-321].

7.07[2] Expiration of 120-Day Time Limit Does Not Restart Statute of Limitations. Failure to serve process within the 120-day period does not affect the tolling of the statute of limitations caused by the initial filing of the complaint. The mere expiration of the 120-day time limit does not, by itself, restart the running of the statute of limitations in a case in which it has already been tolled [Mann v. American Airlines (9th Cir 2003) 324 F3d 1088, 1091].

The 120-day time limit can raise limitations issues if the court dismisses the case because of failure to serve process within the time limit, and the statute of limitations has run at the time of the dismissal, thus barring a refiling of the action [Mann v. American Airlines (9th Cir 2003) 324 F3d 1088, 1091].

If the court extends the 120-day time limit, process may be served within the court's extension without raising any statute of limitations issues [Mann v. American Airlines (9th Cir 2003) 324 F3d 1088, 1091].

CHAPTER 7 Service of Summons
III. SELECTING PERSON TO SERVE SUMMONS AND COMPLAINT

1-7 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 7.08

7.08 CHECKLIST: Choosing Process Server for Summons and Complaint.

☐ Determine whether service will be made by private process server or by U.S. Marshal or Deputy Marshal.

○ Service by U.S. Marshal is normal method of service only if:

☐ Plaintiff is authorized to proceed in forma pauperis; or ☐ Plaintiff is authorized to proceed as a seaman.

Authority:
28 USC §§ 1915, 1916; Fed R Civ P 4(c)(2), (3)

Discussion:
See § 7.11[2]

○ Service by U.S. Marshal might be available if plaintiff requests it and the court orders it, such as when:

☐ Defendant is incarcerated; or

☐ Law enforcement presence is necessary or advisable in order to keep the peace.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 4(c)(3)

Discussion:
See §§ 7.11[1], [3][a]

○ In the Central District Court of California, process cannot be presented to the U.S. Marshal for service, except when:

☐ A court order provides for service by the Marshal's office;

☐ Service by the Marshal's office is required by federal statute or treaty; or

☐ The U.S. government, or its officer or agency, requests service of process by the U.S. Marshal.

Authority:
CD Cal Civ LR 4-2, 4-3

Discussion:
See § 7.11[3][b]

○ In the Northern District of California, service of summons in a civil action by U.S. Marshal is not available except when:

☐ Service is to be on behalf of the United States;

☐ Service by the Marshal is required by Rule 4(c)(3); or

☐ The court has ordered service by the Marshal for good cause shown.

Authority:
ND Cal Civ LR 4-1

Discussion:
See § 7.11[3][c]

○ In the Southern District of California, the U.S. Marshal might not serve the defendant as requested unless the plaintiff provides the Marshal's office with appropriate instructions regarding:

☐ The person to be served;

☐ The capacity in which the defendant is to be served (i.e., the defendant's official or individual capacity); and

☐ The address for service.

Authority:

SD Cal Civ LR 4.1(c)

Discussion:
See § 7.11[3][d]

☐ If the U.S. Marshal's office will not perform the service, determine whether court needs to specifically appoint private person to serve process because:

○ Federal statute requires service by Marshal or person specially appointed by court, and Marshal's office will not be able to serve process quickly enough;

○ Plaintiff is proceeding in forma pauperis or as seaman, and Marshal's office will not be able to serve process quickly enough;

○ Federal statute relating to plaintiff's status requires service by Marshal's office or person specially appointed by court, and some person other than U.S. Marshal or Deputy Marshal is in a unique position or relationship to effect service more efficiently and quickly.

Authority:
28 USC §§ 1915, 1916; Fed R Civ P 4(c)(3)

Discussion:
See § 7.11

☐ If private person will serve process without court order, be certain that person is:

○ Over 18 years of age;

○ Not a party to the action; and ○ Trustworthy and experienced enough to serve process in the proper manner within a reasonable time.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 4(c)(2)

Discussion:
See § 7.10

☐ Supply process server with sufficient number of copies of complaint and properly issued summons to effect delivery of summons and complaint on all defendants process server is engaged to serve.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 4(c)(1)

Discussion:
See § 7.09

CHAPTER 7 Service of Summons
III. SELECTING PERSON TO SERVE SUMMONS AND COMPLAINT

7.09 Plaintiff Is Responsible for Serving Summons and Complaint.

The summons must be served by a person over 18 years of age who is not a party to the action [Fed R Civ P 4(c)(2)]. Nonetheless, the plaintiff is solely responsible for serving a copy of the summons and complaint on each defendant [Fed R Civ P 4(c)(1); see, e.g., Hickory Travel Sys., Inc. v. Tui Ag (ND Cal 2003) 213 FRD 547, 551 (although Fed R Civ P 4 should be construed liberally, service is not effective unless plaintiff substantially complies with its requirements)].

Warning--Consequences of Service by Unauthorized Person:

If plaintiff selects an unauthorized person to serve a summons, the service is invalid and will not support a default judgment or a judgment against any defendant who has appeared but preserved his or her objection to the faulty service [see Veeck v. Commodity Enters., Inc. (9th Cir 1973) 487 F2d 423, 425].

Warning--Reliance on Third Parties Is No Excuse for Failure to Serve:

Plaintiff's reliance on process servers [see, e.g., Putnam v. Morris (10th Cir 1987) 833 F2d 903, 905] or a neglectful attorney [see, e.g., Tso v. Delaney (7th Cir 1992) 969 F2d 373, 375-376] or an attorney's secretary [see, e.g., McGinnis v. Shalala (5th Cir 1993) 2 F3d 548, 550-551] will not excuse a failure to serve the summons in a timely manner.

The plaintiff is also responsible for furnishing the process server with the necessary copies of the summons and complaint [Fed R Civ P 4(c)(1)].

III. SELECTING PERSON TO SERVE SUMMONS AND COMPLAINT

1-7 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 7.10

7.10 Any Person Not Party to Action and 18 Years of Age or Older May Serve Summons.

Service of a summons may be effected by any person who is not a party and who is at least 18 years of age [Fed R Civ P 4(c)(2)].

Trap--Service by Attorney:

As a general rule, you should not serve process on behalf of a client. If the defendant later contests service, there is a possibility that you may face the ethical dilemma of testifying as a witness as well as acting as an advocate [see Cal Rules Prof Conduct 5-210], although this possibility may be insignificant with some methods of service, such as when the plaintiff attempts service by mail.

III. SELECTING PERSON TO SERVE SUMMONS AND COMPLAINT

1-7 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 7.11

7.11 Court May Appoint Marshal or Other Person on Request of Plaintiff.

7.11[1] Marshal or Special Appointee Not Needed in Most Cases. Because virtually any person 18 years of age or older may serve process [see Benny v. Pipes (9th Cir 1986) 799 F2d 489, 493-494 (even felons and incarcerated persons may serve process)], the U.S. Marshal Service will rarely be needed for service. Nonetheless, if the plaintiff so requests, the court may direct that a U.S. Marshal or Deputy Marshal, or some other court-appointed person, will serve process in the case [Fed R Civ P 4(c)(3)].

7.11[2] Exception When Statute Requires Court to Appoint Process Server. The court will appoint the U.S. Marshal or some other specific person to serve process when the plaintiff proceeds in forma pauperis (without prepayment of normal court fees) or when the plaintiff is a seaman suing under a statute enacted for the health or safety of seamen [see Fed R Civ P 4(c)(3); 28 USC §§ 1915(d), 1916].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of appointment of process server by court, see 1 Moore's Federal Practice, § 4.72 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

7.11[3] Other Circumstances May Justify Appointment of Special Process Server, but Local Rules Are Restrictive.

7.11[3][a] Court May Appoint Process Server on Plaintiff's Request in Unique Circumstances. The court may appoint the U.S. Marshal or some other person as process server in the case whenever the plaintiff requests an appointment [see Fed R Civ P 4(c)(3)]. In practice, however, a court will do so only if there are some unique circumstances that justify the appointment. For example, an appointment of the U.S. Marshal as process server might be appropriate if a law enforcement presence would be necessary or advisable to keep the peace [see Fed R Civ P 4, Committee Note of 1993].

7.11[3][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Limitation on Service by U.S. Marshal. Except as otherwise provided by order of the Court, or when required by the treaties or statutes of the United States, process must not be presented to the United States Marshal for service [CD Cal Civ LR 4-2]. Civil process on behalf of the United States government, or an officer or agency of the federal government, will be made by the United States Marshal on request by the government [CD Cal Civ LR 4-3].

7.11[3][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements--Limitation on Service by U.S. Marshal. In the Northern District, except for service on behalf of the United States or as required by Fed R Civ P 4(c)(2), or unless the Court orders otherwise for good cause shown, service of summons in a civil action will not be made by the United States Marshal [ND Cal Civ LR 4-1].

7.11[3][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements--Providing Instructions to Marshal's Office. In the Southern District, when service of a summons and pleading is to be made by a United States Marshal on a person or entity, the party requesting the summons must provide the United States Marshal's office with appropriate instructions regarding the person on whom service is to be made, in what capacity the service is to be made (official or individual), and at what address service is to be made. Failure to comply with these instructions may cause the Marshal not to perform service [SD Cal Civ LR 4.1(c)].

Unit 3 Pleading Stage
CHAPTER 7 Service of Summons
IV. SEEKING WAIVER OF SERVICE OF SUMMONS

1-7 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 7.12

7.12 CHECKLIST: Determining Whether to Seek Waiver of Service.

☐ Determine whether defendant is subject to Fed R Civ P 4(d) waiver of service:

○ Defendant is individual located within the United States and subject to service under Fed R Civ P 4(e);

○ Defendant is individual located outside the United States, but subject to service under Fed R Civ P 4(f); or ○ Defendant is corporation or association that is subject to service under Fed R Civ P 4(h).

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 4(d)(1)

Discussion:
See § 7.15[1]

☐ Determine whether there is time to complete Rule 4(d) procedures for waiver of service of summons, considering:

○ Will the 120-day deadline for service of process be satisfied if there is a successful attempt to obtain waiver?

○ Will the 120-day deadline for service of process be satisfied if the attempt to secure a waiver is unsuccessful and service must be attempted by other means after the waiver is refused?

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 4(d), (m)

Discussion:
See § 7.03

○ Statute of limitations should not be a factor in limiting time to seek waiver of service of summons in California federal district courts because:

☐ If plaintiff's claim is based on federal law and a federal statute of limitations, plaintiff only needs to file the complaint within the limitations period [see Fed R Civ P 3].

☐ If plaintiff's claim is based on California law, plaintiff still only needs to file the complaint within the limitations period [see CCP § 350].

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 4(d)

Discussion:
See § 7.19

○ If defendant complies with request for waiver, will extending defendant's time to appear and answer interfere with any proceedings that need quick action, such as initial disclosures and commencement of discovery?

○ If defendant is or is expected to both refuse the waiver and to evade service, unreasonably increasing its costs, will extra time needed to complete the waiver process be compensated by shifting the costs of service to the defendant?

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 4(d)(1), (5)

Discussion:
See §§ 7.15[2], 7.18

☐ If there is time to seek a waiver of service of summons, assess whether it will result in any savings for the plaintiff, considering:

○ What the actual cost savings will be from having attorney's office prepare and mail waiver papers, calendaring the time for the defendant's response, and risking the need to re-serve the defendant if a waiver is refused, versus simply hiring a professional process server in the first place.

○ If the defendant refuses the waiver, costs of service are shifted to the defendant; but if a motion is made to collect those costs, the attempt at a waiver may well increase the contentious atmosphere of the litigation rather than foster a cooperative atmosphere among the parties and their counsel.

7.13 CHECKLIST: Seeking Waiver of Service of Summons.

☐ Prepare documents needed to secure waiver, including:

○ "Notice of Lawsuit and Request for Waiver of Service of Summons," using Official Form 5;

○ Form for defendant to execute, entitled "Waiver of Service of Summons," using Official Form 6;

○ Copy of complaint to serve along with other papers;

○ Extra copy of "Notice of Lawsuit" form and "Waiver of Service" form for defendant to serve with other papers and for defendant to retain; and ○ Postage-prepaid return envelope or other prepaid means for defendant to return "Waiver of Summons" form.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 4(d)(1), 84; Fed R Civ P Appendix of Forms, Forms 5, 6

Forms:
See §§ 7.56, 7.57

Discussion:

See § 7.16

☐ Address documents to the defendant:

○ Directly, if defendant is an individual; or

○ By specifying an officer or managing or general agent of the defendant if the defendant is a corporation or association with the meaning of Rule 4(h).

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 4(d)(1)(A)

Discussion:
See § 7.16[2]

☐ In documents, allow defendant "reasonable time" within which to return waiver, meaning:

○ At least 30 days from the date of sending request if defendant is within United States; or

○ At least 60 days from the date of sending request if defendant is outside of the United States.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 4(d)(1)(F)

Discussion:
See § 7.16[2]

☐ Dispatch all documents seeking request for waiver (including copy of complaint and extra copies of "Notice" and "Waiver" forms) by first class mail or other reliable means.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 4(d)(1)(G)

Discussion:
See § 7.17

7.14 CHECKLIST: Responding to Request for Waiver of Service.

☐ Review request for waiver to ensure that Rule 4(d) requirements have been satisfied.

☐ If request is in proper form, consider disadvantages of waiving service, keeping in mind that:

- Any defendant located within the United States will be required to pay for service of process effected by other means; and
- Waiver of service of summons does not waive any objection to venue or to the court's lack of personal jurisdiction.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 4(d)(1), (2), (5)

Discussion:
See §§ 7.15[2], 7.19[1]

☐ Consider advantages to waiver of service of summons, including:

- Avoidance of paying costs of service, and
- Extension of time to respond from normal 20-day period to 60 days if served within the United States or 90 days if served outside of the United States.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 4(d)(1), (3), 12(a)(1)

Discussion:
See §§ 7.15[2], 7.18

☐ In absence of compelling reason to refuse waiver, return waiver form to plaintiff's attorney (or directly to unrepresented plaintiff) in return envelope or other pre-paid means of return provided by plaintiff.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 4(d)(1)(C), (3)

Discussion:

CHAPTER 7 Service of Summons
IV. SEEKING WAIVER OF SERVICE OF SUMMONS

1-7 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 7.15

7.15 Certain Defendants Have Obligation to Avoid Unnecessary Costs When Faced With Waiver Request.

7.15[1] Plaintiff May Seek Waiver From Most Types of Defendants. A plaintiff may seek a waiver from any of the following defendants [Fed R Civ P 4(d)(1)]:

- An individual defendant that is capable of being served in any judicial district of the United States by any means for service of process listed in or referred to in Rule 4(e) [see Fed R Civ P 4(e)], except for minors or incompetent persons [see Fed R Civ P 4(g) (special provisions for service on minors or incompetents)];

- An individual defendant that is capable of being served outside of the United States by any of the means for service of process listed in or referred to in Rule 4(f) [see Fed R Civ P 4(f)], except for minors or incompetent persons [see Fed R Civ P 4(g) (special provisions for service on infants or incompetents)]; and

- Any domestic or foreign corporation, or any partnership or other unincorporated association that is capable of being served inside or outside of the United States by any of the means for service of process listed in or referred to in Rule 4(h) [see Fed R Civ P 4(h)].

Consider--Governmental Defendants Are Not Subject to Waiver Procedure:

The right to request a waiver of summons is limited to defendants who may be served under Rule 4(e), (f), and (h) [Fed R Civ P 4(d)(1)]. The United States, its agencies, and its officers or employees may be served only under Rule 4(i) [see Fed R Civ P 4(i)]. Similarly, foreign, state, and local governments may be served only under Rule 4(j) [see Fed R Civ P 4(j)].

Timing:

In some other states, a plaintiff must serve a defendant with process in order to satisfy a statute of limitations [see, e.g., Ragan v. Merchants Transfer & Warehouse Co. (1949) 337 US 530, 532-533, 69 S Ct 1233, 93 L Ed 1520 (under Kansas law, action commenced for limitations purposes when summons was served)]. In diversity cases in these states, the need to have service completed within the limitations period may rule out resort to seeking a waiver. Under California law, as under Fed R Civ P 3, an action is commenced for statute of limitations purposes on the filing of the complaint [CCP § 350]. Under California law, a plaintiff has three full years after the filing of the complaint to serve the summons [CCP § 583.210(a)], and the 120-day time limit of Rule 4 [see Fed R Civ P 4(m)] will have expired long before any California statute of limitations requires service of summons.

7.15[2] Defendant Who Refuses Waiver Usually Will Pay Costs for Service of Process. When any of the defendants who may be requested to waive service of process receives a proper request for waiver, that defendant "has a duty to avoid unnecessary expenses of serving the summons" [Fed R Civ P 4(d)(1)]. In fact, if one of these defendants located within the United States fails to comply with a request for waiver made by a plaintiff who is also located within the United States, the court must impose the costs of any subsequent service on the refusing defendant. The court must award the costs of service even when the defendant who refused waiver ends up as the prevailing party entitled to recover other costs under Fed R Civ P 54(d)(1) [Estate of Darulis v. Garate (9th Cir 2005) 401 F3d 1060, 1063]. The court may excuse the defendant from paying these costs only if the defendant shows "good cause" for refusal of the request for waiver [Fed R Civ P 4(d)(2)]. The costs that a refusing defendant may be compelled to pay include [Fed R Civ P 4(d)(2); see, e.g., Davilla v. Thinline Collections, LLC (ND Cal 2005) 230 FRD 601, 603 (plaintiff entitled to $900 in attorney fees for preparing motion and $170.28 for costs of personal service)]:

- All costs subsequently incurred in effecting service under Fed R Civ P 4(e), (f), or (h);
- All costs incurred in connection with any motion seeking to collect the costs of service; and
- Reasonable attorney's fees incurred in connection with any motion seeking to collect the costs of service.

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

The plaintiff must actually send the request for waiver to the defendant to be eligible for an award of costs under Fed R Civ P 4(d) [Hy Cite Corp. v. Badbusinessbureau.com, L.L.C. (D Ariz 2005) 418 F Supp2d 1142, 1153-1154 (argument that sending request for waiver of service would have been futile is not grounds for shifting costs and fees of service of process)].

CHAPTER 7 Service of Summons
IV. SEEKING WAIVER OF SERVICE OF SUMMONS

1-7 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 7.16

7.16 Rule 4 Prescribes Form of Request for Waiver of Service.

7.16[1] Plaintiffs Use Official Forms to Send Notice of Action and Waiver Forms to Defendants.

7.16[1][a] Official Form 5 Sets Out Notice of Action and Request for Waiver. The request for a waiver of service of process is a form that notifies a defendant of the commencement of the action and requests that the defendant waive service of a summons [Fed R Civ P 4(d)(2)]. One of the Official Forms in the Appendix of Forms to the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure [see Fed R Civ P 84] sets out the required language for a notice of commencement of the action and request for waiver of service of summons [see Fed R Civ P Appendix of Forms, Form 5]. Fed R Civ P 4 requires that the notice and request be in writing [Fed R Civ P 4(d)(1)(A)], but never explicitly requires that the notice and request be made using this form and this form only. Nonetheless, the form is, in practice, almost always used.

7.16[1][b] Official Form 6 Sets Out Form of Waiver That Defendant May Complete. Along with the notice of the action and request, it is customary to send the defendant a form that the defendant may complete to waive service of summons. The Official Forms in the Appendix of Forms to the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure [see Fed R Civ P 84] contain a form of waiver that complies with Fed R Civ P 4 [see Fed R Civ P Appendix of Forms, Form 6]. Although Rule 4 requires that the plaintiff provide the defendant with a "mea ns for returning" the request to waive service of summons [Fed R Civ P 4(d)(1)(C)], the Rule does not explicitly require the plaintiff to supply a waiver form or for the defendant to make a waiver on this form. Nonetheless, the form is, in practice, almost always used.

7.16[1][c] Official Form 6 Sets Out Required Warning Language. The plaintiff must send the defendant a warning along with the notice of commencement of action and request for waiver. The warning must inform the defendant of the consequences, such as payment of the costs for formal service of process, if the defendant fails to timely complete and return the request for waiver of service of summons. Rule 4 explicitly requires that the warning take the form of language "prescribed in Form 5" set out in the Appendix of Forms to the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure [Fed R Civ P 4(d)(1)(D); see Fed R Civ P 84]. This language is contained in the waiver form promulgated as Official Form 6 [see Fed R Civ P Appendix of Forms, Form 6].

7.16[2] Rule 4 Specifies Contents for Notice Form. Rule 4(d)(1) sets out three matters that must be specified in the notice of commencement of the action and request for waiver of service of summons [Fed R Civ P 4(d)(1)]:

- Name of Defendant to Whom Request Is Addressed: The notice and request for waiver of service of summons must be addressed to the defendant if the defendant is an individual. If the defendant is a corporation, partnership, or other association sued under its common name, the plaintiff must specify the officer or managing or general agent (or other agent authorized by law to receive process) to whom the request is addressed [Fed R Civ P 4(d)(1)(A)(ii)].

- Date on Which Request Sent: The defendant's time to respond to the request for waiver of service of summons (and, by that means, to avoid the costs for service of summons), runs from the date on which the request was sent to the defendant [see Fed R Civ P 4(d)(1)(F)]. Therefore, the notice and request must explicitly identify the date on which the request was sent [Fed R Civ P 4(d)(1)(E)].

- Time Limit for Responding to the Request: The defendant has a time limit within which to waive service of summons, and the notice and request for waiver must specify that time limit. The plaintiff must give the defendant a "reasonable" time to decide whether to waive summons and to execute and return the waiver of service of summons if the defendant agrees to the waiver [Fed R Civ P 4(d)(1)(F)]. There is no upper limit on the time that a plaintiff may give the defendant, except for the 120-day limit on serving summons [see Fed R Civ P 4(m)]. However, at a minimum, the plaintiff must give the defendant at least 30 days from the date on which the request was sent, and at least 60 if the request is addressed to a defendant outside the United States [Fed R Civ P 4(d)(1)(F)].

Official Form 5 contains blanks for all three of these matters and instructions as to how to fill in those blanks [see Fed R Civ P Appendix of Forms, Form 5].

7.16[3] Copy of Complaint Must Accompany Request for Waiver. The request for waiver of service of summons must include a copy of the complaint [Fed R Civ P 4(d)(1)(C)].

7.16[4] Defendant Must Receive Extra Copy. The plaintiff must send the defendant two copies of the waiver form [Fed R Civ P 4(d)(1)(C)].

7.16[5] Plaintiff Must Send Defendant a Prepaid Means of Returning Waiver of Service of Summons. In addition to all of the other matters that must be included in a request for waiver of service of summons, the plaintiff must provide the defendant with "a prepaid means for returning the [waiver] form." In other words, the plaintiff must provide the defendant with some means for agreeing to the request in writing, and a prepaid means of communicating this written request to the plaintiff. Usually, this will mean including a prepaid, self-addressed envelope in which the written waiver form [Official Form 6] may be returned to the plaintiff by mail.

7.17 Plaintiff Must Send Request for Waiver by Mail or Other Reliable Means.

All of the materials that comprise a proper request for waiver of service of summons [see 7.16] must be sent to the defendant by first-class mail or other "reliable" means [Fed R Civ P 4(d)(1)(G)]. Private messenger services and electronic means of delivery may be as reliable as first class mail. Particularly in foreign countries, these means may be more reliable than the mails [see Fed R Civ P 4, Committee Note of 1993]. Regular mail is reliable, but somewhat slow. As a practical matter, private messenger or overnight delivery services have the advantage, particularly for out-of-state and foreign deliveries, of being faster than mail service. They also provide easy verification of delivery. In contrast, facsimile and e-mail delivery raise difficult issues of proving delivery. Furthermore, they raise questions as to how to provide (or how to prove that one has provided) all of the required copies of the notice and request, plus "the prepaid means" for returning the waiver form [see Fed R Civ P 4(d)(1)(C)]. In other words, it may be difficult to include a postage prepaid envelope in an e-mail, so that the defendant can execute the waiver "in writing" and return the executed waiver to the plaintiff free of charge. Unless a plaintiff has a clear understanding with the defendant that a waiver is intended, there is little or no authority that a reply e-mail or return fax constitutes a proper execution of the waiver "in writing."

Warning:

Keep in mind that merely mailing a request for waiver of service does not suffice to effect service. Instead, the defendant to whom the waiver of service is addressed must sign and return the waiver [Woodruff v. Mueller (ND Cal 2004) 2004 US Dist LEXIS 5218, at *10].

7.18 Defendant Obtains Extension of Time to Plead by Waiving Service of Summons.

If a defendant returns a waiver of service of summons within the time allowed in the request, the defendant so waiving service of summons obtains an extension of time within which to answer or otherwise respond to the complaint [see Fed R Civ P 4(d)(3), 12(a)(1)(A)(ii)]. A defendant subject to a request for waiver of service of summons normally has 21 days from the service of the summons and complaint within which to respond to the complaint [Fed R Civ P 12(a)(1)(A)(i)]. If the defendant timely waives service of summons, the defendant has 60 days from the date that the request for waiver of service was sent within which to respond to the complaint. If the waiver was requested from a defendant outside of the United States, the defendant has 90 days from the date that the request for waiver was sent within which to respond to the complaint [Fed R Civ P 4(d)(3), 12(a)(1)(A)(ii)].

Unit 3 Pleading Stage
CHAPTER 7 Service of Summons
IV. SEEKING WAIVER OF SERVICE OF SUMMONS

1-7 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 7.19

7.19 After Waiver of Service of Summons, Action Proceeds As If Service Made When Waiver Filed.

7.19[1] Waiver of Service Is Not Waiver of Jurisdictional or Venue Objections. A defendant who waives service of a summons does not waive objection to the court's ability to exercise personal jurisdiction [Fed R Civ P 4(d)(5)]. The defendant may still bring a motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction [see Fed R Civ P 12(b)(2)]. Similarly, a defendant who waives service of summons does not waive objection to venue [Fed R Civ P 4(d)(5)]. The defendant may still bring a motion to dismiss for improper venue [see 28 USC § 1406(a); Fed R Civ P 12(b)(3)], or move to transfer venue, either on the grounds that venue is improper [see 28 USC § 1406(a)] or for the convenience of witnesses and the ends of justice [see 28 USC § 1404(a)].

Warning--Waiver of Objection to Service of Process:

Rule 4(d)(1) explicitly provides that a timely waiver of service of a summons does not prejudice the right of a defendant to make a Rule 12(b)(2) motion objecting to the court's lack of personal jurisdiction over the defendant and does not prejudice Rule 12(b)(3) or statutory venue objections and motions. Obviously, however, because the waiver eliminates service of process, the waiver does eliminate a defendant's right to make a Rule 12(b)(4) motion objecting to "the sufficiency of the summons or the sufficiency of the method by which it is served" [see Fed R Civ P 4, Committee Note of 1993]. On the other hand, a defendant should not reject a request for a waiver merely to preserve a technical objection to the form of the summons or some technical defect in the waiver. If the defendant is otherwise inclined to waive formal service of process, little is to be gained by preserving a technical objection. Furthermore, as a practical matter, a defendant rejecting a waiver should consider whether and to what extent the court will be favorably disposed to any Rule 12(b)(4) motion objecting to the sufficiency of the summons or of the method of service after the defendant forces that service by rejecting the request for a waiver.

7.19[2] Action Proceeds As If Summons Served on Date Waiver Is Filed. Apart from the defendant's extension of time to respond to the complaint, an action in which a defendant waives service of summons is treated the same as an action in which the plaintiff serves the defendant with a summons and complaint. Instead of filing a proof of service of the summons [see Fed R Civ P 4(l)], the plaintiff files the waiver of service of summons. The action is treated as if the defendant was served as of the date of the filing of the waiver [Fed R Civ P 4(d)(4)].

7.19[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Waiver Must Be Filed Immediately. In the Eastern District Court of California, if the defendant has waived service of process, the plaintiff must file the waiver of service as soon as possible after receiving the waiver. The plaintiff must file the waiver before any party requests action from the court or the court takes any action in reliance on proper service or a waiver of service [ED Cal Civ LR 210(c)].

Request and notice of waiver, see 1 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 4.10 -4.16 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

V. CHOOSING METHODS FOR SERVICE OF SUMMONS AND COMPLAINT WITHIN THE UNITED STATES

1-7 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 7.25

7.25 CHECKLIST: Reviewing Available California Methods of Service.

☐ Consider personal service (hand delivery).

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 4(e)(1); CCP § 415.10

Discussion:
See §§ 7.27[1], [3]

☐ For corporations, banks, former corporations, joint stock companies, other unincorporated associations, or public entities, consider delivery of summons and complaint to person in charge of office of individual to be served and mailing additional copy to the individual to be served at that office.

Authority:
CCP § 415.20(a); see CCP §§ 416.10-416.50

Warning:
This method of service is not complete until 10 days after the mailing [CCP § 415.20(a)]. Thus, it cannot be used for service being made on the eve of the 120-day deadline for service of process [see Fed R Civ P 4(m)].

☐ For minors, wards of a guardianship, persons served pursuant to the Elections Code, or others from whom no other method of service is specified by law, and if personal service is not possible with reasonable diligence, consider delivery of summons and complaint to the usual dwelling place or place of abode, or office, or post office address (other than a P.O. Box), to a competent member of the household or a person in charge of the office of the individual to be served:

- The person with whom the summons and complaint are left must be at least 18 years of age and must be informed of the contents of the summons and complaint.

- The delivery to the dwelling place, office, or post office address must followed by mailing an additional copy to the individual to be served at that same place.

Authority:
CCP § 415.20(b); see CCP §§ 416.60-416.90

Warning:
This method of service is not complete until 10 days after the mailing [CCP § 415.20(b)]. Thus, it cannot be used for service being made on the eve of the 120-day deadline for service of process [see Fed R Civ P 4(m)].

☐ Consider notice and acknowledgment of receipt, which requires:

- Mailing a copy of the summons and a copy of the complaint, together with two copies of a "notice and acknowledgment of receipt" to person to be served.
  - ☐ Sending documents to a post office address is sufficient.

  - ☐ Notice and acknowledgment must be substantially in the form prescribed by statute or in a form approved by the California Judicial Council.

- Having person voluntarily sign and return the acknowledgment of receipt form.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 4(e)(1); CCP § 415.30

Discussion:
See § 7.27[3][c]

☐ For persons located outside of California, consider service by certified or registered mail, keeping in mind that:

- Service is deemed completed on the 10th day after mailing.

- The defendant located outside of California need not execute an acknowledgment of the receipt for service to be complete.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 4(e)(1); CCP § 415.40

Discussion:
See §§ 7.15 -7.19, 7.27[3][c]

Warning:

This method of service is not complete until 10 days after the mailing [CCP § 415.40]. Thus, it cannot be used for service being made on the eve of the 120-day deadline for service of process [see Fed R Civ P 4(m)].

☐ For real property disputes, consider one of the special service methods for those disputes, such as:

○ In unlawful detainer actions, posting of the summons on the premises, if the court so orders and the defendant cannot be served with reasonable diligence in any other manner;

○ In unlawful detainer actions seeking immediate, pre-judgment possession of the property, by also serving persons actually occupying the property; and

○ When a lessor claims the lessee has abandoned a leasehold, but the lessee has responded with formal notice of non-abandonment under California Civil Code Section 1951.3, serving the lessee by certified mail.

Authority:

Fed R Civ P 4(e)(1); CCP §§ 415.45-415.47; see CC § 1951.3

Discussion:

Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Landlord-Tenant Litigation, Ch. 5, Unlawful Detainer.

Warning:

The method of serving an abandoning tenant under CCP § 415.47 is not complete until 10 days after the mailing. Thus, it cannot be used for service being made on the eve of the 120-day deadline for service of process [see Fed R Civ P 4(m)].

☐ If the defendant may not be served with reasonable diligence by any other method, consider service by publication, which requires:

○ Application to the court for an order authorizing service by publication.

○ Affidavits in support of the application showing that no other method of service is feasible.

○ Publishing the service in accordance with statutory requirements and the court order.

Authority:

Fed R Civ P 4(e)(1); CCP §§ 415.50, 2015.5

Discussion:

See § 7.27[3][e]

Warning:

This method of service is not complete until the end of the publication period [see CCP § 415.50(c)], which is four weeks [Gov Code § 6064]. Thus, it cannot be used for service being made on the eve of the 120-day deadline for service of process [see Fed R Civ P 4(m)].

☐ If it appears that no service statute is specifically applicable to the defendant or the circumstances of the case, apply to the court for an order regarding the manner of service.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 4(e)(1); CCP § 413.30

☐ If desired, transmit process by telegraph for service anywhere.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 4(e)(1); CCP § 1017

Discussion:
See § 7.29[7]

☐ Serve a partnership domiciled outside California that has no regular place of business in California, by serving a designated agent or, if the designated agent is a corporation, any person named in the designated agent's last certificate.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 4(e)(1), (h); Corp Code §§ 15800, 16310(b)

Discussion:
See § 7.29[7]

☐ Serve a partnership that cannot be served successfully by other means, by:

- ○ Serving the California Secretary of State;
- ○ Providing a statement of the last known address of the partnership;
- ○ Paying the appropriate fee; and
- ○ Giving the partnership 30 days after receipt of service from the Secretary of State to appear.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 4(e)(1), (h); Corp Code § 15800; Gov Code § 12197 (fee)

Discussion:
See § 7.29[7]

☐ Serve a limited liability partnership with its principal office outside California, or a foreign limited liability partnership, by:

- ○ Serving limited partnership in same manner as an unincorporated association;
- ○ Hand delivering a summons and complaint to an agent or to the office of the corporate agent; or
- ○ If there is no agent designated or an agent cannot be found, serving the California Secretary of State by means of:
  - ☐ Obtaining a court order authorizing service on the California Secretary of State; and
  - ☐ Hand delivering a copy of the summons to the California Secretary of State, with the authorization order and appropriate fee.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 4(e)(1), (h); CCP § 416.40; Corp Code §§ 1505, 16962(b), (c), (e), (f)

Discussion:

See § 7.29[8]

☐ Serve a liability company by:

○ Personally serving a designated agent, a corporate agent, or the California Secretary of State if appointed by a company to receive service of process;

○ Serving any company member who has consented in writing; or

○ If no agent is designated, or none can be found, by serving the California Secretary of State by means of:

☐ Obtaining a court order authorizing service on the California Secretary of State;

☐ Hand delivering a copy of the summons to the California Secretary of State, with the authorization order and appropriate fee.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 4(e)(1), (h); CCP §§ 413.10-417.40; Corp Code §§ 17001, 17061, 17456(d)

Discussion:
See § 7.29[9]

☐ Serve a public entity (other than the State of California and for claims for inverse condemnation) by:

○ Consulting the Roster of Public Agencies or the County Clerk to determine the proper official to serve.

○ Delivering a copy of the summons to the clerk, officer, or other head of the governing body.

○ In the absence of an appropriate officer, obtaining a court order permitting another manner of service, including service on the California Secretary of State by means of:

☐ Preparing two copies of the summons, two copies of the court order, and bring the appropriate fee; and ☐ Serving the California Secretary of State by personal service or registered return-receipt mail.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 4(e)(1), (h); CCP § 416.50; Gov Code §§ 960.3, 960.8, 53050, 53051

CHAPTER 7 Service of Summons
V. CHOOSING METHODS FOR SERVICE OF SUMMONS AND COMPLAINT WITHIN THE UNITED STATES

7.27 Serving Individuals.

7.27[1] Rule 4 Provides Three Methods of Service That Apply in Every Judicial District. A plaintiff may serve a summons and complaint on an individual located in the United States (other than a minor or an incompetent person) by any of the following methods [Fed R Civ P 4(e)(2)]:

- By delivering a copy of the summons and of the complaint to the individual personally.

- By leaving copies of the summons and complaint at the individual's dwelling house or usual place of abode with some person of suitable age and discretion residing there.

- By delivering a copy of the summons and of the complaint to an agent authorized by appointment or by law to receive service of process for the individual in question.

These methods of service apply in every judicial district of the United States, unless a federal statute provides otherwise for a particular defendant or for a particular type of claim [see Fed R Civ P 4(e)(2)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of service on individuals under Rule 4(e), see 1 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 4.92 -4.94 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

7.27[2] Rule 4 Permits Service to Be Made Pursuant to State Law. A plaintiff is not limited to the methods of service that are valid in every judicial district [see Fed R Civ P 4(e)(2)]. A plaintiff may serve an individual defendant (other than a minor or incompetent) by any means authorized by the law of the state in which the district court is located, or in which service is effected, for the service of a summons on the defendant in an action brought in the courts of general jurisdiction of the State [Fed R Civ P 4(e)(1)]. The state-law methods of service are not available, however, if a federal statute requires a particular type of service for a particular individual or a particular type of claim [see Fed R Civ P 4(e)(1)].

7.27[3] California Law Authorizes a Wide Variety of Service Methods.

7.27[3][a] Service May Be Made by Personal Delivery to Defendant. Under California law, just as under Rule 4(e)(2), a plaintiff may serve an individual defendant by personally delivering to him or her a copy of the summons and complaint. Service is complete at the time of delivery [CCP § 415.10].

7.27[3][b] Combination Service Is Available After Failure of Good-Faith Attempt at Personal Service. Combination service is a form of service that includes a good-faith attempt at physical service on a responsible person, in addition to notice of the action by mail [Khourie, Crew & Jaeger v. Sabek, Inc. (1990) 220 CA3d 1009, 1013-1014, 269 CR 687]. After the unsuccessful exercise of reasonable diligence to effect personal service on an individual defendant, a plaintiff may use combination service to complete service by the following method [CCP § 415.20(b)]:

- Leaving a copy of the summons and complaint at the person's dwelling house, usual place of abode, usual place of business, or usual mailing address other than a United States Postal Service post office box.

- Leaving the papers in the presence of a competent member of the household or a person apparently in charge of the office, place of business or usual mailing address of the defendant other than a United States Postal Service post office box, who is at least 18 years of age.

- Advising the person with whom the summons is left of the contents of the served papers.

- Mailing the summons and complaint by first-class mail, postage prepaid, to the person to be served at the place where the papers were left.

Service is deemed completed on the 10th day after mailing [CCP § 415.20(b)].

7.27[3][c] Service May Be Made by Notice and Acknowledgment of Receipt. Under California law, a plaintiff may effect service by "notice" and "acknowledgment of receipt" [see CCP § 415.30]. In essence, this is a procedure similar to, but not identical to, having the defendant agree to waive formal service of summons under Rule 4(d) [see Fed R Civ P 4(d)]. Under the California procedure, plaintiff mails [CCP § 415.30(a)]:

- A copy of the summons and a copy of the complaint;

- Two copies of a "notice and acknowledgment of receipt" to the person to be served; and

- A self-addressed, postage prepaid return envelope.

The notice and acknowledgment must be substantially in the form prescribed by statute [see CCP § 415.30(b)], and most practitioners use the form approved by the California Judicial Council, which contains all of the required language [CCP § 415.30(e)].

Timing:

The defendant has 20 days to sign and return the acknowledgment form. If the defendant fails to do so in a timely manner, the defendant will be compelled to pay the costs of subsequent service by other means unless the defendant shows good cause for its failure [CCP § 415.30(d)].

Distinguish:

This procedure is not the same as a "waiver" of service under Rule 4(d). Under the California procedure, service is not waived, but "completed" by the defendant's acknowledgment of receipt of the summons [

CCP § 415.30(c)]. There are other, practical difference between the California procedure and Rule 4(d) that should be kept in mind:

- Under California law, the defendant has only 20 days to decide whether to accept service by this means, rather than a minimum of 30 days [compare CCP 415.30(d) with Fed R Civ P 4(d)(1)(F)];

- Under California procedure, service is "complete" on the date the written acknowledgment of receipt is executed by the defendant, rather than having the action "proceed" on the date the waiver is filed with the court [compare CCP § 415.30(c) with Fed R Civ P 4(d)(4)]; and

- The California procedure does not grant the defendant an extension of time to respond to the complaint [cf. Fed R Civ P 4(d)(3)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of notice and acknowledgment of receipt, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, §§ 8.14[4], 8.46 (form) (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

7.27[3][d] Service May Be Made by Certified or Registered Mail to Persons Outside California. A plaintiff may serve a summons on an individual who is outside California by sending a copy of the summons and complaint to the person to be served by any form of first-class mail requiring a return receipt, which is to say by certified or registered mail [CCP § 415.40; see Mason v. Genisco Tech. Corp. (9th Cir 1991) 960 F2d 849, 851]. Service of summons by this form of mail is deemed complete on the 10th day after mailing [CCP § 415.40].

7.27[3][e] As Last Resort, Service May Be Made by Publication. A plaintiff may serve a summons by publication if the defendant cannot be served with reasonable diligence in any other manner. In order to serve a summons by publication, the plaintiff must apply to the court for an order authorizing service in this manner. The motion must be supported by an affidavit that shows that the defendant cannot be served with reasonable diligence in any other manner authorized by California law [CCP § 415.50(a)]. The affidavit must also show either that:

- A cause of action exists against the party on whom service is to be made, or he or she is a necessary or proper party to the action [CCP § 415.50(a)(1)]; or

- The party to be served has or claims an interest in real or personal property in California that is subject to the jurisdiction of the court, or the relief demanded in the action consists wholly or in part in excluding the party from any interest in California property [CCP § 415.50(a)(2)].

The court may not require a plaintiff seeking an order for service by publication to conduct a search of public databases if access by a registered process server to residential addresses is prohibited by law, or by published policy of the agency providing the database, including, but not limited to, voter registration rolls and records of the Department of Motor Vehicles [CCP § 415.50(e)].

The plaintiff completes service by publication by [CCP § 415.50(b)]:

- Publishing the summons in the California newspaper named in the court order that is most likely to give actual notice to the defendant. If the defendant resides or is located outside California, the newspaper named by the court in its order may order publication in a named newspaper outside California that is most likely to give actual notice to that party.

- Mailing a copy of the summons, the complaint, and the order for publication to the defendant if the plaintiff learns his or her address before four-week publication period expires.

- Paying for publication at least once a week for at least a four-week period unless the court, in its discretion, orders publication for a longer period. Four publications in a newspaper regularly published at least once a week, with at least five days intervening between the respective publication dates (not counting the publication dates) will suffice. The period of notice commences with the first day of publication and terminates at the end of the 28th day, including the first day [Gov Code § 6064].

Service of summons by publication is not complete until the four-week publication period is over [CCP § 415.50(c); see Gov Code § 6064].

7.27[3][f] Special Statutory Methods Are Available for Particular Types of Defendants. Under California law, a plaintiff may resort to specific statutory procedures for service of a summons and complaint on particular types of individual defendants in actions asserting particular types of claims, including:

- A candidate for public office in an action asserting a claim relating to the candidacy [see CCP § 416.80; Elec Code §§ 11, 12].

- A California resident motor vehicle owner or operator of a motor vehicle outside California in an action regarding ownership or operation of the vehicle [see CCP §§ 412.20(a)(3), 413.20, 415.40; Veh Code §§ 17454-17456, 17459-15462].

- A motor vehicle owner or operator who is not a California resident in an action regarding operation of the vehicle in California [see CCP §§ 412.20(a)(3), 415.30; Veh Code §§ 17450-17455, 17462].

- A nonresident executor or administrator [see CCP §§ 415.10-415.50; Prob Code §§ 8572-8574].

- A nonresident insurance agent, or broker [see CCP §§ 415.10-415.50; Ins Code §§ 1452, 1605, 1612, 11104, 11105, 12931].

- A nonresident real estate licensee or subdivider [see B&P Code §§ 10151.5, 11007; CCP §§ 415.10-415.50].

- A nonresident defendant in an action under the California Corporate Securities Law or Franchise Investment Law [see CCP §§ 415.40, 2015.5; Corp Code §§ 25102(h)(4), 25165, 25240, 31155].

- A person who lives in a gated community [see CCP § 415.21].

7.28 Serving Minors and Incompetent Persons.

7.28[1] Minors and Incompetent Persons Must Be Served According to State Law. The only method by which a plaintiff may effect service on a minor or an incompetent person in a judicial district of the United States is the manner prescribed by the law of the state in which the service is made [Fed R Civ P 4(g)].

7.28[2] Minors Are Served Under California Law by Delivering Summons to Parent or Similar Fiduciary. Under California law, a plaintiff must serve a minor by delivering a copy of the summons and complaint to the minor's parent, guardian, conservator, or similar fiduciary. If no such person can be found with reasonable diligence, plaintiff must serve a minor by delivering a copy of the summons and complaint to a person having the care or control of the minor, or with whom the minor resides, or by whom he or she is employed. If there is no parent, guardian, conservator, or fiduciary for the minor, the plaintiff must also deliver a copy of the summons and complaint to the minor, if he or she is at least 12 years of age [CCP § 416.60].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of service on minors under California law, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, § 8.24.

7.28[3] Incompetent Persons Are Served Under California Law by Delivering Summons to Guardian, Conservator, or Other Fiduciary and to Incompetent Person. California law does not expressly address service on an incompetent person. Instead, California law provides for a method of serving a person (other than a minor) for whom a guardian, conservator, or similar fiduciary has been appointed. If a guardian, conservator, or fiduciary has been appointed for a defendant, the plaintiff must serve that defendant by delivering a copy of the summons and complaint to the guardian, conservator, or fiduciary. In addition, the plaintiff must deliver a copy of the summons and complaint directly to the defendant for whom a guardian, conservator, or fiduciary has been appointed unless, for good cause shown, the court excuses direct service on the defendant [CCP § 416.70].

CHAPTER 7 Service of Summons
V. CHOOSING METHODS FOR SERVICE OF SUMMONS AND COMPLAINT WITHIN THE UNITED STATES

1-7 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 7.29

7.29 Serving Corporations, Partnerships, and Associations.

7.29[1] Rule 4 Provides Method of Service Valid in All Judicial Districts. A plaintiff may serve a summons and complaint on a domestic or foreign corporation or on a partnership or other unincorporated association that is subject to suit under a common name, and from which a waiver of service has not been obtained, by [Fed R Civ P 4(h)(1); see Chan v. Society Expeditions, Inc. (9th Cir 1994) 39 F3d 1398, 1404 (involving prior version of rule); *McKinney v. Apollo Group, Inc. (SD Cal 2008) 2008 US Dist LEXIS 56324, at *12-13] :

- Delivering a copy of the summons and of the complaint to an officer, a managing or general agent, or to any other agent authorized by appointment or by law to receive service of process; and

- If the agent is one authorized by statute to receive service and the statute so requires, by also mailing a copy to the defendant.

Cross Reference:

Service on business entities, see 1 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 4.53, 4.54 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

7.29[2] Rule 4 Permits Service to Be Made Pursuant to State Law. Unless a federal statute provides otherwise, a plaintiff may serve a domestic or foreign corporation or a partnership or other unincorporated association that is subject to suit under a common name, and from which a waiver of service has not been obtained and filed, pursuant to the law of the state in which the district court is located or pursuant to the law in which service is effected [Fed R Civ P 4(h)(1) (incorporating provisions of Fed R Civ P 4(e)(1) by reference)].

7.29[3] California Law Provides Several Methods for Serving Active Corporations.

7.29[3][a] Service May Be Made by Delivery to Agent for Service. A plaintiff may serve an active corporation by delivering a copy of the summons and complaint to the person designated as the corporation's statutory agent for service of process [CCP § 416.10(a); see Corp Code §§ 202, 1502, 2105, 2107]. The name and address of the agent for service of process of a corporation can be found by contacting the California Secretary of State, or by accessing the Secretary of State website at www.ss.ca.gov, and checking business filings.

7.29[3][b] Service May Be Made by Delivery to Officer of Corporation. A plaintiff may serve an active corporation by delivering a copy of the summons and complaint to any of the following corporate officers [CCP § 416.10(b)]:

- The president or other head of an active corporation;
- A vice president;
- A secretary or assistant secretary;
- A treasurer or assistant treasurer;
- A general manager; or
- Another person authorized by the corporation to receive service of process.

7.29[3][c] If Corporation Is a Bank, Service May Be Made by Delivery to Bank Cashier, Assistant Cashier, or Other Authorized Person. If the defendant corporation is a bank, the plaintiff may serve the defendant by delivering a copy of the summons and complaint to [CCP § 416.10(c); see CCP § 416.10(a), (b)]:

- A cashier;
- An assistant cashier; or
- Any other authorized person.

7.29[3][d] Service May Be Made by Hand Delivery to Designated Agent. A plaintiff may serve an active corporation by hand delivering a copy of the summons and complaint to a natural person designated by the corporation as its agent, or to any person named in the latest certificate as the corporate agent, at the corporate agent's office [Corp Code § 1701; see Corp Code § 1505].

7.29[3][e] In the Absence of a Corporate Agent, Service May Be Made by Serving the Secretary of State. A plaintiff may serve a defendant domestic corporation by hand delivering copies of the summons and complaint to the Secretary of State, or an assistant Secretary of State; in the following situations [Corp Code § 1702(a)]:

- The corporation's agent for service has resigned and not been replaced;
- The agent could not be found at the address designated after the exercise of reasonable diligence; or
- If no agent has been designated.

A plaintiff may serve a defendant domestic corporation in this manner only after obtaining a court order permitting it [Corp Code § 1702(a); see Corp Code § 1702(d) (because action is pending in federal court, order must be obtained from that court)]. And even after an order is obtained, service is not complete on delivery of copies of the summons and complaint to the Secretary of State. After receiving service, the Secretary of State forwards the summons and complaint to the corporation's principal executive office by registered or certified return-receipt mail. If the Secretary of State does not have an address for the corporation's principal executive office, notification is made by forwarding the summons in the same manner to the last designated agent for service of process. If the agent for service of process has resigned and has not been replaced, and the records of the Secretary of State do not give an address for its principal executive office, the Secretary of State may take no action [Corp Code § 1702(b)]. Service on the Secretary of State is deemed complete only on the 10th day after delivery of the process to the Secretary of State [Corp Code § 1702(a)].

7.29[3][f] California Law Provides Additional Methods for Serving Foreign Corporations. A plaintiff may serve a defendant foreign corporation in any of the following ways:

- By any of the methods discussed above that are authorized for serving defendants under the California Code of Civil Procedure, Part II, Title 5, Chapter 4 [Corp Code § 2110.1; see CCP §§ 413.10-417.40 (relevant portion of CCP)].

- Hand delivery of a copy of the summons and complaint to any of the following [Corp Code § 2110]:

  - An officer or general manager of the corporation in California.

  - If the corporation is a bank, to a cashier or assistant cashier.

  - Any natural person the corporation has designated as an agent for service of process. A copy of the corporation's statement and designation, or a copy of the latest statement filed under Corp Code § 2117, is sufficient evidence of the appointment of an agent for service of process.

  - If the corporation has designated a corporate agent, to any person named as a corporate agent in the most recent certificate filed under Corp Code § 1505. The name and address of a foreign corporation's agent for service of process can be obtained online from the Corporate Records pages of the Secretary of State's website at www.ss.ca.gov.

- If other methods of service have been unsuccessful, by obtaining a court order permitting service by delivery of copies of the summons and complaint to the Secretary of State [see Corp Code § 2111].

- If a foreign corporation has surrendered its right to transact business in California, by delivery of copies of the summons and complaint to the Secretary of State if the suit asserts a liability or obligation incurred in California before the surrender. No court order is required for this type of service [Corp Code § 2114(b)].

7.29[4] California Law Provides Method for Serving Defunct Corporation, Corporation With Forfeited Charter, or Dissolved Corporation. A plaintiff may serve a defunct corporation, a corporation that has forfeited its charter or its right to do business, or one that has dissolved, by delivering a copy of the summons and complaint to any of the following [CCP § 416.20(a); Corp Code § 2114(c)]:

- A trustee of the corporation and its stockholders or members; or

- As authorized on an officer, director, person having charge of the assets, or agent, or by serving the Secretary of State, as authorized by law for domestic and foreign corporations [CCP § 416.20(b); see Corp Code § 2011 (domestic corporation), Corp Code § 2114 (foreign corporation)].

7.29[5] California Provides Additional Method for Serving Foreign Corporation That Has Lost Right to Do Business in California. In addition to any other method of service that might apply under California law, a plaintiff may also serve a foreign corporation that has had its right to do business in California forfeited by the Franchise Tax Board under the Corporation Tax Law by hand delivery of a copy of the summons and complaint to an officer or agent of the corporation, or to the Secretary of State [see Corp Code §§ 2110, 2111], as if the right to transact business had not been forfeited [Corp Code § 2114(c)].

7.29[6] California Law Provides Special Method for Serving Joint Stock Company or Association. A plaintiff may serve a joint stock company or association by delivering a copy of the summons and complaint to [CCP § 416.30]:

- Its agent, president, or other officer, if the company or association is active [see CCP § 416.10].

- A person who is a trustee of the corporation and of its stockholders or members, or to others authorized to receive service by Corp Code §§ 2011, 2114, if the company or association has forfeited its charter or its right to do business, [see CCP § 416.20].

7.29[7] California Law Provides Several Methods for Serving Unincorporated Associations or Partnerships.

7.29[7][a] General or Limited Partnership Is Served by Delivery of Summons to Agent, General Partner, or General Manager. A plaintiff may serve a general partnership or a limited partnership by serving a copy of the summons and complaint on the designated agent (if any), general partner, or general manager of the partnership [CCP § 416.40(a); Corp Code § 16310; see Corp Code § 15627 (service on limited partnerships)]. Domestic general partnerships may designate an agent by filing a Statement of Partnership Authority (Form GP-1) with the Secretary of State. Filing Form GP-1 is optional under Corp Code § 16303. At this time, general partnership records cannot be searched online. They are obtainable from the Secretary of State by mail on written request (this may take two to three weeks), or over the counter at the Sacramento office of the Secretary of State. Limited partnership records may be checked online by going to the California Secretary of State website www.ss.ca.gov and checking the business filings section.

7.29[7][b] Unincorporated Association Is Served by Delivery of Summons to Designated Agent, Officer, or Other Representative. A plaintiff may serve an unincorporated association that is not a general or limited partnership by serving a copy of the summons and complaint on the designated agent (if any), officer, or other authorized representative [see CCP § 416.40(b); Corp Code § 18200].

7.29[7][c] Foreign Unincorporated Association or Partnership Is Generally Served by Delivery of Summons to Agent or at Corporate Agent's Office. A foreign unincorporated association or partnership may be served by hand delivery of a copy of the summons and complaint to the designated agent or at the corporate agent's office [Corp Code § 18200(e)].

Exception--Foreign Partnerships or Associations Who Fail to Make or Maintain Required Designation of Agent:

Foreign unincorporated associations and partnerships (other than limited partnerships) with no regular place of business in California must file a statement with the Secretary of State designating a natural person or corporation as an agent for purposes of service of process [see Corp Code § 15800(a)]. Foreign limited partnerships are separately required to register with the Secretary of State (Form LP-5) and designate agents for service of process [see Corp Code §§ 15627, 15692(c)]. If a foreign partnership or unincorporated has not designated an agent or, if the person designated as the agent cannot be found or, if after due diligence delivery to a corporate agent [see Corp Code § 16310(b)] cannot be made or, if the designated agent is no longer authorized to act, the plaintiff may serve copies of the summons and complaint by personal delivery on the Secretary of State [Corp Code § 15800(c) (court order not required for this type of service)], payment of a $50 service fee [Gov Code § 12197], and by providing a signed statement to the Secretary of State, setting forth the last known address of the partnership. The Secretary of State will forward the summons to the partnership by registered or certified [see Corp Code § 8], return-receipt mail, to the address provided in the statement [Corp Code § 15800(b)].

In the alternative, the plaintiff may seek a court order. If an agent has not been designated to receive service of process or, if the agent cannot be found after reasonable diligence [see Corp Code § 18220], a plaintiff can move for a court order supported by affidavit or declaration [see CCP § 2015.5] satisfactory to the court, that the unincorporated association cannot be served in a manner provided by CCP §§ 415.10, 415.20(a), or 415.30. The court order permits service on designated association members by mailing a copy of the summons and complaint to the association at its last known address. Personal service on the unincorporated association is then deemed to have been made [Corp Code § 18220].

7.29[8] California Law Provides Several Methods for Serving Limited Liability Partnerships. A plaintiff may serve a domestic or foreign registered limited liability partnership by delivering copies of the summons and complaint to:

- A general partner or general manager of the partnership [CCP § 416.40(a); see Corp Code § 16310];

- The designated agent for the limited liability partnership, if the delivery is hand delivery [Corp Code § 16962(b)];

- Any person named on the latest certificate of a corporate agent [see Corp Code § 1505] at the office of that corporate agent [Corp Code § 16962(b)], if the limited liability partnership's designated agent is a corporate agent;

- The Secretary of State if the plaintiff has obtained a court order authorizing this form of service and if the designated agent resigned or cannot be found after reasonable diligence, or if no agent was designated, and if other methods of service have been unsuccessful [Corp Code § 16962(c)]. The plaintiff must hand deliver the summons and complaint to the Secretary of State, along with a copy of the order authorizing service, and a $50 fee [Corp Code § 16962(c); see Gov Code § 12197(b) (fee)]. Service by this method is deemed complete on the 10th day after delivery to the Secretary of State [Corp Code § 16962(c)]. The certificate of the Secretary of State, under seal, certifying receipt of process, notice, and forwarding the process [see Corp Code § 16962] is competent and prima facie evidence of receipt [Corp Code § 16962(e)].

7.29[9] California Law Provides Several Methods for Serving Limited Liability Companies. A limited liability company (LLC) may be served by any of the following methods [Corp Code § 17061]:

- Any of the methods discussed above that are authorized for serving defendants under the California Code of Civil Procedure, Part II, Title 5, Chapter 4 [see CCP §§ 413.10-417.40 (relevant portion of CCP)]. Any method of service provided by CCP §§ 413.10-417.40.

- Hand delivery of a copy of the summons and complaint on the LLC's designated agent. If the designated agent is a corporate agent, service may be made on any person named in the most recently filed certificate of the corporate agent under Corp Code § 1505.

- In the case of a foreign LLP that has transacted business in California without registering in California, by service on the Secretary of State [Corp Code § 17061(b); see Corp Code § 17456(d)], made by hand delivery of copies of the summons, along with the court order permitting service, and by paying the fee [Corp Code § 17061(b)].

- In the case of a foreign LLC that has registered, and if the designated agent resigned or cannot be found after reasonable diligence, and if other methods of service have been unsuccessful, by substituted service by delivery to the Secretary of State. A court order must be obtained for service in this manner. Service is made by hand delivery of copies of the summons and complaint to the Secretary of State, along with a copy of the order authorizing service. Service is deemed complete on the 10th day after delivery to the Secretary of State [Corp Code § 17061(c)(1)]. The certificate of the Secretary of State, under seal, certifying receipt of process, notice, and forwarding the process [see Corp Code § 17061(c)(2)] is competent and prima facie evidence of service of process [Corp Code § 17061(c)(3)].

7.29[10] Combination Service May Be Made Under California Law After Failure of Good-Faith Attempt at Personal Service. Combination service is a form of service that includes a good-faith attempt at physical service on a responsible person, in addition to notice of the action by mail [Khourie, Crew & Jaeger v. Sabek, Inc. (1990) 220 CA3d 1009, 1013-1014, 269 CR 687].

A plaintiff may make combination service by leaving a copy of the summons and complaint in the office of the defendant being served during usual office hours, or, if no physical address is known, at that person's usual mailing address, other than a United States Postal Service post office box. The plaintiff's process server must leave the copy of the summons and complaint with the person who is apparently in charge. The person given the summons and complaint must be at least 18 years of age, and the process server must inform the person of the contents of the papers. The process server must then mail another copy of the summons and complaint, by first-class mail, postage prepaid, to the defendant being served at the place where a copy of the summons and complaint were left [CCP § 415.20(a)]. Service of a summons in this manner is deemed complete on the 10th day after the mailing [CCP § 415.20(a)].

7.29[11] Special Statutory Methods for Particular Types of Defendants. Under California law, a plaintiff may resort to specific statutory procedures for service of a summons and complaint on particular types of corporate, partnership, or association defendants in actions asserting particular types of claims, including:

- A California resident motor vehicle owner or operator of a motor vehicle outside California, regarding ownership or operation of the vehicle [see CCP §§ 412.20(a)(3), 413.20, 415.40; Veh Code §§ 17454-17456, 17459-15462].

- A motor vehicle owner or operator who is not a California resident regarding operation of the vehicle in California [see CCP §§ 412.20(a)(3), 415.30; Veh Code §§ 17450-17455, 17462].

- A nonresident executor or administrator [see CCP §§ 415.10-415.50; Prob Code §§ 8572-8574].

- A nonresident insurance carrier, agent, or broker [see CCP §§ 415.10-415.50; Ins Code §§ 1452, 1605, 1612, 11104, 11105, 12931].

- A nonresident real estate licensee or subdivider [see B&P Code §§ 10151.5, 11007; CCP §§ 415.10-415.50].

- A nonresident defendant in an action under the California Corporate Securities Law or Franchise Investment Law [see CCP §§ 415.40, 2015.5; Corp Code §§ 25102(h)(4), 25165, 25240, 31155].

CHAPTER 7 Service of Summons
V. CHOOSING METHODS FOR SERVICE OF SUMMONS AND COMPLAINT WITHIN THE UNITED STATES

1-7 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 7.30

7.30 Serving the United States, Its Agencies, Corporations, Officers, or Employees.

7.30[1] Serving the United States.

7.30[1][a] U.S. Attorney Must Be Served. The plaintiff's primary step in serving the United States is delivering a copy of the summons and of the complaint to the United States Attorney for the district in which the action is brought. The delivery may be to the United States Attorney, or an assistant United States attorney or clerical employee designated by the United States Attorney in a writing filed with the clerk of the court. In the alternative, the plaintiff may send a copy of the summons and of the complaint by registered or certified mail addressed to the civil process clerk at the office of the United States Attorney [Fed R Civ P 4(i)(1)(A)].

7.30[1][b] Attorney General Must Be Served by Registered or Certified Mail. In addition to serving the United States Attorney in the district where the action is brought, the plaintiff must also send a copy of the summons and the complaint by registered or certified mail to the Attorney General of the United States at Washington, D.C. [Fed R Civ P 4(i)(1)(B)].

7.30[1][c] Nonparty Officer or Agency Must Be Served by Registered or Certified Mail If Validity of Its Order Attacked. If the plaintiff's action attacks the validity of an order of an officer or agency of the United States and that officer or agency is not a party to the action, the plaintiff's service on the United States is not complete until the plaintiff also sends a copy of the summons and of the complaint by registered or certified mail to the officer or agency [Fed R Civ P 4(i)(1)(C)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of service of process on United States, see 1 Moore's Federal Practice, § 4.55 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

7.30[2] Serving a U.S. Agency or Governmental Corporation, or Officer or Employee Sued in Official Capacity.

7.30[2][a] U.S. Attorney and Attorney General Must Be Served. The first step in serving a United States agency or governmental corporation, or an officer or employee of the United States sued only in an official capacity, is serving the United States itself. This means serving the United States Attorney in the district where the action is brought and mailing an additional copy of the summons and complaint to the United States Attorney General in Washington, D.C., as described above [Fed R Civ P 4(i)(2); see Fed R Civ P 4(i)(1)(A), (B)].

7.30[2][b] Agency, Corporation, Officer, or Employee Must Be Served by Registered or Certified Mail. In addition to serving the United States itself, the plaintiff must serve the defendant agency or governmental corporation, or an officer or employee of the United States sued only in an official capacity, by sending a copy of the summons and complaint by registered or certified mail to the officer, employee, agency, or corporation [Fed R Civ P 4(i)(2)].

7.30[3] Serving a U.S. Officer or Employee Sued in Individual Capacity for Acts or Omissions in Performance of Duty.

7.30[3][a] U.S. Attorney and Attorney General Must Be Served. The first step in serving a United States officer or employee who is sued in an individual capacity for acts or omissions occurring in connection with the performance of his or her duties is serving the United States itself. This means serving the United States Attorney in the district where the action is brought and mailing an additional copy of the summons and complaint to the United States Attorney General in Washington, D.C., as described above [Fed R Civ P 4(i)(3); see Fed R Civ P 4(i)(1)(A), (B)].

An action against a former officer or employee of the United States is covered by the same rules as an action against a present officer or employee. Termination of the relationship between the individual defendant and the United States does not reduce the need to serve the United States [see Fed R Civ P 4, Committee Note of 2000].

Distinguish--No Service on United States for Employee's Actions That Are Not Connected With Official Duties:

> Many actions are brought against individual federal officers or employees of the United States for acts or omissions that have no connection to their governmental roles. For example, if a federal employee is involved in an automobile accident while on vacation, there is no reason to require service on the United States in an action arising out of the collision. It is a connection to federal employment that requires service on the United States. Whether the connection requires service on the United States must be determined as a practical matter, considering whether the individual defendant has reasonable grounds to look to the United States for assistance and whether the United States has reasonable grounds for demanding formal notice of the action [see Fed R Civ P 4, Committee Note of 2000].

7.30[3][b] Officer or Employee Must Be Served Individually. In addition to service on the United States, the plaintiff must serve the individual officer or employee of the United States sued in an individual capacity for acts or omissions occurring in connection with the performance of duties on behalf of the United States by the same methods that apply to all other individual defendants [Fed R Civ P 4(i)(3); see Fed R Civ P 4(e) (methods for serving individuals in the United States); Fed R Civ P 4(f) (methods for serving individuals in foreign countries); Fed R Civ P 4(g) (methods for serving minors or incompetents)].

Discussion of serving individuals in the United States, see § 7.27. Discussion of serving individuals in foreign countries, see § 7.37. Discussion of serving infants and incompetents, see §§ 7.28, 7.38.

7.30[4] Court Must Allow Time to Cure Defects in Service.

7.30[4][a] If U.S. Attorney or U.S. Attorney General Has Been Served, Court Must Grant Reasonable Time to Serve Others. Serving the United States and agencies, governmental corporations, and officers and employees of the United States served in their official capacities requires several steps and, as noted above, serving multiple copies of the summons and complaint on different persons and entities. If the plaintiff has timely served either the United States

Attorney for the district or the Attorney General of the United States, the court must allow the plaintiff a reasonable time to cure a failure to serve all of the persons and entities required to be served [Fed R Civ P 4(i)(4)(A)].

7.30[4][b] If Individual Officer or Employee Sued in Individual Capacity Has Been Served, Court Must Grant Reasonable Time to Serve United States. When a United States officer or employee is sued in his or her individual capacity, but in connection with the performance or omission of some official duty, plaintiffs frequently forget to serve the United States as well. If the plaintiff has timely and properly served the individual officer or employee, the court will allow the plaintiff a reasonable time to serve process on the United States [Fed R Civ P 4(i)(4)(B)].

Consider:

Rule 4(i) does not require the plaintiff to show that the failure to serve the United States was reasonable. Rule 4(i) requires the court to grant the extra time whenever the plaintiff has made timely service on the officer or employee [see Fed R Civ P 4, Committee Note of 2000].

7.31 Serving State or Local Governments.

7.31[1] State and Local Governments May Be Served by Delivery of Summons and Complaint to Chief Executive. Regardless of the judicial district in which the case is pending or the defendant is located, a plaintiff may serve a state, a municipal corporation, or other governmental organization subject to suit by delivering a copy of the summons and of the complaint to its chief executive officer [Fed R Civ P 4(j)(2)(A)].

7.31[2] State and Local Governments May Be Served Pursuant to State Law. As an alternative to delivery of a copy of the summons and complaint to the chief executive of a state, municipal corporation, or other local governmental organization subject to suit, a plaintiff may serve these defendants by any method provided for by the law of the state in which they are located [Fed R Civ P 4(j)(2)(B)].

7.31[3] California Law Provides Several Methods for Service on State and Local Governments.

7.31[3][a] Local Governmental Entities May Be Served by Delivery of Process to Clerk, Officer, or Other Head of Entity. A public entity may be served by delivering a copy of the summons and complaint to the clerk, officer, or other head of the governing body [CCP § 416.50(a); see CCP § 416.50(b) ("public entity" defined)]. The identity and location of the appropriate officer may be found in the California Roster maintained by the office of the Secretary of State [see Gov Code § 53051(c)]. The roster can be viewed online in pdf format, on the Secretary of State's website www.ss.ca.gov or obtained in print by contacting the Sacramento office of the Secretary of State. County clerks are also required to establish and maintain a roster [see Gov Code § 53051(c)].

7.31[3][b] Substituted Service on Local Governmental Entities Is Available If No Appropriate Officer Can Be Found. If an appropriate officer cannot be located, the plaintiff must file an affidavit with the court stating that service of summons cannot be made pursuant to CCP § 416.50(a). The court may then order that service of summons be made on the public entity by either of the following methods [Gov Code § 960.3(b)]:

- Leaving two copies of the process for each public agency defendant to be served, together with two copies of the order authorizing the service, at the office of the Secretary of State in Sacramento; or

- Mailing two copies of the process for each public agency defendant to be served, together with two copies of the order authorizing the service, to the office of the Secretary of State in Sacramento by certified or registered mail, addressee only, return receipt requested.

The Secretary of State charges a $50 fee for each public agency served in this manner [Gov Code § 960.3(d)]. Service is effective as of the day the return receipt is received from the Secretary of State [Gov Code § 960.3(b)(2)].

7.31[3][c] State of California Is Served by Serving State Attorney General. The plaintiff must serve the California Attorney General with the summons and complaint in claims against the State of California itself [Gov Code § 955.4]. There are additional options in actions for inverse condemnation against the Department of Transportation or the Department of Water Resources. In those cases, the plaintiff may serve the summons and complaint on either the Director of those Departments or on the California Attorney General [Gov Code §§ 955.6, 955.8].

☐ Plaintiff must always serve a foreign state or political subdivision of a foreign state pursuant to the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act, and 28 USC § 1608 in particular.

☐ Make the first attempt to serve foreign state or political subdivision of foreign state:

- ○ By delivery of a copy of the summons and complaint in accordance with any special arrangement; or
- ○ If no special arrangement is made, then by delivery of a copy of the summons and complaint pursuant to any applicable international convention.

☐ If service is not possible by the above two methods, serve foreign state or political subdivision of foreign state by any form of mail requiring a signed receipt, which entails:

- ○ Sending a copy of the summons and complaint and a notice of suit;
- ○ Sending a translation of each document into the official language of the foreign state; and
- ○ Having the clerk of the court address and dispatch the package to the head of the ministry of foreign affairs of the foreign state.

☐ If service by mail not effective within 30 days, serve foreign state or political subdivision of foreign state by any form of mail requiring a signed receipt. This service entails:

○ Sending two copies of the summons and complaint and a notice of suit;

○ Sending a translation of each document into the official language of the foreign state;

○ Having the clerk of the court address and dispatch the package to Secretary of State in Washington, D.C., to the attention of the Director of Special Consular Services;

CHAPTER 7 Service of Summons
VI. CHOOSING METHODS FOR INTERNATIONAL SERVICE OF PROCESS

1-7 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 7.37

7.37 Serving Individuals in Foreign Countries.

7.37[1] Service Is Usually Made Pursuant to Hague Convention, Which Frequently Authorizes Service by Mail. Unless a federal statute provides otherwise, a plaintiff may serve an individual located in a foreign country by any internationally agreed means reasonably calculated to give notice. In practice, this almost always means the methods authorized by the Hague Convention on the Service Abroad of Judicial and Extrajudicial Documents [Fed R Civ P 4(f)(1)].

The Hague Convention furnishes safeguards against the abridgment of rights of parties through inadequate notice. Article 15 provides for verification of actual notice or a demonstration that process was served by a method prescribed by the internal laws of the foreign state before a default judgment may be entered. Article 16 of the Convention also enables the judge to extend the time for appeal after judgment if the defendant shows a lack of adequate notice either to defend or to appeal the judgment, or has disclosed a prima facie case on the merits [see Fed R Civ P 4, Committee Note of 1993].

The Hague Convention does not specify a time within which the Central Authority of a foreign country must effect service, but Article 15 does provide that alternate methods may be used if a Central Authority does not respond within six months. Generally, a Central Authority can be expected to respond much more quickly than that limit might permit, but there have been occasions when the signatory state was dilatory or refused to cooperate for substantive reasons. In such cases, the server may resort to the court and secure an order directing an alternate means of service [see Fed R Civ P 4, Committee Note of 1993].

Cross Reference:

Service of process on individuals in foreign countries, see 1 Moore's Federal Practice, § 4.52 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Strategic Point--State Department Has Helpful Information:

The Department of State has gathered information concerning service of legal documents in foreign countries. Much of this is in publication or on the Department's web site. The Department's web site has a page providing a general comparison of the pros and cons of varying methods of service [see http://travel.state.gov/service_general.html]. The web site also has a page called "judicial assistance" that provides useful information, including the service requirements of a number of different countries. This country-specific information is of great practical value, pointing out matters such as how the laws of most foreign countries require translations of the summons and complaint into the local language [see http://travel.state.gov/judicial_assistance.html].

Strategic Point--Multiple Methods and Attempts at Service:

As a practical matter, it is important to use all available methods rather than limit attempts at service to a single method. If local counsel or a local investigator provides multiple addresses, service at all of the addresses is recommended. Multiple attempts and methods are not necessarily costly. The Ninth Circuit permits service of process by mail pursuant to Article 10(a) of the Hague Convention, if service by mail is not forbidden by local law. Service by mail must be performed in accordance with Rule 4(f) [Brockmeyer v. May (9th Cir 2004) 383 F3d 798, 808-809 (service by ordinary first class international mail was ineffective because service did not comply with Fed R Civ P 4 requirements)]. Under Rule 4, the court may authorize a variety of alternative methods of service abroad, including ordinary mail, e-mail, publication, telex, and delivery service [see Fed R Civ P 4(f)(3); see, e.g., R. Griggs Group Ltd. v. Filanto SpA (D Nev 1996) 920 F Supp 1100, 1102, 1107-1108 (service by Federal Express)].

7.37[2] Absent International Authority, Service May Generally Be Made Pursuant to Law of Foreign Country. The United States is a signatory to the Hague Convention, but not every foreign country is. The Hague Convention applies only when both the originating and receiving countries are signatories [see, e.g., Perfumer's Workshop, Ltd. v. Roure Bertrand du Pont, Inc. (SDNY 1990) 737 F Supp 785, 789-790]. Thus, if there is no internationally agreed means of service (or the applicable international agreement allows other means of service), plaintiff must serve an individual in a foreign country pursuant to and in the manner prescribed by the law of the foreign country for service of process in an action in any of its courts of general jurisdiction [Fed R Civ P 4(f)(2)(A); *Lamm v. Bumbo (ND Cal 2008) 2008 US Dist LEXIS 39042, at *34-38 (plaintiffs did not meet their burden under Fed R Civ P 4(f)(2)(A) to show that service was effected "as prescribed" by laws of South Africa)]. The method selected must, however, be "reasonably calculated to give notice" to the individual so served [Fed R Civ P 4(f)(2)]; service by ordinary first class international mail is not permitted without prior district court approval [Brockmeyer v. May (9th Cir 2004) 383 F3d 798, 808-809].

7.37[3] Absent International Authority, Service May Be Made As Directed by Authority in Foreign Country. Although an individual in a foreign country may be served as provided by the law of that country [see Fed R Civ P 4(f)(2)(A)], it is not always easy to know what that law is, and the provisions might not be applicable to the defendant in question or for the type of claim in question. Therefore, the court may issue a formal enquiry to the relevant authorities in the foreign country to determine what the proper or acceptable means for service of process is or should be. A plaintiff may serve an individual defendant in a foreign country as directed by the foreign authority in response to a letter rogatory or letter of request [Fed R Civ P 4(f)(2)(B)]. The method selected must, however, be "reasonably calculated to give notice" to the individual so served [Fed R Civ P 4(f)(2)].

This provision in Rule 4 should not be interpreted to authorize use of a letter of request when there is no treaty obligation on the receiving country to honor such a request from the United States, or when the United States does not extend diplomatic recognition to the foreign nation [see Fed R Civ P 4, Committee Note of 1993].

7.37[4] Absent International Authority, Service May Generally Be Made by Personal Delivery or by Mail. If there is no internationally agreed means of service (or if the applicable international agreement allows other means of service), a plaintiff may serve an individual defendant in a foreign country by [Fed R Civ P 4(f)(2)(C)]:

- Personal delivery of a copy of the summons and the complaint to the individual defendant; or
- Having the clerk of the court mail a copy of the summons and complaint to the individual defendant by any form of mail requiring a signed receipt.

There are, however, two substantial limitations on service either by mail or by personal delivery [Fed R Civ P 4(f)(2)(C)]:

- The method selected must be "reasonably calculated to give notice" to the person served; and
- The method selected may not be prohibited by the law of the country in which the defendant is served.

7.37[5] Absent International Authority, Service May Generally Be Made As Ordered by Court.

7.37[5][a] There Must Be a Court Order and Service Method Must Not Be Prohibited by Treaty. If there is no internationally agreed means of service (or if the applicable international agreement allows other means of service), a plaintiff may apply to the court and receive an order authorizing service on an individual defendant in a foreign country by any means not prohibited by international agreement [Fed R Civ P 4(f)(3)]. Plaintiffs must have obtained "prior court approval" for their proposed alternative method of serving process [Brockmeyer v. May (9th Cir 2004) 383 F3d 798, 806 (plaintiffs failed to obtain court approval)].

The Hague Convention, for example, far from prohibiting many kinds of service, actually authorizes special forms of service in cases of urgency if conventional methods will not permit timely service on a defendant. Other circumstances that might justify the use of additional methods include the failure of the Central Authority of the foreign country to effect service within the six-month period provided by the Convention, or the refusal of the Central Authority to serve a complaint seeking punitive damages or to enforce the antitrust laws of the United States. In those types of cases, the court may direct a special method of service not explicitly authorized by international agreement, but not prohibited by it either. Furthermore, the court should limit the methods it authorizes to those that will give the defendant reasonable notice and that are as inoffensive to the laws of the foreign country as possible. A court may, in some instances, authorize service of process by ordinary mail [see Fed R Civ P 4, Committee Note of 1993].

Courts have authorized a wide variety of alternative methods of service including publication, ordinary mail, mail to the defendant's last known address, delivery to the defendant's attorney, telex, and most recently, e-mail [Rio Props., Inc. v. Rio Int'l Interlink (9th Cir 2002) 284 F3d 1007, 1016].

7.37[5][b] Attempts at Other Service Methods Not Required Prior to Seeking Court Order. Service of process under Rule 4(f)(3) is neither a "last resort" nor extraordinary relief. It is merely one means among several that enables service of process on an international defendant [Rio Props., Inc. v. Rio Int'l Interlink (9th Cir 2002) 284 F3d 1007, 1015]. Alternate service of process under Rule 4(f)(3) is available without first attempting service by other means. Specifically, in cases of urgency, Rule 4(f)(3) may allow the district court to order a special method of service, even if other methods of service remain incomplete or unattempted [see Rio Props., Inc. v. Rio Int'l Interlink (9th Cir 2002) 284 F3d 1007, 1015 -1016 (authorizing service under Fed R Civ P 4(f)(3) after plaintiff had made multiple unsuccessful attempts to locate "an elusive international defendant, striving to evade service of process"); *but see Lamm v. Bumbo (ND Cal 2008) 2008 US Dist LEXIS 39042, at *40-41 (declining to order alternative methods of service of process under Fed R Civ P 4(f)(3), because defendant's physical location in South Africa was "well-known" to plaintiffs and there was no indication that defendant was trying to evade service); see also Fed R Civ P 4, Committee Note of 1993].

7.38 Serving Minors and Incompetent Persons in Foreign Countries.

There are two main options for serving a minor or incompetent person in a foreign country [Fed R Civ P 4(g) (incorporating Fed R Civ P 4(f)(2)(A), (B) by reference)]:

- Pursuant to the law for service of process on minors and incompetents of the foreign country in which the defendant is located; or

- Pursuant to the method directed by the foreign country in response to a letter rogatory or letter of request.

Alternatively, the plaintiff may apply to the court for an order authorizing some other particular form of service [Fed R Civ P 4(g)]. The two main options are expressly incorporated by reference from Rule 4(f)(2), which sets out the methods for serving individual defendants in foreign countries. The alternative option of seeking an order from the court does not expressly refer to Rule 4(f)(3) [see Fed R Civ P 4(g)]. Nonetheless, although the limitations are unspoken, the plaintiff should not seek and the court should not order a method of service prohibited by international agreement [cf. Fed R Civ P 4(f)(3) (limitation on court orders for alternative methods of serving adult, competent individual defendant in foreign countries)]. Further, as with orders authorizing service under Rule 4(f)(3), the court should limit the methods it authorizes to those that will give the defendant reasonable notice and that are as inoffensive to the laws of the foreign country as possible [see Fed R Civ P 4, Committee Note of 1993].

7.39 Serving Corporations, Partnerships, and Unincorporated Associations in Foreign Countries.

Unless a federal statute requires some other conduct, a plaintiff may serve a foreign corporation, partnership, or unincorporated association that is located in a foreign country by any of the methods authorized for service of individuals located in foreign countries except personal service [Fed R Civ P 4(h)(2) (incorporation of Fed R Civ P 4(f) by reference except Fed R Civ P 4(f)(2)(C)(i))]. This means, in most cases, that if the Hague Convention or other treaty applies and specifies methods of service, the plaintiff must serve the corporation, partnership, or unincorporated association according to any of the relevant methods of service agreed to in the Convention [see Fed R Civ P 4(f)(1)]. If, on the other hand, neither the Hague Convention nor any other treaty applies (or if the applicable law allows other means of service) the plaintiff must serve the corporation, partnership, or unincorporated association [see Fed R Civ P 4(h)(2)]:

- Pursuant to the law of the foreign country where the defendant is being served;

- Pursuant to method directed by the foreign country in response to a letter rogatory or letter of request;

- By any method of mail that requires a signed receipt, to be addressed and dispatched by the clerk of the court to the party to be served, unless that method of service is prohibited by the law of the foreign country [see Power Integrations, Inc. v. Sys. Gen. Corp. (ND Cal 2004) 2004 US Dist LEXIS 25414, at *4-*10 (approving service by Federal Express)]; or

- By any method as directed by the court that is not prohibited by international agreement.

Warning:

It is never permissible to attempt to serve a foreign corporation, partnership, or unincorporated association by personal delivery of a copy of the summons and complaint to any individual [Fed R Civ P 4(h)(2) (specifically rejecting method of service set out in Fed R Civ P 4(f)(2)(C)(i))].

CHAPTER 7 Service of Summons
VI. CHOOSING METHODS FOR INTERNATIONAL SERVICE OF PROCESS

1-7 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 7.40

7.40 Serving Foreign States, Their Political Subdivisions, Agencies, or Instrumentalities.

7.40[1] Foreign State, Its Political Subdivision, Agency, or Instrumentality Must Be Served in Compliance With 28 USC § 1608. Service on a foreign state or a political subdivision, agency, or instrumentality must comply with the provisions of the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act, particularly 28 USC § 1608 [Fed R Civ P 4(j)(1)].

7.40[2] Service on Foreign State or Its Political Subdivision.

7.40[2][a] First Attempt Is by Delivery. Service on a foreign state or its political subdivisions may involve a three-stage process. A plaintiff must make the first attempt to serve foreign state or political subdivision of foreign state by one of two means [28 USC § 1608(a)(1), (2)]:

- By delivery of a copy of the summons and complaint in accordance with any special arrangement; or
- If no special arrangement has been made, then by delivery of a copy of the summons and complaint pursuant to any applicable international convention.

7.40[2][b] Second Attempt Is by Return Receipt Mail Sent to Foreign State. If service is not possible by the above two methods, the plaintiff may then attempt to serve a foreign state or political subdivision of a foreign state by any form of mail requiring a signed receipt. Service by mail in this context entails having the clerk of the court address and dispatch a package of documents to the head of the ministry of foreign affairs of the foreign state. The package must contain all of the following [28 USC § 1608(a)(3)]:

- A copy of the summons and complaint;
- A notice of suit ("notice of suit" means a notice addressed to a foreign state and in a form prescribed by the Secretary of State by regulation); and
- A translation of each of these documents into the official language of the foreign state.

7.40[2][c] Third Attempt Is by Return Receipt Mail Sent to Secretary of State. If the plaintiff's service by mail not effective within 30 days, the plaintiff must serve the foreign state or a political subdivision of the foreign state by another service by any form of mail requiring a signed receipt. This second attempt entails having the clerk of the court assemble a package of documents. However, instead of the clerk mailing this off to a foreign country, the clerk will, this second time, address and dispatch the package to Secretary of State in Washington, D.C., to the attention of the Director of Special Consular Services. The Secretary of State will transmit a copy through diplomatic channels to the foreign state and will send the court clerk a certified copy of the diplomatic note indicating when the papers were transmitted. The package is similar, but not identical to that used in the earlier attempt at service by mail and consists of [28 USC § 1608(a)(4)]:

- Two copies of the summons and complaint (as opposed to the single copy used earlier);
- A "notice of suit"; and
- A translation of each document into the official language of the foreign state.

7.40[2][d] When Service Is Deemed Complete. Service on a foreign state of political subdivision is deemed complete [28 USC § 1608(c)]:

- On the date of the proof of service for whatever means of service were used by special arrangement or that were authorized by treaty;
- On the date of the signed postal receipt in the case of the first attempt to serve the defendant by mail; or
- On the date of transmittal of the diplomatic note set out in the copy sent to the clerk of the court by the Secretary of State if the plaintiff is forced to rely on the Secretary to serve process through diplomatic channels as described above.

7.40[3] Service on Foreign State Agency or Instrumentality.

7.40[3][a] First Attempt Requires Delivery of Summons and Complaint. There are a number of stages to attempting to serve a foreign governmental agency or instrumentality, but they are less formal and less regimented than the stages used to serve the foreign state itself or its political subdivisions. A plaintiff must first attempt to serve process on an agency or instrumentality of a foreign government by delivering a copy of the summons and complaint [28 USC § 1608(b)(1), (2)]:

- Pursuant to any special arrangement; or
- If no special arrangement exists, to an officer, to a managing or general agent, or to any other agent authorized by appointment or by law to receive service of process in the United States, or
- If no special arrangement or agent exists, in accordance with an applicable international convention on service of judicial documents.

7.40[3][b] Second Attempt Requires Delivery of Additional Documents. If service is not possible by the above methods, the plaintiff must put together the following documents [28 USC § 1608(b)(3)]:

- A copy of the summons and complaint;
- A notice of suit (a "notice of suit" means a notice addressed to the foreign state in a form prescribed by the Secretary of State [see 28 USC § 1608(a)]);

- A translation of each of these documents into the official language of the foreign state.

The plaintiff then has three choices as to how this package gets delivered:

- Making the delivery as directed by an authority of the foreign state or political subdivision in response to a letter rogatory or request; or

- Having the court clerk address and dispatch the package to the agency or instrumentality by any form of mail requiring a signed receipt; or

- Making the delivery as ordered by the by court order in a manner consistent with the law of the place where service is to be made.

7.40[3][c] When Service Is Deemed Complete. Service on an agency or instrumentality of a foreign state is deemed complete [28 USC § 1608(c)]:

- On the date of the proof of service for whatever means of service were used by special arrangement, by court order, that were authorized by treaty, or any other means of delivery other than mail;

- On the date of the signed postal receipt in the case of an attempt to serve the defendant by mail.

VI. CHOOSING METHODS FOR INTERNATIONAL SERVICE OF PROCESS

1-7 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 7.41

7.41 120-Day Deadline Does Not Apply to Service in Foreign Country.

The 120-day limit for service of process that is set out in Rule 4(m) does not apply to service made pursuant to Rule 4(f) or Rule 4(j)(1). In other words, the 120-day time limits does not apply to service made on individuals who are located in a foreign country or to service on foreign governments or subdivisions, agencies, or instrumentalities of foreign governments [Fed R Civ P 4(m) (subdivision setting out time limit creates exceptions for those served under Fed R Civ P 4(f), (j)(1))].

It is not clear whether this exception from the 120-day time limit includes service on foreign corporate and association defendants. The exception from the 120-day limit expressly applies only to service made pursuant to Rule 4(f) or Rule 4(j)(1) [see Fed R Civ P 4(m)]. Rule 4(h)(2), not Rule 4(f) or Rule 4(j)(1), is the provision that governs service on foreign corporations, partnerships, and associations. On the other hand, Rule 4(h)(2) requires service on foreign corporations, partnerships, and association to be made under Rule 4(f)--that is, by the same methods that are applicable to service on individuals in foreign countries (except for "personal" delivery, because it is impossible to deliver any document to a corporation personally). Rule 4(h)(2) incorporates Rule 4(f) by reference [see Fed R Civ P 4(h)(2)]. Thus, after a fashion, foreign corporations, partnerships, and association are served under Rule 4(f) and are arguably within the exception to the 120-day time limit. The argument is far from certain, however.

7.42 Waiver Rules Apply to Service in Foreign Country.

The waiver of service provisions are not limited to defendants located within the United States. A waiver may be requested from an individual or a corporation, partnership, or unincorporated association located in a foreign country [Fed R Civ P 4(d)(2) (defendants who may be served under Fed R Civ P 4(f), (h)(2) have duty to avoid unnecessary costs of service by agreeing to waive service)].

A waiver request need not be sent by domestic, first class mail; but may be sent by any reliable means [see Fed R Civ P 4(d)(2)(B)]. For requesting waivers from foreign defendants, a plaintiff may resort to such reliable and economic means as fax transmission [see Fed R Civ P 4, Committee Note of 1993].

A foreign defendant who declines to waive service of summons is not subject to the provisions of Rule 4 that make the defendant automatically liable for the costs of service [see Fed R Civ P 4(d)(2)]. Nonetheless, a waiver of service might still be economically advantageous to a defendant because, if the defendant loses, the costs of service may ultimately be taxed against the defendant. The costs of foreign service, including the costs of translation, can be substantial [see Fed R Civ P 4, Committee Note of 1993]. Moreover, a defendant that waives service is afforded substantially more time, 90 days from the date the request for waiver was sent rather than 20 days after service, within which to respond to the complaint [see Fed R Civ P 4, Committee Note of 1993].

7.43 Both Summons and Complaint Must Be Served.

For service of process to be complete and effective, the plaintiff must serve both the summons and the complaint [Fed R Civ P 4(c)(1)]. Service of the complaint without the summons constitutes ineffective service of process [see, e.g., Williams v. United States (ND Cal 2001) 2001 US Dist LEXIS 17875, at *8-*9]. Likewise, service of a summons without the complaint constitutes ineffective service of process, as does service of summons with the wrong version of the complaint or service of summons with an incomplete or defective copy of the complaint [see West Coast Theater Corp. v. City of Portland (9th Cir 1990) 897 F2d 1519, 1521].

Warning:

Mandatory electronic filing in the Eastern District has not changed the requirement for effecting service of process on the defendant [see ED Cal Civ LR 210(d)].

7.44 Local Rules May Require Service of Additional Material Along With Summons and Complaint.

7.44[1] Practice Varies From District to District. Local rules may require the parties to serve additional or supplementary notices and papers along with the summons and complaint. The rules of the four California federal district courts are discussed below. Note, however, that in almost all instances, the clerk provides the plaintiff with the additional or supplemental material that the plaintiff must serve. Although, as noted above, service is not effective unless the plaintiff serves both the summons and complaint, a non-willful failure to serve any supplementary material as required by local rules should not negate the validity of service, at least not if negating service were to deprive the plaintiff of any substantive rights. A failure to comply can lead to a number of other consequences, however, including appropriate sanctions [see Fed R Civ P 83(a)(2) (local rules imposing requirements "of form" may not "be enforced in a way that causes a party to lose any right because of a nonwillful failure to comply")].

7.44[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Service of Additional Notice. In the Central District, there is at least one notice that the plaintiff must serve along with the summons and complaint, a notice required by all four of California's district courts. When a case is assigned initially only to a magistrate judge, the clerk will provide a "Notice and Consent form" to the initiating party advising the parties that they may consent to having their case heard by an assigned magistrate judge. The initiating party must serve the Notice and Consent Form on all other parties at the time of service of the summons and complaint or other initial pleading [CD Cal Civ LR 73-2.1]. However, other notices may be required to be served by other rules. For example, because the plaintiff will be filing its "Notice of Interested Parties" with the complaint [see CD Cal Civ LR 7.1-1], the plaintiff will be serving this on the defendant with the summons and complaint. The same is true concerning the "Notice of Related Cases" [see CD Cal Civ LR 83-1.3.1] and any other notice or paper actually supplied by the clerk at the time of filing.

7.44[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Service of Additional Notices. In the Eastern District, there are at least two notices that must be served along with the summons and complaint:

- When the plaintiff files an action, the clerk will provide the plaintiff with a notice of the court's Voluntary Dispute Resolution Program. The notice will order the plaintiff to provide all other parties with a copy of the notice "at the time service is effected or, for parties already served, no later than 14 days after plaintiff receives the notice from the Court" [ED Cal Civ LR 271(c)(1)].

- When the plaintiff files an action, the clerk will provide the plaintiff with a notice of the option that the parties have to consent to having their case heard by a magistrate judge. The plaintiff must transmit this notice to all other parties as an attachment to copies of the complaint and summons, when served [ED Cal Mag LR 305(a)].

Likewise, the clerk will provide the notice to the removing defendant at the time of removal and the defendant must then transmit the notice to all other parties as an attachment to the removal documents when served [ED Cal Mag LR 305(a)].

This list is not necessarily exhaustive. The plaintiff should also serve any other paper or notice supplied by the clerk for service on the defendant.

7.44[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements--Service of Supplementary Material. In the Northern District of California, except in cases that are exempt from the court's case management system or initial disclosures under Rule 26 [see ND Cal Civ LR 16-7], a plaintiff must serve additional materials along with the complaint and the summons or request for waiver of service. The plaintiff must serve the following supplementary material [ND Cal Civ LR 4-2]:

- A copy of the Order Setting Initial Case Management Conference and ADR Deadlines issued pursuant to ND Cal Civ LR 16-2(a), (b), or (c);

- Any pertinent Standing Orders of the assigned judge;

- A copy of the assigned judge's order and form for the preparation of a Case Management Statement or, if none, the court's form pursuant to ND Cal Civ LR 16-10; and

- Except in cases assigned at the time of filing to a Magistrate Judge, a copy of the form allowing a party to consent to assignment of the case to a Magistrate Judge.

This list is not necessarily exhaustive. The plaintiff should also serve any other paper or notice supplied by the clerk for service on the defendant.

7.44[5] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements--Service of Additional Notice. In the Southern District, there is at least one notice that the plaintiff must serve along with the summons and complaint, a notice required by all four of California's district courts. When the plaintiff files an action, the clerk will provide the plaintiff with a notice of the option that the parties have to consent to having their case heard by a magistrate judge. The plaintiff must transmit this notice to all other parties "as attachments to copies of the complaint and summons when served" [SD Cal Civ LR 73.1(a)]. This notice does not necessarily exhaust all of the extra notices or papers that the plaintiff must serve with the summons and complaint. The plaintiff should also serve any other paper or notice supplied by the clerk for service on the defendant.

CHAPTER 7 Service of Summons
VIII. CONSTITUTIONAL AND TERRITORIAL LIMITS ON SERVICE OF PROCESS

1-7 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 7.45

7.45 Completion of Mechanical Steps for Service of Process Does Not Conclusively Establish Personal Jurisdiction of Defendant.

7.45[1] Rule 4 Recognizes Constitutional Limits and Establishes Territorial Limits for Effective Service of Process. Service of the summons under Rule 4 does not conclusively establish the court's personal jurisdiction over a defendant. Even if a defendant fully complies with all of the mechanical steps for service of process authorized by Rule 4, a defendant may still object to the court's exercise of personal jurisdiction by asserting the constitutional limitations imposed by the Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment or the simple territorial limits for service of process set out Rule 4(k) [see Fed R Civ P 4, Committee Note of 1993].

7.45[2] Rule 4(k) Establishes Four-Alternative Test for Measuring When Service Creates Personal Jurisdiction. Service of a summons or filing a waiver of service is effective to establish the court's personal jurisdiction over a defendant if [Fed R Civ P 4(k)(1)]:

- The defendant could be subjected to the jurisdiction of a court of general jurisdiction in the state in which the district court is located [Fed R Civ P 4(k)(1)(A)];

- The defendant is joined as a party joined under Fed R Civ P 14 or 19 and is served at a place within a judicial district of the United States and not more than 100 miles from the place from which the summons issues [Fed R Civ P 4(k)(1)(B)];

- The defendant is subject to the federal interpleader jurisdiction under 28 USC § 1335 [Fed R Civ P 4(k)(1)(C)]; or

- Jurisdiction over the defendant is authorized by a statute of the United States [Fed R Civ P 4(k)(1)(D)].

If the exercise of jurisdiction is consistent with the Constitution and laws of the United States, serving a summons or filing a waiver of service is also effective, with respect to claims arising under federal law, to establish personal jurisdiction over a defendant who is not subject to the jurisdiction of the courts of general jurisdiction of any state [Fed

R Civ P 4(k)(2)].

CHAPTER 7 Service of Summons
VIII. CONSTITUTIONAL AND TERRITORIAL LIMITS ON SERVICE OF PROCESS

1-7 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 7.46

7.46 Service of Process Establishes Personal Jurisdiction Only When Consistent With Constitution.

7.46[1] Constitution Requires Minimum Contacts, Purposeful Availment, and Fairness. If the state courts where the federal district court is located could constitutionally exercise jurisdiction over a defendant, so can the federal courts located in that state [see Fed R Civ P 4(k)(1)(A)]. The constitutional principles that permit either state courts or federal courts to exercise personal jurisdiction over a defendant constitute a large and complex field of law, but the general principles are:

- The defendant must have minimum contacts with the forum that are sufficient to justify the exercise of jurisdiction by the courts of the forum [International Shoe Co. v. Washington (1945) 326 US 310, 316, 66 S Ct 154, 90 L Ed 95]. There is a substantial exception to this rule, however. If the defendant is present in the forum, even transiently, and can be served with process in the forum, service of process itself may be an adequate basis for jurisdiction [Burnham v. Superior Court (1990) 495 US 604, 622, 110 S Ct 2105, 109 L Ed2d 631].

- Contacts that are continuous or systematic may justify "general" personal jurisdiction over the defendant on a wide variety of matters [see, e.g., Perkins v. Benguet Consol. Mining Co. (1952) 342 US 437, 447-449, 72 S Ct 413, 96 L Ed 485, 63 Ohio Law Abs. 146].

- More limited contacts, but contacts with the forum that are directly related to the claim in dispute, may justify "specific" personal jurisdiction over the defendant--jurisdiction limited to claims that are related to the defendant's contacts with the forum [Burger King Corp. v. Rudzewicz (1985) 471 US 462, 472, 105 S Ct 2174, 85 L Ed2d 528].

- The defendants contacts with the forum must constitute "purposeful availment" of the laws and protections of the forum; the contacts may not be accidental or unintended [Hanson v. Denckla (1958) 357 US 235, 254, 78 S Ct 1228, 2 L Ed2d 1283].

- The nature and extent of the defendant's contacts must be such that it would be "fair" for the court to exercise personal jurisdiction over the defendant [Burger King Corp. v. Rudzewicz (1985) 471 US 462, 476, 105 S Ct 2174, 85 L Ed2d 528 ; Core-Vent Corp. v. Nobel Indus. AB (9th Cir 1993) 11 F3d 1482, 1488 (Ninth Circuit identifies seven factors that must be weighed and balanced)].

7.46[2] Rule 4 Limits Relevant Contacts to Contact With Particular State Forum. The United States Constitution limits the exercise of personal jurisdiction by federal courts in the same manner that it does the exercise of personal jurisdiction by state courts [see US Const, amend V (due process clause of Fifth Amendment controls federal courts); US Const, amend XIV (Fourteenth Amendment extends due process limits to state courts)]. Due process requires that the defendant have "minimum contacts" with the "forum" so that it would be "fair" for the court to exercise jurisdiction over the defendant. The main difference is that, as applied to federal courts, the "forum" that the defendant must have contacts with is the United States as a whole, rather than the territorial limits of any one particular state [see Mississippi Publ'g Corp. v. Murphree (1946) 326 US 438, 441-442, 66 S Ct 242, 90 L Ed 185]. Thus, Rule 4 could have provided, and in a couple of instances does provide, that service of process anywhere in the United States may create personal jurisdiction. Rule 4 does authorize nationwide service of process for statutory interpleader actions [Fed R Civ P 4(k)(1)(C); see 28 USC § 1335] and whenever a federal statute provides for it [Fed R Civ P 4(k)(1)(D)]. Federal statutes do provide for nationwide service of process in a number of instances, such as in securities fraud cases [see 15 USC § 78aa], ERISA cases [see 29 USC § 1132(e)], and RICO cases [see 18 USC § 1965]. The Ninth Circuit agrees that in such cases, it is the defendant's contacts with the United States as a whole that is the constitutional limit on personal jurisdiction [Go-Video, Inc. v. Akai Elec. Co. (9th Cir 1989) 885 F2d 1406, 1413]. In most cases, however, Rule 4 makes state court jurisdiction and federal court jurisdiction parallel by making service of process effective to create personal jurisdiction over a defendant only in those cases in which the state court of the state in which the district court is located could also validly exercise personal jurisdiction over the defendant [Fed R Civ P 4(k)(1)(A)].

Exceptions:

There are only two exceptions to this state-court limit on personal jurisdiction in the vast majority of federal court cases:

- So-called "bulge" service within a 100 miles of the federal courthouse when the party being served is so closely related to the claims before the court that the party being served is being joined under Rule 14 (third-party practice) or Rule 19 (necessary and indispensable parties) [Fed R Civ P 4(k)(1)(B); see 7.47]; and

- Federal-law based claims asserted against a party who is not subject to personal jurisdiction by the state courts of any state of the United States [Fed R Civ P 4(k)(2); see 7.48].

7.47 "Bulge" Service Extends Jurisdictional Reach of Federal Court.

A plaintiff may obtain personal jurisdiction over a defendant even when the state courts of the state in which the district court sits would not be able to serve or exercise personal jurisdiction over the defendant (or third-party defendant) in the following, limited situation [Fed R Civ P 4(k)(1)(B) ("bulge" service authorization)]:

- The defendant or third-party defendant must be served within the United States; and
- The place of service must be within 100 miles of the federal courthouse that issued the summons in the case (the so-called "bulge"); and
- The person served must qualify for impleader as a third-party defendant under Rule 14 [see generally Fed R Civ P 14 (third-party practice)]; or
- The person served must be joined as a required or indispensable party under Rule 19 [see generally Fed R Civ P 19(a), (b) (required and indispensable parties)].

If a plaintiff (or third-party plaintiff) make "bulge" service, the person served need not have minimum contacts with the forum state. The federal court may exercise personal jurisdiction if there is any constitutional basis for exercising jurisdiction over the defendant in either the bulge state where service took place or the forum state where the action is proceeding [Sprow v. Hartford Ins. Co. (5th Cir 1979) 594 F2d 412, 416].

7.48 Foreign Defendants May Be Served Anywhere If Claim Asserted Is Based on Federal Law.

If a claim is based on federal law, and if a defendant is not subject to personal jurisdiction in any judicial district, any valid service will create personal jurisdiction over the defendant if the defendant has contacts with the United States as a whole sufficient to justify the exercise of the personal jurisdiction of the federal court consistent with the Constitution and the laws of the United States [Fed R Civ P 4(k)(2)].

This rule applies to both general and specific jurisdiction [see Holland Am. Line Inc. v. Wartsila N. Am., Inc. (9th Cir 2007) 485 F3d 450, 459] . A court may exercise jurisdiction when three requirements are met [Holland Am. Line Inc. v. Wartsila N. Am., Inc. (9th Cir 2007) 485 F3d 450, 461] :

- The claim against the defendant arises under federal law.
- The defendant is not subject to the personal jurisdiction of any state court of general jurisdiction.
- The federal court's exercise of personal jurisdiction comports with due process.

The due process analysis under Fed R Civ P 4(k)(2) is "nearly identical" to traditional personal jurisdiction analysis with one significant difference: rather than considering contacts between the defendant and the forum state, the court considers contacts with the nation as a whole [Holland Am. Line Inc. v. Wartsila N. Am., Inc. (9th Cir 2007) 485 F3d 450, 462 ("scant, fleeting, and attenuated" contacts were insufficient to support exercise of jurisdiction)].

Cross Reference:

For discussion of due process requirements relating to personal jurisdiction, see § 2.31[2].

This exception to the general rule that federal court personal jurisdiction is parallel with state court personal jurisdiction is a narrow one:

- This narrow exception does not establish personal jurisdiction if the only claims are those arising under state law or the law of another country, even though there might be diversity or alienage subject-matter jurisdiction as to such claims. If, however, personal jurisdiction is established under this paragraph with respect to federal claim, then the supplemental jurisdiction statute provides supplemental jurisdiction over related claims against that defendant, subject to the court's discretion to decline exercise of that jurisdiction under [see 28 USC § 1367(a), (c); Fed R Civ P 4, Committee Note of 1993].

- District courts should scrupulously protect aliens who reside in a foreign country from a plaintiff's forum selection when that is so onerous that injustice could result. The rule expressly incorporates the general due process limits of applicable to every federal court's exercise of personal jurisdiction [Fed R Civ P 4(k)(2) ("if ... exercising jurisdiction is consistent with the United States Constitution and laws")]. Furthermore, the Advisory Committee warns courts to take great care when extending the notions of personal jurisdiction into the international field [see Fed R Civ P 4, Committee Note of 1993 (citing Asahi Metal Indus. Co. v. Superior Court (1987) 480 US 102, 115, 107 S Ct 1026, 94 L Ed2d 92].

IX. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY FOR IN REM JURISDICTION

7.50 Statutory Jurisdiction Over Property for Judgment Affecting Property Only.

7.50[1] Court May Assert Jurisdiction According to Terms of Federal Statute. If a federal statute so provides, the court may assert "jurisdiction over property" [Fed R Civ P 4(n)(1)]. This means that the court may render a judgment concerning the property over which it exercises jurisdiction ("in rem" or "quasi in rem" jurisdiction); but property-based jurisdiction does not permit the court to render a judgment for which a defendant will have personal liability apart from the property in question ("in personam" jurisdiction). Persons claiming an interest in the property are entitled to prejudgment notice of the action. The notice must be given in the manner specified in whatever federal statute authorizes the court to exercise jurisdiction over the disputed property or, if the statute is silent, in the manner provided for in an order of the court [Fed R Civ P 4(n)(1)].

7.50[2] Property Disputes Under 28 USC § 1655 Proceed Under This Provision of Rule 4. According to the Committee Notes, the federal statute that was contemplated in this portion of Rule 4 is Section 1655 of Title 28 [Fed R Civ P 4, Committee Note of 1993]. Under that statute, a federal district court may render a judgment settling claims to real or personal property located within its judicial district, even if the defendant cannot be served within the state where the court sits or the defendant does not voluntarily appear in the action to assert its right in the property [28 USC § 1655]. In this situation, the court may enter an order requiring the defendant to appear or plead by a specific time [28 USC § 1655(a)]. The plaintiff must serve this order on the defendant; but the plaintiff may do so anywhere. If personal service of the order is not "practicable," the order may be published for six consecutive weeks. Even if the defendant does not appear or plead within the time allowed, the court may render a judgment concerning the property (and only concerning the property, not concerning the defendant personally). A defendant who did not receive personal notice of the court's order to appear has one year from the final judgment to appear and have the judgment set aside [28 USC § 1655].

IX. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY FOR IN REM JURISDICTION

1-7 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 7.51

7.51 Court May Assert Jurisdiction Over Property When Defendant Cannot Be Served.

7.51[1] Court May Seize Property and Make Judgment Concerning Interests in Property. If a plaintiff cannot serve a defendant under Rule 4, the court may not exercise personal jurisdiction over the defendant and cannot render an "in personam" judgment against the defendant [see Printed Media Servs. v. Solna Web, Inc. (8th Cir 1993) 11 F3d 838, 843 (court lacked jurisdiction to render personal judgment over improperly served defendant)]. If a defendant has real or personal property within the judicial district of the court, and the defendant cannot be served with reasonable effort in any manner authorized by Rule 4 (and the state law it incorporates), the court may assert jurisdiction over the defendant's property by seizing it [Fed R Civ P 4(n)(2)]. The seizure of the property authorizes the court to render a judgment concerning defendant's interests the property. The court still lacks the jurisdiction to render a judgment against the defendant personally, a judgment on claims unrelated to the property or, even if related to the property, a judgment that will bind the defendant apart from the defendant's interest in the seized property [Shaffer v. Heitner (1977) 433 US 186, 212, 97 S Ct 2569, 53 L Ed2d 683].

Cross Reference:

Ch. 2, Determining Forum (Jurisdiction and Venue), see § 2.39.

7.51[2] Seizure Must Follow State Law Procedures. There are no non-admiralty federal procedures for the seizure of property to establish a court's in rem jurisdiction over the defendant's property. The procedures for the seizure, and even the court's authority to seize property, depend on state law. The assets must be seized "under the circumstances and in the manner provided by the law of the state" in which the district court sits [Fed R Civ P 4(n)(2)].

7.51[3] In Rem Jurisdiction Does Not Attach Until the Property Is Seized. The mere filing of a complaint does not establish in rem jurisdiction. In rem jurisdiction over the property does not attach until the property is seized [see, e.g., United States v. One Oil Painting (CD Cal 2005) 362 F Supp2d 1175, 1181-1182].

7.51[4] In Rem Jurisdiction Is Discretionary. Rule 4(n) states that "the court may assert jurisdiction over any of the defendant's assets" [Fed R Civ P 4(n)(2) (emphasis added)]. A court is never compelled to do so and the court, should, in fact, limit its exercise of this type of jurisdiction to exigent circumstance. Occasions for the use of this provision should be rare, as when the defendant is a fugitive or assets are in imminent danger of disappearing. Even then, the assets may be protected, pending personal service under Rule 4, by provisional remedies. Given the liberal availability of long-arm jurisdiction, the exercise of in rem or quasi-in-rem jurisdiction has become almost an anachronism. If a defendant's contacts with the forum as so slight that no form of Rule 4 service will be effective to establish personal jurisdiction, chances are that the circumstances are also inadequate to support seizure of the defendant's assets fortuitously found within the state [see Fed R Civ P 4, Committee Note of 1993, citing Shaffer v. Heitner (1977) 433 US 186, 97 S Ct 2569, 53 L Ed2d 683].

7.52 Proof of Service Always Required.

If service is not waived, the person effecting service must file a proof of service with the court [Fed R Civ P 4(l)]. This proof of service may take many forms [Fed R Civ P 4(l)]:

- Proof of service on a defendant in the United States, by any person other than a United States Marshal or Deputy Marshal, must be in the form of an affidavit;

- Proof of service on a defendant in the United States made by the United States Marshal's office will be handled by the Marshal's office and will take a form similar to an affidavit called a "return of service."

- Proof of service on a defendant outside the United States that is made pursuant to a treaty must be in the form prescribed by the treaty.

- Proof of service on a defendant outside the United States that is made pursuant to some method other than specified in a treaty must contain a receipt signed by the person served or some other evidence of delivery satisfactory to the court.

If service of summons has been waived, the plaintiff will file the waiver instead of a proof of service [see Fed R Civ P 4(d)(4); ED Cal Civ LR 210(c)].

X. FILING PROOF OF SERVICE

1-7 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 7.53

7.53 Proof of Service Must Establish That Service Was Proper and Timely.

Although Rule 4 does not spell out the required contents of a proof of service, the contents are self-evident. The courts have recognized that the plaintiff bears the initial burden of establishing that the defendant was served in a proper and timely manner [see, e.g., Grand Entm't Group v. Star Media Sales (3d Cir 1993) 988 F2d 476, 486-491 (plaintiff obligated to show Spanish defendants were properly served under Spanish law)]. The proof of service constitutes prima facie evidence that plaintiff properly served the defendant [see, e.g., Trustee of Local 727 v. Perfect Parking, Inc. (ND Ill 1989) 126 FRD 48, 52]. A defendant must present more than a mere allegation in order to challenge the validity of service as established in the proof of service [see, e.g., FROF, Inc. v. Harris (ED Pa 1988) 695 F Supp 827, 828-829]. Therefore, the proof of service must [see CD Cal Civ LR 5-3.1; ED Cal Civ LR 210(b)]:

- Be signed by the person who completed or effected the service [O'Brien v. R.J. O'Brien & Assocs. (7th Cir 1993) 998 F2d 1394, 1398 ; see CD Cal Civ LR 5-3.1 (proof must be in form of declaration)];

- Show the title of each document served [CD Cal Civ LR 5-3.1(c)];

- Show the date that service was completed or effected [CD Cal Civ LR 5-3.1(a); ED Cal Civ LR 210(b); see United States ex rel. Henry S. Wolkins Co. v. Dimen-Pascau Constr. Co. (D Mass 1988) 123 FRD 413, 414 (although there is deadline for filing proof of service, proof of service must show that service was accomplished within 120-day deadline of Fed R Civ P 4(m))];

- Show where service was completed or effected [ED Cal Civ LR 210(b); Robinson v. United States (MD La 1982) 551 F Supp 1120, 1121];

- Show the name of each individual and entity defendant intended to be served; the name of the person actually served; and, if that person not the defendant, the served person's relationship to the defendant [CD Cal Civ LR 5-3.1(b); ED Cal Civ LR 210(b); Williams v. Bruce's Juices, Inc. (WD Ky 1940) 35 F Supp 847, 849]; and

- Show how the defendant was served (i.e., personal service, substituted service, by mail, etc.) [CD Cal Civ LR 5-3.1(a); ED Cal Civ LR 210(b); see Scheerger v. Wiencek (WDNY 1940) 34 F Supp 805, 805 (because substituted service was made by leaving summons and complaint with someone at defendant's dwelling house, "certificate here should show where the service was made and that the person served was one of suitable age and discretion")].

Why are you getting this?

A lawsuit has been filed against _____ [you or the entity you represent], in this court under the number shown above. A copy of the complaint is attached.

This is not a summons, or an official notice from the court. It is a request that, to avoid expenses, you waive formal service of a summons by signing and returning the enclosed waiver. To avoid these expenses, you must return the signed waiver within _____ (give at least 30 days or at least 60 days if the defendant is outside any judicial district of the United States) from the date shown below, which is the date this notice was sent. Two copies of the waiver form are enclosed, a long with a stamped, self-addressed envelope or other prepaid means for returning one copy. You may keep the other copy.

What happens next?

If you return the signed waiver, I will file it with the court. The action will then proceed as if you had been served on the date the waiver is filed, but no summons will be served on you and you will have 60 days from the date this notice is sent (see the date below) to answer the complaint (or 90 days if this notice is sent to you outside any judicial district of the United States).

If you do not return the signed waiver within the time indicated, I will arrange to have the summons and complaint served on you. And I will ask the court to require _____ [you or the entity you represent] to pay the expenses of making service.

Please read the enclosed statement about the duty to avoid unnecessary expenses.

I certify that this request is being sent to you on the date below.

TO _____ [NAME OF PLAINTIFF'S ATTORNEY]:

I have received your request to waive service of a summons in this action along with a copy of the complaint, two copies of this waiver form, and a prepaid means of returning one signed copy of the form to you.

_____ [I or The entity I represent] agree[s] to save the expense of serving a summons and complaint in this case.

I understand that _____ [I or the entity I represent] will keep all defenses or objections to the lawsuit, the court's jurisdiction, and the venue of the action, but that I waive any objections to the absence of a summons or of service.

I also understand that _____ [I or the entity I represent] must file and serve an answer or a motion under Rule 12 within 60 days from _____, the date when this request was sent (or 90 days if it was sent outside the United States). If I fail to do so, a default judgment will be entered against _____ [me or the entity I represent].

Duty to Avoid Unnecessary Expenses of Serving a Summons

Rule 4 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure requires certain defendants to cooperate in saving unnecessary expenses of serving a summons and complaint. A defendant who is located in the United States and who fails to return a signed waiver of service requested by a plaintiff located in the United States will be required to pay the expenses of service unless the defendant shows good cause for the failure.

"Good cause" does not include a belief that the lawsuit is groundless, or that it has been brought in an improper venue, or that the court has no jurisdiction over this matter or over the defendant or the defendant's property.

If the waiver is signed and returned, you can still make these and all other defenses and objections, but you cannot object to the absence of a summons or of service.

If you waive service, then you must, within the time specified on the waiver form, serve an answer or a motion under Rule 12 on the plaintiff and file a copy with the court. By signing and returning the waiver form, you are allowed more time to respond than if a summons had been served.

CHAPTER 8 Answers and Responsive Motions Under Rule 12
I. STRATEGY

1-8 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 8.02

8.02 Objective and Strategy.

Once a plaintiff commences an action in federal district court by filing a complaint, the defendant generally must file an answer within 21 days of service of the complaint [Fed R Civ P 12(a)(1)(A)(i); see Federal Mar. Comm'n v. South Carolina State Ports Auth. (2002) 535 US 743, 757, 122 S Ct 1864, 152 L Ed2d 962 (decided under prior law)]. If a defendant fails to timely respond to the complaint, the court may enter default judgment on behalf of the plaintiff [Federal Mar. Comm'n v. South Carolina State Ports Auth. (2002) 535 US 743, 757, 122 S Ct 1864, 152 L Ed2d 962 ; see Fed R Civ P 55]. The defendant may avoid default by filing either an answer or a Rule 12 motion within the time prescribed by the rules for responding to the complaint [see Fed R Civ P 12(a)(1)].

Together, the complaint and answer serve to notify the parties of the allegations at issue, and to confine the issues to be adjudicated [United States Indus./Fed. Sheet Metal, Inc. v. Director, Office of Workers' Comp. Programs (1982) 455 US 608, 613, 102 S Ct 1312, 71 L Ed2d 495 ; Jones Stevedoring Co. v. Director, Office of Workers' Comp. Programs (9th Cir 1997) 133 F3d 683, 691]. An answer may contain admissions or denials of the allegations in the plaintiff's complaint and any available defenses to the plaintiff's suit [see Fed R Civ P 8(b), (c); Fed R Civ P 12(a), (b)].

Before filing an answer, a defendant should consider filing preanswer motions containing admissions, denials, and any available defenses [see Fed R Civ P 8(b), (c), 12(b)]. Some of these objections or defenses may be waived if not raised either in an initial answer or preanswer motion [see Fed R Civ P 12(h)(1), (2)]. In addition, a defendant may want to file a motion seeking clarification of the plaintiff's pleadings before filing an answer or pre-answer motion [see Fed R Civ P 12(e), (f)].

Prerequisite--CD Cal: Meet and Confer:

In the Central District, comply with "meet and confer" requirements before bringing the motion [CD Cal Civ LR 7-3].

- Contact opposing counsel to discuss thoroughly, preferably in person, the substance of the contemplated motion and any potential resolution.
- "Meet and confer" must take place at least five days prior to last day for filing the motion.

- If parties are unable to reach a resolution that eliminates the need for a hearing, include in the notice of motion the statement "This motion is made following the conference of counsel pursuant to L.R. 7-3 which took place on [date]."

Strategic Point--Defendant:

Though the first inclination may be to file an answer to the complaint as soon as possible, take time to develop an overall defensive strategy by considering the range of different defenses and objections available, the order in which they may best be presented, and the possible ramifications of each approach. Counsel may wish to seek a stipulated extension of the time to answer to permit a thorough investigation of the facts and law.

CHAPTER 8 Answers and Responsive Motions Under Rule 12
II. TIMING RESPONSE TO COMPLAINT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 8.03

8.03 CHECKLIST: Deadlines for Responding to Complaint.

☐ Determine which deadline applies to response to complaint or other plaintiff's pleading.

○ General rule--21 days to serve response: Defendant must serve answer or responsive pleading within 21 days of being served with complaint.

○ Court may order different time for response.

○ Statutory deadline controls: If complaint is brought under federal statute prescribing time period for responding to complaint, statutory deadline controls.

○ 60-day time limit applies when:

☐ Complaint sues federal agency, officer, or employee in official capacity: Defendant must serve answer within 60 days after United States attorney is served with pleading asserting claim.

☐ Defendant is federal officer or employee sued in individual capacity in connection with performance of official duties: Defendant must serve answer within 60 days after service on officer or employee, or on United States attorney, whichever is later.

☐ Defendant is foreign state, or subdivision, agency, or instrumentality of foreign state: Defendant must serve answer or other responsive pleading within 60 days after service by plaintiff.

☐ Defendant waives service of summons on plaintiff's request: Defendant has 60 days from date request was sent to serve an answer or file preanswer motion. If request was sent to defendant at an address outside United States judicial district, period is extended to 90 days.

○ 14-day time limit applies:

☐ In responding to complaint amended as a matter of course: Defendant must respond within 14 days after service of amended complaint, or within time remaining for responding to original complaint, whichever is longer.

☐ After defendant serves Rule 12 motion in lieu of an answer:

○ Court denies motion in whole or part: Defendant must serve responsive pleading within 14 days after notice of court's action.

○ Court postpones disposition of motion until trial: Defendant must serve responsive pleading within 14 days after notice of court's action.

○ Court grants motion for more definite statement: Defendant must serve responsive pleading within 14 days after plaintiff's service of more definite statement.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 12(a), 15(a); 28 USC § 1608(d)

Discussion:
See §§ 8.05[1], [2]

☐ Compute time period for responding to complaint.

○ If last day of time period is Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday, time to respond continues to run until the end of the next day that is not a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday.

○ Applicable deadline must be extended by three days when:

☐ Plaintiff serves complaint by mail.

☐ Plaintiff serves complaint on court clerk due to lack of known address for defendant.

☐ Plaintiff serves defendant by electronic or alternate means of delivery consented to in writing.

○ If 21-day time limit applies for responding to complaint, exclude Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays from computing time to respond.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 6(a), (b), (d)

Discussion:
See § 8.05[2][e]

☐ Request additional time to serve response when appropriate.

○ Defendant may request that court grant additional time for responding if response cannot be made within prescribed time period.

☐ If defendant makes request before prescribed time period, court may grant request for cause shown at any time, with or without motion or notice by defendant.

☐ If defendant makes request by motion after expiration of specified period, court may permit extension of time to serve response if defendant fails to serve timely response as result of excusable neglect.

○ Check local rules for stipulating to extension of time to file response.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 6(b); ND Cal Civ LR 6-1(a); CD Cal Civ LR 8-3; SD Cal Civ LR 12.1; ED Cal Gen LR 144

Discussion:
See § 8.05[3]

CHAPTER 8 Answers and Responsive Motions Under Rule 12
II. TIMING RESPONSE TO COMPLAINT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 8.04

8.04 Options and Strategy.

8.04[1] Time to Respond. After being served with the plaintiff's complaint, a defendant typically has 21 days to serve and file either an answer or a motion to dismiss [see Fed R Civ P 12(a)(1)(A)(i)].

If the defendant waives service of the summons, he or she has 60 days to serve and file an answer or a motion to dismiss [see Fed R Civ P 12(a)(1)(A)(ii)]. Other time limits may also apply under the rules [see, e.g., Fed R Civ P 12(a)(1), (2), (3)], or under specific statutes [see, e.g., 28 USC § 1608(d)].

8.04[2] Filing Motion to Dismiss Extends Time to Answer. Filing a motion to dismiss under Fed R Civ P 12(b) acts as a tolling mechanism to extend the time within which the defendant must file an answer. If the court denies the motion or postpones a decision on the motion until trial, the defendant must serve an answer within 14 days after receiving notice of the court's action [see Fed R Civ P 12(a)(4)].

CHAPTER 8 Answers and Responsive Motions Under Rule 12
II. TIMING RESPONSE TO COMPLAINT

1-8 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 8.05

8.05 Respond to Complaint Within Applicable Time Limits.

8.05[1] General Rule: Respond Within 21 Days of Service of Summons and Complaint. In general, a defendant must serve an answer within 21 days after being served with a plaintiff's summons and complaint [see Fed R Civ P 12(a)(1)(A)(i)]. Similarly, a party served with a pleading containing a crossclaim against that party must serve an answer to the crossclaim within 21 days after being served [Fed R Civ P 12(a)(1)(B)].

Cross Reference:

Responses to crossclaims, see Ch. 11, Counterclaims, Crossclaims, and Replies, see §§ 11.44 -11.51.

8.05[2] Exceptions to 20-Day Rule May Apply.

8.05[2][a] Defendant's Waiver of Service of Summons Extends Time to Respond. A plaintiff may serve the defendant with a request that the defendant waive service of the summons [see Fed R Civ P 4(d)]. If the defendant timely waives service as requested, the defendant must file a response to the complaint within 60 days after the date on which the plaintiff sent the request for waiver. If the defendant's address is not within a United States judicial district, the defendant has until 90 days after the date on which the plaintiff sent the request for waiver to file the response to the complaint [see Fed R Civ P 12(a)(1)(A)(ii)].

A defendant who waives service of a summons does not waive objections to the venue or personal jurisdiction of the court [see Fed R Civ P 4(d)(5)].

Cross Reference:

Waiver of service of summons, see Ch. 7, Service of Summons, see §§ 7.12 -7.19.

8.05[2][b] Federal Government and Officials Have Additional Time to Respond. The United States, a United States agency, or an officer or employee of the United States who is sued in an official capacity must serve an answer to the complaint within 60 days after the plaintiff serves the United States attorney with the pleading asserting the claim [Fed R Civ P 12(a)(2)].

