☐ A combination of probable success on the merits and the likelihood of irreparable injury if the relief is not granted; or

☐ The existence of serious questions going to the merits and that the balance of hardships tips sharply in its favor.

Authority:
El Pollo Loco, Inc. v. Hashim (9th Cir 2003) 316 F3d 1032, 1038 ; International Jensen, Inc. v. Metrosound USA Inc. (9th Cir 1993) 4 F3d 819, 822

Discussion:
See § 19.08[3][c]

☐ Commence action if an action is not already pending.

Content Note:
A preliminary injunction may be sought only in connection with a pending action. If the motion for a preliminary injunction is filed contemporaneously with the complaint, the movant should first file the complaint so that the docket number assigned can be included on the motion. This will confirm to the assigned judge that the injunctive relief is indeed being sought in the context of a pending action.

☐ Draft a notice of motion and motion or order to show cause.

- ○ The party seeking preliminary injunctive relief must provide notice to all adverse parties.
- ○ An order to show cause will permit an expedited hearing of the motion.
- ○ Consult local rules and individual judges' rules for notice requirements.

Discussion:
See §§ 19.08[4] -[10]

Forms:
See §§ 19.157, 19.158

☐ Consider requesting expedited discovery, in order to:

- ○ Heighten the urgency with which the matter will be treated by the parties and the court.
- ○ Take the adverse party by surprise, thereby yielding a more complete and accurate version of facts.

☐ Draft supporting affidavits.

- ○ Affidavits in support of a motion for preliminary injunction should set forth the evidence demonstrating the need for injunctive relief.
- ○ Affidavits in support of a motion for preliminary injunction may serve as the sole basis for the court's ruling if the parties waive a hearing or submit the matter on the papers.
- ○ Supporting affidavits should address each of the factors for injunctive relief.

☐ Draft a supporting memorandum of law.

- ○ Generally, a memorandum of law must be submitted in support of a motion for a preliminary injunction.
- ○ Even if a memorandum of law is not required, a memorandum is invaluable, and should be submitted.

☐ Draft a proposed order if required.

- ○ Consult the local rules, and the individual judge's rules, with respect to submitting proposed orders.

☐ Submit other papers in support of the motion.

☐ Notice a hearing on a motion for preliminary injunction.

Exceptions:
If there is no dispute regarding essential facts, or if adverse party has waived its right to a hearing, hearing is not required.

Standard Procedure Checklist:
Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, 26.12

☐ Prepare to provide required security.

Content Note:
The movant should supply the factual predicate for the dollar amount of the security it proposes.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 65(a), (c)

Discussion:
See § 19.11

19.03[3] CHECKLIST: Seeking a Temporary Restraining Order.

☐ Determine whether temporary restraining order is necessary:

- ○ Evaluate utility of obtaining short-term device, which may not exceed 10 days' duration, to restrain a party's actions and preserve the status quo until the court holds a hearing to determine whether to issue a preliminary injunction.

- ○ Consider whether an additional 10-day extension period is necessary.

☐ Determine whether applicant can satisfy standards for TRO.

- ○ Risk of irreparable injury to movant.

Exception:
If order is to be ex parte, threatened harm must be both irreparable and immediate.

- ○ Movant's likelihood of success on merits.

- ○ Movant's lack of any other adequate remedy at law.

○ Balance of hardships weighs in movant's favor.

○ Impact on public interest.

Discussion:
See § 19.09[3]

☐ Commence an action if action not already pending, because a TRO may issue only in connection with a pending action.

Prerequisite:
If the motion for a preliminary injunction and TRO is filed contemporaneously with the complaint, the movant should first file the complaint so that the docket number assigned can be included on the motion, thereby confirming to the assigned judge that the injunctive relief is indeed being sought in the context of a pending action.

☐ Provide notice, if possible, of application for TRO.

○ The party seeking a TRO must provide to the adverse party notice of the application, absent a very strong showing for the necessity of an ex parte order.

Exceptions:
If non-movant is unidentifiable or cannot be found for purpose of effecting notice, the court may allow movant to proceed ex parte. Also, a TRO may be granted ex parte if advance notice of the application would itself be likely to trigger irreparable injury.

Discussion:
See §§ 19.09[2], [3]

☐ Prepare supporting papers.

○ An application for a TRO typically is filed contemporaneously with a motion for a preliminary injunction. In most cases, the request for a TRO is made in the motion or order to show cause for preliminary injunctive relief.

○ The same papers typically support both the TRO and the motion for a preliminary injunction.

☐ Prepare attorney's certification if TRO is sought ex parte.

Content Note:
If a TRO is sought ex parte, the applicant's attorney must certify to the court in writing the efforts, if any, that have been made to give notice, and the reasons supporting the claim that notice should not be required.

☐ A TRO granted ex parte must:

○ Be indorsed with the date and hour of issuance.

○ Be filed immediately in the clerk's office.

○ Define the injury, and state why it is irreparable.

○ State why the order was granted without notice.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 65(b)

Discussion:
See § 19.09[3]

☐ Security is required.

Content Note:
Supply the factual predicate for the dollar amount of the proposed security.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 65(c)

Discussion:
See § 19.11

☐ A party affected by a TRO may move for dissolution or modification of the TRO on two days' notice, or such shorter notice as the court may prescribe.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 65(b)

Discussion:
See § 19.25

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPreliminary & Temporary InjunctionsCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsTemporary Restraining Orders

5 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
A. Seeking Provisional Relief

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.04

19.04 Options and Strategies for Party Seeking Injunctive Relief.

19.04[1] Assess Potential Tactical Benefits of Injunctive Relief. In addition to receiving the benefit specified by court's order, a party granted injunctive relief may obtain tactical benefits, including:

- Accelerating the litigation--a motion for provisional injunctive relief may result in acceleration of pretrial activity and advance the trial date.

- Obtaining early reading of court's reaction to plaintiff's case.

  Drawback:
  By prompting the court to form an early view of the case, plaintiff may unnecessarily lock the court into an unfavorable view.

- Expedited discovery--strict time constraints for litigating the injunction application often demand expedited discovery.

- Expediting trial date--the court may consolidate the trial on the merits with the preliminary injunction hearing.

- Promoting prompt settlement--a respondent subject to the constraints of an injunction may be pushed to settlement because of the immediate, and often prohibitive, costs of compliance.

- Precipitating weak defense--the party opposing provisional injunctive relief may lack sufficient time to fully analyze the case and mount an effective defense.

- Conferring sense of urgency on parties and court--unlike civil suits for money damages, provisional injunctive relief is generally decided quickly, sometimes immediately.

- Fostering ongoing jurisdiction--the court retains jurisdiction to continue to monitor the respondent's compliance with the injunction.

- Preventing harm--provisional injunctive relief may be critical in preventing irreversible harm.

Judge's Perspective:

Because requests for preliminary relief often create a significant burden on the court, they should not be made without a true belief that the are meritorious. Preliminary relief should not be sought merely to catch the other side off balance. Avoid requests on Friday afternoon, if possible.

19.04[2] Determine Types of Injunctive and Other Relief Available.

19.04[2][a] Injunctions May Be Mandatory or Prohibitory. Whetherthe injunction sought is mandatory or prohibitory largely depends on what remedy is sought.

Examples:

An injunction ordering a party to refrain from doing some act is a prohibitory injunction, the more common type of injunction. For example, "defendant shall refrain from any conduct that may cause any change or have any effect on the engine of the impounded vehicle" [see, e.g., Ocean Garden, Inc. v. Marktrade Co. (9th Cir 1991) 953 F2d 500, 508-509 (prohibitive preliminary injunction preventing defendant from imitating, copying, or making unauthorized use of plaintiff's trademarks or trade dress)].

An injunction ordering a party to do some act is a mandatory injunction. For example, "defendant shall take all necessary actions to prevent any change to or effect on the engine of the impounded vehicle" [see, e.g., Stuhlbarg Int'l Sales Co. v. John D. Brush & Co. (9th Cir 2001) 240 F3d 832, 841 n8 (mandatory injunction in trademark case requiring defendant to provide Customs Service with consent to importation)].

Drawback:

Mandatory injunctions are disfavored. If a party seeks mandatory preliminary relief that goes beyond maintaining the status quo pendente lite, the court may be extremely cautious about issuing a preliminary injunction [see Stanley v. University of S. Cal. (9th Cir 1994) 13 F3d 1313, 1319-1320].

19.04[2][b] Injunctions Are Unavailable If Jurisdictional Requisites Are Unmet. Before an injunction may issue, the court must have personal and subject matter jurisdiction [Hitchman Coal & Coke Co. v. Mitchell (1917) 245 US 229, 234-235, 38 S Ct 65, 62 L Ed 260].

Cross Reference:

Personal and subject matter jurisdiction, see Ch. 2, Determining Forum (Jurisdiction and Venue), see §§ 2.03 -2.25, 2.31 -2.41.

19.04[2][c] Suit for Injunctive Relief May Be Combined With Damages Claims. In some cases, an injunction may be available even though an action for damages is also proper [El Pollo Loco, Inc. v. Hashim (9th Cir 2003) 316 F3d 1032, 1038 (court properly granted injunction to prevent irreparable harm to plaintiff franchiser's trademark in action for breach of franchise agreement)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPreliminary & Temporary InjunctionsCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsTemporary Restraining Orders

6 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
A. Seeking Provisional Relief

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.05

19.05 Injunctive Relief Is an Equitable Remedy.

19.05[1] Injunctive Relief Must Be Based on Equity Principles. The substantive prerequisites for obtaining an equitable remedy and the general availability of injunctive relief are not altered by Fed R Civ P 65. Preliminary injunctive relief is only available if it is a remedy conferred by statute or one traditionally granted by English chancery courts [Grupo Mexicano de Desarrollo, S.A. v. Alliance Bond Fund, Inc. (1999) 527 US 308, 318-320, 119 S Ct 1961, 144 L Ed2d 319].

19.05[2] Availability of Injunction Focuses on Need to Prevent Future Irreparable Injury. As an equitable remedy ordering a party to do some act or refrain from doing some act, an injunction targets possible future conduct. It is unrelated to punishment and reparations for past misconduct, which may be obtained by indictment or in an action for damages [see United States v. Oregon State Medical Soc'y (1952) 343 US 326, 333, 72 S Ct 690, 96 L Ed 978].

19.05[3] Types of Injunctive Relief Are Differentiated by Degree of Permanence. The three types of injunctive relief are [Fed R Civ P 65]:

- Temporary restraining order (TRO).
- Preliminary injunction.
- Permanent injunction.

Cross References:

Permanent injunction, see 19.07; preliminary injunction, see 19.08; temporary restraining order, see 19.09.

Nature of injunctive relief, see 13 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 65.02 -65.07 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureEquityGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsElementsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPermanent InjunctionsCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPreliminary & Temporary InjunctionsCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsTemporary Restraining Orders

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
A. Seeking Provisional Relief

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.06

19.06 Injunctions in Removed Actions.

19.06[1] State Court Injunctions and Orders Generally Remain in Effect. All state-court injunctions and orders, and other state court proceedings occurring prior to removal, remain in effect, until dissolved or modified by the district court. Similarly, all bonds, undertakings, or security given by any party prior to removal of the action to federal court remain valid and effective, notwithstanding the removal [see 28 USC § 1450; Granny Goose Foods, Inc. v. Brotherhood of Teamsters (1974) 415 US 423, 425, 437, 94 S Ct 1113, 39 L Ed2d 435].

19.06[2] Ex Parte Temporary Restraining Order Expires Pursuant to State Court Order and Rule 65(b). After removal, an ex parte temporary restraining order issued by a state court prior to removal remains in force no longer than it would have done under state law. But, in no event does the order remain in force longer than Rule 65(b)'s time limitations, measured from the date of removal [Granny Goose Foods, Inc. v. Brotherhood of Teamsters (1974) 415 US 423, 439-440, 94 S Ct 1113, 39 L Ed2d 435].

Example:

If the state court issues a 15-day TRO on Day One and the case is removed to federal court on Day 13, the order will expire on Day 15 in federal court, just as it would have expired on Day 15 in state court. If, however, a state court issues a 15-day TRO on Day One and the case is removed to the federal court on Day Two, the restraining order will expire on Day 12, applying the ten-day time limitation of Rule 65(b), measured from the date of removal. In either case, the district court could extend the restraining order for up to an additional 10 days, for good cause shown, under Rule 65(b) [see Granny Goose Foods, Inc. v. Brotherhood of Teamsters (1974) 415 US 423, 440 n15, 94 S Ct 1113, 39 L Ed2d 435 ; see also Fed R Civ P 65(b)].

19.06[3] Rule 65(b) Governs Dissolution or Modification of TRO. Once a case has been removed to federal court, its course is governed by federal law, including the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

Timing:

On two days' notice, or on shorter notice prescribed by the court, the party against whom a temporary restraining order has issued can move to dissolve or modify the injunction [Fed R Civ P 65(b)(4)].

Depending on the circumstances and the parties' readiness to present evidence and arguments, at the hearing on dissolution or modification of a TRO, the court may entertain an application for a preliminary injunction [see Granny Goose Foods, Inc. v. Brotherhood of Teamsters (1974) 415 US 423, 441, 94 S Ct 1113, 39 L Ed2d 435].

Cross References:

Expanded hearing on motion to dissolve or modify TRO, see 19.25.

Discussion of removal, see Ch. 3, Removing a State Court Case to Federal Court, § 3.03 -3.22.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemovalPrior State Court OrdersCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPreliminary & Temporary InjunctionsCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsTemporary Restraining Orders

8 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
A. Seeking Provisional Relief

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.07

19.07 Seeking Permanent Injunction.

19.07[1] Purpose and Nature of Permanent Injunction.

19.07[1][a] Permanent Injunction Finally Settles Dispute. A permanent injunction is a means of finally settling a dispute. It may constitute part or all of the final judgment in a civil action [see Amoco Prod. Co. v. Village of Gambell (1987) 480 US 531, 546 n12, 107 S Ct 1396, 94 L Ed2d 542].

19.07[1][b] Permanent Injunction Granted at Conclusion of Trial. A permanent injunction is granted at the conclusion of a trial on the merits. It remains in force unless reversed or vacated by another court. It does not expire after a prescribed period of time [see Amoco Prod. Co. v. Village of Gambell (1987) 480 US 531, 546 n12, 107 S Ct 1396, 94 L Ed2d 542].

Distinguish:

Unlike preliminary injunctions, permanent injunctions may be issued only after an adjudication of the merits [see Amoco Prod. Co. v. Village of Gambell (1987) 480 US 531, 546 n12, 107 S Ct 1396, 94 L Ed2d 542].

Warning:

The court may order the trial on the merits to be advanced and consolidated with the preliminary injunction hearing [see Fed R Civ P 65(a)(2)].

Trap--Prayer for Injunctive Relief, Only, May Deprive Plaintiff of All Relief:

If a party seeks only injunctive and declaratory relief in the complaint, damages cannot be awarded if equitable relief becomes moot by the time of trial [see, e.g., James Luterbach Constr. Co. v. Adamkus (7th Cir 1986) 781 F2d 599, 602 (plaintiff contractor that alleged EPA unfairly denied its bid on project neglected to apply for preliminary injunctive relief and failed to plead claim for damages in complaint)].

19.07[2] Subject Matter Jurisdiction Required. The court must have subject matter jurisdiction to grant injunctive relief [Ocean Garden, Inc. v. Marktrade Co. (9th Cir 1991) 953 F2d 500, 503-507 (subject matter jurisdiction)]. A complaint seeking injunctive relief must allege the basis for the court's subject matter jurisdiction [see, e.g., Lauf v. E.G. Shinner & Co. (1938) 303 US 323, 327-328, 58 S Ct 578, 82 L Ed2d 872 ("labor dispute" not adequate to invoke federal statutory jurisdiction as basis for requested injunctive relief)].

Cross Reference:

Subject matter jurisdiction, see Ch. 2, Determining Forum (Jurisdiction and Venue), § 2.03- 2 .25.

19.07[3] Injunction Cannot Be Enforced Against Defendant Over Whom Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction. Even if injunctive relief is granted against a defendant named in the complaint, it cannot be enforced if the defendant has not been served and has not appeared [Hitchman Coal & Coke Co. v. Mitchell (1917) 245 US 229, 234-235, 38 S Ct 65, 62 L Ed 260 (injunction against individually named union officials not automatically effective against successors in office, even if successors named in complaint)].

Cross Reference:

Procedure under California law to obtain preliminary injunction against party who has not appeared, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, 18.11[3].

19.07[4] No Special Pleading Requirements. No special pleading rules govern complaints that seek injunctive relief. The complaint must include a short and plain statement of the claim showing that the plaintiff is entitled to a permanent injunction [see Fed R Civ P 8(a)].

Cross Reference:

Requirement of short and plain statement of claim in complaint, see Ch. 6, Drafting the Summons and Complaint, § 6.09.

19.07[5] Standing for Declaratory and Injunctive Relief. As a predicate to declaratory and injunctive relief, a plaintiff must demonstrate:

- Having suffered or having been threatened with a "concrete and particularized" legal harm [Lujan v. Defenders of Wildlife (1992) 504 US 555, 560, 112 S Ct 2130, 119 L Ed2d 351 ; see also Bird v. Lewis & Clark Coll. (9th Cir 2002) 303 F3d 1015, 1019 , cert. denied, 538 US 923 (2003)]; and

- A sufficient likelihood that it will again be wronged in a similar way [City of Los Angeles v. Lyons (1983) 461 US 95, 111, 103 S Ct 1660, 75 L Ed2d 675 ; see also Bird v. Lewis & Clark Coll. (9th Cir 2002) 303 F3d 1015, 1019 , cert. denied, 538 US 923 (2003)].

Example:

In a former student's ADA discrimination suit [see 42 USC § 12181 et seq.] against her college, the plaintiff had standing to seek an injunction preventing the college from releasing her grades for the semester during which she allegedly suffered discrimination. But she lacked standing for a declaration that the college had discriminated against her, or for an order requiring the college to change the challenged program to prevent future discrimination against others. Because she had graduated, the plaintiff could not demonstrate a real or immediate threat that the college would again subject her to discrimination [see Bird v. Lewis & Clark Coll. (9th Cir 2002) 303 F3d 1015, 1019-1021 , cert. denied, 538 US 923 (2003) (also affirming denial of injunction because college made sufficient accommodations under ADA)].

19.07[6] Court Must Balance Hardships. In determining whether to grant injunctive relief, the court will balance the hardship faced by the applicant resulting from the conduct sought to be enjoined, against the hardship the defendant would suffer if the relief were granted. Essentially, the court will grant the injunction if the hardship experienced by the applicant exceeds the hardship that would be experienced by the defendant [see Honig v. Doe (1988) 484 US 305, 328 n10, 108 S Ct 592, 98 L Ed2d 686 (district court properly balanced disabled student's interest in free, appropriate public education against school officials' interest in maintaining a safe learning environment for all students); Wildwest Inst. v. Bull (9th Cir 2006) 472 F3d 587, 592 (possibility of severe wildfire and loss of human life balanced against cutting of alleged "old growth" trees)].

19.07[7] Plaintiff Must Show Actual Success on Merits and Likelihood of Irreparable Harm. The standards for permanent and preliminary injunctions are essentially the same, except that a permanent injunction requires actual (rather than likely) success on the merits. A party able to show actual success on the merits and the likelihood of irreparable harm is entitled to a permanent injunction [Brown v. California Dep't of Transp. (ND Cal 2003) 260 F Supp2d 959, 967-968].

Example--Permanent Injunction Granted:

The California Department of Transportation (CalTrans) removed plaintiffs' anti-war signs from highway overpasses, but allowed American flags to remain tempo-rarily. Plaintiffs successfully sought a permanent injunction requiring CalTrans to enforce its permit requirements for banners on highways on a content-neutral basis, i.e., against persons who installed flags and persons who installed protest signs, alike. Plaintiffs demonstrated that the CalTrans policy violated their right to free expression under the First Amendment. The district court concluded that the loss of First Amendment freedoms, even for minimal periods of time, unquestionably constituted irreparable injury [Brown v. California Dep't of Transp. (ND Cal 2003) 260 F Supp2d 959, 968].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsElementsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsElementsBalance of HardshipCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsElementsIrreparable HarmCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsElementsLikelihood of SuccessCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPermanent Injunctions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
A. Seeking Provisional Relief

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.08

19.08 Seeking Preliminary Injunction.

19.08[1] Preliminary Injunction Is Provisional Remedy Preserving StatusQuo. A preliminary injunction is a provisional remedy issued to prevent the irreparable loss of rights before final disposition of the litigation [Qualcomm, Inc. v. Motorola, Inc. (SD Cal 1999) 185 FRD 285, 287-288]. The purpose of the preliminary injunction is the preservation of the parties' relative positions (the status quo) until decided by a full trial [see University of Texas v. Camenisch (1981) 451 US 390, 395, 101 S Ct 1830, 68 L Ed2d 175 ; E. & J. Gallo Winery v. Andina Licores S.A. (9th Cir 2006) 446 F3d 984, 990]] .

19.08[2] Preliminary Injunction Enjoins Allegedly Unlawful Conduct Pending Outcome of Case. In the case of the usual preliminary injunction, the plaintiff seeks to enjoin action that it claims is unlawful [see Grupo Mexicano de Desarrollo, S.A. v. Alliance Bond Fund, Inc. (1999) 527 US 308, 314, 119 S Ct 1961, 144 L Ed2d 319]. A preliminary injunction is appropriate to grant intermediate relief of the same character as that which may be granted finally [see Grupo Mexicano de Desarrollo, S.A. v. Alliance Bond Fund, Inc. (1999) 527 US 308, 326, 119 S Ct 1961, 144 L Ed2d 319].

19.08[3] Ninth Circuit Employs Two Alternative Tests to Determine Propriety of Preliminary Injunction.

19.08[3][a] Moving Party Must Satisfy Either Traditional or Alternative Test. To prevail on a motion for preliminary injunction, the moving party must satisfy one of two tests available in the Ninth Circuit: the traditional test, or the alternative test [see Save Our Sonoran, Inc. v. Flowers (9th Cir 2005) 408 F3d 1113, 1120].

19.08[3][b] Traditional Test Weighs Irreparable Injury, Probability of Success on Merits, Balance of Harm, and Public Interest. Under the traditional test for determination of a motion for preliminary injunction, the party must demonstrate [see Cal. Pharmacists Ass'n v. Maxwell-Jolly (9th Cir 2009) 563 F3d 847, 849 ; International Jensen, Inc. v. Metrosound USA Inc. (9th Cir 1993) 4 F3d 819, 822]:

- Irreparable injury if the relief is denied;

- Probability of success on the merits [see, e.g., Cal. Pharmacists Ass'n v. Maxwell-Jolly (9th Cir 2009) 563 F3d 847, 849 (hospitals had shown likelihood of success on the merits that legislative enactment that reduced reimbursement rates to various healthcare providers violated Medicaid Act)].

- The balance of potential harm favors the moving party; and

- The public interest favors the injunction [see, e.g., Earth Island Inst. v. Evans (ND Cal 2003) 256 F Supp2d 1064, 1068].

Strategic Point:

The predicted duration of a preliminary injunction may be a factor in determining its feasibility. The duration can impact the degree of irreparable injury projected by either side [see, e.g., Earth Island Inst. v. Evans (ND Cal 2003) 256 F Supp2d 1064, 1075 (preliminary injunction of a few months, barring use of "dolphin-safe" tuna product labels, absent adequate research of tuna-fishing practices, would prevent irreparable harm to dolphins, prevent public confusion and not tend to harm International Dolphin Conservation Program)].

19.08[3][c] Alternative Test Weighs Either Combination of Probable Success and Irreparable Injury, or Serious Questions About Merits and Balance of Hardships. Under the Ninth Circuit's alternative test for granting a preliminary injunction, the moving party can prevail by demonstrating either of the following [see Winter v. NRDC, Inc. (2008) ___ US ___, 129 S Ct 365, 172 L Ed2d 249, 261 ; El Pollo Loco, Inc. v. Hashim (9th Cir 2003) 316 F3d 1032, 1038 ; Kootenai Tribe of Idaho v. Veneman (9th Cir 2002) 313 F3d 1094, 1116]:

- A combination of probable success on the merits and the likelihood of irreparable injury if the relief is not granted; or

- The existence of serious questions going to the merits and that the balance of hardships tips sharply in its favor.

Warning:

A party seeking preliminary injunctive relief must establish that irreparable injury is likely in the absence of an injunction; a possibility of such injury is not sufficient [see Winter v. NRDC, Inc. (2008) ___ US ___, 129 S Ct 365, 172 L Ed2d 249, 261] .

Examples:

Medical beneficiaries, who would be forced to go without medical care, would likely suffer irreparable harm without a preliminary injunction prohibiting the California Department of Healthcare Services from implementing state legislation imposing a ten percent reduction in payments to providers under Medi-Cal [Indep. Living Ctr. of S. Cal., Inc. v. Maxwell-Jolly (9th Cir 2009) 572 F3d 644, 657-658] . Plaintiffs also demonstrated the likelihood of success on the merits under valid case law [Indep. Living Ctr. of S. Cal., Inc. v. Maxwell-Jolly (9th Cir 2009) 572 F3d 644, 658] .

Plaintiffs could not supplement their amended motion for a preliminary injunction with a claim they did not raise their complaint, because "logically speaking, they could not prevail on its merits at trial" [*Tri-Valley Cares v. United States DOE (ND Cal 2008) 2008 US Dist LEXIS 60509, at *12-13] .

19.08[3][d] Ninth Circuit Tests Represent a Continuum. Although the Ninth Circuit's alternative tests for the grant of a preliminary injunction may appear to be two distinct tests, there is actually only one test: a continuum in which the required showing of irreparable harm varies inversely with the probability of success [LGS Architects, Inc. v. Concordia Homes (9th Cir 2006) 434 F3d 1150, 1155 ; Save Our Sonoran, Inc. v. Flowers (9th Cir 2005) 408 F3d 1113, 1120]:

- Reasonable Likelihood of Success: If a plaintiff demonstrates a strong likelihood of success on the merits, then only a minimal showing of harm is needed to justify the preliminary injunction. The stronger the probability of success on the merits, plaintiffs have less of a burden to demonstrate irreparable harm [see Kootenai Tribe of Idaho v. Veneman (9th Cir 2002) 313 F3d 1094, 1124].

- Less Reasonable Likelihood of Success: If only a serious question of liability is presented, then the plaintiff must show that the balance of hardships tips decidedly in its favor to justify the injunction [see Kootenai Tribe of Idaho v. Veneman (9th Cir 2002) 313 F3d 1094, 1124]. Even if the balance tips sharply in favor of the moving party, however, it must be shown as an irreducible minimum that there is a fair chance of success on the merits [Levine v. Fair Political Practices Comm'n (ED Cal 2002) 222 F Supp2d 1182, 1186].

Distinguish--Different Test Applies to Anti-Suit Injunction:

When seeking a preliminary injunction to halt foreign proceedings, the plaintiff does not have to meet the usual test of a likelihood of success on the merits of the underlying claim. Instead, the plaintiff only need show that the factors specific to an anti-suit injunction weigh in its favor. If the parties and the issues involved are the same, the foreign litigation may be enjoined when it would frustrate a policy of the forum issuing the injunction [E. & J. Gallo Winery v. Andina Licores S.A. (9th Cir 2006) 446 F3d 984, 990-992].

Warning:

A district court may not issue a preliminary injunction based solely on the presence of difficult jurisdictional questions, without considering whether the party seeking the injunction has demonstrated a likelihood of success on the merits [Munaf v. Geren (2008) 553 US 674, 128 S Ct 2207, 171 L Ed2d 1, 16-17]. The presence of difficult jurisdictional questions says nothing about the likelihood of success on the merits, other than making that success more unlikely due to potential impediments to even reaching the merits [Munaf v. Geren (2008) 553 US 674, 128 S Ct 2207, 171 L Ed2d 1, 16-17].

19.08[3][e] Public Interest Is Accorded Considerable Deference. If the public interest is involved, the district court will examine whether it favors the plaintiff [see Sammartano v. First Judicial Dist. Court (9th Cir 2002) 303 F3d 959, 965 ; Westlands Water Dist. v. Natural Res. Def. Council (9th Cir 1994) 43 F3d 457, 459]. If a district court balances the hardships of the public interest against a private interest, the public interest generally receives greater weight [see Winter v. NRDC, Inc. (2008) ___ US ___, 129 S Ct 365, 172 L Ed2d 249, 263 (even if plaintiffs had shown irreparable injury to marine mammals from Navy's training exercises, any such injury was outweighed by public interest and Navy's interest in effective, realistic training of its sailors); FTC v. Affordable Media, LLC (9th Cir 1999) 179 F3d 1228, 1236 ; Optinrealbig.com, LLC v. Ironport Sys. (ND Cal 2004) 323 F Supp2d 1037, 1051-1052]. In a preliminary injunction analysis, the court will consider whether the public interest will be advanced by granting preliminary relief [Preminger v. Principi (9th Cir 2005) 422 F3d 815, 823 ; City of Los Angeles v. County of Kern (CD Cal 2006) 462 F Supp2d 1105, 1119-1121]; the court may see the public interest as a separate element deserving distinct attention, rather than merely taking the public interest into consideration when balancing hardships [see, e.g., City of Moses Lake v. United States (ED Wash 2005) 416 F Supp2d 1015, 1017-1018].

However, the Ninth Circuit expects lower courts to protect physical harm to an individual over monetary costs to government entities [see Harris v. Board of Supervisors (9th Cir 2004) 366 F3d 754, 766 ; Rosado v. Alameida (SD Cal 2004) 349 F Supp2d 1340, 1348-1349].

Strategic Point--Environmental Claims:

An equitable balancing analysis is not required when the defendant is willfully violating federal environmental laws or when the activity to be enjoined may endanger the public health [see United States v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. (7th Cir 1995) 38 F3d 862, 867-869 ; Oregon State Pub. Interest Research Group v. Pacific Coast Seafoods Co. (D Or 2005) 374 F Supp2d 902, 908].

19.08[3][f] Moving Party Has Burden of Proof. The moving party carries the burden of proof on each element of either of the Ninth Circuit's alternative tests [Levine v. Fair Political Practices Comm'n (ED Cal 2002) 222 F Supp2d 1182, 1186 ; Environmental Council of Sacramento v. Slater (ED Cal 2000) 184 F Supp2d 1016, 1027].

19.08[3][g] Colorable First Amendment Claim Establishes Irreparable Injury in Ninth Circuit. A serious First Amendment question compels a finding that the potential for irreparable injury exists, or that at the very least, the balance of hardships tips sharply in plaintiff's favor [Sammartano v. First Judicial Dist. Court (9th Cir 2002) 303 F3d 959, 973-974 ; see, e.g., Community House, Inc. v. City of Boise (9th Cir 2006) 468 F3d 1118, 1134 (district court should have enjoined publicly financed homeless shelter's practice of requiring residents to attend worship services to receive other services, because plaintiffs "demonstrated that the balance of hardships tips in their favor" by raising serious questions regarding Establishment Clause violation)]. "The loss of First Amendment freedoms, for even minimal periods of time, unquestionably constitutes irreparable injury" [Elrod v. Burns (1976) 427 US 347, 373, 96 S Ct 2673, 49 L Ed2d 547]. Financial burdens on speech, like outright bans, constitute irreparable injury [Jacobsen v. USPS (9th Cir 1987) 812 F2d 1151, 1153-1154].

19.08[3][h] Irreparable Harm Is No Longer Presumed in Trademark, Copyright, and Unfair Competition Cases Upon Sufficient Showing of Likelihood of Success. Previously, in trademark cases, the Ninth Circuit held that a plaintiff was entitled to a presumption of "irreparable injury ... from a showing of likelihood of success on the merits" [El Pollo Loco, Inc. v. Hashim (9th Cir 2003) 316 F3d 1032, 1038 ; GoTo.com, Inc. v. Walt Disney Co. (9th Cir. 2000) 202 F3d 1199, 1205 n. 4]. The same rule applied in copyright and unfair competition case [Perfect 10, Inc. v. Cybernet Ventures, Inc. (CD Cal 2002) 213 F Supp2d 1146, 1190-1191] . However, a plaintiff is no longer granted the presumption of irreparable harm on a showing of likelihood of success on the merits [Am. Trucking Ass'ns v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir 2009) 559 F3d 1046, 1052-1053 ; CytoSport, Inc. v. Vital Pharms., Inc. (ED Cal 2009) 617 F Supp2d 1051, 1065 (trademark infringement); *Volkswagen AG v. Verdier Microbus and Camper, Inc. (ND Cal 2009) 2009 US Dist LEXIS 33708, at *6-7 (trademark infringement)]. Instead, a plaintiff seeking a preliminary injunction in a trademark, copyright, or unfair compensation case must demonstrate that irreparable injury is "likely in the absence of an injunction" [Winter v. NRDC, Inc. (2008) ___ US ___, 129 S Ct 365, 172 L Ed2d 249, 261] . And in each case, the court must "balance the competing claims of injury and must consider the effect on each party of the granting or withholding of the requested relief" [Winter v. NRDC, Inc. (2008) ___US ___, 129 S Ct 365, 172 L Ed2d 249, 261 ; CytoSport, Inc. v. Vital Pharms., Inc. (ED Cal 2009) 617 F Supp2d 1051, 1065 ; *Volkswagen AG v. Verdier Microbus and Camper, Inc. (ND Cal 2009) 2009 US Dist LEXIS 33708, at *6-7] .

Cross Reference:

Tests to determine propriety of preliminary injunction, see § 19.08[3].

19.08[3][i] Modified Analysis Applies to Anti-Suit Injunctions. An anti-suit injunction allows a court to restrain a party subject to its jurisdiction from proceeding in a foreign court. The party seeking an anti-suit injunction need not meet the usual test of a likelihood of success on the merits of the underlying claim but need only demonstrate that the factors specific to an anti-suit injunction weigh in favor of granting the injunction. Foreign litigation may been joined when the foreign litigation would [E. & J. Gallo Winery v. Andina Licores S.A. (9th Cir 2006) 446 F3d 984, 989-991]:

- Frustrate a policy of the forum issuing the injunction;

- Be vexatious or oppressive;
- Threaten the issuing court's in rem or quasi in rem jurisdiction; or
- When the foreign proceedings prejudice other equitable considerations.

19.08[4] Notice to Adverse Party Required.

19.08[4][a] Preliminary Injunction Is Unavailable Without Notice to Adverse Party. No preliminary injunction will be issued without notice to the adverse party [Fed R Civ P 65(a)(1); FTC v. Enforma Natural Prods. (9th Cir 2004) 362 F3d 1204, 1217].

19.08[4][b] Party May Give Notice by Service of Complaint and Summons, Motion, Order to Show Cause, or Other Reasonable Means. Because Fed R Civ P 65 does not specify a required form of notice, the party giving notice, whether by service of complaint and summons, motion, order to show cause, or otherwise, should ensure that defendant be given a fair opportunity to oppose the application and to prepare for such an opportunity [see Granny Goose Foods, Inc. v. Brotherhood of Teamsters (1974) 415 US 423, 434 n7, 94 S Ct 1113, 39 L Ed2d 435 (order to show cause); see also Fed R Civ P 7(b) (motion and other papers)].

19.08[5] Other Papers May Be Submitted in Support of Motion. Papers in support of a motion for preliminary injunction may include the following:

- Discovery documents [see, e.g., Perfect 10, Inc. v. Cybernet Ventures, Inc. (CD Cal 2002) 213 F Supp2d 1146, 1153];
- Documentary exhibits attached to declarations [see, e.g., Perfect 10, Inc. v. Cybernet Ventures, Inc. (CD Cal 2002) 213 F Supp2d 1146, 1153-1154];
- Charts summarizing exhibits [see, e.g., Perfect 10, Inc. v. Cybernet Ventures, Inc. (CD Cal 2002) 213 F Supp2d 1146, 1155-1156].

Consider:

There is generally a reduced evidentiary standard in preliminary injunction motions [see Perfect 10, Inc. v. Cybernet Ventures, Inc. (CD Cal 2002) 213 F Supp2d 1146, 1154, n1, n2 (declaration sufficient to establish document's authenticity)].

19.08[6] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Notice of Motion When TRO Not Sought. In the Central District, if a TRO is not sought, an application for a preliminary injunction must be made by notice of motion and not by order to show cause [CD Cal Civ LR 65-1].

19.08[7] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Motion for Preliminary Injunction.

19.08[7][a] Notice of Motion. In the Eastern District, notice of motion for preliminary injunction is given in accordance with ED Cal Gen LR 144 (extending and shortening time) and ED Cal Civ LR 230 (civil motion calendar and procedure) [ED Cal Civ LR 231(d)(1)].

Cross Reference:

Motion requirements in the Eastern District, see Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, 26.07[2], 26.11[3][b], 26.16[5][b].

19.08[7][b] Accompanying Documents. In the Eastern District, all motions for preliminary injunction must be accompanied by the following [ED Cal Civ LR 231(d)(2)]:

- Briefs on all relevant legal issues to be presented by the motion;
- Affidavits in support of the motion, including affidavits on the question of irreparable injury; and
- A proposed order with provision for bond [see ED Cal Gen LR 151; ED Cal Civ LR 230].

19.08[7][c] Parties Must Provide Specified Information. In the Eastern District, all parties must inform the court in their briefs of the following [ED Cal Civ LR 231(d)(3)]:

- Whether they desire to present oral testimony at the hearing; and
- An estimate of the amount of time they anticipate will be required for the hearing.

The parties shall inform the court and all other parties immediately on learning of a change in the need for a preliminary injunction, the length of time the hearing will require, or other similar information [ED Cal Civ LR 231(d)(3)].

19.08[7][d] Requirements for Preliminary Injunction or Temporary Restraining Order in Actions Involving Real Property. In the Eastern District, a motion for a preliminary injunction or a temporary restraining order to limit picketing, restrain real property encroachments, or protect easements must depict by drawings, plot plans, photographs, or other appropriate means, or must describe in detail the premises involved, including, if applicable, the length and width of the frontage on a street or alley, the width of sidewalks, and the number, size, and location of entrances [ED Cal Civ LR 231(f)].

19.08[8] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements--Motion for Preliminary Injunction. In the Northern District, motions for preliminary injunctions unaccompanied by a temporary restraining order are governed by ND Cal Civ LR 7-2 (requirements for notice and supporting papers) [ND Cal Civ LR 65-2].

Cross Reference:

Motion procedures under ND Cal Civ LR 7-2, see Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, 26.07[3], 26.16[5][c].

19.08[9] Hearing on Motion for Preliminary Injunction Required Absent Waiver or Undisputed Facts. The entry or continuation of an injunction requires a hearing, except if the facts are not in dispute or if the adverse party has waived its right to a hearing [Charlton v. Estate of Charlton (9th Cir 1988) 841 F2d 988, 989 ; see, e.g., Barahona-Gomez v. Reno (9th Cir 1999) 167 F3d 1228, 1233 (hearing held), aff'd on rehearing, 236 F3d 1115 (9th Cir 2001)].

The refusal to hear oral testimony at a preliminary injunction hearing is not an abuse of discretion if the parties have a full opportunity to submit written testimony and to argue the matter [Stanley v. University of S. Cal. (9th Cir 1994) 13 F3d 1313, 1326 ; International Molders' & Allied Workers' Local Union v. Nelson (9th Cir 1986) 799 F2d 547, 555].

Consider:

To prevent irreparable harm, district courts have discretion to take into account otherwise inadmissible evidence when ruling on a motion for a preliminary injunction [Flynt Distrib. Co., Inc. v. Harvey (9th Cir 1984) 734 F2d 1389, 1394 ; Rosen Entm't Sys. v. Eiger Vision (CD Cal 2004) 343 F Supp2d 908, 912].

19.08[10] Court May Order Consolidation of Hearing With Trial on Merits. Before or after the commencement of the hearing of an application for a preliminary injunction, the court may order the trial of the action on the merits to be advanced and consolidated with the hearing of the application. Even if consolidation is not ordered, any evidence received on an application for a preliminary injunction that would be admissible in the trial on the merits becomes part of the record on the trial and need not be repeated at trial [Fed R Civ P 65(a)(2)].

Exception:

Fed R Civ P 65(a)(2) must be construed and applied in order to preserve the parties' rights to trial by jury [Fed R Civ P 65(a)(2)].

Cross Reference:

Detailed coverage of preliminary injunctions, see 13 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 65.20 -65.24 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsElementsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsElementsBalance of HardshipCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsElementsIrreparable HarmCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsElementsLikelihood of SuccessCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPreliminary & Temporary Injunctions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
A. Seeking Provisional Relief

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.09

19.09 Seeking Temporary Restraining Order.

19.09[1] Temporary Restraining Order (TRO) Granted to Preserve Status Quo. Under federal law, a TRO is appropriate only if irreparable harm appears imminent and preservation of the status quo is needed until the court can conduct a hearing to consider a preliminary injunction [see Granny Goose Foods, Inc. v. Brotherhood of Teamsters (1974) 415 US 423, 438-439, 94 S Ct 1113, 39 L Ed2d 435 ; Qualcomm, Inc. v. Motorola, Inc. (SD Cal 1999) 185 FRD 285, 287-288].

Distinguish--TRO and Preliminary Injunction:

A temporary restraining order is an extraordinary remedy that differs from a preliminary injunction in the following ways:

- A TRO may be issued ex parte on a showing of the need for immediate relief, while a preliminary injunction generally will not be issued without noticed motion [University of Hawaii Prof'l Assembly v. Cayetano (9th Cir 1999) 183 F3d 1096, 1107-1108];

- The court must fix the duration of an ex parte TRO, although after 14 days (absent extension for good cause shown or consent of affected party), it will automatically expire, while a preliminary injunction generally remains in effect until a final adjudication on the merits [see Fed R Civ P 65(b)]; and

- A TRO, unlike a preliminary injunction, is not appealable [Wilson v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 1998) 161 F3d 1185, 1187 (mandamus review only, no appeal as of right)].

19.09[2] Notice to Adverse Parties Generally Required. The party seeking a temporary restraining order generally must provide the adverse party with whatever notice of the application is feasible, given the emergency [see Fed R Civ P 65(b)(2)].

In the rare instances in which courts grant ex parte restraining orders, they limit them to preserving the status quo for so long as is necessary to hold a hearing, and no longer [Granny Goose Foods, Inc. v. Brotherhood of Teamsters (1974) 415 US 423, 439, 94 S Ct 1113, 39 L Ed2d 435 ; Adobe Sys., Inc. v. South Sun Prods., Inc. (SD Cal 1999) 187 FRD 636, 639].

19.09[3] Requirements for Temporary Restraining Order Granted Without Notice.

19.09[3][a] Specified Facts of Irreparable Injury and Attorney Certification of Any Efforts to Give Notice Are Required. A temporary restraining order may be granted without written or oral notice to the adverse party or that party's attorney only if [Fed R Civ P 65(b)(2); see also Fed R Civ P 11(b) (attorney certifies bona fides of all papers signed and submitted to court)]:

- It clearly appears from specific facts shown by affidavit or by the verified complaint that immediate and irreparable injury, loss, or damage will result to the applicant before the adverse party or that party's attorney can be heard in opposition; and

- The applicant's attorney certifies to the court in writing the efforts, if any, that have been made to give the notice and the reasons supporting the claim that notice should not be required.

Judge's Perspective:

Except in cases involving clearly irreparable harm if notice is given, the chances of procuring a TRO are diminished if the judge is not confident that the applicant has been diligent in providing adequate notice of the application.

19.09[3][b] Order Must Be Indorsed With Date and Hour of Issuance, and Filed Immediately. Every temporary restraining order granted without notice must state the date and hour of issuance [Fed R Civ P 65(b)(2)].

19.09[3][c] If Granted, Order Must Be Filed Immediately. Every temporary restraining order granted without notice must be filed promptly in the Clerk's office and entered of record [Fed R Civ P 65(b)(2)].

19.09[3][d] Order Must Define Injury and State Why It Is Granted Without Notice. Every temporary restraining order granted without notice must define the injury and state why it is irreparable, and why the order was granted without requiring a noticed motion [Fed R Civ P 65(b)(2)].

19.09[3][e] Order Expires After 14 or Fewer Days Unless Extended. By its own terms, every temporary restraining order granted without a noticed motion must expire in 14 or fewer days, as the court provides. But, for good cause shown, the court may extend the order for a similar period, unless the party against whom the order is directed consents that it may be extended for a longer period. The reasons for the extension must be entered of record [Fed R Civ P 65(b)(2)].

19.09[3][f] Motion for Preliminary Injunction Given Priority; Temporary Restraining Order Dissolved If Applicant Does Not Proceed With Motion. If a TRO is granted without a noticed motion, the hearing on a motion for a preliminary injunction should be set for the earliest possible time; it takes precedence over all matters except older matters of the same character. When the motion comes on for hearing, if the moving party does not proceed with the application for a preliminary injunction, the court will dissolve the temporary restraining order [Fed R Civ P 65(b)(3)].

19.09[3][g] Ex Parte Relief Subject to Intense Judicial Scrutiny. TRO applications sought ex parte require the court to serve as the absent party's advocate, triggering intense judicial scrutiny of a plaintiff's claims, the relief sought, and most importantly, its proffered justification for proceeding ex parte [see Adobe Sys., Inc. v. South Sun Prods., Inc. (SD Cal 1999) 187 FRD 636, 639].

Example:

In a software piracy case, the district court for the Southern District denied an ex parte application for a TRO to order defendant's computers searched for evidence of copyright infringement, holding that a bare assertion that defendant would dispose of evidence if given notice was an insufficient basis for the order; rather, plaintiffs need to show that defendants would disregard a direct court order and dispose of the evidence within the time it would take for a hearing [Adobe Sys., Inc. v. South Sun Prods., Inc. (SD Cal 1999) 187 FRD 636, 641 ; see First Tech. Safety Sys., Inc. v. Depinet (6th Cir 1993) 11 F3d 641, 650].

19.09[3][h] Ex Parte Relief Disfavored Absent Compelling Reason. Ex parte injunctive relief under Fed R Civ P 65(b) is generally confined to two situations. First, a plaintiff may obtain ex parte relief by showing that it is impossible to give notice to the adverse party because the plaintiff does not know the party's identity or location [see First Tech. Safety Sys., Inc v. Depinet (6th Cir 1993) 11 F3d 641, 650 ; Adobe Sys., Inc. v. South Sun Prods., Inc. (SD Cal 1999) 187 FRD 636, 639].

Second, a plaintiff may obtain an ex parte restraining order by showing that proceeding ex parte is the sole method of preserving a state of affairs in which the court can provide effective final relief [see Adobe Sys., Inc. v. South Sun Prods., Inc. (SD Cal 1999) 187 FRD 636, 639-640].

Example:

Affirmative showing (beyond mere allegations) of imminent destruction of the disputed property, its removal beyond the confines of the state, or its sale to an innocent third party, supports the conclusion that giving the defendant notice of the application for an injunction could result in an inability to provide any relief at all [see Adobe Sys., Inc. v. South Sun Prods., Inc. (SD Cal 1999) 187 FRD 636, 639-640].

Cross Reference:

Ex parte TROs, see 13 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 65.32 -65.34 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

19.09[3][i] Respondent May Move for Dissolution or Modification on Two Days' or Shorter Notice; Motion Heard Expeditiously. On two days' notice to the party who obtained the temporary restraining order without notice, or on shorter court-prescribed notice, the adverse party may appear and move for the TRO's dissolution or modification. In that event, the court will proceed to hear and determine the motion as promptly as justice requires. [Fed R Civ P 65(b)(4)].

Cross Reference:

Modification and dissolution, see § 19.25 -19.27.

19.09[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Temporary Restraining Order. In the Central District, a party seeking a TRO must submit an application, a proposed TRO, and a proposed order to show cause why a preliminary injunction should not issue. If the TRO is granted, the hearing on the order to show cause will be set within 10 days after the entry of the TRO unless otherwise agreed by the parties. If the TRO is denied, the court may set the hearing on the order to show cause without regard to the 28 days' notice of motion requirement of CD Cal Civ LR 6-1 [CD Cal Civ LR 65-1].

Distinguish:

If a TRO is not sought, an application for a preliminary injunction is made by notice of motion and not by order to show cause [CD Cal Civ LR 65-1].

Cross Reference:

Notice of motion requirements under CD Cal Civ LR 6-1, see Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, 26.07[1], 26.23[2][a].

19.09[5] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Temporary Restraining Order.

19.09[5][a] Actual Notice or Effort to Provide Notice Required Except in Extraordinary Circumstances. In the Eastern District, except in the most extraordinary of circumstances, no temporary restraining order will be granted in the absence of actual notice to the affected party and/or counsel, by telephone or other means, or a sufficient showing of efforts made to provide notice. Appropriate notice would inform the affected party and/or counsel of the intention to seek a temporary restraining order, the date and time for hearing to be requested of the court, and the nature of the relief to be requested. Once a specific time and location has been set by the court, the moving party must promptly give additional notice of the time and location of the hearing [ED Cal Civ LR 231(a)].

19.09[5][b] Undue Delay of Application May Constitute Laches or Contradict Irreparable Injury Allegations. In the Eastern District, in considering a motion for a temporary restraining order, the court will consider whether the applicant could have sought relief by motion for preliminary injunction at an earlier date without the necessity for seeking last-minute relief by motion for temporary restraining order. Should the court find that the applicant unduly delayed in seeking injunctive relief, the court may conclude that the delay constitutes laches or contradicts the applicant's allegations of irreparable injury and may deny the motion solely on either ground [ED Cal Civ LR 231(b)].

19.09[5][c] Required Documents. In the Eastern District, no hearing on a temporary restraining order will normally be set unless the following documents are provided both to the court and, unless impossible under the circumstances, to the affected parties or their counsel [ED Cal Civ LR 231(c)]:

- A complaint;
- A motion for temporary restraining order;
- A brief on all relevant legal issues presented by the motion;
- An affidavit in support of the existence of an irreparable injury;
- An affidavit detailing the notice or efforts to effect notice to the affected parties or counsel or showing good cause why notice should not be given [see ED Cal Gen LR 142];
- A proposed temporary restraining order with a provision for a bond [see ED Cal Gen LR 151];
- A proposed order with blanks for fixing the time and date for hearing a motion for preliminary injunction, the date for the filing of responsive papers, the amount of the bond, if any, and the date and hour of issuance [see ED Cal Gen LR 137]; and
- When a temporary restraining order is requested ex parte, the proposed order must further notify the affected party of the right to apply to the court for modification or dissolution on two days notice or such shorter notice as the court may allow [Fed R Civ P 65(b)].

19.09[5][d] Requirements for Preliminary Injunction or Temporary Restraining Order in Actions Involving Real Property. In the Eastern District, a motion for a preliminary injunction or a temporary restraining order to limit picketing, restrain real property encroachments, or protect easements must depict by drawings, plot plans, photographs, or other appropriate means, or must describe in detail the premises involved, including, if applicable, the length and width of the frontage on a street or alley, the width of sidewalks, and the number, size, and location of entrances [ED Cal Civ LR 231(f)].

19.09[6] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements--Temporary Restraining Order.

19.09[6][a] Ex Parte Motion for Temporary Restraining Order. In the Northern District, an ex parte motion for a temporary restraining order must be accompanied by [ND Cal Civ LR 65-1(a); see ND Cal Civ LR 5-5(a)(2) (manner of service; time and methods for delivery of pleadings and papers)]:

- A copy of the complaint;
- A separate memorandum of points and authorities in support of the motion;
- The proposed temporary restraining order; and
- Such other documents in support of the motion which the party wishes the court to consider.

19.09[6][b] Notice to Opposition of Ex Parte Motion. In the Northern District, unless relieved by order of a judge for good cause shown, on or before the day of an ex parte motion for a temporary restraining order, counsel applying for the temporary restraining order must deliver notice of the motion to opposing counsel or party [ND Cal Civ LR 65-1(b); see ND Cal Civ LR 5-5(a)(2) (manner of service; time and methods for delivery of pleadings and papers)].

19.09[6][c] Order to Show Cause; Form of Temporary Restraining Order. In the Northern District, no temporary restraining order will be issued except with an order to show cause fixing the time for hearing a motion for a preliminary injunction, which must be scheduled pursuant to Fed R Civ P 65(b). Proposed orders submitted under this Rule must provide a place for the judge to fix the time within which the restraining order and all supporting pleadings and papers must be served on the adverse party of any opposing papers [ND Cal Civ LR 65-1(c)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of temporary restraining orders, see 13 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 65.30 -65.41 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsElementsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsElementsIrreparable HarmCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsTemporary Restraining Orders

11 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
A. Seeking Provisional Relief

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.10

19.10 Rules for Preliminary Injunction and Temporary Restraining Order Do Not Modify Certain Federal Statutes.

The rules set forth in Fed R Civ P 65 do not modify the following [Fed R Civ P 65(e)]:

- Any federal statute relating to temporary restraining orders and preliminary injunctions in actions affecting employer and employee;

- 28 USC § 2361, relating to preliminary injunctions in actions of interpleader or in the nature of interpleader; or

- 28 USC § 2284, relating to actions that must be heard and determined by a district court of three judges.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPreliminary & Temporary InjunctionsCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsTemporary Restraining OrdersGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
A. Seeking Provisional Relief

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.11

19.11 Security Is Required for Restraining Order or Preliminary Injunction.

19.11[1] Applicant Must Give Security for Restraining Order or Preliminary Injunction in Appropriate Sum. The main purpose of an injunction bond is to safeguard defendants from costs and damages incurred as a result of a preliminary injunction improvidently issued [Sionix Corp. v. Moorehead (SD Cal 2003) 299 F Supp2d 1082, 1086 ; Washington Capitols Basketball Club v. Barry (ND Cal 1969) 304 F Supp 1193, 1203 , aff'd, 419 F2d 472 (9th Cir 1969)].

Exception:
No such security is required of the United States or of any United States officer or agency [Fed R Civ P 65(c)].

Warning:
An order granting a TRO will be reversed if the court fails to require a bond, in contravention of Rule 65(c) [see Pioche Mines Consol., Inc. v. Dolman (9th Cir 1964) 333 F2d 257, 274].

Distinguish:
Rule 65(c) applies only to TROs or preliminary injunctions--not to permanent injunctions [see Fed R Civ P 65(c); G.C. & K.B. Invs., Inc. v. Wilson (9th Cir 2003) 326 F3d 1096, 1108 n8].

19.11[2] Court Has Discretion to Determine Amount of Security. District courts have wide discretion in setting the amount of a security bond [Save Our Sonoran, Inc. v. Flowers (9th Cir 2005) 408 F3d 1113, 1125-1126 ($50,000 bond for preliminary injunction suspending development during pendency of environmental litigation not abuse of discretion); Walczak v. EPL Prolong, Inc. (9th Cir 1999) 198 F3d 725, 733 (because court heard evidence and arguments of both parties, no abuse of discretion); see Barahona-Gomez v. Reno (9th Cir 1999) 167 F3d 1228, 1234 , reaff'd on rehearing, 236 F3d 1115 (9th Cir 2001) (requirement for "nominal bond of $1,000" in immigration case was within district court's discretion)]. The bond amount may be zero if there is no evidence that the party will suffer damages from the injunction [see Connecticut Gen. Life Ins. Co. v. New Images of Beverly Hills (9th Cir 2003) 321

F3d 878, 882]. The district court may dispense with the filing of a bond when it concludes that there is no realistic likelihood of harm to the defendant from enjoining his or her conduct [see Jorgensen v. Cassiday (9th Cir 2003) 320 F3d 906, 919].

Examples:

The court set a $1,000 bond for slate-mail organizations' application seeking a preliminary injunction to enjoin enforcement of California slate-mail statutes. The court noted, on the one hand, that the only likely expenses would be the costs of the suit, and on the other hand, that plaintiffs were business people with some means at their disposal [see Levine v. Fair Political Practices Comm'n (ED Cal 2002) 222 F Supp2d 1182, 1192].

In a patent infringement case, the district court found that the bond amount requested by plaintiffs, $50,000, was insufficient, and the amount sought by defendant, $10 million, was excessive and based on purely speculative figures. The court found that a bond of $500,000 was appropriate [see 3M Unitek Corp. v. Ormco Co. (CD Cal 2000) 96 F Supp2d 1042, 1052-1053].

Strategic Point--Defendant:

The defendant subject to an injunction should raise the issue of need for a bond and present supporting evidence to the district court. The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals has stated that the language of Fed R Civ P 65(c) does not absolve the party affected by the injunction from its obligation to present evidence that a bond is needed, so that the district court is afforded an opportunity to exercise its discretion in setting the amount of the bond [see Connecticut Gen. Life Ins. Co. v. New Images of Beverly Hills (9th Cir 2003) 321 F3d 878, 883 (district court did not abuse discretion by not reaching bond issue because party did not request bond or present evidence that bond was needed)].

19.11[3] Local Rules on Requirements for Bonds and Undertakings Must Be Consulted. The four California districts have detailed local requirements concerning bonds and undertakings. Consult the following rules:

- Central District: CD Cal Civ LR 65-2-65-10.
- Eastern District: ED Cal Gen LR 151.
- Northern District: ND Cal Civ LR 65.1-1.
- Southern District: SD Cal Civ LR 65.1.2.

19.11[4] Surety's Liability May Be Enforced on Motion. The surety's liability may be enforced on motion without the necessity of an independent action [Fed R Civ P 65.1].

Alternatively, the liability may be enforced through an independent action initiated in state or federal courts [Bass v. First Pac. Networks, Inc. (9th Cir 2000) 219 F3d 1052, 1053].

Cross References:

Enforcement of surety's liability under Rule 65.1, see 19.114 -19.138.

Security for injunctions or restraining orders, see 13 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 65.50 -65.53 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesBondsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPreliminary & Temporary InjunctionsCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsTemporary Restraining OrdersGovernmentsFederal GovernmentClaims By & Against

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
A. Seeking Provisional Relief

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.12

19.12 Injunction Order.

19.12[1] Local Rules and Judges' Individual Rules Control. Proposed orders must comply with local rules and individual judges' rules. In some instances the moving party must submit a proposed order together with the motion [see, e.g., ED Cal Civ LR 231(c)]. In other instances, submission of the proposed order should follow the court's decision on the motion. Some other districts do not welcome, or may even prohibit, submission of proposed orders altogether.

19.12[2] Requirements for Order.

19.12[2][a] Order Must Be Specific, Describe Restrained Acts in Reasonable Detail, and Not Describe Acts by Reference. Every order granting an injunction and every restraining order must include the following [Fed R Civ P 65(d)(1); see Fortyune v. American Multi-Cinema, Inc. (9th Cir 2004) 364 F3d 1075, 1086 ; Federal Election Comm'n v. Furgatch (9th Cir 1989) 869 F2d 1256, 1262]:

- The reasons for its issuance; and

- Specific terms describing in reasonable detail, and not by reference to the complaint or other document, the act or acts sought to be restrained.

Those against whom an injunction is issued must receive fair and precisely drawn notice of what the injunction actually prohibits [Reno Air Racing Ass'n v. McCord (9th Cir 2006) 452 F3d 1126, 1132-1134]. The specificity requirement prohibits overbreadth; an overbroad injunction is an abuse of discretion [E. & J. Gallo Winery v. Gallo Cattle Co. (9th Cir 1992) 967 F2d 1280, 1297].

The district court need not, however, state how the injunction is to be enforced [see, e.g., Fortyune v. American Multi-Cinema, Inc. (9th Cir 2004) 364 F3d 1075, 1087].

19.12[2][b] Injunction May Not Be Impermissibly Vague. The requirement that an injunction be specific includes the requirement that it not be impermissibly vague [see Fed R Civ P 65(d)]. However, injunctions are not set aside under Rule 65(d) unless they are so vague that they have no reasonably specific meaning [A&M Records, Inc. v. Napster, Inc. (9th Cir 2002) 284 F3d 1091, 1097 ; E. & J. Gallo Winery v. Gallo Cattle Co. (9th Cir 1992) 967 F2d 1280, 1297 ; United States v. Holtzman (9th Cir 1985) 762 F2d 720, 726].

19.12[2][c] Ninth Circuit Does Not Strictly Preclude Incorporation of Other Documents If Notice of Prohibited Acts Is Adequate. The Ninth Circuit has not so strictly read Fed R Civ P 65(d) that it precludes any incorporation of extrinsic documents. Instead, it has interpreted the rationale behind the incorporation-by-reference language in Rule 65(d) as a safeguard to ensure adequate notice to defendants of the acts prohibited [Reno Air Racing Ass'n v. McCord (9th Cir 2006) 452 F3d 1126, 1132-1133].

19.12[3] Order Is Binding Only on Parties, Agents, and Other Specified Persons. Every order granting an injunction and every restraining order is binding only on the parties to the action, their officers, agents, servants, employees, and attorneys, and on those persons in active concert or participation with them who receive actual notice of the order by personal service or otherwise [Fed R Civ P 65(d)(2)].

Properly substituted parties are subject to the injunction [see Hilao v. Estate of Marcos (9th Cir 1996) 103 F3d 762, 766].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsGeneral OverviewGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

14 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
A. Seeking Provisional Relief

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.13

19.13 Rule 65 Applies to Copyright Impoundment Proceedings.

In a copyright infringement action, the court may order the impounding, on such terms as it may deem reasonable, of all copies or phonorecords claimed to have been made or used in violation of the copyright owner's exclusive rights, and of all articles by means of which the copies or phonorecords may be reproduced [17 USC § 503(a)].

Impoundment may be ordered on an ex parte basis under Fed R Civ P 65(b) if the applicant makes a strong showing of the reasons why notice is likely to defeat effective relief [see Fed R Civ P 65(f); Fed R Civ P 65, Committee Note of 2001].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsGeneral OverviewComputer & Internet LawCopyright ProtectionCivil Infringement ActionsRemediesInjunctive ReliefCopyright LawCivil Infringement ActionsRemediesWrits of SeizureCopyright LawCriminal OffensesCriminal InfringementRemedies

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
B. Opposing Injunctive Relief

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.14

19.14 CHECKLIST: Opposing Injunctive Relief.

☐ Determine whether the following defenses apply:

- ○ An adequate remedy is available at law.
- ○ An anti-injunction statute applies to the case.
- ○ Laches.
- ○ Unclean hands.
- ○ The injunction is vague, overbroad, or ambiguous.

☐ Attempt to reach a stipulation with the moving party regarding injunctive relief that will have a strong and immediate adverse economic impact.

☐ Provide evidence of financial or other costs that will result if relief is granted.

☐ Show harm to innocent third parties that might flow if relief is granted (e.g., job loss).

☐ Provide solid authority as to why the plaintiff's ultimate success on the merits is questionable.

☐ Determine an appropriate bond amount and if there are grounds to recover on the bond.

☐ If order to show cause has issued, review order to ascertain time for filing opposition papers.

☐ If motion procedure used, opposing papers are due within time limits generally applicable to motions.

Authority:
28 USC § 2283; Fed R Civ P 65

Discussion:
See §§ 19.16 -19.22

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureEquityAdequate Remedy at LawCivil ProcedureEquityReliefCivil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsAnti-Injunction ActsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsAffirmative DefensesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsGeneral Overview

16 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
B. Opposing Injunctive Relief

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.15

19.15 Options and Strategies for Opposing Injunctive Relief.

A defendant should not simply ignore the pendency of a suit seeking an injunction against it, even if the application for a TRO is denied. The defendant acts at its peril and subject to the power of the court to restore the status quo by means of a mandatory injunction [Porter v. Lee (1946) 328 US 246, 251, 66 S Ct 1096, 90 L Ed 1199]; Desert Citizens Against Pollution v. Bisson (9th Cir 2000) 231 F3d 1172, 1187 .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsMandatory InjunctionsCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsTemporary Restraining Orders

17 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
B. Opposing Injunctive Relief

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.16

19.16 Anti-Injunction Act Limits Power of Federal Court to Enjoin State Proceedings.

The Anti-Injunction Act prohibits a federal court from enjoining state court proceedings, except in the following circumstances [see 28 USC § 2283; see also Brother Records, Inc. v. Jardine (9th Cir 2005) 432 F3d 939, 942-944 ; Prudential Real Estate Affiliates, Inc. v. PPR Realty, Inc. (9th Cir 2000) 204 F3d 867, 878-879]:

- As expressly authorized by Act of Congress;
- When necessary in aid of the federal court's jurisdiction; and
- To protect or effectuate a federal court's judgment.

In general, the necessary-in-aid-of-jurisdiction exception applies to in rem proceedings in which the federal court has jurisdiction over the property and the state court proceedings might interfere with that jurisdiction. However, the exception does not authorize interference with parallel in personam state actions merely because the state courts might reach a conclusion before the district court does [Negrete v. Allianz Life Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2008) 523 F.3d 1091, 1101 (mere fact that state court's actions might have some effect on federal proceedings did not justify injunction)].

Whether an injunction may issue under the act is a question of law reviewed de novo [Prudential Real Estate Affiliates, Inc. v. PPR Realty, Inc. (9th Cir 2000) 204 F3d 867, 879]. An injunction issued under one of the limited exceptions to the act will be upheld on appeal only on "a strong and unequivocal showing" that injunctive relief is necessary [Sandpiper Village Condominium Ass'n, Inc. v. Louisiana-Pacific Corp. (9th Cir 2005) 428 F3d 831, 842].

Cross References:

Discussion of Anti-Injunction Act, see 13 Moore's Federal Practice, § 65.07[1]; 17A Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 121.02 -121.06 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsAnti-Injunction ActsAnti-Injunction Act

18 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
B. Opposing Injunctive Relief

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.17

19.17 Injunction Opposed on Ground of Adequate Remedy at Law.

Availability of an adequate remedy at law may be raised as a defense to an application for provisional or permanent injunctive relief [see Northern Cal. Power Agency v. Grace Geothermal Corp. (1984) 469 US 1306, 1306, 105 S Ct 459, 83 L Ed2d 388].

Judge's Perspective:

The best defense is to show why monetary damages are sufficient to provide full relief if the moving party prevails.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureEquityAdequate Remedy at LawCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsElementsIrreparable Harm

19 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
B. Opposing Injunctive Relief

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.18

19.18 District Court Lacks Jurisdiction to Enjoin Dissipation of Assets in Which Plaintiff Claims No Lien or Equitable Interest.

A district court lacks the power to enjoin the defendant's dissipation of assets in which the plaintiff claims no lien or equitable interest [Grupo Mexicano de Desarrollo, S.A. v. Alliance Bond Fund, Inc. (1999) 527 US 308, 330-333, 119 S Ct 1961, 144 L Ed2d 319 ; see also Dateline Exports, Inc. v. Basic Constr., Inc. (9th Cir 2002) 306 F3d 912, 913-914]. This rule is founded on the principle that before judgment (or its equivalent), an unsecured creditor has no rights at law or in equity in the property of its debtor [see Grupo Mexicano de Desarrollo, S.A. v. Alliance Bond Fund, Inc. (1999) 527 US 308, 330, 119 S Ct 1961, 144 L Ed2d 319].

Distinguish:

Cases involving bankruptcy and fraudulent conveyances, and cases in which equitable relief is sought, are exempt from the proscription against preliminary injunctions freezing assets [In re Focus Media, Inc. (9th Cir 2004) 387 F3d 1077, 1085 , cert. denied, 544 US 923 (2005)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPreliminary & Temporary Injunctions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
B. Opposing Injunctive Relief

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.19

19.19 Defense of Laches.

19.19[1] Defense of Laches Requires Proof of Lack of Diligence and Prejudice. The doctrine of laches is based on the maxim that equity aids the vigilant and not those who "slumber on their rights." The doctrine is defined as neglect to assert a right or claim which, taken together with lapse of time and other circumstances causing prejudice to the adverse party, operates as a bar in a court of equity [see Kansas v. Colorado (1995) 514 US 673, 687, 115 S Ct 1733, 131 L Ed2d 759 ; Beaty v. Selinger (9th Cir 2002) 306 F3d 914, 926-927].

The defense of laches requires proof of the following [Kansas v. Colorado (1995) 514 US 673, 687, 115 S Ct 1733, 131 L Ed2d 759 ; Beaty v. Selinger (9th Cir 2002) 306 F3d 914, 926-927]:

- Lack of diligence by the party against whom the defense is asserted; and
- Prejudice to the party asserting the defense.

19.19[2] Defense of Laches Is Available in Injunction Proceedings. The equitable defense of laches is available in injunction proceedings [see, e.g., GoTo.com, Inc. v. Walt Disney Co. (9th Cir 2000) 202 F3d 1199, 1209 ; Ocean Garden, Inc. v. Marktrade Co. (9th Cir 1991) 953 F2d 500, 508].

19.19[3] Defense of Laches Available in Some Trademark Infringement Cases. The Ninth Circuit has allowed laches to bar trademark infringement cases, but has done so only when the trademark holder knowingly allowed the infringing mark to be used without objection for a lengthy period of time [see, e.g., GoTo.com, Inc. v. Walt Disney Co. (9th Cir 2000) 202 F3d 1199, 1209 ; Brookfield Communications, Inc. v. West Coast Entm't Corp. (9th Cir 1999) 174 F3d 1036, 1060-1061].

Factors that must be weighed to determine when laches bars relief include the following [Ocean Garden, Inc. v. Marktrade Co. (9th Cir 1991) 953 F2d 500, 508]:

- The strength and value of the trademark rights;

- Plaintiff's diligence in enforcing its mark;
- The harm to plaintiff if relief is denied;
- Competition between plaintiff and defendant; and
- The harm suffered by defendant because of plaintiff's delay.

Example--Laches Defense Inapplicable:

In a copyright and trademark infringement case, the court found that the plaintiff had sufficient reasons for the nine months' delay between the service of the complaint and filing of the motion, including the plaintiff's need for discovery and the defendant's "stonewalling" [see Perfect 10, Inc. v. Cybernet Ventures, Inc. (CD Cal 2002) 213 F Supp2d 1146, 1190].

19.19[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Undue Delay of Application May Constitute Laches or Contradict Irreparable Injury Allegations. In the Eastern District, in considering a motion for a temporary restraining order, the court will consider whether the applicant could have sought relief by motion for preliminary injunction at an earlier date without the necessity for seeking last-minute relief by motion for temporary restraining order. Should the court find that the applicant unduly delayed in seeking injunctive relief, the court may conclude that the delay constitutes laches or contradicts the applicant's allegations of irreparable injury and may deny the motion solely on either ground [ED Cal Civ LR 231(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureEquityMaximsVigilance PrincipleCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsGeneral OverviewCopyright LawCivil Infringement ActionsDefensesStatutes of Limitations & LachesGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & InterpretationTrademark LawInfringement ActionsDefensesLaches

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
B. Opposing Injunctive Relief

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.20

19.20 Defense of Unclean Hands.

The equitable defense of unclean hands applies to injunction proceedings [see, e.g., GoTo.com, Inc. v. Walt Disney Co. (9th Cir 2000) 202 F3d 1199, 1209-1210]. The unclean hands doctrine may apply when the alleged misconduct occurs in a transaction directly related to the matter before the court and the conduct affects the equitable relationship between the litigants [Perfect 10 Inc. v. Cybernet Ventures, Inc. (CD Cal 2002) 213 F Supp2d 1146, 1189].

Another application of the unclean hands doctrine is to withhold an equitable remedy that would encourage illegal activity [First Global Communications, Inc. v. Bond (WD Wash 2006) 413 F Supp2d 1150, 1155-1156].

Example:

The operator of the website www.worldsexguide.org sued another website operator for, among other things, trademark infringement and cybersquatting. The district court denied the plaintiff's motion for a preliminary injunction based on the unclean hands doctrine. The court concluded that the issuance of a preliminary injunction would have the effect of encouraging illegal prostitution and would serve an unconscionable purpose [First Global Communications, Inc. v. Bond (WD Wash 2006) 413 F Supp2d 1150, 1156].

If the relative culpabilities of the parties is unclear, the court may decide that the issue of unclean hands is insufficient to justify denying injunctive relief, and better left to trial [see, e.g., Perfect 10 Inc. v. Cybernet Ventures, Inc. (CD Cal 2002) 213 F Supp2d 1146, 1189-1190].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureEquityMaximsClean Hands PrincipleCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsGeneral OverviewComputer & Internet LawCopyright ProtectionCivil Infringement ActionsDefensesGeneral OverviewTrademark LawInfringement ActionsDefensesGeneral Overview

22 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
B. Opposing Injunctive Relief

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.21

19.21 Raising Objections to Motion for Preliminary Injunction.

A defendant may oppose a motion for preliminary injunction by raising any applicable objections, including evidentiary objections [see, e.g., Perfect 10, Inc. v. Cybernet Ventures, Inc. (CD Cal 2002) 213 F Supp2d 1146, 1153-1156].

Drawback:

Note, however, that there is generally a reduced evidentiary standard in preliminary injunction motions [see Perfect 10, Inc. v. Cybernet Ventures, Inc. (CD Cal 2002) 213 F Supp2d 1146, 1154, n1, n2].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsGeneral OverviewEvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsRule Application & Interpretation

23 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
B. Opposing Injunctive Relief

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.22

19.22 Terms of Injunction May Be Challenged on Grounds of Overbreadth and Vagueness.

Grounds for challenging the terms of an injunction include:

- Overbreadth [see, e.g., E. & J. Gallo Winery v. Gallo Cattle Co. (9th Cir 1992) 967 F2d 1280, 1297-1298 (court found some terms of a permanent injunction overbroad and modified it accordingly)].

- Vagueness [see, e.g., Federal Election Comm'n v. Furgatch (9th Cir 1989) 869 F2d 1256, 1263-1264 (court remanded case for the district court to specify precise conduct prohibited by injunction)].

Consider:

Courts will be especially attuned to correct injunctions running afoul of First Amendment guarantees [see, e.g., E. & J. Gallo Winery v. Gallo Cattle Co. (9th Cir 1992) 967 F2d 1280, 1297 (discussing First Amendment issue but deciding against defendant)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsElementsGeneral OverviewConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental FreedomsJudicial & Legislative RestraintsPrior Restraint

24 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
B. Opposing Injunctive Relief

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.23

19.23 Cessation of Conduct Does Not Moot Case.

Mere voluntary cessation of allegedly illegal conduct does not moot a case. If it did, the courts would be compelled to leave the defendant "free to return to his old ways" [see FTC v. Affordable Media, LLC (9th Cir 1999) 179 F3d 1228, 1238 , citing United States v. W.T. Grant Co. (1953) 345 US 629, 632, 73 S Ct 894, 97 L Ed 1303].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJusticiabilityMootnessGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJusticiabilityMootnessVoluntary Cessation ExceptionCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsGeneral Overview

25 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
B. Opposing Injunctive Relief

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.24

19.24 Recovery on Bond for Wrongful Restraint or Enjoinment.

A party wrongfully restrained or enjoined may seek recovery on the bond posted under Fed R Civ P 65(c) [see Fed R Civ P 65(c), 65.1].

Cross Reference:

Recovery on bond under Rule 65.1, see § 19.114 -19.138. Form of notice of motion and motion for damages for wrongful injunction, see § 19.163.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesLiabilityCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
C. Dissolving or Modifying Temporary Restraining Order or Preliminary Injunction

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.25

19.25 Motion for Dissolution or Modification of Temporary Restraining Order.

19.25[1] Respondent May Move for Dissolution or Modification on Two Days' or Shorter Notice. On two days' notice to the party who obtained the temporary restraining order without notice, or on shorter court-prescribed notice, the adverse party may appear and move for dissolution or modification [Fed R Civ P 65(b)(4)].

Cross Reference:

For general motion procedure, see Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see §§ 26.12 -26.36.

19.25[2] Motion Is Heard Expeditiously. When a party moves for dissolution or modification of a temporary restraining order, the court will proceed to hear and determine the motion as promptly as justice requires [Fed R Civ P 65(b)(4)].

19.25[3] At Time of Hearing on Motion to Dissolve TRO, Parties May Be Able to Present Evidence and Legal Arguments Re Preliminary Injunction. Situations may arise in which the parties, at the time of the hearing on the motion to dissolve the restraining order, find themselves in a position to present their evidence and legal arguments for or against a preliminary injunction. In such circumstances, the court can proceed with the hearing as if it were a hearing on an application for a preliminary injunction. At the hearing, as in any other hearing in which a preliminary injunction is sought, the party seeking the injunction bears the burden of demonstrating the various factors justifying preliminary injunctive relief, such as the likelihood of irreparable injury to it if an injunction is denied and its likelihood of success on the merits [see Granny Goose Foods, Inc. v. Brotherhood of Teamsters (1974) 415 US 423, 441, 94 S Ct 1113, 39 L Ed2d 435].

Drawback:

If one of the parties is not prepared or does not intend at the hearing on the motion to dissolve or modify the temporary restraining order to present evidence and arguments for or against a preliminary injunction, an early hearing might harm its position. In such circumstances, the appropriate procedure would be for the district court to deal with the issues raised in the motion to dissolve or modify the restraining order, but to postpone for a later hearing, still within the time limitations of Fed R Civ P 65(b)

, the application for a preliminary injunction [see Granny Goose Foods, Inc. v. Brotherhood of Teamsters (1974) 415 US 423, 441, 94 S Ct 1113, 39 L Ed2d 435].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeTime LimitationsCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Alter & AmendCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPreliminary & Temporary InjunctionsCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsTemporary Restraining Orders

27 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
C. Dissolving or Modifying Temporary Restraining Order or Preliminary Injunction

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.26

19.26 LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal--Modification or Dissolution of Preliminary Injunction or Temporary Restraining Order.

In the Eastern District, if a preliminary injunction or temporary restraining order has been issued, the affected party may apply to the court for modification or dissolution of the injunction or order. This motion must normally be accompanied by a brief on all relevant legal issues to be presented in its support and affidavits supporting modification or dissolution and detailing the notice to or efforts to notify the affected party or counsel [ED Cal Civ LR 231(e)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting MemorandaCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Alter & AmendCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPreliminary & Temporary InjunctionsCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsTemporary Restraining OrdersGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

28 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
C. Dissolving or Modifying Temporary Restraining Order or Preliminary Injunction

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.27

19.27 District Court Has Inherent Authority to Modify Preliminary Injunction in Consideration of New Facts.

A district court has inherent authority to modify a preliminary injunction in consideration of new facts [A&M Records, Inc. v. Napster, Inc. (9th Cir 2002) 284 F3d 1091, 1098-1099 (injunction modified pending appeal)].

Example:

In a copyright-infringement case involving the music industry, the district court first entered a preliminary injunction requiring the defendant Internet music-file-sharing service to implement a filtering system to block all of plaintiffs' (record companies and music producers) noticed copyrighted works. When the original filtering mechanism was unsuccessful, the court modified the preliminary injunction: (1) to require the defendant to remove any user file from their Internet system's file-sharing music index if it had reasonable knowledge that the file contained plaintiffs' copyrighted works; (2) to require the plaintiff record companies and music producers to give defendant notice of specific infringing files, and (3) to require defendant to continually search the index and block all files containing the particular noticed work. After monitoring defendant's compliance with the modified injunction and finding it wanting, the district court ordered defendant to disable its file-transferring service until certain conditions were met and steps taken to ensure maximum compliance, i.e., issued a shut-down order [see A&M Records, Inc. v. Napster, Inc. (9th Cir 2002) 284 F3d 1091, 1097-1098 (deciding cross-appeals of modified injunction, and defendant's appeal of shut-down order; affirming all district court orders)].

A motion to modify or dissolve a preliminary injunction may be brought at any time before entry of final judgment [Fed R Civ P 54(b); Credit Suisse First Boston Corp. v. Grunwald (9th Cir 2005) 400 F3d 1119, 1124].

Distinguish--Motion for Reconsideration:

A motion for reconsideration of a preliminary injunction must be filed within 28 days of entry of the order [Fed R Civ P 59(e); Credit Suisse First Boston Corp. v. Grunwald (9th Cir 2005) 400 F3d 1119, 1124 (decided under former Fed R Civ P 56)]. The substance of the motion governs whether a motion requesting the district court to reconsider a preliminary injunction order should be treated as a motion for reconsideration (which must be brought within 28 days) or a motion for dissolution or modification (which may be brought at any time). If the motion merely seeks to relitigate the issues underlying the original order, it is subject to the 28-day limit; if the motion is based on new circumstances arising after the injunction was granted, it may be filed at any time before entry of a final judgment [Credit Suisse First Boston Corp. v. Grunwald (9th Cir 2005) 400 F3d 1119, 1124 (decided under former Fed R Civ P 56)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeTime LimitationsCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Alter & AmendCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPreliminary & Temporary InjunctionsGovernmentsCourtsAuthority to Adjudicate

29 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
D. Enforcing Injunction

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.28

19.28 Court May Utilize Power of Contempt.

A court may enforce an injunction or temporary restraining order through civil or criminal contempt [see, e.g., Granny Goose Foods, Inc. v. Brotherhood of Teamsters (1974) 415 US 423, 440-445, 94 S Ct 1113, 39 L Ed2d 435 ; United States v. United Mine Workers (1947) 330 US 258, 293-294, 67 S Ct 677, 91 L Ed 884 ; see also Hilao v. Estate of Marcos (9th Cir 1996) 103 F3d 762, 766-767 (violation of permanent injunctions)]. Civil contempt is remedial in nature and designed to coerce obedience and to compensate the complainant for losses sustained. Criminal contempt is designed to vindicate the court's authority [see International Union, UMW v. Bagwell (1994) 512 US 821, 824-826, 114 S Ct 2552, 129 L Ed2d 642].

Example:

Defendants who engaged in a Ponzi scheme that defrauded investors and failed to comply with a TRO (later incorporated into a preliminary injunction) requiring them to repatriate funds that they had placed in an offshore trust, were properly charged with civil contempt, despite their assertions that they could no longer control the proceeds of the trust [see FTC v. Affordable Media, LLC (9th Cir 1999) 179 F3d 1228, 1239-1244].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsContemptCivil ProcedureSanctionsContemptCivil ContemptCivil ProcedureSanctionsContemptCriminal Contempt

30 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
D. Enforcing Injunction

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.29

19.29 Effect on Contempt Prosecution If Injunction Reversed.

A prosecution of civil contempt collapses if an injunction is reversed. A prosecution of criminal contempt is not affected by a reversal of the underlying order or by the mootness of the underlying action [see United States v. United Mine Workers (1947) 330 US 258, 294-295, 67 S Ct 677, 91 L Ed 884].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of contempt, see Ch. 35, Contempt.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsContemptCivil ProcedureSanctionsContemptCivil ContemptCivil ProcedureSanctionsContemptCriminal Contempt

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
E. Seeking Appellate Review of Order on Injunction or TRO

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.30

19.30 Appellate Court Reviews Grant or Denial of Permanent Injunction for Abuse of Discretion.

The Ninth Circuit will review a denial of a permanent injunction for an abuse of discretion. It will not reverse unless the district court failed to apply the correct law or rested its decision on a clearly erroneous finding of material fact [Bird v. Lewis & Clark Coll. (9th Cir 2002) 303 F3d 1015, 1020 , cert. denied, 538 US 923 (2003) ; Image Tech. Servs., Inc. v. Eastman Kodak Co. (9th Cir 1997) 125 F3d 1195, 1224].

The Ninth Circuit also reviews the grant of a permanent injunction for abuse of discretion [Union Pac. R.R. Co. v. Mower (9th Cir 2000) 219 F3d 1069, 1073 (reversing permanent injunction requiring former employee's continuing duty of confidentiality)].

The district court's ability to grant an injunction is reviewed de novo, but the district court's exercise of that power is reviewed for abuse of discretion [California v. Campbell (9th Cir 1998) 138 F3d 772, 776 , cert. denied, 525 US 822 (1998)]. A strong showing of abuse must be made to reverse a court's decision to grant an injunction [United States v. W. T. Grant Co. (1953) 345 US 629, 633, 73 S Ct 894, 97 L Ed 1303 ; United States v. Laerdal (9th Cir 1995) 73 F3d 852, 854].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPermanent InjunctionsCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewAbuse of DiscretionCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewDe Novo Review

32 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
E. Seeking Appellate Review of Order on Injunction or TRO

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.31

19.31 Interlocutory Orders Granting, Continuing, Modifying, Refusing or Dissolving Injunctions, or Refusing to Dissolve or Modify Injunctions Are Appealable.

Except as otherwise provided in 28 USC § 1292(c) and (d) and except when a direct review may be had in the Supreme Court, the courts of appeals have jurisdiction of appeals from interlocutory orders of the district courts granting, continuing, modifying, refusing or dissolving injunctions, or refusing to dissolve or modify injunctions [see 28 USC § 1292(a)(1); see also Prudential Real Estate Affiliates, Inc. v. PPR Realty, Inc. (9th Cir 2000) 204 F3d 867, 880 (denial of preliminary injunction is one of few kinds of appealable interlocutory orders, pursuant to 28 USC § 1292(a)(1))].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPreliminary & Temporary InjunctionsCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionInterlocutory Orders

33 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
E. Seeking Appellate Review of Order on Injunction or TRO

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.32

19.32 Substance of Motion Controls Its Disposition.

The substance of the motion, not its form, controls its disposition [Andersen v. United States (9th Cir 2002) 298 F3d 804, 807 , cert. denied, 538 US 977 (2003)]. If a motion couched in terms of a motion for preliminary injunction under Fed R Civ P 65 nevertheless seeks relief not encompassed by the rule, the court of appeal will reframe the motion and evaluate the appeal accordingly [see, e.g., Andersen v. United States (9th Cir 2002) 298 F3d 804, 807 , cert. denied, 538 US 977 (2003)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
E. Seeking Appellate Review of Order on Injunction or TRO

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.33

19.33 Review of Grant or Denial of Motion for Preliminary Injunction.

19.33[1] Grant or Denial of Motion for Preliminary Injunction Reviewed for Abuse of Discretion. The Ninth Circuit reviews the denial of a motion for preliminary injunction to determine whether the district court abused its discretion or based its decision on an erroneous legal standard or on clearly erroneous findings of fact [Bernhardt v. County of Los Angeles (9th Cir 2003) 339 F3d 920, 924 (reversing denial of preliminary injunction); Desert Citizens Against Pollution v. Bisson (9th Cir 2000) 231 F3d 1172, 1176 (reversing denial of preliminary injunction)].

19.33[2] When Preliminary Injunction Granted, Court of Appeals Determines Only Whether District Court Employed Appropriate Legal Standards and Correctly Interpreted Law. In reviewing the grant of a preliminary injunction, the Court of Appeals determines only whether the district court employed the appropriate legal standards that govern the issuance of a preliminary injunction, and whether the district court correctly apprehended the law with respect to the underlying issues in litigation. It does not, however, decide whether the application of the legal principles was or was not erroneous. Accordingly, whether or not the Court of Appeals would have arrived at a different result if it had applied the law to the facts of the case is irrelevant at this stage of the proceedings. In short, the court does not decide whether the result reached by the district judge was correct [Harris v. Board of Supervisors (9th Cir 2004) 366 F3d 754, 760 ; California Prolife Council Political Action Comm. v. Scully (9th Cir 1999) 164 F3d 1189, 1190].

Example:

Under the Administrative Procedure Act, regulations are presumed to be valid and review is deferential to the promulgating agency. A district court committed legal error by failing to abide by this deferential standard when it granted a preliminary injunction barring implementation of the agency's final rule allowing resumption of the importation of Canadian cattle into the United States despite the fact that two cases of Bovine Spongiform Encepthalopathy ("mad cow disease") had been found in Canada [Ranchers Cattlemen Action Legal Fund United Stockgrowers of Am. v. United States Dep't of Agric. (9th Cir 2005) 415 F3d 1078, 1093-1094].

19.33[3] Court Abuses Discretion When Ruling on Preliminary Injunction Is Based on Erroneous View of Law. A district court would necessarily abuse its discretion if it based its ruling on an erroneous view of the law. The Court of Appeals therefore reviews the legal issues underlying the preliminary injunction de novo [see, e.g., Brookfield Communications, Inc. v. West Coast Entm't Corp. (9th Cir 1999) 174 F3d 1036, 1046 ; Barahona-Gomez v. Reno (9th Cir 1999) 167 F3d 1228, 1234 ; FDIC v. Garner (9th Cir 1997) 125 F3d 1272, 1276].

19.33[4] District Court's Determination of Underlying State Law, or Choice of Law Is Reviewed de Novo. A district court's determination of the appropriate choice of law is reviewed de novo [Sims Snowboards, Inc. v. Kelly (9th Cir 1988) 863 F2d 643, 644].

19.33[5] Merger of Preliminary Injunction Into Permanent Injunction May Render Appeal Moot.

19.33[5][a] Appeal From Grant of Preliminary Injunction Is Generally Moot When Court Enters Permanent Injunction. Generally, an appeal from the grant of a preliminary injunction becomes moot when the trial court enters a permanent injunction, because the former merges into the latter. In those cases, appeals are usually dismissed [Grupo Mexicano de Desarrollo, S.A. v. Alliance Bond Fund, Inc. (1999) 527 US 308, 314, 119 S Ct 1961, 144 L Ed2d 319].

Usually, a plaintiff seeks a preliminary injunction against action that it claims is unlawful [Grupo Mexicano de Desarrollo, S.A. v. Alliance Bond Fund, Inc. (1999) 527 US 308, 314, 119 S Ct 1961, 144 L Ed2d 319]. If the lawsuit is ultimately meritorious, that is, if the plaintiff obtains a permanent injunction although the preliminary injunction was wrongly issued (because, e.g., at that stage of the litigation the plaintiff's prospects of winning were not sufficiently clear, or the plaintiff was not suffering irreparable injury) the issuance of the preliminary injunction would be harmless error. The final injunction establishes that the defendant should not have been engaging in the conduct that was enjoined. Hence, it is reasonable to regard the preliminary injunction as merging into the final one [Grupo Mexicano de Desarrollo, S.A. v. Alliance Bond Fund, Inc. (1999) 527 US 308, 314-315, 119 S Ct 1961, 144 L Ed2d 319].

19.33[5][b] If Trial Court Lacked Authority to Issue Preliminary Injunction, Appeal May Be Possible After Conversion to Permanent Injunction. If the trial court lacked authority to issue the preliminary injunction, it appears that the enjoined party may appeal the order granting the preliminary injunction even though the court has the authority to, and does later order, a permanent injunction to the same effect [Grupo Mexicano de Desarrollo, S.A. v. Alliance Bond Fund, Inc. (1999) 527 US 308, 313-317, 119 S Ct 1961, 144 L Ed2d 319].

Example:

Plaintiffs, unsecured creditors of defendants, brought a contract claim for money damages against defendants. The trial court issued a preliminary injunction requiring plaintiffs to post a $50,000 bond and preventing defendants from disposing of their assets pending adjudication of the contract claim. The trial court eventually entered summary judgment for plaintiffs and converted the preliminary injunction to a permanent injunction. The defendants appealed from the granting of the preliminary injunction, challenging the trial court's authority to freeze its assets before the judgment. The Second Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed, and the Supreme Court granted certiorari. Applying the equitable rule that an unsecured creditor has no pre-judgment rights in the property of his or her debtor, the Supreme Court held that the district court lacked authority to grant the preliminary injunction. The Court determined that the issue of the preliminary injunction's propriety was not mooted by the permanent injunction--the trial court had issued the preliminary injunction not to enjoin unlawful conduct, but rather to render unlawful conduct that would otherwise be permissible, in order to protect the court's judgment. Defendants' potential claim for relief against the injunction bond preserved jurisdiction over the appeal [Grupo Mexicano de Desarrollo, S.A. v. Alliance Bond Fund, Inc. (1999) 527 US 308, 313-317, 119 S Ct 1961, 144 L Ed2d 319].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPreliminary & Temporary InjunctionsCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewAbuse of DiscretionCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewClearly Erroneous ReviewCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewDe Novo ReviewCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewFact & Law Issues

35 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
E. Seeking Appellate Review of Order on Injunction or TRO

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.34

19.34 Extended TRO Granted Ex Parte May Be Appealable As Preliminary Injunction.

Although an order granting or denying a temporary restraining order is generally not appealable, if the court extends a temporary restraining order granted ex parte beyond 20 days from its entry date without the consent of the enjoined party, the TRO becomes a preliminary injunction, and is immediately appealable [Sampson v. Murray (1974) 415 US 61, 86-88, 94 S Ct 937, 39 L Ed2d 166 ; see Fed R Civ P 65(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPreliminary & Temporary InjunctionsCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsTemporary Restraining OrdersCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionInterlocutory Orders

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
E. Seeking Appellate Review of Order on Injunction or TRO

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.35

19.35 Effect of Appeal on Injunction Under Rule 62.

19.35[1] Interlocutory or Final Judgment in Injunction Action Not Stayed Pending Appeal. Unless otherwise ordered by the court, an interlocutory or final judgment in an action for an injunction is not stayed during the period after its entry and until an appeal is taken or during the pendency of an appeal. Fed R Civ P 62(c) governs the suspending, modifying, restoring, or granting of an injunction during the pendency of an appeal [Fed R Civ P 62(a)].

19.35[2] District Court May Suspend, Modify, Restore, or Grant Injunction Pending Appeal. Fed R Civ P 62(c) authorizes a district court to continue supervising compliance with the injunction [see A&M Records, Inc. v. Napster, Inc. (9th Cir 2002) 284 F3d 1091, 1099].

When an appeal is taken from an interlocutory or final judgment granting, dissolving, or denying an injunction, the court in its discretion may suspend, modify, restore, or grant an injunction during the pendency of the appeal on such terms as to bond or otherwise as it considers proper for the security of the adverse party's rights [Fed R Civ P 62(c); see A&M Records, Inc. v. Napster, Inc. (9th Cir 2002) 284 F3d 1091, 1098-1099 (modifying preliminary injunction during appeal to increase efficiency of methods by which defendant music-file-sharing service blocked plaintiffs' copyrighted materials)].

If the appealed-from judgment is rendered by a district court of three judges specially constituted pursuant to a United States statute, a Rule 62(c) order can only be made by [Fed R Civ P 62(c)]:

- The three-judge court sitting in open court; or
- The assent of all the judges of the court evidenced by their signatures to the order.

19.35[3] Court of Appeals May Suspend, Modify, Restore, or Grant Injunction Pending Appeal. Fed R Civ P 62 does not limit any power of an appellate court to [Fed R Civ P 62(g)].

- Stay proceedings during the pendency of an appeal.

- Suspend, modify, restore, or grant an injunction during the pendency of an appeal.

- Make any order appropriate to preserve the status quo or the effectiveness of the judgment subsequently to be entered.

Appellate courts often defer to trial courts on issues involving the "framing" of injunctions. Appellate courts will modify injunctions, however, when such action is necessary to assure that the relief will be effective [see Image Tech. Servs., Inc. v. Eastman Kodak Co. (9th Cir 1997) 125 F3d 1195, 1224-1226 (directing modifications to ten-year injunction in antitrust suit)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsStays Pending AppealsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Alter & AmendCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionLower Court JurisdictionGovernmentsCourtsAuthority to Adjudicate

37 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
II. PROVISIONAL RELIEF (PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS AND TROS)
E. Seeking Appellate Review of Order on Injunction or TRO

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.36

19.36 Amount of Security Bond Reviewed for Abuse of Discretion.

Fed R Civ P 65(c) grants district courts wide discretion in setting the amount of a security bond [Jorgensen v. Cassiday (9th Cir 2003) 320 F3d 906, 919 ; GoTo.com, Inc. v. Walt Disney Co. (9th Cir 2000) 202 F3d 1199, 1211 ; Walczak v. EPL Prolong, Inc. (9th Cir 1999) 198 F3d 725, 733]. A district court's decision as to the amount of a security bond is reviewed for an abuse of discretion [GoTo.com, Inc. v. Walt Disney Co. (9th Cir 2000) 202 F3d 1199, 1211 ; Walczak v. EPL Prolong, Inc. (9th Cir 1999) 198 F3d 725, 733 (repeatedly rejecting requests to increase bond dramatically)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesBondsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewAbuse of Discretion

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
A. Determining All Available Remedies

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.37

19.37 CHECKLIST: Determining Available Remedies.

☐ Determine whether California prejudgment remedy of writ of attachment or possession is available:

○ Has the complaint been filed?

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 64

Discussion:
See § 19.40

○ Does a federal statute govern seizure of property in the action?

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 64

Discussion:
See § 19.38

○ Have the parties agreed to arbitration under rules that authorize provisional relief?

Authority:
China Nat'l Metal Prods. Import/Export Co. v. Apex Digital, Inc. (CD Cal 2001) 155 F Supp2d 1174, 1182 ; Simula, Inc. v. Autoliv, Inc. (9th Cir 1999) 175 F3d 716, 726

Discussion:
See § 19.43

☐ Determine whether prerequisites for obtaining writ of attachment or writ of possession are satisfied.

Authority: Fed R Civ P 64; CCP § 481.010 et seq., CCP § 511.010 et seq.

Discussion: See §§ 19.45, 19.46 (writ of attachment); §§ 19.69- 19 .71 (writ of possession)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesAttachmentsCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevinsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsWrits of Attachment

39 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
A. Determining All Available Remedies

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.38

19.38 Prejudgment Remedies Are Those Available Under California Law.

Under Rule 64, the prejudgment remedies available to a creditor in federal district court are those prejudgment remedies available under the law of the forum state at the time the remedy is sought [Fed R Civ P 64]. This is true regardless of the basis for jurisdiction in federal court and regardless of whether the case was initiated in federal court or removed from state court [28 USC § 1450; see Granny Goose Foods, Inc. v. Brotherhood of Teamsters (1974) 415 US 423, 434-436, 94 S Ct 1113, 39 L Ed2d 435]. Key provisional remedies available in California are writs of attachment [see 19.44 -19.59] and writs of possession [see 19.60 -19.77].

Exception--Federal Statutes Dealing With Provisional Remedies:
If federal law governs the seizure of property in the particular action, federal law on provisional remedies applies [Fed R Civ P 64]. This generally involves property seized by the United States under any revenue law [see 28 USC § 2463], attached by the United States [see 28 USC § 2713], or owned by the United States [see 40 USC § 1313]. Property of nationally chartered banks [12 USC § 91], the Federal Reserve Bank [12 USC § 632], and the FDIC [12 USC § 1819] is also not subject to state-law provisional remedies.

Exception--Temporary Restraining Orders and Preliminary Injunctions:
Rule 65 governs temporary restraining orders and preliminary injunctions in federal district court [Fed R Civ P 65; see 19.03 -19.36].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesAttachmentsCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevinsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsWrits of Attachment

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
A. Determining All Available Remedies

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.39

19.39 Although State Law Determines Which Remedies Are Available, Federal Rules Govern Procedure.

19.39[1] Procedure for Prejudgment Remedy Generally Governed by Federal Law. Although the right to a prejudgment remedy is determined by state law, the procedure for obtaining the remedy is governed by the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure [Fed R Civ P 64].

Example:

When a federal district court issued a writ of garnishment as permitted by Florida law, the writ should have been served by the United States Marshal as provided by former Fed R Civ P 4(c) [now see Fed R Civ P 4.1(a)], and not by a Florida county sheriff as provided by the Florida Rules of Civil Procedure [United States v St. Paul Mercury Ins. Co. (5th Cir 1966) 361 F2d 838, 839].

19.39[2] Exception; State Law Supplies Procedure for Lis Pendens. Lis pendens is not a procedural remedy but a substantive right. State law governs how, when, and if a lis pendens is available and all procedures in connection with it [Frederick v. Baxter Arms Corp. (1941) 39 F Supp 609, 610].

Cross Reference:

California law on availability and procedure for lis pendens, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 21, Lis Pendens.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsErie DoctrineCivil ProcedureRemediesLis PendensGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
A. Determining All Available Remedies

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.40

19.40 Complaint Must Be Filed Before Seizure Is Available.

Before a prejudgment remedy is available in federal district court, the action must be "commenced" [Fed R Civ P 64]. Under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, an action commences on the filing of the complaint [Fed R Civ P 3]. Therefore, even if state law permits property to be seized before the complaint is filed, this is not the case in federal district court. However, once the complaint is filed, the prejudgment remedies are available regardless of whether the defendant has been personally served [see Carolina Power & Light Co. v. Uranex (ND Cal 1977) 451 F Supp 1044, 1048-1049 ; Hearst v. Hearst (ND Cal 1954) 15 FRD 258, 260].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of when action officially commences, see 1 Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 3, Commencing an Action (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesGeneral Overview

42 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
A. Determining All Available Remedies

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.41

19.41 When Action Is Removed, State Court Remedies Continue.

Because Rule 64 applies in federal court, it applies to actions removed from state court just as it applies to actions originally commenced in the federal district court [Fed R Civ P 64, 2007 Committee Note]. Any orders issued in the state court prior to removal, such as an order for attachment, continue in effect after removal [28 USC § 1450].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemovalPrior State Court OrdersCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
A. Determining All Available Remedies

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.42

19.42 Prejudgment Remedies Available Under California Law.

19.42[1] Writ of Attachment Is Available Under California Law. California law provides for a writ of attachment to have a lien recorded against real property or have the debtor's assets seized and held prior to judgment. Attachment is governed by Title 6.5 of the Code of Civil Procedure [see CCP §§ 481.010-493.060]. The security provided by attachment is intended to guarantee that the judgment will be collectible.

Cross Reference:

Availability of attachment, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 19, Attachment.

19.42[2] Writ of Possession Is Available Under California Law. "Claim and delivery" is a remedy by which a party with a superior right to a specific item of personal property, created, most commonly, by a contractual lien, may recover possession of that specific property before judgment [Simms v. NPCK Enters., Inc. (2003) 109 CA4th 233, 241, 134 CR2d 557]. Under California law, pre-judgment possession of personal property is obtained by a writ of possession. Writs of possession are governed by Chapter 2 of Title 7 of the Code of Civil Procedure [see CCP § 511.010 et seq.].

Cross Reference:

Availability of writs of possession, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, Ch. 20, Claim and Delivery.

19.42[3] Other Prejudgment Relief May Be Available Under California Law. Other prejudgment relief may be available under California law depending on the specific facts of the case. For example, under California law, a court of competent jurisdiction may temporarily enjoin a bank from honoring a letter of credit, or may grant similar relief, when the party seeking that relief claims that honoring the letter of credit would facilitate a material fraud by the beneficiary on it and certain other requirements are satisfied [see Com C § 5109(b)]. Therefore, this remedy is available under Fed R Civ P 64 [Hendricks v. Bank of Am., N.A. (9th Cir 2005) 398 F3d 1165, 1176-1177].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesAttachmentsCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevinsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsWrits of Attachment

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
A. Determining All Available Remedies

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.43

19.43 Agreement to Arbitrate That Provides Method and Forum for Provisional Relief Precludes Provisional Relief in District Court.

The district court must refrain from awarding provisional relief under Fed R Civ P 64 if the parties have agreed to abide by arbitration rules that provide a method and forum for obtaining provisional relief [China Nat'l Metal Prods. Import/Export Co. v. Apex Digital, Inc. (CD Cal 2001) 155 F Supp2d 1174, 1182 ; see Simula, Inc. v. Autoliv, Inc. (9th Cir 1999) 175 F3d 716, 726 (inappropriate for district court to grant preliminary injunction when agreed arbitrator had authority to do so)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
B. Obtaining a Writ of Attachment

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.44

19.44 CHECKLIST: Obtaining a Writ of Attachment.

☐ Determine whether California statutory requirements for obtaining writ of attachment can be satisfied:

- ○ Claim must be for money.
- ○ Claim must be based on contract, express or implied.
- ○ Amount of claim must be fixed or readily ascertainable and must be not less than $500.
- ○ Claim must not be secured by interest in real property.
- ○ Claim must be commercial.

Authority:
CCP §§ 481.190, 483.010(a)

Discussion:
See § 19.45

☐ Compute amount to be secured by attachment:

Authority:
CCP § 483.015

Discussion:
See § 19.47

☐ Identify property to be attached.

Authority:
CCP §§ 487.010, 487.020

Discussion:
See § 19.48

☐ Marshal affidavits and/or declarations to establish probable validity of claim.

Authority:
CCP §§ 484.030, 484.090(a)(2)

Discussion:
See § 19.45[2]

☐ Draft Application for Right to Attach Order containing:

○ Statement showing that the attachment is sought to secure the recovery on a claim on which an attachment may be issued.

○ Statement of the amount to be secured by the attachment.

○ Statement that the attachment is not sought for a purpose other than the recovery on the claim on which the attachment is based.

○ Statement that the applicant has no information or belief that the claim is discharged or stayed in a bankruptcy proceeding.

○ Description of the property to be attached and a statement that the plaintiff is informed and believes that such property is subject to attachment.

Authority:
CCP §§ 484.020-484.040

Discussion:
See § 19.49; Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, §§ 26.11, 26.12

Form:
See § 19.160

☐ Draft application for temporary protective order.

Authority:
CCP §§ 486.010-486.110

Discussion:
See § 19.51

Form: See § 19.160

☐ Draft notice of hearing on application for right to attach order that satisfies statutory requirements.

Authority:
CCP § 484.050

Discussion:
See § 19.50

☐ Serve papers on opposing party.

☐ Prepare order and writ of attachment.

Authority:
CCP §§ 484.090, 488.010

Discussion:
See § 19.53 -19.55

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesApplicationsCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesHearingsCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesNoticesCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesAttachmentsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsWrits of Attachment

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
B. Obtaining a Writ of Attachment

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.45

19.45 Options and Strategies for Plaintiff.

19.45[1] Determine Whether Attachment Is Available. California state law determines the circumstances and manner in which attachment is available in a federal action brought in a California district court [see Fed R Civ P 64]. California law controls with respect to, among other things, the type of claims warranting attachment, bond and affidavit requirements, property exempted from attachment, and the circumstances under which property may be released from attachment [Paul H. Aschkar & Co. v. Curtis (9th Cir 1963) 327 F2d 306, 310].

Under California law, a writ of attachment is available only when the claim is:

- For money in an amount that is fixed or readily ascertainable and for not less than $500 [CCP § 483.010(a)];
- Based on contract, express or implied [CCP § 483.010(a)];
- Not secured by real property, with limited exceptions [CCP § 483.010(b)]; and
- Commercial [CCP § 483.010(c)].

Cross Reference:

Statutory requirements for attachment, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, 19.04[1].

19.45[2] Determine Probable Validity of Claim. To obtain a writ of attachment, the plaintiff must establish the probable validity of its claim [CCP § 484.090(a)(2)]. A claim has "probable validity" when it is more likely than not that the plaintiff will obtain a judgment against the defendant on that claim [CCP § 481.190]. The application for the right to attach order must be supported by an affidavit (or declaration) showing that the plaintiff on the facts presented would be entitled to a judgment on the claim [CCP § 484.030].

Strategic Point--If Good Cause Is Shown, Additional Evidence May Be Presented at Hearing:

In deciding whether the plaintiff has established the probable validity of its claim, the court will consider all declarations and other papers in the record and, may on good cause shown, receive and consider additional oral and documentary evidence and additional points and authorities at the hearing on the motion [CCP § 484.090(d); see Homes & Land Publ'g, Ltd. v. ApartmentNet Corp. (SD Cal 2000) 100 F Supp2d 1248, 1252].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsErie DoctrineCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionExemptionsCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesApplicationsCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesAttachmentsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsWrits of Attachment

47 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
B. Obtaining a Writ of Attachment

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.46

19.46 Consider Use of Preliminary Injunction If Conditions for Attachment Cannot Be Met.

When the requirements for an attachment [see 19.45] cannot be met, consider seeking a preliminary injunction to achieve the desired result [see Fed R Civ P 65]. For example, the district court can require the freezing of a defendant's assets [see FTC v. H.N. Singer, Inc. (9th Cir 1982) 668 F2d 1107, 1112 ; Reebok Int'l, Ltd. v. Marnatech Enters., Inc. (9th Cir 1992) 970 F2d 552, 559], or require transferees in a fraudulent conveyance proceeding to deposit sums in the court registry [see Thomas, Head & Greisen Employees Trust v. Buster (9th Cir 1996) 95 F3d 1449, 1456-1457 (Alaska law)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of preliminary injunctions, see § 19.08.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesDeposits in CourtCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPreliminary & Temporary InjunctionsCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesAttachmentsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsWrits of Attachment

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
B. Obtaining a Writ of Attachment

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.47

19.47 Compute Amount to Be Secured by Attachment.

The amount to be secured by an attachment equals:

- The sum of the defendant's indebtedness claimed by the plaintiff and the amount allowed by the court for costs and attorney fees [CCP § 483.015(a); see CCP § 482.110 (allowance of estimated costs and attorney fees)].

- Reduced by the sum of [CCP § 483.015(b)]:

  - Any money judgment in favor of the defendant and against the plaintiff that remains unsatisfied and is enforceable.

  - Any indebtedness of the plaintiff that the defendant has claimed in a cross-complaint or in the answer filed in the action if the defendant's claim is one upon which an attachment could be issued.

  - The value of any security interest in the property of the defendant held by the plaintiff to secure the defendant's indebtedness claimed by the plaintiff, together with the amount by which the value of the security interest has decreased due to the act of the plaintiff or a prior holder of the security interest.

Exception--Unlawful Detainer Proceedings:
A different computation for the amount to be secured applies in unlawful detainer proceedings [see CCP §§ 483.015, 483.020].

Cross Reference:

Calculating amount to be secured by attachment, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, 19.04[2].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesAttachmentsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsWrits of AttachmentReal Property LawTitle QualityAdverse Claim ActionsUnlawful Detainer

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
B. Obtaining a Writ of Attachment

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.48

19.48 Identify Property Subject to Attachment.

19.48[1] California Law Exempts Specific Property From Attachment. Under California law, certain property is specifically exempted from attachment including "earnings" [see CCP § 706.011 ("earnings" defined)] and any property that is exempt from enforcement of a money judgment [CCP § 487.020; see CCP § 704.010 et seq. (property exempt from enforcement of money judgment)].

Cross Reference:

Specified exempt property, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, 19.04[3].

19.48[2] All Property of Corporation, Partnership, or Unincorporated Association, Which May Be Levied, Is Subject to Attachment. When the defendant is a corporation, partnership, or unincorporated association, all of its property for which a method of levy is provided [see CCP §§ 488.300-488.485 (levy)] may be attached [CCP § 487.010(a), (b)].

19.48[3] Only Specified Property of Natural Person Is Subject to Attachment. California law specifies the property interests of a natural person that are subject to attachment and further limits the attachment of community property [CCP § 487.010(c), (d)].

Cross References:

Property of natural person exempted from attachment, see § 19.62.

Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, see § 19.04[4][b], [c].

19.48[4] Special Rules Apply to Property Subject to Pending Action or Special Proceeding. Property that is the subject of a pending action or special proceeding is not subject to attachment unless it is [CCP § 488.475]:

- Real property;

- Growing crops, timber to be cut, or minerals or the like (including oil and gas) to be extracted or accounts receivable resulting from the sale thereof at the wellhead or minehead;

- Tangible personal property in the possession or under the control of the defendant or in the custody of a levying officer; or

- The interest of a defendant in personal property in the estate of a decedent, whether the interest arises by testate or intestate succession.

Cross Reference:

Attachment of property subject to pending action or special proceeding, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, § 19.04[4][e].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionExemptionsCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesAttachmentsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsWrits of Attachment

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
B. Obtaining a Writ of Attachment

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.49

19.49 Application for Right to Attach Order.

19.49[1] Application Must Be Executed Under Oath and Contain Specified Information. To obtain an attachment of defendant's property, plaintiff must apply for a right to attach order. The application must be executed under oath and include all of the following [CCP § 484.020]:

- A statement showing that the attachment is sought to secure the recovery on a claim on which an attachment may be issued.
- A statement of the amount to be secured by the attachment.
- A statement that the attachment is not sought for a purpose other than the recovery on the claim on which the attachment is based.
- A statement that the plaintiff has no information or belief that the claim is discharged or stayed in a bankruptcy proceeding.
- A description of the property to be attached under the writ of attachment and a statement that the plaintiff is informed and believes that such property is subject to attachment [see 19.48 (property subject to attachment)].

Cross Reference:

Requirements for application, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, § 19.05[2].

19.49[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Application Must Be Made to Magistrate Judge. In the Central District, an application for a writ of attachment must be made to a magistrate judge, unless otherwise ordered [CD Cal Civ LR 64-4].

Cross Reference:

Local Central District Attachment Forms, see § 19.165.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesApplicationsCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesAttachmentsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsWrits of AttachmentGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
B. Obtaining a Writ of Attachment

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.50

19.50 Writ of Attachment May Be Obtained Ex Parte Only on Showing of Great or Irreparable Injury.

To obtain a right to attach order or writ of attachment ex parte, the plaintiff must state facts by way of affidavit that it would suffer great or irreparable injury if issuance of the order were delayed until the matter could be heard on notice [see CCP § 485.010(a)].

Cross Reference:

Obtaining writ of attachment ex parte, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, § 19.09 -19.11.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesNoticesCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesAttachmentsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsWrits of Attachment

52 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
B. Obtaining a Writ of Attachment

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.51

19.51 Application for Temporary Protective Order to Preserve Status Quo May Be Filed With Application for Right to Attach Order.

A plaintiff applying for a right to attach order may simultaneously file an application for a temporary protective order to preserve the status quo prior to the hearing [CCP § 486.010(a)]. The application must state what relief is requested and be supported by an affidavit showing that the plaintiff would suffer great or irreparable injury if the temporary protective order were not issued [CCP § 486.010(a)]. On the filing of an undertaking, the court must issue the order, which states the amount to be secured by the attachment, if it finds that [CCP § 486.020]:

- The claim on which the application for attachment is based is one on which an attachment may be issued.
- The plaintiff has established the probable validity of the claim.
- The order is not sought for a purpose other than the recovery on the claim on which the application for the attachment is based.
- The plaintiff will suffer great or irreparable injury if the temporary protective order is not issued.

Cross Reference:

Obtaining temporary protective order, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, § 19.12.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsTemporary Restraining OrdersCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesApplicationsCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesAttachmentsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsWrits of Attachment

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
B. Obtaining a Writ of Attachment

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.52

19.52 Contents of Notice to Defendant.

19.52[1] Defendant Must Be Notified of Time and Place of Hearing and Right to Be Present. The notice of application for a right to attach order that must be given to the defendant must notify the defendant that a hearing will be held at a place and at a time, to be specified in the notice, on the plaintiff's application for a right to attach order and a writ of attachment [CCP § 484.050(a)]. The defendant must be notified that either the defendant or the defendant's attorney or both of them may be present at the hearing [CCP § 484.050(h)].

Cross Reference:

Detailed discussion of statutory notice requirements, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, § 19.05[4].

19.52[2] Defendant Must Be Notified of Conditions for Issuing Order. The defendant must be notified that the order will be issued if the court finds that [CCP § 484.050(b)]:

- The plaintiff's claim is probably valid and the other requirements for issuing the order are established;
- That the hearing is not for the purpose of determining whether the claim is actually valid; and
- That the determination of the actual validity of the claim will be made in subsequent proceedings and will not be affected by the decisions at the hearing on the application for the order.

19.52[3] Defendant Must Be Notified of Basis for Amount of Attachment. The defendant must be notified that the amount to be secured by the attachment is determined under CCP §§ 482.110, 483.010, 483.015, and 483.020, and those statutes must be summarized in the notice [CCP § 484.050(c)]. The defendant must also be notified that if the right to attach order is issued, a writ of attachment will be issued to attach the property described in the plaintiff's application unless the court determines that such property is exempt from attachment or that its value clearly exceeds the amount necessary to satisfy the amount to be secured by the attachment [CCP § 484.050(d)].

19.52[4] Defendant Must Be Notified of Right to Oppose Attachment and of Right to Claim Property As Exempt. The defendant must be notified that, to oppose the issuance of the order, the defendant must file with the court and serve on the plaintiff a notice of opposition and supporting affidavit not later than five court days before the date set for hearing [CCP § 484.050(e); see CCP § 484.060 (opposing the application)]. The defendant must also be notified of the necessity of either including a claim of exemption in the opposition papers or filing a separate claim of exemption and of the consequences of failing to do so [CCP § 484.050(f), (g); see CCP § 484.070 (claim of exemption)].

Cross Reference:

Opposing attachment, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, § 19.14 -19.22.

19.52[5] Notice Must Contain Prescribed Statement Concerning Advice of Counsel. The notice to the defendant must contain the following statement [CCP § 484.050(i)]: "You may seek the advice of an attorney as to any matter connected with the plaintiff's application. The attorney should be consulted promptly so that the attorney may assist you before the time set for hearing."

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesApplicationsCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesNoticesCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesAttachmentsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsWrits of Attachment

54 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
B. Obtaining a Writ of Attachment

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.53

19.53 Court Will Issue Right to Attach Order If Statutory Requirements Are Met.

If the court finds that the statutory requirements for attachment are satisfied [see 19.45], the court will issue the right to attach order which states the amount to be secured by the attachment [CCP § 484.090].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesAttachmentsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsWrits of Attachment

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
B. Obtaining a Writ of Attachment

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.54

19.54 Plaintiff Must Post Undertaking for Writ to Issue.

Before a writ of attachment will issue, the plaintiff must file an undertaking to pay the defendant any amount the defendant may recover for any wrongful attachment by the plaintiff in the action [CCP § 489.210]. Unless the court orders otherwise, the undertaking is in the amount of $10,000 [CCP § 489.220].

Cross Reference:

Approval of and objection to undertaking, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, § 19.13.

Strategic Point--Enforcing Liability on Bond:

The defendant may attempt to recover damages for a wrongful attachment [see CCP §§ 490.010-490.060] by a motion to enforce liability on the plaintiff's bond [CCP § 996.430(a)] made at the conclusion of the plaintiff's action; no independent action is necessary [CCP § 996.440(a)]. The motion must be made within one year of the conclusion of the action [CCP § 996.440(a)].

Cross Reference:

Motion for damages for wrongful attachment, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, § 19.22.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesAttachmentsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsWrits of Attachment

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
B. Obtaining a Writ of Attachment

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.55

19.55 Contents of Writ.

The writ of attachment must include the following information [CCP § 488.010]:

- The date of issuance of the writ.
- The title of the court that issued the writ and the cause and number of the action.
- The name and address of the plaintiff and the name and last known address of the defendant.
- The amount to be secured by the attachment.
- A description of the property to be levied upon to satisfy the attachment.

Cross Reference:

Form of writ of attachment, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide, California Pretrial Civil Procedure, § 19.52.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesAttachmentsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsWrits of Attachment

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
B. Obtaining a Writ of Attachment

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.56

19.56 Levying on Property by Service of Writ.

19.56[1] Serve Copies of Writ and Notice of Attachment on Defendant. The levying officer, the United States Marshal or other as appointed by the court, must serve the defendant with copies of the writ and a notice of attachment [see CCP §§ 488.060, 488.305].

Cross Reference:

Levy procedures, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, § 19.23 -19.31.

19.56[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Seizure of Property. In the Central District, all writs for the seizure of property under Rule 64 must be issued, attested, signed and sealed as required for other writs issued out of the court [CD Cal Civ LR 64-1]. The writ must only be directed to, executed and returned by the United States Marshal or by a state or local law enforcement officer authorized by state law or a private person specially appointed by the court for the purpose of the writ. Unless otherwise relieved by the court, an attorney for the plaintiff must be available to the seizing officer at the time of the seizure [CD Cal Civ LR 64-2].

Cross Reference:

Local Central District Attachment Forms, see § 19.165.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesAttachmentsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsWrits of AttachmentGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

58 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
B. Obtaining a Writ of Attachment

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.57

19.57 Levy Creates Attachment Lien That May Last for Maximum of Eight Years.

A levy on property under a writ of attachment creates an attachment lien on the property from the time of levy until the attachment expires [CCP § 488.500(a)]. Unless sooner released or discharged, the lien expires after three years from the date of issuance of the writ of attachment under which the levy was made [CCP § 488.510(a)]. Before the expiration of that three-year period, the plaintiff may obtain a one-year extension on motion and for good cause shown [CCP § 488.510(b)]. The maximum period of the lien, including any extensions, is eight years [CCP § 488.510(d)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesAttachmentsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsWrits of Attachment

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
B. Obtaining a Writ of Attachment

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.58

19.58 Additional Writs of Attachment Are Available Following Notice and Hearing.

The plaintiff may apply for additional writs by filing an application executed under oath that contains specified information. Notice to the defendant and a hearing are required [see CCP §§ 484.310-484.340].

Cross Reference:

Obtaining additional writs, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, § 19.08.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesApplicationsCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesHearingsCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesNoticesCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesAttachmentsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsWrits of Attachment

60 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
B. Obtaining a Writ of Attachment

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.59

19.59 Order Granting Prejudgment Writ of Attachment Is Not Appealable.

An order granting the issuance of a prejudgment writ of attachment is not an appealable collateral order [Perpetual Am. Bank, FSB v. Terrestrial Sys. (9th Cir 1987) 811 F2d 504, 505].

Cross References:

Discussion of appellate review of orders concerning provisional remedies, see 13 Moore's Federal Practice, § 64.19 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Discussion of the appealability of collateral orders, see 19 Moore's Federal Practice, § 202.07.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesAttachmentsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsWrits of AttachmentCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionCollateral Order Doctrine

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
C. Opposing a Writ of Attachment

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.60

19.60 CHECKLIST: Opposing a Writ of Attachment.

☐ Determine whether plaintiff has satisfied statutory requirements for obtaining writ of attachment.

Authority:
CCP §§ 481.190, 483.010(a)

Discussion:
See § 19.46, 19.61

☐ Determine whether plaintiff has attached or is seeking to attach exempt property.

Authority:
CCP §§ 487.010, 487.020

Discussion:
See § 19.48[1], 19.62

☐ Determine whether to substitute undertaking for attached property.

Authority:
CCP § 489.310

Discussion:
See § 19.65

☐ Draft and file notice of opposition if hearing is noticed.

Authority:
CCP §§ 484.060, 484.070

Discussion:
See § 19.63, 19.64

☐ Draft and file application to terminate writ of attachment if obtained ex parte.

Authority:
CCP § 485.240

Discussion:
See § 19.66

☐ Draft and file application for release of excess attachment.

Authority:
CCP § 488.720

Discussion:
See § 19.67

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionExemptionsCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesHearingsCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesNoticesCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesAttachmentsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsWrits of Attachment

62 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
C. Opposing a Writ of Attachment

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.61

19.61 Options and Strategy for Defendant Opposing Writ of Attachment.

It is the plaintiff's burden to show that the claim is one for which a writ of attachment is available. For a writ of attachment to issue, the claim must be for a fixed or readily ascertainable amount of money and must be based on a commercial contract [CCP § 483.010]. The plaintiff must also demonstrate that it is "more likely than not" that it will obtain a judgment against the defendant [CCP §§ 481.190, 484.090(a)(2)]. If the defendant can demonstrate that the plaintiff has failed to satisfy these requirements, the writ will not issue or a writ issued ex parte will be terminated. The defendant can also oppose the amount to be secured by the attachment, obtain the release of any exempt property that has been attached [see CCP § 487.020], or substitute an undertaking for the attached property [see CCP § 489.310].

Strategic Point--Defendant:

First determine if the party seeking the writ of attachment has met the procedural statutory requirements. Then determine whether any exemptions apply. Finally, focus on the merits, because the plaintiff must establish that it is more likely than not that it will obtain a judgment. If the plaintiff is seeking the writ of attachment ex parte, also focus on refuting the contention that the plaintiff could not have brought the application on proper notice.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionExemptionsCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesApplicationsCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesNoticesCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesAttachmentsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsWrits of Attachment

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
C. Opposing a Writ of Attachment

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.62

19.62 Specified Property Is Exempt From Attachment.

19.62[1] When Defendant Is an Entity, Property Subject to Levy Is Subject to Attachment. If the defendant is a corporation, partnership, or unincorporated association, all property for which a method of levy is provided is subject to attachment [CCP §§ 487.010(a), (b), 487.020; see CCP § 488.300 et seq. (levy)].

Cross Reference:

Property subject to attachment, see § 19.48.

19.62[2] When Defendant Is a Natural Person, Variety of Exemptions Apply. When the defendant is a natural person none of the following may be attached:

- Property exempt from enforcement of a money judgment [CCP §§ 487.020(a), 704.010 et seq.].

- Property that is necessary for the support of the defendant or the support of a member of the defendant's family who is supported in whole or in part by the defendant [CCP § 487.020(b)].

- The defendant's "earnings," which is the compensation payable by the defendant's employer to the defendant for personal services performed by the defendant as an employee, whether denominated as wages, salary, commission, bonus, or otherwise [CCP §§ 487.020(c), 706.011(a)]; this exemption applies to compensation due to a discharged employee [Barnhill v. Robert Saunders & Co. (1981) 125 CA3d 1, 6, 177 CR 803].

- An interest of the defendant in real property that is a leasehold estate with an unexpired term of less than one year [CCP § 487.010(c)(1)].

- Community property that would not be subject to enforcement of the judgment sought in the action [CCP § 487.010(d)].

- An account receivable or other intangible arising out of the conduct of the defendant's business with an individual value of less than $150 [CCP § 487.010(c)(2)].

- Money in an aggregate amount of up to $1,000 arising out of the conduct of defendant's business, located on the business premises or elsewhere [CCP § 487.010(c)(7)].

In the case of a defendant who is a natural person, the following types of property are specifically subject to attachment, unless otherwise exempt [CCP § 487.010(c)]:

- An interest in real property except leasehold estates as described above.

- Any accounts receivable and other intangibles arising out of the conduct by the defendant of a business with individual balances greater then $150.

- Equipment.

- Farm products.

- Inventory.

- Final money judgments arising out of the conduct of defendant's business.

- Any money over the exempt amount of $1,000 arising out of the conduct of defendant's business.

- Negotiable documents of title.

- Instruments.

- Securities.

- Minerals or the like (including oil and gas) to be extracted.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionExemptionsCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesAttachmentsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsWrits of Attachment

64 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
C. Opposing a Writ of Attachment

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.63

19.63 File and Serve Notice of Opposition and/or Claim of Exemption Along With Supporting Papers Not Later Than Five Court Days Before Hearing Date.

If a noticed hearing is be held on the plaintiff's application for a writ of attachment, any opposition and claim of exemption papers must be filed and served not later than five court days before the hearing date [CCP §§ 484.060(a), 484.070(e)]. The notice and/or claim must state the grounds on which opposition to the issuance or to the amount of the attachment, or the claim of exemption, is based and must be accompanied by an affidavit supporting any factual issues raised and by points and authorities supporting any legal issues raised [CCP §§ 484.060(a), 484.070(c), (d)]. A claim of exemption may be included in the opposition [CCP § 484.060(b)]. A claim of exemption must also describe the property claimed to be exempt and specify the statute section supporting the claim [CCP § 484.070(c)].

Cross Reference:

Form of notice, see 11 Bender's Federal Practice Forms, Form 64:50 (Matthew Bender).

Warning--Claim of Exemption for Personal Property May Be Lost If Not Timely Made:

If the defendant fails to timely claim an exemption for personal property that is described in the plaintiff's application for a writ, or claims an exemption but fails to prove entitlement to it, then that exemption may not be claimed later unless there is a change of circumstances [see CCP §§ 482.100, 484.070(a); see, e.g., Bank of Am. v. Salinas Nissan, Inc. (1989) 207 CA3d 260, 254 CR 748]. However, if the defendant's personal property has been levied on following the issuance of a writ of attachment ex parte, an exemption claim as to that property must be made within 30 days after the levy [CCP § 485.610(a)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionExemptionsCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesHearingsCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesNoticesCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesAttachmentsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsWrits of Attachment

65 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
C. Opposing a Writ of Attachment

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.64

19.64 Plaintiff May Oppose Claim of Exemption.

The plaintiff must file and serve any opposition to a claim of exemption, along with an affidavit supporting any factual issues raised and points and authorities supporting any legal issues raised, not less than two days before the date set for the hearing. If the plaintiff fails to timely file and serve a notice of opposition, no writ of attachment may issue as to the property claimed to be exempt. If the defendant claims an exemption for all the property described in the plaintiff's application, and the plaintiff does not oppose the claim of exemption, no writ of attachment may issue and any extant temporary protective order will immediately expire [CCP § 484.070(f)].

Cross References:

Obtaining temporary protective order, see § 19.51.

Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, see §§ 19.12, 19.15[4].

If the plaintiff does timely file and serve opposition to the claim of exemption, the burden is then on the defendant to prove that the subject property is exempt from attachment [CCP § 484.070(g)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionExemptionsCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsTemporary Restraining OrdersCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesAttachmentsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsWrits of Attachment

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
C. Opposing a Writ of Attachment

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.65

19.65 Undertaking May Be Substituted for Attached Property.

19.65[1] Application for Substitution of Undertaking Must Be Made by Noticed Motion. Once a writ of attachment has issued, the defendant may apply by noticed motion to substitute an undertaking in the stead of the attached property [CCP § 489.310(a)]. If the defendant seeks the release of only a part of the attached property, or if the amount of the undertaking to be given is less than the amount to be secured by the attachment, the application must include a statement, executed under oath, describing the property to be released or protected from attachment [CCP § 489.310(b)].

19.65[2] All Defendants With Interest in Attached Property Must Join in Application for Undertaking. When the action is against more than one defendant and all the defendants do not join in the application, the application must include a statement, executed under oath, describing the character of the defendant's title to the property and the manner in which the defendant acquired title and stating whether any other defendant who has not joined in the application has an interest in the property. When two or more defendants have an interest in the same property, a joint application and undertaking must be filed to secure the release of the property [CCP § 489.310(d)].

19.65[3] Order Will Issue If Undertaking Is Sufficient. The court must issue the order on the condition that a sufficient undertaking is filed; the undertaking must be equal to the lesser of the value of the property attached or prevented from being attached or the amount specified by the writ to be secured by the attachment [CCP § 489.310(c)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesBondsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesAttachmentsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsWrits of Attachment

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
C. Opposing a Writ of Attachment

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.66

19.66 Defendant May Apply by Noticed Motion to Quash Writ Granted Ex Parte.

When a writ of attachment has been granted ex parte, the defendant may apply by noticed motion for an order setting aside the right to attach order, quashing the writ of attachment, and releasing any levied-on property [CCP § 485.240(a)]. The notice of motion must state the grounds on which it is based and must be accompanied by an affidavit supporting any factual issues raised and points and authorities supporting any legal issues raised [CCP § 485.240(b)].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff's Lack of Great or Irreparable Injury Is Not Grounds for Setting Aside Order:

It is not grounds to set aside a right to attach order issued ex parte that the plaintiff would not have suffered great or irreparable injury if issuance of the order had been delayed until the matter could have been heard on notice [CCP § 485.240(b)].

Strategic Point--Although Defendant Is Moving Party, Plaintiff Has Burden of Proof:

Although the defendant is making the motion to quash the writ of attachment issued ex parte, the plaintiff still has the burden of proving that the claim is one on which an attachment may be issued and the probable validity of that claim [Loeb and Loeb v. Beverly Glen Music, Inc. (1985) 166 CA3d 1110, 1116, 212 CR 830].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesNoticesCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesAttachmentsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsWrits of Attachment

68 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
C. Opposing a Writ of Attachment

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.67

19.67 Defendant May Apply by Noticed Motion for Release of Excess Attachment.

The defendant may apply by noticed motion for an order releasing the attachment of property to the extent that the value of the defendant's interest in the property clearly exceeds the amount necessary to satisfy the amount to be secured by the attachment [CCP § 488.720(a)]. The notice of motion must state the grounds on which the motion is based and must be accompanied by an affidavit supporting any factual issues raised and points and authorities supporting any legal issues raised [CCP § 488.720(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesAttachmentsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsWrits of Attachment

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
D. Obtaining a Writ of Possession

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.68

19.68 CHECKLIST: Obtaining a Writ of Possession.

☐ Determine whether it is to plaintiff's advantage to seek writ of possession:

- ○ Is writ necessary to protect property from loss or damage?
- ○ Will possession by plaintiff encourage settlement?
- ○ Is it probable that plaintiff will prevail on the merits?
- ○ Is cost of obtaining writ, including attorney fees and undertaking, less than risk of damage or loss?

Authority:
CCP § 511.010 et seq.

Discussion:
See § 19.69, 19.74[1]

☐ Determine whether plaintiff can satisfy requirements for obtaining writ:

- ○ Can plaintiff identify specific property?

- Does plaintiff have reason to believe defendant is in possession of property?
- Does plaintiff know whereabouts of property?
- Can plaintiff show defendant's detention of property is wrongful?

Authority:
CCP § 512.010

Discussion:
See § 19.70, 19.71

☐ Determine whether to apply for writ by noticed motion or ex parte.

Authority:
CCP § 512.020

Discussion:
See § 19.72

☐ Draft application for writ and supporting documents including affidavits, notice of application and hearing, order for writ of possession, and writ of possession.

Authority:
CCP §§ 512.030, 512.040, 512.080

Discussion:
See § 19.73, 19.76

☐ Obtain and file undertaking, unless court waives undertaking requirement.

Authority:
CCP §§ 512.050, 512.060(a)(2), 515.010

Discussion:
See § 19.74[2]

☐ If writ issues, give writ to levying officer to execute.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesApplicationsCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesNoticesCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevinsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
D. Obtaining a Writ of Possession

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.69

19.69 Options and Strategies for Plaintiff.

19.69[1] California Law Determines Circumstances and Manner in Which Writ of Possession Is Available. Claim and delivery is the provisional remedy available to obtain possession of specific personal property before judgment [see Waffer Int'l Corp. v. Khorsandi (1999) 69 CA4th 1261, 1271, 82 CR2d 241]. The plaintiff may want pre-judgment possession of the property to protect it from loss or damage. Under Rule 64, California law determines the circumstances and manner in which a writ of possession is available so that California law controls with respect to, among other things, the type of claims warranting pre-judgment possession and the undertaking requirements [see Fed R Civ P 64].

Strategic Point:

For purposes of obtaining a writ of possession, the "plaintiff" is the person who files either a complaint or a cross-complaint [CCP § 511.080].

19.69[2] Plaintiff Must Show Probable Validity of Claim. Due to the reluctance of courts to change the position of the parties before judgment [see CC § 3524 ("Between those who are equally in the right, or equally in the wrong, the law does not interpose"), an application for a writ of possession will be subject to careful scrutiny. In addition to the other statutory requirements for obtaining the writ, the plaintiff must show the probable validity of its claim [CCP § 512.060(a)(1)].

Warning:

Obtaining a writ of possession for an improper purpose will support an abuse of process action [see, e.g., Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 C2d 210, 317 P2d 613].

A plaintiff who obtains a writ of possession and then is ultimately unsuccessful, must redeliver the property to the defendant and is liable for all damages sustained by the defendant that are proximately caused by the levy of the writ of possession, and the loss of possession of the property pursuant to levy of the writ of possession or in compliance with a turnover order [CCP § 512.120].

19.69[3] Personal Property Must Be Specific and Tangible. A writ of possession will issue for possession of specific personal property [see, e.g., Edwards v. Superior Court (1991) 230 CA3d 173, 178, 281 CR 30 (champion show dog)]. Money may not be obtained through a writ of possession, unless it is marked or designed so as to make it specific as regards identification [Hillyer v. Eggers (1917) 32 CA 764, 766, 164 P 27]. A writ of attachment is the appropriate provisional remedy when the plaintiff has a claim for money [Waffer Int'l Corp. v. Khorsandi (1999) 69 CA4th 1261, 1271, 82 CR2d 241]. Stock certificates may be the subject of a writ of possession [Englert v. IVAC Corp. (1979) 92 CA3d 178, 184, 154 CR 804].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevinsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsGeneral Overview

71 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
D. Obtaining a Writ of Possession

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.70

19.70 Plaintiff Must Apply for Writ of Possession.

19.70[1] Plaintiff Must File Application to Obtain Writ of Possession. The plaintiff must file an application, executed under oath, to obtain a writ of possession. The application can be filed with the complaint or at any time after the filing of the complaint [CCP § 512.010(a), (b)]. The requirements for the contents of the application [see 19.71] may be satisfied by one or more affidavits filed with the application [CCP § 512.010(c)].

Strategic Point--Injunctive Relief Is Also Available:

The plaintiff may apply for a temporary restraining order in addition to the writ of possession [see CCP §§ 513.010, 513.020, 516.020].

Cross Reference:

Applying for injunctive relief to protect plaintiff's property interest, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, § 20.19.

19.70[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Application Must Be Made to Magistrate Judge. In the Central District, an application for a writ of possession must be made to a magistrate judge, unless otherwise ordered [CD Cal Civ LR 64-4].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsTemporary Restraining OrdersCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesApplicationsCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevinsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsGeneral OverviewGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
D. Obtaining a Writ of Possession

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.71

19.71 Contents of Application for Writ of Possession.

19.71[1] Application Must Show Basis of Plaintiff's Claim and That Plaintiff Is Entitled to Possession. The application for a writ of possession must show the basis of the plaintiff's claim and that the plaintiff is entitled to possession of the property claimed. If the basis of the plaintiff's claim is a written instrument, a copy of that instrument must be attached to the application [CCP § 512.010(b)(1)].

19.71[2] Application Must Show Wrongful Detention of Property by Defendant. The application must show that the property is wrongfully detained by the defendant, the manner in which the defendant came into possession of the property, and, according to the best knowledge, information, and belief of the plaintiff, the reason for the defendant's detention of the property [CCP § 512.010(b)(1)].

19.71[3] Application Must Describe Property and Its Location. The application must particularly describe the property, including a statement of its value [CCP § 512.010(b)(3)]. In addition, the application must include, according to the best knowledge, information, and belief of the plaintiff, a statement of the location of the property. If the property, or some part of it, is within a private place that may have to be entered to take possession, the application must show that there is probable cause to believe that the property is located there [CCP § 512.010(b)(4)].

Strategic Point--Court Can Have Jurisdiction Over Defendant's Assets Without Personal Jurisdiction Over Defendant:

If personal jurisdiction over defendant cannot be effected under Fed R Civ P 4, a court may obtain jurisdiction over assets belonging to defendant if those assets are located within the court's jurisdiction [see Fed R Civ P 4(n)].

Cross Reference:

Establishing jurisdiction over property, see Ch. 2, Determining Forum (Jurisdiction and Venue), § 2.39.

19.71[4] Application Must State Property Has Not Been Taken Pursuant to Statute. The application must contain a statement that the property has not been taken for a tax, assessment, or fine, pursuant to a statute; or seized under an execution against the property of the plaintiff; or, if so seized, that it is by statute exempt from such seizure [CCP § 512.010(b)(4)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsIn Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesApplicationsCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevinsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
D. Obtaining a Writ of Possession

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.72

19.72 Writ of Possession May Be Obtained Ex Parte Only Under Limited Circumstances.

A hearing on noticed motion is necessary to obtain a writ of attachment unless probable cause appears that one of the following three conditions exists [CCP § 512.020(a)]:

- The defendant gained possession of the property by feloniously taking the property from the plaintiff; this does not apply when the defendant has fraudulently appropriated property entrusted to him or her or obtained possession by false or fraudulent representation or pretense or by embezzlement [CCP § 512.020(b)(1)].

- The property is a credit card [CCP § 512.020(b)(2)].

- The defendant acquired possession of the property in the ordinary course of trade or business for commercial purposes and the property is not necessary for the support of the defendant or his or her family; there is an immediate danger that the property will become unavailable to levy by reason of being transferred, concealed, or removed from the state or will become substantially impaired in value by acts of destruction or by failure to take care of the property in a reasonable manner; and the ex parte issuance of a writ of possession is necessary to protect the property [CCP § 512.020(b)(3)].

Cross References:

Obtaining writ of possession ex parte, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, 20.15; applying for order to quash writ obtained ex parte, see § 20.23.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesApplicationsCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesHearingsCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesNoticesCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevinsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
D. Obtaining a Writ of Possession

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.73

19.73 Before Hearing, Defendant Must Be Served With Application and Notice.

19.73[1] Documents That Must Be Served on Defendant Before Hearing. Before the hearing on the application, the defendant must be served with a copy of the summons and complaint, a Notice of Application and Hearing, and a copy of the application and any supporting affidavits [CCP § 512.030(a); see CCP § 512.030(b) (personal service on defendant who has not appeared in action)].

Cross References:

Preparing notice of application, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, § 20.09.

19.73[2] Contents of Notice to Defendant.

19.73[2][a] Defendant Must Be Notified of Time and Place of Hearing. The notice must inform the defendant that a hearing will be held at the place and time specified in the notice on the plaintiff's application for a writ of possession [CCP § 512.040(a)].

19.73[2][b] Defendant Must Be Notified of Conditions for Issuing Writ. The notice must inform the defendant that the writ will be issued if the court finds that the plaintiff's claim is probably valid and the other requirements for issuing the writ are established. The notice must inform the defendant that the hearing is not for the purpose of determining whether the claim is actually valid and the determination of the actual validity of the claim will be made in subsequent proceedings in the action and will not be affected by the decision at the hearing on the application for the writ [CCP § 512.040(b)].

19.73[2][c] Defendant Must Be Notified of Right to Oppose Issuance of Writ. The notice must inform the defendant that to oppose the issuance of the writ, he or she must file with the court either an affidavit providing evidence sufficient to defeat the plaintiff's right to issuance of the writ or an undertaking to stay the delivery of the property [CCP § 512.040(c); see CCP § 515.020 (undertaking by defendant)].

Consider:

The defendant can retain or regain possession of the property by filing an undertaking see [CCP § 515.020; § 19.84].

Cross References:

Filing a defendant's undertaking, see § 19.84; Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, § 20.25.

Opposing a writ of possession, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, §§ 20.20 -20.26.

19.73[2][d] Notice Must Contain Prescribed Statement Concerning Advice of Counsel. The notice to the defendant must contain the following statement: "If you believe the plaintiff may not be entitled to possession of the property claimed, you may wish to seek the advice of an attorney. Such attorney should be consulted promptly so that he may assist you before the time set for the hearing" [CCP § 512.040(d)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesApplicationsCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesHearingsCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesNoticesCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevinsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
D. Obtaining a Writ of Possession

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.74

19.74 Court Will Issue Writ If Plaintiff Establishes Probable Validity of Claim and Satisfies Undertaking Requirements.

19.74[1] Plaintiff Must Show Probable Validity of Claim. For a writ of possession to issue, the court must find that the plaintiff has established the probable validity of its claim to possession of the property [CCP § 512.060(a)(1)]. A claim has "probable validity" when it is more likely than not that the plaintiff will obtain a judgment against the defendant on that claim [CCP § 511.090].

Cross Reference:

Preparing order for writ of possession and writ, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, §§ 20.07, 20.08.

19.74[2] Plaintiff Must Satisfy Undertaking Requirements, Unless Waived. For a writ of possession to issue, the court must find that the plaintiff has satisfied the statutory undertaking requirements [CCP § 512.060(a)(2); see CCP § 515.010 (undertaking requirements)]. The undertaking must be in an amount equal to not less than twice the value of the defendant's interest in the property and may be in a greater amount [CCP § 515.010(a)]. The court can waive the undertaking requirements if the defendant is found to have no interest in the property [CCP § 515.010(b)].

Cross Reference:

Satisfying undertaking requirements to obtain writ of possession, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Pretrial Civil Procedure, § 20.13.

19.74[3] If Plaintiff Seeks Writ Requiring Entry Into Private Property, Plaintiff Must Show Probable Cause to Believe Property Is Located There. No writ directing the levying officer to enter a private place to take possession of any property may be issued unless the plaintiff has established that there is probable cause to believe that the property is located there [CCP § 512.060(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevinsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsGeneral Overview

76 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
D. Obtaining a Writ of Possession

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.75

19.75 If Writ Issues, Court May Also Issue "Turnover" Order.

If a writ of possession is issued, the court may also issue an order directing the defendant to transfer possession of the property to the plaintiff. The order must contain a notice to the defendant that failure to turn over possession of the property to plaintiff may subject the defendant to being held in contempt of court [CCP § 512.070].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevinsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
D. Obtaining a Writ of Possession

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.76

19.76 Contents of Writ.

The writ must [CCP § 512.080]:

- Be directed to the levying officer within whose jurisdiction the property is located.
- Describe the specific property to be seized.
- Specify any private place that may be entered to take possession of the property or some part of it.
- Direct the levying officer to levy on the property and to retain it in custody until released or sold.
- Inform the defendant of the right to object to the plaintiff's undertaking, a copy of which shall be attached to the writ, or to obtain redelivery of the property by filing an undertaking [see CCP § 515.020].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevinsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsWrits of Attachment

78 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
D. Obtaining a Writ of Possession

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.77

19.77 Order Granting Prejudgment Writ of Possession Is Not Appealable.

An order granting the issuance of a prejudgment writ of possession is not an appealable final order [PMS Distrib. Co. v. Huber & Suhner, AG (9th Cir 1988) 863 F2d 639, 640].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevinsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionFinal Judgment Rule

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
E. Opposing a Writ of Possession

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.78

19.78 CHECKLIST: Opposing a Writ of Possession.

☐ Determine whether procedural or substantive grounds exist for contesting the writ application.

○ Was defendant timely and properly served with all required papers?

Authority:
CCP § 512.030

Discussion:
See §§ 19.73, 19.80[1]

○ Did notice of application meet statutory requirements?

○ Did it contain all required information?

Authority:
CCP § 512.040

Discussion:
See §§ 19.73[2], 19.80[2]

○ Was it made to proper court after complaint had been filed?

○ Was it executed under oath?

Authority:
CCP § 512.010

Discussion:
See § 19.70[1]

○ Did plaintiff's application make all showings required by CCP § 512.010(b)?

Discussion:
See §§ 19.71, 19.80[3]

○ Did plaintiff fail to establish probable validity of claim?

Authority:
CCP §§ 511.090, 512.060(a)(1)

Discussion:
See §§ 19.69[2], 19.74[1]

○ Did plaintiff satisfy undertaking requirements?

Authority:
CCP §§ 512.060, 515.010

Discussion:
See § 19.74[2]

☐ Prepare and file opposition papers, including supporting affidavits and points and authorities.

Authority:
CCP §§ 512.050, 512.060

Discussion:
See § 19.81

☐ Determine whether to object to plaintiff's undertaking.

Authority:
CCP § 515.030

Discussion:
See § 19.83

☐ Determine whether to file a defendant's undertaking to retain property or to obtain redelivery of the property.

Authority: CCP § 515.020

Discussion: See § 19.84

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesBondsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsObjectionsCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesApplicationsCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevins

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
E. Opposing a Writ of Possession

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.79

19.79 Options and Strategies for Defendant Opposing Writ of Possession.

Under Rule 64, California law determines the circumstances and manner in which a writ of possession is available so that California law controls with respect to, among other things, the type of claims warranting pre-judgment possession and undertaking requirements [see Fed R Civ P 64]. California law imposes stringent requirements on a plaintiff seeking a writ of possession due to judicial reluctance to interfere with the status quo before judgment [see CC § 3524]. If the plaintiff fails to meet its burden of satisfying these statutory prerequisites, the writ should not issue.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevinsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
E. Opposing a Writ of Possession

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.80

19.80 Service and Contents of Documents Must Meet Statutory Requirements.

19.80[1] Defendant Must Be Served With All Required Documents. Unless the plaintiff had the writ issued ex parte [see 19.39], before the hearing on the plaintiff's application for a writ of possession, the defendant must be served with a copy of the summons and complaint, the notice of application and hearing, and a copy of the application and any affidavit in support of the application [CCP § 512.030(a); see CCP § 512.030(b) (personal service on defendant who has not appeared in action)].

19.80[2] Notice of Application and Hearing Must Satisfy Statutory Requirements As to Contents. The contents of the notice of application and hearing are prescribed by statute and the burden is on the plaintiff to establish that those requirements have been satisfied [CCP § 512.040].

Cross Reference:

Required contents of notice of application and hearing, see § 19.73[2].

19.80[3] Plaintiff's Application or Affidavits Must Make Required Showings. The application, which must be executed under oath, or affidavits filed with the application, must make all the statutorily required showings [CCP § 512.010(b), (c); see 19.38 (required showings)]. If the application and any accompanying affidavits fail to make the required showings, the application is insufficient and the writ should not issue.

Consider:

The court may permit the plaintiff to file additional affidavits to correct any defects in the original application [see CCP § 512.010(c) (allowing for multiple affidavits)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeService of ProcessGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesApplicationsCivil

ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevinsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
E. Opposing a Writ of Possession

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.81

19.81 File Opposition Papers With Court and Effect Service on Plaintiff.

The defendant should file with the court, and serve on the plaintiff, affidavits and a memorandum of points and authorities in support of arguments against the issuance of the writ [see CCP § 512.050].

Cross References:

Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see §§ 26.19 -26.21; Ch. 5, Formatting, Serving, and Filing Papers, §§ 5.15 et seq., 5.24 et seq.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevinsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
E. Opposing a Writ of Possession

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.82

19.82 If Writ Was Issued Ex Parte, Defendant May Move to Quash.

For a writ of possession to issue ex parte, in addition to all the other requirements, the plaintiff must show that the subject property was acquired feloniously; that the subject property was a credit card; or that the defendant acquired possession of the property in the ordinary course of trade or business for commercial purposes, that the property is not necessary for the support of the defendant or his or her family, and other conditions are satisfied [CCP § 512.020(b); see 19.72]. A defendant may move by noticed motion, supported by affidavits and points and authorities, to quash a writ of possession issued ex parte and for the release and redelivery of any levied-on property [CCP § 512.020; see CCP § 512.050].

Strategic Point--Defendant:

Because the prevailing defendant is entitled to any damages sustained that were proximately caused by the levy of the writ of possession and the loss of possession of the property pursuant to that levy [CCP § 512.020], the supporting affidavits and other documents should show the amount of those damages.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to DismissCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevinsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsGeneral Overview

84 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
E. Opposing a Writ of Possession

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.83

19.83 Object to Plaintiff's Undertaking Within 10 Days After Levy.

The defendant may object to the plaintiff's undertaking not later than 10 days after levy of the writ of possession [CCP § 515.030(a)]. The defendant must mail notice of the objection to the levying officer [CCP § 515.030(a)], who is directed to keep the property in a secure place for 10 days after levy [see CCP § 514.030]. If the court determines that the plaintiff's undertaking is insufficient and the plaintiff fails to file a sufficient undertaking within the time required, the court must vacate any temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, vacate the writ of possession, and, if levy has occurred, order the levying officer or the plaintiff to return the property to the defendant. If the court determines that the plaintiff's undertaking is sufficient, the court must order the levying officer to deliver the property to the plaintiff [CCP § 515.030(c)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesBondsObjectionsCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevinsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
III. SEIZURE OF PROPERTY BEFORE JUDGMENT THROUGH WRIT OF ATTACHMENT OR POSSESSION
E. Opposing a Writ of Possession

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.84

19.84 File Defendant's Undertaking to Retain or Regain Possession of Property.

A defendant who wants to prevent the plaintiff from taking possession of the property, or who wants to regain property that has been levied, may do so by filing an undertaking. The undertaking must be equal to the amount of the undertaking filed by the plaintiff, unless the court has waived the requirement of a plaintiff's undertaking, in which case the amount of the defendant's undertaking will be that amount stated by the court in the order issuing the writ [CCP § 515.020(a); see CCP § 515.010]. The undertaking may be filed at any time before or after levy of the writ of possession [CCP § 515.020(c)].

Strategic Point--Defendant Will Be Liable for Additional Damages If Plaintiff Ultimately Prevails in Action:

Under the terms of the defendant's undertaking, if the plaintiff does ultimately recover judgment on the action, the defendant must pay all costs awarded to the plaintiff and all damages that the plaintiff sustained by reason of the loss of possession of the property, including all damages proximately caused by the plaintiff's failure to gain or retain possession [CCP § 515.020(b)].

If the plaintiff does not object to the defendant's undertaking for redelivery, the levying officer must deliver the property to the defendant. If the plaintiff has been given possession of the property, then the plaintiff must deliver the property to the defendant [CCP § 512.020(d)]. The plaintiff may object to the defendant's undertaking in the same manner as the defendant may object to the plaintiff's undertaking [CCP § 512.020(d); see 19.83].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesBondsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsObjectionsCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesReplevinsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsAncillary WritsGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
IV. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER
A. Determining Propriety of Receivership

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.85

19.85 CHECKLIST: Determining Propriety of Receivership.

☐ Determine whether appointment of receiver is within court's equity jurisdiction in present case.

Discussion:
See § 19.88[2]

☐ Determine whether court has jurisdiction with reference to location of property that is to be placed in receivership.

Discussion:
See § 19.88[3]

☐ Determine whether factual basis exists for appointment of receiver.

Discussion:
See § 19.89

☐ Consider positions that could be taken and arguments that could be made by adverse party.

Discussion:
See § 19.109

☐ Consider incidental consequences of having receiver appointed:

○ Case cannot be dismissed except by court order.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 41(a)(1), 66

○ Applicant has some financial risk.

☐ Applicant may have to pay premium for bond covering potential liability for harm to adverse party if court eventually determines that receivership was improper.

☐ Some expenses and portion of receiver's fee could be taxed to applicant if court eventually determines that receivership was improper. (Expenses of receivership can aggregate to very substantial amount.)

○ Expenses of receivership that adverse party would have had to incur anyway (had there been no receiver) should be charged to that party.

○ Expenses that conferred genuine benefit on adverse party also should be charged to that party.

○ Other expenses and receiver's fee should be apportioned between parties if receivership was improper; and in that case, costs of receivership that would not have arisen but for appointment should be charged to party obtaining receivership (whether or not that party acted in good faith).

Authority: Commodity Futures Trading Comm'n v. Frankwell Bullion Ltd. (9th Cir 1996) 99 F3d 299, 306 ; Pioche Mines Consol., Inc. v. Dolman (9th Cir 1964) 333 F2d 257, 276

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsJurisdictionPropertyCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversAppointments

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
IV. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER
A. Determining Propriety of Receivership

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.86

19.86 Options and Strategy for Determining Propriety of Receivership.

The basic consideration in appointing a receiver pending final disposition of a suit is the necessity of protecting, conserving, and administering property until entry of a judgment [Gordon v. Washington (1935) 295 US 30, 37, 55 S Ct 584, 79 L Ed 1282 ; View Crest Garden Apartments, Inc. v. United States (9th Cir 1960) 281 F2d 844, 849]. Determining whether a receivership would be proper has two aspects:

- Is a receivership necessary in the circumstances? Some of the reasons for seeking appointment of a receiver during litigation [see 19.89[3]] include:
  - To conserve, preserve, protect, or administer property that is involved in the legal action--for instance, mortgaged property in a judicial foreclosure action, or trust property in an action for appointment of a successor trustee.
  - To prevent fraud or loss of the property from fraud.
  - To prevent mismanagement of the property.
  - To replace an irresponsible or insolvent assignee when claims are jeopardized in an assignment for benefit of creditors.
- Does the court have jurisdiction to appoint the receiver? This requires the coincidence of two jurisdictional conditions:
  - Jurisdiction of a person who owns (or at least claims a possessory interest in) the property to be placed in receivership [see 19.88[3][c]], or jurisdiction in rem of the property itself [see Penn Gen. Cas. Co. v. Pennsylvania (1935) 294 US 189, 195, 198, 55 S Ct 386, 79 L Ed 850 (recognition of principle that court having jurisdiction in rem has power to appoint receiver for subject property); 19.88[3][a]].

- Jurisdiction in equity [see Gordon v. Washington (1935) 295 US 30, 38, 55 S Ct 584, 79 L Ed 1282 (federal court will not appoint receiver "where the appointment is not ancillary to some form of final relief which is appropriate for equity to give"); 19.88[2]].

Warning:

The Ninth Circuit has several lines of cases (in accord with other circuits) expressing a view that district courts have inherent power, as courts of equity, to be creative in providing ancillary relief such as the appointment of a receiver or issuance of a preliminary injunction. These cases should be understood as referring to the district court's power over the administration of a receivership, and not as permitting any novelty respecting whether a receiver should be appointed. The Supreme Court can be expected to apply a rule that the equitable powers conferred on district courts by the Judiciary Act of 1789 did not include the power to create remedies previously unknown to equity jurisprudence [Grupo Mexicano de Desarrollo, S.A. v. Alliance Bond Fund, Inc. (1999) 527 US 308, 332, 119 S Ct 1961, 144 L Ed2d 319]. While there can be cases in which the facts would strongly support some novel application of a provisional remedy [see, e.g., Grupo Mexicano de Desarrollo, S.A. v. Alliance Bond Fund, Inc. (1999) 527 US 308, 333-335, 119 S Ct 1961, 144 L Ed2d 319 (Ginsburg, J., dissenting)], the power to make that election belongs to Congress, not to the federal courts [see Grupo Mexicano de Desarrollo, S.A. v. Alliance Bond Fund, Inc. (1999) 527 US 308, 333, 119 S Ct 1961, 144 L Ed2d 319 (district court may not preliminarily enjoin debtor, to prevent disposition of property, at request of ordinary creditor having no lien on that property nor any equitable interest in it)].

Consider:

In the large majority of cases, receivers are appointed in the state courts, because the basis for jurisdiction by federal district courts is comparatively limited. Accordingly, the reported cases on equity receiverships from Ninth Circuit courts are not numerous.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsJurisdictionPartiesCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsJurisdictionPropertyCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversAppointments

88 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
IV. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER
A. Determining Propriety of Receivership

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.87

19.87 Determine Whether "Receivership in Fact" Already Exists.

If the district court has already appointed an auxiliary officer such as a special master, the court could have given that officer the essential duties and powers of a receiver, but without applying the legal standards and meeting all of the requirements for appointment of a receiver. Any party aggrieved by the situation may rightly ask the court to rectify that irregular appointment by, for example, following a local rule for a receiver's bond and ordering the officer to comply with local rules for administration of a receivership. If the district court declines to act, the Ninth Circuit may mandate the issuance of appropriate orders [see FTC v. World Wide Factors, Ltd. (9th Cir 1989) 882 F2d 344, 348].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesBondsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversAppointmentsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsMandamus

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
IV. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER
A. Determining Propriety of Receivership

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.88

19.88 Court's Jurisdiction to Appoint Receiver.

19.88[1] Subject Matter Jurisdiction Can Be Presumed. Inasmuch as an application for appointment of a receiver is not a pleading but is a motion for an order in a pending action [see Fed R Civ P 7], it need not show the basis of the court's subject matter jurisdiction, which presumably is shown in the complaint already on file [see Fed R Civ P 8(a)].

19.88[1A] Federal Law Governs Appointment of Receiver in Diversity Action. Federal law governs whether to appoint a receiver in a diversity action [Canada Life Assurance Co. v. Lapeter (9th Cir 2009) 557 F3d 1103, 1109 , amended by (9th Cir 2009) 563 F3d 837 (matter of first impression, noting that federal courts sitting in diversity may exercise equitable powers independent of state law)].

19.88[2] Seeking Equitable Relief May Implicate Appointment of Receiver. If the complaint in the pending action seeks equitable relief, the court has power to appoint a receiver [see Kelleam v. Maryland Cas. Co. (1941) 312 US 377, 381, 61 S Ct 595, 85 L Ed 899 ; Gordon v. Washington (1935) 295 US 30, 37, 55 S Ct 584, 79 L Ed 1282]. Common examples of equitable relief that could implicate appointment of a receiver would include:

- Injunctive relief.

- Declaratory relief under CCP § 1060 [see, e.g., McWilliams v. Hopkins (SD Cal 1926) 11 F2d 793, 795].

- Rescission of a contract and restitution of, for example, real property conveyed, personal property transferred, or money paid [e.g., Adelman v. CGS Scientific Corp. (ED Pa 1971) 332 F Supp 137, 147 ("The interim protection of property fraudulently acquired, and in imminent jeopardy of loss, pending rescission is one of the classic instances where the appointment of a receiver or custodian is proper.")].

- Specific performance of a contract to convey real property or transfer personal property.

- Dissolution of a partnership.

- Foreclosure of a lien on real or personal property [see, e.g., New York Life Ins. Co. v. Watt West Inv. Corp. (ED Cal 1991) 755 F Supp 287, 288 (receiver was appointed to protect secured creditor's beneficial interest under deed of trust on commercial property)].

Example:

A mortgagee in a mortgage foreclosure suit involving commercial property that is producing income, such as an apartment building, might ask for the appointment of a receiver to take custody of that property. The receiver would be charged with collecting the income and operating the property during the foreclosure proceeding, in order to preserve the value of the property until the foreclosure sale [see, e.g., View Crest Garden Apartments, Inc. v. United States (9th Cir 1960) 281 F2d 844, 849].

19.88[3] Know Location of Property to Be Placed in Receivership.

19.88[3][a] Court With Jurisdiction in Rem May Appoint Receiver. It is elementary that whenever a court has jurisdiction in rem, the court has possession of the subject property. Therefore, the court may appoint a receiver for the property if that is appropriate--whether or not the court has personal jurisdiction of the owner or another person entitled to possession of the property--because that is the very essence of jurisdiction in rem [see, e.g., United States v. All Assets of Statewide Auto Parts (2d Cir 1992) 971 F2d 896, 901 ; cf. Penn Gen. Cas. Co. v. Pennsylvania (1935) 294 US 189, 195, 198, 55 S Ct 386, 79 L Ed 850 (recognition of general principle that court having jurisdiction in rem has power to appoint receiver for subject property)].

Example:

"Here suit is brought to foreclose a mortgage, in which the court has power to adjudicate all liens and claims against the res, ascertain their amount, order a sale of the property, confirm the sale, direct a deed of conveyance to the purchaser at the sale, and, by its writ of assistance, remove the occupant, and place the purchaser in absolute possession of the property. Not only so, but the court, moreover, may, at any time when it deems it equitable and right so to do, appoint a receiver of the property pending the suit, and thereby assume actual legal custody of the same through its officer" [Cohen v. Solomon (D Kan 1895) 66 F 411, 413-414].

Consider:

Usually, when a court has jurisdiction in rem, there is no other court that could appoint a receiver for the subject property. "The possession of the res vests the court which has first acquired jurisdiction with the power to hear and determine all controversies relating thereto, and for the time being disables other courts of co-ordinate jurisdiction from exercising a like power... . Nor is this rule restricted in its application to cases where property has been actually seized under judicial process before a second suit is instituted in another court; but it often applies as well where suits are brought to enforce liens against specific property, to marshal assets, administer trusts, or liquidate insolvent estates, and in suits of a similar nature, where, in the progress of the litigation, the court may be compelled to assume the possession and control of the property to be affected" [Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. Lake Street R.R. Co. (1900) 177 US 51, 61, 20 S Ct 564, 44 L Ed 667]. This could become an important point, since another court having personal jurisdiction of the owner of the property might undertake to appoint a receiver [see § 19.88[3][c]].

19.88[3][b] Jurisdiction in Rem Can Extend Outside District. When the court appoints a receiver for property as to which the court has jurisdiction in rem [see 19.88[3][a]], and the property happens to extend beyond the boundary of the court's district, 28 USC § 754 will empower the receiver to take possession and control of the property everywhere it extends (within the United States) [see 19.100]. An antecedent of 28 USC § 754, which the Supreme Court described as "extending the operation of a receivership to other districts of the same judicial circuit," was construed as relating to "cases where the fixed property is a unit, extending into several States, like interstate railroads and pipe lines" [Lion Bonding & Surety Co. v. Karatz (1923) 262 US 77, 87, 43 S Ct 480, 67 L Ed 871].

19.88[3][c] Jurisdiction of Legal Owner Is Sufficient to Reach Property in Any District. When the property in question, which is to be subjected to the receivership, is located in a district other than the district where the present case is pending, the court may nevertheless appoint a receiver if the court has personal jurisdiction of the legal owner or another person entitled to possession of the property [see United States v. Arizona Fuels Corp. (9th Cir 1984) 739 F2d 455, 460-461]; and the receiver may take possession and control of the property [see 28 USC § 754; 19.100; but see 19.88[3][a] (appointment of receiver by court having jurisdiction in rem)].

Distinguish:

In a diversity-jurisdiction case, the fact that jurisdiction is based on diversity of citizenship will not affect the court's power to appoint a receiver. The power of a district court to appoint a receiver is governed by federal law, not by state law, in such a case [National P'ship Inv. Corp. v. National Hous. Dev. Corp. (11th Cir 1998) 153 F3d 1289, 1291-1292 ; see New York Life Ins. Co. v. Watt West Inv. Corp. (ED Cal 1991) 755 F Supp 287, 289-290]. The Erie doctrine, which requires the application of state law on matters of substance [Erie R.R. Co. v. Tompkins (1938) 304 US 64, 58 S Ct 817, 82 L Ed 1188], would not apply to the appointment of a receiver by a federal court [see Hanna v. Plumer (1965) 380 US 460, 471, 85 S Ct 1136, 14 L Ed2d 8].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsJurisdictionPartiesCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsJurisdictionPropertyCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversAppointments

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
IV. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER
A. Determining Propriety of Receivership

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.89

19.89 Factual Basis for Receivership.

19.89[1] Receivership Is Drastic Remedy. Appointment of a receiver is a remedy of last resort, an extraordinary step warranted only by the most compelling circumstances [Bracco v. Lackner (ND Cal 1978) 462 F Supp 436, 456 (noting, for example, evidence of past or probable "blatant disregard of court orders")].

19.89[2] Nontraditional Factual Setting Is No Bar to Relief. Although a receivership is usually imposed to supervise a distressed business during litigation, the remedy has also been used to protect and preserve important rights of interested parties in other situations [Bracco v. Lackner (ND Cal 1978) 462 F Supp 436, 455 (noting several such cases)].

19.89[3] Match Facts of Case With Conditions Justifying Receivership.

19.89[3][a] Various Facts May Be Relevant. Courts have recognized many factors that could be relevant when determining the appropriateness of appointing a receiver. These include [Consolidated Rail Corp. v. Fore River Ry. Co. (1st Cir 1988) 861 F2d 322, 327]:

- Fraudulent conduct by the adverse party [see Burnrite Coal Briquette Co. v. Riggs (1927) 274 US 208, 212, 47 S Ct 578, 71 L Ed 1002].
- Imminent danger that property will be lost or squandered [see Gordon v. Washington (1935) 295 US 30, 37-39, 55 S Ct 584, 79 L Ed 1282 ; Garden Homes, Inc. v. United States (1st Cir 1952) 200 F2d 299, 301].
- Inadequacy of available legal remedies [see Leighton v. One William Street Fund, Inc. (2d Cir 1965) 343 F2d 565, 568].
- Probability that harm to the applicant if no receiver were appointed would be greater than any injury to the adverse party if the application were granted [see Mintzer v. Arthur L. Wright & Co. (3d Cir 1959) 263 F2d 823, 825].

- Applicant's probable success in the action and the possibility of irreparable injury to the applicant's interests in the property [see Bookout v. First Nat'l Mortgage & Discount Co. (5th Cir 1975) 514 F2d 757, 758].

- Impossibility or impracticability of bringing the action promptly to a final judgment [see View Crest Garden Apartments, Inc. v. United States (9th Cir 1960) 281 F2d 844, 849].

- Whether the interests of the applicant and others sought to be protected will in fact be well served by the receivership [see Commodity Futures Trading Comm'n v. Comvest Trading Corp. (D Mass 1979) 481 F Supp 438, 441].

19.89[3][b] Going Business May Present Special Case. The appointment of a receiver for a solvent going business corporation is a drastic measure that will be taken by a court of equity in the exercise of its discretion only when there is imminent danger of loss to the shareholders and there is no adequate remedy at law. Dissatisfaction with existing management and the fact that the business is a losing venture are not sufficient to warrant a receivership. Without statutory authority, a deadlocked condition of the shareholders and directors is not of itself, standing alone, sufficient ground for the appointment of a receiver. The general rule is that a receiver will not be appointed unless it appears that the appointment is necessary either to prevent fraud or to save the property from irreparable injury or threatened loss or destruction [Macon Lumber Co. v. Bishop & Collins (6th Cir 1956) 229 F2d 305, 307].

On the other hand, if the purposes for which a corporation was organized have become impossible of accomplishment, or it is necessary to preserve assets from irreparable loss through mismanagement by the officers or otherwise, a receiver may be appointed to administer its assets for the benefit of creditors or the shareholders. The officers of the corporation, in the management of its property, stand in a fiduciary relationship. If the corporation's funds or properties are being mismanaged and are in imminent danger of being lost to the shareholders and creditors through the collusion and fraud of the officers, a court of equity should not hesitate to assume charge and control of the property through a receiver [Macon Lumber Co. v. Bishop & Collins (6th Cir 1956) 229 F2d 305, 307].

Distinguish:

When the corporation is closely held, and a minority shareholder, complaining of harmful mismanagement, is seeking appointment of a receiver, a crucial issue might be whether there is a market for minority-held shares. If there is, then the court could decline to appoint a receiver, on the ground that the minority shareholder's adequate remedy is simply to sell in the market. The absence of a market should be weighed in support of appointment of a receiver [Lyman v. Spain (DC Cir 1985) 774 F2d 495, 497-498].

19.89[3][c] Foreclosure Proceeding May Present Special Case. A district court, in its discretion, may appoint a receiver to collect rents and profits and manage the property during the pendency of a foreclosure proceeding [View Crest Garden Apartments, Inc. v. United States (9th Cir 1960) 281 F2d 844, 847-848]. Factors that the court may consider include [see United States v. Berk & Berk (DNJ 1991) 767 F Supp 593, 597 ; New York Life Ins. Co. v. Watt West Inv. Corp. (ED Cal 1991) 755 F Supp 287, 292-293]:

- Whether the property is inadequate security for the loan.

- Whether the mortgage contract contains a clause granting the mortgagee the right to a receiver.

- The continued default of the mortgagor.

- The probability that foreclosure will be delayed in the future.
- The unstable financial status of the mortgagor.
- If the property has rent-paying tenants: improper administration of the property that is likely to cause departure of a major tenant.
- If the property is a public-housing project:
  - The misuse of project funds by the mortgagor.
  - Furthering the policy of the National Housing Act.

Strategic Point:

It has been held that no hearing is necessary when the facts support the appointment of a receiver in a foreclosure case [United States v. Mansion House Ctr. N. Redev. Co. (ED Mo 1976) 419 F Supp 85, 87].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawCorporationsDissolution & ReceivershipReceivershipsAppointment of ReceiversCivil ProcedureEquityAdequate Remedy at LawCivil ProcedureEquityIrreparable InjuryCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversAppointmentsReal Property LawFinancingMortgages & Other Security InstrumentsForeclosuresGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
IV. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER
B. Seeking Appointment of Receiver on Notice

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.90

19.90 CHECKLIST: Obtaining Appointment of Receiver on Notice.

☐ Determine appropriate date for hearing, to be specified in order to show cause or notice of motion.

☐ Draft order to show cause or notice of motion, and have judge sign order to show cause.

- ○ Central District: Order to show cause.
- ○ Eastern District: Notice of motion.
- ○ Northern District: Notice of motion.
- ○ Southern District: Order to show cause.

Authority:
CD Cal Civ LR 66-3; ED Cal Civ LR 232(a)(2), (d); ND Cal Civ LR 66-1(c); SD Cal Civ LR 66.1(a.2)

Discussion:
See § 19.92

Forms:
Order to show cause, see 19.161; notice of motion, see § 19.162

☐ Serve order to show cause or notice of motion (along with supporting papers) on other parties.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 5(a)

Discussion:
See § 19.93

☐ Pursuant to local rule, seven or 10 days before hearing date, mail notice of hearing to adverse party's creditors for which adverse party has provided list of addresses.

Authority:
ND Cal Civ LR 66-1(c); SD Cal Civ LR 66.1(a.2)

Discussion:
See § 19.94

☐ Attend hearing and argue in support of application, according to normal motion practice.

Discussion:
Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see §§ 26.51 -26.53

☐ Draft order appointing receiver, and obtain judge's signature.

Timing:
Consider bringing an already-drafted order to the hearing. Then, if the drafted order turns out to be in accord with the judge's ruling, you can submit the order for immediate issuance.

Discussion:
See §§ 19.95 -19.99

☐ Cause signed order to be delivered to receiver.

Timing:
While the adverse party could take an appeal from the order (within 30 days) and could obtain a stay pending appeal [see 19.113], this possibility is not a reason for delay in putting the order into the receiver's hands. If an appeal were taken, and the order of appointment were stayed, still the receiver should be made aware of the appointment, as a practical matter.

☐ Give any appropriate information, guidance, or instructions to receiver, for effective and proper control and management of receivership property.

Timing: Again, this can be done whether or not an appeal might be pending (unless the receiver has a preference otherwise).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesApplicationsCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesNoticesCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversAppointments

92 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
IV. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER
B. Seeking Appointment of Receiver on Notice

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.91

19.91 Options and Strategy for Obtaining Appointment of Receiver on Notice.

Procedurally, normal motion practice will govern the application for appointment of a receiver. Substantively, the application will have to show the kind of extraordinary circumstances that courts routinely mention as being necessary for the so-called drastic remedy of receivership. Persuasive evidence in affidavits should be submitted. A memorandum of points and authorities relating the facts to a reported case that is squarely on-point, while always helpful, is especially useful in this instance.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting MemorandaCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesApplicationsCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversAppointments

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
IV. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER
B. Seeking Appointment of Receiver on Notice

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.92

19.92 Receivership Is Obtained Through Order to Show Cause or Notice of Motion.

19.92[1] Notice Usually Is Required. Unless notice is impractical, notice of an application for appointment of a receiver must be given to all parties [Connecticut v. Doehr (1991) 501 US 1, 12, 111 S Ct 2105, 115 L Ed2d 1]. Either an order to show cause or a notice of motion (depending on local practice) will be used to notify other parties [see 19.93] that the court will hear an application for appointment of a receiver.

Distinguish:

In practice, a receiver that is appointed for the duration of the case after a hearing on an order to show cause or a noticed motion could be called a permanent receiver or simply a receiver [see 19.92[1]] or might be called a temporary receiver [see, e.g., New York Life Ins. Co. v. Watt West Inv. Corp. (ED Cal 1991) 755 F Supp 287, 288] or a receiver pendente lite [see, e.g., National Benefit Life Ins. Co. v. Shaw-Walker Co. (DC Cir 1940) 111 F2d 497, 499]. In this chapter, "temporary receiver" means a receiver appointed on an ex parte application [see 19.101].

Cross Reference:

Noticed motion procedure, see Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, § 26.16.

19.92[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Drafting Order to Show Cause or Notice of Motion.

19.92[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. Although no local rule explicitly governs the practice, an applicant for appointment of a receiver normally would use an order to show cause. This is implicit in a rule prescribing that concurrently with appointment of a temporary receiver on an ex parte application [see 19.101], the court generally must issue an order requiring the adverse party to show cause why a permanent receiver should not be appointed [CD Cal Civ LR 66-3; see 19.103[2][a]].

Exception:

The court may in its discretion prescribe a different form of notice [CD Cal Civ LR 66-4.1].

19.92[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. A receiver may be appointed on a normal noticed motion [ED Cal Civ LR 232(a)(2), (d), see ED Cal Civ LR 230 (civil motion calendar and procedure)].

Distinguish:

A motion for appointment of a receiver need not be preceded by a motion for appointment of a temporary receiver [ED Cal Civ LR 232(d)].

19.92[2][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. While the local rule is confusingly worded [see ND Cal Civ LR 66-1(c)], apparently a normal noticed motion [see ND Cal Civ LR 7-2 (normal motion practice: notice and supporting papers)] is used in practice.

19.92[2][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. A permanent receiver may be appointed after notice and hearing on an order to show cause. This order will be issued by a judge on application of the party seeking appointment of a receiver [SD Cal Civ LR 66.1(a.2)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesApplicationsCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesNoticesCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversAppointmentsGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
IV. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER
B. Seeking Appointment of Receiver on Notice

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.93

19.93 Other Parties Must Be Served With Order to Show Cause or Notice of Motion.

19.93[1] Follow Normal Motion Practice. The order to show cause or notice of motion must be served on other parties as in any case [see Fed R Civ P 5(a)].

Cross Reference:

Ch. 5, Formatting, Serving, and Filing Papers, see §§ 5.15 -5.23.

19.93[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Serving Other Parties.

19.93[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. A copy of the order to show cause why a permanent receiver should not be appointed must be served on the other parties to the action by the person requesting appointment of a receiver [CD Cal Civ LR 66-4].

Exception:

The court may in its discretion, prescribe other persons on whom the notice must be served and the time for and manner of service [CD Cal Civ LR 66-4.1].

19.93[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. The order to show cause must be served on all parties [SD Cal Civ LR 66.1(a.2)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesApplicationsCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesNoticesCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversAppointmentsGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
IV. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER
B. Seeking Appointment of Receiver on Notice

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.94

19.94 Notice Must Be Provided to Creditors.

19.94[1] Applicant Must Notify Creditors. Local rules in some districts provide that a notice of the hearing must be given to certain creditors of the adverse party, who is required to provide a list of creditors for this purpose [see 19.94[2]]. The concern is that other creditors' interests may be affected. As in a bankruptcy, all creditors receive notice so that they can protect their own interests.

19.94[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Giving Notice to Creditors.

19.94[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. Within seven days of the issuance of an order to show cause, the defendant (that is, the party to whom the order is directed) must provide to the plaintiff (that is, the party seeking appointment of a receiver) a list of the defendant's creditors and their addresses. Not less than 14 days before the hearing on the order to show cause, notice of the hearing must be mailed to the listed creditors by the plaintiff [ND Cal Civ LR 66-1(d)].

Exception:
If a temporary receiver has been appointed ex parte [see 19.101], this duty to notify creditors falls to the temporary receiver instead [ND Cal Civ LR 66-1(d)].

Distinguish:
The rule is confusingly worded but appears to apply in all cases. In spite of the rule's singular reference to a previously issued order to show cause, which would imply an intent to limit the rule's application to cases in which a temporary receiver has been appointed ex parte, the rule plainly supposes that a temporary receiver might not have been appointed and provides, in that case, for the giving of notice by the party applying for the appointment of a receiver.

19.94[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. The defendant (that is, the party to be subjected to receivership) must provide to the plaintiff (that is, the party seeking appointment of a receiver), within seven days (after service of the order to show cause), a list of the defendant's creditors and their addresses. Not less than seven days before the hearing, the plaintiff must mail to the listed creditors the notice of the hearing and file the proof of mailing [SD Cal Civ LR 66.1(a.2)].

Exception:

If a temporary receiver has been appointed ex parte [see 19.101], this duty to notify creditors falls to the temporary receiver instead [SD Cal Civ LR 66.1(a.2)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesApplicationsCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesNoticesCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversAppointmentsGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
IV. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER
B. Seeking Appointment of Receiver on Notice

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.95

19.95 Court Order Is Source of Authority for Appointment.

19.95[1] Order Is Source of Authority. The order of appointment is the source of the receiver's authority [see Resolution Trust Corp. v. Bayside Developers (9th Cir 1995) 43 F3d 1230, 1241 n8]. The order should specify not only what the receiver is to do but also the powers that the receiver may exercise [see, e.g., Security Pac. Mortgage & Real Estate Servs., Inc. v. Republic of Philippines (2d Cir 1992) 962 F2d 204, 211 ("As a court-created entity, a receiver has only those powers provided for in the appointment order and may perform only those acts expressly authorized by the appointing court.")]. These matters are covered, to some extent, by local rules; otherwise, the usual practice in the drafting of appointment orders can be deduced from reported cases [see Fed R Civ P 66 ("[T]he practice in administering an estate by a receiver or a similar court-appointed officer must accord with the historical practice in federal courts or with a local rule.")]. In practice, appointment orders customarily provide that:

- The receiver is authorized forthwith to take and have complete and exclusive control, possession, and custody of the property in receivership.

- All persons, on being presented with a certified copy of the order, are directed to deliver to the receiver any and all of the property in receivership that is in their possession or under their control.