Similarly, an officer or employee of the United States sued in an individual capacity for acts or omissions occurring in connection with the performance of duties on behalf of the United States must serve an answer to the complaint within 60 days after service on the officer or employee, or service on the United States attorney, whichever is later [Fed R Civ P 12(a)(3)].

8.05[2][c] Statutes May Provide Different Deadline for Response. United States statutes may prescribe different deadlines for responding to the complaint than those set forth in Rule 12 [see Fed R Civ P 12(a)(1)], which may be applicable to the case in which the complaint has been filed.

Example--Suits Against Foreign States or Entities:

In any action brought in a United States court, a foreign state, or a political subdivision, agency, or instrumentality of a foreign state must serve an answer or other responsive pleading to the complaint within 60 days after service of a complaint [see 28 USC § 1608(d)].

Example--Civil Forfeiture Cases:

In any case in which the government files a complaint in federal district court for forfeiture of seized property, a person claiming an interest in the property may file a claim asserting an interest in the property no later than 30 days after the date of service of the government's complaint, or no later than 30 days after final publication of notice of the filing of the complaint [see 18 USC § 983(a)(4)(A)].

Example--Actions Affecting Property on Which United States Has Lien:

The United States may appear and answer within 60 days after service of a complaint to quiet title to, foreclose a mortgage or other lien on, partition, or condemn real or personal property on which the United States has or claims a mortgage or other lien [28 USC § 2410(b)].

Example--Federal Election Contests:

A contestee who is served with a notice of an election contest under 2 USC § 382 must serve a written answer within 30 days after service of the notice [2 USC § 383(a)].

8.05[2][d] Service of Preanswer Motion Alters Time to Respond. When the defendant responds to a complaint by a preanswer Rule 12 motion, such as a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim, the time period within which a defendant must file an answer is altered [see Fed R Civ P 12(a)(4)].

If the court denies a defendant's preanswer motion or postpones disposition of the motion until trial on the merits, the defendant must serve a responsive pleading within 14 days after notice of the court's action [Fed R Civ P 12(a)(4)(A)]. If the court grants a defendant's motion for a more definite statement, the defendant must serve a responsive pleading within 14 days after the opposing party serves the more definite statement [Fed R Civ P 12(a)(4)(B)].

In either instance, the court may issue an order fixing a different time to respond [see Fed R Civ P 12(a)(4)].

8.05[2][e] Computing Time to Respond. In calculating the time within which the defendant must respond to a complaint under Rule 12, a district court rule, a court order, or an applicable statute, when the period is stated in days or a longer unit of time, the day on which the complaint is served is not included. Accordingly, the 21-day period for responding begins to run on the day after service of process [see Fed R Civ P 6(a)(1)(A)]. Every other day, including intermediate Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays, as well as the last day of the period, is included in the calculation [Fed R Civ P 6(a)(1)(B), (C)]. However, if the last day is a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday, the period continues to run until the end of the next day that is not a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday [Fed R Civ P 6(a)(1)(C)]. If the clerk's office is inaccessible on the last day of filing, the time for filing is extended to the first accessible day that is not a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday [Fed R Civ P 6(a)(3)(A)]. Legal holidays include New Year's Day, Birthday of Martin Luther King, Jr., Washington's Birthday, Memorial Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Columbus Day,

Veterans Day, Thanksgiving Day, Christmas Day, and any other day appointed as a holiday by the President or the Congress, or by the state in which the district court is held [Fed R Civ P 6(a)(6); see CCP § 135 (judicial holidays); Gov Code § 6700 (state holidays); see also Dwyer v. Duffy (9th Cir 2005) 426 F3d 1041, 1044 (day after Thanksgiving is legal holiday under Fed R Bankr P 9006, which is modeled on Fed R Civ P 6)]. The "last day," for electronic filing means midnight at the court's timezone [Fed R Civ P 6(a)(4)(A)]. The "last day" for filing by other means is when the clerk's office is scheduled to close [Fed R Civ P 6(a)(4)(B)]. The "next day" is determined by continuing to count forward after the "event" (in this case, service of the complaint), or after the request for waiver was sent [see Fed R Civ P 6(a)(5)].

A defendant served with a complaint by the following methods has three additional days to respond to the pleading [see Fed R Civ P 5(b)(2)(C), (D), (E), (F), and Fed R Civ P 6(d)]:

- Service by mail.
- Service on the court clerk because there is no known address for the defendant.
- Service electronically or by other means of service consented to in writing.

Example:

When the plaintiff serves a defendant with a complaint by mail, the defendant must serve a response to the complaint within 24 days of the date on which the plaintiff served the complaint, not counting the day on which the plaintiff executed service.

Cross References:

Service of process generally, see Ch. 7, Service of Summons.

8.05[3] Obtaining Extension of Time to Respond.

8.05[3][a] Requests and Motions for Extension of Time to Respond. For good cause shown, the court may extend the time within which a defendant must file a response to the complaint. The manner in which a defendant must request an extension depends on when the defendant seeks the extension [see Fed R Civ P 6(b)]. If the defendant requests the extension before expiration of the period prescribed by the court, either originally or as extended by a previous order, the defendant may request an extension with or without a motion or notice [see Fed R Civ P 6(b)(1)].

After expiration of the time to respond to the complaint, the defendant must make a motion for an extension of time. In addition, the defendant must make a showing that failure to timely serve a response was the result of excusable neglect [see Fed R Civ P 6(b)(1)].

Cross Reference:

Motion practice in general, see Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice.

8.05[3][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Stipulation. In the Central District of California, the parties may stipulate to an extension in the time to answer or otherwise respond to the initial complaint for up to 30 days without obtaining court approval. The defendant must file the stipulation with the court [see CD Cal Civ LR 8-3]. The stipulation must have as its title "Stipulation to Extend Time to Respond to Initial Complain By Not More than 30 Days (L.R. 8-3)." Directly beneath the title, the parties must state when the complaint was served, when a response is currently due, and when it will be due following the filing of the stipulation [CD Cal Civ LR 8-3].

The parties must obtain court approval of stipulations to extend the time to respond for longer than 30 days. Similarly, court approval is required on stipulations extending the time to respond to answers or other responses to crossclaims or to any amended or supplemental complaints [see CD Cal Civ LR 8-3; Cook v. City of Pomona (CD Cal 1995) 884 F Supp 1457 , aff'd, 70 F3d 1277 (9th Cir 1995) (stipulations for second and subsequent extensions of time to respond to complaint are effective only when filed with and approved by court; citing predecessor rule, former CD Cal Civ LR 3-11)].

8.05[3][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--30-Day Extensions on Stipulation. In the Eastern District of California, unless the filing date has been set by order of the court, an initial stipulation may extend the time for no more than 30 days to respond to a complaint, crossclaim or counterclaim, without approval of the court. The stipulation must be signed on behalf of all parties who have appeared in the action and are affected by the stipulation [ED Cal Gen LR 144(a)]. All motions to the court for extensions of time must set forth the total period of extensions already obtained by the parties as to the particular matters for which the extension is sought [ED Cal Gen LR 144(b)]. The court may, in its discretion, grant an initial extension ex parte on the affidavit of counsel that a stipulation extending time cannot reasonably be obtained, explaining the reasons why the stipulation cannot be obtained and the reasons why the extension is necessary [ED Cal Gen LR 144(c)].

Counsel must seek to obtain a necessary extension from the court or from other counsel or parties in an action as soon as the need for an extension becomes apparent. Requests for court-approved extensions brought on the required filing date for the pleading or other document are looked on with disfavor [ED Cal Gen LR 144(d)].

Warning:

When seeking an extension of time to respond to the complaint, be careful to use language in the motion, request, or stipulation that encompasses both Rule 12 motions and answers as possible responses. Using language indicating only that the client seeks an extension of time to serve an answer may prevent you from filing a Rule 12 motion instead of an answer.

8.05[3][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements--Stipulation. In the Northern District of California, the parties may stipulate to extend the time within which to respond to the complaint if the extension will not alter any date for hearing set by the court. The stipulation is effective without a court order, though the defendant must file the stipulation with the court [see ND Cal Civ LR 6-1(a)].

8.05[3][e] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements--Court Must Approve Stipulation. In the Southern District of California, the parties must obtain court approval for any extension of time to answer or to move to dismiss the complaint. The court will base its decision on a showing of good cause for the extension [see SD Cal Civ LR 12.1].

Accordingly, though parties in the Southern District may stipulate to an extension of time to respond to a complaint, the court must approve the stipulation. Such stipulations must recite good grounds for the extension beyond the mere concurrence of opposing counsel [California Federal Civil Rules, SD Cal Civ LR 12.1 (LexisNexis 2009), Author Commentary].

8.05[4] Filing Answer After Ruling on Preanswer Motion. Unless the court issues an order fixing a different time to respond, the defendant's service of a Rule 12 motion on the plaintiff alters the time periods for serving a subsequent response as follows [see Fed R Civ P 12(a)(4)]:

- If the court denies the motion or postpones its disposition until the trial on the merits, the defendant must serve a responsive pleading within 14 days after notice of the court's action.

- If the court grants a motion for a more definite statement, the defendant must serve a responsive pleading within 14 days after the plaintiff serves the more definite statement.

8.06 CHECKLIST: Drafting Answer.

☐ Review general pleading and answer requirements.

○ Answer's function is to facilitate proper decision on merits.

○ Answer should contain all admissions, denials, and defenses necessary to controvert material allegations in complaint.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 8(b), (c), 12(b)

Discussion:
See §§ 8.04[1], 8.08 -8.10

Form:
See § 8.32

☐ Review requirements governing typical components of answer, including:

○ Admissions.

○ General denials.

○ Specific denials.

- Denials based on lack of knowledge or information.
- Affirmative defenses.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 8(b)

Discussion:
See § 8.09[1]

☐ Format answer as required by rules applicable to formatting of papers generally.

- Rules applicable to format and size of papers generally apply with equal force to answers.
- Answer caption may name only first party on each side.
- If there is more than one party, include appropriate indication of additional plaintiffs through use of "et al."
- If there are several defendants, clearly state name of each defendant for whom you file an answer.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 10, 11

Discussion:
See § 8.12

Form:
See § 8.32

☐ Admit or deny material averments in complaint.

- Answer must admit or deny each material allegations raised in complaint.
- Admit any material allegations raised in complaint that cannot be denied in good faith.
- Failure to deny material allegations may result in their admission.
- Denial must fairly meet substance of allegation denied.
  - ☐ Answer should contain specific denials of each material allegation in complaint.
  - ☐ General denial is proper only if defendant intends to controvert all allegations in complaint, including allegations regarding court's jurisdiction.

☐ Limited general denial denying all averments in plaintiff's complaint except for those averments expressly admitted is permissible.

☐ Blanket and limited general denials are subject to obligations to avoid filing frivolous pleadings.

○ Defendant may in good faith deny or qualify part of allegation in complaint by:

☐ Specifying portion of complaint that is true and material.

☐ Specifying portion of complaint denied or qualified.

○ If defendant is without knowledge or information sufficient to form belief as to truth of averment, defendant must so state.

☐ Denial must be based on lack of information or belief formed after reasonable inquiry.

☐ Denials based on lack of information or knowledge have effect of affirmative denial.

☐ Actual denial is unnecessary.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 8(b) and Fed R Civ P 11(b)

Discussion:
See § 8.09

Form:
See § 8.32

☐ Assert all affirmative defenses available to defendant.

○ Defendant has burden of pleading any available affirmative defenses in answer.

☐ List of affirmative defenses or avoidances to be alleged in answer is not exclusive.

☐ Failure to assert available affirmative defenses may result in their waiver.

☐ Defenses that cannot be waived by omission from answer include:

- ○ Failure to state claim on which relief can be granted.
- ○ Failure to join indispensable party.
- ○ Lack of subject matter jurisdiction.

○ Set forth defenses in short, plain terms sufficient to give plaintiff fair notice of defense.

☐ State as many separate defenses as you have, regardless of consistency, or grounds on which defense is based.

☐ It is permissible to set forth two or more statements of defense alternatively or hypothetically.

○ Some defensive matters may be raised initially in preanswer motion to dismiss rather than in answer, including:

☐ Lack of subject matter jurisdiction.

☐ Lack of personal jurisdiction.

☐ Improper venue.

☐ Insufficient process.

☐ Insufficient service of process.

☐ Failure to state claim on which relief can be granted.

☐ Failure to join indispensable party.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 8(a), (c), (e), 12(b)(1)-(7), (h)(2)

Discussion:
See § 8.10

Forms:
See §§ 8.32, 8.33 -8.40

☐ Assert claims for affirmative relief against plaintiff in counterclaim distinct from answer.

○ Defendant asserting counterclaim should file "Answer and Counterclaim."

○ A counterclaim mistakenly designated as a defense in an answer may be treated as properly designated by court when justice requires.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 8(c), 13

Discussion:
See § 8.11

☐ If desirable, include prayer for relief at conclusion of answer.

○ Prayer typically requests that:

☐ Plaintiff take nothing as result of complaint.

☐ Court enter judgment in defendant's favor.

○ If suit is of type in which defendant as prevailing party may recover costs, including attorney's fees, include request in prayer.

○ Courts generally do not award attorney's fees to prevailing defendants absent statutory or contractual fee-shifting provision.

Discussion:
See § 8.12[2]

Form:
See § 8.32

☐ Sign answer before service and filing.

○ If defendant is represented by attorney, at least one attorney of record must sign answer by individual name.

○ If defendant is not represented by attorney, defendant must sign answer.

○ Failure to properly sign answer will result in it being stricken by court unless lack of signature is promptly corrected after being called to attention of attorney or party.

○ Include signer's address and telephone number, if any.

Authority:

Fed R Civ P 11(a), (b)

Discussion:
See § 8.12[3]

Form:
See § 8.32

☐ Include certificate of service in answer.

○ Answer must contain certificate of service to be filed with court within reasonable time after service on opposing parties.

○ Certificate of service should include:

☐ Date, place, and manner of service.

☐ Names and addresses of persons on whom service is made.

☐ Certification by person making service.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 5(d)

Discussion:
See § 8.12[4]

Form:
See § 8.32

☐ Answer need not be verified or accompanied by affidavits.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 11(a)

Discussion:
See § 8.12[5]

8.07 Options and Strategy.

8.07[1] Defendant Must Respond to Complaint to Avoid Default Judgment. After the plaintiff files the complaint and serves it on the defendant, the defendant generally has 21 days to respond to the complaint by filing an answer or a Rule 12 motion [Fed R Civ P 12(a)(1); see Federal Mar. Comm'n v. South Carolina State Ports Auth. (2002) 535 US 743, 122 S Ct 1864, 152 L Ed2d 962 (decided under prior law)]. If the defendant fails to file a timely response to the complaint, the court may enter default judgment on behalf of the plaintiff [see Fed R Civ P 55; Federal Mar. Comm'n v. South Carolina State Ports Auth. (2002) 535 US 743, 122 S Ct 1864, 152 L Ed2d 962]. To avoid a default judgment, the defendant must either file an answer or a Rule 12 motion within the time prescribed by the rules [see Fed R Civ P 12(a)(1)].

8.07[2] Answer and Complaint Frame Issues in Action. Together, the complaint and answer serve to notify the parties of the allegations at issue and to confine the issues to be adjudicated [United States Indus./Fed. Sheet Metal, Inc. v. Director, Office of Workers' Comp. Programs (1982) 455 US 608, 613, 102 S Ct 1312, 71 L Ed2d 495 ; Jones Stevedoring Co. v. Director, Office of Workers' Comp. Programs (9th Cir 1997) 133 F3d 683, 691]. An answer may contain admissions or denials of the allegations in the plaintiff's complaint and any available defenses to the plaintiff's suit [see Fed R Civ P 8(b), (c), 12(a), (b)].

Strategic Point--Defendant:

By filing an answer, the defendant can preclude the plaintiff from amending the complaint or dismissing the action voluntarily, and can preserve all Rule 12 objections by asserting them as affirmative defenses. Because challenges to personal jurisdiction, venue, and insufficiency of process or service of process are preserved if asserted as affirmative defenses in the answer, and assuming no other motion is made under Rule 12, no substantive prejudice results from filing an answer rather than raising one or more of these issues by an initial motion. Of course, if a Rule 12 motion is made on any ground, all objections to personal jurisdiction, venue, or service of process are waived unless raised in the same motion. As a practical matter, a defendant may want to defer filing a motion to dismiss on grounds of personal jurisdiction, venue, or service of process to allow sufficient time to collect the evidence necessary to support the motion. If an extension of time cannot be obtained, either by stipulation or court order, it is better to preserve the defenses by answer and make an appropriate motion as soon as the evidence necessary can be collected and presented to the court. Note, however, that it may not be sufficient simply to raise these defenses in the answer. A defendant who wishes to preserve a defense of lack of personal jurisdiction, improper venue, insufficiency of process, or insufficiency of service of process should take care to reassert the issue as soon as possible during the litigation to avoid forfeiture. An answer may also be preferable to a Rule 12 motion if a motion will consume expense and time without offsetting gain or will reveal strategies that should be kept confidential until certain discovery is completed.

8.09 Admit or Deny Material Allegations in Complaint.

8.09[1] Answer in Short and Plain Terms. In drafting an answer to the complaint, the defendant must state in short and plain terms the defenses to each claim asserted [Fed R Civ P 8(b)]. The answer must admit or deny each of the material allegations raised in the complaint [Fed R Civ P 8(b), (d); see Tokio Marine & Fire Ins. Co. v. Kaisha (CD Cal 1997) 25 F Supp2d 1071, 1078]. A typical answer may contain [see Fed R Civ P 8(b)]:

- Admissions;
- General denials;
- Specific denials;
- Denials based on lack of knowledge or information; and
- Affirmative defenses.

Cross Reference:

Form, see § 8.32.

8.09[2] Admit Any Material Allegations in Complaint. The defendant must admit in the answer any material allegations raised in the complaint that cannot be denied in good faith [see Fed R Civ P 8(b)].

Cross Reference:

Form of admission, see § 8.32.

8.09[3] Denials Must Meet Substance of Allegations in Complaint. In denying an allegation in the plaintiff's complaint, the defendant's denials must fairly meet the substance of the allegation denied [Fed R Civ P 8(b)].

8.09[4] General Denials Are Permissible. A defendant who intends to controvert all allegations in the complaint, including allegations regarding the court's jurisdiction, may do so in a general denial [see Fed R Civ P 8(b)(3)]. It is rare that a defendant could generally deny the complaint as a whole. As an alternative to a blanket general denial, a defendant may include in an answer a limited general denial denying all the allegations in the plaintiff's complaint as a whole, except for those averments or paragraphs that the defendant expressly admits [see Fed R Civ P 8(b)(3)]. Nevertheless, general denials, whether blanket or limited, are subject to the obligations to avoid filing frivolous pleadings [see Fed R Civ P 8(b), 11].

Cross Reference:

Sanctions for violating Fed R Civ P 11, see Ch. 33, Rule 11 Sanctions.

8.09[5] Specific Denials Are Preferable to General Denials. Unless the defendant intends in good faith to controvert all the allegations in the complaint, the answer should contain specific denials of each material allegation in the plaintiff's complaint. A specific denial responds to particular allegations in the complaint, or to portions of the allegations, rather than to the complaint as a whole [see Fed R Civ P 8(b)(3)].

Cross Reference:

Form of specific denial, see § 8.32.

8.09[6] Defendant May Deny or Clarify Part of Allegation in Complaint. A defendant may in good faith deny or qualify part of an allegation in a complaint. To do so, the defendant must specify in the answer the portion of the complaint that is true and material, and must deny the remainder [see Fed R Civ P 8(b)(4)].

8.09[7] Denial May Be Based on Lack of Information or Knowledge. When a defendant is without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of an allegation, the defendant must so state in the answer. Denials based on lack of information or knowledge have the effect of an affirmative denial [Fed R Civ P 8(b)(5)]. In these cases, an actual denial is unnecessary. Defendant's assertion that he or she lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the allegation in the complaint has the effect of a denial [see Fed R Civ P 8(b)(5)].

However, to avoid sanctions, the denial must be based on a lack of information or belief formed after reasonable inquiry [see Fed R Civ P 11(b)(4)]. An answer asserting lack of knowledge sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of facts alleged in a complaint will not serve as a denial if the assertion of ignorance is an obvious sham. In these circumstances, the court treats the facts alleged in the complaint as admitted [Harvey Aluminum, Inc. v. NLRB (9th Cir 1964) 335 F2d 749, 758].

Cross References:

Form of denial based on lack of information or belief, see 8.32. Sanctions for violating Fed R Civ P 11, see Ch. 33, Rule 11 Sanctions.

8.09[8] Failing to Deny Allegations May Result in Admission. Any material allegations in the complaint are deemed admitted if not effectively denied in the answer [Fed R Civ P 8(d)(6)]. Allegations in a pleading to which no responsive pleading is required or permitted are taken as denied or as avoided [Fed R Civ P 8(d)(6)].

Exception:

Allegations as to the amount of damages are not deemed admitted even when a defendant does not deny them in an answer [Fed R Civ P 8(d)(6); Taylor v. United States (9th Cir 1987) 821 F2d 1428, 1433 , cert. denied, 485 US 992 (1988)].

CHAPTER 8 Answers and Responsive Motions Under Rule 12
III. PREPARING AN ANSWER

1-8 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 8.10

8.10 Assert All Available Affirmative Defenses.

8.10[1] Failure to Plead Affirmative Defenses May Result in Waiver.

8.10[1][a] General Rule. A defendant's failure to assert properly all available affirmative defenses in the first responsive pleading, whether in an answer or in a preanswer motion to dismiss, may result in waiver of the defense [Kontrick v. Ryan (2004) 540 US 443, 457-460, 124 S Ct 906, 157 L Ed2d 867 (failure to raise defense of time-barred bankruptcy complaint in answer and response to summary judgment motion); see Taylor v. United States (9th Cir 1987) 821 F2d 1428, 1432-1433 , cert. denied, 485 US 992 (1988)]. In particular, the defenses of lack of jurisdiction over the person, improper venue, insufficiency of process, and insufficiency of service of process may be waived if the defendant [see Fed R Civ P 12(h)(1)]:

- Omits these defenses from a preanswer motion to dismiss; or
- Fails to include these defenses in another responsive pleading or amended pleading permitted as a matter of course under Fed R Civ P 15(a).

Distinguish:

The defense of lack of subject matter jurisdiction "is preserved post-trial" [Kontrick v. Ryan (2004) 540 US 443, 459-460, 124 S Ct 906, 157 L Ed2d 867].

Warning:

Rule 12(h)(1) specifies the minimum steps a party must take to preserve a defense. However, failure to satisfy those minimum steps does not constitute the only circumstance under which a party may be deemed to have waived a defense. Most defenses also may be waived as a result of the course of conduct pursued by a party during litigation [Peterson v. Highland Music, Inc. (9th Cir 1998) 140 F3d 1313, 1318 , cert. denied, 525 US 983 (1998)].

Example:

When a defendant raises lack of personal jurisdiction in a motion to dismiss, engages in "sandbagging" by deliberately refraining from pursuing the issue after the court denies the motion in the hopes of receiving a favorable disposition on the merits, and then raises the issue again on appeal if he or she is unhappy with the district court's ultimate decision, the appellate court may find the defendant has waived any right to pursue the defense [see Peterson v. Highland Music, Inc. (9th Cir 1998) 140 F3d 1313, 1318 , cert. denied, 525 US 983 (1998) (dicta)].

Exceptions:

The defenses of failure to state a claim on which relief can be granted and failure to join a required party under Fed R Civ P 19 may be made in any pleading permitted or ordered under Fed R Civ P 7(a), in a motion for judgment on the pleadings, or at a trial on the merits [see Fed R Civ P 12(h)(2)]. Similarly, the court must dismiss an action whenever it appears, by suggestion of the parties or otherwise, that the court lacks subject matter jurisdiction [see Fed R Civ P 12(h)(3)].

8.10[1][b] Ninth Circuit Allows Later Assertion of Defense If Plaintiff Is Not Prejudiced. The Ninth Circuit has liberalized the requirement that defendants must raise affirmative defenses in their initial pleadings. Thus, a defendant may raise an affirmative defense for the first time in a motion for judgment on the pleadings or in a motion for summary judgment, but only if the delay in asserting the defense does not prejudice the plaintiff [Owens v. Kaiser Found. Health Plan, Inc. (9th Cir 2001) 244 F3d 708, 713 (motion for judgment on pleadings); Magana v. Commonwealth of the N. Mariana Islands (9th Cir 1997) 107 F3d 1436, 1446 (motion for summary judgment)].

Example:

Counsel may raise the statute of limitations as an affirmative defense at any time up to and including trial, providing the other party is not prejudiced by the delay in raising the defense [see, e.g., Magana v. Commonwealth of the N. Mariana Islands (9th Cir 1997) 107 F3d 1436, 1446].

Cross References:

Motions for judgment on the pleadings, see §§ 8.27 -8.29. Motions for summary judgment, see Ch. 29, Summary Judgment.

Waiver of affirmative defenses, see 2 Moore's Federal Practice, § 8.07 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

8.10[2] Defendant Has Burden of Raising Affirmative Defenses. In responding to a complaint, the defendant bears the burden of pleading any available affirmative defenses in the answer [see Fed R Civ P 8(c)]. Affirmative defenses plead matters extraneous to the plaintiff's prima facie case that deny the plaintiff's right to recover even if the allegations of the complaint are true [In re National Lumber & Supply, Inc. (9th Cir 1995) 184 BR 74, 77]. Affirmative defenses or avoidances that must be alleged in the answer include [see Fed R Civ P 8(c)]:

- Accord and satisfaction;
- Arbitration and award;
- Assumption of risk;
- Contributory negligence;
- Discharge in bankruptcy;
- Duress;

- Estoppel;
- Failure of consideration;
- Fraud;
- Illegality;
- Injury by a fellow servant;
- Laches;
- License;
- Payment;
- Release;
- Res judicata;
- Statute of frauds;
- Statute of limitations; and
- Waiver.

In diversity of citizenship actions, state law defines the nature of the defenses. However, the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure provide for the manner and time in which defenses must be raised and when waiver of those defenses occurs [see Taylor v. United States (9th Cir 1987) 821 F2d 1428, 1432-1433 , cert. denied, 485 US 992 (1988) (though state substantive law governs in diversity actions under Federal Tort Claims Act, Federal Rules of Civil Procedure determine manner and time in which defenses may be raised and when waiver occurs)].

Cross Reference:

Law governing affirmative defenses generally, see 2 Moore's Federal Practice, § 8.07 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

8.10[3] Plead Short, Plain Statement of Affirmative Defense. As with claims pleaded in answers, the defendant must provide a short and plain statement of the affirmative defense pleaded [see Fed R Civ P 8(a)]. The key to determining the sufficiency of pleading an affirmative defense is whether it gives plaintiff fair notice of the defense [Wyshak v. City Nat'l Bank (9th Cir 1979) 607 F2d 824, 827].

If a party mistakenly designates a defense as a counterclaim, or a counterclaim as a defense, the court must treat the pleading as if it was properly designated when justice so requires [see Fed R Civ P 8(c)(2)].

Cross Reference:

Counterclaims, see Ch. 11, Counterclaims, Crossclaims, and Replies.

8.10[4] Some Defenses Must Be Pleaded With Particularity. Certain affirmative defenses must be pleaded with more particularity than other defenses [see Fed R Civ P 9]. For example, when a defendant desires to raise an issue regarding the legal capacity of a party to sue, the defendant must include specific negative allegations, and must include any supporting particulars within the defendant's knowledge [see Fed R Civ P 9(a)(1)(A) and (2)].

Similarly, when the defendant asserts fraud or mistake as a defense to a plaintiff's complaint, the defendant must state with particularity the circumstances of the fraud or mistake [see Fed R Civ P 9(b)]. In this context, "particularity" means the allegations must be specific enough to give the plaintiff notice of the particular misconduct alleged to constitute the defense asserted, so that the plaintiff can defend against the charge and not just deny that it has done anything wrong [see Semegen v. Weidner (9th Cir 1985) 780 F2d 727, 731 ; Wenger v. Lumisys, Inc. (ND Cal 1998) Inc., 2 F Supp2d 1231, 1239 (both applying particularity requirement to complaints)].

8.10[5] Raising Multiple or Alternative Defenses Is Permissible. The defendant does not waive a defense or objection by joining it with one or more other defenses or objections in a responsive pleading or motion [Fed R Civ P 12(b)]. In addition, the defendant may set forth two or more statements of a defense alternatively or hypothetically, either in one defense or in separate defenses, and may also state as many separate defenses as are available, regardless of consistency or whether the defense is based on legal, equitable, or maritime grounds [Fed R Civ P 8(d)(2)(3)].

Accordingly, when a defendant makes two or more statements in the alternative, and one of the statements if made independently would be sufficient, the answer does not become insufficient because of the insufficiency of one or more of the alternative statements [see Fed R Civ P 8(d)(2)]. In light of the liberal pleading policy embodied in the Federal Rules, answers cannot be construed as an admission against another alternative or inconsistent pleading in the same case [see McCalden v. California Library Ass'n (9th Cir 1990) 955 F2d 1214, 1219 (construing complaint); Coleman v. Standard Life Ins. Co. (ED Cal 2003) 288 F Supp2d 1116, 1119 (construing complaint)]. Nevertheless, all statements in an answer are subject to Rule 11 obligations.

Cross Reference:

Rule 11 sanctions, see Ch. 33, Rule 11 Sanctions.

8.10[6] Some Defenses May Be Raised by Preanswer Motion to Dismiss. Though a defendant should assert every legal or factual defense to a claim for relief in the answer, the following matters may, at the defendant's option, be raised initially in a preanswer motion to dismiss rather than in an answer [see Fed R Civ P 12(b)(1)-(7)]:

- Lack of jurisdiction over the subject matter;
- Lack of jurisdiction over the person;
- Improper venue;
- Insufficient process;
- Insufficient service of process;
- Failure to state a claim on which relief can be granted; and
- Failure to join an indispensable party under Rule 19.

Cross Reference:

Rule 12 motions to dismiss, see §§ 8.14 -8.22.

8.10[7] Defendant May Seek Leave to Amend Answer to Include Omitted Affirmative Defenses. Affirmative defenses that have been omitted from the answer, other than defenses listed in Fed R Civ P 12--lack of jurisdiction over the person, improper venue, insufficiency of process, and insufficient service of process--may be added by amending the answer [Magnesystems, Inc. v. Nikken, Inc. (CD Cal 1996) 933 F Supp 944, 948 ; see Fed R Civ P 12(h)(1)(B), 15(a)].

Strategic Point--Defendant:

The best practice is to raise all potential affirmative defenses in your original answer. If you later discover that you have omitted an available defense, promptly seek to amend the answer pursuant to Fed R Civ P 15.

8.11 Answer Alone May Not Be Used to Obtain Affirmative Relief.

Counsel should make requests for affirmative relief against a plaintiff by including them in a counterclaim rather than as an affirmative defense in the answer. Typically, a defendant asserting a counterclaim will file an "answer and counterclaim" [see, e.g., General Signal Corp. v. MCI Telecomms. Corp. (9th Cir 1995) 66 F3d 1500, 1511 , cert. denied, 516 US 1146 (1996)].

When a defendant mistakenly designates a counterclaim as a defense in an answer, the court, when justice requires, must treat the pleading as if it were properly designated [see Fed R Civ P 8(c)(2), 13; Reiter v. Cooper (1993) 507 US 258, 263, 113 S Ct 1213, 122 L Ed2d 604]. Redesignation is not automatic; whether to permit redesignation of a defense or counterclaim is within the district court's discretion [389 Orange St. Partners v. Arnold (9th Cir 1999) 179 F3d 656, 664 (district court does not abuse its discretion in refusing to redesignate crossclaim as affirmative defense when request is initially asserted in motion to reconsider court's determination of summary judgment motion)].

8.12 Format Answer As Required by Rules.

8.12[1] Format Rules Applicable to Complaints Apply to Answers. The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure applicable to form and signing of papers generally apply with equal force to answers [see Fed R Civ P 10, 11]. Thus, in general, the rules governing the size of paper to be used, the size of the type, and pagination are identical to that governing complaints [see Fed R Civ P 10].

Defenses must be set forth in separate numbered paragraphs [Fed R Civ P 10].

Distinguish:

Though the first page of the answer should be formatted as in the complaint, the answer's caption may name only the first party on each side. If there is more than one party, the defendant may include an appropriate indication that there are additional plaintiffs, as through the use of "et al." [see Fed R Civ P 10(a)]. However, if there are several defendants, counsel should clearly state the name of each defendant for whom an answer is being filed.

Cross References:

Form of sample answer, see § 8.32. Formatting of pleadings generally, see Ch. 5, Formatting, Serving, and Filing Papers.

8.12[2] Answer May Contain Prayer for Relief. Though not a requirement, it is customary for a defendant to include a prayer for relief at the end of an answer. The prayer typically request that the plaintiff take nothing as a result of the complaint, and that the court enter judgment in the defendant's favor.

However, if the suit is of a type in which a defendant, as a prevailing party, may recover costs, counsel should include a request for them in the prayer. Similarly, when attorney's fees are recoverable by a prevailing defendant, a request for them should be included in the prayer. Courts generally do not award attorney's fees to prevailing defendants in the absence of a statutory or contractual fee-shifting provision [California Dep't of Toxic Substances Control v. Alco Pac., Inc. (CD Cal 2002) 217 F Supp2d 1028, 1045].

Cross Reference:

Form of prayer in answer, see § 8.32.

8.12[3] Answer Must Be Signed by Defense Attorney or Pro Se Defendant. When the defendant is represented by an attorney, the answer must be signed by at least one attorney of record in the attorney's individual name. If the defendant is not represented by an attorney, the defendant must sign the answer. In addition, the answer must include the signer's address, e-mail address, and telephone number [see Fed R Civ P 11(a)]. Failure to properly sign the answer will result in it being stricken by the court unless the omission is promptly corrected after being called to the attention of the attorney or party [Fed R Civ P 11(a)].

By properly signing the answer and presenting it to the court, the defendant's attorney certifies, to the best of the signer's knowledge, information, and belief, formed after reasonable inquiry, that [see Fed R Civ P 11(b)]:

- The answer is not presented for an improper purpose;
- The claims, defenses, and other legal contentions in the answer are warranted by existing law, by a nonfrivolous argument for extending, modifying, or reversing existing law, or the establishment of new law;
- Any allegations and other factual contentions have evidentiary support or, if so identified, are likely to have evidentiary support after a reasonable opportunity for further investigation or discovery; and
- Any denials of factual contentions are warranted on the evidence or, if specifically so identified, are reasonably based on a lack of information or belief.

The court may impose sanctions if it determines that an answer has been filed in violation of these requirements [see Fed R Civ P 11(c)].

Cross Reference:

Sanctions for violating Fed R Civ P 11, see Ch. 33, Rule 11 Sanctions.

8.12[4] Certificate of Service Is Required. Since the answer must be served on the other parties in the action [see Fed R Civ P 5(a)], counsel must include with the answer a certificate of service to be filed with the court within a reasonable time after service [see Fed R Civ P 5(d)]. In general, the certificate of service should indicate the date, place, and manner of service; the names and addresses of the persons on whom service is made; and should be certified by the person making service [see, e.g., ND Cal Civ LR 5-6(a)(2); SD Cal Civ LR 5.2].

Cross References:

Form of certificate of service included in answer, see § 8.32. Requirements for serving papers generally, see Ch. 5, Formatting, Serving, and Filing Papers.

8.12[5] Verification of Answer Is Not Required. Unless an applicable rule or statute specifically provides otherwise, the answer need not be verified [see Fed R Civ P 11(a)]. This is so even in those cases in which the complaint must be verified [see, e.g., Fed R Civ P 23.1 (complaint in shareholder derivative suit must be verified)]. Nor need the answer be accompanied by an affidavit [see Fed R Civ P 11(a)].

Strategic Point--Defendant:

One situation in which defendant's counsel may wish to verify the answer is when counsel wants the client to verify under oath to preserve the sworn statement of the witness. This may be useful, for example, when the client is a corporation and counsel is concerned that the verifying witness will soon be leaving the client's employ.

8.13 Timely Serve Answer on Other Parties and File With Court.

8.13[1] Timely Serve Answer on Opposing Party or Counsel. In general, an answer must be served within 21 days after the defendant is served with the summons and complaint [see Fed R Civ P 12(a)(1)(A)(i)]. However, there are numerous exceptions to this rule. For example, if counsel has timely waived service of the summons on the plaintiff's request pursuant to Fed R Civ P 4(d), the answer must be served within 60 days of the date on which the plaintiff sent the request for waiver. The 60-day period is extended to 90 days if the defendant is addressed outside a United States judicial district [see Fed R Civ P 12(a)(1)(A)(ii)].

Service of the answer on a plaintiff represented by an attorney must be made on the attorney unless the court orders otherwise. Service may be accomplished by mailing a copy of the answer to the last known address of the person served [see Fed R Civ P 5(b)(2)(C)]. Counsel may also deliver a copy of the answer by electronic methods, as long as the plaintiff or the attorney to be served has consented to those methods in writing [see Fed R Civ P 5(b)(2)(E)]. In addition, service may be effected by hand delivering a copy of the answer to the person, by leaving it at the person's office, or by leaving it the person's dwelling or usual abode [see Fed R Civ P 5(b)(2)(A), (B)]. If the person to be served has no known address, a copy of the answer may be left with the court clerk [see Fed R Civ P 5(b)(2)(D)].

Cross References:

Deadlines for serving answer or other responsive pleading, see §§ 8.04, 8.05. Serving papers generally, see Ch. 5, Formatting, Serving, and Filing Papers.

8.13[2] File Answer With Court. In general, counsel must file the answer with the court by submitting it to the court clerk of the court where the action is docketed. The federal rules also permit district courts to establish local rules allowing or requiring answers to be filed by electronic means [see Fed R Civ P 5(d)(3)]. A paper filed by electronic means in compliance with a local rule constitutes a written paper for the purpose of applying these rules [see Fed R Civ P 5(d)(3); see, e.g., ND Cal Civ LR 5-2; SD Cal Civ LR 5.3 (both concerning facsimile filing); SD Cal Civ LR 5.4 (concerning electronic filing)].

The clerk cannot refuse to accept an answer for filing solely because it is not presented in proper form as required by the federal rules or by local rules or practices [see Fed R Civ P 5(d)(4)].

CHAPTER 8 Answers and Responsive Motions Under Rule 12
IV. PREPARING MOTION TO DISMISS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 8.14

8.14 CHECKLISTS: Rule 12(b) Motions to Dismiss.

8.14[1] CHECKLIST: Drafting Rule 12(b) Motion to Dismiss.

☐ In Central District, comply with "meet and confer" requirements before bringing motion.

○ Contact opposing counsel to discuss thoroughly, preferably in person, substance of contemplated motion and any potential resolution.

○ "Meet and confer" must take place at least five days before last day for filing motion.

○ If parties are unable to reach resolution that eliminates the reason for a hearing, include in notice of motion, statement that "This motion is made following the conference of counsel pursuant to L.R. 7-3 which took place on [date]."

Authority:
CD Cal Civ LR 7-3

Discussion:
Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.15[1]

☐ If applicable, assert the following defenses in motion to dismiss before filing an answer:

○ Lack of subject matter jurisdiction.

○ Lack of personal jurisdiction.

- Improper venue.
- Insufficiency of process.
- Insufficient service of process.
- Failure to state a claim on which relief can be granted.
- Failure to join an indispensable party.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 12(b)

Discussion:
See § 8.16[1]

☐ Comply with general rules governing motion practice.

- General rules governing motions apply with equal force to motions to dismiss under Rule 12.
- Rules applicable to captions and formatting with regard to pleadings apply to motions and motion-related papers.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 7(b), 10, 11

Standard Procedure Checklist:
Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice

☐ Follow general requirements for form and contents of motion.

- Motion should be in writing, stating:
  - ☐ Grounds for motion with particularity.
  - ☐ Relief or order sought.
- Rules applicable to captions and formatting with regard to pleadings apply to motions and motion-related papers.
  - ☐ Rules applicable to format and size of papers generally apply with equal force to motions to dismiss.

☐ Motion caption may name only first party on each side.

☐ If there is more than one party, include appropriate indication of additional plaintiffs through use of "et al."

☐ If there are several defendants, clearly state name of each defendant for whom you file a motion.

○ Motion may be part of written notice of hearing of motion.

○ Motion must be signed.

☐ If defendant is represented by attorney, at least one attorney of record must sign motion by individual name.

☐ If defendant is not represented by attorney, defendant must sign motion.

☐ Include signer's address, e-mail address, and telephone number, if any.

☐ Failure to properly sign motion will result in it being stricken by court unless promptly corrected after being called to attention of attorney or party.

○ Movant subject to sanction for:

☐ Filing frivolous motion to dismiss.

☐ Filing motion to dismiss for an improper purpose.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 7(b)(1), 10, 11

Standard Procedure Checklist:
Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.12

Form:
See § 8.33

☐ Join all other available Rule 12 defenses or objections with Rule 12(b) defenses to avoid waiver.

○ Omitting available defenses or objections from initial motion to dismiss results in waiver unless nonwaivable.

- ○ In lieu of motion to dismiss, available defenses or objections may be asserted in initial answer.

☐ Failing to assert the following defenses in an initial Rule 12(b) motion or answer results in waiver:

- ○ Lack of jurisdiction over the person.
- ○ Improper venue.
- ○ Insufficiency of process.
- ○ Insufficiency of service of process.

☐ You may assert the following defenses in a motion to dismiss, in an answer under Fed R Civ P 7(a), in a motion for judgment on pleadings, or at trial on merits without risking waiver:

- ○ Failure to state a claim on which relief can be granted.
- ○ Failure to join an indispensable party.

☐ You may assert lack of subject matter jurisdiction at any time without risking waiver.

☐ You may assert affirmative defenses under Fed R Civ P 8(c) without risking waiver under Rule 12.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 8(c), 12(b), (g), (h)

Discussion:
See §§ 8.16[1], [3]

☐ If desirable, include prayer for relief at conclusion of motion.

- ○ Prayer typically requests that:
  - ☐ Plaintiff take nothing as result of complaint.
  - ☐ Court enter judgment in defendant's favor.
- ○ If suit is of type in which defendant as prevailing party may recover costs, include request in prayer.

Discussion:
See § 8.12[2]

Form:
See § 8.33

☐ Include certificate of service in motion.

○ Motion to dismiss must contain certificate of service to be filed with court within reasonable time after service on opposing parties.

○ Certificate of service should include:

☐ Date, place, and manner of service.

☐ Names and addresses of persons on whom service is made.

☐ Certification by person making service.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 5(d)

Discussion:
See § 8.12[4]

Form:
See § 8.33

☐ File and serve supporting materials as required by applicable local rules, including:

○ Brief or memorandum of points and authorities.

○ Statement of facts.

○ Any evidence on which motion is based.

○ Affidavits in support of factual allegations in motion.

○ Proposed order.

Authority:
SD Cal Civ LR 7.1(f.1); CD Cal Civ LR 7-5; ND Cal Civ LR 7-2-7-5; ED Cal Civ LR 230

Discussion:
See § 8.16[4]

Forms:

See §§ 8.33 -8.40

☐ Serve and file motion and supporting papers as required by rules.

○ Motion and supporting papers must be served on other parties in same manner as other motions.

○ Motion and supporting papers must be filed with court in same manner as other motions.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 5(a), (d)

Discussion:
See § 8.16[4]

Standard Procedure Checklist:
Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.12

☐ Timely file Rule 12(b) motion to dismiss.

○ Motion may be filed any time before defendant files a responsive pleading, if required.

○ Motion is timely if filed within time limits applicable to responsive pleadings generally.

○ Extensions of time to file response to complaint should apply to filing of motion to dismiss.

☐ In seeking extension of time to respond to complaint, use broad language to include possibility of responding with motion to dismiss.

☐ Service of motion to dismiss extends time to serve and file answer or other responsive pleading until 10 days after notice of court's ruling on motion.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 12(a), (b)

Discussion:
See § 8.16[2]

8.14[2] CHECKLIST: Responding to Rule 12(b) Motions to Dismiss.

☐ In Central District, comply with "meet and confer" requirements before bringing motion.

○ Contact opposing counsel to discuss thoroughly, preferably in person, substance of contemplated motion and any potential resolution.

○ "Meet and confer" must take place at least five days before last day for filing motion.

○ If parties are unable to reach resolution that eliminates reason for hearing, include in notice of motion, statement that "This motion is made following the conference of counsel pursuant to L.R. 7-3 which took place on [date]."

Authority:
CD Cal Civ LR 7-3

Discussion:
Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.15[1]

☐ Plaintiff's options in responding to motion to dismiss include:

○ Not responding.

○ Filing opposition papers.

○ Filing statement of nonopposition.

○ Filing amended complaint.

○ Seeking voluntary dismissal of action.

☐ Plaintiff may choose not to respond to motion to dismiss.

○ Local rules may require plaintiff to file opposition papers or statement of nonopposition.

○ When so required, plaintiff's failure to respond may be deemed as consent to dismissal.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 15(a), 41(a); ND Cal Civ LR 7-3(a), (b); CD Cal Civ LR 7-9, 7-12; SD Cal Civ LR 7.1(f.3.a), (f.3.c); ED Cal Civ LR 230(c)

Discussion:
See § 8.16[6][c]

☐ File opposition papers if:

○ Plaintiff opposes motion to dismiss in any regard.

○ Plaintiff plans to file an amended answer, unless amendment as matter of right is available under Fed R Civ P 15(a).

☐ Opposition papers must be in writing.

☐ Contents vary depending on applicable local rules, but may include:

- ○ Brief statement of reasons why court should deny motion to dismiss.
- ○ Answering memorandum of points and authorities.
- ○ Copies of any documentary evidence on which plaintiff relies.

☐ Time for filing opposition papers differs depending on local rules in district in which case is filed.

Authority:
SD Cal Civ LR 7.1(e.2), (f.3.b); ND Cal Civ LR 7-3(a); CD Cal Civ LR 7-9; ED Cal Civ LR 230

Discussion:
See § 8.16[6][b]

Form:
See § 8.40

☐ File statement of nonopposition only if plaintiff:

- ○ Chooses not to oppose motion to dismiss in any regard.
- ○ Concedes that defendant's motion to dismiss, including relief sought in motion, should be granted.

☐ Statement must be filed within time required for serving opposition papers.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 15(a); SD Cal Civ LR 7.1(e.2), (f.3.a); CD Cal Civ LR 7-9; ND Cal Civ LR 7-3(b); ED Cal Civ LR 230(c)

Discussion:
See § 8.16[6][c]

☐ File amended complaint in lieu of opposing motion to dismiss original complaint when:

- ○ Defendant's motion to dismiss is well-founded.
- ○ Complaint can be amended to avoid issues raised in motion.

☐ Plaintiff may amend complaint once without leave of court any time before responsive pleading is filed.

○ Rule 12(b) motion to dismiss is not responsive pleading for purposes of this rule.

○ After responsive pleading is filed, plaintiff must seek leave of court before filing amended complaint.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 12(b), 15(a)

Discussion:
See § 8.16[6][d]

☐ Seek voluntary dismissal of complaint by filing:

○ Notice of dismissal; or

○ Stipulation of dismissal signed by all parties who have appeared in action.

☐ Dismissal must be filed any time before defendant's service of answer or motion for summary judgment, whichever occurs first.

☐ Voluntary dismissals:

○ Do not require leave of court if filed before defendant serves answer or motion for summary judgment.

○ Are generally without prejudice to plaintiff's ability to refile complaint.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 41(a)(1)

Discussion:
See § 8.16[6][e]

8.14[3] CHECKLIST: Preparing Motion to Dismiss for Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction.

☐ In Central District, comply with "meet and confer" requirements before bringing motion:

○ Contact opposing counsel to discuss thoroughly, preferably in person, substance of contemplated motion and any potential resolution.

○ "Meet and confer" must take place at least five days before last day for filing motion.

○ If parties are unable to reach resolution that eliminates reason for hearing, include in notice of motion, statement that "This motion is made following the conference of counsel pursuant to L.R. 7-3 which took place on [date]."

Authority:
CD Cal Civ LR 7-3

Discussion:
Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.15[1]

☐ Challenge plaintiff's action for lack of subject matter jurisdiction by filing motion to dismiss asserting:

○ Lack of federal question arising under federal constitution, law, or treaty.

☐ Court must examine literal language of complaint and whether jurisdiction would exist under properly-pleaded complaint.

☐ Dismissal for lack of federal question is proper only if federal claim appears immaterial, is made solely for purpose of obtaining federal jurisdiction, or is wholly insubstantial and frivolous.

○ Lack of complete diversity of citizenship between parties.

☐ Federal court has subject matter jurisdiction over action only when no defendant has same citizenship as any plaintiff.

☐ Plaintiff bears burden of establishing complete diversity.

☐ Plaintiff may seek court order to dismiss dispensable party to achieve complete diversity.

○ In diversity case, amount in controversy fails to exceed $75,000, exclusive of interest and costs.

☐ Sum of damages averred on face of complaint generally determines amount in controversy if claim is made in good faith.

☐ To justify dismissal it must appear a legal certainty that claim is really for less than jurisdictional amount.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 8(a), 12(b)(1); 28 USC §§ 1331, 1332

Discussion:
See § 8.17

Form:

See § 8.33

☐ Challenge subject matter jurisdiction based on face of pleading.

○ Contend allegations in complaint are insufficient on their face to demonstrate existence of jurisdiction.

○ Court's inquiry is limited to allegations in complaint.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 8(a), 12(b)(1)

Discussion:
See § 8.17[2]

Form:
See § 8.33

☐ Challenge subject matter jurisdiction based on extrinsic evidence apart from pleadings.

○ Present affidavits or other evidence properly before court.

○ Plaintiff must then furnish affidavits or other evidence necessary to satisfy its burden of establishing subject matter jurisdiction.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 8(a), 12(b)(1)

Discussion:
See § 8.17[3]

Form:
See § 8.33

☐ Challenge subject matter jurisdiction at any time in proceedings.

○ Lack of subject matter jurisdiction cannot be waived as defense.

○ Court may raise lack of subject matter jurisdiction on its own motion.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 12(b)(1), (h)(3)

Discussion:
See § 8.17[1][b]

☐ Seek discovery in factual attacks on jurisdiction when:

- ○ Pertinent facts bearing on question of jurisdiction are controverted.
- ○ A more satisfactory showing of facts is necessary.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 12(b)(1)

Discussion:
See § 8.17[3][d]

☐ Request evidentiary hearing when motion raises disputed factual issues.

- ○ Request hearing to resolve factual disputes on jurisdictional issues.
- ○ In factual attack, court may look beyond complaint to extrinsic evidence without converting motion into one for summary judgment.

Discussion:
See § 8.17[4][c]

☐ District court determination of motion.

- ○ Court generally considers Rule 12(b)(1) motions before other Rule 12 motions.
- ○ Court may give priority to determining challenge to personal jurisdiction before deciding challenge to subject matter jurisdiction when:
  - ☐ Personal jurisdictional issue does not present complex question of state law; and
  - ☐ Alleged defect in subject matter jurisdiction raises difficult and novel question.
- ○ Plaintiff bears burden of establishing that jurisdiction exists.
  - ☐ Plaintiff must affirmatively show existence of federal jurisdiction in the complaint.
  - ☐ If plaintiff fails to establish jurisdiction, court must dismiss case unless defect can be corrected by amending complaint.
- ○ In facial attack on jurisdiction:

☐ Court presumes factual allegations of complaint to be true, granting motion only if plaintiff fails to allege an element necessary for subject matter jurisdiction.

☐ Court must dismiss case unless defect can be corrected by amending the complaint.

○ In factual attack on jurisdiction:

☐ Court presumes lack of jurisdiction unless asserting party can prove otherwise.

☐ Court may weigh evidence presented and determine facts to evaluate whether it has power to hear case.

☐ Court may hold evidentiary hearing to resolve factual disputes without converting motion to dismiss into motion for summary judgment.

○ Dismissal for lack of subject matter jurisdiction typically is not an adjudication on merits.

☐ Dismissal generally is without prejudice and has no res judicata effect.

☐ Plaintiff typically may reassert claims in competent court.

☐ Court has power to dismiss dispensable party whose presence prevents complete diversity jurisdiction.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 12(b)(1), 15(a), 21

Discussion:
See § 8.17[4]

8.14[4] CHECKLIST: Preparing Motion to Dismiss for Lack of Personal Jurisdiction.

☐ In Central District, comply with "meet and confer" requirements before bringing motion.

○ Contact opposing counsel to discuss thoroughly, preferably in person, substance of contemplated motion and any potential resolution.

○ "Meet and confer" must take place at least five days before last day for filing motion.

○ If parties are unable to reach resolution that eliminates reason for hearing, include in notice of motion, statement that "This motion is made following the conference of counsel pursuant to L.R. 7-3 which took place on [date]."

Authority:
CD Cal Civ LR 7-3

Discussion:
Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.15[1]

☐ Challenge action for lack of personal jurisdiction by filing motion to dismiss asserting court lacks authority to:

○ Render judgment commanding defendant's personal obedience; or ○ Impose obligations on defendant that are enforceable by other courts.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 12(b)(2)

Discussion:
See § 8.18[1]

Form:
See § 8.34

☐ Avoid waiver by promptly raising defense in motion to dismiss or in first responsive pleading.

○ Filing preanswer motion to dismiss without asserting lack of personal jurisdiction waives defense.

○ After waiver, defendant cannot subsequently raise defense in an answer or otherwise.

○ Asserting defense of insufficient process or insufficient service of process does not preserve lack of personal jurisdiction defense.

☐ Avoid waiver through conduct by:

○ Failing to press defense during pendency of action.

○ Submitting to process or jurisdiction of court through conduct.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 12(b)(2), (4), (5), (h)(1)

Discussion:
See §§ 8.18[1][b], [c]

☐ Submit evidence outside pleadings for court's consideration in determining motion.

Discussion:
See § 8.18[1][d]

☐ Request that court permit discovery to aid in determining motion when:

- ○ Pertinent facts bearing on question of jurisdiction are controverted.
- ○ A more satisfactory showing of facts is necessary.

Discussion:
See § 8.18[1][e]

☐ Request that court conduct evidentiary hearing when:

- ○ Pleadings and other written materials submitted to court raise issues of credibility.
- ○ There are disputed questions of fact with regard to personal jurisdiction.

Discussion:
See § 8.18[1][f]

☐ Court determination of motion.

- ○ Plaintiff bears burden of establishing personal jurisdiction over defendant.
- ○ Quantum of proof required to meet burden varies depending on nature of proceeding and type of evidence plaintiff is permitted to present.
  - ☐ Plaintiff must make prima facie showing when motion is based on written materials.
  - ☐ Plaintiff must make preponderance showing if court holds evidentiary hearing to resolve disputed facts or credibility issues.
- ○ Court may permit discovery when:
  - ☐ Pertinent facts bearing on question of jurisdiction are controverted.
  - ☐ A more satisfactory showing of facts is necessary.
- ○ Court has discretion to hold preliminary hearing to resolve issues of credibility or disputed questions of fact with regard to jurisdiction.
- ○ Dismissal for lack of personal jurisdiction generally is not on merits.

☐ Dismissal is without prejudice to refiling of action in court of proper jurisdiction.

☐ In lieu of dismissal for lack of personal jurisdiction, court may transfer action to appropriate court if transfer is in interest of justice.

☐ Dismissal may be with prejudice when there is no way for plaintiff to establish personal jurisdiction over defendant.

Authority:
28 USC § 1406(a)

Discussion:
See § 8.18[2]

8.14[5] CHECKLIST: Preparing Motion to Dismiss for Improper Venue.

☐ In Central District, comply with "meet and confer" requirements before bringing motion.

○ Contact opposing counsel to discuss thoroughly, preferably in person, substance of contemplated motion and any potential resolution.

○ "Meet and confer" must take place at least five days before last day for filing motion.

○ If parties are unable to reach resolution that eliminates reason for hearing, include in notice of motion, statement that "This motion is made following the conference of counsel pursuant to L.R. 7-3 which took place on [date]."

Authority:
CD Cal Civ LR 7-3

Discussion:
Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.15[1]

☐ Challenge district in which plaintiff brought action by filing motion to dismiss for improper venue requesting:

○ That court decide whether venue is proper in district in which plaintiff filed suit.

○ That court dismiss improperly venued action.

☐ If appropriate, combine motion to dismiss with motion to transfer.

○ As alternative to dismissal for improper venue, request that court transfer case to proper district or division if in interests of justice.

- ○ If court finds venue is proper, request transfer for convenience.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 12(b)(3); 28 USC §§ 1391, 1404(a), 1406(a)

Discussion:
See §§ 8.19[1][a], [d]

Form:
See § 8.35

☐ Motion to dismiss based on forum-selection clause is treated as motion to dismiss for improper venue in Ninth Circuit.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 12(b)(3)

Discussion:
See § 8.19[1][b]

☐ Avoid waiving objection to venue by asserting defense as part of initial motion to dismiss or first responsive pleading.

☐ Avoid waiving objection through conduct during pendency of action.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 12(b), (h)(1)

Discussion:
See § 8.19[1][c]

☐ Submit supplemental written materials outside pleadings for court to consider in ruling on motion.

- ○ Parties may submit materials such as sworn affidavits and exhibits.

- ○ Submitting materials does not transform motion to dismiss into motion for summary judgment.

Discussion:
See § 8.19[1][e]

☐ Request leave to conduct discovery on factual issues related to motion to dismiss for improper venue.

Discussion:
See § 8.19[1][f]

☐ Request that court conduct evidentiary hearing when motion raises genuine factual issues.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 12(i)

Discussion:
See § 8.19[1][g]

☐ Court determination of motion.

○ Plaintiff appears to bear burden of establishing that venue as originally selected is proper in Ninth Circuit.

○ Court need not accept pleadings as true.

☐ Court may properly consider facts outside pleadings along with motion to dismiss.

☐ Consideration of supplemental written materials does not transform motion to dismiss into motion for summary judgment.

○ Court may permit discovery when discovery would be useful in resolving issues of fact presented by motion to dismiss.

○ Court may hold evidentiary hearing when motions raises genuine factual issues.

☐ When holding evidentiary hearing, court may weigh evidence, assess credibility, and make findings of fact on motion.

☐ Court's factual findings are entitled to deference.

○ Court must dismiss action if improperly venued.

☐ Dismissal for improper venue generally is not on merits.

☐ Dismissal does not preclude plaintiff from refiling action in forum where venue is proper.

○ Court may transfer improperly venued action when transfer is in interest of justice.

☐ Court may not transfer action for improper venue unless it has subject matter jurisdiction.

☐ Transferee court must have proper subject matter jurisdiction, proper venue, and personal jurisdiction.

8.14[6] CHECKLIST: Preparing Motion to Dismiss for Insufficient Process or Service of Process.

☐ In Central District, comply with "meet and confer" requirements before bringing motion.

○ Contact opposing counsel to discuss thoroughly, preferably in person, substance of contemplated motion and any potential resolution.

○ "Meet and confer" must take place at least five days before last day for filing motion.

○ If parties are unable to reach resolution that eliminates reason for hearing, include in notice of motion, statement that "This motion is made following the conference of counsel pursuant to L.R. 7-3 which took place on [date]."

Authority:

Discussion:
Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.15[1]

☐ Challenge sufficiency of summons or of its service by filing motion to dismiss.

○ Motion to dismiss for insufficient process is designed to challenge irregularities in the contents of the summons.

○ Motion to dismiss for improper service of process is designed to challenge irregularities in manner of delivery of summons and complaint.

☐ Motion must specifically point out manner in which plaintiff failed to satisfy applicable summons or service requirements.

☐ Submit supplemental materials with motion for court's consideration.

○ Materials may include sworn affidavits, exhibits, depositions, and oral testimony.

○ Submission of materials does not convert motion to dismiss into motion for summary judgment.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 12(b)(4), (5)

Discussion:
See § 8.20[1][d]

☐ Court determination of motion:

○ Burden is on plaintiff to show valid summons and properly effected service.

○ Court may consider supplemental materials with motions to dismiss for insufficient process or insufficient service.

☐ Materials may include sworn affidavits, exhibits, depositions, and oral testimony.

☐ Submission of supplemental materials does not convert motion to dismiss into one for summary judgment.

○ Court may conduct evidentiary hearing when motions present genuine factual issues.

○ Court may dismiss an action for insufficient process or service of process.

☐ Dismissal is typically without prejudice to plaintiff's ability to refile case.

☐ Dismissals for defects in form of summons generally are not grounds for dismissal unless defendant demonstrates actual prejudice.

☐ Plaintiff's failure to comply with technical rules governing service of process also does not necessarily require dismissal of plaintiff's claims.

☐ As alternative to dismissal for insufficient service, court may retain jurisdiction but quash service.

☐ Challenge plaintiff's complaint for failing to state claim on which relief can be granted by filing motion to dismiss on that basis.

○ Motion is designed to test formal sufficiency of plaintiff's statement of claims for relief.

○ Motion is viewed with disfavor and is rarely granted.

☐ Use to challenge complaint when:

○ Complaint lacks cognizable legal theory.

○ Complaint lacks sufficient facts to allege cognizable legal theory.

☐ Submit limited supplemental materials for court's consideration in deciding motion.

○ If defendant presents court with matters outside pleadings that court does not exclude, court must convert motion to dismiss into motion for summary judgment.

○ Court may consider the following supplemental materials with complaint without converting motion into motion for summary judgment:

☐ Material properly submitted as part of complaint.

☐ Documents not part of complaint if referenced in complaint and accepted by all parties as authentic.

☐ Matters of public record of which court may take judicial notice.

Discussion:

☐ Court determination of motion.

○ Moving party bears burden of demonstrating that plaintiff has not met liberal pleading requirements in stating claim.

○ In considering motion, court must treat plaintiff's allegations of material fact as true and must construe them in light most favorable to plaintiff.

○ Court may dismiss claim only if it appears beyond doubt that plaintiff can prove no set of facts in support of claim that would entitle plaintiff to relief.

○ With some exceptions, if court considers matters outside pleadings it must convert motion to dismiss into motion for summary judgment.

☐ On conversion of motion to motion for summary judgment, court must fairly apprise nonmoving party that court will look beyond pleadings.

☐ Court must give all parties reasonable opportunity to present material pertinent to motion for summary judgment.

☐ Court must provide additional safeguards to pro se litigants.

○ Dismissal for failure to state claim is typically without prejudice to plaintiff's ability to file amended pleading.

☐ Court should grant leave to amend whenever it appears possible that plaintiff can correct defect.

☐ Denial of leave to amend is not abuse of discretion if court could reasonably conclude that further amendment would be futile.

☐ Court determination of motion:

○ Moving party bears burden of persuasion in showing that dismissal is necessary.

○ Court must apply two-step analysis in determining whether action can proceed without absent person.

☐ Court must first find that nonparty is necessary party who must be joined if feasible.

☐ If absent party is necessary, court must determine whether action can proceed or must be dismissed because of absent person's indispensability.

○ Court may consider facts beyond scope of complaint in determining motion without converting it into motion for summary judgment.

○ Dismissal for failure to join indispensable party is not typically on merits.

☐ Court may properly order dismissal for failure to join party only if person is indispensable to action and cannot be joined.

☐ Grant of motion to dismiss is without prejudice to plaintiff's ability to amend complaint.

☐ Court does not err in denying leave to amend when amendment would be futile.

IV. PREPARING MOTION TO DISMISS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 8.15

8.15 Options and Strategy.

8.15[1] Preanswer Motion Is Optional. A defendant is not required to file a preanswer motion to dismiss under Fed R Civ P 12(b). Defenses set forth under the rule may be asserted in an answer [see Fed R Civ P 12(b)]. Some defenses or objections may be raised either in an initial answer or in a Rule 12(b) motion to dismiss [see Fed R Civ P 12(b)].

8.15[2] Defenses Must Be Consolidated in Motion to Dismiss or Are Waived. The rules permit a defendant only one preanswer motion. Thus, if a defendant chooses to file a preanswer motion, that motion must contain all Rule 12 defenses or objections then available to the defendant [see Fed R Civ P 12(g)]. Some defenses or objections then available to the defendant but omitted from the motion are waived [Fed R Civ P 12(h)(1)]. Thus, a defendant generally cannot raise a few of his or her waivable defenses in a preanswer motion while saving other available defenses for a subsequent answer [see Fed R Civ P 12(b)].

Distinguish:

A second motion to strike immaterial matter is not barred because the district court may strike immaterial matter at any time Fed R Civ P 12(f); see In re Ess Tech., Inc. Secs. Litig. (ND Cal 2005) 2005 US Dist LEXIS 2593, at *13].

8.15[3] Defenses Waived If Not Asserted in Initial Response or Motion. Lack of jurisdiction over the person, improper venue, insufficiency of process, and insufficient service of process are waived forever if not asserted in an initial Rule 12 motion or answer [Fed R Civ P 12(h)(1); see American Ass'n of Naturopathic Physicians v. Hayhurst (9th Cir 2000) 227 F3d 1104, 1106 , cert. denied, 532 US 1008 (2001) ; see Fed R Civ P 12(b)].

Strategic Point:

Filing a motion to dismiss before filing an answer to the complaint provides a vehicle for challenging and possibly eliminating allegations or claims from the plaintiff's complaint at an early stage in the action. A motion to dismiss under Rule 12(b)(1) or (6) provides the earliest and most expeditious means of obtaining a potentially dispositive remedy when the court lacks subject matter jurisdiction, if there is a defect in the claims pleaded, or if there is uncertainty or confusion regarding the basis for liability against a particular defendant. While the preparation of a motion to dismiss may be expensive, it provides additional time for a defendant to develop the factual basis for a more thorough and accurate answer to the complaint and any potential affirmative defenses. On the other hand, the motion gives the plaintiff an opportunity to clean up any defects, which may be more difficult to do on a later motion for summary judgment or judgment on the pleadings.

8.15[4] Filing Motion to Dismiss Does Not Prevent Amendment or Dismissal of Complaint. A motion to dismiss under Fed R Civ P 12(b) is not a responsive pleading under Fed R Civ P 15(a) or an answer under Fed R Civ P 41(a) [see Fed R Civ P 7(a)]. Accordingly, the defendant's filing of a Rule 12(b) motion to dismiss, alone, does not terminate the plaintiff's right to amend the complaint once as a matter of course [CRST Van Expedited, Inc. v. Werner Enters., Inc. (9th Cir 2007) 479 F3d 1099, 1104 n.3 (decided under prior law); see Fed R Civ P 15(a)(1)(B)]. Nor does it prevent the plaintiff from voluntarily dismissing the complaint [see Fed R Civ P 41(a)].

Voluntary motions to dismiss, see Ch. 30, Voluntary Dismissal.

CHAPTER 8 Answers and Responsive Motions Under Rule 12
IV. PREPARING MOTION TO DISMISS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 8.16

8.16 Rule 12(b) Procedures.

8.16[1] Assert Rule 12(b) Defenses in Preanswer Motion. Though every defense may be asserted in an answer, the defendant has the option of asserting the following defenses in a motion to dismiss before filing an answer [see Fed R Civ P 12(b)]:

- Lack of subject matter jurisdiction;
- Lack of personal jurisdiction;
- Improper venue;
- Insufficiency of process;
- Insufficient service of process;
- Failure to state a claim on which relief can be granted; and
- Failure to join an indispensable party.

Prerequisite-CD Cal: Meet and Confer.
In the Central District, comply with "meet and confer" requirements before bringing the motion [CD Cal Civ LR 7-3].

○ Contact opposing counsel to discuss thoroughly, preferably in person, the substance of the contemplated motion and any potential resolution.

○ "Meet and confer" must take place at least five days before last day for filing the motion.

- If parties are unable to reach a resolution that eliminates the need for a hearing, include in the notice of motion the statement "This motion is made following the conference of counsel pursuant to L.R. 7-3 which took place on [date]."

8.16[2] File Rule 12(b) Motion Before Responsive Pleading.

8.16[2][a] Motion Is Timely If Filed Before Responsive Pleading. In general, counsel must file a motion to dismiss under Fed R Civ P 12(b) before filing an answer [see Fed R Civ P 12(b)]. The Ninth Circuit allows motions under Rule 12(b) to be filed any time before filing of a responsive pleading [Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Alla Med. Servs., Inc. (9th Cir 1988) 855 F2d 1470, 1474].

Thus, counsel should file a Rule 12(b) motion to dismiss within the time limit applicable to the responsive pleading generally. For example, the rules provide for a 21-day period for service of an answer [see Fed R Civ P 12(a)(1)(A)(i)]. However, there are numerous exceptions to the 20-day limit [see, e.g., Fed R Civ P 12(a)(1)(A)(ii), (2), (3)].

Cross Reference:

Exceptions to 21-day time period for serving responsive pleadings, see § 8.05[2].

8.16[2][b] Extension of Time to Respond to Complaint Should Apply to Rule 12(b) Preanswer Motion. When a defendant obtains an extension of time to respond to the complaint, that extension should apply to the filing of a preanswer motion to dismiss under Fed R Civ P 12(b) [see, e.g., Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Alla Med. Servs., Inc. (9th Cir 1988) 855 F2d 1470, 1474].

Strategic Point--Defendant:

It is prudent, when seeking an extension of time to respond to a complaint, to use broad language that includes the possibility of responding to the complaint with either an answer or a preanswer motion to dismiss (e.g., state that "defendant shall have until [date] to answer or otherwise respond to the complaint.") Otherwise, the plaintiff may argue that the defendant is time-barred from filing any response other than an answer.

8.16[2][c] Filing Motion to Dismiss Extends Time to Answer Complaint. Unless the court orders otherwise, service of a Rule 12(b) motion to dismiss extends the time the defendant must serve and file an answer to the complaint or another responsive pleading [Fed R Civ P 12(a)(4)]. In general, serving a Rule 12(b) motion to dismiss extends the defendant's time to file an answer or other responsive pleading until 14 days after notice of the court's ruling on the motion [see Fed R Civ P 12(a)(4)].

Cross Reference:

Extension of time, see § 8.05[4].

8.16[3] Failure to Assert Certain Defenses Results in Waiver.

8.16[3][a] Motion Must Include Every Available Rule 12 Defense or Objection. A defendant who files a motion to dismiss under Rule 12 must join with it any other motions provided in the rule that are then available to the defendant [see Fed R Civ P 12(g)]. For example, a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim [see Fed R Civ P 12(b)(6)] may be combined with a motion for more definite statement [see Fed R Civ P 12(e)]. Thus, the defenses may be asserted either in an answer or in a preanswer motion to dismiss [see Fed R Civ P 12(b)]. This mandatory consolidation provision applies only to defenses and objections available to the party at the time of filing the motion to dismiss under Fed R Civ P 12(b) [see Fed R Civ P 12(g)].

8.16[3][b] Omitted Defenses or Objections Are Waived Unless Nonwaivable. If counsel files a motion to dismiss under Fed R Civ P 12 but omits from that motion any waivable defense or objection that is then available under Fed R Civ P 12, the omitted defense or objection is waived [see Fed R Civ P 12(g)]. To avoid waiving these defenses or objections under Fed R Civ P 12, counsel must raise them in an initial motion to dismiss, or in the first responsive pleading if no motion to dismiss is filed [see Fed R Civ P 12(g), (h)(1)]. Thereafter, the defendant cannot assert a motion based on an omitted defense or objection unless it is one of the defenses or objections excepted from the waiver provision [see Fed R Civ P 12(g), (h)(2); Schnabel v. Lui (9th Cir 2002) 302 F3d 1023, 1034 (despite the policy concerns underlying the waiver provisions of Rule 12, nothing in the rule requires codefendants represented by the same counsel to raise or waive all their defenses together)].

When waiver occurs, the defense or objection is permanently lost. The defendant cannot assert the defense or objection in a second preanswer motion or in an answer [Chilicky v. Schweiker (9th Cir 1986) 796 F2d 1131, 1136 , rev'd on other grounds, 487 US 412 (1988)].

Warning--Waivable Defenses:

The following defenses are expressly waived if not asserted in a Rule 12 motion to dismiss or included in a responsive pleading [see Fed R Civ P 12(h)(1)]:

- Lack of jurisdiction over the person;
- Improper venue;
- Insufficiency of process; and
- Insufficiency of service of process.

Distinguish--Nonwaivable Defenses:

In contrast, the defenses of failure to state a claim on which relief can be granted, and failure to join an indispensable party are not waived by failing to assert them in an initial motion to dismiss under Rule 12 [see Fed R Civ P 12(h)(2)]. Though these defenses may not be asserted in a second Rule 12 motion, they may be raised in any pleading permitted or ordered under Fed R Civ P 7(a), in a motion for judgment on the pleadings, or at the trial on the merits [see Fed R Civ P 12(h)(2)]. In addition, lack of subject matter jurisdiction is not a waivable defense; it may be raised at any time by the defendant, or by the court on its own motion [see Fed R Civ P 12(h)(3)].

Distinguish--Rule 8 Affirmative Defenses:

The mandatory consolidation and waiver provisions do not apply to affirmative defenses that must be pleaded under Fed R Civ P 8(c) [see Parker v. United States (9th Cir 1997) 110 F3d 678, 683 (Fed R Civ P 12(g) refers to defenses that may be raised by Rule 12 motion, not to all defenses)]. Defenses that a party may waive under Fed R Civ P 12(h), unlike affirmative defenses under Fed R Civ P 8(c), cannot be asserted in an amended answer [see Parker v. United States (9th Cir 1997) 110 F3d 678, 683 (noting authority for proposition that affirmative defense may not be raised by motion to dismiss)]. Similarly, a defendant does not waive motions other than those specified in Fed R Civ P 12, such as motions to stay, when omitted from a Rule 12 preanswer motion to dismiss [see Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Alla Med. Servs., Inc. (9th Cir 1988) 855 F2d 1470, 1475 (Fed R Civ P 12 waiver inapplicable to motion to stay)].

8.16[3][c] Avoid Waiver of Omitted Defenses by Filing Amended Motion or Pleading. To avoid waiver of the omitted defense of lack of personal jurisdiction, improper venue, insufficiency of process, or insufficient service of process, counsel may attempt to file an amended motion to dismiss or other responsive pleading when permitted as a matter of course under Fed R Civ P 15(a) [see Fed R Civ P 12(h)(1)(B)]. A party may amend a pleading once as a matter of course within 21 days after serving it [Fed R Civ P 15(a)(1)(A)]. If the pleading is one to which a responsive pleading is required, the party may amend within 21 days after service of the responsive pleading, or within 21 days after service of a motion under Rule 12(b), (e), or (f), whichever is earlier [Fed R Civ P 15(a)(1)(B)].

Cross Reference:

Amending answers, see Ch. 9, Amending and Supplementing Pleadings.

8.16[4] Comply With Rules Governing Motion Practice. A motion to dismiss should be made by a written motion stating with particularity the grounds for the motion and the relief or order sought. The writing requirement is satisfied if the defendant sets forth the motion in a written notice of the hearing on the motion [see Fed R Civ P 7(b)(1)]. A motion to dismiss must be signed in accordance with Fed R Civ P 11. Counsel should check the local rules.

The rules governing motions generally apply with equal force to motions to dismiss under Rule 12 [see Fed R Civ P 7(b)]. Similarly, the rules applicable to captions and formatting with regard to pleadings also apply to motions and motion-related papers [see Fed R Civ P 7(b)(2), 10].

Standard Procedure Checklist:

Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.12.

8.16[5] Rule 12(b) Motions Are Subject to Rule 11 Sanctions. A defendant may be sanctioned for filing a frivolous motion to dismiss, or for filing a motion to dismiss for an improper purpose [see Fed R Civ P 11(a), (b)]. Even when a motion to dismiss under Fed R Civ P 12 is technically appropriate, a defendant may risk sanctions for filing a motion to dismiss for an improper purpose, such as to harass or to delay the proceedings [see Fed R Civ P 11; Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Alla Med. Servs., Inc. (9th Cir 1988) 855 F2d 1470, 1476 (successive motions may become so harassing and vexatious that they justify sanctions even if not totally frivolous under standards set forth in case law)].

Cross Reference:

Rule 11 sanctions, see Ch. 33, Rule 11 Sanctions.

8.16[6] Responding to Motion to Dismiss.

8.16[6][a] Plaintiff's Options in Responding to Motion to Dismiss. The plaintiff has several options in responding to a motion to dismiss, including:

- Not responding;
- Filing opposition papers [see, e.g., ND Cal Civ LR 7-3(a)];
- Filing a statement of nonopposition [see, e.g., ND Cal Civ LR 7-3(b)];
- Filing an amended complaint [see Fed R Civ P 15(a)]; or
- Seeking voluntary dismissal of the action [see Fed R Civ P 41(a)].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

Local rules may require that the plaintiff file opposition papers in response to the motion to dismiss, or that the plaintiff file a statement of nonopposition [see ED Cal Civ LR 230(c)]. Thus, it is risky not to respond to the motion to dismiss in some manner, since failure to do so may be deemed by the court as consent by the plaintiff to the motion to dismiss [see, e.g., CD Cal Civ LR 7-9, 7-12 (opposition or statement of nonopposition paper required); CD Cal Civ LR 7-12 (failure to file required paper may be deemed consent to granting of motion); SD Cal Civ LR 7.1(f.3.a), (f.3.c) (opposition papers or statement of nonopposition required; failure to file may be deemed consent to granting of motion)].

Cross Reference:

Responding to motions, see Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see §§ 26.37 -26.43.

8.16[6][b] Filing Opposition Papers. A plaintiff may file written opposition papers in response to a motion to dismiss [see, e.g., SD Cal Civ LR 7.1(f.3.b); ND Cal Civ LR 7-3(a)]. The contents of opposition papers may vary depending on the local rules in the district in which the case is filed [see, e.g., SD Cal Civ LR 7.1(f.3.b); CD Cal Civ LR 7-9; ND Cal Civ LR 7-3(a); ED Cal Civ LR 230(c)]. For example, in the Southern District, opposition papers must contain a brief statement of the reasons why the court should deny the motion to dismiss, an answering memorandum of points and authorities, and copies of any documentary evidence on which the plaintiff relies [see SD Cal Civ LR 7.1(f.3.b)]. Similarly, the time for filing opposition papers differs depending on the district in which the case is filed [see, e.g., SD Cal Civ LR 7.1(e.2) (no later than 14 calendar days before noticed hearing); CD Cal Civ LR 7-9 (no later than 21 days before date of hearing); ND Cal Civ LR 7-3(a) (must be served and filed within 21 days before hearing on motion); ED Cal Civ LR 230(c) (not less than 14 days before noticed or continued hearing)]. Therefore, counsel for defendant is advised to become familiar with the local rules in the district in which the case is filed.

Cross Reference:

Formatting of opposition papers and related forms, see Ch. 5, Formatting, Serving, and Filing Papers.

Standard Procedure Checklist:

Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.37.

8.16[6][c] Filing Statement of Nonopposition. A plaintiff choosing not to file opposition papers generally must file a statement of nonopposition [see, e.g., SD Cal Civ LR 7.1(f.3.a); CD Cal Civ LR 7-9; ND Cal Civ LR 7-3(b); ED Cal Civ LR 230(c)].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

Counsel should not file a statement of nonopposition unless conceding that the defendant's motion to dismiss, including the relief sought in the motion, should be granted. For example, if the motion requests that the court dismiss the complaint without leave to amend, you must file opposition papers if you plan to file an amended answer, unless amendment as a matter of right is available under Fed R Civ P 15(a).

8.16[6][d] Filing Amended Complaint. A complaint may be amended once as a matter of right before the defendant files a responsive pleading [see Fed R Civ P 15(a)]. A motion to dismiss under Fed R Civ P 12(b) is not a responsive pleading [see Fed R Civ P 7(a)]. Accordingly, filing a Rule 12(b) motion to dismiss, alone, does not terminate the plaintiff's right to amend the complaint once as a matter of course [see Fed R Civ P 15(a)]. Therefore, in lieu of opposing a motion to dismiss the original complaint, the plaintiff may serve and file an amended complaint without obtaining leave of court [Miles v. Department of Army (9th Cir 1989) 881 F2d 777, 781 ; see Fed R Civ P 15(a)].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

Plaintiff should consider filing an amended complaint when the defendant's motion to dismiss is well-founded, as when the motion has exposed material defects in the original complaint. If the complaint can be easily amended to avoid the issues raised in the motion, filing an amended complaint may save time and expense. Note that in the Central District, it is advisable to address the possibility of an amended answer during the "meet and confer" process. If the plaintiff forces the defendant to make a motion, sanctions may be available to the defendant.

8.16[6][e] Seeking Voluntary Dismissal. The plaintiff may dismiss an action without a court order by filing a notice of dismissal any time before service by the defendant of an answer or a motion for summary judgment, whichever occurs first [see Fed R Civ P 41(a)(1)(A)(i)]. The plaintiff may also obtain a dismissal by filing a stipulation of dismissal signed by all parties who have appeared in the action [see Fed R Civ P 41(a)(1)(A)(ii)].

Unless otherwise stated in the notice of dismissal or stipulation, voluntary dismissals are without prejudice. However, a notice of dismissal operates as an adjudication on the merits if filed by a plaintiff who has already dismissed an action based on or including the same claim in any United States or state court [see Fed R Civ P 41(a)(1)].

Cross Reference:

Ch. 30, Voluntary Dismissal.

8.16[7] Replying to Opposition Papers. Though not expressly permitted under the federal rules, California local court rules permit a defendant who has filed a motion to dismiss under Rule 12(b) to file a reply to the plaintiff's response [see, e.g., ND Cal Civ LR 7-3(c); CD Cal Civ LR 7-10; SD Cal Civ LR 7.1(e.3); ED Cal Civ LR 230(d)]. Typically, replies consist of a memorandum, supporting declarations, or other evidence rebutting the plaintiff's opposition papers [see, e.g., CD Cal Civ LR 7-10].

The time for filing memoranda or other materials in reply to the plaintiff's opposition varies depending on the district in which the case is filed [see, e.g., CD Cal Civ LR 7-10 (no later than 14 days before hearing); ND Cal Civ LR 7-3(c) (no less than 14 days before hearing date); ED Cal Civ LR 230(d) (no less than seven days before hearing); SD Cal Civ LR 7.1(e.3) (no later than seven days before hearing date)]. Counsel for defendant should check the local rules in the district in which the case is filed.

IV. PREPARING MOTION TO DISMISS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 8.17

8.17 Motion to Dismiss for Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction.

8.17[1] Challenge Subject Matter Jurisdiction.

8.17[1][a] File Motion to Dismiss. A defendant may challenge the plaintiff's action for lack of subject matter jurisdiction by filing a motion to dismiss [see Fed R Civ P 12(b)(1)]. A federal court has subject matter jurisdiction over an action that either arises under federal law, or when there is complete diversity of citizenship between the parties and the amount in controversy exceeds $75,000 [Tosco Corp. v. Communities for a Better Env't (9th Cir 2001) 236 F3d 495, 499 ; see 28 USC §§ 1331, 1332].

Cross References:

Jurisdiction generally, see Ch. 2, Determining Forum (Jurisdiction and Venue), see §§ 2.03 -2.25. Form of motion to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction, see § 8.33.

8.17[1][b] Challenge Subject Matter Jurisdiction at Any Time. Because lack of subject matter jurisdiction challenges the court's statutory or constitutional authority to adjudicate the type of controversy involved in the action [see Steel Co. v. Citizens for Better Env't (1998) 523 US 83, 89, 118 S Ct 1003, 140 L Ed2d 210], it may not be waived as a defense [Kelton Arms Condo. Owners Ass'n, Inc. v. Homestead Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 346 F3d 1190, 1192]. Thus, a defendant may challenge lack of subject matter jurisdiction at any time in the proceedings [see Fed R Civ P 12(h)(3); see, e.g., Miguel v. Country Funding Corp. (9th Cir 2002) 309 F3d 1161, 1163-1164]. Indeed, the court may consider subject matter jurisdiction on its own motion, even if not raised by a party [see, e.g., Westlands Water Dist. v. Firebaugh Canal (9th Cir 1993) 10 F3d 667, 673 (appellate court may consider subject matter jurisdiction on its own motion even though not raised at district court level)], and an objection that a federal court lacks subject-matter jurisdiction may be raised by a party even after trial and the entry of judgment [Arbaugh v. Y & H Corp. (2006) 546 US 500, 126 S Ct 1235, 163 L Ed 2d 1097, 1104].

Distinguish:

An objection that a complaint fails to state a claim upon which relief can be granted under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(6) may not be asserted post trial [Arbaugh v. Y & H Corp. (2006) 546 US 500, 126 S Ct 1235, 163 L Ed 2d 1097, 1105].

8.17[2] Challenge Subject Matter Jurisdiction on Face of Pleading.

8.17[2][a] Making Facial Attack on Subject Matter Jurisdiction. In a "facial attack" on a court's subject matter jurisdiction under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(1), the defendant contends that the allegations of jurisdiction contained in the complaint are insufficient on their face to demonstrate the existence of jurisdiction [Westlands v. NRDC (ED Cal 2003) 276 F Supp2d 1046, 1049 ; see Fed R Civ P 8(a) (complaint must contain short, plain statement of grounds on which court's jurisdiction depends)]. In facial attacks, the court's inquiry generally is confined to the allegations in the complaint [White v. Lee (9th Cir 2000) 227 F3d 1214, 1242].

Example:

In a declaratory judgment action by a homeowner's insurer to determine if it was liable under the insurance policy to the administrator of insured's estate and to the victims of the insured's alleged tort, the insurer properly alleged diversity of citizenship jurisdiction by alleging its own citizenship and that of the defendants, but failed to properly allege facts showing the citizenship of the decedent or the administrator of his estate [see, e.g., Blue Ridge Ins. Co. v. Stanewich (9th Cir 1998) 142 F3d 1145, 1148 (court permitted correction of deficient allegations on appeal)].

8.17[2][b] Court Accepts Plaintiff's Allegations As True in Facial Attack. In determining a motion to dismiss based on a facial attack on the court's subject matter jurisdiction, the court will presume the factual allegations of the complaint to be true, and will grant the motion only if the plaintiff fails to allege an element necessary for subject matter jurisdiction [Westlands v. NRDC (ED Cal 2003) 276 F Supp2d 1046, 1049]. A complaint will be dismissed for lack of subject matter jurisdiction if (1) the cause does not arise under a federal law or under the United States Constitution; (2) there is no case or controversy within the meaning of that constitutional term; or (3) the cause is not one described by any jurisdictional statute [Baker v. Carr (1962) 369 US 186, 198, 82 S Ct 691, 7 L Ed2d 663 ; Westlands v. NRDC (ED Cal 2003) 276 F Supp2d 1046, 1049].

8.17[2][c] Plaintiff May Amend Complaint in Response to Facial Attack. When a defendant moves to dismiss based on the insufficiency of the complaint in alleging subject matter jurisdiction, the plaintiff may amend the complaint as a matter of course to cure the defect within 21 days after serving it [Fed R Civ P 15(a)(1)(A)]. If the pleading is one to which a responsive pleading is required, the party may amend within 21 days after service of the responsive pleading, or within 21 days after service of a motion under Rule 12(b), (e), or (f), whichever is earlier [Fed R Civ P 15(a)(1)(B)]. However, when leave of court is required to amend the complaint, a district court may refuse leave to file an amended complaint if amendment would be futile [see America W. Airlines, Inc. v. GPA Group, Ltd. (9th Cir 1989) 877 F2d 793, 801 , overruled in part on other grounds by Republic of Argentina v. Weltover, Inc. (1992) 504 US 607, 112 S Ct 2160, 119 L Ed2d 394 (court properly denied leave to amend because allegations in support of jurisdiction would contradict sworn affidavits and relevant documentary evidence presented to court on jurisdictional issue)].

8.17[3] Challenge Subject Matter Jurisdiction Based on Facts.

8.17[3][a] Making Factual Attack on Subject Matter Jurisdiction. Factual attacks, also called "speaking motions," attack the court's subject matter jurisdiction as a matter of fact based on extrinsic evidence apart from the pleadings [Safe Air v. Meyer (9th Cir 2004) 373 F3d 1035, 1039].

8.17[3][b] Introducing Extrinsic Evidence. In a factual attack, the defendant converts the motion to dismiss into a factual motion by presenting affidavits or other evidence properly before the court. The plaintiff then must furnish affidavits or other evidence necessary to satisfy its burden of establishing subject matter jurisdiction [Safe Air v. Meyer (9th Cir 2004) 373 F3d 1035, 1039 ; *Galiano v. Inst. of Governmental Studies at the Univ. of Cal. (ND Cal 2008) 2008 US Dist LEXIS 68527, at *6-8] . The district court will evaluate the merits of jurisdictional claims by considering the allegations of the complaint and the extrinsic evidence presented [Roberts v. Corrothers (9th Cir 1987) 812 F2d 1173, 1177 ; Valdez v. United States (ED Cal 1993) 837 F Supp 1065, 1067 , aff'd, 56 F3d 1177 (9th Cir 1995)]. The court does not abuse its discretion by looking to this extra-pleading material in deciding the jurisdictional issue, even if it becomes necessary to resolve factual disputes [Association of Am. Med. Colls. v. United States (9th Cir 2000) 217 F3d 770, 778].

8.17[3][c] Court Will Not Presume Truthfulness of Jurisdictional Allegations. Unlike a facial attack on subject matter jurisdiction, in a factual attack the court will not attach any presumptive truthfulness to the plaintiff's jurisdictional allegations or to any inferences drawn from those allegations [Safe Air v. Meyer (9th Cir 2004) 373 F3d 1035, 1039]. Rather, in deciding a factual attack, the court may weigh the evidence presented, and may determine the facts in order to evaluate whether they have the power to hear the case [Sarei v. Rio Tinto PLC (CD Cal 2002) 221 F Supp2d 1116, 1129].

8.17[3][d] Seeking Discovery to Resolve Jurisdictional Facts. Discovery should ordinarily be granted when pertinent facts bearing on the question of jurisdiction are controverted, or when a more satisfactory showing of the facts is necessary. Thus, the court should grant discovery when jurisdictional facts are contested or more facts are needed. Conversely, a court's refusal to grant discovery to establish jurisdiction is not an abuse of discretion when it is clear that further discovery would not demonstrate facts sufficient to constitute a basis for jurisdiction [Laub v. United States Dep't of Interior (9th Cir 2003) 342 F3d 1080, 1092].

Cross Reference:

Discovery motions, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, see §§ 22.14 -22.34.

8.17[4] Court Determination of Motion.

8.17[4][a] Rule 12(b)(1) Motions Considered Before Other Rule 12 Motions. When a defendant asserts lack of subject matter jurisdiction in a preanswer motion to dismiss that also raises other defenses, the court customarily resolves the issue of subject matter jurisdiction first [Ruhrgas AG v. Marathon Oil Co. (1999) 526 US 574, 583, 119 S Ct 1563, 143 L Ed2d 760]. This is so when the other issues require determination of the merits [see Steel Co. v. Citizens for Better Env't (1998) 523 US 83, 93, 118 S Ct 1003, 140 L Ed2d 210].

However, a district court may appropriately give priority to determining a challenge to personal jurisdiction before deciding a challenge to the court's subject matter jurisdiction when the personal jurisdiction issue presents no complex question of state law, and the alleged defect in subject-matter jurisdiction raises a difficult and novel question [Ruhrgas AG v. Marathon Oil Co. (1999) 526 US 574, 588, 119 S Ct 1563, 143 L Ed2d 760].

When a motion to dismiss attacks "the substance of the complaint's jurisdictional allegations," the court will treat the motion as brought under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(1), even if it was improperly identified by the moving party as a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim brought under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(6) [Corrie v. Caterpillar (9th Cir 2007) 503 F3d 974, 980] .

Cross References:

Motions to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction, see § 8.18. Motions to dismiss for failure to state a claim on which relief can be granted, see § 8.21.

8.17[4][b] Plaintiff Bears Burden of Proving Jurisdiction. Though the defendant is the moving party on a motion to dismiss, the plaintiff bears the burden of establishing that jurisdiction exists [Rio Props., Inc. v. Rio Int'l Interlink (9th Cir 2002) 284 F3d 1007, 1019]. In effect, the court presumes lack of jurisdiction unless the asserting party can prove otherwise [Kokkonen v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am. (1994) 511 US 375, 377, 114 S Ct 1673, 128 L Ed2d 391 ; Stock West, Inc. v. Confederated Tribes (9th Cir 1989) 873 F2d 1221, 1225]. Thus, the plaintiff must affirmatively and distinctly show in his or her pleading the existence of whatever is essential to federal jurisdiction. If the plaintiff fails to do so, the court must dismiss the case unless the defect can be corrected by amending the complaint

[Smith v. McCullough (1926) 270 US 456, 459, 46 S Ct 338, 70 L Ed 682 ; Tosco Corp. v. Communities for a Better Env't (9th Cir 2001) 236 F3d 495, 499].

8.17[4][c] Evidentiary Hearing Is Required If Motion Raises Disputed Factual Issues. In determining a motion to dismiss under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(1), the district court is free to hear evidence regarding jurisdiction and to resolve factual disputes in determining whether it has jurisdiction over a claim [Steen v. John Hancock Mut. Life Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1997) 106 F3d 904, 910]. Moreover, with a factual attack under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(1), the court may look beyond the complaint to extrinsic evidence without converting the motion into one for summary judgment [Corrie v. Caterpillar (9th Cir 2007) 503 F3d 974, 980 (court may expand its review in Rule 12(b)(1) motion and "rely on affidavits or any other evidence properly before the court"); White v. Lee (9th Cir 2000) 227 F3d 1214, 1242 (considering matters of public record)].

Distinguish:

The court may not resolve genuinely disputed facts if the question of jurisdiction is dependent on resolution of factual issues going to the merits [see Safe Air v. Meyer (9th Cir 2004) 373 F3d 1035, 1039-1040]. For example, the question of jurisdiction and the merits of an action are intertwined when a statute provides the basis for both the subject matter jurisdiction and the plaintiff's substantive claim for relief [Safe Air v. Meyer (9th Cir 2004) 373 F3d 1035, 1039-1040]. When jurisdiction is so intertwined with the merits that resolution of the jurisdictional issue depends on resolution of the merits, the trial court must employ the standard applicable to a motion for summary judgment [Safe Air v. Meyer (9th Cir 2004) 373 F3d 1035, 1040].

Despite this general rule, a suit may be dismissed for lack of subject matter jurisdiction if the claim under the Constitution or federal statutes clearly appears to be immaterial and made only to obtain jurisdiction, or when the claim is "wholly insubstantial and frivolous" [Williston Basin Interstate Pipeline Co. v. An Exclusive Gas Storage Leasehold & Easement in the Cloverly Subterranean Geological Formation (9th Cir 2008) 524 F3d 1090, 1094 ; *Elliott v. San Francisco Residential Rent Stabilization and Arbitration Board (ND Cal 2008) 2008 US Dist LEXIS 67670, at *7-8] .

Example:

Plaintiff interstate natural gas pipeline company's claim seeking condemnation of defendant petroleum corporations' gas production wells located within the boundaries of plaintiff's storage reservoirs and alleged causing loss of stored natural gas was not so immaterial, insubstantial, or frivolous on its face as to defeat federal jurisdiction [Williston Basin Interstate Pipeline Co. v. An Exclusive Gas Storage Leasehold & Easement in the Cloverly Subterranean Geological Formation (9th Cir 2008) 524 F3d 1090, 1096] .

Cross Reference:

Standard applicable to motions for summary judgment, see Ch. 29, Summary Judgment, see §§ 29.26 -29.29.

8.17[4][d] Court May Permit Amendment of Complaint to Remedy Jurisdictional Allegations Defective As to Form. If the plaintiff fails to establish jurisdiction, the court must dismiss the case unless the defect can be corrected by amending the complaint [Smith v. McCullough (1926) 270 US 456, 459, 46 S Ct 338, 70 L Ed 682 ; Tosco Corp. v. Communities for a Better Env't (9th Cir 2001) 236 F3d 495, 499]. Defective allegations of jurisdiction may be amended in either the trial or appellate courts if the defect may be cured by amendment [see 28 USC § 1653; Blue Ridge Ins. Co. v. Stanewich (9th Cir 1998) 142 F3d 1145, 1148]. To that end, the court may require a plaintiff to submit additional affidavits with respect to the citizenship of the parties in order to avoid dismissal for lack of subject matter jurisdiction [Blue Ridge Ins. Co. v. Stanewich (9th Cir 1998) 142 F3d 1145, 1148].

8.17[4][e] Dismissal for Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction Is Without Prejudice and Has No Res Judicata Effect. A dismissal for lack of subject matter jurisdiction under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(1) is not an adjudication on the merits [Frigard v. United States (9th Cir 1988) 862 F2d 201, 204 , cert. denied, 490 US 1098 (1989)]. Therefore, dismissals for lack of jurisdiction typically are without prejudice, so that the plaintiff may reassert his or her claims in a competent court [Freeman v. Oakland Unified Sch. Dist. (9th Cir 1999) 179 F3d 846, 847].

8.17[5] Challenge Jurisdiction in Diversity Cases Based on Amount in Controversy.

8.17[5][a] Attack Based on Failure to Meet Minimum Jurisdictional Amount. A defendant may challenge diversity jurisdiction under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(1) on the basis that the amount in controversy falls below the minimum jurisdictional amount for bringing suit in federal court [see Tosco Corp. v. Communities for a Better Env't (9th Cir 2001) 236 F3d 495, 499-502 ; 28 USC § 1332(a)(1)].

Generally, the amount in controversy must exceed $75,000, exclusive of interest and costs [28 USC § 1332(a)].

Exception:

In a multistate class action subject to the modified diversity requirements of the Class Action Fairness Act of 2005, the aggregated amount in controversy must exceed $5 million, exclusive of interests and costs [28 USC § 1332(d)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of diversity jurisdiction, see Ch. 2, Determining Forum (Jurisdiction and Venue), see §§ 2.10 -2.25.

8.17[5][b] Determining Amount in Controversy From Face of Complaint. In general, the sum of the damages averred on the face of the complaint determines the amount in controversy [Crum v. Circus Circus Enters. (9th Cir 2000) 231 F3d 1129, 1131]. The sum claimed by the plaintiff controls as long as the claim is made in good faith. To justify dismissal, it must appear to a legal certainty that the claim is really for less than the jurisdictional amount [Crum v. Circus Circus Enters. (9th Cir 2000) 231 F3d 1129, 1131].

8.17[6] Challenge Subject Matter Jurisdiction Based on Lack of Diversity of Citizenship.

8.17[6][a] Attacking Diversity of Citizenship. A defendant may challenge diversity jurisdiction under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(1) on the basis that the parties to the action lack diversity of citizenship [see 28 USC §§ 1331, 1332; Tosco Corp. v. Communities for a Better Env't (9th Cir 2001) 236 F3d 495, 499]. A federal court generally has subject matter jurisdiction over an action only when there is complete diversity of citizenship between the parties [Tosco Corp. v. Communities for a Better Env't (9th Cir 2001) 236 F3d 495, 499 ; see 28 USC §§ 1331, 1332(a)].

Exception:

In a class action subject to the modified diversity requirements of the Class Action Fairness Act of 2005, diversity of citizenship is required only between any member of a plaintiff class and any defendant [28 USC § 1332(d)].

Complete diversity exists between citizens of different states, between citizens of a state and subjects of a foreign state, between citizens of different states when subjects of a foreign state are additional parties, and between a foreign state as plaintiff and citizens of a state or of different states [see 28 USC § 1332]. In short, subject matter jurisdiction based on diversity of citizenship requires that no defendant have the same citizenship as any plaintiff [Tosco Corp. v. Communities for a Better Env't (9th Cir 2001) 236 F3d 495, 499 ; see 28 USC § 1332].

Cross References:

Amount in controversy requirement, see § 8.17[5]. Diversity jurisdiction generally, see Ch. 2, Determining Forum (Jurisdiction and Venue), see §§ 2.10 -2.25.

8.17[6][b] Plaintiff Bears Burden of Establishing Diversity of Citizenship. When the defendant challenges subject matter jurisdiction on the basis of lack of diversity of citizenship, the plaintiff bears the burden of establishing complete diversity in order to survive the motion [Tosco Corp. v. Communities for a Better Env't (9th Cir 2001) 236 F3d 495, 499].

8.17[6][c] Dismissing Nondiverse Parties to Preserve Jurisdiction. A plaintiff may seek a court order to dismiss a dispensable party to achieve complete diversity [see Galt G/S v. JSS Scandinavia (9th Cir 1998) 142 F3d 1150, 1154 ; see Newman-Green, Inc. v. Alfonzo-Larrain (1989) 490 US 826, 837-838, 109 S Ct 2218, 104 L Ed2d 893]. The court has the power to dismiss a dispensable party whose presence prevents complete diversity jurisdiction [Galt G/S v. JSS Scandinavia (9th Cir 1998) 142 F3d 1150, 1154 ; see Newman-Green, Inc. v. Alfonzo-Larrain (1989) 490 US 826, 837-838, 109 S Ct 2218, 104 L Ed2d 893 (court of appeals has same authority as district courts to dismiss dispensable parties to effect complete diversity); Fed R Civ P 21 (misjoinder of parties not grounds for dismissal of action)]. Dispensable parties may be dropped or added by court order on motion of any party, or on the court's own initiative, at any stage of the action and on any just terms [see Newman-Green, Inc. v. Alfonzo-Larrain (1989) 490 US 826, 109 S Ct 2218, 104 L Ed2d 893].

Cross Reference:

Joinder of parties, see Ch. 10, Adding, Dropping, and Substituting Parties, see §§ 10.04 -10.09.

8.17[7] Challenge Jurisdiction Based on Lack of Federal Question. A defendant may challenge subject matter jurisdiction based on lack of a federal question under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(1) [see 28 USC § 1331]. Federal courts possess federal question jurisdiction over any civil action arising under the United States Constitution, laws, or treaties [see 28 USC § 1331]. A court has federal question jurisdiction over a claim if (1) federal law creates the claim for relief; (2) the plaintiff's state law claims should be recharacterized as federal claims under the artful pleading doctrine; or (3) a state law claim necessarily turns on the construction of a substantial, disputed federal question [Rains v. Criterion Sys., Inc. (9th Cir 1996) 80 F3d 339, 343 ; Pickern v. Best W. Timber Cove Lodge Marina Resort (ED Cal 2002) 194 F Supp2d 1128, 1130-1131 ; see 28 USC § 1331].

To determine whether a federal question is presented, a court must examine the literal language of the complaint, as well as whether federal jurisdiction would exist under a properly pleaded complaint [Sparta Surgical Corp. v. National Ass'n of Sec. Dealers, Inc. (9th Cir 1998) 159 F3d 1209, 1212 ; Wyatt v. Liljenquist (CD Cal 2000) 96 F Supp2d 1062, 1063].

Jurisdictional dismissals in cases premised on federal question jurisdiction are exceptional [Sun Valley Gasoline, Inc. v. Ernst Enters., Inc. (9th Cir 1983) 711 F2d 138, 140]. The court may dismiss a federal question claim for lack of subject matter jurisdiction only if the claim appears to be immaterial and made solely for the purpose of obtaining federal jurisdiction, or if the claim is wholly insubstantial and frivolous [Sun Valley Gasoline, Inc. v. Ernst Enters., Inc. (9th Cir 1983) 711 F2d 138, 140 ; Association of Am. Med. Colls. v. United States (9th Cir 2000) 217 F3d 770, 784, n9]. The claim must also be ripe for review before courts will exercise jurisdiction [Association of Am. Med. Colls. v. United States (9th Cir 2000) 217 F3d 770, 784, n9].

Distinguish:

A statutory limitation on coverage under a federal statute may be an element of a plaintiff's claim for relief as opposed to a jurisdictional issue. For example, the 15-employee requirement [see 42 USC § 2000e(b)] for coverage of Title VII claims is not a jurisdictional issue whereas the amount-in-controversy threshold [see 28 USC § 1332] is an ingredient of subject-matter jurisdiction in diversity-of-citizenship jurisdiction [Arbaugh v. Y & H Corp. (2006) 546 US 500, 126 S Ct 1235, 163 L Ed 2d 1097, 1110-1111].

8.18 Motion to Dismiss for Lack of Personal Jurisdiction.

8.18[1] Raising Lack of Personal Jurisdiction.

8.18[1][a] Due Process Considerations. A motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(2) challenges whether the court has authority to render a judgment commanding the defendant's personal obedience or imposing obligations on the defendant that are enforceable by other courts [see Burnham v. Superior Court (1990) 495 US 604, 609-610, 110 S Ct 2105, 109 L Ed2d 631].

To exercise personal jurisdiction over a nonresident defendant in a case presenting a federal question, the district court must first determine that a rule or statute potentially confers jurisdiction over the defendant and then must conclude that asserting jurisdiction does not offend the principles of Fifth Amendment due process [International Shoe Co. v. Washington (1945) 326 US 310, 316, 66 S Ct 154, 90 L Ed 95 ; Doe v. Unocal Corp. (9th Cir 2001) 248 F3d 915, 921-922]. In diversity cases, a federal court has powers of personal jurisdiction only as broad as the courts of the state in which it sits [Abrams Shell v. Shell Oil Co. (CD Cal 2001) 165 F Supp2d 1096, 1104 ; see Fed R Civ P 4(k)(1)]. In California, a court may exercise jurisdiction on any basis not inconsistent with the state or federal constitutions [CCP § 410.10]. Thus, federal courts in California may exercise jurisdiction to the fullest extent permitted by due process [Fields v. Sedgwick Associated Risks, Ltd. (9th Cir 1986) 796 F2d 299, 301 ; Abrams Shell v. Shell Oil Co. (CD Cal 2001) 165 F Supp2d 1096, 1104]. In addition, due process requires that the nonresident have certain minimum contacts with the forum state such that maintenance of the suit does not offend traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice [Terracom v. Valley Nat'l Bank (9th Cir 1995) 49 F3d 555, 559 ; *Starlight Int'l, LTD. v. Lifeguard Health, LLC (ND Cal 2008) 2008 US Dist LEXIS 58927, at *6-10] .

Cross References:

Exercising personal jurisdiction, see Ch. 2, Determining Forum (Jurisdiction and Venue), see §§ 2.31 -2.41. Form of motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction, see § 8.34.

8.18[1][b] Avoid Waiver by Promptly Raising Defense. A defendant must assert the defense of lack of personal jurisdiction in a motion to dismiss, or in the first responsive pleading, or it is waived [see Fed R Civ P 12(h)(1);

Abrams Shell v. Shell Oil Co. (CD Cal 2001) 165 F Supp2d 1096, 1103]. Thus, a defendant who files a preanswer motion to dismiss but fails to raise the defense of lack of personal jurisdiction waives the omitted defense and cannot subsequently raise it in an answer or otherwise [see Chilicky v. Schweiker (9th Cir 1986) 796 F2d 1131, 1136 , rev'd on other grounds, 487 US 412 (1988)].

Warning:

A defendant does not preserve an objection under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(2) by asserting a defense of insufficient process or insufficient service of process under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(4) or Fed R Civ P 12(b)(5), which were not designed to challenge personal jurisdiction [Chilicky v. Schweiker (9th Cir 1986) 796 F2d 1131, 1136 , rev'd on other grounds, 487 US 412 (1988)].

Cross Reference:

Defenses of insufficient process or service of process, see § 8.20.

8.18[1][c] Avoid Waiver by Properly Pressing Defense. Raising lack of personal jurisdiction in an answer and subsequently failing to further press the issue may constitute waiver. Lack of personal jurisdiction may be waived by submitting to process or jurisdiction by filing a responsive pleading, by stipulation, or by other conduct [see, e.g., Petrowski v. Hawkeye-Security Ins. Co. (1956) 350 US 495, 496-497, 76 S Ct 490, 100 L Ed 639 (liability insurer waived right to assert lack of personal jurisdiction by stipulating to submit to jurisdiction of court without personal service)]. The defense may also be waived as a result of a course of conduct pursued by a defendant during litigation [Peterson v. Highland Music, Inc. (9th Cir 1998) 140 F3d 1313, 1318 , cert. denied, 525 US 983 (1998)].

Example:

Seeking affirmative relief on a counterclaim before pressing the jurisdictional challenge may waive the personal jurisdiction issue [see Schnabel v. Lui (9th Cir 2002) 302 F3d 1023, 1037-1038 (party in consolidated action cannot bring claims mandating filing of counterclaims, then attack personal jurisdiction when judgment is entered against party on counterclaims)].

Distinguish:

A defendant does not waive a challenge to personal jurisdiction by removing a case to federal court alone [see, e.g., Fields v. Sedgwick Associated Risks, Ltd. (9th Cir 1986) 796 F2d 299, 300-301 (motion to quash and to dismiss in state court did not waive jurisdictional objection in removed action since defendant timely objected to personal jurisdiction in federal court)].

Cross Reference:

Removal generally, see Ch. 3, Removing a State Court Case to Federal Court.

8.18[1][d] Submit Evidence Outside Pleadings. Either party may present sworn affidavits and declarations in addition to the pleadings for the court's consideration in determining whether it has personal jurisdiction over the defendant [see Doe v. Unocal Corp. (9th Cir 2001) 248 F3d 915, 922 (court may consider evidence presented in affidavits and declaration in determining personal jurisdiction)].

8.18[1][e] Request Court Authorization of Jurisdictional Discovery. Either party may request that the court permit discovery to aid in determining whether it has personal jurisdiction when pertinent facts bearing on the question of jurisdiction are controverted, or when a more satisfactory showing of the facts is necessary [see Data Disc, Inc. v. Systems Tech. Assocs., Inc. (9th Cir 1977) 557 F2d 1280, 1285 n1 ; Doe v. Unocal Corp. (9th Cir 2001) 248 F3d 915, 922].

Cross Reference:

Motions for discovery generally, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, see §§ 22.14 -22.34.

8.18[1][f] Request Evidentiary Hearing When Evidence Presents Disputed Facts or Credibility Issues. Either party may request that the court hold an evidentiary hearing when the pleadings and other written materials submitted to the court raise issues of credibility or disputed questions of fact with regard to whether the court has personal jurisdiction [see Data Disc, Inc. v. Systems Tech. Assocs., Inc. (9th Cir 1977) 557 F2d 1280, 1285 (district court has discretion to take evidence at preliminary hearing to resolve contested jurisdictional issues)].

8.18[2] Court Determination of Motion.

8.18[2][a] Plaintiff Bears Burden of Establishing Personal Jurisdiction. The plaintiff bears the burden of establishing the district court's personal jurisdiction over the defendant [Mattel, Inc. v. Greiner & Hausser GmbH (9th Cir 2003) 354 F3d 857, 862]. The quantum of proof required to meet that burden may vary, depending on the nature of the proceeding and the type of evidence the court permits the plaintiff to present [Data Disc, Inc. v. Systems Tech. Assocs., Inc. (9th Cir 1977) 557 F2d 1280, 1285].

8.18[2][b] Plaintiff Must Make Prima Facie Showing When Motion Is Based on Written Materials. If the court determines that it will receive only written materials, so that it holds no evidentiary hearing, the plaintiff need only make a prima facie showing of the jurisdictional facts through their pleadings and affidavits [Data Disc, Inc. v. Systems Tech. Assocs., Inc. (9th Cir 1977) 557 F2d 1280, 1285 ; Mattel, Inc. v. Greiner & Hausser GmbH (9th Cir 2003) 354 F3d 857, 862]. The materials may consist of the pleadings, declarations, affidavits, deposition testimony, exhibits, or other evidence [see Omeluk v. Langsten Slip & Batbyggeri A/S (9th Cir 1995) 52 F3d 267, 268].

Though the plaintiff cannot simply rest on the bare allegations of the complaint, the court must take uncontroverted allegations in the complaint as true [Dole Food Co. v. Watts (9th Cir 2002) 303 F3d 1104, 1108]. The court will resolve conflicts between the facts contained in the parties' affidavits in the plaintiff's favor for purposes of deciding whether a prima facie case for personal jurisdiction exists [Harris Rutsky & Co. Ins. Servs. v. Bell & Clements Ltd. (9th Cir 2003) 328 F3d 1122, 1129].

Even when the plaintiff avoids a preliminary motion to dismiss by making a prima facie showing of jurisdictional facts, the plaintiff must still prove the jurisdictional facts at trial by a preponderance of the evidence [Data Disc, Inc. v. Systems Tech. Assocs., Inc. (9th Cir 1977) 557 F2d 1280, 1285 n2].

8.18[2][c] Plaintiff Must Make Preponderance Showing If Court Holds Evidentiary Hearing. If the pleadings and other submitted materials raise issues of credibility or disputed questions of fact with regard to jurisdiction, the district court has discretion to take evidence at a preliminary hearing to resolve the contested issues [Data Disc, Inc. v. Systems Tech. Assocs., Inc. (9th Cir 1977) 557 F2d 1280, 1285]. In this situation, the plaintiff is put to full proof and must establish the jurisdictional facts by a preponderance of the evidence, just as he or she would have to do at trial [Data Disc, Inc. v. Systems Tech. Assocs., Inc. (9th Cir 1977) 557 F2d 1280, 1285 ; see, e.g., Spacey v. Burgar (CD Cal 2001) 207 F Supp2d 1037, 1042 (preponderance showing required after court held evidentiary hearing on personal jurisdiction issues)].

8.18[2][d] Court May Authorize Jurisdictional Discovery. The court may grant discovery if pertinent facts bearing on the question of jurisdiction are controverted, or if a more satisfactory showing of the facts is necessary. In granting or denying discovery, the trial court is vested with broad discretion. Its decision will not be reversed except on the clearest showing that denial of discovery results in actual and substantial prejudice to the complaining litigant [Data Disc, Inc. v. Systems Tech. Assocs., Inc. (9th Cir 1977) 557 F2d 1280, 1285 n1].

Cross Reference:

Scope of discovery generally, see Ch. 24, Restrictions on Scope and Extent of Discovery: Privileges and Work Product Protection.

8.18[2][e] Dismissal for Lack of Personal Jurisdiction Is Not on the Merits and Is Without Prejudice. In general, dismissal for lack of personal jurisdiction is not on the merits, and thus is without prejudice to refiling the action in a court of proper jurisdiction [see Grigsby v. CMI Corp. (9th Cir 1985) 765 F2d 1369, 1372 n5 (court erred in dismissing with prejudice plaintiff's suit for lack of personal jurisdiction); but see Park v. Oxford Univ. (ND Cal 1997) 35 F Supp2d 1165, 1168 , aff'd, 165 F3d 917 (9th Cir 1998) (court dismissed suit with prejudice for lack of personal jurisdiction because plaintiff's claim arose out of expulsion from a British university, and it appeared there was no way for plaintiff to establish claim arose out of the university's activities in California)].

8.18[2][f] Court May Transfer Rather Than Dismiss Action. Instead of dismissing an action when it lacks personal jurisdiction, a district court may transfer the action to the appropriate federal court, even though it lacks personal jurisdiction over the defendants, if dismissal would unjustly deny the plaintiff adjudication on the merits [see Goldlawr, Inc. v. Heiman (1962) 369 US 463, 466-467, 82 S Ct 913, 8 L Ed2d 39 (district court may transfer action under 28 USC § 1406(a))]. However, transfer is only proper if it is in the interest of justice [see Wood v. Santa Barbara Chamber of Commerce, Inc. (9th Cir 1983) 705 F2d 1515, 1523 , cert. denied, 465 US 1081 (1984) (justice not served by transferring plaintiff's claims back to jurisdiction he purposefully sought to avoid through blatant forum shopping)].

IV. PREPARING MOTION TO DISMISS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 8.19

8.19 Motion to Dismiss for Improper Venue.

8.19[1] Challenge Improper Venue.

8.19[1][a] Move to Dismiss Before Filing Responsive Pleading. A defendant may challenge improper venue by asserting a motion to dismiss for improper venue under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(3) before filing a responsive pleading. The motion requires the court to decide whether venue is proper in the district in which the plaintiff filed suit. When venue in a particular judicial district is improper, the court must dismiss the action [28 USC § 1406(a); Abrams Shell v. Shell Oil Co. (CD Cal 2001) 165 F Supp2d 1096, 1102]. Or if the court finds that it is in the interests of justice, it may transfer the case to any district or division in which it could have been brought [see 28 USC § 1406(a)].

Distinguish:

A motion to dismiss based on forum non conveniens is not the same as a motion to dismiss for improper venue. Under the forum non conveniens doctrine, a court has discretion to dismiss a case even if jurisdiction and venue are proper [American Dredging Co. v. Miller (1994) 510 US 443, 448, 114 S Ct 981, 127 L Ed2d 285]. The doctrine of forum non conveniens is based on the inconvenience of the chosen venue, not the impropriety of venue under federal statutes [American Dredging Co. v. Miller (1994) 510 US 443, 448-449, 114 S Ct 981, 127 L Ed2d 285]. The forum non conveniens doctrine does not apply unless venue is proper [see 28 USC § 1404].

Unless an action is brought under a statute specifically providing for venue, the proper venue for an action in federal court is determined under the general venue statute [see 28 USC § 1391]. The general venue statute governs venue in actions in which federal jurisdiction is based solely on diversity [see 28 USC § 1391(a)], and in which federal jurisdiction is not based solely on diversity [see 28 USC § 1391(b)]. In addition, the general venue statute provides for venue in actions brought against a corporation, a foreign citizen, an alien, a federal employee or agency, or a foreign state [see 28 USC § 1391(c)-(f)]. The statute also prescribes venue in multiparty actions based on minimal diversity [see 28 USC §§ 1369, 1391(g)].

Cross References:

Venue and forum non conveniens generally, see Ch. 2, Determining Forum (Jurisdiction and Venue), see §§ 2.48 -2.60. Form of motion to dismiss for improper venue, see § 8.35.

8.19[1][b] Motion Is Proper for Enforcing Forum Selection Clause. In the Ninth Circuit, a motion to dismiss based on a forum selection clause is treated as a motion to dismiss for improper venue under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(3) [see, e.g., American Home Assurance Co. v. TGL Container Lines, Ltd. (ND Cal 2004) 347 F Supp2d 749]. Thus, in determining the motion to dismiss, the court need not accept the pleadings as true, and may properly consider facts outside the pleadings [Argueta v. Banco Mexicano, S.A. (9th Cir 1996) 87 F3d 320, 324]. Nonetheless, the trial court must draw all reasonable inferences and resolve all factual conflicts in favor of the non-moving party [Murphy v. Schneider Nat'l, Inc. (9th Cir 2004) 362 F3d 1133, 1138].

Other circuits are split concerning the appropriate vehicle for a motion to dismiss based on enforcement of a forum selection clause [see Kerobo v. Southwestern Clean Fuels, Corp. (6th Cir 2002) 285 F3d 531, 534-536 (noting circuit split as to whether motion to dismiss based on forum selection clause should be brought under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(3) or Fed R Civ P 12(b)(6))]. Some circuits treat motions to enforce a forum selection clause as motions to dismiss for failure to state a claim on which relief can be granted under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(6) [see, e.g., Silva v. Encyclopedia Britannica Inc. (1st Cir 2001) 239 F3d 385, 387-388 ; Salovaara v. Jackson Nat'l Life Ins. Co. (3d Cir 2001) 246 F3d 289, 298-299]. The distinction is important because it affects whether and at what point the defense is waivable, which party bears the burden of proof on the motion, and what standards must be applied by the court in determining the motion.

Cross References:

Forum selection and enforcement generally, see Ch. 2, Determining Forum (Jurisdiction and Venue).

Discussion of the split in authority, see 17 Moore's Federal Practice, § 111.04[b] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

8.19[1][c] Avoid Waiving Objection to Venue. A defendant must assert the defense of improper venue as part of the first responsive pleading, or as a separate motion to dismiss as a first response to the plaintiff's complaint, or the objection is waived [King v. Russell (9th Cir 1992) 963 F2d 1301, 1305 , cert. denied, 507 US 913 (1993) ; Abrams Shell v. Shell Oil Co. (CD Cal 2001) 165 F Supp2d 1096, 1102 ; see Fed R Civ P 12(b), (h)(1)]. Waiver may also occur through the defendant's conduct during pendency of the action [see, e.g., Commercial Cas. Ins. Co. v. Consolidated Stone Co. (1929) 278 US 177, 49 S Ct 98, 73 L Ed 252].

Distinguish:

A defendant does not waive the right to object to venue merely by removing the case from state to federal court [see Tokio Marine & Fire Ins. Co. v. Nippon Express U.S.A., Inc. (CD Cal 2000) 118 F Supp2d 997, 999-1000 ; Tanzman v. Midwest Exp. Airlines, Inc. (SD Cal 1996) 916 F Supp 1013, 1018].

Cross References:

Waiver of right to object to venue generally, see Ch. 2, Determining Forum (Jurisdiction and Venue), see § 2.58. Effect of removal, see Ch. 3, Removing a State Court Case to Federal Court.

8.19[1][d] Combine Motion With Motion to Transfer. A defendant may combine a motion to dismiss for improper venue under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(3) with a motion to transfer for improper venue pursuant to 28 USC § 1406(a). Counsel may also combine a motion to dismiss for improper venue with a motion to transfer for convenience under 28 USC § 1404(a), as an alternative to be considered by the court should it find the case is properly venued [see, e.g., Injen Tech. Co. v. Advanced Engine Mgmt., Inc. (SD Cal 2003) 270 F Supp2d 1189, 1192].

Cross: Reference:

Venue and forum selection generally, see Ch. 2, Determining Forum (Jurisdiction and Venue), see §§ 2.48 -2.60.

8.19[1][e] Submit Supplemental Written Materials in Support of Motion. Counsel may submit written materials outside of the pleadings, such as sworn affidavits and exhibits, for the court to consider in ruling on a motion to dismiss for improper venue [see Argueta v. Banco Mexicano, S.A. (9th Cir 1996) 87 F3d 320, 324 ; Murphy v. Schneider Nat'l, Inc. (9th Cir 2004) 362 F3d 1133, 1137]. Submitting written materials does not transform the motion to dismiss into a motion for summary judgment [Argueta v. Banco Mexicano, S.A. (9th Cir 1996) 87 F3d 320, 324].

Cross Reference:

Motions for summary judgment, see Ch. 29, Summary Judgment, see §§ 29.03 -29.13.

8.19[1][f] Request Discovery to Resolve Disputed Issues of Fact. Either party may request leave to conduct discovery on factual issues related to the motion to dismiss for improper venue [see Hayashi v. Red Wing Peat Corp. (9th Cir 1968) 396 F2d 13, 14]. The court should grant discovery when it would be useful in resolving issues of fact presented by the motion [Hayashi v. Red Wing Peat Corp. (9th Cir 1968) 396 F2d 13, 14].

Cross Reference:

Discovery motions generally, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, see §§ 22.14 -22.34.

8.19[1][g] Request Evidentiary Hearing to Resolve Conflicts in Evidence. If the motion to dismiss for improper venue raises genuine factual issues, either party may request that the court hold motion in abeyance until it holds an evidentiary hearing on the disputed facts [see Fed R Civ P 12(i); Murphy v. Schneider Nat'l, Inc. (9th Cir 2004) 362 F3d 1133, 1139-1140 (permitting hearing in context of forum selection clause enforcement)].

8.19[1][h] Plaintiff Bears Burden of Proof. The rule in the Ninth Circuit as to who bears the burden of proof on venue is unclear. District courts in the Ninth Circuit have held that the plaintiff bears the burden of establishing that the venue he or she originally selected is proper [Nissan Motor Co. v. Nissan Computer Corp. (CD Cal 2000) 89 F Supp2d 1154, 1161 , aff'd, 246 F3d 675 (9th Cir 2000) (although there is some disagreement, most courts hold that the plaintiff bears the burden of establishing proper venue); see Koresko v. Realnetworks, Inc. (ED Cal 2003) 291 F Supp2d 1157, 1160 ; cf. Piedmont Label Co. v. Sun Garden Packing Co. (9th Cir 1979) 598 F2d 491, 496 (plaintiff has burden of showing venue is proper in motion for summary judgment based on improper venue)].

However, the Northern District has placed the burden of proof on the defendants. For example, a judge determined the burden to be on the defendant after finding no Ninth Circuit authority on the issue, and based on a conclusion that in any event, the defendant's forum non conveniens motion to transfer under 28 USC § 1404(a) was proper [Carolina Cas. Co. v. Data Broad. Corp. (ND Cal 2001) 158 F Supp2d 1044, 1047]. Another judge has noted that the "burden to prove venue is generally and properly placed on defendant, as the doctrine protects defendant's privilege to avoid litigation in inconvenient forums" [Dudash v. Varnell Struck & Assocs. (ND Cal 2004) 2004 US Dist LEXIS 24872, at *6].

There is a split of authority among the other circuits on this issue, with several circuits holding that the moving party bears the burden of establishing that venue is improper [see, e.g., Myers v. American Dental Ass'n (3d Cir 1982) 695 F2d 716, 724 , cert. denied, 462 US 1106 (1983) ; Simon v. Ward (ED Pa 2000) 80 F Supp2d 464, 466-468 ; In re Peachtree Lane Assocs., Ltd. (7th Cir 1998) 150 F3d 788, 794].