- All persons having actual knowledge or due notice of the order are enjoined from:

  - Disturbing the possession of the receiver in any way.

  - Prosecuting any actions that affect the property in receivership.

  - Transferring or otherwise disposing of, or concealing, the interest of the party (who is subjected to the receivership) in the property.

19.95[2] Special Provisions May Be Appropriate. Additionally, some appointment orders have provided that:

- The receiver must file an oath to faithfully execute the duties of a receiver as set forth in the order [e.g., World Fuel Servs. Corp. v. Moorehead (ND Tex 2002) 229 F Supp2d 584, 591].

- The receiver has power to exercise voting rights (or other particular ownership rights) tied to property, such as shares of stock, in receivership [see e.g., World Fuel Servs. Corp. v. Moorehead (ND Tex 2002) 229 F Supp2d 584, 591].

- The receiver will have no personal liability for any acts or omissions in connection with the performance of duties as receiver [e.g., Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. v. Spark Tarrytown, Inc. (SDNY 1993) 829 F Supp 82, 88]--which, although actually nothing more than a statement of the law [see, e.g., Kermit Constr. Corp. v. Banco Credito y Ahorro Ponceno (1st Cir 1976) 547 F2d 1, 3 ("At the least, a receiver who faithfully and carefully carries out the orders of [the] appointing judge must share the judge's absolute immunity"); accord, New Alaska Dev. Corp. v. Guetschow (9th Cir 1989) 869 F2d 1298, 1303], may be useful as a deterrent of pointless litigation.

Strategic Point:

Not only reported cases but also local rules from another district may be cited as furnishing guidelines for particular provisions in the appointment order, in the absence of a governing (or supervening) local rule.

19.95[3] Local Rules Apply to Some Extent. Local rules in all districts provide that:

- Periodic reports to the court, with copies to the parties, are required [see 19.97].

- Notice must be given to parties and creditors whenever the receiver takes action as specified by local rule [see 19.98].

Local rules in some districts provide for:

- Requiring the receiver to furnish a bond [see 19.95[4]].

- General administration of the receivership [see 19.96[1]].

- Keeping records of time spent and services rendered [see 19.96[2]].

- Depositing funds in a designated account [see 19.96[3]].

- Employing an attorney, accountant, or investigator [see 19.99].

19.95[4] Requiring Receiver's Bond.

19.95[4][a] Court May Require Bond. The court's discretionary power respecting the appointment of a receiver extends to deciding whether the receiver should furnish a bond [SEC v. Universal Fin. (9th Cir 1985) 760 F2d 1034, 1039].

Strategic Point:

Because the cost of the receiver's bond normally will be taxed to the party subjected to the receivership [see Commodity Futures Trading Comm'n v. Frankwell Bullion Ltd. (9th Cir 1996) 99 F3d 299, 306], which could mean that the cost will be extracted from the property in receivership [see § 19.85], the proper exercise of discretion could oblige the court to weigh the considerations supporting a bond and, on the other hand, the extent to which the cost of the bond will deplete the property in receivership [cf. SEC v. Universal Fin. (9th Cir 1985) 760 F2d 1034, 1039 (district court properly denied creditor's motion for bond to be furnished by receiver appointed in aid of judgment: "In our view, the main effect of requiring such a bond would be to deplete further the resources available to [creditors] and others with an interest in the receivership estate")].

Warning:

If the receiver is required to furnish a bond, then compliance with the requirement is a condition precedent to the receiver's having any authority to act pursuant to the order of appointment [see, e.g., 28 USC § 754; ED Cal Civ LR 232(i); 19.95[1]].

19.95[4][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. The receiver must not act until a sufficient undertaking as determined by the court is filed with the clerk [ED Cal Civ LR 232(i); see ED Cal Gen LR 151 (security requirements generally)].

19.95[4][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. The court may require the receiver to furnish a bond in an amount that the court deems reasonable [ND Cal Civ LR 66-1(e)].

19.95[4][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. The judge may require the receiver to furnish a bond in an amount deemed reasonable [SD Cal Civ LR 66.1(a.3)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesBondsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversAppointmentsCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversDutiesCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversLiabilitiesCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversPowersGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
IV. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER
B. Seeking Appointment of Receiver on Notice

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.96

19.96 Administration of Property by Receiver.

19.96[1] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Administering Receivership Generally. Except as otherwise ordered by the court, the receiver must administer the receivership as nearly as possible in accordance with the practice in the administration of estates in bankruptcy [CD Cal Civ LR 66-8; see Fed R Civ P 66 ("[T]he practice in administering an estate by a receiver or a similar court-appointed officer must accord with the historical practice in federal courts or with a local rule.")].

Distinguish:

While the practice in administering a receivership is a procedural matter that can be governed by court orders and local court rules, what the receiver may and may not do in managing or operating, and generally dealing with, the property under receivership is a different matter. A receiver appointed in any cause pending in any court of the United States (except certain bankruptcy cases) must manage and operate the property in receivership according to the requirements of the valid laws of the state in which the property is situated, in the same manner as the owner or possessor would be bound to do while in possession of the property [28 USC § 959(b)]. The district court may not issue orders directing otherwise [see Gillis v. California (1934) 293 US 62, 66, 55 S Ct 4, 79 L Ed 199 (identical provision in predecessor statute, former 28 USC § 124, was construed as withholding power from district court to authorize receiver to transact business contrary to state statute by which other persons were bound); see, e.g., Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. v. 1795 Riverside Drive Owners, Inc. (SDNY 1994) 1994 US Dist LEXIS 12510, at *2 ("While Rule 66 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure provides that procedural aspects of actions involving receivers are governed by federal procedural rules, this Court must look to principles of New York law to ascertain the substantive obligations of the receiver.")].

19.96[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Keeping Time Records. The receiver, the attorney for the receiver, and other persons appointed by the court or employed by the receiver to aid the receivership, must keep an itemized record of time spent and services rendered [CD Cal Civ LR 66-8.1; see CD Cal Civ LR 66-8.2 (failure to maintain itemized records as required may be ground for denying reimbursement or compensation)].

19.96[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: Depositing Funds.

19.96[3][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. All funds received by the receiver must be deposited in a depository designated by the court, entitled "Receiver's Account" together with the name and number of the action [ED Cal Civ LR 232(h)]. Leave of court is granted for the making of deposits into the registry of the court by the receiver, and the receiver is not required to seek specific leave of court prior to making a deposit [ED Cal Gen LR 150(a)].

19.96[3][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. The receiver must deposit all funds in the institution selected by the court as its designated depository pursuant to 28 USC § 2041, entitling the account with the name and number of the action. At the end of each month, the receiver must deliver to the clerk a statement of account and the canceled checks [ND Cal Civ LR 66-4].

19.96[3][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. The receiver must deposit all funds in a depository designated by a judge, entitling the account with the name and number of the action. At the end of each month, the receiver must deliver to the clerk a statement of account and the canceled checks [SD Cal Civ LR 66.1(d)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Bankruptcy LawCase AdministrationExaminers, Officers & TrusteesDuties & FunctionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesReceiverships ReceiversDutiesCivil ProcedureRemediesReceiverships ReceiversPowersGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
IV. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER
B. Seeking Appointment of Receiver on Notice

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.97

19.97 Reporting Duties of Receiver.

19.97[1] Reports Must Be Filed and Served Periodically. The order appointing the receiver customarily specifies what reports the receiver must make, and when to make them, and directs that copies be served on the parties. The receiver's reporting duties are covered by local rules in all districts.

19.97[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Filing and Serving Reports.

19.97[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. Within six months of appointment, and semi-annually thereafter, the receiver must serve and file with the court a report showing [CD Cal Civ LR 66-6.1]:

- The receipts and expenditures of the receivership.
- All acts and transactions performed in the receivership.

19.97[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. When the court directs, and at least once a year, the receiver must file and serve a report containing [ED Cal Civ LR 232(e)(2)]:

- A summary of the operations of the receiver.
- An inventory of all assets in receivership and their value.
- A schedule of all receipts and disbursements.
- The receiver's recommendation, with stated reasons, for continuation or termination of the receivership.
- Such other matters as the court may direct.

19.97[2][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. Within 30 days of appointment, a permanent receiver must serve and file with the court a verified report and petition for instructions containing [ND Cal Civ LR 66-5]:

- A summary of the operations of the receiver.
- An inventory of all assets in receivership and their value.
- A schedule of all receipts and disbursements.
- A list of all creditors, their addresses, and the amounts of their claims.
- The receiver's recommendation, with stated reasons, for continuation or termination of the receivership.

19.97[2][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. Within 30 days of appointment, a permanent receiver must serve and file with the court a verified report and petition for instructions containing [SD Cal Civ LR 66.1(e)]:

- A summary of the operations of the receiver.
- An inventory of all assets in receivership and their value.
- A schedule of all receipts and disbursements.
- A list of all creditors, their addresses, and the amounts of their claims.
- The receiver's recommendation, with stated reasons, for continuation or termination of the receivership.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversDutiesGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
IV. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER
B. Seeking Appointment of Receiver on Notice

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.98

19.98 Duty of Receiver to Give Prior Notice of Significant Acts.

19.98[1] Receiver Must Notify Parties and Creditors. Local rules in all districts require the receiver to give notice to the parties before doing specified acts [see 19.98[2]].

19.98[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Notifying Parties and Creditors.

19.98[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. The receiver must give notice by mail to all parties to the action and to all known creditors of the defendant (that is, the party subjected to receivership) of the time and place for hearing of [CD Cal Civ LR 66-7; see CD Cal Civ LR 6-1 (notice and service requirements)]:

- Petitions for the payment of dividends to creditors.
- Petitions for the confirmation of sales of real property and personal property.
- Reports of the receiver.
- Applications for instructions concerning administration of the estate.
- Applications for discharge of the receiver.
- Applications for fees and expenses of the receiver, the attorney for the receiver, and any other person appointed to aid the receiver.

19.98[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. Unless the court otherwise orders, normal motion practice [see ED Cal Civ LR 230] governs all applications by the receiver [ED Cal Civ LR 232(f)].

19.98[2][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. The receiver must give all interested parties notice of the time and place of hearings of the following in accordance with normal motion practice [ND Cal Civ LR 66-6; see

ND Cal Civ LR 7-2 (normal motion practice: notice and supporting papers)]:

- Petitions for instructions.
- Petitions for the payment of dividends to creditors.
- Petitions for confirmation of sales of property.
- Reports of the receiver.
- Motions for fees of the receiver or of any attorney, accountant, or investigator, with the notice stating the services performed and the fee requested.
- Motions for discharge of the receiver.

19.98[2][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. The receiver must give all interested parties at least 14 days' notice of the time and place of hearings of all [SD Cal Civ LR 66.1(f)]:

- Petitions for the payment of dividends to creditors.
- Petitions for confirmation of sales of property.
- Reports of the receiver.
- Applications for fees of the receiver or of any attorney, accountant, or investigator, with the notice stating the services performed and the fee requested.
- Applications for discharge of the receiver.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversDutiesGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
IV. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER
B. Seeking Appointment of Receiver on Notice

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.99

19.99 Power of Receiver to Employ Professionals.

19.99[1] Court Approval May Be Required. Local rules in three districts require the receiver to obtain the court's approval before employing an attorney, accountant, or investigator.

Cross References:

See § 19.99[2].

19.99[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Employing Attorney, Accountant, or Investigator.

19.99[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. The receiver may not employ an attorney, accountant, or investigator without first obtaining an order of the court authorizing the employment. The order may set forth a tentative basis for computation of compensation. The actual compensation will subsequently be fixed by the court, after hearing, on the applicant's affidavit setting forth in reasonable detail the nature of the services and the existence of any agreements concerning the amount of compensation to be paid [ED Cal Civ LR 232(g)].

19.99[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. The receiver may not employ an attorney, accountant, or investigator without a court order. The compensation of all such employees will be fixed by the court [ND Cal Civ LR 66-2].

19.99[2][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. The receiver may not employ an attorney, accountant, or investigator without an order of a judge. The compensation of all such employees will be fixed by the court [SD Cal Civ LR 66.1(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversDutiesCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversPowersGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
IV. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER
B. Seeking Appointment of Receiver on Notice

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.100

19.100 Taking Control of Property in Other District.

19.100[1] Receiver Has Jurisdiction Over Property in Other District. A receiver appointed in any civil action or proceeding involving property (real, personal, or mixed) situated in different districts has, on giving bond, complete jurisdiction and control of the property, with the right to take possession of it [28 USC § 754]. Thus, when property to be taken into the receivership is located, or partly located, in another district, the receiver can take control and possession of it, and there is no necessity for appointment also in the other district.

19.100[2] Receiver's Jurisdiction Generally Is Subject to Condition Subsequent. The receiver "shall file" copies of the complaint and the order of appointment, in the district court for any other district in which receivership property is located, within 10 days after entry of the order of appointment. Failure to file the copies in another district "shall divest" the receiver of jurisdiction and control over property in that district [28 USC § 754].

This directive creates an election, not a duty, for the receiver. The receiver's power to assert jurisdiction and control over property in another district is not time-barred after expiration of the 10-day period. Failure to file the papers in a particular district within that period will mean that the receiver cannot be treated as having jurisdiction and control over property in that district. Yet, after expiration of the period, the receiver may still elect to assume jurisdiction and control over property in that district, by filing the papers in the district, as long as the rights of others have not been prejudiced by the delay in filing [SEC v. Equity Serv. Corp. (3d Cir 1980) 632 F2d 1092, 1095].

Strategic Point:

The party obtaining appointment of the receiver might prudently remind the receiver (even though receivers can be presumed to know) about this election by, for instance, sending a letter to point out that receivership property is located in another district and to ask that the receiver give notice promptly on complying with the statutory 10-day filing requirement.

19.100[3] Jurisdiction Over Intangible Property May Not Be Subject to Condition Subsequent. When the appointing court has personal jurisdiction of the owner of intangible property (e.g., money), and that party is a resident of another district (where the property is deemed to be located), the receiver's continuing jurisdiction and control over that property does not necessarily depend on meeting the filing requirement of 28 USC § 754. The following factors together may weigh against applying the statute preemptively so as to divest the receiver of jurisdiction [United States v. Arizona Fuels Corp. (9th Cir 1984) 739 F2d 455, 460-461]:

- If the party in question (owner of the property) has actual notice of the salient facts--the nature of the action, as revealed by the complaint, and appointment of the receiver--then to the extent that the filing requirement serves a notice function, the requirement has been met without filing. Proof of actual notice could be the fact that the party was served with the complaint and the order of appointment; beyond that would be the party's participation in subsequent receivership proceedings. (Moreover, the party, having actual notice, could hardly be prejudicially affected if the receiver were to make a late election to file papers in the other district.)

- As the court has personal jurisdiction of the party, the receiver could accomplish the same end by an ancillary action in the appointing court to recover the property, and the receiver's failure to have met the filing requirement of 28 USC § 754 would not divest the court of jurisdiction of such an action. Thus, there is no reason why the receiver should not be allowed instead to summarily assert jurisdiction over the property.

- Because the property is intangible and held by a party over whom the court already has jurisdiction, who has actual notice of the receivership and previously appeared in the appointing court, there is no purpose to be served in requiring the receiver to trace the property to the other district and make a statutory filing there. The functions served by a filing when property such as a parcel of land (or tangible personal property) is located in another district, or when the possessor of the property is not otherwise aware of the receivership, do not apply.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsJurisdictionPropertyCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversPowers

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
IV. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER
C. Applying Ex Parte for Temporary Receiver

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.101

19.101 CHECKLIST: Applying Ex Parte for Temporary Receiver.

☐ Obtain affidavits and other documentary evidence of good cause to support ex parte request for appointment of temporary receiver.

Discussion:
See § 19.103

☐ Determine appropriate date for hearing on whether receivership should be continued--which normally would be determined as for hearing on whether preliminary injunction should be issued following temporary restraining order.

○ Central District: Select next motion day following expiration of 20 days after date of temporary receiver's appointment.

○ Eastern District: At time of appointing temporary receiver, court will calendar hearing on continuation of receivership: take note of date.

○ Northern District: Following procedure for temporary restraining order, select date as though for preliminary-injunction hearing.

○ Southern District: Following procedure for temporary restraining order, select date as though for preliminary-injunction hearing

Authority:
CD Cal Civ LR 66-2; ED Cal Civ LR 232(c); ND Cal Civ LR 66-1(b); SD Cal Civ LR 66.1(a.1)

Discussion:
Procedure for temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction, see § 19.03 et seq.

☐ Prepare appropriate form of notice of hearing on whether receivership should be continued.

○ Central District: Order to show cause.

○ Eastern District: Notice of motion.

○ Northern District: Order to show cause.

○ Southern District: Order to show cause.

Authority:
CD Cal Civ LR 66-3; ED Cal Civ LR 232(a)(2), (d); ND Cal Civ LR 66-1(c); SD Cal Civ LR 66.1(a.2)

Discussion:
See § 19.105

Forms:
Order to show cause, see § 19.161; notice of motion, see § 19.162

☐ Draft order appointing temporary receiver.

Content Note: This order should contain the same provisions concerning the receivership as will be in the subsequent order appointing a receiver (that is, continuing the receivership) for the duration of the case. The only difference in content between the two orders should be in the opening recitals, where the circumstances of issuing the order are described.

☐ Approach judge, state request for appointment of temporary receiver, submit supporting papers and drafts of orders, and make argument--following usual practice for obtaining temporary restraining order.

Discussion:
Practice for obtaining TRO, see § 19.09

☐ Cause order of appointment to be delivered to temporary receiver.

☐ As required by local rule, give notice of appointment to adverse party.

Discussion:
See § 19.107

☐ Respecting service of hearing notice (order to show cause or notice of motion) on other parties, and respecting other subsequent steps, proceed as when appointment of receiver is sought without antecedent appointment of temporary receiver.

Discussion: See § 19.90 et seq.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesApplicationsCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesHearingsCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesNoticesCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversAppointmentsGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
IV. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER
C. Applying Ex Parte for Temporary Receiver

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.102

19.102 Options and Strategy for Ex Parte Application for Temporary Receiver.

A court of equity has the power and authority to appoint a receiver on an ex parte application, and that power is properly exercised when the receivership is required by exigent circumstances [Tennessee Pub. Co. v. Carpenter (6th Cir 1938) 100 F2d 728, 732], such as when the giving of notice would defeat the very purpose of the receivership [cf. Latimer v. McNeal (3d Cir 1906) 142 F 451, 452 (dictum; bankruptcy receivership)] or is impracticable because the adverse party cannot be found [e.g., Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. v. Spark Tarrytown, Inc. (SDNY 1993) 813 F Supp 234, 236-237 ; see Kattelman v. Madden (8th Cir 1937) 88 F2d 858, 863 (bankruptcy receivership)].

If the court acts improvidently in this regard, the order of appointment is not void (in the absence of a jurisdictional defect) but can be immediately attacked on appeal [see 19.113] as an abuse of discretion [see Arkansas La. Gas Co. v. Kroeger (5th Cir 1962) 303 F2d 129, 134].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesApplicationsCivil ProcedureRemediesReceiverships ReceiversAppointmentsCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionCollateral Order DoctrineCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewAbuse of Discretion

104 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
IV. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER
C. Applying Ex Parte for Temporary Receiver

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.103

19.103 Party Seeking Ex Parte Application Must Obtain Supporting Verified Declaration.

19.103[1] Good Cause Must Be Shown. Local rules in all districts specify that an ex parte application must show good cause for appointing a receiver before a hearing can be held on notice.

Strategic Point--Moving Party:

Generally, follow the practice for obtaining a temporary restraining order on an ex parte application [see § 19.09]. The court may issue a TRO if it clearly appears from specific facts shown by affidavit or by the verified complaint that immediate and irreparable injury, loss, or damage will result to the applicant before the adverse party or that party's attorney can be heard in opposition [Fed R Civ P 65(b)(1)].

19.103[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Showing of Good Cause.

19.103[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. On good cause shown by verified pleadings or declaration, the court may in its discretion appoint a temporary receiver without notice to creditors [CD Cal Civ LR 66-1].

19.103[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. A temporary receiver may not be appointed without notice to the party sought to be subjected to receivership except on an appropriate showing of necessity and immediacy of potential harm [ED Cal Civ LR 232(b)].

19.103[2][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. A temporary receiver may be appointed in accordance with the requirements and limitations of Fed R Civ P 65(b), without notice to the party sought to be subjected to the receivership [ND Cal Civ LR 66-1(b); see 19.103[1]].

19.103[2][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. A temporary receiver may be appointed without notice to the party sought to be subjected to a receivership, in accordance with the requirements and limitations of Fed R Civ P 65(b) [SD Cal Civ LR 66.1(a.1); see 19.103[1]].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsTemporary Restraining OrdersCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesApplicationsCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversAppointmentsGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

105 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
IV. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER
C. Applying Ex Parte for Temporary Receiver

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.104

19.104 Hearing on Continuation of Receivership Must Be Held.

19.104[1] Prompt Hearing Is Required. As is the practice when issuing a temporary restraining order, the court appointing a temporary receiver on an ex parte application always contemplates holding a reasonably prompt hearing on whether the receivership should be continued during the progress of the litigation. The hearing is required because a fundamental rule of equity practice is that a receiver should not be appointed without a hearing [see, e.g., Connecticut v. Doehr (1991) 501 US 1, 12, 111 S Ct 2105, 115 L Ed2d 1 ; 19.92[1]].

19.104[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Scheduling Prompt Hearing.

19.104[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. A temporary receiver must not be appointed for a period longer than the next motion day following the expiration of 20 days after the date of appointment [CD Cal Civ LR 66-2].

Cross Reference:

Motion day, see Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, § 26.23[2][a].

19.104[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. On appointing a temporary receiver, the court must calendar a hearing on the continuation of the receivership [ED Cal Civ LR 232(c)]. The determination whether to continue the receivership must be made as set forth in ED Cal Civ LR 232(d), and no weight will be given to the fact that a temporary receiver has been appointed [ED Cal Civ LR 232(c)].

Consider:

The referenced rule, ED Cal Civ LR 232(d), provides no guidance for making the determination; it merely provides for appointment of a receiver on a noticed motion.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsTemporary Restraining OrdersCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesHearingsCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversAppointmentsGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

106 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
IV. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER
C. Applying Ex Parte for Temporary Receiver

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.105

19.105 Order to Show Cause or Notice of Motion Must Be Utilized.

19.105[1] Parties and Creditors Are Entitled to Notice of Hearing. After appointment of a temporary receiver on an ex parte application, the procedure for the applicant will be the same as when no temporary receiver has been appointed. Either an order to show cause or a notice of motion (depending on local practice) [see 19.92] will be used to notify other parties and affected creditors that the court will hear an application for appointment of a receiver for the duration of the case.

Distinguish:

In practice, after appointment of a temporary receiver on an ex parte application, a receiver that is appointed for the duration of the case could be called a permanent receiver or simply a receiver [see 19.92[1]], or might be called a receiver pendente lite [see, e.g., National Benefit Life Ins. Co. v. Shaw-Walker Co. (DC Cir 1940) 111 F2d 497, 499] or still be called a temporary receiver [see, e.g., New York Life Ins. Co. v. Watt West Inv. Corp. (ED Cal 1991) 755 F Supp 287, 288]. In this chapter, and in the usual practice in California, "temporary receiver" means a receiver appointed on an ex parte application.

Cross References:

Drafting of order to show cause or notice of motion, see § 19.92; service of order to show cause or notice, see § 19.93. Form of order to show cause, see § 19.161; form of notice of motion, see § 19.162.

19.105[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Drafting Order to Show Cause or Notice of Motion.

19.105[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. Concurrently with appointment of a temporary receiver, the court generally must issue an order to show cause requiring the parties and the creditors of the defendant (that is, the party to be subjected to receivership) to show cause why a permanent receiver should not be appointed [CD Cal Civ LR 66-3].

Exception:

> The court may in its discretion prescribe a different form of notice and other persons on whom the notice must be served [CD Cal Civ LR 66-4.1].

19.105[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. No rule specifically applies. The common practice is to use an order to show cause.

19.105[2][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. Concurrently with the appointment of a temporary receiver, the judge may, on a proper showing, issue an order to show cause, requiring the parties and the creditors to show cause why a permanent receiver should not be appointed [ND Cal Civ LR 66-1(c)].

19.105[2][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. A permanent receiver may be appointed after notice and hearing on an order to show cause. This order must be issued by a judge on appointment of a temporary receiver [SD Cal Civ LR 66.1(a.2)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesHearingsCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesNoticesCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversAppointmentsGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
IV. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER
C. Applying Ex Parte for Temporary Receiver

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.106

19.106 Creditors of Adverse Party Must Be Notified.

19.106[1] Temporary Receiver Will Give Notice to Creditors. Under some local rules, one of the temporary receiver's duties will be to give notice of the up-coming hearing to creditors of the party whose property is being placed in receivership; and for this purpose, the party is required to provide a list of creditors [see ND Cal Civ LR 66-1(d); SD Cal Civ LR 66.1(a.2)].

Cross Reference:

Giving notice to creditors, see § 19.94.

19.106[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Filing of List. In the Central District, the temporary receiver must file a schedule of names, addresses and amounts of claims of all known creditors of the defendant (that is, the party to be subjected to the receivership). The schedule must be filed within five days after appointment of a permanent receiver [CD Cal Civ LR 66-5]. Known creditors are those creditors listed as such in the records or books of account of the person or entity for which a receiver is appointed [CD Cal Civ LR 66-5.1].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesHearingsCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesNoticesCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversAppointmentsCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversDutiesGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
IV. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER
C. Applying Ex Parte for Temporary Receiver

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.107

19.107 Ex Parte Applicant Must Give Notice of Appointment.

19.107[1] Ex Parte Applicant Will Give Notice. The appointment of a temporary receiver will naturally come to the attention of the adverse party because the applicant will be obliged to serve an order to show cause (or notice of motion) respecting the continuation of the receivership [see 19.105].

19.107[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Giving Notice. If a temporary receiver has been appointed ex parte, the party seeking and securing the appointment must give notice forthwith of the temporary receiver's appointment, any terms and conditions pertaining to the appointment, and the date calendared for subsequent hearing on the question of continuance of the receivership [ED Cal Civ LR 232(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesNoticesCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversAppointmentsGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.108

19.108 CHECKLIST: Opposing Appointment of Receiver.

☐ Attack applicant's factual showing in support of appointment.

Discussion:
See § 19.110

☐ When federal government is suing to collect debt, attack any failure to meet requirements for invoking government's statutory right to seek appointment of receiver.

Authority:
28 USC §§ 3002(11), 3101, 3103

Discussion:
See § 19.111

☐ If court intends to give applicant some relief, try to minimize harshness of result:

○ Suggest injunction or bond instead of receivership.

Discussion:
See §§ 19.112[1], [2]

○ Propose limited receivership or appointment of custodian in lieu of receiver.

Discussion:
See §§ 19.112[3], [4]

○ Challenge applicant's candidate for appointment.

Discussion:
See § 19.112[5]

☐ Take interlocutory appeal from order of appointment.

Authority: 28 USC § 1292(a)(2)

Discussion: See § 19.113

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesPrejudgment RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversAppointmentsCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionInterlocutory Orders

110 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
IV. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER
D. Opposing Appointment of Receiver

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.109

19.109 Options and Strategy for Opposing Appointment of Receiver.

Because the principal issue raised by an application for appointment of a receiver is whether in fact the need for that remedy can be shown, the adverse party should attempt to controvert the factual bases on which the applicant seeks the receiver's appointment [see 19.89]. This means presenting evidence and argument to establish any of the following (as many as possible):

- The opposing party has not engaged in fraudulent conduct.

- Any risk that property in question will be lost or squandered is nil or at least not greater than normal [see, e.g., Meyer Jewelry Co. v. Meyer Holdings, Inc. (ED Mich 1995) 906 F Supp 428, 434 ("Meyer Holdings has not established that there is an imminent threat to its investment in Meyer Jewelry without the intervention of a receiver")].

- Available legal remedies are adequate [see, e.g., Meyer Jewelry Co. v. Meyer Holdings, Inc. (ED Mich 1995) 906 F Supp 428, 434 ("Meyer Holdings has an adequate legal remedy for the acts of mismanagement and oppression it alleges")].

- Any harm to the applicant if no receiver were appointed would be less than the injury to the opposing party if the application were granted [see, e.g., Meyer Jewelry Co. v. Meyer Holdings, Inc. (ED Mich 1995) 906 F Supp 428, 434].

- The applicant's chance of success in the action is no better than even; or, if the applicant probably will succeed, nevertheless the possibility of irreparable injury to the applicant's interests in property in question (in the absence of a receiver) is remote.

- Appointment of a receiver will not enhance the prospect of bringing the action promptly to a final judgment.

- The interests of the applicant and others sought to be protected will in fact be poorly served by a receivership.

If the federal government is suing to collect a debt and has invoked its statutory right to seek appointment of a receiver, the defendant can attack any failure to meet the statutory requirements, in addition to mounting a factual counter-attack [see 19.111].

If it becomes apparent that a receiver will be appointed, still the adverse party could suggest less-harsh alternatives (for example, an injunction, or furnishing a bond) or something less than the usual receivership (such as a limited receivership, or a custodian in lieu of a receiver); and it could be possible to challenge the eligibility, qualifications, or credentials of the applicant's nominee for appointment [see 19.112].

Finally, once a receiver has been appointed, the adverse party could consider taking an interlocutory appeal [see 19.113].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureEquityAdequate Remedy at LawCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversAppointmentsCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionInterlocutory Orders

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
IV. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER
D. Opposing Appointment of Receiver

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.110

19.110 Attack Factual Showing in Support of Appointment.

19.110[1] Show That More Harm Than Good Will Result. As a practical matter, the party opposing appointment of a receiver has the burden of showing that the appointment would do more harm than good [see, e.g., World Fuel Servs. Corp. v. Moorehead (ND Tex 2002) 229 F Supp2d 584, 590, 597].

19.110[2] Stress Unbalanced Outcome. Although it may be clear that the court has the power to appoint a receiver and grant other preliminary relief, nevertheless, in determining the appropriate relief, the court must balance the potential harm of such relief to the parties. Preliminary relief should not be granted when it would result in a risk of substantial harm to a party. Nor should it be granted when it would greatly interfere with the operation of a party's business [Adelman v. CGS Scientific Corp. (ED Pa 1971) 332 F Supp 137, 147)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversAppointments

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
IV. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER
D. Opposing Appointment of Receiver

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.111

19.111 Defending Debt-Collection Suit by United States.

19.111[1] United States May Seek Appointment of Receiver. Receivership is authorized as a prejudgment remedy when the United States seeks to recover a judgment on a debt and to obtain, before judgment, a remedy in connection with a claim for a debt [see 28 USC §§ 3002(11), 3101, 3103].

A court may appoint a receiver for property in which the debtor has a substantial nonexempt interest if the application shows reasonable cause to believe that there is a substantial danger that the property will be removed from the jurisdiction of the court, lost, concealed, materially injured or damaged, or mismanaged [28 USC § 3103(a)].

Application for appointment of a receiver may be made "in a proceeding in conjunction with the complaint or at any time after the filing of a civil action on a claim for a debt" [28 USC § 3101(a)(1); see 28 USC § 3101(d) (notice and hearing)].

Distinguish:

Executive Order 12988, implementing certain "Guidelines to Promote Just and Efficient Government Civil Litigation," does not apply in a receivership proceeding, insofar as it requires that a government litigation counsel, before filing a complaint initiating civil litigation, must first make a reasonable effort to notify all disputants about the nature of the dispute and to attempt to achieve a settlement, or must confirm that the referring agency that previously handled the dispute made a reasonable effort to notify the disputants and to achieve a settlement or used its conciliation processes [see Exec. Order 12988 §§ 1(a), 8(b)(2) (Feb. 5, 1996), 61 FR 4729].

19.111[2] Cite Any Failure to Meet Statutory Requirements.

19.111[2][a] Specific and Verified Showing Is Required. The application must be made under oath [28 USC § 3101(a)(1)] and must:

- Set forth the factual and legal basis for appointment of a receiver [28 USC § 3101(a)(2)].

- State that the debtor against whom the prejudgment remedy is sought will be afforded an opportunity for a hearing [28 USC § 3101(a)(3)(A)].

- Set forth "with particularity" that all statutory requirements for the prejudgment remedy have been satisfied [28 USC § 3101(a)(3)(A)].

As ground for appointment of a receiver, the application may show reasonable cause to believe that the debtor either [28 USC § 3101(b)(1)(A)-(D)]:

- Is about to leave the jurisdiction of the United States with the effect of hindering, delaying, or defrauding the United States in the effort to recover a debt;

- Has assigned, disposed, removed, concealed, ill-treated, wasted, or destroyed property, or is about to do so, with the effect of hindering, delaying, or defrauding the United States;

- Has converted the debtor's property into money, securities, or evidence of debt, or is about to do so, in a manner prejudicial to the United States with the effect of hindering, delaying, or defrauding the United States; or

- Has evaded service of process by concealing himself or herself or has temporarily withdrawn from the jurisdiction of the United States with the effect of hindering, delaying, or defrauding the United States.

Alternatively, the application may show reasonable cause to believe that [28 USC § 3101(b)(2)]:

- The prejudgment remedy is required so as to obtain jurisdiction within the United States; and

- Appointment of a receiver will result in obtaining jurisdiction.

19.111[2][b] Supporting Affidavit Is Required. The application must include an affidavit establishing "with particularity to the court's satisfaction" facts supporting the probable validity of the claim for a debt and the right of the United States to recover what is demanded [28 USC § 3101(c)(1)]. The affidavit must state [28 USC § 3101(c)(2)(A)-(C)]:

- Specifically the amount of the debt claimed by the United States and any interest or costs attributable to the debt;

- One or more of the specific grounds for appointment of a receiver [see 19.111[2][a]]; and

- How the requirements for granting relief [see 19.111[1]] are met.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversAppointmentsGovernmentsFederal GovernmentClaims By & Against

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
IV. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER
D. Opposing Appointment of Receiver

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.112

19.112 Minimize Harsh Result When Court Intends to Give Relief.

19.112[1] Suggest That Injunction Would Be Effective and Less Drastic. Courts have noted that a receivership is a "drastic" remedy because, among other reasons, it entails additional expenses (which can be substantial) for one or both of the parties, and it can be disruptive to a large number of persons who are not parties (such as employees of a business that is placed in receivership) [see Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. v. Spark Tarrytown, Inc. (SDNY 1993) 813 F Supp 234, 235 ; Adelman v. CGS Scientific Corp. (ED Pa 1971) 332 F Supp 137, 147]. The party to be subjected to a receivership could offer to accept an injunction instead, on the grounds that those drastic consequences should be avoided and that the party has shown no inclination to disobey an injunction [see Bracco v. Lackner (ND Cal 1978) 462 F Supp 436, 456]. Perhaps also the party could proffer a surety bond as assurance of the party's intention to comply with the court's orders.

19.112[2] Propose That Court Require Bond Rather Than Appoint Receiver. If the property interest needing protection could be adequately covered by a party's furnishing a bond, that remedy normally would be preferred over the appointment of a receiver (or issuance of an injunction [see United States v. Dominion Oil Co. (SD Cal 1917) 241 F 425, 428].

19.112[3] Request Specific Limitations on Receiver's Authority and Powers. The case could be appropriate for a very limited receivership, with the receiver having only as much authority and only specified powers as necessary to protect whatever property interest needs protection during the litigation [see, e.g., United States v. Honolulu Consol. Oil Co. (SD Cal 1918) 249 F 167, 171 ; United States v. Devil's Den Consol. Oil Co. (SD Cal 1916) 236 F 973, 979].

19.112[4] Propose Custodian in Lieu of Receiver for Going Business. When it is evident that some kind of interim relief is necessary, but appointment of a receiver could have an unintended harmful effect--for instance, indentures securing corporate bonds, and many other types of security instruments, commonly list appointment of a receiver as an event of default entitling the secured party to foreclose or pursue other relief--or otherwise might be inappropriate, the court nevertheless has power to give effective, if limited, relief. Thus, when control of a going business is the subject of the parties' dispute, the court might appoint a custodian with a mandate to act as arbitrator when the parties cannot agree on a management issue and to do nothing more than preserve the business until a trial can be held and the court can issue a judgment [Adelman v. CGS Scientific Corp. (ED Pa 1971) 332 F Supp 137, 148-149].

19.112[5] Challenge Applicant's Candidate for Receiver.

19.112[5][a] Assert Statutory Ineligibility. A person holding any civil or military office or employment under the United States or employed by any justice or judge of the United States may not at the same time be appointed a receiver in any case in any court of the United States [28 USC § 958].

A clerk of a court or any deputy clerk may not be appointed a receiver in any case, unless there are special reasons requiring the appointment, which must be recited in the order of appointment [28 USC § 957].

19.112[5][b] Argue That Candidate Lacks Neutrality. The party opposing appointment of a receiver may challenge the neutrality of the person whom the applicant has nominated, if there is a ground for finding that the nominee would have a conflict of interest or otherwise would lack neutrality as between the parties. If the court decides that a receiver should be appointed, the court may reject the applicant's nominee on that ground and select a truly disinterested person [see, e.g., World Fuel Servs. Corp. v. Moorehead (ND Tex 2002) 229 F Supp2d 584, 590, 597 (plaintiff's nominee was rejected because of having recently been affiliated with law firm that served as plaintiff's local counsel)].

19.112[5][c] Argue Special Circumstances Showing Inequity or Hardship. The court may reject the applicant's candidate, even when that candidate happens to have a statutory preference [see, e.g., 19.112[5][a]], if appointing that candidate would be inequitable or would cause undue hardship, and if there is an alternative candidate whose appointment would not present such a problem. For instance, the court could reject a candidate that is the real party in interest in the case and that has no office reasonably near the premises of a business being placed in receivership [United States v. First Carolina Fund (DSC 1967) 276 F Supp 767, 769 ("under the circumstances of this case, the ends of justice would best be served by appointing a disinterested local qualified person as receiver")].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesBondsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesReceivershipsReceiversAppointments

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
IV. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER
D. Opposing Appointment of Receiver

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.113

19.113 Appeal From Order Appointing Receiver.

19.113[1] Interlocutory Appeal Is Allowed. Orders of the district courts in California appointing receivers can be immediately appealed. The Ninth Circuit generally has jurisdiction, but in some cases, the Federal Circuit will have exclusive jurisdiction [see 28 USC §§ 1292(a)(2), (c)(1), 1295].

Timing:

The notice of appeal generally must be filed within 30 days after entry of the order [Fed R App P 4(a)(1)(A)].

Strategic Point:

Determining whether the Ninth Circuit (or the Federal Circuit) would have jurisdiction is essential, because the notice of appeal must specify the name of the court to which the appeal is taken [Fed R App P 3(c)(1)(C)]. If the prospect of oral argument is an important factor, bear in mind that the Federal Circuit court sits in the District of Columbia.

Cross References:

20 Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 303, Appeal as of Right--How Taken (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

18 Bender's Federal Practice Forms, Form AR3:1 (Matthew Bender).

19.113[2] Standard of Review Is Abuse of Discretion. A court of appeals will review a district court's decision to appoint a receiver for an abuse of discretion [National P'ship Inv. Corp. v. National Hous. Dev. Corp. (11th Cir 1998) 153 F3d 1289, 1292].

19.113[3] Stay May Be Sought in District Court. The appellant must ordinarily move first in the district court for a stay of the order of appointment pending appeal [Fed R App P 8(a)(1)(A)]. Unless the district court orders otherwise, the order of appointment will not be stayed during the period after its entry and until an appeal is taken or during the pendency of an appeal [see Fed R Civ P 62(a) ("the following [is] not stayed ... an interlocutory or final judgment in an action for an injunction or a receivership"); cf. Ferguson v. Tabah (2d Cir 1961) 288 F2d 665, 675 (implicitly recognizing application of Rule 62 to order appointing receiver)].

Distinguish:

A supersedeas bond, which an appellant may furnish as the means of obtaining an automatic stay pending appeal except in specified cases [see Fed R Civ P 62(d)], would not be required [see NLRB v. Westphal (9th Cir 1988) 859 F2d 818, 819]. Nor would it be effective. As one of the excepted cases is an appeal from an "interlocutory or final judgment ... in a receivership action"--which may be taken as covering an order appointing a receiver [see Ferguson v. Tabah (2d Cir 1961) 288 F2d 665, 675 (application of Rule 62 to order appointing receiver)]--a stay can be obtained only by moving the district court to stay its order [see Rosco, Inc. v. TIG Ins. (ND Cal 1997) 1997 US Dist LEXIS 2776, at *2 ("A judgment listed as an exception to Rule 62(d) may only be stayed by an order of a court")].

19.113[4] District Court May Modify Order During Pendency of Appeal. The district court's power to modify a preliminary injunction during the pendency of an appeal [see Fed R Civ P 62(c)] extends also to modifying an interlocutory order appointing a receiver [Ferguson v. Tabah (2d Cir 1961) 288 F2d 665, 675].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsStays Pending AppealsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsStays Pending AppealsSupersedeas BondsCivil ProcedureRemediesReceiverships ReceiversAppointmentsCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionInterlocutory OrdersCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewAbuse of Discretion

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
V. PROCEEDING AGAINST A SURETY
A. Determining Whether to Proceed Against Surety by Rule 65.1 Motion

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.114

19.114 CHECKLIST: Initial Considerations.

☐ Ascertain whether Rule 65.1 motion is available.

○ Was security given in bankruptcy proceeding? If so, Rule 65.1 motion is not available.

Discussion:
See § 19.116[2]

○ Has surety entered into a bond, stipulation, or undertaking required or permitted by the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure?

Discussion:
See § 19.116[1]

○ Determine whether Rule 65.1 summary procedure is available against principal, as well as surety.

Discussion:
See § 19.117

○ Consider whether to bring independent action in state or federal court instead if:

☐ Attorney fees would be recoverable.

☐ Jury trial would be available.

☐ Jurisdiction exists in a more convenient forum or one that provides other tactical advantages.

☐ The action in which the bond was posted has been dismissed [see American Bible Soc'y v. Blount (3d Cir 1971) 446 F2d 588, 590].

Discussion: See § 19.118

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesLiabilityCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesProcedures

116 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
V. PROCEEDING AGAINST A SURETY
A. Determining Whether to Proceed Against Surety by Rule 65.1 Motion

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.115

19.115 Options and Strategy for Creditor Considering Rule 65.1 Motion.

The summary motion procedure of Rule 65.1 is available to enforce the liability of a surety who has provided security required or permitted under some provision of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. Once the applicable provision has been identified [see 19.116[1]], the Rule 65.1 motion may be filed once the surety's liability has been established [see 19.120].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesLiabilityCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesProcedures

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
V. PROCEEDING AGAINST A SURETY
A. Determining Whether to Proceed Against Surety by Rule 65.1 Motion

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.116

19.116 Identify Provision Under Which Surety Provided Security.

19.116[1] Rule 65.1 Motion Available Against Surety When Security Is Permitted or Required Under Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. A Rule 65.1 motion to enforce the liability of a surety is available whenever the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, including the Supplemental Rules for Admiralty or Maritime Claims and Asset Forfeiture Actions, require or permit the giving of security by a party and security is given in the form of a bond or stipulation or other undertaking. Provisions for the posting of security are found throughout the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, including:

- As condition for stay of proceedings to enforce judgment [Fed R Civ P 62(c), (d), (h); ED Cal Gen LR 151(d)].

Cross Reference:

12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 62.03 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

- Incidental to attachment and other provisional remedies for which state law requiring security applies [Fed R Civ P 64; ED Cal Gen LR 151(c); CCP § 481.010 et seq.].

Cross Reference :

Attachment and other provisional remedies, see §§ 19.37 -19.84.

- As condition to temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction [Fed R Civ P 65(b), (c)].

Cross Reference:

Security as condition of injunctive relief, see § 19.11.

- As security for costs required by local rule promulgated by the district court [see Fed R Civ P 83].

Cross Reference:

14 Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 83, Rules by District Courts; Judge's Directives (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

- In a derivative action, as required by state law for shareholder to maintain action [see Corp Code § 800(c); Cohen v. Beneficial Indus. Loan Corp. (1949) 337 US 541, 555-557, 69 S Ct 1221, 93 L Ed 1528].

Cross Reference:

5 Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 23.1, Derivative Actions by Shareholders (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

- As security required by Supplemental Rules for Admiralty or Maritime Claims and Asset Forfeiture Actions [Fed R Civ P 65.1; see Supplemental Rules for Certain Admiralty and Maritime Claims, Rules E, F].

19.116[2] Rule 65.1 Motion Not Available in Bankruptcy Proceedings. Sureties under bonds or undertakings in bankruptcy proceedings are under the jurisdiction of the Bankruptcy Court and are governed by Bankruptcy Rules, not Rule 65.1.

Strategic Point--Moving Party:

Determine whether the proceeding against the surety may be brought as adversary proceeding under Fed R Bankr P 9025.

Cross Reference:

10 Collier on Bankruptcy, P 9025.01 et seq. (Matthew Bender 15th ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Bankruptcy LawCase AdministrationExaminers, Officers & TrusteesPreferential TransfersGuarantorsCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesLiabilityCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesProcedures

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
V. PROCEEDING AGAINST A SURETY
A. Determining Whether to Proceed Against Surety by Rule 65.1 Motion

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.117

19.117 Rule 65.1 Motion Available Against Principal.

19.117[1] Creditor May Bring Rule 65.1 Motion Against Principal. The summary procedure of Rule 65.1 applies to a principal as well as a surety on a bond [Squaxin Island Tribe v. State of Washington (9th Cir 1986) 781 F2d 715, 723-724 ; Coyne-Delany v. Capital Dev. Bd. (7th Cir 1983) 717 F2d 385, 391].

19.117[2] Rule 65.1 Motion Not Available for Surety to Proceed Against Principal. Rule 65.1 does not provide for a surety to proceed against its principal [In re UFO Chuting of Haw., Inc. (D Haw 2002) 210 FRD 239, 243 ; see Aerotrade, Inc. v. Republic of Haiti (SDNY 1975) 399 F Supp 618, 618].

Example:

When personal injury plaintiffs sought payment from judgment debtor's insurer under Rule 65.1, insurer could not use Rule 65.1 procedure to assert exoneration and/or subrogation rights against judgment debtor. Those rights had to be determined in an independent action [In re UFO Chuting of Haw., Inc. (D Haw 2002) 210 FRD 239, 243].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesLiabilityCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesProcedures

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
V. PROCEEDING AGAINST A SURETY
A. Determining Whether to Proceed Against Surety by Rule 65.1 Motion

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.118

19.118 Creditor May Bring Independent Action.

19.118[1] Creditor May Bring Independent Action in State or Federal Court. Rule 65.1 is permissive and does not preclude a creditor from bringing an independent action against a surety in state or federal court [Bass v. First Pac. Networks, Inc. (9th Cir 2000) 219 F3d 1052, 1054].

19.118[2] District Court Has Jurisdiction Over Action on Bond Executed Under Federal Law. The district courts have original jurisdiction, concurrent with State courts, of any action on a bond executed under any law of the United States. There is no jurisdictional amount [28 USC § 1352]. Therefore, a party may bring an independent action rather than a Rule 65.1 motion [see Buddy Sys., Inc. v. Exer-Genie, Inc. (9th Cir 1976) 545 F2d 1164, 1169].

Example:

A Rule 65(c) injunction bond to secure a federal court injunction, was in fact a bond executed under "any law of the United States" for purposes of district court's jurisdiction over claim based on it [Milan Express, Inc. v Averitt Express, Inc. (11th Cir 2000) 208 F3d 975, 980].

Exception:

District courts do not have subject matter jurisdiction over matters within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Court of International Trade [see, e.g., United States v. Universal Fruits & Vegetables Corp. (9th Cir 2004) 370 F3d 829]. These matters involve actions by the United States to recover on import bonds given in connection with importation of merchandise from foreign countries [see 28 USC §§ 1352, 1582(2)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionJurisdiction Over ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionJurisdiction Over ActionsConcurrent JurisdictionCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesLiabilityCivil

ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesProcedures

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.119

19.119 CHECKLIST: Determining Surety's Liability Under Bond.

☐ Determine whether conditions for payment under the bond have been satisfied.

Discussion:
See § 19.120

☐ Identify damages available under bond.

○ Injunction bond:

☐ Damages proximately caused by injunction.

☐ Attorney fees only if their payment is specifically secured by injunction bond.

Discussion:
See § 19.121

○ Attachment undertaking:

☐ Damages proximately caused by attachment.

☐ Attorney fees.

☐ Amount of undertaking limits damages

Discussion:
See § 19.122

○ Supersedeas bond.

Discussion: See § 19.123

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsStays Pending AppealsSupersedeas BondsCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesLiabilityCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesProceduresCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsGeneral Overview

121 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
V. PROCEEDING AGAINST A SURETY
B. Determining Surety's Liability Under Bond

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.120

19.120 Conditions for Payment Under Bond Must Be Satisfied Before Initiating Rule 65.1 Motion.

Before initiating the Rule 65.1 motion procedure, the conditions for payment on the bond must be satisfied and the surety's liability must have accrued. The motion will typically, therefore, be brought after resolution of the underlying action in the moving party's favor [see, e.g., Nintendo of Am., Inc. v. Lewis Galoob Toys, Inc. (9th Cir 1994) 16 F3d 1032, 1036]. However, in an unusual case, a party may be entitled to proceed against the bond despite the fact that the merits of the underlying action are resolved against it [see Grupo Mexicano De Desarrollo, S.A. v. Alliance Bond Fund, Inc. (1999) 527 US 308, 119 S Ct 1961, 144 L Ed2d 319] or have not yet been resolved [Qualcomm, Inc. v. Motorola, Inc. (SD Cal 1999) 185 FRD 285, 288].

Example:

A plaintiff was entitled to recover on a bond issued in connection with a temporary restraining order (TRO) obtained by the defendant once the TRO was dissolved and the defendant failed to obtain a preliminary injunction. The denial of the motion for a preliminary injunction constituted a determination that the plaintiff had been wrongfully restrained [Qualcomm, Inc. v. Motorola, Inc. (SD Cal 1999) 185 FRD 285, 288].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesLiabilityCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesProceduresCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsTemporary Restraining Orders

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
V. PROCEEDING AGAINST A SURETY
B. Determining Surety's Liability Under Bond

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.121

19.121 Surety's Liability Under Injunction Bond.

19.121[1] Federal Rules Require Bond for Temporary Restraining Order or Preliminary Injunction to Issue. No restraining order or preliminary injunc-tion can issue except upon the giving of security by the applicant, in such sum as the court deems proper, for the payment of such costs and damages as may be incurred or suffered by any party who is found to have been wrongfully enjoined or restrained [Fed R Civ P 65(c)].

Cross Reference:

Requirements for restraining order or preliminary injunction, see § 19.03 et seq.

19.121[2] Bond May Be Executed When Party Was Wrongfully Enjoined or Restrained. A party is wrongfully enjoined or restrained within the meaning of Rule 65(c) when it turns out the party enjoined or restrained had the right all along to do what it was prohibited from doing [Nintendo of Am., Inc. v. Lewis Galoob Toys, Inc. (9th Cir 1994) 16 F3d 1032, 1036].

19.121[3] Rebuttable Presumption Exists That Wrongfully Enjoined or Restrained Party Is Entitled to Execution of Bond. A rebuttable presumption exists that a wrongfully enjoined or restrained party is entitled to have the bond executed [Nintendo of Am., Inc. v. Lewis Galoob Toys, Inc. (9th Cir 1994) 16 F3d 1032, 1036].

19.121[4] Federal Common Law Governs Damages Recoverable. When an injunction bond is issued under Rule 65(c), the question of what is recoverable under that bond is one of federal law [Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v S.E.K. Constr. Co. (10th Cir 1971) 436 F2d 1345, 1351-1352].

19.121[5] Amount of Recoverable Damages.

19.121[5][a] Damages Recoverable to Compensate Wrongfully Enjoined Party for Injury Caused by Injunction. The wrongfully enjoined party may recover damages for injuries proximately caused by the injunction [Matek v. Murat (9th Cir 1988) 862 F2d 720, 733-734 , abrogated on other grounds by Holden v. Hagopian (9th Cir 1992) 978 F2d 1115 ; see Milan Express, Inc. v. Averitt Express, Inc. (11th Cir 2001) 254 F3d 966, 981].

19.121[5][b] Damages Recoverable From Surety Are Limited to Amount of Bond. The wrongfully enjoined party may recover from the surety provable damages up to the amount of the bond [Nintendo of Am., Inc. v. Lewis Galoob Toys, Inc. (9th Cir 1994) 16 F3d 1032, 1036].

Distinguish:

The principal's liability may not be limited to the amount of the bond [cf. Don Post Studios, Inc. v. Cinema Secrets, Inc. (ED Pa 2001) 148 F Supp2d 572 (bond did not limit liability of plaintiff for damages resulting from wrongful issuance of preliminary injunction); with Minnesota Power & Light Co. v. Hockett (SD Ind 1999) 105 F Supp2d 939 (principal's liability for damages for wrongful preliminary injunction limited to amount of bond)].

19.121[5][c] Attorney Fees Recoverable Only If Bond So Provides. Under federal case law, attorney fees are not recoverable on an injunction bond [Matek v. Murat (9th Cir 1988) 862 F2d 720, 734 , abrogated on other grounds by Holden v. Hagopian (9th Cir 1992) 978 F2d 1115 ; Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. S.E.K. Constr. Co. (10th Cir 1971) 436 F2d 1345, 1351-1352 ; see Bass v. First Pac. Networks, Inc. (9th Cir 2000) 219 F3d 1052, 1055]. However, Rule 65(c) grants district courts wide discretion in setting the terms and amount of the bond [Walczak v EPL Prolong, Inc. (9th Cir 1999) 198 F3d 725, 730, 733]. Therefore, if the district court, exercising that discretion, required the bond to secure payment of attorney fees, fees are recoverable [see Agnew v. Alicanto, S.A. (EDNY 1989) 125 FRD 355, 359-360].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesLiabilityCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesProceduresCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPreliminary & Temporary InjunctionsCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsTemporary Restraining Orders

123 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
V. PROCEEDING AGAINST A SURETY
B. Determining Surety's Liability Under Bond

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.122

19.122 Surety's Liability Under Attachment Bond.

19.122[1] California Law Governs Attachment Undertaking. The forum state's law governs the seizure of property for the purpose of securing satisfaction of the judgment, unless a federal statute applies [Fed R Civ P 64(a)], and determines the circumstances and manner in which attachment is available. This includes undertaking requirements [Paul H. Aschkar & Co. v. Curtis (9th Cir 1963) 327 F2d 306, 310].

Cross References:

Attachment as provisional remedy, see § 19.44 et seq.

13 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 64.13 -64.16 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

19.122[2] Undertaking Is Condition of Writ of Attachment. Before the issuance of a writ of attachment, the plaintiff must file an undertaking to pay the defendant any amount the defendant may recover for any wrongful attachment by the plaintiff in the action [CCP § 489.210; see CCP § 490.010 (wrongful attachment defined)]. An undertaking is a surety, indemnity, fiduciary, or like undertaking executed by sureties alone [CCP § 995.190]. The amount of the undertaking is $10,000, unless on objection to the undertaking, the court determines that the probable recovery for wrongful attachment exceeds the amount of the undertaking, in which case it must order the amount of the undertaking increased to the amount it determines to be the probable recovery for wrongful attachment if it is ultimately determined that the attachment was wrongful [CCP § 489.220].

19.122[3] Amount of Damages Recoverable.

19.122[3][a] Damages Proximately Caused. The liability of a plaintiff for causing a wrongful attachment includes all damages proximately caused to the defendant by the wrongful attachment [CCP § 490.020(a)(1)].

19.122[3][b] Attorney Fees. The liability of a plaintiff for causing a wrongful attachment includes all costs and expenses, including attorney fees, reasonably expended in defeating the attachment [CCP § 490.020(a)(2)].

19.122[3][c] Liability Limited to Amount of Undertaking. The liability of a plaintiff for wrongful attachment is limited by the amount of the undertaking [CCP § 490.020(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsChoice of LawForum & PlaceCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesLiabilityCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesProceduresCivil ProcedureRemediesProvisional RemediesAttachments

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
V. PROCEEDING AGAINST A SURETY
B. Determining Surety's Liability Under Bond

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.123

19.123 Surety's Liability Under Supersedeas Bond.

An appellant may obtain a formal stay of the judgment pending appeal by posting a supersedeas bond [Fed R Civ P 62(d)]. A supersedeas bond guarantees the damages awarded in the district court when an appeal is taken from that judgment. The recovery on a supersedeas bond includes the amount of the judgment, with interest and costs [see Martin v. Clarke (7th Cir 1939) 105 F2d 685, 687 ; see also former Fed R Civ P 73(d)], but does not include attorney fees [Bass v. First Pac. Networks, Inc. (9th Cir 2000) 219 F3d 1052, 1053].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsStays Pending AppealsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsStays Pending AppealsSupersedeas BondsCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesLiabilityCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesProcedures

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
V. PROCEEDING AGAINST A SURETY
C. Moving to Enforce Surety's Liability Under Rule 65.1

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.124

19.124 CHECKLIST: Moving to Enforce Surety's Liability Under Rule 65.1.

☐ Review Rule 65.1 requirements.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 65.1

Discussion:
See §§ 19.126 -19.131

☐ Review local rules and individual judge's rules to ascertain preconditions for filing motion.

Discussion:
Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see §§ 26.12 -26.36

☐ Review terms of bond or other undertaking to ascertain any preconditions to filing motion, such as demand on surety.

☐ Ensure that timing of motion is proper.

☐ Engage opposing counsel in conference attempting resolution as required by local rule.

Authority:
CD Cal Civ LR 7-3

☐ Provide opposing counsel with documentation to substantiate claims for costs, interest, and damages.

☐ Draft motion.

☐ Provide advance notice of motion.

☐ Serve and file motion papers:

○ Serve papers on surety or on clerk of court who will mail copies to sureties if address is known.

Authority: Fed R Civ P 65.1

Form: 19.163 (notice of motion and motion for damages for wrongful injunction)

Warning:

A judgment against the surety will not stand if notice has not been given [Beatrice Foods Co. v. New England Printing & Lithographing Co. (Fed Cir 1990) 930 F2d 1572, 1576-1577].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesLiabilityCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesProcedures

126 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
V. PROCEEDING AGAINST A SURETY
C. Moving to Enforce Surety's Liability Under Rule 65.1

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.125

19.125 Options and Strategy for Moving Party.

The Rule 65.1 motion procedure for enforcing a surety's liability should be used only if payment cannot be accomplished by agreement.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesLiabilityCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesProcedures

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
V. PROCEEDING AGAINST A SURETY
C. Moving to Enforce Surety's Liability Under Rule 65.1

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.126

19.126 Surety's Liability May Be Enforced by Motion.

Under Rule 65.1, a surety's liability may be enforced by motion without the necessity of an independent action [Fed R Civ P 65.1].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesLiabilityCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesProcedures

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
V. PROCEEDING AGAINST A SURETY
C. Moving to Enforce Surety's Liability Under Rule 65.1

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.127

19.127 Surety Submits to Jurisdiction of Court.

A surety who provides security through a bond, stipulation, or other undertaking under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure submits to the jurisdiction of the court [Fed R Civ P 65.1]. This consent to jurisdiction is only in favor of the party entitled to proceed on the bond executed by the surety [Aerotrade, Inc. v. Republic of Haiti (SDNY 1975) 399 F Supp 618, 619].

Cross Reference:

13 Moore's Federal Practice, § 65.1.04 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsIn Personam ActionsConsentCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesLiabilityCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesProcedures

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
V. PROCEEDING AGAINST A SURETY
C. Moving to Enforce Surety's Liability Under Rule 65.1

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.128

19.128 Motion Must Be Timely.

19.128[1] Motion May Be Filed After Determination on Merits of Underlying Action. The surety's liability on the bond, stemming from the principal's liability in the underlying action, must be determined before the motion is filed [see, e.g., Nintendo of Am., Inc. v. Lewis Galoob Toys, Inc. (9th Cir 1994) 16 F3d 1032 ; Buddy Sys., Inc. v. Exer-Genie, Inc. (9th Cir 1976) 545 F2d 1164, 1166-1167]. Typically, a final adjudication on the merits in favor of the person for whose benefit the bond was issued is a prerequisite to the motion [Alabama Mills v. Mitchell (D Col 1958) 159 F Supp 637, 639].

Cross Reference:

Determining the surety's liability, see §§ 19.119 -19.123.

19.128[2] Motion Must Be Filed Before Exoneration of Bond. A Rule 65.1 motion must be brought before the bond is exonerated [Buddy Sys., Inc. v. Exer-Genie, Inc. (9th Cir 1976) 545 F2d 1164, 1166-1167].

19.128[3] Excessive Delay May Be Fatal. Although Rule 65.1 sets forth no time limit for making the motion, a California district court found that a motion to determine damages stemming from a wrongful preliminary injunction made two and one-half years after the final decree dissolving the injunction was unreasonably late [Stoody Co. v. Mikels (SD Cal 1941) 40 F Supp 53, 53-54].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeTime LimitationsCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesLiabilityCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesProcedures

130 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
V. PROCEEDING AGAINST A SURETY
C. Moving to Enforce Surety's Liability Under Rule 65.1

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.129

19.129 Advance Notice of Motion Is Required.

No specific local rules govern advance notice of a Rule 65.1 motion. The moving party must provide the same advance notice of Rule 65.1 motion as the local rules require for any other motion [see , e.g., ND Cal Civ LR 7-2(a) (35 days); SD Cal Civ LR 7.1(e.1) (28 days)].

Cross Reference:

Notice required for motions, see Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.16.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesLiabilityCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesProcedures

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
V. PROCEEDING AGAINST A SURETY
C. Moving to Enforce Surety's Liability Under Rule 65.1

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.130

19.130 Attempt Resolution With Opposing Counsel.

No specific local rules govern attempts at informal resolution prior to filing a Rule 65.1 motion. The moving party must contact opposing counsel and confer to attempt resolution as the local rules require for any other motion [see , e.g., CD Cal Civ LR 7-3 (conference must take place before motion is filed)].

Cross Reference:

Required attempt at informal resolution, see Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.15.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesLiabilityCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesProcedures

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
V. PROCEEDING AGAINST A SURETY
C. Moving to Enforce Surety's Liability Under Rule 65.1

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.131

19.131 Provide Notice to Surety by Service on Surety or by Serving Papers on Clerk.

19.131[1] Notice Must Be Provided to Surety. A judgment against the surety will not stand if notice has not been given [Beatrice Foods Co. v. New England Printing & Lithographing Co. (Fed Cir 1990) 930 F2d 1572, 1576-1577].

19.131[2] Clerk of Court Acts As Surety's Agent. A surety who provides security through a bond, stipulation, or other undertaking under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure irrevocably appoints the court clerk as the surety's agent on whom any papers affecting the surety's liability on the bond or undertaking may be served [Fed R Civ P 65.1]. If the clerk is served, the clerk must then mail copies to the sureties if their addresses are known [Fed R Civ P 65.1].

19.131[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: Direct Notice to Surety.

19.131[3][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. In the Central District, service of the motion on personal sureties must be made pursuant to Fed R Civ P 5(b); service on corporate sureties must be made as provided by 31 USC § 9306 [CD Cal Civ LR 65-8].

19.131[3][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. In the Eastern District, notwithstanding the appointment of the clerk as agent for service of process, any person seeking judgment against any surety must make a good faith effort to give actual notice to the surety of the Rule 65.1 motion or any other action by which judgment is sought against the surety [ED Cal Gen LR 151(k)].

19.131[3][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. The Northern District has no local rules provision on notice to sureties.

19.131[3][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. In the Southern District, service of the motion on personal sureties must be made pursuant to Fed R Civ P 5(b); service on corporate sureties must be made as provided by 31 USC § 9306 [SD Cal Civ LR 65.1.2(g.2)].

Cross Reference:

Local rules governing filing, copies, memoranda of law, and submission of a proposed order, see Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see §§ 26.19[3], 26.20[2], 26.21[5], 26.23[2].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeService of ProcessMethodsService Upon AgentsCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesLiabilityCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesProceduresGovernmentsCourtsClerks of CourtGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

133 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
V. PROCEEDING AGAINST A SURETY
C. Moving to Enforce Surety's Liability Under Rule 65.1

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.132

19.132 Adverse Ruling May Be Appealed to Ninth Circuit.

If the district court decides against execution of the bond, the order may be appealed [see Nintendo of Am., Inc. v. Lewis Galoob Toys, Inc. (9th Cir 1994) 16 F3d 1032, 1033].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesBondsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsExecutionsCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
V. PROCEEDING AGAINST A SURETY
D. Opposing Rule 65.1 Motion to Enforce Surety's Liability

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.133

19.133 CHECKLIST: Opposing Motion to Enforce Surety's Liability Under Rule 65.1.

☐ Review grounds for opposing Rule 65.1 motion:

- ○ Automatic stay of bankruptcy.
- ○ Surety's liability has not been determined.
- ○ Bond has been exonerated.
- ○ Motion is untimely.

Discussion:
See §§ 19.135 -19.137

☐ Review grounds for challenging moving party's calculation of damages.

☐ Determine whether to appeal determination of liability.

Discussion:
See § 19.138

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsObjectionsCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesLiabilityCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesProceduresCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionGeneral Overview

135 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
V. PROCEEDING AGAINST A SURETY
D. Opposing Rule 65.1 Motion to Enforce Surety's Liability

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.134

19.134 Options and Strategy for Party Opposing Rule 65.1 Motion.

Before opposing the Rule 65.1 motion, counsel for the surety should determine if anything can be gained by that opposition. Entering into a negotiated payment may be more advantageous for the client if the moving party will compromise on damages.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureSettlementsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsObjectionsCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesLiabilityCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesProcedures

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
V. PROCEEDING AGAINST A SURETY
D. Opposing Rule 65.1 Motion to Enforce Surety's Liability

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.135

19.135 Rule 65.1 Procedure May Be Delayed by Injunction.

The summary Rule 65.1 procedures to enforce a surety's liability may be delayed by an injunction. While Rule 65.1 provides a simplified procedure for collecting on a bond, this does not mean that such a procedure, like the more complicated procedure of a full-fledged lawsuit, cannot be stayed by a lawfully entered injunction [Celotex Corp. v. Edwards (1995) 514 US 300, 311-312, 115 S Ct 1493, 131 L Ed2d 403].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of injunctive relief, see § 19.03 et seq.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesBondsObjectionsCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesLiabilityCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesProceduresCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
V. PROCEEDING AGAINST A SURETY
D. Opposing Rule 65.1 Motion to Enforce Surety's Liability

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.136

19.136 District Court Lacks Jurisdiction Over Suit on Injunction Bond Once Bond Is Exonerated.

A district court cannot entertain jurisdiction over a suit on an injunction bond after the bond has been exonerated [Buddy Sys., Inc. v. Exer-Genie, Inc. (9th Cir 1976) 545 F2d 1164, 1166 (jurisdiction under 28 USC § 1352)]. Likewise, the district court should lack jurisdiction to entertain a Rule 65.1 motion after the bond has been exonerated.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionJurisdiction Over ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsObjectionsCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesLiabilityCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesProcedures

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
V. PROCEEDING AGAINST A SURETY
D. Opposing Rule 65.1 Motion to Enforce Surety's Liability

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.137

19.137 Motion Must Be Timely.

Although Rule 65.1 sets forth no time limit for making the motion, a California district court found that a motion to determine damages stemming from a wrongful preliminary injunction made two-and-a-half years after the final decree dissolving the injunction was unreasonably late [Stoody Co. v. Mikels (SD Cal 1941) 40 F Supp 53, 53-54].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeTime LimitationsCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesProceduresCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPreliminary & Temporary Injunctions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
V. PROCEEDING AGAINST A SURETY
D. Opposing Rule 65.1 Motion to Enforce Surety's Liability

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.138

19.138 Appeal From Determination of Liability.

The surety may appeal to the court of appeals from the district court's final determination of its liability on the bond [Nintendo of Am., Inc. v. Lewis Galoob Toys, Inc. (9th Cir 1994) 16 F3d 1032, 1033]. The court of appeals reviews de novo a district court's decision to execute a bond [Nintendo of Am., Inc. v. Lewis Galoob Toys, Inc. (9th Cir 1994) 16 F3d 1032, 1033 ; Matek v. Murat (9th Cir 1988) 862 F2d 720, 733 , abrogated on other grounds by, Holden v. Hagopian (9th Cir 1992) 978 F2d 1115]. A district court's computation of damages is reviewed under the clearly erroneous standard [Nintendo of Am., Inc. v. Lewis Galoob Toys, Inc. (9th Cir 1994) 16 F3d 1032, 1033].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesBondsExecutionsCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesLiabilityCivil ProcedureRemediesBondsSuretiesProceduresCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewClearly Erroneous Review

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
VI. DEPOSIT OF MONEY OR PROPERTY INTO COURT
A. Determining Whether to Seek Leave to Make Deposit by Rule 67 Motion

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.139

19.139 CHECKLIST: Initial Considerations.

☐ Determine whether voluntary deposit is appropriate:

○ As statutory condition of proceeding with interpleader action.

Authority:
28 USC § 1335(a)(2)

Discussion:
See § 19.140[1]

○ As voluntary or court-ordered condition of proceeding with Rule interpleader.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 22

Discussion:
See § 19.140[2]

○ As tender of payment that will stop accrual of interest.

Discussion:
See § 19.140[3]

☐ Determine whether action is pending that seeks, at least as part or relief sought, judgment for money or property capable of being deposited.

Discussion:
See § 19.141

☐ Determine whether disputed money or property is suitable for delivery to court.

Discussion:
See § 19.142

☐ Determine whether to deposit all or part of disputed money or property.

Discussion:
See § 19.143

☐ Consider alternatives to deposit under Rule 67 for handling funds while action is pending, such as:

- ○ Letter of credit.
- ○ Escrow account.
- ○ Joint signature account in names of counsel.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Banking LawBank ActivitiesBank AccountsDeposit AccountsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePartiesInterpleadersRequirementsCivil ProcedurePartiesInterpleadersRule InterpleadersCivil ProcedurePartiesInterpleadersStatutory InterpleadersCivil ProcedureRemediesDeposits in Court

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
VI. DEPOSIT OF MONEY OR PROPERTY INTO COURT
A. Determining Whether to Seek Leave to Make Deposit by Rule 67 Motion

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.140

19.140 Deposit With Court Is Appropriate in Interpleader and to Stop Accrual of Interest.

19.140[1] Deposit Is Condition of Interpleader Under Federal Interpleader Act. Deposit with the court of the disputed money or property, or the giving of a bond, is a condition of maintaining a federal statutory interpleader action [28 USC § 1335(a)(2)]. Failure to deposit the entire amount in controversy is a jurisdictional defect [see American Smelting & Refining Co. v. Naviera Andes Peruana, SA (SDNY 1959) 182 F Supp 897, 898].

Cross Reference:

Requirements of statutory impleader, see Ch. 4, Determining Parties to the Action, see §§ 4.56[1], 4.57[1], 4.58[1], 4.59[1][a], [2][a].

19.140[2] Deposit May Be Required As Condition of Proceeding With Rule Interpleader. In an interpleader action under Fed R Civ P 22, the stakeholder is not required to deposit the disputed money or property with the court [see Gelfgren v. Republic Nat'l Life Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1982) 680 F2d 79, 82]. However, Rule 67 permits the deposit and allows the court to order the party in possession of property to deposit it with the court [Fed R Civ P 67; see Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. v. Fernandez (SD Fla 1979) 489 F Supp 434].

Cross Reference:

Requirements of rule interpleader, see Ch. 4, Determining Parties to the Action, see §§ 4.56[2], 4.57[2], 4.58[2], 4.59[1][b].

19.140[3] Deposit Will Stop Accrual of Interest. If leave of court is obtained to deposit money or property with the court under Rule 67, and the deposit is made, that deposit will stop the accrual of interest pending a final resolution of the rights of the parties with respect to the fund [see Cajun Elec. Power Coop., Inc. v. Riley Stoker Corp. (5th Cir 1990) 901 F2d 441, 445 ; United States ex rel. Garrett v. Midwest Constr. Co. (5th Cir 1980) 619 F2d 349, 353]. However, a Rule 67 deposit cannot be used to alter the contractual relationship or duties of the parties [see LTV Corp. v. Gulf States Steel, Inc. (DC Cir 1992) 969 F2d 1050, 1063].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePartiesInterpleadersRequirementsCivil ProcedurePartiesInterpleadersRule InterpleadersCivil ProcedurePartiesInterpleadersStatutory InterpleadersCivil ProcedureRemediesDeposits in CourtCivil ProcedureRemediesJudgment InterestPrejudgment Interest

142 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
VI. DEPOSIT OF MONEY OR PROPERTY INTO COURT
A. Determining Whether to Seek Leave to Make Deposit by Rule 67 Motion

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.141

19.141 Action Must Seek Judgment for Money or Property Capable of Being Deposited.

Under Rule 67, a party with leave of court may deposit money or other property with the court in an action in which any part of the relief sought is a judgment for a sum of money or the disposition of a sum of money or other thing capable of delivery [Fed R Civ P 67(a)].

Example:

Rule 67 did not permit deposit of funds into court when plaintiff petitioned for confirmation of arbitration award, therefore not seeking a money judgment [Eurolines Shipping Co. v. Metal Transp. Corp. (SDNY 1980) 491 F Supp 590, 592].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesDeposits in Court

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
VI. DEPOSIT OF MONEY OR PROPERTY INTO COURT
A. Determining Whether to Seek Leave to Make Deposit by Rule 67 Motion

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.142

19.142 Money or Property Must Be Suitable for Delivery to Court.

While money is the most commonly deposited thing under Rule 67, the rule allows for the deposit of any thing capable of delivery [Fed R Civ P 67(a)]. However, the court has the discretion to refuse to authorize the deposit of other types of property [see John v. Sotheby's, Inc. (SDNY 1992) 141 FRD 29, 34].

Example:

A district court refused to grant leave under Rule 67 to allow an auction house to deposit an oil painting, which was the subject of an ownership dispute, with the clerk of the court because the auction house would remain in the case even if the deposit was allowed and the painting would be better preserved if it remained with the auction house, which had facilities to store the work [John v. Sotheby's, Inc. (SDNY 1992) 141 FRD 29, 34].

The court also has the discretion to refuse to allow the deposit of money when the deposit would impose an unnecessary burden on the clerk and would not affect the involvement of the depositor in the litigation [see Design Benefit Plans v. Enright (ND Ill 1996) 940 F Supp 200, 207].

Example:

An insurance agency involved in a dispute with a former agent over unpaid commissions and breach of restrictive covenants was not permitted to deposit the disputed commissions with the clerk under Rule 67. Allowing the deposit would involve substantial sums in excess of $4 million, entail a series of ongoing deposits, and not affect the involvement of the agency in the litigation [Design Benefit Plans v. Enright (ND Ill 1996) 940 F Supp 200, 206-207].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDiscretionCivil ProcedureRemediesDeposits in CourtGovernmentsCourtsClerks of Court

144 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
VI. DEPOSIT OF MONEY OR PROPERTY INTO COURT
A. Determining Whether to Seek Leave to Make Deposit by Rule 67 Motion

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.143

19.143 All or Only Part of Disputed Money or Property May Be Deposited.

Rule 67 permits the deposit of "all or part of the money or thing" in dispute [Fed R Civ P 67].

Distinguish:
In a statutory interpleader action, the entire sum in dispute must be deposited [28 USC § 1335(a)(2)].

Strategic Point:

Even if the client wants to only deposit only a part of the disputed sum, the court retains the discretion to require a deposit of the full amount [see LTV Corp. v. Gulf States Steel, Inc. (DC Cir 1992) 969 F2d 1050].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePartiesInterpleadersRequirementsCivil ProcedurePartiesInterpleadersStatutory InterpleadersCivil ProcedureRemediesDeposits in Court

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
VI. DEPOSIT OF MONEY OR PROPERTY INTO COURT
B. Moving for Leave to Deposit Disputed Money or Property With Court

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.144

19.144 CHECKLIST: Moving for Leave to Deposit Disputed Money or Property With Court.

☐ Review Rule 67 requirements.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 67

Discussion:
See §§ 19.146 -19.150

☐ Review local rules and individual judge's rules to ascertain preconditions for filing motion.

Timing:
Ensure that timing of motion is proper.

☐ Draft motion, or stipulation, and proposed order.

Discussion:
See § see § 19.146 -19.149

Form:
See § 19.164

☐ Obtain clerk's pre-approval of order if required by local rule.

Discussion:
See § 19.149[2]

☐ Serve and file motion papers:

- ○ Notice of motion.
- ○ Supporting affidavits.
- ○ Memorandum of points and authorities.

Discussion:
See §§ 19.146, 19.147

☐ Serve court order permitting deposit on clerk of court.

Discussion:
See § 19.150

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesDeposits in CourtGovernmentsCourtsClerks of CourtGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

146 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
VI. DEPOSIT OF MONEY OR PROPERTY INTO COURT
B. Moving for Leave to Deposit Disputed Money or Property With Court

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.145

19.145 Options and Strategy for Moving Party.

The party contemplating a Rule 67 motion for leave to deposit disputed money or other property should consider whether a private alternative, such as a private escrow, for the handling of funds during the litigation are available and whether the other parties to the suit are amenable to making such an arrangement.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Banking LawBank ActivitiesBank AccountsDeposit AccountsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesDeposits in Court

147 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
VI. DEPOSIT OF MONEY OR PROPERTY INTO COURT
B. Moving for Leave to Deposit Disputed Money or Property With Court

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.146

19.146 Motion or Stipulation Is Required to Obtain Leave to Make Deposit Unless Deposit Is Allowed As of Right.

19.146[1] Noticed Motion Is Required to Obtain Leave to Make Deposit Unless Local Rules Provide Otherwise. Under Rule 67, a deposit with the court of disputed money or other property requires notice to all other parties and leave of court [Fed R Civ P 67]. Unless local rules permit otherwise, the application for leave must be made by written motion served on all parties to the action [see Fed R Civ P 5(a), 7(b)(1); ED Cal Gen LR 150(a), (b)].

19.146[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Deposit Allowed As of Right in Interpleader Action. In the Eastern District, it is not necessary to seek specific leave of court before making a deposit into the registry of the court in an interpleader action. Leave of court is granted to make deposits into the registry of the court in all interpleader actions as of right [ED Cal Gen LR 150(a)].

19.146[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Leave of Court to Make Deposit May Be Requested by Stipulation. In the Eastern District, unless the deposit is permitted as of right [see 19.146[2]], leave of court may be requested by stipulation of all parties who have appeared [ED Cal Gen LR 150(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSettlementsSettlement AgreementsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesDeposits in CourtGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
VI. DEPOSIT OF MONEY OR PROPERTY INTO COURT
B. Moving for Leave to Deposit Disputed Money or Property With Court

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.147

19.147 Notice Is Required for Motion.

19.147[1] General Notice Rules Apply Unless Local Rules Specify Otherwise. Unless otherwise specified, the moving party must provide the same advance notice of Rule 67 motion as the local rules require for any other motion [see, e.g., ND Cal Civ LR 7-2(a) (35 days); SD Cal Civ LR 7.1(e.1) (28 days)].

Cross Reference:

Notice required for motions, see Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.16.

19.147[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Seven Days' Notice Required. In the Eastern District, the motion must be set on the regular calendar of the assigned magistrate judge in Sacramento or Fresno not less than seven days from the date of filing and service [ED Cal Gen LR 150(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesDeposits in CourtGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
VI. DEPOSIT OF MONEY OR PROPERTY INTO COURT
B. Moving for Leave to Deposit Disputed Money or Property With Court

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.148

19.148 Money Must Be Deposited With Treasurer or Designated Depository.

19.148[1] Money Must Be Deposited in Name of and to Credit of Court. Money deposited with the clerk under Rule 67 must be deposited with the Treasurer of the United States or a designated depository, in the name of and to the credit of the court [Fed R Civ P 67(b); 28 USC § 2041]. The funds deposited must be deposited in an interest-bearing account or invested in an interest-bearing instrument approved by the court [Fed R Civ P 67(b)].

19.148[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Depositor May Request Special Placement. In the Eastern District, when no specific order is given as to the form or placement of the deposit, the deposit will be placed in an interest-bearing account at a financial institution designated by General Order of the Court as qualifying for the deposit of registry funds [ED Cal Gen LR 150(c)]. However, the depositor, or another party, may request that the money be placed in a particular type of account or in a particular financial institution or that other particular provisions govern the placement of the deposit [ED Cal Gen LR 150(d)].

19.148[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements--Moving Party Must Request Deposit in Other Than Passbook Savings Account. In the Southern District, unless otherwise ordered by the district judge, all funds deposited in the registry in which the principal exceeds $4,999.99 will be deposited in a passbook savings account [SD Cal Civ LR 67.1(c.1)] and the moving party must request a deposit under other terms if desired.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Banking LawBank ActivitiesBank AccountsDeposit AccountsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesDeposits in CourtGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
VI. DEPOSIT OF MONEY OR PROPERTY INTO COURT
B. Moving for Leave to Deposit Disputed Money or Property With Court

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.149

19.149 Order Must Comply With Federal And Local Rules.

19.149[1] Order Required to Make Deposit Unless Local Rule Provides for Deposit As of Right. Under Rule 67, a deposit with the court of disputed money or other property requires an order granting leave of court to make the deposit [Fed R Civ P 67(a)]. However, in the Eastern District, leave of court is granted to make deposits into the registry of the court in all interpleader actions as of right [ED Cal Gen LR 150(a)].

19.149[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Proposed Order Must Be Served on Clerk for Approval. In the Eastern District, when service of the motion is made [see 19.147[2]], a copy of the proposed order must be personally delivered promptly to the Clerk or Deputy Chief Clerk for inspection [ED Cal Gen LR 150(b)]. A copy of the proposed order must also be personally delivered to the Clerk or Deputy Chief Clerk when the parties have stipulated to deposit [ED Cal Gen LR 150(c); see 19.146[3]]. The Clerk will then inspect the proposed order for proper form and content and compliance with ED Cal Gen LR 150 before signature by the court. The order must contain the words "Approved as to Form _____, Clerk, U.S. District Court" [ED Cal Gen LR 150(e)].

19.149[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Order Must Specify Amount and Placement of Deposit. In the Eastern District, the order directing the clerk to invest the deposited funds must include [ED Cal Gen LR 150(f)]:

- The amount to be invested.
- The name of the approved depository.
- A designation of the type of account or instrument in which the funds must be invested.

19.149[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements--Order Must Specify Amount and Placement of Deposit. The order directing the clerk to invest the deposited funds must include [SD Cal Civ LR 67.1(d.2)]:

- The amount to be invested.

- The name of the approved depository.

- A designation of the type of account or instrument in which the funds must be invested.

- Wording that directs the clerk to assess a charge for the handling of the funds in accordance with the fee schedule issued by the Director of the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts.

- The following paragraph: "IT IS ORDERED that counsel present-ing this order personally serve a copy thereof on the clerk or the chief deputy. Absent the aforementioned service, the clerk is hereby relieved of any personal liability relative to compliance with this order."

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePartiesInterpleadersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesDeposits in CourtGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
VI. DEPOSIT OF MONEY OR PROPERTY INTO COURT
B. Moving for Leave to Deposit Disputed Money or Property With Court

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.150

19.150 Service of Order Must Comply With Federal and Local Rules.

19.150[1] Serve Order Permitting Deposit on Clerk of Court and Other Parties. The party making the deposit must serve the order permitting deposit on the clerk of the court, as well as all other parties [Fed R Civ P 67]. This assures that the clerk knows what is being deposited and what treatment has been ordered for the particular deposit [Fed R Civ P 67, Committee Note of 1983].

19.150[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Counsel for Depositor Has Responsibility of Personal Delivery of Order to Clerk. In the Eastern District, counsel presenting the order must deliver a signed copy to the clerk or chief deputy clerk personally. Absent personal service, the clerk is relieved of any personal liability relating to compliance with the order [ED Cal Gen LR 150(g)].

19.150[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Personal Service Required on Designated Clerk. In the Central District, for purposes of Rule 67, service on the clerk of court of an order for deposit to an interest-bearing account means personal service on the clerk, chief deputy clerk, finance director or fiscal operations officer [CD Cal Civ LR 67-1].

19.150[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements--Personal Service on Clerk Required If Order Directs Deposit in Other Than Passbook Savings Account. In the Southern District, it is the responsibility of the interested party to serve the clerk or chief deputy clerk personally with any order that directs a registry deposit other than of funds into a passbook savings account. If the clerk or chief deputy clerk is not personally served with the order, it will be presumed that the court has no notice, actual or constructive, of the terms and conditions of the order [SD Cal Civ LR 67.1(d.1)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesDeposits in CourtGovernmentsCourtsClerks of CourtGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
VI. DEPOSIT OF MONEY OR PROPERTY INTO COURT
B. Moving for Leave to Deposit Disputed Money or Property With Court

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.151

19.151 Adverse Ruling May Be Appealed to Ninth Circuit.

The decision whether to allow a Rule 67 deposit, and in what amount, lies within the discretion of the district court [LTV Corp. v. Gulf States Steel, Inc. (DC Cir 1992) 969 F2d 1050]. If the district court decides against granting leave to make the deposit, the order may be appealed and is subject to review under an abuse of discretion standard [see, e.g., Cajun Elec. Power Coop., Inc. v. Riley Stoker Corp. (5th Cir 1990) 901 F2d 441]. However, the granting of a Rule 67 motion is not appealable [see Standard Ins. Co. v. Saklad (9th Cir 1995) 1995 US App LEXIS 24098, at *4 (unpublished opinion; generally not citable to court under 9th Cir R 36-3)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesDeposits in CourtCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewAbuse of Discretion

153 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
VI. DEPOSIT OF MONEY OR PROPERTY INTO COURT
C. Withdrawing the Deposit

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.152

19.152 CHECKLIST: Withdrawing the Deposit.

☐ Determine whether conditions for withdrawal have been met.

☐ Determine whether other parties will stipulate to withdrawal.

Discussion:
See § 19.154

☐ Draft order for disbursement.

Discussion:
See § 19.155

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureSettlementsSettlement AgreementsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesDeposits in Court

154 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
VI. DEPOSIT OF MONEY OR PROPERTY INTO COURT
C. Withdrawing the Deposit

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.153

19.153 Money Earns Interest While on Deposit.

The funds deposited must be deposited in an interest-bearing account or invested in an interest-bearing instrument approved by the court [Fed R Civ P 67(b)]. The interest is paid to the prevailing party, less any amount paid to the court clerk as a registry fund fee [see 28 USC §§ 1914, 2041; ED Cal Gen LR 150(i); CD Cal Civ LR 67-2; SD Cal Civ LR 67.1(c.2)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Banking LawBank ActivitiesBank AccountsDeposit AccountsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesDeposits in Court

155 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
VI. DEPOSIT OF MONEY OR PROPERTY INTO COURT
C. Withdrawing the Deposit

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.154

19.154 Claimant Must Show Right to Withdraw Funds.

While the court must decide to whom a sum in the registry of the court is to be paid [Wood v. Motorola, Inc. (D Haw 1984) 587 F Supp 531, 532 ; Reliable Marine Boiler Repair, Inc. v. Sum of $35,000.00 (SDNY 1967) 270 F Supp 1017, 1020], the claimant has the burden of showing that he or she has the right to withdraw the funds deposited in court [Hansen v. United States (8th Cir 1965) 340 F2d 142, 144]. Generally, withdrawal of registry funds will not be permitted until the dispute over the funds has been decided. In the Southern District, if the dispute is decided by entry of judgment following a court or jury trial, the order for disbursement will be issued only after the time for appeal has expired or on written stipulation of all parties approved by the court [SD Cal Civ LR 67.1(a)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesDeposits in Court

156 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
VI. DEPOSIT OF MONEY OR PROPERTY INTO COURT
C. Withdrawing the Deposit

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.155

19.155 Order for Disbursement Must Comply With Federal and Local Rules.

19.155[1] Court Order Required to Withdraw Deposit. Money deposited cannot be withdrawn except by court order [Fed R Civ P 67(b); 28 USC § 2042].

19.155[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Order Must Specifically Direct Clerk to Disburse Funds. In the Eastern District, an Order for Disbursement must be presented to the court before whom the action is pending for approval and signature. The order must contain specific language "directing the Clerk to disburse funds" to the parties or otherwise as specifically stated in the order [ED Cal Gen LR 150(h)].

19.155[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements--Order Must Be Entitled "Order to Disburse Funds" and Contain Other Specified Information. In the Southern District, each order directing the clerk to disburse funds must be clearly entitled "Order to Disburse Funds" [SD Cal Civ LR 67.1(a)]. The order must also be without conditions to be met prior to the disbursement of the funds and must contain [SD Cal Civ LR 67.1(a)]:

- The taxpayer identification number of the party entitled to the funds.
- The mailing address of the party entitled to the funds.
- Instructions about collecting the fee if the funds have been in an interest-bearing account.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesDeposits in CourtGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

157 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
VI. DEPOSIT OF MONEY OR PROPERTY INTO COURT
C. Withdrawing the Deposit

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.156

19.156 Funds Unclaimed After Five Years Are Deposited With Treasury.

Once the order for withdrawal issues, the money will remain on deposit for five years. Once five years have elapsed with the money remaining unclaimed, the court will cause the money to be deposited in the Treasury in the name and to the credit of the United States. Any claimant entitled to the funds may, on petition to the court and on notice to the United States attorney and full proof of his or her right to the funds, obtain an order directing payment to him or her [Fed R Civ P 67; 28 USC § 2042].

Distinguish--There Is No Escheat:

The deposit of funds unclaimed for five years in the Treasury does not work an escheat as the money is merely transferred and any claims to the money are not extinguished [see United States v. 8.0 Acres of Land (1st Cir 1999) 197 F3d 24, 30].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesDeposits in CourtEstate, Gift & Trust LawIntestacyEscheatReal Property LawOwnership & TransferDeath & IncapacityEscheat

158 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
VII. FORMS
A. Injunctive Relief

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.157

19.157 Order to Show Cause for Preliminary Injunction With TRO.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE _____ DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
_____ DIVISION

_____ [name],	)	Civil Action No. _____
Plaintiff	)
vs.	)
_____ [name],	)	ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE
Defendant	)	AND TEMPORARY
	)	RESTRAINING ORDER
	)

On the declaration of _____ [name of declarant], dated _____, submitted in support of this Order to Show Cause, _____ [describe other documents, by title and date, submitted in support of order to show cause], and on all of the pleadings and proceedings previously filed in this action, it is

ORDERED that defendant _____ [name of defendant against whom injunction is sought] show cause before this Court on _____ [date provided by judge] at _____ [time of day provided by judge], or as soon thereafter as counsel may be heard, at the United States Courthouse located at _____ [address of court], Courtroom _____ [courtroom number], why an order should not be made, conditional on the posting by the plaintiff of an appropriate undertaking to be determined by the Court, enjoining defendant from _____ [describe conduct to be enjoined].

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that pending the hearing of this motion, defendant _____ [name of defendant], defendant's agents, officers, representatives, or other persons having actual notice of this order are enjoined from _____ [describe conduct to be enjoined].

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that service of a copy of this order and of the papers on which it is granted on _____ [party designation and name of party against whom relief is sought] by _____ [specify manner of service, or leave blank space for court to supply] on or before _____ [date provided by judge] shall be sufficient service.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that papers in opposition to the motion must be served on the moving party by _____ [specify manner of service] on or before _____ [date provided by judge].

SO ORDERED.
Dated: _____

_____ [signature]

UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE

NOTES.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 65

Preliminary Injunctions and TROs:
See §§ 19.08, 19.09

Related Forms of Order to Show Cause:
See 11 Bender's Federal Practice Forms, Forms 65:60, 65:61, 65:130-65:132 (Matthew Bender)

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.158

19.158 Motion for Temporary Restraining Order and Preliminary Injunction.

_____ [attorney's name and California Bar number]
_____ [attorney's street address]
_____ [city, state, and zip code]
_____ [phone number]
_____ [fax number]
_____ [attorney's e-mail address]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]
UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE _____ DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
_____ DIVISION

_____ [name],	)	Civil Action No. _____
Plaintiff	)
vs.	)
_____ [name],	)	COMBINED MOTION FOR TEMPORARY RE-
Defendant	)	STRAINING
	)	ORDER AND PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION
	)	(Fed R Civ P 65(a), (b))

Plaintiff moves this court, pursuant to Rule 65 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure:

1. To issue a temporary restraining order _____ [state terms of TRO sought], pending the hearing and determination on plaintiff's request for a preliminary injunction.

2. To issue a preliminary injunction _____ [state terms of preliminary injunction sought], pending the final hearing and determination of this cause.

The grounds for this motion, as more fully set forth in the verified complaint and the annexed affidavits of _____ and _____ [names of affiants], are that: _____ [Summarize grounds for both orders, e.g., 1. These portions of the order of the Commission are invalid. 2. Unless enjoined, the Commission, unless enjoined, threatens to enforce this order. 3. The order and its enforcement are causing and will cause immediate and irreparable injury to the plaintiff. 4. Unless the operation and enforcement of the order be restrained pending final disposition of the action, the injury to plaintiff in the interim will be irreparable even by final judgment for plaintiff. 5. No injury will be sustained by the defendant or by the public through issuance of a temporary injunction.]

This motion is based on the Motion papers, including this document, the Certificate of Counsel, [the attached Memorandum of Points and Authorities,] the supporting Affidavit of _____ [name of affiant], and the verified complaint and all other papers and records on file in this action, together with any argument and evidence that may be presented at the hearing of this motion.
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [signature of attorney]

_____ [typed or printed name of attorney]

_____ [firm name, if applicable]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[Attach any supporting affidavits or declarations and exhibits to those affidavits or declarations.]

NOTES.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 65

Preliminary Injunctions and TROs:
See §§ 19.08, 19.09

Related Forms of Motion:
See 11 Bender's Federal Practice Forms, Forms 65:10, 65:20-65:27, 65:100, 65:101-65:115, 65:120, 65:121 (Matthew Bender)

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.159

19.159 Preliminary Injunction.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE _____ DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
_____ DIVISION

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff	)	Civil Action No. _____
vs.	)
_____ [name],	)
Defendant	)	PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION
	)
	)

This cause came on to be heard on _____ [date] on plaintiff's motion for a preliminary injunction. At that hearing, the court considered the verified complaint, the affidavits submitted in support of the motion and in opposition to it. The court also heard [oral evidence in open court and] the argument of counsel.

After due deliberation, it appears to the court that the defendants _____ [are actually engaged in or have threatened to commit or combination of these] and will continue to commit the acts set forth below unless restrained by this court, to the irreparable injury of the plaintiff. The court has made and filed its findings of fact and conclusions of law on this matter. Therefore, IT IS ORDERED that defendants, their agents, and employees, are enjoined from _____ [specify acts restrained, e.g., holding further hearings closed to the press and the public in the reinstatement appeal of plaintiff].

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that this Preliminary Injunction shall become of full force and effect at the time that the plaintiff post a Bond approved by the Clerk of this Court in the sum of $_____.

This Preliminary Injunction shall remain in full force and effect until the final judgment in this action or until further order of the Court, whichever occurs first.
Dated: _____

_____

UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE

NOTES.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 65

Preliminary Injunctions:
See § 19.08

Related Forms of Order:
See 11 Bender's Federal Practice Forms, Forms 65:50-65:54, 65:70, 65:80-65:82, 65:170, 65:181-65:190, 65:243 (Matthew Bender)

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.160

19.160 Application for Right to Attach Order and Optional Request for Temporary Protective Order.

_____ [attorney's name and California Bar number]
_____ [attorney's street address]
_____ [city, state, and zip code]
_____ [phone number]
_____ [fax number]
_____ [attorney's e-mail address]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]
UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE _____ DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
_____ DIVISION

_____ [name], Plaintiff vs. _____ [name], Defendant	Civil Action No. _____ APPLICATION FOR RIGHT TO ATTACH ORDER [AND REQUEST FOR TEMPORARY PROTECTIVE ORDER]

Plaintiff _____ [name] applies _____ [ex parte or after a hearing] for a right to attach order and writ of attachment [add, if seeking protective order: and a temporary protective order precluding the defendant from transferring, secreting, or otherwise disposing of any asset pending the hearing on the right to attach order].

Grounds for Relief

Defendant _____ [name] is _____ [specify, e.g., a natural person who resides in California or a corporation qualified to do business in California].

Attachment is sought to secure recovery on a claim on which attachment may issue under California Code of Civil Procedure Section 483.010.

Attachment is not sought for a purpose other than the recovery of a claim on which the attachment is based.

Plaintiff has no information or belief that the claim is discharged or that the prosecution of the claim is stayed in a proceeding under Title 11 of the United States Code (bankruptcy).

Plaintiff's claims arise out of the conduct by the defendant of a trade, business, or profession, The claims are not based on the sale or lease of property, the furnishing of services, or the loan of money used by the defendant primarily for personal, family, or household purposes.

The facts showing the plaintiff is entitled to a judgment on the claims on which the attachment is based are set forth, with particularity, in the _____ [verified complaint or the attached affidavit of John Smith].

The amount to be secured by the attachment is $_____, which includes estimated costs of $_____ [add, if appropriate: and estimated attorney fees of $10,000].

Plaintiff is informed and believes that the following property sought to be attached is subject to attachment and a method of levy for attaching the property is provided by the California Code of Civil Procedure: _____ [describe property, e.g., any property of the defendant who is not a natural person].

Plaintiff is informed and believes that the property described above is not exempt from attachment.

[ADD, if court previously issued right to attach order]

The Court has previously issued a Right to Attach Order on _____ [date].

[ADD, if defendant is a nonresident]

The nonresident defendant _____ [has or has not] filed a general appearance in this action.

[ADD, if seeking temporary protective order]

Plaintiff is informed and believes, on application for a Temporary Protective Order, that Plaintiff will suffer great and irreparable injury if the order is not granted because, as is shown in the attached affidavit of _____ [name of affiant], _____ [specify reason order is required, e.g., Defendant is in the process of concealing and transferring her assets for the express purpose of rendering herself judgment proof].

The exact terms of the protective order sought are _____ [specify].

[CONTINUE]

Plaintiff has filed an undertaking in the amount of $_____.
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [signature of attorney]

_____ [typed or printed name of attorney]

_____ [firm name, if applicable]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

VERIFICATION

I declare under penalty of perjury that all of the statements made in this Application are true and correct.

I executed this declaration at _____ [city, state] on _____ [date].

_____ [signature of Plaintiff]

_____ [typed name]

NOTES.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 64; CCP §§ 482.030, 484.020; California Judicial Council Form AT-105

Requirements for application for right to attach order:
See § 19.49

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
VII. FORMS
C. Appointment of Receiver

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.161

19.161 Order to Show Cause--Appointment of Receiver.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE _____ DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
_____ DIVISION

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff	)	Civil Action No. _____
vs.	)
_____ [name],	)
Defendant	)	ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE
	)	APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER
	)

To _____ [name of party, e.g., Mary Jones]:

IT IS ORDERED that you appear before this Court, at the United States Courthouse located at _____ [address], Courtroom _____ [courtroom number], on _____ [date], at _____ [time, e.g., 10:00 a.m.], and then and there show cause why a receiver should not be appointed in this action for the purpose of _____ [state role of receiver], on the ground[s] that _____ [state basis for appointment, e.g., the property is in imminent danger of being harmed or lost].

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that service of a copy of this Order to Show Cause by _____ [moving party, e.g., Plaintiff John Smith], together with all of the papers and materials filed with the Court, by hand delivery to _____ [name of party, e.g., Mary Jones] or his/her/its attorney, not later than _____ [time, e.g., 4:00 p.m.] on _____ [date], will constitute sufficient service of this order.
Dated: _____

_____

UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE

NOTES.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 66

Drafting Order to Show Cause:
See §§ 19.92, 19.105

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.162

19.162 Notice of Motion and Motion for Appointment of Receiver.

_____ [attorney's name and California Bar number]
_____ [attorney's street address]
_____ [city, state, and zip code]
_____ [phone number]
_____ [fax number]
_____ [attorney's e-mail address]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]
UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE _____ DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
_____ DIVISION

	)
	)	Civil Action No. _____
_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff	)
vs.	)	NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION FOR AP-
_____ [name],	)	POINTMENT OF RECEIVER
Defendant	)
	)	Date of Hearing: _____
	)	Time of Hearing: _____
	)	Courtroom No. _____

TO ALL PARTIES AND THEIR ATTORNEYS OF RECORD:

Please take notice that on _____ [date] at _____ [time of day], or as soon thereafter as the parties may be heard, _____ [party's status and name] will move this Court, at the United States Courthouse located at _____ [address], Courtroom _____ [courtroom number], for an order (1) appointing a receiver in this action for the purpose of _____ [state role of receiver], on the ground[s] that _____ [state basis of motion e.g., the property is in imminent danger of being harmed or lost]; and (2) granting such other relief as may be appropriate.

[If required by local rule (e.g., CD Cal Civ LR 7-3), include statement re prior conference of counsel.]

[If required by local rule (e.g., ND Cal Civ LR 7-2(b), 7-4), include supporting points and authorities in the same document as the notice of motion and motion; otherwise, present points and authorities in a separate memorandum.]

This motion is based on this Notice of Motion and Motion, the accompanying _____ [affidavit or declaration] of _____ [name], [add, if appropriate: the accompanying Memorandum of Points and Authorities,] and the pleadings and papers on file in this action.
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [signature of attorney]

_____ [typed or printed name of attorney]

_____ [firm name, if applicable]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[Attach any supporting affidavits or declarations and exhibits to those affidavits or declarations.]

[Attach certificate of service.]

NOTES.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 66

Drafting Notice of Motion:
See §§ 19.92, 19.105

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.163

19.163 Notice of Motion and Motion for Damages for Wrongful Injunction.

_____ [attorney's name and California Bar number]
_____ [attorney's street address]
_____ [city, state, and zip code]
_____ [phone number]
_____ [fax number]
_____ [attorney's e-mail address]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]
UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE _____ DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
_____ DIVISION

	)
	)	Civil Action No. _____
_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff	)
vs.	)	NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION FOR DAM-
_____ [name],	)	AGES FOR WRONGFUL INJUNCTION
Defendant	)
	)	Date of Hearing: _____
	)	Time of Hearing: _____
	)	Courtroom No. _____

TO ALL PARTIES AND THEIR ATTORNEYS OF RECORD:

Please take notice that on _____ [date] at _____ [time of day], or as soon thereafter as the parties may be heard, _____ [party's status and name] will move this Court, at the United States Courthouse located at _____ [address], Courtroom _____ [courtroom number], for:

1. An order setting a hearing to determine the damages suffered by this defendant as a result of the preliminary injunction restraining the defendant, during the pendency of this action, from _____ [specify subject of injunction].

2. An order for a judgment compelling the plaintiff, and the surety on the bond filed by the plaintiff in connection with the preliminary injunction, to pay the damages determined by the Court to the defendant forthwith.

Defendant _____ [name] is entitled to a hearing and an order compelling the plaintiff and the plaintiff's sureties to pay the defendant the damages it suffered as a result of the injunction because:

1. On _____ [date], the plaintiff initiated this action seeking an injunction from this Court restraining the defendant from _____ [specify subject of injunction].

2. On _____ [date], this Court entered its preliminary injunction restraining defendant from _____ [specify subject of injunction] pending final judgment in this action or further order of the Court.

3. As a condition of issuing the preliminary injunction, the Court required the plaintiff to post a surety bond in the sum of $_____, to guarantee payment of any damages that defendant might suffer if the Court's ultimate decision in the action was that defendant was wrongfully enjoined. _____ [Name of surety] was the surety on the bond and pledged to pay the damages in question up to the full amount of the bond in the event that the defendant suffered damages as a result of the injunction and the determination by the Court that the injunction was wrongful.

4. As a result of the injunction, defendant was damaged in an amount in excess of the bond amount. As more fully explained in the Affidavit of _____ [name of affiant], the following damages were suffered by defendant: _____ [set forth facts showing damages suffered by defendant]. These damages were a direct and proximate result of the wrongful injunction in that _____ [specify facts showing causation].

5. On _____ [date], judgment in this action was rendered by this Court in favor of the defendant on the grounds that _____ [specify grounds for decision].

6. As more fully explained in the accompanying Memorandum of Points and Authorities, under the terms of the bond, the defendant is entitled to recover the damages described above from the plaintiff and from the surety on the plaintiff's bond. Under the provisions of Rule 65.1 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure [add, if appropriate any governing local rules, e.g., and ED Cal Gen LR 151], this defendant is entitled to a liability determination by means of this motion and is not required to institute a separate action to recover these damages.

7. Pursuant to Rule 65.1 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, notice of this motion has been given to the clerk of the court.

[ADD, if notice was also provided directly to the surety:]

Notice was also given to the surety as follows: _____.

[CONTINUE]

[If required by local rule (e.g., CD Cal Civ LR 7-3), include statement re prior conference of counsel.]

[If required by local rule (e.g., ND Cal Civ LR 7-2(b), 7-4), include supporting points and authorities in the same document as the notice of motion and motion; otherwise, present points and authorities in a separate memorandum.]

This motion is based on this Notice of Motion and Motion, the accompanying _____ [affidavit or declaration] of _____ [name], [add, if appropriate: the accompanying Memorandum of Points and Authorities,] and the pleadings and papers on file in this action.
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [signature of attorney]

_____ [typed or printed name of attorney]

_____ [firm name, if applicable]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[Attach any supporting affidavits or declarations and exhibits to those affidavits or declarations.]

[Attach certificate of service.]

NOTES.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 65.1

Surety's Liability Under Injunction Bond:
See § 19.121

Motion Procedure:
See §§ 19.124 -19.132

Timing:
See § 19.137

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.164

19.164 Notice of Motion for Leave to Make Deposit in Court Following Refusal of Tendered Payment.

_____ [attorney's name and California Bar number]
_____ [attorney's street address]
_____ [city, state, and zip code]
_____ [phone number]
_____ [fax number]
_____ [attorney's e-mail address]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]
UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE _____ DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
_____ DIVISION

_____ [name],	Civil Action No. _____
Plaintiff
vs.	NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION FOR LEAVE TO MAKE DEPOSIT
_____ [name],
Defendant
	Date of Hearing: _____
	Time of Hearing: _____
	Courtroom No. _____

TO ALL PARTIES AND THEIR ATTORNEYS OF RECORD:

Please take notice that on _____ [date] at _____ [time of day], or as soon thereafter as the parties may be heard, _____ [party's status and name] will move this Court, at the United States Courthouse located at _____ [address], Courtroom _____ [courtroom number], for an order, pursuant to Fed R Civ P 67, granting leave to deposit the sum of $_____ with the court and that, following the deposit, _____ [party's status and name] be discharged from liability as to that sum, as well as any interest that may accrue on that sum.

_____ [Party's status and name] contends that the deposit should be permitted because:

1. This action involves a claim _____ [specify nature of claim and reason for deposit, e.g., asserted by Plaintiff John Smith on a written contract. In her answer, Defendant Mary Jones has admitted the validity of the obligation and that the sum of $125,000 is due and owing to Plaintiff. Defendant has denied that any other or additional sums are due and owing. On April 1, 2003, Defendant tendered to Plaintiff the said sum of $125,000, which Defendant contends is sufficient to pay all of Defendant's obligations on the written contract that is the subject of this suit. Plaintiff refused the tender].

2. Unless the deposit is allowed, and the _____ [party's status and name] is released from liability on this agreed sum, this sum may continue to generate interest under the controlling law of the State of _____. In contrast, if the deposit is allowed, _____ [party's status and name] may be excused from any further obligations on this sum, including interest obligations caused by the refusal of _____ [opposing party's status and name] to accept payment of this sum.

[If required by local rule (e.g., CD Cal Civ LR 7-3), include statement re prior conference of counsel.]

[If required by local rule (e.g., ND Cal Civ LR 7-2(b), 7-4), include supporting points and authorities in the same document as the notice of motion and motion; otherwise, present points and authorities in a separate memorandum.]

This motion is based on this Notice of Motion and Motion, the accompanying _____ [affidavit or declaration] of _____ [name], [add, if appropriate: the accompanying Memorandum of Points and Authorities,] and the pleadings and papers on file in this action.
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [signature of attorney]

_____ [typed or printed name of attorney]

_____ [firm name, if applicable]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[Attach any supporting affidavits or declarations and exhibits to those affidavits or declarations.]

[Attach certificate of service.]

NOTES.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 67

Drafting Motion:
See §§ 19.146 -19.150

166 of 166 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 5 Provisional Remedies
CHAPTER 19 Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies
VII. FORMS
F. Local District Court Forms

2-19 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 19.165

19.165 Local Central District Court Attachment Forms.

Click here to view image.

Go to Interactive Fillable Form.
Download HotDocs(R) Player at www.hotdocs.com/downloads/player/latest

Right to Attach Order After Hearing and Order for Issuance of Writ of Attachment After Hearing (CV-4B)

Click here to view image.

Go to Interactive Fillable Form.
Download HotDocs(R) Player at www.hotdocs.com/downloads/player/latest

Notice of Attachment (CV-4C)

Click here to view image.

Go to Interactive Fillable Form.
Download HotDocs(R) Player at www.hotdocs.com/downloads/player/latest

Writ of Attachment After Hearing/Ex Parte (CV-4D)

Click here to view image.

Go to Interactive Fillable Form.

Download HotDocs(R) Player at www.hotdocs.com/downloads/player/latest

Ex Parte Right to Attach Order and Order for Issuance of Writ of Attachment (Nonresident) (CV-4E)

Click here to view image.

Go to Interactive Fillable Form.
Download HotDocs(R) Player at www.hotdocs.com/downloads/player/latest

Application for Right to Attach Order, Temporary Protective Order, etc. (CV-4F)

Click here to view image.

Go to Interactive Fillable Form.
Download HotDocs(R) Player at www.hotdocs.com/downloads/player/latest

Application and Notice of Hearing for Order to Set Aside Right to Attach Order and Release Attached Property, etc. (CV-4G)

Click here to view image.

Go to Interactive Fillable Form.
Download HotDocs(R) Player at www.hotdocs.com/downloads/player/latest

Application for Order and Notice of Hearing to Terminate, Modify, or Vacate Temporary Protective Order (CV-4H)

Click here to view image.

Go to Interactive Fillable Form.
Download HotDocs(R) Player at www.hotdocs.com/downloads/player/latest

Notice of Application and Hearing for Right to Attach Order and Order for Issuance of Writ of Attachment (CV-4I)

Click here to view image.

Go to Interactive Fillable Form.
Download HotDocs(R) Player at www.hotdocs.com/downloads/player/latest

Order to Set Aside Right to Attach Order, to Substitute Undertaking, etc. (CV-4J)

Click here to view image.

Go to Interactive Fillable Form.
Download HotDocs(R) Player at www.hotdocs.com/downloads/player/latest

Notice of Opposition to Application for Right to Attach Order and Claim of Exemption (CV-4K)

Click here to view image.

Go to Interactive Fillable Form.
Download HotDocs(R) Player at www.hotdocs.com/downloads/player/latest

Order to Terminate, Modify, or Vacate Temporary Protective Order (CV-4L)

Click here to view image.

Go to Interactive Fillable Form.
Download HotDocs(R) Player at www.hotdocs.com/downloads/player/latest

Temporary Protective Order (CV-4M)

Click here to view image.

Go to Interactive Fillable Form.
Download HotDocs(R) Player at www.hotdocs.com/downloads/player/latest

Undertaking by Personal Sureties (CV-4N)

Click here to view image.

Go to Interactive Fillable Form.
Download HotDocs(R) Player at www.hotdocs.com/downloads/player/latest

Notice of Lien (CV-4O)

Click here to view image.

Go to Interactive Fillable Form.
Download HotDocs(R) Player at www.hotdocs.com/downloads/player/latest

Application and Order for Appearance and Examination (CV-4P)

Click here to view image.

Go to Interactive Fillable Form.
Download HotDocs(R) Player at www.hotdocs.com/downloads/player/latest

Cross Reference:

Automated HotDocs(R) and PDF versions of these forms may be accessed and filled in from the online version of this publication, and are also available at www.LexisOne.com/forms.

1 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.syn

§ 20.syn Synopsis to Chapter 20: Class Actions

20.01 Scope.

20.02 Objective and Strategy.

20.03 CHECKLIST: Determining Whether Prerequisites to Class Action Can Be Satisfied.

20.04 Options and Strategy.

20.05 Identifiable Class Must Exist.

20.05A Standards to Be Applied in Adjudicating Rule 23 Motion for Class Certification.

20.06 Four Requirements of Rule 23(a) Must Be Met.

20.06[1] Class Must Be So Numerous That Joinder Is Impracticable.

20.06[2] Questions of Law or Fact Must Be Common to Class.

20.06[3] Representative's Claims or Defenses Must Be Typical of Class.

20.06[4] Representative Must Fairly and Adequately Protect Class Interests.

20.06[4][a] Adequacy Has Two Components.

20.06[4][b] Interests of Class Representative May Not Conflict With Interests of Other Class Members.

20.06[4][c] Class Member Must Be Able to Prosecute Action Vigorously.

20.07 Action Must Be One of Four Types Maintainable Under Rule 23(b).

20.07[1] Court May Certify Action Under More Than One Category.

20.07[2] Court May Certify Action Under Rule 23(b)(1)(A) If Separate Actions Would Create Risk of Inconsistent Adjudications That Would Establish Incompatible Standards for Party Opposing Class.

20.07[3] Court May Certify Action Under Rule 23(b)(1)(B) If Separate Actions Would Create Risk of Adjudications That Would Be Dispositive of Interests of Non-Party Class Members.

20.07[3][a] Certification Is Proper If Separate Actions Would Inescapably Alter Rights of Other Class Members.

20.07[3][b] Certification May Be Granted on "Limited Fund" Theory.

20.07[4] Court May Certify Action Under Rule 23(b)(2) If Action Seeks Injunctive or Corresponding Declaratory Relief With Respect to Class As Whole.

20.07[4][a] Rule 23(b)(2) Applies When Class-Wide Relief Is Appropriate.

20.07[4][b] Claims for Damages May Be Included in Action If They Are Secondary to Primary Claims for Injunctive or Declaratory Relief.

20.07[4][c] Manageability Is Relevant Although Analysis Is Not Explicitly Required.

20.07[5] Court May Certify Action Under Rule 23(b)(3) If Common Questions Predominate and Class Action Is Superior Method of Adjudication.

20.07[5][a] Rule 23(b)(3) Class Action Must Meet Both Predominance and Superiority Requirements.

20.07[5][b] Questions Common to Class Must Predominate Over Individual Questions.

20.07[5][c] Class Action Must Be Superior to Other Available Methods of Adjudication.

20.08 CHECKLIST: Filing Action As Class Action.

20.09 Options and Strategy.

20.10 LOCAL PRACTICE: Action Must Be Designated As Class Action on First Page of Complaint.

20.11 Complaint Should Plead Class Allegations.

20.11[1] Allegations Should Indicate That Action May Be Maintained As Class Action.

20.11[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Class Allegations.

20.11[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements.

20.11[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements.

20.11[2][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements.

20.12 Class Action Must Meet Jurisdictional Requirements.

20.12[1] Named Plaintiff Must Have Constitutional Standing.

20.12[1][a] Court Must Dismiss for Lack of Standing at Beginning of Suit.

20.12[1][b] Mootness of Representative's Claim After Certification Does Not Require Dismissal.

20.12[1][c] Mootness Before Certification Does Not Defeat Jurisdiction If Relation-Back Exception Applies.

20.12[2] Federal Jurisdiction Must Be Established.

20.12[2][a] Jurisdiction May Be Based on Diversity or Federal Question.

20.12[2][b] For General Diversity Jurisdiction, Citizenship of Class Representative Is Considered for Diversity Purposes and Class Representative Must Meet Amount in Controversy Requirement.

20.12[2][c] When Amount in Controversy Exceeds $5 Million and Class Members Number 100 or More, Modified Diversity Requirements May Apply.

20.13 Filing Tolls Statute of Limitations for Absent Class Members.

20.14 CHECKLIST: Moving for Class Certification.

20.15 Proponent of Class Must Make Timely Motion for Certification.

20.15[1] Certification Process Initiated by Motion.

20.15[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements.

20.15[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements.

20.16 Court Must Decide Whether to Certify Class at Early Practicable Time.

20.16[1] Early Resolution Is Required.

20.16[2] Court Must Conduct Rigorous Analysis.

20.16[3] Court Has Broad Discretion Within Framework of Rule 23.

20.16[4] Court Will Hold Evidentiary Hearing.

20.16[5] Court May Allow Discovery.

20.16[6] Proponent of Class Has Burden of Proof.

20.16[7] Court Should Not Consider Merits.

20.17 Court May Certify As to Particular Issues.

20.18 Court May Create Subclasses.

20.19 Court May Certify Settlement-Only Class.

20.20 Court May Certify Defendant Class.

20.21 Court Must Issue Written Order.

20.22 Court May Revise Order or Decertify Class.

20.23 Court of Appeals May Permit Interlocutory Review of Certification Decision.

20.24 CHECKLIST: Providing Notice to Class Members.

20.25 Options and Strategy.

20.26 Court May Direct Notice in Rule 23(b)(1) or (2) Class Actions.

20.26[1] Notice Is Discretionary With Court.

20.26[2] Opportunity to Opt Out Is Ordinarily Not Required.

20.27 Court Must Direct Notice in Rule 23(b)(3) Class Actions.

20.27[1] Notice Is Mandatory.

20.27[2] Notice Must Be "Best Notice Practicable."

20.27[3] Class Members Must Be Afforded Opportunity to Opt Out.

20.27[4] Notice Must Set Deadlines for Action by Class Members.

20.28 Class Proponent Ordinarily Must Bear Cost of Notice.

20.29 Interlocutory Appeal of Orders Relating to Notice May Be Available.

20.30 LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Pleading.

20.31 CHECKLIST: Seeking Appointment As Class Counsel and Requesting Fee Award.

20.31[1] Seeking Appointment As Class Counsel.

20.31[2] Requesting Fee Award.

20.32 Options and Strategy.

20.33 Court Must Appoint Class Counsel.

20.33[1] Court Must Appoint Counsel at Time of Certification.

20.33[2] Counsel Should Submit Application to Court.

20.33[3] Class Counsel Must Fairly and Adequately Represent Class.

20.33[4] Court Must Consider Prescribed Factors.

20.33[5] Appointment Order May Address Fees.

20.34 Court May Designate Interim Counsel.

20.35 Attorneys May Request Fee Award.

20.35[1] Claim for Attorney's Fees Must Be Made by Motion Under Rule 54.

20.35[2] Any Attorneys Who Provide Services in Action May File Motion.

20.35[3] Parties and Class Members Must Be Given Notice of Motion and Opportunity to Object.

20.35[4] Court May Hold Hearing.

20.35[5] Court Must Find Facts and State Conclusions of Law.

20.35[6] Court Must Ensure That Fee Award Is Reasonable.

20.35[6][a] Court Must Protect Interest of Absent Class Members.

20.35[6][b] Court Must Calculate Fees by Lodestar Method When Award Is Based on Fee-Shifting Statute.

20.35[6][c] Court May Employ Either Lodestar or Percentage Method in Common Fund Cases.

20.35[6][d] Court Must Calculate Fee Awards in Coupon Settlements in Accord With Statute.

20.35[6][e] Payment to Class Counsel That Results in Net Loss to Class Member Permissible Only If Nonmonetary Benefit Outweighs Loss.

20.36 CHECKLIST: Seeking Other Orders in Class Action.

20.37 Options and Strategy.

20.38 Court May Make Appropriate Orders.

20.38[1] Court May Make Various Orders Under Rule 23(d).

20.38[2] Court May Order Additional Notice.

20.38[3] Court May Limit Communications Between Parties and Class Members.

20.39 CHECKLIST: Settling or Dismissing Class Action.

20.40 Options and Strategy.

20.41 Parties May Voluntarily Dismiss or Settle Claims Before Certification.

20.41A Each Defendant Must Notify Federal and State Officials When Proposed Settlement Is Filed With Court After Certification.

20.41A[1] Defendants Must Notify Officials Within 10 Days of Filing Proposed Settlement.

20.41A[2] Officials to Be Notified.

20.41A[2][a] United States Attorney General Must Be Notified Unless Defendant Is Specified Federal Financial Institution.

20.41A[2][b] State Official With Regulatory or Supervisory Responsibility Over Defendant Must Be Notified.

20.41A[3] Final Approval of Proposed Settlement Cannot Occur Earlier Than 90 Days After Service of Notice on State and Federal Officials.

20.41A[4] Class Members May Choose Not to Be Bound If Notice Not Given.

20.42 Settlement or Voluntary Dismissal After Certification Requires Court Approval.

20.42[1] Court Must Find That Settlement or Voluntary Dismissal Is Fair, Reasonable, and Adequate.

20.42[2] Parties Must Disclose Terms and Identify Side Agreements.

20.42[3] Settlement Is Favored Method of Resolution.

20.42[4] Court Will Consider Various Factors to Determine Whether Settle-ment Is Fair.

20.42[5] Court Must Accept or Reject Settlement As a Whole.

20.42[6] Court Must Order Notice of Proposed Settlement and Allow Opportunity to Object.

20.42[6][a] Notice Is Mandatory for All Types of Class Actions.

20.42[6][b] Notice Must Be Given in Reasonable Manner.

20.42[7] Class Members May Object to Proposed Settlement.

20.42[8] Court May Allow New Opportunity to Opt Out.

20.42[9] Objectors Have Limited Right to Discovery.

20.42[10] Court Must Hold Hearing and Make Findings.

20.42[11] Court May Not Approve Proposed Settlement That Favors Class Members Located Near Court.

20.43 Involuntary Dismissals Do Not Require Prior Notice to Class.

20.44 Judgment Must Indicate Who Is Bound.

20.45 CHECKLIST: Proceedings in Securities Class Actions.

20.46 Options and Strategy.

20.47 Plaintiff Must File Certification With Complaint.

20.48 Plaintiff Must Provide Early Notice to Class Members.

20.49 Other Class Members May Apply to Serve As Lead Plaintiff.

20.50 Court Must Appoint Lead Plaintiff.

20.50[1] Court Must Appoint "Most Adequate Plaintiff" Within 90 Days.

20.50[2] Court Must Presume That Applicant With Greatest Financial Interest Is "Most Adequate Plaintiff."

20.50[3] Court May Appoint Related Group of Persons As Lead Plaintiff.

20.50[4] "Professional" Plaintiffs Restricted From Serving As Lead Plaintiff.

20.50[5] Court's Decision Is Not Appealable Collateral Order.

20.51 Lead Plaintiff Is Entitled to Select Class Counsel.

20.52 Lead Plaintiff's Recovery Limited to Representative Share.

20.53 Attorney's Fees Must Be Reasonable.

20.54 Settlement Notice Must Contain Prescribed Statements.

20.55 Settlement Ordinarily May Not Be Under Seal.

20.56 LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements--Cover Sheet.

20.57 LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements--Electronic Posting.

20.58 General Form of Complaint in Class Action.

20.59 Notice of Motion and Motion to Certify Class Action.

20.60 Order Certifying Plaintiff Class.

20.61 Certification by Plaintiff in Securities Class Action.

20.62 Notice of Motion and Motion to Be Appointed Lead Plaintiff in Securities Class Action.

20.63 Order Appointing Lead Plaintiff in Securities Class Action.

20.64 Local District Court Forms.

2 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
I. STRATEGY

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.01

20.01 Scope.

This chapter covers procedures in class actions, including:

- Determining whether the action meets the Rule 23(a) requirements of numerosity, commonality, typicality, and adequacy of representation [see 20.06].
- Determining whether the action may be maintained under one of the categories of Rule 23(b) [see 20.07].
- Filing a class action [see 20.08 -20.13; Form: 20.58].
- Moving for class certification [see 20.14 -20.23; Forms: 20.59 -20.60].
- Providing notice of class certification and affording class members an opportunity to opt out [see 20.24 -20.30].
- Seeking appointment as class counsel, and seeking a fee award [see 20.31 -20.35].
- Seeking Rule 23(d) orders [see 20.36 -20.38].
- Settling or dismissing a class action [see 20.39 -20.44].
- Special procedures that apply in securities class actions [see 20.45 -20.57; Forms: 20.61 -20.63].

Core Rule:
Fed R Civ P 23.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationCivil ProcedureClass

ActionsClass CounselAppointmentsCivil ProcedureClass ActionsDerivative ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesGeneral Overview

3 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
I. STRATEGY

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.02

20.02 Objective and Strategy.

The class action is a procedural device that allows the resolution of what might otherwise be multiple lawsuits in a single action when the claims that would be the subject of the otherwise separate suits involve similar or identical questions of law and fact. The class action both promotes judicial economy by avoiding multiple and possibly inconsistent adjudications of the same issues in different lawsuits, and allows resolution of claims when individual lawsuits would not be economically feasible because the amount at stake in each individual suit is not worth the cost of litigation. While most cases involve plaintiff classes, defendant classes are also possible under Fed R Civ P 23.

The class action structure imposes additional many procedural requirements that can add to the high level of complexity of class action cases. In addition to developing knowledge concerning the substantive aspects of the case, counsel must also be prepared with respect to the class action prerequisites early in the case so that the court can rule on the class certification issue "at an early practicable time." Moreover, when an action is certified as a class action, the court must become involved in and approve aspects of the litigation that would otherwise be solely in the control of the parties, including settlement and even choice of counsel. The court will take these and similar actions to assure that the parties protect the interests of absent class members.

Many different types of actions may be brought as class actions if the requirements of Rule 23 are met: for example, securities fraud or consumer fraud actions; employment discrimination and other civil rights cases; environmental litigation, RICO actions; antitrust actions, and even personal injury actions. Class actions range from matters with small individual recoveries for class members to cases in which each class member may recover substantial damages even though the number and similarity of the individual claims makes class treatment appropriate. Because many claims are aggregated, the risks in a class action are typically high for both sides.

Detailed Discussion/Forms:

5 Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 23, Class Actions (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

5 Bender's Federal Practice Forms, Rule 23, Class Actions (Matthew Bender).

Cross Reference:

For tips on updating case law and expanding your research with additional resources, see How to Use

Lexis.com With This Publication at the front of this volume.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
II. DETERMINING WHETHER PREREQUISITES TO CLASS ACTION CAN BE SATISFIED

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.03

20.03 CHECKLIST: Determining Whether Prerequisites to Class Action Can Be Satisfied.

☐ Determine whether the proposed class is sufficiently definite and ascertainable so that the court can order the requested relief.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23(c)(1)(B)

Discussion:
See § 20.05

☐ Determine whether the four requirements of Rule 23(a) can be met:

○ Numerosity: The class must be so numerous that joinder is impracticable.

○ Commonality: Some questions of fact or law must be common to the class members.

○ Typicality: The claims or defenses of the class representatives must be typical of those of the other class members.

○ Adequacy of representation: The class representatives must be able to protect the class interests fairly and adequately, meaning, among other things, that:

☐ The class representative has no conflicts of interest with the class.

☐ The class representative is not subject to unique defenses.

☐ The class representative is reasonably familiar with the issues in the case.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23(a)

Discussion:
See § 20.06

☐ Determine whether the action may be maintained under at least one of the categories of Rule 23(b):

○ The prosecution of separate actions would create a risk of inconsistent adjudications that would establish incompatible standards of conduct for the party opposing the class.

○ The prosecution of separate actions would create a risk of adjudications with respect to individual class members that would, as a practical matter, dispose of or substantially impair the interests of the other class members (e.g., an interest in a limited fund).

○ The action seeks primarily injunctive or declaratory relief with respect to the class as a whole.

○ Questions of law or fact common to the class predominate over individual questions, and the class action procedure is superior to other methods of adjudicating the controversy.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23(b)

Discussion:
See § 20.07

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesAdequacy of RepresentationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesCommonalityCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesMaintainabilityCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesNumerosityCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesTypicality

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
II. DETERMINING WHETHER PREREQUISITES TO CLASS ACTION CAN BE SATISFIED

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.04

20.04 Options and Strategy.

The party seeking to have the case certified as a class action must establish each of the four prerequisites under Fed R Civ P 23(a): numerosity, commonality, typicality, and adequacy of representation.

Additionally, the class proponent must establish that the case falls into one of the four categories for which a class action may be maintained under Fed R Civ P 23(b):

- Separate actions might lead to incompatible standards of conduct for the party opposing the class;
- Separate actions might result in orders that would be dispositive of the interests of non-party class members;
- The action seeks injunctive or declaratory relief with respect to the class as a whole; or
- Common questions predominate over individual questions and a class action is superior to other available methods of adjudicating the controversy.

As an implied condition of Fed R Civ P 23, the class proponent must establish that a class exists and can be specifically defined, and that the proposed class representative is a member of the class. The proposed class should be carefully defined in the complaint or in the motion for certification. This is the definition the court will ordinarily consider in making its class certification decision, even though the court has discretion to redefine the class or create subclasses and certify a class based on its redefinition.

Given that the stakes of the action become much greater after a class is certified, the question as to whether a class should be certified will be highly contested in most lawsuits. In fact, in certain cases, the certification question can be the most significant dispute in the case. In the typical plaintiff class action, the class proponent will argue and present evidence that it has met each of the four prerequisites of Rule 23(a), that the action falls into one of the categories of recognizable class actions set out in Rule 23(b), and that the proposed class exists and can be clearly defined. The defendant or defendants will argue that the class proponent has failed to meet these standards.

In a federal diversity suit, Fed R Civ P 23, which lists the criteria for proceeding as a class action in federal court, prevails over a state law that limits the claims that may be brought as class actions [Shady Grove Orthopedic Assocs. v. Allstate Ins. Co. (2010) -- US --, 130 S Ct 1431, 176 L Ed2d 311, 317-318 (Fed R Civ P 23 empowers a federal court to certify a class in each and every case in which the Rule's criteria are met, so that any purported limitation on that power, such as New York state law's prohibition on class actions seeking statutory penalties, necessarily conflicts with it)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the procedure for moving for certification, see 20.15.

Tracking Recent Issues in Class Action Litigation:

Use Mealey's Class Action Litigation Reports to track recent issues in class action litigation:

- Legal tab> Area of Law-By Topic> Class Actions> Search News> Class Actions: Mealey's Litigation Report

  - Sample Search: To track recent issues with regard to class action litigation against pharmaceutical companies, enter the Terms and Connectors search: pharmaceutical and date aft 2008 To save this as a recurrent search in Mealey's Class Action Litigation Report, click the Save As Alert link on the top center of the results screen complete the options on the Save LexisNexis(R) Alert dialog box.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesAdequacy of RepresentationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesCommonalityCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesMaintainabilityCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesNumerosityCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesTypicality

6 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
II. DETERMINING WHETHER PREREQUISITES TO CLASS ACTION CAN BE SATISFIED

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.05

20.05 Identifiable Class Must Exist.

While Fed R Civ P 23 does not specifically discuss the requirement of class definition, Rule 23 implicitly requires that a class exist and that the class be capable of specific and precise definition [see Westways World Travel, Inc. v. AMR Corp. (CD Cal 2003) 218 FRD 223, 230]. A court may never certify a vague or undefinable class because Rule 23 requires the court to state the class definition in its order certifying the class [see Fed R Civ P 23(c)(1)(B)]. Certification may fail if the parties seeking certification do not meet their burden of defining proper classes for the court's consideration [see In re Paxil Litig. (CD Cal 2003) 212 FRD 539, 545].

A class definition is sufficiently precise if it enables the court to determine who the class members are for the purposes of granting relief, and for the purposes of providing notice to the class if notice is required. Class members need not be identifiable by name and need not necessarily be identifiable at the commencement of the suit. A class definition that includes future members is not so vague as to preclude certification [see Probe v. State Teachers' Ret. Sys. (9th Cir 1986) 780 F2d 776, 780].

Less precision may be acceptable in actions certified under Rule 23(b)(2), which seek injunctive relief with respect to the class as a whole [see Fed R Civ P 23(b)(2)]. The court can enforce the relief against the defendant without necessarily identifying all the members of the plaintiff class.

Class membership should depend on objective criteria and not require determination of the merits of the litigation [see Crosby v. Social Sec. Admin. (1st Cir 1986) 796 F2d 576, 580]. A class definition is not proper if it makes the actual composition of the class determinable only at the conclusion of the proceedings [see In re Paxil Litig. (CD Cal 2003) 212 FRD 539, 545].

The court need not make its certification decision on a "take-it-or-leave-it" basis, and may alter the class definition or definitions proposed by the parties. In particular, the court may divide a proposed class into subclasses [Fed R Civ P 23(c)(5)]. This may be appropriate if there are groups within the proposed class that have adverse interests [see In re Unioil Sec. Litig. (CD Cal 1985) 107 FRD 615, 622].

Cross References:

Discussion of the court's certification decision and certification order, see 20.16, 20.17, 20.20.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass MembersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesGeneral Overview

7 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
II. DETERMINING WHETHER PREREQUISITES TO CLASS ACTION CAN BE SATISFIED

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.05A

20.05A Standards to Be Applied in Adjudicating Rule 23 Motion for Class Certification.

The Ninth Circuit has summed up the standards to be applied by district courts in adjudicating a Rule 23 motion for class certification as follows [Dukes v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. (9th Cir 2010) 603 F3d 571, 594 (Rule 23(a) requirements were shown, because large class was united by complex array of company wide practices)]:

- First, district courts must perform a rigorous analysis to ensure that the prerequisites of Fed R Civ P 23 have been satisfied, and this analysis will often, though not always, require looking behind the pleadings to issues overlapping with the merits of the underlying claims.

- Second, district courts may not analyze any portion of the merits of a claim that do not overlap with the Fed R Civ P 23 requirements. (A district court performs this analysis for the purpose of determining that each of the requirements has been satisfied.)

- Third, courts must keep in mind that different parts of Fed R Civ P 23 require different inquiries. (For example, what must be satisfied for the commonality inquiry under Fed R Civ P 23(a)(2) is that plaintiffs establish common questions of law and fact, and answering those questions is the purpose of the merits inquiry, which can be addressed at trial and at summary judgment.)

- Fourth, district courts retain wide discretion in class certification decisions, including the ability to cut off discovery to avoid a mini trial on the merits at the certification stage.

- Fifth, different types of cases will result in diverging frequencies with which the district court will properly invoke its discretion to abrogate discovery. (For example, a district court likely would circumscribe discovery more often in a Title VII case than in a securities class action resting on a fraud on the market theory, because the statistical disputes typical to Title VII cases often encompass the basic merits inquiry and need not be proved to raise common questions and demonstrate the appropriateness of class resolution. Plaintiffs pleading fraud on the market, on the other hand, may have to establish an efficient market to even raise common questions or show predominance.)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesAdequacy of RepresentationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesCommonalityCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesNumerosityCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesTypicality

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
II. DETERMINING WHETHER PREREQUISITES TO CLASS ACTION CAN BE SATISFIED

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.06

20.06 Four Requirements of Rule 23(a) Must Be Met.

20.06[1] Class Must Be So Numerous That Joinder Is Impracticable. Fed R Civ P 23(a) sets out four requirements and the class proponent must meet each requirement for certification. The first requirement is usually termed "numerosity." A court may certify a class only if the proposed class is so numerous that joinder of all the class members would be impracticable [Fed R Civ P 23(a)(1); *see, e.g., In re Wireless Facilities, Inc. (SD Cal 2008) 2008 US Dist LEXIS 69568, at *11-12 (numerosity satisfied when number of potential class members was "in the thousands," spread throughout United States); Abels v. JBC Legal Group, P.C. (ND Cal 2005) 227 FRD 541, 544 (numerosity requirement satisfied when defendants admitted that they sent collection letters to at least 10,000 persons); Chamberlan v. Ford Motor Co. (ND Cal 2004) 223 FRD 524, 525 (numerosity requirement clearly satisfied when likely that at least 150,000 California residents purchased vehicles with alleged defect)]. In assessing numerosity, the court may consider factors such as [see Jordan v. County of Los Angeles (9th Cir 1982) 669 F2d 1311, 1319 , vacated on other grounds, 459 US 810 (1982)]:

- Geographical diversity of class members.
- Ability of individual claimants to institute separate suits.
- Whether only injunctive or declaratory relief is sought.

The requirement that the class be so numerous that joinder is impracticable does not mean that joinder must be impossible. It means only that the court must find that the difficulty or inconvenience of joining all members of the class makes class litigation desirable. Thus, numerosity may exist even if all the class members are known and could be joined [In re Itel Sec. Litig. (ND Cal 1981) 89 FRD 104, 111-112].

Whether joinder is impracticable depends, of course, on the circumstances, but as a rule of thumb, joinder is usually considered practicable for classes of 20 or fewer, while classes of 40 or more usually meet the numerosity requirement [see In re Itel Sec. Litig. (ND Cal 1981) 89 FRD 104, 111-112]. The majority of class actions ultimately certified by the court usually involve large classes, for which numerosity is not a hurdle, although plaintiff must present non-speculative evidence of the number of members included in the proposed class [*see Davis v. Astrue (ND Cal 2008) 2008 US Dist LEXIS 36249, at *26-29 ("given the sheer volume of SSDI beneficiaries with mental disabilities ..., it is hard to contemplate that there are not at least forty-one people who meet the definition[,]" however, plaintiff' statistical evidence was deficient because it failed to create a general idea of size of class)].

The class proponents need not quantify the number of class members with precision. They may rely on reasonable inferences drawn from the available facts in estimating the size of the class [*Fleury v. Richemont North America, Inc. (ND Cal 2008) 2008 US Dist LEXIS 64521, at 37 (original plaintiff in class action could opine, based on his 45 years in watchmaking industry and on recent U.S. Department of Labor statistics, about number of persons who identify themselves as watch repairers in United States and what percentage of this amount were not independent watch repairers and watchmakers)]. This is particularly true when the information regarding the number of individuals is inherently within the opposing party's control [see Westways World Travel, Inc. v. AMR Corp. (CD Cal 2003) 218 FRD 223, 234].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

The failure to make an adequate showing on numerosity, even if all other requirements for certification are satisfied, will lead to denial of the motion for certification, albeit perhaps without prejudice. For example, when plaintiffs satisfied all other requirements for certification but only presented evidence of 33 possible class members, although thousands may have existed, the motion for certification was denied without prejudice [Berry v. Baca (CD Cal 2005) 226 FRD 398, 403-404].

Example:

In an action for injunctive relief challenging a Medicaid policy, joinder was impracticable because the class consisted of poor and elderly or disabled people who could not bring individual lawsuits without great hardship. Additionally, future class members who had not yet been affected by the policy could not yet be identified and, therefore, could not be joined [see Sherman v. Griepentrog (D Nev 1991) 775 F Supp 1383, 1389].

Cross Reference:

Additional discussion of "numerosity" requirement, see 5 Moore's Federal Practice, § 23.22 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

20.06[2] Questions of Law or Fact Must Be Common to Class. The second Fed R Civ P 23(a) requirement is usually termed "commonality." A court may certify a class only if some questions of law or fact are common to the class members [Fed R Civ P 23(a)(2)].

This requirement has been termed "minimal," and is construed in favor of a finding of commonality. The Rule does not require that all questions of fact or law be common to all class members, only that some question of law or fact be common to all class members [Heffelfinger v. Elec. Data Sys. Corp. (CD Cal 2008) 2008 US Dist LEXIS 5296, at *56 (noting that commonality requirement is construed liberally)]. Commonality may be found in cases involving shared legal issues with divergent factual predicates, or in cases with a common core of salient facts coupled with disparate legal theories and remedies [see Parra v. Bashas', Inc. (9th Cir 2008) 536 F3d 975, 979 (district court abused its discretion by failing to find commonality in original class definition for discriminatory pay claim; even though Hispanic employees held different positions, they all shared allegedly discriminatory pay scales); Hanlon v. Chrysler Corp. (9th Cir 1998) 150 F3d 1011, 1019-1020].

Example:

In a suit by prisoners alleging they were discriminated against in parole proceedings because of various physical disabilities, commonality was satisfied because the action challenged a system-wide practice or policy that affected all the putative class members. While the class members had different types of disabilities, they all suffered similar harm from the failure to accommodate their disabilities [see Armstrong v. Davis (9th Cir 2001) 275 F3d 849, 868 , cert. denied, 537 US 812 (2002)].

Cross Reference:

Additional discussion of "commonality" requirement, see 5 Moore's Federal Practice, § 23.23 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

In order to obtain certification of a class under Rule 23(b)(3), the class proponent must show more than commonality under Rule 23(a)(2). The class proponent must also show that the questions of law or fact common to the members of the class predominate over questions affecting only individual class members [Fed R Civ P 23(b)(3)]. For 23(b)(3) class actions, the commonality requirement is subsumed under, or superseded by, the predominance inquiry [see Amchem Prods. Inc. v. Windsor (1997) 521 US 591, 609, 117 S Ct 2231, 138 L Ed2d 689].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the predominance requirement, see § 20.07[5][b].

20.06[3] Representative's Claims or Defenses Must Be Typical of Class. The third Fed R Civ P 23(a) requirement is usually termed "typicality." A court may certify a class only if the claims or defenses of the representative parties are typical of the claims or defenses of the class members as a whole [Fed R Civ P 23(a)(3)]. The typicality requirement should not be a formidable obstacle to class certification. The representative's claims are typical if they are reasonably co-extensive with those of absent class members; they need not be substantially identical with those of absent class members [Hanlon v. Chrysler Corp. (9th Cir 1998) 150 F3d 1011, 1020].

Warning:

Although the typicality and commonality requirements tend to merge, and the typicality requirement is not generally a great hurdle, the plaintiff does have the burden of demonstrating that the typicality requirement has been satisfied. A mere conclusory statement in the pleadings that the named plaintiffs are typical of the class is inadequate [see, e.g., Palmer v. Stassinos (ND Cal 2006) 233 FRD 546, 550].

The purpose of the typicality requirement is to ensure that the interests of the named representative align with the interests of the class. The test is whether the other members have the same or a similar legal injury, whether the action is based on conduct that is not unique to the named plaintiffs, and whether other class members have been injured by the same course of conduct [Hanon v. Dataproducts Corp. (9th Cir 1992) 976 F2d 497, 508].

Differences in the amount of damages are insufficient, by themselves, to defeat class certification [see In re Activision Sec. Litig. (ND Cal 1985) 621 F Supp 415, 428]. Moreover, the physical, emotional, or monetary damages sustained need not be identical or even similar, provided those differences do not affect the viability of the legal theories under which they proceed [see In re Paxil Litig. (CD Cal 2003) 218 FRD 242, 246].

Typicality requires that the class representative have claims against all the defendants in the suit. A plaintiff may not represent class members who have claims against other defendants, even though the claims may be identical in other respects [see La Mar v. H & B Novelty & Loan Co. (9th Cir 1973) 489 F2d 461, 466].

Certification is inappropriate when a putative class representative is subject to unique defenses that threaten to become a focus of the litigation. A motion for class certification should not be granted if there is a danger that absent class members will suffer if their representative is preoccupied with defenses unique to that representative [Hanon v. Dataproducts Corp. (9th Cir 1992) 976 F2d 497, 508].

Example--Typicality Met:

Typicality was met in a suit by prisoners alleging they were discriminated against in parole proceedings because of various physical disabilities. The plaintiffs all suffered a refusal or failure to afford them accommodations as required by statute, and all were objects of discriminatory treatment on account of their disabilities. Minor differences in the nature of the specific injuries would not defeat typicality [see Armstrong v. Davis (9th Cir 2001) 275 F3d 849, 868].

Example--Typicality Not Met:

Typicality was not met in a products liability suit by plaintiffs who took the drug Mirapex for Parkinson's Disease and alleged that the drug caused the side effect of obsessive compulsive disorder (OCD), manifested in among other ways, compulsive gambling. In finding typicality was not satisfied, the district court noted the differences in dosages, timing of onset of the alleged OCD, and other prescription drugs taken by the three named plaintiffs. The court also found it especially difficult to find typicality with the alleged side effect of OCD which it stated was "unusually dependent on external forces" [see Sweet v. Pfizer (CD Cal 2005) 232 FRD 360, 368-370].

Warning:

If the named plaintiffs cannot show that they have valid claims against the defendants, they lack standing to bring the suit, and certification is improper. Moreover, the court lacks jurisdiction over the suit and must dismiss rather than allow substitution of another class member as class representative [see Lierboe v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 350 F3d 1018, 1022-1023].

Cross References:

Discussion of standing, see § 20.12[1].

Additional discussion of "typicality" requirement, see 5 Moore's Federal Practice, § 23.24 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

20.06[4] Representative Must Fairly and Adequately Protect Class Interests.

20.06[4][a] Adequacy Has Two Components. The fourth Fed R Civ P 23(a) requirement is usually termed "adequacy of representation." A class may be certified only if the representative parties will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the class [Fed R Civ P 23(a)(4)]. To satisfy constitutional due process concerns, the court must make certain that absent class members have adequate representation before binding the absent class members to any judgment [Hanlon v. Chrysler Corp. (9th Cir 1998) 150 F3d 1011, 1020].

Adequacy has two components: (1) whether the class representative has any conflicts with other class members, and (2) whether the class representative will prosecute the action vigorously on behalf of the class [Hanlon v. Chrysler Corp. (9th Cir 1998) 150 F3d 1011, 1020 ; *see Kohler v. Hyatt Corp. (CD Cal 2008) 2008 US Dist LEXIS 63392, at *17-18 (plaintiff employees' failure to make required initial disclosures under Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1) and to cooperate in taking of plaintiffs' depositions cast doubt on adequacy of plaintiffs and their counsel to pursue claims asserted on behalf of putative class)].

Before the 2003 amendments to Fed R Civ P 23, adequacy of counsel was also considered when determining adequacy of the class representative. Rule 23 now requires that the court separately appoint counsel who will fairly and adequately represent the interests of the class [Fed R Civ P 23(g)], although some courts continue to consider the adequacy of the representative's chosen counsel as part of the measure of the adequacy of the class representative.

Cross References:

Discussion of appointment of class counsel, see § 20.33. Discussion of appointment of the lead plaintiff and selection of class counsel in securities fraud class actions, see 20.50, 20.51.

20.06[4][b] Interests of Class Representative May Not Conflict With Interests of Other Class Members. A class representative will not represent absent class members adequately if the representative has significant conflicts with other class members [see Hanlon v. Chrysler Corp. (9th Cir 1998) 150 F3d 1011, 1020]. A conflict of interest does not render a class representative inadequate if the conflict is merely speculative or hypothetical, however [see International Molders' & Allied Workers' Local Union No. 164 v. Nelson (ND Cal 1983) 102 FRD 457, 464].

Example:

Two members of the armed forces challenged the constitutionality of a program to collect and store blood and tissue samples for future DNA analysis. These two could not properly represent a class of all service members who were compelled to participate in the program because their interests conflicted with those of class members who approved of the program and wished the policies fully enforced [Mayfield v. Dalton (9th Cir 1997) 109 F3d 1423, 1427].

If a class representative is closely affiliated with class counsel, this may create a conflict of interest with other class members. Significant personal or financial ties may lead the representative to sacrifice the other class members' interests for the benefit of class counsel by, for example, allowing a settlement that provides for large attorney's fees but is less favorable to the class than it could be [see London v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. (11th Cir 2003) 340 F3d 1246, 1255]. For the same reason, class counsel may not serve as class representative [see Matassarin v. Lynch (5th Cir 1999) 174 F3d 549, 559 , cert. denied, 528 US 1116 (2000)].

Personal qualities or motives of the proposed class representative do not determine adequacy of representation, at least not in the usual case. Thus, vindictiveness toward the defendants does not make a named plaintiff inadequate unless the "revenge" motive would lead the plaintiff to reject a suitable settlement or would otherwise lead to a conflict with the absent class members [Kayes v. Pacific Lumber Co. (9th Cir 1995) 51 F3d 1449, 1464 , cert. denied, 516 US 914 (1995)]. Similarly, a criminal record is irrelevant to the issue of adequate class representation when it does not implicate the representative's ability to act as a fiduciary or does not demonstrate any antagonism with class members [In re Activision Sec. Litig. (ND Cal 1985) 621 F Supp 415, 429].

When divergent interests are present among the class members, class certification is proper only if separate subclasses are formed and separate representatives named to represent each subclass. Class proponents may not avoid subclasses for divergent interests among class members through the strategy of appointing several class representatives with divergent interests to represent the class as a whole. Any substantial adversity between subgroups requires independent representation. Adverse subgroups may not be bound to a judgment or settlement except by consent given through representatives who understand that their role is to represent solely the members of their respective subgroups [Amchem Prods. Inc. v. Windsor (1997) 521 US 591, 625-628, 117 S Ct 2231, 138 L Ed2d 689].

Example:

In a class action intended to reach a global settlement of asbestos claims, named plaintiffs with diverse medical conditions were not adequate to act on behalf of a single giant class rather than on behalf of discrete subclasses. For class members who were already injured, the critical goal was generous immediate payments. This goal conflicted with that of exposure-only plaintiffs, who sought an ample, inflation-protected fund for the future [Amchem Prods. Inc. v. Windsor (1997) 521 US 591, 625-628, 117 S Ct 2231, 138 L Ed2d 689].

20.06[4][c] Class Member Must Be Able to Prosecute Action Vigorously. In determining adequacy, the court will consider whether the class representative will prosecute the action vigorously on behalf of the class [see Hanlon v. Chrysler Corp. (9th Cir 1998) 150 F3d 1011, 1020].

A class representative must show a certain amount of familiarity with the action in order to demonstrate that he or she is an adequate representative. A party who is not familiar with basic elements of the claims is not an adequate representative because he or she will be unable to exercise control over counsel's prosecution of the case [see Burkhalter Travel Agency v. MacFarms Int'l, Inc. (ND Cal 1991) 141 FRD 144, 153-154]. The representative must be able to exercise at least a minimal amount of control over class counsel [see Welling v. Alexy (ND Cal 1994) 155 FRD 654, 659].

The adequacy requirement, like typicality, may be defeated if the class representative is subject to a unique defense that threatens to become a focus of the litigation. The representative may fail to represent the class vigorously if he or she concentrates on litigating a defense unique to the representative [see In re Activision Sec. Litig. (ND Cal 1985) 621 F Supp 415, 429].

Some courts require the class representative to show an ability to finance the litigation, or at least to fund the costs of notice to the class [see Rolex Employees Ret. Trust v. Mentor Graphics Corp. (D Or 1991) 136 FRD 658, 666]. Generally, however, class counsel will advance the costs. The California Rules of Professional Conduct allow class counsel to advance the costs of litigation, and repayment may be contingent on the outcome of the case [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-210(A)(3); see Moeller v. Taco Bell Corp. (ND Cal 2004) 220 FRD 604, 612 ; In re United Energy Corp. Solar Power Modules Tax Shelter Inv. Sec. Litig. (CD Cal 1988) 122 FRD 251, 257].

The Ninth Circuit has not ruled on whether the financial status of a named plaintiff is relevant to his or her adequacy. Arguably, denying a class certification whenever plaintiff's counsel advances significant funds to plaintiffs of little or modest means would defeat the purposes that class actions were designed to achieve [see Moeller v. Taco Bell Corp. (ND Cal 2004) 220 FRD 604, 612 , quoting Bartelson v. Dean Witter & Co. (ED Pa 1980) 86 FRD 657, 675].

Cross Reference:

Additional discussion of "adequacy of representation" requirement, see 5 Moore's Federal Practice, § 23.25 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesAdequacy of RepresentationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesCommonalityCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesNumerosityCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesTypicality

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
II. DETERMINING WHETHER PREREQUISITES TO CLASS ACTION CAN BE SATISFIED

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.07

20.07 Action Must Be One of Four Types Maintainable Under Rule 23(b).

20.07[1] Court May Certify Action Under More Than One Category. An action may be certified as a class action if the numerosity, commonality, typicality, and adequacy of representation requirements of Fed R Civ P 23(a) are all met and, in addition, the case falls into one or more of the following categories described in Fed R Civ P 23(b):

- The prosecution of separate actions would create a risk of inconsistent adjudications that would establish incompatible standards of conduct for the party opposing the class [Fed R Civ P 23(b)(1)(A)].

- The prosecution of separate actions would create a risk of adjudications with respect to individual class members that would, as a practical matter, dispose of or substantially impair the interests of the other absent class members [Fed R Civ P 23(b)(1)(B)].

- The action seeks primarily injunctive or declaratory relief with respect to the class as a whole [Fed R Civ P 23(b)(2)].

- Questions of law or fact common to the class members predominate over individual questions, and the class action vehicle is superior to other methods of adjudicating the controversy [Fed R Civ P 23(b)(3)].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:
If the four Fed R Civ P 23(a) requirements and Fed R Civ P 23(b) are satisfied, the court may certify a class action whether or not a class action is a "necessity" [Fernandez v. Department of Social & Health Servs. (ED Wash) 232 FRD 642, 646]. Class certification is appropriate even when the requested relief could be obtained on an individual lawsuit basis [see Zepeda v. INS (9th Cir 1983) 753 F2d 719, 729 fn1].

Courts will often certify classes under more than one category in the same action [see, e.g., In re Northern Dist. of Cal., Dalkon Shield IUD Prod. Liab. Litig. (9th Cir 1982) 693 F2d 847, 850 , cert. denied sub nom. A.H. Robins Co. v. Abed, 459 US 1171 (1983)].

A principal difference between the categories concerns notice to the class and opportunity to opt out of the action. Notice and an opt-out opportunity is mandatory for "(b)(3)" class actions, and discretionary with the court for "(b)(1)" and "(b)(2)" class actions [Fed R Civ P 23(c)(2)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of notice, see §§ 20.26, 20.27.

20.07[2] Court May Certify Action Under Rule 23(b)(1)(A) If Separate Actions Would Create Risk of Inconsistent Adjudications That Would Establish Incompatible Standards for Party Opposing Class. An action may be maintained as a Rule 23(b)(1)(A) class action if (1) the prosecution of separate actions by or against individual members of the class (2) would create a risk of inconsistent or varying adjudications with respect to individual members of the class that (3) would establish incompatible standards of conduct for the party opposing the class [Fed R Civ P 23(b)(1)(A)].

Distinguish:

Both Fed R Civ P 23(b)(1)(A) and (B) address the problem of prejudice caused by the prosecution of individual actions separately rather than as a single class action. Rule 23(b)(1)(A) addresses prejudice to the party opposing the class, while Rule 23(b)(1)(B) addresses prejudice to the class members themselves.

Rule 23(b)(1)(A) applies to cases seeking injunctive or declaratory relief, not those primarily seeking damages. The phrase "incompatible standards of conduct" refers to the situation in which different results in separate actions would impair the opposing party's ability to pursue a uniform continuing course of conduct. Rule 23(b)(1)(A) certification requires more than a risk that separate judgments would oblige the opposing party to pay damages to some class members but not to others or to pay them different amounts [Zinser v. Accufix Research Inst., Inc. (9th Cir 2001) 253 F3d 1180, 1193 , as amended 273 F3d 1266 (2001)]; see, e.g., In re First Am. Corp. ERISA Litig. (CD Cal 2009) 258 FRD 610, 621-622] .

Rule 23(b)(2) certification is not appropriate when monetary relief is predominant over injunctive relief or declaratory relief [Dukes v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. (9th Cir 2010) 603 F3d 571, 617] . To determine whether monetary relief predominates, a district court should consider, on a case-by-case basis, the objective effect of the relief sought on the litigation. Factors such as whether the monetary relief sought determines the key procedures that will be used, whether it introduces new and significant legal and factual issues, whether it requires individualized hearings, and whether its size and nature--as measured by recovery per class member--raise particular due process and manageability concerns would all be relevant, though no single factor would be determinative [Dukes v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. (9th Cir 2010) 603 F3d 571, 617] .

Example--Labor Relations:

A class action might be certified under Rule 23(b)(1)(A) in cases requesting injunctive relief against an employer with respect to employment conditions, practices, or policies [see Mitchell v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (CD Cal 1990) 744 F Supp 938, 944 , rev'd on other grounds, 963 F2d 258 (9th Cir 1992)].

Example--Suits Against the Government:

A class action might be certified under Rule 23(b)(1)(A) in cases seeking injunctive relief with respect to government policies, such as a challenge by a prisoner as to the adequacy of mental health care provided at a correctional institution [see Coleman v. Wilson (ED Cal 1995) 912 F Supp 1282, 1293].

Class members in (b)(1)(A) classes are not entitled to notice of class certification nor an opportunity to opt out.

However, the court has discretion to direct notice to the class in an appropriate case [Fed R Civ P 23(c)(2)(A)]. Although class members of a (b)(1)(A) class do not have the right to opt out of the class even when the court provides notice to class members, the court also has the discretion to authorize opt-out rights for class members in a "hybrid" class action in which incidental monetary damages are sought as well as injunctive relief [see Eubanks v. Billington (DC Cir 1997) 110 F3d 87, 94-95].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of notice and right to opt out, see § 20.26.

20.07[3] Court May Certify Action Under Rule 23(b)(1)(B) If Separate Actions Would Create Risk of Adjudications That Would Be Dispositive of Interests of Non-Party Class Members.

20.07[3][a] Certification Is Proper If Separate Actions Would Inescapably Alter Rights of Other Class Members. An action may be maintained as a Rule 23(b)(1)(B) class action if the prosecution of separate actions by or against individual members of the class would create a risk of adjudications with respect to individual members of the class that would, as a practical matter, be dispositive of the interests of the non-party class members or would substantially impair their ability to protect their interests [Fed R Civ P 23(b)(1)(B)].

Distinguish:

Fed R Civ P 23(b)(1)(B), like (A), addresses the possibility of prejudice caused by the prosecution of individual actions separately rather than as a single class action. Rule 23(b)(1)(B) addresses prejudice to the class members themselves, while Rule 23(b)(1)(A) addresses prejudice to the party opposing the class.

Class actions are permitted under Rule 23(b)(1)(B) if separate actions will inescapably alter the substance of the rights of others having similar claims [Zinser v. Accufix Research Inst., Inc. (9th Cir 2001) 253 F3d 1180, 1196-1197 , as amended, 273 F3d 1266 (2001)].

The stare decisis effect of a ruling in an earlier action is insufficient to warrant certification under Rule 23(b)(1)(B). Certification isproper only if the ruling in the first suit presents the substantial possibility of exhausting the funds available to a defendant to pay later claims, or actually binds absent members of the putative class through principles of res judicata [see La Mar v. H&B Novelty & Loan Co. (9th Cir 1973) 489 F2d 461, 467 ; Mateo v. M/S Kiso (ND Cal 1993) 805 F Supp 761, 773].

Class members in (b)(1)(B) classes ordinarily are not entitled to notice of certification nor an opportunity to opt out. However, the court has discretion to direct notice to the class in an appropriate case [Fed R Civ P 23(c)(2)(A)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of notice and right to opt out, see § 20.26.

20.07[3][b] Certification May Be Granted on "Limited Fund" Theory. The typical Fed R Civ P 23(b)(1)(B) action involves a "limited fund." That is, a class action is appropriate because the class members have claims that must be satisfied out of a particular fund that is insufficient to satisfy all the claims. Examples of possible limited funds include trust assets, a bank account, insurance proceeds, company assets in a liquidation sale, proceeds of a ship sale in a maritime accident suit, and others [see Ortiz v. Fibreboard Corp. (1999) 527 US 815, 834, 119 S Ct 2295, 144 L Ed2d 715].

Certain characteristics are "presumptively necessary" to satisfy the limited fund rationale for certification under Rule 23(b)(1)(B). The plaintiff class must demonstrate that the case involves a fund (1) with a definitely ascertained limit, (2) all of which would be distributed to satisfy all those with liquidated claims based on a common theory of liability, (3) by an equitable, pro rata distribution [see Ortiz v. Fibreboard Corp. (1999) 527 US 815, 841-842, 119 S Ct 2295, 144 L Ed2d 715 ; Zinser v. Accufix Research Inst., Inc. (9th Cir 2001) 253 F3d 1180, 1196-1197 , as amended, 273 F3d 1266 (2001)].

The court may not certify an action under a limited fund rationale unless separate actions will inescapably result in the exhaustion of the limited fund before satisfying the claims of all the class members [see Zinser v. Accufix Research Inst., Inc. (9th Cir 2001) 253 F3d 1180, 1196-1197 , as amended, 273 F3d 1266 (2001)]. The district court must make this determination based on adequate evidence as to the funds available to meet the claims [In re Northern Dist. of Cal., Dalkon Shield IUD Prod. Liab. Litig. (9th Cir 1982) 693 F2d 847, 851-852].

A settlement fund that is limited merely by the agreement of the parties is not a limited fund for purposes of Rule 23(b)(1)(B). Settling parties seeking certification under this subsection must present evidence on which the court may determine that the fund is limited independent of the parties' agreement [see Ortiz v. Fibreboard Corp. (1999) 527 US 815, 848-849, 119 S Ct 2295, 144 L Ed2d 715].

The Supreme Court has questioned whether a mass tort case could be certified under a limited fund theory. Instead, the drafters of the rule expected that such claims would be analyzed under Fed R Civ P 23(b)(3). Assuming that a limited fund rationale could be applied, it would be essential that both (1) the fund be shown to be limited independently of the agreement of the parties, and (2) the class include all those with unsatisfied claims, with intraclass conflicts addressed by recognizing independently represented subclasses [Ortiz v. Fibreboard Corp. (1999) 527 US 815, 864-865, 119 S Ct 2295, 144 L Ed2d 715].

20.07[4] Court May Certify Action Under Rule 23(b)(2) If Action Seeks Injunctive or Corresponding Declaratory Relief With Respect to Class As Whole.

20.07[4][a] Rule 23(b)(2) Applies When Class-Wide Relief Is Appropriate. An action may be maintained as a Rule 23(b)(2) class action if the party opposing the class has acted or refused to act on grounds generally applicable to the class as whole, thus making it appropriate that there be final injunctive relief or corresponding declaratory relief with respect to the class as a whole [Fed R Civ P 23(b)(2)].

Rule 23(b)(2) was intended to facilitate civil rights actions claiming discrimination, and is appropriate with respect to classes whose members are incapable of specific enumeration. However, Rule 23(b)(2) is not limited to civil rights claims [see Fed R Civ P 23(b)(2), Committee Note of 1966].

Class certification under Rule 23(b)(2) is appropriate only when the primary relief sought is injunctive or corresponding declarative relief [see Zinser v. Accufix Research Inst., Inc. (9th Cir 2001) 253 F3d 1180, 1195 , as amended, 273 F3d 1266 (2001)]. Declaratory relief "corresponds" to injunctive relief when as a practical matter it affords injunctive relief or serves as a basis for later injunctive relief. It does not include cases in which the appropriate final relief relates exclusively or predominantly to money damages [Fed R Civ P 23(b)(2), Committee Note of 1966].

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

In an employment discrimination case, back pay is an equitable remedy that falls within the ambit of Rule 23(b)(2) relief [Gotthardt v. AMTRAK (9th Cir 1999) 191 F3d 1148, 1153 ; Williams v. Boeing Co. (WD Wash 2005) 225 FRD 626, 631-632].

Claims that are not for injunctive or declaratory relief may be included as part of the action only if they are secondary to the primary relief. For example, certification is not appropriate if claims for restitution predominate over the claims seeking injunctive relief [see In re Paxil Litig. (CD Cal 2003) 218 FRD 242, 247-248].

Rule 23(b)(2) requires that the defendant's actions (or refusals to act) on which the suit is based be "generally applicable to the class" [Fed R Civ P 23(b)(2)]. This requirement is met even if the defendant's actions have taken effect or threatened only some members of the class, provided the actions have general applicability to the class [Fed R Civ P 23(b)(2), Committee Note of 1966; see Arnold v. UA Theatre Circuit, Inc. (ND Cal 1994) 158 FRD 439, 454].

Example:

The court certified a class of wheel-chair users who were denied equal access to the defendant's movie theaters. The class's chief claims were for injunctive relief under the ADA, and claims for injunctive relief and money damages under CC § 54.1. The defendant's actions were generally applicable to the class because the architectural barriers affected all wheel-chair users in essentially the same way [see Arnold v. UA Theatre Circuit, Inc. (ND Cal 1994) 158 FRD 439, 450-458].

20.07[4][b] Claims for Damages May Be Included in Action If They Are Secondary to Primary Claims for Injunctive or Declaratory Relief. Fed R Civ P 23(b)(2) is not limited to actions requesting only injunctive or declaratory relief, but may include cases that also seek monetary damages. The claim for monetary damages, however, is not appropriate when monetary relief is predominant over injunctive relief or declaratory relief [Dukes v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. (9th Cir 2010) 603 F3d 571, 617] . The claim for monetary damages may be a claim for punitive damages [see Williams v. Boeing Co. (WD Wash 2005) 225 FRD 626, 632-633].

To determine whether monetary relief predominates, a district court should consider, on a case-by-case basis, the objective effect of the relief sought on the litigation. Factors such as whether the monetary relief sought determines the key procedures that will be used, whether it introduces new and significant legal and factual issues, whether it requires individualized hearings, and whether its size and nature--as measured by recovery per class member--raise particular due process and manageability concerns would all be relevant, though no single factor would be determinative [Dukes v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. (9th Cir 2010) 603 F3d 571, 617] .

Example--Certification Granted:

The district court did not err in certifying a nationwide class encompassing approximately 1.5 million women employed by defendant Wal-Mart during a specified timeframe, and encompassing claims for injunctive relief, declaratory relief, and back pay (but not compensatory damages). The district court's decision to include claims for back pay in a class certified under Fed R Civ P 23(b)(2) was not an abuse of its discretion, because a request for back pay is fully consistent with the certification of a Fed R Civ P 23(b)(2) class. Nor did the large size of the claims of itself mean that monetary claims necessarily predominated, because the predominance test used in the Ninth Circuit to determine whether claims for damages are secondary turns on the primary goal and nature of the litigation, not the possible size of the total damages award [Dukes v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. (9th Cir 2010) 603 F3d 571, 619-620] .

Example--Certification Denied:

The district court abused its discretion when it creating a separate opt out class for punitive damages that encompassed all women employed by the defendant Wal-Mart at any time after December 26, 1998, at the same time the court certified a nationwide class including the same employees and encompassing claims for injunctive relief, declaratory relief, and back pay. The district failed to analyze whether certifying punitive damages claims under Fed R Civ P 23(b)(2) caused monetary damages to predominate. The Ninth Circuit therefore remanded so that the district court could consider this question. The circuit court noted that the district court, if Fed R Civ P 23(b)(2) certification was not proper for the punitive damages claims, could consider a "hybrid" certification of Fed R Civ P 23(b)(2) and 23(b)(3) classes in one action [Dukes v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. (9th Cir 2010) 603 F3d 571, 620-621] .

In a products liability action involving allegedly defective pacemakers, the plaintiffs proposed a class seeking medical monitoring relief. This class was not appropriate for certification because the relief sought was compensatory rather than injunctive. The plaintiffs sought the establishment of a reserve fund for past and future damages, compensation for future medical treatment, plus other compensatory and punitive damages. Although the complaint also sought to require the defendant to conduct research into alternative methodologies for remedying the condition of the class members, this injunctive relief was merely incidental to the primary claim for money damages [Zinser v. Accufix Research Inst., Inc. (9th Cir 2001) 253 F3d 1180, 1196 , as amended, 273 F3d 1266 (2001) (decided under prior law)].

Cross References:

Discussion of standards to be applied by district courts in adjudicating a Rule 23 motion for class certification, see § 20.05A.

Discussion of possibility of notice and opt-out rights in a 23(b)(2) class action, see § 20.26.

20.07[4][c] Manageability Is Relevant Although Analysis Is Not Explicitly Required. Although Rule 23(b)(2) does not explicitly require an analysis of manageability before certification of a class, manageability is relevant to certification [Williams v. Boeing Co. (WD Wash 2005) 225 FRD 626, 633]. Concerns over manageability may require carving out potential plaintiffs from the class certified and/or the creation of sub-classes [see, e.g., Williams v. Boeing Co.(WD Wash 2005) 225 FRD 626, 637].

20.07[5] Court May Certify Action Under Rule 23(b)(3) If Common Questions Predominate and Class Action Is Superior Method of Adjudication.

20.07[5][a] Rule 23(b)(3) Class Action Must Meet Both Predominance and Superiority Requirements. An action may be maintained as a Rule 23(b)(3) class action if both [Fed R Civ P 23(b)(3)]:

- The court finds that the questions of law or fact common to the class members predominate over any questions affecting only individual members.

- The court finds that a class action is superior to other available methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of the controversy.

While Rule 23(b)(3) does not exclude from certification cases in which individual damages are high, its primary intent is to allow vindication of claims that individually would be too small to pursue [see Amchem Prods. Inc. v. Windsor (1997) 521 US 591, 617, 117 S Ct 2231, 138 L Ed2d 689].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of notice and opt out rights in Rule 23(b)(3) class actions, see § 20.27.

20.07[5][b] Questions Common to Class Must Predominate Over Individual Questions. Under Rule 23(a)(2), questions of law or fact common to the class members must exist [Fed R Civ P 23(a)(2)]. For a class to be certified under Rule 23(b)(3), those questions must predominate over questions affecting only individual class members [Fed R Civ P 23(b)(3)].

Predominance is a pragmatic, circumstantial inquiry. Implicit in the satisfaction of the predominance test is the notion that the adjudication of common issues will help achieve judicial economy [see Zinser v. Accufix Research Inst., Inc. (9th Cir 2001) 253 F3d 1180, 1189 , as amended, 273 F3d 1266 (2001)]. Accordingly, courts decide whether there are so many questions common to the plaintiffs that having class action treatment would be more efficient than having a number of separate trials [see Sepulveda v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. (CD Cal 2006) 237 FRD 229, 247-250; Haley v. Medtronic, Inc. (CD Cal 1996) 169 FRD 643, 650 ; see also Mevorah v. Wells Fargo Home Mortg. (In re Wells Fargo Home Mortg.) (9th Cir 2009) 571 F3d 953, 958-959 (district court abused its discretion in relying exclusively on defendant's classification of particular class of employees as exempt from federal and state overtime requirements to exclusion of other factors relevant to predominance inquiry, since defendant's uniform exemption policy said "little about the main concern of the predominance inquiry: the balance between individual and common issues")] or when the resolution of a question common to the class would significantly advance the litigation, such as resolution of a common defense which would bar each of the plaintiff's claims [see Romero v. Producers Dairy Foods, Inc. (ED Cal 2006) 235 FRD 474, 489-490 (citing Moore's)].

Securities fraud cases involving a common scheme of fraudulent conduct are often certified under Rule 23(b)(3). The predominant questions are those as to the alleged material misrepresentations or omissions that the defendants made and on which liability is based [see, e.g., In re First Alliance Mortgage Co. (9th Cir 2006) 471 F3d 977, 990-991 (class treatment was permitted in securities fraud case in which standardized sales pitch was employed); In re Heritage Bond Litig. (CD Cal 2004) 2004 US Dist LEXIS 15386, at *28-*36].

Distinguish:

Denial of class certification may be appropriate when individualized reliance issues related to proof of causation predominate [see Poulos v. Caesars World, Inc. (9th Cir 2004) 379 F3d 654, 664-666].

Predominance may be found in product liability suits. The fact that each class member is seeking separate damages, or even that each claim arose out of a separate transaction, is not necessarily fatal to class action treatment provided the common questions predominate [see Haley v. Medtronic, Inc. (CD Cal 1996) 169 FRD 643, 650].

The predominance standard is difficult to meet in nationwide class actions based on state law. The differing standards of liability required by the laws of various states may preclude a finding that common questions predominate [see Lozano v. AT&T Wireless Servs. (9th Cir 2007) 504 F3d 718, 728] . However, variations in state law do not necessarily preclude certification if class counsel can demonstrate the commonality of substantive law applicable to all class members [see Hanlon v. Chrysler Corp. (9th Cir 1998) 150 F3d 1011, 1023]. The class proponent bears the burden of demonstrating a suitable and realistic plan for trial of the class claims [Zinser v. Accufix Research Inst., Inc. (9th Cir 2001) 253 F3d 1180, 1189 , as amended, 273 F3d 1266 (2001)].

Strategic Point--Proponent of Class:

Even if the common questions do not predominate over the individual questions for the entire action, so that class certification must be denied for the action as a whole, Fed R Civ P 23 authorizes the district court, in appropriate cases, to isolate the common issues under Fed R Civ P 23(c)(4) and to proceed with class treatment of the isolated particular issues [see Valentino v. Carter-Wallace, Inc. (9th Cir 1996) 97 F3d 1227, 1234]. Whether this is or is not appropriate depends, to a large extent, on whether class treatment for the isolated, particular issues is a superior method of proceeding.

20.07[5][c] Class Action Must Be Superior to Other Available Methods of Adjudication. A class action may be certified under Rule 23(b)(3) only if the class action will be superior to other available methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of the controversy [Fed R Civ P 23(b)(3)]. The superiority inquiry requires a determination of whether the objectives of the class action procedure will be achieved in the particular case [see Hanlon v. Chrysler Corp. (9th Cir 1998) 150 F3d 1011, 1023].

The court must consider the class action procedure in comparison to "other available methods" for adjudication. For example, a few test cases, leading to settlement of the remaining claims, may achieve the same benefit as a class action without the procedural complexities and expense [see In re Northern Dist. of Cal., Dalkon Shield IUD Prod. Liab. Litig. (9th Cir 1982) 693 F2d 847, 856 , cert. denied sub nom. A.H. Robins Co. v. Abed, 459 US 1171 (1983)]. On the other hand, when a class action under the Fair Labor Standards Act was certified, and pendent state law claims could be prosecuted as part of that FLSA class action, that existing alternative undercut all the Rule 23(b)(3) superiority factors and there was no reason to certify an additional class under Rule 23 [Leuthold v. Destination Am., Inc. (ND Cal 2004)

224 FRD 462, 469 ; see, e.g., Edwards v. City of Long Beach (CD Cal 2006) 467 F Supp2d 986, 991-993 (certifying FLSA collective action and denying Rule 23 class action, because Rule 23 was not superior means of adjudicating plaintiff's state law claims)].

Rule 23(b)(3) provides a non-exhaustive list of factors to consider in determining superiority [Fed R Civ P 23(b); see Local Joint Executive Bd. of Culinary/Bartender Trust Fund v. Las Vegas Sands, Inc. (9th Cir 2001) 244 F3d 1152, 1163 , cert. denied, 534 US 973 (2001)]:

- The interest of members of the class in individually controlling the prosecution or defense of separate actions.

- The extent and nature of any litigation concerning the controversy already commenced by or against members of the class.

- The desirability or undesirability of concentrating the litigation of the claims in the particular forum.

- The difficulties likely to be encountered in the management of a class action.

Consideration of these factors requires the court to focus on the efficiency and economy elements of the class action so that cases allowed under Rule 23(b)(3) are those that can be adjudicated most profitably on a representative basis [see Zinser v. Accufix Research Inst., Inc. (9th Cir 2001) 253 F3d 1180, 1189 , as amended, 273 F3d 1266 (2001)].

One of the purposes of the (b)(3) category is to provide a vehicle for the resolution of claims that are too small to be brought separately because the costs of litigation might overwhelm any possible recovery. Accordingly, when the damages suffered by each class member are not large, this weighs in favor of certifying a class action [Chamberlan v. Ford Motor Co. (ND Cal 2004) 223 FRD 524, 527].

Example:

A class action was the superior form of adjudication for a case claiming that form collection letters violated the Federal Fair Debt Collection Practices Act: many plaintiffs may not have known their rights were being violated, may not have had a monetary incentive to individually litigate, and may have been unable to hire competent counsel to protect their rights. Judicial efficiency was better served by one class action rather than thousands of individual suits [Abels v. JBC Legal Group, P.C. (ND Cal 2005) 227 FRD 541, 547].

By contrast, the presence of large individual damage claims suggests that the class members have a sufficient interest in controlling their own separate litigation [Zinser v. Accufix Research Inst., Inc. (9th Cir 2001) 253 F3d 1180, 1189 , as amended, 273 F3d 1266 (2001)].

Manageability may be the most significant of the factors. The manageability requirement includes considerations such as the potential difficulties in notifying class members of the suit, calculation of individual damages, and distribution of damages [see Six Mexican Workers v. Arizona Citrus Growers (9th Cir 1990) 904 F2d 1301, 1305].

When the complexities of class action treatment outweigh the benefits of considering common issues in one trial, class action treatment is not the superior method of adjudication. If each class member has to litigate numerous and substantial separate issues to establish his or her right to recover individually, there may be too many individual issues for the court to manage, even though there is a common nucleus of facts concerning the defendant's conduct [see Zinser v. Accufix Research Inst., Inc. (9th Cir 2001) 253 F3d1180, 1192 , amended, 273 F3d 1266 (9th Cir 2001)].

Superiority may not exist for a large nationwide class based on state law. The need to apply the law of many different states will usually outweigh the advantages of a single, certified class proceeding [see In re Paxil Litig. (CD Cal 2003) 212 FRD 539, 551].

When a court certifies a class after a settlement has already been reached, the court need not inquire whether the case would present intractable management problems because the proposal is that there be no trial. However, other specifications of Fed R Civ P 23 demand heightened attention in the settlement context [see Amchem Prods. Inc. v. Windsor (1997) 521 US 591, 620, 117 S Ct 2231, 138 L Ed2d 689].

Cross References:

Discussion of settlement classes and court approval of settlement, see § 20.42.

Additional discussion of determination concerning whether common issues predominate, see 5 Moore's Federal Practice, § 23.45 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesMaintainability

10 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
III. FILING ACTION AS CLASS ACTION

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.08

20.08 CHECKLIST: Filing Action As Class Action.

☐ Prepare a complaint that states the claims of the named plaintiffs.

Discussion:
Ch. 6, Drafting the Summons and Complaint

Form:
See § 20.58

☐ Ensure that the action is designated as a class action on the first page of the complaint.

Authority:
CD Cal Civ LR 23-1; ND Cal Civ LR 3-4(a)(5); SD Cal Civ LR 23.1(a)

Discussion:
See § 20.10

☐ In a separate section of the complaint, include "class allegations" that:

○ Define the proposed class or subclasses.

○ Allege that the Rule 23(a) requirements of numerosity, commonality, typicality, and adequacy of representation are met.

○ Indicate the subsection or subsections of Rule 23(b) under which certification is sought, and allege that the requirements of that subsection are met.

○ For actions in the Central District of California, indicate the nature of the notice to the proposed class that is required or contemplated.

Warning:

Although pleading the proposed notice is required by the Central District local rules, and even though a plaintiff would do well to give thought to the notice that will be given to the class, even at the pleadings stage of a case, it will not make sense to plead these matters when local rules do not require it. Pleading of these matters is not required by Rules 8 and 9, and serves only to raise disputes concerning notice at the pleading stage, when such disputes are not easily resolved.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23(a), (b); CD Cal Civ LR 23-2; SD Cal Civ LR 23.1

Discussion:
See § 20.11

Form:
See § 20.58

☐ Ensure that the action meets jurisdictional requirements:

○ The named plaintiff must have constitutional standing to bring the action.

Discussion:
See § 20.12[1]

○ Federal jurisdiction must be conferred by an appropriate statute, such as the federal question jurisdiction statute or the diversity jurisdiction statute.

Authority:
28 USC §§ 1331, 1332

Discussion:
Ch. 2, Determining Forum (Jurisdiction and Venue)

○ When jurisdiction is based on general diversity of citizenship:

☐ Only the citizenship of the named plaintiffs and defendants, not the remaining class members, is considered for complete diversity purposes.

☐ The amount in controversy requirement must be met by the named plaintiff without considering the claims of the unnamed class members.

☐ If a named plaintiff meets the amount in controversy requirement, the court has supplemental jurisdiction over the claims of other named and unnamed class members.

Discussion:
See § 20.12[2][b]

○ When jurisdiction is based on limited diversity under the Class Action Fairness Act of 2005:

☐ Diversity of citizenship is required only between any member of a plaintiff class and any defendant.

☐ The $5 million amount in controversy requirement may be satisfied by aggregating the claims of individual class members.

Authority:
28 USC § 1332(d)(2), (6)

Discussion:
See § 20.12[2][c]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesGeneral Overview

11 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
III. FILING ACTION AS CLASS ACTION

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.09

20.09 Options and Strategy.

All the filing requirements that apply in other actions must also be complied with in class actions. Preliminary considerations such as forum selection will be equally important in class actions. In addition, counsel must ensure that the requirements of Fed R Civ P 23 can be met. Particularly, the complaint must name one or more plaintiffs who meet the requirements to serve as class representative and must set out a workable class definition. The complaint should be drafted with a settlement strategy in mind.

The defendant also has the same options in responding to the complaint as in any non-class action. The defendant may respond to the complaint by bringing any motion authorize by the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, including any motion under Rule 12. Alternatively, the defendant may answer the complaint and assert any affirmative defenses that is has.

Cross References:

Discussion of preparation of the complaint, preparation of summons, and preparation of other documents necessary at the commencement of the action, see Ch. 6, Drafting the Summons and Complaint and Ch. 7, Service of Summons. Discussion of answer and motions to dismiss, see Ch. 8, Answers and Responsive Motions Under Rule 12.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to DismissCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsAnswersCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass MembersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass MembersNamed Members

12 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
III. FILING ACTION AS CLASS ACTION

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.10

20.10 LOCAL PRACTICE: Action Must Be Designated As Class Action on First Page of Complaint.

When an action is filed as a class action, it should be labeled as such. This is specifically required by local rule as follows:

- CD Cal: The title of any pleading purporting to commence a class action must include the legend: "(Title of Pleading) Class Action" [CD Cal Civ LR 23-1].

- ED Cal: No specific requirement.

- ND Cal: If any complaint, counterclaim, or crossclaim is to be maintained as a class action, it must bear the legend "Class Action" on its first page below the title describing the paper as a complaint, counterclaim, or crossclaim [ND Cal Civ LR 3-4(a)(5)]. The action must also be designated as a class action in the appropriate block of the Civil Cover Sheet required to be submitted with the complaint, and the requested relief must be indicated [see ND Cal Civ LR 3-2(a)]. A copy of the form to be used may be downloaded from the court's website: www.cand.uscourts.gov.

- SD Cal: In any action sought to be maintained as a class action, the complaint or other pleading asserting a class action must bear the legend "Class Action" below the docket number [SD Cal Civ LR 23.1(a)].

Consider:

The same caption designating the action as a class actionshould ordinarily be used on other pleadings and motions in the action as well.

Cross References:

Discussion of format requirements for complaint generally, see Ch. 6, Drafting the Summons and Complaint, 6.05 -6.07. Form, see § 20.58.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsRequirementsCivil ProcedureClass ActionsGeneral OverviewGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
III. FILING ACTION AS CLASS ACTION

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.11

20.11 Complaint Should Plead Class Allegations.

20.11[1] Allegations Should Indicate That Action May Be Maintained As Class Action. In addition to those allegations otherwise required to make out the claims asserted, the complaint should describe the class and state allegations showing that the class action meets the requirements of Fed R Civ P 23(a) and (b). Class allegations are not required by Fed R Civ P 23, but are required by local rules as discussed below.

Class allegations are not necessary to meet the pleading requirements set out by Rules 8 and 9, which generally require only a short and plain statement of the claims showing that the plaintiffs are entitled to relief [see Fed R Civ P 8, 9]. While the class allegations may be necessary to comply with the local rules and should, therefore, not be overlooked, the court's certification decision requires a rigorous analysis and should not be based merely on the pleadings [see Zinser v. Accufix Research Inst., Inc. (9th Cir 2001) 253 F3d 1180, 1186 , as amended 273 F3d 1266 (2001)].

Consider:

If the class allegations are attacked as deficient under the applicable local rule, the court ordinarily should allow the pleader to amend to correct the deficiency [see Fed R Civ P 15].

Cross References:

Discussion of class definition and requirements of numerosity, commonality, typicality, and adequacy of representation under Rule 23(a), see 20.06. Discussion of types of actions that may be maintained under Rule 23(b), see 20.07. Discussion of the court's certification decision, see § 20.16.

20.11[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Class Allegations.

20.11[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. Any pleading purporting to commence a class action must contain a separate section entitled "Class Action Allegations" [CD Cal Civ LR 23-2]. This section must contain a reference to the portion or portions of Fed R Civ P 23 under which the pleader contends that the suit may be maintained as a class action [CD Cal Civ LR 23-2.1].

The "Class Action Allegations" portion of the pleading must also contain appropriate allegations needed to justify proceeding as a class action, including but not limited to [CD Cal Civ LR 23-2.2]:

- The definition of the proposed class.
- The size or approximate size of the proposed class.
- The adequacy of representation by the representatives of the class.
- The commonality of the questions of law and fact.
- The typicality of the claims or defenses of the representatives of the class.
- If proceeding under Fed R Civ P 23(b)(3), allegations to support the findings of predominance and superiority.
- The nature of notice to the proposed class that is required or contemplated.

As in any case, each party must file, at least 21 days before the pretrial conference, a memorandum of contentions of fact and law setting out the party's theory of the case and other matters. [see CD Cal Civ LR 16-4].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of notice to class, see §§ 20.26, 20.27. Northern District requirement for memorandum of contentions of fact and law, see Ch. 17, Final Pretrial Conference, 17.09[2].

20.11[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. Any party seeking to maintain a case as a class action must include in the required case management statement the following additional information [ND Cal Civ LR 16-9(b)]:

- The specific paragraphs of Fed R Civ P 23 under which the action is maintainable as a class action.
- A description of the class or classes in whose behalf the action is brought.
- Facts showing that the party is entitled to maintain the action under Fed R Civ P 23(a) and (b).
- A proposed date for the court to consider whether the casemay be maintained as a class action.

20.11[2][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. The complaint in a class action must include a statement describing the class or classes on behalf of which the action is sought to be maintained [SD Cal Civ LR 23.1].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsRequirementsCivil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesGeneral OverviewGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

14 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
III. FILING ACTION AS CLASS ACTION

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.12

20.12 Class Action Must Meet Jurisdictional Requirements.

20.12[1] Named Plaintiff Must Have Constitutional Standing.

20.12[1][a] Court Must Dismiss for Lack of Standing at Beginning of Suit. The class representative must meet all the requirements of constitutional standing in order to maintain a class action. A representative who fails to establish standing may not seek relief either individually or on behalf of other members of the class [see Doe v. Unocal Corp. (CD Cal 1999) 67 F Supp2d 1140, 1142 ; see also Easter v. American W. Fin. (9th Cir 2004) 381 F3d 948, 962 (district court properly considered standing issues before class issues)].

Thus, if none of the named plaintiffs can establish a case or controversy with the defendants, they cannot maintain the suit. If the court finds that standing was absent at the time the suit was brought, the court must dismiss for lack of jurisdiction rather than appoint another class representative [see Lierboe v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 350 F3d 1018, 1022-1023].

Distinguish:

If the named plaintiff originally has a valid claim, but the claim becomes moot after certification, the court may permit substitution of a proper class representative and allow the case to proceed [see Lierboe v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 350 F3d 1018, 1023 n6].

The Ninth Circuit has not directly addressed whether a plaintiff having a cause of action against a single defendant has standing to maintain a class action against the single defendant as well as an unrelated group of defendants who have engaged in similar conduct [see Cady v. Anthem Blue Cross Life & Health Ins. Co. (ND Cal 2008) 583 F Supp2d 1102, 1106] . However, district courts within the circuit have concluded that a plaintiff may not sue any defendant against whom plaintiff has no individual claim [see, e.g., Cady v. Anthem Blue Cross Life & Health Ins. Co. (ND Cal 2008) 583 F Supp2d 1102, 1106 (listing cases)].

20.12[1][b] Mootness of Representative's Claim After Certification Does Not Require Dismissal. If a named plaintiff's claims become moot after a class has been certified, jurisdiction is not necessarily lost. If the dispute remains alive between any of the class members and the defendant, this satisfies the constitutional case or controversy requirement [Sosna v. Iowa (1975) 419 US 393, 401-402, 95 S Ct 553, 42 L Ed2d 532 ; Franks v. Bowman Transp. Co. (1976) 424 US 747, 755-757, 96 S Ct 1251, 47 L Ed2d 444].

20.12[1][c] Mootness Before Certification Does Not Defeat Jurisdiction If Relation-Back Exception Applies. If the class representative's claims become moot and the class has not been certified, ordinarily the court loses jurisdiction and the court must dismiss the action [see Board of Sch. Comm'rs v. Jacobs (1975) 420 US 128, 129, 95 S Ct 848, 43 L Ed2d 74].

A "relation-back" exception applies when the claims are so inherently transitory that the trial court will not be able to rule on class certification before the named plaintiff's individual claim expires. In this situation, a later certification is considered to relate back to the time that the action was filed. Accordingly, the class claims are present in the action at the beginning of the action and an actual controversy still exists even though the named representative's claims become moot [see County of Riverside v. McLaughlin (1991) 500 US 44, 52, 111 S Ct 1661, 114 L Ed2d 49 ; Gerstein v. Pugh (1975) 420 US 103, 110 n11, 95 S Ct 854, 43 L Ed2d 54].

20.12[2] Federal Jurisdiction Must Be Established.

20.12[2][a] Jurisdiction May Be Based on Diversity or Federal Question. Federal jurisdiction does not exist merely because an action is a class action. Jurisdiction must be conferred, as in any other case, by an appropriate jurisdictional statute, such as the federal question jurisdiction statute [see 28 USC § 1331] or the diversity jurisdiction statute [see 28 USC § 1332].

20.12[2][b] For General Diversity Jurisdiction, Citizenship of Class Representative Is Considered for Diversity Purposes and Class Representative Must Meet Amount in Controversy Requirement. Diversity jurisdiction requires complete diversity of citizenship between plaintiffs and defendants [see 28 USC § 1332(a)]. However, in class actions, only the citizenship of the named plaintiffs, not the citizenship of other, unnamed class members, need be considered [Supreme Tribe of Ben-Hur v. Cauble (1921) 255 US 356, 365, 41 S Ct 338, 65 L Ed 673].

Diversity jurisdiction also requires an amount in controversy that exceeds $75,000 [28 USC § 1332(a)]. In a class action, this requirement must be met by a named plaintiff. If a named plaintiff has a claim that meets the amount in controversy requirement, the court has supplemental jurisdiction over claims of other named and unnamed class members irrespective of the amount in controversy in those claims [Exxon Mobil Corp. v. Allapattah Servs., Inc. (2005) 545 US 546, 549, 566-567, 125 S Ct 2611, 162 L Ed2d 502 ; see 28 USC § 1367 (supplemental jurisdiction statute)].

Cross Reference:

Nature and scope of supplemental jurisdiction, see Ch. 2, Determining Forum (Jurisdiction and Venue), see §§ 2.26 -2.30.

A named plaintiff must meet the amount-in-controversy requirement without considering the "separate and distinct" claims of the other class members. The claims of the named and unnamed class members may not be aggregated to meet the amount-in-controversy requirement in most cases. Aggregation is appropriate only when the class unites to enforce a single title or right in which all class members, named and unnamed, have a "common and undivided" interest [see Gibson v. Chrysler Corp. (9th Cir 2001) 261 F3d 927, 943-945 , cert. denied sub nom. Daimler Chrysler Corp. v. Gibson, 534 US 1104 (2002)]. This may occur, for example, when the class asserts claims against a single indivisible res, such as an estate, piece of property, or insurance policy, which cannot be adjudicated without implicating the rights of everyone involved with the res [see In re Ford Motor Co./Citibank (S.D.), N.A. (9th Cir 2001) 264 F3d 952, 959-960 , cert. dismissed, 537 US 1 (2002)]. In most circumstances, there is no common and undivided interest sufficient to justify aggregation:

- Claims for disgorgement or punitive damages do not implicate a "common and undivided" interest [see Gibson v. Chrysler Corp. (9th Cir 2001) 261 F3d 927, 943-947 , cert. denied sub nom. Daimler Chrysler Corp. v. Gibson, 534 US 1104 (2002)].

- Claims for attorney's fees may not be attributed solely to the named plaintiff for purposes of the amount in controversy unless the statute under which they are awarded so provides. When fees are to be awarded to a "successful party" or "prevailing plaintiff," they must be awarded to the plaintiff class as a whole, so that the named plaintiff may claim only a pro rata share with respect to the amount in controversy requirement [Gibson v. Chrysler Corp. (9th Cir 2001) 261 F3d 927, 942-943 , cert. denied sub nom. Daimler Chrysler Corp. v. Gibson, 534 US 1104 (2002) ; Kanter v. Warner-Lambert Co. (9th Cir 2001) 265 F3d 853, 858 ; see CC § 1780; CCP § 1021.5].

- The cost to the defendant of injunctive relief may not be attributed solely to the named plaintiff when the injunctive relief is a method of satisfying "separate and distinct" claims of the class members. For example, an action seeking an injunction to prevent the defendant from selling a defective product arose from the separate claims of the individual consumers. In this situation, considering the costs to the defendant would merely be impermissibly aggregating the separate claims to meet the amount in controversy requirement [Kanter v. Warner-Lambert Co. (9th Cir 2001) 265 F3d 853, 859-860].

20.12[2][c] When Amount in Controversy Exceeds $5 Million and Class Members Number 100 or More, Modified Diversity Requirements May Apply. Under the Class Action Fairness Act of 2005 [109 PL 2, 199 Stat 4 (applicable to civil actions filed on or after February 18, 2005)], a district court has original jurisdiction of certain class actions in which:

- The matter in controversy exceeds the sum or value of $5 million, exclusive of interest and costs [28 USC § 1332(d)(2); Berry v. American Express Publ'g, Corp. (CD Cal 2005) 381 F Supp2d 1118, 1123 (amount-in-controversy requirement may be satisfied either from view of aggregate value to class members or defendants)].

- Diversity of citizenship exists between any member of a class of plaintiffs and any defendant [28 USC § 1332(d)(2)].

- There are 100 or more members in all proposed plaintiff classes [28 USC § 1332(d)(5)(B); see Tanoh v. Dow Chemical Co. (9th Cir 2009) 561 F3d 945, 953 (seven individual state court actions, each with fewer than 100 plaintiffs, could not be considered together for purposes of 100-person minimum required to create one "mass action" eligible for removal to federal court under CAFA)].

Distinguish:

Unlike general diversity jurisdiction, the claims of individual class members are aggregated to determine whether the amount in controversy exceeds $5 million [28 USC § 1332(d)(6)].

These modified diversity requirements do not apply when any of the following is true:

- The action was commenced before February 18, 2005 [109 PL 2, § 9, 199 Stat 4]. For purposes of Class Action Fairness Act retroactivity, "commenced" means the date the complaint is filed, not the date the case is removed [Bush v. Cheaptickets, Inc. (9th Cir 2005) 425 F3d 683, 689]. For purposes of determining CAFA's effective date, an action is commenced under California law when the original complaint in the action is filed, irrespective of any relation back analysis [Progressive W. Ins. Co. v.

Preciado (9th Cir 2007) 479 F3d 1014, 1016-1017]. Further, an amendment to a cross-complaint in California state court (a counterclaim in federal court) does not commence an action under the CAFA as of the date of the amendment [Progressive W. Ins. Co. v. Preciado (9th Cir 2007) 479 F3d 1014, 1015-1016].

- The primary defendants are states, state officials, or other governmental entities against whom relief is foreclosed [28 USC § 1332(d)(5)(A)].

- The action solely involves a covered security [28 USC § 1332(d)(9)(A)].

- The action solely relates to the internal affairs or governance of a corporation or other business entity and arises under the laws of the state of incorporation or organization [28 USC § 1332(d)(9)(B)].

- The action solely relates to the rights, duties, and obligations relating to or created by or under any security [28 USC § 1332(d)(9)(C)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of jurisdiction requirements under Class Action Fairness Act of 2005, see Ch. 2, Determining Forum (Jurisdiction and Venue), see § 2.24A.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJusticiabilityStandingGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionDiversity JurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionFederal QuestionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsRequirementsCivil ProcedureClass ActionsGeneral Overview

15 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
III. FILING ACTION AS CLASS ACTION

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.13

20.13 Filing Tolls Statute of Limitations for Absent Class Members.

The commencement of a class action tolls the applicable statute of limitations for all putative class members until the certification question is resolved [American Pipe & Constr. Co. v. Utah (1974) 414 US 538, 554, 94 S Ct 756, 38 L Ed2d 713] . A putative class member who files a separate action pending a decision on class certification is entitled to the benefits of this tolling [Phillips v. E.I Dupont de Nemours & Co. (In re Hanford Nuclear Reservation Litig.) (9th Cir 2008) 521 F.3d 1038, 1053 (filing timely class action provides defendants with notice of claim, so follow-on individual suit cannot surprise defendants)]. If certification is denied, putative class members may, within the time remaining in the limitations period, either intervene in the same action as plaintiffs [American Pipe & Constr. Co. v. Utah (1974) 414 US 538, 554, 94 S Ct 756, 38 L Ed2d 713] or file their own separate suits [Crown, Cork & Seal Co. v. Parker (1983) 462 US 345, 354, 103 S Ct 2392, 76 L Ed2d 628].

This tolling may not be extended by "stacking." That is, once certification is denied in one action, the limitations period is not further extended by filing another class action based on the same claims [see Robbin v. Fluor Corp. (9th Cir 1987) 835 F2d 213, 214].

When the court grants certification, the tolling of the statute of limitations ceases with respect to class members who opt out of the class. The statute begins to run again from the date the class member opts out [see Tosti v. City of Los Angeles (9th Cir 1985) 754 F2d 1485, 1488].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass MembersNonnamed MembersGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsExtension & RevivalGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime LimitationsCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass Action Fairness ActGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTolling

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
IV. MOVING FOR CLASS CERTIFICATION

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.14

20.14 CHECKLIST: Moving for Class Certification.

☐ Request and carry out appropriate discovery on class certification issues.

Discussion:
20.16[5]; Unit 7, Discovery (Chs. 21-25).

☐ Draft and file a motion for class certification, along with supporting declarations.

Timing:
The motion should be filed early enough to allow the court to make its certification decision "at an early practicable time" [Fed R Civ P 23(c)(1)(A)]. The court's pretrial scheduling order will usually specify a deadline [see Fed R Civ P 16].

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23(c)

Discussion:
See §§ 20.15, 20.16

Form:
See § 20.59

Standard Procedure Checklist:
Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.12

☐ Include in the motion a request to the court to appoint counsel.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23(c)(1)(B)

Discussion:
See §§ 20.21, 20.33

☐ Keep in mind that the court must conduct a "rigorous analysis" to ensure that certification is proper:

- ○ Court may hold an evidentiary hearing.
- ○ The party seeking certification has the burden of proving that the Fed R Civ P 23 requirements are met.
- ○ The court will scrutinize the class definition and may reframe the class or divide it into subclasses.

Discussion:
See § 20.16

☐ Prepare an order for the court's signature in the event it grants certification, that:

- ○ Defines the class and the class claims, issues, or defenses.
- ○ Specifies the court's findings that the Fed R Civ P 23(a) prerequisites have been met.
- ○ Indicates the subsection of Fed R Civ P 23(b) under which the action is certified, and specifies the court's findings that the requirements of that subsection have been met.
- ○ Appoints class counsel.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23(c)(1)(B)

Discussion:
See § 20.21

Form:
See § 20.60

☐ If the court's certification decision is unfavorable, consider filing an immediate interlocutory appeal of that decision.

Timing:

Application must be made to the court of appeals within 14 days after entry of the district court order [Fed R Civ P 23(f)].

Authority:

Fed R Civ P 23(f)

Discussion:

See § 20.23

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeContent & FormCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeTime LimitationsCivil ProcedureClass ActionsAppellate ReviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesGeneral Overview

17 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
IV. MOVING FOR CLASS CERTIFICATION

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.15

20.15 Proponent of Class Must Make Timely Motion for Certification.

20.15[1] Certification Process Initiated by Motion. The certification process is usually initiated by the named plaintiff's motion for certification. The motion should be filed early enough to allow the court to make its certification decision "at an early practicable time" [Fed R Civ P 23(c)(1)(A)] and within the time provided by the court's scheduling order [see Fed R Civ P 16] and by any applicable local rules.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of "early practicable time" requirement, see § 20.16[1].

The motion should be accompanied by declarations showing that the Fed R Civ P 23(a) and (b) requirements have been met, along with a supporting brief or memorandum. In addition to requesting certification, the motion should request appointment of class counsel, or be accompanied by an application to serve as class counsel. If the court certifies the class, the court must also appoint class counsel [Fed R Civ P 23(c)(1)(B)].

If there is no real dispute as to the facts, and the only dispute concerns the application of the facts to the legal standard for certification, the parties should explore whether it is possible to submit a stipulated set of facts relevant to certification.

20.15[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. The proponent of the class must file a motion for certification within 90 days after service of a pleading purporting to commence a class action (other than a securities class action), unless otherwise ordered by the court [CD Cal Civ LR 23-3].

20.15[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. The proponent of the class must move for a determination on the certification issue within the time directed by the court in a Fed R Civ P 16 scheduling order. The court may certify the action, refuse to certify and strike the class action allegations, or order postponement of the determination pending discovery or other preliminary procedures [ED Cal Civ LR 205; see also ED Cal Civ LR 240].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeTime LimitationsCivil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

18 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
IV. MOVING FOR CLASS CERTIFICATION

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.16

20.16 Court Must Decide Whether to Certify Class at Early Practicable Time.

20.16[1] Early Resolution Is Required. When a case is filed as a class action, the court must determine by order whether to certify the action as a class action "at an early practicable time" [Fed R Civ P 23(c)(1)(A)]. This language requires early resolution but also allows time, when necessary, to gather the information necessary to the certification decision; to resolve motions to dismiss or for summary judgment as to the individual claims; to explore designation of class counsel; or to develop a trial plan. The court should ensure that the certification decision is not unjustifiably delayed [Fed R Civ P 23(c)(1), Committee Note of 2003].

A defendant may move to deny class certification, and the court may act on the motion, even though plaintiffs have not yet filed a motion to certify a class [Vinole v. Countrywide Home Loans, Inc. (9th Cir 2009) 571 F3d 935, 941 ; see Wright v. Schock (9th Cir 1984) 742 F2d 541, 543-544 (court may rule on dispositive motion, such as motion for summary judgment on named plaintiff's individual claims, before deciding on certification)]. The court also does not abuse its discretion by ruling before the discovery cutoff [Vinole v. Countrywide Home Loans, Inc. (9th Cir 2009) 571 F3d 935, 942] . Most often, however, the court will delay the dispositive motion until after the certification decision. That way, if certification is appropriate, judicial economy will be served by the resolution of the issue with respect to the whole class [see Schwarzschild v. Tse (9th Cir 1995) 69 F3d 293, 295 , cert. denied, 517 US 1121 (1996)].

Strategic Point--Defendant:

A resolution on the merits before certification has no preclusive effect with respect to putative classmembers other than the named representatives. Thus, if the defendant has a strong case on the merits, the defendant may prefer to litigate the case as a class action and resolve the issues with respect to the entire class, rather than move for judgment before certification. Alternatively, individual resolution may be preferred if it is likely that no other proposed class member will seek to bring the case as a class action or if only a small proportion of the class will eventually file suit. Moreover, a judgment against the named plaintiff may deter other class members from bringing suit, thus saving the defendant the extra expense of litigating a class action.

The time for the certification decision and other related matters will usually be set in the court's Rule 16 scheduling order [see Fed R Civ P 16; ED Cal Civ LR 205(1); ND Cal Civ LR 16-10(b)(14)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of scheduling orders, see Ch. 16, Case Management Conferences, see §§ 16.03 -16.13.

20.16[2] Court Must Conduct Rigorous Analysis. The trial court must conduct a "rigorous analysis" to determine whether the party seeking certification has met requirements of Fed R Civ P 23. The court may certify the class only if the class proponent show the court that all the prerequisites of Fed R Civ P 23(a) and (b) have been satisfied [General Tel. Co. of the Southwest v. Falcon (1982) 457 US 147, 161, 102 S Ct 2364, 72 L Ed2d 740 ; Zinser v. Accufix Research Inst., Inc. (9th Cir 2001) 253 F3d 1180, 1186 , as amended, 273 F3d 1266 (2001)].

20.16[3] Court Has Broad Discretion Within Framework of Rule 23. The trial court has broad discretion whether to certify a class, although its discretion must be exercised within the framework of Fed R Civ P 23 [Zinser v. Accufix Research Inst., Inc. (9th Cir 2001) 253 F3d 1180, 1186 , as amended, 273 F3d 1266 (2001)].

If the requirements of Rule 23 are not met, certification is improper. However, Rule 23 provides that an action "may" be maintained as a class action if the requirements are met [Fed R Civ P 23(b)]. Accordingly, even when the prerequisites for certification have been satisfied, the trial court nevertheless has broad discretion in determining whether a class should be certified [see Armstrong v. Davis (9th Cir 2001) 275 F3d 849, 872 n28].

20.16[4] Court Will Hold Evidentiary Hearing. The court may not merely accept as true the allegations in the complaint, but must make whatever factual and legal inquiries are necessary to resolve the certification issues [see Szabo v. Bridgeport Machs., Inc. (7th Cir 2001) 249 F3d 672, 675-677 , cert. denied, 534 US 951 (2001)]. Accordingly, the court may hold an evidentiary hearing to allow the parties to present proof on whether the requirements of Rule 23 have or have not been met, and to allow the parties to argue that class-wide resolution is or is not appropriate under the circumstances. However, even if the court holds an evidentiary hearing, it should not be approached as a minitrial of the individual or class substantive claims. Instead, the focus will be on the certification issues, such as predominance of common over individual questions. The judge may limit the number of witnesses, admit depositions in summary form, and permit limited expert evidence [Manual for Complex Litigation (Fourth) § 21.21 (2004)]. An extensive evidentiary showing is not required; all that is required is enough for the court to make a "reasonable judgment" on each requirement [In re Heritage Bond Litig. (CD Cal 2004) 2004 US Dist LEXIS 15386, at *8].

Alternatively, the court might resolve class certification issues based on the papers that have been filed, without holding an evidentiary hearing. The decision as to whether to hold an evidentiary hearing is usually left to the discretion of the court

20.16[5] Court May Allow Discovery. The district court may permit discov-ery to determine whether class certification is appropriate, may limit discovery to class certification issues, and may make appropriate orders to control the course of proceedings [see Armstrong v. Davis (9th Cir 2001) 275 F3d 849, 872 n28 ; see also Kamm v. California City Dev. Corp. (9th Cir 1975) 509 F2d 205, 209 (whether or not to allow discovery in class action is within court's sound discretion)].

Often, the same information is relevant to both certification and the decision on the merits. It is appropriate for the court to allow controlled discovery into these areas, provided the certification decision is not unjustifiably delayed [see Fed R Civ P 23(c)(1), Committee Note of 2003].

Cross References:

Proper scope of precertification discovery, see5 Moore's Federal Practice, § 23.85 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.). Discussion of discovery procedures, see Unit 7, Discovery (Chs. 21-25).

20.16[6] Proponent of Class Has Burden of Proof. The party seeking class certification bears the burden of demonstrating that each of the four requirements of Fed R Civ P 23(a) and that the requirements for at least one of the Fed R Civ P 23(b) categories of class actions are met [Zinser v. Accufix Research Inst., Inc. (9th Cir 2001) 253 F3d 1180, 1186 , as amended, 273 F3d 1266 (2001)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of requirements of Rule 23(a) and (b), see §§ 20.06, 20.07.

20.16[7] Court Should Not Consider Merits. A court should not make a premature determination on the merits of the action in determining whether a class action is appropriate [Eisen v. Carlisle & Jacquelin (1974) 417 US 156, 179, 94 S Ct 2140, 40 L Ed2d 732]. The court should not consider whether the class is likely to prevail [see Szabo v. Bridgeport Machs., Inc. (7th Cir 2001) 249 F3d 672, 675-677].

However, when making its certification decision a court may consider evidence that relates to the merits if that evidence also goes to the requirements of Fed R Civ P 23(a) or (b) [Dukes v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. (9th Cir 2010) 603 F3d 571, 582 (while Fed R Civ P 23 prohibits court from making any premature determinations of merits, it does not prevent court from using underlying facts to determine whether, for example, plaintiffs have demonstrated common questions of law or fact); Hanon v. Dataproducts Corp. (9th Cir 1992) 976 F2d 497, 509].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass MembersNonnamed MembersCivil ProcedureClass ActionsJudicial DiscretionCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
IV. MOVING FOR CLASS CERTIFICATION

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.17

20.17 Court May Certify As to Particular Issues.

When appropriate, an action may be certified as a class action with respect to particular issues [Fed R Civ P 23(c)(4)]. The certification order must define the particular issues for which the class is certified [see Fed R Civ P 23(c)(1)(B)]. This type of limited certification is most often used to certify a class for determination of liability issues only, with individual damages issues to be determined separately [see Fed R Civ P 23, Committee Note of 1966].

If common questions do not predominate over individual questions when considering the action as a whole, so that class certification of the entire action is not warranted under Fed R Civ P 23(b)(3), the district court may, in appropriate cases, isolate the common issues and proceed with class treatment limited to those particular issues [see Valentino v. Carter-Wallace, Inc. (9th Cir 1996) 97 F3d 1227, 1234].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of predominance requirement, see § 20.07[5][b].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesMaintainability

20 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
IV. MOVING FOR CLASS CERTIFICATION

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.18

20.18 Court May Create Subclasses.

When appropriate, the court may divide a proposed class into subclasses [Fed R Civ P 23(c)(5); see Bates v. UPS (ND Cal 2001) 204 FRD 440, 443] , vacated in part, reversed in part, and remanded on other grounds, Bates v. UPS (9th Cir 2007) 511 F3d 974 . When the court certifies subclasses, each subclass is treated as a separate class, and the requirements of Fed R Civ P 23 must be applied separately to each subclass [see Fed R Civ P 23(c)(4)].

Example:

When a proposed class in a tort action is divided between holders of present and future claims, the class must be divided into homogenous subclasses with separate representation [Ortiz v. Fibreboard Corp. (1999) 527 US 815, 842, 119 S Ct 2295, 144 L Ed2d 715].

While the court has the authority to create subclasses, it is not required to do so sua sponte. Rather, the party seeking certification has the burden to submit an appropriate certification proposal to the court [see United States Parole Comm'n v. Geraghty (1980) 445 US 388, 407-408, 100 S Ct 1202, 63 L Ed2d 479].

A class action with too many subclasses or disparate subclasses may be too unwieldy to maintain as a class action. The difficulties of dealing with the various subclasses may undermine the benefits class certification is intended to provide [see In re Paxil Litig. (CD Cal 2003) 212 FRD 539, 545].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass MembersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesGeneral Overview

21 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
IV. MOVING FOR CLASS CERTIFICATION

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.19

20.19 Court May Certify Settlement-Only Class.

Parties will frequently negotiate a settlement before certification, or even before the suit is filed, and request that the court certify the class and approve the settlement at the same time. The class in an action of this type, which is not intended to be litigated, is usually referred to as a "settlement class."

A court may properly certify a settlement class, but only if all of the relevant requirements of Fed R Civ P 23 are met. The fairness inquiry required for settlements under Fed R Civ P 23(e) does not supersede the requirements of Fed R Civ P 23(a) and (b) [see Amchem Prods. Inc. v. Windsor (1997) 521 US 591, 621-622, 117 S Ct 2231, 138 L Ed2d 689].

A court need not inquire whether the case, if tried, would present intractable management problems [see Fed R Civ P 23(b)(3)(D)], because the proposal is that there be no trial. However, other specifications of the rule demand undiluted, even heightened, attention in the settlement context. This attention is of vital importance, for a court asked to certify a settlement class will lack the opportunity, present when a case is litigated, to adjust the class, informed by the proceedings as they unfold [see Amchem Prods. Inc. v. Windsor (1997) 521 US 591, 620, 117 S Ct 2231, 138 L Ed2d 689].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of requirement that court approve settlements, see § 20.42.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsCompromises

22 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
IV. MOVING FOR CLASS CERTIFICATION

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.20

20.20 Court May Certify Defendant Class.

While most class actions involve claims by a class of plaintiffs, Fed R Civ P 23 also allows the court to certify an action against a class of defendants under Rule 23(b)(1) and (b)(3) [see Fed R Civ P 23(b)(1), (3); see, e.g., Weinberger v. Jackson (ND Cal 1984) 102 FRD 839, 848-849]. Rule 23(b)(2), which allows certification of classes seeking injunctive or declaratory relief with respect to the class as a whole, is usually held to apply only to plaintiff classes [Fed R Civ P 23(b)(2); see Tilley v. TJX Cos. (1st Cir 2003) 345 F3d 34, 39-40].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass MembersDefendants

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
IV. MOVING FOR CLASS CERTIFICATION

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.21

20.21 Court Must Issue Written Order.

The court must determine by order whether to certify the action as a class action [Fed R Civ P 23(c)(1)(A); see also Besinga v. United States (9th Cir 1991) 923 F2d 133, 135]. If the court certifies the class, the order must [Fed R Civ P 23(c)(1)(B); see Valentino v. Carter-Wallace, Inc. (9th Cir 1996) 97 F3d 1227, 1234]:

- Define the class and the class claims, issues, or defenses;
- Appoint class counsel;
- Specify that all the requirements of Fed R Civ P 23(a) have been met; and
- Indicate the subsection(s) of Fed R Civ P 23(b) under which the action is proceeding.

The certification decision may not be conditional on later events or findings, although the court may amend the certification order and decertify the class if appropriate at any time before final judgment. If the court is not satisfied that the Fed R Civ P 23 requirements are met, the court should refuse to certify until those requirements are met [see Fed R Civ P 23(c)(1)(C), Committee Note of 2003].

If the court denies certification, it may order the parties to amend their pleadings to eliminate the class allegations, and then proceed with the individual claims [see Fed R Civ P 23(d)(1)(D)].

Cross References:

Discussion of class definition, see 20.05. Discussion of appointment of class counsel, see § 20.33.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass CounselAppointmentsCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass MembersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsDecertificationCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral Overview

24 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
IV. MOVING FOR CLASS CERTIFICATION

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.22

20.22 Court May Revise Order or Decertify Class.

An order certifying a class action, or refusing to certify a class action, may be altered or amended as appropriate at any time before final judgment [Fed R Civ P 23(c)(1)(C)].

For example, the district court may amend the order to redefine the class [see Armstrong v. Davis (9th Cir 2001) 275 F3d 849, 872 n28]. Redefinition may become necessary to conform to the proof presented at trial [see Penk v. Oregon State Bd. of Higher Educ. (9th Cir 1987) 816 F2d 458, 467 , cert. denied, 484 US 853 (1987)].

The district court's broad discretion to determine whether a class should be certified extends to decertification. The court should revisit its certification decision throughout the legal proceedings and decertify the class if necessary [see Armstrong v. Davis (9th Cir 2001) 275 F3d 849, 872 n28]. The court should not decertify a class without good cause; but developments in the litigation, such as the discovery of new facts or changes in the parties or in the substantive or procedural law, may require reconsideration of the certification order [see O'Connor v. Boeing N. Am., Inc. (CD Cal 2000) 197 FRD 404, 409-410].

Consider:

If the court redefines a Fed R Civ P 23(b)(3) class so that it includes new members, additional notice and an opportunity to opt out must be afforded the new members [see Fed R Civ P 23(c)(1), Committee Note of 2003].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of notice and opportunity to opt out, see §§ 20.26, 20.27.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsDecertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsJudicial DiscretionCivil ProcedureClass ActionsNoticesCivil ProcedureClass ActionsOpt-Out Provisions

25 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
IV. MOVING FOR CLASS CERTIFICATION

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.23

20.23 Court of Appeals May Permit Interlocutory Review of Certification Decision.

A decision certifying or refusing to certify a class is not a final order or appealable collateral order and, therefore, is not immediately appealable as of right. The decision may be reviewed as of right only on appeal from the final judgment [see Coopers & Lybrand v. Livesay (1978) 437 US 463, 468, 98 S Ct 2454, 57 L Ed2d 351].

However, a court of appeals may, in its discretion, permit an interlocutory appeal from a district court order granting or denying class certification [Fed R Civ P 23(f)]. Review of class certification decisions will be granted rarely. The Ninth Circuit has opined that review should be granted only when any of the following circumstances exists [Chamberlan v. Ford Motor Co. (9th Cir 2005) 402 F3d 952, 959]:

- A death-knell situation exists for either the plaintiff or defendant independent of the merits of the underlying claims, coupled with a class certification decision by the district court that is questionable.

- The certification decision presents an unsettled and fundamental issue of law relating to class actions, important both to the specific litigation and generally, that is likely to evade end-of-the-case review.

- The district court's class certification decision is manifestly erroneous and the error is significant.

However, these categories are guidelines and the court of appeals retains discretion to grant review in a case falling outside of them [Chamberlan v. Ford Motor Co. (9th Cir 2005) 402 F3d 952, 960].

Timing:

Application must be made to the court of appeals within 14 days after entry of the district court order [Fed R Civ P 23(f)]. The 14-day period is calculated under Fed R Civ P 6. A motion for reconsideration filed within the Rule 23(f) time limit tolls the time for making the application until the district court rules on the motion for reconsideration [see Shin v. Cobb County Bd. of Educ (11th Cir 2001) 248 F3d 1061, 1063-1065 (decided under former version of Fed R Civ P 23(f))].

Cross Reference:

Calculating time under Fed R Civ P 6, § 8.05[2][e].

An appeal does not stay proceedings in the district court unless the district judge or the court of appeals so orders [Fed R Civ P 23(f)]. A stay should be sought first from the district court [Fed R Civ P 23, Committee Note of 1998].

The district court's decision on certification (whether on interlocutory appeal under Rule 23(f) or on review after final judgment) is reviewed for abuse of discretion [see Barber v. Hawaii (9th Cir 1994) 42 F3d 1185, 1197].

Consider:

A named plaintiff may appeal a denial of class certification even if the named plaintiff's own individual claims have become moot. Although the named plaintiff no longer has any interest in the substantive relief sought, the named plaintiff retains a personal stake in obtaining class certification sufficient to assure that the constitutional case or controversy requirement is satisfied [see United States Parole Comm'n v. Geraghty (1980) 445 US 388, 403-404, 100 S Ct 1202, 63 L Ed2d 479].

If the district court dismisses an action without deciding whether to certify (rather than denying certification), a named plaintiff whose claims have become moot has standing to appeal only when the class claims are inherently transitory so that a failure to rule may mean that a class will never be assembled [see Wade v. Kirkland (9th Cir 1997) 118 F3d 667, 669].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsAppellate ReviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionInterlocutory OrdersCivil ProcedureAppealsReviewabilityTime LimitationsCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewAbuse of Discretion

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
V. PROVIDING NOTICE TO CLASS MEMBERS AND OPPORTUNITY TO OPT OUT

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.24

20.24 CHECKLIST: Providing Notice to Class Members.

☐ Consider that:

○ In actions certified under Fed R Civ P 23(b)(1) or (2) (class actions primarily for injunctive or declaratory relief, with only incidental money damages), court has discretion to determine whether it will give class members notice of certification of the action as a class action.

○ In actions certified under Fed R Civ P 23(b)(3) (class actions for money damages), court must provide class members with notice of class certification and with an opportunity to opt out of class action.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23(c)(2)

Discussion:
See §§ 20.26, 20.27

☐ In Rule 23(b)(3) class actions, draft or prepare notice for court's approval that concisely and clearly states all of the following in plain, easily understood language:

○ The nature of the action.

○ The definition of the class.

○ The class claims, issues, or defenses.

○ That a class member may enter an appearance through counsel if the member so desires.

○ That the court will exclude from the class any member who requests exclusion, stating when and how and when members may elect to be excluded.

○ That a class judgment, whether favorable or unfavorable to the class, will be binding on those who have received notice, who did not request to be excluded, and whom the court finds to be members of the class.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23(c)(2)(B)

Discussion:
See § 20.27[1]

Forms:
Illustrative forms of notice are available at the Federal Judicial Center's website: http://www.fjc.gov

☐ Provide notice to class members as directed by court, noting that:

○ Individual notice, generally by first class mail, must be provided to those class members who can be identified through reasonable effort.

○ Publication in newspapers and magazines may be ordered in addition to individual notice if that is a reasonable way to reach class members who cannot be identified through reasonable effort.

○ Other types of notice may be appropriate in some cases, such as posting in a workplace.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23(c)(2)(B)

Discussion:
See § 20.27[2]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsJudicial DiscretionCivil ProcedureClass ActionsNotices

27 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
V. PROVIDING NOTICE TO CLASS MEMBERS AND OPPORTUNITY TO OPT OUT

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.25

20.25 Options and Strategy.

In class actions certified under Fed R Civ P 23(b)(1) or (b)(2) (actions primarily for injunctive or declaratory relief, with only incidental requests for money damages), the court has discretion as to whether it will order notice of the class action to the absent class members [Fed R Civ P 23(c)(2)(A)]. The court has no discretion, and must order notice to the class of the certification decision and the pendency of the class action in any class action certified under Fed R Civ P 23(b)(3) [Fed R Civ P 23(c)(2)(B)]. Because the costs of notice to a large class may be high, and must ordinarily be born by the plaintiffs (or the plaintiffs' attorneys), whether notice should be given and the method of giving notice are often contested by the parties.

Consider--Flexibility of Notice If Notice Is Optional:

Because notice itself is discretionary in (b)(1) and (b)(2) class actions, the court has complete flexibility as to the method and type of notice it may order [see Fed R Civ P 23(c)(2)(A) ("the court may direct appropriate notice to the class" [emphasis added])]. This flexibility recognizes that, in some instances, the cost of notice could potentially outweigh any benefit that the class could receive from the notice and, in a few instances, any benefit that the class could receive from the action on the merits. Therefore, in ordering notice in (b)(1) and (b)(2) class actions, the parties and the court should give consideration to cost effective notice mechanisms, such as posting notice on dedicated Internet web sites [see Fed R Civ P 23, Committee Note of 2003].

Distinguish:

Fed R Civ P 23(c) deals with notice to the class of the court's certification decision. If the action is settled, the class members must also be given notice of the settlement [see Fed R Civ P 23(e)(1)] and notice of other matters may also be ordered by the court [see Fed R Civ P 23(d)(1)(B)].

Cross References:

Discussion of notice of settlement, see 20.42[6]. Discussion of questionnaires and other notices included in certification notice sent to class members, see 20.38[1]. Discussion of notice of other matters, see § 20.38[2].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsJudicial DiscretionCivil ProcedureClass ActionsNotices

28 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
V. PROVIDING NOTICE TO CLASS MEMBERS AND OPPORTUNITY TO OPT OUT

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.26

20.26 Court May Direct Notice in Rule 23(b)(1) or (2) Class Actions.

20.26[1] Notice Is Discretionary With Court. For any class certified under Rule 23(b)(1) or (2), the court "may" direct appropriate notice to the class. For these types of class actions, notice is discretionary with the court [Fed R Civ P 23(c)(2)(A)]. These types of class actions do not seek money damages as the primary remedy. Rule 23(b)(1) class actions are appropriate when separate litigation might impair the interests of the party opposing the class or other class members [Fed R Civ P 23(b)(1)], including a declaration of the competing rights of the parties as to their interests in a limited fund [see Ortiz v. Fibreboard Corp. (1999) 527 US 815, 841-842, 119 S Ct 2295, 144 L Ed2d 715]. Rule 23(b)(2) class actions are appropriate when a class seeks primarily injunctive or declaratory relief with respect to the class as a whole [Fed R Civ P 23(b)(2)] Although these types of class actions do not seek money damages as the primary remedy, these actions may also include secondary claims for damages.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of Rule 23(b)(1) and (b)(2) class actions, see § 20.07.

The court's authority to order notice should be exercised with care. The court should balance the risk that the cost of notice may deter the pursuit of class relief against the benefits the class will derive from notice. Notice is most likely to be ordered in cases involving secondary claims for money damages. The more substantial the individual class members' money damages claims are, the more likely it is that the court will require notice to the individual class members [see, e.g., Eubanks v. Billington (DC Cir 1997) 110 F3d 87, 94-96], because the Supreme Court has held that the Due Process clause gives class members the right to notice and to opt out of a class action seeking money damages [Phillips Petroleum, Co. v. Shutts (1985) 472 US 797, 811-812, 105 S Ct 2965, 86 L Ed2d 628]. However, when the action seeks only injunctive relief, such as some civil rights actions, the cost of notice may be unjustifiably great [see Fed R Civ P 23(c)(2), Committee Note of 2003].

The court's discretion to direct notice extends to the method of giving notice. Notice calculated to reach a significant number of class members may be sufficient to protect the interests of all class members. Informal methods may prove effective. Again, the court should consider the costs of notice in relation to the probable reach of inexpensive methods [see Fed R Civ P 23(c)(2), Committee Note of 2003].

Distinguish:

For classes certified under Rule 23(b)(3), the court must order the "best notice practicable" to all class members who can be identified through reasonable effort [Fed R Civ P 23(c)(2)(B)].

20.26[2] Opportunity to Opt Out Is Ordinarily Not Required. Members of a Rule 23(b)(1) or (2) class action are not entitled to an opportunity to opt out, even if the court, in its discretion, has ordered that class members receive notice of the certification and pendency of the class action [see Fed R Civ P 23(c)(2), Committee Note of 2003; see, e.g., Dosier v. Miami Valley Broad. Corp. (9th Cir 1981) 656 F2d 1295, 1299]. However, the court has discretion to allow the class members an opportunity to opt out [see Fed R Civ P 23(d); Molski v. Gleich (9th Cir 2003) 318 F3d 937, 947 , overruled on other grounds, Dukes v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. (9th Cir 2010) 603 F3d 571, 617] .

Consider:

Allowing the class members to opt out (and potentially pursue separate suits) may undermine the purposes of a (b)(1) or (b)(2) action. Generally speaking, (b)(1) actions are allowed in order to prevent the risk that individual suits might impair the interests of the party opposing the class or of other class members [see Fed R Civ P 23(b)(1)]. Similarly, (b)(2) actions seek injunctive relief with respect to the class as a whole [see Fed R Civ P 23(b)(2)]. Permitting individual class members to opt out of these types of classes could defeat the very purpose of class treatment in these cases [see, e.g., Eubanks v. Billington (DC Cir 1997) 110 F3d 87, 94-96].

Due process requires that absent class members have an opportunity to opt out only when the claims are wholly or predominately for monetary damages [see Linney v. Cellular Alaska P'ship (9th Cir 1998) 151 F3d 1234, 1240, 1242 n6]. When an action involves "substantial" monetary claims in addition to claims for injunctive or declaratory relief, it may be considered a "hybrid" suit, and a right to opt out may be required by due process as to the substantial monetary claims. These due process concerns may be addressed in one of three ways:

- The court could certify all of the claims of the class under Rule 23(b)(3);
- The court could bifurcate the case, certify the injunctive or declaratory relief claims under Rule 23(b)(1) or (b)(2), and certify the damages claims under Rule 23(b)(3); or
- The court could certify the claims under Rule 23(b)(1) or (2) and use its discretionary powers to order notice and an opportunity to opt out of a (b)(1) or (b)(2) class.

The Ninth Circuit ruled that, in a case involving treble statutory damages, the court had to order notice and an opportunity to opt by one of these three methods [see Molski v. Gleich (9th Cir 2003) 318 F3d 937, 950-951 , overruled on other grounds, Dukes v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. (9th Cir 2010) 603 F3d 571, 617] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsJudicial DiscretionCivil ProcedureClass ActionsNoticesCivil ProcedureClass ActionsOpt-Out Provisions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
V. PROVIDING NOTICE TO CLASS MEMBERS AND OPPORTUNITY TO OPT OUT

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.27

20.27 Court Must Direct Notice in Rule 23(b)(3) Class Actions.

20.27[1] Notice Is Mandatory. For any class action certified under Fed R Civ P 23(b)(3), the court must direct the best notice practicable under the circumstances to class members, including individual notice to all members who can be identified through reasonable effort. The notice must concisely and clearly state all the following in plain, easily understood language [Fed R Civ P 23(c)(2)(B), (3)]:

- The nature of the action.
- The definition of the class.
- The class claims, issues, or defenses.
- That a class member may enter an appearance through counsel if the member so desires.
- That the court will exclude from the class any member who requests exclusion, stating when and how members may elect to be excluded.
- That a class judgment, whether or not favorable to the class, will be binding on those who have received notice, who did not request to be excluded, and whom the court finds to be members of the class.

Notice is required not only by Fed R Civ P 23 but by due process. In order to bind known, absent class members in a class action suit for money damages, due process requires adequate notice to the absent members of the pendency of the action and an opportunity for the members to opt out [Phillips Petroleum Co. v. Shutts (1985) 472 US 797, 808, 812-814, 105 S Ct 2965, 86 L Ed2d 628 ; Brown v. Ticor Title Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1992) 982 F2d 386, 392 , cert. denied, 510 US 810 (1993)]. Accordingly, a judgment entered before notice to the class does not bind the absent class members [see Schwarzschild v. Tse (9th Cir 1995) 69 F3d 293, 296].

If a class definition is altered to include new members, the court must direct notice, with an opportunity to opt out, to those new members [see Fed R Civ P 23(c)(1), Committee Note of 2003].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of amendment of court's certification order, see § 20.22.

Rule 23 explicitly requires plain language [Fed R Civ P 23(c)(2)(B)]. The notice should be drafted in such a way that the class members can readily understand their rights and options. The notice may need to be stated in one or more languages other than English [see Mendoza v. United States (9th Cir 1980) 623 F2d 1338, 1351 , cert. denied sub nom. Sanchez v. Tuscon Unified Sch. Dist., 450 US 912 (1981)].

Consider:

Illustrative clear-notice forms created by the Federal Judicial Center provide a helpful starting point for actions similar to those described in the forms [see Fed R Civ P 23(c)(2), Committee Note of 2003]. These forms are available at the Center's website: http://www.fjc.gov.

20.27[2] Notice Must Be "Best Notice Practicable." The type of notice that the court must direct to class members is the "best notice practicable under the circumstances," including individual notice to all members who can be identified through reasonable effort [Fed R Civ P 23(c)(2)(B)]. This usually means sending an individual form of notice by first class mail to each class member who can be identified with reasonable effort [see Roberts v. Heim (ND Cal 1988) 130 FRD 416, 423].

Example:

In a case alleging antitrust and securities claims, notice was required to be mailed to 2,250,000 members whose names and addresses could be ascertained through the computerized records of the parties. The notice requirement could not be waived by the court, notwithstanding the expense involved in mailing such individual notice [Eisen v. Carlisle & Jacquelin (1974) 417 US 156, 176, 94 S Ct 2140, 40 L Ed2d 732].

The "best notice practicable" standard does not require that a class member actually receive notice in order to be bound by the class judgment, provided the court ordered notice that was reasonably calculated to reach the absent class members [see Silber v. Mabon (9th Cir 1994) 18 F3d 1449, 1453-1454]. The failure of some class members to receive notice does not render the notice inadequate when the class as a whole had adequate notice [see Torrisi v. Tucson Elec. Power Co. (9th Cir 1993) 8 F3d 1370, 1375 , cert. denied, 512 US 1220 (1994)].

When class members cannot be specifically identified through reasonable effort, publication in newspapers or magazines may be the best notice practicable [see Silber v. Mabon (9th Cir 1994) 18 F3d 1449, 1455]. In these circumstances, the court should order the notice published in those publications that class members are most likely to read, considering the geographic diversity of the class and other matters [see Six Mexican Workers v. Arizona Citrus Growers (9th Cir 1990) 904 F2d 1301, 1304 n2]. When publication is ordered, it is rarely, if ever, the sole method of notice ordered by the court. Courts usually authorize publication in concert with or in addition to direct notice to identifiable class members [see Silber v. Mabon (9th Cir 1994) 18 F3d 1449, 1453].

Publication is not the only alternative means of giving notice. Courts may also order other types of notice to supplement individual notice, including the posting of the notice at places where class members are likely to see the notice, or broadcast announcements on radio or television [see Six Mexican Workers v. Arizona Citrus Growers (9th Cir 1990) 904 F2d 1301, 1304 n2]. In securities class actions, courts may direct that notice be sent to the record owners of the securities (i.e., banks and securities brokers) with instructions that they forward the notice to the beneficial owners, who are the class members affected by the suit [see Silber v. Mabon (9th Cir 1994) 18 F3d 1449, 1454 n3].

20.27[3] Class Members Must Be Afforded Opportunity to Opt Out. The notice to class members must clearly state that the court will exclude from the class any member who requests exclusion, as well as when and how members may elect to be excluded. The notice must also state that a class judgment, whether favorable or unfavorable to the class, will be binding on class members who have received notice and who do not request to be excluded [Fed R Civ P 23(c)(2)(B)].

This notice requirement ensures that class members are aware of the action before the case is decided on the merits, and it allows class members to choose whether to be bound by the class judgment or whether to litigate their claims separately. The requirement prevents "one-way intervention," by which a class member would be able to make the decision to opt out or to participate only after the decision on the merits, and could therefore choose to be bound by the class resolution only when the resolution was guaranteed to be favorable to the class [see Schwarzschild v. Tse (9th Cir 1995) 69 F3d 293, 296].

An opportunity to opt out is required by due process; a member of a money damages Fed R Civ P 23(b)(3) class who is not afforded an opportunity to opt out is not bound by the class judgment [Phillips Petroleum Co. v. Shutts (1985) 472 US 797, 808, 812-814, 105 S Ct 2965, 86 L Ed2d 628]. The decision whether to participate or opt out is an individual one and may not be made for the class members by the class representative or the class counsel [see Hanlon v. Chrysler Corp. (9th Cir 1998) 150 F3d 1011, 1024].

20.27[4] Notice Must Set Deadlines for Action by Class Members. The notice must not only advise class members of their right to opt out, but must state how and when members may elect to be excluded [Fed R Civ P 23(c)(2)(B)]. Accordingly, the notice should include an express deadline by which class members must respond if they wish to exercise the right to opt out. When class members seek to opt out but fail to meet the deadline set by the court, the lack of timeliness may be excused under Rule 6 if the class member demonstrates excusable neglect [Fed R Civ P 6; Silber v. Mabon (9th Cir 1994) 18 F3d 1449, 1455].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of excusable neglect under Rule 6, see Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, 26.35[3].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsDerivative ActionsNoticesCivil ProcedureClass ActionsNoticesCivil ProcedureClass ActionsOpt-Out Provisions

30 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
V. PROVIDING NOTICE TO CLASS MEMBERS AND OPPORTUNITY TO OPT OUT

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.28

20.28 Class Proponent Ordinarily Must Bear Cost of Notice.

The plaintiff in a plaintiff class action ordinarily must bear the cost of providing notice to the class [Eisen v. Carlisle & Jacquelin (1974) 417 US 156, 177, 94 S Ct 2140, 40 L Ed2d 732].

However, the defendant may be required to bear some or all of the expense if the cost to the defendant is insubstantial or if the defendant would bear that expense in the ordinary course of business. For example, the defendant may be required to include notice in periodic mailings to the class members [see Oppenheimer Fund, Inc. v. Sanders (1978) 437 US 340, 355 n22, 358-359, 98 S Ct 2380, 57 L Ed2d 253].

Generally, class counsel will advance the costs of notice. The California Rules of Professional Conduct allow class counsel to advance the costs of litigation, and repayment may be contingent on the outcome of the case [Cal Rules Prof Conduct, Rule 4-210(A)(3); see In re United Energy Corp. Solar Power Modules Tax Shelter Inv. Sec. Litig. (CD Cal 1988) 122 FRD 251, 257].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsClass CounselGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass CounselFeesCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass MembersNamed MembersCivil ProcedureClass ActionsNoticesLegal EthicsClient RelationsBilling & Collection

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
V. PROVIDING NOTICE TO CLASS MEMBERS AND OPPORTUNITY TO OPT OUT

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.29

20.29 Interlocutory Appeal of Orders Relating to Notice May Be Available.

The court's order with respect to notice may in some cases be considered a final collateral order that is subject to interlocutory appeal [Eisen v. Carlisle & Jacquelin (1974) 417 US 156, 179, 94 S Ct 2140, 40 L Ed2d 732]. However, the courts of appeals may exercise jurisdiction over such an order only when there is a significant likelihood that a substantial portion of the class would not receive notice [see Blum v. BankAtlantic Fin. Corp (11th Cir 1991) 925 F2d 1357, 1360].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsAppellate ReviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsNoticesCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionInterlocutory Orders

32 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
V. PROVIDING NOTICE TO CLASS MEMBERS AND OPPORTUNITY TO OPT OUT

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.30

20.30 LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Pleading.

Under a Central District of California local rule, any pleading purporting to commence a class action must contain a separate section entitled "Class Action Allegations" that must state, among other things, the nature of notice to the proposed class that is required or contemplated [CD Cal Civ LR 23-2.2(g)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsRequirementsCivil ProcedureClass ActionsNoticesGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
VI. SEEKING APPOINTMENT AS CLASS COUNSEL AND REQUESTING FEE AWARD

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.31

20.31 CHECKLIST: Seeking Appointment As Class Counsel and Requesting Fee Award.

20.31[1] Seeking Appointment As Class Counsel.

☐ File a formal application seeking appointment with the court, either as part of the certification motion or separately.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23(g)(1)

Discussion:
See § 20.33

☐ In the application and supporting materials, address the following factors in support of appointment:

○ The work counsel has done in identifying or investigating potential claims in the action.

○ Counsel's experience in handling class actions, other complex litigation, and claims of the type asserted in the action.

○ Counsel's knowledge of the applicable law.

○ The resources counsel will commit to representing the class.

Authority:

Fed R Civ P 23(g)(1)(A)

Discussion:
See §§ 20.33[2], [4]

☐ The court must appoint counsel as follows:

○ If there is only one applicant, the court will appoint that applicant if it determines that the applicant is adequate to serve as counsel.

○ If there is more than one applicant, the court must appoint the applicant best able to represent the interests of the class.

○ If the court determines that none of the applicants would be satisfactory class counsel, the court may:

☐ Deny class certification;

☐ Delay certification and recommend that an application be modified;

☐ Invite new applications; or

☐ Make any other appropriate order.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23(c)(1)(B), (g)(2).

Discussion:
See § 20.33[1]

☐ When drafting the court's certification order, ensure that it contains a provision appointing counsel for each class and subclass certified.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23(c)(1)(B), (g)(1)

Discussion:
See § 20.21

20.31[2] Requesting Fee Award.

☐ Decide whether to request a fee award, considering:

○ Fees must be authorized by statute or by agreement of the parties.

○ Fees may be available to attorneys other than class counsel, such as:

☐ Attorneys who acted for the class before certification but were not appointed class counsel.

☐ Attorneys who represented objectors to a proposed settlement.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23(h)

Discussion:
See §§ 20.35[1], [2]

☐ To request an award of attorney's fees and nontaxable costs, file a Rule 54(d)(2) motion.

Timing:
The time for filing a motion for attorney's fees in a class action must be set by the court [Fed R Civ P 23(h)]. In cases involving a proposed settlement, the court should require filing in time for inclusion of information about the proposed fee award in the settlement notice that must be provided to the class as required by Fed R Civ P 23(e) [see Fed R Civ P 23(h)(1), Committee Note of 2003].

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23(h), 54(d)(2)

Discussion:
See § 20.35[1]

Standard Procedure Checklist:
Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, 26.12

☐ If class counsel filed the motion for attorney's fees, provide reasonable notice of the motion to class members as directed by the court; this notice may be included as part of the settlement notice.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23(h)(1)

Discussion:
See § 20.35[3]

☐ Seek ruling on motion, noting that:

○ The court may hold a hearing.

○ The court will consider any objections filed by class members.

○ The court must carefully assess the reasonableness of the requested fees and nontaxable costs.

○ The court must find the facts and state its conclusions of law on the motion under Rule 52(a).

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23(h)(2), (3), 52(a)

Discussion:
See § 20.35[5]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsClass CounselGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass CounselAppointmentsCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass CounselFees

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
VI. SEEKING APPOINTMENT AS CLASS COUNSEL AND REQUESTING FEE AWARD

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.32

20.32 Options and Strategy.

The procedure for appointing class counsel is novel and was created by the 2003 amendments to Rule 23. Before then, the court scrutinized the qualifications for as part of the court's determination of adequacy of the class representative under Fed R Civ P 23(a)(4). If the named plaintiff's counsel was not considered adequate, the class representative was not considered adequate either. The appointment procedure builds on that experience, but creates a new framework that separates the inquiry of who should be class representative from who should be class counsel [see Fed R Civ P 23(g), Committee Note of 2003].

In most cases, the court will appoint the attorneys who filed the action as long as they are qualified to handle the case, because the court must recognize any work done to bring the case and must give consideration to the already existing attorney-client relationship between the class representatives and their attorney. However, under the appointment criteria set out in Rule 23(g), it is possible for the court to appoint counsel who have no prior relationship with the case or with the class representatives [see Fed R Civ P 23(g)].

The Fed R Civ P 23(h) provisions governing fee awards in class actions are also new, although courts have long been required to approve fee awards that are part of a settlement of a class action.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsClass CounselGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass CounselAppointmentsCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass CounselFees

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
VI. SEEKING APPOINTMENT AS CLASS COUNSEL AND REQUESTING FEE AWARD

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.33

20.33 Court Must Appoint Class Counsel.

20.33[1] Court Must Appoint Counsel at Time of Certification. When a court certifies a class, the court must also appoint class counsel unless a specific statute provides otherwise [Fed R Civ P 23(g)(1)]. The appointment must be made in the court's certification order [Fed R Civ P 23(c)(1)(B)].

An example of a statute that provides otherwise is the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995. In securities class actions governed by this statute, the court appoints a lead plaintiff, who then selects counsel, subject to the approval of the court [see 15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(3)(B)(v), 78u-4(a)(3)(B)(v)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of appointment of lead plaintiff and selection of counsel under PSLRA, see § 20.50.

If the court certifies subclasses to represent divergent interests, the court must appoint class counsel for each subclass [Fed R Civ P 23(g)(1)(A), Committee Note of 2003].

The class counsel may be an individual attorney, an entire firm, or even several attorneys or firms who are not otherwise affiliated. The court should be alert to the need for adequate staffing, but also to the risk of overstaffing or an ungainly counsel structure [see Fed R Civ P 23(g)(2), Committee Note of 2003].

When there is only one applicant for appointment as class counsel, the court may appoint that applicant only if the court determines the applicant to be adequate. If more than one adequate applicant seeks appointment as class counsel, the court must appoint the applicant best able to represent the interests of the class [Fed R Civ P 23(g)(2)].

If, after review of all applicants, the court determines that none would be satisfactory class counsel, the court may deny class certification. Alternatively, it may delay certification and recommend that a class counsel application be modified, invite new applications for class counsel, or make any other appropriate order [Fed R Civ P 23(g)(1)(C), Committee Note of 2003]. However, the court may not certify the class unless it also appoints class counsel [Fed R Civ P 23(c)(1)(B)].

The court may make any appropriate further orders in connection with the appointment of class counsel [Fed R Civ P 23(g)(1)(E)]. For example, the court may, if necessary, require additional notice to allow class members the opportunity to signify whether they consider the representation fair and adequate [Fed R Civ P 23(d)(1)(B)(iii)].

Cross Reference:

Additional discussion of Rule 23(g) appointment of counsel, see 5 Moore's Federal Practice, § 23.120 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

20.33[2] Counsel Should Submit Application to Court. Those attorneys or firms that desire to be appointed class counsel should ordinarily file a formal application detailing their suitability for the position. The court usually will not appoint counsel who have not sought appointment. For counsel who filed the action, the materials submitted in support of the motion for class certification may be sufficient to justify appointment [see Fed R Civ P 23(g)(2), Committee Note of 2003].

The application (or the materials submitted in support of the certification motion if the application is included in that motion) should address the factors the court must consider under Fed R Civ P 23(g)(1)(C)(i) [see Fed R Civ P 23(g)(1)(C), (2), Committee Note of 2003].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of factors, see § 20.33[4].

It may be appropriate for the court to allow a reasonable time after commencement of the action for applications to be filed. Multiple applications might be expected, for example, when more than one class action has been filed, or in which other attorneys have filed individual actions. Competition facilitates the goal of providing the best possible representation for the class [Fed R Civ P 23(g)(2)(A), Committee Note of 2003].

20.33[3] Class Counsel Must Fairly and Adequately Represent Class. An attorney appointed to serve as class counsel must fairly and adequately represent the interests of the class [Fed R Civ P 23(g)(4)].

The primary obligation of class counsel is to the class rather than to the class representatives. Accordingly, counsel's obligations differ from the customary obligations of counsel to individual clients. The class representative does not have an unfettered right to fire class counsel, nor can the class representative command class counsel to accept or reject a settlement. Counsel must determine whether a settlement would be in the best interests of the class as a whole [Fed R Civ P 23(g)(1)(B), Committee Note of 2003; see, e.g., Staton v. Boeing Co. (9th Cir 2003) 327 F3d 938, 960].

On the other hand, control of the class action is not left completely in the control of class counsel. If counsel and the class representative disagree about a significant matter, such as whether to accept a settlement, they should submit the dispute to the court for resolution [see Maywalt v. Parker & Parsley Petroleum Co. (2d Cir 1995) 67 F3d 1072, 1078].

20.33[4] Court Must Consider Prescribed Factors. In appointing class counsel, the court must consider the following factors [Fed R Civ P 23(g)(1)(A)]:

- The work counsel has done in identifying or investigating potential claims in the action.
- Counsel's experience in handling class actions, other complex litigation, and claims of the type asserted in the action.
- Counsel's knowledge of the applicable law.

- The resources counsel will commit to representing the class.

The court may also consider any other matter pertinent to counsel's ability to represent the interests of the class fairly and adequately [Fed R Civ P 23(g)(1)(B)]. For example, courts have traditionally considered whether counsel will vigorously protect class interests [see Hanlon v. Chrysler Corp. (9th Cir 1998) 150 F3d 1011, 1019-1020]. Counsel who have conflicts of interest with the class should not be appointed [see Hanlon v. Chrysler Corp. (9th Cir 1998) 150 F3d 1011, 1020].

The court should weigh all pertinent factors, but no single factor should necessarily be determinative. For example, the resources counsel will commit must be appropriate, but the court should not limit consideration to lawyers with the greatest resources [Fed R Civ P 23(g)(1)(C), Committee Note of 2003].

The court need not limit its appointment determination to the materials submitted by applicants. The court may direct potential applicants for class counsel to provide information on any subject the court deems pertinent to the appointment [Fed R Civ P 23(g)(1)(C)]. For example, the court may direct applicants to inform the court concerning any fee agreement [Fed R Civ P 23(g)(1)(C), Committee Note of 2003]. The court may also direct potential class counsel to propose terms for attorney's fees and nontaxable costs [Fed R Civ P 23(g)(1)(C)]. When the court orders the production of information that involves privileged, confidential, or work product information, a protective order may be appropriate [Fed R Civ P 23(g)(1)(C), Committee Note of 2003].

20.33[5] Appointment Order May Address Fees. The order appointing class counsel may include provisions about the award of attorney's fees or nontaxable costs [Fed R Civ P 23(g)(1)(D)]. The court may adopt guidelines for fees and costs, or may direct class counsel to report to the court at regular intervals on what has been done, in order to facilitate the court's later determination of a reasonable fees award [Fed R Civ P 23(g)(2)(C), Committee Note of 2003].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of fees award, see § 20.35.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass CounselGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass CounselAppointmentsCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass CounselFees

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
VI. SEEKING APPOINTMENT AS CLASS COUNSEL AND REQUESTING FEE AWARD

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.34

20.34 Court May Designate Interim Counsel.

The court may designate interim counsel to act on behalf of the putative class before determining whether to certify the action [Fed R Civ P 23(g)(3)]. Most often, pre-certification matters will be handled by the attorneys who filed the action rather than by specially designated counsel, however [see Fed R Civ P 23(g)(2), Committee Note of 2003].

Whether or not formally appointed, pre-certification counsel have a duty to act in the best interests of the class as a whole rather than the class representative [see Fed R Civ P 23(g)(2), Committee Note of 2003]. Most often, of course, the interests of the class representatives and the class as a whole will align because of the typicality and adequacy of representation requirements [see Fed R Civ P 23(a)(3), (4)].

Cross References:

Discussion of time by which court must make its certification decision and appoint counsel, see 20.16.
Discussion of typicality and adequacy of representation requirements, see §§ 20.06[3], [4].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass CounselAppointmentsCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesGeneral Overview

37 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
VI. SEEKING APPOINTMENT AS CLASS COUNSEL AND REQUESTING FEE AWARD

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.35

20.35 Attorneys May Request Fee Award.

20.35[1] Claim for Attorney's Fees Must Be Made by Motion Under Rule 54. In an action certified as a class action, the court may award reasonable attorney's fees, including nontaxable costs, if the fees and costs are authorized by law or by an agreement of the parties. A claim for an award must be made by motion under Rule 54(d)(2) at a time set by the court [Fed R Civ P 23(h)(1)].

Motions under Rule 54(d)(2) must specify the judgment and the statute, rule, or other grounds entitling the party to the award. The motion also must state the amount or provide a fair estimate of the fees sought. If directed by the court, the motion must also disclose the terms of any relevant agreement with respect to fees sought in the motion [see Fed R Civ P 54(d)(2)(B)(iii), (iv)].

Timing:

The time for filing a motion for attorney's fees in a class action must be set by the court [Fed R Civ P 23(h)]. In cases involving a proposed settlement, the court should require filing in time for inclusion of information about the proposed fee award in the settlement notice that must be provided to the class as required by Fed R Civ P 23(e). In those cases litigated to judgment, the court might also order prompt filing so that notice to the class under Rule 23(h) can be given [see Fed R Civ P 23(h)(1), Committee Note of 2003].

Cross References:

Discussion of notice of settlement under Rule 23(e), see 20.42[6]. Discussion of notice of fee award under Rule 23(h), see § 20.35[3].

Consider:

Rule 23(h) provides procedures for the court to follow when awarding attorney's fees pursuant to a statute or pursuant to a fee agreement or settlement agreement. Rule 23 does not create any separate basis for a fee award [see Fed R Civ P 23(h), Committee Note of 2003].

20.35[2] Any Attorneys Who Provide Services in Action May File Motion. Rule 23(h) provides a framework for all awards of attorney's fees and nontaxable costs in connection with a class action, not only awards to class counsel. An award may be appropriate with respect to attorneys who acted for the class before certification but who are not appointed class counsel, or to attorneys who represented objectors to a proposed settlement, or in other situations [Fed R Civ P 23(h), Committee Note of 2003].

20.35[3] Parties and Class Members Must Be Given Notice of Motion and Opportunity to Object. Notice of the motion requesting fees must be served on all parties and, for motions by for fees that are made by class counsel, directed to class members in a reasonable manner [Fed R Civ P 23(h)(1); see Fed R Civ P 5(b)]. While the manner and time of the notice to class members is not prescribed, the notice must be sufficient to provide a basis for class members to exercise their right to object, and should be given sufficiently in advance to allow them to do so [Fed R Civ P 23(h)(2), Committee Note of 2003].

A class member, or a party from whom payment is sought, may object to the motion [Fed R Civ P 23(h)(2)]. The court should also set the time limit for objections, and should provide sufficient time after the fee motion is on file to enable potential objectors to examine the motion. The court may even allow an objector discovery relevant to the objections, but should weigh the need for discovery against the cost and delay [Fed R Civ P 23(h)(2), Committee Note of 2003].

Consider:

When a class action is settled, the court must order notice of the settlement to the class members [Fed R Civ P 23(e)(1)]. Notice of class counsel's fee motion should be combined with notice of the proposed settlement [Fed R Civ P 23(h)(1), Committee Note of 2003].

Distinguish:

Rule 23(h) requires "reasonable" notice of the fee motion, not the "best notice that is practicable" required to advise class members that a class has been certified [see Fed R Civ P 23(c)(2)(B)].

Cross References:

Discussion of notice required when class is certified, see 20.26, 20.27. Discussion of notice of a proposed settlement, see § 20.42[6].

20.35[4] Court May Hold Hearing. The court may hold a hearing on a motion for an award of attorney's fees. The court may also refer issues related to the amount of the award to a special master or to a magistrate judge [Fed R Civ P 23(h)(3), (4)]. Fed R Civ P 23 does not require a formal hearing in all cases. The form and extent of a hearing depend on the circumstances [Fed R Civ P 23(h)(3), Committee Note of 2003].

Fed R Civ P 54 requires that, if any party or class member requests, the court must afford an opportunity for adversary submissions with respect to the motion for an award of attorney's fees. This may take the form of declarations, affidavits, or oral testimony at the hearing. Alternatively, the court may decide the motion without oral hearing on brief written statements of reasons in support and opposition [Fed R Civ P 54(d)(2)(C); see Fed R Civ P 43(c), 78].

20.35[5] Court Must Find Facts and State Conclusions of Law. The court must find the facts and state its conclusions of law on the motion for an award of attorney's fees under Rule 52(a) [Fed R Civ P 23(h)(3); see Fed R Civ P 52(a)]. The court should set out the factors it considered and describe its reasoning in sufficient detail to allow meaningful appellate review [see Powers v. Eichen (9th Cir 2000) 229 F3d 1249, 1256-1258].

20.35[6] Court Must Ensure That Fee Award Is Reasonable.

20.35[6][a] Court Must Protect Interest of Absent Class Members. Any award of attorney's fees and nontaxable costs must be reasonable [Fed R Civ P 23(h)]. Even in the absence of objections, the court bears the responsibility to ensure that the amount and mode of payment are fair and proper, whether the fees come from a common fund or are paid from some other source [Fed R Civ P 23(h), Committee Note of 2003].

When the fees are awarded pursuant to a settlement agreement, the district court must carefully assess the reasonableness of the fee provisions and satisfy itself that the fees awarded are not unreasonably high, so as to ensure that the class members' interests were not compromised in favor of those of class counsel. That the defendant formally agrees to pay the fees independently of any monetary award or injunctive relief provided to the class in the agreement does not detract from the need to scrutinize the fee award carefully [see Staton v. Boeing Co. (9th Cir 2003) 327 F3d 938, 963-965].

20.35[6][b] Court Must Calculate Fees by Lodestar Method When Award Is Based on Fee-Shifting Statute. Fees may be awarded under a specific statute that allows the court to award fees (i.e., a fee-shifting statute) or under a "common fund" theory [see Fed R Civ P 23(h), Committee Note of 2003].

When fees are awarded under a fee-shifting statute, the court must employ the "lodestar" method of calculation. This method involves multiplying the number of hours expended on the litigation by a reasonable hourly rate, and adjusting the figure to account for other factors if circumstances warrant [Staton v. Boeing Co. (9th Cir 2003) 327 F3d 938, 965].

In calculating an attorney's fee under a fee-shifting statute, the lodestar--the number of hours worked multiplied by the prevailing hourly rate--may be increased due to superior performance and results, but enhancements are atypical and should not duplicate the same considerations affecting the lodestar rate [Perdue v. Kenny A. ex rel. Winn (2010) -- US --, 130 S Ct 1662, 176 L Ed2d 494, 506-507 (circumstances in which superior attorney performance is not adequately taken into account in lodestar calculation are "rare" and "exceptional" and require specific evidence that lodestar fee would not have been "adequate to attract competent counsel")].

The parties may negotiate and settle the amount of statutory fees along with the merits of the case. The court must nevertheless review the settlement and may approve the fees if they meet the reasonableness standard when measured against statutory fee principles [Staton v. Boeing Co. (9th Cir 2003) 327 F3d 938, 972].

20.35[6][c] Court May Employ Either Lodestar or Percentage Method in Common Fund Cases. Under the "common fund" doctrine, an attorney who recovers a common fund for the benefit of other persons is entitled to a reasonable attorney's fee from the fund as a whole [Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert (1980) 444 US 472, 478, 100 S Ct 745, 62 L Ed2d 676]. The parties settle for the total amount of the common fund, and the plaintiffs' attorneys then apply to the court for a fee award from the fund [Staton v. Boeing Co. (9th Cir 2003) 327 F3d 938, 969].

Because the fee award will reduce the recovery by the class, the process is adversarial between the class counsel and the class. Accordingly, the court must act as fiduciary for the class [see Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp. (9th Cir 2002) 290 F3d 1043, 1052 , cert. denied sub nom. Vizcaino v. Waite, 537 US 1018 (2002)].

In a common fund case, the court may employ either the lodestar or percentage method [see Fed R Civ P 23(h), Committee Note of 2003; Staton v. Boeing Co. (9th Cir 2003) 327 F3d 938, 967-968]. The lodestar method involves multiplying the number of hours expended on the litigation by a reasonable hourly rate, and adjusting the figure to account for other factors if circumstances warrant [Staton v. Boeing Co. (9th Cir 2003) 327 F3d 938, 965]. In common fund cases in which the lodestar method is employed, the court can apply a risk multiplier to modify the award to compensate counsel for the risks involved [Staton v. Boeing Co. (9th Cir 2003) 327 F3d 938, 967-968].

Example:

The district court properly applied a multiplier of 3.65 when counsel achieved exceptional results for the class, the litigation was long and complex, and counsel faced substantial risk. Multipliers ranging from one to four are frequently applied in common fund cases, and the multiplier used was within this range [

Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp. (9th Cir 2002) 290 F3d 1043, 1051 , cert. denied sub nom. Vizcaino v. Waite, 537 US 1018 (2002)].

The percentage method involves an award of an appropriate percentage of the common fund. In the Ninth Circuit, 25 percent is a benchmark award [Staton v. Boeing Co. (9th Cir 2003) 327 F3d 938, 968]. Variation from the benchmark may be appropriate in some cases. Selection of the benchmark or any other rate must be supported by findings that take into account all the circumstances of the case [Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp. (9th Cir 2002) 290 F3d 1043, 1048 , cert. denied sub nom. Vizcaino v. Waite, 537 US 1018 (2002)].

In awarding a percentage fee, the court should cross-check the proposed amount of the fee with the fee that would be awarded under the lodestar method to ensure the fee award is reasonable under the circumstances [see Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp. (9th Cir 2002) 290 F3d 1043, 1050-1051 , cert. denied sub nom. Vizcaino v. Waite, 537 US 1018 (2002)].

Example:

Noting that "[p]ercentage awards are not meant to be a windfall for class counsel at the expense of the class," the district court found that a 15 percent award in a securities fraud class action, which translated to $2.55 million and 1.05 million shares of stock, was unreasonable despite the fact that it fell below the benchmark of 25 percent. A lodestar cross-check revealed that that the requested fee was "too large in light of the hours devoted" and "other relevant factors." The court fixed the fee award at 11 percent of the common fund, which translated to $1,870,000 cash and 770,000 shares of stock [In re HPL Techs., Inc. (ND Cal 2005) 366 F Supp 2d 912, 914, 925].

A court may not consider the cost of injunctive relief as part of the common fund for purposes of applying the percentage method, except in the unusual instance in which the value to individual class members of the benefits deriving from the injunctive relief can be accurately ascertained. In other cases, courts should consider the value of injunctive relief as a relevant circumstance in determining what percentage of the common fund to award, but should not consider the value of the injunctive relief as part of the common fund itself. Alternatively, when obtaining injunctive relief is a major part of counsel's work, the court may apply the lodestar method if that would achieve a more equitable result [Staton v. Boeing Co. (9th Cir 2003) 327 F3d 938, 972-974].

The parties may negotiate and agree to the value of a common fund as part of a settlement. Class counsel may then apply to the court later for a fee award out of the common fund. In these circumstances, the settlement agreement does not stand or fall on the amount of fees. Instead, the court must first decide the reasonableness of the settlement, including the amount of the common fund, and later decide the reasonableness of the amount of fees [Staton v. Boeing Co. (9th Cir 2003) 327 F3d 938, 972].

20.35[6][d] Court Must Calculate Fee Awards in Coupon Settlements in Accord With Statute. Under the Class Action Fairness Act of 2005, a statutory directive exists for calculating attorney fees awards in coupon settlements arising out of class actions commenced on or after February 18, 2005 [109 PL 2, § 9, 199 Stat 4].

- Contingent fees: The calculation of contingent fees attributable to the award of coupons must be based on the value to class members of the coupons redeemed by class members [28 USC § 1712(a)]. On the motion of a party, the court has the discretion to receive expert testimony on the actual value to the class members of the coupons redeemed [28 USC § 1712(d)]. If the court requires distribution to charitable or governmental organizations of a part of the value of any unclaimed coupons, the amount of that distribution is not considered in awarding a contingent fee [28 USC § 1712(e)].

- Non-contingent fees: If fees are not contingent, then the fee award must be based on the amount of time class counsel reasonably expended working on the action. The fee must include an appropriate fee for obtaining equitable relief, if any. The fee may be calculated using a lodestar with a multiplier [28 USC § 1712(b)].

- Mixed fees: When a settlement provides for both a coupon award and equitable relief, then the contingent portion of the fee award is to be based on the value of the coupons redeemed and the fee awarded for obtaining the equitable relief is to based on the amount of time class counsel reasonably expended working on the action [28 USC § 1712(c)].

20.35[6][e] Payment to Class Counsel That Results in Net Loss to Class Member Permissible Only If Nonmonetary Benefit Outweighs Loss. In a class action commenced on or after February 18, 2005 [see 109 PL 2, § 9, 199 Stat 4], the court may approve a proposed settlement under which any class member must pay a sum to class counsel that would result in a net loss to that member only if the court makes a written finding that the nonmonetary benefits to the class member substantially outweigh the monetary loss [28 USC § 1713].

Cross Reference:

Additional discussion of obtaining counsel fees, see 5 Moore's Federal Practice, § 23.124 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeTime LimitationsCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass CounselFeesCivil ProcedureClass ActionsNoticesCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesReasonable Fees

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
VII. SEEKING OTHER ORDERS IN CLASS ACTION

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.36

20.36 CHECKLIST: Seeking Other Orders in Class Action.

☐ Consider whether various orders allowed under Rule 23(d) may be appropriate to aid in the management of the class action, such as:

- ○ Orders determining the course of proceedings, presentation of evidence, or argument.
- ○ Orders requiring additional notice to the class of, for example:
  - ☐ Any step in the action.
  - ☐ The proposed extent of the judgment.
  - ☐ The opportunity of class members to signify whether they consider the representation fair and adequate.
  - ☐ The opportunity of class members to intervene and present claims or defenses, or otherwise to come into the action.
- ○ Orders imposing conditions on the representative parties or on intervenors; for example, an order limiting communications between parties and potential class members, if necessary to prevent abuse.
- ○ An order, in the event class certification is denied or the class is decertified, striking the class allegations from the complaint.

- Any other orders dealing with similar procedural matters.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23(d)

Discussion:
See § 20.38

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass MembersNamed MembersCivil ProcedureClass ActionsDecertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsNoticesCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesPretrial Orders

39 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
VII. SEEKING OTHER ORDERS IN CLASS ACTION

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.37

20.37 Options and Strategy.

Fed R Civ P 23(d) allows the court considerable discretion to manage the class action within the general framework of the Federal Rules. In addition to procedures and orders that are available in all actions under other rules, plaintiffs and defendants may request any type of order appropriate to facilitate the fair and efficient conduct of the class action. The parties should think through what court orders might improve the efficiency of the class action and should consider asking the court to make any such orders under Rule 23(d).

On the other hand, parties and the courts who are dealing with class actions should recall that the provisions of Fed R Civ P 23(d) do not supersede or diminish the need for case management orders under Fed R Civ P 16. Indeed, the Federal Judicial Center recommends that courts and parties in a class action case consider a number of initial case-management orders under either or both rules, including [Manual for Complex Litigation (Fourth), § 21.11]:

- Whether to hear and dispose of threshold dispositive motions, particularly motions that do not require extensive discovery, before hearing and determining the class certification motion.

- Whether to appoint interim class counsel during the period before certification.

- Whether and how to obtain information from parties and their counsel about the status of all related cases pending in state or federal courts.

- Whether and to what extent discovery is needed to decide whether to certify the proposed class.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of pretrial orders under Rule 16, see Ch. 16, Case Management Conferences, §§ 16.20 -16.22.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsJudicial DiscretionCivil ProcedurePretrial

MattersConferencesCase ManagementCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesPretrial ConferencesCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesPretrial Orders

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
VII. SEEKING OTHER ORDERS IN CLASS ACTION

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.38

20.38 Court May Make Appropriate Orders.

20.38[1] Court May Make Various Orders Under Rule 23(d). Rule 23 provides that the court may make any appropriate orders in the conduct of the class action, including orders of the following types [Fed R Civ P 23(d)]:

- Orders determining the course of proceedings or prescribing measures to prevent undue repetition or complication in the presentation of evidence or argument.

- Orders requiring, for the protection of the members of the class or otherwise for the fair conduct of the action, that notice be given to some or all of the members of the class of any step in the action, or of the proposed extent of the judgment, or of the opportunity of members to signify whether they consider the representation fair and adequate, to intervene and present claims or defenses, or otherwise to come into the action.

- Orders imposing conditions on the representative parties or on intervenors.

- Orders requiring that the pleadings be amended to eliminate allegations as to representation of absent persons, and that the action proceed accordingly (i.e., orders striking class allegations from the complaint when class certification is denied).

- Orders dealing with similar procedural matters.

The Federal Judicial Center suggests a number of topics for post-certification management of a class action suitable for court orders, including [Manual for Complex Litigation (Fourth), §§ 21.41-21.43]:

- The extent and conditions on which the parties may or many not have post-certification discovery from unnamed class members. For example, will unnamed class members be considered "parties" for purposes of discovery, such as interrogatories? Even if unnamed class members are or are not parties, does a propounding party have to show special need to obtain discovery and, if so, what is the threshold of need for permitting discovery? Will the threshold of need for permitting discovery depend on the type of discovery sought--such as deposing an unnamed class member, or requiring an unnamed class member to obtain counsel in order to answer written interrogatories?

- The coordination of the class action with other actions, both individual and class actions, that may be pending on the same topic in the same court or in other courts. For example, what formal and informal methods are available for this coordination? Is an injunction against another proceeding possible or advisable? Can coordinated scheduling save all parties time and expense?

- Setting special trial procedures that may assist in the management of a complex case. For example, will preliminary instructions and special verdicts make a jury trial more manageable? Can the certain common issues be tried first, while preserving all parties' rights to a full and balanced presentation of individual issues without needless duplication of effort?

Consider:

Rule 23(d) does not limit the court's authority to make orders that would be appropriate under other rules, such as orders allowing intervention [see Fed R Civ P 24] or orders allowing consolidation, severance, or separate trials [see Fed R Civ P 21, 42].

Example--Invalidation of Opt Outs:

In a class action brought by current and former employees of the Chinese Daily News, alleging, among other things, violations of the Fair Labor Standards Act, the opt out rate was 75-80 percent. The plaintiffs moved to invalidate the returned opt outs. The court noted that an average opt out rate would be between one and two percent and found that the opt outs in the case "were the product of a coercive environment that pressured employees to opt out lest they risk losing their jobs" and were not the product of independent decision-making. The court granted the motion to invalidate the opt outs submitted by class members [Wang v. Chinese Daily News, Inc. (CD Cal 2006) 236 FRD 485].

Example--Questionnaire Accompanying Notice:

In connection with the notice of the certification and pendency of a plaintiff class action and the opportunity to opt out, defendants should consider asking that the court order the plaintiffs to include a questionnaire with the notice to the class. The questionnaire can seek information concerning the individual damage claims of each class member of the plaintiff class. The information obtained can provide the parties with concrete information concerning the potential damages in the case and may provide a realistic basis for settlement negotiations [see Schwartz v. Celestial Seasonings, Inc. (D Colo 1999) 185 FRD 313, 316].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of First Amendment concerns for court orders precluding contact with class members, see § 20.38[3].

Whatever Fed R Civ P 23(d) orders are made, they may be altered or amended as may be desirable from time to time. Rule 23(d) is intended to give the court the authority needed to conduct the class action fairly and efficiently [see Fed R Civ P 23(d), Committee Note of 1966]. A district court has both the duty and the broad authority to exercise control over a class action and to enter appropriate orders governing the conduct of counsel and parties. This discretion is not unlimited but is bounded by relevant provisions of the Federal Rules [see Gulf Oil Co. v. Bernard (1981) 452 US 89, 100, 101 S Ct 2193, 68 L Ed2d 693].

20.38[2] Court May Order Additional Notice. Other provisions of Rule 23 require notice to the class that an action has been certified under Rule 23(b)(3) [see Fed R Civ P 23(c)(2)(B)], that a settlement is proposed [see Fed R

Civ P 23(e)(1)], and that attorney's fees have been requested [Fed R Civ P 23(h)(1)]. Also, other provisions of Rule 23 give the court discretion to order notice when an action has been certified under Rule 23(b)(1) or (2) [Fed R Civ P 23(c)(2)(A)].

Rule 23(d) gives the court discretion to order other kinds of notice for the protection of the class members or for the fair conduct of the action such as, for example [Fed R Civ P 23(d)]:

- Notice of any other steps in the class action.
- Notice of the proposed extent of the judgment.
- Notice of the opportunity of members to signify whether they consider the representation fair and adequate, to intervene and present claims or defenses, or otherwise to come into the action.

Rule 23(d) does not require notice of any matter, but invokes the court's discretion [Fed R Civ P 23(d)(2), Committee Note of 1966]. Because of the time and expense required to give notice, the court should exercise this discretion sparingly.

Rule 23(d) does not require any particular form of notice. Rather, when notice is ordered, the form and method of notice should be shaped to the particular purpose of the notice [Fed R Civ P 23(d)(2), Committee Note of 1966].

20.38[3] Court May Limit Communications Between Parties and Class Members. Parties, or counsel, may need to contact class members for various reasons, such as to obtain information relevant to the certification decision. On the other hand, such communications are subject to abuse. Because of the potential problems, an order limiting communications between parties and potential class members should be based on a clear record and specific findings that reflect a weighing of the need for a limitation and the potential interference with the rights of the parties. Further, any order should be carefully drawn to limit speech as little as possible, consistent with the rights of the parties under the circumstances [see Gulf Oil Co. v. Bernard (1981) 452 US 89, 102, 101 S Ct 2193, 68 L Ed2d 693].

Cross Reference:

Court orders authorizing or placing limits on discovery from unnamed class members, see § 20.38[1].

In fashioning an order limiting communications with class members, the court must also be sensitive to the First Amendment prohibition of prior restraints of speech [see In re School Asbestos Litig. (3d Cir 1988) 842 F2d 671, 680]. Rather than impose a prior restraint, the court may sanction misleading or coercive communications after they occur, such as by ordering curative notice at the expense of the party at fault [see Great Rivers Coop. v. Farmland Indus. (8th Cir 1995) 59 F3d 764, 766].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsJudicial DiscretionCivil ProcedureClass ActionsNoticesCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesPretrial Orders

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
VIII. SETTLING OR DISMISSING CLASS ACTION

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.39

20.39 CHECKLIST: Settling or Dismissing Class Action.

☐ When planning a settlement or seeking dismissal, consider:

○ Plaintiff may voluntarily dismiss or parties may settle claims before certification without the necessity of court approval and without binding the class members other than the class representative.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23(c), (e)(1)

Discussion:
See §§ 20.41, 20.44

○ Defendant may seek involuntary dismissal against the plaintiffs, either before or after certification, without prior notice to the class, or a hearing at which class members might appear and object; involuntary dismissal has no binding effect on class members other than the class representative.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23(c), (e)(2)

Discussion:
See §§ 20.43, 20.44

○ Any settlement or voluntary dismissal after certification requires notice to class members, a hearing at which class members may appear and object, and court approval, which the court may grant only on a finding that the settlement or dismissal is fair, reasonable, and adequate; settlement or dismissal after certification is equally binding on the class representative and on other class members, provided the class members were given notice and an opportunity to opt out, if required.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23(e)

Discussion:
See §§ 20.42, 20.44

☐ To obtain court approval of a settlement after certification:

○ Ensure that the negotiated settlement is, in its entirety, fair, reasonable, and adequate with respect to the absent class members, considering that:

☐ The amount of recovery must be reasonable in light of the strength of the plaintiffs' case versus the risk and expense of further litigation.

☐ The settlement may be reasonable and still favor some class members at the expense of others.

☐ Any incentive payments to the class representatives must be reasonable in light of relevant factors such as the amount of time and effort the representative expended in pursuing the litigation and reasonable fear of workplace retaliation because of the representation.

☐ Settlement terms relating to attorney's fees must be reasonable, and fees must also be approved separately from the agreement.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23(e)

Discussion:
See § 20.42

○ File a joint motion seeking approval of the settlement along with documentation disclosing all the terms of the agreement as well as a statement identifying any side agreements.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23(e)(3)

Discussion:
See §§ 20.42[1], [2]

○ In the motion, request that the court direct reasonable notice to the class members, and provide a proposal for the form of notice and the method of giving notice.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23(e)(1)

Discussion:
See § 20.42[6]

Forms:
Illustrative forms of notice are available at the Federal Judicial Center's website: http://www.fjc.gov

○ Request a hearing, at which the court will determine whether the settlement is fair, reasonable and adequate, noting that, at the hearing, the court will consider:

☐ Materials submitted by parties; and ☐ Objections made by class members.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23(e)(2)

Discussion:
See §§ 20.42[4], [9]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsCompromisesCivil ProcedureClass ActionsNoticesCivil ProcedureClass ActionsVoluntary Dismissals

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
VIII. SETTLING OR DISMISSING CLASS ACTION

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.40

20.40 Options and Strategy.

Class actions are often resolved through settlement. In contrast to other types of actions, the settlement is not wholly a matter of agreement between the named parties. In order to protect the interests of absent class members, the court must take an active role in reviewing and approving all the terms of the settlement. The fact that absent class members may object to a proposed settlement negotiated between the parties, and the need for the court to consider the objections of class members and ultimately approve the settlement, creates special problems and considerations in negotiating and drafting a class action settlement. It is especially important that the parties and their counsel avoid even the suggestion that they have colluded to reach a settlement that benefits the parties and their counsel at the expense of the absent class members [see Manual for Complex Litigation (Fourth) § 21.61 et seq.].

The court's duty to review a settlement or voluntary dismissal of a class action arises only once the class is certified. Before certification, the action is merely an individual action between the named parties, and is treated as such for most purposes.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass MembersNonnamed MembersCivil ProcedureClass ActionsCompromisesCivil ProcedureClass ActionsNoticesCivil ProcedureClass ActionsVoluntary Dismissals

43 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
VIII. SETTLING OR DISMISSING CLASS ACTION

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.41

20.41 Parties May Voluntarily Dismiss or Settle Claims Before Certification.

Rule 23 requires court approval of a voluntary dismissal or settlement with notice to the class members, but the requirement of court approval applies only after certification of the action as a class action [see Fed R Civ P 23(e)(1)]. Before certification, plaintiffs may settle or dismiss their individual claims as in an individual action [see Fed R Civ P 23(e)(1), Committee Note of 2003]. Similarly, the plaintiffs may amend the complaint to delete the class allegations and proceed as in an individual suit [see Fed R Civ P 15]. Class members other than those named as class representatives are not parties before certification and are not bound by any judgment if the action is not certified [see Fed R Civ P 23(c)(3)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass MembersNamed MembersCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass MembersNonnamed MembersCivil ProcedureClass ActionsCompromisesCivil ProcedureClass ActionsVoluntary Dismissals

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
VIII. SETTLING OR DISMISSING CLASS ACTION

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.41A

20.41A Each Defendant Must Notify Federal and State Officials When Proposed Settlement Is Filed With Court After Certification.

20.41A[1] Defendants Must Notify Officials Within 10 Days of Filing Proposed Settlement. Within 10 days after a proposed settlement of a class action commenced on or after February 18, 2005 [see 109 PL 2, § 9, 199 Stat 4] is filed in court, each participating defendant must serve state and federal officials with notice of the proposed settlement. Notice must be given to a state official of each state in which a class member resides. The required notice must include [28 USC § 1715(b)]:

- A copy of the complaint and any materials filed with the complaint and any amended complaints, or a notice of how to electronically access this material over the Internet.
- Notice of any scheduled judicial hearing in the class action.
- Any proposed or final notification to class members of the proposed settlement and their right to request exclusion, if any.
- Any proposed or final class action settlement.
- Any settlement or other agreement contemporaneously made between class counsel and counsel for the defendants.
- Any final judgment or notice of dismissal.
- Any written judicial opinion relating to notice to the class members, the proposed or final settlement, any contemporaneous agreements, and any final judgment or notice of dismissal.

The notice to the state officials must also include, if feasible, the names of class members who reside in each state and the estimated proportionate share of the claims of such members to the entire settlement, or if provision of that information is not feasible, a reasonable estimate of the number of class members residing in each state and the estimated proportionate share of the claims of such members to the entire settle-ment [28 USC § 1715(b)(7)].

20.41A[2] Officials to Be Notified.

20.41A[2][a] United States Attorney General Must Be Notified Unless Defendant Is Specified Federal Financial Institution. The defendant must notify the United States Attorney General unless the defendant is a federal depository institution, a depository institution holding company, a foreign bank, or a nondepository institution subsidiary of such an entity [see 12 USC § 1813]. A defendant that is such an entity must notify the person who has the primary federal regulatory or supervisory responsibility with respect to that defendant if any matter alleged in the class action is subject to regulation or supervision by that person [28 USC § 1715(a)(1), (c)(1)].

20.41A[2][b] State Official With Regulatory or Supervisory Responsibility Over Defendant Must Be Notified. The defendant must notify the person in the state who has the primary regulatory or supervisory responsibility with respect to that defendant, or who licenses or otherwise authorizes the defendant to conduct business in the state if any matter alleged in the action is subject to regulation by that person. If there is no such person, or if the matters alleged in the action are not subject to regulation or supervision of that person, then the defendant must notify the state attorney general [28 USC § 1715(a)(2)]. However, if the defendant is a state depository institution [see 12 USC § 1813], the defendant is only required to notify the state bank supervisor of the state in which it is incorporated or chartered if any matter alleged in the action is subject to regulation or supervision by that person [28 USC § 1715(c)(2)].

20.41A[3] Final Approval of Proposed Settlement Cannot Occur Earlier Than 90 Days After Service of Notice on State and Federal Officials. An order giving final approval of a proposed settlement may not issue earlier than 90 days after the later of the dates on which the appropriate federal and state officials are served with the required notice of the settlement [28 USC § 1715(d)].

20.41A[4] Class Members May Choose Not to Be Bound If Notice Not Given. A class member may refuse to comply with and may choose not to be bound by a settlement or consent decree in a class action if the class member demonstrates that the required notice to state and federal officials was not given [28 USC § 1715(e)(1)]. However, for this purpose, notice to either the state attorney general or to the person that has primary regulatory, supervisory, or licensing authority over the defendant is sufficient [28 USC § 1715(e)(2)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsAppellate ReviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass MembersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsCompromisesCivil ProcedureClass ActionsNotices

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
VIII. SETTLING OR DISMISSING CLASS ACTION

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.42

20.42 Settlement or Voluntary Dismissal After Certification Requires Court Approval.

20.42[1] Court Must Find That Settlement or Voluntary Dismissal Is Fair, Reasonable, and Adequate. The court must approve any settlement, voluntary dismissal, or compromise of the claims, issues, or defenses of a certified class [Fed R Civ P 23(e)]. The court may give its approval only on a finding that the settlement, voluntary dismissal, or compromise is fair, reasonable, and adequate [Fed R Civ P 23(e)(2); see, e.g., Hanlon v. Chrysler Corp. (9th Cir 1998) 150 F3d 1011, 1026]. The named plaintiffs may voluntarily consent to magistrate judge jurisdiction on behalf of the entire class for purposes of, among other things, approval of a settlement [Gomez v. Vernon (9th Cir 2001) 255 F3d 1118, 1126 ; Arnold v. Arizona Dep't of Pub. Safety (D Ariz 2005) 233 FRD 537, 540].

Strategic Point:

The settlement review is also an opportunity to review the initial certification decision. The terms of the settlement may reveal a need to redefine the class or to create subclasses [see Fed R Civ P 23(e)(1)(C), Committee Note of 2003].

20.42[2] Parties Must Disclose Terms and Identify Side Agreements. Implicit in the rule is the requirement that the parties disclose all terms of a settlement to the court so that the court may evaluate the settlement [Fed R Civ P 23(e)(2), Committee Note of 2003].

Additionally, the parties seeking approval of the settlement, voluntary dismissal, or compromise must file a statement identifying any agreement made in connection with the proposed settlement, dismissal, or compromise [Fed R Civ P 23(e)(3)]. This requirement is aimed at related agreements that may have influenced the terms of the settlement by trading away possible advantages for the class. If there is any question that an agreement is connected to the proposed settlement, dismissal, or compromise, doubts should be resolved in favor of including the agreement on the filed statement [Fed R Civ P 23(e)(2), Committee Note of 2003].

Initially, Rule 23(e) requires only a statement identifying side agreements, not disclosure of the side agreements themselves. However, the court has the discretion to direct the parties to provide a summary or copy of any side agreement as a condition of approving a proposed settlement [Fed R Civ P 23(e)(2), Committee Note of 2003].

20.42[3] Settlement Is Favored Method of Resolution. A strong judicial policy favors settlement of class actions. Settlement conserves judicial resources and avoids the costs and risks to the parties of extended litigation and trial. However, court approval is necessary in the class action context to ensure that the settlement is not the product of collusion among the negotiating parties and class counsel at the expense of the absent class members [Churchill Village L.L.C. v. General Elec. (9th Cir 2004) 361 F3d 566, 576 , cert. denied, 543 US 818 (2004) ; see also Fed R Civ P 23(e), Committee Note of 2003].

20.42[4] Court Will Consider Various Factors to Determine Whether Settle-ment Is Fair. To determine whether a settlement agreement is fair, reasonable, and adequate, the court must consider a number of factors, including [Staton v. Boeing Co. (9th Cir 2003) 327 F3d 938, 959 ; Linney v. Cellular Alaska P'ship (9th Cir 1998) 151 F3d 1234, 1242 ; see, e.g., National Rural Telecomms. Coop. v. DIRECTV, Inc. (CD Cal 2004) 221 FRD 523, 526-529 (district court analysis of eight factors and approval of settlement as fair, just, reasonable, and adequate)]:

- The strength of the plaintiffs' case.
- The risk, expense, complexity, and likely duration of further litigation.
- The risk of maintaining class action status throughout the trial.
- The amount offered in settlement.
- The extent of discovery that is completed, and the stage of the proceedings.
- The experience and views of counsel.
- The presence of a government participant.
- The reaction of the class members to the proposed settlement.

The court must consider risk factors and the uncertainty of the outcome as well as the potential recovery. Thus, a proposed settlement may be fair and reasonable even though it amounts to only a fraction of the potential recovery in a fully litigated case [see Linney v. Cellular Alaska P'ship (9th Cir 1998) 151 F3d 1234, 1242].

The district court has broad discretion in evaluating the fairness of a settlement [National Rural Telecomms. Coop. v. DIRECTV, Inc. (CD Cal 2004) 221 FRD 523, 526 (quoting Moore's)] A court of appeal will rarely overturn a district court's decision concerning a settlement unless the settlement agreement contains convincing indications that the outcome of the negotiations was in fact influenced by self interest rather than by the class's interest on the part of class counsel and the class representatives. The court of appeals will scrutinize the provisions relating to attorney's fees and distribution of monetary relief most closely [Staton v. Boeing Co. (9th Cir 2003) 327 F3d 938, 960].

The settlement may not unreasonably favor some class members at the expense of others, nor is the representative entitled to a preferred position in the settlement. When there is a disparity between the awards to various class members that is not justified by the strength of their claims, the settlement may be considered unfair [see Staton v. Boeing Co. (9th Cir 2003) 327 F3d 938, 975-978 ; cf. Rodriguez v. West Publ'g Corp. (9th Cir 2009) 563 F3d 948, 960-961 (although "incentive agreements" entered between named plaintiffs and class counsel, which required counsel to apply to court for incentive award for named plaintiffs and tied named plaintiffs' compensation to sliding scale based on amount recovered, created conflicts of interest among named plaintiffs, their counsel, and remainder of class, court was not required to reject settlement because there were two other class representatives who had no incentive agreements)].

Nevertheless, a settlement may include modest "incentive awards" payable to the class representatives. The court must determine that the incentive payment is reasonable in light of relevant factors such as the actions the representative has taken to protect the interests of the class, the degree to which the class has benefited from those actions, the amount of time and effort the representative expended in pursuing the litigation, and reasonable fear of workplace retaliation because of the representation. Class members may also be repaid for their actual litigation expenses [see Staton v. Boeing Co. (9th Cir 2003) 327 F3d 938, 976-978].

The district court must assess the reasonableness of attorney's fees provisions included in settlement agreements with great care [Staton v. Boeing Co. (9th Cir 2003) 327 F3d 938, 963] and must, in any event, approve the amount of any fees awarded [see Fed R Civ P 23(h)]. Even when the defendant formally agrees to pay the fees independently of any monetary award or injunctive relief, the class members retain an interest in the amount of fees. The court must assure itself that the fees awarded were not unreasonably high, so as to ensure that the class members' interests were not compromised in favor of those of the defendant and class counsel [Staton v. Boeing Co. (9th Cir 2003) 327 F3d 938, 964-965].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of award of attorney's fees, see § 20.35.

20.42[5] Court Must Accept or Reject Settlement As a Whole. The settlement must be examined for overall fairness as an indivisible entity. The court does not have the authority to delete, modify, or substitute provisions. The settlement must stand or fall in its entirety [Hanlon v. Chrysler Corp. (9th Cir 1998) 150 F3d 1011, 1026].

Exception:

In a proposed settlement of a class action commenced on or after February 18, 2005 [see 109 PL 2, § 9, 199 Stat 4], under which class members would be awarded coupons, the court has the discretion to require that the proposed settlement agreement provide for the distribution of a part of the value of unclaimed coupons to one or more charitable or governmental organizations as agreed to by the parties [28 USC § 1712(e)].

20.42[6] Court Must Order Notice of Proposed Settlement and Allow Opportunity to Object.

20.42[6][a] Notice Is Mandatory for All Types of Class Actions. The court must direct notice in a reasonable manner to all class members who would be bound by a proposed settlement, voluntary dismissal, or compromise through claim or issue preclusion [Fed R Civ P 23(e)(1)]. Notice is not required when the settlement takes place before certification and therefore only the named parties are bound [Fed R Civ P 23(e)(1)(B), Committee Note of 2003].

Distinguish:

The court is required to direct notice of certification of Rule 23(b)(3) class actions, but notice of certification of Fed R Civ P 23(b)(1) and (2) class actions is discretionary with the court [Fed R Civ P 23(c)(2)]. The court must direct notice of a settlement regardless of the subsection of Rule 23(b) under which the action is certified.

Consider:

Frequently, parties will move for certification and request approval of a settlement at the same time. In those circumstances, it is appropriate to combine certification and settlement notice in order to save costs [see Fed R Civ P 23(e)(3), Committee Note of 2003].

Cross References:

Discussion of notice required when class is certified, see §§ 20.26, 20.27. Discussion of notice of a proposed fee award, see 20.35[3]. Discussion of settlement-only classes, see § 20.19.

20.42[6][b] Notice Must Be Given in Reasonable Manner. Notice is satisfactory if it describes the terms of the settlement in sufficient detail to alert those with adverse viewpoints to investigate and to come forward and be heard [Churchill Village L.L.C. v. General Elec. (9th Cir 2004) 361 F3d 566, 575 , cert. denied, 543 US 818 (2004)]. Accordingly, the notice should state the time and place of the fairness hearing, the time and method for objecting, and enough information about the proposed settlement to enable decisions about whether to object.

Reasonable settlement notice may require individual notice in the manner required for certification notice to a Rule 23(b)(3) class. Individual notice is appropriate, for example, if class members are required to file a claim to participate in the judgment, or if the court orders an opportunity to opt out of the settlement [Fed R Civ P 23(e)(1), Committee Note of 2003].

Distinguish:

Fed R Civ P 23(e)(1) requires "reasonable" notice, not the "best notice practicable" such as is required to advise class members that a class has been certified under Rule 23(b)(3).

Cross References:

Illustrative clear-notice forms created by the Federal Judicial Center provide a helpful starting point for actions similar to those described in the forms [see Fed R Civ P 23(c)(2), Committee Note of 2003]. These forms are available at the Center's website: http://www.fjc.gov.

Discussion of notice required when class is certified, see §§ 20.26, 20.27.

20.42[7] Class Members May Object to Proposed Settlement. Any class member may object to a proposed settlement, voluntary dismissal, or compromise [Fed R Civ P 23(e)(5)]. An objection may be withdrawn only with the court's approval [Fed R Civ P 23(e)(5)].

A class member who has objected may appeal the court's approval of a settlement even if the class member was not a named party and even if the class member has not formally intervened as a party in the district court [Devlin v. Scardelletti (2002) 536 US 1, 8, 122 S Ct 2005, 153 L Ed2d 27].

20.42[8] Court May Allow New Opportunity to Opt Out. In an action certified under Fed R Civ P 23(b)(3), the court may refuse to approve a settlement unless it affords a new opportunity to opt out to individual class members who had an earlier opportunity to request exclusion but did not do so [Fed R Civ P 23(e)(4)].

The decision whether to allow a second opportunity is confided to the court's discretion. The Rule limits the opportunity to members of a Rule 23(b)(3) class [see Fed R Civ P 23(e)(3), Committee Note of 2003].

Cross References:

Discussion of Rule 23(b)(3) class actions, see 20.07[5]. Discussion of opportunity to opt out, see § 20.27[3].

20.42[9] Objectors Have Limited Right to Discovery. Class members who object to a class action settlement are entitled to meaningful participation in the fairness hearing. The court has discretion to permit discovery by objectors that may assist it in determining the fairness and adequacy of the settlement. In determining whether to permit such discovery, the court must take into account the nature and amount of previous discovery, the basis for the objectors' discovery request, and the number and interests of the objectors. Discovery of evidence pertaining to settlement negotiations is appropriate only in rare circumstances [Hemphill v. San Diego Ass'n of Realtors (SD Cal 2004) 225 FRD 616, 619-620].

Example:

Objectors were entitled to information concerning the defendants' current financial position when a justification for the settlement was the financial inability of the defendants to pay the full anticipated judgment amount. However, they were not entitled to discovery regarding the adequacy of class counsel and the class representative, or the settlement negotiations, when, among other things, they failed to adduce evidence demonstrating the settlement was collusive [Hemphill v. San Diego Ass'n of Realtors (SD Cal 2004) 225 FRD 616, 622-625].

20.42[10] Court Must Hold Hearing and Make Findings. The court may approve a settlement, voluntary dismissal, or compromise that would bind class members only after a hearing and on a finding that the settlement, voluntary dismissal, or compromise is fair, reasonable, and adequate [Fed R Civ P 23(e)(2); see 28 USC § 1712(e) (coupon settlements)]. The court's findings must be set out in sufficient detail to explain to class members and the court of appeals the factors that bear on the court's decision [Fed R Civ P 23(e)(1), Committee Note of 2003; see Molski v. Gleich (9th Cir 2003) 318 F3d 937, 946]. The court order giving final approval of a proposed settlement may not issue earlier than 90 days after the appropriate federal and state officials were served with the required notice of the settlement [28 USC § 1715(d)].

20.42[11] Court May Not Approve Proposed Settlement That Favors Class Members Located Near Court. The court may not approve a proposed settlement of a class action commenced on or after February 18, 2005 [see 109 PL 2, § 9, 199 Stat 4], that provides for the payment of greater sums to some class members than to others solely on the basis that the class members to whom the greater sums are to be paid are located in closer geographic proximity to the court [28 USC § 1714].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsCertificationCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass MembersNamed MembersCivil ProcedureClass ActionsCompromisesCivil ProcedureClass ActionsNoticesCivil ProcedureClass ActionsVoluntary Dismissals

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
VIII. SETTLING OR DISMISSING CLASS ACTION

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.43

20.43 Involuntary Dismissals Do Not Require Prior Notice to Class.

Rule 23 requires notice to all class members, a hearing at which class members may appear and object, and prior court approval for any voluntary dismissal of a certified class action [see Fed R Civ P 23(e) (as amended 2003)]. Rule 23 does not place similar restrictions on involuntary dismissals, whether before or after certification. Therefore, the court may make order an involuntary dismissing a class action without prior notice to the class or holding a hearing at which class members may appear and object.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsNoticesCivil ProcedureDismissalsInvoluntary DismissalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDismissalsInvoluntary DismissalsHearings

47 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
VIII. SETTLING OR DISMISSING CLASS ACTION

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.44

20.44 Judgment Must Indicate Who Is Bound.

When a class action is maintained under Fed R Civ P 23(b)(1) or (2), the judgment, whether favorable or unfavorable to the class, must include and describe those whom the court finds to be members of the class [Fed R Civ P 23(c)(3)].

When a class action is maintained under Fed R Civ P 23(b)(3), the judgment, whether favorable or unfavorable to the class, must include and specify or describe those to whom the notice provided in Fed R Civ P 23(c)(2) was directed, and who have not requested exclusion, and whom the court finds to be members of the class [Fed R Civ P 23(c)(3)].

A judgment in a properly certified class action is binding on all the class members as described in the judgment. The principles of claim and issue preclusion apply [see Cooper v. Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond (1984) 467 US 867, 874, 104 S Ct 2794, 81 L Ed2d 718]. However, the district court's decision may not be given preclusive effect unless the court formally certified the action and, for Rule 23(b)(3) class actions, unless notice and opportunity to opt out were provided to the class [see Besinga v. United States (9th Cir 1991) 923 F2d 133, 135].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsClass MembersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsNoticesCivil ProcedureClass ActionsOpt-Out ProvisionsCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsPreclusion & Effect of JudgmentsGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
IX. PROCEEDINGS IN SECURITIES CLASS ACTIONS

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.45

20.45 CHECKLIST: Proceedings in Securities Class Actions.

☐ Prepare and file a complaint under the Securities Act or Securities Exchange Act containing class allegations.

Authority:
15 USC §§ 77z-1, 78u-4; ND Cal Civ LR 3-7(a)

Discussion:
See §§ 20.10, 20.11

Form:
See § 20.58

☐ Include "certification" signed by plaintiff for filing with complaint that:

- ○ States that the plaintiff reviewed and authorized the filing of the complaint;
- ○ States that the plaintiff purchased the securities for reasons other than filing a securities action;
- ○ States plaintiff's willingness to serve as representative for the proposed class;
- ○ Sets forth all of plaintiff's transactions in the securities in dispute;

○ Sets forth all other securities actions in the past three years in which plaintiff has been the class representative; and

○ States that plaintiff will not accept any payment for serving as class representative in the action being filed, except as ordered and approved by the court.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23; 15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(2)(A), 78u-4(a)(2)(A); ND Cal Civ LR 3-7(b)

Discussion:
See § 20.47

Form:
See § 20.61

☐ Publish notice, such as a press release on Business Wire, that advises the prospective class:

○ That an action is pending that:

☐ Involves the claims described, and

☐ The purported class period during which the claims arose.

○ That not later than 60 days after the date on which the notice is published, any member of the purported class may move the court to serve as lead plaintiff.

Timing:
The notice must be published not later than 20 days, or 21 days to meet ND Cal requirements, after the date the complaint is filed.

Authority:
15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(3)(A)(i), 78u-4(a)(3)(A)(i); see ND Cal Civ LR 23-1(a) (specifying 21-day period)

Discussion:
See § 20.48

☐ For class members who wish to serve as lead plaintiff of the purported class, file a motion asking to be appointed lead plaintiff.

Timing:
The motion must be filed not later than 60 days after the date on which the required notice to the class is published.

Authority:
15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(3)(A)(i)(II), 78u-4(a)(3)(A)(i)(II)); ND Cal Civ LR 3-7(c), 23-1(a)

Discussion:
See § 20.49

Standard Procedure Checklist:
Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.12

☐ Participate in the hearing on appointment of the lead plaintiff, considering that the court must ordinarily appoint as lead plaintiff(s) the class member(s) who:

○ Has or have the largest financial interest in relief sought as compared to all applicants.

○ Meets or meet the requirements of Rule 23(a) as to typicality of claims and adequacy of representation.

○ Has or have not served as a lead plaintiff in more than five securities class actions during any three-year period.

Timing:
The court must appoint the lead plaintiff not later than 90 days after the date on which the required notice to class members is published. If a party has moved to consolidate the action with other class actions asserting substantially the same claims, the court must appoint the lead plaintiff as soon as practicable after the motion for consolidation has been decided, but not before.

Authority:
15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(3), 78u-4(a)(3)

Discussion:
See § 20.50

☐ Ask the court to approve the lead plaintiff's choice of class counsel.

Authority:
15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(3)(B)(v), (8), 78u-4(a)(3)(B)(v), (9); ND Cal Civ LR 3-7(d)

Discussion:
See § 20.51

☐ Move for certification and provide notice and opportunity to opt out as in other types of class actions.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23(c)

Discussion:
See §§ 20.15, 20.27

☐ If the action is settled, seek court approval of the settlement as in other types of class actions.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23(e)

Discussion:
See § 20.42

☐ Ensure that the settlement notice contains the statements prescribed by statute, including:

○ The statement of the amount of the settlement proposed to be paid to the parties, both in the aggregate and on an average per share basis.

○ The statement of the "potential outcome" of the case that sets out all of the required details specified in the statute.

○ The statement of the attorney's fees and costs sought.

○ The identification of lawyers' representatives (who will be reasonably available to answer questions from class members concerning matters contained in the notice).

○ The reasons that the parties are proposing settlement.

○ Any other information that the court has required to be included in the notice.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23(e); 15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(7), 78u-4(a)(7)

Discussion:
See § 20.54

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsCompromisesCivil ProcedureClass ActionsNoticesCivil ProcedureClass ActionsOpt-Out ProvisionsSecurities LawLiabilityPrivate Securities LitigationGeneral OverviewSecurities LawLiabilityPrivate Securities LitigationLead Plaintiff

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
IX. PROCEEDINGS IN SECURITIES CLASS ACTIONS

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.46

20.46 Options and Strategy.

The Private Securities Litigation Reform Act (PSLRA) [see 15 USC §§ 77z-1, 78u-4] sets out procedures that must be followed, in addition to the requirements of Rule 23, in securities class actions. These provisions apply to any plaintiff class actions brought under either the Securities Act of 1933 or the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 [see 15 USC § 77a et seq., 78a et seq.; see also 17 CFR § 240.10b-5]. Because federal law preempts state law that replicates the claims for recovery allowed under the Securities Act and Securities Exchange Act [see 15 USC §§ 77p(b)(1), 78bb(f)(1)], almost all securities fraud class actions will be controlled by the PSLRA.

The class action provisions of the PSLRA are intended to make it more likely that securities class action litigation is controlled by members of the plaintiff class and not be class counsel. Thus, the class must be provided with early notice of the pendency of the class action and must be given an opportunity to seek appointment as lead plaintiff. In addition, the PSLRA, by setting up a presumption that the applicant for lead plaintiff with the largest purported losses will be appointed lead plaintiff, encourages class members who are large institutional investors to step forward and serve as lead plaintiff because it is hoped that knowledgeable and interested class members with a substantial stake in the litigation will take a more active role in supervising class counsel than would a class member who purportedly suffered smaller losses [see HR Rep 104-369 (1995)]. In addition, the PSLRA seeks to limit the number of lawsuits in which so-called "professional plaintiffs" who purchase a few shares in numerous companies serve as lead plaintiff.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsGeneral OverviewSecurities LawLiabilityPrivate Securities LitigationGeneral OverviewSecurities LawLiabilityPrivate Securities LitigationLead CounselSecurities LawLiabilityPrivate Securities LitigationLead PlaintiffSecurities LawLiabilityPrivate Securities LitigationFederal Preemption

50 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
IX. PROCEEDINGS IN SECURITIES CLASS ACTIONS

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.47

20.47 Plaintiff Must File Certification With Complaint.

Each plaintiff named in the complaint who seeks to serve as a class representative in a securities class action must provide a sworn certification, personally signed by the plaintiff and filed with the complaint, that [see 15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(2)(A), 78u-4(a)(2)(A); see also ND Cal Civ LR 3-7(b)]:

- States that the plaintiff has reviewed the complaint and authorized its filing.
- States that the plaintiff did not purchase the security that is the subject of the complaint at the direction of plaintiff's counsel or in order to participate in any private action.
- States that the plaintiff is willing to serve as a representative party on behalf of a class, including providing testimony at deposition and trial, if necessary.
- Sets forth all the plaintiff's transactions in the security that is the subject of the complaint during the class period specified in the complaint.
- Identifies any other securities class action filed during the 3-year period preceding the date on which the certification is signed, in which the plaintiff has sought to serve, or served, as a representative party on behalf of a class.
- States that the plaintiff will not accept any payment for serving as a representative party beyond the plaintiff's pro rata share of any recovery, except as ordered or approved by the court.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Securities LawLiabilityPrivate Securities LitigationGeneral OverviewSecurities LawLiabilityPrivate Securities LitigationLead Plaintiff

51 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
IX. PROCEEDINGS IN SECURITIES CLASS ACTIONS

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.48

20.48 Plaintiff Must Provide Early Notice to Class Members.

Not later than 20 days after the date the plaintiff files the complaint, the plaintiff or plaintiffs must cause to be published a notice advising members of the purported plaintiff class of [see 15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(3)(A)(i), 78u-4(a)(3)(A)(i); see also ND Cal Civ LR 23-1(a) (specifying 21-day period)].

- The pendency of the action, the claims asserted, and the purported class period.

- That not later than 60 days after the date on which the notice is published, any member of the purported class may move the court to serve as lead plaintiff.

The notice is sufficient if it allows interested investors considering whether to seek appointment as lead plaintiff to make a rational decision whether to commit the resources necessary to represent the class [see Wenderhold v. Cylink Corp. (ND Cal 1999) 188 FRD 577, 583]. The notice must be published in a widely circulated national business-oriented publication or wire service [see 15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(3)(A)(i), 78u-4(a)(3)(A)(i)]. A press release on Business Wire, which disseminates information electronically to news media, on-line services, and computer databases available to the investment community, is considered sufficient to satisfy the notice requirement [see In re Advanced Tissue Scis. Sec. Litig. (SD Cal 1998) 184 FRD 346, 349].

If more than one action is filed on behalf of a class asserting substantially the same claim or claims, only the plaintiff or plaintiffs in the first-filed action are required to publish notice [see 15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(3)(A)(ii), 78u-4(a)(3)(A)(ii)]. In practice, however, even the plaintiff or plaintiffs who file subsequent suits generally cause the notice to be published.

This notice is in addition to the notice or notices otherwise required in class actions [see 15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(3)(A)(iii), 78u-4(a)(3)(A)(iii)].

Cross References:

Discussion of notice of certification, see §§ 20.26, 20.27. Discussion of notice of settlement, 20.42[6]. Discussion of notice of fee award, see § 20.35[3].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsNoticesSecurities LawLiabilityPrivate Securities LitigationLead Plaintiff

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
IX. PROCEEDINGS IN SECURITIES CLASS ACTIONS

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.49

20.49 Other Class Members May Apply to Serve As Lead Plaintiff.

Not later than 60 days after the date on which the notice discussed in the preceding section is published, any member of the purported class may move the court to serve as lead plaintiff [see 15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(3)(A)(i)(II), 78u-4(a)(3)(A)(i)(II)].

A Northern District of California Local Rule provides that the motion must set forth whether the party claims entitlement to the presumption that the applicant with the largest financial interest in the litigation is the "most adequate plaintiff," whether the party claims that the presumption is rebutted as to another party, and the reasons [ND Cal Civ LR 23-1(b)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of presumption that applicant with largest financial interest in litigation is most adequate plaintiff, see § 20.50[2].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Securities LawLiabilityPrivate Securities LitigationLead Plaintiff

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
IX. PROCEEDINGS IN SECURITIES CLASS ACTIONS

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.50

20.50 Court Must Appoint Lead Plaintiff.

20.50[1] Court Must Appoint "Most Adequate Plaintiff" Within 90 Days. Not later than 90 days after the date on which the plaintiff publishes the required notice to class members [see 15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(3)(A)(i), 78u-4(a)(3)(A)(i)], the court must appoint as lead plaintiff the member or members of the purported plaintiff class that the court determines to be most capable of adequately representing the interests of class members (referred to as the "most adequate plaintiff") [see 15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(3)(B)(i), 78u-4(a)(3)(B)(i)].

If more than one class action has been filed asserting substantially the same claims, and if any party has moved to consolidate the action for pretrial purposes or for trial, the court must appoint the lead plaintiff as soon as practicable after the motion for consolidation has been decided, but not before [see 15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(3)(B)(ii), 78u-4(a)(3)(B)(ii)].

Timing:

The plaintiff must cause the required notice to be published not later than 20 days after the date of filing of the complaint [see 15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(3)(A)(i), 78u-4(a)(3)(A)(i); see also ND Cal Civ LR 23-1(a) (specifying 21-day period)]. Accordingly, the court must appoint the lead plaintiff no later than 110 days after the complaint is filed, provided that a motion for consolidation of multiple class actions is not pending.

Cross Reference:

Additional discussion of lead plaintiff's appoint-ment, see 5 Moore's Federal Practice, § 23.191 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

20.50[2] Court Must Presume That Applicant With Greatest Financial Interest Is "Most Adequate Plaintiff." The court must adopt a presumption that the most adequate plaintiff is the person or group of persons, of those who have either filed the compliant or moved to be appointed lead plaintiff, who (1) in the determination of the court, has the largest financial interest in the relief sought by the class, and (2) otherwise satisfies the Rule 23 requirements [see 15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(3)(B)(iii), 78u-4(a)(3)(B)(iii)].

To make this determination, the court must first compare the financial stakes of the applicants and determine which has the most to gain from the lawsuit. It must then focus its attention on that applicant and determine, based on the information provided in the applicant's pleadings and declarations, whether that applicant satisfies the requirements of Rule 23(a), in particular those of typicality and adequacy. If the applicant meets these requirements, the applicant is entitled to the effect of the presumption. If not, the court must repeat the inquiry, considering the applicant with the next-largest financial stake [In re Cavanaugh (9th Cir 2002) 306 F3d 726, 729-730].

The PSLRA did not change or heighten the Rule 23(a) typicality and adequacy requirements. The court must determine whether these are met in the same manner as in other cases [In re Cavanaugh (9th Cir 2002) 306 F3d 726, 736].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of Rule 23(a) typicality and adequacy requirements, see § 20.06[3], [4].

Distinguish:

The lead plaintiff is appointed early in the litigation, usually considerably in advance of the certification decision. The court may need to consider adequacy and typicality at the lead plaintiff selection stage, but all that is required is a preliminary showing [see Aronson v. McKesson HBOC, Inc. (ND Cal 1999) 79 F Supp2d 1146, 1158]. The court is still obligated to make a rigorous analysis of all the Rule 23 requirements before certifying the action as a class action, and typicality and adequacy may be reconsidered at that time.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of certification decision, see § 20.16.

Once the court determines the presumptive most adequate plaintiff, it must appoint that person as lead plaintiff unless the presumption is rebutted [In re Cavanaugh (9th Cir 2002) 306 F3d 726, 729 n2]. The presumption may be rebutted only on proof by a member of the purported plaintiff class that the presumptive lead plaintiff either (1) will not fairly and adequately protect the interests of the class; or (2) is subject to unique defenses that render the plaintiff incapable of adequately representing the class [see 15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(3)(B)(iii)(II), 78u-4(a)(3)(B)(iii)(II)]. The presumption is not rebutted merely because another plaintiff is a more sophisticated investor or has more investment or litigation experience [see, e.g., Tanne v. Autobytel, Inc. (CD Cal 2005) 226 FRD 659, 672].

The rebuttal stage of the process differs from the preceding stage in that it is adversarial--the court need not rely solely on the presumptive lead plaintiff's pleadings and declarations but will also consider any evidence presented by other plaintiffs. The court may hold an evidentiary hearing and may need to make a renewed determination of typicality and adequacy [In re Cavanaugh (9th Cir 2002) 306 F3d 726, 739].

The court may permit the parties to conduct discovery relating to determination of the most adequate plaintiff, but only if the plaintiff first demonstrates a reasonable basis for a finding that the presumptively most adequate plaintiff is incapable of adequately representing the class [see 15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(3)(B)(iv), 78u-4(a)(3)(B)(iv); see, e.g., Knisley v. Network Assocs., Inc. (ND Cal 1999) 77 F Supp2d 1111, 1115-1116].

While there is some conflict in the district courts as to whether defendants have standing to challenge the appointment of lead plaintiff at this stage of the proceedings, the majority view is that (except in very limited circumstances) defendants do not have standing to challenge the appointment of lead plaintiff. Defendants may, however, raise objections to the lead plaintiff's adequacy of representation when the court hears a motion for class certification.

20.50[3] Court May Appoint Related Group of Persons As Lead Plaintiff. The Court may appoint a "member or members" of the purported plaintiff class as lead plaintiff [see 15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(3)(B)(i), 78u-4(a)(3)(B)(i)].

Moreover, the lead plaintiff presumption may apply to a "person or group of persons" [see 15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(3)(B)(iii), 78u-4(a)(3)(B)(iii)]. This statutory language has led to controversy over the extent to which a group of class members may aggregate their interests in order to have the "largest financial interest" and, therefore, be entitled to the presumption.

Generally, a large group of unrelated persons will not be allowed to serve as lead plaintiff. Congress intended the lead plaintiff to control the litigation, and a large or disconnected group cannot effectively exercise control [see In re Network Assocs. Inc. Sec. Litig. (ND Cal 1999) 76 F Supp2d 1017, 1026-1027 ; Yousefi v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (CD Cal 1999) 70 F Supp2d 1061, 1068]. Moreover, this would allow law firms to compete to sign up the most class members and, by this means, become class counsel, a result Congress sought to avoid [see Aronson v. McKesson HBOC, Inc. (ND Cal 1999) 79 F Supp2d 1146, 1153-1154]. Accordingly, the court should appoint a group only when the group has a meaningful relationship preceding the litigation, and is united by more than the mere happenstance of having bought the same securities [see Aronson v. McKesson HBOC, Inc. (ND Cal 1999) 79 F Supp2d 1146, 1153-1154].

20.50[4] "Professional" Plaintiffs Restricted From Serving As Lead Plaintiff. Unless the court permits otherwise, a person may be a lead plaintiff, or an officer, director, or fiduciary of a lead plaintiff, in no more than five securities class actions brought as plaintiff class actions under the Federal Rules during any three-year period [see 15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(3)(B)(vi), 78u-4(a)(3)(B)(vi)].

The court may waive this restriction. Waiver may be appropriate, for example, when there are no other appropriate lead plaintiff candidates or when the candidate is a large institutional investor [see In re Gemstar-TV Guide Int'l, Inc. Secs. Litig. (CD Cal 2002) 209 FRD 447, 453-454].

20.50[5] Court's Decision Is Not Appealable Collateral Order. The court's order designating the lead plaintiff is not immediately appealable under the collateral order doctrine [see Z-Seven Fund, Inc. v. Motorcar Parts & Accessories (9th Cir 2000) 231 F3d 1215, 1218-1219].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsAppellate ReviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsNoticesCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionInterlocutory OrdersSecurities LawLiabilityPrivate Securities LitigationLead Plaintiff

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
IX. PROCEEDINGS IN SECURITIES CLASS ACTIONS

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.51

20.51 Lead Plaintiff Is Entitled to Select Class Counsel.

The lead plaintiff appointed by the court must, subject to the approval of the court, select and retain counsel to represent the class [see 15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(3)(B)(v), 78u-4(a)(3)(B)(v)]. The court should ensure that selection of counsel and fee arrangements are reasonable, but should not substitute its judgment for that of the lead plaintiff [In re Cavanaugh (9th Cir 2002) 306 F3d 726, 732 & n1 ("the district court has no authority to select for the class what it considers to be the possible lawyer or the lawyer offering the best possible fee schedule. ... Congress gave the lead plaintiff, not the court, the power to select a lawyer for the class"); see Armour v. Network Assocs., Inc. (ND Cal 2001) 171 F Supp2d 1044, 1055-1056].

If a plaintiff class is represented by an attorney who directly owns or otherwise has a beneficial interest in the securities that are the subject of the litigation, the court must determine whether the ownership or interest constitutes a conflict of interest sufficient to disqualify the attorney from representing the plaintiff class [see 15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(8), 78u-4(a)(9)]. A Northern District of California Local Rule requires any lawyer seeking to serve as class counsel in any action governed by the PSLRA to serve and file a certificate under penalty of perjury that either [ND Cal Civ LR 3-7(d)]:

- Affirms that the lawyer does not directly own or otherwise have a beneficial interest in securities that are the subject of the action; or

- Sets forth with specificity the extent of any ownership or interest in the securities and explains why that ownership or interest does not constitute a conflict of interest sufficient to disqualify the attorney from representing the class.

Cross Reference:

Appointment of counsel in non-PSLRA class actions, see § 20.33.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsClass CounselGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass

CounselAppointmentsCivil ProcedureClass ActionsClass CounselFeesSecurities LawLiabilityPrivate Securities LitigationLead CounselSecurities LawLiabilityPrivate Securities LitigationLead Plaintiff

55 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
IX. PROCEEDINGS IN SECURITIES CLASS ACTIONS

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.52

20.52 Lead Plaintiff's Recovery Limited to Representative Share.

The class representative's share of any final judgment or settlement must be equal, on a per share basis, to the portion of the final judgment or settlement awarded to all other members of the class. However, the representative may be awarded reasonable costs and expenses (including lost wages) directly relating to the representation of the class [see 15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(4), 78u-4(a)(4)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsClass MembersNamed MembersSecurities LawLiabilityPrivate Securities LitigationLead Plaintiff

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
IX. PROCEEDINGS IN SECURITIES CLASS ACTIONS

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.53

20.53 Attorney's Fees Must Be Reasonable.

Total attorney's fees and expenses awarded to plaintiffs' counsel may not exceed a reasonable percentage of the amount of any damages and prejudgment interest actually paid to the class [see 15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(6), 78u-4(a)(6)].

Cross Reference:

Award of fees in non-PSLRA class actions, see § 20.35.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsClass CounselFeesSecurities LawLiabilityPrivate Securities LitigationAttorney FeesSecurities LawLiabilityPrivate Securities LitigationLead Counsel

57 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
IX. PROCEEDINGS IN SECURITIES CLASS ACTIONS

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.54

20.54 Settlement Notice Must Contain Prescribed Statements.

Rule 23 requires that class members be given notice of any settlement [see Fed R Civ P 23(e)(1)]. In a securities class action, any proposed or final settlement agreement that is published or otherwise disseminated to the class must include each of the following statements, along with a cover page summarizing the information contained in the statements [see 15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(7), 78u-4(a)(7)]:

- Statement of plaintiff recovery: The amount of the settlement proposed to be distributed to the parties, determined in the aggregate and on an average per share basis.

- Statement of potential outcome of case (this statement is not admissible in any federal or state judicial action or administrative proceeding, other than an action or proceeding arising out of the statement):

  - If the settling parties agree on the average amount of damages per share that would be recoverable if the plaintiff prevailed on each claim, a statement concerning the average amount of such potential damages per share.

  - If the parties do not agree on the average amount of damages per share that would be recoverable if the plaintiff prevailed on each securities claim, a statement from each settling party concerning the issue or issues on which the parties disagree.

- Statement of attorney's fees or costs sought: If any of the settling parties or their counsel intend to apply to the court for an award of attorney's fees or costs from any fund established as part of the settlement, a statement indicating which parties or counsel intend to make an application, the amount of fees and costs that will be sought (including the amount of fees and costs determined on an average per share basis), and a brief explanation supporting the fees and costs sought. This information must be clearly summarized on the cover page of any notice to a party of any proposed or final settlement agreement.

- Identification of lawyers' representatives: The name, telephone number, and address of one or more representatives of plaintiffs' counsel who will be reasonably available to answer questions from class members concerning any matter contained in any notice of settlement published or otherwise disseminated to the class.

- Reasons for settlement: A brief statement explaining the reasons why the parties are proposing the settlement.

- Other information: A statement of any other information that may be required by the court.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsCompromisesCivil ProcedureClass ActionsNoticesSecurities LawLiabilityPrivate Securities LitigationGeneral OverviewSecurities LawLiabilityPrivate Securities LitigationAttorney Fees

58 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
IX. PROCEEDINGS IN SECURITIES CLASS ACTIONS

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.55

20.55 Settlement Ordinarily May Not Be Under Seal.

The terms and provisions of any settlement agreement ordinarily may not be filed under seal, However, on motion of any party to the settlement, the court may order filing under seal for those portions of a settlement agreement as to which good cause is shown for filing under seal. Good cause exists only if publication of a term or provision of a settlement agreement would cause direct and substantial harm to any party [15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(5), 78u-4(a)(5)]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsCompromisesGovernmentsCourtsCourt RecordsSecurities LawLiabilityPrivate Securities LitigationGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
IX. PROCEEDINGS IN SECURITIES CLASS ACTIONS

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.56

20.56 LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements--Cover Sheet.

If a complaint or other pleading contains a claim governed by the PSLRA, the phrase "Private Securities Litigation Reform Act" must be noted in Block VI of the civil cover sheet [ND Cal Civ LR 3-7(a)]. A copy of the form to be used for the civil cover sheet [see ND Cal Civ LR 3-2(a)] may be downloaded from the court's website: www.cand.uscourts.gov.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the civil cover sheet, see Ch. 6, Drafting the Summons and Complaint, § 6.20.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsRequirementsGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & InterpretationSecurities LawLiabilityPrivate Securities LitigationGeneral Overview

60 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
IX. PROCEEDINGS IN SECURITIES CLASS ACTIONS

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.57

20.57 LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements--Electronic Posting.

A local rule in the Northern District of California requires that certain documents, if required to be filed in an action containing a claim governed by the PSLRA, must be timely posted at a Designated Internet Site. The party or other person filing the document is responsible for timely posting [ND Cal Civ LR 23-2(a)].

The following types of documents must be posted [ND Cal Civ LR 23-2(b)]:

- Any pleading [see Fed R Civ P 7(a)].
- Any briefs, declarations, or affidavits filed pursuant to Rule 12, 41, or 56 [see Fed R Civ P 12, 41, 56].
- Any briefs, declarations, or affidavits relating to class certification.
- Any briefs, declarations, or affidavits relating to designation of a lead plaintiff.
- Any report, statement, declaration, or affidavit of an expert witness designated to testify.
- Any pretrial conference statement [see ND Cal Civ LR 16-10], pretrial briefs, or motions in limine.
- Any filing concerning approval of a settlement of the action.
- Any filing concerning any request for attorney's fees or costs.

However, a person is not required to post any document filed under seal with the written consent of the court. Exhibits, appendixes, or other attachments need not be posted. When briefs, declarations, or affidavits are not available in electronic form in the possession, custody, or control of the person filing the documents, or the person's counsel or agents, these documents need not be filed [ND Cal Civ LR 23-2(b)(9)].

A document is timely posted if, on the day the document is filed with the court, an electronic form of the filing prepared in any commonly used word processing format, is forwarded to the Designated Internet Site by electronic transmission, e-mail, physical delivery of a diskette, or any other means acceptable to that Designated Internet Site. Electronic delivery must occur by means reasonably calculated to result in delivery by the third day following the filing. The certification of service for the filed document [see ND Cal Civ LR 5-6] must state that service in compliance with Rule 23-2 has been accomplished, and the Designated Internet Site must be identified by its physical and electronic addresses [ND Cal Civ LR 23-2(c)].

A Designated Internet Site must be accessible to the public at no cost, may charge no fee to the public or parties, and may place no restrictions on any person's ability to copy or download material posted at the site. Members of the public may request to receive e-mail notification of any posting of materials [ND Cal Civ LR 23-2(d)].

Links to available Designated Internet Sites may be found at http://securities.stanford.edu/sites.html.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
GovernmentsCourtsCourt RecordsGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & InterpretationLegal EthicsProfessional ConductElectronic CommunicationsSecurities LawLiabilityPrivate Securities LitigationGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
X. FORMS

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.58

20.58 General Form of Complaint in Class Action.

_____ [attorney's name and California Bar number]
_____ [attorney's street address]
_____ [city, state, and zip code]
_____ [phone number]
_____ [fax number]
_____ [attorney's e-mail address]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]
UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE _____ DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
_____ DIVISION

John Smith, on behalf of himself and all others similarly situated,	)	No. _____
Plaintiffs	)	COMPLAINT
vs.	)	CLASS ACTION
Acme Widget Co.,	)
Defendant	)	[JURY DEMANDED]

JURISDICTION

1. This court has jurisdiction over this action because _____ [describe federal question, diversity of citizenship, or other ground for jurisdiction].

CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS

2. Plaintiff _____ [name] brings this action on behalf of _____ [himself or herself] and all persons who _____ [class definition or description, e.g., purchased Acme widgets in the State of California from January 1, 2000 through December 31, 2000].

3. Plaintiff is informed and believes, and on that basis alleges, that this class of persons consists of approximately _____ [number] persons. Joinder of all these persons would be impracticable.

4. The questions of law and fact presented in this case are common to each and every member of the class, in that _____ [specify common issues, e.g., at least as to the issues of design and marketing defects in the Acme widgets purchased by each member of the class].

5. Plaintiff is a proper representative of this class of persons because, as will be more fully shown below, Plaintiff is a member of the class and the claims Plaintiff is asserting in this complaint are typical of the claims of all members of the class. Plaintiff's claims are not subject to any unique defenses nor does any interest of Plaintiff in this litigation conflict with any other member of the class.

6. Plaintiff contends that the claims set out below are proper for certification as a class action under the provisions of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23 _____ [specify either (b)(1)(A) or (b)(1)(B) or (b)(2) or (b)(3)]. Class certification is proper because _____ [facts meeting requirements of subsection of Rule 23(b), e.g., Rule 23(b)(3):

a. The questions of law and fact common to the class predominate over any questions affecting individual members in that each class member claims that the same product defect was the producing cause of the injuries and losses suffered by each class member. The central issue is the product defect and its role as producing cause of injury. The injuries suffered by class members as a result of the defect are similar in nature, and vary only in their severity.

b. The class action is superior to other available methods of adjudication because there are over 4000 members in the proposed class, and repeated individual litigation of the common issues shared by all class members would reduce the amount of recovery available to each member. This is true because establishing the design and marketing defects of the product in question will be relatively costly and time-consuming when compared to proof of the nature and severity of each individual class member's resulting injury].

[Include for (b)(3) money damages class actions]

7. Notice of this class action may be made to each class member by ordinary mail, using customer lists obtained from Defendant.

CLAIM FOR RELIEF

[Set forth particulars of claim or claims for relief in numbered paragraphs as in ordinary complaint.]

REQUEST FOR RELIEF

Plaintiff demands:

A. That this court certify the action as a class action under the provision of Rule 23(b) _____, [and] appoint counsel for the class [, and order notice to class members as required by Rule 23(c)].

B. That plaintiff and each member of the class recover damages for the personal injuries that each has suffered in an amount to be determined by the evidence presented at trial, but in no event less than the jurisdictional minimum of this court.

C. That Plaintiff recover costs of suit and that Plaintiff's attorneys be awarded reasonable attorney's fees, as provided by Fed R Civ P 23(h).

D. That Plaintiff and each member of the class be awarded any and all other relief that may be just and proper.
Dated: _____

_____ [signature of attorney]

_____ [typed or printed name of attorney]

_____ [firm name, if applicable]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[Comply with any format requirements for complaints under local rules; see Ch. 6, Drafting the Summons and Complaint.]

NOTES.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23

Drafting Complaint:
See §§ 20.10, 20.11

Requirements for Diversity Jurisdiction:
See § 20.12[2]

Description of Class:
See § 20.05

Requirements of Numerosity, Commonality, Typicality, and Adequacy of Representation:
See § 20.06

Rule 23(b) Categories:
See § 20.07

Notice:

See §§ 20.26, 20.27

Costs and Attorney's Fees:
See § 20.35

General Rules on Preparing Complaints:
See Ch. 6, Drafting the Summons and Complaint, §§ 6.01 -6.17

Preparing Summons:
See Ch. 6, Drafting the Summons and Complaint, §§ 6.18 -6.21

Service of Summons:
See Ch. 7, Service of Process

62 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
X. FORMS

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.59

20.59 Notice of Motion and Motion to Certify Class Action.

_____ [attorney's name and California Bar number]
_____ [attorney's street address]
_____ [city, state, and zip code]
_____ [phone number]
_____ [fax number]
_____ [attorney's e-mail address]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]
UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE _____ DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
_____ DIVISION

	)
	)	Civil Action No. _____
	)
John Smith, on behalf of himself and all others similarly situated,	)
	)	NOTICE OF MOTION
Plaintiffs	)	AND MOTION TO
vs.	)	CERTIFY CLASS ACTION
Acme Widget Co.,	)
Defendant	)	Date of Hearing: _____
	)	Time of Hearing: _____
	)	Courtroom No. _____
	)

TO ALL PARTIES AND THEIR ATTORNEYS OF RECORD:

Please take notice that on _____ [date] at _____ [time of day], or as soon thereafter as the parties may be heard, _____ [party's status and name] will move this Court, at the United States Courthouse located at _____ [address], Courtroom _____ [courtroom number], for an order under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(c) to certify this action as a class action and to appoint counsel for the class.

_____ [Party's status and name] moves this court for an order that:

1. Certifies this action as a class action on behalf of Plaintiff and all other persons similarly situated, namely _____ [state class description], and

2. Appoints _____ [name of attorney or firm] as class counsel as provided by Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(g).

[Add for class actions being certified under Rule 23(b)(3)]

3. Directs that an appropriate notice of the certification of this class action be given to the members of class pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(c)(2)(A); directs that notice be made by _____ [indicate proposed method of notice]; and approves the proposed form of notice attached to this motion as Exhibit A.

The grounds for this motion are as follows:

1. The proposed class, as described above, consists of _____ [state or estimate number of members] members, and is so numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable.

2. The issues of _____ [describe common issues of law and fact] are common to all members of the proposed class.

3. The _____ [claims or defenses] of _____ [name of class representative] are typical of the _____ [claims or defenses] of the other class members.

4. _____ [Name of class representative] will vigorously prosecute this action and will fairly and adequately represent the interests of the class.

[Select one of following four alternatives as basis for class certification]

[Alternative One. Certification under Rule 23(b)(1)(A)]

5. The prosecution of separate actions rather than a class action would create a risk of inconsistent or varying adjudications with respect to individual class members that would establish incompatible standards of conduct for _____ [name of party opposing class]. For example, _____ [give example of differing judgments creating inconsistent standards of conduct, e.g., this suit seeks an interpretation of certain seniority provisions of a pension plan, and one employee could secure a declaration that the trustees of the defendant's pension plan must recognize the employee's years of service with defendant's predecessor and another may well conclude that the trustees may not recognize those years of service. This would leave the defendant's pension plan subject to impossible conflicting instructions as to how to calculate seniority for class members].

[Alternative Two. Certification under Rule 23(b)(1)(B)]

6. The prosecution of separate actions rather than a class action would, as a practical matter, be dispositive of the interests of the other, absent class members and would, therefore, substantially impair or impede their ability to protect their interests. Specifically, _____ [describe how interests of absent class members could be affected by individual adjudications, e.g., the funds sought to be divided in this suit are limited, and failure to certify the class would result in an unfair, "first-come, first-serve" basis for distribution of this limited fund, rather than a principled division among all claimants].

[Alternative Three. Certification under Rule 23(b)(2)]

7. _____ [Name of party opposing class] has acted toward all class members in a uniform manner, so that the _____ [injunctive or declaratory or injunctive and declaratory] relief requested in this action should be issued with respect to the class as a whole.

[Alternative Four. Certification under Rule 23(b)(3)]

8. The common questions of law and fact predominate over the questions of law or fact affecting only individual members because _____ [explain how common questions predominate, e.g., this litigation involves fraud claims that are based on a uniform and unvaried presentation to each of the class members. The presentation is fraudulent and misleading as to all members or it is not. There are no individual issues of special knowledge nor any unique defenses for any class members. Only the amount of each class member's loss needs to be fixed, and even the individual amounts of loss are limited to two fixed options, depending on which of two packages the class members purchased].

9. The class action is superior to other available methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of the controversy because _____ [explain why class action is superior, e.g., a single litigation will provide superior and more efficient relief for all the thousands of members of the class. Individual litigation involving relatively small amounts of money, with duplicate costs for thousands of individual investigations, repetitive formal discovery, and redundant trial preparation and trial will not be productive or efficient].

[CONTINUE]

10. The accompanying Application of _____ [Name of counsel] to Serve as Class Counsel and the Supporting Declarations show that the court has a willing and qualified candidate for appointment as class counsel in this action in that:

a. _____ [Name of counsel] has spent considerable time investigating and researching class claims.

b. _____ [Name of counsel] has considerable experience in complex litigation and with class actions.

c. _____ [Name of counsel] has committed and is willing to commit considerable resources to the prosecution of the action.

d. _____ [Name of counsel] has fully and fairly represented the interests of the class in this action to date.

[If required by local rule (e.g., CD Cal Civ LR 7-3), include statement re prior conference of counsel.]

[If required by local rule (e.g., ND Cal Civ LR 7-2(b), 7-4), include supporting points and authorities in the same document as the notice of motion and motion; otherwise, present points and authorities in a separate memorandum.]

This motion is based on this Notice of Motion and Motion, the accompanying affidavits of _____ [names of affiants], [add, if appropriate: the accompanying Memorandum of Points and Authorities,] and the pleadings and papers on file in this action.
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [signature of attorney]

_____ [typed or printed name of attorney]

_____ [firm name, if applicable]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[Attach any supporting affidavits and exhibits to those affidavits.]

[Attach certificate of service.]

NOTES.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23(c)

Drafting Motion:
See § 20.15

Description of Class:
See § 20.05

Requirements of Numerosity, Commonality, Typicality, and Adequacy of Representation:
See § 20.06

Rule 23(b) Categories:
See § 20.07

Notice:
See §§ 20.26, 20.27

Appointment of Counsel:
See § 20.33

Timing:
See § 20.15[1]

Related Form of Order:
See § 20.60

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
X. FORMS

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.60

20.60 Order Certifying Plaintiff Class.

John Smith, on behalf of himself and all others similarly situated,	)	Civil Action No. _____
Plaintiffs	)
vs.	)
Acme Widget Co.,	)	ORDER CERTIFYING ACTION
Defendant	)	AS CLASS ACTION
	)

On _____ [date], _____ [name of moving party] moved this Court pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(c) for an order certifying this action as a class action. The matter was the subject of a hearing by the Court on _____ [date]. _____ [Name of moving party] appeared at the hearing through _____ [counsel's name and firm]. _____ [Name of opposing party] appeared at the hearing through _____ [counsel's name and firm].

Having reviewed the papers submitted, having heard the evidence presented at the hearing, and having considered the authorities cited in favor of and in opposition to the motion, the Court finds that:

1. The class consists of at least _____ [number] persons, so that joinder of all class members is impracticable.

2. There are questions of law and fact that are common to all members of the class, specifically _____ [describe common issues].

3. The claims of _____ [name(s) of class representative(s)] for _____ [specify] are typical of the claims of the other class members.

4. _____ [Name(s) of class representative(s)] has indicated a willingness and an ability to represent the class members and will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the class.

[Select alternatives corresponding to relevant subsections of Rule 23(b)]

[Alternative One. Certification under Rule 23(b)(1)(A)]

5. Certification is appropriate under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(b)(1)(A) because the prosecution of separate actions would create a risk of inconsistent or varying adjudications with respect to individual class members that would establish incompatible standards of conduct for _____ [name of party opposing class]. Specifically, _____ [describe how inconsistent adjudications would create incompatible standards of conduct].

[Alternative Two. Certification under Rule 23(b)(1)(B)]

5. Certification is appropriate under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(b)(1)(B) because the prosecution of separate actions would, as a practical matter, be dispositive of the interests of the other, absent class members and would, therefore, substantially impair or impede their ability to protect their interests. Specifically, _____ [describe how interests of absent class members could be affected by individual adjudications].

[Alternative Three. Certification under Rule 23(b)(2)]

5. Certification is appropriate under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(b)(2) because _____ [name of party opposing class] has acted toward all class members in a uniform manner, so that the requested _____ [injunctive or declaratory or injunctive and declaratory] relief, if granted, should be issued with respect to the class as a whole.

[Alternative Four. Certification under Rule 23(b)(3)]

5. Certification is appropriate under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(b)(3) because the questions of law and fact common to the class predominate over the questions affecting only individual members, and a class action is superior to other methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of these questions. _____ [Explain how common questions predominate and why class action is superior means of resolution].

[CONTINUE]

6. _____ [Name of class counsel] is has requested to be appointed and is qualified to be appointed as class counsel because:

a. _____ [He or She or They] _____ [has or have] prosecuted this action competently to this point;

b. _____ [He or She or They] _____ [has or have] expended considerable resources identifying and investigating the claims in this action;

c. _____ [He or She or They] _____ [is or are] experienced in handling class actions and claims of the type asserted in this action; and

d. _____ [He or She or They] _____ [has or have] indicated a willingness to commit the necessary resources to representing the class.

Accordingly, _____ [name of class counsel] will fairly and adequately represent the interests of the class. [Add if other attorneys have also sought appointment: _____ (Name of class counsel) is also the applicant best able to do so.]

Therefore,

IT IS ORDERED that:

1. The motion is GRANTED.

2. This action is certified as a class action under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(b) _____ [(1)(A) or (1)(B) or (2) or (3)].

3. The action will proceed as to the following _____ [class or subclasses]: _____ [define class and each subclass].

4. The class _____ [claims or issues or defenses or combination] that will be decided in this action are: _____ [define class claims, issues, or defenses].

5. _____ [Name of class counsel] is appointed as class counsel to represent _____ [specify, e.g., the class defined above].

[Repeat counsel appointment for each subclass].

6. Any judgment in this action, whether favorable or unfavorable to the class[es] described above will include and affect all members of the class[es] described.

[Include if action certified under Rule 23(b)(3)]

[Alternative One. Class notice considered and ordered at time of certification]

7. Notice to class members will take the form of the Notice attached to this Order as Exhibit A and will be provided to the class members by _____ [specify means, e.g., first-class mail to the address list provided by defendants]. _____ [Name of responsible party or parties] shall bear the costs of this notice [add, if appropriate:, which may be recovered as a cost of suit if they prevail in this action].

[Alternative Two. Class notice reserved for later hearing]

7. The type, content, and manner of notice will be determined on _____ [date].
_____ [Name of moving party] shall make proposals for the contents and manner of notice and for the responsibility for paying for that notice. These proposals must be filed with the Court, and served on all parties, no later than _____ [date]. Any supporting briefs or declarations concerning the proposed form of manner of, and responsibility for paying for notice must be filed and served at the same time. All other parties in the action may make counterproposals and submit briefs and declarations on these matters. These materials must be filed with the Court, and served on all parties, no later than _____ [date].
Dated: _____

_____

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT JUDGE

NOTES.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 23(c)

Drafting Order:
See § 20.21

Description of Class:
See § 20.05

Requirements of Numerosity, Commonality, Typicality, and Adequacy of Representation:
See § 20.06

Rule 23(b) Categories:
See § 20.07

Notice:
See §§ 20.26, 20.27

Appointment of Counsel:
See § 20.33

Related Form of Motion:
See § 20.59

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
X. FORMS

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.61

20.61 Certification by Plaintiff in Securities Class Action.

_____ [attorney's name and California Bar number]
_____ [attorney's street address]
_____ [city, state, and zip code]
_____ [phone number]
_____ [fax number]
_____ [attorney's e-mail address]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

_____ [Name of plaintiff], under penalty of perjury, certifies as follows:

1. I am the plaintiff in this action, and I make this certification as required by the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995.

2. I have reviewed the Complaint prepared by counsel in this action have authorized its filing.

3. I did not purchase the security that is the subject of the complaint at the direction of plaintiff's counsel or in order to participate in any private action.

4. I am willing to serve as a representative party on behalf of a class, including providing testimony at depositions and at trial, if necessary.

5. The following is a list of all my transactions in the security that is the subject of the complaint during the class period specified in the complaint: _____ [for each transaction, list purchase or sale date, number of shares bought or sold, and price per share paid or received].

6. During the three-year period preceding the date on which this certification is signed, I _____ [either: did not serve or seek to serve as representative party in any securities class action or served or sought to serve as a representative party in the following securities class actions: _____ (for each action, state title of action, court or docket number, and whether party served as class representative, sought to serve, or both)].

7. I will not accept any payment for serving as a representative party in this action beyond my pro rata share of any recovery, except as ordered or approved by the court.

8. I make this certification without waiver of any applicable privileges and without waiver of any right to challenge the necessity for, or the constitutionality of, this certification, or to object to the filing of this certification on any ground whatever.

9. The matters state in this certification are true to the best of my current knowledge, information, and belief.

CERTIFIED under the penalties of perjury, at _____ [city and state], on _____ [date].

_____ [signature of plaintiff]

_____ [typed name]

Plaintiff

NOTES.

Authority:
15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(2)(A), 78u-4(a)(2)(A); ND Cal Civ LR 3-7(b)

Drafting Certification:
See § 20.47

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
X. FORMS

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.62

20.62 Notice of Motion and Motion to Be Appointed Lead Plaintiff in Securities Class Action.

_____ [attorney's name and California Bar number]
_____ [attorney's street address]
_____ [city, state, and zip code]
_____ [phone number]
_____ [fax number]
_____ [attorney's e-mail address]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]
UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE _____ DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
_____ DIVISION

	)
	)	Civil Action No. _____
John Smith, on behalf of himself and all others similarly situated,	)
Plaintiffs	)	NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION FOR APPOINTMENT AS LEAD PLAINTIFF
vs.	)
Acme Widget Co.,	)
Defendant	)	Date of Hearing: _____
	)	Time of Hearing: _____
	)	Courtroom No. _____

TO ALL PARTIES AND THEIR ATTORNEYS OF RECORD:

Please take notice that on _____ [date] at _____ [time], or as soon thereafter as counsel may be heard, _____ [name of moving party] will move this court, at the United States Courthouse located at _____ [address], Courtroom _____ [courtroom number], for appointment as lead plaintiff in this action.

_____ [Name of moving party] moves this court for an order under the provisions of the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act that:

1. Appoints _____ [name of moving party] as lead plaintiff in this action within the meaning of 15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(2)(A), 78u-4(a)(2)(A).

2. Approves Movant's selection of _____ [name of attorney or firm] as class counsel.

_____ [Name of moving party] should be appointed lead plaintiff in this action because:

1. Movant has a large and significant financial interest in the relief sought by the class in that _____ [briefly describe moving party's financial interest, i.e., loss due to defendant's fraudulent statements].

[Alternative One. Movant is presumed lead plaintiff]

2. Movant believes this interest is the largest financial interest of any of the applicants for lead plaintiff. Accordingly, Movant is entitled to the statutory presumption that Movant is the "most adequate plaintiff" and should be appointed lead plaintiff by the court.

[Alternative Two. Movant is not presumed lead plaintiff]

2. Movant has a large and significant financial interest in the relief sought by the class in that _____ [briefly describe moving party's financial interest, i.e., loss due to defendant's fraudulent statements]. While it is possible that _____ [name of other applicant for lead plaintiff] has a larger financial interest in the litigation than does Movant, that applicant should not be appointed lead plaintiff. Even assuming that _____ [name of other applicant] is entitled to the statutory presumption that it is the "most adequate plaintiff," that presumption should be rebutted because _____ [explain, e.g., that applicant consists of a group of 17 unrelated individuals and institutional investors. Such a group lacks the cohesion to properly control the action and therefore cannot fairly and adequately represent the interests of the class].

[CONTINUE]

3. Movant also meets all of the requirements of Rule 23 to be class representative:

a. Movant's claims for damages due to the fraudulent conduct of Defendant are typical of those of the class, and

b. Movant is willing and able to vigorously prosecute this action and will fairly and adequately represent the interests of the class.

4. Pursuant to 15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(3)(B)(v), 78u-4(a)(3)(B)(v), the lead plaintiff has the right to select and retain class counsel, subject to the approval of the court. The counsel selected by Movant, _____ [name of attorney or firm], have extensive experience in successfully prosecuting complex securities class actions and are well qualified to represent the class. Accordingly, the court should approve Movant's choice.

[If required by local rule (e.g., CD Cal Civ LR 7-3), include statement re prior conference of counsel.]

[If required by local rule (e.g., ND Cal Civ LR 7-2(b), 7-4), include supporting points and authorities in the same document as the notice of motion and motion; otherwise, present points and authorities in a separate memorandum.]

This motion is based on this Notice of Motion and Motion, the accompanying _____ [affidavit or declaration] of _____ [name], [add, if appropriate: the accompanying Memorandum of Points and Authorities,] and the pleadings and papers on file in this action.
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [signature of attorney]

_____ [typed or printed name of attorney]

_____ [firm name, if applicable]

Attorney for_____ [party's status and name]

[Attach any supporting affidavits or declarations and exhibits to those affidavits or declarations.]

[Attach certificate of service.]

NOTES.

Authority:
15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(3)(B), 78u-4(a)(3)(B); ND Cal Civ LR 23-1(b)

Appointment of Lead Plaintiff:
See § 20.50

Approval of Counsel:
See § 20.51

Timing:
See § 20.49

Related Form of Order:

See § 20.63

66 of 67 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
X. FORMS

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.63

20.63 Order Appointing Lead Plaintiff in Securities Class Action.

John Smith, on behalf of himself and all others similarly situated,	)	Civil Action No. _____
Plaintiffs	)
vs.	)
Acme Widget Co.,	)	ORDER APPOINTING LEAD PLAINTIFF
Defendant	)
	)

On _____ [date], _____ [name of moving party] moved this Court for an order appointing Movant as lead plaintiff and approving Movant's choice of counsel. The matter was the subject of a hearing by the Court on _____ [date]. Movant appeared at the hearing through _____ [counsel's name and firm]. _____ [Name of opposing party] appeared at the hearing through _____ [counsel's name and firm].

Having reviewed the papers submitted, having heard the evidence presented at the hearing, and having considered the authorities cited in favor of and in opposition to the motion, the Court finds that:

1. Movant has the largest financial interest in the litigation of any lead plaintiff applicant.

2. Movant meets the relevant requirements of Rule 23 in that Movant's claims are typical of those of the class and Movant will fairly and adequately represent the class interests.

3. _____ [Name of attorney or firm] has the ability, experience, and resources necessary to prosecute a securities class action.

Therefore,

IT IS ORDERED that:

1. The motion is GRANTED;

2. _____ [Name of movant] is appointed lead plaintiff in this action, and

3. Lead plaintiff's choice of _____ [name of attorney or firm] as class counsel is approved.
Dated: _____

_____

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT JUDGE

NOTES.

Authority:
15 USC §§ 77z-1(a)(3)(B), 78u-4(a)(3)(B); ND Cal Civ LR 23-1(b)

Appointment of Lead Plaintiff:
See § 20.50

Approval of Counsel:
See § 20.51

Related Form of Motion:
See § 20.62

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 6 Class Actions
CHAPTER 20 Class Actions
X. FORMS

2-20 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 20.64

20.64 Local District Court Forms.

Northern District

Model Stipulation and Proposed Consolidation Order for Securities Fraud Class Actions

Click here to view image.

Cross Reference:

Automated HotDocs(R) and PDF versions of these forms may be accessed and filled in from the online version of this publication, and are also available at www.LexisOne.com/forms.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 21 Discovery Strategy and Planning

3-21 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 21.syn

§ 21.syn Synopsis to Chapter 21: Discovery Strategy and Planning

21.01 Scope.

21.02 Objective and Strategy.

21.02[1] Proper Discovery Planning Can Shape Entire Case.

21.02[2] Proper Document Management Helps Case Proceed Efficiently.

21.03 CHECKLIST: Planning and Preparing for Discovery.

21.04 Key Considerations for Implementing Discovery Plan.

21.04[1] Understanding Importance of Planning.

21.04[2] Establishing Plan at Onset of Litigation.

21.04[3] Conducting Legal Research and Reviewing Relevant Jury Instructions.

21.04[4] Conducting Client Interviews to Establish Basic Facts.

21.04[4][a] Setting Up Interview.

21.04[4][b] Meeting With Client to Prepare Pleadings.

21.04[4][c] Eliciting Necessary Facts Through Client Interview.

21.04[4][d] Limiting Note-Taking by Client During Interview.

21.04[4][e] Establishing List of Potential Witnesses Through Initial Interviews.

21.04[4][f] Preparing Client for Future Discovery During Initial Interview.

21.04[5] Reviewing Relevant Documents and Electronically Stored Information in Client's Possession, Custody, or Control.

21.04[5][a] Preparing for Mandatory Initial Disclosure of Documents and Electronically Stored Information.

21.04[5][b] Developing Understanding of Key Facts Underlying Case Theory.

21.04[5][c] Evaluating and Setting Client Expectations.

21.04[5][d] Preparing for Depositions.

21.04[5][e] Conducting "Reasonable Inquiry" for Discovery.

21.05 Factual Investigation and "Informal" Discovery.

21.05[1] Value of Early Investigation.

21.05[2] Gathering Evidence on Informal Basis.

21.05[3] Investigation in Personal Injury Actions.

21.05[4] Conducting Site Investigations.

21.05[5] Inspecting Medical and Hospital Records at the Treating Facility.

21.05[6] Reviewing Public or Other Accessible Records.

21.05[6][a] Ascertaining Records Obtainable Without Formal Discovery.

21.05[6][b] Using Online Resources to Obtain Public Records.

21.05[7] Obtaining Information From Witnesses.

21.05[7][a] Conducting Early Witness Interviews.

21.05[7][b] Determining Who to Interview.

21.05[7][c] Arranging Witness Interviews.

21.05[7][d] Taping Witness Interviews.

21.05[7][e] Interviewing Difficult Witnesses.

21.05[7][f] Obtaining Witness Statements.

21.05[7][g] Searching for Witnesses.

21.05[8] Using Investigators and Other Technical Consultants.

21.05[8][a] When Investigators and Technical Consultants Can Be Useful.

21.05[8][b] Ensuring Ethical Behavior of Investigators.

21.05[8][c] Using Investigators Effectively.

21.05[9] Protecting Results of "Informal" Discovery Through Attorney-Client Privilege.

21.05[9][a] Protecting Communications Regarding Legal Advice.

21.05[9][b] Evaluating Attorney-Client Privilege in Corporate Setting.

21.05[9][c] Understanding Limits of Attorney-Client Privilege.

21.05[9][d] Waiving Attorney-Client Privilege.

21.05[10] Protecting Results of "Informal" Discovery Through Work Product Doctrine.

21.05[10][a] Protecting Documents and Things Prepared in Anticipation of Litigation or Trial.

21.05[10][b] Scope of Work Product Doctrine.

21.05[10][c] Protecting Attorney's Thoughts, Mental Processes, Strategy, and Opinions.

21.05[10][d] Protecting Tape-Recorded Conversations and Videotaped Surveillance.

21.05[10][e] Preparing Material for Litigation or Trial.

21.05[10][f] Waiving Work Product Protection.

21.06 Preparation for Formal Discovery.

21.06[1] Making Initial Disclosures Before Participating in Formal Discovery.

21.06[1][a] Initial Disclosures.

21.06[1][b] Mandatory Disclosure of Expert Testimony.

21.06[1][c] Pretrial Disclosures of Trial Evidence.

21.06[2] Holding Conference to Discuss Case and Possible Settlement Before Beginning Formal Discovery.

21.06[3] Scope and Limits of Discovery.

21.06[3][a] Obtaining Discoverable Information.

21.06[3][b] Limiting the Scope of Discovery.

21.06[4] Stipulating Around Limitations of Discovery.

21.06[5] Certifying Discovery Requests and Responses.

21.06[6] Discovery Responses Filed When Used in Proceeding.

21.06[7] Supplementing Discovery Responses.

21.06[8] Seeking Protective Orders to Prevent Abusive Discovery.

21.06[9] Determining Sequence of Discovery Procedures.

21.06[10] Evaluating Potential Cost of Discovery.

21.07 Consideration of Available Discovery Methods.

21.07[1] Depositions.

21.07[1][a] Depositions Help to Evaluate Witnesses and Preserve Testimony.

21.07[1][b] Depositions Are Subject to Numeric and Timing Restrictions.

21.07[1][c] Depositions May Be Videotaped.

21.07[2] Interrogatories.

21.07[2][a] Interrogatories May Be Propounded to Other Parties Only.

21.07[2][b] Purposes of Interrogatories.

21.07[3] Inspection of Documents, Electronically Stored Information, and Property.

21.07[3][a] Obtaining Disclosure and Demanding Inspection of Documents, Electronically Stored Information, and Property.

21.07[3][b] Responding to Inspection Demands.

21.07[4] Physical and Mental Examinations.

21.07[4][a] Seeking Physical and Mental Examinations.

21.07[4][b] Providing the Examiner's Report to the Examined Party.

21.07[5] Requests for Admission.

21.08 Strategies for Sequence of Discovery Methods.

21.08[1] Conventional Approach Is to Serve Interrogatories and Request Production Before Conducting Depositions.

21.08[2] Advantages of Taking Depositions After Reviewing Documents.

21.08[3] When to Alter Conventional Sequence of Discovery.

21.08[4] Sequencing of Depositions Merits Special Consideration.

21.09 CHECKLISTS: Managing Litigation Documents.

21.09[1] Choosing a Method of Organization.

21.09[2] Maintaining Control of Documents Throughout Litigation.

21.10 Objectives and Methods of Document Management.

21.10[1] Documents Must Be Organized for Accessibility.

21.10[2] Methods of Document Management.

21.10[3] Managing Documents Manually.

21.10[3][a] Examining and Evaluating Documents.

21.10[3][b] Filing Documents.

21.10[3][c] Creating a Master Document List.

21.10[4] Managing Documents Manually and Electronically.

21.10[5] Managing Documents Electronically.

21.10[5][a] Imaging Documents.

21.10[5][b] Searching and Indexing Within Document or Coding Document.

21.10[5][c] Storing Electronic Documents in Folders.

21.10[6] Combining Imaging Systems With Network- and Web-Based Access.

21.10[7] Reviewing and Organizing Key Documents.

21.10[7][a] Reviewing Key Documents.

21.10[7][b] Organizing Key Documents.

21.10[8] Using Paralegals for Initial Document Review.

21.11 Managing Discovery Documents and Electronically Stored Information.

21.11[1] Reviewing Documents and Information for Initial Mandatory Disclosure.

21.11[2] Preparing for Production of Documents and Information.

21.11[2][a] Anticipating Production Requests.

21.11[2][b] Obtaining Documents and Information From Client's Employees and Agents.

21.11[2][c] Considering Whether Material Is Protected From Production.

21.11[2][d] Redaction Before Production.

21.11[2][e] Numbering Documents for Production.

21.11[3] Producing Client E-mails.

21.11[4] Reviewing Material Produced Under Rule 34.

21.11[4][a] Determining Time and Place of Production.

21.11[4][b] Reviewing Documents On-Site.

21.11[5] Maintaining Control of Documents Throughout Litigation.

21.11[5][a] Keeping Control Set of Documents.

21.11[5][b] Organizing Documents Chronologically.

21.11[6] Indexing Significant Documents.

21.11[6][a] Creating Computer-Based Index System.

21.11[6][b] Coding Electronically Stored Information.

21.11[7] Maintaining "Hot Document" File.

21.11[8] Recording Document and Information Use.

21.11[9] Creating Witness Files.

21.11[10] Creating Subject Matter Files.

21.11[11] Maintaining Files for Potential Exhibits.

2 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 21 Discovery Strategy and Planning
I. STRATEGY

3-21 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 21.01

21.01 Scope.

This chapter discusses discovery planning and strategy and document management under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. The chapter is organized into three main parts. Part I explains the scope of the chapter, plus the objectives and strategy of these procedures.

Part II covers the steps and considerations in implementing a discovery plan as part of a case's overall litigation plan, including:

- Planning for discovery to understand the issues and facts of the case, including establishing a plan at the outset of the case, conducting legal research, reviewing jury instructions, conducting client interviews to elicit important facts and documents, determining potential witnesses, and preparing the client for discovery [see 21.04].

- Reviewing relevant documents to prepare for mandatory disclosure, understanding key facts of the case, helping set client expectations, preparing for depositions, and conducting a reasonable inquiry for discovery [see 21.04].

- Conducting factual investigation and informal discovery, including investigating related personal injury actions, if appropriate, conducting site investigations, inspecting medical and hospital records, reviewing public records, obtaining witness information and witness statements, using investigators and consultants, if appropriate, and protecting informal discovery through the attorney-client privilege and work product doctrine [see 21.05].

- Preparing for formal discovery, including making mandatory initial disclosures, holding settlement conference, limiting the scope of discovery or stipulating around limits, certifying discovery responses and filing them, supplementing discovery, seeking protective orders, evaluating the discovery sequence, and evaluating the cost of discovery [see 21.06].

- Considering available discovery methods, including depositions, interrogatories, inspection of documents, electronically stored information, and property, physical and mental examinations, and requests for admissions [see 21.07].

- Considering strategies for the order of discovery methods, including the factors to consider in deciding when and in which order to take depositions [see 21.08].

Part III covers the management of documents. In document-intensive litigation, the ability to locate all documents and track their origin is indispensable. Thus, a system of control and indexing that makes documents readily accessible is critical. Typical document management involves sorting, labeling, filing, and indexing documents in a manner that allows for easy retrieval. Document management typically involves some level of automation. Even for a small case, it is useful to maintain a computer-based index of pertinent documents.

The use of electronic documents has revolutionized document management, especially in large cases. Document imaging services that scan paper documents into digital images are commonly used for the purpose of automating and indexing documents in complex cases. At some firms, document imaging and management systems with comprehensive indexing and retrieval features are used in all cases. A growing number of firms use web-based sites with document management systems that make it possible for multiple users to store, index, retrieve, and electronically distribute all types of case documents with accuracy and ease.

Specifically, this part covers the following topics:

- Objectives of document management [see 21.10[1]].
- Methods of document management [see 21.10[1] -[6]].
- Reviewing and organizing key documents [see 21.10[7]].
- Using staff appropriately to review documents [see 21.10[8]].
- Organizing and managing discovery documents [see 21.11[1] -[4]].
- Keeping a control set of documents [see 21.11[5]].
- Indexing documents for retrieval and annotation [see 21.11[6]].
- Keeping "hot document" files, witness files, subject matter files, and exhibit files [see 21.11[7]].
- Recording document use [see 21.11[8]].
- Creating and maintaining witness files and subject matter files [see 21.11[9] -[11]].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral Overview

3 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 21 Discovery Strategy and Planning
I. STRATEGY

3-21 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 21.02

21.02 Objective and Strategy.

21.02[1] Proper Discovery Planning Can Shape Entire Case. Planning for discovery is a fundamental part of any litigation, and can have a marked impact in understanding, shaping, litigating, and resolving a case. A proper discovery plan establishes a focused, organized approach to the papers, objects, and people subject to discovery, and to the various discovery methods that will be used in the case. Discovery planning sets the road map for the entire case. It reveals the facts, evidence, and issues on which the case will turn, as well as the delivery and demeanor of potential witnesses and experts.

For both plaintiff's and defendant's counsel, the discovery planning process will help determine which discovery methods to employ, and which issues must be proved or refuted at trial. It also will show which witnesses and experts will be effective or should be attacked, and what evidence is required to prove the elements of the cause of action or defense. Further, early, thorough, and organized investigation can help determine the chances of settlement before trial, depending on the strength of the evidence.

21.02[2] Proper Document Management Helps Case Proceed Efficiently. The objective is to use the document management process to prepare for all aspects of the litigation, good and bad, from prior to commencement of formal discovery all the way through trial. Therefore, the review and coding process should focus not only on the case or defense of the reviewing party but also on the anticipated case or defense of the opposing party. In addition, the same work that goes into document review and coding at the beginning of the case should be performed as the case progresses and new documents are encountered (for instance, through the adversary's production or through third-party production).

From the outset of a case, obtaining, organizing, and managing the relevant documents facilitates understanding of the case and allows the staff working on the case to access the information in the documents when needed. Documents--whether business records, transaction documents, correspondence, investigative documents, meeting notes, calendar entries, or e-mail and other electronic documents--will provide the bulk of the important information needed to prosecute or defend the case properly.

Accordingly, it is essential to gather, maintain, store, index, and allow access to the various types of documents.

Indexing, coding, and management systems can be simple manual systems for uncomplicated cases, or intricate CD- or web-based systems with complex coding and electronic filing schemes for complex cases. Regardless of the system used, the goal is to organize the documents by some system, catalog their titles, contents, authors, and recipients, and facilitate quick access to this information, in some cases by different people at the same time. A control set of originals must be maintained, from which paper or electronic copies are made.

Strategic Point:

As the case proceeds, the documents that are most important to winning or settling the case will become clear. Those document can be maintained in a key or "hot" document folder to allow frequent access. Typically, the number of key documents decreases as the case proceeds and some issues are resolved, allowing the attorney and staff to focus their efforts on the remaining documents that will bring the case to a successful close [see § 21.10[7]].

Documents initially considered unimportant frequently take on significance as discovery progresses and theories change. It is important to organize documents in a manner that will facilitate easy access based on topic, author, or recipient for continuing review.

Document management also aids in tracking all relevant client documents that are subject to initial mandatory disclosure, or that may be sought by the opponent's production requests. Finally, document management will be invaluable in creating and maintaining witness files, subject matter files, and files for exhibits, if the case goes to trial.

Cross Reference:

For Tips on updating case law and expanding your research with additional resources, see How to Use Lexis.com With This Publication at the front of this volume.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 21 Discovery Strategy and Planning
II. DEVELOPING A DISCOVERY PLAN

3-21 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 21.03

21.03 CHECKLIST: Planning and Preparing for Discovery.

☐ Plan and prepare for discovery, including the following:

○ Identify key issues in case.

○ Conduct discovery with continuing reference to issues and facts necessary to prove or disprove them.

○ Establish discovery plan as part of litigation plan at outset of case, and update discovery plan as needed.

○ Conduct relevant legal research to determine elements of claims and defenses, fact patterns supporting liability or defense, and damages recoverable.

○ Review relevant jury instructions to focus on how courts have instructed juries in similar cases.

○ Conduct client interviews to establish basic facts of case, prepare pleadings, learn important points in controversy, determine potential witnesses, and prepare client for discovery.

○ Review relevant documents and electronically stored information in client's custody to prepare for mandatory disclosure, develop understanding of key facts, and prepare for depositions.