Strategic Point--Defendant:

Because of the uncertainty regarding the burden of proof, counsel should assume that he or she has the burden of establishing that venue is improper. If the defendant fails to make a prima facie showing that venue is improper, it is likely that the judge will deny the motion without addressing the burden issue. If the defendant makes a prima facie showing that venue is improper, then the court is likely to shift the burden to the plaintiff to establish that venue is proper.

Cross Reference:

Split of authority on burden of proof on determining motions to dismiss for improper venue, see 17 Moore's Federal Practice, § 110.01[5][c] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

8.19[2] Court Will Transfer or Dismiss Action If Venue Is Improper. If the court finds that the plaintiff has commenced the action in a district in which venue is not proper, the court will transfer or dismiss the action [Abrams Shell v. Shell Oil Co. (CD Cal 2001) 165 F Supp2d 1096, 1103 ; see 28 USC § 1406(a)]. A dismissal for improper venue is not on the merits and does not preclude refiling the action in another forum where venue is proper [see Fed R Civ P 41(b); Offshore Sportswear, Inc. v. Vuarnet Int'l, B.V. (9th Cir 1997) 114 F3d 848, 850].

Transfer is proper when the court finds it to be in the interest of justice [see 28 USC § 1406(a); Abrams Shell v. Shell Oil Co. (CD Cal 2001) 165 F Supp2d 1096, 1103]. Generally, it is preferable to transfer the case rather than to dismiss it altogether [Abrams Shell v. Shell Oil Co. (CD Cal 2001) 165 F Supp2d 1096, 1103].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

A plaintiff combating a motion to dismiss for improper venue should consider including in opposition papers a request for transfer in lieu of dismissal should the court find venue improper [see Johnson v. Payless Drug Stores NW, Inc. (9th Cir 1991) 950 F2d 586, 588 , cert. denied, 505 US 1225 (1992) (court did not abuse discretion in dismissing action without prejudice rather than transferring it to appropriate venue because plaintiff did not ask for transfer and actively avoided it)].

A court may not transfer an action for improper venue unless it has subject matter jurisdiction [Abrams Shell v. Shell Oil Co. (CD Cal 2001) 165 F Supp2d 1096, 1103]. Moreover, it is only proper to transfer venue to a court where the case originally could have been brought. In other words, the transferee court must have proper subject matter jurisdiction, must have proper venue, and must be able to exercise personal jurisdiction [Abrams Shell v. Shell Oil Co. (CD Cal 2001) 165 F Supp2d 1096, 1103 ; see 28 USC § 1406(a)].

Distinguish:

The transferor court need not have personal jurisdiction over the defendant to order transfer. The court may order the case transferred so that personal jurisdiction can be established in the transferee court [Abrams Shell v. Shell Oil Co. (CD Cal 2001) 165 F Supp2d 1096, 1103 ; see Goldlawr, Inc. v. Heiman (1962) 369 US 463, 466-467, 82 S Ct 913, 8 L Ed2d 39].

When the proper venue is in a foreign country, the district court lacks authority to transfer the action and must dismiss it if venue is improper [SeeComm Network Servs. Corp. v. Colt Telecomms. (ND Cal 2004) 2004 US Dist LEXIS 18049, at *6].

Strategic Point--Defendant:

If a motion to dismiss for improper venue is denied, and no motion for transfer under 28 USC § 1404(a) for the convenience of the parties and witnesses, and in the interests of justice, was submitted, the court sua sponte may order such a transfer [see Dudash v. Varnell Struck & Assocs. (ND Cal 2004) 2004 US

Dist LEXIS 24872, at *12].

8.20 Motion to Dismiss for Insufficient Process or Service of Process.

8.20[1] Challenge Sufficiency of Process or Service of Process.

8.20[1][a] File Rule 12(b)(4) or 12(b)(5) Motion. A defendant may challenge the sufficiency of the summons, or the sufficiency of its service, by filing a motion to dismiss under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(4) or Fed R Civ P 12(b)(5), respectively [U.S.A. Nutrasource, Inc. v. CNA Ins. Co. (ND Cal 2001) 140 F Supp2d 1049, 1052].

A motion to dismiss for insufficient process is designed to challenge irregularities in the contents of the summons [see Fed R Civ P 12(b)(4); Chilicky v. Schweiker (9th Cir 1986) 796 F2d 1131, 1136 , rev'd on other grounds, 487 US 412 (1988)].

A motion to dismiss for insufficient service of process is designed to challenge irregularities in the manner of delivery of the summons and complaint [see Fed R Civ P 12(b)(5); Chilicky v. Schweiker (9th Cir 1986) 796 F2d 1131, 1136 , rev'd on other grounds, 487 US 412 (1988)]. The motion should point out specifically the manner in which the plaintiff has failed to satisfy applicable summons or service requirements [see O'Brien v. R.J. O'Brien & Assocs. (7th Cir 1993) 998 F2d 1394, 1400].

Distinguish--Motion to Quash:

Though federal courts have authority to quash defective service of process as an alternative to dismissing a complaint for defective service, the federal rules technically do not provide for motions to quash. A motion to dismiss under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(5) is the correct provision for challenging defective service of process [see R. Griggs Group Ltd. v. Filanto Spa (D Nev 1996) 920 F Supp 1100, 1102].

Distinguish--Lack of Service:

A motion to dismiss for insufficient service deals with failures occurring in attempts to serve as opposed to a complete failure to make timely service. Thus, a plaintiff's complete failure to serve should be attacked through a motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(2).

Cross References:

Requirements for proper summons, see Ch. 6, Drafting the Summons and Complaint, see §§ 6.18 -6.21.
Proper service of summons, see Ch. 7, Service of Summons.

8.20[1][b] Dismissals for Technical Defects in Form or Service of Summons Are Disfavored. Counsel should consider that dismissals for defects in the form of summons are generally disfavored. These defects are considered technical, and thus are not grounds for dismissal unless the defendant demonstrates actual prejudice [U.S.A. Nutrasource, Inc. v. CNA Ins. Co. (ND Cal 2001) 140 F Supp2d 1049, 1052].

Similarly, a plaintiff's failure to comply with technical rules governing service of process does not necessarily require dismissal of the plaintiff's claims [see Borzeka v. Heckler (9th Cir 1984) 739 F2d 444, 446 (involving pro se plaintiff)]. For example, dismissal for a plaintiff's failure to comply with personal service requirements on an officer or agency of the United States under Fed R Civ P 4(d)(5) is inappropriate if (1) the party to be served received actual notice; (2) the defendant suffers no prejudice from the defect in service; (3) there is a justifiable excuse for the failure to properly serve; and (4) the plaintiff would be severely prejudiced if his or her complaint were dismissed [Borzeka v. Heckler (9th Cir 1984) 739 F2d 444, 447].

8.20[1][c] Avoid Waiving Defense of Insufficient Process or Service of Process. To avoid waiving the defense of insufficient process or insufficient service of process, a defendant must assert them in a motion to dismiss or in the initial responsive pleading, if one is required [see Fed R Civ P 12(b)]. Both insufficient process and insufficient service of process are waived if omitted from a motion to dismiss, or if not included in the defendant's answer [see Fed R Civ P 12(g), (h)(1); Schnabel v. Lui (9th Cir 2002) 302 F3d 1023, 1033].

Warning:

A plaintiff's failure to follow local rules governing service of process is a basis for objecting to the sufficiency of process or its service. Thus failure to properly object to violations of local rules may result in waiver of a defense under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(4) or Fed R Civ P 12(b)(5) [see Hays v. United Fireworks Mfg. Co. (9th Cir 1969) 420 F2d 836, 843-844 (sufficiency of process waived)]. Counsel is therefore advised to become familiar with local rules governing service of process.

Cross References:

Requirements for proper summons, see Ch. 6, Drafting the Summons and Complaint, see §§ 6.18 -6.21.
Proper service of summons, see Ch. 7, Service of Summons.

A defendant's conduct during the pendency of the action may also result in waiver of the defense of improper process or service [see McWherter v. CBI Servs., Inc. (D Haw 1994) 153 FRD 161, 164-165 , aff'd, 105 F3d 665 (9th Cir 1997) (improper service case)].

Example:

A defendant's full participation in a case for nearly two years before filing its motion to dismiss excused the plaintiff's initial failure of service, since it lulled the plaintiff into believing that service had been accomplished [see Ditkof v. Owens-Illinois, Inc. (ED Mich 1987) 114 FRD 104, 105].

8.20[1][d] Submit Supplemental Materials With Motion. Parties may submit supplemental materials with a motion to dismiss under both Fed R Civ P 12(b)(4) and Fed R Civ P 12(b)(5). These materials may include sworn affidavits, exhibits, depositions, and even oral testimony. Submission of materials does not convert the motion into one for summary judgment [see Travelers Cas. & Sur. Co. of Am. v. Telstar Const. Co. (D Ariz 2003) 252 F Supp2d 917, 922-923].

8.20[2] Court Determination of Motion.

8.20[2][a] Burden Is on Plaintiff to Show Valid Service. The plaintiff carries the burden of establishing that he or she has properly effected service [see Hilska v. Jones (DDC 2003) 217 FRD 16]. Similarly, once a party challenges the sufficiency of service under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(5), the party on whose behalf service is made has the burden of establishing its validity [Hickory Travel Sys. Inc. v. Tui Ag (ND Cal 2003) 213 FRD 547, 550]. A signed acknowledgment of service is prima facie evidence of valid service [see O'Brien v. R.J. O'Brien & Assocs. (7th Cir 1993) 998 F2d 1394, 1398].

8.20[2][b] Court May Conduct Hearing to Determine Contested Issues. When motions to dismiss for insufficient process or insufficient service of process present genuine factual issues, it may be appropriate for the district court to hold the motion in abeyance until it holds an evidentiary hearing on the disputed facts [see Fed R Civ P 12(i)].

8.20[2][c] Dismissal Is Without Prejudice. Typically, dismissal for insufficient process or service of process is without prejudice to the plaintiff's ability to refile the case [see, e.g., McLamb v. United States Dep't of Treasury (SD Cal 1994) 858 F Supp 1042, 1043 (dismissal under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(5))].

8.20[2][d] Court May Dismiss for Improper Service or May Retain and Quash Service. A court may dismiss an action for lack of sufficiency of service of process [Hickory Travel Sys., Inc. v. Tui Ag (ND Cal 2003) 213 FRD 547, 553 ; see Fed R Civ P 12(b)(5)]. However, courts are generally reluctant to dismiss an action based on insufficient service of process, since it is typically without prejudice, and often leads to reinstitution of suit after burdening the plaintiff with additional expense and postponing adjudication of the merits [see In re Johnston Hawks, Ltd. (Bankr D Haw 1985) 49 BR 823, 828].

In the alternative, the court may retain jurisdiction but quash service. If there is a chance that the plaintiff still can accomplish service, the latter remedy is preferred [Hickory Travel Sys., Inc. v. Tui Ag (ND Cal 2003) 213 FRD 547, 553].

IV. PREPARING MOTION TO DISMISS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 8.21

8.21 Motion to Dismiss for Failure to State Claim on Which Relief Can Be Granted.

8.21[1] Challenge Complaint for Failure to State Claim.

8.21[1][a] Consider That Motion Is Disfavored. A motion for failure to state a claim is not a procedure for resolving a contest about the facts or merits of the case [Neilson v. Union Bank of Cal., N.A. (CD Cal 2003) 290 F Supp2d 1101, 1151]. Dismissal for failure to state a claim is appropriate only when the plaintiff can prove no set of facts supporting relief [Guerrero v. Gates (9th Cir 2004) 357 F3d 911, 916]. Accordingly, the motion is viewed with disfavor and is rarely granted [Gilligan v. Jamco Dev. Corp. (9th Cir 1997) 108 F3d 246, 249 ; Gallardo v. DiCarlo (CD Cal 2002) 203 F Supp2d 1160, 1164-1165].

8.21[1][b] File Motion to Dismiss. A defendant may object to the plaintiff's complaint for failing to state a claim on which relief can be granted by filing a motion to dismiss [see Fed R Civ P 12(b)(6)]. The purpose of a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(6) is to test the formal sufficiency of the plaintiff's statement of the claim for relief [Conley v. Gibson (1957) 355 US 41, 45-46, 78 S Ct 99, 2 L Ed2d 80 ; Navarro v. Block (9th Cir 2001) 250 F3d 729, 732].

Cross Reference:

Form, see § 8.38.

8.21[1][c] Bases for Defense. Essentially, a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim tests the plaintiff's compliance with the liberal pleading requirements of Fed R Civ P 8(a)(2) [Gallardo v. DiCarlo (CD Cal 2002) 203 F Supp2d 1160, 1165 ; see Fed R Civ P 8(a)(2)]. Thus, a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim is appropriate when:

- The complaint lacks a cognizable legal theory [Navarro v. Block (9th Cir 2001) 250 F3d 729, 732 ; Balistreri v. Pacifica Police Dep't (9th Cir 1988) 901 F2d 696, 699];

- The complaint lacks sufficient facts to allege a cognizable legal theory [Navarro v. Block (9th Cir 2001) 250 F3d 729, 732 ; Balistreri v. Pacifica Police Dep't (9th Cir 1988) 901 F2d 696, 699]; or

- An affirmative defense or other bar to relief is apparent from the face of the complaint [see Groten v. California (9th Cir 2001) 251 F3d 844, 851].

8.21[1][d] Defenses Under Rule 9(b) Treated As Rule 12(b)(6) Motions. Allegations of fraud and mistake in a complaint must be stated with particularity [see Fed R Civ P 9(b)]. In this context, "particularity" means the plaintiff's allegations must be specific enough to give the defendant notice of the particular misconduct alleged to constitute the defense asserted so that the plaintiff can defend against the charge and not just deny that it has done anything wrong [see Semegen v. Weidner (9th Cir 1985) 780 F2d 727, 731 ; Wenger v. Lumisys, Inc. (ND Cal 1998) 2 F Supp2d 1231, 1239].

Though failure to state allegations of fraud or mistake with particularity is not among the defenses set forth in Fed R Civ P 12(b), the Ninth Circuit, in analyzing a motion to dismiss a fraud or mistake claim under Rule 9(b) for failure to plead with particularity, held that the district court properly dismissed the complaint because a Rule 9(b) motion is the equivalent of a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(6) [see Vess v. Ciba-Geigy Corp. USA (9th Cir 2003) 317 F3d 1097, 1107-1108].

Strategic Point--Defendant:

Even when the defendant believes that a complaint is deficient only under Fed R Civ P 9(b), the defendant is not limited to serving an answer including the Rule 9(b) defense rather than a motion to dismiss. In the Ninth Circuit, Rule 9(b) defenses may be asserted in either an answer or a motion to dismiss [see Vess v. Ciba-Geigy Corp. USA (9th Cir 2003) 317 F3d 1097, 1107-1108].

8.21[1][e] Defense of Failure to State Claim Not Waived by Failure to Assert in Motion or Responsive Pleading. The defense of failure to state a claim is not waived if not asserted in a motion to dismiss, or in the first responsive pleading if a further pleading is permitted [see Fed R Civ P 12(b)]. The defense also may be made in a pleading permitted or ordered under Fed R Civ P 7(a), in a motion for judgment on the pleadings, and even at trial on the merits [see Fed R Civ P 12(h)(2)].

8.21[1][f] Limited Supplemental Materials May Be Submitted to Court With Motion. Unlike other motions to dismiss under Fed R Civ P 12(b), a district court generally may not consider any material beyond the pleadings in ruling on a Rule 12(b)(6) motion [Lee v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir 2001) 250 F3d 668, 688-689]. If a defendant presents the court with matters outside the pleadings that the court does not exclude, it must treat the motion to dismiss as one for summary judgment [see Fed R Civ P 12(b); Fed R Civ P 56]. Accordingly, a defendant's submission of supplemental materials for consideration along with the complaint risks converting the motion into a motion for summary judgment under Fed R Civ P 56 [see Fed R Civ P 12(b)].

However, the Ninth Circuit has carved out exceptions to the conversion rule, which permit the court to consider the following supplemental materials along with the complaint without converting the motion into a motion for summary judgment [United States v. Ritchie (9th Cir 2003) 342 F3d 903, 908]:

- Material, such as exhibits, properly submitted as part of the complaint;

- Documents that are not part of the complaint if they are referenced extensively in the complaint, and are accepted by all parties as authentic; and

- Matters of public record of which the court may take judicial notice under Fed R Evid 201.

Thus, when the defendant offers such materials to the court for consideration with the motion, the court may treat the material as part of the complaint, and therefore may assume that its contents are true for purposes of the motion to dismiss under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(6) [see United States v. Ritchie (9th Cir 2003) 342 F3d 903, 908].

Examples:

A court, in an eminent domain action, may take judicial notice of a Department of Energy study not included in the pleadings, as a matter of public record, without converting the motion to dismiss into one for summary judgment [United States v. 14.01 Acres of Land More or Less (9th Cir 2008) 547 F3d 943, 955].

A court may consider the contents of a coverage plan referenced in the complaint and accepted as authentic by the parties in support of a motion to dismiss the plaintiff's claim about insurance coverage [see Parrino v. FHP, Inc. (9th Cir 1998) 146 F3d 699, 705-706 , cert. denied, 525 US 1001 (1998)].

A court may consider the contents of SEC filings alleged in the complaint and whose authenticity no party questions to support a motion to dismiss the plaintiff's stock fraud claim [see In re Silicon Graphics Sec. Litig. (9th Cir 1999) 183 F3d 970, 986].

A court may consider an unpublished court order from a related proceeding [see Kourtis v. Cameron (9th Cir 2005) 419 F3d 989, 994 n2].

Distinguish:

A court may not take judicial notice of a document for the truth of the facts contained in it when those facts are essential to support a contention in the action [Troy Group, Inc. v. Tilson (CD Cal 2005) 364 F Supp2d 1149, 1152 ; BP W. Coast Prods. LLC v. May (D Nev 2004) 347 F Supp2d 898, 901].

8.21[2] Plaintiff May Amend Complaint in Response to Rule 12(b)(6) Motion. A party is entitled to amend his or her pleading once as a matter of course within 21 days after serving it [Fed R Civ P 15(a)(1)(A)]. If the pleading is one to which a responsive pleading is required, the party may amend within 21 days after service of the responsive pleading, or within 21 days after service of a motion under Rule 12(b), (e), or (f), whichever is earlier [Fed R Civ P 15(a)(1)(B)]. A motion to dismiss is not a responsive pleading under the federal rule governing amendment of pleadings [Doe v. United States (9th Cir 1995) 58 F3d 494, 497 ; see Fed R Civ P 15(a)].

Thus, if a defendant asserts the defense of failure to state a claim in a motion to dismiss rather than an answer, the plaintiff has an absolute right to file an amended complaint without leave of court [see Fed R Civ P 15(a); Shaver v. Operating Eng'rs Local 428 Pension Trust Fund (9th Cir 2003) 332 F3d 1198, 1201].

Cross Reference:

Amending pleadings generally, see Ch. 9, Amending and Supplementing Pleadings.

8.21[3] Court Determination of Motion.

8.21[3][a] Moving Party Bears Burden of Demonstrating Failure to State Valid Claim. The party bringing a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim bears the burden of demonstrating that the plaintiff has not met the pleading requirements of Fed R Civ P 8(a)(2) in stating a claim [Gallardo v. DiCarlo (CD Cal 2002) 203 F Supp2d 1160, 1165]. Rule 8(a)(2) requires parties seeking relief in federal court by a complaint to include "a short and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief" [see Fed R Civ P 8(a)(2)].

8.21[3][b] Court Applies Plausibility Standard to Allegations in Complaint. The court is not required to accept legal conclusions cast in the form of factual allegations if those conclusions cannot reasonably be drawn from the facts alleged [Ashcroft v. Iqbal (2009) ___ US ___, 129 S Ct 1937, 173 L Ed2d 868, 884 (conclusory legal allegations are not entitled to assumption of truth; they must be supported by factual allegations); Moss v. United States Secret Serv. (9th Cir. 2009) 572 F3d 962, 969 ("for a complaint to survive a motion to dismiss, the non-conclusory 'factual content,' and reasonable inferences from that content, must be plausibly suggestive of a claim entitling the plaintiff to relief"); St. Clare v. Gilead Sciences, Inc. (In re Gilead Sciences Sec. Litig.) (9th Cir 2008) 536 F3d 1049, 1055 (court is not required to accept as true "allegations that are merely conclusory, unwarranted deductions of fact, or unreasonable inferences")].

A complaint must be dismissed if it does not plead "enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face" [Bell Atlantic Corp. v. Twombly (2007) 550 US 544, 127 S Ct 1955, 167 L Ed 2d 929, 949]. In other words, the factual allegations in the complaint "must be enough to raise a right to relief above the speculative level" [Bell Atlantic Corp. v. Twombly (2007) 550 US 544, 127 S Ct 1955, 167 L Ed2d 929, 940]. While Fed R Civ P 8 does not require the pleading of "detailed factual allegations," a plaintiff nevertheless must plead sufficient facts "to provide the 'grounds' of his 'entitle[ment] to relief,' [which] requires more than labels and conclusions, and [for which] a formulaic recitation of the elements of a cause of action will not do" [Bell Atlantic Corp. v. Twombly (2007) 550 US 544, 127 S Ct 1955, 167 L Ed2d 929, 940; see, e.g., Rick-Mik Enterprises, Inc. v. Equilon Enterprises LLC (9th Cir 2008) 532 F.3d 963, 970-971 (in antitrust action against gasoline station franchisor, allegations of "tying arrangement" involving purchase of franchise and credit card services were insufficient to state claim for relief, citing Twombly); Alvarez v. Hill (9th Cir 2008) 518 F3d 1152, 1157 (plaintiff's complaint and subsequent filings provided appellees with "fair notice" of that claim, even though relevant statute was not cited in complaint itself, citing Twombly); see also Skaff v. Meridien N. Am. Beverly Hills L.L.C. (9th Cir 2007) 506 F3d 832, 842 (plaintiff must allege facts "that affirmatively and plausibly suggest" he has the claimed right, not just "facts that are merely consistent with such a right")].

In the context of pro se litigation, the Supreme Court has held that "[s]pecific facts are not necessary" to meet the requirements of Fed R Civ P 8(a). Rather, that rule "requires only a short and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief" [Erickson v. Pardus (2007) 551 US 89, 127 S Ct 2197, 167 L Ed2d 1081, 1085 (petitioner had stated an Eighth Amendment claim when he alleged that prison officials had endangered his life by removing him from hepatitis C medication shortly after he began year-long treatment regimen, that he was still in need of treatment, and that prison officials continued to deny him treatment)]. A document filed pro se is to be "liberally construed," and a pro se complaint, "however inartfully pleaded, must be held to less stringent standards than formal pleadings drafted by lawyers" [Erickson v. Pardus (2007) 551 US 89, 127 S Ct 2197, 167 L Ed2d 1081, 1086].

8.21[3][c] Court Must Only Consider Pleadings in Ruling on 12(b)(6) Motion. As a general rule, a district court may not consider any material beyond the pleadings in ruling on a motion to dismiss under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(6) [Lee v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir 2001) 250 F3d 668, 688]. Thus, if the court considers matters outside the pleadings, it must treat the motion as one for summary judgment [see Fed R Civ P 12(b), 56]. The pleadings include any properly submitted attachments [Wan v. Commercial Recovery Sys., Inc. (ND Cal 2005) 369 F Supp2d 1158, 1161].

Cross Reference:

Standard governing summary judgment motions, see Ch. 29, Summary Judgment, see §§ 29.26 -29.29.

8.21[3][d] Considering Matters Outside Complaint Converts Rule 12(b)(6) Motion to Summary Judgment Motion. If a party presents the district court with matters outside the pleadings that the court does not exclude, it must treat the motion to dismiss as one for summary judgment [see Fed R Civ P 12(b), 56]. On conversion of a motion to dismiss under Rule 12(b)(6) to a Rule 56 motion, the court must give all parties a reasonable opportunity to present material pertinent to a motion for summary judgment [see Fed R Civ P 12(b), 56].

However, a Rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss supported by extraneous materials cannot be regarded as one for summary judgment until the district court acts to convert the motion. The preferable method of "acting" is for the court to make an explicit ruling that it will not exclude extraneous materials from its consideration [Swedberg v. Marotzke (9th Cir 2003) 339 F3d 1139, 1146].

8.21[3][e] Court Need Not Provide Notice of Conversion but Must Ensure Nonmoving Party Is Fully Apprised. In the Ninth Circuit, no formal notice is required when a district court converts a Rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss into a motion for summary judgment [In re Fernandez (9th Cir 1998) 227 BR 174, 180 , aff'd, 208 F3d 220

(9th Cir BAP 2000)]. Rather, the court must fairly apprise the nonmoving party before the hearing that the court will look beyond the pleadings. A party is "fairly appraised" that the court will decide the motion to dismiss as a summary judgment motion if that party has submitted matters outside the pleadings to the judge and invites consideration of them [In re Rothery (9th Cir 1998) 143 F3d 546, 549].

Warning:

Before its amendment in December 2009, Rule 56(c) specifically required 10 days' notice for any summary judgment (see former Fed R Civ P 56(c)]. The courts had clearly determined that, under this provision, the court could not act sua sponte without providing the parties the same 10 days' notice that a party would have to give to make a written motion or, in appropriate circumstances, assuring itself that the parties had the same notice and opportunity to present a full record on the critical issues even without formal notice [see, e.g., In re Rothery (9th Cir 1998) 143 F3d 546, 549] . However, under the 2009 amendment, there is no longer any specific provision requiring any minimum period of notice of the motion for a valid summary judgment [see Fed R Civ P 56(c)(1)(B)]. Therefore, it is not clear how much, if any, notice is required before a court may act sua sponte. Further, a court may grant summary judgment without giving notice if the losing party has had a full and fair opportunity to ventilate the issues involved in the motion [In re Rothery (9th Cir 1998) 143 F3d 546, 549].

Cross Reference:

Standards governing court determination of motions for summary judgment, see Ch. 29, Summary Judgment, see §§ 29.26 -29.29. For detailed discussion of uncertainty stemming from elimination of the specific, 10-day minimum notice requirement for summary judgment motions, see 11 Moore's Federal Practice, § 56.10[2][c] -[e] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

8.21[3][f] Dismissal Is on Merits and Without Prejudice. Ordinarily, dismissals for failure to state a claim under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(6) should be without prejudice to the plaintiff's ability to file an amended pleading [Balistreri v. Pacifica Police Dep't (9th Cir 1988) 901 F2d 696, 701]. Dismissal without granting leave to amend is proper only in extraordinary cases [Broam v. Bogan (9th Cir 2003) 320 F3d 1023, 1028]. Thus, a district court should grant leave to amend if it appears at all possible that the plaintiff can correct the defect [Balistreri v. Pacifica Police Dep't (9th Cir 1988) 901 F2d 696, 701]. Indeed, the court should grant leave to amend even if the plaintiff makes no request to amend the pleading, unless the court determines that the pleading could not possibly be cured by the allegation of other facts [Lira v. Herrera (9th Cir 2005) 427 F3d 1164, 1169 ; Doe v. United States (9th Cir 1995) 58 F3d 494, 497].

Denial of leave to amend is not an abuse of discretion if the district court could reasonably conclude that further amendment would be futile [Kendall v. Visa U.S.A., Inc. (9th Cir 2008) 518 F3d 1042, 1051] . Amendment is futile only if no set of facts can be proved under the amendment to the pleadings that would constitute a valid and sufficient claim [Miller v. Rykoff-Sexton Inc. (9th Cir 1988) 845 F2d 209, 214 ; Van Winkle v. Allstate Ins. Co. (CD Cal 2003) 290 F Supp2d 1158, 1169]. In addition, a district court's discretion to deny leave to amend is particularly broad when the plaintiff has previously amended the complaint [Wagh v. Metris Direct, Inc. (9th Cir 2003) 348 F3d 1102, 1111 , cert. denied, 541 US 1043 (2004)]. In that situation, the plaintiff's failure to supply new facts in the amended complaint supports denial of further leave to amend [Allen v. City of Beverly Hills (9th Cir 1990) 911 F2d 367, 373].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

An order dismissing a complaint for failure to state a claim and giving the plaintiff leave to amend is not a final appealable judgment. A plaintiff who chooses not to amend must file a written notice of intent not to file an amended complaint. After this notice is filed, the district court may enter an order dismissing the entire action, which order is appealable [Lira v. Herrera (9th Cir 2005) 427 F3d 1164 , 1169; Yourish v. Cal. Amplifier (9th Cir 1999) 191 F3d 983, 992 ; WMX Techs., Inc. v. Miller (9th Cir 1997)

104 F3d 1133, 1136].

CHAPTER 8 Answers and Responsive Motions Under Rule 12
IV. PREPARING MOTION TO DISMISS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 8.22

8.22 Motion to Dismiss for Failure to Join Indispensable Party.

8.22[1] Challenge Failure to Join Indispensable Party.

8.22[1][a] Raise Failure to Join Indispensable Party Under Rule 19. A defendant challenges a plaintiff's failure to join an indispensable party by filing a motion to dismiss under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(7) [Biagro W. Sales Inc. v. Helena Chem. Co. (ED Cal 2001) 160 F Supp2d 1136, 1141].

The district court will first determine if the absent person is "required" [Schnabel v. Lui (9th Cir 2002) 302 F3d 1023, 1029-1030 ; see Fed R Civ P 19(a)]. If that person is deemed required, but cannot be joined, the court then must determine whether the party is indispensable, so that in equity and good conscience it must dismiss the action [Schnabel v. Lui (9th Cir 2002) 302 F3d 1023, 1029-1030 ; see Fed R Civ P 19(b)].

Cross Reference:

Joinder of parties generally, see Ch. 10, Adding, Dropping, and Substituting Parties, see §§ 10.04 -10.09.

8.22[1][b] Defense May Be Raised at Any Time Through Trial. A defendant may raise the defense in any pleading permitted or ordered under Fed R Civ P 7(a), by a motion for judgment on the pleadings, and even at the trial on the merits [see Fed R Civ P 12(h)(2)]. Thus, one does not waive the defense by filing a responsive pleading prior to asserting the defense, since failure to join an indispensable party can be raised at any time [see CP Nat. Corp. v. Bonneville Power Admin. (9th Cir 1991) 928 F2d 905, 911-912].

However, a court may, in equity and good conscience, consider the timing of the motion and the reasons for any delay in asserting the defense in weighing the prejudice to the moving party by having to defend separate actions [see Ilan-Gat Engineers, Ltd. v. Antigua Intern. Bank (DC Cir 1981) 659 F2d 234, 242 ; Fetzer v. Cities Serv. Oil Co. (8th Cir 1978) 572 F2d 1250, 1254].

8.22[1][c] Submit Supplemental Materials With Motion. Adjudicating a motion to dismiss under Fed R Civ P 12(b)(7) is a practical and fact-intensive inquiry [Makah Indian Tribe v. Verity (9th Cir 1990) 910 F2d 555, 558]. Thus, either party may present facts in the form of affidavits and other relevant extra-pleading evidence to aid the court in determining the motion [see, e.g., McShan v. Sherrill (9th Cir 1960) 283 F2d 462, 464].

8.22[2] Court Determination of Motion to Dismiss for Failure to Join Party.

8.22[2][a] Moving Party Bears Burden of Proof. A motion to dismiss for failure to join an indispensable party requires the moving party to bear the burden in producing evidence to support the motion [Biagro W. Sales Inc. v. Helena Chem. Co. (ED Cal 2001) 160 F Supp2d 1136, 1141]. Thus, the party raising the defense has the burden of persuasion in showing that dismissal is necessary [Shermoen v. United States (9th Cir 1992) 982 F2d 1312, 1317 , cert. denied, 509 US 903 (1993) ; see Biagro W. Sales Inc. v. Helena Chem. Co. (ED Cal 2001) 160 F Supp2d 1136, 1141].

8.22[2][b] Court Must Apply Two-Part Analysis in Deciding Motion. The district court performs a two-step analysis under Fed R Civ P 19 to determine whether an action, in equity and good conscience, can proceed without the absent party [Biagro W. Sales Inc. v. Helena Chem. Co. (ED Cal 2001) 160 F Supp2d 1136, 1142]. Before it may reach the issue of indispensability, the district court must first find that the person the plaintiff has not joined is a required party who must be joined if joinder is feasible [see Fed R Civ P 19(a); Schnabel v. Lui (9th Cir 2002) 302 F3d 1023, 1029-1031]. Only if the court finds the absent person to be a necessary party who cannot be joined in the action must the court apply the indispensable party test [Biagro W. Sales Inc. v. Helena Chem. Co. (ED Cal 2001) 160 F Supp2d 1136, 1142 ; see Fed R Civ P 19(b)].

In this second, "indispensable party" phase, the court must determine whether the action can proceed with the existing parties, or whether it must be dismissed because of the indispensability of the absent person. In determining the indispensability of the absent person, and whether the court can allow the matter to proceed or must dismiss it, the trial court must consider [see Fed R Civ P 19(b); Schnabel v. Lui (9th Cir 2002) 302 F3d 1023, 1029-1030]:

- The extent to which a judgment rendered in the person's absence might be prejudicial to the person or to those persons who are already parties;
- The extent to which, by protective provisions in the judgment, by shaping relief, or through other measures, the court can lessen or avoid prejudice;
- Whether a judgment rendered in the person's absence will be adequate; and
- Whether the plaintiff will have an adequate remedy if the action is dismissed for nonjoinder.

8.22[2][c] Dismissal for Failure to Join Indispensable Party Is Without Prejudice. In general, a trial court's grant of a motion to dismiss for failure to join an indispensable party is without prejudice to the plaintiff's ability to amend the complaint. Denial of leave to amend after responsive pleadings have been filed is strictly reviewed in light of the strong policy permitting amendment [Shermoen v. United States (9th Cir 1992) 982 F2d 1312, 1319].

However, a district court does not err in denying leave to amend if the amendment would be futile [Shermoen v. United States (9th Cir 1992) 982 F2d 1312, 1319]. Thus, for example, if the trial court properly finds that there is no possibility of amending the complaint to join the absent parties, dismissal is not improper [see, e.g., Shermoen v. United States (9th Cir 1992) 982 F2d 1312, 1319-1320].

1-8 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 8.23

8.23 CHECKLIST: Drafting Motions to Clarify Pleadings.

8.23[1] CHECKLIST: Preparing Motion for More Definite Statement.

☐ In Central District, comply with "meet and confer" requirements before bringing motion.

○ Contact opposing counsel to discuss thoroughly, preferably in person, the substance of the contemplated motion and any potential resolution.

○ "Meet and confer" must take place at least five days before last day for filing the motion.

○ If parties are unable to reach a resolution that eliminates the reason for a hearing, include in the notice of motion, a statement that "This motion is made following the conference of counsel pursuant to L.R. 7-3 which took place on [date].

Authority:
CD Cal Civ LR 7-3

Discussion:
Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.15[1]

☐ Challenge vagueness or ambiguity of plaintiff's complaint by moving for more definite statement.

○ Assert that pleading is so vague or ambiguous that defendant cannot:

☐ Ascertain nature of claim asserted by plaintiff.

☐ Reasonably frame responsive pleading.

○ Point out defects complained of and details desired.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 12(e)

Discussion:
See §§ 8.25[1][a], [b]

Form:
See § 8.41

☐ Avoid waiver by asserting motion for more definite statement in initial Rule 12 motion.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 12(e), (g)

Discussion:
See § 8.25[1][c]

☐ Court determination of motion.

○ Motion for more definite statement is viewed with disfavor and is rarely granted.

○ Court will require more definite statement only when pleading is so vague or ambiguous that opposing party cannot respond even with simple denial in good faith or without prejudice to himself or herself.

○ Court must deny motion if moving party could obtain missing detail through discovery.

○ If court grants motion, it will order plaintiff to file amended complaint within fixed time period.

☐ If plaintiff fails to obey order within time fixed by court, court may strike complaint or may make other just orders.

☐ Court may dismiss complaint if order is violated.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 12(e), 41(b)

Discussion:
See § 8.25[2]

8.23[2] CHECKLIST: Preparing Motion to Strike.

☐ In Central District, comply with "meet and confer" requirements before bringing motion.

○ Contact opposing counsel to discuss thoroughly, preferably in person, the substance of the contemplated motion and any potential resolution.

○ "Meet and confer" must take place at least five days before last day for filing the motion.

○ If parties are unable to reach a resolution that eliminates the reason for a hearing, include in the notice of motion, a statement that "This motion is made following the conference of counsel pursuant to L.R. 7-3 which took place on [date].

Discussion:
Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.15[1]

☐ Challenge redundant, immaterial, impertinent, or scandalous matter in plaintiff's complaint by filing motion to strike matter from pleading.

○ Function of motion is to avoid expenditure of time and money arising from litigating spurious issues by dispensing with issues prior to trial.

○ Point out defects complained of and material to be stricken.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 12(f)

Discussion:
See § 8.26[2]

Form:
See § 8.42

☐ Avoid waiving motion to strike by asserting motion to strike:

○ Before responding to pleading.

○ Within 21 days after service of pleading if response is not permitted.

☐ Avoid waiving right to file motion to strike by filing a preanswer Rule 12 motion on other grounds without including motion to strike.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 12(f), (h)

Discussion:
See § 8.26[3]

☐ Plaintiff may assert motion to strike insufficient defense in defendant's answer by filing motion to strike within 21 days after service of answer.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 12(f)

Discussion:

CHAPTER 8 Answers and Responsive Motions Under Rule 12
V. PREPARING MOTION TO CLARIFY PLEADINGS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 8.24

8.24 Options and Strategy.

8.24[1] Motion for More Definite Statement May Clarify Complaint. Rather than attempting to answer a vague or ambiguous complaint, the defendant may file a motion for a more definite statement rather than an answer [see Fed R Civ P 12(e)]. The motion must point out the defects complained of and the details desired by the moving party [Fed R Civ P 12(e)]. Thus, motions for more definite statement under Fed R Civ P 12(e) may be used to weed out meritless claims [Galbraith v. County of Santa Clara (9th Cir 2002) 307 F3d 1119, 1125].

8.24[2] Motion to Strike May Streamline Action. Redundant, immaterial, impertinent, or scandalous matter in the plaintiff's complaint may be stricken by filing a motion to strike the matter from the pleading [see Fed R Civ P 12(f)]. Thus, motions to strike may be used to make trial of the action less complicated, or to otherwise streamline resolution of the action [Hart v. Baca (CD Cal 2001) 204 FRD 456, 457].

8.24[3] Motions Are Disfavored and Should Be Sparingly Used. Motions to strike or for a more definite statement are viewed with disfavor, and are rarely granted [Bassiri v. Xerox Corp. (CD Cal 2003) 292 F Supp2d 1212, 1220 (motion to strike); Cellars v. Pacific Coast Packaging, Inc. (ND Cal 1999) 189 FRD 575, 579 (motion for more definite statement)]. They often are used as a delaying tactic [Neilson v. Union Bank of Cal., N.A. (CD Cal 2003) 290 F Supp2d 1101, 1152]. Therefore, use caution in asserting these motions.

Strategic Point--Defendant:

A motion for a more definite statement should be used generally when the material factual allegations are truly unclear in light of the legal allegations made. For example, the motion is useful in a case involving multiple defendants (or multiple plaintiffs) if no distinction is made with respect to the acts, conduct, or rights of each individually. A motion to strike should be used more sparingly, when the complaint contains something very unwarranted and prejudicial, such as an inflammatory statement.

8.24[4] Motions Are Typically Joined With Other Rule 12 Motions. Motions for more definite statement and motions to strike are rarely asserted alone. Typically, they are joined with other motions under Fed R Civ P 12, such as motions to dismiss for failure to state a claim.

Strategic Point--Defendant:

When combined with a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim under Rule 12(b)(6), the court may decide that a more definite statement should be required even if the court concludes that the elements of the claim have been pleaded, such as, when the facts pleaded fail to meet the particularity requirements of Rule 9(b).

V. PREPARING MOTION TO CLARIFY PLEADINGS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 8.25

8.25 Motion for More Definite Statement.

8.25[1] Grounds for Motion for More Definitive Statement.

8.25[1][a] Challenge Vague or Ambiguous Complaint. When a complaint is so vague or ambiguous that the defendant cannot reasonably frame a responsive pleading, the defendant may move for a more definite statement before interposing an answer [see Fed R Civ P 12(e)].

Prerequisite-CD Cal: Meet and Confer.

In the Central District, comply with "meet and confer" requirements before bringing the motion [CD Cal Civ LR 7-3].

- Contact opposing counsel to discuss thoroughly, preferably in person, the substance of the contemplated motion and any potential resolution.
- "Meet and confer" must take place at least five days before last day for filing the motion.
- If parties are unable to reach a resolution that eliminates the need for a hearing, include in the notice of motion the statement "This motion is made following the conference of counsel pursuant to L.R. 7-3 which took place on [date]."

The motion must point out the defects complained of and the details desired by the moving party [Fed R Civ P 12(e)].

Cross Reference:

Form, see § 8.41.

8.25[1][b] Pleading Must Be So Indefinite That Defendant Cannot Ascertain Nature of Claim. A motion for more definite statement is proper only if the complaint is so indefinite that the defendant cannot ascertain the nature of the claim asserted by the plaintiff. The court will deny the motion if the complaint is specific enough to apprise the defendant of the substance of the claim asserted [Gay-Straight Alliance Network v. Visalia Unified Sch. Dist. (ED Cal 2001) 262 F Supp2d 1088, 1099].

Consider:

A motion for a more definite statement may be appropriate in cases involving complaints asserting fraud or mistake. Circumstances relating to fraud or mistake allegations must be stated with particularity [see Fed R Civ P 9(b)]. Thus, if a plaintiff fails to plead these allegations with particularity, a motion for more definite statement pointing out the plaintiff's failure is in order. Also consider combining the motion with a motion under Rule 12(b)(6) to dismiss for failure to state a claim.

8.25[1][c] Motion Cannot Be Used to Seek Discoverable Material. If the moving party can obtain the missing detail through discovery, the court will deny the motion [Davison v. Santa Barbara High Sch. District (CD Cal 1998) 48 F Supp2d 1225, 1228]. A motion for a more definite statement should not be used to assist in getting facts in preparation for trial [Hsu v. OZ Optics Ltd. (ND Cal 2002) 211 FRD 615, 619]. Other rules relating to discovery, such as interrogatories, exist for these purposes [see Davison v. Santa Barbara High Sch. District (CD Cal 1998) 48 F Supp2d 1225, 1228].

8.25[1][d] Defense Is Waived If Not Made Before Filing of Responsive Pleading. Failure to assert a motion for more definite statement in an initial motion under Rule 12 may result in waiver of the motion [see Fed R Civ P 12(g)].

8.25[2] Court Determination of Motion.

8.25[2][a] Complaint Must Be Too Vague or Ambiguous to Answer. Generally, the court will require a more definite statement only when the pleading is so vague or ambiguous that the opposing party cannot respond, even with a simple denial, in good faith or without prejudice to himself or herself [Cellars v. Pacific Coast Packaging, Inc. (ND Cal 1999) 189 FRD 575, 579].

8.25[2][b] Court Granting Motion May Order Plaintiff to File and Serve Amended Complaint. If the court grants a motion for more definite statement, it typically will order the plaintiff to file an amended complaint within 14 days after notice of the order, or within the time fixed by the court [see Fed R Civ P 12(e); see, e.g., McHenry v. Renne (9th Cir 1996) 84 F3d 1172, 1175]. If the plaintiff fails to obey the order within the time fixed by the court, the court may strike the complaint to which the motion was directed or may make any other orders it deems just [see Fed R Civ P 12(e)]. For example, the court may dismiss the complaint if this order is violated [McHenry v. Renne (9th Cir 1996) 84 F3d 1172, 1179 ; see Fed R Civ P 41(b)].

Within 14 days after the plaintiff serves the amended complaint in response to the court's grant of the motion for more definite statement, the defendant must serve the plaintiff with a responsive pleading, such as an answer [see Fed R Civ P 12(a)(4)(B)].

CHAPTER 8 Answers and Responsive Motions Under Rule 12
V. PREPARING MOTION TO CLARIFY PLEADINGS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 8.26

8.26 Motion to Strike Improper Material in Complaint.

8.26[1] Motion Is Disfavored. Motions to strike are generally viewed with disfavor and are not frequently granted [Sapiro v. Encompass Ins. (ND Cal 2004) 221 FRD 513, 516-517 ; Bassiri v. Xerox Corp. (CD Cal 2003) 292 F Supp2d 1212, 1220]. This is because of the limited importance of pleading in federal practice, and because motions to strike are often used as a delaying tactic [Neilson v. Union Bank of Cal., N.A. (CD Cal 2003) 290 F Supp2d 1101, 1152].

Whether to grant a motion to strike lies within the sound discretion of the district court. In exercising its discretion, the court views the pleadings in the light most favorable to the nonmoving party [Bassiri v. Xerox Corp. (CD Cal 2003) 292 F Supp2d 1212, 1220 ; Neilson v. Union Bank of Cal., N.A. (CD Cal 2003) 290 F Supp2d 1101, 1152]. The court will not grant a motion to strike unless it is clear that the matter to be stricken could have no possible bearing on the subject matter of the litigation [Bassiri v. Xerox Corp. (CD Cal 2003) 292 F Supp2d 1212, 1220].

The court may also issue a motion to strike on its own initiative at any time [see Fed R Civ P 12(f)].

8.26[2] File Rule 12(f) Motion. A defendant may attack any redundant, immaterial, impertinent, or scandalous matter in the plaintiff's complaint by filing a motion to strike the matter from the pleading [see Fed R Civ P 12(f)].

Prerequisite-CD Cal: Meet and Confer.
In the Central District, comply with "meet and confer" requirements before bringing the motion [CD Cal Civ LR 7-3]:

- Contact opposing counsel to discuss thoroughly, preferably in person, the substance of the contemplated motion and any potential resolution.
- "Meet and confer" must take place at least five days before last day for filing the motion.
- If parties are unable to reach a resolution that eliminates the need for a hearing, include in the notice of motion the statement "This motion is made following the conference of counsel pursuant to L.R. 7-3 which took place on [date]."

The function of a motion to strike under Fed R Civ P 12(f) is to avoid the expenditure of time and money that will arise from litigating spurious issues by dispensing with those issues before trial [Bassiri v. Xerox Corp. (CD Cal 2003) 292 F Supp2d 1212, 1219-1220].

Cross Reference:

Form, see § 8.42.

8.26[3] Avoid Waiver. The defendant must assert a motion to strike before responding to a pleading, or within 21 days after service of the pleading if a response is not permitted, or the motion may be waived [see Fed R Civ P 12(f)]. In addition, the defendant may waive the right to file a motion to strike by filing a preanswer Rule 12 motion on other grounds without including a motion to strike [see Fed R Civ P 12(h); Culinary & Service Employees Union, AFL-CIO Local 555 v. Hawaii Employment Benefit Admin. (9th Cir 1982) 688 F2d 1228, 1232 ; but see In re Ess Tech., Inc. Secs. Litig. (ND Cal 2005) 2005 US Dist LEXIS 2593, at *13 (second motion to strike immaterial matter is not barred)].

8.26[4] Plaintiff May Challenge Improper Material in Answer. A plaintiff may also assert a motion to strike any insufficient or immaterial defense in a defendant's answer. Counsel must file a motion to strike a defense in an answer within 21 days after service of the answer [see Fed R Civ P 12(f); see, e.g., Quintana v. Baca (CD Cal 2005) 232 FRD 631].

8.26[5] Moving Party Has Burden of Proof. In asserting a motion to strike, the moving party bears the burden of convincing the court that the motion should be granted [see, e.g., Neilson v. Union Bank of Cal., N.A. (CD Cal 2003) 290 F Supp2d 1101, 1152].

In addition, given the disfavored status of motions to strike, courts often require a showing of prejudice by the moving party before granting the motion [Neilson v. Union Bank of Cal., N.A. (CD Cal 2003) 290 F Supp2d 1101, 1152]. The possibility that issues will be unnecessarily complicated or that superfluous pleadings will cause the trier of fact to draw unwarranted inferences at trial is the type of prejudice that is sufficient to support granting a motion to strike [California Dep't of Toxic Substances Control v. Alco Pac., Inc. (CD Cal 2002) 217 F Supp2d 1028, 1033].

8.26[6] Defendant Can Move to Strike State Law Claim Under Anti-SLAPP Statute. A defendant can move to strike a state law claim under the California anti-Strategic Lawsuits Against Public Participation (anti-SLAPP) statute [see CCP § 425.16; Thomas v. Fry's Elecs., Inc. (9th Cir 2005) 400 F3d 1206, 1207 (per curiam); United States ex rel. Newsham v. Lockheed Missiles & Space Co. (9th Cir 1999) 190 F3d 963, 970-973 , cert. denied, 530 US 1203 (2000)]. The anti-SLAPP statute allows a defendant to move to strike a complaint that stems "from any act of that person in furtherance of the person's right of petition or free speech under the United States or California Constitution in connection with a public issue" [CCP § 425.16(b)(1)]. However, the plaintiff may be granted leave to amend an initial complaint [see Verizon Del., Inc. v. Covad Communs. Co. (9th Cir 2004) 377 F3d 1081, 1091].

VI. PREPARING MOTION FOR JUDGMENT ON PLEADINGS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 8.27

8.27 CHECKLIST: Drafting Motion for Judgment on the Pleadings.

☐ In Central District, comply with "meet and confer" requirements before bringing motion.

○ Contact opposing counsel to discuss thoroughly, preferably in person, the substance of the contemplated motion and any potential resolution.

○ "Meet and confer" must take place at least five days before last day for filing the motion.

○ If parties are unable to reach a resolution that eliminates the reason for a hearing, include in the notice of motion, a statement that "This motion is made following the conference of counsel pursuant to L.R. 7-3 that took place on [date]."

Authority:
CD Cal Civ LR 7-3

Discussion:
Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.15[1]

☐ Move for judgment on pleadings to dispose of unmeritorious issues or controversies.

○ Motion may be brought by either party.

○ Defendant's motion seeking judgment on complaint may only be granted if all defenses raised in answer are legally insufficient.

○ Plaintiff's motion on pleadings is only entitled to judgment if answer fails to raise issues of fact or affirmative defense that, if proved, would defeat plaintiff's recovery.

☐ Judgment on pleadings is proper if:

○ Even when all allegations in pleadings are taken as true,

○ Moving party is entitled to judgment as matter of law.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 12(c)

Discussion:
See § 8.29[1]

Form:
See § 8.43

☐ File motion within proper time:

○ After pleadings are closed.

○ At time that will not delay trial.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 12(c)

Discussion:
See § 8.29[1][b]

☐ Submission of matters outside pleadings may convert motion for judgment on pleadings to summary judgment motion.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 12(d), Fed R Civ P 56

Discussion:
See § 8.29[1][d]

☐ Court determination of motion:

○ Standard governing motion for judgment on pleadings is essentially same as that governing motion to dismiss for failure to state claim.

☐ Court must accept as true allegations of nonmoving party, while allegations of moving party that have been denied must be assumed false.

☐ Motion will be granted if, accepting as true all material allegations contained in nonmoving party's pleadings, moving party is entitled to judgment as matter of law.

○ Court consideration of matters outside pleadings results in conversion to summary judgment motion.

☐ That party submitted extrinsic material to court does not automatically convert motion into one for summary judgment.

☐ Conversion occurs only if it appears court relied on extrinsic evidence in reaching its conclusions.

☐ Court need not provide formal notice of conversion but must provide reasonable opportunity to present relevant materials.

○ Dismissal may be without prejudice.

☐ In granting judgment on pleadings court may give leave to amend.

☐ Court may dismiss causes of action rather than grant judgment.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 12(d), Fed R Civ P 56

Discussion:
See § 8.29[2]

VI. PREPARING MOTION FOR JUDGMENT ON PLEADINGS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 8.28

8.28 Options and Strategy.

8.28[1] Motion for Judgment on Pleadings May Dispose of Complaint. After the pleadings are closed, a party may move for judgment on the pleadings to dispose of the complaint as a whole, or of unmeritorious issues or controversies [see Fed R Civ P 12(c)]. A Fed R Civ P 12(c) motion for judgment on the pleadings may be made as to individual causes of action [Strigliabotti v. Franklin Res., Inc. (ND Cal 2005) 398 F Supp2d 1094, 1097 ; Moran v. Peralta Community College Dist. (ND Cal 2003) 825 F Supp 891, 893]. However, the standard for obtaining a judgment on the pleadings is not easy to meet. Judgment on the pleadings is proper only if the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law, even assuming the facts in the complaint are true [see Torbet v. United Airlines, Inc. (9th Cir 2002) 298 F3d 1087, 1089].

8.28[2] Motion for Judgment on Pleadings Cannot Be Filed Before Answer. Unlike motions for summary judgment, a motion for judgment on the pleadings cannot be served before the filing of an answer [see Fed R Civ P 12(c), 56]. Thus, if there are grounds for filing a motion for summary judgment after service of the complaint, a motion for summary judgment should be used [see Fed R Civ P 56].

8.28[3] Motion Going Beyond Pleadings May Be Converted to Motion for Summary Judgment. Unlike a motion for summary judgment, motions for judgment on the pleadings cannot involve examination of materials beyond the pleadings [see Fed R Civ P 12(d), Fed R Civ P 56]. Thus, if the parties present evidence beyond the pleadings that is considered by the court, the motion must be converted to a summary judgment motion [see Fed R Civ P 12(d), Fed R Civ P 56]. For this reason, some moving parties will file a motion asserting both a motion for judgment on the pleadings and a motion for summary judgment. Nonetheless, a motion for judgment on the pleadings may be appropriate if a motion to dismiss would not be granted based on the complaint alone but would be granted if all pleadings are considered.

CHAPTER 8 Answers and Responsive Motions Under Rule 12
VI. PREPARING MOTION FOR JUDGMENT ON PLEADINGS

1-8 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 8.29

8.29 Motion for Judgment on the Pleadings.

8.29[1] File Rule 12(c) Motion.

8.29[1][a] Challenge Legal Sufficiency of Opposing Party's Pleadings. After the pleadings are closed, any party may move for judgment on the pleadings [see Fed R Civ P 12(c); Qwest Communications Corp. v. City of Berkeley (ND Cal 2002) 208 FRD 288, 291].

Prerequisite-CD Cal: Meet and Confer.
In the Central District, comply with "meet and confer" requirements before bringing the motion [CD Cal Civ LR 7-3].

- Contact opposing counsel to discuss thoroughly, preferably in person, the substance of the contemplated motion and any potential resolution.
- "Meet and confer" must take place at least five days before last day for filing the motion.
- If parties are unable to reach a resolution that eliminates the need for a hearing, include in the notice of motion the statement "This motion is made following the conference of counsel pursuant to L.R. 7-3 that took place on [date]."

The purpose of a motion for judgment on the pleadings is to dispose of unmeritorious issues or controversies [Provenzano v. United States (SD Cal 2000) 123 F Supp2d 554, 556].

Judgment on the pleadings is proper if, even when all the allegations in the pleadings are taken as true, the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law [Torbet v. United Airlines, Inc. (9th Cir 2002) 298 F3d 1087, 1089].

Distinguish:
A party moving for summary judgment asserts that, based on the existing record, no genuine issue of material fact exists and it is entitled to judgment on the merits as a matter of law [see Fed R Civ P 56(c)]. In contrast, a motion for judgment on the pleadings contends that the moving party is entitled to judgment based on the pleadings alone; the court considering a motion on the pleadings is limited to an examination of the sufficiency of the pleadings [see Fed R Civ P 12(c)].

Cross References:

Form of motion on the pleadings, see § 8.43. For standards governing determination of motions for summary judgment, see Ch. 29, Summary Judgment, see §§ 29.26 -29.29.

8.29[1][b] File Motion After Pleadings Close. A party must file a motion for judgment on the pleadings after the pleadings are closed. However, the motion must be filed at a time that will not delay the trial [see Fed R Civ P 12(c)]. Generally, this means that a party filing a motion under Fed R Civ P 12(c) must await the answers of all defendants [Moran v. Peralta Cmt'y Coll. Dist. (ND Cal 1993) 825 F Supp 891, 893]. A motion for judgment on the pleadings filed before the defendant files an answer is premature and must be denied [Doe v. United States (9th Cir 2005) 419 F3d 1058, 1061].

8.29[1][c] Motion May Be Asserted by Either Party. Any party may move for judgment on the pleadings [Qwest Communications Corp. v. City of Berkeley (ND Cal 2002) 208 FRD 288, 291]. A plaintiff may move for judgment on the pleadings if the answer fails to controvert material facts alleged in the complaint; all allegations of fact by the party opposing the motion are accepted as true, and are construed in the light most favorable to that party [Qwest Communications Corp. v. City of Berkeley (ND Cal 2002) 208 FRD 288, 291]. A plaintiff is not entitled to judgment on the pleadings if the answer raises issues of fact or an affirmative defense that, if proved, would defeat plaintiff's recovery [General Conference Corp. of Seventh-Day Adventists v. Seventh-Day Adventist Congregational Church (9th Cir 1989) 887 F2d 228, 230 ; Qwest Communications Corp. v. City of Berkeley (ND Cal 2002) 208 FRD 288, 291].

8.29[1][d] Submission of Matters Outside Pleadings May Result in Conversion of Motion to Summary Judgment Motion. If a party presents matters outside the pleadings with the motion for judgment on the pleadings, and those extraneous matters are not excluded by the court, the motion must be treated as a motion for summary judgment and must be disposed of as such [see Fed R Civ P 12(d), Fed R Civ P 56].

8.29[2] Court Determination of Motion for Judgment.

8.29[2][a] Standard Applicable to Motions for Judgment. The standard governing a motion for judgment on the pleadings under Fed R Civ P 12(c) is essentially the same as that governing a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim. For a motion for judgment on the pleadings, the court must accept as true the allegations of the nonmoving party, while the allegations of the moving party that have been denied must be assumed false [Hal Roach Studios, Inc. v. Richard Feiner & Co. (9th Cir 1989) 896 F2d 1542, 1550 ; Luzon v. Atlas Ins. Agency, Inc. (D Haw 2003) 284 F Supp2d 1261, 1262-1263]. A motion for judgment on the pleadings will be granted only if, accepting as true all material allegations contained in the nonmoving party's pleadings, the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law [Torbet v. United Airlines, Inc. (9th Cir 2002) 298 F3d 1087, 1089].

In addition, Fed R Civ P 12(c) must be read in conjunction with Fed R Civ P 8(a), which requires only a short and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief. Dismissal under Fed R Civ P 12(c) is proper only if there is either a lack of a cognizable legal theory or the absence of sufficient facts alleged under a cognizable legal theory [Balistreri v. Pacifica Police Dep't (9th Cir 1988) 901 F2d 696, 699 ; United States v. Real Prop. (CD Cal 2002) 234 F Supp2d 1136, 1137].

8.29[2][b] Reliance on Matters Outside Pleadings Results in Conversion to Summary Judgment Motion. If a party presents matters outside the pleadings that the court considers in resolving the motion for judgment, the motion for judgment on the pleadings must be treated as a motion for summary judgment [see Fed R Civ P 12(d), Fed R Civ P

56; Hal Roach Studios, Inc. v. Richard Feiner & Co. (9th Cir 1989) 896 F2d 1542, 1550].

However, the fact that a party submitted extrinsic material to the court does not automatically convert a motion for judgment on the pleadings into one for summary judgment. Before conversion occurs, it must appear that the court relied on the extrinsic evidence in reaching its conclusions [Advanced Cardiovascular Sys., Inc. v. SciMed Life Sys., Inc. (ND Cal 1997) 989 F Supp 1237, 1242 ; see Homart Dev. Co. v. Sigman (11th Cir 1989) 868 F2d 1556, 1561].

The court may consider certain exhibits submitted with a complaint, matters that may be judicially noticed under the Federal Rule of Evidence, and documents referenced but not included in the complaint whose authenticity no party questions, without converting the motion into a motion for summary judgment [Rose v. Chase Manhattan Bank USA (CD Cal 2005) 396 F Supp2d 1116, 1119 ; United States v. Real Prop. (CD Cal 2002) 234 F Supp2d 1136, 1137-1138].

Cross References:

Further discussion of exceptions to conversion doctrine in failure to state claim context, see § 8.21[3][d]. Standards governing summary judgment motions generally, see Ch. 29, Summary Judgment, see §§ 29.26 -29.29.

8.29[2][c] Reasonable Opportunity to Respond Must Be Given. Once conversion occurs, the court must give all parties a reasonable opportunity to present all material pertinent to a summary judgment motion [Fed R Civ P 12(d); see Olsen v. Idaho State Bd. of Med. (9th Cir 2004) 363 F3d 916, 921-922 (conversion of Rule 12(b)(6) motion, decided under prior law); In re Rothery (9th Cir 1998) 143 F3d 546, 549 (conversion of Rule 12(b)(6) motion, decided under prior law)].

Warning:

Effective December 1, 2009, Rule 56(c) was amended to eliminate the specific, 10-day minimum notice requirement for summary judgment motions. It remains unclear whether courts will continue to impose a minimum notice requirement on the validity of summary judgments.

Cross Reference:

For detailed discussion of the uncertainly stemming from the elimination of the Rule 56's notice requirement, see 11 Moore's Federal Practice, § 56.10[2][c] -[e] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

8.29[2][d] Dismissal May Be Without Prejudice. When granting a motion on the pleadings, the court may give leave to amend. The court may also dismiss causes of action rather than grant judgment [Lonberg v. City of Riverside (CD Cal 2004) 300 F Supp2d 942, 945].

a. The Plaintiff's lengthy complaint is mostly an extended narrative of the details of the various activities of the Plaintiff, and his numerous alleged arrests. At the end of the complaint, Plaintiff purports to set out two counts, one for damages and one for declaratory and injunctive relief. Plaintiff's claims are set out in a single sentence, 30 lines long, alleging numerous different violations of rights, without any specification of which of the named defendants is liable for which wrongs.

b. Plaintiff makes sweeping allegations against the various defendants, but the complaint does not make clear connections between specific allegations and individual defendants. The vague wording of the complaint makes it excessively difficult for Defendant to formulate a proper defenses, and subjects Defendant to unnecessary discovery.

c. 9.01 Scope.

This chapter discusses amending and supplementing pleadings under Fed R Civ P 15, including:

- Amending pleadings as a matter of course [see 9.07].
- Amending pleadings with leave of court or consent of the opposing party [see 9.08; Forms: 9.22 -9.24].
- Determining when an amendment relates back to the date of the original pleading [see 9.12 -9.14].
- Amending pleadings to conform to the evidence [see 9.15 -9.18; Forms: 9.25, 9.26].
- Supplementing pleadings [see 9.19 -9.21; Forms: 9.27, 9.28].

Core Rule:
Fed R Civ P 15.

CHAPTER 9 Amending and Supplementing Pleadings
I. STRATEGY

2-9 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 9.02

9.02 Objective and Strategy.

A party may amend a pleading for many reasons, for example: to correct errors; to add facts discovered during the litigation; to add claims or defenses; or to add, substitute, or drop parties. A party may also amend its pleading after trial to conform the pleading to the evidence. Supplementation of a pleading, as opposed to amendment, is appropriate when a party wishes to plead events that have taken place after the date of the original pleading.

Fed R Civ P 15 governs amendment and supplementation procedure. It must be read in conjunction with other rules that govern particular types of amendments and may provide additional requirements [see Fed R Civ P 13 (counterclaims and crossclaims); Fed R Civ P 14 (third-party practice); Fed R Civ P 18 (joinder of claims); Fed R Civ P 19 (required joinder of parties); Fed R Civ P 20 (permissive joinder of parties); Fed R Civ P 21 (misjoinder)].

2-9 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 9.03

9.03 CHECKLIST: Amending Pleadings Before Trial.

9.03[1] Amending Party's Checklist.

☐ Analyze whether newly discovered facts or other circumstances require amendment of a pleading to, for example:

- ○ Correct errors or omissions in the complaint disclosed by an opponent's Fed R Civ P 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss.
- ○ Add and give notice of alternative legal theories of recovery.
- ○ Add new claims.
- ○ Add persuasive or controlling facts discovered during the litigation.
- ○ Add affirmative defenses.
- ○ Add counterclaims or crossclaims
- ○ Add, substitute, or drop a party.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 15(a)

Discussion:

See § 9.05

☐ Determine whether Rule 15(a) permits amendment unilaterally (i.e., without the court's permission or opponents consent), by considering whether:

○ Pleading to be amended is one to which the Federal Rules permit the opponent to serve a responsive pleading, noting that an opponent may serve and file only the following responsive pleadings:

☐ Answers to a complaint.

☐ Replies to a counterclaim.

☐ Answers to a crossclaim.

☐ Answers to a third-party complaint.

☐ Replies to an answer or third-party answer, if ordered by the court.

○ If pleading is one that does not require a responsive pleading, whether pleading will be amended within 21 days after serving it.

○ If pleading is one to which responsive pleading is required:

☐ Whether pleading will be amended within 21 days after service of responsive pleading; or ☐ Whether pleading will be amended within 21 days after service of a motion under Rule 12(b), (e), or (f), whichever is earlier.

Authority:

Fed R Civ P 15(a). See also Fed R Civ P 7 (pleadings allowed); Fed R Civ P 12(a) (time for serving responsive pleadings)

Discussion:

See §§ 9.07[1], 9.08[1]

☐ Prepare a complete amended pleading that will supersede the previous pleading.

Trap:

Rule 15(a) does not expressly authorize, but has been interpreted to permit, a party to file a separate document containing a description of an amendment or amendments to a previously filed pleading. The local rules of the California district courts preclude this practice. They insist that amendments must always be in the form of a complete, revised pleading.

Authority:
CD Cal Civ LR 15-2; ED Cal Civ LR 220; ND Cal Civ LR 10-1; SD Cal Civ LR 15.1

Discussion:
See § 9.06

☐ If leave of court or consent of the adverse party is not required, file and serve the amended pleading.

Timing:
If the pleading is one that does not require a responsive pleading, be sure that the amended pleading is served within 21 days after serving the pleading. If the pleading is one to which a responsive pleading is required, be sure that the amended pleading is served within 21 days after service of the responsive pleading, or within 21 days after service of a motion under Rule 12(b), (e), or (f), whichever is earlier.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 15(a). See Fed R Civ P 7 (list of "responsive" pleadings)

Discussion:
See § 9.07

☐ If leave of court or consent of the adverse party is required, seek to obtain written consent of the adverse parties, and file the consent with the court along with the amended pleading.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 15(a)

Discussion:
See § 9.08[2]

Form:
See § 9.24 (stipulation allowing filing)

☐ If leave of court is required and consent is not obtained, move the court for leave to amend by:

○ Preparing a motion for leave to file an amended pleading.

○ Attaching a copy of the proposed amended pleading, with any other attachments, to the copies of the motion to be served and filed. A local rule in the Central District requires an original and one copy of the proposed amended pleading to be lodged with the court.

○ Preparing an order for the court's signature in the event it grants the motion.

○ Serving all other parties with the notice of motion and all motion papers.

○ Following all other standard noticed motion procedures.

Timing:

The court will usually specify in a Rule 16 scheduling order the latest permissible date for moving to amend pleadings.

Authority:

Fed R Civ P 15(a); CD Cal Civ LR 15-1

Discussion:

See §§ 9.08[3], [4]

Forms:

See § 9.22 (notice of motion for leave to amend); see § 9.23 (order granting leave)

Standard Procedure Checklist:

Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.12

☐ If the motion is granted:

○ File a copy of the amended pleading with the court.

○ If a new party is joined or substituted, determine if the statute of limitations has run and, if so, whether the amendment will relate back.

Authority:

Fed R Civ P 15(c)

Checklist:

See § 9.12

Discussion:

See § 9.14

○ Serve any new party under Rule 4 with a summons and a copy of the amended pleading.

Authority:

Fed R Civ P 4

9.03[2] Responding Party's Checklist.

☐ If an adverse party moves to amend or seeks your consent to an amendment, determine whether to oppose amendment by considering:

○ Prejudice, if any, that amendment will cause.

○ Undue delay that amendment will cause, but only to extent that delay causes prejudice.

○ Bad faith or dilatory motive of proponent in offering amendment at current stage of proceedings.

○ Futility of proposed amendment; that is, whether proposed amended pleading would be legally insufficient.

○ Previous amendments that court has already allowed.

Authority:
Foman v. Davis (1962) 371 US 178, 182, 83 S Ct 227, 9 L Ed2d 222

Discussion:
See § 9.08[6]

☐ If potential prejudice from proposed amendment creates reasonable ground for opposing amendment:

○ Refuse to consent to proposed amendment.

○ Prepare and timely file an opposition memorandum and declarations opposing any motion for leave to amend.

Standard Procedure Checklist:
Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.37

☐ In preparing an opposition to a motion for leave to amend, or in responding to a request for consent to amendment, propose possible conditions to amendment that would avoid any prejudice resulting from allowing amendment, including conditions such as:

○ Requiring proponent of amendment to bear additional costs incurred as a result of amendment.

○ Obtaining extension of time to respond to the amended pleading.

○ Obtaining court authorization for additional discovery with respect to the added claims or defenses.

○ Continuation of trial date.

Authority:
General Signal Corp. v. MCI Telecomms. Corp. (9th Cir 1995) 66 F3d 1500, 1514

Discussion:
See § 9.08[7]

☐ If the court grants leave to amend a complaint, third-party complaint, or answer asserting a counterclaim or crossclaim, respond to the amended pleading by:

- ○ Making all appropriate admissions and denials to allegations of pleading as amended.
- ○ Asserting all applicable affirmative defenses to new claims.
- ○ Asserting any desired counterclaims and crossclaims.

☐ If the court grants leave to amend an answer or third-party answer and, as amended, allegations in the answer or third-party answer need response, consider requesting court permission to file a reply.

☐ Make certain that any responses to amended pleadings are timely by serving response no later than:

- ○ Time remaining for response to original, unamended pleading.
- ○ 10 days after service of the amended pleading.
- ○ Period ordered by the court if the court extends the time for response.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 15(a)

Discussion:
See § 9.11

☐ Consider additional and alternative responses to amended pleading, including:

- ○ Motions to dismiss for failure to state claim or lack of subject matter jurisdiction, etc.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 12(b)(1), (6)

- ○ Motions to add a required party to any added claims, or to dismiss for failure to join an indispensable party on added claims.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 12(b)(7), 19(a)

- ○ Motions to dismiss, for judgment on the pleadings, or for summary judgment if added claims are barred by limitations and if amendment does not relate back to the original pleading.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 15(c); see Fed R Civ P 12(b), (c), 56

Checklist:
See § 9.12

Discussion:

II. AMENDING PLEADINGS BEFORE TRIAL

9.04 Options and Strategy.

Courts favor amendment of pleadings in the interest of resolving cases on the merits and interpret the provisions of Rule 15 accordingly [see Foman v. Davis (1962) 371 US 178, 181-182, 83 S Ct 227, 9 L Ed2d 222]. A party may amend any of the types of pleadings that are allowed by Rule 7, that is, a party may amend a complaint, an answer, a reply to a counter claim, an answer to a crossclaim, a third-party complaint, a third-party answer, and a reply to an answer [see Fed R Civ P 7(a)].

Although amendment of pleadings is favored, a party should strive to make its pleadings as complete and accurate as possible when they are initially served and filed. Despite the strong policy favoring amendment of pleadings, pleadings in federal courts serve limited purposes [see Fed R Civ P 8(a), (b); see also Fed R Civ P 16(e) (final pretrial order supersedes pleadings)]. Therefore, a federal court will neither encourage nor permit the parties to engage in a fruitless pleading war, in which all sorts of implausible or insupportable claims or evidentiary facts are asserted and responded to, through a series of unneeded amendments to the pleadings. Even when an amendment seeks to correct an unintentional omission from or error in the pleadings, a court will be reluctant to delay trial or other resolution of the dispute, or to require the parties to incur additional expenses from further discovery proceedings, because of tardy assertions of facts, claims, or defenses that should have been pleaded far earlier in the proceedings. Therefore, except for a very limited period of time following the service of a pleading, a party may amend its pleading only after moving the court for leave to amend [see Fed R Civ P 15(a)]. The court may and will deny permission to amend a pleading if the proposed amendment will result in delay that causes prejudice to the opposing parties [see, e.g., Solomon v. North Am. Life & Cas. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1998) 151 F3d 1132, 1139].

Before moving for leave to amend, it is a good practice to seek to obtain the stipulation of the opposing party to the amendment. In the Central District, for example, a local rule requires that counsel confer in an attempt to resolve matters before the filing of any type of motion [CD Cal Civ LR 7-3]. Even when a court does not expressly require it, courts expect that the parties will not consume the court's time with any motion that is not needed or is not opposed [see ND Cal Civ LR 7-3(b) (party served with motion who does not oppose it must file written statement of "nonopposition")]. Because of the strong policy favoring leave to amend, there is often little advantage in opposing a proposed amendment that is offered in a reasonably timely manner.

9.05 Amendment May Serve Various Purposes.

Amendment may become necessary during the course of the litigation for any of various reasons:

- To cure defects in the complaint after the court grants a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim [see Fed R Civ P 12(b)(6); see, e.g., Brown v. Rumsfeld (ND Cal 2002) 211 FRD 601, 605-606].

- To cure defective allegations of jurisdiction [see 28 USC § 1653].

- To add claims or counterclaims that were omitted from the original pleadings [see Fed R Civ P 15(a), 18; see, e.g., SAES Getters S.p.A. v. Aeronex, Inc. (SD Cal 2002) 219 F Supp2d 1081, 1085, 1095].

- To add an affirmative defense to an answer [see Fed R Civ P 8(c); see, e.g., Owens v. Kaiser Found. Health Plan, Inc. (9th Cir 2001) 244 F3d 708, 712-713].

- To add a new defendant [see, e.g., Flowers v. First Hawaiian Bank (9th Cir 2002) 295 F3d 966, 976] or other party, such as additional plaintiffs with similar claims against the same defendants [see, e.g., Immigrant Assistance Project of L.A. County Fed'n of Labor v. INS (9th Cir 2002) 306 F3d 842, 857-859]. Parties may be added at any stage of the proceedings "on such terms as are just" [see Fed R Civ P 21; see also Fed R Civ P 19, 20] provided jurisdiction and venue requirements are met.

- To name a party in his or her proper capacity [see Fed R Civ P 17(b); see, e.g., Bowles v. Reade (9th Cir 1999) 198 F3d 752, 757].

Unit 3 Pleading Stage
CHAPTER 9 Amending and Supplementing Pleadings
II. AMENDING PLEADINGS BEFORE TRIAL

2-9 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 9.06

9.06 Amendment Takes Form of Complete Amended Pleading.

9.06[1] Amended Pleading Must Be In Proper Format. When a pleading is amended, whether by right or with leave of court, the amending party should prepare, serve, and file a complete document that incorporates the amendments and supersedes the prior pleading, rather than a document that sets out only the amendments or that incorporates the previous pleading by reference. Although either method of amending pleadings would satisfy the requirements of Rule 15, all four of the California district courts have adopted local rules permitting only completely amended and superseding pleadings and disallowing amendment of pleadings by means of any form of document that requires reference to the original pleading [see CD Cal Civ LR 15-2; ED Cal Civ LR 220; ND Cal Civ LR 10-1; SD Cal Civ LR 15.1].

Consider:

Even though a copy of the amended pleading is attached to the motion filed with the court, the amending party should separately file the amended pleading after an order permitting it.

Warning--Matters Omitted From Amended Pleading Are Waived:

Because the complete amended pleading supersedes the previous pleading, care should be taken not to erroneously omit any claims or parties. Claims alleged in the previous pleading but not included in the amended pleading are waived [King v. Atiyeh (9th Cir 1987) 814 F2d 565, 567]. Likewise, a party not named in the amended pleading will not be bound by the judgment [Hal Roach Studios, Inc. v. Richard Feiner & Co. (9th Cir 1989) 896 F2d 1542, 1546]. However, a party is not required to replead a claim that a court has dismissed without leave to amend in order to preserve the right to appeal the dismissal [see Parrino v. FHP, Inc. (9th Cir 1998) 146 F3d 699, 704].

9.06[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Format for Amendment of Pleadings.

9.06[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. A proposed amended pleading must be electronically filed as a document separate from a related motion or stipulation [CD Cal Civ LR 15-1].

Every amended pleading filed as a matter of right or allowed by order of the court must be complete including exhibits. The amended pleading must not refer to the prior, superseded pleading [CD Cal Civ LR 15-2].

Every amended pleading must be filed as a paper document [CD Cal Civ LR 15-4].

9.06[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. Unless prior approval to the contrary is obtained from the court, every pleading to which an amendment or supplement is permitted as a matter of right or has been allowed by court must be retyped and filed so that it is complete in itself without reference to the prior or superseded pleading. No pleading will be deemed supplemented until Rule 220 is complied with [ED Cal Civ LR 220].

As used in Rule 220, "changed pleadings" means amended and supplemental pleadings permitted and filed pursuant to Fed R Civ P 15 [ED Cal Civ LR 220].

All changed pleadings must contain copies of all exhibits referred to in the changed pleading. Permission may be obtained from the court, if desired, for the removal of any exhibit or exhibits attached to a superseded pleading, in order that the same may be attached to the changed pleading [ED Cal Civ LR 220].

9.06[2][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. Any party filing or moving to file an amended pleading must reproduce the entire proposed pleading and may not incorporate any part of a prior pleading by reference [ND Cal Civ LR 10-1].

9.06[2][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. Unless prior court approval is obtained, every pleading to which an amendment is permitted as a matter of right or has been allowed by court order, must be retyped and filed so that it is complete in itself without reference to the superseded pleading. Amended pleadings must contain copies of all exhibits referenced therein [SD Cal Civ LR 15.1].

A party may obtain permission from the court for removal of any exhibit or exhibits attached to prior pleadings, so that the same may be attached to the amended pleading [SD Cal Civ LR 15.1]. Each amended pleading must be designated successively as first amended, second amended, etc. [SD Cal Civ LR 15.1].

CHAPTER 9 Amending and Supplementing Pleadings
II. AMENDING PLEADINGS BEFORE TRIAL

2-9 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 9.07

9.07 Pleadings May Be Amended Once Without Leave.

9.07[1] Party May Amend Without Leave Within Strict Timeframe. A party may amend its pleading once "as a matter of course," that is, unilaterally without court permission or the consent of opposing parties, within 21 days after serving the pleading [Fed R Civ P 15(a)(1)(A)]. This simple, 21-day deadline applies to pleadings that do not require a responsive pleading [see Fed R Civ P 15(a)(1)(A); see also Fed R Civ P 7(a) (list of responsive pleadings)]. If the pleading is one that does require a responsive pleading, a more complex time limit applies. In these circumstances, a party may amend its pleading either [Fed R Civ P 15(a)(1)(B)]:

- Within 21 days after service of the responsive pleading; or
- Within 21 days after service of a motion under Rule 12(b), (e), or (f), whichever is earlier.

Warning:

The 21-day periods to amend once as a matter of course after service of a responsive pleading or after service of a designated motion are not cumulative. For example, if a responsive pleading is served after one of the designated motions is served, there is no new 21-day period [Fed R Civ P 15, Committee Note of 2009].

Because amendment is "as a matter of course," the amending party need not file a motion for leave to amend. Filing and serving the amended pleading [see Fed R Civ P 5] is sufficient [see Fed R Civ P 15(a)].

Not all papers filed in response to a complaint are "responsive pleadings," however:

- Responsive pleadings do include an answer to a complaint, a reply to a counterclaim, an answer to a crossclaim, and an answer to a third-party complaint, and may also include a reply to an answer or to a third-party answer, if ordered by the court [see Fed R Civ P 7(a) (permissible "pleadings" defined)].
- Responsive pleadings do not include other papers, such as pre-trial motions and other papers not listed in Rule 7 as "pleadings" [see Fed R Civ P 7(a)]. A Rule 12(b) motion to dismiss, for example, is not a responsive pleading and, therefore, does not cut off the pleader's right to amend once, without leave of the court [see Rick-Mik Enters., Inc. v. Equilon Enters., LLC (9th Cir 2008) 532 F3d 963, 977] .

If some of the defendants have answered but not others, the plaintiff may amend the claims against the non-answering parties "as a matter of course," but must obtain leave with respect to the others [see Barksdale v. King (5th Cir 1983) 699 F2d 744, 746-747].

9.07[2] Only One Amendment Permitted Without Leave. A party may amend its pleading "as a matter of course," that is, without leave of court or consent of opposing parties, only once. For additional amendments, even within the proper time period, the party must seek leave of court [see Fed R Civ P 15(a); Eminence Capital, LLC v. Aspeon (9th Cir 2003) 316 F3d 1048, 1051].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of amendment with leave of court, see § 9.08.

9.07[3] Court May Not Deny Amendment Without Leave When Rule 15 Permits It. If, under Fed R Civ P 15(a), a party is entitled to amend its pleading "as a matter of course," that is without leave of court or consent of opposing parties, the court abuses its discretion if it refuses to allow the amendment [Doe v. United States (9th Cir 1995) 58 F3d 494, 497]. However, the party may not use an amendment "as a matter of course" to defeat a court's jurisdiction [see Lyster v. First Nationwide Bank Fin. Corp. (ND Cal 1993) 829 F Supp 1163, 1165].

Example--Amendment May Not Preempt Court Discretion in Removed Cases:

The statute governing procedure after removal provides that when the plaintiff seeks to join additional defendants after removal, and when the joined parties' presence would destroy the diversity jurisdiction, the court has discretion. The court may either deny joinder or permit joinder and remand the action to state court [28 USC § 1447(e)]. The plaintiff may not use a purported amendment "as a matter of course" to control the court's discretion over the joinder of parties whose presence might destroy jurisdiction. The court may deny or permit joinder of additional parties, even when an amendment joining the parties would otherwise have been available "as a matter of course" under Rule 15(a) [Clinco v. Roberts (CD Cal 1999) 41 F Supp2d 1080, 1088].

9.08[1] Leave or Consent Required After 21-Day Window for Amendment as Matter of Course Has Run. A party has a one-time right to amend its pleadings "as a matter of course" [see Fed R Civ P 15(a)(1)]. In all other cases, a party may amend its pleading only with the leave of the court or the written consent of the adverse party [Fed R Civ P 15(a)(2)].

Cross Reference:

Leave to amend unilaterally, see § 9.07.

9.08[2] Consent Must Be Written. A party may amend a pleading by consent of the adverse party. But consent will authorize the amendment only if the consent is in writing [Fed R Civ P 15(a)(2)]. The best practice is to make sure that the written consent follows the requirements for written stipulations as set out in the court's local rules, which usually means that [see CD Cal Civ LR 7-1; ED Cal Gen LR 143; ND Cal Civ LR 7-12; SD Cal Civ LR 7.2]:

- The written stipulation must be signed by all the parties;
- It does not take effect until it is approved by the court; and
- The court's approval may be obtained by having a "SO ORDERED" provision in the stipulation and by providing a place for the court to sign and date the stipulation to indicate its approval of the stipulation.

Cross Reference:

Form for stipulation allowing amendment of pleading, see § 9.24. Requirements for written stipulations under local rules, see Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.09[2].

9.08[3] Leave Is Sought Through Noticed Motion, With Proposed Pleading Attached. The party seeking leave of court to amend must move for leave to amend [see Fed R Civ P 7(b) (all requests for court orders must be by motion)]. Courts may sometimes grant leave even though leave is not properly requested [Edwards v. Occidental Chem. Corp. (9th Cir 1990) 892 F2d 1442, 1445 n2], but need not do so when there is no proper motion before the court [see U.S. Care, Inc. v. Pioneer Life Ins. Co. (CD Cal 2002) 244 F Supp2d 1057, 1065 ("bare request [to amend] in an opposition to a motion to dismiss--without any indication of the particular grounds on which the amendment is sought--does not constitute a motion within the contemplation of Rule 15(a)")].

As a practical matter, a copy of the proposed amended pleading must always be attached to the motion as filed and served. The court will not be able to rule on the motion, and the opposing parties will not be able to respond to the motion, without seeing exactly what amendment is being proposed. A Central District Rule requires that a proposed amended pleading be electronically filed as a document separate from a related motion or stipulation [CD Cal Civ LR 15-1]. Similarly, a Northern District Rule requires that any party moving to file an amended pleading must reproduce the entire proposed pleading [ND Cal Civ LR 10-1]. In the Eastern District, the amended pleading proposed to be filed must be attached as an exhibit to the motion and a proposed order filed [ED Cal Gen LR 137(c)].

Consider:

Even though a copy of the proposed amended pleading is filed with the court along with the motion, the amending party should separately file the amended pleading after the court grants leave.

Cross References:

Form of notice of motion for leave to file an amended pleading, see § 9.22. Form of order granting leave to amend, see § 9.23. Discussion of service of motions, see Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice; Ch. 5, Formatting, Serving, and Filing Papers, see § 5.18.

9.08[4] Time Limit for Moving to Amend Set in Scheduling Order. After a pretrial conference, the court will issue a pretrial case-management order that, among other things, will set a deadline for motions to join parties and amend the pleadings [see Fed R Civ P 16(b)(3)(A)].

Warning:

When determining whether to allow an amendment after the time set in the scheduling order, the court will apply the more stringent "good cause" standard for granting an exception to a scheduling order rather than the more lenient Rule 15 standard favoring amendment [see Johnson v. Mammoth Recreations, Inc. (9th Cir 1992) 975 F2d 604, 608].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of "good cause" standard under Rule 16, see Ch. 16, Case Management Conferences, see § 16.12.

The time for filing an amendment may also be cut off if undue delay by the amending party causes prejudice to the adverse party.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of effect of undue delay, see § 9.08[6][c].

9.08[5] Leave to Amend Must Be Granted Freely. When a party requests leave to amend, "leave shall be freely given when justice so requires" [Fed R Civ P 15(a)(2)]. This policy is to be applied with "extreme liberality" [Eminence Capital, LLC v. Aspeon (9th Cir 2003) 316 F3d 1048, 1051], because it facilitates decisions on the merits, rather than on the pleadings or technicalities [Nunes v. Ashcroft (9th Cir 2004) 375 F3d 805, 808 , cert. denied, 543 US 1188 (2005)]. The policy strongly favoring granting leave to amend applies equally to amendments proposing to add new parties or amendments proposing to add new claims. Courts are particularly reluctant to deny leave to amend to pro se litigants [Flowers v. First Hawaiian Bank (9th Cir 2002) 295 F3d 966, 976]. This policy also applies to amendments proposing to add counterclaims [see Fed R Civ P 15(a); Fed R Civ P 15, Committee Note of 2009].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of counterclaims, see Ch. 11, Counterclaims, Crossclaims, and Replies, see §§ 11.03 -11.25.

A court is not required to grant leave "freely" when a proper motion seeking leave to amend is not before it. The party seeking leave must take the procedural steps required to invoke the policy. When, as part of its opposition papers filed in response to a motion to dismiss, a party makes a bare request to amend, without any indication of the exact nature of the proposed amendment or the grounds for the amendment, the party has not made a proper motion for leave to amend under Rule 7. In these circumstances, the court need not grant leave freely [see Confederate Memorial Ass'n v. Hines (DC Cir 1993) 995 F2d 295, 299].

9.08[6] Court Must Consider Several Factors in Deciding Whether to Grant Leave to amend.

9.08[6][a] List of Factors Stated in Foman v. Davis. In the leading case of Foman v. Davis, the Supreme Court listed the factors that a court must consider in deciding whether to grant leave to amend [Foman v. Davis (1962) 371 US 178, 182, 83 S Ct 227, 9 L Ed2d 222]:

- Undue delay by the movant.
- Bad faith or dilatory motive on the part of the movant.
- Repeated failure to cure deficiencies by amendments previously allowed.
- Undue prejudice to the opposing party if the amendment were allowed.
- Futility of the amendment.

These factors are non-exclusive; other factors may be relevant as well.

9.08[6][b] Prejudice to Opposing Party. Whether the proposed amendment will prejudice the opposing party is the most important factor in deciding whether to grant leave to amend. If there is no prejudice (nor a strong showing of any of the other Foman factors that might require denial of leave), there is a presumption favoring granting leave to amend [Eminence Capital, LLC v. Aspeon (9th Cir 2003) 316 F3d 1048, 1052].

Prejudice might occur if an opposing party will need to bear significant additional expense, or will suffer significant delays in the resolution of the dispute, because the addition of claims or parties increases the scope and complexity of the litigation or because the amendment will require the court to reopen discovery [see, e.g., In re Fritz Cos. Secs. Litig. (ND Cal 2003) 282 F Supp2d 1105, 1109]. Undue prejudice may exist, for example, when the addition of new claims at a late stage in the proceedings would greatly alter the nature of the litigation, thus requiring the defendant to undertake an entirely new defense [see Morongo Band of Mission Indians v. Rose (9th Cir 1990) 893 F2d 1074, 1079 ; IXYS Corp. v. Advanced Power Tech., Inc. (ND Cal 2004) 2004 US Dist LEXIS 804, at *8 ("the need for a party to conduct supplemental discovery or to consider a new line of legal argument are classic sources of prejudice that have regularly proven sufficient to defeat a motion for leave to amend")].

The party opposing the amendment has the burden of showing prejudice [DCD Programs Ltd. v. Leighton (9th Cir 1987) 833 F2d 183, 187 ; Serpa v. SBC Telecomms., Inc. (ND Cal 2004) 318 F Supp2d 865, 870].

9.08[6][c] Delay. The amending party's delay in seeking to amend its pleadings is not, by itself, sufficient to justify denying a motion for leave to amend [see, e.g., Owens v. Kaiser Found. Health Plan, Inc. (9th Cir 2001) 244 F3d 708, 712-713]. Delay justifies denial of leave to amend only when the delay causes prejudice, or shows bad faith by the moving party, or when it precludes full consideration of the possible futility of the proposed amendment [Bowles v. Reade (9th Cir 1999) 198 F3d 752, 758-759].

Example--No Prejudice:

The district court did not abuse its discretion when the defendant was permitted to amend its answer to add a res judicata defense. The plaintiff did not suffer any prejudice because the amendment caused no delay in the proceedings and required no additional discovery [Owens v. Kaiser Found. Health Plan, Inc. (9th Cir 2001) 244 F3d 708, 712].

Courts are more willing to conclude that delay is prejudicial (or illustrative of bad faith) when the matters in the proposed amendment were known or should have been known to the amending party, and no reason is given for their exclusion from the previous version of the pleading [see, e.g., In re Fritz Cos. Secs. Litig. (ND Cal 2003) 282 F Supp2d 1105, 1110-1111].

Example--Prejudice to Adverse Party.

The district court did not abuse its discretion in finding undue delay when fifteen months passed between the time the plaintiff discovered new facts and asserted a new theory based on those facts in a motion for leave to amend. Plaintiff did not allege any "newly discovered facts" in the motion nor did it explain why it waited over a year after filing its complaint before bringing these facts to the attention of the court; and the amendments were prejudicial because they contradicted plaintiff's "own previous admissions" without any proffered reason [AmerisourceBergen Corp. (9th Cir 2006) 465 F3d 946, 953] .

9.08[6][d] Bad Faith. Bad faith, as a grounds for denying leave to amend, is often another aspect of undue delay. In other words, the timing of a request to amend, when compared to the need to amend, may disclose that the moving party is merely seeking to delay proceedings. The timing of the request for leave to amend, when compared with the reasons offered (or not offered) for the delay in making the request, might show that the moving party is guilty of "gamesmanship" or attempting to "sandbag" an opponent by springing new matters on the opponent at the last possible moment. Bad faith may also take the form of an attempt to defeat the court's jurisdiction; for example, seeking to add a party defendant merely to destroy diversity jurisdiction [see SAES Getters S.p.A. v. Aeronex, Inc. (SD Cal 2002) 219 F Supp2d 1081, 1086].

9.08[6][e] Futility of Amendment. A court should not permit an amendment that fails to state a legally sufficient claim or defense [see Partington v. Bugliosi (9th Cir 1995) 56 F3d 1147, 1162]. The general rule allowing free amendment of pleadings does not apply when the amendment would be an exercise in futility because the amended pleading would also be subject to dismissal or a motion to strike [see, e.g., In re Fritz Cos. Secs. Litig. (ND Cal 2003) 282 F Supp2d 1105, 1111]. Futility includes "the inevitability of a claim's defeat on summary judgment" [State of Cal. v. Neville Chem. Co. (9th Cir 2004) 358 F3d 661, 673-674 , cert. denied, 543 US 869 (2004)].

Futility of the amendment alone can justify the denial of a motion for leave to amend. [Ahlmeyer v. Nevada System of Higher Education (9th Cir 2009) 555 F3d 1051, 1055] . The opposing party need not demonstrate that it will be prejudiced by the amendment [Nunes v. Ashcroft (9th Cir 2004) 375 F3d 805, 808-810 , cert. denied, 543 US 1188 (2005)]. The court's discretion to deny amendments as futile is particularly broad when the plaintiff has been given leave to amend previously [In re Fritz Cos. Secs. Litig. (ND Cal 2003) 282 F Supp2d 1105, 1111 ; see, e.g., Miller v. Yokohama Tire Corp. (9th Cir 2004) 358 F3d 616, 622 (no written findings necessary to support denial of leave to amend when complaint was previously amended and complaint could not be saved by any amendment)].

Strategic Point--Defendant:

While courts will determine the legal sufficiency of a proposed amendment on a motion for leave to amend using the same standard as applied on a Rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss, courts are reluctant to deny leave to amend except in the clearest cases. As a practical matter, a claim that an amended pleading fails to state a claim for relief is likely to have more success on a subsequent Rule 12(b)(6) motion than it would in the context of a motion for leave to amend [see SAES Getters S.p.A. v. Aeronex, Inc. (SD Cal 2002) 219 F Supp2d 1081, 1086].

9.08[6][f] Previous Amendments Were Allowed. A court's discretion to deny leave to amend is somewhat broader when the court has already allowed one or more amendments [see, e.g., Chodos v. West Publ'g Co. (9th Cir 2002) 292 F3d 992, 1003]. A court need not permit a party unlimited attempts to plead its claims or defenses [see Sisseton-Wahpeton Sioux Tribe v. United States (9th Cir 1996) 90 F3d 351, 355-356 ("It is time for this litigation to end")].

Example:

When a plaintiff sought to amend his complaint a second time and the district court found that the facts he sought to add had been available at the time of the earlier amendment, the district court did not abuse its discretion in ruling that the motion to amend had come after undue delay [Chodos v. West Publ'g Co. (9th Cir 2002) 292 F3d 992, 1003].

9.08[7] Court May Impose Conditions When Granting Leave to amend. Rather than deny leave to amend when there is possible prejudice to an opposing party, a court may impose conditions, such as costs, when this will mitigate the prejudice to the opposing party [see General Signal Corp. v. MCI Telecomms. Corp. (9th Cir 1995) 66 F3d 1500, 1514]. A court should not undermine the liberal policy favoring amendment, however, by effectively denying leave to amend by imposing unreasonable conditions [see International Ass'n of Machinists v. Republic Airlines (9th Cir 1985) 761 F2d 1386, 1390-1391].

Strategic Point--Party Opposing Amendment:

Because of the liberal amendment policy, it may be easier to convince the court to impose conditions rather than deny leave to amend. Other possible conditions, in addition to costs, might include an extension of time to respond to the amended pleading, additional discovery with respect to the added claims or defenses, or a continuation of the trial date.

9.08[8] Court Must State Grounds for Denial. A denial of leave to amend without any explanation by the district court is an abuse of discretion and subject to reversal [Foman v. Davis (1962) 371 US 178, 182, 83 S Ct 227, 9 L Ed2d 222]. Written findings are preferable; but detailed, formal findings of fact and conclusions of law are not always required. A court may satisfy the requirement of giving its grounds for denial by stating its rationale either in a written opinion or orally, on the record [Roth v. Garcia Marquez (9th Cir 1991) 942 F2d 617, 628].

9.08[9] Court May Grant Leave to Amend Nunc Pro Tunc When Plaintiff Fails to Comply With Rule 15(a) or May Strike Amended Pleading. If the plaintiff files an amended complaint without having obtained leave of court after the right to amend once "as a matter of course" has terminated [see Fed R Civ P 15(a)], the court may accept that amended complaint by granting leave to amend nunc pro tunc [see, e.g., Sapiro v. Encompass Ins. (ND Cal 2004) 221 FRD 513, 517-518 (decided under former Fed R Civ P 15(a))]. The court should only accept the amendment nunc pro tunc when leave to amend would have been granted if timely applied for, i.e., when the plaintiff is not litigating in bad faith, when acceptance of the amended complaint will not spur undue delay, and when no prejudice to the defendant will result.

Strategic Point--Defendant:

The defendant may move to strike the amended pleading under Fed R Civ P 12(f) when the plaintiff has failed to obtain the required leave of court before filing the amended complaint [see Vasquez v. Johnson County Hous. Coalition, Inc. (D Kan 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 10786, at *2-*3 (motion granted)]; or has amended the complaint in a manner not authorized by the order granting leave to amend, i.e., adding a new claim for relief [see, e.g., Ambrose Packaging, Inc. v. FlexSol Packaging Corp. (D Kan 2004) 2004 US Dist LEXIS 18645, at *8-*10 (motion granted)]. However, Rule 12(f) motions are disfavored and the motion should only be made if the defendant can demonstrate prejudice, bad faith, or that undue delay will result [see, e.g., Sapiro v. Encompass Ins. (ND Cal 2004) 221 FRD 513, 517-518 (motion denied)].

9.09 Party May Amend After Dismissal.

9.09[1] Party May Amend by Right If Dismissal Is Not Final Judgment. A party's right to amend after a dismissal depends on whether the dismissal order is a final judgment or final, appealable order. A party may amend a pleading as of right even after dismissal, provided no responsive pleading was filed and no final judgment was rendered [Mayes v. Leipziger (9th Cir 1984) 729 F2d 605, 607-608 ; see Rick-Mik Enters., Inc. v. Equilon Enters., LLC (9th Cir 2008) 532 F3d 963, 977 ("Where a final judgment is entered following dismissal of an action, the plaintiff no longer has the right to amend the complaint as a matter of course"); see 9.09[3]].

Generally, an order dismissing a complaint is not a final judgment or a final, appealable order unless circumstances make it clear that the court concluded that the action could not be saved by any amendment of the complaint [see Telluride Mgmt. Solutions, Inc. v. Telluride Inv. Group (9th Cir 1995) 55 F3d 463, 466]. This usually occurs only when the court expressly states that the dismissal is "final," "without leave to amend," or "with prejudice."

Cross References:

Discussion of how right to amend without leave may be cut off by dismissal, see 3 Moore's Federal Practice, § 15.12 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.). Discussion of final judgments, see 19 Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 202, Final Judgments (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

9.09[2] Most Dismissals Are With Leave to amend. When dismissing a complaint (or other pleading) for failure to state a claim, the court should grant leave to amend even if no request to amend has been made. Dismissal with leave to amend is the normal form of dismissal except in the comparatively rare circumstances in which the court is able to determine that the pleading could not possibly be cured by the allegation of other facts [Doe v. United States (9th Cir 1995) 58 F3d 494, 497]. A dismissal with prejudice and without leave to amend is not appropriate unless it is absolutely clear that the complaint could not be saved by amendment. The district court's failure to articulate why dismissal should be with prejudice may constitute an abuse of discretion [Eminence Capital, LLC v. Aspeon (9th Cir 2003) 316 F3d 1048, 1052].

9.09[3] Amendment After Final Judgment Is Conceivable, If Judgment Is Set Aside. If a court dismisses a complaint with prejudice and without leave to amend, or if the court makes some similar dismissal order that is a final judgment, a party may request leave to amend, but may do so only after successfully moving to have the judgment altered or reopened under Rule 59 or set aside under Rule 60 [see Fed R Civ P 59(e), 60(b); see, e.g., Confederate Memorial Ass'n v. Hines (DC Cir 1993) 995 F2d 295, 299 ("Once the District Court granted appellees' motions to dismiss, appellants could amend the complaint 'only by leave of court or by written consent of the adverse party,' Fed R Civ P 15(a), coupled with a motion under Rule 59(e) to alter or amend the judgment")].

Distinguish:

Generally, a post-order motion requesting a substantive change in an order, as opposed to a clerical change, is considered a Rule 59(e) motion, if filed within ten days of entry. Otherwise it is considered a Rule 60(b) motion [Am. Ironworks & Erectors, Inc. v. N. Am. Constr. Corp. (9th Cir 2001) 248 F3d 892, 898-899 ; *see, e.g., United States v. Moyer (ND Cal 2008) 2008 US Dist LEXIS 63995, at *13-14] .

9.10 Ability to Amend After Summary Judgment Motion Is Filed Is Limited.

9.10[1] Amendment Allowed Only If It Has Substantial Factual Support. The filing of a summary judgment motion impedes the right to amend by the party opposing the summary judgment motion. Granting leave to amend after summary judgment is within the discretion of the trial court, but a court ordinarily will be reluctant to do so. The value of the summary judgment procedure is at stake. A properly researched, timed, and supported summary judgment motion comes when the parties have explored their case and at a time when discovery, at least on the issues controlling the motion, is complete. Therefore, a motion for leave to amend made after a summary judgment motion is pending may be considered untimely. A motion for leave to amend is not a vehicle to circumvent summary judgment [Schlacter-Jones v. General Tel. of Cal. (9th Cir 1991) 936 F2d 435, 443 , overruled in part on other grounds, Cramer v. Consolidated Freightways, Inc. (9th Cir. 2001) 255 F3d 683, 692].

After a motion for summary judgment has been filed, a party may amend its pleadings, but it must make a different and stronger showing than might otherwise be the case. A party seeking to amend its pleadings in the face of a summary judgment motion should not be permitted merely to allege a new theory, or a new claim or defense, that is credible in the abstract. Because amendment at this stage of the proceedings may very well be nothing more than a maneuver to avoid an inevitable ruling on summary judgment, leave to amend may be denied unless the party seeking to amend makes a substantial factual showing of the allegations set out in the proposed amendment [see Cowen v. Bank United of Tex. (7th Cir 1995) 70 F3d 937, 944 ("district judges are not content with an allegation sufficient in law; they want some evidence to back it up"); see, e.g., Maldonado v. City of Oakland (ND Cal 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 7746, at *12].

9.10[2] After Summary Judgment Rendered, Change in Legal Theory Not Allowed. If a party is restricted in its ability to amend after a summary judgment motion is filed, the party is even more restricted after summary judgment is rendered. After summary judgment is rendered, the losing party is ordinarily restricted to the theories relied on in the pleadings. Except in exceptional circumstances, a party may not have the summary judgment set aside in order to amend the pleadings and have the case proceed on some other legal theory. Summary judgment proceedings would be undermined if a party were free to rely on one theory in an attempt to defeat a motion for summary judgment and then, should that theory prove unsound, come back afterward and amend to assert other theories [Nguyen v. United States (9th Cir 1986) 792 F2d 1500, 1503].

9.11 Adverse Party May Respond to Amended Pleading.

9.11[1] Responsive Pleading Is Not Required. An opposing party may, but is not required to, serve and file a responsive pleading [see Fed R Civ P 15(a)]. The right to notice of the amended pleading and an opportunity to respond are required by due process [Nelson v. Adams USA Inc. (2000) 529 US 460, 465-466, 120 S Ct 1579, 146 L Ed2d 530]. However, if, for example, a defendant has already served an answer to the original version of the complaint, the defendant does not waive an affirmative defense that was pleaded in the original answer by failing to serve an amended answer [Stanley Works v. Snydergeneral Corp. (ED Cal 1990) 781 F Supp 659, 664-665]. A defendant may wish to file an amended answer, however, if an amended complaint changes the theory or scope of the case, or adds new facts that have yet to be admitted or denied.

Strategic Point

--New Responsive Pleading Is Always Best Practice: While there is authority that no response is required, the best practice is to amend the original responsive pleading whenever a responsive pleading is permitted. This will ensure that the matters identified in the original responsive pleading are still at issue, and will provide for a review of all of the amended allegations to make certain that all required denials have been made and all affirmative defenses fully pleaded.

9.11[2] Time to Serve Responsive Pleading Is Brief. A party must plead in response to an amended pleading within the time remaining for response to the previous pleading, or within 14 days after service of the amended pleading, whichever is later [Fed R Civ P 15(a)(3)]. This is a brief period, so the responding party must review the amended pleading and act promptly. The adverse party may agree to stipulate to an extension in the response period. Additionally, the court may extend the response period [Fed R Civ P 15(a)(3)]. However, because the response period is so brief, the best practice is to analyze any difficulties in filing a response before the court grants leave to amend. This allows the party opposing the amendment to ask the court to condition granting leave to amend on an extended period of time for response.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of extended time for response as proper condition for granting leave to amend, see § 9.08[7].

9.12 CHECKLIST: Relation Back of Amendments.

☐ If a proposed amended pleading adds claims or parties, determine whether the statute of limitations has run with respect to those claims or parties.

☐ If the statute has run, determine whether the limitations problem will be avoided if the amendment relates back to the time of the original pleading.

☐ If relation back of the amendment will solve a limitations problem with added claims or parties, consider whether the amendment in question will relate back on one of following three grounds:

○ Relation back is permitted by the state or federal law that it the source of the applicable statute of limitations.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 15(c)(1)(A). See, e.g., CCP § 474 (allowing relation back with respect to "Doe" defendants)

Discussion:
See § 9.14[1]

○ The amendment adds a claim that arose out of the transaction set forth in the original pleading.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 15(c) (1(B)

Discussion:
See § 9.14[2]

○ The amendment changes the party or the naming of a party against whom a claim is being asserted and:

☐ The claim against the new or renamed party is transactionally related to the claim asserted in the original pleading.

☐ Within the 120-day period provided for service of the summons and complaint under Rule 4(m), the party to be brought in by amendment has both:

○ Received notice of the action so that the party will not be prejudiced in maintaining a defense on the merits; and ○ Knew or should have known that, but for a mistake concerning the identity of the proper party, the action would have been brought against the party.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 4(m), 15(c)(1)(C)

Discussion:
See § 9.14[3]

☐ If the United States, or any officer or agency of the United States, is being added as a party defendant by amendment, the amendment will relate back to the original filing date if:

☐ The claim against the new or renamed party governmental defendant is transactionally related to the claim asserted in the original pleading.

☐ Within the 120-day period provided for service of the summons and complaint under Rule 4(m), the plaintiff has delivered or mailed process to the United States Attorney, the United States Attorney's designee, the Attorney General of the United States, or the agency or officer who would have been a proper defendant if originally named.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 15(c)(2)

Discussion:
See § 9.14[3][e]

9.13 Options and Strategy.

When amendments add new claims or new parties, the current defendants may assert that the new claims are time barred, or the new defendants may assert that the claims asserted against them are time barred. Assuming that the claims as asserted in the original pleading are not time barred, the argument comes down to whether the plaintiff may claim that the action was "commenced" as to the new claims or new defendants as of the date of filing of the original complaint rather than the date of the amendment. The terminology used is "relation back." An amendment adding new claims or parties "relates back" to the date of filing of the original complaint or it does not. Fed R Civ P 15(c) provides the standards for when amendments "relate back." By default, if the amendment cannot satisfy the standards of Rule 15(c), the amendment does not "relate back," and the statute of limitations is measured as of the date of filing of the amended pleading rather than the date of filing of the original complaint.

III. RELATION BACK OF AMENDMENTS

2-9 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 9.14

9.14 Amendment May Relate Back on Any of Three Grounds.

9.14[1] When Relation Back Is Permitted by Law Governing Statute of Limitations. An amendment of a pleading relates back to the date of filing of the original pleading when relation back is permitted by the law that provides the statute of limitations applicable to the action [Fed R Civ P 15(c)(1)(A)]. Accordingly, if the applicable limitations law, whether state or federal, affords a more forgiving principle of relation back than is provided in the other subdivisions of Rule 15, that law is available to save the claim [Fed R Civ P 15, Committee Note of 1991].

Example--"Doe" Defendants:

No statute of limitations is contained in 42 USC § 1983, so state law provides the statute of limitations for civil rights claims founded on this statute. The applicable California law of limitations does more than provide a period of time within which these types of actions may be commenced [see CCP § 340 (limitation period for tort actions, one year, usually applies to 42 USC § 1983 actions)]. California limitations law also provides that a plaintiff who does not know the name of a defendant at the time of filing of a complaint may name a "Doe" defendant and amend the complaint at a later time to substitute the true name when it becomes known [CCP § 474]. Under this law, amendments to substitute the true name of a "Doe" defendant relate back to the time of filing of the original complaint. If a plaintiff complies with this provision of California law, an amendment naming a new party as a substitute for a former "Doe" defendant will relate back to the time of filing of the original complaint and will not be barred by limitations [Motley v. Parks (CD Cal 2000) 198 FRD 532, 534-535 ; see also Palestini v. General Dynamics Corp. (SD Cal 2000) 193 FRD 654, 656-657].

For purposes of the Class Action Fairness Act of 2005 (CAFA) [see 109 PL 2, 119 Stat 12], an action filed in California state court is commenced when a complaint is filed, irrespective of any later amendment of that complaint [Progressive W. Ins. Co. v. Preciado (9th Cir 2007) 479 F3d 1014, 1016-1017 ; see McAtee v. Capital One, F.S.B. (9th Cir 2007) 479 F3d 1143, 1148 (substitution of named defendant for Doe defendant in California state court action does not "commence" civil action against new named defendant within meaning of CAFA).

Cross Reference:

Discussion of minimal diversity requirement under Class Action Fairness Act of 2005, see Ch. 2, Determining Forum (Jurisdiction and Venue), § 2.24A.

Warning:

Even when there is relation back for an amendment substituting a particular defendant for a previously named "Doe" defendant under California law, the defendants so named have argued that the other portions of the Federal Rules limit the plaintiff's ability to join them in the action. Such defendants have argued that they may not be joined under the Federal Rules unless they have been or can be served within Rule 4(m)'s 120-day time limit for service, which runs from the filing of the original complaint [see Fed R Civ P 4(m)]. One court has resolved this argument by ruling that, when leave to amend is properly granted and the amendment relates back to the filing of the original complaint under Fed R Civ P 15(c)(1)(C), there is good cause for the court to extend the 120-day time limit for service under Rule 4(m) [Motley v. Parks (CD Cal 2000) 198 FRD 532, 533].

9.14[2] When Amendment to Add Claim or Defense Is Transactionally Related to Original Claims. An amendment of a pleading relates back to the date of filing of the original pleading when the claim or defense asserted in the amended pleading arose out of the conduct, transaction, or occurrence set forth or attempted to be set forth in the original pleading [Fed R Civ P 15(c)(1)(B)]. That is, the original and amended pleadings must share a "common core of operative facts" [Martell v. Trilogy, Ltd. (9th Cir 1989) 872 F2d 322, 325].

Example:

There was no common core of operative facts between plaintiffs' compensation discrimination claim in their amended complaint and the promotion discrimination, hostile work environment, and retaliation claims in their original complaint. Plaintiffs offered different statistical evidence and witnesses to prove the compensation and promotion discrimination claims, because the employer used different processes for making salary and promotion decisions [Williams v. Boeing Co. (9th Cir 2008) 517 F3d 1120, 1133-1134] .

This basis for relation back applies when a party seeks to add a new claim or defense against an existing party. There are additional restrictions when the amendment seeks to change parties [see Martell v. Trilogy, Ltd. (9th Cir 1989) 872 F2d 322, 327 ; see 9.14[3]].

The purpose of the transactional relationship requirement is to ensure that the original defendant had sufficient notice of the new claim. Accordingly, in determining whether the claims are transactionally related, a court will consider whether the facts pleaded to support the original claim gave the defendant fair notice of the transaction or occurrence underlying the claim added by the amendment [Union Pac. R.R. Co. v. Nevada Power Co. (9th Cir 1991) 950 F2d 1429, 1431-1433]. Courts will also consider whether the two claims will rely on the same evidence [Williams v. Boeing Co. (9th Cir 2008) 517 F3d 1120, 1133 ; In re Dominguez v. Miller (9th Cir 1995) 51 F3d 1502, 1510]. When the original pleading fails to provide adequate notice of the claims and is, therefore, deficient under Fed R Civ P 8, it cannot support relation back of the amended pleading [see Baldwin County Welcome Ctr. v. Brown (1984) 466 US 147, 149 n3, 104 S Ct 1723, 80 L Ed2d 196 ; Williams v. Boeing Co. (9th Cir 2008) 517 F3d 1120, 1131 (relation back doctrine did not apply because plaintiffs' general allegations that they were discriminated against with regard to "terms of employment" did not provide "fair notice" of their compensation discrimination claim)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of determination as to whether claim arose out of same conduct, transaction, or occurrence, see 3 Moore's Federal Practice § 15.19[2] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

9.14[3] When Amendment Changes Parties or Names of Parties.

9.14[3][a] Transactional Relatedness Plus Notice and Knowledge Are Required. There are more rigorous requirements for an amendment adding or renaming parties to relate back to the date of filing of the original complaint. When parties are added or changed by amendment, relation back depends on the same "transactionally related" requirement that applies when an amendment is proposed to add a new claim. However, additional requirements apply as well [see Martell v. Trilogy, Ltd. (9th Cir 1989) 872 F2d 322, 327]. An amendment of a pleading adding or renaming parties relates back to the date of filing of the original pleading if, but only if, both of the following are true [Fed R Civ P 15(c)(1)(C)]:

- The claim or defense is transactionally related to the claim or defense asserted in the original pleading.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of required transactional relatedness, see § 9.14[2].

- The party to be added (1) must have received notice of the action so that he or she will not be prejudiced in maintaining a defense on the merits, and (2) the notice must be such that the party either knew or should have known that, but for a mistake concerning the identity of the proper party, the action would have been brought against him or her originally. This must be accomplished within the original time limit for service of summons and complaint provided for in Rule 4(m).

Cross References:

Discussion of required notice, see § 9.14[3][b]. Discussion of required knowledge, see § 9.14[3][c]. Discussion of time limit on notice and knowledge, see § 9.14[3][d].

This ground for relation back protects a plaintiff who mistakenly names a party and then discovers, after the relevant statute of limitations has run, the identity of the proper party [see G.F. Co. v. Pan Ocean Shipping Co. (9th Cir 1994) 23 F3d 1498, 1503-1504]. It allows a plaintiff to correct a formal defect such as a misnomer or misidentification [see Butler v. Robar Enters., Inc. (CD Cal 2002) 208 FRD 621, 623-624].

9.14[3][b] Added Party Must Receive Notice of Action. The party to be brought in by amendment must receive notice of the action so that the party will not be prejudiced in maintaining a defense on the merits [Fed R Civ P 15(c)(1)(C)(i)]. Notice need not be formal [see In re Dominguez v. Miller (9th Cir 1995) 51 F3d 1502, 1509-1510].

Courts may find notice when there is sufficient "community of interest" between the originally named party and the party named in the amendment to justify imputing knowledge of the action from the former to the latter. This occurs when the parties are so closely related in their business operations or other activities that the institution of an action against one serves to provide notice of the litigation to the other [G.F. Co. v. Pan Ocean Shipping Co. (9th Cir 1994) 23 F3d 1498, 1502-1503]. Common situations possibly showing a community of interest are (1) subsidiary and parent corporations; and (2) related entities with substantially the same officers, directors, or shareholders and similar names. A shared attorney may also be one indicator of a community of interest, as the attorney is likely to have communicated notice of the action to the new party [see G.F. Co. v. Pan Ocean Shipping Co. (9th Cir 1994) 23 F3d 1498, 1503]. One district court has stated that contractual relationships alone "are insufficient to demonstrate a community of interest justifying an imputation of knowledge" [see Bailey v. United States (D Haw 2003) 289 F Supp2d 1197, 1208].

9.14[3][c] Added Party Must Know of Mistake As to Identity. Relation back requires that the party to be brought in by the amendment knew or should have known that, but for a mistake concerning the identity of the proper party, the action would have been brought against the new party [Fed R Civ P 15(c)(1)(C)(ii)]. This provision requires both (1) a mistake by the amending party and (2) knowledge of the mistake by the party to be brought in [see, e.g., Abels v. JBC Legal Group, P.C. (ND Cal 2005) 229 FRD 152, 158]. A conscious choice to sue one party rather than another does not constitute mistake as to identity [Louisiana Pac. Corp. v. ASARCO, Inc. (9th Cir 1993) 5 F3d 431, 434]. When the amending party knew of the new party's role and existence and deliberately chose to assert its claim only against the original defendants, relation back does not apply [see Nelson v. Adams USA Inc. (2000) 529 US 460, 467 n1, 120 S Ct 1579, 146 L Ed2d 530]. Similarly, if the plaintiff becomes aware of the mistake and fails to amend the complaint in a timely fashion to name the correct party, this may indicate that the party was not named for strategic reasons and therefore defeat relation back of a later amendment [see G.F. Co. v. Pan Ocean Shipping Co. (9th Cir 1994) 23 F3d 1498, 1503-1504].

Lack of knowledge of the identity of an individual at the time of the filing of the complaint is not considered a "mistake concerning the identity of the proper party" for the purposes of this requirement. Accordingly, when a plaintiff names a "Doe" defendant, there is no mistake as to identity that would allow later relation back (at least not under this provision of Rule 15) when the plaintiff discovers the identity of the defendant [Butler v. Robar Enters., Inc. (CD Cal 2002) 208 FRD 621, 623-624].

Distinguish:

Relation back with respect to "Doe" defendants is allowed when state law provides the statute of limitations and that law would allow relation back [Fed R Civ P 15(c)(1)(A)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of relation back with respect to "Doe" defendants, see § 9.14[1].

9.14[3][d] Time Limit on Notice and Knowledge Runs From Original Complaint. The additional notice and knowledge requirements for relation back must be met within the Rule 4(m)'s time limits for service of the summons and complaint. This means that the party to be added must have the required notice and knowledge within 120 days from the date of filing of the original complaint [Fed R Civ P 15(c)(1)(C)(i); see Fed R Civ P 4(m)]. However, the 120-day period is not fixed and absolute. Rule 4(m) allows the court to extend the 120-day time period for service for "good cause" [Fed R Civ P 4(m)]. The time limit on notice and knowledge in this relation back provision of Rule 15 includes both the nominal 120-day period and any extension of it granted by the court [see Fed R Civ P 15, Committee Note of 1991].

9.14[3][e] Alternative Method of Satisfying Notice Requirements As to Government Defendants. Proper identification of parties is a particular problem in suits against the government. To alleviate this difficulty, a special provision applies when the United States or any United States agency or officer is to be brought in as a defendant. The requirements of notice of the action and knowledge of the mistake (but not the transactional relationship requirement) are met if, within the 120-day period specified for serving the summons and complaint, the amending party delivers or mails process [Fed R Civ P 15(c)(2)]:

- To the United States Attorney or designee, or
- To the Attorney General of the United States, or
- To the agency or officer who would have been a proper defendant if named.

This special government notice provision is an alternative to the general notice provision. If either is satisfied, the notice requirements of Rule 15(c)(3) are met [Miles v. Department of Army (9th Cir 1989) 881 F2d 777, 782].

Warning--Contrary Authority:

This provision is written in the disjunctive, so that the notice requirements are met if the party serves the U.S. Attorney or the Attorney General or the agency or officer [see McGuckin v. United States (9th Cir 1990) 918 F2d 811, 813]. However, under Rule 4, a party suing a government defendant must always serve both the U.S. attorney for the proper district and the Attorney General, and, in some instances, the United States officer or employee in question [Fed R Civ P 4(i)]. There is some questionable authority that, by analogy to Rule 4, the amending party must serve both the U.S. Attorney and the Attorney General in order to meet the Rule 15 requirements for relation back [see Allen v. Veterans Admin. (9th Cir 1989) 749 F2d 1386, 1390].

Cross Reference:

Service requirements for United States governmental defendants, see Ch. 7, Service of Summons, see § 7.30.

Discussion of conflict between Rule 4 and Rule 15(c), see 3 Moore's Federal Practice, § 15.19[4] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

9.14[3][f] Amendment Adding Plaintiff May Relate Back. Rule 15(c) applies to amendments changing a party "against whom a claim is asserted" and, therefore, does not explicitly apply to amendments adding plaintiffs. However, the attitude taken in Rule 15(c) toward change of defendants extends by analogy to amendments changing plaintiffs [Fed R Civ P 15, Committee Note of 1966]. An amendment adding a plaintiff relates back to the date of the original pleading only when (1) the original complaint gave the defendant adequate notice of the claims of the newly proposed plaintiff, (2) the relation back does not unfairly prejudice the defendant, and (3) there is an identity of interests between the original and newly proposed plaintiff [Immigrant Assistance Project of L.A. County Fed'n of Labor v. INS (9th Cir 2002) 306 F3d 842, 857].

Example:

The original complaint and the amended complaint were both filed on behalf of immigrants who were eligible for legalization but who had unlawfully been denied access to legalization benefits by the defendant, the INS. Both the original and amended complaints challenged the same INS regulations and practices. Under these circumstances; (1) the notice requirement was met; (2) the addition of new plaintiffs who were similarly situated to the original plaintiffs did not cause the INS any prejudice; and (3) there was identity of interest between the original and added plaintiffs because the circumstances giving rise to their claims were the same and because the same regulations and practices gave rise to both sets of claims [Immigrant Assistance Project of L.A. County Fed'n of Labor v. INS (9th Cir 2002) 306 F3d 842, 857-859].

9.15 CHECKLIST: Amending Pleadings to Conform to Evidence.

☐ Determine whether issues outside the pleadings were tried by:

- ○ Express consent.
- ○ Implied consent, because the adverse party treated the issues as pleaded, either:
  - ☐ By failing to object to evidence relating only to those issues at trial.
  - ☐ By addressing the issues in papers filed with the court.

☐ Decide whether there is any reason to amend the pleadings, considering that failure to amend does not affect the trial of the issues tried by consent.

☐ If amendment is desired, move the court for leave to amend:

- ○ Prepare a notice of motion for leave to amend.
- ○ Attach a copy of the proposed amended pleading, with any attachments, to copies of the notice of motion to be served and filed. A local rule in the Central District requires an original and one copy of the proposed amended pleading to be lodged with the court.

- Follow standard noticed motion procedure.

- Prepare an order for the court's signature in the event it grants the motion.

Timing:

An amendment conforming the pleadings to the evidence may be made on motion of any party at any time, even after judgment.

9.17 Party May Amend Pleadings After Trial to Conform to Evidence.

9.17[1] Amendment Is Not Required. When issues not raised by the pleadings are tried by express or implied consent of the parties, those issues must be treated in all respects as if they had been raised in the pleadings. Failure to amend does not affect the result of the trial of those issues [Fed R Civ P 15(b)(2)]. If an amendment to the pleadings to conform to the proof should have been made, an appellate court will presume that it is so made to support the judgment [Dunn v. Trans World Airlines, Inc. (9th Cir 1978) 589 F2d 408, 412-413].

Distinguish:

When evidence is objected to at trial on the ground that it is not within the issues raised by the pleadings, the party offering the evidence must amend the pleadings to support the trial of the issues. However, leave to amend must be freely granted [Fed R Civ P 15(b)(1)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of procedure when evidence of matters outside the pleadings is objected to at trial, see § 9.18.

9.17[2] Amendment May Be Made on Motion at Any Time. An amendment conforming the pleadings to the evidence may be made on motion of any party at any time, even after judgment [Fed R Civ P 15(b)(2); see Galindo v. Stoody Co. (9th Cir 1986) 793 F2d 1502, 1513].

Cross References:

Form for notice of motion for leave to amend pleading to conform to evidence, see § 9.25. Form for order permitting amendment of pleading to conform to evidence, see § 9.26.

9.17[3] Applies to Issues Tried by Express or Implied Consent. An amendment to conform the pleadings to the evidence is appropriate when issues not raised by the pleadings are tried by "the parties' express or implied consent" [Fed R Civ P 15(b)(2); Prieto v. Paul Revere Life Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2004) 354 F3d 1005, 1012].

To establish implied consent, the party must demonstrate that the adverse party understood evidence had been introduced to prove the unpleaded issue, and that this issue had been directly addressed, not merely inferentially raised by incidental evidence. When evidence was also relevant to other issues at trial, it cannot be used to imply consent to try the unpleaded issue [Acequia, Inc. v. Clinton (In re Acequia, Inc.) (9th Cir 1994) 34 F3d 800, 814]. Implied consent may not be obtained over issues that are not directly addressed or that are only "inferentially suggested by incidental evidence in the record" [Prieto v. Paul Revere Life Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2004) 354 F3d 1005, 1013].

9.18 Court Must Freely Allow Leave to Amend After Objection at Trial.

If evidence is objected to at the trial on the ground that it is not within the issues raised by the pleadings, the evidence may be excluded. Alternatively, the court has discretion to allow the pleadings to be amended and must do so freely when the presentation of the merits of the action will be served and the objecting party fails to satisfy the court that the admission of the evidence would prejudice the objecting party in maintaining the party's action or defense on the merits. The court may grant a continuance to enable the objecting party to meet the evidence [Fed R Civ P 15(b)(1)].

In this situation, the court may not treat the pleadings as amended. Following an objection, the party offering the evidence must obtain leave to amend and then amend the pleadings so that they raise the relevant issues [see Ostano Commerzanstalt v. Telewide Sys., Inc. (2d Cir 1989) 880 F2d 642, 646].