○ Conduct reasonable inquiry for discovery as required by Rule 26(g).

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 11, 26(a), (f), (g)

Discussion:
See § 21.04

☐ Plan and prepare for investigation and informal discovery, including the following:

○ Conduct early investigation to help plan case and preserve evidence that may degrade or disappear.

○ Gather evidence by informal means from third parties to avoid expense of discovery.

○ Investigate personal injury actions immediately, if appropriate, to preserve participants' recollections.

○ Conduct site investigations immediately, if appropriate, before scene is altered or repaired.

○ Inspect medical and hospital records, if appropriate, and obtain list of staff involved.

○ Review public and other accessible records, including government agency filings, court records, police and fire reports, accident investigations, business records, and news accounts.

○ Obtain information from unrepresented witnesses immediately to preserve recollections and obtain witness statements.

○ Use investigators and technical consultants such as fingerprint specialists and handwriting experts, if appropriate.

○ Protect results of informal discovery through attorney-client privilege.

○ Protect results of informal discovery through work product doctrine.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 11, 26(b)(3); United States v. Zolin (1989) 491 US 554, 562, 109 S Ct 2619, 105 L Ed2d 469 ; Upjohn Co. v. United States (1981) 449 US 383, 389, 101 S Ct 677, 66 L Ed2d 584

Discussion:
See § 21.05

☐ After action has commenced, begin preparations for formal discovery.

☐ If case is subject to initial disclosure requirements:

○ Await completion of Rule 26(f) conference before conducting formal discovery.

Exceptions:

Parties need not await the Rule 26(f) conference in categories of proceedings specifically exempted under Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(B).

Parties may stipulate to discovery before the Rule 26(f) conference.

○ With other attorneys of record and all unrepresented parties that have appeared in the case, arrange a Rule 26(f) conference to occur at least 21 days before scheduling conference is held or Fed R Civ P 16(b) scheduling order is due.

○ In advance of Rule 26(f) conference, gather information for Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1) initial disclosures.

○ Participate in Rule 26(f) conference.

☐ Consider the nature and basis of the claims and defenses and the possibility for a prompt settlement or resolution of the case.

☐ Make or arrange for disclosures required by Rule 26(a)(1).

○ Make disclosures at or within 14 days after the Rule 26(f) conference.

○ For party first served or otherwise joined after Rule 26(f) conference, make disclosures within 30 days after being served or joined unless different time is set by stipulation or court order.

☐ Object to initial disclosure at conference if appropriate.

☐ Develop proposed discovery plan.

☐ Address any other matters required under local rules.

○ Submit to court written report outlining discovery plan within 14 days after conference.

Discussion:

Ch. 15, Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosure

☐ Before discovery cutoff date prescribed by court in scheduling order, conduct formal discovery.

Timing:

Within 90 days after appearance of defendant and within 120 days after complaint has been served on a defendant, court will issue scheduling order that, among other things, establishes a discovery cutoff.

- ○ Take deposition of any person, including party, without leave of court.
- ○ Serve interrogatories on another party.
- ○ Obtain documents, electronically stored information, and things from another party.
- ○ Inspect personal and real property of another party.
- ○ Seek physical and mental examinations of another party if mental or physical condition is in controversy and there is good cause for examination.
- ○ Serve requests for admissions on another party of any matter relevant to litigation.

Authority:

Fed R Civ P 30(a), (b), 34-36

Discussion:

See § 21.07; Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery

☐ Consider strategy regarding order of use of discovery methods.

- ○ Ordinarily, serve interrogatories and request documents before conducting depositions.
- ○ Normally take depositions only after reviewing documents, which provide framework for understanding person's involvement in case.
- ○ Consider conducting early depositions to:
  - ☐ Alter opponent's perception of case.
  - ☐ Preserve testimony that may be lost.
  - ☐ Depose key witnesses for opposing party to learn as must as possible about case early.

☐ Depose critical witness whose testimony may favorably change balance of case.

○ Delay deposing key actors and experts until all facts are known and case is more developed.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30, 32-34

Discussion:
See § 21.08; Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery

☐ If appropriate, stipulate around discovery limits.

Discussion:
Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, see §§ 22.03 -22.13

☐ Certify discovery requests and responses.

☐ File discovery requests and responses if used in proceeding.

☐ Supplement or correct discovery responses, if appropriate.

☐ Seek protective orders for abusive discovery, if appropriate.

Discussion:
Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, see §§ 22.35 -22.66

☐ Evaluate cost of discovery that will be passed along to client.

☐ In cases subject to Rule 26(a) disclosure requirements:

○ At least 90 days before trial date, or date case is set to be ready for trial, make expert witness disclosures required by Rule 26(a)(2).

Exception:
If evidence is solely to contradict or rebut evidence on same subject matter identified by another party, disclosure must be made within 30 days after other party's disclosure.

○ At least 30 days before trial date, provide to other parties and file with the court the pretrial disclosures required by Rule 26(a)(3).

○ Within 14 days after party has made Rule 26(a)(3) disclosures, serve and promptly file objections to those disclosures.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryRelevance

5 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 21 Discovery Strategy and Planning
II. DEVELOPING A DISCOVERY PLAN

3-21 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 21.04

21.04 Key Considerations for Implementing Discovery Plan.

21.04[1] Understanding Importance of Planning. Planning for discovery begins with an understanding of the issues in the case. Otherwise, it is impossible to know what information to obtain to prove a case or defense at trial. Before a complaint is filed, the plaintiff's lawyer must identify the key issues and facts in the case. The duty of prefiling investigation imposed by Fed R Civ P 11 requires diligent inquiry before the lawsuit begins. The same duty applies to defense counsel before filing an answer or any preanswer motions.

Warning:

Improper use of discovery, or any other process, can subject the attorney to sanctions if the court determines that (1) something was done for an improper purpose, (2) claims or defenses were not warranted by existing law or a nonfrivolous argument for an extension or change in existing law, (3) allegations and other factual contentions have no evidentiary support, or (4) denials of factual contentions are not warranted [Fed R Civ P 11(b), (c)].

Conducting discovery with continuing reference to the issues and facts necessary to prove or disprove them serves to:

- Permit discovery to be conducted with a clear purpose, saving time and money.
- Maximize the use of discovery--limited by the press of time, the strictures of the court, or cost constraints.
- Ensure that discovery will be completed well in advance of trial.

21.04[2] Establishing Plan at Onset of Litigation. Establish a litigation plan, including a discovery plan, at the earliest possible time and update it periodically as the litigation progresses. In view of the importance of discovery, careful planning is crucial. Do not use discovery methods merely because they are available. Rather, use discovery methods for specified reasons and with clear objectives in mind. A comprehensive discovery plan serves as the final roadmap of what needs to be established or accomplished at trial.

21.04[3] Conducting Legal Research and Reviewing Relevant Jury Instructions. The first step in creating a discovery plan is to conduct legal research and review relevant jury instructions to determine:

- Elements of the claims and defenses.
- Fact patterns supporting liability or that may be used as a defense.
- Types of damages recoverable.

Strategic Point:

Because the extent of discovery undertaken is likely to hinge on the value of the case, it is helpful to research jury verdicts for similar cases in the district where the case is filed. Services that publish jury verdict information generally provide settlement information for cases that have recently settled, which can be even more useful than jury verdicts.

Once basic research has been completed, generate a list of the facts needed to prosecute or defend the action. The process of establishing required facts often begins with information in the custody or control of the client or others with whom informal access may be sought.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of informal discovery, see § 21.05.

21.04[4] Conducting Client Interviews to Establish Basic Facts.

21.04[4][a] Setting Up Interview. Client interviews are a critical component of discovery planning. In most circumstances, the parties know the factual background, potential witnesses, and key documents that will be the core of the overall discovery plan.

Strategic Point:

If possible, contact the person to be interviewed in advance. Advance notice makes the interview more efficient and may eliminate the need for follow-up interviews. During that initial contact, give a summary of the nature of the action and mention the matters to be covered in the interview. To the extent possible, identify the significant disputed issues in the suit, par-ticularly the issues on which the interviewee is expected to shed some light. This will help the interviewee recall pertinent information and begin collecting the documents or evidence that otherwise would have to be located after the interview.

In addition, if meeting with someone whom the client contact knows but whom you have never met, consider having the client contact make the first communication with the interviewee and explain why the interview is necessary and appropriate. This can serve to place the interviewee at ease and make the interview more effective.

21.04[4][b] Meeting With Client to Prepare Pleadings. Whether representing a plaintiff or a defendant, developing the facts of a case normally begins with an interview with the client, the client's survivor, or, in the case of an organization, knowledgeable members of the organization. When representing the plaintiff, the interview will be a necessary prelude to preparing the complaint. When representing a defendant, the complaint should be promptly reviewed with the client to become familiar with the underlying facts and to prepare an answer or consider a preanswer motion. During the initial meeting with the client, begin formulating a discovery plan to assure evidentiary support of the allegations in the pleadings.

21.04[4][c] Eliciting Necessary Facts Through Client Interview. Eliciting facts from the attorney's own client resembles the subsequent conduct of discovery from the adversary. It may be difficult to assemble a body of facts that are sufficiently particular and well-founded to constitute potential evidence. Even a cooperative individual's recollection may have to be prodded, and will often have to be refreshed with documents. In the course of client interviews, use any pleadings on file and all relevant documents to structure the interview.

21.04[4][d] Limiting Note-Taking by Client During Interview. There is no reason for the client or any employees to take notes or make memoranda about the substance of attorney-client interviews. At most, they need to keep track of the documents to search for after the interview. Even if the client takes notes during attorney-client meetings, the notes may be protected from discovery as work product that reflects the opinions and theories of counsel. Although the client should be careful to keep interview notes confidential, inadvertent disclosure of these notes will not necessarily waive the work product protection afforded by Fed R Civ P 26(b)(3) [see FDIC v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (SD Cal 2000) 196 FRD 375, 380].

21.04[4][e] Establishing List of Potential Witnesses Through Initial Interviews. The initial interviewing and fact-collecting process is the first step in establishing who should be deposed, who should give written statements, and who should be subjected only to informal discovery. In the early stages of the interviewing process, counsel should learn the names of people who have firsthand knowledge of the events giving rise to the lawsuit and the location and nature of documents that bear on the issues. This information can be used to prepare a list of potential deponents, which may be refined through the use of interrogatories and document requests.

21.04[4][f] Preparing Client for Future Discovery During Initial Interview. During interviews with the client or the client's agents, begin to lay the groundwork for later preparation of those people for future discovery, including their own depositions. Tell the client about questions they may be expected to answer and documents they may be expected to produce.

21.04[5] Reviewing Relevant Documents and Electronically Stored Information in Client's Possession, Custody, or Control.

21.04[5][a] Preparing for Mandatory Initial Disclosure of Documents and Electronically Stored Information. An evaluation of the client's documents and electronically stored information is an essential part of planning for discovery. In applicable cases, even before any formal discovery demands are made, the parties are required to exchange documents, electronically stored information, and tangible things that are in the possession, custody, or control of the party and that the disclosing party may use to support its claims or defenses, unless solely for impeachment [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1); see 21.06[1] (discussion of initial disclosure)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of initial disclosure under Rule 26(a), see Ch. 15, Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures, §§ 15.15 -15.26.

21.04[5][b] Developing Understanding of Key Facts Underlying Case Theory. Early review of the client's documents and electronically stored information provides an opportunity to begin developing the theory of the case, which facilitates efficient use of discovery. Document review supports the development of a coherent narrative, which will later be substantiated with evidence.

Strategic Point:

A thorough review of the client's documents and electronically stored information can suggest additional theories of liability or potential defenses to develop in the course of discovery. Although the documents that are most damaging to a case can be those in the client's files, often some of the most helpful documents are also in the client's control.

21.04[5][c] Evaluating and Setting Client Expectations. A review of the client's documents and electronically stored information can provide a cross-check on the client's perspective of the case. Although the job of an advocate is to put the best light possible on the facts at hand, lawyers in the early stages of a case sometimes can be swayed by the client's accounts of the facts. Clients may overstate the strength of their position. Although the process of lowering the client's expectations is delicate, seeking explanations of apparent inconsistencies between the documentary record and the client's version of events is one way to approach this issue.

21.04[5][d] Preparing for Depositions. Review the client's files to help identify the principal actors in the events leading to the lawsuit, and thus to develop a list of potential persons to be interviewed or deposed.

Strategic Point:

Reviewing documents and electronically stored information in the possession, custody, or control of the client can help prepare the client for being deposed by an adversary. The client should never see a damaging item for the first time at a deposition.

21.04[5][e] Conducting "Reasonable Inquiry" for Discovery. The attorney or unrepresented party has a duty of "reasonable inquiry" with respect to discovery [Fed R Civ P 26(g)]. Breach of this duty may result in substantial sanctions.

An early review of the client's files saves time when the adverse party serves a production request under Fed R Civ P 34. Some lawyers, acting on the assumption that the contents of their client's files will do their case more harm than good, let the client, rather than the attorney's staff, search for responsive documents in the expectation that the job may be done less rigorously. However, Rule 26's duty of reasonable inquiry requires a diligent search when responding to a production request. The reasonable inquiry duty mandated by Fed R Civ P 11, which applies to signed pleadings, has been specifically extended to responses to discovery under Rule 26(g) as well. Failure to search diligently for responsive material, whether by the attorney or the client, may result in sanctions [Henry v. Gill Indus., Inc. (9th Cir 1993) 983 F2d 943, 947 ; Jennings v. Joshua Indep. Sch. Dist. (5th Cir 1991) 948 F2d 194, 197 ; see also Qualcomm Inc. v. Broadcom Corp (SD Cal 2008) 2008 US Dist LEXIS 911 , vacated in part, (SD Cal 2008) 2008 US Dist LEXIS 16897 (finding discovery misconduct and sanctioning corporate counsel who failed to conduct a reasonable inquiry into the adequacy of their client's document search and production; corporate client also required to pay over $8.5 million for legal fees of opposing party and other litigation costs)].

Although there are times when counsel may not want to examine a client's relevant files, this should be a carefully considered decision. Lawyers are under a duty to maximize the client's resources and avoid wasteful expenditures, but in the practice of prudent, defensive law, it is better to prepare fully by reviewing all the files than to risk a malpractice action from the failure to do so.

Strategic Point:

Remember that "possession, custody, or control" is a fairly broad concept. Be sure to ask the client where all records relevant to the action are kept (e.g., other or satellite offices, off-site storage facilities, back-up disks or drives, and home offices). It often helps to ask the client to explain its filing system, as thinking about how and where information is kept may jog the client's memory about the very existence of relevant material.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral Overview

6 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 21 Discovery Strategy and Planning
II. DEVELOPING A DISCOVERY PLAN

3-21 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 21.05

21.05 Factual Investigation and "Informal" Discovery.

21.05[1] Value of Early Investigation. Delay in investigating a case can result in some evidence disappearing or its value or content diminishing. Recollections fade over time and documents are mislaid or destroyed. The condition of an injured or mentally disturbed party will inevitably change. Physical evidence will disappear; skid marks on a highway will be worn away by use and weather; a faulty machine will be repaired; a dangerous stairway will be replaced.

Early investigation of the facts facilitates proper planning for the case, including an outline for formal discovery. The early compilation of potential evidence helps in the preparation of factual investigation and legal research.

21.05[2] Gathering Evidence on Informal Basis. If the circumstances of the case do not require early or aggressive formal discovery, and the client's knowledge of the case has been exhausted, then counsel should gather as much evidence or information about the case as possible from independent, or third-party, sources through informal discovery methods, because:

- Formal discovery is more time-consuming and expensive than informal investigation.
- Formal discovery involves disclosure of the matters discovered to opposing counsel.
- Formal discovery often involves disclosure of theories of the case.

It is unlikely that all these benefits or objectives of informal discovery will be achieved or preserved to the time of trial. Usually, opposing counsel will at some point discover what has already been found through informal investigation. However, the temporary advantage of knowing more about the case than the adversary, and the luxury of evaluating and refining the legal and factual theories before witnesses, documents, and contentions are disclosed, can be significant.

Informal investigation of the case should commence as early as possible, in some cases within days of the events that gave rise to the controversy. Plaintiff's counsel will often begin this investigation before filing a lawsuit. Defense counsel may get a similar chance at prefiling investigation if the client notifies the attorney that a lawsuit is threatened or expected.

21.05[3] Investigation in Personal Injury Actions. Informal investigation of the facts is particularly important in personal injury cases. The accident itself usually will have happened abruptly. The recollections of witnesses and participants will be fleeting and often colored by the trauma of the event. Even investigating officers experience better memory of a particular incident if they are asked about it shortly after their involvement. If they have investigated another 100 accidents since the accident in question, details that were not in the written report may have faded from their memories. Unlike a commercial case, which is typically based primarily on documents, the investigation of a personal injury case is more likely to require on-site inspection and more interviews with witnesses who are not connected to the parties.

Personal injury cases will often call for early investigation of one or more (and frequently all) of the following subjects:

- The accident scene.
- Other relevant physical objects, such as vehicles and equipment.
- Medical and hospital records.

The investigation should include:

- A prompt visit to the accident scene.
- A "walk-through" of the accident scene with the client.
- A critical examination at the scene of the client's and other witnesses' versions of the accident.
- Photographs of evidentiary quality, taken by a professional photographer.
- Measurements, diagrams, and surveys of the accident scene.
- Determination of the availability of witnesses who have not yet come forward at the accident scene and its vicinity.

Strategic Point:

It may help to bring the client to the scene of the accident to give a portrayal of the events that took place, and indeed discussing the case at the scene of the accident might aid in refreshing a faded recollection of accident details. In addition, depending on the issues in the case, adequate accident scene investigation may require the services of an expert, such as an accident reconstruction specialist.

21.05[4] Conducting Site Investigations. Investigating the site where the events underlying a lawsuit occurred is a critical part of early informal investigation. Faulty structures or equipment will normally be corrected or repaired within a short period after the accident. Evidence, including photographs, of the site's condition at the time of the accident should be obtained promptly. In addition, it may be necessary to conduct follow-up inspections after any subsequent repairs to learn the nature of the repair.

Consider:

Subsequent remedial measures are not admissible to prove negligence, culpable conduct, a defect in a product or its design, or a need for a warning or instruction [Fed R Evid 407]. But this does not detract from the fact that learning of these measures can provide valuable insight into what went wrong before and what could have been done differently. Moreover, subsequent remedial measures are not inadmissible for other purposes, such as to show ownership or control [Fed R Evid 407].

If cause and origin are in issue (e.g., an insurance claim for which arson or fraud is raised as a defense, or a negligence case for which the defendant's fault in causing the fire or explosion is in dispute), a determination of cause and origin must be made promptly, because physical evidence may disappear with the passage of time, and the condition of the premises may change. An inspection of this nature must be done by an expert; few lawyers are qualified to identify the cause of a fire or other physical event. Even if they were qualified, they would not be permitted to testify as an expert witness under the ethical rules forbidding an interested lawyer from being a witness.

Finding Experts Using Online Resources:

Many resources are available online for locating experts. For example, helpful resources at lexis.com include:

- Legal tab> Area of Law-By Topic> Federal Practice> Access Directories> Forensic Services Directory
  - Sample Search: To find a California forensic expert in a given speciality, e.g., accident reconstruction, try this SPECIALTY segment search: specialty (accident reconstruction) and ca.

Land does not disappear; therefore, at least in theory, land or other property involved in a case can be inspected and photographed at any time before trial. However, depending on the circumstances, buildings may be destroyed or the condition of the land altered mechanically, by the passage of time or by the effects of weather. If appropriate, promptly obtain photographs or other evidence that will show the property in its true, or original, condition.

21.05[5] Inspecting Medical and Hospital Records at the Treating Facility. Plaintiff's counsel should promptly investigate the original medical records when the plaintiff's medical treatment is in issue. Review of the original record, either before or during litigation, can be illuminating because writings that appear to be in the same ink on a copy may actually have been made in different colors on the original, thereby indicating that they were made at different times and perhaps by different people. Records often have marginal notes made after a copy has been sent to the patient or an attorney. Discharge summaries often contain damaging comments about the treatment.

A motion to preserve medical evidence may be necessary if the evidence is not routinely maintained for a long time. Some records and test results (e.g., videotapes of vascular or cardiac surgery) are kept only a short time. Also, use great specificity when requesting access to or copies of medical or hospital records. Many hospitals consider certain records as "outpatient records" (e.g., emergency room records) or not part of the hospital record at all (e.g., pathology slides, EKG monitor tapes, billing statements, the folders in which records are kept, etc.).

Another valuable record is a list of all hospital personnel, including nurses and volunteers, involved in the patient's care or assigned to the unit where the patient was treated. Even if their names do not appear on the chart, they may be familiar with the care received or may have witnessed treatment. In summary, request and review every conceivable document or thing that might shed light on the plaintiff's treatment or condition at the treating facility.

21.05[6] Reviewing Public or Other Accessible Records.

21.05[6][a] Ascertaining Records Obtainable Without Formal Discovery. In commercial cases, a variety of public records, such as SEC or similar filings, can be obtained directly from the public entity without resort to formal discovery procedures. This is also true of a wide variety of documents potentially relevant in other types of cases, for example:

- Agency filings. County, state, and federal agencies often have critical public information. For instance, the county recorder has records regarding property ownership; the Secretary of State has records regarding the structure and ownership of corporations; and the federal Patent and Trademark Office has patent and trademark filings available to the public. Agency websites and internet services specializing in public records may be used to expedite searches of public information.

- Court records. Court records will identify pending and past litigation involving the adverse party indicating similar lawsuits. These records can speed up investigation of the current case.

- Police reports. Police reports contain a near contemporaneous reconstruction of an accident or other events, the names and addresses of witnesses and, usually, a written account or accounts of the accident either as given by different witnesses or as interpreted by the police officer.

- Fire department reports. Fire department reports contain information similar to information found in police reports, but also usually contain a preliminary assessment of the cause and place of origin of the fire as well as the number of points of origin.

- Transportation authority reports. Accidents involving public carriers (buses, trains, and aircraft) will normally be investigated by a public transportation authority in addition to police departments, and the records of these investigations often are available without the use of a subpoena.

- Weather reports. Weather reports and records may provide significant information.

- Certain hospital reports. Hospital records normally are not released without the consent of the patient and thus will usually require formal discovery measures. However, some types of information available from hospitals are deemed "public" and can provide information concerning the fact, time, or duration of a patient's admission or treatment at the hospital or in its emergency ward.

- Newspaper and television news accounts. Newspaper accounts of pertinent events often include the names of potential witnesses, as well as firsthand or secondhand accounts of the event itself. Local television stations often possess, and allow access to, videotape of news coverage of local events.

- Consumer reports. Industry associations and consumer watchdog groups frequently collect reports that are not otherwise cataloged, and serve as a nationwide clipping service for companies or issues they follow.

- Trial attorney association reports. Local, state, and national trial attorney associations organize data about particular products or companies, in addition to specific doctors or expert witnesses.

This list is not exhaustive. The realm of publicly available information that may be helpful will depend on the nature and facts of the particular case. Freedom of Information Act requests and similar state laws (such as California's Public Records Act) may be used to obtain publicly available information.

Locating public records is valuable because the information in them is generally admissible as evidence-in-chief. Public records are admissible at trial, even if they contain opinions or conclusions, as long as the opinions or conclusions are based on a factual investigation [Beech Aircraft Corp. v. Rainey (1988) 488 US 153, 161, 109 S Ct 439, 102 L Ed2d 445].

21.05[6][b] Using Online Resources to Obtain Public Records. Many resources are available online for searching public records, including a wide array of resources at lexis.com.

Searching Court Filings:

Resources at lexis.com include:

- Public Records tab> Public Records> Find Filings> Civil & Criminal Court Filings and Regulatory Actions> Combined U.S. District Courts> U.S. District Courts, Civil Filings (Full Docket)
  - Search within this database for federal civil lawsuits in which a witness was named as a party.
- Legal tab> States Legal-U.S.> California> Public Records> Find Filings> Civil & Criminal Court Filings and Regulatory Actions> Combined State Civil Filings
  - Search within this database for state civil lawsuits in which a witness was named as a party.
- Public Records tab> Public Records> Find Filings> Civil & Criminal Court Filings and Regulatory Actions> Combined U.S. District Courts> U.S. District Courts, Criminal Filings (Full Docket)
  - Search within this database for federal criminal actions in which a witness was named as a party.
- Legal tab> States Legal-U.S.> California> Public Records> Find Filings> Civil & Criminal Court Filings and Regulatory Actions> Combined State Criminal Filings
  - Search within this database for state criminal actions in which a witness was named as a party.

Searching News:

Resources at lexis.com include:

- News & Business tab> Combined Sources> News, All (English, Full Text)
  - Sample Search: A search in the format First Name / 3 Last Name can find articles about a person, and using appropriate terms can find articles about events in a number of news publications.

Searching Stock Ownership Records:

Resources at lexis.com include:

- Legal tab> States Legal-U.S.> California> Public Records> Find Assets> Stock Information Stock Ownership

- For information on significant stock holdings, including changes of ownership of public company insiders and investors, search in this database.

21.05[7] Obtaining Information From Witnesses.

21.05[7][a] Conducting Early Witness Interviews. Consider direct interviews with anyone not represented by counsel possessing information about events in the case in advance of formal discovery. Conduct witness interviews as soon as possible. Few individuals have photographic memories or the capacity for total recall. Most people forget seemingly unimportant events, especially those that do not involve them directly, and also compress their recollection of important events. This is especially true of sudden or sensational physical events, which, after being reviewed in both recollection and conversation, are reduced to the point where the more traumatic elements of the incident are preserved and peripheral details are lost.

21.05[7][b] Determining Who to Interview. From the standpoint of case development, "witnesses" who can or should be interviewed are not limited to eyewitnesses, but include individuals or entities who have obtained secondhand or third-hand information concerning relevant events.

For instance, newspaper reporters are a good source of secondhand information. They will invariably have collected more names or facts than they included in their report of the event, and the articles submitted may have been substantially edited before publication. Newspaper reporters are usually cooperative. Reporters deal in factual information and appreciate its importance, and may even keep apprised of evolving facts in the hopes of writing a follow-up story.

Strategic Point:

It is not uncommon to request that a witness not talk to opposing counsel, or to request that if the witness decides to do so, to let you know. It is usually advisable to control access to your witness, and in normal circumstances will not be unethical to do so. Because your conversation is not privileged, it is always important to avoid the impression of coercion or unfairness, because improper tactics will invariably be revealed when the witness testifies.

21.05[7][c] Arranging Witness Interviews. The best way to conduct a witness interview will depend on a variety of considerations, including:

- The personality of the witness.
- The age of the witness.
- The physical or mental condition of the witness.
- Possible bias of the witness.
- The relationship of the witness to the parties and facts in the case.

Schedule the time and place of the interview to suit the convenience of the witness. Conduct the interview at a time, and in surroundings, where the witness can tell, and if necessary reflect on, the entire story. A neutral meeting place that is free of interruption allows for a productive interview.

21.05[7][d] Taping Witness Interviews. If the witness does not object, tape the interview. If the witness does object, offer a copy of the tape. If the witness still objects, forego the taping but try to get an immediate written statement. Witnesses are reluctant to have interviews taped for a variety of reasons, including legitimate ones such as not feeling prepared or not wanting to be involved on the record. Never tape an interview surreptitiously. Taping an interview can have a downside; if the witness makes statements harmful to your case, they may become discoverable for unanticipated reasons.

Strategic Point:

It can be helpful to explain to the witness that part of the reason for the formality of a tape recorded interview is that it serves as a better substitute for a deposition than a mere statement. As most witnesses would rather not be deposed, anything that lessens the chance of a deposition should go a long way in securing the witness's cooperation. Of course, the witness should be informed that a tape recorded interview is no guarantee that a deposition will not be necessary later, either by the interviewing party or the opposing party.

21.05[7][e] Interviewing Difficult Witnesses. Give special consideration to a reluctant or adverse witness. The reasons for reluctance or adversity can range from a feeling of not wanting to get involved to outright antagonism (or strong sympathy for the adverse party). In some situations, the witness may already have talked to the adversary's lawyer, who may have urged or instructed the witness not to talk to anyone else. Ask at the beginning of the interview whether anyone has told the witness not to cooperate. If the other side has interfered, contact them and suggest that it would be better for both sides to cooperate, otherwise both side will have to incur the additional expense of formal discovery when informal discovery will be all that is necessary.

There is a wide range of solutions to witness reluctance or antagonism. Consider the following strategies:

- If the witness has no particular view of the case but simply does not want to be inconvenienced, appeal to the witness's sense of civic duty to provide important information. Ask the witness, for example, to imagine how he or she would feel if involved in an accident and some third party was reluctant to provide helpful information.

- It is permissible, and usually effective, to tell the witness that, if he or she is not willing to discuss the case informally, a deposition may be necessary.

- Point out that you do not wish to change the witness's story, but simply to understand it and learn what the witness has to say.

- Suggest that knowing all the facts can more likely lead to a settlement.

- Alleviate a concern that one party will have to pay damages by telling the witness that the party has insurance and will not have to pay money out of pocket.

Consider the following techniques when interviewing antagonistic witnesses:

- Critically question the witness's story on the basis of known or likely facts.

- Suggest different interpretations of ambiguous events.

- Challenge the witness's ability to know or to have seen the facts or events in question.

- Attack the witness's bias if one exists.

- Urge the witness to view the events as an impartial observer.

21.05[7][f] Obtaining Witness Statements. Generally, in accidents or similar cases, if the witness is worth interviewing and has knowledge of significant facts, it is worth obtaining a witness statement, especially if there is any chance that the witness's story might change under the pressure of the adversarial process.

Obtaining a witness statement typically raises two questions. The first is whether the statement should be prepared during the interview, or submitted later to the witness for review. Factors to consider are:

- Whether the witness's story is simple or complex.

- Whether there is any material risk that the witness will change the story (or become reluctant to review or sign the statement) in the time required to prepare the statement.

The second issue is whether the witness should be asked to sign the statement. If the statement is worth getting, it is worth having it signed. When the statement is written on the spot, it should be read to, or by, the witness, who should be asked to sign or initial each page. Any corrections made should also be initialed by the witness. If the witness, after speaking with the other side, later changes his or her story, this will obviate a claim that the statement was not read or understood and is not true.

A third, relatively unimportant, question is whether the statement should be written in the first person or the third person. In general, a short statement prepared by counsel and signed by the witness "on the spot" is best written in the first person, while a longer, more complex statement prepared by counsel is best written in the third person. When jurors hear the statement read in court, they will think that a shorter statement in the first person is more credible. They will naturally assume that a longer statement was drafted by someone other than the witness and then signed.

21.05[7][g] Searching for Witnesses. Third-party witnesses sometimes cannot be located or are not forthcoming. In these circumstances, an active search for witnesses may be necessary and could entail methods such as door-to-door inquiries, newspaper advertisements, television appeals, or posting printed material in prominent locations near the scene of an accident.

Once the identities of witnesses are determined, it may be necessary to determine their whereabouts. Internet search sites or other publicly available computerized databases, as well as private investigators, may be used to locate hard-to-find witnesses.

21.05[8] Using Investigators and Other Technical Consultants.

21.05[8][a] When Investigators and Technical Consultants Can Be Useful. Private investigators and other technical consultants (e.g., fingerprint, handwriting, and questioned document experts) can be helpful in many situations, from witness searches to more complex cases involving, for example:

- Forgeries.

- Employee theft.

- Misuse of customer lists and trade secrets.

- Private, commercial, and public fraud.

- Kickbacks.
- Feigned injuries and disabilities.
- Missing persons.
- Commercial or industrial "espionage" (e.g., wiretapping and other bugging).
- Explosions.
- Fires, including arson.

When hiring these experts, engage competent professionals who can be effective witnesses.

Consider:

Take the time to thoroughly check the background of the investigative professional to ascertain if he or she has the right training and experience for the task at hand. Check for industry-relevant experience (e.g., in a securities fraud case, perhaps a former investigator with the SEC or NASDAQ) and/or strong investigative qualifications (e.g., former policeman or FBI agent). Investigative services sometimes oversell their capabilities, so a thorough check of references is advised.

21.05[8][b] Ensuring Ethical Behavior of Investigators. A paramount concern is the risk that a private investigator may use improper or illegal methods of investigation. These methods include, but are not limited to:

- Entrapment.
- Illegal wiretapping.
- The use of force or coercion to obtain statements or confessions.

An engagement letter to a private investigator should state flatly that the use of any illegal or unethical means of conducting the investigation is forbidden.

A party's use of an investigator might not be discovered by the adversary and might not be made known to the court or the jury. Among other possibilities, the investigator's work may be protected by the work product privilege. However, if the purpose of the investigator's work is to generate trial evidence and if that work is successful, the manner in which the evidence was obtained will almost certainly become known. No matter how small the chance that the adversary will learn of the investigator and his or her work, the consequences of that possibility should be carefully evaluated.

21.05[8][c] Using Investigators Effectively. Counsel should carefully consider the pros and cons of using investigators to develop a case. The use of a private investigator to follow, observe, and photograph lapses on the part of a plaintiff feigning a permanent disability is common and within ethical guidelines, although some jurors may regard this practice as unfair. However, when photographs or videotapes show an allegedly disabled plaintiff engaging in vigorous physical activity (e.g., playing baseball, changing a tire, or working on a ladder painting a house), the jury is more likely to be offended by the plaintiff's bogus contentions than by the intrusiveness of the investigator's surveillance.

In contrast, the use of a private detective to develop "background information" on the plaintiff in a libel case, particularly if the information sought is unrelated to the subject matter of the defamatory statement, is likely to be viewed by the jury as fundamentally unfair. Generally, most judges and jurors view "digging up dirt" about a party or witness on subjects unrelated to the merits of the case as improper.

In sum, the use of private investigations is likely to be viewed as improper when:

- The relevance of the work strays from the merits of the case.
- The investigator's activities encroach on traditional concepts of privacy.

21.05[9] Protecting Results of "Informal" Discovery Through Attorney-Client Privilege.

21.05[9][a] Protecting Communications Regarding Legal Advice. In the informal discovery process, and indeed at all times, strive to provide as much protection as possible for all attorney-client communications. For instance, label all communications between the lawyer and client, or their agents, as confidential and privileged. This way, inadvertent disclosure is less likely. An attorney-client communication should never be disclosed to third parties or the adversary unless both lawyer and client are comfortable with the discovery by the adversary of not only the disclosed communication but also other communications within the subject matter of the disclosed communication. Some attorney-client issues that commonly arise in the informal discovery process are discussed in this section, but for a more thorough exposition of the privilege, see Ch. 24, Restrictions on Scope and Extent of Discovery: Privileges and Work Product Protection.

Under federal common law, the attorney-client privilege protects from formal discovery communications from a client to an attorney for the purpose of obtaining legal advice, provided the communications were intended to be confidential [United States v. Zolin (1989) 491 US 554, 562, 109 S Ct 2619, 105 L Ed2d 469]. These communications include client interviews, including interviews conducted in preparation of formal discovery. The burden is on the party asserting the attorney-client privilege to demonstrate its applicability [In re Grand Jury Investigation (9th Cir 1992) 974 F2d 1068, 1070]. The attorney-client privilege extends to initial interviews and consultations between the attorney and a prospective client, even if the attorney decides not to take the case, or the client decides not to retain the attorney [see Handgards, Inc. v. Johnson & Johnson (ND Cal 1976) 413 F Supp 926, 929].

21.05[9][b] Evaluating Attorney-Client Privilege in Corporate Setting. Corporate in-house counsel are treated in the same manner as counsel retained from the outside [Upjohn Co. v. United States (1981) 449 US 383, 389, 101 S Ct 677, 66 L Ed2d 584]. However, a company may not shield itself from formal discovery simply by filtering business information through staff counsel. To be entitled to the protection of the attorney-client privilege, a corporate lawyer must not only be functioning as a lawyer, but the advice given must be predominantly legal, as opposed to business, in nature [United States v. Rowe (9th Cir 1996) 96 F3d 1294, 1297].

Five criteria are used to determine whether communications by corporate employees to the company's lawyer are protected [Sexton, A Post-Upjohn Consideration of the Corporate Attorney-Client Privilege, 57 NYU L Rev 443 (1982)]. These are:

- The communication would not have been made except for the rendering of legal services.
- The content of the communication relates to the subject matter of the legal services.
- The statement is made by an employee, agent, or independent contractor with a significant relationship to both the corporation and its involvement in the subject matter of the legal services.
- The statement is made in confidence.
- The privilege is asserted by either the corporation or the person who made the statement.

21.05[9][c] Understanding Limits of Attorney-Client Privilege. A client may not bring a document under the umbrella of privilege merely by turning it over to an attorney during the prediscovery phase of litigation [Guzzino v. Felterman (WD La 1997) 174 FRD 59, 61]. The underlying facts of an action are not protected by the attorney-client privilege [Upjohn Co. v. United States (1981) 449 US 383, 395, 101 S Ct 677, 66 L Ed2d 584]. The attorney-client privilege applies only to communications between the attorney and the client. It does not apply to correspondence from others that may be in the attorney's possession [Upjohn Co. v. United States (1981) 449 US 383, 389, 101 S Ct 677, 66 L Ed2d 584]. However, communications between a client and an agent of the attorney are privileged, provided they are intended to be confidential [United States v. Nobles (1975) 422 US 225, 238-239, 95 S Ct 2160, 45 L Ed2d 141].

21.05[9][d] Waiving Attorney-Client Privilege. The attorney-client privilege may be waived by the client expressly, as when a client voluntarily turns over privileged documents, or implicitly, as when the client places otherwise privileged matters in controversy [Gomez v. Vernon (9th Cir 2001) 255 F3d 1118, 1132] . Discussing the underlying facts of a privileged communication does not by itself waive the privilege [see Upjohn Co. v. United States (1981) 449 US 383, 395, 101 S Ct 677, 66 L Ed2d 584]. If it is clear that the attorney-client privilege will be waived at trial, the court should permit pretrial discovery of the privileged communication [Handgards, Inc. v. Johnson & Johnson (ND Cal 1976) 413 F Supp 926, 929] .

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the attorney-client privilege and other privileges, see Ch. 24, Restrictions on Scope and Extent of Discovery: Privileges and Work Product Protection.

21.05[10] Protecting Results of "Informal" Discovery Through Work Product Doctrine.

21.05[10][a] Protecting Documents and Things Prepared in Anticipation of Litigation or Trial. The work product doctrine provides that a party may not obtain discovery of documents or other tangible things prepared in anticipation of litigation or trial by or for another party or that other party's representative, unless the following conditions are met [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(3)(A)(ii)]:

- The party seeking discovery has substantial need of the materials in the preparation of his or her case; and

- The party is unable without undue hardship to obtain the substantial equivalent of the materials by other means.

Moreover, in ordering discovery of these materials when the required showing has been made, the court must protect against disclosure of the mental impressions, conclusions, opinions, or legal theories of an attorney or other representative of a party concerning the litigation [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(3)(B)]. The purpose of the work product doctrine is to protect an attorney's mental processes so that the attorney can analyze and prepare for the client's case without interference from an opponent [United States v. Chevron Texaco Corp. (ND Cal 2002) 241 F Supp2d 1065, 1080-1081]. The language of Rule 26(b)(3) attempts to strike a balance between the necessity of protecting an attorney's preparation under the adversary system and the policy of full and open discovery underlying the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure [Loustalet v. Refco, Inc. (CD Cal 1993) 154 FRD 243, 246].

The party asserting work product protection has the burden of establishing that the doctrine applies [Garcia v. City of El Centro (SD Cal 2003) 214 FRD 587, 591].

Strategic Point:

It is helpful to the protection of informal discovery to contemporaneously state on each document that it is "attorney work product" and/or "prepared in anticipation of litigation."

21.05[10][b] Scope of Work Product Doctrine. The work product doctrine applies only to requests for production of documents and tangible things [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(3)(A)]. Because the doctrine is intended to guard against divulging an attorney's strategies and legal impressions, it does not protect facts concerning the creation of work product, or facts contained within work product [Garcia v. City of El Centro (SD Cal 2003) 214 FRD 587, 591]. Likewise, facts are not protected from disclosure just because they were gathered by an attorney [Audiotext Communications Network v. U.S. Telecom, Inc. (D Kan 1996) 164 FRD 250, 254]. Nevertheless, courts do afford work product protection to documents in which an attorney collates or categorizes the facts. Thus, while the facts themselves are not privileged, a chart or other compi-lation of facts may be protected as work product [In re Grand Casinos, Secs. Litig., (D Minn 1998) 181 FRD 615, 622].

There is no preset limitation on what constitutes a "document or tangible thing" within the meaning of the work product doctrine, provided the item was prepared in anticipation of litigation. Items that have been held within the protection include:

- Letters [Durkin v. Shields (SD Cal 1995) 167 FRD 447, 454].
- Interview notes [United States v. Henke (9th Cir 2000) 222 F3d 633, 642-643].
- Interview transcripts [American Standard Inc. v. Bendix Corp. (WD Mo 1976) 71 FRD 443, 446].
- Surveillance tapes [Fletcher v. Union Pac. R.R. (SD Cal 2000) 194 FRD 666, 668].
- Studies [Interstate Prod. Credit Ass'n v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (D Or 1989) 128 FRD 273, 281].

21.05[10][c] Protecting Attorney's Thoughts, Mental Processes, Strategy, and Opinions. Most courts protect an attorney's thoughts, mental processes, strategy, and opinions from disclosure, regardless of the discovery method employed. In Hickman v. Taylor [Hickman v. Taylor (1947) 329 US 495, 505, 67 S Ct 385, 91 L Ed 451], the case from which Fed R Civ P 26(b)(3) is derived, the Supreme Court articulated the work product doctrine in terms that spanned the entire scope of discovery. Courts have continued to prevent parties from circumventing the work product doctrine by attempting to elicit an attorney's thought processes through depositions or interrogatories [see, e.g., Bio-Rad Lab. v. Pharmacia, Inc. (ND Cal 1990) 130 FRD 116, 120-121].

Strategic Point:

One step that can be taken to protect the attorney's mental processes and impressions from disclosure is to reflect their prevalence in prepared documents. For instance, if notes are taken from a witness interview, or a memorandum of the interview is drafted, it should be emphasized in the notes or memorandum that the document is not a verbatim recitation of the witness's statements but instead reflects the attorney's thoughts and impressions. The following disclaimer is an example: "This memorandum is not an attempt to make a verbatim recitation of what was said by the witness during the interview. This memorandum reflects impressions, recollections, and work product."

21.05[10][d] Protecting Tape-Recorded Conversations and Videotaped Surveillance. Tape recorded conversations and videotaped surveillance may constitute work product material in the Ninth Circuit [Roberts v. Americable Int'l (ED Cal 1995) 883 F Supp 499, 503-504 ; Fletcher v. Union Pac. R.R. (SD Cal 2000) 194 FRD 666, 672]. The Ninth Circuit has consistently held that this kind of evidence is admissible in federal court proceedings if obtained in conformance with federal law, without regard to state law [United States v. Adams (9th Cir 1982) 694 F2d 200, 201-202] .

21.05[10][e] Preparing Material for Litigation or Trial. The work product doctrine applies to documents or things prepared in anticipation of litigation or for trial [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(3); Hickman v. Taylor (1947) 329 US 495, 509-512, 67 S Ct 385, 91 L Ed 451]. The determination of whether documents are prepared in anticipation of litigation is a factual determination [Garcia v. City of El Centro (SD Cal 2003) 214 FRD 587, 592]. District courts have devised various formulations to determine how concrete the prospect of litigation must be before protection will attach to a given document. In the Ninth Circuit, as in other circuits, the terms to refer to these formulations are used somewhat interchangeably. For example, some opinions speak in terms of requiring "more than a remote possibility of litigation" when the document is prepared [e.g., Fox v. California Sierra Fin. Servs. (ND Cal 1988) 120 FRD 520, 524]. In the Fox case, the court found that litigation could not have been anticipated when defendant's counsel stated in a hearing with the Department of Corporations that correspondence with state commissions "would certainly not be ... work-product and would be public documents" [Fox v. California Sierra Fin. Servs. (ND Cal 1988) 120 FRD 520, 525]. In the insurance litigation context, the Southern District has held that insurance claim investigations conducted in the ordinary course of business are not in anticipation of litigation. However, investigations conducted once a claim has been rejected and the parties have little hope of resolving the issues other than through litigation are in anticipation of litigation [Garcia v. City of El Centro (SD Cal 2003) 214 FRD 587, 593-595].

Other opinions state that there must be "an identifiable prospect of litigation" and require that specific claims must have already arisen when the document is prepared [e.g., Bud Antle, Inc. v. Grow-Tech, Inc. (ND Cal 1990) 131 FRD 179, 182 ; Fox v. California Sierra Fin. Servs. (ND Cal 1988) 120 FRD 520, 524]. In the Bud Antle case, the court found that documents claimed to relate to anticipated patent litigation were drafted before the patent was issued, and in fact even before the defendants had even started their business [Bud Antle, Inc. v. Grow-Tech, Inc. (ND Cal 1990) 131 FRD 179, 182]. This is reinforced by Supreme Court precedent stating that the work product doctrine cannot be used to protect documents relating to research, tests, and experiments that are to be disclosed at the time of an application for a patent, because the documents do not constitute the results of an attorney's efforts to represent the client in a potentially adversary legal proceeding, but, instead, result from a legal duty to produce complete information as part of the application [Precision Instrument Manufacturing Co. v. Automotive Maintenance Machinery Co. (1945) 324 US 806, 65 S Ct 993, 89 L Ed 1381].

Accordingly, in the Ninth Circuit, terms referring to the standard appear to be somewhat flexible, although the facts of each case should be analyzed for the formulation sufficient to warrant protection. What is determining is whether litigation is likely or imminent [Fox v. California Sierra Fin. Servs. (ND Cal 1988) 120 FRD 520, 524-525 , citing Burlington Industries v. Exxon Corp. (D Md 1974) 65 FRD 26, 35].

Because work product protection extends only to documents prepared in anticipation of litigation or trial [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(3)], it follows that documents prepared in the regular course of a party's business are not protected by the doctrine [Miller v. Pancucci (CD Cal 1992) 141 FRD 292, 303]. The crucial factor in determining whether a document was prepared in the regular course of business or in anticipation of litigation is the party's purpose in preparing the document, or causing its preparation. A document prepared for an ordinary business purpose is unprotected, even if litigation was imminent [Admiral Ins. Co. v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 1989) 881 F2d 1486, 1494]. Merely placing a stamp that reads "attorney work product" on a document prepared in the ordinary course of business is not sufficient to convert it into work product [Ledgin v. Blue Cross & Blue Shield of Kansas City (D Kan 1996) 166 FRD 496, 498-499].

21.05[10][f] Waiving Work Product Protection. Unlike the attorney-client privilege, which is absolute and designed to protect the client's confidences, the work product doctrine is a qualified privilege designed to protect the adversary process. Therefore, not every disclosure of work product waives the doctrine [Meoli v. American Med. Serv. of San Diego (SD Cal 2003) 287 BR 808, 815].

Failure to assert the work product rule waives any work product immunity for the documents produced [United States v. Nobles (1975) 422 US 225, 240, 95 S Ct 2160, 45 L Ed2d 141]. A common issue is whether work product protection is waived by disclosing the document to a third party. If the disclosure to the third party is deliberate, the test for determining whether the work product rule has been waived is whether, at the time of disclosure, there was a substantial danger that the documents would be disclosed to an adversary [Samuels v. Mitchell (ND Cal 1994) 155 FRD 195, 200-201]. However, if the disclosure to the third party is inadvertent, the court will consider the following in determining whether waiver has occurred [FDIC v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (SD Cal 2000) 196 FRD 375, 381 , citing Milford Power Ltd. P'ship v. New England Power Co. (D Mass 1995) 896 F Supp 53, 58]:

- Whether the party seeking discovery of the documents was misled by the disclosure or relied on the disclosure to its detriment.
- The reasonableness of the precautions the party claiming the privilege took to prevent accidental disclosure.
- The amount of time it took the disclosing party to notice its error.
- The scope of discovery.
- The extent of the disclosure.
- The overriding interest of fairness and justice.

A party also impliedly waives work product protection if it places the substance of the documents for which the protection is claimed at issue. Similarly, if a party uses the substance of the documents in testimony, any work product protection is waived [United States ex rel. Bagley v. TRW, Inc. (CD Cal 2003) 212 FRD 554, 556].

Cross References:

Discussion of work product protection, see Ch. 24, Restrictions on Scope and Extent of Discovery: Privileges and Work Product Protection, §§ 24.94 -24.102. Discussion of disclosure of expert testimony, see § 21.06[1][b].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewTortsProcedureDiscovery

7 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 21 Discovery Strategy and Planning
II. DEVELOPING A DISCOVERY PLAN

3-21 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 21.06

21.06 Preparation for Formal Discovery.

21.06[1] Making Initial Disclosures Before Participating in Formal Discovery.

21.06[1][a] Initial Disclosures. Generally, a party must make initial disclosures at or within 14 days of the discovery conference held under Fed R Civ P 26(f). This general rule applies unless a different time is set by stipulation or court order, or unless a party objects during the conference that initial disclosures are not appropriate in the circumstances of the action and states the objection in the Rule 26(f) discovery plan [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(C)].

Initial mandatory disclosure requires parties to exchange information regarding the following [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)]:

- Individuals likely to have discoverable information that the disclosing party may use to support its claims or defenses, unless solely for impeachment.

- Documents, electronically stored information, and tangible things that are in the possession, custody, or control of the party and that the disclosing party may use to support its claims or defenses, unless solely for impeachment.

- Claims and calculations of damages.

- Insurance coverage.

Consider:
In cases involving more than just a few documents, the disclosing party will typically provide a description of the docu-ments, not copies of the documents themselves. Based on the description, the other party will then seek access to desired documents through discovery [see Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1), Committee Note of 1993].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of initial disclosure requirements under Rule 26(a)(1), see Ch. 15, Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures, see §§ 15.15 -15.26.

21.06[1][b] Mandatory Disclosure of Expert Testimony. A party must disclose the identity of any proposed expert witness, accompanied by a written report prepared by the witness containing:

- All opinions to be expressed, and the basis for them.
- Information considered by the witness in forming the opinions.
- Exhibits to be used to summarize or support the opinions.
- The witness's qualifications, including a list of publications authored by the witness within the preceding 10 years.
- The witness's compensation.
- A listing of cases in which the witness testified as an expert at trial or deposition within the preceding four years.

These disclosures must be made at least 90 days before trial. The mandatory disclosure of expert testimony may be altered by court order or by stipulation of the parties [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2)(C)].

Strategic Point:

Any opinion testimony based on "scientific, technical, or other specialized knowledge" is considered expert testimony subject to mandatory disclosure [see Fed R Evid 701]. Nevertheless, it can be difficult to determine whether a potential witness will be an expert witness, or a lay witness not subject to automatic disclosure. When in doubt, counsel should make the initial disclosure, or risk exclusion of the witness by the court.

Warning:

Counsel should be aware of potential work product issues when furnishing materials to an expert witness. In the Ninth Circuit, documents (and communications) provided by counsel to a testifying expert that relate to the subjects about which the expert will testify are discoverable, even when they might otherwise be considered opinion work product [see Intermedics, Inc. v. Ventritex, Inc. (ND Cal 1991) 139 FRD 384, 391-397].

Cross References:

Discussion of initial disclosure requirements under Rule 26(a)(2), see Ch. 15, Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures, §§ 15.15 -15.26.

Discussion of the circuit split regarding the interplay of disclosure of expert testimony materials and the work product doctrine, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 26.80[1][a] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

21.06[1][c] Pretrial Disclosures of Trial Evidence. A party must disclose, and file with the court, the following trial evidence, unless intended solely for impeachment:

- The name, address, and phone number of each witness.

- The designation of witnesses whose testimony is expected to be presented by way of deposition.

- An identification of each document or exhibit.

These disclosures must be made at least 30 days before trial [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3)(B)].

Warning:

Evidence intended solely for impeachment is not subject to pretrial disclosure, but parties must disclose evidence that serves both impeachment and substantive purposes [see, e.g., Klonoski v. Mahlab (1st Cir 1998) 156 F3d 255, 270]. It can prove challenging to determine in advance of trial whether the court will consider specific evidence to be solely for impeachment. If there is any doubt, therefore, counsel should disclose the evidence, or risk that the court will not admit the undisclosed evidence at trial.

21.06[2] Holding Conference to Discuss Case and Possible Settlement Before Beginning Formal Discovery.
Except in categories of proceedings exempted from disclosure under Fed R Civ P 26(a), or when authorized under the Federal Rules or by order or agreement of the parties, a party may not seek discovery from any source before the parties have conferred as required by Rule 26(f) [Fed R Civ P 26(d)(1)].

Under Rule 26(f), the parties must confer, at least 21 days before a scheduling conference is held or a scheduling order is due under Fed R Civ P 16(b), for the purpose of:

- Discussing the nature and basis of the claims and defenses.

- Discussing the possibility for a prompt settlement or resolution of the case.

- Making or arranging for the initial mandatory disclosures required by Rule 26(a).

- Discussing any issues relating to preserving discoverable information, particularly electronically stored information.

- Developing a proposed discovery plan.

The proposed discovery plan must indicate the parties' views and proposals concerning the following [Fed R Civ P 26(f)]:

- What changes should be made in the timing, form, or requirement for disclosures under Rule 26(a), including a statement as to when initial disclosures were made or will be made.

- The subjects on which discovery may be needed, when discovery should be completed, and whether discovery should be conducted in phases or be limited to or focused on particular issues.

- Any issues relating to disclosure or discovery of electronically stored information, including the form or forms in which it should be produced.

- Any issues relating to claims of privilege or work product protection including, if the parties agree on a procedure to assert such claims after production, whether to ask the court to include the agreement in an order.

- What changes should be made in the limitations on discovery imposed under these rules or by local rule, and what other limitations should be imposed.

- Any other discovery orders that should be entered by the court.

The attorneys of record and all unrepresented parties that have appeared in the case are jointly responsible for arranging the conference, for attempting in good faith to agree on the proposed discovery plan, and for submitting to the court within 14 days after the conference a written report outlining the plan. A court may by order require that the parties or attorneys attend the conference in person. If necessary to comply with its expedited schedule for Rule 16(b) conferences, a court may by local rule require that the conference between the parties under this subdivision occur fewer than 21 days before the scheduling conference is held or a scheduling order is due under Rule 16(b), and require that the written report outlining the discovery plan be filed fewer than 14 days after the conference between the parties, or excuse the parties from submitting a written report and permit them to report orally on their discovery plan at the Rule 16(b) conference [Fed R Civ P 26(f)].

21.06[3] Scope and Limits of Discovery.

21.06[3][a] Obtaining Discoverable Information. Parties may obtain discovery regarding any matter, not privileged, that is relevant to the claim or defense of any party [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(1)]. The scope of discovery is broader than what is admissible at trial. Parties may discover information that appears reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence [Oppenheimer Fund, Inc. v. Sanders (1978) 437 US 340, 351-352, 98 S Ct 2380, 57 L Ed2d 253 ; see Lewis v. ACB Bus. Servs., Inc. (6th Cir 1998) 135 F3d 389, 402-403].

For good cause, the court may order discovery of any matter relevant to the subject matter involved in the action [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(1)].

Consider:

A statute may expressly prohibit discovery of otherwise discoverable information. For example, 23 USC § 409 prohibits discovery of certain traffic safety reports compiled or collected for the purpose of identifying, evaluating or planning the safety enhancement of potential accident sites, hazardous roadway conditions, or railway-highway crossings, and 10 USC § 1102(b) prohibits discovery of medical quality assurance records created by or for the Department of Defense. However, absent an express prohibition against disclosure, a statute barring disclosure of information will be narrowly construed [St. Regis Paper Co. v. United States (1961) 368 US 208, 218, 82 S Ct 289, 7 L Ed2d 240 ; see, e.g., Contratto v. Ethicon, Inc. (ND Cal 2004) 225 FRD 593, 596]. This is in accord with recent statutory narrowing of discovery limits.

21.06[3][b] Limiting the Scope of Discovery. By order, the court may alter the limits on the number of depositions and interrogatories, or the length of depositions under Fed R Civ P 30. By order or local rule, the court may also limit the number of requests for admissions under Fed R Civ P 36 [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)(A)].

With respect to electronically stored information, a party does not have to provide discovery from sources that the party identifies as not reasonably accessible because of undue burden or cost. On motion to compel discovery or for a protective order, the party from whom discovery is sought bears the burden of making that showing. If that showing is made, the court may still order discovery from those sources if the requesting party shows good cause, and may specify conditions for the discovery [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)(B)].

The frequency and extent of use of any discovery method may be limited by the court if it determines that [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)(C)]:

- The discovery sought is unreasonably cumulative or duplicative, or is obtainable from some other source that is more convenient, less burdensome, or less expensive.

- The party seeking discovery has had ample opportunity by discovery in the action to obtain the information sought.

- The burden or expense of the proposed discovery outweighs its likely benefit under the circumstances.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of scope of discovery, see Ch. 24, Restrictions on Scope and Extent of Discovery: Privileges and Work Product Protection.

21.06[4] Stipulating Around Limitations of Discovery. Unless otherwise directed by the court, the parties may stipulate around the limitations of the various discovery rules [Fed R Civ P 29; see Bobrosky v. Vickers (WD Va 1997) 170 FRD 411, 416]. In most cases, these stipulations do not require court approval. However, if the stipulations could interfere with scheduling orders entered by the court, leave of court is required.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of stipulations regarding discovery, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, §§ 22.03 -22.13.

21.06[5] Certifying Discovery Requests and Responses. Every discovery request or response must be signed by counsel, whose signature constitutes a certification of the merits of the signed document [Fed R Civ P 26(g)(1)]. If a certification is made in violation of Fed R Civ P 26 without substantial justification, the court must impose an appropriate sanction on the person who made the certification, the party represented by the person who made the certification, or both [Fed R Civ P 26(g)(3)].

21.06[6] Discovery Responses Filed When Used in Proceeding. The following discovery requests and responses must not be filed until they are used in the proceeding or the court orders filing [Fed R Civ P 5(d)]:

- Depositions.

- Interrogatories.

- Requests for documents or to permit entry on land.

- Requests for admissions.

21.06[7] Supplementing Discovery Responses. Every discovery response must be supplemented or corrected whenever the party learns that the prior response was in some sense incomplete or incorrect, and that new information is not otherwise already made known to the other parties in the action [Fed R Civ P 26(e)(1)].

A party that without substantial justification fails to supplement discovery is not, unless the failure is harmless, permitted to use as evidence at a trial, at a hearing, or on a motion any witness or information not so disclosed. In addition to or in lieu of this sanction, the court, on motion and after affording an opportunity to be heard, may impose other appropriate sanctions. In addition to requiring payment of reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, caused by the failure, these sanctions may include informing the jury of the failure to make the disclosure [Fed R Civ P 37(c)].

21.06[8] Seeking Protective Orders to Prevent Abusive Discovery. The discovery rules are designed to operate with a minimum of court supervision. However, if a party's pursuit of discovery becomes overzealous, the court may issue a protective order precluding or limiting discovery to protect any person subject to abusive discovery practices [

Fed R Civ P 26(c)].

There must be a showing of good cause to justify the issuance of a protective order [Fed R Civ P 26(c)]. A common ground for a protective order is that the sought discovery involves privileged materials or information. The moving party has the burden of establishing good cause [see In re Terra Int'l, Inc. (5th Cir 1998) 134 F3d 302, 306-307]. Good cause is established on a showing that disclosure will work a clearly defined and serious injury to the party opposing disclosure. The injury must be shown with specificity. Conclusory or stereotypical assertions are insufficient to show good cause [Gulf Oil Co. v. Bernard (1981) 452 US 89, 102 n16, 101 S Ct 2193, 68 L Ed2d 693].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of seeking protective orders, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, §§ 22.35 -22.66.

21.06[9] Determining Sequence of Discovery Procedures. Parties may conduct discovery in any sequence unless the court orders otherwise. On motion and for a party's or a witness's convenience, the court may issue an order prescribing the sequence of discovery [Fed R Civ P 26(d)(2)]. Typically, a party wishing to establish a particular sequence of discovery will proceed by motion for a protective order [Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)]. Both parties may conduct discovery at the same time. The fact that one party is conducting discovery does not operate to delay any other party's discovery [Fed R Civ P 26(d)].

Each of the methods of discovery provide different strategic advantages, and selection of the proper method or combination of methods is critical to efficient litigation. For example, if the availability of a key witness is limited, depose the witness early in litigation to preserve critical testimony. Likewise, if the opposing party is known to be careless in thought or rash in expression, depose that party first, rather than after counsel has had the opportunity to craft interrogatory responses that will have the effect of diminishing the spontaneity of deposition testimony.

Interrogatories demanding precise information regarding damages may provide a fertile ground for deposition questioning. Similarly, document demands may serve as the basis for strategic interrogation during deposition.

Cross References:

Discussion of the various discovery procedures, see § 21.07 and Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery.
Discussion of strategy related to the sequencing of discovery, see § 21.08.

21.06[10] Evaluating Potential Cost of Discovery. Consider carefully the likely cost to the client when drafting a discovery plan, including:

- Attorney's fees associated with drafting the particular discovery device, or preparing for and attending a deposition.
- Attorney's fees associated with opposing objections to the discovery, including potential motion practice.
- Stenographic fees associated with a deposition.

Although document discovery in document-intensive suits can involve enormous expenses in both fees and costs, most often the largest expense associated with discovery is preparing for and taking depositions. This is so even when the deponents are local and travel is unnecessary, because attorney time and court reporter costs are the major expenses. Accordingly, determining who to depose and planning for efficient depositions is critical to making the most of the lawyer's time and the client's money.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryDisclosuresGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryDisclosuresMandatory DisclosuresCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsExpert Witness DiscoveryCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesGeneral Overview

8 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 21 Discovery Strategy and Planning
II. DEVELOPING A DISCOVERY PLAN

3-21 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 21.07

21.07 Consideration of Available Discovery Methods.

21.07[1] Depositions.

21.07[1][a] Depositions Help to Evaluate Witnesses and Preserve Testimony. The deposition is the most important and effective discovery tool. In addition to providing a procedure for in-depth examination of the factual underpinning of the claims and defenses, the deposition can be used to evaluate the credibility, presence, and demeanor of the witness. A witness's voice characteristics, predominant body language traits, and idiosyncratic tendencies all factor into an analysis of the likely credibility of the witness. The deposition also allows for more spontaneous responses than at trial.

Depositions are also critical to preserve necessary testimony of witnesses who may not be available for trial due to death, illness, or other causes.

21.07[1][b] Depositions Are Subject to Numeric and Timing Restrictions. A party may take the oral deposition of any party or nonparty, without leave of court, unless the person to be examined is confined in prison, or if, without the written stipulation of the parties [see Fed R Civ P 30(a)(2)]:

- The proposed deposition would result in more than 10 depositions being taken.
- The person to be deposed has already been deposed in the case.
- The deposition is scheduled before the time specified in Fed R Civ P 26(d), unless the deposition notice properly states that the person to be examined is expected to leave the United States and will be unavailable for examination.

A deposition is limited to one day of seven hours, unless the time is extended by the court or by stipulation of the parties [Fed R Civ P 30(d)].

21.07[1][c] Depositions May Be Videotaped. Consider videotaping the deposition. There may be great advantage to videotaping if there is concern that the witness may not be available at trial, because videotaped testimony is much more effective than a reading of the transcript. Any party may, by providing prior written notice to the deponent and other parties, designate that the deposition will be taken by videotape as well as stenographically [see Fed R Civ P 30(b)(3)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of depositions, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, §§ 23.19 -23.75.

21.07[2] Interrogatories.

21.07[2][a] Interrogatories May Be Propounded to Other Parties Only. Interrogatories may be used only to seek information from another party, not from nonparty witnesses [Fed R Civ P 33; see United States v. Lot 41, Berryhill Farm Estates (10th Cir 1997) 128 F3d 1386, 1397]. No more than 25 interrogatories may be served, including all discrete subparts, without leave of court or written stipulation [Fed R Civ P 33(a)].

21.07[2][b] Purposes of Interrogatories. Much of the information generally sought through interrogatories must be made in the mandatory initial disclosure without a discovery request under Fed R Civ P 26(a). However, when a court order or stipulation has varied the disclosures required, interrogatories may be used for the following purposes:

- To identify persons with knowledge of relevant information.
- To discover relevant documents.
- To discover the factual basis for positions taken in the pleadings.
- To discover the basis and method of computation of claimed damages.
- To identify insurance information.

Interrogatories are relatively inexpensive, and are particularly well suited for technical and uncontroverted information. If properly prepared, written interrogatories can also be useful in holding the opposing party to particular factual claims and legal contentions at an early stage of the case and in serving as the basis for subsequent document demands, admission requests, and depositions.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of interrogatories, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, §§ 23.111 -23.133.

21.07[3] Inspection of Documents, Electronically Stored Information, and Property.

21.07[3][a] Obtaining Disclosure and Demanding Inspection of Documents, Electronically Stored Information, and Property. A party has the right to obtain disclosure of documents, electronically stored information, and things, and to inspect premises or personal property. There are no specified limitations on the number of demands for production that can be made [see Fed R Civ P 34]. Consequently, the procedure provides a fruitful means of obtaining documentary insight into the issues and available proof, and a basis for deposing both parties and nonparty witnesses.

The demanding party is entitled to have disclosure and discovery of all items that are in the possession, custody, or control of the respondent and that are relevant to the issues or that may lead to the ascertainment or disclosure of relevant evidence. "Control" is defined to include items to which the respondent has a legal right of access, or a practical ability to obtain possession [Fed R Civ P 34; see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(1)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of production of documents, electronically stored information, and things and entry on land for inspection and other purposes, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, §§ 23.135 -23.156.

A demand for production of electronically stored information may succeed in providing access to computer-derived compilations and, if circumstances warrant, computer software and hardware, including direct access to a computer system.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of discovery of electronically stored information, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, 23.157 -23.188.

21.07[3][b] Responding to Inspection Demands. From the respondent's standpoint, care should be taken in preparing the written response to each production demand to ensure that the response is complete, accurate, and specific. Any objection to a demand must be explicitly stated. When a privilege is claimed, there must be a specific and adequate description of the withheld item, without intruding on the privileged content of the item [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(5)(A)].

A party objecting to only part of the request must permit inspection of the remaining parts [Fed R Civ P 34(b)].

Decision Point--Responding Party:

Although the responding party may bring a motion for a protective order against a demand for production [Fed R Civ P 26(c)], it is generally better practice to respond to the demand, stating specific reasons for the inability or refusal to produce. This places the burden on the demanding party to move to compel responses, and may often lead to an accommodation between the parties as to production without court intervention.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of production of documents, electronically stored information, and things and entry on land for inspection and other purposes, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, §§ 23.135 -23.156.

21.07[4] Physical and Mental Examinations.

21.07[4][a] Seeking Physical and Mental Examinations. Physical or mental examinations are available only if both of the following conditions are met [Fed R Civ P 35; see Schlagenhauf v. Holder (1964) 379 US 104, 118-119, 85 S Ct 234, 13 L Ed2d 152]:

- The mental or physical condition of a party or a person in a party's custody is "in controversy"; and
- There is "good cause" for the examination.

A request for a physical or mental examination is the only discovery tool that requires a court order. The decision to grant or deny the request is within the court's discretion [Schlagenhauf v. Holder (1964) 379 US 104, 118-119, 85 S Ct 234, 13 L Ed2d 152].

The order may be made on notice to the person to be examined and to all parties and must specify the following [Fed R Civ P 35(a)]:

- The time of the examination.

- The place of the examination.
- The manner of the examination.
- The conditions of the examination.
- The scope of the examination.
- The person who will conduct the examination.

21.07[4][b] Providing the Examiner's Report to the Examined Party. If the examined party requests a copy of the examiner's report, the party requesting the examination must deliver to the examined party a copy of the detailed written report of the examiner setting out the following [Fed R Civ P 35(b)(1), (2)]:

- The examiner's findings, including the results of all tests.
- The examiner's diagnoses and conclusions.
- Reports of all earlier examinations of the same condition.

By requesting and obtaining a report of the examination or by taking the deposition of the examiner, the examined party waives any privilege that party may have regarding the testimony of every other person who has examined or who may thereafter examine the party regarding the same mental or physical condition [Fed R Civ P 35(b)(4)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of physical and mental examinations, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, §§ 23.189 -23.216.

21.07[5] Requests for Admission. A party may serve a written request on any other party for the admission of any matter relevant to the litigation. The recipient must respond by admitting, denying, or setting forth reasons why the request cannot be either admitted or denied [Fed R Civ P 36(a)(4)]. For example, a request may be submitted for an admission that:

- A particular person signed a contract with authority.
- The amount of actual damages is a certain figure.
- Attached documents are genuine.

Requests for admission are valuable early in the discovery process to limit the amount of necessary discovery. Late in the discovery process, they may sharply limit the need for trial witnesses.

At the onset of discovery, every important document for which authen-tication will be necessary should be identified, as should every important fact that is apparently not in dispute. To the extent that admissions of authenticity and facts are obtained, no further discovery on those items will be needed. Because admitted matters are conclusively established, requests for admissions can also facilitate summary judgment.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of requests for admission, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, §§ 23.217 -23.258.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical ExaminationsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 21 Discovery Strategy and Planning
II. DEVELOPING A DISCOVERY PLAN

3-21 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 21.08

21.08 Strategies for Sequence of Discovery Methods.

21.08[1] Conventional Approach Is to Serve Interrogatories and Request Production Before Conducting Depositions. The three most commonly used methods of discovery provided for in the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure are often employed in the following sequence:

- Written interrogatories under Fed R Civ P 33;
- Requests for production under Fed R Civ P 34; and
- Depositions on oral examination under Fed R Civ P 30.

In this approach, the lawyer, whether representing the plaintiff or defendant, first uses interrogatories to identify individuals with knowledge and the location and description of potentially relevant material. Although the importance of interrogatories has arguably diminished in light of the initial mandatory disclosure requirements under Fed R Civ P 26(a), interrogatories may also be used to begin exploring the contentions of the opposing party. Having used Rule 33 interrogatories to supplement the allegations of the pleadings and to lay the groundwork for further discovery, production of electronically stored information and documents can then be requested from the opposing party under Rule 34.

Decision Point--Propounding Party:

Although interrogatories may precede requests for production, the better practice is to initiate both these methods of discovery at the same time. The strongest reason for doing so is to compress the "pre-deposition phase" of the action. Although interrogatory answers may prompt the filing of a second set of requests for production, at least in the meantime the process of production and review has been set in motion.

In addition, counsel should consider requesting admissions under Fed R Civ P 36. The sometimes-ignored use of requests for admission of facts and genuineness of documents can reduce discovery costs by eliminating issues from dispute, thereby eliminating the need to conduct discovery on those admitted facts [see 21.07[5]].

Once the basic facts in the case are established through these initial forms of discovery, depositions may be planned accordingly.

21.08[2] Advantages of Taking Depositions After Reviewing Documents. There are advantages to taking depositions only after having had access to the pertinent files of the adverse party and of the deponent in particular. These advantages are:

- Documents prepared by the opposing party and its agents and employees serve as an invaluable check on the deposition testimony of those individuals.

- The files provide a framework for understanding the involvement of a particular individual, and for outlining questioning of that person.

- To the extent that documents are of independent evidentiary importance, you may need to use the deposition to authenticate them, and to learn whether the author can explain away the apparent effect of what was written.

In determining the sequence in which to conduct discovery, counsel should review all available documents before taking depositions. It is worth pursuing even if review of documents will precede depositions by a matter of hours, as when a distant business has been sued in its local court for a limited sum, and counsel must make a single trip to the defendant's offices, reviewing and selecting documents one day, preparing questioning overnight, and beginning depositions the following day.

21.08[3] When to Alter Conventional Sequence of Discovery. The sequencing of discovery is a strategic decision. If it appears that an early settlement of the litigation may hinge on making the weaknesses in the opposing side's case clear to them, the use of the "conventional" approach may be less suitable. Early settlement can also can hinge on the opposing side's understanding the expense and often unpleasantness of litigation. These factors typically become prevalent once depositions begin. Consequently, early depositions can promote settlement by bringing the reality of litigation to the forefront sooner. Accordingly, counsel may wish to avoid the delays involved in the more systematic approach discussed in 21.08[1], [2].

A related reason for varying the sequence of discovery is the conviction that an early deposition of a critical witness may tilt the balance between the parties enough to promote early and favorable settlement without the expense of substantial additional discovery. Such a deposition is typically of a nonparty witness; good counsel should already be aware of anything their own clients can say that might radically change the perception of the case. In addition, early depositions of nonparty witnesses who may be related to or friendly with the opposing party may thwart an opposing party's attempt to shield them from the rigors of discovery or curry favor with them.

Another exception can be made for an early deposition of a nonparty witness whose knowledge of the facts bearing on some important issue will be pivotal. In addition, some issues in the case may call for a deposition for which documents are not important, even if significant in the litigation as a whole. Typically this will be a deposition of a nonparty witness that is expected to provide testimony helpful to the case.

Counsel with access to a nonparty witness who will cooperate, but who may not be available to appear at trial, might choose to take that person's deposition at once because the testimony may be favorable and may be delivered without dependence on documents. Opposing counsel's opportunity to cross-examine will be less useful than it would be after further discovery by both sides. Such a deposition will preserve the testimony of the witness for trial if the witness becomes unavailable [see Fed R Civ P 32(a)(4)].

21.08[4] Sequencing of Depositions Merits Special Consideration. Because depositions are often the most useful discovery method, give special consideration to when depositions are conducted. The following general factors may affect the sequence of depositions in any given case:

- Considering the opponent's perception. The early deposition of a key witness (before interrogatories have been answered and documents have been produced) may be desirable because the testimony may affect your opponent's perception of the case. You may decide to schedule that deposition to take place as soon as the preliminary stages of discovery are completed.

- Preserving testimony. The possible future unavailability of a witness whose testimony counsel wishes to preserve will lead counsel to take that witness's deposition promptly.

- Deposing key witnesses first. In a case in which the issues are relatively uncomplicated and the witnesses are few, depose the most important witness for the opposing party first. Because of the cost of depositions and the fact that most lawsuits settle, counsel should normally learn as much as possible in a short time about the basic issues in the case.

- Deferring depositions until after key facts are understood. In a complex case, counsel who is concerned that opposing counsel is more familiar with the underlying facts should defer the depositions of key actors for the adverse party until counsel is sufficiently educated about the case.

- Deposing experts. Counsel should typically delay the depositions of the opposing party's expert witnesses until late in the sequence. Because the experts will usually testify about opinions they have developed based on the underlying facts of the case, counsel should thoroughly understand those facts before deposing the experts.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the use of depositions and other discovery methods, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, §§ 23.19 -23.75.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesUseCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 21 Discovery Strategy and Planning
III. MANAGING DOCUMENTS

3-21 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 21.09

21.09 CHECKLISTS: Managing Litigation Documents.

21.09[1] Choosing a Method of Organization. To determine how to manage litigation documents:

☐ Consider basic method of organization, which can include one of following:

○ Manual organization. Manual organization and hand-filing of paper documents for manual retrieval.

○ Automated indexing. Manual organization combined with automated indexing to retrieve paper documents.

○ Imaging. Electronic imaging, coding, indexing, and retrieval of electronic documents.

○ Imaging combined with electronic file-sharing. Electronic imaging combined with network-based or web-based access to documents for multiple users or locations.

Discussion:
See §§ 21.10[2] -[4]

☐ Determine method of organization. The decision to use a manual system or a more sophisticated approach will be determined by one or more of these variables:

○ Technological resources. Information technology resources available.

- Budget. Case budget may or may not warrant the use of automated organization.

- Specific litigation. Document-intensive cases often necessitate some level of automation.

- Access needs. The number of individuals in need of document access may require network- or web-based access for multiple users.

Discussion:
See §§ 21.10[2], [6]

☐ In document-intensive cases, consider using imaged documents. The benefits of imaged documents include the following:

- Capacity for multiple users. Images can be accessed simultaneously by multiple parties or offices.

- Time savings. There will be significant time savings, and potential cost savings as well, with regard to document handling, searching, retrieving, and distribution of litigation documents.

- Protection of original documents. Images cannot be damaged, regardless of how often they are used.

- Portability. Images are more portable and easier to access during trial than paper documents.

- Copy quality. Copies printed from image will be of original quality.

- Copy ease. There is no waiting for documents to be copied or electronically faxed.

- Loss reduction. There is no need to deal with lost or misfiled documents.

- Document annotation. Documents can be annotated as needed and even annotations can be electronically searched.

- Quick retrieval of documents. When imaged documents are linked to a database or coupled with indexing information, search and retrieval is instantaneous.

Discussion:
See § 21.10[5]

21.09[2] Maintaining Control of Documents Throughout Litigation.

☐ Gather documents from client. Early in litigation, discuss with client documents that need to be gathered.

- Consider whether client's agents or employees possess pertinent documents.

- Consider whether electronic documents, such as e-mails, will be subject to disclosure and/or discovery.

Discussion:
See § 21.11[1]

☐ Organize documents for discovery. Early in case, begin organizing documents that may be subject to:

- Mandatory initial disclosure under Fed R Civ P 26(a).

- Production requests under Fed R Civ P 34(a).

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(a), 34(a)

Discussion:
See §§ 21.11[2] -[4]

☐ Keep control set of documents, which will:

- Limit physical damage to documents.

- Reduce possibility of losing irreplaceable documents.

Discussion:
See § 21.11[5]

☐ Organize significant documents by use of indexing system. Possible indexing methods include:

- Computer-based index consisting of document abstracts.

- Coding of image-based documents.

Discussion:
See § 21.11[6]

☐ Maintain "hot document" file, which should include:

- Documents that are helpful to prove client's position.

- Documents that may be damaging to client's case.

Discussion:
See § 21.11[7]

☐ Record document use. Throughout course of litigation, annotate document index for each document. Annotations can include:

- ○ Significance of document and how it has been used (investigation, deposition preparation, response to document request, etc.).
- ○ Whether document is helpful or harmful to client's case.
- ○ Whether document is privileged.
- ○ Whether document is potential exhibit.

Discussion:
See § 21.11[8]

☐ Create witness files. Witness files for separate witnesses can include following documents:

- ○ Documents authored by witness.
- ○ Documents received by witness.
- ○ Documents that mention witness.

Discussion:
See § 21.11[9]

☐ Create subject matter files. Subject matter files may be useful in large cases to:

- ○ Group documents based on discrete issues that need to be proved.
- ○ Review case based on subject matter of pertinent issues.

Discussion:
See § 21.11[10]

☐ Create exhibit files. Throughout litigation, specific key documents can be segregated and filed as potential exhibits.

- ○ Exhibit files may include many of same documents as hot document file.

- Exhibit files provide ongoing opportunity to weigh strength of potential evidence.

Discussion:
See § 21.11[11]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & InspectionEvidenceDocumentary EvidenceGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 21 Discovery Strategy and Planning
III. MANAGING DOCUMENTS

3-21 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 21.10

21.10 Objectives and Methods of Document Management.

21.10[1] Documents Must Be Organized for Accessibility. Proper document management allows counsel to keep track of and retrieve pertinent documents throughout the course of litigation. The key to document management is planned organization. Regardless of the number of documents, standardized methods of organization require:

- Indexing and/or coding of documents.
- Secure storage of documents.
- Accessibility to documents on an as-needed basis.

Management efforts do not need to be complex in every case. In many cases, document management involves nothing more than labeling tabs on file folders, placing the documents in the appropriate folders, and maintaining a master list or index of the documents.

The large number of documents involved in some cases requires management with some additional foresight, and will typically involve some level of computerized automation. In cases involving large amounts of documents, CD-imaging is often the most practical means of coding and storing documents for future use and accessibility. When paper documents are received in an office, they must be organized to be useful. Documents are labeled, sorted, filed, and indexed. Electronic documents are no different. A document imaging software system must have a comprehensive indexing system that organizes documents in a manner that makes them available when needed.

Regardless of the method of organization, the objectives are the same whatever the actual number of documents involved. What varies is the complexity of the organization or the expense of technology that must be utilized to accomplish the task. Although a sole practitioner or small firm with a limited number of large cases may be unable to justify buying imaging systems, litigation support services such as Applied Discovery may be retained for imaging needs on a case-by-case basis.

21.10[2] Methods of Document Management. Methods of document management include:

- Manual organization and filing of paper documents for manual retrieval.
- Manual organization combined with automated indexing to retrieve paper documents.
- Electronic imaging, coding, indexing, and retrieval of electronic documents, for example on CD-ROM.
- Electronic imaging combined with network-based or web-based access to documents for multiple users.

Decision Point:

The decision whether to use a manual system or more sophisticated approach is determined by one or more of these variables:

- The information technology resources available.
- The case budget.
- The time available.
- The specifics of the litigation.
- The number of people who need access to the documents.

21.10[3] Managing Documents Manually.

21.10[3][a] Examining and Evaluating Documents. The first step in the management of documents is to review relevant documents on receipt. The initial review requires counsel to consider whether the document has relevance in the litigation, whether the document is protected as privileged or confidential material, or whether it is subject to discovery.

21.10[3][b] Filing Documents. As documents are received, counsel should establish a system of organization for filing. Documents may be subdivided based on the type of document, such as the following:

- Party correspondence.
- Investigation documents.
- Transaction documents.
- Documents that tend to prove the client's position.
- Discovery-related documents.
- Privileged documents.

Separate files may then be organized in a standardized manner, such as chronologically based on the date the document was generated or received.

21.10[3][c] Creating a Master Document List. Maintenance of a master document list is essential in all cases. In its simplest form the list may be generated in table format with basic word processing software. The master document list should include basic information about each document, such as:

- Document title or type of document.
- Date of document.
- Author or source of document.
- Short description or significance of document.
- Potential uses for the document (discovery, trial exhibit, etc.).
- Document location (file name and path).

The master list provides an inventory of relevant litigation documents, as well as a means to review and access key documents quickly.

21.10[4] Managing Documents Manually and Electronically. The combined approach to document management typically involves:

- Organizing documents as they are received.
- Classifying documents for index purposes.
- Developing a computerized database for indexing.

21.10[5] Managing Documents Electronically.

21.10[5][a] Imaging Documents. "Imaging" is the creation of an electronic copy of a document. Once the electronic version is installed on a computer system, each person working on the case can display the document on a separate computer screen. Paper copies of the documents should be retained as a backup but are rarely needed, although some attorneys prefer review of paper copies. Electronic documents may be organized and manipulated quickly and efficiently.

With electronic imaging, each page is electronically scanned and saved in a discovery database or on a CD-ROM disk or similar storage device. Electronic image software is then used to access documents electronically based on coded information. The software may be modified to suit the needs of a particular case. Most software systems for organizing electronic documents also store deposition transcripts and other full-text files in fully searchable form. Legal support services that specialize in imaging technology offer various services relating to the creation and management of electronic documents.

Electronic documents in an imaging system can be stored and accessed based on various forms of organization, including:

- Full-text indexing.
- Indexing of coded information.

- Storing documents in electronic folders and sub-folders.

21.10[5][b] Searching and Indexing Within Document or Coding Document. Document imaging systems with Optical Character Recognition (OCR) provide automatic full-text searching and indexing of all documents. Once documents are scanned, the imaging software can index every word to track the location of each word and phrase within every document, dramatically reducing indexing costs, while providing extensive searching capabilities. Some OCR programs include OmniPage Pro, Adobe Capture, and Doculex, among others.

Documents can also be organized by index codes that are specifically assigned to documents. The most basic coding systems and services provide bibliographic information for coded documents, such as:

- Document page numbers.
- Packet/attachment ranges.
- Authors.
- Recipients.
- Copies.
- Date.
- Document type.

A more comprehensive database, using subjective coding, can include bibliographic information, as well as relevant data extrapolated from the document body, such as:

- Names and organizations in text.
- Key words.
- Issue-specific codes.

Decision Point:

Counsel should consider cost when choosing the level of coding. Subjective coding requires a more legalistic, analytical, and expensive review of the documents by more experienced staff. This more sophisticated coding is rarely employed because of the greater costs and because of the increasing functionality and reliability of full-text search engines that work with sophisticated search software to retrieve the desired material from documents coded in basic, bibliographic coding.

Whatever coding and indexing method is chosen must be easy to use and understand by the people who need access to the documents.

21.10[5][c] Storing Electronic Documents in Folders. Along with full-text and code-based indexing, some imaging software systems have a visual method of filing documents. In a typical law office, paper files are found by looking in a particular folder in a particular drawer in a particular file cabinet. Many document management programs electronically duplicate this filing system. A flexible folder structure eases the transition from paper filing to electronic filing and can make the use of electronic documents more successful at the onset. Document management programs include iManage, PCDocs, and WorldDocs, among others.

21.10[6] Combining Imaging Systems With Network- and Web-Based Access. As the number of documents increases in a case, the opportunity for a single lawyer to review each document lessens. Hands-on work with key documents often plays a crucial role throughout the course of litigation, and the number of people with the need for access to key documents may be substantial, depending on the size of the case.

A document imaging and retrieval system, combined with a network- or web-based database, enables multiple users to search for a document, retrieve the document to a computer screen, view the document, make notations to the electronic document, and print the document if needed. Secure sites allow firms to post documents and other data online and selectively share the information with clients, co-counsel, or other individuals. A wide variety of litigation support businesses specialize in providing services to organize and access electronic documents.

Consider:

When hiring litigation support services, determine whether the company will run conflicts checks on its staff, and whether the staff will sign confidentiality agreements.

21.10[7] Reviewing and Organizing Key Documents.

21.10[7][a] Reviewing Key Documents. An important goal of document review is to progress towards an ever-decreasing body of key documents. Whatever methods are used to review and organize documents, the documents should be culled throughout the litigation to eliminate documents that have little or no bearing on the action's key issues.

Counsel should gather and make accessible key documents at the onset of litigation to begin substantive case preparation and to identify potentially significant documents in such a way as to minimize the work required in a second, more thorough review. Prompt culling of a large body of documents minimizes the time and expense of a subsequent handling. However, it is generally better to reduce the universe of documents in later stages than to overlook important documents in the first step.

21.10[7][b] Organizing Key Documents. Relevant documents should be organized in the manner (e.g., chronologically, by subject matter, by witness, etc.) best calculated to facilitate their overall review. It is always necessary to maintain some system of control over the entire body of documents.

Consider:

At the same time, counsel may want the ability to "parse" the documents in ways different from their fundamental, or source-related, arrangements. For instance, it is possible to assemble all significant documents seen by a particular witness or party, or all documents, from whatever source, dealing with a given subject. Under some circumstances, it might be necessary to sort the universe of relevant documents simultaneously according to several distinct criteria-- e.g., all documents seen or authored by a particular witness within a given period of time.

21.10[8] Using Paralegals for Initial Document Review. An important question to consider in apportioning document review assignments to paralegals is whether each paralegal will be responsible for a particular fact area or segment of the case, or whether each paralegal should be available for whatever most needs to be done. Specialization has the obvious advantage of promoting detailed understanding. Also, clearly defined roles and responsibilities foster independent thought, initiative, and a sense of equality among team members. A disadvantage of specialization is that a specialist leaving the job can create a potentially serious gap. In a particularly complex case, specialization may result even if not initially intended, because it is not possible for each person to understand equally all aspects of the case as it develops. Different issues frequently require analysis of very different types of documents.

Consider:

One way to avoid the shortcomings of specialization is to have a central place where all attorney and paralegal work product is kept, available for use by all team members. Paralegals and attorneys should be required to generate memoranda when they learn significant new information about pertinent documents. Electronic imaging and file-sharing software provides centralized access for multiple users and also allows users to annotate document files. Other mechanisms for sharing and documenting information can alleviate the dangers inherent in specialization. However, the pace and complexity of the case are the chief factors in determining whether to specialize. A particularly fast-moving case may require that paralegals handle one rush assignment after another, while a complex but slower-paced case may require that detailed long-term research be conducted on several fronts simultaneously.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & InspectionEvidenceDocumentary EvidenceGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 21 Discovery Strategy and Planning
III. MANAGING DOCUMENTS

3-21 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 21.11

21.11 Managing Discovery Documents and Electronically Stored Information.

21.11[1] Reviewing Documents and Information for Initial Mandatory Disclosure. An early evaluation of the client's documents and electronically stored information is an essential component of planning for initial disclosure under Fed R Civ P 26(a) [see 21.04[5][a]]. In applicable cases, even before any formal discovery demands are made, the parties are required to exchange documents, electronically stored information, and other tangible things that [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)]:

- Are in the possession, custody, or control of the party; and
- The disclosing party may use to support its claims or defenses, unless solely for impeachment.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of initial mandatory disclosures under Rule 26(a)(1), see Ch. 15, Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures, §§ 15.15 -15.26.

21.11[2] Preparing for Production of Documents and Information.

21.11[2][a] Anticipating Production Requests. While reviewing the client's files in preparation for mandatory disclosure under Fed R Civ P 26(a) [see 21.04[5][a]], counsel should begin to anticipate the opponent's production requests under Fed R Civ P 34. At this early stage of the process, it is generally sensible to be over-inclusive and to gather all documents and electronically stored information that may be needed throughout the discovery process, as well as throughout the course of litigation.

Parties may request production of documents and electronically stored information that are relevant to claims or defenses and that are in the possession, custody, or control of any party [Fed R Civ P 34(a)]. The party producing documents for inspection must produce them in one of the following manners [Fed R Civ P 34(b)(2)(E)(i)]:

- Produce the documents as they are kept in the usual course of business; or

- Organize and label the documents to correspond with the categories in the document request.

The party producing electronically stored information for inspection must produce it in [Fed R Civ P 34(b)]:

- The form specified in the request;
- The form in which it is ordinarily maintained;
- A form that is reasonably usable; or
- Another form as agreed or ordered by the court.

Based on the facts in the case, counsel should consider what types of documents or electronically stored information may be subject to discovery, and then inquire of the client whether the documents or information exist, in what form they exist (e.g., hard copy, electronic file, e-mail, etc.), and what their production would entail.

It is critical to maintain careful records of the documents and information that have been, or will be, subject to production, and to identify, segregate, and record identifying data on documents and information that are not subject to production on privilege or other grounds.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of requests for production of documents, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, §§ 23.135 -23.156.

21.11[2][b] Obtaining Documents and Information From Client's Employees and Agents. If the client's employees or agents possess documents and/or electronically stored information needed for discovery, explore whether you will encounter resistance obtaining the material. If resistance is likely, it may be useful to consult the client on how best to overcome it. Resistance is common when the needed material is considered "personal" in nature, such as desk calendars, note files, or e-mail messages. Be prepared to explain the need for the intrusion. To the extent possible, counsel should work with the client to minimize disruption, and to educate the client about the demands of litigation.

Strategic Point:

Once all of the people in a client corporation or organization who may have relevant documents and/or electronically stored information are identified, develop a memorandum that will be sent to each of them by a senior person within the client's organization, such as its general counsel. The memorandum should include a request for a response even if the particular individual has no documents or electronically stored information that fit the description given. Thus, if in the future a person's name arises as a potential source, the records will contain a sign-off indicating that, as of the date of the original request, that person had no material meeting the description of the request.

21.11[2][c] Considering Whether Material Is Protected From Production. When inquiring about and accumulating discovery documents and electronically stored information, consider that some material may be excepted from production based on "undue burden," confidentiality, or privilege. As with all steps in the litigation process, the client needs to know about the risk and reward of taking certain positions in discovery, including the expense of defending that position and the possibility of sanctions.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of privileges and work product protection, see Ch. 24, Restrictions on Scope and Extent of Discovery: Privileges and Work Product Protection.

21.11[2][d] Redaction Before Production. Because documents and electronically stored information in the client's possession, custody, or control may cover a number of topics or contain confidential or privileged material, it may be necessary to produce them in part, by masking or otherwise concealing irrelevant or privileged materials. This procedure is sometimes time-consuming, difficult to implement, and subject to criticism by opposing counsel. However, if there is no alternative, redactions must be performed carefully.

21.11[2][e] Numbering Documents for Production. Numbering documents, such as by use of a Bates stamp (there are also computer programs that electronically "stamp" documents), is often the simplest way to identify and organize them for production. The numbering system serves as a means to keep inventory of produced documents, and the production numbers can be used for purposes of indexing discovery documents. If documents are organized by request, the response to the request can make reference to document numbers, and the documents can be easily referenced and retrieved.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of responses to document requests, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, §§ 23.145 -23.156.

21.11[3] Producing Client E-mails. E-mail offers a quick and convenient way to engage in a wide variety of business activities, including discussion and revision of policies and procedures, circulation of draft documents and meeting minutes, distribution of work assignments and schedules, and actual business transactions. Most organizations have embraced the opportunities provided by e-mail. However, the vast majority overlook that when e-mail messages contain evidence of business decisions, actions, and transactions, they become documents subject to the same legal requirements, restrictions, and standards as any record produced in any form or media.

E-mail documents that a party may use to support its claims or defenses are subject to mandatory disclosure [see Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)]. Likewise, e-mail documents concerning a subject of litigation, whether in print, on someone's hard drive or network system, or on backup tapes after the messages have supposedly been deleted, are subject to discovery and must be produced on request [Fed R Civ P 34(a)].

Warning:

Failure to produce in a timely manner may result in severe sanctions. Also, if email files are not properly organized as business documents, the client may have to face the possibility of financing a search of unmanaged and unclassified electronic data for the purpose of production [see, e.g., Playboy Enters. v. Welles (SD Cal 1999) 60 F Supp2d 1050, 1051].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of issues regarding discovery of e-mails, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 37A.33 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

21.11[4] Reviewing Material Produced Under Rule 34.

21.11[4][a] Determining Time and Place of Production. The requesting party must specify a reasonable time and place for production of requested documents and electronically stored information [Fed R Civ P 34(b)]. Typically, the parties will agree to a means of production that involves either the delivery of copies to the requesting party or the review of the material in the office of the responding party or its counsel. As a practical matter, the possibility of review at the document site arises most often when the records have been produced as maintained in the ordinary course of business.

21.11[4][b] Reviewing Documents On-Site. In a case involving an extensive body of documents that are being produced as maintained in the ordinary course of business, the document review will almost invariably take place in the offices of the opposing party or opposing counsel. Hence, the reviewers may be operating under time constraints and without complete support facilities.

Each of these factors militates against a carefully selective review at this production stage. The risk of error is too great, and sufficient time normally is not available. The appropriate course is to sweep very broadly, saving fine distinctions for a more detailed review in your own offices after selected documents are copied.

In cases involving the exchange of large numbers of documents, the parties may reach an agreement to share the cost of electronically imaging documents selected from production. Additional CD copies may then be made for nominal cost.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of document production, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, §§ 23.135 -23.156.

21.11[5] Maintaining Control of Documents Throughout Litigation.

21.11[5][a] Keeping Control Set of Documents. Regardless of the method of document management used, counsel should maintain a master set of documents. This serves as a control when any document-related problems, questions, or issues subsequently arise. In the early stages of a case, the importance of such a control set may not be readily apparent. However, as documents are handled, redacted, copied, analyzed, used as deposition exhibits, given to experts for analysis, used in witness preparation, or used as attachments to pleadings, the importance of the control set grows.

21.11[5][b] Organizing Documents Chronologically. In many cases, it is valuable to establish a chronological set of all documents. Alternatively, a chronological index of documents can be assembled to present the flow of events and of the documents surrounding those events concisely. Subsequently, counsel's staff can review that index rather than spend hours grappling with volumes of documents. There should be sufficient information in the index to permit selective document requests when needed.

21.11[6] Indexing Significant Documents.

21.11[6][a] Creating Computer-Based Index System. Once document review is completed, organize pertinent documents in a meaningful yet flexible manner. The use of computer-based indexing systems in which abstracts of documents can be searched by key word methods, as well as date and author, helps manage documents in a large case. The ability to make multiple indexes for different purposes aids the ability to prepare for each deposition, as well as trial.

The most useful indexing includes:

- The document number (if applicable).
- The date of the document.
- The author of the document.
- The people to whom the document was addressed directly or by copy.
- A brief description of the document's contents.

The indexing process provides subdivisions for the entire body of documents and focuses attention on the most important documents. Large document cases often yield remarkable quantities of transactional documentation, such as sales receipts and invoices. Unless the case revolves around issues directly linked to these transactions, once the documents are indexed they may never have to be handled again.

21.11[6][b] Coding Electronically Stored Information. When digital imaging of key documents is employed, electronically stored information may be coded in a variety of ways for indexing. Documents can then be accessed using [see 21.10[5][b]]:

- Full-text searching.
- Objective codes (date, author, title or number of document, etc.).
- Subjective codes (issues discussed, good and bad language, etc.).

Documents can then be retrieved in electronic form, according to any coded characteristic or combination of characteristics. If the document has been scanned with a document imaging system with Optical Character Recognition (OCR), a search can be conducted based on key words or phrases. This type of search is likely to result in the retrieval of many more documents than the coded systems, but full-text searching is critical in large cases for which familiarity with large numbers of documents and codes may be impractical.

21.11[7] Maintaining "Hot Document" File. It is unlikely that any one document will be dispositive of a complex case. Rather, a sequence of documents will establish a course of events that is either helpful or harmful. These are the types of documents to include in the "hot document" file. However, the variations in individual perceptions within your staff, and caution on the part of the reviewers, may lead to over-inclusion. Therefore, the contents of this file should be reviewed periodically to eliminate documents whose importance has been supplanted by subsequent discoveries. An "issues memorandum" based on the hot document file can help determine whether the possible proof afforded by the documents is consistent with the evidence discovered from other sources.

The hot document file is also a convenient place for preliminary research and notes about the admissibility and evidentiary issues with regard to the most important documents in the case. That research may then be a basis for motions in limine or the trial notebook. Each time the documents are handled during the discovery process, lawyers and paralegals can insert thoughts about the evidentiary issues, which may continue to change as the case proceeds.

21.11[8] Recording Document and Information Use. A complete index should identify documents and electronically stored information produced to different parties, withheld on grounds of irrelevance and/or privilege, partially withheld by redaction, considered extremely sensitive, or covered by protective orders. The index should also identify the various ways in which each document and item of electronically stored information was used, such as deposition exhibits, attachments to pleadings, and attachments to affidavits.

Furthermore, an index that tracks the uses to which opposing counsel puts various documents and items of electronically stored information may provide insight into the opponent's strategy well in advance of the trial. Large document cases tend to boil down to limited document use by the time of trial. Counsel should therefore anticipate the opponent's case by maintaining an adequate information and document-use inventory.

21.11[9] Creating Witness Files. A witness file contains in one place all of the documents:

- Authored by a particular witness.
- Received by a particular witness.
- Mentioning a particular witness.

The witness file should be a manageable instrument that can be used to prepare witnesses for deposition or trial, or to prepare for cross-examination. Consider subdividing a large witness file into subject categories, chronological periods, or other meaningful segments. Whatever choices are made for a particular witness file, the best means of organization is to put each segment in chronological order so that the witness may work through the documents in an orderly manner.

A properly prepared document index containing all of the names mentioned in any document can be a useful tool in the assembly of witness files. It may be helpful to prepare a "witness book" by placing the document copies pertaining to a particular witness in a binder. The goal of any indexing system, whether manual or computerized, is to permit this kind of flexibility.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of preparation for depositions, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, §§ 23.19 -23.35.

21.11[10] Creating Subject Matter Files. Subject or issue files serve functions similar to witness files [see 21.11[9]]. Depending on the volume of subject files, it may be desirable to use abstracts or summaries of their contents in lieu of the files, as long as these abstracts or summaries contain adequate reference to the documents. As with witness files, subject files may become too cumbersome to use effectively if they are not constantly divided and subdivided to outline the issues and sub-issues that develop during discovery. In most cases, those issues will continue to evolve up to the eve of trial, long after discovery is complete. The subject files should continue to evolve along with the issues.

Subject files can be valuable in preparing to address issues of proof, educating new members of the trial team, or simply as a refresher. The periodic reevaluation of these files refines the case and understanding of all its details.

21.11[11] Maintaining Files for Potential Exhibits. If the document organizational process has worked, the documents with the greatest potential as trial or deposition exhibits will become increasingly apparent. Typically, the most important documents for use as exhibits are located in the "hot document" file.

An important consideration in the selection of exhibits is whether they are easily understood or presented. Exhibit files provide an opportunity to evaluate the strength of potential exhibits before they are used for evidentiary purposes.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & InspectionCivil ProcedureDiscoveryElectronic DiscoveryGeneral OverviewEvidenceDocumentary EvidenceGeneral Overview

13 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.syn

§ 22.syn Synopsis to Chapter 22: Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *

22.01 Scope.

22.02 Objective and Strategy.

22.03 CHECKLISTS: Discovery Stipulations.

22.03[1] Considering Types of Discovery Stipulations Available.

22.03[2] Preparing Stipulation.

22.04 Options and Strategy.

22.05 When to Use Discovery Stipulations.

22.06 Discovery Stipulations Distinct From Disclosure Stipulations.

22.07 Requirements for Use of Discovery Stipulations.

22.07[1] Stipulation Generally Must Be in Writing.

22.07[2] Examples of Informal Writings Not Enforced by Court.

22.07[2][a] Confirming Letter Inadequate.

22.07[2][b] Oral Agreement Inadequate.

22.07[2][c] Unilateral Understanding Inadequate.

22.07[3] Exceptions to Writing Requirement.

22.07[3][a] Oral Representation in Open Court.

22.07[3][b] Stipulations on Record During Deposition.

22.07[3][c] Estoppel Doctrine May Prevent Unfair Advantage.

22.07[4] Filing Stipulations Not Required by Federal Rules.

22.07[5] LOCAL PRACTICE: Requirements for Stipulation.

22.07[5][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements.

22.07[5][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements.

22.07[5][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements.

22.07[5][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements.

22.07[6] Check Standing Orders of Judges.

22.08 Consider Effects of Stipulation.

22.08[1] Stipulations Govern Only Litigation at Hand.

22.08[2] Avoid Ambiguous Terms.

22.08[3] Expressly Include All Desired Terms.

22.09 Prior Judicial Approval Required for Some Stipulations.

22.09[1] General Rule: No Approval Required.

22.09[2] Exception: Stipulation Interferes With Court-Imposed Deadlines.

22.09[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: Required Judicial Approval.

22.09[3][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements.

22.09[3][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements.

22.09[3][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements.

22.09[3][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements.

22.10 Judicial Rejection of Stipulations.

22.10[1] Courts Have Authority to Reject Stipulations.

22.10[2] Rejection Based on Change in Circumstances.

22.10[3] Rejection to Prevent Injustice.

22.11 Using Stipulations for General Discovery Matters.

22.11[1] Parties May Stipulate to Permit Discovery Before Rule 26(f) Planning Meeting.

22.11[1][a] General Rule: No Discovery Before Rule 26(f) Meeting.

22.11[1][b] Availability of Stipulation.

22.11[2] Parties May Stipulate to Alter Time for Response to Discovery Request.

22.11[3] Parties May Stipulate to Exceed Permitted Number of Interrogatories.

22.11[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: Stipulation Regarding Custody of Discovery Documents.

22.11[4][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements.

22.11[4][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements.

22.11[5] Stipulation Concerning Conduct of Physical or Mental Examinations.

22.11[6] Parties May Stipulate to Vary Subpoena Procedures.

22.11[7] Parties May Stipulate to Limit Discovery in Future Litigation.

22.11[8] Parties May Stipulate to Expedite Discovery.

22.11[9] Parties May Stipulate to Preserve Confidentiality.

22.11[10] Parties May Stipulate to Obtain Discovery Abroad.

22.11[11] Stipulations Regarding Discovery for Use in Foreign Courts.

22.12 Parties May Stipulate to Modify Deposition Procedures.

22.12[1] Parties May Stipulate to Modify Procedural Aspects of Depositions.

22.12[2] Parties May Stipulate to Exceed Limit on Number of Depositions.

22.12[3] Parties May Stipulate to Take Deposition of Previously Deposed Witness.

22.12[4] Parties May Stipulate to Take Early Deposition.

22.12[4][a] General Rule Against Depositions Before Rule 26(f) Planning Meeting.

22.12[4][b] Parties May Stipulate to Early Deposition.

22.12[5] Parties May Stipulate to Waive or Modify Notice Requirements.

22.12[6] Stipulations May Allow Deposition Before Person Other Than Officer.

22.12[7] Parties May Stipulate to Record and Take Deposition by Other Than Stenographic Means.

22.12[7][a] Modes of Recording.

22.12[7][b] Factors Affecting Choice of Recording Method.

22.12[8] Parties May Stipulate to Shift Cost of Deposition.

22.12[9] Parties May Stipulate to Matters Regarding Documents.

22.12[10] Parties May Stipulate to Limit Scope of Examination.

22.12[11] Parties May Stipulate to Modify Duration of Deposition.

22.12[12] Parties May Stipulate to Waive Formalities.

22.12[13] Parties May Stipulate to Alter Requirements for Retention of Deposition Notes.

22.12[13][a] General Rule Regarding Custody of Deposition.

22.12[13][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements.

22.12[13][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements.

22.12[14] Parties May Stipulate to Use of Unsigned Transcript.

22.12[15] Parties May Stipulate to Modify Rules on Waiving and Reserving Objections.

22.12[15][a] General Rules.

22.12[15][b] Reserving Objections Except As to Form.

22.12[15][c] Reserving All Objections.

22.12[15][d] Agreeing to Blanket Stipulations.

22.12[16] Parties May Stipulate to Matters Pertaining to Taking Depositions Abroad.

22.13 Deposition Stipulations Must Be Placed on Record.

22.14 CHECKLISTS: Bringing a Noticed Motion to Modify Discovery Procedures.

22.14[1] Preparing Motion.

22.14[2] Preparing Opposition to Motion.

22.15 Options and Strategy.

22.16 When to Use Motions to Regulate Discovery.

22.17 Bringing Discovery Motions.

22.17[1] General Rules for Discovery Motions.

22.17[2] Motion Must Be Filed in Appropriate Court.

22.17[3] Certification Regarding Good-Faith Attempt to Confer Is Mandatory.

22.17[4] Joint Motion Is Possible.

22.17[5] LOCAL PRACTICE: Requirements for Bringing Discovery Motions.

22.17[5][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements.

22.17[5][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements.

22.17[5][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements.

22.17[5][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements.

22.18 Opposing Motions to Modify Discovery.

22.19 Courts May Limit Frequency or Extent of Discovery on Party's Motion.

22.19[1] Motion Procedure Is Available to Party Responding to Discovery Request.

22.19[2] Party Who Seeks Limit on Discovery Bears Burden of Showing Why Discovery Should Be Disallowed.

22.19[3] Party May Move to Limit Discovery That Is Unreasonably Cumulative, Duplicative or Inconvenient.

22.19[3][a] Party May Seek to Remove Obligation to Respond.

22.19[3][b] Party May Seek to Shift Cost of Responding.

22.19[3][c] Opposing Party May Defeat Motion by Establishing Reasonableness of Discovery Demand.

22.19[4] Courts Must Limit Discovery When Information Is Available From Another More Convenient, Less Burdensome, or Less Expensive Source.

22.19[5] Courts Must Limit Discovery If Propounding Party Has Had Ample Opportunity to Obtain Information Sought.

22.19[5][a] Party or Court May Move to Limit Extent or Use of Discovery If Propounding Party Has Had Ample Opportunity to Obtain Information Sought.

22.19[5][b] Opposing Party May Defeat Motion by Establishing Lack of Ample Opportunity.

22.19[6] Court Must Limit Discovery When Burden Outweighs Likely Benefit.

22.19[7] Court May Limit Discovery of Electronically Stored Information That Is Not Reasonably Accessible.

22.20 Party May Bring Motion to Widen Discovery Scope.

22.20[1] Usual Scope of Discovery Is Party's Claims and Defenses.

22.20[2] Party May Move to Expand Scope of Discovery to Matters Relevant to Subject Matter of Action on Showing of Good Cause.

22.20[3] Opposing Party May Defeat Motion by Showing Moving Party Failed to Justify Need for Expansion Considering Particular Case.

22.21 Courts May Increase Amount of Discovery Beyond General Limits.

22.21[1] Party May Move to Increase Number of Allowable Depositions.

22.21[2] Party May Move to Increase Number of Allowable Interrogatories.

22.21[3] Opposing Party May Defeat Motion by Showing Increased Discovery Is Inconsistent With Limitations Provided in Rule 26(b).

22.22 Party May Move to Require Discovery Papers Be Filed.

22.23 Court May Order Discovery Prior to Rule 26(f) Planning Meeting on Party's Motion.

22.23[1] Party May Move to Alter General Rule Prohibiting Discovery Prior to Rule 26(f) Planning Meeting.

22.23[2] Party Must Establish Good Cause to Expedite Discovery.

22.23[2][a] Good Cause Based on Administration of Justice.

22.23[2][b] Good Cause Based on Preliminary Injunction Standard.

22.23[3] Party Opposing Expedited Discovery May Defeat Motion by Refuting Good Cause and Showing Harm Caused by Expediting Process.

22.24 Courts May Set Timing or Sequence of Discovery.

22.24[1] Party May Move to Restrict Timing or Sequence of Discovery for Convenience and Interests of Justice.

22.24[2] Court May Balance Hardship in Determining Whether to Restrict Timing or Sequence of Discovery.

22.24[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements.

22.25 Court May Alter Time to Respond to Written Discovery Demands on Party's Motion.

22.25[1] Party May Move to Shorten or Extend Time for Response.

22.25[2] Opposing Party May Defeat Motion by Showing Ample Opportunity of the Moving Party.

22.26 Court May Extend Discovery Cutoff Date on Party's Motion.

22.26[1] Party Must Show Good Cause to Extend Discovery Cutoff.

22.26[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Extending Discovery Cutoff Dates.

22.26[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Requirements.

22.26[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Requirements.

22.27 Court May Order Physical or Mental Examination, and Preparation of Resulting Report, on Party's Motion.

22.28 Party May Move to Withdraw or Amend Admission.

22.29 Court May Order Deposition Be Taken of Person Confined in Prison.

22.30 Court May Order Deposition Be Taken Before Action or Pending Appeal.

22.31 Court May Compel Discovery on Party's Motion.

22.31[1] Party May Move to Compel Discovery.

22.31[2] Party Opposing Motion to Compel May Seek Protective Order.

22.32 Court May Limit Discovery Through Protective Orders on Party's Motion.

22.33 Court May Order Payment of Motion Expenses.

22.34 Court May Order Discovery Sanctions.

22.35 CHECKLIST: Evaluating Grounds for Protective Order.

22.36 Options and Strategy.

22.37 Several Types of Relief Are Available Through Protective Orders.

22.38 Court May Impose Other Conditions on Discovery.

22.39 Protective Order May Block Discovery.

22.39[1] Court May Order That No Disclosure or Discovery Be Had.

22.39[2] Complete Blocking of Discovery Is Rare.

22.39[3] Court May Block Depositions of Corporate Officers and Employees.

22.39[3][a] Court May Block Deposition of High-Level Corporate Officers.

22.39[3][b] Court May Block Deposition of Subordinate Employees.

22.39[4] Court May Block Deposition of Adverse Counsel.

22.39[4][a] Party Seeking Deposition of Adverse Counsel Bears Burden of Showing Good Cause.

22.39[4][b] No Block Where Exception to Privilege Applies.

22.39[4][c] No Block When Privilege Is Waived.

22.40 Protective Order May Specify Terms and Conditions for Discovery.

22.40[1] Court May Restrict Number of Hours or Days Deposition May Last.

22.40[2] Court May Set Sequence of Discovery.

22.40[3] Court May Order Accelerated Completion of Discovery.

22.40[4] Court May Order Stay of Discovery Pending Outcome of Dispositive Motion.

22.40[4][a] Court May Stay Discovery Pending Dispositive Motion.

22.40[4][b] Court Considers Various Factors in Determining Motion to Stay.

22.40[4][c] Court Balances Harm of Stay Versus Benefit of Discovery.

22.40[5] Court May Order Stay of Discovery Pending Outcome of Parallel Criminal or Civil Proceeding.

22.40[6] Court Order Required to Conduct Discovery Following Automatic Stay of Discovery Pending Ruling on Motion to Dismiss in Securities Fraud Class Actions.

22.40[7] Court May Designate Place for Discovery.

22.40[8] Court May Order Payment of Expenses of Discovery.

22.41 Protective Order May Prescribe Discovery Method.

22.41[1] Court May Order That Certain Method of Discovery Be Used.

22.41[2] Court May Order That Discovery Questions Be Propounded by Interrogatories, Not Deposition.

22.41[3] Court May Order That Deposition Proceed on Written Questions.

22.41[4] Court May Order That Deposition Be Taken Telephonically or Videotaped.

22.42 Protective Order May Limit Scope of Discovery.

22.43 Protective Order May Restrict Attendance at Deposition.

22.43[1] Protective Order Required to Exclude Persons From Deposition.

22.43[2] Order Must Be Supported by Particular and Specific Showing of Facts.

22.43[3] Examples of Orders Granted.

22.44 Court May Order Discovery Records Be Sealed.

22.44[1] Party May Move to Seal Depositions and Other Discovery Materials.

22.44[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Sealing of Documents.

22.44[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements.

22.44[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements.

22.44[2][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements.

22.44[2][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements.

22.44[3] Party Must Establish Specific Harm or Prejudice to Overcome Presumption of Public Access to Discovery.

22.44[4] Presumption of Public Access to Court Documents.

22.44[4][a] Public Access to Court Documents May Be Overridden by Compelling Reasons.

22.44[4][b] Exception to Presumption of Public Access for Nondispositive Motion.

22.45 Court May Limit Disclosure of Trade Secrets or Other Confidential Information.

22.45[1] Court May Order Confidential Information Not Be Revealed or Revealed Only in Designated Way.

22.45[2] Moving Party Must Show Good Cause for Protection of Confidential Information.

22.45[2][a] Moving Party Must Show That Information Sought Is Confidential.

22.45[2][b] Mere Harm to Reputation Not Sufficient Basis to Provide Protection From Discovery.

22.45[2][c] Moving Party Must Also Show Specific Prejudice or Harm Will Result in Absence of Protective Order.

22.45[3] Following Good Cause Showing to Protect Trade Secrets, Burden Shifts to Party Seeking Discovery.

22.45[3][a] Party Seeking Discovery Bears Burden of Showing Relevance and Necessity.

22.45[3][b] Necessity May Include Public Interest Consideration.

22.45[4] Methods for Limiting Disclosure of Trade Secrets and Confidential Information.

22.45[5] Court May Restrict Which Counsel May View Protected Material Based on Risk of Inadvertent Disclosure.

22.46 Court May Order Parties to Simultaneously File Information Under Seal.

22.47 CHECKLIST: Preparing Motion for Protective Order.

22.48 Options and Strategy.

22.49 Parties May Move for Protective Order Pertaining to Discovery or Disclosure.

22.50 Subpoenaed Nonparties May Seek Protective Order.

22.51 Third Parties Must Intervene to Assert Rights Under Protective Order.

22.51[1] Third Parties Generally Bound by Terms of Protective Order.

22.51[2] Protective Orders Not Binding Against Grand Jury Subpoenas.

22.51[3] Third Parties Must Participate Directly to Protect Information.

22.52 Methods for Obtaining Protective Order.

22.52[1] Parties May Stipulate to Protective Order.

22.52[2] Party May Request a Protective Order in Opposition to a Motion to Compel.

22.52[3] Party May Bring Motion for Protective Order.

22.53 Procedures for Bringing Motion for Protective Order.

22.53[1] Motion for Protective Order Must Follow Noticed Motion Procedure.

22.53[2] Motion for Protective Order Must Be Timely.

22.53[2][a] Timeliness Required.

22.53[2][b] Court May Excuse Untimely Motion for Good Cause.

22.53[2][c] Protective Order Covering an Oral Deposition Must Be Filed Before Deposition Begins.

22.53[2][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements.

22.53[3] Motion Must Be Filed in the Proper District.

22.53[3][a] Requirement Under Federal Rules.

22.53[3][b] Court May Transfer Motion to Judge in District Where Action Is Pending.

22.53[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: Parties Must Meet and Confer to Resolve Dispute.

22.53[4][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements.

22.53[4][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements.

22.53[4][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements.

22.53[4][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements.

22.53[5] Submit Proposed Order With Motion.

22.54 Party Seeking Protective Order Must Satisfy Requirements for Burden of Proof.

22.54[1] Good Cause Must Be Shown Before Court May Issue Protective Order.

22.54[2] Person Seeking Protective Order Generally Has Burden of Establishing Good Cause.

22.54[3] Establishing Good Cause for Protective Order.

22.54[3][a] Good Cause Generally Requires Showing of Specific Prejudice or Harm in Absence of Protective Order.

22.54[3][b] Moving Party Should Use Affidavits to Show Good Cause.

22.54[4] After Good Cause Shown, Court Must Balance Hardship Against Need for Discovery.

22.55 CHECKLIST: Opposing Motion for Protective Order.

22.56 Options and Strategies.

22.57 Requirements for Opposing Motion for Protective Order.

22.57[1] Party Opposing Motion Must Use Noticed Motion Procedure.

22.57[2] Party Opposing Protective Order Should Refute Good Cause.

22.57[3] Party Opposing Protective Order May Defeat or Limit Order on Showing of Relevance and Necessity of Requested Information.

22.57[4] Nonparty May Oppose Protective Order on Public Interest Grounds.

22.58 Prevailing Party on Motion May Recover Expenses.

22.59 CHECKLISTS: Modifying or Vacating Protective Order.

22.59[1] Preparing Motion to Modify or Vacate Protective Order.

22.59[2] Opposing Modification of Protective Order.

22.60 Options and Strategy.

22.61 Protective Order May Be Modified or Vacated.

22.62 Modification May Not Impose New Obligations on Parties to Protective Order After Underlying Action Terminated.

22.63 Both Parties and Nonparties May Seek Modification.

22.64 Nonparty Must Intervene to Modify Protective Order.

22.64[1] Nonparty Must Intervene in Lawsuit to Challenge Order.

22.64[2] Party May Intervene After Action Terminated.

22.64[3] Motion to Intervene Must Be Timely.

22.65 Making Showing Necessary to Modify Protective Order.

22.65[1] Showing Required for Party to Protective Order Seeking Modification.

22.65[1][a] Party to Protective Order Who Seeks Modification Must Show Sufficient Need for Information.

22.65[1][b] Party Must Show Need for Discovery Outweighs Potential Harm to Party Seeking Continued Protection.

22.65[2] Showing Required for Collateral Litigant.

22.65[2][a] Collateral Litigant Must Show Relevance.

22.65[2][b] Collateral Litigant Must Show Discoverability.

22.65[2][c] Collateral Litigant May Discover Materials That Should Not Have Been Placed Under Seal.

22.65[2][d] Issuing Court Balances Threshold Relevance and Reliance.

22.65[2][e] Collateral Court Determines Whether Collateral Litigant Will Obtain Materials.

22.65[3] Showing Required for Modification by Nonparty in Matter of Public Interest.

22.65[3][a] Nonparty Should Address Lack of Good Cause for Protecting Pretrial Discovery.

22.65[3][b] Court Considers Various Factors to Determine Whether Good Cause Is Present in a Matter of Public Interest.

22.65[3][c] Nonparty Must Show Compelling Reason for Modification If Sought Documents Were Filed in Court Under Seal in Non-Dispositive Motion.

22.65[3][d] Waiver Possible If Confidential Material Is Revealed in Court.

22.65[4] Showing Required for Nonparty Governmental Entity Seeking Access to Material Subject to Protective Order for Law Enforcement Purposes.

22.66 Considerations for Opposing Modification.

22.66[1] Party Opposing Modification Must Show Good Cause.

22.66[2] Party Opposing Modification Should Show Reliance on Protective Order.

22.66[3] Party Opposing Modification Must Show Compelling Reasons to Prevent Nonparty From Accessing Sealed Documents Filed in Support of Dispositive Motion.

22.66[4] Party Opposing Modification of Stipulated or Blanket Protective Order Has Heavier Burden.

22.66[4][a] Party Opposing Modification of Stipulated or Blanket Protective Order Must Establish Good Cause.

22.66[4][b] Party Opposing Modification of Stipulated or Blanket Protective Order Has Greater Burden of Establishing Reliance.

22.67 Discovery Stipulation.

22.68 Stipulation to Extend Time for Discovery Responses.

22.69 [Reserved].

22.70 Format for Stipulation (SD Cal).

22.71 Notice of Motion and Motion for Accelerated, Pre-Conference Discovery.

22.72 Notice of Motion and Joint Motion to Extend Discovery Cutoff.

22.73 Notice of Motion and Motion for Protective Order for Trade Secrets.

22.74 Blanket Stipulated Protective Order.

22.75 Protective Order Changing Place of Deposition.

14 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
I. STRATEGY

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.01

22.01 Scope.

This chapter covers:

- Preparation of stipulations to modify discovery procedures [see 22.03 -22.13; Forms: 22.67 -22.70].

- Bringing and opposing motions to modify discovery procedures [see 22.14 -22.34; Forms: 22.71 -22.72].

- Bringing and opposing motions for protective orders to restrict the scope of discovery [see 22.35 -22.66, Forms 22.73 -22.75].

Core Rules:
Fed R Civ P 26(b)-(g), 29, 30, 31, 33, 34, 36, 37.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsStipulations

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
I. STRATEGY

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.02

22.02 Objective and Strategy.

The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure provide a plethora of rules regulating the manner in which parties may obtain discovery. The rules regulate, among other things, when parties may commence discovery, the amount of time a party has to respond to discovery, the number of interrogatories a party may propound, the breadth of information a party must disclose in response to a demand, the number of depositions a party may take, and the manner in which depositions are taken. In addition to the detailed array of discovery provisions, the Rules provide two general avenues to alter the regulation of discovery to accommodate the needs of specific cases: stipulations and motions.

A discovery stipulation is an agreement between the parties to the action that certain discovery rules will not apply, or will be modified, in the action. Except in a few circumstances, a stipulation must be in writing before the federal court will enforce it [Fed R Civ P 29; see Fed R Civ P 1, 2007 Committee Note (according to the 2007 restyling of the Federal Rules, a particular rule may or may not specify that stipulations must be in writing, but the meaning of the rule is not altered by the omission)]. Although the Federal Rules do not require that stipulations be approved by the court, every district in California except the Northern District requires prior court approval [see CD Cal Civ LR 7-1, ED Cal Gen LR 143(b), and SD Cal Civ LR 7.2(a)].

A party may also bring a motion to obtain relief from certain discovery rules. For example, a party might seek relief by motion when the party is unable to obtain a stipulation and cannot prepare a response to discovery within the time specified in the rule [see Fed R Civ P 33(b)(2), 34(b), 36(a)]. Discovery motions may also be appropriate to protect against disclosure of privileged or confidential information, to extend the discovery cutoff if the parties have not yet completed discovery, or when the rules require a court order, such as for withdrawal or amendment to an admission [see Fed R Civ P 26(c), 36(b), 37(a)].

Before filing such a motion, counsel should first attempt to obtain a stipulation from opposing counsel, even when leave of court is required to modify the rule. The court invariably looks more favorably on the desired modification when counsel have cooperated. In addition, the process of seeking a stipula-tion satisfies the meet-and-confer conditions for filing a motion to modify discovery procedures.

Judge's Perspective:

Courts generally require that the parties make a good faith effort to seek an adjustment of discovery limits or the resolution of discovery disputes before bringing the matter to the court. If the record reflects no such effort, or it is appears to be a half-hearted effort, the court may deny the requested modification on that basis alone. At the same time, when the parties are able to reach agreement on discovery questions, most courts are likely to give the parties considerable leeway in managing the discovery process. Only when a proposed stipulation directly impacts on the schedule set by the court, such as an extension of a discovery cutoff that will result in the need to move a motion's hearing date, will the court possibly interfere with the parties' agreement as reflected in a proposed stipulation.

Detailed Discussion/Forms:

6 Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 26, Duty to Disclose; General Provisions Governing Discovery (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

6 Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 29, Stipulations About Discovery Procedure (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

6 Bender's Federal Practice Forms, Rule 26, Duty to Disclose; General Provisions Governing Discovery (Matthew Bender).

6 Bender's Federal Practice Forms, Rule 29, Stipulations About Discovery Procedure (Matthew Bender).

Cross Reference:

For tips on updating case law and expanding your research with additional resources, see How to Use Lexis.com With This Publication at the front of this volume.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsStipulationsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

16 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
II. USING STIPULATIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.03

22.03 CHECKLISTS: Discovery Stipulations.

22.03[1] Considering Types of Discovery Stipulations Available.

☐ Consider whether timing of discovery should be altered, including:

- ○ Whether any discovery should be made prior to Rule 26(f) planning meeting.
- ○ Whether time for discovery responses should be extended.
- ○ Whether time for discovery responses should be expedited.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(d), (f), 29, 30(a)(2)(A)(iii), 31(a)(2)(A)(iii), 33(b)(2), 34(b)(2), 36(a)(3)

Discussion:
See §§ 22.11[1], [2], [8], 22.12[4]

Form:
See § 22.68

☐ Consider whether limits on amount or scope of discovery should be altered, such as:

- ○ Whether more than 25 interrogatories for each side are necessary.
- ○ Whether more than 10 depositions for each side are necessary.

- ○ Whether to conduct deposition of previously deposed witness.
- ○ Whether to modify time period allowed for taking deposition.
- ○ Whether to limit scope of deposition to particular issue(s).

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(D), 29, 30(a)(2)(A)(ii), (d)(1), 31(a)(2)(A)(ii), 33(a)(1)

Discussion:
See §§ 22.11[3], 22.12[2], [3], [10], [11]

Form:
See § 22.67

☐ Consider whether matters regarding custody of discovery documents should be altered, such as:

- ○ Who should maintain custody of original interrogatories, requests for production of documents and requests for admissions.
- ○ Who should retain stenographic notes or transcripts of depositions.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(f)(3); CD Cal Civ LR 32-2, 33-3, 34-3, 36-3; ED Cal Civ LR 250.1(b); ND Cal Civ LR 26-1

Discussion:
See §§ 22.11[4], 22.12[13]

☐ Consider stipulating to terms regarding physical or mental examination, and ensuing report.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 29, 35(a), (b)

Discussion:
See § 22.11[5]

☐ Consider stipulating to procedural aspects of discovery, such as:

- ○ Varying subpoena procedures, such as methods of depositions and reimbursement of costs.
- ○ Location for taking deposition.
- ○ Using a commission to require the production of documents or to conduct a deposition in a foreign country.

- ○ Waiving or modifying notice and/or signature requirements for a deposition.
- ○ Taking a deposition before person other than an officer.
- ○ Recording and taking deposition by other than stenographic means.
- ○ Shifting cost of deposition.
- ○ Staging discovery such that threshold issues are explored at the outset before embarking on more expensive discovery.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 29, Fed R Civ P 30(b)(1), (3)-(5), 31(a)(3), (b), 45

Discussion:
See §§ 22.11[6], [10], 22.12[1], [5] -[8], [12], [16]

Form:
See § 22.67

☐ Determine whether to stipulate to limit use of discovery, such as:

- ○ Whether discovery in one case may be used in a subsequent case.
- ○ Whether discovery should be kept confidential.
- ○ Whether to allow use of unsigned deposition transcript.

Authority:
Elliott-McGowan Prods. v. Republic Prods., Inc. (SDNY 1956) 145 F Supp 48, 50 ; Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(D)-(G), 29, 30(e)

Discussion:
See §§ 22.11[7], [9], 22.12[14]

Form:
See § 22.74

☐ Consider stipulating to issues regarding documents, including:

- ○ Authenticity of a document.
- ○ Who prepared, or directed preparation, of a document.

- That a document was kept in the regular course of business.
- That a document will be retained by a certain party.
- That a document will be kept available for future inspection.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(f)(2); Fed R Evid 803(6), 901,

Discussion:
See § 22.12[9]

☐ Consider whether it is desirable to modify rules regarding objections during deposition, such as:

- Whether reserving objections will benefit the client at trial.
- Whether each matter stipulated to is clear and recorded in the record.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 29, 32(d)(3)(B)

Discussion:
See § 22.12[15]

22.03[2] Preparing Stipulation.

☐ Consult with opposing party to determine:

- Who should draft the stipulation.
- The issues and the terms agreed on.
- If stipulation is made during deposition, have stipulation placed on record.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(b)(5); Angell v. Shawmut Bank Conn. Nat'l Ass'n (MDNC 1994) 153 FRD 585, 590-591

Discussion:
See § 22.08

☐ Use precise language:

- Avoid ambiguous terms.

- ○ Include all terms agreed on.

Authority:
Rice v. Glad Hands, Inc. (5th Cir 1985) 750 F2d 434, 438

Discussion:
See § 22.08

☐ Evaluate need for court order:

- ○ If extension of time interferes with discovery cutoff.
- ○ If extension of time interferes with hearing or trial.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 29

Discussion:
See § 22.09

☐ Review local rules to determine whether prior court order is required.

Authority:
CD Cal Civ LR 7-1; ED Cal Gen LR 143(b); ND Cal Civ LR 7-11, 16-2(e); SD Cal Civ LR 7.2(a)

Discussion:
See § 22.09[3]

☐ Review local rules to determine whether filing required.

Authority:
CD Cal Civ LR 7-1; ED Cal Gen LR 144(a); ND Cal Civ LR 7-12; SD Cal Civ LR 7.2(a)

Discussion:
See § 22.07[5]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsStipulations

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
II. USING STIPULATIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.04

22.04 Options and Strategy.

Whether propounding or responding to discovery demands, parties frequently find it desirable, and sometimes necessary to alter the limitations provided in the discovery rules. For the propounding party, it may be necessary, for example, to expedite discovery, such as when discoverable material or witnesses may become unavailable before the lapse of the usual time limits. For the responding party, it may be necessary to extend the time that discovery is due, or limit the scope of discoverable materials, particularly when discovery demands are voluminous.

When faced with a situation where discovery rules would impair the ability to adequately prepare a case, the first option is to consider contacting opposing counsel to seek a stipulation to alter the discovery terms. Before contacting opposing counsel, consider how opposing counsel might similarly benefit from the sought modification. For example, there may be a third-party witness who is scheduled to leave the country prior to the Rule 26(f) planning meeting, before which no party may obtain discovery from any source [Fed R Civ P 26(d), (f)]. Because opposing counsel would likely benefit from the opportunity to obtain expedited discovery prior to the Rule 26(f) planning meeting, opposing counsel may stipulate to this modification. Similarly, if both parties have confidential documents that will be produced in the case, opposing counsel will likely be more willing to stipulate to a protective order preserving the documents' confidentiality.

When faced with a request from opposing counsel seeking a modification of the discovery rules, keep in mind that, even if the requested stipulation is sought only to accommodate opposing counsel's schedule, a time may come when you would benefit from a similar exercise of professional courtesy from opposing counsel. Refusal to stipulate to a reasonable modification may come back to haunt you. Moreover, courts expect counsel to agree to stipulations extending deadlines or modifying schedules, for instance, unless a party is being recalcitrant or if time is pressing.

Judge's Perspective:

In determining what position to take with respect to seeking or opposing a stipulation regarding discovery, keep in mind how that position will appear if agreement is not reached and the matter is referred to the court for resolution. Generally, courts do not look favorably on refusals to stipulate that are seemingly "knee-jerk" in nature and disassociated from any actual prejudice or inconvenience to the opposing party. At the same time, if a pattern emerges whereby a party regularly seeks delay or other relief from pre-set discovery limits, then a court is less likely to view a refusal to stipulate by the other party as being an unreasonable reaction.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsStipulations

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

18 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
II. USING STIPULATIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.05

22.05 When to Use Discovery Stipulations.

Unless the court directs otherwise, parties may [Fed R Civ P 29]:

- Provide that depositions may be taken before any person, at any time or place, on any notice, and in any manner.

- Modify other procedures governing or limitations placed on discovery, unless the stipulation would interfere with a court-specified discovery cutoff date or scheduled hearing or trial.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsStipulations

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

19 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
II. USING STIPULATIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.06

22.06 Discovery Stipulations Distinct From Disclosure Stipulations.

Fed R Civ P 29 governs only stipulations relating to discovery, and not stipulations relating to mandatory disclosure under Fed R Civ P 26(a).

Cross Reference:

Discussion of stipulations relating to mandatory disclosure, see Ch. 15, Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures, §§ 15.15 -15.17.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryDisclosuresGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsStipulations

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

20 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
II. USING STIPULATIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.07

22.07 Requirements for Use of Discovery Stipulations.

22.07[1] Stipulation Generally Must Be in Writing. To modify discovery by agreement of the parties, you generally must prepare a formal written stipulation signed by all interested parties [see Fed R Civ P 29; Tropix, Inc. v. Lyon & Lyon (D Mass 1996) 169 FRD 3, 3-4].

22.07[2] Examples of Informal Writings Not Enforced by Court.

22.07[2][a] Confirming Letter Inadequate. A letter to opposing counsel that confirmed an oral agreement to limit the length of time to take depositions was not enforced by the court, because the agreement was not in the form of a stipulation [Pescia v. Auburn Ford-Lincoln Mercury (MD Ala 1977) 177 FRD 509, 510].

22.07[2][b] Oral Agreement Inadequate. An oral agreement between opposing counsel is not sufficient to extend time to respond to discovery [Tropix, Inc. v. Lyon & Lyon (D Mass 1996) 169 FRD 3, 3-4].

22.07[2][c] Unilateral Understanding Inadequate. A unilateral understanding is insufficient to create an enforceable stipulation. For example, a party who mistakenly believes that discovery is suspended pending response to a settlement offer is not justified in ignoring discovery deadlines or unilaterally granting extensions of time, even if the intention is to save time and expense [Rogerson v. Xidex Corp. (D Mass 1986) 110 FRD 412, 413].

22.07[3] Exceptions to Writing Requirement.

22.07[3][a] Oral Representation in Open Court. Courts may enforce oral stipulations made in open court [Rice v. Glad Hands, Inc. (5th Cir 1985) 750 F2d 434, 437-438].

22.07[3][b] Stipulations on Record During Deposition. An oral agreement made on the record at a deposition constitutes an enforceable stipulation [Racine Educ. Ass'n v. Racine Unified Sch. Dist. (ED Wis 1979) 82 FRD 461, 462-463 ; see also Fed R Civ P 30(b)(5)(C) (requiring deposition officer to "set out any stipulations made by the attorneys about custody of the transcript or recording and of the exhibits, or about any other pertinent matters")].

22.07[3][c] Estoppel Doctrine May Prevent Unfair Advantage. Courts may enforce an oral discovery agreement, just as with certain other contracts that otherwise must be in writing, if the failure to do so allows one party to take unfair advantage of another [Oliver v. City of Shattuck (10th Cir 1946) 157 F2d 150, 153].

22.07[4] Filing Stipulations Not Required by Federal Rules. The Federal Rules do not require that stipulations be filed with the court [Fed R Civ P 5(d)(1), 29]. Nevertheless, most local rules require that stipulations be filed [see 22.07[5][a] -[d]]. Filing a stipulation can alert the court to a change in scheduling, and becomes part of the court record.

22.07[5] LOCAL PRACTICE: Requirements for Stipulation.

22.07[5][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. Stipulations in writing must be filed in the proceeding and approved by the judge, except as authorized by statute or the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. The Central District explicitly recognizes the enforceability of stipulations made in open court and those made on the record at a deposition [CD Cal Civ LR 7-1].

Many judges in the Central District have standing orders that address stipulations, either generally or as it pertains to certain types of stipulations. Some judges require that good cause for every stipulation be set forth in a separately filed declaration. Refer to the standing orders of the judges to be certain that no special requirements exist. The court may reject nonconforming stipulations.

22.07[5][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. The local rules for the Eastern District explicitly state that stipulations must be in writing and signed by all counsel or parties in propria persona. Exceptions to this rule include stipulations recorded in the transcript during the course of a deposition, those made in open court and noted by the courtroom deputy clerk in the minutes or by the court reporter in the notes, or those recited in a pretrial or other court order. Only when it is necessary to prevent manifest injustice will the court recognize stipulations not in conformity with these requirements [ED Cal Gen LR 143(a)]. In addition, stipulations must be filed [see ED Cal Gen LR 144(a)].

22.07[5][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. Every stipulation that requests judicial action must be in writing signed by all affected parties or their counsel. The local rules do not include a filing requirement [ND Cal Civ LR 7-12].

22.07[5][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. While the Southern District does not explicitly require that stipulations be filed, the local rules do state that stipulations are not binding unless approved by the court, or unless otherwise provided [SD Cal Civ LR 7.2(a)]. The stipulation must generally be filed in order to be approved.

22.07[6] Check Standing Orders of Judges. Because some judges, particularly in the Central District, have standing orders pertaining to stipulations, you should refer to any such standing orders prior to preparing a stipulation to make sure it conforms to the particular judge's requirements. Nonconforming stipulations may be rejected.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsStipulations

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

21 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
II. USING STIPULATIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.08

22.08 Consider Effects of Stipulation.

22.08[1] Stipulations Govern Only Litigation at Hand. If opposing parties are involved in more than one lawsuit against each other, a discovery stipulation applies only to the litigation for which the stipulation is prepared, unless the parties express an intent to be bound in other suits [Melton v. McCormick (WDNY 1982) 94 FRD 344, 346].

Cross Reference:

6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 29.06[2] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

22.08[2] Avoid Ambiguous Terms. Courts fully enforce the unambiguous terms expressed in the stipulation. When terms are ambiguous, the court examines the surrounding circumstances to determine the intent of the parties in entering the stipulation [see Rice v. Glad Hands, Inc. (5th Cir 1985) 750 F2d 434, 438].

Warning:

Inclusion of ambiguous terms can lead to additional time and expense for the court to resolve the intended meaning of the stipulation.

Cross Reference:

6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 29.06[1], [4] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

22.08[3] Expressly Include All Desired Terms. A stipulation binds parties only to the terms expressly included in the stipulation [see Angell v. Shawmut Bank Conn. Nat'l Ass'n (MDNC 1994) 153 FRD 585, 590-591]. Make sure the stipulation includes all terms by which the parties intend to be bound.

Cross Reference:

6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 29.06[4] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsStipulations

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

22 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
II. USING STIPULATIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.09

22.09 Prior Judicial Approval Required for Some Stipulations.

22.09[1] General Rule: No Approval Required. The Federal Rules generally do not require court approval for discovery stipulations [Fed R Civ P 29].

22.09[2] Exception: Stipulation Interferes With Court-Imposed Deadlines. Prior court approval is required for stipulations that extend time for responses to interrogatories, requests for production of documents, and requests for admission when the stipulated response date would interfere with dates for discovery cutoff, hearing of a motion, or trial [Fed R Civ P 29(b)].

Some judges in the Northern District make an exception to this exception, and allow parties to stipulate to extend the date for filing motions beyond the discovery cutoff and to conduct some discovery beyond the formal cutoff date. Check with the particular judge and the pretrial order to determine whether prior court approval is required.

22.09[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: Required Judicial Approval.

22.09[3][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. Stipulations are not effective in the Central District unless first approved by the judge, except as authorized by statute or the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure [CD Cal Civ LR 7-1].

A separate order must be electronically filed with any stipulation, requiring an order of the court. The pertinent elements requested in the stipulation must be set forth in the order [CD Cal Civ LR 52-4.1].

22.09[3][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. Stipulations generally are not effective in the Eastern District unless first approved by the court, except as otherwise provided in the local or federal rules [ED Cal Gen LR 143(b)].

However, an initial extension of time for no more than 28 days to respond to interrogatories, requests for admissions, or requests for production of documents may be filed without court approval if the stipulation is signed on behalf of all parties who have appeared in the action and are affected by the stipulation. The court must approve all other stipulations that extend time. The court does not recognize any open extensions of time by stipulation [ED Cal Gen LR 144(a)].

Timing:

Try to obtain a stipulation from opposing counsel as soon as possible after you determine that you need an extension. Requests for court-approved extensions brought on the date a response is due are disfavored [see ED Cal Gen LR 144(d)].

Consider:

If opposing counsel seeks a reasonable request for an extension of time, the court likely will look at you with disfavor if you refuse it.

As with other stipulations, those that seek an order shortening time must be approved by the judge or magistrate judge on whose calendar the matter is to be heard before such stipulations will be given effect. Any proposed order shortening time must include blanks for the court to designate a time and date for the hearing [ED Cal Gen LR 144(e)].

With the written stipulation, you must submit the proposed order to the court. You need not, however, submit a separate document to contain the proposed order. The proposed order may consist of an endorsement on the stipulation with the words, "IT IS SO ORDERED," with spaces designated for the date and signature of the judge or magistrate judge [ED Cal Gen LR 143(b)].

22.09[3][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. Stipulations in the Northern District are generally effective without prior court approval, though local rules do permit the parties to submit the stipulation for approval [ND Cal Civ LR 7-12]. Any stipulation that would vary the date of a Case Management Conference is not effective, however, unless approved by the assigned judge before the date set for the conference [ND Cal Civ LR 16-2(e)].

When preparing a proposed form of order to submit with the stipulation, the local rules recommend that the order include an endorsement on the stipulation of the words, "PURSUANT TO STIPULATION, IT IS SO ORDERED," with spaces designated for the date and the signature of the judge [ND Cal Civ LR 7-12].

22.09[3][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. Stipulations are only binding on the court when approved by the judge [SD Cal Civ LR 7.2(a)].

When preparing the stipulation and order, you must include the heading "ORDER" at the close of the stipulation portion. Below this heading, you must include the "sum and substance" of the matters stipulated. If the stipulation provides for an extension of time, you must include the reason for the change of date, otherwise the stipulation may be rejected by the court. The document must close with blank lines for the date and the judge's signature, below which must appear the words "Judge of the District Court" [SD Cal Civ LR 7.2(b)].

If you cannot fit the order on the same page as the stipulation, the order page to be signed must contain a header or footer identifying the document name, case title and name of requesting party [SD Cal Civ LR 7.2(c)].

Cross Reference:

Form, see § 22.70.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsStipulations

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
II. USING STIPULATIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.10

22.10 Judicial Rejection of Stipulations.

22.10[1] Courts Have Authority to Reject Stipulations. Courts have the authority to reject stipulations, and parties may not enter stipulations if "the court orders otherwise" [Fed R Civ P 29].

22.10[2] Rejection Based on Change in Circumstances. The court may relieve a party from an improvident stipulation if enforcement of the stipulation would contravene the policy favoring full disclosure and interfere with the ability to dispose of a case on the merits [see, e.g., In re Westinghouse Elec. Corp. (10th Cir 1978) 570 F2d 899, 902-903].

Example--Changed Circumstances:

A stipulation that precluded additional questioning of a deponent was not enforced when important documents were produced after the parties' agreement, and enforcement of the stipulation would have closed the door to the development of potentially critical facts [In re Westinghouse Elec. Corp. (10th Cir 1978) 570 F2d 899, 902-903].

22.10[3] Rejection to Prevent Injustice. A court may relieve a party from an improvident stipulation to prevent injustice, such as, when the stipulation was entered into under a mistake of law [Marshall v. Emersons Ltd. (4th Cir 1979) 593 F2d 565, 568-569].

Cross Reference:

6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 29.07 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsStipulations

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

24 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
II. USING STIPULATIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.11

22.11 Using Stipulations for General Discovery Matters.

22.11[1] Parties May Stipulate to Permit Discovery Before Rule 26(f) Planning Meeting.

22.11[1][a] General Rule: No Discovery Before Rule 26(f) Meeting. Normally, except in certain circumstances, parties may not seek discovery until after they have conferred as required under Rule 26(f) [Fed R Civ P 26(d), (f)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the requirements of the discovery planning meeting required under Fed R Civ P 26(f), see Ch. 15, Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures, §§ 15.03 -15.14.

22.11[1][b] Availability of Stipulation. Parties may agree by written stipulation to permit discovery prior to the Fed R Civ P 26(f) discovery planning meeting [Fed R Civ P 26(d)].

22.11[2] Parties May Stipulate to Alter Time for Response to Discovery Request. The parties may stipulate to increase or decrease the time required to respond to discovery requests, including the 30-day period normally required to respond to requests for production, interrogatories, and requests for admission [Fed R Civ P 29, 33(b)(2), 34(b)(2)(A), 36(a)(3)]. Courts recognize that discovery responses are rarely completed within the 30-day period and expect that this type of modification be accommodated by stipulation [see Jayne H. Lee, Inc. v. Flagstaff Indus. Corp. (D Md 1997) 173 FRD 651, 653-654].

Warning:

Particularly in the Northern District, make sure that any extension of time does not interfere with any dates set by the court for completion of discovery, the hearing of a motion, the Case Management Conference or trial. If the extension would interfere with any of those dates, court approval is required [Fed R Civ P 29; ND Cal Civ LR 16-2(e)]. The interference with court dates is of special concern to practice in the Northern District, because prior court approval is required in any event for stipulations in the Central District, Eastern District and Southern District [CD Cal Civ LR 7-1; ED Cal Gen LR 143(b); SD Cal Civ LR 7.2(a)].

Cross References:

Form, see 22.68. Discussion of prior court approval under local rules, see §§ 22.09[3][a] -[d].

22.11[3] Parties May Stipulate to Exceed Permitted Number of Interrogatories. Parties may stipulate to allow more than 25 interrogatories for each party, the maximum number allowed under the Federal Rules [Fed R Civ P 29, 33(a)(1)].

22.11[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: Stipulation Regarding Custody of Discovery Documents.

22.11[4][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. The party propounding interrogatories, requests for production of documents, and requests for admission holds the originals pending actual use or court-ordered production [CD Cal Civ LR 33-3, 34-3, 36-3]. Local rules include no provision for stipulation to alter the custodian for these types of discovery.

In contrast, with respect to depositions, the original transcript of the deposition is to be kept by the attorney who noticed the deposition, unless otherwise stipulated by the parties on the record at the deposition [CD Cal Civ LR 32-2].

22.11[4][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. In the Northern District, the party propounding interrogatories, requests for production of documents or requests for admission must retain the original of the discovery request and the original response [ND Cal Civ LR 26-1]. Parties are encouraged, however, to stipulate to sharing diskettes or other computer-readable copies of discovery requests and responses to save costs and facilitate expeditious pretrial discovery [ND Cal Civ LR 26-1 (commentary)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion regarding the appropriate custodians of specific types of discovery documents, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, §§ 23.135 -23.148.

22.11[5] Stipulation Concerning Conduct of Physical or Mental Examinations. Parties may stipulate to alter the requirements for taking a physical or mental examination otherwise required by Fed R Civ P 35 [Fed R Civ P 29, 35(a)].

If the stipulation pertains only to the taking of the exam itself, Rule 35(b)'s requirements regarding the examiner's report will still apply [Fed R Civ P 35(b)]. Parties wishing to alter these requirements must include terms expressly altering the requirements in the stipulation [see Fed R Civ P 35(b)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion regarding requirements for taking physical or mental examinations, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, §§ 23.189 -23.216.

22.11[6] Parties May Stipulate to Vary Subpoena Procedures. Parties may stipulate to alter the terms of a subpoena for discovery of a non-party witness [Fed R Civ P 29, 45]. Stipulations may modify, for example, methods of taking a deposition [see Westmoreland v. CBS, Inc. (DC Cir 1985) 770 F2d 1168, 1175], and reimbursement of costs [see Angell v. Shawmut Bank Conn. Nat'l Ass'n (MDNC 1994) 153 FRD 585, 589-590].

Cross Reference:

Discussion regarding discovery on non-party discovery, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, §§ 23.259 -23.285.

22.11[7] Parties May Stipulate to Limit Discovery in Future Litigation. At least one court has enforced stipulations limiting discovery in future litigation [see Elliott-McGowan Prods. v. Republic Prods., Inc. (SDNY 1956)

145 F Supp 48, 50]. Because of the potential impact on the client in future litigation, be sure the client understands and consents to such terms.

22.11[8] Parties May Stipulate to Expedite Discovery. When both parties recognize a need to expedite discovery, they should draft a stipulation setting forth the scope, method, and timing of discovery. The stipulation should be designed to maximize the efficiency of the discovery process, minimize discovery disputes, and facilitate preparation for the hearing or trial. The stipulation may include:

- Specification of the number of depositions to be taken [Fed R Civ P 26(f), 29, 30(a)].
- Disclosure of the identity of each intended deponent [Fed R Civ P 26(a)].
- Use of inexpensive discovery procedures, such as telephone depositions [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(4)].

If the parties agree to expedited discovery, the stipulation should be incorporated into the written report required by Rule 26(f) [see Fed R Civ P 26(f)].

Cross References:

Discussion regarding the written report required by Rule 26(f), see Ch. 15, Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures, § 15.14. Discussion of oral depositions, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, §§ 23.19 -23.75.

22.11[9] Parties May Stipulate to Preserve Confidentiality. Parties may enter stipulations to limit the dissemination of sensitive, proprietary, or confidential information. For example, parties may stipulate that discovery be limited to certain matters, that discovery be conducted with no one present except persons designated by the court, that a deposition be sealed and opened only by court order, and that secret or confidential matters not be revealed, or be revealed only in certain designated ways [Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(D)-(G), 29].

Cross Reference:

Discussion regarding protective orders to maintain confidential information, see § 22.45.

22.11[10] Parties May Stipulate to Obtain Discovery Abroad. Parties may stipulate to the terms of obtaining discovery abroad, as long as those terms do not violate the law of the country in which the discovery is sought. For example, parties have stipulated to use commissions to require the production of documents located in foreign countries as provided in the Hague Evidence Convention [see Compagnie Francaise d'Assurance v. Phillips Petroleum Co. (SDNY 1984) 105 FRD 16, 22-23].

Cross Reference:

Discussion regarding obtaining discovery abroad, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, § 23.45.

22.11[11] Stipulations Regarding Discovery for Use in Foreign Courts. Parties may stipulate to matters relating to obtaining and using domestic discovery for use in foreign proceedings. For example, parties have stipulated to stay discovery pending appeal of a subpoena issued under 28 USC § 1782, the statute which permits discovery of individuals in the United States for use in a foreign or international tribunal [In re Gianoli Aldunate (2d Cir 1993) 3 F3d 54, 57 , cert. denied sub nom. Fonden v. Aldunate, 510 US 965 (1993)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsStipulations

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

25 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
II. USING STIPULATIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.12

22.12 Parties May Stipulate to Modify Deposition Procedures.

22.12[1] Parties May Stipulate to Modify Procedural Aspects of Depositions. Parties may stipulate to modify procedural aspects of both oral and written depositions. Unless otherwise directed by the court, parties may stipulate that depositions be taken [Fed R Civ P 29(a)]:

- Before any person.
- At any time or place.
- On any notice.
- In any manner.

Cross Reference:

Discussion regarding procedural rules for taking oral and written depositions, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, §§ 23.19 -23.110.

22.12[2] Parties May Stipulate to Exceed Limit on Number of Depositions. Parties may stipulate to take more than ten depositions, the maximum number of depositions permitted for both oral and written depositions under the Federal Rules [Fed R Civ P 29, 30(a)(2)(A)(i), 31(a)(2)(A)(i)]. Absent a stipulation, parties must seek leave of court to take additional depositions [Fed R Civ P 30(a)(2)(A), 31(a)(2)(A)].

Cross References:

Further discussion of the number of depositions a party may take, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, § 23.21[2].

22.12[3] Parties May Stipulate to Take Deposition of Previously Deposed Witness. If a party determines it is necessary to depose a witness whose deposition has already been taken, the party must obtain a written stipulation with the other parties to avoid the need to obtain leave of court [Fed R Civ P 30(a)(2)(A)(ii), 31(a)(2)(A)(ii)].

Cross Reference:

Further discussion on deposing previously deposed witnesses, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, § 23.25.

22.12[4] Parties May Stipulate to Take Early Deposition.

22.12[4][a] General Rule Against Depositions Before Rule 26(f) Planning Meeting. Absent a stipulation or court order, depositions may not be taken prior to the time the parties have met and conferred as required by Fed R Civ P 26(f) [Fed R Civ P 26(d)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of Rule 26(f), see Ch. 15, Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures, see §§ 15.03, 15.04.

22.12[4][b] Parties May Stipulate to Early Deposition. Parties may stipulate to take a deposition before the Fed R Civ P 26(f) meeting [Fed R Civ P 26(d)(1), 30(a)(2)(A)(iii), 31(a)(2)(A)(iii)].

22.12[5] Parties May Stipulate to Waive or Modify Notice Requirements. Parties may stipulate to alter or waive notice requirements for oral or written depositions [Fed R Civ P 29(a), 30(b)(1), 31(a)(3)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of notice requirements for depositions, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, §§ 23.27 -23.33.

22.12[6] Stipulations May Allow Deposition Before Person Other Than Officer. A deposition taken in the United States ordinarily must be taken before an officer authorized to administer oaths or appointed by the court [Fed R Civ P 28, 30(b)(5), 31(b)]. The parties may stipulate to have the deposition taken "before any person" [Fed R Civ P 29(a)].

Cross References:

Discussion regarding the qualifications of an officer and who may take depositions, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, 23.43, 23.44. Discussion regarding qualifications of persons taking depositions outside the United States, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, § 23.45.

22.12[7] Parties May Stipulate to Record and Take Deposition by Other Than Stenographic Means.

22.12[7][a] Modes of Recording. Unless otherwise ordered by the court, the rules provide that depositions may be recorded by sound, sound-and-visual, or by stenographic means, in addition to other methods designated by any party [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(3)]. The parties, however, may stipulate that a deposition be taken by telephone or other remote electronic means [Fed R Civ P 29(a), 30(b)(4)].

22.12[7][b] Factors Affecting Choice of Recording Method. For cases in which the dollar value of the case is low, or where it would be burdensome for a witness to appear at a deposition for reasons such as distance or physical disabilities, parties may decide that telephonic or other electronic methods, such as instant messaging, would be appropriate. A stipulation would be required under these circumstances [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(4)]. When the demeanor of the witness is important, sound-and-visual recording would be valuable. No stipulation is required for this type of recording, as it is provided for in the rules [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(3)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion regarding the manner of recording depositions, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, §§ 23.34, 23.46, 23.63.

22.12[8] Parties May Stipulate to Shift Cost of Deposition. Normally, the party taking the deposition pays for the cost of the recording of the deposition [see Fed R Civ P 30(b)(3)(B)]. The parties may, however, stipulate to shift or share those costs [Fed R Civ P 29].

In the Southern District, the party taking the deposition assumes the transcription costs, unless, upon the parties' agreement, the court orders a waiver of transcription or a different apportionment of cost [SD Cal Civ LR 30.1].

22.12[9] Parties May Stipulate to Matters Regarding Documents. If documents are used as exhibits or produced for identification, the parties may stipulate to foundational issues, such as [see Fed R Civ P 30(f); Fed R Evid 803(6), 901, 1003]:

- That a document is authentic.
- That a document was prepared by or under the direction of a witness.
- That a document was kept in the regular course of business of a witness.
- That, following the deposition, a document will be retained by a certain party.
- That a document will be kept available for future inspection.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the procedures for authentication of documents, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, § 23.184.

22.12[10] Parties May Stipulate to Limit Scope of Examination. Parties may stipulate to limit the scope of the examination [see Fed R Civ P 29 (parties may stipulate to take deposition "in any manner"); see also Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(D) (party may seek protective order to limit scope of examination)].

Example:

When personal jurisdiction is at issue, the parties may stipulate to limit the scope of a deposition to matters relating to personal jurisdiction without prejudice to the taking of another deposition of the defendant on the merits of the case [see Fed R Civ P 29].

22.12[11] Parties May Stipulate to Modify Duration of Deposition. While the rules limit the duration of a deposition to one day of seven hours, parties may stipulate to extend this time [Fed R Civ P 30(d)(1)]. In addition, parties may stipulate to divide the seven-hour period over more than one day [see Fed R Civ P 30(d)(1)].

In the Eastern District, if counsel knows early on that he or she will need more than one day of seven hours to depose a particular witness, counsel should address the matter in the Joint Status Report and at the status conference. If counsel learns later that more time is needed, counsel should first try to obtain a stipulation with opposing counsel before filing a motion dealing with discovery matters [see ED Cal Civ LR 240(a)(8), (b); ED Cal Civ LR 251(b)].

Cross References:

Discussion regarding the duration of depositions, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, § 23.21.

22.12[12] Parties May Stipulate to Waive Formalities. Parties may stipulate to waive formalities regarding a deposition, such as notice and signature [Fed R Civ P 29, 30, 31].

22.12[13] Parties May Stipulate to Alter Requirements for Retention of Deposition Notes.

22.12[13][a] General Rule Regarding Custody of Deposition. Under the Federal Rules, the deposition officer retains the stenographic notes or the copy of the recording of a deposition. The parties may, however, stipulate otherwise [Fed R Civ P 30(f)(3)].

22.12[13][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. The Central District requires that the attorney noticing the deposition maintain control of the original deposition until final disposition of the case or until called on to lodge the original deposition with the court, unless otherwise stipulated to on the record at the deposition [CD Cal Civ LR 32-2].

22.12[13][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. The Eastern District requires that "[c]ounsel noticing a deposition is responsible to obtain the original deposition transcript or audio or video tape recording from the deposition reporter ... and to retain it under conditions suitable to protect it from loss, destruction or tampering" until it is filed with the clerk or until one year after final disposition of the case, whichever is earlier [ED Cal Civ LR 250.1(b)]. Although the local rules do not address stipulations, presumably, the parties may stipulate for other custody and retention arrangements under Fed R Civ P 30(f)(3).

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the custody of deposition documents, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, §§ 23.62, 23.63.

22.12[14] Parties May Stipulate to Use of Unsigned Transcript. Prior to completion of a deposition, a deponent or party may request to review the transcript or recording within 30 days of being notified that the transcript or recording is available. If the deponent wishes to change any testimony, the deponent must sign a statement reciting the changes and the reasons for making them [Fed R Civ P 30(e)]. The parties may stipulate to allow the use of the unsigned transcript without prejudice to the deponent's right to correct and sign the statement regarding changes at a later time [see Fed R Civ P 29]. For example, if the deposition testimony contains information relevant to a fact material to a pending hearing, the parties may stipulate to allow use of the deposition testimony at the hearing rather than file a motion to continue the hearing until after the 30 days has lapsed [see Fed R Civ P 29].

Cross Reference:

Discussion regarding review of deposition testimony, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, § 23.61.

22.12[15] Parties May Stipulate to Modify Rules on Waiving and Reserving Objections.

22.12[15][a] General Rules. A party present at a deposition need not object to the competency of a witness or to the competency, relevancy or materiality of testimony, unless the ground of the objection could be obviated or removed if raised at the deposition [Fed R Civ P 32(d)(3)(A)]. In the latter case, however, a party who fails to raise the objection at the deposition waives the objection completely. In particular, objections pertaining to the manner of taking the deposition, the form of the questions or answers, the oath or affirmation, the conduct of parties, and other errors that might be obviated, removed, or cured, are waived unless raised at the deposition [Fed R Civ P 32(d)(3)(B)].

The parties may, however, stipulate to alter these rules [Fed R Civ P 29(a)]. These stipulations are typically done on the record just prior to the questioning of the witness.

22.12[15][b] Reserving Objections Except As to Form. Frequently, counsel who participate in a deposition stipulate that all objections are reserved, except those "as to form."

Warning:

Though a stipulation reserving objections except as to form resembles Fed R Civ P 32(d)(3), it is not the same. A question that might be correct as to form may nonetheless be objectionable for being asserted without a proper foundation. If this stipulation is in place, opposing counsel may refrain from objecting to the question at the deposition, but later raise the objection of lack of foundation at trial. The response to the deposition question may thereby be excluded at trial. Under Rule 32(d)(3), this objection would have been waived if not raised at the deposition, because counsel taking the deposition could have cured the defect by laying the proper foundation at the deposition. Absent the stipulation, the response would therefore be admissible at trial. Counsel taking the deposition should consider the risks of entering this type of stipulation before agreeing to it.

22.12[15][c] Reserving All Objections. Counsel may stipulate to reserve all objections, including those as to form [Los Angeles Trust & Deed Mortg. Exch. v. SEC (9th Cir 1959) 264 F2d 199, 212, 213].

Warning:

Consider the potential for substantial parts of the deposition to be excluded at trial pursuant to a stipulation reserving all objections. In addition, objections are an important tool for ensuring that your client understands the questions he or she is answering and for controlling an opposing party's improper questions.

22.12[15][d] Agreeing to Blanket Stipulations. In some areas local practitioners develop a set of stipulations (usually concerning how long the court reporter will have to complete the transcript, how long the deponent will have to review the transcript, and who will maintain the original transcript) to which they commonly stipulate. These sets of stipulations may be commonly referred to as the "usual stipulations." Nevertheless, to avoid disputes, counsel should always insist that the exact stipulations be articulated on the record to avoid any uncertainty and to ensure against stipulating to undesirable terms.

22.12[16] Parties May Stipulate to Matters Pertaining to Taking Depositions Abroad. As parties may stipulate to take the deposition "at any place," parties may stipulate to take a deposition in a foreign country [Fed R Civ P 29(a); In re Anschuetz & Co. (5th Cir 1987) 754 F2d 602, 609 , vacated on other grounds sub nom. Anschuetz & Co. v. Mississippi River Bridge Auth., 483 US 1002 (1987)]. However, the terms of the stipulation should not contravene any laws of the country in which the deposition is taken [Popular Imps., Inc. v. Wong's Int'l Trading, Inc. (EDNY 1996) 166 FRD 276, 280 n5]. Some countries, such as Japan and Switzerland, have strict laws severely limiting or precluding depositions.

If the deposition is of a non-party witness, parties otherwise inclined to stipulate to the terms of the deposition, must consider the provisions of the Hague Convention, if the deponent resides within the jurisdiction of one of the signatory countries [see Graco v. Kremlin, Inc. (ND Ill 1984) 101 FRD 503, 519-520].

Stipulations have been used for the following procedures:

- To invoke a foreign commission to take depositions abroad [In re Bankers Trust Co. (3d Cir 1984) 752 F2d 874, 878 ; but see In re Bankers Trust Co. (3d Cir 1985) 775 F2d 545, 547-549 (rejecting terms of stipulation to allow use of previous deposition where lower court had ordered second deposition must be taken by commission)].

- To agree on procedures for taking depositions in foreign countries, including procedures that circumvent the requirements of Fed R Civ P 28(b) regarding who may take the deposition [Popular Imps., Inc. v. Wong's Int'l Trading, Inc. (EDNY 1996) 166 FRD 276, 280].

- To decide where deposition will be taken [Pillar Corp. v. Enercon Indus. Corp. (ED Wisc 1988) 694 F Supp 1353, 1363].

Cross References:

Discussion of the procedures for taking depositions abroad, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, §§ 23.45, 23.79.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsStipulationsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
II. USING STIPULATIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.13

22.13 Deposition Stipulations Must Be Placed on Record.

The deposition officer must state on the record any stipulations made by counsel concerning the custody of the transcript or recording and the exhibits, or stipulations concerning other pertinent matters [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(5)(C)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsStipulations

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
III. USING MOTIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.14

22.14 CHECKLISTS: Bringing a Noticed Motion to Modify Discovery Procedures.

22.14[1] Preparing Motion.

☐ Determine whether proposed modification would interfere with court-imposed deadlines.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 29; ND Cal Civ LR 26-2

Discussion:
See § 22.09[2]

☐ Consult with opposing party to attempt to resolve differences.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(c), 37(a)(3)(B), (d)

Discussion:
See § 22.17[3]

☐ Consider whether joint motion is appropriate.

Discussion:
See § 22.17[4]

☐ Carefully review district court rules and any standing orders issued by the assigned judge for any local prerequisites to bringing discovery motion (e.g., meet and confer requirements).

Authority:
CD Cal Civ LR 37-2; ED Cal Civ LR 251; ND Cal Civ LR 26-2; SD Cal Civ LR 26.1

Discussion:
See § 22.17[5]

☐ Determine whether to seek order assessing costs of discovery motion on opposing party.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(c), (g), 30(d)(3)(C), 30(g), 36(a), 37(a)(5), (c)(2), (d), (f)

Discussion:
See § 22.33

☐ Prepare notice of motion and supporting documents.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 7(b), 37(a); but see ED Cal Civ LR 251(f)

Discussion:
See § 22.17

Standard Procedure Checklist:
Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.12

22.14[2] Preparing Opposition to Motion.

☐ Review local rules to determine whether joint stipulation must be prepared and whether supplemental briefing is allowed.

Authority:
CD Cal Civ LR 37-2, 37-2.3; ED Cal Civ LR 251(b), (c)

Discussion:
See § 22.17[4]

☐ Determine extent of issues to raise in opposition to preserve them on appeal.

Authority:
Diapulse Corp. of Am. v. Curtis Publ'g Co. (2d Cir 1967) 374 F2d 442, 445

Discussion:
See § 22.18[2]

☐ Determine whether to request protective order if motion seeks to compel discovery.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 37(a)(5)(B)

Discussion:

See § 22.31[2]

☐ Determine whether to seek order assessing cost of opposing motion on moving party.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(c), (g), 30(d)(3)(C), 30(g), 36(a), 37(a)(5), (c)(2), (d), (f)

Discussion:
See § 22.33

☐ Prepare opposition and supporting documents.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 7(b), 37(a)

Discussion:
See § 22.18

Standard Procedure Checklist:
Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.37

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsGeneral Overview

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

28 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
III. USING MOTIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.15

22.15 Options and Strategy.

If a party cannot obtain a modification to the discovery rules by stipulation, the party may move the court to order such modification. A party should generally resort to motion practice to regulate discovery only when opposing counsel refuses to stipulate to the sought modification or when required by the rules. Some modifications may only be made pursuant to court order, however.

Example:

A stipulation is insufficient to modify discovery when the proposed modification would interfere with discovery cutoffs, hearing, or trial dates [see, e.g., Fed R Civ P 29; but see ND Cal Civ LR 26-2].

Determine at the outset whether informal procedures are available, through the judge, to deal with discovery disputes without Fed R Civ P 37 motion practice. Use of the informal procedures is preferable for anything but the most egregious offenses. In fact, it is generally unrealistic to expect a formal Rule 37 motion will yield a result justifying the cost and time, unless the adversary's conduct is inexcusable, or a true obstacle to trial preparation.

A party served with an interrogatory or document request that it considers ambiguous or unclear should contact the propounding attorney for clarification, rather than simply objecting. Similarly, a party served with an interrogatory or document request that it considers overly broad, partially irrelevant, or unduly burdensome should contact the propounding attorney in an attempt to reach an agreement reducing the scope of the request. Any agreement clarifying a discovery request should be reduced to writing. Furthermore, if there is a meaningful chance that the response to an interrogatory might be used at trial, the clarification should be set forth in a revised interrogatory.

If an informal request for clarification is rejected, the responding party should note that fact in its responses, set forth in good faith its understanding of the unclear terms, and then, on the basis of that understanding, provide answers. Similarly, if an informal request to narrow the scope of a document request is rejected, the responding party should note that fact, identify the scope of a request that it would consider appropriate, and then provide the documents responsive to that narrowed request.

Before filing a motion to modify discovery, make sure that the requested modification is reasonable under the circumstances. Courts are empowered to impose attorneys' fees on the moving party when the motion is not justified [ see, e.g., Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(H), 37(a)(5)(B)]. Similarly, when opposing counsel seeks a modification of a discovery procedure, consider that courts disfavor unreasonable refusals to accommodate requests, and that opposing a reasonable request could result in the imposition of attorneys' fees for the cost of bringing the motion [see, e.g., Fed R Civ P 26(c), 37(a)(5)(A)].

Also consider whether the sought modification is sufficiently important to warrant the time and expense of litigating the issue. For example, if an extension of time is sought to complete discovery responses, the time used to prepare the discovery papers may well be better spent preparing the responses themselves. The non-moving party should also consider whether the time and expense of opposing the motion is worth the cost to the client. Both parties should consider whether the dispute may be perceived by the court as trivial, and if so, it is necessary to seek judicial resolution nonetheless.

When preparing an opposition to a discovery motion, the issues of delay and expense are always present. The purpose of the federal rules is to "secure the just, speedy, and inexpensive determination of every action and proceeding" [Fed R Civ P 1]. Every discovery motion involves delay in the discovery process and expenses to the parties to some extent, and in this respect, runs counter to two of the purposes of the federal rules. These issues should be raised in the opposition along with the specific refutations pertaining to the issues raised in the particular motion.

Finally, the party seeking limits on discovery bears the burden of showing why discovery should be disallowed [Cable & Computer Tech., Inc. v. Lockheed Sanders, Inc. (CD Cal 1997) 175 FRD 646, 650]. This party may be the moving party, such as when the motion seeks a protective order, or the non-moving party, such as when the motion seeks to compel discovery.

Judge's Perspective:

Litigants should not lose sight of the history of discovery disputes already brought to the court's attention. For example, if repeated discovery motions have been made, the moving party will want to take into account the court's prior rulings and opponent's attitude to each party's respective discovery positions before bringing another motion.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsGeneral Overview

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

29 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
III. USING MOTIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.16

22.16 When to Use Motions to Regulate Discovery.

Circumstances in which a party can use pretrial motion practice to modify discovery procedures include the following:

- To alter the number of depositions and interrogatories, the length of depositions, the number of requests for admission, or the frequency or extent of use of the discovery methods set forth in the federal or local rules [see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)].

- To expand discovery to matters beyond relevance to the parties' claims or defenses to any matter relevant to the subject matter involved in the lawsuit [see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(1)].

- To determine whether material sought is privileged or should otherwise be protected from disclosure [see Fed R Civ P 26(c)].

- To obtain discovery from a recalcitrant party or witness [see Fed R Civ P 37].

- When the Federal Rules or local district rules require a party to obtain a court order [see, e.g., Fed R Civ P 36(b) (requiring motion to permit party to withdraw or amend admission served in response to request for admission)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMotions to CompelCivil ProcedureDiscoveryPrivileged MattersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

30 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
III. USING MOTIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.17

22.17 Bringing Discovery Motions.

22.17[1] General Rules for Discovery Motions. Although Fed R Civ P 7(b), the Federal Rule of Civil Procedure generally addressing motions, does not distinguish between discovery motions and other types of motions, the Federal Rules addressing discovery (Rules 26- 37) impose additional procedural requirements for certain types of discovery motions, such as motions to compel and motions for protective orders [see, e.g., Fed R Civ P 26(c) (requiring good-faith attempt to resolve dispute before bringing motion for protective order); see also Fed R Civ P 37 (requirements for motions to compel and motions for discovery sanctions)]. In addition, local district court rules and individual judge's rules may impose additional or different procedural requirements for discovery motions [see, e.g., ED Cal Civ LR 251(f) (general notice requirement for motions does not apply to discovery motions)].

Judge's Perspective:

Individual judges are particularly likely to have standing orders on how to bring discovery motions. Some judges have a three-stage approach: one method for emergencies, a second method for accelerated timing, and a third method consistent with a general motion calendar. Other judges may require a letter brief regarding the discovery issue before agreeing to hear the motion. Therefore, it is imperative to review standing orders, as well as local rules, for any particular court.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the general procedure for bringing noticed pretrial motions, see Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, §§ 26.12 -26.36.

22.17[2] Motion Must Be Filed in Appropriate Court. Discovery motions are typically brought in the court where the action is pending [see Fed R Civ P 26(c), 37(a)(1)].

Exceptions:

A Fed R Civ P 37(a) motion to compel discovery from a nonparty must be brought in the court in the district where the discovery would be taken [Fed R Civ P 37(a)(2)].

A Rule 26(c) motion for protective order relating to a deposition must be brought in the court in the district where the deposition is to be taken [Fed R Civ P 26(c)], although there are circumstances in which the court in the district where the action is pending has jurisdiction [see Platypus Wear v. K.D. Co. (SD Cal 1995) 905 F Supp 808, 810 ; see also Fed R Civ P 30(d)(3)(A) (when examination is being conducted in bad faith, court where action is pending or court where deposition is being taken may order examination terminated)].

22.17[3] Certification Regarding Good-Faith Attempt to Confer Is Mandatory. The Federal Rules require that discovery motions for protective orders, motions to compel and motions for sanctions be accompanied by a certification that the moving party has in good faith conferred or attempted to confer with the opposing party [Fed R Civ P 26(c), 37(a)(1), (d)(1)(B)]. Some jurisdictions require that the parties confer in person under certain circumstances [see CD Cal Civ LR 37-1; SD Cal Civ LR 26.1(a)]. Review local rules and individual judge's standing orders to determine whether to follow additional meet and confer requirements.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of meet and confer requirements for each of the district courts in California, see Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, § 25.05.

22.17[4] Joint Motion Is Possible. Adverse parties may join together to bring a discovery motion, or may stipulate regarding discovery [see, e.g., Owner-Operator Indep. Driver's Ass'n v. Swift Transp. Co. (D Ariz 2003) 288 F Supp2d 1033, 1040 (joint motion to vacate discovery deadlines pending scheduling conference); Maxwell v. Angel-Etts of Cal. (CD Cal 2001) 2001 US Dist LEXIS 25418, at *7 (joint motion to extend discovery motion deadline)].

Strategic Point:

If the discovery cutoff date set in the court's scheduling order appears impracticable, the parties may submit a joint motion to extend the cutoff, or more commonly, the parties may prepare a proposed stipulation to the cutoff date, with a signature line for the court. If the parties agree on the matter, a stipulation is an easier and more efficient means of obtaining the relief, and may be preferred by the court. The parties should call the court clerk to determine whether the court requires a motion or whether a stipulation is adequate.

Cross Reference:

Form of joint motion to extend the discovery cutoff, see § 22.72.

22.17[5] LOCAL PRACTICE: Requirements for Bringing Discovery Motions.

22.17[5][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. No motion on a discovery matter may be filed in the Central District unless the parties have first conferred to resolve the issue [CD Cal Civ LR 37-1].

If unable to resolve their differences, the parties must prepare a joint stipulation setting forth the issues in dispute and each party's contentions, and points and authorities [CD Cal Civ LR 37-2]. Note that a joint stipulation can be time-consuming to prepare, so make sure to leave enough time for all parties to make their contributions and review the document.

After the joint stipulation is filed each party may file a supplemental memorandum of law, of no more than five pages, not later than 14 days before the hearing on the motion [CD Cal Civ LR 37-2.3].

If the non-moving party refuses to cooperate in preparing the joint stipulation, the moving party must file an affidavit establishing the failure to cooperate for the court to consider the motion [CD Cal Civ LR 37-2.4]. Failure to cooperate may result in the imposition of sanctions [CD Cal Civ LR 37-4].

Cross Reference:

Discussion regarding additional requirements in the Central District, see Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, §§ 25.05[1], [2].

22.17[5][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. Notice provisions normally applicable to civil motion practice [see ED Cal Civ LR 230] do not apply to motions and hearings on discovery matters [ED Cal Civ LR 251(f)].

Except for discovery motions brought due to a total failure to respond to discovery or for discovery sanctions, all discovery motions, including those to modify discovery limitations for protective orders may be initiated by the filing of a notice of motion and motion, scheduling the hearing at least 21 days from the filing date. No other documents need be filed at that time [ED Cal Civ LR 251(a)].

If, after satisfying the meet and confer requirements, the parties cannot resolve their differences, they must prepare a joint statement re discovery disagreement [ED Cal Civ LR 251(b), (c)]. If opposing counsel refuses to cooperate in preparation of this document, counsel for the moving party may file and serve an affidavit so stating, along with that party's contentions with regard to the issues [ED Cal Civ LR 251(d)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of additional requirements in the Eastern District, see Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, § 25.05[3].

22.17[5][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. In the Northern District, the court will not entertain a request or motion to resolve a discovery dispute unless the parties have met and conferred in an attempt to resolve the disputed issues. If a dispute arises during a discovery event, the parties must attempt to resolve the matter without judicial intervention, but if this fails, counsel may contact the chambers of the assigned judge to ask if the judge is available to address the problem through a telephone conference [ND Cal Civ LR 37-1; see Fed R Civ P 37]. The Northern District prescribes the format and contents of a motion to compel further responses to a discovery request [see ND Cal Civ LR 37-2].

The Northern District clarifies that discovery requests calling for responses after the discovery cutoff are not enforceable except by order of the court for good cause shown. Motions to compel may not be filed more than seven days after the discovery cutoff for either fact or expert discovery, respectively [ND Cal Civ LR 26-2]. However, parties may stipulate to extend the date for filing motions and to conduct some discovery after the cutoff. Court approval may be required for such stipulations to be enforceable, depending on the particular judge's practice and the directives of the governing pretrial order.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of additional requirements in the Northern District, see Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, §§ 25.05[4], 25.10[3].

22.17[5][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. The court will not entertain any discovery related motions unless the parties have first met and conferred concerning all disputed issues [SD Cal Civ LR 26.1(a)]. If the non-moving party refuses or fails to meet and confer, the judge may order payment of reasonable expenses, including attorneys' fees [SD Cal Civ LR 26.1(a)]. The moving party must file with the motion a certificate of compliance with the requirements of Local Rule 26.1(a) [SD Cal Civ LR 26.1(b)].

The magistrate judge assigned to the case handles discovery motions. The magistrate may waive all or part of Local Rule 7.1(f), the local rule which designates the required documents to be filed with a motion [SD Cal Civ LR 26.1(e)]. As discovery motions may be resolved on an informal basis, call the magistrate judge's law clerk to learn the appropriate procedure.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of additional requirements in the Southern District, see Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, § 25.05[5].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeContent & FormCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeTime LimitationsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsGeneral Overview

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
III. USING MOTIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.18

22.18 Opposing Motions to Modify Discovery.

The procedure for preparing an opposition to a discovery motion generally follows the procedure for opposing other motions [see Fed R Civ P 7(b), 37(a)]. These procedures may be varied by local rules, as described in 22.17[5]. Not opposing the motion means that the court is likely to grant it, and the court may look unfavorably on the parties' failure to stipulate to the matter at issue in the motion. If for some reason a party cannot stipulate but decides not to oppose the motion, it may consider filing a notice of non-opposition explaining why it could not stipulate.

Cross References:

Discussion of local rules governing discovery motions, see § 22.17. Discussion of the general procedure to follow for opposing pretrial motions, see Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, §§ 26.37 -26.43.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsGeneral Overview

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
III. USING MOTIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.19

22.19 Courts May Limit Frequency or Extent of Discovery on Party's Motion.

22.19[1] Motion Procedure Is Available to Party Responding to Discovery Request. The recipient of discovery demands may bring a motion to limit the frequency or extent of use of discovery [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)].

22.19[2] Party Who Seeks Limit on Discovery Bears Burden of Showing Why Discovery Should Be Disallowed. The party who opposes discovery bears the burden of showing why the discovery should not be allowed, and the burden of clarifying, explaining, and supporting the objection [Cable & Computer Tech., Inc. v. Lockheed Sanders, Inc. (CD Cal 1997) 175 FRD 646, 650].

22.19[3] Party May Move to Limit Discovery That Is Unreasonably Cumulative, Duplicative or Inconvenient.

22.19[3][a] Party May Seek to Remove Obligation to Respond. A party may move the court to limit discovery that is unreasonably cumulative, duplicative or inconvenient [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)(C)(i)]. Once the court determines that the discovery is unreasonably cumulative or duplicative, the court must order relief [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)(C)].

22.19[3][b] Party May Seek to Shift Cost of Responding. Instead of removing the obligation to respond to cumulative, duplicative or inconvenient discovery demands, a responding party may seek to shift the cost of responding to the discovery demands, particularly when the discovery sought is not readily accessible [OpenTV v. Liberate Techs. (ND Cal 2003) 219 FRD 474, 475-476].

22.19[3][c] Opposing Party May Defeat Motion by Establishing Reasonableness of Discovery Demand. A court generally will not limit discovery simply because it is somewhat cumulative and duplicative; it must be unreasonably so [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(1)]. An opposing party may defeat a motion filed on these grounds by establishing that the cumulative and duplicative discovery is reasonable [see Travelers Rental Co. v. Ford Motor Co. (MDNC 1989) 116 FRD 140, 145-146].

Example:

Although depositions of automobile manufacturer executives would be somewhat duplicative of depositions taken of lower level employees, the court denied the manufacturer's motion to quash or modify the deposition. The court noted that the rental car company established that the executives may have information about motive that is more probative than the motives understood by lower level employees [Travelers Rental Co. v. Ford Motor Co. (MDNC 1989) 116 FRD 140, 145-146].

Cross Reference:

Limits on cumulative, duplicative or inconvenient discovery demands, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 26.60[2] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

22.19[4] Courts Must Limit Discovery When Information Is Available From Another More Convenient, Less Burdensome, or Less Expensive Source. If material sought can be obtained from another more convenient, less burdensome, or less expensive source, the party or person from whom discovery is sought may bring a motion to require the propounding party to obtain the information from the alternative source [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)(C)(i)].

Cross Reference:

Limits based on availability from other sources, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 26.60[3] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

22.19[5] Courts Must Limit Discovery If Propounding Party Has Had Ample Opportunity to Obtain Information Sought.

22.19[5][a] Party or Court May Move to Limit Extent or Use of Discovery If Propounding Party Has Had Ample Opportunity to Obtain Information Sought. A court, on motion of a party or its own motion after reasonable notice, must limit the extent or use of discovery if the party seeking discovery has already had ample opportunity in the action to obtain the information sought [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)(C)(ii)].

Warning:

Be sure to propound discovery within a reasonable time after learning of the existence of evidence to avoid being barred from seeking the discovery later.

Cross Reference:

Limitations on discovery for delay, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 26.60[4] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

22.19[5][b] Opposing Party May Defeat Motion by Establishing Lack of Ample Opportunity. A propounding party may establish the lack of ample opportunity to obtain the sought discovery to defeat a motion filed on this ground [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)(C)(ii)].

22.19[6] Court Must Limit Discovery When Burden Outweighs Likely Benefit. A party may move to limit the extent or use of discovery when the burden or expense of the proposed discovery outweighs its likely benefit, considering the needs of the case, the amount in controversy, the parties' resources, the importance of the issues and the importance of the proposed discovery in resolving the issues [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)(C)(iii)].

In making its determination, the court may not base its decision solely on the financial resources of the respective parties. The focus is whether the cost of discovery outweighs the benefit [see Munoz-Santana v. United States (9th Cir 1984) 742 F2d 561, 563-564]. Nevertheless, a discussion of the parties' resources is relevant to the cost-benefit analysis, and may be included in the briefing on such a motion [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)(C)(iii)].

Cross Reference:

Additional discussion of limitations on discovery for unduly burdensome demands, see 6 Moore's

Federal Practice, § 26.60[5] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

22.19[7] Court May Limit Discovery of Electronically Stored Information That Is Not Reasonably Accessible. A party need not provide discovery of electronically stored information from sources that the party identifies as not reasonably accessible because of undue burden or cost. On motion to compel discovery or for a protective order, the party from whom discovery is sought bears the burden of making that showing. If that showing is made, the court may still order discovery from those sources if the requesting party shows good cause, and may specify conditions for the discovery. In making a good cause determination, the court will consider the generally applicable limitations on discovery imposed by Rule 26(b)(2)(C) [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)(B)].

Cross Reference:

Generally applicable limitations on discovery imposed by Rule 26(b)(2)(C), §§ 22.19[3] -22.19[6].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective OrdersCivil ProcedureDiscoveryRelevanceCivil ProcedureDiscoveryUndue Burdens

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
III. USING MOTIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.20

22.20 Party May Bring Motion to Widen Discovery Scope.

22.20[1] Usual Scope of Discovery Is Party's Claims and Defenses. In general, parties may obtain discovery of unprivileged matters that are relevant to any party's claims or defenses [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(1)].

22.20[2] Party May Move to Expand Scope of Discovery to Matters Relevant to Subject Matter of Action on Showing of Good Cause. A party may, for good cause, make a motion to expand the scope of discovery to any unprivileged matters relevant to the subject matter of the action [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(1)].

Allegations establishing good cause should be more than conclusory statements and more than merely stating that the requested discovery is likely to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence. The court may extend the expanded scope to all discovery in the action, or may limit the expansion to specific discovery requests.

Judge's Perspective:

Be alert in arguing either for or against expansion of the scope of discovery to matters relevant to the subject matter on a showing of good cause, that Rule 26 was amended in 2000 to add the "good cause" requirement to such an expansion. Accordingly, case authority predating that amendment and addressing the proper scope of Rule 26 discovery may no longer be persuasive on this particular issue.

22.20[3] Opposing Party May Defeat Motion by Showing Moving Party Failed to Justify Need for Expansion Considering Particular Case. At least one court has held that the party seeking expansion must establish that the expanded discovery is justified by the needs of the particular case [Collins v. J.C. Penney Life Ins. Co. (SD Cal 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 8455, at *3]. Accordingly, a party opposing expansion should focus on the lack of connection between the information sought through expanded discovery and the needs of the particular case.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the scope of discovery, see Ch. 24, Restrictions on Scope and Extent of Discovery: Privileges and Work Product Protection.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryRelevance

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
III. USING MOTIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.21

22.21 Courts May Increase Amount of Discovery Beyond General Limits.

22.21[1] Party May Move to Increase Number of Allowable Depositions. The rules generally allow each side, including plaintiffs, defendants and third-party defendants, to take 10 depositions. A party may, however, obtain a court order to increase the number of allowable depositions [Fed R Civ P 30(a)(2)(A)(i), 31(a)(2)(A)(i)].

Though the Federal Rules do not set out a standard to determine whether additional depositions should be allowed, at least one California federal district court applied the standards of Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2) to determine whether to allow additional depositions. Those standards include whether (1) the additional discovery sought is unreasonably cumulative or duplicative, or is obtainable from some other source that is more convenient, less burdensome or less expensive; (2) the party seeking additional discovery has ample opportunity to obtain the information sought; or (3) the burden or expense of the proposed additional discovery outweighs its likely benefit, taking into account the needs of the case, the amount in controversy, the party's resources, and the importance of the proposed discovery in resolving the issues [Andamiro U.S.A. v. Konami Amusement of Am., Inc. (CD Cal 2001) 2001 US Dist LEXIS 11168, at *5].

22.21[2] Party May Move to Increase Number of Allowable Interrogatories. Under the Federal Rules, each party may propound up to 25 interrogatories. A party may, however, move the court to allow additional interrogatories absent a written stipulation [Fed R Civ P 33(a)(1)].

22.21[3] Opposing Party May Defeat Motion by Showing Increased Discovery Is Inconsistent With Limitations Provided in Rule 26(b). A party opposing an increase in the number of allowable depositions or interrogatories should focus on the purposes of the limits imposed by the rules, which are to control the costs and delays associated with discovery [see Fed R Civ P 1]. The limitations provided in Fed R Civ P 26(b), regarding the extent or use of discovery, provide a standard by which to establish why the additional discovery should not be allowed [see National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Hicks, Muse, Tate & Furst (SDNY 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 14537, at *6-*7].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsGeneral Overview

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
III. USING MOTIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.22

22.22 Party May Move to Require Discovery Papers Be Filed.

Depositions, interrogatories, requests for documents or to permit entry on land and requests for admission are not to be filed unless ordered by the court [Fed R Civ P 5(d)(1)]. A party may bring a motion that these documents be filed [Fed R Civ P 5(d)(1); see also SD Cal Civ LR 33.1(c), 34.1(c)], although this practice is not common except in cases where there is suspicion that discovery items have been tampered with.

Strategic Point:

A party may want to move to file discovery papers along with a motion, or as part of the record on appeal. For example, a party might need to show that the opposing party admitted a particular fact in interrogatory responses.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsGeneral Overview

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
III. USING MOTIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.23

22.23 Court May Order Discovery Prior to Rule 26(f) Planning Meeting on Party's Motion.

22.23[1] Party May Move to Alter General Rule Prohibiting Discovery Prior to Rule 26(f) Planning Meeting. Normally, a party may not seek discovery from any source prior to the Fed R Civ P 26(f) planning meeting absent an agreement between the parties or a court order [Fed R Civ P 26(d)]. If unable to secure a stipulation to expedite discovery, a party may thereafter move the court to order that certain discovery be expedited.

22.23[2] Party Must Establish Good Cause to Expedite Discovery.

22.23[2][a] Good Cause Based on Administration of Justice. A party moving for expedited discovery must show good cause. Good cause may be shown when the need for expedited discovery, considering the administration of justice, outweighs the prejudice to the responding party [see Semitool, Inc. v. Tokyo Electron Am., Inc. (ND Cal 2002) 208 FRD 273, 276].

Examples:

A court found good cause to expedite inspection of certain narrowly identified documents and technology, when the plaintiff established it had spent a year attempting to negotiate with the defendant to inspect the device at issue, and when the inspection would enable the plaintiff to amend its claims early in the litigation. Allowing expedited discovery would facilitate a more complete case management conference, and permit fuller disclosure [Semitool, Inc. v. Tokyo Electron Am., Inc. (ND Cal 2002) 208 FRD 273, 276-277]. On the other hand, good cause did not exist for the same plaintiff to obtain expedited inspection of the same or similar device from third parties. The court noted that inspection from those parties would not likely facilitate the definition of plaintiffs' claims prior to the case management conference, and that expedited discovery could disrupt defendant's business relations with its customers [Semitool, Inc. v. Tokyo Electron Am., Inc. (ND Cal 2002) 208 FRD 273, 277-278].

22.23[2][b] Good Cause Based on Preliminary Injunction Standard. It is possible that good cause may also be established based on the standard for issuing a preliminary injunction, though this standard has not been applied in a California federal court to date. This standard examines (1) irreparable injury in the absence of expedited discovery, (2) probability of success on the merits, (3) some connection between expedited discovery and avoidance of irreparable injury, and (4) whether irreparable injury to the moving party in absence of expedited discovery is greater than harm to non-moving party in allowing expedited discovery [Yokohama Tire Corp. v. Dealers Tire Supply, Inc. (D Ariz 2001) 202 FRD 612, 614].

22.23[3] Party Opposing Expedited Discovery May Defeat Motion by Refuting Good Cause and Showing Harm Caused by Expediting Process. In opposing a motion for expedited discovery, a showing that expediting discovery will not appreciably benefit the administration of the case and may cause harm to a party may convince the court not to order discovery be expedited [see Semitool, Inc. v. Tokyo Electron Am., Inc. (ND Cal 2002) 208 FRD 273, 277-278].

Cross Reference:

Form of motion for expedited discovery, see § 22.71.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsGeneral Overview

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
III. USING MOTIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.24

22.24 Courts May Set Timing or Sequence of Discovery.

22.24[1] Party May Move to Restrict Timing or Sequence of Discovery for Convenience and Interests of Justice. Normally, a party may employ any method of discovery in any desired sequence, and the fact that one party is conducting discovery does not serve to delay another party's discovery [Fed R Civ P 26(d)(2)]. A party may make a motion, however, to restrict the sequence or timing of discovery "for the parties' and witnesses' convenience and in the interests of justice" [Fed R Civ P 26(d)(2)].

Example:

When the target of discovery asserts a qualified privilege, such as the journalist's privilege, the court may order that the party seeking discovery first exhaust other sources of information before pursuing the holder of a qualified privilege [see Shoen v. Shoen (9th Cir 1993) 5 F3d 1289, 1301-1302 (Kleinfeld, J., concurring), appeal after remand, 48 F3d 412 (1995)].

22.24[2] Court May Balance Hardship in Determining Whether to Restrict Timing or Sequence of Discovery. A court may determine whether to grant a motion to restrict the timing or sequence of discovery based on a balancing of hardships [see Rebel Oil Co. v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (D Nev 1990) 133 FRD 41, 45]. Parties on both sides of a such a motion should include an explanation as to the hardship it may endure in the event the motion is not decided in its favor.

Example:

In an antitrust action, the court considered the burden on defendant in allowing discovery on all issues relevant to an antitrust action, compared to the burden on plaintiff in restricting discovery. The court recognized that plaintiff must establish certain issues, such as market definition and barriers to market entry to prove the case. The court therefore balanced the hardships and restricted discovery to those threshold issues until such time as the plaintiff could make an adequate showing of market definition and barriers to market entry [Rebel Oil Co. v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (D Nev 1990) 133 FRD 41, 45].

Strategic Point--Defendant:

Restricting the sequence of discovery can be particularly useful for a defendant when the plaintiff's liability case is likely to be defeated on summary judgment and the discovery into damages would be very burdensome. Preventing damages discovery until after the summary judgment motion is decided can save a significant amount of time and money for all parties.

22.24[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. The Southern District conducts Early Neutral Evaluation conferences in some cases [see SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(c)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the Early Neutral Evaluation process in the Southern District, see Ch. 32, Court Annexed ADR, § 32.69.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsGeneral Overview

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
III. USING MOTIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.25

22.25 Court May Alter Time to Respond to Written Discovery Demands on Party's Motion.

22.25[1] Party May Move to Shorten or Extend Time for Response. If a party has been refused a request to stipulate to shorten or extend the time to respond to discovery demands, the party may move the court to modify the 30-day deadline for response [Fed R Civ P 33(b)(2), 34(b)(2)(A), 36(a)(3)]. If an extension of time to conduct discovery is desired that extends beyond the discovery cutoff, a hearing on a motion, or trial, a party must make a motion to extend the date, even if all parties stipulate to the extension [Fed R Civ P 29(b)].

Strategic Point--Shortening Time for Response:

When considering whether to seek an order shortening time for a discovery response, be sure to have propounded the discovery demand as soon as practi-cable after learning of the need for the information. A court may be disinclined to shorten the time for discovery responses when the discovery demand was not propounded sufficiently early [see Worldwide Forest Prods., Inc. v. Winston Holding Co. (ND Miss 1997) 1997 US Dist LEXIS 23368, at *4].

22.25[2] Opposing Party May Defeat Motion by Showing Ample Opportunity of the Moving Party. If the moving party seeks to shorten time for a response, the opposing party may defeat the motion by establishing that the moving party had ample opportunity to propound the discovery earlier [DePew v. Hanover Ins. Co. (ED Tenn 1976) 76 FRD 8, 9]. By analogy, if the moving party seeks to extend time to respond, the opposing party may defeat the motion by establishing that the moving party had ample opportunity to respond, either by showing previously allowed extensions, or by showing the limited amount of discovery sought. A court may also consider the extent of resources available to the moving party to prepare the responses prior to the existing or proposed deadline [cf. Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)(C)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsResponsesCivil

ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
III. USING MOTIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.26

22.26 Court May Extend Discovery Cutoff Date on Party's Motion.

22.26[1] Party Must Show Good Cause to Extend Discovery Cutoff. If discovery needs to be taken after the discovery cutoff date, the party seeking additional discovery needs to file a motion to extend the cutoff date. The motion must establish good cause, unless the extension is otherwise authorized by local rule or order of the magistrate judge. [Fed R Civ P 16(b)(4); Johnson v. Mammoth Recreations, Inc. (9th Cir 1992) 975 F2d 604, 608)]. Good cause is established by showing diligence in seeking the discovery [In re Imperial Credit Indus. Secs. Litig. (CD Cal 2003) 252 F Supp2d 1005, 1017].

22.26[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Extending Discovery Cutoff Dates.

22.26[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Requirements. Motions to modify the discovery cutoff date contained in a scheduling order must be made to the judicial officer who issued the order [CD Cal Civ LR 16-14]. Accordingly, if the district judge imposes a discovery cutoff, the motion to extend the cutoff must be made to that judge, not the assigned magistrate judge.

22.26[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Requirements. In the Northern District, if the discovery request was propounded prior to the cutoff date, but calls for a response or deposition after the discovery cutoff, the request is unenforceable unless the party obtains a court order instructing the responding party to respond. Such a motion will only be granted for good cause [ND Cal Civ LR 26-2]. The parties may stipulate to allow the post-cutoff discovery, though some judges require court approval of the stipulation. Be sure to check with the presiding judge to determine whether approval is required.

Cross References:

Form of motion to extend discovery cutoff, see Form 22.68.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsGeneral OverviewCivil

ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesCase Management

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

40 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
III. USING MOTIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.27

22.27 Court May Order Physical or Mental Examination, and Preparation of Resulting Report, on Party's Motion.

A party may move for a court order directing a physical or mental examination of an opposing party when the physical or mental condition of the opposing party is in controversy [Fed R Civ P 35(a)]. The court has discretion to "specify the time, place, manner, conditions, and scope of the examination" [see Fed R Civ P 35(a)(2)(B)], including the discretionary authority to permit the presence of a recording device at the examination [*T.B. v. Chico Unified School Dist. (ED Cal 2009) 2009 US Dist LEXIS 32653, at *4-10 (defense expert could videotape independent mental examination of eight-year-old autistic child and child's parent would be required to attend to assist examiner)]. The examined party may request a report prepared by the examiner. If this report is not forthcoming, the examined party may move for an order for such relief as is just, including an order that the examiner's testimony be excluded at trial [Fed R Civ P 35(b)(5)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the process of obtaining physical and mental examinations, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, §§ 23.189 -23.216.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical Examinations

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
III. USING MOTIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.28

22.28 Party May Move to Withdraw or Amend Admission.

If a party believes that an admission made pursuant to a request for admission is incorrect or incomplete, the party may move to withdraw or amend it [Fed R Civ P 36(b)]. The rules include no provision allowing modification of an admission by stipulation.

Cross Reference:

Discussion regarding modification of responses to requests for admission, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, §§ 23.249 -23.253.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsWithdrawals

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

42 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
III. USING MOTIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.29

22.29 Court May Order Deposition Be Taken of Person Confined in Prison.

If a witness is confined in prison, a party may take the deposition of that witness only after the party obtains leave of court to do so [Fed R Civ P 30(a)(2)(B)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of taking depositions of inmates, see § 23.25[1].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
III. USING MOTIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.30

22.30 Court May Order Deposition Be Taken Before Action or Pending Appeal.

If a person determines it necessary to take a deposition of an individual before an action has been filed, the person may file a verified petition in the district of the residence of the expected adverse party seeking to perpetuate the testimony [Fed R Civ P 27(a)]. Similarly, if a case is on appeal, a party may petition the district court in which the judgment was rendered to order the perpetuation of testimony for use in the event of further proceedings in the district court [Fed R Civ P 27(b)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of perpetuation of testimony, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, §§ 23.03 -23.18.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
III. USING MOTIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.31

22.31 Court May Compel Discovery on Party's Motion.

22.31[1] Party May Move to Compel Discovery. A party who has promulgated discovery may file a motion to compel responses when the recipient of the discovery fails to respond [Fed R Civ P 37(a)(3)(B)]. Similarly, a motion to compel may also be filed when the discovery answer or response is evasive or incomplete [Fed R Civ P 37(a)(3)-(4)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the procedure for filing motions to compel discovery responses, see Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, § 25.03 -25.12.

22.31[2] Party Opposing Motion to Compel May Seek Protective Order. If a court denies a motion to compel, the court may enter a protective order limiting the allowable discovery [Fed R Civ P 37(a)(5)(B)]. In opposing a motion to compel, consider including an argument supporting the need for a protective order.

Cross References:

§§ 22.32, 22.35- 22.66. Discussion of opposing a motion to compel, see Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, §§ 25.13 -25.27.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryDisclosuresMotions to CompelCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMotions to Compel

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
III. USING MOTIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.32

22.32 Court May Limit Discovery Through Protective Orders on Party's Motion.

A recipient of a discovery demand may move for a protective order to bar or place limits or restrictions on the discovery request [Fed R Civ P 26(c)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of protective orders, see §§ 22.35 -22.66.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
III. USING MOTIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.33

22.33 Court May Order Payment of Motion Expenses.

As part of a ruling on a discovery motion, the court must assess attorneys' fees against the party opposing the motion or the party bringing the motion, unless the court finds that the unsuccessful party's position was substantially justified or that other circumstances make an award of expenses unjust [Fed R Civ P 37(a)(5); but see ND Cal Civ LR 7-8, 37-3 (motion for sanctions must be in separate motion)]. The court may assess fees associated with each of the following motions:

- Motions for protective orders [Fed R Civ P 26(c)].
- Motions to terminate or limit deposition [Fed R Civ P 30(d)(3)].
- Motions for expenses due to a party's failure to appear at, or serve a subpoena for, a deposition the same party noticed [Fed R Civ P 30(g)].
- Motions to determine the sufficiency of responses or objections to requests for admission [Fed R Civ P 36(a)(6), 37(c)(2)].
- Motions to establish that discovery certification was signed in violation of the rules [Fed R Civ P 26(g)].
- Motions to establish opposing party's failure to participate in the framing of a discovery plan [Fed R Civ P 37(f)].
- Motions to compel disclosure or discovery, including answering written or oral depositions, responding to interrogatories or request for inspection [Fed R Civ P 37(a)(5), (d)(3)].

Cross References:

Discussion of expenses associated with discovery motions, see Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, §§ 25.16 -25.27. Discussion regarding failure to admit matters pursuant to request for admissions, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, §§ 23.254 -23.258.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMisconductCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMotions to Compel

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
III. USING MOTIONS TO MODIFY DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.34

22.34 Court May Order Discovery Sanctions.

A party may move for additional sanctions, such as fact, issue, and claim sanctions [see Fed R Civ P 37(d)(3)], against another party for:

- Failure to comply with an order that a party provide or permit discovery, including answering written or oral depositions, answering interrogatories, or responding to request for inspection [Fed R Civ P 37(a), (b)].

- Failure to comply with an order that a party submit to a mental or physical examination [Fed R Civ P 35(a), 37(b)].

- Failure to comply with pretrial orders and protective orders [Fed R Civ P 16(b), (c) , 26(c), (f), 37(b)(2)].

- Failure to supplement disclosure or amend prior discovery responses [Fed R Civ P 26(e), 37(c)].

- Failure to appear at a deposition after proper notice [Fed R Civ P 37(d)].

- Failure to serve answers or objections to interrogatories after proper service, or failure to serve a written response after proper service of the request [Fed R Civ P 37(d)].

Cross References:

Discussion of grounds for sanctions, see Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions. Discussion of requirements to amend discovery responses, Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery. Discussion regarding supplementation of disclosure responses, see Ch. 15, Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures, § 15.26.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureDiscoveryDisclosuresSanctionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMisconduct

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
A. Determining Uses of Protective Orders

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.35

22.35 CHECKLIST: Evaluating Grounds for Protective Order.

☐ On receipt of discovery requests, determine whether grounds for a protective order exist, including whether the request results in unnecessary:

- ○ Annoyance.
- ○ Embarrassment.
- ○ Oppression.
- ○ Undue burden or expense.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(c)

Discussion:
See § 22.37

☐ If grounds for a protective order exist, determine type of relief sought, including, but not limited to the following:

- ○ Possible block on discovery if:
  - ☐ Requested material is irrelevant and unlikely to lead to relevant evidence.

☐ Requested material is privileged.

☐ Discovery would interfere with constitutional rights.

☐ Deposition is sought of corporate officer or employee without personal knowledge of relevant issues.

☐ Opposing party seeks deposition of counsel.

☐ Discovery seeks immigration status of employee plaintiff.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1); Phillips v. GMC (9th Cir 2002) 307 F3d 1206, 1211-1212 ; Caterpillar, Inc. v. Friedmann (D Or 1995) 164 FRD 76, 78

Discussion:
See § 22.39

○ Imposition of specified terms and conditions of discovery, such as:

☐ Limitation on number of days or hours deposition may last;

☐ Sequencing discovery so that certain discovery be had prior to other discovery;

☐ Requiring accelerated completion of discovery;

☐ Designating place for discovery;

☐ Requiring opposing party to pay discovery expenses.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(B), 30(b)(1), 30(d)(1); Hendrick v. Avis Rent A Car Sys., Inc. (WDNY 1996) 916 F Supp 256, 260 ; Transamerica Computer Co. v. IBM Corp. (9th Cir 1978) 573 F2d 646, 652 ; Berry v. Baca (CD Cal 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 15698, at *10, *12

Discussion:
See §§ 22.40[1] -[3], [7], [8]

Form:
See § 22.75

○ Stay of discovery if:

☐ Pending motion would obviate need for discovery.

☐ Discovery would interfere with parallel criminal or civil proceeding.

☐ No prejudice to opposing party would result from stay.

Authority:
15 USC §§ 77z-1(b)(1), 78u-4(b)(3); B.R.S. Land Investors v. United States (9th Cir 1979) 596 F2d 353, 356 ; United States ex rel. Sequoia Orange Co. v. Baird Neece Packing (9th Cir 1998) 151 F3d 1139, 1144

Discussion:
See §§ 22.40[4] -[6]

○ Prescribe particular method of discovery, such as:

☐ Requiring interrogatories be used instead of questioning during deposition.

☐ Requiring deposition on written questions in lieu of an oral deposition.

☐ Require deposition be taken telephonically.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(C), 31(a); McCormick- Morgan, Inc. v. Teledyne Indus. (ND Cal 1991) 134 FRD 275, 288 , rev'd on other grounds, 765 F Supp 611 (1991) ; Rehau, Inc. v. Colortech, Inc. (WD Mich 1993) 145 FRD 444, 446-447

Discussion:
See § 22.41

○ Limitation on scope of discovery.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(D)

Discussion:
See § 22.42

○ Exclude a particular person from attending a deposition, when, for example:

☐ Presence of person would intimidate deponent.

☐ Person would harass deponent.

☐ Deponent's privacy would be compromised.

☐ Person creates a security risk.

☐ Trade secrets would be exposed.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(E); In re Terra Int'l, Inc. (5th Cir 1998) 134 F3d 302, 306-307

Discussion:
See § 22.43

○ Sealing discovery materials if:

☐ Specific prejudice or harm will result if discovery remains public.

☐ Compelling reasons justify curtailing access to court documents.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(F); Verizon Cal., Inc. v. Ronald A. Katz Tech. Licensing, L.P. (CD Cal 2003) 214 FRD 583, 585 n9 ; Foltz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 331 F3d 1122, 1135

Discussion:
See § 22.44

○ Limitation on discovery of trade secrets or other confidential information, considering:

☐ The extent the sought material is kept secret or confidential.

☐ Whether a public interest is involved.

☐ Specific prejudice or harm that would result from disclosure of sought information.

☐ Relevance and necessity of sought information to issue in the case.

☐ Whether harm can be alleviated by limiting disclosure to opposing counsel and/or experts.

☐ Whether harm can be alleviated by limiting opposing counsel's practice for specified period of time.

☐ Whether harm can be alleviated by prohibiting copying of documents and requiring return of documents following termination of lawsuit.

☐ Whether opposing party should post a bond to protect against damages from disclosure.

☐ Whether a log should be kept of each person who accesses information.

☐ Whether all persons who view materials should sign confidentiality agreement.

Authority:

Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(G); Andrew Corp. v. Rossi (ND Ill 1998) 180 FRD 338, 341 ; Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp. v. FTC (6th Cir 1983) 710 F2d 1165, 1179-1180 ; Foltz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 331 F3d 1122, 1130 ; Directv, Inc. v. Trone (CD Cal 2002) 209 FRD 455, 459-460 ; Chan v. Intuit, Inc. (ND Cal 2003) 218 FRD 659, 661

Discussion:

See § 22.45

Form:

See § 22.73

○ Simultaneously file sealed documents with court to prevent opposing party from obtaining unfair advantage in litigation.

Authority:

Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(H) San Jose Mercury News, Inc. v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 1999) 187 F3d 1096, 1098 n1

Discussion:

See § 22.46

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryPrivileged MattersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective OrdersCivil ProcedureDiscoveryRelevanceCivil ProcedureDiscoveryUndue Burdens

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
A. Determining Uses of Protective Orders

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.36

22.36 Options and Strategy.

On receipt of discovery requests, a party should determine whether good cause exists to relieve it from complying with the requests, or some part of them, because of "annoyance, embarrassment, oppression, or undue burden or expense" [see Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)]. When such good cause exists, the responding party should consider seeking a protective order.

If a discovery request seeks information that is beyond the scope of discovery, is privileged, or constitutes trade secret or other confidential information, the responding party may seek a protective order barring or limiting the requested discovery in some manner [see Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(A)-(H)]. For example, when the requested discovery is extensive, but clearly relevant to the claims or defenses, a blanket protective order limiting the individuals who may have access to the materials may be appropriate.

It may also be appropriate to obtain a protective order to require that a particular method of discovery be used over the one selected by the propounding party [see Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(C)]. For example, if the attorney for the propounding party is a percipient witness to certain issues in the case and has been noticed for an oral deposition, the propounding party may seek a protective order to require the discovery be obtained either by interrogatories or deposition by written questions.

Protective orders also may be obtained to specify the location, time or sequence that discovery may be had [see Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(B)]. For example, if a deponent is unable to attend a deposition at the location specified by the propounding party because of physical health constraints, a party may seek a protective order to conduct the deposition at a location feasible for the deponent.

Should the responding party identify another means to more effectively protect the responding party's interest than those identified in Rule 26(c), a protective order may still be obtained to include the unique means of protection [see Fed R Civ P 26(c)]. If recourse to the court becomes necessary, select the type of protection that would appear to the court to be the least burdensome on the litigation process while sufficiently protecting the client's needs for protection. For instance, it is much less expensive simply to object to the discovery requests and place the burden of moving to compel on the requesting party. The requesting party may decide that some requests are not worth the cost of motion practice and may drop these requests, or the parties may be able to negotiate narrower requests.

Strategic Point:

Parties will often serve objections first and then attempt to resolve limitations to discovery requests with the propounding party during the meet and confer process that precedes a motion to compel. The decision whether to preempt the motion to compel by a motion for a protective order is a strategic one. Parties may wish to file motions for a protective order--instead of responding to the request and then awaiting a motion to compel--to move the case along and control the schedule. Also, by filing a motion for a protective order, the responding party gets to frame the issues and has the last word in the reply brief. In contrast, if the responding party simply objects and waits for a motion to compel, the requesting party will have the first and last word. However, if the responding party simply objects, it may be able to negotiate an advantageous arrangement with the requesting party and avoid motion practice, or the requesting party may decide to move to compel on only a few requests. So, more often than not, the best strategy may be to object and try to resolve differences during the meet and confer process.

Warning:

Filing a motion for a protective order does not substitute for filing a written response to a discovery request. In the absence of a response, the missing objections might be deemed waived. However, if the protective order is entered with respect to all of the requests, the party will not have to respond [see Flaherty v. Seroussi (NDNY 2002) 209 FRD 300, 304].

Judge's Perspective:

The term "protective order" is now generally used both with reference to a specific request to relieve a party of the need to respond to a discovery request, as well as the more general order usually entered by the court, on the stipulation of the parties, early in the litigation to govern the use of information produced in discovery. In almost all cases of any size and complexity in federal court, a protective order will be entered that sets forth how documents and deposition transcripts are to be treated, to whom access is to be provided, how disputes regarding those issues are to be resolved, and the manner of submitting such materials to the court.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective OrdersCivil ProcedureDiscoveryUndue Burdens

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
A. Determining Uses of Protective Orders

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.37

22.37 Several Types of Relief Are Available Through Protective Orders.

A party or witness who wishes to protect against disclosure or discovery because of annoyance, embarrassment, oppression, or undue burden or expense may seek a protective order, either through stipulation or by motion, to restrict the discovery in the following ways [Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)]:

- To preclude certain discovery entirely.
- To provide that disclosure or discovery be provided only on specified terms and conditions.
- To conduct discovery by a method other than that selected by the party seeking discovery.
- To exclude certain matters from being inquired into.
- To limit the scope of the disclosure or discovery to certain matters.
- To designate the persons who may be present at a deposition.
- To seal discovery, and provide the terms regarding who may view it and when it may be viewed.
- To preclude entirely, or prescribe the terms for, discovery of trade secrets or other confidential research, development or commercial information.
- To require parties to simultaneously file specified documents or information enclosed in sealed envelopes.

This list of available relief is not exclusive. A court may issue any order to protect against annoyance, embarrassment, oppression or undue burden or expense [Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1); Phillips v. GMC (9th Cir 2002) 307 F3d 1206, 1211-1212].

Example:

A railroad employee was injured on the job and sued the railroad under the Federal Employer's Liability Act. A protective order was appropriate to prevent the railroad from requiring the employee to submit to an extra-judicial physical examination, and to prevent it from disciplining the employee for refusing to submit to such an examination. The railroad's attempt to require the employee to submit to such an examination constituted discovery subject to the court's authority and an effort to circumvent the discovery rules [Partida v. Union Pac. R.R. Co. (CD Cal 2004) 221 FRD 623, 629-630].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective OrdersCivil ProcedureDiscoveryUndue Burdens

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

51 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
A. Determining Uses of Protective Orders

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.38

22.38 Court May Impose Other Conditions on Discovery.

Even if a motion for protective order is denied in whole or in part, the court may order that a party or other person provide or permit discovery "on just terms" [Fed R Civ P 26(c)(2)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
A. Determining Uses of Protective Orders

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.39

22.39 Protective Order May Block Discovery.

22.39[1] Court May Order That No Disclosure or Discovery Be Had. A court may order that disclosure or discovery not be had at all [Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(A)]. In considering whether to block discovery the court may consider whether the particular discovery sought is irrelevant and not likely to lead to discovery of admissible evidence, whether the sought discovery is privileged and whether the sought discovery would interfere with constitutional or statutory rights [see Phillips v. GMC (9th Cir 2002) 307 F3d 1206, 1211-1212 ; Killion v. Franklin Reg'l Sch. Dist. (WD Pa 2000) 2000 US Dist LEXIS 12687, at *3-*4].

22.39[2] Complete Blocking of Discovery Is Rare. Courts seldom order that discovery not be taken at all. Instead, discovery normally is expected to go forward, with the parties asserting their objections to particular matters during the course of discovery [see EEOC v. Caesars Entertainment, Inc. (D Nev 2006) 237 FRD 428, 432; Kaiser v. Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York (SD Ind 1994) 161 FRD 378, 380].

22.39[3] Court May Block Depositions of Corporate Officers and Employees.

22.39[3][a] Court May Block Deposition of High-Level Corporate Officers. Courts may grant a protective order denying a deposition when the noticed deposition is of a high-level or "apex" corporate officer who can establish a lack of any relevant knowledge [Kyle Eng'g Co. v. Kleppe (9th Cir 1979) 600 F2d 226, 231-232 ; see Salter v. Upjohn Co. (5th Cir 1979) 593 F2d 649, 651]. However, if the defendant has personal knowledge of relevant events, "apex" status will not preclude the deposition [Blankenship v. Hearst Corp. (9th Cir 1975) 519 F2d 418, 429].

Example:

If a deponent is a high-level corporate officer who certifies that he or she has no personal knowledge of the facts, the court may grant a protective order requiring the deposing party to seek discovery first through less intrusive methods, usually by deposing lower-level employees who are more likely to have direct knowledge [see, e.g., Naftchi v. New York Univ. Med. Ctr. (SDNY 1977) 172 FRD 130, 132].

22.39[3][b] Court May Block Deposition of Subordinate Employees. A party may obtain a protective order to block discovery from subordinate employees when it is more appropriate to seek discovery from the employee's supervisor who had direct responsibility for the matter in question [see Kidd v. Taos Ski Valley, Inc. (10th Cir 1996) 88 F3d 848, 853-854].

22.39[4] Court May Block Deposition of Adverse Counsel.

22.39[4][a] Party Seeking Deposition of Adverse Counsel Bears Burden of Showing Good Cause. Ordinarily, the burden of establishing good cause for a protective order is on the party seeking the protective order [see, e.g., Methode Elecs., Inc. v. Finisar Corp. (ND Cal 2001) 205 FRD 552, 554]. However, when a party seeks to take a deposition of opposing counsel, the burden shifts to the party seeking the deposition to establish that counsel has information that is [Shelton v. American Motors Corp. (8th Cir 1986) 805 F2d 1323, 1327 ; American Cas. Co. v. Krieger (SD Cal 1995) 160 FRD 582, 588-589]:

- Not otherwise obtainable;
- Non-privileged;
- Relevant; and
- Crucial to the preparation of the case.

When the party seeking the deposition cannot satisfy this burden, a protective order should block the deposition of opposing counsel [Caterpillar, Inc. v. Friedemann (D Or 1995) 164 FRD 76, 78]. If a party does satisfy this burden, a limited protective order may still issue to limit the duration and scope of the questioning [American Cas. Co. v. Krieger (SD Cal 1995) 160 FRD 582, 591].

22.39[4][b] No Block Where Exception to Privilege Applies. If an exception to the attorney client privilege applies, such as when an attorney was retained in furtherance of a crime or fraud, the privilege does not apply and discovery may be obtained from the attorney [see United States v. Hodge & Zweig (9th Cir 1977) 548 F2d 1347, 1355].

Cross Reference:

Exceptions to attorney-client privilege, see Ch. 24, Restrictions on Scope and Extent of Discovery: Privileges and Work Product Protection, § 24.39.

22.39[4][c] No Block When Privilege Is Waived. If the client waives the privilege, expressly or impliedly, such as by asserting ineffective assistance of counsel in a habeas proceeding, the court will not issue a protective order to prevent disclosure of those matters relevant to the matter for which the client waived the privilege [see, e.g., Bittaker v. Woodford (9th Cir 2003) 331 F3d 715, 716]. Nevertheless, the court may, and in some cases must, limit the use of the otherwise privileged communications for any purpose other than the litigated matter before the court [see Bittaker v. Woodford (9th Cir 2003) 331 F3d 715, 717, 728].

Cross Reference:

Waiver of attorney-client privilege, see Ch. 24, Restrictions on Scope and Extent of Discovery: Privileges and Work Product Protection, § 24.40.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
A. Determining Uses of Protective Orders

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.40

22.40 Protective Order May Specify Terms and Conditions for Discovery.

22.40[1] Court May Restrict Number of Hours or Days Deposition May Last. The Federal Rules generally provide that a deposition is limited to one day of seven hours [Fed R Civ P 30(d)(1)]. The court, however, must allow additional time if needed for a fair examination of the deponent or if the deposition is impeded or delayed [Fed R Civ P 30(d)(1)]. A party may obtain a protective order, however, to limit the number of days a deposition may last [see Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(B)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the time allowable for taking a deposition, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, § 23.21.

22.40[2] Court May Set Sequence of Discovery. A party may obtain a protective order to designate the sequence of discovery [Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(B)]. For example, a protective order may be obtained to delay discovery of prior statements by witnesses until after the witnesses who made the statements are deposed in order to obtain unrefreshed recollections on deposition [see Hendrick v. Avis Rent A Car Sys., Inc. (WDNY 1996) 916 F Supp 256, 260]. Conversely, the court may order production of materials, such as tapes, prior to a deposition to allow the deponent to review them before the deposition [see Roberts v. Americable Int'l (ED Cal 1995) 883 F Supp 499, 505].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of use of protective orders to set the timing or sequence of discovery, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 26.105[3][a] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

22.40[3] Court May Order Accelerated Completion of Discovery. Under Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(B), a court may set deadlines for completion of discovery. For example, a court may order accelerated completion of discovery, and further order that privileged documents inadvertently submitted on accelerated time schedule do not operate to waive privilege [see Transamerica Computer Co. v. IBM Corp. (9th Cir 1978) 573 F2d 646, 652].

22.40[4] Court May Order Stay of Discovery Pending Outcome of Dispositive Motion.

22.40[4][a] Court May Stay Discovery Pending Dispositive Motion. A court may stay discovery pending the disposition of a motion or other determination, particularly when discovery on one issue would obviate the need for discovery on other issues [see e.g., B.R.S. Land Investors v. United States (9th Cir 1979) 596 F2d 353, 356]. Dispositive motions that would obviate the need for discovery may include

- Motions to dismiss [see, e.g., B.R.S. Land Investors (9th Cir 1979) 596 F2d 353, 356].
- Motions for summary judgment [see, e.g., Landry v. Air Line Pilots Ass'n Int'l AFL-CIO (5th Cir 1990) 901 F2d 404, 436].
- Motions to determine governmental immunity [see, e.g., Anderson v. Creighton (1987) 483 US 635, 646 n6, 107 S Ct 3034, 97 L Ed2d 523].

22.40[4][b] Court Considers Various Factors in Determining Motion to Stay. The factors a court considers to determine whether to stay discovery pending the outcome of a motion include [Skellup Indus. Ltd. v. City of Los Angeles (CD Cal 1995) 163 FRD 598, 601]:

- The type of motion and whether it is a challenge as a matter of law or to the sufficiency of the allegations.
- The nature and complexity of the action.
- Whether counterclaims or crossclaims have been interposed.
- Whether some or all defendants have joined in the request to stay discovery.
- The expected extent of discovery in light of the number of parties.
- Any other relevant circumstances.

22.40[4][c] Court Balances Harm of Stay Versus Benefit of Discovery. In determining whether to grant a motion to stay pending a dispositive motion, the court balances the harm from imposing a stay on discovery against the benefit of discovery [see GTE Wireless, Inc. v. Qualcomm, Inc. (SD Cal 2000) 192 FRD 284, 289]. One court has applied the following two considerations in performing this balance [Pacific Lumber Co. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (ND Cal 2003) 220 FRD 349, 351-352]:

- A pending motion must be dispositive of the entire case, or at least dispositive on the issue at which discovery is directed.
- The pending dispositive motion can be decided absent additional discovery.

The court must determine both these conditions are present before it may issue a protective order to stay discovery [Pacific Lumber Co. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (ND Cal 2003) 220 FRD 349, 351-352].

22.40[5] Court May Order Stay of Discovery Pending Outcome of Parallel Criminal or Civil Proceeding. A court may stay discovery pending the outcome of a parallel criminal or civil proceeding, if the discovery is likely to interfere with the parallel criminal or civil investigation [United States ex rel. Sequoia Orange Co. v. Baird-Neece Packing Corp. (9th Cir 1998) 151 F3d 1139, 1144]. In making its determination whether to issue a stay, the court balances the harm from a stay against the need for discovery based on the following considerations [FSLIC v. Molinaro (9th Cir 1989) 889 F2d 899, 902-903]:

- The extent to which the defendant's Fifth Amendment rights are implicated.

- The interests of the plaintiff in proceeding expeditiously with the litigation or any particular aspect of it.

- The potential prejudice to plaintiff of delay.

- The burden of any particular aspect of the proceeding may impose on defendant.

- The convenience of the court in the management of its cases and the efficient use of judicial resources.

- The interests of persons not party to the litigation.

- The interest of the public in the pending civil and criminal litigation.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of stays pending the outcome of motions and parallel proceedings, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 26.105[3][c] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

22.40[6] Court Order Required to Conduct Discovery Following Automatic Stay of Discovery Pending Ruling on Motion to Dismiss in Securities Fraud Class Actions. In securities fraud class action lawsuits brought pursuant to 15 USC § 77z-1 or 78u-4, all discovery and other proceedings are stayed pending the disposition of any motion to dismiss, unless the court finds on the motion of any party that particularized discovery is necessary to preserve evidence or to prevent undue prejudice to that party [15 USC §§ 77z-1(b)(1), 78u-4(b)(3)(B)].

22.40[7] Court May Designate Place for Discovery. A party may designate any place for a deposition, subject to the court's power to grant a protective order [see Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(B), 30(b)(1)]. When the deponent seeks a protective order, the court generally will recognize the presumption that the deposition should take place at the deponent's residence or place of business or employment absent special circumstances, and order that the deposition be taken at or near the deponent's residence or business [Berry v. Baca (CD Cal 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 15698, at *10]. Special circumstances, however, may rebut this presumption when the deponent's residence or place of business is abroad [see, e.g., Dean Foods Co. v. Eastman Chem. Co. (ND Cal 2001) 2001 US Dist LEXIS 25447, at *20-*25].

Cross References:

Form, see § 22.75.

6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 26.105[3][b] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

22.40[8] Court May Order Payment of Expenses of Discovery. As a condition of obtaining discovery under Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(B) the court may order that a party seeking discovery pay the expenses of obtaining the discovery [Penk v. Oregon State Bd. of Higher Educ. (9th Cir 1987) 816 F2d 458, 468].

Example:

One court gave the deposing party the option either of paying the travel and hotel expenses to have the deposition taken at that party's choice of location or holding the deposition in the vicinity of the deponent's residence, which was in Missouri [Berry v. Baca (CD Cal 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 15698, at *12].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

54 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
A. Determining Uses of Protective Orders

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.41

22.41 Protective Order May Prescribe Discovery Method.

22.41[1] Court May Order That Certain Method of Discovery Be Used. A party typically selects the method of obtaining discovery. However, the court may order discovery by a "method other than the one selected by the party seeking discovery" [Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(C)].

22.41[2] Court May Order That Discovery Questions Be Propounded by Interrogatories, Not Deposition. During the course of a deposition, a deposing party may ask questions that seek the bases of the opposing party's contentions. In a complicated case, a court may issue a protective order that such questions may only be answered in response to properly prepared interrogatories, rather than in a deposition [McCormick-Morgan, Inc. v. Teledyne Indus. (ND Cal 1991) 134 FRD 275, 288 , rev'd on other grounds, 765 F Supp 611 (1991)].

Strategic Point--Propounding Party:

If the opposing party seeks a protective order on this basis, the party seeking discovery may convince the court to control the danger of receiving elusive lawyer-crafted responses by limiting the responding parties' presentation of evidence at trial to those matters included in the response to the interrogatories [McCormick-Morgan, Inc. v. Teledyne Indus. (ND Cal 1991) 134 FRD 275, 287 , rev'd on other grounds, 765 F Supp 611 (1991)].

22.41[3] Court May Order That Deposition Proceed on Written Questions. A party may move to convert a noticed oral deposition to a written deposition [Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(C), 31(a)]. In determining such a motion, the court must exercise its discretion in a manner that does justice to both parties [Wheeler v. West Indies S.S. Co. (SDNY 1951) 11 FRD 396, 397]. Courts consider various circumstances in deciding such motions, including:

- Whether the nature of the questioning requires a physical presence, such as the need for authentication of documents [see United States v. $160,066.98 from Bank of Am. (SD Cal 2001) 202 FRD 624, 630-631].

- The extent of need for follow-up questions, which are not possible with written questions prepared in advance [see United States v. $160,066.98 from Bank of Am. (SD Cal 2001) 202 FRD 624, 630-631].

- The likelihood of Fifth Amendment objections, for which written deposition would be more appropriate [see Gatoil, Inc. v. Forest Hill State Bank (D Md 1985) 104 FRD 580, 582].

- Whether the deponent is opposing counsel, in which case a written deposition may be adequate [see In re Arthur Treacher's Franchisee Litig. (ED Pa 1981) 92 FRD 429, 439].

- The need for privacy of deponents, such as nonparty blood donors in actions concerning the transmission of AIDS through blood transfusions, where written depositions would be preferable [see Borzillieri v. American Nat'l Red Cross (WDNY 1991) 139 FRD 284, 289].

The written format is generally disfavored, because of the lack of cross-examination, the inability to evaluate the deponent's credibility, and the ability of counsel to assist with providing carefully tailored answers [United States v. Local 1804-1, Int'l Longshoremen's Ass'n (SDNY 1990) 753 F Supp 1158, 1163-1164]. When the issues to be addressed are narrow and straightforward, and the hardships of taking an oral deposition are substantial, a court is more likely to order a written deposition [see Mill-Run Tours, Inc. v. Khashoggi (SDNY 1989) 124 FRD 547, 550].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the uses of oral and written depositions, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, §§ 23.20, 23.77.

22.41[4] Court May Order That Deposition Be Taken Telephonically or Videotaped. On a showing of legitimate need, for example, when an oral deposition would present hardship, but follow-up questions are necessary, a court may consider ordering the deposition be taken telephonically [see Rehau, Inc. v. Colortech, Inc. (WD Mich 1993) 145 FRD 444, 446-447]. However, when a physical presence is necessary, such as when authentication of documents will be required, or assessment of credibility is critical, the court will likely deny this alternative [see United States v. $160,066.98 from Bank of Am. (SD Cal 2001) 202 FRD 624, 629-630]. When follow-up questions and demeanor are critical, the court may order that the deposition be videotaped [Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(C), 30(b)(3)(A)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of telephonic depositions and videotaped depositions, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, §§ 23.02, 23.31.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

55 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
A. Determining Uses of Protective Orders

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.42

22.42 Protective Order May Limit Scope of Discovery.

A party may seek an order that certain matters not be inquired into, or that the scope of the disclosure or discovery be limited to certain matters [Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(D)]. The scope of discovery may be limited for various reasons, such as:

- To exclude inquiry into privileged matters [Cobb v. Danzig (SD Cal 1999) 190 FRD 564, 566-567].

- To exclude discovery on an issue that has already been established through stipulation [see Rivera v. Nibco, Inc. (9th Cir 2004) 364 F3d 1057, 1072].

- To prevent intimidation [Rivera v. Nibco, Inc. (9th Cir 2004) 364 F3d 1057, 1074].

- To protect the financial privacy of a witness [see, e.g., Rogers v. United States Navy (SD Cal 2004) 223 FRD 533, 535-536].

- To protect other constitutionally-based privacy rights of third parties [see, e.g., Keith H. v. Long Beach Unified Sch. Dist. (CD Cal 2005) 228 FRD 652, 657-659].

Example--Preventing Intimidation:
Plaintiffs filed an action alleging unlawful termination from employment. Defendant sought to obtain discovery of the immigration status of plaintiffs, contending that Defendant's damages would be reduced on a showing that some of the plaintiffs were foreign nationals without authorization to work. The court entered a protective order barring defendant from using the discovery process to determine plaintiffs' immigration status to prevent plaintiffs and potential future plaintiffs from being intimidated against bringing such actions [Rivera v. Nibco, Inc. (9th Cir 2004) 364 F3d 1057, 1064-1065, 1074].

Cross Reference:
Discussion of the permissible scope of discovery, see Ch. 24, Restrictions on Scope and Extent of Discovery: Privileges and Work Product Protection.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
A. Determining Uses of Protective Orders

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.43

22.43 Protective Order May Restrict Attendance at Deposition.

22.43[1] Protective Order Required to Exclude Persons From Deposition. Deposition witnesses are not subject to sequestration merely at a party's request. To exclude someone from a deposition, the party seeking exclusion must obtain a protective order on a showing of good cause [Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(E); In re Terra Int'l, Inc. (5th Cir 1998) 134 F3d 302, 306-307].

22.43[2] Order Must Be Supported by Particular and Specific Showing of Facts. A party cannot establish the good cause showing required to obtain a protective order to exclude attendance at a deposition based on "stereotyped or conclusory statements." The motion must be supported by a "particular and specific showing of facts" to establish the need to exclude the presence of the subject person [In re Terra Int'l, Inc. (5th Cir 1998) 134 F3d 302, 306-307].

22.43[3] Examples of Orders Granted. Protective orders have been issued excluding persons, including parties, from attending depositions in order to:

- Avoid intimidating the deponent in a case involving an alleged child abuse victim [see, e.g., Bucher v. Richardson Hosp. Auth. (ND Tex 1994) 160 FRD 88, 95].

- Avoid harassment at the deposition [see, e.g., Galella v. Onassis (2d Cir 1973) 487 F2d 986, 997].

- Protect privacy interests, particularly involving allegations of sexual abuse [see, e.g., Gottlieb v. County of Orange (SDNY 1993) 151 FRD 258, 260].

- Protect prison safety when a prisoner's attendance at deposition poses a security risk [see, e.g., James v. Roberts (SD Ohio 1995) 163 FRD 260, 262].

- Protect trade secrets [see, e.g., Metal Foil Prods. Mfg. Co. v. Reynolds Metals Co. (ED Va 1970) 55 FRD 491, 493-494].

Cross Reference:

Additional discussion regarding exclusion of persons at depositions, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 26.105[6] (Matthew Bender 3d ed).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
A. Determining Uses of Protective Orders

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.44

22.44 Court May Order Discovery Records Be Sealed.

22.44[1] Party May Move to Seal Depositions and Other Discovery Materials. Rule 26(c)(1)(F) allows the court to order that a deposition, after being sealed, be opened only by court order [Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(F)]. Although the Federal Rules expressly mention only depositions, a party may also seek a protective order sealing other types of discovery [see, e.g., Empire Blue Cross & Blue Shield v. Janet Greeson's A Place for Us, Inc. (9th Cir 1995) 62 F3d 1217, 1218].

22.44[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Sealing of Documents.

22.44[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. In the Central District, except when authorized by statute or rule, a document cannot be filed under seal except with prior court approval. When approval is required, a written application and proposed order must be presented to the judge with the document to be sealed. Detailed format and submission requirements are specified [CD Cal Civ LR 79-5.1]. A sealed record cannot be disclosed except on written order of the court [CD Cal Civ LR 79-5.2]. To seek disclosure of sealed records, a written application setting forth with particularity the need for specific information must be made to the court [CD Cal Civ LR 79-5.3].

22.44[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. In the Eastern District, documents may be sealed only on written order of the court [ED Cal Gen LR 141(a)]. A motion to seal must be made even if federal law requires or permits the sealing of the document. The motion must state the statutory or other authorization for sealing, the requested duration, and any other relevant information [ED Cal Gen LR 141(b)]. The motion to file a document under seal, along with a proposed order, should be filed electronically unless the attorney believes both a public and nonpublic order should issue in which case the nonpublic version of the order may be filed in paper. Likewise, if the attorney may serve a nonpublic version of the motion in paper format if he or she believes the motion should not be made public [ED Cal Gen LR 141(d)].

A document filed under seal should not be filed electronically. Instead, the attorney must electronically file a "Notice of Filing Sealed Document" designated as accompanying the relevant document. Within 24 hours after electronically filing that notice, counsel must manually file and, if required or appropriate, serve the sealed document in paper format, paper copies of the Notice of Filing Sealed Document, a paper copy of the notice of electronic filing and proof of service [ED Cal Gen LR 141(c)].

Cross Reference:

Eastern District requirements for electronic filing, see § 5.31[2].

22.44[2][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. In the Northern District, a sealing order is required to allow the filing of documents under seal; a stipulation or a blanket protective order that allows a party to designate documents as sealable is insufficient. A sealing order will issue only if it is established that the document, or a part of it, is privileged or protectable as a trade secret or otherwise entitled to protection under the law [ND Cal Civ LR 79-5(a)].

To obtain a court order authorizing the sealing of a document, or portions thereof, an administrative motion to file under seal must be filed and served [see ND Cal Civ LR 7-11], along with an accompanying declaration establishing that the document, or a portion of it, is sealable, and the document must be lodged with the court clerk [ND Cal Civ LR 79-5(a)-(c)].

Pending consideration of a revision to ND Cal Civ LR 79-5, the following procedures apply, effective May 10, 2010, to the filing of sealed documents in civil cases [ND Cal Gen Order 62]:

- Motions to file documents under seal must be made electronically.

- In order to move to electronically file (e-file) either an entire document under seal pursuant to ND Cal Civ LR 79-5(b), or a portion of a document under seal pursuant to ND Cal Civ LR 79-5(c):

  - E-file an Administrative Motion to File Under Seal [see ND Cal Civ LR 7-11];

  - E-file under seal and serve manually one or more Declarations (instructions on how to e-file under seal are available on the ECF website under FAQs at https://ecf.cand.uscourts.gov/cand/index.html);

  - E-file the Proposed Order (filed unsealed) and e-mail the Proposed Order to the Judge's proposed order e-mail address; and

  - Serve manually, but do not e-file, the documents to be filed under seal.

- Lodge with the clerk for delivery to the judge's chambers a copy of the entire filing including the documents to be filed under seal, contained in an 81/2-inch by 11-inch sealed envelope or other suitable sealed container, with a cover sheet affixed to the envelope or container, setting out the information required by ND Cal Civ LR 3-4(a) and (b), prominently displaying the notation: "DOCUMENT SUBMITTED UNDER SEAL AND CHAMBERS COPY" no later than noon on the business day following the day that the administrative motion is filed electronically.

If the motion to file under seal is denied in part or in full, neither the document nor any proposed redacted version may be e-filed under seal. If the motion is denied in full, the submitting party may retain the document and not make it part of the record in the case, or, within 4 days, e-file the document unsealed. If the motion is denied in part and granted in part, the party may within 4 days resubmit the document in a manner that conforms to the Court's order and this rule [ND Cal Gen Order 62].

If a motion to file under seal is granted in part or full, the requesting party will e-file the document under seal according to the procedures outlined in the FAQs on the ECF website at https://ecf.cand.uscourts.gov/cand/index.html [ND Cal Gen Order 62].

Unless otherwise ordered by the court, any document filed under seal must be kept from public inspection, including inspection by attorneys and parties to the action, during the pendency of the case. The chambers copy of sealed documents will be disposed of in accordance with the assigned Judge's discretion. Ordinarily these copies will be recycled, not shredded, unless special arrangements are made [ND Cal Gen Order 62].

Any document filed under seal in a civil case will be open to public inspection without further action by the court 10 years from the date the case is closed. However, a party that submitted documents that were placed under seal may, on showing good cause at the conclusion of the case, seek an order that would continue the seal until a specific date beyond 10 years. However, nothing in this rule is intended to affect the normal records destruction policy of the United States Courts [ND Cal Gen Order 62].

22.44[2][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. In the Southern District, documents to be filed under seal must be accompanied by an order sealing them. If the order is also to be filed under seal, it must so state [SD Cal Civ LR 79.2(b)]. Documents filed under seal are returned to the submitting party on entry of final judgment or termination of the appeal unless otherwise ordered by the court [SD Cal Civ LR 79.2(c)].

22.44[3] Party Must Establish Specific Harm or Prejudice to Overcome Presumption of Public Access to Discovery. Absent a court order to the contrary, the fruits of pretrial discovery are presumed public [San Jose Mercury News, Inc. v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 1999) 187 F3d 1096, 1103]. To overcome this presumption, the party seeking a protective order bears the burden of establishing specific prejudice or harm that will result if no protective order is granted [Verizon Cal., Inc. v. Ronald A. Katz Tech. Licensing, L.P. (CD Cal 2003) 214 FRD 583, 585 n9]. A particularized showing of "good cause" is required to keep documents attached to non-dispositive motions under seal; a party seeking to maintain the secrecy of documents attached to dispositive motions must show that "compelling reasons" support secrecy [Kamakana v. City and County of Honolulu (9th Cir 2006) 447 F3d 1172, 1180].

22.44[4] Presumption of Public Access to Court Documents.

22.44[4][a] Public Access to Court Documents May Be Overridden by Compelling Reasons. The Ninth Circuit recognizes a strong presumption in favor of access to court records [Foltz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 331 F3d 1122, 1135]. This presumption may only be overcome by a showing of sufficiently compelling reasons, considering the public interest in understanding the judicial process and whether disclosure could result in improper use of the material. The court issuing such a protective order must articulate the factual basis for the ruling without relying on hypothesis or conjecture [Foltz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 331 F3d 1122, 1135]. The "compelling reasons" standard applies to most judicial records [see Pintos v. Pac. Creditors Ass'n (9th Cir 2009) 565 F3d 1106, 1115] .

22.44[4][b] Exception to Presumption of Public Access for Nondispositive Motion. A different standard applies to "private materials unearthed during discovery," because those documents are not part of the judicial record [Pintos v. Pac. Creditors Ass'n (9th Cir 2009) 565 F3d 1106, 1115] . In these circumstances, Rule 26(c) governs [see Fed R Civ P 26(c); Pintos v. Pac. Creditors Ass'n (9th Cir 2009) 565 F3d 1106, 1115] . The relevant standard for Rule 26(c) is whether "'good cause' exists to protect th[e] information from being disclosed to the public by balancing the needs for discovery against the need for confidentiality" [Phillips ex rel. Estates of Byrd v. Gen. Motors Corp. (9th Cir 2002) 307 F3d 1206, 1213] . This "good cause" standard presents a lower burden for the party wishing to seal documents than the "compelling reasons" standard [Pintos v. Pac. Creditors Ass'n (9th Cir 2009) 565 F3d 1106, 1115 ; see Kamakana v. City and County of Honolulu (9th Cir 2006) 447 F3d 1172, 1180 ("[d]ifferent interests are at stake with the right of access than with Rule 26(c)")].

The "good cause" standard is not limited to discovery. "Good cause" is also the proper standard when a party seeks access to previously sealed discovery attached to a nondispositive motion [Phillips ex rel. Estates of Byrd v. Gen. Motors Corp. (9th Cir 2002) 307 F3d 1206, 1213 ("when a party attaches a sealed discovery document to a nondispositive motion, the usual presumption of the public's right of access is rebutted")].

Distinguish:

The presumption of access remains, however, for documents filed under seal in support of a dispositive motion [Foltz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 331 F3d 1122, 1136 ; see, e.g., California ex rel. Lockyer v. Safeway, Inc. (CD Cal 2005) 355 F Supp2d 1111, 1114 (motion for summary judgment)]. A party seeking to maintain documents under seal filed in support of a dispositive motion must therefore provide compelling reasons to do so, not merely good cause, as is normally required to obtain a protective order [Kamakana v. City and County of Honolulu (9th Cir 2006) 447 F3d 1172, 1180; *ATM Express, Inc. v. ATM Express, Inc. (SD Cal 2008) 2008 US Dist LEXIS 94923, at 3] .

Judge's Perspective:

The key difference in these cases is that a lesser degree of secrecy is required for materials attached to nondispositive proceedings because much of the information that surfaces during pretrial discovery may be unrelated, or only tangentially related, to the underlying claim for relief. In other words, the public has a heightened interest in the merits of the case and a lesser need for access to pretrial procedural matters [see Foltz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 331 F3d 1122, 1135].

Cross Reference:

Additional discussion of sealing discovery materials, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 26.105[7] (Matthew Bender 3d ed).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
A. Determining Uses of Protective Orders

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.45

22.45 Court May Limit Disclosure of Trade Secrets or Other Confidential Information.

22.45[1] Court May Order Confidential Information Not Be Revealed or Revealed Only in Designated Way. A court may issue a protective order when a party seeks information constituting a trade secret, or other confidential research, development, or commercial information [Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(G)]. The court may order that the sought materials not be revealed or be revealed only in a designated way [Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(G)].

22.45[2] Moving Party Must Show Good Cause for Protection of Confidential Information.

22.45[2][a] Moving Party Must Show That Information Sought Is Confidential. To establish that confidential information merits protection, the party seeking protection must show [see Ruckelshaus v. Monsanto Co. (1984) 467 US 986, 1002, 104 S Ct 2862, 81 L Ed2d 815]:

- That the information is not known outside the business;
- That the secret or other confidential information has not been disclosed to someone without obligation to maintain confidentiality; and
- That the information is not publicly available.

A court also may consider [see Andrew Corp. v. Rossi (ND Ill 1998) 180 FRD 338, 341]:

- The extent to which the information is known to employees and others involved in the business.
- Measures taken to guard the information's secrecy.
- The value of the information to the business or its competitors.
- The amount of time, money and effort expended in development of the information.

- The ease or difficulty of duplicating or properly acquiring the information.

22.45[2][b] Mere Harm to Reputation Not Sufficient Basis to Provide Protection From Discovery. Although a party may consider some material secret because release may be embarrassing to, or may harm the reputation of, that party, a court may be disinclined to issue a protective order on this basis alone, particularly when a matter of public interest is involved [In re Lifescan Consumer Litig. (ND Cal 1999) 1999 US Dist LEXIS 9894, at *7 ; Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp. v. FTC (6th Cir 1983) 710 F2d 1165, 1179-1180].

22.45[2][c] Moving Party Must Also Show Specific Prejudice or Harm Will Result in Absence of Protective Order. For each particular document a party seeks to protect, that party must show not only that the material contains confidential information, but also that revealing the information contained in each document will cause specific prejudice or harm if no protective order is granted [Foltz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 331 F3d 1122, 1130].

The allegations of harm must be substantiated with specific demonstrations of fact, preferably by affidavits and concrete examples, rather than conclusory allegations [Foltz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 331 F3d 1122, 1130].

Cross References:

Form of motion for protective order for trade secrets, see § 22.73.

6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 26.105[8][a] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

22.45[3] Following Good Cause Showing to Protect Trade Secrets, Burden Shifts to Party Seeking Discovery.

22.45[3][a] Party Seeking Discovery Bears Burden of Showing Relevance and Necessity. If the party seeking the protective order establishes good cause based on confidential material and harm from disclosure, the burden shifts to the party seeking discovery to establish that disclosure is relevant and necessary [Directv, Inc. v. Trone (CD Cal 2002) 209 FRD 455, 459-460]. Relevance and necessity must be supported by specifics, not merely conclusory allegations [Directv, Inc. v. Trone (CD Cal 2002) 209 FRD 455, 460].

22.45[3][b] Necessity May Include Public Interest Consideration. The concept of "necessity" can include furtherance of the public interest, as well as furtherance of establishing a party's claims or defenses. For example, a court may consider the fact that public disclosure of specific information would be beneficial to consumers [see, e.g., Gelb v. AT&T (SDNY 1993) 813 F Supp 1022, 1035].

22.45[4] Methods for Limiting Disclosure of Trade Secrets and Confidential Information. When determining the type of protection to afford a party's confidential information, the court will balance the risk of inadvertent disclosure of trade secrets and the risk of impairing the litigation process [Chan v. Intuit, Inc. (ND Cal 2003) 218 FRD 659, 661]. If the party seeking a protective order is unable to obtain complete protection for confidential information, that party might argue for any of the following types of limited protection:

- Limiting access to counsel [see Davidson Pipe Co. v. Laventhol & Horwath (SDNY 1988) 120 FRD 455, 465].

- Limiting access to counsel and party's expert witnesses [see Dynamic Microprocessor Assocs. v. EKD Comp. Sales (EDNY 1996) 919 F Supp 101, 106].

- Limiting access to counsel and restricting counsel's ability to represent the same type of entity for a specified period of time [see Ball Mem'l Hosp., Inc. v. Mutual Hosp. Ins., Inc. (7th Cir 1986) 784 F2d 1325, 1345-1346].

- Limiting access to opposing party's expert witnesses and requiring opposing party to return confidential documents at the close of the litigation [see Miles v. Boeing Co. (ED Pa 1994) 154 FRD 112, 115].

- Limiting access to an independent consultant [see Brown Bag Software v. Symantec Corp. (9th Cir 1992) 960 F2d 1465, 1471].

- Limiting access only to outside counsel [see Chan v. Intuit, Inc. (ND Cal 2003) 218 FRD 659, 661-662].

- Limiting use of confidential information to the particular lawsuit [see Dove v. Atlantic Capital Corp. (2d Cir 1992) 963 F2d 15, 19].

- Prohibiting copying of confidential documents [see Citicorp v. Interbank Card Ass'n (SDNY 1980) 87 FRD 43, 48].

- Requiring a bond to protect against the risk of disclosure [see In re Remington Arms Co. (8th Cir 1991) 952 F2d 1029, 1033].

- Maintaining a log of all persons who examine the confidential records, and the times and dates of their inspections [see Dynamic Microprocessor Assocs. v. EKD Comp. Sales (EDNY 1996) 919 F Supp 101, 106].

- Designating an attorney as custodian of all confidential records [see In re Remington Arms Co. (8th Cir 1991) 952 F2d 1029, 1033].

- Requiring everyone who sees the confidential information to sign a confidentiality agreement [see In re Remington Arms Co. (8th Cir 1991) 952 F2d 1029, 1033].

22.45[5] Court May Restrict Which Counsel May View Protected Material Based on Risk of Inadvertent Disclosure. If litigation counsel for the party seeking discovery also participates in the client's competitive decision-making, such as advising on prosecution of patent applications, the court may order the attorney authorized to view the protected information to refrain from participating in competitive decision-making for a period of time to prevent inadvertent disclosure [Chan v. Intuit, Inc. (ND Cal 2003) 218 FRD 659, 661-662]. This determination is made without regard to whether the attorney who will view the discovery is in-house or outside counsel [Brown Bag Software v. Symantec Corp. (9th Cir 1992) 960 F2d 1465, 1470].

If the party seeking protection cannot establish that litigation counsel is involved in competitive decision-making, the court will not bar litigation counsel for the opposing party from viewing confidential information under the terms of the protective order [Nazomi Communications, Inc. v. Arm Holdings PLC (ND Cal 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 21400, at *8].

Cross Reference:

6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 26.105[8][b] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective OrdersTrade Secrets LawCivil ActionsProtection OrdersTrade Secrets LawCivil ActionsSealed Records

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
A. Determining Uses of Protective Orders

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.46

22.46 Court May Order Parties to Simultaneously File Information Under Seal.

A protective order may require that parties simultaneously file specified documents or information enclosed in sealed envelopes to be opened as directed by the court [Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(H)].

The simultaneous exchange may prevent one party from acquiring an unfair advantage over the other by ensuring that neither party is privy to the other's information first [see Friction Div. Prods. V. E.I. DuPont de Nemours & Co. (D Del 1987) 658 F Supp 998, 1003 , aff'd, 883 F2d 1027 (1989)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective OrdersTrade Secrets LawCivil ActionsSealed Records

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
B. Obtaining a Protective Order

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.47

22.47 CHECKLIST: Preparing Motion for Protective Order.

☐ Use federal pretrial motion procedure to prepare motion geared to particular discovery event.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 6(c), 7(b)(1), 26(c)

Discussion:
See § 22.53[1]

Standard Procedure Checklist:
Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.12

☐ Make sure motion is timely filed.

○ Motion on written discovery should be filed before responses due.

○ Motion on deposition must be filed prior to the scheduled date for deposition.

Authority:
Berry v. Baca (CD Cal 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 15698, at *8-*9 ; Pioche Mines Consol., Inc. v. Dolman (9th Cir 1964) 333 F2d 257, 269

Discussion:
See § 22.53[2]

☐ File motion in either:

- ○ Court in which the action is pending.
- ○ District where the deposition is to be taken.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(c)

Discussion:
See § 22.53[3]

☐ Confer or attempt to confer.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(c)

Discussion:
See § 22.53[4]

☐ State grounds for protective order:

- ○ Establish good cause by identifying specific harm or prejudice in absence of protective order.
- ○ Show that danger of harm or prejudice outweighs need for discovery.
- ○ Identify type of protection needed.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(c); McCoy v. Southwest Airlines Co. (CD Cal 2002) 211 FRD 381, 386

Discussion:
See §§ 22.37 -22.46, 22.54

Form:
See § 22.73

☐ Prepare affidavits by knowledgeable persons to establish good cause.

Authority:
Brittain v. Stroh Brewery Co. (MDNC 1991) 136 FRD 408, 412-413

Discussion:
See § 22.54[3][b]

☐ Attach certification that movant conferred or attempted to confer to resolve dispute.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(c)

Discussion:
See § 22.53[4]

Form:
See § 22.73

☐ Serve and file motion for protective order in accordance with federal motion practice, local rules and individual judge's rules.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 5, 77

Discussion:
Ch. 5, Formatting, Serving and Filing Papers, see §§ 5.18, 5.26

☐ Include proposed order with motion.

Discussion:
See § 22.53[5]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeContent & FormCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting MemorandaCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
B. Obtaining a Protective Order

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.48

22.48 Options and Strategy.

If the responding party determines that a protective order is warranted, the responding party should consider the available methods to protect against these abuses.

If the discovery request requires a written response, the party has two options:

- Objection: First, the responding party may object to the discovery request in the written opposition. The propounding party must then decide whether to pursue the discovery through meet and confer efforts with the responding party and, if determined to obtain responses, proceed with a motion to compel. At the meet and confer stage, the responding party has the opportunity to seek a stipulated protective order to limit the discovery. If no stipulation is entered, the propounding party must file a motion to compel, and the responding party may request a protective order in opposition to the motion to compel [Fed R Civ P 37(a)(5)(B)].

- Protective Order: The second option for the responding party is to meet and confer to obtain a stipulated protective order, and if none is achieved, to file a motion for protective order prior to the time discovery responses are due.

While it normally makes sense economically for the responding party to wait for the propounding party to bring a motion to compel on objectionable discovery, particularly when it is unclear that the propounding party intends to compel responses, there are instances where the responding party would benefit from bringing a motion for protective order first. Bringing a motion for protective order puts the responding party in a more aggressive position, and lets the court know that the responding party takes the objections seriously and has confidence in the legal support for the objections. Bringing such a motion may also allow the responding party to have the last word on the issue in a reply. Also, if the objectionable discovery is voluminous, and a blanket protective order is desired, it may be less time-consuming to prepare a motion for protective order than to prepare numerous and repetitive objections.

If the discovery request is a notice of taking deposition, the party opposing the deposition does not have the option of raising the objection first in written discovery responses. The party opposing a deposition should seek a protective order, either through stipulation or court order, prior to the deposition date if the party believes the deposition should not be allowed or should be limited in some respect. After the commencement of the deposition, a protective order may only be issued upon a showing either that the deposition is being taken in bad faith or in a manner that "unreasonably" annoys, embarrasses, or oppresses the deponent or party [Fed R Civ P 30(d)(3)(A)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

62 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
B. Obtaining a Protective Order

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.49

22.49 Parties May Move for Protective Order Pertaining to Discovery or Disclosure.

Parties may obtain protective orders for:

- Mandatory disclosure required under Fed R Civ P 26(a) [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)].

- Any type of discovery request, including oral or written depositions, interrogatories, requests for admission, requests for production or inspection, and requests for physical or mental examination [Fed R Civ P 26(c), 30(d)(3)].

Cross References:

Discussion of matters subject to disclosure, see Ch. 15, Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures, §§ 15.15- 15 .26. Discussion of matters subject to discovery requests, see Ch. 24, Restrictions on Scope and Extent of Discovery: Privileges and Work Product Protection, §§ 24.03 -24.11.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryDisclosuresMandatory DisclosuresCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

63 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
B. Obtaining a Protective Order

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.50

22.50 Subpoenaed Nonparties May Seek Protective Order.

Rule 26(c) provides that protective orders may be sought by a "party or any person from whom discovery is sought" [Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)]. Subpoenaed nonparties may therefore obtain protection from a subpoena under this rule, and under Fed R Civ P 45, regarding subpoenas [Fed R Civ P 26(c), 45(c)(3); see also Compaq Computer Corp. v. Packard Bell Elecs., Inc. (ND Cal 1995) 163 FRD 329, 335].

Cross Reference:

Discussion regarding restrictions on subpoenas, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, § 23.261.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

64 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
B. Obtaining a Protective Order

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.51

22.51 Third Parties Must Intervene to Assert Rights Under Protective Order.

22.51[1] Third Parties Generally Bound by Terms of Protective Order. A protective order generally binds nonparties as well as parties, even when the nonparty is not named in the protective order [see Quinter v. Volkswagen of Am. (3d Cir 1982) 676 F2d 969, 972].

22.51[2] Protective Orders Not Binding Against Grand Jury Subpoenas. The Ninth Circuit, recognizing a split in authority in the circuit courts, has adopted a per se rule that grand jury subpoenas take precedence over protective orders [In re Grand Jury Subpoena Served On Meserve, Mumper & Hughes (9th Cir 1995) 62 F3d 1222, 1226]. Accordingly, a protective order will not shield discovery from review by grand jury other than for material produced in divorce, malpractice, and other cases where a privilege is shared by both parties.

Judge's Perspective:

Practically speaking, a litigant is unlikely to be able to shield civil discovery from grand jury review. Although the recipient of a grand jury subpoena retains the right to move to quash on grounds of privilege, overbreadth, lack of particularity, and lack of relevance, the standard is highly deferential to a finding that the subpoena is reasonable [see Fed R Crim P 17(c)(2)]. Particularly as to relevance, the scope is much broader than for a civil subpoena. Accordingly, a motion to quash is unlikely to succeed where discovery materials from a civil action subject to a protective order are at issue.

22.51[3] Third Parties Must Participate Directly to Protect Information. A party seeking a protective order usually may not assert the rights of third parties to protect the third parties' proprietary or confidential business information [Burton Mech. Contractors, Inc. v. Foreman (ND Ind 1992) 148 FRD 230, 234]. The affected third party must intervene in the lawsuit to protect the information that is in the possession of a litigant [Blum v. Schlegel (WDNY 1993) 150 FRD 38, 38-39]. However, in securities actions, a party may seek to block third-party subpoenas until motions to dismiss have been denied [Powers v. Eichen (SD Cal 1997) 961 F Supp 233, 236]

Warning:

Avoid delay in intervening to seek protection against disclosure matters pertaining to third parties. Motions to intervene to gain access to documents subject to a protective order must be timely. The Ninth Circuit determines timeliness based on (1) the state of the proceeding at which the applicant seeks to intervene; (2) the prejudice to other parties, and (3) the reason for and length of delay in seeking intervention [see Empire Blue Cross & Blue Shield v. Janet Greeson's A Place for Us, Inc. (9th Cir 1995) 62 F3d 1217, 1219].

Cross Reference:

Ch. 14, Intervention.

Discussion of who may assert third party rights in protective orders, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 26.101[2][b] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePartiesInterventionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePartiesInterventionMotions to InterveneCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

65 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
B. Obtaining a Protective Order

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.52

22.52 Methods for Obtaining Protective Order.

22.52[1] Parties May Stipulate to Protective Order. In many cases, parties may stipulate to a protective order, particularly when the party seeking discovery wishes to avoid delays, uncertainties and costs associated with pursuing a motion to compel or opposing a motion for protective order [see San Jose Mercury News, Inc. v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 1999) 187 F3d 1096, 1098 n1]. Even if attempts to stipulate a protective order are unsuccessful, the process of attempting to secure one satisfies the meet and confer requirements requisite to filing a motion for protective order [see Fed R Civ P 26(c)].

Strategic Point:

Stipulating to a protective order has the great advantage that the parties draft the order and therefore can ensure that provisions important to them are included. However, a stipulation cannot be used to skirt the requirement that, as appropriate, either a particularized showing of "good cause" or showing of compelling reasons be made for keeping documents under seal [see, e.g., Kamakana v. City and County of Honolulu (9th Cir 2006) 447 F3d 1172].

Cross References:

Discussion of procedures for preparing a discovery stipulation, see § 22.07.

Form of stipulated protective order, see § 22.74.

Additional discussion of stipulated protective orders, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 26.104[2] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

22.52[2] Party May Request a Protective Order in Opposition to a Motion to Compel. When the parties are unable to stipulate to a protective order, the party from whom written discovery is sought may object to the discovery request and request a protective order in opposition to a motion to compel if one is filed [Fed R Civ P 37(a)(5)(B)].

This option is not available to the same extent when the discovery method is by deposition, because no written objections are involved [Nelson v. Capital One Bank (ND Cal 2001) 206 FRD 499, 500 n1].

Cross References:

Discussion of objections to specific types of discovery requests, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery. Discussion of opposing a motion to compel, see Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, §§ 25.13 -25.15. Discussion regarding obtaining a protective order covering a deposition, see § 22.43.

22.52[3] Party May Bring Motion for Protective Order. If the parties refuse to stipulate to a protective order, the party from whom discovery was sought may bring a motion for protective order, and must follow the procedures required for noticed motions [Fed R Civ P 6(c), 7(b)(1), 26(c)].

Cross References:

Discussion of procedures for bringing motion for protective order, see § 22.53. General discussion of preparing a noticed motion, see Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, §§ 26.12 -26.36.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsStipulationsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMotions to CompelCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

66 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
B. Obtaining a Protective Order

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.53

22.53 Procedures for Bringing Motion for Protective Order.

22.53[1] Motion for Protective Order Must Follow Noticed Motion Procedure. A party filing a motion for protective order must generally follow the procedures for preparing a noticed motion [see Fed R Civ P 6(c), 7(b)(1), 26(c)]. District courts have additional local requirements, as do individual judges as reflected in their standing orders.

Cross References:

Discussion of preparing noticed motions, see Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, §§ 26.12 -26.36. Local district court requirements for preparing noticed motions, see Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, §§ 26.18 -26.22.

22.53[2] Motion for Protective Order Must Be Timely.

22.53[2][a] Timeliness Required. Although Fed R Civ P 26(c) includes no time limit for filing a motion for a protective order, courts require that the motion be timely or reasonable [see Berry v. Baca (CD Cal 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 15698, at *8-*9].

Timing:

A motion for protective order is timely if it is made prior to the date set for producing the discovery [see Berry v. Baca (CD Cal 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 15698, at *9 ; see also Seminara v. City of Long Beach (9th Cir 1995) 1995 US App LEXIS 29729, at *13 (unpublished opinion; generally not citable to court under 9th Cir R 36-3)].

Cross Reference:

6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 26.102[2] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

22.53[2][b] Court May Excuse Untimely Motion for Good Cause. A court may consider an untimely motion for protective order for good cause [Berry v. Baca (CD Cal 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 15698, at *9]. Good cause to excuse untimely motions has been found when:

- There was no opportunity to move for a protective order [Brittain v. Stroh Brewery Co. (MDNC 1991) 136 FRD 408, 414].

- The party sought in good faith to negotiate a consent protective order [Nestle Foods Corp. v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. (DNJ 1990) 129 FRD 483, 487].

22.53[2][c] Protective Order Covering an Oral Deposition Must Be Filed Before Deposition Begins. When a party seeks a protective order to block or narrow the scope of a deposition, the motion must be filed before the deposition begins. The party seeking the protective order must obtain a protective order from the court prior to the date set for deposition, or at a minimum, obtain an order postponing the date of the deposition pending disposition of the motion [Pioche Mines Consol., Inc. v. Dolman (9th Cir 1964) 333 F2d 257, 269 (construing former Fed R Civ P rule regarding protective orders for depositions)].

Warning:

The mere filing of the motion is insufficient to relieve the deponent from the obligation to appear at the deposition [see BCI Communication Sys. Inc. v. Bell Atlanticom Sys., Inc. (ND Ala 1986) 112 FRD 154, 159].

Once a deposition has started, the deponent may obtain a protective order only on a showing that the deposition is being conducted in bad faith or in a manner as to unreasonably annoy, embarrass, or oppress the deponent or a party [Fed R Civ P 30(d)(3)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion regarding discontinuing a deposition after its commencement, see Ch. 23, Methods of Discovery, §§ 23.47 -23.59.

22.53[2][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. In the Northern District, if a dispute arises during a discovery event, the parties must attempt to resolve the matter without judicial intervention, but if this fails, counsel may contact the chambers of the assigned judge to ask if the judge is available to address the problem through a telephone conference [ND Cal Civ LR 37-1(b)].

22.53[3] Motion Must Be Filed in the Proper District.

22.53[3][a] Requirement Under Federal Rules. A motion for protective order may be filed in either [Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)]:

- The court in which the action is pending; or

- On matters relating to a deposition, the district where the deposition is to be taken.

22.53[3][b] Court May Transfer Motion to Judge in District Where Action Is Pending. The Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals has suggested that the judge in the district where the deposition is to be taken should transfer the motion to the judge handling the case on the merits [see In re Orthopedic Bone Screw Prods. Liab. Litig. (7th Cir 1996) 79 F3d 46, 48].

In contrast, the Northern District of Georgia concluded that the court in the district where the deposition is to be taken should defer to the court where the action is pending only if the trial judge has some background information needed to rule on the motion. Otherwise, the court reasoned, the nonparty deponents will be unable to avoid the burden and expense of traveling to litigate the merits of the discovery dispute [Lampshire v. Procter & Gamble Co. (ND Ga 1982) 94 FRD 58, 59].

The Ninth Circuit has yet to address this issue. In a different context, however, the Ninth Circuit recognized that two courts may be involved in determining issues relating to protective orders [see Foltz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 331 F3d 1122, 1132-1133].

22.53[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: Parties Must Meet and Confer to Resolve Dispute.

22.53[4][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. Prior to the filing of a motion for protective order, counsel for the parties in the Cental District must confer in a good-faith effort to eliminate the necessity for hearing the motion or to eliminate as many of their discovery disputes as possible. Counsel for the moving party must arrange the conference. If both counsel are located within the same county of the Central District, the conference must take place in person at the office of the moving party's counsel, unless the parties agree to meet at a different location. If both counsel are not located within the same county of the Central District, the conference may take place telephonically. Unless relieved by written order of the Court after showing good cause, counsel for the opposing party must confer with counsel for the moving party within ten days after the moving party serves a letter requesting the conference. The moving party's letter must identify each issue and/or discovery request in dispute, state briefly with respect to each issue/request the moving party's position (and provide any legal authority that the moving party believes is dispositive of the dispute as to that issue/request), and specify the terms of the discovery order to be sought [CD Cal Civ LR 37-1]. Counsel unable to settle their differences must formulate a written stipulation, which must be filed and served with the notice of motion for a protective order [CD Cal Civ LR 37-2; see CD Cal Civ LR 37-2.1-2.4 (stipulation requirements)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of discovery stipulations, see §§ 22.03 -22.13.

22.53[4][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. In the Eastern District, a motion for a protective order will not be heard by the court unless (1) the parties have conferred and attempted to resolve their differences, and (2) the parties have stated their differences and the bases of the differences in a Joint Statement re Discovery Disagreement. The attorneys for all interested parties must confer in advance of the filing of the motion or in advance of the hearing of the motion in a good-faith effort to resolve their differences. Counsel for the moving party or prospective moving party must arrange the conference, which must be held at a time and place and in a manner mutually convenient to counsel [ED Cal Civ LR 251(b)]. If the moving party is still dissatisfied after the conference of counsel, that party must draft, with the participation of the other interested parties, and file the Joint Statement re Discovery Disagreement [ED Cal Civ LR 251(c)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of discovery stipulations, see §§ 22.03 -22.13.

22.53[4][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. In the Northern District, the court will not consider a motion for a protective order unless the attorneys have previously conferred under Rule 37 in an attempt to resolve all disputed issues. If the attorney for the moving party seeks to arrange such a conference and opposing counsel refuses or fails to confer, the judge may impose an appropriate sanction, which may include an order requiring payment of all reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, caused by the refusal or failure to confer [ND Cal Civ LR 37-1].

22.53[4][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. In the Southern District, the court will not consider any motion for a protective order unless the attorneys have previously met and conferred concerning all disputed issues. If counsel for the moving party seeks to arrange such a conference and counsel for the party against whom the motion will be made willfully refuses or fails to meet and confer, the court may order a payment of reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, pursuant to Rule 37. If counsel have offices in the same county, they must meet in person. If counsel have offices in different counties, they must confer by telephone. The parties may not satisfy the meet and confer requirement by exchanging written correspondence [SD Cal Civ LR 26.1(a)]. At the time of filing any motion to compel, counsel for the moving party must serve and file a certificate of compliance with this local rule [SD Cal Civ LR 26.1(b)].

22.53[5] Submit Proposed Order With Motion. Along with the motion, the moving party should submit a proposed order. Otherwise, the court may issue a standard order than does not contain specific provisions that may be important to the moving party [see, e.g., CD Cal Civ LR 79-5.1].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeContent & FormCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting MemorandaCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeTime LimitationsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
B. Obtaining a Protective Order

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.54

22.54 Party Seeking Protective Order Must Satisfy Requirements for Burden of Proof.

22.54[1] Good Cause Must Be Shown Before Court May Issue Protective Order. A court may only grant a protective order on a showing of good cause [Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)]. The limitation on discovery must be supported by a "strong showing" for limitation and a "particular and specific need for the protective order" [Methode Elecs., Inc. v. Finisar Corp. (ND Cal 2001) 205 FRD 552, 554].

22.54[2] Person Seeking Protective Order Generally Has Burden of Establishing Good Cause. The party seeking a protective order generally has the burden of demonstrating good cause for each particular document or matter for which protection is sought [Foltz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 331 F3d 1122, 1130].

22.54[3] Establishing Good Cause for Protective Order.

22.54[3][a] Good Cause Generally Requires Showing of Specific Prejudice or Harm in Absence of Protective Order. Although the particulars of what constitutes good cause varies according to the type of protection sought, a party must in general make a showing of specific prejudice or harm that would result if no protective order is granted [McCoy v. Southwest Airlines Co. (CD Cal 2002) 211 FRD 381, 386].

Broad allegations of prejudice or harm are insufficient; the motion must be supported by specific examples or articulated reasoning [Beckman Indus., Inc. v. International Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1992) 966 F2d 470, 476].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of some of the particular applications of good cause analysis, see §§ 22.43[2], 22.44[3], 22.45[2].

22.54[3][b] Moving Party Should Use Affidavits to Show Good Cause. Normally, the moving party articulates the facts in support of its request for a protective order by affidavits from knowledgeable persons [see Brittain v. Stroh Brewery Co. (MDNC 1991) 136 FRD 408, 412-413]. If the specific facts alleged in the affidavit contain confidential information or trade secrets, the court may review the affidavit in camera [see Brittain v. Stroh Brewery Co. (MDNC 1991) 136 FRD 408, 412-413].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of good cause requirement, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 26.104[1] (Matthew Bender 3d ed).

22.54[4] After Good Cause Shown, Court Must Balance Hardship Against Need for Discovery. Once a party seeking a protective order establishes good cause, the court must then balance the hardship to the party seeking the protective order against public and private interests to decide whether a protective order is necessary [see Phillips v. GMC (9th Cir 2002) 307 F3d 1206, 1211].

Example:

In a matter involving trade secrets, the court must balance the danger of inadvertent disclosure against the danger that a protective order will interfere with the opposing party's ability to prosecute its claims [see Brown Bag Software v. Symantec Corp. (9th Cir 1992) 960 F2d 1465, 1470].

In addition, the court must balance the public interest in obtaining access to the discovery materials against the litigant's interest in withholding the materials from discovery [see, e.g., In re Eli Lilly & Co., Prozac Prods. Liab. Litig. (SD Ind 1992) 142 FRD 454, 458].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
C. Opposing Motion for Protective Order

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.55

22.55 CHECKLIST: Opposing Motion for Protective Order.

☐ Use federal pretrial motion procedure to oppose motion.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 6(c), 7(b)(1), 26(c)

Discussion:
See § 22.57[1]

Standard Procedure Checklist:
Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.12

☐ Refute showing of good cause by:

○ Establishing minimal risk of harm.

○ Establishing minimal harm.

○ Establishing lack of cognizable prejudice.

Authority:
Pacific Lumber Co. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (ND Cal 2003) 220 FRD 349, 351-352 ; Nazomi Communications, Inc. v. Arm Holdings PLC (ND Cal 2002) 2002 US

Dist LEXIS 21400, at *8, *11

Discussion:
See § 22.57[2]

☐ Show relevance and need for discovery outweigh potential harm to party seeking protection.

Discussion:
See § 22.57[3]

☐ Serve and file opposition to motion for protective order in accordance with federal motion practice, local rules and individual judge's rules.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 5, 77

Discussion:
Ch. 5, Formatting, Serving and Filing Papers, see §§ 5.15 -5.23

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeTime LimitationsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
C. Opposing Motion for Protective Order

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.56

22.56 Options and Strategies.

During meet and confer efforts, the propounding party may determine that the responding party's proposed limitations on discovery are too extreme. If the responding party files a motion for protective order, the propounding party should emphasize to the court the extreme nature of the moving party's requested limitations, and the difficulties the limitations will impose on the propounding party's ability to litigate its case. The propounding party, in opposing the motion, should establish that the requested discovery is relevant and necessary to the issues in the case, and that the bases for "good cause" are insufficient [see Nazomi Communications, Inc. v. Arm Holdings PLC (ND Cal 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 21400, at *8, *11].

To the extent the moving party has legitimate bases to establish good cause, the propounding party should establish that the need for the discovery outweighs the purported harm. The propounding party should show that the purported harm is either minimal or not cognizable under the law, and/or that the risk that the purported harm may occur is slight [see Pacific Lumber Co. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (ND Cal 2003) 220 FRD 349, 351-354]. The propounding party may further strengthen its argument by describing any restrictions it offered to the moving party, the manner in which the proposed restrictions would have alleviated the asserted harm, and that the moving party rejected them.

If the opposing party is concerned that the court will grant the motion, the opposing party may consider submitting an alternative proposed protective order containing provisions that are less onerous than those proposed by the moving party.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
C. Opposing Motion for Protective Order

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.57

22.57 Requirements for Opposing Motion for Protective Order.

22.57[1] Party Opposing Motion Must Use Noticed Motion Procedure. Parties opposing a motion for protective order must generally follow the procedures for opposing a noticed motion [see Fed R Civ P 6(c), 7(b)(1), 26(c)]. District courts have additional local requirements and individual judge's standing orders to follow in opposing discovery motions.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of opposing noticed motions, see Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, §§ 26.37 -26.43.

22.57[2] Party Opposing Protective Order Should Refute Good Cause. The party opposing a protective order will prevail if the court is not convinced that good cause exists. Accordingly, opposition to the protective order, whether in a reply to a motion to compel or in opposition to a motion for protective order, should focus on the unlikelihood of potential harm or prejudice, and on the minimal nature of any harm or prejudice that might occur. The minimal nature of either of these factors will likely defeat a request for protective order.

Example--Minimal Risk:

In a patent infringement case, a party sought a protective order to bar opposing counsel, who accessed its confidential information, from prosecuting patents related to the particular technology at issue, or from negotiating licenses with the parties to the action. The bar would last varying terms from one to five years after the termination of the litigation. The court held that, since opposing counsel were only litigation counsel, as opposed to competitive decision-makers, the risk of inadvertent disclosure was too slight to warrant the proposed bars [Nazomi Communications, Inc. v. Arm Holdings PLC (ND Cal 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 21400, at *8, *11].

Example--Minimal Harm:

In a property damages suit, a logging company sought a protective order to stay discovery, arguing in part that a pending disposition of a summary judgment motion could narrow the scope of discovery. In denying the motion, the court noted that much of the discovery would still be relevant to remaining issues not subject to the summary judgment motion [Pacific Lumber Co v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (ND Cal 2003) 220 FRD 349, 351-352].

Example--Lack of Cognizable Prejudice:

A logging company claimed it would suffer prejudice from allowing the depositions from the defendant insurance company, because a previous settlement agreement in another case required the insurance company not to engage in discovery that may cause harm to the insured, the logging company. The court rejected this argument, noting that the lumber company had brought suit against the insurer, and therefore could not claim prejudice due to discovery of the information about the insured [Pacific Lumber Co v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (ND Cal 2003) 220 FRD 349, 353-354].

22.57[3] Party Opposing Protective Order May Defeat or Limit Order on Showing of Relevance and Necessity of Requested Information. The party seeking discovery may still defeat, or at least limit the reach of a protective order, by showing that the relevance and necessity of the information outweigh the opposing party's interest in restricting discovery [see, e.g., Cobb v. Danzig (SD Cal 1999) 190 FRD 564, 566-567].

Example--Limited Discovery Allowed:

A former employee had her security clearance revoked and sued her former employer for discrimination based on the employer's decision to undertake an investigation of her security clearance status. The defendant sought a protective order barring depositions of naval intelligence officers, claiming that the court lacked jurisdiction to review revocation of security clearance and that the deponent lacked information relevant to the claim. The court acknowledged its lack of jurisdiction to review the decision to revoke security clearance, but allowed the depositions to go forward, limited to the issue regarding the initial decision to investigate whether the security clearance should be revoked [Cobb v. Danzig (SD Cal 1999) 190 FRD 564, 566-567].

22.57[4] Nonparty May Oppose Protective Order on Public Interest Grounds. In the absence of a court order, the fruits of pretrial discovery are presumptively public [San Jose Mercury News, Inc. v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 1999) 187 F3d 1096, 1103]. Accordingly, nonparties may intervene in an action to refute a showing of good cause when the case involves a matter of public interest [see San Jose Mercury News, Inc. v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 1999) 187 F3d 1096, 1100].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeTime LimitationsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
C. Opposing Motion for Protective Order

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.58

22.58 Prevailing Party on Motion May Recover Expenses.

If the motion for protective order is denied, the court may award to the prevailing party any expenses incurred by it in relation to opposing the motion, including attorney's fees. However, the court will not award expenses if it finds that filing the motion was substantially justified or that other circumstances make an award of expenses unjust [Fed R Civ P 26(c), 37(a)(5)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMisconductCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.59

22.59 CHECKLISTS: Modifying or Vacating Protective Order.

22.59[1] Preparing Motion to Modify or Vacate Protective Order.

☐ If you are nonparty to action in which protective order was entered, prepare timely motion to intervene.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 24(b)(1)(B); San Jose Mercury News, Inc. v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 1999) 187 F3d 1096, 1100 ; Empire Blue Cross & Blue Shield v. Janet Greeson's A Place for Us, Inc. (9th Cir 1995) 62 F3d 1217, 1221

Discussion:
See §§ 22.51, 22.64. Discussion regarding the procedure to follow to intervene in another lawsuit, see Ch. 14, Intervention

☐ If you are party to protective order, establish:

○ Sufficient need for information.

○ Need for discovery outweighs potential harm to party seeking continued protection.

Authority:
Intel Corp. v. Via Techs., Inc. (ND Cal 2000) 198 FRD 525, 528-529

Discussion:
See § 22.65[1]

☐ If you are collateral litigant seeking to avoid duplicative discovery, establish to court that issued the protective order that:

- ○ Protected material was not subjected to good cause analysis.
- ○ Protected material is relevant to collateral litigation.
- ○ Protected material is generally discoverable.
- ○ Relevance of protected discovery outweighs reliance interests of protected party.

Authority:
Foltz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 331 F3d 1122, 1131-1133

Discussion:
See § 22.65[2]

☐ If, as collateral litigant, you obtain modification of protective order from issuing court, establish to collateral court that:

- ○ Specific discovery sought is relevant to specific issues.
- ○ Specific material sought is discoverable.

Authority:
Foltz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 331 F3d 1122, 1132-1133

Discussion:
See § 22.65[2][e]

☐ If you are nonparty seeking access in a matter of public interest, show

- ○ Protective order was issued without showing of good cause.
- ○ Importance to public health or safety.
- ○ Importance to other matters of public interest.

Authority:
San Jose Mercury News, Inc. v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 1999) 187 F3d 1096, 1103

Discussion:
See § 22.65[3]

☐ If you are nonparty seeking access in a matter of public interest to matters filed under seal in court in a non-dispositive motion, show compelling reasons why material should be released.

Authority:
Phillips v. GMC (9th Cir 2002) 307 F3d 1206, 1213

Discussion:
See § 22.65[3][c]

☐ If nonparty is a grand jury seeking protected material, protective order is not enforceable to bar production of material sought in grand jury subpoena.

Authority:
In re Grand Jury Subpoena Served On Meserve, Mumper & Hughes (9th Cir 1995) 62 F3d 1222, 1227

Discussion:
See § 22.65[4]

22.59[2] Opposing Modification of Protective Order.

☐ Establish good cause for specific materials sought to be discovered, particularly in case involving blanket protective order or stipulated protective order.

Authority:
Beckman Indus., Inc. v. International Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1992) 966 F2d 470, 475 ; Kamakana v. City & County of Honolulu (D Haw 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 26921, at *12-*13

Discussion:
See § 22.66[1], [4][a]

☐ Establish reliance on existence of protective order, such as:

○ Existence of protective order induced protected party into providing discovery.

○ Existence of protective order induced settlement of action.

○ Existence of protective order induced party to testify as to matters for which Fifth Amendment would have been invoked.

Authority:
Beckman Indus., Inc. v. International Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1992) 966 F2d 470, 475-476

Discussion:
See § 22.66[2]

☐ If sought discovery was filed in court under seal, show compelling reasons why sealed matters should not be revealed.

Authority:

Foltz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 331 F3d 1122, 1136

Discussion:

See § 22.66[3]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
D. Modifying or Vacating Protective Orders

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.60

22.60 Options and Strategy.

A protective order may be modified under appropriate circumstances [see Verizon Cal., Inc. v. Ronald A. Katz Tech. Licensing, L.P. (CD Cal 2003) 214 FRD 583, 585-586]. For example:

- A party to the litigation in which the protective order was issued may determine that information that had previously been blocked from discovery has become relevant and necessary to the litigation and that therefore the protective order must be modified to obtain the information.

- A party to collateral litigation may need access to material subject to the protective order.

- A nonparty may seek access to protected material when that material contains information that bears on a matter of public interest.

If a collateral litigant or other nonparty seeks to modify a protective order, the first step is to intervene in the lawsuit in which the protective order was issued [see San Jose Mercury News, Inc. v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 1999) 187 F3d 1096, 1100]. This may be done following the termination of the lawsuit. The motion to intervene must be timely filed, so the intervening party should seek intervention within a reasonable time after learning of the need for the protected material.

The burden of establishing good cause for protection remains with the party opposing disclosure [see Verizon Cal., Inc. v. Ronald A. Katz Tech. Licensing, L.P. (CD Cal 2003) 214 FRD 583, 585]. While the type of showing that must be made by the party seeking modification varies depending on the status of that party, the party seeking modification generally must establish the need for the material, and that the need outweighs any potential harm to the party seeking to maintain protection.

The party opposing modification should show not only good cause for continued protection, but also that the existence of the protective order induced the protected party to act in some manner in reliance on the order. When the protective order at issue is a blanket protective order, or is a stipulated protective order, the protected party may need to establish good cause for the first time in opposing the motion for protective order.

Judge's Perspective:

The parties should keep in mind that the protected aspect of discovery materials may be an evolving concept. The assumption should not be made that information deemed protected from disclosure at one point in the litigation will invariably maintain that status throughout the life of the case. For example, sensitive business information may become outdated by product development or disclosure. Accordingly, parties seeking access to protected information should consider whether circumstances have altered the basis on which protection was originally afforded. Conversely, parties who wish to maintain that protection should be alert to preserving the characteristics of the information on which the protective order was based, such as keeping in place practices to restrict dissemination of the material.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

74 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
D. Modifying or Vacating Protective Orders

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.61

22.61 Protective Order May Be Modified or Vacated.

The district court retains the power to modify or vacate a protective order after it has been entered [Verizon Cal., Inc. v. Ronald A. Katz Tech. Licensing, L.P. (CD Cal 2003) 214 FRD 583, 585-586]. Modification may be sought even after the underlying suit has terminated [see Foltz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 331 F3d 1122, 1128].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
D. Modifying or Vacating Protective Orders

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.62

22.62 Modification May Not Impose New Obligations on Parties to Protective Order After Underlying Action Terminated.

Once the underlying action has ended, a court may not impose any new, affirmative requirements on the parties relating to discovery [see Foltz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 331 F3d 1122, 1133 , citing Public Citizen v. Liggett Group, Inc. (1st Cir 1988) 858 F2d 775, 781 , cert. denied, 488 US 1030 (1989)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

76 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
D. Modifying or Vacating Protective Orders

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.63

22.63 Both Parties and Nonparties May Seek Modification.

A party or other person may seek to modify or vacate a protective order by noticed motion [see Intel Corp. v. VIA Techs., Inc. (ND Cal 2000) 198 FRD 525, 528 ; Foltz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 331 F3d 1122, 1128-1129].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

77 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
D. Modifying or Vacating Protective Orders

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.64

22.64 Nonparty Must Intervene to Modify Protective Order.

22.64[1] Nonparty Must Intervene in Lawsuit to Challenge Order. Nonparties may challenge protective orders to obtain access to information or judicial proceedings by seeking permissive intervention [Fed R Civ P 24(b)(1)(B); San Jose Mercury News, Inc. v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 1999) 187 F3d 1096, 1100].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of permissive intervention in another lawsuit, see Ch. 14, Intervention, §§ 14.08, 14.09.

22.64[2] Party May Intervene After Action Terminated. Courts may grant motions to intervene to modify protective orders after the underlying action has ended [see Foltz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 331 F3d 1122, 1128-1129].

22.64[3] Motion to Intervene Must Be Timely. The Ninth Circuit requires that motions to intervene to modify protective orders must be timely [Empire Blue Cross & Blue Shield v. Janet Greeson's A Place for Us, Inc. (9th Cir 1995) 62 F3d 1217, 1221].

Timing:

To assess whether the motion to intervene is timely, the court considers the following three factors [Empire Blue Cross & Blue Shield v. Janet Greeson's A Place for Us, Inc. (9th Cir 1995) 62 F3d 1217, 1219]:

- The stage of the proceeding at which an applicant seeks to intervene.
- The prejudice to other parties.
- The reason for and length of delay.

A court will be more willing to grant the motion when the third party was unlikely to have had any way of knowing at the time the protective order was entered what effect the order would have on its interests. Conversely, if a third party knew of the protective order and understood its impact on its interests, the court is less likely to grant the motion to intervene [see Empire Blue Cross & Blue Shield v. Janet Greeson's A Place for Us, Inc. (9th Cir 1995) 62 F3d 1217, 1220].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePartiesInterventionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

78 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
D. Modifying or Vacating Protective Orders

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.65

22.65 Making Showing Necessary to Modify Protective Order.

22.65[1] Showing Required for Party to Protective Order Seeking Modification.

22.65[1][a] Party to Protective Order Who Seeks Modification Must Show Sufficient Need for Information. A party to an existing protective order who seeks to modify the order must show that the party needs the protected material, and that its ability to litigate its case will be prejudiced without access to it [Intel Corp. v. Via Techs., Inc. (ND Cal 2000) 198 FRD 525, 528-529].

22.65[1][b] Party Must Show Need for Discovery Outweighs Potential Harm to Party Seeking Continued Protection. After a party establishes a need for the protected information, the court then balances the need for the discovery against any harm to the party seeking continued protection [Biovail Laboratories, Inc. v. Anchen Pharmaceuticals, Inc. (CD Cal 2006) 463 F Supp2d 1073, 1084 ; Intel Corp. v. Via Techs., Inc. (ND Cal 2000) 198 FRD 525, 528]. To the extent the party opposing modification contends that it relied on the protective order, the party seeking modification must establish that the need for the discovery outweighs the reliance interest.

Cross References:

Discussion of reliance interest by the party opposing modification, see § 22.66[2].

Additional discussion of the standards that apply to a party seeking modification, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 26.106[3] (Matthew Bender 3d ed).

22.65[2] Showing Required for Collateral Litigant.

22.65[2][a] Collateral Litigant Must Show Relevance. A collateral litigant who intervenes to modify a protective order issued in another case to avoid duplicative discovery must show that the protected discovery is relevant to the collateral proceedings [Foltz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 331 F3d 1122, 1132]. The court determines relevance based on the "degree of overlap in facts, parties, and issues between the suit covered by the protective order and the collateral proceedings" [Foltz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 331 F3d 1122, 1132].

Cross Reference:

Intervention by nonparty to modify protective order, see § 22.64

22.65[2][b] Collateral Litigant Must Show Discoverability. A collateral litigant must also show that the protected material is generally discoverable [Foltz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 331 F3d 1122, 1132]. For instance, if the protected material contains privileged matters, those materials are not discoverable by the collateral litigant [see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(1)].

22.65[2][c] Collateral Litigant May Discover Materials That Should Not Have Been Placed Under Seal. In some cases, a blanket protective order may have been issued forbidding all parties to a case from disclosing any information obtained in discovery, particularly in a document intensive case where review for confidential materials would be especially onerous. In such a case, good cause for the protective order was never established for each specific document subject to the order. When a collateral litigant seeks modification of this type of protective order, the court must allow the collateral litigant access to all relevant and discoverable materials except for those for which the party seeking protection shows good cause to remain subject to a protective order [see Foltz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 331 F3d 1122, 1131]

22.65[2][d] Issuing Court Balances Threshold Relevance and Reliance. Initially, the court that issued the protective order determines whether the protected materials are relevant to the collateral litigant's lawsuit [Foltz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 331 F3d 1122, 1132-1133].

On this initial determination of relevance, the issuing court balances the interest in avoiding duplicative discovery against the protected party's reliance on the protective order [Foltz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 331 F3d 1122, 1133]. To the extent the party opposing modification relied on the confidentiality afforded by a protective order, the party seeking modification may agree to abide by the same restrictions on maintaining confidentiality as those governing the original parties to the order [see Beckman Indus., Inc. v. International Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1992) 966 F2d 470, 475].

22.65[2][e] Collateral Court Determines Whether Collateral Litigant Will Obtain Materials. Once a collateral litigant obtains a modification of a protective order from the issuing court, the collateral court must then determine whether the specific protected material is relevant and discoverable by the litigants in the collateral proceeding [Foltz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 331 F3d 1122, 1132-1133].

Judge's Perspective:

As a practical matter, the issue is likely to be resolved by the issuing court, which will take into account the collateral litigant's need for the material before ordering a modification to permit access. Accordingly, on obtaining the modification, the collateral litigant should meet and confer with the responding party to determine if disclosure can be obtained without the need for further motion practice before the collateral court. If the responding party refuses, the collateral litigant should stress to the collateral court that, explicitly or implicitly, the issuing court took into account the collateral litigant's need for the material in agreeing to modify the protective order.

22.65[3] Showing Required for Modification by Nonparty in Matter of Public Interest.

22.65[3][a] Nonparty Should Address Lack of Good Cause for Protecting Pretrial Discovery. The Ninth Circuit recognizes a presumption of access to pretrial discovery and court documents absent a court order to the contrary. A party seeking a protective order that overrides this presumption of access typically must show good cause [see Fed R Civ P 26(c); San Jose Mercury News, Inc. v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 1999) 187 F3d 1096, 1103].

A nonparty seeking to modify a protective order to gain access to pretrial discovery or court documents should address in its moving papers how the protective order was issued without a showing of good cause as to the particular materials sought [see San Jose Mercury News, Inc. v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 1999) 187 F3d 1096, 1103].

22.65[3][b] Court Considers Various Factors to Determine Whether Good Cause Is Present in a Matter of Public Interest. In determining whether good cause exists to shield discovery from nonparties seeking information in the public interest, courts may consider the following factors [Kamakana v. City & County of Honolulu (D Haw 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 26921, at *9 n3].

- Whether disclosure will violate any privacy interests.
- Whether the information is being sought for a legitimate purpose or for an improper purpose.
- Whether disclosure of the information will cause a party embarrassment.
- Whether confidentiality is being sought over information important to public health and safety.
- Whether the sharing of information among litigants will promote fairness and efficiency.
- Whether a party benefiting from the order of confidentiality is a public entity or official.
- Whether the case involves issues important to the public.

22.65[3][c] Nonparty Must Show Compelling Reason for Modification If Sought Documents Were Filed in Court Under Seal in Non-Dispositive Motion. Although nonparties generally enjoy a presumption of access to pretrial discovery and court documents, this presumption is rebutted when good cause was previously established for issuing the protective order. If the sought documents were filed in court under seal in a non-dispositive motion, the nonparty seeking modification must establish compelling reasons why the document should be released [Phillips v. GMC (9th Cir 2002) 307 F3d 1206, 1213].

Distinguish:

When a nonparty seeks protected materials that had been filed in court in support of a dispositive motion, the nonparty is entitled to access those protected documents absent compelling reasons to disallow access [Foltz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 331 F3d 1122, 1136].

22.65[3][d] Waiver Possible If Confidential Material Is Revealed in Court. Although the Ninth Circuit has not yet ruled on the issue of whether protection for confidential material is waived when presented as evidence in open court, the Third Circuit has held that such presentation does defeat the strictures of the protective order [see Littlejohn v. BIC Corp. (3d Cir 1988) 851 F2d 673, 678-680]. In light of the strong presumption in favor of public access, it is likely that the Ninth Circuit would follow the Third Circuit.

Strategic Point:

To preserve the protections afforded by the protective order, the party seeking protection should object to the admission into evidence of the protected materials and request that such materials only be admitted under seal.

Judge's Perspective:

Do not assume that a protective order will automatically apply at trial. Most protective orders issued on a blanket basis at the commencement of litigation do not purport to cover the treatment of confidential materials at trial. That issue is generally left for discussion at the pretrial conference or through motions in limine. In general, federal courts are extremely resistant to holding civil trial proceedings "under seal."

Cross Reference:

Nonparty challenges to gain access to matters of public interest, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 26.106[3][b] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

22.65[4] Showing Required for Nonparty Governmental Entity Seeking Access to Material Subject to Protective Order for Law Enforcement Purposes. The Ninth Circuit has adopted a per se rule that grand jury subpoenas take precedence over any protective orders issued under Fed R Civ P 26(c) [In re Grand Jury Subpoena Served On Meserve, Mumper & Hughes (9th Cir 1995) 62 F3d 1222, 1227]. The government need only present the grand jury subpoena to access the protected material identified in the grand jury subpoena.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
IV. USING PROTECTIVE ORDERS TO LIMIT DISCOVERY
D. Modifying or Vacating Protective Orders

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.66

22.66 Considerations for Opposing Modification.

22.66[1] Party Opposing Modification Must Show Good Cause. Because the Ninth Circuit strongly favors access to discovery materials, the party opposing modification generally bears the burden of showing good cause to continue the protection afforded by the protective order [Beckman Indus., Inc. v. International Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1992) 966 F2d 470, 475].

Consider:

If the protective order was originally obtained on a showing of good cause, the party opposing modification generally will have already met this burden [see Intel Corp. v. Via Techs., Inc. (ND Cal 2000) 198 FRD 525, 528].

Once the party seeking modification meets its burden of showing good cause, the burden then shifts to the party seeking modification to establish a sufficient need for the information that outweighs the risk of injury to the party opposing modification [see Intel Corp. v. Via Techs., Inc. (ND Cal 2000) 198 FRD 525, 528].

22.66[2] Party Opposing Modification Should Show Reliance on Protective Order. A party opposing a motion to modify a protective order should also show that the terms of the protective order induced its reliance on the order in litigating the case [Beckman Indus., Inc. v. International Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1992) 966 F2d 470, 476]. The extent to which a court will defer to the reliance interests of the party opposing modification depends on the extent to which the order induced that party to consent to allow discovery or to settle a case [Beckman Indus., Inc. v. International Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1992) 966 F2d 470, 475].

Example:

When potential criminal conduct is implicated, a protective order that induces a party into testifying without invoking the Fifth Amendment would create a particularly strong reliance interest [see Beckman Indus., Inc. v. International Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1992) 966 F2d 470, 475].

22.66[3] Party Opposing Modification Must Show Compelling Reasons to Prevent Nonparty From Accessing Sealed Documents Filed in Support of Dispositive Motion. A party seeking to maintain confidentiality of documents under seal filed in support of a dispositive motion must provide compelling reasons to do so [Foltz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 331 F3d 1122, 1136].

22.66[4] Party Opposing Modification of Stipulated or Blanket Protective Order Has Heavier Burden.

22.66[4][a] Party Opposing Modification of Stipulated or Blanket Protective Order Must Establish Good Cause. When a blanket protective order is issued, a party seeking modification of the protective order may establish that good cause was never established as to a particular document for which access is sought [San Jose Mercury News, Inc. v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 1999) 187 F3d 1096, 1103]. Similarly, when a stipulated protective order is entered, a party seeking modification can show that good cause was never established at all [see Beckman Indus., Inc. v. International Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1992) 966 F2d 470, 476].

In these situa tions, the party seeking protection must establish good cause as to each document for which access is sought [see Kamakana v. City & County of Honolulu (D Haw 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 26921, at *12-*13].

22.66[4][b] Party Opposing Modification of Stipulated or Blanket Protective Order Has Greater Burden of Establishing Reliance. Because blanket protective orders are by their nature over inclusive, courts consider the reliance interests associated with this type of protective order to be minimal [see Beckman Indus., Inc. v. International Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1992) 966 F2d 470, 476]. Similarly, in the case of stipulated protective orders, because the protected party makes no showing of good cause to secure the order, one court has held that the party seeking protection did not have a reliance interest at all [Kamakana v. City & County of Honolulu (D Haw 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 26921, at *10, *12].

A party opposing modification of a stipulated blanket protective order must therefore identify specific acts, beyond granting discovery and settling the case, or specific harm that would result from the reliance on the existence of the stipulated blanket protective order [see Beckman Indus., Inc. v. International Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1992) 966 F2d 470, 476].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
V. FORMS

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.67

22.67 Discovery Stipulation.

Discovery Stipulation.
_____ [attorney's name and California Bar number]
_____ [attorney's street address]
_____ [city, state, and zip code]
_____ [phone number]
_____ [fax number]
_____ [attorney's e-mail address]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]
UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE _____ DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
_____ DIVISION

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff vs.	)	Civil Action No. _____
_____ [name],	)	STIPULATION RE _____
Defendant	)
	)
	)

The parties whose counsel sign this stipulation do, by this document, stipulate that:

[Example One. Allowing more than ten depositions by each side]

notwithstanding that the parties have each taken ten depositions in this case, the additional oral deposition of _____ [specify name of deponent] may be conducted. The parties stipulate that the testimony of this witness is relevant to the claims and defenses in this case in that this witness _____ [specify facts explaining the witnesses likely knowledge and how that knowledge bears on the claims and defenses].

[Example Two. Waiving signature requirement and allowing copies to be used as exhibits.]

_____ [name of deponent], whose deposition is currently scheduled for _____ [date] at _____ [time], need not sign the transcript of _____ [his or her] deposition, and the signature of _____ [his or her] counsel to this Stipulation expressly waives the witness' rights in this regard.

It is further stipulated that the originals of the paper exhibits that may be offered in evidence at the examination in connection with this deposition be retained in the hands of counsel. Copies of these exhibits will be supplied to the deposition officer and all other parties by counsel for the party offering the exhibit. Counsel for the party offering the exhibit will have the original available for comparison with the copies. If no objection is made on the record to the quality or accuracy of the copies, the copy lodged with the deposition officer may be used as an original for all purposes.

For _____ [name of first party]:

_____ [firm name]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorneys for _____ [party name]

For _____ [name of second party]:

_____ [firm name]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorneys for _____ [party name]

[Continue with signature block for each party to stipulation]

[Optional provision: Add if approval of court desired or required by local rule]

IT IS SO ORDERED:
Dated: _____

_____

UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE

NOTES.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 10(a), 11(a), (b), 29, 30(a)(2)(A)(i), 31(a)(2)(A)(i)

Format Requirements:
See §§ 22.07, 22.08

Drafting Stipulation for Additional Deposition:
See § 22.12[2]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsStipulations

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.68

22.68 Stipulation to Extend Time for Discovery Responses.

Stipulation to Extend Time for Discovery Responses.
_____ [attorney's name and California Bar number]
_____ [attorney's street address]
_____ [city, state, and zip code]
_____ [phone number]
_____ [fax number]
_____ [attorney's e-mail address]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]
UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE _____ DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
_____ DIVISION

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff vs.	)	Civil Action No. _____
_____ [name],	)	STIPULATION TO EXTEND TIME FOR DISCOV-Defendant	)	ERY RESPONSES
	)
	)

The parties whose counsel sign this document stipulate as follows for the purposes of this proceeding:

1. Defendant, whose responses to Plaintiff's Third Set of Request for Production of Documents is currently due on _____ [date], shall have an additional week, until _____ [date] to serve on the undersigned counsel for Plaintiff the responses to this discovery demand.

2. Plaintiff, whose responses to Defendant's Third Set of Request for Production of Documents is currently due on _____ [date], shall have an additional week, until _____ [date] to serve on the undersigned counsel for Defendant the responses to this discovery demand.

[Optional provision: Add if extension of time interferes with time set for completion of discovery, for hearing of a motion or for trial]

3. The additional time is necessary because _____ [specify reasons why responses could not be made sooner]. Although the proposed due date for the discovery responses are scheduled for after the _____ [discovery cutoff or hearing date or trial date], the probative value of the discovery responses is of such import to the issues in this case, because _____ [specify facts that will be determined by responses to discovery demand that bear on the issues to be determined in the case].

[Continue with signature block for each party to stipulation]

[Optional provision: Add if approval of court desired or required by local rule]:

IT IS SO ORDERED:
Dated: _____

_____

UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE

NOTES.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 29, 34

Drafting Stipulation to Extend Time for Discovery Response:
See § 22.11[2]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsStipulations

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
V. FORMS

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.69

[Reserved].

22.69[Reserved].

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
V. FORMS

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.70

22.70 Format for Stipulation (SD Cal).

Format for Stipulation (SD Cal).

[Set forth stipulation.]

ORDER

_____ [Set forth sum and substance of stipulation, e.g., Plaintiff John Smith and Defendant Mary Jones have stipulated to extend the date for service of Plaintiff's Responses to Defendant's First Set of Interrogatories until June 15, 2004. The extension is necessary because Plaintiff was out of the country at the time Defendant's Interrogatories were served and did not return until four weeks after service of the interrogatories was made. Plaintiff has thereby been unavailable to provide complete responses within the time specified in Rule 33(b)(3).]

WHEREFORE, IT IS ORDERED that Plaintiff's Responses to Defendant's First Set of Interrogatories is due June 15, 2004.
Dated: _____

_____ [signature]

UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE

[If the order is not on the same page as the stipulation, include a header or footer identifying the document name, case title and name of requesting party.]

NOTES.

Authority:
SD Cal Civ LR 7.2(b), (c)

Format Requirements:
See § 22.09[3][d]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsStipulations

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
V. FORMS

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.71

22.71 Notice of Motion and Motion for Accelerated, Pre-Conference Discovery.

Notice of Motion and Motion for Accelerated, Pre-Conference Discovery.
_____ [attorney's name and California Bar number]
_____ [attorney's street address]
_____ [city, state, and zip code]
_____ [phone number]
_____ [fax number]
_____ [attorney's e-mail address]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]
UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE _____ DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
_____ DIVISION

_____ [name],	)	Civil Action No. _____
Plaintiff vs.	)	MOTION FOR ACCELERATED DISCOVERY
_____ [name],	)	(Fed R Civ P 26(d))
Defendant	)	Date of Hearing: _____
	)	Time of Hearing: _____
	)	Courtroom No. _____
	)

TO ALL PARTIES AND THEIR ATTORNEYS OF RECORD:

Please take notice that on _____ [date] at _____ [time of day], or as soon thereafter as the parties may be heard, _____ [party's status and name] will move this Court, at the United States Courthouse located at _____ [address], Courtroom _____ [courtroom number], for an Order permitting discovery in advance of the Rule 26(f) discovery conference, and in particular permitting _____ [name of the moving party] to _____ [specify early discovery sought].

Grounds for Relief

1. The central issues in this action involve alleged defects in the material supplied by _____ [name of opposing party]. _____ [Name of moving party] is unaware of anyone else who is currently in possession of this material other than _____ [name of opposing party].

2. The affidavit of _____ [name of affiant] shows that _____ [name of opposing party] is rapidly disposing of the material that is central to the issues in this case. If _____ [name of opposing party] is not compelled to preserve it, and produce a reasonably sized sample for inspection and testing, _____ [name of moving party] will be severely compromised in its ability to _____ [prosecute or defend] this action.

3. The pretrial conference in this case is scheduled for _____ [date], which is _____ [period of time] from the filing of this action and _____ [period of time] from the filing of this motion.

4. Given the unusual facts and circumstances set out in the supporting affidavits, _____ [name of moving party] cannot afford to wait for the Rule 26(f) conference, the full 30 days for _____ [name of opposing party] to respond to a request for production, and then whatever additional time it takes _____ [name of opposing party] to actually produce a reasonably sized sample of the material in question.

Pre-Motion Attempts to Resolve Dispute

5. Prior to bringing this motion, counsel for _____ [name of moving party] conferred with counsel for _____ [name of opposing party], in an attempt to secure voluntary production of the material in question immediately, without the need for a motion and a court order.

6. Even though _____ [name of moving party] pointed out that producing the material now rather than weeks from now would result in no prejudice to _____ [name of opposing party], _____ [name of opposing party] refused to agree to voluntary production. The affidavit of counsel shows that counsel for _____ [name of opposing party] argued that it made its decision to replace the material in question based on its pre-lawsuit examination and testing of that material. _____ [Name of opposing party] also claims that the mere existence of this lawsuit should not deprive it of its ability to replace the material in question.

Record on Motion

This motion is based on this document, the Court's Order Shortening Time for service of this Motion dated _____ [date], the supporting affidavits of _____ [name] and of counsel, and Certificate of Service showing service of these motion papers in compliance with the directions in the Court's Order Shortening Time. The motion is also based on all of the pleadings and papers already on file in this action, and on whatever evidence and argument may be presented at a hearing on this motion.

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [signature of attorney]

_____ [typed or printed name of attorney]

_____ [firm name, if applicable]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[Attach any supporting affidavits or declarations and exhibits to those affidavits or declarations.]

[Attach certificate of service.]

NOTES.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 7(b), 26(d)

Additional Moving Papers Required Under Local Rules:
See §§ 22.17[5][a] (Central District-Joint Stipulation); 22.17[5][b] (Eastern District-Joint Statement re Discovery Disagreement); 22.17[5][d] (Southern District-Certificate of Compliance)

Bringing Discovery Motions:
See §§ 22.14 -22.17

Drafting Argument for Accelerated Early Discovery:
See § 22.23

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeContent & FormCivil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsGeneral Overview

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
V. FORMS

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.72

22.72 Notice of Motion and Joint Motion to Extend Discovery Cutoff.

Notice of Motion and Joint Motion to Extend Discovery Cutoff.
_____ [attorney's name and California Bar number]
_____ [attorney's street address]
_____ [city, state, and zip code]
_____ [phone number]
_____ [fax number]
_____ [attorney's e-mail address]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]
UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE _____ DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
_____ DIVISION

_____ [name],	)	Civil Action No. _____
Plaintiff vs.	)	MOTION TO EXTEND TIME FOR DISCOVERY
_____ [name],	)	(Fed R Civ P 16(b), 26(d))
Defendant	)	Date of Hearing: _____
	)	Time of Hearing: _____
	)	Courtroom No. _____
	)

Please take notice that on _____ [date] at _____ [time of day], or as soon thereafter as the parties may be heard, _____ [party's status and name], joined by _____ [ party's status and name], will jointly move this Court to amend its Scheduling Order of _____ [date] to extend the period within which to complete discovery from _____ [date] until _____ [date].

Grounds for Relief

1. The Court's Scheduling Order of _____ [date] calls for all discovery to be completed on _____ [date].

2. Through circumstances unforeseen at the time, and complicated by the fact that _____ [name of moving party] is a resident of _____ [city, state] who is not always able to schedule discovery, particularly depositions, as easily as would a local resident, the parties each have failed to complete _____ [specify uncompleted items of discovery, e.g., the depositions of each other's experts]. The facts and circumstances that led to the unavoidable delays are set forth in detail in the supporting affidavits of counsel filed with this joint motion.

3. The brief extension in the discovery cutoff sought will delay the report of the parties as to witnesses to be called at trial (in person and by deposition), but only by _____ [number] of days. The parties agree that this information my be included, instead, in the final pretrial report to be filed on _____ [date]. This report, and the final pretrial conference scheduled for _____ [date], should not be delayed by the brief extension of the discovery cutoff sought by this motion.

4. As the fact of the joint nature of this motions shows, the parties and their counsel have worked diligently and harmoniously in an attempt to get this matter promptly prepared for trial. The brief extension sought was unavoidable and will not delay the court's schedule for this action in any significant degree.

Record on Motion

This motion is based on this document, the joinder of _____ [name of remaining party] shown below, the supporting affidavits of counsel filed with this motion, and the pleadings and papers already on file in this action.
Dated: _____

_____ [signature of attorney]

_____ [typed or printed name of attorney]

_____ [firm name, if applicable]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

JOINDER IN MOTION

By the signature of _____ [his or her] counsel below, _____ [name of remaining party] joins in this motion, waives formal service of the motion, and requests the court to grant the relief sought by this motion.
Dated: _____

_____ [signature of attorney]

_____ [typed or printed name of attorney]

_____ [firm name, if applicable]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

PROPOSED ORDER

The joint motion of the parties for an extension of the discovery cutoff to _____ [date] is GRANTED. The Scheduling Order of _____ [date] is amended to show the new discovery cutoff date, and the Witness Report currently scheduled for filing on _____ [date] may be included in the Joint Pre-Trial Conference report due on _____ [date].

The final Pre-Trial Conference date and Trial Date as set in this Scheduling Order are maintained.
Dated: _____

_____

UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE

NOTES.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 16(b), 26(d); CD Cal Civ LR 16-14; ND Cal Civ LR 26-2

Drafting Argument to Extend Discovery Cutoff:
See § 22.26

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeContent & FormCivil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral Overview

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.73

22.73 Notice of Motion and Motion for Protective Order for Trade Secrets.

Notice of Motion and Motion for Motion for Protective Order for Trade Secrets.
_____ [attorney's name and California Bar number]
_____ [attorney's street address]
_____ [city, state, and zip code]
_____ [phone number]
_____ [fax number]
_____ [attorney's e-mail address]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]
UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE _____ DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
_____ DIVISION

_____ [name],	)	Civil Action No. _____
Plaintiff vs.	)	NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION FOR PROTECTIVE ORDER
_____ [name],	)
Defendant	)	Date of Hearing: _____
	)	Time of Hearing: _____
	)	Courtroom No. _____

TO ALL PARTIES AND THEIR ATTORNEYS OF RECORD:

Please take notice that on _____ [date] at _____ [time of day], or as soon thereafter

as the parties may be heard, _____ [party's status and name] will move this Court, at the United States Courthouse located at _____ [address], Courtroom _____ [courtroom number], for a protective order that _____ [name of moving party] not be required to disclose any secret processes, developments, or research in connection with the manufacture of _____ [product name or description] during the depositions of _____, _____, _____ [names of witnesses], officers and employees of _____ [name of moving party], whose depositions have been noticed by _____ [name of opposing party].

Grounds for Relief

1. This is a dispute involving _____ [nature of dispute, e.g., copyright violations concerning computer programs copied by Defendant from Plaintiff].

2. The witnesses whose depositions have been noticed can and should be allowed to testify to _____ [undisputed subjects of testimony, e.g., the identity of the programs in question, Plaintiff's copyright in the programs, and Plaintiff's losses caused by the violation those copyrights.

3. However, _____ [name of opposing party] is a direct business competitor of _____ [name of moving party]. Information as to _____ [disputed subjects of testimony, e.g., how the programs were created and marketed] has only marginal relevance to the claims and defenses established by the pleadings.

4. Disclosure of this information to a direct business rival would work an unreasonable hardship on _____ [name of moving party], and provide an unfair competitive advantage to _____ [name of opposing party] in creating competitive products based on _____ [name of moving party]'s trade secret information. On the other hand, denial of discovery of clear and indisputable trade secrets would barely affect the preparation of _____ [name of opposing party] for trial on the claims and defenses in dispute.

5. _____ [Name of moving party] has maintained the confidentiality of this information by prohibiting all employees with knowledge of the trade secret information from communicating this information to individuals outside the business. The trade secrets have not been disclosed to anyone without an obligation to maintain confidentiality, and the trade secret information is not publicly available.

6. _____ [Name of opposing party]'s intention to inquire into these trade secret matters is clear from the notices of depositions. The notices were served pursuant to Rule 30(b)(6) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and have, in each instance, expressly asked that the witness selected by _____ [name of opposing party] be prepared to testify as to these matters. The notices are attached as Exhibits "_____" and "_____" to the Affidavit of _____ [name of affiant] in Support of Motion for Protective Order.

Certificate of Pre-Motion Conference

7. By signing the motion, counsel for _____ [name of moving party] certifies that, prior to making this motion, counsel for the parties conferred in an attempt to resolve this matter without the intervention of the Court.

8. Counsel for the parties conferred by telephone, and as the Affidavit of _____ [name of affiant] shows, counsel for _____ [name of opposing party] stated that there were no circumstances under which _____ [name of opposing party] would voluntarily limit discovery as to _____ [subjects that involve trade secrets]. Furthermore, counsel refused to stipulate to a protective order that would keep this information strictly with counsel and shielded from the client. Counsel for _____ [name of opposing party] stated that _____ [name of officer or employee of opposing party], _____ [title of officer or employee of opposing party] of _____ [name of opposing party], would be personally present at all of the noticed depositions and would not voluntarily exclude himself from the deposition or shield himself from this information.

[If permitted under local rules, incorporate request for sanctions in motion papers. In Northern District, sanctions must be requested in separate motion under ND Cal Civ LR 7-8, 37-3 .]

Sanctions

9. The intransigence of counsel for _____ [name of opposing party], or _____ [name of opposing counsel], in refusing to stipulate to standard protections for trade secret matters, such as the requested stipulation that all such matters be disclosed solely to counsel and shielded from clients, is without any legitimate justification.

10. The only conceivable justification for this position is an attempt to abuse the discovery processes of the court to obtain an improper business advantage and, perhaps, by that manner, an improper advantage in this litigation.

11. The Affidavit of _____ [name of affiant] sets out the expenses incurred by _____ [name of moving party] in bringing this motion to Court, including the reasonable attorney's fees incurred. Sanctions in the minimum amount of $ _____ should be awarded in this matter as authorized by Rules 26(c) and 37(a)(4) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

[CONTINUE]

Record on Motion

This motion is based on this document [on the attached Memorandum of Points and Authorities], the Supporting Affidavits of _____ and _____ [names of affiants], on the Court's Order Shortening Time for service of this motion, and on the Certificate of Service of the motion papers pursuant to that Order Shortening Time. _____ [Name of moving party] will also rely on any and all pleadings and papers already on file in this action.
Dated: _____

_____

[firm name]

By: _____

[signature]

_____

[typed name]

Attorneys for _____

[Attach any supporting affidavits or declarations and exhibits to those affidavits or declarations.]

[Attach certificate of service.]

NOTES.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 7(b), 26(c)

Additional Moving Papers Required Under Local Rules:
See §§ 22.17[5][a] (Central District-Joint Stipulation); 22.17[5][b] (Eastern District-Joint Statement re Discovery Disagreement); 22.17[5][d] (Southern District-Certificate of Compliance)

Moving for Protective Order:
See §§ 22.47 -22.54

Timing:
See § 22.53[2]

Meet and Confer Requirements Under Local Rules:
See § 22.53[4]

Drafting Argument for Protective Order for Trade Secrets:
See § 22.45[2]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeContent & FormCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective OrdersTrade Secrets LawCivil ActionsProtection Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
V. FORMS

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.74

22.74 Blanket Stipulated Protective Order.

Blanket Stipulated Protective Order.

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff vs.	)	Civil Action No. _____
_____ [name],	)	STIPULATED PROTECTIVE ORDER
Defendant	)
	)
	)

The parties, by the signatures of their counsel on this document, stipulate to the following Protective Order in this action:

1. All papers, records, and other recorded data ("documents") that are voluntarily exchanged, disclosed pursuant to Rule 26(a), or produced in response to a discovery request subject to a designation of confidentiality and a claim privilege, and all deposition testimony or other forms of discovery responses that are given in this action under a designation of confidentiality or a claim of privilege must be treated as confidential by all other parties to this litigation and used only for the purposes of this litigation. The affected documents, deposition testimony, and responses to discovery must not be disclosed to persons other than parties to the litigation, counsel for parties, and expert witnesses employed by the counsel for the parties, unless and until the Court makes a written order to the contrary.

2. All documents, deposition testimony, or other discovery responses produced or disclosed under a designation of confidentiality or a claim of privilege that are, for any reason, filed with the Court must be filed in a sealed envelope, marked "confidential," and not made public pending further order of the Court.

SO STIPULATED:

For _____ [name of first party]:

_____ [firm name]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorneys for _____ [party name]

For _____ [name of second party]:

_____ [firm name]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorneys for _____ [party name]

[Continue with signature block for each party to stipulation]

[Optional provision: Add if approval of court desired or required by local rule]:

IT IS SO ORDERED:
Dated: _____

_____

UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE

NOTES.

Authority:
See Fed R Civ P 26(c), 29

Format Requirements:
See §§ 22.07, 22.08

Drafting Stipulated Blanket Protective Order:
See § 22.52[1]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsStipulationsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 22 Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion *
V. FORMS

3-22 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 22.75

22.75 Protective Order Changing Place of Deposition.

Protective Order Changing Place of Deposition.

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff vs.	)	Civil Action No. _____
_____ [name],	)	PROTECTIVE ORDER RE DEPOSITION
Defendant	)	(Fed R Civ P 26(c))
	)
	)

On _____ [date], _____ [name of moving party] brought on a motion for protective order seeking to change the place of taking of the deposition of _____ [name of witness]. Having considered the papers submitted in connection with the motion, the authorities cited by the parties, and the argument of counsel,

IT IS ORDERED THAT:

1. The motion for protective order is GRANTED.

2. The deposition of _____ [name of witness] will not be held in _____ [city, state], but in _____ [city, state] at _____ [address or description of location, e.g., a suitable room at the headquarters of Plaintiff John Smith], unless some other place in _____ [city, state] that is mutually agreeable to the parties;

3. The parties will set a mutually agreeable date and time for this deposition, which may not be later than _____ [date], at _____ [time, e.g., 9:00 a.m.];

[4. Sanctions _____ (are or are not) awarded in connection with this Order. (Optional Provision: Add if sanctions are awarded) Sanctions in the amount of $ _____ shall be paid to _____ (name of moving party) by _____ (name of opposing party, name of attorney for opposing party, or both), jointly and severally].

5. All relief not expressly granted is denied.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Dated: _____

[Alternative One. Order issued by district judge]

_____

UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE

[Alternative Two. Order issued by magistrate judge]

_____

UNITED STATES MAGISTRATE JUDGE

NOTES.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 7(b)(2), 26(c), 30(b)(1); Berry v. Baca (CD Cal 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 15698, at *10

Drafting Protective Order Changing Place of Deposition:
See § 22.40[7]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

* The authors acknowledge the contribution of Teresa L. Zuber, a member of the California Bar, in preparing this chapter.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.syn

§ 23.syn Synopsis to Chapter 23: Methods of Discovery

23.01 Scope.

23.02 Objective and Strategy.

23.02[1] Perpetuation of Testimony.

23.02[2] Oral Depositions.

23.02[3] Written Depositions.

23.02[4] Interrogatories.

23.02[5] Requests for Production and Inspection.

23.02[6] Discovery of Electronically Stored Information.

23.02[7] Physical and Mental Examinations.

23.02[8] Requests for Admission.

23.02[9] Nonparty Discovery: Subpoena.

23.03 CHECKLIST: Petitioning for Perpetuation of Testimony.

23.04 Options and Strategy for Petitioner.

23.04[1] Decide Whether Pre-Action Perpetuation of Testimony Is Necessary to Prevent Loss of Evidence.

23.04[2] Determine What Information Will Be Sought.

23.04[3] Consider Bringing Action to Perpetuate Testimony.

23.04[4] Consider Stipulations or Declaratory Relief.

23.04[4][a] Stipulations.

23.04[4][b] Declaratory Relief.

23.04[5] Using Perpetuated Evidence.

23.05 Pre-Action Perpetuation of Testimony May Be Available Under Rule 27.

23.05[1] Matters Must Be Cognizable in United States Court.

23.05[2] Action Must Be Anticipated.

23.05[3] Federal Jurisdiction Must Exist in Anticipated Action.

23.05[4] Anticipated Action Must Be Civil.

23.05[5] Perpetuation of Testimony Must Prevent Failure or Delay of Justice.

23.05[6] Trial Court Will Exercise Its Discretion.

23.06 Perpetuation Is Not Appropriate for Obtaining Unknown Information.

23.07 Required Contents of Petition.

23.07[1] Name of Petitioner.

23.07[2] Expectation of Action.

23.07[3] Description of Subject Matter.

23.07[4] Facts of Testimony.

23.07[5] Reasons for Perpetuation.

23.07[6] Names of Adverse Parties.

23.07[7] Names of Persons to Be Examined.

23.07[8] Request for Order.

23.07[9] Verification.

23.08 Required Notice and Filing.

23.08[1] File in District of Opponent's Residence.

23.08[2] File in Any District If All Expected Adverse Parties Are Aliens.

23.08[3] Notice Must Be Served on Each Expected Adverse Party.

23.08[4] Notice Must Contain Required Statements.

23.08[5] Notice Must Be Served 21 Days Before Hearing.

23.08[6] Notice Must Be Served as Required by Rule 4.

23.09 Petitioner Must Establish Three Elements.

23.09[1] Petitioner Must Show Anticipation of Litigation.

23.09[2] Petitioner Must Describe Testimony Sought.

23.09[3] Petitioner Must Show Risk of Losing Evidence.

23.09[3][a] Significant Risk Required.

23.09[3][b] Factors Indicating Urgency.

23.10 Petitioner May Request Production of Documents, Electronically Stored Information, and Things, Entry on Land, and Physical and Mental Examinations.

23.10[1] Pre-Action Discovery May Be Available.

23.10[2] Deposition Is Not Required.

23.11 Order Must Contain Specific Findings.

23.12 Depositions Will Be Taken in Accordance With Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

23.13 CHECKLIST: Opposing Petition to Perpetuate Testimony.

23.14 Options and Strategy for Opponent.

23.15 Grounds for Objecting to Petition for Perpetuation of Testimony.

23.16 Opposition Papers Must Be Filed.

23.17 Other Potential Adverse Parties May File Response.

23.18 Sanctions May Be Available.

23.19 CHECKLIST: Planning Oral Depositions.

23.20 Options and Strategy for Party Seeking Discovery.

23.21 Depositions Are Subject to Numeric and Timing Restrictions.

23.21[1] Depositions Cannot Be Taken Before Parties' Initial Meeting Except by Stipulation or With Leave of Court.

23.21[2] Number of Depositions Is Limited to 10 for Each Side.

23.21[3] Duration of Each Deposition Is Limited.

23.21[3][a] Duration Is One Day of Seven Hours Unless Otherwise Stipulated or Ordered.

23.21[3][b] Court Must Allow Additional Time for Fair Examination.

23.21[3][c] Circumstances That Might Require Additional Time.

23.21[3][d] Persons Responsible for Impediment or Delay May Be Subject to Sanctions.

23.21[3][e] Court May Order Shorter Duration in Particular Case.

23.22 Any Person May Be Deposed.

23.22[1] Generally Any Person, Including Any Party, May Be Deposed.

23.22[2] Deposition Notice May Specify Certain Individuals to Testify on Behalf of Corporation.

23.22[2][a] Deposition Notice May Specify Officers, Directors, or Managing Agents to Appear on Behalf of Corporation.

23.22[2][b] Who Is a "Managing Agent."

23.22[3] Depositions of Counsel Are Allowed in Limited Circumstances.

23.22[4] Expert Whose Opinions May Be Presented at Trial May Be Deposed.

23.23 Leave of Court Generally Is Not Required.

23.24 No Party Has Priority in Setting Depositions.

23.25 Circumstances When Leave of Court Is Required.

23.25[1] Leave Required When Deponent Is Incarcerated.

23.25[2] Leave Required for More Than 10 Depositions.

23.25[3] Leave Required If Person Already Deposed.

23.25[4] Leave May Be Required for Deposition Before Discovery Plan Agreement.

23.26 Court Will Limit Excessive or Unreasonable Discovery.

23.27 CHECKLIST: Giving Notice of Oral Deposition.

23.28 Options and Strategy for Party Noticing Deposition.

23.29 Written Notice Is Required.

23.29[1] Give Reasonable Notice in Writing to All Parties.

23.29[2] Specify Time and Place of Deposition.

23.29[3] State Name and Address of Deponent, If Known.

23.29[4] Designate Materials to Be Produced Pursuant to Subpoena Duces Tecum.

23.29[5] State Method for Recording Testimony.

23.29[6] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements--Consult With Counsel or Pro Se Party Deponent About Scheduling Prior to Giving Notice.

23.30 Notice May Name Corporation, Partnership, Association, or Agency As Deponent.

23.30[1] Notice Must Describe Matters on Which Examination Is Requested.

23.30[2] Entity Must Designate Individual(s) Who Will Testify on Its Behalf.

23.30[3] Deposition of Specific Individual May Be Noticed.

23.31 Telephone or Video Conference Deposition May Be Allowed by Stipulation or Court Order.

23.32 Notice to Party Deponent May Be Accompanied by Request for Production.

23.33 Notice Must Be Served on Parties.

23.33[1] Serve on All Parties.

23.33[2] Do Not File Notice.

23.33[3] Serve Nonparty Deponent With Subpoena to Compel Attendance and/or Production.

23.34 Cost of Recording and Transcription Generally Borne by Deposing Party.

23.34[1] Party Taking Deposition Bears Cost of Recording.

23.34[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements--Court May Order Waiver of Transcription or Apportionment of Cost.

23.34[3] Any Party May Notice Additional Method of Recording.

23.35 Parties May Stipulate to Modification of Deposition Procedures.

23.36 CHECKLIST: Responding to Notice of Deposition.

23.37 Options and Strategy for Challenging the Notice by the Opposing Party or Deponent.

23.37[1] Possible Objections.

23.37[2] Preparing the Deponent.

23.38 Objections to Errors or Irregularities in Notice Must Be Promptly Served on Party Giving Notice.

23.39 Objections to Deposition Officer Must Be Made As Soon As Disqualification Becomes Known or Could Be Discovered.

23.40 Motion to Quash Deposition Notice or Subpoena Must Be Made Promptly.

23.41 Motion for Protective Order Requires Showing of Good Cause.

23.41[1] May Be Made by Party or Deponent.

23.41[2] Good-Faith Attempt to Resolve Dispute Is Required.

23.41[3] Relief Available.

23.41[4] Court May Order Discovery on Specified Terms and Conditions.

23.41[5] Court May Award Expenses.

23.42 CHECKLIST: Conducting an Oral Deposition.

23.43 Deposition Officer Must Be Authorized to Administer Oaths or Be Appointed by the Court.

23.44 Deposition Officer Cannot Have Relationship to Parties or Counsel or Financial Interest in Action.

23.45 Deposition May Utilized in International Discovery.

23.45[1] Several Methods for Appointment of Officer and Taking Foreign Deposition.

23.45[2] Presiding Officer Is Determined by Law of Foreign Nation.

23.45[3] Court Issues Commission or Letter of Request for Deposition on Application of Party Seeking Discovery.

23.45[4] Presiding Officer Must Be Designated by Name or Title.

23.45[5] Caption Must Meet Requirements of Applicable Treaty or Convention.

23.45[6] Counsel Must Consult Foreign Law to Ascertain Permissible Deposition Procedures.

23.45[7] Procedure Used for Deposition in Foreign Country Does Not Affect Admissibility of Evidence.

23.45[8] Deposition May Be Taken in United States Pursuant to Foreign Request or Letters Rogatory.

23.46 Conduct of Deposition Must Comply With Federal Rules and Local Rules.

23.46[1] Officer Must Make Statement on the Record to Begin.

23.46[2] Officer Must Administer Oath and Record Testimony.

23.46[3] Requirements for Nonstenographic Recording.

23.46[3][a] Officer Must Identify Deposition at the Beginning of Each Unit of Tape or Other Recording Medium.

23.46[3][b] Recording Techniques Cannot Distort Appearance or Demeanor of Participants.

23.46[4] Examination and Cross-Examination Proceed As at Trial.

23.46[4][a] Federal Rules of Evidence Apply, With Two Exceptions.

23.46[4][b] Adverse Party May Access Materials Used to Refresh Deponent's Memory.

23.46[4][c] Deponent and Deponent's Counsel May Not Confer During Questioning.

23.46[5] Other Parties May Transmit Written Questions.

23.46[6] Examination Proceeds Subject to Objections Noted in the Record.

23.46[7] Officer Must Indicate End of Deposition on Record and Set Forth Stipulations Made by Counsel.

23.46[8] LOCAL PRACTICE: Numbering Exhibits.

23.46[8][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements.

23.46[8][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements.

23.46[8][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements.

23.46[8][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements.

23.46[9] Any Party May Arrange for Transcription or Additional Method of Recording.

23.47 CHECKLIST: Objecting to the Conduct of an Oral Deposition.

23.48 Objections to Qualifications of Deposition Officer Are Waived If Not Timely.

23.49 Objections to Competency of Witness or Testimony Generally Are Not Waived.

23.50 Objection to Errors or Irregularities During Deposition Must Be Seasonably Made or Are Waived.

23.51 Objections to Questioning Must Be Concise and Non-Argumentative.

23.52 Instructing Witness Not to Answer Is Permitted in Limited Cases.

23.52[1] Witness May Be Instructed Not to Answer Only in Certain Circumstances.

23.52[2] Question Beyond Scope Described in Notice to Deponent Entity Not Grounds for Instruction.

23.53 Party or Deponent May Move for Protective Order During Deposition.

23.53[1] Party or Deponent May Demand That Deposition Be Suspended to Seek Order.

23.53[2] Grounds for Order.

23.53[3] Court May Terminate Deposition or Limit Examination.

23.53[4] Terminated Deposition May Be Resumed Only on Court Order.

23.53[5] Court May Award Expenses.

23.54 Party May Move for Award of Expenses When Noticing Party Fails to Attend Deposition.

23.55 Party May Move for Award of Expenses When Witness Does Not Attend Because of Noticing Party's Failure to Serve Subpoena.

23.56 CHECKLIST: Compelling Attendance, Testimony, or Production.

23.57 Motion for Sanctions Available When Party Deponent Fails to Appear.

23.58 Failure of Nonparty Deponent to Comply With Subpoena Is Contempt.

23.59 Party May Move to Compel Deponent to Answer Question or Produce Materials.

23.60 CHECKLIST: Obtaining Copies of and Reviewing Transcript.

23.60[1] Deponent's Checklist.

23.60[2] Noticing Party's Checklist.

23.60[3] Opposing Party's Checklist.

23.61 Deponent May Request Review of Transcript.

23.61[1] Review Must Be Requested Before Completion of Deposition.

23.61[2] Deponent Has 30 Days to Review Transcript.

23.61[3] Deponent Must Provide Statement of Changes and Reasons for Changes.

23.61[4] Deposition Officer Must Indicate Review Was Requested and Append Changes.

23.61[5] Failure to Follow Procedure May Lead to Striking of Changes.

23.62 Certification and Delivery of Deposition Must Comply With Federal and Local Rules.

23.62[1] Officer Must Prepare Certificate to Accompany Deposition.

23.62[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements--Pages of a Deposition Must Be Numbered Sequentially.

23.62[3] Items Produced During Examination Must Be Annexed to Deposition on Request.

23.62[4] Officer Must Deliver Deposition to Attorney Who Arranged for Transcript or Recording.

23.62[5] Attorney Must Store Deposition.

23.62[6] LOCAL PRACTICE: Requirements for Delivery and Storage of Transcript.

23.62[6][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements.

23.62[6][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements.

23.62[6][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements.

23.62[6][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements.

23.63 Deposition Officer Retains Stenographic Notes or Copy of Recording.

23.64 Persons Who May Obtain Copy of Transcript or Recording.

23.64[1] Any Party or Deponent May Obtain Copy From Deposition Officer.

23.64[2] Nonparty May Obtain Copy If Filed Without Protective Order.

23.65 Deposition Is Not Filed With Court.

23.65[1] Discovery Documents Generally Are Not Filed Until Used.

23.65[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Filing of Depositions.

23.65[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements.

23.65[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements.

23.65[2][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements.

23.65[2][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements.

23.66 Motion to Suppress Must Be Made Promptly or Errors and Irregularities in Preparation of Deposition Are Waived.

23.67 CHECKLIST: Using or Preventing the Use of a Deposition.

23.67[1] Checklist for Party Intending to Use Deposition.

23.67[2] Checklist for Party Seeking to Prevent Use of Deposition.

23.68 Deposition May Be Used at Trial to Extent Admissible.

23.69 Purposes for Which a Deposition May Be Used.

23.69[1] Any Party May Use Deposition for Impeachment of Deponent As a Witness.

23.69[2] Adverse Party May Use Deposition of Party for Any Purpose.

23.69[3] Any Party May Use Deposition for Any Purpose When Witness Is Unavailable.

23.69[3][a] When Witness Is Dead.

23.69[3][b] When Witness Is More Than 100 Miles From Place of Trial.

23.69[3][c] When Witness Cannot Attend or Testify for Specific Reasons.

23.69[3][d] Party Has Been Unable to Procure Attendance of Witness by Subpoena.

23.69[3][e] Exceptional Circumstances Exist.

23.69[4] Objections to Admissibility of Deposition.

23.70 Circumstances When Deposition May Not Be Used.

23.70[1] Against Party Who Was Unable to Obtain Counsel for Deposition Taken Early and Without Leave of Court.

23.70[2] Against Party Who Received Less Than 11 Days' Notice and Moved for Protective Order.

23.71 Form of Presentation.

23.71[1] Party Must Provide Transcript.

23.71[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements--Party Using Deposition Must Provide Extra Copy to Judge.

23.71[3] On Request of Party in Jury Case, Nonstenographic Deposition Testimony Must Be Presented.

23.71[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Specific Requirements for Marking and Lodging Depositions With Court.

23.72 Objections May Be Made As to Admissibility As If Witness Were Present.

23.73 Additional Parts of Deposition May Be Introduced to Be Considered With Part Previously Introduced.

23.74 Substitution of Parties Does Not Affect Right to Use Depositions.

23.75 Depositions May Be Used in Subsequent Action.

23.76 CHECKLIST: Planning Depositions Upon Written Questions.

23.77 Options and Strategy for Party Seeking Discovery.

23.78 Written Deposition May Be Cost-Effective Means to Obtain Discovery.

23.79 Written Deposition May Be Used for Discovery in Foreign Countries.

23.80 Written Deposition May Allow Identity of Deponent to Be Kept Confidential.

23.81 Written Depositions Have Inherent Limitations.

23.82 Written Depositions Are Subject to Numeric and Timing Restrictions.

23.82[1] Depositions Cannot Be Taken Before Parties' Initial Meeting Except by Stipulation or Leave of Court.

23.82[2] Number of Depositions Is Limited to 10 for Each Side.

23.83 Persons or Entities May Be Deposed.

23.83[1] Any Person, Including Any Party, May Be Deposed.

23.83[2] Corporations or Other Business Organizations May Be Deposed.

23.83[3] Associations or Agencies May Be Deposed.

23.83[4] Written Depositions May Be Used for Deposing Attorney.

23.84 Leave of Court Generally Is Not Required.

23.85 Circumstances When Leave of Court Is Required.

23.85[1] Leave Required When Deponent Is Incarcerated.

23.85[2] Leave Required for More Than 10 Depositions.

23.85[3] Leave Required If Person Already Deposed.

23.85[4] Leave Required for Deposition Before Discovery Plan.

23.86 Court Will Limit Excessive or Unreasonable Discovery.

23.87 CHECKLIST: Giving Notice of Deposition Upon Written Questions.

23.88 Options and Strategy for Party Noticing Deposition.

23.89 Written Notice Is Required.

23.89[1] Identify Deponent.

23.89[1][a] State Name and Address of Deponent.

23.89[1][b] Describe Deponent If Name Not Known.

23.89[1][c] Notice May Name Entity As Deponent.

23.89[2] Identify Deposition Officer.

23.89[3] State Time and Place of Deposition.

23.90 Notice Must Be Served on Parties.

23.90[1] Serve Questions With Notice.

23.90[2] Serve Notice and Questions on All Parties.

23.90[3] Serve 33 Days Before Date of Deposition.

23.90[4] Serve Nonparty Deponent With Subpoena to Compel Attendance and/or Production.

23.90[5] Do Not File Notice.

23.91 CHECKLIST: Responding to Notice of Deposition Upon Written Questions.

23.92 Options and Strategy for Opposing Party or Deponent.

23.93 Objections to Errors or Irregularities in Notice of Deposition Must Be Promptly Served on Party Giving Notice.

23.94 Objections to Deposition Officer Must Be Made Promptly to Avoid Waiver.

23.95 Objections to Form Must Be Timely Served in Writing.

23.96 Entity Named As Deponent Must Designate Individual to Testify.

23.97 Party or Deponent May Move for Protective Order.

23.97[1] Court May Preclude or Limit Discovery on Showing of Good Cause.

23.97[2] Court May Order That Discovery Be Taken by Another Method.

23.97[3] Good-Faith Attempt to Resolve Is Required.

23.98 CHECKLIST: Propounding Cross, Redirect, and Recross Questions.

23.99 Parties May Serve Cross Questions Within 14 Days of Notice.

23.100 Noticing Party May Serve Redirect Questions Within Seven Days of Cross Questions.

23.101 Party May Serve Recross Questions Within Seven Days of Redirect Questions.

23.102 Court May Enlarge or Shorten Time for Serving Questions.

23.103 CHECKLIST: Procedure for Taking Deposition Upon Written Questions.

23.103[1] Noticing Party's Checklist.

23.103[2] Deponent's Checklist.

23.103[3] Opposing Party's Checklist.

23.104 Noticing Party Must Deliver Notice and Questions Served to Deposition Officer.

23.105 Deposition Officer Must Take Testimony of Deponent.

23.106 Deponent May Request Review of Completed Deposition.

23.107 Officer Must Certify and Deliver Deposition.

23.108 Deposition Is Not Filed With Court.

23.109 Noticing Attorney Must Safely Store Deposition Transcript.

23.110 Motion to Suppress Must Be Made Promptly or Errors Are Waived.

23.111 CHECKLIST: Propounding Interrogatories.

23.111[1] Making Preliminary Determinations Regarding Interrogatories.

23.111[2] Drafting and Serving Interrogatories.

23.112 Options and Strategies for Propounding Party.

23.112[1] Use Identification Interrogatories to Gather Specific Types of Information.

23.112[2] Use Contention Interrogatories to Inquire Into Opinion or Contention.

23.112[3] Consider Advantages of Using Interrogatories.

23.112[4] Consider Disadvantages of Using Interrogatories.

23.113 Review Mandatory Disclosure Requirements.

23.114 Subject Matter of Interrogatories.

23.114[1] Interrogatories May Inquire About Relevant Matters.

23.114[2] Interrogatories Must Be Reasonably Calculated to Lead to Discovery of Admissible Evidence.

23.114[3] Interrogatory May Relate to Party's Contention.

23.114[3][a] Contention Interrogatories Are Not Automatically Objectionable.

23.114[3][b] Court May Postpone Response.

23.114[4] Interrogatories Seeking Legal Conclusions Are Impermissible.

23.115 Number of Interrogatories Is Limited.

23.115[1] Twenty-Five Interrogatories Allowed.

23.115[2] Avoid Subparts.

23.115[3] Obtain Court Permission or Stipulation to Exceed Limit.

23.115[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements--Motion for Leave to Propound More Interrogatories Must State Proposed Interrogatories.

23.115[5] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Request Additional Interrogatories in Joint Status Report by Stipulation.

23.115[6] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements--Motion for Leave to Propound More Interrogatories Must State Proposed Interrogatories and Good Cause.

23.116 Drafting Interrogatories.

23.116[1] Interrogatories Should Be Clear and Definite.

23.116[2] Large Amounts of Information Can Be Treated As Single Interrogatory.

23.116[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Number Interrogatories Sequentially.

23.116[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Leave Space for Answer After Interrogatory.

23.116[5] Attorney's Signature Is Required.

23.117 Interrogatories May Be Served After Rule 26(f) Conference.

23.117[1] Parties Must Meet and Confer.

23.117[2] Court May Postpone Answers to Contention Interrogatories.

23.117[3] Interrogatories May Be Served Before or After Other Types of Discovery.

23.117[4] Interrogatories Must Be Served 30 Days Before Discovery Deadline.

23.117[5] Be Aware of Mandatory Disclosure Deadline.

23.117[6] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements--Untimely Discovery Requests Are Unenforceable.

23.118 Serve All Parties.

23.119 Do Not File Interrogatories.

23.119[1] File Only When Used in Proceeding.

23.119[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Propounding Party Keeps Original of Interrogatories.

23.119[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--File Only Relevant Portion of Interrogatories.

23.119[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements--Propounding Party Is Custodian of Interrogatories and Responses.

23.120 Motion to Compel Is Available When Party Fails to Respond.

23.121 CHECKLIST: Responding to Interrogatories.

23.121[1] Making Preliminary Determinations Concerning Answers.

23.121[2] Drafting and Serving Responses to Interrogatories.

23.122 Options and Strategy for Responding Party.

23.123 Who May Respond.

23.123[1] Interrogatories Directed to Individual Must Be Answered, Signed, and Verified by That Person.

23.123[2] Interrogatories Directed to Organization Must Be Answered, Signed, and Verified by Officer or Agent.

23.123[3] Organization Must Designate Agent; Attorney May Be Agent.

23.123[4] Interrogatories Directed to Government Agency Must Be Answered, Signed, and Verified by Officer or Agent.

23.123[5] Attorney for Party Must Certify Responses.

23.124 Responding Party Must Answer or Object.

23.125 Responding Party Has Duty to Furnish All Available Information.

23.125[1] Answer to the Extent Possible.

23.125[2] Information Under Responding Party's Control.

23.125[3] Business Entity Must Provide Information Known to Officers and Employees.

23.126 Business Records May Be Provided in Lieu of Answer.

23.126[1] Specify Records and Provide Opportunity for Inspection.

23.126[2] Make Specification Detailed.

23.126[3] Burden of Deriving Answer Must Be Same for Both Parties.

23.126[4] Responding Party May Be Required to Provide Index.

23.126[5] Court May Require That Interrogating Party Reimburse Respondent's Expenses.

23.126[6] Claim of Privilege May Be Restricted.

23.127 Thirty-Day Period for Response.

23.127[1] Extra Three Days for Service by Mail or Other Alternative Delivery.

23.127[2] Obtain Agreement of Parties or Court Order to Alter Timing.

23.127[3] Several Methods of Serving Response Are Available.

23.127[4] Timing of Response for Removed Actions.

23.127[5] Failure to Make Timely Response Sanctionable.

23.128 Restrictions on Filing Interrogatory Responses.

23.129 Formatting Responses.

23.129[1] Draft Full and Separate Responses for Each Interrogatory.

23.129[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Response Must Immediately Follow Interrogatory.

23.129[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal, ND Cal, and SD Cal Requirements--Set Forth Each Question Before Answer.

23.129[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Answer in Space Provided.

23.129[3] Respondent and Attorney Must Sign.

23.130 Objecting to Interrogatories.

23.130[1] Rule 26 Is Primary Source of Objections.

23.130[2] State Precise Grounds for Objection.

23.130[2][a] General Grounds Are Insufficient.

23.130[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--State Reasons.

23.130[3] Respondent May Object in Part.

23.130[4] Objector Has Burden of Proof.

23.130[5] Format Requirement: Objection Must Immediately Follow Interrogatory.

23.130[5][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal, ND Cal, and SD Cal--Set Forth Each Question Before Objection.

23.130[5][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal--Object in Space Provided.

23.130[6] Make Timely Objection.

23.130[7] Avoid Waiver of Objection.

23.130[7][a] General Rule: Failure to Timely Object Waives Objection.

23.130[7][b] Excuse for "Good Cause" Shown.

23.131 Attorney Must Sign Objections.

23.132 Relief May Be Available by Obtaining Protective Order.

23.133 Effect of Answers.

23.133[1] Use at Trial.

23.133[2] Objections to Introduction of Answers.

23.134 Respondent Must Supplement and Amend Answers.

23.135 CHECKLIST: Planning to Obtain Documents, Electronically Stored Information, and Tangible Items Through Production or Inspection.

23.136 Options and Strategies Related to Planning for Production or Inspection.

23.136[1] Choosing Best Method of Obtaining Production or Inspection.

23.136[1][a] Sequence of Discovery Methods.

23.136[1][b] Alternate Sources to Help Identify Items.

23.136[1][c] Use of Subpoena for Items Not in Possession, Custody, or Control of Party.

23.136[2] Preventing Destruction of Documents.

23.137 Types of Documents, Electronically Stored Information, and Tangible Items That Party May Request.

23.137[1] Party May Request Production of Documents for Inspection and Copying.

23.137[2] Party May Request Production of Tangible Items for Inspection, Sampling, Testing and Copying.

23.137[3] Party May Request Permission to Enter Land for Inspection, Sampling, and Copying Tangible Items.

23.137[4] Electronically Stored Information Is Discoverable Material.

23.138 Requested Documents, Electronically Stored Information, and Items Must Be Discoverable.

23.138[1] Parties Are Generally Entitled to Request Material Relevant to Claim or Defense of Parties.

23.138[1][a] Party May Request Production of All Items Within Scope of Discovery.

23.138[1][b] Scope of Discovery Is Broad.

23.138[1][c] Requested Document, Electronically Stored Information, or Item Need Not Be Admissible If It Leads to Admissible Evidence.

23.138[2] Parties May Not Request Privileged or Work Product Material.

23.139 Persons Subject to Rule 34 Discovery.

23.139[1] Rule Applies to Parties to Civil Action.

23.139[2] Party Is Actual Claimant or Defendant in Civil Suit.

23.139[3] Only Representative Party in Class Action Litigation Is Deemed Party for Discovery Purposes.

23.140 Limits on Number of Rule 34 Requests.

23.141 Other Discovery Procedures for Production of Documents, Electronically Stored Information, and Tangible Items.

23.141[1] Parties Must Produce Certain Documents, Electronically Stored Information, and Tangible Items As Part of Mandatory Initial Disclosures.

23.141[2] Party May Include Request for Production in Notice of Deposition.

23.141[3] Party May Serve Subpoena on Nonparty to Obtain Documents, Electronically Stored Information, and Tangible Items.

23.141[3][a] Subpoena Facilitates Discovery From Nonparties.

23.141[3][b] Subpoena Procedures Must Be Followed for Production or Inspection From Nonparty.

23.141[3][c] Nonparty Subpoena for Production or Inspection Is Subject to Court's Discovery Deadlines.

23.141[3][d] Subpoena May Be Used to Compel Testimony.

23.141[3][e] Subpoena Procedure Must Protect Nonparty Against Significant Expense.

23.141[3][f] Factors Court May Consider in Shifting Payment of Subpoena Discovery Expense.

23.141[4] Serving Subpoena on Parties.

23.142 CHECKLIST: Requesting Production or Inspection.

23.143 Options and Strategies for Requesting Party.

23.143[1] Consider Early Requests for Production or Inspection.

23.143[2] Consider Motion to Shorten Time to Respond to Requests for Production or Inspection.

23.144 Time Restrictions on Requests for Production or Inspection.

23.144[1] Request Is Premature If Made Prior to Filing of Complaint.

23.144[2] Request Is Premature If Made Prior to Discovery Conference.

23.144[3] Request Is Premature If Made Prior to Initial Disclosure.

23.144[4] Request May Not Be Made Later Than 30 Days Prior to Discovery Deadline.

23.144[5] Request Must Set Reasonable Time for Inspection.

23.144[6] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal--Request Must Allow Time for Response Before Discovery Cutoff.

23.144[7] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal--Relief From Discovery Termination Date Requires Strong Showing.

23.145 Contents and Format of Request for Production or Inspection.

23.145[1] Written Request Must Specify Items Individually or by Category.

23.145[2] Request Must Specify Items With Reasonable Particularity.

23.145[2A] Request May Specify Form of Production of Electronically Stored Information.

23.145[3] Request Must Specify a Reasonable Place and Manner of Inspection.

23.145[4] Request Must Specify a Reasonable Time for Inspection.

23.145[5] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Requirements for Numbering Requests.

23.146 Certification Is Required on Request.

23.147 Service of Request Is Required on All Parties.

23.148 LOCAL PRACTICE: Requests for Production or Inspection Generally Should Not Be Filed.

23.148[1] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements.

23.148[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements.

23.148[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements.

23.148[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements.

23.149 CHECKLISTS: Responding to Request for Production or Inspection.

23.149[1] Checklist for Service of Response.

23.149[2] Checklist for Response.

23.150 Options and Strategies for Responding Party.

23.150[1] Exercise Response Option Within Time Constraint.

23.150[2] Determine How to Respond to Each Request.

23.151 Time Limit for Written Response.

23.151[1] Time Limit Is Generally 30 Days.

23.151[2] Time Limit May Be Altered by Court Order or by Agreement.

23.151[3] Formal Response Necessary to Preclude Waiver.

23.152 Contents and Format of Response to Request for Production or Inspection.

23.152[1] Response Must Be in Writing and Specify Items Individually or by Category.

23.152[2] Response Should Conform to Designation of Items and Categories in Request.

23.152[2A] Response Must State Form of Production of Electronically Stored Information If No Form Was Specified in Request or If Responding Party Objects to Form Specified.

23.152[3] Responding Party Must Clearly Specify Reasons for Each Objection.

23.152[4] Responding Party Must Comply With Unobjectionable Parts of Request.

23.152[5] Certification of Response.

23.152[6] LOCAL PRACTICE: Format of Response.

23.152[6][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements.

23.152[6][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements.

23.152[6][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements.

23.152[6][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements.

23.152[7] Supplementation of Responses.

23.153 Grounds for Refusal to Produce or Allow Inspection.

23.153[1] Privilege.

23.153[1][a] Requirements of Privilege Claim.

23.153[1][b] Methods of Establishing Privilege Claim.

23.153[2] Work Product.

23.153[3] Lack of Relevance to Claim or Defense of Party.

23.153[4] Lack of Possession, Custody, or Control.

23.153[4][a] Party Must Produce Only Items in Its Possession, Custody, or Control.

23.153[4][b] Nature of Possession, Custody, or Control.

23.153[4A] Electronically Stored Information Is Not Readily Accessible.

23.153[5] Other Objections.

23.154 Service of Response Required on All Parties.

23.155 Motion for Protective Order.

23.156 Production of Documents, Electronically Stored Information, or Tangible Items by Responding Party.

23.156[1] Place of Production.

23.156[2] Manner of Production.

23.156[3] Inspection and Copying of Produced Material.

23.156[3][a] Access to Produced Material.

23.156[3][b] Court May Direct Manner of Production.

23.156[4] Testing of Produced Tangible Items.

23.156[5] Responsibility for Expenses of Production and Inspection of Documents, Electronically Stored Information, and Tangible Items.

23.156[5][a] Presumed Responsibility for Expenses.

23.156[5][b] Discretion of Court to Shift Costs.

23.157 CHECKLIST: Making Requests for Electronically Stored Information.

23.158 Electronically Stored Information Is Discoverable.

23.158[1] Electronically Stored Information Is Subject to Discovery.

23.158[2] Types of Electronically Stored Information That Are Subject to Discovery.

23.158[3] "Deleted" Electronically Stored Information Is Discoverable.

23.158[4] Discovery of Electronically Stored Information Relied on by Experts.

23.158[4][a] Data Relied on by Testifying Expert Must Be Disclosed.

23.158[4][b] Data Relied on by Non-Testifying Expert Is Discoverable Only Under Exceptional Circumstances.

23.158[5] Production in Specific Format May Be Requested.

23.158[6] Request Electronically Stored Information in Electronic Format.

23.159 Pre-Service Discovery May Be Available Under Limited Circumstances to Discover Identity of Doe Defendant Who Committed Tortious Acts On-Line Anonymously or Pseudonymously.

23.160 Address Discovery of Electronically Stored Information Early in Litigation.

23.160[1] Rule 26(a)(1) Requires Disclosure of Electronically Stored Information.

23.160[2] Pretrial Conferences May Be Used to Narrow Scope of Relevant Records.

23.161 Parties Have Duty to Preserve Evidence.

23.161[1] Knowledge of Litigation or Imminent Litigation Triggers Preservation Duty.

23.161[2] Zubulake Guidelines for Preservation of Electronic Evidence.

23.161[2][a] Zubulake Cases Provide Detailed Guidance on Preservation Duties.

23.161[2][b] Directives to Parties Under Zubulake IV.

23.161[2][c] Directives to Attorneys Under Zubulake V.

23.161[3] Obtain Stipulation or Order for Preservation of Evidence.

23.161[4] Sanctions May Be Imposed for Failure to Preserve Evidence.

23.161[4][a] Sanctions May Be Imposed for Violation of Preservation Order.

23.161[4][b] Court Has Inherent Authority to Impose Sanctions for Destruction of Evidence.

23.162 Use Discovery Methods to Gather Evidence in Form of Electronically Stored Information.

23.162[1] Use Interrogatories to Identify Sources of Electronically Stored Information and Persons With Knowledge of Storage Policies and Procedures.

23.162[2] Depose Person With Knowledge of Electronic Information Systems and Storage.

23.162[3] Demand Inspection of Electronic Information System.

23.162[3][a] Rule 34(a) Provides for Inspection of Electronic Information Systems.

23.162[3][b] Requesting Party Must Demonstrate Need and Likelihood of Finding Relevant Matter.

23.162[3][c] Attempt Agreement on Confidentiality Protocol.

23.162[4] Request Production of Electronically Stored Information.

23.162[4][a] Make Rule 34 Request for Production to Obtain Electronically Stored Information.

23.162[4][b] Responding Party Must Produce All Responsive Information Within Its Possession, Custody, or Control.

23.162[5] Make Supplemental Requests for After-Acquired or Discovered Information.

23.163 Move to Compel Discovery If Responding Party Fails to Comply With Discovery Request.

23.164 CHECKLIST: Responding to Requests for Electronically Stored Information

23.165 Request for Production Includes Electronically Stored Information.

23.166 Responding Party Has Duty to Perform Diligent Search.

23.167 Routine Procedures That Would Destroy Relevant Records Must Be Suspended.

23.168 Responding to Request for Production.

23.168[1] Produce Information in Form Specified in Request or Form in Which It Is Ordinarily Maintained or Form That Is Reasonably Usable.

23.168[2] Responding Party Has Duty to Create Compilations If Raw Data Exists.

23.168[3] Interrogatories May Be Answered by Making Records Available.

23.168[4] Respond or Object in Timely Manner.

23.168[4][a] Failure to Object Within Time Required Waives Any Objections.

23.168[4][b] Objection Must Identify Specific Item As to Which It Is Made and Specify Reason for Objection.

23.168[4][c] Response Must State Form of Production If Other Than That Stated in Request.

23.168[5] Determine Whether to Retain Expert to Protect Against Manipulation of Data by Requesting Party.

23.169 Requested Matter Must Be Relevant to Claim or Defense.

23.169[1] Wide-Ranging Discovery Is Allowed Under Liberal Interpretation of Rule 26(b).

23.169[2] "Fishing Expeditions" Are Not Allowed.

23.169[3] Burden Is on Responding Party to Show Lack of Relevance.

23.170 Requested Matter Must Not Be Privileged.

23.171 Determine Whether Burden or Expense Exceeds Right to Evidence.

23.171[1] Party Must Produce Evidence Unless Production Is Unduly Burdensome or Expensive.

23.171[2] Evaluate Burden and Expense of Production Under Rule 26(b)(2)(C) Factors.

23.171[2][a] Burden of Producing Electronically Stored Information Can Be Substantial.

23.171[2][b] Rule 26(b) Balancing Factors Determine Extent of Discovery of Electronically Stored Information.

23.171[2][c] Limitation on Discovery Can Be Obtained If Likely Benefit Is Outweighed by Burden or Expense.

23.171[2][d] Assess Whether Request for Discovery Is Too Broad.

23.172 Responding to Request for Search of Back-Up System or Archive.

23.172[1] Search of Back-Up System or Archive May Be Difficult and Costly.

23.172[2] Proportionality Test Applies to Search of Back-Up Systems and Archives.

23.173 Protective Order Is Available If Burden or Expense of Production Is Too Great.

23.173[1] Burden of Searching Records and Translating Data Into Readable Form Is Necessary and Foreseeable.

23.173[2] Prepare Proffer Outlining Costs and Burdens.

23.173[3] Attempt to Resolve Dispute With Requesting Party.

23.173[4] Protective Order Is Available If Dispute Cannot Be Resolved Between Parties.

23.174 Apply for Order Shifting Costs If Production Requires Significant or Special Costs.

23.174[1] Court Has Inherent Authority to Allocate Discovery Costs.

23.174[2] Cost-Shifting Is Appropriate When Data Is Inaccessible.

23.174[3] Responding Party Bears Cost of Review and Production Following Conversion to Accessible Form.

23.175 Third-Party Response to Subpoena Issued Under Rule 45.

23.175[1] Produce Information in Form Specified in Subpoena, Form Ordinarily Maintained, or Reasonably Usable Form.

23.175[2] Identify Documents Withheld Based on Privilege Sufficiently to Enable Requesting Party to Contest Claim.

23.175[3] Electronic Communications Privacy Act of 1986 Protects Customer Information Possessed by Provider of Electronic Communication Service.

23.175[4] Seek Protective Order to Prevent, or Impose Sanctions for, Imposition of Undue Burden or Expense.

23.175[5] Discovery Order Is Normally Not Immediately Appealable.

23.176 CHECKLIST: Protecting Confidentiality and Privilege.

23.177 Privileged Matter Is Protected From Discovery.

23.178 Reasonable Expectation of Confidentiality May Exist in Electronically Stored Information.

23.178[1] Electronically Stored Information May Contain Privileged or Confidential Information.

23.178[2] Totality of Circumstances Is Considered in Determining Whether Inadvertent Disclosure Waives Privilege.

23.178[3] Employee Has No Reasonable Expectation of Privacy in E-mails Sent Over Employer's Computer System.

23.178[4] Attorney-Client Privilege Applies to Communication by E-mail.

23.179 Work Product Doctrine Can Apply to Computerized Litigation Support System.

23.179[1] Work Product Doctrine Protects Work Prepared Because of Litigation.

23.179[2] Attorney Involvement Determines Level of Protection for Computerized Litigation Support System.

23.179[3] When Requesting Party Has Targeted Computerized Litigation Support System for Discovery, Determine Whether Material Is Available From Another Source.

23.180 Stipulated Protective Order May Be Used to Protect Confidential and Privileged Information.

23.181 Move for Protective Order If Requesting Party Will Not Stipulate.

23.181[1] Attempt Must Be Made to Resolve Dispute Before Moving for Protective Order.

23.181[2] Court Has Broad Discretion to Fashion Appropriate Order.

23.182 CHECKLIST: Admitting Electronically Stored Information at Trial.

23.183 Electronically Stored Information Is Writing Subject to Federal Rules of Evidence.

23.184 Authenticity Is Governed by Fed R Evid 901.

23.184[1] Proponent Must Produce Evidence Sufficient to Support Finding That Matter in Question Is What Proponent Claims It to Be.

23.184[2] Website Printouts Must Be Authenticated.

23.184[3] Printouts of Electronically Stored Information Must Be Authenticated.

23.184[4] E-mail Must Be Authenticated.

23.185 Questions of Accuracy Go to Weight, Not Admissibility.

23.186 Electronically Stored Information Will Be Excludable as Hearsay Unless an Exception Applies.

23.186[1] Electronically Stored Information Is Subject to Exclusion as Hearsay.

23.186[1][a] Electronically Stored Information May Be Statement Subject to Exclusion as Hearsay.

23.186[1][b] Nonassertive Printout Is Not Hearsay.

23.186[1][c] Admission by Party-Opponent Is Not Hearsay.

23.186[2] Hearsay Electronically Stored Information Is Admissible If an Exception Applies.

23.186[2][a] Federal Rules of Evidence Provide Exceptions That Allow Admission of Hearsay.

23.186[2][b] Electronically Stored Information Is Admissible Under Business Records Exception to Hearsay Rule If Proper Foundational Requirements Are Established.

23.186[2][c] Catch-All Exception for Statements With Circumstantial Guarantees of Trustworthiness.

23.187 Court May Require Disclosure of Digital Material That Will Be Shown to Jury.

23.188 Application of Best Evidence Rule to Printouts of Electronically Stored Information.

23.189 CHECKLIST: Initial Considerations.

23.190 Options and Strategy for Party Considering Examination.

23.191 Any Party May Seek Examination.

23.192 Party or Person in Custody or Control of Party May Be Examined.

23.192[1] Any Party Is Subject to Examination.

23.192[2] Person in Custody or Control of Party Is Subject to Examination.