9.19 CHECKLIST: Supplementing Pleadings.

☐ Determine whether a supplemental pleading may be used to plead new facts or add claims or parties:

○ Facts pleaded in a supplemental pleading must have arisen after the original pleadings were filed.

○ The events must be related, but not necessarily transactionally related, to the original claims and defenses.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 15(d)

Discussion:
See § 9.21

☐ Consider advantages and disadvantages of bringing the newly arisen claims in the same action or in a separate, future action.

Discussion:
See § 9.21

☐ Prepare the supplemental pleading.

Authority:
ED Cal Civ LR 220

Discussion:
See § 9.21[6]

☐ Move the court for leave to supplement:

○ Prepare motion for leave to file supplemental pleading.

○ Attach copy of proposed supplemental pleading, with any attachments, to copies of notice of motion to be served and filed.

○ Follow standard noticed motion procedure.

○ Prepare an order for the court's signature in the event it grants the motion.

Timing:
The time limit for supplementing the pleadings will usually be set in the court's Rule 16 scheduling order.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 15(d)

Discussion:
See § 9.21[4]

Forms:
See § 9.27 (motion for leave to file supplemental pleading), § 9.28 (order granting leave)

Standard Procedure Checklist:
Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.12

☐ If the motion is granted:

○ File a copy of the supplemental pleading with the court.

○ If a new party is joined or substituted, serve on new party as required by Rule 4.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 4

Discussion:
Ch. 6, Drafting the Summons and Complaint; Ch. 7, Service of Summons

9.20 Options and Strategy.

Supplemental pleadings, which are used to plead facts that have arisen after the party's original pleading was filed [Fed R Civ P 15(d)], may be useful in a variety of cases when the transaction or occurrence that is the subject of the suit extends over a long period of time, or when the consequences of an injury reveal themselves over time. Supplemental pleadings may be necessary, for example, when the defendant has repeated the injury or when new forms or types of injuries or damages have arisen after the plaintiff filed the complaint. A supplemental pleading may be used to seek additional relief that is appropriate under the new facts. Supplemental pleadings are not restricted to a plaintiff's complaint. A defendant may supplement an answer with facts relating to affirmative defenses, such as res judicata, based on after-occurring events [see, e.g., Sanchez v. City of Santa Ana (9th Cir 1990) 915 F2d 424, 431-432].

Unit 3 Pleading Stage
CHAPTER 9 Amending and Supplementing Pleadings
V. SUPPLEMENTING PLEADINGS

2-9 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 9.21

9.21 Court May Allow Supplemental Pleadings to Add Occurrences Since Date of Original Pleading.

9.21[1] Supplemental Pleading Adds New Events, Claims, and Parties. A supplemental pleading differs from an amendment in that is used to set forth "transactions or occurrences or events which have happened since the date of the pleading sought to supplemented" [Fed R Civ P 15(d)]. Thus, a supplemental pleading may be used to add new claims that have arisen after the original pleading [Keith v. Volpe (9th Cir 1988) 858 F2d 467, 473-474]. Similarly, a counterclaim maturing or acquired after the earlier pleading may be presented by supplemental pleading [see Fed R Civ P 13(e)]. A supplemental pleading may be used to add new parties when the joined persons participated in the events that happened after the original pleading [see Griffin v. County Sch. Bd. of Prince Edward County (1964) 377 US 218, 227, 84 S Ct 1226, 12 L Ed2d 256].

Distinguish:

An amended pleading, rather than a supplemental pleading, is restricted to pleading facts that existed at the time that the original pleading was filed. While the correct type of pleading should be used, a mislabeled pleading may be treated as the correct type of pleading by the court [United States ex rel. Wulff v. CMA, Inc. (9th Cir 1989) 890 F2d 1070, 1073].

9.21[2] Supplemental Pleading May Correct Defective Original Pleading. Permission to supplement may be granted even though the original pleading is defective in its statement of a claim for relief or defense [Fed R Civ P 15(d)].

9.21[3] Events Must Be Related to Original Claims or Defenses.

9.21[3][a] Transactional Relationship Is Not Required. The facts pleaded in a supplemental pleading must be related to the claims or defenses presented in the original pleading. However, the facts need not arise out of the same transaction. The transactional test, which is an integral part of other federal rules, is not required under Rule 15(d) [Keith v. Volpe (9th Cir 1988) 858 F2d 467, 474].

9.21[3][b] Supplemental Pleading May Plead Related Claim for Relief. The fact that a supplemental pleading states a new claim for relief is not a bar to its allowance, but only a factor to be considered by the court in the exercise of its discretion [Keith v. Volpe (9th Cir 1988) 858 F2d 467, 474].

Example:

The plaintiffs in a class action successfully challenged a state parental consent abortion law, and four years later sought to supplement their complaint to challenge a separate statute that had been enacted. Because the original action had reached a final resolution and the district court did not retain jurisdiction, it was an abuse of discretion to allow the supplemental pleading rather than require the plaintiffs to initiate a new suit [Planned Parenthood v. Neely (9th Cir 1997) 130 F3d 400, 402-403].

9.21[3][c] Failure to Plead Related Claims Does Not Preclude Later Action. Supplemental pleadings are permissive with the parties and discretionary with the court. The failure to supplement an action with claims that have arisen since the action was filed does not create a bar to filing those claims in a future suit [Baker Group, L.C. v. Burlington N. & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (8th Cir 2000) 228 F3d 883, 886 ; SEC v. First Jersey Sec., Inc. (2d Cir 1996) 101 F3d 1450, 1464-1465 , cert. denied, 522 US 812 (1997)]. If new facts create no new claims, but merely increase the amount of damages from the original claims, this must be litigated in the original suit.

Decision Point:

When new, related claims arise after the suit is filed, the pleader must decide whether to bring the claims through a supplemental pleading or file a later suit. Economy and convenience will usually militate in favor of the same suit, but the pleader should also consider whether a different judge or a different venue might be advantageous.

9.21[4] Leave of Court Is Required. A court may allow a supplemental pleading on motion of a party, with reasonable notice, and "on such terms as are just" [Fed R Civ P 15(d); Wagner v. Professional Eng'rs in Cal. Gov't (9th Cir 2004) 354 F3d 1036, 1052]. Courts have broad discretion whether to grant or deny leave to supplement, but allowing supplementation is favored in the interest of judicial economy and convenience [see Keith v. Volpe (9th Cir 1988) 858 F2d 467, 476].

Distinguish:

Rule 15(a), governing amended pleadings, requires that leave to amend should be freely given "when justice so requires." While this same standard is usually applied to supplemental pleadings, Rule 15(d) contains no language explicitly requiring that leave be given "freely" [see Burns v. Exxon Corp. (5th Cir 1998) 158 F3d 336, 343].

Cross References:

Discussion of requirement that leave to amend be freely given, see § 9.08[5]. Form for motion for leave to file supplemental pleading, see § 9.27. Form for order granting leave to supplement pleading, see § 9.28.

9.21[5] Supplemental Pleading May Relate Back to Date of Original Pleading. Because supplemental pleadings deal with facts that have arisen since the date of filing of the original complaint, there should rarely be any statute of limitations problems concerning the new matters raised in a supplemental pleading unless the amending party has been dilatory in raising the new matters. There should, at least in the vast majority of cases, be no need to worry about whether the new matters in the supplemental pleading "relate back" to the date of the filing of the original pleading for limitations purposes. Indeed, Rule 15(c), which governs relation back, speaks only of the relation back of "amendments," and does not refer to supplemental pleadings [see Fed R Civ P 15(c)]. Nonetheless, particularly because the distinction between supplemental pleadings and amended pleadings is often tenuous, courts have applied the relation back standards of Rule 15(c) to supplemental as well as to amended pleadings [see FDIC v. Knostman (7th Cir 1992) 966 F2d 1133, 1138 ; Fed R Civ P 15(c)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of relation back under Rule 15(c), see § 9.14.

9.21[6] LOCAL PRACTICE: Supplemental Pleading Should Take Form of Completely Revised Pleading. In the Eastern District of California, unless prior approval to the contrary is obtained from the court, every pleading that is supplemented must be "retyped" and filed so that it is complete in itself without reference to the prior, superseded pleading. No pleading is deemed supplemented until the amending party complies with this rule [ED Cal Civ LR 220]. The local rules for the other districts in California provide similar requirements for amended pleadings [see CD Cal Civ LR 15-2; ND Cal Civ LR 10-1; SD Cal Civ LR 15.1], but are silent with respect to supplemental pleadings. Nonetheless, the best practice is to supplement pleadings by complete, replacement pleadings. It will always be more convenient for the court and the parties to deal with a single, unified document. And it would be unwise to rely too heavily on the distinction between amended and supplemental pleadings when the court's policy on these matters is clearly in favor of pleading documents that are complete in themselves without reference to other documents.

9.21[7] Court May Allow Response. If the court deems it advisable, it may order the adverse party to plead in response to the supplemental pleading. In this event, the court must also specify the time allowed for the responsive pleading [Fed R Civ P 15(d)]. A party is not entitled to respond to a supplemental pleading as a matter of course, but only if the court deems it advisable [see Pratt v. Rowland (ND Cal 1991) 769 F Supp 1128, 1132].

Amendment is necessary to add allegations with respect to _____ [identify issue], which was raised by the evidence at trial without objection and, therefore, tried with the implied consent of all parties. Rule 15(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure provides that issues not raised by the pleadings that are tried by the express or implied consent of the parties are treated as if they had been raised by the parties.

_____ [Plaintiff or Defendant]'s Motion for Leave to File a _____ [proposed pleading, e.g., Supplemental Complaint], which was filed on _____ [date], was duly noticed and came on regularly for hearing on _____ [date]. Having read the papers submitted in support of and in opposition to the motion and having considered the arguments of counsel, the Court finds that justice would be served if the motion were granted. Accordingly,

IT IS ORDERED THAT:

1. The motion is GRANTED;

2. _____ [Plaintiff or Defendant] is granted leave to file the _____ [proposed pleading, e.g., First Supplemental Complaint] that was attached as Exhibit A to the Motion for Leave to Supplement the Pleadings.

3. The _____ [Plaintiff or Defendant] will file and serve this supplemental pleading no later than _____ [date].

4. The _____ [Defendant or Plaintiff] may respond to this supplemental pleading within _____ [number] days after service is completed.

Unit 3 Pleading Stage
CHAPTER 10 Adding, Dropping, and Substituting Parties
I. STRATEGY

2-10 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 10.02

10.02 Objective and Strategy for Adding or Dropping Parties.

The court may add or drop a party to a pending civil action for two reasons:

- Nonjoinder: The party should have or could have previously been included in the action, as a proper or necessary party, but was not added at the time of the original pleading.

- In the interests of justice, which include the concepts of fundamental fairness and the efficient administration of the judicial system.

A party may add or drop another party either by motion or by an amendment to a pleading. Adding or dropping by amendment has the advantage that if the party makes the amendment before the 21-day window for amendment as a matter of course ends, the party does not need leave of court, and need not show grounds for the change [see Fed R Civ P 15].

When a person is added as a party, the court may grant judgment in favor of each plaintiff, including the added plaintiff, according to the respective rights to relief, and against each defendant, including each added defendant, according to the respective liabilities [see Fed R Civ P 20(a)(3)].

A person dropped as a party is not subject to any judgment rendered in the action [Reynolds & Reynolds Co. v. Universal Forms, Labels & Sys. (CD Cal 1997) 965 F Supp 1392, 1397]. Furthermore, unless the court specifies otherwise, the party is dropped without prejudice. Thus, a dropped party that had asserted a claim for relief could bring the claim in another action, and a dropped defendant could be subject to the same claim in another action [Coughlin v. Rogers (9th Cir 1997) 130 F3d 1348, 1350].

CHAPTER 10 Adding, Dropping, and Substituting Parties
I. STRATEGY

2-10 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 10.03

10.03 Objective and Strategy for Substituting Parties.

When a party is unable to continue in a pending civil action, the successors or representatives of the party, or the other parties, frequently want the action to continue with respect to the claims of the party who is unable to continue. The effect of a substitution is that the new party steps into the exact position in the litigation that the original party occupied [Hilao v. Estate of Marcos (9th Cir 1996) 103 F3d 762, 766].

A party may move for substitution if another party dies, becomes incompetent, or transfers its interest in litigation [Fed R Civ P 25 (a),(b),(c)]. Automatic substitution occurs when a government official in an official capacity suit dies or otherwise leaves office [Fed R Civ P 25(d)]. For this automatic substitution, no motion has to be made for the substitution to take effect.

Because a substitution is, in practical effect, the dropping of a current party and the adding of a new one, a party may be able to use Fed R Civ P 21 to effect substitution when Fed R Civ P 25 substitution is not available, provided that the party by motion can obtain court approval to drop one party and add another.

II. ADDING PERSONS AS PARTIES TO EXISTING ACTION

2-10 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 10.04

10.04 CHECKLIST: Adding Parties.

☐ Determine whether grounds exist for addition of party, including:

- ○ Nonjoinder; or
- ○ Interests of justice.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 19(a), 20(a), 21

Discussion:
See § 10.05[1]

☐ Determine basis to add particular prospective party, in that:

- ○ Prospective party should be joined as required party, because:
  - ☐ Joinder of prospective party is needed for just adjudication; and
  - ☐ Joinder of prospective party is feasible.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 19(a)

Discussion:
See § 10.07

○ Prospective party may be joined as proper party, in that:

☐ Claim for relief could be asserted by or against prospective party that relates to or arises out of same transaction or occurrence or series of transactions or occurrences as those claims currently being litigated; and

☐ Some questions of law or fact common to all prospective plaintiffs and defendants arise in the suit related to the claim for relief.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 20(a)

Discussion:
See § 10.08

☐ Determine method to add party:

○ By motion, requiring:

☐ Statement of grounds.

☐ Approval of court.

○ By amendment of pleading, which does not require statement of grounds and approval of court, provided amendment is made before the right to amend once terminates.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 15(a), 21

Discussion:
See § 10.05[2]

☐ Draft motion and notice of motion requesting order that adds party to litigation, stating applicable grounds.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 21

Discussion:
See § 10.09

Forms:
See §§ 10.23, 10.24

Unit 3 Pleading Stage
CHAPTER 10 Adding, Dropping, and Substituting Parties
II. ADDING PERSONS AS PARTIES TO EXISTING ACTION

2-10 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 10.05

10.05 Options and Strategies Related to Addition of Parties.

10.05[1] New Parties May Be Added to Pending Civil Action. Parties may added by order of the court on motion of any party or sua sponte at any stage of the action and on such terms as are just [Fed R Civ P 21].

10.05[2] Procedural Mechanism for Adding Party.

10.05[2][a] Plaintiff May Elect to Join Proper Parties at Initiation of Action. A plaintiff will ordinarily have the option to join at the time of filing the complaint all persons who are proper parties under permissive joinder [Fed R Civ P 20; Gibson v. Chrysler Corp. (9th Cir 2001) 261 F3d 927, 936 , cert. denied, 534 US 1104 (2002) ; see 10.08]. However, the plaintiff is not required to join all proper parties at that time, and may later add parties by filing a motion for addition [Fed R Civ P 21; see 10.05[2][c]] or by amending a pleading [Fed R Civ P 15(a); see 10.05[2][d]].

10.05[2][b] Defendant or Other Party May Add Parties by Joinder. Although the permissive party joinder rule gives the plaintiff great discretion to determine whether to include coplaintiffs and more than one defendant in the action, the defendant may be able to alter the plaintiff's choice by impleading third-party defendants [see Fed R Civ P 14(a)] or by moving for the joinder of persons required for just adjudication [see Fed R Civ P 19(a)]. Additionally, a defendant who files a counterclaim or crossclaim in the pending case is treated as a plaintiff for purposes of permissive party joinder [see Fed R Civ P 13(h) (persons other than those made parties to original action may be made parties to counterclaim or crossclaim in accordance with provisions of Fed R Civ P 19 and 20)].

10.05[2][c] Party May Add Party by Motion. Any current party may move the court to order the addition of another person at any stage of the action and on such terms as are just [Fed R Civ P 21; see Abreu v. Ramirez (CD Cal 2003) 284 F Supp2d 1250, 1260 ; see also 10.09].

10.05[2][d] Party May Add Party by Amendment to Pleading. Fed R Civ P 21 specifies the procedure for adding parties. On the other hand, Fed R Civ P 15(a) is a more specific provision that specifies the particular means by which a party may add a new party by an amendment to the pleadings [Matthews Metals Prods., Inc. v. RBM Precision Metal Prods., Inc. (ND Cal 1999) 186 FRD 581, 583]. The most important distinction between the procedures is that the amendment procedure provides that a party may make the addition without obtaining a court order:

- A plaintiff may properly add a party without leave of court before the 21-day window for amendment as a matter of course ends [Matthews Metals Prods., Inc. v. RBM Precision Metal Prods., Inc. (ND Cal 1999) 186 FRD 581, 583 (order of court is not required for amendment adding party, decided under former Fed R Civ P 15(a))]. A party may amend its pleading once "as a matter of course," that is, unilaterally without court permission or the consent of opposing parties, within 21 days after serving the pleading [Fed R Civ P 15(a)(1)(A)]. This simple, 21-day deadline applies to pleadings that do not require a responsive pleading [see Fed R Civ P 15(a)(1)(A); see also Fed R Civ P 7(a) (list of responsive pleadings)]. If the pleading is one that does require a responsive pleading, a more complex time limit applies. In these circumstances, a party may amend its pleading either [Fed R Civ P 15(a)(1)(B)]:

  - Within 21 days after service of the responsive pleading; or
  - Within 21 days after service of a motion under Rule 12(b), (e), or (f), whichever is earlier.

- A defendant may join additional parties without leave of court through the mechanism of a counterclaim or crossclaim, provided the defendant raises the counterclaim or crossclaim in its responsive pleading [Thompson v. Boggs (7th Cir 1994) 33 F3d 847, 858 , cert. denied, 514 US 1063 (1995)].

Warning:

If a proposed amended pleading adds parties, be sure to ascertain whether the statute of limitations has run with respect to those parties [see Fed R Civ P 15(c)(1)(A)].

Cross Reference:

General discussion of requirements and procedures for amendment of pleadings, see Ch. 9, Amending and Supplementing Pleadings, see §§ 9.03 -9.11. Discussion of relation back of amendments for statute of limitations purposes, see Ch. 9, Amending and Supplementing Pleadings, see §§ 9.12 -9.14.

10.05[3] Party Added Is Subject to Judgment. When a person is added as a party, the court may grant judgment in favor of each added plaintiff according to the plaintiff's respective rights to relief, and against each added defendant according to the defendant's respective liabilities [Fed R Civ P 20(a)(3); see Fed R Civ P 18(b), 19(a)]. Thus, when multiple plaintiffs or multiple defendants are properly joined under the joinder rules, claims by the joined plaintiffs or against the joined defendants may be asserted jointly, severally, or in the alternative [see Fed R Civ P 8(a); see also Matthews Metals Prods., Inc. v. RBM Precision Metal Prods., Inc. (ND Cal 1999) 186 FRD 581, 583].

II. ADDING PERSONS AS PARTIES TO EXISTING ACTION

2-10 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 10.06

10.06 Federal Rules Prescribe Requirements for Party Joinder.

Rules 19 and 20 address compulsory and permissive joinder of parties, respectively. Rule 19 states that if an absent party is needed for a just adjudication of a case, the court will order his or her joinder if feasible; if not feasible, the court must determine "in equity and good conscience" whether it should proceed without the absent party or dismiss the action. If the court cannot proceed, the party is deemed indispensable [Fed R Civ P 19(a), (b)]. Under Rule 20, permissive joinder of parties is allowed if a party has some relation to the action but does not fall into a class of a party needed for adjudication under Rule 19. Such a person is a "proper party" and may be joined as plaintiff or defendant if the tests of Rule 20 are satisfied [Fed R Civ P 20].

CHAPTER 10 Adding, Dropping, and Substituting Parties
II. ADDING PERSONS AS PARTIES TO EXISTING ACTION

2-10 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 10.07

10.07 Rule 19: Parties Needed for Adjudication Are Subject to Compulsory Joinder.

A person who is subject to service and whose joinder will not deprive a court of jurisdiction over the subject matter of the action, "must be joined as a party" if [Fed R Civ P 19(a)(1)]:

- In his or her absence, complete relief cannot be accorded among those already parties; or
- He or she claims an interest relative to the subject of the action and is so situated that the disposition of the action in his or her absence may:
  - as a practical matter impair or impede his or her ability to protect that interest, or
  - leave any of the persons already parties subject to a substantial risk of incurring double, multiple, or otherwise inconsistent obligations because of his or her claimed interest.

If a party falls within this definition, but is not subject to service of process, or if the party's joinder would destroy diversity, the court must determine whether in equity and good conscience the action should proceed among the parties without the absent party, or in the alternative, be dismissed. Four factors for consideration by the court include [Fed R Civ P 19(b)]:

- The extent to which a judgment rendered in the person's absence might be prejudicial to the absent person or those already parties;
- The extent to which the prejudice could be lessened or avoided by protective provisions in the judgment, by the shaping of relief, or by other measures;
- Whether a judgment rendered in the person's absence will be adequate; and
- Whether the plaintiff would have an adequate remedy if the action is dismissed.

Exception:

The compulsory joinder rule does not apply when the class action rule [see Fed R Civ P 23] controls the circumstances of the case [Fed R Civ P 19(d)].

A plaintiff in its complaint, or a defendant in a counterclaim, or any other party making a claim for relief, may join all persons needed for just adjudication, but is not required to do so. However, if any necessary persons known to a party pleading a claim for relief are not specified in the pleading, the pleader must state the name of the absent persons and the reasons why they are not joined [Fed R Civ P 19(c)].

10.08 Rule 20: Permissive Joinder of Parties.

Even though a person is not a required party needed for just adjudication under Fed R Civ P 19(a), the person may qualify as a permissive joinder party under Fed R Civ P 20 [see Fed R Civ P 20(a)].

The court has discretion to join all persons in one action as plaintiffs or defendants if two conditions are met [Fed R Civ P 20(a)]:

1. Each person asserts any right to relief jointly, severally, or in the alternative with respect to or arising out of the same transaction, occurrence, or series of transactions or occurrences.

2. Any question of law or fact common to each person will arise in the action.

A plaintiff or defendant may be permissively joined even though he or she has no interest in obtaining or defending against all the relief demanded [Fed R Civ P 20(a)].

CHAPTER 10 Adding, Dropping, and Substituting Parties
II. ADDING PERSONS AS PARTIES TO EXISTING ACTION

2-10 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 10.09

10.09 Procedural Considerations for Addition of Party by Motion.

10.09[1] Only Current Party May Move for Addition of New Party. A motion to add a person as a party may only be made by a party to the existing litigation [Fed R Civ P 21; see Thompson v. Boggs (7th Cir 1994) 33 F3d 847, 858 n10 , cert. denied, 514 US 1063 (1995)]. If a nonparty wants to make application to enter litigation that has already been initiated, the person should do so by a motion to intervene [see Fed R Civ P 24; see also Hutchinson v. Pfeil (10th Cir 2000) 211 F3d 515, 518].

Cross References:

Discussion of requirements and procedures for intervention, see Ch. 14, Intervention.

Intervention of right and permissive intervention, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 24, Intervention (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

10.09[2] Court Order Required for Addition of Party. Parties may be added only by order of the court [Fed R Civ P 21]. Thus, the existing parties in an action do not have the power to unilaterally or by agreement add parties, and if the court makes no order of addition regarding a person, no adjudication may occur regarding that person [see Kirkland v. Legion Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 343 F3d 1135, 1142].

Exception:

Because Fed R Civ P 15 allows an existing party to add a new party by an amendment to the pleadings [see Fed R Civ P 15(a)], a plaintiff may properly add a party without leave of court, provided the plaintiff makes the amendment before the 21-day window for amendment as a matter of course ends [Matthews Metals Prods., Inc. v. RBM Precision Metal Prods., Inc. (ND Cal 1999) 186 FRD 581, 583 (order of court is not required for amendment adding party, decided under former Fed R Civ P 15(a))]. Similarly, a defendant may join additional parties without leave of court through a counterclaim or crossclaim, provided the defendant raises the counterclaim or crossclaim in its initial responsive pleading [Thompson v. Boggs (7th Cir 1994) 33 F3d 847, 858 , cert. denied, 514 US 1063 (1995)].

Cross Reference:

Unilateral right to amend, see § 10.05[2][d]. Discussion of requirements and procedures for amendment, see Ch. 9, Amending and Supplementing Pleadings.

10.09[3] Court May Act on Its Own Initiative to Order Addition of Party. In addition to its discretion to make an order on the motion of a party, a court may by order add persons as parties on the court's own initiative [Fed R Civ P 21]. The court has considerable discretion in determining whether to add parties, and each case must be decided on its particular facts. However, in exercising its discretion under Rule 21, the court should consider principles of fundamental fairness and judicial efficiency, and should consider whether the order would prejudice any party [Whitaker v. Garcetti (CD Cal 2003) 291 F Supp2d 1132, 1156 , aff'd in part, rev'd in part on other grounds, Whitaker v. Garcetti (9th Cir 2007) 486 F3d 572] or would result in undue delay [In re Merrill Lynch & Co. Research Reports Sec. Litig. (SDNY 2003) 214 FRD 152, 155 , vacated and remanded on other grounds, Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith Inc. v. Dabit, 547 U.S. 71 (citing Moore's)].

10.09[4] Motion to Add Party May Be Made at Any Time. The court may order the addition of a party on motion of any party or of its own initiative at any stage of the action [Fed R Civ P 21]. A party may be added after trial has started, and even after judgment on appeal [California Credit Union League v. City of Anaheim (9th Cir 1999) 190 F3d 997, 1001 , cert. denied, 528 US 1154 (2000) (United States could be added as co-plaintiff at appellate level in interests of justice, when addition did not result in any prejudice to existing parties)]. However, in making its discretionary determination, the court may refuse to order addition of a party when the moving party has been dilatory in filing its motion [Hensgens v. Deere & Co. (5th Cir 1987) 833 F2d 1179, 1182 , cert. denied, 493 US 851 (1989)].

10.09[5] When Addition of Person Needed for Just Adjudication Is Not Feasible Court May Be Required to Dismiss Action.

10.09[5][a] Court May Add Person Needed for Just Adjudication If Feasible. In addition to nonjoinder of a proper party under permissive joinder rules [see 10.08], nonjoinder also occurs when the plaintiff or the court fails to join a person needed for a just adjudication of the pending litigation [see 10.07]. The failure to join such a party may be raised by motion to add the party under Fed R Civ P 21 [Presidential Comm'n on Good Gov't v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 2002) 309 F3d 1143, 1152]. The court must join the absentee in the pending case if such joinder is feasible [Fed R Civ P 19(a)].

10.09[5][b] Court May Not Add Person Needed for Just Adjudication If Joinder Is Not Feasible. If joinder of an absentee needed for a just adjudication is not feasible, the court may have to dismiss the action. Joinder is not feasible, for example, when the court cannot obtain personal jurisdiction over the necessary party, when the necessary party's joinder would destroy diversity of citizenship jurisdiction, or when the necessary party has a valid objection to venue [Fed R Civ P 19(a)]. In such a situation, the court has only two choices: it must either proceed without adding the necessary party or dismiss the pending case because the absentee is indispensable. Thus, nonjoinder of such an absentee may not be cured by ordering addition of the absentee under Fed R Civ P 21 [see Moubry v. Kreb (D Minn 1999) 58 F Supp2d 1041, 1048].

2-10 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 10.10

10.10 CHECKLIST: Dropping Parties.

☐ Determine whether grounds exist for dropping existing party from pending action, including:

○ Misjoinder, which is inclusion of party in action who is not a proper party; or ○ Interests of justice, which include promotion of fundamental fairness and efficient administration of court system.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 20(a), 21

Discussion:
See § 10.12

☐ Determine basis to drop particular party, in that party is not proper party because:

○ No claim for relief could be asserted by or against party that relates to or arises out of same transaction or occurrence or series of transactions or occurrences as other claims currently before court; and

○ No question of law or fact common to all parties arises in the action related to the claim for relief.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 20(a)

Discussion:
See § 10.12[1]

☐ Determine method to drop party:

○ By motion, which requires statement of grounds and approval of court; or ○ Amendment of pleading, which does not require statement of grounds and approval of court, provided amendment is made before the right to amend once terminates.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 15(a), 21

Discussion:
See § 10.11

☐ If party is misjoined with respect to fewer than all claims, determine whether to make motion for court to sever misjoined claims.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 21

Discussion:
See § 10.14

☐ Draft motion and notice of motion requesting that court order party dropped from litigation, or that claims be severed from action, stating applicable grounds.

Authority:

CHAPTER 10 Adding, Dropping, and Substituting Parties
III. DROPPING PARTIES

2-10 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 10.11

10.11 Options and Strategies Related to Dropping Parties.

10.11[1] Grounds for Dropping Named Party. The court may drop a party to a pending civil action for two reasons:

- Nonjoinder, which means that the party should have or could have previously been included in the action as a proper or necessary party [see Schnabel v. Lui (9th Cir 2002) 302 F3d 1023, 1028 ; see also 10.12[1]].

- The interests of justice, including fundamental fairness and the efficient administration of the judicial system [Reynolds & Reynolds Co. v. Universal Forms, Labels & Sys. (CD Cal 1997) 965 F Supp 1392, 1397 ; see 10.12[2]].

10.11[2] Procedural Mechanism for Dropping Party.

10.11[2][a] Party May Drop Party by Motion. Any current party may move the court to order a party dropped at any stage of the action and on such terms as are just [Fed R Civ P 21; see Abreu v. Ramirez (CD Cal 2003) 284 F Supp2d 1250, 1260 ; see 10.13[4]].

10.11[2][b] Party May Drop Party by Amendment to Pleading. Fed R Civ P 21 is a general provision that specifies the procedure for dropping parties. On the other hand, Rule 15(a) is a more specific provision that specifies the particular means by which a party may drop a new party by an amendment to the pleadings [Matthews Metals Prods., Inc. v. RBM Precision Metal Prods., Inc. (ND Cal 1999) 186 FRD 581, 583]. The most important distinction between the procedures is that the amendment procedure provides that a party may drop a party without obtaining a court order in the following circumstances:

- A plaintiff may properly drop a party without leave of court before the right to amend once terminates [Matthews Metals Prods., Inc. v. RBM Precision Metal Prods., Inc. (ND Cal 1999) 186 FRD 581, 583 (order of court is not required for amendment dropping party, decided under former Fed R Civ P 15(a)); see Fed R Civ P 15(a)].

- A defendant may drop a third party without leave of court by amending its counterclaim or crossclaim before the right to amend once terminates [see Fed R Civ P 15(a)].

Cross Reference:

Unilateral right to amend, see § 10.05[2][d]. Discussion of requirements and procedures for amendment, see Ch. 9, Amending and Supplementing Pleadings.

10.11[3] Effect of Dropping Party. A party dropped from an action pursuant to Fed R Civ P 21 is not subject to any judgment rendered in the action [Reynolds & Reynolds Co. v. Universal Forms, Labels & Sys. (CD Cal 1997) 965 F Supp 1392, 1397]. Additionally, when a court orders a party dropped from an action under Rule 21, unless the court specifies otherwise, the party is dropped without prejudice to the dropped party or the other parties in the case. Thus, a dropped party that had asserted a claim for relief could bring the claim in another action, and a dropped defendant could be subject to the same claim in another action [Coughlin v. Rogers (9th Cir 1997) 130 F3d 1348, 1350].

10.12 Court May Drop Party From Action Because of Misjoinder or for Any Other Just Reason.

10.12[1] Court May Drop Party Because of Misjoinder of Party.

10.12[1][a] Misjoinder Is Improper Inclusion of Person As Party. At any stage of the action, the court may order that a party be dropped on terms that are just, either on motion of any party or on the court's own initiative [Fed R Civ P 21]. Thus, a party should be dropped in the event of "misjoinder," a situation in which a party in the current action fails to satisfy the two preconditions necessary for the permissive joinder of parties [Fed R Civ P 21; Diaz v. Allstate Ins. Group (CD Cal 1998) 185 FRD 581, 587]:

- A claim for relief must be asserted by, or against, each plaintiff or defendant relating to or arising out of the same transaction or occurrence or series of transactions or occurrences.

- Some question of law or fact common to all parties must arise in the action related to the claim for relief.

For example, a misjoinder of parties is frequently declared because no relief is demanded from one or more of the parties joined as defendants [Letherer v. Alger Group, L.L.C. (6th Cir 2003) 328 F3d 262, 267-268].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of whether a person is a "proper party" under permissive joinder, see § 10.08.

10.12[1][b] Court May Use Procedural Rule to Cure Misjoinder. The court may not cure misjoinder by dismissing an entire action; however, a court may drop one or more parties to cure misjoinder [Fed R Civ P 21]. Thus, Rule 21 is a procedural device designed to cure a "defect of parties." This discretionary power is used by the federal court to perfect its diversity jurisdiction by dropping a named, nondiverse party [Zee Med. Distrib. Ass'n, Inc. v. Zee Med., Inc. (ND Cal 1998) 23 F Supp2d 1151, 1157], provided that the nondiverse party is dispensable to the action under Fed R Civ P 19 [Kirkland v. Legion Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 343 F3d 1135, 1142].

10.12[2] Court May Drop Party From Action to Further Efficient Administration of Justice. The courts have recognized that a party may be dropped even in the absence of misjoinder, when required by fundamental fairness [see Wynn v. NBC (CD Cal 2002) 234 F Supp2d 1067, 1078]. Thus, the court has discretion to drop parties to promote the efficient administration of justice [Stark v. Independent Sch. Dist. No. 640 (D Minn 1995) 163 FRD 557, 564].

Example:

Fed R Civ P 21 provides the district courts and circuit courts of appeal [CGB Occupational Therapy v. RHA Health Servs. (3d Cir 2004) 357 F3d 375, 382 , vacated in part and remanded on other grounds, CGB Occupational Therapy, Inc. v. RHA Health Servs. (9th Cir 2007) 499 F3d 184] with authority to drop a dispensable nondiverse party at any time, even after judgment, in order for the court to maintain diversity of citizenship jurisdiction of the action [Newman-Green, Inc. v. Alfonzo-Larrain (1989) 490 US 826, 838, 109 S Ct 2218, 104 L Ed2d 893].

III. DROPPING PARTIES

2-10 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 10.13

10.13 Procedural Considerations for Motion to Drop Party.

10.13[1] Only Current Party May Move to Drop Party. A motion to drop a party from an action may only be made by another party to the action [Fed R Civ P 21; see Belford v. Farmers Ins. Group of Cos. (9th Cir 2002) 2002 US App LEXIS 18228, at *7-*8 (proper procedure to drop party is through motion by party under Fed R Civ P 21; unpublished opinion; generally not citable to court under 9th Cir R 36-3)].

10.13[2] Court Order Required to Drop Party. Parties may be dropped only by order of the court [Fed R Civ P 21; see Maynard v. Bonta (CD Cal 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 16201, at *22-*23]. Thus, the existing parties in an action do not have the power to unilaterally or by agreement drop a party, and if the court makes no order dropping a party, that party continues as a named party in the action.

Exception:

Because Fed R Civ P 15 allows an existing party to drop a party by an amendment to the pleadings [see Fed R Civ P 15(a)], a plaintiff may properly drop a party without leave of court, provided the plaintiff makes the amendment before the right to amend once terminates [Matthews Metals Prods., Inc. v. RBM Precision Metal Prods., Inc. (ND Cal 1999) 186 FRD 581, 583 (order of court is not required for amendment dropping party, decided under former Fed R Civ P 15(a)); see Maynard v. Bonta (CD Cal 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 16201, at *22-*23 (decided under former Fed R Civ P 15(a))]. Similarly, a defendant may drop a party without leave of court through a counterclaim or crossclaim, [see Fed R Civ P 15(a); Fed R Civ P 15, Committee Note of 2009].

Cross References:

Unilateral right to amend, see § 10.05[2][d]. Discussion of requirements and procedures for amendment, see Ch. 9, Amending and Supplementing Pleadings. Discussion of counterclaims and crossclaims, see Ch. 11, Counterclaims, Crossclaims, and Replies.

10.13[3] Court May Act on Its Own Initiative to Order Party Dropped. In addition to its discretion to make an order on a party's motion, a court may drop a named party on the court's own initiative [Fed R Civ P 21]. The court has considerable discretion in determining whether to drop parties, and each case must be decided on its particular facts [

Zee Med. Distrib. Ass'n, Inc. v. Zee Med., Inc. (ND Cal 1998) 23 F Supp2d 1151, 1158]. However, in exercising its discretion under Rule 21, the court should consider "principles of fundamental fairness and judicial efficiency" [Verizon Md. Inc. v. RCN Telecom Servs. (D Md 2002) 232 F Supp2d 539, 547 (citing Moore's)], and should consider whether the order would prejudice any party [see Whitaker v. Garcetti (CD Cal 2003) 291 F Supp2d 1132, 1156 , aff'd in part, vacated in part, and remanded on other grounds Whitaker v. Garcetti (9th Cir 2007) 486 F3d 572] or would result in undue delay [In re Merrill Lynch & Co. Research Reports Sec. Litig. (SDNY 2003) 214 FRD 152, 155 , vacated and remanded on other grounds, Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith Inc. v. Dabit (2006) 547 US 71 (citing Moore's)].

10.13[4] Motion to Drop Party May Be Made at Any Time. The court may order that a named party be dropped at any stage of the action [Fed R Civ P 21]. Thus, a party may be dropped after trial has started, and even after judgment on appeal. However, in making its discretionary determination, the court may refuse to drop a party when the moving party has been dilatory in filing its motion [Newman-Green, Inc. v. Alfonzo-Larrain (1989) 490 US 826, 837, 109 S Ct 2218, 104 L Ed2d 893].

10.14 Court May Order Severance of Claim.

10.14[1] Court Has Discretion to Sever Claim to Cure Misjoinder. The court may order the severance of any claim against a party, and order that the severed claim proceed separately [Fed R Civ P 21]. The court typically will sever a claim to cure misjoinder, rather than dismissing the party from the action. For example, the court could order severance of a claim when the party is a proper party under joinder rules with respect to one claim, but an improper party with respect to another claim [Koh v. Microtek Int'l, Inc. (ED Va 2003) 250 F Supp2d 627, 631-632].

10.14[2] Court Has Discretion to Sever Claim to Further Efficient Administration of Justice. The court may sever a claim to further the efficient administration of justice, even in the absence of misjoinder [see Acevedo-Garcia v. Monroig (1st Cir 2003) 351 F3d 547, 560 (misjoinder is not a prerequisite to severing parties or claims under Fed R Civ P 21)]. For example, the court may sever a claim against a party to facilitate transfer. Thus, a court may sever and transfer to a proper district court claims that are otherwise properly joined, but that are brought against parties over whom the court cannot exercise personal jurisdiction [Apache Prods. Co. v. Employers Ins. of Wausau (SD Miss 1994) 154 FRD 650, 660 (citing Moore's)]. Severance may also be used to cure improper venue [see Anrig v. Ringsby United (9th Cir 1978) 603 F2d 1319, 1325].

Before it orders a severance under Rule 21, the court should ensure that the severance is based on principles of fundamental fairness, and should consider whether the order would prejudice any party or would result in undue delay [see Universal Reinsurance Co. v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. (2d Cir 2003) 312 F3d 82, 89-90].

10.14[3] Severance of Claim Divides Action Into Two Separate Actions.

10.14[3][a] Severance Is Division of Legal Action Into Separate and Distinct Legal Actions. When the court orders a severance [Fed R Civ P 21], it is dividing the legal action into two or more separate and independent or distinct legal actions. Therefore, if a severed claim is one of multiple claims asserted by a single plaintiff, the plaintiff is not dismissed from the original action. Rather, the plaintiff becomes involved in two separate actions, one for each claim [Acevedo-Garcia v. Monroig (1st Cir 2003) 351 F3d 547, 558-559].

10.14[3][b] Severance Is Distinguished From Separate Trial. It is important to distinguish severance from a different procedural device under the federal rules, a Rule 42 order for separate trials of claims [Fed R Civ P 42(a)]. When separate trials are ordered, the court merely orders that the claims of a single action are to be tried separately; however, the trials remain part of the original, solitary action. An order of separate trials, therefore, does not result in the filing of separate cases; it merely leads to two or more separate factual determinations in the context of a single action. No matter how many separate trials the court may order, they remain part of a single action.

The most important distinction between these two procedural devices for partitioning litigation concerns the appealability of an order terminating the proceedings: The judgment in a severed action is final, enforceable, and appealable if it disposes of all parties and claims in the severed action. Conversely, the order entered at the conclusion of a separate trial is generally not an appealable final judgment until all the claims have been tried [Acevedo-Garcia v. Monroig (1st Cir 2003) 351 F3d 547, 559].

CHAPTER 10 Adding, Dropping, and Substituting Parties
IV. SUBSTITUTING PARTIES

2-10 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 10.15

10.15 CHECKLIST: Substitution of Parties.

☐ Determine whether grounds exist for substitution of parties, such as:

- ○ Death of party during pendency of civil action.
- ○ Party becomes incompetent during pendency of civil action.
- ○ Party's transfer of interest during pendency of civil action.
- ○ Public officer dies or otherwise leaves office during pendency of civil action.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 25

Discussion:
See § 10.16[1]

☐ If substitution procedure is not appropriate, consider alternative procedure, including:

- ○ Dropping party and adding party; or

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 21

Discussion:
See § 10.16[2][b]

○ Amending pleading.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 15(a)

Discussion:
See § 10.16[2][c]

☐ If party has died during pendency of litigation, determine whether to make motion for substitution, considering:

○ Whether claim of decedent has survived death;

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 25(a)(1)

Discussion:
See § 10.18[6]

○ Proper parties to substitute, including:

☐ Deceased's legal representative such as executor or administrator; or

☐ If estate has been distributed, distributees.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 25(a)(1)

Discussion:
See § 10.18[2]

○ Ascertain deadline to file motion for substitution, based on whether suggestion of death has been filed on record.

Timing:
The court may dismiss a deceased party from the case if a motion to substitute has not been filed within 90 days of a suggestion of death [see Bracken v. Harris & Zide, L.L.P. (ND Cal 2004) 219 FRD 481, 485].

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 25(a)(1)

Discussion:
See § 10.18[5]

☐ If party has become incompetent during pendency of litigation, determine whether to make motion for substitution, considering:

- ○ Issue of incompetence is matter of substantive law.
- ○ If plaintiff or defendant is already incompetent at time action is commenced, move to protect interests of incompetent person by appointment of representative under Fed R Civ P 17.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 25(b)

Discussion:
See § 10.19

☐ If party to civil action transfers interest that is subject of pending litigation, determine whether to make motion for substitution, considering:

- ○ If motion is not made, court may allow action to continue by or against original party;
- ○ If motion is made, court has discretion to either:
  - ☐ Order that transferee of interest be substituted in action; or
  - ☐ Order that transferee of interest be joined with original party.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 25(c)

Discussion:
See § 10.20[1]

☐ If public officer is party to action in official capacity and during pendency of action dies or otherwise ceases to hold office, note that:

- ○ Officer's successor is automatically substituted as party.
- ○ Although it is not necessary, court may make order changing names on record.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 25(d)

Discussion:
See § 10.21

☐ Except in case of officer leaving office, draft motion to substitute party, including:

- ○ Identification of original party;
- ○ Identification of substitute party;
- ○ Basis for substitution, such as;
  - ☐ Suggestion of death;
  - ☐ Order of appointment of representative for incompetent; or
  - ☐ Agreement transferring interest that is subject matter of litigation.

Authority:

CHAPTER 10 Adding, Dropping, and Substituting Parties
IV. SUBSTITUTING PARTIES

2-10 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 10.16

10.16 Options and Strategies Related to Substitution of Parties.

10.16[1] Grounds for Substituting for Party. The federal civil rules provide a procedure for four specific situations in which a person may be substituted for a named party after a civil action has been commenced:

- On the death of a party during litigation [Fed R Civ P 25(a); see 10.18].
- If a party becomes incompetent during the litigation [Fed R Civ P 25(b); see 10.19].
- On the transfer of interest that constitutes the subject matter of existing litigation [Fed R Civ P 25(c); see 10.20].
- In the event a public officer dies or is separated from office during litigation [Fed R Civ P 25(d); see 10.21].

10.16[2] Substitution Is Procedural Mechanism for Use in Specified Circumstances.

10.16[2][a] Procedural Rule Does Not Control Substantive Rights Regarding Claim. Rule 25 substitution is a procedural device for use only in circumstances described in the rule, and does not affect the substantive law related to a claim in federal court. For example, Fed R Civ P 25(a) does not affect the law controlling whether a particular claim survives the death of a party; survival of claims is a matter of substantive law. Thus, in a diversity case involving the substantive rights related to substitution of a party, the district court must refer to state law [First Idaho Corp. v. Davis (9th Cir 1989) 867 F2d 1241, 1242-1243].

10.16[2][b] Use of Dropping and Adding Party As Alternative for Substitution. A party may use Rule 25 substitution only in the specific circumstances specified in the rule. However, because a substitution is, in practical effect, the dropping of a current party and the adding of a new one, a party may use Fed R Civ P 21 to effect substitution, provided the party obtains court approval after motion, when substitution is not otherwise available under the particular requirements of Fed R Civ P 25 [see Persaud v. Exxon Corp. (EDNY 1994) 867 F Supp 128, 135-136]. Thus, the court may order that a party that has been improperly joined be dropped from an action, and order that a proper party under the joinder provisions be added as a party to the action [see Denson v. Village of Bridgeview (ED Ill 1998) 19 F Supp2d 829, 832].

10.16[2][c] Use of Amendment As Alternative for Substitution. Rule 25 substitution applies only when all of the proper parties have been joined in the action and substitution is warranted because of death, incompetency, transfer of interest by a party, or separation of an official from public office [Fed R Civ P 25; see International Ass'n of Machinists v. Estate of Dickey (6th Cir 1987) 808 F2d 483, 485-486 (Fed R Civ P 25 does not apply when the person for whom substitution is sought was never made party)]. However, a party that is attempting to bring in a proper party may use Fed R Civ P 15 as an alternative at the court's discretion [see Franks v. Kentucky Sch. for the Deaf (ED Ky 1996) 956 F Supp 741, 752]. Under a Rule 15 amendment, a party may add or drop parties who should or could have been joined originally in the action, or may replace a party with a person who actually has the claim for relief or is liable under a claim for relief [see Bracken v. Harris & Zide, L.L.P. (ND Cal 2004) 219 FRD 481, 485].

Distinguish:

The distinction between amendment and substitution is important because, after substitution, the substituted party steps into the shoes of the person replaced and occupies the same relative position in the continued action as the person replaced [see 10.11[3]]. In contrast, when a party comes into the action by an amended pleading, the claim for relief with respect to the new party may or may not be an entirely new claim for relief [see Herrera v. Singh (ED Wash 2000) 118 F Supp2d 1120, 1122]. Whichever procedure is chosen, the moving party's attorney should ensure that all requirements for that procedure are met [see Centifanti v. Nix (3d Cir 1989) 865 F2d 1422, 1431 n10 (for amendment, party must provide a copy of the proposed amended complaint when seeking leave to amend pursuant to Fed R Civ P 15(a))].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of requirements and procedures for amendment, see Ch. 9, Amending and Supplementing Pleadings.

10.16[3] Substituted Party Assumes Exact Position in Litigation of Original Party. When a person is substituted for a party to a civil action, the substituted party stands in exactly the same position as the original party: The substituted party enters the action subject to all of the prior judicial orders and rulings [Hilao v. Estate of Marcos (9th Cir 1996) 103 F3d 762, 766]. Thus, after the substitution, the court will not disturb any prior orders and decrees entered in the civil action even if unfavorable to the substituted party [Educational Credit Mgmt. Corp. v. Bernal (In re Bernal) (5th Cir 2000) 207 F3d 595, 598-599].

10.17 Function of Substitution Procedure.

Rule 25 substitution is designed to provide a simple procedure for the court to order substitution of one person for a named party [see Fed R Civ P 25] when the named party is no longer in a position to participate in the litigation for the reasons specified in the rule [see Bracken v. Harris & Zide, L.L.P. (ND Cal 2004) 219 FRD 481, 483 (substitution on death of party)]. Rule 25 is designed to control substitution only in civil actions in which all of the proper parties have been joined in the action; it is not designed to be used for cases of misjoinder, misnamed parties, or other error in party structure [Persaud v. Exxon Corp. (EDNY 1994) 867 F Supp 128, 135-136 ; see 10.16[2]]. Furthermore, Rule 25 applies only to changes such as death or transfers of interest occurring during the pendency of the litigation, and not to those occurring before the litigation begins [Andrews v. Lakeshore Rehab. Hosp. (11th Cir 2003) 140 F3d 1405, 1407 ; Heath v. Warner Communs. (SDNY 1995) 891 F Supp 167, 173].

10.18 Substitution on Death of Party.

10.18[1] Court May Substitute on Death of Party During Pendency of Litigation. If a party dies during the pendency of a civil action, and the claim is not extinguished by the death, the court has the discretion to order substitution of the proper party or parties to take the place of the deceased [Fed R Civ P 25(a)(1)]. The district court also has considerable discretion in addressing the timing of substitution in the event of the death of a party [Jones Inlet Marina, Inc. v. Inglima (EDNY 2001) 204 FRD 238, 239 (citing Moore's)]. However, when a motion to substitute for a deceased plaintiff is made within the rule's 90-day time limit [see 10.18[3]], such discretion to deny the motion is rarely exercised [see Saylor v. Bastedo (2d Cir 1980) 623 F2d 230, 236-237].

10.18[2] Legal Representatives and Distributees Are Proper Parties to Substitute. On the death of a party, the court may order substitution of the proper party [Fed R Civ P 25(a)(1)]. Generally, the "proper party" to be substituted is the deceased's legal representative, for example, the executor or administrator. However, once the estate has been distributed, distributees are also proper parties for substitution [Sequoia Prop. & Equip. Ltd. P'ship v. United States (ED Cal 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 15872, at *6-*7].

10.18[3] Party or Representative of Deceased Party Must File a Motion for Substitution on Death of Party. When a party dies during the pendency of a civil action, any party or the successors or representatives of the deceased party may file a motion for substitution [Fed R Civ P 25(a)(1)]. An attorney is not the representative of a deceased party for purposes of filing a motion for substitution [Fariss v. Lynchburg Foundry (4th Cir 1985) 769 F2d 958, 962]. Although not explicit in the rule, several courts have indicated that, because of the discretionary nature of the rule, a court may order substitution on death on its own initiative [First Idaho Corp. v. Davis (9th Cir 1989) 867 F2d 1241, 1242 ; see Siripongs v. Davis (9th Cir 2002) 282 F3d 755, 756 (district court could have raised issue of failure to substitute for deceased party)].

Timing:

The court may dismiss the deceased party if a motion to substitute has not been filed within 90 days of a "statement noting a party's death," which is a statement on the record that a party has died [Bracken v. Harris & Zide, L.L.P. (ND Cal 2004) 219 FRD 481, 485 ; see 10.18[5]]. A statement of death may be made at any time by any party or representative of the deceased, and must be served in the same manner as service of a motion for substitution itself, which requires service on both parties and interested nonparties, such as the deceased's representatives [Fed R Civ P 25(a)(3); see 10.22[2]]. In an unpublished opinion, the Ninth Circuit held that the 90-day period for bringing a motion to substitute does not begin to run until a formal suggestion of death has been made on the record and served, regardless of any person's actual knowledge of the death [Braden v. Plumbing & Pipefitting Indus. Local 38 (9th Cir 1992) 1992 US App LEXIS 15436, at *3 , cert. denied, 506 US 1020 (1992) (unpublished circuit court opinion; generally not citable to court under 9th Cir R 36-3)].

Exception:

Because of the considerable discretion of the court regarding substitutions, the court may extend the time for filing the motion beyond the prescribed 90-day period [Russell v. City of Milwaukee (7th Cir 2003) 338 F3d 662, 667-668].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of 90-day period for bringing motion, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 25.13 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

10.18[4] Moving Person Must Serve Motion and a Notice of Hearing on All Other Parties and on Interested Nonparties. The person filing a motion for substitution must serve the motion and a notice of hearing on all other parties and on interested nonparties, including the successors or representatives of the deceased party. The moving person must serve the motion and notice on the parties as provided in Fed R Civ P 5, and on persons not parties in the manner provided in Fed R Civ P 4 for the service of a summons [Fed R Civ P 25(a)(3)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of requirements for service of motion for substitution, see § 10.22[2].

10.18[5] Statement of Death Starts Limitation Period for Filing Motion for Substitution. Any party or the successors or representatives of the deceased party may file a "statement noting a party's death," which is a formal statement on the record that a party has died [Fed R Civ P 25(a)(1); see Bracken v. Harris & Zide, L.L.P. (ND Cal 2004) 219 FRD 481, 485]. The purpose of a statement of death is to inform all interested persons that the party has died [Barlow v. Ground (9th Cir 1994) 39 F3d 231, 234-235], and to prevent a situation in which a case is dismissed because a party never learned of the death of an opposing party [Unicorn Tales v. Banerjee (2d Cir 1998) 138 F3d 467, 469-470]. Thus, it must be served on both nonparties and parties [Fed R Civ P 25(a)(3)].

A statement of death, however, is not necessary for the court to consider a motion for substitution [Miles, Inc. v. Scripps Clinic & Research Found. (SD Cal 1993) 810 F Supp 1091, 1102]; it does start the period running in which a motion for substitution must be filed [Fed R Civ P 25(a)(1)].

Cross Reference:

Form of statement of death, see § 10.28.

10.18[6] Claim of Deceased Must Survive Death to Provide Basis for Substitution.

10.18[6][a] Court May Substitute Party Only If Claim Is Not Extinguished by Death. If a party dies during the pendency of litigation, the court may order substitution of another party only if the deceased party's claim is not extinguished by the death [Fed R Civ P 25(a)(1)]. In other words, a court may order substitution only if the claim survives the death of the party. Because the survival of a claim is a matter of substantive law, whether the claim survives is controlled by federal law if jurisdiction of the claim is based on federal question, and is controlled by state law if jurisdiction of the claim is based on diversity [see Asklar v. Honeywell, Inc. (D Conn 1982) 95 FRD 419, 422].

10.18[6][b] Court May Allow Action to Continue If Claim of Deceased Party Survives in Favor or Against Another Party. In the event of the death of one or more of the plaintiffs or of one or more of the defendants in an action in which the right sought to be enforced survives only to the surviving plaintiffs or only against the surviving defendants, the action does not abate. The death must be noted on the record and the action must proceed in favor of or against the surviving parties [Fed R Civ P 25(a)(2)].

Examples:

When the plaintiff husband died during litigation of a claim that survived only to the surviving spouse, the district court properly deleted the deceased husband's name from the caption and allowed the case to proceed in favor of his surviving spouse [Little v. Cox's Supermarkets (7th Cir 1995) 71 F3d 637, 640 n1].

If a named class representative dies during the pendency of the action, the action survives in favor of the class itself [Chad v. City of Fort Lauderdale (SD Fla 1998) 66 F Supp2d 1242, 1244].

10.19 Substitution on Account of Incompetency of Party.

10.19[1] Court May Substitute for Party That Becomes Incompetent. If a party becomes incompetent during the pendency of a civil action, the court has discretion to allow the action to be continued by or against the party's representative by substituting the representative for the incompetent party [Fed R Civ P 25(b)].

Rule 25(b) does not apply if the party has become incompetent prior to the action [Waldman v. Pediatric Servs. of Am., Inc. (ED Pa 1998) 1998 US Dist LEXIS 17322, at *10-*11]. If a plaintiff or defendant is already incompetent when the action is commenced, the court should not merely dismiss the action. Rather, the court should utilize Rule 17 to protect the interests of incompetent persons [see Fed R Civ P 17(c)] by allowing a representative to sue or defend on behalf of the incompetent [Waldman v. Pediatric Servs. of Am., Inc. (ED Pa 1998) 1998 US Dist LEXIS 17322, at *10-*11]. A Fed R Civ P 15 motion, not a Rule 25 substitution, is the proper procedural device to substitute one representative for another [Burns v. Phillips (ND Ga 1970) 50 FRD 187, 188].

Cross Reference:

Motions to amend pleadings under Rule 15, see Ch. 9, Amending and Supplementing Pleadings.

10.19[2] Issue of Competence Is Substantive Matter Controlled by State Law. Fed R Civ P 25(b) does not provide criteria for the court to determine the status of incompetence. Competency and qualification of guardians and other representatives are matters controlled by state law of the person's domicile [see Fed R Civ P 17(c); Donnelly v. Parker (DC Cir 1973) 486 F2d 402, 406-407].

10.19[3] Motion for Substitution Based on Incompetence Must Be Served on Parties and Interested Nonparties. The moving person must serve a motion to substitute on the basis of incompetence in the same manner as required for a motion to substitute on death under Rule 25(a) [Fed R Civ P 25(b)]. The moving person, therefore, must serve a motion to substitute for incompetence and a notice of a hearing regarding the motion on parties as provided in Fed R Civ P 5, and on persons not parties in the manner provided in Fed R Civ P 4 for the service of a summons [Fed R Civ P 25(a)(3), (b)].

10.20 Substitution in Case of Transfer of Interest During Pendency of Litigation.

10.20[1] Court May Order Substitution of Party or Joinder of Person Because of Transfer of Interest. If a party to a civil action transfers an interest that is the subject of the litigation, the court has three options [Fed R Civ P 25(c)]:

- The court may allow the action to continue by or against the original party;
- If a party makes a motion for substitution, the court may order that the transferee of the interest be substituted in the action; or
- If a party makes a motion, the court may order that the transferee of the interest be joined with the original party.

Choosing among the three options is in the discretion of the court [Organic Cow, LLC v. Ctr. for New Eng. Dairy Compact Research (2d Cir 2003) 335 F3d 66, 71 (citing Moore's)]. The rule of substitution on transfer does not require either the court or the parties to take any action after an interest has been transferred. The action may be continued by or against the original party, and the judgment will be binding on the transferee, even though the transferee is not named. A court ordering substitution or joinder is merely making a discretionary determination that the transferee's presence would facilitate the conduct of the litigation [Educational Credit Mgmt. Corp. v. Bernal (In re Bernal) (9th Cir 2000) 207 F3d 595, 598].

10.20[2] Substitution or Joinder on Transfer Is Procedural Device for Court to Control Litigation. Fed R Civ P 25 is merely a procedural device that provides the court with the authority to continue with the original parties or to substitute or join a successor in interest [Educational Credit Mgmt. Corp. v. Bernal (In re Bernal) (9th Cir 2000) 207 F3d 595, 598]. Whether a particular party has the status of a successor in interest or is subject to liability as a successor is a matter of substantive law [Committee of the Russian Fed'n on Precious Metals & Gems v. United States (ND Cal 1997) 987 F Supp 1181, 1182]. In diversity cases, therefore, the court will apply state law to determine the rights and liabilities of successors. In cases governed by federal law, successorship and successor liability are determined by the federal statute or by federal common law under the successorship doctrine [Herrera v. Singh (ED Wash 2000) 118 F

Supp2d 1120, 1122-1123].

10.20[3] Party or Transferee Must File Motion for Substitution on Transfer Occurring After Litigation Is Commenced. To substitute or join the transferee the party or transferee should make a motion in the same manner as a motion for substitution on death [Fed R Civ P 25(c)]. A Rule 25(c) motion may be made for any transfer of interest occurring at any time after an action is brought, including after judgment is entered [American Fiber & Finishing, Inc. v. Tyco Healthcare Group (1st Cir 2004) 362 F3d 136, 140].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of motion for substitution on death, see § 10.18[3].

10.20[4] Motion for Substitution Based on Transfer Must Be Served on Parties and Interested Nonparties. The moving party must serve a motion to substitute on the basis of transfer in the same manner as required for a motion to substitute on death under Rule 25(a) [Fed R Civ P 25(c)]. Thus, the moving person must serve a motion to substitute after a transfer, and a notice of a hearing regarding the motion, on parties as provided in Fed R Civ P 5, and on transferees not parties in the manner provided in Fed R Civ P 4 for the service of a summons [Fed R Civ P 25(a)(3), (c)].

10.21 Substitution in Case of Separation of Public Officer From Office.

10.21[1] Successor of Public Officer Is Automatically Substituted When Predecessor Leaves Office. When a public officer is a party to an action in an official capacity and during the pendency of the action dies or for any other reason ceases to hold office, the action does not abate and the officer's successor is automatically substituted as a party [Fed R Civ P 25(d)]. Federal law provides for automatic substitution of the new officer when the originally named officer has ceased to hold office because the officer is not litigating as an individual. Thus, if the officer is the plaintiff, the claim for relief is not for the officer personally but for the government, and when the officer is the defendant, the claim for relief is not against the officer personally, but against the government [Cheney v. United States Dist. Court (2004) 541 US 913, 917-918, 124 S Ct 1391, 158 L Ed2d 225]. Automatic substitution is only applicable to "official-capacity" claims in which the governmental entity, and not the named official, is the real party. In "personal-capacity" claims, which seek to impose individual liability on a government officer, such as certain civil rights claims, automatic substitution is not applicable [Hafer v. Melo (1991) 502 US 21, 25, 112 S Ct 358, 116 L Ed2d 301].

10.21[2] Public Officer May Be Named by Title. A public officer who sues or is sued in an official capacity may be described as a party by the officer's official title rather than by name; however, to manage litigation effectively and to clarify issues, the court may require the officers' names to be added [Fed R Civ P 17(d)]. Following an automatic substitution of an official after the official leaves office, the litigation continues in the name of the substituted party. However, any misnomer of the official must be disregarded unless it affects the substantial rights of the parties [Fed R Civ P 25(d)].

10.21[3] Successor Is Subject to All Orders Binding on Predecessor. As is the case in other types of substitution, an automatically substituted officer steps into the exact position in the litigation as the predecessor. Consequently, a successor in office is bound by all orders and decrees of the predecessor, including consent decrees and court-approved agreements. Thus, the substitution of a public official by his or her successor in an official capacity suit is a procedural device, and does not affect the underlying action [see Feliciano v. Rullan (1st Cir 2003) 303 F3d 1, 8].

10.21[4] Automatic Substitution Does Not Require Motion of Party or Order of Court. When a public officer leaves office, the officer's successor is automatically substituted as a party in any official capacity suit involving the predecessor [Fed R Civ P 25(d)]. Consequently, unlike other types of substitution, official capacity substitution does not require the filing of a motion, service, or hearing regarding the substitution. Additionally, even though to clarify the issues or circumstances the court may make an order regarding the automatic substitution at any time [Fed R Civ P 25(d)], or note the successor party's names in court documents [see, e.g., Azami v. Apfel (CD Cal 1998) 24 F Supp2d 1007, 1007 n1], an order is not necessary to effect the substitution, and the omission of an order does not affect the substitution or the conduct of the litigation [Glassroth v. Houston (ND Ala 2004) 299 F Supp2d 1244, 1246].

10.22 Procedural Considerations for Motion for Substitution.

10.22[1] Substitution Does Not Affect Jurisdiction, Diversity of Citizenship, and Venue. When a new party is substituted for the original party to pending litigation, subject matter jurisdiction, diversity of citizenship, personal jurisdiction, and venue are not affected by the substitution [Minnesota Mining & Mfg. Co. v. Eco-Chem, Inc. (Fed Cir 1985) 757 F2d 1256, 1264 (citing Moore's for proposition that there would be no logical rationale for concluding that substitution should destroy venue that was properly established initially); Ransom v. Brennan (5th Cir 1971) 437 F2d 513, 518-519 , cert. denied, 403 US 904 (1971)]. This rule has been promulgated under the principle that a substituted party steps into the place of the original party for all purposes [Hilao v. Estate of Marcos (9th Cir 1996) 103 F3d 762, 766].

10.22[2] Moving Person Must Generally Serve Motion for Substitution.

10.22[2][a] Moving Party Must Serve Motion and Notice of Hearing. Except in cases of automatic substitution, which occurs when a public officer leaves office [Fed R Civ P 25(d); see 10.21], any motion for substitution under Rule 25 must be served on all parties, and nonparties who are potential successors in interest or representatives of the original party. At the time of service of the motion, the moving party must also serve the notice of hearing on the substitution [Fed R Civ P 25(a)(3), (b), (c)]. In cases of substitution on death, the party must file a statement noting death in the same manner [Fed R Civ P 25(a)(3)].

10.22[2][b] Moving Party Must Serve Parties in Same Manner As Serving Pleadings and Papers Other Than Original Complaint. All motions for substitution must be served on parties pursuant to Rule 5, in the same manner as any pleadings and papers other than the original complaint [Fed R Civ P 25(a)(3), (b), (c); see Fed R Civ P 5]. Thus, Rule 25(a) incorporates Rule 5 as setting forth the manner in which a suggestion of death and any substitution of parties is to be served [Barlow v. Ground (9th Cir 1994) 39 F3d 231, 233-234]. A motion for substitution and notice of hearing must be served on each of the parties [Fed R Civ P 5(a)], and the motion, notice of hearing, and a certificate of the service must be filed with the court within a reasonable time after service [Fed R Civ P 5(d)]. All requirements of service of substitution are interpreted under Rule 5.

Example:

Because, under Rule 5, service is complete upon mailing, nonreceipt or nonacceptance of a suggestion of death by another party does not affect the validity of the service [Russell v. City of Milwaukee (7th Cir 2003) 338 F3d 662, 667].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of requirements for service on parties under Rule 5, see Ch. 5, Formatting, Serving, and Filing Papers, §§ 5.15 -5.23.

10.22[2][c] Moving Party Must Serve Nonparties in Same Manner As Serving Summons and Original Complaint. All motions for substitution must be served on nonparties, such as the representative of the original party, pursuant to Rule 4, which specifies the manner of service of summons and of the original complaint [Fed R Civ P 25(a)(3), (b), (c); see Fed R Civ P 4]. Thus, Rule 25(a) incorporates Rule 4 as setting forth the manner in which a suggestion of death and any motion for substitution of parties is to be served on the representative or successor of the original party [Russell v. City of Milwaukee (7th Cir 2003) 338 F3d 662, 666]. Personal service of a suggestion of death alerts a nonparty to the consequences of death to a pending suit, and signals to the nonparty the need for action to preserve the claim for relief if the nonparty desires [see Barlow v. Ground (9th Cir 1994) 39 F3d 231, 233-234 (while party may be served suggestion of death by service on his or her attorney, nonparty successors or representatives of deceased party must be served suggestion of death in manner provided by Fed R Civ P 4 for the service of a summons)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of requirements for service under Rule 4, see Ch. 7, Service of Summons.

10.22[3] Appeal of Order Regarding Substitution. A court order that grants or denies a motion to substitute for a party is deemed a discretionary, procedural order. Such an order generally is not immediately appealable, but is appealable only on final judgment [Prop-Jets, Inc. v. Chandler (10th Cir 1978) 575 F2d 1322, 1324]. However, appeal may be available under the collateral order doctrine if the order [In re Covington Grain Co. (5th Cir 1981) 638 F2d 1357, 1360]:

- Settles an important issue separate from the merits of the dispute;
- Conclusively determines the moving party's capability to prosecute the suit; and
- Would be a total bar to recovery because there would be no other person able to prosecute the action.

When an appeal is taken regarding a substitution motion, the application of Rule 25 by the district court is a question of law reviewed de novo, but factual findings relevant to application of Rule 25 are reviewed for clear error [Barlow v. Ground (9th Cir 1994) 39 F3d 231, 233].

CHAPTER 11 Counterclaims, Crossclaims, and Replies
I. STRATEGY

2-11 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 11.02

11.02 Objective and Strategy.

The use of counterclaims and crossclaims is an important aspect of the overall strategy of any case. Counterclaims are affirmative claims for relief against an opposing party [Fed R Civ P 13(a), (b)]. Counterclaims must be made in a responsive pleading, such as an answer [Fed R Civ P 13(a), (b)].

Counterclaims are either compulsory or permissive [Fed R Civ P 13(a), (b)]. A compulsory counterclaim arises out of the same transaction or occurrence that is the subject matter of the opposing party's claim [Fed R Civ P 13(a)]. A counterclaim that does not arise out of the same transaction or occurrence, as well as a counterclaim arising out of the same transaction but meeting one of the exceptions in Rule 13(a), is a permissive counterclaim. [Fed R Civ P 13(b)].

It is important to determine whether counterclaims are compulsory or permissive because failure to properly plead compulsory counterclaims may result in a waiver of those claims, such that the claims may be barred in a subsequent action based on the same claim [see, e.g., Hydranautics v. FilmTec Corp. (9th Cir 1995) 70 F3d 533, 536].

Counterclaims are distinguishable from affirmative defenses in that counterclaims seek relief from an opposing party, whereas affirmative defenses challenge the plaintiff's legal right to bring an action without seeking damages or other relief [see Katherine G. v. Kentfield Sch. Dist. (ND Cal 2003) 261 F Supp2d 1159, 1186].

Crossclaims state affirmative claims for relief by a party against a coparty [Fed R Civ P 13(g)]. Crossclaims are generally considered to be permissive [see Rainbow Mgmt. Group Ltd. v. Atlantis Submarines Hawaii LP (D Haw 1994) 158 FRD 656, 659-660]. Nevertheless, a crossclaim must arise out of the same transaction or occurrence that is the subject matter of the original action or of a counterclaim, or must relate to property that is the subject matter of the original action [Fed R Civ P 13(g)].

Important jurisdictional issues are implicated by counterclaims and crossclaims. For example, counterclaims and crossclaims are subject to principles of supplemental jurisdiction [28 USC § 1367].

In addition, issues of conflicts with state statutes may be implicated by counterclaims and crossclaims. For example, counterclaims and crossclaims are subject to statutes of limitation, which are in turn subject to Erie principles governing conflicts between federal and state law [see, e.g., Torre v. Brickey (9th Cir 2002) 278 F3d 917, 919-920].

Rule 13(h) places the issue of joinder of additional parties under the provisions of Rules 19 and 20 [Fed R Civ P 13(h)]. This rule enables the court to join additional persons in order to adjudicate a claim that is already before the court [Fed R Civ P 13(h)]. Rule 13(h), however, does not apply to third-party claims, which are governed separately by Fed R Civ P 14.

11.06 Options and Strategy--Counterclaims.

A defendant must analyze the extent to which its defense to the plaintiff's claims might involve counterclaims and must do so quickly. Counterclaims must be filed and served at the time that the answer is filed, absent a stipulation or a motion [see Fed R Civ P 13(a)]. It may well be that under the facts of the case, the best defense is an offense--a claim for affirmative relief against the plaintiff.

Failure to plead "compulsory" counterclaims promptly may lead to their forfeiture, so serious consideration should be given to pleading every arguable counterclaim. If a potential claim against the plaintiff arises from the same transaction or occurrence that is the subject matter of the plaintiff's claim, the defendant's choices are limiting to pleading the counterclaim or forfeiting it. A defendant will be excused from pleading a compulsory counterclaim only when that counterclaim is already the subject of a pending action or when the court only has in rem jurisdiction over the defendant's property, and no general personal jurisdiction over the defendant [Fed R Civ P 13(a)].

Thus, a defendant must determine not only the existence of potential counterclaims, but whether they are so related to the transaction or occurrence that forms the basis of the plaintiff's claim that the counterclaim is compulsory. If this determination is not made in time to file the counterclaim with the answer, the defendant has the one-right "as a matter of course" to amend the answer within 21 days after serving it or within 21-days after service of a motion under Fed R Civ P 12(b), (e), or (f), whichever is earlier [see Fed R Civ P 15(a)(1)(B)]. Otherwise, the defendant may amend its answer to add a counterclaim only with the plaintiff's written consent or the court's permission [see Fed R Civ P 15(a)(2)].

If a defendant identifies a potential counterclaim against the plaintiff, but that claim is not so related to the transaction or occurrence that forms the basis of the plaintiff's claim that is it not compulsory, forfeiture is not an issue [see Fed R Civ P 13(b)]. In that event, the defendant should analyze whether assertion of the "permissive" counterclaim in the pending action will assist in the defense of the plaintiff's claim or unduly complicate the case and raise the expense of seeking resolution of the plaintiff's claim. In making this determination, the defendant should consider whether additional parties need to be joined to the action in order to resolve the permissive counterclaim, whether their joinder is possible, and whether there is an alternative forum where joinder might be more easily accomplished or that might be more favorable to the permissive counterclaim for other reasons.

A defendant must make the same determinations for any counterclaims that may arise not only from the plaintiff's claims, but also from any crossclaims asserted against the defendant by codefendants. Once again, failure to plead compulsory counterclaims against codefendants who have crossclaims may result in forfeiture of those claims.

11.07 Counterclaims Are Distinguishable From Affirmative Defenses.

Counterclaims are distinguishable from affirmative defenses in that counterclaims seek relief from an opposing party, while affirmative defenses challenge the plaintiff's legal right to bring an action without seeking to recover damages or other relief. Essentially, the difference between a counterclaim and a defense is that a defense cannot possibly be adjudicated separately from the plaintiff's claim to which it applies, while a counterclaim can be [Reiter v. Cooper (1993) 507 US 258, 265, 113 S Ct 1213, 122 L Ed2d 604 ; see also Katherine G. v. Kentfield Sch. Dist. (ND Cal 2003) 261 F Supp2d 1159, 1186].

However, if a party has mistakenly designated a defense as a counterclaim or a counterclaim as a defense, the court may, in its discretion, treat the pleading as if there had been a proper designation. The court may do so if justice so requires and may condition doing so on whatever terms may be required to prevent prejudice to the other parties [Fed R Civ P 8(c)(2)].

Distinguish:

The Southern District of New York has stated that it is permissible to label a response to a plaintiff's claim for relief as both an affirmative defense and as a counterclaim [see Dubied Mach. Co. v. Vermont Knitting Co. (SDNY 1990) 739 F Supp 867, 871 (court permitted labeling of claims for fraudulent misrepresentation and breach of warranty as both counterclaims and affirmative defenses)].

2-11 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 11.08

11.08 Failure to Plead Compulsory Counterclaim Results in Waiver of the Claim.

Counterclaims are either compulsory or permissive. A compulsory counterclaim (1) arises out of the same transaction or occurrence that is the subject matter of the opposing party's claim, and (2) does not require for its adjudication the presence of third parties of whom the court cannot acquire jurisdiction [Fed R Civ P 13(a)]. All other counterclaims are permissive [Fed R Civ P 13(b)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of what constitutes "the same transaction or occurrence," see § 11.09.

It is important to determine whether counterclaims are compulsory or permissive because failure to properly plead compulsory counterclaims will generally result in a waiver of those claims. A claim that was compulsory in a prior suit is barred in a subsequent action [see Hydranautics v. FilmTec Corp. (9th Cir 1995) 70 F3d 533, 536 (if a party has a compulsory counterclaim and fails to plead it, it is lost, and cannot be asserted in a second, separate action after conclusion of the first)]. Indeed, a district court may enjoin the party from bringing the compulsory counterclaim in a subsequent action [see Caesars World, Inc. v. Milanian (D Nev 2003) 247 F Supp2d 1171, 1202].

Exception--When Claim Is Subject of a Pending Action:

A party need not plead an otherwise compulsory counterclaim if the claim is the subject of another pending action [Fed R Civ P 13(a)(2)(A)].

Exception--When Claim Requires Presence of a Party Over Whom Court Cannot Acquire Jurisdiction:

A party need not plead an otherwise compulsory counterclaim if the claim requires for its adjudication the presence of third parties over whom the court cannot acquire jurisdiction [Fed R Civ P 13(a)(1)(B)].

Exception--Suit Does Not Confer in Personam Jurisdiction:

A party need not plead an otherwise compulsory counterclaim if the opposing party brought suit on the claim by attachment or other process by which the court did not acquire jurisdiction to render a personal judgment on that claim [Fed R Civ P 13(a)(2)(B)].

Exception--When Prior Proceeding Was Administrative Proceeding:

The failure to have presented an otherwise compulsory counterclaim in a prior administrative pleading might not have a preclusive effect on a subsequent court action [see Competitive Techs. v. Fujitsu Ltd. (ND Cal 2003) 286 F Supp2d 1118, 1140 (reasoning that the relief available in an administrative proceeding might not be the same as that available in a judicial proceeding)].

Strategic Points:

The waiver or forfeiture of a compulsory counterclaim is particularly dangerous because it may passed unnoticed until it is too late to seek a remedy. As a practical matter, the issue of whether a counterclaim is compulsory may be raised for the first time when a second action is brought in which the pleader attempts to raise a claim that is based on the same transaction or occurrence that was the basis of the first action, and the defendant in the second action defends against the claim by asserting should have been asserted as a compulsory counterclaim in the first action.

When faced with a contention in one action that a claim was actually a compulsory counterclaim that should have been asserted in a prior action and is now waived or forfeited, there are some responsive arguments available. The rule that compulsory counterclaims are barred in a second action does not apply when there is no final determination of the first action, or when a defendant in the first action has filed a motion to dismiss or a motion for summary judgment rather than a "responsive pleading" in which the defendant was obligated to assert the compulsory counterclaim.

11.09 Distinguishing Between Compulsory and Permissive Counterclaims.

11.09[1] Compulsory Counterclaim Requires a "Logical Relationship" With the Primary Claim. A compulsory counterclaim "arises out of the transaction or occurrence that is the subject matter of the opposing party's claim" [Fed R Civ P 13(a)(1)(A)]. The courts tend to use a policy-based flexible approach with regard to the factors that should be considered in determining when claims arise out of the transaction or occurrence that is the subject matter of the opposing party's claim.

The common theme is that in order for a claim to be compulsory, a "logical relationship" must exist between the claim and counterclaim in issue [see Pochiro v. Prudential Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1987) 827 F2d 1246, 1249 (liberal "logical relationship" test to determine whether two claims arise out of the same transaction or occurrence)]. Among the factors courts consider in determining whether there is a logical relationship are whether the facts necessary to prove the two claims substantially overlap, and whether the collateral estoppel effect of the first action would preclude the counterclaim from being brought in a later action [Competitive Techs. v. Fujitsu Ltd. (ND Cal 2003) 286 F Supp2d 1118, 1135 (citing Pochiro v. Prudential Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1987) 827 F2d 1246, 1249)]. The underlying query is whether the essential facts of the various claims are so logically connected that considerations of judicial economy and fairness dictate that all of the issues be resolved in one lawsuit [Hydranautics v. FilmTec Corp. (9th Cir 1995) 70 F3d 533, 536 (quoting Pochiro)].

If a separate trial on each of the respective claims would involve a substantial duplication of time and effort by the parties and the court, a logical relationship will be found. It is not necessary for the facts or the legal theories to be the same or even substantially the same in both actions. As long as the facts of the later asserted claim are sufficiently related to the subject matter of the original action, they must be barred as compulsory claims [Caesars World, Inc. v. Milanian (D Nev 2003) 247 F Supp2d 1171, 1202].

Cross References:

Detailed discussion of the factors used to determine whether a counterclaim is compulsory or permissive, the different approaches taken, and examples of claims found to be compulsory under the various analyses, see 3 Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 13, Counterclaim and Crossclaim (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

11.09[2] Counterclaim Is Compulsory Only If It Existed When Pleading Is Served. A counterclaim is compulsory only if the claim exists at the time that the responsive pleading is served [Fed R Civ P 13(a)(1)]. A claim that either matured or was acquired by the pleader after serving a pleading may, however, with the permission of the court, be presented as a counterclaim by supplemental pleading [Fed R Civ P 13(e); see, e.g., Johnson v. Con-Vey/Keystone, Inc. (D Or 1994) 856 F Supp 1443, 1450-1451 (claims of unfair competition and intentional interference with business relationships arose after the filing of original patent infringement case and, therefore, were not compulsory)].

Example:

Defendant filed and served his answer to the complaint on June 1, 2004. A counterclaim that arose from the same transaction or occurrence as the primary claim stated in the complaint, but that did not accrue until June 30, 2004, is not compulsory in the action [see, e.g., Pochiro v. Prudential Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1987) 827 F2d 1246, 1251 (defamatory statements that are sufficiently related to subject matter of original action are compulsory counterclaims, but defamatory statements made after filing of original complaint are not)].

11.09[3] Examples of Categorization of Counterclaims in the Ninth Circuit.

11.09[3][a] Recoupment Claims Are Compulsory. A claim in recoupment is one that arises from the same transaction or occurrence as the opposing claim, seeks relief of the same kind or nature back against the person asserting the original claim, and seeks relief back in an amount not in excess of the original, opposing claim [FDIC v. Hulsey (10th Cir 1994) 22 F3d 1472, 1487 (tort based counterclaims against FDIC met test for recoupment in loan foreclosure action); see Katherine G. v. Kentfield Sch. Dist. (ND Cal 2003) 261 F Supp2d 1159, 1187 (whether claim sounds in recoupment hinges on whether it arises out of same transaction on which plaintiff's claim is based)]. Because recoupment claims are, by definition, claims that arise from the same transaction or occurrence as the opposing claim, they are always compulsory counterclaims [Reiter v. Cooper (1993) 507 US 258, 263, 113 S Ct 1213, 122 L Ed2d 604].

11.09[3][b] Setoff Claims Are Permissive. Unlike a recoupment claim, setoff refers to a claim by a defendant against a plaintiff that will "set-off" or reduce the plaintiff's recovery, but that is unrelated to the plaintiff's original claim. The claim must either be for a liquidated amount or arise out of a contract or judgment [see United States v. Iron Mountain Mines, Inc. (ED Cal 1993) 812 F Supp 1528, 1551-1552]. A claim for "setoff" is a permissive counterclaim [FDIC v. F.S.S.S. (D Alaska 1993) 829 F Supp 317, 322].

11.09[3][c] Abuse of Process Claims Are Compulsory. The Ninth Circuit has found an abuse of process claim to be a compulsory counterclaim in the same action in which process is alleged to have been abused [see Pochiro v. Prudential Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1987) 827 F2d 1246, 1252 (noting split of authority in other circuits, but favoring broad construction of "same transaction or occurrence")].

11.09[3][d] Malicious Prosecution Claims Are Permissive. Because malicious prosecution claims generally require the termination of the prior litigation favorably to the party asserting the claim, they would not be compulsory counterclaims in the action that is alleged to be malicious [see Pochiro v. Prudential Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1987) 827 F2d 1246, 1252].

11.09[3][e] Defamation Claims May Be Compulsory or Permissive. As long as the allegedly defamatory statements are sufficiently related to the subject matter of the original action, they are compulsory counterclaims [see Pochiro v. Prudential Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1987) 827 F2d 1246, 1251]. If, however, the defamatory statements were made after the filing of the original complaint, and thus are not related to the subject matter of the original action, a counterclaim for defamation is not compulsory [see Pochiro v. Prudential Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1987) 827 F2d 1246, 1251].

11.09[3][f] Antitrust Claims in Patent Infringement Actions Are Permissive. In a patent infringement action, an antitrust counterclaim is a permissive counterclaim [see Hydranautics v. FilmTec Corp. (9th Cir 1995) 70 F3d 533, 536].

2-11 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 11.10

11.10 Statutes of Limitations Apply to Counterclaims.

11.10[1] Statutes of Limitations May Bar Counterclaims. Counterclaims for affirmative relief must be filed within the applicable statutory limitations period. If a counterclaim is not brought within the requisite time period, the claim, even if compulsory, may be barred. A party may not revive time-barred claims by asserting the claims as compulsory counterclaims in a later action [see City of Saint Paul, Alaska v. Evans (9th Cir 2003) 344 F3d 1029, 1033-1036].

11.10[2] Recoupment Claims "Relate Back" to Filing of Plaintiff's Complaint. Counterclaims for "recoupment" relate back to the date of filing of the plaintiff's complaint [see Reiter v. Cooper (1993) 507 US 258, 263, 113 S Ct 1213, 122 L Ed2d 604 ; Katherine G. v. Kentfield Sch. Dist. (ND Cal 2003) 261 F Supp2d 1159, 1185-1186].

Cross Reference:

Further discussion of what constitutes a recoupment claim, see § 11.09[3][a].

11.10[3] Amending Answer to Include Compulsory Counterclaim Relates Back to Filing of Answer. An amendment of a pleading relates back to the date of the original pleading if the claim or defense asserted in the amended pleading arose out of the conduct, transaction, or occurrence set forth or attempted to be set forth in the original pleading [Fed R Civ P 15(c)(1)(B)]. Therefore, if a pleader moves to amend its timely and previously filed answer to add a compulsory counterclaim the counterclaim will relate back to the filing of the original answer [see, e.g., Banco Para El Comercio Exterior de Cuba v. First Nat'l City Bank (2d Cir 1984) 744 F2d 237, 243-244].

Cross Reference:

Further discussion of amending pleadings, see Ch. 9, Amending and Supplementing Pleadings.

11.10[4] Compulsory Counterclaims Do Not Relate Back to Filing of Complaint. It is not fully resolved in the Ninth Circuit whether compulsory counterclaims that are not asserted in an amended pleading relate back to the time of the filing of the plaintiff's complaint. In deciding the issue of the timeliness of a party's counterclaim, the Northern District of California decided not to adopt Fourth Circuit law that holds that a compulsory counterclaim relates back to the time of the filing of the plaintiff's complaint because "[d]espite an exhaustive search, the Court [was] unable to locate such an analogue or even a case that suggests that this holding is the rule in the Ninth Circuit" [see Katherine G. v. Kentfield Sch. Dist. (ND Cal 2003) 261 F Supp2d 1159, 1185].

11.10[5] Permissive Counterclaims Do Not Relate Back to Filing of Complaint. Although it is not fully resolved in the Ninth Circuit, there is authority for the proposition that permissive counterclaims do not relate back to the filing of the plaintiff's complaint. The Northern District of California has noted that "there is authority from outside the Ninth Circuit holding that a counterclaim that seeks separate relief for a wrong independent of the transaction and occurrence on which the plaintiff's claim is based does not relate back to the filing of the plaintiff's complaint" [see Katherine G. v. Kentfield Sch. Dist. (ND Cal 2003) 261 F Supp2d 1159, 1187].

Strategic Point:

Statutes of limitations issues are substantive law. Therefore, in diversity actions, or if the court is exercising supplemental jurisdiction over a state-law claim, it is important to consult the state statute of limitations and related principles [see Torre v. Brickey (9th Cir 2002) 278 F3d 917].

11.11 Court May Have Supplemental Jurisdiction Over Counterclaims.

The district court may, of course, properly exercise jurisdiction over a counterclaim that has an independent basis of federal jurisdiction [see Taylor v. Bryant, Inc. (D Nev 2003) 275 F Supp2d 1305, 1306]. In addition, in any civil action of which the district courts have original jurisdiction, the district court has supplemental jurisdiction over all other claims that are so related to claims in the action within its original jurisdiction that they form part of the same case or controversy under Article III of the United States Constitution [28 USC § 1367(a)].

Exceptions:

In a diversity case [see 28 USC § 1332], the district courts do not have supplemental jurisdiction over claims by plaintiffs against persons made parties under Fed R Civ P 14, 19, 20, or 24, or over claims by persons proposed to be joined as plaintiffs under Rule 19, or seeking to intervene as plaintiffs under Rule 24, if exercising supplemental jurisdiction over the claims would be inconsistent with the diversity jurisdictional requirements [28 USC § 1367(b)].

The court may decline to exercise supplemental jurisdiction over a claim in certain enumerated circumstances [see 28 USC § 1367(c)].

28 USC § 1367 was enacted effective December 1, 1990. Decisions based on law in effect before 1990 tended to hold that district courts could exercise ancillary jurisdiction over compulsory counterclaims as a matter of course, but not over permissive counterclaims [see, e.g., O'Connell v. Erie Lackawanna R.R. (2d Cir 1968) 391 F2d 156, 163 , vacated as moot, 395 US 210 (1969) (permissive counterclaims require independent ground for federal jurisdiction); but see Ambromovage v. United Mine Workers (3d Cir 1984) 726 F2d 972 (determination that a counterclaim is permissive within meaning of Fed R Civ P 13 is not dispositive of constitutional question whether there is federal jurisdiction over counterclaim)].

Under 28 USC § 1367, it is unresolved whether the phrase "same case or controversy under Article III" in the statute has exactly the same meaning as the phrase "transaction or occurrence that is the subject matter of the opposing party's claim" in Rule 13. If so, then there is no supplemental jurisdiction for permissive counterclaims because under Rule 13, they are not the same "transaction or occurrence," and hence, they are also not the "same case or controversy" under § 1367 [see, e.g., Naranjo v. County of Rio Arriba (DNM 1994) 862 F Supp 328, 334 (for counterclaim to form part of "same case or controversy" as main claim, it must be compulsory rather than permissive)]. If not, then a permissive counterclaim can be supported by statutory supplemental jurisdiction, even though it does not arise from the same "transaction or occurrence" [see, e.g., Jones v. Ford Motor Credit Co. (2d Cir 2004) 358 F3d 205, 210-214 (even though the relationship is not such as would make the counterclaims compulsory, the counterclaims and the underlying claim bear a sufficient factual relationship to constitute the same "case" within the meaning of Article III and hence of § 1367)].

Although the Ninth Circuit has not yet ruled on this issue, several district courts in the circuit have reached different results. The Central District of California has said that a permissive counterclaim may be supported by supplemental jurisdiction under § 1367 [see Polaris Pool Sys. v. Letro Prods., Inc. (CD Cal 1995) 161 FRD 422, 425 (even if they are permissive counterclaims, state-law counterclaims form part of the same case or controversy as federal claims and are supported by supplemental jurisdiction under statute).]. However, the District Courts for Arizona and Nevada have required permissive counterclaims to have their own jurisdictional basis [see Taylor v. Bryant, Inc. (D Nev 2003) 275 F Supp2d 1305, 1306 (federal courts have supplemental jurisdiction over compulsory counterclaims, but permissive counterclaims require their own jurisdictional basis); Hart v. Clayton-Parker & Assocs. (D Ariz 1994) 869 F Supp 774, 776 (concluding that § 1367(a) itself implicitly recognizes that only compulsory counterclaim forms part of same case or controversy as claim giving rise to federal jurisdiction); cf. Competitive Techs. v. Fujitsu Ltd. (ND Cal 2003) 286 F Supp2d 1118, 1142-1143 (noting issue and split of authority, but not reaching issue because it found counterclaims to be compulsory under Rule 13)].

11.12 Court Will Have Personal Jurisdiction Over Counter-Defendant.

A court has personal jurisdiction over a counter-defendant who has submitted to the jurisdiction of the court by bringing suit as the plaintiff [Adam v. Saenger (1938) 303 US 59, 67-68, 58 S Ct 454, 82 L Ed 649 (by filing a lawsuit plaintiff consents to jurisdictional power and may not contest personal jurisdiction against counterclaim filed by defendant)].

11.13 Compulsory Counterclaims May Be Used to Satisfy Amount-in-Controversy Requirement.

In cases originally filed in federal court, a compulsory counterclaim in excess of the jurisdictional minimum is sufficient to establish subject matter jurisdiction in a diversity case [see Fenton v. Freedman (9th Cir 1984) 748 F2d 1358, 1359 ; 28 USC § 1332(a)]. On the other hand, in cases removed from state court to federal court, most courts agree that a compulsory counterclaim may not be used to satisfy the amount-in-controversy requirement. Although the Ninth Circuit has not resolved the matter, the majority of courts in the Ninth Circuit that have addressed this issue in cases removed from state court have held that the amount in controversy is to be determined solely by reference to plaintiff's complaint [see, e.g., Director RLA v. Cape Cod Biolab Corp. (ND Cal 2001) 2001 US Dist LEXIS 20294, at *7-*8].

11.14 Removal May Not Be Based on Federal-Question Counterclaim.

Removal of a case to federal court may not be based on a counterclaim in the state court action that raises a federal question [see Redevelopment Agency of San Bernardino v. Alvarez (CD Cal 2003) 288 F Supp2d 1112, 1115].

11.15 The Erie Doctrine Applies to Counterclaims.

In diversity actions, or in cases in which a court is exercising supplemental jurisdiction over a state law claim, the Erie Doctrine [see Erie R.R. Co. v. Tompkins (1938) 304 US 64, 78, 58 S Ct 817, 82 L Ed 1188] applies. Therefore, a district court will construe the substantive issues raised by a counterclaim under applicable state law [see, e.g., Carteret Sav. & Loan Ass'n, F.A. v. Jackson (1st Cir 1987) 812 F2d 36, 40]. The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, however, apply to the purely procedural aspects of the counterclaim [see Karakas v. McKeown (ED Mich 1992) 783 F Supp 1028, 1033-1034 (federal court presiding over diversity case applies federal rules of procedure, and in event of conflict between state and federal rules, federal rule governing counterclaims prevails)].

11.16 Jurisdiction and Venue Objections Must Be Preserved When Asserting Counterclaim.

Defenses of lack of jurisdiction over the person, improper venue, insufficiency of process, and insufficiency of service of process may be waived unless raised by motion or included in a responsive pleading [Fed R Civ P 12(h)(1)]. Therefore, if a defendant files an answer and, without preserving objections to personal jurisdiction, seeks affirmative relief from the court by way of a counterclaim, the defendant may well have waived any objection to personal jurisdiction or venue [see, e.g., Schnabel v. Lui (9th Cir 2002) 302 F3d 1023, 1037 n5]. The question in those circumstances is whether the waiver may be set aside in connection with a motion to amend the responsive pleadings to assert the objections to lack of personal jurisdiction or venue.

Assertion of a counterclaim does not necessarily involve a waiver of personal jurisdiction or venue objections, however. There is some dispute in other federal courts as to if and how a defendant may assert a counterclaim and still preserve these objections [see Butte Mining PLC v. Smith (D Mont 1992) 15 F Supp2d 965, 968 n1]. However, the law in the Ninth Circuit is clear. Defendants may assert both compulsory and permissive counterclaims without waiving personal jurisdiction or venue objections if appropriate steps are taken--either before filing the counterclaim or at the same time as filing the counterclaim--to preserve the objections [Teyseer Cement Co. v. Halla Mar. Corp. (9th Cir 1986) 794 F2d 472, 478].

Assertion of a compulsory counterclaim rarely, if ever, constitutes a waiver of jurisdictional or venue defenses [Dragor Shipping Corp. v. Union Tank Car Co. (9th Cir 1967) 378 F2d 241, 244].

Assertion of a permissive counterclaim will not constitute a waiver of jurisdictional or venue defenses if either: (1) the counterclaim is asserted after the defendant has made a Rule 12(b) motion asserting these defenses, or (2) the counterclaim and the jurisdictional defenses are asserted in the same responsive pleading [Gates Learjet Corp. v. Jensen (9th Cir 1984) 743 F2d 1325, 1330 n1].

Strategic Point:

The safest course of action always appears to be assertion of any personal jurisdiction or venue objections in a Fed R Civ P 12(b) motion or 28 USC § 1406(a) motion made before filing the responsive pleading containing a counterclaim. This strategy has the added advantage of securing additional time for filing the responsive pleading.

11.17 Relief Available Through Counterclaims.

11.17[1] No Limit on Claims or Kinds of Relief. A party asserting relief as a counterclaim may join as many claims--legal, equitable, or maritime--as the party has against an opposing party [Fed R Civ P 18(a)].

11.17[2] Relief Diminishing, Defeating, or Exceeding Plaintiff's Claim. A counterclaim may or may not diminish or defeat the recovery sought by the opposing party. Additionally, a counterclaim may claim relief that exceeds in amount of relief, or that seeks a different kind of relief, from that sought in the pleading of the opposing party [Fed R Civ P 13(c)].

11.17[3] Injunctive Relief. Injunctive relief may be sought through a counterclaim [Moore v. New York Cotton Exch. (1926) 270 US 593, 610, 46 S Ct 367, 70 L Ed 750].

11.18 Determining Parties to Counterclaim.

11.18[1] Counterclaim May Be Brought Only Against an Opposing Party. Counterclaims are affirmative claims for relief made against an opposing party [Fed R Civ P 13(a), (b)]. "Opposing parties" have been defined as those that "formally oppose each other on a pleaded claim" [Earle M. Jorgenson Co. v. T.I. United States, Ltd. (ED Pa 1991) 133 FRD 472, 475]. With regard to counterclaims, the term "opposing party" refers only to a person or entity that is already a party to the action when the counterclaim is asserted [see Youell v. Grimes (D Kan 2001) 203 FRD 503, 508].

There is also limited authority for the proposition that coparties may become "opposing parties" within the meaning of Fed R Civ P 13(a) after one pleads a substantive crossclaim, as opposed to a claim that is just for contribution or indemnity, against the other [see Rainbow Mgmt. Group, Ltd. v. Atlantis Submarines Hawaii, LP (D Haw 1994) 158 FRD 656, 659-660 (citing Moore's)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of possibility of coparties becoming "opposing parties" after filing of crossclaim, see 3 Moore's Federal Practice, § 13.90[2][a] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

11.18[2] Counterclaim May Be Brought Against an Opposing Party Only in the Capacity in Which That Party Brought Suit. Generally, a party may assert a counterclaim only in the capacity in which the party has been sued, and against an opposing party only in the capacity in which the opposing party brought the original claim [see Blanchard v. Katz (SDNY 1987) 117 FRD 527, 528].

Example:

If a plaintiff brings a lawsuit only in a fiduciary capacity, any counterclaims brought against the plaintiff in his or her individual capacity should be challenged on the grounds that the plaintiff-fiduciary, in his or her individual capacity, is not an "opposing party" within the meaning of Fed R Civ P 13(a) and should, therefore, be dismissed [see, e.g., Youell v. Grimes (D Kan 2001) 203 FRD 503, 508].

There are exceptions to this general rule. For example, if a plaintiff sues in a representative capacity, but will benefit individually from any recovery, a counterclaim may be made against the plaintiff in his or individual capacity [Blanchard v. Katz (SDNY 1987) 117 FRD 527, 528-529]. In addition, a counterclaim may be made against a plaintiff in a capacity different than that in which he or she sued if principles of equity and judicial economy support such a counterclaim [Blanchard v. Katz (SDNY 1987) 117 FRD 527, 528-529].

11.18[3] Counterclaim May Be Brought by Third-Party Defendant Against Third-Party Plaintiff. A defendant to the original complaint may file a third-party complaint against a new party under Fed R Civ P 14. With regard to that pleading, the defendant is the third-party plaintiff, and the new party is the third-party defendant. The third-party defendant may then bring a counterclaim against the third-party plaintiff [Fed R Civ P 14(a)(3)].

Cross Reference:

Further discussion of third-party practice under Fed R Civ P 14, see Ch. 12, Third-Party Actions.

11.18[4] Counterclaim May Apply to Joined Parties. Persons other than those made parties to the original action may be made parties to a counterclaim in accordance with the provisions of Fed R Civ P 19 (compulsory joinder) and 20 (permissive joinder) [Fed R Civ P 13(h); see, e.g., SAES Getters SpA v. Aeronex, Inc. (SD Cal 2002) 219 F Supp2d 1081, 1085 (demonstrating correlation between Fed R Civ P 13(h), Fed R Civ P 15(a), Fed R Civ P 19, and Fed R Civ P 20)]. Fed R Civ P 13(h) does not authorize third party claims, which are governed by Fed R Civ P 14, but rather applies to counterclaims that already exist before the court to which additional parties may be joined for the granting of complete relief [Fed R Civ P 13(h)].

Distinguish:

The term "opposing party" refers only to a person or entity that is already a party in the action when the counterclaim is asserted [see Youell v. Grimes (D Kan 2001) 203 FRD 503, 508].

Strategic Point:

Before joining multiple parties on a counterclaim, consider whether this joinder will create new issues concerning personal jurisdiction or venue. The existing parties also should weigh carefully whether additional counterclaims or crossclaims will result from this joinder, and whether these are likely to unduly lengthen or complicate the proceeding. Joinder should not be automatic merely because it is possible, but should be used only for indispensable parties or when there will be a significant advantage in resolving the pending litigation.

Cross References:

Discussion of joining additional parties, see Ch. 4, Determining Parties to the Action, and Ch. 10, Adding, Dropping, and Substituting Parties. Discussion of third party claims and actions, see Ch. 12, Third-Party Actions.

11.18[5] Counterclaim Against Governmental Entity Requires Waiver of Sovereign Immunity. A counterclaim may be filed against the United States, a state, or tribal entity only if the governmental entity has waived its sovereign immunity as to the counterclaim. However, in most cases, once a governmental entity invokes the jurisdiction of the federal courts, the entity waives its sovereign immunity to counterclaims that arise out of the same transaction or occurrence [see, e.g., Competitive Techs. v. Fujitsu Ltd. (ND Cal 2003) 286 F Supp2d 1118, 1129].

Courts have tended to limit this waiver of sovereign immunity to compulsory counterclaims only, however. A governmental entity does not waive its sovereign immunity for unrelated, permissive counterclaims, merely by invoking the jurisdiction of the federal court on the claims asserted in its pleading [see, e.g., In re Lazar (9th Cir 2001) 237 F3d

967, 978 ; Competitive Techs. v. Fujitsu Ltd. (ND Cal 2003) 286 F Supp2d 1118, 1129 ; FDIC v F.S.S.S. (D Alaska 1993) 829 F Supp 317, 322 (by bringing suit, the US waives sovereign immunity as to compulsory counterclaims, but permissive counterclaims require separate basis of waiver); see also Aholelei v. Dep't of Public Safety (9th Cir 2007) 488 F3d 1144, 1147-1149 (state defendants did not waive their sovereign immunity by filing third-party complaint because they had timely asserted immunity prior to filing that complaint and complaint was defensive move that was not incompatible with intent to preserve sovereign immunity)].

That a party may assert a counterclaim against the United States through Fed R Civ P 13 does not enlarge beyond the limits now fixed by law the right to assert counterclaims or to claim credits against the United States or an officer or agency of the United States [Fed R Civ P 13(d)]. Therefore, the relief that may be obtained by asserting counterclaims against the United States is limited.

In this regard, the Ninth Circuit has not reached the question of whether the scope of the waiver with respect to compulsory counterclaims is limited to recoupment of damages obtained by the plaintiff governmental entity, or goes further to allow an affirmative award of damages against the entity [see Competitive Techs. v. Fujitsu Ltd. (ND Cal 2003) 286 F Supp2d 1118, 1129]. Some district courts in the Ninth Circuit have concluded that the waiver would only allow for recoupment [see, e.g., California Indep. Sys. Operator Corp. v. Reliant Energy Servs., Inc. (ED Cal 2001) 181 F Supp2d 1111, 1125].

11.19 Counterclaims Must Be Raised in Responsive Pleadings.

Counterclaims must be raised in a responsive pleading, such as the answer to the complaint or a reply to a counterclaim [Fed R Civ P 13 (a), (b)]. In the Ninth Circuit, compulsory counterclaims may be asserted in a plaintiff's reply to a counterclaim [Frank Briscoe Co. v. Clark County (9th Cir 1988) 857 F2d 606, 610 , cert. denied, 490 US 1048 (1989) ; see also Davis & Cox v. Summa Corp. (9th Cir 1985) 751 F2d 1507, 1525 (although the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure do not expressly authorize a plaintiff's bringing of "counterclaims in reply" to a defendant's counterclaims, the weight of authority allows the plaintiff to file such pleadings if the counterclaims in reply are compulsory, but denies them if permissive)].

11.20 Pleading Standards for Counterclaims.

11.20[1] Counterclaim Must Be Properly Pleaded. Whether asserted in the answer or in a reply to a counterclaim, counterclaims are claims for relief and therefore must be pleaded in accordance with all applicable pleading standards [Fed R Civ P 8(a)].

Warning:

As is the case when pleading any claim, careful pleading of counterclaims is important because allegations in a pleading to which no responsive pleading is required or permitted are taken as denied or avoided [Fed R Civ P 8(b)(6)].

11.20[2] Pleading Must Set Forth Jurisdiction. A counterclaim must contain a short and plain statement of the grounds on which the court's jurisdiction depends, unless the court already has jurisdiction and the claim needs no new grounds of jurisdiction to support it [Fed R Civ P 8(a)(1)].

11.20[3] Pleading Must Contain a Short and Plain Statement of Claim. A counterclaim must contain a short and plain statement of the claim showing the pleader is entitled to relief [Fed R Civ P 8(a)(2)].

11.20[4] Pleading Must Demand Relief. A counterclaim must contain a demand for judgment for the relief the pleader seeks [Fed R Civ P 8(a)(3)].

11.21 Counterclaims Must Be Properly and Timely Served.

Even when counterclaims are asserted in the answer, the answer must be served in accordance with the rules applicable to any other answer [see Cripps v. Life Ins. Co. of N. Am. (9th Cir 1992) 980 F2d 1261, 1267]. Under the applicable rules, a defendant generally must serve an answer within 21 days after being served with the summons and complaint [Fed R Civ P 12(a)(1)].

Cross References:

Ch. 5, Formatting, Serving, and Filing Papers, see §§ 5.15 -5.23 and Ch. 7, Service of Summons.

Strategic Point:

If it is determined that compulsory counterclaims will be asserted in the answer to the complaint, consider seeking from the court an extension of time in which to file the answer, to ensure sufficient time to determine which counterclaims are compulsory and must be included in the answer. Consult local rules and individual judges' standing orders for the proper procedure for obtaining such an extension.

11.22 Omitted Counterclaim May Be Preserved Through Amendment of a Pleading.

A party who fails to set up a counterclaim has the one-time right "as a matter of course" to amend its pleading within 21 days after serving it or within 21-days after service of a motion under Fed R Civ P 12(b), (e), or (f), whichever is earlier [see Fed R Civ P 15(a)(1)(B)]. Otherwise, the party may amend its pleading to add a counterclaim only with the opposing party's written consent or the court's permission [Fed R Civ P 15(a)(2); *see IXYS Corp. v. Advanced Power Tech., Inc. (ND Cal 2004) 2004 US Dist LEXIS 804, at 4 (court must be "very liberal" in granting leave to amend)]. With the permission of the court, a party also may raise a counterclaim that matured or was acquired by the pleader after the service of the responsive pleading [Fed R Civ P 13(e)].

Strategic Point:

A motion to dismiss under Fed R Civ P 12(b) is not a responsive pleading [see Mayes v. Leipziger (9th Cir 1984) 729 F2d 605, 608].

Cross Reference:

For a list of pleadings that generally require a responsive pleading, see § 9.07. Further discussion of responsive pleadings and motions under Fed R Civ P 12(b), see Ch. 8, Answers and Responsive Motions Under Rule 12.

In the Ninth Circuit, leave to amend is granted with extraordinary liberality [IXYS Corp v. Advanced Power Tech., Inc. (ND Cal 2004) 2004 US Dist LEXIS 804, at *4]. The factors that a court will consider when deciding a motion for leave to amend pleadings are undue delay, bad faith or dilatory motive, futility of amendment, and prejudice to the opposing party [IXYS Corp v. Advanced Power Tech., Inc. (ND Cal 2004) 2004 US Dist LEXIS 804, at *5 ; see also Cooper Dev. Co. v. Employers Ins. of Wausau (ND Cal 1991) 765 F Supp 1429, 1432]. In addition, the court will consider whether the party's proposed amended counterclaim is compulsory or permissive [IXYS Corp. v. Advanced Power Tech., Inc. (ND Cal 2004) 2004 US Dist LEXIS 804, at *14].

Distinguish--Amendment Not Permitted When Delay Is Prejudicial:

Despite the generally favorable view of court towards permitting amendments to assert omitted counterclaims, a defendant's delay in seeking leave to amend will be grounds to deny leave when the defendant's delay results in prejudice to the opposing party. Courts frequently find prejudice when a defendant seeks an amendment so late in the proceedings that it will unduly delay the trial, such as when the omitted counterclaim will require new or additional discovery or new or additional trial preparation [see, e.g., Magnesystems, Inc. v. Nikken, Inc. (CD Cal 1996) 933 F Supp 944, 952-953 (leave to amend to include permissive patent infringement counterclaims was denied because addition of claims would require new discovery and would, therefore, greatly prolong the litigation and delay plaintiff's recovery)].

11.24 Counterclaim May Be Severed for Separate Trial.

The court may order a separate trial on a counterclaim in furtherance of convenience, to avoid prejudice, or when separate trials will be conducive to expedition and economy [Fed R Civ P 42(b); see also Fed R Civ P 21 (any claim against a party may be severed and proceeded with separately)]. If a court orders separate trials as provided in Fed R Civ P 42(b), judgment on a counterclaim may be rendered in accordance with Fed R Civ P 54(b) if the court has jurisdiction to do so, "even if the opposing party's claims have been dismissed or otherwise resolved" [Fed R Civ P 13(i)].

Cross References:

11.25 LOCAL PRACTICE: Requirements for Counterclaims.

11.25[1] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements.

11.25[1][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Alleging Jurisdiction Over Counterclaims. The basis for the exercise of jurisdiction by the court must be plainly stated in the first paragraph of any document invoking the Court's jurisdiction [CD Cal Civ LR 8-1].

11.25[1][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Extending the Time to Respond to the Initial Complaint. A stipulation extending the time within which to answer or otherwise respond to the initial complaint by not more than 30 days does not have to be approved by the judge [CD Cal Civ LR 8-3].

Distinguish:

This rule does not apply to answers, replies or other responses to crossclaims, counterclaims, third-party complaints, or any amended or supplemental pleadings [CD Cal Civ LR 8-3].

11.25[1][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Amended and Supplemental Pleadings. A proposed amended pleading must be electronically filed as a document separate from a related motion or stipulation [CD Cal Civ LR 15-1].

Every amended pleading must be complete and may not refer to the prior, superseded pleading [CD Cal Civ LR 15-2].

Every amended pleading must be filed as a paper document [CD Cal Civ LR 15-4].

Warning:

Individual judges' standing orders regarding amended pleadings should be consulted, as some maintain special requirements for amending pleadings in certain types of actions [CD Cal Civ LR 8-3].

11.25[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements.

11.25[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Alleging Jurisdiction Over Counterclaims. When alleging the jurisdictional basis of a counterclaim, the following procedure must be followed:

- The allegation of jurisdiction must appear as the first allegation of the counterclaim;
- The allegation must be clearly labeled "Jurisdiction";
- The allegation must state the claimed statutory or other basis of federal jurisdiction; and
- The allegation must state the facts supporting the jurisdictional claim [ED Cal Civ LR 204].

11.25[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Changed Pleadings. Unless prior approval to the contrary is obtained from the Court, every pleading to which an amendment or supplement is permitted as a matter of right or by permission of the court must be retyped and filed so that it is complete in itself without reference to the prior or superseded pleading [ED Cal Civ LR 220].

11.25[2][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Counterclaims in Class Actions. Counterclaims alleged to be brought for or against a class are governed by ED Cal Civ LR 205.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of class actions, see Ch. 20, Class Actions.

11.25[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. Any party filing or moving to file an amended pleading must reproduce the entire proposed pleading and may not incorporate any part of a prior pleading by reference [ND Cal Civ LR 10-1].

Distinguish:

By its own terms, ND Cal Civ LR 10-1 applies only to amended pleadings. Therefore, a counterclaim may be incorporated by reference into the answer as an affirmative defense [ND Cal Civ LR 10-1]. Because, however, it is important that counterclaims are clearly designated in the responsive pleading, it is advisable to clearly distinguish counterclaims from affirmative defenses.

11.25[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements.

11.25[4][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements--Extension of Time to Answer. The parties may not extend the time for response merely by their own agreement. "Extensions for time for answering, or moving to dismiss a complaint shall only be secured by obtaining the approval of a judicial officer, who shall base the decision on a showing of good cause" [SD Cal Civ LR 12.1].

11.25[4][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements--Amended Pleadings. Unless prior approval from the court is obtained, every amended pleading must be retyped and filed so that it is complete in itself without reference to the superseded pleading [SD Cal Civ LR 15.1].

11.28 Options and Strategy--Crossclaims.

Unlike counterclaims, crossclaims are always "permissive"--a matter of option or choice. Thus, a defendant considering whether to assert a crossclaim must always balance whether there will be some real advantage to doing so. Frequently, it will be advantageous to have the entire dispute among the parties resolved in a single action. With other crossclaims, the cost of bringing them in the present action, in terms of complicating and delaying the proceeding, will outweigh any conceivable advantage. It will usually be easier to make a considered analysis of these issues at the beginning of the litigation, and to forego asserting an unnecessary cross-complaint, than it will be to try to uncomplicate a proceeding at a later stage of the litigation, by bringing a noticed motion for severance of the cross-complaint.

11.29 Determining Parties to Crossclaims.

11.29[1] Crossclaims Are Made by a Party Against a Coparty. Crossclaims are made against a coparty [Fed R Civ P 13(g)]. Coparties have been defined as parties having like status [see Hansen v. Shearson/Am. Express, Inc. (ED Pa 1987) 116 FRD 246], as any party that is not an opposing party [see Georgia Ports Authority v. Construzioni Meccaniche Industriali Genovesi SpA (SD Ga 1988) 119 FRD 693, 695], or as a party on the same side of a litigation [see Stahl v. Ohio River Co. (3d Cir 1970) 424 F2d 52, 55].

There is some authority for the proposition that coparties may become "opposing parties" within the meaning of Fed R Civ P 13(a), however. According to this authority, "coparties" may become "opposing parties" after one pleads a substantive crossclaim (as opposed to a crossclaim that is just for contribution or indemnity) against the other [see Rainbow Mgmt. Group, Ltd. v. Atlantis Submarines Hawaii, LP (D Haw 1994) 158 FRD 656, 659-660 (citing Moore's)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of possibility of coparties becoming "opposing parties" after filing of crossclaim, see 3 Moore's Federal Practice, § 13.90[2][a] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

11.29[2] Crossclaims May Be Made Only Against Existing Parties. Crossclaims may be made only against existing parties [In re Street (Bankr D Ariz 2002) 283 BR 775, 781]. A claim against a new party is a third-party claim [see Fed R Civ P 14].

11.29[3] Crossclaim May Be Brought Against Party Joined Under Fed R Civ P 14. A crossclaim may be brought against a party who has been brought into the suit by third-party complaint under Fed R Civ P 14 [Fed R Civ P 14(a)].

11.29[4] Joined Parties May Be Parties to Crossclaim. Persons other than those made parties to the original action may be made parties to a crossclaim in accordance with the provisions of Fed R Civ P 19 (compulsory joinder) and 20 (permissive joinder) [Fed R Civ P 13(h); see, e.g., SAES Getters SpA v. Aeronex, Inc. (SD Cal 2002) 219 F Supp2d 1081, 1085 (demonstrating correlation between Fed R Civ P 13(h), Fed R Civ P 15(a), Fed R Civ P 19, and Fed R Civ P 20)].

11.29[5] Crossclaims Against Governmental Entity. A crossclaim may be filed against the United States, a state, or a tribal entity only if the governmental entity has waived its sovereign immunity as to the crossclaim [see Wichita & Affiliated Tribes v. Hodel (DC Cir 1986) 788 F2d 765, 778 (sovereign immunity as to crossclaim by coparty was not waived by tribe's instituting action); United States v. 255. 21 Acres in Anne Arundel County (D Md 1989) 722 F Supp 235, 237 (when government has consented to suit with respect to particular claims, claim may be asserted in any manner procedural rules permit, whether as original action, counterclaim, crossclaim, or third-party claim)].

Cross Reference:

11.30 Logical Relationship Must Exist Between Claim and Crossclaim.

A crossclaim must arise out of the same transaction or occurrence as the claim that is the subject matter of the original action or of a counterclaim [Fed R Civ P 13(g)]. To determine whether a claim and crossclaim arise from the "same transaction or occurrence," the inquiry is essentially the same as that used to determine whether a counterclaim is compulsory [see Seattle Audubon Soc'y v. Lyons (WD Wash 1994) 871 F Supp 1286, 1290 (crossclaim "transaction or occurrence" standard is expansive, akin to the "logical relationship" test for compulsory counterclaims)]. Courts will looks to see whether the original claim and the crossclaim have a "logical relationship" to each other [see Pochiro v. Prudential Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1987) 827 F2d 1246, 1249 (applying "logical relationship" test to determine if counterclaim is compulsory)]. In practical terms, this means that the facts to the original claim and the crossclaim are so related that judicial economy and fairness favor their resolution in a single lawsuit [see Hydranautics v. Filmtec Corp. (9th Cir 1995) 70 F3d 533, 536]. Thus, if separate trials of the original claim and the crossclaim would result in a substantial duplication of effort, the required "logical relationship" exists [see Caesar's World, Inc. v. Milanian (D Nev 2003 247 F Supp2d 1171, 1202 (case dealing with compulsory counterclaim issue)].

Cross References:

Discussion of the application of "logical relationship" standard for determining whether a counterclaim is compulsory, see 11.09[1]. Examples of cases finding counterclaims to be either compulsory or permissive, see § 11.09[3].

Further discussion of the factors used to determine whether a counterclaim or crossclaim arises from the same transaction or occurrence as the plaintiff's claim, see 3 Moore's Federal Practice, see §§ 13.10 -13.13, 13.70 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

11.31 Crossclaims Are Permissive.

All crossclaims are permissive in the sense that the failure to bring the claim in one action does not bar the claim in a subsequent action [Answering Serv., Inc. v. Egan (DC Cir 1984) 728 F2d 1500, 1503 (claim compulsory only when it is asserted against an opposing party); see also United States v. Confederate Acres Sanitary Sewage & Drainage Sys., Inc. (6th Cir 1991) 935 F2d 796, 799 (potential crossclaims were not actually presented by defendant, and court could not compel defendant to litigate them because crossclaims are permissive)]. However, a permissive crossclaim is not the same as a permissive counterclaim in this regard. A permissive counterclaim is one that does not arise from the transaction or occurrence that is the subject matter of the opposing party's claim [Fed R Civ P 13(b)]. In contrast, even though the failure to bring it does not bar it in a later action, a crossclaim must arise from the same transaction or occurrence that is the subject matter of the original action [Fed R Civ P 13(g)]. In that regard, a crossclaim is more akin to a compulsory counterclaim [see Fed R Civ P 13(a)]. Unrelated crossclaims between coparties are not permitted.

Example:

P sues D in diversity, and D has an unrelated claim against P. D may bring the claim as a permissive counterclaim under Rule 13(b) because diversity provides subject matter jurisdiction. But if P sues D1 and D2, and D1 has an unrelated claim against D2, the claim may not be brought as a crossclaim because it does not arise from the same transaction or occurrence as required by Rule 13(g).

Crossclaims that seek affirmative and independent relief are time barred if not filed within the applicable statute of limitations period [Kansa Reinsurance Co. v. Congressional Mortgage Corp. (5th Cir 1994) 20 F3d 1362, 1367 (Fed R Civ P 13(g) governing crossclaims does not permit relation back of a crossclaim seeking affirmative and independent relief to the original complaint); see United States for the Use of Bros. Builders Supply Co. v. Old World Artisans, Inc. (ND Ga 1988) 702 F Supp 1561, 1569 (common law rule that statutes of limitation do not run against pure defenses does not apply to setoffs, counterclaims, or crossclaims that are affirmative, independent causes of action)].

11.33 Court May Have Supplemental Jurisdiction Over Crossclaims.

Under the supplemental jurisdiction statute, courts may exercise jurisdiction over a crossclaim if it is so related to claims over which the court has original jurisdiction that they form part of the same case or controversy [28 USC § 1367]. Because crossclaims by definition arise out of the same transaction or occurrence as the main claim [Fed R Civ P 13(g)], the rule should be that they are always within the court's supplemental jurisdiction, as was the case before the statute was enacted [see Allstate Ins. Co. v. James (11th Cir 1986) 779 F2d 1536, 1539 ; In re Oil Spill by Amoco Cadiz (7th Cir 1983) 699 F2d 909, 913 ; cf. Glaziers & Glassworkers Union Local 252 Annuity Fund v. Newbridge Sec., Inc. (ED Pa 1993) 823 F Supp 1191, 1197 (court exercised its discretion under 28 USC § 1367(c) to decline supplemental jurisdiction over state law crossclaims for contribution and indemnification; implicit is assumption that claims would be within supplemental jurisdiction)].

11.34 Court Must Have Personal Jurisdiction Over Cross-Defendant.

A cross-defendant may raise the same jurisdictional defenses against the coparty crossclaimant as against the plaintiff [National Trust for Historic Pres. v. 1750 K Inv. P'ship (ED Va 1984) 100 FRD 483, 487 , aff'd, (4th Cir 1985) 755 F2d 929 (even though crossclaimant filed crossclaim, court never had in personam jurisdiction over co-defendant, who was not properly served with original complaint, and crossclaim would, therefore, be dismissed as well)]. If, however, a court has personal jurisdiction over a defendant for purposes of the main claim, it will have personal jurisdiction for purposes of a crossclaim, which arises out the same transaction or occurrence as the original action [Chemco Int'l Leasing, Inc. v. Meridian Eng'g, Inc. (SDNY 1984) 590 F Supp 539, 544 (court had jurisdiction over crossclaim arising from same transaction as subject matter of original action when plaintiff was properly before court on main claim)].

III. PREPARING AND DRAFTING CROSSCLAIMS

2-11 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 11.37

11.37 Crossclaims Must Be Raised in Pleading.

A crossclaim must be stated in a pleading [Fed R Civ P 13(g); see Bernstein v. IDT Corp. (D Del 1984) 582 F Supp 1079, 1089 (citing Moore's, crossclaims are not pleadings but must be set forth in pleading)]. The rule is that a crossclaim must be asserted in the answer [In re Cessna Aircraft Distributorship Antitrust Litig. (8th Cir 1976) 532 F2d 64, 67-68 ; see Fed R Civ P 7(a)].

Cross References:

III. PREPARING AND DRAFTING CROSSCLAIMS

2-11 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 11.38

11.38 Pleading Standards for Crossclaims.

11.38[1] Pleading Must Set Forth Jurisdiction. A crossclaim must contain a short and plain statement of the grounds on which the court's jurisdiction depends, unless the court already has jurisdiction and the claim needs no new grounds of jurisdiction to support it [Fed R Civ P 8(a)(1)].

11.38[2] Pleading Must Contain a Short and Plain Statement of Claim. A crossclaim must contain a short and plain statement of the claim showing the pleader is entitled to relief [Fed R Civ P 8(a)(2)].

11.38[3] Pleading Must Demand Relief. A crossclaim must contain a demand for judgment for the relief the pleader seeks [Fed R Civ P 8(a)(3)].

11.39 Crossclaims Must Be Properly and Timely Served.

An answer containing a crossclaim must be served as provided by Fed R Civ P 4 [see Cripps v. Life Ins. Co. of N. Am. (9th Cir 1992) 980 F2d 1261, 1267]. Generally, a defendant must serve the answer within 21 days after being served with the summons and complaint [Fed R Civ P 12(a)(1)(A)(i)].

III. PREPARING AND DRAFTING CROSSCLAIMS

2-11 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 11.40

11.40 Omitted Crossclaim May Be Presented Through Amendment of a Pleading.

A party may amend the answer to include an omitted crossclaim once as a matter of right, i.e., without first obtaining permission from the court, within 21 days after serving it or within 21 days after service of a motion under Fed R Civ P 12(b), (e), or (f), whichever is earlier [see Fed R Civ P 15(a)(1)(B)]. Otherwise, the party may amend its pleading to add a counterclaim only with the opposing party's written consent or the court's permission [Fed R Civ P 15(a)(2)].

In the Ninth Circuit, leave to amend is granted "with extraordinary liberality" [IXYS Corp v. Advanced Power Tech., Inc. (ND Cal 2004) 2004 US Dist LEXIS 804, at *4]. The factors that a court will consider when deciding a motion for leave to amend pleadings are undue delay, bad faith or dilatory motive, futility of amendment, and prejudice to the opposing party [IXYS Corp v. Advanced Power Tech., Inc. (ND Cal 2004) 2004 US Dist LEXIS 804, at *5 ; see also Cooper Dev. Co. v. Employers Ins. of Wausau (ND Cal 1991) 765 F Supp 1429, 1432].

2-11 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 11.43

11.43 LOCAL PRACTICE: Requirements for Crossclaims.

11.43[1] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements.

11.43[1][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Alleging Jurisdiction Over Crossclaims. The basis for the exercise of jurisdiction by the court must be plainly stated in the first paragraph of any document invoking this court's jurisdiction [CD Cal Civ LR 8-1].

11.43[1][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Extending the Time to Respond to the Initial Complaint. A stipulation extending the time within which to answer or otherwise respond to the initial complaint by not more than 30 days need not be approved by the judge, and will be filed [CD Cal Civ LR 8-3].

Distinguish:

This does not apply to extensions of time within which to answer answers, replies or other responses to crossclaims, counterclaims, third-party complaints, or any amended or supplemental pleadings [CD Cal Civ LR 8-3].

11.43[1][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Amended and Supplemental Pleadings. A proposed amended pleading must be electronically filed as a document separate from a related motion or stipulation [CD Cal Civ LR 15-1].

Every amended pleading must be complete in and of itself, and may not refer to the prior, superseded pleading [CD Cal Civ LR 15-2].

Every amended pleading must be filed as a paper document [CD Cal Civ LR 15-4].

Individual judges' standing orders regarding amended pleadings should be consulted, as some maintain special requirements for amending pleadings in certain types of actions.

11.43[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements.

11.43[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Alleging Jurisdiction Over Crossclaims. When alleging the jurisdictional basis of a crossclaim, the following procedure must be followed [ED Cal Civ LR 204]:

- The allegation of jurisdiction must appear as the first allegation of the crossclaim;
- The allegation must be clearly labeled "Jurisdiction";
- The allegation must state the claimed statutory or other basis of federal jurisdiction; and
- The allegation must state the facts supporting the jurisdictional claim.

11.43[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Changed Pleadings. Unless prior approval to the contrary is obtained from the Court, every pleading to which an amendment or supplement is permitted as a matter of right or by permission of the court, must be retyped and filed so that it is complete in itself without reference to the prior or superseded pleading [ED Cal Civ LR 220].

11.43[2][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Crossclaims in Class Actions. Crossclaims alleged to be brought for or against a class are governed by ED Cal Civ LR 205 [ED Cal Civ LR 205].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of class actions, see Ch. 20, Class Actions.

11.43[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. Any party filing or moving to file an amended pleading must reproduce the entire proposed pleading and may not incorporate any part of a prior pleading by reference [ND Cal Civ LR 10-1].

11.43[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements.

11.43[4][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements--Extension of Time to Answer. The parties may not extend the time for filing the answer and any included cross-complaints merely through their own agreement. Extensions of time for answering, or moving to dismiss a complaint may only be secured by obtaining the approval of a judicial officer, who must base the decision on a showing of good cause [SD Cal Civ LR 12.1].

11.43[4][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements--Amended Pleadings. Unless prior approval from the court is obtained, every amended pleading must be retyped and filed so that it is complete in itself without reference to the superseded pleading [SD Cal Civ LR 15.1].

11.46 Options and Strategy: Responding to Counterclaims and Crossclaims.

11.46[1] All Options Available to Attack Claim for Relief. Counterclaims and crossclaims state claims for affirmative relief. Therefore, all of the vehicles that are available with respect to answering and moving to dismiss claims in general are applicable when replying to counterclaims and crossclaims.

Cross Reference:

11.46[2] Consider Moving to Dismiss If Claim Was Compulsory Counterclaim to a Prior Suit. If a claim was a compulsory counterclaim in a prior suit, the pleader is barred from bringing the claim in the instant action [see Hydranautics v. FilmTec Corp. (9th Cir 1995) 70 F3d 533, 536].

2-11 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 11.49

11.49 Responsive Pleading May Include Additional Claims.

11.49[1] Responsive Pleading May Include Compulsory Counterclaim. If the defendant's answer asserts counterclaims or crossclaims that, in turn, involve additional claims that the plaintiff or coparty has against the defendant, the plaintiff or coparty may assert these claims as counterclaims in the reply to the counterclaim or answer to the crossclaim [see Fed R Civ P 13; see Frank Briscoe Co. v. Clark County (9th Cir 1988) 857 F2d 606, 610 , cert. denied, (1989) 490 US 1048 (in action by contractor against county, contractor was entitled to file counterclaims for breach of contract and warranty in its reply to county's answer stating counterclaims for breach)]. If these claims arise from the same transaction and occurrence as the defendant's counterclaim or crossclaim, then they are compulsory counterclaims and must be made in the reply or answer. Failure to do so may mean that they will be waived [Fed R Civ P 13(a); see Hydranautics v. FilmTec Corp. (9th Cir 1995) 70 F3d 533, 536].

Cross References:

If a responsive pleading includes a compulsory counterclaim, all of the considerations for asserting a counterclaim are applicable; discussion, see §§ 11.03 -11.25. Discussion of the consequences of failing to plead compulsory counterclaims, see § 11.08. Discussion of what constitutes the same transaction or occurrence, see § 11.09.

11.49[2] Responsive Pleading May Include Permissive Counterclaim. Permissive counterclaims may be included in any pleading [Fed R Civ P 13(b)]. Therefore, the reply to a counterclaim or answer to a crossclaim may also include additional claims that do not arise from the same transaction or occurrence that is the subject matter of the defendant's counterclaim or crossclaim [see Frank Briscoe Co. v. Clark County (9th Cir 1988) 857 F2d 606, 610 , cert. denied, 490 US 1048 (1989)].

Cross References:

If a responsive pleading includes a permissive counterclaim, all of the considerations for asserting a counterclaim are applicable; discussion, see §§ 11.03 -11.25. Discussion of distinguishing between compulsory and permissive counterclaims, see § 11.09.

11.49[3] Responsive Pleading May Include Crossclaim. Crossclaims against a coparty may also be included in any pleading, including a reply to a counterclaim or answer to a crossclaim. Crossclaims must arise from the same transaction or occurrence as the defendant's counterclaim [Fed R Civ P 13(g)].

Cross References:

If a responsive pleading includes a crossclaim, all of the considerations for asserting a crossclaim are applicable; discussion, see §§ 11.26 -11.43.

2-11 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 11.50

11.50 Responsive Pleading Must Comply With Pleading Standards.

When asserting a reply to a counterclaim or answer to a crossclaim, all applicable pleading standards pertaining to assertion of denials and affirmative defenses must be followed [Fed R Civ P 8(b)]. Some of the important rules in this regard are:

- The responding party must state in short and plain terms the party's defenses to each claim asserted in the counterclaim or crossclaim and must admit or deny the averments on which the counterclaimant or crossclaimant relies [Fed R Civ P 8(b)].

- If the responding party is without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of an averment, the party must so state [Fed R Civ P 8(b)].

- If the responding party intends in good faith to deny only part or a qualification of an averment, the party must specify so much of it as is true and material and deny only the remainder [Fed R Civ P 8(b)].

- The responding party must set forth all applicable affirmative defenses [Fed R Civ P 8(c)].

11.51 Responsive Pleading Must Be Timely Served.

A party served with a pleading stating a crossclaim against the party must serve an answer within 21 days after being served. Similarly, the plaintiff must serve a reply to a counterclaim in the defendant's answer within 21 days after service of the answer [Fed R Civ P 12(a)(1)(A)].

Warning:

Failure to respond to a pleading to which a response is required will result in an admission of the averment to which no response is made [Fed R Civ P 8(b)(6)]. Further, opposing counsel may seek to obtain a default judgment on a counterclaim or crossclaim to which no response is made [Fed R Civ P 54(c)].

TAKE NOTICE that on _____[date] at _____[time], Defendant and Counterclaimant _____[name of movant] will move the Court under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 15(a) for leave to file an Amended Answer and Counterclaim. Specifically, Defendant/Counterclaimant seeks to add this additional counterclaim against the Plaintiff and Counter-Defendant for _____[state basis of counterclaim, e.g., defamation], because _____ [state reason, e.g., the claim did not exist at the time Defendant/Counterclaimant filed Defendant/Counterclaimant's First Amended Answer or the counterclaim was omitted from the answer due to excusable neglect and justice requires that leave to amend be granted].

[If the counterclaim was omitted from the pleading, add The omission of the claim is not due to undue delay, bad faith or dilatory motive, and no prejudice to the opposing party will result as a result of the assertion of this counterclaim.]

[If required by local rule (e.g., CD Cal Civ LR 7-3), include statement re prior conference of counsel.]

[If required by local rule (e.g., ND Cal Civ LR 7-2(b), 7-4), include supporting points and authorities in the same document as the notice of motion and motion; otherwise, present points and authorities in a separate memorandum.]

This motion is based on this Notice of Motion and Motion, the accompanying _____[affidavit or declaration] of _____[name], ...[add, if appropriate: the accompanying Memorandum of Points and Authorities,] and the pleadings and papers on file in this action.

CHAPTER 12 Third-Party Actions

2-12 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 12.syn

§ 12.syn Synopsis to Chapter 12: Third-Party Actions

12.01 Scope.

12.02 Objective and Strategy.

12.02[1] Impleader Avoids Need for Separate Lawsuits.

12.02[2] Separate Lawsuit May Be More Economical in Some Cases.

12.02[3] Permissive Joinder Under Rule 20 Is Potential Alternative.

12.02[4] Compulsory Joinder Under Rule 19 Is Potential Alternative.

12.02[5] Counterclaims or Crossclaims Are Alternatives for Those Already Parties.

12.03 CHECKLIST: Bringing Third-Party Claim.

12.04 Defendant May Implead Third Party.

12.04[1] Defending Party May Implead.

12.04[2] Only Nonparties May Be Impleaded.

12.04[3] Third-Party Claim May Be Brought Against Defendant Who Settled.

12.05 Third-Party Claim Must Be Derivative.

12.05[1] Claim Is Derivative When Liability Depends on Outcome of Main Case.

12.05[2] Contribution and Indemnity Are Typical Derivative Claims.

12.05[3] Third-Party Defendant Need Not Be Liable to Original Plaintiff.

12.05[4] Third-Party Defendant Need Not Be Automatically Liable If Defendant Loses Underlying Suit.

12.05[5] Once Impleader Proper, Impleading Party May Assert Other Claims Against Impleaded Third Party.

12.06 Impleader Is Always Discretionary.

12.06[1] No Absolute Right to Implead Claim.

12.06[2] Impleader Without Leave of Court Permitted Within 10 Days of Answer to Original Claim.

12.06[3] Leave of Court Required for Impleader Attempted More Than 10 Days After Answer Served.

12.06[4] Factors Used to Determine Appropriateness of Impleader.

12.06[4][a] Rule 14(a) Construed in Favor of Impleader When Possible.

12.06[4][b] Efficiency and Lack of Prejudice to Plaintiff Favor Allowing Impleader.

12.06[4][c] Impleader Favored If Impleading Party Has Same Ability to Defend As in Separate Action.

12.06[4][d] Joint Trial Favored When Claims Sufficiently Interrelated.

12.06[4][e] Impleader Disfavored If It Might Unduly Complicate Trial or Foster Unmeritorious Claim.

12.07 Motion for Leave to File Third-Party Complaint.

12.07[1] Motion Must Be Served on All Parties.

12.07[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal--Motion Papers.

12.07[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal--Motion Papers.

12.07[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal--Motion Papers.

12.07[5] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal--Motion Papers.

12.08 Prerequisites to Bringing Third-Party Complaint.

12.08[1] Subject Matter Jurisdiction Requirements Must Be Met.

12.08[1][a] Rule 14 Does Not Convey Jurisdiction.

12.08[1][b] Federal Question Jurisdiction.

12.08[1][c] Diversity Jurisdiction.

12.08[1][d] Supplemental Jurisdiction Generally Supports Third-Party Claims Asserted by Defendants.

12.08[1][e] Supplemental Jurisdiction Will Not Support Third-Party Claim Asserted by Plaintiff in Diversity Case.

12.08[1][f] District Court Has Discretion to Decline Supplemental Jurisdiction.

12.08[2] Personal Jurisdiction Over Third-Party Defendant Required.

12.08[2][a] Third Party Must Have Sufficient Contacts With Forum for Court to Exercise Personal Jurisdiction.

12.08[2][b] Third Party Must Be Served With Summons.

12.08[2][c] Lack of Personal Jurisdiction May Be Waived.

12.08[3] Independent Venue Not Required.

12.08[4] Claim Must Be Brought Within Applicable Limitations Period.

12.09 Third-Party Claims by or Against United States: Special Problems.

12.09[1] United States May Implead Third Party Like Other Litigants.

12.09[2] Sovereign Immunity and Special Administrative Procedures Apply to Attempts to Implead United States.

12.09[3] Third-Party Claim Against United States Is Valid Only If Supported by Substantive Law.

12.10 Third-Party Claims in Admiralty and Maritime Suits: Special Problems.

12.10[1] In Admiralty Suits, Defendants and Persons With Interests in Seized Property May Implead Third Parties.

12.10[2] In Admiralty Suits, Impleader Reaches Broader Range of Claims Than in Ordinary Civil Actions.

12.10[3] In Admiralty Cases, Impleading Party May "Demand" Judgment Against Third-Party Defendant in Favor of Original Plaintiff.

12.10[4] "Demand" Requirement Easily Satisfied.

12.11 CHECKLIST: Responding to Impleader.

12.12 Options and Strategies for Responding to Impleader.

12.13 Opposing Propriety of Impleader Itself.

12.13[1] Any Party May Move to Strike Third-Party Claim.

12.13[2] Any Party May Move for Separate Trial or Move to Sever Claims.

12.14 Responding to Particulars of Third-Party Claim.

12.14[1] Third-Party Defendant May Assert Rule 12 Defenses by Answer or Motion to Dismiss.

12.14[2] Defenses May Be Waived If Not Raised by Timely Answer or Motion.

12.14[3] Third-Party Defendant May Assert Defenses of Third-Party Plaintiff Against Plaintiff.

12.14[4] Answer or Motion Must Be Served Within 21 Days After Service of Summons and Complaint.

12.15 Counterclaims Against Third-Party Plaintiff and Crossclaims Against Other Parties.

12.15[1] Third-Party Defendant Must Assert Compulsory Counterclaims and May Assert Permissive Counterclaims Against Impleading Party.

12.15[2] Third-Party Defendant May Assert Crossclaims Related to Impleader Claims Against Other Parties.

12.15[3] Third-Party Defendant May Join Other Claims.

12.15[4] Subject Matter Jurisdiction Must Exist for Claims.

12.16 Third-Party Defendant's Claim Against Plaintiff.

12.16[1] Third-Party Defendant May Assert Claim Against Plaintiff.

12.16[2] Procedure for Bringing Claim Is Unclear.

12.16[3] Joinder of Additional Claims.

12.16[4] Third-Party Defendant and Plaintiff Become Opposing Parties for Purpose of Counterclaim Rule.

12.16[5] Subject Matter Jurisdiction Must Exist for Claims.

12.16A CHECKLIST: Bringing Plaintiff's Claims Against Third-Party Defendant.

12.17 Plaintiff May Assert Claim Against Third-Party Defendant Arising Out of Same Transaction As Plaintiff's Claim.

12.18 Claim by Plaintiff Against Third-Party Defendant Is Permissive.

12.19 Subject Matter Jurisdiction Must Exist for Claims.

12.20 Independent Venue Not Required.

12.21 Procedure for Asserting Claim Is Unclear.

12.22 Third-Party Defendant Must Assert Any Defenses, Counterclaims, Crossclaims Under Rules 12, 13.

12.23 Notice of Motion and Motion for Leave to File Third-Party Complaint.

12.24 Third-Party Summons [ED Cal, ND Cal, SD Cal Only].

12.25 Third-Party Complaint.

12.26 Proposed Order Granting Motion for Leave to Serve Third-Party Complaint.

Unit 3 Pleading Stage
CHAPTER 12 Third-Party Actions
I. STRATEGY

2-12 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 12.02

12.02 Objective and Strategy.

12.02[1] Impleader Avoids Need for Separate Lawsuits. The objective of impleading a third party into an action is to reduce the number of lawsuits that must be brought to resolve a dispute [see Southwest Adm'rs, Inc. v. Rozay's Transfer (9th Cir 1986) 791 F2d 769, 777]. A third-party action, or impleader, is a procedural device that promotes judicial efficiency by eliminating additional, related suits against a third party who is or might be liable to the defendant [United States v. Yellow Cab. Co. (1951) 340 US 543, 556, 71 S Ct 399, 95 L Ed 523]. If the defendant contends that some third party will be liable to the defendant if the defendant is or may be liable to the plaintiff, the defendant is not limited to the plaintiff's choice of parties to the action, but may implead the derivatively liable third party. Thus, in the same suit in which plaintiff establishes the defendant's liability, the defendant may establish the impleaded third party's liability to the defendant for indemnity, contribution, subrogation, or some similarly "derivative" claim [see Fed R Civ P 14(a)].

Strategic Point--Impleader Is Always Permissive, Never Compulsory:

A defendant (or a plaintiff facing a counterclaim) may implead a third party derivatively liable for all or part of the defendant's liability to the plaintiff [Fed R Civ P 14(a)(1)]. Nothing in Fed R Civ P 14 compels a defendant to do so, however, and a defendant may choose to resolve claims against a third party in a separate action. Separate actions are never barred merely because the defendant had the opportunity implead the third party into an earlier action, but declined to do so [Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. v. Hercules, Inc. (9th Cir 1998) 146 F3d 1071, 1073-1074].

12.02[2] Separate Lawsuit May Be More Economical in Some Cases. A defendant should not always implead every possible third party. A defendant must decide if impleading third-party claims will be economical or whether it will actually involve unnecessary costs, complications, and delays in resolving the plaintiff's claims. A defendant must also determine if adding third-party claims to the suit will actually help or burden the defense of plaintiff's claims. Finally, the defendant must weigh the cost of litigating a motion for permission to implead, or potential motions for severance or separate trials, which might destroy any advantages that impleader would otherwise offer.

Strategic Point--Impleader Might Be Fruitless:

All attempts to implead third-parties made more than 10 days after service of the original answer require court permission [Fed R Civ P 14(a)(1)]. The decision whether to permit impleader is left to the court's discretion. In deciding whether to permit impleader, a court will consider the following [Irwin v. Mascott (ND Cal 2000) 94 F Supp2d 1052, 1056]:

- Prejudice to the original plaintiff.
- Complication of issues at trial.
- Likelihood of trial delay.
- Timeliness of the motion to implead.

Thus even if a defendant satisfies the prerequisites for impleader, a court may, in its discretion, refuse to permit the proposed impleader. Furthermore, even if the court allows the impleader, any party may move to strike it, or may move to limit or eliminate its advantages by seeking a separate trial or to sever the impleaded claim [Fed R Civ P 14(a)(4)].

12.02[3] Permissive Joinder Under Rule 20 Is Potential Alternative. Under the permissive joinder rule, persons may be joined in an action as plaintiffs if their claims are transactionally related and share any common question of law or fact. Similarly, a plaintiff may join as defendant any person against whom it asserts any claim in which the right to relief arises from the same transaction and in which there will arise any question of law or fact common to all defendants [see Fed R Civ P 20].

Cross Reference:

Ch. 4, Determining Parties to the Action, see §§ 4.41 -4.51.

12.02[4] Compulsory Joinder Under Rule 19 Is Potential Alternative. A defendant may require the joinder of a party under the compulsory joinder rule. This rule requires the joinder of "required" parties, that is, parties needed for just adjudication of the claims [see Fed R Civ P 19].

Cross Reference:

Ch. 4, Determining Parties to the Action, see §§ 4.41 -4.51.

12.02[5] Counterclaims or Crossclaims Are Alternatives for Those Already Parties. A defendant may assert counterclaims against the plaintiff and crossclaims against other defendants. When doing so, the defendant acts as a plaintiff and may join other persons who were not originally joined by the plaintiff, if the joinder satisfies the permissive or compulsory joinder rules [see Fed R Civ P 13, 19, 20]. Joinder in these circumstances is based on a transactional relationship between the claim against the new party and the counterclaim or crossclaim against the already-existing party [see Fed R Civ P 13].

Distinguish:

By contrast, impleader is available only to those not already parties [see Fed R Civ P 14(a)(1) and Fed R Civ P 14(a)(5)].

II. BRINGING THIRD-PARTY CLAIM

2-12 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 12.03

12.03 CHECKLIST: Bringing Third-Party Claim.

☐ Identify any persons or entities who might be liable to third-party plaintiff for all or part of claims asserted against third-party plaintiff [see Fed R Civ P 14(a)(1)].

☐ Determine, for each person or entity that might be liable to third-party plaintiff for claims asserted against third-party plaintiff, whether person or entity is a party or a nonparty.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 14(a)

Discussion:
See § 12.04[2]

☐ Determine, for each person or entity that might be liable to third-party plaintiff for claims asserted against third-party plaintiff, whether court will have subject matter jurisdiction over the third-party claim on one of the following bases:

○ Diversity jurisdiction.

○ Federal subject matter jurisdiction.

○ Supplemental jurisdiction.

Authority:

28 USC §§ 1331, 1332, 1367; Fed R Civ P 14, 82

Discussion:
See § 12.08[1]

☐ Determine, for each person or entity that might be liable to third-party plaintiff for claims asserted against third-party plaintiff, whether court will have personal jurisdiction over person or entity, including whether:

○ Third-party defendant is subject to personal jurisdiction under jurisdictional statutes of the state in which the court sits.

○ Third-party defendant is subject to personal jurisdiction under a federal jurisdictional statute.

○ Third-party defendant may be served within 100 miles of the court.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 4(k)

Discussion:
See § 12.08[2]

Form:
See § 12.24

☐ Analyze substantive basis for each potential impleader claim to determine whether it is derivative (i.e., whether person or entity is liable to third-party plaintiff if and when third-party plaintiff is found to be liable on claims asserted against it), such as claims for:

○ Contribution among tortfeasors.

○ Indemnity.

○ Subrogation.

○ Other derivative liability, including contractual liability.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 14(a)

Discussion:
See §§ 12.05[1], [2]

Form:
See § 12.25

☐ Analyze substantive basis for each potential impleader claim to determine whether impleader is not available for the claim because third-party defendant has direct liability to plaintiff or counterclaimant, but no liability to third-party plaintiff.

☐ Analyze substantive basis for each potential impleader claim to determine whether impleader is not available for the claim because claim against third-party defendant is only transactionally related to plaintiff's or counterclaimant's claims, and not dependant on third-party plaintiff's liability to plaintiff or counterclaimant.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 14(a)

Discussion:
See §§ 12.05[1], [2]

Form:
See § 12.25

Timing:
Request leave of the court, if required, prior to serving third-party defendant with impleader claim:

○ If served within 10 days of the filing of the original answer, leave of the court is not required.

○ If not served within 10 days of the filing of the original answer, file a motion requesting leave of court, and serve the motion on all parties.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 14(a)(1)

Discussion:
See §§ 12.06[2], [3]

Forms:
See §§ 12.23 -12.26

Standard Procedure Checklist:
Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.12

☐ Serve the third-party defendant with the third-party summons and complaint (and with the motion for leave to file and the order on the motion, if any) in the same manner as the original action.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 4(e), 14(a)(1)

Discussion:
See § 12.08[2][b]

Form:
See § 12.24

☐ If a motion for leave is filed, participate in the hearing as required by the court.

☐ Once the third-party defendant is impleaded, consider asserting any other claims against the third-party defendant, whether transactionally related or not, under the rule allowing joinder of permissive claims.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 14(a), 18

Discussion:
See § 12.05[5]

CHAPTER 12 Third-Party Actions
II. BRINGING THIRD-PARTY CLAIM

2-12 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 12.04

12.04 Defendant May Implead Third Party.

12.04[1] Defending Party May Implead. A "defending party" (a party against whom a claim is asserted) may bring in or "implead" one who is not a party to the action [Fed R Civ P 14(a)(1)]. Although a "defending party" is usually a defendant, a plaintiff is "defending party" when faced with a claim [Fed R Civ P 14(b)]. In addition, a third-party defendant who has been impleaded and is facing a third-party claim may, in turn, implead other nonparties [Fed R Civ P 14(a)(5); see, e.g., Interstate Power Co. v. Kansas City Power & Light Co. (8th Cir 1993) 992 F2d 804, 806 (sometimes called "fourth party" claims)].

12.04[2] Only Nonparties May Be Impleaded. Impleader applies only to "a nonparty [Fed R Civ P 14(a)(1); see, e.g., Russo v. Blue Ocean Shipping, No. C-02-05079 EDL (ND Cal Aug 5, 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 25002, at *4-*6]. Thus, one may not implead one who is already a party to the action [see, e.g., Henz v. Superior Trucking Co. (MD Pa 1982) 96 FRD 219, 220], but must use other devices, such as counterclaiming against an opposing party or crossclaiming against coparties [Fed R Civ P 13(a), (b), (g)]. However, claims for contribution or indemnity against existing parties are inchoate, and therefore not proper subjects of counterclaims or crossclaims. Some courts require severance of the contribution or indemnity claims into separate actions. Then the potential contributors or indemnitors are no longer parties to the action on the main claims; they may be impleaded and, once impleaded, all of the cases may be consolidated again [see, e.g., Judd v. General Motors Corp. (MD Pa 1974) 65 FRD 612, 613-614]. Other courts permit direct impleader of contribution or indemnity claims, even against already-existing parties, on the grounds that counterclaims or crossclaims are not available [see, e.g., National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Continental Ill. Corp. (ND Ill 1987) 658 F Supp 781, 794].

12.04[3] Third-Party Claim May Be Brought Against Defendant Who Settled. A non-settling defendant may bring a third-party claim against a settling defendant. Once a defendant settles and the claim against that defendant is dismissed, that defendant becomes a nonparty who is subject to impleader [Bank of the West v. Estate of Leo (D Ariz 2005) 231 FRD 386, 389 (citing Moore's)].

CHAPTER 12 Third-Party Actions
II. BRINGING THIRD-PARTY CLAIM

2-12 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 12.05

12.05 Third-Party Claim Must Be Derivative.

12.05[1] Claim Is Derivative When Liability Depends on Outcome of Main Case. A defending party may implead a party who "is or may be liable to it for all or part of the claim against it" [Fed R Civ P 14(a)(1)]. In other words, a defendant may assert a third-party claim under Fed R Civ P 14 only when the third party's liability is in some way dependent on the outcome of the main claim [United States v. One 1977 Mercedes Benz (9th Cir 1983) 708 F2d 444, 452 ; FMC Corp. v. Vendo Co. (ED Cal 2002) 196 F Supp2d 1023, 1037]:

- Third party must be liable to impleading party. For impleader, the third-party defendant must have potential liability to the impleading party. Direct liability to the plaintiff will not suffice [see, e.g., Banks v. City of Emeryville (ND Cal 1985) 109 FRD 535, 540].

- Third party's liability must relate to plaintiff's claim. For impleader, the third party must be liable to the impleading party for losses that the impleading party will nor may suffer as a result of the plaintiff's original claim. An unrelated claim will not support impleader. An impleaded claim must be derivatively based on the original plaintiff's [Bank of the West v. Estate of Leo (D Ariz 2005) 231 FRD 386, 389 ; Johnson v. Rank (ND Cal 1986) 110 FRD 99, 101].

- "Transactionally-related" claims not necessarily derivative. It is not enough that the impleaded claim arise from the same set of facts as the plaintiffs claim. Rule 14 does not permit impleader when the alleged third-party claim merely arises from the same transaction or set of facts as the plaintiff's original claim [Irwin v. Mascott (ND Cal 2000) 94 F Supp2d 1052, 1056 ; Johnson v. Rank (ND Cal 1986) 110 FRD 99, 101]. A claim that arises from the same set of facts is not the same as a claim in which the third party is or might be liable because the impleading party is or might be liable to the plaintiff, the true standard for impleader.

Example:
The owner of a forfeited automobile filed a third-party claim against various law enforcement personnel and organizations alleging violations of her constitutional rights in connection with the seizure of the automobile. The claims were related to, but not derivative of the original forfeiture claim [United States v. One 1977 Mercedes Benz (9th Cir 1983) 708 F2d 444, 452].

12.05[2] Contribution and Indemnity Are Typical Derivative Claims. Although Fed R Civ P 14 is not limited to any particular type of claim, courts regularly authorize impleader for the following types of claims:

- Indemnity. A contractual agreement to reimburse another for loss will present a claim for derivative liability by an indemnitee against an indemnitor, provided that the original claim is within the terms of the indemnity contract [see, e.g., Brogle v. South Carolina Elec. & Gas Co. (4th Cir 1975) 509 F2d 1216, 1217], even when the indemnity claim is not viable under controlling state law until paid. The point of Rule 14 is to permit derivative claims such as indemnity to be dealt with in the same action as the underlying original claim [see Jeub v. B/G Foods, Inc. (D Minn 1942) 2 FRD 238, 240].

- Subrogation. A insurer who will be subrogated to its insured may pursue subrogation claims by means of Rule 14 impleader [see, e.g., National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. FDIC (D Kan 1995) 887 F Supp 262, 264].

- Warranty. The manufacturer of an allegedly defective product may bring a claim of breach of express and implied warranties against the supplier of an allegedly defective ingredient of the product [see Beights v. W.R. Grace & Co. (WD Okla 1974) 62 FRD 546, 547].

- Contribution among joint tortfeasors may be sought by Rule 14 impleader, either under common law [see, e.g., Andrulonis v. United States (2d Cir 1994) 26 F3d 1224, 1233] or under a statute providing for comparative fault [see, e.g., Tietz v. Blackner (D Utah 1994) 157 FRD 510, 512-514].

Prerequisite:

The basis for the derivative claim against the impleaded third party must exist in controlling state or federal law, apart from Rule 14. Rule 14 is a mere procedural device, and will not create a basis for derivative liability when it does not exist [see, e.g., Kim v. Fujikawa (9th Cir 1989) 871 F2d 1427, 1434].

12.05[3] Third-Party Defendant Need Not Be Liable to Original Plaintiff. Although an impleaded third party must have potential liability to the impleading party, Fed R Civ P 14 does not require that the third-party defendant be directly liable to the original plaintiff [see Fed R Civ P 14(a); Irwin v. Mascott (ND Cal 2000) 94 F Supp2d 1052, 1056-1057 ; Banks v. City of Emeryville (ND Cal 1985) 109 FRD 535, 540].

12.05[4] Third-Party Defendant Need Not Be Automatically Liable If Defendant Loses Underlying Suit. Impleader is proper even if the third party will not be automatically liable if the impleading party loses on the underlying original claim. Impleader is permitted whenever there is some possibility that the third party may be liable for some of all of the impleading party's liability on the underlying original claim [FDIC v. Loube (ND Cal 1991) 134 FRD 270, 272 , citing Banks v. City of Emeryville (ND Cal 1985) 109 FRD 535, 540].

12.05[5] Once Impleader Proper, Impleading Party May Assert Other Claims Against Impleaded Third Party. Once a defending party properly impleads a third party, the defending party may assert any additional claims it has against the third-party defendant, regardless of whether they would support impleader, provided that the claims are properly joined under the permissive claim-joinder rule [see Fed R Civ P 18 (permissive joinder of claims and remedies)].

CHAPTER 12 Third-Party Actions
II. BRINGING THIRD-PARTY CLAIM

2-12 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 12.06

12.06 Impleader Is Always Discretionary.

12.06[1] No Absolute Right to Implead Claim. Formal leave of court normally is required to implead a third party. However, a party may implead a third party without formal leave of court if it does so within 10 days of serving the original answer to a claim [Fed R Civ P 14(a)(1)]. Even if formal leave of court is not required, however, the court always has the power to decide whether to permit impleader [see Fed R Civ P 14, Committee Note of 1963]. If the court does not do so sua sponte, any party may ask the court to rule on whether it will permit impleader by moving to strike the third-party claim, or by moving to have the claim severed or made the subject of a separate trial [Fed R Civ P 14(a)(4)].

12.06[2] Impleader Without Leave of Court Permitted Within 10 Days of Answer to Original Claim. The impleading party need not obtain leave to serve a third-party summons and complaint if he or she acts within "10 days after serving its original answer" [Fed R Civ P 14(a)].

12.06[3] Leave of Court Required for Impleader Attempted More Than 10 Days After Answer Served. A defending party may not implead a third party without formal leave of court if the attempt to implead is made more than 10 days after the service of the original answer. Leave of court must be obtained by means of a motion made on notice to all parties to the action [Fed R Civ P 5(a)(1)(D) and Fed R Civ P 14(a)(1)]. The decision to allow a third-party defendant to be impleaded under Fed R Civ P 14 is entrusted to the trial court's sound discretion [Southwest Adm'rs, Inc. v. Rozay's Transfer (9th Cir 1986) 791 F2d 769, 777 ; United States v. One 1977 Mercedes Benz (9th Cir 1983) 708 F2d 444, 452].

Discussion of motion procedure, see § 12.07. Forms, see §§ 12.23 -12.26.

Additional form, see 4 Bender's Federal Practice Forms, Form 14:1 (Matthew Bender).

12.06[4] Factors Used to Determine Appropriateness of Impleader.

12.06[4][a] Rule 14(a) Construed in Favor of Impleader When Possible. Fed R Civ P 14(a) was designed to permit the liberal joinder of parties so that judicial energy could be conserved and consistency of results guaranteed [FMC Corp. v. Vendo Co. (ED Cal 2002) 196 F Supp2d 1023, 1038]. The rule is construed in favor of allowing impleader [FDIC v. Loube (ND Cal 1991) 134 FRD 270, 272].

12.06[4][b] Efficiency and Lack of Prejudice to Plaintiff Favor Allowing Impleader. Trying impleaded, derivative claims in the same suit as the original claim normally would result in an efficiency that will favor impleader. This efficiency will be offset only if a joint trial would prejudice the plaintiff, unduly complicate the trial, or foster an obviously unmeritorious claim [FMC Corp. v. Vendo Co. (ED Cal 2002) 196 F Supp2d 1023, 1038]. A court must balance the desire to avoid duplicative actions and the desire to obtain consistent results against any prejudice that the plaintiff might suffer by complicating the case [Irwin v. Mascott (ND Cal 2000) 94 F Supp2d 1052, 1056].

12.06[4][c] Impleader Favored If Impleading Party Has Same Ability to Defend As in Separate Action. Joint trial of the original and impleaded, derivative claims is favored if the moving party would not suffer any prejudice in its ability to defend against the original claim in the joint trial that it would not also suffer as a defendant in a separate action [FMC Corp. v. Vendo Co. (ED Cal 2002) 196 F Supp2d 1023, 1038].

12.06[4][d] Joint Trial Favored When Claims Sufficiently Interrelated. Joinder is favored when the original claims and the derivative, third-party claims are interrelated such that the interests of justice and efficiency favor consolidation into a single action [see FMC Corp. v. Vendo Co. (ED Cal 2002) 196 F Supp2d 1023, 1039].

Example--Impleader Granted:

In a suit for contribution among private parties based the clean up of contaminated groundwater under CERCLA [see 42 USC § 9613(f)], impleader was granted because "requiring a duplicitous separate lawsuit to address inextricably related claims over contiguous CERCLA sites, would unnecessarily multiply the litigation and waste judicial and party resources" [FMC Corp. v. Vendo Co. (ED Cal 2002) 196 F Supp2d 1023, 1039].

12.06[4][e] Impleader Disfavored If It Might Unduly Complicate Trial or Foster Unmeritorious Claim. Impleader will not be favored when it would prejudice the plaintiff, unduly complicate the trial, or would foster an obviously unmeritorious claim [FMC Corp. v. Vendo Co. (ED Cal 2002) 196 F Supp2d 1023, 1038]. Impleader might unduly complicate the trial or prejudice the plaintiff if impleader could [see Irwin v. Mascott (ND Cal 2000) 94 F Supp2d 1052, 1056]:

- Delay the trial.
- Unduly lengthen the trial.
- Increase the need for discovery on unrelated matters.
- Confuse, rather than elucidate, the issues presented by the original claims.
- Delay, rather than contribute to, possibility of early settlement or other resolution of case.

Example--Impleader Denied:

In a case against a debt-collection agency, the defendant moved for permission to serve a third-party complaint on its former attorneys for legal malpractice arising from legal advice allegedly given with respect to its debt-collection tactics. The debt-collection statutes were strict liability statutes, and reliance on legal advice was no defense to the original claims. The court denied the motion. Because the third-party malpractice claim was not closely related to plaintiffs' debt-collection claims, impleader of the malpractice claims would bring in all types of irrelevant factual and legal issues into the action. The court held that to permit defendants to implead third-party defendants would prejudice plaintiffs and not save the court time, because the malpractice controversy would not help resolve plaintiffs' claims [Irwin v. Mascott (ND Cal 2000) 94 F Supp2d 1052, 1056-1060].

CHAPTER 12 Third-Party Actions
II. BRINGING THIRD-PARTY CLAIM

2-12 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 12.07

12.07 Motion for Leave to File Third-Party Complaint.

12.07[1] Motion Must Be Served on All Parties. When a defending party wants to implead a third party more than 10 days after service of its original answer, the impleading party must seek leave of court to do so by means of a formal, noticed motion. [see Fed R Civ P 5(a)(1)(D), 14(a)(1)].

Distinguish--Proposed Third Party Need Not Be Served With Motion.

Although Rule 14(a) effectively requires notice to all parties [see Fed R Civ P 5(a)(1)(D), 14(a)(1)], the proposed third-party defendant is not a party at the time of the motion and need not be served. If the motion is granted and the third party is served with the third-party summons and complaint, the third party may, at that time, move to strike the third-party claim or move to have the court vacate its order permitting impleader.

Strategic Point--Attach Proposed Third-Party Complaint:

Even if local rules are silent on the subject, a party moving for leave to implead a third party should always attach a copy of the proposed third-party complaint to the motion itself or to a supporting affidavit or declaration [see Liberty Folder v. Curtiss Anthony Corp. (SD Ohio 1981) 90 FRD 80, 84 (attaching proposed third-party summons and complaint is "better practice")]. The court will be unable to evaluate the proposed impleader without a copy of the proposed third-party complaint.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of motion to strike third-party claim, see § 12.13.

12.07[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal--Motion Papers. In the Central District of California, no motion will be considered by the Court unless it meets the requirements of CD Cal Civ LR 7-4-7-8 [CD Cal Civ LR 7-4]. On the first page of the notice of motion and every other document filed in connection with any motion, there must be included, under the title of the document, the date and time of the motion hearing, and the name of the judicial officer before whom the motion has been noticed. The notice of motion must contain a concise statement of the relief or Court action

the movant seeks [CD Cal Civ LR 7-4].

12.07[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal--Motion Papers. In the Eastern District of California, the moving party must file a notice of motion, motion, accompanying briefs, affidavits if appropriate, and copies of all documentary evidence that the moving party intends to submit in support of the motion [ED Cal Civ LR 230(b); see ED Cal Gen LR 101 ("briefs" include memoranda, points and authorities, and other written arguments, or compilations of authorities)].

12.07[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal--Motion Papers. In the Northern District of California, a motion is limited to a single document not exceeding 25 pages in length, and must contain a notice of the motion including date and time of hearing, a concise statement of the relief sought, and the points and authorities in support of the motion. Each motion also must be accompanied by a proposed order [ND Cal Civ LR 7-2(c)].

12.07[5] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal--Motion Papers. In the Southern District of California, each motion must be accompanied by a separate motion and notice of motion and another separate document captioned "Memorandum of Points and Authorities in support of [the motion]." A movant's failure to file any papers required under the local rules may be deemed as a waiver of the motion, or other request for ruling by the court [SD Cal Civ LR 7.1(f.2.b)].

Unit 3 Pleading Stage
CHAPTER 12 Third-Party Actions
II. BRINGING THIRD-PARTY CLAIM

2-12 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 12.08

12.08 Prerequisites to Bringing Third-Party Complaint.

12.08[1] Subject Matter Jurisdiction Requirements Must Be Met.

12.08[1][a] Rule 14 Does Not Convey Jurisdiction. Rule 14 prescribes the procedural circumstances in which certain claims may be asserted [see Fed R Civ P 14], but does not extend the jurisdiction of the federal courts [Fed R Civ P 82 (rules do not extend jurisdiction)]. Therefore, any claim brought under this rule must satisfy federal subject matter jurisdiction requirements [see Caterpillar, Inc. v. Lewis (1996) 519 US 61, 67 n1, 117 S Ct 467, 136 L Ed2d 437].

Consider--Admiralty and Maritime Jurisdiction:

In admiralty and maritime claims, federal jurisdiction is established on those grounds [see Fed R Civ P 9(h)]. Although third-party claims that would in an independent suit be admiralty and maritime claims obviously fulfill the subject matter jurisdictional requirements, third-party claims in admiralty and maritime suits are not necessarily admiralty or maritime claims [see, e.g., Galt G/S v. Hapag-Lloyd AG (9th Cir 1995) 60 F3d 1370, 1374-1375 (although main claim sounded in admiralty, third-party claim was ordinary civil claim that needed independent jurisdictional basis)].

12.08[1][b] Federal Question Jurisdiction. If a third-party claim arises under a federal statute or the United States Constitution, a federal district court will have "federal question" jurisdiction over the third-party claim [see 28 USC § 1331]. However, many claims for indemnity, warranty, subrogation, or contribution have no basis in a federal statute or the Constitution.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of federal question jurisdiction, see Ch. 2, Determining Forum (Jurisdiction and Venue), see §§ 2.03 -2.09.

12.08[1][c] Diversity Jurisdiction. Most frequently, third-party claims are based on state law or common law. State law or common law claims may be asserted in federal court on the basis of "diversity of citizenship" jurisdiction. Essentially, "diversity" jurisdiction exists if the all third-party plaintiffs and all third-party defendants are citizens of different states and the amount in controversy on the third-party claim exceeds $75,000, exclusive of interest and costs [see 28 USC § 1332].

Consider:

If federal jurisdiction is acquired on the ground of complete diversity of citizenship, it is unaffected by the subsequent joinder under Fed R Civ P 14 of a party whose presence is not essential to a decision of the controversy between the original parties [Caterpillar, Inc. v. Lewis (1996) 519 US 61, 67 n1, 117 S Ct 467, 136 L Ed2d 437].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of diversity jurisdiction, see Ch. 2, Determining Forum (Jurisdiction and Venue), see §§ 2.10 -2.25.

12.08[1][d] Supplemental Jurisdiction Generally Supports Third-Party Claims Asserted by Defendants. The general rule is that court may exercise supplemental jurisdiction over a third-party claim if the requirements of the supplemental jurisdiction statute are met. A district court has supplemental jurisdiction of a third-party claim if that claim is so related to the main claim that it forms part of the same "case or controversy" [see 28 USC § 1367(a); see US Const, art III]. This is, in fact, the most common jurisdictional basis over third-party claims when asserted by defendants. Because impleader must involve a claims that is derivative of the main claim, the third-party claim ordinarily will be transactionally related to the main claim to an extent sufficient to sustain supplemental jurisdiction [see, e.g., FMC Corp. v. Vendo Co. (ED Cal 2002) 196 F Supp2d 1023, 1039].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of supplemental jurisdiction, see Ch. 2, Determining Forum (Jurisdiction and Venue), see §§ 2.26 -2.30.

12.08[1][e] Supplemental Jurisdiction Will Not Support Third-Party Claim Asserted by Plaintiff in Diversity Case. There is a major exception to the applicability of supplemental jurisdiction to third-party claims, however. A plaintiff faced with a claim may implead a third party under Fed R Civ P 14(b). However, if the court's subject matter jurisdiction over the plaintiff's original claim is based solely on diversity jurisdiction [see 28 USC § 1332], the court will not have supplemental jurisdiction over a third-party claim asserted by the plaintiff [28 USC § 1367(b)].

12.08[1][f] District Court Has Discretion to Decline Supplemental Jurisdiction. Even when supplemental jurisdiction is available to sustain a third-party claim, a district court may decline to exercise supplemental jurisdiction over a claim in the following circumstances [28 USC § 1367(c)]:

- The claim raises a novel or complex issue of state law;
- The claim substantially predominates over the claim or claims over which the district court has original jurisdiction;
- The district court has dismissed all claims over which it has original jurisdiction; or
- In exceptional circumstances, there are other compelling reasons for declining jurisdiction.

12.08[2] Personal Jurisdiction Over Third-Party Defendant Required.

12.08[2][a] Third Party Must Have Sufficient Contacts With Forum for Court to Exercise Personal Jurisdiction. The impleader procedure attempts to bring a new party, the third-party defendant, into the case. This is possible only if the third-party defendant has sufficient contacts with the forum in which the action is pending that it is constitutionally permissible for the court to exercise general or specific personal jurisdiction over the third-party defendant.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of personal jurisdiction requirements, see Ch. 2, Determining Forum (Jurisdiction and Venue), see §§ 2.31 -2.41.

12.08[2][b] Third Party Must Be Served With Summons. Even if, a third-party defendant had sufficient contacts with the forum to permit the court to exercise personal jurisdiction, the court will not be able to do so unless the impleading third-party plaintiff can serve the third-party defendant with a summons in a manner authorized by Fed R Civ P 4 [see Fed R Civ P 4 (service of summons)].

Cross Reference:

Form, see § 12.24. Requirements for service of summons, see Ch. 7, Service of Summons.

12.08[2][c] Lack of Personal Jurisdiction May Be Waived. Lack of personal jurisdiction and improper service of process are waivable defenses (in contrast to subject matter jurisdiction, which cannot be waived). Thus, a third-party defendant may submit to personal jurisdiction voluntarily or waive jurisdiction by failing to assert the defense in a timely and appropriate fashion [see Fed R Civ P 12(h)(1)].

Cross Reference:

Raising lack of personal jurisdiction under Rule 12(h), see Ch. 8, Answers and Responsive Motions Under Rule 12, see § 8.18.

12.08[3] Independent Venue Not Required. The third-party plaintiff need not establish separate venue for the impleader claim. The venue statutes apply only to the original claim by the plaintiff against the defendant [see 28 USC § 1391 et seq.].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of no independent requirement for venue, see 3 Moore's Federal Practice, § 14.42 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

12.08[4] Claim Must Be Brought Within Applicable Limitations Period. The applicable limitations period is a matter of substantive, rather than procedural, law. Therefore, when a third-party claim arises under state law, a federal court will apply the statute of limitations applicable in state court. If the third-party claim arises under federal law, the court must determine what statute of limitations applies under federal law [see Guaranty Trust Co. v. York (1945) 326 US 99, 108, 65 S Ct 1464, 89 L Ed 2079].

2-12 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 12.09

12.09 Third-Party Claims by or Against United States: Special Problems.

12.09[1] United States May Implead Third Party Like Other Litigants. The federal rules generally apply to civil actions by or against the United States. When the United States has been made a defending party properly, it may implead a third-party defendant under the same circumstances as could any other litigant [see Fed R Civ P 14(a)].

12.09[2] Sovereign Immunity and Special Administrative Procedures Apply to Attempts to Implead United States. A party's ability to join the United States under the impleader rule is limited by sovereign immunity principles. The Federal Tort Claims Act permits a private tortfeasor defendant to implead the United States as a joint tortfeasor [see United States v. Yellow Cab Co. (1951) 340 US 543, 547-548, 71 S Ct 399, 95 L Ed 523 ; see also 28 USC § 2671 et seq. (Tort Claims Act)]. However, the administrative prerequisites of that Act, including the filing of an administrative claim before filing suit, apply to attempts to implead the United States as a third-party defendant under Fed R Civ P 14. Because the timely filing of an administrative claim is a jurisdictional prerequisite, a failure to file will deprive the district court of an independent basis of jurisdiction over the third-party claim against the United States [see 28 USC § 2675(a)].

12.09[3] Third-Party Claim Against United States Is Valid Only If Supported by Substantive Law. As with any other litigant, Fed R Civ P 14 does not provide any substantive basis for asserting a third-party claim against the United States. A valid claim under substantive law must be established before a defending party may implead the United States as a third-party defendant [see, e.g., Tinoco v. Belshe (ND Cal 1995) 916 F Supp 974, 984 (third-party claim against United States dismissed on ripeness and standing grounds)].

CHAPTER 12 Third-Party Actions
II. BRINGING THIRD-PARTY CLAIM

2-12 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 12.10

12.10 Third-Party Claims in Admiralty and Maritime Suits: Special Problems.

12.10[1] In Admiralty Suits, Defendants and Persons With Interests in Seized Property May Implead Third Parties. In any case in which the underlying claim asserted by plaintiff is an admiralty or maritime claim within the meaning of Rule 9(h) [see Fed R Civ P 9(h)], two classes of persons have the right to implead third parties. First, a defendant facing an in personam judgment to the plaintiff in the case may implead third parties. Second, if the case seeks an in rem judgment against arrested, attached, or libeled property, any person who has asserted a right in the property by complying with Supplemental Rule C [see Fed R Civ P Supp R C(6)(a)(i)] may implead third parties [Fed R Civ P 14(c)(1)].

12.10[2] In Admiralty Suits, Impleader Reaches Broader Range of Claims Than in Ordinary Civil Actions. In ordinary civil suits, a defending party may implead a third-party only if the third party is or may be liable to the defendant who is doing the impleading [see Fed R Civ P 14(a)(1)]. Impleader is available in admiralty suits. In an admiralty suit a defendant or a party claiming an interest in seized property may implead a third party with respect to any claim seeking "remedy over, contribution, or otherwise on account of the same transaction, occurrence, or series of transactions or occurrences" [Fed R Civ P 14(c)(1)]. Most importantly, in contrast to ordinary civil suits, a defendant or party claiming an interest in seized property may implead a third party on the basis that the third party is directly liable to the plaintiff (as well as or in place of potential liability to the impleading party) on a transactionally related claim. Any third party who "may be wholly or partly liable either to the plaintiff or to the third-party plaintiff" (i.e., impleading party) may be impleaded [Fed R Civ P 14(c)(1)].

Distinguish--Admiralty Third-Party Claim Asserted in Civil Action:

The more liberal admiralty impleader rules apply only in suits in which the plaintiff's original claim is an admiralty or maritime claim [Fed R Civ P 14(c)(1)]. If the plaintiff's original claim is an ordinary civil claim, the fact that the proposed third-party claim is an admiralty or maritime claim does not mean that the broader admiralty impleader rules of Rule 14(c) apply. A third-party claim that sounds in admiralty that is asserted in an ordinary civil suit must, instead, satisfy the ordinary civil impleader standards as set out in Rule 14(a). Indeed, the ordinary civil impleader rule anticipates possible admiralty or maritime third-party claims in otherwise ordinary civil actions by noting: "If it is within the admiralty or maritime jurisdiction, a third-party complaint may be in rem. In that event, a reference in this rule to the 'summons' includes the warrant of arrest, and a reference to the defendant or third-party plaintiff includes, when appropriate, a person who asserts a right under Supplemental Rule C(6)(a)(i) in the property arrested" [Fed R Civ P 14(a)(6)].

Distinguish--Civil Third-Party Claim Asserted in Admiralty Action:

In an admiralty case, a third-party claim need not necessarily sound in admiralty and, in fact, many do not. Under the terms of Rule 14(c), this should not make any difference. Rule 14(c) is worded such that as long as the plaintiff's original claim sounds in admiralty, all third-party claims should benefit from the liberal impleader standards established by Rule 14(c) [see Fed R Civ P 14(c)(1) ("If a plaintiff asserts an admiralty or maritime claim ...")]. Note, however, that the Ninth Circuit has stated in dicta that a civil third-party claim must always be judged under the regular Rule 14(a) standards rather than the admiralty standards, even if the third-party claim is asserted in an admiralty case [Galt G/S v. Hapag-Lloyd AG (9th Cir 1995) 60 F3d 1370, 1372, 1375].

12.10[3] In Admiralty Cases, Impleading Party May "Demand" Judgment Against Third-Party Defendant in Favor of Original Plaintiff. In an admiralty case, the party impleading the third-party "may also demand judgment against the third-party defendant in favor of the [original] plaintiff [Fed R Civ P 14(c)]. This means that the impleading party can force the third-party defendant to defend the claim of the plaintiff as well as the claim of the impleading party [see Fed R Civ P 14(c)]. This is in sharp contrast to impleader in civil actions, in which an impleading party may not tender the third-party defendant with the defense of a claim by the principal plaintiff [see Galt G/S v. Hapag-Lloyd AG (9th Cir 1995) 60 F3d 1370, 1374 n2].

In admiralty cases, the third-party defendant must respond to the plaintiff's complaint in the same manner as if the third-party defendant were one of the original defendants. The third-party's response to the complaint must satisfy Rule 12, just as would the response of an original defendant [Fed R Civ P 14(c)(2) see Fed R Civ P 12].

After the third-party defendant has responded to the complaint, the action then proceeds as if the plaintiff as well as the impleading party had commenced it against the third-party defendant [Fed R Civ P 14(c)(2)]. This procedure avoids a separate suit for contribution and repetitious pleadings and testimony on the part of the plaintiff and the third-party plaintiff. The original plaintiff is therefore not required to amend its complaint to assert specific claims against the third-party defendants [Royal Ins. Co. of Am. v. Southwest Marine (9th Cir 1999) 194 F3d 1009, 1019].

12.10[4] "Demand" Requirement Easily Satisfied. It is unclear what language is necessary for the third-party plaintiff to "demand" judgment against the third-party defendant in favor of the plaintiff [Royal Ins. Co. of Am. v. Southwest Marine (9th Cir 1999) 194 F3d 1009, 1017 , citing 29 Moore's Federal Practice, § 704.06 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)]. Although some circuits have required formal pleading in order to invoke direct liability to the original plaintiff, the Ninth Circuit does not interpret the "demand" language of Rule 14(c) rigidly. In the Ninth Circuit, direct liability may be established by a third-party complaint praying that the third-party defendant "make its defenses and answer directly to the claims of the Plaintiff" [Royal Ins. Co. of Am. v. Southwest Marine (9th Cir 1999) 194 F3d 1009, 1018 ; Campbell Indus., Inc. v. Offshore Logistics Int'l (9th Cir 1987) 816 F2d 1401, 1406].

12.11 CHECKLIST: Responding to Impleader.

☐ Move to strike third-party claims if:

- ○ Impleading party failed to obtain leave of court, if required.
- ○ Claim asserted in third-party complaint is not derivative claim suitable for impleader.
- ○ Third-party claim in civil action attempts to assert liability to original plaintiff rather than to impleading party.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 14(a)

Discussion:
See § 12.13

☐ Move to dismiss third-party complaint within 21 days of service if:

- ○ Court lacks subject matter jurisdiction of third-party claim.
- ○ Court lacks personal jurisdiction over third-party defendant.

- ○ Third-party claim was improperly served on third-party defendant.
- ○ Third-party complaint fails to state claim on which relief may be granted.

☐ Answer complaint within 20 days of service, asserting all available defenses to the claim not raised in motion to dismiss, including:

- ○ Lack of subject matter jurisdiction.
- ○ Lack of personal jurisdiction.
- ○ Insufficiency of process or service.
- ○ Failure to state a claim on which relief may be granted.
- ○ Statute of limitations.

☐ Assert against the original plaintiff any defenses that the third-party plaintiff has to the plaintiff's claims.

☐ File any compulsory counterclaims against the third-party plaintiff.

☐ If desired, file any permissive counterclaims against the third-party plaintiff, and any crossclaims against other parties.

☐ If a counterclaim or crossclaim is filed against any party, consider filing any additional claims, whether or not transactionally related, against that party under the liberal claim-joinder rule.

☐ If desired, file any transactionally related claims against the original plaintiff, as allowed by the impleader rule.

☐ Consider impleading any additional parties that may be liable for all or part of the claim.

☐ Consider moving for separate trial of the impleader claim to avoid prejudice or for convenience.

III. RESPONDING TO IMPLEADER

2-12 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 12.12

12.12 Options and Strategies for Responding to Impleader.

All of the issues that weigh in a defending party's decision to implead a third party also weigh in a third-party defendant's determination to respond to the third-party claim on the merits or resist the impleader itself. The third-party defendant must consider:

- Whether it will be economic or efficient to have all issues resolved in a single action, or whether a separate action will be less complicated, quicker, and more likely to produce a favorable result.

- Whether a more favorable forum may is available for a separate action.

- Whether the court has subject matter jurisdiction over the impleaded third-party claim or whether any ruling of the court will be a nullity because the court lacks jurisdiction.

- The availability of legal reasons to oppose impleader, such as lack of court leave for impleader.

- The availability of factual reasons to oppose impleader, such as undue delay, prejudice to parties, complication or delay of trial.

In every case, a third-party defendant must weigh the benefits of sharing the costs and efforts for discovery and presenting evidence at trial against the possibility that a separate trial in another forum may produce a more favorable result.

12.13 Opposing Propriety of Impleader Itself.

12.13[1] Any Party May Move to Strike Third-Party Claim. A third-party defendant or any other party may move to strike the third-party claim [see Fed R Civ P 14(a)(4)]. This is the proper strategy if the third-party complaint was filed and served without the required leave of court. Although Rule 14(a) implies that a third-party defendant challenging impleader should file a motion to strike, one court has suggested that the proper motion is instead a motion asking the court to vacate its order granting leave to implead [City of Orange Beach v. Scottsdale Ins. Co. (SD Ala 1996) 166 FRD 506, 509].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of motion to strike or vacate improper impleader, see 3 Moore's Federal Practice, § 14.24 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

12.13[2] Any Party May Move for Separate Trial or Move to Sever Claims. Even if there are no grounds to completely "strike" the third-party claim, any party may move to have the third-party claim treated like a separate proceeding by moving for separate trial or severance of the third-party claim [Fed R Civ P 14(a)(4)]. The grounds for granting a severance of a third-party claim should not differ from the grounds that would justify the severance of any claim [see Fed R Civ P 21 ("The court may also sever any claim against a party.")]. Similarly, the grounds for granting a separate trial should not differ from the grounds that would justify a separate trial for any claim or issue [see Fed R Civ P 42(b) (court may grant separate trials for "convenience, to avoid prejudice, or to expedite and economize," to the extent permitted by jury trial rights guaranteed by US Const, amend VII)].

Example--Denial of Motion for Severance:

A severance motion based on Rule 14(a) was denied in a case in which the essential facts of the various claims were so logically connected that considerations of judicial economy and fairness dictated that all the issues be resolved in one lawsuit [see FMC Corp. v. Vendo Co. (ED Cal 2002) 196 F Supp2d 1023, 1039].

III. RESPONDING TO IMPLEADER

2-12 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 12.14

12.14 Responding to Particulars of Third-Party Claim.

12.14[1] Third-Party Defendant May Assert Rule 12 Defenses by Answer or Motion to Dismiss. The party served with the summons and third-party complaint (i.e., the third-party defendant) must assert defenses to the third-party claim in the manner provided in Fed R Civ P 12 [Fed R Civ P 14(a)(2)(A)]. This means that the third-party defendant must assert its defenses in a responsive pleading, such as an answer [see Fed R Civ P 12(b); see also Fed R Civ P 7 (pleadings allowed)]. In the alternative, or in addition, the third-party defendant may assert the following defenses by means of a motion to dismiss [Fed R Civ P 12(b)]:

- Lack of subject matter jurisdiction.
- Lack of personal jurisdiction.
- Improper venue.
- Insufficiency of process.
- Insufficiency of service of process.
- Failure to state a claim on which relief can be granted.
- Failure to join a party under Fed R Civ P 19.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of asserting defenses in responsive pleading, see Ch. 8, Answers and Responsive Motions Under Rule 12.

12.14[2] Defenses May Be Waived If Not Raised by Timely Answer or Motion. Some defenses are so important that they may be raised at any time. The defense of failure to state a valid claim or defense, or the failure to join an indispensable party under Rule 19 may even be raised for the first time at trial [Fed R Civ P 12(h)(2)]. The defense of lack of subject matter jurisdiction is never waived, and may be raised at any time [see Fed R Civ P 12(h)(3)]. All other defenses, may be waived unless timely raised in an answer or motion to dismiss. Rule 12(h) specifically lists the following defenses as waived if they are not included in the answer, an amendment to the answer, or a timely motion to dismiss [Fed R Civ P 12(h)(1)]:

- Lack of personal jurisdiction.
- Improper venue.
- Insufficiency of process.
- Insufficiency of service of process.

In addition, almost all affirmative defenses, including the statute of limitations, may be waived unless affirmatively stated in a responsive pleading [see Fed R Civ P 8(c)].

Cross References:

Forms, see §§ 12.27, 12.28.

Discussion of statute of limitations in third-party practice, see 3 Moore's Federal Practice, § 14.29 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

12.14[3] Third-Party Defendant May Assert Defenses of Third-Party Plaintiff Against Plaintiff. The third-party defendant may assert more than just its defenses against the impleading party (the "third-party plaintiff"). The third-party defendant may assert against the plaintiff any defenses that the impleading party has to the plaintiff's original claim [Fed R Civ P 14(a)(2)(C)]. In other words, the third party may claim not only that it is not liable to the impleading party, but that the impleading party is not liable to the original plaintiff. This provision protects the impleaded third-party defendant when the impleading party fails or neglects to assert a proper defense to the plaintiff's action. Although the plaintiff and the third-party defendant are not technically opposing parties, the impleader rule recognizes the derivative nature of the third-party defendant's potential liability and permits it essentially to stand in the defendant's shoes and assert its defenses [see Fed R Civ P 14(a), Committee Note of 1946].

12.14[4] Answer or Motion Must Be Served Within 21 Days After Service of Summons and Complaint. Generally, an answer or a Rule 12 motion to dismiss must be served within 21 days after the third-party defendant is served with the summons and complaint [see Fed R Civ P 12(a)(1)(A)(i) (service of answer)]. If service of summons was waived under Fed R Civ P 4(d), that period is extended to 60 days [Fed R Civ P 12(a)(1)(A)(ii)]. The United States, its agencies and departments, and its officers and employees also have a 60-day response period [Fed R Civ P 12(a)(2), (3)].

Warning--Default for Failure to Respond:

Failure to answer or otherwise respond under Rule 12 may subject the third-party defendant to a default judgment [see Fed R Civ P 55(a)].

12.15 Counterclaims Against Third-Party Plaintiff and Crossclaims Against Other Parties.

12.15[1] Third-Party Defendant Must Assert Compulsory Counterclaims and May Assert Permissive Counterclaims Against Impleading Party. A third-party defendant is treated as any other defendant under Rule 13 [see Fed R Civ P 14(a)(2)(B)]. The third-party defendant must assert any compulsory counterclaims it has against the impleading party. Compulsory counterclaims are those claims against the impleading party arising out of the subject matter of the third-party claim [see Fed R Civ P 13(a)]. In addition, the third-party defendant may assert permissive counterclaims, which are any other claims against the impleading party, even though the claims are not transactionally related [see Fed R Civ P 13 (b)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of distinction between permissive and compulsory counterclaims, see Ch. 11, Counterclaims, Crossclaims, and Replies, see § 11.09.

12.15[2] Third-Party Defendant May Assert Crossclaims Related to Impleader Claims Against Other Parties. A third-party defendant may assert any crossclaims against any other third-party defendants, provided the crossclaims arise from the transaction involved in the impleader claim [see Fed R Civ P 13(g)].

Cross Reference:

Preparing and drafting crossclaims, see Ch. 11, Counterclaims, Crossclaims, and Replies, see §§ 11.26 -11.43.

12.15[3] Third-Party Defendant May Join Other Claims. Once the third-party defendant has asserted a counterclaim or crossclaim against a party as permitted by the impleader rule, the third-party defendant may then join any other claims against the same party, whether transactionally related or not, under the claim-joinder rule [see Fed R Civ P 18(a)].

12.15[4] Subject Matter Jurisdiction Must Exist for Claims. Fed R Civ P 14 prescribes the procedural circumstances in which certain claims may be asserted, but does not extend the jurisdiction of the federal courts [see

Fed R Civ P 82 (rules do not extend jurisdiction)].

12.16 Third-Party Defendant's Claim Against Plaintiff.

12.16[1] Third-Party Defendant May Assert Claim Against Plaintiff. The third-party defendant may assert any claim against the plaintiff arising out of the transaction or occurrence that is the subject matter of the plaintiff's claim against the impleading party [Fed R Civ P 14(a)(2)(D)].

Cross Reference:

3 Moore's Federal Practice, § 14.06 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Consider:

This type of claim is permissive, rather than compulsory [see Fed R Civ P 14(a)(2)(D)].

12.16[2] Procedure for Bringing Claim Is Unclear. Rule 14(a) is silent with respect to how and when a third-party defendant's claim against the original plaintiff should be asserted. The Rule does not state that leave of court is required and thus the third-party defendant should be able to assert the claim without seeking court permission. However, there is no suggestion in the rule as to the correct procedural device for asserting the claim. The original plaintiff and the third-party defendant are not "opposing parties," so a counterclaim is not authorized [Fed R Civ P 13(a), (b); see Caterpillar, Inc. v. Lewis (1996) 519 US 61, 67 n1, 117 S Ct 467, 136 L Ed2d 437]. In the past, courts have accepted without comment the designation of such a claim as a "crossclaim" [see, e.g., L & E Co. v. United States ex rel. Kaiser Gypsum Co. (9th Cir 1965) 351 F2d 880, 882]. However, the commentators unanimously disagree with this practice, pointing out that the original plaintiff and the third-party defendant are not "coparties" within the meaning of Rule 13 [see, e.g., 3 Moore's Federal Practice, § 14.06[1], [2] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.); see also Fed R Civ P 13(g)]. Rule 14(a) authorizes only crossclaims against "an other third-party defendant" [Fed R Civ P 14(a)(2)(B)]. It is therefore safest for a third-party defendant to assert its claim against a plaintiff as something sui generis, and have the claim explicitly labeled as a "Rule 14(a) Claim by Third-Party Defendant Against Plaintiff" or something similar.

Cross References:

Ch. 4, Determining Parties to the Action; Ch. 11, Counterclaims, Crossclaims, and Replies, see §§ 11.18, 11.29.

12.16[3] Joinder of Additional Claims. Fed R Civ P 14(a) allows the third-party defendant to bring only transactionally related claims against the plaintiff. However, once the third-party defendant does assert a proper claim against the plaintiff under that rule, the third-party defendant may use the unlimited claim-joinder rule to join any additional claims against the plaintiff, whether the claims are transactionally related or not [see Fed R Civ P 18(a)].

12.16[4] Third-Party Defendant and Plaintiff Become Opposing Parties for Purpose of Counterclaim Rule. Once the third-party defendant asserts a claim against the original plaintiff, the two become "opposing parties" under the counterclaim rule. Therefore, the plaintiff must assert any transactionally related claims it has against the third-party defendant as compulsory counterclaims [see Fed R Civ P 13(a)], and may assert any unrelated claims against the third-party defendant as permissive counterclaims [see Fed R Civ P 13(b)].

12.16[5] Subject Matter Jurisdiction Must Exist for Claims. Fed R Civ P 14 prescribes the procedural circumstances in which certain claims may be asserted, but does not extend the jurisdiction of the federal courts [see Fed R Civ P 82 (rules do not extend jurisdiction)].

12.17 Plaintiff May Assert Claim Against Third-Party Defendant Arising Out of Same Transaction As Plaintiff's Claim.

Once a third-party defendant has been impleaded into the action, the plaintiff may assert any claim that it may have against the third-party defendant. However, the plaintiff may do so only if the claim arises out of the transaction or occurrence that is the subject matter of the plaintiff's claim against the impleading party [Fed R Civ P 14(a)(3)].

IV. BRINGING PLAINTIFF'S CLAIMS AGAINST THIRD-PARTY DEFENDANT

12.18 Claim by Plaintiff Against Third-Party Defendant Is Permissive.

A plaintiff has a choice as to whether it should plead a claim against a third-party defendant impleaded into the action. Except when a third-party defendant pleads a claim directly against the plaintiff and the plaintiff has a compulsory counterclaim, claims by a plaintiff against a third-party defendant are permissive but not compulsory [see Fed R Civ P 14(a)(3); Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. v. Hercules Inc. (9th Cir 1998) 146 F3d 1071, 1073]. In the absence of another bar, such as the statute of limitations, a plaintiff has the option of filing these permissive claims in a separate action [Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. v. Hercules Inc. (9th Cir 1998) 146 F3d 1071, 1074].

Example:

A district court erred by dismissing a complaint brought by a railroad company against a chemical company, after concluding that the suit violated a scheduling order in a separate action in which the railroad company, as the defendant, failed to join the chemical company within the allotted time for joinder. The court ruled that Rule 14 joinder is permissive, and thus allows the filing of a separate action [Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. v. Hercules Inc. (9th Cir 1998) 146 F3d 1071, 1073-1075].

12.19 Subject Matter Jurisdiction Must Exist for Claims.

Rule 14 prescribes the procedural circumstances in which certain claims may be asserted, but does not extend the jurisdiction of the federal courts [see Fed R Civ P 82 (rules do not extend jurisdiction)]. The court must have subject matter jurisdiction of the claim asserted by plaintiff against the third-party defendant on some basis other than Rule 14. In cases in which the court's subject matter jurisdiction is based solely on diversity of citizenship, supplemental jurisdiction is not available for any Rule 14 claim asserted by a plaintiff [28 USC § 1367(b)].

IV. BRINGING PLAINTIFF'S CLAIMS AGAINST THIRD-PARTY DEFENDANT

2-12 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 12.21

12.21 Procedure for Asserting Claim Is Unclear.

Rule 14 does not specify the procedure for asserting a direct claim by the plaintiff against the third-party defendant [see Fed R Civ P 14]. Unless the third-party defendant files a Rule 14 claim against the plaintiff, the original plaintiff and the third-party defendant are not "opposing parties," so a counterclaim is not authorized [Fed R Civ P 13(a), (b); see Caterpillar, Inc. v. Lewis (1996) 519 US 61, 67 n1, 117 S Ct 467, 136 L Ed2d 437]. Nor are the original plaintiff and the third-party defendant "coparties," so a crossclaim does not seem appropriate [Fed R Civ P 13(g)]. It is therefore safest for a plaintiff to assert its claim against a third-party defendant as something sui generis, and have the claim explicitly labeled as a "Rule 14(a) Claim by Plaintiff Against Third-Party Defendant" or something similar.

12.22 Third-Party Defendant Must Assert Any Defenses, Counterclaims, Crossclaims Under Rules 12, 13.

If the plaintiff asserts a claim against the third-party defendant arising out of the transaction or occurrence that is the subject matter of the plaintiff's claim against the impleading party, the third-party defendant must assert any defenses it has against the plaintiff's claim by the means and in the manner provided by Rule 12 [Fed R Civ P 14(a)(3); see Fed R Civ P 12]. Similarly, the third-party defendant may, and in the case of compulsory counterclaims must, assert any counterclaims or crossclaims that are authorized by Rule 13 [Fed R Civ P 14(a); see Fed R Civ P 13].

Third-Party Defendant, _____ [name] responds to the Third-Party Complaint of _____ [name] as follows:

Admissions and Denials

1. Third-Party Defendant _____ [name] admits the allegations of Paragraphs _____ of the Third-Party Complaint.

2. Third-Party Defendant _____ [name] denies each and every allegation of Paragraphs _____ of the Third-Party Complaint.

3. Responding to the allegations of Paragraph _____ of the Third-Party Complaint, Third-Party Defendant admits that _____ [facts admitted, e.g., that it is a Delaware corporation doing business in the State of California] but denies each and every remaining allegation in that paragraph.

4. Responding to the allegations of Paragraph _____ of the Third-Party Complaint, Third-Party defendant admits that _____ [facts admitted], but has insufficient information reasonably available to it at this time admit or deny _____ [disputed allegation]. Therefore, Third-Party defendant denies this allegation for lack of information and belief as to its truth or falsity.

[Continue specifically admitting or denying each allegation in each paragraph]

Affirmative Defenses.

5. As its First Affirmative Defense, Third-Party Defendant alleges that _____ [first affirmative defense, e.g., the claim asserted in the Third-Party Complaint is barred by the applicable statute of limitations, _____ (cite), in that it accrued more than _____ years prior to the commencement of this action].

6. As its Second Affirmative Defense, Third-Party Defendant alleged that _____ [second affirmative defense, e.g., the indemnity contract alleged in the Third-Party Complaint was procured by fraud. In particular _____ (plead facts of fraud with particularity)].

[Continue asserting all possible affirmative defenses]

[Optional. Use to assert claim against third-party plaintiff]

Counterclaim

7. As a counterclaim against Third-Party Plaintiff, ... [name], Third-Party Defendant alleges that _____ [facts of counterclaim, e.g., Third-Party plaintiff has failed to pay and refuses to pay the agreed compensation promised to Third-Party Defendant that was the consideration for the indemnity agreement alleged in the Third-Party Complaint. To the extent that the agreement has any validity in the face of this breach of contract, Third-Party Plaintiff owes Third-Party Defendant the sum of $250,000 together with interest at the contract rate from December 1, 2002, and attorney's fees as provided in the contract].

Demand for Judgment.

Third-Party Defendant _____ [name] requests judgment as follows:

A. That Third-Party Plaintiff _____ [name] take nothing;

B. That Third-Party Defendant _____ [name] have judgment against Third-Party Plaintiff on the Counterclaim for:

1. Damages in the sum of $_____;

2. Interest at the contract rate on that sum from _____[date] until the date of judgment; and

3. Reasonable attorney's fees in the amount of $_____;

C. That Third-Party Defendant _____[name] be awarded its costs; and

D. That Third-Party Defendant have any other relief to it may be entitled.

CHAPTER 13 Demanding a Jury Trial
I. STRATEGY

2-13 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 13.02

13.02 Objective and Strategy.

For cases in which the right to trial by jury is guaranteed, counsel may elect to demand a jury trial or have the action heard by the court. In deciding whether to demand a jury trial, counsel should balance the expenses of a jury trial, including the extra time needed, with the potential benefits of having the action heard and decided by a jury.

Judge's Perspective:

Jury verdicts are harder to overturn on appeal than court verdicts. Also, if a verdict is reached, there is no need to wait for the judge's decision. On the other hand, the unanimity requirement makes a hung jury a risk. And complex cases, e.g., patent cases, are difficult to explain to a jury. If you know the judge, you can assess the wisdom of a court trial.

Unit 3 Pleading Stage
CHAPTER 13 Demanding a Jury Trial
II. OBTAINING TRIAL BY JURY

2-13 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 13.03

13.03 CHECKLIST: Obtaining Jury Trial.

13.03[1] Party Seeking Jury Trial.

☐ Review each claim in action to determine whether claim is triable of right by jury.

○ If claim arises from common law, determine whether:

☐ Claim is legal in nature and therefore triable to jury.

☐ Claim is equitable in nature and therefore not triable to jury.

○ If claim arises from statute:

☐ Determine whether federal statute expressly confers or denies right to jury trial.

☐ If no statutory jury right applies, examine nature of action and remedies sought to determine whether action involves legal rights triable to jury, or equitable rights not triable to jury.

Authority:
US Const, amend VII; Fed R Civ P 38(a)

Discussion:
See §§ 13.04[2] -[4]

☐ Determine whether jury trial is desirable, considering factors such as:

- ○ Demographics of trial venue and likely composition of jury panel.
- ○ History and reputation of trial judge, if known.
- ○ Anticipated length of trial.
- ○ Complexity of factual issues in case.

Discussion:
See § 13.04[1]

☐ If claim is not triable of right, but jury trial is desirable:

- ○ Obtain consent of all parties to jury trial.
- ○ Request that court order trial by jury.

Exception:
Jury trial by consent is not available in an action against the United States for which a federal statute provides for trial without a jury.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 39(c)

Discussion:
See § 13.04[5]

☐ If claim is triable of right and jury trial is desirable, determine whether jury demand is necessary.

○ If action was commenced in federal district court, determine whether any other party has made effective jury demand covering issues for which jury is desired.

○ If action was removed to federal district court, determine whether any party made effective jury demand before removal.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 38(b), 81(c)

Discussion:
See § 13.04[6], [7]

☐ If jury demand is necessary, determine whether to limit demand to certain issues.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 38(c)

Discussion:
See § 13.04[8]

☐ Prepare jury demand.

○ Either:

☐ Include jury demand in pleading in accordance with requirements of local rules; or ☐ Draft jury demand separate from pleadings.

○ If appropriate, specify in jury demand issues for which jury trial is demanded.

○ Sign jury demand.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 11(a), (b), 38(b), (c); CD Cal Civ LR 38-1; ED Cal Civ LR 201; ND Cal Civ LR 3-6(a); SD Cal Civ LR 5.1(j.3), see § 38.1

Discussion:
See § 13.05

Form:
See § 13.21

☐ Timely serve jury demand on all other parties.

○ Generally, serve jury demand within 10 days after service of last pleading directed to issues on which jury trial is demanded.

○ If action was removed to federal court after all necessary pleadings were served:

☐ If party making jury demand removed action, serve jury demand within 10 days after petition for removal is filed.

☐ Serve other party's jury demand within 10 days after service on that party of notice of filing removal petition.

○ If supplementing other party's jury demand, serve supplementary demand within 10 days after service of other party's demand, or within any lesser time ordered by court.

○ In condemnation proceeding, serve jury demand within time allowed for answer, or within any later time set by court.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 38(b), 71.1(h)(1)(B), 81(c)

Discussion:
See § 13.06[1]

☐ Timely file jury demand.

○ Generally, file jury demand within reasonable time after service or within time specified by any applicable local rules.

○ In condemnation proceeding, file jury demand within time allowed for answer, or within any later time set by court.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 5(d), 38(b), 71.1(h)(1)(B); CD Cal Civ LR 38-2

Discussion:
See § 13.06[2]

13.03[2] Party Opposing Jury Demand.

☐ If opposing jury demand, prepare written motion to strike demand.

○ Make motion as soon as possible, before court and other parties have made substantial preparation for jury trial in reliance on jury demand.

○ Establish grounds for striking jury demand, such as:

☐ One or more issues covered by jury demand are not properly triable by jury.

☐ Jury demand was not timely served or filed.

☐ One or more initially apparent jury issues are not actually presented by case.

○ Follow standard noticed motion procedure.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 39(a)

Discussion:
See § 13.08

Form:

See § 13.22

Unit 3 Pleading Stage
CHAPTER 13 Demanding a Jury Trial
II. OBTAINING TRIAL BY JURY

2-13 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 13.04

13.04 Options and Strategy.

13.04[1] Determine Whether Jury Is Desirable. In deciding whether to demand a jury trial, the relevant factors may include the following:

- The demographics of the trial venue, and the likely composition of the jury panel.
- The history and reputation of the trial judge, if known.
- Whether potential biases of the jurors, or of the judge (e.g., relating to the parties, nature of the case, amount of damages sought, potential witnesses) argue in favor of or against a jury trial.
- The anticipated length of trial.
- In complex civil litigation, whether the subject matter is beyond the comprehension of most lay jurors and thus better-suited to decision by a judge.
- Whether the law is favorable and, thus, whether an appeal to "layman" jurors would have a greater chance of success.
- Whether the possibility of hung jury (because of the unanimity requirement) is an advantage or disadvantage.
- Whether potential biases of the jurors, or of the judge (e.g., relating to the parties, nature of the case, amount of damages sought, potential witnesses) argue in favor of or against a jury trial.
- Whether the detailed rulings usually issued by, or required of, federal judges would benefit a potential future appeal, particularly in complex litigation, or whether a simpler jury verdict is preferable.

- Whether the nature of the case is such that the voir-dire and peremptory challenge process with respect to jurors would be preferable to the very limited ability to disqualify a judge.

- Whether the differential treatment of evidence is relevant to the case. If there is highly prejudicial evidence, it may be preferable to have a jury that can be isolated from evidentiary disputes and rulings. On the other hand, a judge is better able to render a verdict based on admissible evidence only, while a jury exposed to excluded evidence or improper questions or statements of counsel may be less able to understand jury instructions and differentiate between admissible and inadmissible matters.

Many of the traditional axioms regarding juries may require reexamination, particularly in light of the current drive for universal jury service. Professionals, executives, scientists, and artists are increasingly serving on federal juries. Knowing that intelligent, sophisticated jurors may determine the case can affect the decision to demand a jury.

Decision Point--Plaintiff:

Because federal practice requires an early demand for a jury [see Fed R Civ P 38(b)], a prospective plaintiff must weigh the availability and desirability of a jury as part of the process of planning the litigation and drafting the complaint. If the need for an early jury demand is overlooked while drafting the complaint, counsel may find it necessary to make a hurried and perhaps ill-considered decision.

Evaluating Jury Demographics Using Online Resources:

Many resources are available online for investigating jury demographics within a specific city or county. For example, helpful resources at lexis.com include:

- Legal tab> Area of Law--By Topic> Human Resources> Investigate Person, Property & Business> Geodemographic Reference> ZIP Demographics.

  - Sample Search: Try the following Terms and Connectors search to find demographic information for a particular ZIP code: zip (92843)

- Legal tab> Area of Law--By Topic> Human Resources> Investigate Person, Property & Business> Geodemographic Reference> County Demographics.

  - Sample Search: Try the following Terms and Connectors search to find demographic information for a particular county: county (orange) and state (cal!)

Cross References:

Discussion of preparing the complaint, see Ch. 6, Drafting the Summons and Complaint, 6.03 -6.17. Discussion of timing on making a jury demand, see § 13.06[1]. Form, see § 13.21.

13.04[2] Determine Whether There Is a Right to Jury Trial.

13.04[2][a] Federal Law Determines Right to Jury. In federal court, even in diversity cases, the right to a jury trial is governed by federal law [Simler v. Conner (1963) 372 US 221, 222, 83 S Ct 609, 9 L Ed2d 691]. In a civil case brought in federal district court, the right to a jury trial is established under either the Seventh Amendment or a federal statute or rule [Fed R Civ P 38(a); see Fed R Civ P 71.1(h)(1)(B)].

Cross References:

Discussion of the right to a jury trial under the Seventh Amendment, see 13.04[3]. Discussion of the right to a jury trial under federal statutes, see § 13.04[4].

13.04[2][b] Procedural Rules Neither Enlarge Nor Restrict Right to Jury. Fed R Civ P 38 and 39 govern the procedures for obtaining a jury trial. The Rules do not enlarge or restrict the right to a jury trial under the Seventh Amendment or federal statutes [see Fed R Civ P 38(a); Craig v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (9th Cir 1994) 19 F3d 472, 475].

13.04[3] Seventh Amendment Preserves Common-Law Right to Jury.

13.04[3][a] Actions at Law Generally Are Triable by Jury. The Seventh Amendment preserves the right to jury trial in actions at law in which the amount in controversy exceeds twenty dollars [US Const, amend VII]. This right to jury trial applies not only to common-law actions cognizable when the Seventh Amendment was adopted, but also to newly created legal rights that would, under common-law principles, be enforceable in a suit at common law [Pernell v. Southall Realty (1974) 416 US 363, 374-376, 94 S Ct 1723, 40 L Ed2d 198].

Examples:

Actions traditionally deemed to be "at law" generally are those that seek "legal" remedies, such as money damages [see United States v. Missouri River Breaks Hunt Club (9th Cir 1981) 641 F2d 689, 692]. Some examples are the following:

- Assault and battery claims [see Ross v. Bernhard (1970) 396 US 531, 533, 90 S Ct 733, 24 L Ed2d 729 (dictum, citing Moore's)].
- Bivens actions for damages against government agents and employees [Nurse v. United States (9th Cir 2000) 226 F3d 996, 1005].
- Breach-of-contract actions seeking damages [Ross v. Bernhard (1970) 396 US 531, 542, 90 S Ct 733, 24 L Ed2d 729].
- Conversion claims [see Ross v. Bernhard (1970) 396 US 531, 533, 90 S Ct 733, 24 L Ed2d 729 (dictum, citing Moore's)].
- Defamation claims [see Ross v. Bernhard (1970) 396 US 531, 533, 90 S Ct 733, 24 L Ed2d 729 (dictum, citing Moore's)].
- Ejectment actions [Pernell v. Southall Realty (1974) 416 US 363, 370-376, 94 S Ct 1723, 40 L Ed2d 198 ; Ross v. Bernhard (1970) 396 US 531, 533, 90 S Ct 733, 24 L Ed2d 729].
- False imprisonment claims [see Beckwith v. Bean (1878) 98 US 266, 276, 25 L Ed 124].
- Fraud and deceit actions seeking damages [see In re U.S. Fin. Secs. Litig. (9th Cir 1979) 609 F2d 411, 429-431].
- Malicious prosecution claims [Smoot v. Fox (6th Cir 1965) 353 F2d 830, 833 (citing Moore's)].
- Negligence claims [Barron v. United States (9th Cir 1981) 654 F2d 644, 650].
- Trespass actions [United States v. Williams (5th Cir 1971) 441 F2d 637, 643-644 ; United States v. Connolly (D Mont 1943) 3 FRD 417, 419].

- Intellectual property infringement actions in which damages are sought [Oiness v. Walgreen Co. (D Colo 1993) 838 F Supp 1420, 1421 (right to jury trial in action for damages for patent infringement)].

- Employment discrimination actions for damages under the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (for conduct occurring on or after January 1, 1991) [Buddingh v. South Chicago Cable, Inc. (ND Ill 1993) 830 F Supp 437, 440].

- Civil rights claims under 42 USC §§ 1981 and 1983 in which damages are sought [Goodgame v. American Cast Iron Pipe Co. (11th Cir 1996) 75 F3d 1516, 1520 (court cannot treat jury as advisory on § 1981 claim); Perez-Serrano v. DeLeon-Velez (1st Cir 1989) 868 F2d 30, 32 (claim seeking damages under § 1983 is characterized properly as legal for purposes of the Seventh Amendment)].

13.04[3][b] Actions in Equity Generally Are Not Triable by Jury. Actions traditionally deemed to be "in equity" are generally not triable by a jury [Tull v. United States (1987) 481 US 412, 417, 107 S Ct 1831, 95 L Ed2d 365].

Examples:

Actions deemed to be in equity generally are those that seek "equitable" remedies such as injunctive relief [see United States v. Missouri River Breaks Hunt Club (9th Cir 1981) 641 F2d 689, 692]. Some examples are the following:

- Actions for reformation of contracts [Enserch Corp. v. Shand Morahan & Co. (5th Cir 1992) 952 F2d 1485, 1502].

- Actions for rescission or cancellation of contracts [Dollar Sys., Inc. v. Avcar Leasing Sys., Inc. (9th Cir 1989) 890 F2d 165, 170-171].

- Actions for specific performance of contracts [Adams v. Johns-Manville Corp. (9th Cir 1989) 876 F2d 702, 709-710 (citing Moore's)].

- Foreclosures of liens and mortgages [Perera Co. v. Goldstone (9th Cir 1974) 491 F2d 386, 387].

- Actions to set aside fraudulent conveyances [Granfinanciera, S.A. v. Nordberg (1989) 492 US 33, 44, 109 S Ct 2782, 106 L Ed2d 26].

- Claims against the stake in an interpleader action [Ross v. Bernhard (1970) 396 US 531, 541 n15, 90 S Ct 733, 24 L Ed2d 729].

- Actions to quiet title to property if the possession of property is sought [Lombardo Turquoise Milling & Mining Co. v. Hemanes (D Nev 1977) 430 F Supp 429, 433].

- Actions for restitution [Teamsters v. Terry (1990) 494 US 558, 570, 110 S Ct 1339, 108 L Ed2d 519 ; Simpson v. Office of Thrift Supervision (9th Cir 1994) 29 F3d 1418, 1423-1424].

- Actions seeking accounting for trusts [American Universal Ins. Co. v. Pugh (9th Cir 1987) 821 F2d 1352, 1356 ; Dardo-vitch v. Haltzman (3d Cir 1999) 190 F3d 125, 133-134 n1].

- Actions for breach of trust [Nedd v. United Mine Workers (3d Cir 1977) 556 F2d 190, 207].

- Actions to declare constructive trusts [American Universal Ins. Co. v. Pugh (9th Cir 1987) 821 F2d 1352, 1356].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of actions traditionally deemed to be in equity, see 8 Moore's Federal Practice, see § 38.31 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

13.04[3][c] Admiralty Proceedings Generally Are Not Triable by Jury. There is no general constitutional right of trial by jury in a case that is within the district court's admiralty or maritime jurisdiction, unless there is an alternative basis for federal jurisdiction [Fed R Civ P 38(e); Craig v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (9th Cir 1994) 19 F3d 472, 476].

Exceptions:

Certain admiralty proceedings may be tried to a jury:

- When claims at law and in admiralty arise out of the same incident and are so intertwined as to require trial by a single fact finder [Fitzgerald v. United States Lines Co. (1963) 374 US 16, 21, 83 S Ct 1646, 10 L Ed2d 720].

- Admiralty and maritime claims arising on the Great Lakes and connecting navigable waters [28 USC § 1873].

- Claims under the Jones Act by an injured seaman, or the personal representative of the seaman in case of death [46 USC app § 688; Craig v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (9th Cir 1994) 19 F3d 472, 475-476].

- The "saving to suitors" clause of the statutory provision conferring admiralty and maritime jurisdiction permits claims to be brought as actions at law if the requisite diversity and jurisdictional amount are present [28 USC § 1333].

13.04[3][d] Declaratory Relief May Be Either at Law or in Equity. Declaratory relief is neither strictly equitable nor legal. A particular declaratory judgment draws its equitable or legal substance from the nature of the underlying controversy [Transamerica Occidental Life Ins. Co. v. Digregorio (9th Cir 1987) 811 F2d 1249, 1251 (because action involved contractual claim to insurance benefits, the source of the case was clearly a legal one, and had suit gone to trial, defendant could have demanded a jury)].

13.04[4] Right to Jury Trial in Statutorily Created and Special Actions and Proceedings.

13.04[4][a] Test for Determining Whether Jury Right Applies. A statutory claim for relief may expressly confer or deny a right to a jury trial [see, e.g., 28 USC § 2402]. In other instances, to determine whether the Seventh Amendment right to a jury trial applies, the court must determine whether the case will resolve legal rights or only equitable rights [Tull v. United States (1987) 481 US 412, 417-418, 107 S Ct 1831, 95 L Ed2d 365]. This inquiry requires the court to examine [Tull v. United States (1987) 481 US 412, 417-418, 107 S Ct 1831, 95 L Ed2d 365 ; SEC v. Rind (9th Cir 1993) 991 F2d 1486, 1493]:

- The nature of the action and whether it is analogous to historical legal or equitable actions; and

- The nature of the remedy sought, whether legal or equitable.

The Supreme Court has repeatedly stressed that the second factor--identifying the relief sought as legal or equitable--is the more important of the two [see Wooddell v. International Bhd. of Elec. Workers (1991) 502 US 93, 97, 112 S Ct 494, 116 L Ed2d 419 ; Teamsters v. Terry (1990) 494 US 558, 565, 110 S Ct 1339, 108 L Ed2d 519].

13.04[4][b] Actions and Proceedings Triable by Jury. If Congress creates an action that did not exist at common law, the Seventh Amendment requires that trial by jury be available if that action invokes rights and remedies of the kind traditionally enforced in an action at law [Curtis v. Loether (1974) 415 US 189, 193, 94 S Ct 1005, 39 L Ed2d 260]. In addition, a federal statute or rule may expressly provide for trial by jury in instances in which the Seventh Amendment would not otherwise guarantee a jury trial [Standard Oil Co. v. Arizona (9th Cir 1984) 738 F2d 1021, 1023].

Examples:

The following are examples of statutory and special proceedings in which jury trial is available:

- Actions under the Age Discrimination in Employment Act seeking damages [29 USC § 626(c)(2)].
- Antitrust actions for treble damages [Standard Oil Co. v. Arizona (9th Cir 1984) 738 F2d 1021, 1027-1032].
- Civil rights actions under 42 USC § 1983 seeking damages [City of Monterey v. Del Monte Dunes at Monterey, Ltd. (1999) 526 US 687, 729-730, 119 S Ct 1624, 143 L Ed2d 882].
- Liability issues in actions under the Clean Water Act [Tull v. United States (1987) 481 US 412, 422-427, 107 S Ct 1831, 95 L Ed2d 365 ; see 33 USC § 1319(d)].
- Compensation issues in condemnation proceedings involving the traditional exercise of eminent domain power by the United States (but not in inverse condemnation actions), unless the court appoints a commission to determine the compensation issue [Fed R Civ P 71.1(h); KLK, Inc. v. United States Dep't of Interior (9th Cir 1994) 35 F3d 454, 457 ; see 28 USC § 1358].
- Copyright infringement actions seeking statutory damages [Feltner v. Columbia Pictures Television, Inc. (1998) 523 US 340, 353, 118 S Ct 1279, 140 L Ed2d 438].
- Damages claims for housing discrimination under the Fair Housing Act [Curtis v. Loether (1974) 415 US 189, 195, 94 S Ct 1005, 39 L Ed2d 260 ; see 42 USC § 3612].
- Actions for damages under the Family and Medical Leave Act [Frizzell v. Southwest Motor Freight (6th Cir 1998) 154 F3d 641, 643 ; 29 USC § 2601 et seq.].
- Proceedings under the Great Lakes Act [28 USC § 1873].
- Jones Act proceedings, but only at the plaintiff's option [46 USC app § 688; Craig v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (9th Cir 1994) 19 F3d 472, 475-476].
- Actions for breach of collective bargaining agreements under the Labor Management Relations Act [Chauffeurs, Teamsters & Helpers v. Terry (1990) 494 US 558, 569-570, 110 S Ct 1339, 108 L Ed2d 519 ; see 29 USC § 185].

- Union members' suits under the Labor Management Reporting and Disclosure Act [Wooddell v. International Bhd. of Elec. Workers (1991) 502 US 93, 97, 112 S Ct 494, 116 L Ed2d 419 ; see 29 USC § 401 et seq.].

- Actions under the Migrant and Seasonal Agricultural Worker Protection Act [Calderon v. Witvoet (7th Cir 1993) 999 F2d 1101, 1109 ; see 29 USC § 1854(c)(1)].

- Actions for compensatory damages under the Petroleum Marketing Practices Act [Thompson v. Kerr-McGee Ref. Corp. (10th Cir 1981) 660 F2d 1380, 1386 ; see 15 USC § 2805].

- Actions for damages under federal securities laws [In re U.S. Fin. Secs. Litig. (9th Cir 1979) 609 F2d 411, 422-426].

- Seizures and forfeitures, except in admiralty cases [see C.J. Hendry Co. v. Moore (1943) 318 US 133, 153, 63 S Ct 499, 87 L Ed 663].

- Shareholders' derivative suits seeking damages for fraud, negligence, or breach of contract [Ross v. Bernhard (1970) 396 US 531, 542, 90 S Ct 733, 24 L Ed2d 729].

- Actions against the United States to recover erroneously or illegally collected taxes or penalties [28 USC § 2402; see 28 USC § 1346(a)(1)].

- Title VII discrimination claims seeking damages [42 USC § 1981a(c)].

- Trademark infringement actions seeking damages [Dairy Queen, Inc. v. Wood (1962) 369 US 469, 473-479, 82 S Ct 894, 8 L Ed2d 44].

13.04[4][c] Actions and Proceedings Not Triable by Jury. A statutory action that did not exist at common law will not be triable by a jury if the action invokes rights and remedies of the kind traditionally enforced in an equitable action [Curtis v. Loether (1974) 415 US 189, 193, 94 S Ct 1005, 39 L Ed2d 260]. Also, statutes may expressly deny trial by jury [see, e.g., 28 USC § 2402].

Examples:

The following are examples of statutory and special proceedings in which jury trial is not available:

- Actions under the Age Discrimination in Employment Act seeking front pay, injunctive relief, and reinstatement [Duke v. Uniroyal, Inc. (4th Cir 1991) 928 F2d 1413, 1424 ; see 29 USC § 626(c)(2)].

- Civil rights actions seeking back pay and reinstatement, other than Title VII actions seeking compensatory or punitive damages [McFerren v. County Bd. of Educ. (6th Cir 1972) 455 F2d 199, 200].

- Penalties issues in actions under the Clean Water Act [Tull v. United States (1987) 481 US 412, 425-427, 107 S Ct 1831, 95 L Ed2d 365 ; see 33 USC § 1319(d)].

- Actions under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act [Spinelli v. Gaughan (9th Cir 1993) 12 F3d 853, 857 ; see 29 USC § 1001 et seq.].

- Actions under the Federal Tort Claims Act [28 USC § 2402].

- Habeas corpus proceedings [28 USC § 2243].

- Inverse condemnation actions [KLK, Inc. v. United States Dep't of Interior (9th Cir 1994) 35 F3d 454, 457].

- Patent claim construction issues [Markman v. Westview Instruments, Inc. (1996) 517 US 370, 376-377, 116 S Ct 1384, 134 L Ed2d 577].

- Actions for injunctive relief under the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act [United States v. Northeastern Pharm. & Chem. Co. (8th Cir 1986) 810 F2d 726, 749 ; see 42 USC § 6973 et seq.].

- Securities and Exchange Commission civil actions for disgorgement or injunctive relief [SEC v. Rind (9th Cir 1993) 991 F2d 1486, 1492-1493 ; Crane Co. v. American Standard, Inc. (2d Cir 1973) 490 F2d 332, 342-343 (citing Moore's)].

- Actions against the United States, unless the statute waiving sovereign immunity and creating the right of action also expressly provides a right to trial by jury [KLK, Inc. v. United States Dep't of Interior (9th Cir 1994) 35 F3d 454, 456 ; see 28 USC § 2402].

Cross Reference:

13.04[5] Court May Order Jury Trial If All Parties Consent. In an action not otherwise triable of right by a jury, the court may order a jury trial with the consent of all parties, except in an action against the United States for which a federal statute provides for trial without a jury [Fed R Civ P 39(c)(2)].

Distinguish:

In an action against the United States for which a federal statute provides for trial without a jury, the court may try any issue with an advisory jury, even if the parties do not consent to an advisory jury [Fed R Civ P 39(c)(1)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of advisory juries, see §§ 13.17 -13.20.

13.04[6] Determine Whether Jury Demand Is Necessary.

13.04[6][a] In Action Commenced in Federal Court. A party seeking a jury trial of any issue triable of right by a jury must make a timely demand for a jury trial [Fed R Civ P 38(b)(1); see Fed R Civ P 71.1(h)(1)(B)].

Exception:

If one party has demanded a jury trial, the other parties generally need not make their own demands as to those issues [Fuller v. City of Oakland (9th Cir 1995) 47 F3d 1522, 1531 ; see Fed R Civ P 38(c), (d)].

Cross References:

Discussion of timing for making a jury demand, see § 13.06[1]. Discussion of reliance on another party's jury demand, see § 13.04[7] and § 13.05[4][b].

13.04[6][b] In Removed Action. In a case that has been removed from state court, a party seeking to preserve a right to a jury trial must make a formal jury demand unless either of the following circumstances exists:

- The party, before removal, already made an express demand for trial by jury in accordance with state law [Fed R Civ P 81(c)(3)(A)].

- The party, before removal, already made an express demand for trial by jury that would have complied with the requirements of Fed R Civ P 38(b), even if it did not comply with the requirements of state law [Mondor v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 1990) 910 F2d 585, 585-587 ; see, e.g., Lutz v. Glendale Union High Sch., Dist. No. 205 (9th Cir 2005) 403 F3d 1061, 1066 (while state complaint adequately demanded jury trial on remedial issues of back pay and damages for pain and suffering, it did not contain jury demand on issue of liability)].

- State law applicable in the court from which the case was removed does not require the parties to make express jury demands, and the federal court has not directed that they do so [Fed R Civ P 81(c)(3)(A)].

Warning:

Jury demands in California superior court litigation may be asserted much later than in federal district court litigation [compare Cal Rules Ct, Rule 3.721, 3.727(13) (first case management conference, at which jury demand must be asserted, may be 180 days after filing of complaint); CCP § 631(d)(4) (jury trial waived if not asserted when case is set for trial) with Fed R Civ P 38(b)(1) (jury demand must be made within 10 days after filing of last pleading directed to issue)].

Cross References:

13.04[7] Determine Whether to Rely on Another Party's Jury Demand.

13.04[7][a] Parties May Rely on Demand for Issues It Covers. Once one party makes a jury demand, all other parties are entitled to rely on that demand for the issues it covers. They need not make their own separate demands, because the first demand cannot be withdrawn without the consent of all affected parties [Fuller v. City of Oakland (9th Cir 1995) 47 F3d 1522, 1531 ; see Fed R Civ P 38(c), (d)]. The reliance on the jury demand of another must be reasonable to be effective, and otherwise the right to jury trial will be waived by the failure to file a demand [California Scents v. Surco Prods., Inc. (9th Cir 2005) 406 F3d 1102, 1106]. Whether a demand covers an issue depends on whether the issue "turns on the same matrix of facts" and "concerns the same general area of dispute" as the claim or counterclaim for which a jury trial was demanded [California Scents v. Surco Prods., Inc. (9th Cir 2005) 406 F3d 1102, 1109].

Exception--Condemnation Proceedings:

In condemnation proceedings there is no constitutional or statutory right to a jury trial; rather, the availability of a jury trial is based solely on Fed R Civ P 71.1(h)(1)(B). A party in a condemnation proceeding may unilater-ally withdraw its jury demand without obtaining the consent of the adverse party [United States v. Keller (4th Cir 1998) 142 F3d 718, 720 ; see Fed R Civ P 38(d)]. A party desiring a jury trial in a condemnation proceeding should file a timely demand and should not rely on a demand filed by any other party, because any such demand can be unilaterally revoked.

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

A plaintiff may rely on a defendant's demand for jury trial on its counterclaims for jury trial of the claims in the complaint only when the counterclaims embrace the "same issues" as the claims in the complaint. However, whether or not the counterclaims and claims embrace the same issues may be disputed and the safest course is to make one's own demand. For example, a district court determined that a defendant's business disparagement and business defamation counterclaims did not embrace the same issues as the plaintiff's trade dress infringement and unfair competition claims and ruled that the plaintiff was not entitled to rely on the defendant's jury demand to preserve its own right to jury trial on its complaint. Although the Ninth Circuit ultimately disagreed and remanded for jury trial after a bench trial resulted in a defense verdict, the decision to rely on the defendant's demand was a costly one [see California Scents v. Surco Prods., Inc. (9th Cir 2005) 406 F3d 1102, 1105-1110].

13.04[7][b] Parties May Not Rely on Demand for Other Issues. If a party's jury demand is limited to certain issues, the other parties may not rely on that demand to preserve the right to have a jury decide other issues [see Fed R Civ P 38(c)].

Example:

A defendant may file a third-party claim that raises issues not addressed in the complaint and answer. The defendant may not rely on the plaintiff's jury demand to preserve the right to have a jury try the new issues raised in the third-party complaint [Rosen v. Dick (2d Cir 1980) 639 F2d 82, 92 (citing Moore's)].

13.04[7][c] Parties May Not Rely on Demand by Party that Has No Jury Right. If a party that has no jury right nevertheless demands a jury, the other parties will not be entitled to rely on that demand [Craig v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (9th Cir 1994) 19 F3d 472, 476-477].

Example:

Under the Jones Act, only the plaintiff has a right to demand a jury trial [46 USC app § 688]. Therefore, if the defendant makes a jury demand, the plaintiff is not entitled to rely on it and must make his or her own jury demand [Craig v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (9th Cir 1994) 19 F3d 472, 476-477].

13.04[8] Determine Whether to Limit Jury Demand to Certain Issues. A jury demand may specify the issues for trial by jury [Fed R Civ P 38(c)].

If the jury demand does not specify any issues, the party making the demand will be deemed to have demanded a jury on all issues triable by jury [Fed R Civ P 38(c)].

Strategic Point--Party Making Demand:

Although the party making the demand may specify issues to be tried to a jury, a general demand to try all of the issues so triable usually is advisable. A narrower demand effectively waives the jury trial right as to certain issues that may not be apparent at the outset. If there are issues of law not appropriate to a jury, the court can always rule or instruct on these issues at a later time [see Fed R Civ P 39(a)(2)].

Judge's Perspective:

A general demand is the better practice. The court will sort out the issues for jury trial if it is necessary.

Unit 3 Pleading Stage
CHAPTER 13 Demanding a Jury Trial
II. OBTAINING TRIAL BY JURY

2-13 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 13.05

13.05 Demanding Jury.

13.05[1] Include Jury Demand in Pleading.

13.05[1][a] Inclusion in Pleading Is Sufficient. A demand for a trial by jury may be included in a pleading [Fed R Civ P 38(b)]. The usual method of including the demand in a pleading is to place a notation such as "Demand for Jury Trial" on the first page of the complaint [see CD Cal Civ LR 38-1; ED Cal Civ LR 201; ND Cal Civ LR 3-6(a); SD Cal Civ LR 5.1(j.3), 38.1]. Local rules may require a separate demand in the body of the pleading, in addition to the endorsement [see, e.g., CD Cal Civ LR 38-1; ND Cal Civ LR 3-6(a)].

Decision Point--Plaintiff:

Usually, a party demanding a jury will include the demand in the party's pleading, although the demand can be made as late as 14 days after the last relevant pleading [see Fed R Civ P 38(b)(1)]. Following this procedure is no doubt the safest method to ensure that waiver does not inadvertently occur. For the plaintiff, however, there is one significant advantage to waiting. The district judge is not assigned until the complaint is filed [see, e.g., ND Cal Civ LR 3-3(a)]. If the identity of the judge may affect the decision to demand a jury, the plaintiff should consider omitting a jury demand from the complaint and waiting to decide whether to demand a jury until after the judge is assigned.

Judge's Perspective:

One minor risk in waiting is that the judge will assume that counsel wanted to see the assignment, and may take some offense if a jury trial is then demanded. But, this is a fairly minimal consideration.

Distinguish:

If a local rule requires that the jury demand appear in the body of the pleading, an additional requirement that the first page of the pleading contain a notation of the jury demand will not be deemed essential, unless the rule indicates that the demand itself is to be made by placing the notation on the first page [Pradier v. Elespuru (9th Cir 1981) 641 F2d 808, 810-811 ; see Rutledge v. Electric Hose & Rubber Co. (9th Cir 1975) 511 F2d 668, 674-675].

13.05[1][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. If a jury demand is included in a pleading, the caption of the pleading must contain the words "DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL." The demand itself must be set forth at the end of the pleading and be signed by counsel [CD Cal Civ LR 38-1].

13.05[1][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. A jury demand made in a pleading must appear immediately following the title of the pleading. Alternatively, a jury demand may be made in any other document permitted by Fed Civ P 38(b) [ED Cal Civ LR 201].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of Rule 38(b)'s requirements for jury demand, see § 13.06[1].

13.05[1][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. If the jury demand is included in a pleading, the caption of the pleading must state "DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL" immediately following the designation of the pleading. The demand itself must be set forth at the end of the pleading and be signed by counsel [ND Cal Civ LR 3-6(a)].

13.05[1][e] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. If a jury is demanded in a pleading, the words "Demand for Jury Trial" must appear on the first page of the pleading, to the right of center, across from the title of the action and following the designation of the document [SD Cal Civ LR 5.1(j.3), 38.1].

13.05[2] Prepare Separate Jury Demand. A party who has not demanded a jury trial in a pleading may serve and file a separate jury demand [Fed R Civ P 38(b)].

Cross References:

Form, see § 13.21. Discussion of timing, see § 13.06[1].

13.05[3] Indicating Jury Demand on Civil Cover Sheet Is Insufficient. Indicating on the civil cover sheet that a jury is demanded does not constitute a valid demand for jury trial [Wall v. National R.R. Passenger Corp. (9th Cir 1983) 718 F2d 906, 909 ; CD Cal Civ LR 38-3; ED Cal Civ LR 200, 201; ND Cal Civ LR 3-6(b); SD Cal Civ LR 38.1].

Exception:

A civil cover sheet that includes an indication that a jury is demanded may be deemed sufficient to constitute a separate jury demand if it is served contemporaneously with the summons and complaint [see Favors v. Coughlin (2d Cir 1989) 877 F2d 219, 220].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the preparation of the civil cover sheet, see Ch. 6, Drafting the Summons and Complaint, see § 6.20.

13.05[4] Specify Issues for Jury Trial.

13.05[4][a] Demanding Jury Trial on Specific Issues. If desired, specify the issues to be tried by the jury [see Fed R Civ P 38(c)].

Consider:

If the jury demand does not specify any issues, the party making the demand will be deemed to have demanded a jury on all issues triable by jury [Fed R Civ P 38(c)].

Cross Reference:

Form, see § 13.21.

13.05[4][b] Supplementing Another Party's Jury Demand. If a party has demanded trial by jury for only some of the issues, any other party may serve a demand for trial by jury of any other or all issues of fact in the action [Fed R Civ P 38(c)].

Cross Reference:

Form, see § 13.21.

13.05[5] Sign Jury Demand.

13.05[5][a] Complying With Signature Requirement. The pleading or other document containing the jury demand must be signed [Fed R Civ P 11(a)]. The signature must be accompanied by the signer's address, e-mail address, and telephone number, if any [Fed R Civ P 11(a)].

An unsigned pleading or separate jury demand will be stricken if the omission is not corrected promptly after being called to the attention of the attorney or party [Fed R Civ P 11(a)].

Warning:

A person who signs a jury demand or other paper that is filed with the court makes certain implicit certifications to the court [Fed R Civ P 11(b)]. For example, a person signing a jury demand implicitly certifies that the demand is not being presented for any improper purpose, such as to cause unnecessary delay or needless increase in the cost of litigation [Fed R Civ P 11(b)(1)].

Cross Reference:

Coverage of the certifications implicit in a signature, see Ch. 6, Drafting the Summons and Complaint, see § 6.14.

13.05[5][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: Signing by Electronic Means. A court may by local rule permit or require papers to be filed, signed, or verified by electronic means [Fed R Civ P 5(d)(3); see, e.g., ND Cal Civ LR 5-4; ND Cal General Order 45].

Cross Reference:

Coverage of electronic filing, see Ch. 5, Formatting, Serving, and Filing Papers, §§ 5.29 -5.31.

13.05[5][c] Determining Proper Person to Sign Jury Demand. If the party demanding a jury is represented by counsel, the document containing the jury demand must be signed by at least one attorney of record. The signature must be in the attorney's individual name [Fed R Civ P 11(a)].

If the party demanding a jury is appearing pro se, the document containing the jury demand must be signed by the party [Fed R Civ P 11(a)].

13.05[5][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. The name of the person signing must be clearly typed below the signature line [CD Cal Civ LR 11-1]. If the person signing is a member of a law firm, the firm's name should also be indicated [see CD Cal Civ LR 83-2.5.2].

13.05[5][e] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. The name of the person signing must be clearly typed below the signature line [ED Cal Gen LR 131(b)].

13.05[5][f] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. The name of the person signing must be typed below the signature line [SD Cal Civ LR 5.1(j.5)].

II. OBTAINING TRIAL BY JURY

2-13 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 13.06

13.06 Serve and File Jury Demand.

13.06[1] Service of Demand Must Be Timely.

13.06[1][a] In Action Commenced in Federal Court, Serve Demand Within 10 Days After Service of Last Pleading on Issue. A jury demand must be served on all parties within 14 days after service of the last pleading directed to the issues on which a jury trial is demanded, except in condemnation actions [Fed R Civ P 38(b)(1)].

Trap:

Failure to serve a timely jury demand waives the right to a jury trial [Fed R Civ P 38(d)].

Judge's Perspective The decision about whether to demand a jury trial must be made within the time required. The Ninth Circuit rarely allows a tardy request to prevail.

Exception--Demand Endorsed on Pleading:

A jury demand need not be served separately from the party's pleading, if the pleading itself contains a proper jury demand [Fed R Civ P 38(b)].

Exception--Three Additional Days if Pleading Not Served by Hand Delivery:

If the last pleading directed to the issue was served by a method other than hand delivery [see Fed R Civ P 5(b)(2)(C)-(F)], three days are added to the time for demanding a jury trial [Fed R Civ P 6(d)].

Cross References:

Discussion of the time for serving a jury demand in condemnation proceedings, see § 13.06[1][e]. Discussion of waiver of jury rights, see §§ 13.09 -13.13. Discussion of jury demands made in pleadings, see § 13.05[1]. Discussion of the available methods of service, see Ch. 5, Formatting, Serving, and Filing Papers, see § 5.22.

13.06[1][b] "Last Pleading" on Issue Defined. The "last pleading directed to" an issue is not the pleading that raises a matter, but the pleading that contests it. Normally, that pleading is the answer to a complaint (or the reply to a counterclaim). Accordingly, if the pleadings are limited to a complaint and an answer, the time for serving a jury demand by either party is measured from service of the answer [Fed R Civ P 38(b)(1)].

Example--Answer by Last Defendant:

If there are multiple defendants, the fact that one defendant has served its answer does not begin the running of the 10-day period as against the plaintiff with regard to any issues that are also alleged against a second defendant, if the second defendant has not yet served its answer. A jury demand is timely if served within 10 days after the last defendant has served its answer [Bentler v. Bank of Am. Nat'l Trust & Sav. Ass'n (9th Cir 1992) 959 F2d 138, 141]. Further, if one of the defendants files a counterclaim with its answer, and the counterclaim involves factual issues common to the plaintiff's original claim, then a jury demand is timely if served within 10 days after the plaintiff's reply, or the last defendant's answer, whichever is later [Bentler v. Bank of Am. Nat'l Trust & Sav. Ass'n (9th Cir 1992) 959 F2d 138, 141 n4].

Example--Answer to Intervenor Complaint:

In a case in which intervention is authorized, the answer to the intervenor complaint, rather than the answer to the original complaint, is considered the last pleading directed to the triable issues. Thus, a party's jury demand made within 10 days of service of that answer entitles that party to a jury trial, even if the jury right may previously have been waived with respect to the original complaint [United States v. California Mobile Home Park Mgmt. Co. (9th Cir 1997) 107 F3d 1374, 1378-1379].

Warning--Amended Pleadings:

Unless an amended pleading raises new factual issues (not just new legal theories), it does not restart the time within which a jury demand must be served [Lutz v. Glendale Union High Sch., Dist. No. 205 (9th Cir 2005) 403 F3d 1061, 1066]. The addition of a new party to a claim does not by itself create a new issue of fact [Daniel Int'l Corp. v. Fischbach & Moore, Inc. (5th Cir 1990) 916 F2d 1061, 1063-1064].

13.06[1][c] In Removed Action, Serve Demand Within 14 Days After Filing or Service of Removal Petition.

In a case that has been removed from state court after all necessary pleadings have been served, a party entitled to trial by jury must serve any necessary jury demand within 14 days after the petition for removal is filed if the party is the petitioner. A jury demand by any other party must be served within 14 days after service on that party of the notice of filing the removal petition [Fed R Civ P 81(c)(3)(B)].

Exception--Removal Petition Not Served by Hand Delivery:

If the removal petition was served by a method other than hand delivery [see Fed R Civ P 5(b)(2)(C)-(F)], three days are added to the time for a party other than the petitioner to demand a jury trial [Fed R Civ P 6(d)].

Distinguish:

If the case is removed before all necessary pleadings have been served, the time within which to make any necessary jury demand is determined as if the case had been commenced in federal court [see Fed R Civ P 38(b), 81(c)].

Cross References:

Discussion of the determination whether a jury demand is necessary in a removed case, see § 13.04[6][b]. Discussion of the available methods of service, see Ch. 5, Formatting, Serving, and Filing Papers, 5.22. Discussion of removal from state court, see Ch. 3, Removing a State Court Case to Federal Court, §§ 3.03 -3.22.

13.06[1][d] Serve Supplemental Jury Demand Within 14 Days After Another Party's Limited Jury Demand. If a party has demanded trial by jury for only some of the issues, any other party may, within 14 days after service of the demand or a lesser time ordered by the court, serve a demand for trial by jury of any other or all issues of fact in the action [Fed R Civ P 38(c)].

Exception--Three Additional Days if Other Party's Demand Not Served by Hand Delivery:

Three days are added to the time for supplementing another party's demand for a jury trial if that demand was served by a method other than hand delivery [Fed R Civ P 6(d); see Fed R Civ P 5(b)(2)(C)-(F)].

Strategic Point--Defendant:

If the plaintiff has demanded a jury trial on only some of the issues, Fed R Civ P 38(c) should not be applied to cut off the jury right of a defendant who fails to make a jury demand within 14 days after service of the complaint. Even if the defendant allows Rule 38(c)'s 14-day period to lapse, the defendant may demand a jury under Fed R Civ P 38(b), which authorizes a jury demand up to 14 days after service of the last pleading directed to the issue. That last pleading presumably will be the defendant's answer, which generally may be served up to 21 days after service of the complaint [Fed R Civ P 12(a)(1)(A)(i)].

Cross Reference:

Coverage of the available methods of service, see Ch. 5, Formatting, Serving, and Filing Papers, see § 5.22.

13.06[1][e] In Condemnation Proceeding, Serve Demand Within Time for Answer or As Ordered by Court. In a condemnation proceeding, any jury demand should be served within the time allowed for the answer, 21 days after service of notice of commencement of the proceeding, or within any later time set by the court [Fed R Civ P 71.1(h)(1)(B); see Fed R Civ P 71.1(e)].

Warning:

Fed R Civ P 71.1(h)(1)(B) specifies the time for filing a jury demand [see 13.06[2][c]], but it does not specify a time for service. However, it is prudent to serve the demand within the time prescribed for filing the demand.

13.06[2] File Jury Demand.

13.06[2][a] File Demand Within Reasonable Time After Service. The party demanding a jury trial generally must file the demand with the court, together with a certificate of service, within a reasonable time after service of the demand on the other parties, except in condemnation actions [Fed R Civ P 5(d)(1), 38(b)(2)].

Trap:

The failure to file a timely jury demand constitutes a waiver of any right to a jury trial [Fed R Civ P 38(d)].

Strategic Point:

A sure way to comply with the filing requirement is to include the jury demand in the party's pleading [see Fed R Civ P 38(b)]. The filing requirement for the jury demand will automatically be satisfied when the pleading is filed.

Cross References:

Discussion of the time for filing a jury demand in condemnation proceedings, see § 13.06[1][e]. Discussion of waiver of jury rights, see § 13.10. Discussion of including jury demands in pleadings, see § 13.05[1].

13.06[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. In a case that has been removed from state court that is not at issue at the time of removal, the jury demand must be filed within 10 days after service of the last pleading directed to the issues on which a jury trial is demanded [CD Cal Civ LR 38-2]. If the matter is already at issue at the time of removal, a jury demand by the removing party must be filed within 10 days after the filing of the notice of removal, and a jury demand by any other party must be filed within 10 days after "service of filing" [sic--probably should be "service or filing"] of the notice of removal [CD Cal Civ LR 38-2].

13.06[2][c] In Condemnation Proceeding, File Demand Within Time for Answer or As Ordered by Court. In a condemnation proceeding, any jury demand must be filed within the time allowed for the answer, 21 days after service of notice of commencement of the proceeding, or within any later time set by the court [Fed R Civ P 71.1(h)(1)(B); see Fed R Civ P 71.1(e)].

II. OBTAINING TRIAL BY JURY

2-13 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 13.07

13.07 Practice When Jury Right Applies.

13.07[1] Jury to Decide Factual Issues. When a jury right applies to a given claim or issue, the jury decides all factual issues necessary to resolve that claim or issue; questions of law are decided by the court [see City of Monterey v. Del Monte Dunes at Monterey, Ltd. (1999) 526 US 687, 720, 119 S Ct 1624, 143 L Ed2d 882 ; Bentler v. Bank of Am. Nat'l Trust & Sav. Ass'n (9th Cir 1992) 959 F2d 138, 141].

13.07[2] Jury's Role When Case Involves Legal and Equitable Claims With Common Factual Issues. When the issues underlying legal and equitable claims overlap, the jury must decide the factual issues necessary to resolve not only the legal claims but also any factual issues common to both kinds of claims. The court, in later ruling on the equitable claims, will be bound by the jury's factual findings on those common issues [Lytle v. Household Mfg., Inc. (1990) 494 US 545, 551-553, 110 S Ct 1331, 108 L Ed2d 504].

Consider:

When legal and equitable claims have common factual issues, the jury trial on the legal claims must occur before the court determines the equitable claims [Beacon Theatres, Inc. v. Westover (1959) 359 US 500, 510-511, 79 S Ct 948, 3 L Ed2d 988].

13.07[3] Jury's Role When Case Involves Legal and Equitable Claims Without Common Factual Issues. When legal and equitable claims without common factual issues are joined, the right to a jury trial on the legal claims remains intact [Lytle v. Household Mfg., Inc. (1990) 494 US 545, 551-553, 110 S Ct 1331, 108 L Ed2d 504].

Consider:

When legal and equitable claims are joined but have no common factual issues, the court has discretion to try the equitable claims first [Granite States Ins. Co. v. Smart Modular Techs., Inc. (9th Cir 1996) 76 F3d 1023, 1027].

13.08 Opposing Jury Demand.

13.08[1] Court's Power to Strike Jury Demand. The court may strike an action from the jury trial list on motion by a party or on its own initiative [Fed R Civ P 39(a)(2)].

Timing:

There is no specific deadline in the Federal Rules by which a motion to strike a jury demand must be filed [see Fed R Civ P 39(a)]. However, it is prudent to bring the motion as early as possible in the case, before the parties and court expend substantial time preparing for a jury trial in reliance on the jury demand.

Cross Reference:

Form, see § 13.22.

13.08[2] Grounds for Striking Jury Demand. A motion to strike a jury demand should establish one or more of the following:

- One or more issues covered by the jury demand are not properly triable by a jury [Fed R Civ P 39(a)].
- The jury demand was not timely made [see Fed R Civ P 38(d)].
- One or more jury issues that initially were apparent are not actually presented by the case [see Armco, Inc. v. Armco Burglar Alarm Co. (5th Cir 1982) 693 F2d 1155, 1158].

Examples:

If the only claims triable to a jury have been abandoned or dismissed by court order, or if the court could enter summary judgment or a directed verdict on those issues, the court may strike the jury demand, because the case presents no bona fide issue to be determined by a jury [see Armco, Inc. v. Armco

Burglar Alarm Co. (5th Cir 1982) 693 F2d 1155, 1158 ; Monroe Auto Equip. Co. v. Heckethorn Mfg. & Supply Co. (6th Cir 1964) 332 F2d 406, 412].

III. WAIVING AND OBTAINING RELIEF FROM WAIVER OF JURY

2-13 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 13.09

13.09 CHECKLIST: Obtaining Relief From Waiver of Jury.

13.09[1] Petitioning Party.

☐ If jury trial is desired and has not been demanded, determine whether motion for relief from waiver of jury trial may be made.

○ Verify that issues for which jury trial is desired are subject to constitutional or statutory right to trial by jury.

○ Verify that time for making jury demand has expired, i.e., that more than 14 days have passed since last pleading directed to issues for which jury trial is desired.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 38(b), (d), 39(b)

Discussion:
See §§ 13.04[1] -[4], 13.06[1], 13.10

☐ Prepare written motion for relief from waiver.

○ Specify circumstances beyond oversight or inadvertence of party or counsel as grounds for relief.

○ Follow standard noticed motion procedure.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 39(b)

Discussion:
See § 13.11

Form:
See § 13.23

Standard Procedure Checklist:
Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.12

☐ If district court issues order denying motion for relief, consider following options:

○ Filing petition with court of appeals for writ of mandamus.

○ Seeking interlocutory appeal:

☐ Request that district court certify order for appeal.

☐ Within 10 days after entry of district court's order, file application with court of appeals for interlocutory appeal.

○ Requesting district court to impanel advisory jury.

○ Taking appeal from final judgment, preserving error by making clear objection on record before participating in bench trial before district court, with or without advisory jury.

Authority:
28 USC §§ 1292(b), 1651; Fed R Civ P 39(c)(1)

Discussion:
See § 13.13

13.09[2] Opposing Party.

☐ If opposing other party's motion for relief from waiver of jury:

○ Calendar dates for filing and serving opposition to motion and for hearing.

○ Prepare opposition, establishing that movant's failure to make timely jury demand was nothing more than result of oversight or inadvertence.

○ Follow standard noticed motion procedure.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 39(b)

Discussion:

See § 13.12

CHAPTER 13 Demanding a Jury Trial
III. WAIVING AND OBTAINING RELIEF FROM WAIVER OF JURY

2-13 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 13.10

13.10 Waiver of Jury Right.

13.10[1] Waiver by Previous Agreement. The right to a jury trial may be waived by contractual agreement [Okura & Co. v. Careau Group (CD Cal 1991) 783 F Supp 482, 488].

Contractual waivers of jury rights are narrowly construed, and the party attempting to enforce a purported waiver has the burden of proving that it was knowing and intentional [Paracor Fin., Inc. v. General Elec. Capital Corp. (9th Cir 1996) 96 F3d 1151, 1166 n21 ; Phoenix Leasing, Inc. v. Sure Broad., Inc. (D Nev 1994) 843 F Supp 1379, 1384-1385, 1388]. In determining whether a waiver was knowing and intentional, courts generally consider the following factors [MZ Ventures, LLC v. Mitsubishi Motor Sales of Am., Inc. (CD Cal 1999) 1999 US Dist LEXIS 14421, at *44-*45 ; Phoenix Leasing, Inc. v. Sure Broad., Inc. (D Nev 1994) 843 F Supp 1379, 1384-1385]:

- Negotiability of the contract terms.
- Disparity in bargaining power between the parties.
- Business or professional experience of the party opposing the waiver.
- Conspicuousness of the jury-waiver provision.

13.10[2] Waiver by Failure to Make Timely Jury Demand. Failure to serve and file a timely jury demand waives the right to a jury trial [Fed R Civ P 38(d)].

Warning:

A plaintiff may not use a voluntary dismissal to revive a jury trial right that was forfeited by the failure to make a timely jury demand [see, e.g., Russ v. Standard Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1997) 120 F3d 988, 990].

Cross References:

Discussion of the time for making a jury demand, see § 13.06[1]. Discussion on relief from waiver of jury demand, see §§ 13.10 -13.13. Form of relief from waiver, see § 13.23. Discussion of voluntary dismissal, see Ch. 30, Voluntary Dismissal.

13.10[3] Waiver by Participation in Bench Trial. Knowing participation in a bench trial without objection may constitute a waiver of the right to a jury trial, even despite prior service of a timely jury demand. Particularly when a party's participation in the bench trial is vigorous, that party's failure to remind the court of its previously served jury demand cannot be presumed to be the result of mere inadvertence, but can only be ascribed to knowledgeable relinquishment of the prior jury demand [White v. McGinnis (9th Cir 1990) 903 F2d 699, 703 (en banc)].