23.192[3] Nonparty Is Not Subject to Examination.

23.193 Examination Must Be Conducted by Qualified Examiner.

23.193[1] Examiner Must Be Suitably Licensed or Certified.

23.193[2] Designation of Examiner by Moving Party Generally Conclusive.

23.194 CHECKLIST: Agreeing or Stipulating to Physical or Mental Examination.

23.195 Options and Strategy for Agreeing or Stipulating to Examination.

23.196 Parties May Agree to Mental or Physical Examination.

23.197 Examination Pursuant to Agreement Is Subject to Rule 35 Restrictions, Unless Agreement Explicitly Provides Otherwise.

23.198 CHECKLIST: Moving for Physical or Mental Examination of Party.

23.199 Options and Strategy for Moving Party.

23.200 Request and Examination Must Be Timed Properly.

23.200[1] Examinations Must Await Preliminary Discovery Conference.

23.200[2] Examinations Must Be Sought Before Close of Discovery.

23.200[3] Examination May Be Available Prior to Commencement of Action to Preserve Evidence.

23.201 Requisites of Motion Practice Must Be Followed.

23.202 Physical or Mental Condition Must Be Shown to Be "in Controversy."

23.202[1] Burden Is on Moving Party.

23.202[2] Party to Be Examined Must Have Placed Condition "in Controversy."

23.202[3] Showing That Physical Condition Is in Controversy.

23.202[4] Showing That Mental Condition Is in Controversy.

23.202[4][a] Making Claim of "Garden-Variety" Emotional Distress or Mental Anguish Does Not Place Mental Condition "in Controversy."

23.202[4][b] Making Claim of Ongoing Mental Injury Places Mental Condition "in Controversy."

23.202[4][c] Party to Be Examined May Concede That Mental Condition Is "in Controversy."

23.203 Establishing "Good Cause" for Examination.

23.203[1] Burden Is on Moving Party.

23.203[2] "Good Cause" Requires Demonstration of Necessity to Discover Specific Relevant Facts Through Examination.

23.203[3] Moving Party's Ability to Obtain Information From Other Source May Obviate Need for Examination.

23.203[4] Prior Examination May Obviate Need for Second Examination.

23.203[5] Court May Balance Privacy Interest of Party Against Need for Examination.

23.204 Setting and Limiting Conditions of Examination.

23.204[1] Conditions Should Be Specified in Motion.

23.204[2] Attendance of Third Parties, Including Counsel, Generally Disfavored.

23.204[3] Recording Examination Not Necessary.

23.205 CHECKLIST: Sanctioning Noncompliance With Court Order for Examination.

23.206 Examining Party Can Move for Sanctions If Party Fails to Comply With Examination Order.

23.207 Party May Escape Sanctions by Showing Inability to Produce Examinee.

23.208 Various Types of Sanctions Are Available, Including Attorney's Fees.

23.209 Failure to Comply May Not Be Punished by Contempt.

23.210 CHECKLIST: Opposing Request or Motion for Examination.

23.211 Options and Strategies for Opposition.

23.211[1] Determine Whether Opposition Would Be Beneficial.

23.211[2] Attempt Negotiation Toward Stipulated Examination.

23.211[3] Focus on Scope of Examination.

23.211[4] Consider Seeking Protective Order.

23.211[5] Prepare Client for Examination.

23.211[6] Interview Client After Examination.

23.211[7] Consider Options for Obtaining Examination Report.

23.212 CHECKLIST: Obtaining Examination Reports.

23.213 Obtaining Report on Request of Examined Party.

23.213[1] Examination Ordered After Motion.

23.213[2] Stipulated Examination May Curtail Right to Report.

23.214 Compelling Production of Report.

23.214[1] Examined Party May Move Court to Compel Production.

23.214[2] Excluding Evidence for Failure to Produce Report.

23.215 Determining Effect of Request for and Delivery of Report.

23.215[1] Request of Examined Party Includes All Results of Earlier Examinations of Same Condition.

23.215[2] Delivery of Report by Examining Party Entitles Party to Results of Any Other Examination of Same Condition.

23.215[3] Request of Examined Party Waives Any Privilege of Party As to Other Examinations of Same Condition.

23.216 Obtaining Report Under Other Discovery Provisions Not Precluded.

23.217 CHECKLIST: Requesting Admissions.

23.218 Determine Whether Matter Under Consideration Is Subject to Requests for Admission.

23.218[1] Requests Must Concern Matters Relating to Facts.

23.218[2] Requests May Relate to Ultimate Facts.

23.218[3] Requests May Relate to Application of Law to Facts.

23.218[4] Requests May Relate to Genuineness of Documents.

23.218[5] Requested Matter Must Be Relevant and Not Privileged.

23.218[6] Requested Matter Must Not Be Pure Legal Conclusion Unrelated to Facts of Case.

23.219 Propound Requests to Each Party Against Whom Admission Will Be Used.

23.220 Determine Timing of Requests.

23.220[1] Service of Requests Generally Must Await Discovery Conference.

23.220[2] Earlier Service of Requests May Be Based on Parties' Stipulation or Leave of Court.

23.220[3] Discovery Cutoff Date Applies to Requests for Admission.

23.221 Comply With Local Rules Limiting Number of Requests.

23.221[1] Check Judge's Standing Orders.

23.221[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements.

23.221[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements.

23.222 Draft Requests Carefully.

23.222[1] Requests Must Be Clear and Precise.

23.222[2] State Each Request Separately.

23.222[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements.

23.222[4] Frame Requests As Statements Not Questions.

23.222[5] Attach Relevant Documents.

23.223 Request Must Be Signed on Behalf of Propounding Party.

23.224 Serve Requests.

23.224[1] Signed Request Must Be Served on Responding Party.

23.224[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Retain Original.

23.224[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements.

23.224[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements.

23.224[3] Serve Copies of Requests on All Other Parties.

23.225 Do Not File Request.

23.225[1] Requests Should Not Be Filed Until Used in Case.

23.225[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Filing Requirements.

23.225[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements.

23.225[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements.

23.226 CHECKLIST: Responding to Requests for Admission.

23.227 Responding Party Has Duty of Inquiry.

23.228 Review Grounds for Objecting.

23.228[1] Improper Format of Request.

23.228[2] Untimely Request.

23.228[3] Excessive Number of Requests.

23.228[4] Undue Burden.

23.228[5] Improper Scope of Request.

23.228[6] Irrelevance.

23.228[7] Privilege.

23.228[8] Failure to Provide Document.

23.229 Respondent's Options.

23.229[1] Answer.

23.229[2] Object.

23.229[3] Ask to Extend Time.

23.229[4] Seek Protective Order.

23.230 Failure to Respond Is Deemed Admission.

23.231 Response Must Be Served Within 30 Days.

23.232 Exceptions to 30-Day Period to Respond.

23.232[1] Court Order.

23.232[2] Parties' Written Stipulation.

23.233 Responding Party May Move for Relief From Failure to Make Timely Response.

23.234 Responses Must Be in Writing.

23.235 LOCAL PRACTICE: Quote Requests in Response.

23.235[1] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements.

23.235[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements.

23.235[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements.

23.235[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements.

23.236 Drafting Response.

23.236[1] State Admission.

23.236[1][a] Unqualified Admission.

23.236[1][b] Admission With Qualification.

23.236[2] State Denial.

23.236[2][a] Complete Denial.

23.236[2][b] Partial Denial.

23.236[3] Assert Lack of Information.

23.236[4] Assert Objections.

23.236[4][a] State Objections to Avoid Waiver.

23.236[4][b] State Reasons for Objection.

23.236[4][c] Avoid Improper Objections.

23.237 Response Must Be Signed on Behalf of Responding Party.

23.238 Verification Is Not Required.

23.239 Serve Responses.

23.239[1] Serve Original Response on Propounding Party.

23.239[2] Serve Copies of Response on All Other Parties.

23.240 Propounding Party Should Not File Response.

23.240[1] Responses Are Not Filed Until Used in Case.

23.240[2] Retain Original Response.

23.240[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: Filing and Retention Requirements.

23.240[3][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements.

23.240[3][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements.

23.240[3][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements.

23.240[3][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements.

23.241 Respondent Must Supplement Responses.

23.242 Sanctions May Be Available for Inadequate Response.

23.243 CHECKLIST: Moving to Determine Sufficiency of Responses.

23.243[1] Propounding Party's Checklist.

23.243[2] Responding Party's Checklist.

23.244 Requesting Party May Move to Determine Sufficiency of Responses.

23.245 Unless Objection Is Justified, Court Will Order Answer.

23.246 If Answer Is Insufficient, Court May Order Matter Admitted or Answer Amended.

23.247 Court May Order Parties to Confer.

23.248 Expenses May Be Awarded.

23.249 CHECKLIST: Withdrawing or Amending Admissions.

23.249[1] Responding Party's Checklist.

23.249[2] Propounding Party's Checklist.

23.250 Withdrawal or Amendment Must Advance Decision on Merits and Not Prejudice Requesting Party.

23.251 Stricter Standard for Withdrawal Applies After Entry of Final Pretrial Order.

23.252 Moving Party's Burden on Motion.

23.253 Propounding Party's Burden on Motion.

23.254 CHECKLIST: Recovering Expenses of Proving Matters Not Admitted.

23.254[1] Propounding Party's Checklist.

23.254[2] Responding Party's Checklist.

23.255 Move for Order Requesting Reasonable Expenses.

23.256 File Motion As Soon As Possible.

23.257 Show How Expenses Were Incurred.

23.258 Expenses Will Be Awarded Unless Failure to Admit Was Justifiable.

23.259 CHECKLIST: Determining Whether Use of Subpoena Is Appropriate.

23.260 CHECKLISTS: Drafting Subpoenas for Nonparty Discovery.

23.260[1] Subpoena to Compel Testimony.

23.260[2] CHECKLIST: Subpoena to Compel Production.

23.260[3] CHECKLIST: Subpoena to Compel Permission to Inspect Premises.

23.261 Options and Strategy.

23.261[1] Informal Discovery Available From Nonparties.

23.261[2] Prior to Drafting, Verify That Subpoena May Be Served.

23.261[3] Consider Issuing More Than One Subpoena.

23.261[4] Party May Not Issue Subpoena Absent Pending Litigation.

23.261[5] Party Must Issue Subpoena Before Discovery Cutoff.

23.261[6] Consult Local Rules When Issuing Subpoena.

23.262 Essential Components of Subpoena to Compel Testimony.

23.262[1] Subpoena Must Issue From Proper Court.

23.262[2] Indicate Title of Action, Name of Court in Which Action Is Pending, and Civil Action Number.

23.262[3] Command Witness to Attend and Give Testimony.

23.262[4] Advise Corporate Witnesses of Subject Matter and Duty to Designate Witness.

23.262[5] Indicate Time and Place for Deposition, Hearing, or Trial, and Method of Recording Deposition Testimony.

23.262[6] Include Text of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 45(c) and (d).

23.262[7] Include Proper Signature.

23.262[8] Provide Reasonable Time to Comply.

23.262[9] Appropriate Witness and Mileage Fees Must Accompany Subpoena to Compel Testimony.

23.262[10] Subpoena Must Not Be Unduly Burdensome.

23.262[11] Subpoena Must Not Require Witness to Travel More Than 100 Miles.

23.263 Essential Components of Subpoena to Compel Production.

23.263[1] Subpoena Must Issue From Proper Court.

23.263[2] State Title of Action, Name of Court in Which Action Is Pending, and Civil Action Number.

23.263[3] Command Production of Documents, Electronically Stored Information, and Things.

23.263[4] Designate Time and Place for Production.

23.263[5] Include Text of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 45(c) and (d).

23.263[6] Include Proper Signature.

23.263[7] Provide Reasonable Time for Compliance.

23.263[8] Subpoena Must Not Be Unduly Burdensome.

23.263[9] Requesting Production of Electronically Stored Information Requires Special Attention.

23.263[9][a] Subpoena to Compel Production of Electronically Stored Information Implicates Issues of Undue Burden and Cost Shifting.

23.263[9][b] Four-Part Test for Subpoena Seeking Identity of Anonymous Nonparty Internet User.

23.263[10] Prior Notice of Commanded Production of Documents and Things Must Be Served on Each Party.

23.264 Essential Components of Subpoena to Compel Permission to Inspect Premises.

23.264[1] Subpoena Must Issue From Proper Court.

23.264[2] State Title of Action, Name of Court in Which Action Is Pending, and Civil Action Number.

23.264[3] Command Permission to Inspect Premises.

23.264[4] Designate Time and Place for Inspection.

23.264[5] Include Text of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 45(c) and (d).

23.264[6] Include Proper Signature.

23.264[7] Provide Reasonable Time for Compliance.

23.264[8] Subpoena Must Not Be Unduly Burdensome.

23.264[9] Prior Notice of Commanded Inspection of Premises Must Be Served on Each Party.

23.265 LOCAL PRACTICE: Requirements for Subpoena for Nonparty Discovery.

23.266 CHECKLIST: Serving Subpoenas.

23.267 Provide Prior Notice to All Parties (Subpoena to Compel Production or to Inspect Premises Only).

23.268 Ensure That Subpoena Is Served Before Discovery Cutoff.

23.269 Verify That Person Serving Subpoena Is at Least 18 and Is Not a Party to the Action.

23.270 Ensure That Proper Method of Service Is Used.

23.271 Verify That Service Is Within Prescribed Territorial Limits.

23.272 Enclose Correct Amount of Witness and Mileage Fees (Subpoena to Compel Testimony Only).

23.273 LOCAL PRACTICE: Requirements for Filing and Serving Subpoenas.

23.273[1] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements.

23.273[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements.

23.273[2][a] Service of Subpoenas Duces Tecum.

23.273[2][b] Filing of Subpoenas Duces Tecum.

23.273[2][c] Proof of Service.

23.273[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements.

23.273[3][a] Serve Subpoena Prior to Discovery Cutoff.

23.273[3][b] Proof of Service.

23.273[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements.

23.274 CHECKLISTS: Responding to Subpoenas.

23.274[1] Analyzing Subpoena.

23.274[2] Drafting Written Objection.

23.274[3] Drafting Motion to Modify or Quash a Subpoena.

23.275 Options and Strategy.

23.275[1] Appropriate Response Depends on Subpoena.

23.275[2] Make Good-Faith Effort to Resolve Disputes.

23.275[3] Good-Faith Effort Generally Not Required for Motions to Modify or Quash Subpoenas.

23.275[4] Service of Written Objections Stays Discovery.

23.275[5] Choosing Between Written Objections and Motion to Quash.

23.276 Analyze Validity of Subpoena and Determine Appropriate Response.

23.276[1] Verify That Subpoena Is Served Within Discovery Cutoff.

23.276[2] Verify That Subpoena Was Properly Served.

23.276[3] Verify That Subpoena Was Issued From Proper Court.

23.276[4] Verify That Subpoena Affords Reasonable Time for Compliance.

23.276[5] Verify That Subpoena Does Not Exceed 100-Mile Limit on Travel.

23.276[6] Determine Whether Subpoena Seeks Privileged or Protected Materials.

23.276[7] Determine Whether Subpoena Seeks Trade Secrets, Confidential Research or Development Information, or Commercial Information.

23.276[8] Determine Whether Subpoena Is Directed Against Unretained Expert.

23.276[9] Determine Whether Subpoena Imposes Undue Burden.

23.276[9A] Determine Whether to Object to Form Specified for Production of Electronically Stored Information.

23.276[10] Determine Whether Subpoena Was Served for Improper Purpose.

23.276[11] If Subpoena Presents Scheduling Conflict, Attempt Informal Resolution of Conflict.

23.276[12] Verify Serving of Prior Notice of Production or Inspection.

23.276[13] Choose Method of Resisting Discovery.

23.277 LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Responding to Subpoenas.

23.278 Making Written Objection to Subpoena.

23.278[1] Written Objections Must Be Timely Made and Served.

23.278[2] Clearly State Objection and Include Privilege Log If Making Claim of Privilege.

23.278[3] Because Objection Stays Discovery, Do Not Permit Party Seeking Discovery to Proceed Without a Court Order.

23.278[4] Person Making Objections Must Have Standing to Object to Subpoena.

23.278[5] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Written Objection to Subpoena.

23.279 Moving to Modify or Quash Subpoena.

23.279[1] When Subpoena Must Be Modified or Quashed.

23.279[2] When Subpoena May Be Modified or Quashed.

23.279[3] Motion Must Be Timely Made.

23.279[4] Motion Must Be Made in Proper Court.

23.279[5] Motion Does Not Automatically Stay Discovery.

23.279[6] Good-Faith Effort Generally Not Technically Required for Motions to Modify or Quash Subpoenas.

23.279[7] LOCAL PRACTICE: Requirements for Motion to Modify or Quash Subpoena.

23.279[7][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements.

23.279[7][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements.

23.279[7][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements.

23.279[7][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements.

23.279[8] Standing to Modify or Quash Subpoena.

23.280 Moving for a Protective Order.

23.280[1] When to Move for a Protective Order.

23.280[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements--Moving for Protective Order When Served With Motion to Compel.

23.281 Producing Documents and Electronically Stored Information in Response to Subpoena.

23.281[1] Materials in "Control" Must Be Produced.

23.281[2] How to Produce Documents.

23.281[2A] How to Produce Electronically Stored Information.

23.281[3] Nonparty May Be Entitled to Reimbursement for Costs Incurred in Complying With Subpoena.

23.281[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Responding to Subpoenas Duces Tecum.

23.282 Attempt to Resolve Contested Issues Through Meet and Confer With Counsel.

23.283 Moving to Compel.

23.283[1] Filing Motion to Compel After Being Served With Written Objections to Subpoena.

23.283[2] Order Compelling Production Must Protect Nonparty From Significant Expense.

23.283[3] Motion Must Be Made to Proper Court.

23.283[4] Motion to Compel Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 37(a).

23.284 Motion to Compel When Motion to Quash Is Sought by Recipient of Subpoena.

23.285 Contempt Sanction for Failing or Refusing to Respond to Subpoena.

23.286 Petition for Perpetuation of Testimony.

23.287 Notice of Petition for Perpetuation of Testimony.

23.288 Order Authorizing Perpetuation of Testimony.

23.289 Notice of Deposition.

23.290 Notice of Motion and Motion for Leave to Take Deposition.

23.291 Objections to Errors or Irregularities in Notice of Deposition or to Deposition Officer.

23.292 Notice of Motion and Motion to Take Deposition by Telephone or Other Electronic Means.

23.293 Notice of Motion and Motion for Protective Order During Deposition in Progress.

23.294 Notice of Deposition by Written Questions.

23.295 Notice of Motion and Motion for Leave to Take Deposition by Written Questions.

23.296 Objections to Errors or Irregularities in Notice of Deposition, Qualifications of Deposition Officer, or Form of Questions.

23.297 Notice of Motion and Motion for Protective Order That Discovery Be Taken by Other Means.

23.298 Sample Interrogatories.

23.299 Notice of Motion and Motion for Leave to Propound Interrogatories in Excess of Number Permitted by Rule.

23.300 Order Granting Motion for Leave to Propound Interrogatories in Excess of Number Permitted by Rule.

23.301 Response to Interrogatories.

23.302 Request for Production of Documents and Tangible Items for Inspection, Copying, or Testing.

23.303 Request for Permission to Enter on Land or Premises for Inspection, Copying, Testing, or Related Activities.

23.304 Response to Request for Production, Inspection, and Copying of Documents.

23.305 Notice of Motion and Motion for Protective Order to Avoid Production of Documents.

23.306 Sample Internal Memo Regarding Suspension of Document Retention Policy.

23.307 Sample Request for Preservation of Evidence.

23.308 Sample Interrogatories Concerning Document Retention Policy and Data Storage.

23.309 Sample Requests for Production of Electronically Stored Information.

23.310 Notice of Motion and Motion Requesting Physical or Mental Examination.

23.311 Order Granting Motion for Physical or Mental Examination.

23.312 Requests for Admission--Official Form 51.

23.313 Requests for Admission--Unofficial Form.

23.314 Responses to Requests for Admission.

23.315 Notice of Motion and Motion to Determine Sufficiency of Responses to Requests for Admission.

23.316 Notice of Motion and Motion to Withdraw or Amend Admission.

23.317 Subpoena to Compel Attendance of Witness at Deposition.

23.318 Subpoena to Compel Production.

23.319 Subpoena to Compel Permission to Inspect Premises.

23.320 Notice of Motion and Motion to Quash a Subpoena.

23.321 Local District Court Forms.

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
I. STRATEGY

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.01

23.01 Scope.

This chapter discusses the various methods of discovery under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure:

- Pre-action perpetuation of testimony under Fed R Civ P 27, including:
  - Determining whether Rule 27 is available to prevent loss of evidence before an action is filed [see 23.03 -23.06, 23.09].
  - Petitioning a federal district court for an order to perpetuate evidence [see 23.07; Forms: 23.286, 23.288].
  - Giving notice to potentially adverse parties [see 23.08; Form: 23.287].
  - Opposing a Rule 27 petition to perpetuate testimony [see 23.13 -23.18].
- Depositions on oral examination under Fed R Civ P 30, including:
  - Determining the individuals or entities to be deposed [see 23.19 -23.22].
  - Moving for leave of court to take a deposition, if required [see 23.23 -23.66; Form: 23.290].
  - Giving notice of an oral deposition [see 23.27 -23.33; Form: 23.289], including naming a corporation or other entity as deponent [see 23.30].
  - Stipulating to or moving for an order allowing the taking of a deposition by telephone or other remote electronic means [see 23.31; Form: 23.292].

- Responding to a notice of deposition [see 23.36 -23.41], including objecting to errors or irregularities in the notice or to the qualifications of the deposition officer [see 23.38, 23.39; Form: 23.289], moving to quash the deposition notice or subpoena [see 23.40], and moving for a protective order to prevent or limit the deposition [see 23.41].

- Conducting an oral deposition [see 23.42 -23.46], including the qualifications of the deposition officer [see 23.43], and the procedure to be followed [see 23.46].

- Objecting to the conduct of an oral deposition [see 23.47 -23.55], including moving for a protective order during a deposition in progress [see 23.53; Form: 23.293].

- Moving for an award of expenses when the party noticing the deposition fails to attend [see 23.54] or when the witness does not attend because of the noticing party's failure to serve a subpoena [see 23.55].

- Compelling a deponent to attend the deposition or to answer a question and/or produce materials [see 23.56 -23.59].

- Obtaining copies of and reviewing the transcript [see 23.60 -23.66], including review of the transcript by the deponent [see 23.61], the procedures for delivery and storage of the transcript [see 23.62, 23.63], local rules concerning the filing of depositions with the court [see 23.65], and motions to suppress [see 23.66].

- Using or preventing the use of a deposition [see 23.67 -23.75], including purposes for which a deposition may be used [see 23.69], circumstances when a deposition may not be used [see 23.70], and the form of presentation of a deposition to the court [see 23.71].

- Depositions by written questions under Fed R Civ P 31, including:

  - Determining whether a deposition upon written questions is an appropriate method of discovery in a particular case [see 23.77 -23.82].

  - Identifying the individuals or entities to be deposed [see 23.83].

  - Moving for leave of court to take a deposition upon written questions, if required [see 23.84 -23.86; Form: 23.295].

  - Giving notice of a deposition upon written questions [see 23.87 -23.90; Form: 23.294].

  - Responding to a notice of deposition upon written questions [see 23.91 -23.97], including objecting to errors or irregularities in the notice [see 23.93; Form: 23.296], objecting to the qualifications of the deposition officer [see 23.94; Form: 23.296], objecting to the form of written questions [see 23.95; Form: 23.296], designating an individual to testify on behalf of an entity named as deponent [see 23.96], and moving for a protective order to preclude or limit discovery, including requiring the discovery to be taken by another method [see 23.97; Form: 23.297].

- Propounding cross, redirect, and recross questions [see 23.98 -23.102].

- The procedure for taking a deposition upon written questions, including delivering the notice and questions to the deposition officer who will conduct the deposition [see 23.103 -23.105], review of the completed deposition by the deponent [see 23.106], certification and delivery of the deposition by the deposition officer [see 23.107, 23.108], and motions to suppress [see 23.110].

- Interrogatories under Fed R Civ P 33, including:

  - Objectives and strategy for interrogatories [see 23.02[4]].

  - Options and strategies for the party propounding the interrogatories [see 23.112].

  - Subject matter of interrogatories [see 23.114].

  - Drafting interrogatories [see 23.116].

  - Time requirements for propounding [see 23.117] and responding to interrogatories [see 23.127].

  - Service of interrogatories [see 23.118].

  - Responses and objections to interrogatories [see 23.121 -23.134].

  - Obtaining a protective order in regard to interrogatories [see 23.132].

  - Duty to supplement or amend answers [see 23.134].

  - Motions to compel responses to interrogatories [see 23.120].

  - Form of interrogatories [see 23.298].

  - Form of motion and order for leave to propound excess interrogatories [see 23.299, 23.300].

  - Form for answers and objections [see 23.301].

- Requests for production and inspection under Fed R Civ P 34, including:

  - Objectives and strategy related to the production and inspection of documents, electronically stored information, and other tangible items [see 23.02[5]].

  - Planning request for production or inspection [see 23.135, 23.136].

  - Types of documents, electronically stored information, and tangible items that are subject to request for production or inspection [see 23.137, 23.138].

  - Persons covered by Rule 34 [see 23.139].

  - Procedures for requesting production or inspection [see 23.140 -23.148].

  - Contents and format of request for production or inspection [see 23.145; Forms: 23.302, 23.303].

  - Procedure for responding to request for production or inspection [see 23.149 -23.156].

  - Contents and format of response to request for production or inspection [see 23.152; Form: 23.304].

  - Motion for protective order by responding party [see 23.155; Form: 23.305].

  - Objections by responding party to requests for production [see 23.153].

  - Method of production by responding party [see 23.156].

- Discovery of electronically stored information including:

  - Requesting electronically stored information [see 23.157 -23.163].

  - Responding to a request for electronically stored information [see 23.164 -23.175].

  - Protecting confidentiality and privilege [see 23.176 -23.181].

  - Admitting electronically stored information at trial [see 23.182 -23.188].

- Physical and mental examinations under Fed R Civ P 35, including:

  - Determining whether to conduct an examination of a party [see 23.189 -23.193].

- Agreeing or stipulating to an examination [see 23.194 -23.197].
- Moving for a court-ordered physical or mental examination [see 23.198 -23.204].
- Compelling compliance with a court order for examination [see 23.205 -23.209].
- Opposing a request or motion for examination [see 23.210, 23.211].
- Obtaining and using examination reports [see 23.212 -23.216].

- Requests for admission under Fed R Civ P 36, including:
  - Purpose and effect of requests for admission [see 23.02[8]].
  - Propounding requests for admission [see 23.217 -23.225; Forms: 23.312, 23.313].
  - Responding to requests for admission, including asserting objections [see 23.226 -23.242; Form: 23.314].
  - Moving to determine the sufficiency of responses [see 23.243 -23.248; Form: 23.315].
  - Withdrawing or amending admissions [see 23.249 -23.253; Form: 23.316].
  - Recovering expenses of proving matters not admitted [see 23.254 -23.258].

- Nonparty discovery under Fed R Civ P 45, including:
  - Drafting subpoenas [see 23.259 -23.265; Forms: 23.317 -23.319].
  - Serving subpoenas [see 23.266 -23.273].
  - Responding to subpoenas [see 23.274 -23.282; Form: 23.320].

Core Rules:
Fed R Civ P 27(a), 30, 31, 33, 34, 35, 36, 45.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsPerpetuation of TestimonyCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMisconductCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
I. STRATEGY

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.02

23.02 Objective and Strategy.

23.02[1] Perpetuation of Testimony. In rare circumstances, a person may be faced with a situation in which he or she may be potentially a party in a federal action, and vital evidence may be lost or destroyed before the action is filed. Illustrative fact patterns involve elderly or ailing witnesses who may die before the action is commenced, ships that may sail off to foreign ports, and property that may be repaired or demolished. Fed R Civ P 27 provides a possible avenue of relief in these situations, for both potential plaintiffs and defendants.

Rule 27 is designed to preserve specific testimony that could be lost before a civil action commences. Pre-action acquisition and preservation of testimony is called "perpetuation of testimony."

Rule 27 has stringent requirements that are not liberally construed. For this reason counsel should carefully review its provisions and consider the following issues:

- Whether persons who can be deposed can be identified and located.
- Will the testimony or physical evidence be otherwise lost or destroyed.
- Can the content of the testimony to be perpetuated be specified.
- Will the anticipated action be filed in federal court.
- Can other potentially adverse parties be identified.

Although perpetuation of testimony is accomplished through depositions, a discovery method, perpetuation is not a discovery tool. Rule 27 may not be used to find new evidence. You must know what information you are seeking when you decide to petition for perpetuation.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of perpetuation of testimony, see § 23.03 et seq.

Detailed Discussion/Forms:

7 Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 27, Depositions to Perpetuate Testimony (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

6 Bender's Federal Practice Forms, Rule 27, Depositions to Perpetuate Testimony (Matthew Bender).

23.02[2] Oral Depositions. Oral depositions are the most effective and significant tool available to obtain important information and to assess the strength, credibility, and effectiveness of a witness. Deposition testimony is available to impeach testimony given by the witness at trial or in response to a summary judgment motion, or may provide a basis for a summary judgment motion. Oral depositions are also critical to obtain the testimony of witnesses who live beyond the subpoena range of the court or who otherwise cannot be compelled to testify at trial, as well as to preserve testimony if the witness becomes unavailable for any reason.

Advantages of oral depositions include:

- They can be set on reasonable notice.
- They can be videotaped or audio taped.
- They permit the questioner to learn what the witness may say at trial.
- They provide an opportunity to evaluate the credibility of key witnesses.
- They allow a broad range of questions, and are much more likely to uncover useful information than are interrogatories.
- They may provide inconsistent statements that can be used to impeach trial testimony.
- They may be used to require the witness to bring documents.
- They preserve testimony, if the witness is later unavailable.
- They afford an opportunity to observe opposing counsel.
- They may provide a basis for a later motion for summary judgment.
- The deposition process may encourage the opponent to pursue settlement, either to avoid the deposition entirely or in relation to a witness's poor deposition performance.
- They may lead to discovery of other important witnesses or documents.
- They may uncover potential weaknesses in your own case early enough to modify your strategy.
- They may provide an opportunity for opposing counsel to observe your effectiveness.
- They may provide a means of controlling the course of the litigation.

Disadvantages of oral depositions include:

- They can be expensive, compared to other forms of discovery.
- They are time consuming.
- They may provide an opportunity for opposing counsel to understand your strategy and identify weaknesses in your case or your effectiveness.

Planning is important to maximize the value of a deposition. Because depositions may be extensively relied on in showing the existence of a disputed fact on a summary judgment motion, and potentially at trial, the deposition must show the deponent's personal knowledge of the matter about which the deponent is testifying. Similarly, counsel must ensure that documents on which a claim or defense relies are properly authenticated by the appropriate witness.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of oral depositions, see § 23.19 et seq.

Detailed Discussion/Forms:

7 Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 30, Depositions by Oral Examination (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

6 Bender's Federal Practice Forms, Rule 30, Depositions by Oral Examination (Matthew Bender).

23.02[3] Written Depositions. A deposition by written questions is a device to obtain testimony from either a party or nonparty witness, without the expense of an oral deposition. In a deposition by written questions, all questions, including cross, redirect, and recross questions, are prepared in advance and served on all the parties [see Fed R Civ P 31(a)(3)-(5)]. The questions are delivered to a deposition officer, who then propounds the questions to the deponent and records the deponent's responses [see Fed R Civ P 31(b)]. The procedures for oral deposition, such as compelling the attendance of a nonparty through the use of a subpoena, generally apply [see Fed R Civ P 31(a)(1), (b)].

Although depositions by written questions can be efficient and cost-effective, particularly if substantial travel expense would otherwise be involved, they are used far less frequently than oral depositions because of their inherent limitations, such as the lack of spontaneity, the inability to observe the witness' demeanor, and the possibility that the witness will be coached before testifying.

A deposition by written questions may nonetheless be an appropriate discovery method when the deponent is a witness, such as a custodian of records, whose credibility is not at issue, or a nonparty whose testimony is predictable or not controversial in light of the documentary record.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of depositions by written questions, see § 23.76 et seq.

Detailed Discussion/Forms:

7 Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 31, Depositions by Written Questions (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

6 Bender's Federal Practice Forms, Rule 31, Depositions by Written Questions (Matthew Bender).

23.02[4] Interrogatories. Interrogatories are a discovery device consisting of written questions propounded by one party to another [see Fed R Civ P 33(a)]. The scope of issues that interrogatories may cover is coextensive with that of other forms of discovery. That is, interrogatories may relate to any matter, not privileged, relevant to the claims and defenses of any party [see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(1); see also 23.114].

Like other forms of discovery, the purpose of interrogatories is to develop the facts and theories of the case and obtain evidence for use in summary judgment motions, in limine motions, and trial. Skillful use of interrogatories can narrow the issues at trial in an inexpensive fashion and thereby reduce the possibility of surprise. They provide an opportunity for each party to determine the basis for the other party's claim or defense, and to delineate the facts and issues in dispute.

Much of the information that was previously sought by interrogatories must now be disclosed by the parties at the outset of the litigation without a formal discovery request under the mandatory disclosure requirements [see Fed R Civ P 26(a); see also 23.113]. Interrogatories may be used in conjunction with other forms of discovery to obtain initial information on which to base additional requests for discovery, for example, to request production of documents and depose people mentioned in the answers. Interrogatories also may be used to augment information already known, such as facts obtained by deposition or in the initial required disclosures.

Interrogatories also may be used to inquire into a party's contentions and opinions [see Fed R Civ P 33(a)(2); see also 23.114[3]].

While interrogatories are useful to gather information on which to build a case or defense, the answers themselves can serve an evidentiary function. During trial, the answers may be used to the extent permitted by the rules of evidence [see Fed R Civ P 33(c)]. Moreover, if the opposing party did not provide certain responsive information in answering a well-crafted interrogatory, the propounding party may be able to use the interrogatory and response to prevent the opposing party from using that information at trial.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of interrogatories, see § 23.111 et seq.

Detailed Discussion/Forms:

7 Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 33, Interrogatories to Parties (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

6 Bender's Federal Practice Forms, Rule 33, Interrogatories to Parties (Matthew Bender).

23.02[5] Requests for Production and Inspection. The production of documents, electronically stored information, and other tangible items is an important device for collecting discovery information and preserving documentary and physical evidence for use at trial.

Advantages of requests for production and inspection include:

- Requests allow a party to obtain documents and electronically stored information not provided in the initial disclosures.

- Discovery of documents and electronically stored information can effectively lead to the discovery of other relevant materials and witnesses, and provide the critical exhibits for trial, a clearer understanding of the facts of the case, and sometimes support for new claims or counterclaims.

- Parties may make an unlimited number of requests under federal rules, although the assigned judge may limit the number on a case-by-case basis; the types of documents and electronically stored information that can be sought are usually broad, including emails, word processing files and data compilations, and, in limited circumstances, the responding party's computer system.

- By accessing and inspecting land, premises, and physical objects, parties can gather information, or physical evidence for use later at trial.

- Parties may use production and inspection requests in conjunction with depositions.

- Documents, electronically stored information, and tangible items can provide an effective substitute for witnesses who are unavailable or possess faulty memory due to the passage of time.

- Evidence created contemporaneously with the events at issue may be obtained without being influenced by counsel preparation, as are interrogatories and depositions.

Disadvantages of requests for production include:

- This form of discovery can be expensive, and the requesting party may be required to pay part of the expenses of production.

- Parties may request production or inspection only from parties (not third parties) with possession, custody, or control of the items or premises.

- Examination and analysis of large amounts of irrelevant information may be necessary.

- Propounding a large number of requests may encourage the responding party to serve the propounding party with its own lengthy list of requests. Responding to requests can be very expensive and disruptive to a client, especially if the requests seek electronically stored information.

- Rule 34 requests often generate objections, discovery motion practice, and consequent delays in the proceedings.

- Rule 34 requests will often seek broad categories of documents and electronically stored information related generally to the dispute at issue, and thus may reveal less about case needs and strategy than interrogatories or depositions, which frequently require more specific questions.

Regardless of any perceived advantage or disadvantage, requests for production or inspection will often offer the most important, if not the only, means of acquiring from the opposing side the physical, documentary, and electronically stored evidence necessary to litigate a case. Documents and information produced through the Rule 34 process will often be crucial in shaping the rest of discovery (e.g., they often drive deposition questioning) and presentation at trial. Rule 34 requests are thus frequently crucial to the success or failure of the litigation, and the pursuit of complete production through motions practice or otherwise may be worth the time and effort.

Parties participating in Rule 34 discovery should consider the following:

- A requesting party may seek not only items that are relevant to claims or defenses of any party, but also, on a showing of "good cause," materials that are inadmissible in evidence at trial, if the material could reasonably lead to the discovery of admissible evidence [see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(1)].

- It often makes sense to serve requests at the beginning of discovery, before taking depositions. Otherwise, the requesting party may obtain pertinent documents and information after having already taken the deposition of the witness with knowledge about them. If the requesting party is not knowledgeable about the types of documents and electronically stored information maintained by a party that is not an individual, it may decide first to take a deposition of the other party's custodian of records concerning what documents and information systems it maintains.

- In reviewing documents and electronically stored information for production, counsel must withhold attorney-client privileged and work product material. Disclosure of such material might be held to constitute a waiver of the privilege. A responding party claiming privilege must provide a specific and adequate description of the privileged item, without revealing its privileged content [see 23.153[1]].

- Emails and other electronically stored information can be a rich source of information. Requests for production should cover these types of documents, and the responding party should produce the documents in electronic format when appropriate [see 23.02[6]].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of requests for production and inspection, see § 23.135 et seq.

Detailed Discussion/Forms:

7 Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 34, Production of Documents, Electronically Stored Information, and Things and Entry Upon Land for Inspection and Other Purposes (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

7 Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 37A, Discovery of Electronically Stored Information (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

9 Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 45, Subpoena (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

8 Bender's Federal Practice Forms, Rule 34, Producing Documents, Electronically Stored Information, and Tangible Things, or Entering onto Land, for Inspection and Other Purposes (Matthew Bender).

9 Bender's Federal Practice Forms, Rule 45, Subpoena (Matthew Bender).

23.02[6] Discovery of Electronically Stored Information. The types of evi-dence contained in electronically stored information include such things as e-mail, files, documents, and back-up tapes, including the "hidden text" and "embedded data" such as logs, time/date stamps, and metadata that will not appear on a printout or be visible when viewing a document on screen. This electronically stored information is subject to discovery and governed by the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure just as paper documents. However, due to the volume of data stored on computers, the expense involved in searching and retrieving the data, and the privileged and/or confidential nature of some of the stored material, discovery requests must be drafted carefully to avoid imposing an unnecessary burden and expense on the responding party and the imposition of a protective order.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of discovery of electronically stored information, see § 23.157 et seq.

Detailed Discussion:

7 Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 37A, Discovery of Electroncially Stored Information (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.02[7] Physical and Mental Examinations. Obtaining a medical examination of an opposing party is a powerful discovery tool. It affords the party calling for the examination an opportunity to obtain an unbiased view of the opposing party's alleged physical and/or mental injuries. Fed R Civ P 35 provides the procedure for these examinations.

Counsel should plan carefully before using this discovery method, considering the cost of examinations as well as potential objections based on invasion of privacy. Issues to be considered in determining whether to seek this type of evidence include:

- The need for the particular evidence that is likely to be produced.

- The scope of the examination and the procedures to be performed.
- The timing of the examination.
- What type of medical professional can best perform the examination.
- What other means are available to obtain the information.
- Objections that opposing counsel will raise.

Fed R Civ P 35 permits a party to compel a physical or mental examination of another party when the party's physical or mental condition is "in controversy" in the action [Fed R Civ P 35(a)]. When a party alleges some physical or mental condition, the alleging party has an obvious advantage as to proof of that condition. The rule is therefore designed to level the playing field by permitting other parties to have similar access to the necessary proof (or lack of proof) of the condition [Ragge v. MCA/Universal Studios (CD Cal 1995) 165 FRD 605, 608].

From a strategic perspective, the ability of the party to conduct an examination should be distinguished from the desirability of doing so. Consider, for example, the effect of Fed R Civ P 35(b)(1), which provides that an examined party is entitled to receive a copy of the examiner's report [see 23.213]. The party seeking the examination must recognize the possibility that the examination may yield a report confirming, at least in part, the adversary's claim of injury or impairment [see, e.g., Grajales-Romero v. American Airlines, Inc. (1st Cir 1999) 194 F3d 288, 298-299 (defendant's examiner concluded that plaintiff suffered condition alleged)]. Moreover, an examination at the behest of one party that supports the claims of the adverse party has a particularly profound probative effect.

To further complicate the prospective movant's decision, if the examination is ordered and the examined party exercises the right to demand the examiner's report, the party that moved for the examination then becomes entitled to all medical reports obtained by the examined party as to the same condition [Fed R Civ P 35(b)(4); see 23.215].

These considerations are so fact-intensive that no generalized advice can be offered. Whether to demand and, if necessary, move for a physical or mental examination requires careful thought. Similarly, the examined party's decision, whether to demand a copy of the examiner's report, with the attendant obligation to supply all such reports, can be a perilous one.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of physical and mental examinations, see § 23.189 et seq.

Detailed Discussion/Forms:

7 Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 35, Physical and Mental Examinations (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

8 Bender's Federal Practice Forms, Rule 35, Physical and Mental Examinations (Matthew Bender).

23.02[8] Requests for Admission. Requests for admission [Fed R Civ P 36] are used to establish statements or opinions of fact or the application of law to fact, including the genuineness of documents, about which there is no real dispute [Fed R Civ P 36(a)]. Admissions also facilitate proof with respect to issues that cannot be eliminated from the case [Fed R Civ P 36, Committee Note of 1970]. By eliminating some issues and facilitating proof on other issues, requests for admission can expedite the trial and save litigants time and money [see Asea, Inc. v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (9th Cir 1981) 669 F2d 1242, 1245 ; see also Collins v. JC Penney Life Ins. Co. (SD Cal 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 8455, at *7 (admissions "eliminate issues for trial by establishing facts without requiring actual proof")].

Matters admitted in accordance with Fed R Civ P 36, whether expressly admitted or admitted by default, are conclusively established for pur-poses of the pending action unless the court, on motion, permits the withdrawal or amendment of the admission [Fed R Civ P 36(b)]. Matters that are deemed admitted do not require further proof [see 999 v. C.I.T. Corp. (9th Cir 1985) 776 F2d 866, 869].

An admission established under Rule 36 may be offered into evidence at the trial of the action, but it is subject to all pertinent objections to admissibility that may be interposed at trial. Thus, for example, a hearsay objection may be available if the admission is offered against a party other than the one who made the admission [see Walsh v. McCain Foods Ltd. (7th Cir 1996) 81 F3d 722, 726 ; see also Fed R Evid 801(d)(2)]. An admission made under Rule 36 is for the purpose of the pending action only [Fed R Civ P 36(a)(1)], and it may not be used as an admission for any other purpose or in any other proceeding [Fed R Civ P 36(b); see In re Pizante (9th Cir 1995) 186 BR 484, 489].

Admissions, even deemed admissions resulting from a failure to respond to requests, may be sufficient independent grounds for summary judgment against the responding party [see, e.g., Wright v. Paul Revere Life Ins. Co. (CD Cal 2003) 291 F Supp2d 1104, 1111 ; Cereghino v. Boeing Co. (D Or 1994) 873 F Supp 398, 403 ; see Fed R Civ P 56].

Evidence that is contrary to an admission is not admissible [999 v. C.I.T. Corp. (9th Cir 1985) 776 F2d 866, 869], unless it is offered by a party other than the responding party. An admission that has not been amended or withdrawn cannot be rebutted by contrary testimony, nor can it be ignored by the court even if the party against whom it is to operate offers evidence that appears to be more credible [AAA v. AAA Legal Clinic (5th Cir 1991) 930 F2d 1117, 1120]. However, a matter deemed admitted does not bind the propounding party, who is free to introduce evidence contrary to the admitted matter [Brook Village North Assocs., v. General Elec. Co. (1st Cir 1982) 686 F2d 66, 75 ; Champlin v. Oklahoma Furniture Mfg. Co. (10th Cir 1963) 324 F2d 74, 76].

One reason to propound requests for admission is that if the responding party fails to admit the genuineness of a document or the truth of a matter as requested pursuant to Fed R Civ P 36, the propounding party may move for an order requiring the responding party to pay the reasonable expenses, including reasonable attorney's fees, of proving the genuineness of the document or the truth of the matter at trial [Fed R Civ P 37(c)(2)].

Requests for admission are not designed to elicit or discover facts but rather to eliminate issues not in dispute. Consider, therefore, whether you are trying to elicit facts, discover the existence of facts, or obtain documents. Other discovery tools such as interrogatories, depositions, and requests for production may be more useful than requests for admission [see Safeco Ins. Co. of Am. v. Rawstron (CD Cal 1998) 181 FRD 441, 445 ; see also Fed R Civ P 26-35].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of requests for admission, see § 23.217 et seq.

Detailed Discussion/Forms:

7 Moore's Federal Practice 3d, Ch. 36, Requests for Admission (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

8 Bender's Federal Practice Forms, Rule 36, Requests for Admission.

23.02[9] Nonparty Discovery: Subpoena. Subpoenas are the vehicle by which discovery is obtained against nonparties. Subpoenas are required for all discovery devices employed against nonparties, whether discovery is sought in the form of an oral deposition, the production of documents, electronically stored information, and things, or permission to inspect premises. A subpoena to compel testimony is also referred to as a "subpoena ad testificandum," and a subpoena to compel production or to inspect premises is also referred to as a "subpoena duces tecum."

Discovery under Fed R Civ P 45 essentially serves to make the discovery available from parties pursuant to Fed R Civ P 26, 30, and 34 accessible from nonparties as well [see United States ex rel. Schwartz v. TRW, Inc. (CD Cal 2002)

211 FRD 388, 392]. It is therefore important to review these rules in conjunction with seeking or responding to nonparty discovery pursuant to Fed R Civ P 45.

Not all discovery devices available against parties are available against nonparties. Interrogatories and requests for admission may not be employed against nonparties [Fed R Civ P 33, 36; see also Lehman v. Kornblau (EDNY 2001) 206 FRD 345, 346]. Further, physical and mental examinations are available against nonparties only when the nonparty's physical or mental condition is at issue, and the nonparty is "in the custody or under the legal control of a party" [Fed R Civ P 35(a)]. Proper drafting and service of subpoenas, therefore, are crucial to ensuring the acquisition of information in the possession, custody, or control of a nonparty.

Parties must timely respond to subpoenas and must carefully follow the applicable rules. Failure to do so may result in a waiver of any objection or privilege claim regarding the subpoena [see McCoy v. Southwest Airlines Co. (CD Cal 2002) 211 FRD 381, 385]. If a nonparty does not comply with a subpoena, it may be necessary to compel compliance through a motion to compel, or to seek sanctions.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of nonparty discovery, see § 23.259 et seq.

Detailed Discussion/Forms:

9 Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 45, Subpoena (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Cross References:

For chapters addressing other aspects of discovery and related topics, see:

- Ch. 15, Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures
- Ch. 21, Discovery Strategy and Planning.
- Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion.
- Ch. 24, Restrictions on Scope and Extent of Discovery: Privileges and Work Product Protection.
- Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions.

For tips on updating case law and expanding your research with additional resources, see How to Use Lexis.com With This Publication, at the front of this volume.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical ExaminationsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsPerpetuation of TestimonyCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & InspectionCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
II. PERPETUATION OF TESTIMONY
A. Petitioning for Perpetuation of Testimony

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.03

23.03 CHECKLIST: Petitioning for Perpetuation of Testimony.

☐ Determine whether action is anticipated in federal court but unable to be brought now.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 27(a)(1)

Discussion:
See § 23.05

☐ Determine whether vital evidence in anticipated action may be lost or destroyed.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 27(a)(1)

Discussion:
See § 23.09[3]

☐ Identify potential adverse parties in anticipated action.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 27(a)(1)

Discussion:
See § 23.07[6]

☐ Identify particular testimony, documents, or things to be sought.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 27(a)(1)

Discussion:
See § 23.09[2]

☐ Identify persons whose depositions will be sought.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 27(a)(1)

Discussion:
See § 23.07[7]

☐ Ascertain basis of federal jurisdiction of anticipated action.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 27(a)(1)

Discussion:
See § 23.05[3]

☐ Consider alternative procedures.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 27(c)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.04[4], [5]

☐ Draft petition entitled "IN THE MATTER OF _____ [name of petitioner], PETITION FOR PERPETUATION OF TESTIMONY." Include the following:

○ Statement that civil action is anticipated in federal court to which petitioner is potentially a party.

○ Reason why action cannot be brought at this time.

○ Names and addresses of potential adverse parties.

○ Description of the subject matter of the anticipated action and the petitioner's interest in the action.

○ Names and addresses of persons to be examined.

- ○ Content of the expected testimony, or documents, or investigation.
- ○ Allegation that testimony will be lost or destroyed if not perpetuated at this time.
- ○ Request for order authorizing petitioner to take the depositions of the persons named in the petition.
- ○ Verification.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 27(a)(1)

Discussion:
See § 23.07

Form:
See § 23.286

☐ Draft notice to be served on all adverse parties. Include:

- ○ Statement that petitioner will apply to the court for the order requested in the petition.
- ○ Time and place of hearing.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 27(a)(2)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.08[4] -[6]

Form:
See § 23.287

☐ File petition in U.S. district court.

- ○ File in the district court in the district of the residence of any expected adverse party.
- ○ File in any district if all expected adverse parties are aliens.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 27(a)(1); 28 USC § 1391(d)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.08[1], [2]

☐ Schedule hearing.

☐ Serve notice at least 21 days before the hearing date, as provided by Rule 4.

○ Serve notice on all expected adverse parties named in the petition.

○ Include copy of petition.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 4, 27(a)(2)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.08[5], [6]

☐ Draft proposed order.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 27(a)(3)

Discussion:
See § 23.11

Form:
See § 23.288

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsPerpetuation of Testimony

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
II. PERPETUATION OF TESTIMONY
A. Petitioning for Perpetuation of Testimony

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.04

23.04 Options and Strategy for Petitioner.

23.04[1] Decide Whether Pre-Action Perpetuation of Testimony Is Necessary to Prevent Loss of Evidence. Assuming a determination that the client is a potential party in an anticipated action in federal court, before seeking to invoke the provisions of Fed R Civ P 27 counsel must identify what particular testimony or physical evidence may be lost or destroyed before the action can be filed. Note that Rule 27 properly applies only when it is necessary to prevent testimony from being lost [Deiulemar Compagnia di Navigazione S.P.A. v. M/V Allegra (4th Cir 1999) 198 F3d 473, 484 , cert. denied sub nom. Pacific Eternity S.A. v. Deiulemar Compagnia di Navigazione S.P.A., 529 US 1109 (2000)].

23.04[2] Determine What Information Will Be Sought. Counsel must identify what particular evidence is to be perpetuated and who can provide this evidence. Note that Fed R Civ P 27 is not a substitute for broad discovery [see Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. United States (DC Cir 1995) 68 F3d 1371, 1376], nor is it designed as a means of ascertaining facts for drafting a complaint [see In re Storck (D Mass 1998) 179 FRD 57, 58]. A petitioner must know the substance of the evidence it seeks before it can invoke Rule 27 perpetuation [see Nevada v. O'Leary (9th Cir 1995) 63 F3d 932, 936 (petitioner could not satisfy Rule 27 because it could not "set forth the substance of the testimony")].

Strategic Point:

Material sought must be material and admissible [see Martin v. Reynolds Metals Corp. (9th Cir 1961) 297 F2d 49, 55 ; In re Chester County Elec., Inc. (ED Pa 2002) 208 FRD 545, 549].

23.04[3] Consider Bringing Action to Perpetuate Testimony. Counsel may bring an independent action for the sole purpose of perpetuating testimony [Fed R Civ P 27(c); see Nevada v. O'Leary (9th Cir 1995) 63 F3d 932, 937], rather than using the petition procedure. The action must be brought in a manner satisfying venue and service of process requirements of the expected action in which perpetuated testimony will be used [Shore v. Acands, Inc. (5th Cir 1981) 644 F2d 386, 389].

Plaintiff must make a similar showing to that required by petitioning under Rule 27(a) [Nissei Sangyo Am. Ltd. v. United States (7th Cir 1994) 31 F3d 435, 440]:

- That the records or testimony sought are competent and material to the matter in controversy;
- The information sought cannot be obtained in ordinary discovery because the plaintiff is not yet in a position to initiate such an action; and
- The testimony or records may be lost if the plaintiff cannot obtain them at the present time.

Drawback:

A potential drawback to bringing an action under Rule 27(c), rather than a petition under Rule 27(a), is the need to satisfy all the requirements for bringing an original action generally, (filing a complaint, satisfying venue and jurisdiction requirements) at the time of filing.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of procedural requirements and required showing, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 27.51, 27.52 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)].

23.04[4] Consider Stipulations or Declaratory Relief.

23.04[4][a] Stipulations. As an alternative to petitioning to preserve testimony under Fed R Civ P 27(a), the potential parties to the litigation can stipulate to discovery before the action is filed. Accordingly, the parties can avoid the stringent requirements of Rule 27 by stipulating to a variety of discovery methods without having to show that the testimony will be lost [see In re Sinclair Oil Corp. (D Wyo 1995) 881 F Supp 535, 536]. However, counsel must not appear to be circumventing Rule 27 [see Collins v. Polk (MD La 1987) 115 FRD 326, 328 (court impounded depositions that it believed were taken in circumvention of Rule 27 and ordered that they not be used by any party in case)].

Consider:

There is a strong argument that the parties cannot expand Rule 27 by stipulation. The jurisdictional footing of Rule 27 is its tie to an anticipated filing of a case within the jurisdiction of the district court. That tie is expressed in terms of necessity, not convenience. Because subject matter jurisdiction cannot be conferred by agreement, the better view is that agreement of the parties to perpetuate in the absence of a contemplated action that cannot presently be filed is alone insufficient. That is not to say that an unopposed petition to perpetuate cannot proceed, provided the elements are properly asserted. Also, even if it is ultimately determined that Rule 27 cannot be expanded by stipulation, testimony taken under oath pursuant to such a stipulation may nonetheless qualify for admission at trial under an exception or exemption to the hearsay rule, pursuant to the Federal Rules of Evidence.

Cross References:

Discussion of discovery stipulations, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, §§ 22.03 -22.13.

Discussion of use of other methods to avoid strict requirements of Rule 27, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 27.04 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.04[4][b] Declaratory Relief. A party can bring an action for declaratory relief in anticipation of being sued or when it would not otherwise be possible to file suit [see Fed R Civ P 57; State Farm Fire & Cas. v. Taylor (MDNC 1988) 118 FRD 426, 429].

Drawback:

A potential defendant to a claim that can meet the standards for a declaratory relief action can seek declaratory relief to facilitate discovery without waiting for the potential plaintiff to file a claim and without filing a Fed R Civ P 27 petition. However, in many cases a declaratory relief action may not be a better alternative to a Rule 27 petition if the petitioner's only purpose is to preserve testimony, because the requirements of a Rule 27 petition are less difficult to meet.

Cross References:

Discussion of use of other methods to avoid strict requirements of Rule 27, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 27.04 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.04[5] Using Perpetuated Evidence. If a deposition to perpetuate testimony is taken under Rule 27, it may be used in any action involving the same subject matter subsequently brought in a federal district court, in accordance with Fed R Civ P 32(a) [Fed R Civ P 27(a)(4)].

The deposition should be filed with the court [see In re Amenia (SDNY 2001) 200 FRD 200, 204].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsPerpetuation of Testimony

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
II. PERPETUATION OF TESTIMONY
A. Petitioning for Perpetuation of Testimony

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.05

23.05 Pre-Action Perpetuation of Testimony May Be Available Under Rule 27.

23.05[1] Matters Must Be Cognizable in United States Court. A person who desires to perpetuate testimony regarding any matter cognizable in any United States court may file a verified petition in a federal district court [Fed R Civ P 27(a)(1)]. A petitioner does not have to demonstrate a cognizable action with absolute certainty [see Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. United States (DC Cir 1995) 68 F3d 1371, 1374].

Even anticipated actions that are contingent and uncertain can be cognizable for the purposes of Rule 27 jurisdiction [Deiulemar Compagnia di Navigazione S.P.A. v. M/V Allegra (4th Cir 1999) 198 F3d 473, 484-485 , cert. denied sub nom. Pacific Eternity S.A. v. Deiulemar Compagnia di Navigazione S.P.A., 529 US 1109 (2000)].

Example--Claim Cognizable:

Granting a petitioner's request to take Rule 27(a) depositions, the court stated that it was satisfied that a records deposition may prevent a delay of justice as contemplated by Rule 27 when [In re Groth (D Kan 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 982, at *1-*3]:

- Petitioner was an insured who recently had his monthly disability benefits terminated.
- Petitioner had been advised that he would receive a written decision regarding permanent termination.
- After learning of the decision, petitioner attempted to obtain a copy of his claim file from the insurer.
- Although petitioner allegedly had provided authorization to produce the file, the insurer stated it would only produce the file in response to a subpoena with petitioner's written authorization.
- Accordingly, petitioner sought to depose the insurer's records custodian to compel the insurer to produce the file.

Rule 27 does not define "court of the United States." "Court of the United States" is defined in the United States Code to include the following courts [28 USC § 451]:

- The United States Supreme Court;
- The Circuit Courts of Appeals;
- The federal district courts;
- Bankruptcy courts;
- The Court of International Trade; and
- Any court created by Act of Congress the judges of which are entitled to hold office during good behavior.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of matters for which pre-action perpetuation may be utilized, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 27.10 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.05[2] Action Must Be Anticipated. Petitioner must show that he or she expects to be a party in an anticipated action in federal court [Fed R Civ P 27(a); see, e.g., In re Amenia (SDNY 2001) 200 FRD 200, 202].

23.05[3] Federal Jurisdiction Must Exist in Anticipated Action. There need not be an independent basis in federal jurisdiction in a proceeding to perpetuate under Fed R Civ P 27, but it must be shown that in the contemplated action, for which the testimony is being perpetuated, federal jurisdiction would exist and thus is a matter that may be cognizable in the federal courts [Deiulemar Compagnia di Navigazione S.P.A. v. M/V Allegra (4th Cir 1999) 198 F3d 473, 484 , cert. denied sub nom. Pacific Eternity S.A. v. Deiulemar Compagnia di Navigazione S.P.A., 529 US 1109 (2000)].

23.05[4] Anticipated Action Must Be Civil. Pre-action perpetuation of testimony is limited to civil cases [In re Eisenberg (5th Cir 1981) 654 F2d 1107, 1113].

23.05[5] Perpetuation of Testimony Must Prevent Failure or Delay of Justice. If the court is satisfied that the perpetuation of the testimony may prevent a failure or delay of justice, it will permit the deposition to be taken [Fed R Civ P 27(a)(3); Calderon v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 1998) 144 F3d 618, 621-622].

Strategic Point--No Other Potential Witness:

To show that Rule 27 perpetuation of testimony may prevent a failure or delay of justice, a petitioner must demonstrate a need for the testimony or evidence that cannot easily be accommodated by other potential witnesses [Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. United States (DC Cir 1995) 68 F3d 1371, 1375].

23.05[6] Trial Court Will Exercise Its Discretion. What circumstances show a possible failure or delay of justice sufficient to call for the issuance of an order is a matter for the sound discretion of the district court [Mosseller v. United States (2d Cir 1946) 158 F2d 380, 382]. The right to this relief depends on the situation of the petitioner, and the petitioner's power to bring his or her rights to an immediate investigation [Pacific Tech. Corp. v. Ehrenwald (SDNY 2000) 2000 US Dist LEXIS 15797, at *4].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsPerpetuation of Testimony

95 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
II. PERPETUATION OF TESTIMONY
A. Petitioning for Perpetuation of Testimony

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.06

23.06 Perpetuation Is Not Appropriate for Obtaining Unknown Information.

Rule 27 is not appropriate when the petitioner seeks discovery of unknown information that the petitioner hopes will assist it in the future when the petitioner applies for judicial relief [Nevada v. O'Leary (9th Cir 1995) 63 F3d 932, 933].

Warning:

Petitioner may not engage in a "fishing expedition" [19th St. Baptist Church v. St. Peters Episcopal Church (ED Pa 2000) 190 FRD 345, 347].

Examples:

It appeared that the petitioner was using Fed R Civ P 27 as a fishing expedition to prepare for filing when there was no showing that the information sought could not be acquired through due diligence. The petitioner failed to show that justice would be impaired if the testimony were not preserved. Instead petitioner asked the court to allow pre-action discovery because he "lack[s] the power of the Court to establish certain facts necessary to make a complete administrative claim" [In re Solorio (D Utah 2000) 192 FRD 709, 709-710].

Petitioner's showing was insufficient under Fed R Civ P 27(a) when it did not aver that any records were in imminent danger of destruction, or that any proposed deponent was seriously ill or likely to leave the country [In re Chester County Elec., Inc. (ED Pa 2002) 208 FRD 545, 547-548].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsPerpetuation of Testimony

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
II. PERPETUATION OF TESTIMONY
A. Petitioning for Perpetuation of Testimony

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.07

23.07 Required Contents of Petition.

23.07[1] Name of Petitioner. The petition must be entitled in the name of the petitioner [Fed R Civ P 27(a)(1)].

23.07[2] Expectation of Action. The petition must contain a statement that the petitioner expects to be a party to an action cognizable in a United States court but is presently unable to bring the action or cause it to be brought [Fed R Civ P 27(a)(1)(A)].

23.07[3] Description of Subject Matter. The petition must contain a statement describing the subject matter of the expected action and the petitioner's interest in that subject matter [Fed R Civ P 27(a)(1)(B)].

23.07[4] Facts of Testimony. The petition must contain a statement describing the facts the petitioner desires to establish by the proposed testimony [Fed R Civ P 27(a)(1)(C)].

23.07[5] Reasons for Perpetuation. The petition must contain a statement setting forth the petitioner's reasons for desiring to perpetuate the testimony [Fed R Civ P 27(a)(1)(C)].

23.07[6] Names of Adverse Parties. The petition must contain a statement detailing the names of the adverse parties or a description of the persons the petitioner expects will be adverse parties and their known addresses [Fed R Civ P 27(a)(1)(D)].

23.07[7] Names of Persons to Be Examined. The petition must contain a statement disclosing the names and addresses of the persons to be examined and the substance of the testimony the petitioner expects to elicit from each [Fed R Civ P 27(a)(1)(E)].

23.07[8] Request for Order. The petition must contain a request for an order authorizing the petitioner to take the depositions of the persons to be examined as named in the petition, for the purpose of perpetuating their testimony [Fed R Civ P 27(a)(1)].

23.07[9] Verification. The petition must contain a verification [Fed R Civ P 27(a)(1)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsPerpetuation of Testimony

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
II. PERPETUATION OF TESTIMONY
A. Petitioning for Perpetuation of Testimony

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.08

23.08 Required Notice and Filing.

23.08[1] File in District of Opponent's Residence. The petition must be filed in the federal district court in the district of the residence of any expected adverse party [Fed R Civ P 27(a)(1)].

23.08[2] File in Any District If All Expected Adverse Parties Are Aliens. If all the expected adverse parties in the anticipated litigation are aliens, the petitioner may file the petition in any district under the federal venue statute [see 28 USC § 1391(d)].

23.08[3] Notice Must Be Served on Each Expected Adverse Party. After filing the petition, the petitioner must serve a notice on each person named in the petition as an expected adverse party, together with a copy of the petition [Fed R Civ P 27(a)(2)].

Example--Failure to Serve Notice of Deposition Violates Rule 27:

In assisting the Tokyo District Prosecutor's Office in a criminal investigation of the murder of a Japanese citizen in the United States, the federal district court appointed two commissioners to facilitate the gathering of evidence (the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure applied to this investigation). The commissioners supervised the taking of witness depositions and the production of documentary and physical evidence. The Japanese citizens who were later indicted for murder successfully argued that the collection of evidence violated, inter alia, Fed R Civ P 27(a) because no notice was given to them as expected adverse parties [Okubo v. Reynolds (9th Cir 1994) 16 F3d 1016, 1020].

Warning:

Notice must be given to the anticipated adverse party in accordance with Rule 27(a)(2). This notice is a condition precedent; when the petitioner fails to comply, the petition will be denied [see In re Solorio (D Utah 2000) 192 FRD 709].

23.08[4] Notice Must Contain Required Statements. The notice must state that the petitioner will apply to the court, at a time and place named in the notice, for the order described in the petition [Fed R Civ P 27(a)(2)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of notice and service, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 27.11[3] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.08[5] Notice Must Be Served 21 Days Before Hearing. The petitioner must serve the notice at least 21 days before the date of the hearing, within or without the district or state [Fed R Civ P 27(a)(2)].

Warning--Notice May Not Be Shortened:

Fed R Civ P 27(a)(2) does not authorize dispensation of the notice requirement, even if the potential deponent might die during that period, before the deposition can be ordered and taken [see In re Petition of Jacobs (ND Ind 1986) 110 FRD 422, 424].

23.08[6] Notice Must Be Served as Required by Rule 4. The notice must be served in the manner provided in Fed R Civ P 4 [Fed R Civ P 27(a)(2)].

Cross Reference:

Ch. 7, Service of Summons.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsPerpetuation of Testimony

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
II. PERPETUATION OF TESTIMONY
A. Petitioning for Perpetuation of Testimony

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.09

23.09 Petitioner Must Establish Three Elements.

23.09[1] Petitioner Must Show Anticipation of Litigation. The petitioner must show he or she is acting in anticipation of litigation in federal court that cannot presently be brought [Calderon v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 1998) 144 F3d 618, 621-622 ; Tennison v. Henry (ND Cal 2001) 203 FRD 435, 440].

23.09[2] Petitioner Must Describe Testimony Sought. The petitioner must adequately explain the substance of the testimony he or she seeks to obtain [Calderon v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 1998) 144 F3d 618, 621-622 ; Tennison v. Henry (ND Cal 2001) 203 FRD 435, 440].

The testimony to be perpetuated must be relevant, not simply cumulative, and likely to provide material distinctly useful to a finder of fact [In re Bay City Middlegrounds Landfill Site (6th Cir 1999) 171 F3d 1044, 1047].

Example:

Rejecting the opponent's argument that the petitioner sought to use Fed R Civ P 27 as a discovery device to uncover new evidence, the court found that the district court had some basis to conclude that the petitioner, in requesting perpetuation of evidence relating to the condition of a ship and its engine parts, largely knew the substance of the information it sought to preserve through Rule 27, when the Coast Guard had reported several engine-related defects on the ship [Deiulemar Compagnia di Navigazione S.P.A. v. M/V Allegra (4th Cir 1999) 198 F3d 473, 486 , cert. denied sub nom. Pacific Eternity S.A. v. Deiulemar Compagnia di Navigazione S.P.A., 529 US 1109 (2000)].

23.09[3] Petitioner Must Show Risk of Losing Evidence.

23.09[3][a] Significant Risk Required. The petitioner must show that there is a significant risk the evidence described in the petition will be lost if it is not perpetuated [Calderon v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 1998) 144 F3d 618, 621-622].

A showing that the petitioner is presently unable to bring the expected action or cause it to be brought may be sufficient showing of the danger of the loss of evidence by delay [Tennison v. Henry (ND Cal 2001) 203 FRD 435, 440].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of risk that testimony will be lost, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 27.13[4] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.09[3][b] Factors Indicating Urgency. Although the passage of time may under some circumstances be sufficient to establish the need to perpetuate testimony, courts are most likely to permit perpetuation under Fed R Civ P 27(a) when some special consideration makes the need to perpetuate testimony particularly urgent. Among the factors that courts have found to be persuasive in justifying the need to perpetuate testimony are the following [Tennison v. Henry (ND Cal 2001) 203 FRD 435, 441]:

- Advanced age or infirmity of witness [see, e.g., Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. United States (DC Cir 1995) 68 F3d 1371, 1375 (permitting deposition under Rule 27(a) on basis that witness was 80 years old and, therefore, that there was significant risk that testimony would be lost)].

- Possibility that the witness will not be willing to testify if discovery is delayed [see, e.g., Calderon v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 1998) 144 F3d 618 (permitting perpetuation on unexhausted claim when facts showed that witness might not be willing to cooperate in future)].

- Uniqueness of the information at issue [see In re Bay City Middlegrounds Landfill Site (6th Cir 1999) 171 F3d 1044, 1047 (material sought under Rule 27(a) need only be "distinctly useful" to finder of fact, but if material were absolutely unique and relevant to potential suit, it would clearly meet standard of Rule 27(a))].

Example--Elderly Witness:

A petition for perpetuation of testimony was granted when a crucial witness in the anticipated CERCLA litigation was 77 years old and reportedly in ill health. The court noted his expected testimony would be highly valuable and that while "a male person age seventy-seven has a statistical life expectancy of 8.6 years, there is no assurance that any one individual will live for that time, or remain able to testify, especially an individual with an adverse medical history, as shown in this case" [In re Amenia (SDNY 2001) 200 FRD 200, 203].

Warning:

Although age may be a relevant factor in showing that testimony must be perpetuated to avoid loss, conclusory remarks in the petitioner's brief may be inadequate to show that evidence is likely to be lost [Ash v. Cort (3d Cir 1975) 512 F2d 909, 912 (from petitioner's brief: "There exists a substantial risk that testimonial evidence will become unavailable if discovery is further postponed. It is probable that the officers and directors having first hand knowledge are over fifty years of age. They are all senior officers of a large industrial corporation. One director has already died. Memories may fade ... .")].

Strategic Point:

Affidavits or declarations supporting statements of risk of loss should be attached to the petition: for example with respect to a very ill deponent, an affidavit from the person's doctor.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsPerpetuation of Testimony

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
II. PERPETUATION OF TESTIMONY
A. Petitioning for Perpetuation of Testimony

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.10

23.10 Petitioner May Request Production of Documents, Electronically Stored Information, and Things, Entry on Land, and Physical and Mental Examinations.

23.10[1] Pre-Action Discovery May Be Available. As part of its authority to grant a petition to perpetuate testimony before an action is initiated, a district court may make orders of the character provided for by Rules 34 and 35 [Fed R Civ P 27(a)(3)]. Fed R Civ P 34 governs production of documents, electronically stored information, and things and entry on land as part of discovery in a civil action. Fed R Civ P 35 governs physical and mental examinations of persons as part of discovery in a civil action.

Example--Inspection of Ship Properly Ordered:

The charterer of a ship expected to be a party to an action in a United States court to compel arbitration under the charter agreement, seek security, or enforce an arbitration award against the ship's owners. The charterer petitioned to perpetuate evidence of the ship's then-existing condition because the ship's owner intended to install new cylinder heads to the main engine. The district court properly ordered inspection and perpetuation of evidence of the ship's condition under Fed R Civ P 27 in light of the "extraordinary circumstances" presented [Deiulemar Compagnia di Navigazione S.P.A. v. M/V Allegra (4th Cir 1999) 198 F3d 473, 479-480 , cert. denied sub nom. Pacific Eternity S.A. v. Deiulemar Compagnia di Navigazione S.P.A., 529 US 1109 (2000)].

Cross References:

Discussion of production of documents, electronically stored information, and things, see §§ 23.135 -23.156. Discussion of physical and mental examinations, see §§ 23.189 -23.216.

Discussion of document production, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 27.12 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.10[2] Deposition Is Not Required. A party may proceed under Fed R Civ P 27 for an order for production of documents, electronically stored information, and things or entry onto land under Fed R Civ P 34 without taking a deposition [Martin v. Reynolds Metals Corp. (9th Cir 1961) 297 F2d 49, 55].

Example:

Noting that respondent was in possession of the only copy of an important public document that was missing from the government's files, and should respondent lose or destroy the document prior to any litigation petitioner could be severely prejudiced, the court granted the petition to the extent of requiring respondent to produce the document in question and a witness to testify that it contained the complete file wrapper; however, petitioner was not entitled to depose the witness concerning anything beyond the facts necessary to establish the authenticity and completeness of the document [Pacific Tech. Corp. v. Ehrenwald (SDNY 2000) 2000 US Dist LEXIS 15797, at *6-*8].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical ExaminationsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsPerpetuation of TestimonyCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
II. PERPETUATION OF TESTIMONY
A. Petitioning for Perpetuation of Testimony

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.11

23.11 Order Must Contain Specific Findings.

If after the hearing the court is satisfied that the perpetuation of testimony may prevent a failure or delay of justice, the court must make an order as follows [Fed R Civ P 27(a)(3)]:

- Designating or describing the persons whose depositions may be taken.

- Specifying the subject matter of the examination [see Martin v. Reynolds Metals Corp. (9th Cir 1961) 297 F2d 49, 55 (court may not delegate obligation to specify subject matter of deposition)].

- Specifying whether the depositions will be taken on oral examination or written interrogatories.

- When requested, orders for production of documents or things, or entry on land; or orders for physical or mental examination.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsPerpetuation of Testimony

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
II. PERPETUATION OF TESTIMONY
A. Petitioning for Perpetuation of Testimony

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.12

23.12 Depositions Will Be Taken in Accordance With Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

Depositions for perpetuating testimony will taken in accordance with the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure [Fed R Civ P 27(a)(3)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of general rules governing depositions, see §§ 23.19 -23.110.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsPerpetuation of Testimony

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
II. PERPETUATION OF TESTIMONY
B. Opposing Petition to Perpetuate Testimony

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.13

23.13 CHECKLIST: Opposing Petition to Perpetuate Testimony.

☐ Consider objections based on petitioner's failure to include required elements in petition.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 27(a)(1)

Discussion:
See § 23.07

☐ Consider objections based on petitioner's failure to serve and file the petition as required.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 27(a)(1)

Discussion:
See § 23.08

☐ Consider objections based on petitioner's failure to show that unique evidence will be lost or destroyed.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 27(a)(1)

Discussion:
See § 23.09[3]

☐ Consider objections based on petitioner's lack of specificity as to evidence sought (a "fishing expedition").

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 27(a)(1)

Discussion:
See § 23.06

☐ Draft opposing papers.

☐ Serve opposing papers on petitioner and all named potential adverse parties; file with the court.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 27(a)(2)

Discussion:
See § 23.16

☐ Consider requesting sanctions.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 27(a)(1)

Discussion:
See § 23.18

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsPerpetuation of Testimony

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
II. PERPETUATION OF TESTIMONY
B. Opposing Petition to Perpetuate Testimony

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.14

23.14 Options and Strategy for Opponent.

Because Rule 27 provides strict requirements, counsel who receives notice of a petition to perpetuate testimony should review the notice and petition carefully to make sure that they meet those requirements, taking into account the checklist above [see 23.13]. If possible, point out alternative sources of the information requested to show that it is not unique.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsPerpetuation of Testimony

104 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
II. PERPETUATION OF TESTIMONY
B. Opposing Petition to Perpetuate Testimony

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.15

23.15 Grounds for Objecting to Petition for Perpetuation of Testimony.

Among the most common objections to Rule 27 petitions are [see Fed R Civ P 27(a)]:

- Petitioner has not shown that he or she is presently unable to bring an action or to cause an action to be brought.
- Petitioner has not shown that a risk of loss of testimony exists.
- Petitioner seeks to engage in a fishing expedition.
- No basis for federal jurisdiction exists in anticipated action.
- Petitioner has not set forth the substance of the testimony sought.
- Notice was not served on all potentially adverse parties.
- Notice was served less than 20 days before the hearing date.

Cross References:

Contents of petition, see § 23.07; notice requirements, see § 23.08; elements of proof, see § 23.09.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsPerpetuation of Testimony

105 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
II. PERPETUATION OF TESTIMONY
B. Opposing Petition to Perpetuate Testimony

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.16

23.16 Opposition Papers Must Be Filed.

Counsel must file the opposition papers and serve the response on the petitioner and all named potential adverse parties [see, e.g., In re Amenia (SDNY 2001) 200 FRD 200, 201].

Timing:

Fed R Civ P 27 does not discuss when the opposition papers must be filed. Therefore, unless a local rule applies, there does not appear to be any firm deadline for oppositions. If the petition is considered a "motion," local rules for the Eastern District and Southern District regarding motions provide that an opposition to a motion is due 14 days before the hearing [ED Cal Civ LR 230(c); SD Cal Civ LR 7.1(e.2)]. Northern District and Central District local rules provide that an opposition to a motion is due 21 days before the hearing [ND Cal Civ LR 7-3(a); CD Cal Civ LR 7-9]. However, there is also an equally reasonable argument that a Rule 27 petition is not a "motion," in which case none of these rules applies.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsPerpetuation of Testimony

106 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
II. PERPETUATION OF TESTIMONY
B. Opposing Petition to Perpetuate Testimony

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.17

23.17 Other Potential Adverse Parties May File Response.

Any potential adverse party may file a response in support of or in opposition to the petition [see, e.g., In re Amenia (SDNY 2001) 200 FRD 200, 201 (response in support of petition)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsPerpetuation of Testimony

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
II. PERPETUATION OF TESTIMONY
B. Opposing Petition to Perpetuate Testimony

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.18

23.18 Sanctions May Be Available.

Sanctions under Fed R Civ P 26(g) are not available in a Fed R Civ P 27(a) proceeding [In re Chester County Elec., Inc. (ED Pa 2002) 208 FRD 545, 548-549].

However, truly frivolous or offending motions under Rule 27(a) can be sanctioned under other rules, or under the court's inherent authority [see, e.g., 18 USC § 401 (contempt power); 28 USC § 1927 (punishing attorneys who vexatiously multiply proceedings); see generally Chambers v. NASCO, Inc. (1991) 501 US 32, 45, 111 S Ct 2123, 115 L Ed2d 27 ; In re Amenia (SDNY 2001) 200 FRD 200, 201].

Cross References:

Ch. 34, Other Sanction Provisions; Ch. 35, Contempt.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsPerpetuation of TestimonyCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMisconduct

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
A. Planning Oral Depositions: Initial Considerations

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.19

23.19 CHECKLIST: Planning Oral Depositions.

☐ Determine who will be deposed:

- ○ Party or nonparty.
- ○ Individuals.
- ○ Named individual(s) to testify on behalf of corporation or other entity.
- ○ Entity that will designate individual(s) to testify.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(a)(1)

Discussion:
See § 23.22[1]

☐ If seeking deposition testimony from corporation through individual named employees, determine whether deponent(s) can testify on behalf of corporation, because of status as:

- ○ Officer(s).

- Director(s).
- Managing agent(s).

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(a)(1); Sugarhill Records, Ltd. v. Motown Record Corp. (SDNY 1985) 105 FRD 166, 169

Discussion:
See § 23.22[2]

☐ If proposed deponent is opposing counsel, determine whether circumstances exist for deposition:

- No other means exist to obtain the information than to depose opposing counsel;
- The information sought is relevant and nonprivileged; and
- The information is crucial to the preparation of the case.

Authority:
Shelton v. American Motors Corp. (8th Cir 1986) 805 F2d 1323, 1327

Discussion:
See § 23.22[3]

☐ Determine whether leave of court is required to take any deposition because deponent is incarcerated.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(a)(2)(B)

Discussion:
See § 23.25[1]

☐ Determine if opposing counsel will stipulate to allowing deposition when any of the following circumstances exist, which otherwise require leave of court:

- Proposed deposition would result in more than 10 depositions by party seeking discovery;

Warning:

Many judges will not allow parties to stipulate to additional depositions or other discovery without prior court approval.

- Person to be examined has already been deposed in the case; or
- Party seeking discovery wants to take deposition before parties have agreed to a discovery plan.

Exception:
Leave of court is not required to take a deposition before the parties have agreed to a discovery plan if the notice of deposition contains a certification, with supporting facts, that the deponent is expected to leave the United States and be unavailable for examination in this country unless deposed before that time.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(a)(2)(A)(iii)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.25[2] -[4]

☐ If leave of court is required, draft motion for leave, in accordance with standard motion procedure and local rule requirements, indicating that:

○ The discovery sought is not unreasonably cumulative or duplicative, or is not obtainable from some other source that is more convenient, less burdensome, or less expensive;

○ The party seeking discovery has not had ample opportunity by discovery in the action to obtain the information sought; or

○ The burden or expense of the proposed discovery does not outweigh its likely benefit, taking into account the needs of the case, the amount in controversy, the parties' resources, the importance of the issues at stake in the litigation, and the importance of the proposed discovery in resolving the issues.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2), 30(a)(2)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.23 -23.26

Form:
See § 23.290 (notice of motion for leave to take deposition)

Standard Procedure Checklist:
Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, see § 22.14

☐ Consider videotaping deposition.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(b)(3)

Discussion:
See § 23.20

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
A. Planning Oral Depositions: Initial Considerations

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.20

23.20 Options and Strategy for Party Seeking Discovery.

Because the number of depositions is limited [see Fed R Civ P 30(a)(2)(A)(i)], each party must determine the most important depositions for its case. Each party should also use other forms of discovery, such as interrogatories, to elicit the information sought or to identify specific individuals to be deposed.

The party seeking discovery from a corporation or other entity should consider whether to require the entity to designate individuals to testify on its behalf [see Fed R Civ P 30(b)(6)], or to notice the depositions of specific individuals within the entity. If the party names a corporation or other entity as deponent, so that the entity must designate the person or persons to testify on its behalf, the examination is considered to be one deposition for purposes of the deposition limit [see Fed R Civ P 30(b)(6)]. Although the selection of the individuals to testify is then in the entity's control, rather than in the control of the party seeking discovery, remedies are available if the entity fails to designate and produce for deposition "the most knowledgeable person" on the subjects identified.

Strategic Point--Preparation Is Key:

Always ask yourself prior to starting a deposition. "What is the goal of this deposition?" "What information and/or trial testimony do I need to obtain from this witness?" Develop a strategy for every deposition that will be taken. Preparation is important because of the limit of 10 depositions [see Fed R Civ P 30(a)(2)(A)(i)] and because subsequent depositions of the same person require leave of court [see Fed R Civ P 30(a)(2)(A)(ii)]. Also the seven-hour duration limit [see Fed R Civ P 30(d)(1)] requires that counsel be organized. If the potential deponent is a party to the action, the deposing party should consider using other discovery methods prior to the deposition to gather information that will enable counsel to define clearly the issues to be emphasized at the oral examination.

Strategic Point--Consider Videotaping the Deposition:

A videotaped deposition can be a very powerful tool for preserving not just the testimony, but also the appearance and credibility of the deponent. A videotape can also keep opposing counsel on his or her best behavior; failing that, it demonstrates the behavior for the judge if the behavior is extreme enough to lead to a motion for a protective order. A videotape is very useful in assessing potential juror reactions to the other side's witnesses (e.g., in mock trials or focus-group exercises).

A videotape is also more powerful at trial than reading from a deposition transcript, especially when used for impeachment purposes. A cold stenographic transcript reports only words spoken at the deposition. It misses all the nonverbal communication inherent in facial expressions, the inflection and intonation of the voice, gestures, body language, and long pauses between questions and answers. Nonverbal communication may express a message to those present at the deposition that does not appear on the written transcript.

Consider regularly including in your deposition notice the statement that you reserve the right to take the deposition by videotaping it. Without that notice you will be unable to videotape the deposition [see Fed R Civ P 30(b)(3)]. By including it, you will keep your options open and can choose whether or not you want to videotape. Videotaping depositions is a common occurrence, particularly in large commercial litigation.

Drawback--Disadvantages of Videotaping Depositions:

Although there are many benefits to videotaping depositions, drawbacks can include (1) the cost of making, copying, and laying the foundation for the videotape, (2) constraining the questioner's behavior, and (3) videotaping can make the deposition more formal and less conversational, causing witnesses to be less talkative.

Cross References:

Discussion of limitations on depositions, see § 23.21[2]. Discussion of naming a corporation or other entity as deponent, see § 23.22.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
A. Planning Oral Depositions: Initial Considerations

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.21

23.21 Depositions Are Subject to Numeric and Timing Restrictions.

23.21[1] Depositions Cannot Be Taken Before Parties' Initial Meeting Except by Stipulation or With Leave of Court. A stipulation or leave of court is required to take a deposition before the parties' initial meeting to develop a discovery plan [Fed R Civ P 30(a)(2)(A)(iii); Fed R Civ P 26(d), (f)].

Exception:

Leave of court is not required if the notice of deposition contains a certification, with supporting facts, that the person to be examined is expected to leave the United States and be unavailable for examination in this country unless deposed before that time [Fed R Civ P 30(a)(2)(A)(iii)].

Cross References:

Discussion of circumstances when leave of court is required to take a deposition, see § 23.25. Discussion of the parties' meeting to develop a discovery plan, see Ch. 21, Discovery Strategy and Planning.

23.21[2] Number of Depositions Is Limited to 10 for Each Side. Unless the court grants leave to take additional depositions, only 10 depositions, whether oral or written, may be taken by the plaintiffs, or by the defendants, or by third-party defendants [Fed R Civ P 30(a)(2)(A)(i)]. In considering a request for leave to take more than 10 depositions, the court must examine the request and consider the asserted need for additional discovery in light of the stated principles of Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2) [Andamiro U.S.A. v. Konami Amusement of Am., Inc. (CD Cal 2001) 2001 US Dist LEXIS 11168, at *5].

The Central District has stated that it is not at all clear that the 10-deposition limitation set forth in Rule 30(a)(2)(A) applies to multidistrict litigation, which, by its definition, involves hundreds of cases and parties. Generally, litigation of that nature and scope requires substantial discovery, including the taking of more than 10 depositions [In re Air Crash at Taipei (CD Cal 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 23220, at *4]. Accordingly, the 10-deposition limit may not apply if more than one case is involved.

Example--Leave Granted to Exceed 10-Deposition Limit:

In one case, the court granted leave for plaintiff to take four expert witness depositions beyond the 10-deposition limit because [Andamiro U.S.A. v. Konami Amusement of Am., Inc. (CD Cal 2001) 2001 US Dist LEXIS 11168, at *6-*7]:

- Witnesses' opinions could not be discovered from other sources, so the discovery sought was not duplicative or unreasonably cumulative;
- Expense of depositions would be borne by the party taking them; and
- Information was crucial, so the benefit of discovery vastly outweighed the burden or expense to the opposing party.

Strategic Point--Party Noticing Deposition of Entity:

If the party seeking discovery notices the deposition of an entity, the deposition counts as only one deposition against the 10-per-side limit, even though the entity may designate several witnesses to testify on its behalf [see Fed R Civ P 30(b)(6)]. However, each designee may be examined for seven hours [Fed R Civ P 30(d), Committee Note of 2000].

Consider:

In appropriate cases, it may be useful to raise at the Fed R Civ P 26 conference and the subsequent scheduling conference with the court whether the number, duration, and other limits should be modified in the particular case to avoid the necessity of a motion.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of notice to entity and entity's designation of witnesses, see § 23.29.

23.21[3] Duration of Each Deposition Is Limited.

23.21[3][a] Duration Is One Day of Seven Hours Unless Otherwise Stipulated or Ordered. Unless otherwise authorized by the court or stipulated by the parties, a deposition is limited to one day of seven hours [Fed R Civ P 30(d)(1)].

It is expected that in most instances the parties and the witness will make reasonable accommodations to avoid the need for resort to the court [Fed R Civ P 30(d), Committee Note of 2000].

The limitation is phrased in terms of a single day, on the assumption that ordinarily a single day would be preferable to a deposition extending over multiple days; if alternative arrangements would better suit the parties, they may agree to them in most cases, or a party may seek modification by the court [Fed R Civ P 30(d), Committee Note of 2000].

This limitation contemplates that there will be reasonable breaks during the day for lunch and other reasons, and that the only time to be counted is the time occupied by the actual deposition [Fed R Civ P 30(d), Committee Note of 2000].

23.21[3][b] Court Must Allow Additional Time for Fair Examination. The court must allow additional time, consistent with the principles stated in Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2), if [Fed R Civ P 30(d)(1)]:

- Additional time is needed for a fair examination of the deponent; or
- The deponent or another person, or other circumstance, impedes or delays the examination.

Example:

An "other circumstance" that impedes or delays the examination might include a power outage, a health emergency, or other event [Fed R Civ P 30(d), Committee Note of 2000].

23.21[3][c] Circumstances That Might Require Additional Time. Various circumstances, such as the following, may justify extending the time for a deposition [Fed R Civ P 30(d), Committee Note of 2000]:

- An interpreter is needed to communicate with the witness.
- The examination covers events occurring over a long period of time.
- The witness failed to review and become familiar with numerous or lengthy documents made available to the witness in advance, prior to the deposition.
- The examination reveals that documents were requested but not produced.
- Each party in a multiparty case needs to examine the witness.
- The lawyer for the witness wants to examine the witness.
- Additional time is needed to explore the theories on which an expert witness relies.
- The deponent or opposing counsel has delayed the examination by improper, lengthy, or inappropriate objections.
- The witness has been very slow in responding to questions or has delayed proceedings by consultations with counsel.

23.21[3][d] Persons Responsible for Impediment or Delay May Be Subject to Sanctions. If the court finds that any impediment, delay, or other conduct has frustrated the fair examination of the deponent, it may impose on the persons responsible an appropriate sanction, including the reasonable costs and attorney's fees incurred by any parties as a result of the impediment, delay, or conduct [Fed R Civ P 30(d)(2)].

The "persons responsible" may include the deponent, any party, or any other person involved in the deposition [Fed R Civ P 30(d), Committee Note of 2000].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of sanctions, see Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions.

23.21[3][e] Court May Order Shorter Duration in Particular Case. The court may limit the length of a deposition to less than one day of seven hours under its general power to limit discovery, either on its own initiative or pursuant to a motion for a protective order [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)].

Examples:

The court may order [Fed R Civ P 30(d), Committee Note of 2000]:

- Shorter depositions for all depositions in a particular case;
- A shorter deposition for a specific witness in a particular case; or

- A particular deposition to be taken for limited periods on several days.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of motion for protective order, see § 23.41.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
A. Planning Oral Depositions: Initial Considerations

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.22

23.22 Any Person May Be Deposed.

23.22[1] Generally Any Person, Including Any Party, May Be Deposed. A party may take the testimony of any person, including a party, by deposition on oral examination [Fed R Civ P 30(a)(1)]. Leave of court is required, however, if the person has already been deposed in the action [Fed R Civ P 30(a)(2)(A)(ii)].

Exceptions:

Absent extraordinary circumstances, high-ranking government officials generally cannot be deposed if other persons can provide the information sought [see Kyle Eng'g Co. v. Kleppe (9th Cir 1979) 600 F2d 226, 231 ; *Coleman v. Schwarzenegger (ND Cal 2008) 2008 US Dist LEXIS 70224, at *26-28 (disallowing depositions of governor and his chief of staff in case challenging prison conditions because they had no information that could not be obtained by other means)]. Similarly, a high-ranking corporate officer may obtain a protective order to preclude being deposed about matters of which he or she has no personal knowledge, even if the corporation has such knowledge [see Thomas v. IBM (10th Cir 1995) 48 F3d 478, 483 ; Lewelling v. Farmers Ins. of Columbus, Inc. (6th Cir 1989) 879 F2d 212, 218].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of protective orders, see § 23.41.

23.22[2] Deposition Notice May Specify Certain Individuals to Testify on Behalf of Corporation.

23.22[2][a] Deposition Notice May Specify Officers, Directors, or Managing Agents to Appear on Behalf of Corporation. Only an officer, director, or managing agent may be noticed to appear for deposition on behalf of a corporation. In certain instances, the corporation can designate a deponent who is not an officer, director, or managing agent [see Sugarhill Records, Ltd. v. Motown Record Corp. (SDNY 1985) 105 FRD 166, 169]. Note that a party may also notice the deposition of a specific named person within an organization [see Fed R Civ P 30(b)(6)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of corporate deponents, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 30.03[2] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.22[2][b] Who Is a "Managing Agent." Whether an individual will be deemed a managing agent of a corporate party depends on several factors [Sugarhill Records, Ltd. v. Motown Record Corp. (SDNY 1985) 105 FRD 166, 170]:

- Whether the individual is invested with general powers allowing him or her to exercise judgment and discretion in corporate matters;
- The general responsibilities of the individual respecting the matters involved in the litigation;
- Whether the individual can be relied on to give testimony, at the employer's request, in response to the demands of the examining party;
- Whether any person or persons are employed by the corporate employer in positions of higher authority than the individual designated in the area concerning the information sought; and
- Whether the individual can be expected to identify or represent the interests of the corporation.

Example--Deponent Considered Managing Agent:
An airline captain was considered a managing agent of airline because he (1) was vested with the authority of the corporation, (2) had complete control of the aircraft, (3) had the most relevant first-hand knowledge regarding the cause of the accident at issue, and (4) was in the position of highest authority to testify about it [In re Air Crash at Taipei, Taiwan (CD Cal 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 466, at *5].

Example--Deponent Not Considered Managing Agent:
A managing director of corporate party's subsidiary was not considered managing agent of corporate holding company in litigation involving the holding company's trademarks because (1) he did not have any power or responsibilities with respect to the trademarks, and (2) other actual employees of the holding company were in charge of those issues [Mattel, Inc. v. MCA Records, Inc. (CD Cal 1998) 1998 US Dist LEXIS 7561, at *2-*6].

23.22[3] Depositions of Counsel Are Allowed in Limited Circumstances. Depositions of counsel, although not prohibited, are generally disfavored because of the potential for abuse and issues of work product and privilege [see Shelton v. American Motors Corp. (8th Cir 1986) 805 F2d 1323, 1327 ; Massachusetts Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Cerf (ND Cal 1998) 177 FRD 472, 478-479 ; American Cas. Co. v. Krieger (SD Cal 1995) 160 FRD 582, 588].

Depositions of opposing counsel should be limited to those circumstances when the party seeking to take the deposition has shown that [Shelton v. American Motors Corp. (8th Cir 1986) 805 F2d 1323, 1327]:

- No other means exist to obtain the information than to depose opposing counsel;
- The information sought is relevant and nonprivileged; and
- The information is crucial to the preparation of the case.

Example:
The plaintiff insurer in a declaratory relief action was allowed to depose opposing counsel who had represented the defendants in an underlying state court action against its insured. The state court action resulted in a default judgment against the insured and an assignment of the insured's rights against the insurer. Insurer was entitled to depose counsel concerning the facts and circumstances surrounding the entry of default and assignment, subject to a partial protective order limiting the scope of questioning and duration of the deposition [American Cas. Co. v. Krieger (SD Cal 1995) 160 FRD 582, 591-592].

23.22[4] Expert Whose Opinions May Be Presented at Trial May Be Deposed. A party may depose any person who has been identified as an expert to present testimony at trial [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(4)(A)]. A report from the expert is required under Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2)(B), and the deposition cannot be conducted until after the report is provided [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(4)(A)]. Unless manifest injustice would result, the court will require the party seeking discovery to pay the expert a reasonable fee for time spent in responding to the discovery [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(4)(C)]. To apply the manifest injustice exception, the court must find that the party seeking to depose the expert is either indigent or that requiring payment of the deposition fee would create an undue hardship [Harris v. San Jose Mercury News, Inc. (ND Cal 2006) 235 FRD 471, 473 ; Edin v. The Paul Revere Life Ins. Co. (D Ariz 1999) 188 FRD 543, 547]. When a plaintiff would face undue hardship if required to pay the fees for deposing defense experts, the court may order the defendant to absorb the cost in the appropriate circumstances [see, e.g., Harris v. San Jose Mercury News, Inc. (ND Cal 2006) 235 FRD 471, 473-474].

Absent an agreement to do so, there is no requirement that the expert's fees must be paid in advance of the deposition [Harris v. Costco Wholesale Corp. (SD Cal 2005) 226 FRD 675, 676-677].

Strategic Point:

If allowed by the judge's procedural standing order, counsel concerned about the deposing party's payment of the expert's fees may wish to contact the court at the time of the deposition for guidance or an immediate ruling. Following the deposition, application may be made to the court for payment if payment is not timely [see Harris v. Costco Wholesale Corp. (SD Cal 2005) 226 FRD 675, 677].

Judge's Perspective:

One view is that it is wise to decline deposing your opponent's experts, on the theory that all pertinent information is in the Rule 26 expert report. Under this theory, a deposition simply gives the expert time to correct any weaknesses in the presentation. The opposing view is that failing to depose might lead to a new theory or opinion that surprises you at trial. Although the rules call for exclusion of any expert opinion not included in the Rule 26 report [see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(4)(A)], not all judges strictly adhere to that provision of Rule 26. Unless you know the judge's practice in this regard, failing to depose can be risky.

Distinguish--Experts Who Will Not Testify:

Facts known or opinions held by the opponent's non-testifying experts are discoverable "on showing exceptional circumstances under which it is impracticable for the party to obtain facts or opinions on the same subject by other means" [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(4)(B)(ii)]. The requesting party must pay the responding party a fair portion of the fees and expenses reasonably incurred by the responding party in obtaining facts and opinions from the non-testifying expert to comply with the request [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(4)(C)].

Cross References:

Discussion of scope of discovery from experts, see Ch. 24, Restrictions on Scope and Extent of Discovery: Privileges and Work Product Protection. Discussion of disclosure of expert testimony, see Ch. 15, Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures, §§ 15.27 -15.34.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
A. Planning Oral Depositions: Initial Considerations

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.23

23.23 Leave of Court Generally Is Not Required.

Leave of court generally is not required to take a deposition on oral examination [Fed R Civ P 30(a)(1)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of when leave of court is required, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 30.05[1] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

113 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
A. Planning Oral Depositions: Initial Considerations

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.24

23.24 No Party Has Priority in Setting Depositions.

Although discovery by all parties ordinarily proceeds concurrently (the rules do not give priority to any party or side), sometimes one or more parties should be allowed to proceed first. For example, if a party needs discovery to respond to an early summary judgment motion, that party may be given priority. Some judges establish periods in which particular parties have exclusive or preferential rights to take depositions, and, in multiple litigation, those judges direct that discovery be conducted in some cases before others. Sometimes judges order "common" discovery to proceed in a specified sequence, without similarly limiting "individual" discovery in the various cases.

One purpose of a discovery plan is to establish an orderly procedure and to avoid indiscriminate noticing of depositions, which may result in inconvenience, harassment, and inefficiency. Depositions should be scheduled to accomplish the objectives of the discovery plan while minimizing travel and other expense, and reasonably accommodating parties, counsel, and witnesses. A plan might set specific dates for specific witnesses or set aside specified time periods during which designated parties are given either exclusive or preferential rights to schedule depositions, subject to exceptions for emergencies.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
A. Planning Oral Depositions: Initial Considerations

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.25

23.25 Circumstances When Leave of Court Is Required.

23.25[1] Leave Required When Deponent Is Incarcerated. A party must obtain leave of court when the person to be deposed is confined in prison [Fed R Civ P 30(a)(2)(B)].

23.25[2] Leave Required for More Than 10 Depositions. A party must obtain leave of court if, without the written stipulation of all parties, a proposed deposition would result in more than 10 depositions being taken by either side [Fed R Civ P 30(a)(2)(A)(i)].

23.25[3] Leave Required If Person Already Deposed. A party must obtain leave of court if, without the written stipulation of the parties, the person to be examined has already been deposed in the case [Fed R Civ P 30(a)(2)(A)(ii)].

23.25[4] Leave May Be Required for Deposition Before Discovery Plan Agreement. A party must obtain leave of court if, without the written stipulation of the parties, the party seeks to take a deposition before the parties have agreed to a discovery plan [see Fed R Civ P 26(d), (f)], unless the notice contains a certification, with supporting facts, that the person to be examined is expected to leave the United States and be unavailable for examination in this country unless deposed before that time [Fed R Civ P 30(a)(2)(A)(iii)].

Cross References:

Discussion of discovery plan required by Fed R Civ P 26(f), see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion. Form of notice of motion to obtain leave of court, see § 23.290.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

115 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
A. Planning Oral Depositions: Initial Considerations

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.26

23.26 Court Will Limit Excessive or Unreasonable Discovery.

Discovery must be limited if the court determines that [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)(C)]:

- The discovery sought is unreasonably cumulative or duplicative, or is obtainable from some other source that is more convenient, less burdensome, or less expensive (this ground is often asserted in mass tort or class actions when depositions from related cases already exist);

- The party seeking discovery has had ample opportunity by discovery in the action to obtain the information sought; or

- The burden or expense of the proposed discovery outweighs its likely benefit, taking into account the needs of the case, the amount in controversy, the parties' resources, the importance of the issues at stake in the litigation, and the importance of the proposed discovery in resolving the issues.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of general limits on discovery, see Ch. 24, Restrictions on Scope and Extent of Discovery: Privileges and Work Product Protection.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective OrdersCivil ProcedureDiscoveryUndue Burdens

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
B. Giving Notice of Oral Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.27

23.27 CHECKLIST: Giving Notice of Oral Deposition.

☐ Determine time and place for deposition:

○ Reasonable notice is required.

○ Thirty days' notice is required if notice of deposition to party is accompanied by request for production.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(b)(2)

Discussion:
See § 23.29[1]

○ Deposition of nonparty must be within 100 miles of place where deponent resides, is employed, or regularly transacts business.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(a)(1), 45(c)(3)(A)(ii)

Discussion:
See § 23.29[2]

☐ If seeking to take deposition by telephone or other remote electronic means:

- ○ Obtain stipulation of opposing counsel; or
- ○ If unable to obtain stipulation, move for court order.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(b)(4)

Discussion:
See § 23.31

Form:
See § 23.292 (notice of motion to take deposition by telephone or other electronic means)

☐ Prepare notice of taking oral deposition:

- ○ Specify time and place of deposition.
- ○ State name and address of deponent, if known, or state general description sufficient to identify person or particular class or group to which person belongs.
- ○ Designate materials to be produced pursuant to subpoena duces tecum, if any.
- ○ State method for recording testimony.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(b)(1)-(4)

Discussion:
See § 23.29

Form:
See § 23.289 (notice of deposition)

- ○ If entity is named as deponent, describe with reasonable particularity the matters on which examination is requested.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(b)(6)

Discussion:
See § 23.30[1]

☐ Serve notice on all parties.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(b)(1)

Discussion:
See § 23.33

☐ If documents are requested of party deponent, serve party with accompanying request for production of documents and things at the taking of the deposition.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(b)(2)

Discussion:
See § 23.32

☐ If documents are requested of nonparty deponent, serve nonparty with subpoena to compel attendance, testimony, and production of documents.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(a)(1)

Discussion:
See § 23.33[3]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

117 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
B. Giving Notice of Oral Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.28

23.28 Options and Strategy for Party Noticing Deposition.

Although only "reasonable notice" is required for a deposition [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(1)], the party seeking discovery should consult with opposing counsel about scheduling prior to giving notice, if possible, to avoid objections to the time and place that may cause unnecessary delay. The party giving notice should also take care to comply with the specific requirements for the written notice and for any request for production or subpoena served with the notice [see Fed R Civ P 34, 45].

Cross Reference:

Form of notice of deposition, see § 23.289.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
B. Giving Notice of Oral Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.29

23.29 Written Notice Is Required.

23.29[1] Give Reasonable Notice in Writing to All Parties. A party desiring to take the deposition of any person on oral examination must give reasonable notice in writing to every other party to the action [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(1)].

Warning--Notice of Deposition Accompanied by Request for Production:

Although only "reasonable" notice of an oral deposition is required, if the notice to a party is accompanied by a request for production of documents at the deposition, 30 days' notice is required [see Fed R Civ P 34(b)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the requirements for a request for production, see §§ 23.135 -23.156.

23.29[2] Specify Time and Place of Deposition. A notice of oral deposition must state the time and place for taking the deposition [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(1)].

Subject to the court's power to grant a protective order, the deposition of a party may be noticed in an appropriate location the deposing party designates [United States v. $160,066.98 from Bank of Am. (SD Cal 2001) 202 FRD 624, 627 ; Berry v. Baca (CD Cal 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 15698, at *10].

Examples:

- Foreign nationals filed claims in forfeiture action to recover money from business conducted in the United States. Plaintiff United States was entitled to depose claimants in the United States, rather than in their country of residence, because claimants were considered parties to the action for purposes of resolving discovery disputes United States v. $160,066.98 from Bank of Am. (SD Cal 2001) 202 FRD 624, 627].

- Plaintiff who claimed to reside in Missouri sued prison officials in California for over-detaining him at the Los Angeles jail. Officials were entitled to depose him in Missouri; they were not required to pay his travel costs to California [Berry v. Baca (CD Cal 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 15698, at *10-*11].

Warning--Location of Deposition of Nonparty:

The attendance of a nonparty deponent at a deposition must be compelled by subpoena [Fed R Civ P 30(a)(1)]. The location of the deposition is therefore limited by the court's subpoena power. The deposition must take place within 100 miles of the place where the nonparty deponent resides, is employed, or regularly transacts business in person [see Fed R Civ P 45(c)(3)(A)(ii)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the use of subpoenas to obtain discovery from nonparties, see §§ 23.259 -23.285.

23.29[3] State Name and Address of Deponent, If Known. A notice of deposition must state the name and address of each person to be examined, if known [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(1)].

If the name of the person to be deposed is not known, the notice must state a general description sufficient to identify the person or the particular class or group to which the person belongs [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(1)].

23.29[4] Designate Materials to Be Produced Pursuant to Subpoena Duces Tecum. If a subpoena duces tecum is to be served on the person to be examined, the designation of the materials to be produced as set forth in the subpoena must be attached to, or included in, the notice of deposition [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(2)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of subpoenas duces tecum, see §§ 23.259 -23.285.

23.29[5] State Method for Recording Testimony. The party taking the deposition must state in the notice the method by which the testimony will be recorded [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(3)(A)].

Unless the court orders otherwise, the testimony may be recorded by sound, sound-and-visual (e.g., videotape), or stenographic means [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(3)(A)].

23.29[6] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements--Consult With Counsel or Pro Se Party Deponent About Scheduling Prior to Giving Notice. In the Northern District, before noticing a deposition of a party or a witness affiliated with a party, the noticing party must confer about the deposition scheduling with opposing counsel or, if the party is pro se, the party. A party noticing a deposition of a witness who is not a party or affiliated with a party must also meet and confer about scheduling but may do so after serving the nonparty witness with a subpoena [ND Cal Civ LR 30-1].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
B. Giving Notice of Oral Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.30

23.30 Notice May Name Corporation, Partnership, Association, or Agency As Deponent.

23.30[1] Notice Must Describe Matters on Which Examination Is Requested. A party may, in the notice of deposition and in a subpoena, name as the deponent a public or private corporation, partnership, association, governmental agency, or other entity, and describe with reasonable particularity the matters on which examination is requested [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(6)].

Warning--Counsel for Entity:

The "reasonable particularity" requirement does not limit the scope of the questioning to the matters described in the notice; counsel cannot instruct the individual testifying on behalf of the entity not to answer merely because a question is beyond that scope [Detoy v. City & County of San Francisco (ND Cal 2000) 196 FRD 362, 366-367].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of circumstances when a deponent may be instructed not to answer, see § 23.52.

23.30[2] Entity Must Designate Individual(s) Who Will Testify on Its Behalf. An entity named as a deponent must designate one or more officers, directors, or managing agents, or other persons most knowledgeable to testify on its behalf on the subjects identified in the notice [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(6)]. For each person so designated, the organization may set forth the matters on which the person will testify [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(6)].

The persons designated by an entity must testify as to matters known or reasonably available to the organization [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(6)].

Strategic Point--Deponent Entity:

The entity must seek a protective order if it is unable to designate one or more individuals to testify on its behalf with respect to the matters described in the notice of deposition. Failure to make a designation or seek a protective order may result in the imposition of sanctions [see Commodity Futures Trading Comm'n v. Noble Metals Int'l, Inc. (9th Cir 1995) 67 F3d 766, 770-771 , cert. denied, 519 US 815 (1996)].

Cross References:

Discussion of protective orders, see § 23.41. Discussion of discovery sanctions, see Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions.

23.30[3] Deposition of Specific Individual May Be Noticed. The rules on organization depositions do not preclude a party from noticing the deposition of a specific named officer, director, or managing agent within an organization [see Fed R Civ P 30(b)(6)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of individuals who can be noticed as deponents on behalf of a corporation, see § 23.22[2].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
B. Giving Notice of Oral Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.31

23.31 Telephone or Video Conference Deposition May Be Allowed by Stipulation or Court Order.

The parties may stipulate in writing or the court may, on motion, order that a deposition be taken by telephone or other remote electronic means [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(4)]. Telephone and video depositions are commonly used in cases involving multiple parties, with counsel and witnesses located in disparate locations, often relating to the authentication of documents and other formal, noncontentious matters.

A deposition taken by telephone or other remote electronic means is deemed to be taken in the district and at the place where the deponent is to answer questions [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(4)].

Although some courts have stated that telephone depositions should be liberally permitted [see Jahr v. IU Int'l Corp. (WDNC 1986) 109 FRD 429, 430 ; Rehau, Inc. v. Colortech, Inc (WD Mich 1993) 145 FRD 444, 446], other courts appear reluctant to order telephone depositions [see, e.g., United States v. $160,066.98 from Bank of Am. (SD Cal 2001) 202 FRD 624, 629 (in refusing to order a deposition by telephone from Pakistan to San Diego, court emphasized that circumstances of case required in-person depositions)].

Strategic Point:

Counsel defending a deposition will usually be comfortable stipulating to a telephone or other electronic deposition. However, counsel taking a deposition should consider the ramifications before doing so, because (1) it is hard to monitor discussions between the witness and the witness's counsel, and (2) it is hard to develop a conversational rhythm in telephonic or electronic depositions.

Judge's Perspective:

In general, courts will approve video and telephone depositions if the parties stipulate to them. Video depositions are usually preferable to telephone depositions, because you can see the body language and demeanor of the deponent, and whether the deponent is being coached.

Cross References:

Form of notice of motion to take deposition by telephone or other remote electronic means, see § 23.292.

Depositions by telephone and video conferencing, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 30.24 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsStipulations

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
B. Giving Notice of Oral Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.32

23.32 Notice to Party Deponent May Be Accompanied by Request for Production.

The notice to a party deponent may be accompanied by a request for the production of documents, electronically stored information, and tangible things at the taking of the deposition [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(2); see Fed R Civ P 34(a), Committee Note of 2006].

The request for the production must be made in accordance with the procedure specified in Fed R Civ P 34 [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(2)].

Warning--30-Days' Notice Required:

Although only "reasonable" notice of an oral deposition is required, if the deponent is a party and the notice is accompanied by a request for production at the deposition, 30 days' notice is required [see Fed R Civ P 34(b)(2)(A)].

Cross References:

Discussion of requests for the production of documents and things, see §§ 23.135 -23.156.

Discussion of production of documents at deposition, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 30.22 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
B. Giving Notice of Oral Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.33

23.33 Notice Must Be Served on Parties.

23.33[1] Serve on All Parties. The notice of deposition must be served on all parties [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(1); see Fed R Civ P 5 (service of papers)].

Although only "reasonable" notice of a deposition is required [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(1)], if a party receives less than 14 days' notice and promptly files a motion for a protective order requesting that the deposition not be held or be held at a different time or place, and the deposition is taken while the motion is pending, the deposition cannot be used against that party [Fed R Civ P 32(a)(5)(A)].

Cross References:

Discussion of service of papers, see Ch. 5, Formatting, Serving, and Filing Papers, §§ 5.15 -5.23.
Discussion of use of depositions, see §§ 23.68 -23.70.

23.33[2] Do Not File Notice. The notice of deposition is not filed with the court [see Fed R Civ P 5(d)(1) (discovery requests not filed until used or filing ordered by court)].

23.33[3] Serve Nonparty Deponent With Subpoena to Compel Attendance and/or Production. A notice of deposition is sufficient to compel the attendance and testimony of a party deponent [see Fed R Civ P 37(d)(1)(A)(i)].

A subpoena is required to compel attendance and testimony or production of documents by a nonparty deponent [Fed R Civ P 30(a)(1); see Fed R Civ P 45(a)].

Warning:

An employee of a corporation who is not an officer, director, or managing agent of the corporation is a nonparty witness, even if the corporation is a party to the proceeding.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the procedure for issuance and service of a subpoena, see §§ 23.259 -23.285.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
B. Giving Notice of Oral Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.34

23.34 Cost of Recording and Transcription Generally Borne by Deposing Party.

23.34[1] Party Taking Deposition Bears Cost of Recording. The party taking the deposition bears the cost of the recording [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(3)].

23.34[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements--Court May Order Waiver of Transcription or Apportionment of Cost. In the Southern District, the deposing party must assume the cost of the record or transcription unless, upon motion or the parties' agreement, the court orders a waiver of transcription or a different apportionment of cost [SD Cal Civ LR 30.1(a)].

23.34[3] Any Party May Notice Additional Method of Recording. With prior notice to the deponent and other parties, any party may designate another method to record the deponent's testimony in addition to the method specified by the person taking the deposition [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(3)(B)]. Also, any party may arrange for a transcription to be made from the recording of a deposition [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(3)(A)].

The additional record or transcript must be made at that party's expense unless the court otherwise orders [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(3)(B)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
B. Giving Notice of Oral Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.35

23.35 Parties May Stipulate to Modification of Deposition Procedures.

Unless otherwise directed by the court, the parties may by written stipulation provide that depositions may be taken [Fed R Civ P 29]:

- Before any person;
- At any time or place;
- On any notice; and
- In any manner.

The parties may also stipulate that when so taken, depositions may be used like other depositions [Fed R Civ P 29(a)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of requirements for stipulations, including local practice, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsStipulations

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
C. Responding to Notice of Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.36

23.36 CHECKLIST: Responding to Notice of Deposition.

☐ Review notice of deposition and accompanying documents to determine whether there are:

○ Errors or irregularities in notice.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 32(d)(1)

Discussion:
See § 23.38

○ Lack of qualifications of deposition officer.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 32(d)(2)

Discussion:
See § 23.39

○ Grounds for motion to quash or motion for protective order based on discovery sought or manner in which deposition will be conducted.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(c)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.40, 23.41

☐ Serve written objections promptly on party giving notice of deposition.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 32(d)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.38, 23.39

Form:
See § 23.291 (objections to errors or irregularities in notice of deposition or to deposition officer)

☐ Prepare and file motion to quash notice of deposition or subpoena, if appropriate, in accordance with standard motion procedure.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)

Discussion:
See § 23.40

Standard Procedure Checklists:
Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.37

☐ Prepare and file motion for protective order, if appropriate, in accordance with standard motion procedure.

Grounds:

- Annoyance;
- Embarrassment;
- Oppression; or
- Undue burden or expense.

Prerequisite:
The party seeking a protective order must certify that he or she has in good faith conferred or attempted to confer with other affected parties to resolve the dispute without court action.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(c)

Discussion:
See § 23.41

Standard Procedure Checklist:

Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, see § 22.47

☐ If notice names an entity as deponent, provide party giving notice with designation of one or more individuals who will testify on entity's behalf and the matters on which each person will testify.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(b)(6)

Discussion:
See § 23.30[2]

☐ Determine whether to have the deponent's testimony recorded by a method other than the method specified by the party taking the deposition and give notice to the deponent and other parties of the additional method of recording, if any.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(b)(3)(B)

Discussion:
See § 23.32[3]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
C. Responding to Notice of Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.37

23.37 Options and Strategy for Challenging the Notice by the Opposing Party or Deponent.

23.37[1] Possible Objections. A party or deponent served with a notice of deposition may oppose the deposition because:

- The noticing party failed to comply with the requirements for noticing a deposition [Fed R Civ P 32(d)(1); see 23.38];
- The deposition officer identified in the notice is unqualified [Fed R Civ P 32(d)(2); see 23.39];
- The discovery sought or the manner in which the deposition will be conducted fails to comply with procedural requirements [Fed R Civ P 26(c); see 23.41].

Serving the noticing party with objections will preserve objections that would otherwise be waived, but will not prevent the deposition from going forward. The party or deponent opposing discovery must therefore determine whether his or her objections to the proposed deposition give rise to grounds for a motion to quash the notice [see 23.40] or a motion for a protective order to prevent or limit the deposition [see 23.41].

23.37[2] Preparing the Deponent. The deponent should be prepared for the deposition in the same way he or she would be prepared for trial. The deponent should be warned not to assume the informal setting of the deposition means the situation is less serious than examination at trial. Additionally, the deponent should dress formally, especially if the deposition will be videotaped.

Be sure to cover at least the following issues with the deponent before the deposition:

- An overview of the topics to be covered.
- The strategies the questioner will use, and strategies for defending the deposition.

- That the deponent should not volunteer nonresponsive information in response to questions, and should confine testimony to what the deponent actually knows and recalls. The deponent should not guess or speculate.

- The concept of refreshing recollection. If after being refreshed with a document the deponent has no independent recollections, the deponent should say so, and clarify that his or her recollection is not refreshed. The deponent should not unthinkingly adopt, as the deponent's own recollection, language contained in documents shown to the deponent, unless the deponent's memory is actually refreshed.

- That the deponent should avoid making conversational banter with the questioner.

- The purposes of objections, and how the deponent should respond to them.

- The manner for responding to questions calling for privileged information (e.g., attorney-client communications, and attorney work product).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
C. Responding to Notice of Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.38

23.38 Objections to Errors or Irregularities in Notice Must Be Promptly Served on Party Giving Notice.

All errors and irregularities in the notice for taking a deposition are waived unless written objection is promptly served on the party giving notice [Fed R Civ P 32(d)(1)].

Cross Reference:

Form of objections, see § 23.291.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
C. Responding to Notice of Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.39

23.39 Objections to Deposition Officer Must Be Made As Soon As Disqualification Becomes Known or Could Be Discovered.

Objection to taking a deposition because of disqualification of the officer before whom it is to be taken is waived unless made [Fed R Civ P 32(d)(2)]:

- Before the taking of the deposition begins; or
- As soon thereafter as the disqualification becomes known or could be discovered with reasonable diligence.

Cross References:

Discussion of qualifications of deposition officer, see § 23.43. Form of objections, see § 23.291.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
C. Responding to Notice of Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.40

23.40 Motion to Quash Deposition Notice or Subpoena Must Be Made Promptly.

The court may quash a deposition notice or subpoena under its general power to limit discovery [see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2), (c)]. However, a motion to quash, or a motion for a protective order to prohibit a deposition, generally is not granted except in extraordinary circumstances [Thomas v. IBM (10th Cir 1995) 48 F3d 478, 483].

Examples:

- Subpoena for the deposition of a state judge was quashed because the information sought was protected from discovery by judicial privilege [Phelan v. Thompson (D NH 1994) 161 FRD 7, 7-8].

- Motion for protective order preventing deposition of corporate officer was granted because officer testified by affidavit that he lacked personal knowledge of the facts at issue [Thomas v. IBM (10th Cir 1995) 48 F3d 478, 483].

Cross References:

Discussion of motion for protective order, see § 23.41. Detailed discussion of motions for protective orders, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, §§ 22.35 -22.66.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersSubpoenas

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
C. Responding to Notice of Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.41

23.41 Motion for Protective Order Requires Showing of Good Cause.

23.41[1] May Be Made by Party or Deponent. On motion by a party or by the deponent, the court in which the action is pending or, alternatively, the court in the district where the deposition is to be taken, may make any order that justice requires to protect a party or person from annoyance, embarrassment, oppression, or undue burden or expense [Fed R Civ P 26(c)]. The moving party must show good cause for the order [Fed R Civ P 26(c)].

23.41[2] Good-Faith Attempt to Resolve Dispute Is Required. A motion for a protective order must be accompanied by a certification that the movant has in good faith conferred or attempted to confer with other affected parties in an effort to resolve the dispute without court action [Fed R Civ P 26(c)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of informal resolution requirements, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, § 22.17[3].

23.41[3] Relief Available. The protective order limiting a deposition may include one or more of the following orders [Fed R Civ P 26(c)]:

- That the deposition not be taken;
- That the deposition may be taken only on specified terms and conditions, including a designation of the time or place;
- That the discovery may be had only by another method of discovery;
- That certain matters not be inquired into, or that the scope of questioning be limited to certain matters;

- That the deposition be taken with no one present except persons designated by the court;
- That the deposition transcript be sealed and thereafter be opened only by order of the court;
- That a trade secret or other confidential research, development, or commercial information may not be revealed or may be revealed only in a designated way; and
- That the parties simultaneously file specified documents or information enclosed in sealed envelopes to be opened as directed by the court.

23.41[4] Court May Order Discovery on Specified Terms and Conditions. If the motion for a protective order is denied in whole or in part, the court may order that any party or deponent identified in the notice provide or permit discovery on such terms and conditions as are just [Fed R Civ P 26(c)].

23.41[5] Court May Award Expenses. The court may award expenses to the prevailing party for costs incurred in relation to the motion for a protective order [Fed R Civ P 26(c); see Fed R Civ P 37(a)(4); but see ND Cal Civ LR 7-8, 37-3 (separate sanctions motion required in Northern District)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of award of expenses, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, § 22.58.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
D. Conducting an Oral Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.42

23.42 CHECKLIST: Conducting an Oral Deposition.

☐ Make appropriate arrangements for taking deposition:

○ Place and manner of recording arranged for time specified in notice.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(b)(1), (3)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.29[2], [5]

○ Stipulation or court order obtained to allow deposition to be taken by telephone or other remote electronic means.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(b)(4)

Discussion:
See § 23.31

○ Qualified deposition officer engaged.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 28(a)

Discussion:
See § 23.43

☐ Conduct deposition in accordance with Fed R Civ P 30:

○ Deposition officer must make statement on record including:

☐ The officer's name and business address;

☐ The date, time, and place of the deposition;

☐ The name of the deponent;

☐ The administration of the oath or affirmation to the deponent; and

☐ An identification of all persons present.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(b)(5)

Discussion:
See § 23.46[1]

○ Officer must administer oath and record the questions, objections, comments, and testimony.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(c)

Discussion:
See § 23.46[2]

○ If deposition is recorded by non-stenographic means, such as videotape, officer must, in addition to above requirements, identify deposition at beginning of each unit of tape or other recording medium.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(b)(5)(B)

Discussion:
See § 23.46[3][a]

☐ Proceed with examination and cross-examination of deponent as at trial.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(c)

Discussion:
See § 23.46[4]

☐ Continue with examination to conclusion, subject to objections noted in the record.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(c)

Discussion:
See § 23.46[6]

☐ Suspend the taking of testimony and adjourn deposition if one of the following occurs:

○ Deponent fails to answer any question or produce materials, and noticing party wishes to file motion to compel before proceeding.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 37(a)(3)(B)

Discussion:
See § 23.59

○ Party or deponent demands suspension to seek protective order.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(d)(3)

Discussion:
See § 23.53[1]

☐ Conclude deposition by deposition officer:

○ Officer states on record that deposition is complete.

○ Officer sets forth stipulations of parties.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(b)(5)(C)

Discussion:
See § 23.46[7]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

132 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
D. Conducting an Oral Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.43

23.43 Deposition Officer Must Be Authorized to Administer Oaths or Be Appointed by the Court.

Within the United States or within a territory or insular possession subject to the jurisdiction of the United States, depositions must be taken before [Fed R Civ P 28(a)]:

- An officer authorized to administer oaths by the laws of the United States or of the place where the examination is held; or

- A person appointed by the court in which the action is pending.

A person appointed by the court in which the action is pending has power to administer oaths and to take testimony [Fed R Civ P 28(a)].

The term "officer," as used in Fed R Civ P 30, 31 and 32, governing the taking of depositions, includes a person appointed by the court or designated by the parties' stipulation [Fed R Civ P 28(a); see Fed R Civ P 29 (stipulations regarding discovery procedure)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
D. Conducting an Oral Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.44

23.44 Deposition Officer Cannot Have Relationship to Parties or Counsel or Financial Interest in Action.

No deposition can be taken before a person who is [Fed R Civ P 28(c)]:

- A relative, employee, attorney, or counsel of any of the parties;
- A relative or employee of any attorney or counsel of any of the parties; or
- Financially interested in the action.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
D. Conducting an Oral Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.45

23.45 Deposition May Utilized in International Discovery.

23.45[1] Several Methods for Appointment of Officer and Taking Foreign Deposition. Subject to the foreign country's laws, depositions may be taken in a foreign country [Fed R Civ P 28(b)]:

- Pursuant to any applicable treaty or convention;
- Pursuant to a letter of request (whether or not captioned a letter rogatory);
- On notice before a person authorized to administer oaths in the place where the examination is held, either by the law of that place or by the law of the United States; or
- Before a person commissioned by the court.

A person commissioned by the court has the power by virtue of the commission to administer any necessary oath and to take testimony [Fed R Civ P 28(b)].

Cross Reference:

Detailed discussion of foreign depositions, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 28.10 -28.18 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.45[2] Presiding Officer Is Determined by Law of Foreign Nation. The person before whom a deposition may be taken in a foreign nation depends on the law of that nation. If the witness is willing, the foreign nation may permit a deposition to be taken by U.S. counsel before a U.S. consular officer. If the foreign nation requires testimony to be taken by local judicial authority, U.S. counsel may be unable to participate and may have to provide written interrogatories attached to a letter rogatory to the foreign judicial authority [see U.S. State Dept. Circular, Obtaining Evidence Abroad (available at travel.state.gov/obtaining_evidence.html)].

23.45[3] Court Issues Commission or Letter of Request for Deposition on Application of Party Seeking Discovery. A commission or a letter of request must be issued on application and notice and on terms that are just and appropriate [Fed R Civ P 28(b)(3)]. In proper cases, both a commission and a letter of request may be issued [Fed R Civ P 28(b)(3)].

23.45[4] Presiding Officer Must Be Designated by Name or Title. A notice or commission may designate the person before whom the deposition is to be taken either by name or descriptive title [Fed R Civ P 28(b)].

A letter of request may be addressed "To the Appropriate Authority in [name of country]" [Fed R Civ P 28(b)].

23.45[5] Caption Must Meet Requirements of Applicable Treaty or Convention. A letter of request, or any other device used pursuant to any applicable treaty or convention, must be captioned in the form prescribed by that treaty or convention [Fed R Civ P 28(b)(3)].

23.45[6] Counsel Must Consult Foreign Law to Ascertain Permissible Deposition Procedures. Although Fed R Civ P 28(b) provides that the letter to a foreign judicial authority may include any terms and directions that are just and appropriate, the extent to which those terms or directions will be allowed depends on the foreign jurisdiction where discovery is sought. Thus, for example, methods of conducting a deposition, such as telephone participation or videotaping, may not be authorized. Similarly, a deposition may have to be taken by written questions, instead of on oral examination, in the foreign nation where discovery is sought. Counsel should verify that the discovery and manner of discovery sought will be allowed under the laws of the foreign nation and draft the request in accordance with those laws.

For State Department guidelines on foreign discovery, see U.S. State Dept. Circular, Obtaining Evidence Abroad available at (travel.state.gov/obtaining_evidence.html); U.S. State Dept. Circular, Preparation of Letters Rogatory (available at travel.state.gov/letters_rogatory.html).

Cross Reference:

Discussion of foreign depositions, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 28.10 -28.18 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.45[7] Procedure Used for Deposition in Foreign Country Does Not Affect Admissibility of Evidence. Evidence obtained in response to a letter of request need not be excluded merely [Fed R Civ P 28(b)]:

- Because it is not a verbatim transcript;
- Because the testimony was not taken under oath; or
- Because of any similar departure from the requirements for depositions taken within the United States under the Federal Rules.

23.45[8] Deposition May Be Taken in United States Pursuant to Foreign Request or Letters Rogatory. A United States district court can order a person to give testimony or a statement or to produce documents or other things for use in a foreign proceeding pursuant to a letter of request or letter rogatory issued by a foreign or international tribunal or on application of an interested party [28 USC § 1782(a)].

Consider:

Federal courts are authorized, but not required, to provide judicial assistance to foreign or international tribunals, or interested parties under 28 USC § 1782. District court compliance with a § 1782 request is not mandatory [see, e.g., Four Pillars Enters. Co. v. Avery Dennison Corp. (9th Cir 2002) 308 F3d 1075, 1078-1079].

The proceeding for which discovery is sought in the foreign country must be in reasonable contemplation, but need not be imminent or pending [Intel Corp. v. Advanced Micro Devices, Inc. (2004) 542 US 241, 258-259, 124 S Ct 2466, 159 L Ed2d 355].

Before ordering discovery to proceed under § 1782, the district court judge is not required to determine whether the information sought would be discoverable under the law governing the foreign proceeding [Intel Corp. v. Advanced Micro Devices, Inc. (2004) 542 US 241 259-263, 124 S Ct 2466, 159 L Ed2d 355 (resolving circuit split on issue)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsInternational LawDispute ResolutionEvidenceGeneral OverviewInternational LawDispute ResolutionEvidenceAssistanceInternational LawDispute ResolutionEvidenceHague Convention on Taking Evidence AbroadInternational LawDispute ResolutionEvidenceWitnesses

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
D. Conducting an Oral Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.46

23.46 Conduct of Deposition Must Comply With Federal Rules and Local Rules.

23.46[1] Officer Must Make Statement on the Record to Begin. Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, a deposition must be conducted before a qualified deposition officer and must begin with a statement on the record by the officer that includes [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(5)(A)]:

- The officer's name and business address;
- The date, time, and place of the deposition;
- The name of the deponent;
- The administration of the oath or affirmation to the deponent; and
- An identification of all persons present.

Strategic Point--Presence of Additional Persons May Be Grounds for Protective Order:

If a party or counsel has brought numerous people to the deposition, such as several officers of a corporate party, nonparty family members of an individual, or staff, a party or the deponent may be able to move for a protective order to limit the persons present. An objection ordinarily should be made only if the additional parties are disruptive, or themselves are witnesses [see Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(E), Fed R Civ P 30(d)(3)].

Cross References:

Discussion of motion for protective order during deposition, see § 23.53. Form of motion for protective order during deposition in progress, see § 23.293.

23.46[2] Officer Must Administer Oath and Record Testimony. The officer before whom the deposition is to be taken must put the witness on oath or affirmation [Fed R Civ P 30(c)(1)].

The officer must personally, or by someone acting under the officer's direction and in the officer's presence, record the testimony of the witness [Fed R Civ P 30(c)(1)].

The testimony must be taken stenographically or recorded by sound or sound-and-visual means, unless the court orders otherwise [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(3)(A)].

Strategic Point--Deponent's Counsel:

You may learn a great deal about the case from the opposing party's deposition of your client. The opposing party's questioning may take the client in some directions you had not anticipated and uncover facts the client did not provide to you and for which you had not probed. For the first time, you are hearing your client address pieces of the story under oath, and issues and facts may surface that did not appear when the client was telling the story to you in your office. The line of questioning may also offer some clues as to opposing counsel's theory of the case and information opposing counsel has, sometimes that you have yet to discover.

23.46[3] Requirements for Nonstenographic Recording.

23.46[3][a] Officer Must Identify Deposition at the Beginning of Each Unit of Tape or Other Recording Medium. If the deposition is recorded other than stenographically, the officer must repeat his or her name and business address, the date, time, and place of the deposition, and the name of the deponent at the beginning of each unit of recorded tape or other recording medium [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(5)(B)].

23.46[3][b] Recording Techniques Cannot Distort Appearance or Demeanor of Participants. The appearance or demeanor of deponents or attorneys cannot be distorted through camera or sound-recording techniques [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(5)(B)].

23.46[4] Examination and Cross-Examination Proceed As at Trial.

23.46[4][a] Federal Rules of Evidence Apply, With Two Exceptions. Examination and cross-examination may proceed as permitted at trial under the provisions of the Federal Rules of Evidence, except Fed R Evid 103 (rulings on evidence) and Fed R Evid 615 (exclusion of witnesses on request of party) [Fed R Civ P 30(c)(1)].

Strategic Point--Presence of Other Witnesses or Persons May Be Grounds for Protective Order:

Although the exclusion of witnesses is not mandatory upon request of a party, a party may be able to move for a protective order to limit the persons present [see Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(E), Fed R Civ P 30(d)(3)].

Cross References:

Discussion of motion for protective order during deposition, see § 23.53. Form of motion for protective order during deposition in progress, see § 23.293.

23.46[4][b] Adverse Party May Access Materials Used to Refresh Deponent's Memory. Because the Federal Rules of Evidence generally apply to depositions, Fed R Evid 612 allows an adverse party access to materials used to refresh a deponent's memory [United States ex rel. Bagley v. TRW, Inc. (CD Cal 2003) 212 FRD 554, 565].

Under Fed R Evid 612, if a witness uses a writing to refresh his or her memory either while testifying or before testifying, if the court in its discretion determines it necessary, an adverse party is entitled to have the writing produced at the hearing, to inspect it, to cross-examine the witness about it, and to introduce into evidence those portions of the writing that relate to the testimony of the witness [Fed R Evid 612].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of application of Federal Rules of Evidence to depositions, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 30.42[1][b] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.46[4][c] Deponent and Deponent's Counsel May Not Confer During Questioning. Because examination and cross-examination proceed as at trial [Fed R Civ P 30(c)], a questioning attorney is entitled to have the witness, and the witness alone, answer questions. When there is a question pending, the deponent arguably may not confer with his or her attorney, except to assert a privilege [Hall v. Clifton Precision (ED Pa 1993) 150 FRD 525, 528-529 ; but see In re Stratosphere Corp. Sec. Litig. (D Nev 1998) 182 FRD 614, 621-622 (rejecting Hall on this point)].

Courts differ as to whether the deponent and counsel may confer during recesses. While some courts prohibit private conferences during recesses [Honeywell Int'l, Inc. v. Universal Avionics Sys. Corp. (D Del 2003) 289 F Supp2d 493, 499 ; Hall v. Clifton Precision (ED Pa 1993) 150 FRD 525, 528-529], other courts, including California federal and state courts, reason that such conferences are allowed, as they are during recesses at trial, as long as the attorney for the deponent does not demand a break in the questions or demand a conference between questions and answers [see Christian v. Mattel, Inc. (9th Cir 2002) 286 F3d 1118, 1125 ; In re Stratosphere Corp. Sec. Litig. (D Nev 1998) 182 FRD 614, 621-622].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of attorney-deponent conferences during depositions, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 30.42[2] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.46[5] Other Parties May Transmit Written Questions. In lieu of participating in the oral examination, parties may serve written questions in a sealed envelope on the party taking the deposition [Fed R Civ P 30(c)(3)]. The party taking the deposition must transmit the written questions to the officer, who must propound them to the witness and record the answers verbatim [Fed R Civ P 30(c)(3)]. This procedure is not commonly used, but may be useful if the expense of travelling to a distant deposition is prohibitive, and the questions are non-controversial and relatively unimportant.

23.46[6] Examination Proceeds Subject to Objections Noted in the Record. The officer must note on the record of the deposition all objections made at the time of the examination to [Fed R Civ P 30(c)(2)]:

- The qualifications of the officer taking the deposition;
- The manner of taking the deposition;
- The evidence presented;
- The conduct of any party; or
- Any other aspect of the proceedings.

The examination must proceed, with the testimony being taken subject to the objections [Fed R Civ P 30(c)(2)].

Exception:

The taking of a deposition must be suspended, on demand of the objecting party or the deponent, for the time necessary to make a motion for a protective order [Fed R Civ P 30(d)(3)(A)].

Judge's Perspective:

Many courts will now take telephone calls in order to rule on such issues without the need to suspend the deposition.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of motion for protective order during deposition, see § 23.53.

23.46[7] Officer Must Indicate End of Deposition on Record and Set Forth Stipulations Made by Counsel. At the end of the deposition, the officer must state on the record that the deposition is complete and must set forth any stipulations made by counsel concerning the custody of the transcript or recording and the exhibits, or concerning other pertinent matters [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(5)(C)].

23.46[8] LOCAL PRACTICE: Numbering Exhibits.

23.46[8][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. In the Central District, documents introduced in discovery must be numbered as follows:

- Documents introduced in discovery must be numbered sequentially. Only one exhibit number can be assigned to any given document. Exhibits must be numbered without regard to the identity of the party introducing the exhibits [CD Cal Civ LR 26-3.1].

- If possible, each new exhibit must be given the next available number. If it is not possible to do so (as, for example, when multiple depositions are conducted on the same day), then the parties must break the sequence and use higher numbers to avoid duplication [CD Cal Civ LR 26-3.1].

- Any exhibit that is an exact duplicate of an exhibit previously numbered must bear the same exhibit number regardless of which party is using the exhibit. Any version of any exhibit that is not an exact duplicate must be marked and treated as a different exhibit bearing a different exhibit number [CD Cal Civ LR 26-3.2].

- If, through inadvertence, the same exhibit has been marked with different exhibit numbers, the parties must assign the lowest such exhibit number to the exhibit and conform all deposition transcripts and exhibits to reflect the lowest number. The superseded number must not be reused by the parties [CD Cal Civ LR 26-3.3].

  Example:

  If the same exhibit has been marked as 52 in the deposition of A and 125 in the depositions of B, C and/or D, the exhibit marked 125 must be renumbered 52 and the depositions of B, C and D must be conformed to the renumbered exhibit. Thereafter, number 125 cannot be used [CD Cal Civ LR 26-3.3].

- If it is necessary to identify sub-parts of a document that has been marked as an exhibit, then the sub-parts must be designated by the number of the exhibit followed by a number designation [CD Cal Civ LR 26-3.4].

  Example:

  If a three-page contract is marked as Exhibit No. 12, the pages of the contract may be marked as Exhibits 12-1, 12-2, and 12-3; the entire document must be referred to as Exhibit 12 [CD Cal Civ LR 26-3.4].

- In addition to exhibit numbers, documents may bear other numbers or letters used by the parties for internal control purposes [CD Cal Civ LR 26-3.5].

23.46[8][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. Local court rules in the Eastern District do not require particular numbering of documents identified as exhibits during depositions.

23.46[8][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. In the Northern District, documents identified as exhibits during the course of depositions and at trial must be numbered and organized as follows [ND Cal Civ LR 30-2(b)]:

- At the outset of the case, counsel must meet and confer regarding the sequential numbering system that will be used for exhibits throughout the litigation, including trial.

- If the pages of an exhibit are not numbered internally and it is necessary to identify pages of an exhibit, then each page must receive a page number designation preceded by the exhibit number (e.g., Exhibit 100-2, 100-3, 100-4).

- To the extent practicable, any exhibit that is an exact duplicate of an exhibit previously numbered must bear the same exhibit number regardless of which party is using the exhibit. Any version of any exhibit that is not an exact duplicate must be marked and treated as a different exhibit, bearing a different exhibit number.

- In addition to exhibit numbers, documents may bear other numbers or letters used by the parties for internal control purposes.

23.46[8][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. Local court rules in the Southern District do not require particular numbering of documents identified as exhibits during depositions.

23.46[9] Any Party May Arrange for Transcription or Additional Method of Recording. Any party may arrange for a transcription to be made from the recording of a deposition [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(3)(A)].

With prior notice to the deponent and other parties, any party may designate another method to record the deponent's testimony in addition to the method specified by the person taking the deposition [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(3)(B)]. The additional record or transcript must be made at that party's expense unless the court otherwise orders [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(3)(B)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsStipulations

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
E. Objecting to Conduct of Oral Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.47

23.47 CHECKLIST: Objecting to the Conduct of an Oral Deposition.

☐ Attend deposition as noticed.

☐ If party giving notice fails to attend and proceed with the deposition, file and serve motion for award of expenses, in accordance with standard motion procedure.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(g)(1)

Discussion:
See § 23.54

Standard Procedure Checklist:
Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, see § 22.14

☐ If deponent fails to attend because of noticing party's failure to serve the deponent with a subpoena, file and serve motion for award of expenses, in accordance with standard motion procedure.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(g)(2)

Discussion:
See § 23.55

Standard Procedure Checklist:

Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, see § 22.14

☐ State objections concisely and in non-argumentative and non-suggestive manner.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(c)(2)

Discussion:
See § 23.51

☐ Make any objections during deposition:

○ Qualifications of deposition officer.

Timing:
Objection is waived unless made as soon as disqualification becomes known or could be discovered with reasonable diligence.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 32(d)(2)

Discussion:
See § 23.48

○ Competency of witness or testimony.

Timing:
Objection to competency or witness or competency, relevancy, or materiality of testimony is waived only if the ground of objection might have been obviated or removed if presented during deposition.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 32(d)(3)(A)

Discussion:
See § 23.49

○ Errors or irregularities during the deposition in the following matters:

☐ The manner of taking the deposition;

☐ The form of the questions or answers;

☐ The oath or affirmation;

☐ The conduct of the parties; or

☐ Errors of any kind that might be obviated, removed, or cured if promptly presented.

Timing:

Objections to errors or irregularities during the deposition must be timely or are waived.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 32(d)(3)(B)

Discussion:
See § 23.50

☐ Instruct witness not to answer only when necessary to:

- ○ Preserve a privilege;
- ○ Enforce a limitation directed by the court; or
- ○ Present a motion to terminate or limit examination.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(c)(2)

Discussion:
See § 23.52

☐ Determine if deposition is being conducted in manner that would justify protective order. If so, demand that deposition be suspended for time necessary to move for order.

Grounds:

- Examination is being conducted in bad faith; or
- Examination is being conducted in such manner as unreasonably to annoy, embarrass, or oppress deponent or party.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(d)(3)(A)

Discussion:
See § 23.53

Form:
See § 23.293

☐ If deponent wants to review transcript before it is final, request for review must be made before deposition is concluded.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(e)

Discussion:
See § 23.61

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
E. Objecting to Conduct of Oral Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.48

23.48 Objections to Qualifications of Deposition Officer Are Waived If Not Timely.

Objections based on the qualifications of the deposition officer are waived unless made [Fed R Civ P 32(d)(2)]:

- Before the taking of the deposition begins; or
- As soon thereafter as the disqualification becomes known or could be discovered with reasonable diligence.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of qualifications of deposition officer, see § 23.43.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
E. Objecting to Conduct of Oral Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.49

23.49 Objections to Competency of Witness or Testimony Generally Are Not Waived.

Objections to the competency of a witness or to the competency, relevancy, or materiality of testimony are not waived by failure to make them before or during the taking of the deposition, unless the ground of the objection is one that might have been obviated or removed if presented at that time [Fed R Civ P 32(d)(3)(A)]. These types of objections should be made as early as possible, if the witness is suffering from a temporary incapacity, such as a speech or memory problem caused by medication. In other cases, it would be difficult to waive competency.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
E. Objecting to Conduct of Oral Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.50

23.50 Objection to Errors or Irregularities During Deposition Must Be Seasonably Made or Are Waived.

Errors and irregularities occurring at the oral examination in the following matters are waived unless seasonable objection to them is made at the taking of the deposition [Fed R Civ P 32(d)(3)(B)]:

- The manner of taking the deposition;
- The form of the questions or answers;
- The oath or affirmation;
- The conduct of the parties; and
- Errors of any kind that might be obviated, removed, or cured if promptly presented.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
E. Objecting to Conduct of Oral Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.51

23.51 Objections to Questioning Must Be Concise and Non-Argumentative.

Any objection during a deposition must be stated concisely and in a non-argumentative and non-suggestive manner [Fed R Civ P 30(d)(1)].

If the court finds that any impediment, delay, or other conduct has frustrated the fair examination of the deponent, it may impose on the persons responsible an appropriate sanction, including the reasonable costs and attorney's fees incurred by any parties as a result of the impediment, delay, or conduct [Fed R Civ P 30(d)(2)].

Cross References:

Discussion of discovery sanctions, see Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions.

Discussion of raising objections and attorney conduct during depositions, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 30.43 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
E. Objecting to Conduct of Oral Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.52

23.52 Instructing Witness Not to Answer Is Permitted in Limited Cases.

23.52[1] Witness May Be Instructed Not to Answer Only in Certain Circumstances. A person may instruct a deponent not to answer only when necessary to [Fed R Civ P 30(c)(2)]:

- Preserve a privilege;
- Enforce a limitation directed by the court; or
- Present a motion to terminate or limit the examination [see Fed R Civ P 30(d)(3)].

Warning:

Instructing a witness not to answer without justification can result in a motion to compel and sanctions awarded against the party objecting to the questioning [see Fed R Civ P 37(a)(4)(A); but see ND Cal Civ LR 7-8, 37-3 (separate sanctions motion required in Northern District)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of instructing witness not to answer, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 30.43[2] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.52[2] Question Beyond Scope Described in Notice to Deponent Entity Not Grounds for Instruction. When an entity has designated an individual to testify on its behalf, pursuant to Fed R Civ P 30(b)(6), as to matters described in a notice of deposition, the scope of the questioning is not limited to the matters described in the notice. Counsel for the entity cannot instruct the individual testifying on behalf of the entity not to answer merely because a question is beyond that scope [Detoy v. City & County of San Francisco (ND Cal 2000) 196 FRD 362, 366-367].

Strategic Point--Party Objecting to Question Beyond Scope of Notice:

If desired, counsel may object and note on the record that the answers to questions beyond the scope of the designation are not intended as the answers of the entity and do not bind the entity [Detoy v. City & County of San Francisco (ND Cal 2000) 196 FRD 362, 367]. Counsel may also seek a protective order if the questioner pursues topics outside the scope of the notice [Paparelli v. Prudential Ins. Co. (D Mass 1985) 108 FRD 727, 730].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

142 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
E. Objecting to Conduct of Oral Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.53

23.53 Party or Deponent May Move for Protective Order During Deposition.

23.53[1] Party or Deponent May Demand That Deposition Be Suspended to Seek Order. At any time during a deposition, a party or the deponent may move for a protective order in the court in which the action is pending or the court in the district where the deposition is being taken [Fed R Civ P 30(d)(3)(A)].

On demand of the objecting party or deponent, the deposition must be suspended for the time necessary to make a motion for an order [Fed R Civ P 30(d)(3)(A)].

Strategic Point:

Inquire at the Rule 16 conference if the court is willing to take "on the spot" telephone calls to resolve such issues.

Cross Reference:

Form of notice of motion for protective order during deposition in progress, see § 23.293.

23.53[2] Grounds for Order. The moving party must show that the examination is being conducted in bad faith or in such manner as unreasonably to annoy, embarrass, or oppress the deponent or party [Fed R Civ P 30(d)(3)(A)].

A party seeking to limit discovery must make a strong showing for limitation, and a particular and specific need for the protective order [Methode Elecs., Inc. v. Finisar Corp. (ND Cal 2001) 205 FRD 552, 554].

23.53[3] Court May Terminate Deposition or Limit Examination. On consideration of the motion for protective order, the court may order the officer conducting the examination to cease forthwith from taking the deposition, or may limit the scope and manner of the taking of the deposition [Fed R Civ P 30(d)(3)(B); see Fed R Civ P 26(c)].

23.53[4] Terminated Deposition May Be Resumed Only on Court Order. If the court's order terminates the examination, the examination may be resumed only on the order of the court in which the action is pending [Fed R Civ P 30(d)(3)(B)].

23.53[5] Court May Award Expenses. The court may make an award of expenses to the prevailing party incurred in relation to the motion for a protective order in accordance with Fed R Civ P 37(a)(5) [Fed R Civ P 30(d)(3)(C); but see ND Cal Civ LR 7-8, 37-3 (separate sanctions motion required in Northern District)].

Example--Award Against Moving Party:

Plaintiff was not justified in adjourning a deposition and seeking protective order to bar one of defendants' attorneys from deposition because of inappropriate comment he made about the deponent, plaintiff's designee. Plaintiff had obtained that remedy voluntarily when the attorney offered to remove himself from the deposition to allow other defense counsel to go forward. Motion for a protective order was denied and monetary sanction was awarded against plaintiff [Federal Deposit Ins. Corp. v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (SD Cal 2000) 2000 US Dist LEXIS 11955, at *13-*14].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
E. Objecting to Conduct of Oral Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.54

23.54 Party May Move for Award of Expenses When Noticing Party Fails to Attend Deposition.

If the noticing party fails to attend and proceed with the deposition, the other parties and attorneys attending pursuant to the notice may, on motion, recover the reasonable expenses incurred in attending, including reasonable attorney's fees [see Fed R Civ P 30(g)(1)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMisconduct

144 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
E. Objecting to Conduct of Oral Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.55

23.55 Party May Move for Award of Expenses When Witness Does Not Attend Because of Noticing Party's Failure to Serve Subpoena.

If a party noticing the deposition of a nonparty witness fails to serve a subpoena on the witness and the witness because of that failure does not attend, the other parties and attorneys attending pursuant to the notice may, on motion, recover the reasonable expenses incurred in attending, including reasonable attorney's fees [Fed R Civ P 30(g)(2)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMisconduct

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
F. Compelling Attendance, Testimony, or Production at Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.56

23.56 CHECKLIST: Compelling Attendance, Testimony, or Production.

☐ Determine appropriate remedy if deponent fails to provide discovery in accordance with notice of deposition:

○ If party deponent fails to appear for properly noticed deposition, file motion for sanctions.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 37(d)

Discussion:
See § 23.57

Standard Procedure Checklist:
Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, see § 22.14

○ If nonparty deponent fails to appear for deposition after being properly subpoenaed, initiate contempt proceeding.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 45(e)

Discussion:
See § 23.58

○ If deponent fails to answer question during deposition or answers evasively, move to compel answer.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 37(a)(3)(B), (4)

Discussion:
See § 23.59

Standard Procedure Checklists:
Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, see § 22.14; Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, see § 25.03

○ If deponent that is a corporation or other entity fails to designate an individual to testify on its behalf, move to compel designation.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 37(a)(3)(B)(iii)

Discussion:
See § 23.59

Standard Procedure Checklists:
Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, see § 22.14; Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, see § 25.03

☐ Determine appropriate remedy if deponent fails to answer after being directed to do so by court:

○ If nonparty deponent fails to comply with order to answer, initiate contempt proceeding.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 37(b)(1), 45(e)

Discussion:
See § 23.58

○ If party deponent fails to comply with order to answer, move for imposition of discovery sanctions and/or punishment for contempt.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 37(b)(1), (2)

Discussion:
See § 23.57

Standard Procedure Checklist:
Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation and Motion, see § 22.14; Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, see § 25.28

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMisconductCivil

ProcedureDiscoveryMotions to CompelCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersSubpoenasCivil ProcedureSanctionsContemptGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
F. Compelling Attendance, Testimony, or Production at Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.57

23.57 Motion for Sanctions Available When Party Deponent Fails to Appear.

A proper notice of deposition is sufficient to require a deponent who is a party, or party representative, to appear and testify [see Fed R Civ P 30(a)]. The attendance of a party or party representative need not be compelled by subpoena [see Fed R Civ P 30(a)].

If a party deponent fails to appear for a properly noticed deposition, the court may, on motion, award sanctions against the party failing to appear without a prior court order compelling the appearance [see Fed R Civ P 37(d)(1)(A)(i)].

Example:

Sanctions were properly awarded against a party who failed to appear by repeatedly canceling the appearance at the last minute [Henry v. Gill Indus., Inc. (9th Cir 1993) 983 F2d 943, 947].

Distinguish--Deponent Appears, but Refuses to Answer Questions:

If a deponent appears, but refuses to testify or to answer particular questions, or answers evasively, the remedy is a motion to compel the answer [Estrada v. Rowland (9th Cir 1995) 69 F3d 405, 406 ; see Fed R Civ P 37(a)].

Cross References:

Discussion of motion to compel an answer, see § 23.59 and Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, §§ 25.03 -25.12.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMisconduct

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
F. Compelling Attendance, Testimony, or Production at Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.58

23.58 Failure of Nonparty Deponent to Comply With Subpoena Is Contempt.

A nonparty deponent must be subpoenaed to compel his or her appearance at a deposition [see Fed R Civ P 30(a), 45]. If a nonparty deponent fails to appear after being subpoenaed, the remedy for failure to comply with the subpoena is contempt [Fed R Civ P 45(e)].

Distinguish--Deponent Appears, but Refuses to Answer Questions:

If a nonparty deponent appears, but refuses to testify or to answer particular questions, or answers evasively, the remedy is a motion to compel the answer [see Fed R Civ P 37(a)].

Cross References:

Discussion of the use of subpoenas to obtain discovery from nonparties, see §§ 23.259 -23.285.
Discussion of contempt sanction for failure to respond to subpoena, see § 23.285.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMisconductCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersSubpoenasCivil ProcedureSanctionsContemptGeneral Overview

148 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
F. Compelling Attendance, Testimony, or Production at Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.59

23.59 Party May Move to Compel Deponent to Answer Question or Produce Materials.

A party may move to compel if a deponent, either party or nonparty, fails to answer a question or answers evasively [Fed R Civ P 37(a)(3)(B), Fed R Civ P 37(a)(4)]. The proponent of the question may complete or adjourn the examination before applying for the order compelling an answer [Fed R Civ P 37(a)(3)(C)].

A party may also move to compel a designation if a corporation or other entity fails to designate an individual to testify on its behalf under Fed R Civ P 30(b)(6) [Fed R Civ P 37(a)(3)(B)(ii)].

A nonparty deponent who fails to answer after being directed to do so by the court is subject to punishment for contempt [Fed R Civ P 37(b)(1), 45(e)].

A party deponent who fails to comply with an order to answer is subject to additional discovery sanctions as well as punishment for contempt [see Fed R Civ P 37(b)].

Cross References:

Discussion of discovery motions see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, §§ 22.14 -22.34. Discussion of motions to compel, see Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, §§ 25.03 -25.12. Discussion of the imposition of sanctions, see Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, §§ 25.28 -25.42.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & InspectionCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMotions to Compel

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
G. Obtaining Copies of and Reviewing Transcript

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.60

23.60 CHECKLIST: Obtaining Copies of and Reviewing Transcript.

23.60[1] Deponent's Checklist.

☐ Review transcript when notified by deposition officer that it is available.

Prerequisite:
The deponent or a party must request review before the completion of the deposition.

Timing:
The deponent has 30 days after being notified by the deposition officer that the transcript or recording is available in which to review the transcript or recording.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(e)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.61[1], [2]

☐ Make changes and sign statement:

- ○ Reciting any changes in form or substance; and
- ○ Giving the reasons for making the changes.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(e)

Discussion:
See § 23.61[3]

23.60[2] Noticing Party's Checklist.

☐ Store deposition received from deposition officer to protect it against loss, destruction, tampering, or deterioration, in accordance with local requirements, if any.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(f)(1); ED Cal Civ LR 250.1(b); CD Cal Civ LR 32-2

Discussion:
See §§ 23.62[5], [6]

☐ Do not file deposition until used in proceeding or court orders filing.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 5(d); ED Cal Civ LR 250.1(a); CD Cal Civ LR 32-1

Discussion:
See § 23.65

☐ If deposition is to be used in proceeding or court orders filing, give notice of filing to all other parties.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(f)(4)

Discussion:
See § 23.65[1]

23.60[3] Opposing Party's Checklist.

☐ Obtain copy of transcript or other recording of deposition from deposition officer on payment of reasonable charge.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(f)(3)

Discussion:
See § 23.64[1]

☐ File motion to suppress all or part of deposition if objecting to errors or irregularities in manner in which:

- ○ Testimony is transcribed; or
- ○ Deposition is prepared, signed, certified, sealed, indorsed, transmitted, filed, or otherwise dealt with by deposition officer.

Timing:

Errors and irregularities are waived unless motion to suppress is made with reasonable promptness after defect is, or with due diligence might have been, ascertained.

Authority:

Fed R Civ P 32(d)(4)

Discussion:

See § 23.66

Standard Procedure Checklist:

Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, see § 22.14

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
G. Obtaining Copies of and Reviewing Transcript

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.61

23.61 Deponent May Request Review of Transcript.

23.61[1] Review Must Be Requested Before Completion of Deposition. The deponent may review and make changes to the transcript of a deposition only if the deponent or a party has requested that review before completion of the deposition [Fed R Civ P 30(e)(1)].

23.61[2] Deponent Has 30 Days to Review Transcript. If requested by the deponent or a party before completion of the deposition, the deponent has 30 days after being notified by the officer that the transcript or recording is available in which to review the transcript or recording [Fed R Civ P 30(e)(1)(A)]. The 30-day correction period begins on notification of availability, not possession of the transcript of the recording by the deponent [see Hambleton Bros. Lumber Co. v. Balkin Enters. (9th Cir 2005) 397 F3d 1217, 1224].

23.61[3] Deponent Must Provide Statement of Changes and Reasons for Changes. The deponent must sign a statement reciting any changes in form or substance and giving the reasons for making the changes [Fed R Civ P 30(e)(1)(B)]. While corrections may be made in form or substance, changes must be corrective and not contradictory [Hambleton Bros. Lumber Co. v. Balkin Enters. (9th Cir 2005) 397 F3d 1217, 1225-1226].

Example:

Changes should not be offered solely to create a material factual dispute in a tactical attempt to evade an unfavorable summary judgment. Changes offered for this purpose will be evaluated under the "sham" affidavit rule [Hambleton Bros. Lumber Co. v. Balkin Enters. (9th Cir 2005) 397 F3d 1217, 1225-1226].

Warning:

Only the deponent himself or herself, not deponent's counsel, can change the deponent's testimony [see Adams v. Allied Sec. Holdings (CD Cal 2006) 236 FRD 651, 652].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of review of transcript by deponent, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 30.60 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.61[4] Deposition Officer Must Indicate Review Was Requested and Append Changes. The deposition officer must indicate in the certificate accompanying the deposition whether any review was requested [Fed R Civ P 30(e)(2)]. If review was requested, the officer must append any changes made by the deponent during the 30-day review period [Fed R Civ P 30(e)(2)].

23.61[5] Failure to Follow Procedure May Lead to Striking of Changes. If the procedural dictates of Fed R Civ P 30(e) are not followed, the district court may exercise its discretion to strike any changes [see, e.g., Hambleton Bros. Lumber Co. v. Balkin Enters. (9th Cir 2005) 397 F3d 1217, 1226 ; Adams v. Allied Sec. Holdings (CD Cal 2006) 236 FRD 651, 652].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
G. Obtaining Copies of and Reviewing Transcript

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.62

23.62 Certification and Delivery of Deposition Must Comply With Federal and Local Rules.

23.62[1] Officer Must Prepare Certificate to Accompany Deposition. The deposition officer must certify that [Fed R Civ P 30(f)(1)]:

- The witness was duly sworn by the officer; and
- The deposition is a true record of the testimony given by the witness.

The certificate must be in writing and accompany the record of the deposition [Fed R Civ P 30(f)(1)].

23.62[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements--Pages of a Deposition Must Be Numbered Sequentially. In the Northern District, the pages of a deposition of a single witness, even if taken at different times, must be numbered sequentially [ND Cal Civ LR 30-2(a)].

23.62[3] Items Produced During Examination Must Be Annexed to Deposition on Request. Documents and things produced for inspection during the examination of a witness must, upon the request of a party, be marked for identification and annexed to the deposition and may be inspected and copied by any party [Fed R Civ P 30(f)(2)(A)].

Exception:
If the person producing the materials desires to retain them, the person may [Fed R Civ P 30(f)(2)(A)]:

- Offer copies to be marked for identification and annexed to the deposition and to serve thereafter as originals, if the person affords to all parties fair opportunity to verify the copies by comparison with the originals; or
- Offer the originals to be marked for identification, after giving to each party an opportunity to inspect and copy them, in which event the materials may then be used in the same manner as if annexed to the deposition.

Any party may move for an order that the original be annexed to and returned with the deposition to the court, pending final disposition of the case [Fed R Civ P 30(f)(2)(B)].

23.62[4] Officer Must Deliver Deposition to Attorney Who Arranged for Transcript or Recording. Unless otherwise ordered by the court, the officer must [Fed R Civ P 30(f)(1)]:

- Securely seal the deposition in an envelope or package bearing the title of the action and marked "Deposition of [witness's name]"; and
- Promptly send the deposition to the attorney who arranged for the transcript or recording.

23.62[5] Attorney Must Store Deposition. The attorney to whom the deposition is sent must store it under conditions that will protect it against loss, destruction, tampering, or deterioration [Fed R Civ P 30(f)(1)].

23.62[6] LOCAL PRACTICE: Requirements for Delivery and Storage of Transcript.

23.62[6][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. The Central District has the following local requirements concerning the custody of the original deposition transcript [CD Cal Civ LR 32-2]:

- The original transcript of a deposition must, unless otherwise stipulated to on the record at the deposition, after signing and correction, or waiver of the same [see Fed R Civ P 30(e)], be sent to the attorney noticing the deposition.
- The attorney must keep the original deposition under his or her control until final disposition of the case or until called upon to lodge the original deposition with the court pursuant to CD Cal Civ LR 32-1.
- A copy of a deposition signed and certified as required in Fed R Civ P 30(e), (f) may be used in lieu of an original.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of Central District requirements for lodging deposition with court pursuant to CD Cal Civ LR 32-1, see § 23.71[4].

23.62[6][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. The Eastern District has the following local requirements [ED Cal Civ LR 250.1(b)]:

- Counsel noticing a deposition must obtain the original deposition transcript or audio or videotape record from the deposition reporter [see Fed R Civ P 30(f)].
- Counsel must retain the transcript or recording under conditions suitable to protect it from loss, destruction, or tampering until the earlier of:
  - The date it is filed with the clerk in accordance with ED Cal Civ LR 250.1(a) and ED Cal Gen LR 133(j); or
  - One year after the judgment has become final or other final disposition of the action.

- Before that date, for good cause, any party or intervenor may move the court for an order prohibiting the destruction of a transcript or record or otherwise directing the custody and maintenance of the transcript or record.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of Eastern District requirements for filing depositions under ED Cal Civ LR 250.1(a), see § 23.65[2][b].

23.62[6][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. The Northern District has no specific local requirements concerning the delivery and storage of deposition transcripts.

23.62[6][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. The Southern District has no specific local requirements concerning the delivery and storage of deposition transcripts.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
G. Obtaining Copies of and Reviewing Transcript

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.63

23.63 Deposition Officer Retains Stenographic Notes or Copy of Recording.

Unless otherwise ordered by the court or agreed by the parties, the deposition officer must retain stenographic notes of any deposition taken stenographically or a copy of the recording of any deposition taken by another method [Fed R Civ P 30(f)(3)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

153 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
G. Obtaining Copies of and Reviewing Transcript

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.64

23.64 Persons Who May Obtain Copy of Transcript or Recording.

23.64[1] Any Party or Deponent May Obtain Copy From Deposition Officer. The deposition officer must furnish a copy of the transcript or other recording of the deposition to any party or to the deponent, on payment of reasonable charges by the person requesting the copy [Fed R Civ P 30(f)(3)].

23.64[2] Nonparty May Obtain Copy If Filed Without Protective Order. If a deposition is filed with the court, a nonparty may obtain a copy unless the deposition was filed subject to a protective order preventing public disclosure [see Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(F) (order for sealing deposition)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of filing depositions with the court, see § 23.65.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
G. Obtaining Copies of and Reviewing Transcript

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.65

23.65 Deposition Is Not Filed With Court.

23.65[1] Discovery Documents Generally Are Not Filed Until Used. Discovery requests and responses, including depositions, generally are not filed with the court until they are used in the proceeding or the court orders filing [Fed R Civ P 5(d)(1)].

When a deposition is filed with the court, the party taking the deposition must give prompt notice of its filing to all other parties [Fed R Civ P 30(f)(4)].

23.65[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Filing of Depositions.

23.65[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. In the Central District, depositions are not filed unless, at a trial or motion, the court orders a lodged deposition to be filed, or directs a party to prepare extracts from a deposition to be filed [CD Cal Civ LR 32-1].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of Central District requirements for preparation of depositions lodged with the court, see § 23.71[4].

23.65[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. In the Eastern District, depositions and their related subpoenas, notices, proofs of service, and other documents must not be filed with the clerk until there is a proceeding in which the document or proof of service is at issue [ED Cal Civ LR 250.1(a)]:

Depositions are not to be filed through the Case Management/Electronic Case Files (CM/ECF) docketing and filing system. Before or on the filing of a document making reference to a deposition, the attorney must ensure that a courtesy hard copy of the original of the entire deposition so relied on has been submitted to the clerk for use in chambers. Alternatively, an electronic copy in lieu of the courtesy paper copy may be submitted by e-mail to the judge or magistrate judge and concurrently e-mailed, or otherwise transmitted, to all other parties. Neither the hard copy nor electronic copy of the entire deposition will become part of the official record absent a court order. Parts of the deposition intended to become part of the record must be submitted as exhibits in support of a motion or otherwise [ED Cal Gen LR 133(j); see ED Cal Civ LR 250.1(a)].

23.65[2][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. The local rules for the Northern District do not include specific provisions concerning the filing of depositions.

23.65[2][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. The local rules for the Southern District do not include specific provisions concerning the filing of depositions.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
G. Obtaining Copies of and Reviewing Transcript

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.66

23.66 Motion to Suppress Must Be Made Promptly or Errors and Irregularities in Preparation of Deposition Are Waived.

Errors and irregularities in the manner in which the testimony is transcribed or the deposition is prepared, signed, certified, sealed, indorsed, transmitted, filed, or otherwise dealt with by the officer under Fed R Civ P 30 are waived unless a motion to suppress the deposition or some part of it is made with reasonable promptness after the defect is, or with due diligence might have been, ascertained [Fed R Civ P 32(d)(4)].

Example:

Party who did not move to suppress deposition, listed in pretrial order as exhibit opposing party intended to use, waived any objection to use based on deponent's failure to sign deposition [In re Ashley (9th Cir 1990) 903 F2d 599, 603].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
H. Using or Preventing Use of Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.67

23.67 CHECKLIST: Using or Preventing the Use of a Deposition.

23.67[1] Checklist for Party Intending to Use Deposition.

☐ Determine parts of deposition to be used at trial, in accordance with the Federal Rules of Evidence, for any of the following purposes:

○ Impeachment of deponent as a witness.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 32(a)(2)

Discussion:
See § 23.69[1]

○ Against adverse party for any purpose.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 32(a)(3)

Discussion:
See § 23.69[2]

○ Upon court finding that witness is unavailable.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 32(a)(4)

Discussion:
See § 23.69[3]

☐ If the deposition is in nonstenographic form, arrange for transcript of portions to be offered.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 32(c)

Discussion:
See § 23.71[1]

☐ Comply with local requirements for marking of transcript and lodging or filing deposition with court.

Authority:
CD Cal Civ LR 32-1; SD Cal Civ LR 30.1(b)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.71[2], [4]

☐ Provide nonstenographic form of deposition, if available, if requested by party in jury case.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 32(c)

Discussion:
See § 23.71[3]

23.67[2] Checklist for Party Seeking to Prevent Use of Deposition.

☐ File motion to suppress all or part of deposition if objecting to errors or irregularities in manner in which:

○ Testimony is transcribed; or

○ Deposition is prepared, signed, certified, sealed, indorsed, transmitted, filed, or otherwise dealt with by deposition officer.

Timing:
Errors and irregularities are waived unless motion to suppress is made with reasonable promptness after defect is, or with due diligence might have been, ascertained.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 32(d)(4)

Discussion:
See § 23.66

Standard Procedure Checklist:

Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, see § 22.14

☐ File motion to suppress deposition that cannot be used against party because:

○ Deposition was taken before parties' initial discovery meeting without leave of court, and party was unable, through exercise of diligence, to obtain counsel to represent it at the taking of the deposition.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 32(a)(5)(B)

Discussion:
See § 23.70[1]

Standard Procedure Checklist:
Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, see § 22.14

○ Party received less than 14 days' notice of deposition and filed motion for protective order. Deposition was held while motion for protective order was pending.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 32(a)(5)(A)

Discussion:
See § 23.70[2]

☐ Determine grounds for objection to use of deposition to be raised at trial or hearing:

○ Party did not have reasonable notice of deposition and was not present at taking of the deposition.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 32(a)

Discussion:
See § 23.68

○ Deposition or part of deposition to be offered is inadmissible.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 32(a), (b)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.68, 23.72

○ Party offering part of deposition should be required to introduce other parts which in fairness ought to be considered.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 32(a)(6)

Discussion:

See § 23.73

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral Depositions

157 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
H. Using or Preventing Use of Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.68

23.68 Deposition May Be Used at Trial to Extent Admissible.

At the trial or at the hearing of a motion or an interlocutory proceeding, any part or all of a deposition may be used against any party [Fed R Civ P 32(a)]:

- Who was present or represented at the taking of the deposition; or
- Who had reasonable notice of the taking of the deposition.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of use of depositions at trial, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 32, Using Depositions in Court Proceedings (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

A deposition may be used to the extent that it is admissible under the rules of evidence, applied as though the witness were then present and testifying, in accordance with the provisions of Fed R Civ P 32(a) [Fed R Civ P 32(a)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureTrialsDepositions

158 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
H. Using or Preventing Use of Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.69

23.69 Purposes for Which a Deposition May Be Used.

23.69[1] Any Party May Use Deposition for Impeachment of Deponent As a Witness. Any party may use a deposition for the purpose of contradicting or impeaching the testimony of the deponent as a witness, or for any other purpose permitted by the Federal Rules of Evidence [Fed R Civ P 32(a)(2)].

23.69[2] Adverse Party May Use Deposition of Party for Any Purpose. An adverse party may use for any purpose the deposition of a party or the deposition of anyone who at the time of taking the deposition was [Fed R Civ P 32(a)(3)]:

- An officer;
- A director;
- A managing agent; or
- A person designated under Fed R Civ P 30(b)(6) or 31(a) to testify on behalf of a public or private corporation, partnership, association, or governmental agency that is a party.

23.69[3] Any Party May Use Deposition for Any Purpose When Witness Is Unavailable.

23.69[3][a] When Witness Is Dead. The deposition of a witness, whether or not a party, may be used by any party for any purpose if the court finds that the witness is dead [Fed R Civ P 32(a)(4)(A)].

23.69[3][b] When Witness Is More Than 100 Miles From Place of Trial. The deposition of a witness, whether or not a party, may be used by any party for any purpose if the court finds that [Fed R Civ P 32(a)(4)(B)]:

- The witness is at a greater distance than 100 miles from the place of trial or hearing; or

- The witness is out of the United States.

Exception:

The deposition may not be used if it appears that the absence of the witness was procured by the party offering the deposition [Fed R Civ P 32(a)(4)(B)].

23.69[3][c] When Witness Cannot Attend or Testify for Specific Reasons. The deposition of a witness, whether or not a party, may be used by any party for any purpose if the court finds that the witness is unable to attend or testify because of [Fed R Civ P 32(a)(4)(C)]:

- Age;
- Illness;
- Infirmity; or
- Imprisonment.

23.69[3][d] Party Has Been Unable to Procure Attendance of Witness by Subpoena. The deposition of a witness, whether or not a party, may be used by any party for any purpose if the court finds that the party offering the deposition has been unable to procure the attendance of the witness by subpoena [Fed R Civ P 32(a)(4)(D)].

23.69[3][e] Exceptional Circumstances Exist. The deposition of a witness, whether or not a party, may be used by any party for any purpose if the court finds, upon application and notice, that such exceptional circumstances exist as to make it desirable, in the interest of justice and with due regard to the importance of presenting the testimony of witnesses orally in open court, to allow the deposition to be used [Fed R Civ P 32(a)(4)(E)].

23.69[4] Objections to Admissibility of Deposition. A variety of objections to the admissibility of a deposition may be made, including objections to (1) the deposition notice, (2) the qualifications of the officer, and (3) the method of taking the deposition [Fed R Civ P 32(d)]. All of these objections can have an impact on the purposes for which a deposition may be used.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of objections to admissibility of depositions, see §§ 23.37, 23.38, 23.49, 23.50.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureTrialsDepositionsEvidenceHearsayExceptionsFormer Testimony of Unavailable DeclarantsEvidenceHearsayUnavailabilityGeneral OverviewEvidenceTestimonyCredibilityImpeachmentPrior Inconsistent Statements

159 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
H. Using or Preventing Use of Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.70

23.70 Circumstances When Deposition May Not Be Used.

23.70[1] Against Party Who Was Unable to Obtain Counsel for Deposition Taken Early and Without Leave of Court. A deposition taken pursuant to a notice under Fed R Civ P 30(a)(2)(A)(iii), before the parties' initial discovery meeting and without leave of court, may not be used against a party who demonstrates that, when served with the notice, it was unable through the exercise of diligence to obtain counsel to represent it at the taking of the deposition [Fed R Civ P 32(a)(5)(B)].

23.70[2] Against Party Who Received Less Than 11 Days' Notice and Moved for Protective Order. A deposition may not be used against a party who received less than 14 days' notice of a deposition if [Fed R Civ P 32(a)(5)(A)]:

- On receiving the notice, the party filed a motion for a protective order under Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(B), requesting that the deposition not be held or be held at a different time or place; and
- The motion for a protective order is pending at the time the deposition is held.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureTrialsDepositions

160 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
H. Using or Preventing Use of Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.71

23.71 Form of Presentation.

23.71[1] Party Must Provide Transcript. Except as otherwise directed by the court, a party offering deposition testimony pursuant to Fed R Civ P 32 may offer it in stenographic or nonstenographic form, but, if in nonstenographic form, the party must also provide the court with a transcript of the portions so offered [Fed R Civ P 32(c)].

23.71[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements--Party Using Deposition Must Provide Extra Copy to Judge. In the Southern District, whenever a deposition or any part of a deposition is to be read in court, counsel using the deposition must furnish a copy to the judge, in addition to the original filed with the court [SD Cal Civ LR 30.1(b)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of filing depositions, see § 23.65.

23.71[3] On Request of Party in Jury Case, Nonstenographic Deposition Testimony Must Be Presented. On request of any party in a case tried before a jury, deposition testimony offered other than for impeachment purposes must be presented in nonstenographic form, if available, unless the court for good cause orders otherwise [Fed R Civ P 32(c)].

23.71[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Specific Requirements for Marking and Lodging Depositions With Court. In the Central District, depositions to be used at trial or on a motion must be prepared and lodged with the court in accordance with the following requirements [CD Cal Civ LR 32-1]:

- Deposition transcripts to be used at trial or on a motion must be marked as provided in CD Cal Civ LR 16-2.7 (preparation of depositions prior to final pretrial conference).

- The requirement for marking depositions does not apply to depositions intended to be used at trial solely for impeachment.

- The original deposition must be lodged with the clerk on or before the first day of a trial or at least 10 days before a motion unless required to be filed under CD Cal Civ LR 16-11 (filing of depositions when court orders waiver of local pretrial procedures).

- All original depositions not lodged must be brought to court for any trial by the attorney having custody of them.

- Any party may by notice require an original deposition to be lodged for a motion proceeding.

Warning:

If a party submits "deposition fragments" in support of a motion and fails to lodge the original deposition with the court as required by CD Cal Civ LR 32-1, the partial deposition transcripts will not be considered by the court in ruling on the motion [see, e.g., United States v. Novelli (CD Cal 2005) 381 F Supp2d 1125, 1130].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureTrialsDepositions

161 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
H. Using or Preventing Use of Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.72

23.72 Objections May Be Made As to Admissibility As If Witness Were Present.

Subject to the provisions of Fed R Civ P 28(b) (admissibility of deposition taken in foreign country) and Fed R Civ P 32(d)(3) (objections as to taking of deposition), objection may be made at the trial or hearing to receiving in evidence any deposition or part of a deposition for any reason that would require the exclusion of the evidence if the witness were then present and testifying [Fed R Civ P 32(b)].

Cross References:

Discussion of admissibility of depositions taken in foreign countries, see § 23.45. Discussion of objections to the taking of depositions, see §§ 23.48 -23.50.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureTrialsDepositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
H. Using or Preventing Use of Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.73

23.73 Additional Parts of Deposition May Be Introduced to Be Considered With Part Previously Introduced.

If only part of a deposition is offered in evidence by a party [Fed R Civ P 32(a)(6)]:

- An adverse party may require the offeror to introduce any other part which ought in fairness to be considered with the part introduced; and

- Any party may introduce any other parts

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureTrialsDepositionsEvidenceDocumentary EvidenceCompleteness

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
H. Using or Preventing Use of Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.74

23.74 Substitution of Parties Does Not Affect Right to Use Depositions.

Substitution of parties pursuant to Fed R Civ P 25 does not affect the right to use depositions previously taken [Fed R Civ P 32(a)(7)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureTrialsDepositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
III. ORAL DEPOSITIONS
H. Using or Preventing Use of Deposition

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.75

23.75 Depositions May Be Used in Subsequent Action.

When an action has been brought in any court of the United States or of any state and another action involving the same subject matter is afterward brought between the same parties or their representatives or successors in interest, all depositions lawfully taken and duly filed in the former action may be used in the latter as if originally taken for the subsequent action [Fed R Civ P 32(a)(8); see Acme Printing Ink Co. v. Menard, Inc. (ED Wis 1992) 812 F Supp 1498, 1522-1523 (Rule 32 requires that prior and present lawsuits involve same subject matter and same parties or representatives or successors in interest)].

A deposition previously taken may also be used as permitted by the Federal Rules of Evidence [Fed R Civ P 32(a)(8)]. Evidence rules particularly relevant to depositions include:

- Fed Rules Evid 613, prior statements of witnesses.
- Fed Rules Evid 801(d), statements that are not hearsay.
- Fed Rules Evid 804(b), hearsay exceptions.
- Fed Rules Evid 806, attacking and supporting credibility of declarant.
- Fed Rules Evid 1007, testimony or written admission of a party.

It is not necessary that the prior action be dismissed before depositions taken for use in the prior action can be used in the subsequent action. Before amendment in 1980, Rule 32(a)(4) contained this requirement, but the advisory committee stated that the requirement "was doubtless an oversight," and courts have ignored it [see Fed R Civ P 32, Committee Note of 1980]. Whether to admit a deposition from a prior lawsuit is a decision left to the court's discretion. As the Ninth Circuit has observed, "Depositions can save the time, effort and money of litigants, and help expedite trials. Because the underlying objective is efficiency at trial without jeopardizing accurate fact finding, the district court is usually in the best position to decide whether a prior deposition should be admitted" [Hub v. Sun Valley Co. (9th Cir 1982) 682 F2d 776, 777-778 (court of appeals affirmed district court decision that deposition in prior action was not admissible because of lack of showing of similarity of issues)].

Testimony taken at a previous trial may be treated as the equivalent, at least, of a deposition [see Castilleja v. Southern Pac. Co. (5th Cir 1971) 445 F2d 183, 186 (testimony of witness at former trial admitted on basis that under liberal application of Fed R Civ P 43(a) testimony from former trial should be considered equivalent of deposition)]. In any event, prior trial testimony is usable under the exceptions to the hearsay rule set forth in Article VII of the Federal Rules of Evidence. It seems clear that a deposition taken during the pendency of an action in the federal court, whether or not it was introduced in evidence at the first trial of the action, may be used at the retrial of the case [Arrow-Hart, Inc. v. Philip Carey Co. (6th Cir 1977) 552 F2d 711, 713 (depositions of witnesses allowed at retrial)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of depositions from other actions, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 32.63 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureTrialsDepositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.76

23.76 CHECKLIST: Planning Depositions Upon Written Questions.

☐ Determine if deposition upon written questions is necessary or desirable under circumstances of case, such as:

- ○ Written deposition would be less expensive and/or burdensome.
- ○ Written deposition will be required for discovery in foreign country.
- ○ Identity of deponent must be kept confidential.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 31

Discussion:
See §§ 23.78 -23.80

☐ Determine if advantages of deposition upon written questions are outweighed, under circumstances of case, by inherent limitations of the discovery method, including:

- ○ Lack of extensive or probing follow-up questioning.
- ○ Inability to observe demeanor of witness.

○ Potential coaching of witness by counsel prior to deposition.