Distinguish:

Absent a clear waiver, the right to a jury trial remains intact. For example, a pro se litigant's failure to comply with a local rule requiring the pretrial submission of proposed jury instructions does not constitute an implied waiver of jury trial [Lawson v. Kolender (9th Cir 1981) 658 F2d 1362, 1371-1372].

III. WAIVING AND OBTAINING RELIEF FROM WAIVER OF JURY

2-13 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 13.11

13.11 Moving for Relief From Waiver of Jury.

13.11[1] Prepare Motion for Relief From Waiver. Despite a party's failure to make a timely jury demand in an action in which a demand might have been made of right, the court in its discretion, on motion, may order a jury trial of any or all issues [Fed R Civ P 39(b)].

Fed R Civ P 39(b) suggests that filing a formal motion for a jury trial is the proper procedure to follow to obtain relief from the waiver resulting from failure to make a timely jury demand. However, the Rule does not specify any formalities, and an informal application or other act may be deemed sufficient to constitute a motion for relief [Moores v. Greenberg (1st Cir 1987) 834 F2d 1105, 1108 (citing Moore's)]. For example, the following have been construed as motions for relief from a waiver of jury trial:

- The late filing of a jury demand [Merritt v. Faulkner (7th Cir 1983) 697 F2d 761, 767].
- A letter from counsel requesting a jury [Moores v. Greenberg (1st Cir 1987) 834 F2d 1105, 1108-1109 (citing Moore's)].
- A jury request made in a pretrial memorandum [FDIC v. Palermo (10th Cir 1987) 815 F2d 1329, 1333-1334].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the circumstances constituting waiver of the right to a jury trial, see § 13.10.

13.11[2] Moving Party Must Show More Than Oversight or Inadvertence.

13.11[2][a] Oversight or Inadvertence Is Insufficient. Mere oversight or inadvertence by a litigant or counsel does not constitute sufficient grounds for granting a motion for relief from a waiver [Zivkovic v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (9th Cir 2002) 302 F3d 1080, 1086-1087 ; Pacific Fisheries Corp. v. H.I.H. Cas. & Gen. Ins., Ltd. (9th Cir 2001) 239 F3d 1000, 1002].

Distinguish--Relief From Waiver May Be Available If Process Server Failed to Serve Jury Demand on Parties:

Although oversight or inadvertence of a litigant or counsel do not justify relief, one district court granted relief in a case in which counsel had filed a jury demand and submitted it to a process server who, without any knowledge or fault on counsel's part, failed to serve the demand on the other parties in the case [Ruiz v. Rodriguez (ED Cal 2002) 206 FRD 501, 504-505].

13.11[2][b] Narrow Discretion to Grant Relief in Ninth Circuit. The Ninth Circuit's view of the scope of the district court's discretion to grant relief from a waiver of jury trial is narrower than that of other circuits. Decisions from other circuits granting relief based on circumstances that might be characterized as oversight or inadvertence will not be persuasive in a district court in the Ninth Circuit [Raya v. Maryatt Indus. (ND Cal 1993) 829 F Supp 1169, 1175 ; see Lewis v. Time, Inc. (9th Cir 1983) 710 F2d 549, 556-557].

Example--Voluntary Dismissal:

The district court's discretion under Fed R Civ P 41 to allow a voluntary dismissal without prejudice may not be applied to frustrate the purpose of Fed R Civ P 38 and 39. Thus, the court lacks the authority to dismiss an action to allow the plaintiff a second chance to assert a jury demand that had not been timely asserted in the original action because of inadvertence [Russ v. Standard Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1997) 120 F3d 988, 990].

Example--Removed Cases:

Although some circuits apply a more flexible standard in deciding whether relief from a waiver of jury trial should be granted to a party who has been involuntarily removed to federal court [see, e.g., Cascone v. Ortho Pharm. Corp. (2d Cir 1983) 702 F2d 389, 392], the Ninth Circuit has held that mere mistake (including a misinterpretation of applicable rules or law) or inadvertence on the part of counsel who is unfamiliar with federal procedure does not justify relief [Pacific Fisheries Corp. v. HIH Cas. & Gen. Ins., Ltd. (9th Cir 2001) 239 F3d 1000, 1002-1003 ; Jimena v. UBS Ag Bank, Inc. (ED Cal 2008) 2008 US Dist LEXIS 64584, at *6-*7 (party that intentionally waives right to jury trial cannot show cause beyond mere inadvertence)].

13.12 Opposing Motion for Relief From Waiver of Jury.

A memorandum opposing a motion for relief from a waiver of jury trial should establish that the movant's failure to make a timely jury demand was the result of oversight or inadvertence, which are not sufficient grounds for granting a motion for relief from a waiver [Pacific Fisheries Corp. v. H.I.H. Cas. & Gen. Ins., Ltd. (9th Cir 2001) 239 F3d 1000, 1002 ; Beckham v. Safeco Ins. Co. of Am. (9th Cir 1982) 691 F2d 898, 905].

Exception:

Although the Ninth Circuit does not permit relief for oversight or inadvertence, at least of a litigant or counsel, one district court has granted relief in a case in which counsel had filed a jury demand and submitted it to a process server who, without any knowledge or fault on counsel's part, failed to serve the demand on the other parties in the case [Ruiz v. Rodriguez (ED Cal 2002) 206 FRD 501, 504-505].

13.13 Obtaining Relief From Court's Denial of Jury Trial.

13.13[1] File Petition for Writ of Mandamus. An order denying a claimed right to a jury trial is reviewable by petition for a writ of mandamus [Dairy Queen, Inc. v. Wood (1962) 369 US 469, 480, 82 S Ct 894, 8 L Ed2d 44 ; Owens-Illinois, Inc. v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 1983) 698 F2d 967, 969 ; see 28 USC § 1651].

Generally, ordinary reversible error by the district court is insufficient to justify the issuance of a writ of mandamus; the petitioner must establish a clear and indisputable right to the writ, such as by showing the district court abused its power or discretion [see, e.g., Bankers Life & Cas. Co. v. Holland (1953) 346 US 379, 382-384, 74 S Ct 145, 98 L Ed 106]. This substantial burden is always met in a case involving the denial of a jury trial, which is so important and fundamental that the only question before the appellate courts is whether the district court erred in denying the request for a jury trial [Wilmington Trust v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 1991) 934 F2d 1026, 1028].

Strategic Point--Petitioner:

If a writ of mandamus is sought and denied on the merits, the decision to deny a jury trial becomes the law of the case, and the issue ordinarily will not be reconsidered on appeal from the final judgment [see Maldonado v. Flynn (2d Cir 1982) 671 F2d 729, 732]. This makes the decision to pursue mandamus difficult, as courts often deal with mandamus petitions summarily.

Cross Reference:

Use of writ of mandamus, see 19 Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 204, Extraordinary Writs (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

13.13[2] File Petition for Interlocutory Appeal.

13.13[2][a] Interlocutory Appeal Available at Discretion of Appellate Court. As an alternative to mandamus review, a denial by the trial court of a claimed right to a jury trial may be reviewed on interlocutory appeal, if the district court certifies its order for appeal, and the court of appeals exercises its discretion to hear the appeal [see 28

USC § 1292(b); see, e.g., McLaughlin v. Owens Plastering Co. (9th Cir 1988) 841 F2d 299, 299].

13.13[2][b] Request Trial Court to Certify Order for Appeal. If the district judge is of the opinion that (1) an interlocutory order denying a jury trial involves a controlling question of law as to which there is substantial ground for difference of opinion, and that (2) an immediate appeal from the order may materially advance the ultimate determination of the litigation, he or she must so state in writing in the order [28 USC § 1292(b)].

Strategic Point--Appellant:

The party seeking district court certification for interlocutory appeal of an order denying a jury trial should point out that if it succeeds on appeal after a bench trial, a new trial would be mandated, so an interlocutory appeal could result in the conservation of judicial resources.

13.13[2][c] File Application for Interlocutory Appeal With Court of Appeals. On application to the court of appeals within 10 days after entry of the district court's order, the court of appeals has discretion to permit an appeal to be taken from the order [28 USC § 1292(b)].

Cross Reference:

Review of interlocutory orders, see 19 Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 203, Interlocutory Orders (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

13.13[3] Take Appeal From Final Judgment. A denial by the trial court of a claimed right to a jury trial may be reviewed on appeal from the final judgment [see, e.g., California Scents v. Surco Prods., Inc. (9th Cir 2005) 406 F3d 1102], absent conduct of the parties that makes it clear that they have waived any claimed the right to a jury trial [National Union Elec. Corp. v. Wilson (6th Cir 1970) 434 F2d 986, 988]. The erroneous denial of a jury trial is subject to harmless error analysis; a denial is harmless only when no reasonable jury could have found for the losing party and a directed verdict could have been granted for the prevailing party [California Scents v. Surco Prods., Inc. (9th Cir 2005) 406 F3d 1102, 1109 ; Fuller v. City of Oakland (9th Cir 1995) 47 F3d 1522, 1531].

Consider:

If a writ of mandamus is sought and denied on the merits, the decision to deny a jury trial becomes the law of the case, and the issue ordinarily will not be reconsidered on appeal from the final judgment [see Maldonado v. Flynn (2d Cir 1982) 671 F2d 729, 732].

Warning:

Although denominated a "waiver" of jury trial [see Fed R Civ P 38(d)], the forfeiture of jury rights that results from a failure to make a timely jury demand does not prevent a party from appealing the trial court's denial of a jury trial [see National Union Elec. Corp. v. Wilson (6th Cir 1970) 434 F2d 986, 988]. However, an actual, affirmative waiver of jury rights (such as by participating without objection in a bench trial) will result in the loss of the right to appeal from the trial court's denial of a jury trial [see White v. McGinnis (9th Cir 1990) 903 F2d 699, 703 (en banc)]. Therefore, if the trial court denies a jury trial, counsel should make a clear objection on the record before participating in a bench trial.

CHAPTER 13 Demanding a Jury Trial
IV. WITHDRAWING JURY DEMAND

2-13 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 13.15

13.15 Consent of Affected Parties Is Required.

Once a party has demanded a jury trial, the demand may be withdrawn only with the consent of all affected parties or their attorneys of record [Fed R Civ P 38(d)].

Exception:

A party that opposed a jury demand cannot be said to have relied on that demand, and the consent of that party is not needed for the demand to be validly withdrawn before the start of trial [Reid Bros. Logging Co. v. Ketchikan Pulp Co. (9th Cir 1983) 699 F2d 1292, 1304]. However, this exception ceases to apply once trial has begun; a party cannot allow a jury trial to proceed and then unilaterally withdraw its jury demand, simply because the other party initially opposed the demand [Fuller v. City of Oakland (9th Cir 1995) 47 F3d 1522, 1531-1532].

Distinguish:

Fed R Civ P 38(d) appears to give each party to the action an effective veto over the withdrawal of a previously filed jury demand. However, a party's consent to withdrawal of a jury demand is required only to the extent that the demand covered that party's issues, so that the party would have been entitled to rely on the demand. If a party is unaffected by a jury demand as to certain issues, its consent to withdrawal as to those issues is not required [see Rosen v. Dick (2d Cir 1980) 639 F2d 82, 92 (citing Moore's); see also Reid Bros. Logging Co. v. Ketchikan Pulp Co. (9th Cir 1983) 699 F2d 1292, 1304].

Unit 3 Pleading Stage
CHAPTER 13 Demanding a Jury Trial
V. OBTAINING ADVISORY JURY

2-13 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 13.18

13.18 Determine Whether to Request Advisory Jury.

13.18[1] Court's Power to Use Advisory Jury. In any action not triable of right by a jury, the court, on motion or on its own initiative, may try any issue with an advisory jury [Fed R Civ P 39(c)(1); see Poston v. United States (D Haw 1966) 262 F Supp 22, 24].

The use of an advisory jury is wholly discretionary, and the trial court's action on a request for an advisory jury is not reviewable on appeal or by mandamus [Cox v. Babcock & Wilcox Co. (4th Cir 1972) 471 F2d 13, 14 ; In re Pan-American Life Ins. Co. (5th Cir 1951) 188 F2d 833, 834 (per curiam); McCook v. Standard Oil Co. (CD Cal 1975) 393 F Supp 256, 258 n2].

An advisory jury may not be substituted for a jury of right under the Seventh Amendment. If the trial court erroneously denies a party the right to a jury trial, the judgment will reversed and the case remanded for a new trial by jury, even if an advisory jury was impaneled and the trial court accepted the advisory verdict [Pradier v. Elespuru (9th Cir 1981) 641 F2d 808, 811].

Judge's Perspective:

Advisory juries are a bad idea. The risk of confusion is great. And if the judge disagrees with the advisory jury's result, this risks raising appellate issues. It also adds unnecessary time and expense.

13.18[2] Function of Advisory Jury. The function of the advisory jury is to enlighten the trial court. An advisory jury does not replace the court as trier of fact in the case; the responsibility for rendering a decision as the trier of fact remains with the judge, and the verdict of the advisory jury has no binding effect on the court [Wilson v. Prasse (3d Cir 1972) 463 F2d 109, 116 ; Frostie Co. v. Dr. Pepper Co. (5th Cir 1966) 361 F2d 124, 126 ; McCook v. Standard Oil Co. (CD Cal 1975) 393 F Supp 256, 258 n2].

Consider:

The court must make special findings of fact and separately state its conclusions of law; it may not simply enter judgment on the advisory jury's verdict [Fed R Civ P 52(a)(1)].

13.18[3] Use of Advisory Jury When Jury Trial Has Been Waived. Fed R Civ P 39(c) expressly authorizes advisory juries in all actions not triable of right by a jury. However, the Rule does not address the situation in which there is a jury trial right, but it has been waived. Nevertheless, there is authority to suggest that the court may use an advisory jury in such a case also [see Hargrove v. American Cent. Ins. Co. (10th Cir 1942) 125 F2d 225, 228-229; (American) Lumbermens Mut. Cas. Co. v. Timms & Howard, Inc. (2d Cir 1939) 108 F2d 497, 500 (citing Moore's)]. Thus, if the court denies a party's motion to be relieved of a jury trial waiver, the party may consider requesting an advisory jury.

CHAPTER 13 Demanding a Jury Trial
V. OBTAINING ADVISORY JURY

2-13 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 13.19

13.19 Prepare Motion for Advisory Jury.

13.19[1] Court May Empanel Advisory Jury on Party's Motion. The court may exercise its discretion to empanel an advisory jury on motion by any party [Fed R Civ P 39(c)(1)]. The motion should establish the following:

- Jury trial of right is not available on the particular issue involved [Fed R Civ P 39(c)].

- Exceptional circumstances exist, justifying the use of an advisory jury [see Moss v. Lane Co. (4th Cir 1973) 471 F2d 853, 855].

Cross References:

Form of motion for an advisory jury, see § 13.25. Coverage of waiver of jury rights by participation in a bench trial, see § 13.10[3].

13.19[2] Moving Party Must Show Unique Circumstances. Advisory juries are not favored, and the court's discretion to empanel an advisory jury will be exercised only in an exceptional case involving peculiar and unique circumstances [Moss v. Lane Co. (4th Cir 1973) 471 F2d 853, 855].

Circumstances that may tend to support the use of an advisory jury include the following:

- If an action involves both jury and nonjury claims or issues, the court may submit all issues of fact to the jury, which may act in an advisory capacity with regard to the nonjury issues [Poston v. United States (D Haw 1966) 262 F Supp 22, 24].

- Certain issues or types of claims are traditionally considered to be appropriate for jury resolution including questions of negligence in personal injury or wrongful death actions, and questions turning upon the credibility of witnesses. Thus, although the Federal Tort Claims Act provides that most actions against the federal government are to be tried by the court without a jury [28 USC §§ 1346, 2402], an advisory jury is not prohibited [Poston v. United States (D Haw 1966) 262 F Supp 22, 24 (quoting Moore's)].

Consider:

Some courts have declined to use advisory juries in Federal Tort Claims Act cases, noting that a verdict consistent with the court's views would be of no assistance, and giving any effect to a verdict inconsistent with the court's views would be an abdication of the court's responsibility [see, e.g., Wright v. United States (D Mont 1978) 80 FRD 478, 480].

13.19[3] Any Objection to Denial of Jury Trial Must Be Stated on Record. If the district court grants a motion for an advisory jury in conjunction with a decision to deny a request for a regular jury, the decision to deny a jury trial of right will be reviewable on appeal after final judgment [see Pradier v. Elespuru (9th Cir 1981) 641 F2d 808, 811]. However, to preserve an objection to the denial of a jury trial of right, counsel should make a clear objection on the record before participating in a bench trial with an advisory jury [see White v. McGinnis (9th Cir 1990) 903 F2d 699, 703 (en banc)].

V. OBTAINING ADVISORY JURY

2-13 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 13.20

13.20 Opposing Motion for Advisory Jury.

A memorandum opposing a motion for an advisory jury should establish either of the following:

- The particular issue or issues under consideration are triable of right by a jury, and the jury right has not been waived [Fed R Civ P 39(c)].

- If a jury trial of right is not available, there are no exceptional circumstances to justify using an advisory jury [see Moss v. Lane Co. (4th Cir 1973) 471 F2d 853, 855].

Examples:

Arguments that may help persuade the court not to use an advisory jury include the following:

- Empanelling an advisory jury would not provide effective assistance for the court, because a verdict consistent with the court's views would be superfluous, and giving any effect to a verdict inconsistent with the court's views would be an abdication of the court's responsibility to hear and determine the factual issues [see Wright v. United States (D Mont 1978) 80 FRD 478, 480 ; see also Fed R Civ P 52(a)(1)].

- A bench trial may result in a saving of the court's and the parties' resources, by eliminating the time and expense involved in selecting a jury, presenting the case to a jury, and instructing a jury.

- If the court has denied a request for a regular jury, the use of an advisory jury as a form of "compromise" will not eliminate the need for a new trial if the denial of a regular jury is reversed on appeal, because an advisory jury cannot be substituted for a constitutional jury of right [see Pradier v. Elespuru (9th Cir 1981) 641 F2d 808, 811].

The use of an advisory jury is wholly discretionary; therefore, if the court decides to empanel an advisory jury over a party's objection, that decision will not be reviewable on appeal or by mandamus [see Cox v. Babcock & Wilcox Co. (4th Cir 1972) 471 F2d 13, 14 ; In re Pan-American Life Ins. Co. (5th Cir 1951) 188 F2d 833, 834 (per curiam);

McCook v. Standard Oil Co. (CD Cal 1975) 393 F Supp 256, 258 n2].

Distinguish:

CHAPTER 14 Intervention

2-14 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 14.syn

§ 14.syn Synopsis to Chapter 14: Intervention

14.01 Scope.

14.02 Objective and Strategy.

14.02[1] Objective of Intervention Is to Make Nonparty a Party to Existing Action.

14.02[2] Nonparty's Need to Become Full-Fledged Party Depends on Many Factors.

14.02[2][a] Nonparty Is Rarely Obligated to Intervene.

14.02[2][b] Nonparty's Interest May Be Foreclosed by Judgment in Existing Suit, Even If Res Judicata Does Not Apply.

14.02[2][c] Nonparty's Interest May Be Represented Adequately by Existing Parties or by Amicus Curiae Status.

14.02[3] Timing of Intervention Is Critical.

14.02[4] Alternatives to Intervention.

14.02[4][a] Informally Assisting Existing Parties.

14.02[4][b] Requesting Existing Parties to Join or Add Nonparty.

14.02[4][c] Filing Separate Action.

14.02[4][d] Requesting Leave to File Amicus Curiae Brief.

14.03 CHECKLISTS: Drafting Motion to Intervene.

14.03[1] CHECKLIST: Drafting Motion to Intervene As of Right.

14.03[2] CHECKLIST: Drafting Motion for Permissive Intervention.

14.04 Scope of Intervention.

14.04[1] Intervention Gives Intervenor Party Status.

14.04[2] Nonparty May Choose to Intervene for Limited Purpose.

14.04[3] Intervention to Appeal Is Common Form of Limited Intervention.

14.05 Motion to Intervene Must Be Timely.

14.05[1] Timeliness Has No Fixed Deadline, but Is Measured by Circumstances.

14.05[2] Three Timeliness Factors.

14.05[3] Timeliness Requirement Construed More Strictly for Permissive Intervention.

14.06 Moving to Intervene As of Right Based on Federal Statute.

14.06[1] Statutory Right Must Be Unconditional.

14.06[2] Some Federal Statutes Provide Private Persons With Right to Intervene.

14.06[3] Some Federal Statutes Provide Government With Right to Intervene.

14.07 Moving to Intervene As of Right Based on Movant's Interest in Subject Matter of Case.

14.07[1] Four-Part Test for Subject-Matter Intervention As of Right.

14.07[2] Movant Must Have "Significant Protectable Interest" in Subject Matter of Action.

14.07[2][a] Significant Protectable Interest Has Two Aspects.

14.07[2][b] Interest Must Be Legally Protectable.

14.07[2][c] Interest Must Relate to Plaintiff's Claims.

14.07[2][d] Existing Parties May Amend Away Intervenor's Interest in Case.

14.07[3] Movant Must Have Interest That May Be Impaired Unless Intervention Granted.

14.07[3][a] Practical, Not Theoretical, Impairment Required.

14.07[3][b] Stare Decisis May Provide Practical Impairment.

14.07[4] Existing Parties Must Represent Movant's Interest Inadequately.

14.07[4][a] Movant Has Burden of Showing Inadequate Representation.

14.07[4][b] Adequate Representation Depends on Whether Party Will Make All of Intervenor's Arguments and Whether Intervenor Would Offer Additional Necessary Elements.

14.07[4][c] Comparison of Interests Is Key Consideration

14.07[4][d] Presumption That Representation by Government Entity Is Adequate.

14.07[4][e] Disagreements Over Litigation Strategy Do Not Establish Inadequate Representation.

14.07[5] Whether Movant Must Show Independent Basis for Standing Is Unsettled Question.

14.08 Moving for Permissive Intervention Based on Federal Statute.

14.08[1] Person May Be Permitted to Intervene When Federal Statute Confers Conditional Right to Intervene.

14.08[2] Some Federal Statutes Provide Private Persons With Opportunity to Intervene.

14.08[3] Some Federal Statutes Provide Government With Opportunity to Intervene.

14.09 Moving for Permissive Intervention Based on Common Question of Law or Fact.

14.09[1] Three-Part Test for Evaluation of Permissive Intervention Motion.

14.09[2] Even After Test Satisfied, Intervention Still Discretionary.

14.09[3] Federal or State Officer or Agency May Be Permitted to Intervene When Party's Claim or Defense Is Based on Statute, Regulation, or Executive Order.

14.09[4] In Exercising Discretion, Court Considers Prejudice to Existing Parties and Delay.

14.09[5] Courts Are Favorably Disposed to Intervention When Movant Can Make Contribution to Case.

14.09[6] Limited Intervention to Attack Confidentiality Orders Is Routine.

14.10 Requirements for Motion to Intervene.

14.10[1] Rule 24(c) Requirements for Motion.

14.10[2] Rule 24(c) Procedures Apply Regardless of Basis for Intervention.

14.10[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal--Motion Papers.

14.10[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal--Motion Papers.

14.10[5] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal--Motion Papers.

14.10[6] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal--Motion Papers.

14.10[7] Motion Should Have Factual Support, but Court Will Accept Nonconclusory Allegations As True.

14.11 When Suit Challenges Constitutionality of Statute, Party Must Give Notice to Facilitate Governmental Intervention.

14.11[1] Party Must Notify United States Attorney General When Federal Statutes Are Challenged.

14.11[2] Party Must Notify State Attorney General When State Statutes Are Challenged.

14.11[3] Court Must Certify That Constitutional Challenge Exists.

14.11[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal--Duty to Warn Extended to Challenges to Federal or State Regulations.

14.12 CHECKLISTS: Opposing Motion to Intervene.

14.12[1] CHECKLIST: Drafting Memorandum Opposing Motion to Intervene As of Right.

14.12[2] CHECKLIST: Drafting Memorandum Opposing Motion for Permissive Intervention.

14.13 Refuting Timeliness of Motion to Intervene.

14.14 Refuting Basis for Motion to Intervene As of Right.

14.15 Refuting Basis for Motion for Permissive Intervention.

14.16 LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal--Opposition Papers and Service.

14.17 LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal--Opposition Papers and Service.

14.18 LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal--Opposition Papers and Service.

14.19 LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal--Opposition Papers and Service.

14.19A CHECKLIST: Appealing Denial of Motion to Intervene.

14.20 Order Denying Intervention Is Appealable Final Order; Order Permitting Intervention Is Not.

14.21 Order Denying Intervention As of Right Reviewed De Novo.

14.22 Order Denying Permissive Intervention Reviewed for Abuse of Discretion.

14.23 Permissive Intervenor Must Have Independent Jurisdictional Grounds to Appeal Final Judgment.

14.24 Notice of Motion and Motion for Intervention.

14.25 Opposition to Motion to Intervene As of Right.

14.26 Opposition to Motion for Permissive Intervention.

14.27 Proposed Order Permitting Intervention As Plaintiff.

14.28 Proposed Order Permitting Intervention As Defendant.

Unit 3 Pleading Stage
CHAPTER 14 Intervention
I. STRATEGY

2-14 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 14.02

14.02 Objective and Strategy.

14.02[1] Objective of Intervention Is to Make Nonparty a Party to Existing Action. Intervention is a procedural device that authorizes a nonparty to an existing lawsuit to become a party to it. As a general rule, once admitted to a suit, an intervenor may litigate fully, to the same extent as an original party [see League of United Latin Am. Citizens v. Wilson (9th Cir 1997) 131 F3d 1297, 1304]. Thus, prior to moving to intervene, a nonparty must decide whether he or she has a real need to be a party.

14.02[2] Nonparty's Need to Become Full-Fledged Party Depends on Many Factors.

14.02[2][a] Nonparty Is Rarely Obligated to Intervene. No person may be compelled to intervene in any lawsuit, even if his or her interests may be severely affected by the outcome. It is up to the existing parties to join or compel joinder of all persons needed to make the judgment in the case feasible. In most cases, if a nonparty is not joined and decides not to intervene, he or she is not bound by any judgment and may relitigate his or her interests in a separate suit [Martin v. Wilks (1989) 490 US 755, 762-765, 109 S Ct 2180, 104 L Ed2d 835 ("Joinder as a party, rather than knowledge of a lawsuit and an opportunity to intervene, is the method by which potential parties are subjected to the jurisdiction of the court and bound by a judgment or decree")]. There are only limited exceptions to this general rule. These include representative suits, such as class actions, in which nonparty class members are bound by a judgment by against representative parties [see Fed R Civ P 23] There are statutory types of litigation that are brought by one party against the world, such a probate and bankruptcy proceedings, in which all claimants must participate or be barred [Martin v. Wilks (1989) 490 US 755, 762 n2, 109 S Ct 2180, 104 L Ed2d 835]. Another exception is vicarious liability. If the nonparty will be vicariously liable for the conduct of an existing party to a lawsuit, the nonparty may litigate the propriety of imposing vicarious liability in a separate suit, but will be bound by the liability judgment against the existing party [In re Dominelli (9th Cir 1987) 820 F2d 313, 317-318]. Apart from these exceptions, the nonparty might be better off not intervening, letting a suit go to judgment, and relitigating the nonparty's interests in a separate suit.

14.02[2][b] Nonparty's Interest May Be Foreclosed by Judgment in Existing Suit, Even If Res Judicata Does Not Apply. A party who does not intervene in an existing suit is not bound by any judgment in the suit [see Martin v. Wilks (1989) 490 US 755, 761-762, 109 S Ct 2180, 104 L Ed2d 835]. Nonetheless, as a practical matter, a nonparty's claim may still be foreclosed by a judgment in an existing suit. The most obvious example involves the application of the doctrine of stare decisis.

Example--Stare Decisis May Render Separate Litigation Futile.

When an existing suit will create a ruling on a legal question, under the doctrine of stare decisis, nonparties with claims or defenses turning on the same legal issue may, as a practical matter, have little to litigate following the court's ruling in the existing suit [see, e.g., Greene v. United States (9th Cir 1993) 996 F2d 973, 977 (substantial impairment of nonparty's interest may be present when precedential effect of ruling will be controlling)]. A nonparty's chance of getting a different result on a claim or defense presenting substantially similar facts to the facts in the existing case is remote [Natural Res. Def. Council v. NRC (10th Cir 1978) 578 F2d 1341, 1345].

14.02[2][c] Nonparty's Interest May Be Represented Adequately by Existing Parties or by Amicus Curiae Status. Even when a nonparty's interest cannot be protected by merely sitting on the sidelines and bringing separate litigation, a nonparty's interest may, as a practical matter, be fully and adequately represented by the existing parties. A court may deny intervention if the existing parties adequately represent a nonparty's interest [Fed R Civ P 24(a), (b)]. If a nonparty's interests are jeopardized by the existing suit, and if the existing parties do not adequately represent the nonparty's interests, amicus curiae status will not be sufficient. A court may not deny intervention in these circumstances merely by offering the movant amicus curiae status [see, e.g., Forest Conservation Council v. United States Forest Serv. (9th Cir 1995) 66 F3d 1489, 1498]. Nonetheless, if there are insurmountable obstacles to intervention, and if the nonparty wants to assert only legal issues, status as an amicus curiae may be sufficient.

14.02[3] Timing of Intervention Is Critical. An attempt to intervene will be successful only if it is "timely" [see Fed R Civ P 24(a), (b) ("timely motion" required)]. Timeliness depends on many factors. A court will balance the need for or desirability of intervention when it is asserted. The stronger the rights or interests, the greater the need to assert them in the existing case, the later intervention stays "timely." The stronger the prejudice to the existing parties from injecting a new party in the action, the earlier intervention becomes "untimely." Much of the decision concerning the timing of a motion to intervene is outside the hands of the movant for intervention--it depends on when the movant discovered the existing case and its issues. Thus, if a nonparty learns of the existing lawsuit only when it is close to trial, it may be too late, as a practical matter, to have the court agree to permit intervention.

14.02[4] Alternatives to Intervention.

14.02[4][a] Informally Assisting Existing Parties. A nonparty may consider assisting the existing parties to the litigation as an alternative to intervention, especially when a party and nonparty share similar, although not identical interests. A nonparty may assist the existing party by providing financial assistance, counsel, support staff, documents, technical advice, or witnesses.

Warning--Do Not Attempt to Control Litigation:

The nonparty must take care not to attempt to control the litigation, or risk being bound by the outcome of the litigation. Providing mere financial assistance will not be considered controlling the litigation [see Rumford Chem. Works v. Hygienic Chem. Co. (1909) 215 US 156, 160, 30 S Ct 45, 54 L Ed 137].

14.02[4][b] Requesting Existing Parties to Join or Add Nonparty. Decisions concerning the parties to the suit, and even motions to join necessary and indispensable parties are solely the prerogative of the existing parties to the suit [see Fed R Civ P 19, 20]. Without the cooperation or assistance of an existing party, a nonparty may insert itself into the action only by means of a motion to intervene [see Fed R Civ P 24]. As a practical matter, however, informal negotiations with an existing party may result in one or more of the existing parties amending their pleadings to join a nonparty. The standards for amendment of pleadings and joinder of parties are often less stringent than the standards governing a motion to intervene [compare Fed R Civ P 15, 19- 21 with Fed R Civ P 24].

Cross References:

Discussion of joinder principles, see Ch. 4, Determining Parties to the Action, 4.03 -4.19, 4.41 -4.51. Discussion of procedure for amending pleadings before trial, see Ch. 9, Amending and Supplementing Pleadings, 9.03 -9.11. Discussion of procedure for adding parties, see Ch. 10, Adding Dropping, and Substituting Parties, see § 10.04 -10.09.

14.02[4][c] Filing Separate Action. In some cases, the nonparty's interests may be protected most effectively by filing a separate action [see, e.g., Warren v. Commissioner (9th Cir 2002) 302 F3d 1012, 1014-1016 (separate taxpayer suit more advantageous because of "weighty nature" of movant's constitutional arguments)]. Furthermore, if the separate action is filed in the same court as the existing lawsuit, it may be possible to consolidate the actions and effectively achieve the same result as intervention [see Fed R Civ P 42(a)] Factors that determine whether intervention or a separate action is more effective include the following:

- Timing of the respective actions: When the original litigation will determine all related claims, a separate action will be practical only if the original suit can be stayed or transferred to the forum of the second suit, or if the second action can be decided first.

- Convenience of the forum: A different forum may be more convenient to the nonparty and may offer advantageous rules of law.

- Existing parties and counsel: In some cases, associating with or sharing control of the litigation with parties and counsel from the original litigation is not advisable.

- Court's prior rulings: The court's prior rulings in the existing action or in prior cases involving the same subject matter may dictate a preference for filing an independent action in a different forum.

Cross Reference:

6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 24.23 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

14.02[4][d] Requesting Leave to File Amicus Curiae Brief. As noted above, if a nonparty seeks to argue only legal issues, amicus curiae status may suffice in lieu of intervention [see 14.02[2][c]]. Even a party that has been denied intervention should consider seeking leave to file an amicus curiae brief [see, e.g., United States v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir 2002) 288 F3d 391, 400-401 (amicus curiae status granted after denial of motion for intervention although, on appeal, Ninth Circuit ruled amicus status insufficient to protect nonparty's interests); see also Newdow v. United States Cong. (9th Cir 2002) 313 F3d 495, 496-497 (although U.S. Senate unsuccessfully sought intervention under Fed R Civ P 24(a) in pledge-of-allegiance case, Court of Appeal was willing to accept the petition and brief as an amicus brief)]. However, amicus curiae status does not allow a nonparty to formally raise issues and does not provide a right of appeal [see, e.g., NGV Gaming, Ltd. v. Upstream Point Molate, LLC (ND Cal 2005) 355 F Supp2d 1061, 1068].

CHAPTER 14 Intervention
II. MOVING TO INTERVENE

2-14 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 14.03

14.03 CHECKLISTS: Drafting Motion to Intervene.

14.03[1] CHECKLIST: Drafting Motion to Intervene As of Right.

☐ Identify basis for intervention as of right as either:

- ○ Right conferred by federal statute; or
- ○ Interest in property or transaction that is subject of action.

☐ If basis for intervention as of right is statute:

- ○ Cite controlling statute; and
- ○ Explain how statutory right is unconditional, rather than merely permissive.

☐ If basis for intervention as of right is interest in subject matter of action:

- ○ Define interest as direct, legally protectable interest in the property or transaction that is the subject matter of the action.
- ○ Explain how disposition of action may, as practical matter, impair or impede movant's ability to protect that interest.
- ○ State how and why movant's interest is not adequately represented by existing parties.

☐ Ask for permissive intervention as alternative form of relief, including matters in checklist for motion for permissive intervention.

Warning--Nonparty Should Seek Intervention on All Possible Grounds:

Intervention as of right and permissive intervention are not necessarily exclusive. If a nonparty has a strong enough interest to warrant a motion to intervene, the nonparty should seek to intervene on all possible grounds, Whenever feasible, therefore, a movant should seek intervention as of right and, in the alternative, permissive intervention [see, e.g., Donnelly v. Glickman (9th Cir 1998) 159 F3d 405, 407 ; LG Elecs., Inc. v. Q-Lity Computer Inc. (ND Cal 2002) 211 FRD 360, 366 (movant entitled to intervene under either Fed R Civ P 24(a) or Fed R Civ P 24(b)); SEC v. TLC Invs. & Trade Co. (CD Cal 2001) 147 F Supp2d 1031, 1034].

☐ Argue that motion is "timely" by:

- ○ Explaining how and when movant first became aware of action and movant's interest in it;
- ○ Summarizing actions taken to bring intervention motion as quickly as possible;
- ○ Reviewing status of action;
- ○ Providing realistic estimate of delays, if any, that intervention will cause;
- ○ Evaluating any prejudice that intervention might cause to existing parties;
- ○ Comparing potential prejudice to existing parties with prejudice to movant if intervention is denied; and
- ○ Summarizing benefits that intervention will bring to court and all parties, such as any special expertise or access to relevant evidence that movant may possess.

☐ Attach declaration[s] establishing all facts set forth in argument.

☐ Provide legal authority for all relevant claims, such as claim that interest in subject matter of action is direct, legally protectable interest.

☐ Include a pleading setting forth the proposed claim or defense.

☐ If appropriate, request a hearing on the motion to intervene.

☐ If required by local rule, draft the proposed court order.

14.03[2] CHECKLIST: Drafting Motion for Permissive Intervention.

☐ Analyze possible motion for intervention as of right, and of seeking permissive intervention as alternative relief.

☐ Identify basis for permissive intervention as either:

- ○ Right conferred by federal statute; or
- ○ Common questions of law or fact or both between movant's claim or defense and main action.

☐ If basis for intervention is statute:

- ○ Cite controlling statute;
- ○ Explain how movant meets criteria for conditional right to intervene under statute; and
- ○ Argue how intervention in existing case will serve policy of statute.

☐ If basis for intervention is common questions of law or fact:

- ○ Provide details of common questions for movant's claim or defense and for existing suit;
- ○ Define how and why movant will benefit from presenting common questions in existing suit;
- ○ Review any potential prejudice to existing parties, including:
  - ☐ Comparison of potential prejudice to existing parties if intervention allowed with certain prejudice to movant if intervention denied;

☐ Explanation of any expertise or unique access to evidence that will aid rather than prejudice existing parties;

☐ Discussion of how addition of movant will not unduly complicate or delay proceedings.

○ Explain how judicial efficiency and consistency will benefit from resolving common questions in single proceeding.

☐ Argue that motion is "timely" by:

○ Explaining how and when movant first became aware of action and movant's interest in it;

○ Summarizing actions taken to bring intervention motion as quickly as possible;

○ Reviewing status of action; and

○ Providing realistic estimate of delays, if any, that intervention will cause.

☐ If necessary, include a detailed discussion of the legal basis supporting intervention in the accompanying memorandum of points and authorities.

☐ Include a pleading setting forth the claim or defense.

☐ If appropriate, request a hearing on the motion to intervene.

☐ If required by local rule, draft the proposed court order.

☐ Attach declaration[s] establishing all facts set forth in argument.

☐ Provide legal authority for all relevant claims, such as claim that interest in subject matter of action is direct, legally protectable interest.

CHAPTER 14 Intervention
II. MOVING TO INTERVENE

2-14 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 14.04

14.04 Scope of Intervention.

14.04[1] Intervention Gives Intervenor Party Status. The purpose of intervention is to obtain party status in an existing case. As a general rule, once admitted to a suit, an intervenor obtains the same rights in the case as an original party [see League of United Latin Am. Citizens v. Wilson (9th Cir 1997) 131 F3d 1297, 1304].

However, the presence of a nondiverse and not indispensable defendant intervenor will not destroy complete diversity [Mattel, Inc. v. Bryant (9th Cir 2006) 446 F3d 1011, 1013].

14.04[2] Nonparty May Choose to Intervene for Limited Purpose. There is no requirement in Rule 24 that a nonparty intervene for all purposes in every case [see Fed R Civ P 24]. Although Rule 24 is silent on the possibility, courts regularly permit nonparties to intervene for limited purposes only [see, e.g., Beckman Indus., Inc. v. International Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1992) 966 F2d 470, 472 (intervention for limited purpose of modifying protective order); Koike v. Starbucks Corp. (ND Cal 2009) 602 F Supp2d 1158, 1159] .

Example:

In a patent case, a nonparty successfully moved to intervene for the limited purpose of opposing the plaintiff's motion to amend its infringement contentions to include the movant's products. The district court allowed the intervention for that limited purpose [see LG Elecs., Inc. v. Q-Lity Computer Inc. (ND Cal 2002) 211 FRD 360, 363-366].

The Ninth Circuit has interpreted one intervention statute as authorizing only limited intervention. 28 USC § 2403(b) authorizes intervention by a state when federal court proceedings challenge a State statute's constitutionality. The Ninth Circuit held that this statute grants only the right to present evidence and make arguments as to the statute's constitutionality, and not the right to intervene as a party after judgment in order to appeal the judgment [Yniguez v. Arizona (9th Cir 1991) 939 F2d 727, 738].

14.04[3] Intervention to Appeal Is Common Form of Limited Intervention. If the original parties choose not to appeal a judgment, a movant may seek limited intervention to appeal, provided the motion is filed promptly after the entry of final judgment. Intervention for the purpose of appealing is not limited to representative suits [see United Airlines, Inc. v. McDonald (1977) 432 US 385, 396 n16, 97 S Ct 2464, 53 L Ed2d 423], but has been particularly common in such suits, including class actions, when the representative plaintiffs decide not to appeal from an adverse judgment [United Airlines, Inc. v. McDonald (1977) 432 US 385, 395-396, 97 S Ct 2464, 53 L Ed2d 423]. Of course, in class actions, unnamed class members need not always intervene in order to appeal. If the appeal concerns a court order approving a class action settlement, and an unnamed class member has appeared and objected to the proposed settlement, the class member may appeal without intervening [Devlin v. Scardelletti (2002) 536 US 1, 10, 122 S Ct 2005, 153 L Ed2d 27].

Unit 3 Pleading Stage
CHAPTER 14 Intervention
II. MOVING TO INTERVENE

2-14 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 14.05

14.05 Motion to Intervene Must Be Timely.

14.05[1] Timeliness Has No Fixed Deadline, but Is Measured by Circumstances. A motion to intervene, even one seeking intervention "as of right," will be granted only if the motion is "timely" [see Fed R Civ P 24(a), (b)]. There is no fixed deadline for whether a motion is "timely." Instead, a court considers all the facts and circumstances of a case and exercises its discretion, based on those facts and circumstances, to determine whether the motion is or is not "timely" [see NAACP v. New York (1973) 413 US 345, 366, 93 S Ct 2591, 37 L Ed2d 648].

Example:

Although the state of Hawaii "could have and should have" intervened earlier, in a § 1983 suit brought by Native Hawaiians against the Trustees of the Office of Hawaiian Affairs (OHA), the Native Hawaiians would not be prejudiced by the state's intervention two years after the appellate decision that each Native Hawaiian had an individual right to enforce the trust terms by filing a § 1983 suit. Considering "all the circumstances" of the case in ascertaining whether the state's motion to intervene was timely, the Ninth Circuit permitted intervention to allow further consideration of an important issue [Day v. Apoliona (9th Cir 2007) 505 F3d 963, 965-966] .

Mere passage of time, by itself, does not automatically render a motion untimely. The timeliness requirement also measures the interval between the time at which a diligent movant first becomes aware of the need to intervene and the time a motion to intervene is filed. For example, the mere fact of extensive settlement negotiations did not render a motion to intervene untimely when it was made shortly after the movant first realized that the existing parties were not, in fact, adequately representing the movant's interest in the case [United States v. Carpenter (9th Cir 2002) 298 F3d 1122, 1124-1125].

14.05[2] Three Timeliness Factors. The court will evaluate three factors to determine whether a motion to intervene is timely [see, e.g., California Dep't of Toxic Substances Control v. Commercial Realty Projects, Inc. (9th Cir 2002) 309 F3d 1113, 1119 ; San Jose Mercury News, Inc. v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 1999) 187 F3d 1096, 1101]:

- Stage of proceedings. This factor measures the amount of time that has passed since the commencement of the action. If pretrial proceedings are substantially complete and the case is ready for trial, this factor weighs against intervention [see League of United Latin Am. Citizens v. Wilson (9th Cir 1997) 131 F3d 1297, 1303]. On the other hand, if the parties have not taken depositions or filed any dispositive motions, intervention might still be timely despite the passage of a considerable period of time [see, e.g., Mountain Top Condo. Ass'n v. Dave Stabbert Master Builder (3d Cir 1995) 72 F3d 361, 369 (four years had elapsed, but with little activity by parties)]. A motion to intervene was also found to be timely when made during the discovery phase of protracted litigation [Nikon Corp. v. ASM Lithography B.V. (ND Cal 2004) 222 FRD 647, 649]. Although intervention for the purposes of challenging confidentiality order or for appeal are common forms of limited intervention, courts generally disfavor post-judgment intervention [see, e.g., Calvert v. Huckins (9th Cir 1997) 109 F3d 636, 638].

- Prejudice to existing parties. This factor is related to the stage of proceedings factor in that, if the parties have fully prepared their case and are ready for trial, any intervention that delays that trial or expands the scope of the proceedings is likely to be prejudicial to the existing parties [see Stallworth v. Monsanto Co. (5th Cir 1977) 558 F2d 257, 265]. However, the question is whether the delay in seeking intervention causes this prejudice, not whether intervention itself will delay the proceedings or expand their scope [United States v. Union Elec. Co. (8th Cir 1995) 64 F3d 1152, 1159 ; see, e.g., Day v. Apoliona (9th Cir 2007) 505 F3d 963, 965-966 (state's delay in filing did not cause prejudice to plaintiffs, because intervention did not interject new issues into litigation and practical result of intervention---filing of petition for rehearing--would have occurred whenever state joined proceedings); Smith v. Marsh (9th Cir 1999) 194 F3d 1045, 1051 (potential expansion of scope of case coupled with 15-month delay resulted in prejudice)]. On the other hand, there is authority for the proposition that the court may also consider the potential prejudice to the movant if intervention is denied [see, e.g., Reich v. ABC/York-Estes Corp. (7th Cir 1995) 64 F3d 316, 321]. Not all courts agree, however, that potential prejudice to the movant is relevant to the issue of timeliness [see, e.g., United States v. Jefferson County (11th Cir 1983) 720 F2d 1511, 1517].

- Length of delay and reason for delay. A movant must seek to intervene as soon as he or she knows or has reason to know that his or her interests might be adversely affected by the outcome of the litigation [California Dep't of Toxic Substances Control v. Commercial Realty Projects, Inc. (9th Cir 2002) 309 F3d 1113, 1120 ; see, e.g., United States v. Carpenter (9th Cir 2002) 298 F3d 1122, 1125 (intervenors acted as soon as they had notice that proposed settlement was contrary to their interests)]. The "timeliness clock begins ticking" from the time a proposed intervenor should have been aware that its interests would no longer be protected adequately by the parties [League of United Latin Am. Citizens v. Wilson (9th Cir 1997) 131 F3d 1297, 1307]. Therefore, a movant has an obligation to explain any obvious delay [see, e.g., Smith v. Marsh (9th Cir 1999) 194 F3d 1045, 1052 (intervenor offered no explanation of delay in excess of one year)].

Cross Reference:

6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 24.21 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

14.05[3] Timeliness Requirement Construed More Strictly for Permissive Intervention. There is authority for the proposition that a court should construe all requirements for intervention in favor of intervention [see, e.g., Arakaki v. Cayetano (9th Cir 2003) 324 F3d 1078, 1083 , cert. denied sub nom. Hoohuli v. Lingle, 540 US 1017 (2003) (parties conceded application was timely in this case)]. In applying this principle to the timeliness requirements, a court will be more lenient when a movant seeks intervention "as of right" [see United States v. Oregon (9th Cir 1984) 745 F2d 550, 552]. In contrast, a court will be less lenient when a movant seeks permissive intervention [see League of United Latin Am. Citizens v. Wilson (9th Cir 1997) 131 F3d 1297, 1308].

14.06 Moving to Intervene As of Right Based on Federal Statute.

14.06[1] Statutory Right Must Be Unconditional. A nonparty may intervene "as of right" in existing litigation when "a statute of the United States confers an unconditional right to intervene" [Fed R Civ P 24(a)(1)]. If the statute requires the nonparty to fulfill prerequisites, or even to prove that he or she has an interest in the action that has or may be impaired or impeded, then the statute provides only a conditional right to intervene [see, e.g., United States v. Union Elec. Co. (8th Cir 1995) 64 F3d 1152, 1157-1168 ; see California Dep't of Toxic Substances Control v. Commercial Realty Projects, Inc. (9th Cir 2002) 309 F3d 1113, 1118-1119 (intervention must be judged by Fed R Civ P 24(a)(2) standards, not by Fed R Civ P 24(a)(1) standards)].

14.06[2] Some Federal Statutes Provide Private Persons With Right to Intervene. The following federal statutes are among those that provide private persons with an unconditional right to intervene:

- Judicial Review of Agency Order. A person adversely affected by an agency proceeding has a direct right of judicial review [see 5 USC § 702]. Communities, associations, corporations, firms, or individuals whose interests would be affected by an agency order, but who were not joined as parties to the agency proceeding, may intervene in the judicial review process [see 28 USC § 2348].

- Enforcement of Environmental Statute. Private persons may intervene in government suits to enforce the provisions of various environmental statutes, if the private persons would have been entitled to bring "citizen's suits" in the absence of governmental action [see, e.g., 42 USC § 4911(b)(1)(B) (noise control action); 42 USC § 6972(b)(1) (hazardous waste action); 30 USC § 1270(b)(1)(B) (surface coal mining environmental regulations)].

- Civil Rights Actions. A person aggrieved may intervene in a civil rights action brought by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission or in an action brought by the United States Attorney General that involves a political entity [see 42 USC § 2000e-5(f)(1)]. Many of the procedures of the Civil Rights Act have been incorporated into the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990. Thus, a person alleging discrimination on the basis of disability may intervene in a related action brought by the EEOC or the Attorney General [see 42 USC § 12117(a) (incorporating by reference 42 USC § 2000e-5)].

- FHA Actions. A person aggrieved by an alleged violation of the Fair Housing Act may intervene in an action brought on his or her behalf by the Attorney General [see 42 USC § 3612(o)(2)]. Similarly, an aggrieved party may intervene when the Attorney General brings an action to remedy discriminatory housing practices that are part of a "pattern or practice" of resistance to the full enjoyment of rights protected under the Constitution or federal laws [see 42 USC § 3614(a), (b), (e)].

- Bankruptcy Trustee. The trustee of the debtor's estate in a Chapter 11 bankruptcy case may intervene in a proceeding before the Tax Court to which the debtor is a party. Intervention in such a case is solely on behalf of the debtor's estate [see 26 USC § 7464].

- Surface Transportation Board Actions. Interested communities, associations, corporations, firms, or individuals may intervene in a proceeding or judicial action brought by the Attorney General that relates to an order of the Surface Transportation Board (formerly the ICC). Such an action may be to enjoin or suspend a rule, regulation, or order, or to enforce an order that does not involve the payment of money or collection of fines. The Attorney General cannot discontinue the action over the objection of an intervenor, who may prosecute, defend, or continue the action regardless of the Attorney General's "action or nonaction" [see 28 USC §§ 2321, 2323].

- FCC Hearings. Parties interested in the outcome of a Federal Communications Commission license hearing may "acquire the status of a party to the proceeding" by filing a petition that shows the basis for their interest. The movant and all parties in interest are entitled to participate in the hearing [see 47 USC § 309(e)].

14.06[3] Some Federal Statutes Provide Government With Right to Intervene. The following federal statutes are among those that provide the government and government agencies with an unconditional right to intervene:

- Private Civil Rights Actions. When a private civil rights action is certified by the Attorney General to be of general public importance, the federal government may intervene [see 42 USC § 2000h-2].

- Private ERISA Actions. When a private action under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA) is brought for a purpose other than for the recovery of benefits due under an employee benefit plan, the Secretary of Labor and the Secretary of the Treasury must be served with a copy of the complaint by certified mail. The Secretary of Labor may intervene of right in such an action, and the Secretary of the Treasury may intervene unless the action is brought under the fiduciary responsibility section of the federal labor statutes [see 29 USC § 1132(h)].

- Patent and Trademark Cases. When a party to an interference is dissatisfied with a decision of the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences and commences a civil suit for relief, the Director of Patents may intervene [see 35 USC § 146]. The Director of Patents may also intervene when a movant for registration of a trademark appeals a decision of the Director or a decision of the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board [see 15 USC § 1071].

- Private Action Under False Claims Act. A private person may bring an action in the name of the government under the False Claims Act, which provides a claim for relief for knowingly making a false or fraudulent claim when seeking payment from the government. In such a case, the Attorney General must be provided with a copy of the complaint and written disclosure of substantially all material evidence. The Attorney General may intervene as of right within 60 days from receipt of these materials [see 31 USC § 3730(b)(2)].

- Private Action to Enforce Deepwater Ports Regulation. A private person may bring an action requesting equitable relief for the violation of deepwater ports regulations, if the Secretary of Transportation or Attorney General are not diligently prosecuting such an action in federal court. The Secretary of Transportation or the Attorney General may intervene in such an action [see 33 USC § 1515(b)(1)].

- Challenge to Constitutionality of Federal Statute Affecting Public Interest. The United States may intervene when the constitutionality of a federal statute affecting the public interest is at issue, and the United States or an agency, officer, or employee thereof is not initially made a party to the action. The court must notify the Attorney General in such a case, and permit the United States to present evidence and argue the constitutionality issue [28 USC § 2403(a)].

- State Attorney General Intervention When Constitutionality of State Statute Raised. When the constitutionality of a state statute is at issue, the state attorney general must be notified and given an opportunity to intervene, unless an agency, officer, or employee of state is already party to action. The state is given the opportunity to present evidence and to argue the constitutionality question [28 USC § 2403(b)].

- Senate Resolution: The United States Senate may intervene or appear as amicus curiae when directed to do so by a resolution adopted by the Senate [see 2 USC § 288b(c)]. The Senate may not intervene under this statute unless it demonstrates constitutional standing (minimally, that it suffered an injury in fact), by contrast to merely defending any statute enacted by Congress [Newdow v. United States Cong. (9th Cir 2002) 313 F3d 495, 498-500].

II. MOVING TO INTERVENE

2-14 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 14.07

14.07 Moving to Intervene As of Right Based on Movant's Interest in Subject Matter of Case.

14.07[1] Four-Part Test for Subject-Matter Intervention As of Right. If a federal statute does not confer an unconditional right to intervene, a nonparty may still intervene as of right if four criteria are met: (1) timeliness, (2) an interest relating to the subject of the litigation, (3) practical impairment of an interest of the party seeking intervention if intervention is not granted, and (4) inadequate representation by the parties to the action [Fed R Civ P 24(a)(2); see, e.g., DBSI/TRI IV Ltd. Partnership v. United States (9th Cir 2006) 465 F3d 1031, 1037 ; State ex rel. Lockyer v. United States (9th Cir 2006) 450 F3d 436, 440-441]. This test is conjunctive: to merit intervention as of right, all four criteria must be satisfied [Nikon Corp. v. ASM Lithography B.V. (ND Cal 2004) 222 FRD 647, 649]. The rule is construed liberally in favor of the proposed intervenor [Sierra Club v. EPA (9th Cir 1993) 995 F2d 1478, 1481 ; *W. Watersheds Projects v. U.S. Forest Serv. (ND Cal 2008) 2008 US Dist LEXIS 60529, at 7] . The timeliness requirement was analyzed in detail in 14.05. The remaining three requirements are analyzed below.

14.07[2] Movant Must Have "Significant Protectable Interest" in Subject Matter of Action.

14.07[2][a] Significant Protectable Interest Has Two Aspects. A movant must have an interest in the subject matter of the action in order to intervene as of right [Fed R Civ P 24(a)(2)]. Only an interest that is a "significant protectable interest" will justify intervention as of right, however. A movant has a "significant protectable interest" in an action only if (1) the movant asserts an interest protected by some law, and (2) the movant's interest is related to the interests asserted by the existing parties [see, e.g., State ex rel. Lockyer v. United States (9th Cir 2006) 450 F3d 436, 441; United States v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir 2002) 288 F3d 391, 397]. The interest asserted cannot be contingent or speculative [United States v. Acorn Eng'g Co. (CD Cal 2004) 221 FRD 530, 538].

Example:

In a case concerning grazing rights that arose under the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) [42 USC § 4321 et seq.], the district court denied the California Cattlemen's Association (CCA)'s motion to intervene. The court rejected the argument that when the private party will have some legal obligation under the laws at issue, that party may intervene as a matter of right, despite the fact that the underlying claims in the case were environmental claims that targeted only the government's conduct. The CCA did not have a significantly protectable interest in the question whether the Forest Service violated NEPA and the other statutes asserted [*W. Watersheds Projects v. U.S. Forest Serv. (ND Cal 2008) 2008 US Dist LEXIS 60529, at *12-15] .

14.07[2][b] Interest Must Be Legally Protectable. The movant must assert an interest that is protected under some law [see Dilks v. Aloha Airlines, Inc. (9th Cir 1981) 642 F2d 1155, 1157]; that interest must be one that a substantive law recognizes as belonging to or being owned by the movant [United States v. Acorn Eng'g Co. (CD Cal 2004) 221 FRD 530, 538].

The "interest" test is not clear-cut because no specific legal or equitable interest need be established [United States v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir 2002) 288 F3d 391, 398 ; Southwest Ctr. for Biological Diversity v. Berg (9th Cir 2001) 268 F3d 810, 818 ; Portland Audubon Soc'y v. Hodel (9th Cir 1989) 866 F2d 302, 308]. Rather, the "interest" test directs courts to make a threshold inquiry. It is primarily a practical guide to reducing the number of lawsuits by involving as many apparently concerned persons as is compatible with efficiency and due process in a single suit [United States v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir 2002) 288 F3d 391, 398 ; Hilao v. Estate of Marcos (In re Estate of Ferdinand E. Marcos Human Rights Litig.) (9th Cir 2008) 536 F.3d 980, 984-985]. Obviously, a movant with a direct property interest in the subject matter of an action has a sufficient interest [see, e.g., N.L. Indus. v. Secretary of the Interior (9th Cir 1985) 777 F2d 433, 435 (movant had mining claim in direct competition with mining claims being litigated)]. However, not every general economic interest is sufficient [see Greene v. United States (9th Cir 1993) 996 F2d 973, 976].

An economic interest must be both concrete and specifically related to the underlying subject matter of the action to trigger the right to intervene. For example, landowners had a "significant protectable interest" in not having their property executed upon pursuant to a judgment that had expired and, therefore, had a right to intervene in the extension of judgment proceeding [Hilao v. Estate of Marcos (In re Estate of Ferdinand E. Marcos Human Rights Litig.) (9th Cir 2008) 536 F.3d 980, 987] . Conversely, alleging a prospective impaired ability to collect a judgment arising from a past claim against the defendant does not by itself support the right to intervene [United States v. Alisal Water Corp. (9th Cir 2004) 370 F3d 915, 920]. Likewise, alleging a prospective loss in business income if litigation against the movant's sole customer is successful does not support the right to intervene in that litigation [Nikon Corp. v. ASM Lithography B.V. (ND Cal 2004) 222 FRD 647, 650-651].

An interest need not be economic to be protectable [see, e.g., United States v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir 2002) 288 F3d 391, 398-400 (union could intervene when consent decree between parties would contradict existing collective bargaining agreement)]. For example, a company would have a direct, protectable interest in litigation concerning pollution rules governing its own, particular industry, but not in general air quality standards [American Lung Ass'n v. Reilly (2d Cir 1992) 962 F2d 258, 261 (utilities denied intervention because injury to them was too contingent)].

Example--Injunctive Relief Directly Affects Intervenor:

A movant for intervention demonstrates a significantly protectable interest when the injunctive relief sought by the plaintiffs against defendant will have direct, immediate, and harmful effects on the movant's interests [LG Elecs., Inc. v. Q-Lity Computer Inc. (ND Cal 2002) 211 FRD 360, 365].

Strategic Point--Protectable Interest in One Phase of Litigation Might Support Limited Intervention:

A nonparty that has an insufficient interest in one phase of the action may nevertheless have a sufficient protectable interest in another phase of the same action. In those circumstances, an attempt to intervene may be more successful if the nonparty seeks only limited intervention in the applicable phase of the case [see, e.g., Churchill County v. Babbitt (9th Cir 1998) 150 F3d 1072, 1077 , amended, 158 F3d 491 (1998) (motion for intervention granted only with respect to remedial phase); see also Donnelly v. Glickman (9th Cir 1998) 159 F3d 405, 410-411, n4 (although proposed intervenors lacked interest in liability phase of plaintiff's action, they could theoretically still intervene in remedial phase)].

14.07[2][c] Interest Must Relate to Plaintiff's Claims. For intervention as of right there must be a relationship between the movant's legally protected interest and the plaintiff's claims. The relationship requirement is met if the resolution of plaintiff's claims will actually affect the movant [Arakaki v. Cayetano (9th Cir 2003) 324 F3d 1078, 1084 , cert. denied sub nom. Hoohuli v. Lingle, 540 US 1017 (2003) ; United States v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir 2002) 288 F3d 391, 398].

Example--Request for Similar Relief Does Not Establish Required Relationship:

Male employees sought to intervene in a sex discrimination case brought by female employees against the common employer of both groups. The male employees also asserted sex discrimination claims against the employer. However, the claims of discrimination against male employees were unrelated to the female employees' particular claims of hostile work environment discrimination. Because the male employees asserted a different form of gender-based discrimination, a resolution of the female employees' hostile work environment claims would not affect their discrimination claims. It was not enough that both groups asserted discrimination claims against the same defendants [Donnelly v. Glickman (9th Cir 1998) 159 F3d 405, 409-410].

14.07[2][d] Existing Parties May Amend Away Intervenor's Interest in Case. In some cases, amended pleadings, court orders, disclaimers, or waivers may narrow the potential scope of an action and thereby affect the availability of intervention. In ruling on a motion to intervene, the court must consider the intervenor's potential interest in the case as the case stands at the time of the motion, rather than assessing the movant's potential interest based on the original pleadings [see, e.g., Arakaki v. Cayetano (9th Cir 2003) 324 F3d 1078, 1083 , cert. denied sub nom. Hoohuli v. Lingle, 540 US 1017 (2003) (intervention as of right inappropriate after public trust claim raised by intervenor was no longer subject of plaintiff's action)].

Cross Reference:

6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 24.03 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

14.07[3] Movant Must Have Interest That May Be Impaired Unless Intervention Granted.

14.07[3][a] Practical, Not Theoretical, Impairment Required. A movant may intervene as of right only if the disposition of the action may, as a practical matter, impair or impede the movant's ability to protect his or her interest [Fed R Civ P 24(a)(2); see State ex rel. Lockyer v. United States (9th Cir 2006) 450 F3d 436, 441; Donnelly v. Glickman (9th Cir 1998) 159 F3d 405, 409 (in determining whether intervention is appropriate, court is guided primarily by practical and equitable considerations)]. The movant does not have to be bound by the judgment in the case. The movant need only show how his or her interest might be impaired or impeded, in some practical sense, by the judgment in the case [Fed R Civ P 24, Committee Note of 1966]. However, the emphasis is on practicality, and speculative or theoretical impairments are not sufficient [see, e.g., Elk Grove Unified Sch. Dist. v. Newdow (2004) 542 US 1, 12-18, 124 S Ct 2301, 159 L Ed2d 98, 110-113 (noncustodial father, who was barred by state law from acting as next friend to child, had conflicting view with custodial mother, who had sole right under state law to represent child); Southmark Corp. v. Cagan (7th Cir 1991) 950 F2d 416, 418-419 (foreclosure action against piece of real estate partnership's property had only speculative effect on tort claimant of partnership)].

14.07[3][b] Stare Decisis May Provide Practical Impairment. Under the doctrine of stare decisis, a movant's interest may be impaired or impeded, making separate litigation futile [see, e.g., United States v. Oregon (9th Cir 1988) 839 F2d 635, 638]. If a controlling legal issue will be determined in the existing suit, and if a movant's claims or defenses turn on the same legal issue, the movant may have little to litigate following the court's ruling in the existing suit [see, e.g., Greene v. United States (9th Cir 1993) 996 F2d 973, 977 (substantial impairment of nonparty's interest may be present when precedential effect of ruling will be controlling)]. A nonparty's chance of getting a different result on a claim or defense presenting substantially similar facts to the facts in the existing case is remote [Natural Res. Def.

Council v. NRC (10th Cir 1978) 578 F2d 1341, 1345].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of stare decisis, see 18 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 134.01 -134.06 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

14.07[4] Existing Parties Must Represent Movant's Interest Inadequately.

14.07[4][a] Movant Has Burden of Showing Inadequate Representation. A court will grant a motion for intervention only if the existing parties do not represent the movant's interest adequately [Fed R Civ P 24(a)(2); see, e.g., Californians for Safe & Competitive Dump Truck Transp. v. Mendonca (9th Cir 1998) 152 F3d 1184, 1190]. The movant bears the burden of demonstrating that existing parties do not represent its interests adequately [United States v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir 2002) 288 F3d 391, 398]. The burden of showing inadequacy is minimal. The requirement of inadequate representation is satisfied if the movant shows that representation of his or her interest by existing parties may be inadequate [Prete v. Bradbury (9th Cir 2006) 438 F3d 949, 956 ; Sagebrush Rebellion, Inc. v. Watt (9th Cir 1983) 713 F2d 525, 528].

Distinguish:

When a person is seeking to intervene as of right in an action under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act (CERCLA), the burden is on the government to show that the person's interests are adequately represented by the existing parties [42 USC § 9613(i); United States v. Acorn Eng'g Co. (CD Cal 2004) 221 FRD 530, 533].

14.07[4][b] Adequate Representation Depends on Whether Party Will Make All of Intervenor's Arguments and Whether Intervenor Would Offer Additional Necessary Elements. To determine whether the existing parties adequately represent a movant's interest, the court considers the following [Arakaki v. Cayetano (9th Cir 2003) 324 F3d 1078, 1083 , cert. denied sub nom. Hoohuli v. Lingle, 540 US 1017 (2003) ; United States v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir 2002) 288 F3d 391, 398 ; LG Elecs., Inc. v. Q-Lity Computer Inc. (ND Cal 2002) 211 FRD 360, 365]:

- Whether the interest of a present party is such that it will undoubtedly make all the intervenor's arguments;
- Whether the present party is capable and willing to make those arguments; and
- Whether the intervenor would offer any necessary elements to the proceedings that other parties would neglect.

Example:

In a voting rights action between the United States and the State of Georgia challenging redistricting plans, a three-judge district court allowed African-American registered voters in Georgia to intervene and present expert testimony on the ground that their "analysis of the ... redistricting pla[n] identifies interests that are not adequately represented by the existing parties" [Georgia v. Ashcroft (2003) 539 US 461, 123 S Ct 2498, 156 L Ed2d 428, 449].

14.07[4][c] Comparison of Interests Is Key Consideration The most important factor in determining the adequacy of representation is how the nonparty's interest compares with the interests of existing parties. When a motion for intervention and an existing party have the same ultimate objective, there is a presumption of adequacy of representation [Arakaki v. Cayetano (9th Cir 2003) 324 F3d 1078, 1086 , cert. denied sub nom. Hoohuli v. Lingle, 540 US 1017 (2003) , citing League of United Latin Am. Citizens v. Wilson (9th Cir 1997) 131 F3d 1297, 1305 ; see SEC v. TLC Invs. & Trade Co. (CD Cal 2001) 147 F Supp2d 1031, 1042]. If the movant's interest is identical to that of one of the present parties, a compelling showing is required to demonstrate inadequate representation [Arakaki v. Cayetano (9th Cir 2003) 324 F3d 1078, 1086 , cert. denied sub nom. Hoohuli v. Lingle, 540 US 1017 (2003)].

14.07[4][d] Presumption That Representation by Government Entity Is Adequate. A presumption of adequate representation arises when the movant's interests in a case are represented be a governmental body or officer charged by law with representing those interests [Arakaki v. Cayetano (9th Cir 2003) 324 F3d 1078, 1086 , cert. denied sub nom. Hoohuli v. Lingle, 540 US 1017 (2003) ; United States v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir 2002) 288 F3d 391, 401-402 (plaintiff United States adequately represented interests of community groups seeking to intervene in action against city based on alleged unconstitutional police misconduct in violation of federal statute)].

Distinguish--Presumption Inapplicable in Face of Actual Conflicting Interests:

The presumption of adequate governmental representation has not been applied to governmental parties who may have substantially conflicting interests with those of movants. This is particularly true when a governmental party and a movant are antagonists in the collective bargaining process if the governmental representative in an existing case is an employer and the movant is an employee or an employee union. The actual conflict of interest prevents the application of the presumption of adequate representation. For example, a defendant city was an inadequate representative of the interests of a police protective league in a suit brought in which the United States sued the city alleging police misconduct and sought an injunction against the city that would govern police conduct in the future [see United States v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir 2002) 288 F3d 391, 401-402 ; see also Sagebrush Rebellion, Inc. v. Watt (9th Cir 1983) 713 F2d 525, 528 (overcoming presumption when defendant U.S. Secretary of Interior had been president of legal foundation representing plaintiffs prior to his appointment)].

14.07[4][e] Disagreements Over Litigation Strategy Do Not Establish Inadequate Representation. When parties share the same ultimate objective, differences in litigation strategy do not normally justify intervention. Intervention protects interests in the subject matter of an action, not the interests of movants and movants' attorneys in controlling the strategy of any particular case [see United States v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir 2002) 288 F3d 391, 402]. A disagreement over the substance of the property or issues in dispute, by contrast to a disagreement in trial strategy, will support intervention [see League of United Latin Am. Citizens v. Wilson (9th Cir 1997) 131 F3d 1297, 1306 ; SEC v. TLC Invs. & Trade Co. (CD Cal 2001) 147 F Supp2d 1031, 1042].

14.07[5] Whether Movant Must Show Independent Basis for Standing Is Unsettled Question. The Supreme Court has declined to decide whether a movant attempting to intervene as of right based on its interest in the subject matter of an action must satisfy Article III standing requirements [see Diamond v. Charles (1986) 476 US 54, 68-69, 106 S Ct 1697, 90 L Ed2d 48]. The Ninth Circuit has stated that the standing requirement is at least implicitly addressed by the requirement that the movant must assert an interest that relates to the property or transaction that is the subject of the action [see, e.g., Southwest Ctr. for Biological Diversity v. Berg (9th Cir 2001) 268 F3d 810, 822 ; Portland Audubon Soc'y v. Hodel (9th Cir 1989) 866 F2d 302, 308 n1].

14.08 Moving for Permissive Intervention Based on Federal Statute.

14.08[1] Person May Be Permitted to Intervene When Federal Statute Confers Conditional Right to Intervene. On timely application, a court may permit a movant to intervene in an action when a statute of the United States confers a conditional right to intervene [Fed R Civ P 24(b)(1)(A)]. Even if a movant fulfills all of the conditions of a statute, however, there is no "right" to intervene. The statute merely informs the court that this is a situation in which Congress deemed that intervention might be appropriate.

Cross Reference:

6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 24.12[1] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

14.08[2] Some Federal Statutes Provide Private Persons With Opportunity to Intervene. The following federal statutes are among those that provide private persons with a conditional right to intervene:

- Bankruptcy: A "party in interest" may intervene in a case brought under the Bankruptcy Code on a showing of cause [see Fed R Bankr P 2018(a)].

- School Desegregation: A parent or guardian may intervene in a school desegregation action brought pursuant to the Equal Education Opportunities Act by showing that implementation of a court busing order poses a risk to the health or education of a child [see 20 USC § 1717].

14.08[3] Some Federal Statutes Provide Government With Opportunity to Intervene. The following federal statutes are among those that provide governmental entities or officers with a conditional right to intervene:

- Tax Lien: The United States may intervene in an action that involves property against which it claims a tax lien [see 26 USC § 7424].

- EEOC: When issues of public importance are involved, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission or the Attorney General may intervene in a private employment discrimination action [see 42 USC § 2000e-5(f)(1)].

- Civil Rights of Institutionalized Persons: The Attorney General may intervene in an action under the Civil Rights of Institutionalized Persons Act with a showing that the conditions that are the basis of the action are part of a pattern or practice of constitutional violations [see 42 USC § 1997c(a)(1)].

Unit 3 Pleading Stage
CHAPTER 14 Intervention
II. MOVING TO INTERVENE

2-14 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 14.09

14.09 Moving for Permissive Intervention Based on Common Question of Law or Fact.

14.09[1] Three-Part Test for Evaluation of Permissive Intervention Motion. If the application is timely, a court may permit a movant to intervene in a case when a movant's claim or defense and the main action have a common question of law or fact [Fed R Civ P 24(b)(1)(B)]. If the prospective intervenor's claim or defense contains no question of law or fact that is also raised by the main action, the court must deny permissive intervention. However, if there is a common question of law or fact, the movant has satisfied the preconditions of the rule, and the court has discretion to allow intervention [Kootenai Tribe of Idaho v. Veneman (9th Cir 2002) 313 F3d 1094, 1108]. Therefore, a movant who seeks permissive intervention must meet three threshold requirements [Southern Cal. Edison Co. v. Lynch (9th Cir 2002) 307 F3d 794, 803 ; Donnelly v. Glickman (9th Cir 1998) 159 F3d 405, 412]:

- The movant's claim or defense must share a common question of law or fact with the main action;
- The motion must be timely; and
- The court must have an independent basis for jurisdiction.

Distinguish--Direct Interest Not Required:

The movant for permissive intervention does not have to show a direct interest in the litigation, as is required for intervention of right under Fed R Civ P 24(a)(2) [SEC v. United States Realty & Improvement Co. (1940) 310 US 434, 459, 60 S Ct 1044, 84 L Ed 1293 ; see, e.g., Nikon Corp. v. ASM Lithography B.V. (ND Cal 2004) 222 FRD 647, 650-652].

14.09[2] Even After Test Satisfied, Intervention Still Discretionary. Even if a movant satisfies the threshold requirements, the district court retains discretion to deny permissive intervention [Donnelly v. Glickman (9th Cir 1998) 159 F3d 405, 412]. Because discretion is the essence of permissive intervention, courts grant or deny permissive intervention on a case-by-case basis [see United States v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir 2002) 288 F3d 391, 403].

14.09[3] Federal or State Officer or Agency May Be Permitted to Intervene When Party's Claim or Defense Is Based on Statute, Regulation, or Executive Order. A court may grant permissive intervention to a federal or state officer or agency when a party bases its claim or defense on a statute or executive order administered by the movant federal or state governmental officer or agency or on any regulation, order, requirement, or agreement issued or made pursuant to the statute or executive order [Fed R Civ P 24(b)(2)].

14.09[4] In Exercising Discretion, Court Considers Prejudice to Existing Parties and Delay. In exercising its discretion, the court must consider whether the intervention will unduly delay the proceedings or prejudice the rights of the original parties [Fed R Civ P 24(b)(3)]. There may be undue delay or prejudice when:

- Delay is inevitable and probably prejudicial because the motion is made at a late stage in the proceedings [see, e.g., Garza v. County of Los Angeles (9th Cir 1990) 918 F2d 763, 777], such as on the eve of settlement [Aleut Corp. v. Tyonek Native Corp. (9th Cir 1984) 725 F2d 527, 530].

- The movant seeks relief that may interfere with the relief sought by an existing party [see, e.g., Donnelly v. Glickman (9th Cir 1998) 159 F3d 405, 412 ; UMG Recordings, Inc. v. Bertelsmann AG (ND Cal 2004) 222 FRD 408, 415].

- Movant's claims would require court to decide new and complex issues [see, e.g., Venegas v. Skaggs (9th Cir 1989) 867 F2d 527, 531 , aff'd sub nom Venegas v. Mitchell (1990) 495 US 82, 110 S Ct 1679, 109 L Ed2d 74], or would otherwise render litigation "unmanageable" [see, e.g., Taylor Communications Group, Inc. v. Southwestern Bell Tel. Co. (5th Cir 1999) 172 F3d 385, 389 ; *W. Watersheds Projects v. U.S. Forest Serv. (ND Cal 2008) 2008 US Dist LEXIS 60529, at 16 (quoting Moore's Federal Practice for proposition that courts considering motions to intervene give primary consideration to trial convenience, equity, and judicial economy)]..

On the other hand, the court will not presume prejudice or undue delay. The original parties must make those claims and provide some sort of showing on them before the court will consider prejudice or delay as a basis for denying permissive intervention [Venegas v. Skaggs (9th Cir 1989) 867 F2d 527, 530 , aff'd sub nom Venegas v. Mitchell (1990) 495 US 82, 110 S Ct 1679, 109 L Ed2d 74].

Cross Reference:

6 Moore's Federal Practice § 24.10[1] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

14.09[5] Courts Are Favorably Disposed to Intervention When Movant Can Make Contribution to Case. In some cases, the movant may bring unique qualifications that will assist in developing the legal or factual issues of a case. Intervention is favored in such cases. One example is the Audubon Society's intervention in an environmental action involving strip mining. Intervention was favored because the Audubon Society has "a long-standing interest in and familiarity with strip-mining, expertise that may be helpful in clarifying the facts and issues" [Natural Res. Def. Council v. TVA (SDNY 1971) 340 F Supp 400, 408-409 , rev'd on other grounds, 459 F2d 255 (2d Cir 1972) ; see also General Motors Corp. v. Burns (D Haw 1970) 50 FRD 401, 405 (intervenors had unique knowledge of Hawaiian auto industry and would help fully present facts in case)].

14.09[6] Limited Intervention to Attack Confidentiality Orders Is Routine. Nonparties may use permissive intervention to seek postjudgment modification or nullification of a confidentiality or a protective order [Beckman Indus., Inc. v. International Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1992) 966 F2d 470, 473]. Even this limited form of intervention requires the movant to show a common issue. In most cases, however, when the movant shows its interest in the information protected by the confidentiality or protective order, and shows how it intends to use the information, the movant will have shown sufficient common issues or fact or law [see, e.g., Beckman Indus., Inc. v. International Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1992) 966 F2d 470, 474].

This limited form of intervention may excuse the movant from showing independent jurisdictional grounds because the intervention attacks an order over which the court may already have jurisdiction [see, e.g., Beckman Indus., Inc. v. International Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1992) 966 F2d 470, 473].

CHAPTER 14 Intervention
II. MOVING TO INTERVENE

2-14 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 14.10

14.10 Requirements for Motion to Intervene.

14.10[1] Rule 24(c) Requirements for Motion. Rule 24(c) sets out a number of requirements for motions to intervene. These requirements do not differ substantially from the best practices required for all types of motions [see Fed R Civ P 7(b)], and include the following requirements [Fed R Civ P 24(c)]:

- Service. The motion to intervene must be served on all existing parties to the action in the manner set out in Rule 5 [see Fed R Civ P 5(b) (methods for service)].

- Statement of grounds. A motion to intervene must state the grounds on which it is based. All motions must do so, of course [see Fed R Civ P 7(b)(1) (all motions must be written and must "state with particularity the grounds for seeking the order")]. As noted below, however, the federal district courts in California have differing requirements as to whether separate memoranda of points and authorities are required or whether the statement of grounds and the argument and citation of authorities must all be filed in a single document.

- Copy of proposed pleading. The motion to intervene must be accompanied by a pleading setting forth the claim or defense for which the movant seeks intervention. Although it is always best practice to include a pleading, courts have excused this requirement when limited, postjudgment intervention is sought to attack collateral orders, such as confidentiality or protective orders [see, e.g., Beckman Indus., Inc. v. International Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1992) 966 F2d 470, 474].

14.10[2] Rule 24(c) Procedures Apply Regardless of Basis for Intervention. Rule 24(c) does not distinguish between motions to intervene as of right and motions for permissive intervention.

14.10[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal--Motion Papers. In the Central District of California, no motion will be considered by the Court unless it meets the requirements of CD Cal Civ LR 7-4-7-8 [CD Cal Civ LR 7-4]. On the first page of the notice of motion and every other document filed in connection with any motion, there must be included, under the title of the document, the date and time of the motion hearing, and the name of the judicial officer before whom the motion has been noticed. The notice of motion must contain a concise statement of the relief or Court action

the movant seeks [CD Cal Civ LR 7-4].

14.10[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal--Motion Papers. In the Eastern District of California, the moving party must file with the Clerk a notice of motion, motion, accompanying briefs, affidavits, if appropriate, and copies of all documentary evidence that the moving party intends to submit in support of the motion [ED Cal Civ LR 230; see ED Cal Gen LR 101 ("briefs" include memoranda, points and authorities, and other written arguments, or compilation of authorities)].

14.10[5] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal--Motion Papers. In the Northern District of California a motion is limited to a single document not exceeding 25 pages in length, that must contain the noticed hearing date and time, a notice of the motion including date and time of hearing, a concise statement of the relief sought, and the points and authorities in support of the motion. Each motion also must be accompanied by a proposed order [ND Cal Civ LR 7-2(c)].

14.10[6] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal--Motion Papers. In the Southern District of California, each motion must be accompanied by a separate motion and notice of motion and another separate document captioned "Memorandum of Points and Authorities in support of [the motion]." When appropriate, a separate statement of material facts must be supplied [SD Cal Civ LR 7.1(f.1)]. A movant's failure to file any papers required under the local rules may be deemed as a waiver of the motion, or other request for ruling by the court [SD Cal Civ LR 7.1(f.2.b)].

Cross References:

More detailed explanations of general requirements for motions, see Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see §§ 26.12 -26.36. Forms, see §§ 14.24, 14.27, 14.28.

Additional forms, see 4 Bender's Federal Practice Forms, Forms 24:2, 24:30 et seq. (Matthew Bender).

14.10[7] Motion Should Have Factual Support, but Court Will Accept Nonconclusory Allegations As True. The right to intervene does not depend on proof of the validity of a movant's underlying claim or defense, only its relationship with the claims or defense already at issue [see generally Fed R Civ P 24(a),(b)]. Even when moving to intervene as of right based on an interest in the subject matter of the action, the movant need not prove that its interest definitely will be impaired unless intervention is granted, only that its interest may be impaired [see Fed R Civ P 24(a)(2)].

As with every motion, the movant should support all factual claims needed to meet the procedural requirements of Rule 24 with declarations or affidavits [see, e.g., ED Cal Civ LR 230(h); ND Cal Civ LR 7-2(d); SD Cal Civ LR 7.1(f.2.a)]. However, the district court will accept as true the well-pleaded nonconclusory allegations made in support on an intervention motion or in a proposed complaint or answer in intervention [Southwest Ctr. for Biological Diversity v. Berg (9th Cir 2001) 268 F3d 810, 819-820].

CHAPTER 14 Intervention
II. MOVING TO INTERVENE

2-14 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 14.11

14.11 When Suit Challenges Constitutionality of Statute, Party Must Give Notice to Facilitate Governmental Intervention.

14.11[1] Party Must Notify United States Attorney General When Federal Statutes Are Challenged. When the constitutionality of a federal statute is drawn in question in any action in which the United States or an officer, agency, or employee thereof is not a party, the party making the constitutional challenge must file a notice of constitutional question stating the question and identifying the paper that raises it, and must serve that notice on the Attorney General of the United States [28 USC § 2403(a); Fed R Civ P 5.1(a)]. The United States has a right to intervene for the limited purpose of argument on the constitutionality of the statute in question [28 USC § 2403(a)].

14.11[2] Party Must Notify State Attorney General When State Statutes Are Challenged. When the constitutionality of any statute of a State is drawn in question in any action in which that State or any agency, officer, or employee thereof is not a party, the party making the constitutional challenge must file a notice of constitutional question stating the question and identifying the paper that raises it, and must serve that notice on the attorney general of the State [28 USC § 2403(b); Fed R Civ P 5.1(a)]. The State in question has a right to intervene for the limited purpose of argument on the constitutionality of the State statute in question [28 USC § 2403(b)].

14.11[3] Court Must Certify That Constitutional Challenge Exists. The court must certify to the Attorney General of the United States that there is a constitutional challenge to a federal statute, or certify to the state attorney general that there is a constitutional challenge to a state statute [28 USC § 2403; Fed R Civ P 5.1(b)].

Cross Reference:

Forms based on intervention by government; notification requirements, see 5 Bender's Federal Practice Forms, Forms 24:10-24:16 (Matthew Bender).

14.11[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal--Duty to Warn Extended to Challenges to Federal or State Regulations. If a party challenges a federal administrative regulation's constitutionality and neither the United States nor any of its officers, agencies, or employees is a party, the party making the constitutional challenge must file a notice. The notice must be filed immediately on making the constitutional challenge. The notice must identify the regulation in question and must set forth why and in what respect the party claims that the regulation is unconstitutional.

Thereupon, or sua sponte, the court must serve a copy of the notice on the United States Attorney General, on the United States Attorney, and on the other parties. If the party required to file and serve the notice fails to do so, every other party must file and serve this notice. As soon as one party has filed and served this notice, all other parties are relieved of this obligation [ED Cal Gen LR 132(a)].

A similar requirement applies when a party challenges a State regulation's constitutionality and neither the State nor any of its officers, agencies, or employees is a party. The party making the constitutional challenge must immediately file a notice with the clerk identifying the regulation and setting forth the nature of the constitutional challenge. Thereupon, or sua sponte, the court must serve a copy of the notice on the State Attorney General and on all other parties. If the party required to file and serve the notice fails to do so, every other party must file and serve the notice, provided that as soon as one party actually does so, all other parties are relieved of this obligation [ED Cal Gen LR 132(b)].

14.12 CHECKLISTS: Opposing Motion to Intervene.

14.12[1] CHECKLIST: Drafting Memorandum Opposing Motion to Intervene As of Right.

☐ Argue why motion to intervene is untimely:

- ○ Set out how long action has been pending and current stage of proceedings;
- ○ Explain how and when movant should have known of claimed interest in action;
- ○ Set out detailed account of time that elapsed between time when movant knew or should have known of interest in action and filing of motion, including all steps taken by existing parties in interim;
- ○ Estimate any delays in resolution of action that existing parties will suffer if intervention is granted;
- ○ Explain any prejudice to existing parties caused by intervention, with as many detailed examples as possible; and
- ○ Set out every new issue and argument that will be added to action as part of argument concerning unmanageability of action if intervention is granted.

☐ If motion based on statute:

- ○ Explain why statute is not applicable to movant's claim or defense;
- ○ Analyze statute to show that right to intervene granted by statute is conditional right, not unconditional right.

☐ If motion based on movant's purported interest in action:

- ○ Attack assertion that interest is protected by law;
- ○ Attack assertion that movant's interest relates to plaintiff's interest;
- ○ Argue that strength of interest is insufficient to justify intervention;
- ○ Explain that complications of intervention would add to existing suit, making it less efficient than separate litigation by movant;
- ○ Dispute contentions concerning adequacy of representation of movant's interest by existing parties.

☐ If appropriate, challenge admissibility or persuasiveness of any evidence offered in support of motion, including supplying counter-declarations and exhibits.

☐ If required by local practice, attach proposed order denying motion.

- ○ Set out every new issue and argument that will be added to action as part of argument concerning unmanageability of action if intervention is granted.

☐ If motion based on statute, explain why statute is not applicable to movant's claim or defense.

☐ If motion based on common questions of law or fact:

- ○ Dispute existence of each claimed common issue of law or fact;
- ○ Argue insignificance of each claimed common issue of law or fact to existing case as a whole;
- ○ Compare importance of claimed common issues with non-common issues in case as whole;
- ○ Enumerate all factors that establish prejudice to existing parties;
- ○ Enumerate all potential delays caused by intervention;
- ○ Assert any potential manageability caused by intervention; and
- ○ Argue suitability of all less-intrusive alternatives to intervention, from separate litigation to amicus curiae status.

☐ If appropriate, challenge admissibility or persuasiveness of any evidence offered in support of motion, including supplying counter-declarations and exhibits.

☐ If required by local practice, attach proposed order denying motion.

CHAPTER 14 Intervention
III. OPPOSING MOTION TO INTERVENE

2-14 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 14.13

14.13 Refuting Timeliness of Motion to Intervene.

A party opposing a motion to intervene should raise the issue of timeliness if any delay exists between (1) the point at which the movant knew or had reason to know of the litigation's potential adverse affects and (2) the filing of the motion [see California Dep't of Toxic Substances Control v. Commercial Realty Projects, Inc. (9th Cir 2002) 309 F3d 1113, 1119-1120]. A motion to intervene must always be timely [Fed R Civ P 24(a), (b)], and any adverse effects of the movant's delay should be brought to the court's attention [see Petrol Stops Northwest v. Continental Oil Co. (9th Cir 1981) 647 F2d 1005, 1010 (prejudice may be most important factor in determining timeliness)]. "[A]ny substantial lapse of time weighs heavily against intervention" [League of United Latin Am. Citizens v. Wilson (9th Cir 1997) 131 F3d 1297, 1302 , quoting United States v. State of Washington (9th Cir 1996) 86 F3d 1499, 1503].

Example:

Intervention was untimely when the motion was filed after the parties had settled, more than six years after litigation had commenced, and on the same day that a party moved for judicial approval of the consent decree [see California Dep't of Toxic Substances Control v. Commercial Realty Projects, Inc. (9th Cir 2002) 309 F3d 1113, 1119].

CHAPTER 14 Intervention
III. OPPOSING MOTION TO INTERVENE

2-14 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 14.14

14.14 Refuting Basis for Motion to Intervene As of Right.

An existing party may refute a motion for intervention as of right by challenging whether the movant has satisfied any of the requirements for the motion as set forth above [see Fed R Civ P 24(a)]. The following examples illustrate appropriate arguments:

- Movant's Interests Not Impaired: Community activists could not intervene as of right in an action brought by the United States against local law enforcement because their interests would not be adversely affected by any judgment in the action. No judgment in the action would prevent any individual from initiating a suit against the defendant local governments, law enforcement agencies, or police officers who engaged in unconstitutional practices, or against the city defendants for engaging in unconstitutional practices. No judgment in the action would in any way prevent community activists from continuing to work on police reform [United States v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir 2002) 288 F3d 391, 401 ; see also Cunningham v. David Special Commitment Ctr. (9th Cir 1998) 158 F3d 1035, 1037-1038].

- Movant's Economic Interest Too Speculative: A federally recognized Indian tribe could not intervene in an action brought by a nonrecognized Indian tribe against the United States. The unrecognized tribe sought federal recognition. The movants were concerned that federal recognition of the plaintiff tribe might dilute the movants' fishing rights under a federal treaty, but this speculation concerning potential future consequences of a possible judgment in the action was not a substantial enough interest to justify intervention. Federal recognition of the plaintiff tribe would not automatically revise existing treaties and treaty rights [Greene v. United States (9th Cir 1993) 996 F2d 973, 976-977].

- Movant's Interest Only That of Creditor of Party: Energy suppliers did not have a sufficient interest in an action by an energy provider against the California Public Utilities Commission seeking injunctive and declaratory relief based on the Commission's refusal to raise rates. The energy suppliers contended that the plaintiff owed them $260 million that the plaintiff was unable to pay because of the Commissioners' actions. The court refused intervention because the pending litigation would not resolve the movants' claims. A successful result might give the plaintiff more money, but it would not directly affect the creditors' claims. An unsecured third-party creditor of one of the parties to an action does not have a sufficiently direct interest in the action to justify intervention [see Southern Cal. Edison Co. v. Lynch (9th Cir 2002) 307 F3d 794, 803].

- Government Is Sole Proper Party: The federal government is the only proper defendant in an action to compel compliance with the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) (42 USC § 4321 et seq.) [Kootenai Tribe of Idaho v. Veneman (9th Cir 2002) 313 F3d 1094, 1108 , citing Wetlands Action Network v. United States Army Corps of Eng'rs (9th Cir 1999) 222 F3d 1105, 1114]; *see W. Watersheds Projects v. U.S. Forest Serv. (ND Cal 2008) 2008 US Dist LEXIS 60529, at *9-15 (even third party permit holders whose rights might be affected were not exempt from rule against private party intervention in cases that involve the government's compliance with NEPA, despite private party's argument that case involved more than just a NEPA claim)]. Whether intervention is allowed in an SEC action without the consent of the SEC is an unsettled question [see SEC v. TLC Invs. & Trade Co. (CD Cal 2001) 147 F Supp2d 1031, 1039-1040 (not addressing this question but citing conflicting authorities)].

CHAPTER 14 Intervention
III. OPPOSING MOTION TO INTERVENE

2-14 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 14.15

14.15 Refuting Basis for Motion for Permissive Intervention.

An existing party may refute a motion for permissive intervention by attacking whether the movant has satisfied any of the requirements for the motion as explained above [see Fed R Civ P 24(b)]. The following examples illustrate appropriate arguments:

- Movant Failed to Assert Common Question. A discharged attorney with a large lien for fees could not intervene in his former client's Section 1983 action. The attorney, as creditor of one of the parties, does not assert any question of fact or law in common with those already existing in the action. The situation is different only when reasonableness of fees award is being litigated [Venegas v. Skaggs (9th Cir 1989) 867 F2d 527, 530 , aff'd sub nom Venegas v. Mitchell (1990) 495 US 82, 110 S Ct 1679, 109 L Ed2d 74].

- Movant's Common Question Unrelated to Existing Claims. Landowners and assorted public officials could not intervene in action over regional environmental plan. The movants wanted to attack the standing of one of the parties, a regional planning agency, by asserting that it was not legally constituted. This issue was unrelated to the issues in the existing action [California v. Tahoe Reg'l Planning Agency (9th Cir 1986) 792 F2d 775, 778-779].

- Action Requires Prompt Resolution and Intervention Will Cause Delay. Intervention is frequently denied in voting rights actions, election challenges, and suits over campaign financing laws because those actions must be resolved quickly in order to permit elections to continue. Intervention may improperly delay resolution of these actions [see, e.g., Garza v. County of Los Angeles (9th Cir 1990) 918 F2d 763, 777 (candidate's intervention in voting rights action would improperly delay resolution); see also Daggett v. Commission on Governmental Ethics & Election Practices (1st Cir 1999) 172 F3d 104, 112 (challenge to campaign financing law needed quick resolution)].

- Movant Would Introduce Too Many Collateral Issues. A plaintiff's wife was not allowed to intervene in her husband's civil rights action. The plaintiff alleged that the search of his luggage by FBI agents violated his Fourth Amendment rights and sought damages as a result. Permissive intervention was denied because permitting the wife to intervene would have unduly expanded the litigation to include disputes over ownership interest in the luggage in question and tax liability of the various parties [Sellers v. United States (11th Cir 1983) 709 F2d 1469, 1472].

IV. APPELLATE REVIEW OF INTERVENTION RULINGS

2-14 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 14.20

14.20 Order Denying Intervention Is Appealable Final Order; Order Permitting Intervention Is Not.

A district court's denial of a motion for intervention is an appealable final decision [see, e.g., United States v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir 2002) 288 F3d 391, 397 (denial of motion for intervention as of right is appealable final decision); San Jose Mercury News, Inc. v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 1999) 187 F3d 1096, 1099 (denial of motion for permissive intervention in civil case is directly appealable)].

Distinguish--Partial Denials Not Appealable:

An order denying full intervention as of right but granting limited intervention for the remedial phase of the trial may not be appealed as a final order, because the intervenor may appeal the final judgment [see Churchill County v. Babbitt (9th Cir 1998) 150 F3d 1072, 1082].

An order permitting intervention is not a final order. The order is purely interlocutory and no statute makes it appealable. Therefore, an order permitting intervention is reviewable only on appeal from the final judgment [Alsea Valley Alliance v. DOC (9th Cir 2004) 358 F3d 1181, 1187]. Then, even if the district court erred in granting intervention as of right, the judgment will not be reversed unless that error affected the "substantial rights of the parties" [Prete v. Bradbury (9th Cir 2006) 438 F3d 949, 959-960].

IV. APPELLATE REVIEW OF INTERVENTION RULINGS

2-14 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 14.21

14.21 Order Denying Intervention As of Right Reviewed De Novo.

The Ninth Circuit reviews a district court's denial of a motion to intervene as of right de novo [see, e.g., Arakaki v. Cayetano (9th Cir 2003) 324 F3d 1078, 1082 , cert. denied sub nom. Hoohuli v. Lingle, 540 US 1017 (2003) ; Southern Cal. Edison Co. v. Lynch (9th Cir 2002) 307 F3d 794, 802].

Distinguish--Timeliness Finding Reviewed for Abuse of Discretion:

While a district court's ruling concerning the right of a movant to intervene is reviewed de novo, the court's findings concerning timeliness are generally reviewed for abuse of discretion [Southern Cal. Edison Co. v. Lynch (9th Cir 2002) 307 F3d 794, 802 ; Donnelly v. Glickman (9th Cir 1998) 159 F3d 405, 409]. However, if the district court makes no finding regarding timeliness, that factor is reviewed de novo [League of United Latin Am. Citizens v. Wilson (9th Cir 1997) 131 F3d 1297, 1302].

14.22 Order Denying Permissive Intervention Reviewed for Abuse of Discretion.

A motion for permissive intervention is directed to the sound discretion of the district court [San Jose Mercury News, Inc. v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 1999) 187 F3d 1096, 1099]. Therefore, a decision denying permissive intervention is reviewed under an abuse of discretion standard [see, e.g., Southern Cal. Edison Co. v. Lynch (9th Cir 2002) 307 F3d 794, 802].

Distinguish--Legal Rulings Still Reviewed De Novo:

Even though a district court's ruling on permissive intervention is primarily a discretionary decision, it may involve a ruling on a question of law. When the district court's decision turns on a legal question, the court of appeals reviews the legal determination de novo [San Jose Mercury News, Inc. v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 1999) 187 F3d 1096, 1100 ; see Beckman Indus., Inc. v. International Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1992) 966 F2d 470, 472].

14.23 Permissive Intervenor Must Have Independent Jurisdictional Grounds to Appeal Final Judgment.

Once a movant is allowed to intervene in an action, he or she is a party to the action [see League of United Latin Am. Citizens v. Wilson (9th Cir 1997) 131 F3d 1297, 1304]. Furthermore, a movant needs to show an independent ground for the district court's subject matter jurisdiction in order to be granted permissive intervention [see Southern Cal. Edison Co. v. Lynch (9th Cir 2002) 307 F3d 794, 803 (jurisdiction one of three elements); Donnelly v. Glickman (9th Cir 1998) 159 F3d 405, 412].

In the Ninth Circuit, a permissive intervenor must also have independent jurisdictional grounds on which to pursue an appeal of the final judgment in the case, absent an appeal by the party on whose side the intervenor intervened [Diamond v. Charles (1986) 476 US 54, 68, 106 S Ct 1697, 90 L Ed2d 48 ; Kootenai Tribe of Idaho v. Veneman (9th Cir 2002) 313 F3d 1094, 1109]. The permissive intervenor must also have independent Article III standing to pursue the appeal [see Kootenai Tribe of Idaho v. Veneman (9th Cir 2002) 313 F3d 1094, 1109].

Consider:

An interest strong enough to permit intervention is not necessarily a sufficient basis to pursue an appeal abandoned by other parties [Kootenai Tribe of Idaho v. Veneman (9th Cir 2002) 313 F3d 1094, 1109].

(2) Disclosure of Expert Testimony.

(A) In General. In addition to the disclosures required by Rule 26(a)(1), a party must disclose to the other parties the identity of any witness it may use at trial to present evidence under Federal Rule of Evidence 702, 703, or 705.

(B) Witnesses Who Must Provide a Written Report. Unless otherwise stipulated or ordered by the court, this disclosure must be accompanied by a written report--prepared and signed by the witness--if the witness is one retained or specially employed to provide expert testimony in the case or one whose duties as the party's employee regularly involve giving expert testimony. The report must contain:

(i) a complete statement of all opinions the witness will express and the basis and reasons for them;

(ii) the facts or data The material within the following brackets is overstruck in the original. [or other information] considered by the witness in forming them;

(iii) any exhibits that will be used to summarize or support them;

(iv) the witness's qualifications, including a list of all publications authored in the previous 10 years;

(v) a list of all other cases in which, during the previous 4 years, the witness testified as an expert at trial or by deposition; and

(vi) a statement of the compensation to be paid for the study and testimony in the case.

(C) Witnesses Who Do Not Provide a Written Report. Unless otherwise stipulated or ordered by the court, if the witness is not required to provide a written report, this disclosure must state:

(i) the subject matter on which the witness is expected to present evidence under Federal Rule of Evidence 702, 703, or 705; and

(ii) a summary of the facts and opinions to which the witness is expected to testify.

(The material within the following brackets is overstruck in the original. [C] D) Time to Disclose Expert Testimony. A party must make these disclosures at the times and in the sequence that the court orders. Absent a stipulation or a court order, the disclosures must be made:

(i) at least 90 days before the date set for trial or for the case to be ready for trial; or

(ii) if the evidence is intended solely to contradict or rebut evidence on the same subject matter identified by another party under Rule 26(a)(2)(B) or (C), within 30 days after the other party's disclosure.

(The material within the following brackets is overstruck in the original. [D] E) Supplementing the Disclosure. The parties must supplement these disclosures when required under Rule 26(e).

(b) Discovery Scope and Limits.

(3) Trial Preparation: Materials.

(A) Documents and Tangible Things. Ordinarily, a party may not discover documents and tangible things that are prepared in anticipation of litigation or for trial by or for another party or its representative (including the other party's attorney, consultant, surety, indemnitor, insurer, or agent). But, subject to Rule 26(b)(4), those materials may be discovered if:

(i) they are otherwise discoverable under Rule 26(b)(1); and

(ii) the party shows that it has substantial need for the materials to prepare its case and cannot, without undue hardship, obtain their substantial equivalent by other means.

(B) Protection Against Disclosure. If the court orders discovery of those materials, it must protect against disclosure of the mental impressions, conclusions, opinions, or legal theories of a party's attorney or other representative concerning the litigation.

(C) Previous Statement. Any party or other person may, on request and without the required showing, obtain the person's own previous statement about the action or its subject matter. If the request is refused, the person may move for a court order, and Rule 37(a)(5) applies to the award of expenses. A previous statement is either:

(i) a written statement that the person has signed or otherwise adopted or approved; or

(ii) a contemporaneous stenographic, mechanical, electrical, or other recording--or a transcription of it--that recites substantially verbatim the person's oral statement.

(4) Trial Preparation: Experts.

(A) Deposition of an Expert Who May Testify. A party may depose any person who has been identified as an expert whose opinions may be presented at trial. If Rule 26(a)(2)(B) requires a report from the expert, the deposition may be conducted only after the report is provided.

(B) Trial-Preparation Protection for Draft Reports or Disclosures. Rules 26(b)(3)(A) and (B) protect drafts of any report or disclosure required under Rule 26(a)(2), regardless of the form in which the draft is recorded.

(C) Trial-Preparation Protection for Communications Between a Party's Attorney and Expert Witnesses. Rules 26(b)(3)(A) and (B) protect communications between the party's attorney and any witness required to provide a report under Rule 26(a)(2)(B), regardless of the form of the communications, except to the extent that the communications:

(i) relate to compensation for the expert's study or testimony;

(ii) identify facts or data that the party's attorney provided and that the expert considered in forming the opinions to be expressed; or

(iii) identify assumptions that the party's attorney provided and that the expert relied on in forming the opinions to be expressed.

(The material within the following brackets is overstruck in the original. [B] D) Expert Employed Only for Trial Preparation. Ordinarily, a party may not, by interrogatories or deposition, discover facts known or opinions held by an expert who has been retained or specially employed by another party in anticipation of litigation or to prepare for trial and who is not expected to be called as a witness at trial. But a party may do so only:

(i) as provided in Rule 35(b); or

(ii) on showing exceptional circumstances under which it is impracticable for the party to obtain facts or opinions on the same subject by other means.

(The material within the following brackets is overstruck in the original. [C] E) Payment. Unless manifest injustice would result, the court must require that the party seeking discovery:

(i) pay the expert a reasonable fee for time spent in responding to discovery under Rule 26(b)(4)(A) or (The material within the following brackets is overstruck in the original. [B] D); and

(ii) for discovery under (The material within the following brackets is overstruck in the original. [B] D), also pay the other party a fair portion of the fees and expenses it reasonably incurred in obtaining the expert's facts and opinions.

Committee Note of 2010

Rule 26. Rules 26(a)(2) and (b)(4) are amended to address concerns about expert discovery. The amendments to Rule 26(a)(2) require disclosure regarding expected expert testimony of those expert witnesses not required to provide expert reports and limit the expert report to facts or data (rather than "data or other information," as in the current rule) considered by the witness. Rule 26(b)(4) is amended to provide work-product protection against discovery regarding draft expert disclosures or reports and--with three specific exceptions--communications between expert witnesses and counsel.

In 1993, Rule 26(b)(4)(A) was revised to authorize expert depositions and Rule 26(a)(2) was added to provide disclosure, including--for many experts--an extensive report. Many courts read the disclosure provision to authorize discovery of all communications between counsel and expert witnesses and all draft reports. The Committee has been told repeatedly that routine discovery into attorney-expert communications and draft reports has had undesirable effects. Costs have risen. Attorneys may employ two sets of experts--one for purposes of consultation and another to testify at trial--because disclosure of their collaborative interactions with expert consultants would reveal their most sensitive and confidential case analyses. At the same time, attorneys often feel compelled to adopt a guarded attitude toward their interaction with testifying experts that impedes effective communication, and experts adopt strategies that protect against discovery but also interfere with their work.

Subdivision (a)(2)(B). Rule 26(a)(2)(B)(ii) is amended to provide that disclosure include all "facts or data considered by the witness in forming" the opinions to be offered, rather than the "data or other information" disclosure prescribed in 1993. This amendment is intended to alter the outcome in cases that have relied on the 1993 formulation in requiring disclosure of all attorney-expert communications and draft reports. The amendments to Rule 26(b)(4) make this change explicit by providing work-product protection against discovery regarding draft reports and disclosures or attorney-expert communications. The refocus of disclosure on "facts or data" is meant to limit disclosure to material of a factual nature by excluding theories or mental impressions of counsel. At the same time, the intention is that "facts or data" be interpreted broadly to require disclosure of any material considered by the expert, from whatever source, that contains factual ingredients. The disclosure obligation extends to any facts or data "considered" by the expert in forming the opinions to be expressed, not only those relied upon by the expert.

Subdivision (a)(2)(C). Rule 26(a)(2)(C) is added to mandate summary disclosures of the opinions to be offered by expert witnesses who are not required to provide reports under Rule 26(a)(2)(B) and of the facts supporting those opinions. This disclosure is considerably less extensive than the report required by Rule 26(a)(2)(B). Courts must take care against requiring undue detail, keeping in mind that these witnesses have not been specially retained and may not be as responsive to counsel as those who have.

This amendment resolves a tension that has sometimes prompted courts to require reports under Rule 26(a)(2)(B) even from witnesses exempted from the report requirement. An (a)(2)(B) report is required only from an expert described in (a)(2)(B).

A witness who is not required to provide a report under Rule 26(a)(2)(B) may both testify as a fact witness and also provide expert testimony under Evidence Rule 702, 703, or 705. Frequent examples include physicians or other health care professionals and employees of a party who do not regularly provide expert testimony. Parties must identify such witnesses under Rule 26(a)(2)(A) and provide the disclosure required under Rule 26(a)(2)(C). The (a)(2)(C) disclosure obligation does not include facts unrelated to the expert opinions the witness will present.

Subdivision (a)(2)(D). This provision (formerly Rule 26(a)(2)(C)) is amended slightly to specify that the time limits for disclosure of contradictory or rebuttal evidence apply with regard to disclosures under new Rule 26(a)(2)(C), just as they do with regard to reports under Rule 26(a)(2)(B).

Subdivision (b)(4). Rule 26(b)(4)(B) is added to provide work-product protection under Rule 26(b)(3)(A) and (B) for drafts of expert reports or disclosures. This protection applies to all witnesses identified under Rule 26(a)(2)(A), whether they are required to provide reports under Rule 26(a)(2)(B) or are the subject of disclosure under Rule 26(a)(2)(C). It applies regardless of the form in which the draft is recorded, whether written, electronic, or otherwise. It also applies to drafts of any supplementation under Rule 26(e); see Rule 26(a)(2)(E).

Rule 26(b)(4)(C) is added to provide work-product protection for attorney-expert communications regardless of the form of the communications, whether oral, written, electronic, or otherwise. The addition of Rule 26(b)(4)(C) is designed to protect counsel's work product and ensure that lawyers may interact with retained experts without fear of exposing those communications to searching discovery. The protection is limited to communications between an expert witness required to provide a report under Rule 26(a)(2)(B) and the attorney for the party on whose behalf the witness will be testifying, including any "preliminary" expert opinions. Protected "communications" include those between the party's attorney and assistants of the expert witness. The rule does not itself protect communications between counsel and other expert witnesses, such as those for whom disclosure is required under Rule 26(a)(2)(C). The rule does not exclude protection under other doctrines, such as privilege or independent development of the work-product doctrine.

The most frequent method for discovering the work of expert witnesses is by deposition, but Rules 26(b)(4)(B) and (C) apply to all forms of discovery.

Rules 26(b)(4)(B) and (C) do not impede discovery about the opinions to be offered by the expert or the development, foundation, or basis of those opinions. For example, the expert's testing of material involved in litigation, and notes of any such testing, would not be exempted from discovery by this rule. Similarly, inquiry about communications the expert had with anyone other than the party's counsel about the opinions expressed is unaffected by the rule. Counsel are also free to question expert witnesses about alternative analyses, testing methods, or approaches to the issues on which they are testifying, whether or not the expert considered them in forming the opinions expressed. These discovery changes therefore do not affect the gatekeeping functions called for by Daubert v. Merrell Dow Pharmaceuticals, Inc., 509 U.S. 579 (1993), and related cases.

The protection for communications between the retained expert and "the party's attorney" should be applied in a realistic manner, and often would not be limited to communications with a single lawyer or a single law firm. For example, a party may be involved in a number of suits about a given product or service, and may retain a particular expert witness to testify on that party's behalf in several of the cases. In such a situation, the protection applies to communications between the expert witness and the attorneys representing the party in any of those cases. Similarly, communications with in-house counsel for the party would often be regarded as protected even if the in-house attorney is not counsel of record in the action. Other situations may also justify a pragmatic application of the "party's attorney" concept.

Although attorney-expert communications are generally protected by Rule 26(b)(4)(C), the protection does not apply to the extent the lawyer and the expert communicate about matters that fall within three exceptions. But the discovery authorized by the exceptions does not extend beyond those specific topics. Lawyer-expert communications may cover many topics and, even when the excepted topics are included among those involved in a given communication, the protection applies to all other aspects of the communication beyond the excepted topics.

First, under Rule 26(b)(4)(C)(i) attorney-expert communications regarding compensation for the expert's study or testimony may be the subject of discovery. In some cases, this discovery may go beyond the disclosure requirement in Rule 26(a)(2)(B)(vi). It is not limited to compensation for work forming the opinions to be expressed, but extends to all compensation for the study and testimony provided in relation to the action. Any communications about additional benefits to the expert, such as further work in the event of a successful result in the present case, would be included. This exception includes compensation for work done by a person or organization associated with the expert. The objective is to permit full inquiry into such potential sources of bias.

Second, under Rule 26(b)(4)(C)(ii) discovery is permitted to identify facts or data the party's attorney provided to the expert and that the expert considered in forming the opinions to be expressed. The exception applies only to communications "identifying" the facts or data provided by counsel; further communications about the potential relevance of the facts or data are protected.

Third, under Rule 26(b)(4)(C)(iii) discovery regarding attorney-expert communications is permitted to identify any assumptions that counsel provided to the expert and that the expert relied upon in forming the opinions to be expressed. For example, the party's attorney may tell the expert to assume the truth of certain testimony or evidence, or the correctness of another expert's conclusions. This exception is limited to those assumptions that the expert actually did rely on in forming the opinions to be expressed. More general attorney-expert discussions about hypotheticals, or exploring possibilities based on hypothetical facts, are outside this exception.

Under the amended rule, discovery regarding attorney-expert communications on subjects outside the three exceptions in Rule 26(b)(4)(C), or regarding draft expert reports or disclosures, is permitted only in limited circumstances and by court order. A party seeking such discovery must make the showing specified in Rule 26(b)(3)(A)(ii)--that the party has a substantial need for the discovery and cannot obtain the substantial equivalent without undue hardship. It will be rare for a party to be able to make such a showing given the broad disclosure and discovery otherwise allowed regarding the expert's testimony. A party's failure to provide required disclosure or discovery does not show the need and hardship required by Rule 26(b)(3)(A); remedies are provided by Rule 37.

In the rare case in which a party does make this showing, the court must protect against disclosure of the attorney's mental impressions, conclusions, opinions, or legal theories under Rule 26(b)(3)(B). But this protection does not extend to the expert's own development of the opinions to be presented; those are subject to probing in deposition or at trial.

Former Rules 26(b)(4)(B) and (C) have been renumbered (D) and (E), and a slight revision has been made in (E) to take account of the renumbering of former (B).

Unit 4 Required Conferences and Case Management
CHAPTER 15 Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures
I. STRATEGY

2-15 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 15.02

15.02 Objective and Strategy.

The Rule 26(f) conference (also referred to as the initial status, case management, or discovery conference) permits the parties to explore the nature and basis of their claims and defenses and the possibilities for a prompt settlement or resolution of the case. The meeting allows the parties to arrange for disclosures and develop a proposed discovery plan that reflects the parties' views. Discovery helps to remove surprise from trial preparation, enabling the parties to obtain the evidence necessary to evaluate and resolve their dispute. Discovery also narrows and clarifies the issues and facts that are in dispute and require trial. Thus, the initial Rule 26(f) conference is an important mechanism that can be used to streamline cases and promote judicial efficiency.

One aspect of the Rule 26(f) conference involves making or arranging for the disclosures required by Rule 26(a)(1). Rule 26(a)(1) requires parties to make "initial disclosures" of specified information early in the pretrial phase, without a formal discovery request from the opposing party. If it appears that a required disclosure is not appropriate in the circumstances of the case, objections may be stated in the Rule 26(f) discovery plan. Unexcused failure to make the required disclosures is a basis for sanctions.

Rule 26(a)(2) requires a party to make certain disclosures concerning expert witnesses without a formal discovery request from the opposing party. The key requirement is that the expert's report delivered to opposing counsel be complete, containing a comprehensive statement of all opinions to be offered by the witness, as well as the basis for the opinions, the data relied on, exhibits to be used, and other specified information. The expert will not be allowed to testify to opinions or matters not disclosed in the report. Note that questions often can arise concerning the discoverability of the data and information considered by the expert, some of which might be attorney work product. To the extent possible, counsel should avoid providing its opinion work product to any expert likely to be designated under Rule 26(a)(2).

II. SCHEDULING AND ATTENDING RULE 26(f) CONFERENCE

2-15 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 15.03

15.03 CHECKLIST: Preparing for and Attending Rule 26(f) Conference.

☐ Determine whether proceeding is exempt from Rule 26(f) conference and initial disclosure requirements.

Discussion:
See § 15.05

☐ If proceeding is not exempt, schedule initial conference of parties to be held at least 21 days before scheduling conference is held or scheduling order is due under Fed R Civ P 16(b).

○ Consult local rules, as well as individual judges' rules, regarding timing of initial conference of parties.

○ Seek guidance from the clerk of the court if unfamiliar with court or judge or unsure of their rules.

○ Review topics required to be discussed.

○ Note that generally, discovery must await completion of Rule 26(f) conference.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1), (d), (f)

Discussion:

See §§ 15.06 -15.08

☐ Ensure that appropriate persons attend the Rule 26(f) conference.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(f); ND Cal Civ LR 16-3; SD Cal Civ LR 26.1(a)

Discussion:
See §§ 15.12, 15.13

☐ Draft Rule 26(f) report and proposed discovery plan for consultation with opposing counsel and parties.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(f); ED Cal Civ LR 240(b); ND Cal Civ LR 16-9

Discussion:
See § 15.14

Form:
See § 15.37

☐ If appropriate, avoid or modify initial disclosure requirements.

○ Stipulate with other parties.

○ Seek relief from court from initial disclosure requirements.

○ Plan to object at initial conference, that initial disclosures are not appropriate under the circumstances of the case, and state objection in discovery plan.

Authority:

15.04 Options and Strategies.

Before attending the Rule 26(f) conference, take the time to prepare a list of everything you want, and try to anticipate any disputes in advance and have resolutions and tradeoffs to propose ready if disputes should arise.

Judge's Perspective:

Judges appreciate it when the parties not only have prepared a complete plan, but also have reached stipulated agreements on some issues such as stipulated facts, ways to shorten or expedite discovery, and anything else that indicates an attempt to be reasonable. In advance of the Rule 26(f) conference, think about concessions that you can make or ideas you can offer that put you in the role of the "good guy."

15.05 Specific Categories of Proceedings Are Exempt From Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosure Requirements.

The following categories of proceedings are exempt from the Rule 26(f) requirement that the parties confer to consider the nature of their claims and defenses, to consider the possibilities of settlement or resolution of the case, to make or arrange for the initial disclosures that Rule 26(a)(1) requires, and to develop a proposed discovery plan [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(B), (f)]:

- An action for review on an administrative record;
- A forfeiture action in rem arising from a federal statute;
- A petition for habeas corpus or other proceeding to challenge a criminal conviction or sentence;
- An action brought without counsel by a person in custody of the United States, a state, or a state subdivision;
- An action to enforce or quash an administrative summons or subpoena;
- An action by the United States to recover benefit payments;
- An action by the United States to collect on a student loan guaranteed by the United States;
- A proceeding ancillary to proceedings in other courts; and
- An action to enforce an arbitration award.

15.06 Generally No Discovery May Occur Until Parties Have Rule 26(f) Conference.

Except in exempted proceedings [see 15.05], or when authorized under the federal rules or by order or agreement of the parties, a party may not seek discovery from any source before the Rule 26(f) conference [Fed R Civ P 26(d)(1)].

II. SCHEDULING AND ATTENDING RULE 26(f) CONFERENCE

2-15 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 15.07

15.07 Timing of Rule 26(f) Conference.

15.07[1] Rule 26(f) Conference Must Occur at Least 21 Days Before Scheduling Conference or Order. The initial conference between opposing counsel mandated by Rule 26(f) is the parties' first pretrial conference [Fed R Civ P 26(a), (f)].

Timing:

Except in categories of cases exempted under Rule 26(a)(1)(B) [see 15.05] or when otherwise ordered, the parties must hold the Rule 26(f) conference as soon as practicable, and in any event at least 21 days before the Rule 16(b) scheduling conference is held or the scheduling order is due [Fed R Civ P 26(f)(1)].

Exception:

Local rules may provide for expedited schedules [see 15.07[2]].

15.07[2] Expedited Schedules May Be Required Under Local Rules. If necessary to comply with a court's expedited schedule for Rule 16(b) conferences, the court may, by local rule [Fed R Civ P 26(f)(4)]:

- Require that the Rule 26(f) conference occur fewer than 21 days before the scheduling conference is held or a scheduling order is due under Rule 16(b);

- Require that the written report outlining the discovery plan be filed fewer than 14 days after the conference between the parties; or

- Excuse the parties from submitting a written report and permit them to report orally on their discovery plan at the Rule 16(b) conference.

CHAPTER 15 Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures
II. SCHEDULING AND ATTENDING RULE 26(f) CONFERENCE

2-15 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 15.08

15.08 LOCAL PRACTICE: Scheduling of Rule 26(f) Conference.

15.08[1] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. The Central District has no specific local rule on timing of the Rule 26(f) conference.

15.08[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. After an action has been filed, the assigned judge or magistrate judge will order the holding of one or more status conferences for the purpose of entering a pretrial scheduling order. Further status conferences may be held at any time thereafter, with or without the request of any party [ED Cal Civ LR 240(a)]. Counsel can calculate back from the status conference date to schedule the Rule 26(f) conference.

15.08[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. Except in categories of cases excluded under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure local rules or orders of the court, the court will issue an Order Setting Initial Case Management Conference and ADR Deadlines to the filing party when an action is filed. The Order will set the date for the Initial Case Management Conference, which must be on the first date available on the assigned Judge's calendar that is not less than 90 days after the action was filed [ND Cal Civ LR 16-2(a)].

The order must state a deadline for filing the ADR Certification required by ND Cal Civ LR 16-8(b) and either a Stipulation Selecting an ADR Process or a Notice of Need for ADR Phone Conference as required by ND Cal Civ LR 16-8(c) and ND Cal ADR LR 3-5(c). Plaintiff must serve a copy of the order on each defendant, together with the supplementary materials specified by ND Cal Civ LR 4-2 [ND Cal Civ LR 16-2(a)]. Counsel can calculate back from the initial case management conference date to schedule the Rule 26(f) conference.

In categories exempt from Rule 26(f) conference and initial disclosure requirements [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(B); see 15.05], the assigned judge will schedule a case management conference (or issue a case management order without a conference) promptly after the commencement of an action, unless otherwise provided in the Northern District Local Rules [ND Cal Civ LR 16-7].

Any stipulation by the parties to change any conference date must be approved by the assigned judge [ND Cal Civ LR 16-2(e)].

If the case has been initially assigned to a magistrate judge, the parties must either file written consent to the jurisdiction of the magistrate judge, or request reassignment to a district judge, by the deadline for filing the initial case management conference statement [ND Cal Civ LR 73-1(a)(1)].

15.08[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. A Rule 26(f) conference addressing all disputed issues is required before a court may entertain a discovery motion pursuant to Fed R Civ P 26-37 [SD Cal Civ LR 26.1(a)].

All counsel must meet to discuss discovery and endeavor to resolve any disputes at a reasonable time before initial case management conference [SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(d)].

If counsel for the moving party seeks to arrange a Rule 26(f) conference and counsel for the party against whom the motion will be made willfully refuses or fails to meet and confer, the judge (absent a prior order dispensing good cause with such a meeting) may order a payment of reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees [SD Cal Civ LR 26.1(a); see Fed R Civ P 37; see also SD Cal Civ LR 83.1].

The Southern District's local rules do not address the timing of the conference. Rule 26(f) requires the conference to be held at least 21 days before the date of the scheduling conference or the date the order is due [Fed R Civ P 26(f)(1); see 15.07].

A party may file a written request with the judicial officer assigned to supervise discovery, at any time after the complaint is filed but before an answer is filed, asking the assigned judicial officer to hold a discovery conference. Copies of the request must be sent to counsel for the parties and the parties whose addresses are known to the requesting counsel [SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(c.1)].

15.09 LOCAL PRACTICE: Obtaining Relief From Case Management Schedule.

15.09[1] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. In the Rule 26(f) report, the parties may suggest that the matter should not be subject to the pretrial procedures in Local Rules 16-2 through 16-10 and may request the court to order a waiver. The report must explain why the attorneys request the waiver [CD Cal Civ LR 16-11].

If the court agrees that waiver is appropriate, the court will so indicate in its scheduling order [CD Cal Civ LR 16-11.1].

Unless otherwise ordered by the Court, waivers apply only to cases that are realistically estimated to consume no more than two trial days [CD Cal Civ LR 16-11.3].

Cross Reference.

Discussion of obtaining relief from final pretrial conference, see Ch. 17, Final Pretrial Conference, 17.04[2][a].

15.09[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. The Eastern District has no specific rule on obtaining relief from the usually applicable case management schedule.

15.09[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. By serving and filing a motion with the assigned judge pursuant to Local Rule 7, a party, including a party added later in the case, may seek relief from any obligation imposed by Fed R Civ P 16 or 26 or the Order Setting Initial Case Management Conference. The motion must [ND Cal Civ LR 16-2(d)]:

- Describe the circumstances that support the request;

- Affirm that counsel for the moving party has conferred with all other counsel in an effort to reach agreement about the matter and, for each other party, report whether that party supports or opposes the request for relief;

- Be accompanied by a proposed revised case management schedule; and
- If applicable, indicate any changes required in the ADR process or schedule in the case.

15.09[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. The Southern District has no specific rule on obtaining relief from the usually applicable case management schedule.

II. SCHEDULING AND ATTENDING RULE 26(f) CONFERENCE

2-15 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 15.10

15.10 Preparing for Rule 26(f) Conference.

15.10[1] Topics to Be Discussed at Conference. At the Rule 26(f) conference, the parties must confer to accomplish the following [Fed R Civ P 26(f)(2)]:

- Consider the nature and basis of their claims and defenses;
- Consider the possibilities for a prompt settlement or other resolution of the case;
- Consider if the parties will stipulate to a protective order as to documents produced in discovery;
- Make or arrange for the required initial disclosures of documents and witnesses [see Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1); see also 15.11]; and
- Discuss any issues relating to preserving discoverable information, particularly electronically stored information;
- Develop a proposed discovery plan to assist in crafting an appropriate scheduling order.

The Rule 26(f) conference should include a discussion of any issues relating to disclosure or discovery of electronically stored information, including the form or forms in which it should be produced [Fed R Civ P 26(f)(3)(C)], and whether the parties intend to produce such material, whether each other's software is compatible, whether there are any privilege issues requiring redaction, and how to allocate costs involved with the foregoing [see In re Bristol-Myers Squibb Secs. Litig. (DNJ 2002) 205 FRD 437, 444].

15.10[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Rule 26(f) Meeting Topics.

15.10[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. In addition to the matters addressed by Rule 26(f), the parties must discuss the following matters at the conference [CD Cal Civ LR 26-1]:

- Complex Cases. The complexity of the case, and whether all or part of the procedures of the Manual for Complex Litigation, Fourth should be utilized. Counsel may propose to the Court modifications of the procedures in the Manual to facilitate the management of a particular action.

- Motion Schedule. The dispositive or partially dispositive motions that are likely to be made, and a cutoff date by which all such motions must be made.

- Settlement. The likelihood of settlement, whether settlement discussions have taken place or are scheduled, and which mandatory settlement procedure should be utilized under CD Cal Civ LR 16-15.

- Trial Estimate. A preliminary estimate of the time required for trial.

- Additional Parties. The likelihood of appearance of additional parties.

- Expert Witnesses. The proposed timing of disclosures under Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2).

The parties must include their views and proposals on the above matters in their written report required by Rule 26(f) [CD Cal Civ LR 26-1].

The parties need also discuss whether to seek a waiver from the pretrial procedures mandated by Local Rules 16-2 through 16-10. The Rule 26(f) report may request the court to order a waiver, explaining why counsel request the waiver [CD Cal Civ LR 16-11; see 15.09[1]].

15.10[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. The Eastern District has no specific rule on additional matters for discussion at the Rule 26(f) conference.

15.10[2][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. For patent cases, the parties must discuss and address in the Case Management Statement the following topics in addition to the matters addressed by Rule 26(f) [ND Cal Patent LR 2-1(a)]:

- Proposed modification of the deadlines provided for in the Patent Local Rules, and the effect of any such modification on the date and time of the Claim Construction Hearing, if any;

- Whether the Court will hear live testimony at the Claim Construction Hearing;

- The need for and any specific limits on discovery relating to claim construction, including depositions of witnesses, including expert witnesses;

- The order of presentation at the Claim Construction Hearing; and

- The scheduling of a Claim Construction Prehearing Conference to be held after the Joint Claim Construction and Prehearing Statement provided for in ND Cal Patent LR 4-3 has been filed.

To the extent that some or all of the matters provided for in ND Cal Patent LR 2-1(a)(1)-(5) are not resolved or decided at the Initial Case Management Conference, the parties must propose dates for further Case Management Conferences when those matters will be decided [ND Cal Patent LR 2-1(b)].

15.10[2][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. The Southern District has no specific rules on additional matters for discussion at the Rule 26(f) conference.

CHAPTER 15 Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures
II. SCHEDULING AND ATTENDING RULE 26(f) CONFERENCE

2-15 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 15.11

15.11 Initial Disclosures.

15.11[1] Disclosures Must Ordinarily Be Made Within 14 Days of Rule 26(f) Conference. Unless the court directs or the parties stipulate otherwise, or a party objects, the initial disclosures must be made within 14 days of the Rule 26(f) conference [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(C)].

Any party joined after the Rule 26(f) conference has 30 days after being served or joined within which to make its initial disclosures. The court or the parties may modify the schedule for any subsequently joined party's initial disclosures [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(D)].

Cross References:

Detailed discussion of Rule 26(a)(1) initial disclosures, see 15.15 -15.26. Form of initial disclosures statement under Rule 26(a)(1), see § 15.38.

15.11[2] Categories of Cases Exempt From Initial Disclosure Requirements. The same categories of cases that are exempt from the Rule 26(f) conference requirement are exempt from the initial disclosure requirements [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(B)]. These categories are listed in 15.05.

Consider:

District courts retain authority to issue case-specific orders requiring initial disclosure in any case included within the enumerated list when appropriate. The parties may also stipulate that they will make the disclosures. Further, a court may order that the parties exchange information, even in proceedings exempted from initial disclosures and in cases in which the parties have stipulated to forego the initial disclosures, in the course of exercising its case management authority under Rule 16 [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1), Committee Note of 2000; see Fed R Civ P 16].

15.11[3] Avoiding or Delaying Initial Disclosures.

15.11[3][a] Initial Disclosures Stayed Pending Objection of Party. Any party can avoid making the initial disclosures at the time required by Rule 26(a)(1) by [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(C)]:

- Objecting that initial disclosures are not appropriate in the circumstances of the action at the Rule 26(f) conference; and

- Restating the objection in the discovery plan reflecting the occurrences at the conference.

Stating the objection in the discovery plan allows the objecting party to present its objection to the court before any party is required to make any of the initial disclosures. Thus, all parties to the action are relieved of the obligation to make their initial disclosures at the time specified in Rule 26(a)(1) by the filing of an objection by only one party [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1), Committee Note of 2000].

A court ordinarily rules on objections to initial disclosures when it issues the Rule 16(b) scheduling order. However, it may rule on the objection in a different fashion and at a different time. The court's ruling should encompass any disclosures to be made, and when they should be made. The advisory committee notes that even when the circumstances of the case warrant suspending some disclosure obligations, others, such as the disclosure of damages and insurance information under Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(A)(iii)-(iv) may continue to be appropriate [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1), Committee Note of 2000].

Strategic Points:

The right to delay or to partially or completely avoid the initial disclosures does not permit fewer than all of the parties to the action to opt out of the initial disclosures unilaterally. That result can be achieved only if all of the parties so stipulate or the court so orders [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1), Committee Note of 2000].

The Ninth Circuit has held that the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995, which requires the court to stay "all discovery and other proceedings" during the pendency of a motion to dismiss any action the Act covers [see 15 USC § 78u-4(b)(3)(B)], similarly requires a stay of the obligation to provide initial disclosures [Medhekar v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 1996) 99 F3d 325, 328].

15.11[3][b] Parties' Stipulation to Modify, Eliminate, or Delay Initial Disclosures. The parties may stipulate to modify or eliminate the initial disclosure requirements in any proceeding [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1), Committee Note of 2000].

The parties may also need to consider whether a stipulation extending the deadline for making the initial disclosures would be appropriate. For example, an extension may be appropriate when a defendant who received service of process late would have less than 60 days after being served in which to make its initial disclosures [see Fed R Civ P 26(f), Committee Note of 1993].

15.11[3][c] Inadequate Disclosure by Opponent Does Not Excuse Noncompliance. A party must make the initial disclosures based on then reasonably available information and is not excused from making disclosures because the party challenges the sufficiency of another party's disclosures or another party has not made its disclosures [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(E)].

15.11[3][d] Party's Incomplete Investigation Does Not Excuse Noncompliance. A party must make the initial disclosures based on then reasonably available information and is not excused from making disclosures because it has not fully completed its investigation of the case [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(E)]. Each disclosing party must conduct a sufficiently diligent investigation into the evidence it has or controls to permit it to disclose the information concerning each category of the required initial disclosures of which the party has or should have knowledge [Lintz v. American Gen. Fin., Inc. (D Kan 1999) 1999 US Dist LEXIS 12572, at *4-*5 ; see Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(E)].

15.11[4] Matters Subject to Initial Disclosure Requirements. In making the initial disclosures, the disclosing party must provide to the other parties all of the following [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(A)]:

- The name and, if known, the address and telephone number of each individual likely to have discoverable information that the disclosing party may use to support its claims or defenses, unless solely for impeachment;

- A copy of, or a description by category and location of, all documents, electronically stored information, and tangible things that are in the possession, custody, or control of the party and that the disclosing party may use to support its claims or defenses, unless solely for impeachment;

- A computation of each category of damages claimed by the disclosing party, making available for inspection and copying [see Fed R Civ P 34] the documents or other evidentiary material, not privileged or protected from disclosure, on which such computation is based, including materials bearing on the nature and extent of injuries suffered; and

- For inspection and copying any insurance agreement under which any person carrying on an insurance business may be liable to satisfy part or all of a judgment that may be entered in the action or to indemnify or reimburse for payments made to satisfy the judgment.

Cross Reference:

Contents of initial disclosures, see §§ 15.18 -15.21.

15.11[5] Sanctions for Noncompliance. The penalty for failure to make any of the disclosures required by Fed R Civ P 26(a) without substantial justification can be substantial [see Fed R Civ P 37(c)(1)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of sanctions for failure to disclose, see § 15.36.

15.12 Who Must Participate in Rule 26(f) Conference.

15.12[1] Counsel and Unrepresented Parties Must Confer. All parties and unrepresented parties must confer to discuss the nature and the basis of their claims and defenses [Fed R Civ P 26(f)(2)]. Attorneys of record and all unrepresented parties that have appeared in the case are jointly responsible for arranging for the conference and attempting in good faith to agree on the proposed discovery plan [Fed R Civ P 26(f)(2)].

15.12[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Participating in Conference.

15.12[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. The Central District has no local rule on who must participate in the Rule 26(f) conference.

15.12[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. The Eastern District has no local rule on who must participate in the Rule 26(f) conference.

15.12[2][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. Unless otherwise ordered, the conferring and planning mandated by Fed R Civ P 26(f) (and by ND Cal ADR LR 3-5) must be done by lead trial counsel for each party [ND Cal Civ LR 16-3].

15.12[2][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. Parties' counsel must meet and confer regarding discovery as mandated by Fed R Civ P 26(f). If counsel have offices in the same county, they are to meet in person. If counsel have offices in different counties, they are to confer by telephone. Under no circumstances may the parties satisfy the meet and confer requirement by exchanging written correspondence [SD Cal Civ LR 26.1(a)].

15.13 Rule 26(f) Conference Need Not Be Attended in Person Unless Court Orders It.

The court may order the parties or attorneys to attend the conference in person [Fed R Civ P 26(f)(2)]. Otherwise, the parties may conduct the conference by other means.

Strategic Point:

For the most part, the parties are not required to meet face-to-face unless the court orders that the parties or attorneys attend the conference in person [Fed R Civ P 26(f)(2); see Fed R Civ P 26(f), Committee Note of 2000; but see SD Cal Civ LR 26.1(a) (written correspondence insufficient)]. The parties may confer by telephone or email. However, the better practice is to meet in person. Meeting in person is more likely to further the objectives of the conference and establish a positive relationship with opposing counsel.

15.14 Drafting and Filing Rule 26(f) Report and Proposed Discovery Plan.

15.14[1] Parties and Attorneys Must Participate in Good Faith. All parties and their attorneys must participate in good faith in the development and submission of the requisite proposed discovery plan [Fed R Civ P 37(f); see Fed R Civ P 26(f)(2)].

Warning:

If a party or a party's attorney fails to participate in good faith, the court may require the party or attorney to pay the reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, caused by the failure [Fed R Civ P 37(f)].

Cross Reference:

Sanctions for failure to participate, see Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, see §§ 25.81 -25.90.

15.14[2] Contents of Plan. The proposed discovery plan must indicate the parties' views and proposals concerning [Fed R Civ P 26(f)(3)]:

- What changes should be made in the timing, form, or requirement for disclosures under Fed R Civ P Rule 26(a), including a statement as to when disclosures under Fed R Civ P Rule 26(a)(1) were made or will be made [see Fed R Civ P 26(a)];

- The subjects on which discovery may be needed, when discovery should be completed, and whether discovery should be conducted in phases or be limited to or focused upon particular issues;

- Any issues relating to disclosure or discovery of electronically stored information, including the form or forms in which it should be produced;

- Any issues relating to claims of privilege or work product protection, including, if the parties agree on a procedure to assert such claims after production, whether to ask the court to include that agreement in an order;

- What changes should be made in the limitations on discovery imposed under these rules or by local rule, and what other limitations should be imposed; and

- Any other protective orders or limited discovery orders that should be entered by the court [see Fed R Civ P 16(b), (c), 26(c)].

This list is not exclusive. Other matters for consideration at the discovery conference and inclusion in the discovery plan include the time when any dispositive motions must be filed and when the case should be ready for trial [see Fed R Civ P 26(f), Committee Note of 1993]. The plan should also outline the competing positions of the parties on issues as to which they were unable, in good faith, to come to an agreement [see Fed R Civ P 26(f), Committee Note of 1993].

Cross Reference:

Form of Rule 26(f) report and proposed discovery plan, see § 15.37.

15.14[3] Responsibility for Filing Rule 26(f) Report and Discovery Plan Is Joint. The attorneys of record and all unrepresented parties that have appeared in the case are jointly responsible for submitting the written report to the court outlining the agreements they reached at their discovery conference [Fed R Civ P 26(f)(2)].

Timing:

The report must be submitted within 14 days after the Rule 26(f) conference. District courts may, by local rule, require counsel to file their discovery plan report fewer than 14 days after the initial conference [Fed R Civ P 26(f)(4)(B)].

15.14[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: Filing Rule 26(f) Report and Discovery Plan.

15.14[4][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. The Central District has no specific local rule on filing the Rule 26(f) Report and Discovery Plan.

15.14[4][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. Except in those types of cases specifically exempted from initial disclosure by Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(B), the parties must submit reports to the court concerning their proposed discovery plan within 14 days after their discovery conference. The court may require the submission of preconference reports on some or all of the subjects listed in ED Cal Civ LR 240(a) [ED Cal Civ LR 240(b); see ED Cal Civ LR 271(d)(2) (voluntary dispute resolution)].

15.14[4][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. Unless otherwise ordered, counsel must file a Joint Case Management Statement addressing all of the topics listed in the Standing Order for All Judges of the Northern District of California--Contents of Joint Case Management Statement. This standing order can be found on the Court's website at http://www.cand.uscourts.gov [ND Cal Civ LR 16-9(a)].

The parties may file separate statements if one or more of the parties is not represented by counsel. In addition, a party who is unable, despite reasonable efforts, to obtain the cooperation of another party in the preparation of a joint statement may file a separate case management statement. The separate statement must be accompanied by a declaration describing the conduct of the uncooperative party which prevented the preparation of a joint statement. Separate statements must also address all of the topics listed in the standing order governing the contents of the joint management statement [ND Cal Civ LR 16-9(a)].

Any party seeking to maintain a case as a class action must include in the Case Management Statement the following additional information [ND Cal Civ LR 16-9(b)]:

- The specific paragraphs of Fed R Civ P 23 under which the action is maintainable as a class action;
- A description of the class or classes in whose behalf the action is brought;
- Facts showing that the party is entitled to maintain the action under Fed R Civ P 23(a), (b); and
- A proposed date for the court to consider whether the case can be maintained as a class action.

Cross Reference:

Class actions, see Ch. 20, Class Actions. ADR Multi-Option program, see Ch. 32, Court Annexed ADR, see § 32.06.

15.14[4][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. The Southern District has no specific local rule on filing the Rule 26(f) Report and Discovery Plan.

15.15 CHECKLIST: Initial Disclosures Under Rule 26(a)(1).

The following checklist may be used in connection with the initial disclosure requirements of Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1):

☐ Avoid or modify initial disclosure requirements by, either:

- ○ Stipulating with other parties.
- ○ Asking the court for relief from requirements.
- ○ Objecting during the Fed R Civ P 26(f) conference that initial disclosures are not appropriate in the circumstances of the case, and stating the objection in the Rule 26(f) discovery plan.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1), (f)

Discussion:
See § 15.16

Timing:
Prepare and file initial disclosures within 14 days after discovery planning meeting held pursuant to Fed R Civ P 26(f).

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)

Discussion:
See § 15.17

☐ Determine matters to which the initial disclosures apply:

- ○ Witnesses and documents that the disclosing party may use to support its claims or defenses.
- ○ Information then reasonably available.

☐ Provide the following information for all witnesses the disclosing party may use to support is claims and defenses:

- ○ Name.
- ○ Individual's address, if known.
- ○ Individual's telephone number, if known.
- ○ Subject of person's information.

☐ Provide a copy of, or describe by category and location, all of the following that the disclosing party may use to support its claims or defenses, unless solely for impeachment:

- ○ Documents.
- ○ Electronically Stored Information.
- ○ Tangible things.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)

Discussion:
See §§ 15.18, 15.19, 15.22

☐ For each category of damages claimed:

- ○ Provide a computation of damages.
- ○ Make available for inspection and copying as under Fed R Civ P 34 any nonprivileged or otherwise unprotected documents, electronically stored information, or other evidentiary material on which the computation was based.
- ○ Include materials bearing on the nature and extent of injuries suffered.

☐ Parties need not disclose as part of the computation of damages disclosures of Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(A)(iii), the following:

- ○ Information already possessed by other parties.
- ○ Privileged or otherwise protected materials.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(A)(iii), 34

Discussion:
See § 15.20

☐ Make available for inspection and copying as under Rule 34 any liability insurance policies that may be liable to either:

- ○ Satisfy a judgment that may be entered.
- ○ Indemnify or reimburse payments made to satisfy the judgment.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1), 34

Discussion:
See § 15.21

☐ For any privilege or protection claimed, including work-product protection, assert the privilege in the initial disclosure, briefly describing withheld materials.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(b)(5)(A)

Discussion:
See § 15.16

☐ Prepare initial disclosures in writing.

☐ At least one attorney of record must sign initial disclosures. The signature certifies that to the best of the signer's knowledge, information, and belief, formed after a reasonable inquiry, the disclosure is complete and correct as of the time it is made.

☐ Serve initial disclosures on the other parties.

☐ Do not file initial disclosures with the court.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 5(d), 26(a)(1), (4), (g)(1)

Discussion:
See §§ 15.24, 15.25

Form:
See § 15.38

☐ Supplement disclosures to include later-acquired information.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(e)

Discussion:
See § 15.26

15.16 Options and Strategies.

15.16[1] Review Documents and Electronically Stored Information for Privileged Material. Before complying with pretrial disclosure requirements, counsel should consider the possibility that some privileged information may be involved. A party asserting a privilege must make the claim expressly, and describe the nature of the information not produced in a manner that, without revealing information itself privileged, will enable other parties to assess the applicability of the privilege [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(5)(A)]. The party asserting a privilege must, at a minimum, claim the privilege and briefly describe the information withheld [see Moloney v. United States (D Mass 2001) 204 FRD 16, 21]. The usual practice is for the parties to exchange "privilege logs" listing the documents and other information as to which privilege is claimed, and generally describing the information withheld.

Cross Reference:

Privileges, see Ch. 24, Restrictions on Scope and Extent of Discovery: Privileges and Work Product Protection, see §§ 24.12 -24.28, 24.103.

15.16[2] Determine Whether Work Product Protection Applies. Counsel must review documents and electronically stored information that might be covered by work product protection. The work product doctrine provides that a party may not obtain discovery of documents, information, or other tangible things prepared in anticipation of litigation or trial by or for another party or that other party's representative, unless the party seeking discovery (1) has substantial need of the materials in the preparation of his or her case, and (2) the party is unable without undue hardship to obtain the substantial equivalent of the materials by other means [see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(3)(A)].

In ordering discovery of such materials when the required showing has been made, the court must protect against disclosure of the mental impressions, conclusions, opinions, or legal theories of an attorney or other representative of a party concerning the litigation [see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(3)(B)].

A party asserting protection must make the claim expressly, and describe the nature of the information not produced in a manner that, without revealing information itself protected, will enable other parties to assess the applicability of the protection [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(5)(A)].

Example:

A defense counsel located a former employee of plaintiff corporation near the end of the discovery period, from whom he then took a sworn statement based on an interview. A few days later, the defendant disclosed the name and address of that and other newly disclosed witnesses. Approximately one month later, the defendant filed the declaration in support of a summary judgment motion. The plaintiff objected, arguing among other things, that the declaration should be stricken because the defendant had a duty to disclose it under Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1). The district court held that the declaration was not a "document" subject to discovery under Rule 26(a). Moreover, the court stated that the declaration was work product until the moment it was filed [see Intel Corp. v. Via Techs., Inc. (ND Cal 2001) 204 FRD 450, 451-452 , aff'd, 319 F3d 1357 (Fed Cir 2003)].

15.16[3] Consider Stipulation Covering Contents and Schedule for Disclosures. Counsel should consider asking other parties to join in stipulating to disclosure schedules and content. Parties may avoid or modify the initial disclosure requirements by stipulation [see Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(A)]. Note that although the parties can stipulate to avoid or modify initial disclosures and expert disclosures [see Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1), (2)], only the court can modify or eliminate the requirements regarding pretrial disclosures [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3)(B)].

Warning:

Even in a case where the parties stipulate to bypass disclosure, the court can order exchange of similar information in managing the action under Fed R Civ P 16, which concerns case management and pretrial conferences [see Fed R Civ P 26(a), Committee Note of 2000].

Cross Reference:

Stipulations, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, see §§ 22.03 -22.13.

15.16[4] Consider Requesting Extension of Time. If there are particular problems in complying with the time limits of Rule 26(a), counsel should request an extension of time [see Quevedo v. Trans-Pac. Shipping, Inc. (9th Cir 1998) 143 F3d 1255, 1258 (the court refused to consider expert's report because it was filed one-and-a-half months late and plaintiff could have asked for an extension of time)].

15.16[5] Consider Protective Orders on Confidential, Proprietary, or Trade Secret Information. The parties should consider whether to enter into a protective order governing confidential, proprietary, and/or trade secret information. The parties may want to stipulate to such an order or one party may want to move for such an order in advance of making their initial disclosures [Fed R Civ P 26(c); see In re Terra Int'l, Inc. (5th Cir 1998) 134 F3d 302, 306-307]. Further, the parties may want to mention this provision in the Rule 26(f) discovery plan [Fed R Civ P 26(f)].

Cross Reference:

Discovery plan, see Ch. 21, Discovery Strategy and Planning, 21.03 -21.08. Stipulations, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, see §§ 22.03 -22.13.

15.16[6] Consider Stipulating to Format and Contents of Privilege Log. The parties may wish to reach agreement on the format and contents of privilege logs for initial (and later) disclosures [see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(5)(A)].

Cross Reference:

Privilege logs, see Ch. 24, Restrictions on Scope and Extent of Discovery: Privileges and Work Product Protection, see § 24.103.

15.16[7] Object to Disclosures at Rule 26(f) Conference. A party may also object during the Rule 26(f) conference that initial disclosures are not appropriate in the circumstances of the action; the objection must be stated in the Rule 26(f) discovery plan [see Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(C)].

15.17 Timing of Disclosures Under Rule 26(a)(1).

15.17[1] Disclosures Must Be Made 14 Days After Rule 26(f) Conference. The disclosures required under Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1) must be made at or within 14 days after the Fed R Civ P 26(f) conference, unless a different time is set by stipulation or court order, or unless a party objects during the conference that initial disclosures are not appropriate in the circumstances of the action and states the objection in the Rule 26(f) discovery plan [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(C)]. In ruling on an objection, the court will determine what disclosures, if any, are to be made, and set the time for disclosure [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(C)].

This 14-day provision coincides with the requirement that the Rule 26(f) conference be held 21 days before the Fed R Civ P 16(b) scheduling conference or scheduling order; and that the report on the Rule 26(f) conference be submitted to the court 14 days after the conference. These deadlines provide an orderly opportunity for the parties to review the disclosures, and for the court to consider the report. In many instances, the Rule 26(f) conference and the effective preparation of the case would benefit from disclosure before the conference; earlier disclosure is encouraged [see Fed R Civ P 26(a)].

15.17[2] Disclosure Date Inapplicable If Party Objects to Initial Disclosures During Rule 26(f) Conference. The presumptive disclosure date does not apply if a party objects to the initial disclosures during the Rule 26(f) conference and states its objection in the Rule 26(f) discovery plan. The right to object to initial disclosure is not intended to afford parties an opportunity to "opt out" of disclosure unilaterally. It does provide an opportunity for an objecting party to present to the court its position that disclosure would be "inappropriate in the circumstances of the action" [see Fed R Civ P 26(a), Committee Note of 2000].

Making the objection permits the objecting party to present the question to the judge before any party is required to make disclosures. The court must then rule on the objection and determine what disclosures, if any, should be made. Ordinarily, this determination would be included in the Fed R Civ P 16(b) scheduling order, but the court could handle the matter in a different fashion. Even when circumstances warrant suspending some disclosure obligations, others such as the damages and insurance information called for by Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(A)(iii)-(iv), may continue to be appropriate [see Fed R Civ P 26(a), Committee Note of 2000].

Cross References:

Scheduling conference or order, see Ch. 16, Case Management Conferences, see §§ 16.03 -16.13.

3 Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 16, Pretrial Conferences; Scheduling; Management (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

15.17[3] Party Joined After Rule 26(f) Conference Must Make Disclosures Within 30 Days. Any party first served or otherwise joined after the Fed R Civ P 26(f) conference must make the disclosures required under Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1) within 30 days after being served or joined, unless a different time is set by stipulation or court order [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(D)]. "First served or otherwise joined" refers to the date of service of a claim on a party in a defensive posture (such as a defendant or third-party defendant), and the date of joinder of a party added as a claimant or an intervener [see Fed R Civ P 26(a), Committee Note of 2000].

Therefore, absent court order or stipulation, a new party has 30 days in which to make its initial disclosures. However, later-added parties should ordinarily be treated the same as the original parties when the original parties have stipulated to forgo initial disclosure, or the court has ordered disclosure in a modified form [see Fed R Civ P 26(a), Committee Note of 2000].

15.18 Each Party Must Disclose Information About Witnesses.

15.18[1] Names and Addresses. A party must, without awaiting a discovery request, provide to other parties the name and, if known, the address and telephone number of each individual likely to have discoverable information that the disclosing party may use to support its claims or defenses, unless solely for impeachment [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(A)(i)].

The parties must provide specific names of the individuals they might use as witnesses [see Biltrite Corp. v. World Rd. Markings, Inc. (D Mass 2001) 202 FRD 359, 362 (noting that disclosure requirement's purpose is to give the opposing party information as to the identification and location of persons with knowledge so that they can be contacted in connection with the litigation, either for purposes of serving a proposed amended complaint, or for being interviewed, or being deposed, or for doing background investigation)].

15.18[2] Description of Topics of Witness's Knowledge. The disclosing party must identify the subjects of the information known by the witness [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(A)(i)]. It is not necessary to provide a detailed narrative of all of the facts known to each witness; a brief description of the general topics of each witness's knowledge will suffice [Bick v. Harrah's Operating Co. (ND Ill 2000) 2000 US Dist LEXIS 1764, at *8-*11].

The prudent course is to produce information for all individuals that counsel anticipates he or she will use [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1), Committee Note of 2000]:

- To support its own allegations, claims, or defenses;
- To question a witness during a deposition;
- During a pretrial conference;
- During discovery (other than merely to frame a response to a discovery request);
- On motion practice, at least motions bearing on the merits (e.g., summary judgment, preliminary injunction);

- To support a claim;
- To support a denial or rebuttal of the allegations, claims, or defenses of another party; or
- If "the need [otherwise] arises."

15.18[3] Disclosure Is Not Required for Impeachment Witnesses. Parties are not required to disclose identifying information for persons whose knowledge extends only to matters of impeachment [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(A)(i)].

15.19 Parties Must Disclose Documents, Electronically Stored Information, and Tangible Things.

15.19[1] Copy or Description and Location Required. A party must, without awaiting a discovery request, provide other parties with a copy of, or a description by category and location of, all documents, electronically stored information, and tangible things that are in the possession, custody, or control of the party, and that the disclosing party may use to support its claims or defenses, unless solely for impeachment [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(A)(ii)].

The term "electronically stored information" has an expansive meaning and includes any type of information that is stored electronically in any medium. The term is broad enough to cover all current types of computer-based information, and flexible enough to encompass future changes and developments [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(B), Committee Note of 2006; Fed R Civ P 34(a), Committee Note of 2006].

Cross Reference:

Disclosure of documents, electronically stored information, and tangible things, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 26.22[4][b] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

15.19[2] Itemized Listing Not Required. Although an itemized listing of each exhibit is not required, the disclosure should describe and categorize, to the extent identified during the initial investigation, the nature and location of potentially relevant documents and records, including electronically stored information, sufficiently to enable opposing parties: (1) to make an informed decision concerning which documents might need to be examined, at least initially, and (2) to frame their document requests in a manner likely to avoid squabbles resulting from the wording of the requests [see Fed R Civ P 26(a), Committee Note of 1993].

15.19[3] Information Used for Impeachment Need Not Be Disclosed. The disclosure duty of Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(A)(ii) requires counsel to provide to all other parties a description by category and location of all documents, electronically stored information, and tangible things that are in the possession, custody, or control of the party, and that the disclosing party may use to support its claims or defenses, unless solely for impeachment. Alternatively, counsel can produce these materials rather than describe them [see Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(A)(ii); Intel Corp. v. Via Techs., Inc. (ND Cal 2001) 204 FRD 450, 451 , aff'd, 319 F3d 1357 (Fed Cir 2003)]. Materials that a party does not intend to use to support its claims or defenses need not be disclosed.

Judge's Perspective:

Counsel should be careful not to construe narrowly the disclosure obligations under Rule 26 and, in particular, not to rely on the "impeachment" exception if there is any prospect that the nondisclosed item will be needed to support a claim or defense [see, e.g., Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(A)(i)-(ii)]. Courts generally take the Rule 26 obligation very seriously, and even after a case has proceeded through other forms of discovery may "look back" to see if disclosure should have been made under Rule 26 at the outset. Moreover, parties should not assume that other rules, such as the Patent Local Rules for the Northern District of California, operate to relieve parties of the Rule 26 disclosure obligations [see ND Cal Patent LR 3-1 et seq.].

15.19[4] Party Need Not Disclose Declaration Signed by Disclosed Potential Witness. A party who has disclosed a potential witness is not required also to reveal a declaration signed by that witness for use on an impending summary-judgment motion. A typical declaration gathered in the anticipation of a summary-judgment motion is not a "document" within the meaning of Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(A)(ii) [see Intel Corp. v. Via Techs., Inc. (ND Cal 2001) 204 FRD 450, 451-452 , aff'd, 319 F3d 1357 (Fed Cir 2003)].

Strategic Point--Party Seeking Discovery:

Prior to the discovery cutoff, a party on notice of an opposing party's witness should contact that witness and obtain its own statements. A party that fails to do so within the allotted time risks being surprised with testimony that might have warranted a timely deposition or search for other relevant witnesses [see Intel Corp. v. Via Techs., Inc. (ND Cal 2001) 204 FRD 450, 452 , aff'd, 319 F3d 1357 (Fed Cir 2003)].

Warning--Work Product Protection Issues:

Disclosure of a declaration taken by the attorney of his or her own witness also raises work-product protection issues [see Intel Corp. v. Via Techs., Inc. (ND Cal 2001) 204 FRD 450, 451-452 , aff'd, 319 F3d 1357 (Fed Cir 2003) (party allowed to file declaration in support of summary-judgment motion after disclosing witness information close to discovery cut-off date but not disclosing declaration)].

15.20 Detailed Computation of Damages Required.

A detailed computation of any category of claimed damages is required [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(A)(iii)]. The party claiming the damages must make available for inspection and copying the documents or other evidentiary material, not privileged or protected from disclosure, on which the computation is based, including materials bearing on the nature and extent of injuries suffered [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(A)(iii)].

The plaintiff should provide more than a lump sum statement of the damages allegedly sustained; to make the disclosure obligation meaningful, a more detailed specification of damages is apparently required: for example, in a personal injury case, the nature and extent of any injuries suffered must be disclosed, including amounts claimed for pain, suffering or disfigurement, as well as medical bills, lost wages, cost of repairing damaged property, etc. [City & County of San Francisco v. Tutor-Saliba Corp. (ND Cal 2003) 218 FRD 219, 221].

Moreover, plaintiff must update its disclosure and provide greater detail as to its calculations as discovery progresses [City & County of San Francisco v. Tutor-Saliba Corp. (ND Cal 2003) 218 FRD 219, 222].

Parties need not disclose as part of the computation of damages disclosures of information already possessed by other parties or privileged or otherwise protected materials [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(A)(iii)].

15.21 Disclosure of Insurance Agreements Required.

Disclosure of any insurance agreement under which any person carrying on an insurance business may be liable to satisfy the judgment, or indemnify or reimburse payment of the judgment is required. This information must be made available for inspection and copying [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(A)(iv)]. Only an insurance policy or other agreement that gives rise to an insurer's obligation to indemnify or hold its insured harmless for a judgment must be disclosed under Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(A)(iv), which does not require the production of all agreements relating to insurance [Excelsior College v. Frye (SD Cal 2006) 233 FRD 583, 585].

The disclosure of insurance information under Rule 26(a)(1)(A)(iv) does not render that information admissible in evidence [see Fed R Evid 411; see also Fed R Civ P 26(a), Committee Note of 1993].

A party must make its initial disclosures based on the information then reasonably available to it and is not excused from making its disclosures because it has not fully completed its investigation of the case or because it challenges the sufficiency of another party's disclosures or because another party has not made its disclosures [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(E)].

15.23 Exemptions From Initial Disclosure Requirements.

15.23[1] Rule 26(a)(1)(B) Enumerates Exempt Proceedings. The following categories of proceedings are exempt from initial disclosure [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(B)]:

- An action for review on an administrative record [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(B)(i)];
- A forfeiture action in rem arising from a federal statute [Fed R Civ p 26(a)(1)(B)(ii)];
- A petition for habeas corpus or other proceeding to challenge a criminal conviction or sentence [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(B)(iii)];
- An action brought without counsel by a person in custody of the United States, a state, or a state subdivision [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(B)(iv)];
- An action to enforce or quash an administrative summons or subpoena [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(B)(v)];
- An action by the United States to recover benefit payments [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(B)(vi)];
- An action by the United States to collect on a student loan guaranteed by the United States [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(B)(vii)];
- A proceeding ancillary to proceedings in other courts [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(B)(viii)]; and
- An action to enforce an arbitration award [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(B)(ix)].

Cross Reference:

6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 26.120 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

15.23[2] Exemptions Apply to "Proceedings" Rather Than "Actions." Rule 26(a)(1)(B) refers to categories of "proceedings" rather than categories of "actions" because some might not properly be labeled "actions" [see Fed R Civ P 26(a), Committee Note of 2000].

Case designations made by the parties or the clerk's office at the time of filing do not control application of the exemptions. The descriptions in the rule are generic and are intended to be administered by the parties, and, when needed, the courts, with the flexibility needed to adapt to gradual evolution in the types of proceedings that fall within these general categories [see Fed R Civ P 26(a), Committee Note of 2000].

15.23[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal--Discovery in Exempt Cases. Unless otherwise provided, the Northern District of California Local Rules, in categories of proceedings that are exempted by Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(B) from the initial disclosure requirements of Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1), promptly after the commencement of the action the assigned judge will schedule a Case Management Conference or issue a case-management order without the conference. Discovery shall proceed in those cases only at the time, and to the extent, authorized by the judge in the case-management order [ND Cal Civ LR 16-7]

15.26 Parties Must Supplement Disclosures.

A party who has made a Rule 26(a)(1) disclosure is under a duty to supplement or correct the disclosure to include later-acquired information [Fed R Civ P 26(e); see, e.g., City & County of San Francisco v. Tutor-Saliba Corp. (ND Cal 2003) 218 FRD 219, 222 (as discovery proceeds, plaintiffs must supplement their initial damages disclosure to reflect the information obtained through discovery)]. The burden is not on the opposing party to request updated information as it becomes available [Adams v. Teck Cominco Alaska, Inc. (D Alaska 2005) 231 FRD 578, 580].

IV. MAKING EXPERT WITNESS DISCLOSURES UNDER RULE 26(a)(2)

2-15 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 15.27

15.27 CHECKLIST: Expert-Witness Disclosures Under Rule 26(a)(2).

The following checklist may be used with respect to the expert witness disclosure requirements of Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2).

☐ Determine which witnesses must be included in the disclosures as experts:

- ○ Those retained or specially employed to provide expert testimony in the case.
- ○ Those whose duties as an employee of the party regularly involve giving expert testimony.
- ○ Testifying experts.
- ○ Consultants (nontestifying consultants do not have to be disclosed).
- ○ Treating physicians.
- ○ Direct expert witnesses.
- ○ Cross-examination witnesses.
- ○ Rebuttal expert witnesses (30 days after other parties' disclosures).

Authority:

Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2)

Discussion:
See §§ 15.28, 15.30

☐ At least 90 days before trial, unless otherwise stipulated or ordered by the court, prepare and provide expert-witness disclosures.

☐ Within 30 after the disclosure made by the other party, unless otherwise stipulated or ordered by the court, prepare and provide expert witness contradictory or rebuttal disclosures.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2)(C)

Discussion:
See § 15.29

☐ Have each expert witness subject to the disclosure requirements prepare a written report. Counsel may provide assistance, but cannot prepare the report:

- ○ A complete statement of all opinions that the witness will express and their bases and reasons.
- ○ The data or other information that forms the bases of the witness's opinion.
- ○ Any exhibits to be used as a summary of or in support of the witness's opinions.
- ○ The witness's qualifications, including a list of all publications written by the witness within the preceding 10 years.
- ○ The compensation to be paid for the study and testimony.
- ○ A list of any other cases in which the witness has testified as an expert at trial or by deposition within the preceding four years.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2)(B)

Discussion:
See § 15.31

☐ Prepare the expert-witness disclosures in writing.

☐ Have each expert sign his or her written report.

☐ Serve the expert-witness disclosures on the other parties.

☐ Do not file the initial disclosures with the court unless filing is required under local rules.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3), (4)

Discussion:
See §§ 15.32, 15.33

Form:
See § 15.39

☐ Supplement disclosures to include any changes to information provided.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(e)

Discussion:
See § 15.34

15.28 Parties Must Disclose Expert Witnesses.

15.28[1] Experts to Be Used at Trial. In addition to the initial disclosures required by Rule 26(a)(1), parties must disclose to other parties the identity of any person who may be used at trial to present evidence under Fed R Evid 702, 703, or 705, that is, expert witnesses [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2)].

Judge's Perspective:

As the particular time and sequence of expert-witness disclosures under Rule 26(a)(2) is subject to setting by the court at the Rule 16 conference, the parties should carefully consider the preferred schedule to request [see Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2)(C)]. For example, in some instances it may be preferable to provide for the close of non-expert discovery entirely before triggering the expert disclosure requirement. Moreover, if disclosure of expert reports, such as on the question of damages, are necessary for a meaningful ADR process to occur, the parties may seek to accelerate the timing for those disclosures.

15.28[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal--Required List. In the Eastern District of California, the Pretrial Statement must include a list (names and addresses) of all prospective witnesses, whether offered in person or by deposition or interrogatory, designating those who are expert witnesses [ED Cal Civ LR 281(b)(10)]. Parties are not required to identify experts acting solely as nontestifying consultants.

15.29[1] Absent Court Order or Stipulation. The disclosures required under Rule 26(a)(2) must be made at the times and in the sequence directed by the court [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2)(C); see, e.g., Continental Lab. Prods., Inc. v. Medax Int'l, Inc. (SD Cal 2000) 195 FRD 675, 676]. In the absence of other directions from the court or stipulation by the parties, the disclosures shall be made at least 90 days before the trial date or the date the case is to be ready for trial [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2)(C)(i)].

15.29[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal--Timing Set at Rule 26(f) Conference. In the Central District of California, the parties must discuss the proposed timing of expert-witness disclosures [CD Cal Civ LR 26-1(f)].

If the expert-witness evidence required to be disclosed under Rule 26(a)(2) is intended solely to contradict or rebut evidence on the same subject matter identified by another party under Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2)(B), a party must disclose it within 30 days after the disclosure made by the other party [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2)(C)(ii); *see Yeti by Molly Ltd. v. CHAPTER 15 Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures
IV. MAKING EXPERT WITNESS DISCLOSURES UNDER RULE 26(a)(2)

2-15 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 15.31

15.31 Expert Witness Reports Are Required.

15.31[1] Expert Witnesses Must Prepare and Sign Reports. Rule 26(a)(2) requires the parties to disclose the identity of each expert witness accompanied by a written report prepared and signed by the witness [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2)(B); see Yeti by Molly, Ltd. v. Deckers Outdoor Corp. (9th Cir 2001) 259 F3d 1101, 1105-1106].

Except as otherwise stipulated or ordered by the court, the identification of any expert who may testify must be accompanied by a written report prepared and signed by the witness. Specifically, this report is required from [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2)(B)]:

- Witnesses who are retained or specially employed to provide expert testimony in the case.
- Witnesses whose duties as an employee of the party regularly involve giving expert testimony.

For purposes of the rule, the term "retained or specially employed to provide expert testimony" has been held to include any expert witnesses who will receive consideration, whether monetary or otherwise, different than the statutory fees and allowances ordinarily prescribed by law [Smith v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. (SD W Va 1995) 164 FRD 49, 56 (indicating that expert witness not receiving consideration of some kind would not be required to prepare and sign report); see also 28 USC § 1821 (statutory fees and allowances); Fed R Evid § 702].

Example:

Reports were not necessary for eighteen percipient experts, because they were retained "months or years before the litigation in this case began for the purposes of investigating Plaintiff's original insurance claim[,]" not for the purpose of testifying at trial. Therefore, they were not "retained experts" from whom expert reports and disclosures were required [*350 W.A. LLC v. Chubb Group of Ins., (SD Cal 2007) 2007 US Dist LEXIS 89881, at *36-41] .

Fourteen "percipient expert witnesses" who were experts in the fields of law or science, and who were "involved in the underlying litigation or were eyewitnesses to certain scientific studies" related to the case, rather than being retained for the purpose of giving expert testimony at trial, were permitted to testify about their observations based on personal knowledge. However, they could not give opinion testimony based on information they acquired from other sources [*Matsuura v. E.I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. (D Haw 2007) 2007 US Dist LEXIS 7891, at *16-17 (analogizing witnesses' positions to those of treating physicians who use their expertise in medicine to treat and diagnose patients, and who are allowed to testify at trial without giving expert reports)].

Warning:

Fed R Civ P 37(c) gives teeth to this requirement by forbidding the use at trial of any information required to be disclosed by Rule 26(a) that is not properly disclosed [see Yeti by Molly Ltd. v. Deckers Outdoor Corp. (9th Cir 2001) 259 F3d 1101, 1106].

15.31[2] Report Must Contain Opinions, Bases for Opinions, Data, Information, Exhibits, Qualifications, and Previous Cases. The expert-witness report must contain the following [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2)(B)]:

- A complete statement of all opinions to be expressed and the basis and reasons for them;
- The data or other information considered by the witness in forming the opinions;
- Any exhibits to be used as a summary of or support for the opinions;
- The qualifications of the witness, including a list of all publications authored by the witness within the preceding 10 years;
- The compensation to be paid for the study and testimony; and
- A listing of any other cases in which the witness has testified as an expert at trial or by deposition within the preceding four years.

Exceptions:

Parties need not provide the reports if a stipulation so specifies, or a court order so directs [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2)(B)]. Rule 26(a)(2)(B) also does not require the production of an expert's working notes [McDonald v. Sun Oil Co. (D Or 2006) 423 F Supp2d 1114, 1122 ; see Gillespie v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1st Cir 2004) 386 F3d 21, 34-35].

Warning:

An opposing party is entitled to discover not only the opinions of a testifying expert witness, but also the basis for those opinions, so that any factual or other information relied on by the expert in forming opinions is subject to discovery [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2)(B)(i)]. Accordingly, if an attorney communicates work product to a testifying expert and that information is considered or relied on in forming the expert's opinion, the attorney should operate on the assumption that the information is discoverable as part of the basis of the expert's opinion and the work product protection is waived [United States v. City of Torrance (CD Cal 1995) 163 FRD 590, 593-594 ; Intermedics, Inc. v. Ventritex, Inc. (ND Cal 1991) 139 FRD 384, 388-389]. Accordingly, counsel should take pains not to provide its opinion work product to any expert likely to be designated pursuant to Rule 26(a)(2).

Also, because preliminary expert reports and drafts will be discoverable in this manner, an expert should avoid producing multiple drafts, which may give the appearance of contradiction or indecision.

Strategic Point--Demonstrative Evidence:

Demonstrative evidence, such as graphics, that an expert witness may present at trial must be disclosed under Rule 26(a)(2)(B). Be sure that all such material is contained in the relevant expert report. Failure to do so may result in exclusion of the evidence at trial.

Strategic Point--Assistance to Experts:

Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2)(B) does not preclude counsel from providing assistance to experts in preparing the reports; indeed, with experts such as automobile mechanics, this assistance may be needed. Nevertheless, the report, which is intended to set forth the substance of the direct examination, should be written in a manner that reflects the testimony to be given by the witness and must be signed by the witness [see Fed R Civ P 26(a), Committee Note of 1993].

15.31[3] Expert Report Must Be Detailed Statement of Direct Examination Testimony. The expert report must be a detailed and complete statement of the testimony of the expert on direct examination [Salgado by Salgado v. GMC (7th Cir 1998) 150 F.3d 735, 742 ; Atmel Corp. v. Information Storage (ND Cal 1999) 189 FRD 410, 415].

15.31[4] Expert Testimony Is Limited to Opinions and Bases Disclosed in Report. Under the normal operation of Fed R Civ P 26 and 37, an expert may not extend his or her direct testimony beyond the opinions and bases disclosed in the report and may not, on direct examination, cover new work done thereafter [Atmel Corp. v. Information Storage (ND Cal 1999) 189 FRD 410, 411]. Further, the failure to make timely disclosures under Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2)(B) can limit the conclusions that an expert may testify to at trial. An expert will be limited to testifying to only those otherwise admissible conclusions that were timely disclosed in his or her report [Olson v. Montana Rail Link, Inc. (D Mont 2005) 227 FRD 550, 553].

Warning:

The expert should conduct a professionally responsible search and review of the relevant material on which to base his or her opinions. An expert who consciously decides, at the suggestion of litigation counsel, not to review the relevant universe of literature or to consult colleagues familiar with techniques known and unknown during the relevant time period, and who chooses instead merely to rest on an inability to recall may be precluded on direct examination from expressing broad opinions concerning what relevant matters were and were not generally known [see, e.g., Atmel Corp. v. Information Storage (ND Cal 1999) 189 FRD 410, 411].

15.31[5] Treating Physician May Not Be Required to File Report. To the extent that a treating physician testifies only to the care and treatment of the patient, the physician is not considered to be a "specially employed" expert and is not subject to the written report requirement of Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2)(B), notwithstanding that the witness may offer opinion testimony under the Federal Rules of Evidence [Brown v. Best Foods (ND Ala 1996) 169 FRD 385, 387].

Opinions of a party's treating physicians that are based on information acquired in the course of treatment of the party do not trigger the report requirement of Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2)(B). Opinions of a physician that are based on information received from outside sources do trigger the report requirement of Rule 26(a)(2)(B) [Shapardon v. West Beach Estates (D Haw 1997) 172 FRD 415, 417].

Example:

In a personal injury case, the opinions of plaintiff's treating physicians that were based on information acquired in the course of treatment of plaintiff were allowed to be offered into evidence, and did not trigger the report requirement of Rule 26(a)(2)(B). Opinions that were based on information received from an independent medical examination report provided to the physician by plaintiff's counsel, did trigger the report requirement of Rule 26(a)(2)(B) [see Shapardon v. West Beach Estates (D Haw 1997) 172 FRD 415, 417].

Cross Reference:

Treating-physician exception, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 26.23[2] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Trap:

Some district courts have suggested that if the Rule 26(a)(2)(A) testimony exceeds the scope of treatment and ventures into more general expert opinion testimony, a report may be necessary [see, e.g., Zarecki v. National R.R. Passenger Corp. (ND Ill 1996) 914 F Supp 1566, 1573 ; Wreath v. United States (D Kan 1995) 161 FRD 448, 449-450 ; contra McCloughan v. City of Springfield (CD Ill 2002) 208 FRD 236, 240-242]. Since the law is unsettled with respect to the requirement of reports from treating medical personnel and the risk of exclusion of testimony as a sanction is great, counsel should provide reports from treating medical personnel.

15.34 Parties Must Supplement Disclosures.

The parties must supplement the disclosures made pursuant to Rule 26(a)(2) when required under Fed R Civ P 26(e)(1) [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2)(D)]. A party must make these disclosures at the times and in the sequence that the court orders [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2)(C)].

With respect to testimony of an expert from whom a report is required under Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2)(B), the duty extends both to information contained in the report and to information provided through a deposition of the expert [Fed R Civ P 26(e)(2)]. Any additions or other changes to this information must be disclosed by the time the party's disclosures under Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3) are due [Fed R Civ P 26(e)(2); *see United States v. 14.3 Acres of Land (SD Cal 2008) 2008 US Dist LEXIS 66667, at *10, *23-26 (examining relationship between Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2)(C), requiring strict compliance with court-ordered deadlines, and Fed R Civ P 26(e), which relaxes these deadlines to accommodate parties' duties to supplement their previous expert disclosures, and concluding that plaintiff's reports qualified as supplemental reports, timely submitted in accordance with Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2)(D) and Fed R Civ P 26(e))]. Unless otherwise directed by the court, disclosures under Rule 26(a)(3) must be made at least 30 days before trial [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3)(B)].

15.35 Motions to Compel.

If a party fails to make a disclosure required by Rule 26(a), any other party may move to compel disclosure and for appropriate sanctions [Fed R Civ P 37(a)(3)(A); Intercargo Ins. Co. v. Burlington N. Santa Fe R.R. (CD Cal 2001) 185 F Supp2d 1103, 1107 (defendants' remedy for an inadequate expert report is to seek an order compelling adequate discovery)].

Example:

In an action for breach of contract and fraud in connection with airport construction contracts, the court granted defendant's motion to compel further supplementation of disclosures regarding damages, specifying that the supplemental damages disclosures be completed within 30 days of its order and the production of documents supporting those computations be made within 45 days of the order [City & County of San Francisco v. Tutor-Saliba Corp. (ND Cal 2003) 218 FRD 219, 222].

The motion must include a certification that the movant has in good faith conferred or attempted to confer with the party not making the disclosure in an effort to secure the disclosure without court action [Fed R Civ P 37(a)(1)].

Unit 4 Required Conferences and Case Management
CHAPTER 15 Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures
V. FAILURE TO COMPLY WITH REQUIRED DISCLOSURE

2-15 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 15.36

15.36 Failure to Comply With Disclosure Requirements May Result in Sanctions.

15.36[1] Evidence May Be Excluded. A party that without substantial justification fails to disclose information required by Fed R Civ P 26(a) is not, unless such failure is harmless, permitted to use as evidence at a trial, at a hearing, or on a motion any witness or information not so disclosed [Fed R Civ P 37(c)(1); see Yeti by Molly Ltd. v. Deckers Outdoor Corp. (9th Cir 2001) 259 F3d 1101, 1106-1107].

Warning:

If a disclosing party fails to supplement its disclosures as required by Fed R Civ P 26(e), that supplemental evidence is also subject to the sanction of exclusion under Fed R Civ P 37(c)(1) [see, e.g., Adams v. Teck Cominco Alaska, Inc. (D Alaska 2005) 231 FRD 578, 581].

Cross Reference:

Sanctions for nondisclosure, Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, see §§ 25.50 -25.58.

15.36[2] "Substantially Justified" or "Harmless" Failure to Comply May Not Be Sanctioned. Two express exceptions ameliorate the harshness of Rule 37(c)(1): the information may be introduced if the parties' failure to disclose the required information is substantially justified or harmless [Fed R Civ P 37(c)(1); Wong v. Regents of the Univ. of Cal. (9th Cir 2005) 410 F3d 1052, 1062 ; Yeti by Molly, Ltd. v. Deckers Outdoor Corp. (9th Cir 2001) 259 F3d 1101, 1106-1107].

The burden is on the party facing sanctions to prove harmlessness [Yeti by Molly, Ltd. v. Deckers Outdoor Corp. (9th Cir 2001) 259 F3d 1101, 1106-1107]. The party requesting sanctions is not required to articulate how it would be prejudiced if it were not provided an expert witness report [Torres v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir 2009) 548 F3d 1197, 1213] .

Example--Disclosure of Documents Shortly After Creation "Substantially Justifies" Tardiness:

A party's late disclosure of bankruptcy documents was "substantially justified" when party disclosed them shortly after they were first created [Payne v. Exxon Corp. (9th Cir 1997) 121 F3d 503, 508].

Example--Nondisclosure Not "Harmless" and Exclusion Proper:

A party's failure to disclose a metallurgist's opinion that defect in manufacture caused failure of bicycle frame, resulting in injury to party, was not "harmless" because of prejudice to other party and disruption of court's trial docket that would result from continuance to allow other party to alleviate prejudice [Trost v. Trek Bicycle Corp. (8th Cir 1998) 162 F3d 1004, 1008].

Cross References:

Trial court's discretion in imposing sanctions, 6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 26.27 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Sanctions for nondisclosure, Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, see §§ 25.50 -25.58.

15.36[3] Court May Require Prompt Notification of Failure to Disclose. Counsel should move to compel or for sanctions as soon as the failure to properly disclose is discovered [Intercargo Ins. Co. v. Burlington N. Santa Fe R.R. (CD Cal 2001) 185 F Supp2d 1103, 1107 (because defendants did not seek to compel a more adequate disclosure within a reasonable time of service of the expert reports, court denied defendants' motions to strike expert witness designation)].

2-16 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 16.01

16.01 Scope.

This chapter covers case management, pretrial conferences, and scheduling. Fed R Civ P 16 is explicitly intended to encourage the active judicial management of the case development process and of trial in most civil actions. The chapter discusses the effective use of pretrial conferences, including the initial scheduling conference and all interim pretrial conferences, and is organized by the chronological sequence in which counsel are most likely to encounter the operation of Fed R Civ P 16 and related local rules. The chapter includes:

- An evaluation of the scope of Rule 16 and practice considerations under the Rule and related local rules [see 16.02 -16.04].
- Advice concerning the drafting and filing of scheduling orders, as well as other Rule 16 orders [see 16.06 -16.09; Form: 16.26].
- Attending discretionary scheduling conferences [see 16.10, 16.11].
- Seeking modification of scheduling order [see 16.12].
- Attending interim pretrial conferences and settlement conferences [see 16.14 -16.23].
- Referring cases to magistrate judges [see 16.24].
- Appointing masters for case management [see 16.25].

CHAPTER 16 Case Management Conferences
I. STRATEGY

2-16 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 16.02

16.02 Objective and Strategy.

Federal practice emphasizes court involvement in managing litigation. Early and regular court involvement in the planning and conduct of litigation yields a more efficient, less expensive, and less rancorous process. Fed R Civ P 16 requires judges to fix deadlines for completing the major pretrial tasks and encourages judges to participate actively in designing case-specific plans for positioning litigation as efficiently as possible for disposition by settlement, motion, or trial. Rule 16 authorizes and regulates the use of a wide range of case management tools and powers--principally through pretrial conferences.

Participation in pretrial conferences requires parties to contemplate and articulate a plan of action throughout the course of litigation. Accordingly, it is extremely important at the earliest possible time, and certainly no later than the initial meeting between counsel, for counsel to develop an overall theme or theory for the case, and to identify its strengths and weaknesses. Well-prepared counsel can use Rule 16 conferences to affect the basic structure and timing of the pretrial process and to fix important terms of the trial itself.

CHAPTER 16 Case Management Conferences
II. PARTICIPATING IN PRETRIAL CONFERENCES
A. Scheduling Conferences and Orders

2-16 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 16.04

16.04 Pretrial Conferences Promote Active Judicial Case Management.

16.04[1] Rule 16 Is Primary Source of Court's Case Management Authority. Rule 16 is the principal source of authority for district courts to achieve the fundamental purpose stated in Rule 1 of securing "the just, speedy, and inexpensive determination of every action and proceeding" [Fed R Civ P 16; see Fed R Civ P 1; see also FMC Corp. v. Vendo Co. (ED Cal 2002) 196 F Supp2d 1023, 1030].

Rule 16 promotes a concept of active judicial management of the case development process in most civil actions to reach a swift, inexpensive, and just resolution of litigation, with the participation and cooperation of counsel and the parties [see Navellier v. Sletten (9th Cir 2001) 262 F3d 923, 941 , cert. denied sub nom. McLachlan v. Simon, 536 US 941 (2002) (trial courts have broad authority to set time limits to prevent undue delay, waste, or needless introduction of cumulative evidence)].

16.04[2] General Use of Pretrial Conferences. Rule 16 authorizes and regulates the use of a wide range of case management tools and powers, principally through pretrial conferences, and authorizes a wide range of sanctions for violations of pretrial orders [Fed R Civ P 16].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of sanctions under Rule 16, see Ch. 17, Final Pretrial Conference, 17.17.

A federal court has discretion to direct the attorneys for the parties and any unrepresented parties to appear for a pretrial conference or conferences for case management purposes, including the following [Fed R Civ P 16(a)]:

- Expediting the disposition of the action, including narrowing issues and defenses.

- Establishing early and continuing control so that the case will not be protracted because of lack of management.

- Discouraging wasteful pretrial activities, including unnecessary discovery.
- Improving the quality of the trial by requiring more thorough preparation.
- Facilitating settlement or the use of alternative dispute resolution mechanisms.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of objectives and case management philosophy of Rule 16, see 3 Moore's Federal Practice, § 16.02 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

16.04[3] Importance of Local Rules and Individual Judges' Practices. Although the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure generally promote some commonality of practice between different judges and between different federal courts, so much flexibility has been built into Fed R Civ P 16 that the Rule itself does relatively little to advance the cause of uniformity. To allow judges to fashion case development plans that are tailored to the needs to individual cases, Rule 16 necessarily confers a great deal of discretion on the individual judges who apply it [see Zivkovic v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (9th Cir 2002) 302 F3d 1080, 1087 (district courts have broad discretion in supervising pretrial activities); see also Navellier v. Sletten (9th Cir 2001) 262 F3d 923, 941 , cert. denied sub nom. McLachlan v. Simon, 536 US 941 (2002) (trial courts have broad authority to set time limits to prevent undue delay, waste, or needless introduction of cumulative evidence)]. In addition, Rule 16 recognizes the authority of district courts, by local rule, to create specialized sets of procedures for various categories of actions. Responding to this invitation, many courts have adopted elaborate sets of specialized provisions that apply only to certain kinds of cases.

Warning:

The variety of practices under Rule 16 among sitting federal judges can be confusing. Therefore, at the outset, counsel must consult the local rules of the particular district, and also the individual judge's rules.

Cross Reference:

Variety of judicial practices under Rule 16, see 3 Moore's Federal Practice, § 16.03 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

16.05 Terminology.

Different district courts use different labels to describe pretrial conferences. The initial "meet and confer" contact between counsel is variously referred to as the Rule 26(f) conference or the discovery planning conference. This meeting is discussed in Ch. 15, Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures.

Further, district courts use different terms to refer to the first conference conducted by the judge or magistrate judge. Some districts label the conference a scheduling conference, while others call it an initial status conference, an initial pretrial conference, an initial case management conference, a Rule 16 conference, or a first discovery conference. This chapter uses the term scheduling conference in the general text, but uses each district's specific term in the local practice discussions.

District courts also use different labels to describe periodic, interim pretrial conferences authorized by Fed R Civ P 16(c). District courts use the following terms: interim pretrial conferences, status conferences, discovery planning conferences, Rule 16 conferences, interim or intermediate case management conferences, and, as appropriate, settlement conferences. This chapter uses the term interim pretrial conference to refer to all pretrial conferences other than the scheduling conference and the final pretrial conference.

Finally, courts use varying terms to refer to the final pretrial conference. This conference is discussed in Ch. 17, Final Pretrial Conference.

Local rules may prescribe the appropriate terminology. For example, the Northern District designates "scheduling," "discovery," or "status" conferences under Fed R Civ P 16 and 26 as "case management conferences." All statements, proposed orders, or other documents prepared in connection with such conferences must be referred to as such [ND Cal Civ LR 16-1].

Unit 4 Required Conferences and Case Management
CHAPTER 16 Case Management Conferences
II. PARTICIPATING IN PRETRIAL CONFERENCES
A. Scheduling Conferences and Orders

2-16 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 16.06

16.06 Preparing and Filing Scheduling Order.

16.06[1] Scheduling Order Mandatory Unless Exempted by Local Rule. Except in categories of actions expressly exempted by local district court rule [see 16.08], the judge or magistrate judge must enter a pretrial scheduling order, after receiving the Rule 26(f) proposed discovery report from the parties [see Ch. 15, Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures], or after consulting with the attorneys for the parties and any unrepresented parties by conference, telephone, mail, or other suitable means [Fed R Civ P 16(b)].

The scheduling order is the court's primary method to control its calendar, assert control over the case management process, and define the parameters of the case [see Navellier v. Sletten (9th Cir 2001) 262 F3d 923, 941 , cert. denied sub nom. McLachlan v. Simon, 536 US 941 (2002)]. The requirement of a scheduling order permits the court to intervene early to set realistic deadlines for discovery and other aspects of pretrial case development, as well as to position the case for settlement, alternative dispute resolution, or trial.

Strategic Point:

A judge's failure to issue a mandatory scheduling order is not ordinarily deemed by appellate courts to be sufficient grounds, by itself, for any significant relief. Because it is probable that these failures are more often due to oversight than to deliberate decision, and because the absence of a scheduling order can result in lack of focus, inefficiency, and delays in disposition, if so inclined, counsel should consider proposing a scheduling order or request a scheduling or case management conference when a judge has failed to act in accordance with Rule 16's mandates. In some districts the clerk issues the initial scheduling order when the complaint is filed. If the judge fails to issue an order after the conference, the parties should try to stipulate or submit their proposed orders to the judge for approval.

16.06[2] Judge and Litigants Must Have Contact Before Issuance of Scheduling Order.

16.06[2][a] Purpose of Mandatory Contact. A federal judge may not issue a scheduling order without having first either received from the litigants the proposed discovery plan report, or consulted with the attorneys for the parties and any unrepresented parties by a scheduling conference [see 16.10], telephone, mail, or other suitable means [Fed R Civ P 16(b)(1)].

This preliminary contact serves the following purposes:

- The court may assert control over the litigation and the parties from the outset.
- The parties have an opportunity, at the outset, to inform the court of potential procedural, evidentiary, and substantive problems, as well as personal scheduling conflicts, that might affect the pretrial schedule.
- The court may tailor the scheduling order to the needs of the individual case.

16.06[2][b] Manner of Initial Contact Not Prescribed. Fed R Civ P 16 does not require that this initial contact between the judge and the litigants be in person or by telephone. The manner of contact is discretionary, and it is sufficient to solicit and receive input from counsel in writing or electronically. The receipt of a written report outlining the discovery plan is one method to satisfy this requirement [Fed R Civ P 26(f)].

16.06[2][c] Scope of Consultation Varies. The scope and the nature of the matters on which the court seeks the parties' input varies considerably from court to court, judge to judge, and case to case. Some judges solicit only the most skeletal of input, simply asking for three proposed deadlines: to join parties and amend pleadings, to file motions, and to complete discovery. Other judges solicit detailed submissions not only on all mandatory and discretionary matters covered by Rule 16(b) [see 16.07], but also on most of the subjects that are identified in Rule 16(c) as possible agenda items in any pretrial conference [Fed R Civ P 16(b), (c)].

Warning:

Practices as to the initial contact between the judge and the litigants vary between courts, between individual judges in the same court, and between types of cases. Counsel should consult the pertinent local rules, as well as any individual judges' rules and general or standing orders.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of contact between judge and litigants before issuance of scheduling order, see 3 Moore's Federal Practice, § 16.11 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

16.06[3] Time for Order. Regardless of whether a district court holds a formal scheduling conference, the scheduling order must be issued as soon as practicable, and in any event is due within 90 days of the date any defendant first enters its appearance (whether by answer or motion) or, if earlier, within 120 days of the date of service of the complaint on any defendant [Fed R Civ P 16(b)(2)].

Consider:

The timing of the scheduling order may present problems in multidefendant litigation. The trial court may issue the scheduling order before all defendants have been served and appear in the action. Local rules may permit a party, including a party added later in the case, to seek relief from an obligation imposed by Fed R Civ P 16 or 26 or the Order Setting Initial Case Management Conference [see, e.g., ND Cal Civ LR 16-2(d)]. As an alternative approach, it is always wise to request a stipulation of opposing counsel as to the scheduling order in the first instance.

16.06[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: Scheduling Orders.

16.06[4][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. The Central District rules are silent with respect to the timing of scheduling orders.

Cross Reference:

Exemptions from scheduling order requirement, see 16.08[2][a].

16.06[4][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. After an action is filed, the assigned judge or magistrate judge will order the holding of one or more status conferences for the purpose of entering a pretrial scheduling order [ED Cal Civ LR 240(a)]. Scheduling orders are mandatory unless specifically exempt [see Fed R Civ P 16(b); ED Cal Civ LR 240(c)].

Cross Reference:

Exemptions from scheduling order requirement, see 16.08[2][b].

16.06[4][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. "Scheduling," "discovery," or "status" conferences under Fed R Civ P 16 and 26 must be designated as "case management conferences." All statements, proposed orders, or other documents prepared in connection with such conferences must be referred to as such [ND Cal Civ LR 16-1]. Unless excluded under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, or the Northern District's local rules or court orders, the trial court must issue to the filing party an Order Setting Initial Case Management Conference and ADR Deadlines when the action is filed. A copy of the order must be served by the plaintiff on each defendant, along with any required supplementary materials [ND Cal Civ LR 16-2(a); see ND Cal Civ LR 7-12; see also ND Cal Civ LR 16-2(b), (c) (removed and transferred cases)].

Consider--Rescheduled Conference for Related Case:

When a case is reassigned as a related case, the case management conference will be rescheduled by the newly assigned judge. The parties must adjust the dates for the conference, and all disclosures and statements. Any dates for hearing noticed motions are vacated and the motions must be renoticed before the new judge. However, if a case is ordered related after the initial case management conference, unless the new judge orders otherwise, any deadlines established in the case management order continue to govern, except for trial date which will be rescheduled by the new judge [ND Cal Civ LR 3-12(g)].

Cross Reference:

Exemptions from scheduling order requirement, see 16.08[2][c].

16.06[4][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. Following the initial case management conference, the presiding judicial officer will prepare a case management order [SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(d.2)]. For discussion of the requisite contents, see 16.07[2][d].

CHAPTER 16 Case Management Conferences
II. PARTICIPATING IN PRETRIAL CONFERENCES
A. Scheduling Conferences and Orders

2-16 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 16.07

16.07 Topics to Be Addressed by Scheduling Order.

16.07[1] Mandatory and Optional Scheduling Order Topics. The scheduling order must limit the time to join other parties, to amend the pleadings, to file substantive motions, and to complete discovery [Fed R Civ P 16(b)(3)(A)].

The scheduling order may also include [Fed R Civ P 16(b)(3)(B)]:

- Modifications of the times for disclosures under Fed R Civ P 26(a), (e)(1), and of the extent of the discovery to be permitted.
- Provisions for disclosure or discovery of electronically stored material.
- Any agreements the parties reach for asserting claims of privilege or of protection as trial-preparation material after production.
- The dates for interim pretrial conferences, a final pretrial conference, and trial.
- Any other matters appropriate in the circumstances of the case.

Example:

A district court has the authority to require a defendant to prepare a Martinez report through a Fed R Civ P 16 scheduling order [Goddard v. United States Dist. Court (In re Arizona) (9th Cir 2008) 528 F3d 652, 657-658]. The purpose of a Martinez report is to give the court the benefit of detailed factual information that may help in identifying a case involving a constitutional challenge to an important, complicated correctional practice, particularly one that may affect more than the inmate who has filed the action [Goddard v. United States Dist. Court (In re Arizona) (9th Cir 2008) 528 F3d 652, 656]. In this § 1983 case, the court issued the order in connection with its customary pretrial management prerogatives as a way to create an administrative record to assist the court and to structure the direction of the litigation. The information to be provided was consistent with ordinary pretrial obligations and reporting requirements in non-prisoner civil rights cases, in which both parties have an affirmative duty to allege at the pretrial conference all factual and legal bases on which they wish to litigate the case [Goddard v. United States Dist. Court (In re Arizona) (9th Cir 2008) 528 F3d 652, 657].

Warning:

Consult your district's local rules [see 16.07[2]], as well as the individual judge's rules, for any provisions regarding topics to be addressed in the scheduling order.

Cross Reference:

Contents of scheduling order, see 3 Moore's Federal Practice, § 16.13[1], [2] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

16.07[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Topics to Be Addressed by Scheduling Order.

16.07[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. The Central District does not prescribe specific items for the scheduling order, although individual judges specify what must be addressed in the Rule 26(f) conference report. Rule 16(b) requires that the order reflect all actions taken at the scheduling conference [see Fed R Civ P 16(b)].

16.07[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. The scheduling order must reflect all actions taken at the scheduling conference. Conference topics include [ED Cal Civ LR 240(a)]:

- Service of process on parties not yet served;
- Jurisdiction and venue;
- Whether the action must be heard by a district court composed of three judges [see ED Cal Civ LR 203], or whether the action draws in issue the constitutionality of a statute or regulation under circumstances requiring notice as set forth in 28 USC § 2403, Fed R Civ P 5.1 or ED Cal Gen LR 132;
- Joinder of additional parties and amendment of pleadings;
- The formulation and simplification of the issues, including elimination of frivolous claims and defenses;
- The appropriateness of any variance from the usual filing and service requirements applicable to the action;
- The disposition of pending motions, the timing of a motion for class certification [see ED Cal Civ LR 205], the appropriateness and timing of summary adjudication under Fed R Civ P 56, and other anticipated motions;
- The propriety of initial disclosures as contemplated by Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1), the results of the initial discovery conference, anticipated or outstanding discovery, including the necessity for relief from discovery limits, and the control and scheduling of discovery, including deferral of discovery whether to hold further discovery conferences, and other orders affecting discovery pursuant to Fed R Civ P 26 and 29- 37 ;
- The avoidance of unnecessary proof and of cumulative evidence, and limitations or restrictions on the use of testimony under Fed R Evid 702;
- The possibility of obtaining admissions of fact and of documents that will avoid unnecessary proof, stipulations regarding the authenticity of documents, and advance rulings from the court on the admissibility of evidence;

- Further proceedings, including setting dates for further conferences, for the completion of motions and discovery and for pretrial and trial; the appropriateness of an order adopting a plan for disclosure of experts under Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2)(B), CCP § 2034.010 et seq., or an alternative plan; and the appropriateness of an order establishing a reasonable limit on the time allowed for presenting evidence;

- Modification of the standard pretrial procedures specified by the local rules because of the relative simplicity or complexity of the action;

- The appropriateness of an order for a separate trial pursuant to Fed R Civ P 42(b) with respect to a claim, counterclaim, crossclaim, or third-party claim, or affirmative defense, or with respect to any particular issue in the case;

- The appropriateness of an order directing a party or parties to present evidence early in the trial with respect to a manageable issue that could, on the evidence, be the basis for a judgment as a matter of law under Fed R Civ P 50(a) or a judgment on partial findings under Fed R Civ P 52(c);

- The appropriateness of special procedures, such as reference to a special master or magistrate judge or the judicial panel on multidistrict litigation, or application of the Manual for Complex Litigation;

- The prospects for settlement and the use of special procedures to assist in resolving the dispute; however, counsel may not, absent written stipulation, reveal any offers made or rejected during settlement negotiations, and counsel must specify whether they will stipulate to the trial judge or magistrate judge acting as settlement judge and waive any disqualification;

- The appropriateness of alternate dispute resolution, such as this District's Voluntary Dispute Resolution Program (VDRP), or any other alternative dispute resolution procedure;

- Any other matters that may facilitate the just, speedy and inexpensive determination of the action.

Note also that the scheduling order will prescribe the form and the content of the pretrial statement [see ED Cal Civ LR 281(a)].

Cross Reference:

Content of pretrial statement as determined by scheduling order in Eastern District, see Ch. 17, Final Pretrial Conference, see § 17.10[1].

16.07[2][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. After any case management conference, the judge must enter a case management order or sign the joint case management statement and proposed order submitted by the parties. This order must comply with Fed R Civ P 16(b) and identify the principal issues in the case, establish deadlines for joining parties and amending pleadings, identify and set the date for filing any motions that should be considered early in the pretrial period, establish a disclosure and discovery plan, set appropriate limits on discovery and refer the case to ADR unless such a referral would be inappropriate. In addition, the Court may establish deadlines for [ND Cal Civ LR 16-10(b)]:

- Commencement and completion of any ADR proceedings;

- Disclosure of proposed expert or other opinion witnesses pursuant to Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2), as well as supplementation of those disclosures;

- Conclusion of pretrial discovery and disclosure;

- Hearing pretrial motions;

- Counsel to meet and confer to prepare joint final pretrial conference statement and proposed order and coordinated submission of trial exhibits and other material;

- Filing joint final pretrial conference statement and proposed order;

- Lodging exhibits and other trial material, including copies of all exhibits to be offered and all schedules, summaries, diagrams and charts to be used at the trial other than for impeachment or rebuttal. Each proposed exhibit must be premarked for identification. On request, a party must make the original or the underlying documents of any exhibit available for inspection and copying;

- Serving and filing briefs on all significant disputed issues of law, including procedural and evidentiary issues;

- In jury cases, serving and filing requested voir dire questions, jury instructions, and forms of verdict; or in court cases, serving and filing proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law;

- Serving and filing statements designating excerpts from depositions (specifying the witness and page and line references), from interrogatory answers and from responses to requests for admission to be offered at the trial other than for impeachment or rebuttal;

- A date by which parties objecting to receipt into evidence of any proposed testimony or exhibit must advise and confer with the opposing party with respect to resolving such objection;

- A final pretrial conference and any necessary court hearing to consider unresolved objections to proposed testimony or exhibits;

- A trial date and schedule;

- Determination of whether the case will be maintained as a class action; and

- Any other activities appropriate in the management of the case, including use of procedures set forth in the Manual for Complex Litigation.

16.07[2][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. The initial case management order will [SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(d.2)]:

- Include a discovery schedule;

- Set a time for a further case management conference, if necessary;

- If appropriate, set a time for the proponent of each issue to identify expert witnesses, a time for the responding party to identify expert witnesses in reply, a time for the depositions of experts, a time for the supplementation of expert designation depending on the circumstances;

- Set a deadline for filing pretrial motions; and

- Set a date for a pretrial hearing before the district judge who will try the case. The date for this hearing must be approved by the trial judge.

16.08 Categories of Cases Exempt From Scheduling Order Requirement.

16.08[1] Only Local Rules May Exempt Categories of Cases. Local district court rules provide the only means for exempting categories of cases from the scheduling order requirement [Fed R Civ P 16(b)]. This limitation precludes individual judges, acting on their own initiative and their own authority, from issuing standing orders that purport to exempt certain categories of their cases from the scheduling order requirement.

The fact that a particular category of cases is properly exempted from the scheduling order requirement does not mean that the case is to be left in management limbo. Rather, courts establish an appropriate alternative system for managing, monitoring, and disposing of each category of exempted case.

If one party is pro se, counsel should keep in mind that most judges are reluctant to impose a lot of procedural rules on pro se parties, other than what the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure require.

Consider:

Counsel litigating cases that have been exempted from the scheduling order requirement can generally find any special rules that apply to their matters in local rules, general orders, or standing orders.

Cross Reference:

Exemption of categories of cases by local rule, see 3 Moore's Federal Practice, § 16.10[3] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

16.08[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Scheduling Order Exemptions.

16.08[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. Unless otherwise required by the court, the following categories of cases are exempted from the requirements for a scheduling order [CD Cal Civ LR 16-12]:

- Petitions filed under 28 USC § 2241 et seq. (habeas corpus), or their functional equivalents;

- Actions for judicial review of a decision by the Commissioner of Social Security under 42 USC § 405(g);

- Any case in which the plaintiff is appearing pro se, is in custody, and is not an attorney;

- Any case removed to the Central District from the small claims division of a municipal or justice court;

- Appeals from the bankruptcy court;

- Extradition cases;

- Actions to enforce or quash an administrative summons or subpoena; and

- Actions by the United States to collect on a student loan guaranteed by the United States.

16.08[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. The following categories of civil actions are exempt from the mandatory scheduling order requirement [ED Cal Civ LR 240(c)]:

- Actions brought solely under USC Title 42 to review a final decision of the Secretary of Health and Human Services;

- Actions brought to enforce Internal Revenue Service summonses filed pursuant to 26 USC §§ 7402(b) and 7604(a), and actions to quash administrative summonses filed pursuant to 26 USC § 7609(b)(2);

- Actions for writs of entry in connection with the enforcement of Internal Revenue Service tax liens;

- Actions to enforce collection on promissory notes involving federally insured loans and direct federal loans in which the prayer for relief is less than $25,000;

- Actions to enforce cease and desist orders issued by the National Labor Relations Board;

- Actions to enforce arbitration awards;

- Actions under 46 USC §§ 2302, 4311(d) and 12309(c);

- Prisoner actions as defined in ED Cal Gen LR 101;

- Petitions for writs of habeas corpus by incarcerated persons;

- Extradition proceedings;

- Discovery disputes originating from out-of-district actions;

- Civil commitment proceedings; and

- Federal Debt Collection proceedings.

16.08[2][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. Unless otherwise provided by local rule, the categories of cases that are exempted from the initial disclosure requirements [see Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)] by Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(B) are exempt from the requirement of a scheduling order [ND Cal Civ LR 16-7].

Cross Reference:

Cases exempt from initial disclosure requirements, see Ch. 15, Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures, see § 15.05.

16.08[2][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. The assigned judge has discretion to exempt actions from Early Neutral Evaluation (ENE) and case management conferences in the following categories of cases [SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(e)]:

- Habeas corpus cases;
- Cases reviewing administrative rulings;
- Social Security Cases;
- Default proceedings;
- Cases in which a substantial number of defendants have not answered;
- Actions to enforce judgments; and
- Bankruptcy appeals.

ENE conferences will not be set in Section 1983 prisoner cases [SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(e)].

16.09 Scheduling Order Controls Course of Litigation Unless Modified.

The scheduling order controls the course of the litigation unless modified by the court [Fed R Civ P 16(b); Zivkovic v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (9th Cir 2002) 302 F3d 1080, 1087-1088 ; Johnson v. Mammoth Recreations, Inc. (9th Cir 1992) 975 F2d 604, 609-610 (scheduling order is not idly entered, and should not be cavalierly ignored by counsel)].

Example:

A motion to join new parties filed after the deadline set forth in the scheduling order may be denied as untimely [Johnson v. Mammoth Recreations, Inc. (9th Cir 1992) 975 F2d 604, 609-610 (summary judgment granted in favor of party who repeatedly stated it was not responsible party); see also Robinson v. Twin Falls Highway Dist. (D Idaho 2006) 233 FRD 670, 672 (motion to add party over three months after discovery deadline as untimely)].

Scheduling orders are generally binding through the subsequent course of the litigation. Unless the party requests modification of the scheduling order [see 16.10], motions filed after the relevant deadlines may be denied solely on the basis that the motion was untimely [Johnson v. Mammoth Recreations, Inc. (9th Cir 1992) 975 F2d 604, 609-610]. Nevertheless, trial courts should not so rigidly adhere to time limits as to sacrifice justice in the name of judicial efficiency [Navellier v. Sletten (9th Cir 2001) 262 F3d 923, 941 , cert. denied sub nom. McLachlan v. Simon, 536 US 941 (2002) (quoting General Signal Corp. v. MCI Telecomms. Corp. (9th Cir 1995) 66 F3d 1500, 1509)].

16.10 Scheduling Conference Is Discretionary Unless Required by Local Rule.

Federal judges may, but are not required to, hold a scheduling conference before issuing a scheduling order. Although the court and the parties must communicate, that communication may be by [Fed R Civ P 16(b)(1)]:

- Scheduling conference;
- Report outlining the proposed discovery plan [see Ch. 15, Rule];
- Telephone communication;
- Mail communication;
- Other suitable means.

Warning:

Consult the local rules of the particular district, as well as the individual judge's rules, regarding any scheduling conference requirements.

16.11 Attending Scheduling Conference.

16.11[1] Counsel and Unrepresented Parties Must Attend. Because the court must consult with parties' counsel and unrepresented parties before issuing a scheduling order, they should attend the scheduling conference [Fed R Civ P 16(b)(1)].

16.11[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Attending Conference.

16.11[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. Each party appearing at any scheduling conference held under Fed R Civ P 16 must be represented by the attorney (or the party if pro se) who is then contemplated to have charge of the conduct of the trial on behalf of that party [CD Cal Civ LR 16-13].

16.11[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. All parties receiving notice of any status conference must appear in person or by counsel and be prepared to discuss all subjects as may be specified in the order noticing the conference. That person must have authority to enter into stipulations and to make admissions regarding all matters that the participants may reasonably anticipate may be discussed [ED Cal Civ LR 240(a)].

16.11[2][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. Unless excused by the judge, lead trial counsel for each party must attend the initial case management conference. Requests to participate in the conference by telephone must be filed and served at least seven days before the conference or in accordance with the standing orders of the assigned judge [ND Cal Civ LR 16-10(a)].

16.11[2][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. The parties who have responsibility over the litigation and the counsel who is respon-sible for the case must attend the case management conference. The judicial officer may approve attendance of a party or counsel by telephonic conference call [SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(d)].

2-16 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 16.12

16.12 Seeking Modification of Scheduling Order Based on Good Cause.

16.12[1] Party Seeking Modification Must Show Good Cause. A scheduling order may not be modified except by leave of court on a showing of good cause [Fed R Civ P 16(b)(4); Zivkovic v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (9th Cir 2002) 302 F3d 1080, 1087-1088 ; Matrix Motor Co. v. Toyota Motor Corp. (CD Cal 2003) 218 FRD 667, 671].

The Rule 16(b) "good cause" standard, rather than the more liberal standard of Fed R Civ P 15(a), governs a motion to amend pleadings filed after the deadline set in the scheduling order for amending the pleadings [see Coleman v. Quaker Oats Co. (9th Cir 2000) 232 F3d 1271, 1294 , cert. denied, 533 US 950 (2001) (good cause required for modification); see also Eckert Cold Storage, Inc. v. Behl (ED Cal 1996) 943 F Supp 1230, 1232].

Strategic Point:

A court is far more likely to respond favorably to a motion seeking an extension if counsel files the motion promptly on discovering scheduling difficulties and does not wait until the last minute to file the request. A request filed after the passage of the relevant deadline may in fact violate local rules.

Cross Reference:

Modification of scheduling orders, see 3 Moore's Federal Practice, § 16.14 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

16.12[2] Good Cause Requires Due Diligence. The good cause standard primarily considers the diligence of the party seeking modification [Matrix Motor Co. v. Toyota Motor Corp. (CD Cal 2003) 218 FRD 667, 671].

Modification will only be permitted if the party seeking the extension demonstrates that the schedule cannot reasonably be met even with the exercise of due diligence [Matrix Motor Co. v. Toyota Motor Corp. (CD Cal 2003) 218 FRD 667, 671-672 ; Zivkovic v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (9th Cir 2002) 302 F3d 1080, 1087-1088].

If the party was not diligent, the inquiry ends and the motion to modify should be denied [Zivkovic v. Southern Cal.

Edison Co. (9th Cir 2002) 302 F3d 1080, 1087-1088 ; Johnson v. Mammoth Recreations, Inc. (9th Cir 1992) 975 F2d 604, 609]. Carelessness is not a basis for granting relief [FMC Corp. v. Vendo Co. (ED Cal 2002) 196 F Supp2d 1023, 1030 ; Zivkovic v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (9th Cir 2002) 302 F3d 1080, 1087-1088].

Strategic Point:

The party seeking modification should demonstrate diligence in working with the court in crafting a new scheduling order, and that the party filed the request for modification as soon as practicable [see Jackson v. Laureate, Inc. (ED Cal 1999) 186 FRD 605, 608].

Judge's Perspective:

Keep in mind that a party that was well prepared and cooperative at the initial conference stands a better chance of a favorable response when seeking a modification.

16.12[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: Modification of Scheduling Orders.

16.12[3][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. Any application to modify a scheduling order (and any other Rule 16 order) must be made to the judicial officer who entered the order [CD Cal Civ LR 16-14].

16.12[3][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. The local rules of the Eastern District do not specify a modification procedure for scheduling orders.

16.12[3][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. Any party, including a party added later in the case, may file a motion seeking relief from an obligation imposed by Fed R Civ P 16 or 26 or the Order Setting Initial Case Management Conference. The motion must [ND Cal Civ LR 16-2(d)]:

- Describe the circumstances that support the request;
- Affirm that counsel for the moving party has conferred with all other counsel in an effort to reach agreement about the matter and, for each other party, report whether that party supports or opposes the request for relief;
- Be accompanied by a proposed revised case management schedule; and
- If applicable, indicate any changes required in the ADR process or schedule in the case.

16.12[3][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. The local rules of the Southern District do not specify a modification procedure for scheduling orders.

16.13 Appellate Review of Scheduling Orders.

16.13[1] Immediate Appellate Review Ordinarily Unavailable. In general, most scheduling orders are interlocutory in nature, rather than final [see Miera v. First Sec. Bank, N.A. (10th Cir 1985) 776 F2d 902, 906 , appeal after remand, 925 F2d 1237 (10th Cir 1991)]. They deal with preliminary matters, and may still be modified by the court during the pretrial period [see Fed R Civ P 16(b), (d)]. Review is ordinarily deferred until after final judgment; however, a timely objection must be registered with the trial court [see Jauregui v. City of Glendale (9th Cir 1988) 852 F2d 1128, 1133-1134 (pretrial order establishing facts of discrimination in employment)].

16.13[2] Extraordinary Circumstances May Permit Immediate Review. In rare circumstances, a scheduling order may be immediately appealable either by direct appeal or by writ of mandamus [see Miera v. First Sec. Bank, N.A. (10th Cir 1985) 776 F2d 902, 906 , appeal after remand, 925 F2d 1237 (10th Cir 1991) (citing Moore's, pretrial orders that effectively resolve all triable issues are reviewable)]. This could occur concerning (1) a decision whether an action must be heard by a district court composed of three judges, or (2) a pretrial order establishing liability [see Miera v. First Sec. Bank, N.A. (10th Cir 1985) 776 F2d 902, 906 , appeal after remand, 925 F2d 1237 (10th Cir 1991)].

Cross References:

Discussion of availability of immediate review in extraordinary circumstances, see 3 Moore's Federal Practice, § 16.38[2]. Discussion of application of final judgment rule to pretrial orders, see 19 Moore's Federal Practice, § 202.11 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

16.13[3] Scheduling Order Decisions Reviewed for Abuse of Discretion. Challenges to a trial court's management of a case are reviewed for abuse of discretion [Zivkovic v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (9th Cir 2002) 302 F3d 1080, 1087-1088 ; Johnson v. Mammoth Recreations, Inc. (9th Cir 1992) 975 F2d 604, 607-609]. Decisions as to the preclusive effect of a pretrial order will not be disturbed unless they evidence a clear abuse of discretion [Johnson v. Mammoth Recreations, Inc. (9th Cir 1992) 975 F2d 604, 607-609].

16.13[4] Modification Ruling Reviewed for Abuse of Discretion. District courts have broad discretion to supervise the pretrial phase of litigation, including setting reasonable time limits. The decision to modify a scheduling order is within the trial court's broad discretion to expedite the completion of trials [see Navellier v. Sletten (9th Cir 2001) 262 F3d 923, 941 , cert. denied sub nom. McLachlan v. Simon, 536 US 941 (2002) (trial courts have broad authority to set time limits to prevent undue delay, waste, or needless introduction of cumulative evidence); FMC Corp. v. Vendo Co. (ED Cal 2002) 196 F Supp2d 1023, 1030].

Distinguish:

Although trial courts have discretion to expedite trials, they cannot so rigidly adhere to time limits as to sacrifice justice in the name of judicial efficiency [Navellier v. Sletten (9th Cir 2001) 262 F3d 923, 941 , cert. denied sub nom. McLachlan v. Simon, 536 US 941 (2002) (quoting General Signal Corp. v. MCI Telecomms. Corp. (9th Cir 1995) 66 F3d 1500, 1509)].

16.14 CHECKLISTS: Participating in Interim Pretrial Conferences and Settlement Conferences.

16.14[1] CHECKLIST: Interim Pretrial Conferences.

☐ Determine whether facts and circumstances warrant one or more interim pretrial conferences, considering:

- ○ Assigned judge's or magistrate judge's attitude toward active case management.
- ○ The complexity of the case.
- ○ Whether the scheduling order deadlines are still viable.
- ○ Whether discovery has taken the case in a new direction.
- ○ Whether some claims and defenses may be eliminated from the case, especially with the court's assistance.
- ○ Cooperation of counsel.

Discussion:
See 16.16

☐ If conference is warranted, determine applicable procedure:

- Request court to schedule conference.
- If required, prepare and file preconference statements.

Authority:
ED Cal Civ LR 240(a); ND Cal Civ LR 16-10(c), (d); SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(d.2)

Discussion:

☐ Determine who must participate at interim conference.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 16(c)(1); ED Cal Civ LR 240(a); ND Cal Civ LR 16-10(c)

Discussion:
See 16.18

☐ At the conference, the following matters may be discussed:

- Seeking summary adjudication if feasible.
- Attempting to narrow the issues for trial and eliminate unsupported claims and defenses.
- Amending the pleadings.
- Settlement.
- References to magistrate judge or master.
- Identifying witnesses and documents.
- Obtaining stipulations and advance court rulings on the admissibility of evidence.
- Dates for future interim conferences, motions, the final pretrial conference, and trial.
- The order of calling witness, presenting proof, and reasonable time limits for trial.
- Bifurcation.
- Adopting special procedures for complicated cases.

Authority:

16.14[2] CHECKLIST: Settlement Conferences.

☐ If appropriate, stipulate to preferences for one or more judges, magistrate judges, or other presiding neutrals as prospective settlement judges.

☐ Ascertain the attitude and methods towards settlement conferences of the settlement judge.

☐ Ascertain whether the client needs to attend or remain available for consultation by telephone.

☐ Prepare extensively with the client, regardless of whether the client will be present at the conference:

- ○ Review contentions, summaries of proposed testimony, and settlement demands with client.
- ○ Rationalize damage theories, make and test damage calculations, and organize proof of damages.
- ○ Explore settlement possibilities with client, including ramifications of settlement.
- ○ Explore and test client's goals, as well as minimums.
- ○ Prepare client for questions that may be put to him or her directly at the conference.
- ☐ Decide in advance what will and will not be said about the underlying facts.
- ☐ Inform the client that the neutral may find it useful to emphasize the problems with the client's case, so that the client will not react inappropriately or unproductively.

☐ Analyze and anticipate the adversary's settlement approach.

☐ Determine whether any meet and confer obligations must be met before settlement conference.

☐ If no meet and confer duty applies, consider whether counsel should confer with coparties, regarding any conflicting contentions and overall settlement.

☐ If required, prepare settlement conference statement before conference, clearly stating any conditions applicable to offer or demand for settlement, such as nondisclosure requirement.

☐ Prepare to candidly respond to settlement inquiries by settlement judge, avoiding any representations that contradict client's expectations and counsel's own settlement authority.

☐ Prepare to use the conference as a testing ground for the facts, theories, and damage calculations and proof.

☐ Consider requesting court annexed or private ADR.

☐ Determine who will draft settlement conference statement.

16.15 Interim Pretrial Conferences Offer Opportunity to Review Pretrial Developments and Streamline Case.

An interim pretrial conference provides an opportunity for the presiding judicial officer and counsel to revisit the issues in the case; to determine whether the case is progressing as scheduled; and to refine the operative scheduling or interim pretrial order. Judges and counsel are encouraged not to assume that the case will develop as fashioned in the scheduling order. As disclosures, discovery, motion activity, and developments external to the litigation present the parties with new information or change the litigation circumstances, judges and counsel may make adjustments to the original plan, or even move the pretrial process in a much different direction.

Interim pretrial conferences may cover virtually any procedural or substantive issue relevant to the case. In particular, developments in the discovery process will most likely to be relevant to the parties' views about settlement. Therefore, settlement is almost always revisited at interim pretrial conferences.

Warning:

The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure rules do not prescribe specific procedures for interim pretrial conferences. Rather, local rules, and more typically, individual judge's rules may specify conference procedures.

16.16 Interim Pretrial Conferences Discretionary Unless Required by Local Rule.

16.16[1] Judge May Hold One or More Interim Pretrial Conferences. The assigned judge or magistrate judge has discretion to hold one or more interim pretrial conferences [see Fed R Civ P 16(a)]. Whether any interim pretrial conferences will be held is a matter committed to the sound discretion of the assigned district judge or magistrate judge [see Mescal v. United States (D NM 1995) 161 FRD 450, 451-452].

Factors relevant to the decision to hold one or more interim pretrial conferences include:

- The case management philosophy of the assigned judge;
- The complexity of the case;
- The expertise or experience of counsel; and
- The level of cooperation or friction between counsel or across party lines.

Local district court rules may require judges to hold interim pretrial conferences in specified categories of cases, or in specified circumstances [see 16.16[2]]. Counsel should consult the individual judge's rules, which often contain provisions regarding interim pretrial conferences, as well as any general or standing orders.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of scheduling interim case management conferences, see 3 Moore's Federal Practice, § 16.60 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

16.16[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Interim Pretrial Conferences.

16.16[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. The Central District has no local rules on interim pretrial conferences.

16.16[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. After an action has been filed, the assigned judge or magistrate judge may hold additional status conferences at any time after the scheduling conference, with or without the request of any party [ED Cal Civ LR 240(a)].

16.16[2][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. The assigned judge or magistrate judge may, sua sponte or in response to a stipulated request or motion, schedule subsequent case management conferences during the pendency of an action [ND Cal Civ LR 16-10(c)].

Unless otherwise ordered, the parties must file a Joint Case Management Statement at least seven days before any subsequent case management conference. The statement must report progress or changes since the last statement was filed and make proposals for the remainder of the case development process. The statement must report the parties' views about whether using some form of ADR would be appropriate [ND Cal Civ LR 16-10(d)].

Judge's Perspective:

Some judges prefer that the prior statement be updated so that it is complete (i.e., contains all matters, even those that have not changed) rather than a statement that refers only to changes. Other judges prefer a less formal procedure for follow-up conferences, such as a joint status letter.

16.16[2][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. At the end of the scheduling conference the judicial officer will prepare a case management order setting a time for further case management conferences, if necessary [SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(d.2)].

16.17 Requesting Interim Pretrial Conference.

If a case might benefit from an interim pretrial conference, counsel should consider making a request to the assigned judge. A request for an interim pretrial conference signifies that counsel are taking pretrial responsibilities seriously.

Counsel are usually better able than the assigned judge to observe developing pretrial matters. Counsel should state any changed circumstances that give rise to the need for a conference, explain how a conference would contribute to the pretrial case development process, and propose an agenda.

16.18 Attending Interim Pretrial Conference.

16.18[1] Mandatory Participants. Rules and practices related to participation in interim case management conferences are not materially different from the rules and practices for scheduling or initial case management conferences [see 16.11]. At a minimum, every unrepresented party and at least one attorney for each represented party must participate in every interim pretrial conference unless otherwise ordered by the court. If appropriate, the court may require that a party or its representative be present or reasonably available by other means to consider possible settlement of the dispute [Fed R Civ P 16(c)(1)].

At least one of the participating attorneys for each represented party must have authority to enter stipulations and make admissions with respect to any matter that he or she should reasonably anticipate may be discussed at the conference [Fed R Civ P 16(c)(1)]. Courts may impose a broad range of sanctions if no appearance is made on behalf of a party at an interim pretrial conference [Fed R Civ P 16(f)].

Consider:

Attendance requirements for interim pretrial conferences are ordinarily determined by the nature of the conference and the topics to be addressed.

16.18[2] Judicial Authority to Compel Attendance. Federal courts may require a party or the party's representative to be present or reasonably available by other means to discuss settlement when appropriate [see Fed R Civ P 16(c)(1)]. Courts may direct the appearance of corporate officers with settlement authority [see Lucas Auto. Eng'g, Inc. v. Bridgestone/Firestone, Inc. (9th Cir 2001) 275 F3d 762, 769].

Cross Reference:

Attendance requirements, see 3 Moore's Federal Practice, § 16.61 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

16.18[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: Attendance at Interim Pretrial Conferences.

16.18[3][a] CD Cal and SD Cal Requirements. In the Central and Southern Districts, local rules are silent as to attendance at interim pretrial conferences.

16.18[3][b] ED Cal Requirements. All parties receiving notice of any status conference must appear in person or by counsel and be prepared to discuss any subjects specified in the order noticing the conference and have authority to enter into stipulations and to make admissions regarding all matters that the participants may reasonably anticipate may be discussed [ED Cal Civ LR 240(a)].

16.18[3][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. Each party must be represented at any subsequent case management conferences by counsel having authority with respect to matters under consideration [ND Cal Civ LR 16-10(c)].

16.19 Topics for Consideration at Interim Pretrial Conference.

16.19[1] Rule 16(c) Lists Broad Range of Conference Topics. All subjects listed in Rule 16 (b) and (c) may appear on the agenda at an interim conference. Fed R Civ P 16(b) topics are discussed in 16.07. Rule 16(c) provides that the following matters may be considered and acted on at any pretrial conference [Fed R Civ P 16(c)(2)]:

- The formulation and simplification of the issues, including the elimination of frivolous claims and defenses;
- The necessity or desirability of amending the pleadings;
- The possibility of obtaining admissions of fact and of documents to avoid unnecessary proof, stipulations as to the authenticity of documents, and advance rulings on evidence admissibility;
- The avoidance of unnecessary proof and cumulative evidence, and any limitations or restrictions on the use of expert testimony under Fed R Evid 702;
- The appropriateness and timing of summary adjudication;
- The control and scheduling of discovery, including orders affecting disclosures and discovery pursuant to Fed R Civ P 26 and Fed R Civ P 29-37;
- The identification of witnesses and documents;
- The need and schedule for filing and exchanging pretrial briefs;
- The date or dates for further conferences and for trial;

- The advisability of referring some or all of the case to a magistrate judge or special master;
- Settlement, and the use of any authorized ADR methods;
- The form and substance of the pretrial order;
- The disposition of pending motions;
- The need for adopting special procedures for managing potentially difficult or protracted actions involving complex issues, multiple parties, difficulty legal questions, or unusual proof problems;
- An order for separate trial pursuant to Fed R Civ P 42(b) with respect to a claim, counterclaim, crossclaim, or third party claim, or with respect to any particular issue in the case;
- An order directing a party or parties to present certain evidence early in the trial with respect to a manageable issue that could, on the evidence, be the basis for judgment as a matter of law under Fed R Civ P 50(a), or a judgment on partial findings under Fed R Civ P 52(c);
- An order setting a reasonable limit on the time allowed for presenting evidence; and
- Any other matters that might facilitate the just, speedy, and inexpensive disposition of the action.

Cross Reference:

Subjects addressed at interim case management conferences, see 3 Moore's Federal Practice, § 16.62 (Matthew Bender 3d ed).

16.19[2] Case-Specific Developments Dictate Topics. Although Rule 16(c)(2) broadly describes the topics that may be addressed at the interim pretrial conferences over the course of the litigation [see 16.19[1]], topics such as the identification of disputed legal and factual issues and the control and scheduling of disclosures and discovery, are more likely to be addressed at the beginning and interim stages of the pretrial period. Other items, such as reviewing remaining claims and defenses, are more likely to be considered at the final pretrial conference [see Ch. 17, Final Pretrial Conference].

Usually developments specific to an individual case dictate which subjects are actually considered at the conference. For example, the conference might address whether to change the motion schedule, or the sequence in which specified motions will be filed [see, e.g., Tran v. Captain Glyn, Inc. (D Haw 1995) 909 F Supp 727, 731 (deadline to file summary judgment motion addressing court's subject matter jurisdiction extended)].

In addition, counsel and unrepresented parties may suggest agenda items for these conferences.

Warning:

Because individual judges' rules often set forth additional interim pretrial conference topics, counsel must consult these rules as well as local rules. Judges have broad discretion to ensure that the trial goes forward only on matters involving genuine disputes of fact or law [see Campbell Indus. v. M/V Gemini Indus. (9th Cir 1980) 619 F2d 24, 27].

16.19[3] Using Court-Appointed Experts. A judge may consider and propose the use of a court-appointed expert at a scheduling or interim pretrial conference [see Fed R Evid 706]. A court-appointed expert may help provide an early foundation for stipulations, reduce the scope of discovery, facilitate early settlement, reduce the adversarial nature of the proceedings and conflicts between the parties' experts, and potentially identify, clarify, and narrow the disputed issues.

Before the appointment of a court-appointed expert, the judge must issue an order to show cause why expert witnesses should not be appointed [Fed R Evid 706]. Under Ninth Circuit law, district courts enjoy wide latitude to make appointments of independent experts [Monolithic Power Sys. v. O2 Micro Int'l Ltd. (Fed Cir 2009) 558 F3d 1341, 1348 (upholding appointment of independent expert in unusually complex patent infringement case with starkly conflicting expert testimony, even though trial court made extemporaneous comments at case management conference suggesting that independent expert would greatly influence jury's determination)]. The judge may solicit nominations for the appointment from the parties [see Fed R Evid 706]; when one of the primary purposes of an appointment is to encourage an early settlement, the appointment of an expert who enjoys the confidence of all of the parties may be particularly beneficial. The court may consider specifying a date by which the expert must complete the investigation and file a report.

Strategic Point:

Although this procedure is relatively rare, it can be an effective tool to propose, particularly if the proponent is confident regarding an appropriate issue.

16.20 Interim Pretrial Conference Orders.

16.20[1] Court May Enter Interim Pretrial Conference Order. After any Rule 16 pretrial conference, the court should issue an order reciting all actions taken and rulings made [Fed R Civ P 16(d)]. The Supreme Court has ruled that the word "shall," as used in the rule authorizes, but does not compel, judicial action [Gutierrez De Martinez v. Lamagno (1995) 515 US 417, 432-433 n9, 115 S Ct 2227, 132 L Ed2d 375].

16.20[2] Drafting Proposed Interim Pretrial Conference Order. Counsel should consult the local rules, as well as the individual judge's rules, to determine whether interim pretrial conference orders are required, and if so, the requirements of the order and whether it is counsel's responsibility to draft a proposed order. Even when an order is not required, counsel should nevertheless consider requesting the opportunity to present a proposed order, or at least a memorandum summarizing the results of the conference. An order (or memorandum) stating the decisions and stipulations made at the pretrial conference assists the parties in keeping track of the litigation; reduces the risk of confusion, friction between parties, inefficiency, and unfairness; and provides a record for appellate review.

16.20[3] Order Controls Litigation Until Modified. Interim pretrial conference orders control the subsequent course of the action unless modified by subsequent order [Fed R Civ P 16(d); Eagle v. AT&T Corp. (9th Cir 1985) 769 F.2d 541, 548 , cert. denied, 475 US 1084 (1985) (claim is barred unless implicitly included in pretrial order); see 16.21].

16.21 Modification of Interim Pretrial Conference Orders.

Interim pretrial conference orders are subject to modification. The standard judges apply in deciding whether to grant a party's request to modify an interim pretrial conference order is the same standard used when determining whether to modify the scheduling order [see Fed R Civ P 16 Committee Note of 1993]. Accordingly, a party must show good cause before the court will grant a request to modify an interim pretrial conference order [see 16.12].

Strategic Point:

A showing of good cause ordinarily requires that counsel establish an inability to meet the scheduled deadlines despite exercising due diligence. Accordingly, counsel should describe with specificity the actions that have been taken to comply with the order. Counsel should also propose a new schedule that will make the case trial-ready as quickly as possible under the changed circumstances. The proposed new dates should be as close to the dates originally fixed as feasible, and that fact should be pointed out in the request.

16.22 Appellate Review.

16.22[1] Appellate Review Is Ordinarily Deferred. In general, interim pretrial conference orders are interlocutory in nature, rather than final. They deal with preliminary and procedural matters, leading up to, but not including, trial, and may still be modified by the court on a showing of good cause [Fed R Civ P 16(b), (d)]. Because the court is still able to make adjustments as needed, no irreversible legal consequences flow from these orders. Therefore, appellate review of most interim pretrial conference orders must await a final judgment in the action [see In re Recticel Foam Corp. (1st Cir 1988) 859 F2d 1000, 1002 (final pretrial order)].

16.22[2] Trial Management Decisions Reviewed for Abuse of Discretion. Challenges to the trial court's management of a case are reviewed for abuse of discretion. For example, trial courts have broad authority to impose and enforce reasonable time limits for each side's presentation of the case [see Navellier v. Sletten (9th Cir 2001) 262 F3d 923, 941 , cert. denied sub nom. McLachlan v. Simon, 536 US 941 (2002)]. However, trial courts may not rigidly adhere to time limits as to "sacrifice justice in the name of efficiency" [General Signal Corp. v. MCI Telecomms. Corp. (9th Cir 1995) 66 F3d 1500, 1509 , cert. denied, 516 US 1146 (1996)].

16.23 Settlement Conferences.

16.23[1] Settlement Conferences Are Discretionary Unless Mandated by Local Rule. Although settlement may be discussed at every pretrial conference, courts may also hold conferences specifically for the purpose of discussing and encouraging settlement [Fed R Civ P 16(c)(2)(I)].

Counsel should consult the local rules [see 16.23[6]], as well as the individual judge's rules, to determine whether settlement conferences are mandatory or discretionary, and whether counsel may initiate a request for a settlement conference.

Strategic Point:

If not required by local rule, counsel should consider requesting a judicially hosted settlement conference. Settlement conferences can help the parties understand their respective positions, the evidence, and reasoning that supports those positions, and identify what the parties must do by way of disclosures, discovery, or motion to favorably position the case. Settlement prospects may be enhanced when the person hosting the negotiations is a sitting judge other than a judge assigned to try the case. Judges almost never suffer from a conflict of interest (or an appearance of such a conflict) that might compromise parties' feelings about the judges' ability to be neutral and fair.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of preparation for settlement and settlement conferences, see Ch. 31, Settlement Agreements and Offers of Judgment, 31.03 -31.12. Discussion of settlement procedures required under local rules, see Ch. 32, Court Annexed ADR.

16.23[2] Courts Cannot Coerce Settlement. Federal jurisprudence encourages pretrial settlement discussions and favors the settlement of civil actions. However, although the presiding judicial officer has discretion in determining the applicable settlement conference procedure, federal judicial officers may not coerce settlement [see Kothe v. Smith (2d Cir 1985) 771 F2d 667, 669].

16.23[3] Evaluating Benefits of Settlement Conferences. Settlement conferences may be beneficial to the litigants even if an early settlement is not achieved. The advantages of settlement conferences include the following:

- Assisting the parties in understanding the factual and legal issues in the case, including identifying the strengths and weaknesses of their own positions;
- Highlighting remaining disclosure, discovery, or motion practice needed to position the case for settlement or trial;
- Providing an opportunity for extended dialogue across party lines regarding the pertinent evidence and law;
- Offering the litigants an opportunity to present the equities of their case to a representative of the court system.

16.23[4] Referring Settlement Conference to Magistrate Judge or Special Master. Federal district court judges typically refer the settlement conference to a magistrate judge, special master, or other neutral mediator, particularly in nonjury cases [see 16.24, 16.25].

Strategic Point:

If the district judge volunteers involvement in settlement discussions, and seeks the consent of all parties to that involvement, a dilemma is presented, particularly in nonjury cases. Counsel should make every possible effort to find others who have participated in settlement conferences with the assigned judge, in an effort to gain as much insight as possible into the judge's settlement approach.

16.23[5] Preparing and Filing Settlement Conference Statement. Settlement conference statements, if required, ordinarily outline the facts of the case, the contentions of the parties, and the damages. Counsel should consult the individual judge's rules to determine whether settlement conference statements must be filed.

Cross References:

General coverage of settlement, see Ch. 31, Settlement Agreements and Offers of Judgment.

Discussion of use of settlement conferences hosted by magistrate judge or district judge, see 3 Moore's Federal Practice, § 16.53[9] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

16.23[6] LOCAL PRACTICE: Settlement Conferences.

16.23[6][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. Unless exempted by the trial judge, the parties in each civil case must participate in one of the settlement procedures prescribed by rule or as otherwise approved by the trial judge [CD Cal Civ LR 16-15.1]. Except as otherwise ordered by the court, a Notice of Settlement Procedure Selection, signed by counsel for both sides, must be filed no later than 14 days after entry of the scheduling order. The parties must participate in the settlement procedures selected by the court, unless otherwise ordered, no later than 45 days before the final pretrial conference [CD Cal Civ LR 16-15.2]. If the parties do not file a timely Notice of Settlement Procedure Selection, the trial judge may order the parties to participate in any of the prescribed settlement procedures [CD Cal Civ LR 16-15.3].

16.23[6][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. A settlement conference is mandatory in all actions unless otherwise ordered by the court on objection of a party or for other good cause. Counsel must notify the court when the settlement conference is set if the litigation is unusual or complex and if there is a need to provide for additional time or special arrangements to ensure that the settlement conference will be meaningful [ED Cal Civ LR 270(a)]. The assigned judge or magistrate judge assigned to try the action will not conduct the settlement conference unless all parties affirmatively request that the assigned judge or magistrate judge participate in the conference and waive in writing any claim of disqualification on that basis to act as judge or magistrate judge subsequently in the action [ED Cal Civ LR 270(b); see ED Cal Civ LR 240(a)(16)].

16.23[6][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. The court may refer a case to a settlement conference on its own initiative, on the request of a party, or on the stipulation of the parties [ND Cal ADR LR 7-2]. A party may file a motion seeking referral with the assigned judge at any time (unless the case has been assigned to the ADR Multi-Option Program) [ND Cal ADR LR 7-3]. Although ordinarily conducted by a magistrate judge, the assigned judge has discretion to conduct the settlement conference on the written stipulation of all parties [ND Cal ADR LR 7-2].

16.23[6][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. In every civil action, a mandatory settlement conference must be scheduled before the assigned magistrate judge (or other judicial officer as the assigned district judge may direct). If the judicial officer assigned to conduct the settlement conference determines that a case is ready for a settlement conference before the scheduled date, the judge may order the parties and counsel to appear for an early conference [SD Cal Civ LR 16.3(a); SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(d.4)]. The judge conducting the settlement conference may require the parties or representatives of a party other than counsel, who have authority to negotiate and enter into a binding settlement, to be present at the settlement conference [SD Cal Civ LR 16.3(b)]. The judge conducting the settlement conference may schedule as many follow-up settlement conferences as the judge finds appropriate in light of the complexity of the matter or any circumstances in the case [SD Cal Civ LR 16.3(e)].

II. PARTICIPATING IN PRETRIAL CONFERENCES
C. Referring Cases to Magistrate Judges

2-16 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 16.24

16.24 Judges May Appoint Magistrate Judges.

16.24[1] Magistrate Judge May Handle Significant Pretrial Activity. As a result of the congested dockets in district courts, and the need to allocate judicial resources, district judges may appoint magistrate judges to handle significant pretrial activity, particularly with respect to scheduling and planning [see 28 USC § 636].

16.24[2] Scope of Assignments Varies. The types of assignments that may be given to magistrate judges vary significantly, even within the same court. Some district judges assign all responsibility for handling all discovery disputes in all their cases to magistrate judges, while others almost never refer discovery matters to magistrate judges, and others selectively refer particular discovery disputes to magistrate judges. Further, some judges assign substantial case management responsibilities to magistrate judges, whereas others never assign substantial case management responsibilities.

Counsel should consult the local rules of the particular district, as well as the individual judge's rules, regarding assignment of cases to magistrate judges [see 16.24[3]].

Consider:

Referring case management, discovery, or settlement work to magistrate judges can be advantageous because the magistrate judge may be able to devote substantially more time to the case than district judges. The magistrate judge may be better able to learn the details of the pertinent evidence and law and provide closer supervision and more detailed guidance concerning the development of the case. However, the referral may also result in delay stemming from requests for review of the magistrate judge's findings, proposed findings, or recommendations.

Investigating Magistrate Judges Using Online Resources.

Many resources are available online for investigating magistrate judges. These resources can help you find information and cases pertaining to your assigned magistrate judge. For example, helpful resources at lexis.com include:

- Legal tab> Reference> Law> Judicial Staff Directory.
  - Sample Search: For biographical information on a magistrate judge currently sitting on a federal bench, use a NAME segment search: name (First Name /3 Last Name).
- Legal tab> Reference> Biographies> Biographies.
  - Sample Search: For biographical information on a particular magistrate judge, use a NAME segment search: name (First Name /3 Last Name).
- Legal tab> Federal Legal--U.S.> Federal Courts by Circuit> Federal Cases by Circuit> 9th Circuit--US Court of Appeals Cases & Bankruptcy Appellate Panel
  - Sample Search: For appellate decisions on a magistrate judge's rulings in a particular procedural setting or on a particular substantive topic, use the HISTORY segment with the judge's last name in this format plus words for finding the specific topic, for example: summary judgment and history (First Name /3 Last Name /3 j or judge or hon!).
- News & Business tab> Combined Sources> News, All (English, Full Text)
  - Sample Search: For news articles on a particular magistrate judge, try a simple search: First Name /3 Last Name.

16.24[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: Assigning Case to Magistrate Judge.

16.24[3][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. Magistrate judges are authorized to perform all of the duties and functions prescribed and authorized by 28 USC § 636, or any other statutes or rules authorizing magistrate judges to perform judicial duties or functions, as set forth in General Order No. 01-13, or any successor General Order. Magistrate judges have the inherent power of judicial officers to implement and enforce their own orders and to regulate proceedings before them, to the extent permitted by law [CD Cal Civ LR 72-1]. The magistrate judge's ruling as to non-dispositive motions remains in effect unless the ruling is stayed or modified by the magistrate judge or the district judge [CD Cal Civ LR 72-2.2].

16.24[3][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. The appropriateness of a referral to a magistrate judge will be discussed at status conferences [ED Cal Civ LR 240(a)(15)].

The status (pretrial scheduling) conference will be held before the assigned judge unless all parties reach a prior agreement to consent to the jurisdiction of the magistrate judge. At the time the action is filed, the plaintiff or removing defendant will ordinarily receive a form to consent to the exercise of jurisdiction by a magistrate judge. If the parties agree to submit to the jurisdiction of the magistrate judge before the scheduling conference, the parties should promptly notify the assigned judge so the scheduling conference may be rescheduled before the assigned magistrate judge.

16.24[3][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. The assigned district judge may designate a magistrate judge to conduct the initial case management conference and, subject to 28 USC § 636, other pretrial proceedings in the case [ND Cal Civ LR 16-10(a)]. Whether the parties will consent to a magistrate judge to conduct the trial will be discussed at case management conferences [ND Cal Civ LR 16-2]. Debt collection cases involving the federal government are automatically assigned to magistrate judges [see, e.g., ND Cal Civ LR 16-6].

When a case is initially assigned to a magistrate judge, unless the magistrate judge sets a different deadline, the parties must either file written consent to the jurisdiction of the magistrate judge, or request reassignment to a district judge, by the deadline for filing the initial case management conference statement [ND Cal Civ LR 73-1(a)(1)]. If a motion that cannot be heard by the magistrate judge without the consent of the parties [see 28 USC § 636(c)] is filed before the initial case management conference, the parties must either file written consent to the jurisdiction of the magistrate judge, or request reassignment to a district judge, no later than seven days after the motion is filed [ND Cal Civ LR 73-1(a)(2)].

16.24[3][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. Civil matters are assigned to the magistrate judges either as a matter of course by the court clerk or by an order of special designation by a district judge of the court [SD Cal Civ LR 72.2(a); see 28 USC § 636(b), (c)]. Further, the clerk will notify the parties in all civil cases that they may consent to have a magistrate judge conduct any or all proceedings in the case and order the entry of a final judgment [SD Cal Civ LR 73.1(a)]. The clerk will not accept a consent form unless it has been signed by all the parties in a case. The plaintiff is responsible for securing the execution of a consent form by the parties and for filing the form with the clerk [SD Cal Civ LR 73.1(b)].

16.24[4] Seeking Review of Magistrate Judge's Ruling. Procedures for review of a magistrate judge's ruling are ordinarily prescribed by local rule.

Example:

> The Central District provides that a party objecting to a magistrate judge's ruling on a pretrial matter not dispositive of a claim or defense must file a motion for review by the assigned district judge, designating the specific portions of the ruling objected to and stating the grounds for the objection, within (1) 14 days of service of a written ruling or (2) 14 days of an oral ruling that the magistrate Judge indicates will not be followed by a written ruling [see, e.g., CD Cal Civ LR 72-2.1].

When reconsidering a magistrate judge's ruling or report and recommen-dation, the standard of review applied by a district court varies with the type of decision made, and the basis for the decision. Interlocutory scheduling orders issued by a magistrate judge, for example, may be reviewable by a district judge under the clearly erroneous or the abuse of discretion standard. The clearly erroneous standard is applied to findings of fact made by magistrate judges that support rulings on non-dispositive motions, or the exercise of case-management discretion [see 28 USC § 636(b)(1)(A)].

When reviewing aspects of a magistrate judge's decision that involve interpretations of applicable law, district courts apply the contrary to law standard, meaning de novo review. District judges must also apply the de novo standard when ruling on objections to a magistrate judge's report and recommendation on a potentially dispositive motion [see 28 USC § 636(b)(1), (c)(4); Fed R Civ P 72].

Strategic Point:

Parties may ask the assigning judge to reconsider a scheduling order entered by a magistrate judge by filing a challenge within 14 days after being served with a copy of the order. Any objections not timely filed are waived [Fed R Civ P 72(a)].

Unit 4 Required Conferences and Case Management
CHAPTER 16 Case Management Conferences
II. PARTICIPATING IN PRETRIAL CONFERENCES
D. Appointing Masters for Case Management

2-16 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 16.25

16.25 Use of Masters.

16.25[1] Referring Case to Master Is Exception. Relying on their inherent authority and Fed R Civ P 53, district judges may appoint a master to perform a wide range of pretrial functions, including assigning responsibility for case management, discovery, settlement, and ADR processes; and conducting evidentiary hearings for major pretrial motions.

Referrals are ordinarily made in complex or unusually contentious jury cases, in nonjury actions for matters of account and difficult computation of damages, in nonjury actions on a showing that the appointment is required by some exceptional condition, and when the parties consent to the appointment of a magistrate judge to serve as master [see Fed R Civ P 53(a)]. A magistrate judge is subject to the masters rule only when the order referring a matter to the magistrate judge expressly provides that the reference is made under Rule 53 [Fed R Civ P 53(h)].

Referrals to a master are the exception rather than the rule, and occur with less frequency than referrals to magistrate judges [see Fed R Civ P 53(a)].

Strategic Point:

Referring case management, discovery, or settlement work to masters can be advantageous because the special master may be able to devote substantially more time to the case than a district judge. The master may be better able to learn the details of the pertinent evidence and law and provide closer supervision and more detailed guidance concerning the development of the case. However, the referral may cause significant additional costs and delay. The district court must consider the fairness of imposing the likely expenses on the parties and must protect against unreasonable expense or delay [Fed R Civ P 53(a)(3)].

16.25[2] Prior Notice and Hearing Required. The court must give the parties notice and an opportunity to be heard before appointing a master. A party may suggest candidates for appointment [Fed R Civ P 53(b)(1)].

16.25[3] Authority of Master. Unless the appointing order expressly directs otherwise, a master has authority to regulate all proceedings and take all appropriate measures to fairly and efficiently perform the assigned duties. The master may by order impose on a party any noncontempt sanction [see Fed R Civ P 37, 45], and may recommend a contempt sanction against a party and sanctions against a nonparty [Fed R Civ P 53(c)(2)]. A master conducting an evidentiary hearing may exercise the power of the appointing court to compel, take, and record evidence, unless the appointing order expressly directs otherwise [Fed R Civ P 53(c)(1)(C)]. A master is not required to follow the Federal Rules of Evidence or Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, absent a reference order that requires the master to do so [see United States v. Clifford Matley Family Trust (9th Cir 2004) 354 F3d 1154, 1161].

16.25[4] Compensation. In general, the court fixes the master's compensation before or after judgment on the basis and terms stated in the order of appointment. However, the court may set a new basis and terms after notice and an opportunity to be heard [Fed R Civ P 53(g)(1)]. The court determines whether the master's compensation is to be charged to a party, the parties, or paid out of a fund or subject matter of the action that is in the court's custody or control [see Fed R Civ P 53(g)(2)].

16.25[5] Seeking Review of Master's Determination. After the master files the required report or recommendation, or enters and files an order, any party may, within 21 days of service, object to it, or move to adopt or modify it [Fed R Civ P 53(f)(2); see Sea Coast Foods, Inc. v. Lu-Mar Lobster & Shrimp, Inc. (9th Cir 2001) 260 F3d 1054, 1058 (party required to pay special master's fee over objection to appointment of master)].

In acting on a master's order, report, or recommendations, the court must afford an opportunity to be heard, may receive evidence, and may take any of the following actions [Fed R Civ P 53(f)(1)]:

- Adopt or affirm;
- Modify;
- Wholly or partly reject or reverse; or
- Resubmit to the master with instructions.

The trial court must ordinarily decide de novo any party's timely objections to findings of fact made or recommended by the master. However, the parties may stipulate, with the trial court's consent, that the master's findings (1) will be reviewed for clear error, or (2) will be final respecting matters that were referred to the master with the consent of all of the parties or matters relating to pretrial or posttrial proceedings [Fed R Civ P 53(f)(3)]. The court must decide de novo all objections to conclusions of law made or recommended by a master [Fed R Civ P 53(f)(4)]. The court may set aside a master's ruling on a procedural matter only for an abuse of discretion, unless the order of appointment establishes a different standard of review [Fed R Civ P 53(f)(5)].

Manual for Complex Litigation, Fourth, § 11.52.

16.25[6] LOCAL PRACTICE: Use of Masters.

16.25[6][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. The court may appoint a master by written order [CD Cal Civ LR 53-1]. The master's fees and expenses, when approved by the court, will be paid as ordered by the court. These amounts are recoverable as costs [CD Cal Civ LR 53-2; see CD Cal Civ LR 54-4.10]. In the Central District, masters are not commonly used except in cases where special expertise is required or cases involving contentious and protracted discovery.

16.25[6][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. The appropriateness of a referral to a special master will be discussed at status conferences [ED Cal Civ LR 240(a)(15)].

16.25[6][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. Fees paid to masters are allowable as costs [ND Cal Civ LR 54-3(f)]. In the Northern District, masters are generally appointed only in very unusual circumstances, due the expense of the procedure.

16.25[6][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. A magistrate judge may be designated by a judge to serve as a special master in appropriate civil cases [see 28 USC § 636(b)(2); Fed R Civ P 53]. On the parties' consent, a magistrate judge may be designated by a judge to serve as a special master in any civil case [SD Cal Civ LR 72.1(f)].

Any party may seek review of, or action on, a master's report filed by a magistrate judge in accordance with the provisions of Fed R Civ P 53(e) [SD Cal Civ LR 53.1].

Unit 4 Required Conferences and Case Management
CHAPTER 17 Final Pretrial Conference
I. STRATEGY

2-17 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 17.02

17.02 Objective and Strategy.

Federal court practice encourages court involvement in managing litigation. Early and regular court involvement in the planning and conduct of litigation is intended to yield a more efficient, less expensive, and less rancorous process.

Purposes of the final pretrial conference include [see Fed R Civ P 16(a)(4), (5)]:

- Improving the quality of trial through more thorough preparation;
- Facilitating settlement; and
- Securing a just, speedy, and inexpensive determination.

The critical importance of the final pretrial order cannot be overemphasized. The order supersedes the pleadings; governs who may be called as witnesses (and possibly impeachment witnesses and rebuttal witnesses); may contain binding stipulations; and may limit the questions, evidence, exhibits, and legal theories to be presented at trial. Matters not preserved in the final pretrial order are eliminated from the case [see Patterson v. Hughes Aircraft Co. (9th Cir 1993) 11 F3d 948, 950 ; Southern Cal. Retail Clerks Union v. Bjorklund (9th Cir 1984) 728 F2d 1262, 1264 ; see 17.13]. If counsel is unprepared for the final pretrial conference, he or she exposes the client to the risk of unwarranted adverse rulings, including sanctions, and squanders an opportunity to affect the substance and shape of the trial.

Be sure to consult local rules as well as individual judges' standing orders. These provisions will address whether final pretrial conferences will be held, either generally or by category of case, and will address specific procedural requirements.

See §§ 17.04 -17.07, 17.09 -17.12

☐ Prepare for final pretrial conference:

○ Review factual and legal bases of case, including contentions, summaries of proposed testimony, and judicial involvement to date.

○ Review all previous pleadings and rulings in case.

○ List witnesses, evidence, and exhibits for trial.

○ Review settlement possibilities with client.

☐ Draft any preliminary papers required by local rule, general orders, plans, and judge's standing orders.

Authority:
CD Cal Civ LR 16-4, 16-6; ED Cal Civ LR 281; ND Cal Civ LR 16-10(d); SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(f.2), (f.3)

Discussion:
See §§ 17.09[2], 17.10[1], 17.11[3], 17.12[1]

☐ If required by local rule or individual judge's standing order, meet with opposing counsel before conference.

Authority:
CD Cal Civ LR 16-2; ND Cal Civ LR 16-10(b)(5), (6); SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(f.4.a)

Discussion:
See §§ 17.09[1], 17.11[2], 17.12[2]

☐ Prepare and mark exhibits, as required by local rules and individual judge's standing orders.

Authority:
CD Cal Civ LR 16-6; ED Cal Civ LR 282(4); ND Cal Civ LR 16-10(b)(5); SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(f.2.c), (f.4)

☐ Participate in conference.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 16(e); ED Cal Civ LR 282; SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(f.5)

Discussion:
See §§ 17.05 -17.07, 17.09[6], 17.10[2], 17.11[4], 17.12[4]

☐ Prepare to respond candidly to court's inquiries.

☐ With regard to settlement, avoid any representations that contradict client's expectations and counsel's own settlement authority.

☐ Comply with requirements for drafting and filing pretrial order as required by local rules and individual judge's standing orders, keeping in mind that:

○ Order controls subsequent course of the action (e.g., supersedes pleadings) unless modified by subsequent order.

○ Order will be subject to modification only to prevent manifest injustice.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 16(e); CD Cal Civ LR 16-7-16-7.2; ED Cal Civ LR 283; SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(f.6.a)-(f.6.c)

Discussion:
See §§ 17.09[4], 17.10[3], 17.12[3], 17.13

☐ Consider whether to file objections to proposed final pretrial order.