Authority:
Mill-Run Tours, Inc. v. Khashoggi (SDNY 1989) 124 FRD 547, 549

Discussion:
See § 23.81

☐ Determine who will be deposed by written questions:

○ Individuals.

○ Entity that will designate individual(s) to testify.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 31(a)(1)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.83[1] -[3]

☐ If proposed deponent is opposing counsel, determine whether circumstances exist for deposition:

○ No other means exist to obtain the information than to depose opposing counsel;

○ The information sought is relevant and nonprivileged; and

○ The information is crucial to the preparation of the case.

Authority:
Shelton v. American Motors Corp. (8th Cir 1986) 805 F2d 1323, 1327

Discussion:
See § 23.83[4]

☐ Determine whether leave of court is required to take deposition because deponent is incarcerated.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 31(a)(2)(B)

Discussion:
See § 23.85[1]

☐ Determine if opposing counsel will stipulate to allowing deposition when any of the following circumstances exist, which otherwise require leave of court:

○ Proposed deposition would result in more than 10 depositions by party seeking discovery;

○ Person to be examined has already been deposed in the case; or

○ Party seeking discovery wants to take deposition before parties have agreed to a discovery plan.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 31(a)(2)(A)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.85[2] -[4]

☐ If leave of court is required, draft motion for leave, in accordance with standard motion procedure and local rule requirements, indicating that:

○ The discovery sought is not unreasonably cumulative or duplicative, or is not obtainable from some other source that is more convenient, less burdensome, or less expensive;

○ The party seeking discovery has not had ample opportunity by discovery in the action to obtain the information sought; or

○ The burden or expense of the proposed discovery does not outweigh its likely benefit, taking into account the needs of the case, the amount in controversy, the parties' resources, the importance of the issues at stake in the litigation, and the importance of the proposed discovery in resolving the issues.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2), 31(a)(2)

Discussion:
See § 23.86

Form:
See § 23.295

Standard Procedure Checklist:
Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, see § 22.14

☐ Consider videotaping or other nonstenographic method of recording deposition.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(c), 31(b)

Discussion:
See § 23.77

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

166 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
A. Planning Depositions Upon Written Questions: Initial Considerations

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.77

23.77 Options and Strategy for Party Seeking Discovery.

The party seeking discovery should consider whether the information sought in a deposition upon written questions can be more effectively obtained through a different discovery device. In particular, if the deponent is a party, interrogatories may be a more efficient way of obtaining the same information. However, interrogatories may be propounded only on other parties, and the number of questions is limited [Fed R Civ P 33(a)(1)].

The cost-saving or other benefits of a deposition upon written questions should also be weighed against the inherent limitations of the discovery device. If it is important to evaluate the witness' demeanor and credibility, a deposition by oral examination may be more appropriate, particularly if an opposing party is likely to seek a protective order to require that discovery be taken by oral examination [see Fed R Civ P 26(c)(3)].

If proceeding with a deposition upon written questions, counsel may also consider having the questions and answers recorded by videotape or other nonstenographic method of recording.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of comparing written depositions with oral depositions and interrogatories, 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 31.02 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
A. Planning Depositions Upon Written Questions: Initial Considerations

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.78

23.78 Written Deposition May Be Cost-Effective Means to Obtain Discovery.

Depositions upon written questions are less expensive and burdensome than oral depositions because they require the presence of only the deposition officer and the deponent, and the questions to be propounded are submitted in advance. Depositions upon written questions may be particularly useful to:

- Obtain the testimony of nonparty witnesses without incurring travel expenses.
- Obtain the testimony of witnesses in a foreign country that does not permit oral depositions.
- Complete the examination of a witness whose oral deposition has been adjourned or ordered resumed.
- Obtain the testimony of a nonparty whose testimony is not controversial, and/or predictable, in light of the documentary record.
- Obtain the testimony of a custodian of records whose credibility is not at issue.
- Determine if a subsequent oral deposition of a particular witness is necessary.

  Warning:

  Counsel taking a written deposition of a witness may be precluded from taking an oral deposition of that witness [see Fed R Civ P 30(a)(2)(A)(i), 31(a)(2)(A)(i) (limits on number of oral and written depositions that may be taken)].

- Obtain specific information from large numbers of persons, such as members of a class.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

168 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
A. Planning Depositions Upon Written Questions: Initial Considerations

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.79

23.79 Written Deposition May Be Used for Discovery in Foreign Countries.

If discovery is sought in a foreign nation, the court may order the deposition to be taken by written instead of oral questions [see, e.g., DBMS Consultants v. Computer Assocs. Int'l (D Mass 1990) 131 FRD 367, 370 (deposition on written questions to be taken in Australia); but see United States v. $160,066.98 from Bank of Am. (SD Cal 2001) 202 FRD 624, 629-631 (court rejected request for written deposition in Pakistan)]. Prior to drafting a request for discovery, counsel should verify that the discovery and manner of discovery sought will be allowed under the laws of the foreign nation.

For State Department guidelines on foreign discovery, see U.S. State Dept. Circular, Obtaining Evidence Abroad, travel.state.gov/obtaining_evidence.html; U.S. State Dept. Circular, Preparation of Letters Rogatory, travel.state.gov/letters_rogatory.html

Cross Reference:

Discussion of taking depositions in foreign countries, see § 23.45.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten DepositionsInternational LawDispute ResolutionEvidenceGeneral OverviewInternational LawDispute ResolutionEvidenceAssistanceInternational LawDispute ResolutionEvidenceHague Convention on Taking Evidence AbroadInternational LawDispute ResolutionEvidenceWitnesses

169 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
A. Planning Depositions Upon Written Questions: Initial Considerations

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.80

23.80 Written Deposition May Allow Identity of Deponent to Be Kept Confidential.

The identity of the individual from whom discovery is obtained generally is disclosed. For example, answers to interrogatories must be signed by the person making them [Fed R Civ P 33(b)(5)], and the parties are entitled to be present and participate in the examination of the deponent in an oral deposition [Fed R Civ P 30(c)]. However, a deposition upon written questions can be used to obtain discovery from a deponent whose identity must be kept confidential [Borzillieri v. American Nat'l Red Cross (WDNY 1991) 139 FRD 284, 288-289].

Example--Deponent's Identity Kept Confidential:
A blood donor, whose identity was to be kept confidential in case involving the transmission of AIDS by blood transfusion, could be deposed anonymously by deposition upon written questions [Borzillieri v. American Nat'l Red Cross (WDNY 1991) 139 FRD 284, 288-289].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

170 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
A. Planning Depositions Upon Written Questions: Initial Considerations

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.81

23.81 Written Depositions Have Inherent Limitations.

Although written depositions may be an appropriate method of discovery in certain situations, they are used far less frequently than oral depositions because of their inherent limitations. The particular disadvantages to posing written questions include [see Mill-Run Tours, Inc. v. Khashoggi (SDNY 1989) 124 FRD 547, 549]:

- The written question format does not permit extensive or probing follow-up questioning.
- The demeanor of the witness cannot be observed.
- All questions are served in advance, so the witness' answers may be coached by counsel prior to the deposition.

Example--Written Deposition Inadequate Under Circumstances:

Plaintiff demonstrated that a written deposition in Pakistan would be inadequate when: (1) the very existence of the deponent was in question, (2) plaintiff needed to secure a signature exemplar from the deponent in the presence of its expert witness, (3) counsel needed to evaluate the deponent's demeanor, and (4) the testimony to be elicited did not appear to lend itself to advance formulation of follow-up [United States v. $160,066.98 from Bank of Am. (SD Cal 2001) 202 FRD 624, 629-631].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

171 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
A. Planning Depositions Upon Written Questions: Initial Considerations

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.82

23.82 Written Depositions Are Subject to Numeric and Timing Restrictions.

23.82[1] Depositions Cannot Be Taken Before Parties' Initial Meeting Except by Stipulation or Leave of Court. A stipulation or leave of court is required to take a deposition before the parties' initial meeting to develop a discovery plan [Fed R Civ P 31(a)(2)(A)(iii); see Fed R Civ P 26(d), (f)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of developing a discovery plan, see Ch. 21, Discovery Strategy and Planning, §§ 21.03 -21.08.

23.82[2] Number of Depositions Is Limited to 10 for Each Side. Unless the parties stipulate otherwise or the court grants leave to take additional depositions, only 10 depositions, whether oral or written, may be taken by the plaintiffs, or by the defendants, or by third-party defendants [Fed R Civ P 31(a)(2)(A)(i)].

Cross References:

Form of notice of motion for leave to take deposition, see § 23.295.

Stipulations generally, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, §§ 22.03 -22.13.

Strategic Point--Party Noticing Deposition of Entity:

If the party seeking discovery notices the deposition of an entity, the deposition counts as only one deposition against the 10-per-side limit, even though the entity may designate several witnesses to testify on its behalf [see Fed R Civ P 30(b)(6)].

Cross Reference:

Notice to entity and entity's designation of witnesses, see § 23.89[1][c].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
A. Planning Depositions Upon Written Questions: Initial Considerations

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.83

23.83 Persons or Entities May Be Deposed.

23.83[1] Any Person, Including Any Party, May Be Deposed. A party may take the testimony of any person, including a party, by deposition upon written questions [Fed R Civ P 31(a)(1)].

23.83[2] Corporations or Other Business Organizations May Be Deposed. A deposition upon written questions may be taken of a public or private corporation in accordance with the provisions of Rule 30(b)(6) [Fed R Civ P 31(a)(4)].

Cross Reference:

Who may testify on behalf of corporation, see § 23.22[2].

23.83[3] Associations or Agencies May Be Deposed. A deposition upon written questions may be taken of an association or a governmental agency in accordance with the provisions of Rule 30(b)(6) [Fed R Civ P 31(a)(4)].

23.83[4] Written Depositions May Be Used for Deposing Attorney. The rules do not prohibit taking the deposition of an opposing party's attorney [American Cas. Co. v. Krieger (SD Cal 1995) 160 FRD 582, 585]; however, this procedure is rare and the party seeking the deposition must show propriety and need [Shelton v. American Motors Corp. (8th Cir 1986) 805 F2d 1323, 1327]. Some courts have permitted deposition of opposing counsel by written questions [see, e.g., Vargas v. Peltz (SD Fla 1995) 901 F Supp 1572, 1576].

Cross Reference:

Counsel may be deposed as fact witness, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 31.03[2] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
A. Planning Depositions Upon Written Questions: Initial Considerations

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.84

23.84 Leave of Court Generally Is Not Required.

Leave of court generally is not required to take a deposition upon written questions [Fed R Civ P 31(a)(1)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
A. Planning Depositions Upon Written Questions: Initial Considerations

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.85

23.85 Circumstances When Leave of Court Is Required.

23.85[1] Leave Required When Deponent Is Incarcerated. A party must obtain leave of court when the person to be deposed is confined in prison [Fed R Civ P 31(a)(2)(B)].

Cross Reference:

Form of notice of motion to obtain leave of court, see § 23.295.

23.85[2] Leave Required for More Than 10 Depositions. A party must obtain leave of court if, without the written stipulation of the parties, a proposed deposition would result in more than 10 depositions being taken by either side [Fed R Civ P 31(a)(2)(A)(i)].

Cross Reference:

Form of notice of motion to obtain leave of court, see § 23.295.

23.85[3] Leave Required If Person Already Deposed. A party must obtain leave of court if, without the written stipulation of the parties, the person to be examined has already been deposed in the case [Fed R Civ P 31(a)(2)(B)].

Cross Reference:

Form of notice of motion to obtain leave of court, see § 23.295.

23.85[4] Leave Required for Deposition Before Discovery Plan. A party must obtain leave of court if, without the written stipulation of the parties, the party seeks to take a deposition before the parties have agreed to a discovery plan [Fed R Civ P 31(a)(2)(A)(iii); see Fed R Civ P 26(d), (f)].

Cross References:

Discussion of stipulations generally, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, §§ 22.03 -22.13. Form of notice of motion to obtain leave of court, see § 23.295.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

175 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
A. Planning Depositions Upon Written Questions: Initial Considerations

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.86

23.86 Court Will Limit Excessive or Unreasonable Discovery.

As with other forms of discovery, Fed R Civ P 26(c) applies to written depositions [Fed R Civ P 31(a)(2)]. Accordingly, discovery by written depositions will be limited if the court determines that [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)]:

- The discovery sought is unreasonably cumulative or duplicative, or is obtainable from some other source that is more convenient, less burdensome, or less expensive;

- The party seeking discovery has had ample opportunity by discovery in the action to obtain the information sought; or

- The burden or expense of the proposed discovery outweighs its likely benefit, taking into account the needs of the case, the amount in controversy, the parties' resources, the importance of the issues at stake in the litigation, and the importance of the proposed discovery in resolving the issues.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of limits on discovery, see Ch. 24, Restrictions on Scope and Extent of Discovery: Privileges and Work Product Protection.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten DepositionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
B. Giving Notice of Deposition Upon Written Questions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.87

23.87 CHECKLIST: Giving Notice of Deposition Upon Written Questions.

☐ Determine time and place for deposition:

○ Time of deposition must be at least 33 days after service of notice, unless stipulation of parties or order of court provides otherwise, to allow time for service of cross, redirect, and recross questions.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 31(a)(5)

Discussion:
See § 23.90[3]

○ If request for production is served with notice of deposition, 30 days' notice is required.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 34(b)(2)(A)

Discussion:
See § 23.90

○ Deposition of nonparty must be within 100 miles of place where deponent resides, is employed, or regularly transacts business.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(a)(1), 45(c)(3)(A)(ii)

Discussion:
See § 23.89[3]

☐ Prepare notice of taking deposition upon written questions:

○ State name and address of deponent, if known, or state general description sufficient to identify person or particular class or group to which person belongs.

○ State name or descriptive title and address of deposition officer.

○ Specify time and place of deposition.

○ If entity is named as deponent, describe with reasonable particularity the matters on which examination is requested.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(b)(6), 31(a)(4)

Discussion:
See § 23.89

Form:
See § 23.294

☐ Prepare questions to be propounded to deponent.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 31(a)(3)

Discussion:
See § 23.90[1]

☐ Serve notice and questions on all parties.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 31(a)(3)

Discussion:
See § 23.90[2]

☐ Serve party deponent with accompanying request for production of documents, electronically stored information, and things at the taking of the deposition, if appropriate.

Authority:

Fed R Civ P 34

Discussion:
See § 23.90

☐ Serve nonparty deponent with subpoena to compel attendance and testimony, and, if desired, production.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 31(a)(1)

Discussion:
See § 23.90[4]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

177 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
B. Giving Notice of Deposition Upon Written Questions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.88

23.88 Options and Strategy for Party Noticing Deposition.

A notice of deposition upon written questions must take into account the time required for the exchange of cross, redirect, and recross questions [Fed R Civ P 31(a)(5)]. If there is a need to obtain the discovery more quickly, the party noticing the deposition should consider a motion requesting the court to shorten the time for serving questions [Fed R Civ P 31(a)(5)].

If a request for production or subpoena will be served with the notice of deposition, the party giving notice should comply with the requirements for the request or subpoena to avoid any delay in the deposition [see Fed R Civ P 34, 45].

Cross References:

Form of notice of deposition upon written questions, see § 23.294. Requirements for request for production, see §§ 23.135 -23.156. Requirements for subpoena, see §§ 23.259 -23.285. Moving to shorten time, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, § 22.25.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
B. Giving Notice of Deposition Upon Written Questions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.89

23.89 Written Notice Is Required.

23.89[1] Identify Deponent.

23.89[1][a] State Name and Address of Deponent. A notice of deposition upon written questions must state the name and address of the person who is to answer the questions, if known [Fed R Civ P 31(a)(3)].

23.89[1][b] Describe Deponent If Name Not Known. If the name of the person who is to answer the questions is not known, the notice of deposition must contain a general description sufficient to identify the person or the particular class or group to which the person belongs [Fed R Civ P 31(a)(3)].

23.89[1][c] Notice May Name Entity As Deponent. A notice of deposition upon written questions may name a public or private corporation or a partnership or association or governmental agency as deponent in accordance with the provisions of Fed R Civ P 30(b)(6) [Fed R Civ P 31(a)(4)]. The entity is then required to designate one or more individuals to testify on its behalf [see Fed R Civ P 30(b)(6)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of naming an entity as deponent under Rule 30, see § 23.30.

23.89[2] Identify Deposition Officer. A notice of deposition upon written questions must state the name or descriptive title and address of the officer before whom the deposition is to be taken [Fed R Civ P 31(a)(3)].

23.89[3] State Time and Place of Deposition. Although not explicitly required by Fed R Civ P 31, the notice of deposition upon written questions should state the time and place of the deposition. Alternatively, the notice may state that the time and place will be determined by the deposition officer.

Warning--Location of Deposition of Nonparty:

The attendance of a nonparty deponent at a written deposition may be compelled by subpoena [Fed R Civ P 31(a)(1)]. The location of the deposition is therefore limited by the court's subpoena power. The deposition must take place within 100 miles of the place where the nonparty deponent resides, is employed, or regularly transacts business in person [see Fed R Civ P 45(c)(3)(A)(ii)].

Cross Reference:

Use of subpoena to compel attendance, see §§ 23.259 -23.285.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
B. Giving Notice of Deposition Upon Written Questions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.90

23.90 Notice Must Be Served on Parties.

23.90[1] Serve Questions With Notice. The party desiring to take a deposition upon written questions must serve the questions along with the notice of deposition [Fed R Civ P 31(a)(3)].

23.90[2] Serve Notice and Questions on All Parties. The notice of deposition and written questions must be served on every other party to the action [Fed R Civ P 31(a)(3)].

23.90[3] Serve 33 Days Before Date of Deposition. Rule 31 does not state a specific time for service of the notice of deposition. However, the notice of deposition and written questions should normally be served at least 33 days before the date of the deposition, unless a stipulation by the parties or an order of the court provides otherwise, to allow the required time for service of cross, redirect, and recross questions [see Fed R Civ P 31(a)(5)].

Timing:

Although Rule 31(a)(5) does not mandate a specific period, a 28-day period can be calculated from the specified 14 days to serve cross questions, seven days to serve redirect questions, and seven days to serve recross questions [Fed R Civ P 31(a)(5)]. However, if any of these is served by mail, the time to serve recross questions would be greater than 28 days. Further, each party has five additional days after applicable questions are served to object to form. Thus, the recommended time is at least 33 days.

Warning--Notice of Deposition Accompanied by Request for Production:

If the notice of deposition upon written questions of a party deponent is accompanied by a request for production of documents at the deposition, 30 days notice is required [see Fed R Civ P 34(b)].

Cross References:

Discussion of service of cross, redirect, and recross questions, see §§ 23.98 -23.102. Discussion of the requirements for a request for production, see §§ 23.135 -23.156.

23.90[4] Serve Nonparty Deponent With Subpoena to Compel Attendance and/or Production. A notice of deposition is sufficient to compel the attendance and testimony of a party deponent [see Fed R Civ P 37(d)].

A subpoena is required to compel attendance and testimony or production of documents by a nonparty deponent [Fed R Civ P 31(a)(1); see Fed R Civ P 45(a)].

Cross References:

Procedure for issuance and service of a subpoena, see 23.259 -23.285. Compelling attendance at deposition, see §§ 23.56 -23.59.

23.90[5] Do Not File Notice. The notice of deposition is not filed with the court [see Fed R Civ P 5(d)(1) (discovery requests not filed until used or filing ordered by court)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
C. Responding to Notice of Deposition Upon Written Questions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.91

23.91 CHECKLIST: Responding to Notice of Deposition Upon Written Questions.

☐ Review notice of deposition upon written questions and accompanying documents to determine basis, if any, for opposing discovery or method of discovery:

○ Objection to errors or irregularities in notice.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 32(d)(1)

Discussion:
See § 23.93

○ Objection to qualifications of deposition officer, if known.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 32(d)(2)

Discussion:
See § 23.94

○ Objection to form of written question(s).

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 32(d)(3)(C)

Discussion:
See § 23.95

○ Grounds for motion for protective order based on discovery sought or manner in which deposition will be conducted.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(c)

Discussion:
See § 23.97

☐ Serve written objections on party giving notice of deposition.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 32(d)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.93 -23.95

Form:
See § 23.296

☐ Prepare and file motion for protective order, if appropriate, in accordance with standard motion procedure, to preclude or limit discovery or to require that discovery be taken by method other than deposition upon written questions.

Grounds:

- Annoyance;
- Embarrassment;
- Oppression; or
- Undue burden or expense.

Prerequisite:
The party seeking a protective order must certify that he or she has in good faith conferred or attempted to confer with other affected parties to resolve the dispute without court action.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(c)

Discussion:
See § 23.97

Form:
See § 23.297 (notice of motion for protective order that discovery be taken by other means)

Standard Procedure Checklist:
Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, see § 22.14

☐ If notice names an entity as deponent, provide party giving notice with designation of one or more individuals who will testify on entity's behalf and the matters on which each person will testify.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(b)(6)

Discussion:
See § 23.96

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

181 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
C. Responding to Notice of Deposition Upon Written Questions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.92

23.92 Options and Strategy for Opposing Party or Deponent.

A party or deponent served with a notice of deposition upon written questions may object to the deposition because of:

- The noticing party's failure to comply with the requirements for notice [Fed R Civ P 32(d)(1); see 23.93];
- Objections to the qualifications of a deposition officer identified in the notice [Fed R Civ P 32(d)(2); see 23.94];
- Objections to the form of written questions [Fed R Civ P 32(d)(3)(C); see 23.95]; or
- Objections to the substance of the discovery sought or the manner in which the discovery will be conducted [Fed R Civ P 26(c); see 23.97].

Serving the noticing party with objections will preserve objections that would otherwise be waived, but will not prevent the deposition from going forward. The party or deponent opposing discovery should consider whether a motion for a protective order is required to prevent or limit the deposition or to required that the discovery be taken by another means [Fed R Civ P 26(c); see 23.97].

If the party served with a notice of deposition upon written questions has no objections, the party should consider whether to serve cross questions to be propounded to the deponent [Fed R Civ P 31(a)(5); see 23.99].

If the deponent served with a notice of deposition upon written questions is an entity, the deponent should designate an individual or individuals to testify on its behalf [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(6), 31(a)(3); see 23.96].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

182 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
C. Responding to Notice of Deposition Upon Written Questions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.93

23.93 Objections to Errors or Irregularities in Notice of Deposition Must Be Promptly Served on Party Giving Notice.

All errors and irregularities in the notice for taking a deposition are waived unless written objection is promptly served on the party giving notice [Fed R Civ P 32(d)(1)].

Cross Reference:

Form of objections, see § 23.296.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

183 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
C. Responding to Notice of Deposition Upon Written Questions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.94

23.94 Objections to Deposition Officer Must Be Made Promptly to Avoid Waiver.

Objection to taking a deposition because of disqualification of the officer before whom it is to be taken is waived unless made [Fed R Civ P 32(d)(2)]:

- Before the taking of the deposition begins; or
- As soon thereafter as the disqualification becomes known or could be discovered with reasonable diligence.

Cross References:

Qualifications of deposition officer, see § 23.43. Form of objections, see § 23.296.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

184 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
C. Responding to Notice of Deposition Upon Written Questions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.95

23.95 Objections to Form Must Be Timely Served in Writing.

Objections to the form of written questions are waived unless served in writing on the party propounding them [Fed R Civ P 32(d)(3)(C)]:

- Within the time allowed for serving the succeeding cross or other questions; and
- Within five days after service of the last questions authorized.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

185 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
C. Responding to Notice of Deposition Upon Written Questions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.96

23.96 Entity Named As Deponent Must Designate Individual to Testify.

If the notice of deposition names a public or private corporation or a partnership or association or governmental agency as deponent [see Fed R Civ P 31(a)(4)], the entity must designate one or more officers, directors, or managing agents, or other persons who consent to testify on its behalf [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(6)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of deponent entity's designation of individual to testify, see § 23.30.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
C. Responding to Notice of Deposition Upon Written Questions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.97

23.97 Party or Deponent May Move for Protective Order.

23.97[1] Court May Preclude or Limit Discovery on Showing of Good Cause. On motion by a party or by the deponent, the court in which the action is pending or alternatively, the court in the district where the deposition is to be taken, may make any order that justice requires to protect a party or person from annoyance, embarrassment, oppression, or undue burden or expense [Fed R Civ P 26(c)]. The moving party must show good cause for the order [Fed R Civ P 26(c)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of motions for protective orders, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, §§ 22.35 -22.66.

23.97[2] Court May Order That Discovery Be Taken by Another Method. If a party or the deponent opposes the taking of a deposition upon written questions, instead of by another method, the party or deponent may move for a protective order requiring that discovery be taken by oral examination or another method [see Fed R Civ P 26(c)(3)].

Cross Reference:

Form of notice of motion for protective order that discovery be taken by other means, see § 23.297.

23.97[3] Good-Faith Attempt to Resolve Is Required. A motion for a protective order must be accompanied by a certification that the movant has in good faith conferred or attempted to confer with other affected parties in an effort to resolve the dispute without court action [Fed R Civ P 26(c)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten DepositionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
D. Propounding Cross, Redirect, and Recross Questions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.98

23.98 CHECKLIST: Propounding Cross, Redirect, and Recross Questions.

☐ If served with notice of deposition and written questions:

- ○ Draft cross questions.
- ○ Serve cross questions on all other parties.

Timing:

Cross questions must be served within 14 days after the notice of deposition and written questions are served, unless court, on motion, shortens or enlarges time.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 31(a)(5)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.99, 23.102

☐ If served with cross questions to be propounded to deponent:

- ○ Draft redirect questions, if any, to be propounded to deponent.
- ○ Serve redirect questions on all other parties.

Timing:

Redirect questions must be served within seven days after the cross questions are served, unless court, on motion, shortens or enlarges time.

Authority:

Fed R Civ P 31(a)(5)

Discussion:

See §§ 23.100, 23.102

☐ If served with redirect questions to be propounded to deponent:

○ Draft recross questions, if any, to be propounded to deponent.

○ Serve recross questions on all other parties.

Timing:

Recross questions must be served within seven days after the redirect questions are served, unless court, on motion, shortens or enlarges time.

Authority:

Fed R Civ P 31(a)(5)

Discussion:

See §§ 23.101, 23.102

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

188 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
D. Propounding Cross, Redirect, and Recross Questions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.99

23.99 Parties May Serve Cross Questions Within 14 Days of Notice.

Within 14 days after the notice and written questions are served, a party may serve cross questions on all other parties [Fed R Civ P 31(a)(5)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

189 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
D. Propounding Cross, Redirect, and Recross Questions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.100

23.100 Noticing Party May Serve Redirect Questions Within Seven Days of Cross Questions.

Within seven days after being served with cross questions, a party may serve redirect questions on all other parties [Fed R Civ P 31(a)(5)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
D. Propounding Cross, Redirect, and Recross Questions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.101

23.101 Party May Serve Recross Questions Within Seven Days of Redirect Questions.

Within seven days after being served with redirect questions, a party may serve recross questions on all other parties [Fed R Civ P 31(a)(5)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

191 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
D. Propounding Cross, Redirect, and Recross Questions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.102

23.102 Court May Enlarge or Shorten Time for Serving Questions.

The court may, for cause shown, enlarge or shorten the time for serving cross, redirect, and recross questions [Fed R Civ P 31(a)(5)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of motions to shorten or enlarge time during discovery, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, § 22.25.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
E. Procedure for Taking Deposition Upon Written Questions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.103

23.103 CHECKLIST: Procedure for Taking Deposition Upon Written Questions.

23.103[1] Noticing Party's Checklist.

☐ Deliver notice of deposition and all questions to deposition officer.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 31(b)

Discussion:
See § 23.104

☐ Store deposition received from deposition officer to protect it against loss, destruction, tampering, or deterioration, in accordance with local requirements, if any.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(f)(1), 31(b); ED Cal Civ LR 250.1(b); CD Cal Civ LR 32-2

Discussion:
See §§ 23.62[5], [6]

☐ Do not file deposition with court or clerk until used in proceeding or court orders filing.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 5(d); ED Cal Civ LR 250.1(a); CD Cal Civ LR 32-1

Discussion:
See § 23.108

☐ If deposition is to be used in proceeding or court orders filing, give notice of filing to all other parties.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 31(c)

Discussion:
See § 23.108

23.103[2] Deponent's Checklist.

☐ Review transcript when notified by deposition officer that it is available.

Prerequisite:
The deponent or a party must request review before the completion of the deposition.

Timing:
The deponent has 30 days after being notified by the deposition officer that the transcript or recording is available in which to review the transcript or recording.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(e), 31(b)

Discussion:
See § 23.106

☐ Sign statement:

○ Reciting any changes in form or substance; and

○ Giving the reasons for making the changes.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(e), 31(b)

Discussion:
See § 23.61[3]

23.103[3] Opposing Party's Checklist.

☐ Obtain copy of transcript or other recording of deposition from deposition officer upon payment of charge.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30(f)(3), 31(b)

Discussion:

See § 23.64

☐ File motion to suppress all or part of deposition if objecting to errors or irregularities in manner in which:

○ Testimony is transcribed; or

○ Deposition is prepared, signed, certified, sealed, indorsed, transmitted, filed, or otherwise dealt with by deposition officer.

Timing:

Errors and irregularities are waived unless motion to suppress is made with reasonable promptness after defect is, or with due diligence might have been, ascertained.

Authority:

Fed R Civ P 32(d)(4)

Discussion:

See § 23.109

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
E. Procedure for Taking Deposition Upon Written Questions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.104

23.104 Noticing Party Must Deliver Notice and Questions Served to Deposition Officer.

The party taking the deposition upon written questions must deliver a copy of the notice and copies of all questions served to the deposition officer designated in the notice [Fed R Civ P 31(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

194 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
E. Procedure for Taking Deposition Upon Written Questions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.105

23.105 Deposition Officer Must Take Testimony of Deponent.

The deposition officer must promptly, in the manner provided for oral depositions [see Fed R Civ P 30(c)], take the testimony of the witness in response to the questions [Fed R Civ P 31(b)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of procedure for taking testimony, see § 23.46.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
E. Procedure for Taking Deposition Upon Written Questions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.106

23.106 Deponent May Request Review of Completed Deposition.

The deponent may review and make changes to the transcript of a deposition upon written questions if the deponent or a party has requested that review before completion of the deposition [Fed R Civ P 30(e), 31(b)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of procedure for deponent's review of and changes to deposition transcript, see § 23.61.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

196 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
E. Procedure for Taking Deposition Upon Written Questions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.107

23.107 Officer Must Certify and Deliver Deposition.

The officer must promptly, in the manner provided for oral depositions [see Fed R Civ P 30(e), (f)], prepare, certify, and file or mail the deposition, attaching to it the copy of the notice and the questions received by the officer [Fed R Civ P 31(b)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of procedure for certification and delivery of deposition transcript, see § 23.62.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

197 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
E. Procedure for Taking Deposition Upon Written Questions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.108

23.108 Deposition Is Not Filed With Court.

Discovery requests and responses, including depositions, generally are not filed with the court until they are used in the proceeding or the court orders filing [Fed R Civ P 5(d)(1)].

When a deposition upon written questions is filed with the court, the party taking the deposition must give prompt notice of its filing to all other parties [Fed R Civ P 31(c)].

Cross Reference:

Local rules concerning the filing of depositions with the court, see § 23.65[2].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

198 of 199 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
E. Procedure for Taking Deposition Upon Written Questions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.109

23.109 Noticing Attorney Must Safely Store Deposition Transcript.

The attorney who noticed the deposition must store the deposition transcript to protect it against loss, destruction, tampering, or deterioration [Fed R Civ P 30(f)(1), 31(b)].

Cross References:

Storage of deposition transcript, including local rule requirements, see §§ 23.62[5], [6].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IV. WRITTEN DEPOSITIONS
E. Procedure for Taking Deposition Upon Written Questions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.110

23.110 Motion to Suppress Must Be Made Promptly or Errors Are Waived.

Errors and irregularities in the manner in which the testimony is transcribed or the deposition is prepared, signed, certified, sealed, endorsed, transmitted, filed, or otherwise dealt with by the officer under Fed R Civ P 30 and 31 are waived, unless a motion to suppress the deposition or some part of it is made promptly after the defect is known or with reasonable diligence could have been known [Fed R Civ P 32(d)(4)].

Example:

Party who did not move to suppress deposition, listed in pretrial order as exhibit opposing party intended to use, waived any objection to use based on deponent's failure to sign deposition [In re Ashley (9th Cir 1990) 903 F2d 599, 603].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsWritten Depositions

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
V. INTERROGATORIES
A. Propounding Interrogatories

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.111

23.111 CHECKLIST: Propounding Interrogatories.

23.111[1] Making Preliminary Determinations Regarding Interrogatories.

☐ Determine when to serve interrogatories:

○ Serve interrogatories any time after parties have conferred for discovery purposes, as required by Rule 26(f).

○ If interrogatories need to be served before Rule 26(f) conference, either:

☐ Obtain written stipulation from other parties.

☐ Obtain court order.

○ In all cases, serve interrogatories early enough before discovery cutoff date set by court to allow responding party 30-day response period.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(d), 33(a), (b)(2)

Discussion:
See § 23.117

☐ Review other types of discovery and evaluate the use of interrogatories as part of overall discovery plan.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26-36

Discussion:
Ch. 21, Discovery Strategy and Planning, see §§ 21.03 -21.08

☐ Weigh impact of mandatory disclosures.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(a)

Discussion:
Ch. 15, Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures, see §§ 15.15 -15.26

☐ Consider the following issues:

- ○ Usefulness: Is interrogatory precisely calculated to elicit information useful to propounding party?
- ○ Clarity: Language should be clear and precise.
  - ☐ Consider including separate list of definitions at beginning of set of interrogatories.
  - ☐ Consider including separate instructions at beginning of set of interrogatories.
- ○ Breadth: Is interrogatory appropriate in its scope?
- ○ Burden on responding party: Is interrogatory defensible as to its scope and degree of burden in context of motion to compel under Rule 37?
- ○ Avoid objections: Review list of possible grounds for objection [see 23.130[1]] and frame interrogatories to minimize potential for objection.

☐ Make use of both types of interrogatories as appropriate:

- ○ Use identification interrogatories to ask for factual information.
- ○ Use contention interrogatories to inquire into opinions and contentions that relate to fact or the application of law to fact, to determine opposing party's theory of case.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 33(a)(2), (c)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.112[1] -[3]

☐ Consider permissible subject matter of interrogatories:

○ Parties may seek matter relevant to claims and defenses of parties to action.

○ For good cause, court may order discovery of any matter relevant to subject matter of action. Any matter reasonably calculated to lead to discovery of admissible evidence is relevant.

○ Interrogatory may relate to party's contention.

○ Interrogatory may not seek legal conclusions or statements of law.

○ Interrogatory may not seek privileged matter.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1), 33(c)

Discussion:
See § 23.114

☐ Determine which parties to question by interrogatories:

○ Determine whether interrogatories are a useful discovery device in this situation; consider depositions or requests for admissions.

○ If responding party is public or private corporation or partnership or governmental agency, do not direct interrogatories to particular person.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 33(a)

Discussion:
See § 23.118

☐ Determine how many interrogatories you need to propound:

○ Do not exceed 25-interrogatory limit, counting all discrete subparts, without court permission or stipulation of other parties.

○ If more than 25 interrogatories are needed try to obtain written stipulation to additional interrogatories from responding party.

○ If other parties will not stipulate to additional interrogatories, move for court order to serve additional interrogatories. Check local rules.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 29, 33(a); ND Cal Civ LR 33-3; SD Cal Civ LR 33.1(a); ED Cal Civ LR 251

Discussion:
See § 23.115

Forms:
See §§ 23.299, 23.300

23.111[2] Drafting and Serving Interrogatories.

☐ Draft interrogatories clearly and narrowly:

- ○ Make sure subparts relate directly to subject matter of main interrogatory.
- ○ Number interrogatories sequentially, when required [CD Cal Civ LR 33-1].
- ○ Leave space for answer after interrogatory, when required [ED Cal Civ LR 250.2(a)].

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 33(a); CD Cal Civ LR 33-1; ED Cal Civ LR 250.2(a)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.115[2]; 23.116[3], [4]

Form:
See § 23.298

☐ Sign interrogatories before serving on responding party:

- ○ Interrogatories must be signed by attorney for propounding party if propounding party is represented by counsel.
- ○ Interrogatories must be signed by propounding party if proceeding pro se.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(g)(1)

Discussion:
See § 23.116[5]

☐ Serve interrogatories:

- ○ On responding party.
- ○ On all other parties to action.

○ If responding party is business or other entity, serve on business or entity generally, and not on particular officer or employee.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 5(a), 33(a)

Discussion:
See § 23.118

☐ Do not file interrogatories or responses unless and until they are to be used in proceeding or court orders filing. Check local rules.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 5(d); ND Cal Civ LR 26-1; ED Cal Civ LR 250.2(c); CD Cal Civ LR 33-3

Discussion:
See § 23.119

☐ Calendar response date.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 33(b)

Discussion:
See § 23.127

☐ If respondent fails to serve timely answers, or answers are incomplete, consider motion to compel.

○ Check local rules for meet and confer requirements.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 37(a)

Discussion:
Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, see §§ 25.03 -25.12

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
V. INTERROGATORIES
A. Propounding Interrogatories

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.112

23.112 Options and Strategies for Propounding Party.

23.112[1] Use Identification Interrogatories to Gather Specific Types of Information. Use identification interrogatories, asking for factual information, at the beginning of the case to [see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(1)]:

- Obtain identifying and general background information about the responding party.

  Consider:
  Often this information may be publicly available or contained in documents, so it might not be useful to seek it by interrogatory.

- Identify and locate witnesses for deposition and to develop deposition questions.

  Strategic Point--Propounding Party:

  Asking for the identity of all people with knowledge on a particular subject can also be a means of precluding witnesses from testifying on that subject at trial, if the responding party did not name those witnesses in response to the interrogatory.

- Obtain factual detail pertaining to an opposing party's allegations and defenses. If the opposing party fails to list responsive information, it may be precluded at trial from seeking to admit or argue that evidence. Conversely, if a party responds with specific responsive information, the propounding party can seek to admit the response as evidence at trial.

- Identify relevant documents for document requests.

  Strategic Point--Propounding Party:

By asking for the identification of all documents pertaining to a specific subject matter, the propounding party may be in a position later to prevent the responding party from using responsive documents that the responding party failed to identify.

- Identify conversations or other communications concerning specified subjects, especially if these communications were not memorialized in any documents.

Timing:

Identification interrogatories may be propounded at any stage of the discovery period and may be divided into separate sets at separate times so long as the overall limit on the number of permitted interrogatories is not exceeded. Identification interrogatories may be particularly useful at the outset of the case to obtain basic factual information regarding claims and defenses. A number should be kept in reserve to propound for follow-up information arising out of depositions and document production.

23.112[2] Use Contention Interrogatories to Inquire Into Opinion or Contention. Contention interrogatories are used to inquire into an opinion or contention that relates to fact or the application of law to fact, including asking a party to [see Fed R Civ P 33(a)(2)]:

- State what it contends or whether it is making a certain contention.
- State the facts underlying a contention.
- Articulate the legal or theoretical reason for a contention.

Contention interrogatories can help to pin the opposing party to particular positions and thus narrow the areas of dispute, and to obtain admissions for summary judgment motions and trial.

Timing:

Contention interrogatories generally should be propounded at or near the close of discovery, when the responding party better understands the disputed issues. Otherwise, the propounding party is likely to be met with the objection that the interrogatory is premature and that discovery is continuing. Nevertheless, contention interrogatories may be useful early in the case to understand what evidence the opposing party has and what theories it is pursuing. Parties might include a reservation in answers to early contention interrogatories that their factual investigation and discovery are incomplete. Thus, in most cases one cannot rely on an opponent's early answers to contention interrogatories. Responding parties, however, have a duty to supplement the answers later, and changes in a party's answers can create opportunities to exploit at trial a party's inconsistent statements.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of use of contention interrogatories, see § 23.114[3]. Identification interrogatories may be propounded at any stage of the discovery period and may be divided into separate sets at separate times so long as the overall limit on the number of permitted interrogatories is not exceeded. Identification interrogatories may be particularly useful at the outset of the case to obtain basic factual information regarding claims and defenses. A number should be kept in reserve to propound for follow-up information arising out of depositions and document production.

23.112[3] Consider Advantages of Using Interrogatories. Advantages of using interrogatories compared to other discovery methods can include the following:

- Interrogatories are more convenient than depositions.

- Interrogatories are less expensive than depositions.

- Interrogatories may be carefully crafted over time and can anticipate and attempt to avoid objections.

- Interrogatories require a party to provide all information available to that party, compared to deposition questions, which only require the deponent to provide information of which he or she has knowledge.

- The responding party has an obligation to supplement interrogatory answers if it later learns that the initial answers were incomplete or incorrect, which is not the case for deposition answers [see Fed R Civ P 30(e) (deponent has 30 days after notification that transcript is available to make changes or corrections)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of purposes of interrogatories, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 33.03 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.112[4] Consider Disadvantages of Using Interrogatories. Disadvantages of using interrogatories compared to other discovery methods can include the following:

- Interrogatories are limited to parties only, in contrast to depositions, which may be used to obtain discovery from nonparties [see Fed R Civ P 30(a)(1), 31(a)(1), 33(a)].

- Interrogatories are often prone to prompt and extensive boilerplate objections that may require burdensome motion practice to overcome.

- Interrogatories do not provide subjective information, such as the demeanor of the responding party, in contrast to depositions, where the witness is present.

- Interrogatory responses are the product of the opposing attorney, normally carefully crafted to minimize usefulness.

- Interrogatories do not allow for follow up questions as do depositions upon oral examination, which permit the attorney to ask follow-up questions based on the answers to previous questions or to repeat questions if the party being deposed attempts to evade answering or gives incomplete answers.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesUse

3 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
V. INTERROGATORIES
A. Propounding Interrogatories

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.113

23.113 Review Mandatory Disclosure Requirements.

Except in categories of exempt cases, or to the extent otherwise stipulated or directed by court order, parties must share certain specific types of information at specific pretrial stages without a discovery request:

- Preliminary disclosures: Parties must disclose basic information regarding individuals likely to have discoverable information that the disclosing party may use to support its claims or defenses; documents, electronically stored information, and tangible things that are in the possession, custody, or control of the party and that the disclosing party may use to support its claims or defenses; claims and calculations of damages; and insurance coverage [see Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)].

- Expert witness disclosures: Information about and from retained expert witnesses is to be shared later into the pretrial period [see Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2)].

- Pretrial disclosures: Information about evidence that the parties contemplate using at trial is to be shared near the end of the pretrial period [see Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3)].

Cross References:

Scope of mandatory disclosure, see Ch. 15, Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures, §§ 15.15 -15.26.

See also 6 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 26.20 -26.28 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Parties may use traditional discovery methods, including interrogatories, to obtain further information regarding any matters subject to mandatory disclosure [Fed R Civ P 26, Committee Note of 2007].

Consider:

Mandatory disclosure obligations under Rule 26 have lessened the need for identification interrogatories regarding basic information on claims and defenses. Accordingly, interrogatories may be more useful to follow up on specific factual information on a "surgical" basis and to lock in on adversary's contentions towards the conclusion of the discovery period.

On the other hand, a party usually discloses information that it thinks is required to be disclosed given its perspective and theory of the case. Interrogatories are still useful to obtain information that might not be relevant from the producing party's perspective, but which the propounding party considers highly relevant. Also, mandatory disclosures do not provide the mechanism for obtaining admissions that can be used as evidence in summary judgment motions and at trial.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryDisclosuresMandatory DisclosuresCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesGeneral Overview

4 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
V. INTERROGATORIES
A. Propounding Interrogatories

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.114

23.114 Subject Matter of Interrogatories.

23.114[1] Interrogatories May Inquire About Relevant Matters. Interrogatories may inquire about any matters, not privileged, relating to any claim or defense, including the existence, description, nature, custody, condition, and location of any books, documents, or other tangible things and the identity and locations of persons having knowledge of any discoverable matter [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(1), 33(c)].

23.114[2] Interrogatories Must Be Reasonably Calculated to Lead to Discovery of Admissible Evidence. To survive objection, interrogatories need not necessarily seek admissible evidence, but they must be reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(1); see, e.g., Kowalski v. Stewart (D Ariz 2004) 220 FRD 599, 600-601]. Accordingly, interrogatories are not limited to matters that may be admitted in evidence, and discovery is not controlled by rules of evidence [see Sherman Park Cmty. Ass'n Co. v. Wauwatosa Realty (ED Wis 1980) 486 F Supp 838, 845 (in class action for discriminatory real estate practices, interrogatories permitted even though they requested information about geographical areas outside of area at issue and events before dates at issue)].

Cross References:

Discovery leading to admissible evidence, see Ch. 24, Restrictions on Scope and Extent of Discovery: Privileges and Work Product Protection, §§ 24.03 -24.11.

Limitations on scope of interrogatories, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 33.62. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.114[3] Interrogatory May Relate to Party's Contention.

23.114[3][a] Contention Interrogatories Are Not Automatically Objectionable. An interrogatory is not necessarily objectionable merely because an answer to the interrogatory involves an opinion or contention that relates to fact or the application of law to fact [Fed R Civ P 33(a)(2)]. In fact, the general view is that contention interrogatories are a perfectly permissible form of discovery, to which a response is required. Furthermore, contention interrogatories are considered in the same manner as any other interrogatory, placing the burden on the party opposing discovery rather than shifting the burden to the proponent of contention interrogatories [see Cable & Computer Tech., Inc. v. Lockheed Sanders Inc. (CD Cal 1997) 175 FRD 646, 652].

Contention interrogatories may not simply track the allegations in the opposing party's pleadings, paragraph by paragraph, asking for all facts in support of the party's contentions in each paragraph. These types of contention interrogatories have been found to be a serious form of discovery abuse because they can be used to impose great burdens on the opposing party, and almost always are counterproductive [In re Convergent Techs. Sec. Litig. (ND Cal 1985) 108 FRD 328, 337].

Thus, contention interrogatories must be specific, intelligible, and narrowly tailored for the case. The propriety of a contention interrogatory is judged in terms of its scope and the overall context of the case at the time it is asked [see Roberts v. Heim (ND Cal 1989) 130 FRD 424, 427 ; *see, e.g., Mancini v. Ins. Corp. (SD Cal 2009) 2009 US Dist LEXIS 51321, at 9 (court modified each interrogatory to seek "material or principal facts" instead of "all facts")].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of contention interrogatories, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 33.78 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.114[3][b] Court May Postpone Response. Although contention interrogatories are not objectionable, the court may order that such an interrogatory need not be answered until after designated discovery has been completed or until a pretrial conference or other later time [Fed R Civ P 33(a)(2)].

Nevertheless, even early in the proceedings, the respondent will be required to provide information available at that time. Then the respondent may later amend the answer with leave of court or supplement it, as it has an obligation to do under Fed R Civ P 26(e) [see Cable & Computer Tech., Inc. v. Lockheed Sanders, Inc. (CD Cal 1997) 175 FRD 646, 652].

23.114[4] Interrogatories Seeking Legal Conclusions Are Impermissible. Interrogatories may not pose questions when the answers would involve a statement of pure law [Fed R Civ P 33(c), Committee Note of 1970].

Interrogatories involving pure law are those that call for "legal issues unrelated to the facts of the case" [Fed R Civ P 33(b), Committee Note of 1970].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of interrogatories seeking legal conclusions, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 33.79 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesUse

5 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
V. INTERROGATORIES
A. Propounding Interrogatories

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.115

23.115 Number of Interrogatories Is Limited.

23.115[1] Twenty-Five Interrogatories Allowed. Rule 33 limits the number of interrogatories that may be served by one party on another to 25, including all discrete subparts [Fed R Civ P 33(a)(1)]. By order, the court may alter the limits on the number of interrogatories [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)]. For cases involving multiple parties, the propounding party may serve up to 25 interrogatories on each party.

Unless otherwise ordered for good cause shown, every interrogatory served that causes the responding party to undertake the burden of preparing and serving objections is counted against the 25-interrogatory limit. Thus, for example, interrogatories objected to, but not answered, count against the limit [Walker v. Lakewood Condo. Owners Ass'n (CD Cal 1999) 186 FRD 584, 587].

Warning:

The propounding party may not circumvent the numerical limit by unilaterally "withdrawing" interrogatories after the responding party has prepared and served a written response. Nor may the propounding party "sidestep" the numerical limit by characterizing subsequently served supernumerary interrogatories as a "revised set of interrogatories" [Walker v. Lakewood Condo. Owners Ass'n (CD Cal 1999) 186 FRD 584, 588].

Strategic Point--Propounding Party:

Because the number of interrogatories permitted is restricted [see Fed R Civ P 33(a)], interrogatories should be carefully drafted to request only information not readily available from other sources. For example, parties are required by rule to disclose, without awaiting a discovery request, names of witnesses, copies or descriptions of documents, electronically stored information, and tangible things supporting claims or defenses, computations of damages, and insurance agreements [see Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)], and detailed information concerning experts who may be used at trial to present evidence [see

Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2)]. Interrogatories should not be wasted in seeking information that will otherwise automatically be disclosed.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of number of interrogatories, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 33.30 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.115[2] Avoid Subparts. The limit on the number of interrogatories a party may serve includes "all discrete subparts" [Fed R Civ P 33(a)(1)]. In other words, a party cannot avoid the numerical limits by asking questions about distinct subjects, but numbering the questions as subparts [Collaboration Props. v. Polycom, Inc. (ND Cal 2004) 224 FRD 473, 475 (quoting Moore's)]. Conversely, subparts need not be separately numbered to count as multiple interrogatories. [Fed R Civ P 33(a), Committee Note of 1993].

The best test of whether subsequent questions, within a single interrogatory, are subsumed and related, is to examine whether the first question is primary and subsequent questions are secondary to the primary question. Or, can the subsequent question stand alone? Is it independent of the first question? Genuine subparts should not be counted as separate interrogatories. However, discrete or separate questions should be counted as separate interrogatories, notwithstanding they are joined by a conjunctive word and may be related [Kendall v. GES Exposition Servs. (D Nev 1997) 174 FRD 684, 685-686].

Example--Unnumbered Subparts May Count As Discrete Subparts:

Interrogatory asking responding party to state facts, identify witnesses, or identify documents supporting denial of each request for admission, pursuant to Fed R Civ P 36, contained in set of 50 requests for admissions should be construed as containing discrete subpart for each request for admission, unless request for admission contained same discrete subject [see Safeco Ins. Co. of Am. v. Rawstron (CD Cal 1998) 181 FRD 441, 444].

23.115[3] Obtain Court Permission or Stipulation to Exceed Limit. A party must secure a court order or a written stipulation from the responding party to exceed the 25-interrogatory limit [Fed R Civ P 29, 33(a)].

Additionally, the court may grant leave to serve additional interrogatories:

- When it issues a scheduling order before trial [Fed R Civ P 33(a), Committee Note of 1993; see Fed R Civ P 16(b)].

- At a pretrial conference [see Fed R Civ P 26(a), Committee Note of 1983; see also Fed R Civ P 16 (pretrial conference)].

Example:

The court found that Plaintiff demonstrated good cause for exceeding the numerical limit of interrogatories, when Plaintiff was placed at a disadvantage by defense counsel's failure to respond to Plaintiff's counsel's letter regarding the number of interrogatories. Noting that the use of additional interrogatories in lieu of depositions is a cost-effective method of conducting discovery, the court concluded that the number of interrogatories was reasonable and should not place an undue burden on the respondent to answer [Meadows v. Home Depot USA, Inc. (D Kan 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 20058, at *9-*10].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of using stipulations for general discovery matters, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, § 22.11.

Judge's Perspective:

In the majority of cases, the parties at the case management conference jointly agree to the 25-interrogatory limit. In more complex cases, stipulations providing for a larger limit is not uncommon. While practice varies from judge to judge, judges will generally approve requests for additional interrogatories beyond the set limit so long as the requesting party (1) seeks a manageable number above the limit, and (2) can articulate "good cause" why additional interrogatories are warranted as well as why the need for that extra set could not be anticipated at the time the limit was initially set. Generally, if additional interrogatories are extended to the requesting party, the adverse party will be provided with leave to submit additional interrogatories up to that extended limit.

23.115[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements--Motion for Leave to Propound More Interrogatories Must State Proposed Interrogatories. In the Northern District, a motion for leave to propound more than 25 interrogatories must be accompanied by a memorandum that sets forth each proposed additional interrogatory and explains in detail why it is necessary to propound the additional questions [ND Cal Civ LR 33-3].

Warning:

A demand that a party set forth the basis for a denial of an admission requested under Fed R Civ P 36 will be treated as a separate interrogatory and is allowable only to the extent that a party is entitled to propound additional interrogatories [ND Cal Civ LR 33-2].

23.115[5] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Request Additional Interrogatories in Joint Status Report by Stipulation. Counsel may make the request for more interrogatories in the Joint Status Report and at the Status (Pretrial Scheduling) Conference [see ED Cal Civ LR 250.2; see also ED Cal Civ LR 240 (pretrial conferences)].

Strategic Point:

Counsel should first try to resolve the need to propound additional interrogatories with opposing counsel through stipulation

23.115[6] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements--Motion for Leave to Propound More Interrogatories Must State Proposed Interrogatories and Good Cause. In the Southern District, a motion for leave to propound more than 25 interrogatories must be accompanied by a memorandum that sets forth each proposed additional interrogatory and reasons establishing good cause for their use [SD Cal Civ LR 33.1(a)].

Warning:

Although the local rule mentions subparagraphs [SD Cal Civ LR 33.1(a) (subparagraphs must relate directly to subject matter of interrogatory)], the better practice is to avoid subparts entirely.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesForm

6 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
V. INTERROGATORIES
A. Propounding Interrogatories

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.116

23.116 Drafting Interrogatories.

23.116[1] Interrogatories Should Be Clear and Definite. Interrogatories must be definite, clear, narrowly tailored for the case, and adequately advise the interrogated party what information is being sought [Roberts v. Heim (ND Cal 1989) 130 FRD 424, 427].

Strategic Point--Propounding Party:

It is to the propounding party's advantage to craft precise and narrow interrogatories because an artlessly drafted question is unlikely to produce any useful information, and may be subject to objection on grounds that it is overly broad and ambiguous. When drafting interrogatories, counsel should consider all potential objections to the draft, and then revise the interrogatory accordingly. If the purpose of the interrogatory is to obtain a specific response to use as evidence, counsel should draft the interrogatory so that the responding party must give that response.

Definitions can sometimes make an interrogatory more precise. By defining a complicated term separately, the propounding party can avoid a long, difficult-to-understand interrogatory. However, the definition must be as precise as the interrogatory to avoid objections and non-responsive answers.

23.116[2] Large Amounts of Information Can Be Treated As Single Interrogatory. Parties cannot evade the presumptive 25-interrogatory limitation through the device of joining as "subparts" questions that seek information about discrete separate subjects; however, a question asking about communications of a particular type should be treated as a single interrogatory even though it requests that the time, place, persons present, and contents be stated separately for each such communication [Fed R Civ P 33(a), Committee Note of 1993; see, e.g., Multitechnology Servs., L.P. v. Verizon Southwest (ND Tex 2004) 2004 US Dist LEXIS 3744, at *3-*4 (although MTS' interrogatories include a spreadsheet of telephone numbers, each telephone number is not a discrete, separate subject or subpart for purposes of Rule 33(a))].

23.116[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Number Interrogatories Sequentially. The Central District local rules require that interrogatories be numbered sequentially without repeating the numbers used on any prior set of interrogatories propounded by that party [CD Cal Civ LR 33-1].

23.116[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Leave Space for Answer After Interrogatory. The propounding party must arrange the interrogatories so that after each separate question there is a blank space reasonably calculated to enable the answering party to insert the answer or objection [ED Cal Civ LR 250.2(a)].

23.116[5] Attorney's Signature Is Required. Interrogatories must be signed by the propounding party's attorney, or, if proceeding pro se, by the propounding party [Fed R Civ P 26(g)(1)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesForm

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
V. INTERROGATORIES
A. Propounding Interrogatories

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.117

23.117 Interrogatories May Be Served After Rule 26(f) Conference.

23.117[1] Parties Must Meet and Confer. Except in categories of cases exempted from initial disclosure under Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(B), or when authorized by court order or agreement of the parties, a party may not seek discovery from any source before the parties have conferred as required by Rule 26(f) [see Fed R Civ P 26(d), (f)].

Interrogatories can be served as determined by:

- Time limits prescribed by federal rules [see Fed R Civ P 26, 33].
- Agreement of the parties [see Fed R Civ P 26(f), 33(a)].
- Order of the court [see Fed R Civ P 33(a)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the Rule 26(f) conference, see Ch. 15, Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures, §§ 15.03 -15.14.

23.117[2] Court May Postpone Answers to Contention Interrogatories. The court may order that a contention interrogatory need not be answered until after designated discovery has been completed or until a pretrial conference or other later time [Fed R Civ P 33(a)(2)].

A party wishing to defer answering contention interrogatories until later in the proceeding should first attempt to resolve the problem by communicating with counsel for the propounding party. If the propounding party's counsel continues to insist on early answers, the responding party may then object or move for a protective order [In re Convergent Techs. Sec. Litig. (ND Cal 1985) 108 FRD 328, 339 ; see Fed R Civ P 37(a)(2)(B) (meet and confer requirement)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of contention interrogatories, see § 23.114[3].

23.117[3] Interrogatories May Be Served Before or After Other Types of Discovery. The methods of discovery may be used in any sequence, so that interrogatories may be served before or after other discovery devices have been used unless the court orders otherwise for the convenience of the parties and in the interests of justice [Fed R Civ P 26(d)].

The fact that a party is conducting a deposition or is in the midst of any other type of discovery does not operate to delay any other party's discovery [Fed R Civ P 26(d)].

23.117[4] Interrogatories Must Be Served 30 Days Before Discovery Deadline. When the court has established a discovery deadline, a party must serve interrogatories in sufficient time to permit the responding party the 30-day response time allowed under Fed R Civ P 33 [Northern Ind. Pub. Serv. Co. v. Colorado Westmoreland, Inc. (ND Ind 1986) 112 FRD 423, 424 , aff'd mem., 845 F2d 1024 (7th Cir 1988)]. Accordingly, a party must serve its interrogatories at least 30 days before the discovery deadline [see Smith v. Principal Cas. Ins. Co. (SD Miss 1990) 131 FRD 104, 105].

Warning:

Serving discovery close to the discovery deadline means that there will be no time to serve follow-up discovery if the responses open new areas of inquiry.

23.117[5] Be Aware of Mandatory Disclosure Deadline. Rule 26(a) sets forth a schedule pursuant to which, absent court order or stipulation, specified information must be disclosed, contemplating that parties may use traditional discovery methods, including interrogatories, to obtain further information regarding these matters [Fed R Civ P 26(a), Committee Note of 1993].

To the extent that a party attempts to anticipate mandatory disclosures by serving interrogatories seeking the same information prior to the time that the disclosures are due, whether pursuant to the Rule or court order, the interrogatories may be stricken as untimely [Basque Station, Inc. v. United States (D Idaho 1995) 1995 US Dist LEXIS 7085, at *6 n3 (plaintiff not entitled to defense expert information in response to interrogatory until such time as it is due under federal and local rule, nor is plaintiff entitled to defendant's witness list until it is due under Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3))].

23.117[6] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements--Untimely Discovery Requests Are Unenforceable. Interrogatories that call for responses after the discovery cutoff are not enforceable except by order of the court for good cause shown [ND Cal Civ LR 26-2].

Strategic Point:

The parties may stipulate to conduct some discovery after the formal cutoff date. Whether it is necessary to obtain court approval of such stipulations depends on the particular judge's practice and the pretrial order.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesForm

8 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
V. INTERROGATORIES
A. Propounding Interrogatories

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.118

23.118 Serve All Parties.

When interrogatories are served on one party, copies must be served on all other parties, even though responses are only sought from one party [Fed R Civ P 5(a)].

Parties to an action include any person or entity named in the summons and complaint, including public and private corporations, partnerships, associations, or governmental agencies [see Fed R Civ P 33(a); see also United States v. Kordel (1970) 397 US 1, 90 S Ct 763, 25 L Ed2d 1].

If the party served is a public or private corporation or a partnership or governmental agency, an officer or agent answers the interrogatories on behalf of the entity [see Fed R Civ P 33(a)]. Thus, interrogatories may not be directed to a particular person within a corporation or business entity if that person is not a party; they must be directed to the corporation or business entity itself.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesForm

9 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
V. INTERROGATORIES
A. Propounding Interrogatories

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.119

23.119 Do Not File Interrogatories.

23.119[1] File Only When Used in Proceeding. Interrogatory requests and responses must not be filed until they are used in the proceeding or the court orders filing [Fed R Civ P 5(d)(1)].

23.119[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Propounding Party Keeps Original of Interrogatories. The original of the interrogatories served on the opposing party must be kept by the attorney propounding the interrogatories pending use or further order of the court [CD Cal Civ LR 33-3].

23.119[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--File Only Relevant Portion of Interrogatories. Interrogatories, responses, and proofs of service must not be filed unless and until there is a proceeding in which the interrogatories or proof of service is at issue. When required in a proceeding, only that part of the set of interrogatories and answers that is in issue may be filed [ED Cal Civ LR 250.2(c)].

23.119[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements--Propounding Party Is Custodian of Interrogatories and Responses. The party propounding interrogatories must retain the original of the discovery request and the original response. That party is the custodian of these materials [ND Cal Civ LR 26-1].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesFormCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesUse

10 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
V. INTERROGATORIES
A. Propounding Interrogatories

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.120

23.120 Motion to Compel Is Available When Party Fails to Respond.

If opposing counsel fails to respond to an interrogatory, the propounding party may move for an order to compel discovery [Fed R Civ P 37(a)(3)].

For purposes of a motion to compel, an evasive or incomplete answer is treated as a failure to answer [Fed R Civ P 37(a)(4)].

Check local rules for meet and confer requirements for discovery disputes.

Cross References:

Discussion of motions to compel, see Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, §§ 25.03 -25.27.

Detailed coverage of Rule 37, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 37.01 -37.23 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMotions to Compel

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
V. INTERROGATORIES
B. Responding to Interrogatories

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.121

23.121 CHECKLIST: Responding to Interrogatories.

23.121[1] Making Preliminary Determinations Concerning Answers.

☐ On receipt of interrogatories, take the following preliminary steps:

○ Calendar time for serving response: 30 days.

○ Determine whether additional time is needed to respond to interrogatories, and if so whether:

☐ Propounding party will stipulate to additional time.

☐ Court order for extending 30-day period for service of response is needed.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 33(b)

Discussion:
See § 23.127

○ Review interrogatories to get sense of information sought and possible objections.

○ Consider how responses to interrogatories can be used to further client's theory of case and other objectives.

○ Send copy of interrogatories to client with letter asking client to review them and contact counsel to discuss how to proceed.

Timing:

Contact client shortly after receiving interrogatory, as it may take significant amount of time for client to collect responsive information.

- ○ If client is business or other entity, consider appointment of liaison to assist in gathering responsive information.
- ○ After client has reviewed interrogatories, discuss the following with client:
  - ☐ Which interrogatories, if any, are objectionable.
  - ☐ What information must be gathered to answer unobjectionable interrogatories.
  - ☐ How difficult it will be to obtain information, and attempt to devise strategy for minimizing burden while still complying with discovery rules.
- ○ Prepare rough draft of answers and review with client.
- ○ Have client collect additional information if answers are incomplete.
- ○ Consider specifying business records in lieu of answering questions.
- ☐ Consider options for responding to interrogatories:
  - ○ Answer interrogatories.
  - ○ Object to some or all interrogatories.
  - ○ Move for protective order.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(c), 33(b)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.129 -23.132

- ☐ Consider grounds for objection:
  - ○ Argumentative or speculative.
  - ○ Available from another source.

- ○ Burden outweighs benefit.
- ○ Cumulative or duplicative.
- ○ Irrelevant information.
- ○ Legal conclusions.
- ○ Nonwitness experts.
- ○ Exceeds permitted number.
- ○ Other opportunities to obtain same information.
- ○ Overbroad.
- ○ Premature contention interrogatories.
- ○ Privilege.
- ○ Not related to discovery of admissible evidence.
- ○ Trade secrets.
- ○ Vague and ambiguous.
- ○ Work product protection.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26

Discussion:
See § 23.130[1]

☐ Determine need for protective order, including extension of time to respond.

- ○ Grounds are:
  - ☐ Annoyance.
  - ☐ Embarrassment.

- ☐ Oppression.
- ☐ Undue burden or expense.

○ Check local rules for meet and confer requirements.

○ Decide what relief to request:

- ☐ Not answering interrogatories.
- ☐ Limiting number of interrogatories.
- ☐ Extending time to respond.
- ☐ Protecting of trade secrets and other confidential information.
- ☐ Sealing some or all responses.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(c)

Discussion:
See § 23.132

☐ Before objecting or requesting relief, contact opposing counsel in attempt to clarify or limit requests.

☐ Calendar supplementing and/or amending answers.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(e)

Discussion:
See § 23.134

23.121[2] Drafting and Serving Responses to Interrogatories.

☐ Prepare answers to interrogatories:

○ Precede each response with interrogatory, and number each response with same number as interrogatory.

○ Answer each interrogatory not objected to separately, fully, in writing, and under oath.

○ State any objections; if terms are defined separately, consider objecting to definitions.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 33(b)

Discussion:
See § 23.129

☐ If desired, specify business records in lieu of answering certain interrogatories:

○ Use this method of response only if:

☐ Answer to interrogatory can be derived from business records.

☐ Burden of deriving answer from records is substantially same for propounding party as for responding party.

○ Specify records from which answer may be derived in sufficient detail to permit propounding party to locate and identify records.

○ Afford responding party reasonable opportunity to inspect records.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 33(d)

Discussion:
See § 23.126

☐ Obtain appropriate signatures:

○ Answers must be signed under oath by person making them.

○ Objections must be signed by attorney making them.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 33(b)(5)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.129[3], 23.131

☐ Attach appropriate certification.

Authority:

Fed R Civ P 26(g)(1)

Discussion:
See § 23.123[5]

☐ Serve interrogatory responses on propounding party's attorney, or, if party is unrepresented, on party, in timely manner.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 5, Fed R Civ P 33(b)(2)

Discussion:
See § 23.119[3]

Timing:
30 days after service of interrogatories unless shortened or extended.

☐ Serve copies of responses on all attorneys of parties or, if parties are unrepresented, on parties.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 5(a), (b)

☐ Do not file interrogatory responses unless and until they are to be used in proceeding or court orders filing.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 5(d); ND Cal Civ LR 26-1; ED Cal Civ LR 250.2(c)

Discussion:
See § 23.119

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesForm

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
V. INTERROGATORIES
B. Responding to Interrogatories

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.122

23.122 Options and Strategy for Responding Party.

When a parties receives a set of interrogatories, the party's options are [see Fed R Civ P 33(b)(3), (5)]:

- Answer the interrogatories in writing and under oath.
- Object to some or all of the interrogatories in writing and under oath.
- Move for a protective order.

A party does not have the option of simply ignoring one or more interrogatories [Fed R Civ P 33(b)(3)]. The party submitting the interrogatories may move for an order under Rule 37(a) with respect to any objection to or other failure to answer interrogatories.

Before objecting, counsel should contact opposing counsel to attempt to reach a written agreement to clarify or limit the request. If the overture is rejected, the responding party should note that in the interrogatory response.

Judge's Perspective:

There is a disturbing tendency to overdo boilerplate objections, essentially including every conceivable objection that might apply to any interrogatory. In addition, in some instances parties will object virtually to every word or phrase used. This approach should be avoided. Only applicable objections should be invoked and they should be tailored to the specific interrogatories at issue. The "blunderbuss" approach to objections can negatively impact the party's credibility with the court and detract from the force of reasonable objections.

Cross Reference:

Motion to compel, see Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions.

The answers to interrogatories are admissions of a party and are otherwise admissible at trial to the extent permitted by the rules of evidence [see Fed R Civ P 33(c)].

Strategic Point--Responding Party:

Counsel should consider how to use the responses to present the client's case and to emphasize facts beneficial to the client. If the interrogatories call for information that is not helpful to the client, consider how to present the information in the least harmful way. Draft the answers so that they do not provide "sound bites" for the opposing party to use in a summary judgment motion or at trial.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesForm

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
V. INTERROGATORIES
B. Responding to Interrogatories

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.123

23.123 Who May Respond.

23.123[1] Interrogatories Directed to Individual Must Be Answered, Signed, and Verified by That Person. Interrogatories directed to an individual party must be answered in writing under oath and signed by that party [Fed R Civ P 33(b)(5)].

23.123[2] Interrogatories Directed to Organization Must Be Answered, Signed, and Verified by Officer or Agent. When the party to whom interrogatories are directed is a corporation, partnership, or association, the interrogatories must be signed by an officer or agent of the business [Fed R Civ P 33(b)(1)(B)].

The officer or agent who may sign includes an attorney for the business [Wilson v. Volkswagen of Am., Inc. (4th Cir 1977) 561 F2d 494, 508 (counsel for automobile manufacturer could sign and verify answers to interrogatories)].

The officer or agent has a duty to provide all information available to the corporation, but may sign and verify the interrogatories on the basis of knowledge, information, and belief, without firsthand knowledge of the information in the responses [Law v. National Collegiate Athletic Ass'n (D Kan 1996) 167 FRD 464, 476 (answers must speak of "composite knowledge" of party, whether or not officer or agent has personal knowledge of facts].

23.123[3] Organization Must Designate Agent; Attorney May Be Agent. When interrogatories are addressed to a corporation, partnership, or association, the business is entitled, and indeed is required, to designate its own officer or agent to answer the interrogatories [United States v. Kordel (1970) 397 US 1, 8, 90 S Ct 763, 25 L Ed2d 1]. The officer or agent designated to answer interrogatories may be an attorney for the business [Rea v. Wichita Mortgage Corp. (10th Cir 1984) 747 F2d 567, 574 n6 (answers to interrogatories sworn to by corporate defendant's attorney acceptable under Fed R Civ P 33)].

23.123[4] Interrogatories Directed to Government Agency Must Be Answered, Signed, and Verified by Officer or Agent. Interrogatories addressed to governmental agencies may be answered by an officer or agent of the government [Fed R Civ P 33(a)]. Governments and governmental agencies generally are subject to the same rules as corporate entities in designating agents to answer interrogatories [Trane Co. v. Klutznick (WD Wis 1980) 87 FRD 473,

476-477 (officers to respond to interrogatories when initial response by chosen officer was inadequate)].

23.123[5] Attorney for Party Must Certify Responses. In addition to being signed and verified by the party making them, responses to interrogatories must be signed by at least one attorney of record; the attorney must include his or her address, e-mail address, and telephone number [Fed R Civ P 26(g)(1)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesForm

14 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
V. INTERROGATORIES
B. Responding to Interrogatories

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.124

23.124 Responding Party Must Answer or Object.

Each interrogatory must be answered separately and fully in writing, under oath, unless an objection is interposed [Fed R Civ P 33(b)(3); see 23.130 (objections)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesForm

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
V. INTERROGATORIES
B. Responding to Interrogatories

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.125

23.125 Responding Party Has Duty to Furnish All Available Information.

23.125[1] Answer to the Extent Possible. If an interrogatory is objectionable in part, but some portions of the interrogatory are not subject to an objection, the responding party must answer to the extent that the interrogatories are not objectionable [Fed R Civ P 33(b)(3)].

Consider:

The responding party should provide a substantive response "subject to" the objections stated.

Failure to respond may result in a sanctions order for refusing to respond within the allotted time.

Cross Reference:

Sanctions for failure to make timely response, see § 23.127[5].

23.125[2] Information Under Responding Party's Control. A party answering interrogatories has an affirmative duty to furnish any and all information available to the party; this duty to provide all information available encompasses the responsibility to provide information controlled by a party [Trane Co. v. Klutznick (WD Wis 1980) 87 FRD 473, 476 (responding party does not have duty to search out new information in response to interrogatories)]. For example, a parent corporation must respond to an interrogatory with information from a subsidiary if it has access to that information and that information is relevant and is not privileged [In re ATM Fee Antitrust Litig. (ND Cal 2005) 233 FRD 542, 545].

23.125[3] Business Entity Must Provide Information Known to Officers and Employees. A business organization has the duty to provide any information imputed to the organizational party itself, including information possessed by officers, employees, and former employees of the party, as well as the party's counsel [General Dynamics Corp. v. Selb Mfg. (8th Cir 1973) 481 F2d 1204, 1210 (imposing sanctions when corporation's secretary failed to answer interrogatory due to "insufficient personal knowledge," because, as agent of corporation, he was obliged to furnish all information available to corporation).]

A corporation is not, however, required to uncover facts not within its control, especially when those facts are equally accessible to other parties [Directory Dividends, Inc. v. SBC Communications, Inc. (ED Pa 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 24296, at *12-*14].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesForm

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
V. INTERROGATORIES
B. Responding to Interrogatories

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.126

23.126 Business Records May Be Provided in Lieu of Answer.

23.126[1] Specify Records and Provide Opportunity for Inspection. When the answer to an interrogatory can be derived or ascertained from business records, including electronically stored information, the responding party may, in lieu of answering [Fed R Civ P 33(d)]:

- Specify the records from which the answer may be derived or ascertained; and
- Afford the propounding party a reasonable opportunity to inspect the records.

Cross Reference:

Producing business records, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 33.105 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

This procedure can save significant time in responding if there are preexisting documents that contain all of the requested information.

Warning:

Pleadings, depositions, or exhibits are not "business records" under Fed R Civ P 33(d) [*Mancini v. Ins. Corp. (SD Cal 2009) 2009 US Dist LEXIS 51321, at 7 (plaintiffs' attempt to answer interrogatories by reference to litigation file in underlying class action did not comport with Fed R Civ P 33, collecting cases)].

23.126[2] Make Specification Detailed. A specification must be in sufficient detail to permit the propounding party to locate and identify, as readily as can the responding party, the records from which the answer may be ascertained [Fed R Civ P 33(d)(1)].

A responding party must specify, by category and location, the records from which answers to interrogatories can be derived. "Location" means where in the records an answer may be found. Thus, a general recitation that answers may be found in company books of accounts, ledgers, and other records is not specific enough because it does not specify where in the records the answer can be found [see Rainbow Pioneer # 44-18-04A v. Hawaii-Nevada Inv. Corp. (9th Cir 1983) 711 F2d 902, 906].

Strategic Point--Responding Party:

If records have already been produced, the easiest way to identify the records is by Bates number. If records have not been produced, the easiest way to satisfy this requirement might be by producing the records with the interrogatory response.

Cross Reference:

Use of Bates stamp to number documents for production, see § 23.156[2].

23.126[3] Burden of Deriving Answer Must Be Same for Both Parties. The option of specifying business records is limited to situations in which the burden of deriving the answer from the records is substantially the same for the propounding party as for the responding party [Fed R Civ P 33(d)].

23.126[4] Responding Party May Be Required to Provide Index. Rule 33(d) is not satisfied by the "wholesale dumping" of documents. Thus, when voluminous documents are produced under Rule 33(d) they must be accompanied by indices designed to guide the propounding party to the documents responsive to the interrogatories [see O'Connor v. Boeing N. Am., Inc. (CD Cal 1999) 185 FRD 272, 278].

23.126[5] Court May Require That Interrogating Party Reimburse Respondent's Expenses. To the extent the expense of compliance is considered unduly burdensome, Rule 33(d) provides the responding party with the option of shifting the burden and expense by producing the business records in which the requested information can be found [Multitechnology Servs., L.P. v. Verizon Southwest (ND Tex 2004) 2004 US Dist LEXIS 3744, at *3-*4 (if Verizon invokes Rule 33(d), it may ask court in its discretion to order MTS to reimburse Verizon for expense of assembling business records and making them intelligible); see Fed R Civ P 33, Committee Note of 1970].

23.126[6] Claim of Privilege May Be Restricted. Under Rule 33(d) documents that would otherwise be responsive may be withheld based on privilege, provided the exercise of the privilege does not prevent the propounding party from ascertaining or deriving complete answers to the interrogatories and the withheld documents are listed in a privilege log [O'Connor v. Boeing N. Am., Inc. (CD Cal 1999) 185 FRD 272, 279].

When a party chooses to answer an interrogatory under Rule 33(d), that party may claim only the attorney-client privilege and work product protection, and must set forth the purportedly privileged documents on a privilege log. Other privileges, such as the patient-physician privilege and third-party privacy rights may not be claimed on the privilege log. Rather, a protective order, coupled with the redaction of selected information when necessary, has been found to be sufficient to safeguard the interests protected by such privileges and rights [O'Connor v. Boeing N. Am., Inc. (CD Cal 1999) 185 FRD 272, 279-280].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesForm

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
V. INTERROGATORIES
B. Responding to Interrogatories

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.127

23.127 Thirty-Day Period for Response.

23.127[1] Extra Three Days for Service by Mail or Other Alternative Delivery. A party on whom interrogatories have been served must serve the answers and objections, if any, on the propounding party within 30 days after service of the interrogatories [Fed R Civ P 33(b)(2)].

An additional three days are allowed if interrogatories were served by mail or by electronic or alternative means of delivery [Fed R Civ P 6(d)].

23.127[2] Obtain Agreement of Parties or Court Order to Alter Timing. The time for responding may be shortened or lengthened by [Fed R Civ P 33(b)(2)]:

- Stipulation of the parties.
- Court order.

An agreement extending the time for responses requires court approval if it would interfere with any dates set by the court for completion of discovery, for the hearing of a motion, or for trial [Fed R Civ P 29(b)].

Decision Point:

Generally, parties should grant first requests for extensions of time, unless a party has abused such requests or deadlines are pressing. It usually is sensible to grant a request for an extension because denying the request is likely to cause the other party to deny your future requests for extensions or other accommodations.

23.127[3] Several Methods of Serving Response Are Available. Service of interrogatory responses is complete when the responses are hand-delivered to the party or the attorney for the party, or when they are placed in the mail [Fed R Civ P 5(b)].

Alternative methods of delivery, including by electronic means, may be used if the person being served has provided written consent to such service [Fed R Civ P 5(b)(2)(E)]. Service by electronic means is complete on transmission [Fed R Civ P 5(b)(2)(E)]. However, service by electronic means is not effective if the party making service learns that the attempted service did not reach the person to be served [Fed R Civ P 5(b)(2)(E)]. Service by other consented means is complete when the person making service delivers the copy to the agency designated to make delivery [Fed R Civ P 5(b)(2)(F)].

23.127[4] Timing of Response for Removed Actions. In cases removed to federal court that have outstanding interrogatories at the time of removal, the time limit for responses to interrogatories is measured from the date of the parties' meeting under the federal meet and confer requirements [Fed R Civ P 33(a), Committee Note of 1993; see Fed R Civ P 26(d)].

23.127[5] Failure to Make Timely Response Sanctionable. Sanctions may be levied against a party who fails to comply with discovery deadlines [Fed R Civ P 16(f), 37(d)].

Cross Reference:

Failure to comply, see Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, § 25.08[2].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesGeneral Overview

18 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
V. INTERROGATORIES
B. Responding to Interrogatories

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.128

23.128 Restrictions on Filing Interrogatory Responses.

Interrogatory requests and responses must not be filed until they are used in the proceeding or the court orders filing [Fed R Civ P 5(d)(1)].

Cross Reference:

Further discussion on filing and retention of interrogatories and responses, including local rules, see § 23.119.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
V. INTERROGATORIES
B. Responding to Interrogatories

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.129

23.129 Formatting Responses.

23.129[1] Draft Full and Separate Responses for Each Interrogatory. Each interrogatory must be answered separately and fully in writing under oath, unless it is objected to. Objections must state the reason for the objection and the responding party must answer any portions of the interrogatory that are not objectionable [Fed R Civ P 33(b)(1)].

23.129[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Response Must Immediately Follow Interrogatory.

23.129[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal, ND Cal, and SD Cal Requirements--Set Forth Each Question Before Answer. Answers and objections to interrogatories must set forth each question in full immediately before the answer or objection [ND Cal Civ LR 33-1; CD Cal Civ LR 33-2; SD Cal Civ LR 33.1(b)].

23.129[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--Answer in Space Provided. In the Eastern District, interrogatories must be arranged so that there is a blank space after each question. The size of the blank space must be reasonably calculated to enable the answering party to insert the answers or objections. The answering party must try to answer or object in the spaces provided. If unable to do so, however, the responding party must retype the interrogatories along with the answers and objections [ED Cal Civ LR 250.2(a)].

23.129[3] Respondent and Attorney Must Sign. Answers to interrogatories must be signed by the person making them [Fed R Civ P 33(b)(5)], or by a representative of a corporate or entity party. Such a representative does not need to have personal knowledge of the answers [see Law v. National Collegiate Athletic Ass'n (D Kan 1996) 167 FRD 464, 476]. In addition, all interrogatory responses must be signed, and thereby certified, by the attorney for the responding party [see Fed R Civ P 26(g)(1)]. Objections must be signed by the attorney making them [Fed R Civ P 33(b)(5)].

Cross Reference:

Signing and certification of discovery responses under Rule 26, see Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, §§ 25.03 -25.12.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesForm

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
V. INTERROGATORIES
B. Responding to Interrogatories

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.130

23.130 Objecting to Interrogatories.

23.130[1] Rule 26 Is Primary Source of Objections. A responding party may object to interrogatories on the grounds that they request information outside of the permissible scope of discovery. Rule 26 is the main source of possible objections or of grounds for a protective order because it provides specific guidelines as to when the courts may impose limitations on the frequency or extent of discovery. Under that rule, interrogatories may be objectionable when [see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)]:

- They seek information that is unreasonably cumulative or duplicative, or obtainable from some other source that is more convenient, less burdensome, or less expensive.

- They seek information that the propounding party has had ample other opportunities to obtain.

- The burden or expense of the interrogatories outweighs their likely benefit, considering the needs of the case, the amount in controversy, the parties' resources, the importance of the issues at stake, and the importance of the interrogatories in resolving the issues.

Cross References:

Grounds for objection, see Ch. 24, Restrictions on Scope and Extent of Discovery: Privileges and Work Product Protection.

Wide range of grounds for objection, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 33.173 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Among the common objections to interrogatories are:

- Argumentative or Speculative: Interrogatories are subject to objection if they call for argumentative or speculative answers [see In re Erie Lackawanna Ry. Co. (6th Cir 1974) 496 F2d 1189, 1190].

- Available From Another Source: Interrogatories may not seek information that is obtainable from some other source that is more convenient, less burdensome, or less expensive [see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)(C)(i)].

- Burden Outweighs Benefit: The burden or expense of the interrogatories must not outweigh their likely benefit, considering the needs of the case, the amount in controversy, the parties' resources, the importance of the issues at stake, and the importance of the interrogatories in resolving the issues [see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)(C)(iii)].

- Cumulative or Duplicative: Interrogatories may not seek information that is unreasonably cumulative or duplicative [see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)(C)(i)].

- Irrelevant Information: Information that is irrelevant to the claims or defenses of the parties is beyond the scope of discovery [see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(1)]. For example, one court denied a motion to compel an ADA plaintiff to respond to an interrogatory requesting that he state the total sum he received in settlement of disability lawsuits in the past five years. The court found that information irrelevant to the plaintiff's standing to sue and irrelevant to any defense [Molski v. Franklin (SD Cal 2004) 222 FRD 433, 437].

- Legal Conclusions: Interrogatories may not seek legal conclusions on questions of pure law [Fed R Civ P 33(c), Committee Note of 1970].

- Facts Known and Opinions Held by Nonwitness Experts: Facts known and opinions held by nonwitness experts are beyond the scope of discovery [see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(4)(B)].

- Number Exceeded: Interrogatories served on a specific party must not exceed the 25-interrogatory, or other court-set, limit [see Fed R Civ P 33(a)].

- Other Opportunity to Obtain Same Information: Interrogatories may not seek information that the propounding party has had ample other opportunities to obtain [see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)(C)]. For example, one court denied a request for permission to propound additional interrogatories when there had been extensive questioning on the same subjects at deposition [see Johnson v. Smith (ND Cal 1986) 630 F Supp 1, 4].

- Overbreadth: Overbroad interrogatories are subject to objection [see Cahela v. Bernard (ND Ga 1994) 155 FRD 221, 227-228]. However, a mere statement by a party that an interrogatory is "overly broad, burdensome, oppressive and irrelevant" is not adequate to voice a successful objection [St. Paul Reinsurance Co. v. Commercial Fin. Corp. (ND Iowa 2000) 198 FRD 508, 511-512].

- Premature Contention Interrogatories: Prematurely served contention interrogatories may be subject to objection, and the responding party may be able to obtain a court order that the interrogatories need not be answered until a later time in the proceedings [see Fed R Civ P 33(a)(2)].

- Privilege: Privileged information is beyond the scope of discovery [see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(1)]. A "blanket" claim of privilege as to a set of interrogatories is improper. Instead, the respondent must identify with specificity, the interrogatories to which a claim of privilege pertains [Davis v. Fendler (9th Cir 1981) 650 F2d 1154, 1160].

Timing:

An objection based on privilege may be waived if it is not raised in a timely manner [Davis v. Fendler (9th Cir 1981) 650 F2d 1154, 1160].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of discovery privileges, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 26.47 -26.52 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

- Trade Secrets: Trade secrets and confidential business information are generally subject to restrictions on discovery. A party may protect trade secrets or confidential business information from disclosure by seeking an order limiting discovery or a protective order preventing the discovery [see Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)(G)].

- Unrelated to Discovery of Admissible Evidence: Information that is not reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence is beyond the scope of discovery [see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(1)].

- Vagueness: Interrogatories are subject to objection if they are so vague or ambiguous as to be burdensome or oppressive [see, e.g., Frost v. Perry (D Nev 1995) 161 FRD 434, 435-436].

- Work Product Protection: Protected work product is beyond the scope of discovery [see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(3)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of work product protection, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 26.70 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.130[2] State Precise Grounds for Objection.

23.130[2][a] General Grounds Are Insufficient. All grounds for objection to an interrogatory must be stated with specificity and particularized as to the basis for the objection [Fed R Civ P 33(b)(4); Collins v. JC Penney Life Ins. Co. (SD Cal 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 8455, at *5]. Bare assertions that the discovery requested is overly broad, burdensome, oppressive or irrelevant are ordinarily insufficient, standing alone, to bar production [Collins v. JC Penney Life Ins. Co. (SD Cal 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 8455, at *5-*6].

Boilerplate, generalized objections are inadequate, and the court may treat such objections as if the party failed to make an objection [see Walker v. Lakewood Condo. Owners Ass'n (CD Cal 1999) 186 FRD 584, 587].

Strategic Point--Responding Party:

Counsel may decide to provide an answer even when an interrogatory is objectionable. This is particularly true when the objection is a general one, such as the interrogatory seeks irrelevant information, is overbroad, or seeks information provided earlier in the discovery process. To lessen the possibility of a motion to compel, counsel may find it easier to provide at least some information in response to the interrogatory. The objection may be preserved by prefacing the response with a statement such as "subject to and without waiving the objection that the interrogatory is cumulative and duplicative, the responding party responds as follows... ."

23.130[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements--State Reasons. Each objection to any interrogatory must include a statement of reasons and, if appropriate, citation to relevant authority [ED Cal Civ LR 250.2(b); see Fed

R Civ P 33(b)(4)].

23.130[3] Respondent May Object in Part. If an interrogatory is objectionable in part, but some portions of the interrogatory are not subject to an objection, the responding party must answer to the extent that the interrogatories are not objectionable [Fed R Civ P 33(b)(3)].

23.130[4] Objector Has Burden of Proof. The burden is on the responding party to justify its objections or its failure to provide complete answers to interrogatories [Fed R Civ P 33(a), Committee Note of 1970; Collins v. JC Penney Life Ins. Co. (SD Cal 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 8455, at *5-*6].

Example:

Overruling respondent's objections that interrogatories were burdensome, the court emphasized that respondent has the burden to show not only "undue burden or expense," but also to show that the burden or expense is unreasonable in light of the benefits to be secured from the discovery. The court noted that respondent made no effort to show that any heavy expenditures of time, effort or money would be necessary to answer the interrogatories [Hammond v. Lowe's Home Ctrs., Inc. (D Kan 2003) 216 FRD 666, 674].

23.130[5] Format Requirement: Objection Must Immediately Follow Interrogatory.

23.130[5][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal, ND Cal, and SD Cal--Set Forth Each Question Before Objection. Answers and objections to interrogatories must set forth each question in full immediately before the answer or objection [CD Cal Civ LR 33-2; ND Cal Civ LR 33-1; SD Cal Civ LR 33.1(b)].

23.130[5][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal--Object in Space Provided. In the Eastern District, interrogatories must be arranged so that there is a blank space after each question. The answering party must try to answer or object in the spaces provided. If unable to do so, however, the responding party must retype the interrogatories along with the answers and objections [ED Cal Civ LR 250.2(a)].

23.130[6] Make Timely Objection. An objection to an interrogatory must be made in writing within 30 days after service of the interrogatories unless a shorter or longer time is ordered by the court. In the absence of an order, the parties may agree in writing to a shorter or longer time for responses to interrogatories, including an objection [Fed R Civ P 33(b)(2)].

23.130[7] Avoid Waiver of Objection.

23.130[7][a] General Rule: Failure to Timely Object Waives Objection. Any ground for objection to an interrogatory that is not raised in a timely manner is waived [Walker v. Lakewood Condo. Owners Ass'n (CD Cal 1999) 186 FRD 584, 587]. This is true even of an objection that the information sought is privileged [see Davis v. Fendler (9th Cir 1981) 650 F2d 1154, 1160].

Strategic Point--Responding Party:

If an interrogatory is at all objectionable, the responding party should make the objection. Otherwise the objection is waived. However, do not make unsupportable objections. When drafting responses, consider how each objection could be supported if the propounding party moved to compel further responses. Making objections that cannot be supported during motion practice can lead to a lack of credibility in front of the court.

It is especially important to object if an interrogatory calls for any kind of attorney- client privileged information. Failure to object will cause the privilege to be waived. Once the privilege is waived as to a particular topic, the opposing party may be able to obtain other attorney-client communications on that topic.

23.130[7][b] Excuse for "Good Cause" Shown. The court may excuse a failure to make a timely objection for "good cause" [Fed R Civ P 33(b)(4)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesForm

21 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
V. INTERROGATORIES
B. Responding to Interrogatories

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.131

23.131 Attorney Must Sign Objections.

Objections must be signed by the attorney making them [Fed R Civ P 33(b)(5)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesForm

22 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
V. INTERROGATORIES
B. Responding to Interrogatories

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.132

23.132 Relief May Be Available by Obtaining Protective Order.

A protective order protects any person or party from whom discovery is sought from annoyance, embarrassment, oppression, or undue burden and expense. The moving party must show good cause for the order [Fed R Civ P 26(c)].

Check local rules for meet and confer requirements for discovery disputes.

District courts have broad discretion in determining whether to issue a protective order, but the courts nevertheless apply a balancing test in making that determination. Under the balancing test, the district judge must compare the hardship to the party against whom discovery is sought against the probative value of the information to the other party [see Soto v. City of Concord (ND Cal 1995) 162 FRD 603, 616].

A protective order may encompass any order justice requires to protect any party or person from annoyance, embarrassment, oppression, or undue burden and expense. It may include, but is not limited to, one or more of the following orders [see Fed R Civ P 26(c)]:

- That a party need not answer all or part of the interrogatories.
- That discovery not be had.
- That the number of interrogatories is improper.
- That the time to respond be extended.
- That certain matters not be inquired into, or that the scope of the disclosures be limited to certain matters.
- That a trade secret or other confidential research, development, or commercial information not be revealed or be revealed only in a designated way.

- That some or all of the answers be sealed and thereafter subject to opening only by court order.

Cross Reference:

Protective orders, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, §§ 22.35 -22.66.

Strategic Point--Responding Party:

Moving for a protective order can be expensive and puts the burden on the moving party. It may be more efficient simply to object (assuming good grounds exist for objections), which places the burden on the propounding party to move to compel further responses. The propounding party may decide that information sought is not worth the expense and effort of moving to compel. However, if the propounding party does move to compel, it will have the first and last words to the court in the opening and reply papers, and thus be able to frame the disputed issue.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
V. INTERROGATORIES
B. Responding to Interrogatories

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.133

23.133 Effect of Answers.

23.133[1] Use at Trial. Answers to interrogatories are evidence [Zaccagnini v. Chas. Levy Circulating Co. (7th Cir 2003) 338 F3d 672, 679]. Answers to interrogatories may be used at trial to the extent permitted by the Federal Rules of Evidence, including:

- As admission of a party opponent [see Fed R Evid 801(d)(2)].
- For impeachment purposes [see Fed R Evid 613(a)].
- In support of motions, such as for summary judgment or motions to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction [see, e.g., King v. E.F. Hutton & Co. (DDC 1987) 117 FRD 2, 6 ; Duff v. Lobdell-Emery Mfg. Co. (ND Ind 1996) 926 F Supp 799, 804].

Cross Reference:

Answers as evidence, 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 33.160 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.133[2] Objections to Introduction of Answers. On proper objection, the court has the same power to exclude answers to interrogatories as it does any other offered evidence [see Fed R Civ P 33(c)]. Because the scope of discovery is very broad and not limited to admissible evidence, objections to the introduction of answers to interrogatories are often made on the grounds of irrelevance, unfair prejudice, and confusion of the issues [see Fed R Evid 403].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesUse

24 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
V. INTERROGATORIES
B. Responding to Interrogatories

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.134

23.134 Respondent Must Supplement and Amend Answers.

If a party acquires material additional information or learns that information submitted was materially incorrect after submitting answers, and that additional information is not otherwise known to the propounding party, the responding party has a duty to supplement or amend its responses [Fed R Civ P 26(e); see Fortino v. Quasar Co. (7th Cir 1991) 950 F2d 389, 398 (Fed R Civ P 26 requires party to supplement interrogatory answer when it is no longer true, and failure to amend is in substance a knowing concealment)].

The court may impose sanctions for failure to supplement interrogatory responses [see Fed R Civ P 37(c)(1)].

Cross References:

Discussion of the duty to supplement and amend discovery responses, see Ch. 21, Discovery Strategy and Planning, § 21.06[7]; Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, §§ 25.50 -25.53.

Continuing duty to supplement, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 33.106 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VI. REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION AND INSPECTION
A. Planning Requests for Production and Inspection

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.135

23.135 CHECKLIST: Planning to Obtain Documents, Electronically Stored Information, and Tangible Items Through Production or Inspection.

☐ Determine type of item needed for production or inspection:

○ Documents or electronically stored information, including:

☐ Writings;

☐ Drawings;

☐ Graphs;

☐ Charts;

☐ Photographs;

☐ Sound recordings and

☐ Data compilations, including electronic or digital files, such as e-mails, word processing documents, spreadsheets, and databases.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 34(a)(1)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.137[1], [4]

○ Tangible items other than documents, which may include, for example, physical substances, mechanical devices, or computer hardware such as disk drives and backup tapes.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 34(a)(1)

Discussion:
See § 23.137[2]

○ The entry onto land or a particular premises to inspect, copy, sample, or conduct other investigative tests on:

☐ The land itself;

☐ Objects located on the land; or

☐ Processes or operations occurring on the land.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 34(a)(2)

Discussion:
See § 23.137[3]

☐ Consider activities related to production or inspection of item or land, including:

○ Measuring;

○ Surveying;

○ Photographing;

○ Testing; or

○ Sampling.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 34(a)(1), (2)

Discussion:

See § 23.137[3]

☐ Determine whether item is discoverable by considering whether:

○ Item is relevant to any claim or defense of parties;

○ Item is not protected by privilege or work product doctrine; and

○ If item is not itself admissible in evidence at trial, discovery of item appears reasonably calculated to lead to discovery of admissible evidence.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(b)(1)-(5), 34(a)

Discussion:
See § 23.138

☐ Determine whether sought document, electronically stored information, or tangible item is obtainable:

○ From party to action with a claim or defense in dispute in pending civil action.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 34(a)

Discussion:
See § 23.139

○ From party to action:

☐ In actual physical possession of item.

☐ In custody of item.

☐ Under control of item.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 34(a)

Discussion:
See § 23.139[4]

☐ If document, electronically stored information, or tangible item is not subject to production or inspection under Rule 34, determine whether information may be obtained by other means, such as:

○ Under initial disclosure requirements.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(a)

Discussion:
See § 23.141

○ Pursuant to subpoena to party or nonparty.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 34(c), 45(a)

Discussion:
See § 23.141[3]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VI. REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION AND INSPECTION
A. Planning Requests for Production and Inspection

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.136

23.136 Options and Strategies Related to Planning for Production or Inspection.

23.136[1] Choosing Best Method of Obtaining Production or Inspection.

23.136[1][a] Sequence of Discovery Methods. A party has a limited number of depositions, interrogatories, and, in some districts, requests for admissions. Also, a party typically gets only one shot at deposing a witness, and will generally want to ask witnesses about relevant documents. Thus, it is usually preferable to serve requests for production before serving interrogatories or requests for admissions, or conducting depositions. As part of Rule 26's initial disclosures, a party will be required to disclose the identity and location of documents on which it will rely in proving its claims or defenses. With that information, counsel should be in position to propound a first set of requests for production.

Nevertheless, there is no timetable applicable to all cases for the staging of different discovery devices, and counsel should consider the value of coordinating the methods used. A request for production or inspection must set forth the items to be produced or inspected, and describe each item with reasonable particularity [Fed R Civ P 34(b)(1); see 23.137]. Consequently, unless the previous interaction between the parties or the mandatory disclosures provide an accurate and thorough source of identification of pertinent documents and tangibles, other discovery methods might prove beneficial [see Ch. 21, Discovery Strategy and Planning], such as depositions, especially depositions of custodians of records [see 23.03 -23.110], interrogatories directed to a description of documents that address relevant facts [see 23.111 -23.134], and requests for admission [see 23.217 -23.258]. Requests for production of electronically stored information may be particularly challenging in terms of gaining knowledge of an opponent's computer systems, record retention policies, electronic document storage arrangements, and the types of information stored sufficient to fashion production requests with the requisite specificity. Finally, for items not in the possession, custody, or control of another party to the action [Fed R Civ P 34(a)(1); see 23.153[4]], consider utilizing other discovery methods, such as a subpoena [see 23.136[1][c]].

23.136[1][b] Alternate Sources to Help Identify Items. Because it may prove difficult to describe items in a Rule 34 request for production or inspection with reasonable particularity [see 23.145[2]], parties may choose to explore sources of information other than the opposing party, such as the client, individuals similarly situated to the opposing party, Internet sites, press articles, and regulatory agency files. Parties also may hire a private investigator to pursue this information. Informal discovery of a party's previous litigations can often be very productive. Briefs or other documents filed in other litigations and filings with regulatory agencies could contain admissions relevant to the present litigation, or could lead to the discovery of other admissible evidence. A benefit of seeking information outside the litigation process is that--unlike the use of formal discovery--informal discovery may be initiated before commencement of the action [see Bruner, Discovery: An Ordered Approach, 30 F.I.C.Q. 205, 210 (Spring, 1980)].

Cross Reference:

Using online resources to obtain public records, see Ch. 21, Discovery Strategy and Planning, § 21.05[6][b].

23.136[1][c] Use of Subpoena for Items Not in Possession, Custody, or Control of Party. A party seeking production or inspection of items not in the possession, custody, or control of another party to the action should consider use of the subpoena procedure under Rule 45 to obtain access [Fed R Civ P 34(c); see 23.141[3]]. If a dispute is likely over whether a party has possession, custody, or control over documents, such as when related corporate entities are involved, a party should consider using simultaneously a request to produce under Rule 34 and a subpoena under Rule 45. In some instances, a subpoenaed entity may be less likely to litigate objections to production. At the same time, utilizing a nonparty subpoena for documents may require an additional appearance by counsel in the discovery dispute that can increase delay and expense.

Strategic Point:

Courts may be more protective of the production burdens on third parties, so subpoenas requesting document should be drafted narrowly. For this same reason, be prepared to cooperate with and make the document production less burdensome for the third party, as the third party is likely to have the court's sympathy in a discovery motion. Sometimes it is better to seek informal discovery from third parties to avoid alerting your opponent to the relevance of the information that the third party possesses. On the other hand, cooperating third parties occasionally want to be subpoenaed, so they have the protection of having responded to compulsory process.

Cross References:

Discussion of requirement of party status, see § 23.139. Discussion of possession, custody, or control of item, see § 23.153[4]. Discussion of alternative discovery, see § 23.141.

23.136[2] Preventing Destruction of Documents. Parties have an obligation to retain evidence that they have reason to believe will be relevant to a pending litigation. Counsel should determine, as early as possible, whether other parties are likely to destroy materials that may be responsive to a Rule 34 request, for example as part of a company's routine document retention/destruction policy or operation of its electronic information system. If so, consider a notice to the custodian of records, an action seeking preservation of evidence, or a stipulation or order preserving the documents. Interrogatories can help reveal a company's document retention policies and the method of operation of its electronic information system, and whether it has destroyed any relevant items.

Cross References:

Discussion of destruction of discoverable materials, see Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, §§ 25.91 -25.101.

Discussion of sanctions for destruction of documents, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 34.16[4] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

27 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VI. REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION AND INSPECTION
A. Planning Requests for Production and Inspection

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.137

23.137 Types of Documents, Electronically Stored Information, and Tangible Items That Party May Request.

23.137[1] Party May Request Production of Documents for Inspection and Copying. Any party may serve on any other party a request to produce and permit the requesting party, or someone else acting on the requesting party's behalf, to inspect and copy any designated documents that constitute or contain discoverable matter, and which are in the possession, custody, or control of the party upon whom the request is served [Fed R Civ P 34(a)(1)(A); see United States ex rel. Schwartz v. TRW, Inc. (CD Cal 2002) 211 FRD 388, 392 ; see also 23.153[4] (discussion of possession, custody, or control)]. A Rule 34 request for production of "documents" encompasses electronically stored information unless discovery in the action has clearly distinguished between electronically stored information and "documents" [Fed R Civ P 34(a), Committee Note of 2006].

Strategic Point--Requesting Party:

Sometimes it may be advantageous for the requesting party to request that documents be viewed and copied at the location where the original documents are stored, because the originals may reveal information that a copy would not. For example, at the storage location, the inspector may observe notations on the folder containing the documents, or variations in the color of ink used to make handwritten entries on a document [see, e.g., Sunrich, Inc. v. Pac. Foods of Or., Inc. (D Or 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 8186, at *5 (inspection of original documents)].

Strategic Point--Responding Party:

The client may not want counsel for the opposing party in its offices. If the volume of documents is not too large, consider arranging for the inspection in another location. Before allowing any party to inspect original documents, counsel must conduct a privilege review of the documents and remove privileged documents. Failure to do so may result in a waiver of the attorney-client privilege or work product protection.

23.137[2] Party May Request Production of Tangible Items for Inspection, Sampling, Testing and Copying. Any party may serve on any other party a request to produce and permit the requesting party, or someone else acting on the requesting party's behalf, to inspect and copy, test, or sample any tangible items that constitute or contain discoverable matters, and which are in the possession, custody, or control of the party upon whom the request is served [Fed R Civ P 34(a)(1); see also 23.153[4] (discussion of possession, custody, or control)].

Example:

The court ordered that the requesting party's expert be given access to the responding party's computer to run particular programs specified by the requesting party [L.A. County Employees Ret. Ass'n v. Towers, Perrin, Forster & Crosby, Inc. (CD Cal 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 10233, at *4-*5].

23.137[3] Party May Request Permission to Enter Land for Inspection, Sampling, and Copying Tangible Items. Any party may serve on any other party a request to enter on designated land or other property in the possession or control of the served party for the purpose of inspecting, measuring, surveying, photographing, testing, or sampling the property or any designated object or operation on the property [Fed R Civ P 34(a)(2); see McNierney v. Long Island R.R. (SDNY 2003) 215 FRD 458, 459].

Example:

A plaintiff suing a defendant for misappropriation of trade secrets requested inspection of the defendant's operations facility property to observe the manufacturing process, with the intent of ascertaining if any elements of the plaintiff's alleged trade secret process were being used. [MONY Life Ins. Co. v. Hinsdale Mgmt. Corp. (ND Ill 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 10771, at *8-*9].

23.137[4] Electronically Stored Information Is Discoverable Material. Electronically stored information is discoverable under Rule 34. This includes writings, drawings, graphs, charts, photographs, sound recordings, images, and other data or data compilations stored in any medium from which information can be obtained. If necessary, the responding party must translate the information into a reasonably usable form [Fed R Civ P 34(a)(1)(A)]. Under Rule 34, a request for production of "documents" includes electronically stored information unless discovery in the action has clearly distinguished between electronically stored information and "documents" [Fed R Civ P 34(a), Committee Note of 2006].

Cross References:

Discussion of electronic discovery, see §§ 23.157 -23.188.

See also 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 34.12[3] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

28 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VI. REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION AND INSPECTION
A. Planning Requests for Production and Inspection

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.138

23.138 Requested Documents, Electronically Stored Information, and Items Must Be Discoverable.

23.138[1] Parties Are Generally Entitled to Request Material Relevant to Claim or Defense of Parties.

23.138[1][a] Party May Request Production of All Items Within Scope of Discovery. A party may request production or access to documents, electronically stored information, and tangible items that are within the broad scope of discovery specified in Rule 26(b) [see Fed R Civ P 26(b)], namely, matters not privileged that are relevant to the claim or defense of any party, including the existence, description, nature, custody, condition, and location of any books, documents, or other tangible items, and the identity and the location of persons having knowledge of any discoverable matter. For "good cause" parties may request discovery of any matter relevant to the subject matter involved in the action [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(1); Fed R Civ P 34(a)].

23.138[1][b] Scope of Discovery Is Broad. The primary purpose of discovery is to remove surprise from trial preparation and to enable the parties to obtain evidence necessary to evaluate and resolve their dispute [Oakes v. Halvorsen Marine Ltd. (CD Cal 1998) 179 FRD 281, 283]. Consequently, courts should permit production of any documents, electronically stored information, and tangible items that contain information relevant to a claim or defense. This principle is broad and must be liberally interpreted [see United States ex rel. Schwartz v. TRW, Inc. (CD Cal 2002) 211 FRD 388, 392].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of requirement of relevancy to claim or defense, see Ch. 24, Restrictions on Scope and Extent of Discovery: Privileges and Work Product Protection, §§ 24.03 -24.11.

23.138[1][c] Requested Document, Electronically Stored Information, or Item Need Not Be Admissible If It Leads to Admissible Evidence. A party may obtain discovery of a document, electronically stored information, or tangible item under Rule 34 even if it would be inadmissible in evidence at trial, provided that discovery of the item appears reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(1); see Garcia v. City of El Centro (SD Cal 2003) 214 FRD 587, 590].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of request for inadmissible materials leading to admissible evidence, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 34.12[4] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.138[2] Parties May Not Request Privileged or Work Product Material. A party may not obtain discovery of privileged documents or electronically stored information [Fed R Civ P 34(a); see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(1)], or other items falling under the limitations of Rule 26 [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)-(5)]. For example, a party may not request production under Rule 34 of any document if it constitutes "work product" prepared in anticipation of litigation or for trial, unless the party (1) can show substantial need of the materials for case preparation, and (2) cannot without undue hardship obtain the substantial equivalent of the materials by other means. Opinion work product, which contains counsel's mental impressions or legal strategies, "enjoys nearly absolute immunity and can be discovered only in very rare circumstances" [Garcia v. City of El Centro (SD Cal 2003) 214 FRD 587, 591 ; see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(3); 23.153 (grounds for objection to Rule 34 request)].

Distinguish:

A party is entitled to request a category of documents or electronically stored information that may include privileged documents, and it is up to the responding party to assert the privilege and withhold the privileged documents. The responding party may have waived the privilege previously by, for example, disclosing the document to a third party, producing the document in another lawsuit, or putting the document at issue in the lawsuit. In such a situation, the document is discoverable even if it was privileged at one time.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of exceptions and limitations on documents and tangible items that party may discover, see Ch. 24, Restrictions on Scope and Extent of Discovery: Privileges and Work Product Protection.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VI. REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION AND INSPECTION
A. Planning Requests for Production and Inspection

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.139

23.139 Persons Subject to Rule 34 Discovery.

23.139[1] Rule Applies to Parties to Civil Action. Production of documents, electronically stored information, or entry on land is limited to parties to a civil action [Fed R Civ P 34(a); see United States ex rel. Schwartz v. TRW, Inc. (CD Cal 2002) 211 FRD 388, 392 (nonparty must be served request for production under Rule 45, and nonparty is subject to same scope of discovery under Rule 45 as party is under Rule 34)]. Thus, co-plaintiffs or co-defendants may serve Rule 34 requests on each other [see, e.g., Biben v. Card (WD Mo 1987) 119 FRD 421, 424-425].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of Rule 34's applicability to parties only, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 34.03[3] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Distinguish:

The limitation that Rule 34 procedures are applicable only to parties should not be confused with the provision that a document or object is discoverable if within the possession, custody, or control of a party. Thus, a party need not be the owner of the document or tangible item for that party to be required to produce the document or tangible item [see Fed R Civ P 34(a); see also McCoy v. Southwest Airlines Co. (CD Cal 2002) 208 FRD 617, 621 (airline required to produce manual of aircraft manufacturer)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of the requirement that document or tangible item must be in possession, custody, or control of a party, see § 23.153[4].

23.139[2] Party Is Actual Claimant or Defendant in Civil Suit. For Rule 34 purposes, the party is the actual claimant or defendant in civil litigation currently pending in a United States district court [Williams v. IRS (D Del 1972) 345 F Supp 591, 594 (no discovery rights under federal rules in tax court proceeding)]. The issue of party status typically arises in cases involving representative litigation; when a person brings an action or is sued in a representative capacity, the represented persons are not considered parties for discovery purposes unless the represented parties, rather than the named representative, are the actual claimants or defendants [see In re Greenwood Air Crash (SD Ind 1995) 161 FRD 387, 394-398].

Examples:

- A plaintiff brought an action as the personal representative of decedent's estate. The court held that the plaintiff had to produce tax returns of the decedent's minor children, because the children were statutory wrongful death beneficiaries and were deemed "parties" within the meaning of Rule 34 [In re Greenwood Air Crash (SD Ind 1995) 161 FRD 387, 394-398].

- A receiver does not, by virtue of his or her appointment, become a party to a pending action against a corporation or individual for whose property the receiver is appointed. A receiver remains a nonparty to the action unless added or substituted by an order of the court in which the action is pending, and is not subject to Rule 34 discovery procedures until the court issues such an order [Wolff v. Cash 4 Titles (11th Cir 2003) 351 F3d 1348, 1354].

- Non-privileged documents in the files of a party's attorneys are within the party's control, even if they are not in the party's physical possession, and may be discoverable. Similarly, an employee's work files maintained on the employee's home computer may be within the control of the employer.

Distinguish:

An individual affiliated with a party is not considered a party under Rule 34. Thus, when a corporation is a party, the corporate directors, officers, employees, or subsidiaries that are not parties are not subject to service of a request for production; only the corporate party may be served. Note, however, that the corporate entity would have the ultimate obligation to require affiliated persons and entities to produce the documents, electronically stored information, and tangibles that are within the control of the corporation [see Sunrich, Inc. v. Pac. Foods of Or., Inc. (D Or 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 8186, at *10-*12].

23.139[3] Only Representative Party in Class Action Litigation Is Deemed Party for Discovery Purposes.

Litigation initiated by or against a party as a class is known as a class action, and only persons named in the litigation are considered "parties" for purposes of Fed R Civ P 34 discovery [Enterprise Wall Paper Mfg. Co. v. Bodman (SDNY 1980) 85 FRD 325, 327]. Consequently, in class action litigation, requests for production may not be served on absent class members without a strong showing of necessity. However, under Rule 23(d), the court may in appropriate circumstances order production and inspection of documents and other tangible items from absent class members [Schwartz v. Celestial Seasonings, Inc. (D Colo 1999) 185 FRD 313, 318-319 ; see Fed R Civ P 23(d)(5)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of discovery in class actions, see Ch. 20, Class Actions, § 20.38[1].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

30 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VI. REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION AND INSPECTION
A. Planning Requests for Production and Inspection

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.140

23.140 Limits on Number of Rule 34 Requests.

Unlike other discovery methods, Rule 34 and the local rules of California's federal district courts place no limitations on the number of requests for production or inspection a party may propound [see Fed R Civ P 34]. The court nevertheless may limit the number of Rule 34 requests under the general discovery provisions of the federal rules [see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2); Nestle Foods Corp. v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. (DNJ 1990) 135 FRD 101, 106-107 (court limited number of claim files insurer must produce because of burdensomeness)], and may make any order that justice requires to protect parties from annoyance, embarrassment, oppression, or undue burden or expense [Fed R Civ P 26(c)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of court's discretion to limit discovery, see Ch. 24, Restrictions on Scope and Extent of Discovery: Privileges and Work Product Protection.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VI. REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION AND INSPECTION
A. Planning Requests for Production and Inspection

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.141

23.141 Other Discovery Procedures for Production of Documents, Electronically Stored Information, and Tangible Items.

23.141[1] Parties Must Produce Certain Documents, Electronically Stored Information, and Tangible Items As Part of Mandatory Initial Disclosures. Each party in a civil action is generally required, as part of mandatory initial disclosure, to produce a copy, or description by category and location, of all documents, electronically stored information, and tangible items that are in the possession, custody, or control of the party, and that the disclosing party may use to support any claim or defense [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(A)(ii); see also 23.153[4] (discussion of possession, custody, or control)]. The "documents" referred to in Rule 26(a)(1)(B) are letters, memos, calendars, e-mails, written contracts, and similar writings, but generally do not include declarations and affidavits. A party must produce or describe by category and location all documents and tangible items that the party intends to use, either at trial or in a "motion" [Intel Corp. v. Via Techs., Inc. (ND Cal 2001) 204 FRD 450, 451-452].

Warning:

A party failing to produce documents, electronically stored information, or tangible items that are subject to the initial disclosure requirements will be permitted to use the otherwise admissible documents and tangibles at trial for impeachment purposes only [Lomascolo v. Otto Oldsmobile-Cadillac, Inc. (NDNY 2003) 253 F Supp2d 354, 360-361]; additionally, the party could be sanctioned by the court [Gebhardt v. Mentor Corp. (D Ariz 1999) 191 FRD 180, 182].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of required initial disclosure of production of documents, electronically stored information, and tangible items, see Ch. 15, Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures, §§ 15.15 -15.26.

23.141[2] Party May Include Request for Production in Notice of Deposition. A party may use a deposition notice to request that another party bring specified documents and tangible things [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(5); see, e.g., LG Elecs., Inc. v. Q-Lity Computer, Inc. (ND Cal 2002) 211 FRD 360, 368]. Such a list of documents is treated as a request for production of documents under Rule 34 [Reebok Int'l, Ltd. v. Jemmett (SD Cal 1988) 1988 US Dist LEXIS 16504, at *3], and Rule 34 procedures apply to the request [Fed R Civ P 30(b)(2)].

Cross References:

Discussion of use of notice of deposition to request production of documents and tangible items, see §§ 23.03 -23.18.

See also 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 34.02[4][b] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.141[3] Party May Serve Subpoena on Nonparty to Obtain Documents, Electronically Stored Information, and Tangible Items.

23.141[3][a] Subpoena Facilitates Discovery From Nonparties. Through the device of subpoena, a party may require that a nonparty produce and permit inspection, copying, testing or sampling of designated documents, books, electronically stored information, or other tangible items in the possession, custody or control of the person, or to permit inspection of premises, at a time and place specified in the subpoena [Fed R Civ P 34(c), 45(a)(1)(C); see also L.A. News Serv. v. CBS Broad., Inc. (9th Cir 2002) 305 F3d 924, 936 , as amended, 313 F3d 1093].

Distinguish:

Rules 34 and 45, though similar in scope, serve fundamentally different purposes: Rule 34 is invoked to obtain or inspect documents from parties prior to trial, while Rule 45 may be utilized to compel production of material for use at depositions or the trial from either parties or nonparties [see Mortgage Info. Servs., Inc., v. Kitchens (WDNC 2002) 210 FRD 562, 565 (Rule 45 by its terms applies to parties and nonparties, and subpoena may be used against either when Rule's prerequisites are met)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of nonparty subpoenas, see §§ 23.259 -23.285.

Discussion comparing Rules 34 and 45, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 34.02[5] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.141[3][b] Subpoena Procedures Must Be Followed for Production or Inspection From Nonparty. Even though a Rule 45 subpoena to a nonparty for production or inspection is considered the equivalent of a Rule 34 request to a party [see Klesch & Co. v. Liberty Media Corp. (D Colo 2003) 217 FRD 517, 520 ; Fed R Civ P 45(a), Committee Note of 1991], Rule 45 procedures will apply, not Rule 34 procedures [see Fed R Civ P 34(c); Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. v. Kirk's Tire & Auto Servicenter of Haverstraw, Inc. (D Kan 2003) 211 FRD 658, 662]. Before issuing a subpoena to compel the production of documents, electronically stored information, and things or inspection of premises, notice must be served on each party in the manner prescribed by Fed R Civ P 5(b) [Fed R Civ P 45(b)(1)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of procedure that must be followed for issuance of subpoena, see §§ 23.259 -23.285.

23.141[3][c] Nonparty Subpoena for Production or Inspection Is Subject to Court's Discovery Deadlines. A party may not use a subpoena to circumvent discovery deadlines; discovery deadlines apply to Rule 45 subpoenas directed to a nonparty. A subpoena for production or inspection, therefore, is subject to the same discovery scheduling orders as a Rule 34 request to a party [see Mortgage Info. Servs., Inc. v. Kitchens (WDNC 2002) 210 FRD 562, 565 (subpoena duces tecum meets definition of discovery contained in former Rule 26(a)(5), and therefore is subject to same time deadlines that apply to all other methods of formal discovery)].

23.141[3][d] Subpoena May Be Used to Compel Testimony. A subpoena requiring production and inspection, copying, testing or sampling of designated books, papers, documents, electronically stored information, or tangible things, or inspection of premises, may also require testimony of the responding person for deposition, hearing, or trial. However, if the subpoena does not require such deposition, hearing, or trial testimony [Fed R Civ P 45(a)(1)(D)], the person need not appear in person at the place of production or inspection [Fed R Civ P 45(c)(2)(A)]. If it commands attendance, the subpoena must issue from the district court in which the hearing or trial is to be held, or from the court for the district designated by the notice of deposition as the district in which the deposition is to be taken. A subpoena commanding attendance at a deposition must state the method by which the testimony will be recorded. If separate from a subpoena commanding attendance of a person, a subpoena for production or inspection must issue from the court for the district in which the production or inspection is to be made [Fed R Civ P 45(a)(2)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of subpoena used to compel testimony, see § 23.262.

23.141[3][e] Subpoena Procedure Must Protect Nonparty Against Significant Expense. Any subpoena to compel production or inspection must protect a nonparty, or an officer of a party, from significant expense resulting from the production or inspection. Thus, a person commanded to produce and permit inspection and copying may within 14 days after service of the subpoena or before the time specified for compliance serve a written objection on the party or attorney designated in the subpoena. After the objection, the court may order a limitation in the scope of the subpoena or may order the party requesting discovery to pay all or part of the legal fees or other expenses reasonably incurred by a nonparty in complying with a subpoena to produce documents or permit inspection [Fed R Civ P 45(c)(2)(B); see McCoy v. Southwest Airlines Co. (CD Cal 2002) 211 FRD 381, 385-386].

23.141[3][f] Factors Court May Consider in Shifting Payment of Subpoena Discovery Expense. In determining whether and to what extent to reimburse a nonparty who has responded to a subpoena duces tecum, the court may consider factors such as: the scope of discovery; the need for the discovery; the financial resources of the party; the availability of a protective order to protect the nonparty; the extent to which the producing party must separate responsive information from privileged or irrelevant material; and the reasonableness of the expenses of production [see McCloskey v. UPS (D Or 1996) 1996 US Dist LEXIS 17465, at *14-*16].

23.141[4] Serving Subpoena on Parties. A subpoena may be served on parties [see Mortgage Info. Servs., Inc., v. Kitchens (WDNC 2002) 210 FRD 562, 565]. Ordinarily, when seeking documents from a party, the preferred device is a Rule 34 request rather than a Rule 45 subpoena duces tecum. A Rule 34 request has the benefit that it can be simply served on counsel of record rather than personally served on the party under Rule 45.

In rare circumstances, though, a Rule 45 subpoena might be directed to a party in an effort to obtain documents more quickly [compare Fed R Civ P 45(c)(3)(A)(i) (production required within "reasonable time") with Fed R Civ P 34(b) (written response to production request required within 30 days of service)], or because a Rule 34 request would be untimely. Violation of a Rule 45 subpoena also carries with it the prospect for a contempt sanction. Additionally, a Rule 45 subpoena may be employed when a party anticipates that its adversary will claim it does not have possession, custody, or control of requested documents, such as in the related corporate entity context [see 23.139[2]].

Warning:

Rule 45 subpoenas generally may not be used to evade Rule 34 time constraints [see 23.141[3][c]]. Also, depending on the local rules and the court's pretrial discovery order, counsel's ability to use Rule 45 may be restricted.

Judge's Perspective:

A party propounding a Rule 45 subpoena duces tecum on another party should be prepared to explain to the court why a Rule 34 request for production would not have been adequate.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryDisclosuresMandatory DisclosuresCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VI. REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION AND INSPECTION
B. Requesting Production or Inspection

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.142

23.142 CHECKLIST: Requesting Production or Inspection.

☐ To determine which items to request, review responses and answers to previously used discovery tools, including:

- ○ Depositions;
- ○ Interrogatories; and
- ○ Requests for admission.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 34(a)

Discussion:
See § 23.136[1]

☐ Consider timing of request for production:

- ○ Early requests will preserve items for use later at trial, and may help frame the rest of discovery, especially depositions.

Discussion:
See § 23.143[1]

○ Party may generally serve a request for production or inspection only:

☐ After the action has been commenced by filing of complaint that commences case.

☐ After discovery conference.

☐ After deadlines for parties to make their initial disclosures.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 34(a)

Discussion:
See § 23.144

☐ Prepare a written request for production and inspection, numbered sequentially:

○ Specify duties of responding party, such as to:

☐ Conduct a reasonable search.

☐ Respond specifically and completely to each request and permit inspection to extent request is not objectionable.

☐ Supplement responses as appropriate.

☐ List privilege documents on a log.

☐ Produce documents as kept in the usual course of business.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(e), 34(b)(2)(E)

○ Define terms that will be used throughout the requests, such as the parties and specific types of documents.

○ Specify items to be produced and inspected, either:

☐ By individual item; or

☐ By category.

Forms:

See §§ 23.302, 23.303

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 34(b)

Discussion:
See § 23.145[1]

○ Specify items to be produced and inspected with particularity, with a description sufficient to enable a reasonable person to determine precisely the documents or items requested.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 34(b)(1)(A)

Discussion:
See § 23.145[2]

○ Specify a reasonable place and manner of production and inspection that does not place an unreasonable relative expense and burden on parties, such as requesting delivery of copies of documents to office of requesting party's counsel.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 34(b)(1)(B)

Discussion:
See § 23.145[3]

○ Specify a reasonable time for production and inspection.

Timing:
The requesting party may choose any reasonable time for production, provided that the date of production is at least 30 days after service of the request [Fed R Civ P 34(b)(2)(A); see 23.144[4]], plus three days if service is by mail or electronic delivery [Fed R Civ P 6(d); see Fed R Civ P 5(b)(2)(E)]. A shorter or longer time may be directed by the court or by written agreement of the parties [Fed R Civ P 34(b); see Fed R Civ P 29(b)].

Form:
See §§ 23.302, 23.303

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 34(b)(1)(B)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.144[4], 23.145[4]

○ Specify form or forms in which electronically stored information is to be produced.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 34(b)(1)(C)

Discussion:
See 23.145[2A]

☐ Certify request for production and inspection:

○ If requesting party is represented by an attorney, the request must be signed by at least one attorney of record.

○ If requesting party is not represented by an attorney, the party must sign the requests personally and state his or her address.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(g)(1), 34(b)

Discussion:
See § 23.146

☐ Serve request on all parties to the action unless the court directs otherwise.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 5(a), 34(a)

Discussion:
See § 23.147

☐ Retain custody of original of the request and original response.

Authority:
ND Cal Civ LR 26-1; ED Cal Civ LR 250.3(c); CD Cal Civ LR 34-3

Discussion:
See § 23.148

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

33 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VI. REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION AND INSPECTION
B. Requesting Production or Inspection

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.143

23.143 Options and Strategies for Requesting Party.

23.143[1] Consider Early Requests for Production or Inspection. Securing documents, electronically stored information, other tangible items, and inspection of premises early in the litigation process is advantageous because:

- Analysis of the documents, electronically stored information, and tangible items will assist in establishing facts to formulate a case and discovery strategy.
- The analysis will make for more productive and thorough depositions by allowing the requesting party to ask witnesses about the documents.
- The items may reveal other claims, crossclaims, or defenses and allow the requesting party to amend its complaint, cross-complaint, or answer.
- The items are preserved for use later at trial.

However, a party may not obtain documents merely to determine whether it has a claim for relief; all requested documents and tangibles must be relevant to a claim or defense [Caliper Techs. Corp. v. Molecular Devices Corp. (ND Cal 2003) 213 FRD 555, 558].

Timing:

A party may make a request for production only after the complaint has been filed [see Fed R Civ P 34(a); 23.144[1]].

23.143[2] Consider Motion to Shorten Time to Respond to Requests for Production or Inspection. A party generally has 30 days after the service of a request to serve a response. However, the party requesting documents may request the court to shorten the response period [Fed R Civ P 34(b)(2)(A); see Cummings v. Standard Register Co. (1st Cir 2001) 265 F3d 56, 68], or the time to respond may be shortened by agreement of the parties [Fed R Civ P

34(b)(2)(A)]. The court on its own may also set the date of the response [Garcia v. Texas Dep't of Human Servs. (WD Tex 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 23876, at *2-*3].

Timing:

Absent a court's discretionary order or agreement of the parties, a party may not be compelled to respond prior to the end of the 30-day period [Garcia v. Texas Dep't of Human Servs. (WD Tex 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 23876, at *2-*3].

Strategic Point--Requesting Party:

The requesting party should move for a response to a request for production of documents or electronically stored information or inspection of tangible objects at the earliest possible date if there is a probability that evidence could be imminently altered or destroyed, either intentionally [see Barsoum v. N.Y. City Hous. Auth. (SDNY 2001) 202 FRD 396, 399 (sanctions may be imposed under Rule 34 for spoliation of evidence)], accidently, or by the passage of time. If there is danger of this happening, also consider moving for a protective order. The court may also shorten the time for a response to enable the parties to prepare properly for a motion (e.g., a motion for preliminary injunction or an opposition to an order to show cause), trial, or another discovery deadline [see Daumer v. Allstate Ins. Co. (ED Pa 1992) 1992 US Dist LEXIS 16184, at *2-*4]. However, the requesting party must establish why a shorter time for response to meet another deadline would be reasonable [Gavenda v. Orleans County (WDNY 1997) 182 FRD 17, 20].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

34 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VI. REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION AND INSPECTION
B. Requesting Production or Inspection

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.144

23.144 Time Restrictions on Requests for Production or Inspection.

23.144[1] Request Is Premature If Made Prior to Filing of Complaint. Rule 34 is available to obtain production and access only after a civil action has been commenced by the filing of a complaint [Fed R Civ P 34(a) (Rule 34 may only be used by party to civil action); see Fed R Civ P 3]. For example, Fed R Civ P 34(a)(2) does not allow a pre-action entry on the land of another for discovery purposes [McNierney v. Long Island R.R. (SDNY 2003) 215 FRD 458, 459].

Exception:

In some circumstances, Rule 27 permits perpetuation proceedings prior to an action to preserve evidence that may be lost if not immediately preserved [see Fed R Civ P 27]. Parties may be able to use the perpetuation mechanisms of Rule 27 to submit Rule 34 requests prior to an action or pending appeal. Such Rule 34 requests may be made on a restricted basis, subject to court approval [see Martin v. Reynolds Metals Corp. (9th Cir 1961) 297 F2d 49, 56 (authorizing use of Rule 34 and Rule 35 discovery in prelitigation perpetuation)].

Cross References:

Use of Rule 27 perpetuation procedure before commencement of action, see §§ 23.03 -23.18.

Discussion of Rule 34's inapplicability before commencement of action, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 34.03[2][a] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.144[2] Request Is Premature If Made Prior to Discovery Conference. The earliest time for a Rule 34 request is governed by the interaction of Fed R Civ P 16, 26, 34 [see Fed R Civ P 34(b)], with the general rule that, absent leave of court or a written stipulation, a Rule 34 request may not be served prior to the discovery conference specified in Rule 26(f) [see Fed R Civ P 26(d)], which is used by the parties to develop a proposed discovery plan [see Fed R Civ P 26(d); SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(d)].

Timing:

After the discovery conference, the parties may control the timing of their requests for production or inspection, subject to the court's orders regarding the scheduling of discovery [see Fed R Civ P 26(d)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of Rule 16 case management conferences, see Ch. 16, Case Management Conferences.

23.144[3] Request Is Premature If Made Prior to Initial Disclosure. Rule 26(a) specifies a schedule of automatic initial disclosures by the parties, including the production of all documents, electronically stored information, and tangible items in the possession, custody, or control of the party, that the disclosing party may use to support any claim or defense [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(A)(ii); see City & County of San Francisco v. Tutor-Saliba Corp. (ND Cal 2003) 218 FRD 219, 220]. If a party requests production or inspection seeking this type of information prior to the time that the disclosures are due, the requests may be stricken as premature [see Basque Station, Inc. v. United States (D Idaho 1995) 1995 US Dist LEXIS 7085, at *6].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of impact of mandatory disclosure requirements on Rule 34 requests, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 34.02[2], 34.10[2] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.144[4] Request May Not Be Made Later Than 30 Days Prior to Discovery Deadline. In a civil action, the district court will enter a scheduling order setting the time for completion of discovery [Fed R Civ P 16(b)]. Because parties are allowed 30 days to respond to requests for production [Fed R Civ P 34(b)], requests must be served at least 30 days prior to completion of the discovery deadline [see Pratt v. Crist (9th Cir 1997) 1997 US App LEXIS 8669, at *4 (unpublished opinion; generally not citable to court under 9th Cir R 36-3)]. A party, therefore, must seek leave of court to serve Rule 34 requests that would require production or inspection after the cutoff date [Thomas v. Pacificorp (10th Cir 2003) 324 F3d 1176, 1179].

23.144[5] Request Must Set Reasonable Time for Inspection. The request for production must specify a reasonable time for inspection of the produced documents and tangible items, along with copying and testing activities. Furthermore, the time specified in the request must be at least 30 days after service of the request. However, the court may on motion permit a longer or shorter time to produce the requested documents [Fed R Civ P 34(b)(2)(A); see, e.g., Holliday v. Extex (D Haw 2006) 237 FRD 425, 427].

23.144[6] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal--Request Must Allow Time for Response Before Discovery Cutoff. In the Northern District, requests that call for a response after the discovery cutoff are not enforceable except by order of the court for good cause shown. The "discovery cutoff" is the date by which all responses to written discovery are due as set by the court [ND Cal Civ LR 26-2]. Thus, all requests must be served at least 30 days prior to the discovery cutoff [see Fed R Civ P 34(b)].

23.144[7] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal--Relief From Discovery Termination Date Requires Strong Showing. In the Eastern District, a party requesting production that will require a response after the date of discovery termination set by a status conference order must specify the grounds for relief from that order. Motions for relief are not favored and will ordinarily be denied unless the moving party makes a strong showing [ED Cal Civ LR 281(b)(13)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

35 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VI. REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION AND INSPECTION
B. Requesting Production or Inspection

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.145

23.145 Contents and Format of Request for Production or Inspection.

23.145[1] Written Request Must Specify Items Individually or by Category. A request for production or inspection must be in writing, because it must be served on the parties [see Fed R Civ P 34(a)]. The request must specify the items to be produced and inspected, either by individual item or by category [Fed R Civ P 34(b)(1)(A)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of identifying requested material by item or category in written response, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 34.11[1], [2] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.145[2] Request Must Specify Items With Reasonable Particularity. The request must set forth the items to be produced and inspected with reasonable particularity. The description should be sufficient to enable a reasonable person to determine precisely the documents requested [De Saracho v. Custom Food Mach., Inc. (9th Cir 2000) 206 F3d 874, 881 (when request referred to documents relating to litigation, it should have specified litigation between particular parties)]. A court in another circuit has stated that the test for reasonable particularity is whether the request places a party on reasonable notice of what is called for and what is not. Thus, the party requesting the production of documents must provide sufficient information to enable the served party to identify responsive documents [Bruggeman ex rel. Bruggeman v. Blagojevich (ND Ill 2004) 219 FRD 430, 436].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of "reasonable particularity," see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 34.11[3] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.145[2A] Request May Specify Form of Production of Electronically Stored Information. A request for production may specify the form or forms in which electronically stored information is to be produced [Fed R Civ P 34(b)(1)(C)].

23.145[3] Request Must Specify a Reasonable Place and Manner of Inspection. A request for production or inspection must specify a reasonable place and manner of making the inspection and performing the related acts such as copying and testing [Fed R Civ P 34(b)(1)(B)]. The parties may dispute the place and manner of inspection because of the relative expense and burden placed on the parties. The fact that production of documents might be expensive or burdensome is generally not a justification for refusing to produce or allow inspection. However, these factors may serve as the basis for a court order affecting the location or manner of the production [see Rowlin v. Alabama Dep't of Pub. Safety (MD Ala 2001) 200 FRD 459, 461-463].

Consider:

Usually the requesting party asks for copies of documents to be delivered to its counsel's office. A party requesting electronic documents should generally require that the documents be produced in electronic form, not merely printed out and produced in paper form. The electronic form contains information not available on the printed record, such as the date the document was created and edited.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of electronic discovery, see §§ 23.157 -23.188.

23.145[4] Request Must Specify a Reasonable Time for Inspection. A request for production or inspection must specify a reasonable time for making the inspection and performing the related acts such as copying, testing, and sampling [Fed R Civ P 34(b)(1)(B)].

Timing:

The requesting party may select a reasonable time, provided that the date of production is at least 30 days after service of the request [Fed R Civ P 34(b)(2)(A); see 23.144[5]], plus three days if service is by mail or electronic delivery [Fed R Civ P 6(d); see Fed R Civ P 5(b)(2)(E)].

Exception:

A shorter or longer time may be directed by the court or by written agreement of the parties, with court approval required if the agreed date conflicts with a court-ordered discovery or trial schedule [Fed R Civ P 34(b)(2)(A); see Fed R Civ P 29(b)].

23.145[5] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements--Requirements for Numbering Requests. In the Central District, the party making a request for production must number the requests sequentially, without repeating the numbers used on any prior set of requests for production propounded by that party [CD Cal Civ LR 34-1].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

36 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VI. REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION AND INSPECTION
B. Requesting Production or Inspection

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.146

23.146 Certification Is Required on Request.

If the requesting party is represented by an attorney, the request must be signed by at least one attorney of record. The attorney must include his or her address. If unrepresented, the party must sign the requests personally and state his or her address, e-mail address, and telephone number [Fed R Civ P 26(g)(1); see St. Paul Reinsurance Co. v. Commercial Fin. Corp. (ND Iowa 2000) 198 FRD 508, 515 (discovery requests governed by Rule 26(g))].

Warning:

If the attorney, or party, fails to certify the request properly, the other parties need not respond to the request, and the court will strike the request unless it is promptly signed after the requesting party has been notified of the omission [Fed R Civ P 26(g)(2).]

Cross Reference:

Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, see §§ 25.107 -25.112.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

37 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VI. REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION AND INSPECTION
B. Requesting Production or Inspection

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.147

23.147 Service of Request Is Required on All Parties.

The requesting party must serve the request on the party to whom the request is directed [Fed R Civ P 34(a)], and also on all other parties to the action unless the court directs otherwise [Fed R Civ P 5(a) (every paper relating to discovery required to be served on party must be served on each party); see Waggoner v. Trans Union, LLC (ND Tex 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 21491, at *14].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of parties entitled to service, see Ch. 5, Formatting, Serving, and Filing Papers, § 5.16.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VI. REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION AND INSPECTION
B. Requesting Production or Inspection

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.148

23.148 LOCAL PRACTICE: Requests for Production or Inspection Generally Should Not Be Filed.

23.148[1] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. In the Central District, requests for production should not ordinarily be filed with the court. Only when a request for production is required for use in a proceeding should that part of the document at issue be filed. The attorney propounding the requests must retain all requests and responses pending use, unless otherwise ordered by the court [CD Cal Civ LR 26-2; CD Cal Civ LR 34-3].

23.148[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. In the Eastern District, requests for production and responses, and proofs of service of those documents, should not be filed unless and until there is a proceeding in which the request, response, or proof of service is at issue. When required in a proceeding, only that part of the request for production, response, or proof of service at issue should be filed [ED Cal Civ LR 250.3(c)].

23.148[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. In the Northern District, the party requesting production must retain the original of the request and the original response, and is deemed the custodian of those materials [ND Cal Civ LR 26-1].

23.148[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. Local Court Rules in the Southern District do not include specific provisions regarding filing of requests.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

LexisNexis®

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VI. REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION AND INSPECTION
C. Responding to Request for Production or Inspection

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.149

23.149 CHECKLISTS: Responding to Request for Production or Inspection.

23.149[1] Checklist for Service of Response.

☐ Determine time for filing response.

Timing:

The responding party must serve a written response within 30 days after service of the request, unless the court directs otherwise or the parties agree to a shorter or longer time in writing, with court approval required if the agreed date conflicts with a prior court-ordered discovery or trial schedule [Fed R Civ P 34(b)(2)(A); see Fed R Civ P 29(b)].

Exception:

The responding party has three additional days to serve the response if service of the request was by mail or electronic delivery [Fed R Civ P 6(d); see Fed R Civ P 5(b)(2)(E)].

Authority:

Fed R Civ P 34(b)

Discussion:

See § 23.151[1]

☐ Decide which response to utilize from among three choices:

○ If party has possession, custody, or control of requested items, a response that agrees to time, place, and manner of requested production or inspection.

○ An objection to all or some of items requested, to the requested form or forms for producing electronically stored information, or to time, method, and manner of requested production or inspection, stating specific reasons for objection.

○ A response that specifies a good faith, reasonable, alternative production, and that specifies a definite scope, time, place, or manner of production.

Consider:
In appropriate circumstances, a party may object to some items of the requested production, while answering the unobjectionable items.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 34(b)

Discussion:
See § 23.150[2]

☐ Determine whether to file motion for protective order instead of or in addition to response to production or inspection request.

Standard Procedure Checklist:
Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, see § 22.35

☐ Draft response to request for production of documents or tangible items, including:

○ Specification of items individually or by category, in conformance to numbering of requests.

○ Statement for each item or category that:

☐ For electronically stored information, if objection is made to the requested form or forms for production, or if no form was specified in the request, the form or forms of production that will be used.

☐ Responding party will permit inspection and related activities as requested; or ☐ Responding party objects to request or portion of request.

Form:
See § 23.304

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 34(b)

Discussion:
See § 23.152

○ Any objections, along with a statement clearly specifying grounds, such as:

☐ Privilege.

☐ Work product.

☐ Lack of relevance to claim or defense of party, or absence of good cause to seek discovery of matter merely relevant to subject matter of action.

☐ Lack of possession, custody, and control.

☐ Failure to designate with reasonable particularity.

☐ Overly intrusive request to enter land or premises.

☐ Compliance will unfairly reveal trade secrets or other confidential information.

☐ Vague and ambiguous, unduly burdensome, or overbroad

☐ Request for testing will harm item.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 34(b)

Discussion:
See § 23.153

☐ Certify response to request for production and inspection:

○ If requesting party is represented by an attorney, request must be signed by at least one attorney of record.

○ If requesting party is not represented by an attorney, party must sign requests personally and state his or her address e-mail address, and telephone number.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(g)(1), 34(b)

Discussion:
See § 23.152[5]

☐ Serve response on requesting party, and on all other parties to the action unless the court directs otherwise.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 5(a), 34(a)

Discussion:
See § 23.154

☐ Supplement response to request, as appropriate.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(e)(2)

Discussion:
See § 23.152[7]

23.149[2] Checklist for Response.

☐ Identify requested items that responding party has in possession, custody, or control, and that are not objectionable.

☐ Produce items in requests that are not objectionable:

○ At a reasonable time specified in request or at a time agreed on by the parties.

○ At the place specified in request, if reasonable, or at a place agreed on by the parties.

☐ Make items available for inspection and related activities such as copying, photographing, and testing activities.

☐ Produce documents in either of the following ways:

○ As they are kept in the usual course of business; or

○ Organized and labeled to correspond with categories specified in request for production.

☐ Produce electronically stored information:

○ In the form or forms specified in the request.

○ If the request does not specify the form of production or if the form contained in the request is being objected to, specify a form or forms in which the information is ordinarily maintained or is reasonably usable.

Authority:

Fed R Civ P 34(b)(1)(C)

Discussion:

See § 23.156

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

40 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VI. REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION AND INSPECTION
C. Responding to Request for Production or Inspection

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.150

23.150 Options and Strategies for Responding Party.

23.150[1] Exercise Response Option Within Time Constraint. The responding party must serve some type of written response within 30 days after the service of a Rule 34 request, unless a shorter or longer time is directed by the court or agreed to in writing by the parties [Fed R Civ P 34(b)(2)(A)]. Only a written response will be effective to prevent sanctions or other potential negative effects of failure to respond to the request [see Smith v. Conway Org., Inc. (SDNY 1994) 154 FRD 73, 76 (attorney work product objection waived because objection to document request made five months after request)].

It is not unusual for the responding party to ask for an extension of time to serve written responses and/or produce. Courts expect parties to accord each other the courtesy of reasonable extensions. Also, a requesting party that refuses a reasonable extension can expect its own request for an extension or some other professional courtesy to be rejected. Thus, unless the other party has been abusive with extensions or time is pressing, it is usually appropriate to grant requests for extensions.

23.150[2] Determine How to Respond to Each Request. For each requested item, the responding party must determine how to respond based on whether the request is relevant to a claim or defense of a party, the reasonableness of the time, manner, and location of the request, the burdensomeness of the request, etc. There are three proper written responses to a Rule 34 request [see EEOC v. Safeway Store, Inc. (ND Cal 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 25200, at *2-*7]:

- If the party has possession, custody, or control of the requested items, serve a response that agrees to the time, place, and manner of the requested production or inspection.

- Serve an objection to the items requested or the time, method, and manner of the requested production or inspection, with specific reasons for the objection.

- Serve a response that specifies a good faith, reasonable, alternative production and that specifies a definite scope, time, place or manner. In appropriate circumstances, the party may object to some items of the requested production, while answering the unobjectionable items.

Warning:

A party must respond to those requests or portions of requests to which no objection is advanced. A party should not assert, for example, a privilege objection and then wait until the privilege issue is resolved before producing documents clearly not privileged but otherwise responsive.

Decision Point:

A party that objects to a particular request may still want to produce documents that it may rely on at trial.

Distinguish--Protective Order:

The responding party may obtain a protective order to obviate the need to comply with onerous terms of a request for production or inspection. However, the mere filing of a motion for a protective order does not satisfy the requirement to serve timely a written response to a request, unless the protective order is entered before the time a response is due [see Flaherty v. Seroussi (NDNY 2002) 209 FRD 300, 304].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & InspectionCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VI. REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION AND INSPECTION
C. Responding to Request for Production or Inspection

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.151

23.151 Time Limit for Written Response.

23.151[1] Time Limit Is Generally 30 Days. A party served with a request for production or inspection has 30 days to file a written response [Fed R Civ P 34(b)(2)(A)], plus an additional three days if served by mail or electronic delivery [Fed R Civ P 6(d); see Fed R Civ P 5(b)(2)(E)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of time limit for Rule 34 response, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 34.13[1] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.151[2] Time Limit May Be Altered by Court Order or by Agreement. The 30-day response period may be made shorter or longer bydirection of the court or by written agreement of the parties, with court approval required if the agreed date conflicts with a prior court-ordered discovery or trial schedule [Fed R Civ P 34(b)(2)(A); see Fed R Civ P 29(b)]. The attorneys typically work together to set a reasonable time for production without the necessity of filing a motion, but the court may set the time if necessary [see McCoy v. Southwest Airlines Co. (CD Cal 2002) 211 FRD 381, 385]. If a shorter time has not been ordered by the court or agreed to by the parties, but the requesting party has despite the rule specified a time for production that is less than the time allowed by the Rule for a response, responding party has the full 30 days to respond [Smith v. Conway Org., Inc. (SDNY 1994) 154 FRD 73, 76].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of requests for extension, see § 23.150[1].

23.151[3] Formal Response Necessary to Preclude Waiver. A party must make a written objection in its response to a party's request within the 30 days specified in Rule 34 or the objection is waived. However, all of the details concerning the objection need not be made until the requesting party brings a motion to compel. In other words, a responding party does not waive an objection raised formally later when a written response has been timely filed [Caliper Techs. Corp. v. Molecular Devices Corp. (ND Cal 2003) 213 FRD 555, 559].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

42 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VI. REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION AND INSPECTION
C. Responding to Request for Production or Inspection

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.152

23.152 Contents and Format of Response to Request for Production or Inspection.

23.152[1] Response Must Be in Writing and Specify Items Individually or by Category. A response to a request for production or inspection must be in writing, because it must be served on the parties [see Fed R Civ P 34(a)]. The response must refer to each individual item or category in the request. The response to a request for inspection must state for each item or category that inspection and related activities will be permitted as requested, unless the party objects to the request, in which event the reasons for the objection must be stated. If objection is made to only part of an item or category, that part must be specified and inspection permitted of the remaining parts [Fed R Civ P 34(b); see Collins v. JC Penney Life Ins. Co. (SD Cal 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 8455, at *6].

The response to a request for production must contain an individualized and complete response to each request, and, unless an objection is raised, be accompanied by production of the documents or electronically stored information responsive to that request [Fed R Civ P 34(b)], regardless of whether those documents, or that information, have already been produced [Louen v. Twedt (ED Cal 2006) 236 FRD 502, 505]. If there are no documents or information responsive to a request, that should be stated in the response [Louen v. Twedt (ED Cal 2006) 236 FRD 502, 505].

Consider:

If the producing party produces by category, it must still keep a set of the documents as they were maintained in the usual course of business, because it may be necessary later to know the file folder title or in whose file a document was found.

23.152[2] Response Should Conform to Designation of Items and Categories in Request. The responding party should designate each item and category in the response with the same numeral or letter as in the request, and must present the response in the same order as in the request [see Fed R Civ P 34(b)(2)(B)].

Consider:

It is helpful to reprint each request and insert the response to each request after the specific request, resulting in a document containing all requests and their corresponding responses. This precludes the need to refer to two documents to find both the requests and responses. See local practice discussion in §

23.152[6].

23.152[2A] Response Must State Form of Production of Electronically Stored Information If No Form Was Specified in Request or If Responding Party Objects to Form Specified. If the responding party objects to the requested form or forms for producing electronically stored information specified in the request, or if no form was specified in the request, the responding party must state the form or forms it intends to use to produce electronically stored information [Fed R Civ P 34(b)(2)(D)]. Unless the parties otherwise agree, or the court otherwise orders, if the request does not specify the form or forms for producing electronically stored information, the responding party must produce the information in a form or forms in which it is ordinarily maintained or in a form or forms that are reasonably usable [Fed R Civ P 34(b)(2)(E)(ii)]. The responding party need not produce the same electronically stored information in more than one form [Fed R Civ P 34(b)(2)(E)(iii)].

Consider:

If the parties cannot agree on the form of production of electronically stored information, they must meet and confer [see Fed R Civ P 37(a)(3)(B)] to attempt to resolve the matter before the requesting party can move to compel production. If the parties cannot agree, the court will not be limited to the forms chosen by either party or the forms specified in Rule 34 for situations when there is no court order or party agreement [Fed R Civ P 34(b), Committee Note of 2006].

23.152[3] Responding Party Must Clearly Specify Reasons for Each Objection. A responding party must state the specific reason for objecting for each request that is objectionable [Fed R Civ P 34(b)(2)(C)]. General, boilerplate objections at the beginning of a set of responses are not sufficient to support a refusal to produce documents or permit inspection. Likewise, a general or boilerplate objection to any individual request is improper, particularly when the objecting party fails to submit any evidentiary declarations supporting the objection in response to a motion to compel further answers [A. Farber & Partners, Inc. v. Garber (CD Cal 2006) 234 FRD 186, 188]. For example, a claim of privilege must be made and sustained on a question-by-question or document-by-document basis; a blanket claim of privilege is unacceptable [Burlington N. & Santa Fe Ry. v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 2005) 408 F3d 1142, 1149 , cert. denied, 546 US 939 (2005) ; In re Air Crash at Taipei (CD Cal 2002) 211 FRD 374, 376 ; see 23.153 (grounds for refusal to produce or allow inspection)].

23.152[4] Responding Party Must Comply With Unobjectionable Parts of Request. If an item or category is objectionable only in part, the responding party must comply with the unobjectionable portions of the request [Fed R Civ P 33(b)(2)(C); ED Cal Civ LR 250.3(b)]. A party failing to specify the parts of the request to which the objections apply may be held to have waived any objections not adequately stated [see McCoy v. Southwest Airlines Co. (CD Cal 2002) 208 FRD 617, 621]. When a responding party makes noncomplying objections, the court also has the option to require that the responding party state its objection more completely or clearly [Harris v. United States (WDNC 1988) 121 FRD 652, 655].

23.152[5] Certification of Response. If the responding party is represented by an attorney, the response must be signed by at least one attorney of record. The attorney must include his or her address, e-mail address, and telephone number. If unrepresented, the party must certify the response by signing personally and stating his or her address [Fed R Civ P 26(g)(1)].

Warning:

If the attorney, or party, fails to certify the response properly, the response may be treated as ineffective, and objections asserted in the response may be deemed waived [United States v. Philip Morris Inc. (DC Cir 2003) 347 F3d 951, 954], unless the response is promptly signed after the requesting party has been notified of the omission [Fed R Civ P 26(g)(2)].

23.152[6] LOCAL PRACTICE: Format of Response.

23.152[6][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. In the Central District, the party responding or objecting to requests for production must quote each request for production in full immediately preceding the statement of any response or objection to the statement [CD Cal Civ LR 34-2].

23.152[6][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. In the Eastern District, a response to a request for production must set forth each request in full before each response [ED Cal Civ LR 250.3(a)]. A responding party must include a statement of reasons for each objection to any request for production and, if appropriate, citation to relevant authority [ED Cal Civ LR 250.3(b); see Fed R Civ P 33(b)(2)(C)].

23.152[6][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. In the Northern District, a response to a request for production or inspection made pursuant to Rule 34(a) must set forth each request in full before each response or objection [ND Cal Civ LR 34-1].

23.152[6][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. Local Court Rules in the Southern District do not include specific provisions regarding format of responses to requests for production.

23.152[7] Supplementation of Responses. If a party acquires material additional information or learns that information submitted was materially incorrect after submitting Rule 34 responses, and that additional information is not otherwise known to the propounding party, the responding party has a duty to supplement or amend its responses [Fed R Civ P 26(e)(1)(A)].

The court may impose sanctions for failure to supplement responses to Rule 34 requests [see Fed R Civ P 37(c)(1)].

Cross References:

Discussion of the duty to supplement and amend discovery responses, see Ch. 21, Discovery Strategy and Planning, § 21.06[7]; Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, §§ 25.50 -25.53.

Continuing duty to supplement, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 26.131 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VI. REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION AND INSPECTION
C. Responding to Request for Production or Inspection

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.153

23.153 Grounds for Refusal to Produce or Allow Inspection.

23.153[1] Privilege.

23.153[1][a] Requirements of Privilege Claim. A party need not under Rule 34 produce privileged or attorney work product material [Fed R Civ P 34(a); see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(1)]. A party withholding information under a claim of privilege or work product must make the claim expressly and describe the nature of the documents withheld in a manner that enables the requesting party to assess the claim [Jackson v. County of Sacramento (ED Cal 1997) 175 FRD 653, 655-656 ; see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(5)(A)]. This is usually done by producing a privilege log [see 23.153[1][b] (discussion of privilege log)].

23.153[1][b] Methods of Establishing Privilege Claim. A party asserting a privilege must make a prima facie showing that the privilege protects the information it intends to withhold from production; this may be done through a privilege log or, if ordered by the court, an in camera review [Caliper Techs. Corp. v. Molecular Devices Corp. (ND Cal 2003) 213 FRD 555, 562-563]. A privilege log is a list of documents or other items with a substantiation of a privilege claim on an item-by-item basis, without disclosing the contents of the items [Safeco Ins. Co. of Am. v. Rawstrom (CD Cal 1998) 183 FRD 668, 670].

Example:

For each document that the responding party claims is protected, a typical privilege log contains [Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. v. Kirk's Tire & Auto Servicenter of Haverstraw, Inc. (D Kan 2003) 211 FRD 658, 661]:

- A description of the document, for example, whether it is a letter or a memo;
- The date the document was prepared or notations made;
- The identification of the person who prepared the document or made the notations on the document, including if that person is an attorney;

- The person for whom the document was prepared, and other recipients, including if they are attorneys;

- The purpose of preparing the document or making the notations;

- The number of pages of each document; and

- The basis for withholding discovery.

Trap:

The protection of a privileged communication is extinguished by disclosure to another person, including the opposing party; consequently, the party claiming privilege should not specify in a privilege log the actual contents of the communication--an in camera review may be necessary [see Kasza v. Browner (9th Cir 1998) 133 F3d 1159, 1169]. A party should be careful to disclose only what is necessary to establish the privilege, and nothing more.

Strategic Point--Party Receiving Privilege Log:

A party receiving a privilege log should carefully examine it to determine whether documents and other items listed are being legitimately withheld.

Strategic Point--Responding Party:

Because compiling a privilege log within the 30-day period may be exceedingly difficult, the responding party should attempt at the earliest possible time, and certainly no later than before the 30-day response period, to secure an appropriate agreement or stipulation from the relevant parties. If that fails, apply for a discovery or protective order [Burlington N. & Santa Fe Ry. v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 2005) 408 F3d 1142, 1149 n3 , cert. denied, 163 L Ed2d 326 (2005)].

Judge's Perspective:

Enough information must be provided such that on review it will be obvious that the matter addressed involves the request for or receipt of legal advice. This may be supplied, for example, by the "Re:" line of a letter or the table of contents of a document. The author and all recipients of the document, which must be disclosed, may also reflect the likely privileged nature of the document when counsel appear to have been involved in its creation or circulation.

An attorney that is merely a "cc" recipient of a document should provide a more detailed description of the general nature and subject matter of the item in the privilege log. Courts are prone to be wary of entries that involve counsel only as a "cc" in light of the danger that a party has attempted to create privilege improperly by simply passing the document through counsel's hands. Likewise, in scrutinizing an opponent's privilege log, pay particular attention to "cc only" entries.

Warning:

The failure to produce a privilege log (or make an otherwise satisfactory demonstration of privilege) within the 30-day response period will not result in a per se waiver of the privilege. However, if a log is not produced within that time frame, the district court will make a case-by-case determination as to whether privilege has been waived. The court may consider the following factors in evaulating waiver [see Burlington N. & Santa Fe Ry. v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 2005) 408 F3d 1142, 1149 , cert. denied, 163 L Ed2d 326 (2005)]:

- The degree to which the objection or assertion of privilege enables the litigant seeking discovery and the court to evaluate whether each of the withheld items is privileged.

- The timeliness of the objection and accompanying information about the withheld documents; service within 30 days is sufficient.

- The magnitude of the document production.

- Other circumstances of the case that influence the difficulty of responding to discovery.

Note, however, that privilege logs are exchanged in the ordinary course by agreement or stipulation, but not generally within the 30-day period allowed for responding to a document request. The district court's determination of waiver will be subject to agreements or stipulations among the parties, as well as applicable local rules and any existing discovery or protective orders [Burlington N. & Santa Fe Ry. v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 2005) 408 F3d 1142, 1149 , cert. denied, (2005)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of privileges, see Ch. 24, Restrictions on Scope and Extent of Discovery: Privileges and Work Product Protection, §§ 24.12 -24.93.

23.153[2] Work Product. To establish work product protection, the material in question must (1) be a document, item of electronically stored information or tangible thing, (2) which was prepared in anticipation of litigation, and (3) was prepared by or for a party, or by or for its representative. If the conditions are satisfied, the burden shifts and the party seeking discovery must show substantial need for the materials and the inability without undue hardship to obtain the substantial equivalent of the materials by an alternative method. Opinion work product, which contains counsel's mental impressions or legal strategies, "enjoys nearly absolute immunity and can be discovered only in very rare circumstances" [Garcia v. City of El Centro (SD Cal 2003) 214 FRD 587, 591 ; see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(3)]. A party's assertion of work product must be express and must describe the nature of the documents, communications, electronically stored information, or things not produced or disclosed in a manner that, without revealing information itself privileged or protected, will enable other parties to assess the applicability of work-product protection [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(5)(A)], such as by producing a privilege log.

Cross References:

Discussion of work product doctrine, see Ch. 24, Restrictions on Scope and Extent of Discovery: Privileges and Work Product Protection, §§ 24.94 -24.102. Discussion of privilege log, see § 23.153[1][b].

23.153[3] Lack of Relevance to Claim or Defense of Party. A party may not request production or access to documents, electronically stored information, and tangible items that are not relevant either to the claim or defense of any party or, with good cause shown, to the subject matter involved in the action [Fed R Civ P 34(a); see Fed R Civ P 26(b)]. Consequently, irrelevance is a ground to object to a request, and should be stated clearly. However, a bare assertion that the discovery requested is irrelevant is ordinarily insufficient to bar production. The responding party must justify its objection by stating why the information is irrelevant [see Collins v. JC Penney Life Ins. Co. (SD Cal 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 8455, at *6].

23.153[4] Lack of Possession, Custody, or Control.

23.153[4][a] Party Must Produce Only Items in Its Possession, Custody, or Control. A party may not be compelled to produce items that are not within either its possession, custody, or control [see Fed R Civ P 34(a)(1)], and a party may object to any request for production of items the party does not possess, have in its custody, or control [Collins v. JC Penney Life Ins. Co. (SD Cal 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 8455, at *6-*7 ; Italia di Navigazione, S.P.A. v. M.V. Hermes I (SDNY 1983) 564 F Supp 492, 495 , aff'd, 724 F2d 21 (2d Cir 1983) ; see Fed R Civ P 34(b)]. The party seeking production of Material bears the burden of showing that the Material is in the possession, custody, or control of the responding party [United States v. International Union of Petroleum & Indus. Workers, AFL-CIO (9th Cir 1989) 870 F2d 1450, 1452 (case involved subpoena for records)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of possession, custody, or control, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 34.14[2][a] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.153[4][b] Nature of Possession, Custody, or Control. For purposes of Rule 34, "possession" means physical retention with proximity to the item; legal ownership is not required [Fed R Civ P 34(a)(1)]. "Custody" means the party has an official responsibility to keep the item secure [see Kessler Exp. Corp. v. Reliance Ins. Co. (EDNY 1962) 207 F Supp 355, 360]. "Control" over the item means the party has the legal right to obtain the items requested on demand [7-Up Bottling Co. v. Archer Daniels Midland Co (9th Cir 1999) 191 F3d 1090, 1107 , cert. denied, 529 US 1037 (2000) ("[P]roof of theoretical control is insufficient; a showing of actual control is required"); United States v. International Union of Petroleum & Indus. Workers, AFL-CIO (9th Cir 1989) 870 F2d 1450, 1452]. This test must be applied broadly, and, when objecting to production on this basis, the responding party must clearly show that it has no legal right to the requested document or item [In re ATM Fee Antitrust Litig. (ND Cal 2005) 233 FRD 542, 544-545 ; In re Legato Sys., Inc. (ND Cal 2001) 204 FRD 167, 168-169].

Examples:

- The Ninth Circuit has stated that a corporation must produce documents or items possessed by any subsidiary that the parent corporation owns or wholly controls [United States v. International Union of Petroleum & Indus. Workers, AFL-CIO (9th Cir 1989) 870 F2d 1450, 1452], bearing in mind that the responding party's obligation to conduct a reasonably inquiry into the factual basis of it responses to discovery creates an affirmative duty to seek out information reasonably available to it from those subject to its control [A. Farber & Partners, Inc. v. Garber (CD Cal 2006) 234 FRD 186, 189 ; see Gray v. Faulkner (ND Ind 1992) 148 FRD 220, 223];

- Even though an individual agent or custodian of record of a corporate party is not a "party" subject to Rule 34 production, the corporation has control over the records sufficient to require the corporation itself to produce the records [Comcast of Los Angeles, Inc. v. Top End Int'l (CD Cal 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 18640, at *13].

- In a securities case, the court held that, because a defendant was entitled by regulation to a copy of the transcript of his testimony before the Securities and Exchange Commission, the defendant had a legal right to the transcript on demand; therefore, the transcript was within the defendant's control and subject to production [In re Legato Sys., Inc. (ND Cal 2001) 204 FRD 167, 168-169].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of nature of possession, custody, or control, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 34.12[2][b]

(Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.153[4A] Electronically Stored Information Is Not Readily Accessible. The responding party need not provide discovery of electronically stored information from sources that it identifies as not reasonably accessible because of undue burden or cost. On motion to compel discovery or for a protective order, the responding party from whom discovery is sought bears the burden of making that showing. If that showing is made, the court may still order discovery from those sources if the requesting party shows good cause, and may specify conditions for the discovery. In making a good cause determination, the court will consider the generally applicable limitations on discovery imposed by Rule 26(b)(2)(C) [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)(B)].

Cross Reference:

Generally applicable limitations on discovery imposed by Rule 26(b)(2)(C), 23.153[5].

23.153[5] Other Objections. Generally, a party may request production of materials within the scope of discovery allowed by Rule 26(b)(1) [Fed R Civ P 34(a)]. However, a court may limit discovery if "(i) the discovery sought is unreasonably cumulative or duplicative, or can be obtained from some other source that is more convenient, less burdensome, or less expensive; (ii) the party seeking discovery has had ample opportunity to obtain the information by discovery in the action; or (iii) the burden or expense of the proposed discovery outweighs its likely benefit" [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)(C); see EEOC v. United States Bakery (D Or 2004) 2004 US Dist LEXIS 11350, at *5-*6 (motion to compel inspection denied because it would likely unnecessarily disrupt defendant's operations)].

Examples:

Plaintiff requested every report prepared for an insurance company by its engineering expert. The court found that the likely value of the discovery to the plaintiff was outweighed by the burden to be imposed on the defendant [Ricotta v. Allstate Ins. Co. (SD Cal 2002) 211 FRD 622, 623-624].

Defendant requested an ADA plaintiff to produce file-stamped copies of all complaints filed by plaintiff in federal or state court since January 1, 2002. Plaintiff objected that this was too burdensome as the more than 200 complaints filed on his behalf each consisted of a minimum of 10 pages. Plaintiff also objected on the grounds that the complaints were public records accessible to the defense. The court granted the defense motion to compel but limited it to complaints filed in California since January 1, 2003, and limited the pages to be produced of each to page one through the page that includes the identity and location of the establishment visited and the date of the visit. Defendant was also ordered to reimburse plaintiff for the cost of production [Molski v. Franklin (SD Cal 2004) 222 FRD 433, 437].

Boilerplate or generalized objections to Rule 34 discovery requests to the effect that the requests are vague, ambiguous, or overly broad are generally insufficient [Burlington N. & Santa Fe Ry. v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir 2005) 408 F3d 1142, 1149 , cert. denied, 546 US 939 (2005) ; EEOC v. Safeway Store, Inc. (ND Cal 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 25200, at *4-*5]. Parties, however, may make specific, fact-based objections in this regard [see, e.g., Caliper Techs. Corp. v. Molecular Devices Corp. (ND Cal 2003) 213 FRD 555, 558 (responding party claimed that document request was overbroad)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & InspectionCivil ProcedureDiscoveryPrivileged MattersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryPrivileged MattersAttorney-Client PrivilegeCivil ProcedureDiscoveryPrivileged MattersWork ProductGeneral Overview

44 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VI. REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION AND INSPECTION
C. Responding to Request for Production or Inspection

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.154

23.154 Service of Response Required on All Parties.

The responding party must serve the response on the party who requested the production [Fed R Civ P 34(b)], and also on all other parties to the action, unless the court directs otherwise [see Fed R Civ P 5(a)(1)(C) (every paper relating to discovery required to be served on party must be served on each party); see also Waggoner v. Trans Union, LLC (ND Tex 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 21491, at *14].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of parties entitled to service, see Ch. 5, Formatting, Serving, and Filing Papers, § 5.16.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VI. REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION AND INSPECTION
C. Responding to Request for Production or Inspection

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.155

23.155 Motion for Protective Order.

The recipient of a request for production or inspection may move the court where the action is pending for a protective order to prevent all or part of the production or inspection [Collins v. JC Penney Life Ins. Co. (SD Cal 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 8455, at *6-*7 ; see Fed R Civ P 26(c)]. To obtain a protective order, the moving party must show good cause, and must certify that the moving party has in good faith conferred or attempted to confer with other affected parties in an effort to resolve the discovery dispute without court action [Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)].

Cross Reference:

Detailed discussion of protective orders, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, §§ 22.35 -22.66.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & InspectionCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VI. REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION AND INSPECTION
C. Responding to Request for Production or Inspection

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.156

23.156 Production of Documents, Electronically Stored Information, or Tangible Items by Responding Party.

23.156[1] Place of Production. The request for production must specify a reasonable place for inspection, copying, and testing of the produced documents, electronically stored information, and tangible items. When the parties cannot agree on a reasonable place, the court may order the requesting party to conduct the inspection at a reasonable location, considering factors such as [see In re Dow Corning Corp. (ED Mich 2000) 250 BR 298, 320-321]:

- The distance from the parties' locations.
- Whether the amount of materials requested would make copying and transporting burdensome or expensive.
- Whether the materials are needed by the responding party to transact its business.

23.156[2] Manner of Production. The responding party must produce documents for inspection in either of the following ways [Fed R Civ P 34(b); see, e.g., Sunrich, Inc. v. Pac. Foods of Or., Inc. (D Or 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 8186, at *5-*6]:

- As they are kept in the usual course of business; or
- Organized and labeled to correspond with categories specified in the request for production.

Typically, documents are stamped or labeled with a sequential letter and numeric designation known as a "Bates stamp" or "document control number" to provide a means to record those documents that have been produced and to identify the documents for future reference [see Foltz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 2003) 331 F3d 1122, 1139-1140].

Strategic Point--Responding Party:

Counsel should remove privileged and nonresponsive documents before Bates stamping a set of documents. If the documents are Bates stamped first, with privileged and nonresponsive documents removed later, there will be gaps in the numbering, which will raise questions about why documents have been withheld.

Judge's Perspective:

In almost every case of any size, parties stipulate to a protective order (not to be confused with a motion of the same name), signed by the court, that governs access to produced documents. The protective order provides different levels of access: "confidential," "attorney's eyes only," etc. For an example, see the Northern District's Stipulated Protective Order at the court's website, www.cand.uscourts.gov.

The responding party must produce electronically stored information in the form or forms specified in the request, or in the form or forms specified in the response [Fed R Civ P 34(b)(2)(E)(ii)]. Unless the parties otherwise agree, or the court otherwise orders, if the request does not specify the form or forms for producing electronically stored information, the responding party must produce the information in a form or forms in which it is ordinarily maintained or in a form or forms that are reasonably usable [Fed R Civ P 34(b)(ii)]. Under some circumstances, the responding party may need to provide a reasonable amount of technical support, information on application software, or other assistance to enable the requesting party to use the information [Fed R Civ P 34(b), Committee Note of 2006]. The responding party need not produce the same electronically stored information in more than one form [Fed R Civ P 34(b)(2)(E)(iii)].

Cross References:

Discussion of manner of Rule 34 production, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 34.14[3] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Discussion of protective orders stipulated between the parties governing access to produced documents, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, §§ 22.11 -22.12; 22.52[1].

23.156[3] Inspection and Copying of Produced Material.

23.156[3][a] Access to Produced Material. The responding party must produce and permit the requesting party to inspect and copy any designated documents, electronically stored information, and other tangibles, including writings, drawings, graphs, charts, photographs, sound recordings, images, and other data or data compilations. If necessary, the responding party must translate any electronically stored information included in the request into reasonably usable form [Fed R Civ P 34(b)(2)(E)(ii)]. However, Rule 34 does not grant unrestricted, direct access to a responding party's electronically stored information, nor does it give the requesting party the right to conduct the actual search. Rather, Rule 34 allows a requesting party to inspect and to copy the product, whether it be a document, disk, or other device resulting from the responding party's translation of the data into a reasonably usable form [In re Ford Motor Co. (11th Cir 2003) 345 F3d 1315, 1316-1317].

Consider:

If the responding party produces copies of documents, the requesting party may still need to see the originals--for example, if the copies are difficult to read.

23.156[3][b] Court May Direct Manner of Production. The court may direct that the requesting party itself check the accuracy of a produced data compilation, for example, due to improper conduct on the part of the responding party. On the other hand, a district court must protect the responding party with respect to preservation of records and confidentiality of non-discoverable matters [In re Ford Motor Co. (11th Cir 2003) 345 F3d 1315, 1316-1317].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of court discretion to direct manner of production or inspection, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 34.14[4] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.156[4] Testing of Produced Tangible Items. The requesting party is generally entitled to test or sample the tangible items produced in response to a request for production [Fed R Civ P 34(a)(2)]. However, if a test or sample would entirely or partially destroy the tangible item, the court may preclude testing or control the manner of testing to ensure that evidence is preserved and the rights of the responding party are protected. In the case of destructive testing, the court applies a balancing test between the "costs" of the alteration of the object and the "benefits" of ascertaining the true facts of the case. Alternative means of ameliorating those "costs" and alternative non-destructive means of obtaining the facts should be considered in evaluating the benefits of destructive tests [Hawthorne v. Michelin Tire Corp. (9th Cir 1996) 1996 US App LEXIS 29105, at *12 (unpublished opinion; generally not citable to court under 9th Cir R 36-3), citing Cameron v. District Court of First Judicial Dist. (Colo. Sup. Ct. 1977), 193 Colo. 286, 565 P.2d 925, 929].

Example:

The court considered the following factors in its determination to allow a destructive test of a failed section of rope: The test consisted of only one cut in the curvature of the failed section of the rope; the rope was photographed and videotaped prior to testing; both parties had the opportunity to attend and observe the testing; experts for both parties could also conduct tests on the severed piece of rope; and the inspection and test took place at a mutually agreed on testing facility [see Nugent v. Hercules Offshore Corp. (ED La 1999) 1999 US Dist LEXIS 20122, at *3].

23.156[5] Responsibility for Expenses of Production and Inspection of Documents, Electronically Stored Information, and Tangible Items.

23.156[5][a] Presumed Responsibility for Expenses. Ordinarily, the expenses of complying with requests for production are allocated as follows [OpenTV v. Liberate Techs. (ND Cal 2003) 219 FRD 474, at 476-477]:

- The responding party pays the expense of complying with discovery requests by producing and providing access to the material, including the expense of converting data compilations into a usable form through the required use of the responding party's devices [see L.A. County Employees Ret. Ass'n v. Towers, Perrin, Forster & Crosby, Inc. (CD Cal 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 10233, at *7].

- The responding party pays the expense of inspecting, copying, and testing the requested material [see Illinois Tool Works, Inc. v. Coltec Indus. (ND Ill 1998) 31 F Supp2d 1044, 1050].

Exception:

The court may vary the presumed expense responsibilities, and require either party to pay discovery expenses related to Rule 34 production, under a cost shifting analysis [see OpenTV v. Liberate Techs. (ND Cal 2003) 219 FRD 474, 476-477 ; see 23.156[5][b]].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of costs of tasks associated with production, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 34.14[5] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.156[5][b] Discretion of Court to Shift Costs. A court may shift the presumed cost of Rule 34 production [see 23.156[5][a]] when the presumed allocation of cost would impose an undue burden on the party who is responsible for the particular expense [see Fed R Civ P 26(b); see also OpenTV v. Liberate Techs. (ND Cal 2003) 219 FRD 474, 477]. Thus, cost shifting may be appropriate when the responding party must search inaccessible data, which is expensive to produce [see Zubulake v. UBS Warburg LLC (SDNY 2003) 216 FRD 280, 284]. The court should analyze the following factors to determine whether to apply cost-shifting [see Fed R Civ P 26(b); OpenTV v. Liberate Techs. (ND Cal 2003) 219 FRD 474, 476-477 ; see also Zubulake v. UBS Warburg LLC (SDNY 2003) 216 FRD 280, 284]:

- The degree to which the request is specifically tailored to discover relevant information;
- The availability of requested information from other sources;
- The total cost of production, compared to the amount in dispute;
- The total cost of production, compared to the resources available to each party;
- The relative ability of each party to control costs and its incentive to do so;
- The importance of the issues at stake in the litigation; and
- The relative benefits to the parties of obtaining the information.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of shifting of costs for discovery of electronic information, see § 23.174.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VII. DISCOVERY OF ELECTRONICALLY STORED INFORMATION
A. Making Requests for Electronically Stored Information

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.157

23.157 CHECKLIST: Making Requests for Electronically Stored Information.

☐ Identify sources of discoverable electronically stored information, such as:

- ○ Email.
- ○ Voicemail.
- ○ Computer hard drives.
- ○ Network servers.
- ○ Laptops.
- ○ Employee's home computer.
- ○ Peripheral storage devices.
- ○ PDAs.
- ○ DVDs.

- ○ CDs.
- ○ Back-up tapes or other back-up systems.
- ○ Archived files.
- ○ Deleted files.
- ○ Electronic bulletin boards.

Authority:
Fed. R. Civ. P. 26, 34

Discussion:
See § 23.158

☐ Address scope of discovery of electronically stored information at discovery planning conference or pretrial conference.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 16, 26(f)

Discussion:
See § 23.159

☐ Inform opposing party of duty to preserve relevant evidence in form of electronically stored information.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26

Discussion:
See § 23.160

Form:
See § 23.307

☐ Obtain stipulated preservation order, or move for preservation order if consent to stipulation cannot be obtained.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 37

Discussion:
See § 23.161[3]

☐ Seek sanctions if responding party failed to preserve evidence.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 37(b); William T. Thompson Co. v. General Nutrition Corp. (CD Cal 1984) 593 F Supp 1443, 1455

Discussion:
See § 23.161[4]

☐ Use interrogatories to discover details of opposing party's electronic information systems, and document retention and back-up policies.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 33

Discussion:
See § 23.162[1]

Form:
See § 23.308

☐ Depose opposing party's person most knowledgeable about electronic information systems, back-ups, record management, storage, destruction and retention policies, and parties responsible for those activities.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 30

Discussion:
See § 23.162[2]

☐ Request inspection of computers, network, and other electronic storage equipment.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 34

Discussion:
See § 23.162[3]

☐ Request production of computer records and other electronically stored information.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 34

Discussion:
See § 23.162[4]

Form:
See § 23.309

☐ Follow up with requests for after-acquired or discovered computer records or other electronically stored information.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(e)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.135 -23.156, 23.162[5]

☐ Move to compel further responses or production, if necessary.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 34(b)

Discussion:
See § 23.163

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

48 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VII. DISCOVERY OF ELECTRONICALLY STORED INFORMATION
A. Making Requests for Electronically Stored Information

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.158

23.158 Electronically Stored Information Is Discoverable.

23.158[1] Electronically Stored Information Is Subject to Discovery. Email and other electronically stored information is subject to the disclosure requirements of Rule 26(a)(1) [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)], as well as discovery by a Rule 34 production request [Fed R Civ P 34(a)] or a Rule 45 subpoena [Fed R Civ P 45].

Distinguish:

Rule 34 procedures apply only to production from parties. Rule 45 procedures apply to production of documents from nonparties [Fed R Civ P 34(a), 45(d)(1); see 23.175].

Cross References:

Discussion of disclosure requirements of Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1), see Ch. 15, Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures. Discussion of matter subject to production under Fed R Civ P 34, see 23.135 -23.156.

Strategic Point:

Use the Internet and public filings (for publicly held corporations) to obtain financial and other background information on the opposing party that will aid you in mapping out your overall discovery strategy [see Westlands Water Dist. v. United States (ED Cal 2001) 153 F Supp2d 1133, 1143 n9 ("Internet citations are appropriate for background information")]. Evidence obtained through informal investigation is not subject to discovery rules and also may be useful in impeaching witnesses.

Cross Reference:

Using online resources to obtain public records, see Ch. 21, Discovery Strategy and Planning, § 21.05[6][b].

Consider:

Counsel should conduct a thorough Internet search of the client, as well as a thorough review of the client's websites, to discover what public information about the client is available to the opposing party.

Current Analysis of E-Discovery and Digital Document Retention:

Use Mealey's Litigation Reports to find current analysis of e-discovery and digital document retention:

- Legal tab> Secondary Legal> Mealey Reports> Reports by Practice Area> Litigation> Electronic Discovery: Mealey's Combined Reports

  - Sample Search: To find current analysis of e-discovery and digital document retention, enter the Terms and Connectors search: electronic or digital or computer! or e-discovery and document or data /3 storage or retention.

23.158[2] Types of Electronically Stored Information That Are Subject to Discovery. Computer records and other electronically stored information encompass many types of data, including voicemail, email, deleted email, data files, program files, back-up files, archival tapes, temporary files, system history files, website information in textual, graphical, or audio format, website files, cache files, "cookies," and other information not visible in a printed document, as well as computer tapes and hard drives.

Strategic Point:

The responding party may use an Internet service provider (ISP) or post messages to an electronic bulletin board or chat room. Be sure to request information about these potential sources of evidence in the initial interrogatories.

Cross Reference:

Checklist and forms for discovery from third parties, see §§ 23.259 -23.285, 23.317 -23.320.

23.158[3] "Deleted" Electronically Stored Information Is Discoverable. The residual data remaining when electronically stored information is "deleted" is also discoverable [see Playboy Enters. v. Welles (SD Cal 1999) 60 F Supp2d 1050, 1053 ; Simon Prop. Group, L.P. v. mySimon, Inc. (SD Ind 2000) 194 F.R.D. 639, 640]. However, recovery of deleted files can be expensive and the responding party may obtain a protective order or an order for cost-shifting if the burden is undue [see 23.173 (protective order), 23.174 (order shifting costs)].

Strategic Point--Responding Party:

Unless the requesting party can demonstrate a substantial need for it, a responding party does not ordinarily have a duty to take steps to try to restore data that has been deleted in the regular course of business, but that may not have been completely erased from computer memory [see Fed R Civ P 37(e); see also Am. Bar Ass'n Civil Discovery Standards 29(a)(iii) (2002)].

Example:

To establish a substantial need to restore deleted material, the requesting party would at a minimum be expected to identify specific items that pertain directly to a central issue in the litigation. For example, in a breach of contract action, written materials presented at a meeting where the decision was made by a party to enter into the contract would be a likely candidate for requiring the restoration of that deleted data [see, e.g., Playboy Enters. v. Welles (SD Cal 1999) 60 F Supp2d 1050, 1055].

23.158[4] Discovery of Electronically Stored Information Relied on by Experts.

23.158[4][a] Data Relied on by Testifying Expert Must Be Disclosed. Included in the information that must be provided along with the identity of any testifying expert is the data or other information considered by that expert in forming the opinions the expert intends to express [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2)(B)]. This includes any electronically stored information relied on by the expert in forming an opinion. The request for electronically stored information relied on by the opposing party's expert should require a limited search by the responding party and the likely benefits of the information should clearly outweigh the cost and burden of production.

Cross Reference:

Checklist and forms for disclosure of expert testimony, see Ch. 15, Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures, §§ 15.27 -15.34, 15.39.

23.158[4][b] Data Relied on by Non-Testifying Expert Is Discoverable Only Under Exceptional Circumstances. Data relied on by a non-testifying expert is discoverable "on showing exceptional circumstances under which it is impracticable for the party to obtain facts or opinions on the same subject by other means" [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(4)(B)]. The requesting party is required to pay the responding party a fair portion of the fees and expenses reasonably incurred by the responding party in obtaining facts and opinions from the expert to comply with the request [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(4)(C)].

23.158[5] Production in Specific Format May Be Requested. The requesting party may ask for production of electronically stored information in one or more specific formats, such as hard-copy printouts, on diskettes, or posted to a website [see Fed R Civ P 34(b)]. Although production of information in "hard-copy" document form does not preclude a party from receiving that same information in computerized/electronic form [*see Anti-Monopoly, Inc. v. Hasbro, Inc. (SDNY 1995) 1995 US Dist LEXIS 16355, at *2-4], unless the parties agree or the court orders otherwise, a party need not produce the same electronically stored information in more than one format [Fed R Civ P 34(b)(2)(E)(iii)].

Consider:

If the costs of production in an alternative format are not proportional to the benefit to the requesting party, the court may order cost-shifting [see § 23.174].

23.158[6] Request Electronically Stored Information in Electronic Format. Request the electronically stored information in electronic format. This provides several benefits. First, electronically stored information often contains data that is not present when the data is printed out. For instance, some word processing programs can show when the document was first created, who created it, when edits were made to the document, and who made the edits [see, e.g., Nova Measuring Instruments Ltd. v. Nanometrics, Inc. (ND Cal 2006) 417 F Supp2d 1121, 1122 (ordering documents produced in their native file format with original metadata)]. Second, electronically stored information is searchable electronically. For instance, a large collection of e-mails in electronic form can be searched for specific words, and can be arranged in various orders such as by date, recipient, or sender. Also, e-mails may have attachments. If the e-mails are produced in printed form, it may be difficult to determine which attachments belong to which e-mails. If requesting electronically stored information in electronic format, make sure that you have the programs necessary to access and use the data. If not, be sure to request the necessary programs from the responding party.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryElectronic DiscoveryDiscoverabilityCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VII. DISCOVERY OF ELECTRONICALLY STORED INFORMATION
A. Making Requests for Electronically Stored Information

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.159

23.159 Pre-Service Discovery May Be Available Under Limited Circumstances to Discover Identity of Doe Defendant Who Committed Tortious Acts On-Line Anonymously or Pseudonymously.

Tortious acts, such as defamation and trademark infringement, can be committed entirely online, and the tortfeasor can act anonymously or pseudonymously. The plaintiff will need discovery of the facts sufficient to identify the tortfeasor from the ISP, a third party who itself may be immune from suit under federal law [Columbia Ins. Co. v. Seescandy.com (ND Cal 1999) 185 FRD 573, 577-578 ; see 23.175 (discovery from third parties)]. As a general rule, discovery takes place after the defendant has been served, but in limited circumstances pre-service discovery is available to permit the plaintiff to learn identifying facts which will allow service on the defendant [see Gillespie v. Civiletti (9th Cir 1980) 629 F2d 637, 642 ; Columbia Ins. Co. v. Seescandy.com (ND Cal 1999) 185 FRD 573, 577].

The following principles apply to the determination of whether discovery to uncover the identity of a defendant is warranted [Columbia Ins. Co. v. Seescandy.com (ND Cal 1999) 185 FRD 573, 578-580]:

- The plaintiff must identify the Doe defendant with specificity sufficient to permit the court to determine that the defendant is a real person or entity who can be sued in federal court.

- The plaintiff must identify all steps already taken to locate the Doe defendant.

- The plaintiff must establish that its suit against the Doe defendant would withstand a motion to dismiss [see Rocker Mgmt. v. Doe (ND Cal 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 16277, at *3].

- The plaintiff must file a discovery request with the court, along with a statement of reasons justifying the specific discovery requested as well as identification of a limited number of persons or entities on whom discovery process might be served and for which there is a reasonable likelihood that the discovery process will lead to identifying information about the Doe defendant that would make service of process possible.

Cross Reference:

Checklist and forms for discovery from third parties, see §§ 23.259 -23.285, 23.317 -23.320.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsPerpetuation of Testimony

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VII. DISCOVERY OF ELECTRONICALLY STORED INFORMATION
A. Making Requests for Electronically Stored Information

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.160

23.160 Address Discovery of Electronically Stored Information Early in Litigation.

23.160[1] Rule 26(a)(1) Requires Disclosure of Electronically Stored Information. Parties should address the discovery of computer records and other electronically stored information early in the case. With limited exceptions, initial disclosure requires parties to provide each other with a copy of, or a description by category and location of, all documents, electronically stored information and tangible things that are in the possession, custody, or control of that party and that the disclosing party may use to support its claims or defenses, unless solely for impeachment [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(A)(ii)].

Rule 26(a)(1) requires a party, at the commencement of litigation and even before receiving any formal discovery request, to search its available electronic systems for relevant information as part of its duty to conduct an appropriate analysis of potentially relevant documents and electronically stored information [see McPeek v. Ashcroft (DDC 2001) 202 FRD 31, 32].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of initial disclosures required under Rule 26(a)(1), see Ch. 15, Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures, §§ 15.15 -15.26.

23.160[2] Pretrial Conferences May Be Used to Narrow Scope of Relevant Records. The parties should attempt to narrow the scope of electronically stored information that must be searched in response to discovery requests to avoid undue burden on the responding party and production of too many items, which may obfuscate the truly relevant material. This can be accomplished at a Rule 26(f) discovery plan conference [Fed R Civ P 26(f)], or at a Rule 16 pretrial conference [Fed R Civ P 16]. Under Rule 26(f), the parties must, as soon as practicable and in any event at least 21 days before a scheduling conference is held or a scheduling order is due under Rule 16(b), confer to consider the nature and basis of their claims and defenses and the possibilities for a prompt settlement or resolution of the case, to make or arrange for the disclosures required by Rule 26(a)(1), to discuss any issues relating to preserving discoverable information, and to develop a proposed discovery plan [Fed R Civ P 26(f)].

At the Rule 26(f) conference, it is good practice to include a discussion of the following [see In re Bristol-Myers Squibb Secs. Litig. (DNJ 2002) 205 FRD 437, 444]:

- Whether each side possesses electronically stored information;
- Whether the parties intend to produce such material;
- The native formats in which the material is available;
- The form or forms in which electronically stored information should be produced;
- Whether any privilege issues require redaction; and
- How to allocate costs involved with the foregoing issues.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of development of pretrial discovery plan, see Ch. 15, Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures, § 15.14.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryDisclosuresMandatory DisclosuresCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VII. DISCOVERY OF ELECTRONICALLY STORED INFORMATION
A. Making Requests for Electronically Stored Information

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.161

23.161 Parties Have Duty to Preserve Evidence.

23.161[1] Knowledge of Litigation or Imminent Litigation Triggers Preservation Duty. A party's duty to preserve evidence is triggered when the party has notice that the evidence is relevant to litigation or when the party should have known that the evidence may be relevant to future litigation [Zubulake v. UBS Warburg LLC (SDNY 2003) 220 FRD 212, 216 ; William T. Thompson Co. v. General Nutrition Corp. (CD Cal 1984) 593 F Supp 1443, 1455].

Warning:

It is the responsibility of retained counsel to advise the client of the duty to preserve evidence [see Am. Bar Ass'n Civil Discovery Standards 10 (1999)]. An entity client must communicate that obligation to the employees with possession of the discoverable materials [William T. Thompson Co. v. General Nutrition Corp. (CD Cal 1984) 593 F Supp 1443, 1447-1448 ; National Ass'n of Radiation Survivors v. Turnage (ND Cal 1987) 115 FRD 543, 557-558].

However, absent exceptional circumstances, sanctions may not be imposed on a party for failing to provide electronically stored information lost as a result of routine, good-faith operation of an electronic information system [Fed R Civ P 37(e)].

Cross References:

Forms, see 23.306, 23.307

Managing documents, see Ch. 21, Discovery Strategy and Planning, 21.09 -21.11.

Obtaining sanctions for spoliation of evidence, see Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, §§ 25.91 -25.106.

23.161[2] Zubulake Guidelines for Preservation of Electronic Evidence.

23.161[2][a] Zubulake Cases Provide Detailed Guidance on Preservation Duties. The leading cases on electronic evidence preservation are the fourth and fifth cases in the Zubulake line of opinions issued by Judge Scheindlin in the Southern District of New York [see Zubulake v. UBS Warburg LLC (SDNY 2004) 229 FRD 422 (Zubulake V); Zubulake v. UBS Warburg LLC (SDNY 2003) 220 FRD 212, 216 (Zubulake IV)]. The Zubulake cases have been cited and followed by federal district courts all over the country [see, e.g., OpenTV v. Liberate Techs. (ND Cal 2003) 219 FRD 474, 476-479 (following Zubulake I and II)]. Although they do not serve as binding precedent in California district courts, the opinions do provide valuable guidance to attorneys confronted with electronic evidence preservation issues.

23.161[2][b] Directives to Parties Under Zubulake IV. The fourth Zubulake case sets forth specific guidelines concerning a party's preservation obligations once the party reasonably anticipates litigation. Key directives include the following:

- Party Anticipating Litigation Must Implement Litigation Hold: "Once a party reasonably anticipates litigation, it must suspend its routine document retention/destruction policy and put in place a 'litigation hold' to ensure the preservation of relevant documents" [Zubulake v. UBS Warburg LLC (SDNY 2003) 220 FRD 212, 218].

  Consider:

  Zubulake IV does not define "litigation hold," but it appears from context that the court is addressing circulating a preservation notice or taking similar steps.

- Litigation Hold Generally Does Not Apply to Inaccessible Backup Tapes: "As a general rule, the litigation hold does not apply to inaccessible backup tapes (e.g., those typically maintained solely for the purpose of disaster recovery), which may continue to be recycled on the schedule set forth in the company's policy. On the other hand, if backup tapes are accessible (i.e., actively used for information retrieval), then such tapes would likely be subject to the litigation hold" [Zubulake v. UBS Warburg LLC (SDNY 2003) 220 FRD 212, 218].

- Litigation Hold Can Apply to Backup Tapes Storing Documents of Key Players: "If a company can identify where particular employee documents are stored on backup tapes, then the tapes storing the documents of "key players" to the existing or threatened litigation should be preserved if the information contained on those tapes is not otherwise available. This ... applies to all backup tapes" [Zubulake v. UBS Warburg LLC (SDNY 2003) 220 FRD 212, 218].

- Corporation's Preservation Duty Is Not Unlimited: "Must a corporation, upon recognizing the threat of litigation, preserve every shred of paper, every e-mail or electronic document, and every backup tape? The answer is clearly, 'no'. Such a rule would cripple large corporations ... that are almost always involved in litigation" [Zubulake v. UBS Warburg LLC (SDNY 2003) 220 FRD 212, 218].

- Duty to Preserve Extends to Individuals Likely to Have Relevant Information: The duty to preserve extends to the following [Zubulake v. UBS Warburg LLC (SDNY 2003) 220 FRD 212, 217-218]:

  - Any documents or tangible things made by individuals likely to have discoverable information that the disclosing party may use to support its claims or defenses;

  - Documents prepared for those individuals, to the extent those documents can be readily identified (e.g., from the "to" field in e-mails);

- Information that is relevant to the claims or defenses of any party; and
- Information that is relevant to the subject matter of the litigation

- Parties Must Retain All Relevant Documents: "A party or anticipated party must retain all relevant documents (but not multiple identical copies) in existence at the time the duty to preserve attaches, and any relevant documents created thereafter. In recognition of the fact that there are many ways to manage electronic data, litigants are free to choose how this task is accomplished. For example, a litigant could choose to retain all then-existing backup tapes for the relevant personnel (if such tapes store data by individual or the contents can be identified in good faith and through reasonable effort), and to catalog any later-created documents in a separate electronic file. That, along with a mirror-image of the computer system taken at the time the duty to preserve attaches (to preserve the documents in the state they existed at the time), creates a complete set of relevant documents. Presumably there are a multitude of other ways to achieve the same result" [Zubulake v. UBS Warburg LLC (SDNY 2003) 220 FRD 212, 218].

23.161[2][c] Directives to Attorneys Under Zubulake V. The fifth Zubulake case details attorneys' specific duties concerning preservation of evidence. Key directives include the following:

- Counsel Must Issue Litigation Hold Promptly: "First, counsel must issue a 'litigation hold' at the outset of litigation or whenever litigation is reasonably anticipated. The litigation hold should be periodically re-issued so that new employees are aware of it, and so that it is fresh in the minds of all employees" [Zubulake v. UBS Warburg LLC (SDNY 2004) 229 FRD 422, 433].

- Counsel Must Communicate With "Key Players": "Second, counsel should communicate directly with the 'key players' in the litigation, i.e., the people identified in a party's initial disclosures and in any subsequent supplementation thereto. Because these 'key players' are the 'employees likely to have relevant information,' it is particularly important that the preservation duty be communicated clearly to them. As with the litigation hold, the key players should be reminded that the preservation duty is still in place" [Zubulake v. UBS Warburg LLC (SDNY 2004) 229 FRD 422, 433-434].

- Counsel Must Instruct Employees to Produce Electronic Copies of Relevant Active Files: "Finally, counsel should instruct all employees to produce electronic copies of their relevant active files. Counsel must also make sure that all backup media which the party is required to retain is identified and stored in a safe place. In cases involving a small number of relevant backup tapes, counsel might be advised to take physical possession of backup tapes. In other cases it might make sense for relevant backup tapes to be segregated and placed in storage. Regardless of what particular arrangement counsel chooses to employ, the point is to separate relevant background tapes from others. One of the primary reasons that electronic data is lost is ineffective communication with information technology personnel. By taking possession of, or otherwise safeguarding, all potentially relevant backup tapes, counsel eliminates the possibility that such tapes will be inadvertently recycled" [Zubulake v. UBS Warburg LLC (SDNY 2004) 229 FRD 422, 434].

- Counsel Must Become Familiar With Client's Documentation Retention Policies and Data Retention Architecture: "Once a 'litigation hold' is in place, a party and her counsel must make certain that all sources of potentially relevant information are identified and placed 'on hold' ... . To do this, counsel must become fully familiar with her client's documentation retention policies, as well as the client's data retention architecture. This will invariably involve speaking with information technology personnel, who can explain system-wide backup procedures and the actual (as opposed to theoretical) implementation of the firm's recycling policy. It will also involve communicating with the 'key players' in the litigation, in order to understand how they stored information ... Unless counsel interviews each employee, it is impossible to determine whether all potential sources of information have been inspected" [Zubulake v. UBS Warburg LLC (SDNY 2004) 229 FRD 422, 432].

- Counsel Should Consider Running System-Wide Keyword Search: "To the extent that it may not be feasible for counsel to speak with every key player, given the size of the company or the scope of the lawsuit, counsel must be more creative. It may be possible to run a system-wide keyword search; counsel could then preserve a copy of each 'hit.' Although this sounds burdensome, it need not be. Counsel does not have to review these documents, only see that they are retained. For example, counsel could create a broad list of search terms, run a search for a limited time frame, and then segregate responsive documents. When the opposing party propounds its document requests, the parties could negotiate a list of search terms to be used in identifying responsive documents, and counsel would only be obliged to review documents that came up as 'hits' on the second, more restrictive search. The initial broad cut merely guarantees that relevant documents are not lost" [Zubulake v. UBS Warburg LLC (SDNY 2004) 229 FRD 422, 432].

23.161[3] Obtain Stipulation or Order for Preservation of Evidence. Obtain a stipulation or an order for preservation of evidence to facilitate sanctions for spoliation or violation of the order. To enhance the likelihood of the imposition of sanctions for a violation, the stipulation or order should contain reasonable limits on the obligation to preserve evidence [see Lawyers Title Ins. Corp. v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. (ND Cal 1988) 122 FRD 567, 570]. An order for expedited discovery, i.e., before completion of Rule 26(a)(1) initial disclosures or the Rule 26(f) discovery plan conference, may be obtained under Rule 26(d) when a party reasonably suspects that the opposing party may destroy relevant electronically stored information in the course of normal business operations [see Fed R Civ P 26(d), 37(b)]. An ex parte restraining order or seizure order under Rule 65(b) may be obtained in exceptional circumstances when imminent destruction of electronically stored information essential to the case is likely and no other less intrusive means are available to secure the information [Fed R Civ P 65; see Sega Enters. v. MAPHIA (ND Cal 1996) 948 F Supp 923, 927 ; Religious Tech. Ctr. v. Netcom On-Line Communications Servs. (ND Cal 1995) 923 F Supp 1231, 1259-1264]. An ex parte TRO is not available merely because information may possibly be destroyed [Adobe Sys., Inc. v. South Sun Prods., Inc. (SD Cal 1999) 187 FRD 636, 641].

Cross References:

Discussion of order for expedited discovery under Rule 26(d), see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, § 22.23. Discussion of temporary restraining order under Rule 65(b), see Ch. 19, Preliminary Injunctions, TROs, and Other Provisional Remedies, § 19.09.

Warning--Responding Party:

Although the opposing party may request that you preserve electronically stored information or seek a court order directing that you do so, such a warning or order is not necessary to impose the obligation. A responding party has an independent obligation to preserve evidence once the complaint is filed or has notice that litigation is imminent. Failure to preserve evidence, or destruction of evidence, may result in sanctions, adverse inference instructions to the jury, and even criminal prosecution. Consider employing a forensic expert to preserve electronically stored information that may be relevant. If potentially relevant information would be destroyed under the aegis of the client's normal retention and destruction policy for its electronic information system, that policy must be suspended with respect to that information.

23.161[4] Sanctions May Be Imposed for Failure to Preserve Evidence.

23.161[4][a] Sanctions May Be Imposed for Violation of Preservation Order. A party who destroys electronically stored information in violation of an order to preserve that information may be sanctioned under Rule 37 [

Fed R Civ P 37(b); Unigard Sec. Ins. Co. v. Lakewood Eng'g & Mfg. Corp. (9th Cir 1992) 982 F2d 363, 368].

Example:

A federal district judge in the Central District ordered a default judgment and a penalty of $453,312 against a defendant who failed to retain back-up tapes and to halt routine destruction of records under its record disposition policy, despite a court order to do so [William T. Thompson Co. v. General Nutrition Corp. (CD Cal 1984) 593 F Supp 1443].

Cross References:

Checklist and forms for obtaining sanctions for violation of discovery orders, see Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, §§ 25.28 -25.42. Discussion of seeking sanctions for spoliation of evidence, see Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, §§ 25.91 -25.106.

23.161[4][b] Court Has Inherent Authority to Impose Sanctions for Destruction of Evidence. The court has inherent power to sanction a party who is on notice that certain information in its possession is relevant to litigation or potential litigation and who fails to preserve that evidence [William T. Thompson Co. v. General Nutrition Corp. (CD Cal 1984) 593 F Supp 1443, 1455 ; Pennar Software Corp. v. Fortune 500 Sys., Ltd. (ND Cal 2001) 2001 US Dist LEXIS 18432, at *15-*16]. This inherent power includes the power to enter a default judgment or dismissal, and to order fines, awards of attorney's fees, contempt citations, adverse evidentiary inferences, or exclusion of evidence [William T. Thompson Co. v. General Nutrition Corp. (CD Cal 1984) 593 F Supp 1443, 1455 ; Advantacare Health Partners, LP v. Access IV (ND Cal 2004) 2004 US Dist LEXIS 16835, at *11*12 ; Pennar Software Corp. v. Fortune 500 Sys., Ltd. (ND Cal 2001) 2001 US Dist LEXIS 18432, at *16]. However, a sanction for failure to preserve evidence is appropriate only when a party "consciously disregards" its obligation to preserve evidence [Shepherd v. ABC (DC Cir 1995) 62 F3d 1469, 1481].

Example:

Plaintiff's behavior amounted to willful spoliation, and the defendant was entitled to the sanction of dismissal, when the plaintiff, knowing he had a duty to preserve all data on a laptop, intentionally deleted more than 2,200 files and wrote a program to write over the deleted documents [Leon v. IDX Sys. Corp. (9th Cir 2006) 464 F3d 951].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryElectronic DiscoveryPreservationCivil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewEvidenceRelevanceSpoliation

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VII. DISCOVERY OF ELECTRONICALLY STORED INFORMATION
A. Making Requests for Electronically Stored Information

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.162

23.162 Use Discovery Methods to Gather Evidence in Form of Electronically Stored Information.

23.162[1] Use Interrogatories to Identify Sources of Electronically Stored Information and Persons With Knowledge of Storage Policies and Procedures. Interrogatories are a good means of identifying the types and sources of electronically stored information that may contain relevant evidence and the persons with knowledge of the opposing party's electronic information storage and retention policies. The interrogatories should ask questions on the type of equipment used, how data is stored, storage policies and procedures, whether any relevant computer records have been deleted, and the identity of management personnel with knowledge of that equipment and those policies and procedures. Interrogatories may be answered by making business records, including electronically stored information, available for inspection and copying, when the burden of deriving or ascertaining the answer is substantially the same for the party serving the interrogatory as for the party served [Fed R Civ P 33(d)].

Cross References:

Form, see § 23.308. Checklists and forms for interrogatories, see §§ 23.111 -23.134, 23.298 -23.301.

23.162[2] Depose Person With Knowledge of Electronic Information Systems and Storage. A deposition of the opposing party's person with knowledge of the electronic information systems and storage policies and procedures can help formulate an overall discovery strategy. The deposition notice must provide a description of the information requested sufficient to enable the opposing party to identify the person most knowledgeable in the area. The deposition notice should state that the deposition will cover computer equipment, software, maintenance, storage, security, retention policies and procedures, destruction policies and procedures, and back-up and archive policies and procedures [see Fed R Civ P 30(b)(2), (6); see also Carbon Dioxide Indus. Antitrust Litig. (MD Fla 1993) 155 FRD 209, 214].

Cross References:

Deposition checklists and forms, see §§ 23.19 -23.75, 23.176 -23.110, 23.289 -23.297.

23.162[3] Demand Inspection of Electronic Information System.

23.162[3][a] Rule 34(a) Provides for Inspection of Electronic Information Systems. A party may request to inspect and copy any tangible thing that is discoverable [Fed R Civ P 34(a)]. The information learned from the interrogatories and deposition of the opposing party's person most knowledgeable may reveal the necessity of demanding a physical inspection of the opposing party's electronic information system including servers and hard drives [see Playboy Enters. v. Welles (SD Cal 1999) 60 F Supp2d 1050, 1053 (response to interrogatories revealed deletion of relevant e-mails, which required access to hard drive as those emails could longer be produced as "documents")].

Strategic Point--Requesting Party:

A demand for inspection may include an offer to conduct the inspection after normal business hours to minimize disruption to the opposing party's business. Work to minimize disruption to the business of the responding party to avoid imposing an undue burden, which may lead to a protective order [see, e.g., Playboy Enters. v. Welles (SD Cal 1999) 60 F Supp2d 1050, 1055].

Consider:

A qualified forensic expert, who can generally be retained from major accounting and investigative firms, should be employed for the inspection of the opposing party's electronic information systems. The demand for inspection should be accompanied by the expert's declaration describing the method of inspection and how material will be located and downloaded.

Cross Reference:

Checklists and forms for inspection, see §§ 23.135 -23.156, 23.302 -23.305.

23.162[3][b] Requesting Party Must Demonstrate Need and Likelihood of Finding Relevant Matter. The Rule 26(b)(2) proportionality test applies to on-site inspection of computers [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2); Playboy Enters. v. Welles (SD Cal 1999) 60 F Supp2d 1050, 1053-1054]. Because of the intrusive nature of such an inspection, the requesting party must demonstrate that an on-site inspection is likely to lead to the recovery of relevant matter and that no less intrusive discovery will suffice [see Playboy Enters. v. Welles (SD Cal 1999) 60 F Supp2d 1050, 1053].

Warning--Responding Party:

Consider objecting to requests for inspection as unnecessarily intrusive, because computers contain privileged as well as irrelevant matter. Privileged and other confidential information must be identified before any inspection that is ordered, and specific safeguards are prudent to prevent disclosure of privileged information. Allowing the propounding party access to information stored on hard drives and servers that contain attorney-client privileged information may result in a waiver of the privilege [see Playboy Enters. v. Welles (SD Cal 1999) 60 F Supp2d 1050, 1055].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of preventing disclosure of privileged information, see §§ 23.176 -23.181.

23.162[3][c] Attempt Agreement on Confidentiality Protocol. If inspection and/or mirror-imaging of a computer hard drive is ordered, a protocol to ensure protection of confidential and privileged information is required. For example, a protocol may require [Playboy Enters. v. Welles (SD Cal 1999) 60 F Supp2d 1050, 1054-1055]:

- The declaration of an expert retained by the requesting party that the inspection is likely to produce relevant matter and that no damage will result to the computer.

- The appointment of a neutral expert, selected by the parties or appointed by the court, to carry out the technical tasks.

- The designation of the neutral expert as an officer of the court, and provision that the disclosure of any confidential or privileged information to that expert will not result in waiver of confidentiality or privilege.

- An agreement of the parties as to date and time of inspection to minimize disruption to the responding party.

- A limitation of the parties present to the responding party, responding party's counsel, and the designated expert.

- An initial privilege review of the recovered material by the responding party's counsel and preparation of a privilege log.

- The requirement that responding party's counsel then turn over recovered and relevant, non-privileged documents.

23.162[4] Request Production of Electronically Stored Information.

23.162[4][a] Make Rule 34 Request for Production to Obtain Electronically Stored Information. Request production of electronically stored information identified as a result of interrogatories, depositions, and inspection [Fed R Civ P 34(a)]. The request may specify the form or forms in which electronically stored information is to be produced [Fed R Civ P 34(b)(1)(C)].

Strategic Point:

To avoid having information produced in an unusable form, the form of production should be addressed early in the litigation. The Manual for Complex Litigation observes that no single form of production will be appropriate for all types of data in all cases. Although production of computer-readable images may suffice for the vast majority of requested data, if raw data are produced, appropriate applications, file structures, manuals, and other tools necessary for the proper translation and use of the data must be provided. Likewise, files for which metadata is essential to the understanding of the primary data must be produced in an appropriate format [see Manual for Complex Litigation, Fourth, § 11.446].

Cross References:

Form, see § 23.309. Checklist and forms for requesting production of documents, see §§ 23.135 -23.156, 23.302 -23.305.

23.162[4][b] Responding Party Must Produce All Responsive Information Within Its Possession, Custody, or Control. Under Rule 34, a party must produce all information responsive to a request for production when that information is in the party's "possession, custody or control" [Fed R Civ P 34(a)]. Information is deemed to be within a party's possession, custody or control if the party has actual possession, custody, or control, or has the legal right to obtain the information on demand [United States v. International Union of Petroleum & Indus. Workers, AFL-CIO (9th Cir 1989) 870 F2d 1450, 1452 ; In re Legato Sys., Inc. (ND Cal 2001) 204 FRD 167, 169 ; Comcast of Los Angeles, Inc. v. Top End Int'l, Inc. (CD Cal 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 18640, at *12-*13]. The responding party has an affirmative duty to seek that information reasonably available to it from its employees, agents, or others subject to its control [Gray v. Faulkner (ND Ind 1992) 148 FRD 220, 223].

Example:

A responding party was ordered to produce all the business records on its computers, even if it had turned those computers over to others or otherwise transferred the information on the computers to others for safekeeping [Comcast of Los Angeles, Inc. v. Top End Int'l, Inc. (CD Cal 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 18640, at *13].

The duty to seek information can include information on computers and other devices that employees use for business purposes away from the office.

Cross Reference:

Party's "possession, custody, or control," see § 23.153[4].

23.162[5] Make Supplemental Requests for After-Acquired or Discovered Information. Supplement previous discovery requests with requests for any later acquired information [see Fed R Civ P 26(e)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of requests for after-acquired information, see Ch. 21, Discovery Strategy and Planning, § 21.06.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryElectronic DiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

53 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VII. DISCOVERY OF ELECTRONICALLY STORED INFORMATION
A. Making Requests for Electronically Stored Information

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.163

23.163 Move to Compel Discovery If Responding Party Fails to Comply With Discovery Request.

The requesting party may move for an order compelling discovery if the responding party objects to the request for production or fails to comply with all or any part of the request [Fed R Civ P 34(b); see Fed R Civ P 37(a)(3)(B)].

Judge's Perspective:

A separate sanctions motion might be advisable in appropriate cases if it is clear that the responding party has ignored its obligations.

Cross References:

Checklist and forms for motion to compel discovery, see Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, §§ 25.03, 25.116.

If the responding party fails to produce relevant evidence in response to a discovery request, sanctions may be imposed under Rule 37 unless the failure was substantially justified [Fed R Civ P 37(a)(5); but see ND Cal Civ LR 7-8, 37-3 (separate sanctions motion required in Northern District)]. However, it is unlikely that a court will impose sanctions for an initial failure to produce. Courts are usually reluctant to impose sanctions unless the responding party has violated a previous order to produce and has required the propounding party to seek a second court order requiring the production.

Furthermore, absent exceptional circumstances, sanctions may not be imposed on a party under Rule 37 for failing to provide electronically stored information lost as a result of routine, good-faith operation of an electronic information system [Fed R Civ P 37(e)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & InspectionCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMotions to Compel

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VII. DISCOVERY OF ELECTRONICALLY STORED INFORMATION
B. Responding to Requests for Electronically Stored Information

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.164

23.164 CHECKLIST: Responding to Requests for Electronically Stored Information

☐ Implement plan to preserve evidence on awareness of potential litigation or litigation, including:

○ Determining what electronically stored information is relevant to claims or defenses of parties.

○ Notifying client's employees of duty to preserve records.

○ Preserving back-up systems.

○ Suspending routine record retention and destruction procedures that would destroy relevant records.

Authority:
William T. Thompson Co. v. General Nutrition Corp. (CD Cal 1984) 593 F Supp 1443, 1455 ; National Ass'n of Radiation Survivors v. Turnage (ND Cal 1987) 115 FRD 543, 557-558

Discussion:
See §§ 23.160, 32.167

Form:
See § 23.306

☐ Perform diligent search and reasonable inquiry to comply with demand for production.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26, 33, 34

Discussion:
See §§ 23.166, 23.168

☐ Determine whether to resist discovery request because requested matter is not relevant.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(b)

Discussion:
See § 23.169

☐ Identify privileged or otherwise confidential information contained in items to be inspected or produced, and determine whether to object to discovery request based on privilege or confidentiality.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(b)

Discussion:
See § 23.170

☐ Determine whether to object to discovery request because burden and/or expense of production outweigh requesting party's right to evidence.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(b)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.171, 23.172

☐ Negotiate stipulated protective order to protect against disclosure and use of confidential or privileged information.

☐ If requesting party refuses to stipulate, seek protective order to protect confidential or privileged information.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26

Discussion:
See § 23.173

☐ Determine whether production entails significant or special costs and, if so, move for order shifting costs.

Authority:
Playboy Enters. v. Welles (SD Cal 1999) 60 F Supp2d 1050

Discussion:
See § 23.174

☐ If responding to Rule 45 subpoena:

○ Produce information in form specified in subpoena, or if no form specified, in form or forms in which the person ordinarily maintains it or in a form or forms that are reasonably usable.

○ Identify records withheld based on privilege.

○ Seek protective order to prevent against, or to impose sanctions for, imposition of undue burden or expense.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 45

Discussion:
See §§ 23.135 -23.156; 23.175

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

55 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VII. DISCOVERY OF ELECTRONICALLY STORED INFORMATION
B. Responding to Requests for Electronically Stored Information

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.165

23.165 Request for Production Includes Electronically Stored Information.

A Rule 34 request for production includes a request for production of electronically stored information [Fed R Civ P 34(a)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

LexisNexis®

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VII. DISCOVERY OF ELECTRONICALLY STORED INFORMATION
B. Responding to Requests for Electronically Stored Information

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.166

23.166 Responding Party Has Duty to Perform Diligent Search.

The response to a discovery request must be signed by the party or the party's attorney. That signature constitutes a certification that, to the best of the signer's knowledge, information, and belief, formed after a reasonable inquiry, the response is consistent with the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure [Fed R Civ P 26(g)]. The failure to produce requested material in response to a discovery request may be sanctionable conduct [see, e.g., Qualcomm Inc. v. Broadcom Corp (SD Cal 2008) 2008 US Dist LEXIS 911, at *45, vacated in part, 2008 US Dist LEXIS 16897 (finding discovery misconduct and sanctioning corporate counsel who failed to conduct a reasonable inquiry into the adequacy of their client's document search and production)].

Strategic Point:

If relevant matter has been deleted, the requesting party may end up inspecting and copying the responding party's hard drive [see, e.g., Playboy Enters. v. Welles (SD Cal 1999) 60 F Supp2d 1050]. In this situation, steps must be taken to preserve privileged and confidential information on the hard drive [see 23.162[3][b]]. If the responding party fails to show that the deletion was routine, it may be subject to sanctions for failing to preserve evidence [see Fed R Civ P 37(f); see also Pennar Software Corp. v. Fortune 500 Sys., Ltd. (ND Cal 2001) 2001 US Dist LEXIS 18432, at *14-*16].

Warning:

The client is responsible for ascertaining the existence of relevant electronically stored information and will be subject to sanctions if its failure to do so leads to the unnecessary involvement of the court in discovery. For example, the Central District ordered the defendant County of Los Angeles to pay $54,375 in attorney's fees and costs incurred by a civil rights plaintiff due to the County's failure to produce highly-relevant, computer-based records in response to the plaintiff's motion to compel production. In awarding the sanctions under Fed R Civ P 37(a)(4)(A), the court stated that the plaintiff's efforts to obtain discovery were unduly complicated and extraordinarily delayed due to the failure of the county and/or its counsel to effectively and promptly investigate the records available, a failure which the court characterized as "ineptitude" [Green v. Baca (CD Cal 2005) 225 FRD 612, 613-614 ; see also

Zubulake v. UBS Warburg LLC (SDNY 2004) 229 FRD 422, 432-434 (attorneys' duties concerning electronic evidence); Zubulake v. UBS Warburg LLC (SDNY 2003) 220 FRD 212, 218 (party's duties concerning electronic evidence)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VII. DISCOVERY OF ELECTRONICALLY STORED INFORMATION
B. Responding to Requests for Electronically Stored Information

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.167

23.167 Routine Procedures That Would Destroy Relevant Records Must Be Suspended.

As soon as the duty to preserve evidence is triggered, the responding party must suspend any of its routine procedures, such as deleting old files, that could alter or destroy potentially relevant records [see Fed R Civ P 37(f); William T. Thompson Co. v. General Nutrition Corp. (CD Cal 1984) 593 F Supp 1443, 1455 ; see also 23.161].

Cross Reference:

Form, see § 23.306.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryElectronic DiscoveryPreservationCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & InspectionEvidenceRelevanceSpoliation

58 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VII. DISCOVERY OF ELECTRONICALLY STORED INFORMATION
B. Responding to Requests for Electronically Stored Information

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.168

23.168 Responding to Request for Production.

23.168[1] Produce Information in Form Specified in Request or Form in Which It Is Ordinarily Maintained or Form That Is Reasonably Usable. The request for production of electronically stored information may specify the form or forms in which the information is to be produced [Fed R Civ P 34(b)(1)(C)]. If the responding party objects to the requested form or forms, or if no form is specified in the request, the response must state the form or forms the responding party intends to use [Fed R Civ P 34(b)(2)(D)]. Unless the parties otherwise agree, or the court otherwise orders, if the request does not specify the form, the information must be produced in the form in which it is ordinarily maintained or in a form that is reasonably usable and any electronically stored information must be produced only in one form [Fed R Civ P 34(b)(2)(E)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of cost-shifting, see § 23.174.

Consider:

Producing electronically stored information in the form in which it is ordinarily maintained will be less expensive than producing the files in hard copy. Further, the electronic files will usually be easier to analyze, because massive sets of printouts may be unusable [see Adams v. Dan River Mills, Inc. (WD Va 1972) 54 FRD 220, 222 ; American Brass v. United States (Ct Int'l Trade 1988) 699 F Supp 934, 938], and the electronic format will contain the embedded data that does not appear in a hard-copy printout.

Strategic Points--Requesting Party:

Requiring the requesting party to travel to the responding party's site to extract and copy information from the responding party's system may amount to unwarranted cost-shifting [see OpenTV v. Liberate Techs. (ND Cal 2003) 219 FRD 474, 476]. Consider an objection and a request for determination that cost-shifting is not warranted [see § 23.174]. In addition, the client may not want the requesting party in its offices, searching its hard drives and servers. If the responding party decides to allow the requesting party such access, it should first ensure that there are not privileged, confidential, or harmful nonresponsive files and information on the hard drives and servers.

Producing documents as they are maintained in storage is not the same as producing documents that are kept in the "usual course of business" [*see Mancini v. Ins. Corp. (SD Cal 2009) 2009 US Dist LEXIS 51321, at *16-17 (plaintiff's production of 73 computer disks containing all documents from underlying class action did not represent documents meeting Fed R Civ P 33(b)(2)(E)(i)'s requirements)].

23.168[2] Responding Party Has Duty to Create Compilations If Raw Data Exists. The responding party must produce electronically stored information--including ... data or data compilations stored in any medium from which information can be obtained--translated, if necessary, by the respondent into reasonably usable form" [Fed R Civ P 34(a)]. When data can, as a practical matter, be made usable only through devices of the responding party, the responding party may be required to use those devices to translate the data into usable form [Fed R Civ P 34(a), Committee Note of 1970]. An expert may also be employed to perform the translation, including an expert designated by the requesting party [L.A. County Employees Ret. Ass'n v. Towers, Perrin, Forster, & Crosby, Inc. (CD Cal 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 10233, at *5-*6].

23.168[3] Interrogatories May Be Answered by Making Records Available. Interrogatories may be answered by making business records, including electronically stored information, available for inspection and copying, including compilations, when the burden of deriving or ascertaining the answer is substantially the same for the party serving the interrogatory as for the party served [Fed R Civ P 33(d)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of answering interrogatories by making business records available, see §§ 23.111 -23.134.

23.168[4] Respond or Object in Timely Manner.

23.168[4][a] Failure to Object Within Time Required Waives Any Objections. Generally, a failure to object to discovery requests within the time required constitutes a waiver of any objection [Davis v. Fendler (9th Cir 1981) 650 F2d 1154, 1160 ; Richmark Corp. v. Timber Falling Consultants (9th Cir 1992) 959 F2d 1468, 1473]. However, a court may determine that a brief period of tardiness does not amount to a waiver if the request exceeded the bounds of fair discovery by seeking information clearly privileged under the law [see, e.g., United States ex rel. Burroughs v. DeNardi Corp. (SD Cal 1996) 167 FRD 680, 687].

Warning--Responding Party:

A failure to object or respond within the time allowed can also subject the nonresponsive party to sanctions [see Fed R Civ P 37(a)(5); but see ND Cal Civ LR 7-8, 37-3 (separate sanctions motion required in Northern District)].

23.168[4][b] Objection Must Identify Specific Item As to Which It Is Made and Specify Reason for Objection. The response must identify the specific item or category as to which the objection is made and state the reason for the objection [Fed R Civ P 34(b)(2)(B); see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(5)(A)]. A "blanket objection" is improper and ineffective [Eureka Fin. Corp. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (ED Cal 1991) 136 FRD 179, 185 ; Green v. Baca (CD Cal 2003) 219 FRD 485, 491].

23.168[4][c] Response Must State Form of Production If Other Than That Stated in Request. The responding party must state the form it intends to use for producing electronically stored information if the request did not specify a form or if the responding party objects to the form specified in the request [Fed R Civ P 34(b)(2)(D)].

Strategic Point:

Clearly identifying the intended form of production before the production occurs will permit the parties to identify and seek to resolve disputes before production occurs. If the parties disagree on the form of production, they must meet and confer under Fed R Civ P 37(a)(1) to try and resolve the matter before the requesting party can file a motion to compel [Fed R Civ P 34(b), Committee Note of 2006].

23.168[5] Determine Whether to Retain Expert to Protect Against Manipulation of Data by Requesting Party. If the responding party decides to allow the requesting party access to its hard drives, servers, and other electronic storage devices, it should have its own personnel participate in the inspection so that no manipulation of data occurs. If the responding party allows its hard drives, for example, to be copied by the requesting party, it should keep a copy for itself so that it has a record of the data originally provided to the requesting party.

Alternatively, the parties can agree on a neutral third party to be the custodian of the electronic data to ensure that there is no manipulation of data. In such a procedure, the third party conducts the search or inspection of the storage device, thereby ensuring that the information is not altered by the responding party, and retrieves only nonprivileged, nonconfidential, responsive information [see Playboy Enters. v. Welles (SD Cal 1999) 60 F Supp2d 1050, 1055].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VII. DISCOVERY OF ELECTRONICALLY STORED INFORMATION
B. Responding to Requests for Electronically Stored Information

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.169

23.169 Requested Matter Must Be Relevant to Claim or Defense.

23.169[1] Wide-Ranging Discovery Is Allowed Under Liberal Interpretation of Rule 26(b). Although the information requested must be relevant to a pleaded claim or defense of a party [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(1)], Rule 26(b) is liberally interpreted to permit wide-ranging discovery of information even though the information may not be admissible at the trial [Comcast of Los Angeles, Inc. v. Top End Int'l, Inc. (CD Cal 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 18640, at *6].

23.169[2] "Fishing Expeditions" Are Not Allowed. "Fishing expeditions," in which overly broad requests are made, in some cases merely to delay and frustrate the other party, are not allowed [United States v. Nixon (1974) 418 US 683, 700, 94 S Ct 3090, 41 L Ed2d 1039]. The mere possibility that some relevant information may be discovered from a search of an entire electronic information system is insufficient to warrant production [see Lawyers Title Ins. Corp. v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. (ND Cal 1988) 122 FRD 567, 570].

Examples:

When a dispute involves the discrete activities of a corporate subsidiary, a request that by its terms would include all data contained on the entire corporation's electronic information systems will be deemed a "fishing expedition." Further, in an employment discrimination case, to request the computer record of every employee terminated not just in the subsidiary involved, but also companywide, might be deemed overbroad. Finally, a request asking for all back-up tapes from all of a company's servers may be extremely overbroad and call for a huge amount of irrelevant (and possibly privileged) material.

23.169[3] Burden Is on Responding Party to Show Lack of Relevance. A responding party resisting discovery has the burden to show discovery should not be allowed, and has the burden to clarify, explain, and support its objections. The responding party therefore has the initial burden of showing lack of relevance, provided that the burden may shift to the requesting party to show relevance if relevancy is not apparent [Blankenship v. Hearst Corp. (9th Cir 1975) 519 F2d 418, 429 ; DIRECTV, Inc. v. Trone (CD Cal 2002) 209 FRD 455, 458].

Cross Reference:

Checklist for raising objections to discovery based on lack of relevancy to claim or defense, see Ch. 24, Restrictions on Scope and Extent of Discovery: Privileges and Work Product Protection, § 24.03.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & InspectionCivil ProcedureDiscoveryRelevance

60 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VII. DISCOVERY OF ELECTRONICALLY STORED INFORMATION
B. Responding to Requests for Electronically Stored Information

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.170

23.170 Requested Matter Must Not Be Privileged.

The information requested must not be privileged [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(1)]. When information is withheld on the ground of privilege, the matter that is assertedly privileged must be specifically described in a manner that will enable the requesting party to assess the applicability of the privilege [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(5)(A)].

Cross References:

Discussion of protecting confidentiality and privilege, see 23.176 -23.181. Detailed checklist listing objections to discovery based on privilege, see Ch. 24, Restrictions on Scope and Extent of Discovery: Privileges and Work Product Protection, § 24.12.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & InspectionCivil ProcedureDiscoveryPrivileged MattersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryPrivileged MattersWork ProductGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VII. DISCOVERY OF ELECTRONICALLY STORED INFORMATION
B. Responding to Requests for Electronically Stored Information

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.171

23.171 Determine Whether Burden or Expense Exceeds Right to Evidence.

23.171[1] Party Must Produce Evidence Unless Production Is Unduly Burdensome or Expensive. A party must produce relevant evidence unless the burden or expense of the discovery outweighs its likely benefit [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)(C)(iii)]. If a discovery request is relatively unintrusive and easy to satisfy, it is presumptively reasonable. On the other hand, if the request is intrusive, the requesting party has a higher burden with respect to demonstrating the likelihood that relevant and useful information will be produced [see New York State NOW v. Cuomo (SDNY 1998) 1998 US Dist LEXIS 10520, at *7-*8].

23.171[2] Evaluate Burden and Expense of Production Under Rule 26(b)(2)(C) Factors.

23.171[2][a] Burden of Producing Electronically Stored Information Can Be Substantial. Requests to discover electronically stored information may have a greater impact on the responding party than requests for hard copy documents [see generally Thompson v. United States Dep't of Hous. & Urban Dev. (D Md 2003) 219 FRD 93, 96-97]. The burden and cost associated with searching for all electronically stored information responsive to a Rule 34 request for production can be substantial, particularly since "deleted" computer records are discoverable. Searching for deleted records can be particularly time consuming and expensive due to the number of storage locations that may have to be checked and the possible need to use special search methods to locate deleted files.

23.171[2][b] Rule 26(b) Balancing Factors Determine Extent of Discovery of Electronically Stored Information. Because of the possible burden and expense, the Rule 26(b)(2) cost-benefit balancing factors are employed to determine how much discovery of electronically stored information is appropriate and which party should bear the cost associated with the production [see 23.174 (cost-shifting)]. Those factors are: whether the discovery sought is unreasonably cumulative or duplicative; whether the information sought is obtainable from some other more convenient, less burdensome or inexpensive source; whether the party seeking the information already has had adequate opportunity to obtain the information; and whether the burden or expense of the proposed discovery outweighs its likely benefit, taking into consideration the following: the needs of the case, the amount in controversy, the resources of the parties, the importance of the issues at stake in the litigation and of the discovery sought to the resolution of the issues [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)].

Cross References:

Discussion of Rule 26(b)(2) balancing factors, see Ch. 24, Restrictions on Scope and Extent of Discovery: Privileges and Work Product Protection, § 24.09. Discussion of cost-shifting under Rule 34, see § 23.156[5][b].

23.171[2][c] Limitation on Discovery Can Be Obtained If Likely Benefit Is Outweighed by Burden or Expense. Under Rule 26(b)(2), a protective order may be obtained if the likely benefit of the discovery sought is outweighed by the burden on or expense to the responding party [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)(C)(iii)]. The requesting party must identify that likely benefit. Absent an overriding claim of privilege, the "likely benefit" of the production of the following types of information will almost always outweigh the burden or expense of production:

- Matter with independent evidentiary significance, such as a computer software program subject to a copyright infringement claim [see, e.g., Sega Enters. v. MAPHIA (ND Cal 1996) 948 F Supp 923], computerized accounting records, and e-mails.

Consider:

The mere suspicion that the responding party will not otherwise produce all relevant evidence does not justify a "fishing expedition," and the request must identify relevant material [Lawyers Title Ins. Corp. v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. (ND Cal 1988) 122 FRD 567, 570].

- Matter that exists only in computerized form; extraordinary hardship must be shown to resist discovery when the electronically stored information is the only source of the information [see, e.g., Daewoo Elecs. Co. v. United States (Ct Int'l Trade 1986) 650 F Supp 1003].

Consider:

Although e-mails may exist only in electronic form, the cost of production may still be prohibitive due to the volume of messages that must be reviewed, particularly if the back-up system must be searched [see, e.g., In re Brand Name Prescription Drugs Antitrust Litig. (ND Ill 1995) 1995 US Dist LEXIS 8281, at *3-*7].

Because the responding party's computer software may show when changes were made to a document and by whom, those computer records may be uniquely useful in challenging the authenticity of a document. The requesting party must have more than a mere suspicion of tampering to justify production when the burden of retrieving the information is high and the likelihood of finding relevant evidence of tampering is low [see, e.g., Fennell v. First Step Designs, Ltd. (1st Cir 1996) 83 F3d 526, 532 (requesting party failed to show "particularized likelihood" of tampering)].

23.171[2][d] Assess Whether Request for Discovery Is Too Broad. The requesting party is not entitled to discovery that is unreasonably cumulative or duplicative, or is obtainable from some other source that is more convenient, less burdensome, or less expensive [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)(C)].

Example:

A request to discover all computer hard drives with access to a party's server was denied when the requesting party failed to provide sufficient justification for the significant disruption that the discovery would cause to the business operations of the responding party [Symantec Corp. v. McAfee Assocs., Inc. (ND Cal 1998) 1998 US Dist LEXIS 22591, at *10-*11].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryElectronic DiscoveryBurden & ExpenseCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for

Production & InspectionCivil ProcedureDiscoveryUndue Burdens

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VII. DISCOVERY OF ELECTRONICALLY STORED INFORMATION
B. Responding to Requests for Electronically Stored Information

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.172

23.172 Responding to Request for Search of Back-Up System or Archive.

23.172[1] Search of Back-Up System or Archive May Be Difficult and Costly. Back-up systems and archives are intended to protect files in case of disaster and are not designed for search purposes [McPeek v. Ashcroft (DDC 2001) 202 FRD 31, 32]. Because these systems are not designed to be used in the typical everyday computer environment, they may not be organized or searchable in the same manner as the computer system used in daily business operations [see, e.g., Alexander v. FBI (DDC 1998) 188 FRD 111, 117 (archived e-mails were not searchable by word)]. In addition, a redundancy problem can exist when many versions of the same document are stored on back-up media.

23.172[2] Proportionality Test Applies to Search of Back-Up Systems and Archives. The responding party need not provide discovery of electronically stored information from sources that it identifies as not reasonably accessible because of undue burden or cost. On motion to compel discovery or for a protective order, the responding party bears the burden of making that showing. If that showing is made, the court may nonetheless order discovery from such sources if the requesting party shows good cause, considering the general limitations on discovery imposed by Rule 26(b)(2)(C). The court may specify conditions for the discovery.

The proportionality analysis of Rule 26(b)(2)(C) requires that the scope of a search of the responding party's back-up system or archive be reasonable [see 23.171[2]]: the requesting party must show more than speculation that relevant matter will be turned up by a search of the back-up system or archive and must minimize the production of irrelevant items [see, e.g., Alexander v. FBI (DDC 2000) 194 FRD 316, 325-326].

Consider:

A court may find that in choosing a back-up system, a party should consider the need for retrieval of information from that system [see In re Brand Name Prescription Drugs Antitrust Litig. (ND Ill 1995) 1995 US Dist LEXIS 8281, at *4-*5]. On the other hand, a court may refuse to impose substantial costs of production on the responding party merely because of its choice of back-up system [see Rowe Entm't, Inc. v. William Morris Agency, Inc. (SDNY 2002) 205 FRD 421, 429].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of cost-shifting, see § 23.174.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryElectronic DiscoveryBurden & ExpenseCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & InspectionCivil ProcedureDiscoveryUndue Burdens

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VII. DISCOVERY OF ELECTRONICALLY STORED INFORMATION
B. Responding to Requests for Electronically Stored Information

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.173

23.173 Protective Order Is Available If Burden or Expense of Production Is Too Great.

23.173[1] Burden of Searching Records and Translating Data Into Readable Form Is Necessary and Foreseeable. The responding party is responsible for the complexity and size of its own computer system. The fact that a vast volume of records must be searched in response to a discovery request does not excuse the party from making that search [see Rowe Entm't, Inc. v. William Morris Agency, Inc. (SDNY 2002) 205 FRD 421, 429]. Likewise, the burden of translating electronic data into a readable form is necessary and foreseeable [see Daewoo Elecs. Co. v. United States (Ct Int'l Trade 1986) 650 F Supp 1003, 1006].

23.173[2] Prepare Proffer Outlining Costs and Burdens. Prepare a proffer substantiating the costs and procedures of complying with the request for production to demonstrate the burden imposed [see Gambale v. Deutsche Bank AG (SDNY 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 22931, at *2]. A conclusory or factually unsupported claim that the discovery of computer records should be denied because the burden or expense is undue will fail [see Thompson v. United States Dep't of Hous. & Urban Dev. (D Md 2003) 219 FRD 93, 98 ; Eureka Fin. Corp. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (ED Cal 1991) 136 FRD 179, 182-183].

23.173[3] Attempt to Resolve Dispute With Requesting Party. The responding party must attempt to resolve any discovery dispute with the requesting party before seeking a protective order under Rule 26(c) [Fed R Civ P 26(c)]. Likewise, the requesting party must attempt a resolution before bringing a motion to compel production [Fed R Civ P 37(a)(2); CD Cal Civ LR 37-1; ED Cal Civ LR 251(b); ND Cal Civ LR 37-1(a); SD Cal Civ LR 26.1(a); Sequoia Prop. & Equip. Ltd. P'ship v. United States (ED Cal 2001) 203 FRD 447, 451].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of requirement that parties attempt to resolve discovery disputes before bringing motion to compel or motion for protective order, see Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, § 25.05.

23.173[4] Protective Order Is Available If Dispute Cannot Be Resolved Between Parties. If the burden of production is too great, and the dispute could not be resolved between the parties without court action, bring a motion for a protective order. The court has broad discretion to fashion an appropriate protective order, which may include provisions such as the following [Fed R Civ P 26(c)]:

- That the discovery not be had.
- That the discovery may be had only on specified terms and conditions, including a designation of the time or place.
- That the discovery may be had only by a method other than that selected by the requesting party.
- That certain matters not be inquired into, or that the scope of the discovery be limited to certain matters.
- That discovery be conducted with only designated persons present.
- That confidential information not be revealed, or revealed only in a designated way.

Cross Reference:

Protective order checklist, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, § 22.35.

Strategic Point:

Be prepared with a less burdensome alternative means of locating relevant evidence, such as an initial sampling of documents [see, e.g., Zubulake v. UBS Warburg LLC (SDNY 2003) 217 FRD 309, 324].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryElectronic DiscoveryBurden & ExpenseCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & InspectionCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective OrdersCivil ProcedureDiscoveryUndue Burdens

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VII. DISCOVERY OF ELECTRONICALLY STORED INFORMATION
B. Responding to Requests for Electronically Stored Information

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.174

23.174 Apply for Order Shifting Costs If Production Requires Significant or Special Costs.

23.174[1] Court Has Inherent Authority to Allocate Discovery Costs. Although no rule expressly authorizes cost-shifting, the power of the court to limit discovery under Rule 26(b)(2) includes the power to allocate costs [see Manual for Complex Litigation, Fourth, § 11.446]. The responding party usually must bear the cost of responding to discovery requests, although an order shifting costs may be available when production requires significant or special costs [Oppenheimer Fund Inc. v. Sanders (1978) 437 US 340, 358, 98 S Ct 2380, 57 L Ed2d 253 ; OpenTV v. Liberate Techs. (ND Cal 2003) 219 FRD 474, 476]. Cost shifting need not be absolute, and the court may order an apportionment [see, e.g., OpenTV v. Liberate Techs. (ND Cal 2003) 219 FRD 474, 479 (cost of extraction of source code to be split equally); see also Rowe Entm't, Inc. v. William Morris Agency, Inc. (SDNY 2002) 205 FRD 421, 432-433].

23.174[2] Cost-Shifting Is Appropriate When Data Is Inaccessible. When deciding whether to shift the cost of electronic production, the court may consider the accessibility of the data and order cost-shifting only when the data is relatively inaccessible and costly to restore and/or retrieve, such as data on back-up tapes and data that has been deleted or damaged [see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)(B); OpenTV v. Liberate Techs. (ND Cal 2003) 219 FRD 474, 476].

Whether or not electronic data is relatively inaccessible turns on the type of media on which the data is stored. Three types of data are generally presumed to be accessible [Zubulake v. UBS Warburg LLC (SDNY 2003) 217 FRD 309, 318-319]:

- Active, online data (e.g., hard drives);
- Near-line data (e.g., optical disks and other robotic or removal storage devices); and
- Offline storage/archives (e.g., removal optical disk or magnetic tape media, which can be labeled and stored in a shelf or rack).

Two types of data are generally presumed to be inaccessible [Zubulake v. UBS Warburg LLC (SDNY 2003) 217 FRD

309, 319]:

- Backup tapes, which are sequential access devices requiring one to read all of the preceding blocks to retrieve a particular block of data; and

- Erased, fragmented, or damaged data (data that has been "deleted" and can be converted and used again as free space).

In determining whether or not to shift costs for producing relatively inaccessible data, the court may consider the following [see OpenTV v. Liberate Techs. (ND Cal 2003) 219 FRD 474, 476-477 ; Zubulake v. UBS Warburg LLC (SDNY 2003) 216 FRD 280, 284]:

- The extent to which the request is specifically tailored to discover relevant information.

- The availability of the information from other sources.

- The total cost of production, compared to the amount in controversy.

- The total cost of production, compared to the resources available to each party.

- The relative ability of each party to control costs and its incentive to do so.

- The importance of the issues at stake in the litigation.

- The relative benefits to the parties of obtaining the information.

Strategic Point--Responding Party:

To show that the cost of production is undue, a detailed explanation of the non-routine costs and procedures for retrieval of data should be provided to the court, because a mere conclusory objection that the burden is undue is insufficient to support a cost-shifting order [see Zapata v. IBP, Inc. (D Kan 1994) 1994 US Dist LEXIS 16285, at *9-*11 ; Laufman v. Oakley Bldg. & Loan Co. (SD Ohio 1976) 72 FRD 116, 121].

23.174[3] Responding Party Bears Cost of Review and Production Following Conversion to Accessible Form. Even when cost-shifting is appropriate considering the inaccessibility of the data sought by the requesting party, once the data is converted to an accessible form, the responding party will be responsible for reviewing and producing the data, such as making copies [OpenTV v. Liberate Techs. (ND Cal 2003) 219 FRD 474, 479 ; Zubulake v. UBS Warburg LLC (SDNY 2003) 216 FRD 280, 290].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & InspectionCivil ProcedureDiscoveryUndue Burdens

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.175

23.175 Third-Party Response to Subpoena Issued Under Rule 45.

23.175[1] Produce Information in Form Specified in Subpoena, Form Ordinarily Maintained, or Reasonably Usable Form. A subpoena may specify the form or forms in which electronically stored information is to be produced [Fed R Civ P 45(a)(1)(C)]. If the form specified is unobjectionable, production should be made in that form. If the form specified is objectionable, an objection should be made [see Fed R Civ P 45(c)(2)(B)]. If a subpoena does not specify the form or forms for producing electronically stored information, the person subject to the subpoena must produce the information in a form or forms in which the person ordinarily maintains it or in a form or forms that are reasonably usable [Fed R Civ P 45(d)(1)(B)], provided that electronically stored information need not be produced in more than one form [Fed R Civ P 45(d)(1)(C)].

23.175[2] Identify Documents Withheld Based on Privilege Sufficiently to Enable Requesting Party to Contest Claim. When information subject to a subpoena is withheld on a claim that it is privileged, the claim must be made expressly and must be supported by a description of the nature of the documents, communications, or things not produced sufficient to enable the requesting party to contest the claim [Fed R Civ P 45(d)(2)(A)].

23.175[3] Electronic Communications Privacy Act of 1986 Protects Customer Information Possessed by Provider of Electronic Communication Service. Under the Electronic Communications Privacy Act of 1986, a pretrial discovery subpoena under Rule 45 cannot be used to compel a provider of electronic communication service, such as an ISP, to disclose private consumer information to a government entity; discovery of such information can be compelled only in response to a trial subpoena [18 USC § 2703(c)(1)(C); FTC v. Netscape Communications Corp. (ND Cal 2000) 196 FRD 559, 561 ; see Fed R Civ P 45].

23.175[4] Seek Protective Order to Prevent, or Impose Sanctions for, Imposition of Undue Burden or Expense. The requesting party must take reasonable steps to avoid imposing undue burden or expense on the third party subject to a Rule 45 pretrial discovery subpoena; sanctions are authorized for breach of that duty [Fed R Civ P 45(c)(1)]. A protective order is available to protect the third party from undue burden or disclosure of privileged or other protected matter [Fed R Civ P 45(c)(3)].

Cross Reference:

Seeking protective orders and sanctions for imposition of undue burden or expense, see § 23.280.

23.175[5] Discovery Order Is Normally Not Immediately Appealable. An order denying or granting a motion to quash a subpoena is ordinarily not considered final and appealable. However, if a motion to quash a subpoena served on a nonparty is granted by a court in a district other than the district in which the action is pending, that order is final and appealable, because it is the final disposition of the issues before it, and it would be unreviewable on appeal of the final judgment in the principal action [Micro Motion, Inc. v. Kane Steel Co. (Fed Cir 1990) 894 F2d 1318, 1320].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & InspectionCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersSubpoenas

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.176

23.176 CHECKLIST: Protecting Confidentiality and Privilege.

☐ Determine whether reasonable expectation of confidentiality exists in electronically stored information.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26

Discussion:
See § 23.177

☐ Conduct review for privileged and other confidential information before production.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26

Discussion:
See §§ 23.178, 23.179

☐ Seek stipulation to protect disclosure and use of privileged or otherwise confidential information.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 36, 37

Discussion:
See § 23.180

☐ If requesting party will not stipulate, move for protective order if production of computer hardware, software, or electronically stored information will reveal confidential or privileged information.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(c); Playboy Enters. v. Welles (SD Cal 1999) 60 F Supp2d 1050

Discussion:
See §§ 23.135 -23.156; 23.181

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsStipulationsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryPrivileged MattersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryPrivileged MattersAttorney-Client PrivilegeCivil ProcedureDiscoveryPrivileged MattersWork ProductGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VII. DISCOVERY OF ELECTRONICALLY STORED INFORMATION
C. Protecting Confidentiality and Privilege

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.177

23.177 Privileged Matter Is Protected From Discovery.

Privileged matter is not subject to discovery and may be withheld [Fed R Civ P 26(b)]. The responding party asserting privilege must specifically designate the privileged matters, and has the burden of showing the withheld matter is privileged [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(5)(A)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of protection for privileged matter, see Ch. 24, Restrictions on Scope and Extent of Discovery: Privileges and Work Product Protection, §§ 24.12 -24.26.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryElectronic DiscoveryPrivileged InformationCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & InspectionCivil ProcedureDiscoveryPrivileged MattersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryPrivileged MattersAttorney-Client PrivilegeCivil ProcedureDiscoveryPrivileged MattersWork ProductGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

68 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VII. DISCOVERY OF ELECTRONICALLY STORED INFORMATION
C. Protecting Confidentiality and Privilege

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.178

23.178 Reasonable Expectation of Confidentiality May Exist in Electronically Stored Information.

23.178[1] Electronically Stored Information May Contain Privileged or Confidential Information. Electronically stored information may contain privileged matter or other confidential information. Privacy may be waived by consent, and may also be waived by a failure to object to discovery.

Consider:

Information provided to a testifying expert is subject to disclosure under Rule 26(a)(2) [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(2)]. All data to be provided to a testifying expert should be screened for privilege to avoid inadvertent waiver [see, e.g., United States Fid. & Guar. Co. v. Braspetro Oil Servs. Co. (SDNY 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 111, at *23].

23.178[2] Totality of Circumstances Is Considered in Determining Whether Inadvertent Disclosure Waives Privilege. The totality of the circumstances are considered in determining whether an inadvertent disclosure waived privilege. The factors considered include the following [Transamerica Computer Co. v. IBM Corp. (9th Cir 1978) 573 F2d 646, 649-651 ; Bud Antle, Inc. v. Grow-Tech, Inc. (ND Cal 1990) 131 FRD 179, 183 ; United States ex rel. Bagley v. TRW, Inc. (CD Cal 2001) 204 FRD 170, 178]:

- The reasonableness of precautions taken to avoid disclosure.
- The extent of the disclosure.
- The scope and burden of discovery.
- The number of documents inadvertently disclosed.
- The time constraints involved.
- The delay in correcting the error.

- Overall fairness.

Cross Reference:

Detailed discussion of waiver of privilege, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, § 26.47[5] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.178[3] Employee Has No Reasonable Expectation of Privacy in E-mails Sent Over Employer's Computer System. An employee normally has no reasonable expectation of privacy in e-mail sent over the employer's computer system sufficient to protect that e-mail from discovery [see Smyth v. Pillsbury Co. (ED Pa 1996) 914 F Supp 97, 101], and will generally be found to have consented to employer access. The employee's consent may be express, for example, when the employee signs an employment contract waiving any expectation of privacy in e-mail on the employer's computer system, or may be implied from the employee's knowledge that the employer has access to the computer system over which the e-mail was sent [see TBG Ins. Servs. Corp. v. Superior Court (2002) 96 CA4th 443, 452, 117 CR2d 155 ; Bohach v. City of Reno (D Nev 1996) 932 F Supp 1232, 1236-1237].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of privacy rights of employees in email, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 37A.33[5] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

In addition, federal law protecting the privacy of e-mails generally exempts employers from its restrictions. Although federal law prohibits unauthorized interception of e-mails, there is no privacy violation if the person has consented to the interception or access [18 USC § 2511(2)(d)]. Further, employers can monitor an employee's use of a computer furnished by the employer in the ordinary course of business to the extent necessary to protect the rights and property of the employer [18 USC § 2511(2)(a)(i)]. Likewise, although federal law prohibits unauthorized access to stored electronic communications, conduct authorized by the entity that provides the electronic communications service, i.e., the employer, is exempt [18 USC § 2701(c)].

Decision Point:

If appropriate, counsel should consider moving for a protective order to protect an employee from annoyance, embarrassment, oppression, or undue burden or expense [see Fed R Civ P 26(c)].

Cross Reference:

Checklists and forms for obtaining protective order under Rule 26(c), see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, §§ 22.35, 22.75.

23.178[4] Attorney-Client Privilege Applies to Communication by E-mail. The attorney-client privilege applies to communications by e-mail, provided the client has maintained the confidentiality [United States v. Chevron Texaco Corp. (ND Cal 2002) 241 F Supp2d 1065, 1078].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryElectronic DiscoveryPrivileged InformationCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & InspectionCivil ProcedureDiscoveryPrivileged MattersGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VII. DISCOVERY OF ELECTRONICALLY STORED INFORMATION
C. Protecting Confidentiality and Privilege

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.179

23.179 Work Product Doctrine Can Apply to Computerized Litigation Support System.

23.179[1] Work Product Doctrine Protects Work Prepared Because of Litigation. The work product doctrine protects an attorney's work prepared for, or in anticipation of, litigation. The court may not order disclosure of an attorney's mental impressions, conclusions, opinions, or legal theories concerning the litigation. Protection for this type of work product, referred to as "opinion work product," is practically absolute [see Upjohn Co. v. United States (1981) 449 US 383, 398, 101 S Ct 677, 66 L Ed2d 584]. However, on a showing that the party seeking discovery has substantial need of the materials in the preparation of the party's case and that the party is unable without undue hardship to obtain the substantial equivalent of the materials by other means, the court may order disclosure of so-called "ordinary work product" [Fed R Civ P 26(b)(3)].

23.179[2] Attorney Involvement Determines Level of Protection for Computerized Litigation Support System. Information in a computerized litigation support system is work product. If the information is targeted for discovery, the issue becomes whether it is entitled to the protection afforded "ordinary" work product or the near-absolute protection afforded "opinion" work product. Courts have held that the attorney's personal involvement in the development of the support system is the key to determining the level of protection afforded [see Shipes v. BIC Corp. (MD Ga 1994) 154 FRD 301, 309]. For example, the level of attorney involvement in an index support program which is based on key terms and summaries of individual documents is more likely to merit "opinion" protection than a support program that merely uses a character search.

23.179[3] When Requesting Party Has Targeted Computerized Litigation Support System for Discovery, Determine Whether Material Is Available From Another Source. The mere fact that discoverable information has been put into a computerized litigation support system does not by itself prevent its discovery. The original source of information put into a computerized litigation support system should be retained so that any response to discovery targeting that information can provide the information from the original source rather than from the support system. This will eliminate the risk of incidentally revealing attorney strategy.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryElectronic DiscoveryPrivileged InformationCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & InspectionCivil ProcedureDiscoveryPrivileged MattersWork ProductGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryPrivileged MattersWork ProductScope

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VII. DISCOVERY OF ELECTRONICALLY STORED INFORMATION
C. Protecting Confidentiality and Privilege

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.180

23.180 Stipulated Protective Order May Be Used to Protect Confidential and Privileged Information.

The parties may enter into a stipulated protocol for the protection of confidential and privileged information [see 23.162[3][c]; see also Playboy Enters. v. Welles (SD Cal 1999) 60 F Supp2d 1050, 1054-1055]. The volume of information stored electronically increases the risk of inadvertent disclosure of privileged material. For example, the Manual for Complex Litigation recognizes that broad database searches require safeguards against exposing confidential or irrelevant data to the opponent's scrutiny. Stipulation to a "non-waiver" agreement, which can be adopted as a case management order, can avoid the onerous burden of pre-production screening of vast quantities of unorganized electronically stored information for privilege to avoid inadvertent waiver. This stipulation protects the responding party by allowing "take back" of inadvertently produced privileged materials if discovered within a reasonable period. In addition, some data may be maintained in compilations that are entitled to trade-secret protection or that reflect attorney work product for use at trial or as a basis for expert opinions [see Manual for Complex Litigation, Fourth, § 11.446]. Such a stipulation may be especially appropriate when the only way to review a huge volume of electronic files, e-mails, and databases is by conducting electronic word searches, rather than by reading each individual electronic document. The word searches may not screen out every privileged or work product document, but may be the only way to conduct such a search without spending an inordinate amount of time and money.

Consider:

Parties may stipulate that disclosure to a forensic expert does not constitute waiver of privilege or confidentiality.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryElectronic DiscoveryPrivileged InformationCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & InspectionCivil ProcedureDiscoveryPrivileged MattersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VII. DISCOVERY OF ELECTRONICALLY STORED INFORMATION
C. Protecting Confidentiality and Privilege

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.181

23.181 Move for Protective Order If Requesting Party Will Not Stipulate.

23.181[1] Attempt Must Be Made to Resolve Dispute Before Moving for Protective Order. The responding party must attempt to resolve any discovery dispute with the requesting party before seeking a protective order under Rule 26(c) [Fed R Civ P 26(c)(1)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of requirement that parties attempt to resolve discovery disputes before bringing motion for protective order, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, § 22.53[4].

23.181[2] Court Has Broad Discretion to Fashion Appropriate Order. The court has broad discretion to fashion an appropriate protective order, which may include provisions that certain matters not be inquired into, or that the scope of the discovery be limited to certain matters; that discovery be conducted with no one present except designated persons; and that confidential information not be revealed or revealed only in a designated way [Fed R Civ P 26(c)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of protective order generally, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, §§ 22.35 -22.66.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & InspectionCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsStipulationsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective Orders

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VII. DISCOVERY OF ELECTRONICALLY STORED INFORMATION
D. Admitting Electronically Stored Information at Trial

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.182

23.182 CHECKLIST: Admitting Electronically Stored Information at Trial.

☐ Electronically stored information must be authenticated under Fed R Evid 901 to be admissible.

Authority:
Fed R Evid 901

Discussion:
See §§ 23.183, 23.184

☐ Questions of accuracy go to weight, not admissibility, of evidence.

Authority:
United States v. Catabran (9th Cir 1988) 836 F2d 453, 458

Discussion:
See § 23.185

☐ Determine whether electronically stored information is inadmissible hearsay. Electronically stored information is nonhearsay when:

○ It is not a "statement"; or

○ It is a party admission.

Authority:
Fed R Evid 801,

Discussion:
See § 23.186[1]

☐ If electronically stored information is hearsay, determine whether it is admissible under exception to hearsay exclusionary rule such as:

- ○ Business record exception.
- ○ Official record exception.
- ○ Statement against interest exception.
- ○ Catch-all exception for statement with circumstantial guarantees of trustworthiness.

Authority:
Fed R Evid 803, 804, 807

Discussion:
See § 23.186[2]

☐ Prepare digital material that will be shown to jury for disclosure to opposing party if so required by judge.

Authority:
see Manual for Complex Litigation, Fourth, § 11.643

Discussion:
See § 23.187

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & InspectionEvidenceAuthenticationGeneral OverviewEvidenceHearsayGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VII. DISCOVERY OF ELECTRONICALLY STORED INFORMATION
D. Admitting Electronically Stored Information at Trial

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.183

23.183 Electronically Stored Information Is Writing Subject to Federal Rules of Evidence.

In general, the Federal Rules of Evidence apply to electronically stored information just as they do to other types of evidence [Manual for Complex Litigation, Fourth, § 11.446]. Under the Federal Rules of Evidence, "writing" includes letters, words, or numbers, or their equivalent, set down by magnetic impulse, mechanical or electrical recording, or other form of data compilation [Fed R Evid 1001(1)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
EvidenceDocumentary EvidenceWritingsGeneral Overview

74 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VII. DISCOVERY OF ELECTRONICALLY STORED INFORMATION
D. Admitting Electronically Stored Information at Trial

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.184

23.184 Authenticity Is Governed by Fed R Evid 901.

23.184[1] Proponent Must Produce Evidence Sufficient to Support Finding That Matter in Question Is What Proponent Claims It to Be. The authenticity of electronically stored information is governed by Fed R Evid 901 [United States v. Siddiqui (11th Cir 2000) 235 F3d 1318, 1322], which requires evidence sufficient to support a finding that the matter in question is what its proponent claims it to be [Fed R Evid 901(a)]. Proof of accuracy, maintenance, and reliability of computer hardware and software is not required for admission of computer records [United States v. Catabran (9th Cir 1988) 836 F2d 453, 458].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of authentication of computer-based evidence, see 5 Weinstein's Federal Evidence, § 900.07 (Matthew Bender 2d ed.).

Consider:

The proponent must make only a prima facie showing of authenticity because, under Fed R Evid 901(a), the court is to admit evidence if sufficient proof has been introduced so that a reasonable juror could find in favor of authenticity [United States v. Tank (9th Cir 2000) 200 F3d 627, 630].

23.184[2] Website Printouts Must Be Authenticated. The authenticity of website printouts is governed by Fed R Evid 901.

Examples:

In a copyright and trademark infringement action, authentication of printouts of websites was sufficient when the plaintiff's CEO adequately established that the printouts were true and correct copies of pages printed from the Internet that were printed by him or under his direction [Perfect 10, Inc. v. Cybernet Ventures, Inc. (CD Cal 2002) 213 F Supp2d 1146, 1154]. On the other hand, documents allegedly taken from the defendant's website were inadmissible when the plaintiff could not authenticate the documents as statements of the defendant, and the plaintiff offered no witness with personal knowledge of who maintained the website, who authored the documents, or the accuracy of their contents [Wady v.

Provident Life & Accident Ins. Co. of Am. (CD Cal 2002) 216 F Supp2d 1060, 1064-1065].

23.184[3] Printouts of Electronically Stored Information Must Be Authenticated. The authenticity of printouts of electronically stored information is governed by Fed R Evid 901.

Examples:

Printouts of computerized records of purchaser approval numbers issued to the defendant's firearms business could not be authenticated with evidence describing a process or system used to produce a result and showing that the process or system produced an accurate result, because the printouts were not the result of a "process or system used to produce a result" within Fed R Evid 901(b)(9), as they represented preexisting records that happened to be stored on computer. The printouts were authenticated by testimony of a government witness that the printouts reflected information contained in the government's records [United States v. Meienberg (10th Cir 2001) 263 F3d 1177, 1181]. Likewise, printouts from a co-conspirator's computer records were properly authenticated in a drug conspiracy prosecution by the testimony of a law enforcement agent as to how and when those records were retrieved [United States v. Whitaker (7th Cir 1997) 127 F3d 595, 601-602].

23.184[4] E-mail Must Be Authenticated. The authenticity of e-mail is governed by Fed R Evid 901. An e-mail may be self-authenticating under Fed R Evid 902(7), which provides that extrinsic evidence of authenticity as a condition precedent to admissibility is not required with respect to "inscriptions, signs, tags, or labels purporting to have been affixed in the course of business and indicating ownership, control, or origin." Therefore, if an e-mail contains the name of the sender or other identifying markers, it may satisfy the requirements for self-authentication [see, e.g., Superhighway Consulting, Inc. v. Techwave, Inc. (ND Ill 1999) 1999 US Dist LEXIS 17910, at *6-*7]. Also, if an e-mail is produced in response to a request for production, no further authentication may be needed [see Burgess v. Premier Corp. (9th Cir 1984) 727 F2d 826, 835].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
EvidenceAuthenticationGeneral OverviewEvidenceDemonstrative EvidenceComputer-Generated Evidence

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VII. DISCOVERY OF ELECTRONICALLY STORED INFORMATION
D. Admitting Electronically Stored Information at Trial

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.185

23.185 Questions of Accuracy Go to Weight, Not Admissibility.

Questions as to the accuracy of electronically stored information, whether resulting from incorrect data entry or errors in the program, as with inaccuracies in any other type of business records, affect the weight of the evidence and not its admissibility [United States v. Catabran (9th Cir 1988) 836 F2d 453, 458]. The mere fact that it is possible to alter data contained in a computer is insufficient to establish untrustworthiness [United States v. Bonallo (9th Cir 1988) 858 F2d 1427, 1436]. The burden is on the proponent to lay a proper foundation by establishing the accuracy of the electronically stored information [Manual for Complex Litigation, Fourth, § 11.446].

Consider:

A special master, neutral court-appointed expert, or expert designated by the parties may be necessary to establish the accuracy of electronically stored information [see Manual for Complex Litigation, Fourth, § 11.446].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
EvidenceAuthenticationGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VII. DISCOVERY OF ELECTRONICALLY STORED INFORMATION
D. Admitting Electronically Stored Information at Trial

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.186

23.186 Electronically Stored Information Will Be Excludable as Hearsay Unless an Exception Applies.

23.186[1] Electronically Stored Information Is Subject to Exclusion as Hearsay.

23.186[1][a] Electronically Stored Information May Be Statement Subject to Exclusion as Hearsay. Electronically stored information, like other types of evidence, is subject to exclusion as hearsay [Fed R Evid 802]. "Hearsay" is a statement, other than one made by the declarant while testifying at the trial or hearing, offered in evidence to prove the truth of the matter asserted [Fed R Evid 801(c)]. For example, information from a website is excludable as hearsay when the information from a website is offered for the truth of its content and, to be admissible, the information must satisfy an exception to the hearsay rule [Van Westrienen v. Americontinental Collection Corp. (D Ore 2000) 94 F Supp2d 1087, 1109 (representations made by defendant on its website were admissible as admissions of party-opponent)].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of hearsay exclusionary rule, see 5 Weinstein's Federal Evidence, § 802.01 et seq. (Matthew Bender 2d ed.)

23.186[1][b] Nonassertive Printout Is Not Hearsay. A "statement" is (1) an oral or written assertion or (2) nonverbal conduct of a person, if it is intended by the person as an assertion [Fed R Evid 801(a)]. If electronically stored information is not an assertion, then it is not a statement, and therefore is not hearsay. For example, when a printout from a website was introduced to show the images and text found on the website, the printout was not a statement at all and fell outside the ambit of the hearsay rule [Florida Conference Ass'n of Seventh-Day Adventists v. Kyriakides (CD Cal 2001) 151 F Supp2d 1223, 1225-1226 ; Perfect 10, Inc. v. Cybernet Ventures, Inc. (CD Cal 2002) 213 F Supp2d 1146, 1155].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of requirement of assertion for evidence to be excludable as hearsay, see 5 Weinstein's Federal Evidence, § 802.01 et seq. (Matthew Bender 2d ed.)

23.186[1][c] Admission by Party-Opponent Is Not Hearsay. A statement is not hearsay if it is offered against a party and is any one of the following [Fed R Evid 801(d)(2)]:

- The party's own statement, in either an individual or a representative capacity.
- A statement of which the party has manifested an adoption or belief in its truth.
- A statement by a person authorized by the party to make a statement concerning the subject.
- A statement by the party's agent or servant concerning a matter within the scope of the agency or employment, made during the existence of the relationship.
- A statement by a coconspirator of a party during the course and in furtherance of the conspiracy.

An e-mail or a website may contain a party admission [see Van Westrienen v. Americontinental Collection Corp. (D Ore 2000) 94 F Supp2d 1087, 1109 (representations made by defendant on its website were admissible as admissions of party-opponent); Florida Conference Ass'n of Seventh-Day Adventists v. Kyriakides (CD Cal 2001) 151 F Supp2d 1223, 1226].

Example:

An internal company e-mail forwarded by an employee of the plaintiff company to the defendant was not excludable hearsay because the employee's remarks in forwarding the e-mail manifested an adoption or belief in truth of the information contained in the original e-mail and satisfied the requirements for an adoptive admission of a party-opponent under Fed R Evid 801(d)(2)(B) [Sea-Land Serv., Inc. v. Lozen Int'l, LLC (9th Cir 2002) 285 F3d 808, 821].

Cross Reference:

Discussion of admission of party-opponent as nonhearsay under Federal Rules of Evidence, see 5 Weinstein's Federal Evidence, § 802.01 et seq. (Matthew Bender 2d ed.)

23.186[2] Hearsay Electronically Stored Information Is Admissible If an Exception Applies.

23.186[2][a] Federal Rules of Evidence Provide Exceptions That Allow Admission of Hearsay. Hearsay is admissible only as prescribed by the Federal Rules of Evidence or other rules prescribed by the Supreme Court or Congress [Fed R Evid 802]. The Federal Rules of Evidence contain a variety of exceptions to the hearsay rule that may apply to electronically stored information, including exceptions for:

- Business records [Fed R Evid 803(6)].
- Public records and reports [Fed R Evid 803(8)].
- Statements against interest [Fed R Evid 804(b)(3)].

23.186[2][b] Electronically Stored Information Is Admissible Under Business Records Exception to Hearsay Rule If Proper Foundational Requirements Are Established. For purposes of the business records exception to the hearsay rule provided by Fed R Evid 803(6), it is immaterial that the business record is maintained in an electronic information system rather than in company books [United States v. Catabran (9th Cir 1988) 836 F2d 453, 457 ; Sea-Land Serv., Inc. v. Lozen Int'l, LLC (9th Cir 2002) 285 F3d 808, 818]. Both printouts and e-mails are admissible as business records if the proper foundational requirements are first established [United States v. Catabran (9th Cir 1988) 836 F2d 453, 457 ; Monotype Corp. PLC v. International Typeface Corp. (9th Cir 1994) 43 F3d 443, 449-450].

The foundational requirements are that the business records must be all of the following [United States v. Bonallo (9th Cir 1988) 858 F2d 1427, 1435]:

- Made or based on information transmitted by a person with knowledge at or near the time of the transaction.
- Made in the ordinary course of business.
- Trustworthy, with neither the source of information nor the method or circumstances of preparation indicating a lack of trustworthiness.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of business records exception to hearsay exclusionary rule, see 5 Weinstein's Federal Evidence, § 802.01 et seq. (Matthew Bender 2d ed.)

Evidence of the absence of a matter from an electronic information system to prove the nonexistence or nonoccurrence of the matter is also excepted from the hearsay exclusionary rule if the matter was of a kind of which a business record was regularly made and preserved, unless the sources of information or other circumstances indicate lack of trustworthiness [Fed R Evid 803(7); see United States v. De Georgia (9th Cir 1969) 420 F2d 889, 893-894].

A witness must lay the foundation for the admission of electronically stored information under the business records exception to the hearsay rule. This testifying witness must be either the custodian of the records or another "qualified witness" [Fed R Evid 803(6)]. For example, a bookkeeper may be a qualified witness to lay the foundation for financial records [see, e.g., United States v. Catabran (9th Cir 1988) 836 F2d 453]. It is not necessary that a computer programmer testify to establish the foundation for computer-generated records [United States v. Miller (9th Cir 1985) 771 F2d 1219, 1237].

The fact that a printout of business records maintained in an electronic information system is prepared specially for purposes of trial does not affect the characterization of the records themselves as business records. As long as the original data compilation qualifies as a business record, the fact that the hard copy printout was prepared for the purposes of litigation does not affect its admissibility [see United States v. Hernandez (10th Cir 1990) 913 F2d 1506, 1512-1513].

23.186[2][c] Catch-All Exception for Statements With Circumstantial Guarantees of Trustworthiness. A statement not specifically covered by the exceptions to the hearsay exclusionary rule in the Federal Rules of Evidence [Fed R Evid 803, 804] but that has equivalent circumstantial guarantees of trustworthiness is not excluded by the hearsay rule, if the court determines all of the following [Fed R Evid 807]:

- The statement is offered as evidence of a material fact.
- The statement is more probative on the point for which it is offered than any other evidence that the proponent can procure through reasonable efforts.
- The general purposes of the Federal Rules of Evidence and the interests of justice will best be served by admission of the statement into evidence.

For a statement to be admitted under this catch-all exception, the proponent of the statement must make it known to the adverse party sufficiently in advance of the trial or hearing to provide the adverse party with a fair opportunity to prepare to meet it, along with the proponent's intention to offer the statement and the particulars of it, including the name and address of the declarant [Fed R Evid 807; see, e.g., United States v. Blackburn (7th Cir 1993) 992 F2d 666, 672 (computer printouts of lensometer readings for eyeglass lens admissible under former Fed R Evid 803(24), now Fed R Evid 807)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
EvidenceHearsayExceptionsGeneral OverviewEvidenceDemonstrative EvidenceComputer-Generated Evidence

77 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VII. DISCOVERY OF ELECTRONICALLY STORED INFORMATION
D. Admitting Electronically Stored Information at Trial

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.187

23.187 Court May Require Disclosure of Digital Material That Will Be Shown to Jury.

The court may require disclosure of all digital material that will be shown to the jury. Disclosure should be made in the same format that will be used at trial. Early disclosure helps the court in making rulings on admissibility. For example, the use of an animation or simulation raises issues such as the need for limiting instructions (such as to clarify the specific purpose for which the evidence is being offered), the authenticity and reliability of the underlying data, and the assumptions on which the exhibit is based. Guidance on admissibility should be obtained as early as possible to avoid the expense of preparing an animation or simulation that could be ruled inadmissible [see Manual for Complex Litigation, Fourth, § 11.643].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryDisclosuresMandatory DisclosuresCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & Inspection

78 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VII. DISCOVERY OF ELECTRONICALLY STORED INFORMATION
D. Admitting Electronically Stored Information at Trial

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.188

23.188 Application of Best Evidence Rule to Printouts of Electronically Stored Information.

Under the Federal Rules of Evidence, to prove the contents of a writing, the original writing is required "except as otherwise provided" [Fed R Evid 1002]. When data is stored in a computer or similar device, any printout or other output readable by sight, shown to reflect the data accurately, is an "original" [Fed R Evid 1001(3)]. A copy of a printout is admissible as a duplicate unless a genuine question is raised as to the authenticity of the original, or unless in the circumstances it would be unfair to admit the duplicate in lieu of the original [Fed R Evid 1003].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
EvidenceDocumentary EvidenceBest Evidence Rule

LexisNexis®

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VIII. PHYSICAL AND MENTAL EXAMINATIONS
A. Determining Whether to Conduct Examination of Party

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.189

23.189 CHECKLIST: Initial Considerations.

☐ Consider importance of party's physical or mental condition to your claims or defenses.

☐ Consider whether the nature and extent of party's claims regarding mental/physical condition appear to be overstated.

☐ If discovery concerning individual's physical or mental condition is sought, determine whether discovery by physical or mental examination would be available under Rule 35:

○ Mental or physical condition (including blood group) must be "in controversy" with regard to:

☐ Party; or

☐ Person in custody or under legal control of a party.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 35(a)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.192, 23.202

☐ Consider whether the information regarding party's mental or physical condition can be better obtained by other means of discovery, such as:

- ○ Interrogatories [see Fed R Civ P 33];
- ○ Requests for production [see Fed R Civ P 34]; or
- ○ Witness depositions [see Fed R Civ P 30].

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)

Discussion:
See § 23.190

☐ Evaluate likely outcome of examination:

- ○ Consider potential of harm if examination report is made available to examinee's counsel.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 35(b)

Discussion:
See § 23.190

☐ Consider who would be serving as examiner:

- ○ Inquire into prospective examiners' fees, qualifications, experience, and availability.
- ○ Examiner must be individual who is "suitably licensed or certified."

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 35(a)

Discussion:
See § 23.193

☐ If mental or physical examination is sought, ascertain whether other parties will agree to examination:

- ○ Discuss potential use of Rule 35 examination at Rule 26(f) discovery planning conference.
- ○ If parties are agreeable to examination, prepare agreement for examination as part of the Rule 26(f) discovery plan.
- ○ Examinations not already agreed to at Rule 26(f) discovery conference may usually be arranged by stipulation at a later time.

○ If agreement/stipulation is not possible, prepare to use noticed motion procedure for court-ordered mental or physical examination.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 29, 35(a)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.194 -23.204

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical Examinations

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VIII. PHYSICAL AND MENTAL EXAMINATIONS
A. Determining Whether to Conduct Examination of Party

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.190

23.190 Options and Strategy for Party Considering Examination.

Physical and mental examinations are available as a discovery device in the federal district courts under Rule 35 [see Fed R Civ P 35]. Such examinations are available only if both of the following conditions are met [see Fed R Civ P 35; Schlagenhauf v. Holder (1964) 379 US 104, 118-119, 85 S Ct 234, 13 L Ed2d 152 ; see also 23.202, 23.203]:

- The mental or physical condition of a party or a person in a party's custody or control is "in controversy."

- There is "good cause" for the examination.

Any attempt to use Rule 35 discovery must be preceded by analysis of the facts of the case in light of these two requirements. However, even if the party seeking the motion shows that the two requirements are met, the decision to grant or deny a Rule 35 examination always lies within the court's discretion [see Fed R Civ P 35(a) (court "may" order examination)]. Although examinations are sought most often in personal injury actions, they are available in any civil action in which the mental or physical condition of a party is at issue [Maynard v. City of San Jose (9th Cir 1994) 37 F3d 1396, 1402 (defendant could have undertaken mental examination of plaintiff in civil rights case under 42 USC §§ 1983, 1985); Ragge v. MCA/Universal Studios (CD Cal 1995) 65 FRD 605, 608 (Title VII civil rights action)].

Researching Medical Topics:

Many resources are available online for researching medical topics and articles. For example, helpful resources at lexis.com include:

- Legal tab> Area of Law-By Topic> Medical> Search Medical Journals & Abstracts> Medline & Abstracts> Medline References

  - Sample Search: To obtain a bibliographic list of medical articles on a particular topic, use the MAJOR-TERMS segment to search the MEDLINE(R) bibliographic database: major-terms (aspartame).

- Sample Search: To obtain a bibliographic list of medical articles by a particular author, enter a Terms & Connectors search, such as: AUTHOR(last name/3 first name).

Cross Reference:

Applicability of Rule 35, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 35.02[1] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical Examinations

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VIII. PHYSICAL AND MENTAL EXAMINATIONS
A. Determining Whether to Conduct Examination of Party

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.191

23.191 Any Party May Seek Examination.

When the physical or mental condition of a party, or a person in the custody or control of a party, is "in controversy," an examination of that condition may be sought by any party to the action. There is no requirement that the examination be sought by an opposing party [Schlagenhauf v. Holder (1964) 379 US 104, 115-116, 85 S Ct 234, 13 L Ed2d 152].

Example:

Defendants may move to compel examination of a co-defendant, if the physical or mental condition of the co-defendant is in controversy [Schlagenhauf v. Holder (1964) 379 US 104, 115-116, 85 S Ct 234, 13 L Ed2d 152].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical Examinations

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VIII. PHYSICAL AND MENTAL EXAMINATIONS
A. Determining Whether to Conduct Examination of Party

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.192

23.192 Party or Person in Custody or Control of Party May Be Examined.

23.192[1] Any Party Is Subject to Examination. Any party may be subject to a physical or mental examination when the physical or mental condition of the party is in controversy [Fed R Civ P 35(a)].

Although it is usually plaintiffs who are examined under Rule 35, a defendant may be subject to examination in appropriate circumstances [Schlagenhauf v. Holder (1964) 379 US 104, 112-114, 85 S Ct 234, 13 L Ed2d 152].

Cross Reference:

Party subject to examination, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 35.06 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.192[2] Person in Custody or Control of Party Is Subject to Examination. Under Rule 35, a person in the custody or under the legal control of a party may be subject to a physical or mental examination when the physical or mental condition of that person is in controversy [Fed R Civ P 35(a)].

Example:

A child or incompetent who is not technically a party to an action may nevertheless be compelled to submit to a physical or mental examination when suit is brought by a parent or guardian and the condition of the child or incompetent is "in controversy" [see Scharf v. United States Attorney Gen. (9th Cir 1979) 597 F2d 1240, 1244].

Distinguish:

A guardian or parent of a minor who is suing only in a representative capacity is not considered to be a "party" to the action, and may not be ordered to undergo an examination under Rule 35 [Scharf v. United States Attorney Gen. (9th Cir 1979) 597 F2d 1240, 1243-1244 ; Fong Sik Leung v. Dulles (9th Cir 1955) 226 F2d 74, 77-78].

Cross Reference:

Person in custody or control subject to examination, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 35.06 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.192[3] Nonparty Is Not Subject to Examination. Physical or mental examinations may not be used against nonparties. For example:

- A person not a party to the action may not be ordered to submit to an examination under Rule 35 even if intimately connected to one of the parties to the action [Dulles v. Quan Yoke Fong (9th Cir 1956) 237 F2d 496, 498-499].

- A mere agent of a party may not be compelled to submit to an examination, unless the agent is also named as a party [Schlagenhauf v. Holder (1964) 379 US 104, 115 n12, 85 S Ct 234, 13 L Ed2d 152].

- An employee of a party may not be compelled to submit to a Rule 35 examination [see Lewis v. Herrman's Excavating, Inc. (D Kan 2001) 200 FRD 657, 660-661].

Distinguish:

The Federal Rules generally limit nonparty discovery to three methods: oral depositions, written depositions, and subpoenas [see Fed R Civ P 30(a)(1), 31(a)(1), 34(c), 45]. It may be possible to examine a nonparty by stipulation, however, if the examinee agrees to the examination [see 23.194 -23.197].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical Examinations

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VIII. PHYSICAL AND MENTAL EXAMINATIONS
A. Determining Whether to Conduct Examination of Party

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.193

23.193 Examination Must Be Conducted by Qualified Examiner.

23.193[1] Examiner Must Be Suitably Licensed or Certified. The court may order a physical or mental examination only if the proposed examiner is "suitably licensed or certified" [Fed R Civ P 35(a)(1)].

The fact that an individual is not a physician or licensed psychologist will not disqualify him or her from serving as an examiner. The individual's qualifications, however, must be appropriate to the condition to be examined [see Fed R Civ P 35, Committee Note of 1991].

Cross Reference:

Qualifications of examiner, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 35.07[1] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.193[2] Designation of Examiner by Moving Party Generally Conclusive. The movant's designation of a proposed examiner will generally be honored by the court, and a different examiner will be appointed only if the party to be examined raises some valid objection to the ability of the proposed examiner to conduct the examination [Ragge v. MCA/Universal Studios (CD Cal 1995) 165 FRD 605, 609].

Cross Reference:

Movant may select examiner, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 35.07[2] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical Examinations

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VIII. PHYSICAL AND MENTAL EXAMINATIONS
B. Agreeing or Stipulating to Physical or Mental Examination

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.194

23.194 CHECKLIST: Agreeing or Stipulating to Physical or Mental Examination.

☐ Consider what type of examination will achieve your discovery goals and what type of examiner you need.

☐ Review local rules and judge's individual rules to determine whether stipulation will need to be filed, or whether judge's signature/approval will be needed.

Authority:
CD Cal Civ LR 7.1, 52-4.1; ED Cal Gen LR 143; ND Cal Civ LR 7-12; SD Cal Civ LR 7.2

☐ At Rule 26(f) discovery planning conference, discuss your proposals for the examination with the other parties.

☐ Once logistics of examination have been planned, draft written agreement, including:

- ○ Time and place of examination.
- ○ Identity and specialty of the examiner.
- ○ What procedures will be used.

- Who will observe the examination.
- How the examination will be recorded.
- Scope of the examination.
- Length of time of the examination.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 29, 35(a), (b)(6)

☐ Sign agreement and obtain signatures of other parties:

- If examination is to be of individual not ordinarily subject to examination under Rule 35 (e.g., a third-party witness), that examinee's signature must be obtained as well.
- Agreement may be included as a part of parties' Rule 26(f) discovery plan.
- Examinations not already agreed to at Rule 26(f) discovery conference may usually be arranged by a separate stipulation later in the pretrial stage.

☐ Ensure compliance with all local and individual judge's rules regarding stipulations.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical ExaminationsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsStipulations

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VIII. PHYSICAL AND MENTAL EXAMINATIONS
B. Agreeing or Stipulating to Physical or Mental Examination

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.195

23.195 Options and Strategy for Agreeing or Stipulating to Examination.

In most cases, any need for mental and physical examinations will be apparent at the beginning of the case and indisputable. When a party's physical or mental condition is clearly relevant to the claims or defenses presented in the case, the parties often agree in writing to have an examination, rather than seeking a court order under Rule 35. Rule 35 expressly recognizes the possibility and validity of a stipulated examination [Fed R Civ P 35(b)(6); see also Fed R Civ P 29 (setting conditions for discovery stipulations)].

Examination by agreement or stipulation may prove preferable to seeking a court order under Rule 35 for several reasons, including:

- A stipulation may provide for the examination of a key witness or other person not a party to the action, provided, of course, the witness or other person agrees to be examined.

- A stipulation provides greater flexibility in terms of scheduling and setting limits on the scope of the examination.

- A stipulation may permit counsel or some other third party to attend the examination, while a court order will often preclude such attendance [see 23.204[2]].

- The right of the examined party to obtain the report of the examiner [Fed R Civ P 35(b)(1); see 23.215[2]] may be limited or eliminated by the stipulation.

- The consequences of obtaining or disclosing the report of the examiner that otherwise apply under the rule [Fed R Civ P 35(b)(3), (4); see 23.215] may be limited or eliminated by the stipulation.

- A stipulated examination obviates the need for a public hearing and publicly available briefing. Potentially embarrassing or otherwise private mental or physical problems may therefore not need to be publicly disclosed.

If the parties cannot agree on the terms of an examination, the party seeking the examination may proceed by motion under the standard noticed motion procedure [Fed R Civ P 35(a)(2); see 23.198 -23.204].

Warning:

Local rules in all four California districts require the parties to attempt to resolve the matter informally before presenting the motion to the court [see, e.g., CD Cal Civ LR 37-1; ED Cal Civ LR 251(b); ND Cal Civ LR 37-1(a); SD Cal Civ LR 26.1(a)]. For discussion of standard motion procedure, including informal resolution, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion.

Cross Reference:

Stipulation of parties for examination, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 35.02[5] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical ExaminationsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsStipulations

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VIII. PHYSICAL AND MENTAL EXAMINATIONS
B. Agreeing or Stipulating to Physical or Mental Examination

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.196

23.196 Parties May Agree to Mental or Physical Examination.

The parties to an action may stipulate to discovery by means of a physical or mental examination. The stipulation must be in writing [see Fed R Civ P 29].

The contents of the stipulation are not prescribed by rule. As a practical matter, the points referenced in Rule 35(a) (time, place, manner, conditions, scope of examination, and examiner(s)) will need to be specified as clearly as possible.

Cross Reference:

Form of stipulation for physical examination, see 8 Bender's Federal Practice Forms, Form 35:25 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical ExaminationsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsStipulations

87 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VIII. PHYSICAL AND MENTAL EXAMINATIONS
B. Agreeing or Stipulating to Physical or Mental Examination

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.197

23.197 Examination Pursuant to Agreement Is Subject to Rule 35 Restrictions, Unless Agreement Explicitly Provides Otherwise.

Unless the stipulation expressly provides otherwise, the stipulation is deemed to incorporate the rules in Rule 35(b) for exchange of medical or psychological reports and waiver of privilege [Fed R Civ P 35(b)(6)].

Warning:

Consider the implications of Rule 35(b)(6) on your stipulation.

Party Seeking Examination:

Unless contrary provisions are expressly stipulated, the examining party will be required to disclose the results of the stipulated examination at the examinee's request [Fed R Civ P 35(b)(1), (6)].

Examinee:

Unless contrary provisions are expressly stipulated, if the examinee does request the examination report, the examining party will have a reciprocal right to receive future examination reports concerning the examinee's condition [Fed R Civ P 35(b)(3), (6)]. With regard to future examinations, the examinee will waive any testimonial privileges that would otherwise be available (e.g., the physician-patient privilege or the psychotherapist-patient privilege) [Fed R Civ P 35(b)(4), (6)].

Cross Reference:

Stipulations generally, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, §§ 22.03 -22.13.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical ExaminationsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsStipulations

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VIII. PHYSICAL AND MENTAL EXAMINATIONS
C. Moving for Court-Ordered Physical or Mental Examination of Party

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.198

23.198 CHECKLIST: Moving for Physical or Mental Examination of Party.

☐ Review Rule 35 requirements.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 35

Discussion:
See §§ 23.191 -23.193; 23.201 -23.203

☐ Review local rules and individual judge's rules to ascertain preconditions for filing discovery motion.

☐ Ensure that timing of discovery is proper:

○ After preliminary discovery conference.

○ Before close of discovery.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(d)

Discussion:
See § 23.200

☐ Engage opposing parties in attempt at informal resolution, as required by local rule.

Authority:
CD Cal Civ LR 37-1; ED Cal Gen LR 251(b); ND Cal Civ LR 37-1(a); SD Cal Civ LR 26.1(a)

☐ Draft motion:

○ Include any additional papers required under local rules re attempt at informal resolution.

Authority:
CD Cal Civ LR 37-2.1; ED Cal Gen LR 251(b); SD Cal Civ LR 26.1(b)

☐ Serve and file motion papers:

○ Follow standard noticed motion procedure.

Authority:
CD Cal Civ LR 7-1-7-20; ED Cal Civ LR 230; ND Cal Civ LR 7-1, 7-2; SD Cal Civ LR 7.1

Standard Procedure Checklist:
Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.12

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical Examinations

89 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VIII. PHYSICAL AND MENTAL EXAMINATIONS
C. Moving for Court-Ordered Physical or Mental Examination of Party

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.199

23.199 Options and Strategy for Moving Party.

The motion procedure for Rule 35 examinations should be used only as a last resort, if the parties cannot reach an agreement or stipulation concerning the terms of the examination. As noted above, proceeding by agreement or stipulation offers numerous advantages [see 23.195].

Judge's Perspective:

A party seeking to compel an examination should be sensitive to the intrusive nature of the request and should suggest examination parameters that will not needlessly make the process more onerous or invasive for the party being examined than is absolutely necessary. A court will react adversely if it appears that the request is in any way designed to discomfort or embarrass the party to be examined.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical ExaminationsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsStipulations

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VIII. PHYSICAL AND MENTAL EXAMINATIONS
C. Moving for Court-Ordered Physical or Mental Examination of Party

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.200

23.200 Request and Examination Must Be Timed Properly.

23.200[1] Examinations Must Await Preliminary Discovery Conference. A party generally may not seek discovery, including Rule 35 examinations, before the parties have held the mandatory preliminary discovery conference [Fed R Civ P 26(d); see Fed R Civ P 26(f) (discovery conference requirements)].

Exceptions:
Discovery before the mandatory preliminary discovery conference is permitted in [Fed R Civ P 26(f)]:

- Categories of cases exempted from initial disclosure requirements [see Fed R Civ P 26(a)(1)(B)]; and
- Cases where the court has authorized, or the parties have agreed to, early discovery.

Cross References:

Initial disclosure requirements, see Ch. 15, Rule 26(f) Conferences and Initial Disclosures, §§ 15.15 -15.26. Discovery conferences, see Ch. 15, Rule 26(f) Conferences and Initial Disclosures, §§ 15.03 -15.14.

23.200[2] Examinations Must Be Sought Before Close of Discovery. A Rule 35 examination must be sought and completed within the discovery cutoff established by the court for the action [see Fed R Civ P 16(b)(3); see also ED Cal Civ LR 240(a)(11); ND Cal Civ LR 26-2; SD Cal Civ LR 16.1(d.2)]. Even if an examination request is technically made within the discovery period, it may be denied if made so late that the examination and report cannot reasonably be produced within the discovery period [see Shumaker v. West (SD W Va 2000) 196 FRD 454, 456-457 (denying request for examination when results of examination could not be included in required expert witness disclosures due in mere days)].

Cross References:

Timing of discovery, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, § 22.24.

7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 35.02[2] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.200[3] Examination May Be Available Prior to Commencement of Action to Preserve Evidence. In some circumstances, Rule 27 permits perpetuation proceedings prior to an action to preserve evidence that may be lost if not immediately preserved [see Fed R Civ P 27]. Parties may be able to use the perpetuation mechanisms of Rule 27 to conduct a physical or mental examination under Rule 35 prior to an action or pending appeal. Such examinations are available on a restricted basis, subject to court approval [see Martin v. Reynolds Metals Corp. (9th Cir 1961) 297 F2d 49, 56 (authorizing use of Rule 34 and Rule 35 discovery in prelitigation perpetuation)].

Cross References:

Perpetuation proceedings prior to action, see §§ 23.03 -23.18.

See also 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 35.02[3] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical Examinations

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VIII. PHYSICAL AND MENTAL EXAMINATIONS
C. Moving for Court-Ordered Physical or Mental Examination of Party

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.201

23.201 Requisites of Motion Practice Must Be Followed.

A party who wishes to obtain a physical or mental examination of a party under Rule 35 through a court order must proceed by motion under the standard noticed motion procedure. The moving party must:

- Show that the physical or mental condition of the party to be examined is "in controversy" [Fed R Civ P 35(a); see Schlagenhauf v. Holder (1964) 379 US 104, 118-119, 85 S Ct 234, 13 L Ed2d 152 ; see 23.202];

- Show "good cause" for the conduct of the examination [Fed R Civ P 35(a); see Schlagenhauf v. Holder (1964) 379 US 104, 118-119, 85 S Ct 234, 13 L Ed2d 152 ; see 23.203]; and

- Provide specific facts about the proposed examination, including time, place, manner, and name of examiner, to put the other parties on notice [Fed R Civ P 35(a)(2); see 23.204].

Warning:

Pay close attention to local rules and individual judge's rules. Motion procedure and the required format for motion papers vary from district to district.

Cross References:

Form of notice of motion and order, see §§ 23.310, 23.311.

Standard motion procedure, see Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, § 26.12, and Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, § 22.14.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeContent & FormCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting MemorandaCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical Examinations

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VIII. PHYSICAL AND MENTAL EXAMINATIONS
C. Moving for Court-Ordered Physical or Mental Examination of Party

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.202

23.202 Physical or Mental Condition Must Be Shown to Be "in Controversy."

23.202[1] Burden Is on Moving Party. The party moving to compel a physical or mental examination under Rule 35 has the burden of showing that the prospective examinee's mental or physical condition is genuinely "in controversy" [Schlagenhauf v. Holder (1964) 379 US 104, 118, 85 S Ct 234, 13 L Ed2d 152 ; Turner v. Imperial Stores (SD Cal 1995) 161 FRD 89, 91 ; see Fed R Civ P 35(a)].

The movant must show more than mere relevance to the claims or defenses in the action; instead, the movant must make an affirmative showing that each condition as to which the examination is sought is really and genuinely in controversy [Schlagenhauf v. Holder (1964) 379 US 104, 118, 85 S Ct 234, 13 L Ed2d 152].

When a plaintiff alleges only past mental or emotional suffering and does not allege a separate claim for relief for emotional distress, a Rule 35 exam is generally not appropriate [Curtis v. Express, Inc. (NDNY 1994) 868 F Supp 467, 469].

Cross Reference:

Burden of demonstrating condition in controversy, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 35.03[1] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.202[2] Party to Be Examined Must Have Placed Condition "in Controversy." In order for a physical or mental examination to be ordered under Rule 35, the party to be examined must be the party that placed the physical or mental condition "in controversy" [Houghton v. M&F Fishing, Inc. (SD Cal 2001) 198 FRD 666, 669].

Example:

A plaintiff could not be subjected to psychiatric examination in a suit for personal injury because plaintiff alleged no mental injury or damages; allegations of defendant's expert witness could not place plaintiff's mental condition in controversy for purposes of Rule 35 [Houghton v. M&F Fishing, Inc. (SD Cal 2001) 198 FRD 666, 669].

23.202[3] Showing That Physical Condition Is in Controversy. Whenever a plaintiff seeks to recover damages for a physical injury that has either permanent or lasting effect, the plaintiff places his or her physical condition "in controversy" and may be subjected to a compelled examination of that condition by any other party to the action [Edson v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. (ND Cal 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 25258, at *3-*4 ; see Schlagenhauf v. Holder (1964) 379 US 104, 119, 85 S Ct 234, 13 L Ed2d 152].

23.202[4] Showing That Mental Condition Is in Controversy.

23.202[4][a] Making Claim of "Garden-Variety" Emotional Distress or Mental Anguish Does Not Place Mental Condition "in Controversy." In many cases, a plaintiff suing to recover tort damages will assert that the alleged actions of the defendants have caused the plaintiff some emotional distress or mental anguish. Standing alone, such a claim of routine or "garden-variety" distress or anguish, however, does not place the plaintiff's mental condition "in controversy" for purposes of Rule 35, and cannot serve as the basis for a compelled mental examination [Fitzgerald v. Cassil (ND Cal 2003) 216 FRD 632, 639-640 ; Ford v. Contra Costa County (ND Cal 1998) 179 FRD 579, 579-580 ; Turner v. Imperial Stores (SD Cal 1995) 161 FRD 89, 91, 98]. Instead, a claim of "garden-variety" emotional distress or mental anguish places the plaintiff's mental condition "in controversy" only when asserted in conjunction with one or more of the following [Turner v. Imperial Stores (SD Cal 1995) 161 FRD 89, 95]:

- A claim for relief for intentional or negligent infliction of emotional distress [Ragge v. MCA/Universal Studios (CD Cal 1995) 165 FRD 605, 608-609 (claim for relief for intentional infliction of emotional distress placed plaintiff's mental condition "in controversy")];

- An allegation of a specific mental or psychiatric injury or disorder [see, e.g., Shepherd v. ABC (DDC 1993) 151 FRD 194, 213 , rev'd on other grounds by Shepherd v. ABC (DC Cir 1995) 62 F3d 1469 (plaintiffs' allegation of Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder placed plaintiff's mental condition "in controversy")];

- A claim of emotional distress so severe as to merit psychiatric care or psychological counseling [see, e.g., Lowe v. Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. (ED Pa 1983) 101 FRD 296, 298-299];

- Plaintiff's offer of expert testimony to support a claim of emotional distress [Tomlin v. Holecek (D Minn 1993) 150 FRD 628, 630]; or

- A concession that the plaintiff's mental condition is "in controversy" [see Ragge v. MCA/Universal Studios (CD Cal 1995) 165 FRD 605, 607 (plaintiff did not challenge propriety of mental examination); see 23.202[4][c]].

Cross Reference:

Demonstrating that mental condition is in controversy, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 35.03[3] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.202[4][b] Making Claim of Ongoing Mental Injury Places Mental Condition "in Controversy." When the plaintiff alleges a "mental injury," the plaintiff places that mental injury clearly in controversy and provides the defendant with good cause for an examination to determine the existence and extent of the asserted injury [Schlagenhauf v. Holder (1964) 379 US 104, 119, 85 S Ct 234, 13 L Ed2d 152]. Accordingly, an allegation that the defendants' actions have caused the plaintiff some mental injury that is either ongoing or persists beyond that normally associated with the actions at issue places the plaintiff's mental condition "in controversy" for purposes of Rule 35 [Ragge v. MCA/Universal Studios (CD Cal 1995) 165 FRD 605, 608-609].

Example:

In an employment discrimination/sexual harassment case, the plaintiff's allegation of ongoing humiliation and emotional distress placed plaintiff's mental condition "in controversy" [Ragge v. MCA/Universal Studios (CD Cal 1995) 165 FRD 605, 608-609].

23.202[4][c] Party to Be Examined May Concede That Mental Condition Is "in Controversy." If the party to be examined is willing to stipulate in writing that his or her mental condition is "in controversy" for purposes of Rule 35, the concession will eliminate any necessity to demonstrate that element of the Rule 35 inquiry. The party subject to examination will still be able to challenge any designated examiner, the conditions of the examination, or other matters on which the parties could not agree [see, e.g., Ragge v. MCA/Universal Studios (CD Cal 1995) 165 FRD 605, 607].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical Examinations

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VIII. PHYSICAL AND MENTAL EXAMINATIONS
C. Moving for Court-Ordered Physical or Mental Examination of Party

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.203

23.203 Establishing "Good Cause" for Examination.

23.203[1] Burden Is on Moving Party. The party moving to compel a physical or mental examination under Rule 35 has the burden of showing that there is "good cause" to conduct the examination [Schlagenhauf v. Holder (1964) 379 US 104, 118-119, 85 S Ct 234, 13 L Ed2d 152 ; Turner v. Imperial Stores (SD Cal 1995) 161 FRD 89, 91 ; see Fed R Civ P 35(a)].

Cross Reference:

Burden of demonstrating good cause for examination, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 35.04[1] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.203[2] "Good Cause" Requires Demonstration of Necessity to Discover Specific Relevant Facts Through Examination. To demonstrate "good cause" to conduct a physical or mental examination of a party under Fed R Civ P 35, the movant must show that the examination could lead to discovery of specific facts relevant to the claims or defenses in the action, and that the discovery of those facts is necessary to the movant's case [Ragge v. MCA/Universal Studios (CD Cal 1995) 165 FRD 605, 609 ; see also Schlagenhauf v. Holder (1964) 379 US 104, 117-118, 85 S Ct 234, 13 L Ed2d 152 (examining party must have affirmative need for information sought in examination)].

23.203[3] Moving Party's Ability to Obtain Information From Other Source May Obviate Need for Examination. Because the demonstration of "good cause" for an examination under Rule 35 requires the movant to demonstrate an affirmative need for the information sought from the examination [Schlagenhauf v. Holder (1964) 379 US 104, 117-118, 85 S Ct 234, 13 L Ed2d 152], the ability of the party to obtain the information from another source will generally preclude a finding of good cause [see Schlagenhauf v. Holder (1964) 379 US 104, 117-118, 85 S Ct 234, 13 L Ed2d 152 ; Ragge v. MCA/Universal Studios (CD Cal 1995) 165 FRD 605, 609].

23.203[4] Prior Examination May Obviate Need for Second Examination. If a prior examination of the party would suffice to provide the desired information, discovery of the results of that examination may be an appropriate substitute for ordering a subsequent examination [see DeCrescenzo v. Maersk Container Serv. Co. (2d Cir 1984) 741 F2d 17, 21].

Distinguish:

Sometimes, a second examination will actually be necessary, e.g., when there is a need to determine a change in the plaintiff's physical condition since the first examination [Edson v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. (ND Cal 2002) 2002 US Dist LEXIS 25258, at *3-*4].

23.203[5] Court May Balance Privacy Interest of Party Against Need for Examination. Because compelling a party to submit to a physical or mental examination is a significant intrusion on the party's privacy interests, Rule 35 requires a demonstration of both the "in controversy" and "good cause" elements. Even if good cause is shown, an examination order is not mandatory [see Gattegno v. Pricewaterhousecoopers, LLP (D Conn 2001) 204 FRD 228, 230]. It is within the court's discretion to balance the privacy interests of the party to be examined against the need of the movant for the information [see Curtis v. Express, Inc. (NDNY 1994) 868 F Supp 467, 468].

In this regard, the court may also focus on the implications that a physical or mental examination will have on the physician-patient privilege [see, e.g., Fitzgerald v. Cassil (ND Cal 2003) 216 FRD 632, 638, n2 (analogizing waiver of psychotherapist-patient privilege to examination under Fed R Civ P 35)].

Judge's Perspective:

The more expansive, and in some instances, subjective the symptoms identified by the plaintiff (such as nausea, anxiety, sleeplessness, fatigue, helplessness), the more likely an examination will be deemed to be required. Conversely, the more intrusive and burdensome the proposed examination (such as inconvenient location, scope of examination, discomfort entailed in the proposed procedure), the more likely the court will act to protect privacy rights.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical Examinations

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VIII. PHYSICAL AND MENTAL EXAMINATIONS
C. Moving for Court-Ordered Physical or Mental Examination of Party

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.204

23.204 Setting and Limiting Conditions of Examination.

23.204[1] Conditions Should Be Specified in Motion. The motion seeking to compel the examination should specify the intended conditions of the examination [see Ragge v. MCA/Universal Studios (CD Cal 1995) 165 FRD 605, 610]. The motion should address matters such as the time, place, and manner of examination, and the person or persons by whom the examination is to be made [see Fed R Civ P 35(a)].

23.204[2] Attendance of Third Parties, Including Counsel, Generally Disfavored. Because the presence of persons other than the party and the examiner may interfere with the conduct of the examination, third parties, including counsel for any party in the action, are usually prohibited from attending the examination [Ragge v. MCA/Universal Studios (CD Cal 1995) 165 FRD 605, 609-610 (request by plaintiff for third-party observer of mental examination rejected); see Cabana v. Forcier (D Mass 2001) 200 FRD 9, 12 (plaintiff not entitled to have his attorney present at psychiatric examination)]. There is authority from outside the Ninth Circuit, however, that a state rule of procedure granting a right of attendance may be enforced in a federal diversity action [Gensbauer v. May Dep't Stores Co. (ED Pa 1999) 184 FRD 552, 553]. The California Code of Civil Procedure does permit an observer at a physical examination [CCP § 2032.510], though there is no authority that this rule can be applied in a federal action.

Cross References:

Observers at examination, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 35.08 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Observers at examination under California state law, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California Civil Discovery, § 11.47.

23.204[3] Recording Examination Not Necessary. The intended record of the examination is the report to be prepared by the examiner [see 23.213, 23.214]. Because of the potential intrusion on the examining process, generally neither party will be permitted to have the examination transcribed either by a stenographer or by electronic means [see Abdulwali v. Washington Metro Area Transit Auth. (DDC 2000) 193 FRD 10, 13 (videotaping of psychiatric examination inappropriate); Hertenstein v. Kimberly Home Health Care, Inc. (D Kan 1999) 189 FRD 620, 630-631

(plaintiff has no right to presence of mechanical recording device at psychiatric examination when plaintiff did not demonstrate need)].

Cross Reference:

Transcription of examination, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 35.10 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical Examinations

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VIII. PHYSICAL AND MENTAL EXAMINATIONS
D. Sanctioning Noncompliance With Court Order for Examination

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.205

23.205 CHECKLIST: Sanctioning Noncompliance With Court Order for Examination.

☐ Attempt to find out why noncompliance occurred:

○ If noncompliance was due to party's inability to produce person under its custody or control, noncompliance may be excused.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 37(b)(2)(B)

Discussion:
See § 23.207

☐ Engage noncomplying party in attempt at informal resolution, as required by local rule.

Authority:
CD Cal Civ LR 37-1; ED Cal Gen LR 251(b); ND Cal Civ LR 37-1(a); SD Cal Civ LR 26.1(a)

☐ Review Fed R Civ P 37(b)(2)(A)(i)-(vi) for types of sanctions potentially available in connection with noncompliance.

Discussion:
See § 23.208

☐ If sanctions are sought against noncomplying party, draft motion for sanctions:

- ○ Include request to issue sanction(s) authorized under Rule 37(b)(2).
- ○ Include request for reasonable expenses caused by noncompliance.
- ○ Include any additional papers re attempt at informal resolution required under local rules.

Authority:
CD Cal Civ LR 37-2.1; ED Cal Gen LR 251(b); SD Cal Civ LR 26.1(b)

☐ Serve and file motion papers:

- ○ Follow standard noticed motion procedure.

Authority:
CD Cal Civ LR 7-1-7-20; ED Cal Civ LR 230; ND Cal Civ LR 7-1, 7-2; SD Cal Civ LR 7.1

Standard Procedure Checklists:
Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, see § 22.14; Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.12

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical ExaminationsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMisconduct

96 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VIII. PHYSICAL AND MENTAL EXAMINATIONS
D. Sanctioning Noncompliance With Court Order for Examination

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.206

23.206 Examining Party Can Move for Sanctions If Party Fails to Comply With Examination Order.

If a party fails to comply with an examination order, the party seeking the examination can move for sanctions against the noncomplying party [see Fed R Civ P 37(b)(2)].

Cross Reference:

Form of motion for issue sanction, 8 Bender's Federal Practice Forms, Form 37:63 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical ExaminationsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMisconduct

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VIII. PHYSICAL AND MENTAL EXAMINATIONS
D. Sanctioning Noncompliance With Court Order for Examination

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.207

23.207 Party May Escape Sanctions by Showing Inability to Produce Examinee.

If the Rule 35 order required the party to produce a person in the party's custody or control, the party can escape sanctions by demonstrating an inability to produce the designated person [Fed R Civ P 35(b)(2)(B)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical Examinations

98 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VIII. PHYSICAL AND MENTAL EXAMINATIONS
D. Sanctioning Noncompliance With Court Order for Examination

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.208

23.208 Various Types of Sanctions Are Available, Including Attorney's Fees.

Possible sanctions for failure to comply with an order under Rule 35 requiring the party to submit to a physical or mental examination include an order [Fed R Civ P 37(b)(2)(A)]:

- Designating certain facts as established for purposes of the action.
- Refusing to allow the disobedient party to support or oppose designated claims or defenses, or introduce designated matters into evidence.
- Striking pleadings or parts of pleadings.
- Staying the action until the order is obeyed.
- Dismissing the action or parts of the action [e.g., Schempp v. Reniker (8th Cir 1987) 809 F2d 541, 542-543 (sanction apt to be employed by court against plaintiff who disobeys Rule 35 order is dismissal)].
- Rendering default judgment.

In lieu of these orders or in addition to them, the court will require the party failing to obey the examination order or the attorney advising that party or both to pay the reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, caused by the failure, unless the court finds that the failure was substantially justified or that other circumstances make an award of expenses unjust [Fed R Civ P 37(b)(2)(C)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical ExaminationsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMisconduct

99 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VIII. PHYSICAL AND MENTAL EXAMINATIONS
D. Sanctioning Noncompliance With Court Order for Examination

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.209

23.209 Failure to Comply May Not Be Punished by Contempt.

A federal court may not impose a contempt citation for disobeying an order under Rule 35 to submit to a physical or mental examination [Fed R Civ P 37(b)(2)(A)(vii)].

Cross References:

Discovery sanctions in general, see Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions.

Sanctions under Rule 35, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 35.11 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical ExaminationsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMisconductCivil ProcedureSanctionsContemptGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VIII. PHYSICAL AND MENTAL EXAMINATIONS
E. Opposing Request for Motion for Examination

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.210

23.210 CHECKLIST: Opposing Request or Motion for Examination.

☐ Consider alternatives to opposition:

- ○ Entering into stipulation with opposing party as to terms and conditions of examination.
- ○ Preparing client for the examination.

☐ Focus efforts on ensuring that scope of examination is limited to precise condition in controversy.

☐ Consider moving for protective order if proposed examination involves invasive or painful procedures or delves into highly personal matters.

☐ If examination is held, interview client immediately after examination to root out possible discrepancies in examiner's report.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(c), 29, 35

Discussion:

See § 23.211

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical Examinations

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VIII. PHYSICAL AND MENTAL EXAMINATIONS
E. Opposing Request for Motion for Examination

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.211

23.211 Options and Strategies for Opposition.

23.211[1] Determine Whether Opposition Would Be Beneficial. Before opposing a request or motion for a physical or mental examination, counsel for the party to be examined should determine if anything can be gained by such resistance. Entering into a stipulation as to the terms and conditions of an agreed examination, as well as simple preparation of the client for the examination, might yield more fruitful results than simple opposition.

23.211[2] Attempt Negotiation Toward Stipulated Examination. In many cases, especially personal injury cases, there will be no question that the opposing party is entitled to the examination. An examination under a stipulation will allow for more flexibility than a court-ordered examination, and counsel will still be entitled to review the examiner's report, unless the stipulation expressly provides otherwise.

23.211[3] Focus on Scope of Examination. If it is clear that the opposition is entitled to an examination, focus your efforts on ensuring that the scope of the examination is properly limited to the precise condition in controversy [see Schlagenhauf v. Holder (1964) 379 US 104, 119-122, 85 S Ct 234, 13 L Ed2d 152].

A stipulation for an examination may include narrowing the scope of the examination.

If a motion for an order is sought, take advantage of the court's power to set terms and conditions on the examination, and make sure that the examiner has no power to expand the scope of the examination.

23.211[4] Consider Seeking Protective Order. If the proposed examination involves invasive or painful procedures or delves into highly personal matters, consider the possibility of seeking a protective order [see Swift v. Swift (EDNY 1974) 64 FRD 440, 442-443 (Rule 35 examinations are subject to protective order provisions of Rule 26(c))]. Even if the court does not deny the examination outright, it can still ensure that all possible precautions are taken to protect the examined party.

Strategic Point--Plaintiff:

A protective order is also appropriate when the defendant, such as the plaintiff's employer, is attempting to coerce the plaintiff into undergoing an extra-judicial examination [see, e.g., Partida v. Union Pac. R.R. Co. (CD Cal 2004) 221 FRD 623, 629-630].

Cross Reference:

Regulating discovery by protective order, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, §§ 22.35 -22.66.

23.211[5] Prepare Client for Examination. When an examination is held under stipulation or court order, the examiner will probably take a history of the facts surrounding the condition under examination. Prepare your client to reveal only the information necessary for the examination. Similarly, advise your client of the potential for trick questions, i.e., those that seem innocuous, but are designed to elicit information that may contradict your claim as to the condition under examination. Advise your client not to answer any questions that do not have an obvious relation to the condition for which the examination is conducted. Your client should generally be advised to provide the shortest and simplest answers possible.

23.211[6] Interview Client After Examination. Interview your client immediately following the examination. This provides a means of rooting out any discrepancies in the examiner's report, and may reveal whether the report is apt to be favorable to your position. It may also reveal improprieties in the examination procedure that could justify excluding the results of the examination [Ragge v. MCA/Universal Studios (CD Cal 1995) 165 FRD 605, 609 n5 (if examination is improper, it may be excluded at trial)].

23.211[7] Consider Options for Obtaining Examination Report. Although the examined party is entitled to a copy of the examiner's report, requesting the report both obliges the party to furnish to the opposition its own experts' reports on the same condition, and also waives any privilege the examined party may have as to examinations of the condition. Counsel may wish to forego asking for the opposition's examination report to avoid these reciprocal obligations of disclosure [Fed R Civ P 35(b)].

Although Rule 35 guarantees the right of the examined party to the report, it does not preclude discovery of the report under other discovery rules [Fed R Civ P 35(b)(6)].

Cross Reference:

Obtaining examiner's report, see §§ 23.212 -23.216.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical Examinations

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VIII. PHYSICAL AND MENTAL EXAMINATIONS
F. Obtaining and Using Examination Reports

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.212

23.212 CHECKLIST: Obtaining Examination Reports.

☐ Draft demand for examination reports, specifying:

○ A copy of a detailed written report setting out the examiner's findings, including results of all tests made, diagnoses, and conclusions.

○ A copy of like reports of all earlier examinations of the same condition.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 35(b)(1)-(3)

Discussion:
See § 23.213

☐ If reports are not received, move to compel production:

○ Accompany motion with declaration stating failure of attempts at informal resolution.

○ Include request for sanctions.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 35(b)(1)

Discussion:

See § 23.214[1]

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical Examinations

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VIII. PHYSICAL AND MENTAL EXAMINATIONS
F. Obtaining and Using Examination Reports

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.213

23.213 Obtaining Report on Request of Examined Party.

23.213[1] Examination Ordered After Motion. When an examination is ordered following a noticed motion under Rule 35(a), the party subject to the order of examination may request a copy of the report of the examiner and copies of all earlier examinations of the same condition [Fed R Civ P 35(b)(1)].

23.213[2] Stipulated Examination May Curtail Right to Report. The right of the examined party to receive the examiner's report applies to an examination performed under a stipulation of the parties, unless the stipulation expressly provides otherwise [Fed R Civ P 35(b)(6)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical Examinations

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VIII. PHYSICAL AND MENTAL EXAMINATIONS
F. Obtaining and Using Examination Reports

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.214

23.214 Compelling Production of Report.

23.214[1] Examined Party May Move Court to Compel Production. If the party subject to an order for examination requests the examiner's report, but the party conducting the examination does not produce the report, the party requesting the report may compel delivery by moving for a court order under the standard noticed motion procedure [Fed R Civ P 35(b)(5)].

Cross Reference:

Standard motion procedure, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, §§ 22.14 -22.17; Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, §§ 26.12 -26.36.

23.214[2] Excluding Evidence for Failure to Produce Report. If the examined party makes a request for the examiner's report and moves the court for an order to compel production of the report, but the examiner fails or refuses to make the report, the court may exclude the examiner's testimony if offered at trial [Fed R Civ P 35(b)(5)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical ExaminationsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMotions to Compel

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VIII. PHYSICAL AND MENTAL EXAMINATIONS
F. Obtaining and Using Examination Reports

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.215

23.215 Determining Effect of Request for and Delivery of Report.

23.215[1] Request of Examined Party Includes All Results of Earlier Examinations of Same Condition. If the party subject to an order for examination makes a request for the examiner's report, the examining party's duty of disclosure includes not only the results of the particular examination, but also "like reports of all earlier examinations of the same condition" [Fed R Civ P 35(b)(1)]. This duty also applies to an examination under a stipulation of the parties, unless the stipulation expressly provides otherwise [Fed R Civ P 35(b)(6)].

23.215[2] Delivery of Report by Examining Party Entitles Party to Results of Any Other Examination of Same Condition. Once the examining party furnishes the examiner's report after a request from the examined party, the examining party "may request--and is entitled to receive--from the party against whom the examination order was issued like reports of all earlier or later examinations of the same condition" [Fed R Civ P 35(b)(3)]. In short, making a request for and receiving the examiner's report carries the reciprocal obligation to provide the opposing party with any reports of any examination of the same condition. This reciprocal obligation applies to an examination under a stipulation of the parties, unless the stipulation expressly provides otherwise [Fed R Civ P 35(b)(6)]. There is authority from outside the Ninth Circuit that this reciprocal obligation applies only when the report is produced by the examining party under a request from the examined party, and not when the report is obtained under a court order [Benning v. Phelps (2d Cir 1957) 249 F2d 47, 48] or by voluntary disclosure by the examining party [Sher v. De Haven (DC Cir 1952) 199 F2d 777, 780-781].

23.215[3] Request of Examined Party Waives Any Privilege of Party As to Other Examinations of Same Condition. By requesting and obtaining a report of the examination or by taking the deposition of the examiner, the examined party waives any privilege regarding the testimony of any other person who examined or may examine the party with respect to the same condition [Fed R Civ P 35(b)(4)]. As a practical matter, however, this waiver will often be of little consequence, as the party's placing of the mental or physical condition "in controversy" will usually have already waived any privilege of the party as to the condition [see Price ex rel. Price v. County of San Diego (SD Cal 1996) 165 FRD 614, 622-623].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical Examinations

106 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
VIII. PHYSICAL AND MENTAL EXAMINATIONS
F. Obtaining and Using Examination Reports

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.216

23.216 Obtaining Report Under Other Discovery Provisions Not Precluded.

The ability of the examined party to obtain the report of the examiner under Rule 35 does not preclude discovery of the report or a deposition of the examiner when appropriate under other discovery rules [Fed R Civ P 35(b)(6)].

Strategic Point:

The examined party may wish to employ other discovery methods to avoid the reciprocal obligation to disclose its own reports of any examination of the same condition.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsMental & Physical Examinations

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IX. REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION
A. Requesting Admissions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.217

23.217 CHECKLIST: Requesting Admissions.

☐ Determine whether matter under consideration may be subject of request for admission.

○ Requests for admission may cover matters of fact, such as:

☐ Statement of fact.

☐ Opinion on matter of fact.

☐ Application of law to fact.

☐ Genuineness of a document.

○ Requests for admission may not cover any matter that is:

☐ Irrelevant.

☐ Privileged.

☐ Pure legal conclusion unrelated to facts of case.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 36(a)(1)

Discussion:
See § 23.218

☐ Consider whether alternative discovery devices may provide more direct and efficient means of obtaining desired information.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26-35

Discussion:
See § 23.02[8]

☐ Determine party or parties to whom requests for admission should be addressed.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 36(a)

Discussion:
See § 23.219

☐ Determine whether propounding requests for admission would violate time constraints.

○ Consider that requests for admission ordinarily may not be propounded prior to discovery conference.

Exception:
Earlier requests may be allowed by court order or by parties' stipulation.

○ Review any scheduling orders and other pretrial orders to determine applicable cutoff date for discovery, including requests for admission.

○ Review parties' proposed discovery plan and any scheduling orders and other pretrial orders to ascertain whether time constraints on propounding requests for admission have been modified.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(d), (f), 36(a)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.220[1], [3]

☐ If requests for admission would violate time constraints, consider either:

○ Entering into stipulation with other party to allow early or late requests for admission.

○ Seeking leave of court to propound early or late requests for admission.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 36(a)(3)

Discussion:
See § 23.220

☐ Decide how many requests to propound:

○ Ascertain whether local rules limit number of requests for admission.

○ Ascertain whether standing order of court limits number of requests for admission.

○ Ascertain whether court in present case has issued scheduling order or other pretrial order that limits number of requests for admission.

○ Consider whether contemplated requests would be so voluminous as to be deemed unduly burdensome and subject to protective order.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2)

Discussion:
See § 23.221

☐ Prepare requests for admission, observing following formalities:

○ Include heading and caption.

○ State and number each request separately.

○ Frame each request as statement, rather than question.

○ Phrase each request clearly and specifically.

○ Comply with applicable limits on number of requests.

○ If any request concerns genuineness of document that has not already been provided to responding party, attach copy of document to request.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2), 36(a)(2); Fed R Civ P Appendix of Forms, Form 51

Discussion:
See § 23.222

Forms:
See §§ 23.312, 23.313

☐ Sign requests for admission.

○ If propounding party is represented by counsel, attorney must sign.

○ If propounding party is not represented by counsel, propounding party must sign.

○ Signature must be accompanied by signer's address.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(g)(1); Fed R Civ P Appendix of Forms, Form 51

Discussion:
See § 23.223

☐ Serve requests for admission.

○ Serve signed requests for admission on responding party, sending copy of signed requests and retaining original if required to do so by local rules.

○ Serve copy of requests for admission on each other party that has appeared in case.

○ Execute and retain proof of service.

○ Do not file requests for admission until they are used in case or court orders filing.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 5(a), (d), 36(a)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.224, 23.225

☐ Calendar date for service of responses.

○ Note that responses to requests for admission ordinarily must be served within 30 days after service of requests.

○ Determine whether any court order, such as scheduling order or other pretrial order, has modified time for serving response to requests for admission.

○ Review any written agreement of parties that might have modified time for serving response to requests for admission.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 36(a)(3)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.231, 23.232

☐ Maintain record of requests for admission for use at trial or post-trial proceedings or as ordered by court.

○ Retain copy or, if required by local rules, original of requests for admission.

○ Retain original proof of service of requests for admission.

○ Retain original responses to requests.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 36(a)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.225, 23.240

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IX. REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION
A. Requesting Admissions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.218

23.218 Determine Whether Matter Under Consideration Is Subject to Requests for Admission.

23.218[1] Requests Must Concern Matters Relating to Facts. Requests for admission may call for the admission of any of the following [Fed R Civ P 36(a)(1)]:

- A statement of fact.
- An opinion on a matter of fact.
- The application of law to fact.
- The genuineness of a document.

Strategic Point--Propounding Party:

Requests for admission as to genuineness of documents can be particularly useful in helping determine which documents that are to be introduced at trial will present foundational problems.

23.218[2] Requests May Relate to Ultimate Facts. Requests for admission and the resulting admissions may relate to the ultimate facts of a case (that is, facts that prove dispositive of the entire case) [see Marchand v. Mercy Med. Ctr. (9th Cir 1994) 22 F3d 933, 936-939 ; Cereghino v. Boeing Co. (D Or 1994) 873 F Supp 398, 403]. That a matter on which an admission has been requested presents a genuine issue for trial is not an appropriate basis to object to the request [Fed R Civ P 36(a); see Chemical Eng'g Corp. v. Essef Indus., Inc. (Fed Cir 1986) 795 F2d 1565, 1575].

Because a request for admission may relate to opinions of fact, it may concern a matter that would otherwise be the subject of expert opinion [see Fed R Civ P 36(a)(1)(A)].

23.218[3] Requests May Relate to Application of Law to Facts. Requests for admission may relate to the application of law to fact [Fed R Civ P 36(a)(1)(A)]. Thus, for example, a party may be requested to admit what its contractual obligations are as a matter of law [Langer v. Monarch Life Ins. (3d Cir 1992) 966 F2d 786, 802].

23.218[4] Requests May Relate to Genuineness of Documents. Requests for admission may seek to establish the genuineness of documents [Fed R Civ P 36(a)(1)(B)].

Because the text of a document is a matter of fact, a request may require the responding party to admit or deny the accuracy of quoted text from a particular document [see Fed R Civ P 36(a)(1)(A)].

23.218[5] Requested Matter Must Be Relevant and Not Privileged. Requests for admission may concern any matter on which discovery may be had, that is, any nonprivileged matter that is relevant to the claims and defenses in the pending case [Fed R Civ P 36(a); see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(1)].

Cross Reference:

Relevancy and privileges, see Ch. 24, Restrictions on Scope and Extent of Discovery: Privileges and Work Product Protection.

23.218[6] Requested Matter Must Not Be Pure Legal Conclusion Unrelated to Facts of Case. Requests seeking legal conclusions or legal theories unrelated to the facts of the case are not authorized [Fed R Civ P 36, Committee Note of 1970; Playboy Enters. v. Welles (SD Cal 1999) 60 F Supp2d 1050, 1057]. In addition, requests may not be directed at an opponent's litigation strategy [Howell v. Maytag (MD Pa 1996) 168 FRD 502, 504].

Cross Reference:

Form, substance, and procedure for requests, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 36.10 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Judge's Perspective:

Requests for admission under Fed R Civ P 36 are not intended principally as a discovery device, but rather presuppose that the propounding party knows the facts set forth or possesses the documents about which the party seeks concession of genuineness [Safeco Ins. Co. of Am. v. Rawstron (CD Cal 1998) 181 FRD 441, 445].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsGeneral Overview

109 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IX. REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION
A. Requesting Admissions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.219

23.219 Propound Requests to Each Party Against Whom Admission Will Be Used.

Requests for admission may be directed to any party to the action, including coparties and adverse parties [Fed R Civ P 36(a)].

Strategic Point--Propounding Party:

An admission binds only the party to whom the request was propounded [see Fed R Civ P 36; Riberglass, Inc. v. Techni-Glass Indus., Inc. (11th Cir 1987) 811 F2d 565, 566-567]. The propounding party therefore should carefully review all parties' claims and defenses to determine which might be affected by a particular matter on which an admission might be sought. A separate request to admit that matter should be propounded to each party whose claim or defense might be affected by that matter.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsGeneral Overview

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IX. REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION
A. Requesting Admissions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.220

23.220 Determine Timing of Requests.

23.220[1] Service of Requests Generally Must Await Discovery Conference. Without leave of court or written stipulation, requests for admission may not be served before the parties' discovery conference under Fed R Civ P 26(f) [Fed R Civ P 26(d)].

Strategic Point:

Parties commonly serve several requests for admission at the beginning of a case to limit the scope of discovery needed. After most of discovery is completed, other requests can then be served to further limit issues for trial.

Warning:

Propounding requests for admission early in the litigation may prompt the objection that the request is premature. Such an objection is particularly likely when the requests seek opinions on a matter of fact.

Judge's Perspective:

Trial courts will presumably look with favor on requests for admission directed to undisputed matters, such as the genuineness of documents, that should have the effect of streamlining trial proceedings. In appropriate cases, counsel should consider stipulations with opposing counsel on matters such as document authenticity as an alternative to the more cumbersome request for admission mechanism.

Cross Reference:

Discussion of discovery planning, see Ch. 21, Discovery Strategy and Planning, §§ 21.03 -21.08.
Discussion of Rule 26(f) Conference, see Ch. 15, Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures.

23.220[2] Earlier Service of Requests May Be Based on Parties' Stipulation or Leave of Court. Requests for admission may be served prior to the parties' Fed R Civ P 26(f) discovery conference if permitted by the court or by the parties written stipulation [Fed R Civ P 26(d)(1)].

Warning:

Counsel should review the parties' proposed discovery plan [see Fed R Civ P 26(f)] and any scheduling orders and other pretrial orders entered in the case [see Fed R Civ P 16(b), (e)] to determine whether the standard time constraints on propounding requests for admission have been modified.

Cross Reference:

Stipulations, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, §§ 22.03 -22.13.

23.220[3] Discovery Cutoff Date Applies to Requests for Admission. Requests for admission are a discovery device subject to the deadlines applicable to discovery in general [see Marchand v. Mercy Med. Ctr. (9th Cir 1994) 22 F3d 933, 936-937 ; see, e.g., Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2), 29, 37(c)(2); Fed R Civ P Appendix of Forms, Form 35]. Accordingly, the discovery cutoff date specified in the scheduling order and any pretrial orders in the case apply to the use of requests for admission [see Fed R Civ P 16(b), (d)].

Judge's Perspective:

The requests, if extensive, should be sufficiently in advance of trial so that a burdensomeness objection will have less prospect of being sustained.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsGeneral Overview

111 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IX. REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION
A. Requesting Admissions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.221

23.221 Comply With Local Rules Limiting Number of Requests.

23.221[1] Check Judge's Standing Orders. Counsel should check for generally applicable standing orders of the court, and review scheduling orders and other pretrial orders in the particular case [see Fed R Civ P 16(b), (d)] to determine whether the number of requests is limited. A voluminous set of requests for admission may justify the issuance of a protective order if the court finds the requests to be unduly burdensome [see Fed R Civ P 26(c)].

23.221[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. A demand that the responding party set forth the basis for a denial of a requested admission will be counted as a separate interrogatory for purposes of the limit on the number of interrogatories that each party may propound [ND Cal Civ LR 33-2, 36-2].

23.221[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. No party may serve on any other party more than 25 requests for admission, including subparagraphs, without leave of court. To obtain leave to propound additional requests for admission, a party must submit to the court a written memorandum setting forth the proposed additional requests and the reasons establishing good cause for their use [SD Cal Civ LR 36.1(a)].

Distinguish:

The Central District and Eastern District do not limit the number of requests a party may serve [see CD Cal Civ LR 36-1-36-3; ED Cal Civ LR 250.4].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsContent & Form

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IX. REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION
A. Requesting Admissions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.222

23.222 Draft Requests Carefully.

23.222[1] Requests Must Be Clear and Precise. Statements posed by a party seeking their admission should be capable of an answer by yes or no [Honeycutt v. First Fed. Bank (WD Tenn 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 3629, at *3-*4 (statements that are vague, or susceptible of more than one interpretation, are properly objectionable)].

Draft each request simply and concisely, so that the responding party can easily admit or deny the request without explanation [Safeco Ins. Co. of Am. v. Rawstron (CD Cal 1998) 181 FRD 441, 447 ; see Fed R Civ P 36(a)].

Strategic Point--Propounding Party:

Counsel should consider preceding the first request with a preamble setting forth the time for responding, along with a brief explanation that a failure to respond will be deemed an admission. Although such a preamble is not required by Fed R Civ P 36, it will minimize the chances that the court might later grant a motion to withdraw a deemed admission based on the responding party's ignorance of the consequences of a failure to respond. A preamble is particularly advisable when propounding requests for admission to a pro se litigant [see Diggs v. Keller (D Nev 1998) 181 FRD 468, 469].

Cross References:

Official form of requests for admission, see § 23.312. Unofficial form including explanation of the consequences of failure to respond, see § 23.313.

23.222[2] State Each Request Separately. Each matter for which an admission is requested must be set forth separately [Fed R Civ P 36(a)(2)].

Strategic Point--Propounding Party:

Draft each request with the expectation that it will ultimately be read to the jury. Avoid argumentative, subjective, pejorative, legalistic, and conclusory terminology. To help keep the requests simple and direct, consider defining key terms separately at the beginning of the set of requests.

23.222[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. Number the requests sequentially, without repeating the numbers used on any prior set of requests propounded by that party [CD Cal Civ LR 36-1].

23.222[4] Frame Requests As Statements Not Questions. Draft each request for admission in the form of a declarative statement [see Fed R Civ P 36(a)].

Consider:

To minimize the possibility that a request may be found objectionable, or that a response may be found ambiguous (and therefore not effective as an admission), make sure that each request is directed to a single fact or issue. A compound request that requires the admission of two or more facts will only invite an evasive or unclear response. To help keep the requests simple and direct, consider defining key terms separately at the beginning of the set of requests.

23.222[5] Attach Relevant Documents. If a request pertains to the genuineness of a document, serve a copy of the document with the request, unless the document has been or is otherwise furnished or made available to the responding party [Fed R Civ P 36(a)(2)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsContent & Form

113 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IX. REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION
A. Requesting Admissions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.223

23.223 Request Must Be Signed on Behalf of Propounding Party.

The request for admission must be signed by the attorney for the propounding party or, if that party is not represented by counsel, by the party [see Fed R Civ P 26(g)(1)]. The person signing a request for admission must state his or her address, e-mail address, and telephone number [Fed R Civ P 26(g)(1)].

Consider:

The signature of the attorney or party certifies that to the best of the signer's knowledge, information, and belief, formed after reasonable inquiry, the request complies with applicable rules, is not made for an improper purpose, and is not unreasonable or unduly burdensome or expensive [Fed R Civ P 26(g)(1)(B)]. Sanctions may be imposed for a certification that violates these requirements [Fed R Civ P 26(g)(3)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsContent & Form

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IX. REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION
A. Requesting Admissions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.224

23.224 Serve Requests.

23.224[1] Signed Request Must Be Served on Responding Party. The signed requests for admission must be served on the party from whom the admission is requested [Fed R Civ P 5(a), 36(a)].

Consider:

Having proper proof of service of the requests for admission will be essential if it later becomes necessary to establish that the responding party has made a deemed admission by failing to respond to a properly served request to admit [see Fed R Civ P 36(a)(3), (6)].

Cross Reference:

Methods of service and other requirements pertaining to service of papers, see Ch. 5, Formatting, Serving, and Filing Papers, §§ 5.15 -5.23.

23.224[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Retain Original.

23.224[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. A copy of the signed requests should be served on the responding party; the original should be retained by the attorney propounding the requests pending use or further order of the court [CD Cal Civ LR 36-3].

23.224[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. The propounding party must retain the original of the discovery request [ND Cal Civ LR 26-1].

23.224[3] Serve Copies of Requests on All Other Parties. Copies of the requests for admission must be served on all other parties that have appeared in the case [Fed R Civ P 5(a)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsContent & Form

115 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IX. REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION
A. Requesting Admissions

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.225

23.225 Do Not File Request.

23.225[1] Requests Should Not Be Filed Until Used in Case. Requests for admission generally must not be filed until they are used in the case or the court orders filing [Fed R Civ P 5(d)(1)].

23.225[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: Filing Requirements.

23.225[2][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. When a request or response is required for use in a proceeding, only the part of the document that is at issue may be filed [CD Cal Civ LR 26-2]. Unless otherwise ordered by the court, the attorneys must hold the original requests and responses until the expiration of the time for appeal, the entry of a stipulation waiving or abandoning the right to appeal, or final disposition of appeal, whichever occurs first [CD Cal Civ LR 26-2, 36-3, 79-3].

23.225[2][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. Requests for admission, responses, and proof of service must not be filed unless and until there is a proceeding in which the document or service is at issue. When required in a proceeding, only the part of the request and response that is at issue may be filed [ED Cal Civ LR 250.4(c)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsContent & Form

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IX. REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION
B. Responding to Requests for Admission

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.226

23.226 CHECKLIST: Responding to Requests for Admission.

☐ When requests for admission are received, calendar date for service of responses.

○ Responses to requests for admission ordinarily must be served within 30 days after service of requests.

○ Failure to make timely response will ordinarily result in requested matters being deemed admitted.

○ Determine whether any court order, such as scheduling order or other pretrial order, has modified time for serving response to requests for admission.

○ Review any written agreement of parties that might have modified time for serving response to requests for admission.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 36(a)(3)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.230 -23.232

☐ If date for service of responses does not allow sufficient time to prepare responses, do either or both of following:

○ Negotiate with propounding party to obtain written agreement extending time for responses.

○ Move for court order extending time for responses, following standard noticed motion procedure.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 36(a)(3)

Discussion:
See § 23.233

Standard Procedure Checklists:
Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, see §§ 22.03, 22.14

☐ Review grounds for objecting.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(c)

Discussion:
See § 23.228

Standard Procedure Checklists:
Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, see §§ 22.12, 22.19

☐ Before answering or objecting, conduct reasonable inquiry.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 36(a)

Discussion:
See § 23.227

☐ Determine how to respond to each request, considering following possible responses, which may be used in combination:

○ Admission, either unqualified or qualified.

○ Complete or partial denial.

○ Stating inability to admit or deny, along with both of following:

☐ That responding party has made reasonable inquiry.

☐ That readily obtainable information is insufficient to enable responding party to admit or deny.

- Asserting objection, based on any of following:
  - Undue burden.
  - Improper scope of request.
  - Irrelevance.
- Privilege.
- Propounding party's failure to provide necessary document.
- Improper format of request.
- Untimely request.
- Excessive number of requests.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 36(a)

Discussion:
See § 23.229

- Prepare written responses to requests for admission, observing following formalities:
  - Include heading and caption.
  - Set forth each request in full before each response.

    Authority:
    Fed R Civ P 36(a)(4)

    Discussion:
    See § 23.236

    Form:
    See § 23.314
- Sign responses to requests for admission.
  - If responding party is represented by counsel, attorney must sign.

- ○ If responding party is not represented by counsel, responding party must sign.
- ○ Signature must be accompanied by signer's address.
- ○ Verification is not required.

☐ Serve responses to requests for admission.

- ○ Serve signed original responses on propounding party.
- ○ Serve copy of responses on each other party that has appeared in case.
- ○ Execute and retain original proof of service.
- ○ Do not file responses until they are used in case or court orders filing.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 5(a), (d)(1), 36(a)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.237 -23.240

☐ After serving responses, prepare and serve supplemental responses to requests for admission if and when both of the following occurs:

- ○ Responding party learns that original response is in some material respect incomplete or incorrect.
- ○ Additional or corrective information has not otherwise been made known to other parties during discovery process or in writing.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 26(e)(1)

Discussion:
See § 23.241

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsResponses

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IX. REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION
B. Responding to Requests for Admission

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.227

23.227 Responding Party Has Duty of Inquiry.

The answering party may not give lack of information or knowledge as a reason for failure to admit or deny, unless the party states that it has made a reasonable inquiry and insufficient information exists on which to base an admission or denial [Fed R Civ P 36(a)(4)]. The answering party must make reasonable inquiry and secure such knowledge and information as are readily obtainable [Asea, Inc. v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (9th Cir 1981) 669 F2d 1242, 1247 ; A. Farber & Partners, Inc. v. Garber (CD Cal 2006) 237 FRD 250, 256].

Generally, a reasonable inquiry is limited to review and inquiry of those persons and documents that are within the responding party's control [see T. Rowe Price Small-Cap Fund, Inc. v. Oppenheimer & Co. (SDNY 1997) 174 FRD 38, 46]. However, depending on the facts of the case, it might be reasonable for the responding party to inquire of a third party with whom the responding party has some relationship, such as a former employee of the responding party [see Brown v. Arlen Mgmt. Corp. (5th Cir 1981) 663 F2d 575, 580], or a co-defendant with whom the defendant has a close business and personal relationship [see A. Farber & Partners, Inc. v. Garber (CD Cal 2006) 237 FRD 250, 256].

Warning:

If the responding party has failed to make a reasonable inquiry and the propounding party makes a motion to determine the sufficiency of the response, the court may require an amended response, or order that the matter be deemed admitted [Fed R Civ P 36(a)(6); see, e.g., A. Farber & Partners, Inc. v. Garber (CD Cal 2006) 237 FRD 250, 256-257].

Cross Reference:

Motion to determine the sufficiency of a response, see § 23.243.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsResponses

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IX. REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION
B. Responding to Requests for Admission

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.228

23.228 Review Grounds for Objecting.

23.228[1] Improper Format of Request. An objection may be based on the request's noncompliance with format requirements, such as the requirement that each matter on which an admission is requested be set forth separately [Fed R Civ P 36(a)(2), (5)]. Thus, a request that is set forth as a compound or complex statement may be objectionable [see Fed R Civ P 36(a)(2)].

23.228[2] Untimely Request. An objection may be based on the propounding party's service of the requests in violation of the applicable time constraints [see Fed R Civ P 26(d)(1), 36(a)(5); see also 23.220].

23.228[3] Excessive Number of Requests. An objection may be made to requests that exceed any applicable limit on the number of requests for admission [see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2); see also 23.221].

23.228[4] Undue Burden. Undue burden may provide a ground for objection. Requests that are repetitive, voluminous, convoluted, vague, or ambiguous, or that otherwise require extensive analysis or explanation, may be objectionable [see Fed R Civ P 36(a), Committee Note of 1970; see also Nelson v. Capital One Bank (ND Cal 2001) 206 FRD 499, 500-501].

Counter Attack--Responding Party:

In appropriate cases, in lieu of objecting to an unduly burdensome set of requests for admission, the responding party may move for a protective order [Fed R Civ P 26(c); see Fed R Civ P 36, Committee Note of 1970]. Filing a motion for a protective order may be more efficient than merely stating objections and waiting for the propounding party to make a motion to determine the sufficiency of the responses [see Nelson v. Capital One Bank (ND Cal 2001) 206 FRD 499, 500], although motion practice can in some cases be expensive and time-consuming, and in other cases unnecessary. Note that after meeting and conferring with the responding party, the propounding party may decide to serve alternative requests.

Cross Reference:

Protective orders, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, §§ 22.35 -22.66.

23.228[5] Improper Scope of Request. Requests for admission are limited to statements or opinions of fact or the application of law to fact, including the genuineness of documents [Fed R Civ P 36(a)(1)]. A request that seeks an admission on other matters, for example, interpretations of law or the opponent's litigation strategy, is objectionable [see Fed R Civ P 36, Committee Note of 1970; Playboy Enters. v. Welles (SD Cal 1999) 60 F Supp2d 1050, 1057 ; Howell v. Maytag (MD Pa 1996) 168 FRD 502, 504].

23.228[6] Irrelevance. Because requests for admission are limited to matters within the scope of discovery [Fed R Civ P 36(a)], the responding party may validly object to a request to admit a matter that is irrelevant to the claims and defenses asserted in the case [see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(1)].

23.228[7] Privilege. Because requests for admission are limited to matters within the scope of discovery [Fed R Civ P 36(a)], the responding party may properly object to a request pertaining to a matter that is privileged, such as matters within the attorney-client privilege or the privilege against self-incrimination [see United States v. 266 Tonawanda Trail (6th Cir 1996) 95 F3d 422, 428 n10].

Strategic Point--Responding Party:

The responding party may object to a request for admission on the basis that responding to the request would infringe the responding party's right against self-incrimination. Although Fed R Civ P 36 provides that an admission is to be used only in the pending action and may not be used against the responding party in any other proceeding, the rule does not provide immunity from criminal prosecution [see FDIC v. Logsdon (WD Ky 1955) 18 FRD 57, 58].

Cross Reference:

Discovery privileges, see Ch. 24, Restrictions on Scope and Extent of Discovery: Privileges and Work Product Protection, §§ 24.12 -24.28.

23.228[8] Failure to Provide Document. An objection may be based on the propounding party's failure to serve a document whose genuineness is the subject of the request, if the document is not otherwise available to the responding party [Fed R Civ P 36(a)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsObjections

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IX. REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION
B. Responding to Requests for Admission

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.229

23.229 Respondent's Options.

23.229[1] Answer. When served with requests for admissions, the responding party may respond with an answer, which may be either an express admission, a denial, or an explanation of why the responding party cannot admit or deny [see Fed R Civ P 36(a)(4)].

Cross Reference:

Types of responses, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 36.11[5] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

23.229[2] Object. When served with requests for admissions, the responding party may respond with an objection [see Fed R Civ P 36(a)(5)].

Warning:

If the court concludes that an objection to a request is unfounded, it can deem the request admitted [see Fed R Civ P 36(a)(6); see also 23.245, 23.246].

Judge's Perspective:

Hypertechnical objections to the meaning of straightforward requests for admission, especially those seeking easily discernible facts such as the genuineness of documents, are highly disfavored. In other words, "knee-jerk" objections that appear to flow from nothing more than the fear of making any type of admission have the potential of opening the objecting party to sanctions under Rules 37, 26, or 36.

23.229[3] Ask to Extend Time. The responding party may ask the propounding party to agree to an extension of the time to respond [see Fed R Civ P 36(a)(3)]. Further, the responding party may file a motion for an order extending the time to respond [see Fed R Civ P 36(a)(3)].

Cross Reference:

Discovery motions, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, §§ 22.14 -22.34.

23.229[4] Seek Protective Order. If a request for admission is oppressive or would cause the responding party annoyance, embarrassment, oppression, or undue burden or expense, the court may issue a protective order sua sponte or on motion by the responding party [see Fed R Civ P 26(c); Nelson v. Capital One Bank (ND Cal 2001) 206 FRD 499, 500-501].

The court's power to issue protective orders includes the power to limit the frequency or extent of requests for admission that the court determines are unreasonably cumulative, duplicative, or unduly burdensome or expensive [see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(2), (c)].

Cross Reference:

Protective orders, see Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation or Motion, §§ 22.35 -22.66.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsObjectionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsResponses

120 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IX. REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION
B. Responding to Requests for Admission

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.230

23.230 Failure to Respond Is Deemed Admission.

If the party to whom a request for admission has been directed does not serve a timely response, the requested matter is admitted [Fed R Civ P 26(a)(3); see, e.g., In re Heritage Bond Litig. (CD Cal 2004) 220 FRD 624, 626-627 (requested matter deemed admitted when response served 12 days late after two extensions of time were granted)]. Failure to respond results in automatic admission with no motion necessary [Switchmusic.com, Inc. v. U.S. Music Corp. (CD Cal 2006) 416 F Supp2d 812, 817 (Rule 36(a) is self-executing)].

Strategic Point--Propounding Party:

Although unanswered requests for admission are automatically deemed judicially admitted [see Fed R Civ P 36(a); Cook v. Allstate Ins. Co. (CD Cal 2004) 337 F Supp2d 1206, 1210], the propounding party will still need to lay a foundation for the use of the deemed admission at trial. The propounding party therefore should prepare to present the request for admission and proof of service at trial, along with testimony that no response was ever received, to establish that the requirements for a deemed admission have been met. The propounding party may also rely on default admissions on summary judgment [see, e.g., Switchmusic.com, Inc. v. U.S. Music Corp. (CD Cal 2006) 416 F Supp2d 812, 817].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsEffectCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsResponses

121 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IX. REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION
B. Responding to Requests for Admission

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.231

23.231 Response Must Be Served Within 30 Days.

The party to whom a request for admission has been directed must serve a written response on the party requesting the admission within 30 days of service of the requests for admission, unless another time is set by court order or by the parties' written agreement [Fed R Civ P 36(a)(3)].

If service is by a method other than hand delivery [see Fed R Civ P 5(b)(2)(C)-(F)], three days are added to the time for responding to the requests [Fed R Civ P 6(d)].

Cross Reference:

Service requirements, see Ch. 5, Formatting, Serving, and Filing Papers, §§ 5.15 -5.23.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsResponses

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IX. REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION
B. Responding to Requests for Admission

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.232

23.232 Exceptions to 30-Day Period to Respond.

23.232[1] Court Order. The time for responding to requests for admission may be extended by court order [Fed R Civ P 36(a)(3); see Diggs v. Keller (D Nev 1998) 181 FRD 468, 469].

Example:

Defendant was allowed to file a late response in one of plaintiff's requests for admissions when failure to respond was inadvertent, decision on the merits of the case would be advanced by allowing response, and plaintiff would not be prejudiced by the late response [Upchurch v. USTNET, Inc. (D Or 1995) 160 FRD 131, 132].

Warning:

Counsel should review the parties' proposed discovery plan [see Fed R Civ P 26(f); see also Fed R Civ P Appendix of Forms, Form 35] and any scheduling orders and other pretrial orders [see Fed R Civ P 16(b), (e)] to determine whether the court has modified the 30-day period for responding to requests for admission.

Cross Reference:

Discovery conference, see Ch. 15, Rule 26(f) Conference and Initial Disclosures, §§ 15.03 -15.14.

23.232[2] Parties' Written Stipulation. The time for responding to requests for admission may be shortened or extended by the parties' written agreement [Fed R Civ P 36(a)(3)]. However, an agreement extending the time for responses requires court approval if it would interfere with any time set for completion of discovery, for hearing of a motion, or for trial [Fed R Civ P 29].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsResponses

123 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IX. REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION
B. Responding to Requests for Admission

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.233

23.233 Responding Party May Move for Relief From Failure to Make Timely Response.

The court may under certain circumstances allow the withdrawal of a deemed admission, effectively permitting the filing of a late response and relieving the responding party of the effect of the failure to respond timely [Fed R Civ P 36(b); see Diggs v. Keller (D Nev 1998) 181 FRD 468, 469 ; Upchurch v. USTNET, Inc. (D Or 1995) 160 FRD 131, 132-133]. However, this discretion will be exercised only under compelling circumstances, i.e., when necessary to relieve a party from default by the use of the admissions to obtain a summary judgment or default [Conlon v. United States (9th Cir 2007) 474 F3d 616, 622 ; In re Heritage Bond Litig. (CD Cal 2004) 220 FRD 624, 626].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsResponses

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IX. REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION
B. Responding to Requests for Admission

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.234

23.234 Responses Must Be in Writing.

The response to a request for admission must be in writing [Fed R Civ P 36(a)(3)].

Cross Reference:

Form of response, see § 23.314.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsResponses

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IX. REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION
B. Responding to Requests for Admission

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.235

23.235 LOCAL PRACTICE: Quote Requests in Response.

23.235[1] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. Responses or objections to requests for admission must quote each request in full immediately preceding the statement of any response or objection [CD Cal Civ LR 36-2].

23.235[2] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. Responses to requests for admission must set forth each request in full before each response[ED Cal Civ LR 250.4(a)].

23.235[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. Responses to requests for admission must set forth each request in full before each response or objection [ND Cal Civ LR 36-1].

23.235[4] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. Responses and objections to requests for admission must identify and quote each request in full immediately preceding the statement of any response or objection [SD Cal Civ LR 36.1(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsResponses

126 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IX. REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION
B. Responding to Requests for Admission

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.236

23.236 Drafting Response.

23.236[1] State Admission.

23.236[1][a] Unqualified Admission. If the responding party chooses to admit a requested matter without qualification, a simple admission is all that is necessary. No explanation is needed, and no evidence or authority need be cited [see Fed R Civ P 36(a)(4)].

Counter Attack--Responding Party:

If the responding party has admitted a matter and the propounding party attempts to conduct additional discovery on that matter, the responding party may seek a protective order [see Fed R Civ P 26(c)]. Although a request for admission is not objectionable merely because it may duplicate information obtained through discovery, once a matter is admitted, it is no longer an issue and is outside the scope of permissible discovery [see Fed R Civ P 26(b)(1)].

23.236[1][b] Admission With Qualification. When the responding party qualifies a response or denies only a part of a requested matter, the responding party must specify which part of the requested matter is true and qualify or deny the remainder [Fed R Civ P 36(a)(4); Holmgren v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1992) 976 F2d 573, 579-580].

Warning--Responding Party:

The court may award the propounding party the expenses incurred in proving a matter that the responding party failed to admit, unless the court finds that the request was objectionable, the admission sought was of no substantial importance, the party failing to admit had reasonable ground to believe that it might prevail on the matter, or there was other good reason for failure to admit [Fed R Civ P 37(c)(2); see Fed R Civ P 26(g)(3), 36(a)].

Cross Reference:

Motion to recover expenses of proof after an unreasonable failure to admit, see § 23.254.

23.236[2] State Denial.

23.236[2][a] Complete Denial. A complete denial of a request for admission must specifically deny the requested matter and fairly meet the substance of the request. No explanation is needed, and no evidence or authority need be cited [see Fed R Civ P 36(a)(4)].

23.236[2][b] Partial Denial. When good faith requires that the responding party deny only a part of a requested matter, the responding party must specify which part of the requested matter is true and deny the remainder [Fed R Civ P 36(a)(4); Holmgren v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (9th Cir 1992) 976 F2d 573, 579-580].

23.236[3] Assert Lack of Information. If the responding party cannot truthfully admit or deny a request for admission, the response must state specifically the reasons why the responding party cannot admit or deny [Fed R Civ P 36(a)(4)]. The response may specify a lack of information or knowledge as the reason for a failure to admit or deny, but only if the response states both of the following [Fed R Civ P 36(a)(4)]:

- The responding party has made a reasonable inquiry.
- The information known to or readily obtainable by the responding party is insufficient to enable the party to admit or deny.

Warning:

A response asserting that the responding party made a reasonable inquiry (and that the inquiry did not uncover sufficient information to enable the party to admit or deny) will be deemed inadequate if the responding party did not actually make a reasonable inquiry [Asea, Inc. v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (9th Cir 1981) 669 F2d 1242, 1247].

Distinguish:

A party may respond to an interrogatory by stating that its answer is to be found in specified business records [Fed R Civ P 33(d)]. This is not a proper response to a request for admission [In re Heritage Bond Litig. (CD Cal 2004) 220 FRD 624, 626].

Cross Reference:

Providing business records in lieu of answer to interrogatory, see § 23.126.

23.236[4] Assert Objections.

23.236[4][a] State Objections to Avoid Waiver. If the responding party responds to a request without objecting to it, any objection is waived [see Fed R Civ P 36(a)].

The responding party may seek relief from a waiver of objection by moving to withdraw or amend the resulting admission [see Fed R Civ P 36(b); 23.249].

Warning:

An objection to a part of a request does not excuse the responding party from properly responding to the other parts of the request to which the responding party has raised no specific objection [see Fed R Civ P 36(a)(4)].

23.236[4][b] State Reasons for Objection. The reasons for any objection must be set forth in the response [Fed R

Civ P 36(a)(5); ED Cal Civ LR 250.4(b)].

In the Eastern District, the objection must also include, if appropriate, citation to relevant authority [ED Cal Civ LR 250.4(b); see Fed R Civ P 36(a)(5)].

23.236[4][c] Avoid Improper Objections. The following objections are not allowable:

- That a matter on which an admission has been requested presents an ultimate issue in the case [Fed R Civ P 36(a)(5); Marchand v. Mercy Med. Ctr. (9th Cir 1994) 22 F3d 933, 936-939].

- That a requested opinion is a matter for expert opinion [see Fed R Civ P 36(a)].

- That the propounding party has the burden of proof on the matter requested, because the purpose of requests for admission is to eliminate the need to make discovery of uncontested facts [see Fed R Civ P 36(a)].

- That the responding party lacks personal knowledge, or that the requested matter consists of facts within the knowledge of the propounding party, if the information is obtainable on reasonable inquiry by the responding party [Fed R Civ P 36, Committee Note of 1970].

- That the requests cover many of the issues in the case, or the entire case [see Fed R Civ P 36, Committee Note of 1970].

- That the requested matter constitutes a genuine issue for trial or that the request goes to a disputed matter presenting a genuine issue for trial [Fed R Civ P 36(a)(5); Fed R Civ P 36, Committee Note of 1970].

- That the request relates to opinions of fact or the application of law to fact [Fed R Civ P 36(a)(1)(A)].

- That the request has been or will be duplicated by upcoming discovery, since the purpose of requests for admission is to eliminate the need to make discovery of uncontested facts [see Fed R Civ P 36(a)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsResponses

127 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IX. REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION
B. Responding to Requests for Admission

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.237

23.237 Response Must Be Signed on Behalf of Responding Party.

The response to requests for admission must be signed by the attorney for the responding party or, if that party is not represented by counsel, by the party. The person signing must also state his or her address, e-mail address, and telephone number [Fed R Civ P 26(g)(1), 36(a)].

Warning--Responding Party:

The signature of the attorney or party certifies that to the best of the signer's knowledge, information, and belief, formed after a reasonable inquiry, the response complies with applicable rules, is not made for an improper purpose, and is not unreasonable [Fed R Civ P 26(g)(1)]. Sanctions may be imposed for a certification that violates these requirements [Fed R Civ P 26(g)(3)].

Cross Reference:

Detailed coverage of the certification implicit in the signature, see Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, § 25.109.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsResponses

128 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IX. REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION
B. Responding to Requests for Admission

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.238

23.238 Verification Is Not Required.

The response to requests for admission need not be verified [see Fed R Civ P 26(g)(1), 36(a); see also Fed R Civ P 36, Committee Note of 1970].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsResponses

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IX. REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION
B. Responding to Requests for Admission

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.239

23.239 Serve Responses.

23.239[1] Serve Original Response on Propounding Party. The signed response to the requests for admission must be served on the propounding party before the deadline, which is usually 30 days after service of the requests [Fed R Civ P 5(a), 36(a)(3)].

Warning:

Having proper proof of service of the responses will be essential if it later becomes necessary to resist a contention that the responding party has made a deemed admission by failing to serve a timely response [see Fed R Civ P 36(a)].

Cross Reference:

Serving papers, see Ch. 5, Formatting, Serving, and Filing Papers, §§ 5.15 -5.23.

23.239[2] Serve Copies of Response on All Other Parties. Copies of the response to the requests for admission must be served on all other parties that have appeared in the case [Fed R Civ P 5(a)(1)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsResponses

130 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IX. REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION
B. Responding to Requests for Admission

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.240

23.240 Propounding Party Should Not File Response.

23.240[1] Responses Are Not Filed Until Used in Case. Responses to requests for admission generally must not be filed until they are used in the case or the court orders filing [Fed R Civ P 5(d)(1)].

23.240[2] Retain Original Response. Because responses ordinarily must not be filed until they are used at trial [Fed R Civ P 5(d)(1)], the propounding party should retain the original responses received from the responding party and ensure that they are available at trial and for any other proceedings for which they may be needed.

23.240[3] LOCAL PRACTICE: Filing and Retention Requirements.

23.240[3][a] LOCAL PRACTICE: CD Cal Requirements. When a request or response is required for use in a proceeding, only the part of the document that is at issue may be filed [CD Cal Civ LR 26-2]. Unless otherwise ordered by the court, the attorneys must hold the original requests and responses until the expiration of the time for appeal, the entry of a stipulation waiving or abandoning the right to appeal, or final disposition of appeal, whichever occurs first [CD Cal Civ LR 26-2, 79-3].

23.240[3][b] LOCAL PRACTICE: ED Cal Requirements. No request for admission, response, or proof of service may be filed unless and until there is a proceeding in which the document or service is at issue. When required in a proceeding, only the part of the request and response that is at issue may be filed [ED Cal Civ LR 250.4(c)].

23.240[3][c] LOCAL PRACTICE: ND Cal Requirements. The propounding party must retain the original of the request and the original response [ND Cal Civ LR 26-1].

23.240[3][d] LOCAL PRACTICE: SD Cal Requirements. Unless filing is ordered by the court sua sponte or on the motion of a party, requests for admission and responses to them need not be filed unless and until they are used in the case [SD Cal Civ LR 36.1(c)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsResponses

131 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IX. REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION
B. Responding to Requests for Admission

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.241

23.241 Respondent Must Supplement Responses.

The responding party is under a duty to supplement or correct a response to include information thereafter acquired if ordered by the court [Fed R Civ P 26(e)]. Further, the responding party has an ongoing duty seasonably to amend a prior response to a request for admission if the party learns that the response is in some material respect incomplete or incorrect, and if the additional or corrective information has not otherwise been made known to the other parties during the discovery process or in writing [Fed R Civ P 26(e)(1); see also Fed R Civ P 37(c)(1) (sanctions for failure to amend)].

Warning:

Generally, any amended response may simply be served on the other parties to the action. However, if the original response is an admission, the responding party must first obtain a court order allowing the amendment [Fed R Civ P 36(b)].

Cross References:

Motions to withdraw or amend admissions, see § 23.249. Sanctions for failure to supplement discovery responses, see Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, §§ 25.50 -25.58.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsResponses

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IX. REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION
B. Responding to Requests for Admission

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.242

23.242 Sanctions May Be Available for Inadequate Response.

If the response is considered inadequate, untimely, or incomplete, or if the responding party failed to supplement a response under Rule 26(e)(1), the requesting party can request sanctions under Fed R Civ P 36(a)(6), Fed R Civ P 26(g)(1), or Fed R Civ P 37(c)(2) [see Hadley v. United States (9th Cir 1995) 45 F3d 1345, 1350 (district court should have considered lesser sanction for taxpayer's failure to respond timely to request for admission, rather than deeming it admitted)].

Cross References:

Recovering expenses of proving matters not admitted, see § 23.254. Discovery sanctions, see Ch. 25, Motions to Compel and Discovery Sanctions, §§ 25.59 -25.70.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsResponsesCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMisconduct

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IX. REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION
C. Moving to Determine Sufficiency of Responses

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.243

23.243 CHECKLIST: Moving to Determine Sufficiency of Responses.

23.243[1] Propounding Party's Checklist.

☐ Review sufficiency of responses to requests for admission, considering following:

○ Response consisting of complete denial is sufficient, because it clearly leaves denied matter as issue in case.

○ Response consisting of complete admission is sufficient, because it clearly eliminates issue from case.

○ Lack of timely response to any request is sufficient, because it is automatically deemed complete admission of that matter.

○ Response consisting of partial admission or denial, refusal to admit or deny, or objection may be insufficient if it leaves doubts about whether requested matter is still at issue.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 36(a)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.228 -23.230

☐ If any response appears to be insufficient, move for order determining sufficiency of response.

○ Comply with any applicable local requirement to confer with opposing counsel before making motion.

○ Draft notice of motion and motion, requesting following:

☐ Order that matter is deemed admitted.

☐ Award of reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, incurred in relation to motion.

○ Include with motion and supporting papers original request for admission and response, authenticated by supporting affidavit or declaration.

○ Follow standard noticed motion procedure.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 5(d), 26(g)(3), 36(a)(6), 37(a)(5)

Discussion:
See § 23.244

Form:
See § 23.315

Standard Procedure Checklists:
Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation and Motion, see § 22.14; Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.12

☐ If court finds that response is insufficient and orders that matter is deemed admitted, adjust trial preparation accordingly.

☐ If court finds that response is insufficient and orders responding party to serve amended response:

○ Calendar date for service of amended response.

○ When amended response is received, review it for sufficiency.

○ If amended response appears to be insufficient, make further motion for order determining sufficiency of response.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 36(a)(6)

Discussion:

See §§ 23.244 -23.248

☐ If court defers disposition of motion until pretrial conference or other designated time, calendar that date and prepare to renew motion at that time.

23.243[2] Responding Party's Checklist.

☐ If propounding party moves for order determining sufficiency of response:

○ Calendar dates for filing and serving opposition to motion and for hearing.

○ Prepare opposition, including request for leave to file amended response if court finds original response to be insufficient.

○ Follow standard noticed motion procedure.

Standard Procedure Checklists:
Ch. 22, Regulation of Discovery by Stipulation and Motion, see § 22.14; Ch. 26, Pretrial Motion Practice, see § 26.37

☐ If court finds that response is insufficient and orders that matter is deemed admitted, consider making motion to withdraw or amend that admission.

☐ If court finds that response is insufficient and orders responding party to serve amended response, prepare amended response and serve it within time specified by court.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 36(a)

Discussion:
See §§ 23.249 -23.253

☐ If court defers disposition of motion until pretrial conference or other designated time, calendar that date and prepare to reassert opposition to motion at that time.

Authority:
Fed R Civ P 36(a)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsResponses

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IX. REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION
C. Moving to Determine Sufficiency of Responses

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.244

23.244 Requesting Party May Move to Determine Sufficiency of Responses.

A party that has requested admissions may file a motion asking the court to determine the sufficiency of the responses [Fed R Civ P 36(a)(6); see Collins v. JC Penney Life Ins. Co. (SD Cal 2003) 2003 US Dist LEXIS 8455, at *9].

Distinguish:

A motion to determine the sufficiency of a response should not be used to test the accuracy of a denial that fairly meets the substance of the requested admission [see Fed R Civ P 36(a)(4), (6)]. In the case of such a denial, the propounding party's proper course is to prove the inaccuracy of the denial at trial, and then move to recover the expenses and fees incurred in making that proof [Marchand v. Mercy Med. Ctr. (9th Cir 1994) 22 F3d 933, 937-938 ; see Fed R Civ P 37(c)(2); see also Fed R Civ P 26(g)(3)].

Strategic Point--Propounding Party:

If the propounding party's trial strategy or presentation will be affected by the response to a request for admission, use of this motion could reduce the propounding party's time and expense. Moreover, the propounding party may not want to wait until trial to prove the insufficiency of the answer. Establishing the sufficiency of an admission before trial can allow a party to focus trial preparation on other issues.

Cross References:

Challenging sufficiency, see 7 Moore's Federal Practice, § 36.12 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

Form of motion to determine the sufficiency of responses, see § 23.315.

Judge's Perspective:

A motion to determine the sufficiency of responses is an infrequently used device most likely because the expense and burden of bringing the motion is seldom commensurate with the results. In the event that the denial is in proper form, the court will often be disinclined to delve into the question further at the motion stage and will prefer to address the matter at trial. An exception to that general approach is when nailing down an admission is critical for use in a motion for summary judgment. In that instance, a party may find it necessary to pursue a sufficiency motion and should alert the court that the need to confront the accuracy of the denial is owing to the party's expectation of making a dispositive motion implicating the issue addressed in the request for admission.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsAdmissionsResponses

135 of 175 DOCUMENTS

Matthew Bender Practice Guide: Federal Pretrial Civil Procedure in California
Kendall, Seeborg, Shartsis, Smith

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Unit 7 Discovery
CHAPTER 23 Methods of Discovery
IX. REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION
C. Moving to Determine Sufficiency of Responses

3-23 MB Practice Guide: Fed Pretrial Civ Proc in CA 23.245

23.245 Unless Objection Is Justified, Court Will Order Answer.