Authority:
ED Cal Civ LR 283(a); SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(f.6.a)

Discussion:
See §§ 17.10[3][b], 17.12[3]

☐ Consider having transcript of conference prepared for future reference in guiding the litigation.

☐ Prepare and file trial brief, if required or permitted by local rules:

Authority:
CD Cal Civ LR 16-10; ED Cal Civ LR 285

Discussion:
See §§ 17.09[7], 17.10[4]

17.04 Determining Whether Final Pretrial Conference Will Be Held.

17.04[1] Local Rules Must Be Consulted. A federal district court judge may, but is not required to, hold a final pretrial conference under the Federal Rules [see Fed R Civ P 16(e)]. District court judges have discretion to determine whether to hold the conference and to set the conference agenda.

Warning:

Counsel must consult the district's local rules, as well as the individual judge's standing orders, to determine whether a conference will be required and to ascertain the applicable procedures and agenda.

Consider--Terminology:

Different district courts use different labels to describe pretrial conferences. Courts use the terms pretrial conference, final pretrial conference, or case management conference. Local rules may prescribe the appropriate terminology. For example, the Northern District designates "scheduling," "discovery," or "status" conferences under Fed R Civ P 16 and 26 as "case management conferences." All statements, proposed orders, or other documents prepared in connection with these conferences must be referred to as such [ND Cal Civ LR 16-1]. This chapter uses the term "final pretrial conference" in the general text, but the appropriate, district-specific term in the local practice discussions.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of final pretrial conference as discretionary, see 3 Moore's Federal Practice, § 16.71 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

17.04[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Determination of Whether District Requires Final Pretrial Conference.

17.04[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. The Central District generally requires a final pretrial conference [CD Cal Civ LR 16-8].

Exception:

The final pretrial conference may be waived for cases that are realistically estimated to take no more than two trial days, unless the court orders otherwise [CD Cal Civ LR 16-11.3].

The following categories of cases are also exempted from the requirements for a final pretrial conference under Fed R Civ P 16 [CD Cal Civ LR 16.12(a)-(h)]:

- Petitions filed under 28 USC § 2241 et seq., (habeas corpus) or their functional equivalents;
- Actions for judicial review of a decision by the Commissioner of Social Security under 42 USC § 405(g);
- Any case in which the plaintiff is appearing pro se and is not an attorney;
- Any case removed to the Central District from the small claims division of a state court;
- Appeals from the bankruptcy court;
- Extradition cases;
- Actions to enforce or quash an administrative summons or subpoena; and
- Actions by the United States to collect on a student loan guaranteed by the United States.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of obtaining relief from case management schedule in Central District, see Ch. 15, Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures, see § 15.09[1].

17.04[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. The Eastern District requires a final pretrial conference [see ED Cal Civ LR 282].

17.04[2][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. The assigned judge or magistrate judge may, sua sponte or in response to a stipulated request or motion, schedule case management conferences subsequent to the initial conference. Each party must be represented at any subsequent case management conference by counsel having authority with respect to matters under consideration [ND Cal Civ LR 16-10(b)(12), (c)].

Judge's Perspective:

Although not required by local rule, most judges in the Northern District do conduct a final pretrial conference.

17.04[2][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. The Southern District requires a final pretrial conference [SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(d.2.e)] unless the court has waived pretrial procedures [SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(a.2)].

17.05 At Least One Attorney for Each Party Attends Final Pretrial Conference.

The final pretrial conference must be attended by at least one of the attorneys who will conduct the trial for each of the parties and by any unrepresented parties [Fed R Civ P 16(e)]. At least one of the participating attorneys for each party must have authority to enter into stipulations, and to make admissions regarding all matters that might reasonably be anticipated to be discussed [Fed R Civ P 16(c)(1)].

Additional attendance requirements may be imposed by local rules, or by the individual judge's standing orders [see CD Cal Civ LR 16-8, 16-13; ND Cal Civ LR 16-3; SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(f.7.d)].

Unit 4 Required Conferences and Case Management
CHAPTER 17 Final Pretrial Conference
II. PARTICIPATING IN FINAL PRETRIAL CONFERENCE

2-17 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 17.06

17.06 Final Pretrial Conference Is Held Near Time of Trial.

The final pretrial conference is held as close to the time of trial as is reasonable under the circumstances [Fed R Civ P 16(e)]. How close to the trial date is reasonable under the circumstances is left to the sound discretion of the assigned judge [Fed R Civ P 16, Committee Note of 1983].

Relevant factors in setting the conference date include:

- The complexity of the case;
- The number of parties;
- The amount and nature of the evidence likely to be proffered at trial;
- The number, difficulty, and importance of unresolved issues;
- The relative clarity or obscurity of the applicable law; and
- The need for specialized jury instructions.

A key variable that can affect a judge's decision about when to hold the final pretrial conference is the implementation of pretrial disclosures under Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3) [see 17.18 -17.24]. The court coordinates the timing of the final pretrial disclosures and the listing of objections mandated by the rule. In most circumstances, the court will need to give counsel at least three weeks between the time they make their final pretrial disclosures and the time they file their final pretrial conference statements. It is likely to take counsel that long to digest what they learn through the disclosures, to develop lists of possible objections, to confer in an effort to resolve as many disputes as possible without judicial intervention, to prepare any necessary motions in limine, and to frame oppositions to those motions.

Strategic Point:

Counsel who conclude that the date that the court has fixed for the final pretrial conference is appreciably too close to or too far in advance of the trial date might propose an alternative schedule. Such a proposal is likely to receive the best reception if made jointly, in writing, and if the proposal describes with particularity why the change is necessary.

Timing

Most judges have their own formula and work backwards from the trial date to set the schedule. Time is allocated to allow for all anticipated motions and other matters. If there is a particular need to deviate from the judge's schedule, the need should be raised at the conference.

Judge's Perspective:

An extensive number of in limine motions may create a problem for the court if there is not enough time between their filing and the date of the final pretrial conference.

17.07 Agenda Items for Final Pretrial Conference.

17.07[1] Formulation of Trial Plan. The primary purpose of a final pretrial conference is to formulate a specific plan for trial, including a program for facilitating the admission of evidence [Fed R Civ P 16(e)]. A detailed plan might address the following matters:

- The juncture at which opening statements will be made (a defendant may elect to give some or all of its opening statement after the plaintiff has presented its case in chief), and the scope, content, and time allotted for the opening statements;

- The order in which each witness will testify (except those called solely for impeachment or rebuttal) or each deposition excerpt will be read, and the time allotted for each direct and cross-examination;

- The sequence in which documentary and other exhibits will be introduced, and identification of the witnesses who will sponsor the exhibits;

- When any demonstrations will be performed or site visits made;

- The junctures, if any, at which interim summarizations or arguments may be presented by counsel; and

- The scope, content, and time allotted for the closing arguments, and the order in which they will be presented.

A judge may impose reasonable time limits on the trial, and reasonable limits on the time each party has to present his or her case. These limits will be enforced at trial and upheld on appeal unless their enforcement would deny a party due process [General Signal Corp. v. MCI Telecomms. Corp. (9th Cir 1995) 66 F3d 1500, 1508 , cert. denied, 516 US 1146 (1996) ; Monotype Corp. PLC v. International Typeface Corp. (9th Cir 1994) 43 F3d 443, 451 (time limits were reasonable even though less than parties' estimates)].

17.07[2] Substantive Issues. Although the primary purpose of a final pretrial conference is to formulate a specific plan for the trial of the action [Fed R Civ P 16(e); see 17.07[1]], counsel should consult the local rules and the individual judge's standing orders for any specific final pretrial conference agenda requirements [see 17.09[6], 17.10[2], 17.11[4], 17.12[4]].

Counsel should anticipate that the following topics will be discussed at the final pretrial conference:

- Remaining or renewed prospects for settlement;

- Remaining claims and defenses, to ensure that the parties agree as to the nature of the claims and defenses to be tried, to ascertain whether any pleadings require amendment, and to determine whether any claims or defenses can be eliminated voluntarily or by order;

- Clarification of remaining parties, particularly if parties have been added to or dismissed from the case;

- Bifurcation of trial issues, such as liability and damages, or sequencing the trial of a particular claim or defense, a related cluster of claims or defenses, or a specific issue or set of issues;

- The resolution of any remaining discovery or disclosure disputes, and if appropriate, the need for any orders mandating the prompt completion of any unfinished but clearly necessary discovery activity;

- Identifying any factual, evidentiary, and procedural matters that can be resolved by stipulation (particularly regarding foundational evidentiary issues) or additional admissions;

- Rulings on the admissibility of evidence and motions in limine;

- Identification and marking of proffered documents and other exhibits;

- Remaining disputes about demonstrative evidence, visual aids, summaries, charts, or other graphics, including the submission and exchange of all proposed items;

- The scope, purposes, form, and projected duration of each witness's testimony, including testimony to be read to the jury or into the record from deposition transcripts;

- Any time limits imposed on the parties for particular parts of the trial or for all trial purposes;

- Whether and how to present input from special masters or any court-appointed neutral experts;

- What the law governing the case is (and, in a jury trial, what the jury will be told about it);

- For jury trials, the composition and voir dire of the jury (including degree of attorney input and possible use of jury questionnaire), the number of alternate jurors, proposed jury instructions, as well as court policy toward jurors regarding written copies of instructions, taking and using notes, and whether and how jurors may ask questions;

- For nonjury trials, any disputes regarding proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law submitted to the court; and

- Resolving any disputes regarding verdict forms and previously submitted special interrogatories.

Warning:

Counsel should consider that any subject listed in Fed R Civ P 16(c) is fair game at the conference. These matters will be addressed from the perspective of organizing, streamlining, and expediting the trial rather than discovery.

Cross Reference:

Substantive items on final pretrial conference agenda, see 3 Moore's Federal Practice, § 16.77 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

17.07[3] Logistical Matters. Counsel and the court should review logistical matters at the final pretrial conference, such as the following:

- The dates and times for trial;
- The hours each day that the court will keep the trial in session, including lunch breaks;
- Whether the trial will be interrupted because of other court responsibilities, such as a motion calendar;
- Any arrangements for special equipment or facilities, such as video-monitors, slide projectors, software, displays for large graphics, or equipment and space for demonstrations, and the prospect of sharing equipment or operators;
- Security for sensitive trial materials and access to the courtroom when trial is not in session;
- Arrangements for expedited transcripts;
- Arrangements for interpreters.

Timing:

Unless previously set, the trial will ordinarily be set at the earliest date permitted by the court's calendar [see, e.g., CD Cal Civ LR 16-8.3].

17.08 Preparing Final Pretrial Order.

17.08[1] Determining Who Will Draft Proposed Final Pretrial Order. After any Rule 16 pretrial conference, including a final pretrial conference, an order "should" be entered reciting all actions taken and rulings made [Fed R Civ P 16(d)]. The Supreme Court has ruled that the word "shall," as used in the rule authorizes, but does not compel, judicial action [Gutierrez De Martinez v. Lamagno (1995) 515 US 417, 432-433 n9, 115 S Ct 2227, 132 L Ed2d 375]. Therefore, Rule 16 does not specify who must prepare the order. Counsel should consult the local rules, as well as the individual judge's standing orders, to determine whether a final pretrial conference order is required, and if so, the requirements of the order, and whether it is counsel's responsibility to draft the proposed order [see 17.09[4], 17.10[3], 17.11[1], 17.12[3]].

Consider:

Most federal judges require a final pretrial order. Even if a final pretrial conference order is not required, counsel should nevertheless consider requesting the opportunity to present a proposed order. An order stating the decisions and stipulations made at the final pretrial conference reduces the risk of confusion, and provides a record for appellate review.

The final pretrial conference order should recite all actions taken and rulings made in the case, whether taken at the conference or earlier [Fed R Civ P 16(d)]. Because the order is designed to memorialize the actions and rulings at the conference, the order must be clear and comprehensive.

17.08[2] Form of Order. Some local rules require the use of a specified form. Counsel should consult the local rules, as well as the judge's standing orders to determine proper procedure.

17.08[3] Illustrative Contents. Before preparing the order, counsel should consult the applicable local rules and the trial judge's standing orders. For illustrative purposes, a final pretrial order should clearly address the following topics [see, e.g., Manual for Complex Litigation, Fourth, §§ 11.61-11.67; Civil Litigation Management Manual, Pt. VI (Federal Judicial Center) (3d ed.)]:

- Facts establishing jurisdiction and venue;

- A statement of the case;
- The date and time that the trial will commence;
- All rulings made at the final pretrial conference, and any earlier rulings that still govern;
- A summary of all factual and legal issues to be tried, and any issues to be severed and tried separately;
- A final list of witnesses to be called, identifying the subject of their testimony and any deposition excerpts to be read;
- Expert witnesses to be called, and a summary of their qualifications;
- Exhibits and visual aids to be presented at trial; identification of exhibits to be admitted without objection, and summary of any objections;
- Discovery excerpts from stenographic and video depositions, responses to interrogatories, and requests for admission;
- Undisputed facts and judicially noticed facts;
- Order of proof, including procedures for presenting testimony and exhibits;
- Whether additional or specified evidence is precluded;
- If jury trial, procedures for selection, management, and instruction of jury, including deadlines for submitting proposed voir dire questions and jury instruction;
- If non-jury trial, proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law;
- Any objections that are sustained, denied, or deemed waived;
- Status of discovery, disclosure, and motions;
- Procedures for consolidation, severance, or transfer of cases;
- Estimated length of trial;
- Verdict stipulations;
- Statement that the order may not be modified except to prevent manifest injustice [see Fed R Civ P 16(e)].

CHAPTER 17 Final Pretrial Conference
II. PARTICIPATING IN FINAL PRETRIAL CONFERENCE

2-17 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 17.09

17.09 LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Procedures for Pretrial Conferences and Orders.

17.09[1] Counsel Must Meet to Discuss Specified Matters at Least 40 Days Before Date Set for Final Pretrial Conference. At least 40 days in advance of the final pretrial conference date, counsel for the parties must meet together in person at a convenient time and place to:

- Ensure themselves of federal subject matter jurisdiction [CD Cal Civ LR 16-2.1];
- Stipulate to facts [CD Cal Civ LR 16-2.2];
- Exchange exhibits, witness lists, and other graphic and illustrative material [CD Cal Civ LR 16-2.3, 16-2.4, 16-3];
- Discuss status of expert witnesses [CD Cal Civ LR 16-2.5];
- Resolve objections to the admission of oral and documentary evidence [CD Cal Civ LR 16-2.6];
- Organize and share deposition testimony to be used at trial [CD Cal Civ LR 16-2.7];
- Make contentions of law and fact [CD Cal Civ LR 16-2.8]; and
- Exhaust settlement possibilities [CD Cal Civ LR 16-2.9].

17.09[2] Parties Must Serve and File Memorandum of Contentions of Fact and Law at Least 21 Days Before Final Pretrial Conference. At least 21 days before the final pretrial conference, each party must serve and file a Memorandum of Contentions of Fact and Law containing a summary of the party's basic factual contentions supported by legal authority in the form of a legal brief [CD Cal Civ LR 16-4].

The memorandum must contain:

- A brief but complete summary statement of plaintiff's claims or defendant's counterclaims and affirmative defenses [see CD Cal Civ LR 16-4.1(a), (d)].

- The list of the elements required to establish the claims or counterclaims and affirmative defenses [see CD Cal Civ LR 16-4.1(b), (e)].

- A brief description of key evidence required to support each claim or counterclaim and affirmative defense and to rebut counterclaims and affirmative defenses [see CD Cal Civ LR 16-4.1(c), (f)].

- Claims and defenses and supporting statements for all third parties [see CD Cal Civ LR 16-4.1(g)].

- A legal brief addressing any anticipated evidentiary problems and issues of law [see CD Cal Civ LR 16-4.1(h), (i)].

- If appropriate, requests for bifurcation, jury trial, and attorney's fees [see CD Cal Civ LR 16-4.3, 16-4.4, 16.4.5].

- A statement of any pleaded claims or affirmative defenses that have been abandoned [see CD Cal Civ LR 16-4.6].

17.09[3] Parties Must Serve and File Witness Lists and Exhibit Lists at Same Time As Memorandum of Contentions of Facts and Law. At the time of serving the Memorandum of Contentions of Facts and Law, each party must serve and file under separate cover, a witness list containing the information required by Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3)(A)(i), (ii) [CD Cal Civ LR 16-5].

Cross Reference:

Disclosure of witness lists, see § 17.20[1][a].

In addition, all parties must jointly file a single document, under separate cover, setting forth a joint list of exhibits containing the information required by Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3)(A)(iii) [CD Cal Civ LR 16-6.1].

Cross Reference:

Disclosure of exhibit lists, see § 17.20[1][b].

Counsel must obtain and prepare official exhibit tags to be placed on exhibits for trial. These exhibit tags may be obtained from the Clerk [CD Cal Civ LR 16-6.4].

17.09[4] Plaintiff's Counsel Prepares Final Pretrial Conference Order and Files Order at Least Eleven Days Before Final Pretrial Conference. Plaintiff's counsel prepares the final pretrial conference order, which must be signed by all counsel. All counsel are obligated to cooperate with plaintiff's counsel in the preparation and submission of this order [CD Cal Civ LR 16-7, 16-7.1].

Timing:

The plaintiff must file the final pretrial conference order at least eleven days before the date set for the final pretrial conference [CD Cal Civ LR 16-7.1].

Warning:

Counsel's failure to cooperate in the preparation and submission of the pretrial order will subject counsel to possible sanctions for violation of local rules and for multiplying proceedings "unreasonably and vexatiously" [CD Cal Civ LR 16-7; see 28 USC § 1927, CD Cal Civ LR 83-7].

Strategic Point:

The parties are strongly encouraged to come to an agreement on all aspects of the pretrial order. However, should the parties fail to reach agreement on an issue, the disagreement should be noted in the proposed pretrial order. The parties should each state their position on the issue and request judicial assistance on that matter.

The order must substantially comply with the form shown in Pretrial Form No. 1 set forth in Appendix A to the Local Rules [CD Cal Civ LR 16-7.2]. Sections 7 and 8 of the Final Pretrial Conference Order should state only ultimate issues of fact and law, respectively. Evidentiary and subsidiary issues, the resolution of which is not necessary to rendering a verdict or judgment, should not be listed [see CD Cal Civ LR 16-7.2, CD Cal Civ LR App A, Pretrial Form No 1, PP 7, 8]. A list of objections required by Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3) must be included in the proposed final pretrial conference order [CD Cal Civ LR 16-6.3].

Cross Reference:

Disclosure of exhibit lists, see 17.20[1][b].

17.09[5] Continuance of Final Pretrial Conference May Be Available on Timely Stipulation or Motion. No continuances will be granted merely on the parties' stipulation. If the court is satisfied that counsel are preparing the case with diligence and additional time is required to comply with the pretrial conference rules, the Final Pretrial Conference may be continued on submission of a timely stipulation signed by all counsel setting forth the reasons for the requested continuance. The stipulation should also set forth what has been accomplished in preparing the case for the Final Pretrial Conference [CD Cal Civ LR 16-9].

Timing:

No continuance will be granted unless the stipulation has been lodged before the date on which the Final Pretrial Conference Order must be lodged with the court [CD Cal Civ LR 16-9].

Counsel must inform the court clerk immediately by telephone or other expeditious means when a stipulation is to be submitted for continuance of the Final Pretrial Conference [CD Cal Civ LR 16-9].

In addition to the stipulation procedure, local rules authorize a motion for continuance of the final pretrial conference [CD Cal Civ LR 16-9].

Timing:

The motion for continuance may be noticed on five days' notice to be heard no later than the last motion day before the date for which the Final Pretrial Conference has been set [CD Cal Civ LR 16-9].

17.09[6] Special Matters for Consideration at Final Pretrial Conference.

17.09[6][a] Unserved Parties. Any party not already dismissed who is unserved at the time of the Final Pretrial Conference will be dismissed from the action without prejudice [CD Cal Civ LR 16-8.1].

17.09[6][b] Other Matters. At the Final Pretrial Conference, the court will address any matter arising from the memorandums of contentions of fact and law, witness or joint exhibit lists, proposed final pretrial conference order, or other matter [CD Cal Civ LR 16-8.2].

17.09[6][c] Setting for Trial. The court expects that at the Final Pretrial Conference the parties will then be ready to proceed to trial. Unless previously set, the trial must be set at the earliest date permitted by the court calendar [CD Cal Civ LR 16-8.3].

17.09[7] Trial Brief Generally Required at Least Seven Days Before Trial. Unless the court otherwise orders, at least seven days before trial is scheduled to commence, each counsel may file and serve a trial brief that may [CD Cal Civ LR 16-10]:

- Supplement the contention memorandum briefly by citing newly decided cases;
- Brief such legal matters as directed by the court;
- Reply to the contention memorandum briefing of any other party; and

Warning:

Before preparing a trial brief, consult your judge's standing orders, which may set forth different deadlines for the matters required in the brief.

CHAPTER 17 Final Pretrial Conference
II. PARTICIPATING IN FINAL PRETRIAL CONFERENCE

2-17 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 17.10

17.10 LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Procedures for Pretrial Conferences and Orders.

17.10[1] Pretrial Statement Is Required, Either Joint or Separate.

17.10[1][a] Type of Statement Specified in Scheduling Order. Counsel must file either separate pretrial statements or a joint pretrial statement, as specified by the scheduling order [ED Cal Civ LR 281(a)].

17.10[1][b] Timing of Separate Statements. If separate pretrial statements are filed, counsel for the plaintiff must personally serve and file a pretrial statement in the prescribed form at least 14 days before the date set for the final pretrial conference. Not less than seven days before the date set for the pretrial conference, counsel for all other parties must serve on all parties and file pretrial statements that may adopt by reference any of the matters contained in the plaintiff's pretrial statement [ED Cal Civ LR 281(a)(1)]. Electronic filers must also concurrently submit an electronic copy of their statement in Word or Word Perfect format, following the procedures for proposed orders [ED Cal Civ LR 281(a)(3); see ED Cal Gen LR 137(b)].

17.10[1][c] Timing of Joint Statement. If a joint pretrial statement is filed, counsel for all parties must file in the statement in the form prescribed by local rule or by the court at least seven days before the pretrial conference date, or at another time as ordered by the court [ED Cal Civ LR 281(a)(2)]. Electronic filers must also concurrently submit an electronic copy of their statement in Word or Word Perfect format, following the procedures for proposed orders [ED Cal Civ LR 281(a)(3); see ED Cal Gen LR 137(b)].

17.10[1][d] Contents of Statement. The statement must provide the name of the party or parties on whose behalf it is presented and set forth the nature of the action [ED Cal Civ LR 281(b)]. In addition, the statement must address the numerous matters listed in ED Cal Civ LR 281(b). These matters include, among other things [ED Cal Civ LR 281(b)]:

- Jurisdiction and venue;
- Undisputed facts;
- Disputed factual and evidentiary issues;

- Jury trial issues;
- Relief sought;
- Points of law;
- Abandoned issues;
- Witnesses;
- Exhibits;
- Discovery documents;
- Further discovery or motions;
- Stipulations;
- Amendments of pleadings and dismissals of parties;
- Settlement negotiations;
- Agreed statements;
- Separate trial of issues;
- Any special handling of trial exhibits and a statement of advisability of court retention of exhibits pending appeal;
- Use of experts; and
- Attorney's fees.

These disclosures satisfy the requirements of Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3) [ED Cal Civ LR 281(d)].

17.10[1][e] Claims of Privilege in Statement. If any privilege against disclosure is claimed with respect to a specific element of the statement, and the court has not yet determined the validity of the claim, a party may omit the element and include instead a statement of the privilege claim and the grounds therefor [ED Cal Civ LR 281(c)].

17.10[2] Agenda for Pretrial Conference. The agenda for the final pretrial conference includes discussion of the following [ED Cal Civ LR 282]:

- The items set forth in the pretrial statements filed pursuant to ED Cal Civ LR 281,
- The matters set forth in Fed R Civ P 16(c);
- The filing of trial briefs on designated points of law likely to be presented at trial [see ED Cal Civ LR 285];

- The procedures for voir dire and the filing of proposed voir dire questions and proposed jury instructions [see ED Cal Gen LR 163];

- The filing and exchange of lists of documentary and other exhibits, summaries, schedules, and other illustrative exhibits to be offered at trial, statements waiving or reserving objections to the exhibits listed by other parties, and the marking and indexing of exhibits;

- The filing of statements designating portions of depositions, admissions and answers to interrogatories that the respective parties intend to offer at the trial (except portions to be used only for impeachment or rebuttal);

- The inspection of originals of listed exhibits and of reports of experts who will be called as witnesses [see ED Cal Civ LR 281]; and

- The filing of proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law.

All of the foregoing agenda items will be subject to any appropriate claims of privilege from disclosure [ED Cal Civ LR 282; see ED Cal Civ LR 281(c)].

17.10[3] Pretrial Order Must Be Submitted After Pretrial Conference.

17.10[3][a] Court May Direct Preparation by Party. The court, or a party if directed by the court, will prepare a proposed pretrial order, serve a copy on all parties, and lodge the original [ED Cal Civ LR 283(a)].

Timing:

If directed by the court, a party must serve and lodge the proposed order within 14 days after the pretrial conference [ED Cal Civ LR 283(a)].

Strategic Point:

In the Eastern District, judges typically prepare the pretrial orders, which contain a substantial number of standard provisions the particular judge has worked out over time. Counsel can best prepare for the pretrial conference by reviewing a recent pretrial order issued by the particular judge and drafting any proposed alternative language ahead of time.

17.10[3][b] Parties May Submit Objections to Pretrial Order. Any party on whom the proposed pretrial order is served may, within the time permitted in the proposed pretrial order, submit objections to the proposed pretrial order. Objections must state the bases of the objections and any changes to be made in the proposed pretrial order [ED Cal Civ LR 283(a)].

17.10[3][c] Contents of Pretrial Order. All pretrial orders must recite the appearances and representations (and any non-appearances) at the pretrial conference, the actions taken by the court; and agreements made by the parties with respect to each of the items discussed at the conference, except that parties may not refer to settlement negotiations. All pretrial orders must conclude by setting the date for the trial and stating the court's estimate of the number of court days required for the trial [ED Cal Civ LR 283(b)].

17.10[4] Trial Briefs. Counsel for each party must file and serve on all other parties within the time set by the court, but no less than 14 days before trial, a brief setting forth [ED Cal Civ LR 285(a)]:

- A short statement of facts;

- All admissions and stipulations not recited in the pretrial order; and

- A summary of points of law, including reasonably anticipated disputes concerning admissibility of evidence, legal arguments, and citation of authority in support thereof.

Opposing counsel may file and serve on all other parties an answering brief within the time set by the court but not less than seven days before trial [ED Cal Civ LR 285(b)].

For any evidentiary questions raised in a trial brief by one party and not also addressed in the opposing party's opening brief, a brief must be filed by the opposing party on those issues at least seven days before trial [ED Cal Civ LR 285(b)].

II. PARTICIPATING IN FINAL PRETRIAL CONFERENCE

2-17 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 17.11

17.11 LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements--Procedures for Pretrial Conferences and Orders.

17.11[1] Procedures Can Vary Significantly From Judge to Judge. In the Northern District, procedures for pretrial conferences, statements, and orders can vary significantly from judge to judge.

Judge's Perspective:
It is extremely important to pay attention to your judge's requirements. You must determine if the judge has standing orders regarding pretrial conferences and orders.

17.11[2] Case Management Order May Address Scheduling. A court may establish deadlines in the initial or any subsequent case management order for (1) counsel to meet and confer to prepare the joint final pretrial conference statement and proposed order and coordinated submission of trial exhibits and other material; and (2) filing the joint final pretrial conference statement and proposed order [ND Cal Civ LR 16-10(b)(5), (6)].

17.11[3] Joint Pretrial Conference Statement. Consult your judge's standing orders to determine:

- Whether the judge has published instructions or guidelines for pretrial preparation.
- Whether the court requires a joint pretrial conference statement or a different type of paper (e.g., joint proposed final pretrial order).
- Whether there are prerequisites to preparation and submission of the paper, such as:
  - Requirements that parties exchange specified types of information or papers.
  - Requirements that parties meet and confer.
- Whether the judge requires use of specific forms.

- Deadlines for submission of required papers.
- Items to be included in the pretrial conference statement or similar paper, such as:
  - A brief description of the substance of claims and defenses that remain to be decided;
  - A detailed statement of all of the relief claimed;
  - A statement of undisputed facts;
  - A statement of disputed factual issues;
  - A statement assessing whether all or part of the action may be presented on an agreed statement of facts;
  - A statement of requested or proposed stipulations;
  - A statement of disputed points of law;
  - A list of witnesses likely to be called (other than for impeachment or rebuttal) with summaries of their planned testimony;
  - A list of all documents and other items to be offered as exhibits at the trial (other than for impeachment and rebuttal) with descriptive information for each item;
  - An estimate of trial time;
  - A statement concerning the status of settlement negotiations.
- Items the court requires to be submitted separately, such as:
  - Exhibits;
  - Proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law;
  - Papers relating to jury trial (e.g., instructions, preliminary statement, voir dire questions, form of verdict);
  - Motions in limine.

17.11[4] Final Pretrial Conference. Review individual judge's standing orders to determine requirements for the final pretrial conference.

Judge's Perspective:

The final pretrial conference will be your last opportunity for significant input on how smoothly the trial will go, or to get the judge to agree to any special procedures that you may request. It is extremely important to be very well prepared and to alert the court to any potential problems or unusual issues, e.g., taking a witness out of order, scheduling problems, etc. If you will be challenging an expert witness under Daubert, let the judge know. Very few judges like to be surprised in the middle of a trial.

II. PARTICIPATING IN FINAL PRETRIAL CONFERENCE

2-17 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 17.12

17.12 LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements--Procedures for Pretrial Conferences and Orders.

17.12[1] Memorandum of Contentions of Fact and Law Generally Required at Least 15 Days Before Pretrial Hearing. Unless the court specifies otherwise, each party must serve on the other and file with the clerk a "Memorandum of Contentions of Fact and Law" no later than 5:00 p.m. 28 days before the pretrial hearing [SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(f.2.a)].

The memorandum must contain a concise statement of the material facts and the points of law claimed by the party and cite the authorities on which the party intends to rely at trial [SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(f.2.a)].

Each party must set forth a statement of any issues raised by the pleadings that have been abandoned [SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(f.2.b)].

In the memorandum, each party must set forth a list of all exhibits that the party expects to offer at the trial (other than those to be used for impeachment) with a description of each exhibit sufficient for identification. The list must be substantially in the form set out in Local Rule 16.1(f) [SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(f.2.c)].

The memorandum must set forth the names and addresses of all prospective witnesses, except impeaching witnesses. In the case of expert witnesses, a brief narrative statement of the witness's qualifications and the expected substance of the testimony must be stated [SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(f.2.d)].

Counsel must address additional items if the case involves negligence, wrongful death, contract, eminent domain, or patent law [see SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(f.3)].

17.12[2] Parties Must Meet and Confer at Least 10 Days Before Pretrial Hearing. At least 21 days before the pretrial hearing, and after each party has filed and served its memorandum of contentions of fact and law, the attorneys for the parties must convene at a suitable time and place. The purpose of the meeting is to arrive at stipulations and agreements resulting in simplification of the triable issues and to confer concerning the content of the pretrial order. Plaintiff's counsel is responsible for arranging for meetings of counsel and for preparation of the draft order [SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(f.4.a)].

When counsel meet to attempt to reach stipulations and discuss the form of the pretrial order, all exhibits other than those to be used for impeachment must be displayed or exchanged [SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(f.4.a), (f.4.b)]. Each photograph, map, drawing and the like must contain a legend on its face or reverse side, stating by date the relevant matters of fact as to what the party offering the exhibit claims is fairly depicted [SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(f.4.c)]. The failure to display and/or exchange exhibits to or with opposing counsel may result in the exclusion of the evidence [SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(f.4.d)].

17.12[3] Plaintiff's Counsel Prepares Pretrial Order. Plaintiff's counsel prepares a proposed pretrial order and arranges the requisite meetings of counsel [SD Cal Civ LR. 16.1(f.6.a)].

Timing:

Not less than 14 days before the pretrial hearing, plaintiff's counsel must provide opposing counsel with the proposed pretrial order for review and approval [SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(f.6.a)].

Opposing counsel must promptly communicate with plaintiff's attorney concerning any objections to form or content of the pretrial order, and both parties should attempt promptly to resolve any differences concerning the order [SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(f.6.a)]. The order must substantially comply with the form set forth in the Local Rules [SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(f.6.c)].

Timing:

The plaintiff must file the pretrial order with the judge's chambers seven days before the pretrial hearing [SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(f.6.b)].

17.12[4] Matters for Consideration at Pretrial Hearing. The court will consider the following matters at the final pretrial hearing [SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(f.5)]:

- The pleadings, proposed amendments to the pleadings, and papers and exhibits then on file including stipulations, statements and memoranda filed pursuant to SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(f.3) and (f.4) and all matters referred to in Fed R Civ P 16;

- All motions and other proceedings then pending;

- The possibilities for settlement and other matters that may be presented concerning parties, process, pleading or proof with a view to simplifying issues and bringing about a just, speedy and inexpensive determination of the matter;

- The date on which the case is set for trial; and.

- Whether the parties will consent to a magistrate judge to conduct the trial.

Unit 4 Required Conferences and Case Management
CHAPTER 17 Final Pretrial Conference
II. PARTICIPATING IN FINAL PRETRIAL CONFERENCE

2-17 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 17.13

17.13 Final Pretrial Order Defines Scope of Trial.

17.13[1] Final Pretrial Order Supersedes the Pleadings. The court will issue an order after the final pretrial conference, reciting all actions taken at the conference [Fed R Civ P 16(d)].

This final pretrial order supersedes the pleadings [999 v. C.I.T. Corp. (9th Cir 1985) 776 F2d 866, 870-871 (issue included in final order may be presented at trial even if omitted from pleadings); Eagle v. AT&T Corp. (9th Cir 1985) 769 F2d 541, 548 , cert. denied, 475 US 1084 (1986) (claims raised in pleadings but omitted from final order are precluded)].

Example:

If an issue is included in the final pretrial order, it can be raised at trial even though not raised by the pleadings [see In re Hunt (9th Cir 2000) 238 F3d 1098, 1101-1102].

17.13[2] Final Pretrial Order Guides Course of Action.

17.13[2][a] Order Guides and Controls Subsequent Course of Action Unless Modified. The final pretrial order guides and controls the subsequent course of the action unless modified by a subsequent order [Fed R Civ P 16(e); ED Cal Civ LR 283(c); see also DP Aviation v. Smiths Indus. Aerospace & Def. Sys. LTD (9th Cir 2001) 268 F3d 829, 841 ; Sousa v. Unilab Corp. Class II (Non-Exempt) Members Group Benefit Plan (ED Cal 2002) 252 F Supp2d 1046, 1058].

Warning:

The critical importance of the final pretrial order cannot be overemphasized. The final pretrial order supersedes the pleadings, and governs who may be called as witnesses (and possibly impeachment witnesses and rebuttal witnesses); may contain binding stipulations; and may limit the questions, evidence, exhibits, and legal theories to be presented at trial [see Southern Cal. Retail Clerks Union v. Bjorklund (9th Cir 1984) 728 F2d 1262, 1264]. In other words, the parties are bound by the order's contents and cannot assert at trial claims raised in the pleadings but omitted from the order [DP

Aviation v. Smiths Indus. Aerospace & Def. Sys. LTD (9th Cir 2001) 268 F3d 829, 842 ; see Patterson v. Hughes Aircraft Co. (9th Cir 1993) 11 F3d 948, 950].

17.13[2][b] Order May Relieve Party of Need to Prove Certain Matters at Trial. If a matter has been agreed to in the final pretrial order, the proponent need not offer proof on the issue at trial [United States v. First Nat'l Bank of Circle (9th Cir 1981) 652 F2d 882, 886-887].

17.13[2][c] Stipulations in Pretrial Order Are Binding at Trial. Stipulations embodied in the order are binding at trial [Malhiot v. Southern Cal. Retail Clerks Union (9th Cir 1984) 735 F2d 1133, 1136-1137 , cert. denied, 469 US 1189 (1984)].

17.13[2][d] Issues Resolved by Agreement at Pretrial Conference May Not Be Raised Again at Trial. Issues resolved by agreement at the conference and set forth in the order may not be raised again at trial [Islamic Republic of Iran v. Boeing Co. (9th Cir 1985) 771 F2d 1279, 1290-1291 , cert. dismissed, 479 US 957 (1986)].

17.13[3] Final Pretrial Order Has Preclusive Effect. In general, a party may not offer evidence or advance theories at trial that are not included in the final pretrial order or that contradict its terms. In other words, matters not preserved in the final pretrial order are eliminated from the case [see Southern Cal. Retail Clerks Union v. Bjorklund (9th Cir 1984) 728 F2d 1262, 1264]. This rule serves to encourage timely and orderly litigation and to prevent unfair surprise [Sousa v. Unilab Corp. Class II (Non-Exempt) Members Group Benefit Plan (ED Cal 2002) 252 F Supp2d 1046, 1058].

Exception--Waiver:

If an issue omitted from the final pretrial order is tried without objection, the objection is waived and the pretrial order is deemed amended to conform to the proof [Fed R Civ P 15(b); see Frank Music Corp. v. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Inc. (9th Cir 1985) 772 F2d 505, 515 ; Sauers v. Alaska Barge (9th Cir 1979) 600 F2d 238, 244 (litigated issue omitted from final pretrial order presented to jury; pretrial order conformed to proof)].

17.13[4] Scope of Final Pretrial Order. The final pretrial order typically disposes of all pending motions. The order may dispose of frivolous claims or defenses. Further, the order may address trial issues, such as identifying who may be called as witnesses (and possibly impeachment witnesses and rebuttal witnesses), and issues remaining. The order may contain binding stipulations and limit the questions, evidence, exhibits, and legal theories to be presented at trial [see Southern Cal. Retail Clerks Union v. Bjorklund (9th Cir 1984) 728 F2d 1262, 1264 ; see also Higgins v. Harden (9th Cir 1981) 644 F2d 1348, 1353].

A court may sua sponte grant partial or full summary judgment in appropriate cases without the need for formal motion [see Portsmouth Square, Inc. v. Shareholders Protective Comm. (9th Cir 1985) 770 F2d 866, 869 (particularly close scrutiny when summary judgment granted without motion)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of grant of summary judgment sua sponte, see Ch. 29, Summary Judgment, see §§ 29.07[1], 29.31[1].

If a party has raised an issue of foreign law [see Fed R Civ P 44.1], the foreign law issue must be incorporated into the final pretrial order [DP Aviation v. Smiths Indus. Aerospace & Def. Sys. LTD (9th Cir 2001) 268 F3d 829, 848].

17.13[5] Final Pretrial Orders Should Be Liberally Construed. A final pretrial order should be liberally construed to permit any issues at trial that are reasonably embraced within its language [DP Aviation v. Smiths Indus. Aerospace & Def. Sys. LTD (9th Cir 2001) 268 F3d 829, 841 ; Sousa v. Unilab Corp. Class II (Non-Exempt) Members Group Benefit Plan (ED Cal 2002) 252 F Supp2d 1046, 1058]. However, the theories raised at trial must at least be implicit in the order [Eagle v. AT&T Corp. (9th Cir 1985) 769 F2d 541, 548 , cert. denied, 475 US 1084 (1986)]. Particular evidence or theories that are not at least implicitly included in the order are barred unless the final order is modified before trial [DP Aviation v. Smiths Indus. Aerospace & Def. Sys. LTD (9th Cir 2001) 268 F3d 829, 841 ; United States v. First Nat'l Bank of Circle (9th Cir 1981) 652 F2d 882, 886-887].

District courts have broad discretion to determine the preclusive effect of a final pretrial order on the determination of issues of law and fact at trial [Miller v. Safeco Title Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1985) 758 F2d 364, 369 ; see, e.g., El-Hakem v. BJY Inc. (9th Cir 2005) 415 F3d 1068, 1076-1077 (in employment discrimination case, district court had discretion to implicitly modify pretrial order to allow "same decision" defense to be asserted to wage retaliation claim when that defense was listed in pretrial order, albeit with respect to different claim, and no prejudice resulted to plaintiff)].

17.14 Modification of Final Pretrial Order.

17.14[1] Order May Be Modified to Prevent Manifest Injustice. Because the purpose of the final pretrial order is to guide the course of the litigation, it should not be changed without significant reasons [Sousa v. Unilab Corp. Class II (Non-Exempt) Members Group Benefit Plan (ED Cal 2002) 252 F Supp2d 1046, 1058]. The order is only modifiable to prevent manifest injustice [Fed R Civ P 16(e); Byrd v. Guess (9th Cir 1998) 137 F3d 1126, 1132 , cert. denied, 525 US 963 (1998)].

17.14[2] Factors to Determine Manifest Injustice. Rule 16 does not define manifest injustice. However, the manifest injustice standard is more stringent than the standards applied when deciding whether to grant motions to modify orders entered after earlier pretrial conferences [see Fed R Civ P 16, Committee Note of 1983].

The Ninth Circuit applies a four-factor test to determine whether to modify a final pretrial order [see, e.g., Galdamez v. Potter (9th Cir 2005) 415 F3d 1015, 1020 ; Byrd v. Guess (9th Cir 1998) 137 F3d 1126, 1132 , cert. denied, 525 US 963 (1998)]:

- The degree of prejudice or surprise to the nonmoving party if the order is modified;
- The ability of the nonmoving party to cure any prejudice;
- The impact of the modification on the orderly and efficient conduct of the case; and
- Any degree of willfulness or bad faith on the part of the party seeking the modification.

Other factors to consider are:

- Whether the moving party should have anticipated the circumstances that give rise to the need for modification [see Acorn v. City of Phoenix (9th Cir 1986) 798 F2d 1260, 1272-1273];
- Whether granting the modification would unfairly impair the opposing party's ability to litigate the merits of the case;

- Whether the modification would impose unjustifiable expense or disruption on another party;

- Whether the nonmoving party should have known that the movant intended to proceed in the manner proposed in the motion;

- Whether the need for the modification is the result of a good faith oversight;

- Prejudice to the movant if the motion were denied; and

- Whether the proposed changes are extensive or modest.

Judge's Perspective:

Judges rarely modify a final pretrial order. Extremely good cause must be shown.

17.14[3] Party Seeking Modification Has Burden of Proof. The party seeking to modify the order bears the burden of establishing the manifest injustice that will occur if the order is not modified [Byrd v. Guess (9th Cir 1998) 137 F3d 1126, 1132].

Strategic Point:

Manifest injustice may be difficult to establish. If feasible, counsel should consider crafting the argument in terms of seeking clarification of the final pretrial conference order.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of modification of pretrial order, see 3 Moore's Federal Practice, § 16.78[4] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

17.14[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal--Modification of Final Pretrial Order. Any application to modify a pretrial order must be made to the judicial officer who entered the order [CD Cal Civ LR 16-14].

Unit 4 Required Conferences and Case Management
CHAPTER 17 Final Pretrial Conference
II. PARTICIPATING IN FINAL PRETRIAL CONFERENCE

2-17 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 17.15

17.15 Immediate Appellate Review of Final Pretrial Orders Is Generally Not Available.

17.15[1] Appellate Review Is Ordinarily Deferred. In general, most final pretrial orders are interlocutory in nature, rather than final. They deal with preliminary matters, leading up to, but not including, trial, and may still be modified by the court on a showing of manifest injustice [Fed R Civ P 16(e); see 17.14].

Although critically important in narrowing issues, clarifying factual contentions, and structuring the trial, a final pretrial order is a procedural step. Because the court is able to reassess the content of a final pretrial order and make adjustments as needed, no irreversible legal consequences flow from these orders. Therefore, most final pretrial orders are not subject to immediate appellate review; rather, appellate review ordinarily must await a final judgment in the action [see In re Recticel Foam Corp. (1st Cir 1988) 859 F2d 1000, 1002].

17.15[2] Trial Management Decisions Reviewed for Abuse of Discretion. The court of appeals reviews a district court's case management decisions under the "abuse of discretion" standard. The court of appeals may reverse a district court's case management decision if the district court relied on an erroneous view of the law, made a clearly erroneous assessment of the evidence, or struck an unreasonable balance of the relevant factors [Doe v. Advanced Textile Corp. (9th Cir 2000) 214 F3d 1058, 1069]

Example--Adherence to Time Limits:

Trial courts have broad authority to impose and enforce reasonable time limits for each side's presentation of the case [see Navellier v. Sletten (9th Cir 2001) 262 F3d 923, 941 , cert. denied, 536 US 941]. However, trial courts may not rigidly adhere to time limits as to "sacrifice justice in the name of efficiency" [General Signal Corp. v. MCI Telecomms. Corp. (9th Cir 1995) 66 F3d 1500, 1509 , cert. denied, 516 US 1146 (1996)].

III. SEEKING SANCTIONS FOR FAILURE TO COMPLY WITH PRETRIAL DUTIES

2-17 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 17.16

17.16 CHECKLIST: Sanctions for Failure to Comply With Pretrial Duties.

☐ Ascertain whether opposing parties have engaged in any of the following sanctionable conduct:

- ○ Failure to attend or substantially prepare for pretrial conference;
- ○ Failure to participate in good faith in pretrial conference;
- ○ Failure to obey pretrial order;
- ○ Violation of local district court rules

☐ If conduct is sanctionable, consider appropriateness and availability of particular types of sanctions:

- ○ Reprimand;
- ○ Imposition of costs, including attorney's fees, caused by the violation;
- ○ Exclusion of evidence, witnesses, or a claim or defense;
- ○ Striking pleadings or parts of pleadings;

- ○ Granting or denying additional time for discovery;
- ○ Continuing or staying the proceedings;
- ○ Contempt;
- ○ Dismissal of a claim or the action;
- ○ Default judgment.

☐ Bring motion for sanctions, or otherwise bring sanctionable conduct to attention of court.

CHAPTER 17 Final Pretrial Conference
III. SEEKING SANCTIONS FOR FAILURE TO COMPLY WITH PRETRIAL DUTIES

2-17 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 17.17

17.17 Imposing Sanctions to Enforce Final Pretrial Order and Other Pretrial Duties.

17.17[1] Sanctionable Conduct.

17.17[1][a] Failing to Attend or Substantially Prepare for Conference. Courts may impose sanctions if a party or party's attorney fails to attend a scheduled pretrial conference, or to substantially prepare for the conference without sufficient excuse [Fed R Civ P 16(f); see Fed R Civ P 37(b)(2)(A)(ii)-(vii); see also Dahl v. City of Huntington Beach (9th Cir 1996) 84 F3d 363, 366].

Example--Failure to Attend Settlement Conference:
Sanctions may be imposed for failing to attend a settlement conference [Ayers v. City of Richmond (9th Cir 1990) 895 F2d 1267, 1270].

Example--Sending Unprepared Attorney to Attend Final Pretrial Conference:
Sanctions may be imposed if the lead counsel does not attend a final pretrial conference, but instead sends a substantially unprepared attorney [see Ha-Lo Indus., Inc. v. Your Favorite Producers, Inc. (ND Ill 1995) 164 FRD 233, 234].

17.17[1][b] Failing to Participate in Good Faith in Pretrial Conference. Courts have broad authority to sanction a party or an attorney who fails to participate in good faith in a pretrial conference [Fed R Civ P 16(f); see Fed R Civ P 37(b)(2)(A)(ii)-(vii)]. Courts may also impose sanctions for failing to participate in good faith in the development and submission of a proposed discovery plan [Fed R Civ P 26(f), 37(f)].

17.17[1][c] Failing to Obey Pretrial Order. Courts may impose sanctions if a party or party's attorney fails to obey a pretrial order without sufficient excuse [Fed R Civ P 16(f); see Fed R Civ P 37(b)(2)(A)(ii)-(vii)].

17.17[1][d] Violating Local Rules. Local rules may authorize the imposition of sanctions for failing to comply with local rules [see Zambrano v. City of Tustin (9th Cir 1989) 885 F2d 1473, 1479 ; Miranda v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (9th Cir 1983) 710 F2d 516, 519].

Example:

The Southern District's local rules provide that the failure of counsel for any party to appear before the court at pretrial proceedings, or to complete the necessary preparations for any proceeding, may be considered an abandonment or failure to prosecute or defend diligently, and judgment may be entered against the defaulting party either with respect to a specific issue or on the entire case [SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(f.8)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of sanctions for failure to comply with local rules, see Ch. 34, Other Sanction Provisions, see §§ 34.26 -34.30.

17.17[2] Bad Faith Not Required. The imposition of sanctions under Rule 16 does not require that the party was acting (or not acting) in bad faith. Thus, sanctions are possible for negligently failing to appear as required [Lucas Auto. Eng'g, Inc. v. Bridgestone/Firestone, Inc. (9th Cir 2001) 275 F3d 762, 769 ; Ayers v. City of Richmond (9th Cir 1990) 895 F2d 1267, 1270].

17.17[3] Sanctions May Be Imposed on Motion or Sua Sponte. Sanctions for failing to comply with a pretrial order or other pretrial conference obligation may be imposed on motion, or on the judge's own initiative. The court may sanction a party, a party's attorney, or both [Fed R Civ P 16(f)].

Judge's Perspective:

Rule 16(f) is an area in which courts often act sua sponte to impose sanctions because a failure to appear or to follow the pretrial order often imposes significant burdens on the court itself.

17.17[4] Offending Party Must Have Notice and Opportunity to Show Cause. The offending party must be afforded notice and an opportunity to show cause why sanctions should not be imposed before sanctions may be imposed [Ayers v. City of Richmond (9th Cir 1990) 895 F2d 1267, 1270 ; Ford v. Alfaro (9th Cir 1986) 785 F2d 835, 840].

17.17[5] Court Has Broad Discretion to Select Appropriate Sanction.

17.17[5][a] Selection of Sanction Is Discretionary. Rule 16(f) leaves courts with broad discretion in fashioning a remedy by making such orders as are "just" [Fed R Civ P 16(f), Fed R Civ P 37(b)(2)(A)(ii)-(vii)]. The remedies listed in Rule 16(f) are neither mandatory nor exhaustive [see Mallinckrodt, Inc. v. Masimo Corp. (CD Cal 2003) 254 F Supp2d 1140, 1156].

In exercising its discretion, the court will typically examine the following factors [see Thompson v. Housing Auth. of L.A. (9th Cir 1986) 782 F2d 829, 831-832 , cert. denied, 479 US 829 (1986)]:

- The nature and consequences of the violation;
- The extent and nature of the alleged violation, and its effect on the other parties (e.g., prejudice);
- The mental state or degree of culpable behavior; willfulness, recklessness, negligence, or bad faith is not required, but may affect the severity of the sanction;
- Who is responsible for the violation; counsel, party, or both;
- Whether the violation resulted from forces beyond the party's control;
- Whether the violation is an isolated incident, or part of a pattern of conduct; and

- Public interest matters, such as the effect of the violation on the administration of justice, the public policy favoring expeditious resolution of litigation, docket management, and the availability of less drastic sanctions.

In lieu of or in addition to any other sanction, the judge will require the party or the attorney representing that party or both to pay the reasonable expenses incurred because of any noncompliance with Rule 16, including attorney's fees, unless the judge finds that the noncompliance was substantially justified or that other circumstances make an award of expenses unjust [Fed R Civ P 16(f)].

Strategic Point:

To ensure an adequate record for appellate review, counsel should request that the court memorialize its findings and reasons on the record, or in a written order [see In re Eisen (9th Cir 1994) 31 F3d 1447, 1451].

17.17[5][b] Broad Range of Available Sanctions. The range of sanctions available for failing to comply with a pretrial order or other pretrial conference obligation is extremely broad, and includes [see Fed R Civ P 16(f), 37(b)(2)]:

- Reprimand;
- Imposition of costs, including attorney's fees, caused by the violation;
- Exclusion of evidence, witnesses, or a claim or defense;
- Striking pleadings or parts of pleadings;
- Granting or denying additional time for discovery;
- Continuing or staying the proceedings;
- Contempt;
- Dismissal of a claim or the action; and
- Default judgment.

Judge's Perspective:

Sanctions are not a frequent occurrence. In determining the appropriate sanction, the specific facts are very important, including how much prejudice has been caused, both to the other parties and to the court. Courts will sometimes rule in favor of a monetary sanction over dismissal or default judgment in order to minimize the risk of reversal.

IV. MAKING PRETRIAL DISCLOSURES PURSUANT TO RULE 26(a)(3)

2-17 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 17.18

17.18 CHECKLIST: Pretrial Disclosures Under Rule 26(a)(3).

☐ Prepare, serve, and file pretrial disclosures at least 30 days before trial unless otherwise ordered by the court.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3)(B)

Discussion:
See § 17.21

☐ Do not include evidence to be offered solely for impeachment purposes.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3)(A)

Discussion:
See § 17.19[5]

☐ Provide the following information about each witness:

- ○ Name;
- ○ Address, if not previously disclosed;

- ○ Telephone number, if not previously disclosed.

☐ Separately identify witnesses that the party:

- ○ Expects to testify at trial;
- ○ May call if the need arises.

☐ Follow any court order or local rules regarding differentiation of the two types of witnesses.

☐ Identify witnesses expected to testify by deposition.

☐ If not taken stenographically (e.g., by audio or video tape), provide a transcript of the pertinent portions of testimony.

☐ If required by court or local rule, designate portions of stenographic depositions that will be used at trial.

☐ Identify exhibits, listing each separately.

☐ For voluminous items of a similar or standardized character, describe by meaningful categories.

☐ Separately identify exhibits the party:

- ○ Expects to present at trial;
- ○ May present if the need arises.

☐ Follow any court order or local rules regarding differentiation of the two types of exhibits.

☐ Assure that all exhibits are identified. Omitted exhibits will not be admitted without substantial justification.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3)

Discussion:
See § 17.19

☐ Prepare pretrial disclosures in writing.

☐ At least one attorney of record must sign pretrial disclosures. Signing certifies that to the best of the signer's knowledge, information, and belief, formed after a reasonable inquiry, the disclosure is complete and correct as of the time it is made.

☐ Serve pretrial disclosures on the other parties.

☐ File pretrial disclosures promptly with the court.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3), (4), (g)(1)

Form:
See § 17.25

☐ Serve and file objections to another party's pretrial disclosures within 14 days, unless court specifies different time, by listing:

○ Any objections to the use of a deposition designated by another party under Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3)(A)(ii);

○ Any objection, and its grounds, that may be made to the admissibility of exhibits identified under Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3)(A)(iii).

☐ Objections not so disclosed will be deemed waived.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3)(B)

Discussion:
See § 17.22

☐ Supplement disclosures, as appropriate.

Authority:

17.19 Information About Witnesses, Documents, Exhibits, and Other Evidence Must Be Given to Other Parties and Filed With Court

17.19[1] Information Related to Evidence to Be Presented at Trial. In addition to the disclosures required by Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1) and (2), a party must provide to other parties and promptly file with the court information regarding the evidence that it may present at trial other than solely for impeachment [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3)(A)].

17.19[2] Identification of Witnesses. A party must provide to other parties and promptly file with the court the name and, if not previously provided, the address and telephone number of each witness, separately identifying those whom the party expects to present and those whom the party may call if the need arises [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3)(A)(i)].

17.19[3] Deposition Testimony to Be Used. A party must provide to other parties and promptly file with the court the designation of those witnesses whose testimony is expected to be presented by means of a deposition and, if not taken stenographically, a transcript of the pertinent portions of the deposition testimony [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3)(A)(ii)].

17.19[4] Identification of Documents and Exhibits. A party must provide to other parties and promptly file with the court an appropriate identification of each document or other exhibit, including summaries of other evidence, separately identifying those that the party expects to offer and those that the party may offer if the need arises [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3)(A)(iii)].

17.19[5] Impeachment Information Excluded. Pretrial disclosure of information solely for impeachment is not required [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3)]. If information is both substantive and impeaching, it must be disclosed [Klonoski v. Mahlab (1st Cir 1998) 156 F3d 255, 270].

2-17 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 17.20

17.20 LOCAL PRACTICE: Rule 26(a)(3) Disclosures.

17.20[1] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements.

17.20[1][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Witness List. In the Central District, each party must serve and file under separate cover, at the same time as the Memorandum of Contentions of Fact and Law, a witness list containing the information required by Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3)(A)(i)-(ii). An asterisk must be placed next to the names of those witnesses whom the party may call if the need arises. [CD Cal Civ LR 16-5]. Any objections to the use under Fed R Civ P 32 of a deposition designated under Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3)(A)(ii) must be stated in the final pretrial conference order [CD Cal Civ LR 16-5].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of service of memorandum of contentions of fact and law, see § 17.09[2].

17.20[1][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Exhibit List. In the Central District of California, all parties must jointly file a single document under separate cover, at the same time as the Memorandum of Contentions of Fact and Law, setting forth a joint list of exhibits containing the information required by Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3)(A)(iii). The exhibits must be listed in numerical order. An asterisk must be placed next to the exhibits that a party may offer if the need arises. The court may choose to treat these disclosures as the disclosures under Rule 26(a)(3) and to adopt them as part of the Final Pretrial Conference Order. Accordingly, all objections must be separately stated and attached to the proposed Final Pretrial Conference Order [CD Cal Civ LR 16-6.1 (also containing form and requirements for identification and numbering at deposition and trial)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of service of memorandum of contentions of fact and law, see § 17.09[2].

17.20[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements.

17.20[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Witness List. In the Eastern District of California, the Pretrial Statement must include a list (names and addresses) of all prospective witnesses, whether their testimony will be offered in person or by deposition or interrogatory, and designating those who are expert witnesses. Only witnesses listed are permitted to testify at trial [ED Cal Civ LR 281(b)(10)]. Counsel must serve and file the statement before the date set by the court for the final pretrial conference [see ED Cal Civ LR 281(a)(1)].

17.20[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Exhibit List. In the Eastern District, the Pretrial Statement must include a list of documents and other exhibits the party expects to offer at trial [ED Cal Civ LR 281(b)(11)]. The statement must also state whether any special handling of trial exhibits is required and whether or not it is advisable for the exhibits to be retained by the court pending appeal [ED Cal Civ LR 281(b)(21)]. Counsel must serve and file the statement before the date set by the court for the final pretrial conference [see ED Cal Civ LR 281(a)(1)].

17.20[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. The Northern District rules do not address Rule 26(a)(3) disclosures. Consult individual judge's standing orders.

17.20[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements.

17.20[4][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements--Witness List. In the Southern District, each party must set forth, with the Memorandum of Contentions of Fact and Law, the names and addresses of all prospective witnesses, except impeaching witnesses, and for expert witnesses, a brief narrative statement of the qualifications of each witness and the substance of the testimony the witness is expected to give. Only witnesses listed are permitted to testify at trial [SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(f.2.d)]. Counsel must serve and file the statement not less than 28 days before the pretrial hearing [SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(f.2.a)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of service of memorandum of contentions of fact and law, see § 17.12[1].

17.20[4][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements--Exhibit List. In the Southern District, each party must set forth, with the Memorandum of Contentions of Fact and Law, a list of exhibits the party expects to offer at trial, other than exhibits to be used for impeachment, with a description of each exhibit sufficient for identification, including specified information about each exhibit. The exhibits must be numbered numerically for plaintiffs and alphabetically for defendants, and should be listed in the order to be presented at trial [SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(f.2.c)]. Counsel must serve and file the statement not less than 28 days before the pretrial hearing [SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(f.2.a)].

17.22 Objections to Certain Evidence Must Be Filed Within 14 Days.

Within 14 days after a party makes disclosures pursuant to Rule 26(a)(3), unless a different time is specified by the court, a party may serve and promptly file a list disclosing the following objections [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3)(B)]:

- Any objections to the use under Fed R Civ P 32(a) of a deposition designated by another party under Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3)(A)(ii) and

- Any objection, together with the grounds for it, that may be made to the admissibility of materials identified under Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3)(A)(iii) (regarding identification of documents and other exhibits).

Objections not so disclosed, other than objections under Fed R Evid 402 and 403, are waived unless excused by the court for good cause [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3)(B)].

Unless the court orders otherwise, all disclosures under Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)-(3) must be made in writing, signed, and served [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(4)].

The signature on the pretrial disclosure is a certification that it is complete and correct as of the time when made [Fed R Civ P 26(g)(1)(A)].

Warning:

The court may later impose sanctions if it finds certification was made without substantial justification [Fed R Civ P 26(g)(3)].

17.24 Parties Must Supplement or Correct Rule 26(a) Disclosures to Include Later-Acquired Information.

17.24[1] Duty Applies to Pretrial Disclosures. A party who has made a pretrial disclosure under Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3) is under a duty to supplement or correct the disclosure to include later-acquired information [Fed R Civ P 26(e)].

Judge's Perspective:
This duty with regard to later-acquired information continues even after the trial has started.

17.24[2] Changes to Expert Witness Disclosures Must Be Disclosed by Time Pretrial Disclosures Are Due. With respect to testimony of an expert from whom a report is required, the duty extends to both information contained in the report and to information provided through a deposition of the expert. Any additions or changes to this information must be disclosed by the time the Rule 26(a)(3) disclosures are due [Fed R Civ P 26(e)(2)].

18.04[3] Evaluate Case.

18.04[3][a] Bifurcation Is Effective for Resolving Key Issues.

18.04[3][b] Bifurcation May Speed-Up Litigation.

18.04[4] Consider Appellate Issues.

18.05 CHECKLIST: Moving for Consolidation.

18.06 Consider Effects of Consolidation.

18.06[1] Actions Remain Separate.

18.06[2] Consolidation Does Not Affect Diversity Jurisdiction.

18.06[3] Right to Jury Trial Is Not Affected.

18.06[4] Consolidation Does Not Affect Parties' Substantive Rights.

18.06[5] Unclear If Actions Are Merged for Personal Jurisdiction Purposes.

18.06[6] Consolidation Does Not Merge Actions for Subject Matter Jurisdiction Purposes.

18.06[7] Consolidation for Discovery Does Not Merge Suits.

18.06[8] Court May Appoint Lead Counsel.

18.06[9] Court May Require Consolidated Pleadings.

18.06[10] Only One Set of Witness Fees Allowed As Costs.

18.07 Determine Whether Common Questions of Law or Fact Exist.

18.07[1] Common Question Is Key.

18.07[2] Common Question Need Not Predominate.

18.08 Cases Must Properly Be Pending Before Same Court.

18.09 Parties Should Consider Stipulation to Consolidate.

18.10 Only Party Can Move to Consolidate.

18.11 Seek Consolidation Early.

18.12 Less than Entire Action May Be Consolidated.

18.13 Contents of Motion for Consolidation.

18.14 Factors Court Will Consider.

18.14[1] Risk of Delay.

18.14[2] Risk of Prejudice and Jury Confusion.

18.14[3] Burden on Parties, Witnesses, and Judicial Resources.

18.15 Moving Party Has Burden of Proof.

18.16 Consolidation Is Encouraged in Securities Litigation.

18.17 CHECKLIST: Opposing Motion for Consolidation.

18.18 Any Party Can Oppose Consolidation.

18.19 Review Grounds for Opposing Motion.

18.19[1] Existence of Common Issues Does Not Require Consolidation.

18.19[2] Consolidation Will Cause Prejudice.

18.19[3] Consolidation Will Cause Jury Confusion.

18.19[4] Consolidation Will Cause Delay.

18.19[5] Consolidation Will Cause Burden on Parties, Witnesses, and Judicial Resources.

18.20 Draft Jury Instructions to Minimize Risk of Prejudice and Confusion.

18.21 CHECKLIST: Moving for Bifurcation.

18.22 Counsel Should Weigh Factors to Determine Whether Action Is Amenable to Bifurcation.

18.23 Parties Can Stipulate to Bifurcation.

18.24 Court Can Order Bifurcation Sua Sponte.

18.25 Any Party Can Move for Bifurcation.

18.26 Requests for Separate Trials Will Be Considered at Pretrial Conferences.

18.26[1] Rule 16 Applies.

CHAPTER 18 Consolidation and Separate Trials
I. STRATEGY

2-18 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 18.01

18.01 Scope.

This chapter discusses consolidation and separate trials under Fed R Civ P 42, including:

- Objectives and strategy for consolidation [see 18.02].
- Moving for consolidation [see 18.05 -18.16; Forms 18.39 -18.41].
- Opposing motion for consolidation [see 18.17 -18.20].
- Objectives and strategy for separate trial [see 18.04].
- Moving for separate trials [see 18.21 -18.35; Forms 18.42, 18.43].
- Opposing motion for separate trials [see 18.36 -18.38].

Local rules relating to requirements for notifying the court of related cases are also discussed [see 18.03].

Core Rule:
Fed R Civ P 42.

Detailed Discussion/Forms:
8 Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 42, Consolidation; Separate Trials (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

9 Bender's Federal Practice Forms, Rule 42, Consolidation; Separate Trials (Matthew Bender).

Unit 4 Required Conferences and Case Management
CHAPTER 18 Consolidation and Separate Trials
I. STRATEGY

2-18 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 18.02

18.02 Objectives and Strategy: Consolidation.

18.02[1] Advantages of Consolidating Actions.

18.02[1][a] Promotes Efficiency. Where common questions of fact and law exist, consolidation of actions can avoid duplication of discovery and presentation of evidence, as well as accelerating the litigation process [Zacky Farms v. FMC Corp. (ED Cal 2001) 2001 US Dist LEXIS 24255, at *11 ; see Johnson v. Celotex Corp. (2d Cir 1990) 899 F2d 1281, 1285].

18.02[1][b] Avoids Inconsistent Results. The purpose of consolidation is to enhance court efficiency (i.e., to avoid unnecessary duplication of evidence and procedures) and to avoid substantial danger of inconsistent adjudications (i.e., different results because tried before different juries or judges) [EEOC v. HBE Corp. (8th Cir 1998) 135 F3d 543, 551 ; Zacky Farms v. FMC Corp. (ED Cal 2001) 2001 US Dist LEXIS 24255].

18.02[1][c] Reduces Costs. Where common questions of fact and law exist, consolidation of actions can reduce costs [Zacky Farms v. FMC Corp. (ED Cal 2001) 2001 US Dist LEXIS 24255, at *11].

18.02[2] Court May Consolidate Sua Sponte. Even if none of the parties move for consolidation, the trial court may consolidate cases sua sponte [In re Adams Apple, Inc. (9th Cir 1987) 829 F2d 1484, 1487 ; Yousefi v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (CD Cal 1999) 70 F Supp2d 1061, 1065].

Cross Reference:

Court's power to consolidate sua sponte, see 8 Moore's Federal Practice, § 42.10[2][b] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

18.02[3] Balance Savings in Time and Effort Against Possibility of Delay and Prejudice. Consolidation is within the broad discretion of the district court [In re Adams Apple, Inc. (9th Cir 1987) 829 F2d 1484, 1486 ; Zacky Farms v. FMC Corp. (ED Cal 2001) 2001 US Dist LEXIS 24255, at *12]. The judge must balance the gains in judicial efficiency with any threats of prejudice and confusion to determine the most efficient method of disposition that preserves access to a fair and impartial trial [Johnson v. Celotex Corp. (2d Cir 1990) 899 F2d 1281, 1284].

Cross Reference:

Court's broad discretion to consolidate, see 8 Moore's Federal Practice, § 42.10[2][a] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

18.02[4] Consolidation May Be for Limited Purpose. The court may limit consolidation to particular issues, and order a joint trial of those issues only, as, for example, the consolidation of over 150 cases arising out of an airplane crash for the purpose of a trial on the issue of liability only [In re Air Crash Disaster at Detroit Metro. Airport (ED Mich 1989) 737 F Supp 391, 393-395].

Consolidation may be expressly limited to pretrial proceedings, including pleadings and discovery [Katz v. Realty Equities Corp. (2d Cir 1975) 521 F2d 1354, 1358-1359 (court ordered consolidated complaint)].

18.02[5] Consider Appellate Issues.

18.02[5][a] Order Can Be Reviewed by Appellate Court As Interlocutory Appeal. An order to consolidate actions can be heard by the reviewing court as an interlocutory appeal pursuant to 28 USC § 1292(b) [see United Airlines, Inc. v. Wiener (9th Cir 1961) 286 F2d 302, 304 ; see also Oregon Egg Producers v. Andrew (9th Cir 1972) 458 F2d 382, 383].

18.02[5][b] Order Disposing of Only One Consolidated Case Is Not Appealable Absent Certification. A district court judgment disposing of only one of two or more consolidated cases is not appealable under 28 USC § 1291 absent certification under Fed R Civ P 54(b) [Durfey v. E.I. DuPont de Nemours (9th Cir 1995) 59 F3d 121, 124 ; Huene v. United States (9th Cir 1984) 743 F2d 703, 703-705]. If the absence of Rule 54(b) certification in consolidated cases is cured after the notice of appeal is filed and there is no prejudice to the parties, the appellate court has jurisdiction over the appeal [Fadem v. United States (9th Cir 1994) 42 F3d 533, 535].

Cross Reference:

Certification for appeal under Rule 54(b), see 10 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 54.23 -54.29 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Distinguish--Mandamus May Be Available:

Review of a consolidation order may be sought by a petition for mandamus directed to the district court to correct an abuse of discretion [see In re Repetitive Stress Injury Litig. (2d Cir 1993) 11 F3d 368, 373].

18.02[6] Consider Alternative Procedures.

18.02[6][a] Permissive Joinder. A plaintiff may join multiple defendants in a single action if the claims arise from the same transaction or occurrence [Fed R Civ P 20(a)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of permissive joinder, see Ch. 10, Adding, Dropping, and Substituting Parties, see §§ 10.04 -10.09.

18.02[6][b] Class Actions. Class action certification may be available when such a large number of plaintiffs or defendants exists that joinder of all members is impracticable, there are common questions of law and fact, the class representatives present claims or defenses typical of the class, and the class representatives can adequately represent the class [Fed R Civ P 23, see Ch. 20, Class Actions, 20.06].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of class actions, see Ch. 20, Class Actions.

18.02[6][c] Multidistrict Litigation. When civil actions involving one or more common questions of fact are pending in different judicial districts, the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation may consolidate and transfer them to a single district for coordinated or consolidated pretrial proceedings [28 USC § 1407].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of multidistrict litigation, see Ch. 2, Determining Forum (Jurisdiction and Venue), see §§ 2.61 -2.73.

Unit 4 Required Conferences and Case Management
CHAPTER 18 Consolidation and Separate Trials
I. STRATEGY

2-18 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 18.03

18.03 LOCAL PRACTICE: Notice of Related Cases, or an Administrative Motion to Consider Whether Cases Should Be Related, Must Be Filed.

18.03[1] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Notice of Related Cases.

18.03[1][a] File and Serve on All Parties. At the time a civil action is filed, or as soon as known thereafter, the attorney must file and serve on all parties who have appeared a Notice of Related Case(s), stating whether any action previously filed or currently pending in the Central District and the action being filed appear [CD Cal Civ LR 83-1.3.1]:

- To arise from the same or substantially identical transactions, happenings or events; or
- To involve the same patent, trademark or copyright, except where in one or both actions the same patent, trademark or copyright is joined with other patents, trademarks or copyrights which do not cover the same or substantially identical subject matter; or
- To call for determination of the same or substantially identical questions of law and fact; or
- Likely for other reasons to entail substantial duplication of labor if heard by different judges.

Distinguish:
Assignment of related cases is not the same as consolidation. Ordinarily, if a court determines that two cases are sufficiently related, both cases will be assigned to the judge of the court having the lower-numbered case. Whether to consolidate the cases is then within the discretion of the assigned judge. Consult the local rules in each district.

18.03[1][b] Include Explanatory Statement. The Notice of Related Case(s) must include a brief factual statement setting forth the basis for the attorney's belief that the action qualifies for related case transfer [CD Cal Civ LR 83-1.3.1].

18.03[1][c] Serve With Complaint. The Notice of Related Case(s) must be served concurrently with service of the complaint [CD Cal Civ LR 83-1.3.1].

18.03[1][d] Counterstatement Opposing Transfer. Within five days of the service of the Notice of Related Cases(s) or first appearance, a party opposing a related case transfer may file and serve a counterstatement setting forth the reasons the action does not qualify for related case transfer [CD Cal Civ LR 83-1.3.2].

18.03[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Notice of Related Cases.

18.03[2][a] Definition of Related Case. An action is related to another action within the meaning of Local Rule 123 when [ED Cal Gen LR 123(a)]:

- Both actions involve the same parties and are based o the same or a similar claim;
- Both actions involve the same property, transaction, or event;
- Both actions involve similar questions of fact and the same question of law and their assignment to the same judge or magistrate judge is likely to effect a substantial savings of judicial effort, either because the same result should follow in both actions or otherwise; or
- For any other reasons, it would entail substantial duplication of labor if the actions were heard by different judges or magistrate judges.

18.03[2][b] File Notice Promptly. Counsel who has reason to believe that an action on file or about to be filed is related to another action on file (whether or not dismissed or otherwise terminated) shall promptly file in each action and serve on all parties in each action a Notice of Related Cases [ED Cal Gen LR 123(b)].

18.03[2][c] Contents of Notice. This notice shall set forth the title and number of each possibly related action, together with a brief statement of their relationship and the reasons why assignment to a single judge or magistrate judge is likely to effect a savings of judicial effort and other economies [ED Cal Gen LR 123(b)].

18.03[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements--Administrative Motion to Consider Whether Cases Should Be Related.

18.03[3][a] Definition of Related Case. Any action is related to another when both concern [ND Cal Civ LR 3-12(a)]:

1. Substantially the same parties, property, transaction or event; and

2. When it appears likely that there will be an unduly burdensome duplication of labor and expense or conflicting results if the cases are conducted before different judges.

18.03[3][b] File Motion Promptly. Whenever a party knows or learns that an action, filed in or removed to the Northern District is (or the party believes that the action may be) related to an action that is or was pending in the Northern District as defined in ND Cal Civ LR 3-12(a), the party must promptly file in the earliest-filed case an Administrative Motion to Consider Whether Cases Should Be Related [ND Cal Civ LR 3-12(b)].

18.03[3][c] Serve Copies on All Parties. The filing party must serve a copy of the motion on all known parties to each apparently related action and lodge a chambers copy of the motion with the assigned judge in each apparently related case [ND Cal Civ LR 3-12(b)].

18.03[3][d] Contents of Motion. An Administrative Motion to Consider Whether Cases Should Be Related must comply with ND Cal Civ LR 7-11 [ND Cal Civ LR 3-12(b)], and must contain [ND Cal Civ LR 3-12(c)]:

1. The title and case number of each apparently related case; and

2. A brief statement of the relationship of the actions according to the criteria set forth in ND Cal Civ LR 3-12(a).

18.03[3][e] Response to Motion. Any opposition to or support of a Motion to Consider Whether Cases Should Be Related must be filed in the earliest-filed case and specifically address the issues raised in the motion. The response must be served on all parties and lodged with the chambers of all judges identified in the motion. If the motion identifies more than two potentially related cases, and a party contends that not all of the cases are related, the party must address whether any of the cases are related to one another [ND Cal Civ LR 3-12(e)].

18.03[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements--Notice of Related Cases.

18.03[4][a] Definition of Related Action. An action or proceeding is related to another action or proceeding when both of them [SD Cal Civ LR 40.1(f)]:

(1) Involve some of the same parties and are based on the same or similar claims, or

(2) Involve the same property, transaction, or event, or

(3) Involve substantially the same facts and the same questions of law.

18.03[4][b] Duties of Counsel. Whenever counsel has reason to believe that a pending action or proceeding on file or about to be filed is related to another pending action or proceeding on file in this or any other federal or state court (whether pending, dismissed, or otherwise terminated), counsel must promptly file and serve on all known parties to each related action or proceeding a notice of related case, stating the title, number and filing date of each action or proceeding believed to be related, together with a brief statement of their relationship and the reasons why assignment to a single district judge is or is not likely to effect a saving of judicial effort and other economies [SD Cal Civ LR 40.1(e)].

Unit 4 Required Conferences and Case Management
CHAPTER 18 Consolidation and Separate Trials
I. STRATEGY

2-18 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 18.04

18.04 Objectives and Strategy: Separate Trials (Bifurcation).

18.04[1] Distinguish Rule 21 Severance. Rule 21 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure furnishes the mechanism for separating a case into separate actions; any claim against a party may be severed and proceeded with separately [Fed R Civ P 21]. Fed R Civ P 42(b), on the other hand, authorizes courts to divide a single action into separate trials that remain under the umbrella of the original solitary action [McDaniel v. Anheuser-Busch, Inc. (5th Cir 1993) 987 F2d 298, 304 ; Acevedo-Garcia v. Monroig (1st Cir 2003) 351 F3d 547, 558-560]. The judgment in a severed action is final, enforceable and appealable when it disposes of all parties and issues; conversely, the order entered at the conclusion of a separate trial is often interlocutory because a final and appealable judgment cannot be rendered until all of the controlling issues have been tried and decided [Acevedo-Garcia v. Monroig (1st Cir 2003) 351 F3d 547, 558-560 (the trial court's references to Rule 42(b) notwithstanding, its clearly articulated intent was to sever the plaintiffs pursuant to Fed R Civ P 21)].

Cross References:

Rule 21 severance, see Ch. 4, Determining Parties to the Action, see §§ 4.07[3], 4.08[2].

4 Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 21, Misjoinder and Nonjoinder of Parties (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

18.04[2] Bifurcation Is Considered Exception Not Rule. While bifurcation is considered the exception rather than the rule, in some instances, separate trials are necessary to serve the ends of justice [Wechsler v. Hunt Health Sys. (SDNY 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 13775, at *19]. While separation of issues for trial is not to be routinely ordered, it is important it be encouraged where experience has demonstrated its worth [Hamm v. American Home Prods. Corp. (ED Cal 1995) 888 F Supp 1037, 1039 ; Fed R Civ P 42(b), Committee Note of 1996].

The court should cautiously apply Rule 42(b); the piecemeal trial of separate issues in a single suit is not to be the usual course, but should be resorted to only in the exercise of informed discretion when the court believes that separation will achieve the purposes of the rule [Hangarter v. Paul Revere Life Ins. Co. (ND Cal 2002) 236 F Supp2d 1069, 1094-1095].

Motions to bifurcate are to be granted on a case by case basis only when the separation will result in judicial economy and will not unduly prejudice any party [Calmar, Inc. v. Emson Research, Inc. (CD Cal 1994) 850 F Supp 861, 865-866].

18.04[3] Evaluate Case.

18.04[3][a] Bifurcation Is Effective for Resolving Key Issues. The district court has broad discretion to bifurcate a trial to permit deferral of costly and possibly unnecessary proceedings pending resolution of potentially dispositive preliminary issues [Fed R Civ P 42(b); Exxon Co. v. Sofec, Inc. (9th Cir 1995) 54 F3d 570, 575 , aff'd, 517 US 830 (1996)].

Example:

The district court decided that, before addressing any of the parties' claims, an initial determination should be made whether the parties had entered into a valid agreement and, if so, what that agreement entailed. As the court explained: a determination as to which agreement actually embodied the parties' intent was of primary importance to all claims. The appellate court stated that the district court's approach was a reasonable way to promote clarity and judicial economy, because the validity of the contract directly informed the resolution of the other claims [Jinro Am., Inc. v. Secure Invs., Inc. (9th Cir 2001) 266 F3d 993, 998].

18.04[3][b] Bifurcation May Speed-Up Litigation. Bifurcation of some issues can result in more efficient litigation, for example:

- Davis & Cox v. Summa Corp. (9th Cir 1985) 751 F2d 1507, 1517 (attorney brought action for fees and corporate client counterclaimed for malpractice and breach of fiduciary duties; bifurcation allowed trial on issues in complaint to proceed without delay).

- Carlisle Corp. v. Hayes (SD Cal 1986) 635 F Supp 962, 967 (separate trial of antitrust counterclaims in patent infringement suit is particularly advantageous in view of extensive and protracted discovery inherent in trial of antitrust issues).

- Exxon Co. v. Sofec, Inc. (9th Cir 1995) 54 F3d 570, 575 , aff'd on other grounds, 517 US 830 (1996) (no abuse of discretion in bifurcating causation issues in admiralty action).

18.04[4] Consider Appellate Issues. If the court orders separate trials under Fed R Civ P 42(b), a judgment entered on the first claim or issue may not be separately appealable. Until judgment is entered on all claims, the district court must certify the individual judgment for appeal under Fed R Civ P 54(b) for the appellate court to have jurisdiction. Without the district court's express determination or direction required by Fed R Civ P 54(b), the district court chooses to treat the judgment as subject to revision at any time before entry of judgment on all claims, so that the judgment is not appealable as a final order under 28 USC § 1291 [Burkhart v. United States (9th Cir 1954) 210 F2d 602, 605].

CHAPTER 18 Consolidation and Separate Trials
II. MOVING FOR CONSOLIDATION

2-18 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 18.06

18.06 Consider Effects of Consolidation.

18.06[1] Actions Remain Separate. Actions do not lose their separate identity merely because of consolidation [International Soc'y for Krishna Consciousness, Inc. v. Los Angeles (CD Cal 1984) 611 F Supp 315, 319]. Consolidation is permitted as a matter of convenience and economy in administration, but does not merge the suits into a single cause, or change the rights of the parties, or make those who are parties in one suit parties in another [Johnson v. Manhattan Ry. Co. (1933) 289 US 479, 496-497, 53 S Ct 721, 77 L Ed 1331].

Example:

An organization sued a city in state court to invalidate a municipal resolution banning First Amendment activity in an airport terminal as violating state and federal law. That action was removed to federal court. The city sued in federal court for a declaration that the resolution was constitutional and an injunction to stop the organizations from violating it. The district court did not have subject matter jurisdiction over the city's action; consolidation did not save the city's action from dismissal because consolidated actions retain their separate identities [International Soc'y for Krishna Consciousness, Inc. v. Los Angeles (CD Cal 1984) 611 F Supp 315, 319].

Cross Reference:

Effects of consolidation, see 8 Moore's Federal Practice, § 42.13[2] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

18.06[2] Consolidation Does Not Affect Diversity Jurisdiction. For purposes of diversity jurisdiction, consolidation of cases does not make parties in one suit parties in another [Continental Airlines v. Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. (9th Cir 1987) 819 F2d 1519, 1523 n1].

18.06[3] Right to Jury Trial Is Not Affected. Consolidation under Fed R Civ P 42 does not alter the right to a jury trial [In re U.S. Fin. Secs. Litig. (9th Cir 1979) 609 F2d 411, 428 n58 , cert. denied sub nom. Gant v. Union Bank, 446 US 929 (1980)].

18.06[4] Consolidation Does Not Affect Parties' Substantive Rights. Consolidation does not affect the parties' substantive rights [Johnson v. Manhattan Ry. Co. (1933) 289 US 479, 496-497, 53 S Ct 721, 77 L Ed 1331 ; J. G.

Link & Co. v. Continental Cas. Co. (9th Cir 1972) 470 F2d 1133 , cert. denied, 414 US 829 (1973)].

18.06[5] Unclear If Actions Are Merged for Personal Jurisdiction Purposes. The extent to which consolidation does or does not merge the actions into a single cause for purposes of personal jurisdiction is unsettled in the Ninth Circuit [see Schnabel v. Lui (9th Cir 2002) 302 F3d 1023, 1035-1036 (court would not resolve whether consolidated actions in general retain their separate character or are merged for purposes of determining personal jurisdiction)].

18.06[6] Consolidation Does Not Merge Actions for Subject Matter Jurisdiction Purposes. The consolidation of actions does not merge them for subject matter purposes, so that if the court does not have subject matter jurisdiction over one of the actions, it does not gain that jurisdiction because it has subject matter jurisdiction over an action consolidated with that action [International Soc'y for Krishna Consciousness, Inc. v. Los Angeles (CD Cal 1984) 611 F Supp 315, 319].

18.06[7] Consolidation for Discovery Does Not Merge Suits. Consolidation for discovery purposes does not merge suits into a single claim for relief [Geddes v. United Fin. Group (9th Cir 1977) 559 F2d 557, 561].

18.06[8] Court May Appoint Lead Counsel. When consolidating two or more actions, the court may need to appoint lead counsel for the consolidated cases [In re Wirebound Boxes Antitrust Litig. (D Minn 1989) 128 FRD 256, 258 (plaintiffs' lead counsel should play a vital role in assuring that the litigation is conducted efficiently and effectively)]. This is most commonly done when many separate actions are consolidated.

Example:

In consolidating 246 Medicare reimbursement actions, the court ordered that four law firms be designated "coordinating counsel"; as coordinating counsel, their responsibilities were to coordinate with all other plaintiffs' counsel to reach agreements on briefing schedules, number and lengths of briefs, and other matters that concern the core issues involved in all or most of the now consolidated cases, to communicate and coordinate with government counsel, and to attempt to negotiate any disagreements with the government before filing any motions or otherwise bringing such matters to the attention of the Court [Baystate Health Sys. v. Thompson (DDC 2003) 254 F Supp2d 80, 82].

Consider:

An advantage to being lead counsel is having the most power to direct the litigation, which may secure the primary role in depositions, pretrial proceedings, and trial. Disadvantages include having to maintain a fiduciary relationship with individual litigants while representing the group, and maintaining communication with the entire group. In addition, attorney's fees issues can arise between lead counsel and other counsel.

Cross Reference:

Lead counsel, 8 Moore's Federal Practice, § 42.13[6] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

18.06[9] Court May Require Consolidated Pleadings. The court may order that the plaintiffs file a consolidated complaint [Katz v. Realty Equities Corp. (2d Cir 1975) 521 F2d 1354, 1358 ; see Bowman v. Legato Sys., Inc. (ND Cal 2000) 195 FRD 655, 656-657 (consolidation of 31 securities class actions alleging that defendants disseminated a series of false and misleading statements concerning a company's operations and financial performance)].

Consider:

A consolidated complaint eliminates the need for multiple answers, and may streamline discovery and pretrial motions. However, it may be difficult to effectively combine each individual party's facts into one document and to reach agreement on the pleadings among all the parties.

Cross Reference:

Consolidated pleadings, 8 Moore's Federal Practice, see § 42.13[5] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

18.06[10] Only One Set of Witness Fees Allowed As Costs. Under Fed R Civ P 42(a), which authorizes consolidation to avoid unnecessary costs or delay, when cases are consolidated for trial the prevailing party or parties can only recover one set of witness fees as costs, because the witnesses testify only once [Reynolds Metals Co. v. Yturbide (9th Cir 1958) 258 F2d 321, 335 , cert. denied, 358 US 840 (1958)].

18.07 Determine Whether Common Questions of Law or Fact Exist.

18.07[1] Common Question Is Key. When actions involving a common question of law or fact are pending before the court, it may order a joint hearing or trial of any or all the matters in issue in the actions, or order the actions consolidated [Fed R Civ P 42(a)(1), (2)].

The key is that the cases involve a common question of law or fact [see, e.g., Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Hillmon (1892) 145 US 285, 292, 12 S Ct 909, 36 L Ed 706 (consolidating two cases with common question of insurance coverage under statute, now superseded by Fed R Civ P 42); In re Adams Apple, Inc. (9th Cir 1987) 829 F2d 1484, 1486-1487 (consolidating bankruptcy petitions)]. Rule 42 does not require that the actions be identical [Takeda v. Turbodyne Techs., Inc. (CD Cal 1999) 67 F Supp2d 1129, 1133]. See for example:

- Securities Class Actions Based on Same Set of Corporate Misrepresentations. Fifty-four separate class actions predicated on the same set of misstatements by corporate officials, causing an artificial inflation and then a corrective drop in share prices, presented common questions of fact [Aronson v. McKesson HBOC, Inc. (ND Cal 1999) 79 F Supp2d 1146, 1150]. However, there appeared to be a viable argument that a common-law shareholders derivative suit should not be consolidated with the others, because it sought recovery on behalf of the corporation, which was a conflict with the other complaints, which sought recovery from the corporation [Aronson v. McKesson HBOC, Inc. (ND Cal 1999) 79 F Supp2d 1146, 1151-1152].

- Slightly Differing Class Periods Would Not Defeat Consolidation of Securities Actions. The district court consolidated six cases involving nearly identical claims of six related securities class actions, even though the asserted class periods differed slightly. All of the claims were based on the same alleged misrepresentations and omissions. Plaintiffs purchased and sold their shares in the same two markets. There was substantial overlap of defendants. Absent class members would best be served by consolidation because they would have just one case to monitor as it proceeded through litigation [Takeda v. Turbodyne Techs., Inc. (CD Cal 1999) 67 F Supp2d 1129, 1133].

- Differing Damages Claims Do Not Defeat Consolidation. The district court consolidated two actions against a ski resort stating claims for violation of the Americans With Disabilities Act, the state civil rights act, and California disabled access laws. The actions were directed against the same defendants and were based on the same alleged barriers and policies. Both actions sought class-based declaratory and injunctive relief and abolition of a no-wheelchairs policy and improved disability access, class-wide remedies which turn on liability under the common claims. The only differences involved damages for the particular injuries sustained by the individual plaintiffs as a result of the barriers and policies, and the need to separately litigate individual damages does not defeat consolidation when common issues predominate. Jury confusion would be no more likely than in any case with more than one plaintiff, and the court could structure the trial to deal with the issues in an orderly fashion [Leiken v. Squaw Valley Ski Corp. (ED Cal 1994) 1994 US Dist LEXIS 21281, at *6-*7].

- Challenges to Immigration Policy Relating to Unaccompanied Minors Present Common Question. The court consolidated separate actions by minors challenging the policies of the Immigration and Naturalization Service with regard to its voluntary departure policy as applied to unaccompanied minors. The actions presented the identical question of law requiring the determination of the nature and extent of the due process guarantees extended to unaccompanied minors faced with deportation. They additionally presented the identical question of fact of the degree to which the INS coerces unaccompanied minors to consent to voluntary departure. Additionally, one action generated hundreds of pages of pleadings and testimony pertinent to other action. To require the separate prosecution of the actions would have resulted in the duplication of effort, unnecessary costs, and delays Fed R Civ P 42(a) was designed to avoid [Perez-Funez v. District Dir., INS (CD Cal 1984) 611 F Supp 990, 994].

- Patent Infringement Actions Can Present Common Questions. The court consolidated two related patent infringement actions when it found that both lawsuits would require the court to construe the terms of three patents and address the validity of each, and each lawsuit required a jury to understand the same underlying technology and the same claim terms to determine if the products at issue infringed. Although one action involved an additional patent, the technology of that patent appeared to be related to the other three in issue. Because of these similarities, the court granted the motion to consolidate, stating that to do so would serve "judicial efficiency" [Paxonet Communications, Inc. v. Transwitch Corp. (ND Cal 2003) 303 F Supp2d 1027, 1029].

18.07[2] Common Question Need Not Predominate. Common questions of law and fact need not predominate; individual questions of law and fact may well predominate over common ones [Zacky Farms v. FMC Corp. (ED Cal 2001) 2001 US Dist LEXIS 24255, at *11].

18.08 Cases Must Properly Be Pending Before Same Court.

Consolidation only applies to cases that are properly before the same court [Fed R Civ P 42(a)]. If the cases to be consolidated are not properly before the same court, they cannot be consolidated [Oregon Egg Producers v. Andrew (9th Cir 1972) 458 F2d 382, 383 ; see Italian Colors Rest. v. American Express Co. (ND Cal 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 20338, at *20-*21].

The district court has broad discretion to consolidate actions pending in the same district, even if those actions are pending before different judges [see Investors Research Co. v. United States District Court for the Cent. Dist. of Cal. (9th Cir 1989) 877 F2d 777].

Distinguish--Forum Non Conveniens:

For the convenience of the parties and witnesses, in the interest of justice, a district court may transfer any civil action to any other district or division, where it might have been brought [28 USC § 1404(a); see Ch. 2, Determining Forum (Jurisdiction and Venue), 2.57, 2.60].

Example--Action Brought in State Court Could Not Be Removed and Consolidated With Pending Action:

A plaintiff sued a defendant in state court to recover on an account stated. The defendant counterclaimed for damages allegedly sustained by plaintiff's discriminatory pricing. The plaintiff moved to remove the action to federal court on the theory that the counterclaim raised a federal question. In the meantime, the defendant filed an antitrust action against the plaintiff in federal court. However, the plaintiff could not effectuate removal to a federal court even though the plaintiff could have originated the action in federal court and even though the counterclaim stated a claim cognizable in a federal court. Thus, the plaintiff could not invoke Fed R Civ P 42 to seek consolidation with the antitrust action, since the original action was not properly in the federal court [Oregon Egg Producers v. Andrew (9th Cir 1972) 458 F2d 382, 383].

18.09 Parties Should Consider Stipulation to Consolidate.

The parties can stipulate to consolidation [see Model Stipulation and Proposed Consolidation Order for Securities Fraud Class Actions, ND Cal, September 5, 2001].

Example--Court Enforced Stipulation to Consolidate State and Federal Cases:

An employee who was terminated sued in state court for wrongful discharge and tortious interference with contract and in federal court for discrimination and discriminatory retaliation. The parties stipulated to consolidate the state action with the suit in federal court. After the Ninth Circuit upheld the district court's grant to the employer of summary judgment on the discrimination claims but remanded the retaliation claim for trial, the district court again ordered the state and federal claims consolidated. The employee moved to stay the federal action pending resolution of the state claim in state court, but the employer moved to enforce the consolidation stipulation, which the district court granted and as to which the Ninth Circuit denied the employee's petition for writ of mandamus and which the Ninth Circuit upheld on appeal [Payne v. Norwest Corp. (9th Cir 1999) 185 F3d 1068, 1070-1072].

18.10 Only Party Can Move to Consolidate.

Only a party to an action can move for consolidation of that action with another [Yousefi v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (CD Cal 1999) 70 F Supp2d 1061, 1065 ; see EEOC v. U.S. Steel (ED Pa 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 11388, at *8 (employee's motion to intervene and consolidate actions granted)].

Example--Unnamed Class Members Cannot Move for Consolidation:
One hundred-thirty four unnamed class members who purchased stock during the period of time covered by the complaints could not move to consolidate that class action with two other related securities class actions [Yousefi v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (CD Cal 1999) 70 F Supp2d 1061, 1065].

18.11 Seek Consolidation Early.

Fed R Civ P 42(a) does not require that a motion for consolidation be brought at any particular time during the proceedings. However, Fed R Civ P 16 specifies that consideration should be given at pretrial conferences to matters that may facilitate the just, speedy, and inexpensive disposition of the action [Fed R Civ P 16(c)(2)(P)].

CHAPTER 18 Consolidation and Separate Trials
II. MOVING FOR CONSOLIDATION

2-18 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 18.12

18.12 Less than Entire Action May Be Consolidated.

The court may limit consolidation to particular issues and order a joint trial of those issues only [Fed R Civ P 42(a)(1)].

Example:

The court granted plaintiff's motion for partial consolidation of actions involving patent infringement, over another plaintiff's argument that full consolidation would be a preferable alternative [Wang Labs., Inc. v. Mitsubishi Elecs. Am., Inc. (CD Cal 1993) 1993 US Dist LEXIS 21372, at *6-*8]. Consolidated pretrial proceedings also may be ordered [In re Equity Funding Corp. of Am. Sec. Litig. (CD Cal 1976) 416 F Supp 161, 175 ; Hopkins v. Dow Corning Corp. (ND Cal 1992) 1992 US Dist LEXIS 8580, at *1-*3].

Consider:

Consolidation for specified purposes can have advantages. For example, parties may want to consolidate for discovery but still conduct separate trials. Further, parties may want consolidated proceedings on one issue, such as liability, but separate proceedings on others, such as damages and punitive damages. One disadvantage to partial consolidation is that it does not always offer the savings and efficiency of full consolidation, and so is not as likely to be granted by the court.

18.13 Contents of Motion for Consolidation.

A motion for consolidation should argue the following [Certified/LVI Envtl. Servs. v. PI Constr. Corp. (WD Tex 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 5474, at *6 ; see Frazier v. Garrison ISD (5th Cir 1993) 980 F2d 1514, 1532 ; Hendrix v. Raybestos-Manhattan, Inc. (11th Cir 1985) 776 F2d 1492, 1495-1497 ; and In re Repetitive Stress Injury Litig. (2d Cir 1993) 11 F3d 368, 373]:

- The cases proposed for consolidation are pending either before the same court for all purposes or before two different courts within the same judicial district;
- The cases involve a common party;
- The cases involve common issues of law;
- The cases involve common issues of fact;
- There is no risk of prejudice or possible confusion if the cases are consolidated, or if there is any risk, it is outweighed by the risk of inconsistent adjudications of factual and legal issues if the cases are tried separately;
- Consolidation will not result in an unfair advantage;
- Consolidation will conserve judicial resources;
- Consolidation will reduce the time for resolving the cases when compared to separate trials; and
- Consolidation will reduce the expense of trying the cases separately.

Note that the motion for consolidation must be filed in both lawsuits.

18.14 Factors Court Will Consider.

18.14[1] Risk of Delay. The court may decline to consolidate cases involving common questions of law or fact when the cases are at different stages of preparedness for trial and consolidation would delay the case ready for disposition [Zacky Farms v. FMC Corp. (ED Cal 2001) 2001 US Dist LEXIS 24255, at *14].

18.14[2] Risk of Prejudice and Jury Confusion. The risk of prejudice and confusing the jury from consolidating separate cases must be weighed against the risk of inconsistent adjudications if they are not consolidated [Zacky Farms v. FMC Corp. (ED Cal 2001) 2001 US Dist LEXIS 24255, at *14].

A consolidated trial that confuses the jury does not serve its essential purpose, and should be avoided [Southwest Marine, Inc. v. Triple A Mach. Shop, Inc. (ND Cal 1989) 720 F Supp 805, 807].

18.14[3] Burden on Parties, Witnesses, and Judicial Resources. In deciding whether to consolidate cases, the court must consider whether added time will be required in trying multiple lawsuits consolidated for trial, with greater inconvenience and expense to all concerned [Zacky Farms v. FMC Corp. (ED Cal 2001) 2001 US Dist LEXIS 24255, at *14-*15].

The party moving for consolidation bears the burden of proving that consolidation is desirable [Zacky Farms v. FMC Corp. (ED Cal 2001) 2001 US Dist LEXIS 24255, at *11]. The movant must prove that the actions to be consolidated are based on common questions of law and fact and that considerations of efficiency outweigh any prejudice or confusion that might result from consolidation [Ocean Ships v. 18.16 Consolidation Is Encouraged in Securities Litigation.

The Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995 dictates that the district court should consolidate securities actions when they assert "substantially the same claim" [15 USC § 78u-4(a)(3)(B)(ii)]. They need not be identical [Takeda v. Turbodyne Techs., Inc. (CD Cal 1999) 67 F Supp2d 1129, 1133]. See Model Stipulation and Proposed Consolidation Order for Securities Fraud Class Actions, ND Cal, September 5, 2001.

III. OPPOSING MOTION FOR CONSOLIDATION

2-18 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 18.19

18.19 Review Grounds for Opposing Motion.

18.19[1] Existence of Common Issues Does Not Require Consolidation. The mere existence of common issues does not require consolidation; the court must evaluate each case on its own facts with close attention to whether the anticipated benefits of a consolidated complaint outweigh potential prejudice to the parties [Zacky Farms v. FMC Corp. (ED Cal 2001) 2001 US Dist LEXIS 24255, at *11].

Example:

Despite common issues, five factors militated against consolidating three actions against an insurer [Servants of the Paraclete v. Great Am. Ins. Co. (D NM 1994) 866 F Supp 1560, 1572-1573]:

- Actions involved several separate factual issues, parties, and legal questions;
- Risk of substantial delay of trial of one action;
- Consolidation would not significantly conserve the court's resources because trying the three actions together would require a bifurcated factfinding procedure; one action is to be tried to the court; the other two actions will be tried to a jury;
- Much duplicative effort and expense has already been avoided because the court consolidated the three actions for all pre-trial matters; and
- Possible consolidation for trial of two of the actions, in which the issues and parties are more similar, in which the trial schedules are virtually identical, and which are both jury trials.

18.19[2] Consolidation Will Cause Prejudice. In deciding whether to consolidate separate actions, the court must ensure that parties are not prejudiced by consolidation [Zacky Farms v. FMC Corp. (ED Cal 2001) 2001 US Dist LEXIS 24255, at *12].

18.19[3] Consolidation Will Cause Jury Confusion. The likelihood of jury confusion outweighs any efficiency that might have been achieved through consolidation [Applied Materials, Inc. v. Advanced Semiconductor Materials Am., Inc. (ND Cal 1994) 1994 US Dist LEXIS 17569, at *14].

18.19[4] Consolidation Will Cause Delay. The court may decline to consolidate cases involving common questions of law or fact when the cases are at different stages of preparedness for trial and consolidation would delay the case ready for disposition [Zacky Farms v. FMC Corp. (ED Cal 2001) 2001 US Dist LEXIS 24255, at *14].

Example:

A defendant opposed consolidation arguing that consolidation would result in undue delay of the action against it in the light of the different stages of preparedness of the two actions. At the time consolidation was sought, the first action approached two years of litigation. The parties in the first action had conducted voluminous discovery and engaged in mediation. The case was ready for trial with the exception of expert discovery, which has been postponed due to mediation efforts. The second action was not even at issue because the complaint had neither been filed nor responded to. Consolidation realistically would delay the first action trial for at least a year based on the second action's complexities, in depth discovery and additional parties. the court agreed that on balance, the potential for delay, confusion and prejudice outweighed perceived court efficiency despite common factors between the actions [Zacky Farms v. FMC Corp. (ED Cal 2001) 2001 US Dist LEXIS 24255, at *11-*16].

18.19[5] Consolidation Will Cause Burden on Parties, Witnesses, and Judicial Resources. In deciding whether to consolidate cases, the court must consider whether added time will be required in trying multiple lawsuits consolidated for trial, with greater inconvenience and expense to all concerned [Zacky Farms v. FMC Corp. (ED Cal 2001) 2001 US Dist LEXIS 24255, at *14-*15].

2-18 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 18.22

18.22 Counsel Should Weigh Factors to Determine Whether Action Is Amenable to Bifurcation.

Before moving for separate trials, counsel should evaluate the case carefully to determine whether it is a proper case for bifurcation. Motions to bifurcate will be granted on a case by case basis only when the separation will result in judicial economy and will not unduly prejudice any party [Calmar, Inc. v. Emson Research, Inc. (CD Cal 1994) 850 F Supp 861, 865-866].

Whether to bifurcate a trial rests with the sound discretion of the trial court [Jinro Am. Inc. v. Secure Invs., Inc. (9th Cir 2001) 266 F3d 993, 998]. Many courts consider bifurcation to be the exception not the rule [see 18.04[2]].

The court will consider the following factors when ruling on a motion for separate trials [Calmar, Inc. v. Emson Research, Inc. (CD Cal 1994) 850 F Supp 861, 866]:

- The complexity of the issues.
- The factual proof involved in the individual issues.
- The risk of jury confusion.
- The difference between the separated issues.
- The chance that separation will lead to economy in discovery.
- The possibility that the first trial may be dispositive of the case.

Example--Bifurcation of Manner of Death Simplified Issues:

The district court bifurcated the issue of the manner of a jail inmate's death from the other issues, including a conspiracy to violate his civil rights. The bifurcation simplified issues for the jury because the complex conspiracy issue would be eliminated if the jury found that he committed suicide. Further, evidence relevant to the conspiracy allegation could tend to obscure the more fundamental issue of how the death occurred [Hirst v. Gertzen (9th Cir 1982) 676 F2d 1252, 1261].

18.26 Requests for Separate Trials Will Be Considered at Pretrial Conferences.

18.26[1] Rule 16 Applies. At a pretrial conference, the court may consider an order for a separate trial pursuant to Fed R Civ P 42(b) with respect to a claim, counterclaim, crossclaim, or third-party claim, or with respect to any particular issue in the case [Fed R Civ P 16(c)(2)(M)].

18.26[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Memorandum of Contentions of Fact and Law. Not later than 21 days in advance of the Final Pretrial Conference, each party must serve and file a Memorandum of Contentions of Fact and Law [CD Cal Civ LR 16-4]. This memorandum must contain any request for bifurcation of issues together with an explanation for the request [CD Cal Civ LR 16-4.3].

18.26[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Status Conference and Pretrial Statement. Counsel must be prepared to discuss the appropriateness of an order for a separate trial pursuant to Fed R Civ P 42(b) at the status conference [ED Cal Civ LR 240(a)(13)]. In the pretrial statement, counsel must state whether a separate trial on any of the issues is feasible and advisable [ED Cal Civ LR 240(a)(18)].

18.26[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements--Contents of Pretrial Order. The pretrial order must contain a statement that the trial of the case will or will not be bifurcated. If the trial is bifurcated, the pretrial order must state which issues will be tried first [SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(f.6.c)].

Warning:

Although a request for bifurcation will likely be considered in advance of when these statements or reports are due, under the local rules a court is likely to consider a request made later that this time to be untimely.

Plantronics, Inc. (ND Cal 1995) 1995 US Dist LEXIS 22188, at *3-*6 (district court denied a motion to bifurcate, emphasizing that because no discovery had taken place at the time of the motion, it was difficult to ascertain the complexity of the claims and stating that while patent and antitrust claims are typically technical and complex, separating the issues at that point could cause unnecessary expenses and delay in conducting discovery)].

18.30 Bifurcation Should Be Conducive to Expedition and Economy.

Motions to bifurcate are to be granted on a case-by-case basis, when the separation will result in judicial economy [Calmar, Inc. v. Emson Research, Inc. (CD Cal 1994) 850 F Supp 861, 865]. The district court has inherent authority to manage a case with economy of time and effort for itself, for counsel and for litigants [Landis v. North Am. Co. (1936) 299 US 248, 254, 57 S Ct 163, 81 L Ed 153 ; Pinal Creek Group v. Newmont Mining Corp. (D Ariz 2003) 218 FRD 652, 654 (defendant's motion to bifurcate liability and damages in a CERCLA action granted)].

Example:

Ordering separate trials in a civil rights action, the court stated that reducing the types and amount of evidence to be produced in each phase of trial would promote judicial economy and reduce the risk of confusion; moreover, judicial economy would be further promoted because bifurcation might eliminate the need to consider evidence of damages [Bates v. UPS (ND Cal 2001) 204 FRD 440, 448-449] , vacated in part, reversed in part, and remanded on other grounds, 20 Am. Disabilities Cas. (BNA) 1 .

18.31 Right to Jury Trial Must Be Preserved.

In deciding whether to grant separate trials, the court must always preserve any federal right of trial by jury [Fed R Civ P 42(b)].

However, there is no Seventh Amendment requirement that all evidence be presented to the trier of fact at one hearing. As long as the form of trial adopted by the trial court affords the opportunity provided at common law for the consideration by the jury, there is no violation of the right to a jury trial [see Arthur Young & Co. v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 1977) 549 F2d 686, 692 , cert. denied, 434 US 829 (1977)].

Example--Claim Against Government Under Federal Tort Claims Act Can Be Tried Separately From Negligence Action Against Another Defendant:

The Federal Tort Claims Act requires claims against the United States to be tried without a jury while the Seventh Amendment preserves to private individuals their right of trial by jury on negligence claims against non-governmental defendants in a federal court. Thus, in actions in which the plaintiffs sued private defendants for personal injuries, the defendants could bring third-party claims against the United States rather than bringing separate actions. To preserve the parties' rights to a jury, should they desire one, the court can order separate trials under Fed R Civ P 42(b) [United States v. Yellow Cab Co. (1951) 340 US 543, 555-556, 71 S Ct 399, 95 L Ed 523].

Cross Reference:

8 Moore's Federal Practice, see § 42.22 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

The jury trial right is implicated in an action involving legal and equitable claims. There is a right to jury trial on legal claims generally, but no jury trial right on equitable claims. Bifurcation causes no constitutional problems, so long as the legal and equitable issues are distinct, i.e., they do not involve common issues [Danjaq LLC v. Sony Corp. (9th Cir 2001) 263 F3d 942, 962 ; *see Bates v. UPS (ND Cal 2001) 204 FRD 440, 448] , vacated in part, reversed in part, and remanded on other grounds, Bates v. UPS, 20 Am. Disabilities Cas. 18.32 Not All Rule 42(b) Factors Need Be Present to Bifurcate.

Only one of Fed R Civ P 42(b)'s requirements must be satisfied for the court to bifurcate a trial [United States v. Shell Oil, Co. (CD Cal 1992) 1992 US Dist LEXIS 3947, at * 11 ; Pinal Creek Group v. Newmont Mining Corp. (D Ariz 2003) 218 FRD 652, 654].

Since Rule 42(b) states these factors in the disjunctive and alternative, they need not all be present for separation; the presence of any one of them is sufficient to sustain an order for a separate trial in the exercise of an informed discretion [In re Paris Air Crash of March 3, 1974 (CD Cal 1975) 69 FRD 310, 318-319].

The moving party bears the burden of establishing that separate trials are necessary to prevent prejudice or confusion and serve the ends of justice [Wechsler v. Hunt Health Sys. (SDNY 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 13775, at *20 ; see Buscemi v. Pepsico, Inc. (SDNY 1990) 736 F Supp 1267, 1271].

Example:

Where the moving party failed to meet its burden of proving otherwise, court found that bifurcation would result in prejudice, given that two trials would inevitably cause delay in resolution of case [Spectra-Physics Lasers, Inc. v. Uniphase Corp. (ND Cal 1992) 144 FRD 99, 101].

Implicit in the grant of discretion in Fed R Civ P 42(b) to grant separate trials is the power to stay proceedings, including discovery, on the deferred issues until the end of the first trial [*Ellingson Timber Co. v. CHAPTER 18 Consolidation and Separate Trials
IV. MOVING FOR SEPARATE TRIALS (BIFURCATION)

2-18 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 18.35

18.35 Bifurcation Is Effective in Particular Types of Actions.

18.35[1] Tort Actions. In tort actions it often efficient to separate liability from damages, see for example:

- Sanford v. Johns-Manville Sales Corp. (5th Cir 1991) 923 F2d 1142, 1145-1146 (asbestosis cases).

- Lis v. Robert Packer Hosp. (3d Cir 1978) 579 F2d 819, 824 , cert. denied, 439 US 955 (1978) (decision to bifurcate in medical malpractice case affirmed because no prejudice shown).

- Bates v. UPS (ND Cal 2001) 204 FRD 440, 448-449 , vacated in part, reversed in part, and remanded on other grounds, Bates v. UPS, 20 Am. Disabilities Cas. (BNA) 1 (decision to bifurcate in civil rights action would promote judicial economy and reduce the risk of confusion).

- Pinal Creek Group v. Newmont Mining Corp. (D Ariz 2003) 218 FRD 652, 654 (defendant's motion to bifurcate liability and damages in a CERCLA action granted).

Bifurcation of punitive damages is also favored by some courts [Mattison v. Dallas Carrier Corp. (4th Cir 1991) 947 F2d 95, 110 (bifurcation proper where punitive damages evidence would be prejudicial to jury's consideration of liability or compensatory damages).

18.35[2] Patent Cases. Patent cases provide good illustrations of using bifurcation to promote judicial efficiency and simplify the issues, see for example:

- Bifurcation of validity from infringement [General Patent Corp. v. Hayes Microcomputer (CD Cal 1997) 1997 US Dist LEXIS 21342, at *4-*9].

- Bifurcation of willfulness from infringement [Robotic Vision Sys., Inc. v. View Eng'g, Inc. (CD Cal 1997) 1997 US Dist LEXIS 19157, at *6-*7 (defendant was confronted with the dilemma of choosing between waiving attorney-client privilege to protect itself from a willfulness finding, in which case it would risk prejudicing itself on the question of liability)].

- Bifurcation of antitrust counterclaims until after the trial of the invalidity issue [*ASM Am., Inc. v. Genus, Inc. (ND Cal 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 1351, at *18-19].

18.35[3] Bifurcation Is Rule Rather Than Exception in Title VII Cases. Separating liability from questions of individual relief during the pretrial phase avoids unnecessary expenditure of judicial time and labor as well as attorney time and labor and expenditure of unnecessary monies in determining and reviewing and discovering the issues of damages prior to settling liability; in the absence of prejudice to the non-moving party, in Title VII employment discrimination class actions, bifurcation should be the rule rather than the exception [EEOC v. Lucky Stores, Inc. (ED Cal 1982) 1982 US Dist LEXIS 16864, at *3].

CHAPTER 18 Consolidation and Separate Trials
V. OPPOSING MOTION FOR SEPARATE TRIALS

2-18 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 18.38

18.38 Review Grounds for Objecting to Bifurcation.

18.38[1] Bifurcation Will Prejudice Party. Counsel opposing bifurcation must show that it will be prejudiced by bifurcation [see, e.g., Arnold v. UA Theatre Circuit, Inc. (ND Cal 1994) 158 FRD 439, 458-460 (granting plaintiffs' motion to bifurcate the adjudication of the issues of liability, injunctive and declaratory relief, and damages to the named plaintiffs in a civil rights action, the court emphasized that the defendant failed to allege any way in which it would be prejudiced by a bifurcated trial)].

18.38[2] Bifurcation Will Not Be Conducive to Expedition and Economy. A party opposing bifurcation can argue that separate trials will not defer costly and possibly unnecessary proceedings [see, e.g., Nicoletti v. Gates (CD Cal 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 13199, at *6-*7 (denying defendant's motion to bifurcate, the court stated that bifurcation will not be conducive to expedient resolution and judicial economy and would involve unnecessary costs and consumption of more time)].

When there are overlapping issues, bifurcation can result in presenting the same evidence twice, which does not serve judicial economy [Hilleby v. FMC Corp. (ND Cal 1992) 1992 US Dist LEXIS 20835, at *9 (judicial efficiency would be disserved by bifurcation where complaint and counterclaim involved same parties, same technology, same witnesses, and most of same issues)].

18.38[3] Right to Jury Trial Implications. In deciding whether to grant separate trials, the court must always preserve any federal right to trial by jury [Fed R Civ P 42(b)].

A constitutional concern may arise when the district court orders that some portions of the case be tried to the judge and others to a jury. Generally speaking, this is permissible because only certain issues carry the right to a jury trial. In particular, the Seventh Amendment preserves the right to jury trial of legal claims, but there is no right to a jury for equitable claims [Ross v. Bernhard (1970) 396 US 531, 537-538, 90 S Ct 733, 24 L Ed2d 729]. Difficulties may arise when the legal and equitable issues overlap and the evidence is intertwined [Danjaq LLC v. Sony Corp. (9th Cir 2001) 263 F3d 942, 962]. When there are issues common to both the equitable and legal claims, the legal claims must be determined prior to any final court determination of the equitable claims [Danjaq LLC v. Sony Corp. (9th Cir 2001) 263 F3d 942, 962].

Fed R Civ P 42(b) does not sanction switching the separated issue in a jury case from the jury to the judge unless the very stating of the separated issue shows it to be frivolous [Marks Food Corp. v. Barbara Ann Baking Co. (9th Cir 1959) 274 F2d 934, 936].

19.03[1] CHECKLIST: Determining Whether to Seek Provisional Relief.

19.03[2] CHECKLIST: Seeking a Preliminary Injunction.

19.03[3] CHECKLIST: Seeking a Temporary Restraining Order.

19.04 Options and Strategies for Party Seeking Injunctive Relief.

19.04[1] Assess Potential Tactical Benefits of Injunctive Relief.

19.04[2] Determine Types of Injunctive and Other Relief Available.

19.04[2][a] Injunctions May Be Mandatory or Prohibitory.

19.04[2][b] Injunctions Are Unavailable If Jurisdictional Requisites Are Unmet.

19.04[2][c] Suit for Injunctive Relief May Be Combined With Damages Claims.

19.05 Injunctive Relief Is an Equitable Remedy.

19.05[1] Injunctive Relief Must Be Based on Equity Principles.

19.05[2] Availability of Injunction Focuses on Need to Prevent Future Irreparable Injury.

19.05[3] Types of Injunctive Relief Are Differentiated by Degree of Permanence.

19.06 Injunctions in Removed Actions.

19.06[1] State Court Injunctions and Orders Generally Remain in Effect.

19.06[2] Ex Parte Temporary Restraining Order Expires Pursuant to State Court Order and Rule 65(b).

19.06[3] Rule 65(b) Governs Dissolution or Modification of TRO.

19.07 Seeking Permanent Injunction.

19.07[1] Purpose and Nature of Permanent Injunction.

19.07[1][a] Permanent Injunction Finally Settles Dispute.

19.07[1][b] Permanent Injunction Granted at Conclusion of Trial.

19.07[2] Subject Matter Jurisdiction Required.

19.07[3] Injunction Cannot Be Enforced Against Defendant Over Whom Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction.

19.07[4] No Special Pleading Requirements.

19.07[5] Standing for Declaratory and Injunctive Relief.

19.07[6] Court Must Balance Hardships.

19.07[7] Plaintiff Must Show Actual Success on Merits and Likelihood of Irreparable Harm.

19.08 Seeking Preliminary Injunction.

19.08[1] Preliminary Injunction Is Provisional Remedy Preserving StatusQuo.

19.08[2] Preliminary Injunction Enjoins Allegedly Unlawful Conduct Pending Outcome of Case.

19.08[3] Ninth Circuit Employs Two Alternative Tests to Determine Propriety of Preliminary Injunction.

19.08[3][a] Moving Party Must Satisfy Either Traditional or Alternative Test.

19.08[3][b] Traditional Test Weighs Irreparable Injury, Probability of Success on Merits, Balance of Harm, and Public Interest.

19.08[3][c] Alternative Test Weighs Either Combination of Probable Success and Irreparable Injury, or Serious Questions About Merits and Balance of Hardships.

19.08[3][d] Ninth Circuit Tests Represent a Continuum.

19.08[3][e] Public Interest Is Accorded Considerable Deference.

19.08[3][f] Moving Party Has Burden of Proof.

19.08[3][g] Colorable First Amendment Claim Establishes Irreparable Injury in Ninth Circuit.

19.08[3][h] Irreparable Harm Is No Longer Presumed in Trademark, Copyright, and Unfair Competition Cases Upon Sufficient Showing of Likelihood of Success.

19.08[3][i] Modified Analysis Applies to Anti-Suit Injunctions.

19.08[4] Notice to Adverse Party Required.

19.08[4][a] Preliminary Injunction Is Unavailable Without Notice to Adverse Party.

19.08[4][b] Party May Give Notice by Service of Complaint and Summons, Motion, Order to Show Cause, or Other Reasonable Means.

19.08[5] Other Papers May Be Submitted in Support of Motion.

19.08[6] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Notice of Motion When TRO Not Sought.

19.08[7] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Motion for Preliminary Injunction.

19.08[7][a] Notice of Motion.

19.08[7][b] Accompanying Documents.

19.08[7][c] Parties Must Provide Specified Information.

19.08[7][d] Requirements for Preliminary Injunction or Temporary Restraining Order in Actions Involving Real Property.

19.08[8] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements--Motion for Preliminary Injunction.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
I. STRATEGY

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.02

19.02 Objective and Strategy.

19.02[1] Provisional Injunctive Relief. Counsel about to commence an action should analyze the facts to determine whether provisional injunctive relief (a temporary restraining order (TRO) or preliminary injunction) might be justified. Provisional relief can be a powerful weapon. Apart from the benefit of the TRO or injunction itself, provisional relief lends greater urgency to the case, thereby requiring the adversary to take the case seriously at the outset.

An application for a TRO combined with the motion for a preliminary injunction will give the plaintiff a very early reading as to the court's reaction to the case, which can be a great benefit or detriment. However, unless there is an urgent need for relief, or a great advantage to be gained by surprising the defendant with an ex parte application for a TRO, counsel should consider filing just a noticed motion for a preliminary injunction. Neither form of relief should be sought unless counsel thinks the court is likely to grant the requested provisional relief and that obtaining such relief is important. Losing an application for a TRO or a motion for a preliminary injunction is not a good way to start a lawsuit, and if the court denies the motion because the court finds an insufficient probability of success on the merits, the loss can dramatically affect the future course of the lawsuit. On the other hand, if the grounds for provisional relief are strong and the application for a TRO and/or motion for a preliminary injunction are successful, there is much to be gained. Thus, seeking such relief may offer great opportunity, but it also entails great risk.

In an appropriate case, combining the motion with a request for immediate, expedited discovery will heighten the urgency with which the parties, and the court, will treat the matter. Expedited discovery may take the adverse party by surprise, and yield a more complete, more accurate version of the relevant circumstances. Expedited discovery may enhance the chances that a motion for preliminary injunction will be successful.

19.02[2] Prejudgment Seizure of Property. Once an action is commenced in federal court, all provisional remedies available pursuant to the law of the state in which the district court is located, are available in the federal action [Fed R Civ P 64(a)]. One of the most important remedies available under California law is prejudgment seizure of property, also known as attachment. A motion for prejudgment seizure will force the adverse party to take the case seriously at the outset, and can expedite the resolution of the entire case.

19.02[3] Receiverships. A receiver is a person who takes possession of and preserves, for the party entitled to possession of it, the fund or property in litigation [FTC v. World Wide Factors, Ltd. (9th Cir 1989) 882 F2d 344, 348].

The opportunity to seek a neutral handling of property during the pendency of litigation may be critical, particularly when the property may be wrongfully disposed of or otherwise mishandled to the detriment of the moving party. However, the fact that the appointment of a receiver is simply an equitable remedy available wherever justified affords a wide range of possible uses as a remedy in situations not involving the management of property [see SEC v. Hardy (9th Cir 1986) 803 F2d 1034, 1038-1039 ; see also Fed R Civ P 66, Committee Note of 1946].

19.02[4] Proceeding Against Surety Under Rule 65.1. Rule 65.1 provides for a simplified proceeding against a surety who has provided a bond or undertaking in a federal court. The liability of the surety can be enforced by motion; it is not necessary to commence an independent action. The surety has submitted to the jurisdiction of the court, and consented to the appointment of the clerk of the court as agent for service of process [see Fed R Civ P 65.1]. The motion process is less expensive and generally more expeditious than proceeding by an independent action.

19.02[5] Deposit of Money or Other Things Under Rule 67. Rule 67 governs the deposit of money or other things capable of delivery into court. The procedure is only available on notice, in any action in which all or part of the relief sought is the money or thing deposited [see Fed R Civ P 67(a)]. Rule 67 is not widely used in practice; indeed a court may be ill equipped or reluctant to take deposit of tangible items. The parties can make their own arrangements, through counsel, for the handling of money, pendente lite, instead of through the Rule 67 device. Often, escrow accounts or letters of credit, for example, are used. The benefit of these private arrangements is that the parties, and not the court, are in control, and the details can be fine-tuned.

19.03 CHECKLISTS.

19.03[1] CHECKLIST: Determining Whether to Seek Provisional Relief.

☐ Assess potential tactical benefits of provisional relief, including:

○ Accelerating litigation--a motion for provisional injunctive relief may result in acceleration of pretrial activity and advance the trial date.

○ Expediting court's analysis of case--the court's decision, if based on the probability of success as the merits, will give the parties the benefit (or detriment) of the court's analysis early in the litigation.

○ Accelerating settlement--a party subject to the constraints of an injunction may be pushed to settlement because of the immediate, and often prohibitive, costs of compliance.

○ Expedited discovery--the strict time constraints for litigating the injunction application often enable expedited discovery.

○ Immediacy--unlike civil suits for money damages, provisional injunctive relief is generally decided quickly, sometimes immediately.

○ Ongoing jurisdiction--the court retains jurisdiction to continue to monitor the respondent's compliance with the injunction.

○ Preventing harm--provisional injunctive relief may be critical in preventing irreversible harm.

○ Advancing legal theories in detail before discovery is risky: in cases in which some important facts remain unknown when plaintiff files the complaint--it can be counter-productive to go at on a limb before knowing what the opposing party can say in response.

○ The opposing party may have the right to appeal the injunction, which could delay the litigation.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 65

Discussion:
See § 19.04[1]

☐ Determine whether the benefits are outweighed by the potential detriments of injunctive relief, including:

○ Incurring large costs--injunction litigation is generally costly.

○ Impeding settlement--respondent may perceive denial of in-junction as vindication by the respondent and thus hinder settlement possibilities.

○ Encountering difficulty of enforcement--injunctive relief is often meaningless without effective enforcement, which may be infeasible.

○ Posting security--applicant will be required to post security, generally in the form of a bond, on issuance of the injunction.

○ Causing premature disclosure--impending irreparable injury may compel the applicant to seek injunctive relief before the case is fully investigated and analyzed.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 65

19.03[2] CHECKLIST: Seeking a Preliminary Injunction.

☐ Determine whether preliminary injunction is necessary:

○ Evaluate need to preserve status quo between parties pending final determination on merits.

○ Decide if mandatory or prohibitory injunction would provide the most suitable interlocutory relief.

Discussion:
See § 19.04[2]

☐ Determine whether movant can satisfy the standards for preliminary injunctive relief under either of the following tests:

○ Under the traditional test, the movant must demonstrate:

☐ Irreparable injury if the relief is denied;

☐ Probability of success on the merits;

☐ The balance of potential harm favors the moving party; and

☐ The public interest favors the injunction.

Discussion:

○ Under an alternative test sometimes applied by the Ninth Circuit, the movant must demonstrate:
